Voters to decide who pays price for street repair

By ANITA CRONE

Northville city voters will go to the polls Tuesday to decide whether they should tax themselves an additional two mills to pay for a $3 million bond issue to rebuild and repave the city's streets.

If approved, the cost of the project would be shared equally by the community at large, rather than forcing the city to create special assessment districts to pay for the project.

According to a brochure scheduled to be passed out door-to-door this weekend, city council is favoring the bond issue for four reasons:

Rebuilding the city street system benefits everyone and everyone would share equally in the cost;

Special assessments would result in unequal charges for taxpayers because of the varying conditions of the streets;

A bond issue would allow larger contracts to be bid, resulting in better prices;

A millage payment qualifies as a deduction on state and federal income tax returns; special assessments do not.

If voters give approval to the bond request, work could begin almost immediately on streets within the community.

Targeted for first-year attention is an area in the southeast corner of the city, bounded by Gardner Street on the South, River Street on the west, Beal Avenue on the north and South Main on the east; Lexington Blvd. and Clement; an area bounded by Hutton and Rayson on the south and Eight Mile Road on the north, Grace

Sales and songs welcome summertime to downtown

Summersong Festival will be held downtown this Friday and Saturday to welcome the official arrival of summer with special music concerts and an arts and crafts fair.

Under sponsorship of the Northville Merchants' Association and the Northville Arts Commission, the festival will feature an arts and crafts fair from 11 a.m. to dusk Friday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday along downtown sidewalks. Music events will be held in the town square park across from the clock.

Music in the park on Friday will include the "Big Band Sounds" from 5-6:30 p.m., Northville Jazz Band from 7-8 p.m. and the Midwest Harmony Chapter Chorus of the Sweet Adelines from 8-9 p.m.

On Saturday, the first day of sum-

Theme for this concert in the park will be international music. Featured will be marches from England, Belgium, Germany and Spain. Also included will be Russian folk dances and music of French, Australian and Czechoslovakian derivation.

A special highlight will be the introduction of "Infinity," an ensemble saxophone quartet. Northville residents Myra Prueter and Randy Chisnell join with Marge Connell and

New homes, old problems for builder

An angry group of North Beacon Woods homeowners, upset by a "lack of response" from the subdivision builders, S and S Homes, took its problems to the Northville Township Board of Trustees' meeting June 12.

"We've been here six months there are a lot of things which haven't been corrected," said Robert W. Handley, a subdivision resident.

Other residents indicated concerns with "shoddy workmanship and nothing gets done to correct it," anti-siphon sprinkler spigots which "disappeared a week after the building inspection," cracks in basements and on driveways and what homeowners perceive as a general unwillingness of the builder to address their concerns.

"There are a number of highly individualized problems that have occurred in the area," explained Matt Modrack, township development director. "The building department is aware of the complaints, many of which have occurred because of temporary certificates of occupancy granted at the request of the residents."

Modrack indicated no temporary certificates of occupancy had been granted since May.

Bill Spagnoli, S and S Homes vice president, said he was aware of the complaints, however, was finding it difficult to address the problems immediately.

"There are a lot of people putting pressure on us because they want to get into their homes, and we are trying to accommodate them, as well as to address the concerns of the residents," Spagnoli said.

"But with the amount of building going on in the area and the number of builders trying to find laborers, we are no longer able to address the concerns immediately. We are trying to get problems taken care of as soon as possible," he added.

Spagnoli said he gave each homeowner a check list on which the resident could indicate any problems which have occurred since the homeowner moved into the house.

"We guarantee the house for a year," Spagnoli said. "But a lot of our subcontractors won't work on a piecemeal basis. They wait until they can do an entire list of repairs. And that takes time," Spagnoli added.

In an effort to reach an amiable solution, supervisor Susan Heintz directed the subdivision residents to "rethink your checklist and, as of today, send a report of work which you think needs to be done."

Modrack said Monday he had received just one checklist, but "I expect to see a lot more in the near future."

The board passed a resolution calling for a moratorium on issuing temporary occupancy certificates for 30 days, then superseded its action with another motion directing the building department to check on the number

Clothes still lure customers

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series focusing on family-owned businesses in Northville.

By ANN CHOWDHURY

Charles Freydl Jr., of Freydl Cleaners and Men's Wear and Freydl Women's Wear, Northville, like his father, grandfather, and great grandfather before him enjoys clothes.

"I especially enjoy buying for spring every year, the clothes seem so bright and cheery," he said.

Freydl, of course, is not buying for himself, but for his customers all around the Northville area, and it's important to know their tastes. "We cater to the middle age bracket," he explained, "mid level executives and the career woman." His customers mostly like classic and conservative styles.

The family has been in the clothing business at least as far back as Freydl's great grandfather, a tailor in Germany, whose son Bruno arrived in Northville from Mt. Vernon, Ohio, in 1894 to start his shop, "Freydl the Tailor," above what is now MacKinnon's Restaurant.

He made hand-made suits and other garments until his eyesight failed and he had to move to ready made lines. His young sisters, Mary and Emma, helped make the vests in the earlier years.

Bruno married in 1896, and his son Charles was born in 1898. The business was moved across the street as it continued to grow, just about opposite the present Freydl stores. The building was then owned by Bruno's father-in-law, Charles Joslin.

As a teenager, Charles Freydl used to play the Alto Horn with the musicians who brought Northville to life on Saturday nights. A band played in a huge wagon and young Charles earned one dollar per performance.

When Charles was interviewed for a story in the Northville Record Centennial Edition in 1969, he recalled his early days in Northville. "Those were the days. We had wooden sidewalks, streetcars, hitching posts for the horses, and I remember an old fella was paid 25 cents a day to clean the cobblestones," he continued.

Before the street was paved they used those stones to build the George Alexander house, but it was lost in a fire some years ago."

Charles also remembered that, when he was 13, his father added dry cleaning to the business, and he used to help after school.

"We sponged and pressed everything by hand," he said. "One day there was a bad train accident, and old Doc Henry rushed down to lend assistance. He brought his blood-caked coat in later, but dad said it couldn't be cleaned. I asked if I could try, and, with a stiff brush, cleaning solution and elbow grease I succeeded."

That was when Charles decided to concentrate on the cleaning end of the business.

As the business grew, Bruno decided to move back across the road to the present location of Freydl Women's Wear Shop and, while he ran the men's shop in front, Charles and his wife Velma ran the cleaning business in the back. Charles reminisced that the depression years were tough. "Not too many people wanted dry cleaning when they could scarcely feed themselves."

Bruno's daughter, Nellie Barry, joined the store and ran a line of ladies goods with him until he passed away in 1936 and then she ran the whole shop herself.

Charles bought the store which is now the Bookstall in 1937, and two

"HE LOST COUNT AFTER 80," reports Scott Lapham, talking about the stitches a surgeon took to sew his forehead back together June 8 after the top of his pool filter blew off and hit him. Lapham says he "felt part of his head was taken off" in the Sunday afternoon accident.

He's out of the hospital and back at work now but says he's getting a different filter for the pool.

YOU BETTER think twice before you complain about the motorcycles in Hines Park. There just may be a police officer aboard.

Five Wayne County Sheriff's deputies have successfully completed 80 hours of instruction and have been certified as police motorcycle officers, bringing the total number of motorcycle-mounted officers to 10. The unit will be used for secondary road patrols and Hines Park traffic control.

THE POLICE department in the township is really getting into the team spirit.

In a mutual aid pact being discussed with other Western Wayne County communities, plans call for an arson investigation team, a narcotics team and a special operations team. Other communities involved in the team concept include Belleville, Sumpter, Van Buren, the Plymouths and the Northvilles.

CASEY THE CAIMAN is doing quite well in his new home at Meads Mill Middle School.

For those who don't remember, Casey was the orphan caiman left at the Michigan Humane Society adopted by Dwight Sieggreen and Norm Hannewald, science teachers at the school.

Hannewald reports Casey is bigger, stronger, is eating well and has very definite likes and dislikes. "He likes raw meat but doesn't like Dwight," Hannewald says.

Maybe it's the beard.

THE COMMITTEE to Improve Northville City Streets had its first meeting and collected its first donation last week.

City Manager Steven Walters reports he paid $60 for printing a brochure explaining the city's street bond issue which will be distributed this weekend. Walters, who appointed himself treasurer of the committee, is looking for new members and help defraying the costs.

City Council members came to his rescue with each person contributing $10. "I want to be president," joked Dewey Gardner, handing over his donation.

NORTHVILLE HIGH SCHOOL graduates certainly know where the money is.

Near the end of ceremonies, a very long, very black limousine pulled up to the parking lot. There was no question in anyone's mind as to who was in the car: "It must be a Detroit school board member" was the general consensus.

THREE PLANNING COMMISSIONERS were appointed to new terms Monday, bringing the commission up to full strength.

Charles Freydl Jr., John Hardin and David Totten, all of whose terms were set to expire June 30, will retain their seats for another three years.

CLASS OF 1956 members will rub elbows with celebrity Conrad Doan (auctioneer in the movie, "The Country") at the 30 year Northville High School class reunion Saturday at the community building.

All Northville High School graduates are welcome to attend the party and meet alum Doan after 9 p.m. Admission is $10. Call Joe Humphries, 453-8664, or Delores Barber, 349-3156, for reservations.

ENTREPRENEURS who plan to sell arts, crafts and antiques at the Northville Merchants' Association annual sidewalk sale Aug. 1-2 can begin signing up for spaces (at $25 a space) at 8 a.m. July 2, chairman Del Black reports.

He'll have sign up sheets ready at Del's Shoe Store.

Residents clean up storm's aftermath

Although the heavy winds and rain that lashed the area last Wednesday were not classified as a tornado, try telling that to Northville residents, some of whom are still cleaning up in the aftermath.

Damage estimates have been pegged at $50,000 with the majority of the destruction being concentrated on Main Street in both the city and the township. Nearly 500 residences and businesses were without power.

Hardest hit were three West Main Street homes. The wind uprooted three large maple trees including the root system. Two of them fell onto two homes on Main Street and Rogers, damaging the upper stories and the roofs of both homes. Although both homes were occupied at the time, no one was injured.

Just one block away, a falling tree landed on an automobile, totally demolishing the right passenger side of the vehicle. And in the township, a homeowner at Clement and Seven Mile Road was evacuated when live electrical wires fell on her house.

Numerous traffic signals were reported out because of the storm, and city officials used barricades to turn normally signalled intersections into four-way stop corners. The loss of electricity in the downtown area forced many stores and restaurants to close early. However, by Thursday, it was business as usual.

"I'm no expert," said State Farm insurance agent Paul Folino. "But it (the damage) certainly looked like a tornado." Police officials, as well as the National Weather Service, denied that there was a tornado touching down in the area.

Detroit Edison crews had full power restored throughout the area by 8 p.m. Wednesday. Most heavily affected were 425 customers serviced by the Seven Mile and Orchard transformer, which blew about 1 p.m. The facility services about 425 customers, Jim Connelly, an Edison spokesperson said.

Also affected were about 70 customers in the vicinity of Six Mile and Hines Drive, and about 75 customers in the Sheldon-Thornapple area.

Despite the intensity of the storm, Northville Chief of Police Rodney Cannon said the damage was not so severe as another freak storm which hit the area three years ago.

"Just judging from taking a drive through the area and hearing reports from residents, it seems like the storm three years ago was much more severe," he said.

Even though the storm was intense, no tornado warning sirens were sounded in the city, as is standard practice during a weather emergency.

Police spokespersons said the city does not sound the siren unless a tornado warning is in effect. If the National Weather Service issues a tornado warning, the city siren will sound one continuous three-minute blast. There is no signal for a watch or for an all clear.

"People can get the all clear and the watch from the local television or radio," Cannon noted. "There are just too many other sirens in the area and sounding the city's for a watch or an all-clear would only confuse people."

Water issue flows through subdivision

It's getting harder and harder to determine who, if anyone, wants water, sewers, neither or both in Northville Estates.

But, ready or not, work began last week in the northern portion of the subdivision to bring in city water to those included in a special assessment district last year.

Two weeks ago, City Council added another 18 lots to the water list, spurred by a petition presented by a resident. Since that time, Steven Walters, city manager, says he has been deluged with requests from homeowners in the middle portion of the subdivision to include them in a water district.

An attempt to provide water to the area two years ago met with overwhelming resistance from property owners. But things have changed.

"Since water is available, it would increase the resale value of my home if water were included," said Joan Johnson, who is petitioning her block to try to force city council to schedule a public hearing on the issue.

Kevin Buelow, president of Northville Estates Civic Association said he "had no idea" whether subdivision residents were in favor of water, sewer or both. But he certainly intended to find out by authorizing a subdivision petition drive.

"We are asking each homeowner whether they want water, whether they want sewers or whether they want both," Buelow explained. "That way we can give the contractor some indication as to whether the job he is working will be increased."

Buelow said he was aware residents turned down water two years ago, but insists things have changed.

"Back then, no one had water," he said. "Now, half the subdivision is scheduled to get city water. It makes a big difference."

City Council scheduled a public hearing on the matter for June 30.

Council to Plagens: No trade

City Council Monday turned down an initial request from James Plagens to trade Plagens' property on the northeast corner of Main and Hutton streets for city-owned property on the southwest corner of the property.

Had council approved the request, Plagens indicated he would have erected a two-story building on the new site and in the process added 10 parking spaces.

However, Councilperson John Buckland indicated his opposition to the plan. "That's the only place left downtown with open space and I want to keep it that way," Buckland said.

Echoing Buckland's reservations, Mayor Pro-Tem Dewey Gardner questioned whether the issue of the trade had come before the Downtown Development Authority or the city's planning commission before being brought to the attention of the council.

"This isn't the first time the property has come before a city commission," Gardner said. "And I really don't think this will be the last time.

There is obviously a problem, but I don't think it's with the building; I think it's with the use."

Dissenting from the majority of the council, Paul Folino said he would like to see the issue further developed, and to see plans for the proposed building.

"There's a lot of potential there," Folino said. "And at one time there was a building on the southwest corner."

"I can remember a building there, too," said Mayor Paul Vaernon. "And I prefer the property vacant."

Silent heart disease occurs in thousands of Americans. It is responsible for heart attacks and sudden death in people without warning or without previous symptoms of heart disease. Office EKG's and laboratory tests can be helpful in detecting heart disease but often these can be normal during routine examination. A 24 hour Holter Monitor recording the heart can be worn while exercising and can often detect irregular heart beats and decrease blood flow to the heart muscle.
If you are starting an exercise program and would like to have a cardiac evaluation, call Laurel Park Medical Clinic at 464-8222.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Information for the School Notebook is sent to this newspaper by colleges, universities and organizations throughout the nation. Due to the vast student population of schools such as Michigan State University and University of Michigan, graduation and honors lists may take as long as 8 to 10 weeks to reach us. We print each item in the order we receive it.

CHERYL COLLINS, daughter of Rosemary Collins of Onaway Drive, was among the 30 members of Eastern Michigan University's forensics team which recently won the National Forensic Association's 1986 National Tournament title.

Eastern Michigan won the competition with 509 points, the highest score in the tournament's history. EMU has won the tournament eight times in the last 15 years.

Collins, a senior majoring in arts management, participated in five tournament events: dramatic duo interpretation, poetry and prose reading, after dinner speaking and rhetorical criticism. She made it to the quarterfinals in rhetorical criticism and dramatic duo interpretation when paired with Mark O'Brien.

CATHLEEN HOLLAND of Northville was among the 400 degree candidates recognized at the University of Michigan-Dearborn's winter commencement Sunday, May 4.

She received a bachelor of arts degree.

Birth order, test scores interrelated

The notion that first-born children are brightest dates back into folklore and the primogeniture of kings.

University of Michigan psychologist Robert B. Zajonc (pronounced Zy-unc) has accumulated scientific evidence that the notion is true—it is reflected in Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores, for example—and has developed a theory to explain it.

Zajonc, director of the Research Center for Group Dynamics in the U-M Institute for Social Research (ISR), expresses in his "confluence theory" the concept that a family's "intellectual climate" reflects both the number and mental ages of its members.

The theory suggests that first-born and only children should be measurably brighter because they are primarily influenced by adults, the parents who dominate their intellectual climate during the formative years.

When younger brothers or sisters come along, "the intellectual environment is diluted," Zajonc explains. In other words, the larger a family grows, the more its intellectual environment declines. Opportunity to learn is likely to be weakened for children with many siblings, especially for children with older siblings, who in some ways replace the parents as teachers while lacking their knowledge and experience.

In a smaller family, on average, each child is likely to be exposed to a higher level of intellectual stimulus.

Zajonc, U-M's Charles Horton Cooley Distinguished University Professor of Social Sciences, discovered a strong correlation between birth order and national scores on SATs used to predict individual aptitude for college studies.

Between 1963 and 1980, national SAT scores fell from an average of 490 to 445, an enormous drop that registered in both verbal and math scores for men and women. Educators expressed great concern.

President Jimmy Carter appointed a commission to investigate the test score decline. The group listed at least 79 possible causes of the decline, among them drugs, parental neglect, poor teacher training, pollution, television, nuclear testing, and even food additives.

Zajonc was convinced that the decline was due to something more fundamental, the effect of family size and birth order on academic performance. He predicted, four years before it happened, an upturn in SAT scores after 1980.

Students who took the SAT tests in 1980 were born in 1962 into relatively large families. They were, on average, third-born children.

Zajonc noted that the trend in increasing family size reversed itself in 1962. This drop in the number of children per family continued until 1979, when the average child was the second in the family, a major shift from 1962.

"Because there had been a steady increase in the average family size for the students taking SATs between 1963 and 1980," the U-M researcher explains, "SATs were predicted to decline until 1980 and then to rise again when birth rate, and therefore family size, began decreasing."

"The trend of continued decline in family size suggests a rise in SATs until the year 2000. A leveling off and a decline is expected thereafter."

Since the birth order data are based on an entire population, while SAT score data represent less than a quarter of the population, it was possible, Zajonc notes, that the patterns discovered in the ISR research were true mainly of that quarter of the population only.

However, results from the Iowa Basic Skills Test, given yearly to all Iowa school children, offered an entire population for comparison. The pattern remained the same: a decline in performance for those born between 1950 and 1963 and a rise thereafter. Even more convincing, the Iowa results came from students of all ages, not just 18-year-olds.

Zajonc and his associates call their concept "confluence" theory "because the intellectual development of a family is like a river, with the inputs of each family member flowing into it."

"Remember," Zajonc points out, "that tests of intellectual ability depend heavily on verbal ability. Then imagine the intellectual environment as providing a pool of words to the growing child. Adults contribute a large vocabulary to the pool, and babies contribute nothing. And how do you talk to a baby? You use 'baby talk.'"

"The pool of words surrounding the only child at age 5 is different from the pool surrounding the second-born child of the same age who has a 7-year-old sibling."

Another U-M study, which is not connected with the ISR research, offers some independent confirmation of the Zajonc theory that birth order influences achievement.

Herbert W. Hildebrandt, Edwin L. Miller and Floyd A. Bond of the U-M School of Business Administration found in their 1984-85 study of newly-promoted executives across the nation that roughly half (49.2 percent) of these high-achievers were first-born or only children.

of temporary certificates of occupancy and report back to the board on the status of each. The trustees rejected suggestions it issue "stop work" orders for building being completed by S and S Homes.

"The only way to get Mr. Spagnoli to pay attention is to withhold permits until something is done," said Trustee Don Williams, explaining his support for issuing a stop work order.

However, other trustees questioned the legality of such an action. Modrack said the attorneys told him the board would have exceeded its authority had it tried to delay issuing certificates of occupancy if all permits and work completed were in order.

Spagnoli said he intended to work closely with township officials to get the complaints handled in the next 30 days, but added he was "embarrassed the residents came to the board."

"Everyone there was in the same predicament. They wanted to get into their homes, and we tried to accommodate them. We're very proud of the subdivision, and we don't like to see our residents unhappy," Spagnoli said.

Spagnoli indicated S and S Homes has built more than 100 houses in the past 20 months and has another 35 homes, all in North Beacon Woods, still under construction.

NRPH patient hurt in fall

Security officials and the Michigan State Police continue to investigate a Sunday night accident at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital.

According to reports, a male patient fell one story from the fourth floor of Building A to the overhanging abutment on the second floor of the building.

The Northville Township Fire Department was called upon to remove the man from overhang, and Larry Vandesande, information officer for the Michigan Department of Mental Health, said the patient was treated at a community hospital and released. He was back in the hospital Tuesday; however, Vandesande said he had no report on the man's injuries.

Vandesande added he "understood the incident was an accident" but could give no details as to how the man managed to open the window from which he fell.

"A patient with sufficient motivation to elude staff members can find a way to escape," Vandesande said.

Although not included in the wording of the millage proposal, council members have gone on the record that, if the bond issue is approved, city council will refund a portion of the money paid by homeowners already assessed for street repairs. Those who would receive refunds are residents of Allen Drive, Fairfax Court, Randolph Street, Baseline Road, Hill Street, Taft Road, North Center Street, Horton Street and Northville Estates.

This is not the first time streets have been repaired without asking for a special assessment. In 1981, voters approved a $445,000 bond issue for South Main Street. Also in 1981, downtown streets were rebuilt by the Downtown Development Authority using captured taxes from downtown businesses; and, the city is using general city revenues to pay its portion of the 1985 widening of Eight Mile Road.

Both polling places — City Hall for Precinct 1 (Wayne County portion of the city) and the Amerman School library for Precinct 2 (Oakland County portion) — are scheduled to open at 7 a.m. Tuesday and remain open until 8 p.m. Paper ballots will be used.

years later bought out Nellie's men's line and included it with his cleaning business.

