State's best tend Meads Mill 'zoo'

By MICHELE M. FRECHT

Cages filled with exotic reptiles, jars containing rare lepidoptera and a flourishing greenhouse brimming with everything from ferns to cacti.

For Meads Mill science teachers Dwight Sieggreen and Norman Hannewald, these living objects are teaching tools for the hundreds of sixth and seventh graders who pass through their classrooms each day.

In the past two years, the two middle school teachers have become zoo keepers to a score of reptiles, fresh water fish, gerbils, hamsters and guinea pigs.

In the corner of Sieggreen's room is Casey, a South American white calman which the two middle school teachers adopted last year from the Michigan Humane Society. There also is a yellow anaconda named Julius Squeezer II, the newcomer to Sieggreen's menagerie.

Big Brutus the Boa, the 20-year-old granddaddy of the Meads Mill reptiles, occupies center stage in Hannewald's classroom.

"I think our Detroit Zoo annex has not hurt us," explains the 41-year-old Sieggreen, donning a lab coat.

Their annex, coupled with their team teaching approach, innovative techniques and infectious enthusiasm has earned Hannewald and Sieggreen the distinction of being named Science Teachers of the Year by the Michigan Science Teachers Association in cooperation with the Detroit Free Press.

The two middle school teachers will be honored Friday night at the MSTA banquet in Lansing. Also being honored are Diane Hoefft-Varisto, a Warren elementary teacher, and Frederick Case, science department chairman at Arthur Hill High School in Saginaw.

For Sieggreen and Case, Friday's banquet will be something of a reunion. The 60-year-old Case was Sieggreen's high school science teacher.

That both Sieggreen and Hannewald received the MSTA honor is a tribute to the collaborative effort of the two middle school teachers.

"There isn't a day that goes by that there isn't a conference between the two of us," Sieggreen says.

Formerly at Silver Springs Elementary School, Sieggreen moved to Meads Mill when the middle school opened its doors two years ago.

"I waited 10 years to get to this building to work with Norman," Sieggreen says.

Hannewald began his tenure in the district in 1967, his first teaching job out of college. Formerly at Cooke Junior High School, Hannewald helped plan Meads Mill and moved into the building when it opened in 1975.

With the realigning of the district's grade structure in 1985, Hannewald and Sieggreen joined forces in redefining the teaching of life science.

"This program really came together when Dwight came into this building," Hannewald explains.

While textbooks and reference materials have their place in the science classroom, the opportunity to gain hands-on experience with living creatures has made the middle school science program unique.

Both teachers give credit to the administration and school board for allowing them to house reptiles and mammals in their classrooms.

"There are a lot of school districts which prohibit the use of live animals in classrooms," Hannewald explains. Sieggreen notes that while they are not without their problems, keeping animals in the classroom has enhanced the program tenfold.

Hannewald agrees. "In all the years I've taught, this has made the most tremendous difference," he says. "At this age level, students are interested in living things."

Sieggreen credits Hannewald as being the bulwark behind the "critter care" class which changed the direction of the middle school science program.

"The critter care project was really the brainchild of a lot of things going on here," Sieggreen says.

Hannewald developed the critter class to teach students how to care for living things — whether it be a box turtle, hamster or an iguana.

"I've had animals ever since I started teaching," Hannewald explains. "I figured why should I just have them here for kids to observe?"

In addition to critters, Hannewald

Trustee won't seek election to new term

There will be at least one new trustee on the Northville Board of Education this year as Douglas Whitaker announced Monday that he will not seek re-election in June.

Whitaker, currently serving a third term as president of the seven-member board, announced his decision on the 10th anniversary of his appointment to the board.

In addition to Whitaker's seat, the term of trustee James Petrie also will expire in June.

Petrie said Monday that he plans to seek another term in the hopes of "continuing to work in the curriculum area."

Appointed to the board March 2, 1977, to fill the remaining term of former trustee Robert Mandell, Whitaker was twice elected to full four-year terms.

"I have other things I want to spend some time on," Whitaker said. "There's no risk of losing continuity on the board. We have a seasoned board."

Whitaker said he has enjoyed his decade-long tenure on the board and has some misgivings about leaving.

"The last decade has been a great time to spend on the school board," he said. "It's just that four more years seemed too long to me."

Deadline for Northville residents interested in filing nominating petitions for the two board posts is April 6.

Candidates to the school board must be 18 years old, registered Northville electors, U.S. citizens, residents of Michigan at least 30 days and residents of the school district on or before the 30th day prior to the annual school election. Property ownership is not a requirement.

Nominating petitions are available in the business office at the Board of Education Building, 501 W. Main.

Signatures of at least 20 registered voters of the district must be included on nominating petitions.

Trustees of the school board serve on a voluntary basis.

Council nixes plan to rezone

By JEAN DAY

More than 50 residents of the Eight Mile-Center Street area filed city council chambers last week to protest the requested rezoning of property at the southeast corner from R-1B (first density residential) to PBO (professional, business, office).

Their objections were heard by the council, which at the end of the public hearing voted unanimously to deny the change.

In so voting, the council upheld the recommendation of its planning commission, which recommended not to permit the change to office use of the property at 100 E. Eight Mile owned by Robert Melvin.

During the hearing, residents noted that rezoning of the property had been turned down twice previously.

"My personal feeling was that he intended this as a professional structure, and I strongly object," Carol McLaughlin, a resident of 816 N. Center, told the council.

Melvin, however, declared that was not true, noting that he had purchased the property three years ago to build the contemporary home to live and work in.

Retirement may be better

By ANITA CRONE

The city's four major unions have requested the reopening of contracts in order to withdraw from the Municipal Employees Retirement System.

After a meeting with an independent consultant and representatives from the city, the Northville Clerical Employees Association, the Northville Police Officers Association, Local 2720 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and the Northville Command Officers Association all indicated their intention to support a withdrawal from MERS and entry into another, still to be determined, retirement plan.

MERS covers 347 communities throughout the state, the largest being Ingham County and the smallest being the three members from the cities of Fowler and Romeo.

However, payments to MERS fluctuate from year to year, while another plan would provide a standard contribution, noted City Manager Steve Walters.

He added that since retirement is a negotiable item, it was necessary to reopen contracts.

A study committee, comprised of representatives from each of the unions, recommended withdrawing from MERS under certain assumptions, including:

□ contributions to the new retirement plan would equal 6 percent of pay;

□ contributions to the new plan would earn 8 percent annual interest; □ annual annuity plan may include a death benefit to surviving spouse; a lump sum cash out option; early retirement provisions; and, a monthly disability benefit.

Marcie McConville, clerical association president, said she "preferred not to talk about (the potential withdrawal from MERS) right now," although her union did vote in favor of the withdrawal.

Police Capt. James Petres said the Northville Command Officers Association voted unanimously to withdraw from MERS.

"We'd definitely like to pull out of MERS," Petres said. "For a lot of reasons, it makes sense for us to do that. Right now, the retirement system is very conservative in its investments," Petres said.

Walters said it still would be up to city council to agree to the reopening of the contracts, and also would direct the city attorney to file a request to withdraw from MERS.

"A committee will continue to work on the specific design of the new retirement system," Walters said.

Redesign planned for program home

Despite some early concern that the Moraine School site for the Northville Youth Assistance Program was not suitable to ensure confidentiality of the youngsters involved, school officials, the YAP board and other concerned parties have reached a resolution.

The YAP program will be located at Moraine School, but not in the open classroom space originally intended. Instead, the program's location will be the former teachers' lounge.

"The real problem with the original location was that we thought we would have been able to erect walls with volunteer labor, and thus would have a closed off area for the visitors," explained Mary Ellen King, program director.

"But the school district told us that contract stipulations required any construction work be done by union personnel. It would have cost us as much as $10,000 — money not allocated to the project," she said.

The concerns became public in a letter written by John Buckland, the City of Northville's representative to the YAP board, to the city council.

In the memo Buckland noted that "Youth Assistance, which we OK'd based on Dr. Bell's offer of 'a free home at Moraine School' has no home!"

King said Monday a meeting had been scheduled for 2:30 p.m. yesterday (Tuesday) with school district and YAP officials to discuss costs in partitioning the already closed in classroom facility.

"Right now, it looks like the costs would be a whole lot less than if we actually had to partition an open classroom area," King said.

YAP is a volunteer program designed to assist troubled youth before they become involved with the legal system. Volunteer counselors work with the youngsters and their families, and referrals to the program come from the school district, the police departments in the communities and through self referrals.

Initial startup costs for YAP have come from Northville Township's Community Development Block Grant funds. Additional monies have been approved by both the Northville City Council and the Northville Township Board of Trustees. The Northville Public Schools have donated space for the program.

Wayne County workmen begin repair work on the Six Mile Road bridge as it crosses over the Rouge River near Northville Place.

Watch for new speeds

If you think it is difficult keeping track of the changing speed limits along Five, Six and Seven Mile roads now, just wait.

The Wayne County Commission recently approved changes in the speed limits along those roads, however, a spokesperson for the group noted it would be at least late spring and possibly summer before the changes take effect.

"There's a lot of paperwork and internal actions that must be completed before the new signs go up," noted Scott McDermid.

And even when the signs do go up, it is unclear how soon enforcement of the new speed limits will begin.

Northville Township Police Chief

Kenneth Hardesty said his officers would "evaluate the new speed limits once the new signage is in place, and we certainly don't intend to enforce the new limits immediately."

"Especially on Seven Mile Road, where the speed limit changes a lot, we're going to allow people to get used to the new speeds," Hardesty said.

The roads affected include Seven Mile between Napier and Beck where the speed limit will remain at 50, Seven Mile between Beck and Clement, where the speed limit will drop to 40, Seven Mile between Clement and Rogers, where the speed limit will be 35, Seven Mile between

Applications available for trustee vacancy

Forms for those interested in serving on the Northville Township Board of Trustees are now available at the township civic center.

The questionnaires, which must be completed and returned to the township supervisor, ask for information detailing how long the applicant has lived in the township, at what location, and whether any applicant has a relative already serving on the board.

The form asks the applicant to indicate why he or she would like to be a trustee, to give a brief summary of educational and employment background, a summary of the applicant's past and current civic involvement and what particular expertise the applicant would bring to the board.

Supervisor Georgina Goss said she is hopeful the board of trustees will choose a new member at its March meeting.

The vacancy on the current board occurred when former Trustee Thomas Cook was appointed clerk.

Don Francoeur ties off a spinner during class

Tying One On

If tripping over unused snow shovels stacked in the garage, or eyeing the lawnmower with a blade that needs sharpening hasn't started the rites of spring, then go talk to a roomful of fly fishermen.

Northville's Community Education course in fly tying, taught by Ron Angove, is attended by a small but serious group of potential fly fishermen.

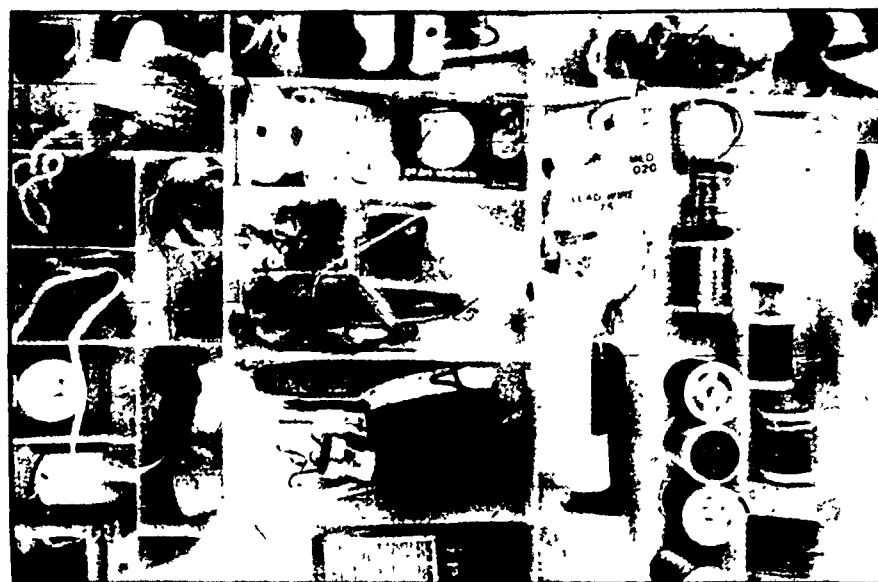

Considered the elitist of the fishing fraternity, fly tyers work all winter, filling their tackle boxes with all kinds of fuzzy flies made from hooks, hackle and thread.

"It only costs us about $3 to make a fly that would cost $1.50 in a store," quipped one fly tyer.

It's more than a science, it's art. Deciding which strand of hackle (feathers from the back of a chicken, which helps the fly to float) or what size hook to use to best imitate the ambrosia of fish, the mayfly, is very important.

Hours can be spent working on a spinner (mayfly) only to see it float away or be eaten. But tying the flies is half the fun of being a fly fisherman. The other half begins on the last Saturday of April... the beginning of trout season.

Ten juveniles facing drinking related charges

From MSP ...

Ten Northville young people are scheduled to appear in 32nd District Court March 11, after being arrested Feb. 13 by Michigan State Police troopers and being charged for being minors in possession of alcohol.

The 10, all 17 years old, were parked in the Dunbarton subdivision, east of Taft, when they were arrested.

A Plymouth Township police officer suffered a broken leg and a lacerated neck after responding to a bank alarm Feb. 16.

According to the police report, while the officer was responding to the alarm, a vehicle pulled out of a nearby driveway in front of the police car, striking the police car and pushing it over the center line of Ann Arbor Road, near Haggerty. The officer's car hit two other vehicles head on.

... in the township

Two men, one from Westland and one from Livonia, were arrested in separate incidents Feb. 21, and charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor.

According to officer Larry Demeter, the Westland man's car was observed traveling at 60 miles an hour southbound on Northville Road near Reservoir and Hines Drive about 1:35 a.m.

Demeter and Officer William Harrison pursued the vehicle with lights flashing and sirens on for about a quarter of a mile before the driver stopped his car.

Demeter said in his report that the suspect was unable to remain steady while performing a number of simple tasks, including counting backwards from 100, balancing on one foot, and walking heel-to-toe in a straight line.

A number of empty and full beer bottles were found in the car, but the suspect refused to take a preliminary breath test.

He was released on $100 bond, after spending the night in the Northville Township jail, and charged with OUIL and failure to take the PBT. He is scheduled to appear in 35th District Court March 19.

A little less than two hours later, a Livonia man was arrested by the same officers at the same site. The Livonia man's car was clocked by radar as traveling 78 mph in a 40 mph zone.

