Young heart patient faces third surgery

By BOB NEEDHAM

Imagine this: You've had closed heart surgery twice, once to install a Waterston shunt, and again for a Brock procedure. You've been in the hospital a total of 15 times, due to your asthma and to a wound infection developed after your first surgery. Next month, you're scheduled for open heart surgery, possibly for a procedure which could permanently correct your condition. And you just celebrated your second birthday.

That's the situation facing Ashley Brazen, a Northville girl who suffers from a rare condition called hypoplastic right heart syndrome, which means her right ventricle — one of the four chambers in the heart — is smaller than it should be.

Ashley was born June 1, 1985. Cindi Brazen, Ashley's mother, said a heart murmur was detected about two hours after Ashley was born. Doctors put Ashley through some tests, and "they discovered it was something a little bit more serious than a heart murmur," Cindi said.

Diane Podlecki is a pediatric cardiology/cardiovascular clinical nurse specialist at Children's Hospital of Michigan in Detroit, where Ashley and her family have spent a lot of time over the past two years.

She explained that hypoplastic right heart syndrome is a very rare congenital condition where the right ventricle is very small and usually very thick-walled. The tricuspid valve is often smaller than normal as well, she said.

The heart tries to overcome the defect by contracting very quickly, Podlecki said.

Three days after she was born, Ashley had her first surgery: the creation of a Waterston shunt, a bypass which connects the right pulmonary artery to the aorta.

A week later, her mother said, Ashley developed a wound infection, which she overcame.

Three months after that she returned to the hospital for another surgery called a Brock procedure. She was scheduled for a catheterization which had to be delayed because of her asthma. Cindi said, but was finally done in February.

"At that point we were kind of discouraged," she said.

A few weeks ago, the Brazenes heard that Ashley might be a good candidate for a new surgical procedure which could permanently correct her condition.

However, Cindi Brazen explained that until the operation is started they will not know if the surgeon will be able to do the preferred procedure or an alternative surgery. The six-hour procedure is scheduled for Aug. 25 at Children's Hospital.

After the new procedure, Ashley's heart "will start pumping on its own. It is pumping now, but it needs to be bigger to handle the blood flow of her whole body," her mother said. "If everything goes well, it will be her final surgery."

The alternative surgery, called a Fontan pro-

City to place Griswold site on the market

By BOB NEEDHAM

The land where a 5-story bed and breakfast establishment was once planned will soon go back on the market, the Northville City Council decided Monday night.

The issue came before the council in the form of a letter stating the interest of the Community Federal Credit Union in purchasing the land as a new location. In the letter, Community Federal general manager James Cantrell states that the union's present space at 101 North Center could be used for other retail use.

The land at Main and Griswold went up for sale by the city last February, and the Northville Community Investment Company planned to buy the land for a 32-room, 5-story bed-and-breakfast. However, the city's offer expired before the deal was closed. City Manager Steven Walters explained at the council meeting.

Council member Paul Folino said, "I certainly have no qualms about putting (the land) back on the market."

On a 4-0 vote, the council agreed to direct Walters to prepare paperwork for consideration with the idea of eventually offering the site up for bids.

Drive supports law for late school start

By BOB NEEDHAM

The organizers of a Michigan "Extend Summer" campaign have switched gears this year, beginning a petition drive which could end with a state law requiring that school districts in the state begin their calendars after Labor Day.

While estimates say that 52 percent of Michigan school students — including those in Northville — already begin classes after Labor Day, other districts — such as Novi — start school the week before. This year, Northville students are scheduled to return to class Tuesday, Sept. 8, while Novi students will start school Tuesday, Sept. 1, with a day off for the holiday.

But the "Extend Summer" campaign organizers — mostly the Say Yes to Michigan Tourism Committee, and local and state chambers of commerce — hope to amend the Michigan public school code to require a post-Labor Day start for the school year.

Bills proposing the change have died in more than one session of the state legislature, so this year the organizers began a petition drive. If they collect 240,000 signatures, the issue would come before the state

City voters may 'clean up' charter

Seven amendments to the Northville City Charter — all described as housekeeping matters to bring the city into line with state law — will be on the election ballot this fall.

The City Council approved the amendments Monday night, an action which places them on the ballot for voter consideration. The election is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 3.

"They're primarily technical things to make us not in conflict with state law," City Manager Steven Walters told the council.

When voters go to the polls in November, the ballot will include the entire text of the section proposed for change; the entire text of the proposed change; and a formal purpose for the change. In brief, the charter amendments would:

- Change the official city election date from the first Monday in April of odd-numbered years to the Tuesday after the first Monday in November of odd-numbered years. This election date is required by state election law.

- Remove all references in the charter to justices of the peace or Justice of the Peace Courts. These positions no longer exist, having been abolished by state law.

- Separate the election of District Court judges from the process used to elect other officers. Where nominating petitions for most offices are due between Sept. 1 and Oct. 1, District Court judge petitions would be due by the day of the county or state primary before a general election. This is the system described in the state election law.

- Replace the city election "board of canvassers" — made up of the city clerk and members of City Council — with a "board of city election commissioners," made up of the city clerk, city attorney and city assessor. Northville has no full-time city-employed assessor, but only two members of the board are required to conduct business. The election commissioner structure would bring the city into compliance with state election law.

- Replace references in the charter to county "boards of supervisors" with references to county "boards of commissioners." Both Wayne and Oakland counties now operate with boards or commissioners.

- Require public posting of special City Council meetings at least 18 hours before the meeting, and add references to the state Open Meetings Act. The act requires the public notice of special council meetings.

- Change the restrictions on the city's ability to enter into contracts to buy by installment. A five-year maximum contract would be replaced with a maximum of 15 years or the useful life of the property. An annual $10,000 limitation on total installment contract payments would be replaced with a limit of 1.25 percent of the total assessment of all the real and personal property in the city. The limitations would not apply to contracts specially sanctioned by state law.

YCUA asks decision delay

By ANITA CRONE

At the request of the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority, a request for 50 percent expansion of the YCUA plant was withdrawn from the July 16 agenda of the Water Resources Commission meeting.

Eldon Ahles, YCUA director, said he was not sure when the commission would reconsider the YCUA request to double its capacity to include sewerage from Northville, Plymouth and Canton townships.

YCUA had requested approval for the expansion in June; however, the commission turned down a (Department of Natural Resources) staff recommendation for approval, instead requesting additional information be provided.

While that information was ready, Ahles said, YCUA opted to withdraw its request for July consideration and instead will present its case in August or September.

"This is just too important a decision to rush into approval until we have all the information staff and the commission could request," said Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss, who attended the Water Resources Commission meeting in a private capacity.

Local balloon pops in on Ohio gov

By ANITA CRONE

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Chris Battley locates the spot in Ohio where his balloon landed

Eight-year-old Chris Battley isn't about to pop Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste's balloon when the two meet Saturday, even though it is a balloon that is bringing the two together.

Battley with his schoolmates at Northville's Silver Springs Elementary School launched a balloon to celebrate the end of the school year. Last week he got a call from Celeste's office, informing the youngster his balloon was found at the governor's Kelleys Island summer home.

Since Celeste plans to be in Michigan Saturday during the annual governors' meeting at Traverse City, Celeste offered to schedule a meeting with the third grader.

"It's fine with me," said Chris. "I'm going to say 'Hi, Gov and ask him how old he is.'"

Chris says he is a little excited about meeting the governor, but would much rather meet the police chief. After all, Chris wants to be a police officer when he grows up.

As for the flight of his balloon, Chris says he was somewhat surprised by the distance it traveled.

"I thought it would end up in Michigan, maybe in Novi," he said. It wasn't until Monday that he found Kelleys Island on a map (the island is in Lake Erie) and realized that his balloon had crossed the lake.

Chris, who describes himself as "an only child, except for my cat, Jane," says he thinks it's fine to meet the governor, as long as he's rich.

"Governors," he explains seriously, "live on islands. I think Gov Celeste found my balloon while he was cutting his grass."

Saturday, if his family can find a place to stay, Chris will find out in person exactly what governors do

MAJOR SHERRIE BALKO

Balko earns promotion to major

Sherrie L. Balko, 32, was promoted to the rank of major in the United States Army April 1. A graduate of Northville High School, Major Balko is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Balko of Northville.

Immediately following the ceremony she relinquished her command of the U.S. Army Recruiting Company, Mt. Clemens at Selfridge Air National Guard Base, where she has been stationed for the past 2½ years.

During the official proceedings she was recognized for exceptional service as the company commander and was presented with the Meritorious Service Medal.

Aug. 2 she will be reporting to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., to attend the Army's Command and General Staff College for one year. She has been selected to attend the college along with 950 other officers, including 100 International Officers.

The Army explains that the college "develops leadership ability and enables participants to train and fight in units on the battlefields of tomorrow."

Circus to pitch its tent in Downs parking area

The circus is coming to town. A touring circus company plans to put on a three-ring circus show in the parking lot of the Northville Downs racetrack next month, and the City Council approved the idea Monday night.

The show, a traditional circus under a "big top" tent, is scheduled for 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 8. A letter from the circus company, Allan C. Hill Entertainment, states that the circus "is not a carnival" and "will provide clean wholesome entertainment to families in the community."

Under the city's zoning ordinance, circuses, carnivals and other short-term events are allowed to be presented on racetrack land.

The City Council voted unanimously to allow the circus show, with details to be worked out between the company and the city administration.

"I think that's the type of activity we wanted to use the Downs for," Mayor Paul Vernon said. "I think we intended to encourage these kinds of uses and not restrict them."

Council member John Buckland agreed, "I certainly see no reason not to have it. It's a one-day thing, and it's good wholesome entertainment."

As part of the agreement between the company and the city, the company will buy a $1 million certificate of liability insurance with the city and the track as co-insured parties.

NEWS BRIEFS

STOP AND SMELL THE FLOWERS — A proposal to convert a restaurant building on the southeast corner of Center and Dunlap to a nursery has collected a couple of its necessary approvals from the City of Northville.

Sparr's Nursery and Greenhouse has applied to convert the building and add a greenhouse area. The proposal passed the city's Planning Commission, contingent on some minor changes. The plan received conceptual approval from the Historic District Commission also, but must come back before the commission for details of signs, lighting and colors. A plan to buy parking spaces from the city was OK'd by the city council Monday night.

STILL PLANNING — Officials from Hampton Inns confirmed Monday they still intend to build a hotel on Haggerty Road near Eight Mile.

Coleman said the current timetable calls for construction of the motel to begin in late summer and to be completed by mid summer in 1988.

"We are in the process of working to recreate a wetland at another site," Coleman said, noting that the current site for the hotel contains a protected wetland.

PLAGENS CONDITIONALLY OK'D — A plan for the Plagens retail development at Hutton and Main in downtown Northville was approved in concept by the city's Historic District Commission Monday, July 13.

The plan will have to come before the commission again with more architectural details.

BOARD OFFICERS — Mary Breen of Plymouth has been elected chairperson of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees for 1987-1989. Laura Toy was elected vice-chairperson; Michael Burley was chosen treasurer and Rosina Raymond, secretary.

Trustees are Harry Greenleaf; Wendell Smith and Jeanne Stempin.

GET 'EM QUICK — People who wanted to check out children's library books from the Northville Public Library had a rude awakening last week. There weren't any picture books or easy readers on the shelves. Library Director Patricia Orr said the books were all checked out and the dearth lasted for about two days.

ON TV — Northville Record Staff Writer Anita Crone is one of two reporters joining with County Commissioner Susan J. Heintz, R-Northville, every two weeks for "County Impact", a public-affairs television show broadcast Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and Mondays at 5 p.m. on Omnivision.

Crone and Observer and Eccentric reporter Tim Richards discuss state, county and local issues.

Director hopes for library building

"We have outgrown our present building and there is a definite need now for a new building ... Given the needs, we are not asking for approval for new construction today, but we want the officials to be aware of the necessity when they make their budgets."

— Patricia Orr

today, but we want the officials to be aware of the necessity when they make their budgets," Orr said.

The library is funded under a joint services agreement between the township and the city, with each governmental unit contributing funds based on its population.

The city adopted its 1988 fiscal budget in June and the township is currently in the process of making its financial plans for a September adoption.

Orr said the 1976 library plans call for construction of a two-story building on the property behind the recreation center on Main Street. The City Hall space in which the library currently is located would be used by the police department.

Orr said the library commission had met with the architect and discovered that it would be possible to use the original plans as a basis for any new design, of course at a higher cost.

She noted it would cost $1.1 million to construct the building using the current plans. "But with the expansion, I'm not sure exactly how much it would cost. It would require bonding, though."

