Casey the caiman goes to school

By ANITA CRONE

Casey the caiman has a new home. After living since Feb. 1 at the Westland animal shelter, the 45-inch, 16 pound reptile will be moving soon to his new home at Meads Mill Middle School in Northville, under the supervision of his new owners, Dwight Sieggreen and Norman Hannewald.

While the caiman, a member of the alligator family, will not have all the benefits it might have were it still living in its native South America, it will have a 5-foot by 7-foot plexiglass cage, plenty of food and water, and a lot of attention, not to mention companionship.

Sieggreen and Hannewald already have three boa constrictors and an iguana residing at Meads Mill as well as tropical fish. The caiman may be new, but the two men's love of reptiles isn't.

"I really am excited," Sieggreen said, visiting the animal Monday

'A caiman is a reptile and like any reptile, is borderline unpredictable.'

— Dwight Sieggreen, Meads Mill teacher

afternoon. "I can't wait for him to come home with us."

The Michian Humane Society is equally excited about Casey's new home.

"We spent about two weeks calling zoos, places in Florida and anywhere we could think of to try and find a home for the caiman," said Kathy Blauet. "We usually don't like to let our animals be adopted by schools, but in this case, we couldn't have found a better home for it."

As for Sieggreen, he calls the chance to adopt the caiman "a chance in a million."

Sieggreen has spent more than a few summers in the Amazon, studying other reptiles, and Hannewald has taken trips to Florida, also on reptile-study missions.

While Sieggreen is the official adoptive 'parent' of the caiman, Hannewald is building the animal's new home.

Hannewald said the plexiglass cage will include both a greenhouse and a water area, and probably will be carpeted with indoor-outdoor carpeting to help keep the facility clean.

"I think, once the caiman gets to the school, he'll probably spend a lot of time in the greenhouse until he adjusts to us," Sieggreen said, noting also that he hopes to be able to "socialize the caiman" a bit, so the animal will take food directly from a hand, rather than from a stick.

The caiman, although not eating much lately, eats raw meat, including round steak and chicken wings, bones and all. The only requirement the Humane Society had before approving the adoption was the animal not be fed live food.

"We'll try him on round steak and chicken and other raw meat and see what he likes to eat," Sieggreen said.

Preliminary of fire station draws comments

Northville Township's planned fire station at Seven Mile between Beck and Ridge roads came a step closer to reality with the presentation for Township Board consideration of the architect's plans for the building.

Tkacz — Associates, a Plymouth architectural firm, presented a rendering of the proposed facility, featuring three bays for vehicles, a spacious lobby area and living quarters for full-time firefighters.

The lobby area and number of bays drew most of the response from board members, and they were nearly unanimous in requesting the lobby area be reduced in size.

"I'm very concerned about wasted space in the lobby," said Trustee Richard Allen. "I'm not saying it isn't nice, but I really don't know what we need all the space for."

His thoughts were echoed by Richard Henningsen, who noted the design was "a high-priced building. I can't believe we can't do it more efficiently."

Already, the building has run into a financial snag caused by a power line located on the proposed site. Relocation of the line and installation of four poles could cost $32,750, almost one-tenth the total construction cost.

Specifications for the project include 5,400 square feet of total space, drive-through bays, a dormitory, meeting room and kitchen, work areas for repair of equipment, storage room, locker area, showers, wiring for a stand-by generator and zoned heating and cooling.

When Tkacz — Associates presented its plans, its design called for three bays, an addition that would cost $45,000.

"It was our understanding the board wanted a design that would adapt to the future and not be outdated by the time it was constructed," said Stanley Tkacz, speaking for the architectural firm.

Tkacz noted the plans call also for the relocation of part of a drainage ditch 140 feet to the west of its current location.

"We have had a bit of a problem getting approval from the Department of Natural Resources, since the area where the station is to be built lies in a flood plain," Tkacz said, noting the construction plans do not call for the relocation of the total drain.

The architectural firm will continue to meet with the board in an attempt to resolve the problems. However, even had the initial plans met with wholehearted board approval, there still would be one major issue remaining: funding.

The fire department currently is funded by a .5 mill allocation. No funds have been approved for construction.

Recreation commission approves master plan

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Northville Recreation Commission formally approved a Five-Year Master Plan submitted by Community Recreation Director John Anderson in a public hearing February 11 at City Hall.

The plan still must be approved by the City of Northville. Northville Township gave its okay to the proposal during its monthly meeting Feb. 13, although the township did ask that the plan include references to the community's bike paths along Six Mile Road.

"There was good discussion about the plan, and the commission and residents were generally receptive to what we are trying to do," Anderson said.

The plan calls for the Community Recreation Department to pursue state grants and local contributions in an effort to develop a new recreation area and purchase existing fields.

The approval will authorize Anderson to apply for a 1986-87 Land and Water Conservation Grant funded through the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. A grant of $50,000 would be used to construct a lighted softball-baseball diamond, and other athletic fields, at Community Park. The land is located on Beck Road adjacent to the Western Wayne Correctional Facility and was deeded to the township for recreational use from the State of Michigan.

In addition to the diamond, a lighted junior baseball field and a soccer field will be constructed with plans for tennis courts, restrooms and a picnic area in the future. Anderson said that the Rec Center will try to raise an additional $50,000 from local businesses and that construction will begin as soon as the funding is available.

"We are hoping the to recruit local organizations interested in helping defray some of the costs," he said.

The second part of the plan calls for purchasing two existing fields that are currently used by the department. One, Lapham Field on Six Mile Road, is owned privately; the other is the Training Center Field at the Wayne County Child Development Center on Sheldon Road.

"These two fields are used by the community, but Northville Recreation doesn't own them," Anderson explained. "We want to purchase them to make sure that the people of the city have full access to them."

Merchants pull Tylenol from area stores

By ANITA CRONE

While the most recent cases of tampering with Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules appear to be confined to the New York area, local distributors and pharmacies are taking no chances with the product.

"Rather than jeopardize the safety and health of the consumer, we have stopped distributing the product," said Ann Newman, president of Frank W. Kerr Co. of Novi, the state's largest pharmaceutical distributor.

Spokespeople for retail stores such as A & P, Perry Drugs, Arbor Drugs and Kmart said their companies had voluntarily withdrawn the product from store shelves.

Newman said the firm had received its information on the suspected tampering from news reports, "the same as everyone else" and immediately recalled all shipments.

We have none of the cited code numbers of the product in stock,"

Newman said; however, she would not comment as to whether the firm had distributed any of the products bearing the code numbers of Tylenol which New York authorities had cited.

Two bottles of Tylenol, bearing the code numbers ADF 916 and AHA 090 had been found to contain cyanide; however, both incidents occurred in New York state. No cases of tampering have been reported in Michigan.

"It's (tracking shipments) not like in the old days when you had to wait to reach someone by telephone. Everything is computerized and all you have to do is check the distribution list from the computer," Newman said.

While Newman would not divulge how much money Frank W. Kerr Co. lost during the most recent scare, she did say the financial consideration was secondary to the company's position of "doing our utmost to protect the consumer."

Salt keeps learning pathway clear

By ANITA CRONE

While this year's winter has taken its toll on Northville Public Schools' supply of salt, the school district is in no danger of running out.

"Right now, I have about 28 tons still on hand," said Tom Bailey, administrative assistant for operations in the Northville schools. "We've used about 120 tons so far this year, which is just about average."

Northville is one of the few school districts to have its own salt supply. Most districts, like Novi, get their supply from a city on an as-needed basis.

"Whenever we need salt, we go to the city and they provide it," said Mike Zamanski, who is maintenance and operations director for Novi schools. The city bills the school district at the end of the season for the amount of salt it has used. Zamanski added that there are supplies of sand with chemicals as well as bags of ice-melting materials on hand at each individual school.

Northville's salt supply is stored by the district's transportation garage, but Bailey said he would like to see that changed.

"It would be better if we could make an arrangement with the city to keep our salt with theirs, since they have an indoor storage area," he said.

Outdoor storage can sometimes leave the salt exposed to the elements and rain and sleet can cause the salt to cake, making it difficult, if not impossible, to spread.

Bailey added that thus far this winter the district has used 50 man hours to spread its salt, and most times just a single spreading is enough to control the problem.

There are days, however, like during the February 4 ice storm, where more coats are needed.

"If the storm had come a little earlier, or during the night, we probably would have canceled classes," Bailey said. "But it started raining and freezing right about 7:30 a.m. and most of the buses were already out picking up students."

"We did one coat of salt, and by the time we were finished, the rain had frozen over into ice, and we had to do the whole thing again. That may have contributed to some of the accidents, since the buses arrived between saltings."

The school district has its own spreaders, as well as its own trucks to get the salt from the central storage area to where it is needed.

And, if the district should run low, it is not uncommon to call upon the city for help.

"If it looks like we are running low, we'll borrow from the city, and they will do the same with us," Bailey said.

Haggerty development leads Modrack's priority list

Community Development Director Matt Modrack

By ANITA CRONE

At 31, Matthew Modrack was not born when Northville Township was created, but he certainly is involved in its growth.

Modrack, of Royal Oak, has been the township's community development director for three weeks, but already is hard at work, looking at projects along the Haggerty Road corridor as well as apartment and multi-family dwelling units.

A land use planner by trade with a bachelor's degree in urban planning from Michigan State University, Modrack is intimately involved with the township's development. He is the person developers turn to for help in working projects through a system that includes planning commission meetings, building department approvals and generally ensuring projects conform to the wishes of the township board.

And he has moved into his job with a solid understanding of the community, gained while employed by Vilcan Leman, the township's planning consultant.

"I wasn't intimately involved with the township's master plan, but I certainly was aware it existed," Modrack explained. "And I also knew it was a solid plan, well thought out and developed."

Being aware of a plan and working directly from it, however, have been two different things. Perhaps nothing brought the challenge home to Modrack more than a recent telephone call he received from a realty agent.

"He told me that there were two homes for sale in Northville Township. Just two homes in the entire township. That's just amazing in a township that is only one-third developed," Modrack said.

His immediate concern, though, is development of the Haggerty Road corridor. The opening up of Interstate 275, Interstate 96 and the M-14 corridor has spurred interest for business development along Haggerty Road, as well as for additional housing in the community.

"It's my job to be in a coordinator for private development. Because developers have to go through so many different agencies before they can actually build their projects, they find it easier to have a point man on their side, to explain the rules and regulations and the process in working with a township," Modrack says.

His first allegiance, however, is to his employer, the Northville Township board of trustees. He is their representative to the developers, and it is his initial responsibility to ensure the master plan is followed.

"The township has made a pretty strong statement on development in its master plan, including well thought out land usage," Modrack said. "You don't have the problem of unchecked development in Northville Township that you may find in some communities."

Even with the restrictions, though, Modrack said developers see the township as a "plum, ripe for quality development, including hotels, office buildings and single family homes."

He said there are very few undeveloped areas left for multi-family development, and he expects the township to maintain its single family orientation to continue as building expands westward.

Modrack's personal goals, however, center around Haggerty Road and what he can do in the next three to five years.

"I would like to be seen as one of the coordinating forces of developing the Haggerty Road area," he says, but once the development is complete, he would just as soon be forgotten.

"If it (the development) is done right and it's quality development and it works well, people in the future won't remember the people or the time and effort that went into the project," Modrack said. He'd be more than content to be the forgotten man.

Township harbors apartment village

The principals at Liberty Construction Co. are high on Northville Township. Their affection for the community is so strong that they plan to have a 13 building, 168-unit apartment complex completed by late summer.

"We really do love the community," said Sam Yaker, president of Liberty Construction and developers of Harbor Village.

"Northville Township is not arbitrarily and capriciously anti-development like some communities," Yaker said. "They work with us in a positive manner."

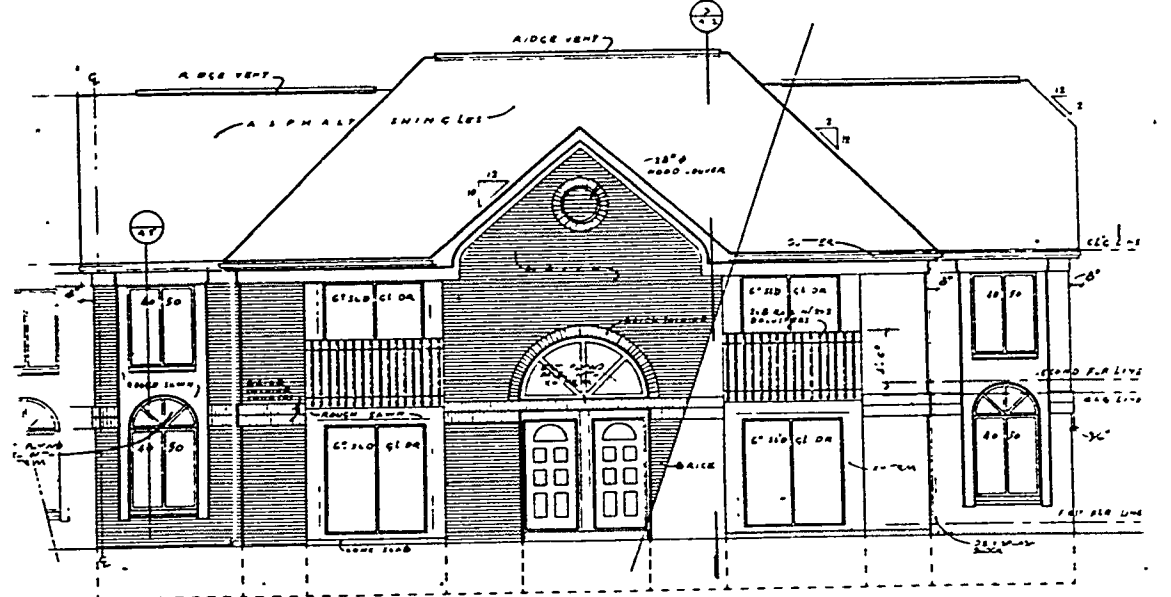

Harbor Village is the second large Northville Township apartment development for the general contracting firm, which also built Swan Harbor. The Harbor Village complex will include 32 one-bedroom and 136 two-bedroom units, each with a private entrance.

