Booths of handcrafts share space with fresh corn and other produce at farmers' market

Expansion forces market to move

While stalls of handcrafted wares have expanded the offerings at the Northville Farmers' Market during the last few weeks, the market itself now is faced with moving to a new location.

Laurie Marrs, executive director of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce which sponsors the market, said Tuesday she had received official notification from City Manager Steve Walters that the market will have to be relocated by Sept. 17.

He said Plagens intends to begin construction on the site in mid-September.

Marrs said the market "probably will have to be moved across the street to the parking lot behind the stores at the corner of Hutton and Dunlap streets."

She added that the chamber's long-range goal is to have a covered farmers' market but that funding will have to be raised.

The market had been moved previously to the lot at Hutton and Dunlap when it was expected two years ago that Plagens would expand. When the new construction was delayed, it returned to the Main Street location.

Marrs said that the farmers have liked the location on Main Street for its exposure.

Only produce brought directly from the farms by farmers is sold at the market.

Booths of handcrafted items have been added across the back area of the market. Crafts on sale must be handmade. They include wood accessories, fabric creations and, this week, corn husk crafts. In addition to fruits and vegetables from area farms, fresh and dried flowers and wreaths have been sold at the market.

The market is open every Thursday during the growing season from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Second show may run during MAGS days

The Northville Recreation building is scheduled to host a private gift show during the same September days as a similar show at the Michigan Association of Gift Salesmen (MAGS), but a situation five years ago may provide a precedent against such events at the rec center.

Two individuals have reserved the recreation building for Sept. 12-14 for the "Detroit Gift Show," Recreation Director John Anderson said. Upon learning of the scheduling, MAGS President Karl Gansler wrote to the Recreation Commission requesting that the competing show not be allowed the use of the building - which would be MAGS' Northville Square space - on those dates, and that the commission adopt that position as policy.

"A gift show which is run at the same time as the MAGS show would be gleaming the benefits of seven and a half years of expense, hard work, publicity and customer development by the MAGS organization. Our survival here in Northville depends solely on successful gift shows; to allow competitive shows two doors away threatens the continued existence of MAGS," Gansler's letter read in part.

Anderson said that the recreation commission thought that not enough notice would be provided to cancel the September show at the recreation building located at 303 W. Main, two blocks away from the MAGS building at 133 W. Main.

Gansler responded, "It's taken us eight years now to make this a workable gift mart... (However), it's free enterprise. If it has to happen, it happens."

The same issue arose in July, 1982, when a private group reserved the rec building for a gift show at a time when MAGS wanted to rent the Budget heads agenda list for special session

By ANITA CRONE

Northville Township officials will get their first look at the proposed 1988 budget Monday, during a special meeting of the Northville Township Board of Trustees.

The meeting, scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. at Township Hall, will immediately follow a special closed meeting to discuss litigation.

Also scheduled to be discussed is the proposed expansion of Northville Township hall. Preliminary plans were presented by Donald DiComo of Kamp-DiComo Associates, P.C., to the trustees at their Aug. 13 meeting.

Those plans were immediately referred to the Capital Improvement Committee and are expected to be discussed at the special meeting.

Township Manager Steve Brock told the trustees Aug. 13 that payment had already been made for a preliminary study for the expansion, and he had invited DiComo to make a presentation.

"We haven't proved we can afford expansion," said Treasurer Richard Henningsen. "We (the capital needs committee) were charged with exploring possibilities for new construction."

But Brock said that he and the township department heads had been meeting and "we have all agreed that expansion is the way to go."

Trustee James Nowka questioned whether other options had been explored.

"Our best option is to expand the current facility," Brock said.

DiComo said the schematic drawings presented were the result of conversations held with Susan Heintz when she was township supervisor and of more recent discussions with Brock.

His designs showed expansion of the various pods that currently are used for the police and fire departments on the southwest portion of the building; the supervisor's office on the west; and the treasurer's and clerk's offices on the east.

"Under the plan, the only area where we won't actually be doing expansion is the southwest pod that currently is used by the fire department. That will become strictly the fire department," DiComo explained.

DiComo provided no cost estimates, although he said it was Brock's suggestion that a contract be brought before the board.

"It was at Steve Brock's suggestion that we brought the contract before you," DiComo said, noting that if the board wished to pursue architectural plans, it would be agreeing to pay Kamp-DiComo 15 percent of 7 percent of the construction costs.

Clerk set to receive ballot nominations

Filing begins next week for the Northville mayor and three city council positions up for election in the city this fall.

Beginning Tuesday, Sept. 1, candidates for elective city office may file nominating petitions with the city clerk.

The deadline for filing submitting a petition is Thursday, Oct. 1.

The city election is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 3. In addition to the mayor and council seats, city voters will consider seven "housekeeping" amendments to the city charter.

This year, the mayor's seat and three of the four City Council seats are up for election.

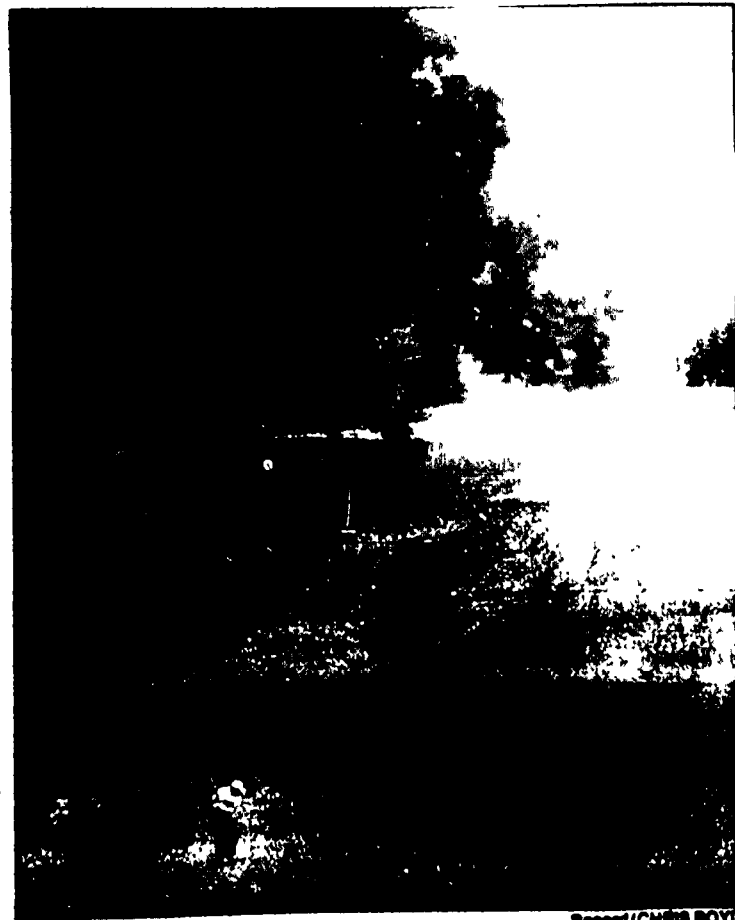

Under the Northville City Charter, the mayor is elected every two years. Incumbent Mayor Paul Vernon has announced that he will not run again this year.

City Council members serve four-year terms. The seats currently held by Carolann Ayers and Paul Folino will expire this year. In addition, a two-year council seat will also be on the ballot, to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of G. Dewey Gardner. Gardner resigned from the City Council in order to run for mayor.

Requirements to run for city office are: to have been a resident of the city for at least two years prior to the last day for filing (Oct. 1); and to be a registered voter in the city at the time of filing. Petitions are available in the city clerk's office, and must be signed by at least 50 (and no more than 75) registered voters of the city.

Seven proposed amendments to the city charter are also set to be on the ballot after the city council approved them earlier this summer. The seven are all described as minor changes to "clean up" the charter by bringing it into full compliance with state law for such items as election dates, references to governmental units or positions which no longer exist, and requirements of open meetings posting; and to extend the city's ability to purchase by installment.

Only court will decide sewer issue

By ANITA CRONE

Although a proposal for expansion of the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority sewage treatment plant is expected to be brought before the Michigan Water Resources Commission Sept. 17, no matter what the commission rules, it is expected in some quarters that it will take a lawsuit to resolve the issue of what to do with sewage in southeastern lower Michigan.

Department of Natural Resources officials have confirmed that they have not even begun a new review of plans for the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley wastewater treatment system and do not intend to do so until the matter of YCUA expansion is resolved.

Northville, Plymouth and Canton townships have announced their intentions to not participate in the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley project and instead send their flows to Ypsilanti and to YCUA. However, in order to make room for additional flows, YCUA officials maintain a plant expansion is necessary.

"When the three townships made it clear that they wanted out of the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley system, we said we would help them with YCUA," said Deputy County Executive Michael Duggan. "We anticipated that we could proceed with the plans for the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley system with the communities that remained in the system."

Duggan said he had not received any word from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources that the two projects were linked. The DNR makes recommendations to the Water Resources Commission on proposals brought before the commission and already recommended the commission approve YCUA expansion.

However, the commission requested additional information on the effects of YCUA expansion on Belleville Lake, and, in gathering the additional information, the DNR staff discovered the possibility of adverse effects on the lake that might occur with YCUA expansion.

And while the proposals are being discussed, the DNR has not issued any sewer permits in Plymouth or Northville townships. DNR approval is necessary for additional sewer taps.

"As far as we are concerned, there is no capacity in the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley system for any new sewer taps," said DNR Detroit District Area Water Quality Supervisor Roy Schramack.

He said Canton Township permits were still being allowed since the township had filed a separate municipal compliance plan with the DNR.

"But we are looking very closely at Canton, at Novi and at other communities to see whether they actually have capacity in the current system," Schramack said.

He noted that it was also possible more formal action would be taken against Northville and Plymouth townships, both of which have approved new construction plans providing the developers of the plans are able to obtain DNR approval.

Among the Northville Township projects put on hold by the DNR's action is a more than 600,000 square foot office campus on Six Mile Road, a large worship center for Ward Presbyterian Church and the Haggerty Road sewer, which would service a proposed Hampton Inn motel as well as the Dun Rovin Planned Residential Unit Development, a condominium and single-family home area expected to create more than 600 new dwelling units in the township.

Discussions start on Allen Terrace

Wheels are beginning to turn in preparation for the modernization and eventual expansion of the Allen Terrace senior housing complex, with renovation work possibly beginning next year, Northville City Manager Steven Walters said.

The Northville Housing Commission was scheduled to review both "necessity" and "luxury" improvements last night, an early step in a process which may last 10 or 15 years before the development reaches completion.

A list of improvements for consideration at Allen Terrace has been prepared. The list includes a wide variety of projects including replacement of air conditioning/heating units, ranges and refrigerators, a new generator, replacement of carpeting and padding, and replacing the roof.

"Not a whole lot is going to come out of (the present review of options) in the short run," Walters said. Consideration of the modernization will probably become more serious in the spring, during the city budget process, he said.

One important decision will be the most effective method to fund the improvements, Walters said. An annual appropriation may work best if the spending can be spread somewhat evenly over 10 years or so, but an issue of bonds might be necessary if a large expenditure is required in one year.

Some of the items on the "shopping list" of improvements are expensive, such as the new heating/air conditioning units, estimated at $103,400, and the roof replacement, estimated at $104,500.

Also due for consideration is the planned Phase II of the development, an addition of 100 units on the building's south side. This expansion, to be done with revenue bonds, will probably wait a year or two until the city has paid off some of its outstanding bond debt, Walters said.

He said the City Council would probably feel more comfortable with issuing bonds when the city has more room under its debt ceiling. "I think that's really what the stumbling block is," Walters said. Waiting a while would allow the city to still keep some room under the debt ceiling in case an emergency arises which required a bond issue, he explained.

After the review by the Housing Commission, the City Council may consider the Allen Terrace modernization at its next meeting on Sept. 8, Walters said.

Western Wayne search finds no drugs

A limited search of corrections officers at Western Wayne Corrections Facility yielded nothing Tuesday.

State Police Detective Sgt. Dean Sanderson from the Northville post, assisted by Laurie MacDonald and his golden retriever, Dandy, conducted a search of 30 corrections officers about 2 p.m.

The officers were coming on duty at the time, and the search was made at the request of Western Wayne Warden Emmett Baylor, Jr.

"We are just delighted that our officers are clean," said Baylor.

Sanderson said the search was part of an ongoing effort between the state Corrections Department and the state police in an effort to ensure there is no contraband being brought into state facilities.

"People need to be aware that we (the State Police) intend to prosecute anyone we find with contraband to the fullest extent of the law. And we intend to prosecute either for smuggling or for conspiracy to smuggle, a five-year felony," Sanderson said.

Baylor said prison administrators from across the country have joined a concerted effort against drugs and that Tuesday's action was not the first at Western Wayne.

"Prison administrators realize that we are not immune from the proliferation of drugs in our society," Baylor said.

He noted that it was at his request that the state police brought in Dandy, "Deputy (James) Pogats and myself were the only two people who knew that the dog was coming," Baylor said.

He explained that corrections officers coming to work were told to report to the roll call area, where the dog sniffed for contraband. When none was found, Baylor said, the dog was taken into the activities room, an area "that would be a logical place to hide contraband if anyone had brought any into the facility" but that search found no drugs either.

The dog also checked the clothing room and found nothing.

Sanderson and Charles Schumacher, public information officer for the Northville State Police Post, said Tuesday's action was not an isolated incident.

"There will be additional searches conducted at other state facilities," Sanderson said.

"The action at Western Wayne is part of the department's continuing enforcement action against drugs," Schumacher said. He noted that he expected similar searches to take place at Phoenix Correctional Facility and at Scott Regional Facility in Northville Township in the future.

Accident closes Seven Mile

An accident between a pedestrian and a car closed Seven Mile Road temporarily Monday morning.

State police reported that at 6:55 a.m. Timothy Patrick Roux, 19, of Northville was driving eastbound on Seven Mile Road, about 20 feet west of Silver Springs Drive when 21-year-old Edgar R. Sapla suddenly stepped in front of Roux's car.

Sapla suffered numerous scrapes and lacerations. He was taken to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

The incident is still under investigation and no citations have been issued.

Raising the roof

Don Kuester took some extreme measures recently to fix a kitchen leak — he literally raised the roof on his house. The leak, which had plagued the Kuesters for almost the entire 7½ years they had lived in Bealtown, forced the family to make a decision, Kuester said.

"We could either replace the roof, sell the house, or, since we needed additional space, put on the addition. We chose the addition."

The addition turned what was the smallest house on the street into a similar size house to those of their neighbors.

Kuester said that before the renovation, there had been one large bedroom with a dormer-type ceiling upstairs. Now, there are three bedrooms, a bath and closet space.

It took Kuester and about 10 friends 20 hours to complete the renovation — 10 hours Aug. 15 to remove the old roof and 10 hours on Aug. 22 to put on the addition.

He also learned some history of his house. "Judging from some of the work, I would say that this home was built sometime around the turn of the century," Kuester said.

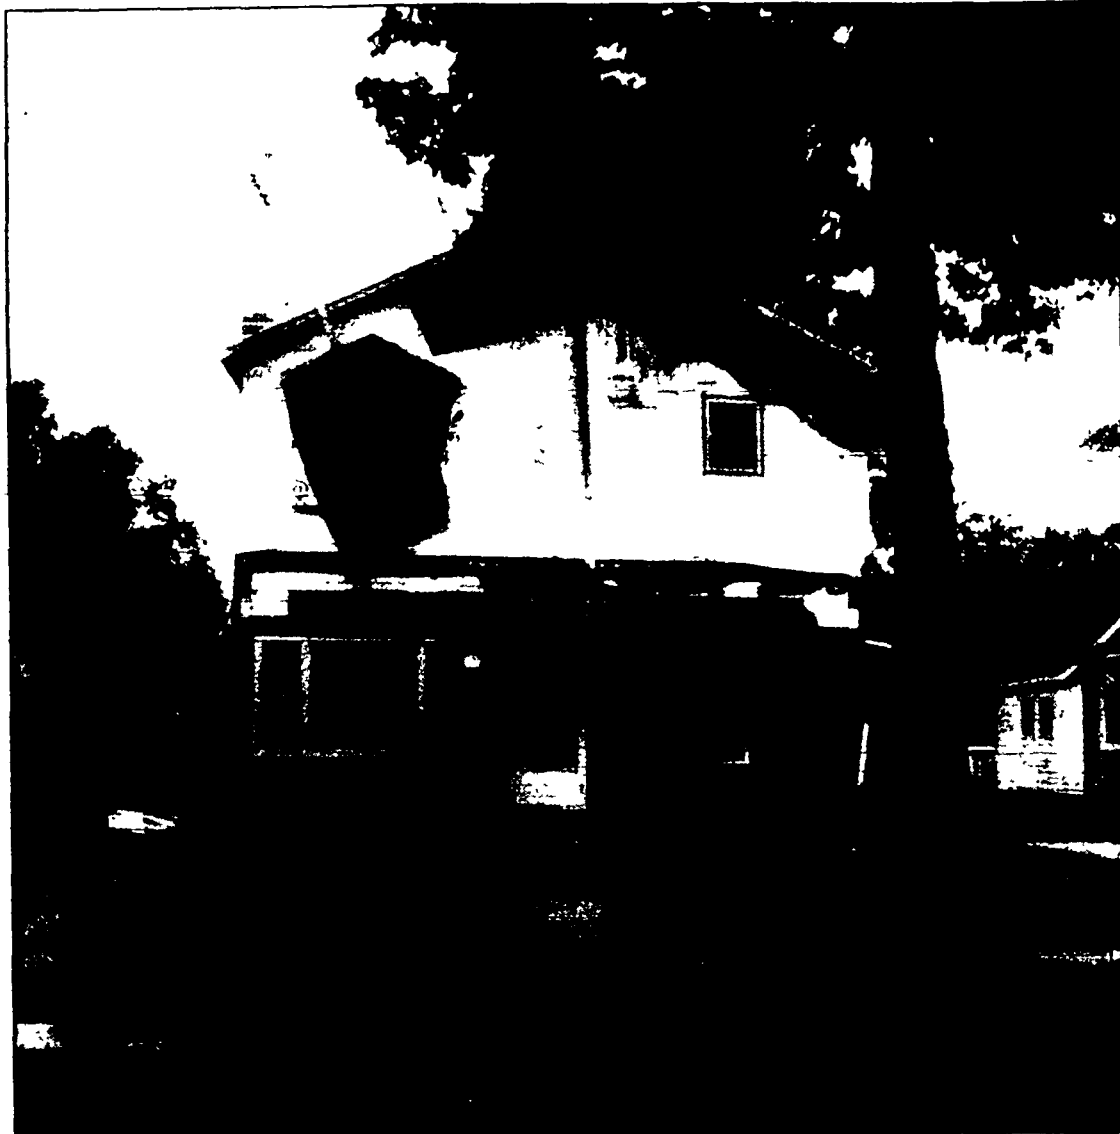

While working on the addition, Kuester said he found traces of a fire that had scorched one entire side of the house. He said he had talked to a neighbor, who told him there had been a major fire sometime in the late 1940s or early 1950s.