In 1943 he bought the location which is now the men's shop and in 1961 bought Nellie's ladies line. Velma continued to develop the ladies line, and during the 1969 interview Charles reported that his son Robert owned the building, and Charles Jr. was managing the men's store.

Charles remained interested in the business until his death in 1984. "He never really retired," Charles Jr. said, "Even though he didn't do much for the last couple of years he still enjoyed the people. He would come and sit in here and people would come and talk to him. He knew just everybody."

Velma, now in her 80's, still lives in the Eaton Drive home Charles built for them the year they were married. Charles Jr. remembers that she always worked along side his dad, helping with the cleaning, the pressing and books ever since he can remember.

Both the stores are still managed by Charles Jr. whose three sons have moved away from the clothing business.

"I'm not disappointed about that. You have to be happy with what you are doing, that's the big secret," he said.

Greg, his oldest son, is a computer engineer in Denver. Second son Kent is project manager of a major construction firm in Florida and is the father of Charles Freydl III, who chose last Thanksgiving Day for his birth.

Scott, the youngest, has graduated from U of M and is going back for his teaching certification, following his mother Mary's footsteps.

Mary Freydl, Charles's wife, is an English teacher at Meads Mill Middle School and also enjoys accompanying her husband on buying trips for the stores.

Charles never considered any other occupation. Since his mother was always at the store when he was small, he and his brother Robert would come to the store straight from school and help. "There was just the interruption of the service and college," he said.

He attended Michigan Normal, now Eastern Michigan University, for two years, then was sent to Germany with the army from 1951 to 1953. When he returned, he completed a bachelor's degree in business administration at Cleary College and went straight into the family business.

He has a simple explanation for the continuing success of the business. "Hard work and personal service."

Some of his customers are the children of his father's customers, but his stores have also attracted Northville's new arrivals.

"The people who come to Northville love Northville, that's why they come, and they tend to be very loyal to the town and support its businesses," he said.

In no business is it more important to move with the times than in the clothing business and, even though Freydl's does not carry high fashion lines, his customers are discriminating.

When it comes to purchasing new season ladies' clothing, he takes Mary and two of his "loyal employees and friends," Jean Coolman and Dorothy Dresselhouse, to the shows in Cobo Hall and the Civic Center in Southfield.

"I sit in the background and get teased about it," he joked. "Dorothy just wears the rest of us out at those shows."

"I just love it," Dresselhouse agreed, "especially the sleep wear. You have to think of the customers and what they like."

Charles added that sales reps, who keep on top of trends and also know the store and its clientele, are also a great help in choosing new inventory. "If we really don't like something, we won't buy it, but if we hedge on something because we feel the customers might like it the sales reps help out."

Sometimes a sales rep will even send something that was not ordered because he feels so strongly it should be in the store. Charles said that happened recently with some women's black lounge wear decorated with eagle and tiger designs.

"I swore up and down we hadn't ordered them," Charles said, "and the rep finally admitted he had included them because he thought we ought to have them. They turned out to be best sellers."

A member of the City Planning Commission, Charles is delighted with the recent renovation of the downtown area and has noticed that it has resulted in a significant increase in shoppers.

It is just one of many changes the Freydl family has seen over four generations in Northville, and welcomed with a spirit that has ensured its continuing role in the town's development.

Bidding for bachelors yields a bundle

By ANITA CRONE

The "$6 Million Man" may have been a figment of a television writer's imagination, but the $15,000 man is very real.

James Richardson III, general manager of the Millender Center, led the bidding for a bevy of bachelors, all of whom volunteered to offer a date and be sold to the highest bidder during a March of Dimes fund-raiser June 12 at the Novi Hilton.

The March of Dimes raised $37,000, nearly half of it on Richardson.

"We're very pleased with the results," said Anne Erickson, March of Dimes spokesperson. "We exceeded our wildest dreams and we definitely intend to do it again."

Erickson said the previous record for a "Bid for Bachelors" fund raiser was about $20,000. "We didn't know exactly how much we would raise, but we thought it might be in the $11,000 range. That's what the March of Dimes raised in Minnesota with a similar event."

While Richardson's date, which included champagne, dinner, a concert at Joe Louis Arena and a nightcap at the London Chop House, elicited the highest bid from Penny Klein of Plymouth, Klein had some stiff competition in the bidding.

Linda Hobart, president and owner of a Rochester disability rehabilitation management service, walked away with four dates and $10,000 less than she started with. The only one that got away was Richardson.

Hobart said she intended "to have a very good time" with Curtis Gadsen, Jay Clark, Elliott Richardson and Doug Dunbar. Dunbar, 22, was "a gift for my daughter who graduated from high school."

Donna Phillips, of Novi, was determined to get her man. For $4,500 she won an hour and a half of aerobics with Sonny Van Arnen.

"I'm very into aerobics," Phillips said.

Susan Kelly, a Northville resident, was very into purchasing a date with The Record's Bruce J. Martin and wasn't hesitant to shell out $275 for the pleasure. Kelly will join Martin June 25 for dinner for two at the Crystal Swan, followed by a concert at Meadow Brook Music Festival.

While the more than 300 women, who shelled out up to $7 each for the chance to bid on the bachelors, were extremely pleased with the outcome, they were not nearly as happy as were the bachelors.

"There were three of us over 35, and we were joking about how much money we could raise," explained Clark. "I expected it would be a couple of hundred dollars."

He brought in $1,400 for a date which included a hot air balloon ride, a champagne repast and dancing at a Royal Oak nightclub.

Clark, 42, said he had been in the "market" for some time and "there was no hesitation at all when they

(the March of Dimes) asked me to participate."

Clark admitted that the bid for bachelors "beat the singles bars — but not by a whole lot."

And Richardson, who kept his cool when the bidding got hot, says he "never expected" to bring that high a price. But he's new in Detroit, and ready to learn what the city is all about. Detroit women already know what Richardson's about — about $15,000.

Police Blotters

Hitchhiker robbed

In the Township ...

A 19-year-old Novi man was beaten and robbed of $50 June 15, while hitchhiking on Eight Mile Road east of Beck.

The man told police he was hitchhiking about 2:30 a.m. when a late 1970-model Firebird or Trans-Am, traveling on the other side of the road, pulled over and stopped.

A passenger in the car accused the Novi man of throwing rocks at the car. The passenger and driver then beat up the hitchhiker, took his wallet containing about $50, and fled in their car.

The suspects in the case are described as white males, between 17 and 20 years old. One is described as 6-feet, 2 inches, thin build, with freckles. The second suspect is said to be about 5-feet, 9 inches, with blond, frizzy, shoulder-length hair.

A door-to-door salesman from Dayton, Ohio, has been charged with violating the township's solicitation ordinance and is scheduled to be tried in 35th District Court July 15.

The man was arrested June 12 after officers saw him going door to door.

When asked by police officers for identification, the man reportedly said he did not have any. He told police he was selling cleaning products for A & W Enterprises.

The township ordinance prohibits solicitation without a license. Neither the man, nor the company, had requested a license.

A 12-year-old boy was given a lecture by police officers after he reportedly threw a rock which struck an 11-year-old girl June 11.

The girl told police she was on her way home from school when she was hit by the rock. She reportedly suffered a cut and a bruised hip in the incident.

A kicked-in front door provided access into a Seven Mile Road home for person or persons unknown who ran off with some $3,200 worth of jewelry June 11.

... in the City

Four Northville youths, ranging in age from 12 to 16, were apprehended by police for tampering with the United States mail on June 12 at 6:30 p.m.

The youths were observed putting lighted smoke bombs in a mailbox on Wing Street by two city employees. They were arrested, charged with tampering with the mail, attempted malicious destruction of property and possession of fireworks. The case will be heard in Wayne County Juvenile Court.

According to the police report, the Northville Post Office Supervisor said that because of similar incidents recently, the office wishes to prosecute all cases possible.

A 28-year-old Northville woman was issued a traffic citation for failing to yield at a traffic sign and causing an accident at the corner of Center Street and Hines Drive on June 14 at 9:50 a.m.

The woman was traveling south on Center in a 1979 Plymouth, attempted to pass a car on the right that was stopped at the traffic light, and the report indicates, caused a collision with a 1982 Pontiac that was traveling west on Hines Drive. The driver of the Pontiac, a 31-year old woman from Plymouth, and her seven year old son were injured and taken to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, but later released.

The Northville Record

Our Opinions

Share 'yes' vote with community

Northville city voters Tuesday will be asked to approve a two-mill, 10-year bond issue to pay for reconstructing virtually all of the city streets. We recommend support for this issue.

More importantly, however, we ask every registered voter take a moment now to mark the election on a home calendar and in a date book.

With just one issue facing the electorate, and less than a five-percent turnout in the school election still in mind, we cannot do too much to emphasize the importance of voting on this issue.

There is no doubt city streets are in need of repair, replacement and repaving. For two years, the city sadly neglected its streets while seeking to erase a budget deficit and move into the black. But while repair work was neglected, traffic on the streets was increasing and the wear and tear following neglect cannot be overlooked.

Shunning the usual method of creating special assessment districts and charging homeowners whose property abuts the streets for the cost of replacing the roadways, city council has taken the position that since people equally use city streets, they should equally pay for the replacement. And since the proposed project is expected to cost some $3 million and to take three years to complete, there is no denying the importance of the program.

We agree city streets are everyone's responsibility and the repaving project is long overdue. But with all the signs pointing to a low turnout, we cannot help but be wary that only a few voters will decide the outcome of the issue.

The door-to-door informational campaign scheduled for this weekend and the individual donations made by council members indicate the support of city officials for the bond issue. A low turnout on the part of the electorate could be construed as residents not caring whether streets are rebuilt or not or who would pay for the program. Actually, financing the project with millage affords opportunity for the taxpayer to take the cost as a deduction which is not possible with a special assessment.

Seldom has a community had the opportunity to send two messages to its elected officials. But this election gives Northville city voters the chance to do just that. It would be gratifying to see the issue approved. But it would be more gratifying if 50 percent of the city residents could be counted when the polling places close.

No more secrets

Being in the information business, we find it hard to believe the difficulty we sometimes encounter when trying to report a story involving state, regional and county institutions. But it is inconceivable that oftentimes township and city officials are experiencing the same problems.

We cannot understand the reluctance, given the number of meetings held to discuss the issue of communication or lack thereof, of Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital or the Plymouth Center for Human Development officials to report incidents to local law enforcement or fire department officials.

Township Police Chief Kenneth Hardesty, in a moment of candor and anger, reported that Plymouth Center officials contact Northville Township "when it suits their purpose." Other times, police and fire officials must hear of incidents through the media and the grapevine.

We understand the often confidential business of prisons and state hospitals and the inherent reluctance of prison and hospital officials to comment to the media on what occurs within the walls of their institutions. But we cannot understand the unwillingness to inform city and township officials.

There are times when the township and city police and fire departments are asked to cooperate in quelling a disturbance, returning walkaways to the hospital or standing by at a fire while internal security departments handle the problem. But to effectively handle a situation, it is better to be informed when an incident develops, rather than be called at the last minute or after the fact.

City and township officials are all professionally trained to perform a professional service. Sharing and exchanging information with other units in the area should be handled in as professional a manner as possible. We do not feel that is too much to ask.

B.J. saved by the bid

By Michele M. Fecht

While Northville and Novi may not seem like hotbeds for breaking news, this little corner of southeastern Michigan made headlines last week when a woman bought a date for $15,000 at an auction at the Novi Hilton.

It was all part of the "Bid for Bachelors" fundraiser hosted by the March of Dimes. Eighteen Detroit area bachelors put together a date package and auctioned themselves off for charity. Date packages ranged from a day at Boblo to dinner at the Van Dyke Place. One eligible bachelor actually offered an hour and a half of aerobics followed by showers (yes, you read that right) and drinks at his Bloomfield Hills home.

Among those put on the auction block were media personalities such as Dan Mountney ($2,100), Kevin Kerrigan ($1,100) and our very own Bruce Martin (not quite as costly as his other media bachelor pals but more expensive than his seven newspaper co-workers were willing to bid to save his reputation).

It's a wonder Bruce is speaking to any of us. Not only did we put him up to this, but we made his life miserable up until the night of the auction. While we had no doubt that the charming Mr. Martin would steal the heart (and wallet) of some local cutie, we felt a duty to attend the auction to offer our moral support. It was the least we could do.

It was clear from the moment we sat down at our table that the 300-plus women attending last Thursday's auction meant business. In fact, it was like watching the trading on the floor of the stock exchange. Female corporate types in pinstripes and blue pumps engaged in bidding wars with society types dripping in sequins and feather boas. One could hardly hear auctioneer Frank Boos among the catcalls and screeching.

When the first three bachelors went for $500, $1,000 and $2,100, respectively, those of us in the Bruce Martin Fan Club began to panic. We quickly pooled together $200 the last resort fund. We figured that if worse came to worst, we would bid on Bruce. The person who made the biggest donation to the fund would go on The Date with B.J. (dinner at the Hilton's Crystal Swan, music at Meadow Brook). It's a good thing we struck out. Had some lucky lady not topped our bid, Bruce would be sharing his moonlight and magnolias evening with managing editor Phil Jerome.

Actually, Bruce fared well without our help. Seconds after going on the block, women began outbidding one another for a dream date with Bachelor No. 5. We never even had the chance to throw our number in the ring. The woman who won B.J., an attractive brunette in a gold lame evening gown, was the surprise of the evening. We all agreed Bruce should pay her for the date.

While we expect Bruce to be insufferable for the next few weeks, we cannot imagine how friends, co-workers and family are living with James H. Richardson III. The general manager of the Millender Center, Richardson was sold for $15,000. His date package included a chauffeured limo ride to an elegant dinner at Omni's, a concert at Joe Louis Arena followed by a nightclub at The London Chop House. For that price I'd throw in a Saab Turbo and a transatlantic crossing on the Queen Elizabeth II.

After the Fact

By Phil Jerome

I want to give you some advice on how to run the paper," he said. I was sipping on a New York Seltzer in my neighbor's living room late Sunday night, and Andy was dispensing advice.

Being an inquisitive sort when it comes to ways of improving the paper, I asked what he had in mind. And he said — "Don't change a thing."

"I like it just like it is," he continued. "Our kids have had their names in the paper several times and we really get a kick out of it. I really love that hometown touch; you just can't get it anywhere else. I get all kinds of papers at work, but the one paper I read every time without fail is your paper."

I thanked him for the advice, telling him one of the strengths of papers like this one is its hometown orientation. When you read our paper, you're reading not only about your own hometown but also about your friends and neighbors.

I also mentioned that I was very happy with the "Can you still wear your wedding dress?" feature that appears on the front page of this week's Living section.

"What I like about it," I continued, "is that our readers were an essential part in developing that story. Almost like members of the staff. If nobody would have called to say they could still wear their wedding dress, we wouldn't have had a story."

"I like it so much that I think I'm going to do it again. Only this time we'll ask people to call us if they have a really super recipe for barbecue sauce. After we get the calls, we'll get back in touch with the callers, find out what the recipe is and then publish the best recipes sometime in July."

This is for real, folks. If you have a special recipe for barbecues just call Molly or Judy at 349-1700. Don't give them the recipe. Just tell them your name and phone number. We'll take it from there.

I really don't expect to receive as many calls as we did with the "wedding dress" story, but then I might be favorably surprised. This article hasn't even hit the presses yet and I already have one barbecue recipe on file.

Oh! Andy claims he's got a barbecue recipe that will really knock your socks off.

Student drivers criticized

To the Editor:
I would like to tell high school students who are privileged to have a car to drive that "there is a difference between courtesy and politeness." Courtesy is the spirit of helpfulness. Politeness manifests itself in the observance of manners and ways of doing things, particularly obeying traffic rules and regulations.

I am a resident of Allen Terrace. I do not now, or ever have expected any special consideration because I am a senior citizen. However, I do expect people (young or old) to observe traffic rules and common courtesy on the road.

I was driving my car west on Walnut Street last Tuesday at the time school was out. There was a steady flow of traffic coming from the school along East Street, going south. Each car made a left on Walnut, going east. I approached the intersection to make a left turn on East Street and, even though I had my directional signal on, not one student drive was about to let me turn until I edged farther into the center of the street to force my way through. Where are these young people's manners and why do they not observe traffic rules and regulations? They all appeared to think it was a smart thing to do to hold me up from making a left turn.

I would rather compliment drivers than criticize them.

Students — get with it — use some common sense in your driving habits.

Sincerely,
Naomi C. Boase

Party planners offer thanks

To the Editor:
As co-chairpersons of the Northville High School Graduation Party, we'd like to extend our appreciation to the following persons. They were the people who headed the many committees we had. Their cooperation and organization made our jobs easy!

Decorations: Karen Peterson, Betty Broderick, Deanne Siemasz, Larry and Janyne Hilfinger, Eric and Lois Hoffmeister, and Pam Unsworth.

Buffet: Joan Darrow. Breakfast: Jane Coble and Nancy Smith. Publicity: Bo Hall and Joyce Stolberg. Check room: Marilyn Harp and Linda Osborne. Entertainment: Joyce Whelan, Pat Kilner, John Osborne and George Buelow.

Security: Dennis and Dorine Leland. Clean-up: Dan Wenger. Treasurer: Carol Merrifield.

Thanks to all these people and the many others who helped them. Many hours were spent pulling all this together, but seeing the happy faces of the kids at the party made it all worth while.

Lane Norton
and Joan Darrow
Co-chairmen,
All Night Graduation Party 1986

To the Editor:

The Northville High School Graduation Party chairpersons wish to publicly thank many people. On June 13th, following graduation, we hosted 237 wonderful graduates at the traditional all-night party at the high school. The party was a huge success. As chairpersons, we want all the other parents who gave of their time and talents to know how much we appreciated their help and cooperation. Every little bit sure helped.

We also want to thank the many local merchants and business people who donated supplies and/or prizes to be used at the party. It is gratifying to know the business community is supportive of our youth.

Another thank you needs to go to the school administration, particularly David Bolitho. The high school custodians also helped make our jobs easier! Thanks to all of them, too!

Of course, we mustn't forget the publicity we received in The Northville Record. Please accept our thanks.

Most especially we thank the Class of '86 who made it all possible. Your willingness to adapt, your sense of togetherness (as well as sense of humor), and your academic, artistic and athletic excellence have made you truly an outstanding group. You most certainly have accomplished much of which to be proud. Stand tall Class of '86, we salute you. Please keep in touch for we feel sure your graduation is only the first step on a wonderful journey. Safe and happy travels!

Amerman volunteers appreciated

To the Editor:

The 1986 Amerman School Ice Cream Social held on June 6 was a tremendous success due to the participation of so many in the community. The committee wishes to express its gratitude to those who gave of their time and talents, especially those who organized, planned and publicized; those who baked and donated the many baked goods; the more than 120 people who worked the night of the event and the hundreds of adults and children who attended.

Special thanks goes out to Mike Burley and the Northville High School Pep Club for the donation of the use of the popcorn machine and all supplies, to 7-Up/Canada Dry Bot-ling Company of Redford and to Guernsey Farm Dairy.

The overwhelming support of this PTA activity really displays the Northville Community spirit. Proceeds from this event will be used for PTA projects during the 1986-87 school year.

Boosters plan fall activities

Following a busy 1985-86 school year, the Northville Athletic Boosters Club already is planning its first event for September.

Instead of its traditional clambake, the organization is sponsoring a Super Booster Brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. September 7 at Northville Charley's.

Chairman John Hill has planned the brunch which will include entertainment, games and prizes for all ages. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children 10 and under and are available from Boosters Club members and Northville Charley's.

For ticket information, call Geoff Halverson at 348-1542.

The Northville Athletic Boosters, with more than 175 family members, works primarily with the high school administration, faculty and students to support athletics.

Over the past four years, the Boosters Club has raised more than $10,000 annually for Northville athletic programs. Among the projects funded have been football/soccer programs, baseball sprinkler systems, track runway renovation, swimming pool timing system and batting cage.

During the 1985-86 school year, major projects funded included tennis court bleachers, a pool diving stand, and storage cribs for the new gym (for all sports).

The Boosters Club raises funds through the annual clambake (now the brunch), season passes, sports programs with team pictures and special events.

New officers for the 1986-87 school year are: Don Kuffner, president; Terry Wayne, vice president; Judy Walsh, secretary and Alma Stevens, treasurer.

Cooke building gets new tenant

The former Cooke Junior High School, vacant since high school students moved out of the facility more than two months ago, will get a new tenant this summer.

The school district's operations department, now housed in cramped quarters in the basement at the Main Street site, will be moved to Cooke prior to the new school year.

The Northville Board of Education approved the transfer at its meeting last week.

Noting that the district has experienced an "inordinate amount of vandalism" since the building was vacated the first part of April, assistant superintendent Burton Knighton said he thought damage to the facility could be curbed if it was occupied.

In addition, he noted that the current work space and storage at the Main Street building is inadequate.

The district also plans to place its energy management control system computer in the Operations office. Knighton told the board the initial installation is covered under the district's energy management system control. To install the system at Main Street and move it to Cooke at a later date would be an additional expense.

Though the board approved the operations department move to Cooke, plans for the Main Street building still are indefinite.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has been looking at the Main Street site for the past few months as a possible location for its offices. School Superintendent George Bell noted that an official from the Department of Management and Budget toured the building Wednesday but did not indicate if the state would be interested in leasing the site.

