Baa to spring

Kids will be kids, even if they really are baby goats. A mother goat sneaks a nip to keep up her strength while her new offspring nap in the warm spring sunshine. Children of all ages can view the baby animals at Maybury State Park's Living Farm, home not only to the kids, but to a calf and piglets, too. The farm's new residents are available for view daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Maybury State Park is open daily from 8 a.m. to dusk.

Voters give approval to two millage issues

Northville voters Monday overwhelmingly approved the local district's request for a renewal of 26.5 voted operating mills and gave a resounding "yes" to Schoolcraft College's appeal for a half-mill increase.

An ecstatic superintendent George Bell reported Monday night that slightly more than 76 percent of the 1,824 registered voters casting ballots in Monday's election approved the district's request for renewal of all its voted operating millage for a five-year.

The superintendent noted that Monday's voter turnout was "a little high for a renewal." He said the Schoolcraft College issue appeared to have brought out more voters than anticipated.

At the Northville school board's meeting Monday night, Bell said early returns (primarily absentee ballots) did not look favorable. School officials noted that Monday's election brought out many voters who had not voted in a local election in more than 10 years. The Superintendent noted the central office received several calls Monday from voters uncertain about precincts and polling places.

The district's 26.5 mill request was approved by voters in all six precincts. Precinct 4 had the largest turnout with some 436 voters casting ballots. Smallest turnout was in Precinct 5 where 182 registered voters cast ballots.

Unofficial tally of Monday's local election is as follows:

- Precinct 1 — 156 yes, 79 no, 1 invalid;
- Precinct 2 — 183 yes, 42 no, 1 invalid;
- Precinct 3 — 326 yes, 84 no, 3 invalid;
- Precinct 4 — 337 yes, 96 no;
- Precinct 5 — 139 yes, 43 no;
- Precinct 6 — 251 yes, 82 no, 1 invalid.

Northville voters also turned out in full force to help Schoolcraft College win its half-mill request. Northville was among the three local districts which approved the community college's first millage increase in nearly 20 years.

Approximately 63 percent of the 1,813 Northville voters casting ballots in the Schoolcraft issue approved the half-mill request.

Unofficial count of Northville votes for the Schoolcraft issue are as follows:

- Precinct 1 — 137 yes, 99 no;
- Precinct 2 — 162 yes, 61 no;
- Precinct 3 — 223 yes, 186 no, 2 invalid;
- Precinct 4 — 271 yes, 161 no, 1 invalid;
- Precinct 5 — 117 yes, 62 no;
- Precinct 6 — 229 yes, 105 no.

Council assesses financing to rehabilitate city streets

By ANITA CRONE

Spring is the time of year when young people's fancies turn to love and municipal government's eyes turn to streets.

The winter is over and the snow has melted, usually to reveal all the damage done to pavement and asphalt roads. In the city of Northville, the problem is particularly acute because the city has never had a major road project — until now.

City Council Monday turned its attention to street rehabilitation, noting the probability of a $2.5 million project. The only question remaining is how to pay for it.

City Manager Steven Walters noted there are four basic methods of financing street reconstruction projects — through state and federal grants; gas and weight tax rebates; special assessments and a property tax levy.

"While grant money is the most desirable method of financing, since it reduces the need for local resources, there is no such money available," Walters said.

While no action on funding is expected prior to presentation of the city's budget, it was apparent the majority of council members favored putting the question of funding to the voters.

"I think a city-wide millage is the route to go," said councilman Paul Folino. "That way everybody would be sharing part of the cost, rather than a few property owners being hit with large assessments."

Walters recommended that, should the city actually seek to put a request for 4 to 5 mills on the ballot, part of the funding required should be used to refund at least part of original assessments charged to property owners on nine streets.

"That way, those home owners would not be paying for their streets as well as for the city-wide project," Walters said.

Walters told council he estimated the entire renovation cost, including proposed refunds to homeowners, to be slightly more than $2.6 million. He added the project could be financed by a 10-year general obligation bond issue.

He added he anticipated the city asking for between four and five mills, but that the actual costs could vary.

"My figures are based on a 10 percent interest rate, and the actual rate is lower than that now," Walters said. "My figures also assume the entire project would be done at once, rather than over two or three years."

Walters said most of the city's residential streets were included in the proposed project, but there were some streets, primarily commercial roads and roads maintained by the county, totally left out of the project.

Wilkinson bows out of school race; Davis seeks second term

By MICHELE M. FECHT

The Northville Board of Education will have at least one new member in June following the announcement Monday night that longtime trustee Karen Wilkinson will not seek reelection to a fourth term.

Incumbent Glenna Davis, a five-year veteran of the board and currently president, will seek a second four-year term in the annual school election June 9.

Deadline for Northville residents interested in filing nominating petitions for the two board posts is 4 p.m. April 7.

Candidates to the school board must be 18 years old, registered Northville electors, U.S. citizens, residents of Michigan at least 30 days and residents of the school district on or before the 30th day prior to the annual school election. Property ownership is not a requirement. Nominating petitions are available in the business office at the Board of Education Building, 501 W. Main.

Signatures of at least 20 registered voters of the district must be included on nominating petitions.

Trustees of the school board serve on a voluntary basis. Northville is one of only a handful of districts in Wayne County which does not offer stipends to its school board members.

Noting that her husband is retiring at the end of May, Wilkinson said her family situation necessitated her leaving her 12-year board post.

"I'm sorry to lose it all," she noted. "But it's time for someone new."

Wilkinson was first elected to the board in 1974 and was reelected to consecutive four-year terms in 1978 and 1982. She has served in nearly every office on the board including president, a post she held in 1978 and again in 1981.

In addition to her involvement with the local board, Wilkinson also has been an active member of the Michigan

Association of School Boards (MASB). First elected to the MASB Board of Directors in 1978, Wilkinson served as president in 1983-84 and was a regional president (covering a nine-state region) in 1984-85.

This year she was named to the MASB's nominating committee.

Though her decision to end her tenure on the local school board also will bring to a close her long association with the state organization, Wilkinson says she is hoping to "continue somewhere in the realm of education."

Davis, who was elected to the board in the same year Northville lost a 9.5 millage renewal, said the district's "opportunity for stability" was among her reasons for seeking another four-year term.

First elected to a one-year seat in 1981 to fill the remaining term of former trustee Richard Barron, Davis won reelection to a four-year post in 1982.

In addition to her involvement with the local school board, Davis has served on the Schoolcraft College Women's Advisory Committee, was Michigan president of the Homemaker's Equal Rights Association and the Western Wayne County National Organization for Women.

"It was hard to think of committing for another four years," Davis noted, "but I did not want to miss next year."

She said the major projects completed during the past few years — such as the high school renovation project and grade structure realignment — will allow the district to focus on finetuning its current program.

"A lot of things I wanted to achieve when I ran four years ago have been on the back burner," Davis noted, adding that she would like to bring concerns about Title IX and programming for both special needs students as well as the academically gifted to the forefront.

Tannian tells suburbs to wait on Vista suit

By KEVIN WILSON

Suburban communities considering legal action to recover alleged overpayments for sewage treatment services provided by the City of Detroit should wait until fall before making a decision, an attorney representing Oakland County told western Wayne County chief elected officials recently.

Phillip Tannian, an attorney with Nederlander, Dodge and McCauley, which represents Oakland County in a similar action, told the board of the Conference of Western Wayne (CWW) questions surrounding the suit should be resolved by appeals court decisions expected by fall, and the statute of limitations should pose no problems for those wishing to join the suit during the current year.

The civil action is based on the criminal fraud and conspiracy convictions surrounding a Vista Disposal contract to transport sludge from the Detroit Sewage Treatment Plant. Some of those convicted in the case have appealed, Tannian said, and their appeals may be resolved this summer.

Oakland County filed suit to recover the alleged overpayments in March, 1984, and acquired by subpoena much of the evidence used in the criminal trials, but a federal district court judge recently ruled that the county did not qualify as an "injured party" and therefore did not have legal standing to file suit. The case was dismissed on that argument, one of 18 presented in motions for dismissal filed by the defendant City of Detroit, Tannian said.

Oakland County is appealing the dismissal to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, and Tannian told the western Wayne governmental consortium that he expects a decision by late summer or early fall.

CWW communities approved a resolution last year asking Wayne County to join the Oakland County lawsuit, but Wayne County corporation counsel John O'Hair has declined to become a party to the action, arguing the individual communities are more appropriate plaintiffs than are the counties. That stance led CWW to request Tannian's presentation, which he gave at CWW's regular monthly board meeting at Redford Township Hall March 21. All member communities except for the City of Northville were represented at the session.

"We think (the judge) is wrong, and that John O'Hair is wrong," Tannian told the gathering, made up primarily of mayors and township supervisors. "Two-thirds of the communities in Wayne County have asked that it join the suit. I think that as soon as we get a decision from Cincinnati that the counties are the proper parties (to file suit), Wayne County will join. That's an impression, not something we've been told in so many words or had written on a piece of paper."

The case rests on the claim Detroit was overcharged for sludge hauling and disposal under contracts awarded due to bribery and conspiracy, and the excess costs were passed on to the city's suburban water and sewer customers. Tannian said Vista Disposal billed Detroit for $7 million in a single year during the period in question, while Michigan Disposal and Wayne Disposal billed "in the

Voters approve millage renewal issue

Approximately 5 percent of the registered voters in the community college district cast ballots in Monday's election.

Northville, Livonia and Plymouth-Canton had the largest voter turnouts of the six local districts

According to Schoolcraft Comptroller Adelard Raby, approximately 59 percent of the voters casting ballots approved the college's request. Unofficial totals show 4,990 voters approved the half-mill request with 3,490 rejecting it.

Clarenceville, Garden City and Novi all rejected the half-mill increase. The three districts also had the lowest voter turnouts.

With only a portion of the school district eligible to vote in the community college election, only 43 Novi voters cast ballots Monday for Schoolcraft's issue. Of those casting ballots, 15 approved the request with 28 rejecting it. In Clarenceville, 54 voters cast "yes" ballots with 110 voting against the increase. In Garden City, 512 "no" voters edged out the 420 approving the ballot.

Largest voter turnout was in Livonia where 63 percent of the 3,709 voters casting ballots approved the request. In Plymouth-Canton, 56 percent of the 1,809 voters casting ballots approved the half-mill increase.

William McCormick discusses plans for Consumers Power Midland plant

New hire's salary forces arbitration

By ANITA CRONE

The Northville Clerical Employees Association and the city may be heading for arbitration over the issue of a new employee who was hired in at more than the usual starting pay rate.

The clerical association contends Lillian Nelson, who was hired by the city last fall at the Clerk II level, received more than the contractually-stipulated starting wage. In addition, Nelson, who was a new city employee, also was granted tuition reimbursement and a continuation of family dental benefits at the time of her hire.

The association is asking for each clerical employee to receive an immediate 70-cent pay increase to equal Nelson's elevated pay and also to receive a one-time payment equal to the orthodontic and educational payments the city gave Nelson.

The city contends that within a management rights clause, it was perfectly within contractual definition for the city to pay Nelson higher than the starting salary for her level.

"The contract does not prohibit the city from starting an employee at a rate within the classification level which is higher than the entrance rate," explained City Manager Steven Walters.

The situation is further compounded by the promotion of two other members of the bargaining unit whose promotions occurred at a similar time and were given salary increases above the rate spelled out in the contract.

As far as the city is concerned, Walters says: "the situations are the same. There is no difference between a new hire and a promotion."

"Not so," comments Association President Ruth Bartz. "The contract specifically spells out that when a position is filled by a new hire from outside the bargaining unit, it shall be filled ...at the same normal classification level as the prior employee held. Nowhere does it say the pay should be higher."

Bartz added both promoted employees — Tonni Burns and Reggie Hodson — were eligible for raises anyway.

Council persons Carolann Ayers and John Buckland, who were appointed by Mayor Paul Vernon and the city council to meet with the union to try and resolve the situation, suggested the matter be settled by reducing Nelson to entry level pay and to reduce Burns and Hodson by one pay step and further to try and recover the overpayments retroactively.

Bartz said the pay of all three employees was cut back last week.

"As far as (the association) is concerned, the matter is not settled," Bartz said. "We fully intend to go to arbitration and we intend to have the issue dealing with Nelson settled. That situation has nothing whatsoever to do with the other two employees."

McCormick: Midland plant isn't dead yet

By ANITA CRONE

Consumers' Power nuclear plant at Midland may be a dead issue as a nuclear-powered facility, but if William McCormick, the company's new chairman and chief executive officer has his way, there will be a plant in operation there within six years.

McCormick, who spoke last week to executives and reporters of Suburban Communications Corp., the parent company of Sliger-Livingston and The Northville Record, said Consumers currently is completing a study pinpointing what to do with the "80 percent complete $4.1 billion" abandoned facility.

Converting Midland to a natural-gas facility could allow the company — and its ratepayers — to cut their loss to just about $1.6 billion — the cost of equipment unique to a nuclear facility.

"We really have four options on Midland," McCormick said. "We could complete it as a nuclear facility, abandon it, convert it to a coal-burning facility, or convert it to natural gas. Really, though, there were only three options: It would be virtually impossible to complete it as a nuclear facility."

Soon after taking over the reins at Consumers in November, McCormick spearheaded the study on converting the plant to either coal or natural gas. The study, he said, was nearly complete and the company expects to make

'We really have four options on Midland. We could complete it as a nuclear facility, abandon it, convert it to a coal-burning facility, or convert it to natural gas.'

— William McCormick, CEO, Consumers

its decision in early April.

Although full results are not available (McCormick said the company was in the review step of the study), he noted at this time it appeared the company would request converting the plant to natural gas.

That option was a natural. McCormick previously was president, chairman and chief executive officer of American Natural Resources, and had been employed by the company since 1978.

While many people would have shied away from taking over a company that was in poor financial health — nearly one-third of Consumers assets were tied up with the Midland project — and was being bullied by the media, Attorney General Frank Kelley, stockholders and the general public, McCormick said he welcomed the challenge.

His first task was to mend fences, not only with the media, but with governmental and business leaders. He has met with Gov. James Blanchard, officials in the Michigan Department of Commerce as well as the media and says he is "optimistic" a favorable solution to Midland can be arrived at.

"I think everyone is aware the company is spending thousands of dollars to maintain Midland in a mothball state," he said. "And there is no doubt there will be an increased demand for energy in the very near future."

Consumers figures show that without completion of Midland as a non-nuclear plant, the company's power reserves would fall below acceptable levels by 1995 and by the year 2000 the reserves would be in a deficit situation.

But completing Midland would also entail a further expenditure, and McCormick frankly said the initial cost to bring Midland on line as either a coal- or gas-run facility would necessitate the company requesting a rate increase from the Public Service Commission.

"The cost may be more in the short run, but in the long run, it would save money," McCormick said. He added that he estimates it would cost Consumers Power an additional $500 million to convert the facility to natural gas, $1 billion to coal.

McCormick said he is "encouraged" the company's plans will succeed. For one thing, he says the entire climate of the state is different. "There's a new Public Service Commission chairman, the state's economy is better, there's new management at Consumers." And even the "same old Attorney General" doesn't stifle McCormick's enthusiasm.

"I think the Attorney General will make his decision in context of what everyone else is doing," McCormick said. "And right now I'm very encouraged the vast majority of people I've talked to are in favor of doing something with Midland."

What exactly will be done with the plant will be apparent within 12 months.

The group will spend a day in Frankenmuth, May 7, touring the Carling Brewery, shopping and eating lunch at the Bavarian Inn.

Cost for the trip is $24.50, and includes round-trip transportation, coffee and donuts, and a guided tour of the historic city.

Departure is scheduled for 8:15 a.m. and the group is expected to return at 5:30 p.m.

In June, the group is planning a three-day, two-night trip to Toronto. Cost of the entire trip is $179 and includes a guided tour of the city, a nine-course dinner, a visit to the CN Tower, a harbor cruise and dinner theater.

More information on the Toronto trip, which is scheduled for June 27, may be obtained by telephoning 349-4140.

Students take essay honors

Maria Wen, an eighth-grader at Meads Mill Middle School, has captured first place for the school in the 17th annual America & Me essay contest. Wen's entry now advances to state competition, where it will be judged against winning essays from other eighth grade students.

Wen was not the only winner from Meads Mill. Manpreet Bagga took second place and Kathy Welsen was third. All three youngsters received award certificates from the contest's sponsor and Wen's name will also be engraved on a plaque for permanent display in the school.

Started in 1968, the contest is open to all eighth grade students in Michigan. Ten state winners receive plaques, U.S. savings bonds ranging in value from $200 to $1,000, and will be honored at a banquet in Lansing.

Candlelight affair

More than 240 people attended the Northville Historical Society's Candlelight Ball March 15 at the Novi Hilton. The dinner-dance helped raise funds for historical society projects. Among those attending were Dick and Nancy Bohn (at left) and Dennis and Cheryl Cassady (above). Nancy Bohn chaired this year's event along with committee members Sandra Florek and Judith Sechler. Cheryl and Dennis Cassady were among the historical society members who sold tickets for the popular event.

Christians gather at local churches for Easter rites

Holy Week services leading up to the celebration of Easter Sunday will be held in churches throughout the community.

The traditional ecumenical Good Friday service will be held at 1:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church. Sharing in the service will be the congregations of the Presbyterian, Meadowbrook Congregational and Methodist churches.

Choirs from the three churches will provide anthems for the service, together with the handbell choir of the Methodist church.

Preaching the sermon will be Dr. Lawrence Chamberlain of the First Presbyterian Church. A nursery will be provided and access is available for the handicapped. The public is invited to share in the union service.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST

The congregation of First United Methodist will share in the traditional Tenebrae service at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow. The service of candlelighting and candle extinguishing, represents the calling and falling away of the disciples. During the service, 12 men of the congregation, representing the 12 disciples, will light the candles. After communion, the candles will be extinguished symbolizing the falling away and deserting of the disciples after the first Lord's Supper held in the Upper Room in Jerusalem. The service will conclude with Holy Communion.

Good Friday community service will be at 1:30 p.m. in the sanctuary. A Good Friday prayer vigil will be held from 3 p.m. to midnight with members of the congregation sharing in 15-minute intervals.

Three services will be held Easter Sunday. A sunrise service is scheduled at 7 a.m. followed by a breakfast served by the Methodist Men. Festive Easter worship will follow at 9:30 and 11 a.m. Nursery care will be provided at these services. Music will be provided by the Chancel, youth and children's choirs and handbell choir.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

The traditional Maundy Thursday communion service will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the sanctuary.