"I guess rather than sand down the traces of the fire, the owner chose to put up siding," Kuester said.

He added that while he was remodeling, he discovered that his new roof was actually the third to be put on the house. And while working on his house, Kuester said he found some carpentry tools left in the walls.

Don Kuester fixed the leak in his Bealtown home . . .

Police reserve officers an integral part of department

By ANITA CRONE

Guy Balok eats, drinks and breathes public service activities. Dick O'Hare has found a way to pay back the community he has lived in since 1979.

Ed Mroz always wanted to be a police officer and now he is — almost. The three men are linked by their volunteer activities as Northville Township police reservists, a 15-person department which assists regular officers in the performance of their duties.

The 15 men who make up the reserves have completed reserve training through Schoolcraft College, have most of the rights and responsibilities of full-time officers, including the right of arrest and to carry a firearm.

They range in age from 23 to over 50 and, according to Sgt. John Sherman, the group's training officers are an integral part of the department.

Balok, at 26, is one of the youngest reservists, but is also one of the most involved. One of his full-time jobs is a dispatcher with the township police department, the other is as a paramedic with two different companies.

"For me, public safety is where it's at," he said, explaining why he would spend his very limited spare time volunteering as a reserve officer.

Balok says he hopes to become a full-time police officer after he completes his bachelor's degree.

The township reservists have gone on to become officers in other departments as well as in the township, Sherman explained, citing current Northville Township officer Jeff Larente, Sharon Harlow, a trooper with the Michigan State Police, and Kevin Eves and Bill Carlton as examples.

"The people who become reserve officers are not in it for the money, that's for sure," Sherman said, explaining that reserve officers pay for their own school training — a 16-week course at Schoolcraft — their own uniforms, their own firearms and

"Ninety-five percent of the work we do with the township is road work. We do everything from helping at a traffic stop to the actual bookkeeping when an arrest is made."

— Dick O'Hare
Reserve Police Officer

spend as much as 10 hours a month in working with officers and in the required monthly meeting.

"Ninety-five percent of the work we do with the township is road work," said O'Hare. "We do everything from helping at a traffic stop to the actual bookkeeping when an arrest is made."

Reserve officers provide back-up to full-time officers from 7 p.m. until midnight. "They give us the advantage of having two men in a car," Sherman said.

One of the things reserve officers do not do is become cowboys. "Hey, I like being a reservist. But I don't want to have any cowboys on my shift," said Mroz, who has been promoted to sergeant and put in charge of one of two platoons.

"A reserve, like any of the regular officers, is in it to help people," explained Balok. "As a dispatcher, I'm part of the team and, as a reserve, I learn how important the dispatcher is."

"We do everything a regular officer does except the paperwork," Mroz said. He has assisted in almost every type of incident from drunk driving arrests, to heart attacks to traffic accidents.

For O'Hare, working with the township reserves is different from having served as a city reserve officer.

"In the city, the majority of our duties were connected with the race track, but when the city closed its reserves and went to part-time officers, that changed," O'Hare said.

Mroz, who said he wanted to become a police officer in Detroit, has spent time with three reserve departments and considers Northville Township's the best.

"They treat reserves as brother-of-icers. In Livonia and Detroit, reserve officers tend to be looked down upon," he said.

Sherman explains that the reserves are all carefully screened and the selection procedure is similar to that undergone by full-time police officers.

"The reserves submit an application to me, must complete course work, then undergo an oral board with the command officers," Sherman said.

There is an age requirement of 21, but there is no maximum age. James Schrot, the township constable, is the oldest reservist and he's over 50.

Sherman said that reservists come from all walks of life. Some are executives with the automobile companies, others are truck drivers, and still others are involved with security firms.

He noted that vacancies are filled as they occur. "You can go years without a vacancy in the department, and then, all of a sudden, there'll be a rapid turnover," he said.

Blanchard state budget cuts could affect Northville — maybe Cuts to the 1987-88 state budget recommended by Gov. James Blanchard may mean less state money coming to the Northville community, but officials say that does not necessarily mean it's time to panic.

Blanchard vetoed several budget line items, including special census revenue sharing and categorical aid to schools, both of which could directly affect money coming to Northville. The governor recommended several other cuts from the Department of Social Services, Department of Natural Resources and other areas.

Municipalities receive state money based on population, which in many cases means the 1980 census. Under the special census program, some communities — including Northville Township — have elected to conduct a mid-decade census, since a demonstrated population increase means more revenue.

But Blanchard vetoed this $5.6 million appropriation, which would mean a loss of over $90,000 to the township, State Senator Robert Geake (R-Northville) explained.

In the township, that cut could mean the loss of more than $90,000 annually in state revenue sharing.

"It is my understanding that the governor's veto was more of a procedural matter," said Supervisor Georgina Goss. "I anticipate that the money will be restored when the Legislature reconvenes."

In another cut, Blanchard vetoed state money to aid "categorical" school programs — those required by the state — particularly special education and transportation. The exact effect of such a cut on local districts is not known.

The cuts sparked outcries from various sectors when they were first announced earlier this summer. But Geake, who is vice-chair on the Senate Appropriations Committee, explained that the cuts are not final and, in fact, Blanchard himself may not favor the size of the cuts he recommended.

"I feel that the legislature will have to restore some of that money that was vetoed. The governor took money out of transportation and special education that absolutely has to be there," Geake said.

He explained that the governor is required to either approve or veto an entire appropriation. Thus, the only way for the governor to reduce a budget item is to eliminate it in the expectation that the legislature will restore part of the funding.

The Appropriations Committee may begin considering reduced appropriations as early as next week, Geake said. The full Senate reconvenes Sept. 22, and the state's fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

"I'll be working to restore as much of the governor's vetoed funds as we can afford, in order to reduce the impact on local schools and communities," Geake said.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BETTER HEALTH

IS YOUR CHILD ATHLETIC?

If your child is athletic, his enthusiasm for sports can sometimes lead to problems. Minor injuries are common enough when two bodies collide at full velocity. But body contact is not the only problem.

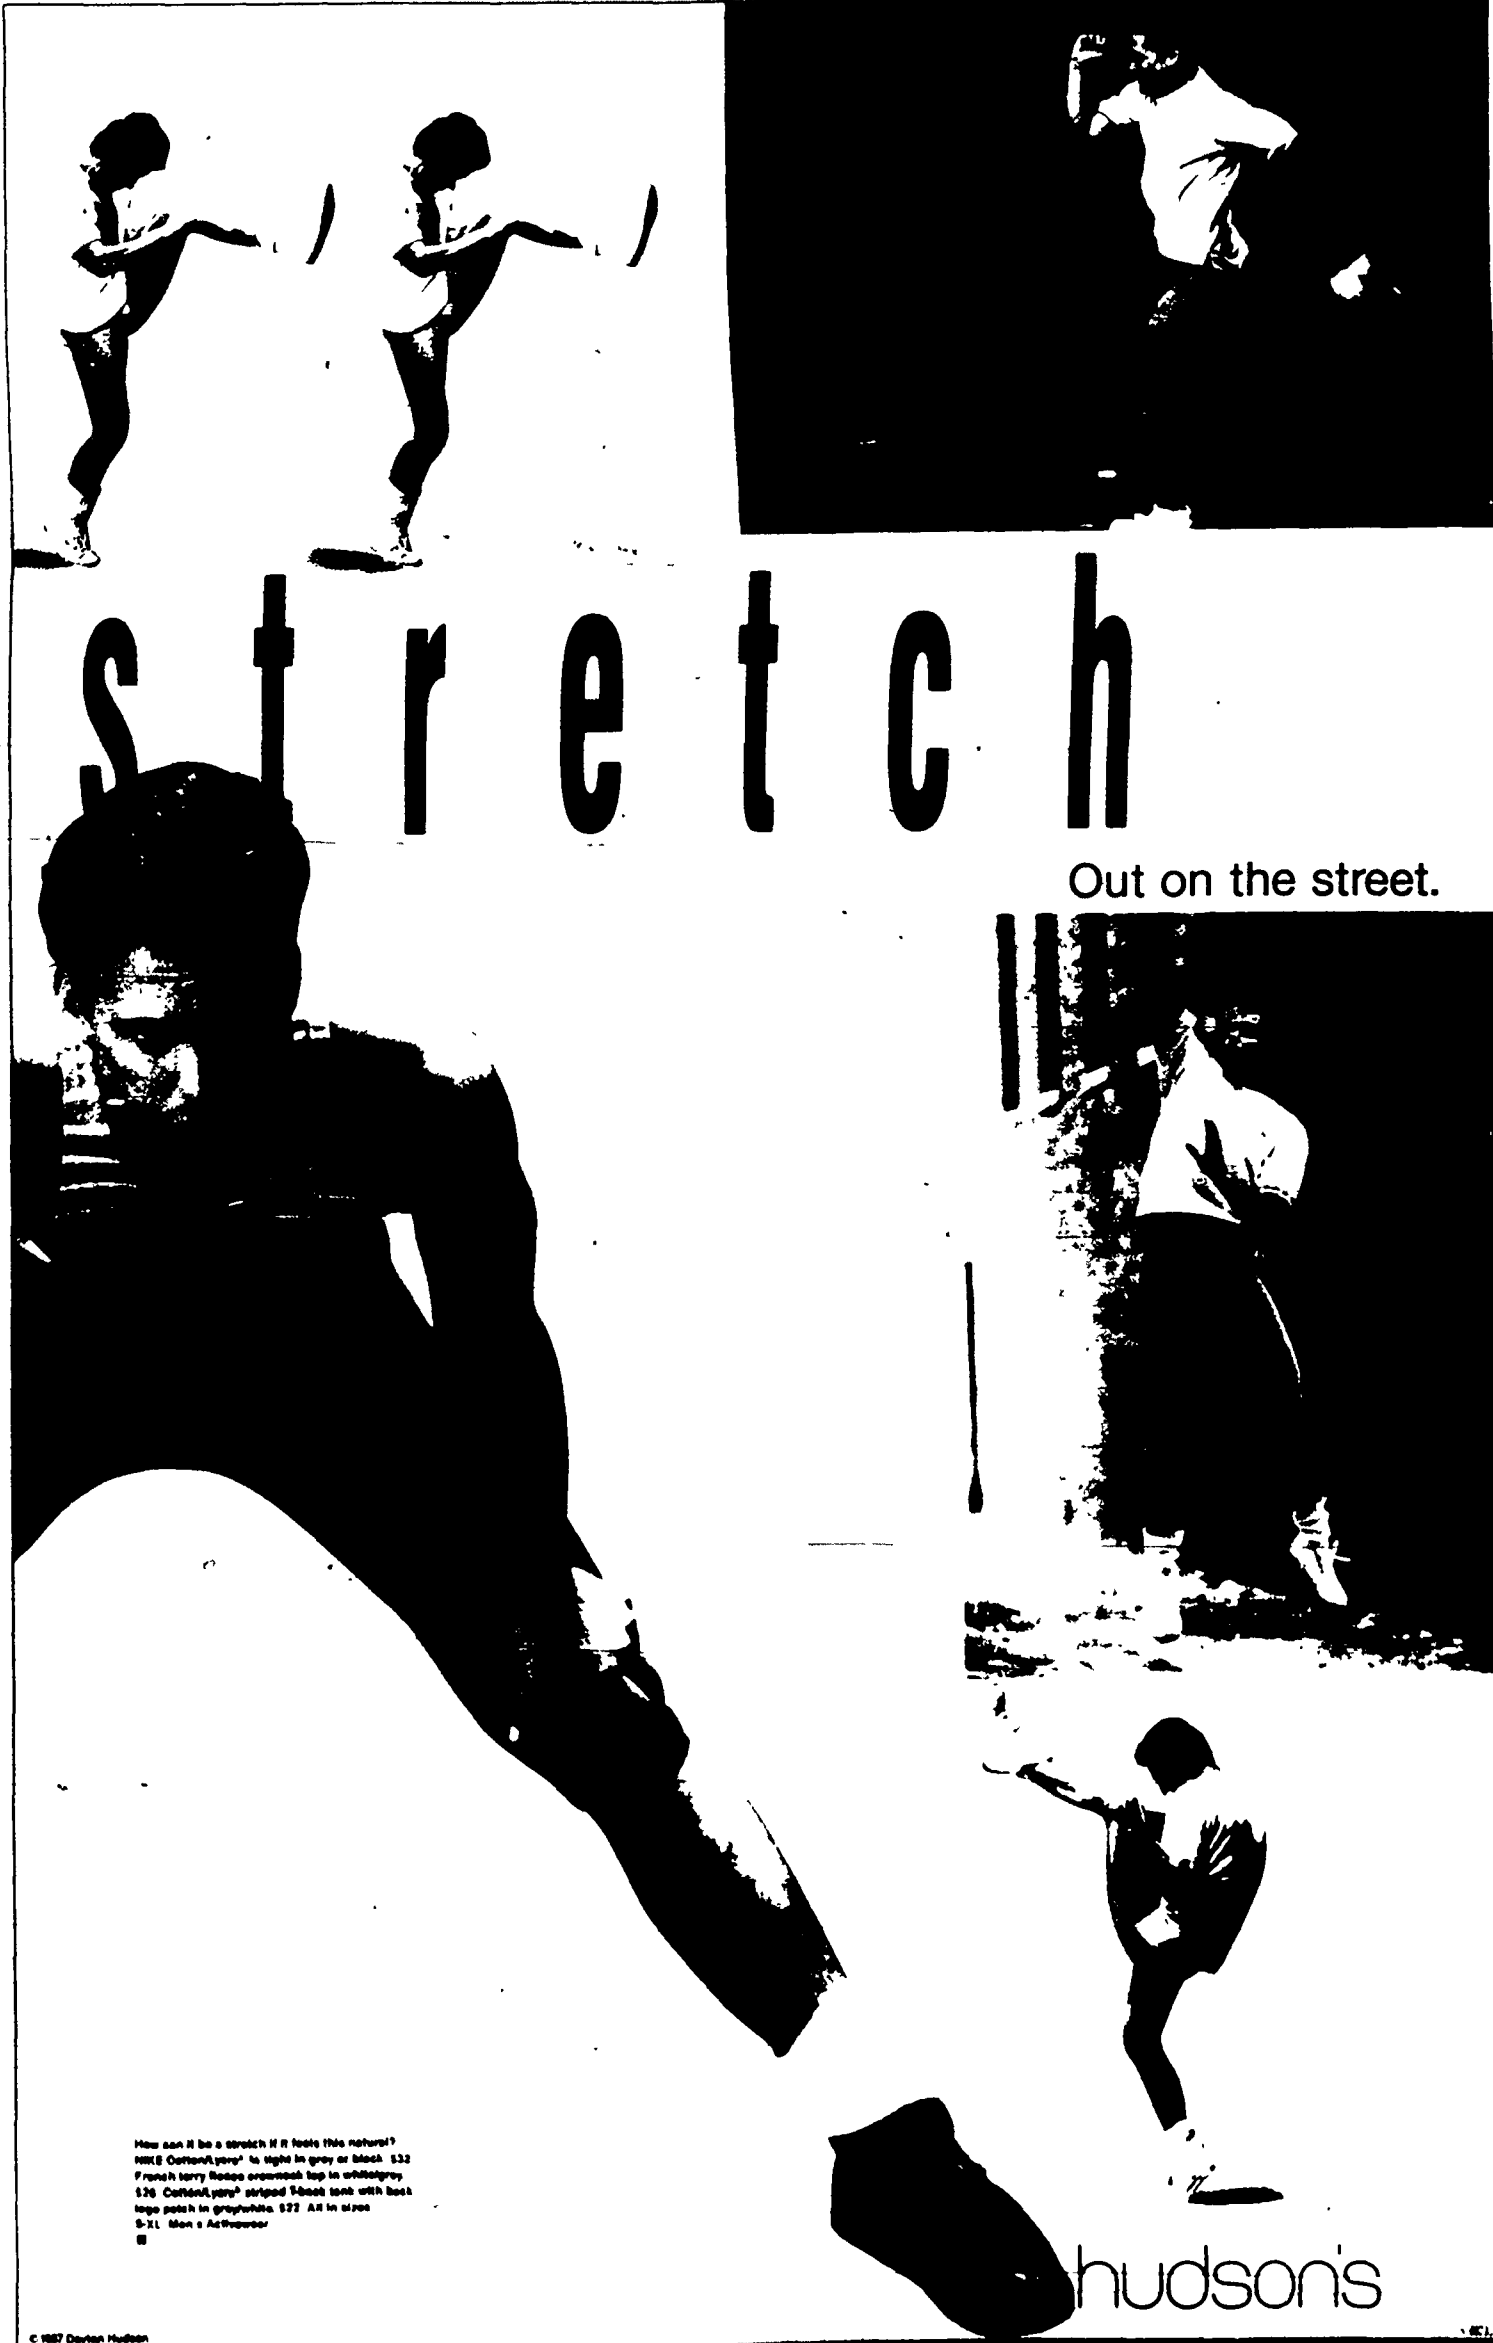

Starts and stops at high speed, twisting and turning into awkward positions may cause strains to muscles, limbs, and back. Untempered enthusiasm may cause a youngster to try harder and play longer than is good for him. If his body is fatigued, there is greater potential for accidents and injury.