Yaker said he anticipates rents to be around $600 for the one-bedroom apartments and about $700 for two-bedrooms.

Construction began in late January on the 22-acre site overlooking Swan Lake. The new development is located east of Swan Harbor, but sits on higher ground.

"People in Harbor Village can actually look down on Swan Harbor," Yaker said, "and, depending on the location of the individual units, some of the tenants will be able to see Eight Mile Road."

Although Liberty Construction has had control of the land for the development since 1981, either via purchase agreement or option, Yaker said the company decided to go ahead with construction now because the economy has improved and there "is a definite demand for additional housing."

Kensington Metropark hosts special events

Two programs will be held at the Nature Center of the Kensington Metropark near Milford this weekend.

On Saturday, February 22, a 15-minute musical puppet show called "Kensington Owls and Friends" will be featured. The show, suitable for all ages, can be viewed at 1:30 and 2 p.m.

On Sunday, February 23, a 1½-hour combination indoor and outdoor program, entitled "Tracks of Common Wildlife" will be shown at 10 a.m.

All nature programs at the park are free but require advance registration. Call 1-800-522-6772 (toll free). A vehicle entry permit (annual $10, senior citizen, $5; or daily, $2) is required.

"The automobile companies have brought more things home, rather than farming them out to other communities or diversifying more and there definitely is an increased demand for quality housing," Yaker said. "And, with the interest rates lower than they have been, now seemed a good time to get the project going."

In addition to the individual apartments, which will each contain a washer and dryer, the project will include tennis courts, a swimming pool and a community room. Rental applications will be taken beginning in late spring.

National magazine selects local painter for art exhibition

Northville artist Martha Barnes will be flying to Anaheim, Calif., this May for the opening of a traveling national exhibit of 40 winning artworks.

One of the pieces of art, chosen from more than 10,000 entries submitted in a contest sponsored by Modern Maturity Magazine, is "Basket of Babysbreath" by the Northville artist.

"It's exciting," she agrees, to have her acrylic selected as a national winner.

She mentions that she already has been getting calls from friends who have seen the picture printed in the February-March issue of the magazine, a publication of the American Association of Retired Persons.

Even though the only identification of the artist is by name, she says there are queries from those who know her work "and assumed it was mine."

The wicker basket in the winning picture is placed on a rough, barn-like shelf against what appears to be the interior of a barn.

Shortly after moving to Westmeth in Northville Township 7½ years ago, Barnes became known locally for her barn paintings. An exhibit of her work was featured in a display at the Community Federal Credit Union.

"I've gotten away from barns, somewhat," the artist notes, mentioning that she enjoys still life and beautiful landscapes. In addition to using the medium of acrylics, she also "fools with watercolors, too."

The Modern Maturity Magazine contest Barnes entered was open to artists who were at least 50 years old. From the 10,000 entries submitted the magazine chose 40 for "The Seasoned Eye" feature and is publishing the 40 in the current issue and the April-May and the June-July issues.

Barnes says the magazine will announce the top winners as the traveling exhibit opens.

Six prestige galleries in major cities will receive the show. The nearest will be Chicago with Dallas, Atlanta and Salt Lake City other announced cities to have it.

Barnes, who used to teach art, is a member of the Farmington and Livonia art clubs.

Her studio? "It's right in my kitchen at the sink," reveals the artist who brings her brushes, palette and easel to the kitchen where the light is right.

SUPER COMPANY—Northville High School grad Laurie Smigielski, now public relations director at the Hyatt Regency New Orleans, is flanked by

Hyatt's the spot for NHS grad

"The excitement never seems to stop in my career," Laurie Smigielski acknowledges.

The 1977 Northville High School graduate has held the title of public relations director at the Hyatt Regency New Orleans for more than a year.

Her most recent adventure came as the New Orleans Hyatt was chosen as the National Football League and media headquarter hotel for Super Bowl II.

"It was an awesome task," Smigielski says of handling all requests from the NFL as well as "catering to the needs of media representatives from around the world."

Noting that "the eyes and ears of the world enviously turned to the Super City," she recounts how Most Valuable Players of past Super Bowls, football legends, NFL team owners and media celebrities wandered to and from the Cable News Network (CNN), Entertainment Sports Network (ESPN) and NBC sets inside the Hyatt.

Smigielski notes that there were more than 3,000 sports writers and broadcasters "hungrily seeking out stories."

It was Smigielski's job to coordinate setting up the three networks — all of whom broadcast live from the Hyatt the week before Super Bowl. At the same time she worked with other radio and television stations around the country doing interviews, developing story ideas and helping set up broadcasts.

Smigielski says the experience was, without a doubt, "the most exciting one in my life — I cannot quite compare the feeling of being in the middle of the biggest sporting event in the world to anything else."

She admits that the day after Super Bowl she had a let-down feeling but notes that in New Orleans the Mardi Gras season already has started with parades, balls and parties.

Smigielski also is a 1981 graduate of the University of Michigan with a BA degree in English. She has been in New Orleans since May, 1984. Last year, in the course of her duties at the Hyatt she met with Tito, Jermaine and Randy Jackson who were in town to help kick off a crime prevention program.

Smigielski mentions that she was in Northville visiting her mother at Christmastime and was "very impressed with the way downtown Northville looks," saying it's still possible to be a bit homesick even in a very special job.

Here's chance for free help

Kelly Services, as part of its Kellyweek celebration, is accepting nominations from non-profit agencies to receive 20 hours of free services from the temporary employment agency.

Ronna Smith, coordinator for Kellyweek, said the 40 metropolitan Detroit Kelly Services branch offices will donate 260 hours of free services to the agencies, which will be selected by a random drawing from a list of those nominated.

Included in the offering is clerical, accounting, word processing and light industrial duties — any work Kelly employees are capable of performing.

Although there is no Kelly office in either Northville or Novi, residents of either community are welcome to nominate agencies to receive the free service.

The Livonia office last year gave its 20 hours to the American Cancer Society, and Boysville of Michigan was selected to receive the free work from the Farmington Hills office.

Nominations are being accepted by mail or telephone at any Kelly office. The Livonia Kelly office is located at 33133 Schoolcraft, 522-4020. The Farmington Hills office is at 34115 W. Twelve Mile, 553-7820.

He noted even had the Humane Society not banned live meat for the caiman it was extremely unlikely Casey would be able to catch live food, since the animal suffers from 'rubber jaw,' a calcium deficiency which has made his teeth grow outwards and keeps his jaw from closing completely.

That has not stopped Casey from letting his feelings be well known. While he did let Sieggreen and Hannewald handle him Monday, he was much happier when he was back in his private pool.

While caimans do not make loud vocal sounds like dogs or lions, they do make sort of a hissing sound. Blauet said the caiman's original owner told her that Casey would also make a clicking sound, kind of carrying on a conversation with its owner.

"They (caimans) can also move really quickly. In that way, they are much like the iguana," Hannewald noted. He seemed totally unconcerned that Casey's eyes, which had been slits while he was in his pool, had widened as the two science teachers were holding him.

Both men were very careful, however, to ensure their hands were covered, and they kept very careful hold of the animal.

"A caiman is a reptile and like any reptile, is borderline unpredictable," Sieggreen said. That knowledge did little to stem his enthusiasm for the upcoming adoption.

The Humane Society still must complete the formal adoption paperwork before Casey moves to Meads Mill, although Sieggreen said he has gotten permission from Meads Mill principal Dave Longridge and the Northville Board of Education. Sieggreen said he had checked with Northville Township and apparently there is no township ban on exotic pets.

Nor apparently have there been complaints from parents or students at the middle school. Sieggreen said keeping reptiles may have a positive effect on the students.

"They don't ask their parents for boas or for iguanas or caimans because they have the opportunity to study them at the school. They gain a respect for the animals," Sieggreen said.

And that respect carries over from the teacher to the student.

"I don't know how much teachers really teach as much as they provide an environment in which to learn," Sieggreen said. By early next week, Casey will be part of that environment.

School awaits arrival of caiman 'Casey'

Oakland County 'wants' township in E-911 program

By ANITA CRONE

Despite an "invitation" by Oakland County Executive Daniel Murphy to participate in Oakland County's enhanced 911 emergency system, the township of Northville, which is located entirely in Wayne County, will not be part of the program. But the city of Northville, half of which lies in Wayne County, will join.

"Oakland County is offering the enhanced services to its municipalities. We certainly do not intend to go into another county," said Robert E. Chisholm, director of public services for Oakland County.

The enhanced system would allow communities to ascertain immediately from what telephone number an emergency call is received and would also provide an address.

Under the current 911 system, police and fire dispatchers do not have instantaneous ability to trace an emergency call.

Chisholm said, however, the county would provide the service to the entire city of Northville, even the portion of the community which lies south of Eight Mile Road.

The question of the Northville Township's participation arose in September, when the Township received a form letter from Murphy advising Supervisor Susan Heintz that the Oakland County Board of Commissioners had approved the county-wide E-911 program and funding.

Enclosed was a service agreement, outlining financial obligations of the participating communities. In Northville Township's case, the letter was addressed to Heintz at the Township offices on Six Mile Road.

Murphy's letter said questions could be answered by Paul Phelps, manager of EMS Disaster Control Division, and Phelps "will be available to work with you and the neighboring communities within your telephone wire district(s) in order to assure coordinated and timely implementation (of the program)."

Phelps was not in his office Friday or Monday and could not be reached for comment, but Northville Township Police Chief Kenneth Hardesty said he had talked with Phelps and the township was not supposed to be included in Oakland County's system.

Rodney Cannon, Northville city chief of police said that the city would definitely participate in the program. Cannon said Oakland County was assuming the entire cost of the wiring for the new system and would share with the participating municipalities annual recurring costs. Murphy's letter said the recurring cost was estimated at $73.

"My last communication with Mr. Phelps was Feb. 7 and in a letter he indicated 23 of 54 communities eligible for the enhanced service had indicated their intention to participate," Cannon said.

He added that it could take as long as a year before the enhanced 911 system was operational.

City Blotter

Saxophone stolen from school band room

It was reported to police on February 14 that a saxophone, valued at $1,069, was taken from the band room at the Northville High School.

It is believed that the incident took place sometime between February 11 and 13. The new gold sax is a Selmer Omega brand, serial number 824177.

An egg-shaped solid glass ball was used to break the right passenger window of a 1976 Chevrolet pickup owned by a Northville man. An AM-FM cassette deck, valued at $300, and a set of speakers, valued at $200, were then taken from the vehicle, according to the police report.

The incident happened on February 4 and police are asking area residents if they have any information on the unique glass ball. It is described as about three inches tall, two inches wide with a flat base. It has a unique series of colored dots (yellow, blue, red, orange, green and white) along the base going an inch and a half up. Police believe the ball was originally used as a paperweight. Any information regarding this object or the saxophone should be directed to officer Dave Fendeleit at 349-1280.

Say it with . . .

... a telegram — a singing telegram, no less. With a little nudging from teacher Mary Kay Pryce, Northville High School choral students donned their most romantic attire and hit the hallways last Friday afternoon to deliver Valentine's Day messages. The singing cupids not only offered a few musical words of love, but delivered carnations from love-struck

It's time to move on recreation plan

That the Northville Recreation Commission which serves both city and township has adopted a Five Year Plan for development of recreational facilities is a positive step. As soon as it is approved by the city (the township already has done so), we hope there will be steps toward implementation.

The need has existed for a long time for additional playing fields — multi-purpose fields for soccer, etc. as well as a baseball diamond and community tennis courts.

Through the efforts of local legislators, both Senator R. Robert Geake and Representative Gerald Law, the township last July 17 successfully completed a two-year attempt to obtain the 39-acre parcel north of the prison at Five Mile and Beck roads from the state. Declared surplus land, the township finally received a quit claim deed to the site for a token $1. (Actually, supervisor Susan Heintz says, the township sent $2.) With the donation, however, comes a requirement that the property be utilized only for recreational use.

By the time the township acquired the site, plans, drafted at a cost of $9,000, had been approved for use of the property. With baseball diamonds and soccer fields and a community building with rest rooms the cost was estimated at $1 million. It was acknowledged that the community building necessarily would be the last phase of construction.

It also was anticipated that there would have to be special funding for such an ambitious project. Recreation director John Anderson's statement that he will be pursuing grants for some of the funding is encouraging. This should be done to the fullest extent possible. Realistically, however, a community fund raising plan also will be needed.

Anderson and the commission also will have to find funding and cityownship assistance for the second phase of the plan — acquiring sites presently used but not owned by the recreation department. Including these needs in a Five Year Master Plan is a first step; implementation is the next.

Fire station plans can't burn budget

That additional fire protection is needed for the western part of Northville Township is not questioned. The township board of trustees and fire chief Robert Toms (as well as residents who live on the westerly side) acknowledged this when a site was purchased on Seven Mile for a station.

Since the purchase, development in the area was slower than expected as the state-wide recession affected planned home building. Such is not the case now. North Beacon Woods subdivision is approaching completion and there are many new homes along both Six and Seven Mile roads.

It also is unlikely that construction costs ever will be less than they are now. Therefore, we're glad to see the township studying building plans. We also agree with Trustee Richard Allen and Treasurer Richard Henningsen that this is not intended to be a luxury building. Like them, we do not see a need for a spacious lobby. On the other hand, it is good planning to anticipate future needs and consider a three-bay structure rather than a two-bay one.

The township board indicated its desire to build a structure that would serve the community beyond the immediate future by including in its request for bids a multi-purpose room that includes dormitory room for six people, a meeting room and a kitchen, indicating at least an awareness the fire department may one day include full-time firefighters.

Granted that it is difficult to visualize details from an initial sketch, but we agree with board officials — a simple, basic design is what most of us expect for this auxiliary station. When the property was purchased and discussion began regarding a station for the west side of the township, it was suggested that fire department officials might inspect similar stations in the area to gain an idea of what is available, and at what cost. The fire station built by the City of Novi on Beck Road has been cited for its attractiveness in a residential area. It also appears to be a basic installation.