The congregation will join Meadowbrook Congregational and the Methodist church for a community-wide Good Friday service at 1:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church.

Three services are scheduled Easter morning beginning with a 7 a.m. sunrise service. At 9:30 and 11 a.m. there will be identical worship services.

MEADOWBROOK CONGREGATIONAL

Meadowbrook Congregational will share the Good Friday service with the Presbyterian and Methodist congregations at 1:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church.

Easter Sunday services at 9:30 a.m. will include several special music selections.

The Prelude will consist of a "Choral Fantasy for Organ, Brass Quartet and Timpani" based on the medieval tune "Christ the Lord is Risen Again." The arranger is the contemporary Belgian composer Flor Peeters. This is not the familiar Victorian tune, which will be sung later by the choir and congregation as the Processional Hymn.

The newest music in the service will be the Introit, "Worthy Is Christ" for choir, organ, four brass instruments and timpani, by contemporary American composer Richard Hillert.

The earliest music to be heard Easter Sunday morning will most likely be the most familiar to the majority of the congregation. For the Offertory Solo, Cheryl Barnes will sing "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" from the 18th century oratorio "The Messiah" by Handel.

Archdiocese eyes new area high school

The results of a survey conducted by the Archdiocese of Detroit shows support for a new Catholic co-educational high school in southwest Oakland County.

The survey included the Holy Family parish in Novi as well as four other Catholic parishes in the southwest section of Oakland County — St. Joseph in South Lyon, St. Mary in Milford, St. Patrick in Union Lake and St. William in Walled Lake.

Father David Franco, interim superintendent of schools for the Archdiocese of Detroit, said the next step is up to the pastors of the five parishes.

"They must decide on the basis of the preliminary survey whether or not to commit themselves to establishing a new regional high school in the area," said Franco.

Franco added that a more complete survey would be conducted if the parishes decide to proceed with plans for a new high school. Geographic location would then be examined, including existing structures, and estimates would be obtained for the purchase and renovation of a facility. Possible financing options also would be explored.

Based on the preliminary survey, the probable enrollment of such a school would be between 900 and 1,000 students, said Franco.

The results of the survey, which was partially funded by a $4,000 grant from the Catholic Services Appeal, have been sent to the pastors of the five parishes.

The survey revealed that 61 percent of the respondents favored establishing a Catholic high school in southwest Oakland County, while only 18 percent were opposed.

Some 1,638 surveys were sent to members of the Holy Family parish. There were 553 responses for a participation factor of 34 percent.

Forty-five percent of the Holy Family respondents said they were in favor of a high school, while 29 percent said they were opposed. Another 25 percent said they were unsure.

In addition, 24 percent of the Holy Family respondents indicated that they would make a pledge toward establishing such a school, while 56 percent said they would not make a pledge and 20 percent said they were uncertain.

Fifty-seven percent of the Holy Family respondents said they had no children.

Support for a Catholic high school was lower in the Holy Family parish than other parishes. Forty-seven percent of the St. Joseph (South Lyon) respondents favored the high school, 72 percent of St. Patrick (Union Lake) respondents favored the school, 65 percent of St. Mary respondents (Milford) favored the school and 70 percent of St. William respondents (Walled Lake) indicated they would like to see a Catholic high school in southwest Oakland County.

Mayhem — —and MURDER at the HILTON

By Anita Crone

The butler couldn't have done it. Since there was no butler in the suspect list at Novi Hilton's Murder Mystery Wedding Celebration, the butler was the only one who couldn't have given Father Flicker a heart attack or fed Emma Scintilla poison.

Even though those three 'suspects' were eliminated, there were dozens of others who could have committed murder and did wreak some mayhem — including the 50 guests who paid $295 a couple ($220 a person) to attend the wicked weekend.

Although there have been other murder mysteries in other locales and more are on the way, last weekend's three-day event was the first at the Hilton.

The task for the wedding guests was simple: Attend the events surrounding Sonny Day's and Angelica Foster's wedding and determine who committed the murder(s) that were to occur. Prizes would be awarded for the person who correctly selected the murderer(s); for the best costume at the Wild White Ball; for the best-written report (based on originality, not accuracy); for the detective who solved the most clues; and for the most confused detective.

On the surface that wasn't too difficult. But this weekend, things were brewing beneath the surface.

First, there was the wedding shower Friday night. That's when the families and assorted hangers-on were introduced. The cast of characters was exactly that — a group of characters. First there were Sonny's grandmothers, Velvet Knight and Flora Day, both rich, both socially conscious and certainly not fans of each other.

Then there were Sonny's parents, Annie and Hal E. Day, not to mention Sonny's aunt Daisy, a lunatic who clutched her baby, a doll, throughout the weekend.

Two priests, Flicker and Fr. Darkling, were scheduled to be on hand for the ceremony. Both grandmothers had social secretaries — Anita Pointment for Knight and Nestor Pester for Day.

Poor Angelica, a foster child, had only her best friend, Scintilla, to help her through the weekend, but Scintilla had eyes mainly for Wylie Knight, a ladies' man if ever there was one.

Those were the actors, but the guests weren't your everyday group, either. They traversed from as far away as Traverse City and as near as Novi to try and determine 'whodunnit.' For one weekend they became guests of the Knights and Days and celebrated with the families.

For me, the mystery started early. I couldn't get my card to open the room door in the hotel, and the event was still an hour away from officially beginning.

Like many of the guests, I would meet my hosts at the wedding shower Friday night. And such a shower it was. Sonny and Angelica couldn't decide who loved each other more. Nester Pester proclaimed to all who would listen that it was his affair, but you knew right away that the only affair he wanted was with a partner of the same sex.

Father Flicker, who thankfully died early, was not the sort of priest one would want to hear confession. As Fr. Darkling later confided, Flicker insisted on doing the mass in Latin and St. Gregory's parish was suffering because of it — that is, if you believed Darkling.

Meanwhile, Grandma Knight and Grandma Day kept sniping at each other and only Angelica and Sonny seemed oblivious. They were too much in love when they weren't having lovers' quarrels.

Meanwhile, the guests, who had no real idea what was going on since there only was the one shower, were warily making their way around Ballroom I at the hotel, partaking of an open bar and hors d'oeuvres. That was, until the gifts arrived.

We didn't know it Friday night, but there was a special significance to the flowers, the lace tablecloth, oregano, wooden antelope, duck decoy, a book entitled 'Afflictions' and yarn.

No, that Friday the only gift that seemed to have any impact was the severed hand, presented on a tray, that gave Flicker his fatal heart attack. Mickey Heald, the creator of the plot, explained that we had just seen a murder. Our task was to find out why the good father died.

Heald said the actors hired for the weekend were mostly apprentices, friends of friends and acquaintances. Many of the actors were new to the troupe and were hired just for this weekend.

"Some of the mystery weekends, which are very popular right now, take a very serious tone. Our weekends are more light-hearted," Heald said.

Heald and his troupe approached the Novi Hilton with the mystery idea in November and the hotel officials were very enthused. They planned a date, hired the actors and the wedding idea was born.

Heald explained that the actors were given brief synopses of their characters and events were planned for a specific time, but mostly the actors and guests were left to their own devices. For some, like Novi resident Lyn Elo who portrayed Velvet Knight, the acting is secondary. In real life, Elo is the activity director at Farmington Hills Inn, a senior citizen's residence.

This was Elo's first encounter with the troupe and she had little time to really interact with the other cast members since check-in time for the characters was the same as for the guests.

"In a way, it's a lot like working with my seniors," Elo explained. "I have to act there, too. I have to care about them and listen to their problems, but sometimes they have something very important bothering them and I have to push to get them to tell me what the problem is and to work to correct it."

Sweet love. Sonny Day (Slade Burrus of Akron, Ohio) and Angelica Foster (Laura Barnett of East Palestine, Ohio) give each other an icing-flavored kiss.

blems, but sometimes they have something very important bothering them and I have to push to get them to tell me what the problem is and to work to correct it.

"Working in this skit, I also had to work to keep the marriage events on target, and at the same time getting digs in at Flora," Elo said.

Elo, as Velvet Knight, also made no bones about her dislike for Flicker, and her relief at his untimely death. We all knew she preferred Fr. Darkling perform the ceremony, since Flora Day had insisted Flicker would marry the couple.

Saturday, Annie and Hal E. Day joined my group for breakfast. Hal, still in character, was bemoaning the fact he had to cancel his golf game with Darkling. Darkling, meanwhile, was eating breakfast with Nester at another location, probably discussing the wedding plans for that noon.

Surprisingly, no one died at breakfast. And the questions the guests asked the Days were becoming very serious indeed. Everyone, it seemed, was trying to find the link between Flicker and either the Knights or the Days.

While Annie and Hal gave truthful answers to questions, it was obvious they were more concerned with the upcoming wedding ceremony, scheduled to take place at 12:45 that afternoon.

The guests played their parts well. Everyone was dressed up for the wedding and for those who were not part of the event, it appeared like just another wedding at the Novi Hilton. To be sure, Father Darkling's speech to the young couple seemed more like a confession of some dark deeds Darkling had done in his youth, but that didn't deter Sonny and Angelica. Neither did the altercation between Flora Day, who insisted on reading love sonnets "in honor of my grandson's wedding", and Velvet Knight, who saw Flora's efforts "as just another attempt to embarrass me and my family."

What finally stopped the event was Emma's death, just after Sonny said his vows but before Angelica could say "I do."

The afternoon activities consisted of an opportunity to view four scenes which more fully explained the relationship between the families.

The guests found out that Daisy had been sane before being stood up at the altar at her own wedding and that Flicker and Hal had confined the pregnant bride to a home. We saw Flora marry Harold at a 'burlesque' and Flicker perform the ceremony. We watched as just before the wedding, Emma Scintilla drank champagne as family member after family member toasted the young couple and we saw Annie and Flora Day planning the annual White Ball when Velvet Knight brought in Sonny and Angelica to announce the couple would get married "in two weeks, during the ball."

The ball itself was splendid, even if it was celebrating a non-marriage. Nester outdid himself in preparing a wedding cake, which he ended up landing in during an altercation with Velvet Knight. And Angelica and Sonny announced they had run off to Las Vegas to marry, after their Novi ceremony was interrupted.

The guests danced, the cast danced and still everyone was trying to figure out the clues to unlock the riddle of the weekend. Heald had set a 10 a.m. Sunday deadline for solving the murders.

Sunday morning, the guests became even more tight-lipped. Many had tried to solve the puzzle, but few succeeded. And no one, Heald said, had caught the significance of the shower gifts. They had spelled out FLORA DAY, the murderer. But the murders had not been intentional; poor Flora had only hoped to prevent her grandson Sonny from marrying her granddaughter, who she thought was Angelica. But Heald explained Angelica was not the baby Daisy had given birth to — that child was Emma.

If you had trouble understanding all that, take heart. I did too. And I was trying to solve the puzzle all weekend.

Photo portfolio: The scene of the crime. Above, the ghosts of Father Flicker (Tom Trocchio of Brighton) and lovely Emma Scintilla (Lauri Mihal of Waynesburg, Ohio) unveil clues to the mystery. Right, the very weird Nester Pester plunges face-first into the wedding cake before the stunned Flora Day and company. Below, Emma undergoes her tragic death scene as Father Darkling (Dan Drescher of Warren) says her last rites.

Check point operations described

Recent motorists would never have waited more than two minutes to get through a drunk driver check point, the State Police director promises.

And a driver approaching a check point could turn and go back the other way — although his motions would be watched with great interest by an officer.

Col. Gerald Hough, a strong advocate of check points, last week told a skeptical Michigan House Judiciary Committee how the check point system would work, based on experiences in Delaware and Maryland.

Hough says he expects to begin operating check points in Michigan in late April or early May, acting under an executive order by Gov. James J. Blanchard. The Judiciary Committee is considering a bill to strip State Police of the authority to do so.

Only a "command officer of high rank" could set up a check point in an area identified statistically as a drunk driving accident-probability area, Hough said.

Most likely times would be from 1 to 4 a.m., with about one dozen officers being required to operate a checkpoint. Most points would be operated jointly by State Police and county sheriff's officers or local police.

Early sites would be in outstate metropolitan counties such as Ingham, Kalamazoo or Saginaw — not the tri-county metro Detroit area. Two-lane roads are the most-likely starting points.

The teams would post four warning signs over a space of about 2,000 feet approaching the checkpoint. Five "stations" would operate simultaneously.

Officers would stop a car for 30 seconds and talk to the driver, handing him a pamphlet from the University of Michigan Traffic Research Center.

"The driver may refuse to talk, or even roll down his window," Hough said. "The officer will do his best to determine the level of sobriety and let them go through."

After talking to a driver, the officer would make a preliminary decision as to whether the driver has been drinking, Hough said. A preliminary breath test (PBT) may be administered.

It's possible the first five drivers may all be stopped. When that happens, officers will process the people they have stopped and let all others go through.

If a person is arrested, a local tow truck could be called to take the vehicle away, or a non-intoxicated person could drive it off.

At the head of the station will be a point unit whose officers will observe cars which turn around and head the other way. They will go after any which "exhibit unsafe driving characteristics," Hough said.

The public will be warned long in advance where check points will be set up. Hough said advance publicity would act as a deterrent to drinking and driving in that area. This bothered some lawmakers, who said there was confusion over whether the program was meant to result in arrests or scare off drunk drivers.

Frank Ianni, a highway safety expert from Delaware, said in a State Capitol news conference that the arrest rate for check points was one per 7.93 work hours vs. one per 8.35 work hours for police patrols — a five percent difference.

Driver of wrong-way van killed in M-14 head-on

Michigan State Police are investigating a March 21 fatal, head-on collision to determine why an Ann Arbor man lost control of his van on M-14 near Ridge Road.

Killed was Michael A. Watson, 38, who was driving eastbound on M-14 at about 6:55 a.m. when his van crossed the grassy median and slammed head-on into a semi-trailer in the westbound lanes.

A witness told police Watson did not apply the brakes prior to the accident. Watson was taken by helicopter to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, and was pronounced dead on arrival.

The truck driver was not seriously injured in the crash, police said.

Westbound M-14 traffic was blocked for about two hours. Traffic was rerouted around the accident scene on surface streets, then back to the freeway.

Police Blotters

Flasher reported near OLV property

In The City

The Northville Police report that a recurring problem of the past few years around spring and early summer is back.

On March 22 at 5:50 p.m., a naked man approached a nine-year-old girl and her brother while they were walking out to the mailbox in front of their home at Orchard and Thayer. As the suspect started toward them, the two children ran home and were unharmed.

Police Officer Dave Fendeleit said that every time this incident happens it appears the man, described as a 30-40 year old white male with brown hair and a mustache and beard, comes from the wooded area just east of the Our Lady of Victory playground.

A Northville man reported to police that unknown person(s) drove what is believed to be a four-wheel-drive vehicle, across the front of his lawn, causing a total of $400 damage.

The incident occurred between 11 p.m. on March 21 and 7:30 a.m. the next day. A 12-foot tree, valued at $200, was driven over and broken off at the ground and another $200 worth of damage to the sod was sustained. A soft plastic mud-flap, believed to have fallen off the suspect's vehicle, was found on the lawn by police.

The depth of impact on the tree and the point of the tire tracks led police to believe it was a four-wheel-drive vehicle that sits higher than a full-sized car.

Sometime between 8 p.m. on March 22 and 7 a.m. on March 23, unknown suspect(s) stole car stereo equipment from a 1978 Ford LTD owned by a Northville man, according to a police report.

A 10-band equalizer (valued at $100) and a pair of speakers ($150) were taken from the unlocked vehicle.

A Northville man reported to police that the passenger window of his 1985 Pontiac Fiero was broken and a radar detector was taken from the car.

The incident happened on March 20 between 5-5:20 p.m. in the complainant's driveway. The radar detector, valued at $220, was clipped to the sun visor on the passenger side of the vehicle. Damage to the car was $150.

In The Township ...

Police recovered a stolen car less than two hours after it was reported missing from the Meijer parking lot, but the owner couldn't have been pleased.

The 24-year-old Livonia resident told police he parked his brown, 1980 Chevrolet Camaro just south of the store's northern entrance at 11:30 p.m. March 18 and discovered it was gone at 8:30 a.m. on the 19th. He also said that, although the car had more than 70,000 miles on it, it had been restored to as-new condition and was worth $3,200.

Township police entered the vehicle identification number into the LEIN (Law Enforcement Information Network) computer, and Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputies found the car on Tower Road between North Territorial and Joy at 10:15 a.m. — totally destroyed by a fire police said was the result of arson.

The Washtenaw County Sheriff is in charge of the continuing investigation.

Botsford Hospital supplies child car safety restraints

Northville parents wishing to rent child car seats can do so through Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills.

Botsford officials noted that injuries to children in automobile accidents have decreased 25 percent in Michigan during the past four years due to state legislation which requires that children under the age of four be restrained while riding in an automobile.

Parents also are finding that children ride much happier when they are secured in a proper car seat, according to the officials.

Botsford General Hospital is helping parents to easily afford a car seat and understand the correct way of using it. Through a child restraint education program, parents can rent an infant car seat for $5 per year with a deposit of $15 or a toddler seat for $10 per year with a deposit of $20.

For an appointment to rent a car seat or obtain more information about the program, parents may call Botsford Community Health Services at 471-8090.

Summer program leads to hospice care degree

As hospice facilities gain greater acceptance, there is an increasing need for people specially trained in caring for the terminally ill. To help meet that demand, Madonna College, beginning June 16, is offering a three-year summer program leading to a 20-hour minor in hospice care.

The institute is the first of its kind offered in the United States, according to a spokesperson at the college. The program was developed in 1983 by a team of professionals affiliated with Madonna College.

This year's institute, the first of three summer programs students must attend to earn the minor, will include a class in the fundamental concepts in hospice care and a class entitled Comfort and Care for the Hospice Client.

Sr. Giovanni Monge, director of a campus-based hospice home care agency will teach the fundamental concepts class. Judith Grant, R.N. will teach comfort and care class.

Course offerings during 1987 and 1988 summer institutes will include the psychosocial components of hospice care; spiritual and ethical considerations in hospice care; managing hospice services; hospice care experience and emerging issues in interdisciplinary hospice care.

Students who wish to complete the training in less than three years may register for related courses during fall and winter terms.

Summer institutes are open to any interested individual and prior college education is not necessary to enroll.

Registration deadline for the program is June 1. Interested persons may obtain additional information by telephoning Madonna College, 591-5067.

Family recreation could center in Novi

By BRUCE J. MARTIN

Chalk up yet another major project on Novi's development slate.

