Land swap okayed for Plagens site

City Council approved, in principle, a proposal to trade land with James Plagens. The swap, if approved by the planning and historic district commissions, as well as the city, would allow Plagens to construct a two-story retail center on the new site, across the lot from Plagens' current location and would give to the city the north portion of the Plagens property, providing nine additional parking spaces.

In recommending approval of the land transfer, Steven Walters, city manager, noted that the exchange would be of "essentially equal land areas; that parking spaces created as a result of the exchange would be credited to the developer; and that additional parking spaces, as needed, would be sold under the city's special assessment procedure.'

An earlier proposal from Plagens was turned down by council; however, new plans presented to the civic body July 21 showed that Plagens had moved the planned construction back from both Main and Hutton streets, eliminated sidewalk overhangs and provided a more extreme curve at the corner of Main and Hutton to allow more open areas.

Although the council gave its preliminary approval, the council still may revoke its okay should the proposed development fail to meet historic district or planning commission guidelines.

If Plagens' project does get under way, it would be necessary for the Farmers' Market held Thursdays on the site during the growing season to did not expect that to occur until 1987.

Coach gets new post

After nearly a decade of planning and discussing, the Northville School Board decided this was the year to complete a restructuring of the high school administration.

The move calls for two full-time assistant principals and one full-time athletic director. Ralph Redmond, who had previously held down both the assistant principal and athletic director posts, was relieved of his duties as A.D. and the Mustang's seven year Head Football Coach Dennis Colligan was chosen as his

Because the board called for a fulltime A.D., when Colligan accepted the job he also agreed to relinquish his duties as football coach, paving the way for top assistant Darrell Schumacker to take over.

"It's been a career goal to be in the administration end of it — but I'm not so sure I'm finished coaching," Colligan said. "I think Darrell is an excellent choice. For the good of the program we were fortunate to have him available. I'm sure it will be a smooth transition."

More than 500 people attended this year's festival and organizers fulfilled their promise of having something for everyone. For music- lovers there was the music, spanning the gamut from folk to blues to bluegrass. For children, there were special activities, including face painting and bubble blowing and for Huntington's disease, there were the proceeds.

The district began its search for a new elementary principal following the June retirement of longtime administrator Ronald Horwath. Horwath, formerly principal at Meads Mill Junior High, took the helm at Winchester in September, 1985, following an administrative reorganization due to the closing of Cooke and Moraine.

Prior to Horwath, Milt Jacobi served as principal of Winchester until his move to Amerman last

By 1949, in his early 30s, he was ready to start his own business which has since built into today's Long Plumbing Company of Northville.

With two offices in Florida, the company employs about 100 people. It includes not only one of the largest bath shops in Michigan, but a plumbing retail business, bathroom remodeling and renovation services, residential and commercial repairs, and mechanical contracting which involves installing piping systems in new buildings.

'It started out with just me working alone," Glenn remembers. "I suppose it was the ambition, energy and challenge of a young person. I wanted to work for myself rather than somebody else.

"I started out of a house on South Center Street, and then we built the house that we're in now on Baseline." At first the business was house plumbing and small commercial jobs, but it grew and more help was needed. Glenn continued operating from the house at first, his men reporting to work and parking the trucks there.

He made a big leap forward in 1954 when he built a plant on Seven Mile, now used by Reef Manufacturing Company. The new premises not only housed a plumbing business, but a show room with electrial appliances, washers, dryers and refrigerators.

"We only stayed in electrial appliances for a few years because we just didn't have time for both, and plumbing was my trade," Glenn explained.

James R. Long (Jim), Glenn's son, who is in partnership with his father, remembers the Seven Mile location well. He was a small child at the "I remember the grand opening,"

Holding two offices at once ruled out

Elaine Tuttle could not serve June 1985. Kelley ruled that a village simulataneously as treasurer of Livonia and county commissioner from the 10th District, if her bid for the county post is successful, because both jobs are incompatible, said an assistant Michigan Attorney General last week.

Richard Gartner, cf the Attorney General's Elections Division, based his informal opinion on two rulings made in the last 13 months by Attorney General Frank Kelley.

If Tuttle wins the Republican nomination Aug. 5 and prevails in November, Gartner said she could be met with a legal challenge to force a choice between the two public posts.

Tuttle currently earns $38,000 a year as treasurer. County commissioners earn $27,000. Tuttle said, if she is elected to the county post, she will keep her job as treasurer.

"Those positions are incompatible and should not simultaneously be occupied by the same person." Gartner said. He said his opinion was not a formal opinion, since those can be made only at the request of state legislators, agency chiefs, county prosecutors and city attorneys.

"Because of the relationship between the county and the city of Livonia, she should not be in a position of wearing two hats, serving two masters," Gartner said. "That's where the incompatibility problem lises - where are her loyalties and which takes precedent, county or city business?'

Tuttle, an acountant, disputed Gartner's interpretation. She said she doesn't believe the attorney general's previous rulings apply in her case, and said she researched the issue herself

"I sat and read through the election laws, state law, Constitution and city charter," she said.

'I don't have a vote in our city (council). I do collect the county taxes, but I wouldn't receive them at the other end ... Those are different instances," she said.

Gartner based his interpretation on an opinion handed down by Kelley in councilman could not serve on the township's board of trustees and the county commission because of conflicts that could arise from contractual agreements between the separate governmental units. His opinion noted both Michigan Common Law and state statute in his probe into the incompatibility questions.

Included in the body of that opinion was a reference to another Kelley ruling involving a conflict question between the offices of a village trustee and township clerk. Kelley said they were compatible so long as no contracts existed between the two units of government.

Gartner said: "The problem is that the official is performing duties where the offices are either supervisory to the other, or subordinate to the other. She would in essence be in a position of (choosing) which interests is she going to represent in those circumstances.

In a related Kelley ruling, Gartner cited the case of a Macomb County assistant prosecutor, Carl Marlinga (who since has become prosecutor) who sought election to the East Detroit City Council.

In that opinion, Kelley ruled that the offices were incompatible. He noted that the U.S. Constitution designed separation of powers among the three branches of government - legislative, executive and judiciary.

It could be argued, said Gartner, that a city treasurer's position represents the executive branch of city government. The county commission, meanwhile, is a legislative

"I'm not saying that she isn't capable of holding two positions, but as a matter of law, an individual shouldn't be in that position," Gartner said.

As treausurer, Tuttle's main responsibility is as a tax collector, including collecting for Wayne County, local school districts and Schoolcraft

In addition, there are special assessment collections for projects ranging from installing street lights to roadwork, performed by city and county government. Wayne County also assists the city treasurer in assessing industrial and commercial property, and will collect those taxes when they become delinquent on real property found in Tuttle is not the first city official to face the possibility of choosing which office to hold. Livonia assessor Ronald Mardiros tried to unseat commissioner Richard Manning, D-Redford Township, more than a dozen years ago.

"Nobody stops you from running; but they won't let you take the oath of office," he said. "We all knew we had to choose at the time."

Tuttle calls for pay cut

One of the three Republican 10th District county commission candidates has called for a reduction in the salary for the job. But her two opponents, both of whom say the job is full time, feel the salary is adequate.

Elaine Tuttle, Livonia city treasurer, said July 23, that "$27,000 a year paid to the commissioners is excessive for a part-time job that requires no more time than city council or trustee seats."

Tuttle said she feels the pay should be more like $20,000 a year.

"The salary is not the issue. Getting benefit for the tax dollars is," Schweiger said. "I don't feel the salary is excessive."

Heintz was even more adament. "I have already announced that if elected, I will resign as Northville Township supervisor. And, I have already stated the county commissioner's job is a full-time position...I do not think that salary is too much for someone who is going to devote time and effort to the job.'

"I've been attending all the (commission) meetings and have a pretty good idea of the time involved and there is no question in my mind that $27,000 a year is excessive. The commissioners' pay is indicative of the other high wages at Wayne County that they approved," Tuttle said.

Tuttle added that if she is elected, she will give $7,000 back to the voters by donating it to senior citizen programs in the district.

Primary candidates rated

Susan Heintz, Northville Township supervisor and candidate for Wayne County Commission, has been rated 'preferred and well-qualified" by Civic Searchlight Inc. The rating is the highest the group confers. Elaine Tuttle was rated qualified for the same post and Lawrence Schweiger received no rating.

In other races of local interest, Democrats Dean Baker and Don Grimes received "qualified" ratings. The two men are vying for their party's nomination to run for U.S. Representative from the second district; Scott Bassett, candidate for 6th District Michigan Senate, was

and Samuel A. Turner, candidates for Wayne Ccounty Eexecutive, were rated "preferred and well qualified" for that race, and Robert A. Ficano, Thomas J. Gondek and Frank Wilkerson were rated "qualified".

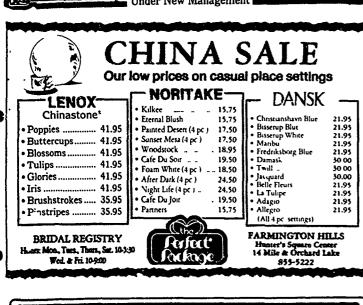

Civic Searchlight Inc. did not rate candidates who were unopposed in the August primary. Among those were Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville; Rep. Gerry Law, R-Plymouth and Kathy A. Reilly. Reilly will challenge Law for state representative.

TEN YEARS of Blues In The Grass

"All music is folk music. I ain't never heard no horse sing," said Louis Armstrong. And at the tenth annual Northville Folk and Bluegrass Festival Sunday, folk music by folks was abundant as sunshine. Top right, 80-year-old Edith Crouch of Romulus steps lightly. Lower right, Harlan Whichellow of Northville finds a seat to his liking. Below, two trios take to the microphone for Woody Guthrie's "This Land Is Your Land" finale. Near are Scott Lee, Dave Varga and Gary Ritter, and at bottom, Julie Austin, Myron Grant and Chris Barton. Lower left, Danny Rice of Northville adds bubbles to thea blue sky. Left, Neil Woodward braces for his turn on stage, and above, Footloose's Bill Barton bows a melody line. At center stage in the middle of the page, Hot Grass provides hot sounds.

Ficano aims for top

. Robert Anthony Ficano's entry into public life was forged more than a dozen years ago inside his Michigan State University dormitory room.

Friend and fellow Stevenson High School graduate, Alan Helmkamp, persuaded Ficano to run for Democratic party precinct delegate back home in Livonia. Ficano ran

A few campaigns later, Ficano, 34, is sheriff of the third largest county in the United States and aiming to become that county's chief executive.

Ficano views fellow Livonian Ed McNamara as the race's frontrunner and in recent radio advertisements has directed attacks at the Livonia mayor.

And, while Ficano is getting much of his support from traditional Democratic party strongholds organized labor and local party clubs (the Wayne County Sheriff's Deputies Union has put its membership to work on his campaign) -Ficano is not writing off any area.

The youngest candidate in the 11man field, Ficano was nicknamed the "boy sheriff" when he assumed the sheriff's position, replacing William Lucas, the same man he wants to replace as county executive. With no previous law enforcement experience, Ficano was selected sheriff after strong lobbying from his former boss, County Clerk James

Ficano credits Kileen, his political mentor and a strong supporter, with giving the sheriff an extreme "sense of right and wrong, and getting into public service to really serve and achieve for people."

Ficano said he is highlighting his "energy" and "what I've done in the 'sheriff's department" to help him get elected.

· Earlier in his term as sheriff, Ficano was successful in lobbying Lansing lawmakers to double-bunk iprisoners, thereby reducing overcrowding in the Wayne County Jail. During Ficano's term, the prison population has grown from 753 to Ficano also worked to waive the other communities," he said.

Federal Forfeiture Act, thereby funding a newly created, five-member narcotics task force with the money. As sheriff, Ficano holds the largest share of the county purse, spending $55 million and managing 1,300 employees in seven unions.

When Ficano became sheriff, the department faced a $12 million deficit, but the sheriff has restored and expanded the services of the county road patrol. Critics, disturbed by the department's expansion in recent years, say such services are costly and best provided by local government.

Ficano's agenda, if elected, would focus on three issues: crime, economic development and fiscal integrity.

"Families won't locate here if they don't feel safe," he said.

He said he 's particularly disturbed by juvenile delinquency and bemoans the loss of "a whole generation to narcotics.

"When I visit some of the classrooms and see those fur coats and $60 gym shoes, and kids putting peer pressure on others, I tell them they may be at the top this year, but there's always a change-over. Most of them don't live through it.'

In addition to pushing expansion of narcotics teams, Ficano said he would lobby Lansing to permit wiretapping as allowed by federal Ficano said he would also work toward expanding juvenile beds in county and state detention centers and would work toward changing the juvenile justice system so minors would be assured prosecution.

In economic development, Ficano speaks of a lessening industrial base and said government officials should be more involved in decisions such as imminent closing of Dearborn's Rouge complex, which could cost southeastern Michigan 16,000 jobs.