Because funding will have to be sought for the station, either by bonding or voted millage, it is essential that the best value package possible be presented to township residents.

Not the only disaster

By Michele M. Fecht

While January 28, 1986, is a day not likely to be forgotten by most Americans — or others for that matter — the shock and stunned silence which gripped the nation on that horrific Tuesday morning seems somewhat less acute in the three weeks since the Challenger disaster.

The news of the shuttle explosion reached our newsroom as most of us were hammering out headlines to meet a 2 p.m. deadline. Few on the staff were able to digest the full impact of the tragedy in the frenzy to get the paper to the presses. However, once at home, I sat glued to the television set watching in agony as the shuttle's crew disappeared in a puff of smoke.

In our attempt to localize the space program's worst disaster, we followed other newspapers and television crews into school classrooms. As the first "citizen in space," New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe had become the pride of the teaching profession. While the nation mourned the loss of all the shuttle's crew members, her death was particularly poignant to schoolchildren and fellow educators.

I could have predicted the reactions of local teachers and administrators even before making contact with each school principal in the week following the tragedy. Many teachers in possession of McAuliffe's lesson plans were eagerly awaiting directions for their first earth-to-space assignment. Those who applied to the Teacher in Space program, such as Novi elementary teacher Julie Kaufman, were watching the first space-bound educator with a mixture of envy and enormous pride.

I was moved by the sorrow expressed by teachers. While the nation lost seven heroes, the teaching profession lost one of its own.

Then there were the children. In the aftermath of the Challenger disaster, psychologists encouraged parents to talk to their children about the incident. They noted that children witnessing the tragedy on television may need additional counseling to help overcome their fears.

While I found this to be sound advice, I couldn't help but wonder what made this incident an exception. That so many children were watching the tragedy unfold in their classrooms perhaps is reason enough. However, television has offered much greater horrors in the last few decades.

One Northville elementary administrator noted that his greatest concern the morning of the shuttle disaster was for teachers and other staff members. He pointed out that while students in his building were saddened by the news, many children have acquired a certain resiliency to tragedy. Subjected to daily doses of violence and terror as well as disaster, children today regard such adversity from an entirely different perspective than their parents.

How can they help it? In a world where child abduction, sexual abuse, hijackings, assassinations, world hunger and nuclear armament dominate headlines, it is understandable why this young generation is beginning to acquire a certain immunity. To dwell on such madness would indeed prove devastating.

The single most memorable crisis of my childhood was Kennedy's assassination. Though only in my first year of elementary school, I still can vividly recall my mother sitting in front of the television set hour after hour occasionally brushing away the tears. Though too young to fully understand the scope of that tragedy, I remember my own feelings of anxiety as I watched my parents' agony.

I wonder how the first graders of today will remember the shuttle tragedy in the year 2006. In the annals of space history, it no doubt will be regarded as one of America's darkest moments. However, for the next generation, there most likely will be other equally tragic memories. Like their counterparts of 20-some years ago, this generation has witnessed the shooting of a president. They also have lived through one of the worst years in aviation history as well as the hijacking and killing of innocent Americans abroad.

Perhaps this is why the shuttle tragedy was so devastating. It was not just another space flight, but a chance for tens of thousands of schoolchildren to see beyond the world's troubles — and to take in the wonder of it all.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

He's not a nice man.

I'm speaking about Toby, the fellow who runs the aerobic weight lifting class I'm enrolled in and have now attended a grand total of three times.

Sure, he seems like a nice enough fellow. But if you watch carefully, you'll know what I'm talking about.

I'll give you an example. It was my second class, and I was doing the leg extensions and toe extensions — two of the 11 exercises which complete a circuit around the Nautilus.

Well, I was having a relatively easy time with the extensions and forgot to put the pained expression on my face which accompanies my efforts on the other nine exercises.

Unfortunately, Toby noticed.

"That's too easy for you," he said. "Next time I'm raising you 25 pounds."

I accepted the direction without protest and made a note to raise the weights my next class. What I found out shortly later was that Toby had intended for me to add 25 pounds on both my second and third circuits. And when I started the leg extensions at the lighter weight on the second circuit, he accused me of dogging it.

That, of course, is only one example. The very same night I was about two-thirds through my third circuit when he noticed I was crawling from one weight station to the next. "I've got you crawling," he chortled gleefully. "I must be doing something right."

But the worst offense came moments later. I was really struggling with the last exercise — curls, and had to quit after nine repetitions instead of the prescribed 12 in order to prevent permanent injury.

"I just can't do any more, Toby," I panted, allowing the weight to fall back in place.

"It's all right," he smiled. "You forgot to change the weights and were lifting twice as much as you're supposed to be lifting."

As soon as I was able to catch my breath, I mumbled something about the pen being mightier than the bench press. The way I figure it, this guy has got to learn not to mess with me.

Local merchants pull Tylenol from shelves

Providence Hospital in Novi does not prescribe Tylenol Capsules for its patients, instead using Tylenol tablets, a spokesperson for the hospital said. "We have never used the capsules," she noted when asked whether the hospital had used Tylenol capsules prior to the reported tampering in Chicago in 1982.

Leslie Kota, a spokesperson for Kmart, said the firm had voluntarily removed all capsules from the 2,100 stores nationwide which have a pharmacy. Noting the company receives some of its pharmaceuticals from the Frank W. Kerr Co., Kota said Kmart receives its Extra-Strength Tylenol directly from McNeil Laboratories in Pennsylvania.

Perry Drugs has removed not only Extra-Strength Tylenol from its shelves, but regular strength capsules as well, according to Bev Lyons. Lyons added that Perry also receives its Tylenol from McNeil, rather than from a distributor.

Johnson & Johnson, maker of Tylenol, has offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the latest "act of terrorism" against the firm.

"We are asking people not to use Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules bearing the codes ADF 916 or AHA 090," Elsie Behmer, a spokesperson for Johnson & Johnson, said. "Anyone who finds the product with those code numbers should return the unused portion to the point of purchase."

Persons with questions about the product can call a nationwide hot-line, toll free. That number is 800-237-9800.

Behmer added it would be up to the consumers whether the capsules in question continue to be sold. "The company has made no decision to withdraw Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules from the market," Behmer said Friday. However, Monday news reports said Johnson & Johnson would no longer sell Tylenol capsules to the general public.

The New York incident, which left one woman dead, marks the second time since 1982 cyanide has been discovered in capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol. A 1982 incident in Chicago resulted in Johnson & Johnson revamping its packaging to include tamper resistant covers on bottles of the product.

Seven people died in the 1982 incident, and no one was ever convicted of the tampering.

Students cross the bridge from high school proper to the annex

NHS walkway crossing raises concern

To the Editor:
With the continuing flu epidemic, the present policy at Northville High School of having all students walk to the annex for science classes poses a real threat to the health of students.

My daughter, one of several who have had or who now has the flu, was one of those whose health was threatened. Her doctor released her to return to school after several days off. He was certainly unaware that she would have to walk through the rain in near freezing temperatures to the annex. As a result, she had a serious relapse. Her doctor feels it was directly caused by her being out in inclement weather so soon after the flu.

As a parent, I feel care is not being exercised at the high school to help ensure the health of the students. Bus service has been refused to students. We pay our school taxes, and now we are asked to pay added medical expenses or have them (students) excused from class at the annex, a class they have already missed because of illness.

My fears are echoed by many parents I have talked to. Our pleas have fallen on deaf ears. Students are made to suffer because this school is now six months overdue on completion. I only hope something is done before a tragedy occurs.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Cher Ash

Jaycees seek help with July 4 plans

To the Editor:
As we close our 25th year serving the greater community of Northville, we anxiously look forward to entering our second quarter of a century.

We now are in the position of planning our major project of the year, the Fourth of July celebration. It is no secret that this project attracts thousands of people to our community of Northville each year. This project has become an overwhelming event for us to implement alone.

It is indeed a massive undertaking.

We are seeking help from other organizations and individuals to continue this great tradition. We need help!

Any group or individual who would like to serve on the 1986 Fourth of July committee should attend our next general membership meeting on Wednesday, the 26th of February, at 8 p.m. at city hall.

All interested parties are invited to attend.

Phony solicitations don't help police, fire

Police and firefighters save a vital role in keeping citizens safe from crime, fire and personal injury.

Unfortunately, according to the Better Business Bureau, there are a number of unscrupulous organizations that profess to raise funds for the benefit of police and firefighters, but in reality are collecting funds for their own financial gain.

Legitimate police or firefighter organizations should be willing to provide potential donors with any information they might reasonably want to consider before making a contribution. Organizations with nothing to hide will encourage your interest.

Ask the following questions before you give:

- Ask for a copy of the organization's latest annual report, roster of board members and financial statements. This information will give you a better understanding of the organization's purposes, how and where the programs are carried out, and how much of the organization's income is spent on its programs versus how much is spent on fund-raising and administration. Find out how many police or firefighter members the organization has and what areas the members are from.

- Ask the organization about any affiliations it might have with other local or national organizations.

- If the contribution involves purchasing tickets or advertisements, find out how much of your contribution actually goes to the police or firefighter organization. A direct contribution might better suit your charitable goal.

- Find out what specific programs the funds are raised to support.

Also, the BBB has a new pamphlet, "Tips on Solicitations by Police and Firefighter Organizations," which describes the different types of organizations and their solicitations.

This pamphlet is available free by sending a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to the Better Business Bureau/Detroit and Eastern Michigan, 150 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

Caution urged in weight loss

If one of your New Year's resolutions is to lose weight, you are not alone. Fifty million Americans are overweight and, in a society that values slimmness, many persons hoping for quick and easy weight loss may be attracted to bogus products or plans.

While everyone would love a miracle cure, experts generally agree that losing weight requires a combination of reducing food intake and increasing exercise.

To provide consumers with factual information to consider before undertaking any weight loss plan, the Council of Better Business Bureaus and the Food and Drug Administration have issued a report titled "Weight Loss Promotions." The report describes in detail many types of weight loss promotions, lists sources of help and information, and provides tips for successful weight loss as well as tips to recognize weight-loss quackery.

Many of the estimated 50 million overweight Americans dream of losing weight quickly and painlessly without sacrificing any of their favorite foods or changing basic dietary and exercise habits. Numerous promoters of weight loss products and techniques have sought to cash in on this expanding market by capitalizing on this paradox.

Persons who are concerned about weight loss should first establish whether there is a genuine need to lose weight, then determine what will and what won't work to shed the excess poundage and finally learn how to obtain qualified help which can contribute to a successful — and permanent — weight loss.

Overweight refers to the pounds an individual carries that are in excess of desirable body weight, and its occurrence is judged most commonly on the basis of weight to height. Obesity is a term which implies a serious amount of fatness — 20 percent or more above desirable body weight.

People who have determined they need to lose weight often look to the marketplace for weight loss aids or services such as non-prescription drugs, starch blockers, bulk producers, grapefruit diet pills, weight loss clinics and formula diets/diet plans. The report gives detailed information on each.

Other weight loss promotions claim to "burn fat while you sleep" or provide "all the figure toning of 3,000 sit-ups without moving an inch." Some of the most common quack products are described in the report and include body wraps, electric muscle stimulators and fad and novelty diets.

Some important tips to remember when choosing a successful weight loss program are:

□ Before buying any product which makes weight loss claims or committing to any other weight loss program, consumers should check with their physician, a qualified nutritionist or registered dietitian, the Better Business Bureau, local or state health department, an extension agent with the United States Department of Agriculture, or nearest Food and Drug Administration office.

□ Be leery of any diet that provides fewer than 800 calories a day, promises weight loss greater than two pounds per week or focuses on one or a few food groups.

□ Significant weight loss should not be undertaken without competent medical supervision, especially if the amount of weight loss sought is more than 10 percent of normal weight of an individual.

□ Diets should be nutritionally well-balanced with a variety of foods including dairy products, meats, poultry and fish, fruits, vegetables, legumes and whole grains.

□ Any diet pill or other weight-loss product is at best, only a temporary or partial measure. Long-term weight loss requires a permanent change in eating habits.

There are many sources of help and information available for those searching for a way to reduce.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has jurisdiction over, among other things, any food, drug, device or cosmetic that is adulterated or misbranded. For example, FDA has exercised its authority by seizing and destroying products from firms that were improperly selling or using electric muscle stimulators for weight loss. The FDA's field offices can often answer questions about a product's legitimacy and the truth of claims for it.

Better Business Bureaus (BBBs) are self-regulatory consumer service organizations supported by business. They provide reports about companies located in their service areas.

Consumers can obtain a copy of the "Weight Loss Promotions" report by sending 25 cents and a self-addressed stamped business-size envelope to the Better Business Bureau/Detroit and Eastern Michigan, 150 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

In an additional effort to provide valuable information to professionals and the public, the BBB, FDA and Detroit Consumer Affairs Department will co-sponsor a one day conference titled "Food: Fact, Fiction and Fraud" on April 22, 1986, at Cobo Hall in Detroit. Local and national authorities will discuss food quackery, the role of fat in a diet plan, food irradiation and food advertising. Further information can be obtained by contacting the FDA, BBB or Consumer Affairs Department.

Success formula is low overhead and lower prices

By JEAN DAY

"Keeping overhead down and prices low" is John Colizzi's formula for drawing customers from The Sawmill, his unfinished and custom finished furniture store in Northville.

The first week in February Colizzi moved the expanding business into the heart of the Northville business district at 316 North Center where he now has more warehouse room and will continue to offer the unfinished and custom lines of furniture as well as finishing services.

Colizzi also has a store in Wyandotte which he began eight years ago, and then expanded to Main Street in Northville. When the Main Street building was sold, Colizzi moved to 42301 Seven Mile in Northville Plaza Mall.

"We had no complaints — I was happy in the mall but even then I had plans to move eventually to this location," Colizzi explained, mentioning that he had kept in touch with owner Chuck Ely. He noted that he has done much renovation of the building that formerly housed a hardware.

He pointed out that the building with parking immediately in front of the entrance offers "better customer loading."

Within the next two or three weeks, he promised, a work area for customers who wish to finish their furniture right at the store will be available.