Demeter, according to the report, activated his flashers and the speeding car stopped. A PBT was administered and the man blew a 14. A reading of 10 constitutes OUIL.

The man was housed in the township jail until he was sober, and then released on $100 bond.

A number of glass windows and doorwalls were reported stolen from an Eight Mile Road construction site Feb. 20.

There are no suspects in the incident. The glass was valued at $464.

A 1985 Mercury Capri was reported stolen Feb. 22 by its owner. The man told police he heard a noise in his driveway and when he looked out his window, noticed his car being driven away.

The vehicle owner told police the car was locked and the keys were inside his house.

By the time township police officers arrived at the site of a fire, Feb. 17, they found firefighters already on the job and a Ford Escort engulfed in flames.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $6,000. Cause of the fire has not officially been determined, but Fire Chief Robert Toms said he thought a gas leak contributed to the incident.

... in the city

A 1976 Chevrolet Blazer, reported stolen to Novi Police on Jan. 27, was recovered at a Northville Downs parking lot on Feb. 24 at about 9:30 p.m.

The vehicle, owned by a 16-year old Novi boy, had a flat rear tire but received no other damage or missing parts.

A 43-year old Northville man reported to police that an orange vehicle, traveling southbound on Jeffrey, ran over the curb and struck a mail box and post. Both were torn off their mount.

The incident happened on Feb. 23 at 7:30 p.m. Damage is estimated at $160.

The driver's side window of a 37-year old Northville man's 1976 Chevrolet Blazer was smashed on Horton Street sometime between Feb. 21 at 9 p.m. and the following morning at 4:43.

Crouchman is graduated

Former Northville resident Sherry Crouchman was one of 34 new officers graduated from the Michigan State Police Motor Carrier Division Training Academy on Feb. 6.

She has been assigned to the New Buffalo State Police Post.

Crouchman, a 1978 Northville High School graduate, completed a 15-week training program which provided instruction in tanker inspection, enforcement of trucking laws, and marksmanship.

Crouchman has an associate's degree from Madonna College, which she earned in 1984. She is married and has two children.

Meads Mill students 'teach' science at Silver Springs

By JENNIFER CHARNEY

Jeff Dart, a seventh grader at Meads Mill Middle School, said he likes going to school but teaching is even better.

Dart, 12, is among about 50 Meads Mill sixth and seventh grade students who are paired with second and third grade students from Silver Springs Elementary School to learn about reptiles.

The elementary children and their young teachers on Feb. 12 at Meads Mill participated for the first time in the program designed by Silver Springs teacher Philip Demski, in cooperation with Meads Mill teachers Norman Hannewald and Dwight Sieggreen.

The program is meant to enhance the life science unit for Demski's split second and third grade class by arranging visits to Meads Mill's animal and reptile collection.

Demski previously taught science by taking his students on field trips and by using filmstrips and recorded cable programs. Later, after acquiring a classroom animal collection, he developed the idea to bring his students to the readily accessible instructors and reptiles at Meads Mill.

Demski structured the program around his students' curiosities, asking each child to submit one question about reptiles.

"We had questions basically about what (reptiles) eat and whether they eat humans," said Demski. "We'll be trying to cover those questions."

The purpose of the program is to teach children the scientific skills of making observations and predictions and recording information.

For instance, Demski's students were asked to answer, on the basis of their previous observations, which food — worms or crickets — an anole (chameleon) would prefer after it had not eaten for three days.

Sixth and seventh grade mentors

"It's really neat because (Meads Mill) has a lot of animals and we don't have as many here. It's fun having the big kids teach us."

— Rachell Wethers

— Silver Springs student

are responsible for teaching the younger children to record information such as the reptiles' weight and length while Demski, Hannewald and Sieggreen supervise.

Among the reptiles in Hannewald and Sieggreen's classrooms are a 54-inch monitor lizard, a 42-inch white caiman (similar to an alligator), a three-foot ball python, a 7-foot yellow anaconda, a golden tegu lizard, and a spiny tailed iguana. The school within two or three months is to receive a 12-foot Burmese python.

"We go on field trips to observe animals like this," said Demski, "but here we have something in our school district that wouldn't cost as much as a field trip and we can utilize it more."

During their last visit, Silver Springs students became familiar with the metric weight system weighing crayons, pencils and other objects

The children were preparing for work with their mentors and the reptiles during their next and final session for the year slated for April.

In the meantime, the children will write once a week to their mentors about what they have observed and recorded in Demski's classroom. After the final visit, the elementary students are to write articles about their experiences for a newspaper they will produce.

Demski's eight third graders and 16 second graders maintain a collection of tropical and freshwater fish, quail, hamsters, gerbils, guinea pigs, anoles and curly-tailed lizards.

"We had a feeling students would be excited (about the program)," said Demski. "It went beyond what I expected."

And how Demski's students can lead tours of their mini zoo and enlighten any ignorant layperson. These compact zoologists like their work.

"When I moved here I didn't know anything about animals," said Lance Bethell, a third grader. "Now I do. Animals are fun to study."

Bethell's classmates agreed. "It's really neat," said Rachell Wethers, a second grader, "because (Meads Mill) has a lot of animals and we don't have as many here. It's fun having the big kids teach us."

Children learn faster with teachers who are closer to their own age, Demski said.

"The young kids look up to the older ones because they realize they've been through more, yet (the mentors) are one of them," he said. The older children take pride in showing others what they have learned.

"The kids ask us questions and look up to us," said Dart. "That makes me feel pretty good."

The program makes Hannewald feel pretty good, too.

"I think the program has great potential," he said. "It creates an interest in science early and lets the (elementary students) look forward to middle school."

Hannewald said the program might be a valuable experience for all second and third graders because it offers instruction in problem solving and writing skills.

Sieggreen said the program is outstanding because its hands-on approach can change children's attitudes about reptiles.

The idea for the menagerie in Sieggreen's classroom stemmed from Hannewald's classroom collection. Hannewald had three squirrel monkeys early in his teaching career and a boa constrictor for about 20 years. He said he has loved animals since he was a child growing up on a farm.

Demski and his colleagues may include other elementary classes in the program after it is evaluated at the end of the school year.

"Science is an area that is very important to our society," said Demski. "If we can get kids interested in it and teach them process skills and how to look at things in depth, then we've brought up a higher citizen."

Sieggreen, Hannewald are state's best

also oversees the greenhouse outside his classroom.

"The kids really maintain the plants, they propagate, water, fertilize," Hannewald notes. Students also decorate the school with plants from the greenhouse.

Hannewald and Sieggreen currently are working on a new life science project with Silver Springs science teacher Philip Demski. The project pairs middle school science students with Demski's second and third graders in an effort to enhance the elementary life science unit. (See related story)

Hannewald and Sieggreen view the elementary project as a unique opportunity to share their collections with other students in the district.

"Norman and I have created a Utopia and brought it down to an elementary level," Sieggreen explains. "By the time those students get to this level, we won't have to convince them that it's fun to be here."

"We feel that what we have here needs to get out to the rest of the district," he says. "I think eventually the whole science curriculum will benefit from what we have here."

Both teachers bring their own experiences into the classroom.

As the father of three, Hannewald spends much of his time outside of the classroom with his family. He enjoys hunting, photography and tending the greenhouse.

Sieggreen, who has spent three summers rubbing elbows with river tribesmen in the Amazon jungle, is the more adventurous of the two. Last year, he was part of an Earthwatch team of marine archaeologists exploring the lost cultures of Lac de Neuchatel in Switzerland.

He also is an accomplished scuba diver and photographer.

The successful networking of Hannewald and Sieggreen comes out of a mutual respect shared by both teachers.

"We work well together," Hannewald says. "Dwight has a good head and a creative mind."

Sieggreen credits Hannewald with being the "brains" behind their collaboration.

Through the combined efforts, the two teachers have been able to achieve their programs without considerable expense to the district.

Many of their critters have been donated. Casey the caiman was adopted from the Michigan Humane Society, an Indonesian monitor lizard, Mr. Hail Monitor, was donated by Northville veterinarian Carol Geake.

In addition, Hannewald raises many of the food supplies and local taxidermists and pet stores save bones and dead fish.

The preserved species are shelved in a separate room to be used for observation, Sieggreen notes, scanning over the rows of jars filled with exotic fish.

"We figure that five years from now, we'll have a collection similar to the Smithsonian," he says.

Boating safety sessions set

A four-session course in Boating and Water Safety will be presented to local and area residents free of charge by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department beginning March 2.

The class will be offered from 7-9 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays at Northville High School.

Residents interested in the course should register early. A minimum class size of 20 is required.

There is a $1 registration fee. To register, call the Northville Community Education office at 344-8447.

Post cited for aid to VFW home

Northville Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4012 has received double honors in recognition of its membership's support of the National VFW Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich.

Bronze plaques were presented to the post by Paul Savage, president of the board of trustees at the National VFW Home and a past VFW commander for the state of Michigan.

The presentation was made at the annual post dinner dance honoring past commanders and past presidents Feb. 15 at the post headquarters, 438 S. Main.

The first plaque was awarded to the post for being the first in the United States and the world to have 300 members supporting the home for children and widows of deceased veterans or families of permanently disabled veterans. The second plaque was in recognition of being the first post to have 400 supporters from the membership helping support the home. The Northville veterans' post has a total membership of 420 men and 116 women.

Peggy Hoag, ladies auxiliary chairman and co-chair of the dinner program, noted that to have 400 supporters in a post with 536 total membership is unusual.

The National VFW Home, she explained, is a community, much like a subdivision, composed of three and four bedroom brick homes. The 35 homes, most in colonial design, have been built by state VFW organizations who support the homes in their names without government subsidies. The Northville post was recognized for helping support the three Michigan houses.

Hoag says the post goal now is to have 500 supporters.

The National VFW Home, she explains, is a community with its own general store, fire department, chapel, farmland, administration building and maintenance garages.

Children living in the community attend school in nearby Eaton Rapids.

Any widow and children of a deceased veteran or family of a permanently disabled veteran who can not keep up a home may apply for admission to the home through a VFW post, Hoag says.

Other honored guests at the dinner dance program included Edmund Gucwa Jr., vice commander for the state VFW who was featured speaker, Barbara Bishop, past president of the auxiliary for the state, and Jackie Buyea, life membership coordinator of the National VFW Home.

William Widmaier, past commander representing VFW members, and Hoag chaired the event which included welcomes from Commander Donald Bogater and auxiliary president Lee Moxie.

PTA plans Founders' Day

EDITOR'S NOTE: The PTA News is published the last Wednesday of the month September through June by volunteer Betty House. She compiles information from publicity persons at the elementary schools, middle school and high school. Information also is provided by Moraine Early Childhood Development Center and St. Paul's.

MORAIINE

The Moraine Early Childhood Development Center has been selected as one of 12 exemplary programs nationwide to participate in a national study of public school early childhood programs. The study is being conducted by Bank Street College and Wellesley College with funding from the Ford Foundation and Carnegie Corporation. It is the first study of its kind to focus on public school programs that serve children younger than kindergarten age. Results of this study will inform and influence policy decisions concerning the role of public schools in the care and education of young children.

Moraine is among 12 public school programs across the country that have been selected for in-depth site visits. Research staff from Bank Street College visited Moraine for a week in November and observed in classrooms, interviewed teachers and administrators and met with a group of parents. The research teams are currently in the process of completing the on-site visits and compiling information. The study is expected to be completed by September, 1987. The staff at Moraine feels both excited and honored to participate in this important study.

During March, Moraine will be hosting a Parent Education Series. All interested community members are invited to attend. On Monday, March 2, Dr. Leonard Kaplan from Wayne State University will present, "Early Childhood (Preschool-Early Elementary): How Children Learn" from 7-8:30 p.m. at Moraine. On Thursday, March 12, Nancy Haas from the Michigan Department of Education Office for Sex Equity will present, "Helping Your Child Reach His/Her Potential: Preventing Sex Discrimination in Education" from 7-8:30 p.m. at Moraine. Call 344-4865 for more information.

The families and children at Moraine are gearing up for the first annual "Cruise Week" during the week of March 9th. We plan lots of sunshine inside even if it is cold outside. Activities include a luau, beach parties, making lemonade, having fun and lots more Bon Voyage!!

AMERMAN

The Amerman pancake supper was a fine success this year with 438 people attending. The food was great, lines moved quickly, and everyone enjoyed the evening. Thanks to all of you who volunteered your time to help with this event.

Also enjoying tremendous response is the Junior Great Books Program for third and fourth graders. Approximately 90 students are participating. Jill Popov and Sharon Bondy are due the credit for the success of this worthwhile reading program.

Amerman entries in the "Just Say No" poster contest are finished. Judging will take place on Feb. 26. One winner will be chosen from each school in Northville. The winning design chosen from these finalists will be embossed on T-Shirts. Remember, Drug Awareness Week is March 1-7.

Our science fair will be held on Thursday, March 12. Children may bring their projects to school that day. Projects will be on display in the afternoon and from 6-7:30 p.m. for parent viewing. Students may take their projects home that evening.

The Amerman roller skating parties are a big hit with families and teachers. Our next Roller Skating Family Fun Night is Thursday, March 19 at the Skatin' Station in Canton, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Admission and skate rental are each $1. See you there!

The annual Founders Day Banquet, sponsored by the Northville Coordinating Council, will be held at Northville High School on Tuesday, March 31, at 6 p.m. Amerman honorees are Donna Viel, day custodian and Sharon Ferrara, active PTA committee chairperson. Our joint nominees for the Distinguished Guest Award for district honorees are Shon and Mike Halacka.

Our next PTA meeting is on Tuesday, March 3 at 9:30 a.m. in the library.

SILVER SPRINGS

Silver Spring's annual publishing center is in progress this week. The teachers are using "the process approach to writing" with their classes this year which is helping the students come up with wonderful topics for their books. Books will be assembled the week of March 9th.

Spirit Week is under way. Monday was 50s and 60s Day, Tuesday was Hat and Button Day, Wednesday was Mismatch Day and Thursday is Checker Day. Next week the student council will be sponsoring a giant checker tournament. Each grade will learn how to play checkers and then compete on March 6 for titles. And of course winners will receive black and red licorice!

The "Best Yet" Silver Springs talent show will be held on March 13. Forty different acts will highlight this action-packed show. Individuals as well as groups will have an opportunity to show the school their various talents. Parents are welcome to join us for the 9:15 a.m. performance.

Upcoming events at Silver Springs include the Michigan Opera assembly on March 20, and the Spring Fun Fair on April 3. Volunteers are needed for the Fun Fair and should contact the Silver Springs office.