Joseph Gerak, the originator of the Orchard Hill Place office/hotel district at Eight Mile and Haggerty Road, has announced conceptual plans for Westbrooke Place, a multiple-use project on property now occupying 72 acres of the Bob-O-Link golf course at Beck Road and Grand River.

As an office-hotel-commercial district, Westbrooke Place appears to be comparable in concept to Orchard Hill Place with one key difference: Gerak and his partner in the venture, real estate broker Gloria Gelstein, say they intend to build an indoor/outdoor family recreation facility the likes of which does not exist in Michigan.

While he has not yet decided on the site's alignment of buildings and landscaping, Gerak said the recreation facility might contain, under one roof, bowling lanes, indoor/outdoor golfing, movie theaters, batting cages, a rolling rink and more.

Gerak said similar multiple-recreation facilities have been successful in Houston and in Salt Lake City. "This one may be somewhat different because we're working with a different market," he said.

Gerak's idea apparently has the support of the Novi Planning Commission. Commissioners last Wednesday unanimously voted to recommend Novi City Council rezone the property, now single-family residential, to office-

'Of the four different uses we're considering for the property — office, hotel, recreation and commercial — all are permitted in OSC except recreation.'

— Joseph Gerak

service-commercial (OSC).

Gerak said the city's zoning ordinance currently does not provide for the multiple-use development he envisions for Westbrooke Place. But he said he hoped that problem could be resolved some time in the future, if necessary.

"Of the four different uses we're considering for the property — office, hotel, recreation and commercial — all are permitted in OSC except recreation," Gerak told the commission.

Richard Clark, one of the commission's more conservative voters on new development, commented: "We've seen Orchard Hill Place. We know (Gerak) is capable of high-quality development."

Clark followed up the compliment by asking if Westbrooke Place would lessen the potential for office development to the east near Novi Town Center, where many officials would like to see more offices concentrated.

Gerak responded that his market studies figured in projected office development in the central city area and indicated both office districts were viable.

"Our offices will be more regional in scope, while the Town Center area will contain more office services for the local community," he explained. "They're less intent on the Fortune 500 type of tenant."

Westbrooke Place, he said, would be "about half the density of what's at Orchard Hill Place." In an interview last Friday, Gerak added that discussions are under way with two Fortune 500 companies interested in occupying offices on the site.

"We intend to build and lease the buildings," Gerak said. "We expect to stay involved with the project on an ongoing basis."

Gerak said he expected to present site plans for the project in the fall. "We'll wait till the golf season's over," he said. Construction of the project would move in phases if the plans are eventually approved.

City council is expected to consider the rezoning very soon, since a quick decision is important to Gerak's financial negotiations.

"I'm in a chicken-or-the-egg situation with investors. We have to know if we can proceed and not wait six months or so."

Development will require extensions to sewage infrastructure and improvements to roads. Gerak said he already has discussed a special assessment district with city officials to pay for the improvements.

One key element of Gerak's project would be major roadwork improvements to the Beck Road/I-96 interchange. The improvements, he explained, would offer travelers west of the city's central business area easy access to Twelve Oaks Mall, West Oaks I and II and, if developed, the proposed convention center.

Novi's planning consultant, Brandon Rogers, prior to last week's meeting had advised planning commissioners to withhold a decision to rezone the residential property until more information on its impact could be provided.

Asked by Commission Chairperson Ernest Aruffo last Wednesday if Rogers looked favorably on the project following a presentation by Gerak, Rogers said the project was an appropriate land use, although it did conflict with the city's Master Plan.

The Master Plan shows the site's continued use as a golf course, but commissioners pointed out that at the time the Master Plan was enacted (1980), the City of Novi was considering purchasing Bob-O-Link to maintain as a public course. Those talks afterward fell through.

neighborhood of $14 million."

How much of that would be ruled recoverable, he said, could be based on a calculation as simple as subtracting the lowest competitive bid for sludge hauling and disposal ($11.39 per cubic yard) from the actual amounts billed by firms that allegedly obtained contracts illegally (as much as $40 to $50 per cubic yard).

Those excess costs, the suit alleges, were figured into the charges Detroit billed to Oakland County, which then passed them along to individual city and township water and sewer systems. Each municipal system then set its own rates for its customers.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen

asked Tannian about the statute of limitations.

Tannian said that "at some point, the clock will start running on the statute of limitations" but that, for now, there is no impending threat to the communities' ability to take action.

"Maybe, as we continue our action, you might run into a problem, say in 1989," Tannian said.

Livonia rezoning issue goes to council

Livonia City Council gives first reading tonight to a controversial rezoning of 104 acres of land on the east side of the I-275 highway between Seven and Eight Mile roads.

Final rezoning of the property cannot occur before April 9, when the council is expected to give second reading to the proposed zoning ordinance change and vote on the issue. If approved, land use zoning on the valuable acreage would change from rural urban farm to a combination of professional office, commercial and parking. Under the proposal, some buildings could be up to 12 stories tall.

The zoning change request was filed by Victor International Corporation of Southfield, which proposes a $200 million to $300 million hotel-office-restaurant complex for the site.

Victor International President David Johnson met with area homeowners recently to iron out some of their clearly stated objections to the project and reportedly reached three compromises aimed at a special Livonia council meeting March 20.

Johnson said the firm has agreed to construct a masonry wall, do extra landscaping on the site and downsize a proposed office building on the southeast side of the road — all in response to objections from Livonia residents with homes immediately east of the proposed development.

Livonia councilman Robert Bennett said he didn't think the downsizing of the building went far enough to reduce the size, density and height of the proposed project. He offered a resolution, to be voted on tonight, which would

'Neither (Seven or Eight Mile) is beyond capacity, but with the developments, there could be problems.'

— Alan Richardson
Assistant county highway engineer make zoning of the acreage dependent on a road running north-south through the development. Under Bennett's proposal, buildings east of the road would be no higher than four or six stories while those west of the road would not rise above eight stories, with the sole exception of one 12-story hotel.

"It will be easier to deal with site plans if we set the parameters at the zoning level," Bennett said. "But, if this fails, we can still deal with it at the site plan level."

Shorter buildings, Bennett said, would reduce the overall density of the project, reduce parking needs and thus reduce the impact of extra traffic on the area.

At the meeting, one homeowner said he could "live with the project" if the buildings east of the proposed road were no more than two or three stories high. Another urged the city to "take the lead and zone the land so that tall buildings are not in the horizon of property owners."

"We're not out to stop the project. We want you to provide leadership in zoning," he said.

To counter homeowners' concerns about crime and traffic in their backyards, Victor has agreed to build a five-to-seven foot masonry wall along its north and east property lines. The company has also agreed to build berms and plant evergreens behind the wall in a further effort to shield the buildings from view.

Council president Robert Bishop asked the company to submit "sight-line profiles" as soon as possible so the city will know how the buildings, and their shadows, will affect nearby homes.

Bishop also asked the city's engineering department to submit a letter regarding the sufficiency of a new Seven Mile Road sewer to meet the needs of the development. At the meeting, city engineer Gary Clark said the new sewer lines are adequate.

Bishop also suggested the city begin talks with Wayne and Oakland counties regarding improvements to Seven and Eight Mile roads.

At last week's council meeting, Wayne County assistant highway engineer Alan Richardson said no cities along the corridor had yet requested road improvement assistance from the county for Seven or Eight Mile.

He said Wayne County has no plans to improve either road. He said both are "at capacity" with Seven Mile having a little less traffic than Eight Mile.

"Neither is beyond capacity, but, with the developments, there could be problems," Richardson said.

Possible problem areas, according to Richardson, include the entranceways into the Victor International project, the Blue Skies (subdivision) intersection and the exit ramp onto Eight Mile (from I-275).

He suggested that cities along the fast-developing freeway corridor investigate sharing the costs of road improvements among themselves rather than waiting for funds from the county or federal government.

"Funding is a problem," Richardson admitted. If federal funds were used, he said any improvement project couldn't get under way until 1987.

Homeowner Joseph Mysliwiec said the city should "put the roads in place first" before approving the Victor International project. Another homeowner asked the city to study whether the company's 200 feet of Seven Mile Road frontage is sufficient to provide adequate access to the site.

And Bishop asked the city to investigate whether any of the major intersections along or near I-275 were considered dangerous or had a high volume of accidents.

Warrants issued for two students in bombing case

Warrants have been issued by the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office for the arrest of two Novi High School students in conjunction with two bombing incidents which occurred in the Meadowbrook Glens subdivision on Sunday, March 9.

Novi Police Detective Ralph Fluhart said the prosecutor's office issued warrants for the arrest of the two high school students Tuesday morning. Names of the suspects are being withheld.

One of the suspects is charged with one count of "placing explosive devices with damage resulting" and one count of "placing explosive devices without resulting damage." The first count is a felony punishable by up to 25 years' imprisonment, while the second count is a felony punishable by up to 15 years' imprisonment, according to Fluhart.

The second suspect is charged with one count of "manufacturing or possession of explosive devices," a felony punishable by up to four years' imprisonment and/or a $2,000 fine.

Fluhart said neither suspect has been arraigned, but that both have retained attorneys. "My best guess is that their attorneys will accompany them to 52nd District Court in Walled Lake for arraignment tomorrow (Wednesday)," said Fluhart.

Still under consideration is the possibility of additional warrants charging additional persons, said Fluhart. The detective said preliminary investigation revealed that up to 12 individuals may have been involved in the incident. A determination on whether additional warrants will be issued should be reached later this week, he said.

The charges stem from two incidents which occurred in the Meadowbrook Glens subdivision near Ten Mile and Meadowbrook Road on Sunday, March 9.

At approximately 8 a.m. on March 9, a Meadowbrook Glens resident discovered a pipe-bomb type of explosive device between the door and screen door of his residence. The device had failed to detonate and was removed by police.

Approximately two hours later, another Meadowbrook Glens resident discovered that a similar device had exploded inside his automobile which had been parked on the street outside his home. The automobile sustained damages estimated at $1,000.

Fluhart said his investigation revealed that the pipe bombs were made by one of the suspects. The devices were tried out in vacant fields, and they graduated to mailboxes, he said.

"At some point in time the devices were picked up by one of the suspects, who placed the bombs in the car and the house," Fluhart alleged.

"It has almost definitely been established that the sites where the bombs were placed were selected at random," he added.

Fluhart also issued a warning about the dangers involved in handling explosive devices. "Bomb experts have told me it was almost a miracle that these individuals were able to produce up to eight bombs without one of them exploding and damaging or killing someone," said the police detective.

Skylight Inn to open at Eight Mile/Haggerty

FARMINGTON HILLS — A 128-room Skylight Inn is scheduled to open this summer near the northeast corner of the Eight Mile/Haggerty Road intersection.

Although located in Farmington Hills, the moderately-priced, rooms-only lodging facility will be called Skylight Inn-Novi. It will serve the Novi, Northville, Farmington Hills and Livonia areas.

The newest of the chain's 12 inns, the facility is located in the midst of the booming Haggerty Road corridor, adjacent to the Orchard Hill Place office park.

"We're delighted to be in one of the fastest-growing areas in Detroit," said

Ronald W. Lingafelter, president of Skylight Inns, Inc. The company is based in Willoughby, Ohio, an eastern suburb of Cleveland.

Skylight Inn-Novi will consist of two, two-story, all-masonry buildings with pitch roofs and brick-faced concrete block for sound proofing. The second floor of each building has an inside corridor, while ground-floor rooms have exterior doors, allowing direct access to parking.

It is the second Skylight Inn in the Detroit area. The other is located in Southfield at I-696 and Telegraph Road. The contractor for Skylight Inns, Inc., is the Snavely Building Company of Willoughby, Ohio.

Lingafelter said Skylight Inns are "a bold, new concept in lodging that we're confident will fill a need in the western Detroit market. Our guests want high quality, but not the frills or high prices in a full-service hotel.

"We provide exceptional, affordable accommodations designed especially for the business traveler."

Lingafelter described the guest rooms as 10 percent larger than typical of most rooms-only lodging facilities. "Our intent is to create a positive, well-equipped working environment inside each of the decorator-appointed rooms," he said.

Each room features two extra long double beds and a large work desk or a parson's desk for additional work space. In addition, they offer high-level lighting and push-button telephone with a 15-foot wall cord allowing for mobility to any area of the room.

Other amenities include free continental breakfasts, premium satellite television, AM-FM radio, free photocopy service, several non-smoking rooms and same-day laundry service.

Other Skylight Inn cities are Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio; Atlanta, Georgia; Louisville, Kentucky; Naperville, Illinois; Greensboro, North Carolina; Columbia, South Carolina; and Jacksonville, Florida.

Eight to 10 new Skylight Inns are expected to open during the next year.

SILVER SPRINGS

Brightly colored booths and banners welcomed spring to Silver Springs last week as the annual State Fair projects lined the halls. Fifth grade students presented visitors with a wealth of information about their individual states, supplemented in many cases with maps, pictures, graphs, and actual products from the states being studied.

On March 4, all fifth grade students participated in the Michigan Mathematics League competition. Congratulations to winners Joshua Bush, Michael Hamilton, Thomas Ryan, Robert Subotich, and Regan Wisely. The math competition is an extra-curricular activity chosen by the school, and Silver Springs is proud of all the students who participated.

Silver Springs celebrated March as reading month. School-wide reading periods of 15 minutes were held every day in keeping with the occasion.

The Spring Musical will be presented

Winchester

Tonight all adults in the Northville community are invited to hear high school assistant principal, William Hamilton, speak on "Substance Abuse". This will begin at 7 p.m. in the Amerman library.

Sgt. Larry Krabill, 6th grade teacher from Meads Mill Middle School, visited our 5th graders on Thursday, March 13, to enlighten them on the Civil War. As a Confederate sergeant, he told them of a soldier's experience during the battles between the North and South. He brought along many articles of warfare and the clothes from that period of our history.

On Tuesday, March 18, we had a balloon launch to celebrate March Reading Month in Michigan. Be sure and watch for our balloons and notes... and we hope you will respond if you find one.

The 5th grade students at Winchester Elementary participated in the Michigan Mathematics League contest on Tuesday, March 4. The test had 40 multiple-choice questions and a 30 minute time limit. The five highest scores were achieved by Nicholas Selinsky, Robert Kukainis, Tanya Williams, Michael Maschek, and Josh Wiegand. "That's Entertainment". That certainly was the case the morning of Thursday, February 27, as many students participated in the talent show put on by music teacher, Sandy Craig.

On Wednesday, February 26, the 3rd graders participated in a spelling bee. Kristin Domeracki was our winner and Laura Brown the runner-up. Good work girls!

Congratulations are in order for Winchester's Founder's Day Award Recipients: teacher, Pat Kuxhaus and parent, Debbie Gesdorf. Both have put in many years of quality service at our school. Tickets for the April 17 event now are on sale in the office.

Winchester's next PTA meeting is Wednesday, April 9, at 9:30 a.m. Please attend and find out what's going on at Winchester.

Meads Mill

Lots of special activities are dotting the calendar this month at Meads Mill. The seventh graders had a special assembly on "Physics Fun" March 14 presented by the Department of Natural Resources. On March 15, the Symphonic Band earned a 2 rating at the Michigan School Band Festival in Ida, Mich. Congratulations to all those musically talented students and their director, Gary Gandolfi.

Northville's middle school students will be participating in the Michigan Industrial Arts Educational Regional Awards Fair April 18-20 at Thurston High School in Redford Township. The first through fourth place winners will be eligible to enter the State competition held at the Michigan Industrial Arts Education Convention on April 30 to May 3 in Traverse City. Mr. Crossman attends the convention yearly and encourages parents and the community to observe the array of outstanding craftsmanship produced in the state.

Mr. Radwanski reports that 56 students, chosen on the results of their math and science achievement test scores, have taken the "Voyage of the Mimi". This is a six week special activity using videotaped stories that follow a group of scientists off the coast of Maine who are studying the humpback whale. Those on the "expedition" must solve problems in navigation, paleontology, and survival. Many experts were brought in to expose the students to their experiences, including a scuba diver, two ship captains, a television weatherperson and a scientist from University of Michigan.

The students used the newly installed salt water fish tank in the school lobby to measure water density, develop an ecosystem, and weigh starfish. Many of the teachers at Meads Mill cooperated in this effort and gave a lot of time for the "Voyage." It was so successful that it will be integrated into the sixth grade curriculum next year.

Parents can expect to see report cards on April 11 when they will be sent home with students.

The Founder's Day Honorees from Meads Mill will be band director Gary Gandolfi and assistant principal Tom Cey. The dinner will be held in the new cafeteria of the high school April 17.

April 17 is also an in-service day for the school and students will be dismissed at 10:45 a.m.

Sue Nix

High School

On Thursday, April 17, the high school cafeteria will be the site of the PTA Founder's Day Banquet. Honored guests from the high school will be Carol Rahimi and Arnold Johnson. Carol is a parent with several children in our school system and Arnold, or Andy as he is known around school, is a teacher with many years in the profession as a drafting instructor. Their specific accomplishments will be printed in the evening's program. Parents and staff are encouraged to attend this event and may purchase tickets from the high school office. They are $10 a person. It begins at 6 p.m. and will conclude in the auditorium at 8 p.m. where noted educator/speaker, Dr. Zacharie J. Clements, will enlighten us with his words of wisdom on the subject of education and the role parents play in this very important step in their children's lives. Those who are unable to attend the banquet are more than welcome to join the audience — no charge — at 8 p.m.

Welcome to Barbara Ibach, our new media specialist, who has taken the bull by the horns and is whipping the new media center (library) into a major learning center. To introduce herself as well as her plans for the media center, she is making arrangements to hold an open house for faculty members on April 10 from 2 to 3 p.m. during Book Week. She has also announced an amnesty period for that same week, April 7-11. The library will accept all books belonging to NHS which may have inadvertently been left at home. There will be no questions asked and no charge, just grateful thanks from the media staff. Please check your closets, drawers, and bookcases and return those books. They are badly needed. Library hours are from 6:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The Counseling Department reports that several college open houses will be taking place during April. Adrian College will have one April 5, Central Michigan on April 18, and Michigan State April 17, 18 and 19. Michigan Tech will have a representative at NHS April 24 at 9 a.m. Applications are now available to all interested 11th grade girls for Girls State, an American Legion sponsored event which gives the participants a first-hand experience in the democratic process of our government. It will take place at Central Michigan from June 14-22. ACT testing will take place April 12 in several area high schools. Regular registration for the ACT was due by March 14 although some late registration is accepted with a additional fee if postmarked by April 1.