Along with the move into downtown Northville, Colizzi is expanding his manufacturing department in Wyandotte.

"It's a complete custom shop where we custom size bookcases and other pieces to the customer's specifications," Colizzi explained.

He also has expanded The Sawmill's finishing department which has three full-time finishers on the staff.

"We'll do anything — paint, stain or antique — as the customer wants," Colizzi said. "We're professionals and can match exactly a hutch, for instance, to the customer's existing table and chairs."

Colizzi said that, while having The Sawmill finish a piece selected by a customer naturally is more expensive than if the customer finishes it, the result is completely professional.

"We do very well with pine, maple

Be prepared for '85 state income taxes

In addition to filing your 1985 federal income tax return, don't forget you may be required to file a return with the State of Michigan.

In fact, you may be required to file a Michigan return if you do not have to file a federal return. The Michigan Association of CPAs offers this advice to taxpayers to assist them in preparing their state return.

Who should file a state return? Those with a federal adjusted gross income greater than the total amount allowed for Michigan personal and dependency exemptions or those who are eligible for a refund. The deadline date is the same for federal and state returns. It must be postmarked by April 15, 1986 to avoid paying a penalty. For 1985, the tax is to be computed using a rate of 5.33 percent.

The amount for each personal exemption remains at $1,500. Beginning with 1985 claims, Act 415, P.A. 1985, grants an extra personal exemption to taxpayers who are deaf. To qualify for the exemption, a taxpayer or spouse must be hearing impaired to the degree that the primary way he or she receives messages is through a sense other than hearing. Claim the exemption on line 8c, Form MI-1040.

The tax forms and instructions have been mailed to residential addresses and post office boxes and can also be obtained at local offices of the Michigan Department of Treasury or from tax return preparers. This year, the Michigan Department of Treasury has developed an "EZ" income tax return. You can choose the EZ option if all of the following are true for you:

- ☐ You file a 1985 federal form 1040EZ.
- ☐ You were a Michigan resident for all of 1985.
- ☐ You are not eligible to claim any Michigan income tax credits except the ones allowed for income tax paid to a Michigan city and credit for public contributions.
- ☐ You do not have any of these kinds of income: Interest income from other state obligations; interest income from U.S. obligations; or military pay.

The Homestead Property Tax Credit is available to all homeowners and renters. If your credit exceeds your tax liability you may receive a refund up to a maximum of $1,200. The following forms are available for claiming this credit:

- ☐ Senior citizens and widows of senior citizens, MI-1040CR;
- ☐ Paraplegic, quadriplegic, totally and permanently disabled, MI-1040CR;
- ☐ Others that qualify for credit, MI-1040CR; and
- ☐ Active servicemen, eligible veterans or blind persons, MI-1040CR-2.

Some claimants may qualify for credit under more than one category. They should compare and choose the one that works to their best advantage. Special rules apply to claimants who are not husband and wife, but who jointly own and occupy the same dwelling. These rules also apply for separated or divorced claimants and taxpayers with a business in their home.

The credit for homeowners and renters in general equals 60 percent of the amount by which their property taxes, billed in 1985, exceeds 3.5 percent of their household or spendable income. The interpretation of household income allows the exclusion of state and local income tax refunds, homestead property tax credits and other items as outlined in the instructions. In addition, health and accident insurance premiums paid by the taxpayers for themselves and their families are deductible from household income.

Renters will base their claim on 17 percent of rent paid, which will be considered in lieu of taxes in the computation of the credit. Where meals are included in the rent paid or if you live in tax-exempt housing, which pays a service fee in place of property taxes, a separate computation is required to determine the tax eligible for credit. Persons living in a mobile home park may claim $3 per month and 17 percent of the rent paid.

The property tax credit claim forms include a section for claimants who received Aid to Families with Dependent Children (ADC) or General Assistance (GA) benefits to calculate their prorated credit amount. The credit is reduced by the ratio of ADC or GA to total household income.

There is a phase out of the Homestead Property Tax Credit for claimants whose household income exceeds $73,650. The credit is reduced by 10 percent for each $1,000 or part of $1,000 by which household income is greater than $73,650. Therefore, you will not qualify for a credit if your household income is over $82,650.

Home heating credits and supplemental fuel cost payments are claimed on a separate form (MI-1040CR-7). A married couple or a single person maintaining a household may be eligible for a home heating credit. Residents of adult foster care homes, nursing homes, homes for the aged or substance abuse centers are not eligible for the credit. The primary requirement is that household income may not exceed the income ceiling for the number of exemptions claimed. The income ceiling ranges from $7,771 for one exemption to $15,714 for six exemptions. For each exemption over six the ceiling increases $2,000. Forms and instructions are in a separate booklet.

Individuals who have signed an agreement with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources under the Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act may claim a special credit through the use of Form MI-1040CR-5. Copies of the property tax bills and a copy of Federal Form 1040 page 1 and the related Schedule F must be submitted with the claim. Farmland preservation credits are income to the recipient and must be included in the federal adjusted gross income, Michigan taxable income and Michigan household income.

An income tax credit is available to Michigan residents who purchased and installed a solar, photovoltaic, wind, ground water heat pump or a low-lead hydro system in their residence. Application for the credit is made with the Michigan Department of Commerce Energy Administration. The credit is claimed on Form MI-1040CR-6. Information concerning weatherization and consumer energy education can be obtained by contacting the Energy Administration at (517) 373-0480.

You also may claim a credit for contributions to colleges, universities, public libraries, public radio and public television stations located in Michigan. The maximum credit for these contributions is $200 on a joint return or $100 on a single return. There are also credits available for income taxes paid to Michigan cities and income taxes paid to another state.

Contributions of artwork will qualify the giver for a tax credit. Donation of artwork created by the taxpayer and donations of money as well as artwork not created by the taxpayer both qualify for credit if they meet the criteria established under the Michigan income tax laws as outlined in the instructions accompanying the tax forms. The fair market value of the artwork must be determined by an independent appraiser when the donation is made. Claim credit on line 18 of Form 18 of Form MI-1040.

Michigan income taxpayers who are entitled to a refund may authorize the Department of Treasury to deduct from the refund a donation to the Children's Trust Fund to assist victims of child abuse. The Trust Fund can accept any part or all of your refund. In addition, a deduction may be authorized for donation to the Non-game Wildlife Fund to be used for management and research on non-game wildlife, threatened and endangered species and designated plants. Your gift to the fund can be for any portion of your refund. Taxpayers who wish to donate must be entitled to a refund of at least the amount of the donation. Donated amounts will reduce your refund.

CPAs point out that if any of the following items were included in your federal adjusted gross income, be sure to claim a deduction for them. These include retirement or pension benefits from a Michigan public retirement system, retirement or pension benefits from other sources up to a maximum of $7,500 on a single return or $10,000 on a joint return, refunds of state or city income taxes and proceeds and prizes won in the Michigan lottery or state regulated bingo games. A deduction is also allowed for contributions as defined in the Michigan Election Code or the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971.

If you were entitled to a deduction for married couples when both are employed as claimed on line 30 of the federal income tax return then you must add this amount back on line 40 of the Michigan return.

The Michigan Supreme Court has recently ruled that income from a S-corporation is no longer considered non-business income. Distribution of income and losses is allocated and apportioned to Michigan based on location of the business activity and the business' real property. The ruling applies retroactively. Affected taxpayers should amend returns filed for 1981 through 1984.

There are special rules for jobs tax credit deductions, capital gains on properties acquired before October 1, 1967, non-residents, income derived from another state, persons moving into or out of the state, net operating losses and extensions of the due date of the return and amended returns. You should seek professional assistance in these areas.

If any of your federal schedules show a loss either in business, farm, rentals or capital, or if you have made adjustments to income on your Federal Form 1040 then you must include a copy of these schedules with your Michigan return.

Before mailing your returns be sure you have completed the following items: The return must be signed by you and your spouse; your address in the return is complete; Copy 2 of your Form W-2 is attached; mathematical computations have been checked; a check is attached for any balance due and if you have an overpayment, it has been indicated whether it is to be refunded or applied to next year's estimated tax payments.

Individuals may be subject to other Michigan taxes in addition to the state income tax. An intangibles tax return (Form C-6606) is required of owners of certain intangible property (such as stocks, bonds and land contracts), if the total dividends and interest exceed $5,000 in the case of an individual filing a single return, or $10,000 in the case of a husband and wife filing a joint return. A use tax return (Form C-3001) is required if you made any purchases or rentals from sources outside Michigan. A single business tax return (Form C-8000) is required if the taxpayer is engaged in a business activity such as sale, rental or lease of property or performance of services.

and oak finishes," he noted, adding that The Sawmill also handles finishing supplies for do-it-yourselfers and offers assistance in selecting the right materials for the job.

Both Colizzi and his wife Joy, now Northville residents, are very much involved in the business. Joy works on the floor as a salesperson and advisor and also is in charge of the firm's books.

"She handles all our computer functions," her husband added.

Computer furniture also has been added to the lines carried at The Sawmill, and is featured along with chairs, desks, rockers, bedroom furniture and accent-type pieces.

"We also stock furniture finished by the manufacturer," Colizzi said, citing the fact that The Sawmill is the area's only dealer of Habersham Plantation Furniture, a finished line of country antique reproductions.

"We do very well with this as it's the country-type look that is popular," Colizzi noted.

Colizzi credited the success of The Sawmill to the emphasis on service.

The Sawmill, located at 316 North Center near Arbor Drugs north of Main Street in downtown Northville, is open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday. Telephone number is 349-8585.

Tax changes discussed

Current and proposed changes in tax laws as they affect small businesses will be discussed by R.J. Dickshot, CPA, of the R.J. Dickshot Company at Madonna College in Livonia on Thursday, February 20.

The program is part of Madonna College's "Brown Bag Business Lecture Series." It is open to the public free of charge and will be presented in Kresge Hall on the Madonna College campus at 12:15 p.m.

The college is located at I-96 and Levan Road in Livonia. For more information call 591-5117.

CAROL MASON Realty

TOP PRODUCERS/1985
41766 10 Mile Road, Novi, 344-1800

Carol Mason, broker and owner of Carol Mason Realty participated in over five million dollars in real estate sales in 1985. Mason attributes this to rapid sales in the Novi/Northville area in this past year and also to the new construction that her partner provides to the firm for sale. Mason is a member of the Metro Multi List, Michigan Association of Realtors and the National Association of Realtors.

Sandra Kastelle, Realtor Associate with Carol Mason Realty, completed 1985 with over a million dollars in sales. Sandy has been with the company from the beginning and has participated in not only used home sales but new construction. She is a member of the Metro Multi List, State Association of Realtors and the National Association of Realtors.

Barbara Bair, Realtor Associate with Carol Mason Realty participated in over two million dollars in real estate sales in 1985. Barb has the ability to relate to people in a special way, said broker Carol Mason. She has been with our company since the beginning and works especially hard at her career. Barb participated in the continuing education program in 1985 and also attended the special classes given by the Metro Multi List for better understanding of the computer system provided by the board.

Barbara Pietron, Realtor Associate with Carol Mason Realty, completed her first year in Real Estate surpassing one million dollars in sales. Barb is really an enthusiastic person and works well with all her clients, broker Mason states. She is always available and ready to show properties. She is well versed in financing and has lived in the Novi area for 27 years.

Light A Candle

Light a candle for those brave seven
Whose souls did vanish twix Earth and Heaven.
Light a candle for the dream they bore
For space frontiers to be explored.
Light a candle for the knowledge they shared
Teachers-all with lessons prepared.
Light a candle for their friends and relations
Whose grief is shared by this great nation.
Light a candle
Let the story burn bright
Extinguish not their heavenly flight.

Barbara Karnafel Orto

Light A Candle is written on behalf of the young teenage girl in Concord, New Hampshire who could not find a candle to light in the church memorial to her teacher Mrs. Christa McAuliffe. This poem is dedicated to the memory of Christa and the other 6 Challenger shuttle personnel who so tragically perished January 28, 1986.

Mrs. Barbara Orto

True Love

Though I am here,
My love is near,
No matter where I go

When we're apart
She's in my heart,
Making our love grow.

The happiness
Of her caress
Still lingers o'er the miles

To bring to me
The reveries
Of hope, caressed by smiles,

Of times to come,
Not known by some,
When cares will ne'er abide.

And we can say,
"There'll come a day
Our dreams won't be denied."

H. Welling

To You
"Valentine"

Heart's interlaced with ribbons and flowers
Sunshine and hope for the Spring
Messages that convey words of love
The peace that only love can bring!

A look when no words are needed that says, "I understand" the way you feel tears that are dried in loving concern with a stamp of approval that's real!

An end to the coldness of Winter
a walk through a meadow of flowers
Music played especially for you and sunrises that last for hours!

Pine Tree's and hidden garden grove's paths that lead to dreams coming true lilting smiles and memories that are golden
I wish all these things for only you!

JoAnna Dorf

Evening Time

When the quiet of the evening settles
softly round my head,
I think of you and all the things I'd rather do instead
Of sitting in another house, far from your tender grace,
Far from the happy friendly spot
Where stars light up your face.
The place where joy and happiness lie sparkling in your hair,
And the tender touch of laughter gently
eases every care.
I'd like to be there by your side and smile contentedly,
To hold your thought while tenderness spreads warmth 'tween you and me.
These lovely thoughts I take with me when going to my bed,
And let the quiet evening settle softly round my head.

Violence can turn a home into a prison

By SHARON ROSE
special writer

Domestic crises don't develop overnight. Spouse abuse may begin with a hostile shove — or a grab that results in a bruise. Little by little, over the months and years, the ugliness between husband and wife accelerates until an apparently happy home becomes a prison fraught with danger for all members of the family.

Spouse abuse is defined as physical violence between married or unmarried adults who relate as a family. The victim is usually — but not always — the female. Studies highlight the following frightening facts:

- It is estimated that one in every three American women will be a victim of domestic violence — regardless of her race, socio-economic level, educational background or religious heritage.

- One incidence of wife abuse is reported every minute in the United States — a rate thought to be less than 10 percent of the actual incidents.