The PTA is proud to announce that their elementary students collected 25,304 Campbell soup labels this year. The Silver team won, with 13,680 labels. The Blue Team should also be proud of the 11,624 labels that they collected. With

CHESTER

At Friday, Feb. 20, the staff and staff were treated to by Channel 2's TV weatherman Chuck Gaidica. Mr. Gaidica put the weather into perspective for our children. The second edition of "The Chester", Winchester's school paper, is in the hands of all. Articles written by staff, and scout leaders keep all, thanks to the efforts of Romine and her editors: Polger, Lonnie George and Rossow. The PTA has proclaimed March 7 as Drug Awareness Day. A Burghardt and Mary said, in cooperation with the Northville Action Council, are appropriate activities in rooms that week. The February board meeting, the membership voted for one parent and one staff member to be honored for their PTA involvement at the annual Founders Day Banquet to be held on March 31. Larry Rowland, teacher, and Judy Shattuck, parent, were selected as Winchester's honorees. Congratulations!

Fifth graders are working on publishing books. The books will consist of stories, poetry and other creative experiences during the 5th grade. As each student completes their assignment they'll punch their work into the computer for storage, to be published at a later date.

The fourth grade class of Karin Hardin has a monthly newspaper titled "The Express Press." Each student has the opportunity to try their hand at journalism. In conjunction with this activity the class will be touring a local newspaper to learn first hand how a newspaper is run.

Anne Lauer's first graders have been learning all about dinosaurs. As a culminating activity, the class has made dioramas from clay and assorted odds and ends. They also made picture books that included facts and poetry of these long-ago creatures.

The kindergarten children in Carol VanSoest's class completed a unit on the postal system with a visit to the Northville Post Office. In addition to the tour, they mailed Valentine puzzles to their parents. The kindergartners put the new Michigan Statehood stamps on their cards.

PTA's next meeting takes place Wednesday, March 4, at 9:30 a.m.

Agencies offer free advice, pamphlets

Want a "no smoking" sign for your workplace? Need drug information immediately? Seeking a speaker for your civic organization?

There is free help available for all of the above through area agencies.

"Smoking is prohibited" signs are being offered free in limited quantities in response to Michigan's new "Clean Indoor Air Act," which took effect Jan. 1, 1987. The American Heart Association is offering the signs free to individuals and businesses. The signs are 11 by 14 inches and state (as required by law): "Smoking is prohibited except in designated smoking areas pursuant to Part 126 of the Public Health Code, P.A. 368 of 1978."

Posting of such signs is required by law to establish non-smoking as the norm in public places. The law states: "An individual shall not smoke in a public place or at a meeting of a public body, except in a designated smoking area."

Areas affected by the new law include: all public places, meeting places and workplaces owned or operated by state or local government agencies, including offices, educational facilities, health facilities, auditoriums, arenas, meeting rooms and public conveyances.

If you need signs for your business or meeting facility, contact any office of the American Heart Association of Michigan, a United Way Agency. Lathrup Village office is located at 16310 W. Twelve Mile, phone 557-9500.

A 24-hour drug assistance telephone line is operated by the Catherine McAuley Health Center. The number is 572-4300.

Professionally trained staff members of the chemical dependency program stand ready to answer drug questions any time of the day or night. Whether there is a crisis or if you want basic information, the assistance line can help.

Callers may request a copy of a free brochure, "Could My Child Be Using?" This brochure is prepared to help parents determine if their child is hooked on drugs or alcohol.

"Play It Smart" is the title of a free brochure for teenagers and their parents on alcohol and drug problems available from Brighton Hospital.

Prepared by the National Institute on Alcoholism and Alcohol Abuse, the booklet is available from the hospital along with two other publications, "Think - You Don't Have To Drink" and a pocket-size drug information guide. The hospital also has several films and video tapes on alcohol and drug abuse that can be borrowed at no charge by schools, churches and community organizations.

For a free copy of the publications and a list of the films and tapes send a self-addressed business size envelope to Community Relations Dept., Brighton Hospital, 12851 E. Grand River, Brighton, 48116, or call 227-1211, ext. 276.

The hospital will hold a free program in the chapel at 7 p.m. March 3 on how parents can learn to talk with their children about alcohol and other drugs.

"Gateways," a new 1987 film in color with narration, music and natural sounds illustrating the varied facilities of the 13 Huron Clinton Metroparks now is available for presentations to civic clubs and other community organizations. A speaker usually accompanies the 20-minute film; presentations are free.

Contact the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, P.O. Box 2001, Brighton, 48116-8001, or call 1-800-24-PARKS toll-free.

DSO musicians, soloists to perform Bach pieces

Two rarely-heard cantatas by J.S. Bach will be presented at the Meadowbrook Congregational Church on Sunday, March 8, at 2 p.m.

Featured will be 15 members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and five professional soloists along with the Meadowbrook Chancel Choir.

"It's going to be an exciting event," reported Ray Ferguson, a Professor of Music at Wayne State University and Minister of Music at the Meadowbrook Congregational Church.

"It will really be the area premier for these two works. I presented them in Detroit about 20 years ago, but I know they've never been done anywhere else in the Metro Detroit suburbs."

The music to be presented is Bach Cantata No. 70, "Watch Now, Pray Now," and Bach Cantata No. 93, "If Thou Wilt Suffer God to Guide Thee."

The public is invited to attend the concert which will be presented free of charge. Cost of the concert is partially underwritten by the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Detroit Federation of Musicians.

In addition, the church will offer a catered dinner at noon at a cost of $5 for adults and $2.50 for children. Reservations for the dinner must be made by Sunday, March 1. For more information or to make reservations call the church at 348-7757.

Ferguson said he is convinced the March 8 concert will be the area premier for the two Bach cantatas because it is virtually impossible to obtain the scores for the works anywhere outside Europe.

Ferguson was able to obtain the scores when he was a Fulbright Scholar in Germany more than two decades ago.

The event will be particularly meaningful to Ferguson because it marks the debut of what he hopes will become a series of cultural events at Meadowbrook Congregational.

Ferguson was one of the guiding lights of the Performing Arts Series offered at Bushnell Congregational Church in Redford. The series featured such well-known performers as Celeste Holmes and Michael Moriarty as well as actors from the Shakespearean Festival in Stratford, Ontario.

When the Bushnell Congregation split and formed the Meadowbrook Congregational Church in the Novi/Northville area, Ferguson transferred his talents to the local congregation.

"I really don't envision anything as extensive at Meadowbrook as the Bushnell Performing Arts Series, but I do believe we can initiate a semblance of a Performing Arts Series on an irregular basis," he commented.

"There's so much wonderful music that's not performed very often, and I would hope we could present some of it for the benefit of people out here who like to hear serious works that are not heard very often."

"Not all our programs would involve choral presentations," he added. "I don't see any reason, for example, why we could not have small groups come down from the Stratford Festival every so often."

The project at hand, however, is the Bach concert on March 8 and Ferguson is clearly enthused.

The five soloists — two sopranos, a contralto, tenor and bass — are all members of the Meadowbrook Congregational Chancel Choir and all have extensive musical backgrounds. Bass Timothy Lentz and Tenor David Reynolds, for example, have performed with the Michigan Lyric Opera Company, while Rosemarie Murch, the contralto, has soloed with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in addition to performing as a soloist with various opera companies in Europe.

"I'm somewhat reluctant to let people know the soloists are members of our choir because people might get the wrong impression that you have to be an accomplished vocalist to join our chancel choir," said Ferguson.

"We do have a tradition of professionalism in our music program because of the quality of our section leaders, but we need many voices to do the type of music we like to do."

"The quality of our section leaders is there to help everyone else. They enable us to take on more difficult, rarely-heard compositions which in turn attracts the type of people who have a genuine appreciation for the wonderful music that is available."

Backing up the soloists and choir will be 15 members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Appearing will be three first violins and three second violins, two cellos, a double bass, two oboes and a trumpet in addition to a harpsichord.

"It's the choir and orchestra together which creates a sense of excitement about this performance," said Ferguson, who will direct the two cantatas. "With an orchestra, there's a sense of excitement you just don't have with a choir accompanied on piano."

"I'm expecting a good turnout," he added. "Preliminary indications are that a lot of people are interested in what we are doing."

Robert Melvin wanted this house rezoned as an office

Council nixes rezoning plea

"I had no intention of getting it rezoned," he said, noting, "I did talk with the city engineer regarding widening of Eight Mile, but I thought it was mostly to be for curb and gutters."

"I never said it was not livable," Melvin stated after citing the increased traffic on Eight Mile as one of his problems.

He pointed out that he has 2 1/2 parcels that could be split into two lots.

Showing color pictures of the wooded area to the rear which contains pine trees, he said the pines were on an easement and would have to be torn out to permit a garage at the rear if another house were built.

He said his house was termed functionally obsolete by Realtors because it had only two bedrooms and no garage. His alternative suggestion, he said, was to keep the property as one lot and rezone it for office use, a use, he said, for which the traffic would not be a problem.

He cited Oakland County road commission figures showing increased traffic as one reason for wanting the change. He said in 1983 9,800 cars passed the intersection in a 24 hour period while the figure was 14,000 in a 24 hour period in April 1986.

Both McLaughlin and Joan Ashby of 765 Grace noted that they had each raised five children in the area and that traffic had not been a problem.

It was not that long ago, Ashby said, that she had seen a for sale sign on the property. She asked Melvin if a sale were contingent upon rezoning. He replied it was not.

"Were you so naive as not to know what was functional?" Mayor Paul Vernon questioned of Melvin.

He noted that the addition of a third bedroom and a garage would not deal with the traffic problem raised by Melvin.

Allen Cassidy of 850 Carpenter said he had gone by the corner for 20 years and feels the house is "far from in keeping with the architecture of the area" and said he believes it was constructed with footings and materials "with commercial in mind."

Douglas Berg of 111 Baseline pointed his study of the traffic figures for the area which showed that, proportionately, accident statistics "don't look that different" from 1984 to 1985-86. He pointed out that the four lanes exist only from Baseline to Taft on Eight Mile which is fed by two-lane feeder roads.

Melvin questioned City Manager Steven Walters about how to go about having the easement opened if he were to build a garage at the rear and was told he could petition to have the alley opened to the property.

Walters said the trend has been to vacate such easement if residents have access to the street but this has not been done citywide.

David McLaughlin of 816 N. Center quoted from a July 4, 1984, article in The Record in which identified Melvin as a commercial contractor and future occupant of the home Melvin explained to the reporter that the use of structural steel for the home with two bedrooms, a library and guest quarters was economical.

He told the reporter the trees on the site would remain.

At the close of the public hearing Vernon asked for comments from the council.

Council member Carolann Ayers noted that the traffic objection "works against the request as office would put additional traffic into the corner."

Mayor pro tem G. Dewey Gardner pointed out that Eight Mile was never meant to be a main artery in the area, recalling that in 1949 and the 1950s the bypass was built to alleviate traffic on Baseline and the railroad crossing.

He emphasized that a rezoning request had been denied for the property previously.

Council member Paul Folino pointed out that a zoning change would constitute spot zoning and would be against the city's master plan.

Absent council member John Buckland, who was out of town on business, left a memo to council saying he was against the rezoning for two reasons. It was turned down two years ago and the planning commission had recommended denial.

Two letters, from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Monje and Karen and Glenn Baja, were read objecting to the rezoning.

Mayor Vernon noted that it was not the first time an owner had insisted he could not sell property without rezoning and joined the others in denying the request.

The Northville Record

Our Opinions

Spot zoning denial maintains city plan

The action of Northville City Council upholding the recommendation of the city planning commission not to rezone property at the southeast corner of Eight Mile and Center from residential (R-1B) to office (PBO) is to be commended. The council's unanimous vote to deny the rezoning came after a hearing at which residents and the property owner had an opportunity to explain their reasons for objecting and for seeking change.

In view of the interest in the rezoning, calling the public hearing on the rezoning on Feb. 17 was a good move, not required of council, but clarifying the residents' feelings about the area.

Residents understandably were concerned that the rezoning request was being made, especially because rezoning of the corner had been requested by a previous owner of the property and been denied. That more than 50 residents attended the hearing is testimony to the feeling expressed that this is a residential neighborhood of families. Mothers like Carol McLaughlin and Joan Ashby pointed out that they each had raised five children in the neighborhood and did not feel traffic at the intersection was a problem that called for rezoning.

Mayor pro tem G. Dewey Gardner focused on the danger of an isolated rezoning lot request as he asked the petitioner for his definition of spot zoning. When the party store to the west on Eight Mile was cited as an example, Gardner pointed out it is adjacent to a gas station on the corner. The concern that to allow any commercial rezoning would open the door to other requests undoubtedly was in the minds of residents. It only takes a ride along a mile road through adjacent areas today to see the inroads made by spot zoning. In many instances, after a commercial request is granted, a request for multiples as buffers follows.

Granted traffic has increased on Eight Mile, but the widening that provides for left hand turns off Eight Mile has, if anything, made the intersection safer. As was pointed out in the hearing, Eight Mile was never meant to be a major artery and became the east-west route when traffic was diverted from old Baseline with a railroad overpass.

Resident Doug Berg's analysis of traffic studies at the intersection and his conclusion that 1985-86 figures aren't that different from 1984 figures was reassuring. His point that Eight Mile is fed by mainly two-lane feeder roads also was valid.

We have to take the petitioner's word that his intention three years ago was to create a contemporary house in which he would live and work was true. It is unfortunate that this arrangement apparently has not been satisfactory. When interviewed about the unusual steel construction of the home in 1984, Melvin was enthusiastic about the site with its wooded area of pine trees at the rear.

It was disturbing to hear him state that, to make the house marketable, he might have to tear out the woods to place a garage at the rear of the lot and add a third bedroom. He suggested that it would be better for the neighborhood to keep the trees and rezone the house for office use. He also noted that he can split the property into two parcels and construct another dwelling. To us, as to the residents attending the hearing, this was an unwelcome proposal that sounded like a threat.

We hope that, if the petitioner really does not feel he can live in the house, he will make every effort to market it as it exists. Surely, there must be others who work at home who would appreciate the unusual home he created.

Top science teachers deserve the award

When state educators go looking for a model science program to emulate as part of their action plan to improve science instruction in Michigan, we suggest they start at Meads Mill Middle School.

For the past two years, teachers Norman Hannewald and Dwight Sieggreen have combined their individual talents to offer students a science program which goes far beyond textbook study.

Their innovative programs, team teaching approach and unebbed enthusiasm have earned Hannewald and Sieggreen the Outstanding Science Teacher Award by the Michigan

Science Teacher Association in cooperation with the Detroit Free Press. That both teachers were awarded the prestigious honor is a tribute to its recipients as well as the program. The dual honor also recognizes the team approach which has been so much a part of the district's middle school philosophy.