Orr said she is optimistic the funding request will go before the voters by November 1988.

"I think it's definitely out of the question for this year. But it is very necessary in the future," she said.

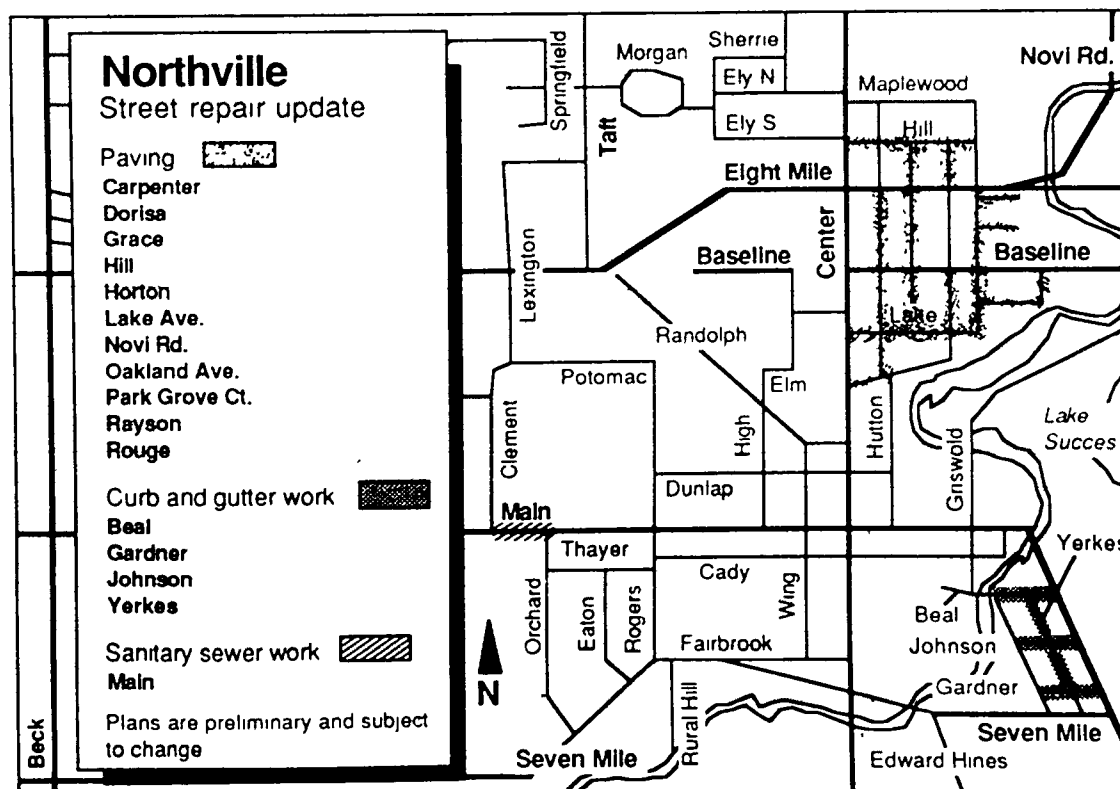

Map shows street repair

Beginning this week, the Northville Record will publish a map showing where street repairs are scheduled in the City of Northville during the upcoming week.

The shaded streets show where work is expected next week, although the plans are only preliminary and may change somewhat.

Generally, the northeast part of the city is planned to be repaired first, with construction gradually moving to the west and south. The program is expected to continue into next spring.

Most of the construction is funded by a special 2-mill property tax dedicated to street repair which city voters approved last year. Other construction includes sanitary sewer work on Main Street.

Police Blotters

Sink stolen from unoccupied city home

Everything but the kitchen sink was left behind when someone broke into a newly-constructed condominium off East Street last week and made off with the sink itself. According to a police report, sometime the night of Monday, July 13, or the morning of Tuesday, July 14, a double sink with faucet and garbage disposal was stolen from the unoccupied condo. The sink is estimated to be worth $800.

MISTER BADWRENCH?: Tools worth $350 were reported stolen from a pickup truck parked in the city last Friday. A red Sears flip-top toolbox was taken from the bed of a pickup truck parked on Griswold. Items in the toolbox included socket wrench, screwdrivers, a stop watch, and motorcycle parts.

CRUELTY TO FORKLIFTS: City police reported vandalism to a forklift at a construction site off Taft Road resulting in about $250 in damage. Between 6 p.m. Sunday night and 7 a.m. Monday morning, levers and pedals on a Diesel forklift were bent back. A plywood window was also knocked out of place at the site.

WELL-DRESSED THIEF: An Innsbrook Apartment resident told township police someone took clothing worth $205 from an apartment washing machine.

The tenant said she left her clothes in the machine and left the laundry area, and, when she sorted her cleaned and dried clothes, discovered that some of the items were missing, including shirts and a pair of shorts. Police have no suspects.

LOCKED OUT: An attempted breaking and entering July 19 at a garage on Appleby was thwarted by the lock on the door.

A homeowner told police he noticed glass in his garage door broken, but apparently no one was able to enter the garage because the lock held.

NO SALE: A 24-year-old Springfield, Mo. man was held overnight in the Northville Township jail after township police discovered him soliciting without a permit July 17.

According to the police report, the man was going house to house selling cleaners. He had no permit.

Officers arrested the man and held him until the next day, when 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald suggested he be released on $500 personal bond. An appearance notice was given to the man to show up in the court on Aug. 20.

EXPENSIVE BREAK: A Walled Lake man told township officers his golf clubs, a stereo and tapes, and other personal belongings were taken from his unlocked Jeep July 16, after he went for refreshments following a round of golf at the Oasis Golf Center. Police, who are continuing to investigate the report, were hampered since the man left his car unlocked.

QUICK STOP: A 70-year-old Northville Township man was issued a citation for failing to stop at a safe distance July 15, when he caused a five-car accident on Seven Mile near Northville Road.

According to officers, the man did not realize there were four cars stopped for a traffic light and hit the car in front of him, which plowed into the car in front of it, which hit the car in front of it which hit the car stopped for the light.

Two of the vehicles were towed to Phil's and the other three were driven away by the drivers. There were no injuries in the incident.

YOUTH CHARGED: A 17-year-old Taylor youth has been charged with carrying a concealed weapon after township officers discovered him and four others leaving the site of the former Wayne County Child Development Center.

When the officers approached the group, they noticed the man drop an item, which turned out to be a switchblade knife, on the ground.

All of the men were taken to the township police department, asked to provide identification and released to their parents or on their own recognizance.

Only the youth carrying the knife was charged, and he is scheduled to appear in 35th District Court on Aug. 20.

City wins AAA citation for safety to pedestrians

For lasting 14 years without a pedestrian death — and still going strong — the City of Northville has been recognized by the American Automobile Association (AAA) with its third straight Pedestrian Safety Citation.

Northville has gone the longest time of any city in the state with 5,000 population without a pedestrian death, a AAA spokesperson said. Northville competed against 799 other cities in Michigan in the program, for which the awards were announced last Thursday, July 16.

Northville was also cited in 1986, 1985, 1979, and 1978. The awards, called the Annual Pedestrian Protection Program, have been in existence since 1939.

According to AAA, the average rate of pedestrian deaths in the state is one death per 50,000 population.

Thirty-four Michigan cities won awards in this year's program. Grosse Pointe Woods received the association's Grand Award. Named the safest city in the nation under 50,000 population, Grosse Pointe Woods has not had a pedestrian death for 29 years, AAA said.

Surplus less than expected

The fiscal year for the City of Northville ended with a surplus of funds, but one which was a few thousand dollars less than expected.

City Manager Steven Walters delivered the year-end report on city finances to the City Council Monday night, noting a balance of $82,738 left in the city's accounts. The city fiscal year ended June 30.

The year-end fund balance was earlier projected to be $86,950, a difference of $4,212 from the unaudited final figures. Walters said some higher-than-expected expenses near the end of the year caused the difference in the fund balance. The year-end figures are still subject to audit.

The expected year-end balance was included when the council adopted the budget for the 1987-88 fiscal year. The $4,212 difference between expected and actual year-end balance will require an amendment to the current fiscal year budget. Walters said the amendment would probably come before the council some time in September.

"Essentially it was sort of a break-even year," Walters concluded.

Council continues Oakland CDBG program

The City of Northville unanimously agreed Monday night to continue participation in Oakland County's Community Development Block Grant Program, although city officials do not expect a tremendous advantage from the plan.

The CDBG program is a federal grant to benefit low- or middle-income areas of communities, to make community improvements which would not otherwise be funded, or to address slum or blight conditions. In the past, Northville has used grant money for barrier-free bathrooms at the recreation center.

The City Council unanimously approved a resolution authorizing an application to participate in the program for the next three years, 1988-1990.

"There's nothing really to lose, there's just not a whole lot to gain," City Manager Steven Walters said at the council meeting. "It's an amount of money that tends not to give you more than one project at best."

French students Charles Keene, Stephane Battistella and Valery Aubry-Dumand gather with host's dog

Foreign students getting a taste of Northville life

By BRIAN PERKINS

It sounds like an adventure. Young men and women from Europe venturing over the Atlantic Ocean to the not-so-new frontier, America.

At one point in history, many a young person came from the old world to the new in the hope of a better life. But those people have little in common with a foreign exchange student of today.

For starters, most young explorers at the turn of the century didn't have their parents paying for transportation costs or spending money. Nor did many have predestined families ready to receive them into their homes.

"I heard that America was great to see," said Stephane Battistella, 16, who lives in Paris, France, but for July is staying with William and Diane Mulr of Northville.

Battistella is one of more than 260 French and Spanish students who have been in Michigan since early July. The students will return to their native countries on July 29.

Charles Andre Keene, 17, and Valery Aubry-Dumand, 17, are two other French students staying with Northville families.

Dumand has been to the U.S. before, so has Keene. Dumand has been to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"I saw the golden gates," Dumand said, while laughing in amusement.

Keene spent the summer in Connecticut three years ago. So why did he come back?

"For pleasure," Keene said.

These students, in addition to 6,297 other French and Spanish students, are part of the Nacel Cultural Exchanges. The job of the organization is to match up foreign exchange students with American families.

This job is not always easy, however, and by the end of June about 60 families were still needed to house the students. Luckily, the needed families were found before the students left Europe.

"All of the students were matched up with families," Evelyn Prince, one of the coordinators for the program, said.

The program organizers matched up a student's interests with a family's interests. And the language barrier was lowered since the students have studied English for four to eight years. However, most of them haven't mastered English to the fullest.

But that doesn't stop communication between the families and the students. Keene is staying with Jerry Nehs, 50, and his family. Nehs has a high school daughter who speaks French. But her knowledge of the language isn't how Nehs and his family communicate with Keene.

"We went sailing last weekend, but I didn't tell him what to do, he just did it," Nehs said. He said that Keene is a quiet, shy person, but there is a silent communication between the French student and his family.

Battistella said 500 students, who finished school in June, didn't know each other as they flew in the same plane from Paris to Chicago. After the plane landed, the students took a bus from Chicago to Ann Arbor where the individual families picked them up.

Sightseeing and getting to know American culture has been the biggest time consumption for the students. Not to mention buying clothes and other souvenirs while in the U.S.

The financial costs for the exchange program are paid by the parents, not the families in the U.S. Battistella said the trip is costing his family about $3,000 in American currency.

"We don't have to spend a dime," Nehs said, but he has on certain occasions. However, he does not mind a bit.

Activities that the French students in Northville have done range from Greenfield Village to Cedar Point. When Battistella went to Greenfield Village, he saw other students from Nacel there as well. And when Keene went to Cedar Point he experienced fun in a different way than he had ever before.

"It was his first time at an amusement park," Nehs said. "He ran from ride to ride like a little kid. I guess they don't have amusement parks in France."

The French students were given a glimpse of U.S. culture before they arrived here — no matter how unrealistic — on the way some Americans live from shows like "Dallas" and "Dynasty" that are shown on French television.

Battistella called these shows, that center on power and the thirst for money, "stupid." Both he and Keene said they rarely watch the shows.

After being in our country for about three weeks, the students have picked up differences between the two countries. Some of the differences include friendliness to strangers, eating habits, currency and driving ages.

"In France, we don't say hello to Workers earn wages during summer heat

Early this week people throughout Northville and Novi and across southeast Michigan were suffering through — and complaining about — high humidity and temperatures which were closing in on 100 degrees.

Many of those people were able to seek refuge from the heat at work, in the comfort of air conditioning or a strong fan, and only braved the weather in between the office and the car. But not everyone had it so good.