- Children witnessing violence between their parents often grow up to become abusers themselves, creating an endless "cycle of violence" which is passed from one generation to the next.

What kind of person batters his wife? Why does he do it? And most puzzling of all — why do women tolerate physical abuse?

The psychological/social profile of a husband who batters reveals a Jekyll/Hyde personality — charming and cool on the surface, but cruel and insensitive in his personal relationships. He may be a prominent community leader — the doctor, attorney or clergyman whom others have learned to trust. The most common reaction of friends and even relatives when confronted with evidence of his behavior is disbelief.

He probably was the child of an abusive parent — and learned early that physical abuse was acceptable and even appropriate behavior. He has low self-esteem, and an explosive temper. The slightest, seemingly irrelevant incident, such as unwashed dishes or a chance remark, will provoke a violent outburst. He's critical of his wife's appearance, housekeeping and personality, yet is jealous and possessive to the point of discouraging or forbidding her social contact with peers and other family members.

there are some avenues of escape and reasonable alternatives for the woman who has decided to put a stop to violence as a way of life.

As a result, the battered wife tends to be isolated and dependent. She, too, was abused or witnessed abuse as a child. She often has small children, a traditional view of marriage and feels responsible for keeping the family and marriage together. She'll minimize the severity of the situation, make excuses for her husband, even blame herself for the problem — "If I were a better wife/mother/ousekeeper, this wouldn't be happening."

Many battered women tolerate abuse because they think they have no choice but to cope and adapt to the problem. Their perception of divorce and the resulting spiral into poverty isn't an attractive option. They see themselves as trapped and helpless, but may be gravely underestimating their danger. Police know that many "family trouble" calls end in a homicide.

It isn't a pretty picture. Fortunately there are some avenues of escape and reasonable alternatives for the woman who has decided to put a stop to violence as a way of life.

Two local, domestic violence facilities operate 24-hour-a-day crises phone lines and emergency shelters for women and children. Haven in Oakland County and First Step in western Wayne county are private, non-profit organizations of professionals and trained volunteers that offer families in trouble help out of a nightmarish situation.

Debi Cain, executive director of Haven, says they average 300 calls per month on their crisis lines. "Calls come from a relative or friend, not just the victim. Often, we receive anonymous calls, and that's okay too," Cain says. "It's less important to find out who they are than to give them information or just be supportive. Many times a phone call is just the first step."

The crises lines are especially busy at predictable times of the year. Many women wait until summer to make a move because they don't want to disrupt their children's school year. Post-holidays are another busy time for domestic violence centers. The extra financial and social pressures contribute to domestic stress, but mothers are typically reluctant to "ruin" the family Thanksgiving/Christmas/Easter.

Both Haven and First Step operate secure, dormitory style shelters (one is a former convent). Their locations are confidential. Women are encouraged to bring their children with them and welcome to stay, free of charge, for up to 30 days. The average stay is two weeks, some only stay for a couple of days (long enough for a husband to cool off) and no one is forced out the door before she's ready.

Volunteers important to crisis centers

Haven and First Step are private, non-profit organizations with small paid staffs. They depend on the special talents and help of a large group of volunteers.

Debi Cain, executive director of Haven, says, "We always need volunteers. They help with community speaking, classroom education programs, our crises phone lines, our children's programs and advocacy work."

First Step's executive director, Judy McDonald, concurs. "They are invaluable. We have approximately 100 volunteers and without them, we couldn't operate."

Each volunteer participates in an initial program that focuses on counseling skills and the dynamics of family violence. Additional training provides information on legal issues and community resources. Assertiveness, child abuse, alcoholism and other topics are covered in ongoing, in-service training sessions. Volunteer positions available are:

- Crisis phone line worker
- Peer counselor
- Community outreach worker
- Fundraiser
- Secretary/Recordkeeper
- Maintenance/Repair person
- Housekeeper

Cain and McDonald point out that being a volunteer has some hidden benefits. It's a great opportunity for training in new areas, self-development, exploration of career opportunities, meeting new and interesting people and helping others in need. In addition, over 100 student volunteers earned academic credit through local college and university field placements.

Haven and First Step are funded by a variety of public and private sources including United Way, Departments of Social Services, the Domestic Violence Prevention and Treatment Board, Michigan Department of Public Health, private contributions and the local fund-raising efforts of numerous religious and civic groups.

Domestic violence a crime

There was only one murder in Novi in 1985. According to Captain Richard Faulkner of the Novi Police Department. "The case involved an apparently despondent husband who killed his wife, then took his own life."

Domestic violence is a crime. No one has the right to physically assault another. Police view "family trouble" calls as serious, potentially explosive situations. In the past, they merely acted as peacekeepers in a domestic argument. "There was little we could do unless the offense was actually committed in our presence," said Faulkner.

Recently, police have been authorized to arrest an individual, even without actually witnessing the crime, if they have reasonable cause to believe an offense has occurred.

Reasonable cause, explains Faulner, requires the complaining victim's statement, some corroborating physical evidence or a witness to the abuse. If he does not have sufficient evidence for an arrest, an officer can write up a police report and advise the victim to meet with a city prosecutor (a free service available to city residents) for legal advice.

Paul Jacques, an area attorney who specializes in domestic relations, first advises clients who believe they're in danger to simply get out of the house. "I refer them to Haven or First Step, if they don't have family or friends who can help," he said.

But if a woman is seriously contemplating divorce, Jacques says, there are several important facts she should know. In a divorce settlement a wife often is awarded the house because the court reasons that she and the children need a place to live. If she establishes another permanent residence, she may lose that argument.

If a woman abandons her possessions, she can probably get them back later — if they're still there. Possession really can be 90 percent of the law. And, as Jacques points out, "Crazy husbands do crazy things."

Women leaving their homes should take important records and papers such as birth certificates and other identification, especially for their children. And Jacques encourages them to take the kids along — it's an advantage in a custody battle.

In addition, a wife should take whatever money she really needs to get by. Legally, she can clean out the joint bank account when she leaves. But don't go on a shopping spree. Keep in mind that half the money may eventually have to be returned.

Even though Michigan is a "no-fault" state, proof that a spouse is abusive may help should a custody or property battle ensue. The court is unlikely to consider a proven abuser to be a fit parent and fault often enters into property settlements when it can be shown that the abusive spouse is responsible for the breakup of the marriage.

It is helpful to have the following proof of abuse:

- police reports
- medical records or reports
- witnesses
- statements from Haven or First Step that you've applied to them for help.

Both Haven and First Step offer comprehensive legal assistance. They will prepare and even accompany a woman to court, and give referrals for legal representation.

Dunphy stars in 'Fiddler' this weekend

By JEAN DAY

Helping all of us get through the winter deep freeze are a host of activities that range from dance benefits to plays, lectures and fashion shows.

Five Northville residents are involved in the production of "Fiddler on the Roof" being staged this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church, 9601 Hubbard, in Livonia.

Tom Beyersdorf is in the orchestra; Caroline Dunphy, who owns Painter's Place on Center, designed and painted the sets and will be singing in the chorus; and Bill Dunphy has the role of Tevye, the Russian dairyman who typifies the plight of the Russian Jews during the days of the pogroms and is "blessed with five daughters and a life of poverty." Tevye deals humorously with a shrewish wife and with God, with whom he seems to have a friendly and casual relationship.

Campbells welcome Linda

Donald and Vickie Campbell of Purcell, Okla., announce the birth of their fourth child, Linda Jean.

She was born January 19 and weighed 9½ pounds.

She joins brother Donald Jr., 13, and sisters Stacy Lynn, 10, and Erin, 2½, at home.

Paternal grandparents are Dr. and Mrs. Stuart Campbell of Northville. Mr. and Mrs. William Wurn of Boyne City are maternal grandparents.

Help available for abused

"When women come here they're confused, under tremendous stress and depressed," says Judy McDonald, executive director of First Step. "We don't judge them and we can't make decisions for them. We provide a supportive, safe environment and help them assess their options, resources and rights. It's a place to ponder the future."

Their visit is not an idle one. Leaving a spouse, even temporarily, is a major life decision which requires serious thought. Group and individual counseling sessions are scheduled for both the women and their children.

A separate children's staff provides activities, tutoring and counseling for youngsters. Both Haven and First Step have active Foster Grandparent programs. For many, it's an invaluable first opportunity to meet others in the same predicament.

The residential program isn't for everyone. Many women prefer to stay at home and participate in comprehensive non-residential programs which provide the same counseling and advocacy services at separate office locations.

Haven and First Step also operate community education and outreach programs. Speakers are available to schools, churches, men's and women's groups, clubs and other community agencies. Prevention is possible. Of particular interest is education of young people to assess their relationships with others and recognize the potential for violence at the dating stage.

"Violence is a vicious cycle," says McDonald. "We live in a violent society and sometimes that's reflected in our homes. It's a complex issue which affects us all."

McDonald says 240 families more than she could accommodate applied for shelter last year. The overflow was referred to other social agencies or put up in hotels, if necessary. "We won't leave anyone who needs help in a dangerous situation," she said.

Help is available from Haven at 334-1274 and at First Step by calling 525-2243.

"For some women, all it takes is one instance of abuse and she's out the door," said Cain. "Others suffer for years. I remember one 66-year-old woman, married to an abusive husband for 40 years, who said she woke up one day and realized she was just waiting for him to die. She decided to leave. She said she could no longer wait for him to die so she could begin to live."

Also in the cast from Northville are Cindy and John Phelps. February 21 and 22 performances are at 8 p.m. February 23 performance is at 4 p.m. Tickets at $5 for adults and $2.50 for students may be obtained by calling Caroline Dunphy's studio, 140 Center, 348-9544.

DRUGS AND INSOMNIA

Insomnia can sometimes be relieved without drugs. Reducing the amount of caffeine in the diet (avoiding tea, coffee, and softdrinks), obtaining exercise on a regular basis, avoiding or decreasing use of alcohol, and keeping regular sleep/wake hours can lead to improved sleep patterns. There are times, however, when nondrug approaches are ineffective.

Yet many persons are reluctant to take over-the-counter or prescription sleep aids. According to a national survey reported by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, only 5% of persons with "serious" insomnia take over-the-counter sleep aid medicines and only 10% take prescription medicines. Some individuals believe that all "sleeping pills" are very dangerous. And sleeping aids can be harmful! But the commonly used medicines of today are much safer than the barbiturate medicines that were used almost exclusively in the past.

Consumers need to know that safe and relatively effective nonprescription sleep aids can be obtained from pharmacists. Physicians can now prescribe several excellent sleep aids that help induce needed sleep with relative safety and with a minimum of adverse effects.

Neal Brasure takes bride in Akron

Newly wed Lt. Col. and Mrs. Neal Brasure now are making their home in Hawaii where he is stationed at Hickam Field Air Force Base.

When he took Madelyn Louise Knepp as his bride in a ceremony performed by his father, the Rev. Lloyd G. Brasure of Northville, at Goodyear Heights Presbyterian Church in Akron, Ohio, November 30, the Air Force officer held the rank of major. He learned of his promotion when he reported to Hickam.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Knepp of Akron.

The bridegroom is a 1966 graduate of Northville High School. He went on to receive his bachelor's degree from Alma College. His father is minister emeritus of First Presbyterian Church of Northville. Both his father and mother attended the wedding.

Symphony concert set at St. John's Seminary

The Plymouth Symphony Society's third and final musicale for the 1985-86 season will be presented at 4 p.m. March 2 at St. John's Seminary, Five Mile at Sheldon.

Musicians for the afternoon program will include flutists Glennis Stout and Allen Warner and pianist Susan Keith Gray.

Among the works to be performed are Godard, Beethoven, Faure, Gaubert and Rachmaninoff.

Glennis Stout has degrees in flute performance from the Eastman School of Music and the University of Michigan. She has studied with Joseph Mariana, Harold Bennett and William Kincaid. She also has performed at Marcel Moyse Seminars.

Stout is an active flute performer, teacher and adjudicator in the Ann Arbor area and is on the faculty of the New England Music Camp. She has been collecting and performing on antique flutes for 25 years, and travels widely with her collection, giving a lecture-demonstration-recital, "The Flute: From Baroque to Boehm." She has been first flutist with the Plymouth Symphony since 1977.

Allen Warner is a graduate of the Interlochen Arts Academy and the University of Michigan.

He has studied with Glennis Stout, Keith Bryan and Ervin Monroe and has attended master classes with Geoffrey Gilbert and Bonita Boyd. Warner has performed with the Detroit, Windsor and Flint symphonies and the Toledo Opera Orchestra. He currently is principal flute with the Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony and second flute and piccolo with the Plymouth Symphony.

Warner teaches in the Ann Arbor area and is the artistic consultant for E.F. Dean Flutemakers. He is president of the Detroit Flute Association and a member of the Executive Board of the Flute Guild of Ann Arbor.

Susan Keith Gray is a native of Bristol, Tennessee, where she was pianist for church, school and civic groups. She has a bachelor of music degree from Converse College in Spartanburg, South Carolina, and a master of music degree from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

She has been soloist with the Spartanburg, South Carolina and Savannah, Georgia symphony orchestras and was the South Carolina state winner of the Music Teachers National Association Collegiate Artist Competition.

As a graduate teaching assistant at the University of Illinois, she was a finalist for the Campus Award for Undergraduate Teaching. Now residing in Ann Arbor, she teaches privately and is a freelance accompanist and chamber musician.

A reception and refreshments will follow the concert. Admission is $5 for adults and $3.50 for students and seniors. The program is sponsored by Manufacturers Bank. Tickets may be purchased at the door the afternoon of the concert or at Beitner Jewelry on Ann Arbor Road.

In the ceremony, both mothers lit the altar candles from which the couple lit a symbolic unity candle.

As she was given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white taffeta and Venetian lace fashioned with a high neckline, an embroidered yoke of illusion on the bodice that tapered at the waist. The skirt extended into a scalloped cathedral train.

The bride's sister, Kathy Duhan, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were another sister, Margaret Knepp, and Phyllis Titus and Sue Illjvich. They wore plum-colored taffeta gowns fashioned with fitted bodices and full skirts and carried flower baskets with orchids, carnations, baby's breath and ivy interspersed with tiny twinkling lights. The basket arrangements had been used at the weddings of three of the bride's sisters.