He said that local communities also must stop their "canabalistic" practices when trying to out-lure incoming business. "Wayne County has to become a main partner with

Hertel seeks new title

Whether he planned to or not, John Hertel has created an analogy between his race for county executive in 1986 and a 1963 Class A boys' football championship in which he played for Detroit Denby High School.

Reminiscing, he said the odds were against his team. Outsized, but not outsmarted, the team stood ready facing opponents who averaged 240 pounds "and not one of our guys was over 200. Everybody said this team was too small to win.

"But we won, and that's just what we're doing in this campaign," he said. "We don't have the power, or the money, but we have determination and innovation."

Hertel, the 39-year-old chairman of the Wayne County Commission, Harper Woods resident, and 14-year political veteran, is in the midst of one of his toughest campaigns yet.

Serving his second consecutive term on the commission, Hertel said, if elected county executive, his agenda will include strengthening the diverse county by unifying interests, promoting economic development and working to prevent social ills such as birth defects and juvenile

Hertel said he favors manadatory sentencing of convicted felons. Along with that, he said, is an "innovative" approach to corrections that would have Michigan return to a prison farm system, such as that found in

On economic development, he said the area should take a regional approach. "As long as it's in southeast Michigan, people will benefit with jobs," he said.

Late last year, Hertel began lobbying Washington lawmakers to designate the Wayne County Port Aurthority and Metropolitan Airport as a military receiving center, a plan he still promotes and says would cause significant economic impact.

As for the county's approaching $30 million deficit, Hertel said he would use the same cost-cutting approach for Wayne County he and former Senate colleague Patrick Mc-Collough used in Lansing.

The Michigan Efficiency Task Force used 70 private industry efficiencey experts, who worked as volunteers on assignment to the state for six months. Together, they drafted department by department recommendations that Hertel said saved Michigan $200 million in 10

Hertel comes from a political family which includes brothers Dennis, a S. Congressman, and Curtis, a state Representative. He got his political start as a high school civics teacher, entering a race for the Wayne County Board of Commissioners when it had 27 members. He was elected for the first time in 1972. at age 25, then the youngest of-ficeholder on the commission.

But he left after nine months to run in a special Senate election and won. After serving in the state Senate for nine years, he returned to Wayne County government in 1982, in time to take part in the charter reform movement.

'The first thing I wanted to do (in Wayne County government) was go after the biggest target of all and that was the road commission," he said. In eight months a ballot proposal was fashioned, and the commission placed it before the voters and it was ap-

"As far as I was concerned, when that happened, the back of the old Wayne County government was broken."

Hertel takes credit for streamlining commission operations with a rewriting of the rules which he did with legal assistance from his political ally, Milton Mack, D-Wayne. Eliminated was the so-called committee of the whole.

In another controversial move last year, Hicrtel, a member of the Huron-Clinton Metropark Authority advocated turning over two of the county's parks to the group.

He said the move was necessary because of the county's fiscal problems. But commissioners from western Wayne County and parks director Eric Reikel oppose the plan.

Ballot issues face voters

On the Congressional level in Wayne County, Democrats Dean Baker and Don Grimes are squaring off for the right to meet U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell in November. Pursell has no Republican opposition.

There are no contests in the Oakland County primary with the exception of precinct delegate, where Robert Brueck and David Lee are listed on the ballot.

State Sen. R. Robert Geake is unopposed on the Republican ballot, but two Democrats, Scott Bassett and Thomas H. Healy are running for the right to challenge Geake in November. Neither State Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, nor Kathy A. Reilly, the Democratic candidate, have opposition.

For county executive, the Democratic race is crowded. Frank Wilkerson, Gerald Edward Berg, Robert A. Ficano, Thomas J. Gondek, John C. Hertel, Edward H. McNamara, Charles J. Nemeth, Michael Tifrea and Samuel A. Turner are vying for the right to succeed Lucas. It is generally conceded that the winner of the Democratic primary will win the general election, although the Republicans have put Bob Murphy on the ballot. A ballot of 17 candidates faces

Wayne County voters in the non-partisan judicial ballot for the third circuit court. Voters will be able to select three candidates from a list that includes William J. Monaghan. John A. Murphy, Michael Murphy, James J. Rashid, James P. Ryan, Timothy C. Scallen, Gregory J. Stempien, David J. Szymanski, Harry C Tatigian, Joseph N. Baltimore, Paul L. Bricker, Robert K. Costello, Stephen B. Foley, Sean P. Kavanagh, Ada S. Kerwin, Kathleen MacDonald and Patrick J. McDonald.

In Oakland County, the retirement of Judge William Ziem in the Sixth Circuit Court has opened up the seat for a field of five. Included in that field is William E. Ziem, son of the retiring justice and Lawrence R. Ternan, Joan E. Young, Jessica R. Cooper and Martin Krohner.

Five compete in Oakland circuit judge race

It's a normal election year for the Oakland Circuit Court. Four incumbent jodges are unopposed. There is one vacancy — Frederick Ziem is retiring at the end of this term - and five candidates are scrambling for the position.

In the August 5 non-partisan primary, voters will winnow the field down to two, who will face off Nov. 4. Here is what they're saying in campaign biographies and in interviews with Civic Searchlight.

WILLIAM ZIEM, 32, Milford resident, associate in the law firm of Jacques & Ziem in Walled Lake. His legal practice includes "extensive trial work in district court. I'm now in the general practice of law, I've handled some municipal cases. I'm most qualified in criminal law."

Education: Olivet College, bachelor of science in 1975; Cooley Law School, law degree in 1978. The son of the retiring judge, Ziem got into the race because "I think I'm best qualified."

JOAN YOUNG, 39, Birmingham resident, administrator of the Circuit Court since 1982, a position requiring a lawyer; deputy administrator, 1979-82.

"The circuit court administrator court. It's a business operation with a $10 million budget, 200 employees and labor negotiations. It's responsible for the Friend of the Court, jury clerk, schedule clerk and now the pre-trial services unit," she said. A native of Allegan, she majored in Spanish, with a minor in psychology, at Michigan State. Young earned her law degree from the Wayne State University Law School in 1974.

LAWRENCE R. TERNAN, 46,
Rochester Hills, city attorney there, principal in a Bloomfield Hills law

He started practice in 1965 in Ferndale, handling "divorce, criminal defense, bankruptcy — anything that would come in the door. I continue to do criminal defense work and personal injury work, primarily defense.

On closing courtrooms: "I'm a firm believer in open courtrooms; a firm believer in the Open Meetings

MARTIN KROHNER, 42, Farmington Hills, assistant Wayne County

After teaching school 2½ years in Detroit, Krohner spent a year as a staff attorney with Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., clerked for a probate judge and was a family law attorney for the Oakland Legal Aid Society.

For the past 13 years, he has been on the Wayne prosecutor's staff. He does much legal teaching. His avocation has been helping to found, and serving as a lobbyist for, Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Education: Michigan State University, bachelor's degree; University of Detroit Law School, law degree.

JESSICA COOPER,40, in second term as district judge in Southfield. Noting that many Circuit Court cases are remanded to District Court, Cooper said, "Since I've been working as a circuit judge, I may as well be on the circuit bench." 'There's a second reason: The state Court of Appeals borrows circuit judges for appellate work, and Cooper started her career in 1973 as an assistant defender in the state appellate defenders office.

Education: Wayne State University, bachelor's and law degrees.

GOP gubernatorial candidates address the issues

Image-making time was over. Now the Republican gubernatorial candidates were being asked tough questions about complex suburban and state issues.

The issues are roads, toxic wastes, paying for special education, the death penalty and negotiating with state workers represented by the ~ Daniel T. Murphy, Colleen Engler and Richard Chrysler - who are asking GOP primary voters Aug. 5 for the chance to tackle Democratic Gov. James Blanchard on Nov. 4 faced the editorial board of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers for more than an hour last week.

"Bill (Lucas) missed a great opportunity to discuss the issues," Murphy said. Lucas, the Wayne County executive, said through a spokesman he had schedule conflicts for both alternative dates posed by the editors.

O. Roads have become a nightmare in suburban Oakland County and western Wayne County as they've become urbanized. The solutions boil down to money. Whose responsibility is it to solve it - the community, the county or the state?

MURPHY, the Oakland County executive: "Road monies come from the state and are passed back out on a formula. It's a problem the local units and state have combined.

"The last (federal) money that came to the state came with the idea that if the state wanted to return 30 percent to the local units, they could. Well, the state highway department doesn't turn 5 percent to deal with our local roads.

"It seems like we (local units) do a better job at everything else. Why can't we do as good a job at controlling our own money that comes from the feds? The state ought to be putting more money down for local roads.

project is completed).

"The only option for local units are the property tax and income tax. We're going to have to give more options to local units.

"There's a problem with the state transportation fund. Groups such as snowmobilers want more for snowmobile trails, others want port development, others for public access to lakes. The governor will have to take a hard stand against those groups, saying 'we want the money in the transportation fund for roads. I'm sorry, but that's what the gasoline tax was established for.'

CHRYSLER, owner and chairman of Cars and Concepts: "We need to work to get more of our federal dollars back. With a Republican governor, at least we'll have an entree into the federal government.

"Our highways are built (under contract) by private sector companies. They should be maintained by the private sector, too. We could cut the cost 25 percent."

Chrysler advocated allowing local option taxes to be approved by vot-

Q. What is your plan for continuing the cleanup of toxic and hazardous wastes in Michigan? What kind of impact will your proposal have in the overall cleanup?

CHRYSLER: "When we're talking about clean air and water, we do not play politics. We can't have the governor meddling with the appointment of the head of the Department of Natural Resources.

"Obviously some things have not been cleaned up in the environment. If we're going to pass laws, we should have the ability to enforce

"As we move toward the next centure that new corporations opening tury, our problem is going to be toxic waste cleanups and also new sites for solid waste disposal. It's very, very expensive. "I've favored a ballot question for a general obligation bonds to be split ENGLER, state representative between state and local units, a cap on landfills, and also the establishment of disposal facilities for solid wastes. Sen. Connie Binsfeld (R-Maple City) proposed it (bond issue) two years ago, but the DNR has been dragging its heels."

County. We have our program in place for the next 20 years, but around the state it isn't done.

The state saw the solid waste problem and created an act for local government to be involved. If you do the same with toxic waste, you're gonna get them (local units) more concerned.

"When we found the toxic waste drums in Rose and White Lake townships, the state came down and said they would put money to clean it up, but they didn't have the money to put a road in to get the drums out. We (county) put a road in. We got involved. The drums are out of that

Q. Several school districts are suing the state, saying it isn't providing enough for special education. How should these categorical items be funded?

ENGLER: "Categorical aid is extremely important to out-of-formula school districts (those that get no general operating aid from the state). We're very much underfunding categoricals. It's a tragedy the school districts had to go to court.

"One of the problems is with the formula itself. It's desperately in need of revision. In many northern Michigan districts, people have a high SEV (assessments for property taxes) and very low income levels, and can't afford to vote for millages.

"I would propose a median income standard test as well as the SEV test in terms of allocating state aid.

"In the future we should look at tax base sharing. Yes, that was proposed in the '70s, and a lot of people didn't like it because they feared loss of local control. If we looked at a 10year phase-in — there's a proposal right now (by Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron) — that might be a serious option."

MURPHY: "The formula needs to be worked on. A lot of districts get a slight increase, and it puts them out of formula.

"People want to have the local district control education and set policy if they can put in a swimming pool or art program, they do it.

"Now some of us have said maybe there should be a single school district in Oakland County, spread out the money equally. But you're not going to sell that to the Farmington School District, to Birmingham, to Bloomfield Hills.

"When you have $900 million coming from the state in 1971 and $2.5 billion coming from the state now for local school systems, the state is not doing a bad job. I give the state credit. The money's been going up except in the tough times."

CHRYSLER: "In the state budget, we spend more money on welfare than on education. That's how bad we've got our priorities mixed up in this state.

"We do owe the school districts for a missed aid payment. I'd love to see the school districts place a lien against Jim Blanchard for not paying those taxes to the school districts."

Chrysler advocated using state lottery money to supplement general fund state aid to education, not allowing the general fund appropriation to be pared as lottery money

Q. Will you support the capital punishment question (as proposed in the ballot question to amend the state constitution)? And if it passes and you're in the governor's chair, what would you do with a plea for executive clemency?

MURPHY: "I support the concept if that's what the people want. If the bill is not written for governor's clemency, I would veto the bill."

ENGLER: "I'm opposed to capital punishment, and the amendment as drafted would allow the Legislature to pass enabling legislation. As governor. I would veto the bill."

tion for changes. If the citizens want governor. it and vote for it, as governor I'll support it. With the number of appeals, it's only remotely possible a mistake will be made."

Q. Why are you in the race? Can you provide executive leadership?

MURPHY: "Some things in state government need to be turned around. I've been managing a large government better than 23 years, and I have experience in turning things around.