For some, hot and humid weather is more than an inconvenience — it's almost a reason to call in sick. In several different places around the area people work in especially hot jobs that become tougher to work with each increase in the mercury.

In garages, at construction sites, in front of stoves — Novi and Northville offer plenty of places to work for anyone who dislikes cool temperatures.

French students visit

people we don't know. Battistella said. But here, that happens all the time, he added.

And how do the cultures differ in eating habits?

"For dinner in France, we take longer to eat," Battistella said. "But here we eat faster."

Battistella said that after 1 p.m. in France they snack, and about 8 p.m. they have a full course dinner. But in the U.S., dinner is at 5 p.m., with snacks before or after that.

"Charles eats like a horse," Nehs said. "He loves French fries, but he doesn't like syrup on French toast."

And of course, there is the universal binder that is always talked of — money. According to Battistella, the U.S. is a cheaper place to live.

"Everything is cheaper here," Battistella said. "Candy, clothes, everything is less expensive."

The next difference should be noted by teenagers in the U.S. who say they don't get the car enough.

"In France, we have to be 18 to drive, here, it's 16," Battistella said.

The students said they have enjoyed themselves very much while being in the U.S. and they will encourage other students to come here as well.

And what have the families gained from the experience? Friendships and another "family member."

"Valery is shy, but he has warmed up to us," Jackie Bzymek said. She and her husband Raymond have two children, one who is three and the other 21 months. "I think it's great to develop a friendship across the ocean."

She decided to "adopt" a temporary son when she read in The Northville Record that there was a need for families to accept exchange students.

Raymond was not that crazy about the idea at first, but he soon agreed to it, she said.

Nehe said his family has developed a close relationship with Charles as well.

"He has become a family member," he said.

He believes Keene comes from a well-to-do family, and that his home might be a step down from what Charles is used to.

"I hope he has gotten used to the servants quarters," Nehe said.

He has also received letters from the parents of Keene since he has been in Northville.

As for next year, both families have indicated they might get involved in the program again.

Teaching application list growing

When you're hot, you're hot and as far as prospective teachers are concerned, the Northville Public Schools are very hot indeed.

The reputation of the district has spread so that this year there have been 1,049 prospective teachers applying to the district, exceeding the 1,075 applications received by the end of August in 1986.

And last year, for the first time in a decade, Northville hired 23 teachers many of them gleaned not from applications but from the list of substitutes the district compiles.

Dr. Burton Knighton, assistant superintendent, said that last year was the first time in many years the district posted a notice of employment outside the confines of the Northville Public Schools and the response was overwhelming.

"We didn't do any external posting until the end of June, after most of the colleges had entered their summer sessions," Knighton said.

He noted that each year the district clears its application files unless there is a special need or a special request from an applicant that credentials remain on file.

And each time there is a vacancy,

"Our substitute list is so full that we have actually closed the list to new applicants. We ask people who are interested in substituting to call back..."

— Burton Knighton
— Assistant Superintendent

the district administrators cull from their computer lists the credentials of applicants who have indicated an interest from Sept. 1 until Aug. 31.

Knighton said the district currently knows of five more positions for the 1987-88 academic year than there were in the 1986-87 year. Included in that list is an elementary school teacher, a kindergarten teacher, an elementary science resource position, a vocal music instructor and a math teacher.

He said that it is possible that the science resource position could be filled by a teacher currently on staff, but that would create a science teacher vacancy.

"We are in a very good position to hire very qualified applicants," Knighton said. He added that the same criteria applies to substitute teachers, many of whom have turned down full-time employment in other school districts to remain on the substitute list in Northville.

"Our substitute list is so full that we have actually closed the list to new applicants," Knighton said. "We ask people who are interested in substituting to call back. It isn't fair to keep people on the list when we know that we are not going to be able to offer them employment."

But Northville, like many districts, is noticeably missing an extensive list in industrial arts.

"I think that is the one area where we really don't have a great deal to choose from," Knighton said.

YCUA requests delay on expansion bid

Ahles said part of the reason for the withdrawal centered around a new staff recommendation that would allow expansion, but at a far lower level than earlier requested.

"The way it stands now, had staff actually made that request, we would have been hard-pressed to provide the capacity necessary for the three townships to become part of the system," Ahles said.

Roy Schramack, DNR's Detroit district surface water quality supervisor, said there were a number of possibilities being discussed by the staff, including everything from denial of any expansion to approval of the total request for 50 percent expansion.

"Since the discussion never got to the commission, I don't know what the staff's final decision was," Schramack said.

Ahles said the 50 percent expansion was necessary in order for financial considerations to work out properly.

"It would not make financial sense to ask these townships to pay for plant expansion and then two or three years down the road not have the capacity to service them," Ahles said.

He said he was surprised that staff had amended its earlier plans and was "totally dismayed" when he discovered the change.

YCUA met with the DNR staff two weeks before the meeting and three different people asked point blank whether there had been any change in the DNR recommendations.

"Three times they said there had been no change and then two days before the water resources commission meeting we found out there was a change," Ahles said.

Despite the setback, Ahles said he was still confident that the concerns of the commission, the DNR staff and the townships can be met.

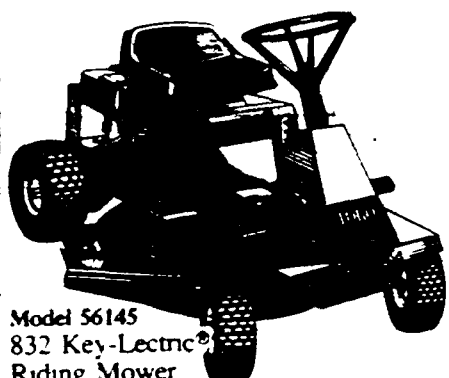

"I think you could say that this is a serious, but not a mortal wound," he said.

Ahles added that YCUA engineers were currently working with the DNR, the Western Townships Utility Authority and plant personnel to provide documentation as requested by the Water Resources Commission.

"I don't know whether we will be able to have all the information to make our case in time for the August meeting," he said.

The Water Resources Commission meets the third Thursday of each month.

TIPS FROM TUCKKLAPER
Novi Dental Center
A. Allen Tuckklaper D.D.S.

WHY DENTAL INSURANCE?

Consider these statistics. Of children over fifteen, 75% have some form of gum disease and an average of 11 cavities. By middle age, 2 out of 3 people will have serious gum problems and be well on the way to losing all of their teeth.

Why should such a technologically advanced country as ours be in such poor state of dental health? The answer is neglect! Few Americans see a dentist as often as they should and many have NEVER seen one. There are many reasons for this and one of them is money. Now something is being done about it.

While most Americans have some kind of medical insurance, dental insurance has lagged far behind, but now dental coverage is growing by leaps and bounds. Today, some 65 million (3 out of every 10 Americans) are covered by some form of dental insurance and estimates are that coverage could increase to 95 million within a few years. Labor unions have been striving for wider dental protection and are responsible for much of the increase. In these times, the average American can use all the help he can get.

Even project architect holds off on changing design of Main-Center

Six weeks after the city's Historic District Commission got the first formal look at the latest plans for a Main Center office/retail development, no steps have been taken toward revisions of the plan, the project's architect said.

When the latest plans for Main Center — a project proposed for the southwest corner of Main and Center streets — came before the Historic District Commission June 8, the commission unanimously awarded conditional approval to the building.

The specific conditions mentioned in the approval were making the windows flush with the brick or recessed, altering the coping detail, changing the preliminary signs, and changing the lighting. Walter Coponen, the architect for Main Center, has said the commission also objected to the gabled roof on the plans.

As presented in those plans, Main Center would be a four-story building built into the Center Street hill, with the bottom two floors used for retail development and the top two for offices. An open gallery-like walkway was included along the building's Center Street frontage.

On Tuesday, Coponen said that no decision had been made to pursue the revisions required by the Historic District Commission. Developer Kevin Callahan, of Equity Advance, could not be reached for comment.

"I don't really know where it stands," Coponen said. He has said the intent of the design was not to try to copy an older architectural style — an approach which he said traditionally fails — but rather to create a modern building which would complement the historic atmosphere of downtown.

In addition to acting as the Main Center architect, Coponen is also a member of the Historic District Commission. He abstains on commission votes on projects on which he works.

After a design for Main Center passes the Historic District Commission, it also must come before the city Planning Commission and City Council for consideration.

Land sale contract squabble escalates

Officials in the Wayne County Executive's office are determined to see a marketing plan for more than 1,000 acres of county-owned land on Sheldon Road between Five Mile and Six Mile roads underway in the very near future.

Charging that awarding a contract to the Lambrecht Company has been held up to long by the county commission, Assistant County Executive Michael Duggan said Tuesday a county land-use plan is "a sham dreamed up by some commissioners to delay awarding the contract to Lambrecht."

"There is no reason not to award the contract, get the marketing study completed and the land on the tax rolls," Duggan said.

He noted that the contract had been in a commission committee for months now, and there has been no action.

"They (the county commissioners) are just playing politics," Duggan said, adding that it is the intent of Edward McNamara and his staff to work closely with Northville.

"There is no reason not to award the contract, get the marketing study completed and the land on the tax rolls."

Township officials to make sure any sales are in conformity with the township's master plan.

"Awarding the contract does not give us blanket approval to sell the property. The commission still must approve the sale of every parcel. All we want to do is get this contract awarded, the study completed and land on the tax rolls," Duggan said.

Commissioner Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, said she was distressed that Duggan thought the commissioners would delay the land sale simply for political reasons.

Heintz, who chairs the economic development committee which ultimately will recommend action to the entire commission, said she was hopeful action would be taken at the committee's July 29 meeting.

"A lot depends on what happens during the meeting Wednesday (yesterday) of the committee on land use. If everything goes well, the issue of the contract for Lambrecht will be on the agenda for the meeting on the 29th," she said.

The land study committee was appointed by Commission Chairman Arthur Carter, and includes representatives from the county executives office.

Duggan noted that it was never the intent of the executive's office to present the commission with a land-use plan.

"What we have done is provided them with a land sale plan — explaining the internal policy by which we determine surplus property — and they have had that plan for about six weeks now," he said.

Duggan added that the executive's office currently is working on a plan to get the county out of debt and then plans to turn its attention to the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley sewer and gaming service agreements from the communities which will be served with the system.

"I can guarantee that nobody here is working on a land-use plan or policy," he said.

Commission OKs plan for county youth camp

A divided Wayne County Commission established a new county youth camp July 16, despite an apparent warning the act could jeopardize debt reduction negotiations with the state.

Commissioners voted 8-2, with four abstentions, to create a trust fund that would finance the camp's creation and operations.

Detroit and suburban legislators generally divided on whether to create the trust fund.

Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, one of two commissioners who voted no, said she needed more information.

"We've heard this could jeopardize negotiations with the state," Heintz said. "I don't know if it's true but I intend to find out."

County officials are negotiating with the state on a pay-back plan for $60 million the state claims is owed for indigent health care services.

In a committee vote last week, Heintz, whose district includes Northville as well as Livonia and Plymouth, recommended the camp's creation.

Kay Beard, D-Inkster, Milton Mack, D-Wayne, and Richard Manning, D-Redford Township, all abstained from voting on the trust fund's creation. All said further study was necessary.

Commission chairman Arthur Carter, D-Detroit, said the camp was desperately needed.

"Right now there are youngsters sleeping on the floor of the youth home," Carter said. "We need the space."

Commissioners altered the trust fund before approving it.

It will include 10 percent of the revenue from county land sales, as recommended during a preliminary committee hearing. But provisions mandating 10 percent of the revenue from other county enterprises and 4 percent of the county's annual recreation budget were dropped from the final plan.

All three provisions were opposed by the county executive's office.

Supporters hope to have the camp operating by next April. A site has yet to be selected, Carter said.

The camp would be used for "at risk" youngsters, juvenile offenders 13 and under.

Supporters hope state and private industry grants will pay for much of the camp's operations. Commissioners said half the estimated $3.4 million annual operating cost could come from the state. They also hope to tap a $200,000 state youth home allocation to create the camp.

The camp would have to receive a state license before opening.

Bed and Breakfast site to be offered for sale

The council also agreed to allow 60 days for bids on the land to come in, in order to allow Community Federal, Northville Community Investment or any other potential buyer the chance to bid and show a plan for the site.

Cantrell's letter to the city states that the company's board of directors believes the site "is a better alternative than remodeling our present building." The Main/Griswold site "would allow for adequate parking, good ingress and egress, as well as two drive-through windows. The exterior would be designed to blend with the style of Northville," the letter reads.