John Duhan was best man. Ushers were Tom Tuuri, Don Clatterbuck and Mike Knepp.

Susan Pritchard was soloist. Roseanne Knepp, sister-in-law of the bride, played harp music during the service.

The bridegroom's sons, Brent and Christopher Brasure of Dallas, Texas, greeted guests and handled out the wedding bulletins. After the ceremony they assisted in giving each guest a white, helium-filled balloon.

When the newlyweds left the church, each carrying a pink balloon with names and wedding date, all the balloons were released.

The couple spent several days in Chicago before going to Hawaii. They met while both were stationed in Omaha, Nebraska. The bride attended Akron University and was employed by Tim Davis, Summit County Auditor, as a deputy auditor.

The Northville Record

Northville's Dawn Kucher winds up for a serve to Walled Lake Western

Spikers drop another pair to raise losing streak to 6

If there were any doubt that the Northville volleyball squad is suffering through hard times, last week made it official.

The slumping Mustangs dropped another pair of Western Lakes Activities Association contests, raising the team's current losing streak to six. Steve McDonald's team fell 15-4, 10-15, 8-15 to the same Farmington Harrison team that Northville beat handily back in January. A few days later on February 12, the Mustangs dropped a 9-15, 3-15 decision to a Walled Lake Western team that is ranked 13th in the state.

Last Saturday, Northville competed in the 10-team Schoolcraft Invite, and, despite losing three of four matches in pool play, McDonald was encouraged by the Mustangs' improvement.

"I thought we did a lot better at Schoolcraft, so I really don't know if we're out of this slump or not," McDonald said. "I guess if the girls continue to play the way they did (at Schoolcraft) the rest of the year, we'll be all right. We really played great even though we had a losing record."

The Mustangs opened the Harrison match with a flurry and cruised to an easy win in game one. But the team reverted back to some problem areas that have plagued it all during the slump — like not hustling and poor passing.

"We played very well in the first game but, unfortunately, we didn't keep it going in the next two," McDonald explained. "We quit moving a little bit and made some mental mistakes. It changed the momentum, and volleyball is such a streaky game."

After losing game two by five, Northville fell apart, and the Hawks scored the first 14 points in the third game. Despite a Mustangs' comeback, it was just too far to come from behind.

Jill Gallagher paced Northville in the serving department, connecting on 15-of-16 attempts including three aces. It was Gallagher's fine serve in the first game that helped the Mustangs score seven straight points to blow open a close game. Lisa Cippichio, Nicki LaRoque and Dawn Kucher were also effective, combining for a perfect 23-of-23 serves while seldom used Kris Cassidy filled in for the ailing Lynn Frellick and compiled an impressive 11 hits and two kills.

Northville gave powerful Walled Lake Western a slight scare in the opening game last Wednesday, but the Warriors pulled that one out and then dominated the rest of the way.

"We played with a lot of emotion, and in the first game we played smart volleyball — we didn't force anything," McDonald said. "In the second game, they really showed their superiority up front and dominated us."

"We didn't pass well. When we put it too close to the net, they had quite a few perfect spikes off our set-ups."

Western steadily took the lead in the first game, and, even though the Mustangs narrowed it to 13-9 at one point, it was soon over.

"They had to struggle and fight for everything they got in the first game because we did a lot of the things we wanted to," McDonald said. "But in the next game, they were up 5-2 and then reeled off five straight, and we never recovered. We had a lot of people who were standing around in that game."

At Schoolcraft, Northville beat Roseville Brabec 15-7, 15-8 in the opening round, but then lost the next three to Redford Union (12-15, 10-15), Wayne Memorial (11-15, 8-15) and Walled Lake Western (15-17, 12-15). But other than the loss to Union, McDonald was very happy with his team's execution.

"Except for the loss to (Redford Union) we put in a real good effort. The girls had a little mental break against Union and started to make some bad passes, but other than that, I was pleased."

The Mustangs (7-11 overall, 4-7 in WLAA) will host Plymouth Canton tonight at 6:30 to wrap-up the regular season. The conference meet will be held this Saturday (February 22) at Harrison and will feature two pools of six teams each. The top two in each pool will advance to play each other.

"It's gonna be a long day because (Harrison) only has two courts, but if we play well there is no reason why we can't advance out of our pool," McDonald said.

2nd place in jeopardy as cagers fall to Western, 62-61

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Some major upsets caused a shake-up in the WLAA Western Division race last weekend, and the Northville cagers were right in the thick of it.

Unfortunately, the second place Mustangs were on the short end of the shake-up as well as division-leader Farmington Harrison. The Hawks, who entered last week's action undefeated took it on the chin twice. Northville, who has yet to lose two games in a week this season, fared slightly better by winning one of two.

Walled Lake Western, a team the Mustangs beat 69-60 in January, avenged the loss by pulling out a 62-61 thriller on February 11. Northville avoided a disaster by putting away a stubborn Livonia Franklin team 53-43 last Friday (February 14), but Mustang Coach Omar Harrison is concerned.

"I think it's that time of year where we are gonna have to try and reach another peak," he said. "We are kinda low right now mentally, and we need to get some more emotion into our play, especially defensively."

"We didn't play very well in either game."

Northville (11-5 overall, 10-4 in the WLAA) outscored Western in three of the four quarters, but a cold-shooting third stanza was too much for the Mustangs to overcome. At halftime, the Warriors were down by five points, 33-

28, but midway through the third, Western couldn't miss and Northville couldn't hit.

"We were changing baskets and then we just went cold and they kept on hitting," Harrison said.

Heading into the final quarter, the Warriors turned the deficit into a 48-44 lead. But the Mustangs got it back together and actually regained the lead and were up by as many as three points on several occasions.

"We made some crucial mistakes down the stretch that really hurt us," Harrison said. "Western is not a bad ball club. They are capable of knocking off anyone, but we should have won the game."

It was nip and tuck the rest of the way. Brent Kish scored his only points of the game with 37 seconds left to give the Warriors a 62-61 lead, but Northville called a time out with 17 seconds remaining and set up a play for center Matt Hinds.

"We worked it inside to Matt and got the shot we wanted, but he missed the shot," Harrison explained.

Guard Kirk Morrison hauled in the rebound and threw up a five foot baseline shot that was also off the mark. Both Morrison and teammate Don Norton went for the ball but knocked it out of bounds, and the game was over.

Hinds had the finest all around game of his career pouring in 26 points and adding 11 rebounds. Norton chipped in 15 and Morrison 10.

The Mustangs didn't have too much trouble against last placed Franklin but didn't get the blow out either. A strong fourth quarter by Northville helped secure a win that was still in doubt.

"We played just well enough to win, but it wasn't an outstanding game for us," Harrison admitted.

A 24-18 advantage at the half was cut to two in the third quarter but then the Mustangs turned on the afterburners and went on to lead by as much as a dozen. Norton scored a game-high 20 and helped out on the boards with 10 rebounds. Hinds had another steady outing with 10 points and a career-high 16 rebounds.

"The big thing is that Matt is really beginning to come around," Harrison pointed out. "He is using his height and getting some big rebounds and inside points when we need it."

Northville will host Plymouth Canton this Friday (February 21) in the WLAA finale, and it's shaping up as the biggest match-up of the season for the Mustangs. The Chiefs are currently riding a four-game win streak and sit just a game behind Northville in the Western Division standings with a 9-5 record.

"Canton is right on our tail again," Harrison said. "This game could boil down to who gets second place in the division. Losing to Walled Lake Western has really put us in a bind."

Gymnasts top 116 in victory

For the third straight week, the Northville gymnastics squad topped its highest point total of the season but again, the Mustangs came away with one win in two tries.

Northville surpassed the 116 mark for the first time in a 116.05-111.45 Western Lakes Activities Association win over Farmington on February 12 to move even closer to the regional team qualifying cut-off of 117. But on the 10th, the Mustangs fell victim to a good Westland John Glenn team that compiled its highest score ever in a 123.90-115.0 victory.

"I look at our scores, and we keep getting better; so I'm not too concerned," Northville Coach Michelle Charniga said.

The first event against Glenn saw the Mustangs compile 29.8 points in the vault, a season best. Unfortunately, the Rockets soared to 33 points and an early lead.

"Hey, 29 is great for us but (Glenn) had one girl with a nine and another above an eight," Charniga explained.

Tonya Hickman tied for third individually for Northville with a 7.8 and Yvonne Beebe was fourth with a 7.7. Angie Miller (7.3) and Donna Dunnabeck (7.0) scored season highs, but the usually consistent Wendy Beach had a rather low 7.0, according to Charniga. Glenn's Debbie Tomasko won the event with a 9.0.

The Rockets also outscored Northville in the uneven bars, but this time it was only by two-tenths of a point. Beach turned it around with a 7.8 and third place, Hickman was next (7.7) in fourth and Beebe (7.2) followed in fifth.

Hickman and Beach paced the Mustangs in the balance beam. Both scored 7.5 to tie for second individually while Beebe's 7.3 was good for a third. The floor exercise dashed any Northville hopes for a comeback as Glenn took the first two places. Beach scored a fine 8.0 (third place), but Beebe (7.5) and Hickman (7.2) were down in fifth and sixth places respectively.

"If we want to get above that 117 mark, we will need somebody to consistently provide us with a good fourth score," Charniga said. "We don't have that real strong fourth gymnast — we just don't have the kind of depth some of these other teams have. If we scored only the top three, we'd be right with most teams."

But against Farmington, the Mustangs had an easier time except in the vault as the Falcons outscored Northville 29.45-28.75. A 7.85 from Beebe placed her second with Hickman right behind with a 7.75, but Beach fell on her dismount to score a 6.8 and Miller's 6.3 was down a whole point from the Glenn meet.

"We were down in the vault, but we came back to win the last three and that was good to see," Charniga said.

In the bars, Northville scored a two point turn around to take the lead for good. Hickman took first place honors with a 7.75, Beebe was fourth (7.4), Beach was fifth (7.3) including two falls, and Dunnabeck notched her highest score ever with a 6.85.

The last two events belonged to Beach. The freshman's 7.9 won the balance beam event and her 8.2 tied for first in the floor exercise. She received good support from her teammates though, as Beebe grabbed fourth in the beam (7.3) and third in the floor (7.9) while Hickman took second in the beam (7.6) and fifth in the floor (7.05).

"If you take all of the team's highest scores and put them together, we score over 118, so the girls know they can do it," Charniga reported.

Deal to play college ball at Ferris

For every blue chip football recruit who has the major college coaches drooling there are hundreds of others who sit and wonder if anybody is interested enough to make a scholarship offer.

Last fall, the Northville football squad posted a winning season and had several individuals who have the desire and talent to continue in the collegiate ranks. But so far, only one Mustang, out of a possible four, has actually signed with a school.

Last Wednesday (February 12) was the first day the colleges could sign high school seniors to a National Letter of Intent to attend their school and several Northville gridders are relegated to playing a waiting game. But one who is not, is Mark Deal.

Deal, at 6-2 230, was projected as one of the area's top linemen, but an injury plagued, senior campaign hurt his stock with the recruiters. Fortunately, several Division II schools in Michigan showed some interest in Deal, and last Wednesday he signed with Ferris State College in Big Rapids.

"A lot of schools didn't know too much about Mark because he only played in two games last fall, but Ferris knows he has the potential to be a good one," Mustang Coach Dennis Colligan said. "He is a diamond in the rough."

Deal's scholarship situation is still vague, but Colligan said that Ferris is very happy to get him, and he will definitely end up with some type of scholarship.

Another Mustang who is in the same situation as Deal is Gary Harper, who also missed most of his senior season with injuries.

"Gary has made a visit to Heidelberg College in Ohio and is still deciding if he wants to go there," Colligan said. "It's a Division III school, but Gary will definitely be able to compete on that level. The injuries also hurt his chances with some of the bigger schools."

Perhaps Colligan's most recruitable player, linebacker Tim Millen is still waiting to see if he will get an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy and play football there. Millen flew to Annapolis for an official visit in late January to see the program but is still waiting to see if he can get the highly sought-after appointment.

Paul Newitt has yet to decide whether he will walk on at Western Michigan University or give Division III a try. Adrian, Albion and Alma have all shown interest.

Local rider holds own at Silverdome

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

On February 8, Northville's Dwayne Miller strapped himself into his four-wheel ATV racer and went out on the Silverdome track to battle some of the country's finest in front of a crowd of 30,000.

But the ironic thing is that a little over a year ago the 16-year-old Miller became involved in off-road racing because his mother Mary likes to dance. Huh?

"My mom likes to dance and was always out dancing," Dwayne recalls. "Finally, my dad decided he wanted to have a hobby too, so he bought a four-wheel racer and that's how I got started."

That was in November, 1984, and things have changed rapidly at the Miller household since. While Mary danced, Dwayne and his father James engulfed themselves in the relatively new sport of four-wheel racing. A year ago, a $2,300 Suzuki four-wheel racer was purchased and then two more. The vehicles were only introduced in 1985, so the Millers were assured nobody had a significant head start.

Dwayne, a sophomore at Northville High School, started competing last spring at motorcycle tracks like Baja Acres near Frankenmuth and the Milan Dragway. His brief career has blossomed ever since and culminated at the Silverdome on February 8 at Mickey Thompson's Off-Road Championship Gran Prix.

The Gran Prix is one event in a nine-race series. It's a season-long battle for the 1986 championships in six separate vehicle classes. Each 17-race event this season is held at major sports stadiums across the nation. The whole idea was developed by legendary motor sports figure Mickey Thompson who has successfully introduced the new sport to America in the past six years.

Miller was one of 90 competitors at the Dome, 16 of whom are Michigan residents — but Dwayne was the youngest of all the competitors.

"There was one guy from California who was 17 but, other than that, most were in their 20s and 30s," Dwayne said.

It cost Miller $90 in fees to participate in the Gran Prix, not to mention some $500 worth of riding gear, but he says it's worth every cent.