"Leadership in the economic climate, the liability insurance situation, education - all of those things are important, but most important is how can we do that job and what can we do that the governor isn't doing?

"You've heard Colleen say that if you can't walk across the hall and talk to the legislators there's something wrong. I have to walk across the hall and talk to the (Oakland County) commissioners every single day. That's how we get along.

"In leadership, I think I can do a lót more (than Blanchard). I don't wait till somebody else gets their feet wet before I make my suggestions. I get involved when I see the problem; I get involved before the problem.

"In economic development, he's looking at manufacturing. We're out of the manufacturing economy now; we're into an information economy. The jobs created in the future will be with corporations with 150 employees or less. The small businessman has to be convinced to stay in Michi-

"I've noticed a dramatic difference in the two governors. (Republican Gov. William) Milliken worked well with the Legislature. (Democratic Gov. James) Blanchard hasn't taken that active an interest after the 38 percent income tax increase. He finds it convenient to go across the state to cut ribbons but very inconvenient to come across the hall and talk to us.

"The most recent example is the liability crisis. As the bills were going through the House and Senate, he never once took a stand. Two weeks before the conference committee met to work, he came up with an idea for a fund that was never brought up in either house of the Legislature.

"I talk about specifics. When I talk about the job climate, I talk about the definition of disability in workers' compensation. When I talk about the MESC, I talk about moving them to Lansing from Detroit to bring them under control, and the executive appointments for boards and universities."

Engler said that if she becomes the gubernatorial nominee, "there is no way he (Blanchard) would be able to duck issues."

CHRYSLER: "I come from a little different background, so I have more ground to cover. We've conducted a grass-roots campaign. We have not taken major endorsements from groups. The people have a better idea of what government should be doing than some of the career politicians like Jim Blanchard.

"The issues are jobs, taxes, crime and education.

"We talk about a job providers climate from the first-hand experience of having done it. When we create jobs, we'll have less crime. If you make people taxpayers instead of tax users, that will let us lower tax-

Family members find niche in plumbing, bath boutique

In high school he worked for his father.

"It was a quick job and good money, but I didn't have a real intention of joining the business until I had been out of high school for one or two years. I was still searching," he admitted.

. During his "searching" he studied for a year at Western Michigan University.

. "Dad never forced me, or really pushed me hard to come into plumbing, but always told me that if I wanted to join the business it was always there, just to keep an open mind towards it."

Glenn achnowledges that he hoped Jim would join him but said, "I think I knew him well enough to know that you can't force him to do anything against his will, and if I pushed too much he'd probably take the opposite view point on it."

The company soon moved from its Seven Mile location to Dunlap Street, to increase the retail business by being in town.

About the time Jim married his wife, Virginia, in 1970, bath boutiques were becoming popular. Glenn credits Virginia with the success of theirs.

"We started it with the idea of Virginia's interest in it," he said. "She's an extremely intelligent young woman with a good personality and is a good business lady, just a natural for the job."

The bath business started in a very small way. "We brought in a few towels and soap dishes and set them on the vanities just to show off the vanity, and found they were selling well," explained Virginia.

With the move to Main Street in 1974, the boutique had more room to expand. It grew steadily to become one of Michigan's largest, bringing people from far afield for items they are unable to find elsewhere.

Virginia manages it, and buys all the towels, rugs, shower curtains, pictures and other accessories. The family appreciates her talents in color coordination and decorating know-

. "We try to carry things customers can't find in other places, whether it be the fog proof mirror that goes in the shower, or an extension mirror you pull out to see the back of your head while you are combing your hair," Virginia said. "We try to carry something unique, or a step up."

She said that this year the colors for bathroom accessories are moving toward the pastels, where earth tones have been popular for so long. She pointed out that people spend more per square foot on their bathroom than on any other room in the house, because bathrooms are usually smaller and have so many fixtures.

She usually recommends people choose a tile and fixture color that is easy to match, such as white, bone or beige.

eige. "Some of the others are very pretty, but 10 or even five years later you can be in trouble when you need to match something and the colors are no longer available," she warned.

As the bath boutique grew, so did the rest of the business. Glenn credits much to Jim's aggressiveness.

"My training was mostly houses and small commercials and apartments, and when he came into the business his leanings were to commercial and industrial work," he

"Of course, when you go into this type of business, you have to get big to have enough men on the payroll to do all the different jobs."

"We are an open shop company," Jim explained, "meaning that our people have chosen not to beong to labor unions. To stay open shop we treat our people right, give them a nice place to work and good working conditions."

"That has helped us be pretty competitive in the market place. It also hinders us on some jobs, because, except for a few minor jobs, we don't work in the auto plants because of the strong unionism. The majority of our work is with public institutions, schools and hospitals."

He said the company just completed a job in Riverside Hospital in Trenton, and one in Annapolis in Wayne, both CAT scan additions.

The firm helped with the Northville High School renovations and is currently replacing the heating systems in two schools in Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham.

"We have an office in Tampa, Fla., that does stictly piping and mechanical contracting and one in Orlando, Fla.," he added.

Lois thinks she knows why the family has been able to work so well together over the years.

"You have to be willing to release the reins and give the young ones a free hand, give them the chance to learn and make mistakes the same as we did when we started, and not be too quick to inject our insistance on doing things our way. There are always two ways to do things. Maybe they choose a different one, but it might come out better than ours would have done."

Glenn agreed with his wife. "You not only have to give them responsibilities, but you have to start giving them a part of the business. After all no one would want to work for their parents all their life.

"I have friends that never cut their sons in on anything, and they end up leaving them and going somewhere else. After all, they are going to be more interested in the business and educate themselves and do a better job if they are part of it rather than just working for it."

Glenn and Lois have an older son, Tom, who has made a name for himself in Scottsdale, Ariz., where he as a company that markets an insurance product. Their daughter, Mary, lives with her family in Livonia and sells real estate.

Glenn and Jim are active in the Western Wayne Association of Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors. Glenn is a past state president and Jim is current and youngest-ever president.

Glenn also belonged to the Northville Downtown Development Authority and worked hard for the downtown renovation. He is extremely pleased with the results.

"You can just be so proud of this community," he said. "We've had a lot of dedicated people here that have spent a lot of time, our council, our mayors, they are really to be complimented for what they have done."

Glenn said there are two factors that have helped keep him and Lois interested in the business for so long.

"It's not only the people working for us, and we have some wonderful, wonderful people work for us, but also the customers. They are so appreciative of the help that you give them."

It's a bit early yet to know whether there will be a third generation of Longs interested in plumbing. Jim and Virginia's daughter, Allison Marie, is just 15 months old and has not yet been introduced to pipe cutting tools.

Jim predicts that she might be a tennis player since he and Tom are very good at the game and have played competitively, ranking high in the state.

Virginia wants her to do what ever she will be happy with. "I would hate her to feel pushed into it, but maybe the business would be a good opportunity," she said.

The ball is in Allison Marie's court!

The Northville Record

The County Commission

In the race for the Republican nomination to the 10th District Wayne County Commission seat our choice is Susan J. Heintz.

While Heintz and Elaine Tuttle both have experience in the political arena - Heintz as supervisor of Northville Township and Tuttle as Livonia city treasurer - Heintz has shown more inclination to get involved in agencies beyond the purview of her elected office.

She is a member of the SEMTA (Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority) Board of Directors, serves on SEMCOG's (Southeast Michigan Council of Governments) governing body, chaired the Rouge River Watershed Council and is the new chairwoman of the Blue Ribbon Commission on county parks.

SUSAN J. HEINTZ

The third candidate, Lawrence Schweiger, although lacking the advantage of having served his community in a political position, nevertheless provides a point of view untainted by a politician's fear of offending the electorate.

. - Although the position of county commissioner may not require a 24hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week commitment on the part of each commissioner, it does require a candidate who is willing to devote full-time efforts to the commission.

Because Heintz has shown an inclination to get involved beyond the demands of her position, we urge voters to support her in the Republican Heintz, first as Northville clerk, and then as supervisor in both posts. proved herself willing to devote the time necessary to fulfill the demands of a growing area. By background and education, she is well qualified for a political career. She grew up in Mt. Clemens, the daughter of the mayor of that community. She received her degree in political science from the University of Michigan.

Unlike Tuttle, who maintains she would keep her position as city treasurer if elected to the county board, Heintz said she would resign the supervisor's job, thereby devoting her full attention to the business of serving residents as their county commissioner.

In interviews with the three Republican candidates, Heintz expressed indepth knowledge of the concerns of growing western Wayne County sewer and water services, the economic growth along the I-275 corridor and road development. She has also been actively involved in the prison issue, which has had particular impact on the Northville-Plymouth area.

The 10th District needs a vocal spokeswoman who knows how to operate within a governmental bureaucracy, a commissioner who will devote her full-time attention and commitment to the job, and one who exhibits a fresh, positive outlook on county issues.

Susan Heintz measures up to the task and merits election on Aug. 5.

Because of the nature of this year's primary, Sliger-Livingston Publications and the Observer & Eccentric are endorsing in this state contest for the first time.

At least two of the candidates, Richard Chrysler and Daniel Murphy, live and work in this newspaper corporation's circulation area. Editors and reporters have covered them extensively throughout their business or political careers — in total more extensively than any other newspaper chain in the state. We believe it is important to share our views of the candidates with you.

The O&E also has covered the action of local state legislators for several years. Because of that coverage we also have become familiar with Colleen Engler.

We have covered each of these candidates on the campaign trail as well as conducted a candidate forum with them.

Township Millages

Township electors will be facing three financial issues when they vote Aug. 5. Each addresses public safety concerns and each is worthy of approval.

Threre are two renewal issues for police operations, and one new request for funding a new fire station in the western portion of the township.

A strong case can be made for the police questions. The first is asking voters to approve a .7-mill renewal for four years; the second to approve a 1.5-mill renewal for five years.

These are not new costs to taxpayers. The only change is that instead of the issues appearing on separate ballots during separate elections, they will appear at the same time and expire on the same date.

The third millage request is for .6 mills, earmarked for constructing and operating the proposed fire station. We find this request also reasonable. While the township may not need the fire station immediately, as the population increases, so does the demand for fire ser-

Proponents of all three millage requests have stressed the reasonableness of the funding and we find no fault with that. Neither the police department, nor the fire department has recklessly spent funds, nor would the township board allow them to

We find these millage requests reasonable, well thought out and necessary and urge voters to approve all three millage requests.

The County Executive

The future is clear. With Edward McNamara as the new executive. Wayne County residents will benefit. Without him, county voters will miss an opportunity to make government more responsive to their needs.

Because of the overwhelming Democratic majority in the county. the decision will be made by voters in the Aug. 5 primary.

The longtime Livonia mayor is an outstanding prospect in a field of fine candidates that includes John Hertel, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners: Samuel Turner, Wayne County Commissioner; Robert Ficano, Wayne County sheriff; and Frank Wilkerson. deputy county executive.

EDWARD H. MCNAMARA

But what sets him apart from the rest is his in-depth administrative experience and his proven record of accomplishment as a public official.

No other candidate can match his record in these areas.

Livonia is one of the best-planned communities in Michigan. The vision which makes that city work is primarily that of McNamara. Before his election as Livonia's chief executive, McNamara's community was headed for a less-than-spectacular future — a future that has come to fruition for other suburban enclaves.

But unlike other suburban political leaders who failed in developing their communities to their full potential, McNamara was able to:

- ☐ Put together an effective management team.
- ☐ Respond to the needs of the electorate.
- ☐ Work with people representing diverse interests.
- [1] Forge alliances with political leaders beyond his jurisdictional,
- [] Stand up to political forces, both inside and out, which are adverse; to the interest of his constituency.
- □ Work with the private sector in bringing new business to his jurisdiction
- ☐ Effectively deal with a legislative body.

What McNamara has done for Livonia, he can do for Wayne County. . . .

He understands that for county residents to benefit, the county government must work with local units of government to solve problems? He realizes that suburban concerns must find a common ground with Detroit if the county government is ever going to be effective. Although possessing many years of political experience, he is free from obligations to any special interest group or political force. He knows when to compromise, but knows enough not to compromise the interests of those he represents.

A low-key, no-nonsense leader, McNamara will be able to get down to county business, unblinded by the spotlight of higher office shining in his face. We need that kind of leader in Wayne County.

McNamara is the one.

6th District State Senate

Those casting ballots for the Sixth District State Senate seat in the upcoming Democratic primary are beset with a difficult choice.

Both Thomas Healy and Scott 'Bassett are worthy candidates. Either Democrat would serve well in 'the state legislature. One of them on Aug. 5 will earn the right to challenge incumbent State Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville), in the November general election.

