Parade leads off community plans for the Fourth

"Yesterday, Today and Forever" is the theme for the annual Fourth of July parade under sponsorship of the Northville Jaycees this Friday. The parade at 10 a.m. begins a day-long celebration with a barbecue and other events slated in Mill Race Historical Village located off Main at Griswold all afternoon.

Fireworks will begin at dusk (about 10:15 p.m.) from the high school hill.

The parade begins at 10 a.m. at Northville Downs and moves up Beal Street to Main and along Main to Rogers and Cady, returning via Wing and Fairbrook to the Downs.

The reviewing stand will be in front of city hall where judges will select the winning bands, floats, equestrian groups, etc.

Parade chairman Bob Cummings announced that the parade grand marshal will be Dr. Russell M. Atchison, longtime Northville physician who will ride with his wife, Ruth Mary, at the beginning of the parade.

The parade, he said, will include "lots of clowns," as well as dignitaries, floats, bands and antique cars.

Cars, he said, will be judged in post-war, pre-war, special interest and hot rod categories.

A band addition, he said, is the Meads Mill Middle School band.

Before the parade the public is invited to attend the annual Fourth of July breakfast at the Northville Masonic Temple, 106 E. Main, where an expanded menu is being offered by the Union Chapter No. 55, Royal Arch Masons. Serving will commence at 6:30 a.m. and continue until parade time.

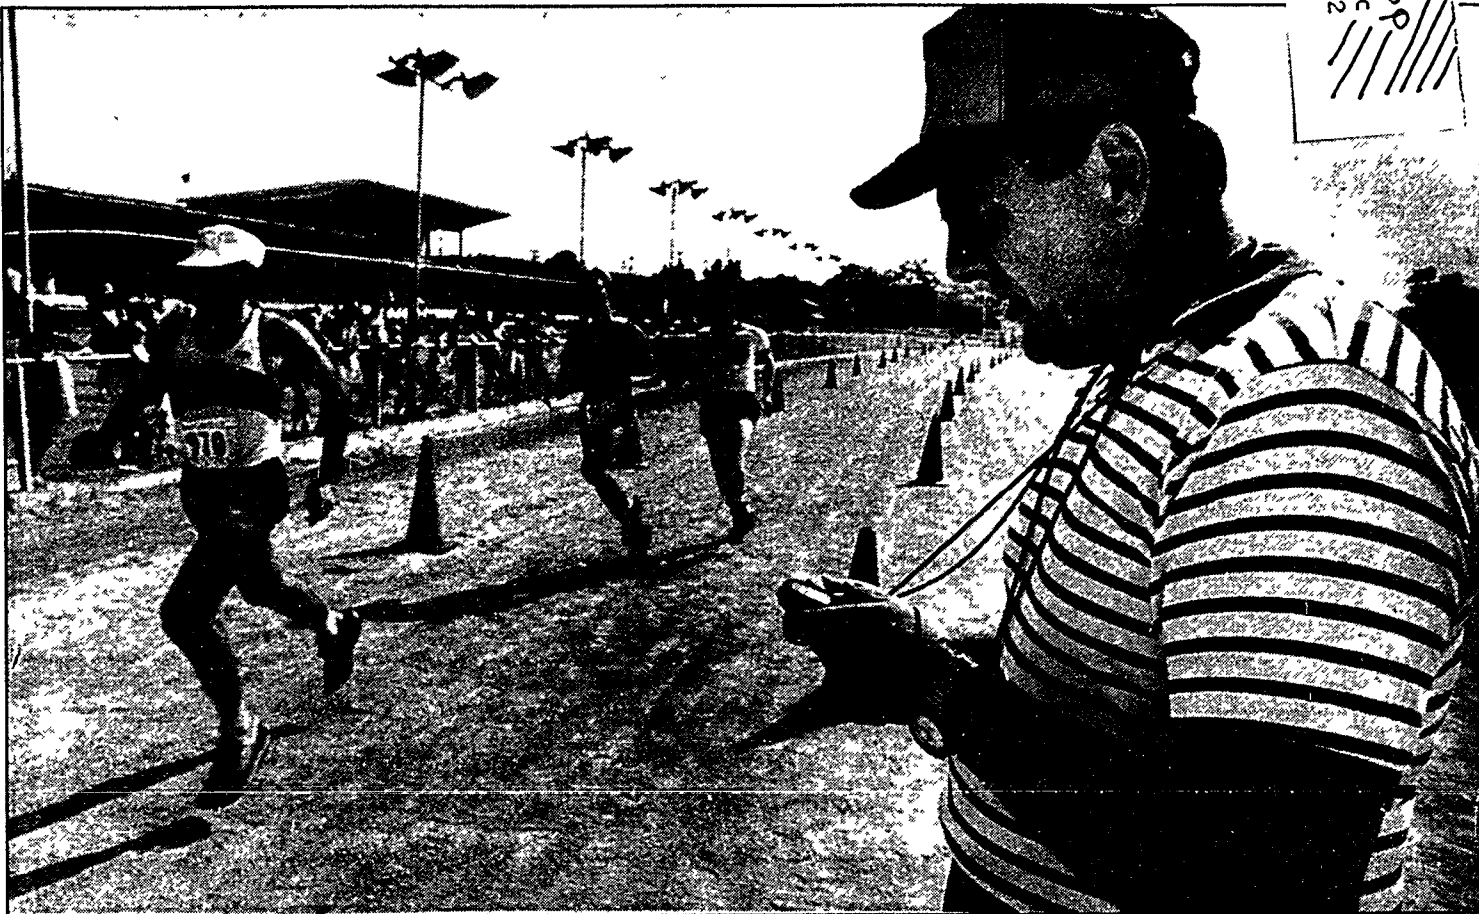

An "all you can eat" menu of pancakes, ham, scrambled eggs, hash brown potatoes, orange juice and coffee will be available for $3 an adult and $1.50 for children up to and including the age of 12, presiding Excellent High Priest Richard J. Sutterlin announced.

After the parade, the Jaycees will serve a chicken barbecue along with hot dogs and Italian sausages in a tent in Mill Race village from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All buildings will be open in the village, the Northville Historical Society reports.

This year the Hirsch blacksmith shop will be open for the first time with Robert Dudley, a blacksmith, giving demonstrations. The stone shop is a reconstruction of a smithy's

Keeping time

Northville's Wes Henrikson keeps one eye on his stop watch and another on the runners. That's because he was an official timekeeper for the Seventh Annual Discover Northville Rotary Run last Saturday. A total of 475 runners participated in either the 10 K, the 5 K or the mile fun run for kids. Henrikson was stationed at the start/finish line on the track at Northville Downs. All proceeds from the race will go to various community service projects backed by the Northville Rotary Club. For related story and top five finishers in each age category, turn to page 9A.

Mannisto shoots the whole works

By ANITA CRONE

Some people list mountain climbing as a hobby; others prefer scuba diving; and still others like to garden.

While they all get excited when they talk about their avocations, perhaps none gets quite so fired up as Keith Mannisto.

Mannisto, 37, is the man who annually since 1982 has planned and implemented the fireworks that light Northville's skies during the Fourth of July celebration. And while the show itself usually lasts but half an hour, Mannisto spends hundreds of additional hours, usually starting July 5, making sure everything goes exactly right.

By 10 p.m. on the day the display lights the sky, much of the work and the learning has been done. All that's left is to strike the matches and watch the sky.

Although Mannisto runs the display here, and in the past has included Wixom in his list of municipal customers, he says he really has never had a chance to just sit back and watch.

Even when he travels to observe fireworks in other communities, his view of the colorful extravaganza is often seen through the lens of a camera (he's an avid amateur photographer) or he finds himself interpreting what he's seeing automatically into scientific data.

"When I see fireworks, I'm always trying to figure out the formula used to get the colors, or to figure out which of the items available have been used to create what designs," Mannisto laughs. "My wife says I've never just watched a fireworks show. I'm too busy doing things."

Water, sewer go down drain

A plan to bring sewers and/or city water to residents in the center of Northville Estates went down the drain Monday as more than 90 subdivision residents vented their displeasure about the proposals to city council.

However, realizing that some people in the affected area were equally adamant about wanting the projects, the governing body instructed its engineers to prepare a proposal which would allow some people to tie into proposed systems already in place for the northern and southern portions of Northville Estates.

The public hearing capped a two-year effort by the city and the residents to determine the feasibility and interest in bringing city water and sewers to the subdivision. Work has already started in the northern and southern portion of the subdivision to install water and in the northern area for sewers.

"What we'd (the city) like to do is see if we can accommodate those who want water and not force anyone to take it," Mayor Paul Vernon said.

He noted that the majority of homeowners apparently did not want either water or sewers. Judging from petitions received by council prior to the meeting, Vernon said 42 lot owners indicated their objection to water while 28 were in favor of the effort.

The audience was nearly unanimous in its objection to the project.

"If this (water assessment) goes through, our assessment is going to rise. Your taxes will go up, and I just feel this is unnecessary," Ann Brueck said.

Other residents questioned the economics of the proposal, noting that the proposed cost was merely an estimate and not the exact cost.

SEMTA budget OK'd

SEMTA buses will be running today, after board members took two and a half hours Monday approving a $79.662 million operating budget.

Currently, there is no SEMTA service in Northville or Northville Township. The nearest SEMTA regular run originates in Livonia.

It took a compromise amendment by board member Fred Todd to get the 15-member board to reach an accord, with three board members—George Killeen and Harold Grove of Macomb County and Nansi Rowe from the city of Detroit—voting against the amendment. SEMTA

"I don't understand how council can bring up a notion like this and not let us know how much it will cost to sign up," said Dr. Pat Gardine, adding that figures as high as $36,000 had been mentioned as the cost of the project to an individual lot owner.

City Manager Steven Walters noted that it was impossible to provide an exact cost for individual homeowners, since the final assessment would depend on where the

Business is a monument to Allens' perseverance

By ANN CHOWDHURY

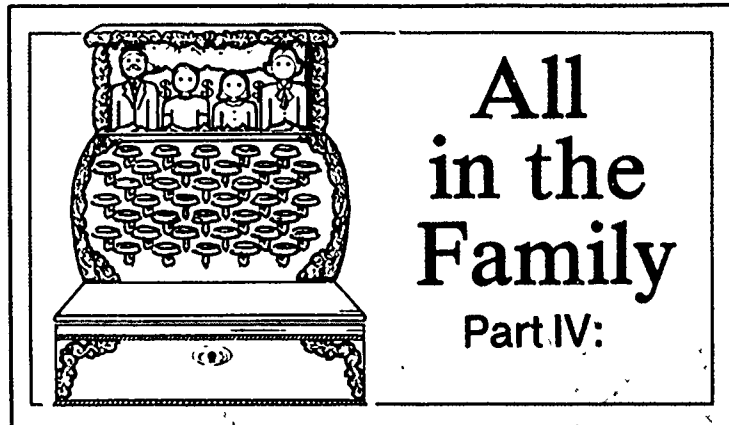

It was 1933, in the midst of the depression, that Mike Allen, 18, of Flint had to start planning a career. His father was a factory worker for Chevrolet, and Mike was the oldest of 10 children.

He knew his family would not be able to send him to college, but he went through the high school engineering course, sponsored with 16 other boys by General Motors, and took classes in commercial law, typing and bookkeeping. "I got the best I could without going to college," he says.

He remembers the principal of Flint Northern High advised him, "If you have the chance to learn a trade I'd advise you to do it," and that advice started him out on a path which resulted in Allen Monuments, a family business in which Mike's son, Jim, and grandson, Scott, are also involved.

Mike apprenticed himself to a man who made tombstones. "I started to learn my trade March 3, 1933, and have been making tombstones ever since," he reminisces.

"The old gentleman in Flint who taught me the trade was a real artist. He used to sit on a box in the shop, and he'd use his head and my hands, and that's what I've tried to do with my family, because he really taught me the trade.

"Everything was done by hand when I started. That's why I'm kind of hard of hearing, because we stood there with an air hammer all day long, cutting letters and carving the granite.

"Now with the sand blaster we don't have that noise right at our ears, but it's still noisy in the shop."

Mike has found that the trade he chose as a teenager has provided him a lifetime of satisfaction.

"In which other industry and in what other job is everything you have ever done still out there in society or in the world someplace? I can show you the first marker I ever worked on in Old Calvary Cemetery in Flint nearly 53 years ago."

In that time Allen Monuments has grown into the only monument company in the State of Michigan with its own manufacturing facilities. Most of the other shops just do the lettering, but Allen Monuments has the capability of taking the rough piece of granite and transforming it into the finished product.

After his apprenticeship, Mike Allen started his own small business in Flint and still has a display and sales office there. He then moved to Milford where he worked part-time for someone else, but, since there was not enough work in Milford, he started his own business on Cady Street, Northville, in 1937.

In 1941 he bought out the business in Milford, but zoning prevented expansion in that location, and in 1944 he bought property in Northville on the corner of Main and Griswold, now owned by Dr. William Demray.

Though he continued the sales office and display area in Milford, the headquarters of the business moved to its present location at 580 S. Main St. in Northville in 1955.

The reason his company has been so successful, Mike claims, is hard work. "It never got too hot or too cold for us to keep working and serving the public and to stand behind what we do."

Mike's first wife, Inga, was always very involved with the business. Their son Jim, 49, now fire chief for the city of Northville, drove around with his dad in the company truck since he was wrapped in a blanket. Jim finds the same pleasure in the work as his father does.

"I get a lot of satisfaction out of creating something, seeing a quality product and knowing that it's going to last forever, not like a car that will eventually be in a junk yard and melted down."

"We can go into cemeteries even in the northern part of the state and recognize our trademark (a diamond shape between the dates) and say, 'we put this one up'."

And Allen Monuments are used in cemeteries much farther afield than Michigan.

"We have set stones in New York, Tennessee, Missouri and Virginia,"

Education's still a priority for 12-year board trustee

By MICHELE M. FECHT

In her 12-year tenure on the Northville Board of Education, Karen Wilkinson has seen the direction of the local school district come almost full circle.

Elected to the board in 1974 during one of the district's greatest growth periods, she witnessed the construction of two additional elementarys and a middle school to help house Northville's bulging student population. A decade later, she supported closing one elementary and a junior high to better utilize the district's facilities due to declining student enrollment.

This September, a little more than a year after closing Cooke and Moraine, the district expects to see its first enrollment increase in 10 years.

For the first time in more than a decade, Wilkinson will not have to grapple with the district's fluctuating enrollment when the school buses head out of the garage next fall. That responsibility will rest on the shoulders of her successor, Joseph Dunkerley, and the remaining six board members.

Last week, the school board's longest-tenured trustee gave up the seat she has held for three consecutive terms to pull together any remaining loose ends before the family's move to South Carolina next month.

Having devoted most of her life to education — first as a teacher in Dearborn and later as a school board trustee at both the local and state level — Wilkinson says her move down south will not mean an end to her involvement.

"I hope to serve as a consultant in some capacity," Wilkinson notes, adding that she'll also remain on the Michigan Association of School Boards through September and will continue to serve on the Saturn Education Project steering committee.