At a time when school science programs are being scrutinized, it is refreshing to find recognition given to educators whose efforts go far beyond the teaching of test objectives.

It is an honor well-deserved. While Hannewald and Sieggreen will receive the award, the district can be assured that the real winners are the students.

Slow down and live

By Anita Crone

Sometimes we don't know what's good for us.

Despite the fact it has been proven that the reduced speed limits on the nation's freeways save lives, there is a move afoot to again raise the limits from 55 to a yet to be determined maximum on non-urban freeways.

Hogwash.

Has anybody recently tried to drive 55 on Interstate-275? How about I-96? If you aren't rammed from behind, you certainly will have a truck or another car so close to your rear end that you have no choice but to speed up.

Time may be money, but if the speed limit is raised to 65, the cost to the nation cannot be measured in dollars, it must be measured in lives. Just as an experiment, I drove 55 mph from Walled Lake (14 Mile Road) to the Six Mile Road exit of I-275 Monday. It took nine minutes and a lot of guts. More than one speeding car left no doubt that I was in the way.

Tuesday morning, I traveled the same route at my usual 65-70 mph and it took me six minutes. That was a short trip. Not much time saved, but certainly I was obeying the law by driving with the traffic flow. Were I to drive 800 miles, I would save two hours and 14 minutes driving 65 mph, but I would miss a lot of sights. I would feel safer driving at the higher rate of speed, but then I questioned whether I really was safer.

What would have happened, I mused, if the load of steel chained to the semi in front of me had broken loose? Would I have been able to swerve in time to avoid hitting it at either speed? Would I have been any less dead hitting that steel at 55 than at 70? Obviously not. But that is the exception.

The argument, however, is not whether the speed limit should be raised, but at what speed should police enforce the law. Currently, the unwritten rule is that you are probably not going to get a ticket if you drive 62 mph on a freeway (except if you have Michigan plates on your car and you drive the Ohio Turnpike). But at 65 mph, your chances of being stopped increase.

And what about the rural freeways? Does a truck, and there is no doubt that the trucking industry is behind the requests for a raised speed limit, perform more efficiently at 65 mph than it does at 60?

The statistics don't support that. Especially the newer model vehicles are planned to function efficiently at most speeds. The real question is time. Too often truckers are paid based on just in time delivery. The more runs a truck makes, the more profits it achieves for its owner. But what is a human life worth? No one has really been willing to address that issue.

The courts have fluctuating definitions, depending on the cause of the accident, the location of the court and the age of the victim.

The insurance companies have another standard. But whatever standard is used, the cost is high. A lower speed limit has contributed to fewer deaths on the highways.

And, realistically, an entire generation of drivers has learned to drive at 55 mph. Before speed limits are raised, would it not be a better idea to enforce the 55 mph limit and then study the number of accidents on the nation's roadways. It makes sense to me.

After the Fact

By Phil Jerome

"You can't do it," she said. "You wouldn't do it, would you? Please don't do it."

The plaintive quality in her voice made me hesitate for a moment—the well-concealed soft-hearted portion of my character almost overcoming my more-typical hard-hearted nature.

"Sorry, my pet, but I am going to do it," I said finally.

"Yep, I'm going to tell the world about the dietary habits of Clyde. I'm going to let 'em know how you, the physical fitness nut... the quasi-vegetarian... the person who eats raw rutabagas for lunch and jogs five miles every day, allows your cat to eat."

I knew I was being cruel... sort of. But I also knew I had to do something about Clyde, the junk-food kitty, who at this point was hovering above my slice of pizza, casting longing gazes at the little dabs of ham.

Clyde doesn't care much for kitty-food. He prefers people-food. You name it, Clyde eats it.

Pizza is one of his big favorites. But he also has a real fondness for french fries and thinks ice cream sundaes are something too good to be wasted on ordinary bi-peds.

Actually his tastes are becoming more refined as he grows older. There was a time when Clyde would gobble down just about anything associated with a pizza. It was a great way to get rid of the crust and pretend you were being kind to animals at the same time. He even liked the green pepper.

But now Clyde pretty much restricts himself to the meat, particularly the ham although he also will condescend to accept an occasional piece of sausage.

"Well, if you're determined to write about Clyde's propensity for eating junk food, I guess there's no way I can stop you," she sniffed.

"Tell you what," I replied. "If you'll make him stop sitting on the pizza box, I'll consider finding something else to write about next week."

Rec Center refuses Cooperative Preschool

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Northville Cooperative Preschool, a non-profit organization founded over 35 years ago for families with preschool-age children, ages 2, 3 and 4 years, I would like to relate a situation which occurred this past week.

Every year at this time, Northville Cooperative Preschool holds an open house for anyone in the community who would like to learn more about us and our preschool programs. Our line of communication to the community is through our members, news items which may appear in The Record, or through placement of posters throughout the area, whether it be in the small downtown businesses, large companies which do business in Northville or high-traffic community buildings.

One of the places we have always been allowed to place our posters was on the bulletin board of the Northville Community Recreation Center. Most of our community, at one time or another, has been in this building, some of us many times a week, and, for this reason, we have always found this an ideal place to make people aware of our organization and our events.

However, it appears our recreation center is now, for whatever reason, turning its back on the real foundation of what a community as caring as ours has always seemed.

NCP was not allowed to put our open house poster on the recreation center bulletin board for the following reasons, as stated by a representative of the center: NCP is not community oriented, our sign doesn't have anything to do with the recreation center, the center bulletin board is too full, and the sign is too large.

Granted our sign is larger than a piece of notebook paper, but there was no willingness to provide a space for a smaller sign. As for the area being full, there were exactly 12 posters on the board, average size being 8 1/2 by 11, with plenty of room to spare.

Furthermore, to state that NCP is not community oriented is a statement of ignorance. How could we have people running a community operation such as the recreation center and not know what being community oriented is? And, finally, that our poster has nothing to do with the recreation center is correct: NCP has to do with families and community, what does the recreation center have to do with that? Apparently nothing.

It is almost embarrassing to think of all the businesses, both small and large, as well as our Northville Public Schools who have supported NCP over the years, and yet the Northville Community Recreation Center is unwilling to do the same. Maybe it's about time they learn the meaning of "community spirit."

Sincerely,
Mary J. Reece
Secretary

Actions were unforgivable

By Michele M. Fecht

In a courtroom in Jerusalem last week, John Demjanjuk, a former Cleveland autoworker accused of killing hundreds of thousands of Jews in the Treblinka death camp in Poland, became the first alleged Nazi war criminal to be tried in Israel in more than a quarter of a century.

While the international press has focused its attention on Demjanjuk's trial, the partially-filled courtroom seems to indicate that Israeli citizens are looking at these proceedings with some reservation. It's been 25 years since Adolph Eichmann was hanged for his crimes against humanity. It's been nearly a half century since the Holocaust. Perhaps the survivors of this century's darkest hour no longer can reopen their wounds.

For Americans, this trial raises some disturbing questions. It's been only a year since the Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk was stripped of his U.S. citizenship and deported to Israel. Prior to that time, he spent more than three decades living a typical American existence. He owned a house in the suburbs, raised a family, voted in local elections and probably put out a flag on the Fourth of July. His neighbors claim he was an exemplary citizen. Prosecutors claim he was the sadistic operator of the Treblinka gas chamber.

At the close of the Second World War, this nation served as a refuge for death camp survivors. Unfortunately, it also harbored thousands of Nazis, albeit unknowingly. It is not surprising that former members of Hitler's Third Reich lied to gain entry to the United States. The quiet suburbs of mainstream America provided a sanctuary for those such as Demjanjuk and Valerian Trifa, the former central Michigan archbishop who hid his Nazi past behind a clerical collar.

Demjanjuk's case, like those of other war criminals, raises the question of whether former followers of Hitler's regime were victims of circumstance. Many contend those who took part in Nazi atrocities were unwilling participants. They also argue that what happened nearly a half century ago cannot be judged in the context of today.

If recent events are any indication, the horrors of the Nazi war machine most definitely can be judged in the context of today. For instance, in the same year that former Nazi Kurt Waldheim was elected President of Austria, Auschwitz survivor and Jewish writer Elie Wiesel was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his life-long efforts to assure that the horrors of the Holocaust are never forgotten.

The dichotomy of this issue is disturbing. It is obvious that little has been learned from the past. As horrific as it may be, there is a need to reopen old wounds for the sake of the generations who did not bear witness to those nightmare years.

While Demjanjuk's Cleveland neighbors and Trifa's former Grass Lake parishioners may believe that these former Nazis redeemed themselves through exemplary American citizenship, their past actions cannot be excused.

If the prosecution is successful in proving that Demjanjuk was the notorious Nazi guard known as "Ivan the Terrible" by those who survived Treblinka, the former American faces the death penalty. Trifa, who voluntarily surrendered his naturalization certificate two years ago, died last month in Portugal.

Having lied to immigration officials, deceived neighbors and co-workers and eluded the past for three decades, the former soldiers of the Third Reich are neither forgiven nor forgotten.

Salem resident cites possible health hazard

To the Editor:

Re: Discharge of pollutants into the ground water and atmosphere.

Those of us who regularly observe our community have a grave concern for a planned business activity for Salem Township in Washtenaw County that has the potential, and I believe probability, of causing great health hazards and millions of dollars in clean-up costs. There is the real fear for human life and the chance that the damage would be irreparable.

The residents of western Wayne County should also be informed of the plans to remove waste water from the Holloway Landfill at Six Mile and Napier roads, on the Wayne-Washtenaw County line. The Holloway Dump is now called the Arbor Hills East, and it is being projected to drill many holes into this mountain of garbage and collect the gases of decomposition being generated there.

Getty Synthetic Fuels (G.S.F.) is the business that plans to take this gas with whatever water soluble hazardous chemicals that may be contained therein and burn it as a source of fuel for an asphalt plant on the land to the west.

It has been publicly stated at Salem Township meetings that an estimated 4,000 gallons a day of "waste water" would be discharged from the dump. I would like a supportable estimate of how much water-borne hazardous waste could be discharged directly into the atmosphere. Apparently there is no other plan in the works at the moment to protect the air or the water.

It has been suggested that the water this summer would be just dumped into a nearby drainage ditch that flows along the railroad tracks. G.S.F. has made offers to tie the waste water from the dump into a proposed sewer system for the hamlet of Salem. The draft proposal for this project provides for no sophisticated processing at all. Basically, the proposed plant would just let the chemicals follow gravity through the soils of the township and into the Johnson Drain that runs through many yards, including mine.

We can operate from no other point of view than that the dump has all the chemicals known to man contained therein. Public safety demands they not be pumped out for private profit. Recycling is a goal we can all support, but the water and air quality must be guarded.

At the very least a public hearing is in order.

Respectfully submitted,
James L. Melosh

'Water Broom' invention helps brothers 'clean up'

By KATHLEEN MUTCH

While there may be slush and snow still on the ground and an icy chill in the air, it's the time of year when homeowners and shopkeepers begin to think spring. They know that warmer weather means sunny skies, spring thaws and spring cleaning.

For many persons that includes hosing and scrubbing away the dirt and debris deposited by winter shoveling and plowing. If not washed away, the oily, gritty grime and road dirt hidden under blackening snow and refrozen slush will be carried into homes, offices and shops on the soles of visitors' shoes in the spring.

Ten years ago, South Lyon residents Tedd and Greg Wallace, two brothers who now double as business partners, invented a maintenance tool that makes light work of this otherwise time consuming, sometimes arduous, task.

The Wallace invention, trademarked "The Water Broom," at first glance resembles a long-handled push-broom that one might use to sweep out the garage or clean the driveway. But the broom does not have bristles. It is powered instead by water rather than muscles. The cleaning device is made of zinc-plated steel with all brass fittings and neoprene wheels.

"Usually, all it takes is a demonstration. If I can get them to see how it works, I just stand back and it sells itself," said Tedd Wallace, who also happens to be the mayor of South Lyon.

Wallace remembers that on his first day out he made 30 calls and couldn't get even one prospect to agree to a demonstration. When he finally was able to show what it could do, he says he immediately sold four water brooms. More than 1,000 water brooms have been sold to buyers in all 50 states, according to Wallace.

To use the water broom, a household-variety garden hose is attached to the upper end of the hollow handle of the "broom." An adjustable valve at that connection controls the flow of water from the hose to V-shaped water jets that form a horizontal line across the sweeping end of the "broom." When the water is turned on, the broom is self-propelled.

The tool weighs 10 pounds, but since the device rests on wheels, it moves easily and freely wherever directed by the user. Unlike an electrical floor-scrubber, there are no bristles or pads. The water is released under high pressure and adjusts to any irregularities on the surface being cleaned. Water shoots out in such a way that a sharp-edged spray of water sweeps away everything in front of the "broom."

There is no detergent dispenser either. Tedd Wallace recommends applying liquid or dry detergent to the wet surface. The user should then let the liquid set, especially if stains are difficult to remove. Lastly, the area should be swept until the detergent is washed away.

Because of the high pressure, the water broom uses about 10 percent less water than a garden hose to perform the same job, according to Wallace. Other plusses are that the water does not "puddle" and is dry in minutes.

The water broom comes in three widths: a 22-inch model with five V-jets; a 32-inch, seven-jet model; and a 42-inch, nine-jet version. Wallace said the mid-sized model is the most popular and is adequate for most homeowners and small businesses.

PSYCHOTHERAPY & COUNSELING SERVICES, INC. at 670 Griswold in Northville is currently offering the Anti-Diet Weight Loss Program. According to Program Director Ann Harris, ACSW, the program has achieved remarkable results for "chronic dieters."

"There's a good reason why so many people go on one diet after another, and then gain weight right back again," she said. "Until they change the way they think about food, they'll keep falling back into the same old habits."

Many overeaters use food as a reward, a crutch, a source of consolation or a spare-time activity when bored. "Naturally" thin people, on the other hand, eat to satisfy their hunger. By teaching overeaters how to think about food the way a thin person does, the Anti-Diet Weight Loss Program can achieve success when other methods fail.

"By the time people leave the program," said Harris, "they are in control of food. It has no more power over them."

The program consists of 10 two-hour classes with groups of up to eight people. Groups meet weekly for discussions, followed by simple, effective homework assignments, using no diets, deprivation, calorie-counting, special menus or supplements. Individual instruction is also available.