MUCC seeks petition deposits

Michigan United Conservation Club strongly urges petitioners working to put the question of a deposit on wine coolers on the ballot to get their completed petitions to the club's Lansing headquarters as soon as possible.

"Michigan residents have very little time remaining to circulate the petitions, gather the needed signatures and get those petitions back to MUCC for checking and tabulating," Thomas L. Washington, executive director said.

In the first three weeks of the petition drive more than 410,000 petitions were distributed, and MUCC officials estimate more than 30,000 signatures have been gathered, 10 percent of the number necessary to put the issue on the ballot.

"Despite the fact that five wine cooler and mixed spirit deposit bills have been introduced in the Michigan Legislature, it's apparent that there will be no substantive action on these measures in the foreseeable future," Washington said.

"Unless we can secure the signatures of 300,000 registered voters by July 1, our chances of including containers of wine coolers and mixed spirit beverages under our state's successful 'bottle bill' will simply disappear."

'New management styles needed by U.S. industry'

Ford Chairman Donald Petersen said all workers must become part of a 'team' approach

The most important measures available to American manufacturers in competing with producers from abroad are control of "the quality of our products and the productivity of our operations," according to Ford Motor Company chairman Donald E. Petersen.

Petersen recently expressed concern that the United States "easily could lose its future competitive battles because we have fallen behind in productivity and quality."

"I worry about what that portends for our country unless we meet the challenge head-on," he said.

Petersen noted that not only have foreign producers moved into the U.S. market to give domestic producers strong competition, but they also "have invaded foreign markets that a few years ago were customers for our products."

"Many of the nations we compete with," he said, "are unable or unwilling to buy enough of our products to keep any semblance of balance in the trading relationship."

To counter strong foreign competition and to achieve the quality and productivity needed to compete, Petersen said that Ford is having to make significant changes in the way it operates.

"We are undergoing a massive cultural change..." he said. "We are struggling to simplify all of our systems of designing, engineering, buying, producing, selling and servicing high-quality products."

The Ford chairman explained that a major change in culture at Ford "has been the process of adopting a new way of managing people that fits today's world."

"We are asking that all of our people become 'members of our team' and involve themselves in solving our problems," he said.

Petersen listed four steps required for a corporate culture change to be effective:

□ Management must be committed to a change in the company's culture and must successfully transmit that commitment to all employees.

□ Systems must be simplified and people must be trained in the new systems.

□ New technology must be introduced — where appropriate — to help employees do a better job of producing better products.

□ Society must support an educational system that will prepare people to cope successfully with present and future technological changes.

Petersen noted that problems in the nation's educational system are responsible in part for the failure to meet the international competitive challenge.

"We don't have as good a primary and secondary education system undergirding us as we used to have," he said.

"Competing societies — especially in Asia — have intensified and broadened their educational systems. We simply aren't motivating enough of our young people to enter the hard fields — the technical fields and the sciences."

"Japan is training the troops," he added. "It has an enormous wealth of disciplined, technically trained people who can make tremendous advances in a wide array of fronts where technology needs to be applied."

"All of us," he emphasized, "need to commit to this country's technological future by encouraging and helping young people move into the highly technical, people-oriented business world of the future."

WILLIAM M. HARRAL, director of Arch Associates at 15770 Robinwood Dr. in Northville and vice chairman of the Greater Detroit Section of the American Society for Quality Control, was selected to participate with 64 other quality professionals from the United States, Canada, England and Sweden in the initial Quality Improvement for Services seminar by the Juran Institute.

This premiere presentation in New York was personally conducted by the octogenarian, Dr. J.M. Juran, who has developed many of the contemporary quality control concepts through his efforts beginning in 1924. The seminar focused on quality and productivity techniques in the service, administrative and program management functions.

Although about 80 percent of wage workers worldwide are involved in service functions, quality programs historically have been directed toward manufacturing functions, Harral said.

Participants represented the IRS, public utilities, banks, insurance and brokerage firms, communications, chemicals, hospitals and aerospace companies. Harral was the only American quality consultant accepted for this seminar.

His firm provides full spectrum support for custom quality and productivity program consulting and training through its associate network.

Programs are based primarily on the concepts of Dr. W. Edwards Deming, but utilize some methods developed by Dr. Juran. The two were responsible for directing the Japanese quality efforts through United States sponsorship beginning in 1950.

Harral adds that major companies are developing in-house groups to focus on service-related activities, but the vast majority of organizations today have had no support available until now. He cites poor performance in service functions as the greatest cause of lost profit in America today.

HIGHLAND LUMBER AND BUILDING CENTER, located at 155 Highland Road, is under the new co-ownership of Lyle Morgan and Dave Pilsner. Both men reside in the Howell/Brighton area.

Morgan and Pilsner agree that customer satisfaction is the key ingredient for their new business. Highland Lumber deals in building supplies, hardware, lumber, molding and paint.

McDevitt, a general practitioner, has a private practice in Livonia and is a corporate member of BCBSM.

From 1966 to 1975 he served as a corporate member of Blue Shield of Michigan and director from 1966 to 1974. When the plan merged with Blue Cross in 1975, he became a corporate member of the consolidated BCBSM.

McDevitt has been awarded a plaque for long-term service and expertise to the executive, professional relations, health care delivery and financing committees.

State business leaders optimistic about future, survey says

Business executives in Michigan are optimistic about prospects for their companies in 1986, according to the results of a statewide survey.

"In nearly every significant category — from sales and earnings to hiring and capital expenditures — respondents' views were positive, which is an important barometer for the state's economy," said Joseph Yarabek, a partner with the Michigan practice of Touche Ross.

Nearly 1,100 of the 3,500 business executive surveyed responded to the 1986 Michigan Business Survey conducted by Touche Ross in conjunction with Crain's Detroit Business magazine.

The results compared favorably with the positive results of the 1985 survey.

The optimism of business leaders was reflected in a wide variety of areas:

- 79 percent expect their sales to increase in 1986 with 56 percent of the participants anticipating a six to 15 percent improvement.
- 68 percent expect their net income to increase in 1986 with 69 percent of those anticipating one to 10 percent improvement.

- 61 percent plan to add employees in 1986 with 83 percent of those anticipating increases in the one to 10 percent range.
- 73 percent feel the number of small business start-ups will increase in 1986, but 56 percent felt the number of small business failures would increase in 1986.

Part of the optimism may stem from positive feelings about the nation's economy, according to Yarabek. For example:

- 91 percent feel the inflation rate will be five percent or less one year from now.

- 83 percent believe the prime rate will be 10 percent or below one year from now.
- 70 percent feel the Dow Jones Industrial Average will be at 1800 or above one year from now.

"Despite the positive results in key categories, there are still key problem areas that must be addressed before business executives feel even more comfortable about the long-term outlook for their businesses," Yarabek said. For example:

- Businessmen are most concerned about the cost of liability insurance (26 percent), taxes (19 per- cent) and labor costs (16 percent).

- To improve the state's business climate, the majority feel efforts to reduce worker's compensation costs (86 percent) and changes in the business tax structure (76 percent) are very important.

Legislation and government programs continue to be areas of major interest by businessmen, Yarabek said.

- 75 percent favor the tax bill proposed by the Reagan administration. (The Packwood Proposal had not been released when businessmen were asked the question.)

- 79 percent favor the Gramm-Rudman Balanced Budget Act as a means of controlling the federal deficit.
- If taxes were to be increased, businessmen favor an oil import tax (33 percent) and a value added tax (26 percent) as alternatives.
- 73 percent agree that the function of the Small Business Administration should be transferred to the Commerce Department.

The 1986 survey — the fourth annual census of business leaders' thoughts by Touche Ross — was conducted during April and May.

Vacationers can help to protect belongings

Vacationers should consider an array of inexpensive methods for protecting themselves, their families and their possessions at home and on the road this summer notes the Dictograph Security Information Bureau.

On the home front, the Bureau warns vacationers to:

- Stop newspaper and mail deliveries or have a friend pick them up promptly and regularly; connect lights and radios to timers; and ask a neighbor to mow the lawn — all to give the house a "lived-in" look and sound.
- Install lighting outdoors and deadbolt locks on access doors. Pin the windows shut. Replace old hinges on doors. Insert broomhandles or special lockup bars in the tracks of sliding doors, and consider protecting at least the ground floor doors and windows with a professionally installed alarm system.
- Leave a key and a telephone number where you can be reached with a trusted friend or neighbor. Ask him or her to check the house periodically and notify local police of any problems.
- Avoid publicizing a trip and never talk about vacation plans in public places where you might be overheard by would-be criminals.
- Unplug all appliances to guard against fires or damage from electrical storms and lock tools in the garage or basement.

While away from home, the Bureau suggests that vacationers:

- Be sure to take personal medicines, duplicate prescriptions and spare eyeglasses.
- Put the address at work (not your home address) on luggage so that the location of an empty home is not advertised inadvertently.
- Never leave children or baggage unattended in a hotel and keep valuables locked in the hotel safe.
- Always keep keys, especially room keys, in the same place in your room so you can grab them quickly in the event that an emergency necessitates fast escape.
- In case of fire, never open the room door without checking first to see if the door is hot. If it is, the fire may be just outside. Seal door and window cracks and ventilation grills to prevent smoke from filtering in. Never use elevators, and avoid stairwells if smoke is present.
- Use travellers checks, carry credit cards separate from your wallet. Keep them with you at all times and keep a record of their serial numbers and expiration dates in a safe place.

The Dictograph Security Information Bureau is a public service of Dictograph Security Systems, Inc., of Florham Park, N.J., which has installed nearly one million residential and business security alarm systems since 1946.

Don't just have a garage sale. Take your time to plan it out for maximum exposure and results. We at Sliger-Livingston Publications can help. Here's some tips for a successful garage sale:

- ☐ Place your garage sale with The Green Sheet classified section to reach thousands of households in Northville, Novi, South Lyon, Milford, Brighton and Livingston County. To avoid busy phones or long lines, use the form here and mail it or drop it off with your payment. We have offices in Northville, Milford, South Lyon, Brighton and Howell.
- ☐ When you place your ad with us, don't forget to pick up your free Garage Sale kit. It includes two sale signs, two directional arrows, a garage sale ledger and helpful tips for a successful sale. You must pick up the kit at one of our local offices during regular business hours.
- ☐ If you know any neighbors interested in selling, have a sale together. The more items available for sale, the greater the incentive for customers. Make sure you mark the items according to the seller.
- ☐ Be sure all your merchandise is clean and neat. A dusty old item will not sell as well as a clean old item.
- ☐ Display your merchandise in an interesting manner. For example, sort nails and screws by size and use colorful jars or cans for display.
- ☐ Separate items by category and make signs to hang over each category.
- ☐ Sort clothing and mark with size tickets.
- ☐ Place your merchandise where it can be easily seen. A few items on the lawn can serve as attention-grabbers.
- ☐ Group under-a-dollar items in one area. People will often spend more on several small items than on one big-ticket item.
- ☐ Have plenty of small change on hand for customers paying with large bills.
- ☐ Number each item in the sale and write it on your ledger. Record all transactions and cross off items when they are sold.
- ☐ Offer free coffee, iced tea or other refreshments. Your hospitality may make people more inclined to buy.
- ☐ Be prepared to dicker about the price of any item. Selling at a reduced price is better than not selling at all.
- ☐ Have paper bags, boxes and newspapers on hand for packing items when they are sold.
- ☐ Don't forget the children. They love small, inexpensive items.
- ☐ If you have several items left on the last day of your sale, group them together and offer them as a single package with an attractive price.

Before you hold that garage sale,

Story by Phil Jerome
Photographs by Jerry Zolynsky

A big round of applause, please, for the ladies who can still wear their wedding dresses.

It was just about a month ago that we asked ladies who can still wear the dresses they were married in to give us a call, and the phones starting ringing immediately the next morning.

By the time the ringing came to an end, a total of 36 proud, still svelte, ladies had called to say they could still wear the same dress they wore on their wedding day.

And, more often than not, the callers thanked us for asking.

After all, it is indeed something to be proud of.

Our winner was Gloria Lane of Northville, who was married more than 41 years ago on December 30, 1944. But the competition for a romantic dinner-for-two at the Novi Hilton was close as we also received calls from two more war brides Elaine Cash of New Hudson and Dale Hall of Northville. Mrs. Cash was married February 11, 1946, and Mrs. Hall was married a few months later on May 25, 1946.

Next on the list was Northville's Betty Steeber who was married more than 27 years ago — on May 30, 1959.

Mrs. Lane, who works at The Marquis in Northville, wasn't married in a standard wedding dress. "It was a wedding suit" that I bought at Winkelman's," she recalled. "It was during the war and we didn't have enough money for a real wedding dress, but I can still wear it. I'm still a size 6. And I can still wear the prom dress I wore back in 1942, too."

Mrs. Lane and her husband, Walter, were high school sweethearts. They started dating when she was 15. They were married in Detroit while Walter was on a 10-day furlough. "We had our honeymoon night at the Book Cadillac in Detroit, which was really the ultimate back in those days," she recalls. "But we only had enough money to stay one night, plus Walter had to report back for duty, so it was a very short honeymoon."

Her secret for staying thin? Mrs. Lane admits that she has never had a weight problem. "I weighed 110 pounds when we got married and I don't weigh much more than that today," she says.

"But I do try to take care of myself. We watch what we eat and do our exercises at home."

Mrs. Cash knew her wedding dress still fit even before we asked the question. She had tried it on to show her children on her 40th anniversary — February 22. She bought the dress for $50 at Ray's Bridal Salon in Detroit by saving 50-cent pieces while her husband, James, was away fighting the war. "We had known each other all our lives," she reports. "We only lived a few miles apart."

Mrs. Cash says she is fortunate to have never had a problem with weight. "When I was younger I had to try to gain weight," she says. "I still weigh 110 pounds today."

Elaine Cash of New Hudson (near and far left) knew her wedding dress fit even before we asked. Never one to have a problem with weight, Mrs. Cash and her husband, James, were married in 1946. Another 1946 bride, Dale Hall of Northville, was not available for a current photograph. Betty Steeber of Northville (above and right) actually weighs less today than on her wedding day in 1959, when she married husband Jim.

Manheimers visit her penpal in Wales

By JEAN DAY

A friendship that flourished for 44 years through letters between two pen pals led in 1984 to the visit of Beti Evans of Cardiff, Wales, with Enid Manheimer at her King's Mill home. Last month Enid and her husband, Gus Manheimer, paid an exchange visit to Wales and England.

One of the many highlights of the three-week visit was having tea at the Ritz in London with their hostess. In fact, the Manheimers enjoyed "all those wonderful teas!"

"They were so great to us," Gus Manheimer reports, mentioning that four different receptions were held in their honor in Wales. One was at the University of Cardiff where they met staff co-workers of their hostess.

The last four days of their visit was in London where the Manheimers celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary at a typical Welsh restaurant Beti had found. They viewed the rehearsal of the trooping of the colors for the queen's birthday, and also took a boat trip to Hampton Court.

The visit was a nostalgic one for Gus Manheimer who was stationed in Wales at Porthcawl during World War II. The trip included visits to the Cotswolds and to Devon as well as a day spent at Combemartin near the Bristol Channel.

Berenice Ellis is packing for a move west

By last week Berenice Ellis had everything but kitchen equipment in her King's Mill home packed ready for a move to Arizona. She has sold her cooperative and has purchased a condo in Phoenix.

Ellis, who began the Bookstall on the Main in 1973 and operated it for 13 years before its recent sale, explains that the move will take her close to her brother, also widowed, and her sister, who is alone, too. "We're all single," she says, "and have had such good times on my visits." Ellis, who had lived in Northville for 17 years, says she really is returning to the west as she came to Michigan 33 years ago from Oregon.

She admits that the thing she won't miss is the snow.

The annual Northville Community Chamber of Commerce golf outing being held this Saturday has been named the Walt Ellis Memorial Golf Outing in honor of Berenice Ellis' late husband who helped with the event for many years.

Artist David Barr's work is in the book

An acrylic on masonite work by Northville sculptor/painter David Barr is one of 14 selected for publication in a unique address book published by Concerned Citizens for the Arts in Michigan.

Recently published as a fundraiser for CCAM, a non-profit citizens' advocacy organization, is available for $10. CCAM was created in 1983 to "heighten awareness and to increase support for the arts in Michigan through advocacy, research, education and communication." Executive director Marilyn Wheaton, 350 Madison, Suite 503, Detroit, may be contacted about the book.

Barr's Napier Road home has become a traffic stopper as he has several of his sculptures on view on the property. The angular piece near his pool is his work, "Narcissus."

October wedding date set

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wissman of Northville announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol, to John Marshall Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Marshall of Jackson, Mich.

The bride-to-be is a 1981 graduate of Northville High School and a 1985 graduate of Michigan State University's School of Business with a major in materials and logistics management. She presently is employed as a buyer for Marine Construction Division of McDermott Inc. in Morgan City, La. Her fiancé also is a 1985 graduate of Michigan State University. He holds a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering and is employed by Texas Instrument in Dallas. An October wedding is planned.

The Northville Business and Professional Women's Club announces that Mary Margaret Dayton of Northville has been chosen to receive its Bea Carlson Womanhood Award.

The recipient of the award named for a founder of the club who was a city council member and active worker in beautification will be honored by the club at its annual picnic Monday, June 23, at the Union Lake home of Elizabeth LaMoreaux, club president for 1985-87.

The grant is made to a woman, who is a Northville resident or has a Northville mailing address, who will begin, resume or upgrade her educational preparation for her career.

Dayton currently is employed at Electronic Data Services in Redford in the computer department. She helps solve user software problems. Basic skills in keylining are needed; therefore, she is returning to school for specialized courses.

Her goal, the club reports, is to become a commercial artist, specifically an illustrator. She has been accepted for admission to the Center for Creative Studies, School of Art and Design in Detroit. She holds a B.A. degree in modern languages from Oakland University and an associate degree in computer science from Schoolcraft College.

Feeling Secure in an Emergency

Last year, more than 75,000 residents in Washtenaw and western Wayne counties chose Catherine McAuley Health Center when they had an emergency. The St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Emergency Department and McAuley Urgent Care clinics provided the excellent care people needed in life-threatening and minor emergencies.

Minor Emergency Care Close to Home

Catherine McAuley Health Center's excellent care is now more convenient because it's closer to home. McAuley Urgent Care handles non-life threatening emergencies at any of its three locations:
Arbor Health Building—
990 West Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth
Maple Health Building—501 North Maple Road, on the west side of Ann Arbor
Catherine McAuley Health Center campus—5305 East Huron River Drive

McAuley Urgent Care—open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day of the year—is ready to treat minor emergencies and illnesses when your physician can't be available. And all of the McAuley Urgent Care facilities can access the St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Emergency Department if necessary.

Highly Qualified Emergency Medicine

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital's Emergency staff is one of the most highly qualified in the United States. Although nationally only one in seven emergency physicians is board certified in this critical specialty, all nine of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital's full-time emergency physicians are board certified. These specialized physicians are able to treat life-threatening emergencies like strokes, heart attacks or serious auto accidents. Our Emergency staff handled more than 42,000 emergencies last year alone.

For more information on St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Emergency and Urgent Care services, please call 572-5351. For a physician referral, please call 572-5500.

Hartshorne-LaChance vows recited

Dee LaChance and Kevin Hartshorne exchanged marriage vows and rings in a 2 p.m. ceremony May 17 at St. Paul's on the Lake in Grosse Pointe Farms.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert LaChance of Grosse Pointe Farms. The bridegroom, who currently is serving as president of the Northville Jaycees, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hartshorne of 1031 Grace Court.

Father Terry Langley performed the service in which readings were given by the bridegroom's father and by the bride's sister, Peg Dickelman. The ceremony included a trumpet solo.

The bride's gown of ivory satin was styled with an oval neckline which dipped into a slight V in back and pushed leg-o-mutton sleeves. The bodice was adorned with lace and bead-work. The illusion veil was fingertip length.

The gardenia bridal bouquet was interspersed with white roses stephanotis and ivy.

The bride wore a single strand of pearls that had belonged to her late mother.

Martha Gordon of Canton was matron of honor in a dusty rose gown with short, puffed sleeves and neckline similar to the gown worn by the bride. Rose Basler, sister of the bride, and Debbie Lemere were bridesmaids in pale pink gowns matching the matron of honor's. They carried cascading arrangements of roses, carnations and baby's-breath.

Bryan Hartshorne was best man. Ushers were Neal Hartshorne and Bill Kelly.

Nicholas Pittman was ring bearer and Amy Basler served as flower girl.

A reception followed for 150 guests at the Novi Hilton. Guests included the bridegroom's nine year old nephew from Tennessee and the bride's aunt and cousins from Philadelphia.

After a two-week wedding trip to California, the newlyweds are making their home at 256 Griswold.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School. She attended Western Michigan University and currently is employed with the C.A. Muer Corp.

The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of Northville High School. He attended Schoolcraft College and was graduated from Michigan State University in 1978.

Brides of past still fit their gowns

"Someone who has to work to stay thin could be prouder to still fit into their wedding dress, but I'm still proud that I can wear it. I put it on for our 40th anniversary because I wanted to show my children that it still fits.

"My husband put on the jacket from the uniform he was married in," she adds. "He hasn't gained any weight either."

Mrs. Hall wasn't available for a current photo, but said she's in better shape today than she was when she was married. "I swim 125 laps of the pool three times per week so I'm bigger today across the shoulders," she notes. "The dress still fits, but it's a bit snug around the shoulders and the rib cage because of the swimming."