We believe, however, that Bassett makes the better candidate. A Livonia native and resident, Bassett, 30, was employed from 1981-84 by the Southfield law firm of Hyman, Gurwin, Nachman, Friedman and Winkelman. He is an assislant professor at the University of Michigan Law School, where he earned his law degree in 1981. Bassett received his bachelor's degree from -Wayne State University in 1978 where he was Phi Beta Kappa. He was salutatorian of Stevenson High School's 1974 graduating class.

- Bassett, however, would bring more than a stellar track record to the Capitol. One of his greatest strengths is his indepth understanding of issues and problems confronting the people of the Sixth District and this

A good thinker and keen observer, Bassett has devised workable solutions and progressive ideas, tempering them with realism. Bassett has done his homework and is hungry. He's eager to work diligently to bring his goals to fruition. He's accomplished much working outside the legislature, and says that he needs the powers of office to follow through. We feel he deserves that opportunity.

Bassett says he's running so that families and children, like other groups, will have a legislative representative. He sees inequities in the way family law is administered, and would push for passage of a family court bill to create an autonomous family division of the circuit court. It would consolidate family cases that currently are handled by four different courts, making better use of judicial talent.

Bassett also would work for a revised criminal code that would "set up distinct classes for crime and prescribe the penalties for those crimes." Bassett favors increasing prison capacity by penalizing nonviolent offenders with methods other than incarceration

To fund public education, he supports a tax shift from property tax to income tax that would ease the burden on the "house poor" and better reflect ability to pay. He strongly favors the ERA and bottle deposit law. He opposes the death penalty, balanced budget amendment ("because it makes it too easy to overlook human needs") and prayer in school.

Also lending Bassett broad appeal is his ability to be both aggressive and personable. Vigorous, determined and dedicated, he possesses the skills needed the build bridges and support in Lansing.

With his genuine concern for and skill in dealing with diverse problems, particularly social problems, Sixth District residents would be Well represented by Bassett.

He is eminently qualified to serve and exudes potential. We feel voters would be wise to select Scott Bassett for State Senate Aug. 5.

The Republican Gubernatorial Primary

Running today's state government takes a true team effort. A breadth and depth of experience is needed to meet all the challenges facing Michigan over the next decade.

That's why we urge Republican voters to support a ticket — Daniel Murphy and Colleen Engler. If you're so inclined, reverse the order, Engler/Murphy. It's all the same, a team that can meet the needs and desires of a broad-based Republican True, as voters in the Aug. 5 primary, Republicans only will be able to vote for one of the two. But establishing the notion that a team will work best — both on the cam-paign trail and in the governor's office — is essential.

Let's get the politicians used to the idea that service to the electorate transcends candidates' needs to grab all the power for themselves.

The recommended team provides a well-rounded base that Republican voters can feel confident represents their interests. Combined

□ In-depth legislative and executive experience. ☐ Ideas and concepts that demonstrate an understanding of and concern for the state's future needs.

COLLEEN H. ENGLER

An ability to offer a real electoral challenge to the incumbent. These attributes are in marked contrast to the two front-runners.

Engler is the shining light of the Michigan GOP. Although hampered by a lack of campaign funds, the state legislator makes a lasting impression wherever she goes. She would make a fine governor or lieutenant governor.

Well-versed in state issues, the best among the GOP candidates, she would give Democratic Gov. James Blanchard or Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths the toughest time in a debate forum. She knows the issues and has an in-depth program to solve the state's problems.

Without a doubt, Engler is the future of the Michigan GOP. The voters who have had a chance to hear her speak know it. It's time party bosses realize it, too.

Murphy, longtime Oakland County executive, has built a reputation as an administrator who gets the job done. Public flash and dash isn't his trump card, as is the case with some other candidates.

Result is his forte. And that's what Michigan needs in any gubernatorial candidate.

Oakland is the state's most economically viable county. And with good reason. Murphy has worked hard, and with results, to draw business to his county. That's not an easy job in a state where the cost of running business is so high.

We believe he can do the same for this state.

Murphy also is a master at deal; ing with a legislative body. The county executive's office and the board of commissioners has an efficient work; ing relationship — a rarity in county

We believe he can do the same with the state legislature.

2nd District U.S. Representative

Democrats living in the Second Congressional District, which includes Northville, must decide whether Dean Baker or Don Grimes is the best candidate to challenge incumbent U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, in November.

In addition to who stands the best chance of victory, the key issue is which of the two is better qualified to serve in the U.S. Congress if elected in the fall. We believe Don Grimes of Ann Arbor is the best man on both counts — he can run a stronger campaign against Pursell than can Baker and would make a better congressman if elected.

Baker, also of Ann Arbor, is an economics assistant instructor who is working on his doctorate at the University of Michigan. The younger Baker is not to be confused with the Dean Baker who is a Republican U of M regent who once ran for the U.S. Senate nomination.

Baker can take pride in playing a key role in convincing Ann Arbor residents to approve Proposal A this spring. And he advocates a change in U.S. policy in Central America. But that limited role, augmented by his knowledge of economics, is not congressional material. Baker smacks too much of being a oneissue candidate although he certainly is trying to broaden his appeal.

Grimes is informed on the issues and on Pursell's record. He has a mind of his own and can come up with fresh ideas rather than merely reciting campus rhetoric. An example is Grimes' proposal that the endangered guaranteed student loan program be replaced with direct federal loans to students, which would be collected by the IRS via a surcharge on the income tax.

We endorse the candidacy of Don Grimes.

Kiwanis seeks support for funding new projects

To the Editor:

When the special children of the Northville area go bowling on Saturday, Kiwanis takes them

As you look around Northville, you see a library at Allen Terrace, a house for Santa at Christmastime and a small park with benches for you to relax while downtown.

Food baskets were provided by Kiwanis to 20 families last

Recently, Kiwanis was asked to provide seed money for the new Northville Community Park. They gave $3,000 because members feel that this park will benefit all of the children of the Northville area. They also have contributed $1,000 to help build the new bandshell that will be enjoyed by everyone in downtown Northville.

Thanks to the donation of the sausage grill by Genitti's, Kiwanis has worked to support most requests, but, because of recent large expenditures, there are not always sufficient funds to support some requests. Kiwanis doesn't like to say no!

On Monday, Aug. 11, Kiwanis will be holding the sixth annual golf outing at Baypointe Golf Club. The tax-deductible entry fee of $100 remains the same as last year. This year's outing wikli include 18 holes of golf with a cart, breakfast, lunch and dinner, and an open bar. There also will be cash and merchandise prizes, special events and entertainment.

In addition, any participoant that scores a hole-in-one on the 169 yard, par three, seventh hole, will be awarded a $10,000 cash prize. You can reserve your preferred starting

Local businesses are requested to sponsor a hole at the golf outing. The sponsor's fee of $100 will put the name of your business in front of all golfers as they tour the course.

Anyone in the community who does not wish to participate in the golf outing is encouraged to send a donation to Kiwanis. The membersd of the club do not benefit monitarily from any contributions - all proceeds go back to the community and especially to the children.

The Kiwanis Club thanks all of those who help them to make this outing a success so that they can continue to provide service to the Northville community and never have to

Squad deserves credit

What is wrong with The Northville Record's sports department? There is a lot of news out there, and we seem to be getting the same stories

Why not let the Northville residents know, so they can watch this week on ESPN, the U.S. Olympic Festival being played in Houston. Northville has three young men participating iln the games. Luke Hohman, Jerry Pawloski and Jerod Swallow worked hart to get to these games, and I think they deserve some local recognition.

The Northville High School Pom Pon Squad went to Mid American Pom Pon Camp in Saginaw last week (week of July 14). For three months the girls worked two to four hours each day without a coach so they could make us proud of them.

Their hard work paid off. The girls brought home a first and second place trophy plus a "Special Effort" trophy for working so hard and doing so well without a coach. Great job,

Also at this camp, Krista Schwartz was chosen from 85 girls who tried out for the All Star Squad. Krista will be on the All American Squad. Krista will be on the All American Squad World and the Detroit Thanksgiving our feelings. Day Parade. Super job, Krista.

Let's make the sports section more interesting. We have Little League baseball and soccer. These kids work hard all summer and would probably like to see their names in print and not so much space given to the same baseball teams each week.

There is a lot of news out there. It is not our job to let you know the news. A good reporter finds the news

Northville had a great Fourth of July parade. Let's put somebody from Northville on the front page of The Northville Record.

Good luck to all the young men and women of Northville!

To the Editor:

What a blow it was for the Northville Pom Pons, cheerleaders and many parents to pick up the July 9 issue of The Northville Record to see the front page picture featuring the Plymouth Salem Rockettes.

The Plymouth Salem girls are a fine group of performers; they do not represent Northville or the readers that support and subscribe to The Northville Record. The Northville Pom Pom and Cheerleaders give of themselves 110 percent and receive very little credit for their efforts. We, the parents of these girls, are proud with 49 other top Michigan Pom Pon of their efforts and acgirls. This squad will perform in the complishments. ## Dunlap resident sees positive change

To the Editor:

This is the only way I know to show how grateful we are for the town. Northville city and police offer a fine service, and we appreciate them.

Dunlap is a stately old street, deriving its name from the historical Captain Willialm Dunlap of the War of 1812. Ten years ago, its big old trees and its 100 year old homes were the perfect setting for the older folks who lived here.

. The storms came and some of the older trees fell. Some of the older residents retired to the southland. Those of us who stayed held our breath as change came. Nothing stays the same, but surely change doesn't have to be for the worst! It could be for Change did come. A caring Northville planted new trees to replace the lost. Young families moved in bringing the voices of children playing. Young adults brought restoring scaffolds and laughter wilth their porch par-

Here we sit on our porch on Dunlap, greeting neighbors as they go by, cheering the little trees as they take root. There are 13 children in two blocks with two new babies due any time; so the Northville police quietly installed a "Children playing" sign to protect the young. Pat Delany

Who's qualified to judge?

As newspapers go, The Record is pretty good. It covers the news, gives opinions and still keeps its hometown flavor.

But at election time, this paper, along with a too great number around the state and the country, falls down on the job when it comes to selecting the best candidates for

In some ways, voting for judicial candidates is like voting for the surgeon general. Who else but attorneys or other judges know who the best candidate is?

Maybe we should care a little more. At the district court level, it may not really matter who the judge is, as long as he or she is competent. But district judges have a way of becoming circuit court judges, and they advance to the State Supreme Court or appelate courts and tend to move up the ladder until maybe, just maybe, they may become a U.S. judge.

The federal judges have an awful lot of power given them by the Constitution and the rules of the courts. In many ways, their decisions carry more weight than presidential policies or the laws enacted by the Con-

Yet, everyone pays attention to the gubernatorial, congressional and presidential candidates. Not many people seem to care who is elected to the bench.

It seems even the political parties fall down on the job. True, the court races are ostensibly nonpartisian, yet in most instances each of the political parties seems to have its favorite judicial son or daughter.

Neither is the Congress exempt from shirking its duties when it comes to knowlege about judicial appointments. Take the case of Daniel Manion, who last week was approved for a seat on the federal bench when the Senate split 49-49 on whether to reconsider an earlier vote to approve his appointment.

It would seem, from this angle at least, that, if half the Senate has questions about his worthiness or ability as a federal judge, then the appointment should be denied. Our, laws and our democratic form of government are too precious to allow any question of the worthiness of the men and women who serve as judges to remain.

Perhaps, like a potential amendment to the Constitution or a Cabinet appointment, it would be beneficial to require a two-thirds majority to approve an appointment to the federal bench. Perhaps it would behoove the State of Michigan to have its Supreme Court justices appointed, rather than elected, and require a two-thirds majority of the State Senate for confirmation.

And perhaps, like all good citizens, it would be helpful if we all spent a little more time examining just who is running for judge. So that instead of relying on name recognition when we cast ballots for judge, we can vote with the knowledge that we are voting for the person who best represents. our legal system.

Program inadequate

To the Editor:

I do not feel good about Northville hosting the upcoming World Series. In fact, I feel it is very hypocritical. If changes are not made in our program, Northville baseball will continue to deteriorate.

Our children play on fields that are poorly kept. More often than not, the fields are not marked and bases are not provided. Parents are illinformed of dates, places and length of season. Uniforms and equipment are inadequate.

The above complaints are heard year after year. The discontent voiced among parents at games this year was fatalistic. They seriously play next year.

When people approach the baseball board with ideas, they are continually rejected. What the program needs is a leadership that will make changes, be open to different procedures, be forceful with the recreation department to follow through on its responsibilities and to realize that more people would participate if they were treated as an integral part of a program working with young people.

Perhaps there is another Al Kaline in the Northville area, but the majority of children play ball for the great fun of it. Although in the past Mr. (Robert) Frellick has worked hard for Northville baseball, I feel his and the baseball board's priority should be the children who play in Northville and not strangers from Sincerely,

Colligan named full-time athletic director

After 7 years grid coach leaves post

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

No matter how high up in the school administration Dennis Colligan moves, he still plans to stay very close to the athletes and athletic environment he loved to be associated with for over a decade in Northville

The Northville Board of Education announced last Friday that Colligan, 37, the Mustangs' head football coach for seven seasons, would replace Ralph Redmond as the school's athletic director. But the board was looking for a full-time A.D., and when Colligan accepted the position, he agreed to relinquish his head coaching duties in favor of long-time assistant Darrell Schumacker.