Sitting in the living room of her Fermanagh home, which has yet to show signs of the family's pending move, Wilkinson says that while she'll be far from Northville when the new school year rolls around, the district she has serviced for more than a decade will not be far from her thoughts.

The most constant presence on the board since election to her first four-year term in 1974, Wilkinson not only has brought a wealth of knowledge and experience to her local post, but also has distinguished herself at the state level.

In 1978, she was elected to the 21-member board of MASB, eventually serving as its president in 1983-84 and regional president in 1984-85. In addition to MASB, she also served as one of three women members of the Michigan High School Athletic Association (completing her four-year term last December) and is a member of the Saturn Education

— Karen Wilkinson

Project, a statewide committee comprised of business, labor, education and government leaders exploring future trends in education and ways to implement ideas for the 21st century.

Leafing through a notebook filled with data on Saturn meetings, Wilkinson admits that the committee's work is one of her pet projects.

Brought together in May, 1985, the 16-member committee is exploring the future of education in much the same fashion General Motors Corporation used to develop its Saturn project.

"What we're really talking about is a no-holds-barred look at education and its delivery system," Wilkinson explains. "We're looking at what futurists are saying, where we are in education and what's the best way to be educating our kids."

The committee already has targeted seven school districts from across the state to participate in a conference next spring where these ideas will be presented.

The seven designated districts will send a cross section of their respective communities — from government officials and school board trustees to students and business leaders — to the conference to explore different concepts and hopefully implement them in their hometowns.

Wilkinson notes that the concept of bringing together all factions of a community to work on a specific educational goal is a tool Northville has been using for many years in dealing with issues such as school closings, the high school renovation, etc.

"Northville is unique in the sense that there are a lot of people involved in these decisions," she notes.

Through her involvement in such groups as MASB and the Saturn committee, Wilkinson has gained considerable insight into how futurists are viewing the educational process.

"I'm most excited about looking at the future — specifically what the work world will look like," Wilkinson relates.

One of the most pressing issues currently facing educators is the use of technology in the classroom, Wilkinson says.

While she views computers as the key tool in assisting the classroom teacher with instruction, Wilkinson says other technology such as satellite television will become an important component in the learning process.

Noting that today's teacher constantly combats television, Wilkinson says schools will need to look at television as a teaching tool — not simply as a form of entertainment.

A former junior high math, Spanish and French teacher, Wilkinson says today's classroom teacher faces challenges far different from those of their predecessors.

"I think the most dramatic change in teaching is individualizing instruction," she says. "The thrust still is on the group."

She also notes that the mechanics of teaching are changing with educators using a more holistic approach.

With several colleges and universities (including University of Michigan and Michigan State) currently in the throes of revamping their teaching programs, Wilkinson says she believes more of an emphasis will be placed on teaching skills.

"We will see teachers not only prepared in subject matter, but will be looking at how they teach," she notes.

"Colleges are beginning to listen to those in the education field," Wilkinson says of the efforts now being made to beef up teaching programs. "I think they're getting out of the ivory tower."

Though the constant activity of the past school year has kept school board trustees busy, Wilkinson says she has had time in the past few weeks to reflect on her 12 years with the district.

Having worked with three superintendents during her tenure on the school board, Wilkinson notes that the direction of the district has in many ways been a reflection of the top administrator.

"There was a lot of change and growth in the first four years," Wilkinson says of her first term working with then superintendent Raymond Spear. She notes that the district was in the process of building Winchester, Silver Springs and Meads Mill while also studying alternative uses for Main Street Elementary and the Annex (now Old Village School).

The year she was elected to the board, the district also initiated year-round school for grades K-5.

The Extended School Year (ESY) program, which eventually included secondary students, lasted five years before it was dropped.

Wilkinson notes the district had success with the ESY program at the elementary level, but "could never get the secondary program off the ground."

In 1975 — a year after year-round school was unveiled — the district adopted its Institution Special Education Program, servicing hundreds of students from the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Wilkinson describes her second term, from 1978-82, as being less fraught with change. She notes that superintendent Lawrence Nichols helped calm a somewhat tumultuous district and helped the system weather budget cutbacks and declining enrollment.

Of the last four years, Wilkinson says the board and administration have been responsive to the community's need for change — particularly in the curriculum area.

"Education has historically been responsive to society and its demands," Wilkinson observes. "I think the community was ready for futurism."

She says the areas of greatest improvement have been in community involvement and improvement of instruction.

"I think we've been very innovative in curriculum. Unfortunately, those things don't show as much."

"I think the board and the district have gotten much more open," she says.

"Maybe a keynote for Northville would be community schools."

Voters cautioned against spoiling ballots

Take a four person Republican race for governor. Toss in an 11-person field in the Democratic Wayne County executive race. Sprinkle in an increasing number of communities using punch card balloting in the August primary — and the potential exists for spoiled ballots.

In partisan primary elections, voters must select a party in which they will cast their ballots. No ticket splitting is allowed. Voting machines compensate for that by automatically locking out the other party once the voter decides whether to pull the lever for the Republican candidates or the Democrats. But with punch cards, there is no such safeguard. And given the heat of the Republican race for governor and the Democratic race for county executive in Wayne County, the number of potential spoiled ballots and the area from which they come may have an impact on individual races.

"I would think the potential for inadvertent spoiled ballots exists," said Susan J. Heintz, a Republican candidate for 10th District County Commission. "I've heard a lot of numbers bandied about, and some people think there may be as much as 20 percent spoilage."

"There is the potential for spoiled ballots," said Northville Township Clerk Georgina Goss. "But we really aren't anticipating a great number of them."

She added that if a voter realizes he has made an error, the voter can request another ballot. But if the mistake isn't caught, and the voter opts to choose, for example, to vote for William Lucas for governor, Edward McNamara for county executive and Susan Heintz for county commissioner, the ballot will not be counted. Lucas and Heintz are Republicans, McNamara's a Democrat. And all are well-known names in the township.

"People are really going to have to read the instructions carefully," Goss said. "And the most important thing is, if the voter is not sure, we do have people at the polls whom they can ask."

Robert Nash, Livonia City Clerk, says he does not anticipate a problem with potential spoiled ballots. Livonia voters have been using punch cards for a number of elections and the highest spoilage rate was under 3 percent, Nash said.

In Plymouth Township, which is using punch card voting for the first time, Clerk Esther Hulsing isn't quite sure what to expect.

"I'm sure the potential for spoiled ballots exists," she said. "But I'm not sure that will be the main problem. We'll just have to wait and see."

Allens' business etched in stone

Jim adds. Many times people originally from Michigan will come back to the Northville company because they want a special custom-designed memorial. Recently the family members of an attorney in West Virginia were unable to find a monument they liked for him in their home state.

His daughter, who was attending college in Flint, visited Allen Monuments who drew up a design to her liking, a round black granite stone inscribed with a pastoral scene. The family was so delighted with the design it had them manufacture, transport, and install it.

Jim's son Scott, 28, does most of the installation work. "I enjoy that because it's pulling the whole thing together," he says.

"First, I see it on the drafting table when my grandfather is designing it, then I see it manufactured. It's good to be able to pull the whole thing together and stand back and see it all set up."

Styles in monuments, like fashions in most things, change gradually over the years.

According to Jim, more families are making monument arrangements pre-need. He recommends this because it is easier to think clearly and make decisions then, rather than when grieving.

He said that many people are surprised to find restrictions by many cemeteries on the size and kind of monuments allowed and not everyone knows about this when choosing a lot.

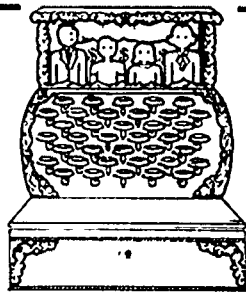

Many people do not realize either the large differences in price between the various colors of granite.

It can be red, black, green, yellow, pink, grey or blue. Different colors come from different states, and some are imported from as far away as Africa, Sweden, Finland and Ireland.

Within the United States granite is mined in Vermont, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Georgia and the Carolinas. Very little marble is used for monuments in Michigan because it can be damaged by the severe frost, whereas granite lasts indefinitely.

Red granite from Wisconsin is the most expensive because it is so hard and full of chips and cracks that only about 10 percent of what comes out of the quarry is in big enough pieces to use.

"Red granite was my mother's favorite stone," Jim notes. "We waited four years to get a piece large enough for her monument. The quarry had to work for it."

All in the Family Part IV:

"Because she was so involved with the business, we inscribed a diamond shape, like our trademark, on the stone, and since there were four of us in the family we inserted a design of four ivy leaves, her favorite leaves, in the diamonds."

It is becoming more and more popular, according to the Allens, to use symbolic art work rather than words or verse on the monuments to express the families' feelings, or record activities and hobbies that were important to the deceased.

The process of sand blasting makes possible the reproduction of fairly intricate designs, including portraits, on the monuments.

Some of them have particularly poignant messages, such as one on which a mother asked for a note her little boy had written for her shortly before he died to be reproduced on the stone.

Over the years the Allens have done many monuments for pets. Jim remembers one of their salesmen arranging the sale of a marker to a customer, while at the same time his dad sold one at over twice the price to another customer for a parakeet!

Though Allen Monuments is perhaps best known for its individual and custom designed tombstones, the family's expertise lends itself to numerous other projects.

It has produced many feature monuments for cemeteries and special memorials, such as the police monument in Flint Memorial Park, dedicated to the law enforcement officers in the area.

Another monument the Allens are proud of is the one that incorporates a piece of the Plymouth rock from Plymouth, England, which was presented to the people of Plymouth, wife, Pat, with daughter, Shari, son, Scott, and his wife, Debbie, and (in front) their children, Heather and Nicki.

Mich., in 1967.

Recently they were contracted to assist sculptor Peter Rockwell, son of the late artist Norman Rockwell, to install some play sculptures he had made for Plymouth Park.

Scott worked on a daily basis with Rockwell to hoist the pieces into place. According to Scott, it was a thrill to work with the artist who has lived in Rome for the last 25 years because of the availability of marble for his work.

"He worked alongside us every day," Scott relates. "His temperament was different from most artists. He would wear his work clothes, understand the problems and take our advice, and we'd take his. A lot of artists are in a world of their own but he's not like that."

"This would be bragging," Mike added thoughtfully, "but he said that we were the best qualified people to handle his work, and he would pay our expenses anywhere in the world to set work for him."

By coincidence, Mike had once met Norman Rockwell at the Rock of Ages Granite Quarry in Vermont and visited with him for about two hours. Peter had remembered he and his father had taken Mike back to the airport.

Because of the Allens' well-equipped shop they are sometimes called on to help with industrial jobs.

They have recently cut granite slabs for Photon Sources in Livonia to mount their laser machinery on. "Granite will not move with temperature changes like steel does," Mike explains.

The company has also recently recut all the steps for the Cadillac office building in Detroit. The granite steps had been shipped out of Vermont and none of them fitted, so, to save the steps being sent all the way back, Allen Monuments was able to do the job.

According to Mike, the Allen family has always been very close, and this is demonstrated by the number of family members who work in the business.

Mike's brother, Jerry, enjoys the artistic, hands-on work the shop offers, transferring the designs to the monuments and ensuring that everything is perfect before they are sandblasted in for eternity.

Jim's wife, Pat, takes care of the sales office in Milford, and their daughter, Shari, works in the Northville office.

Scott's wife, Debbie, is busy bringing up the two youngest Allens, their daughters Heather, 8, and Nicole, 6.

Despite the demands of the business, the Allens play an active role in the community.

Mike served as Northville's mayor for many years. He and his wife Betty (daughter of Dr. Linwood Snow) will soon be celebrating their tenth wedding anniversary.

Betty is a past president of the Northville Chamber of Commerce. She continues to serve as a member.

Mike recently estimated that his company has marked over 60,000 graves in Michigan and other places in the United States, helping people arrange appropriate and lasting tributes.

"It seems like a real source of satisfaction to a family," he says. "It's some internal feeling that's hard to explain, but it gives people a warm satisfying feeling when it's done."

Police Blotters

Club reports theft

In the township . . .

A black and white television set and a number of payroll checks were reported stolen from Meadowbrook Country Club June 27.

According to the police report, the caddy shack window was pried open between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m. and the items stolen. Although a check was made for latent fingerprints, none was found.

A radar detector, valued at $150, was reported stolen from a vehicle parked at Meijer's, June 26.

A Farmington Hills man told police he parked his car, went into the store, and when he returned the instrument was gone from the front seat.

Two Flint-area women face a July 22 court date following charges for stealing fishing equipment from Meijer.

According to the police report, the women changed the price tag on a downrigger with the price tag from a $8.88 tackle box. Store security watched the tag switch and notified police.

A Northville resident told police the two front tires and rims from his 1984 Dodge Daytona were stolen from the vehicle, parked in his garage June 26.

Although police checked for fingerprints, they did not find any.

A Northville man, out of town for the weekend June 21-23, returned June 23 to find his 1982 Chevrolet Suburban gone.

The man told police he parked his $6,500 vehicle in the parking lot in front of his home Friday. There are no suspects in the incident.

Two radar detectors, worth $500, have been reported stolen from two separate vehicles parked in the garage of a Camden Court residence.

The owner of the vehicles told police the garage was unlocked at the time of the June 28 robbery.

A variety of tools, worth an estimated $1,400, was reported stolen from the basement of a Weatherfield home June 26.

The homeowner told police he returned to her house at 6:10 p.m. and discovered a radial saw, shop vacuum, a stereo cabinet and an electric router missing.

Witnesses told police they noticed a U-Haul van parked in the driveway and two men carrying equipment from the house. The witnesses were unable to identify the men.

. . . in the city

A citation was issued to a South Lyon man following a minor two-car collision on June 30 at the intersection of Eight Mile and Taft roads.

According to a police report, a 59-year-old Garden City man was in the process of stopping his 1986 Ford at the traffic light while heading south on Taft just before Eight Mile, when a 1980 Chevrolet, driven by a 19-year-old from South Lyon, failed to stop and hit the Ford from behind.

The driver of the Chevrolet told police that the pavement was wet and he couldn't stop his vehicle. Northville Police issued a citation for failure to stop in the assured clear distance ahead.

State police help calm weekend prison incident

State Police officers helped guards at the Wayne County Correctional Facility Sunday restore quiet following a minor incident which left two guards slightly injured.

Trooper Charles Schumacher, community affairs officer for the Northville State Police Post said Tuesday reports of last weekend's incident may have exaggerated the severity of the incident.

Apparently, an inmate who had been drinking was being taken into custody by prison guards, while other prisoners milled around watching.

One guard sounded the alarm to signify a lockdown while another prison official reportedly alerted Plymouth Township and state police officials. By the time state police arrived, two guards had suffered minor injuries caused by inmates throwing rocks.

The State Police recorded an unusually high number of drinking and driving related arrests June 25-27. Twelve people were charged with drinking and driving during the weekend while six arrests were noted for the week.

Two California men are scheduled to be in 16th District Court Thursday, after being charged June 24 with possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

Frank Catanzarite, 44, and Paul David Spikes, 38, were driving erratically on northbound Interstate-275 when they were stopped by a motor carrier agent, assisted by the Michigan State Police Northville post.