"I've always been fascinated with racing," he said. "I don't know if it's the speed, or the competition or what. I wanted to race BMX bikes until we got into off-road stuff. My dad was gonna buy a three-wheeler, but then they

'I've always been fascinated with racing. I don't know if it's the speed, or the competition or what.'

— Dwayne Miller

came out with the four-wheelers and I'm glad that's what I chose."

Two days before the Gran Prix, Miller and all the other racers converged on the Silverdome for practice. Dwayne was there all day and said later that he needed every second to get used to the steel and concrete track.

"It was real different from riding on dirt," he admitted. "Because it's indoors, the track isn't the same as what I was used to driving on. I don't necessarily like the simulated terrain they use, but it was something I wanted to do anyway."

After Thursday's practice session, the Millers decided new tires with a lower profile would be needed to prevent tip-overs, so they were bought Friday. On the day of the race, Miller was at the Silverdome at 7:30 a.m. and got to test the new tires in two more practice sessions at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. After a brief nap, the mandatory autograph session began at 5:30 and Miller made sure not to miss it.

"They fine you $100 if you don't show up," he said. "It's a rule Mickey Thompson instituted so the fans can get to know the drivers better."

At 7, the racing began, but it wasn't until a little after 8 that the qualifying for the four-wheel ATV class race got under way. Miller was in fifth place, out of 18 riders in the qualifying session, but a big pile up knocked out five riders and the session had to be restarted. Luckily, Dwayne wasn't one of the riders knocked out of action but when the qualifying restarted, Miller's luck ran out.

"I couldn't get my bike started," he reported. "I tried everything, but it didn't work. I was really mad."

He finally got it started, but it was too late, and the race officials wouldn't let Miller rejoin the qualifiers for safety reasons. He was forced to start the main event in the last line.

Despite the bad luck, Dwayne steadily moved up through the pack during the eight-lap event and eventually came in ninth place.

"I was very satisfied, especially for my first time racing in front of a big crowd and on a strange surface," Miller pointed out. "The right turns gave me some trouble because I'm used to only left turns, but it turned out all right."

Miller grabbed four championship points for his effort (only the top 12 places receive points) but said it is doubtful that he will continue to race in the remaining seven events because of financial reasons.

Off-road racing can be hazardous, but Miller believes that if the proper precautions are taken, most injuries can be avoided.

"It's not as bad as they portray it on T.V.," he said. "On 20/20, they showed kids riding (off-road vehicles) wearing short pants and sandals. But with the right equipment, you can usually walk away from a crash."

"I've wiped out a few times, but it was never serious and I walked away."

Dwayne has three paper routes to help cover the costs of his expensive hobby and usually covers five or six miles a day in downtown Northville.

"That's how I get my money to be able to do what I'm doing," Miller said. "But my dad is sort of my sponsor — whenever I need something, he helps me out."

Swimmers lose to Brighton, the flu

The entire Northville swimming squad is suffering through a bout with the flu, and Mustang Coach Keith Wright is sick about it—literally.

Several key Northville swimmers were unable to compete last week due to the illness and, not surprisingly, Wright was among the afflicted.

"Hopefully this week we'll have time to rebound and get everyone healthy and back into form," Wright said, "including the coach."

The only winner in the whole situation was Kensington Valley Conference power Brighton. The Bulldogs, who lost to Novi (a team the Mustangs tied), tangled with Northville at its weakest and came away with a 52-30 win on February 8. To the ailing team's credit, a 54-28 win over Western Lakes Activities Association opponent Livonia Franklin several days later salvaged the split for the Mustangs and evened the season record to 5-5-2, 5-2-1 in the WLAA.

"We have two weeks until the league meet, so I guess if it had to happen, this was a pretty good time," Wright explained.

The Brighton contest was originally slated for January 11 but had to be rescheduled because the Northville pool was not completed at the time. As a result, the Mustangs were forced to compete in three dual meets in less than a week, another factor that didn't help the situation.

"This is the first time I've ever coached a team that had to go three times in a week," Wright said. "We just went to the well one too many times. We were doing great the last few weeks, but the flu bug just caught up with us."

Northville could only muster an uncharacteristic three firsts out of 11 against Brighton, and that was the story. Senior Darius Mikalonis along with divers Robert Deyak and Reece Baldwin didn't even suit up for the meet. And several others like standout Doug Buell were there and swam, but were definitely not 100-percent.

"I think if we would have been healthy, it would have been much closer," Wright pointed out. "But that doesn't take anything away from Brighton."

Jeff Bainbridge notched Northville's initial win in the 50-yard freestyle with a time of 23.3, but it took place in the fourth event, and the Mustangs were trailing by a ton already. Buell went out and won the 100 freestyle (52.0) which hardly helped his cold but did help the team cause.

The only other Northville win was Eric Leiendecker in the 100 breaststroke (1:08.4), but Jeff Buell did put in an impressive outing in the 500 freestyle despite never competing in the event this season. Buell's time of 5:45 was good for third place, and Wright was very pleased with the time.

On February 13, the Mustangs polished off yet another Western Division foe to remain in a first place tie with Livonia Churchill (3-0-1 against other division teams). It was a special night because it was the team's final home date and a chance to thank a group of six seniors: Jeff Bainbridge, Doug Buell, Darius Mikalonis, Eric Leiendecker, Dave Wayne and Dave Zeigler.

"They are a very special group of boys, and we wanted to honor each one," Wright said.

Three of the honorees got into the act early by teaming up for a first in the 200 medley relay. Bainbridge, Leiendecker, Buell and Craig Smith clocked in at 1:47.6, a full two seconds better than against Brighton.

It was Mikalonis' turn next. His 2:14.2 in the 200 IM was also good for a win, and freshman John Warren followed it up with a second. Warren's 2:19.4 was a lifetime best and assured him a varsity letter.

Deyak returned to compile 132.6 points in the diving and a first while Bainbridge added two more wins in the 50 freestyle (23.4) and the 100 backstroke (59.4). Buell and Wayne continued the senior parade by grabbing a first (57.5) and second (59.3) in the 100 butterfly respectively, and Leiendecker's 1:09.1 was the fastest in the 100 breaststroke.

Sophomore Paul Stoecklin slipped in a win in the 5:00 freestyle (5:40.9), but the winning 400 freestyle relay was again senior-dominated as Wayne, Mikalonis, Buell and Smith combined for a 3:34.6.

The regular season finale is tomorrow (February 20) at Plymouth Canton. A win will give the Mustangs at least a share of the Western Division crown.

"If we beat Canton, we will tie with Churchill, unless they lose," Wright explained. "Our big goal is to win this dual meet and take our share of the title."

Grapplers place 15th

The Northville grapplers started the season slow (with six straight dual meet losses), picked up the pace after the new year (by winning four of five) but ended the campaign on a down note by placing 15th out of 18 teams at the state district tournament at Ypsilanti High School a week ago Saturday (February 8).

Individually, it was even more discouraging because not a single Northville wrestler placed in the top four of any of the 13 weight classifications. Thus no Mustang qualified for the regional tournament this Saturday at Gibraltar Carlson.

The Mustangs scored just 15 points in the tournament as five Northville wrestlers drew either the eventual district champion or the tournament's number one seed in the first round.

Jeff Bainbridge exits the water after winning the 50 freestyle versus Franklin

Home is where the investment is

Real estate always has been and will continue to be a good investment.

At least that is how most Realtors feel.

But there are high risk and low risk real estate investments, says Milford Realtor Owen Hawkes. The higher the risk, the greater the return.

"Buying vacant land is speculative. It can eat you up with taxes and interest rates. It is the type of investment where you get in and get out," Hawkes explained.

Buying multi residential property such as duplexes or apartments and even single family homes can bring a good return on one's investment, Hawkes noted.

"What type of real estate you buy depends a good deal on how you handle debt. Some people can't handle it; yet others can. If you can, I'll show people how to buy with little or no money down," Hawkes related.

However, Hawkes advises real estate investors to make sure they have one year of payments in the bank for security purposes.

Tom Callan, owner of Milford's Homemaker Realty, agrees with Hawkes on the inadvisability of purchasing vacant land.

"There was a time people could do that because interest rates and taxes weren't so high. But that isn't the case now. People today also have cash flow problems," he said, "when all their money is tied up."

"Vacant land is fine if it's a short range goal and you plan to build on it soon. But if you are looking at land for 10 years down the road, that's a different story."

Callan urges caution in buying a single-family home as an immediate investment.

"It is difficult to make money if you only plan to live in for a year and then sell it. The only way you can make money is if the house is in rough shape and you make the improvements yourself," he explained.

"The true investor buys real estate, keeping in mind its ability to serve his or her needs. Most of us, however, tend to buy real estate on what appeals to our emotions," Callan said.

Shirley Boutwell of Noling Real Estate in South Lyon points out that the real estate market in this area is on the upswing.

"There was a time when you could live in a house five years, turn around and sell, and make money. Then there was about a five-year period when you were lucky to break even on the sale of your house. However, right now the market is on its way up. If you get a good buy on a home now, chances are it will increase in value," Boutwell said.

"Of course, nobody really knows what the economy will do. The forecast though, is for a long-term upswing. There is a lot of construction going on from Detroit to Novi to Brighton and that means this is a prime area from which people will commute.

"If people are going to invest in (long-term) real estate," Boutwell related, "the best way is rental or commercial rental property."

Such an investment provides the buyer with an income, a positive cash flow, and the advantage of write-offs such as depreciation and property taxes.

"It keeps your taxable income at a minimum," Boutwell said.

restructuring that will result in a stronger, more concentrated company with a faster growth rate in earnings per share.

These are the kinds of factors it is important to learn about a company before investing in its stock.

"Right now it's not hard to pick a stock that's going up short term because nearly everything is going up," Webb said, "but when the market goes down again, which it will, then it is even more important to have picked stock that will buck the trend."

"If you are just looking for short term profits, you are into a risky thing."

Webb said that sophisticated investors usually buy stocks in blocks of 100 shares (round lots) and amateur investors in lots of perhaps 25 or 50 (odd lots).

There is a theory, he explained, that it's time to sell when the odd lot investor starts to buy, because odd lot investors usually buy at the wrong time — when the market is high and seems to be doing well.

Though it's only a theory, Webb said many people base their investments on it, and sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't.

Nancy Chambers, CPA from Novi, feels the stock market's recent performance is due to the overall good atmosphere now and the apparent stability in interest rates.

Though she feels the drop in oil prices may have caused a spurt in the market, she sees the upswing over several years as more significant.

"People should know what their purpose is before they buy stocks," she said. "Either a relatively continuous rate of return over a long period, or risky stock which could bring a quicker return but with which they could also lose."

Utilities are fairly steady payers that don't change radically, whereas the computer markets are very sensitive and can go either way."

Northville's Charlotte A. (Sherry) Spaman, registered representative with American Express/IDS Financial Services, thinks it's a good idea for first time investors to join a buying club and also to take a short course on the stock market.

"We're talking Las Vegas. If you can't afford to lose, you shouldn't be there," she warned.

"It would take very sophisticated investors to know what they are doing right now. The market can be fun to play, though. It's exciting, so volatile at times and at times just plodding along."

She feels that mutual funds would be a good way to go right now. "You might not see substantial gains, but you are looking at a certain amount of safety."

Income averaging can be a big saver

Has your income steadily increased over the past few years? Did your salary jump during 1985? Or did your spouse go back to work? If so, you might qualify for income averaging and it can cut your 1985 tax bill.

Income averaging is a tax break that Congress created in 1954 to blunt the tax impact on someone who has a sharp increase in income over a short period of time.

With income averaging, a sudden, dramatic rise in income is treated as though it occurred over a longer period of time—several years. Sometimes, steady increases in income over a few years can also trigger this tax break.

In a move to deal with the huge federal budget deficit, the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 limited the number of persons who qualify for income averaging and slashed the benefit it offers. Despite the new restrictions, many taxpayers can still lower their tax bills by income averaging.

If you think you might benefit, here's how to work out the basic income averaging formula: You will need your tax returns from 1982, 1983 and 1984 to determine your averageable income. Start by adding up your taxable incomes for the three years. Divide the total by three to establish your average taxable income. Then, multiply the average by 140 percent (1.4). Holding aside this part of the formula, work through the second step: Figure out your 1985 taxable income and subtract from it $3,000.

If the total of this second step exceeds the total of the first step, you will qualify for income averaging.

Here's an example of how it works: In 1985 Betty, a single working woman, had a $30,000 taxable income. Using the regular tax calculation her 1985 tax bill comes to $5,955. Now, look what happens when she income averages: her 1982, 1983 and 1984 taxable income came to $13,000, $17,000 and $20,000 respectively. Income averaging cuts her 1985 tax bill to $5,811 for a $144 savings. Betty's $10,000 jump in income in 1985 was substantial, though not unusual. However, when calculated with her income history for the previous three years, the 1985 income jump provides sufficient change for income averaging to pay off.

Each taxpayer's circumstances are too different to set rigid guidelines on who can and cannot benefit from income averaging.

The calculations you must complete to take this tax break may seem laborious, but the formula can usually be completed in under an hour. The IRS has thoughtfully provided Schedule G to work out the formula. Its 28 lines are easy to follow. In addition, the IRS plans an updated version of Publication 506, the guide and worksheet for calculating income averaging.

There are pitfalls to avoid with income averaging. For instance, if you married or were divorced between 1982 and 1985, you must refigure your taxable income for those years to make the computation consistent.

In fact, even if you did not change your marital status you may have to do some refiguring if you changed your filing status. For instance, if you change the way you file from married-filing-separately to filing jointly, you must recalculate your taxable income to reflect the earlier years in a comparable joint basis.

One other caveat: You cannot income average if you have not provided at least half of your own income in each of the years in the formula.

If you believe you may have missed out on using income averaging in prior years, you can file an amended return. In fact, if you income average on an amended return for those years before 1984, you can use a previous, more liberal income averaging formula.

Amended returns can be filed for at least three years after the due date of the original return.