And if he's too proud to complain of minor injuries, how do you find out if there's a problem that should be treated before it becomes worse?

The best answer is periodic chiropractic examinations. These are recommended before the season begins, so he can start in top form. They're also recommended whenever an injury occurs as well as at the end of the season. Any structural defects should get the correction and treatment needed to keep your child in good health.

Marbling, graining create unusual career

Christopher R. Appleby has mastered an Old World art form: faux marbling and wood graining — and in the process created a career for himself.

As Fantasy Finishes, he's in business for himself marblizing fireplace fronts, columns, moldings and any other decorative feature a client wishes.

Appleby, who learned the art craft from European artisans while he was living in Nashville, Tenn., thinks he is probably the youngest person practicing the craft in this country.

Appleby, who was in the Northville High School Class of 1972, has spent the years since traveling around the country a lot, he says, with the last 12 years being spent in Nashville.

There, he notes, his work was basically in restoration of Civil War era homes. When these homes were built, he explains, marble was scarce and heavy to transport and nice wood also was hard to get, so marble mantels and finishes were faked.

In Tennessee, he says he learned from two elderly artisans, a Frenchman and an Englishman who practiced the craft.

"They were flying craftsmen in from Europe," he remembers, saying he then decided to learn himself. At the time, he was working on restorations and also painting on canvas in different mediums.

At first, he remembers, it took a long time to master the technique, in which the marbling is done with a feather.

"I had to do pieces over and over again at first. Now, I work quickly. I can marblize a mantel in about four hours."

In fact, he recently did so for Dawn Buda at her Main Street decorator studio, Decorators Choice.

"I've seen faux marble a lot, but Chris is superior to a lot of others I've seen at the Design Center in Troy," says Buda, who has had the artisan marblize the mantel in her studio as well as a cabinet that holds stereo equipment.

He also has marblized one of a pair of French provincial tables. The technique on this piece included spatter work on the base and marblizing of the top.

"Clients can't accept the fact that the mantel is painted," Buda mentions, saying they usually touch it and comment with surprise, "It is painted."

The overall look, Appleby explains, depends on the base color used. He notes that he likes to use acrylics and has found Jim Cowie at Anne's Crafts on Center Street to be a good source.

Buda's cabinet is painted with a cream base marbled with rose, beige and cream.

Looking at the elegant piece, she confides, "I bought it at a garage sale right off the street — cut the legs off and stripped it. It stayed that way until Chris called one day and wanted to know if there was a need (for marblizing)."

"I had wanted to do the fireplace for two years so I put him to work the next day."

While Buda's assignments are Appleby's first in this area, he has done much work on the west side of the state. In Grand Rapids he marblized crown moldings and baseboards. In a home in Sparta he marblized a banister to match a real marble floor. In a historic home located between Hastings and Battle Creek Appleby had the task of marblizing pieces around marble columns to replace marble pieces that were missing.

He also marblized 10 bowling balls for the top of pedestals.

The secret of the craft, Appleby confides, lies in the use of turkey feathers.

"Feathers are basic — I couldn't do it without them," he notes. Fortunately, turkey farmers have been more than willing to give him feathers.

Appleby grew up in Northville and has two daughters, Jessie, who will be 7 Aug. 29, and Kally, 5, living here. His parents have moved to Hastings to a home on Algonquin Lake. He can be reached at the home of George Jerome in Northville.

Tips listed for bearing power loss

Thunderstorms are becoming a major threat in Michigan, generating lightning and hail as well as interrupting power to homes and businesses.

Losing electricity can be frustrating and annoying, until electricity is restored. Consumers Power offers advice on weathering storms.

- Keep an alternative light source available, such as a battery-operated flashlight or candles.

- Keep a list of emergency phone numbers near the phone. Consumers Power's customer service number is listed on customers' bills or in the white pages of local telephone directories under Consumers Power.

- When calling Consumers Power to report a problem, the more facts you provide, the better. What time did you lose power? Are your neighbors' lights off also? Are trees or wires down in your yard or street? Customer phone calls are the primary way Consumers Power knows which customers have lost their electric service.

- Treat downed wires as if they are charged with electricity. Do not touch them. Also, beware of branches that may be entangled with a downed wire, don't touch them either.

- If you know a storm is coming, consider filling your bathtub and several drinking containers with water in case your electric pump loses power. That way, you'll have water for drinking, flushing the toilet and cooking.

- Open your refrigerator and freezer as infrequently as possible. Food will usually stay frozen in a fully loaded freezer between 36 and 48 hours if the door is kept closed. In a half-full freezer, food can stay frozen around 24 hours.

- Cooking during the outage can be done on a camping stove, your fireplace or by using sterno fuel placed in its holder on a flameproof surface. Use caution and be sure to provide enough ventilation. Camp stoves and charcoal grills should be used outside only.

- If you use a standby electric generator, be sure that a transfer switch is installed in your fuse box. This will prevent power from your generator from feeding into Consumers Power lines, which could endanger line workers.

- Never operate a generator indoors. Exhaust fumes can cause carbon monoxide poisoning.

- During prolonged outages of three days or longer, transfer the food in your freezer and refrigerator to the home of a friend who has electricity.

Delay over sewer prevents last vote on condo project

Although final site plan for Blue Heron Pointe was on Tuesday's township planning commission agenda, developers of the 140-unit condominium project on Beck Road south of Seven Mile Road, were dealt a setback by the Water and Sewer Commission last week.

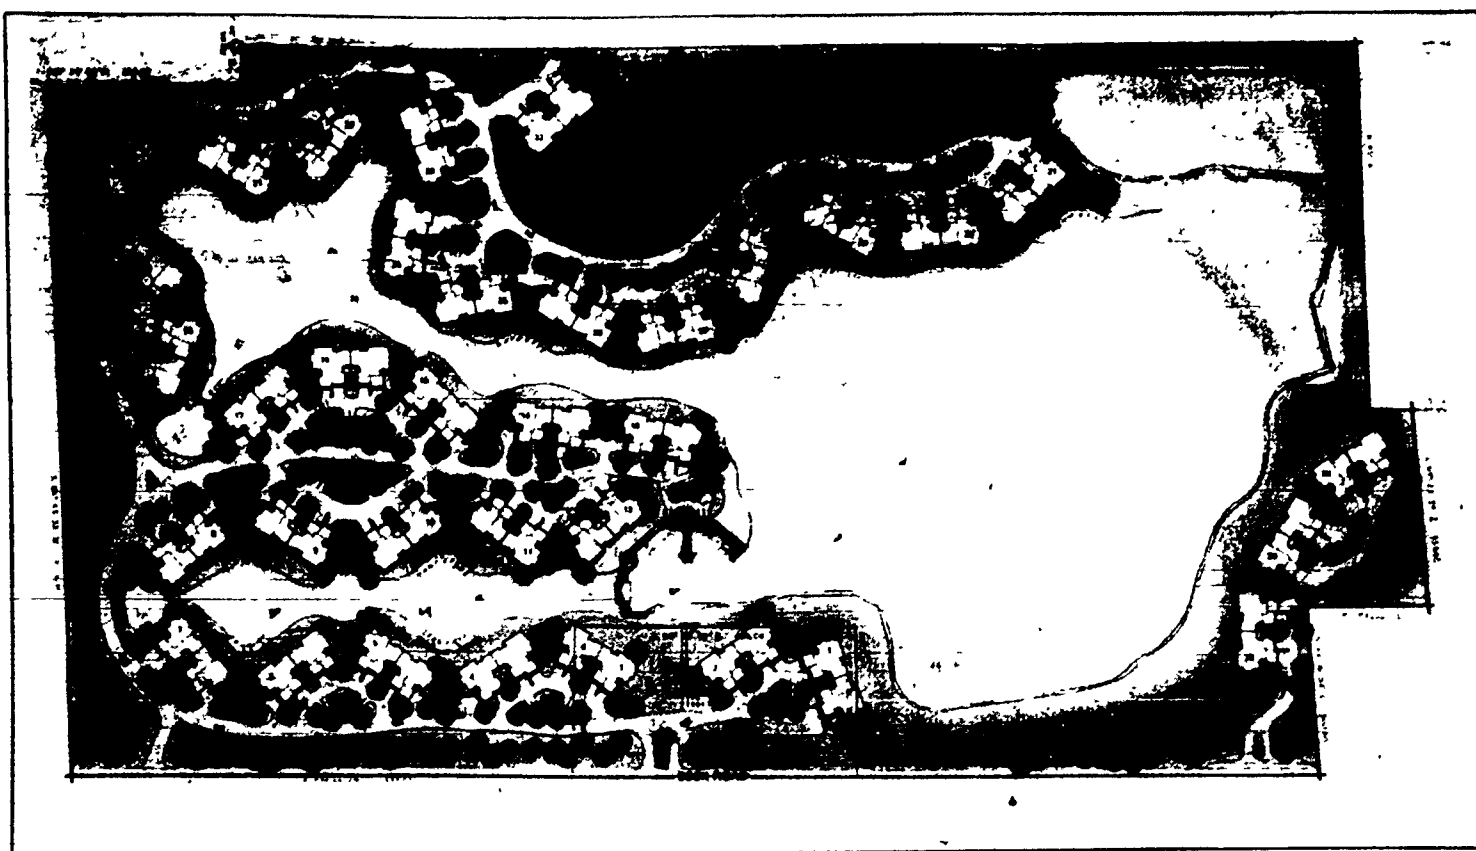

The commission tabled action on Blue Heron's sewer, awaiting conformance to earlier suggestions. The matter was scheduled to be resolved in a special Water and Sewer meeting Monday, however, information request by the Water and Sewer Commission did not arrive at township hall in a timely fashion.

The planning commission at its July meeting failed to approve the developers' final site plan, also tabling plans for the project.

That action has not stopped people from contacting Dennis Park, one of the project developers.

"We intend to build about 24 units in the first phase of the project and we've had more than 300 people express serious interest in the project."

Architects conception of Blue Heron Pointe shows all condominiums facing on the water

"I have had more than 200 people contact me and show serious interest in the project," Park said. He noted that he has refused to accept deposits from interested purchasers.

Carol Woberlin is among those who have contacted the Blue Heron developers.

"We've lived in Northville for 14 years and the idea of a condominium is appealing," she said, noting that the small number of units in the development is also a selling point.

"My husband attended one of the first meetings when the project was discussed, and it seems that if it is a quality-built development, we'd be seriously interested in moving in," she said.

Park said he was reluctant to accept any money from anyone until construction on the units actually begins.

Blue Heron Pointe encompasses an abandoned gravel pit as well as wetland areas. The gravel pit has been filled with soil primarily from the site of the I-696 construction in Southfield; however, a swimming quality lake remains as a prime selling point of the site.

Park said all permits required by the DNR for the project, including approval for constructing a boardwalk into the wetlands area have been granted by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Maria Stante also has indicated an interest in purchasing a unit on the Blue Heron site. Since her son's firm, Nello Stante Inc., is hopeful of constructing the sewer and water lines at the site, she said she learned of the project through the developers.

"It is exactly the kind of place where I want to live," she said. "I know the developers, so there is no need to wait for them to start building. I know it will be a good project."

Park said he did not know when he would begin accepting reservations for units, although demand has far exceeded the proposed supply.

"We intend to build about 24 units in the first phase of the project and we've had more than 300 people express serious interest in the project," he said.

A similar project in Bloomfield Township was unveiled to the public last week by Robertson Brothers Co.

The Heathers is a 439-unit two- and three-bedroom condominium project built on 170 acres, including a former gravel pit.

There also are 28 acres of wetlands on the site, some of which will be used to create a 9-hole championship golf course.

Included on the Heathers site is a seven-acre spring fed lake, similar to the larger waterway at the Blue Heron property. Jim Jehle, director of product development for Robertson Brothers Co., said 70 percent of the Heathers homes will front on either the golf course or the lake.

Although Blue Heron Pointe will not include a golf course, Park said current plans call for 100 percent of the condominium homes to front on the water.

Prices for condominiums at the Heathers start at $160,900 for a two-bedroom unit and can cost as much as $220,900 for a three-bedroom ranch unit with a walk-out basement.

Blue Heron Pointe units all will feature walk-out basements, Park said, noting that elevations will range from one story at end units to two-story units for the middle two condominiums in the four-unit buildings. Prices are expected to range from $150,000 to $250,000.

No committee vote expected on sale of county land parcel

Members of the Wayne County Commission's Economic Development Committee were expected to take no action Wednesday on the proposed contract to allow the Lambrecht Company to perform a valuation study and sell 1040 acres of county owned land in Northville Township.

Although the committee's regularly-scheduled meeting was set to begin at 11:30 a.m., after The Record went to press, Commissioner Susan J. Heintz, the committee chairperson, said she expected the matter would be passed for the day.

"It would be very difficult to take any action when there are too many questions involving the company," Heintz said.

"Unless those questions are answered, I don't see how we can take any action," Heintz said.

"There appears to be a knowledge in the real estate community" that the Lambrecht Company is doing something with its commercial brokerage division. The

— Susan J. Heintz
Wayne County Commissioner

Record reported last week that the company was dissolving its commercial brokerage division, a report that company officials have denied.

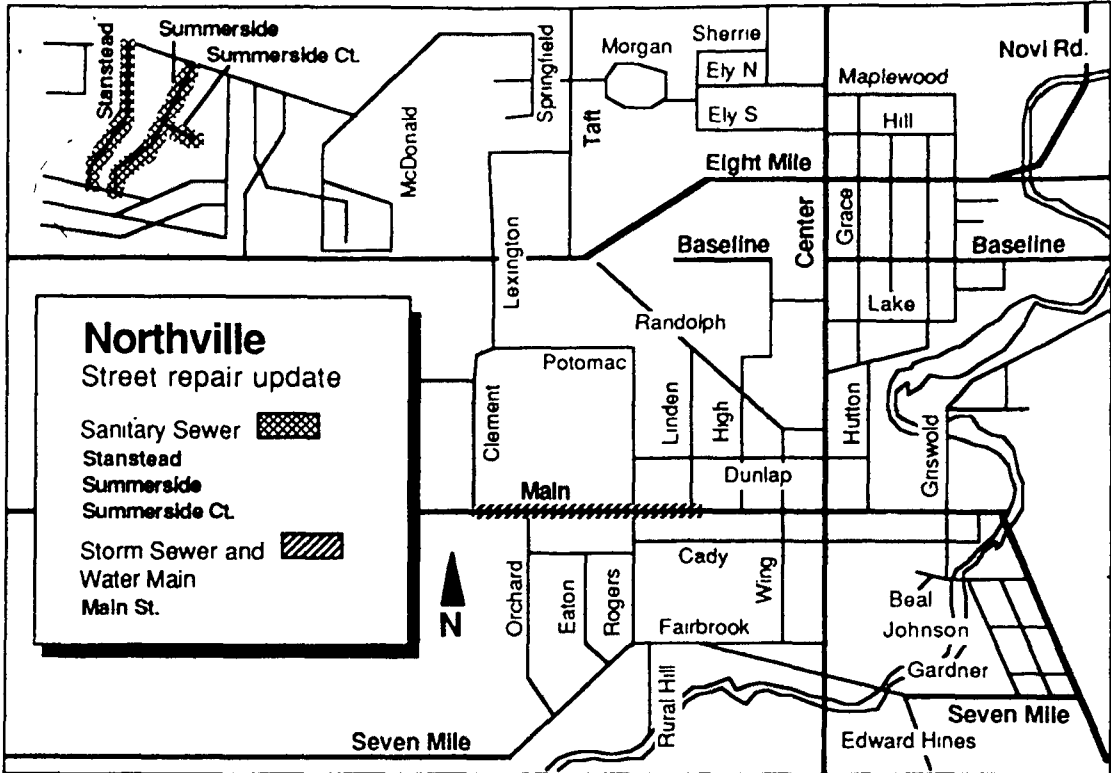

Deputy County Executive Michael Duggan said (County Purchasing Director) Butch Hollowell was investigating the reports. However, Hollowell on Tuesday had not informed Duggan or Heintz of the results of his investigation.

Duggan said he expected a report prior to the Economic Development Committee meeting.

County Executive Edward H. McNamara had recommended awarding a $35,000 valuation study contract to Lambrecht and to allow the firm to broker the property, located between Five Mile Road and Six Mile Road on Sheldon Road, at a cost not to exceed 4 percent of the sales price.

The fee for the valuation study would be paid from proceeds from the sale of the first parcel of land.

Meanwhile, the Northville Township Planning Commission has authorized its planning consultant, Vilcan Leman, to perform its own study of the property. A report on the firm's efforts was expected at Tuesday's planning commission meeting.