A nationwide program, the Anti-Diet Weight Loss Program was developed by a therapist after extensive work with clients who had compulsive eating problems. Now available locally, the program is being conducted at Psychotherapy & Counseling at various times for those interested in learning more about the program. Admission is $10 with limited enrollment. To reserve space, call 348-1100. Sign up now and save 50 percent on the introductory session.

The Quilt House

Donna Campbell, co-owner of The Quilt House at 200 McHattie in South Lyon, displays one of the many quilts she offers at the recently-opened shop, which has four rooms of supplies and display samples. Campbell and her partner, Jeanette Campbell, have been quilting for 10-12 years and offer quilting classes at the shop. In addition, classes in rug braiding and rag baskets are coming, according to Campbell. The shop carries fabrics, quilting and sewing supplies, handmade items, embroidery floss, cotton and poly/cotton materials, and quilting and sewing threads, as well as handmade wood-working items. "We want to provide our customers with the best supplies we can find," Campbell said, adding that anyone who has difficulty finding an item can order it at their shop. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Cheap labor attracts companies out of U.S.

Foreign relocation is a controversial topic in the business world. When the manufacture of products is moved to another country, jobs are lost here. But such a move may allow the company to stay in business and save U.S. jobs in the long run.

"When you're competing in a world market, you have to do what you have to do to stay competitive," said Joel Rosenberg, director of administration for the Troy-based Van Dresser Corporation. "Isn't it better to lose a few jobs than to lose a whole company?"

Rosenberg recently attended a conference in Acapulco, Mexico, organized to bring businesses to that country. Many businesses are being lured south of the border to take advantage of cheap labor.

"Mexico is unique because it's in North America, but it has the economy of a Third World nation," he said. "Their economy is worsening to the point of a crisis situation, so the Mexican government is pursuing any help it can get, and these conferences are one way of doing that."

Rosenberg said he attended the Acapulco conference for educational purposes and to stay on top of the latest in the industry.

"We don't have any plans to go into Mexico," he said. "With the type of business we operate it wouldn't be cost-effective for us to do so."

Van Dresser Corporation which has been in existence 58 years, produces interior trim panels for automobiles and operates five plants in the United States and Canada. It employs 12,000 workers and operates in excess of $130 million each year, and is currently seeking a site for an additional plant in the mid-South.

"The types of businesses that see any cost savings by moving a plant to a foreign country are those that are very labor intensive," Rosenberg said. "Our company simply isn't labor intensive enough for a move like this to make any difference."

Because workers in many foreign countries aren't organized, they receive none of the benefits of American workers who may do the same job. And the rate of pay is much lower.

As a result, companies that employ a large number of manual laborers may realize a significant cost savings to relocate.

Pressure from large companies, such as the big auto makers who have set up operations in Mexico, also can sway the smaller suppliers to locate there.

"A company can't just say, 'That looks like a nice spot to manufacture our product,' and set up shop," Rosenberg said. "There are a lot of factors involved when looking for a specific location."

In the past, automakers stored a large number of parts in the factory,

"When you're competing in a world market, you have to do what you have to do to stay competitive. Isn't it better to lose a few jobs than to lose a whole company?"

— Joel Rosenberg
Van Dresser Corp.

and their suppliers made infrequent shipments of large orders.

Today, companies work under a "just in time" system, he said. This means instead of storing weeks of supplies, suppliers ship just enough to last for a few hours of production.

"This can mean many shipments a day," Rosenberg said. "You can't be thousands of miles away from the assembly plants or it's too difficult to maintain this type of relationship. It's why we have plants in different parts of the country."

There are significant problems that must be overcome for an American business to operate successfully in a foreign country.

"It's not like deciding to set up shop in another city or state," he said. "There are a lot of cultural problems that prohibit a smooth transaction."

"The language is different so communication and training become a problem," he said. "Often the pace of work is slower, and there's usually a high employee turnover."

Shipping and freight expense can be another major problem.

"The labor may be cheap, but usually there are added freight costs and the costs associated with sending goods back and forth over a (international) border," Rosenberg said. "Often times freight can be the most expensive part of the process."

Controversy surrounded the Acapulco conference, originally sponsored by the U.S. Department of Commerce, after legislation was passed prohibiting the use of taxpayer money for such purposes (see related story on this page). This legislation prohibits the federal government for the next year from spending money for any programs designed to take American business out of the country.

Despite the U.S. government pullout, Rosenberg said the conference was well organized and included speakers on "everything a business needs to know" to set up there.

'More at stake than loss of jobs,' says UAW

Aside from the loss of U.S. jobs, the push to lure American businesses to Mexico and other foreign countries may have other repercussions.

"It's not just an issue for the auto workers, but for the country in general," said Frank Joyce, UAW spokesman. "If we lack the capabilities to design and manufacture here, from refrigerators to automobiles, haven't we lost something in the process?"

Joyce said the auto industry's portion of the trade deficit has grown steadily and continues to rise.

"At least a third of the U.S. trade deficit is auto-related, and things are not getting any better," he said. "The approach we're currently advocating is the passage of trade legislation that will address the issues of quotas and unfair trade practices."

Although other countries have local content laws that require businesses to use a certain percentage of locally made products in the manufacturing process, no such rules exist here.

"We have nothing that compels our manufacturers to use U.S. parts or products," Joyce said. "The passage of trade legislation would help to make things much more equitable."

"It really makes us vulnerable when we rely on other countries for services or products," he said. "Critics say we're evolving into a service economy, but if we continue to lose manufacturing jobs, with what money are people going to buy these services?"

Joyce said the UAW directly attributes the falling of the real wage and standard of living within the middle class to the decline in the manufacturing segment of the country.

The UAW officially protested a recent seminar held in Mexico to promote that country as a place for American businesses. The conference was originally sponsored by the U.S. Department of Commerce, which had to withdraw its participation because of legislation passed over this protest.

U.S. Representative Bob Carr (D-East Lansing) was instrumental in pushing through the legislation, which prohibits the government from sponsoring such conferences over the next year.

A spokesman from his office said Carr supported the legislation because the seminars, which encourage businesses to take jobs elsewhere, are not proper use of U.S. tax dollars.

The UAW's complaint with the seminar was similar.

"How can we argue at another country's efforts for economic development?" Joyce said. "It's one thing that Mexico wants to attract business, but it's another that our government is willing to help them do so with our taxpayers' money."

Although American companies may save money by using cheap foreign labor, Joyce said the cycle only helps to keep the wage structure low and depresses wages on a worldwide basis.

"It comes down to a very simple question," he said. "Yes, there's a global economy, but is the direction of the global economy going to be to take down our standard of living as well? We need to help increase the worldwide standard of living, not help keep it low."

Joyce said the UAW does what it can to address these issues during contract negotiations with smaller shops as well as the large auto makers, but added that legislation is needed to fully address the problems.

Although a piece of trade legislation passed last year in the house, it was stalled in the senate. No other trade or local content legislation is currently on the house agenda, Carr's spokesman said, adding it's still too early in the session to predict when the issue might be addressed.

'The Fed' controls economy

What is the Federal Reserve Board and how does it affect your buying power? Every time you consider making a major installment purchase, the "Fed" indirectly influences your decision by controlling the amount of available loan money and to a large degree the cost of that money.

Although the Fed appears in the business headlines almost daily, rarely is it explained just how it wields so much influence over the economy and the consumer, says the Michigan Association of CPAs.

The Fed, created by Congress in 1913, is empowered with a constitutional prerogative to "coin money" and regulate its value. All commercial banks chartered by the federal government are required by Congress to become members of the Federal Reserve System.

Headquartered in Washington, the Fed acts as the country's central bank. The system actually comprises 12 Federal Reserve banks, each in a different city, and 25 branch banks. About 5,500 individual commercial banks belong to the system, which is overseen by a seven-member Board of Governors, currently chaired by Paul Volcker.

How does the Fed affect you? As the country's central bank, the Fed clears checks and implements consumer credit laws. It is also responsible for keeping the economy supplied with enough money to conduct business and to grow.

The supply of money influences interest rates, and rates affect the price you pay for houses, cars and anything else you buy on credit. When buying a house, for example, even a drop of one-fourth of a percentage point could mean a savings of thousands of dollars in interest payments.

Credit is vital to a growing economy. However, too much credit, particularly in a busy economic period, creates an extra demand for goods and services and contributes to inflation. Too little credit keeps people from buying and dampens business activity contributing to a recession.

Most credit is offered through commercial banks and three other depository institutions — savings banks, credit unions and savings & loan associations. When you, as a borrower, spend the proceeds of your loan, the funds are usually deposited in the accounts of others. Those deposits add "new" money to the economy thus increasing the money supply.

The Fed uses three major tools to influence money and credit: reserves, percentage rates and "the discount rate."

First, when the Fed buys and sells U.S. government and federal agency securities on the open market, it increases or decreases reserves. To increase the money supply, the Fed buys securities, paying with a check drawn on itself. The dealer deposits the check in his or her bank, which then uses the money to lend to borrowers. To lessen the amount in circulation, the Fed sells Treasury securities from its inventory. The dealer pays with a check drawn on his or her bank, leaving the bank with less to lend.

Second, the Fed also can change the required percentage of reserves held against deposits — immediately increasing or decreasing money available for lending. More money may help lower the interest rate you pay, less money may raise it.

Third, using one of its oldest powers, the Fed can change the "discount rate." This is the rate at which member banks can borrow from the system. Results are quick. Normally, when the Fed reduces its discount rate, banks will lower their prime interest rates by the same percentage the next business day.

You may not want to join the ranks of "Fed Watchers," those who scrutinize the institution's every move in order to predict future trends, but CPAs remind you that your investment decisions may be affected by the Fed's actions.

How to select a financial planner

In the past two decades, financial planning has evolved into a multi-billion dollar industry with thousands of advisors who plan and manage investors' finances.

To help consumers select a reputable financial planner who meets their needs, the Better Business Bureau/Detroit and Eastern Michigan has released a booklet titled "Tips on Financial Planners."

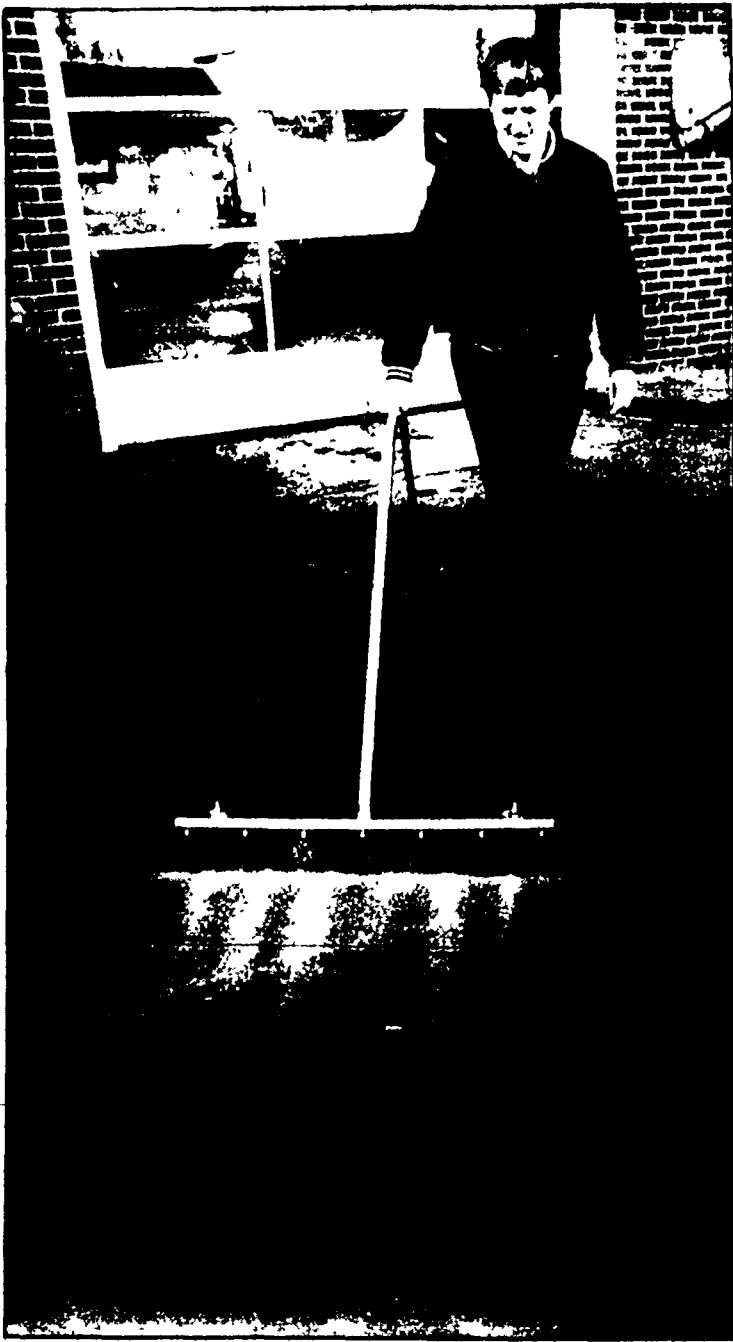

The booklet is the latest in the BBB's Consumer Information Series which offers helpful tips on more than 80 topics of consumer interest. Copies of the new booklet can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-sized envelope to the BBB at 150 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, MI 48226.

"Consumers should not take the process of looking for a financial planner lightly," said Detroit BBB President Thomas F. Ashcraft.

"The booklet gives advice on what to look for and what to avoid when selecting a financial planner, including a list of questions the consumer should ask."

"It also provides a section on the 'red flags' of fraud and abuse," he said.

Tedd Wallace claims 'The Water Broom' is as important a maintenance tool as a vacuum cleaner or a lawn mower.

direct our selling to businesses that might use it," Wallace said. Those businesses have included fast-food restaurants, grocery stores, motels, kennels, gas stations and auto dealerships.

Other buyers have included Michigan State University, the University of Michigan, the Detroit Zoo, Kensington Metropark, schools, hospitals, churches and municipalities.

Imitations, usually less expensive plastic copies, have cropped up, but Wallace said he doesn't feel threatened by the competition.

"We thought of changing ours (to plastic), but we decided to stick with what we have — the top of the line," Wallace said.

Consequently, the price of the water broom is top of the line, too. The price ranges from $90 to $110 depending on the model size. The tool is backed with a lifetime guarantee against defects in parts or workmanship. Since the business began 10 years ago, Wallace said he has had only had one replacement request and that was for a wheel that wore out after eight years of use.

The water broom was designed to withstand years of industrial use, according to Wallace.

"We don't know yet how long they will last, but we do know they will last through at least 10 years of use," Wallace said.