The company has found that it needs more space than it has at its Center Street location, Cantrell later said.

School's out to stay at Willowbeck

By BRIAN PERKINS

After being in business for 12 years, the Willowbeck Farm Nursery School on Beck Road closed its doors for the final time because of inflated insurance costs and regulations bureaucracy, its owners said.

Owners Lane and Richard Norton officially closed their preschool located at 21633 Beck Road north of Eight Mile on June 26.

There are two main reasons why the Nortons decided to close the nursery school and pursue other interests.

"The main reason is that liability insurance went up considerably," he said. "And I think it's time for Lane to do something else."

The other reason is the Michigan Department of Social Services regulations that nursery schools in the state must follow.

Every time we needed a new license, they had a list of laws and regulations, she said. We would meet the requirements of the regulations for one person, and then somebody else would come along and say we haven't. It got to be a little too much.

About 1500 students have been

"Every time we needed a new license, they had a list of laws and regulations. We would meet the requirements of the regulations for one person, and then somebody else would come along and say we haven't. It got to be a little too much."

— Lane Norton

enrolled at the nursery school from the time that the first class was offered in 1976. Lane designed and taught classes while Richard acted as the business administrator for the school.

They shared the building with the Novi Co-op in the beginning years as Richard did repair work to the building and the property.

In 1976, after the co-op was unable to fill up the existing space in the building, Lane started her preschool classes.

At the moment, she is working as a sales representative for Discovery

Toys Inc. The toy company recently had a national convention in San Francisco which she attended.

"We used to use their toys in our school," she said. "They are educational toys. My son is home from college and he plays some of the games."

She said the toys are designed to make children think instead of just entertaining them. The toy company also sells games for older children in order to advance their formal education, she added.

One of her duties as sales representative of the toy company is to give home demonstrations to potential customers in order to generate sales, she said.

Before she opened her nursery school, Lane Norton was an elementary school teacher.

"I might go back to teaching elementary school. That's an option." But she said she would like to try the sales job for a while.

She still believes, even though she is out of the business of teaching preschoolers, that nurseries are very important in our society.

"Many parents need day care centers," she said. "There are so many working parents."

The quality of preschool education is very high in this area, she said. When parents ask her for suggestions on which schools to send their preschoolers, she has no trouble in recommending certain schools in the area.

Does she believe that her nursery school will be missed?

"I kind of hope so," she said.

She added that the building which housed her nursery school might be turned into another school in the near future. However, she will not have anything to do with the new school if that does happen.

Ashley Brazen awaits her third heart surgery

cedure could require a longer hospital stay, a longer recovery at home, and would not completely correct the problem, she said.

"A lot of it depends on what her anatomy is like inside," she said.

Both Cindi and Ed Brazen, Ashley's father, praised her doctors. Her physician, Dr. Sandra Clapp, her surgeon, Dr. Eduardo Arciniegas, and the staff and facilities of Children's Hospital have all been very helpful to Ashley, they said.

"I feel very fortunate that we had a heart problem in Detroit rather than somewhere else," Cindi added. "Because of the first rate care available to Ashley."

In spite of Ashley's difficulties, she has not slow ed down at all, Cindi said.

"She does everything that every other normal kid does. She goes to Sunday school, she goes to the playground, she rides bikes. And swimming, she loves to go swimming. She gets her brother in trouble like any other kid."

Ashley's hospital stays have been difficult for the family, she said.

When there's a crisis it brings you closer together — but when one crisis follows another, it can be very tiring," she added. "It's hard on everybody in the whole family."

But the four of them work together and all pitch in, she said. Ashley's brother Nicholas helps a lot. He gets the phone for me. He's real helpful when there's a crisis," Cindi said.

The Brazen family gets other support from the Ticker Club, a non-profit group which supports the cardiology services at Children's Hospital.

Two events to help the club are scheduled next month, and Ashley's mother said the club welcomes participation.

Saturday, Aug. 1, the club will sponsor its fifth annual Hike for Hearts at Kensington Metropark. Volunteers will walk, run, cycle, or otherwise travel the 9.2 mile course after gathering pledges for each mile.

The Masquerade Salon on Telegraph in Dearborn is planning a Haircut-a-Thon Tuesday, Aug. 18. Five stylists are scheduled to participate in the event, where $13 will buy a haircut with all the proceeds going to the Ticker Club.

Cindi Brazen said that anyone interested in either event may contact her at 344-0338.

McKnight, the son of William and Edith McKnight, is a senior majoring in psychology and sociology.

DIANE M. FAUGHT and NANCY SOBIER of Northville graduated from the Detroit College of Business June 13.

LISA MROZ and TODD MAI have received academic scholarships for the 1987-88 academic year at Madonna College in Livonia. Mroz, a freshman majoring in general dietetics, received the Sr. May Bridget Roznowski award. Mai, a sophomore history major, received the Nancy E. Tanger scholar ship.

Two Northville residents are among 21 Kalamazoo College students elected to Phi Beta Kappa June 10. LISA EHLERT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ehlert of Banbury Road and TINA STOECKLIN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stoecklin of N Center Street, were inducted into the Delta of Michigan chapter at Kalamazoo College.

legislature for a vote. If the legislators did not act or voted the proposal down, it would go on an election ballot for the voters to decide.

The proposed change would not alter the requirement of 180 days of instruction each year, so if it becomes law districts which start before Labor Day would be required to alter their calendars elsewhere to make up the lost time, a spokesman for the Say Yes to Michigan Tourism Committee explained.

The Tourism Committee is a private organization headed by state representative John Pridnia (R-Alpena), who supported the "Extend Summer" bills in the legislature.

Supporters of the drive say that a required start after Labor Day would extend the Michigan tourism season by a full week. The Tourism Committee has estimated that another week at the end of summer would generate an additional $25 million for the tourism industry.

The most organized opposition from the proposal comes from the Michigan Education Association, which is the parent organization of local teachers' unions. The MEA has said that the school start date should be a matter for local districts to decide individually.

Northville schools superintendent George Bell said that he has no strong opinion on the issue. "We negotiate our school calendar as part of the negotiations with our teaching staff and it's not a problem for us," he said.

"I don't really have any evidence that education will be better or worse before the 7th," he added.

Novi resident Becky Staab, a community development director for the Novi Jaycees, has become active in the campaign. Although the Jaycees do not take stands on political issues, she explained, she personally supports the effort to require the school year to start after Labor Day.

The proposed change would mean one more week when we can say "Let's go up north" or people from Grand Rapids can say "Let's go to Greenfield Village," Staab said.

"When you think about it, does it make sense to send a kid to school for four days and then give them a three-day weekend?" she said. In addition, longer breaks during the year can disrupt the students' learning by requiring more time to review old material, she added.

An MEA spokesperson said that the union strongly believes in local control over the school calendar. He said that the school start date has been a negotiable issue for 22 years and that the Michigan Employment Relations Commission and the courts have upheld the right of employees to bargain for such issues.

In addition the spokesperson said that different districts' calendars reflect local conditions and what's best for one district might not be best for another. "The taxpayers have the right to decide the issue, but it should be the local taxpayers," he said.

Novi schools superintendent Robert Pikwo said the district administration has not taken a position on the question. He added that some people involved in the district like the later start, while others might not.

New PTO aims to put swings at Old Village

While most public schools in Northville have playground equipment for their students, parents at Old Village School are determined that their children should have the same opportunities.

There is one major difference, however. The equipment planned for Old Village must be specially adapted to accommodate physically handicapped youngsters and that means big money.

For instance, a swing that will allow a youngster in a wheelchair to use it costs $734 and the platform for that swing is an additional $554.

New students who plan on attending Wayne State University's Weekend College may register from 3 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays during July and August at Bentley High School.

The group has set a goal of raising $10,000 for the special equipment and is holding a drawing to raise the necessary money.

Tickets are available between 8 a.m. and noon at Old Village School, at D & C department store, in downtown Northville and, after 1 p.m., at Robin's Cloverdale Cafe.

200 attend benefit and raise $12,000

By ANNE E. WILLIS

There was eating and drinking, laughter and music — and it was all in the name of charity. Over 200 people packed the Chez Raphael restaurant last Sunday and raised $12,000 to aid a Novi woman.

Three area chefs hosted a benefit for Vanda Muscatello, victim of the deadly tornado that ripped through the Chateau Estates Mobile Home Park on June 21.

Vanda's husband Michael was killed and her 19-month old son suffered serious injuries. Vanda suffered a broken back and is currently beginning the rehabilitation process in the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor. The family had no medical or homeowner's insurance.

Keith Famie of Novi's Chez Raphael hosted the event in conjunction with Joe Yesbick of the Sheraton Oaks in Novi, and Ed Janos of the Money Tree. The three chefs pooled their resources in providing a large array of hors d'oeuvres, appetizers and desserts. Several area wine shops donated wine and champagne.

The evening raised $12,000 for the Vanda Muscatello fund, according to Julie Traub of the Victor-Forbes Ltd. public relations firm. Tickets for the evening were $50 per person with all receipts turned over to the fund.

In addition to the money raised, the Novi Main Street store donated household items, linens and clothing. Gresham Driving Aids donated a hydraulic lift for wheelchairs and Wright & Fillips donated the costs and labor of making a home "barrier free" for Vanda following her hospital release.

Prior to the dinner, Chefs Famie and Janos took on former Detroit Lion Lem Barney and Errol Peschell in a tennis benefit at the Detroit Racquet and Squash Club in Farmington Hills. Although Famie and Janos surprised the 50 or so onlookers with some hard tennis, Barney and Peschell carried the match. The tennis tournament netted the Muscatello fund around $500, according to the Victor-Forbes agency, promoters of the two benefits.

Dino Tori, Vanda's brother, attended both events. "I don't have words to express how I feel," Tori said.

"You always hear about the negatives, but here you have an entire metro-area community coming together for something like this...Vanda has a tremendous amount of courage. She wakes up one day and her life is totally changed."

— Sherrie Tori

"It's too bad you have to meet so many nice people on something like this."

Tori said his sister is "way ahead of schedule" due to her tremendous attitude.

Members of the Muscatello family expressed their gratitude for the two events during the evening dinner. "She is a remarkable young woman," Sherrie Tori, Vanda's cousin noted. "She is still in shock, but she's very determined, she knows how much it all means."

"You always hear about the negatives, but here you have an entire metro-area community coming together for something like this," she said. She noted the family has received cards and letters from all over the United States, wishing them well and sending donations. "Vanda has a tremendous amount of courage. She wakes up one day and her life is totally changed," Sherrie said.

"Vanda said to say thank you."

The Northville Record

Our Opinions Don't kill project

Bringing about a major development in a city like Northville is not easy under the best circumstances. The various headaches a developer may suffer include finding a site, buying the land, possibly changing the zoning, hiring an architect, developing an idea, applying for zoning variances, presenting a site plan, hiring contractors, and locating buyers or tenants.

The development process is by nature difficult, but there's nothing wrong with that. The many places where a developer may run into roadblocks help to ensure that developers will be cautious, and only begin a project if they are serious about doing a good job.

In a city like Northville, developers may have it especially tough. The lack of available land for development and the strong community pride make it especially difficult to acquire a rezoning or get a site plan approved — the elements of a development over which the city has direct control.

City officials on the council and its two major recommending bodies — the planning and historic district commissions — jealously guard the city's historic atmosphere and appearance. Again, there's nothing wrong with that. In fact, that's exactly how it ought to be, that care and diligence have played a large part in making the city what it is.

It is possible, however, to have too much of a good thing. The approval process is so tough that occasionally it may stifle a very worthwhile project.

"We're worried that something like that is happening to Main Center."

The southwest corner of Main and Center streets has been the home for a weedy parking lot for far too long. It's time to get something up there, and the latest drawings for Main Center show a fine building which would only enhance this community.

Choose right buyer

Sometimes it takes a little prod to get things going. The City Council was spurred to action Monday when Community Federal Credit Union, which less than eight months ago purchased the building on Main and North Center that houses its Northville branch, asked to buy the property on Griswold and Main to create a new branch.

The city, which last winter had offered to work with Northville Community Investment Company in order to help the fledgling firm purchase the land and create a 5-story bed and breakfast hotel, was not so quick to sell the land to the credit union.

Instead, as required by law, the city has opted to place the property on the real estate market and take the highest and best bid for the site.

What is unfortunate is that the city

Earlier Main Center plans were inappropriate, and did not survive the approval process. Fine. The system worked. But this time, the system — whether it means to or not — is dangerously close to killing off this project for good.