'Greater Tuna' runs this weekend

"Greater Tuna," the comedy hit about small town America that kept New York audiences exploding with laughter for more than a year at Circle in the Square Theatre, is playing a limited engagement at the Marquis Theatre in downtown Northville.

It is playing Friday and Saturday evening and Sunday matinee on its final weekend, Aug. 28-30.

The play, by Jaston Williams, Joe Sears and Ed Howard, is still playing to crowds in San Francisco.

A folksy slice of life, the play is called an "hilarious portrait of rural America, displaying a gallery of small town types."

The fictional story focuses on the Bumiller family — the youngest daughter collects stray dogs, the eldest daughter will never be a cheerleader, the son is an infantile delinquent, and the aunt is an elderly Lizzie Borden type who is fond of lacy puppy biscuits with arsenic. The play covers one day in the life of the thriving little community of Tuna, noted as the third smallest town in Texas. It opens and closes with news broadcasts from the local radio station OKK.

All of Tuna's inhabitants, male and female, are played by two actors, Charles Vanhoose and Stan Cahill. Charles teaches English at Henry Ford High School in Southfield, and Stan is a student in the BFA Theatre program at the University of Detroit. The Marquis production is directed by Arthur Rizzo.

"Greater Tuna" was produced by Norman Lear as an HBO special in 1984 and is being considered for a television series. A sequel to the comedy hit is in the making. It's called "A Tuna Christmas Carol."

Ticket prices are $9 for the 8 p.m. Friday night performances; $10 for the 8 p.m. Saturday performances; and $8 for 2:30 p.m. Sunday matinees.

Tickets can be purchased in advance by telephone with Visa, MasterCard or American Express by calling 349-8110 or 349-0068, or at the Marquis Theatre box office or the Marquis stores at 135 E. Main.

A group rate discount of 10 percent is available for groups of 20 or more. The Marquis Theatre is air conditioned.

Township man faces assault charges

A 24-year-old Northville Township man is in the Wayne County jail awaiting an examination on two felony assault and battery charges.

William Joseph Glover was unable to meet the $100,000 bond set at his Aug. 21 arraignment before 35th District Court Judge John E. MacDonald. Two days before the Northville incident, Glover was issued a ticket for reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident in South Lyon.

According to the police report on the Northville incident, the township police department received a report at 7:04 a.m. Aug. 21 that a man was trying to break into apartments on Silver Spring Drive.

While en route to the address reported by the caller, officers John Werth and Martin Patyna were informed by the dispatcher that an assault had occurred in one of the apartments.

When the officers arrived at the scene, they discovered a long-time township resident, a senior citizen, on the floor, bleeding from his elbow. The resident told the officers that the man who assaulted him was upstairs. Werth started up the stairs when Glover opened an upstairs door and started screaming. Werth said the man "assumed a defensive karate stance and, screaming incoherently, began moving toward me."

Werth said he informed the suspect that he wanted to talk to him about the assault on the senior citizen, at which point the suspect kicked him in the leg and attacked him.

Both Werth and Patyna attempted to subdue the man, at which point the suspect kicked Patyna.

Werth was injured in the incident and is expected to be out of work for some time with ligament damage to his hand.

The two officers placed the suspect in a police car and Glover attacked the rear doors of the car, damaging them enough so they were knocked out of alignment.

Meanwhile, the officers questioned the victim, who told them that he had opened his door after he had heard noise in the hallway. When he opened the door, Glover rushed into the apartment, picked up the victim and threw him to the floor. Glover then grabbed a 10-speed bicycle from the hallway and dropped it on the man, cutting his elbow in the process.

The officers called C.E.M.S. to transport the victim to St. Mary Hospital, where he was treated for lacerations on his elbow and for injury to an artificial hip.

In questioning the complainant, officers learned that she was taking a shower when there was "a knock on the door." The woman said she did not open her door.

The woman said she called police and between the time she made the call and officers arrived, she heard sounds of a scuffle from the apartment where the victim resided.

Patyna and Werth transported Glover to Northville Township Jail and called senior officers, who questioned the suspect.

Glover admitted assaulting the officers and the senior citizen, but said he did so "because they weren't human."

In setting bail for the man, MacDonald also authorized a psychiatric examination for Glover.

Two days earlier, Wednesday, Aug. 21, Glover was cited for reckless driving and leaving the scene of a personal injury accident in South Lyon.

South Lyon police ticketed Glover after he was allegedly seen traveling west on East Lake Street at over 80 miles per hour. Witnesses said Glover's car crossed the center line of the street and almost struck two cars head on, South Lyon police said.

The car then struck the rear end of a van driven by a South Lyon resident, causing that driver to lose control of the vehicle, the police report said. The impact caused a slight injury to the van's driver.

Glover was stopped by officers on Lafayette Street north of Lake Street in South Lyon. Police said Glover told officers he was upset over a business dealing at the time of the incident.

CAR WINDOWS SHATTERED — A vent window on a car was shattered — apparently by a shot from a BB gun — while the car was being driven Sunday, a Northville city police report said.

At about 2 p.m. Sunday, an '81 Ford Escort was being driven eastbound on Seven Mile Road near Eaton Drive when the driver heard a crash. The driver turned around and saw that the window was shattered, but could not see who might have broken it, the police report said.

The driver took the car directly home and notified police. A small hole indicated that the damage probably came from a BB gun, the report concluded.

In a separate incident, the driver's side window was broken on a vehicle parked in the Lexington Condominiums development Aug. 13 or 14, according to a police report.

The vehicle was parked near the development's clubhouse, the report said. Damage was estimated at $100.

WINDOW BROKEN — A $1000 window at the Shopping Center Market on North Center Street was damaged by a pellet gun or BB gun, a Northville city police report said.

Some time Saturday night or Sunday morning a gun was fired at a 6-foot by 8-foot window, causing a hole through the window and a crack from top to bottom, the report said. The store manager told police he discovered the damage when opening the store Sunday morning.

SUNROOF STOLEN — A sunroof was reported stolen from a car parked at Our Lady of Victory Church on Orchard Drive some time during the weekend of Aug. 14, according to a Northville city police report.

The sunroof is valued at about $400.

UNWANTED PAINT JOB — Two vehicles belonging to a Steepleview resident were damaged by spray paint and someone punctured all four tires on each of the cars, according to a township police department report. The incident happened between 12:30 a.m. and 3:30 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 22.

Police have no suspects in the incident, which involved a Chevrolet Cavalier and a Ford Tempo.

CAR STOLEN — A Novi woman's 1986 Pontiac Grand Am was reported stolen from the south parking lot at Meijer's Aug. 23.

The woman told township officers that her vehicle was locked at 10:30 a.m., however, when she returned to where she had left the car at 3:15 p.m., it was gone. The only trace of the car was glass on the ground, leading township officers to theorize a window was broken to gain entry to the car.

FATHER, SON CITED — A 14-year-old township resident and his father each received a ticket Aug. 18 — the son for not having a license, title or registration for a moped and the father for allowing his son to operate the vehicle without a license.

Officer Lawrence Demeter in his report said he stopped the youngster at Winchester and Six Mile when he observed him making a turn without signaling.

When Demeter questioned the youngster, the youth explained that his parents allowed him to use the moped without a license. When the father arrived on the scene, called by Demeter, he confirmed his son's assessment. Demeter then ticketed both.

CAR ROBBED — A Ludlow Court garage was broken into Aug. 18 and a briefcase was stolen from the car parked in the garage and power tools hanging in the garage also were taken.

Township police have no suspects in the incident.

Play the market right and you could lose it all.

You could lose things like extra weight. High blood pressure. And high blood cholesterol levels. The very things that contribute to heart attack and stroke. All you have to do is invest wisely at the super-market. Buy more in the fresh produce, pasta, breads and cereals sections. And purchase fish, poultry and lean meats instead of fatty or processed meats. Switch to low-fat dairy products and margarine. And check the nutritional listings on food labels. In short, be selective about how you play this market. Because no matter how much you lose, you've got a lot to win.

TIPS FROM TUCKKLAPER

FETUS FACTS

If you are a typical mother, don't ask where you went wrong if your infant is a thumbsucker. You are completely innocent. Thumbsuckers are born, not made. Medical pictures of the fetus show that many babies are already well into the habit of thumbsucking by the seventh month in the uterus. In fact, all kinds of preparations are going on before birth to get baby's mouth ready for its complex tasks.

Did you know that teeth are already beginning to form in the growing fetus just three months after conception? In deed, some parts of the 20 primary teeth, (also called baby teeth) can be recognized at this early stage. Even tiny pieces of the first permanent molars are growing. The rest of the permanent teeth wait until right after birth to start forming inside the gums.

Sometimes, shortly after birth, parents or physicians may notice little white spots on the upper palate (roof of the mouth). These are little keratinized structures (keratine is a tough, fibrous protein found in nails, hair and teeth). They are not significant and normally will disappear in 10 to 14 days.

The Northville Record

Our Opinions

History repeats itself in rec building flap

"History repeats itself," the saying goes, and the saying knows what it's talking about.

The Michigan Association of Gift Salesmen (MAGS), the group which occupies most of the Northville Square building on Main Street, holds private gift shows a few times a year for its members. Probably the most important one is the September show, when retailers look at the newest Christmas items.

The MAGS people recently discovered that another private gift show had reserved the Northville recreation building — just down the street from MAGS — at the same time as MAGS' September show. MAGS, reasoning that this other show was only trying to leech off its publicity and established reputation, requested the Recreation Commission to disallow the competing show. The commission decided to let the show go off as planned, but to look at its options in case the situation arises again.

The interesting thing is that the situation has arisen before. Five years ago, a private gift show tried to use the rec building during a MAGS sale, too, with the added complication that MAGS also wanted to rent the rec building for a membership meeting.

Apparently the Recreation Commission forgot all about that earlier episode. At that time, the conflict was finally settled when Northville City Manager Steve Walters said that neither group could rent the rec building, because that would be a commercial use of the place — and the rec building's land is zoned residential.

Obviously, this is a matter for the appropriate attorneys to research, and issue an opinion on whether, indeed, that 1982 decision was a correct one. But on the face of it, from a strictly logical angle, that decision makes a whole lot of sense.

Using a public building for a commercial enterprise is an idea with which we're not entirely comfortable, but the zoning issue is the key here. Renting the rec building for a private, commercial gift show in effect creates a new, nonconforming use of land — which would hardly be in line with city policy, precedent or common sense.

In the 1982 case, the officials involved made it clear that events like craft shows were still permissible in the rec building, being more of a recreational than commercial nature. Again, that opinion is completely sensible.

It may be too late to prevent the private show at the rec building next month. If so, it wouldn't be a major problem.

But no matter what happens next month, the Recreation Commission must examine this issue. We hope — assuming the lawyers okay it — that the commission adopts the 1982 guidelines as a permanent, written policy. Then maybe this little slice of history won't repeat itself any more.

Convenience needed

Last week parking, or stopping, in front of the Northville Post Office was banned completely — with the exception of spaces for the handicapped.

Action to do so was taken at the Northville City Council meeting on Aug. 17. A while back, the council acted to move the postal drop boxes from the curb in front of the post office back near the entrance to the building, making it impossible to deposit mail from an automobile.

The reason, as we understand it, was that depositing mail or stopping briefly to do business at the post office had become hazardous. However, other towns all around the state do not seem to feel this way. The post office, located at 200 S. Wing Street, certainly is not located on a main highway, as are many in northern Michigan towns where such stops are permitted.

Granted, there are two mail boxes in town where mail may be deposited directly from an automobile — they are located in the parking lots behind MAGS (across from the post office) and by Arbor Drugs. However, not everyone is aware of their existence.

Granted, also, short time parking is available on the opposite side of the street from the post office building. However, we've watched southbound motorists turning in driveways to utilize that parking, and then dash across the street to the post office. We question if that situation is any safer. However, it might be possible for the car-deposit drop box to be located directly across the street from the building in full view — or could there be a drop box around the corner on Cady?

We hope the situation can be explored more fully — with the objective of making it as easy as possible for those who use the post office and the drop boxes to do so.

Tragic lessons

By Christopher J. Kozlowski

Because of what happened 11 days ago, I may not bring myself to be able to fly for a very long while, if not ever. The impact of the crash of Northwest Flight 255 Aug. 16 is one that has left a very strong impression upon myself. Although I cannot begin to feel the sense of loss that is being shared by the families of the 157 people who were killed (including three individuals who had ties to Novi and Northville), I have been consumed wanting to know everything about a tragedy that struck so close to home.

I, along with hundreds of other freeway drivers in the state, travel that stretch of I-94 near Detroit Metropolitan Airport frequently. In fact, I drove past the airport on that fateful Sunday about two hours before the crash. Driving home to Detroit from Ann Arbor yesterday, and seeing exactly where the crash occurred, made the images of the huge jet crashing to the ground more real, and more frightening.

Although investigators say that it may be a matter of months before we know exactly what caused the crash, it disturbs me to hear so many "experts" blame the deregulation of the airline industry for the philosophical cause of the accidents.

These experts say that, because of deregulation, airlines have relaxed preventative maintenance standards in an effort to remain economically competitive. And I believe that is true. I also believe that is wrong.

Of course, the odds still suggest that air travel is the safest way to get from one place to another, and that millions of flights occur each year without incident. But the rate of near misses and fatal airline crashes is on the rise, and the odds — no matter how long they were at one time — are getting shorter.

I have never felt comfortable with flying wholeheartedly, because I was always disturbed by the fact that I had no control over the missile that was transporting me from one place to another 20,000 feet above the ground. I do not like the feeling of my not being able to take over the wheel if my "driver" was too tired.

And now, we may have come to a time when no one, not the pilots, or the mechanics or the air traffic controllers are really in control either. Even if it is determined that mechanical error did not cause the crash of Flight 255, you can rest assured that the cause of the disaster did not begin with one person — or even one airline organization.

I have nothing against air travel conceptually. Theoretically, I prefer to get where I am going fast, but I also prefer to get there safely. The time is now for all of the powers that be to recognize the fact that the industry is in need of help. It is up to us to act, as citizens and as consumers, to make the skies safe for travel once more, and not forget about this tragedy. It can happen again, and, as we have seen, it can happen close to home.

Cover-up

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

Jim and I were drinking coffee (honest) at The Starting Gate when he asked, "What's new?"

I'm never quite sure how to respond to the question. Millions of things are new. Do you mean at work? In Northville? In Washington? How 'bout them Tigers?

Whenever someone asks "What's new?" I feel compelled to come up with an answer and I try to come up with something that will appease the person who asked the question and that I might not mind talking about.

"Well, I guess the JOA hearings between the Free Press and News in Detroit are new," I said finally.

I must have hit something which he was interested in, too, because he said he wasn't really sure what was going on and asked me to continue.

"Maybe I'm prejudiced because I'm in the suburban press, but it seems to me that both papers have a major credibility problem with anyone smart enough to add one and one," I said.

"Did you see where that Knight-Ridder executive testified the Free Press will probably fold if the JOA isn't approved? Well, if you believe that, then you have to ask yourself why Al Neuharth with The News is so willing to enter into an agreement in which he will share profits from the combined operation with the other paper."

"You've got to remember that Al Neuharth is one heckuva good businessman. If the Free Press is really going to fold, like the Knight-Ridder guy testified, then why doesn't Neuharth just wait for it to happen. Then he can take 100 percent of the profits and not have to share them with anybody."

"Put it this way," I continued. "If you had a competitor in the same business, and that competitor was about to go under, leaving the entire market to you, would you be willing to go into a joint operating agreement with him and share the profits?"

I don't know if Jim was really interested or not. But he took a drink of his coffee and said, "Doesn't seem to make much sense, does it?"

"Not to me it doesn't," I said. "But, hey, I'm not a businessman. There's got to be something I'm missing."

Ruins are still around

To the Editor:

A few months have passed since you printed my letter(s) suggesting, urging that our township do something about the old, dilapidated, unsightly institution ruins on Sheldon Road.

I had hoped to hear some sort of reaction, or, better yet, positive action on my suggestions - but, so far, none.

In the meantime, what would otherwise be a beautiful and economically lucrative parcel continues to burden our community.

What is our planning commission doing about it? Can we obtain it and sell it for development for a hotel, luxury condominiums, a shopping center?

As it is, this tract of land has a very negative impact on our community's image, makes our community less desirable than it could be, affects our property values, presents an unsavory and unsafe environment and, because its potential is so great and we realize nothing of that, it is actually an economic black "hole" to our community.

Just consider what it is and looks like now and imagine a modern, high tech development as I've mentioned or even a modern industrial park but retaining much of the natural landscape and trees.

A nice picture? You bet and a boost for our tax base, reducing our property taxes as well.

All good reasons to take action now. Our progressive community deserves more than ruins.

Sincerely,
Greg Arceri

Back to School

By Ann Willis

I think it's very nice of Mother Nature to put a hint of fall in the air just as school is about to open. One of the worst things I remember about going back to school was dressing up in my brand new wool sweater and corduroys and walking to school in 80 degree sunshine. Don't tell me I should have dressed for the weather, not the season - no kid with new school clothes is going to wear her old cotton summer stuff for something as critical as the first days back at school. Everyone wore wool and everyone sweated - just another part of the glamor.

The buses will be rolling down my street again picking up the kids. Watching children as they wait on the corner for the bus is an experience in itself. Last year during the first week of the new school year, a little blond-haired girl would walk to the corner followed by her mother who was pushing a child in a stroller. I couldn't tell the sex of the baby in the stroller - who wore a jacket with a hood and looked like a little round troll with feet. Guessing the sex of children when they are wearing bulky outer clothing is not easy. It's best just to say "My what a darling baby," and leave it at that.