Upon investigation, state police officers discovered 15 ounces of suspected cocaine and more than $16,000 in cash. The drugs had a street value of $50,000.

Arraignment was held June 25 before Judge Robert Brzenzinski, who set bond at $25,000 cash. If convicted, the two men face up to 20 years in jail.

The Northville Record

Our Opinions

District will miss dedicated trustee

Casting her final vote last week as a member of the Northville Board of Education, Karen Wilkinson ended 12 years of service to the district and left a void not likely to be filled for some time to come.

The longest tenured member of the board, Wilkinson now leaves that distinction to Christopher Johnson. While her experience has been an invaluable resource to board members and administrators, her involvement outside the local district has given Northville a dimension of credibility not found in many communities.

Wilkinson has distinguished herself at the state level through her eight-year involvement with the Michigan Association of School Boards. First elected to the 21-member board in 1978, she served as both president in 1983 and regional president — heading a nine-state region — in 1984.

In addition to her work with the state school board association, she also served as one of only three women members of the Michigan High School Athletic Association, ending her four-year term last December. Last year, Wilkinson was tapped to serve with a distinguished group of Michigan business leaders and educators on the Saturn Education Project steering committee. Her inclusion on that committee — which aims to address future education needs — is indicative of the respect Wilkinson has earned in the education arena.

During her tenure on Northville's school board, Wilkinson proved to be both a valuable team player and an independent thinker. Having twice served as president of the seven-member board, she sat at the helm during the lengthy superintendent's selection process four years ago.

A former teacher in the Dearborn school district, Wilkinson left her job to raise a family. However, she never abandoned her commitment to education. Prior to her appointment to the school board in 1974, Wilkinson was active in the Michigan Council of Cooperative Nurseries and served on the Michigan Child Care Legislation Committee.

Wilkinson's departure comes on the heels of one of Northville's busiest years. The successful implementation of the middle school program and the completion of the Northville High School renovation project culminate more than four years of hard work by educators, school board members and the community. It is fitting that these projects were completed before she took her leave.

We will miss Wilkinson's enthusiasm and her tireless commitment to serving the community. We wish her much success in her future endeavors and hope South Carolina realizes its good fortune.

July 4 celebration continues tradition

This Friday our Northville community is joining with many others throughout the state and nation to celebrate the 210th anniversary of the birth of this country. While many communities found a renewed patriotism 10 years ago during the Bicentennial, Northville has marked the Fourth festively for many years prior to 1976 and has continued to do so.

For Northville's many newcomers, the celebration is a fun event with families coming into town well before 10 a.m. to stake out prime viewing spots along the parade route. While the sponsoring Jaycees permit no campaigning during the parade, it traditionally has attracted many politicians, especially in an election year. The parade also is popular with classic and antique car buffs. This year the Jaycees promise lots of clowns to please young watchers.

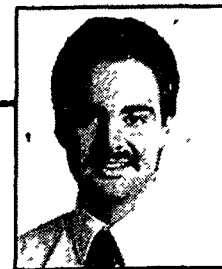

No, it's not perfect, and the Jaycees usually have a number of loose ends still hanging at the last minute — but they always manage to have everything under control when the parade starts. This is not a professional production but the volunteer effort of busy, working young men and women. They (with contributions from the city and township also) raise funds to put on the parade and the fireworks at dusk. This year's budget is in excess of $7,000.

Northville's celebration is a daylong one, moving to the Mill Race Historical Village after the parade for the Jaycee barbecue and entertainment by the gazebo. The setting itself contributes to the celebration. The buildings from another century remind visitors of the era following the Civil War. From the days of the American Revolution, the War of 1812, the Civil War, both World Wars and Vietnam our country has fought to keep its heritage of liberty.

With the unveiling of the refurbished Statue of Liberty this week, the 1986 celebration takes on added excitement. We're sure many residents will begin the Fourth observance by watching the ceremonies in New York on television. The fireworks at dusk set off from the high school hill are a glorious ending to the celebration.

By Neil Geoghegan

Nice image, hard reality

For the fourth time in five years, I shelled out at least $15 to see the Detroit Grand Prix in person a week or so back. I must admit that, since seeing my first Formula One race in 1981, I have become a fan of that type of racing and have followed the chase for the world driver's title closely ever since.

But in 1986, it seemed a bit different from all the other years at the race. No matter what everybody says, it seemed much more crowded than past Grand Prixes. Because the grandstand seats are so expensive and members of our entourage aren't exactly big spenders, the general admission ticket is all we spring for, and that just gets you inside the course. Once inside, you're on your own. You can go anywhere you want — except the prime viewing spots, of course. Those are reserved for the big companies and well-off people.

There is a spot though, that is probably better than most of the grandstands, and our group goes there every year. It's a great view about eight feet above the track and no more than 20 feet away. Since they outlawed folding chairs after Grand Prix I, there is no place to sit, but the view of the race is excellent.

The reason for not divulging the location should be clear. It's almost our personal place that only we know about. Unfortunately this year, our own little spot was much more crowded than in past years. That's why there seemed to be more race fans in '86.

After the race, I went home and watched the late-night replay of the race for the first time ever, and certain things dawned on me. I couldn't believe how nice, clean and exciting Detroit looked on T.V. With all the bad publicity the city receives, I'm sure there are people from all over the world saying things like, "that town doesn't look as bad as everybody says — it looks real nice."

And it really did. The Detroit River was sparkling, and dozens of boats bobbed on the water. The circuit runs around glistening modern skyscrapers like the Renaissance Center and old architectural classics like the Penobscot Building. There are thousands of happy people — the sun is shining and everything looks dandy.

Major Young loves it, Governor Blanchard loves it. They all say that sending out a positive image of the city is important — and it is. But let us face it, that's not an accurate picture at all.

The world doesn't see what I see driving downtown. It doesn't see the abandoned homes along the Lodge. It doesn't see the trash, the broken or boarded up windows, the slums, the vagrants or the poverty. Young doesn't want anybody to see this and neither does Blanchard. As a matter of fact, not too many people from Detroit, Michigan, or even our country enjoy the portrayal of such negative images about ourselves and our cities.

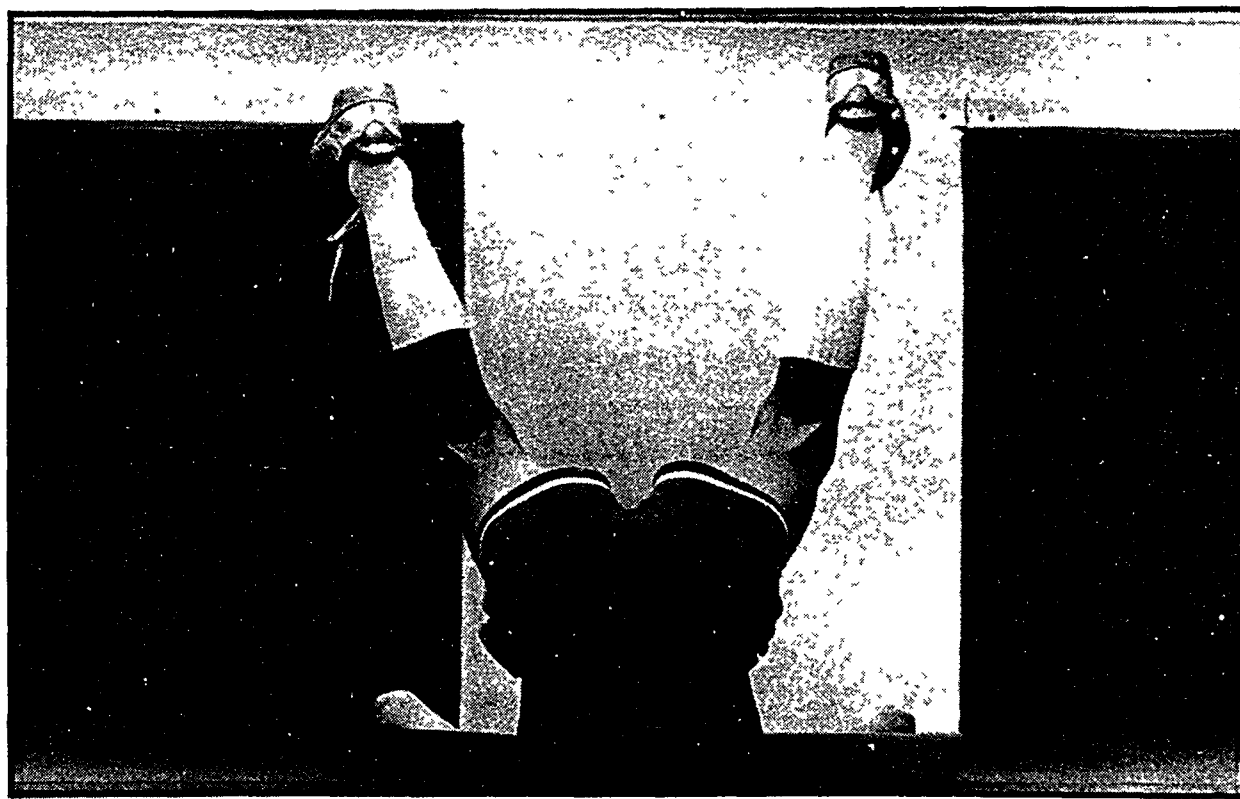

And this problem isn't just with Detroit. St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Washington, D.C., and most of our big cities are doing the same thing. Spruce up the downtown area, give the good impressions and be able to point at something as an achievement to be proud of.

The result is that the residential and outlying areas of the big cities take a back seat to the downtown projects. In Detroit, projects like the People Mover, Hart Plaza and others are there for the looks as much as anything else. And all the money needed to build these luxuries is taken right away from the people who live in the city.

As I sat, watching this world-class event from our own backyard, I was proud to see pictures of us at our best. But I couldn't help thinking of it as a big hoax. I don't really know what bothers me the most: an overturned and burning police car at the World Series, or a fake facade of a city and even a society more interested in images than in reality.

After the Fact

By Phil Jerome

It's official. My younger brother David is now older than I am.

Ol' David celebrated his 40th birthday at a truly memorable shindig last Sunday. Actually, David was co-honoree, sharing honors with Nels Carlson, the Northville Township attorney who looks more like David's brother than I do and who also reached two score this June.

How gala was it? Well, they closed the street to accommodate the 200 invited guests. They had a Harley-Davidson motorcycle and a 1965 Ford Mustang convertible parked in the front yard. There was a disc jockey, spinning oldies but goodies. And everybody was supposed to come dressed "for the occasion."

That "for the occasion" line was widely interpreted. Nick and Kathy Cosentino came dressed like hippies. Cheryl Gazlay wore her old high school cheerleading costume, while husband Chris Gazlay wore an old letter sweater, prompting my brother to ask who he borrowed it from.

There were several greasers, including yours truly. But my favorites may have been Bill and Dolly Dolle. Bill came as the fraternity boy he once was, complete with slicked-back hair, college letter sweater and his fraternity beanie. And the very fabulous Dolly Dolle (would I make up a name pronounced Dolly-Dolly?) was clad in a mini-dress.

I was handed the very choice assignment of serving as emcee of a "roast" for my dear older brother. And somebody even hired a "bag lady" comedienne to come in and insult the two birthday boys. I guess they were worried the amateur roasters wouldn't do a good enough job.

We played "The Name Game," did line dances and had a snowball dance. It was great fun — it really was.

But the part I like best was the knowledge that David is now officially older than I am — I've never celebrated my 40th birthday.

Is he above the law?

To the Editor:

On June 23 ('86) my friend and I just happened to notice a Northville City Police Officer take a lit cigarette out of his mouth and flick it on a public street in our subdivision.

When riding home, I happened to notice a sign that said: "Unlawful to litter $100 fine."

I just think that is wrong! (for a person to do that!)

Subdivision called filthy

To the Editor:

"If you seek a filthy subdivision — look around you — Northville Colony III."

We have straw, mud, dirt and gravel everywhere.

We have broken, cracked streets.

We have an administration in the township hall which will do nothing.

We have an administration in Wayne County which does nothing but collect our outrageously high taxes. It has washed the streets once in eight years, never plowed in winter and never cleaned the sewers.

Why are we tolerating this?

Why don't we annex ourselves to Oakland County?

Thanks of Rotary, Salem

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Northville Rotary Club, I wish to extend our appreciation to a number of local businesses and governmental agencies for their support and cooperation in the seventh Discover Northville Run. This year's event was a great success. The presence of 475 runners assured me the Run is here to stay.

Besides being a financial success for the Rotary Foundation's contribution to worthwhile causes, it gave us an opportunity to make people aware of Northville's beauty and hospitality.

We had representatives from over 75 communities and over 100 runners from Northville.

We wish to acknowledge and thank the guest appearance of Doug Kurtis, world class runner from Novi, for participating in the 10K run. Doug declined to compete for a 10K trophy.

To the supporters and workers a sincere thanks from the Northville Rotary Club. These supporters include Northville State Police and the city police and public works departments, and to Tom and Chris Maloney. A special thanks to Northville Downs for the use of its track and grandstand. Many, many compliments were received regarding the facilities. It makes a project of this magnitude easier to undertake when you have such cooperative businesses willing and ready to pitch in.

It was my pleasure to be associated with all of you.

So from all your fellow Rotarians, again a warm and sincere "thanks!"

To the Editor:

The Salem Area Historical Society would like to express its gratitude to all who supported or participated in its second annual public auction on June 7. The proceeds from this event will go towards the restoration of the historic Salem Stone Schoolhouse.

The auction was made possible not only by the efforts of the society members, but most importantly, by a broad base of enthusiastic support from the public. Private citizens generously responded with items to auction including many donated ones.

Donations from local merchants ranged from food and gift items to free advertisement. And the Whalen Auction Service, whose donated efforts made it all possible, extended themselves above and beyond the call of duty.

A hearty thank you to each and every one of you!

Joyful fantasy of JOA

As hard as it has been for me to refrain, I feel the time is now right to comment on the joint operating agreement being requested by the Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press. I don't like it. But as long as they are asking for the JOA, it's time other newspapers were given the same consideration.

I have an opportunity that would be hard to resist for some newspaper out in the journalistic world. Let's let The Northville Record enter into a JOA with, for instance, the Times of London.

I'll make it easy for the Times. The Record would be the failing newspaper. And, since it's failing, it would be up to the publisher of the Times to fly our staff to London so we could see exactly what type of newspaper we will be merging with.

Sports writer Neil Geoghegan may not like the idea too much, since he admits he prefers the Super Bowl to the World Cup and doesn't have much interest in the daily cricket results. But he could introduce baseball to the English and high school football to the prep schools.

When I talked the idea over with Editor Jean Day, she had some real concerns. Day admitted she has nothing to wear to Henley and prefers U.S. to British strawberries. So much for that JOA prospect.

The next most likely JOA partner seemed to be the paper in Seattle. The difficulty with that was whether we should join with the Times or the Post-Intelligencer and whether a city with one JOA would be willing to bring another newspaper into the fold — especially a paper in a community where the weather isn't a whole lot better than in Seattle.