A native of Vancouver, British Columbia, Mrs. Hall met her husband, George, on a blind date. He was stationed in Seattle with the U.S. Coast Guard at the time.

"He proposed on our very first date," she recalls. "I just laughed at him and told him he was crazy. He says he fell in love with me the first time he saw me and has been in love ever since.

"We had our first date August 18, 1945, and I finally agreed to marry him November 2. My mother would come along as a chaperone when I went down to Seattle to see him; she was very strict about those things. We were married May 25, 1946. Most of our romance was by mail. He wrote me a letter every day. I got 287 letters from him while we were courting. He wrote me every day no matter where he was stationed."

Her secrets for staying slim? In addition to the swimming, Mrs. Hall says she watches her diet, eating chicken, fish and vegetables and avoiding starchy foods.

Unlike the three ladies married more than 40 years, Mrs. Steeber has waged a lifelong battle against weight. "When I was 14 I weighed 180 pounds and decided I had better do something about it," she says. "I've been losing weight ever since."

She weighed about 140 pounds when she was married to her husband, Jim, and is down to a svelte 125 pounds on a 5'6" frame today. "My wedding dress is loose," she notes proudly. "If I ever wore it again I'd have to have it taken in."

Her secrets for staying slim includes a regular schedule of exercise. "I try to run five miles every day, or at least every other day," she reports. "I enjoy running and have programmed it into my life. Every time I run a mile, I say 'there goes another 100 calories.'"

Those were the ladies in our little contest who've been married longest, but there were 32 others who've taken good care of themselves over the years and can boast proudly of still being able to wear the dresses they were married in.

Couple wed in Mill Race Village

Mill Race Historical Village in Northville was the setting for the marriage of Michelle Ann Whittaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne T. Whittaker of Goodrich, to John Anthony Byrd May 16.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Byrd of 20196 Whipple Drive.

Dr. Nile Harper of First Presbyterian Church of Northville officiated at the 4 p.m. double-ring ceremony. The couple lit a symbolic unity candle during the service in which Tami Parish sang "On the Wings of Love" and "Greatest Love of All."

The bride's cathedral-length gown of ivory satin and Venise lace was fashioned with a scoop neckline and long sleeves. She carried a cascading bouquet of ivory and pink silk roses.

Kristine Kruger of Goodrich was honor attendant. Alma Gordon was bridesmaid. They wore light pink taffeta gowns in off-shoulder design and carried silk flowers.

Shannon Mehlberg was flower girl. Conen Burkhardt was best man. Ushers were Michael Whittaker and Bob LeTart.

After a wedding trip to Toronto, where they stayed at the Sheraton Centre, the newlyweds are living in the Village Apartments in Wixom.

The couple met on a lunch date while both worked at Electronic Data Systems. The bride is a 1985 graduate of Pontiac Business Institute.

The bridegroom is employed with the U.S. Dept. of Labor, office of pension and welfare benefit programs. He is a graduate of Lawrence Institute of Technology.

This year's Sliger/Livingston East All-Area Baseball Team may be our most talented ever. This area has produced some top-notch individuals in the past, but never before has the squad been so stacked.

From top to bottom, this contingent is without a real weakness. The pitchers are strong, the hitters are incredible and the defense is solid.

Four of the area's five teams enjoyed a great deal of success this spring. Lakeland led the way by winning the KVC championship, Northville was a step behind by placing second in the WLAA, and South Lyon and Novi both displayed the abilities to whip any team in the state on a given day.

Experience has played a major role in the success of our players this season. Most of the big names, with the exception of Novi pitcher Jeff Tanderys, are seniors.

What all of this adds up to is a well-tuned squad which could compete with any of its peers around the state. So, without further delay, here's a look at our all-stars.

FIRST TEAM

JEFF TANDERYS, Novi, pitcher: Many could make a good argument for Tanderys as the Kensington Valley Conference's top all-around athlete. He was a unanimous All-KVC selection in both football (as a quarterback) and baseball. But it was on the pitching mound that Tanderys really turned all heads — including pro scouts like Houston's Hal Newhouser. For the season, the junior fireballer led the Wildcats and the KVC in most every pitching statistic. His 89 strikeouts and just 20 walks in 51 innings is nothing short of phenomenal and his 1.23 earned run average and 6-2 record are nothing to sneeze at either. "Even when Jeff is having an off day and not getting his curve over, he is still an incredible pitcher," Novi Coach Gar Frantz said. "Anybody who can throw 90-miles per hour and has the control he has is going to get a lot of attention." Tanderys, at his present rate of improvement, will likely be one of the top senior hurlers in the state next season, but his hitting prowess often is overlooked. Tanderys led the Wildcats in runs batted in (18) for the third consecutive season and belted out a team-leading four homers.

GERRY PERRETT, Lakeland, pitcher: This senior southpaw showed promise late in his junior season and then blossomed into one of the Kensington Valley Conference's top hurlers this spring. Perrett won seven of 11 decisions and recorded a 2.86 ERA and 40 strikeouts in 66 innings of work. "Left-handers can be awfully tough once they learn to pitch, and that's what happened to Gerry," LHS coach Jerry Ganzel said. "He moves the ball around very well, but most importantly, he was confident on the mound." Perrett also was productive with the bat, posting a .306 average in 49 at-bats. His fielding percentage was .928.

MARK OLSEN, Northville, Catcher: This senior didn't see much action last season but burst on the scene in '86 to be the area's top catcher. Not only was Olsen as solid as a rock behind the plate, he was one of the main spearheads of the Mustang attack. Whenever Northville was in the middle of a big inning (which was often), Olsen was sure to be involved. As a fielder, Olsen handled over 140 chances and compiled a very impressive .986 fielding average. At the plate he hit .377 with an on-base percentage of .485 and smacked two homers, four doubles and 19 key RBIs. "Prior to the season, we didn't know how strong we'd be at catcher, but Mark had a great season," Mustang Coach Bob Frellick said. "After a few games, we knew we didn't have to worry about him — he was solid all the way around."

Mustang baseball team places coach, 3 players on team

PAUL NEWITT, Northville, Infield: If you've ever watched Northville's football, baseball or basketball squads in action this season, then you know Newitt. He is the one always hustling and giving every ounce of energy into his play. And not coincidentally, Newitt always seems to excel regardless of the sport. Baseball may be the sport he exhibits the most natural talent and his performance all during the '86 season only confirms this. The senior led the team in batting (.426), on-base percentage (.594), runs batted in (19) and doubles (6). Newitt also clobbered a pair of homers and was an excellent fielding firstbaseman (.964 fielder). "Newitt is just a super kid," Frellick pointed out. "I mean he is a very talented ballplayer, but he is also a leader and a guy who shows a good example. Nobody puts out more effort than Paul Newitt."

STEVE SHANKEL, Novi, Infield: The 6-foot-5 senior was the catalyst for Novi both offensively and defensively. Shankel is that rare type of ballplayer who can either crack a game-winning hit in a pressure-cooker situation at the plate, or make a diving circus catch to save a game in the field. He led the team in runs scored (16), triples, stolen bases (14) and total bases (37), but it was often times the intangibles that made Shankel so valuable. Like a game-saving, over-the-shoulder snag that knocked Brighton out of district play. Bulldog Coach Mark Carrow is still having a hard time believing Shankel caught that one. "Steve's been doing things like that all season long for us," Frantz said. "He's in a class by himself." Shankel hit .367 on the year with 14 RBIs and a .493 on-base percentage. But it was against league competition, when it counted the most, that Shankel really shone. In 12 KVC games, he batted .444 (.571 on base percentage), belted in nine runs and four doubles.

DARRYL NOREN, Lakeland, Infielder: When it comes to statistics, this senior second baseman matches any player in the state of Michigan. Noren hit a blistering .545 (48-for-88) with five doubles, four triples, 13 home runs, 39 runs, 57 RBIs and 211 total bases. He also posted a 4-0 pitching record and 2.06 ERA in 44 innings. "He could play at almost any college he wants to," LHS coach Jerry Ganzel said. "He's got all the tools. I would have to say he's the best offensive player I've ever coached." In three years at Lakeland, Noren recorded a .487 average, 21 homers and 101 RBIs. He holds single-season school records for hits, home runs, runs scored, RBIs, total bases and batting average. He's also a solid defensive player, posting a .931 percentage in 1986.

AARON PISHALSKI, South Lyon, Infielder: This senior second baseman led the Lions with 35 hits, five triples, 27 RBIs and five pitching victories. "He's been our leader all year," SLHS coach Ron Shanks said. "He's a consistent player...very reliable in the clutch. And he's also one of our best defensive players." Pishalski's other offensive statistics include a .389 batting average, 24 runs, six doubles, two home runs and only seven strikeouts in 103 plate appearances. While pitching, he was 5-2 with a 3.60 ERA.

KEITH DUTKIEWICZ, Northville, Outfield: The Mustang senior is of small stature but is a giant on the baseball field. Dutkiewicz came through with an excellent season in '86 and was honored as an All-Conference first team selection in the Western Lakes Activities Association — considered one of the finest baseball leagues in the state. "Keith really came on strong with his hitting, and he has a great arm for an outfielder," Frellick said. "He certainly had an outstanding season." Dutkiewicz proved to be a power hitter who could also get the key base hits when the need arose. He batted .421 with an on-base percentage of .590 and knocked in 16 runs, three triples, three doubles and three homers. His 24 hits led the team, and he scored 20 runs. From leftfield, Dutkiewicz had a solid .951 fielding percentage.

MARK HODGES, South Lyon, outfielder: "Mark is the most pure talent on our team," Lion coach Ron Shanks said. "He's definitely a college prospect." Hodges, a senior center fielder, hit .349 (30-for-86) with five doubles, four triples, one home run, 33 runs, 19 RBIs, 22 walks and 29 stolen bases. "Mark makes things happen for us," Shanks added. "He can run, hit and he's an excellent defensive player. He's got all the tools." Hodges also posted a .974 fielding percentage, committing just one error in 31 games.

JEFF HOORN, South Lyon, outfielder: A .392 batting average, a .500-plus on-base percentage, 16 walks and 12 stolen bases highlight this senior right fielder's credentials. "Jeff's one of those quiet contributors," Lion coach Ron Shanks said. "Sometimes you don't even notice him, but then you look in the books and he's 3-for-4 with a couple RBIs." Hoorn, basically a slap hitter, also had two doubles, two triples, 15 RBIs and 23 runs.

MIKE BOBBISH, Novi, Designated Hitter: The KVC's top DH is also the area's top DH. The Wildcat junior was used almost exclusively as either a pinch hitter or a designated hitter, and either way, Bobbish seemed to deliver. "One time I brought (Mike) off the bench to pinch hit for (Jeff) Tanderys and that opened some eyes," Frantz related. "Mike knew his role and seemed to do the job for us every time."

Bobbish had a fine .363 batting average but led the team by getting on base over 51-percent of the time he came to bat. In just 33 at bats during the season, Bobbish had one home run, and a dozen RBIs. In league play, his numbers jumped to a .388 batting average and an incredible .592 on base percentage. Translated it means that Bobbish recorded a hit nearly four times and reached base nearly six times for every 10 at bats.

Frellick picked as top coach

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville baseball Coach Bob Frellick thinks of himself as just another baseball fan.

Over the years he paid close attention to all aspects of "America's favorite pastime" and today he has a rock-solid high school program and has been very influential and active in making the Northville Junior Baseball League one of the areas best.

"In the beginning, coaching baseball was a way to get away from the pressures of work," Frellick said. "I just want to do what I can with the development of the kids. I still enjoy it — I think it's good for me. Even though it's become very time consuming, I like to work with the kids."

Frellick, in just his second season at the helm of high school varsity program, led the Mustangs to a 14-8 overall record and a runner-up finish in the 12-team Western Lakes Activities Association. But the highlight of the '86 season was an impressive 8-2 mark against Western Division opponents good enough for a share of the Division title with Livonia Franklin.

"To be honest, I think we have one of the top baseball programs in the area," Frellick said. "From the high school stand point on down to the little leagues. A lot of the development you see at the high school level is the result of an awful lot of hard work in the community programs."

Frellick has been named the Sliger-Livinston East Newspapers Coach of the Year for 1986 for the outstanding job he's done with the Mustangs and the entire Northville baseball system and as with most coaches, Frellick credits his players for the strong season.

"I had just a great bunch this year, what else can I say," Frellick explained. "They were a cohesive group that seemed to jell together and work well together. That makes coaching a team very easy and enjoyable."

Frellick's coached baseball at various levels since his college days. In the early 60s, he helped coach a Connie Mack team in Livonia before Northville had its own little league program. When his family moved to Indiana and then to Ohio for business reasons, Frellick was very much involved in the baseball programs there. While in Cincinnati, he was instrumental in starting a program on the northwest side of town for 14 and 15 year olds. After three years there, Frellick moved his family back to Northville.

"A few years after we got back in 1975, I got involved in starting the Junior Baseball Leagues here and I've been involved ever since," Frellick said.

By 1982, he was named the junior varsity Coach for the Mustangs and the following two seasons he moved up as assistant to head coach Fred Holdsworth. In '85 Frellick took over for the retiring Holdsworth and led Northville to a 10-10 overall record, and a respectable second in the division and third in the conference.

"That's why I'm sure the kids felt good about what we accomplished this year," he said. "This was basically the same group of kids as last year and they really progressed."

Growing up in the Boston Massachusetts area, Frellick watched a lot of games at Fenway Park and played a lot of baseball on the playgrounds. Unfortunately, organized leagues weren't around then so he had to pick everything up they way most baseball fans do.

"Through the years of watching the game, both in person and on television, I learned the game," Frellick admitted. "I've also learned from other coaches, from going to clinics. But basically, it was just like anybody else."

All those years of exposure to the game has given Frellick a very focused and direct philosophy on how to teach others.

"I try to teach any players I coach the basic fundamentals of the sport but I also try to teach the kids something about life," Frellick pointed out. "Primarily because most of the kids who play baseball only play until they are 13 or 14. A smaller percentage go onto high school and an even smaller portion go on from there. All these kids seem to have a goal or dream to make it to the big leagues but the odds are very thin. Therefore, I think it's important to teach them other things besides just baseball."

Frellick said that through baseball, it's easier for youngsters to learn some valuable aspects of life — like teamwork, sportsmanship and dedication.

"That's why I feel that this season was so strong," he stated. "When you have 20 guys on a team your going to have different personalities. If they can learn at this age to deal with each other, it will go a long way for their total development."

Frellick is also a firm believer in positive thinking. And when he says that the win-loss record isn't anywhere near the top of his priority list — believe it.

"I really think we've been blessed in this community with very knowledgeable baseball people for years."

League Line

BASEBALL: Pirates continue to roll

G-LEAGUE: The Padres ripped the Angels 12-5 on June 2 behind the hitting of Clay Cutchins. He went 2-for-2 with a walk while Doug Marzewski and Danny Walsh paced the Padres with line fielding. The Pirates nipped the Astros 8-7 on June 3 Steve Carter went 3-for-3 and drove in two runs for the Padres. Jim O'Doherty recorded the win with four strike outs in three innings. The Expos batted out 15 hits and 17 runs on June 3 to bomb the Angels 17-6. The Expos scored at least two runs in all five innings. Josh Weigand was 3-for-3 including a three-run triple. The Braves evened their record at 2-2 with a 13-8 victory over the Mets on June 3. Chris Heaton provided the offensive power (3-for-4), and John Garr grabbed the win on the mound. The Astros, leading 6-1 after two innings, scored five runs in both the third and fourth innings to blow it open and coast to a 16-4 triumph over the Giants on June 4. Tim Petrosky, Adam Fisher and Kevin Rosinski all had more than one hit for the winners. The Padres scored nine runs in the first two innings and added another eight in the last to whip the Braves 21-4 on June 4. George Smoyer had a great day belting out two homers, a triple and a double for the Padres. Kevin Shaw added a grand slam.

The Pirates continued to roll with an 11-5 win over the Reds on June 5. Steve Carter, Matt Osiecki, Brad Demoracki and Kara McNeil each had two hits for the Pirates. The Pirates used 10 hits in downing the Angels 8-5 on June 5 and up their record to 6-1. Brad Demoracki hit a homer and struck out five of six batters to end the game and record the save. Mike Matthews has three hits for the winners. The Angels scored three runs in the last inning to tie it up and then pushed the winning run across the plate in the seventh to pull out an 11-10 win on June 6. Brandon Dalziel was 3-for-3 including a home run for the Giants. The Padres scored all four of their runs in the fourth inning and it stood up in a 4-2 victory over the Astros on June 6. A grand slam by George Smoyer was the difference for the Padres in this defensive battle. The Padres scored in all but one inning en route to an 8-2 triumph over the Mets on June 7. Chris Sheppard had a pair of hits and Eric Shaw scored three times for the Padres.

H-LEAGUE: Despite falling behind by seven runs in the early going, the Expos fought back to win an exciting 12-11 contest in extra innings. John Buser turned in an outstanding pitching and hitting performance for the Expos. The Reds beat the Dodgers 9-4 behind the pitching of Ross Fleming. Leading the Reds' attack was Jeremy Johnson and Greg Meehan, who each had three hits. Ryan Smallwood and Aaron Suda were standouts on defense. The Expos came back from a 3-0 deficit, but it wasn't enough as the Rangers topped them 6-4 on May 30. Andy Genitt, Ken Rebolz and Matt Popov pitched well for the Expos. The Rangers' infielders played an outstanding defensive game as well. The Phillies blanked the Braves 3-0 on May 29. Brad Smith and Scott Anderson combined for the shut out and allowed just one hit. Andy LaPase knocked in all three Phillies runs. The Cubs trounced the Expos 13-0 on June 5. Good solid pitching, hitting and defense were just too much for the Expos to overcome. But the Expos rebounded with a line 9-6 win over the Reds later that day. Chuck Sweeney and Andy Genitt both pitched well. The hitting stars were Sweeney, Genitt, Eric Gustaf and Matt Popov. A three-run homer by Steven Moore propelled the Reds past the Pirates 3-1. John Wilds and Ross Fleming pitched well for the Reds. The Reds clobbered the Rangers 15-5 behind some fine relief pitching by Ryan Smallwood. Jeremy Johnson paced the attack with four hits

Mike Hillier's two goals were enough to salvage a 2-2 for United. Steve Yezeback, the United goalie, only let Lakes No. 1 score twice. The Hot Spurs tied Lakes No. 2 4-4. Walt Wit-trick had the hat trick and Jim Burkowski added another goal for the Spurs.

Maureen Monroe and Kris Fortenberry each had two hits for the winners. The Gems scored a total of nine runs in the second through fourth innings to pin a 9-1 loss to the Liberties on June 4. The Liberties edged out the Travelers 14-12 in a high scoring affair on June 9. Mandy Hoover drove in four runs and Heather Saldy added three RBIs for the Liberties.

GIRLS PRIMARY: The Sunbirds got by the Liberties 5-3 on June 3. Emily Shauls and Julie Belanger combined to drive in four of the Sunbirds' five runs. Karen Pump was the winning pitcher. Endometriosis Relief Endometriosis is a painful condition of the reproductive organs of women. The name endometriosis relates to the endometrium — the tissue lining the walls of the uterus. It is believed that endometriosis occurs when fragments of this lining material become implanted at various sites in the pelvic cavity. The implanted fragments form new tissue each month and then go through a shedding process similar to that of the normal menstrual cycle. Blood from the fragments has no way to leave the body. Consequently, there is internal bleeding, pain, cramping and inflammation.

According to a recent report in the FDA Consumer, the number of American women who suffer from this condition may be as high as 5 million. It is estimated that almost one-third of all reported cases of infertility may be associated with endometriosis.

One of the few drugs that has shown to be somewhat effective against this condition is an agent called danazol, a synthetic male hormone capable of shrinking the implanted endometrial fragments, thus decreasing pain, cramping, and other symptoms. Some reports indicate that symptoms may recur, however, within 8 to 12 months after the hormone is discontinued.

Dominique, Craig top second team

Chris Dominique

The Sliger-Livingston East All-Area Second Team could be our most talented ever as well. With the large number of top-notch players, in a normal season, many of these players would have made the first team.

Here's a closer look at the team:

CHRIS DOMINIQUE, Northville, Pitcher: Dominique was one of the steadiest pitchers in the area. He wasn't flashy, but always went out and got the job done. His 3-2 record isn't outstanding, but his 2.80 earned run average was tops on the fine Mustang pitching staff. Dominique only fanned 36 batters, but he did it in just 35 innings. That's an average of 1.02 strike outs per inning.

TONY CRAIG, Northville, Pitcher: Craig was the second member of Northville's fine pitching trio, and the senior came away with a solid season on the mound as well. His 4-1 record tied for the best on the Mustang staff, with the single loss coming against tough Westland John Glenn — a team ranked as high as number three in the state this past season. Craig had a fine 2.88 ERA, struck out 28 batters in 29 innings, walked just 16 and had one save.

TONY MANCINELLI, South Lyon, catcher: Despite being only 5'9" in height and weighing 155 pounds, this senior packs a lot of punch. Mancinelli led the Lions with three home runs and seven doubles, was second in RBIs with 22 and third in triples with three. "Tony was tough all the way around," SLHS coach Ron Shanks said. "His defense was really impressive. He made only four errors all year." Mancinelli hit .317 and struck out only nine times in 111 plate appearances.