"I' am assuming the role of athletic director and relinquishing my duties as football coach," Colligan said from a prepared statement. "It was a tough decision."

The decision was an agonizing one, but after much consideration and consultation with his family and coaching staff, Colligan decided the move would be the best for himself and the athletic stability at Northville High School.

"I had to really think hard about this, but I suppose it was a matter of timing for me," Colligan said in an interview Friday. "It came about in a flash, and it was a surprise to me. I talked it over with my family and assistant coaches and figured it was the time to make the move and try to make an impact on athletics here (at

L've had (being an athletic directop) as a goal for quite some time he admitted. "It's been a career goal to be in the administration end of it - but I'm not so sure I'm linished coaching I suppose any second thoughts I have will turn up this fall."

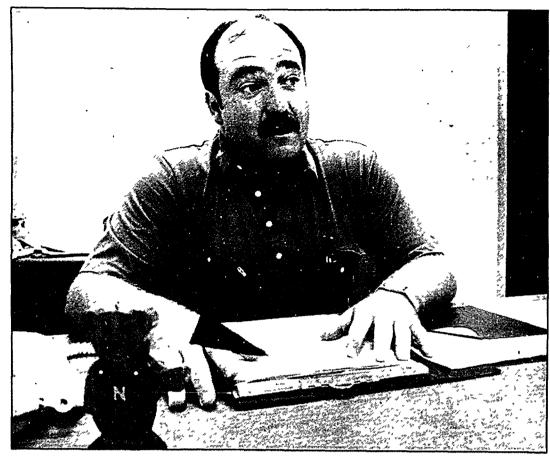

in school board meetings last spring the board decided to go ahead with plans for restructuring the high school administration, which included making the Northville Athletic Director post a full-time position. Redmond, the outgoing A.D., had to share those duties with many more administrative obligations as an assistant principal prior to the decision. With Colligan as the A.D., Redmond is free to devote all his time as ?This is something that's been talked about for the last nine years, and I think it's for the betterment of the entire school," Redmond said. "Both the athletic director and assistant principal posts are very big jobs, and right now it will be better from àn organizational set up.

"It will make the situation all the way around easier for all of us. I think naming Dennis Colligan was a wise choice because he knows the program as well as anybody, and I mean the overall program — not just the tootball program.'

Along with the A.D. functions, Colligan also will continue teaching special education at the high school but on a somewhat limited basis.

"The board decided that the athletic director will also be a parttime teacher," Colligan reported. "So I will be teaching for two-hours and then spending the rest of the day

The teaching aspect is a welcome development for Colligan, who stressed over and over again his desire to remain close to the studentathletes at the high school especially the football players.

"I get a real nice office down by the gym, and that's where I want to be that's where I feel comfortable," was one of the first things Colligan said after the announcement. "The toughest part is separating myself from the seniors and other players who have been with me for two or three years. They are as close a group of kids I've ever had. It was tough to leave them - especially that

There is little doubt that Colligan is a sports person and a players' coach. He began teaching at the high school 12 years ago, and his first coaching duties for the Mustangs included ninth grade basketball and junior varsity baseball. Two years later, Colligan was brought onto the football coaching staff of Chuck Shonta as the J.V. coach and three years later he became the head coach. At that time he remained in basketball coaching but dropped out of baseball to keep the spring open for football conditioning and weightligting ses-

"I was a three sport coach for a while and then a two-sport coach," Colligan explained. "I am familiar with the athletic department, the athletes, other programs and coaches. I'm sure it will be very challenging, but I'm excited about

In 10 years of coaching football, Colligan sported a fine 57-30 overall record. As the varsity coach, he went 36-27 over seven seasons including back-to-back 7-2 campaigns in 1983-

"For the last three years, I thought we had a solid program," he said. "Every time we went on the field, we thought we could win and compete with anybody. I have some great

Colligan said he thinks it's an ideal time to become an athletic director because of all the positive changes going on in the state and in Nor-

"We have great athletic facilities here in Northville," Colligan pointed out. "A lot of them have been updated recently and I feel our facilities are as good as anybody's. They are where we want them to be.

'My goal is to continue to be competitive in the Western Lakes (Activities Association) and to push toward a higher level of success. It is a very tough conference, but it also has its advantages. As a small class A school, we have to work tremendously hard to keep up, but I'll tell you — we have good kids here. They work hard and they refuse not to be Another goal Colligan mentioned was to continue to bring state-level that will appeal to the community and show off Northville's facilities at the same time.

"A good example is the girls' soc-cer finals," Colligan said. "We are going to work on bringing that back and getting even more in the future."

Colligan hopes to strengthen all athletics at Northville and believes his football program was solid and could serve as a model for the rest.

"It was a quality program," he declared. "I never felt I put a team on the field that couldn't win, and we want to spread that type of confidence to all sports. But we have an excellent coaching staff, and that's a tribute to Ralph Redmond."

Good, healthy communication between coaches and players is an area

Colligan plans to stress. He believes a relationship of trust and respect is one of the most important things a coach can strive for.

"It's so important to be able to deal with the kids outside the classroom," he said. "Sure, the work in the classroom is the most important, but if they don't do things outside the classroom, they miss out on a big portion of the high school experience.

"Coaches should make themselves available, and the kids should be comfortable approaching and talking with their coaches. But you can't sacrifice discipline for communica-

Tony Briningstool, Northville's All-State linebacker candidate, summed up the whole situation from the players' point of view as a complete surprise but increasing optimism for the coming season

After seven years as the Mustangs' head football coach, Dennis Colligan (above and above left) announced Friday he is relinquishing his duties to become Northville's athletic director

"For myself and the players, we.all are going to miss Coach Colligan's leadership, but we are all very familiar with Coach Schumacker; he said. "He's been with us a long time, and everybody was pleased that he got the job.

"It's not like we're losing Coach Colligan — he'll be missed as a per son and a coach, but he'll still be around a lot. All the players are very fond of both coaches.

Dennis Colligan was a players' coach, and he'll probably be a players' athletic director. Some

Assistant selected as replacement

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

When a restructuring in the administration at Northville High School called for a full-time athletic director, and when the Mustang's seven year Head Coach Dennis Colligan decided to take the job and leave his coaching post, and when the Schumacker was the logical choice.

Schumacker, 37, an assistant coach during Colligan's entire reign as football coach, was the top candidate for the job and it was announced Friday that the Northville Board of Education had indeed chosen him to guide the Mustang gridiron fortunes beginning this fall. For most involved, it was a satisfying conclusion to an important decision and yet a rather easy choice.

"I think he's an excellent choice," Colligan said. "He has a super way of relating to the kids, he knows the talent level of the returning players, and the kids know him. For the good of the program, we were very fortunate to have Darrell Schumacker available."

Schumacker first began teaching in the district 13 years ago and joined the football staff of thenhead Coach Chuck Shonta as an assistant junior varsity coach. After five seasons under Shonta. Schumacker became a member of Colligan's new staff and worked with the offense. But for the past five years, he's been the defensive coordinator and Colligan's top assistant

"I think the choice was the most logical way to go," former Northville Athletic Director Ralph Redmond said when notified of the decision.

"He's been the right hand man for Dennis for a long time, and he knows the program very well."

Schumacker, a mathematics teacher at the high school, lives in South Lyon with his wife, Janet, two daughters (age 13 and 11) and son (age seven). He was a three sports star at tiny East Jordan High School in northern Michigan, but didn't play football in college.

"I guess I'm a dying breed because I didn't play in college," he admitted. "But I've coached every phase of the game, and I've been here quite a while. I'm looking forward to it and the challenge — I think we have some great kids to work with."

For Schumacker, the recent changes in the athletic staff came as a surprise, but after a while, he could see the writing on the walls.

"I think to some degree it was a surprise," he pointed out, "but once I knew that Denny (Colligan) was going to get the athletic director and the amount of time that was left before the season starts, it became a necessity that one of us within the program would try to continue the pro-

"It will be a smooth transition. I don't plan to make any big changes — it will be a continuation of what we've been doing. I feel confortable with the kids and the coaching part of it. I enjoy coaching, I just hope I can continue to enjoy it as a head coach - that's my apprehension.

Most assistant coaches have the goal of becoming a head coach eventually, but for Schumacker,

"Quite frankly, there was not a burning desire to be head coach, as many assistants work to be,".
Schumacker explained. "That really wasn't my goal. I always enjoyed the role Denny had given in me, and he gave me quite a bit of freedom. I feel good about the fact that the administration was: behind me all the way, and encouraged me to make the choice.

Instead of Schumacker openly campaigning for the position, he actually sat back while the school board and Colligan tried to convince him to take the job. In addition to the support from the administration, Schumacker also has the full support from his returning players.

"For myself and the players, we all are going to miss Coach Colligan's leadership," Mustang linebacker and tri-captain Tony Briningstool said. "But we are all very familiar with Coach Schumacker - everybody was pleased he got the job. He has a good relationship with all the players and, since he's been with the program for so long, I think the transition will be very smooth."

With the graduation of a large and talented senior class last spring, Schumacker has a very . challenging season ahead. But he knows that no matter how overmatched, Northville players manage to make up the difference in heart and desire - at least that's what the new Mustang football coach is banking on.

"One of the reasons I took this position is because of the young men I have an opportunity to work with," he said. "They are a great bunch

Holzer ends regular season in 3rd place

After being swept in a doubleheader July 20, Tom Holzer Ford, Northville's collegiate entry, rebounded to win its final three games and clinch a third place finish in the extremely competitive LCBL.

Following the 6-3 and 12-4 sweep to Livonia Adray, Holzer's drive for the fourth and final playoff spot was in jeopardy. But key wins over West Bloomfield's Maple Appliance and Ann Arbor Wendy's not only pulled the team back into contention, it actually moved Holzer into a third place tie with West Bloomfield. But, due to a 4-2 advantage in head-tohead competition, Holzer was declared in sole possession of third place heading into the LCBL

"We got exactly what a team that slumping needs, and that's good pitching," co-Coach Bob Peterson said. We also had some timely hits but our pitchers - Kopitzke, Stout and Willerer — really did a great job for

Despite outhitting Adray 9-5 in the opener of the twinbill, Holzer fell to the Livonia team 6-3. Behind the hitting of Bill Uhle, Adray came back from a 3-2 deficit in the sixth inning with four runs off Holzer starter and loser Chris Willerer.

Kevin Ritter, Scott Peterson and Martin Eddy all had two hits off Adray's Don Vesling while Ritter, Scott Draper and Rob Cannon drove in the three runs for Holzer.

In the nighcap, Adray came back again, this time from a 3-0 deficit to win 12-4. Adray scored four runs in the fourth inning, four in the fifth and three in the sixth to blow the game wide open.

Darren Armstrong pitched well in his first start of the season but tired in the fourth and fifth innings. Chris Dominique came on in relief and pitched the final 21/2 innings and was tagged for four runs, but only one

With its back against the wall and two games with third place Maple Appliance last Wednesday and Thursday, Holzer received two excellent pitching performances and won both games. On Wednesday, Dan Kopitzke held Maple to one hit — an infield single in the fifth — and cruised to a 2-0 shutout win. Kopitzke went the distance and collected eight strike outs and just four walks.

Both Holzer runs came in the second on singles by Cannon and Ken Krill. Craig Matthews suufered the loss for Maple despite allowing only five hits.

On Thursday, Chris Stout scattered four hits, struck out four and walked two in a clutch 12-2 mercy-run win over Maple. The win upped Holzer's record to 14-13-2, good for a third place tie with Maple.

After falling behind 1-0 in the first, Holzer responded with three runs in the second, four in the third and Five more in the sixth. Peterson's two-run double in the second, Armstrong's two-run homer in the third and Engel's two-run double in the fifth were the big blows for Holzer. Last Friday (July 25), the Northville entry ended the season with a bang as pitcher Chris Willerer hurled a no-hitter against Wendys. The 2-0 five inning rain-delayed win clinched third place.

Willerer gave up just two walks and fanned seven of the 17 batters he faced. Holzer scored twice in the first inning to provide Willerer with all the offense he needed. Krill scored on an error, and Armstrong drove in Engel for the only runs of the game.

"We're really tickled with the outcome of the regular season," Peterson admitted. "Being in the top half of the league in only our second year is quite an accomplishment. We are very pleased with the team's progress."

Connie Mack squad ends season 12-7

Northville's Connie Mack squad continues on a roll, winning two of three games last week and ending the current regular season at 12-7. Heading into the the district tournament (which is hosted by Northville), Coach Bob Frellick's team finished third in league play behind cochampions Waterford and Westland.