Michele Fecht had a great idea. She thought a JOA with the Denver Post would fit the bill. But, with our luck, by the time we got approval from the Justice Department, the ski season would be over and the mountains would start to crumble.

Personally, I would like to blaze a new trail. Since The Northville Record, in this fanciful scenario, is a failing newspaper, we should really shop around. Say, spend December through March as a JOA chum with the Miami Herald; April in tandem with LeMonde in Paris; and May and June partnered with the newspaper in Honolulu.

In July, we'd let the Anchorage paper's staff come to Northville so it could discover warmth. But those staffers would have to give up 24 hours a day of sunlight — a small price to pay. Then we hit the road again for August in Nashville, Tenn., or Lexington, Ky., followed by a three month stint in southern Spain. Barcelona would not be such a bad location.

Unfortunately, joint operating agreements don't work that way. So, maybe it's time to bite the bullet and realize that The Northville Record not only is a successful paper, but we do a darn good job of bringing you the news. And whatever happens with the Detroit JOA, we're going to continue to do our job to the best of our ability.

As an aside, state Sen. Joseph Mack, D-Ironwood, may have the right idea on the Detroit JOA. In a press release from the Senate Democratic Office, Mack is quoted as wanting to remove the tax abatement granted the Free Press for building its new Detroit printing plant.

Mack said he is not opposed to the JOA in principle, but does object to using the tax abatement, "a valuable equity when two large corporate giants are entering into a merger of assets," as part of the merger.

"The Free Press was granted the tax forgiveness on the premise that the project would create new jobs," Mack said, noting that if the JOA is approved "up to a thousand jobs would be eliminated."

"I feel it is a flagrant violation of the spirit and intent of the tax abatement laws that were designed to promote new jobs, not layoffs," Mack concluded.

Congressmen express concerns about JOA plan

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a copy sent to The Record of a letter sent to W. Lawrence Wallace, assistant attorney general for administration in the Department of Justice. It is dated June 25.

Dear Mr. Wallace:

On April 14, 1986, the Gannett Company (owners of the Detroit News) and Knight-Ridder Newspapers, Inc. (owners of the Detroit Free Press) announced they had agreed to establish a joint operating agreement (JOA). Their announced intent is to create the Detroit Newspaper Agency, and request the U.S. Attorney General to grant it exemption from antitrust laws, as allowed by the Newspaper Preservation Action (NPA).

We believe the Detroit proposal should be carefully considered by the Attorney General's office. A historical look at newspaper ownership in the United States shows an increasing trend, in recent years, toward multiple corporate holdings. While there are many advantages to multiple ownership, we also are concerned by the potential this poses for creation of newspaper monopolies in major markets. Competition brings with it the guarantee of independent editorial viewpoint — which is in the best public interest.

Because the role of the Attorney General's office in the NPA process is to guarantee a joint venture is in the best public interest, we request your office hold public hearings on the Detroit JOA proposal. The hearing process will allow the opportunity to fully explore the proposed JOA and examine what safeguards will be provided against it becoming an editorial monopoly in the Detroit newspaper market.

We appreciate this opportunity to express our concerns with regard to the proposed Detroit JOA and hope that they will be taken into consideration as you review this important matter.

Sincerely,
William S. Broomfield

Turner seeks suburbs' help

Samuel A. Turner, a veteran county commissioner for 14 years from Detroit's northwest side, is probably best known countywide for the two years between 1981-1983 he spent as commission chairman.

Those were boisterous times — an era that shaped a county executive form of government with a new charter and a slightly less unwieldy commission of 15 instead of 27 members.

Today, Turner, 60, has closed the door on his secure commission seat, one he won in 1972, and has taken the plunge in running for county executive. Turner knows he needs not only to win Detroiters' votes — he is one of two Detroiters running in the 11-man Democratic field — but to gain favor in out-county areas.

Turner, a private practice attorney who previously ran an insurance company in Detroit for 15 years, hails from a district bordered roughly by Livernois and the Chrysler Freeway, the University of Detroit and Mumford High School, and includes the upscale residential area of Palmer Park.

Some political observers say the well-to-do Turner is out of touch with the low- and moderate-income residents who also reside in his district and the county.

His own background includes work as a Detroit welfare officer and supervisor and referee for the Michigan Civil Rights Commission.

Turner talked in a recent interview of the recent history of county reform and outlined a six-point platform

'I can't sit idly by when nutrition programs for school kids are reduced. That kind of thing burns me up ...'

Sam Turner

covering anti-crime measures, health concerns, industrial and commercial growth, recreation and government efficiency.

He noted also his opposition to the elimination of the drain commissioner's office, a proposal scheduled to be placed on the November general election ballot.

"My primary concern is to protect Wayne County taxpayers," Turner noted. "The only way to do that is to provide stronger checks and balances on the office of Drain Commissioner, not to eliminate it."

Turner spoke passionately on the federal cuts that have hurt the elderly and school children. He worried aloud that program cuts in home nursing care have forced the elderly to "suffer in silence" in nursing homes.

"The county executive has to interface with senators and congressmen and the people in Washington. Federal programs don't just come out of the blue. I can't sit idly by when nutrition programs for school kids are reduced. That kind of thing burns me up ... It's almost criminal the way the federal government is dealing with social problems," he said.

Turner said his proudest achievement in county government occurred in 1978 when he was involved in urging construction of new county welfare offices under the Bureau of Social Aid. Before that, rental offices had been used in less than desirable locations, including old warehouses. Conditions were so deplorable, he said, "no one wanted one in the neighborhood."

In four months, a new, efficient office design was in place in one model site and, eventually, "the pattern was set. Now, no one even notices them in the neighborhood."

Turner says the county should tackle its chronic jail overcrowding by moving less serious offenders into work release programs and force better cooperation between court officers and detention officials for speedy sentencing.

On the county's role in providing health care to indigent persons, he said the state should have full responsibility for that service. Currently, costs are shared between the county and state with extreme deficits being rung up.

On recreational interests, he said private enterprise should be tapped to develop increased revenues — and therefore more operating revenues — for the county's park system.

But Mannisto is not too busy to ensure safety in his pyrotechnical programs. He prides himself in never having been injured nor in having a member of his regular, six-person crew suffer a serious injury.

"I'm certainly aware of the danger," he says, "but that is part of the excitement. I think if fireworks were safe, I wouldn't enjoy working with them."

Mannisto says fireworks are shells, except instead of shrapnel being emitted when the firing is complete, it is paper that flies through the air. A fireworks injury is often a burn, unless, of course, the mortar explodes.

"That's often what happens when fireworks factories are blown up," Mannisto explains.

Mannisto's interest in fireworks was born when, as a youngster, he visited an uncle in Michigan's copper country. The uncle had a serious collection of fireworks.

"He (my uncle) explained the importance of 'working small,'" Mannisto explained, referring to using smaller shells and planning smaller configurations, rather than large, boisterous rockets.

"Now," Mannisto says, "economics preclude the large shells." He says a good fireworks show can cost $100 per minute. If larger shells were used, they could run as much as $3,000 each.

"It would make for a very quick show if I bought one of those," he says.

The most expensive shell Mannisto plans to use in his Friday night show is an eight-inch shell, and he says he bought two of them for Northville. He also plans to use roman candles, chrysanthemums and even some ground displays.

He hopes to implement a novel idea in his show, but is philosophical about the possibility of it not being noticed.

"Someone who works with fireworks looks at it quite differently than the common viewer," Mannisto says. "An experienced pyrotechnician knows about the difficulty in getting the colors just right and the shells firing at the right time. For most of the people, fireworks are just fireworks."

Obviously, for Keith Mannisto, fireworks are something else.

lines would actually attach to individual homes.

George Buelow, president of the homeowners' association and a proponent of water, said when the association circulated petitions recently, "we put down costs which as near as we could determine were accurate. A lot of people have circulated petitions with erroneous economics."

In the end, however, council decided to side with the majority.

"It has always been my position that the majority ruled," Vernon said, in suggesting that the water district be turned down.

"In other districts, we could afford to carry the small number of homeowners who didn't want to sign up for water or sewer immediately.

But with this district, council could not afford to do that," added Councilmember Carolann Ayers, in voting not to establish the district.

However, immediately after the unanimous vote to kill the water district, one homeowner questioned whether it would be possible, once water and sewers were in place, that a homeowner could elect to patch in to the system.

SEMTA finally passes a budget reduce the appropriation the city of Detroit transportation system receives by $600,000. Should SEMTA income increase by the end of the second quarter, SEMTA general manager Alfred Martin would attempt to restore the SEMTA and D-DOT funds in accordance with budget procedures.

Martin told the commissioners it was "probable Act 51 (gas and weight tax) monies would exceed the budgeted amount," but cautioned board members to "avoid the idea we are passing a deficit budget. We have historically received more money from the state than the amount budgeted," he said.

Northville Township Supervisor Susan Heintz voted with the majority to approve the budget as amended, and also voted with the nine members who would have approved the original budget. She voted against an amendment, proposed by Killeen, which would have divided the deficit and forced SEMTA and D-DOT each to share the $2.1 million shortfall.

The Northville Record

Long wait hinders momentum

It hasn't been an ideal start for Northville's Connie Mack baseball entry this season.

The first few weeks of play have been plagued by constant delays, postponements and long waits — not to mention a few losses thrown in. After half a dozen games, Northville has an unimpressive 2-3-1 record.

"It's been stop and start all season so far," Coach Bob Frellick complained. "It seems like we just start to get a little momentum and either the rain or something else stops us. I do believe our team continues to play well, but we just can't get any momentum going."

Another disturbing development for Frellick and the team was the defection of two squads from the Connie Mack League. Entries from Garden City and Taylor dropped out of the league last week, leaving gaping holes in the remaining teams' schedules.

"With the teams dropping out and the rain outs, we're really just into the season," Frellick said. "There have been a lot of games rescheduled."

Frellick's team is comprised of all Northville kids, with the majority coming from the Mustang varsity baseball ranks. As a matter of fact, only five players (including Doug Martin, George Daraban, John Lobia, Dan Skoh and Kelly Bell) are on the roster who didn't play for Frellick in the spring.

"We're a team made up of only Northville players," Frellick said. "There has only been one year we went outside of this area for players and that was when there weren't enough players to have a team. Other than that one time, we've never gone for players outside our area — but a lot of the other teams do."

With many of the players in the league coming from high school teams in the Western Lakes Activities Association, Frellick and the Northville players know the talent and know exactly what they are up against.

Novi's Doug Kurtis at the Rotary Run

Rotary Run draws nearly 500 to Northville streets

For the seventh straight year, runners in the Discover Northville Rotary Run discovered the city through frequently tired and sweat-filled eyes.

The streets of Northville swelled with runners on Saturday (June 28) morning from Northville Downs to Parmenter's Cider Mill to Joe Denton Park — all making the seventh annual mile fun run along with the five and 10-kilometer runs a success.

Race Director Dick Milder reported that the entries for the race were down nearly 80 people from last year, but the hot and humid weather had something to do with it.

"I was told by several runners that the heat was a major factor," Milder said. "Some people didn't bring their friends along — I think the heat deterred some people."

All 475 entries received a free towel as well as food and refreshments after the race. Proceeds will go to various community service projects backed by the Northville Rotary.

In the men's 10 kilometer run, Novi's world class marathoner Doug Kurtis was the first to the finish line in a time of 32:43 but was only entered as a complimentary runner. When Tim Quinn crossed the finish line a few minutes later, he was very surprised to find that he was the overall winner.

GOLF NOTES

Locals play in golf tour

The World Series of Golf Tour just completed its first Michigan qualifier, and three local golfers joined 158 others at Forest Akers Golf Course at Michigan State University.

Approximately the top 25 high school golfers won the opportunity to play against the best players in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin in the five-event Regional Tour beginning in July.

Northville resident Mark Stephens, a freshman last school year at Redford Catholic Central, was the second highest finishing ninth grader in the tournament with a two round total of 87-75 — 162. Stephen's score put him in a tie for 40th place.

Brothers John and James Nordbeck of Northville also competed in the event last weekend. John, a junior at Northville High last year, recorded a 92-85 — 177, good for a tie for 112th place. James, a freshman, was right behind his brother with a 93-85 — 178, and in a tie 116th.

The overall winner was Wayne Muller, a sophomore at Lansing Catholic Central, who shot a fine 79-64 — 143 and won by five strokes.

Clinic by pro golfer slated

Golf Professional Mark Pfeil will be at Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville on July 7 to present an exhibition clinic to junior golfers participating in the Great Lakes Junior Masters Golf Tournament.

Pfeil will demonstrate shots and techniques during the noon-1 hour between the morning and afternoon shotgun starts for the nearly 300 young golfers.

Currently from La Quinta Country Club near Palm Springs, Calif., Pfeil won his last tour victory in the 1980 Tallahassee Open, but last year finished a respectable fifth in the Doral Eastern and sixth in the Andy Williams tournaments. In 1984, he ranked 69th on the tour with earnings of $101,878.

There will be a full field of young golfers at the third Great Lakes Junior Masters. After 36 holes, the field will be cut to 144 players. Prizes will be awarded in the following age categories: boys 11-13, 14-15, 16-17; and girls 11-14, 15-17.

Clemens sinks hole-in-one

Northville resident Terry Clemens, 36, recorded his first hole in one in 29 years of golfing on June 11. But it wasn't just an ordinary hole-in-one.

Clemens used a seven-iron on the 143-yard par three second hole at Verona Hills Country Club in Bad Axe, Mich., and hit the cup — on the fly — for the hole-in-one. Clemens reported that the force of the shot actually tore the cup up a bit, but the ball stayed in.

Clemens shot a 40-47 — 87 for 18 holes that day. Ironically, a dentist recorded a hole in one on the same hole just an hour earlier.

Two Northville residents who are members of Meadowbrook Country Club also had aces recently. John DeMattia shot a hole-in-one on the sixth hole during the One Day Member Guest Day Tournament on June 17. Jack Doheny added an ace on the eighth hole at Meadowbrook during Twilight Golf.

Holzer splits 4, holds onto second

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Livonia Adray and Walters Appliance were the two teams expected to fight it out for the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League title in '86, but two darkhorses have taken the initiative and made it a four-way race.

Redford Little Caesars is currently at the top of the LCBL standings and Northville's entry — Tom Holzer Ford — is right in the thick of things as well in a tie for second place. On June 18, Holzer knocked off Walters 8-2 and then last week Adray fell 2-1 in the second game of a doubleheader.

Those two wins are more important than just another notch in the win column — they showed the Holzer players that they can compete at this level and can win.

"Wins like that are big mental wins," co-coach Fred Schmidt said. "It's the first time since we've been in the league that we have been able to beat (Adray). We have always seemed to be pretty equal in talent, but Adray's experience always seemed to pull it out for them — that is until Sunday."

For the week, Holzer went 2-2 and now has a 9-6-1 overall mark. After the doubleheader split with Adray on June 22, Holzer nipped Wendys 7-6 on June 25 and then dropped a close 10-9 decision to Little Caesars last Friday (June 27).