Officials have objected to several elements of the plan which they call "details." They're more than that, however. Various officials are asking for substantial architectural revisions. After many weeks with no movement toward new plans — and after financing snags and a huge bill for parking looming in the future — those revisions are starting to look like the straw that broke the camel's back.

The real shame of the situation is that those revisions are not necessary. Developer Kevin Callahan and architect Walter Coponen have put together an excellent plan for that corner, and it really doesn't need any changes. Coponen knows Northville's architectural atmosphere as well as anyone, and his design would only enhance the community.

Callahan is not without blame if the project should not be built. When he first presented his proposal to the public, he went not to the governing boards, but to Rotary. And, he is a very difficult person for city officials and even his own project architect to reach.

More importantly, Callahan has given repeated assurances that funds to actually build Main Center are available and that he is anxious to begin construction. Yet more than eight months after a demolition permit for the bowling alley remaining on the site was approved, no demolition has taken place and there are no signs that it will occur anytime soon.

We hope Main Center will still become a reality. We hope the differences between the city and the developers can be worked out. Most of all, we hope the city remembers this lesson five years from now if we're all still staring at a parking lot.

did not take any action on the property until the credit union offered to buy the land. So, midway through the building season, the property is just going on the market. And, given the bid process, the land will not be able to be sold until the building season is nearly over.

The city, in agreeing to sell the land, did not close the door on either the bed and breakfast project or on the credit union branch. And it will be interesting to see what other projects and proposals come before the council.

As available property in Northville becomes increasingly rare and increasingly costly, the council and governing bodies — Downtown Development Authority, the newly-formed committee to market Northville, and the planning commission — can afford to be increasingly selective. It is a rare opportunity and should not be mishandled.

Let secret out

By Anita Crone

The Northville Historical Society has a rare opportunity to let a well kept secret out of the bag, and, at the same time, to earn a little money.

The secret is the Mill Race Historical Village — you know, that walled Victorian city where no one lives, but where lots of people get married on summer Saturdays. The place that houses a school, a weaver's cottage, a blacksmith shop/museum, a gazebo and the like. The place that is closed to the public a great deal of the time.

While touring the city with the Lincoln Park Historical Society, I had the chance to see the "Cady Inn" and then, through the gates, the Mill Race Village. And all of a sudden, this marvelous idea took shape. Why not, when the inn is moved to its new home in the village, turn it into a Bed and Breakfast?

Apparently the B&B proposal for Main and Griswold is not going to be a reality, and, equally apparently, there is a demand from outsiders for a B&B in the community. What better place to put visitors to Northville than in the Mill Race, and what better location than in the "Cady Inn?"

Think of it. Once the inn is moved, the historical society can offer rooms at $50 a night and there are people who would pay it. Then, arrangements can be made with some of the local horsepeople in the area for carriage rides through Hines Park, or to local restaurants like MacKinnon's or Elizabeth's or Crawford's.

Given the location of the Mill Race, there would be a captive audience. And, for a little extra money, maybe Bruce Turnbull would be willing to give horse and buggy tours through Northville. It would be easier to get horses than buses on Dunlap, and Turnbull is a pro at promoting the city.

Of course, this idea is not possible without some help from the owners of the property (the city) and without the cooperation of the Historical Society.

The society would have to hire a caretaker or innkeeper and would have to be willing to keep the Mill Race open every day during the summer and possibly during the winter.

The society also would have to consider catering — who would provide breakfasts to go with the beds, but that's a minor point.

Under the new laws recently enacted regarding Bed and Breakfasts, the liability costs are much lower than for hotels, and the rules governing such establishments have been relaxed.

Rental of the "Cady Inn" would not even have to be on an individual basis. There are enough small business meetings going on in the immediate vicinity that it might be possible to rent the inn to groups. Visitors can meet, eat and sleep in one location. And, there is enough shopping in the downtown area, not to mention Twelve Oaks, that the community can take advantage of its location.

Of course, all of this fantasizing depends on exactly what is available in the "Cady Inn" — how many rooms, how large and how many bathrooms.

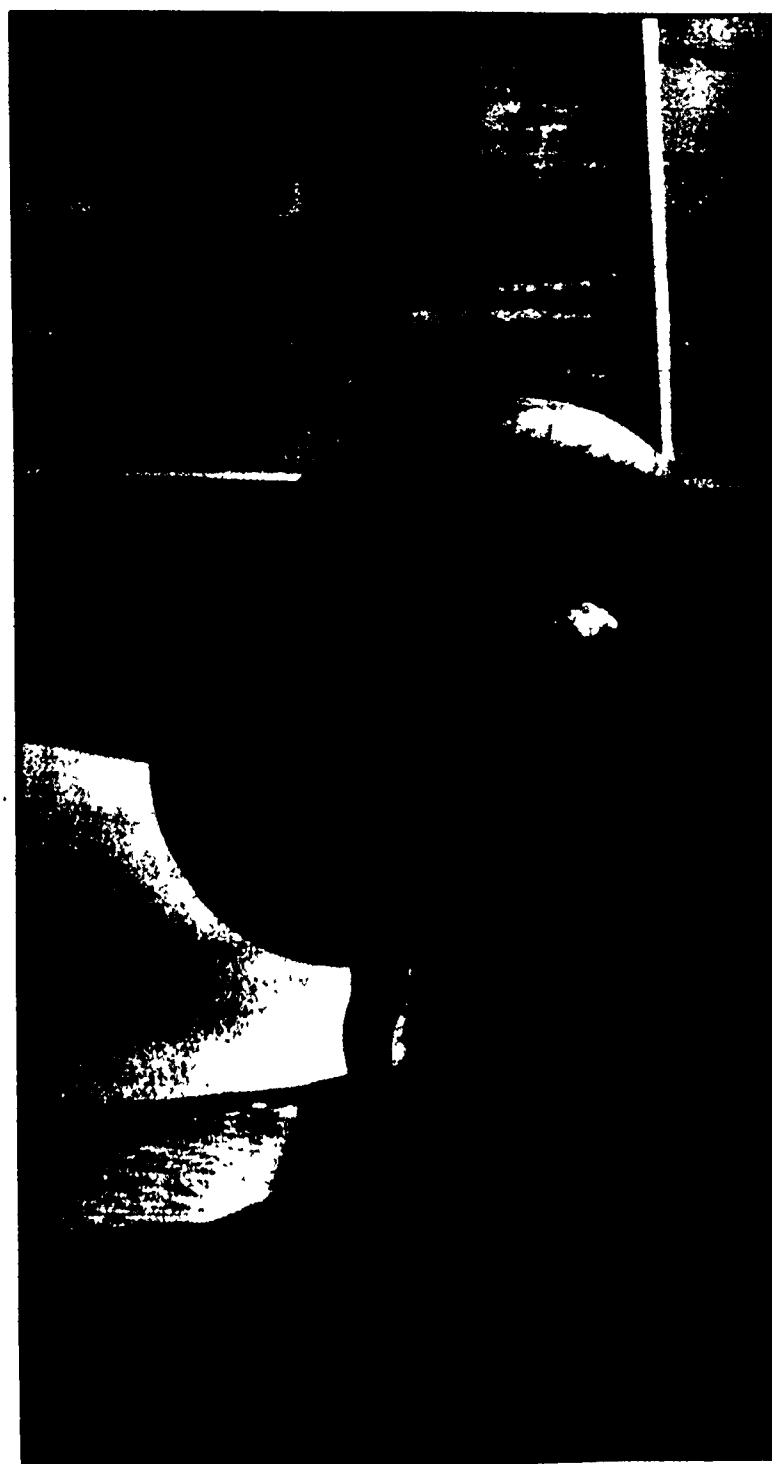

And, before anything could go on the drawing boards, there would have to be a new attitude toward the Mill Race. Instead of being a secret, it would have to become an open, viable, functioning community.

A large part of Northville's reputation has been built on its Victorian charm, and it's long past time for one of its most charming assets to be shown off. The historical society cannot undertake this project, if it even wants to undertake it, by itself.

It would require community involvement, but the community would share in the benefits. The Mill Race Historical Village deserves a chance to come out of the closet and into the Northville community.

After the Fact

By Phil Jerome

I knew she'd be upset. And I was right. But I had a good excuse, and was ready with it when she walked in the door and caught me watching "Big Time Wrestling."

"You call this mowing the lawn?" she asked with that certain tone of sarcasm/cynicism I have come to know and love over all these years.

"No, my pet," I responded cheerfully. "I call this watching The Hulk Hogan Show. Mowing the lawn is something I do outside on that big red thing that makes the motor noises."

It was the kind of flippant answer designed to raise her ire, so I didn't give her a chance to respond. Launched straight into my excuse instead.

"If you'll notice, you will see that I started to mow the lawn, but that's when I ran into the problem that made it impossible to continue."

"I was sitting on the tractor, when all of a sudden, I was attacked by a swarm of killer birds. Like in the Alfred Hitchcock movie."

"It was terrible," I continued. "I was sitting there on the tractor, mowing the lawn like I do every Saturday morning, when these birds started attacking me. They were dive-bombing me everywhere I went. I couldn't get away from them."

"Those are barn swallows," she said, suddenly serious. "They're a real nuisance, aren't they? They come after me every once in a while when I'm weeding the flowers. You think they're going to hit you, then swerve out of the way at the last second."

And with that she walked out of the room, only to return moments later with a bright red hat which she told me to put on and get back to mowing the lawn.

"How's the hat going to help?" I asked. "Those vicious birds are still out there, waiting for me to return."

"Sometimes they don't like hats, especially bright hats," she explained. "Besides, if you're wearing a hat, you won't get messed up if they decide to poop on you."

Teen says cruising spans generations, and it's OK

To the Editor
In Wayne, Mich., in 1962, my mother went to Dalys Hot Dog Stand. Not always for hot dogs it was a place to go where there was always a friend. It was where she cruised.
In Downey, Calif., in 1962, my father went to Harveys Restaurant. Not always for food it was a place to go where there was always a friend. It was where he cruised.
Most of today's teenagers' parents cruised somewhere when they were kids. And the same holds true today although one major difference is that in 1967 there is usually a "strip" that is cruised instead of a single place. I have seen this scenario repeated in many different states.
I have observed no problems with the teenagers or the members of the community. There is one exception, Plymouth, Mich. There is a huge controversy lingering in the air over Main Street in Plymouth. The controversy is constantly being fueled by citizens of Plymouth, and by teens from Plymouth and surrounding communities.
I cannot find many bad points about cruising. It does tie up approximately one mile of Plymouth's streets. But it also keeps the kids busy doing something. I can honestly say that I never have been offered drugs or anything else while cruising in Plymouth. Cars cannot speed because there is too much traffic.

The only thing that I have ever seen anyone do that is illegal is play the radio too loud. The whole idea behind cruising is meeting new people, showing off your car or yourself. A few teens have done something illegal, and then it is exploited to try and prove that cruising is wrong.
If any one person does something illegal, they should be punished. But the police should not be waiting for a person to make a mistake. Nor should the police punish the majority for the acts of the minority. Teens of Northville and Livonia, in particular, have no place to go Friday night where they know there will be a lot of people their age. So they cruise Plymouth.
Most malls, theaters and restaurants have a No Loitering policy in effect. So the "American Graffiti" era hangouts have become illegal. So now kids can no longer go to an established business or drive up and down the streets. There are not even any drive-ins nearby.

What we need is a place where we can go. This place needs to be created equally between teens and adults. It needs to satisfy the needs of both teens and adults.
I'm not trying to say that cruising is great because it's not. It creates many problems for members of the community. But by not letting us cruise, it creates an equal amount of problems for teens of Plymouth and surrounding communities. A happy medium needs to be found and established before it gets any worse.
Northville High School and the Northville Community Recreation Center are open to groups who would want to sponsor a dance. This dance would attract teens of set up properly. But it takes money to hold the dance. I don't know many kids who are willing to spend the time and money to organize a dance.
I doubt that any groups would be interested, either, probably because the past seven NHS dances have been canceled due to lack of ticket sales. Now we're back to the same old story, what can teens do that they'll enjoy, and it will not interfere with the community.

I really wish I knew what the answer is. Unfortunately, I don't.

Northville's
Class of '88

this past spring, your paper raised the question of whether the position of valedictorian is diminished by having more than one person occupy it.
My answer, as a 1984 Northville High graduate, is most definitely. The pride and prestige normally associated with valedictorian is lost when the position is shared by more than one individual.
I think either the selection process should be more critical, perhaps including the students' extra activities and standardized test scores, or the school should evaluate and toughen their grading policies. The school administrators need to take action to ensure the position of valedictorian is reserved for the person who truly is the "best in the class."