KEVIN ALEXANDER, Lakeland, infielder: A first-team selection last season, this senior shortstop was hampered by a foot injury in 1985 and missed nine games. Nonetheless, he still managed a .375 batting average with two home runs, five doubles and 17 RBIs. "The injury really hurt him," LHS coach Jerry Ganzel said. "And even when he got back from it, he had to play hurt for a while. He still had a good year and a good career."

DARIN DAUGARD, South Lyon, infielder: This 6'3", 210-pound senior was a big surprise for the Lions. He hit a team-high .417 while registering three doubles, one triple, one home run, 15 runs and 15 RBIs. "Darin started coming around late last year, and it kind of carried over," Lion coach Ron Shanks said. "He takes a big swing and that leads to some strikeouts (17), but his hits always seem to find a hole."

MARK FRANCIS, Lakeland, infielder: "A steady ball player" is how Eagle coach Jerry Ganzel described this 6'3" senior first baseman. Francis hit .316 (31-for-98) with eight doubles, two home runs, 20 runs and 24 RBIs. He also recorded a .943 fielding percentage. "Mark makes good contact with the ball and his defense was solid," Ganzel added. "Plus, he was probably our most powerful pitcher."

BRENT HEPPNER, South Lyon, infielder: This senior shortstop missed 10 games this spring, but still managed to post some impressive numbers. Heppner, a first-team selection on the all-area football and basketball teams, hit .349 with three extra-base hits, 10 runs, 19 RBIs and nine stolen bases. "Brent obviously is a talented athlete," Lion coach Ron Shanks said. "Being out early in the year hurt him, though."

GREG GIORGIO, Novi, Outfield: It took Giorgio a few games in the early part of the season to get his hitting on track but, once he did, the senior was without a doubt one of the best pure hitters around. He ended with a .396 average on the season (.462 on-base percentage), but against KVC opponents, Giorgio ripped a league-leading 14 hits in 26 at bats for a .538 average. "When you hit .538 in the KVC, with all the great pitchers that are in the league, you're saying something," Frantz said.

PAUL SPRANITIS, Novi, Outfield: The senior speedster is the ideal leadoff hitter: He has a great eye at the plate, is a good contact hitter and has speed to burn. Spranitis led Novi in walks (17), doubles (4) and was second in stolen bases (10) and runs scored (15). He was so dangerous because of a knack for getting on base. His on base percentage was down nearly 100 points from last season, and yet it was still a very impressive .457. In 62 at bats, Spranitis averaged .306 including nine RBIs (for a lead off hitter). "Spranitis is a blur on the base paths," Frantz said.

TIM VERKERKE, Milford, outfielder: This senior left fielder hit .340 with five doubles, four triples, one home run and 12 RBIs. The highlight of his season came in a single game against Lakeland May 23 when he recorded three hits, including a three-run homer, and five RBIs. "We put Tim in a new position this year," MHS coach Art Majeske said. "He ended up pitching a little anyway, but the move paid off."

TONY LASECKI, Lakeland, designated hitter: Getting on base was this junior's specialty. He hit a respectable .300 (21-for-70), but his main contribution was 30 walks. "Tony's a very hard worker... very aggressive," Eagle coach Jerry Ganzel said. "He was the ideal lead-off man for us, especially with the power we had in the middle of our line-up." Lasecki, who played second base when Darryl Noren pitched, also scored 29 runs.

Holzer moves into 1st, only for a few days

Tom Holzer Ford ended play last week with a loss to Livonia Adray, but earlier in the week the Northville entry swept a doubleheader and actually tied for first place in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

Holzer bombed Ann Arbor Wendys twice by scores of 7-0 and 15-11 on June 8 and grabbed a temporary tie at the top of the standings with a 5-2 mark.

In the opener, starter Chris Stout and reliever Chris Dominique combined for a three-hit shut out.

"This was the best pitching we've ever had at this level," co-coach Fred Schmidt said.

In the nightcap, Holzer fought from behind all the way, came back three times and finally pulled out a very un-routine win in eight innings.

Road work

While many work on the road, Ben Tasich works in the parking lot.

Tasich is quotable
the way fish are floatable.

Benjamin, who was retired in Racine, Wis., and stated the fact that I have a number of shoes in my house and refuse to allow them out of my house," said Ben Benjamin, whose face grew cold at the statement.

Tatch is the hyperkinetic owner of Rac-tation Unlimited, a tennis and running store at Five Mile and Newburgh in Livonia.

He has been an assistant principal in the Vashanti public schools and a championship tennis player; he is talkative, energetic, introspective and opinionated.

And him a question, any question, then sit back as his discourse hops in and out of parentheses, bounces tangentially from here to there and maybe back again, and touches on such diverse subjects as newspaper mergers, post school philosophies in Massachusetts, the state of retailing, politics in public school education, the history of the capitalists' struggle against Tito in Yugoslavia during World War II and the latest New Balance running shoe.

Tasich

TASICH IS quotable the way fish are floatable:

"Detroit is the Beirut of retailing: a free-fire zone."

Or, "How can a (censored) or a (censored) sell shoes so cheaply and make money? 'Cause they cheat. There is more and more dishonesty in the trade. They're selling closeouts, irregularities and seconds and not telling the consumer. How often have I had a sales rep come in and say, 'Hey, I've got some seconds for you. You want 'em? You can make $10 more on a pair.'"

Or, "I can make a more lasting contribution as an educator than as a seller of sneakers and stringer of racquets. But I can make more money selling sneakers and stringing racquets. I guess you can say I sold out."

Tasich came to this country in 1952, when he was 11. His father, Nikola, who owned several meat-packing plants in Yugoslavia, unsuccessfully fought the Communists, then fled to Italy after World War II. He eventually emigrated to the United States and summoned his family, from whom he'd been separated since 1940.

TASICH WAS so naive, so cut off from the world in eastern Europe, that when he landed in Boston and saw a black man in the airport, he thought he must have been taken to Africa by mistake.

Though his father was a capitalist, Tasich got into retailing almost as an afterthought. He began teaching at Ferndale in 1966 and taught tennis at the Livonia Y in his spare time.

He began moonlighting merchandise out of his home, becoming successful enough for his wife, Patricia, to suggest he open a store. He did, in 1979, and three years later took the plunge completely and retired from teaching.

Ben Tasich strings a racquet in his Racquets Unlimited store in Livonia.

He had known his days in education were numbered, anyway, he says, when he was ordered not to suspend a girl caught with drugs because her father was an Ypsi school board member.

"I got out because I couldn't play political games," explained Tasich. "I hated making decisions that were politically sound and educationally bankrupt."

JUST AFTER his tennis store opened, the tennis boom became the tennis whisper. Courts that had been full became empty overnight. Cracks formed in the asphalt; weeds grew. Racquets sat unused in closets, playthings for spiders.

Tasich did the smart thing: He expanded into the running market, where sales quickly peaked and are, he says, off 25 percent the last two years, another boom busted.

These days, Ben is in turmoil. Should he sell the business? Should he expand? Should he franchise? Should he go back to teaching? Should he do that deal with WCAR for a live broadcast from his store?

"I'm kind of at the crossroads. On the one hand, I'm 45 and I'm doing what I want. On the other, I'm almost as old as Tom Monaghan and don't have anywhere near his kind of money. Seriously, I'm excited. It's time to make some changes."

A BIG CHANGE was dropping his racing team, which was highly successful the last three years in terms of wins, and an utter bust in terms of business generated. At $5,000 a year, the team was more for his ego than his bottom line, Tasich decided.

Instead, he has decided to become a runner himself. "I'm walking three miles a day and it's killing me," he said. "But this is a promise: By the end of the summer Ben Tasich will have run his first three-mile road race."

(Though he has yet to run a race, he is at them all the time, passing out flyers and meeting would-be customers. "You only get a response of half a percent on the flyers," he explained, "but that's half a percent I didn't have the day before.")

A bigger change is the realization that he had to stop pushing his younger daughter, Becky, so hard at tennis. "I realized I was gaining a tennis star but losing a daughter. It's got to be her needs that are fulfilled and not her dad's. And you don't know how hard that is for me to say."

Becky, 16, was All-Catholic as a sophomore for Farmington Mercy last fall, and has been ranked in the midwest. Though she will continue on the Mercy team, she cut back on her tournaments, took up skiing and put her racquet in the closet for the winter.

"It was killing me," said Tasich. "People were no longer coming up to me saying, 'Your daughter the great tennis player, how is she doing?'"

— Tom Henderson

On the run

The loneliness of the long-distance runner is unknown to many recent newcomers to road racing. What once used to be a solitary sport is no longer. Races, once rare, are seemingly ubiquitous. The state motto soon may be: If you seek a pleasant race, look about you.

Every weekend there is at least one race, and often three or four, in the metropolitan area. They range in size from the 20,000-plus extravaganzas of Emily Hall to fun runs drawing 90 or 100. The courses can be as short as a mile, as long as 26.2. They come level, over hills, on dirt, concrete or blacktop. They start in the morning and finish with yogurt, and start at night and finish with pizza and kegs of beer. Always they include men and women, young and old, fast and slow.

The following is a listing of some area races of interest. A few of the best outstate races are also included. Race fees vary, as do entry deadlines, starting times and what's included (from T-shirts and all you can eat and drink to nothing at all). For a complete listing of upcoming races — some runners even plan their vacations around interesting resort-locations runs — look for Michigan Runner magazine, a monthly available at many newstands:

Backpacking

Sweet sounds, sweeter sights

'I've never packed up and left. I've always stuck it out. In olden days, people lived out of doors and had to deal with it.'

Doris Sherwood heads out with a heavy load and a light heart.

ficionados call it paradise. Detractors call it crazy. 'Most everybody else calls it backpacking.

Torrents of rain turn a dusty uphill trail into a slippery stream of water. Hot sun and sandy soil twist legs into rubber.

Bugs bite, nights turn cold, canteens run dry. Food gets scarce. Loads dig into the shoulders and back.

Quickly becoming one of the most popular outdoor pursuits in the country, backpacking is attracting thousands of Americans to the nearest woods to test their endurance and skill against the best, or maybe worst, of what nature has to offer.

Backpackers are becoming known as one of the staunchest bands of adventurers in this age of fitness and triathlons.

Doris Sherwood counts herself among that group.

What may seem to others like hassle and pain is part of the reward for these necessarily hardy athletes. But unlike some of the other individual endurance sports, backpacking has an added bonus.

The sight of a hidden waterfall or a boggy glen or a snowclad mountain top or a misty lake doesn't come easy — but at the end of every well-planned trail, the reward lies.

"It's all part of the adventure, the good and the bad," says the 47-year-old Rochester Hills resident.

"I've never packed up and left. I've always stuck it out. It's all part of the adventure. In olden days, people lived out of doors and had to deal with it," she says.

"The payoff," adds Sherwood, "is when you get to see something few people get to see."

Backpacking became a major focus of her life 12 years ago, after divorce interrupted her life. Since that time she has hiked many of the most challenging and beautiful trails in North America.

Now it has become a major building block in keeping her family together.

One day years ago she took her four children — Phillip, Valerie, Richard and David — on a trip into the Great Smoky Mountains in Tennessee. That trip gave a new direction to their lives.

Her love of the outdoors has carried over to three of her children.

Valerie, 22, is an avid rock climber, canoeist and sailor. She studies recreational therapy at Michigan State University.

Richard, 19, is studying wildlife management at Michigan State University.

David, 15, spent a chunk of last summer in Virginia's Shenandoah National Park.

Working as a psychologist for Lutheran Social Services in Detroit, she often vacations in the White Mountains in New Hampshire or on Isle Royale National Park in Lake Superior or on the Bruce Trail in Canada.

Rejecting comfortable motels, she opts for a tent along wilderness trails.

And while close proximity to nature can make a hike tantalizing, heaven can easily turn into a hellish experience.

A "real back country" hike near the Tennessee-North Carolina border brings back such memories.

The first night out was great. They listened to the rustling of foxes and the rushing of a nearby brook. They felt they were next door to heaven.

The next night, heaven changed to misery.

After hiking into a "murky, trashy, dark campsite" the adventure began.

"After supper, we heard the crunch, crunch of a bear in a bush. We jumped up and ran down the trail, tooting a whistle. My daughter fell. The kids started to cry. We were scared and didn't know if we should go back or go to a ranger station."

Deciding it was too dark to hike out, the group made a fire hoping to keep away the bears. They bedded down for the evening.

"About 1 a.m. it started to storm. It rained till 4 a.m. We had to set up the tents, dragging the wet sleeping bags into them.

"Everything got wet."

The next morning their fear of bear was replaced by a boar.

"We were hiking down the trail when we met a black boar. By that time, nothing fazed me. The boar didn't scare us. Later on, the ranger told us we had nothing to fear from the bear — it was the boar that we should have been worried about."

Neither bears nor boars nor bugs ever kept the Sherwoods from returning to the wilderness. "We all liked the adventure," says Sherwood.

To backpackers, hypothermia is a more realistic fear than an attack by wild animals.

If not countered by dry, warm clothes, it can kill.

Wet clothes and cold weather drain heat

Trail hints

The road to the wilderness begins with physical fitness.

The quickest way to make sure you'll never do it again is to put heavy shoes on your feet, 30 pounds on your back and take off for a week's worth of hiking without first being in good physical shape.

- Walk, swim, jog or find some other exercise to strengthen your heart and lungs before you put on a backpack.

- Put off buying new gear until you go on a weekend trip and know for sure backpacking is something for you. For that first weekend trip, borrow gear from friends or rent it from local outfitters.

- Roughing it is fun, but pamper your feet. Correctly fitted hiking boots are a must. They should be "broken in" around the house or on subdivision streets long before they ever see a trail. If you wear a new pair of hiking boots on your first outing, your feet will scream for mercy. Boots absorb the extra weight of a backpack and cushion ankles and delicate toes against jutting rocks and hidden stumps.

- Shop around for your equipment. You don't have to be a millionaire to get the proper equipment. On the other hand, employees at the speciality stores can give you some helpful hints on what is and isn't the best kind of equipment for you.

- Hitching up with a local group is a great idea. Experienced backpackers love to talk about — and show off — their lightweight gear. From them, you'll get a good idea what works and what doesn't.

Group backpacking has another bonus. The cooking gear — stoves, food, pots and fuel — is split among the hikers. Dividing the gear takes some of the load off your back and gives you some trailside camaraderie as well.

Two local backpacking groups that sponsor day trips, weekenders and lengthy outings are American Youth Hostels, 3024 Coolidge, Berkley, and the Sierra Club, Mackinac Chapter, 590 Hollister Building, Lansing.

Starting the dinner fire.

In the woods

away from the body. This exposure can lead to chills, drowsiness, irrationality and even unconsciousness.

Sherwood had a near bout with hypothermia on a 4-H outing. She had been canoeing through a damp, cold drizzle.

"The group became immobilized. Several people were on the verge of hypothermia. We just stood around in the cold, doing nothing, instead of putting up our tents. It could have been very serious. We finally got into our tents and into some dry clothing."

Despite days of "unremitting rain and cold," Sherwood has never cut a trip short because of bad weather.

The Sherwood clan has backpacked four times in the Smokies, in North Carolina's Linville Gorge, in Canada's Algonquin Provincial Park, three times on Isle Royale, on Mount Desert in Maine and twice in Shenandoah National Park.

With friends, she's climbed down the Grand Canyon in Arizona, up the White Mountains, hiked the North Country Trail in the Upper Peninsula and backpacked the remote Pukaskwa Provincial Park in Canada.

She puts Isle Royale on the top of her "must return to" list because of the island's all-around beauty and wildlife.

"I'd like to go back to each one because each has a beauty all its own. But the scenery is spectacular, gorgeous on Isle Royale. Moose and wolves call at night. The birds are tame."

"There, you can gorge yourself on berries in the summer. And it's well patrolled. There's enough people that if you have problems, there's someone to help you."

As do most backpackers, Sherwood has stories to tell.

his summer, some ice cream lovers will go gaga over Goo Goo — Goo Goo Cluster, that is, a new flavor made by Stroh Ice Cream.

Others will scream for Guernsey Farm Dairy's new Creme De Novi.

And others may settle for nothing less than a heavenly DoveBar.

But for many, it may be hard trying to select a favorite in a market reflecting an unprecedented effort by makers of the frozen delight to come up with new concepts, varieties and flavors.

The peak ice cream sales months are April through June, so to help you decide what your dip will be, some of the hot new ices were surveyed.

The ice cream novelty segment, which includes fruit juice bars, ice cream sticks, sandwiches, pudding, and other single-serving items, is one of the fastest-growing segments in the ice cream industry.

Into this previously kid-oriented domain, the DoveBar last year descended on national markets in a cloud of mouth-watering glory that would appeal to any discerning adult.

Featuring a chunk of premium, all natural ice-cream on a stick, and covered with a hand-dipped coating of bittersweet chocolate, the DoveBar successfully spans the super premium and novelty ice cream segments.

Made by DoveBar International Inc., in Burr Ridge, Ill., the DoveBar comes in three flavors — vanilla, chocolate and coffee. The ice cream has 14.5 percent butterfat, while most ice-cream has 10 percent, but some say the ice cream is only the chaser to the thick chocolate shell.

The taste is so rich, they could easily be served as the grand finale to a gourmet meal — but it may take more than one sitting to finish one.

Although they have taken the market by storm, the "incredible DoveBar" — which also sells at an incredible price, $1.50 to $2 per six-ounce bar — is not new.

They were, in fact, invented in 1956 by Leo Stefanos, proprietor of the Dove Candies and Ice Cream Shops in Chicago. For years, they were enjoyed at country clubs and sold to gourmet shops in the area.

It was only in 1985, with the formation of DoveBar International, that they were distributed on a wider scale, and national distribution is expected to be completed this summer. Now, some 100,000 are churned out daily.

M-melt in your mouth

Gone are the days when ice cream was anemic. Savor its decadent richness.

Those who love Dove will probably also be delighted with the soon-to-be-introduced Dove Delight. Advertised as "an exquisite ice cream confection" it is the same ice cream and chocolate shell, minus the stick, and combined with a dessert wafer. They will be available in raspberry, peppermint and caramel flavors.

"It's one of the few ice-creams in the ice cream freezer that is not a 'kid's item,'" said Seymour Greenstein, president of Golden Valley Dairy in Oak Park, which distributes some 20 ice cream products, including the DoveBar.

Other new novelty ice creams are Bon Bons, by Carnation, which are ice cream nuggets with chocolate flavored coating, and Kraft Polar Bars, which are ice cream squares checkered with vanilla, strawberry and vanilla chocolate combinations.

Also soon to be introduced are Tofutti Love Drops, according to Greenstein. These non-dairy, tofubased frozen snacks will come in vanilla, cappuccino and chocolate. Tofutti contains no cholesterol or lactose.

Greenstein guesses that they will all do well, based on his observations over 21 years in the ice-cream business. During that time, he said, the biggest change he has seen is that "People are willing to spend money on interesting new products."

Another change he has seen is the demand for premium ice creams.

"When I started out, ice cream was only sold on price — how low can you sell it," he said. The result was low quality, air pumped ice cream, full of additives. "Ice cream had become anemic," he said.

Now, his top three sellers are the premium Breyers and Haagen-Dazs brands, and DoveBars.

Premium ice creams have a high percentage of butterfat. By law, ice cream must contain 10 percent butterfat for vanilla, 8 percent for chocolate — a minimum common to low-price store brands.

However, a high butterfat content does not necessarily mean it will taste better than a lower butterfat variety.

Premiums also contain less air, and use only natural ingredients, such as vanilla beans, real chocolate, fresh fruits and liqueurs.

Breyers is coming out with no new flavors this year, said Greenstein, but is introducing a cellophane wrapped package, which will prevent air from seeping in.

Haagen-Dazs remains the top of the line for many.

Cappuccino is the newest of the 30 Haagen-Dazs flavors.

Another new Haagen-Dazs item is the $1.45 Ice Cream Bar. These chocolate, coffee or vanilla ice cream bars are hand-dipped in dark or imported Belgian chocolate, and smothered

The bars will soon be introduced in food stores, along with the pint sizes already available.

The most esoteric of all the ices distributed by Greenstein, he said, is the classy, California-made Tres Chocolate.

The concoction invites the question, "Is it chocolate, or is it ice cream?"

Either way, it should put chocophiles in ecstasy. Made like a fine candy, the eight flavors include Chocolate Raspberry, Chocolate Decadence and Chocolate Chocolate Chunk, which blends bittersweet chocolate ice cream with hunks of dark, bittersweet chocolate.

Ice cream parlors have also responded to demands for new tastes and textures.

Baskin Robbins Ice Cream Company, the world's largest franchised ice cream operation with 2,500 stores worldwide, has just introduced "the International Creams," "following a worldwide expedition" to find original recipes.

The collection, boasting 16 percent butterfat, includes two liqueur-based ice creams, made for "increasingly sophisticated palates."

The flavors are Chocolate Raspberry Truffle (England), Grand Marnier (France), Almond Amaretto (Italy) and Cappuccino Chip (Italy).

The Almond Amaretto has .98 percent alcohol, the Grand Marnier, 1.7 percent.

By producing the Grand Marnier flavor, which features pieces of mandarin oranges soaked in the liqueur, the company becomes one of the world's largest consumers of Grand Marnier.

While Baskin Robbins went worldwide to find their flavors, some delicious and original recipes are being made right around the block at local ice cream makers.

The classy Tres Chocolate invites the question, "Is it chocolate, or is it ice cream? Either way it should put chocophiles in ecstasy.

For instance, the Ice Cream Division of Stroh Brewery in Detroit recently concocted Goo Goo Cluster — a chocolate flavor with marshmallows, chocolate covered peanuts and a caramel candy — and the new Chocolate Eclair.