The little girl and her mother waited together for the bus during that first week. The little girl would hop around the stroller, or skip around her mother. Other children would come to the corner to wait, but for that first week the little girl shied away from them. During the second week the little girl ran ahead of her mother and the baby, to join the other kids. Mom would wait a few steps away from the kids and was usually rewarded with a wave from the bus as the little girl drove off to school.

By the end of January, Mom was waiting across the street. The wind was cold and the children were bundled up. They still managed to dance around, to play keep-away with mittens and hats and to generally have a pretty good time while they waited. Mom looked miserable. I couldn't see the baby. It was swaddled in so many layers of down and had so many blankets over it's head I'm not sure it was even in the stroller.

By spring the little girl was skipping to the bus on her own. Mom probably was watching from a safe distance with a cup of coffee. I figure that this year, with the way children grow up so quickly, the little girl will probably be driving her own Corvette to class.

I like this time of the year. I like the thought that children are back in school. Why should they be out running around having fun if I have to be at work? And from what I've learned from talking to some children in the Novi/Northville area, they're pretty glad, too.

I went out to ask some children whether they were ready for school to start. When I went to look for the kids, I didn't go to the mall, or down Main street. I went to the schools. Children like to play in the playgrounds around their schools - so long as there is no school.

There were crowds of kids around the elementary schools. I walked up to two little boys and asked them if they were ready for school to start. They stopped ramming their bicycles into the brick wall and looked at me as if I were an alien. "Yeah, I guess so," they said and walked away. It's the kind of question that people who don't know what else to ask kids, tend to ask. Kids know this and don't put up with it.

At the next school I talked to four little girls. I interrupted their search for grasshoppers in the long playground grass. They all said they were not ready for school. They were emphatic about it. One little girl asked me what other kids had said. I told her about the little boys' answers and she shrugged her shoulders and said, "Well, boys - what'd you expect?"

I went by the high school to ask some older kids, but I couldn't find a parking space in the lot. As I was leaving two young men in a shiny convertible passed me. They were wearing sunglasses and sporting what had to be fresh haircuts. They were laughing and waving to people on the sidewalk. I didn't have to ask. These kids were ready.

Car wash successful

To the Editor:

The sophomore class of Northville High School is happy to report that despite the slightly rainy weather on Saturday, Aug. 8, our car wash was a big success.

We would like to thank the Detroit Federal Savings for the use of their parking lot and water, the patrons of the car wash for their generous donations, and the kids and parents who gave up several hours of their time to help out, especially Pat Howard, Sandy Kemp, Linda Emma and Carole Pappas.

We would also like to thank the city of Northville for its continued support and generous contributions to Northville High School and its students.

WHAT, NO MUSTARD? — The Oscar Mayer "Wienermobile," a 22-foot-long hot dog on wheels, made three stops in Northville recently as part of a public relations tour through the Detroit area. The first Wienermobile was introduced in 1936 as a unique promotional idea, but the company discontinued use of the cars about 10 years ago. The current tour of midwest and northeast states is being billed as a remembrance of the gimmick's heyday during the 1950s.

Development surge leads to shortages in retail personnel

Salary levels in the retail industry in Michigan will be on the upswing over last year's figures, along with most other parts of the country, according to a just released wage and salary survey conducted by Roth Young Personnel Service, Inc., a coast-to-coast recruitment leader in food, retail, hospitality and health care.

The national trends will be more pronounced in the Detroit area, particularly in Oakland and Macomb counties because of a tremendous shortage of entry level management employees, according to Marjorie Yedlin, Accountant Manager in Retail at Roth Young of Detroit.

"With the resurgence of the economy in the last three years, the suburbs have been the target for retail development," she said. "Since 1983, Macomb and Oakland counties have seen massive store openings by new chains moving into the area and this has created a labor shortage."

With the growth of strip malls, specialty shops and the opening of several new chains in the Detroit metro area, hundreds of managerial positions have been created and stores are in fierce competition with one another to fill them, according to Yedlin.

"The Detroit area was snubbed as a target area during the recession," Yedlin said. "But, by 1983 chains were looking for a new market and Detroit was underdeveloped. So we've seen several chains move into the area, like Marshalls, TJ Maxx, Mainstreet and Donlevy's."

And, when these chains move in, they usually want 8 to 10 locations, she added.

"This growth has created a shortage, and that's driving salaries up," Yedlin said. "A person with a four-year degree can hire in as a trainee and receive several promotions after one year. The potential for promotion is terrific. It is not unusual for dependable, motivated managers to double their salary within two years."

The shortage of dependable employees is compounded by the fact that these positions are considered unattractive.

Business Briefs

FRANK ACQUARO

WILLIAM F. PHILLIPS

FRANK ACQUARO of Northville has been named an "area supervisor" at Jacobson's new Laurel Park Place store in Livonia. The appointment was announced by John E. Purkiss, general store manager.

Acquaro has been associated with Jacobson's beauty salons since 1972 as a senior vice president and regional director and area supervisor for the New York-based S&L Acquisition Corp., Ltd.

A native of New Jersey, Acquaro and his wife, Jean, have three children — Lori, 29, Frank, 27, and Ralph, 22.

WILLIAM F. PHILLIPS, 35, of Northville has joined the Detroit-based investment securities firm of Marantette & Co. as an account executive. The announcement was made by President David T. Marantette III.

Phillips most recently was sales manager of the newly-created broker-dealership division of First Continental in Birmingham. He previously was an account executive with Dean Witter Reynolds in Dearborn.

Phillips resides in Northville with his wife and two children.

Experts expect increase in auto leasing

'A car goes down in value every month. Say you take $10,000 out of the bank to buy a new car and let it dwindle away. It's ludicrous.'

Bob Mosteiko
Fox Hills Chrysler-Plymouth

of interest deduction for people who borrow money and then deduct the interest paid on the auto loan.

"These changes would make leasing more advantageous," said Ron Tank, an accountant with the Detroit firm of Herman & McLean.

George Kousaris, leasing manager for Action Olds in Livonia, testifies to the new trend. His dealership leased 10 to 20 cars a month last year.

Leases can be held for as little as a year and as long as five years, with terms more advantageous on longer contracts.

"Ten years ago you could drive a car for $1,200 a year," Kousaris said. "Now you can't do that. The average cost of a mid-size car is about $12,000 and they depreciate rapidly."

He said consumers can save $80 to $100 a month by leasing as opposed to buying a new vehicle on a payment schedule. And there is the advantage of no down payment on a leased car, he added.

"Insurance premiums don't reflect much difference (between buying and leasing)," he said. "Except that you need full coverage."

Mike Schrieber, sales manager of Bill Brown Ford in Livonia, doubts that auto leasing will replace consumer buying in the near future.

"I've been hearing this same prediction for the last five years," he said. "Leasing is gaining popularity, but there is still a belief that if you own your own car, you are better off."

"The consumer has to pick the right option for their circumstances," said Schrieber. Bob Mosteiko, business manager of Fox Hills Chrysler-Plymouth, says the biggest problem today is that "if the consumer is unfamiliar with leasing, he or she is leery and doesn't consider it a serious option."

"A car goes down in value every month," said Mosteiko. "Say you take $10,000 out of the bank to buy a new car and let it dwindle away. It's ludicrous."

At the end of the leasing period, the customer has two options: to buy the car for a residual value (determined when the contract is drawn) or walk away from it.

Results of the annual Detroit Auto Show survey show that buying is still the favorite option with consumers. Fifty-five percent of those polled said they might purchase a new car in 1987, down from 62 percent in 1986. Conversely, 11 percent indicated they were leasing a car, up from 8 percent a year ago.

DeMattia Company looks ahead to rosy future edge of M-59 between Grand River Avenue and I-96, this fall.

DeMattia also has developed the industrial park on Sheldon Road south of Five Mile in Plymouth Township, where his corporate headquarters are located.

It is not by accident that the DeMattia companies — there are three separate firms bearing the DeMattia name — locate in a particular area.

Burrill said the company does extensive research before committing to a site or a partnership, although DeMattia himself has final approval. "He's committed to finding properties which are nice places to live and to work, and he's committed to Michigan and especially western Wayne County," Burrill said of the company president.

"He's committed and the staff is committed."

She added that all three companies — DeMattia and Associates, the architectural and design branch; the DeMattia Development Co., which develops and leases back land; and the R.A. DeMattia Co., the construction side of the entity — are not aiming to be the biggest company of its kind, but to be the best.

"I think if you are the best, you become the biggest," Burrill said.

Not many 10-year-olds throw themselves a birthday party, but then, not many have more than $50 million in construction billings.

But the R.A. DeMattia Company, which has grown from 12 employees in 1983 to its current 77 not counting consultants who often work on specific projects, celebrated its 10th birthday with a bash that even a 10th-year-old could love.

The guest list included civic officials, real estate brokers, presidents of corporations and even the Michigan sesquicentennial bear.

"We wanted everyone, the people in whose communities our projects are located, past and future clients, people who helped make it possible, to celebrate our 10th year," said Karen Burrill, vice president for marketing.

Although it wasn't part of the celebration, the DeMattia Development Co. has announced plans to develop an industrial park on 220 acres in Howell Township.

Robert DeMattia, company founder and current president, said he hopes to begin construction on the park, which will border the southeast

Tax Reform affects investment choices

The far-reaching impact of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 showed its strength at the end of last year when investors scrambled to take advantage of last-chance tax breaks.

Although many of the tax law's provisions are already in effect, 1987 is a transitional year and, as such, investors still have a chance to get some tax breaks, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs.

The entire investment picture is changing as a result of the new law. Investment income is now taxed at the lower rates in effect under tax reform. On the other hand, real estate, oil and gas, and other investments whose tax benefits often appealed to investors, have been stripped of many of their tax advantages.

Stocks, gold, collectibles as well as other investments are all affected by the repeal of the favorable long-term capital gains treatment — the provision often cited as being tax reform's most far-reaching implication for investors.

In one form or another, capital gains have been part of the tax code for over 65 years. However, effective January 1, 1988, the sale of capital assets that have been held longer than six months lose the preferential capital gains tax treatment.

All capital gains will be treated the same as ordinary income. One hundred percent of your net investment profit is to be included, along with your wages, in your regular income. Whether long-term or short-term, gains and losses in general must be accounted for separately because there is a limitation on the amount of deductions that can be generated by capital losses in any one year. If you have a net investment loss, you may deduct up to $3,000 of it ($1,500 if married, filing separately), carrying forward any additional investment loss to future years.

For this transitional year (1987), the tax on a long-term capital gain is capped at 28 percent. So even if you had yourself in the 35 percent or 38.5 percent tax bracket this year, the maximum tax you will pay on your net capital gain will be 28 percent. The cap does not apply to short-term gains which will be subject to the same tax rates as other income with a maximum of 38.5 percent.

Some experts anticipate that the increase in capital gain tax rates, coupled with the loss of the special dividend exclusion for the first $100 of qualified dividends received by an individual and $200 received by joint filers, is likely to make stocks a little less attractive.

Others, who disagree, suspect those pulling out of tax shelters may very well put in the stock market those funds previously earmarked for tax shelters. Most experts do agree that the elimination of the preferential tax treatment of long-term capital gains is likely to result in more active stock trading since there's no longer any reason to hold on to stocks more than six months to qualify for preferred tax treatment.

Under tax reform, decisions to sell are more likely to be based on performance and market conditions than on tax consequences.

In general, the consensus on investment advice under tax reform is to invest for total return — that is, the combination of dividend and interest income plus capital gains. The end of the long-term capital gains treatment nullifies the favorable taxation on capital appreciation, while lower tax rates allow taxpayers to keep more of what they earn, making any stock dividends worth more.

The general advice to mutual fund investors follows a similar pattern, consider buying funds that will give you a combination of growth and income. The easiest way to do this is to concentrate mutual fund investments in balanced funds which promise to keep 20 percent to 50 percent of their portfolio in bonds and in growth and income funds.

Municipal bonds are now in the enviable position of being touted as one of the last bastions for tax-free income, although lower tax rates narrow their advantage over taxable investments. Fewer tax-exempt issues are expected as a result of tax reform's restrictions on the type and amount of tax-exempts that can be issued by a state or locality.

But beware — under the TRA not all municipal bonds will be completely tax-exempt. Bonds issued to fund public purposes remain tax-free. But interest on certain newly-issued bonds that provide financing for private purposes, like sporting arenas and industrial parks, will not be federally tax-exempt and may subject certain taxpayers to the Alternative Minimum Tax.

Real estate, which in the past has provided investors with hefty tax write-offs, has been hit hard by tax reform. Real estate activities and limited partnerships are now classified as "passive" investments for tax purposes which means that net losses can only be charged against passive income. Gone are the days when real estate investment losses could offset wages and other incomes.

There is an exception for small residential real estate investors with adjusted gross income below $150,000. If you fall into this category and you actively manage your rental real estate, you can deduct up to $25,000 a year in net losses against regular income, provided your adjusted gross income is below $100,000. The $25,000 deduction is phased out for adjusted gross income between $100,000 and $150,000.

Depreciation, another key tax benefit of real estate investments, also has been restricted by tax reform. The old law allowed real estate owners to write off the cost of a building over 19 years and at an accelerated rate. Starting this year, the write-off period is lengthened to 27.5 years for residential rental buildings and 31.5 years for non-residential rental property. The new law also disallows accelerated depreciation, limiting real estate investors to straight-line depreciation with an equal percentage of costs deducted each year. These changes generally apply to property placed in service after 1986.

Investments which allow you to accumulate earnings on a tax deferred basis have taken on a new luster under tax reform. Life insurance policies are becoming more popular since cash-value policies are becoming more popular since cash-value policies allow you to accumulate tax-deferred earnings.

Single-premium whole life policies, in particular, are attracting investor's attention. With these policies you make one large, lump-sum premium payment of $5,000 or more and your earnings begin to accumulate on a tax-deferred basis. In most cases your net cost of borrowing is little or nothing and, generally, there are no adverse tax consequences.

Series EE U.S. Savings Bonds are another investment that received a boost from tax reform. A Series EE Bond is bought at a discount from its redemption value and matures in 12 years. The interest rate on a Series EE Bond is adjusted every six months to reflect prevailing interest rates with a present guaranteed minimum of six percent, providing the bond matures or is cashed in. Series EE Bonds have the added benefit of being exempt from state and local taxes.

In summary, CPAs stress the importance of carefully examining your investment strategy in light of tax reform.

Teenage job-hunters should learn how to communicate goals

Teens seeking a part-time job to earn money for college, a savings account, or a new bicycle or car should communicate their goals to prospective employers who are looking for motivated young workers.

That's the advice of Denise Hiltch Lites, vice president of Little Caesar Enterprises.

"There are many eager young people searching for part-time jobs, and the students with the best chances of getting hired are those who express their motivation in interviews."

"We have found that teens with direction — teens who have a purpose in obtaining a job — are the best, most productive young employees. When people work toward a goal, they work with more care and dedication."

She also recommends teens be ready to tell their perspective employer why they want to work for the company.

"If a teenager tells me what he or she has learned about our company it indicates extra preparation for the interview. I have found that a youngster is more likely to learn well and be prepared on the job."

Lites offers the following tips for teens looking for part-time employment.

Check with free community services. In many communities, employment services, especially for teens, keep listings of available part-time jobs and will review them with teens at no charge. These services can help with advice on interview techniques and work skills.

Do your homework. Ask family and friends about the employer's company. Find out what products or services the company sells.

Dress neatly. Because first impressions are important, dress well, even if you're simply filling out an application. For the interview, proper dress is even more important.

Be on time for an interview. Arriving 5 or 10 minutes early shows initiative and consideration for the employer's time.

Tell why you want the job. Talk about your personal and professional goals. Employers are looking for dedicated, goal-oriented people.

Display your values. Employers want to hire someone who demonstrates honesty, integrity and loyalty. Show you have these qualities by explaining your previous employment or describing your participation in school functions, sports programs or any organized activities out of school.

Answer questions completely. Employers want more than just "yes" or "no" responses to their questions. Use the interviewer's questions as opportunities to give a total picture of yourself within the questions' limit.

Ask questions. Show an employer you're interested in the position by asking about the job requirements or about the company. These questions will reinforce your interest in a career with that company.

Set a deadline. Confirm a date or time when you'll be notified of a decision.

Show initiative. Immediately after your interview, send a short, handwritten note expressing your desire to work for the company. Thank the interviewer for the opportunity to speak with him or her. Several days after the employer has received the note, make a call or go back to inquire whether a hiring decision has been made. Limit your follow up to one call or visit.

Capture A Magic Carpet
SPECIAL 2 DAY EVENT
Friday, August 28 & Saturday, August 29
Donald E. McNabb Co.

We're giving away four beautiful Area Rugs to introduce the most advanced idea ever in carpet cleaning.

Clean Carpets Like Magic Without Getting Them Wet.

Carpets and water don't mix. Wet cleaning methods, including steam, can shorten the life of a carpet and leave residues behind that actually attract new soil.

Introducing Capture® carpet soil extractor. Capture goes on dry, then vacuums clean in just minutes, lifting out trapped soil, odors, and stains like magic. You can even replace furniture and use the room as soon as you're finished cleaning because your carpet never gets wet. And there's no danger of mildew, mold, or shrinkage.

Capture lets you clean just a spot or a high-traffic area. Clean where and when you need to without leaving a noticeable "clean line." What's more, carpets cleaned with dry Capture stay clean longer, so you clean less often. That saves you both time and money.

Boom in development will increase salaries perceived as very prestigious or attractive by most college students said Yedlin. And that makes it worse. The positions that are perceived as attractive such as a buyer for large department stores are just not plentiful in this area because all these chains are headquartered in other cities.

Since we opened our office in Michigan in 1970 there has actually been a decrease in the corporate type positions available in this market noted Sam Skeegan, president of Roth Young of Detroit.