But the big win of the week was the nightcap of the double header with Adray. Starter Dan Kopitske out-dualed the league's top arm — Rick Rosman — and pulled out a seven-hit 2-1 win. After giving up a run in the first inning, Kopitske settled down to blank Adray the rest of the way. He fanned 11, walked just four and pitched no-hit ball the final three innings.

"Kopitske pitched the best game since we've been in the league," Schmidt related. "He was absolutely dominating. In the last four innings he just blew the ball right by them."

Trailing 1-0 in the fourth, Troy Connors lead off the inning with a solo homer to tie it. Martin Eddy then doubled and scored the winner on a hit by Chris Stout. Eddy and Eric Engel paced the Holzer hitting attack with two hits each.

It was Stout's first hit of the year as coaches Bob Peterson and Schmidt

Holzer's Scott Peterson, caught in a run-down, is tagged out by a Walters' player had a hunch, put the pitcher in as a pinch hitter and watched him come through with the game-winner.

The opener was a complete reversal from the second game pitchers' dual. Adray scored early and often to record a 16-5 trouncing. Holzer starter Dan Zang had control problems in the first two innings, and Adray zipped to a 7-0 lead. In the third, Holzer came back with a five-run rally to cut the lead to two, but Adray scored three in the fifth and six more in the sixth to complete the rout. Eddy was the only Holzer player with two hits in the game.

Holzer nicked and dimed its way to the win against Wendys, scoring at least one run in five of six innings.

Trailing 2-0 after Wendys' initial at bat, Holzer tied it up as Connors scored on an RBI single by Eddy. With two out, Eddy then scored on a hit by Scott Draper.

After adding a run in the second without the aid of a hit, Holzer starter Chris Willerer ran into trouble in the fourth and the defense behind him continued to make costly errors. Wendys scored three times to regain the lead 5-3 and chase Willerer in favor of Marc Pearsall.

But Pearsall walked two and hit a batter in the fifth to give Wendys a 6-4 spread. Holzer came back with two runs in the bottom of the fifth to tie it and added one in the sixth to win it. The winner came on a two-out single by Troy Connors. Greg Ryba grabbed his first win of the season in relief of Pearsall. Ryba went three strong innings, struck out four, walked one and gave up only one hit.

"We played like a contender," Schmidt explained. "We had the hits when we needed them and pulled out a game we should have won. But the big story was Greg Ryba. He came in and did a fantastic job in relief."

Sloppy fielding continued to plague Holzer in the loss to Little Caesars on Friday. Eight crucial errors and some lackadaisical play wasted a 9-6 hitting edge for Holzer.

League Line

BASEBALL: Expos come from behind to nip the Padres

G-LEAGUE: The Reds nipped the Braves 5-4 on June 10. Jerry Birdall smacked a triple and a single for the Reds while Mike Kirkman added a pair of hits. On June 16, the Reds dropped a high scoring affair with the Astros by a score of 18-15 in extra innings. Leading hitters for the Reds were Rob Clark (three hits) and Brian Cannon (three RBIs). The Padres put together three big innings and belted out a dozen hits in a 12-2 trouncing of the Mets of June 17. Mike Toty, Eric Shaw and Kevin Shaw each had two hits while George Smooyer and Joey Staknis smacked homers for the winners. Padres upped their record to 9-2. The Angels handled the Reds 17-8 on June 17. Brian Cannon led the Reds' attack with three hits and a run batted in. The Expos, trailing 2-1 at the time, scored two runs in the fifth inning and pulled out an exciting 3-2 win over the Padres on June 18. Eric Shaw was the Padres' offensive star and Kevin Worth was the standout on defense. The Pirates bounced the Giants 15-3 on June 18 thanks to five-run scoring outbursts in the second, third and fifth innings. Mike Mathews had two hits and four RBIs and Jim O'Doherty added a pair of hits and four stolen bases. The Astros scored 10 runs in the first two innings and cruised to an overwhelming 13-3 triumph over the Mets on June 19. Adam Fisher belted his first homer of the season and added a triple for the Astros. Kevin Rosinski pitched two innings, struck out three and earned the win. On June 20, the Astros crushed the Expos 12-1. After one inning, the Astros had a 4-0 lead that ballooned to 9-0 by the third. Aaron Hodgkin had two hits including a homer, four runs batted in and was the winning pitcher. Both teams even their records at 8-3. A last inning run by the Reds avoided the shut out, but the team couldn't avoid an 11-1 loss to the Padres on June 23. George Smooyer led the Padre attack with a homer, a single and two RBIs. Brett Butz, Kevin Worth and Chris Shepard also contributed at the plate for the winners. In what Coach Bob Cummings called a "great team effort," the Braves exploded for many runs in a 15-2 victory over the Giants on June 23. Jeremy Lawrence (grand slam) and John Garr (3-for-4) paced the hitting and pitcher Chris Heaton recorded the win.

H-LEAGUE: The Reds beat the Cubs 5-4 behind strong pitching by Ross Fleming and Ryan Smallwood. A late rally, spurred by a John Wilds' home run and two triples from Jamie Heitert and Greg Meehan completed the comeback. Chuck Apiligan and Brian Jackson each knocked in two runs for the Cubs. The Reds shut out the Mets 4-0 behind a three-run triple by Aaron Snider and did the same to the Phillies thanks to a homer by David Morelli. Reds' pitchers Ryan Smallwood, Steven Moore and Ross Fleming each hurled two innings in these back-to-back shutouts. The Expos hung tough against the Dodgers until the fifth inning of the contest on June 12. The Dodgers scored four times to break a 1-1 tie and went on to win 5-1. John Buser and Andy Genti's pitching kept the Expos close, but the hitting let the team down. On June 14, the Braves forfeited a win to the Expos, upping their overall mark to 4-4. Trailing 7-0 after three innings, the Expos staged a comeback and won 8-7 over the Pirates on June 17. A clutch bases-loaded double by Matt Popov was the big hit in the fourth inning. Andy Genti put in a solid pitching performance for the Expos.

The Braves' secondbaseman avoids a sliding Padres player

SOCCKER: WSSL United squad wins Michigan Cup

WSSL UNITED: The WSSL United girls soccer squad, a locally based team sponsored by the Northville Soccer Club, won the 1986 Michigan State Cup Championship. United nipped the Troy Bluebreaks 2-1 on June 7 in Sterling Heights to win the title. Northville's Marcie Dart converted a perfectly placed corner kick with an assist by Sara Hayes of Canton. United's second goal was scored on a break-away by Amy Trunk of Farmington Hills. United Coaches are Bob Dart from Northville and George Martin of Farmington Hills. The Michigan State Cup Championship is an annual event to determine the single best team in statewide competition in various age levels. The winners advance to the Midwest Regional Tournament held in Carmel, Ind., on July 19-20.

United's victory comes on the heels of a tremendous showing in the recent Buckeye Invitational Tournament. At the largest soccer tournament in the Midwest, United went 5-0-1 to bring home first place. It did so by defeating the Missouri State Champions in the quarterfinals and the Ohio (South) State Champions in a shootout in the finals. United plays its league soccer in the Bonanza Premier Soccer League of the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association. Northville players include Andrea Barber, Nayssa Colizzi, Liz DeMatia, Jennifer Howland, Dana Lehmkuhl and Kristy Turner.

SOFTBALL: Falcons clinch league championship

GIRLS INTERMEDIATE: The Aztecs came from behind to pull out a 10-9 win over the Sunbirds on June 18. Carrie Isabell went 4-for-4 and provided excellent relief pitching for the last three innings to help in the win. Kris Wetzel (3-for-4 and two RBIs) and Jenny Smith (3-for-4 and two RBIs) added support for the Aztecs. The Liberties scored runs in six of seven innings en route to a 19-8 win over the Sunbirds on June 18. Of the Liberties' 25 hits, Allison Downs and Jenny Juzase each had four. Laura MacDuff added five RBIs. On June 23, the Liberties blasted out 27 hits to beat the Travellers 19-4. Cathy Best (4-for-4 and four RBIs), Sue LaPrad (4-for-4) and Cindy MacDuff (3-for-3) paced the hitting attack for the winners. The Falcons scored four runs in the third and again in the seventh and beat the Sunbirds 11-4 on June 23. Standouts for the Falcons were Barb Woodruff, Diane Beckert, Jennifer Finley and Donna Donnelly. Jenny Young and Lauri Fortenberry each had three hits for the Sunbirds.

GIRLS PRIMARY: On June 19, the Falcons defeated the Travellers 3-1 in a very well played game. Sarah Christenson pitched a six-hit complete game, had five strike outs and got the win. Gwen Gnswood, Lori George and Jodi Buttigieg each had three hits and provided great defense for the Falcons.

Delays hinder team's progress

"It's a competitive league, just like it was in the WLA," Frelick admitted. "From what I see, we are going to be a competitive team, but the other teams that go outside their community for talent are generally the league's top teams."

In the season opener versus Waterford on June 17, Northville blew a 4-0 lead and had to settle for a 5-5 tie. In the first inning, Paul Newitt, Mark Olsen and Daraban each drove in runs to help the team take an early 3-0 advantage. But in the fifth, Waterford scored four times off starter Doug Martin, which eventually tied it up. After nine innings, play was halted because of darkness.

On June 21, Northville dropped a 4-2 decision to Westland despite a nice comeback bid. Westland scored all four of its runs in the second, third and fourth innings only to see Northville respond with a pair in last inning—but it wasn't enough. Martin smacked a one-out single in the seventh that drove in both runs.

With runs in five of seven innings on June 24, Northville turned back West Seven 8-4 behind nice hitting by Keith Dutkiewicz and Mark Olsen. Dutkiewicz went 3-for-4, scored twice and drove in one while Olsen added two hits and two RBIs. Dutkiewicz was also impressive on the mound as he fanned 10 batters, gave up just three hits and got the win.

With the score tied 4-4 in the ninth inning against North Farmington-West Bloomfield on June 26, a two-run single by John Lobbia and a sacrifice by Jeff Harp put Northville in front 7-4. But North Farmington came back with four runs in the bottom of the inning off reliever Tony Craig to win it 8-7. Eric Terlecki, Peterson and Lobbia each had two hits in the game.

Last Saturday, Northville split a doubleheader with Windsor, Ont. In the first game, Windsor tagged Peterson for six runs in the first and four more in the second en route to a 21-9 victory. The home team did score some runs in the middle innings and actually cut the lead to 16-9, but Windsor then reeled off a five run rally in the seventh to put it away.

But in the nightcap, Northville turned the tables and cruised to an 18-7 win. Dutkiewicz (3-for-4 and four RBIs), Olsen (3-for-3 and three RBIs), Newitt (2-for-2) and Terlecki (2-for-4) were the hitting stars. Bell was the starter, gave up four earned runs, seven hits and got the win.

Holzer holds on to second place

Starter Chris Stout was tagged for six runs in three innings, including a three-run homer by Caesars' Tom Oster in the second inning, but Holzer stayed close and trailed 6-5 after three. Chris Dominique came on in relief for the final three innings and gave up just one hit—but it was a two-run shot to Oster.

With Caesars ahead 10-5, Holzer scored four runs in the sixth to slice the lead to one but ran out of gas. Eddy had another remarkable hitting day, belting two homers and collecting five RBIs. Scott Draper added a three-run homer and Kevin Ritter went 2-for-3 on the day.

"Even though we lost, it was really an exciting game," Schmidt said. "We got beat but it was our own fault—nobody can make eight errors and still expect to win."

Developer turns Silver Lake into exclusive resort

By VICKI GRICE

A special "fantasyland" is now available in Green Oak Township for people few who enjoy water sports but prefer them in the privacy of their own backyards.

Silver Fox Estates, a unique waterfront residential development, was created with the waterskier in mind. Encompassed by 200 acres of scenic land, Silver Fox Lake is the former site of Tivoli Gardens, host of the 1978 American Water Skiing Association Nationals and practice site of many dedicated skiers.

Brighton developer Tim Mahoney, who recently bought the land from the large American Aggregates Corp. mining company, divided the area into 15 plots of land. The homesites range in size from 7.5 to 13 acres, all of them surrounding crystal clear Silver Fox Lake.

The natural amphitheater that has made the lake such a popular site for water skiing events now provides prospective home buyers with a selection of elevated homesites, each with an excellent view of the lake and surrounding park areas.

In addition to the individual homesites, all lot owners will have access to 30 acres of community areas including three private beaches, a tennis court, picnic areas, and, eventually, horse stables and bridle trails.

The community is strictly private and has no public access.

"The intention for this development is to provide my family and 14 neighbors the luxury of waterfront living in a rural atmosphere," Mahoney explains. "Underpopulating a lake is a rare commodity and will ensure the preservation of the ecological beauty of the whole area."

Three homesites at Silver Fox

Estates have been designed so that buyers can enjoy both waterfront living and simple access to the stables area. A nature trail encircles the 200-acre development providing about two miles of trails for walking or riding enjoyment.

Mahoney, a partner in the Farmington-based Logical Design Corp. computer software firm, was introduced to the site in the late 1970s as a competitive waterskier. Though no longer a tournament participant, the developer still enjoys a daily 15-minute workout on a slalom course.

While Silver Fox Lake is widely known for its ideal waterskiing conditions, Mahoney is quick to point out many other attractions available to prospective home builders. Anglers will appreciate the lake because of a fish stocking program implemented there years ago by American Aggregates.

"With the abundance of recreational activities and central park area, I feel the homeowners will be able to enjoy their neighbors without being either isolated or suffocated," Mahoney said.

Two homesites have already been sold at Silver Fox Estates, and construction is expected to begin in approximately eight weeks, according to Mahoney. This summer the developer is devoting his time to establishing beaches and picnic areas, and planting more trees along the lakeshore.

Roads leading into Silver Fox Estates will also be developed this summer, with one coming off of McCabe Road and another providing access from Silver Lake Drive.

To avoid overcrowding on the lake, access to motor boats will be provided to residents as opposed to allowing the use of individual privately-owned area."

Business Briefs

THE QUANEX CORP., the parent company of South Lyon's Michigan Seamless Tube Division, recently announced a 12 percent jump in net sales from its second quarter of last year.

Net sales were $87.8 million for the quarter ending April 30 as compared to $78.7 million for the same period in 1985.

Quanex, which is now based in Houston, Texas, also reported a loss from operations of $1.2 million versus earnings from operations of $6.6 million in the second quarter last year. Net loss for the latest reporting period was $5 million or 40 cents per share versus a net income of $4.6 million or 43 cents per share last year.

The increase in net sales for this quarter was due primarily to the sales from MacSteel-Arkansas, which began commercial operations April 1, 1985, and sales from the Bellville Tube Division, which resumed operations on a quarter-to-quarter basis in late October 1985.

Quanex Corp. manufactures hot-rolled and cold-finished steel bars, seamless and welded steel tubing, titanium and super alloy forgings and mill products, and oil field tubing. The company concentrates on proprietary grades and customized products used in the machinery, transportation and energy industries.

"PRIDE IN YOUR HORSE, ER's Saddlery of course" is the new slogan for ER's Saddlery Inc. in downtown South Lyon.