Wallace likes to tell listeners if they invest in a vacuum sweeper for carpeting or a lawn mower for grassy areas, then a water broom for paved and hard-surfaced areas is a logical investment to make.

The Wallaces' invention is available from Tedd and Greg Wallace through their company, known as Wall to Wall Distributing. They can be reached at 437-3246. The water broom also is sold at Martin's Hardware in South Lyon.

AUTO SAFETY TIPS

SURVIVAL DRIVING IN RAIN, SLEET, SNOW AND ICE!...

Winter has a way of turning an ordinary road into a battle zone. Snow stops being beautiful the moment you have to drive on it, because even a light powder can make your car handle as if you were riding on ball bearings. Here are some valuable tips and information on controlling your car in inclement weather:

✓ Check your brakes, suspension, wiper blades, window washer and tires. Even cars with front-wheel drive (short of four-wheel drive, front-wheel drive is best for on-snow driving) benefit from snow tires even if your dealer told you the car is equipped with all-season tires.

Getting started is the basic cold-weather problem. Most vulnerable of all your car's components are the alternator, coil, distributor, spark plugs and fan belt. Check out these parts carefully before the season begins.

Be sure to take along all of the following extras during the snow and ice season when you'll be encountering hazardous road conditions:

BOOSTER CABLES

A good, strong, healthy battery is vital, any season. But if your battery does go, booster cables will enable you to draw starting power from another car's battery. A word of caution: use them correctly or you could injure yourself or damage your car's electrical system.

STARTING FLUID

Don't pump your car's accelerator to get it started on a cold morning. Simply give the carburetor a shot of starting fluid to coax the engine.

SNOW/ICE SCRAPER

Get a sturdy, wooden-handled scraper for chopping off the ice accumulation on your windshield.

WHEEL CHOCKS

A wise investment if you have to drive frequently on slippery inclines. At least one will hold the car in place when you have to change a tire under such bad road conditions.

LOCK DE-ICER

Expect to use this after one of those particularly raw, wet, cold nights. Don't keep it in the car — you won't be able to get at it. Tape it under your car's hood!

INSOMNIA

For some, the bed is the enemy

By MATTHEW J. VALLEY

Sleeping is a part of the daily life cycle most all of us look forward to, and without those precious hours of rest, people can become physically drained or downright ornery.

Nearly everyone occasionally suffers from a sleepless night for a variety of reasons. Perhaps the problem is due to anxiety or too much sleep the night before. Whatever the case, the problem is temporary in nature in most instances.

But for an estimated 30 million Americans, lack of sleep is a chronic dilemma that severely impairs the ability to function on a day-to-day basis. Those who have the problem continually complain of being "washed-out" and fatigued, and experience much anxiety about their predicament.

In medical terms, those persons who can't initiate sleep or maintain it are referred to as insomniacs. Their enemy is the bed.

"It is absolutely disabling for those persons who suffer from insomnia," said Dr. William Allen, medical director for the Sleep Disorders Clinic at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ypsilanti.

"They complain of being aches and tired. They just don't feel right. And the more they can't sleep the more stressful they become."

Though even the most astute medical researchers still don't have all the answers to the reasons behind chronic insomnia, there are some general patterns that have emerged, some experts believe.

Frequently, insomniacs are tense people who display lots of energy, according to Allen. The more they want the problem to go away, the more it bothers them.

"You can actually see the muscle tension. When they are in the room they will do a lot of visual scanning and have a lot of body motion. They are easily recognized," said Allen.

"Anxiety is often at the root of the problem. Some of these people are also suffering from psychiatric illness such as severe depression," he added.

But Dr. Merrill Mitler, who is director of research for the Sleep Disorders Center at Scripps Clinic in La Jolla, Calif., cautions against labeling insomniacs.

"There are 51 percent of insomniacs who suffer from anxiety or depression. But another 49 percent also suffer chronic pain or have a breathing abnormality," said Mitler.

Those persons experiencing emphysema or rheumatoid arthritis would be included in that group of chronic pain sufferers whose sleep can be greatly affected, according to Mitler.

There are also many sleeping disorders which can disrupt sleep. One of them is known as sleep apnea (pronounced AP-knee-a), which occurs when a person's breathing pattern is often interrupted during sleep, so much so that the person feels drowsy during the day.

About 15 to 20 percent of insomniacs also suffer from drug and alcohol abuse problems, which over time can cause drastic physiological changes, doctors said. Some insomniacs frequently use caffeine, which causes the body to remain awake for longer periods of time. Irregular sleeping habits can cause problems, too.

Sleeping pills pose still another problem for insomniacs, according to Allen and other medical persons.

"The vast majority of sleeping pills work for only about two weeks, then they are no better than a placebo. In fact, once they stop taking sleeping pills, insomniacs can suffer from what is known as rebound insomnia," said Allen.

Avenues to sleep are many

By MARILYN HERALD

If you have ever spent the night turning over and over in your bed like a turkey on a spit, you know the problems of insomnia all too well. You probably have also realized that there is no one remedy which works for all those who are not lucky enough to be able to turn their brain switch to "off" when they seek rest.

If getting to sleep is the main problem, try reading in bed but never, never take books from work to bed with you. Light reading is best, skip the suspense or the depressing descriptions of other people's problems.

Many people find that a warm bath, not a brisk shower, relaxes them enough to help to keep those staring eyes closed.

Everyone needs physical exercise during the day in order to sleep well at night. If your daily routine doesn't include exercise, try taking a walk before bedtime. Being physically tired is one of the best ways to induce sleep.

If worrying is your bag and you do it best at bedtime, or even worse, at 4 a.m., try to avoid thinking about problems after 8 p.m. Make a conscious effort to think of pleasant things (not crises) for a few hours before going to bed and promise yourself that everything will look better by morning light.

Anyone who worries a lot or has children or beloved relatives with problems who live far from home, should make it a rule never to call them long-distance just before retiring. Sure, the rate is cheaper after 11 p.m., but that rate also lasts up to 8 a.m. and is good on Saturdays and Sundays, too. Talking to people with long-distance problems is lots easier if you have a whole day to digest what they said before trying to settle your brains for "a long winter's nap."

Make sure your bedroom is neither too hot nor too cold. Most people find 60-65 degrees the best temperature for sleeping. Add to this some practice that assures you of warm feet: socks, electric blanket or an understanding mate who is willing to cuddle them.

If that understanding mate is not disturbed by turning on the light in the middle of the night, or if you sleep alone, try reading yourself back to sleep when you wake up worrying at 4 a.m. It usually takes only a few minutes to get your thoughts off whatever crisis is bothering you and you'll probably be sleeping soundly when the alarm goes off.

Don't get in the habit of napping in the daytime if you have difficulty sleeping at night. This can start a disastrous syndrome that will keep you tossing and turning for weeks on end. Remember how babies can so easily get night and day reversed? It happens to adults too.

If none of the above tips help to keep you sleeping restfully, get up and do something. Sometimes writing a letter or washing the kitchen floor will calm down the brainwaves so that you can go back to bed and right to sleep.

Research has shown that not all people need the same amount of sleep and there is no cause for concern about lack of sleep unless you find you are getting overly tired or tense. If you just can't relax and sleep when going to bed and continue to suffer from insomnia so that it affects your daily routine, see your physician for advice.

Don't take sleep-inducing drugs without a doctor's permission since insomnia can sometimes be a symptom of an illness or depression. Remember, even some over-the-counter sleep inducers can be habit-forming or injurious to your health.

"With sleeping pills you can borrow sleep, but somewhere down the line you are going to have to make up for it. We try to avoid sleeping pills in treating people," he added.

But Mitler believes that, for some people, sleeping pills can prove to be a great asset, especially for pilots and other shift workers.

Treatment of insomnia can vary greatly from one person to the next, but the first step is a proper diagnosis. In instances where people are suffering from severe depression, the solution is to try to attack the psychological problem. Physical problems must also be dealt with accordingly so that the bed is not considered a negative place to be.

"If the person is repeatedly experiencing unwanted, unnatural sleep during the day, then I would think that they should see a medical expert," said Mitler.

At St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, patients experiencing severe sleeping disorders are given a polysomnographic test, which monitors the body during sleep. The equipment measures the activity of the brain, heart, lungs and legs.

During a visit with a medical doctor, some patients may be advised of certain "hygiene techniques" they should follow before going to bed each night. Avoiding exercise too close to bedtime is a must, according to Robert Turner, coordinator of the Sleep Disorders Clinic at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

Other tips are to avoid caffeine before going to bed and maintain a regular sleeping schedule if possible.

Community directory under way

By JEAN DAY

Members of Northville Mothers' Club are in the process of compiling a 1987-88 Community Telephone Directory to be distributed in August. Since 1968, production of a local directory has been a biennial project of the club.

Margie Sievert, chairperson of the directory, asks any new residents or those whose names are not included or are incorrect in the Michigan Bell West-Northwest directory to call her at 349-8058. Any businesses not contacted for advertising in the directory also may call her. The directory is scheduled to go to press in June and will be distributed to everyone living in the Northville School District.

Local resident's involved in Project HOPE galas

Northville resident Mary Jane Sturwold, as Project HOPE Women's Division president, has one of the metro area's biggest volunteer jobs.

Following the successful "Puttin' on the Ritz" benefit for 200 civic and social leaders at The Whitney restaurant in Detroit Jan. 26 and a reception for Santa Claus at the Detroit Athletic Club earlier, she and her co-workers now are presenting a "Breath of Spring" designer fashion show-luncheon Thursday at the Northfield Hilton near Somerset Mall.

Designer Adrienne Vittadini will be showing her entire Spring '87 line assisted by Saks Fifth Avenue and Cheryl Hall. Tickets are $25 a person with men guests welcome. The event begins at 11 a.m. with luncheon at noon and the designer show following. Check about tickets by calling 851-4524 or President Sturwold at 349-7190.

Funds are raised by these benefits for Project HOPE, a national and international health education and research center located in Millwood, Va., formerly known by the hospital ship SS Hope.

April date's set for historical society auction

Northville Historical Society President Martha Nield is hoping one success will follow another: the society's Valentine Candlelight Ball Feb. 14 at the Mayflower Meeting House brought out almost 300 supporters and raised about $700 for the Mill Race Historical Village — another good crowd would ensure the success of the annual auction.

It will be held in the New School Church in the village at 8 p.m. April 30 following the society board's monthly meeting. Alice Pooley is chairing the benefit and wants supporters to know that donations do not have to be antiques. Collectables and white elephants are welcome. It is not necessary to be a member of the historical society to attend the auction, she stresses. Anyone interested is invited to come with a donation to be auctioned.

Anyone who wishes to make a donation in advance is asked to call Sally Henrikson, secretary, at 348-1845.

The society is hoping to have a good number of donations and a large crowd of bidders as proceeds will go toward moving the saltbox house on Cady to the Mill Race Village. The house is thought to be an early inn or tavern on what was the main road into town. The property is being purchased by the city for parking expansion, and the society is hoping to move the house to the village.

This auction's a party with wine and cheese

Janet E. Luce, executive director of the Plymouth Community Family YMCA which serves Northville, Plymouth and Canton, reports that the auctions held by the "Y" have become popular social events, combining bidding with a wine and cheese gala. The third annual auction will be held from 7-10 p.m. Saturday, March 28, at the Mayflower Meeting House.

Auction donations that will be up for bids include a White Water rafting trip and other trips, household items, bicycles — with many going at bargain rates. Call the YMCA at 453-2904 for tickets. They also will be sold at the door. The $8 charge includes the wine and cheese.

Can't go to Las Vegas? Join Newcomers

On March 14 Northville Newcomer Couples will be bringing a bit of the southwest up north with a Las Vegas Night at the Northville Recreation Center on West Main.

President Leasa Carney notes that reservations are being taken through Feb. 27 by Margaret Moore at 471-5713. Included in the $20 a couple reservation fee (along with an appetizer to pass) will be 50 chips a person, beer, wine and choice of soft drinks. At the end of the evening, remaining chips may be used to bid on items donated by local merchants.

April wedding date set

The engagement of Terri Elizabeth Tromans of Saginaw to Scott Christopher Spence of Grand Blanc is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Tromans of 420 Morgan Circle.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack E. Spence of Monroe, Mich.

The bride-elect is a 1979 graduate of Northville High School and a 1984 graduate of Ferris State College with a B.S. degree in marketing. She is employed by Lederle Laboratories as a pharmaceutical sales representative.

Her fiancé is a 1980 graduate of Monroe Catholic Central High School and a 1985 graduate of Ferris State College with a B.S. degree in marketing. He is employed by Procter and Gamble as a sales representative.

An April 18 wedding date has been set. The couple plan to make their home in Saginaw.

Pastor focuses on needs of singles

When the Rev. James Russell accepted the call of the congregation of First Presbyterian Church of Northville to become associate pastor last November, he recalls he did so because he felt he could serve a special need.

"I was intrigued with the singles program and felt I could be very effective serving as a pastor, plus I understood the needs of single people. I accepted the calling of God," Jim Russell relates.

When he came, the pastor remembers, the singles program had just started. Called Singles Place, the program is sponsored by the church yet is separate and open to anyone in the community, Russell says, noting that there's "a real need" for a singles ministry.

A Starting Over Single series of eight weekly meetings for divorced persons began Feb. 5 as a special focus of the singles ministry, he points out, with more than 30 attending from the community. Only two participants, he mentions, were from the church congregation.

"People can talk with each other and give input," he says, noting that anyone is welcome to attend the remaining five Thursday night programs in the Starting Over Single series. The meetings are held from 7-9:30 p.m. This Thursday's topic will be "Getting My Ex in Focus" and will deal with feelings that went from love to hate to revenge. How to grow in new areas and modify feelings will be discussed.

The pastor says the series will be repeated in May.

Russell notes he is divorced and the father of two daughters, Becky, 17, a flutist and vice president of her senior class at Portage High School in Ogdun Dunes, Ind., who now is deciding where to attend college, and Laura, a fifth grader and gymnast who enjoys science.

As associate pastor, Russell is assisting Dr. Lawrence

Chamberlain, senior pastor, in the worship service and leads the service when he is out of town.

Russell served as pastor of Ogdun Dunes Presbyterian Church for five years. Prior to that he was associate pastor of Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church in Dearborn for eight years and assistant pastor of Redford Presbyterian Church for three years.

A native of western Pennsylvania, Russell attended the College of Emporia in Kansas and received his MBA degree from the University of Kansas. After working for a year with Proctor and Gamble, he recalls, he made the decision to become a minister. He studied at McCormick and Duquesne theological seminaries.

Russell was installed as associate pastor at the Northville church Feb. 1. In addition to the singles ministry, he is in charge of congregational life, which includes adult education, fellowship activities, outreach to groups that use the church facilities, visitation and evangelism.