On July 24, Northville knocked North Farmington/West Bloomfield out of first place with a 9-5 win. A big eight-run rally in the first inning was the difference as Northville sent 12 batters to the plate and belted out seven hits and two walks.

Last Saturday, Northville split a doubleheader with West Seven of Detroit, winning the opener 4-0 but dropping the nightcap 4-1. In game one, Northville scored all four runs in the fifth inning while starter Tony Craig was on his way to the shut out. Craig went all the way, had eight strike outs, three walks and scattered seven hits.

In game two, Northville managed just four hits while West Seven score twice in the first and added single runs in the second and sixth innings.

"We continue to play well," Frellick said. "We were up and down at the beginning of the year, but that was because we didn't play a consistent schedule. It really affected our momentum and consistency.

The Northville District began vesterday and will continue through this weekend with the finals on Aug. 2. All games are at Northville High

SBAM urges support of product liability reforms

the crisis in product liability insurance, small business owners in Michigan are being urged by the Small Business Association of Michigan (SBAM) to support a product liability reform measure sponsored by U.S. Senator Jon Danforth (R-Mo.).

John Galles, executive director of SBAM, and Richard J. Francis, merchant banker for Carleton, Ward & Co. of Birmingham, have been appointed Michigan's small business co-chairs of the National Council on Product Liability Reform.

The primary focus of the council is to urge U.S. Senators to support the Product Liability Reform Act, which was passed by the Senate Commerce. Science and Transportation Commit-tee in late June and is expected to be voted on by the full Senate in August.

Galles and Francis will supervise media activity, call-in and write-in efforts for a variety of industries representing Michigan's small

According to Francis, 1985-86 presi-

As part of a national effort to ease dent of SBAM, the product liability crisis has become the leading issue facing the business community and the American consumer.

"The difficulty of acquiring affordable liability insurance is driving up the prices of goods and services, putting small companies out of business, creating job losses and inhibiting the introduction of new product lines and technology, he said.

As an appointed delegate to the 1986 White House Conference on Small Business, Francis already has received the support of the Michigan delegation — a group of 61 appointed and elected small business owners from all areas of the state.

Product liability has emerged as one of 16 top priority issues in small business conferences held in every state during the past year.

Galles said small business owners have been seeking a national product liability standard for several years in order to eliminate the costs and confusion of laws that vary from state to state. Legislation addressing the issue has been pending in Congress for nearly five years.

"This is an extremely important issue for all business owners who sell their goods and services in more than one state," said Galles. "A uniform national product liability standard will reduce costs for both producers and consumers."

The proposed reforms would place a limit on joint and several liability, limiting a defendant's liability for non-economic damages to percentages of responsibility. In addition, it would cap awards for pain and suffering at $250,000.

The Danforth measure further attempts to lower costs of product liability claims by encouraging both parties to settle claims quickly through a system of incentives and penalties. Under the proposed system, victims of product-related accidents could include an offer to settle in a claim for recovery. Defendants also could make an offer to settle within 90 days from the time a lawsuit is filed.

Michigan Senator Donald Riegle (D-Flint) is a member of the Senate Committee on Commerce which approved the Danforth bill by a vote of 10-7. Riegle voted against the bill and was opposed to amendments which would have strengthened the bill. He has consistently voted against product liability reform, Galles noted.

A statewide, non-profit organization. the Small Business Association of Michigan works to improve the economic climate for small firms throughout Michigan, focusing primarily on legislative and administrative reforms at the state and federal level.

Sales of existing homes exceed record pace of '78, Realtors say were running 21 percent ahead of a year ago, according to the area's largest multiple listing service.

Metro MLS said sales by its members during the first six months reached 10,769 units compared to 8,900 at the end of June, 1985. Sales for the month included 1,685 detached homes and 94 condominiums in the Wayne, Oakland and Livingston County areas covered by the

"We currently are running nearly 7 percent ahead of our record pace in 1978," said Metro MLS President Joanne R. Bryngelson. "With today's market conditions, we feel we would be even farther advanced were it not for financing delays.

"Our affiliate, the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, has serious concerns about the unduly long period customers are experiencing in obtaining mortgage approvals. The board is making overtures to members of the lending community to speed up the process time including appraisals. We hope ways can be found to simplify the mortgage approval process to aid Bryngelson noted that listings were continuing to lag 10 percent behind those of last year with June listings down some 14 percent.

"July was one of our two best sales months in 1985 and we hope for a repeat this year," she said. "Mortgage interest rates at that time were running about two percent higher than at present, so conditions are favorable.

Average prices reported by the Metro MLS continued to show marked gains with the $75,634 reported in June the highest on record. This indicated a 20 percent gain from a year earlier with the year-to-date price for 1986 up 16 percent at $71,441.

While prices here are beginning to reflect a more equitable market value, many of our 1986 sales are newer, higher-priced units in prime locations," Bryngelson said. "This year these represent about 38 percent of our sales, nearly double the figure of 1985.

"The majority of our sales still fall in the $30,000 to $70,000 grouping, so most buyers can find a good selection within their affordability range."

Time to consider refinancing all loans

Pat yourself on the back if you have taken advantage of low interest rates and refinanced your home mortgage for a considerable savings. But don't stop there. With borrowing costs lower than they have been in years, the Michigan Association of CPAs advises you to review your other outstanding loans.

Take a look at your credit card finance changes, auto loans, home improvement and tuition loans. It may be wise to pay off entirely higher cost, short-term loans or borrow from a less expensive source to refinance long-term debts.

Make a list of all your loans, including the amount, interest charge and length of each loan. Now single out the most costly loans, those requiring high interest rate payments. List, too, those you feel you might be able to pay off completely.

Credit-card loans probably top one of your lists. Current low interest rates give you two basic alternatives, pay off or pay down. Although credit card interest rates have come down recently, many consumers may still be paying on purchases or cash advances with rates as high as 20 percent. It may be wise to dispose of that loan completely by borrowing from a less expensive source or using part of

Money Management

Let's say you are paying 20 percent interest on a $1,000 credit card loan. You are also building a savings account at your local bank or savings and loan, which is paying seven per-cent interest. If you are in the 40 percent tax bracket, you probably will pay about $120 in interest this year (after taxes). Yet your savings account is only yielding $42 (after taxes) for every $1,000 saved. If you can afford to reduce your savings, take $1,000 and pay off the credit card debt and save $78.

If you don't have enough money to pay off the credit card debt now, try to pay off the loan as early as possible. The quicker you do this, the less money it will cost you over the long

The same strategies, pay off completely or pay off at a faster rate, also apply to auto loans, home improvements loans, vacation loans or any type of installment debt. But if you don't have enough money in you savings to pay off a high interest loan, where can you find a less expensive source of funds?

☐ Company Pension Plans: Many pension plans allow employees to borrow against their plan accounts, often up to half the value of their nonforseitable retirement benefits. Interest payments to these plans are tax deductible.

☐ Credit Unions: Because of their lower overhead and non-profit status, credit unions usually offer their members interest rates lower than commercial interest rates.

☐ Insurance Companies: Borrowing against the cash value of your life insurance has proven to be an effective way to make a low interest loan.

☐ Brokerage Houses: Individuals can use their securities as collateral for borrowing from brokerage houses at interest rates often lower than commercial rates.

□ Your Employer: Many employers have lending programs that provide loans to their employees, often at favorable interest rates. Be sure to consult a CPA about tax consequences.

☐ Banks and Savings & Loans: These institutions can offer reasonable rates, particularly if the marketplace is competitive. But shop around to find the best terms.

Remember, because interest rates are lower now than a few years ago, any loan at reasonable rates is likely to save you money when used to pay off an older, higher interest rate loan. But you should compare the cost of a new loan with the amount you would eventually save before going ahead. There is a third strategy that could ave you money. Consolidating installment debts by taking out one loan to repay all or some of your loans could save you money and free you from troublesome paperwork as well. Again, the key is finding a loan with low enough interest rates to offset any origination or other fees and save you substantial money in the long term.

Those who expect to refinance a home mortgage can consolidate existing loans at the same time. If you refinance for a higher principal than you actually need, you can use the extra cash to pay off a few of your more costly loans.

But before you take out a major loan, particularly if you are using equity in your home as collateral, consult a CPA to help you evaluate the impact of the loan on vour

'IRA rollovers' attractive when changing jobs

According to the Employee Benefits Research Association, Americans change jobs an average of 10 times during their adult working years. And when they leave one job for another, or opt for retirement, many are in for a lot of money, and a huge tax bill.

But there may be a way to avoid the bad news. To paraphrase an old popular song, "Rollover, Beethoven," there's an IRA made especially for people like you. Here's how it works:

When you make a career move or retire, you become eligible to receive your share of your employer's pension or profit-sharing plan. And that could be a substantial sum. In fact, it could be the largest sum of money you'll ever receive at one time.

Unfortuantely, you could be forced to pay taxes on the entire amount (either at your ordinary income tax rate, or using a special calculation known as 10-year forward averagAn IRA Rollover account offers several benefits. First, you can avoid paying tax on your employer's distribution all at once. You can also defer all taxes on interest or capital gains until you begin making withdrawals. And, there's no upper limit on the amount you can roll over, whether it's $500 or $50,000.

ing) unless you know your options. And one of the most attractive choices available may be to 'rollover" the money into an IRA.

An IRA Rollover account offers several benefits. First, you can avoid paying tax on your employer's distribution all at once. You can also defer all taxes on interest or capital gains until you begin making withdrawals. And, there's no upper limit on the amount you can roll over, whether it's $500 or $50,000. One stipulation, however, is that the amount has to represent at least half of the total distribution you received.

How does this affect your regular IRA contribution for the year? It doesn't. You can still put up to $2,000 in a regular IRA in addition to the amount of your Rollover IRA.

One thing to keep in mind is that timing is extremely important. For example, if you choose to roll the money over into an IRA, you have only 60 days to act. Once the 60 days are up, you'll be taxed on the entire amount.

So, when the farewell party is over and you pick up that big check, you may want to take a cue from the wordsmiths of rock - and rollover!

For more information on the options, the rules and procedures, there's help at hand from Fidelity Investments, one of the nation's leading investment companies: Fidelity has prepared a non-promotional booklet called "A Guide to Retirement Plan Distributions." It's available free by calling 1-8005

Cadillac Asphalt Paving Co. of Novi has re-affirmed its commitment to producing and placing quality Hot Mix Asphalt pavements in a "Commitment to Quality" program initiated by the National Asphalt Pavement Association (NAPA), the national trade asociation for Hot Mix Asphalt producers and paving contractors.

Cadillac Asphalt has formalized the commitment by signing a "Commitment to Quality Pledge" that calls upon them to "use only the highest quality approved materials, to process them under the continual supervision of trained and capable personnel and to the highest standards, and to place them in pavements that meet, or exceed, promulgated specifications with the highest degree of workmanship attainable.'

Hot Mix Asphalt ia a high-quality paving material used throughout the U.S. and world in highways, roads and streets, parking lots, airport runways, as well as in recreational (tennis and basketball courts. playgrounds, etc.) and environmental (sanitary landfill liners, sewage treatment lagoons, etc.) usages.

"NAPA was founded in 1955 as an organization committed to improving the quality of Hot Mix Asphalt and Hot Mix Asphalt pavements," NAPA President John Gray, said, "and our 'Commitment to Quality' program is designed to demonstrate to the specifiers and users of our product that our industry is dedicated to providing a quality product."

Are we friends or enemies?

Story by Caroline Case • Art by Jeffrey Lapinski

To say the least, humans have a strange relationship with animals.

On the one hand, they are some of our best friends. We buy them toys to play with and soft cushions to sleep on. We may plan vacations around the chance to see animals in the

On the other hand, we turn them into coats, introduce tumors into them, mount their heads on our den walls, or chain them to their pens until one day, we find them dead.

One thing we generally do not do is treat them as if they had any rights.

In fact, to many people the idea of animal rights is laughable, as absurd a concept as women's rights once was.

'I often feel we in the humane field are swimming upstream," said Kathy Bauch, director of public relations for the Humane Society of the United States in Washington, "Mainstream American thought is, animals are something to use."

But animal rights is an idea whose time has come, according to Bauch. And although her group understands that animals will continue to be used for a variety of purposes, humans have a responsibility to continually seek out alternatives—or at least to use them kindly.

"In terms of our organizational policy we recognize in some areas that human needs take precedence over animal needs," she said, "but that doesn't negate the fact that we think the use has to be justified and the animal has to be humanely treated.'

But progress does not come easily. While many of the ways in which we use animals may seem blatantly cruel, in almost every instance there seems to be a "human consequences" counter-argument.

Medical research a top issue

One such area is the use of animals in medical research. Every year, 17 to 22 million animals, some bought from local pounds, are used for research. When the experiments are completed on them, they are put to sleep.

While animal rights groups may recognize that some research is necessary, they are concerned that the popular conception is that it is must always be so.