Hudson's K mart Winkelmans, Cunningham's, Federal Department Stores, Franks Nursery and a few others all were headquartered here with large corporate staffs. Now this applies only to K mart although companies like Highland Appliance and Perry's have grown.

Another factor aggravating the situation is that the pool of potential employees for this industry is shrinking. Since the recession is over many women have dropped out of the market and that doesn't help," said Yedlin.

In addition to the new chains, today's customer has moved away from mall shopping in favor of strip mall and specialty shop buying. The trend, "according to Yedlin, "is toward specialty shops and off price retailers.

People don't want to go to malls as frequently. They use specialty shops like Toys 'R Us or Perry's Autoworks where they can get in and out quickly," she said. "So, that means more stores are opening and more management positions are created.

According to Yedlin the western and eastern suburbs have seen the most growth in strip malls and specialty shops, making Oakland and Macomb counties the hardest hit in labor shortages for entry level management.

We are currently seeing salary levels creeping up to compete for personnel and that trend is going to continue through 1987," said Yedlin. Right now entry level managers can work themselves up to district manager positions in three or four years.

Roth Young has offices in 31 major U.S. markets.

Council Member Bob Bennett; John Purkiss, manager of the Laurel Park Jacobson's; Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara; J.R. Fowler, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Jacobson's; and Livonia Council Member Ron Ochala.

Vendors' guide available

Oakland County is increasing its efforts to make vendors more aware of how to do business with Oakland County.

A booklet titled "A Guide to Doing Business with Oakland County" is available from the Oakland County Department of Management and Budget's Purchasing Division. The booklet gives information about purchasing procedures and addresses of participating county divisions.

The purchasing function is vitally important to all of us in government and to all businesses and citizens who are concerned with the prudent expenditure of "public funds," said Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy.

For additional information or a copy of the county's purchasing information booklet contact Oakland County Central Purchasing at 858-5011.

No need to labor over the coals

Along with baseball, hot dogs and apple pie, there are few things more American than barbecuing in the good ole' summertime. And as the summer of 1987 draws to a close with Labor Day fast approaching, here are some barbecuing tips from "A Guide to Barbecuing and Outdoor Entertaining" (available at the Novi Public Library) and some interesting recipes that could spice up what may be the last outdoor cook out of the year.

Cooking experts agree that it is important to oil the grill on your outdoor barbecue before placing any food on top of it. The oil helps prevent the food from sticking to the grill. (Don't drip any oil onto the coals because it could cause a flare up.)

If you are barbecuing meat, always bring it to room temperature before cooking. Chilled meat will be overdone on the outside before the inside gets cooking. You should always trim most fat from steaks to prevent flare ups, and make small cuts around the remaining fat to prevent the meat from curling.

If you are barbecuing chicken halves, place the chicken bone-side-down on the grill, because the bone acts as a heat conductor and helps the meat to cook through more quickly.

When barbecuing fish, remember that small fillets will cook rapidly, and that it is best to stick with larger fish. Thick, firm fillets also make tasty kabobs.

Remember there is more to barbecuing than hot dogs and hamburgers, and that fun desserts are also made on the backyard barbecue. Fruit kabobs are easy to make. All it takes is a firm fruit, like pineapple, apples or pears, and a cooling fire. Place the fruit on a skewer and glaze them with spiced sugar or a honey syrup.

And if you really want to go bananas, they work well on the grill, too. Place whole bananas on the grill (in their skins). Cook for about 15 minutes until the skins are black. Serve the bananas split open with light cream and liqueur poured on top.

Trout with golden sauce

- 4 rainbow trout, each weighing about 3/4 pound, cleaned with head and tail left on
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- 2 teaspoons fresh parsley
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- vegetable oil, for brushing

Pat trout dry with paper towel. Brush oil onto fish, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Mix the mayonnaise, mustard, parsley and lemon juice together in a bowl. When coals are hot, brush the grill with oil, place fish onto grill and cook 10 minutes, turning over once, until fish flakes easily. Remove fish from grill. Spread mustard sauce evenly over trout, place fish back onto grill and barbecue for about two minutes, until fish skin begins to split and sauce turns golden brown. Ready to serve four hungry folks.

Texas-style Fajitas

- 4 pounds fajitas (skirt steak or tenderized flank steak)
- Juice of 12 Mexican limes
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- 2 onions, sliced
- 2 serrano chili peppers, minced
- 1 handful coriander, stems removed and leaves chopped
- Mexican beer
- Salt to taste

Trim meat. Each fajita should be 1/2 to 3/4 inch thick in order to cook evenly. Place one layer of fajita in a large roasting pan, doubling it with lime juice. Add garlic, onion, serrano peppers and coriander. Add another layer of meat (add remaining ingredients). Pour enough beer over fajitas to fill pan halfway. Cover with plastic wrap, marinate in refrigerator for six hours. Build mesquite fire in your grill. Make sure coals are very hot. Lay meat across the grill and cover. Turn the meat only as it cooks. When cooked, remove meat and salt to taste. (Serves 6-8)

Spiced corn on the cob

- 6 corn on the cob
- 3/4 cup of salt butter, softened
- 1/4 teaspoon grated nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

Mix spiced butter after lighting barbecue. Beat butter in a bowl with spice mixture and lemon juice. Place each cob on a double square of heavy duty foil and spread butter mixture onto the corn. Wrap up the foil and fold it around corn to seal in the moisture. When coals are hot, cook corn on the grill for 15-20 minutes. Remove foil and serve at once, with buttery juice poured on top of cooked corn. (Serves 6)

Know you child's first literal step

If your three-year-old pretends to read a page of scribbling while she tells you a story, take her seriously. She is in a newly-identified developmental stage called "emergent literacy," which educators believe is the first step to conventional reading and writing.

That's the advice from Elizabeth Sulzby, associated professor of education at The University of Michigan, who has been researching emergent literacy in children for nearly 10 years.

"We must not plunge in with traditional reading and writing methods when we teach preschoolers and kindergartners," she said. "Our research shows that their developmental patterns are quite different from those of first-graders and call for radically different approaches."

In a study conducted with June Barnhart and Joyce Hieahima of Northwestern University, Sulzby looked at many forms of writing and reading used by 123 kindergartners in a middle-class suburb of Chicago.

Sulzby: 'We must not plunge in with traditional reading and writing methods when we teach.'

"The forms include attempts to read favorite storybooks, scribbling, drawing pictures, making letter-strings, inventing spellings and 'reading' their own stories out loud or to themselves," Sulzby said.

"We found that the forms do not always come in a particular chronological order. Also, a kindergartner may use pictures or scribbles to tell a very complex and advanced narrative one day and then use invented spellings to tell a simpler one the next day."

Scribbling or intentional marking usually begins around 18 months of age, Sulzby said, and can go on into the second grade.

Parents and teachers can tell if a child is composing a narrative by watching him as he scribbles. If he is working on a story, he may whisper sounds, read, edit and correct the paper, comparing the product to an inner plan.

"You can also ask him to read the scribbling out loud," Sulzby said. "If the child has a reading intention and uses phrases that would be found in writing as opposed to conversation, the scribbling is a written composition."

Sulzby found that many children insert spaces, hyphens, underlining and dots in their scribbles. Also, as they read the scribble aloud and track it with their fingers, they may recite the same words for the same portion of scribble each time. They also may say more words or elongate words in an attempt to make the scribble and speech match up in length. "Clearly, they are associating print with the narrative when they do this," Sulzby said.

Letter-like forms often turn up in children's compositions even after they have mastered a few basic letters. "These often are called pseudo-letters," she said. "One 4-year-old explained that she used letter-like forms to 'write fast' when she was doing a batch of thank-you notes."

Eventually, most children begin to invent spelling. For example, "BKS" could mean "because." A mix of standard spelling and invented spelling may come next.

Although it seems logical that a child who uses invented spelling would re-read the story making use of the print, that is not always the case. Sulzby said. Many still recite without looking at their print and others look at only the first few words. "We need to do further research to determine when and how children begin to make a direct connection between print and their stories," Sulzby added.

Presbyterian church plans full year of music

The music department at First Presbyterian Church of Northville has planned a year filled with more musical opportunities than ever before in the church's history. Jeff Fowler, director of music, announces:

Fowler, who has a master of music degree from the University of Michigan, has developed a program for the church with seven choirs — five vocal and two bell choirs. He notes that there is opportunity for anyone of any age to participate. It is not necessary to be a member of the church to belong to a choir.

Rehearsals begin Wednesday, Sept. 9, with two choirs for children in kindergarten to fifth grade rehearsing from 4:55 p.m. Children's bell choirs meet from 5-6 p.m.

The Chancel Choir of adults rehearses from 7:30-9 p.m.

Wednesdays. It will hold a short rehearsal from 7-7:30 p.m. Sept. 9, the first meeting, which will be followed by the annual opening picnic. New members are invited to come to the first rehearsal.

The adult handbell choir, "Te Deum Bell Choir," will begin its second season at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 10.

Two youth choirs for young people in grades 6-12 rehearse Sunday evenings from 6:30-7:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 13. Senior High Fellowship activities follow.

The 1987-88 choir season will include "A Festival of Hymns and Anthems" celebrating the Reformation scheduled for Oct. 25 at 6 p.m. It will include music for all seven choirs, audience, bells, organ, a brass quartet and harp individually as well as collectively performed. Fowler notes that 120 people of all ages

"combine in this extravaganza for eye and ear."

"Messiah" by George F. Handel will be performed Dec. 6 at 6 p.m. accompanied by a full orchestra. Singers from the community are invited to join the Chancel Choir in this project. Fowler adds that "three imperative rehearsals are scheduled to prepare — Mondays, Nov. 16 and Nov. 30, from 7:30-9 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to noon with orchestra." Tickets are required for this performance and will go on sale Nov. 2.

The Middle School and High School choirs will combine at 6 p.m. Dec. 13 to perform the Christmas musical, "He Came in Love." Musical direction will be by Fowler with dramatic direction by Martin Ankrum, associate pastor of the church. Dramatic roles will be taken by members of the church youth fellowship groups and their advisors.

Christmas Eve at 11 p.m. the Chancel Choir will sing Dietrich Buxtehude's "The Infant Jesus" accompanied by a string ensemble to mark the composer's 350th birthday.

"Regnum" will be sung by the Chancel Choir at 7:30 p.m. March 31, 1988, as part of a celebration of the Last Supper on Maundy Thursday.

The two children's choirs will combine with children's choirs of First Presbyterian Church of Dearborn to present "Moses and the Freedom Fanatics" at 9:30 a.m. April 24.

A spring concert of sacred music, spirituals and show tunes will be given at 6 p.m. May 15, 1988, by the Chancel Choir.

The public is invited to all concerts. For more information on choirs or concerts contact Fowler at 349-0911.

Kristin Trexler to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Trexler of 42369 Crestview Circle announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Kristin Claire, to James Timothy Collins of Howell.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Collins of Howell. The bride-elect was honored at a luncheon and miscellaneous shower given by Carolyn Simons and Judy Ewing at the former's home on Normandy Court in Plymouth on Aug. 23.

Her wedding color theme was utilized for the luncheon tables where violets were interspersed on orchid ribbons. A corsage of pink carnations and orchid statice was presented to the honoree.

Guests included Mrs. Edward Snell of Grand Blanc, grandmother of the bride-elect.

A 1965 graduate of Northville High School, the bride-to-be will graduate from Dorsey Business School in September, 1987, and is employed at Heslop's corporate office.

Her fiancé is a 1983 graduate of Hartland High School and is employed by Mickey Shore of Livonia.

An Oct. 3 wedding is being planned.

and Mrs. James S. Tsoucaris. Helen Hopping, at right, looks on. The ceremony was the 500th at which the magistrate of 35th District Court has officiated in the last 10 years.

Couple married in Edenderry Friday

Pamela Ann Harrison, who became the bride of Scott Kevin Socia in an afternoon ceremony last Friday, is the daughter of Leo and Nancy Harrison of Livonia.

Louis Hopping, magistrate of 35th District Court, officiated at the 2 p.m. service at the home of Dr. and Mrs. James S. Tsoucaris on Edenderry Drive in Northville. The bride chose a pink satin dress styled with a v-neckline and floral inlays for the wedding. She wore white pumps. Baby's breath formed her hairpiece.

A Bentley High School graduate, she has worked for Dr. Tsoucaris in his Garden City dental offices since September, 1986.

The bridegroom is the son of Janice Socia of Redford. He is a Redford Union High School graduate and is employed with Livonia Tackle Supply.

Lisa Kollin of Livonia was the bride's attendant. She wore a black and white dress for the wedding. Doug Holliday of Livonia was best man.

Attending the wedding reception at the Tsoucaris home were all members of his office staff. The cake made by Helen Hopping was three layers with two look-throughs and was topped with a kewpie doll on top.

Wedding is 500th service officiated by Louis Hopping

It was a special milestone for 35th District court Magistrate Louis Hopping as well as for the young couple he married last Friday.

Pamela Ann Harrison became the bride of Scott Kevin Socia at the Edenderry Drive home of Dr. and Mrs. James S. Tsoucaris, and wedding knot tied by Magistrate Hopping was the King's Mill resident's 500th wedding ceremony.

The number averages out to a wedding a week during the almost 10 years the magistrate has been performing them. However, the ceremonies are not so evenly spaced — sometimes there have been as many as six in a single week.

As very occasionally happens, both Magistrate Hopping and his wife, Helen, had a part in the wedding arrangements for Dr. Tsoucaris' dental office assistant. The wedding cake had been baked by Mrs. Hopping who, like her husband, remains one of the town's most active octogenarians, running a catering business from her home.

Magistrate Hopping performed the ceremony at 2 p.m. in the Tsoucaris living room after the plans were changed from having it outdoors because of intermittent showers. Afterward, however, the sun came out, and the wedding party and guests gathered outside.

Hopping has performed the civil services in many locations, ranging from his own back yard in the King's Mill Cooperative (where the Hoppings point out they have a nice expanse of lawn) to Mill Race Historical Lagoon.

He recalls that he performed the first wedding held in the gazebo after it was built. "It was hardly finished when a couple wanted me to marry them there," he says.

Last Sunday the village was the setting for Magistrate Hopping's 501st wedding, this time in the New School Church.

The bride had been married twice previously and the bridegroom had been married once, Hopping notes, explaining that it can be difficult for such couples to find someone to marry them under the circumstances.

This bridal party, the Hoppings relate, arrived in a stretch limousine, getting out by the bridge. The bride, wearing a plum lace gown with train, and her three bridesmaids in white with plum sashes, then walked to the church where about 75 guests waited outside and then followed the bride inside for the ceremony.

While the ceremonies usually are not so formal as church ones, the Hoppings say that about half the couples have dressed especially for their wedding ceremony. They recall a couple who wed in native East Indian garb. In a recent ceremony the bridesmaids wore Hawaiian muumuu although the bride was in a traditional white dress.

After becoming Magistrate for the 35th District Court, Hopping remembers, he officiated at his first wedding Nov. 10, 1978. It was in Northville. For a while afterward, he says, then-Judge Dunbar Davis still officiated at a few. He later quit doing so. Since neither of the court's present judges, John MacDonald or James Garber, wishes to perform ceremonies, the task has fallen to Hopping.

He can perform a ceremony anywhere within the 35th District Court boundaries and especially likes to do so at his home. But about half have the Mill Race Village as the setting.

Most of the couples asking to marry are from the area, he says, with many coming from Westland. They call the court and are referred to him.

"They (couples) tell me it is very difficult to find people to marry them, and I understand in some courts the judges set one specific time, 4 p.m. Friday, when they will marry and will do so only at the court," Hopping relates.

He says he tells couples when they ask about being married that it will be a civil ceremony. He's willing to oblige, however, when they sometimes want special wording included. It is a traditional service, but Hopping says he "sometimes adds remarks for those attending."

"Afterward, it's my job to get the witnesses rounded up to sign the papers," notes Helen Hopping who agrees they both enjoy their romantic role.

Historical society offers 'Fall Potpourri'

Four historic Milford homes as well as other landmarks will be open on the 12th annual home tour sponsored by the Milford Historical Society Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 19-20.

Although Northville's Home Tour was a popular event for many years, the decision was made in 1985 to discontinue the tour, co-sponsored by the Northville Historical Society and the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church. The decision was based on manpower limitations as the society's Tivoli Fair, its biggest fundraiser and also a fall event, requires many volunteer hours.

Since then, residents have been taking advantage of nearby tours. Milford's tour will feature four historic homes, the Milford Historical Society Museum, a log cabin, a commercial site and the Oak Grove Cemetery.

In addition, a juried fine crafts festival with more than 75 participants will be held in Central Park, and a parade of vintage cars is scheduled for Sunday during the home tour in downtown Milford.

A special attraction on this year's tour is a dairy barn in Old Milford Farms that has been converted into spacious living quarters.

A natural cross, outlined on the face of a rock in the fireplace reminds visitors to the St. Mary's Parish-Lee Home of the important role the church played in the early settlers' lives.

Another builder's masterpiece is a home constructed in 1872 for George Clark.

Oak Grove Cemetery, one of Milford's oldest, is considered by the State of Michigan to be one of the finest country cemeteries in the state. It contains the graves of many early settlers as well as of veterans of both the Civil War and the 1848 Mexican War.

A short distance down the Huron River from the cemetery is the Milford log cabin built in 1982 to celebrate the community's ses-quicentennial events.

The Milford Historical Society Museum, at 124 E. Commerce, will be open during the tour and will have tickets on sale at $5 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. Tickets also are available in advance there and at many local businesses. During the tour they will be sold at all buildings on the tour.

Tour hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 19 and noon to 5 p.m. Sept. 20.