Information has been supplied by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

401-K: Attractive alternative

But an employee making $30,000 could contribute up to $3,000 in his 401-K plan (if the limit is 10 percent) while he could contribute only $2,000 to his IRA. Since a chunk of that extra $1,000 would be going to Uncle Sam, the lure is

There are also provisions in 401-K plans for loans from your investment

The investment funds established for 401-K are generally moderate producers with little to moderate risk. Often an employee can choose between guaranteed annual returns and moderate risk stock and bond funds.

The 401-K, like the IRA, finally provides a tax break that benefits a wide range of people.

An Old Kent IRA Means...

Security. Now, And For The Future.

If you've been thinking about opening an IRA, there is still time. As long as you open your account by April 15, 1986, you can deduct the amount of your deposit on your 1985 tax return.

BANK OF BRIGHTON

Federal regulations require a penalty for early withdrawal.

IRAs are touted, with good reason, as a vital part of any portfolio. They provide instant tax breaks, deferred tax payments and, if used wisely, a secure retirement.

People have been urged to beg, borrow but not steal to come up with money to open an IRA. People have listened. Congress only made IRAs available four years ago and, according to Money magazine, about 40 million Americans have opened accounts. IRA assets have grown from $26 billion at the end of 1981 to more than $170 billion.

There's really no need to be surprised at the popularity. The $2,000 an individual can contribute ($4,000 for two working spouses) comes right off the top of your taxable income when it comes time to pay Caesar (or Uncle Sam) his due. Thus, if someone is in the 38 percent tax bracket, it only costs him or her $1,240 to open a $2,000 IRA since the remaining $760 would have gone to the IRS if no investment were made.

The interest earned on the IRA investment is deferred until it is pulled out at retirement age. Theoretically that means that you will be in a lower tax bracket than if you had to pay taxes on your interest earnings today.

The results is that IRAs encourage Americans to save, something they normally don't do very well. It also has provided lending institutions with a new and much-appreciated source of cash.

Banks and savings and loans, in fact, initially had somewhat of a monopoly on IRA investors. When IRAs first became available, interest rates were quite high. An investor could easily lock into a secure investment with, say, a 15 percent return. Who could ask for anything more?

But those CDs have dropped into single digits and many investors, both first-timers and those whose initial CDs are expiring, are looking for more.

And there are plenty of people out there to help them.

IRAs are big business. A single person contributing $2,000 annually to his IRA has built up a healthy $10,000 account or better by now. Double that for married couples. That music will catch the attention of investment brokers.

For the IRA investor, the music is played on a jukebox of choices. This year, the editors of Money magazine devoted an entire "Money Guide" issue to IRAs.

Their list of IRA options included: annuities, bonds, certificates of deposit, gold stocks, government issues, money-market investments, mutual funds, real estate and stocks.

There are limitations on some of these options; and some offer greater and lesser degrees of risk and return. A knowledgeable investment counselor should advise you if you decide to invest in any area that you are not comfortable and familiar with.

The "Money Guide," in fact, suggests the following criteria be used to assess all IRA investments: Preservation of principal, liquidity, volatility, and inflation protection.

If the thought of losing some or all of your principal makes you queasy, stay away from such investments with something as vital as your retirement fund. If, however, you have enough assets tucked away in secure investments, you may want to earmark part of your IRA portfolio for something a bit risky.

Cautious investing is safe, but it can be costly if not watched closely. If you invest $2,000 a year for 30 years and average eight percent on your investment, you'll end up with slightly under a quarter of a million dollars. If you get 11 percent on your money, you would end up with nearly twice that much.

That's a lot of money. And the difference is even greater when you consider that inflation, which could average from five to seven percent a year, will eat into the buying dollar of your nest egg.

Finally, make your annual IRA investments as early in the year as you can afford to. The law allows your 1986 IRA contribution to be made as late as April 15, 1987, the IRS deadline. But if you make that your practice, it can eventually cost you big bucks—$20,000 or more.

Select advisor with great care

By MATT VALLEY

In this age of investment, financial planners and consultants play a key role in many people's lives.

Today, Americans everywhere are looking for ways to get a higher rate of return on their dollar. Many are willing to take financial risks and consultants can provide the options.

But before jumping into a financial investment, consumers are advised by industry watchdogs to check out the qualifications of their financial planner and beware of risks involved.

"A good financial planner will look at the total picture, the options, rather than sell you one particular (financial) instrument," said Ann Slawnik, public relations coordinator for the Better Business Bureau—Detroit and Eastern Michigan.

"Some financial planners are licensed to sell only one instrument and they will push that," she added.

In short, an effective financial planner is one who offers specific suggestions on how to improve cash flow, but who also outlines all risks involved, according to industry officials.

For those individuals who are looking for a "safe investment" they may want to pursue a certificate of deposit, treasury bills or some other federally insured investment, said Jim Karpen, director of the enforcement division for the Corporate and Securities Bureau in Lansing.

First-time investors in the stock and commodities market need to do much research before giving their best shot at buying low and selling high, Karpen added. That means they must read books and take classes to develop an understanding of how the stock exchanges work.

"The stock market is a very complex area. You should have a good understanding of it before you get into it," said Karpen. "You've got to look before you leap."

Investors should also remember that stockbrokers (who serve as consultants on the stock exchange market) can offer sound advice, but in no way have cornered the market on wisdom, Karpen pointed out. There are no guarantees how a stock will do and there are a fair amount of risks involved, he said.

"One thing to do is to be cautious. Don't put all your monies in one basket," Karpen said. "Nobody is going to be able to predict a winner in the market all the time."

This decade has seen a dramatic growth in the number of financial consultants, a direct result of an "explosion" in the financial industry, said Karpen. A number of factors have spurred the growth including an improved economy and greater availability of financial products, he said.

Checklist helps make selection

Here's a suggested checklist for choosing a financial advisor. Rate each person or firm you are considering on a score of 1 to 4 for each of the 11 categories. The highest score could be the person or firm you wish to deal with.

1. Primary expertise in analyzing needs. Ability to prudently arrange overall financial plans rather than primarily sell individual financial products.

2. Technical credibility. Does your advisor have professional and technical credentials? Does he or she have a back-up staff or does he or she try to know all things?

3. Freedom to select the best product. Though there are exceptions, your advisor should not be captive to one primary type of product nor should he or she be knowledgeable in only one area.

4. Large but not impersonal. Does the advisor have a back-up research staff? Can the company provide economics of scale and thus reduced fees without compromising quality? Do analyses consist primarily of computer printouts?

5. Implementation results. Can the advisor show a track record for most of the recommendations or are there claims only?

6. Economically sound investments first. Tax benefits and/or get-rich-quick schemes should not be placed first.

7. Complete look at overall financial picture. Or are there instant answers and hasty decisions based on partial information?

8. Balanced investment program. Or is it concentrated on one hot area, despite circumstances?

9. Does the advisor disclose any possible conflict of interest?

10. Are options explained in English? The advisor presents black and white facts for good decisions. Or does he or she confuse and ask for unduly quick decisions?

11. Does your advisor understand you and your needs? He or she listens carefully to your sometimes hidden fears, needs, and desires and is able to work well with you.

There are a number of red flag signs consumers should look for to avoid get-

- When consultants talk about a high rate of return such as 20 to 30 percent, be wary.

- Avoid consultants who give you only one option. This is a sign of a bad consultant.
- Be careful of entering a money transaction that is not taking place in your geographic area.
- Be careful when investing in high risk novelty items. Some are viable financial investments, but many aren't.

But be sure to come in before April 15. That way you can save even more by claiming your IRA as a deduction on your 1985 taxes.

NewCentury Bank

Member FDIC

An IRA is an excellent tax deferral plan, but substantial interest penalties apply if you withdraw your money before age 59½.

Pay attention to state taxes

In addition to filing your 1985 federal income tax return, don't forget you may be required to file a return with the State of Michigan. In fact, you may be required to file a Michigan return even if you do not have to file a federal return.

Who should file a state return? Those with a federal adjusted gross income greater than the total amount allowed for Michigan personal and dependency exemptions or those who are eligible for a refund.

The deadline date is the same for federal and state returns. It must be postmarked by April 15 to avoid paying a penalty. For 1985, the tax is to be computed using a rate of 5.33 percent.

The amount for each personal exemption remains at $1,500. Beginning with 1985 claims, Act 415, P.A. 1985, grants an extra personal exemption to taxpayers who are deaf.

The tax forms and instructions have been mailed to residential addresses and post office boxes and can also be obtained at local offices of the Michigan Department of Treasury or from tax return preparers.

This year, the Michigan Department of Treasury has developed an EZ income tax return. You can choose the EZ option if all of the following are true for you:

- You file a 1985 federal form 1040EZ.
- You were a Michigan resident for all of 1985.
- You are not eligible to claim any Michigan income tax credits except the ones allowed for income tax paid to a Michigan city and credit for public contributions.
- You do not have any of these kinds of income: interest income from other state obligations; interest income from U.S. obligations; or military pay.

The Homestead Property Tax Credit is available to all homeowners and renters. If your credit exceeds your tax liability you may receive a refund up to a maximum of $1,200.

Some claimants may qualify for credit under more than one category. They should compare and choose the one that works to their best advantage. Special rules apply to claimants who are not husband and wife but who jointly own and occupy the same dwelling. These rules also apply for separated or divorced claimants and taxpayers with a business in their home.

The credit for homeowners and renters in general equals 60 percent of the amount by which their property taxes, billed in 1985, exceeds 3.5 percent of their household or spendable income. The interpretation of household income allows the exclusion of state and local income tax refunds, homestead property tax credits and other items as outlined in the instructions. In addition, health and accident insurance premiums paid by the taxpayers for themselves and their families are deductible from household income.

Renters will base their claim on 17 percent of rent paid which will be considered in lieu of taxes in the computation of credit. Where meals are included in the rent paid or if you live in tax-exempt housing which pays a service fee in place of property taxes, a separate computation is required to determine the tax eligible for credit.

Persons living in a mobile home park may claim $3 per month and 17 percent of the rent paid.

The property tax credit claim forms include a section for claimants who received Aid to Families with Dependent Children (ADC) or General Assistance (GA) benefits to calculate their prorated credit amount. The credit is reduced by the ratio of ADC or GA to total household income.

There is a phase out of the Homestead Property Tax Credit for claimants whose household income exceeds $73,650. The credit is reduced by 10 percent for each $1,000 or part of $1,000 by which household income is greater than $73,650. Therefore, you will not qualify for a credit if your household income is over $82,650.

Home heating credits and supplemental fuel cost payments are claimed on a separate form, MI-1040CR-7. A married couple or a single person maintaining a household may be eligible for a home heating credit. Residents of adult foster care homes, nursing homes, house for the aged or substance abuse centers are not eligible for the credit.

The primary requirement is that household income may not exceed the income ceiling for the number of exemptions claimed. The income ceiling ranges from $7,771 for one exemption to $15,714 for six exemption. For each exemption over six the ceiling increases $2,000. Forms and instructions are in a separate booklet.

Individuals who have signed an agreement with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources under the Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act may claim a special credit through the use of Form MI-1040CR-5. Farmland preservation credits are income to the recipient and must be included in the federal adjusted gross income, Michigan taxable income and Michigan household income.

An income tax credit is available to Michigan residents who purchased and installed a solar, photovoltaic, wind, ground water heat pump or a low-lead hydro system in their resident. Application for the credit is made with the Michigan Department of Commerce Energy Administration. The credit is claimed on Form MI-1040CR-6.

Information concerning weatherization and consumer energy education can be obtained by contacting the Energy Administration at 517-373-0480.

You may also claim a credit for contributions to colleges, universities, public libraries, public radio and television stations located in Michigan. The maximum credit for these contributions is $200 on a joint return or $100 on a single return.

There are also credits available for income taxes paid to Michigan cities and income taxes paid to another state.

Contributions of artwork will qualify the giver for a tax credit if they meet the criteria of Michigan income tax laws. The fair market value of the artwork must be determined by an independent appraiser when the donation is made. Claim credit on line 18 of Form MI-1040.

Michigan income taxpayers who are entitled to a refund may authorize the Department of Treasury to deduct from the refund a donation to the Children's Trust Fund to assist victims of child abuse.

In addition, a deduction may be authorized for donation to the Nongame Wildlife Fund to be used for management and research on nongame wildlife, threatened and endangered species and designated plants.

If any of the following items were in-without a degree pay minimum wage to $5 an hour. University graduates can expect from $15,000 to $30,000 starting salary. Spaman feels that new women graduates have the same opportunities as their male counterparts.

"Dynamic women who are well qualified have very good chances for advancement," she said.

"Many financial institutions have not had enough women to fill their quotas for management."

She noted that jobs in finance are not limited to banks and credit unions. Brokerage houses, investment firms, financial service companies and most industries offer opportunities.

In order to broker stocks a special license is needed, even with a degree. According to Spaman, it's essential to be with a company to get the license.

Financial planning is a quickly growing area as changing tax laws and fluctuating interest rates drive more people to seek advice in planning for their financial future.

"It's a field where you really have to enjoy working with people," said Spaman, who finds the work very satisfying.

"A plan helps direct people so they will be able to retire at the income level they desire," she said. "Sometimes it's the first time a couple will have had a serious, in-depth dialogue about their finances and sometimes their differing goals can put the planner in the hot seat!"

More financial service companies are demanding that their planners become certified.

To become a Certified Financial Planner (CFP) the candidate has to demonstrate competence in analyzing and developing personal and business financial plans through the completion of a series of rigorous examinations offered by The College for Financial Planning in Denver.

Much of the preparation can be done through home study, but classes also are offered in some local colleges.

Doris Longfellow, manager of the First National Bank of Howell in Brighton, stressed that an empathetic personality is an asset in banking.

"It can really be fun, like when you can help someone purchase their first vehicle."

Longfellow has worked in banks in Nebraska, Ohio and Michigan and thinks it is a wonderful field for women.

"Young women now are very fortunate in the choices they have. It's an exciting time to start a career," she said.

She commented that it is still a good career for women who may want to take a few years off when their children are small, and be able to fit right back in when they are ready.

"The basic banking knowledge doesn't change even though the systems do."

Early in her career she faced discriminatory comments but said things are much better today.