The American Association of University Women is offering two $500 scholarships to graduating seniors in the class of '86. Applications are available in the Counseling office. Deadline is Thursday, April 24.

Congratulations to our Science Olympics team which won nine medals in regional competition at U of M-Dearborn and will now be going on to state competition in Lansing in April.

MORaine

Children's laughter and daily classroom activities are still heard throughout Moraine school. Only the age of the students has changed! Along with the two Special Education classrooms continuing at Moraine, many exciting new programs are in operation.

In our Childcare and Kids' Creative Corner programs, children 2½ to 5 years old are busy exploring the world around them during freeplay periods, outdoors, at meal times, group time and in the library and gym. Weekly themes have focused on the five senses, Valentine's Day, St. Patrick's Day, "I'm Special, You're Special" and much, much more.

Children enrolled in our Beginner's (a growing year for young 5's) and Wondergarten (the other half of the kindergarten day) classrooms are continuing to learn about the world in which we live through active involvement in a warm and caring environment. They have especially enjoyed interacting with the "teenagers" from the high school who are participating in our program as part of their course in Parenting Preschoolers.

Our Kids' Club program serves elementary children before and after school. They've been having a great time roller skating, bowling, ice skating and the like along with participating in exciting activities at Moraine.

We're now gearing up for summer and fall programs which will include a full time summer program for elementary-age students. Parents are invited to drop in to see our programs in action — anytime.

Our Opinions

Expand facilities in pace with growth

In the most recent township election, the candidates ultimately elected to the board shared a similar concern — making sure that the growth of township government was coordinated properly with growth of the community. As they now consider a millage or bonding proposal to put before voters for construction projects, they would do well to remind themselves of that goal.

With the community booming again, and the expanded services now overspilling their allotted spaces, capital improvement projects are high on the township agenda. Top of the list is the fire station to serve the west side of the township, but that's not all. Parking at township hall needs expanding, there is recreation space needing development, the police department is squeezed into its present quarters and the general offices are getting pretty cramped, too.

The township hall built to accommodate the needs of the late 1970s is now inadequate. In fact, the design was pretty short of storage space all along, but it was erected in a hurry from already existing plans in order to lay hands on some federal money. The building needed expansion the day the government moved into it, but the new spurt of growth is making the situation more critical.

Granting all that, however, how should the township tackle the situation? Should voters be asked to approve not only a fire station, but also expanded police and administrative quarters, and maybe allow the odd thousands of dollars to be targeted to miscellaneous projects? Or, as has been the case for many years in Northville Township, should voters be approached for approval of each incremental improvement?

For the sake of discussion, let's set a capital improvement budget of $1 million to build a fire hall, expand police quarters and correct the shortcomings in administrative space. Should voters be asked for $1 million (a figure that, we must emphasize, has been chosen out of "thin air" and is not based on anything in reality) this year, or should it be divided into, say, three parts, with the voters being asked to approve each portion at separate elections?

Those tempted to request three elections because Northville Township has always operated that way should remember that: 1) Elections cost money, especially in years when nothing else is on the ballot, and; 2) More favorable interest rates may be available for a one-time sale of $1 million in bonds today than could be had by spreading the same amount into three issues. In fact, $333,000 may be too small an amount to even consider bonding.

On the other hand, those tempted to go for broke today should recognize that growth in the tax base should pay for the expansion of government. As a practical matter, a residential concentration is unlikely to result in sufficient tax base growth to cover the associated costs, but Northville Township has recently moved to allow some of the more "profitable" forms of office and commercial development. While a fixed millage to pay for services (such as police or fire) can be said to expand the available funding appropriately, a fixed millage for capital improvements, levied during a period of continued growth, probably results in considerable excess revenue in the "out-years." The fifth-year return on a five-year levy, in other words, may far exceed the genuine need for debt retirement.

That's what's so attractive about asking for permission to issue bonds up to a fixed amount, thereafter allowing the millage to fluctuate to meet the needs of debt retirement. This is all pretty common and accepted in the city and school operations, but township voters are unaccustomed to it. It may be the appropriate stage in the township's growth for such a change, but trustees should not treat it lightly and should be prepared to respond to some confusion among voters.

Event reconsidered

During the past few weeks, a debate has been waged (largely through letters in this newspaper) over the issue of animal rights. In particular, the Michigan Humane Society has voiced concerns regarding Northville High School's annual Donkey Basketball game, a traditional senior class fundraiser with proceeds going toward prom expenses.

While there is no contention that the event raises funds for a worthy cause, the activity has brought criticism from those concerned about the welfare of animals. In our opinion, many of those concerns are valid and need to be examined.

In a letter to high school principal Dave Bolitho, Ray Blaut of the Humane Society pointed out that "it is utterly inappropriate and insensitive on the part of 'educators' to condone such an event; thereby setting an example among young people that it is acceptable to consider the exploitation of living beings as a form of 'entertainment' for their amusement."

We do not believe it was the intention of the high school to 'exploit' animals for entertainment's sake. According to Bolitho, the event is one of the few community activities sponsored by the high school and is considered among its biggest fundraiser.

In response to Blaut's letter and concerns raised by others in the community, the high school is considering discontinuing the event. We think such action is appropriate and hope another successful fundraiser can be arranged.

Many will argue that this newspaper has little right to point a finger at the high school when we have repeatedly covered the event. It is fair to assume we condone such an activity by giving it so much press.

We, too, have reconsidered our coverage of such events. We found Blaut's comments enlightening and his concerns justified. We hope others take them to heart.

Yet another bad idea

By Kevin Wilson

As I was saying before being so rudely interrupted, Lansing is increasingly incapable of getting it right.

At least, that's what I think I said in this space on January 29, when last this column appeared. By the time it was delivered to your doorstep, I was in bed in Ypsilanti, getting reacquainted with the same set of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital nurses who had taken care of me 5½ years earlier. They were still a good group, and the surgeons as deft as I'd remembered, but I must admit I wasn't exactly thrilled to be revisiting their accommodations.

Everything turned out for the best, though, and I'm back just in time to take note that Lansing finally settled the tax rollback issue (sort of, as long as you don't say Headlee or rebate) only to jump into a deeper quagmire. Whoever or whatever inspired Gov. James Blanchard to first propose, and then issue an order for, drunk driver checkpoints, should be referred to the writers of the "Twilight Zone" for use in a future episode. Think of LaRouchian victory in the Illinois Democratic primary, add a recent viewing of the documentary "Shoah" and you have a nightmare that Stephen King never dreamed and only Harlan Ellison could do justice.

There's hyperbole in that last sentence, but not much that extends beyond the genuine creepy, crawly feeling I get when people start talking about "checkpoints" on American freeways. Regular readers (it's too late to deny it, we figured out you exist when two or three inquired about my absence — thank you) know I'm not exactly a Libertarian. I pushed hard for the seatbelt law, for instance. My tongue is only partially in cheek when I suggest that parents who let children ride in cars outside safety restraints, or in the back of open pickup trucks, should be pushed through third-floor plate glass windows, just so they can see what they've sentenced their kids to in a 30-mph "fender bender."

Checkpoints, however, have implications far beyond highway safety. I've gone through Michigan State Police check lanes — back when I got my driver's license in 1971 they were pretty popular for "safety inspections." Never underestimate a police officer's discretionary power to enforce laws selectively — it was astonishing how intensely they could inspect the pristine car of a long-haired teen while waving through the 8-year-old rolling wreck driven by a blue suit and white shirt. That discretionary power was sharply limited in the seatbelt law by a clause that allows enforcement only in conjunction with an unrelated traffic stop. Legislators who favored that clause should be backing the proposed bill to prohibit checklanes.

The checkpoint plan, as proposed, sounds so innocuous much of the public sees no threat in it. Department director Col. Gerald Hough even claims no one will be delayed more than two minutes. Unless of course you've had a drink, or were stupid enough to leave contraband out where an officer might spot it, or your car simply smells to the officer's nose (which may be affected by his eyes and their impression of your looks) like maybe an illegal substance is inside — those are all called reasonable causes for a search, no warrant required, thank you. Hough says you can turn around as you approach a checklane, but don't you dare hop a wheel over the curb — an observant officer could consider that probable cause to stop you on suspicion of drunk driving. But those things only happen to bad guys, and if we save one life by arresting one drunk, it's worth it, right?

Wrong. The same argument could support strip searches at the doors of all liquor stores to detect potential armed robbers, or sidewalk checklanes to detect smokers who breathe in other people's faces. Some are claiming a five percent increase in the number of drunks arrested in states with checklanes. No one mentions how many other traffic offenders get away with stupid, perhaps lethal, moves while a dozen cops run a checklane, which Hough admits is intended not only to catch bad guys, but also to intimidate us all.

That way lies madness. We need only surrender all our freedoms and the government will protect us from everything, as long as we're all afraid of it, right? The founders of this nation, we forget at our peril, designed the Constitution and the Bill of Rights to protect people from the government. The intervening 200 years of world history suggests that they were wiser than we are proving to be.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

I had a picture assignment just before my weightlifting class Monday night. It was at the high school, so I took the camera with me en route to class.

What was depressing about the assignment is that I had no sooner walked in the door than Nadine Fritz, who was involved in the picture I went to shoot, said, "I hear all the girls in your class are lifting more weights than you are."

Nadine's husband is the Novi High School wrestling coach and, I suspect, good friends with Toby, the guy who teaches my class. Those suspicions were confirmed when I asked Nadine where she had heard that preposterous prevarication and she responded, "Toby."

Well, let me set the record straight. At the risk of sounding slightly chauvinistic, I categorically deny that there are any women in my class who lift more weight than I do.

The problem is that for some unknown reason Toby seems to have it in for me, thus proving my allegation in this column several weeks ago that he's not a nice person. And because he is the kind of guy he is, he rigged up a little weight challenge between me and a lady named Beth several weeks ago.

He pointed out that Beth was lifting more weight on the leg presses than I was and challenged me to match her. Which I did. But every time I matched her, she went up to a higher weight. I managed to match her everytime, albeit at considerable physical discomfort to my legs and psychological discomfort to my ego.

Beth, meanwhile, moved through each weight with ease, actually daring to giggle and laugh as she was lifting the weights while I was moaning and groaning trying to lift the same weights.

It wasn't until later that I found out Toby and Beth had somehow managed to rig the leg press machine so she was able to lift exactly as much weight as I did with only about half the effort.

But vengeance shall be mine. No more Mister Nice Guy. Stay tuned in the weeks ahead, folks, as I reveal full identities of the irresponsible parties as well as — drum roll, please — exact body weights and body fat contents. The battles lines have been drawn.

Big papers, no staff

By Michele M. Fecht

When Kevin Wilson returned to the fold last week, the cloud of newsprint which has lodged itself over my head this past month looked as though it might move on to greener pastures. Wrong. Kevin's return after a seven-week leave came only two days shy of Jean Day's seven-day furlough. I'm afraid this little black-and-white cloud has taken a liking to my blond head.

The rigors of putting out a weekly newspaper never are more acute than at times when staffing is below the norm. Because we're a small outfit (two editors, four reporters and one photographer for two newspapers), the loss of one staffer due to illness, vacation or personal obligations causes panic in the remaining ranks.

These past two weeks have been a case in point. Regular readers most likely noticed that last week's Record and News were a little heavier than usual. In fact, page-for-page they were the biggest editions published this year. For some strange reason, this seems to happen when I'm sitting in the editor's seat.

I'm not complaining about the hefty amount of advertising, mind you. It's just that more ads mean more editorial holes to fill. When we're short-staffed, those holes look like craters come Tuesday morning. With Jean gone and Kevin facing his first day back at work after nearly two months of hospital food, cable TV and toddlin' tots, I knew we were facing a real challenge. From my vantage point, the 18-page front section dropped on my desk Tuesday looked more like the Sunday Times.

Admittedly, things could have been a lot worse these past few months. While Kevin's absence left a void in the newsroom (no one touched the state hospital, prison or political beats during his leave), his replacement Anita Crone proved a saving grace.

Had Anita not stepped into Kevin's shoes, I'm certain the next thing I would write would be my own obituary. As the only one of three newswriters covering two communities (aside from Neil Geoghehan who tackles sports for both Novi and Northville), I'm rarely at a loss for something to write. If one school board is going through a real snooze period, the other is likely to be making front page news.

As luck would have it, both districts are in the throes of extremely hectic periods. While millage elections and school board candidate announcements are the norm for this time of year, other pressing issues currently facing school board trustees are Northville's ongoing high school renovation project and Novi's decision to redraw its boundaries — just to name a few.

In fact, I honestly can say this is one of the busiest periods I've experienced on the education beat. Those who said covering two school boards would be "a piece of cake" obviously never sat through debates over tax increment financing, district budget sessions and school closing hearings. So much for easy street.

However, while these issues make good copy, they are not necessarily my favorite subjects. As an education writer, I find my best material in the classroom. While I've mustered a few feature stories in the past month, most of my ideas have been put on the back burner until staffing in the newsroom is back to full capacity.

According to my calendar, we are only one day shy of that date. Tomorrow will mark the first time since January 28 that the entire staff will be in the newsroom at the same time. I can hardly wait. I can return to my regular beat, my regular desk and my regular irregular hours. It will be just like old times.

With my luck, I'll catch the flu.

Right-to-know package okayed by state senate

Three "right-to-know" chemical safety bills have been approved by the Michigan Senate and sent to Gov. James Blanchard, although some senators warn that one bill may violate the Headlee Amendment to the state constitution.

The bills require information be given to workers, firefighters and the general public regarding dangerous chemicals.

State Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, objected to one bill, saying: "It's not a matter of safety for firefighters. It's a matter of telling local governments what they must do."

Welborn proposed an amendment requiring the state to "reimburse local governments for the cost incurred in preparing, distributing and implementing" required information plans. It was defeated with 12 yes and 23 no votes.

Welborn argued that the 1978 Headlee amendment requires the state pay for programs mandated to local government.

Supporters of the amendment included Republican Robert Geake of Northville. Opposed was Democrat Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills, who represents the Oakland County portion of Northville.

The bills require:

- Chemical suppliers to label all hazardous chemicals and provide material safety data sheets to employers who purchase the products. Employers would then be responsible for training workers on the hazards. In manufacturing, compliance is required by May 25. Other employer have until February 25, 1987.
- Local fire chiefs to develop plans for fighting chemical fires and to make the plans available to firefighters.
- The Michigan Department of Public Health to make available to the public information on hazardous chemicals used by all employers within a resident's county.

Jim Ruff checks over copy material inside his 3M camera plate maker at Quick Print Concepts in Novi

Beating the odds

Hard work reaps dividends for owner of print shop

By KATHY MUTCH

Jim Ruff remembers 1981.

It was the fall of '81, and the nation's leading economists were peering over the edges of their rose-colored glasses, cautiously tempering their previous predictions for a year of continued prosperity.

By January of 1982 the experts had thrown off their tinted lenses and were debating whether American business was merely in the midst of a recession, or steaming full-speed ahead into an economic depression.

Jim Ruff remembers those times well. While economic trends were being scrutinized, he was taking the plunge into business, opening a print shop in Novi called Quick Print Concepts on September 15, 1981.

Located at 41503 Ten Mile in the Novi Plaza Mall near the Ten Mile/Meadowbrook Road intersection, Ruff's quick printing business easily could have become one of the overwhelming number of small businesses that fail during the first year of operation.

He was committed to a retail lease agreement. His staff consisted of one experienced printer and himself. Two full-service commercial printers and two quick print competitors already were operating in Novi.

And, on top of everything else, there was the economy.

"We had a slow start," admits Ruff. "The first 18 months were really rough. The first four or five months, our walk-in business was minimal."

The March 1986 issue of Nation's Business magazine describes the odds for entrepreneurial success as 1,000 to one. In an industry as fast-growing and competitive as quick printing, the odds against succeeding are even greater.

Jim Ruff is a statistic because he beat the odds, and succeeded.

"I had 11 years experience in the printing business," he explains, adding that he is not a printer himself. "I didn't come up through the trades. I came up through sales."

After closing another business in Livonia, Ruff made his living selling paper to printers throughout the area. "You can learn a lot about a business by observing how it operates, how it treats its suppliers and customers," says Ruff. His sales calls took him throughout the area surrounding Novi. He became knowledgeable about the area and the competition.

"Novi had great potential for residential, commercial and industrial growth," says Ruff, explaining his decision to open his quick print shop in Novi.

"People choose a printer first by convenience of location, either where they live or where they work," he continues. "Our location at Ten Mile and Meadowbrook Road is the real center of Novi's community-based retail business. It's the center of where Novi residents live and shop for services such as ours."

The business contacts he had made while making the rounds selling paper kept his fledgling business alive. "Those contacts helped us tremendously," he says. "I knew their printing needs. They knew my reputation for service and dependability."

The printing needs of industry and business are still the foundation of Ruff's business. Competition and consumer demand have forced changes in the printing industry. "Quick printers are handling a wider range of business than ever before," Ruff asserts. "It is getting harder to distinguish between the type of work the quick printer does and the type of work that requires the services of the commercial printer."

To stay competitive quick printers must provide some of the services that previously were available only through commercial printers. They can't depend on walk-in business, says Ruff.

The changes in consumer expectations make sales calls a necessity. Ruff tries to set aside several days a month just for calling on potential business accounts. He also does the accounting and purchases, makes deliveries and "whatever needs to be done."

"There's never enough time," he says.

Today, Ruff's business accounts span four counties. "This year (1985) was our best-ever for growth," says Ruff. And he plans to keep on growing.

"You know, the new Town Center development (in Novi) is going to be one big opportunity for our business. Then there's the Hilton expansion. And the Grand River corridor. And..." and Jim Ruff is off and running in 1986.

How did Jim Ruff beat the odds? "I had experience in the printing business. I had business contacts which became my customer base. I knew my competition, and I hustled."

He also credits a hard-earned reputation for quality printing, dependable service and competitive pricing.

Compensation plans retain top managers

Beset by rapidly changing regulatory environment and heavier merger and acquisition activity, financial institutions are turning to more sophisticated compensatory packages to attract and retain top executives, according to a survey published by Peat Marwick, the international professional and management consulting firm.

"As the lines are blurring between various segments of the industry, competition for top management talent is fierce," said Richard F. Hopper, partner-in-charge of the Financial Institutions Practice for Peat Marwick's Detroit office.

"In publicly traded institutions, the area of executive compensation currently receiving the most attention and undergoing the most rapid change is long-term incentives and capital accumulation plans."

According to Hopper, these plans attempt to focus the executive's attention on long-range results and provide an opportunity for accumulating wealth tied to long-term institutional success.