Valedictorian single honor

Yay, Robocop

By Bob Needham

Northville and Novi appear to have a pretty bleak future ahead of them, if we accept the view of a new movie currently playing in the theaters.

The movie is called "Robocop," and it takes place in the greater Detroit area at some undetermined future time. Apparently Detroit has somehow annexed all of Wayne, Oakland, and Macomb counties, and the area is now one enormous city. And it's not a nice place to be.

Crime is much worse than it is presently. It's bad throughout the area, but worst in what the movie calls "old Detroit," presumably today's city proper. The plot of the movie concerns a new half-human, half-robot police officer who singlehandedly takes on the city's bad guys, and ends up leaving most of them full of holes and lying in a puddle of blood.

The movie tries to be more than a brainless shoot-em-up, however; it also tries to work as a brainless offbeat comedy. For the most part, critics have loved the film. They say it's a clever commentary on America's fascination with violence, or a fun action movie, or a tongue-in-cheek warning about where our society is headed.

Don't believe it. This movie is none of those things. It's a violent, destructive film that uses humanity's worst instincts to capitalize on Detroit's problems. And it knows what it's doing.

I happened to see "Robocop" at a theater up in Bloomfield Township. The audience was large, and a very mixed group, apparently reviews and advertising had convinced a lot of people that here was some fun for all ages.

Most everyone there loved Robocop. The first big laugh came when a robot shot a man in dozens of different places — because of a malfunction. Chuckle, chuckle. As the movie wore on, the deaths seemed to get more and more violent, and the audience appreciation grew more and more vocal.

By the closing few minutes of "Robocop," we were all so numbed that the filmmakers had to resort to showing us a man's skin melting away because of a toxic chemical for its shock — and comedy — value.

Yay, Robocop. Fight fire with fire. That's the only way to win. It's the same kind of warped thinking that once led a candidate for a county office to earnestly tell me, "If the death penalty can stop one person from being killed, then I believe that it's worth it."

This movie was not filmed in Detroit. If the filmmakers had spent any time here, I'm sure they would have thought twice about magnifying, glorifying, and romanticizing the violence in this area.

That's all this movie does. It doesn't even laugh at the violence; it laughs with it. And the audience laughs along.

I know, I know, my bleeding heart is showing. (No pun intended.) I shouldn't take it so seriously — it's only a movie. Right. But it's a movie about our community, no matter how fictionalized or how far removed in time. That's why it hits so close to home: it is home.

Do yourself a favor. Skip this movie. I'm not so naive as to believe that the presence or absence of "Robocop" will make any kind of practical difference. But we don't need to be entertained by a picture of a terrible future for our town, and we certainly don't need to help anyone profit from it.

Two masters degrees deserve recognition

To the Editor
I'm writing concerning your School Notebook article on Thursday, July 9. I was very disappointed to find my name spelled incorrectly and also the wrong degree listed.

I have worked very hard the past six years and feel the correct recognition is due.

I graduated from Northville High School in 1981, and received my B.S. with honors in chemical engineering in 1985 from Michigan Technological University. I studied German throughout my first four years of college and received a full-tuition and cost of living scholarship to attend the Eidgenossische Technische Hochschule (Swiss Federal Institute of Technology) during the 1985-86 academic year as a graduate exchange student.

Only 10 students in the U.S.A. received this scholarship. At the E.T.H. in Zurich, I completed my thesis research and attended graduate engineering courses taught in German.

I returned to M.T.U. in 1986-87 as a graduate teaching assistant, teaching general chemistry lab and physical chemistry lab, and I completed the requirements for two masters degrees: chemical engineering (polymer option) and mechanical engineering (operational management option).

I was told no one at M.T.U. has accomplished this within two years. At graduation, I was recognized by Dean Whitten as follows: "The last masters candidate is being specially recognized, Sabina Jenny Vanderwouwe is receiving two masters degrees — chemical engineering and mechanical engineering. Congratulations, Sabina."

I am currently living in Midland and doing polymer research for Dow Chemical, and I would appreciate if the Northville community could be correctly informed.

Sincerely,
Sabina Vanderwouwe

Editor's Note: The Record regrets misspelling Sabina Vanderwouwe's name. The degree information listed in School Notebook, however, was all that was received from Michigan Technological University. The resume included with the letter notes that Sabina Vanderwouwe was a member of Tau Beta Pi, engineering honor society, and Phi Lambda Upsilon, chemical honor society, as well as Society of Women Engineers, among others.

Machines, not medicine, are used to ease variety of aches and pains

By BRIAN PERKINS

Ed Glanz, 67, has been living with pain for about 10 years and he says he isn't willing to live another 10 with it. Barbara Bailey, 52, of Flint, has been getting serious migraine headaches for the past 15 years.

Glanz and Bailey both have come to Northville to get help at the Center for Pain Therapy, where Dr. Monte Nagler, 36, through the use of machines rather than drugs, is trying to eliminate the pain for the pair, as well as for some 28-42 other sufferers. "New, drug-free electronic medicine has now made it possible to treat previously untreatable pain," Nagler said. "Headache pain, arthritis pain, back pain and even cancer pain can now be significantly alleviated in 5-10 minutes."

Nagler said 25 percent of his patients have come to the clinic seeking relief from headaches, 25 percent for back problems, 25 percent for arthritis and 25 percent for cancer.

He said he has been able to help 80 percent of the headache victims, 50 to 75 percent of those with back problems, 70 to 80 percent of the arthritis sufferers and 50 percent of the cancer victims.

The Center for Pain Therapy at "About 10 to 20 percent (of cancer patients) just can't be helped. Some people get relief in only two visits."

41620 Six Mile has been open since April 6, but already its reputation has spread to attract such people as Glanz and Bailey.

Nagler is the first to admit that not all pain sufferers can be helped and some cancer patients are less likely to be helped since they often are treated with a heavy amount of pain killers, making it harder for his PSL Neuro Transmitter Modulator machine to have an effect.

"About 10 to 20 percent (of cancer patients) just can't be helped," he said. "Some people get relief in only two visits."

The machines used for the treatment act as pain suppressors, supplying safe, low levels of electronic stimulation which block the body's pain response, Nagler said.

from his lower back pain.

"It's an awful pain," Glanz said. He so far has been to five doctors, but none has been successful. "I already have another one lined up if this treatment doesn't work."

Bailey started her treatments at the center about four weeks ago. Her pastor told her about Nagler after he had seen an interview with the doctor on TV talking about his electronic medicine.

She was reluctant about the number of times she would have to come to the center.

"When they said I had to come to the center for 12 days, I thought I couldn't do it," she said. But her husband said she had to go and after her first few visits nobody could prevent her from going, she said.

Bailey didn't realize how much resistance she had built up to pain until the center ran tests to determine the level of treatment to give her. "I have been freed of pain," she said. "But I still get the pressure before the migraines."

Nagler is aware that not all of his patients will be helped by treatment.

His electronic medicine has been very successful for many of his patients, but not all. And the success of

A native of Boston, he is a 1967 graduate of the University of Massachusetts with a bachelor of arts degree in sociology. He received a master's degree in guidance and counseling from Wayne State University in 1971 and a Ph.D. in counseling from the University of New Mexico in 1982.

PAULA J. ZONDLAK of Northville has been promoted by the National Bank of Detroit (NBD) to the position of assistant administrative officer and manager, Accounting Control in the Bank Operations Division.

A NBD employee since 1970, Zondlak holds a BS degree in accounting from Madonna College.

Nagler centers on pain the Northville center and how many more will be built in the future depends on one aspect — patient satisfaction.

"I get to talking about this and I sound like a snake oil salesman," Nagler said. "It reeks of quackery. No question."

He says he uses 12 machines during the day, but averages about six per patient, depending on the patient's problem.

The suppressors often look like small, Walkman-type radios or Star Trek phasers, and are powered by nine-volt batteries.

"It's brand new technology," Nagler said.

The patients, most of whom are between 40 and 50 years old, go through 12 treatment sessions.

Nagler handles the first examination, which includes an in-depth physical examination, but his personally-trained staff supervises the other 11 visits.

"They (the patients) will spend five or six hours for the first treatment," Nagler said. "After the third or fourth session, they should be free of pain for half the day. After the 12th session, they should be free of pain for the whole day."

Each session costs between $50 and $60, depending on how much is paid by insurance carriers, he said. In addition, the machines that Nagler uses are available for purchase from the company that produces them. Insurance will pay for all or most of the machines costs, Nagler said, with the price running about $800.

Auctioneer Frank H. Boos does his best to interest the "hunters" into buying the O'Neil brothers

Linda Nickerson purchased a night with Michael Anthony Knight for $350

Going once... Auction sells dates for MD

Thirty-two bachelors, including one unplanned volunteer, and 300 hungry women dressed to the nines, 10s and even 12s, added up to $8,000 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association during a Fox Hunt at the Novi Hilton last Thursday.

And while the $500 brought by bachelor Michael Dolan was a far cry from the $15,000 raised by one man in a similar event last year, no female in the audience was loathe to bid on evenings on the river, a chance to watch the Lions play Tampa Bay in Florida in December or to share her date with one O'Neil brother with four other brothers and their dates.

"I just can't believe the fun here," said one woman, drooling over the list of bachelors that included politicians, body builders, doctors, lawyers and just plain Joes who weren't very plain at all.

Neither were the hunters, who, in the early part of the evening, began to check out pictures and date packages posted outside the door of the Hilton ballrooms.

"I'm just browsing," said Margaret Campbell, voter registration clerk at Northville Township. "I'm really only window shopping."

There was plenty to shop for and plenty of sizes to choose. Ages of the foxes ranged from 20-year-old Rick Reickel to 45-year-old Victor Venegas.

And once the bidding started, there were foxes at every price, starting at $100, which was fine with Krista Moser of Shelby Township who had set herself a limit of $100 for a bachelor. "After all, for $10 I get entertainment and, if I'm lucky, I can help a good cause."

All of Moser's good intentions evaporated when she found herself the proud owner of a date for $175.

"He's worth it and so is the cause," she said.

Many women, like Moser, spent more than they intended, spurred by auctioneer Frank Boos who said he annually raises $1 million for charity through his voluntary efforts, and by the foxes, who assisted the auctioneer by letting the hunters see what they were getting.

Michael Anthony Knight, a 6-foot-6 sales representative, was dissatisfied with the early bids and took off his coat to spur the bidding to $300 and when his cumberbund hit the ground, the bids hit $350.

By the time the final gavel rang down on the night, everyone agreed that the hunt was just the beginning. The successful bidders were looking forward to their evenings out, but not nearly as much as the foxes.

Denise Donnelly of Novi made the most expensive purchase of the evening, $500 for a date with therapist Michael Dolan

Random Sample is an unscientific poll of ten Northville/Novi residents conducted by the newspaper staff

'Foxes' have fun supporting worthy cause

The waiting was the toughest part, according to Rick Reickel. He did not know who would buy him, how much he would go for, or even if he would be bought at all. Although he remained true to doing his part for a worthy charity, for the final few moments before the auction began he could only remark about how he would never listen to his father again regarding the easiest way to get a date.

Reickel, 20, is a junior at Central Michigan University. His family lives in Northville, and he was the youngest male to take part in the Fox Hunt, a date auction to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association at the Novi Hilton last week.

It seems as though Reickel's entry into the auction was his father's idea, and although the younger Reickel did not mind being "sold" for charity, he was more than a bit edgy about the evening's festivities.

He was not alone. He had 30 other men to keep him company in a Hilton conference room before the auction. All of the Northville bachelor Rick Reickel got carried away for charity (?) after the event was over. Reickel is holding his soon-to-be date Debbie Redfern of Canton bachelors arrived more than an hour before the event to loosen up, plot some strategies, loosen up, pose for pictures with Miss Michigan USA Elizabeth Puleo, and do some more loosening up.

One foxy bachelor, who shall not be named, was asked to more accurately describe the date he would treat his highest bidder to, and asked for more information to add to his personality profile. "I guess you could say I am a man about town," the fox said with a wink in his eye.

Reickel did not find himself totally alone among the pack of foxes, and was auctioned off with an ex-basketball coach who he hadn't seen in five years, Michael Anthony Knight, 27, had coached Reickel at a basketball camp at St. Mary's. (Knight would later be remembered for stripping off his coat, tie and cumberbund to attract higher bids.)

Although he said it did not matter how much money he was sold for, Reickel along with most of the other foxes for sale were willing to admit they were hoping they'd be sold for more than the price of admission to the event.