It's so easy to go to Windsor
And so much fun!

Just get in your car and head for the bridge or the tunnel to Canada. And as soon as you're there, you're in Windsor! If you don't have a car, take your yacht—because there's lots of places to dock a boat on the other side.

Go for a drive along the river. You'll find 16 miles of riverfront where the best view of Detroit is from Windsor. Think of all the things you'll find along the way—lively street fairs, flower parks, and little harbors full of fishing boats. You won't find a waterfront like it anywhere else in the country.

If you like sidewalk cafes, tree-lined boulevards and a lively, bustling city, you'll like Windsor. It's great for lunch or dinner, with places like TBO's Other Place and the Hilton Park Terrace. You can walk anywhere you want to downtown, then get in your car and go shopping or sightseeing.

Enjoy shopping and enjoy saving, where your money's worth much more. At Devonshire Mall, you shop where Canadians shop—at 150 stores just 10 minutes from downtown Windsor. Save on housewares, clothing, jewelry, gifts, cameras and sporting goods.

Go to Windsor for the nightlife. There's rock and roll, jazz. And the Windsor Symphony. If you're looking for a little night music, you've come to the right place—Windsor.

There's another country just a mile away from Detroit. And another city—Windsor. A blend of European charm, friendly people and plenty to see and do. It could be just the change of scene you need, and it's only minutes away.

Record picks nine top golf holes in the area

Neil Geoghegan, sports writer for The Novi News and The Northville Record, and nearly a dozen local golf professionals and even a few golf course owners have come up with the nine 'best' golf holes in the Novi/Northville area.

This area features a wide variety of courses and holes, and we're sure you'll agree that the following nine could make for some challenging, enjoyable — and, yes, even frustrating — golfing. What more could a dedicated linkster ask for?

So what does 'best' golf holes actually mean? Well, that question was left wide open to the experts — there was really no strict criteria involved. Some may consider an extremely tough or difficult hole the best, so we've included double bogie-havens like number seven at Wixom's Hickory Hill Golf Club or Meadowbrook Country Club's number four.

If you consider a unique hole the best, take a closer look at Westbrook's number 17 — 'the flying V' — or Brae-Burn's 'Monster,' a 600-yard double dogleg. And for picturesque holes, look no further than Dun Rovin's number 18, Salem Hill's number 13 or Godwin Glen's number five.

In fact, all these holes will stand up whether graded for their toughness, beauty or enjoyment of playing. In all, our nine hole delight is a 3,602-yard, 36-par course, and no hole or course is further than a few miles away.

So, without further delay, here's a close look at the nine 'best' golf holes in the area:

1 Godwin Glen Golf Club No. 5 (Blue Course)

For those who like (or despise) water hazards on a hole, this Blue Course dandy at Godwin Glen should be of great interest. Water surrounds both the men's and women's tees. Water also pops up again just in time to cause problems for the second shot to the green.

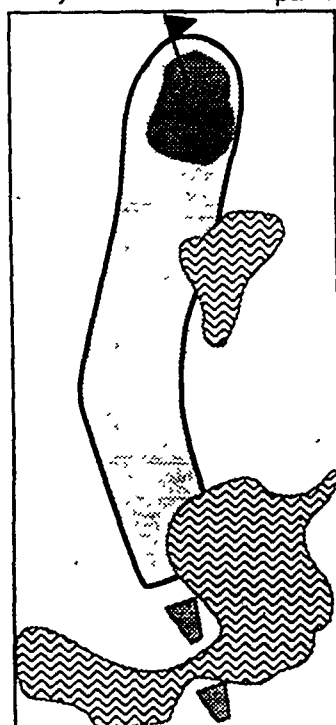

"Our best hole out here has got to be number five," Assistant Pro Paul Stephens said. "It's a slight dogleg to the right, and from the men's tee you have to carry your tee shot about 200 yards over the water."

For those faint of heart, especially from the tee, this hole could be a nightmare. To make the green in two, the second shot has to clear the second pond on the right. Ironically, you need to keep the first two shots to the right in order to cut down the distance and give yourself a chance for par. Many try, but few convert.

"You need to stay right and that's where the water is," Stephens said. "Even for low handicap players, it's a hard hole to par."

The green features a slight incline in front and is surrounded by trees in the back — so there isn't much room for error. Godwin Glen features a lot of water on its 27-holes, but number five on the Blue Course is the granddaddy of them all.

2 Brae-Burn Golf Club No. 13

Brae-Burn's motto is "Home of the Monster," which refers to the mammoth number 13 hole. The Monster is a 600-plus yard double dogleg surrounded by numerous hazards.

"It's a well-known hole all across the state," Brae-Burn Pro Chip Chamberlin said. "It has water all along the left hand side of the fairway and woods all down the right hand side. It's nothing that you'd find on any courses around here."

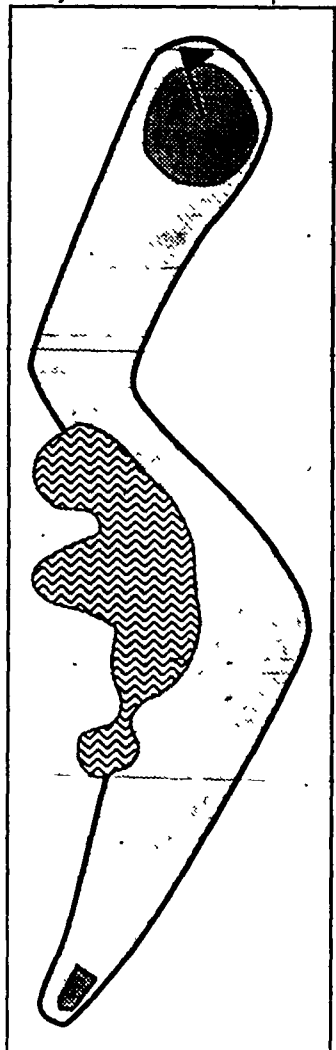

If you are a short hitter, you might as well give up trying to par this hole before you start.

"It's very, very difficult to par this hole," Chamberlin said. "You need an extremely accurate and long drive, but the second shot is the key. Not only does it need to be long and straight, but it has to set up your third shot to the green and that's tough because you need to cut two corners."

The green is good sized, but it slopes from front to back and has undulations. The slope makes it one of Brae-Burn's most difficult greens.

"The average golfer cannot get onto the green in regulation," Chamberlin said. "It's impossible for them because they can't hit the ball far enough."

3 Brooklane Golf Club No. 14

One of the shortest holes chosen, but very demanding nevertheless. This par three features two ponds on either side of the elevated green and a creek that runs between the two in front of the green.

"The green is surrounded by woods so, if you go past it, you're in trouble," Brooklane Pro John Koch said. "It's a very demanding first shot."

"I'd say it's probably the hardest par three hole around," Koch asserted.

4 Salem Hills Golf Club No. 13

Salem Hills Pro Mark Zelazny says that number 13 is by far his course's prettiest hole, but not the toughest. That distinction goes to the 421-yard number 11 hole.

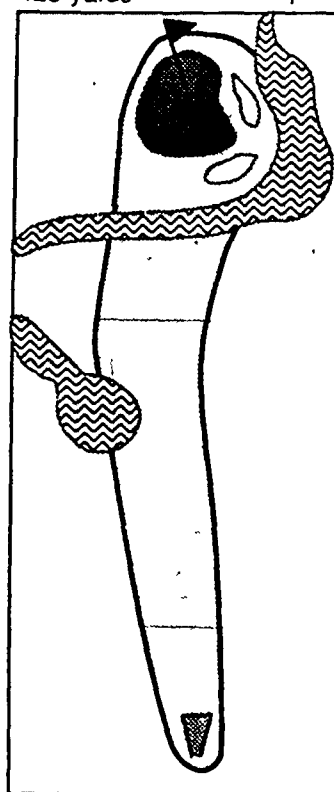

"Number 13 is the prettiest hole out here," he said. "There are woods on the left and several pines on the right so you need to stay in the middle of the fairway to do well on it."

The hole is relatively straight and has a small pond on the left of the fairway. The green is surrounded by water, bunkers and woods, making accurate approach shots almost a necessity.

"The water is around the green and there is a large bunker on the right side, between the green and the pond," Zelazny pointed out. "On the left side there are woods, so there isn't a lot of room for mistakes."

"It may not be the toughest hole in the world, but it is a pretty hole," said Brae-Burn Pro Chip Chamberlin.

423 yards par 4

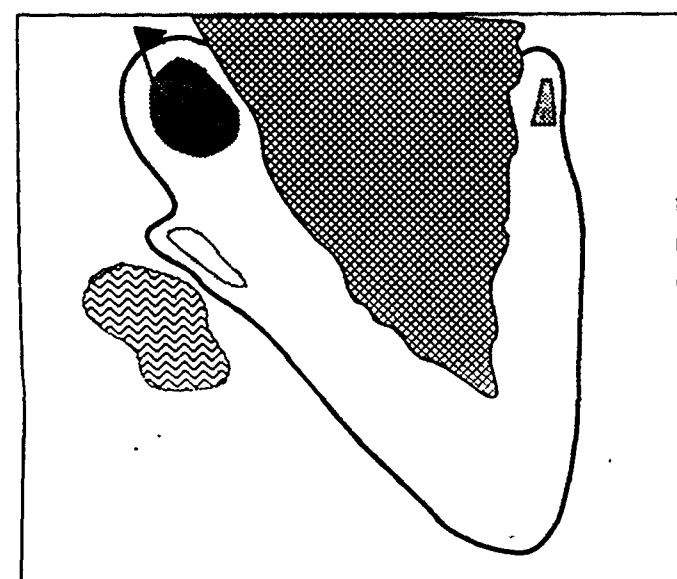

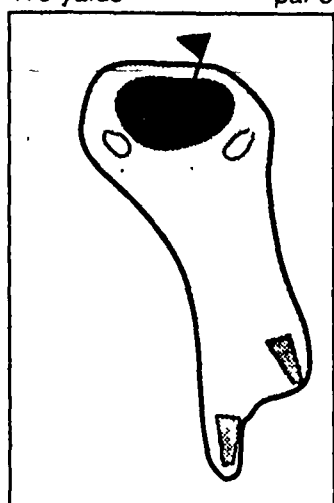

5 Hickory Hill Golf Club No. 7

This hole has an interesting history. The tee used to be a full 60 yards behind the present tee, making it virtually impossible to par. It was routinely ranked among the most difficult par three holes in the state. Owner George Catto mercifully cut down the length and reduced the size of the two bunkers, but it still remains a very difficult hole.

"It's an elevated tee, to an elevated, two-tiered-green with a deep valley in the middle," Catto explained. "It used to be impossible — now it's just tough."

"We had to make it easier for the golfers, but it is still a challenge. If your drive is one foot short, it will roll back down the hill!"

175 yards par 3

6 Westbrook Golf Course No. 17

For uniqueness, nothing comes close to this hole in Novi. Westbrook's number 17 carves its way through a heavily wooded area and is one of the sharpest doglegs you'll ever see.

"It's very unique and unusual," said Dun Rovin Golf Course Pro Jack Nelson. "It's the sharpest dogleg I've ever seen."

The hole is channeled and funneled right into the woods on the right, making it a potential disaster for slicers. Keeping to the right may not be a bad idea, but the length of this hole will severely penalize you if you try to take the first corner too wide.

"If you hit your second shot too far and to the left, you'll be in the water or the bunker," said Westbrook Pro Bob Kuhn. "It has an undulated green that's on the big side, and it can be tricky because it's tucked into the woods a bit. Depending on the pin placement, it can be very difficult to two putt."

7 Meadowbrook Country Club No. 4

Meadowbrook Pro Andy Soley says the fourth hole at Meadowbrook Country Club hole is "probably the most difficult hole in the area." Perhaps the toughest aspect about the hole is its undulated green, but getting to that green in two shots is a very demanding task as well.

"The green is as tough as anything about the hole," Soley pointed out. "The length makes it difficult for the average hitter, and there are a number of hazards near the green as well."

A long pond to the left of the green, and a cliff-like drop-off into the water can cause major problems. A large circular bunker to the right and woods to the back of the hole give very little room for mistakes and that isn't even taking into consideration the treacherous green.

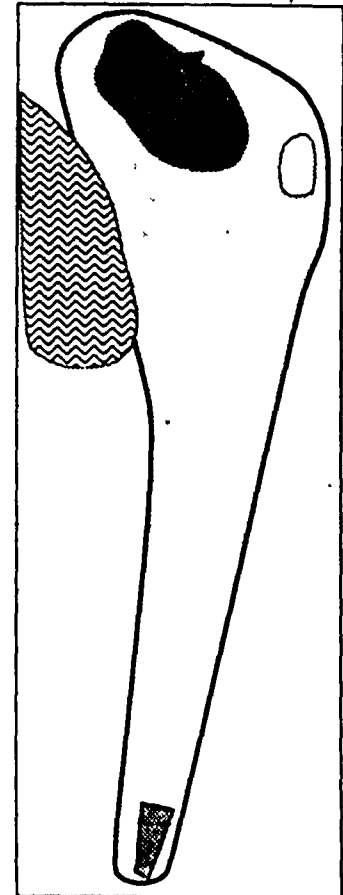

"The green is narrow and long and, if you miss the green to the right, with the undulations, it's almost impossible to save par."

In addition, this hole is truly a beautiful sight to behold. The wide-manicured fairway, the pond and the uneven green are simply stunning to the eye, but not always to the heart.

"One of the toughest holes in the area is number four at Meadowbrook," agreed Brooklane Golf Club Head Pro John Koch.

To sum it all up, it's difficult to get to the green in two, and it certainly doesn't get any easier after that.

Top nine!

Local experts pick best nine golf holes in area

8 Meadowbrook Country Club No. 12

This Meadowbrook gem is one of the longest in our nine best holes. At 574 yards, it could challenge even the long-ball hitters. To complicate matters, a dogleg to the left and two large bunkers next to the green make matters even more complicated.

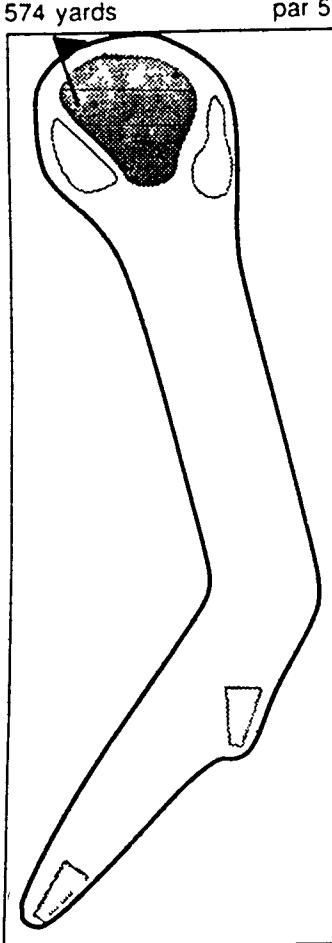

"It's a very difficult par five," Andy Soley said. "It takes three excellent shots from the tee if you want a chance for a birdie. You really can't afford not to have a good shot."

From the women's tee it's slightly easier because it's a full 100-yards closer to the green. But you still have to deal with the dogleg, the bunkers and the two-tiered green.

"Because it's a two-tiered green, it makes it very difficult to putt," Soley pointed out. "The drive is uphill, and you almost have to carry over that hill or you're hitting a blind second shot from the base of the hill with a lot of ground to cover."

The key to the hole is the drive, and Soley reported that few can get the needed distance to reach the top of the hill.

"It's quite a long way, so many guys have trouble with the drive," he said. "The fairway is lined with trees and the large bunkers around the green see a lot of action."

Meadowbrook's beautiful 547-yard number 12 hole is characterized by large bunkers and an undulating green.

Record/CHRIS BOYD

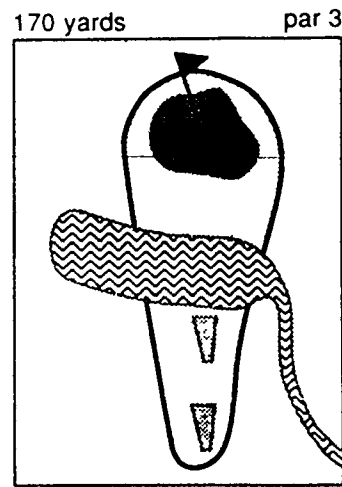

9 Dun Rovin Golf Course No. 18

This attractive hole, visible from Haggerty Road, is a picture-perfect finishing hole. It features a tee shot over a 40-foot wide pond and onto an elevated green. From the women's tee, clearing the water is usually much easier.

"The pond really doesn't come into play unless you miss-hit the tee shot badly -- but it is a psychological hazard," Jack Nelson explained.

"The hill is reasonably steep so if you don't get it all the way up there, it will roll all the way down to the base of the hill."

The green is on the small side and is carved into a steep hill in the back. According to Nelson, if the pin is located toward the back of the green, it becomes extremely difficult to two putt.

Thank-you extended

The Northville Record/Novi News would like to extend a hearty 'thank-you' to the following people who were very helpful in nominating, choosing and lending expertise to our nine best golf holes project: John Koch, Mark Zelazny, Jack Nelson, Andy Soley, Bob Kuhn, George Catto, Paul Stephens and Chip Chamberlin. The author would also like to thank staff writer Christopher J. Kozlowski for his help with graphics.

"Distinctive furnishings for the bedroom"

Northville student bikes across USA

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Not wanting to end his college days without something extra-special to look back on, Northville's Mike Weybourne decided to go all out.

The 20-year-old could have taken a trip to Europe or the Far East, but it just wasn't unique or challenging enough. But biking across the U.S.A. from the Pacific shores of Oregon to Virginia's Atlantic coast is, wouldn't you think?