"Capital accumulation also becomes an important part of the compensation strategy for the institution going public or taking part in a merger or acquisition," he said. "These plans seek to meet the objectives of both the employer and the executive, while focusing the executive's attention on shareholder value."

According to survey results, 139 companies have at least one type of long-term incentive or capital accumulation program. Stock options are the most prevalent plan type in all three types of institutions, and often form the core of a multiple-plan program. Of 47 thrifts with stock option programs, 36 use a combination of non-qualified and incentive plans, seven use only non-qualified plans and three use only incentive plans, indicating a decline in the use of only one plan.

Of 42 diversified financials with such programs, 31 use a combination, eight use a non-qualified plan and three use an incentive plan. Among the 44 banks surveyed, 26 use a combination of both, while 10 prefer a non-qualified plan and eight an incentive plan.

Stock appreciation rights are the next most popular program type with 31 thrifts, 25 diversified financials and 23 banks offering them.

The survey found that among full value type programs performance plans are also used in the banks and diversified financials. Among those surveyed, 19 banks use performance plans compared with 17 diversified financials and six thrifts. Restricted stock awards also were popular with 20 banks, 15 financials and eight thrifts awarding them.

"It is interesting to note that many institutions provide for immediate or accelerated payout of stock option plans in the event of a change of control," said Hopper. "This is more evidence of the effect the current climate of mergers and acquisitions is having on compensation plans."

Banks and diversified financial services also were found to use more multi-plan combination programs than thrifts. Ninety-one percent of banks, 86 percent of financials and 81 percent of thrifts have programs with one or more elements.

"Banks are using twice the number of different plan combinations as thrifts, suggesting a more sophisticated approach to long-term incentive planning," said Hopper. "Diversified financials use nearly as many different approaches as do the banks. In general, the banks and diversified financials are way ahead of the thrifts in creativity and variety of their program design."

The survey found that 43 percent of banks and 53 percent of the financial reporting combination programs have four to six plans. Only 33 percent of the thrifts' programs have four or five elements, while none have six elements. Thrifts are more likely to have three plans, while banks and financials are more likely to have four plans.

In all three company types using multiple plans, there is evidence of an increased effort to create shareholder identification, reward top management for performance under its control and

Income averaging may save tax dollars

Has your income steadily increased over the past few years? Did your salary jump during 1985? Or did your spouse go back to work? If so, you might qualify for income averaging, and it can cut your 1985 tax bill, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs.

Income averaging is a tax break that Congress created in 1954 to blunt the tax impact on someone who has a sharp increase in income over a short period of time.

With income averaging, a sudden, dramatic rise in income is treated as though it occurred over a longer period of time—several years. CPAs say that, sometimes, steady increases in income over a few years can also trigger this tax break.

In a move to deal with the huge federal budget deficit, the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 limited the number of persons who qualify for income averaging and slashed the benefit it offers. Despite the new restrictions, CPAs say, many taxpayers can still lower their tax bills by income averaging.

If you think you might benefit, here's how to work out the basic income averaging formula: You will need your tax returns from 1982, 1983 and 1984 to determine your averageable income. Start by adding up your taxable incomes for the three years. Then, divide the total by three to establish your average taxable income. Then, multiply the average by 140 percent (1.4).

Money Management

Holding aside this part of the formula, now work through the second step: Figure out your 1985 taxable income and subtract from it $3,000. If the total of this second step exceeds the total of the first step (average income multiplied by 140 percent), you will qualify for income averaging.

Here's an example of how it works: In 1985, Betty, a single working woman, had a $30,000 taxable income. Using the regular tax calculation, her 1985 tax bill comes to $5,955. Now, look what happens when she income averages. Her 1982, 1983 and 1984 taxable income came to $13,000, $17,000 and $20,000 respectively. Income averaging cuts her 1985 tax bill to $5,811 for a $144 savings.

Betty's $10,000 jump in income in 1985 was substantial — though not unusual. However, when calculated with her income history for the previous three years, the 1985 income jump provides sufficient change for income averaging to pay off. CPAs say that each taxpayer's circumstances are too different to set rigid guidelines on who can and cannot benefit from income averaging.

The calculations you must complete to take this tax break may seem laborious, but the formula can usually be completed in under an hour. The IRS has thoughtfully provided Schedule G to work out the formula. Its 28 lines are easy to follow. In addition, the IRS plans an updated version of Publication 506, the guide and worksheet for calculating income averaging.

CPAs note that there are pitfalls to avoid with income averaging. For instance, if you married or were divorced between 1982 and 1985, you must refigure your taxable income for those years to make the computation consistent. In fact, even if you did not change your marital status you may have to do some refiguring if you changed your filing status. For instance, if you change the way you file from married-filing-separately to filing jointly, you must recalculate your taxable income to reflect the earlier years in a comparable joint basis.

One other caveat: You cannot income average if you have not provided at least half of your own income in each of the years in formula.

If you believe you may have missed out on using income averaging in prior years, you can file an amended return. In fact, if you income average on an amended return for those years before 1984, you can use a previous, more liberal income averaging formula. Amended returns can be filed for at least three years after the due date of the original return. If you need help, you may want to contact your local CPA.

'Making changes' key to success in retailing

Bernard M. Fauber, chairman and chief executive officer of K mart Corporation, believes change in retail merchandising is inevitable and necessary for survival.

Following acceptance of the 1986 business leadership award at the University of Michigan's School of Business Administration, Fauber said recognizing the need to change is the first and most important step a company must make in order to survive.

"Once the need to change has been generally recognized, then you can fall back on the strength of the corporate culture to expedite and effect the change," he said.

"It is interesting to note that change can be achieved in a fairly rapid and orderly basis under the strong notion that your survival depends on it."

Generally, Fauber said, initial changes are mostly cosmetic, but the decision to change the merchandise "is where the real risk comes. Retailers are all masochists. They never make the right decision. They will buy an item, price it and put it on display, and watch what happens.

"If the item moves very quickly, the retailer made one of two mistakes. Either the item was priced too low, or too much was purchased.

"Conversely," the K mart chief continued, "if the item fails to move, the item was priced too high or shouldn't have been bought at all. Retailers repeat this experiment daily on thousands of items — in our case 120,000."

The head of America's second largest retailer said his business has changed, particularly since 1980 when "the whole orientation to our competitive environment had to be redirected.

"When we finally recognized we could sell better-quality products, the fundamental change was accomplished with no magic at all," he said.

"All that was necessary was three years of Herculean effort. By the end of 1982 we were on our way, obviously more willing to experiment with new ideas, take some risk and live with the results."

In a market of limited resources, Fauber said, "change is the one absolute in the retail business environment. Managing change is the only way to achieve superior performance."

Pamphlet contains suggestions for shareholders

Corporate strategies on mergers, acquisitions, takeovers, leveraged buyouts and divestitures are among the key issues likely to be raised by shareholders at 1986 annual meetings.

Those are among a variety of topical questions raised in the booklet, "Questions Shareholders Will Ask," published annually by Touche Ross, the international accounting and management consulting firm.

"Shareholders certainly will want to know whether their company is a takeover target, what the company's philosophy is on an acquisition or merger as a strategy for growth and diversification, and what actions management will take to protect shareholder interests," said Daniel J. Kelly, vice chairman and group partner in charge of the Michigan Practice.

The enactment of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings legislation to eliminate the Federal budget deficit and pending tax reform proposals also are likely to be the subject of shareholder questions.

"Shareholders will want to know how the company may be affected by cuts in government spending and the impact of proposed tax reform on the company's business practices and profitability," Kelly said.

Corporate policy on safety may be a focus of questions.

"Given recent events," Kelly said, "shareholders will be concerned about product quality and liability risks on top of the increasing cost of product liability insurance, they are concerned about catastrophic liability suits."

According to Kelly, internal control will remain high on the list of shareholder concerns in light of the increasing sophistication and applications of computer technology to internal operations. The proliferation of microcomputers has generated concern about the control of their use and the reliability of the data they access and the information they produce.

Copies of the Touche Ross booklet are available by calling (313) 446-1500.

Touche Ross was founded in Detroit in 1947. Today the firm has 460 offices in 91 countries worldwide. Personnel totaling more than 8,000 in 90 U.S. offices provide accounting and auditing, tax advisory and management consulting services to business, industrial and government clients ranging from the world's largest corporations to medium and small emerging companies that are publicly and privately held.

retain needed talent. Thus 61 percent of the banks, 80 percent of financials and 60 percent of thrifts use stock options in tandem with performance plans. Two-thirds of banks, 60 percent of financials and 20 percent of thrifts award stock options in tandem with restricted stock. One-third of banks and half the financials offer stock options in tandem with both performance plans and restricted stock.

The Peat Marwick survey looked at the top 50 commercial banking institutions as ranked by Fortune magazine, and 50 of the largest savings institutions, including companies with thrift savings assets equal to at least 95 percent of the total company.

A FEAST OF BEASTS

Stories by Bruce J. Martin

Some days you just don't get hit by a Big Mac Attack, don't feel like visiting the Colonel, would rather not rub shoulders with Herb, and don't even care where the beef is.

For someone wanting something different from variations on a theme of standard American farm fare, life hasn't been easy out here in the northwest suburbs — at least not until the last couple of years, when the local cuisine scene has, well, mushroomed.

Two local restaurants, the Novi Hilton's Crystal Swan and MacKinnon's of Northville, have gone a-hunting and a-fishing for fare we might associate more with zoos than with menus. Alligators to zebras, moose to monkfish, the variety is better than ever.

This sort of dining, of course, is for people who are comfortable being carnivorous. But those who fear that some species may be threatened by turning exotic game into main courses should be aware nobody's serving meat which did not come from a farm, and no fish are being reeled in who don't have plenty of replacements.

So go forth, brave diner. By the testimony of our chef consultants, there's a growing number of diners who are glad they did.

Big-game dining in your own town

The neatly-dressed waitress smiles as the couple scans the elegant menu by the light of the chandelier. "I'm sorry," she says. "We're all out of moose today, but we do have a special on hippopotamus. Or perhaps our soup de jour, lion with black bean?"

That may sound like a scene from a Monty Python rerun, but it's a scenario diners at the Novi Hilton may experience more frequently, thanks to Chef Shaik Husain.

Already this year, Husain's culinary concoctions have included lion, moose, buffalo, wild boar, antelope and elk. And he's really excited about the order that was about to come in.

"We'll be getting zebra, camel, ostrich and hippopotamus," Husain enthuses. "There's a very long line of people waiting to get it and we've had to wait our turn."

What's going on here? Whatever happened to beef, poultry, pork and lamb?

Oh, they're still around. But Husain was looking for a challenge when he took over head chef duties at the Novi Hilton. He had been chef at the Washington D.C. Hilton, where he regularly had to please a clientele of the most powerful individuals and groups in the world.

In Novi, the stakes may be a little smaller, but the environment for experimentation is no less inviting. "I realized here a lot of people are into hunting and game food," Husain says. "In Washington, I guarantee, nobody would touch it."

Much of the Novi Hilton's game food

Octopus' garden awaits

"There's plenty of fish in the sea," Mama might have told you sometime. Well, Mama's advice to the lovelorn applies even better to the hungry.

There are plenty of fish in the sea. Fish the timid of tongue won't touch with a 10-foot-you-know-what. Fish with names that even sound yucky. Eel. Squid. Octopus.

Not exactly the kind of stuff Mrs. Paul packages for the grocery shelf. But definitely the kind of stuff that brings a smile to the face of Chef Tom MacKinnon six mornings a week, when the ice-packed boxes from Florida arrive on the doorstep of MacKinnon's Restaurant in downtown Northville.

A typical day's order from the south brings in 150 pounds of various salt-water delicacies. Among standard saltwater staples, it might include a 40-pound barracuda, dolphin, 20 pounds of kingfish, squid, octopl . . .

"I'll try anything weird," says MacKinnon. "I like to change our menu a lot. And I'm crazy about sauces. I like to find sauces that'll work with some of the more unusual fish we offer."

Three suppliers keep MacKinnon's shelves stocked: One handles Great Lakes freshwater fish; one handles seafood from the upper Atlantic — lobsters, shrimp and crab, for example. But the seafood source which lately has added an extra kick to the menu is Smith Knapp, which runs a fleet of fishing boats based near Fort Lauderdale.

What kind of extra kick, exactly?

Consider, for example, eel. They are about a foot long when they arrive packed in ice looking very much like, well, eels. But by the time they're lightly smoked, filleted, cooked and artfully arranged on a platter, they look downright appetizing — even, smooth texture, nice-sized portions. Tender, sort of sweet and with a subtle sauce, they're even better tasted.

Another favorite smokeable, though not a fish, is alligator. "Just the tails," MacKinnon says. "They tend to be pretty tough, but you don't want to overcook them, so usually you slice them thin like prosciutto ham. The flavor's great. It's almost like smoked ham with an accent of seafood."

Larger saltwater game fish often afford those with a yen for seafood the kind of plateful portions not often found in freshwater varieties.

MacKinnon extends his arms so his hands are close to five feet apart and says, "Barracudas are about this big when they come in. Generally the larger the fish, the solidier the meat."

Most of the time MacKinnon prefers an outdoor grill for cooking seafood, saltwater or freshwater. He plans to bring his outdoor grill back to the terrace this spring.

"We try to relate different fish varieties to fish people already know. We know people prefer a sort of milky flavor to a real 'fishy' taste," MacKinnon said he is thinking of offering a sampler plate of exotic fish meats, a palate for the palate.

Some fishes don't translate so well to the plate in whole or filleted form: octopus and squid, for example. "People don't really like to look at little suction cups," MacKinnon says. "Usually what we do is cut them up or grind them and use them in bisques or stews."

Visual appearance is a key part of winning converts to this offbeat seafood cuisine. "Take a conch," MacKinnon says. "When you take the meat out of the shell, it looks terrible. Or a turtle. It looks just like what you'd think it looks like — a turtle without the shell."

Hence conch chowder and turtle soup. A few diners, however, are utterly undeterred by a fish's more unsettling features.

"Some just like the eggs, or they'll insist on a female lobster with the eggs on its underside," says MacKinnon.

Others fancy — get ready, now — just the eyes. While MacKinnon has ventured a tongue-taste, he hasn't brought himself to actually consuming a set. He offers this hearsay description of trout eyes: "You cook them in a salt brine and they're sort of like good caviar. They have a firm exterior texture then a squishy one when you bite into them."

Usually, he thinks, bravery is rewarded — he rarely gets a seafood dish sent back. "It's like the things they were eating in that Indiana Jones movie (Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom) — like monkey brains. It's true; monkey brains really are considered a delicacy."

He says this stuff, folks. I just write what he says.

Homemade inventions keep kids busy during break

By MARILYN LYMAN

Spring break from school calls up many images, not all of them colored the jolly gold of Florida sun. Those who can't leave town for exotic places can easily use the Boy Scout motto and "Be Prepared." The following suggestions can work to make vacation at home a hit. Some research or pre-shopping will tailor these plans to fit your crew exactly.

□ Wrap a pedometer for the child. Put it under his/her pillow, ready for morning discovery. At Twelve Oaks Mall, early a.m., have a brisk jog. How many mall halls make a mile?

□ Call area malls before vacation to find what special entertainments are available.

□ Maybury Park only looks like trees to a child riding by. But spending time on the quiet paths is different. Another under-pillow surprise is a magnifying glass, handy for seeing tree bark patterns, leaf designs, insect traffic. There's a timeless dependable air about woods. What will kids notice when they sit still against a tree and listen to the forest?

□ Mystery boxes are a favorite. One box for each child, tied shut, is passed around the lunch table so contents can be rattled and guessed at. The owner's name is inside along with some unusual item: stone from a rock shop, an old coin, a military insignia, a fake diamond. Next step is to ramble around the area searching for antique shops. Each child may choose a "new" old item for his collection.

□ If a spring headcold blights the time, there are quiet things to do. Using dried beans, make bean bags (presents for siblings or cousins?) Double thickness of material squares are sewn on three sides, then filled and sewn shut. Socks will work, too. Or call an area children's center to get the census and your crew might make new bean bags as a gift for the center's playroom.

□ Locate that shoebox of family snapshots. The child can sort them while you put in gummed labels telling family stories.

□ Make small, easy quilts. Even boys get interested when it involves cutting patches from their retired flannel shirts. Colorful squares are easily cut from tag ends of yardgoods. A light, personally designed blanket for TV time is a prime result. We aren't talking heirloom stitchery here... just good-sized squares machine stitched; the front and back quilt sides are stitched together.

□ Children admire adults who are not slaves to routine. How about going to the backyard or to a park to watch for dawn to happen and eat a weird breakfast of sandwiches and hot cocoa from a thermos? Variations are endless on this one... church steeples and waterfalls being the elite among unusual breakfast sites.

□ Visiting Mill Race Historical Village goes best with some preparation. The child is given paper and pencil to draw whatever design she/he might wish if living as an early settler in the wilds of Northville or Novi. What basics does a shelter need? What can people make for themselves? Also, with modeling clay, a youngster may try to fashion small pots, dishes, cabin items. The later visit to the village, then relates to ideas he/she have already worked on and the exhibits mean more.

□ Plastic monsters aside, there's still active enjoyment in making/using kites, or using marbles, jacks and card games. Puzzles make good prizes. Older kids may feel pretty good about making a whole set of kites for kids at a youth center.

□ There is likely good collage material roosting on your kitchen shelf: packs of dried peas, (green-yellow), beans (white-red), lentils (brown), etc. You'll need heavy cardboard backing, Elmer's Glue and cookie sheets for laying out the dried items. Some shapes of pasta make good designs to glue down and spray paint later. The bean and seed designs can be shellacked for preservation.

□ Would a Rogues' Gallery be fun to use at a future family gathering? Tape a length of white shelf paper to a wall. Selected family pictures and cartoons are pasted on. Frames may be drawn with felt tips or with glued-down rickrack.

□ While the shelf paper is out, try a mural. Cover a door, or if there are several workers and ideas, pictures or drawings to use, the paper can go down a wall, turn a corner, however it grows is fun. Drawings, splashes of pure color, magazine art, jokes printed, all are good mural bits.

□ Did your group learn new songs or jokes this term? Have a new tape cassette ready and tape a performance. Good present for grandparents.

□ Thank-you notes from children are especially treasured by receivers. To prepare for the next set of birthday gifts or special times, a child may make his own stationery. Fold a white sheet of 8 x 11 paper in four. The child draws on only one quarter so it may be refolded into greeting card size. Any picture or greeting is fine. When she/he has a favorite form done, you all go to the copiers where youngsters learn to center the paper and run off a dozen or so. Back home, color touches can be added, if wanted. Now thoughtful responses to present givers are ready with minimum fuss. This also works for the youngster who makes a gift set of stationery for someone.