While at the Dearborn church, he was a member of Rotary, chairman of the advisory board to the Dearborn Board of Education and on the Harper-Grace Hospital board.

He will be speaking at the 21st annual White Breakfast to be held at the church at 9 a.m. March 1. The special Communion worship service is sponsored by the Women's Association and will begin Lenten activities at the church.

"It's a time when Communion is served, a time when we begin the season of Lent and, through renewal, a time of change," Jim Russell explains.

Lois Curl heads this year's White Breakfast. She may be called for reservations at 349-1667. Deadline is March 1. For further information about specific singles programs, Reverend Russell may be reached at the church, 349-0911.

Time management becomes tool for homemakers

Patricia Materka has learned to put her time to good use. She wasn't always so adept at time management, however.

"I wanted to be mother of the year, wife of the year, the whole bit," Materka said of her younger days. "I now accept the fact that my kids really like Kraft macaroni and cheese. Why fight it?"

Materka is with the University of Michigan's Fitness Research Center. She's also the author of "Time In, Time Out, Time Enough, A Time Management Guide for Women" (Prentice-Hall Inc., 1982).

Materka decided to write the book to help her get organized. Her house wasn't at all ready for the photographer from "House Beautiful," nor were her children always well scrubbed and well behaved.

Her mother was well-organized, but Materka didn't follow in her footsteps.

"I think these things skip generations," she said.

In learning to manage time, it's important to consider what you want more time for, Materka said. It's also important to pinpoint what exactly wastes your time.

Some time wasters — phone calls, meetings or paperwork — come from outside sources. Others, however, are brought on by such internal sources as procrastination, personal disorganization or perfectionism.

Values, such as personal growth, close relationships, health and fitness, or financial security, need to be examined periodically, she said.

It's really useful to review these things now and then. Doing so will help people avoid the 'gerbil in the wheel' syndrome of going and going but getting nowhere.

Setting goals — such as finishing a degree, seeing the pyramids, finishing a marathon or adopting triplets — is essential in learning to manage time wisely, Materka said.

"Put them in writing, give them deadlines, use verbs."

It's also useful to assign a priority value to different items, Materka said.

Dividing the day's or week's activities into three categories of A (must be done today), B (nice to do), or C (can be put off) will help.

"Things usually sort themselves out pretty well," Materka said. It's

'I wanted to be mother of the year, wife of the year, the whole bit . . . I now accept the fact that my kids really like Kraft macaroni and cheese. Why fight it?'

— Patricia Materka
U-M Fitness Research Center

also important to do some work on the B items and not to put off the C items forever.

"Good time management is realizing you can't do it all at least not simultaneously."

An additional category of "can be delegated" can also help busy people, she said. Delegation is helpful both on the job and at home, even young children can learn to help out around the house.

"I think children are our most wasted resource. This is my new idea about having children — little servants," she laughed.

Interruptions can turn the well-planned day into a time management disaster. There are, however, ways to cope.

In dealing with telephone callers, it's important to be businesslike and action-oriented, Materka said. Such an approach will tend to bring a caller to the point more quickly.

Returning telephone calls at one time, rather than scattering them throughout the day, is another good idea, she said. At home, a longer telephone cord can give people the opportunity to do dishes or other work around the house during phone calls.

Those who receive telephone calls at a bad time shouldn't hesitate to say so.

Drop-in visitors can also be a source of aggravation. Body language, such as standing up when the drop-in visitor appears, can help make such interruptions short ones.

Once again, people shouldn't hesitate to tell a drop-in visitor if the visit is an inconvenient one, Materka said.

"What I really should be telling you is don't be a wimp. Be assertive."

Time management also depends on making the best possible use of individual energy levels throughout the day. Some hours are better and more productive than others.

"Those are your golden hours," Materka said. Those hours should be used for the most challenging tasks, telephone callers and drop-in visitors should be discouraged as much as is possible.

Less demanding tasks can be done during low-energy time periods.

"You do not have to be in peak form to guide the vacuum cleaner across the rug," Materka said.

The speaker described the five great time management hang-ups: worry, guilt, indecision, perfectionism and procrastination.

Being decisive involves setting time limits, seeking advice for major decisions and also taking risks. Decisions should be viewed as experiments; mistakes can be learning experiences, Materka said.

In examining worry and guilt, it's helpful to look at what is causing the guilt.

"Having been brought up both a female and a Catholic, I really know about guilt," Materka said.

Creating action plans and considering what would be the worst that could possibly happen will help in dealing with guilt and worry.

Perfectionism is another time management bugaboo. It's not necessary to clean behind the refrigerator when having dinner guests — unless you plan on seating the guests there, Materka said.

The "salami technique" of dividing tasks into their smaller parts is a good one for procrastinators, she said.

"It's hard by the yard, but it's a cinch by the inch," Materka said of getting tasks done.

It's also important to give yourself rewards for jobs well done.

"Give yourself some credit at the end of the day. I believe in chocolate chip cookies, anything like that."

Cooks, crafters, volunteers are sought

Crafters, cooks and those with time for volunteering are being sought by area organizations.

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan is calling for chili cooks to sign up for a chance to participate in the eighth annual Great Chili Cook-Off to be held May 2-3 at the Saline Farm Council Grounds.

The sanctioned cook-off will be Saturday, May 2, under rules established by the International Chili Society, which forbid beans or other fillers. Winner gets a trip for two to compete in the ICS World Championship Cook-Off in California.

The "anything in the pot" Renegade Cook-Off the next day allows cooks to use beans, spaghetti or other fillers. The winners get a guaranteed spot in the next year's sanctioned cook-off. Northville residents have been winners in this event.

Registrations for both events are being accepted through March 14. Call the Kidney Foundation, toll-free at 1-800-482-1455, for a registration form. Funds raised support programs for kidney disease patients in Michigan.

The Commerce Area Museum and Cultural Center committee is sponsoring a Country Folk Art Fair Oct. 3-4 at Richardson Community Center.

Crafters interested in participating are asked to call Lynda, 624-5981, or Cathy, 669-2929, after 5 p.m.

The Farmington Community Center is seeking arts and crafts exhibitors for its arts and crafts show to be held at the center at 24705 Farmington Road, Farmington Hills, on May 9.

Call the center at 477-8404 for more information.

Service With Love, a Catherine McAuley Health Center telephone reassurance program, needs weekend callers. Service With Love provides free daily telephone calls to the homebound, the handicapped, the aged or anyone in need of daily contact.

Training is provided with interviews scheduled the week of March 2.

Those in need are called seven days a week between 9 and 11 a.m. with a different volunteer calling each day. Calls are warm and reassuring to let the person know someone cares and to help relieve the fear of being unable to get help if injured or incapacitated.

"Although the program is designed with senior citizens in mind, it's really for anyone in need of human contact on a daily basis, regardless of age," says Fran Showerman, program coordinator.

Because calls are made from the volunteer's home, this program provides an opportunity for people who themselves are homebound or handicapped to become volunteers, to make a contribution to their community and to feel gratification for their efforts.

To schedule an interview to become a caller, call the health center volunteer services department at 572-4159.

Livonia Historical Society is seeking area residents who would like to contribute toward the move of the historic Alexander Blue House on Middlebelt to Greenmead property on Eight Mile. Volunteers can "lend" their homes to the Livonia Historical Society for its second annual progressive dinner to be held in May.

Alice Gundersen, fundraising chairperson, may be called at 591-9009, or Greenmead may be called at 477-7375. Gundersen reports that more than $80,000 has been raised in cash and in-kind pledges for the move but the actual move is costing much more than originally anticipated.

Program on preschools set

A program designed to introduce parents to the various preschool facilities in the area will be presented at the Novi Public Library tomorrow (Thursday, Feb. 26) from 6:30-8 p.m.

Entitled "Choices," the open-house program is for parents who are considering some type of preschool program for their children.

Twelve area preschool facilities — nursery schools, cooperatives and day care programs — will be represented. Each facility will have a display and a representative on hand to answer questions and discuss fees, philosophies and enhancements of their programs.

Since the open house is designed to provide an opportunity for direct communication between parents of preschoolers and the preschool facility itself, parents are discouraged from bringing their children with them.

More information about the program is available by calling the Novi Public Library at 349-0720.

The Northville Record

Greco dominates field at wrestling district

Northville star Tony Greco (top) goes for a pin in wrestling action earlier this season

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

It's taken a whole season, but Northville wrestler Tony Greco has now reached a position in which all those non-believers are forced to take notice.

No longer will Greco be an unknown quantity. As his victories mounted, the wrestling fraternity of the state preferred to think of Greco as just another decent performer who has compiled an impressive record only because he hasn't taken on enough tough opponents. Those days are over.

The 145-pound senior put on an incredible performance at the Salem District Championships last Saturday (Feb. 21), and quickly altered a lot of preconceived notions. Greco sliced through the competition hard, breaking a sweat, captured first place in his weight classification and advanced to the Regional Championships this weekend.

Behind Greco's outstanding outing, the Mustangs placed in a tie for sixth in the tournament with 49½ points. The state's number one ranked team, Redford Catholic Central, ran away with the team title as expected. The Shamrocks more than doubled all of the remaining 15 teams competing at the district by scoring 231½ points. Host Plymouth Salem was second (107½).

"Catholic Central easily outdistanced everybody else," Mustang Coach Jack Townsley said. "For us, we did about as well as we could. Sixth place isn't the greatest in the world, but it didn't surprise me."

For Greco, the tournament was a chance to show everybody what he can do, and has been doing all season long for Northville. With the four victories in district competition, Greco now sports an unbelievable 33-1 record, one of the best in the state regardless of weight division.

Long he had himself

"When you beat the number two seed 15-0, that proves that you are the class of the tourney."

— Jack Townsley
Mustang Wrestling Coach

all psyched-up and he did what he had to do as efficiently as possible," Townsley explained. "He didn't waste any effort."

"Tony had a phenomenal tournament. He pinned the first three opponents in the first period without any problems."

In the first round, Greco pinned Bill Statetzny of Livonia Franklin in just 58 seconds and rounds two and three were more of the same. South Lyon's Denny Skatzka went down in 1:04 and Livonia Stevenson's Jerod Wilkinson was out in 1:25.

The wins put Greco, the tourney's top seed, in the finals against the number two seed, Chris Rodriguez of Catholic Central. But the showdown turned out to be anticlimatic as Greco dominated the play and won 15-0 on a majority decision.

"Rodriguez was a tough kid," Townsley said. "Anybody who wrestles for Catholic Central has to be good, but when you beat the number two seed 15-0, that proves that you are the class of the tourney."

Despite an outstanding record of success, Greco has been virtually ignored all season long when it came to individual rankings in the 145-pound division. Now, with a more noticeable show of talent, Greco should start to receive more attention. If not, he has a good chance to grab the state title away from some unsuspecting (and unaware) challenger.

"I don't think there is any question that Tony hasn't been very publicized," Townsley agreed. "Nobody sees him wrestle much because he usually pins everybody in the first period. Nobody sees much of him, except when he goes up to accept his first place medals and trophies week after week."

Almost lost in the shuffle of Greco's division championship was an outstanding effort by senior Paul Maliszewski, who placed third in the tough 126-pound weight classification. With Salem's Dennis Dameron and Catholic Central's Matt Helm (among others) in the same division, Maliszewski's chance to qualify for the regionals with a top four finish wasn't guaranteed.

In round one, Maliszewski defeated Paul Geidest of Stevenson 10-1 and then pinned Novi's Dave Brogan in 1:48 before meeting up with Helm. In a tough third round match, Helm pulled out a 9-2 decision that was actually closer than the score indicates.

The loss dropped Maliszewski into the consolation round where he beat Farmington's Todd Jenkins 7-1 to grab third place honors and a trip to the regionals along with Greco.

There were two very good wrestlers seeded ahead of Paul, but he always gives a good effort," Townsley said. "He's a fine wrestler."

The Regionals will be held this Saturday (Feb. 28) at Catholic Central High in Redford. Eight wrestlers in each weight division will be battling.

Mustangs endure frustrating week

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Disappointing, discouraging, frustrating — you name it, the Northville cagers felt it after last week's double loss to Farmington and Plymouth Canton.

The Mustangs (8-10, 6-10 in WLAA) could have moved as high as second place in their division with a pair of wins last week, but instead, the two losses dropped the team into a fourth place tie with Walled Lake Western heading into the cross-over playoff match-up, tentatively scheduled for this Friday (Feb. 27).

The 69-48 defeat at Canton last Friday wasn't totally unexpected. After all, the Chiefs wrapped up the Western Division title a few games earlier and were out to avenge an earlier loss at Northville.

But the 46-44 flasco against lowly Farmington was the crusher. The Mustangs came out flat in this game, expecting to run over their 1-15 visitors without much effort. After falling behind early, Northville began to take control in the second half but surrendered a seven-point lead in the game's final three minutes, and lost the game on a jump shot by Steve Howell with 14 seconds remaining.

"We came out as flat as we could be, against Farmington," Mustang Coach Omar Harrison said. "We didn't move on offense or defense and everything just snowballed."

In the first quarter, Northville missed free throws and easy shots just rolled out. After the first eight minutes, the Mustangs trailed 14-6.

"I could tell it was going to be a long night," Harrison said. "All that showed was a lack of concentration on our part."

The team did wake up and play better in the second quarter, cutting the lead to 19-18 at halftime, and the score remained close after three quarters of play.

In the fourth, Northville started to play. Guard Steve Grant poured in 10 points in the final eight minutes, and the Mustangs pulled out to a seven-point lead.

"We woke up," Harrison said. "We came to life and decided to play a little bit."

But in the final three minutes, nothing went right. Several crucial turnovers by Northville enabled the Falcons to narrow the gap, and it was Howell and Ron Jones on the scoring end down the stretch. After Howell's shot with 14 seconds left, the Mustangs failed to connect on a potential game-winner, ended up fouling a Farmington player, and the final point of the contest was scored at the free throw line.

"I'm not making excuses for our team, but Farmington is playing well now," Harrison said. "If you have a bad game and they have a good one, they can beat you."

Grant scored a game-high 16 and Dave McCreedie added 12, but it wasn't a good night statistically either.

"Our stats were terrible," Harrison said. "The only stat that was worth anything was our free throw shooting (16-of-23)."

The Canton game didn't become a blow-out until late in the contest. The Chiefs steadily outscored the Mustangs in each quarter — it was just a matter of time.

"It was a very disappointing week to be truthful," Harrison said. "That Farmington game screwed everything up for us. It didn't seem like we had anything to play for on Friday."