Reickel was sold for $225 to Debbie Redfern of Canton, and Reickel said he was pleased with how much he raised for M.D., but that he was glad his part in the event was over.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL HESS

Marcia Leppien wed at Mercy Center Chapel

Marcia Kay Leppien, formerly of Northville, became the bride of Michael Clayton Hess of Warren in a double ring ceremony April 25 at Mercy Center Chapel in Farmington Hills. Father John Budde of St. John's Seminary was the officiant.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Leppien who now live in Anderson, S.C. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hess of Allen Park.

The bride wore a gown of satin and taffeta with embroidered lace and pearls adorning the fitted bodice which featured long sleeves puffed at the shoulders. The skirt was designed with a ruffled, apron effect and extended into a long, ruffle-edged train. A lace embroidered hat held the bride's bouffant, fingertip veil.

She carried a cascading bouquet of lilies, carnations and palms with ivy.

Terry Younce, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Pat Finney, Jo Anne Berg, Lynne Bailey, sister of the bride, Linda Hess, sister of the bridegroom, and Val Leppien, sister-in-law of the bride.

They wore hooped, full-skirted gowns in pastel rainbow shades fashioned with scoop necklines and puff sleeves and carried flowers matching their gowns.

The bride's niece, Leandra Younce, was flower girl.

Charlie Foote was best man. Ushers were Charlie Hess, brother of the bridegroom, Bruce Leppien, brother of the bride, Tom Leppien, cousin of the bride, Jay Felstow and Mark Greene. Keith Finney, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. After a dinner reception at Ball

Hall in Canton, the newlyweds drove to Niagara Falls and to South Carolina. They then took a seven-day cruise to Ocho Rios, Grand Cayman Islands and to Cozumel.

They had met through work at IBM in Southfield.

The bride is a graduate of Northville High School and Central Michigan University.

Her husband is a Dearborn High School graduate.

They are building a home in Canton.

Daniels to move from landmark 1848 home they restored

By JEAN DAY

"We couldn't break our roots so we're just moving to an apartment in Northville Forest," Jackie Daniel explained as she and her husband, Bob, parted with some of their collection of antiques at a sale earlier this month.

They have sold their home on Five Mile that was the background for their many antiques. The decision to sell the 14-room landmark that they moved from atop a hill at Seven Mile and Haggerty (next to Schoolcraft College property) was made following Bob's heart attack. The Daniels in 1977 had sold their Victorian Gothic cottage on Dunlap to move and restore the home that had belonged to Reynold and Nellie Esch.

In the next few years the Daniels replaced almost every window in the badly vandalized house, sanded floors and wallpapered. By 1981 the home, which dates to 1848, was restored and furnished with antiques and was featured on the home tour sponsored by First Presbyterian Church women and Northville Historical Society that September. Bob Daniel is a past president of the historical society.

Not surprisingly, Jackie Daniel related that the home was sold "right away" and they were faced with keeping only "the things we like the most."

Summer brings news of former residents

William Tomczyk, former head of the Northville State Police Post and a past president of the Northville Rotary Club, surprised club members with a visit this month. He reported that retirement arrangements in Arizona are "great."

This spring Jack Hoffman, former Northville Record editor and author of "Northville — the First 100 Years," joined John Genitti and other friends to sail on a repeat trip to the Abaco Islands. Now publisher of the Inland Resorter at Indian River, he prepared a special edition on lumbering for publication while he was sailing.

He reports that Indian River had one of the biggest crowds ever for Fourth of July festivities.

Former longtime township residents Ed and Mae Sepp, who retired to Jensen Beach, Fla., report they are spending summers at their cottage at Lake Linden in the Upper Peninsula.

They say they still miss Northville and hope to visit here in October.

Edna Tremor, who is in town from Kerrville, Tex., is visiting Margaret Nauman. She reports that her daughter and son-in-law, Gail and Chuck Gross, and their family are enjoying life in the Lone Star state. The former Northville residents moved to Texas where he purchased a printing business. Gail is teaching in the Catholic school in Kerrville.

MR. AND MRS. JEFFREY BURDESS

MR. AND MRS. ROGER EIBACH

Lori Snyder married in Illinois

Lori Ann Snyder, daughter of H. Richard and Marilyn Snyder of 42047 Crestview Circle, and Jeffrey John Burdese of Hanna City, Ill., were married in a 4 p.m. service June 20 at Faith Baptist Church in Pekin, Ill.

The bridegroom is the son of John and Donna Burdese of Hanna City.

The bride's gown of white satin was fashioned with an illusion yoke adorned with beaded embroidery. The skirt extended into a full, cathedral train and featured embroidered insets. A floral wreath held the illusion bridal veil.

The bride's cascade bouquet was white with greens.

The bride's sister, Amy Snider, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Cindy Brown and Kathy Rich. Another sister of the bride, Angie Snyder, was a junior bridesmaid. They wore teal blue satin gowns.

Rebecca Hauter was flower girl. Jerry Burdese was best man. Brad Snyder, a cousin of the bride, was junior groomsman, and Todd Snyder, also a cousin, was ring bearer. Jon Kincaid and Andy Beadles were groomsmen. Ushers were B. J. Birr, Tony Alwood, Mark McKee, Aaron Cavanaugh and Todd Alwood.

Following a reception at the church, a dinner reception was held at Jumer's Castle Lodge in Peoria, Ill.

After a wedding trip to the Wisconsin Dells, the newlyweds are making their home in Watertown, Wis.

The bride is a 1986 graduate of North Hennepin Technical Center and is employed by Plymouth Court Nursing Home. The bridegroom is attending Maranatha Baptist Bible College and is employed by United Parcel Service.

Park is setting for outdoor service

Julia Lee McDaniel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. McDaniel of 212 E. Ely Drive, exchanged rings and vows with Roger Fredrick Eibach of Ann Arbor in an outdoor wedding ceremony with Independence Lake as background.

The bridegroom is the son of Ernst A. Eibach and the late Mrs. Thelma Eibach.

Officiant for the wedding at Independence Lake County Park at Whitmore Lake May 9 was Stephen Sparks, pastor of First Baptist Church of Northville.

Burt DeRusha and Kim DeRusha of St. Louis, Mo., a classmate of the bride, provided vocal music accompanied by Mrs. Leslie Morrison who played synthesizer, and by an instrumental group led by Randy Casteel.

The wedding party entered through a trellis decorated with pink flowering crab apple blossoms and walked down an aisle marked with pink ribbon, bows and white silk stephanotis to the platform for the ceremony. It was decorated with potted green plants and white silk day lilies.

The bride's gown of white chiffon and silk organza was styled with a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves of illusion chiffon. The skirt extended into a cathedral train. Appliques of lace and seed pearls adorned the gown. The bride's fingertip veil was bordered with matching lace.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Melissa McDaniel was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Carol Armstrong of Davisburg and Laura Eibach of South Haven, sisters of the bridegroom, and Linda McDaniel of Denver, sister-in-law of the bride.

They wore pink satin gowns with lace overlay styled with fitted bodices and puff sleeves. The tea length skirts dipped to the floor in back. They carried pink rubrum lilies and stephanotis.

Jessica McDaniel of Denver, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She carried a basket of pink sweetheart roses and wore a dress that was a copy of those worn by the bridesmaids. It had been made by the bride's mother.

Gary Michalek of Farmington was best man. Ushers were Jed McDaniel of Northville and Mark McDaniel of Denver, brothers of the bride, Chuck Knock of South Haven.

A reception for 300 guests at the park was followed by a dinner for family members and Ann Arbor guests at the Black Sheep Inn in Manchester. Guests attended from Louisiana, New Mexico, Virginia and Colorado as well as from Michigan.

After a two week wedding trip to Hawaii the newlyweds are living in Ann Arbor. They had met on a ski trip to Collingwood, Ont., Canada.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Northville High School and a 1982 graduate of the University of Michigan and did graduate work at Eastern Michigan University for her teaching certificate. She is employed at St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor.

The bridegroom is a 1968 graduate of Seaboard High School. He received his degree from EMU and presently is employed at Applicon in Ann Arbor as custom product program manager.

Golfer returns with weighty credentials

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Look out Michigan!

Golfer Brian Conser is back playing and teaching at a local golf course after being away for 17 years. He is already helping the locals to improve their golf game and is anxious to give fellow Michigan golf professionals a little more competition at the local pro tournaments as well.

Conser, 29, was originally from Michigan, but has spent nearly two decades tearing up the courses in California and Arizona. He was born in Detroit and grew up in Northville and Ann Arbor but, when he reached high school age, Conser's family moved to suburban Los Angeles. In California he continued to develop his already impressive golf game.

"I've played golf ever since I was three years old back in Michigan and it's always been something I've loved," he said.

In high school, Conser had great successes, and was eventually named a high school All-American his senior year. For the next four years, Conser played for Arizona State University on an athletic Scholarship. After college, he turned professional and undertook the difficult task of trying to qualify for the Professional Golfers Association (PGA) Tour.

"I spent the last four years trying to qualify for the PGA Tour, but it's been pretty tough," Conser admitted.

In the four tries, Conser did reach the finals once in 1982 but missed qualifying for the tour by 10 strokes in the six-round final. During his PGA quest, Conser was a working professional at a course in Los Angeles and helped organize a company that caters to corporate golf outings with two colleagues.

"The company is called 'Swingtime Golf' and we work with many of the top corporations like IBM at convention sites," Conser explained. "We help organize tournaments and give lessons to the executives while they are at conventions for their recreation."

Conser travels all across the nation to organize these outings along with his golf partners who currently reside in Canada and California.

"Our organization is very unique," he said. "Not many people are doing this type of thing for corporations. We usually put on the outings during the wintertime and we end up traveling all over the place."

Following a stint as a golf pro in Arizona, Conser decided to make the move back to Michigan this summer in order to be closer to his mother, Northville resident Maureen Gleswein. Conser made the move about three weeks ago and is now working at South Lyon's Godwin Glen Golf Club as the teaching pro.

"I came and played a golf outing at Godwin Glen and found out there was an opening," he said. "They made me a nice offer to teach exclusively, and I jumped at the chance."

Currently, Conser is trying to get himself established in Michigan after 17 years. He is already teaching group and private lessons and admits that the transition has been very good so far.

"The transition was smooth and I think I'm in a great situation," Conser pointed out. "In the summer, I'll be teaching at Godwin Glen and in the winter I'll be out on the road with the corporate outings."

It's pretty obvious that golf is a big part of Conser's life. He plans to become involved in the many local tournaments held for Michigan professionals in the state. Tournaments like the Michigan Open are fair game, and Conser believes he can make an impact.

"I'm looking forward to playing in the Michigan tournaments, especially next summer," he said. "I know there are a lot of good players here, but I also think I can be a factor. There are a lot of good tournaments offered and the prize money is good."

One of the things that has impressed Conser about golf in this area is the intense love Michiganders have for the game.

Northville's Brian Conser illustrates the proper form for an iron shot (above) and instructs student Lori Humenik on her swing

"The people around here are so excited to play and I think that is great," he said. "There seems to be much more die-hard golfers in Michigan than you'll find in places like Arizona and California where you can play all year 'round."

"I love to play and I love to teach. One of my greatest pleasures is to take someone who is having trouble with their game and be able to help them turn it around."

Caesars wins round five, sets up exciting stretch run

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Holzer shortstop Eric Engel bobbles a grounder against Walters Appliance on July 17

The race for the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League (LCBL) title has become a two-team battle. As it has been for most of the season, Northville's Tom Holzer Ford and Little Caesars are the two key combatants. Every time the two play one another, the results are very important to the league standings.

On July 18, the two met head on for the fifth time this season and the result went to Caesars, 8-3. For the third time, Holzer still holds a narrow 3-2 edge in head-to-head meetings.

The most recent win by Caesars over Holzer's team was on July 17, the two teams back in a virtual tie for the first place again.

"We still play each other three more times during the regular season so our fate is really in our own hands," Holzer Coach Bob Peterson said. "If we can take two of three from them, we'll likely win the title."

Holzer starter, and loser, Gary Zwolinski experienced control problems against Caesars as he allowed eight walks and eight hits. A two-run second inning put Caesars in front early, but Holzer fought back with a rally in the third to take the lead temporarily. A walk to Steve Merriman, and a double by Paul Newitt put runners in scoring position for Tom Cotter and he responded by delivering a clutch two-run single. A hit by Dave Knapp advanced the runner and set up an RBI hit by Scott Peterson.

But Caesars quickly erased the deficit with two runs in the fourth and three more in the fifth off Zwolinski. Holzer never threatened the rest of the way as Caesars' hurler Shawn Uzarski became sharper as the game continued.