□ Fortunately, our youngsters can get to certain special marble buildings a few miles away. There are wonderful sights for all ages housed at the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Historical Museum and the Detroit Science Center. Near I-696, they all cluster in the same area of Woodward, Kirby and John R. There is good parking and low-or-no entry fees. Call for hours and other information.

The last mentioned, but best ingredient of leisure time is yourself. What was your own special brand of fun as a kid? Will the same scene play again? Parents are often surprised to find that kids—even those 'couch potatoes' who claim they were born with batteries not included—find action and fun engendered by leaving the automatic entertainments in favor of home made invention.

My teen niece still recalls our standing in the yard in a light spring rain, circa 1979, wearing shower caps. We each sloshed a hoe back and forth in a large tub of sudsy water, cleaning the heap of fossil rocks I'd gathered all year. We dried them, took the boxful to Cranbrook Science Museum where an expert told us their original history and their general age... over 2 million birthdays for some of them! She was so interested we stayed until closing. It was an 'original' day, electronics not needed.

Happy vacation.

The Twelve Oaks Fashion Panel consists of young men and women between the ages of 16 and 22 from Novi, Northville and surrounding communities. Thirty-five members were selected from more than 200 applicants for the 1986 Fashion Panel on the basis of style, personality and talent to represent Twelve Oaks.

Members of the panel will be trained in and participate in many activities, including fashion shows, freeze modeling, workshops on make-up application, hair styling, fitness, retailing and marketing.

Members serve on the panel on a voluntary basis in exchange for experience and exposure to the fashion world through their hands-on experience as models for Twelve Oaks.

New Morning lists preschool offerings

Though the calendar reads spring, the continuing cool weather means kids will likely be confined to indoor activities while longer.

New Morning School, a state-certified preschool through eighth grade cooperative in Plymouth Township, is offering a variety of educational programs for little ones.

The spring series of enrichment offerings begins the week of April 9 with new sessions in the popular "Me and My Shadow" parent and toddler classes. The classes for 2 and 3-year-olds meet one hour per week and include play time, crafts, songs and a parent discussion group.

A new option is the "Evening Me and My Shadow" scheduled from 6-7 p.m.

Wednesdays beginning April 9. Linda Zahm, "Me and My Shadow" instructor, is encouraging dads to join the evening group.

Daytime "Me and My Shadow" classes will meet Thursdays with a morning class scheduled from 10:15-11:15 a.m. for children 24 to 32 months old. Afternoon classes, scheduled from 1-2 p.m. are for children 30 to 36 months old.

Some of New Morning's recent "Me and My Shadow" graduates will be attending a new class on Tuesday mornings beginning April 15. The "Preschool Starter Class" is for 2½- to 3½-year-olds ready to experience preschool without mom or dad. Puzzles, crafts, cooking, music and free play will be included. Class is limited to eight children. There currently are openings for new enrollees.

Preschool classes for 3 to 6-year-olds meet from 12:30-2:30 p.m. beginning April 15. Cost is $36 for six sessions plus a small materials fee. Among the preschool offerings scheduled are:

□ "Snips and Snails and Puppy Dog Tails" (Tuesdays and Fridays, April 15 to May 2). This class is for the curious 4- to 6-year-old interested in beginning science. Why does popcorn pop? What happens to plants in the dark? What happens when colors are mixed together? These and many other questions will be explored.

□ "Lions and Tigers and Bears" (Tuesdays, May 6 to June 10). In an activity-oriented approach, children will learn about many zoo animals. The children will participate in a "Teddy Bears' Picnic," an "Animal Olympics" and much more.

□ "Cooking and Crafts" (Fridays, May 9 to June 6). Children will prepare nutritious snacks using graphic recipe cards. Craft activities will be included. The students will prepare and serve a light lunch for parents during the last class. Cost is $32.50 plus $4 materials fee for five sessions.

Information on any of the class offerings may be obtained by calling the school from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. weekdays at 420-3331. A special class brochure will be mailed upon request.

Lion, antelope among menu items

comes from a Colorado supplier with ties to (for lack of a better phrase) wild animal farms across the U.S. That's right. There are lion farms, antelope farms, hippopotamus farms, camel farms...

"Some of the stories that get spread — that the animals are taken out of a zoo, that we use wild animals from their natural (habitat) — that's ridiculous," says Husain. "These these animals are raised to be slaughtered. We use no endangered species. We won't use tiger or elephant, for example.

"You do have to have at least a rough idea of the legalities. We don't want the humane society coming around to the hotel."

Husain says the arrival of game provides a welcome break from routine for kitchen workers: "It kind of keeps the fun going in the kitchen. We're doing the regular items day in and day out, so when I come in and say, 'Hey, we've got some buffalo, we've got some lion,' it gets our people kind of excited. They're very proud of themselves, they can tell people they've prepared these dishes."

"It's very important not to disguise the flavor. In the old days, they'd put in all kinds of herbs and spices in it. Now we want to keep it as simple as possible — you hate to put basil, thyme and oregano in until what you end up with tastes just like everything else."

Instead, any sauces Husain uses are based on the animal's own juices. "The only way we'd use a sauce at all is to enhance the meat's natural flavor," he explains. "Usually we serve the meat with rather coarse, rough accompaniments, cracked wheat perhaps, or wild leeks."

In the countries where animals such as lions and hippos are native, says Husain, "people use very down-to-earth, basic foods. Nothing you'd call refined — it's very rustic."

There's little that's unusual in the way such food is cooked. "Generally, when you have a great deal of experience cooking meat, it's easy to tell how long something needs to be cooked," he says. "It's rarely difficult, just time-consuming sometimes with the tougher cuts."

What do the foods taste like? Reference points are difficult, since we're more accustomed to foods we consider tamer.

"The cut makes a big difference," Husain says. "That's why it's hard to give you a real favorite. Basically, four-legged animals have the same cuts as beef does, but the size varies depending on the animal."

The game flavor often associated with deer has similar traits to many of the wild flavors. For example, Lion, Husain says, has "very red meat, very muscular. It's something like a cross between beef and venison... The day we had it, about 50 percent of the people came back the next day for more." Antelope, similarly, is sometimes compared to a cross of deer and goat.

But if you want to sound like an authority, the best way — trying it — is not really all that expensive.

"We don't have a regular supply," Husain points out. "We usually use 20-25 pounds a day, which usually sells out."

"But once we thaw it out, we have to use it up," he adds. Sometimes the game meat or stock is used for a soup base. "Sometimes we end up having to give some away."

Nearly one-third of the Crystal Swan patrons order one of the special game dishes when they visit."

Tom MacKinnon of MacKinnon's in Northville serves game on special occasions. One of his favorites is buffalo, which Husain says is more properly called bison. The bison he consumes and serves aren't taken from the open prairie, where they are protected by law, but from farms where the bison are raised for food.

"I think it's a good thing to keep them on farms. It not only revitalizes their populations, but it makes us aware of what they are."

"You'll hear hunters say the same thing, that they perform a service by killing off the extra population of some animals."

MacKinnon also serves up wild boar chops on occasion. "Hot but sweet," he describes it.

Ah, but the time he served hippopotamus, MacKinnon recalls as "the hottest-selling thing we've ever had."

"They are sooo delicious. They tasted like New York strip steak."

Plymouth Symphony Orchestra names new music director

The Plymouth Symphony Society announces the appointment of Leon Gregorian as Music Director/Conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra for the 1986-87 concert season.

Maestro Gregorian currently is professor of music and director of orchestras at Michigan State University and is in his 15th and final year as music director of the Owensboro Symphony Orchestra in Kentucky.

Since Leon Gregorian's appointment in 1971 as music director and conductor of the Owensboro Symphony Orchestra, the company has experienced unparalleled artistic growth. Today, the Owensboro Symphony Orchestra is considered by musicians and critics as the finest orchestra in Kentucky.

Gregorian has conducted the orchestras of Venezuela, Mexico, Italy, Korea, the Romanian Radio Television Orchestra in the prestigious International Toarmina Festival in Sicily, and many orchestras in the United States.

In 1984, Gregorian conducted major orchestras in the Soviet Union, Austria and Argentina.

He has appeared with the Boston Pops Orchestra at the invitation of the late Arthur Fiedler on nine different occasions. His performances with the Boston Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall, taped by Voice of America, were broadcast in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

A third generation conductor, Gregorian began his musical training at age 5 when he studied piano with Nadia Kharatyan in Tehran, Iran. At 7, he presented his first solo recital. Moving to America with his parents in 1952, Gregorian resumed his piano studies with Aurilio Greslin and Alfred Mirovitch in Boston, Mass.

In 1961, Gregorian entered the New England Conservatory of Music to continue his studies with pianist Miklos Schwab. Graduating with honors in performance, he received a diploma in piano and a bachelor of music degree.

At the personal invitation of Charles Munch, he studied conducting at Berkshire Music Center (Tanglewood) with the celebrated conductors Charles Munch, Richard Burgin and Erich Leinsdorf.

In 1966, Gregorian entered Michigan State University as a graduate fellow. He was invited to teach piano and was appointed assistant conductor of the Michigan State University Symphony Chamber Orchestra.

After earning his master of music degree in 1968, he completed residency for a doctor of philosophy degree. Since September, 1983, he has held the position of professor of music and director of orchestras at Michigan State University in addition to continuing his duties as music director of the Owensboro Symphony Orchestra.

A pool of applicants responded to the conductor vacancy notice sent out by the Plymouth Symphony search committee last October.

Clogging...

...It's a toe-tappin', heel-stompin' weekly Main Street hoedown

By ANITA CRONE

They have performed with Loretta Lynn, for the Plymouth Festival, the downtown Detroit hoedown and on television, yet the Main Street Cloggers may be the best kept secret in their own home town.

Although the group calls the Northville Community Center home, and even though two of the original Main Street Cloggers live in Northville and one of the current members of the 10-person performing team lives in Novi, and the group took its name from Northville's Main Street, they don't get much call to perform locally. Maybe it's because clogging isn't as popular here as it is in other parts of the country.

Don't suggest that to the Main Street Cloggers, however. They'll clog anywhere, anytime and with any kind of music.

Clogging is a form of dancing that incorporates an Irish, southern, and tap heritage. The dance style places a lot of emphasis on foot movement, while the upper body is kept stiff. Clogging is immensely popular in the hills of Appalachia and is often performed there.

But while this urban area has few hills, it does have places to clog, like supermarket aisles.

"When I'm pushing a supermarket cart down the aisle, I often work on some of my footwork," says Bill Phillis, a transplanted North Carolinian.

Thankfully for his daughter, Phillis says he does not wear his white, hard soled, tapped clogging shoes in the store. Nor does he wear them at work, although he dances his way around the tool company he owns.

Jerry Eck, another early Main Street Clogger, developed his interest in clogging when he went to a bluegrass festival at Meadowbrook and saw the Costabella Cloggers perform.

"You really just want to get up there and dance," Eck says. "You hear a violin and the bluegrass tunes and you absolutely must dance."

The men agree that part of clogging's charm is that it can be done with or without partners, to fast or to slow tunes, in a line or in a circle. And clogging steps can be very stylized as the Main Street Cloggers emphasize when they perform, or very unstructured, as is often the case when putting the steps to tunes played at festivals.

"And there's all that energy being put out," Eck says.

"You can get tired just watching."

You get more tired, however, doing the dancing.

Phillis says there are really five basic clogging steps. Everything else is putting them together. The Main Street Cloggers put it all together by offering lessons, sponsoring a "team" that performs with visiting artists and for festivals, and providing a social outlet for cloggers who are beginning to gain numbers in Michigan as well as nationwide.

Members of the group recently returned from a national clogging convention and were among more than 3,000 dancers.

Eck says cloggers are also unselfish, as well as competitive. For competitors, there are individual and group competitions.

"You can go to a competition and after a performer finishes, he'll stop and teach steps to anyone who asks. They certainly aren't stand-offish about it."

Phillis says cloggers may come by their openness naturally, since American clogging began in Appalachia, where people are more willing to share and more open than those who live in urban areas.

Clogging spans generation gaps, economic differences and educational levels. Children as young as six learn to clog along with senior citizens at the classes offered by the Main Street Cloggers. Phillis has a doctorate in entomology from the University of Florida and some of the dancers didn't finish high school. It doesn't matter to cloggers. What does matter is being able to keep your feet.

"My worst experience as a clogger came when I fell on my backside on television," Phillis says. "My best came when I joined the Main Street Cloggers."

Two Mustang cagers make All-Area squad

The Sliger-Livingston East area is not normally known as a hotbed of basketball talent. But chances are the 1985-86 season, teams, players and coaches have taken great strides toward changing that sentiment.

Three of the five area teams notched winning records this past season, both overall and in league play. One team grabbed a share of its league title (South Lyon) while another one had a fine 17-6 overall record (Northville). The third team (Lakeland) didn't quite live up to all the pre-season expectations but was dangerous everytime on the floor.

The two teams with less impressive records (Novi and Milford) had their problems, but did have enough talent to pull off some rather impressive upsets — and make sure nobody took them too lightly.

The one thing that links all these teams together is their willingness to put in the hard work that goes hand-in-hand with winning and success. And the all-stars from these five teams are at the head of the list when it comes to the blue collar-type of work they put in, game-in and game-out, all during the season.

Sure, most of these players aren't considered among the most talented in the Metro-Detroit area, but there aren't any harder workers than our Sliger-Livingston East All Area selections. Here's a look at the All-Area first team:

DON NORTON, Northville, forward: Norton was by far the top scorer in the area. His 19.5 points per game average was over four points more per outing than the nearest competitor.

At 6-foot-2, Norton doesn't possess great height, but he has the uncanny ability to get open, get his shot off, and (most importantly) can it. But scoring wasn't the only aspect of basketball in which Norton excels. He recorded a team-high 46 steals and was a valuable part of the Mustang's fierce, full-court defense.

In addition he added six rebounds per game and hit on 75-percent from the foul line. He was, simply, the heart and soul of a Northville team that completed a remarkably successful 17-6 season. In his final five games of the season, Norton topped the 30-point mark three times and averaged 27.6 in that span.

"He would make the big shots when we needed them," Mustang Coach Omar Harrison said. "He was our catalyst offensively."

RAY SAMOLIN, Novi, center: This 6-foot-6 senior wasn't only one of the tallest players in the area, he was one of the best. Most of his work was done under the basket and nobody in the area did it better than Samolin.

His overall average was 10 points an outing, but that number jumps to 12.7 in the all-important Kensington Valley Conference games. But it was the other things he did "in the paint" that made Samolin so valuable — like 131 rebounds for an average of 7.5 a game, and an average of two blocked shots per contest.

"Ray did a good job for us all season long," his coach John Cicchelli said. "He was a pleasant surprise. He's never started on any level in high school until this year and we really weren't counting on him when the season began. He fit the bill and responded in our first few games and quickly became a fixture there."

And Samolin was consistent, scoring double figures in 14 of 18 games. He also connected on 69-percent from the free throw line and 46-percent from the field.

"You'll find that his poorer games were mainly because he was in foul trouble," Cicchelli said.

MIKE HILFINGER, Northville, guard: The 6-foot-1 senior carried his load of the scoring in the first half of the season for the Mustangs, but when his scoring wasn't needed as much in the last half, Hilfinger continued to find ways to help Northville to a school class A record of 18 victories.

His recent drop off in the scoring column directly parallels an increase in assists, rebounds and steals. That means that Hilfinger has found other ways to beat opponents, and do whatever is needed to win.

He ran the Mustang offense and headed up a defense that pressed (full court) the entire game. For the season, he handed out 89 assists, more than four a game. Couple the eight points that resulted from his assists with the 10.9 points Hilfinger fired in an outing and you have a major cog in the Northville offense.

"He settled into the role of being our point guard and did a good job," Harrison said. "When he felt we needed a score, he did that too for us."

BRENT HEPPNER, South Lyon, guard: This 5'10" senior playmaker was the key link in South Lyon's first winning season in 13 years and first league championship in 21 campaigns.

"Brent has all the tools of an ideal point guard... good leadership qualities, good quickness, the ability to penetrate and the ability to shoot from outside," said first-year Lion coach John Kearney.

Heppner averaged 12.0 points and an area-best 8.0 assists this past season. He also converted 48 percent of his field goal attempts and 65 percent of his free throws.

"Brent really doesn't have a weakness, except maybe for his size," Kearney added. "He's been equal or better than every point guard he's gone up against this season."

JEFF MOHR, Lakeland, forward: Although this 6'2" senior was Lakeland's leading scorer, his main contribution came on defense.

"Jeff's biggest asset, without a doubt, is his defense," Eagle coach Lynn Reed said. "He moves very well and he's very intense. He always gives 100 percent."

Mohr averaged 13.2 points and 7.0 rebounds per game this past season, while shooting 47 percent from the floor and 71 percent from the free throw line. He also recorded 48 steals and 36 assists.

"I feel Jeff can play college basketball somewhere," Reed commented. "Some schools have already shown interest. The key for him is that he wants to play badly."

BLUE COLLAR WORKERS — The 1986 Sliger/Livingston East All-Area first team is a group of hard workers, and their exploits on the court proved it. They certainly had a knack for manufac-

Northville's Norton chosen as 1986 Sliger/Livingston 'Player of Year'

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Don Norton is what you would call a year-round athlete.

The Northville High School senior goes full tilt on the gridiron in the fall, baseline to baseline on the basketball court in the winter and covers a lot of area on the tennis court in the spring. Then in the summer he dabbles in golf.

"I just consider myself an athlete who likes to keep busy and do well in the sports I compete in," Norton said.

Not only does he compete in all these activities, Norton excels in all of them too. With the exception of South Lyon's Brent Heppner, Norton is the only player to land a spot on the Sliger-Livingston East All-Area football and basketball first teams this school year. He has also been a varsity regular on the Northville tennis team since his sophomore year.

But if you want to make Norton really happy, give him a basketball and put him out on the court.

"Basketball has always been my favorite," Norton admitted. "I've always looked forward to basketball season more than any other."

Norton may be one of the area's best in football and tennis, but is the best hoopster around. On the heels of his phenomenal senior campaign, the 6-foot-2 hot-shooting forward has been selected as the Sliger/Livingston East "Player of the Year" for 1986.

It quickly became apparent to area basketball observers this year that Norton had the ability to dominate the game. As the leader of a Mustang team that notched 17 games and dropped just six, he poured in 19.5 points a game. But Norton is a complete player — he was the team leader in steals (46) and free-throw shooting (76 percent) and was second in assists and rebounding.