The slogan, which was one of over 120 suggested by store customers in a recent contest, meant a brand new pair of boots for first prize winner Eileen LaFontaine of Howell. Marilyn Fox and Nancy Hummel, both of South Lyon, claimed $100 and $50 gift certificates, respectively, for submitting second and third prize-winning slogans.

The slogans were judged by a panel of South Lyon city officials. The winning entry will be used in store advertising and promotions, explained store manager Linda Stawick, and will replace ER's old motto, "A Western store and a whole lot more."

CAROLINE KOLAKOWSKI of Northville, a sales agent at Real Estate One's Livonia office, has been honored by the company for outstanding achievement in her field. She was presented Real Estate One's REO award at the company's 16th annual awards banquet at the Westin Hotel in Detroit.

The award is presented annually to a sales associate who has demonstrated professional ethics, outstanding client service and commitment to the company and its creed, "Every Day, We Earn America's Trust."

Kolakowski began her real estate career in 1964 when she joined Elsea Realty (one of four companies which merged in 1970 to form Real Estate One). Her sales volume in 1985 was $3.7 million, putting her among the top 10 sales associates in the company's network of over 1,500 sales agents.

In presenting the award, Real Estate One President Richard Elsea said Kolakowski had received more response cards from satisfied customers than any other sales associate in the company.

motor boats on the lake.

Individuals who purchase homesites around the lake will automatically receive keys to the water crafts, which will be available on a reservation basis, explained Mahoney.

An architectural control committee has been set up to review proposed construction at Silver Fox Estates. Local architects and homebuilders are familiar with the homesites and can assist purchasers in their home selection, said Mahoney.

After a few sites have been developed, Mahoney plans to complete the building of the homes in the waterfront community himself.

Waterfront parcels are priced starting at $75,000, and completed homesites are expected to reach an average of $225,000.

"This development will attract the type of home buyer who is looking for something that offers more than the typical postage stamp-size lake lot or the cluster-style subdivisions," said Mahoney.

Sites are available for viewing Saturday or Sunday afternoons or by appointment through Michigan Group Realtors Marie Coulter or Renae Hockaday.

Making the 'right moves' for business and finances

Do you own a small business? Are you in need of personal financial planning?

If the answer to either of those questions is "yes," a publication entitled "Making the Right Moves in Business" will help you with the many decisions involved in owning a small business and planning your finances.

"Making the Right Moves in Business" is the 1986 edition of the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants' (MACPA) annual small business tabloid.

The articles, written by CPAs, reflect the business skills and knowledge required by the profession.

The 16-page publication includes answers to such questions as "How can I manage my time more effectively?" or "Do I need to computerize my business?" or "Should I consider employee leasing?"

Complimentary copies of "Making the Right Moves in Business" are available from the Michigan Association of CPAs at Post Office Box 9054, Farmington Hills, MI 48018.

Investigate all possibilities before refinancing mortgage

Not since 1980 have interest rates been so low. Many people who bought homes during the last five years are carrying mortgages with interest rates as high as 18 percent; refinancing your mortgage for a lower rate could save you money.

Now, with rates having dipped to about 10 percent, refinancing your mortgage for a lower rate could save you money. But is it worth it?

How much you save depends on the cost of the new loan and how much longer you stay in your home, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs. Generally, at least two percentage points should separate the rate of your existing mortgage and the refinanced mortgage. Also, as a rule of thumb, you should own your home for at least two years after refinancing to recoup the cost of refinancing.

A new mortgage doesn't come easily or cheaply. All the normal closing costs must be paid, as well as an origination fee in the form of "points." You may also need money to make a larger down payment and to pay a possible prepayment penalty.

Total all the expected refinancing costs and fees, then divide that figure by the anticipated difference in monthly payments. This will tell you how many months it will take to get back the cost of your new mortgage. If it's less than the length of time you intend to live in your house, refinancing will save you money.

Say you have a 15 percent mortgage and a $70,000 balance. Payments are $889 a month. Your bank will give you a 30-year fixed rate loan for 12 percent if you refinance. The new monthly payment of $720, if subtracted from your current payment of $889, would save you $169 a month. But suppose refinancing costs come to $3,400. To recoup that cost, you must live in your home for an additional 20 months ($3,400 divided by $169).

For another example, let's say you have a $50,000, 30-year mortgage at 14 percent with monthly payments of $592. By refinancing at a rate of 10 percent, those payments would be $438, a savings of $154. If escrow and closing cost come to $2,500, you could recoup that cost in about 16 months.

Remember that, although refinancing results in an improved cash flow, a lower interest rate means a smaller tax deduction and therefore a smaller tax savings from the new lower-interest loan. To do your own calculations, you will need the following figures for the current interest rate, points, other closing costs, downpayment and prepayment penalties, if any.

Interest rate. Start by asking the bank, savings & loan or lending company that holds your mortgage what its current interest rate is. Also, call other mortgage companies and see what they can offer.

Take this opportunity to investigate adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs). Most likely, their rates will be lower than the 30-year fixed rate mortgage for at least the first year, allowing you to break even on your finance charges even sooner. Remember, if interest rates increase, your interest charges will probably increase as well.

Another alternative is the 15-year mortgage. The interest rate may be lower than your conventional loan, but the shorter payback term means higher monthly payments. Those payments, however, will cut your total interest charges drastically by the time the loan is paid off.

Closing costs. Ask the lender how much closing costs will total. They usually include costs for loan origination (points), title examination and insurance, attorney's fees, deed recording, house appraisal, survey and credit check.

Owner's equity. As with your original loan, you will have to leave from five to as much as 20 percent equity in the property, depending on what your mortgage broker requires.

Prepayment penalty. Make sure you figure any prepayment penalty on your first mortgage. A one to two point penalty could be substantial, but is also tax deductible.

Now total all your refinancing expenses, then calculate the savings per month and the length of time needed to recover your expenses. If the interest rate on your existing mortgage is at least two percentage points higher than the one you are considering, say CPAs, chances are you will be pleased with the outcome.

Michigan's Travel Bureau adds national phone line

John Savich, director of the Michigan Travel Bureau, reports that Michigan now has an easy-to-remember toll-free connection throughout the entire continental United States.

The new number is 800 5432-YES. "Our previous toll-free number was neither memorable nor national," said Savich. "But Michigan's tourist market is expanding from regional to national as more and more travel writers are asking about Michigan and articles are appearing in major newspapers like the Los Angeles Times, Miami Herald and USA Today.

As a result of the increased visibility, those in the Michigan tourism industry suggested the Michigan Travel Bureau initiate a new toll-free number easy-to-remember and accessible nationwide. The bureau's previous toll-free lines served only 26 states.

The bureau also has a 24-hour message line with recorded seasonal tourist information. Fishing information, skiing and snowmobile conditions, and weekend activities such as festivals are given on the toll-free recorded message lines. Michigan residents may call 800 292-5404.

Don't just have a garage sale. Take your time to plan it out for maximum exposure and results. We at Sliger-Livingston Publications can help. Here's some tips for a successful garage sale:

- ☐ Place your garage sale with The Green Sheet classified section to reach thousands of households in Northville, Novi, South Lyon, Milford, Brighton and Livingston County. To avoid busy phones or long lines, use the form here and mail it or drop it off with your payment. We have offices in Northville, Milford, South Lyon, Brighton and Howell.
- ☐ When you place your ad with us, don't forget to pick up your free Garage Sale kit. It includes two sale signs, two directional arrows, a garage sale ledger and helpful tips for a successful sale. You must pick up the kit at one of our local offices during regular business hours.
- ☐ If you know any neighbors interested in selling, have a sale together. The more items available for sale, the greater the incentive for customers. Make sure you mark the items according to the seller.
- ☐ Be sure all your merchandise is clean and neat. A dusty old item will not sell as well as a clean old item.
- ☐ Display your merchandise in an interesting manner. For example, sort nails and screws by size and use colorful jars or cans for display.
- ☐ Separate items by category and make signs to hang over each category.
- ☐ Sort clothing and mark with size tickets.
- ☐ Place your merchandise where it can be easily seen. A few items on the lawn can serve as attention-grabbers.
- ☐ Group under-a-dollar items in one area. People will often spend more on several small items than on one big-ticket item.
- ☐ Have plenty of small change on hand for customers paying with large bills.
- ☐ Number each item in the sale and write it on your ledger. Record all transactions and cross off items when they are sold.
- ☐ Offer free coffee, iced tea or other refreshments. Your hospitality may make people more inclined to buy.
- ☐ Be prepared to dicker about the price of any item. Selling at a reduced price is better than not selling at all.
- ☐ Have paper bags, boxes and newspapers on hand for packing items when they are sold.
- ☐ Don't forget the children. They love small, inexpensive items.
- ☐ If you have several items left on the last day of your sale, group them together and offer them as a single package with an attractive price.

Before you hold that garage sale, listen to these heavenly words of wisdom

BICYCLING

Fitness, ease and fun put bikes on the road

Story by Nicole Robertson • Art by Tammie Graves

Bicycling as a sport has turned a full circle in the last 100 years.

A hundred years ago, bicycles were about the least expensive, most dependable means of short-distance travel. All that stopped with Mr. Ford and his modern automobile. But these days, with a renewed focus on physical fitness, biking for recreation has never been more healthy.

It's cheap, it's easy, it's good exercise and best of all it's fun.

"I sell more bikes every year," said Paul Riebling, owner of Town and Country Cyclery. He recently opened his third store, on Grand River in Brighton, and says on a good day he'll sell 50 bikes from his Northville store alone. On those days, "you can't get near the place—it's a zoo," he said.

He thinks biking is the best exercise there is.

In 1816, Baron Karl von Drais designed a wooden frame onto which he attached two wooden wheels and a saddle, where the rider sat astride the contraption and pushed . . . like a Flintstones' car.

Of the three primary aerobic exercises, running, swimming and bicycling, some say biking is best because it doesn't put the stress on your feet and ankles that running does, and because it's more fun than doing laps.

"Any exercise is good, it depends what kind of activity a person likes," said Dr. William Earl, a Howell physician who specializes in sports medicine. To him, cycling ranks behind swimming, which puts even less stress on the body.

Anyone who doesn't suffer from arthritis in the back or a pelvic fracture can enjoy biking as exercise, he said, but cautioned anyone starting a fitness program should be checked by a physician for stress tolerance.

"Cycling has some degree of risk, with traffic and all," he said.

The number of calories a person burns cycling can vary, he said, depending upon road and weather conditions. "I usually tell my patients I don't expect them to lose a lot of weight through exercise, but I've never had anyone not tell me they feel better."

Today, with more and more people concerned about physical fitness, sport biking is looking up. In 1985, the Bicycle Manufacturing Association of America estimated there were 64 million bikes in use across the country.

Bicycling was at its peak popularity at the turn of the century. But the fad suddenly died about 1900, and nearly all bikes sold in the United States then were children's bikes. Bicycling for recreation revived around World War II, when automobiles, tires and gasoline were hard to come by.

The very first bicycles were not much better transportation than walking. In 1816, Baron Karl von Drais of Germany designed a wooden frame onto which he attached two wooden wheels and a saddle, where the rider sat astride the contraption and pushed.

Kind of like the Flintstones' car. Thirteen years later, a Scottish blacksmith named Kirkpatrick MacMillan attached treadles to rods which were connected to the rear axle.

These were a forerunner to the modern chain-driven bike, but they must have been ahead of their time, because no bright mechanic figured it out for the next 40 years.

MacMillan's contemporaries were preoccupied by designs with pedals attached directly to the front hub. Those bikes had wheels which turned once for every pump. Hardly efficient by today's standard.

Gear just as important as the bicycle you ride

Just ask any serious cyclist — he or she will tell you that the proper riding gear and attire is just as important as a quality bicycle.

As with most merchandise, as you climb up the price ladder, the quality and value of serious riding wear — like helmets, shoes, gloves and rain gear — rises as well.

Modern synthetic fabrics like polypropylene and lycra are the current rage for cyclists' shirts. Both are thermal insulators that maintain the body temperature — warmer in winter and cooler in summer — and actually draw perspiration away from the skin to the outer surface for evaporation. For the sprint riders a tighter fitting, more aerodynamic shirt is recommended. For the distance riders, a looser, more comfortable shirt is best.

Windfront tights for the lower part of the body also have two distinct variations — long and short pants — for cool and warm weather riding. Look for pants with a tight but comfortable fit to better cut the wind, stirrups to prevent riding up on the leg and pockets for storage of keys and other valuables.

The recommended shorts have a chamolix crotch and a non-absorbing liner to keep the moisture away from the body. Shorts with vertical panels are the best because each piece is cut for a particular area of the body and hugs more effectively and comfortably.

There are two types of riding shoes, the cleated and the touring shoe. The serious cyclist should go for the cleated shoe as it provides for maximum pedal efficiency. The cleat is designed to fit snugly into the shoe straps on the bicycle pedal and yields a lift as well as a push while pedaling. The sole is very stiff so all the energy is exerted on the pedal.

The touring shoe is more comfortable and more flexible but the sole is still very stiff. It is best used by touring riders who like to stop occasionally and walk around. Because it hasn't a cleat, the touring shoe makes it much easier for walking.

The helmet should be a snug-fitting and is generally made of hard plastic, such as polycarbonate. Many brands create a vacuum over the head which allows the air to move aerodynamically while keeping the head cool at the same time. The top-of-the-line helmets have specially designed liners made of polystyrene or polyurethane which keeps the perspiration out of the rider's face, while others are just ventilated.

Most riding gloves are generally fingerless and tight fitting for better wind resistance. A top of the line glove is made of deer skin or other skin-like fabrics that provide the rider with excellent grip and comfort. The gloves with a polymer palm pad is considered the best in hand protection. For less money, gloves made of cowhide and foam padding are available.

Rain gear jackets are much more popular than pants, but both are important in wet conditions. The jackets are usually made of nylon and should have elastic wristbands and drawstrings at the waist and hood.

Some tips to keep your bike rolling

Bicycling can be an enjoyable and invigorating sport, at least in between those times when a blown tire or gear malfunction bring your two-wheeler grinding to a halt.

But area bike experts can offer a few tips that will keep the cyclist cruising the scenic backroads more and monkeying around with their disabled vehicles less.

While it is wise to become something of a shade-tree mechanic before taking off on a coast-to-coast bike tour, the casual biker should be able to get by with just a few basic words of wisdom from the pros.

Bikers should watch out for loose or maladjusted derailleurs and damaged tires, which are the most common problems associated with bikes, according to John Luke, owner of the Milford Bike Shop.

Luke recommends a rear-view mirror for all bikers which allows a rider to see and avoid traffic.

"Mirrors are for the rider's benefit, and they help the rider to drive defensively," says Luke.

Wearing a helmet is another recommended safety precaution that is becoming popular with many distance riders, according to Luke.

Since flat tires are a constant problem, bikers should look out for curbs and sharp objects in front them, Luke noted.

The best tools to carry on a bike ride are a tire patch kit and a pump, according to Bob Brettschneider of the Bike Haus in Brighton.

"The most important things to do to a bike are to keep air in the tires and keep the bike clean," Brettschneider added.