"All four of our hits came in that third inning rally," Peterson pointed out. "Other than that, they completely shut us down offensively."

But thanks to help from Walters Appliance, Holzer kept pace with Caesars through the end of last week. On July 17, Holzer nipped Walters 3-2 behind another steady performance by pitching ace Dan Kopitzke and the hitting of Eric Engel and Tom Ritter. The win, combined with a Walters' win over Caesars last Sunday (July 19), kept the race nip and tuck.

"We still play each other three more times during the regular season so our fate is really in our own hands. If we can take two of three from them, we'll likely win the title."

Kopitzke went the distance against Walters, struck out nine, walked five and managed to strand a bundle of Walters' base runners. He was tagged for a single run in the first and another in the sixth, but the damage was minimal as he scattered six hits.

"Dan pitched brilliantly," Peterson pointed out. "He was exceptionally effective in the clutch situations. In seven innings, Walters left 10 runners on base."

Holzer drew first blood in the first inning on an Engel double and an RBI hit by Ritter. After Walters tied it in the bottom of the inning, Holzer added another single run in the third. A pair of walks to Peterson and Ritter sandwiched around a hit by Engel load the bases and allowed Peterson to score on a fielder's choice.

In the fifth, Engel led off with another double and Ritter drove him home again to make it 3-1. A single run by Walters wasn't enough, but the game didn't end without some anxious moments. In the bottom of the seventh, with Holzer hanging on to a 3-2 lead, Walters put two runners on base without an out. But following a missed bunt attempt, Holzer catcher Kevin Ritter spotted the Walters' runner at second base leaning in, and gunned him out. Kopitzke then fanned the final two batters for his sixth win of the season.

On July 20, Holzer wrapped up the week with a strange 5-5 tie with Walters, which may help the team during the title run. Walters hit Holzer starter Tom Cotter pretty hard in the early going, scoring three in the first and another in the second. Holzer came back to tie it in the fifth with a lot of luck and some help from Walters. Eric Engel's single was the only hit of the inning, but three walks, a balk and an error on a potential double play ball handed Holzer the runs.

Holzer came back again in the sixth to tie the game at 4-4 on a double by Scott Knapp and a sacrifice. In the seventh, Walters squeaked out a run in the top of the inning but Holzer again deadlocked the score at 5-5 on a Kevin Ritter double and an RBI hit by Paul Newitt. The game was then called due to darkness.

"We get a point for a tie so it makes it nearly impossible for us and Caesars to end up tied for the title," Peterson said. "Walters just handed us the tie — we didn't deserve it. We had plenty of chances to score on our own but we didn't get the job done."

"We are pretty optimistic about our chances down the stretch. The key is going to be pitching, as it usually is, and we like our position. It's down to a two-team race."

Here is a closer look at the LCBL standings as of July 21:

Key baseball tourneys are coming

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville will be the center of attention for baseball tournaments again this summer.

The Northville High School field has been chosen as the site for two National Amateur Baseball Federation (NABF) World Series events as well as a Senior Regional for Connie Mack (age 16-18) level players. This is the fifth straight year Northville has been the host city for an NABF World Series event.

The Senior Regional will get under way on July 28, the Sophomore World Series (for players age 13-14) will start on July 31 and the Junior World Series (age 15-16) opens on Aug. 6. The tournament director is Northville baseball Coach Bob Frelick who served in that capacity a year ago, and his optimism is running at an all-time high.

"We are real busy right now getting ready for the tournaments," he said. "We are just finishing the programs for both world series and we've increased the donations already."

One of the big advantages of hosting these tournaments is that three local squads will get automatic bids and will be invited to participate against some of the best teams in Michigan and around the country. Northville's Connie Mack squad, coached by Ed Harp, will be one of seven teams competing at the Senior Regional. Two other teams from the Little Caesars Amateur Baseball Federation 18 and under league (LCABF) will also receive bids along with a team from Macomb County, another from Oakland County and two from Detroit. The winner of the regional will qualify for the Senior World Series to be held in August at an undisclosed location.

You can throw out all the records when the regional is played," Harp said. "It's like a whole new season. We are using our last few games to prime ourselves for the tournament. With our pitching, we are a force to be reckoned with. If our hitting comes around I think we'll have something to say about who wins the whole thing. I think we'll do well, we just need to stick together."

Sophomore World Series will feature five teams from across the country, including the Northville Sandy Koufax team coached by Dave McCreadie. Teams from four state regions — Washington, Michigan, Ohio and New York — will also be represented.

The Junior World Series will include Northville's Mickey Mantle squad, coached by Paul Baetz, and the winner of the Michigan Regional Tournament which will be played in Novi. Also participating will be teams from New York, Louisville, Maumee and Strongsville, Ohio and Washington.

"I think it's great for the local kids to be able to take part in great tournaments like these," Frelick said. "We have an awful lot to offer here in Northville. We have one of the best facilities and a whole lot of great volunteers that can help pull this whole thing off."

Novi High School was to host the NABF Michigan Junior Region Tournament beginning July 30, but the plan fell through. Novi opted out of the four-day, six-team event because there were not enough volunteers to help organize and carry it out.

An alternate site may be established, possibly in Plymouth, but the tournament will be played. It is a battle for the right to come to Northville for the Junior World Series.

Great Lakes Junior Masters draws 288

A total of 288 golfers participated in the Great Lakes Junior Masters Golf Tournament at Northville's Meadowbrook Country Club on July 6-8.

In the 54-hole tournament, only one local golfer managed to place among the top five in his or her age category. Novi's Steve Megesi placed fourth in the boys' 11-13 division, shooting a three round total of 282, 45 shots behind the winner Gordon Burns of Scarborough, Ont.

In the other age groups, Stephen Anderson of Circleville, Ohio, won the boys' 16-17 division with a three round total of 228 while the girls' 16-17 winner was Farmington Hills' Erica Zonder (248). In the boys' 14-15 division, medalist honors went to Ken Vanko (232) of St. Charles, Ill., and in the girls' 11-15 group, first place honors went to Kelly O'Neill of Troy (266).

The field was cut to 144 after 36 holes. The tourney drew some of the finest young golfers from across the U.S. and Canada. Participants came from as far away as California and Rhode Island. According to Meadowbrook Professional Andy Soley, the entire event was a big success.

"It was my first year associated with this tournament and I thought it was great," he said. "The caliber of play was just excellent."

DOUBLE ACES: Christine Salow of Northville just loves the eighth hole at Lakelands Golf and Country Club in Livingston County. Within the span of three weeks, Salow registered a pair of holes-in-one on that same hole. Both times she used her pitching wedge to conquer the 83-yard, par three hole. Stan Hughes of Brighton also aced the eighth hole last month. He used a five iron to cover the 136-yards from the men's tee.

MORE HOLES-IN-ONE: Northville residents Robert Delany and Bob Woodward came up with a hole-in-one while golfing last week. Delany aced the 150-yard third hole at Fox Hills Golf Course and shot an 86 for the round. Woodward used an eight iron on the 160-yard second hole at Union Lake's Bogie Lake Country Club.

MARK SCHWAGLE

Schwagle, 12, stars in tennis tourneys

For just a 12-year-old, Northville's Mark Schwagle sure gets around.

The budding young tennis star has spent most of his summer traveling from state to state, and his association with tennis is the reason. During a five-week period this summer, Mark will have played in four National Tournaments in four different states. And it is important to point out that these events aren't for everyone — only players good enough to qualify are allowed and Mark is definitely good enough.

The biggest highlight so far for Schwagle this summer came several weeks ago when he captured first place for his age group at the Western Closed Junior Tennis Championships in Okemos near Lansing. The event featured standout players from six midwestern states and was held between June 27-July 2 at the Lansing Racquet Club. It was there, on the Okemos court, that Schwagle proved he is one of the midwest's finest age 12 and under players.

Schwagle needed to qualify for the tournament at a state regional event and did at the Michigan Southeastern Regional earlier this spring. He placed second when he lost a tough match to West Bloomfield's Seth Hoffman in the finals.

But at the Junior Championships, Schwagle gained a measure of revenge by topping Hoffman 6-4, 2-6, 6-2 in a grueling semifinal match. Once past his chief competitor, Schwagle cruised to the title with a very easy 6-0, 6-0 win over Scott Marshall of Cincinnati, Ohio in the finals.

The Western District of the United States Tennis Association (USTA) consists of Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and West Virginia. It is the largest district of the USTA, and a total of 96 players were vying for the 12 and under championship.

The top 20 or so competitors from the Western District are endorsed to play in the USTA National Championships, and Schwagle sure fits into that category. There are currently four USTA sponsored National Championship events held each year, and they draw 128 players from all parts of the country to compete against each other.

Schwagle is currently playing in the USTA Clay Court Championships through July 25 in Winston Salem, N.C. and will wrap up a summer of tennis at another USTA national championship tournament in San Diego Aug. 3-9. He just finished competing in a tournament in Corpus Christi, Texas, a week ago and plans to enroll in the fourth and final tournament during the Thanksgiving holiday.

Mark, who will be entering the seventh grade at Northville's Meads Mill Middle School in the fall, practices about 15 hours a week all during the year. He has been competing in at least one regional tournament a month in the 14 and under age division in order to play stiffer competition. If all goes as planned, Schwagle will probably be ranked in the top 10 nationally in the boys' 12 and under division before the end of the year.

"Then we will have to see how much work and desire (Mark) wants to put into tennis as he matures," his father, Dr. Thomas Schwagle, said.

Harp looking for clutch hits as post-season draws closer

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Time and time again, Northville's Connie Mack squad has been just one or two key hits away from pulling out a big win — but those key hits never seemed to come.

A sporadic and sometimes unproductive offense has been the underlying problem for Northville all season long, and with the NABF Senior Regional (see related story) coming to the area in five days, Coach Ed Harp is hoping these offensive woes will work themselves out. Last week, Northville was credited with a pair of wins and a pair of losses, but the two victories came by way of forfeit. On July 14, Windsor came to town and left with a 7-4 triumph tucked safely away. A rainout against Huron Valley on July 16 was then followed by a heartbreak 2-1 defeat at Westland last Saturday (July 18) and the two forfeit wins on Sunday.

Windsor had Northville starter Brett Loomis figured out from the first pitch, and pushed four runs across the plate in the first two innings. In the third, Northville broke an agonizing scoreless streak with a four-run outburst on five hits. Tom Skynar walked, Loomis singled and a fielder's choice scored the first run. Derek Osborne followed with an RBI single and after Doug Martin reached base on an error, Jeff Harp delivered a key two-run double to knot the score at 4-4.

The rally was the first runs scored by Northville in over 16 innings of play. In all, nine batters went to the plate but it was to be the team's last major scoring threat.

Windsor scored a pair on the fifth and another in the top of the seventh to pull ahead 7-4 — and in the bottom of the inning, Northville loaded the bases with no outs, but somehow failed to score.

"We just didn't deliver the key hits during the key times of the game," Harp explained.

Two days later, it appeared Northville was on its way to a victory over Huron Valley when the rains forced a postponement in the bottom of the second inning with the locals holding a 1-0 lead. Northville ace Doug Martin was in top form again, and appeared to be on his way to yet another fabulous pitching performance. Martin fanned the first six batters he faced in the drizzle.

"If ever I felt a no-hitter coming, that was the time," Harp said. "Martin was throwing a wet baseball, but he was virtually unhittable. He didn't throw more than 12 times in each of the first two innings."

In the bottom of the second, Adam Behen led off with a single, advanced to second on a fielder's choice, and scored on a Scott Griggs double before the rains came. Harp believes the game will be resumed sometime in the next week.

George Daraban provided the pitching against Westland but again the bats were silent. Two singles and a passed ball enabled Westland to score a run in the second and it remained until Northville tied it up in the sixth on a Martin double and run-scoring single by Daraban.

But Westland strung together three hits in the seventh off Daraban to score the game-winner. For the day, Westland managed just four hits and two earned runs, but Daraban didn't get much help from the offense.

"It was a very tough game to lose," Harp pointed out. "We just couldn't punch the runs in when we needed them. We are leaving a lot of runners stranded."

Sunday's scheduled doubleheader was never played as the Detroit team never showed up. Northville's season mark is now 5-9 overall with only four regular season contests remaining.

Record/CHRIS BOYD

GOT IT! — Matthew Demmers, 6, makes the catch as fellow T-batters Kevin Pisani, Evan Edwards and Mark Russell look on. All four are members of the T-ball class offered by the Northville Recreation Department.