Like other ice cream makers, it will rotate those flavors, which are among 40 made by the company, on a monthly basis.

The Stroh Ice Cream Division was started in 1919, and helped to subsidize the company during Prohibition.

If liqueur ice creams are a hit at Baskin Robbins, can a Stroh Beer ice cream be far behind?

At the Novi-based Guernsey Farms Dairy, a flavor made at the request of the city manager, and then named in a local contest, has just been introduced.

Called Creme de Novi, the mint flavored ice cream blends the flavor used in Mohawk Creme de Menthe, made by Mohawk Liqueur Corp., with a premium vanilla base and chocolate chips.

The family-owned Guernsey Farms Dairy was founded by John McGuire in 1940. His son, Marty McGuire, conceived of and produced the flavor.

Guernsey sells its approximate 50 flavors at their location, where customers line up every weekend to scoop up 82-cent dips. It is also available at many Detroit area outlets.

Another area ice cream-maker, Cloverdale Farms Dairy in Plymouth, now has a new pistachio flavor available, according to plant manager Jim Tomlinson.

Cloverdale makes about 40 flavors, all premium and all natural, he said.

Who can pass up the all-American Dairy Queen on a hot day? There, the new product is called The Blizzard.

Similar to a thick milkshake, the treat blends a choice of goodies together with a traditional soft-serve vanilla DQ ice cream. Made in a special "Blizzard" machine, it is served in a cup, and eaten with a spoon.

Blizzards may be made with popular snacks like Oreo cookies, Heath Bars, and M&Ms. A Peanut Buster features cold fudge and Spanish peanuts.

The fresh fruit blizzards include Banana Pudding, which glops together vanilla wafers and fresh bananas.

Tasting all the ice cream options available — and there are hundreds more — should pave the way for a delicious summer adventure — unless, of course, the whole subject leaves you cold.

Brothers to start didn't count. Neither did the family reunions.

But, PACE declares, this is the year of the romantic picnic. Want to melt a lover's heart? Want to turn a friend into a lover? Need a proper setting to pop the magic question? Then southeastern Michigan is the place for you.

Lakes and parks are more abundant here than any metropolitan area you're likely to find. There are forests, streams, rivers, lakes and flowering hillsides; there is an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables and ethnic eateries with tasty, fresh food to go; there are wonderful inexpensive wines and plenty of local experts to help you select them.

With a minimum of effort and a modicum of money, the sensuous delights of the romantic picnic can be yours. A $100 dinner at the best restaurant in town won't impress a date as much as a picnic with a little planning. And if it will, get another date.

What will you need? A blanket that will stand up to grass stains and food crumbs. You can get one cheap at garage sales or army surplus stores, and one will last for a lifetime of picnics. A corkscrew and glasses for the wine. A real picnic basket (a plastic Playmate is great for Pine Knob but we're talking romance here). Plastic utensils, paper plates and napkins. Good food. A great spot.

If you want the romance, but none of the work, let the Merchant of Vino take care of it for you. For $50, they'll even loan you the basket festooned with ribbons and will fill it with food guaranteed to warm the heart of a mummy.

What will you and a date get for the $50? A recent picnic basket purchased by PACE included a wonderful Chardonnay made with grapes grown and bottled in the Leelenau Peninsula near Traverse City; a cheese and fruit course that included fresh stem strawberries and seedless green grapes; a fruit salad with watermelon, peaches, apricots, grapes, strawberries and dried cherries; chicken Carolina salad with grilled chicken marinated with herb de provence, sliced grapes, pecans, shallots and baby pita bread; pasta primavera with a wide assortment of fresh vegetables and spinach pies; homemade chocolate chip cookies, pecan tortes, French bread, California sandwich rolls and fresh mint.

Or you can assemble a fresh fruit and veggie basket at:

- Windmill Fruit Market, on Plymouth in Livonia

- Paul's on Six Mile in Redford; or get Middle Eastern at the Majestic Market on Lahser in Southfield;

- Jewish deli food at Star Deli on 12 Mile in Southfield or the Stage Deli on Orchard Lake in West Bloomfield;

- ribs and chicken at the Boneyard on Telegraph near Warren in Dearborn Heights, the Boneyard No. 2 on Orchard Lake in Farmington Hills or Mitch's at Cass Lake and Elizabeth near Pontiac.

Whatever your taste, there's a place to fill it in metropolitan Detroit, from Chaldean to Pakistani to Scottish to good old hot dogs and beans.

And there's a good, inexpensive wine to go with each dinner. How about a sparkling zinfandel with a gorgeous peach color, a $5 bargain that goes wonderfully with ribs and chicken? Or a Weinstock kosher savignon blanc ($5.99) to accompany the deli food? Whatever your food, there's a proper summer wine.

Bon appetit.

Summer time: It's what we waited for and fantasized about through those horrible winter months, gray day after gray day almost making us forget that trees and sky and sun would again mix their glorious colors in endless combinations as warm breezes ruffle the flowers of June, July and August.

Summer time: long days, vacations and picnics.

Ah, picnics. Maybe the sweetest time of all.

Not the family picnics, with Cousin Harry's brats fighting the day away, and Uncle Joe burning the chicken again because no one dares tell him he always uses too much charcoal, and the family softball game that leaves you hobbled for weeks. No, not those, which are fine in their own way, but magical picnics, the kind spent with one special person, in a special place, the two of you alone with good food and fine summer wine, romance thick in the air, as thick as the smoke from Joe's barbecue, but sweet and invigorating.

Romantic picnics seemed to fall out of fashion for a while.

If God were a golfer, he'd tee off in Michigan

TRAVERSE CITY — Golfers here can be excused for high scores. Not only are the courses challenging, but the views are so spectacular that who can blame you for not concentrating completely on that little white ball?

There are two dozen golf courses here in the north woods, most of them carved into forests, with doglegs twisting around stands of hardwood, early morning mist rising from creeks, brook trout hovering in the shade of icy pools, cherry orchards blossoming in spring and glowing deep red in early summer, hills and ravines and views that take your breath and leave it on the next elevated green.

Woodpeckers tat-tat and doves coo as you pause before a tee shot — no respectful silence here. Deer rustle in the rough, dancing out of sight over dried leaves as you walk down the fairway. Sun sparkles through leaves, shining out of intensely blue sky and clear air, cities far from thought and far away.

There are courses here as pretty as any in the world. And as tough. But until recently they were some of Michigan's best-kept secrets. Golf? That was just something the ski resorts did so they wouldn't have to lay their employess off in the summer. It was an afterthought to the lucrative winter season, and nothing more.

All that has changed. Five years ago, if you'd asked a writer or an editor for one of the national golf magazines for his impressions of Michigan, he or she may have said "Oakland Hills." Or something like: "Concrete" or "factories." Now, they're likely to say "The Bear" or "The Legend." They came, they saw, they were conquered by the beauty of the area, as a casual reading of the golf literature over the last year shows.

From Boomer Martin, former president of the Golf Writers of America, to Leonard Scandur, retired travel editor of the New York Daily News, to well-known golf photographer Brian Morgan, the praise has been effusive.

"If a golfer dies and can't go to heaven, he or she has an alternative — a golfers' paradise in northwest Michigan," writes Scandur.

Two people who share much of the responsibility for the growing national awareness of the area are an engineer who had a passion for golf, and a promoter who had grown tired of peddling wax.

Doug Paul of Lathrup Village is the engineer, a golf nut who decided to promote northern golf when no one could help him arrange a vacation.

Dave Richards of Plymouth is the promoter and public relations man, a go-getter who sold skis 50 hours a week while going to college full time and who quit a good job as regional sales manager for Johnson's Wax in 1984 because he was bored. They are two key pieces in the public relations machine that is helping to boost the area golf business to record levels.

They have dubbed the area the "Northern Michigan Gold Coast" and are determined the name should fit. They are also determined to see that another of their slogans fits, as well: Michigan will, they say, become "a summer golf destination." It seems a natural to them and it seems a natural sitting out in the middle of such incredibly beautiful courses as "The Legend" in Belleair, Schuss Mountain or the new "Monument" at Boyne Mountain. Of course, golfers will pay good money to flock here once the word gets out.

Hilton Head, watch out. Myrtle Beach, move over.

But what seems natural, now, didn't always seem a natural, or even remotely possible. In 1980, when Paul decided to begin packaging golf vacations to northern Michigan, the idea of marketing the area as a whole — of a bunch of individual courses ending their fierce competition to unite in a promotional campaign — was a remote possibility, at best.

Things began modestly. Paul, who came up with the concept, a variation on his hobby of arranging golf vacations for his buddies. He and his partners, Ron Butkovich and a silent partner, began doing business with the courses in 1981. Their company — Professionally Arranged Golf — booked 300 rounds of golf that summer, or about $7,500 worth. "That's like one full Saturday," said Paul.

Paul is a 47-year-old Detroit-area native who just ended a 23-year stint at Ford to take an engineering position with Depor Industries, a firm specializing in anti-corrosion applications and processes, which is soon moving its headquarters to Birmingham. He is president of PAR, but draws no salary for his weekend and evening work.

Philip O'Niel III mans his post.

"I froze. I fought off hypothermia. It was like you see in those movies with the waves crashing over you." One ship sank, five lost masts, 93 quit.

Six-to-eight-foot seas battered the 35-foot Natalie J. Every turn was a collision with a wall of water.

The 1985 Port Huron to Mackinac race was turning into a fight against the worst weather in the race's 61 years.

"The wind was constantly on our nose," said Philip O'Niel Jr., owner and helmsman of the racing sailboat.

"We started a run for Duck's Island about 11 p.m. We saw the green light. We checked the Loran and it said to stay on course. We checked the depth sounder and advised to make a turn. We tried to stay as far north as possible."

John Barker, mainsail crewman:

"We didn't have a radio on and didn't know people were dropping out. It just seemed this was a hell of a storm."

Equally unaware of how serious the situation was becoming was the race chairman, Philip O'Niel III.

The forecast had been for moderate to light winds, fair sailing. While his father and the other seven crew members battled Lake Huron, O'Niel III watched the storm on Mackinac Island and waited for word.

"I waited for a call to find out how serious it was. On the island we have no idea what's going on on the course. If you drop out, you're obliged to tell the race committee," O'Niel III said. "I got one call from a 50-foot boat about 10 o'clock and that was all."

Back on the Natalie J., the pounding of the storm and waves was making crew members sick and cold.

"I froze. I fought off hypothermia," said Barker. "It was like you see in those movies with the waves crashing over you."

David Otenberger, the 14-year-old junior member of the crew, became violently ill and had to be given pills to sleep.

The toll of that Saturday night was great. The Tomahawk sank, though all crew members safely made it to shore on life rafts. There were five dismastings.

The fatigue of fighting fierce winds, cold and wet wore down crew after crew. Every port along the way took in race boats. A total of 93 boats were forced to drop out.

As the calls came in, O'Niel III still hadn't heard from his father. The Natalie J. was still out, of course. It was coming into Mackinac Island a winner, first in its class for the second year in a row.

O'Niel is a Beverly Hills resident who owns a beer distributorship with his son, Greg, in Dowagiac and a real estate business with offices in Farmington Hills and Livonia.

That boat trip was the start of an avocation that would bring O'Niel's family together in pursuit of sailing excellence.

The following spring O'Niel bought a 26-foot

Can the sport

Dale Hughes checks off a young rider's lap during the Wolverine 200.

Dale Hughes was out of college, armed with a business degree and heading into the economic recession of the early '70s. He had been rejected by several prospective employers and had little idea what he wanted to do.

He visited his sister who was attending school in Germany and discovered a sport, a business and a way of life.

"We were touring in a VW bus, living on the $5 a day book on the Riviera in Nice, France," Hughes said. "It was the middle of the day, a beautiful sunny day on the Mediterranean. Suddenly, traffic stopped. Everyone got out of their cars and walked a block and a half over to the Mediterranean. I was panicking, I didn't know what was going on. We walked over with everyone else, we couldn't go anywhere.

"I saw motorcycles, cars, TV vans and then this pack of bike racers coming down a mountain into the city. The people were cheering for their favorites as they sped by. Then they got back into their cars. I thought wow, wait till they find out about this back in the States."

This was the Tour de France, a 21-day road race around France that draws hundreds of thousands of spectators along the roads and 25 million on worldwide television.

When Hughes returned home he and a friend opened a bicycle shop in Rochester. Eventually Hughes sold the bicycle shop and pursued his interest in racing as a promoter of professional and amateur races. He is on the executive committee and secretary of the U.S. Cycling Federation.

Hughes is promoting a Tour de Michigan. This year the tour features five races over five days. Next year, Hughes wants to tie in the tour with Michigan's sesquicentennial and make it a promotional venture throughout the state.

"I'm trying to create a major tourist attraction like the Tour de France," Hughes said.

Hughes predicts that in the next few years bicycling will become a major minor sport on the level of golf and tennis. He foresees a time when every major city will have a cycling team as European cities do.

"Bicycling has all the elements to make it a major minor sport — speed, an element of danger, strategy and the venue for racing is always different. There are different kinds of racing and each race has its own uniqueness to it like the Grand Prix," Hughes said.

Bicycling has a built-in audience. The physical fitness enthusiasm of recent years has made bicycling the second most popular participatory activity in the country after swimming and number one among women. Seventy-two million Americans cycle. It is also the second most popular spectator sport worldwide after soccer.

"It has the tradition of baseball and a few other sports. From 1900 to the 1920s, bicycling was a major sport in the United States with a pro circuit of indoor bike racing. In 1928 Jimmy Walthour had qualified for the Olympic team and a professional league approached him to turn pro. He turned pro for $100,000 for five years," Hughes said.

The advent of the Model T and other inexpensive automobiles changed bicycling from a necessary adult activity and preoccupation to a means of transportation for children. The trend is changing back and now the majority of bicycle sales are in adult bicycles.

The Tour de Michigan for 1986 runs July 23-27. The event offers $15,000 in prize money. On July 23 a 25 mile time trial will be run on Hines Drive. A road race covering 65 to 75 miles will be run from Lansing to Brighton on July 24. Criteriums, races around half to three-quarter mile outdoor tracks, will be run July 25-27 in Detroit's Greektown, Troy and Wyandotte. The races are open to professionals and amateurs from novice to experienced.

For 1987 Hughes is proposing a program of two time trials, five road races and six criteriums over nine days.

The tour will begin in Marquette and include races covering Sault Ste. Marie to St. Ignace, Mackinac Island, Mackinac Bridge, Cheboygan to Traverse City, Muskegon to Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo to Battle Creek, Lansing, Lansing to Ann Arbor, Greektown, Wyandotte and Troy. Hughes wants to include exhibitions on Michigan commerce, classic auto displays, charity tricycle races and Business has grown steadily. PAR expects to book as many as 10,000 rounds this summer, with an expected volume of at least $500,000. To accompany that growth, PAR branched out from strictly arranging trips to actually becoming a marketing agent for the area. It wasn't easily accomplished, with the brunt of the dirty work going to Richards, a 28-year-old graduate of Plymouth Salem who spent the winter of '84-85 up north in a frustrating series of meetings and pleadings trying to convince the various owners to agree to a joint-marketing plan.

Richards had been familiar with Traverse City, having been going to the family cottage there since he was a baby. When he quit his selling job in '84, he headed north to see if he could find a marketing position with one of the resorts. A friend of a friend told him about PAR. "Paul and I worked out a deal: 'Go up north and work for four months; we won't pay you but it'll be great in the future,'" said Richards, laughing at the memory. "And that's what I did. I started making the personal contacts. It was a little rough in the beginning.

"Getting them all together and getting them to agree was probably the hardest thing we've ever had to do," he added. "It took four months to get them to sit down in a meeting room together, of constant, every day going from one to the other, back and forth just to get them to agree to sit down and talk about maybe doing it. Even though they may only have been 10 minutes apart, many of them didn't know each other. They'd never even met."

"We were like referees," said Paul. "We were presenting the concept and everyone was sitting back, and not only were they listening to what we had to say, they were watching each other . . . When it comes to pass that Michigan assumes its place as a summer golf destination, and maybe even as an international golf destination, we'll look back and say that the toughest thing to do was to get them to accept the fact that there were other golf courses up there, and it was to their advantage to market the area."

A total of 15 courses and seven resorts decided to form the Northern Michigan Golf Council and hire PAR as their marketing agent. Small ads began appearing in the national golf magazines; promotional money was spent to bring in golf and travel writers to see what was there; the state kicked in with $11,000 in grant money for brochures.

From humble beginnings, PAR has begun hitting eagles and aces. The golf writers went bananas. Not only was the scenery all you could imagine, the courses were as billed, too. Jack Nicklaus' course, "The Bear" at Grand Traverse Resort in Acme is regarded as world class by those who know; though named "The Legend" before it even opened last summer, Arnold Palmer's course at Shanty Creek is an incredible collection of sights worthy of the name and is a wondrous string of holes snaking around the ravines and slopes on the back side of the mountainous hill overlooking Bellaire Lake; Robert Trent Jones' Heather Course at Boyne Highlands has been rated by Golf Digest as one of the top 100 courses in the country the last 11 years; and the unknown courses match them for beauty and difficulty.

The publicity has helped lead to increased awareness of the state and increased support from it. Legislative approval of a $300,000 grant for promotion this summer was considered a formality at press time, well up from the modest $11,000 of a year ago, with $950,000 in grants planned for next summer.

Why the dramatic increase in funds? Because it makes sense financially. Golfers have wonderful demographics. They make money and they spend lots of it on their hobby. That's why TV networks clamor to broadcast golf though the ratings are tiny. That's why Myrtle Beach, S.C., has grown in 20 years from a little place on the beach with a couple of decent golf courses to a mecca for golfers.

PAR studied Myrtle Beach in depth. What Paul and Richards found out made it easy to sell the resort owners and the state on an idea whose idea had come: United we boom, divided summer remains merely what separates ski seasons.

For example: In 1967 there were nine hotels and 10 courses in Myrtle Beach. Today, there are 38 courses, 40,000 rental units and 180,000 golfers generating $94 million in greens fees, cart rentals and lodging.

"Last year in Myrtle Beach, 5,000 condominiums were sold at an average of $100,000, and 90 percent of that was sold to out-of-staters," said Paul, who projects that within five to seven years, golf in northern Michigan will be an $83 million-a-year business.

What makes PAR's pitch to out-of-state golfers so attractive are several factors. One, it's too hot in Myrtle Beach and Hilton Head in the summer; their boom times are spring and fall, which means they aren't in competition with Michigan courses. Two, the Golf Foundation and Golf Digest estimate that 10 percent of all golfers are willing, even eager, to take golf vacations. Three, according to PAR figures, 21 percent of the golfers in the country live in Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, within 500 miles of the so-called Gold Coast, and 45 percent of the golfers who go to Myrtle Beach are from that five-state area.

The facts, figures and persistence of Paul and Richards finally swayed Bill Siebenthaler, a crusty, retired newspaperman who owns a course hardly any have heard of but who all should see and play.

Siebenthaler owns a beautiful, though unknown, course known as "A-Ga-Ming," an Indian term meaning beside the water. Siebenthaler's course is on a hillside overlooking Torch Lake and the toughest part of playing it is taking your eye off the scenery to play a shot.

While the green fees at "The Bear" are $75 and are $50 at "The Legend," you can play nine holes at A-Ga-Ming for $9 or play all 18 for $16. Water comes into play on 11 of the 18 holes, nine of which have just been completed for this season. Siebenthaler once owned a newspaper in Ohio, the Xenia Daily Gazette, that won a Pulitzer for reporting. If there was a Pulitzer for building pretty golf courses, he'd be in the running for that, too. When he wants to move a green, he's likely to be in the machine moving the dirt. "I know, now, how an artist feels," he said on a golf-cart tour of his baby.

He's got a jewel and he knows it. He long resisted the idea he needed help to market it. Finally, to his surprise, he decided to hook up with PAR for this season.

"I was the toughest nut they ever cracked," he said, taking a break from supervising the crew putting in a new tee area on one of the holes. "I wasn't going to join. No way. But they convinced me that they had something that could help us. I still haven't told Chick (Harbert, a former PGA star and his pro). He's still against it. But they're sending us a lot of tee times already, and that's business we wouldn't have, otherwise."

(There are nine resorts and 19 courses under the PAR umbrella. Members of the Golf Council pay PAR a sliding fee depending on how many courses they control and whether there are lodging facilities.)

"When they first came in, I was pretty unimpressed," said Siebenthaler. "We had a pretty good thing going here. Well, every time they came back, they were more professional. And I give a lot of credit to their persistence. There were just very good side benefits for us all. Each of us singly couldn't afford the national magazines, for one thing."

Colleen Bagley is marketing director of Grand Traverse Resort. With the June opening of its 15-story tower, Grand Traverse has 767 rental units and is the largest resort in the Midwest. Once in severe financial difficulties, the resort has resumed monthly payments of $144,000 on its mortgage and business is booming on the 850 acres, with home-site and condo sales projected at $8 million to $9 million for '86. Bagley expects 250,000 guests this year with gross revenues, excluding real estate sales, of $18 million.

"You've really got to give PAR credit," said Bagley. "They got us together and that never happened before. It was hard. There were a lot of hard-headed individuals who had to be reined in. And what made it tougher was that we didn't know who they were or what their game was. Dave Richards was a novice in PR. All of us were suspicious."

"Now, with a year under our belt, I'd be surprised if everyone was not real pleased. I have been. The impact from a business standpoint hasn't been huge, yet, but they're trying to break new ground geographically and that takes time. They've expanded the awareness a great deal and the business will follow."