Bauch said a common argument in favor of animals being used in medical research goes something like, "Well, if they don't experi-

The Humane Society's answer to that type of argument is that while it may be true right now, we should not stop searching for alter-

That's already happened in some instances,

'Veterinary schools used to have to practically kill animals to show how to resuscitate it," she said. Now, many schools use a mechanical dog which exactly replicates the process-and not at the cost of an animal's

Dr. Mark Evans, senior scientist with the American Medical Association, agrees that there may be ways to cut down on use of animals in research, but since most people would prefer that research continue to be done on how to cure human illness, it is doubtful that the practice will ever be stopped completely.

"In many cases, animals will always be an important part, I'd almost say an indispensable part, of research," he said.

But he agrees with the humane society philosophy that alternatives should be sought out and used whenever possible. And since research budgets are on the increase while the use of animals is decreasing, he feels that the scientific community is on the right track.

One technique already in use is computer modeling, which may be used in cardiovascular research, for example. "But you still have to check it in an animal," he said. The advantage to the computer would be. it cuts down on the number of animals used.'

Sometimes cell cultures or organ or tissue cultures can be used in place of animals, he said, but again, often the results must finally be checked in a live animal.

Research animals are used in three basic categories, Evans said: basic modeling research, such as heart disease; testing; and

Dr. Morris Christlieb dries feathers on the Northville Duck after surgery because the gland that waterproofs the duck's feathers had been damaged in the accident.

Pressed ducks? Not with vet's aid

The look was as indignant as any Donald Duck ever bestowed, but the "Northville Duck" really should have been grateful that Dr. Morris Christlieb was blow drying its feathers following surgery. The veterinarian, who has practiced at Meadowbrook Veterinary Clinic at Ten Mile and Meadowbrook almost 10 years, more routinely cares for sick and injured dogs, cats and other small animals as well as some parrots and hamsters. But word also has gotten around that he will help an injured duck or baby swan, possum, raccoon or, once, a great blue heron. 'There are a lot of very compassionate people and many (injured wildlife) are bought in by the police,' Christlieb explains.

It was a Northville city police officer who brought the Northville Duck to the clinic recently after it nad been hit by a car in downtown

"I suppose it was one of a dozen ducks brought over the years," the veterinarian says, noting that many of the injured wild creatures brought to the clinic can be examined and released to their benefactors, or are able to be set free with the knowledge that they'll be all right.

The Northville Duck, as it was called by Christlieb and his staff, arrived with a broken wing. Surgery was performed and the duck kept as a patient

"It did survive," Christlieb explains, "but the wing healed crooked and one leg that had been broken previously also had healed crooked."

Because both injuries were on the same side, the duck was not able to function normally, the veterinarian says, and therefore it was decided that it would not be able to live.

Christlieb also cared for a baby swan whose neck had been bitten, but the bite punctured the esophagus and it died during the night, he recalls.

Not all wild creatures brought to the clinic are hurt so badly, he says, and he is able to tell the concerned persons who bring them in that they are "going to be fine." He has doctored a red tail hawk as well as a blue heron that was hit by a car last spring. The bird was brought to the clinic by Novi police. "It was a beautiful bird, but its back was broken," Christlieb recalls. He adds that he has "a lot of raccoons and possum" brought in. Saying he was "not real crazy" about having his help with injured wildlife told in a newspaper story, the veterinarian admitted he really doesn't mind having concerned folk with injuried creatures bring them to

"Anybody that knows me that thinks to call usually can bring it (injured wildlife) in."

In general, he says, the wildlife doesn't have to be kept at the clinic. "If it's an orphan baby," he ex-plains, "I ask the person who brings it in if he will care for it. I usually don't bill (for such wildlife care) all I ask is that they cover the cost to me of the medication that I give Christlieb adds that he does not charge for the surgery such as the Northville Duck received. He feels strongly, however, that what he is doing is making a "gesture that makes people happy. What, he asks, is one duck or one rabbit to the duck or rabbit popula-"It is fun to do, and I enjoy doing it, but it is no help to the wildlife popula-

"What is a help is to have wildlife marshlands kept intact. He says a "great contribution" is having people donate money to buy and preserve wildlife areas. The Ducks Unlimited organization, he points out, buys big tracts of land in the United States and Canada. While they are used for hunting, he says can reproduce. "Actually, that's propably one of the greatest benefits that's the kind of thing that really preserves wildlife

the land is preserved and animals habitat," he notes. "What I do as a vet, unless it's a rare species, is an insignificant contribution," he declares, emphasizing that it is the preservation, purchase and donation of the marshlands that are "so beneficial."

Christlieb, who heads the Novi clinic, and his associates, Dr. Jackie Pozniak and Dr. Mirdza Udenans. are "kept jumping all the time," he says, caring for their small animal, dog and cat practice which occasionally includes rabbits and horses.

The City of Northville, widely known for its duck population that congregates all year long at the water wheel by the Ford Motor Company plant on Main Street and in other locations, has done its part to warn motorists that ducks regularly waddle across the street in front of the plant.

However, the warning signs that depict a duck and read "duck crossing" have become collectibles.

'I thought we had done everything possible, but, if they want it badly enough, they get them," says DPW superintendent Ted Mapes, relating that the last signs were placed in concrete and had the nuts riveted on.

The cost is considerable — about $200 installed.

Mapes explains that the city has to have the signs specially made. He currently is investigating the possiblity of having a decal made to install on a blank sign, which should be at less cost.

Mapes estimates that the life of the duck signs is about three months.

While Mapes would like parents to question their youngsters if they have such a sign at home, he is aware that the signs are coveted in a community that has promoted its duck population. "Everything you see," he says, "is duck related."

Junior Goodwill focuses on Northville

The number of area residents who are assisting with projects to aid Goodwill Industries is growing.

Barbara Williamson, a resident of Nine Mile Road and active member of the community, long has been involved

- Currently the Junior Group actively is working toward the 39th annual Goodwill Antique Show to be held Nov. 7-9 at the Michigan State Fairgrounds.

This year, planners of the prestige show and sale are instituting a new feature in the program directory: different communities in which members have a high interest in antiques and are supporters of the show will be featured. The community of Northville has been chosen to lead off the project. Junior Goodwill President Mary Jane Watkins recently visited Northville with members of the show committee, including Williamson. All were enthusiastic about the look of Northville's Main Street with its turn-of-the-century storefronts and bright plantings.

The story of the Mainstreet '78 renovation will be told he committee also explained that the show is being held for the second year at the fairgrounds. Previously, it had been housed for many years at Fairlane in Dearborn.

President Watkins related that the move last year to the fairgrounds was done with some trepidation. She said the committee had gone to inspect the building shortly after the Michigan State Fair and found it filled with flies.

However, they had disappeared by the time the volunteers began to transform the building with hundreds of yards of carpeting and elaborate scenery.

erry Wendt, show publicity chairperson, recalled that the response of both dealers and visitors to the show was "tremendously positive."

The committee admitted that, when the change of location for the show was announced last year, some of the dealers, especially those from out of state, pulled out. President Watkins noted with satisfaction that, after word of the transformation, the added space available and good crowds was out, that they are returning this year. The committee reported that dealers come from all parts of Michigan as well as from Ohio, North Carolina, Maryland, Maine and other eastern states.

Publicity chair Wendt said that those who attend the show often wonder who benefits from the show and noted that proceeds of the 1985 show provided a bus for the handicapped to be taken to the Suburban Oakland Life Enrichment Center. Because there is no central bus system in the country, she pointed out, it would otherwise have been impossible for the handicapped to benefit from the center's day program for emotionally disturbed individuals. The center, she added, serves more than 100 people.

At the center, participants refinish antiques, create stained glass pieces on consignment from the public and work on contracts, allowing them to earn a paycheck.

An elementary teacher for 17 years, Kathleen Otton often witnessed the changed behavior of children caught in the middle of a bitter divorce.

"It was my observation that, if there was a conflict over visitation, it seemed to affect the child greatly,"

For the past two years, Otton has come to experience the same frustrations of her former pupils. Her own personal battle has taken her from the classroom to the courtroom.

An articulate, soft-spoken woman, Otton has spent little time in the easy chair since her retirement from teaching in June. For the past few months, the longtime Northville resident has been a volunteer court watcher for Fathers for Equal Rights, a non-profit organization devoted to helping parents gain equal rights in divorce matters.

The organization, which has worked with fathers from both Northville and Novi, is starting a new chapter in Livonia next month. The first meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 5 at the Alfred Noble branch of the Livonia Public Library, 32901 Plymouth Road.

"My personal involvement (with the organization) began when one of my sons got divorced two years ago," Otton explains.

The father of a then-six-month-old infant, Otton's son lost custody of his daughter in a bitter divorce. The battle has continued to rage over the issue of visitation rights.

Though hesitant to disclose too many details of the family's traumatic experience, Otton notes that her daughter-in-law has withheld visitation of the 21/2-year-old

"What we're trying to do is raise the consciousness of judges by appearing in court when these motions are presented," she explains.

Otton says she is notifed by FER when a father is to appear in court. Her presence serves not only as a reminder to the judge that the organization is keeping on eye on his proceedings but also serves as a support for the father.

"I compare it to the feeling a teacher would have with a parent watching over the classroom," she

She notes that many lawyers offer their services to the organization on a volunteer basis as many fathers have exhausted their funds and cannot afford the costly attorney fees.

Otton says she feels her volunteer work is the least she can do for the organization.

Founded more than seven years ago, Fathers for Equal Rights has made the public more aware of the court's current discriminatory custody practices, but has a long way to go in helping fathers gain equal custody.

Data supplied by the U.S. Bureau of Census indicates that in 1980, 86 percent of children in single parent families lived with their mothers with only 14 percent living with fathers. The numbers changed little in 1985. Though the numbers of divorces increased dramatically between 1980-85, fathers still accounted for only 13 percent of custodial parents in single parent families.

Otton says she finds such statistics disturbing - as well as ironic.

"In our society, we encourage men to participate in childrearing," she notes. "In my generation, husbands didn't participate at all."

While fathers have been encouraged to take a larger role in raising children, Otton says the legal system is far from recognizing the contributions men make in their child's upbringing.

"A child needs both parents whether married or divorced.

Each day will include many varied activities designed, it is explained, to be "enjoyable and meaningful" to those who attend.

The morning will begin with a worship service for the children followed by participation in learning, which will include Bible stories, doing activities and crafts, singing new songs and a

Each day the entire school will focus on a different theme. The five themes are "Listening Disciples," "Believing Followers," "Careful Servants," "Faithful Witnesses" and "Joyful People."

The experience of the week will be celebrated on the following Sunday when participants will worship together at the 10 a.m. services, singing songs they have learned. "Jesus Teaches Us," Jeff Fowler, who is in charge of the school, reports, is a unique and important learning op-portunity for children with the aim of providing a learnercentered, fun-filled and happy occasion for both students and

Human beings find that animals have rights, too

But he admits that some tests cause the animals discomfort. And some of that may not be necessary, he says. Toxicity testing is one major

If a new drug is being tested, Evans said, animals may be used for an "LD50" test. LD50 is a standard measuring the dose that, when to a group of animals, kills 50 percent of them.

"Since you don't know too much about the drug, death is a great end point," Evans said.

The cosmetic industry performs another sort of toxicity test which consists of putting mascara in a rabbit's eye to see if it's an irritant.

"Almost all of us feel there's got to be a better way of doing this," Evans said. "It's a very crude test." Using animals in pain research tests is also controversial, Evans

"Certain types of basic research to determine how people react to pain are going to cause some discomfort" to the animals, he said. For example, if you put an animal on a hot plate it will jump off. But if you give the animal an opiate, it may remain on the hot plate for a while, causing it to get burned. In cancer research, tumors may be introduced into animal subjects. "As the tumor grows, it can't be all that exciting for the mouse or rat," Evans

Or if Parkinson's disease is introduced into a monkey, it will suffer all the symptoms a human with the disease would. But, Evans said, they are also treated with the same drug a human would be, so they are not totally incapacitated.

What it all adds up to is a trade-off, Evans said. The United States has the most sophisticated medical research of any country in the world, and consequently, some of the best health care for humans. But to achieve that, some animals' lives will be sacrificed. Scientists are no happier about that than animal rightists, he said.

"Everyone is driven by scientific curiosity," he said. "When it gets down to animal models, I've run across almost no one who enjoys

. Recent legislation should help solve the problem of irresponsible research, Evans said. The Public Health Guidelines of 1985 make institutions which receive funds from the National Institute of Health more accountable for their actions.

The guidelines require that someone be named at the university who is directly responsible for their implementation. A committee must be formed to review research applications, and the committee must include members from outside the research community. Also, the new guidelines give the NIH's Office for Protection from Research Risks the power to investigate allegations of non-compliance.