"My goal heading into the season was to average about 15 (points) a game but also help out on the boards and on defense," Norton said. "I wasn't sure if I would be able to accomplish that until about four or five games into the season. Once the team got on a roll, I got on a roll."

Norton is the first to admit that a large portion of Northville's points during the season came as the result of an unrelenting full-court pressure defense. The Mustangs found ways to disrupt their opponent's offense and quickly turned those mistakes into points — and Norton was often times on the end of the fast break.

"A lot of my points came on the transition game," he said. "We put a lot of pressure on the ball up court, forcing some errant passes, which lead to a lot of easy points. But it wasn't easy on defense, it was hard work."

In 23 games, Norton scored in double figures in all but one. And despite being a streak shooter, Norton found ways to score consistently even when he wasn't hitting from the outside.

"Don is a good athlete and he's got a great shot," his coach Omar Harrison said. "He's a streak shooter and when he's hot — he's really hard to stop."

"He was the catalyst of our team on offense, no doubt about it. If he wasn't on our team, we would have really struggled to score points. He always seemed to make the shots when we needed it."

Down the stretch, Norton was unstoppable. In Northville's final five games, he fired in 138 points (27.6 average) including three games over the 30-point mark. But it was team chemistry and determination that helped the Mustangs to a 15-5 regular season record and a trip to the district finals — according to Norton.

"We had great chemistry," he pointed out. "The six seniors on our team have been playing on the same team since eighth grade at Cook (Junior High School). We had a lot of success there and we were 18-2 as sophomores on the J.V."

"We all get along, we're all good friends and we seem to play well together on the court."

Last season, Northville's record was only 10-12, but Norton said that circumstances forced the team to slow down the tempo. This season the Mustang's quicker tempo fit the team better and it made all the difference in the world.

"Last year, when I was a junior, we slowed things down to get our big guys (Greg Wendel and John Storm) into the flow of the game, but this year we found out we were a better fast break team," Norton admitted. "We changed our whole philosophy and it worked."

football and baseball teams.

The future is something Norton has all planned out. He has been already been accepted by Northern Michigan University and plans to enroll into their pre-veterinarian program. But basketball isn't something he will abandon.

"I'm not sure about a scholarship yet but I am definitely going to play for Northern," a confident Norton stated. "I want to continue to play athletics in college and they have academic program I want."

For four straight years, Norton traveled to Marquette during the summer for the "Northern Michigan Basketball Camp," so Head Coach Glen Brown and his staff are well aware of Norton's talents on the court.

"They know me, but I'm not sure they know I'm going there for sure," Norton said. "I'm hoping they will make contact with me soon. I'm also thinking about playing football too."

What about being 450 miles from home in Michigan's Upper Peninsula? Norton has that planned too.

"Once I make the team, I think I have a good shot to contribute," he said. "It's a Division II school but I know I'll have my work cut out me."

But being eight hours away from home will certainly help me to concentrate on what I have to do — study and play ball."

Kearney honored

John Kearney

John Kearney's family ties to the state of Michigan have resulted in one of South Lyon's best-ever basketball seasons.

Just one year ago, Kearney was celebrating a banner season as coach of the Morgan City High School squad in Louisiana. His troops won 20 of 26 games and advanced to the quarter-finals of the state tournament.

But, despite a promising career starting him in the face at MCHS, Kearney decided to return to his home state. He began seeking a teaching/coaching position in February of 1985 and promptly came across an opening at South Lyon.

"Both my family and my wife's family live in Michigan and we wanted to be a little closer," said Kearney, who was raised in Ann Arbor. "The administration at Morgan City knew I wasn't going to stay too long."

The move proved beneficial for the Lions' hoop program. Under the direction of Kearney, who is only 27 years old, South Lyon registered its first winning season in 13 years and first league championship in 21 campaigns.

Mustang center heads 2nd team

The Sliger/Livingston East All-Area second team has a little bit of everything. The five players represent the type of basketball played areawide in 1986. There is a big-but-mobile center, a pair of rangy, hot-shooting guards and two forwards who are unafraid to mix it up close to the basket.

Despite the wide variety of talents, all five are joined together as top-notch athletes who are willing to put forth the extra effort needed to be the best. Here's a closer look at the team:

MATT HINDS, Northville, Center: The big 6-6 center was the final piece of the puzzle for the Mustangs. The one area the team lacked was height, and Hinds came in and responded very well.

"As the year progressed, Matt gained more confidence," Mustang coach Omar Harrison said. "He has really good basketball skills. He was the one player we needed to fit in with the rest of our kids — he was the one that completed the picture."

As Hinds confidence increased, so did his scoring and rebounding numbers. He ended the season with an 11.3 scoring average and 191 rebounds (8.7 a game). But Hinds was also a key figure in Northville's press (32 steals) and led the team in field goal percentage (54 percent).

"He was much more effective in the second half of the season than at the beginning," Harrison admitted. "If he can build up his strength a little bit, he could make a very nice college player."

JOE MISKOVICH, Novi, guard: This junior had numbers as impressive as anybody in the area. He averaged 13.7 points, three assists, four rebounds a game and was consistent, scoring in double figures in all three games he started (out of 20).

Miskovich connected on almost half of his shots from the field (49-percent), and a large portion of those shots were from long-range. Shooting is his game. The 6-foot-3 guard has one of the smoothest jump shots around.

"Joe has always been a good scorer," Wildcat Coach John Cicchelli said. "He has a natural ability, a flow to the way he plays but he needs to improve his ballhandling and intensity."

Novi's lack of a real point guard forced Miskovich into that role, and his turnovers were high. But at 6-3, Miskovich would be playing forward or center at most schools.

"The intensity aspect parallels better defense and ballhandling and that's the only areas holding him back," Cicchelli said.

CHRIS MARCELLIN, Lakeland, guard: A switch from point guard to shooting guard had positive results for this 6'0" senior who averaged 9.8 points, 3.2 rebounds and a team-high 3.1 assists per game.

"Chris is an excellent all-around player," LHS coach Lynn Reed said. "There is very little he can't do. He shoots well, plays outstanding defense and he's probably our smartest player."

Marcellin committed fewer turnovers than any of Lakeland's regulars. He also made 45 percent of his field goal attempts and recorded 41 steals. "Chris is a hard worker and a very good team player," Reed added. "He's also an excellent clutch player . . . very solid late in the game."

Marcellin, who combined with junior Denny Butcher to make up the area's most feared backcourt, may continue his hoop career at a small college, according to Reed.

JIM MITCHELL, Milford, forward: Despite playing out of position, this 5'11" senior was Milford's steadiest player.

"Jim would be a guard on most teams, but because our lack of size, we had to play him down low," explained Redskin coach Don Palmer. "He gave up five or six inches sometimes, but he always held his own. His competitiveness enables him to play a lot bigger than he really is."

Mitchell averaged 9.7 points and a team-high 6.3 rebounds per game, while also shooting 46 percent from the field. He was Milford's top defensive player as well, usually covering the opposing team's best forward. "He held (Howell's Rusty) Frever to nine points and (South Lyon's Dave) Iafolla to six, and those guys are considered two of the KVC's best athletes," Palmer said.

Mitchell was an all-state punter on Milford's football team last fall.

DARIN DAUGARD, South Lyon, forward: This 6'2" 200-pound senior was a pleasant surprise for South Lyon's basketball program. Daugard did not play organized hoop a year ago and competed in only nine games as a sophomore on the Lions' junior varsity squad.

"I was really impressed with Darin during our summer workouts," South Lyon coach John Kearney said. "I could tell right then that he was going to be a double threat, both inside and outside. He was the only player on the team who had the green light to shoot from way outside."

Daugard led the Lions in scoring and rebounding, averaging 13.8 and 9.5 respectively. He also connected on 47 percent of his field goal attempts and 57 percent of his free throws.

Record/JERRY ZOLYNSKY

South Lyon's Kearney is 'Coach of the Year'

Because of these accomplishments, Kearney has been named Sliger/Livingston East "Coach of the Year" for 1986.

Kearney was confronted about the recent success of his teams, which have won 56 games and lost only 20 during the last three years. But instead of basking in the spotlight, he decided to pass off.

"I don't see myself as a miracle worker," he said. "I see myself as a hard-working coach who has been blessed with some good athletes. Those two things go together very well."

South Lyon posted a 16-6 record this past season despite an inexperienced line-up and sour tradition. Two Lions starters didn't even play organized basketball last year, and SLHS squads during the past 13 years had recorded a dismal 64-179 mark.

But Kearney still says he walked into a good situation.

"I knew last summer that we'd be competitive," he said. "There were just too many good athletes in this senior class for the team to be as bad as it was in the past."

Compensate is exactly what the Lions did. They had two four-game winning streaks during their first 11 games and then added an eight-game string before bowing out to Ann Arbor Huron, 48-42, in the district finals.

Immediately following the loss to the heavily-favored River Rats, Kearney stood up and applauded his players as they walked dejectedly towards the bench. It was a memorable moment for South Lyon hoop fans, who spilled plenty of emotions this season after so many years of frustration.

"I just wanted to let the kids know that they had nothing to be ashamed of," said Kearney, explaining his cheerleading stunt. "We definitely didn't play our best game against Huron, but this program has come a long ways. Win or lose that game, it was a great year."

Millions of individuals take prescription medicines every day to prevent undesirable health problems or to treat problems which already exist. In order to get the most from the medicines you take, you should:

1. Understand the directions typed on the label or provided orally by the physician and pharmacist. For example, ask if "once a day" is anytime during the day or at a specified time of day. Be sure you know when to take medicines that are labeled "every 6 hours." Very often "every 6 hours" or "every 8 hours" directions are intended for around-the-clock (24 hour) dosing.
2. Take medicines exactly as directed by your physician. If the size or frequency of the drug dose seems unusual, contact your physician or pharmacist.
3. Don't stop taking prescribed medicines just because you "feel better." If you stop too soon, the symptoms and the problem may recur.
4. Take only those medicines intended for you, not those prescribed for your friends or neighbors. What may be right for others may be wrong for you.

THE REF: Referees' development must parallel athletes'

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

There is nothing sadder in sports than seeing the misguided calls of a referee or other outside forces, rather than the players themselves, deciding the outcome of a game.

Just ask the Michigan State basketball squad. An uncorrected problem with the game clock against Kansas last Friday probably cost the Spartans a trip to the Midwest Regional final and beyond.

It really doesn't happen very often, and when it does, it's usually inexperienced officials who are donating their time to help out the local little leagues. Even if these local "volunteers" are paid for their efforts, it is more often than not a paltry sum — more of a token of appreciation than anything.

For recreational basketball games at the Northville Rec Center, Director John Anderson does his best to find the most qualified referees available.

"As with most recreation departments, our pay is very minimal," Anderson admitted. "We try to find people with a basketball background and people that like to work with kids."

Anderson said that the Rec Center confers with area basketball coaches to find refs when they are needed. These candidates must attend one meeting, where the basics such as positioning on the floor and rules are discussed.

It's basically the same set up for basketball refs in the Novi Parks and Recreation programs as well. Program Director Dan Davis said that he looks to get parents, high school or college students who are interested in officiating.

"With our youth basketball program, we get the refs together in a meeting and go over the rules and try to get them to be teachers as well," Davis said. "We want the kids to improve and know what they are doing wrong. Most of the candidates are already very familiar with the sport."

Many of these people are limited in their knowledge of the game but do their best and use common sense more often than going by the book — and that is fine. And then there are the professionals. Mostly men who travel from city to city, and supposedly know the rule books from cover to cover. These officials are paid handsomely, are key members in the world of big-money sports like the NBA, the NFL and major college athletics. Some of them even have unions.

The Michigan High School Athletic Association governs the officials for interscholastic games in this state, but their acceptance requirements are hardly any tougher than at the Rec Center. To be a registered MHSAA referee in basketball, you must be 18 years old, pay a $10 initial registration fee, and score over 70-percent on an open book exam.

Each official is considered a private contractor, and must first receive ratings from 16 games they have officiated to be considered an "active official." They are usually rated by coaches or athletic directors who forward the information to the MHSAA. A 1.0 rating is the best, a 5.0 the worst.

Currently, the MHSAA reports that there are over 3,000 registered officials in the state for basketball, the most ever.

Major college basketball is a big business. A trip to the final four this year will bring each team over $800,000. That's why the officiating at this level is very crucial.

"A good (basketball) official has to understand the game," said Bobby Dibler, an NCAA official. "The talent level of these players has really increased in the last 20 years and the officials have to keep up with them. The game is getting more and more complicated."

'A good (basketball) official has to understand the game. The talent level of these players has really increased in the last 20 years and the officials have to keep up with them.'

— Bobby Dibler
NCAA basketball referee

Ironically, Dibler was one of the officials at the fiasco in Kansas City.

Despite all the complaining that goes on in these high pressure "win at all cost" situations, almost all of these officials do a pretty good job. But when there are bad calls, judgements and even ethics going on with one particular group of officials, the media has found it hard to single them out for a little criticism. Generally, if there is a problem, the media is quick to bring it to the forefront, but handing out the truth about officials is almost taboo.

Most people think that bad-mouthing the refs is nothing more than sour grapes from the losers. That it is untactful to blame someone else for your own problems — and oftentimes that is what happens. But in the Big Ten Conference, the officiating for basketball games reached an all-time low in '86 and the coaches and players aren't the only ones who have decided to speak out about just how bad the situation is.

Veteran coaches like Indiana's Bob Knight, Illinois' Lou Henson and MSU's Jud Heathcote have been saying all along that something has to be done, but every year it's the same story. The truth is, the officiating hasn't really been any worse the last few years. It's just as rotten now as it has been for the last decade. It's just taken a long time for it to become known.

And almost as frustrating to the coaches is the holier-than-thou attitude that permeates from the Big Ten when complaints are lodged. The standard treatment is that if you ignore it, the problem will go away. And if the coach gets too vocal to the press and says some things that are too damaging, slap him with a fine, get the money and still pretend that nothing is the matter.

"We've got to be good listeners above all," Dibler said, "because most of the time, what they (the coaches) are telling us is true."

Unfortunately, he didn't do much listening last Friday.

About the best an athlete and a coach can hope for from an official is consistency, but in Big Ten basketball, consistent officiating is a fantasy. The only thing consistent about the refs is that you can count on them to be inconsistent. This unfortunate situation can cost a team some wins, it can cost some players a chance to play up to their potential and can cost some coaches many a sleepless night and a few ulcers along the way.

A quote from Heathcote following a key game: "It was a poorly called game in terms of consistency — it seems (the officials) are always behind the play."

The best officials are the ones that you don't even notice. In a Big Ten basketball game, the refs take the spotlight. Will they call a close game? Will they let both teams play? Will they call the offensive foul or the block? Will they call anything at all? Will they call it one way one time, and another way the next?

The fact is that the majority of 15 or so officials, who are paid by the Big Ten to officiate college basketball games, just aren't doing a very good job. The game is too fast and too sophisticated for them. And instead of trying to correct the problem, the Big Ten thinks it is more important to protect the officials from criticism than upholding the rules.

One of the major problems is positioning, as Heathcote pointed out. It's an area of officiating that is very important, and yet the Big Ten refs seem to always be out of position to make the proper call. Ironically, a team of three officials now work each game — a lead official, a side official and a trail official. Up until a few years ago, it was only two. But instead of helping the situation, somehow it seems to have hampered it. Now the officials seem to take it easier and rarely hustle to get into the proper position. With an extra guy on the court, they psychologically feel they don't have to work as hard. Consequently, you see calls coming from a ref who is 30 feet away from the action rather than the ref who is standing within three feet but has his back turned or doesn't have a good angle.

At the Michigan-Indiana basketball game on January 4, 1986, some very questionable calls changed the whole complexion of the game. Down the stretch, with the game on the line and the Wolverines leading by a point, an out-of-position referee called an offensive goaltending violation against an Indiana player when it was clear to everybody, when it happened and on replay, that the man never even came close to touching the ball. Take the basket way, give U-M the ball, and let them go on to win by five.

Following Indiana's 69-66 win over Ohio State January 15, these were the remarks by Hoosier coach Bob Knight. (Keeping in mind that his team won the game.) "Officiating has ruined Big Ten basketball," he said. "They've got a new supervisor of officials (Bob Wortman) this year and if he gets this mess with the officials cleaned up, he deserves the Medal of Honor."

Everybody is entitled to mistakes, but if they are common occurrences that happen time and time again, something has to be done.

Two qualities that are very important for officials to have is good concentration and consistency. But in the Big Ten, many of current refs exhibit neither.

Wortman should take a good look at each individual official (there are a few oddballs who are actually decent refs), and decide if they are honestly helping or hampering the problem. If it's the latter, get replacements.

The Spartans got the shaft against Kansas, but sadly, it's something they are probably used to by now. Big Ten teams get the same treatment from their own refs every year.

New Swim Club President Mike Kowalski

Kowalski named new club president

Mike Kowalski has been elected President of the Northville Swim Club for 1986 during its annual meeting March 15 at City Hall.

Kowalski, an eight-year member of the Swim Club has served on the board the past two years as Assistant Treasurer and Treasurer.

Other Board members elected for 1986 were Vice President Tom Valade, Treasurer Phyllis Heckemeyer, Secretary Sharon Buell, Maintenance Chairperson Craig Parker, Membership Chairperson Joe Malloure, Social Chairperson Cheryl Gazlay and Members at large Cecil Woodruff and John Brugeman. Ron Van Horn will return as Club Manager with John Buckland as Assistant Manager.

At the meeting the Board expressed its gratitude to Lou LaChance, former Vice President and Treasurer, who left the Board after serving six years. LaChance played a major role in bringing the Swim Club to the strong financial position it enjoys today. The Board also expressed appreciation for the job Gene McKelvey did as Membership Chairperson for the past eight years. Under McKelvey's direction, the membership of the club steadily increased from 250 to 375.

Wright's tankers wrap-up big year

Longtime Northville resident Keith Wright came from newly closed Livonia Bentley High School to coach the Mustang swimmers, and it turned out to be good move for both Wright and the school.

Without missing a beat, Wright led Northville to its third straight WLAA Western Division crown in his first season at the helm.

"It was a real fine season," Wright said. "What we saw as it progressed was a continuum of improvement from everybody."

At the forefront was a solid group of seniors who seemed up to the task each and every meet. Doug Buell, Jeff Bainbridge, Eric Lielindecker, Dave Wayne and Darius Mikalonis accounted for most of the points scored by the Mustangs this year. They were the ones who relieved the credit — but they deserved it.