He also noted that tire pressure is commonly neglected and low pressure leads to tears and bent rims.

While many theories exist on the proper handlebar height, Luke insists that it all depends on personal preference.

"Your bike has to be comfortable in order to enjoy riding," he commented.

A single speed bike chain should be allowed one inch of play, whereas a derailleur on a multiple speed bike controls chain tightness, according to Luke.

Cleaning a bike chain before and after lubrication prevents dust from sticking to an oily chain, and keeps the chain at maximum performance.

Luke also recommends a lubrication containing Teflon because it is a light substance that is less likely to attract dirt.

Age no barrier to bike touring

By VICKI GRICE

"Bicycle touring is a sport for people of all ages, for bikers who are six or 60 years old," said Mike Walven, head coach of the Wolverine Sports Club.

The club has groups that tour in many locations, including Milford, Kensington Metropark and Northville. Walven said that bikers can just show up at the designated starting points if they want to join a touring group.

The average distance of a tour is 25 miles. Bikers meet at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday nights at the Kensington Metropark Nature Center and at 7 p.m. every other Thursday on Kensington Road at the General Motors Millford Proving Ground. Both groups travel approximately 20 to 30 miles.

In Northville, the group meets at the Elias Brothers Big Boy Restaurant on Main St. at 6 p.m. and travels approximately 25 miles.

Walven noted that by using the proper equipment and procedures as instructed by the leaders of the tour groups, riding a bicycle takes as little effort as walking.

Walven emphasizes that the Wolverine Bicycle Club has different divisions and is adjusted to suit its members.

The Michigan Council of American Youth Hostels, which is affiliated with the Metropolitan Detroit Bicycle Club, is also sponsoring the "Firecracker 100" Bicycle Tour on the Fourth of July at 7 p.m. The event promises a scenic ride through farmlands, by lakes and streams, with tours through the towns of Milford, Holly, Fenton, Brighton and South Lyon.

Block party marks dual birthdays

By JEAN DAY

Northville attorneys David Jerome and Nels Carlson, in addition to being neighbors in Northville Township, have many similarities going for them. Both lawyers, who graduated from University of Michigan, were born one day apart 40 years ago.

Dave, who has his law office on Center Street, was born June 16. He is a Northville High School graduate. Nels, who is township attorney, was born June 17 and attended Plymouth schools. In addition, Kathi Jerome pointed out, both men are balding. "Their wives have mistaken them for each other from a distance," she said.

Therefore, she explained, it seemed like a great idea for her and Marie Carlson to combine forces to give the two a birthday celebration. Northville Township cooperated by permitting the closing of Bloomcrest (where the Jeromes live) from Woodhill to Valley and Woodhill from Main (where the Carlsons live) to Fonner from 5-10 p.m. last Sunday.

Between 150 and 200 friends and relatives were invited to come dressed "for the occasion" in clothes from the sixties and to "cruise the miracle mile" for their food. Along the closed-off streets were to be a Hamburger Heaven, A & W stand serving "swamp water" (root beer and orange juice), Daly's and Bel Nor. Fare was to be hamburgers, foot longs and cheeseburgers followed by sundaes.

"When guests arrive," she said beforehand, they would be asked to choose the background in which to have their pictures taken — frats in a 1964 Mustang, greasers on a motorcycle or protesters with signs.

The wives had constructed kiosks with pictures of their husbands as they were growing up. A disc jockey was to spin records from the '60s and relatives of the men had been asked to do the "roasts." An added feature, supplied by guests, was the appearance of a "bag lady" from Eastern Onion.

Garden City hospital honors Nicholas Sellas

Nicholas Sellas, D.O., and his wife Catherine were "totally surprised" at the annual graduation party dinner for interns and residents at Garden City Osteopathic Hospital when he was named Physician of the Year by the hospital's medical staff and board of trustees.

Dr. Sellas was presented with a plaque at the dinner held June 14 at the Fairlane Club in Dearborn.

The award was made for his efforts as "trainer, teacher, consultant and friend."

Dr. Sellas, an active staff member of the hospital for 20 years, serves as chairman of the department of pathology, chairman of the infectious disease committee, chairman of the mortality review committee, chairman of the equipment committee and as a member of the executive committee, tumor board committee, house staff training committee and quality assurance committee at Garden City Osteopathic Hospital.

The Sellas family moved to Edenderry in 1976 and both Dr. Sellas and his wife Tina have been active members of the township beautification commission.

They have three children. Spencer, 21, is a student at Adrian College; Laraine, 19, is a student at Michigan State University and Steven has just completed his junior year at Northville High School.

Dr. Sellas, who was known for his bonsai gardening, reported he has had little time for his hobby recently but hopes to resume it later.

Lamaze classes offered

The Plymouth Childbirth Education Association, a non-profit organization, is offering Lamaze and Newborn Child Care classes this summer.

A seven-week Lamaze series will take place at the following locations: Faith Community Church, Warren Road, Canton, begins Tuesday, July 29, 7:30 p.m. Another group will meet at Geneva Presbyterian Church, Sheldon Road, Canton, beginning Thursday, July 17, 7:30 p.m. A morning Lamaze class is offered at Garden City Health Education Center, Harrison Street, Garden City, starting Saturday, July 12, 10 a.m. For information and registration call 459-7477.

The Plymouth Childbirth Education Association is offering a two week course for expectant couples on Newborn Care beginning Tuesday, July 15, 7:30 p.m. at Geneva United Presbyterian Church, Sheldon Road, Canton. The classes address care and development of the newborn from birth through three-months.

For information and to register call 459-7477.

He's following in his dad's footsteps and Mrs. James Tsoucaris invited 150 friends, neighbors and relatives to their home on Edenderry June 7 to celebrate son Stephen's graduation from Michigan State University and to mark his acceptance into dental school at University of Michigan.

Appropriately, they repeated the idea of four years ago at his high school graduation of giving toothbrushes with his name on the handle. Greek music and food were featured.

Former resident's admitted to the bar

From Falls Village, Conn., comes news of former Northville Township resident E. Frederick Petersen III, who was admitted to the Connecticut Bar at a session of the Superior Court May 6.

He was graduated from St. Louis University School of Law in August, 1984. He received his bachelor's degree from Washington University (St. Louis, Mo.) in 1981. He attended Northville Public Schools and was graduated from the Kent School, Kent, Conn. in 1978. His father was manager of business services at Schoolcraft College until the family returned to New England in 1981.

It was Gus and Beverly Manheimer who visited

In the Our Town column of June 18 we wrote of a reunion with pen pal Beti Evans in Cardiff, Wales, but mistakenly identified the Northville pen pal as Enid Manheimer instead of Beverly Manheimer. Gus and Bev Manheimer welcomed Bev's Welsh pen pal of 44 years at their King's Mill home in 1984 and this spring visited her in Cardiff. Enid, whom Beti met in 1984, also is a King's Mill resident and is Gus' sister-in-law.

MR. AND MRS. MATTHEW SULLIVAN

Sullivan-Cook vows read in Mill Race ceremony

Suzan Wright Cook and Matthew Sullivan were married in the New School Church in Mill Race Historical Village June 7.

Deacon Edward Kebblish of Our Lady of Victory Church officiated at the double ring rites at noon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Kunz of Northville and Howard Wright of Missouri. The bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Richard Sullivan of Northville.

During the ceremony, readings were given by the bride's brother, David Wright of Onsted, by her son, Christopher Cook, and by the bridegroom's sisters, Maureen Sullivan of California and Maggie Sullivan of Texas. Music was a guitar and vocal duo from the balcony of the church.

For her wedding, the bride wore an ivory lace, tea length gown with ivory satin sash and matching hat. She carried white roses with baby's-breath and small pink silk flowers trimmed with ivory lace and pink ribbon.

Deanna (Balko) Stieting of South Lyon was honor attendant. She wore a rose lace, tea length gown and carried white roses edged with pink and baby's-breath tied with pink ribbon.

Danny Sullivan was his brother's best man. Ushers were Bruce Hackman and Mike Capenka, a cousin of the bridegroom.

A reception followed at the Novi Hilton for 110 guests including friends and relatives from as far as Texas, California, Missouri and Illinois. The three-tier wedding cake was decorated with white and pink roses.

The bride and bridegroom both are Northville High School graduates and attended Schoolcraft College. He formerly worked for the Northville Township Police Department and the Northville Recreation Department and currently is employed as a deputy at Mesa County Sheriff's Department in Colorado.

The newlyweds are making their home in Grand Junction, Colo.

DR. NICHOLAS SELLAS

Grandparents are Edward and Virginia Pryce of Westland and Steve and Mary Markovich of Livonia.

Dorothea Bach retires after teaching here since 1974

By ANITA CRONE

Dorothea Bach sat at her desk in Pod B-1 at Meads Mill Middle School just before school recessed for the year and looked around the virtually empty room.

All that was left in the open were neatly stacked piles of dictionaries and text books, a single sign proclaiming "knowledge is free" and her desk, strewn with papers, balloons and flowers.

June 12 was the last day of school for the 140 seventh graders Bach taught for a year, but the students would be back for the eighth grade next year. However, Bach, a full-time teacher in Northville since 1974, will not be back. She has officially retired.

The decision to say goodbye to public school teaching was not an easy one for Bach, a soft-spoken, bespectacled woman who began teaching in 1947. But the combination of benefits she would enjoy as well as personal concerns pointed overwhelmingly in favor of the decision to leave teaching.

"It's a bittersweet decision," she says, her brown eyes tearing. "I know that I'm not going to be here next year, working with the children and I wonder about the person who will be. I hope whoever takes over is a good teacher and cares about the children."

Bach has always cared about the children, from the day she returned to her high school alma mater, Saginaw Arthur Hill, after she graduated from the University of Michigan, through the half year she taught in Grosse Pointe, through raising her own four children.

"Kids are the same," she says. "It's the society and the social part of child-rearing that changes."

She says the students today try to act more sophisticated than the youngsters attending junior high school in the 1960s or 1970s. And they definitely are more achievement oriented in terms of honors and grades. But Bach insists she has tried to accomplish the same set of goals each year.

"I want language to be a feel for the language — to be comfortable with the written and spoken word and to be able to communicate with each other and the world around them," she says.

While she admits she is reticent to fail a student, she has done so when the situation has demanded it. She says she has "totally failed maybe five students" during her tenure. But she doesn't like to dwell on that. She would much rather talk about the seventh grade student who took first place in the Free Press poetry writing competition, beating eighth and ninth graders in the process, or her youngsters who took top honors in the Wayne County Intermediate School District writing competition.

She is especially proud, however, of her classes this year and the success the students had on their final assignment. "I asked them to write an autobiography," she says. "There were 25 items they had to include, and the final work was excellent."

She is gratified, too, that she has 'beaten' the competition — the television set. Although she admits she has one in her home, "it is very seldom tuned in. In fact, one of my students writing in my year book, reminded me to turn it on Thursday nights so I can watch Bill Cosby. It's a standing joke that I sometimes forget to watch that show, and I do like it," she says.

She would much rather read a book.

The television is not the only competition Bach has beaten.

Realizing if she wanted to be able to send her own children to college, she would have to go back to work, she began substituting in Northville Public Schools in 1967.

"Then (Ronald) Horwath called me and told me there was an opening for a full-time teacher, and wanted to know if I were interested. I was and told him so."

Before she could begin her job, however, doctors discovered cancer. Operations were successful, but Bach was left without a full time job. Not for long, though. Just six months after a second operation, Horwath again called and this time Bach stepped right in.

Her return to teaching didn't hinder her family's development. Bernard, Jr., is an orthopedic surgeon who is moving to Chicago this summer; Stephanie, a Michigan State University graduate, lives in Cincinnati; Greg, a University of Michigan graduate, is employed as a group life representative for Home Life Insurance Co.; and David is a senior majoring in advertising at Michigan State.

Although her plans are not finalized, she has the next month totally booked, including a week's stay at an elderhostel in Maryland with her husband, Bernard, and a white-water rafting trip in West Virginia. Then she will tend her grandson while Bernie and his wife locate in living quarters in Chicago. After that, though, things are up in the air.

"Bernard hasn't retired yet, so we really can't just take off and go," Bach says. She would like, however, to travel to Spain later this summer.

As for Labor Day weekend, 1986, Bach admits she won't be here. "I don't know where I'll be, but I don't think I could stand it knowing the children are going back to school and I won't be there," she says. She may not be there in body, but her spirit is unlikely to be far away.

Helmet, gloves and glasses are part of the proper attire for serious cyclists

Proper attire wears well

Sunglasses are also becoming more and more popular among cyclists to keep out the bright sun and to protect the eyes from tearing and bugs. The best glasses are wrap arounds that hug tight, are scratch proof and comfortable.

For the recreational cyclist, clothing is a matter of individual choice.

Cyclists should consider weather conditions and dress appropriately. Layered clothing is best for long trips where temperatures may vary during the course of the day. Light wind-breakers are best and are easy to pack.

While clothes should not be confining, cyclists also should be careful not to wear garments that are too loose. Baggy slacks and shirts can cause a nasty rash.

If your bicycle does not have a chain guard, consider wearing shorts or straight-leg pants so as not to catch material in the bicycle chain.

Cotton rugby shirts are comfortable and allow riders plenty of room to move.

Cyclists also should remember to wear comfortable shoes, preferably tennis shoes. Among the newest footwear on the market is the touring shoe for walkers and riders.

For registration information, contact the AYH office in Berkley at (313) 545-0511.

The Metropolitan Detroit Bicycle Club meets in Livonia's Schoolcraft College parking lot on Monday evenings at 6 p.m., then travels through Northville and other surrounding areas, covering approximately 20 to 25 miles.

The cost of riding with the group is 50 cents per day.

An organization that meets in Ann Arbor and travels through the Whitmore Lake and South Lyon area is the Ann Arbor Touring Society.

The most popular of the group's weekly rides, called the Saturday Breakfast Ride, gets underway at the Gandy Dancer Restaurant in Ann Arbor at 8 a.m.

The Ann Arbor Touring Society sponsors rides every day of the week, starting in different locations all over the metropolitan Detroit and Ann Arbor areas.

The club is staging its 10th annual One Helluva Ride on Saturday, July 12, starting out from Wylie Middle School in Dexter on routes of 35, 74 and 108 miles, depending on the riders ability.

Over 1,400 cyclists are expected to participate in this hot event. The cost of registration is $12 through July 1 and $15 the day of the ride.

Sleep Medicines

According to a recent report from the National Academy of Science, almost one-third of American adults have difficulty sleeping. The causes of insomnia (the inability to fall asleep or stay asleep) are varied and the treatments equally diverse. Some physicians recommend hypnotic-type medications to help persons with insomnia. Many physicians do not, however, recommend these medicines be taken for more than a few days or few weeks.

Ideally the hypnotic or sleep medicine should cause sleep to occur rather rapidly and allow users to sleep throughout the night so that they rise from sleep feeling rested. The ideal hypnotic should not interact with other medicines and, according to most sleep experts, should not interfere with the "dream stage" of sleep. Unfortunately, the "ideal" hypnotic does not exist. Some of these ideal characteristics are found, however, in various prescription hypnotics.