Northville scored 12 points in each quarter, but Canton hit for at least 14 in each. The gap was eight at halftime and 14 after three quarters, but it wasn't until early in the fourth that the Chiefs put it away.

"We were within six to eight points in the third and then Brad Karey came off their bench and scored six baskets," Harrison said. "That put the dagger through our heart. (Canton's) quickness was a factor and their pressure defense bothered us much more at their place than it did when we played them at home."

Grant again led the attack with 14 points, but he was the only Mustang player to score in double figures. McCreedie added eight but was held scoreless in the first half. Tony Briningstool chipped in with 10 rebounds.

"We had high hopes of challenging for second place, and if we would have won those two games, it would have happened," Harrison explained. "We needed (Livonia) Churchill and (Farmington) Harrison to lose on Friday and they did. Unfortunately, we didn't do our part."

"Everything fell into place except we didn't win."

Northville was awarded fourth place in the Western Division over Walled Lake Western by virtue of a better divisional record. At press time, it appears the Mustangs will travel to Livonia Stevenson for the cross-over playoff game. Stevenson placed fourth in the Lakes Division.

Gymnasts top 122 mark versus Salem

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Northville gymnasts are now two-thirds of the way toward reaching their goal of qualifying for regional competition.

The team's win-loss record isn't something to write home about, but the Mustangs' main goal all along has been to make it to the regionals. If the team can put together just one more performance like it did against Plymouth Salem on Feb. 16, that goal will become a reality.

Salem came away with a 134.35-122.10 road victory, as expected, but it was Northville's high score that caused most of the excitement. The 122 point score is yet another season-high for the Mustangs and the most points the team has scored under Coach Michelle Charniga since she began coaching the squad three years ago. The regional qualifying score is 115, but, in order to make it, a team must top that mark three times during the season. So far, Northville's done it twice.

"Now that we've done it twice, we know that the first time (a 120 score against Westland John Glenn on Feb. 9) wasn't a fluke," Charniga said. "Everybody hit this meet for us. The judging was very fair, and we did very well."

The meet was originally slated as a tri-meet, with Berkley joining in, but it was later discovered that certain rules prevented it from happening.

"We've never scheduled a tri-meet so we didn't find out until after we organized it that it was against the rules," Charniga pointed out. "Salem and Northville are in the same league, but Berkley isn't. You have to have all three teams from the same league or all three from different leagues."

Despite being outscored in all four events by the Rocks, the Mustangs set new season-high totals in two of the four. Salem took an early 33.60-31.40 lead in the vault, but the 31.40 was Northville's highest of the year.

Sophomore Wendy Beach registered her personal best score of 8.45 in vault to lead the Mustangs, but only placed fourth overall. Yvonne Beebe was fifth with a fine 7.85 score while Shelly Steinhebel notched her personal best with a 7.6.

Salem's top four performers were all in the eights in the balance beam, thus preventing the home team from gaining any ground there. Northville was again led by Beach's 8.55 (third

Canton used depth to dunk Northville

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

It wasn't an ideal way to end the regular season, but Plymouth Canton's depth has caused quite a few problems for other swim teams as well.

The Chiefs dunked the Mustangs tankers 64-19 last Friday (Feb. 19) by taking 10 or 11 first place finishes and a majority of the seconds and thirds also. The loss leaves Northville with a 2.10 overall mark (2.7 in the WLAA) heading into the Western Lakes Championships which get under way today (Feb. 25) and continue through Friday at Plymouth Salem High School.

We had six more personal best times on the evening, but Canton was much deeper than we are," Mustang Coach Terry Wayne said. "They have 43 swimmers on the team and we have 23."

Canton loaded with a nice combination of quality and numbers in the freestyle events, proved the point early in the meet. The Chiefs went 1:31.3 and 1:42 in the early freestyle events, and that established an early lead.

Northville's 200-yard medley relay squad featuring John Warren, Andy Wayne, Andy Viskantis and John Buckland, placed second (1:53.22) and Jim Thompson was the runner up in the 200 freestyle race (personal best 2:00.05).

Paul Stocklin's career best 2:16.13 in the 200 IM was good for first place, and was the only thing separating Canton from a sweep of all firsts in the 50 freestyle and diving, the best the Mustangs could come up with was a pair of thirds. Mickey Moore registered a 24.87 in the 50 and Rob Devyak notched 165.50 points in diving.

Other seconds by Northville swimmers included Viskantis in the 100 butterfly (1:00.45) and Warren's 1:09.59 in the 100 breaststroke. Craig Smith (56.36) in the 100 freestyle, Thompson (5:35.52), Stocklin (1:03.98) in the 100 backstroke were all third place finishers. The 400 freestyle relay team of Moore, Thompson, Smith and Stocklin managed a third as well (3:55.47).

"Canton is loaded with freestylers and in those events, they skunked us," Wayne admitted.

Earlier in the week, the entire Northville team along with a dozen eighth grade swimmers from Meigs Mill got together for the Black and Orange Intrasquad Meet. It was a very even competition, with the Orange squad just nipping the Black, 43-42.

"We enjoyed it because it gave us a chance for some good, healthy competition among the teams and gave us a chance to see the talent that will be coming up from the junior high level for next season," Wayne said.

Warren, Rick Abramovich, Smith and Stocklin gave the Black squad an early lead by winning the 200 medley relay in a time of 1:56.30. But Jim Thompson and eighth grader Eric Newton, both of the orange team, responded with two wins in the 200 freestyle (2:06.72) and 200 IM

Northville's Craig Smith placed second against Canton in the 100-yard freestyle race

Record/CHRIS BOYD

2:19.85 respectively.

After Andy Wayne's win in the 50 freestyle (25.49) for the Orange team, Devyak took a first in diving and Viskantis won the 100 butterfly (1:05.05) to put the Black back in contention, but then the Orange came up with three wins in the next three events to widen the gap again. Thompson was first in the 100 freestyle (53.65), Jason Hill won the 500 freestyle (5:35.37) and Newton notched his second victory of the day, with a 1:03.85 in the 100 backstroke.

The Black team placed first in the final two events, but it turned out to be just one point shy. Abramovich won the 100 breaststroke (1:16.09) and the team of Stocklin, Moore, Warren and Jeff Higgins finished first (3:43.43) in the 400 freestyle relay. With no individuals within striking distance of state qualifying cut-offs, the WLAA meet will most likely be the team's final action of the season.

"We're ready for the league meet because we know it will be the last of the year, and we want to go out on a high note," Wayne said. "We're going to do the best we can with what we have and hopefully we come out of it in the top six or so."

Gymnasts top 122 mark

overall) as the team scored 30.00 points — another high mark for the season. Theresa Gatti was second on the team with a 7.45 score and Beebe was third (7.15).

The Mustangs showed continued improvement in the uneven parallel bars, scoring 29.15, but Salem increased the lead by another three points. Beach was third overall with a 7.75, Lee LaChance (7.25) and Beebe (7.15) followed.

Northville wrapped up the night with a fine all-around team performance in the floor exercise. Beebe's 7.9 was only third best on the team, but Charniga was especially pleased with the score because it was her first attempt in the event this season.

"Yvonne's had a bad lung cold and that really slowed her down," she said. "It prevented her from competing in the floor exercise for the first month and a half of the season. Now, her stamina is picking up, and she's thinking more positive."

"Yvonne had a good night against Salem. All her scores are improving — she was in the sevens on everything."

Beach took top team honors again in the floor with an 8.7 score (third overall) and LaChance registered her personal best score (7.95). On the day, Beach recorded her best all-around score of the season with a 33.45 — just behind Salem's Becky Talbot (34.60).

The Mustangs (1-7 overall) will be looking for another win, and that third qualifying score against Walled Lake Central on Feb. 23 (after Record deadline).

Regular season ends for Mustang spikers

Call them unlucky, call them slumping but don't call the Northville volleyballers quitters.

Coach Steve McDonald admits his squad may not be the most talented around, and he realizes the team has a nasty habit of losing the close ones, especially in the deciding third games — but he is convinced it isn't because of a lack of effort.

"These girls never give up," he said. "And I mean never. We've had our problems winning lately, but we haven't quit."

In a busy six-day span last week, the Mustangs (5-9 overall, 4-9 in the WLAA) competed in three dual meets (one win) and the Western Lakes League Championships (one win in four tries).

On Feb. 16, Northville was defeated by Livonia Franklin in a very strange three-game match. After falling 16-14 in a wild first game, the Patriots trounced the Mustangs 15-0 in game two and then won the deciding game 15-12.

"We lost another close third game," McDonald said. "I guess that's been the story of the year for us. It's usually the little things that get us in trouble. We just haven't been able to put teams away."

Jeanine LaPrad had a fine day by successfully returning 13 of 19 serves, but as a team, serve reception was the big problem for Northville, especially in the disastrous second game. Katie Brugman also had a consistent day at the net, with nine hits and two kills.

On Feb. 18, The Mustangs broke a four-game winless streak with a 15-2, 16-14 victory over a struggling Plymouth Canton team. Brugman was again a consistent threat with 12 hits and four kills while Jill Gallagher added eight hits and two kills.

"Our passing was O.K. but not as good as I'd like," McDonald said. "In that second game, we missed 11 serves and that's what kept (Canton) in it."

The following day, Northville traveled to Churchill for a make-up match. It was the Chargers' final home contest and they pinned the Mustangs with a 15-0, 18-16 defeat. Chris Stiles paced the offensive attack with 12 hits and three kills.

"They came out and showed us who's boss," McDonald said. "In the first game, we didn't pass well, and if you free ball it over too much against a good team, you're going to ultimately lose."

The spikers were then placed in a very tough pool at the WLAA meet on Saturday at Walled Lake Central and the team's 1-3 record on the day didn't surprise many.

"I thought maybe we could get a split on the day, but we were in a very difficult pool," McDonald pointed out. "When we passed well and attacked offensively, we did well. That's been the key for us all year. When we do it, we can stay in there with anybody."

The opening round of pool play was the most satisfying of the day for Northville because the team downed the same Farmington Harrison squad that narrowly beat the Mustangs in two previous meetings. The score was 15-12, 15-7.

"We came close to beating them twice this season but couldn't do it, so it was good to finally beat them," McDonald said.

In the second round, Walled Lake Western showed why they are ranked among the best teams in the state with a convincing 15-0, 15-4 triumph over undermanned Northville. Westland John Glenn (15-13, 15-7) and Walled Lake Central (15-6, 15-6) then completed the day with routine wins over the Mustangs.

"We didn't back down to anybody, but we just don't have the firepower a lot of these teams do," McDonald said.

Anabolic steroids: Trouble for athletes

In this era when we are so concerned about the high level of drug usage, a new problem is becoming fairly widespread. This is the use of anabolic steroids in both high school and college.

Anabolic steroids are a class of drugs derived from the male hormone, testosterone. They are used by the medical profession to treat a variety of sexually related problems. However, they have another property that is widely sought after by athletes. They can make the athlete bigger and stronger by increasing muscle mass, when combined with a weight lifting program.

They are seen as a way for the undersized athlete to get big enough to compete, and for the bigger athlete to become stronger than his opponent. Without considering the moral right or wrong of using drugs to accomplish this, the results would be fine except for one problem: steroids are one of the most dangerous groups of drugs available, and the unfortunate or even fatal side effects far outweigh any benefit that can be derived.

For many years the medical profession said that steroids do not increase size or strength. This is true if the dosages are prescribed for treating illness. But the athlete often takes many times the recommended dose and these large amounts do have the desired effect. Again, the problem lies in the fact that the higher the dose, the more dangerous the drug.

Anabolic steroids have a variety of side effects. Probably the most common is the sudden outbreak of severe acne over the upper body. There is often a personality change with marked increase in aggressive behavior due to the excess male hormone. People taking steroids often become argumentative and become involved in fights with very little provocation.

One of the more serious side effects is the effect on the male reproductive organ. Because there is a high level of circulating testosterone, the testicles no longer need to manufacture this, and they then begin to atrophy. The resultant loss on sperm production may lead to both impotence and sterility. Luckily, if the steroid use is not too prolonged, this is usually reversible.

In addition, there are changes in the structure and function in both the kidney and liver. These can cause chronic health problems in later life.

The problem is compounded by the fact that there is no cheap screening method to spot usage. Tests cost about $200 and are not terribly accurate.

and in the case of the liver there is a marked increase in primary cancer in people who are using steroids. A year ago, a 23-year old weight lifter from Connecticut died from primary liver cancer following high dosage steroid use.

Much of the abusers are in the foot ball, field events in track, weight lifting and body building. In all of these, size and strength are important.

Recently, there has been a change in the concept with female body builders. Now the female muscular body is considered the most successful. The problem here is that women cannot achieve muscle growth and definition in the upper body with normal female hormone levels. They can achieve strength with weights training but cannot bulk unless they overcome the female hormone with male hormones.

Female body builders who take steroids not only experience kidney and liver changes like a male, they also lose breast tissue, the voice deepens, they may grow facial hair and they have structural changes in the female reproductive organs. Unlike the male, however, these changes are not reversible.

There is a large black market for steroids, and they are readily available at all levels. The American College of Sports Medicine and the National Athletic Trainers' Association all have taken stands against steroids, but this hasn't been enough of a deterrent so far. The problem is compounded by the fact that there is no cheap screening method to spot usage. Tests cost about $200 and are not terribly accurate.

Education appears to be the answer and yet, in a study group of high school students, after all the above was explained, 70-percent stated they would still use the drugs because they perceived it as the only way to achieve their goals in sports.

Greco, Maliszewski pace grapplers at Salem

ing it out in an effort to place in the top four, thus qualifying for the state championships in March. Townsley is cautiously optimistic that both his qualifiers can make it.

"Actually, I think both of them have a good chance to go to the states, especially Greco," he declared. "Tony's got an excellent chance and Maliszewski has a good chance too."

As for the rest of the Mustang team at the districts, only three others managed to even win in the opening round. Freshman Brad Maliszewski won 10-0 in the first round but then lost 8-6 to the tournament's second seed at 98, Jim Raglow of Catholic Central. Another freshman, Scott Hostman, beat Oak Park's Stiles Simmons in the first round at 105 by a score of 13-4 before bowing out in the next round. The only other Northville wrestler to win a first round match was Keith Graham at 112.

"Everytime you win a match, you get some points, but the bulk of ours came from Greco and Maliszewski," Townsley said. "There is always a chance somebody like Graham could slid through and make the top four, but the two we were certain had a chance made it, and I was glad to see that."

"We're are planning to get together with Novi and North Farmington and put all the kids who qualified together and have a work out," Townsley said.