And the Animal Welfare Act revision, which goes into effect this October, gives the U.S. Department of Agriculture some authority over all research, whether or not it is federally funded, Evans said.

Food—at a price

The treatment of animals who are raised for food is another topic of concern to animal rights groups. Bauch says the Humane Society does not advocate vegetarianism, and recognizes that animals are used for food and are likely to continue to be. What the Humane Society does not agree with is that food production has necessarily be a painful experience for the animal.

'They deserve a life as free of pain (as possible), and a life which affords them an opportunity to exhibit some of their natural behavior," she said.

She cited hen-raising and veal-calf raising as two examples where this is often not the case. Hens are sometimes jammed so tightly into hen houses they cannot even lift their wings, she said. In order to keep their meat white, calves raised for their veal are sometimes confined to very small spaces so they cannot move.

If this sounds cruel, consider the farmer's side of the story, says Robert Hott, a South Lyon veterinarian who worked as a livestock vet for two years.

Dairy farmers, he says, are faced with the problem of an overpopulation of dairy cows. They cannot afford to keep all calves which are born, yet each year the dairy cows already in the herd must have a calf to keep up their milk production.
That leaves a farmer with two options, he said: killing the calf at birth, or "vealing it out" and getting something for it.

"Many farmers are just scraping by and are not real concerned about animal rights," he said. "With money getting to be a tighter and tighter squeeze, some things get compromised."

That does not mean farmers should have a free reign to mistreat their livestock, he says. They still have a responsibility to keep them com-

Hunting presents dilemma

To some people, hunting is morally abhorrent. To others, it is one of the most exciting times of their lives. And to some people, it's just a way to make a living.

Joe Vogt, a staff biologist with the Wildlife Division of the Department of Natural Resources, scoffs at the notion that hunters are somehow bar-

"We (the DNR) think hunting is very important recreationally," he said. "It's very meaningful to many Michigan citizens. Probably opening day is one of the most important

Some animals are more than just family pets

By CAROLINE CASE

Science is finding out something about animals that many of us have long suspected.

They're good to have around. Pets will sit and listen to your every sad word without giving advice, shaking their head in disgust, or saying "I told you so."

Pets offer "a very unconditional kind of acceptance," says Milford psychologist Mary P. Rodgers. "They love you even when you've screwed up. They don't have all those distinctions and discriminations."

Researchers are now finding many examples of animals' ability to help humans, both mentally and physically.

According to Robert Hott, a South Lyon veterinarian, one study has shown that pets can affect blood pressure. In the study, people who talked to people had an increase in blood pressure, while the exact opposite was true for people talking to and petting an

he said, "but they still add a lot to the pleasure of living."

White-tailed deer hunting, probably the most popular type of hunting in Michigan, is not only a form of recreation, but necessary, Vogt says.

In fact, the DNR considers hunting violent male mental patients who were allowed to take care of pets showed a tremendous increase in their ability to cope, and their violent acts dropped significantly.

Another researcher has shown that pets can be a big help to "latchkey children," those who must come home to an empty house.

Katy O'Reilly of the Pets Are Wonderful (PAW) group, a public relations organization for the pet food industry, says researcher Lynette Long interviewed 300 latchkey children, and found that all 300 wanted a pet. When asked what type of pet, their answers reflected the type of anxiety they had about being home alone: some wanted a big black dog for protection, others something soft and small to cuddle with on the sofa.

"Latchkey children can really relieve some of their anxiety" by having a pet, O'Reilly said.

In fact, says psychologist Rodgers, anyone who's isolated or lonely, such as an elderly person, can really benefit from that shaggy old dog or cute little cat.

animals just don't seem to mix. One reason is the development of

"As we have developed . . . vacation homes, expanded highways, parking lots, the land available as wildlife habitat" has decreased constantly, says Vogt with the DNR.

Sometimes, development will cause a change in the type of animals which inhabit an area, he said. For example, if a wooded area is cleared to build a factory, the squirrels will leave but be replaced by animals such as meadowlarks.

But in other cases, animals who are displaced by development need help "relocating." That's where the DNR comes in.

"With good management we think we can continue to have good populations of species," Vogt said.

He gives the example of the Kirtland warbler, an extremely rare bird which nests only in the young jack pine forests of northern Michigan.

"We're monitoring their numbers and where we find shortages we erect artificial nesting places," Vogt said. Animals also have suffered from the use of pesticides in farming.

"Animals on top of the food chain suffered unduly because of the buildup of contaminants in their prey,?' Vogt said.

One example is the peregrine falcon, which had disappeared from Michigan because of an environment contaminated with DDT and other pesticides. Now, the birds are being reintroduced into Michigan's cleaner environment and should be able to reestablish themselves

No bright side

One aspect of animal use has no bright side, no loss to humans were it stopped: the area of animal abuse.

There are many people who feel it is their right to severely beat or maim their animals. While that is illegal, it is also very difficult to prove

There are only three laws on Michigan books which protect animals, says Debbie Goik, president of the Humane Society of Livingston County: domesticated animals or livestock must have shelter: livestock may not be overworked; and it is a felony to beat, maim or kill an animal.

While that last one would seem to cover just about any sort of abuse, it is nearly impossible to enforce, Goik says. In fact, she says she has never seen such a case go to court. People who report the abuse are afraid to testify in court because they are afraid of the abuser, she said.

In fact, she said, her group has found that going to court may not be the best alternative for the animal. In many cases where abusers are prosecuted, the animals end up being returned to them. She says she prefers to get the abusers to release the animals to the Humane Society's custody.

Pat Sexton, director of the Livingston County Animal Shelter, agrees that serious abuse of animals is fairly widespread, but she believes another type of abuse is far more common. And in most cases, the "abusers" might not recognize themselves as such. Because the offense is neglect, and the abuser is as likely to be your next-door neighbor as the "criminal" type. "I personally feel if you don't take care of an animal, if you don't take it in for regular checkups, have it vaccinated, or keep it wormed, and don't pay attention to it, that's a form of abuse," she said. "And that I see a lot

Bauch agrees that neglect may be the most insidious type of abuse.

"Overall, the attitude is, these are disposable objects," she said. When pets cease to amuse us, she says, the feeling is that it's perfectly okay to get rid of them. The proof is in the fact that 11-12 million animals are brought to shelters every year. Of that, eight million are killed.

To some people, says Morris Christlieb, a Novi veterinarian, not giving your pets health care is a result of ignorance.

"Some people think, 'Well, if that dog was in the wild, it would lick its wounds and get better,' " he said. "But it might die, too. And if they'd brought it to a vet we might have been able to help it."

Christlieb and other animal experts agree that pet owners have a basic responsibility.
"If you choose to have a pet, that animal should be treated with kindness and care," he said. That includes giving it not only food and shelter, but some attention as well.

Improvements in sight?

There is some indication that attitudes are changing, says Bauch. The very fact that there is an animal rights movement-the Humane Society alone has 450,000 membersis proof of that. There are words in our vocabulary—animal rights—you wouldn't have heard 10 years ago," There is also much greater acceptance of the concept of neutering pets, Bauch said, while 25 years ago, people thought it was perfectly acceptable to let animals have litters as nature dictated.

On the other hand, she says, "fur is having its biggest boom ever," she said. "Most people's concern and generosity often stops where their own self-interest begins."

Because of that attitude, she expects progress to be slow.

"There's one thing that cuts across all of it," she said. "Generally speaking, if an animal is involved in some relationship to man where a profit is involved to man, you can be reasonably assured that the animal's welfare isn't first."

Even people who profess to be sympathetic to animals are often not a part of the solution, she says. The people who feel sorry for animals left in pounds are the very same ones who will go out and buy a purebred rather than rescuing a pound animal.

Luther will spend a year in Germany

Jennifer Luther departed last week to spend a year in Germany, trading her senior year at Northville High School to do so.

The daughter of the Rev. James H. Luther, pastor of First Baptist Church of Northville, and Mrs. Luther, she is a recipient of the Congress-Bundestag scholarship and a participant in the Youth for Understanding student exchange program.

During her year in Germany, she will be meeting with German government officials, joining friends for cafe klatches, enjoying music festivals and becoming a new member of her German host family while attending a German high school.

Last fall Luther, along with other students from Michigan, was nominated by her high school to apply for the Congress-Bundestag scholarship, which is open to high school juniors and sophomores but limited to two nominees per school.

This prestigious scholarship program, now in its third year, is jointly sponsored by the United States Congress and its German counterpart, the Bundestag. It is administered by Youth for Understanding, one of the world's oldest and largest international youth exchange organizations.

To be awarded these scholarships, the students first were chosen as semifinalists from their state, based on their written applications, and went on to a set of in-person interviews where they later were named by the state selection committee as the scholarship recipients.

Luther is a member of Northville's track team. She received a règional award for excellence in history from the Daughters of the American Revolution.

While the American students are beginning their year in Germany, 235 German high school students are getting ready to try out their English vocabulary, rock and roll tapes, football knowledge and information about U.S. politics and culture as they arrive in August to live with an American host family for a year.

These students were selected during a highly selective process and each is personally sponsored by a member of the Bundestag.

Local artists participate at Chene Park

Two Northville residents are among 12 Michigan artists par-ticipating in the Chene Park Artist Residencies Program on the Detroit riverfront this summer.

Bob Vandervennet and Linda Centivany Hedden are among the artists chosen for the 10-weekend project titled "Artists Interpret the Riverfront."

Sponsored by the Detroit Recreation Department and the Detroit Artists Market with the support of the Junior League of Detroit and the Michigan Council for the Arts, the project is intended to show the artists' diverse interpretations of the riverfront.

Vandervennet's work titled "Lighthouses" was an artist's monu-ment to Detroit's first industrial age. On display last weekend, the Northville artist's work was a four-piece sculpture based on the 19th century industrial riverfront. Patrons viewing the work July 25-27 were able to redirect the sun's rays through Vandervennet's reflector lighthouse.

Hedden, whose work will be on display this weekend (August 1-3), is weaving a 240-foot piece of fabric between Chene Park's man-made pond and the Detroit River. The dyed fabric will match the varying colors

For Hedden, the river represents the "connector and foundation on which cultures are woven together."

The 10 residency weekends offer patrons an opporturnity to see the artists actively engaged in their work in an accessible and visible location.

The series continues through August 24 in Chene Park, one mile east of downtown at Atwater and

FREE DELIVERY IN NORTHVILLE Medications and the Elderly

Individuals 65 years of age and older consume more drugs than any other age group in the United States. There are several reasons why. For one thing, the elderly experience more illness — almost 80 percent have one or more chronic health problems. This age group is also hospitalized more frequently than are younger adults, and the forms of therapy, which often includes drugs, are usually more complex.

The aging process may alter the absorption, metabolism, distribution, and excretion of medications. Studies have shown, for example, that kidney function may decline by as much as 40 percent as we age. This decline can decrease drug elimination and increase potential toxicity of drugs that are excreted through the kidneys.

A recent study of 155 elderly individuals in indianapolis is consistent with other studies of the elderly and their medicaltons. Only one-half were taking their medications as prescribed by their physicians. About one-third reported adverse reactions to one or more drugs. Medicines for high blood pressure, including diuretics, were those most commonly prescribed.

Our prehistoric predecessors, the dinosaurs, have reappeared in Michigan and are taking over the Impression Five Museum in Lans-

The six lifelike animated creatures are monstrous enough, standing 6 to 10 feet with lengths of up to 37 feet. With the help of robotics, the dinosaurs can move their eyes and head, breathe, growl and take steps forward and back.

The dinosaur exhibit, produced by Dynamation, a subsidiary of Disney, is appearing for the first time in Michigan at the Lansing museum. The creatures will be on display through Sept. 21. The museum is open Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Thursday, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, noon to 5 p.m. Admission for adults is $3, children, $2.50.

"The exhibit is nothing like you've ever seen before," said an Impression Five spokesperson. "It can be kind of frightening because they are so lifelike, especially the Stegosaurus, whose whole body moves."

The Impression Five Museum is located on Museum Drive, off Michigan Avenue, between Grand and Cedar three blocks east of the Capitol.

Other science museums are also having special exhibits and dinosaur attractions.

Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills is hosting their own dinosaur display focusing on demonstrations, lectures and exhibits all related to this prehistoric creature.

Featuring something different every day, the exhibit continues through Aug. 3, Tuesday through Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for adults, $1 for children.

On the last day of the program, Cranbrook will host a celebration in honor of the 120 millionth birthday of the Stegosaurus dinosaur.

The Cranbrook Science Museum is located on Lone Pine Road, between Bloomfield and Telegraph.

Another science museum to consider visiting is Hands On in Ann Arbor. Everything in this participatory museum can be touched or manipulated.

Located in an old fire house, the exhibits in this museum explore various subjects in the environment. On the first floor, the subject is you. Designed to be an opportunity to learn about yourself, exhibits include machines to measure heart rate, grip strength and reaction time. There also is a chance to try your hand on computers.