The most commonly prescribed hypnotics include those in the benzodiazepine chemical class. A long-acting benzodiazepine such as flurazepam is often used for persons who have trouble staying asleep. A short-acting drug such as triazolam may be useful when individuals have difficulty falling asleep.

Hines Park Drive tops area bike routes

One of the area's best bicycle tour routes runs through the heart of Northville Township: the well-groomed bike trail along Edward Hines Park Drive. It's possible to follow over hilly terrain the long, winding parkway for a scenic trip, especially in fall, almost as far as your legs can carry you.

The county and related authorities does provide superior guides for bicycling. For example:

The Metropolitan Detroit Council of American Youth Hostels sells a Bike Route Atlas including recommended bike routes in some areas of Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair and Washtenaw counties as well as Wayne. The book is available from AYH for $2. AYH's address is 3024 Coolidge, Berkley. The group can answer specific questions about bike routes by phone at (313) 545-0511.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, 800 Book Building, 1249 Washington Boulevard, Detroit 48226, also has extensive bike tour information, and can be reached at (313) 961-4266.

For any Michigan bicycle tour information, contact the Non-Motorized Facilities Coordinator, Highway Planning Division, Department of State Highways and Transportation, Box 30050, Lansing, MI 48909, or phone (517) 373-9192.

Bicycles lure new riders

The next stage in bicycle development was the 1861 appearance of the velocipede, or "boneshaker," as it came to be known. The French velocipede had iron-rimmed wheels which were very sturdy indeed, but made for rough riding on cobblestone roads. Rubber tires cushioned the ride a bit in 1869.

The term "bicycle" was first patented by an American immigrant, a carriage maker named Pierre Lallement who worked under the boneshaker's designer, Pierre Michaux. Lallement migrated to Connecticut, where he coined the phrase in 1866.

The antique bicycle probably best known today is the "high wheeler." Designed with a front wheel three times larger than the rear, it allowed the bicyclist to get more distance per pedal. Also called the "ordinary," these bikes were dangerously high for common use, and many turned to three-wheeled types for everyday riding.

In 1879, Harry J. Lawson solved the danger problem when he invented the "safety bicycle." It was the first chain-driven bike with gears which allowed the biker to pedal slower and go farther with each pump.

Brakes, or "breaks," as they were then known, first appeared in 1860.

John Dunlop of Ireland made the first pneumatic tire in 1888. The tandem, or bicycle built for two, was perfected in 1893.

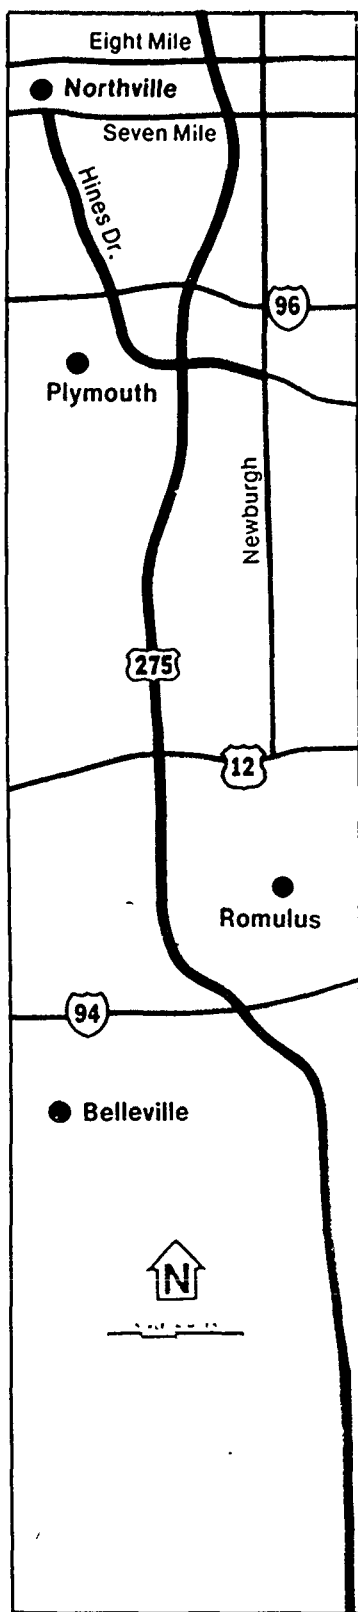

Improvements added to bikes in the last 100 years have mostly been cosmetic. Bikes were made lighter, to let bikers go farther with less strain. Extra gears were added for the long haul and uphill climb. And bikes have been made safer, with better brake systems, reflectors, lights and horns.

In the last few years, other biking equipment hit the market to make road riding safer and easier. Now helmets aren't just for motorcycles, and a lightweight helmet of plastic and foam can protect a biker's skull for a mere $25 to $35.

Bicycle tourists who ride on the road can equip their bikes not only with a rear-view mirror to keep an eye on traffic but also with a computer to tell them how far they've gone and how fast.

Sport bikes are the latest craze—the "ATB" or All-Terrain Bicycle being the biggest seller. These tough bikes come with 15-18 speeds for multi-purpose riding and fat tires for riding in soft earth.

Most bikes are still sold to young people, but the median age is on the rise. Riebling says the majority of his customers are in their late 20s to early 30s, and young couples often come in to buy their first "family" bikes.

Gardener leaves no stone unturned in finding beauty

Lenore Haas tends her daisies

John Haas termed it a "labor of love" when he called Pat Eden of Country Girls Garden Branch to nominate his wife Lenore's garden for its Garden of the Month Award. He explained that they had been so busy raising four children that they never had time to garden as homeowners. However, upon moving to their Lexington Condo they found too much shade around their patio to plant many perennials. They ventured to the back of their property "with pick-ax, sweat and brawn" to begin a small garden in the area that formerly was a rock quarry. The rocks needed to be dug out and hauled away. Soil was brought in bucket by bucket before a few choice plants were carefully planted. When John retired two years ago, they began to expand the garden area and planted snapdragons, coral bells, shasta daisies, swamp iris, gerber daisies, yarrow, pansies, tea roses, gladioli, delphinium, dahlias, field daisies — to name a few of their great variety. Many of the plants were given to them, others were traded or found in the wilds. "They treat each as an adventure and, since they haven't had previous garden experience, they've had a few failures," notes Eden as she explains the June award was given "for their determination to have a garden in spite of obstacles." Rocks dug from the field are used as a natural border around the garden with pathways and circles outlined. Some fruits and vegetables are planted along with the flowers.

THE WORKS!

Plenty to do over July 4th holiday

With a three-day weekend ahead, the Fourth of July holiday offers ample opportunity to celebrate our country's birthday. Close to home, there's the Freedom Festival in Detroit and Windsor today that extends the celebration even more. The schedule calls for fireworks to begin at 10:06 p.m. Rain date is July 3.

Most area communities are slating their own celebrations this Friday with fireworks going off in Northville and at Walled Lake as well as at Whitmore Lake.

□ In Northville, festivities begin with a parade at 10 a.m. Friday that is expected to last one to one-and-a-half hours. Sponsored by the Northville Jaycees, the parade traditionally is one of the community's largest and most festive. Floats, bands, clowns and politicians are expected to move west along Main Street from Northville Downs. The reviewing stand will be set up in front of city hall.

Festivities move to the Mill Race Historical Village located off Main at Griswold by the Ford Plant at 11:30 a.m. The Jaycees will be serving their traditional chicken barbecue under the big tent and this year are expanding to include hot dogs and Italian sausages.

Games are planned, and Northville Historical Society will have the village's restored buildings open with docents on duty.

The New School Church, Wash Oak Schoolhouse, Hunter House, home of an early area miller, and the Yerkes House, home of the first mayor of the Village of Northville, will be on view. A hand-woven show and sale will be given by members of the Mill Race Weavers' Guild from 11:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. in the weaver's cottage by the bridge.

At dusk the Jaycees will begin the annual fireworks display from the high school hill. Police will block off Eight Mile Road in the area during the display which draws visitors from miles away.

□ Fourth of July activities in Novi will be centered at Lakeshore Park on Walled Lake. The park and beach will open at 8 a.m. for picnicking, swimming, playing softball and other family-oriented activities.

A special treat for youngsters will be the pony rides from 3-6 p.m. The rides are sponsored by Haverhill Farms, and a donation of 50 cents per ride is requested.

Festivities will warm up at 7 p.m. when Moose and Da Sharks take the stage for a free concert in conjunction with Novi's Summer Sounds Concert Series. Residents are invited to bring blankets, chairs and refreshments to hear good, old-fashioned '50s rock 'n' roll.

Capping Fourth of July activities in Novi will be the fireworks display at dusk. Co-sponsored by the cities of Novi and Walled Lake, the fireworks will be set off at Fourteen Mile and East Lake Drive. Lakeshore Park is an ideal place for viewing the pyrotechnics.

□ Whitmore Lake will be holding its 27th annual Fourth of July celebration Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It includes a three-day carnival, bingo and beer tent in town.

On July 4 there will be a parade on Main Street at 2 p.m.; a boat parade at the waterfront at 4:30 p.m.; a water ski show at 6 p.m. followed by sky diving. A chicken barbecue will be served at noon next to the fire hall. Fireworks will go off at the waterfront about 10 p.m.

Saturday a square dance is planned at 7 p.m. at Barker and Main streets.

□ Milford's parade is scheduled for 3 p.m. Friday. It will feature five bands and feature a biplane flyover.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony for the new Center Street Park is set for 4:15 p.m. after the parade.

Sunday a boat parade will be held at 4 p.m. with antique and classic boats featured along with new models. Theme is "Hands Across White Lake." Participants are to assemble at Youth Island on White Lake at 3 p.m. The sponsoring White Lake Citizens' League notes there will be prizes.

□ Fowlerville is celebrating the community's 150th birthday on the Fourth. Parade time is 10 a.m.

□ Cohocton Township has scheduled a parade for noon July 4.

□ Brighton is combining the Fourth celebration with the reunion in conjunction with the 100th graduating class at the high school. All graduates are invited to return to participate in the events slated for Friday, Saturday and Sunday. A parade at 10 a.m. Saturday from Scranton Middle School down Main Street will feature an alumni band.

□ At Greenfield Village in Dearborn Fourth festivities are planned from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. with the celebration including a brass band, folk singing, a 19th century military demonstration, a sesquicentennial flag raising, a life and drum music concert and a ceremony honoring the 50 millionth visitor to the museum and village. There is an admission charge.

□ Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority has planned holiday fireworks at 9:45 p.m. Friday at Lake Erie Metropark near Gibraltar and Rockwood in Brownstown Township. Dancing to Output from 6:30-9:45 p.m. will precede the display.

All park dances and special events are free except for the required vehicle entry permit.

Tom MacKinnon, owner of the Northville restaurant that bears his name for five years, can usually be found at MacKinnon's, unless, of course, he's doing one of his favorite things.

1. EATING great food at a good restaurant, like La Because in Burdickville or the Rowe Inn, both northern Michigan bistros. If he can't get away, he's equally partial to the Outdoor Cafe at MacKinnons.
2. CHOCOLATE. Nothing more needs to be said.
3. SALMON FISHING or just fishing in general, particularly on Burt Lake or Lake Erie, to name two lakes famous for walleye.
4. SWIMMING and water skiing, or just about any outdoor summer activity.
5. ICE CREAM.
6. THE BATTING CAGES, particularly when he can do it with his sons, 7-year-old Ian and 3-year-old Kenny. Kenny can bat, as long as it's a very soft ball.

My Favorite Things

Trattoria Bella Ciao: Creative Italian cuisine

An Italian restaurant doesn't serve pizza! An Italian restaurant which doesn't even have spaghetti on its menu!

dining out.
DIANE KOVACS

You'll find neither at Trattoria Bella Ciao at 118 W. Liberty in Ann Arbor, which should give you some idea that Trattoria is a far cry from more traditional Italian restaurants.

What you will find at the restaurant is wonderfully creative homestyle Italian cuisine with emphasis on herbs, spices and olive oil.

Trattoria opened almost four years ago under the direction of Peter DiLorenzi, who came over from The Earle, Ann Arbor's highly-regarded gourmet restaurant, to help establish a unique restaurant featuring regional Italian cuisine.

Decorated in shades of forest green and cream, Trattoria is a rather intimate little restaurant with marble-topped tables in booths along the walls. The noise level from diners conversing tends to be quite high in the downstairs portion of the restaurant. If you prefer less noise, ask to sit upstairs, which has only a few tables and is even more intimate than the downstairs.

As expected from a DiLorenzi restaurant, Trattoria features a nice menu of imported Italian wines at reasonable prices.

It is the cuisine which makes Trattoria special, however.

Diners may begin their meals with either a hot or cold antipasto (antipasti caldi or antipasti freddi). For the adventuresome, there's calamari fritti (squid rings and tentacles deep-fried with bread crumbs) or cozze alla marinara (mussels steamed in white wine, garlic, olive oil, scallions and tomatoes).

On two recent trips we sampled both the insalata di frutti di mare (a cold seafood salad of shrimp, squid and scallops in an olive oil vinaigrette) and the funghi ripieni alla catanese (sicilian-style baked mushroom caps with eggplant, caper and mozzarella filling). Both were outstanding.

Diners enjoy the intimate setting of Trattoria Bella Ciao in Ann Arbor

Also available are a house salad and two different types of soups. Or, you can request an appetizer-sized serving of one of Trattoria's six pasta dishes. Noteworthy among the pastas, which can also be ordered as an entree, are the spaghetti alla rustica come nel mezzogiorno (pasta typical of Italy's deep south with sausage, greens, hot finger peppers, olive oil and grated pecorino romano) and the penne all'amatriciana (penne served with a mountain sauce of blanched bacon, onion, sweet red pepper, black pepper, diced tomatoes and grated pecorino romano).

The same type of unique cuisine is found among the entrees. Although Trattoria does not list a house specialty, a nomination might be the burrida bianca con erbe fresche, a Genovese fisherman's stew with shrimp, scallops, mussels and fish in a light garlic/green herb-flavored broth with rouille and crostini.

Another personal favorite is the gratinata rustica all'abruzzese — breast of chicken, fennel sausage and beef baked with diced turnips, greens, sweet red peppers, minced garlic and shallots in a beef stock/white wine broth under puff pastry.

Prices are surprisingly moderate for a restaurant of this class with entrees ranging from $7.95 to $13.95.

The dessert menu consists of several Italian ices, ice cream or selections from a pastry tray. There's a triple chocolate torte for chocolate lovers. And there's also an espresso torte which includes layers of chocolate mousse and white chocolate underneath an espresso-flavored topping.

Also available, of course, are cappuccino and espresso coffee.

Trattoria Bella Ciao was recently named the best Italian restaurant in Michigan by Monthly Detroit magazine. It's not hard to believe. Trattoria offers a unique dining experience, well worth the drive to Ann Arbor.

Trattoria Bella Ciao, 118 W. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Open Monday through Thursday from 5:30 to 10 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 5:30 to 11 p.m. Liquor license. All major credit cards. 995-2107.