"The seniors were very talented, but what really struck me was their leadership and positive influence on the younger boys," Wright pointed out. "You can have talented athletes, but sometimes their intensity and drive is lacking but not with our seniors. They were, for the most part, quiet leaders who led by example."

The 1985-86 Mustang edition set new school records seven different times, and the seniors were the swimmers to do it. Bainbridge broke the school mark in the 100-yard backstroke four times this year, his final time was an impressive 56.6. The 400 freestyle relay team of Mikalonis, Wayne, Bainbridge and Buell set a new mark twice while Mikalonis got his name in the record books again with a 49.7 in the 100 freestyle.

There were a few other close calls as well. Buell was only two-tenths of a second off the record in the 100 butterfly and the medley relay team was closing in on the old mark but fell a little short.

"But the season goes well beyond just the records," Wright admitted. "The second and third swimmers for us, mostly underclassmen in the outer lanes, really improved themselves and their times as we went along. They didn't get much publicity but their time will come."

By far the most interesting meet of the year was the 86-86 tie with Livonia Churchill. Both teams ended the season with identical 4-0-1 division records and shared the title. But Northville later bombed the Chargers in the WLAA league meet.

"I think the tie just showed the parity in the league," Wright said, "and you'll see more of the same next year. It won't be the 'big two-little eight' thing and it makes for a very healthy situation for our league. It's conducive to better swimming."

The fact that the Mustangs' home pool was unavailable for use until the season was already half over was a definite disadvantage. But Wright was impressed with the way the team handled the whole situation.

"This team could prepare itself for individual meets with a high degree of proficiency," he said. "The mental preparation was exceptionally good."

"Not having our pool disrupted the practice time, but we seemed to take it all in stride."

Everyone associated with the swim program is hoping that the 1985-86 season was just the first in a long association between Wright and Northville.

"I didn't realize how special it would be for me to coach here, but I've been living here for a long time and I am very pleased with the total program," Wright admitted.

from the post have participated in V.F.W. pool since the first league was formed in the 4th District in 1965 and a Northville team actually won the State Championship in 1974.

The late All-American Commander of the 4th District Ray Paquin believed that pool was a good way to promote camaraderie among members and was one of the initiators of competition between posts.

Northville winter athletes honored

It's become a tradition at Northville High School to look back on a completed season and to honor some of the outstanding efforts. Each individual sport holds its own banquet to wrap up another finished campaign, and here is a look at some of the awards presented:

Basketball — The Mustangs wound up a very successful 17-6 season with a banquet March 17 in the school cafeteria.

Head Coach Omar Harrison awarded only two trophies during the night, but both went to deserving recipients. Senior center Matt Hinds, who started every game this past season and led the team in rebounds and was second in scoring, was named the team's "Most Improved Player." The 6-foot-6 Hinds never started a game at the varsity level until this season.

In a vote by the players on the team, senior forward Paul Newitt was honored as the team's "Most Valuable Player." As much an inspirational leader as he was a floor leader, the 5-foot-10 Newitt was the catalyst for Northville's unrelenting full-court pressure.

"I don't like to give out a whole lot of awards because it lessens the importance of them," Harrison said. "This is the first year we've ever had a 'Most Improved Player' award but Matt Hinds really deserved it."

Wrestling — Jack Townsley's squad, which ended the season with a 5-10 overall dual meet record, won't have its team banquet until April 10.

Awards will be presented to the top rookie, the most improved and most valuable performers along with next year's captains.

"I have no information on any of the awards yet, but I think it's supposed to be a surprise anyway," Townsley said.

Swimming — The overall dual meet record for first-year Coach Keith Wright's tankers was just 6-5-1, but in the Western Division of the WLAA, the Mustangs were a sparkling 4-0-1 and co-champs.

At the team's banquet March 18, Wright had a lot of awards to hand out to a very successful group. All 24 members of the team received patches for winning the Western Division and 15 of those earned varsity letters. The six seniors (Jeff Bainbridge, Doug Buell, Eric Lielindecker, Darius Mikalonis, Dave Wayne and Dave Ziegler) all received plaques noting school records and other honors.

Swimmer award were Bainbridge and Buell, while Lielindecker was named the "Most Improved Swimmer." Sophomore Dave Frayne was honored with the "Team Spirit and Attitude Award" and sophomores Jason Hill and Jim Thompson were the co-winners of the "Hardest Worker" trophy.

Gymnastics — Northville is coming off a 4-6 dual meet season, but Coach Michelle Charniga doesn't know exactly when the team banquet will be.

"We haven't set a date yet but it should be after the spring break because we want to make sure every girl can make it," Charniga said. "We have a small team so we usually have a personal little banquet at one of the girls' homes."

Charniga said that in addition to varsity and junior varsity letter awards, she will also honor the team's "Most Valuable Gymnast" and the "Most Improved Gymnast."

Volleyball — Steve McDonald's squad got together for their banquet on March 12 in the school cafeteria. The Mustangs are coming off a 10-14-1 season, and honored some outstanding performers, like senior Chris McGowan.

McGowan was named the team's "Most Valuable Player" as well as the "Most Enthusiastic" an award she shared with teammate Nicki LaRoque. Junior Dawn Kucher was given the "Most Improved Player" award while Robin Strunk and Tricia Ducker were named co-captains for next year's team.

Pool tourney set

Minnesota Fats and Willie Mosconi won't be here, but some of Michigan's finest pool players will convene on Northville next month. That's because the Northville Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will host the state V.F.W. Pool Tournament on April 25 and 26.

Post 4012 was 41 years old in January and has a long history of sponsoring activities for the betterment of the community, like bicycle safety programs and beautification projects. Teams

15 years of change for girls

By ANITA CRONE

There are only 33 words to it. It has been the law of the land for slightly more than 15 years. But the ramifications of Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972 may be changing the world for many years to come for girls and women in terms of athletic participation.

The wording of the law is very simple: "No person shall, on the basis of sex be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program receiving federal financial assistance."

But the ramifications are far from simple.

Since Title IX was ratified, girls and women have entered the athletic arena with a vengeance — swatting softballs, dinking volleyballs, cleaning up in track, and even, occasionally, dunking basketballs.

They have participated openly. They have stood their ground in the face of men and women who have hinted and even stated openly that a female athlete was somehow not feminine, even not normal in her sexual preferences, and certainly had no place on the playing field.

The impact of the law has touched schools from the elementary level through colleges; it has affected players, coaches and administrators, not to mention parents. It has reached into taxpayers' pocketbooks and caused many to reassess the way they look at athletics.

And even though the federal government has never stringently enforced Title IX, girls and women continue to make inroads on the playing fields.

"Certainly there have been massive strides made in terms of girls participating in sports," says Elizabeth Giese, who, along with other volunteers, completed a study on sex equity in education — a report on Oakland County Athletics 1983-1984 for the Project on Equal Education Rights (PEER). "But there are also some very important areas where the steps taken have been in a backwards direction."

Citing two major areas — support services and coaching — Giese said school districts should take a very serious look at what opportunities they offer to female athletes and coaches.

While the completed PEER study targets Oakland County, a similar project is being undertaken in Wayne County. That study should be released by next fall, Giese said.

The Oakland County PEER study encompassed seven different areas, including factual information; student information; participation in 16 sports; staff information, aimed at number and gender of coaches and subjective questions on the satisfaction level of those coaches; support services; facility usage; budget allocations and comments and suggestions.

At the time the study was completed, Novi ranked slightly below the state average in participation — the number of girls involved in sports, but has since seen an increase in female participation.

Like many school districts, Novi is aware and concerned about the number and caliber of available female coaches and game officials. There does not seem to be concern, at least on the part of Athletic Director John Osborne, about girls being left out of athletics.

"Girls should play anything they are interested in playing," Osborne says. "I personally think, however, they should not be playing contact sports like football or wrestling. There are obvious physical differences there."

Osborne also had very strong opinions about the impact of Title IX, saying it had provided some very positive movement, but at the same time had a negative aspect.

"The best thing about Title IX is that it gave girls the opportunity to perform and to play," he said. "The worst thing about it was they look to the budget as an indication of how well a district is complying with the law."

Northville Public Schools have taken even a larger step in dealing with the implications of Title IX. Not only does the district have a Title IX coordinator in Dolly McMaster, but there are on-going committee meetings to help the district achieve sex equity in athletics as well as general education.

"It has been exciting to watch decisions being implemented with a new awareness of exactly what Title IX is and does," McMaster said.

In terms of athletics, the organization that has total control over programs is the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA). Because the MHSAA is not a governmental unit, the organization is not bound by the financial constraints of Title IX, but that does not mean it isn't aware of the law or its ramifications.

"We are involved in Title IX because we are continuing to survey our member schools to see what they are doing in terms of all programs," explained Sue Martin, MHSAA assistant director and the only female to hold that title.

"We're also involved in terms of providing coaching clinics, certifying officials. And this year, for the first time, the MHSAA has a study committee looking specifically at women coaches and officials to see what we can offer to make them better and the job easier."

Locally, Osborne and Northville High School Athletic Director Ralph Redmond say it is difficult to find qualified, interested women coaches.

The same concern was very apparent in the PEER study. "The greatest male/female inequity in athletics in Oakland County found in the survey was in the area of coaching. In 1983-1984, 87 percent of all coaches were men. Even for all female teams, only 41 percent of assistant coaches and merely 30 percent of head coaches were female."

Even as the number of female athletes increases, the number of female "role models" to coach these girls and women has hovered below 50 percent.

"The fact there are fewer women coaches has something to do with the system in which they were educated," explains the MHSAA's Martin. "The women who were teaching physical education and coaching people of my era (she graduated in 1969 from Michigan State University) really had a difficult time accepting girls as athletes. In a way, those teachers were part of the problem in achieving qualified coaches."

"I think time will change the problem of finding qualified coaches," Osborne said. "As there is an increase in the number of qualified candidates, there also will be opportunities for those people to coach."

Redmond also stressed that he found the number of qualified women coaches scarce. "But as more and more women are able to participate in college athletics and more and more women are trained as teachers and coaches, I think we'll find the percentage of qualified applicants increasing."

Redmond says he sees greater difficulty now in dealing with an increasing number of non-staff coaches. Unable to find qualified teachers willing to coach, the Northville school district has turned to outside coaches — men and women who have coaching experience but do not teach in the school district.

One problem that is not being eliminated quite as quickly is the decrease in gate receipts for varsity athletics. Although Novi and Northville do not rely on the money earned by gate receipts to fund their programs, they do depend on that money and on booster organizations to help with incidentals to the athletic programs.

"Right now, gate receipts are down for girls' sports," Osborne admits. "They never were a very big draw, but the amount taken in this year has definitely decreased."

Perhaps the most touchy subject when one talks about high school athletics is the sports season. Michigan is one of only four states to schedule girls' basketball in the fall while the boys' program continues in the more seasonal winter time.

Those in favor of keeping the girls' season in the fall cite competition for facilities and coaches as the main benefit to keeping the seasons as they are.

Those opposed, most of whom advocate scheduling girls' basketball in the winter and providing another fall activity for girls, say a winter program would increase attendance and provide a better opportunity for college coaches to scout local players.

"If they do any changing of schedules, I'd like to see girls' swimming held in the winter, the same as the boys' swimming," Osborne said.

Historically, winter programs for boys have included swimming, wrestling and basketball. Volleyball and gymnastics are the girls' winter sports.

It would be up to the MHSAA to change season schedules, but Martin says the only way that could occur would be if the association's member schools requested the change.

"I know that perceptions from outsiders, particularly the media, is that the MHSAA is not willing to change," Martin said. "But internally, the change is there."

And Osborne, too, said he has changed. "I'm a sports fan, even when I'm not coaching. And I've seen the caliber of play improve and the girls making their moves. It's not there yet, but it's coming."

Recreation teams promote equality

Although participation is the name of the game in recreation department-sponsored athletic programs, the departments in both Novi and Northville are finding little discrimination in terms of participation.

"We don't exclude anybody because of ability," explains Thomas O'Branovic, director of the Novi Parks and Recreation Department. "We really want everybody to play."

Judging from the number of programs offered, nearly everyone is playing. Soccer is available for youngsters from five years old and older. Softball is offered for girls and boys from eight to 18 years old, and basketball is being played by youngsters in the fourth through the eighth grades.

In Northville, the numbers are similar, although Recreation Director John Anderson says the number of girls participating in basketball is small. Only about 15 girls out of 220 players participated in this year's program.

"In some ways, I guess we could be considered a feeder program for the schools," O'Branovic says. "But that isn't our main purpose."

"I would hope we are teaching people skills for recreation they can use throughout their lives," Anderson said. "What they learn here is not just for use in high school sports."

In both cities, the recreation departments and schools share facilities, and sometimes varsity coaches get their start through the recreation department.

"We do not stress competition," Anderson explains of his program. "That doesn't mean we don't have competitive programs, because we do. But we're more interested in making sure everyone who has an interest in playing a sport really gets to play."

Anderson and O'Branovic agree Title IX has had an impact on participation, especially among older players.

"We've certainly seen an increase in girls participating," O'Branovic says. "But we've never done anything to exclude them."

He adds that overall participation is on the increase. "This year, we had our largest registration ever for youth basketball, and that's real encouraging."

Anderson added that while Title IX does not have a legal impact on recreation departments, "it certainly has a philosophical effect. Girls are asking to participate in more sports, and we really want to be ready for them."

Former Northville cheerleader Dave Townsend

He turned flips to lead cheers

David Townsend doesn't look like a high school football player. The 16-year-old is relatively short at 5'8", has a slim build and doesn't spend a lot of time in the weight room.

He doesn't know about Title IX. He hadn't heard of it two years ago, or even last week.

Yet Title IX and football are related for Townsend. Two years ago, he left the all-male ranks of high school football players for a chance to become the first male varsity cheerleader at Northville High School. Townsend didn't do it because of Title IX or because he had something to prove or a statement to make. He tried out because he really wanted to be a cheerleader.

"I've always been interested in gymnastics, and cheerleading seemed to be an ideal way to be able to learn the sport," said Townsend. "I really didn't think trying out for cheerleading was a big deal."

But Townsend said what he expected when he tried out for the team and what actually happened were not compatible.

"After I made the team, they wanted me to learn all the old cheers, do the same cheers they'd been doing. They didn't seem like they were willing to try to take advantage of having guys on the team and learn some new stunts that would have involved gymnastics-type movements," he said.

"People didn't really say anything, but I could tell there were some people who didn't think it was the thing to do," Townsend said.

One of the people who did think it was the thing to do was Susie Ramahi, a varsity cheerleader, who helped Townsend through the initial process.

"She would show me films of cheerleaders doing the kinds of things I wanted to do. And she was really encouraging when I was going through the tryouts."

It was Townsend's own decision, however, to leave the team. "After I made the team, I got a job and it turned out to be more work than I thought it would be. My family has a cottage in Canada that we go to every summer, and I wouldn't have been able to go if I had stayed on the team. I would have had to spend the whole summer learning the cheers."

Although Townsend says he is glad he went through the experience of trying out and was happy to have made the varsity team, he says he wouldn't go through it again.

"Mr. (Ralph) Redmond (Northville High School's athletic director) came up to me the other day and asked if I were going to try out again," Townsend said. "I don't think I really want to."

But every once in a while, the thought of trying out and making the team again brings a smile to Townsend's lips. After all, he did it once.

Millen appointed to Naval Academy

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

It took some heavy-duty work on the football field and in the classroom, but Northville's Tim Millen secured a long-time dream.

The Mustang senior, after several weeks of agonized waiting, was contacted recently and told that he had received an appointment to the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland.

"We were on pins and needles for a while there," Northville football Coach Dennis Colligan said. "When he finally got the call from the academy, Tim was really thrilled. It's been a dream that he's had."

Millen will be playing football for the Midshipmen starting next fall and will also get a top-notch education. The Navy actively recruited Tim, as did the Army and Air Force, but no recruit is guaranteed anything until he has been accepted into the academy — a highly competitive situation.

"They (Navy recruiters) came to me and showed up one day at school," Millen said. "It was really a thrill and I was surprised. This is something that I've wanted for a long time, I started talking about it my first year in high school — and then to see them recruiting me was extra special."

Tim's father, Thomas H. Millen, is a retired Naval officer. He was a 1954 graduate of the Naval Academy and served as a career officer for the next 24 years. Tim grew up in Virginia Beach, Virginia while his father was stationed at Norfolk, and moved to this area when he was 13 years old. So there is little doubt Millen knows what to expect.

"It was my choice to try and get in," Tim said. "My dad never forced anything on me and up until the time that I got accepted, he played it cool. But when he found out that I made it, he was really excited."

Tim received a Presidential nomination, as opposed to a Congressional nomination. It's a special category for sons and daughters of career servicemen.

"The Navy is very interested in Tim as a player," Colligan said. "He's going to have to get himself stronger but you could tell that after high school, he was not through playing football."

In late January, the academy flew Millen to Annapolis on an official recruiting visit, and Tim liked what he saw.

"I toured the facilities for three days, met the coaches and some players," he said. "They said they wanted to have me in the program but that it all depended on the appointment. They sounded very encouraging about my chances but nothing was guaranteed."

At first, the academy rejected his application because of a prior injury to his wrist that never healed properly. But on the visit, the team physician recommended a waiver, which eventually cleared. It was the last stumbling block Millen had to overcome.

Tim's class will be sworn in on July 7, and football practice starts in August. While on his recruiting trip, the coaches asked Millen where he would like to play — fullback or linebacker — the two positions he played while a standout for the Mustangs last season.

Millen will play for Navy next season

"I like fullback but linebacker is probably the better spot for me," Tim admitted. "Fullback would be fun but I think realistically, I'll end up as a linebacker."

Millen said that he is currently about 6-foot-2, 210 pounds, but has already begun working out with the weights and running to get stronger.

"Tim is gonna have to bulk up a bit," he said. "He needs to gain 10 to 15 pounds but still maintain his quickness. They only take in about 20 players a year and it's a very select group, so Tim is going to have some tough competition."

Millen was the key figure in Northville's tough defense last fall. He led the Mustangs in tackles (58 solos, 43 assists), and recorded four sacks, two fumble recoveries and caused three fumbles. On offense he averaged 5.3 yards a carry as a bruising fullback.

"Now I have to prove myself when I get down to Annapolis," he said. "As long as I put my best effort forward, I know I can play there."

Millen's eventual goal it to be a pilot, and that means an extra year of obligation to the Navy after his playing days are over.

Millen has been a very busy guy this year. Not only has he been hitting the books and raising the grade point average, he has been taking the toughest college prep courses available.