Bagley guessed that the out-of-state share of Grand Traverse's golf business has risen from 10-15 percent a few years ago to 25 percent today. "And it's going up all the time," she said.

Asked to describe the PAR team, Bagley said: "Dave is enthusiastic. Very enthusiastic. He's learning the business real quick. He works hard at it and he cares, he really cares. Doug is an idea guy. Very enterprising. He's the kind of guy you walk up to him and you'll walk away with five new assignments. So you avoid him at cocktails."

"We've been waiting a long time to be discovered. The plan is to have the entire nation be aware of us and that is not an insurmountable goal. We're well on the way toward that."

Currently PAR is in the second year of a five-year contract with the Golf Council. "Are we getting our money's worth? I think so. I really do. But don't tell them I said that," said Bagley, breaking into laughter.

So, business is up, PAR's clients on the Golf Council seem happy, even the weather's been good. The only thing wrong is there's no time to play golf, and it's an addiction for golf that got Paul into this in the first place.

"The only time I can play now is when I'm on vacation," said Paul. "The weekends I'm always tied up with PAR."

He describes himself as "an avid golfer, not a good golfer. PAR began as a product of my own frustration in setting up golf trips. Being an avid golfer, I played different courses. In the winter we'd go to Florida, in the spring we'd go to Myrtle Beach and in the summer, we'd go up to northern Michigan. We'd been doing it for years and it always bothered me I had to make the arrangements myself. There was nobody I could call up and say, 'Hey, I want to take a golf trip. Here's where I want to go.' I'd go to a travel agent and it was apparent they knew less than I did. We got so good at it, we figured: 'Why not do it and make a little on the side, too?'"

They are still trying to make the little on the side. All the money is being plowed back into PAR, which has yet to show a profit. But the principals feel a profit is just around the next dogleg. Meanwhile, the staff at the Dearborn headquarters has grown from one part-timer to six full-timers and four part-timers.

"We started passing out flyers at pro shops," said Paul. "Our only employee was a charming old lady who didn't know anything about golf. We did our best business when we had the recorder on and she couldn't screw up."

For information on course and resort locations, or to book a golf vacation, call PAR at 562-2533. PAR represents 19 courses and nine resorts; geographically, they range from McGuire's resort near Cadillac in the south, to Garland north of Vucerne in the east, to Boyne Highlands near Harbor Springs in the north, to Crystal Mountain near Thompsonville in the west.

cruiser for casual sailing. The next year, casual sailing gave way to racing and the purchase of the 35-foot boat that would win three Port Huron to Mackinac races.

"When you have a hobby of this sort, you stay away from the shrinks," O'Niel Jr. said.

The Natalie J. was named for O'Niel's wife. "This is a family operation or it won't be successful. The wives have to be enthusiastic about it," O'Niel said. After racing to Mackinac, the O'Niels set off for easy cruising on the North Channel.

Philip O'Niel III of Beverly Hills, who has a dental practice in Troy, began reading everything he could about sailing and the proper equipment and everything he could find about racing. He is the tactician for the Natalie J.

A crew is needed to operate a successful racing sailboat.

Jim Hoover of Birmingham, a partner in the Kimco computer company, handles the foredeck where he is responsible for handling headsails and the spinnaker. His is the wettest and most dangerous job. O'Niel Jr. said that Hoover came aboard as a college student and for the first two years shyly accepted everything he was told to do. "By the third year, he started to yell," O'Niel said.

David Otenberger, a 14-year-old Sterling Heights high school student with a maturity that belies his years, shares the tough foredeck duties with Hoover.

Tom Hillock of Yale, Mich., a loan officer at Farm Credit Services, handles the mast and halyards.

Ken Kerney of Traverse City, who works for Petrostar Oil and is O'Niel Jr.'s son-in-law, is the navigator.

O'Niel Jr. takes the helm and O'Niel III plots strategy.

Natalie J.

Over the winter O'Niel Jr. and O'Niel III became partners in a 41-foot racing boat, sell-

ing the successful and proud 35-footer to Ronald E. Sears.

On a cold, rainy Thursday afternoon crew members gathered to try out the new boat that the O'Niels had taken delivery on a week before.

The Natalie J. is docked at the Bayview Yacht Club on the Detroit River. The club sponsors the Port Huron to Mackinac race and its members are primarily racing sailors.

The Natalie J. and other boats race every Saturday from May to September in all kinds of weather except dead calm. Over the years the crew of the Natalie J. has borne away 85 flags designating a first, second or third in a racing event. The races are over an Olympic-style course set out in a pentagonal shape on Lake St. Clair.

The new boat features some of the latest equipment. Developed as a prototype by C&C Yachts of Toronto, the boat was owned for two years by the yacht company's president.

"It has a lot of fancy stuff we haven't used yet," said O'Niel III. "The mast is significantly different. It's bendable and can shape the sails better than with a stiff mast, but it's a lot harder to do it. You can go slower with a flexible mast if you don't turn it right, but a lot faster when it is turned right."

A central hydraulic system operates the tension of the stay wires that control the mast. Electronic instrumentation gives readouts on wind conditions, wind angle and wind strength.

A Loran is a sophisticated instrument for finding location and marking a course. An on-board computer digests this information to give suggested courses. A computer expert will be coming in to explain how to best use this equipment.

But all the fancy equipment is only as good as the crew that uses it. A crew that depends on each other feels safe.

"That's why you sail with the same crew all the time," said O'Niel III. "Everybody has to know what they're doing. We get calls all the time from people who think it would be fun to go racing.

But it's a lot of hard work. You have to know that you can rely on the guy on the other end to know what he's doing."

A four-cylinder diesel engine is used to take the Natalie J. out into the open water. On this practice run, Peter Gobel of North Sails is on board. An excellent sailor who bears resemblance to actor John Candy and shares Candy's sense of humor, Gobel is aboard, both to promote his sails and to help the crew fine tune their teamwork.

The boat cut swiftly through the water, heeling sharply to starboard. The cold spray barely fazed the crew as they worked quickly over the length of the boat pulling ropes by hand and with winches. A colorful red spinn-ker was hoisted, catching a gust of wind and speeding the boat along.

"It's a team sport, but you don't get injured like you do in basketball, hockey or football," said crewman Barker. "It's mental exercise. It gives you a chance to get out before you go home and burn off steam."

The sails are shifted to make best use of the wind in procedures called tacking and jibing. Gobel called out the orders, crisply, firmly. When the game was afoot the crew was serious about its business. When the procedure went well, Gobel was free with his compliments. As the boat returned under gentle wind, the crew had time to sit, talk and enjoy the feeling of fresh cool air and spray.

Coming on another race boat, the Rage, the crew was set for the challenge. Hands and feet moved swiftly to trim and turn sail for a racing posture. Over on the Rage the crew frantically leaped to life, turning winches and pulling ropes to get into position. The two sleek crafts cut an arc through the water, the Natalie J. taking the inside course. The race was soon given up, a show of bravado by the two boats.

The big race begins July 19. The Saturday races are fun, the regular games of summer. And Bayview holds an overnight race and the Windsor Yacht Club holds an overnight. But these are all preparation for July 19, the annual Bayview Yacht Club Port Huron to Mackinac race. This and the similar Chicago to Mackinac are the major Great Lakes sailing events of the summer. Racing crews point for those races.

A week before the race, the Natalie J. will be taken up to Port Huron where the O'Niels will try to get a good berth. Sails will be carefully folded and delivered so they come out just as they should. Natalie O'Niel and the other wives will begin preparing food on Tuesday, a well-fed crew being a happy crew.

A diver with a soft cloth will go below and carefully clean the boat's bottom. The bottom has a special smooth paint that causes water to sheet against it. O'Niel Jr. says that paint, a smooth ungouged bottom surface, is 25 percent of a boat's speed.

A safety inspection is made to be sure the boat has all the required safety items — life rafts, man-over-board poles, flares, safety harnesses. A check will be made before and after the race to be sure these are on board.

"Boats that participate in the Port Huron to Mackinac race are the safest boats on the water. Nobody cheats. Everything is backed up. Life comes first, no flag is worth winning for that," said O'Niel Jr.

This year the new Natalie J. has been reclassified to Class A in the Performance Handicap Rating Fleet. It will be competing with larger and swifter boats than the crew has been used to. Each boat, in addition to being classified, is also handicapped based on boat size and other factors to determine potential speed. The handicaps are computed in seconds against competition.

The success of the Natalie J. may be tried this year with a new boat and new competition. But the crew hasn't always known success.

Phil O'Niel III grows expansive when he describes some of the setbacks that the crew has faced in the big race. In addition to last year's storm, a storm in 1981 made for a wet and rocky race.

The first year the boat was lost in a fog. The Natalie J. finished second to last.

"We didn't know where we were. We came in on the wrong side and saw these two other boats and tried to beat them in," O'Niel III said.

Then there was the time the boat was grounded. The crew had gotten off course and found themselves in shallow water, unable to move. A photographer on shore was able to get a shot of this most embarrassing moment.

The crew has learned a lot since then. With three victories under their belt, they are now going for their fourth and their third in a row.

Peter Gobel regaled the crew with funny stories as the light began to die on the Detroit River. A freighter came through the deep channel. The Star of Detroit set out into the drizzly night for a cruise. Small rowboats with outboards carried carp fishers into the murky green river. And other sailboats glided by as the Natalie J. returned to harbor and the crew returned to the warm soup of the Bayview.

The crew was pleased with the workout and with the expensive new toy. Tom Hillock said he liked the feel of it, that despite the extra length it was easier to work because of its shape.

The O'Niels were also pleased with the workout and ready to make a good run at their third in a row.

"This is a crew with sheer determination," said O'Niel Jr. "They will not give up. They are a good bunch who come out to win a race. They fight no matter what."

Schuler

The life of a professional cyclist is appealing to Schuler. He enjoys the crowds, but once in awhile it's nice just to ride without thought of the crowd aspect.

egy while mapping your own.

Schuler said that when he began he didn't have a clue what he was doing. He raced in state and national events with the Wolverine club. He said he has good memories of winning and what it feels like to cross the finish line as a winner.

Training for Schuler means cycling and more cycling during the season. Like many other cyclists, including Olympic skater Eric Heiden, Schuler uses skating and cross country skiing as winter training.

The life of a professional cyclist is appealing to Schuler. He said the backing from 7-Eleven makes it possible to support himself and his wife. He enjoys the crowds that attend the criteriums, races around half-mile to three-quarter-mile circuits like the Troy race that drew 11,000 spectators last year.

"I enjoy the criteriums the most because of the action and crowd aspect, lots and lots of crowds," he said.

He also likes the travel and tries to see as much of a city as he can on the circuit. But he doesn't notice the scenery when racing.

"When you're racing, you don't notice much. You never look down when you're racing — you look forward — you scan 20 feet to two miles ahead. You see a little scenery but not much."

Schuler will enjoy the scenery of France July 4-24 when he competes with a 7-Eleven American team in the Tour de France. The team includes Livonia's Jeff Pierce and Olympic gold medalist Alexi Grewal. Schuler and his teammates will be trying their best chess moves on the grand masters of the cycling world.

— Hugh Gallagher

Schuler is now one of a small group who make a living as professional bicycle racers. He is part of the 7-Eleven team and is currently ranked fourth on the 7-Eleven Cup Series. The series features 25 races throughout the country, including the recent Millender Center-Trolley Plaza Classic in Detroit and concluding Oct. 16 in Dallas. Schuler finished out of the top 10 in the Millender race, jammed and outmaneuvered by a slower team. But he was priming for other races on the circuit better suited to his style that has won him the nickname "The Plow."

The 7-Eleven team was started in 1981 to prepare amateurs for the 1984 Olympics.

"In 1985, the majority turned professionals as the focus in Europe and the U.S. became professional. As a professional you can't ride in the Olympics but you have access to the major races in Europe," Schuler said.

Schuler, a native of Birmingham now living in Minnesota, came home last year to show how much he's learned by winning the Troy Pro-Am Mens Race in the Troy Cycling Grand Prix. That race had a special meaning for him. He said after the race, "I felt a lot of pressure to do well. This wasn't Anytown, U.S.A. This was my hometown. I had a lot of family and friends, so it was a very satisfying win."

Professional bicycle racing has a long history and ranks second only to soccer as a spectator sport throughout the world. But in the United States, professional cycling has been long dormant after a period of great popularity and adulation for star cyclists in the early years of the century.

In Europe, top cyclists enjoy the fame of baseball players in the United States.

"It's taken as a serious sport over there. It's ingrained in their culture. You can sit down with any family and bring up bicycling. They're educated on the subject of bicycling, which makes it enjoyable to race there," Schuler said.

The reaction of Americans is not the same. Schuler said he gets funny looks when he tells people what he does for a living. Promoters of professional bicycling are betting that Americans will find the sport exciting to watch.

Unlike running, where speed is the major consideration, bicycling involves working as a team, using principles of drag to move back and forth in the pack until the best sprinters can move ahead. Going slow at certain points may be the best strategy. Schuler said you have to always know the strengths of different riders and teams, always watching their strat-

Less pain, more gain in a group

A good way to run more is to socialize more. People who band together to discuss nagging injuries, weight loss, workouts, personal records, diets and such non-running topics as the Tigers and what kind of beer to drink generally find themselves motivated to run more.

The Redford Roadrunners are a prime example. The club has about 175 names on its mailing list, and at least 60 runners show up for the weekly Tuesday night runs, which are followed by gobs of pizza and pitchers of beer.

To some, the highlight of the night is a stiff workout and friendly though competitive run. To others, it's the beer. Nothing says you have to run and some don't. Want to run slow? Fine. Want to walk, fine.

At one extreme is club member Doug Kurtis, a top marathoner who travels the world looking for interesting 26.2-milers to write about for Michigan Runner magazine. At the other are those for whom "marathon" is just another place to stop for gas.

The club has been meeting for four years. To join, just show up at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the corner of West Chicago and Inkster. Three times out and you're eligible for membership. A $12 entry fee covers the cost of the monthly newsletter.

Three years ago, the Central Business District Association in Detroit ran a small ad in a downtown shopper announcing an organizational meeting of a group to be known as The People Who Run Downtown.

The group has become something of a phenomenon, drawing up to 120 persons downtown for the 5:45 p.m. runs on Tuesday evenings.

Each week the group meets at a different downtown restaurant or pub, runs through the area, then returns for a night of eating, drinking and socializing.

Though many are single and the accent is on socializing, there are serious runners as well, with 12 to 15 veteran marathoners, including Tim Fox, the winner of last year's Free Press International.

Call the CBDA at 961-1403 for a schedule of upcoming runs, which include jaunts through historic Elmwood cemetery, trips to Windsor and picnics on Belle Isle.

The Oakland Runners have a membership of 160. The club sponsors a spring and fall race, winter ski trips, picnics and meets weekly for an informal run of as many as 40 runners.

"We're very loose-knit," says president Scott Heywood. Care for an 8 a.m. workout on Saturdays? Then come to the Sports Center at Oakland University. Distances vary as do abilities.

Club membership is $10 a year and includes discounts at races and area sports shops. For information, call 1-784-5033.

Last but not least, is the Motor City Striders, a venerable organization that traces its history back to the Twenties. The group is 1,000 strong, with membership throughout the metro area.

The Striders sponsor a summer series of short club runs, a picnic, fall cross-country races and put on many of the major races in the Detroit area, including the Free Press International Marathon and the Statue of Liberty 10K. The accent's on running, not socializing.

For information, call Ed Kozloff at 544-9099.

Jim Wilkinson and Marc St. Angelo, both of Southfield, work on a tire done in by a nail.

Cyclists use drafts to conserve energy and use the strength of other riders against the wind. In team racing, each team member may have a special ability as a rider. A sprinter, for example, may be kept to the back through most of the race so that he can use his strength at the end.

From the strategy of road racing to the quiet relaxation of touring, the appeal of cycling is in the variety of activities.

The cost of a good bicycle has been coming down, according to Hughes. As each new generation of racing bicycle is improved, the cost of quality bicycles for touring comes down. A novice racer can get a good bicycle for $1,000, Hughes said.

To get involved in bicycling, either racing or touring, Hughes recommends joining a club. Hughes said that riding with a group improves riding efficiency, whether you're racing or touring. He said the techniques used for racing are important for recreational cyclists. Wind resistance is reduced and energy conserved riding with a group. For the racer riding with the right group is essential.

"If they know they want to start racing, they should join a club with a racing program," Hughes said.

Hughes is involved with the Wolverine Sports Club, one of three racing clubs in the Detroit area. The club is coached by Mike Walden, who has coached three world champion women cyclists, nine Olympic team riders, a Pan-Am games gold medalists and 60 U.S. national champions over the last 10 years.

Hughes said bicycling is a sport that can be enjoyed at any age.

"Most sports you have to do as a kid, bicycling is the exception. Your peak years are 20 to 35 for cycling. Up to 20, you're still developing. You can be nationally ranked at 45."

Hughes calls himself an inactive racer who "never was much of a racer." But, he says, bicycling is something he can't get out of his blood.

— Hugh Gallagher

use the race as a promotion for each town on the circuit.

Each kind of race in the tour offers the bicyclists different challenges and calls on different strengths.

Hughes said the time trial is a race of an individual against the clock, testing a person's all out strength. The road race and criteriums are strategy races.

"In a running race, you have hot-shots up front and the rest in the back. You can't do that in bike racing because there is so much strategy. A race can go very slow because they're jamming so much," Hughes said.

Welcome

We in Howell deem it a great honor and privilege to again host the Michigan Challenge hot-air balloon championship.

To all visitors and contestants we extend a very special welcome to Howell.

Chairperson Ken Carothers and the Michigan Challenge Committee have worked to do everything possible so that visitors will take home with them lasting memories of the great 1986 Michigan Challenge.

We sincerely hope that the efforts of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce will make the event successful and enjoyable for all who attend.

On behalf of the Southeastern Michigan Balloon Association, I would like to welcome all of our participating balloonists. We thank them for their participation and for their interest in the Second Annual Michigan Challenge.

Our goal has been, and continues to be, the establishment of an annual, top-quality sanctioned ballooning event in Michigan. Because of the many Michigan balloonists which our event features and because of the many balloonists in the surrounding states, we are able to run a quality event with sufficient numbers of balloons to make an exceptional visual experience for our spectators.

SEMBA, an organization of balloonists throughout southeastern Michigan, has a goal of serving its membership with all types of programs. Programs which benefit its members educationally and socially. Our programs also provide the benefit of a positive public image for our sport wherever we fly.

The Michigan Challenge provides a vehicle for us to enjoy our sport and to share the visual aspects with others at the same time. We want to create a festive atmosphere in the community for everyone.

A very special thank you must go to Mat Vivona of Father and Son Construction Company who, through his interest and generosity, has for the second year planted the seed that makes this event possible. Without Mat and John Raya, his pilot and balloon-program coordinator, this event might still be only a dream.

I also wish to thank the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, its staff and volunteers for all the countless hours they have worked. They make this event possible for the balloonists and the community of which they are so justly proud. The cooperation from all the groups and individuals who have been involved has been nothing short of fantastic.

To all the spectators and Howell area residents, I would like to say, thank you for sharing your community with us and for allowing us to visually share our sport with you. All of us—hope you enjoy!

Officials

Tom Sheppard, Balloonmeister

Sheppard comes from West Bend, WI to serve as the chief official of the 1986 Michigan Challenge. We are fortunate to have in our service the very best balloonmeister in the country. Welcome back to Howell, Tom.

Debra Spaeth, Chief Scoring Officer

Spaeth comes from Jackson, WI to assist the balloonmeister in the task of scoring the ballooning events. Points scored in the Howell race will, not only decide our Michigan champion, but will also count toward participation in the National Championship.

Wayne Warren, Safety Officer

Warren, a founding member of the Southeast Michigan Balloonist Association, is familiar with all aspects of ballooning safety. He is committed to running a race that is safe and fair for all participants.

Tom Maynard, Announcer

Maynard, a former radio personality, returns to the Michigan Challenge this year to delight us with his informative patter at the launch site. Last year, when winds grounded our flights, Maynard kept crowds entertained with his knowledgeable commentary and charming personality. We wish that we could keep him here in Howell.

A WINNING STYLE

The challenges we face every day are made easier when they're met with the help of a winning team.

Space Sails

The Midland Art Council of the Midland Center for the Arts, Inc. in Midland, Michigan sponsors an annual, national juried competition called Space Sails: American Banners.

Through the cooperation of Howell Postmaster, Dolores Maidlow and Midland Center for the Arts Director, Hillary Bassett, the Michigan Challenge Committee has arranged a free mini-exhibit of these works to hang in the entry hall of the new United States Post Office in Howell. The post office entry will be open during the weekend of the Michigan Challenge so that visitors will be able to see the art on display.

Susan Cooper-Finney of the Michigan History Museum in Lansing directed the installation of the very large works which will be suspended from the twenty-foot high Post Office ceiling.

These talented and generous artists have agreed to allow their work to be shown in Howell:
8 Michigan Challenge 1986

Louise Kodis of Spokane, WA has created Cleared for Flight. This large, 84 x 180-inch work is pieced and machine sewn of nylon and metallic fibers.

John Norman of Franktown, CO is represented by Self Promotion Banner, a 72 x 48-inch work constructed of paint, fabric and mixed-media.

Barbara Brines Peterson's Kite Tails/Things that Fly: Fleeting Thoughts, Arrows Fly, Butterflies is a triptych made of rip-stop nylon. Peterson's work is coming home in a special way. As a child, she spent summers in Howell visiting her grandmother's farm.

Catalogs from the complete Space Sails: American Banners exhibit are available at the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, 404 East Grand River Avenue. They may also be ordered from The Midland Art Council of the Midland Center for the Arts, Inc., 1801 West St. Andrews Street, Midland, MI 48640. The cost is $9.00.

New Father & Son Construction Company Balloon

This year, Mat Vivona's Father and Son Construction Company is, along with the Southeast Michigan Balloonists Association and the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, a major sponsor of the Second Annual Michigan Challenge.

The distinctive Father and Son balloon will make the journey from Detroit's suburbs to Howell. But, this year it will be joined by a new entry in the Michigan Challenge. Making its ballooning-event debut will be a brand new 90,000-cubic-foot Barnes AX-8B.

Its specially designed basket features navy-blue suede panels and interwoven rainbow-colored wicker. The basket can carry four adults plus the pilot and four fuel tanks.

The design is known as a mirror because the illustrations are identical on each side of the balloon. The Father and Son trademark featuring two happy construction workers appears with the addition of clouds and birds which glide across a bright blue sky.

No lettering appears on the new balloon. The height of the main illustration alone equals the entire height of Vivona's first balloon.

It would be hard to find a more enthusiastic advocate of ballooning than Mat Vivona. He sees ballooning as a family sport, a healthful pastime and, in his own case, as an effective advertising vehicle.

Vivona sees the Michigan Challenge and other ballooning events as occasions for developing community spirit and local pride. He encourages the establishment of sanctioned ballooning events like the Michigan Challenge, and thinks that Howell is an ideal spot for balloon activities.

"Howell is surrounded by open areas," says Vivona, "so that, regardless of wind direction, pilots can find safe landing areas."

For all these reasons, Mat Vivona, founder and owner of Father and Son Construction Company, is a major sponsor of the Michigan Challenge.

The expansion of Vivona's ballooning activities is matched by the expansion of his Troy-based Father and Son Company. Founded in 1979, Father and Son now has home remodeling businesses in ten American and Canadian cities. Vivona plans two more openings this year.

Pasta and Pizza

Another exciting development is Father and Son's entry into the pizza and pasta market. Vivona explains, with pride, that two Detroit area locations featuring homemade whole-wheat pizza and pasta opened last year. Ten more outlets are expected to open during the coming year.

Juggling projects like these on the business front, how does Vivona find time for ballooning? First, he credits his pilot and employee of fifteen years, John Raya, for handling most of the details related to the balloons. Second, Vivona regards ballooning as part of his business. He got into ballooning in 1983 because he thought it would be a great way to draw attention to Father and Son. The company trademark was well established; and featuring it on a hot-air balloon seemed a perfect way to advertise.

Vivona's instincts were right. Balloons, as Michigan Challenge fans know, are fascinating. To illustrate that point, Vivona tells of the time he and Raya floated peacefully over Stoney Creek Metropolitan Park. Below them was a boater, also floating peacefully in quiet waters.

Lois Lange

"The man watched as we passed overhead," said Vivona, "but, he seemed unable to tear himself away from the sight. His head tilted further and further backward, until he just tipped out of the boat."

That was when Vivona and Raya were in the old balloon. Imagine how eye-catching the new one will be as it flies for the first time in Howell's Second Annual Michigan Challenge!

Livingston County boaters, take heed—the skies may well be more inviting than the waters this weekend. Why not resist the lure of the lakes just this once and join Mat Vivona, John Raya and the rest of us at the Challenge?

You can expect competent, trained temporaries who will step in, sit down and produce with skills in everything from switchboard to electronic keyboard. Or maybe it's because business people are finding that temporaries are a less expensive and more efficient way to go because they avoid the expenses of training and the headaches, hassles and expenses of figuring payroll taxes. We suspect it's both.

We also offer temporaries for Industrial, Technical, Data Processing and Health Care Services.

Sunday, June 22, 1985, during the First Annual Michigan Challenge hot-air balloon competition, the wind was blowing.

Clear skies, warm air, blowing wind; it was beautiful weather for sailing; but not for hot-air ballooning. It was the last day of competition and not one event had been flown. But, wind or not, a 30-foot x-marks-the-spot was drawn on the field in yellow rip-stop nylon and the balloons were streaking in.

They popped up over the horizon, flying high till the last moments when each dipped down and the pilot hurled a corn-filled bag with streaming nylon tails at the target.

Some missed the field, some missed the town! But many of the most brilliant wind-riders swooped in to screams of encouragement from the crowd.

"Yea, Dick. Come on, Dick!" Dick Rudlaff's Free Spirit was coming in fast, right on target. "Throw it, throw it!" He was waiting too long! Winding up, he made his throw. Streamers flew through the air.

Officials ran in with tape measures. The shot was four feet off dead center. It was the best achievement of the day; good enough to name Dick Rudlaff Michigan Champion for 1985 after launching three miles away from the target in gusting winds that he rode with masterful precision.

Rudlaff bought his first balloon in 1979, the After Dinner Mint. He met Ted Gauthier, an ace balloonist and fireman, while Gauthier was taking Emergency Medical Team training at Rudlaff's Bloomfield Hills based Paramed, Inc., a professional medical transportation firm. Gauthier took him up. "I went for a balloon ride and bought one," says Rudlaff.

Before that, in the early seventies, he raced snowmobiles professionally, winning the Michigan Triple Crown in 1973 at the Traverse City 250. He quit snowmobiling when he couldn't get insurance because of the growth of his business. He was "...getting back into motorcycles," when he was introduced to ballooning.

"Dick is very competitive," says Rudlaff's attractive wife, Jan, with a touch of humor. She is not a flier but acts as chase crew along with Bill Barrow, Rudlaff's crew chief. The couple have recently moved into a house on a lake near Pontiac where they have 125 feet of lake frontage, a 1600 square-foot deck with a hot tub, and a four car garage which houses the balloons, chase van, a 1977 Corvette, and a speedboat. Rudlaff likes boats, too. "Anything with a motor," he says.

In 1981 Rudlaff bought a new Cameron balloon and made just enough competition points to qualify for the Nationals. He placed third in the nation and

The Race

On the day of his winning race, Rudlaff and his crew awoke at four-thirty AM and headed for the Howell Recreation Center where balloonmeister Tom Sheppard briefed the pilots on weather and charged them with the navigational task of the day.

Rudlaff teamed up with friend and occasional flying-partner, Phil Glebe, former president of SEMBA and pilot of the Pontiac balloon. (Glebe's balloon was featured in the April, '86 issue of ORoad and Track as its annual wierd road-test.)

Even though the pilots fly against each other for points, many of them cooperate in the search for a good launch site. Rudlaff and Glebe are competition buddies of long standing.

They left the Rec Center and rode around outside an imaginary circle with a two mile radius from the target. They could not leave the ground before 7:15 AM or after 8:15 AM. Time is a factor in finding a launch site.

Although they had been told wind-direction by the balloonmeister, they stopped frequently to put up helium-filled phy-balls (say, pie-balls.) Using a siting compass, they got a picture of how the winds were breaking. This information would tell them where they would need to launch in order for the winds to carry them over the target site.

Pilots use the winds at various levels of the atmosphere to steer their balloons to a target. Winds at different levels blow at different speeds. Dick Wirth's book Ballooning advises that in the northern hemisphere the wind usually veers to the right with height. To race, the pilot launches upwind of the target. He climbs to turn right and flies low to go left, zig-zagging his way toward the target.

"The chances of flying straight in are slim and none," says Rudlaff. "The idea is to use the turn of the winds to fly you into the target, to keep playing the winds. As the sun comes up, the wind layers change. You use slight changes in altitude to read the wind and you have to understand what the balloons around you are doing. You use what you see."

What we saw last year was balloons all over the sky. Why were there so many so far off target?

"Last year was not a fair assessment of our pilots' abilities," Rudlaff answered. "The winds were layered so that you'd go straight through the turn." Meaning, you'd miss your bus stop, the place where you would have to descend to another layer in order to fly over the target. "We were fortunate that day, that any of us made it over."

If it was so hard, how did Rudlaff manage a shot four feet off dead center?

"I got lucky!" His smile is cheerful, then mischievous, "I lied to Phil."

"I was headed in the right direction to start with and Glebe was right behind me. But at the end you had to make a real quick drop on target. I made my throw, and Glebe said (over the radio,) 'How close were you?'"

"I said, 'Fifteen feet,' so Phil came down and made a toss eight-foot off target."

"I knew I was closer than fifteen feet," the Champ said with a grin.

was named Rookie of the Year. He makes it to the Nationals every year to compete, flying his 56,000 cubic-foot competition balloon, Free Spirit, which he says is "like an old shoe."

That phrase could describe the comfortable approach Rudlaff has to life. For all his high-powered energy and obvious love of adventure, he is an easy person to talk to and to enjoy.

Mister Rubbish

Peter Rosewig's business card says that he's a garbageman. As founder and owner of Contractors Container Corporation and well-known Mister Rubbish, Rosewig is garbageman to about 37,000 commercial and residential customers!

He is also a private airplane pilot with more than 1,200 flight hours; and he is owner and pilot of the colorful Mister Rubbish hot-air balloon.

Rosewig founded Mister Rubbish in 1969 with only one garbage truck. Two years later when General Manager Steve Dawdy joined the venture, Mr. Rubbish had grown to a two-truck operation. Today Rosewig employs fifty-four workers who operate twenty-eight trucks daily in Washtenaw and Livingston Counties.

The Ann Arbor based firm strengthened its ties with Howell in January 1984 when it acquired D & D Sanitation on Pinckney Road near I-96. That site is now the operations center for the Livingston County marketing area.

Mr. Rubbish trucks and containers are familiar sights around Howell. They will once again provide strategically placed trash carts to discourage littering at our Second Annual Michigan Challenge. These neat, easy-to-use receptacles are here for your convenience courtesy of Mister Rubbish. We thank you for using them.

Sometimes Mister Rubbish's participation in local celebrations is a little more whimsical than providing trash containers. Orange, brown and yellow garbage trucks bearing the tuxedoed likeness of Mister Rubbish ride in Howell's parades. In a recent Fourth of July parade, employees dressed as Mister Rubbish himself gave away key chains and stickers to children along the parade route.

Two years ago in what may have been Mister Rubbish's finest civic service, trash carts were pushed by a shovel-wielding clean-up crew behind the Melonfest parade's mounted units.

There's yet another side to Mister Rubbish. When Rosewig and Dawdy tire of cleaning up our county, they simply rise above it! That's what we'll see them do once again this year in Howell's Michigan Challenge.

At the race Rosewig will pilot a 77,000-cubic-foot Raven AX-7. The balloon bears the orange, brown and yellow Mister Rubbish colors and sometimes trails banners emblazoned with the company logo.

Since Rosewig purchased the balloon six years ago, he has spent about 120 hours aloft in what he describes as "... a combination of complete relaxation and spontaneous adventure."

Complete relaxation is the sensation he feels on a pleasantly warm day when gentle breezes carry him over a quiet, open countryside. Spontaneous adventure is usually found when ballooning conditions are not altogether perfect.

Recalling one such adventure, Rosewig recounts how he and his companions spent forty-five frustrating minutes hovering fifty to seventy-five feet above the traffic-laden I-94 expressway. There was absolutely no wind to move the balloon from its inopportune location.

Normally, when balloonists are becalmed in an undesirable area, they just climb until they find some wind. "But," says Rosewig, "we were low on fuel; so we just had to wait. We attracted quite a crowd, as well as the local authorities. Everyone cheered when a small gust of wind came along and finally got us on our way."

Welcome to the Michigan Challenge, Mister Rubbish! We wish you and your fellow balloonists moderate breezes, tranquil landscapes, cheering crowds and plenty of fuel!

Balloonist prepares for ascension,
July 4, 1914.

1914 Dare Devil Balloonist

Steve Purdy

The Michigan Challenge is not Howell's first experience with ballooning. Old photos from the Zemper Studio archives and reports in back issues of the Livingston County Republican chronicle the Fourth of July festival of 1914 which featured two hot-air balloon ascensions. One had the added thrill of a parachute drop.

Thousands of Livingston County residents and out-of-towners were on hand for the 1914 Independence Day celebration in Howell. The Pere Marquette and Ann Arbor Railroads provided extra coach accommodations for the tourists. Automobiles were spotted from as far away as Grand Ledge, Bay City and Toledo.

A reporter noted seeing 87 automobiles within sight of his position on the Courthouse lawn as he commented on the revolution in transportation. Another observer estimated the crowd at over 10,000. The entire county population at the time was 17,736 including Mrs. Olson's new twins.

The holiday's activities began with a 21 gun salute in honor of the nation's 138th birthday. The first balloon ascension was scheduled for 10:30 AM as one of dozens of activities.

Special street attractions including a merry-go-round entertained the revelers as did the traditional political speeches, music and dancing, a big ball game (Gregory-8, Webberville-5,) drill teams and a reading of the Declaration of Independence by the Honorable Edmond C. Shields of Lansing.

At ten o'clock preparations began for inflation and launch of the first balloon. A large machine, resembling a fire engine, began to heat the air and force it into the heavy black envelope. It must have been a cumbersome process but history does not record nor does the Republican describe the technique of readying the balloon, the materials used or even the aeronaut's name.

We can be sure that the envelope was not made of a high-tech synthetic fabric and that the air was not heated by a high efficiency gas burner. We can be certain that the thousands of spectators were thrilled at the sight of this big black bubble rising nearly out of sight.

The crowd slowly dissipated after the first ascension to indulge in the rest of the day's activities. They returned to the same spot later in the day for an even more exciting display of aeronautical skills.

It was a mild summer day with high clouds. A great day for ballooning. The large crowd that had assembled to watch the preparations for the afternoon launch would have a good view of the ascension. Most of the spectators had no idea that the Howell balloonist had an extra treat in mind for them.

The ominous looking large, black rubberized canvas bag began to expand and rise out of the dry, dirt street in front of the Livingston County Courthouse. Those in the rear of the crowd could not see that a local aeronaut had secured himself to the bottom of the inflated bag. A tightly packed bundle was attached just above his head.

Gasps rose from the crowd as the balloon rose from the ground with the young man attached! Higher and higher the balloon climbed until only the shape of a man could be seen hanging like a stick figure

Suddenly the figure twisted and separated from the balloon. He fell rapidly until the parachute opened and filled with enough air to slow his descent. The big black bag collapsed and plunged back to earth with the daredevil aeronaut following safely attached to his parachute.

The crowd cheered wildly as the brave young man tried to land on the roof of one of the downtown buildings. The balloonist was a local fellow who seldom missed an opportunity to practice his exciting skills and it is said that he was often able to control his descent enough to land on top of a building.

Charlie Sutton, Chairman of the festival, could be proud of the way all the events went that day, according to the reporter from the Republican. The nation's birthday was appropriately celebrated; and the balloon ascensions were particularly auspicious.

They could not have known that a few decades later, Howell would be the scene of a great regional hot-air balloon competition with dozens of balloons in the air simultaneously.

The modern balloons could not be launched from the original site in front of the Courthouse, of course. Today they would become entangled in the huge trees that surround the building—trees that were only saplings in 1914.

Howell's

Sesquicentennial Year

1836—1986

Jeri McKeon-Anderson, Vice Chairperson for the Howell Historical Commission did some digging through old books about Howell and came up with these interesting items from the History of Howell written in 1868 by Elisha H. Smith.

In 1834 the first settlers came to Howell. —————1834

In 1835 the plat for the Village of Howell was established. The first baby was born in Howell after the first marriage. —————1835

In 1836 the first election was held in Howell. The date of the first election is a generally accepted way of counting the years of a community's existence. That is why we are celebrating Howell's 150th birthday this year. This was also the year that the first post office and the first school house were built. The first blacksmith came to town; his name was William McPherson. —————1836

In 1837 Moses Thompson built a saw mill and built the first frame house in Howell. The Presbyterian Church and the Methodist Church were organized. —————1837

In 1838 the Baptist Church was organized. The first resident physician came to live in Howell. —————1838

In 1840 the first cemetery was consecrated. —————1840

In 1843 the Livingston Courier, predecessor to the Livingston County Press, was established. —————1843

In 1844 Howell's first rifle company was organized. —————1844

In 1847 the heart of our town, the Livingston County Courthouse, was erected. —————1847

2+2+2=$21,000

That's Army math. It means that after 2 years of college (60 semester hours or equivalent) and a 2-year enlistment, you could have up to $21,000 to continue your education. Courtesy of the New GI Bill + New Army College Fund. (Effective July 1, 1985).

That other 2 means you can get two years of ROTC by enrolling in ROTC at the third year level (with the approval of the college's Professor of Military Science) when you reenter college. You'll earn $100 a month in ROTC.

Qualify, and you'll start your enlistment with a promotion. And just because you're out of school doesn't mean you stop learning. We'll teach you a skill that can help you go places later.

And you'll go places now, because we give soldiers an opportunity to travel. And a chance to make new friends.

Not to mention a lot of money for college. Plus the chance to become an Army officer. Contact your local Army Recruiter today.

Slurp and the Great Howell Marshmallow Drop

"Come on, Charlie; hurry up!" shouted Franny. Honestly, why did Mom insist that she drag her little brother along? He is so pokey!

"Slurp is getting tired from walking so fast," worried Charlie. "Look at his tongue dripping." Slurp dropped to the ground and put his nose between his paws as if to agree.

"Well, jump into the wagon, then. Slurp can ride, too. Hurry up!"

"I see balloons, I see balloons!" cried Charlie excitedly, and Franny pulled the wagon faster along Grand River Avenue. Long stringed balloons speckled the blue sky, and drums thumped to the music of the band. Today was the big day, the best day of the Michigan Challenge hot-air balloon competition—the day of the Great Marshmallow Drop.

They arrived at the school field to find it swamped with an enormous ocean of kids and grown-ups, dogs and policemen, bikes and balloons. Already necks were craning toward the sky.

"Where's the plane?"

"It's almost time!"

"It's gonna rain marshmallows!"

"I lost my balloon!"

"What's taking so long?"

"Will the marshmallows hurt my head?"

"I'm gonna get zillions of 'em!"

"Watch out, Charlie! You're gonna fall! Get out of the wagon!" Charlie cooperated by pitching himself out and onto Slurp, who grunted but didn't seem to mind cushioning the fall.

"Here comes the plane! Here it comes!" yelled a pair of red-haired twins. The crowd quieted as the buzzing of the little airplane grew louder. It drew near enough for the colored flags to be seen on its wings. Jauntily it circled the field, squared its shoulders and began to dive toward the crowd.

"Oooooohhhh"

"Look out!"

"It's too low!"

"It's going to plow into us!"

"Run!"

"Head for home!"

"Save the baby!"

Franny caught a glimpse of the smiling pilot's face just before the belly of the plane swooped overhead with an ear-splitting roar. A torrent of marshmallows fell from the sky, plopping onto their heads, their shoulders, their arms. Franny lifted her hands, clutching at them, but they fell too lightly to be grasped. In a twinkling the grassy green of the field was polka-dotted in knobbly white. A great piercing squeal came in unison from hundreds of open mouths, and then the mass of bodies plowed ahead.

"Charlie! Keep your eyes open for a blue one! We can win a Mickey Mouse watch for that one!" Franny scooped frantically. Charlie stood with his finger in his mouth, still staring at the sky. A big boy threw himself on the ground, gathering marshmallows beneath him. Behind the crowd, the grass was turning to green again as the ground was stripped of marshmallows.

"Hey! Slurp is slurping our marshmallows! I can't stop him!" yelled Charlie. Franny turned to see the dog gleefully gulping; then he began to gnash his teeth and lick his chops in an attempt to remove the sticky white goo from his teeth.

"Slurp! Cut that out! Give back those marshmallows!" Franny grabbed him by the tail and fearlessly tried to shove her hand into his mouth. Slurp's teeth were firmly stuck together. At the back of his jaw, Franny glimpsed something blue and oozy.

"A blue one! He's got a blue one! But I can't get it out of his mouth!"

"How are we gonna get the prize if the blue marshmallow is in a dog's stomach?" pondered Charlie.

"Let's take Slurp to the prize booth," said Franny hopefully. "Maybe if we hurry, he won't swallow it before we get there."

They tackled Slurp, and Charlie climbed into the wagon, holding him tightly. "Let's go!"

At the booth, they found a harried lady surrounded by shoving, shouting kids. Franny picked up Slurp and pushed through the crowd.

"Oh," answered the lady, peering over her glasses.

"Well, Ma'am, it's here, in our dog's mouth. See? At the back, there." Slurp gnashed his teeth and shook his head, and the blue goo almost disappeared.

"Quick, look here!" cried Franny desperately.

"Oh, brother, I don't believe this," said the lady.

"Can we get the prize?" demanded Charlie.

"Well, I don't know if the rules . . ."

"It's ours. It's our blue marshmallow. Our dog found it!" insisted Charlie.

"Well, I don't know if a dog . . ." the lady and the bearded man and a tall man whispered to each other. The lady turned back.

"This is just not possible. I'm afraid we can't give you the prize," she began, shaking her head.

Charlie started to sniffle. Franny bit her lip.

"But," added the tall skinny man.

"We can give it to your dog," said the bearded man, and he strapped the Mickey Mouse watch to Slurp's collar. "Congratulations! May I shake your paw?" Slurp licked his hand, smearing it with sticky marshmallow.

"Yippee!" shouted Franny.

"But, how can a dog tell time?" worried Charlie.

"Let me get a picture of this!" snapped Camille from the local paper.