That's exactly what the 1985 Northville High School graduate did this summer. It took a total of 64 days to cover the 3,700 miles, but, according to Weybourne, it was well worth the effort.

"Everyone told me to do something before you get out of school because you won't have a chance otherwise," he explained. "It was a hard decision, but I decided I wanted to see the country on a bike. I'm glad I made the decision."

"This has always been an ambition for Mike," his mother, Mary Lou Weybourne, said. "He took pledges for leukemia research and he made it across the country. It was a great experience for him."

Mike, who will be a junior this fall at Michigan Tech, took an ad out in a biking magazine in search of riding partners and received four responses. After finalizing the plans, Weybourne flew out to Spokane, Wash., with his bike and supplies to meet Paul Vielle, one of his traveling partners.

"I didn't know any of them prior to the ride," Weybourne said, "but it turned out very well."

From Washington, the two drove to Lincoln City, Ore., to begin the trip and meet two more riders. Each was self-contained, with clothes, tents, sleeping bags and cooking gear in tow. With maps to mark out the trails to take, the four started out to the East on June 8. The official trip started with the back wheels of their bikes in the Pacific Ocean.

"We hardly ever slept in motels," Weybourne said. "We tried a few camp grounds but even that was expensive so we slept in a lot of city parks along the way. We traveled a route that many bicyclists use, so the people in these towns were used to us. There were no hassles."

Each day, the foursome would set a goal and try to reach it. The group averaged about 70 miles a day, even in the rough mountainous areas of Idaho and Montana.

"We hit the Continental Divide in Wyoming, and I couldn't believe we had traveled up that many mountains," he pointed out.

Somewhere near the midway point, Weybourne and Vielle split up from the other two and continued on. They used low-traveled, but paved, roadways and certain sections of the Oregon and Pioneer Trails. With the exception of a few blown-out tires, the two crossed the Mississippi River without any problems.

"I expected to see the country for two months but when it ended, my fondest memories were of the people we met," Weybourne said. "Some would invite us into their homes, give us a shower and feed us. We had to depend on people from time-to-time, and they were always there."

The most difficult portion of the trip came in the Appalachian Mountains, in Kentucky and along the eastern seaboard in Virginia. To add to the problems, Weybourne came down with stomach cramps for about three days, but luckily, it passed.

"The mountains in the Appalachian chain are very steep," Weybourne said. "They weren't as well graded as in the Rockies and it was really starting to get hot. Those combinations made it difficult."

"I felt a little wear near the end. It slowly wore on me but, as we got closer and closer, the adrenalin and anticipation kept us going."

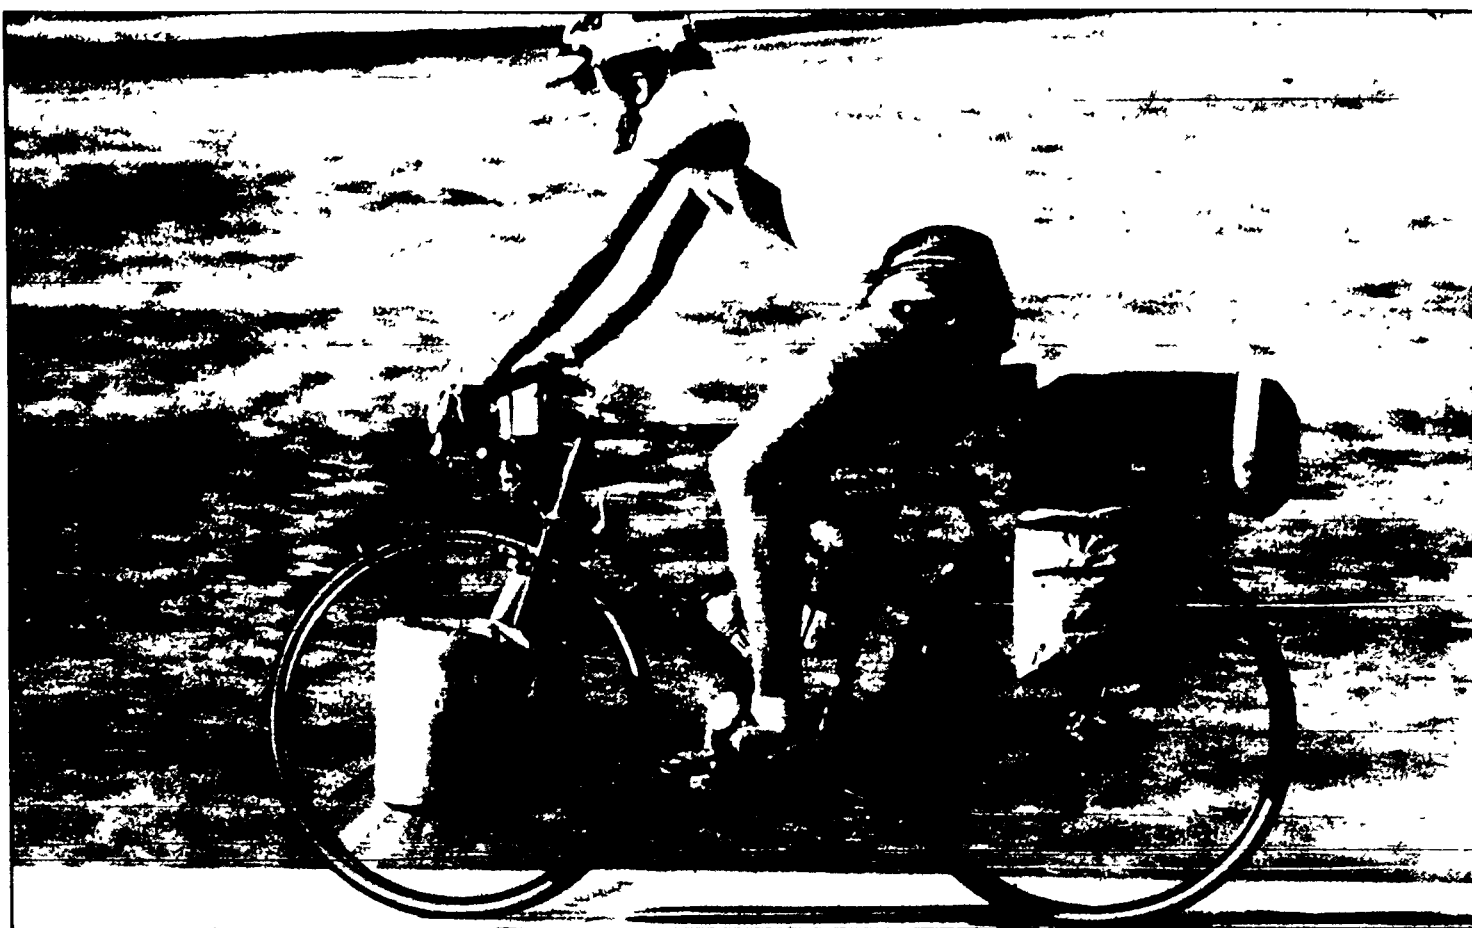

Weybourne and Vielle arrived at their destination — Yorktown, Va., — on Aug. 11. Weybourne was surprised to find a large welcoming committee awaiting their arrival.

"My partner is in the National Army Reserve and, through his connections, he set up an Army welcoming committee for us," Mike explained. "There were colonels and GI's and it was real nice after the long trip."

"It was real exciting when we spotted the Atlantic. We put our front wheels in the Atlantic to symbolize our coast-to-coast trip."

Amazingly, through the 64-day journey, it rained only twice. According to Weybourne, the weather was ideal most of the way — sunny and cool.

"I was real glad I put my time and summer vacation into it," Weybourne said. "I'll never forget it."

The Good News:

Chevy Astros are selling as fast as we can build them.

The Bad News:

We can't quite build them fast enough.

Chevrolet wishes to apologize for the popularity of its Astro passenger van. Because, quite frankly, people like the Astro so much, it can sometimes be tough to find one.

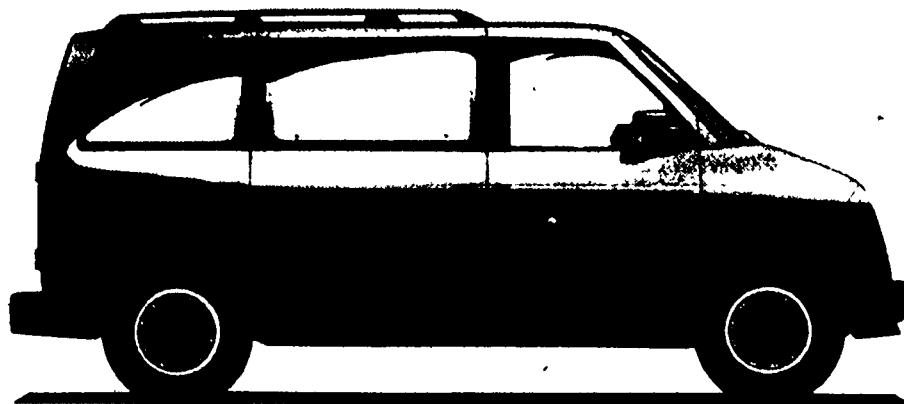

Maybe if Ford or Dodge had a van with Astro's torque, power and towing capacity, things would be a bit easier. Or perhaps if there were a compact van outside GM that could carry as much, the demand for Astros wouldn't be as great. Or just maybe if, after all this time, Ford or Dodge had made swing-out rear doors standard on their vans too, there would be an alternative to Astro.

But until that happens—if it happens—Astro will continue to be very, very popular. Which means we'll continue trying to keep up with the demand.

So if you find that you have to wait a bit for your Astro, we apologize. Just keep telling yourself you're not really waiting. You're merely investing some of your time into what could be the best compact van available today.

Best-backed Chevy ever. 6-year/60,000-mile powertrain warranty and 6 years or 100,000 miles of outer-body rust-through protection. Solid proof of the quality built into every new Chevy Astro.

Sanfords train in Marquette

The National Archery Association of the United States (NAA) recently sponsored a Junior Archery Training Camp for intermediate level athletes, and two Northville residents attended. The camp was held in mid-August at the Olympic Training Center in Marquette, Mich.

The objective of the camp was to accelerate the training of junior archers through intense training sessions. Roger Sanford, 14, and Sheila Sanford, 16, both of Northville, were among the participants. Robert is a freshman and Sheila is a junior at Northville High School.

Both have been competing for four years, including several regional and national level competitions. Sheila was the 1986 National Champion for her age group.

There are three Olympic Training Centers — Colorado Springs, Colo., Lake Placid, N.Y., and in Marquette at Northern Michigan University. The Marquette Center has the capabilities for training 27 of the 38 Olympic sports.

Local swimmer focuses on 1992 Olympics bid

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

With a lot of attention directed at 1992, Novi's Jon Cohen is doing exactly what he has to do in 1987 to make a trip to the Olympics a reality some day.

Cohen, 16, completed a successful long course swim season last week at the Hall of Fame Pool in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Jon attended the National Junior Olympic Championships along with 1,200 of the best 18-and-under swimmers in the nation.

Each swimmer had to reach specific qualifying times in order to attend. And each could only participate in a maximum of four events during the five-day meet which got under way Aug. 11.

Jon took first place honors in the 400-meter individual medley and broke the Junior Olympic East national record in a time of 4:32.46. The Novi swimming sensation beat his nearest competitor by more than three seconds in the race.

Jon then added a third in the 800 freestyle event (2:09.92) and a fifth in the 200 breaststroke (2:25.64) to wrap up a truly outstanding performance in Florida.

"It was a great way to top off my Junior National swimming career," Jon said. "Now, I'm preparing myself for the Olympic trials next year. Next to my experience at the Olympic Festival last summer in Texas, this is my best accomplishment."

In his record-breaking effort in the individual medley, Jon's time was just one second off the Olympic trials qualifying time and was enough to qualify him for the Senior Nationals.

"It had to be the most exciting thing I've ever experienced in Jon's swimming career," said his mother, Cyndy Cohen. "It's still hard to believe."

In the 400 IM, 100-meters of each stroke is swum, making it a true test for the all-around swimmer with the most endurance. The crowd in Fort Lauderdale was on its feet during the race, cheering Cohen on as he blazed his way to record-breaking splits. The splits were 2:15 for the butterfly/backstroke leg, and 2:17 for the breaststroke/freestyle leg. Just as he usually does in the 200 IM, Cohen made his move in the breaststroke. His split in the breaststroke (1:15) was faster than most senior swimmers on hand in Florida.

"I thought that nothing Jon did in swimming could surprise me anymore, but it was really exciting," reported his mother. "His record swim was a very nice achievement for his many years of hard work."

Cohen's times in all three events set new Michigan age 15-16 long course records. He now has seven state long course records and two long course open records. The open records are in the 400 IM and the 200 IM, making Jon the fastest swimmer in any age group in those two events in Michigan history.

"This is a real big accomplishment for Jon," his father Bob Cohen said. "He'll probably be ranked in the top 50 swimmers, regardless of age, in the country after this."

Jon and younger brother Steve, 15, also competed in the Central Zone Age Group Championships in Cleveland, Ohio, the week before. The United States was divided into four zones with the central covering 17 states. In the 15-18 age group, Jon took firsts in the 100-meter breaststroke, the 400 freestyle, the 400 IM, and the 1,500 freestyle and set new zone records in all four. It was enough to give Cohen the high point award for the meet.

Steve took second in the 800 freestyle, third in the 1,500 freestyle and eighth in the 400 IM to break his personal goal of five minutes (4:59.99). The Michigan contingent of 122 swimmers took the team championship, beating second-place Indiana by a whopping 642 points.

Doinidis Chiropractic Life Center

Could save you from further back pain with an ounce of prevention

We've all heard the old adage — an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Did you ever consider that an ounce of prevention with a chiropractor could help save you from future back and neck pain?

"We believe keeping the spine loose and flexible on a regular basis will prevent a lot of these problems from occurring in the future," said Dr. Nick Dolnidis of Novi.

Dr. Doindis has had a chiropractic practice in Novi for the past eight years. He is a graduate of Henry Ford Community College, Oakland University and Life Chiropractic College.

In 1982, he received The Cornerstone Award from the CMA Inc. This award is given for understanding and unselfish dedication to the chiropractic profession and humanity.

Dr. Doinidis is keenly interested in new techniques and eagerly attends seminars to learn the latest advancements in chiropractic.

His patients claim he gives the most comfortable spinal adjustments that they've ever had. He also doesn't limit himself to the spine, often helping people with knee, ankle and other joint pains with a technique called extremity adjustment.

This treatment frequently helps reduce the pain of sports related injuries.

The most common complaint of all is lower back pain. The procedure for these patients (as it is with most patients) is to fill out a form on their health history, then receive a spinal examination and a spinal X-ray. While Dr. Dolinide studies the X-ray the patient views a 20-minute video tape on the chiropractic science.

"If the doctor determines that the patient's problem is a chiropractic problem it can be treated that same day," Dr. Doinidis said.

The usual treatment is a spinal adjustment. The spinal adjustment adds flexibility and realigns the spine.

Dr. Dolniklis also shows the patient how to reduce back stress by simply changing the way to get up from the bed or couch.

"Instead of sitting straight up which puts tremendous strain and pressure on the back," he said, "you should roll on your side pushing yourself up with your elbows and hands. It's a tremendous back saver."

Another preventive measure Dr. Doinidis considers important is having children checked for scoliosis.

Scoliosis is a curvature of the spine which happens in adolescence. If left undiagnosed into adulthood it can have damaging results in extreme cases.

These results can be loss of height, crowding of internal organs and rib cage malformation. Dr. Dolinidis recommends children from age eight on be checked by a doctor once a year.

Dr. Dolnidie believes if people took the same preventive measures with their spines that they take with their teeth a lot of spinal problems would be avoided.

Dr. Doindia is located at 41616 W. 10 Mile in Novi. Office hours are 9 a.m.-1 p.m. and 3-6 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 10 a.m.-noon Saturday. He also has an office at 19026 Grand River, Detroit.

Brainer's Greenhouse

Offers quality service and competitive prices to all customers

For two generations Brainer's Greenhouse at 51701 Grand River in Wixom has offered quality, service and competitive prices to all of its customers — wholesale and retail.

Seeing the acres of flowers in the field and the long rows of Quonset hut shelters that house the plants which Brainer's sells, people often assume that Brainer's is a wholesale supplier only.

"We welcome retail buyers, too," Dick Brainer said. "We have all the varieties that most retail customers are looking for—petunias, marigolds, salvia, geraniums, impatiens, etc."

If a buyer can't find what he wants at Brainer's, it's often because he or she is overwhelmed by the rows and rows of plants, the number of plant varieties, and the range of colors and sizes of the plants on display.

A customer needs to consider more than just size and color when selecting bedding plants. Knowing the amount of water, sunlight, and attention that the plants will receive is essential to choosing the right plants for a particular garden area.

Brainer and his staff are ready and qualified to answer any questions that customers may have about plant selection. They can help choose plants that will successfully meet a customer's planting needs.

Customers enjoy the advantages of buying from a farm grower — greater variety, finer plants, and lower costs. They also appreciate the advice available from experienced horticulturists.

At Brainer's, customers buy because of selection and price; but customers return because of the service they receive.

There is always someone at Brainer's who can answer questions even after the plants are in the customer's garden.

Brainer is often called on to identify plant growing problems and to suggest solutions for baffled customers. He is always willing to help his customers to become more successful in their gardening. Service is the hallmark of Brainer's business.

When healthy plants develop problems, the cause is often traced to faulty planting.

For customers who have large planting areas, large enough to require 20 or more flats of bedding flowers, for example, Brainer's can arrange to do the planting, too.

Many area industrial and commercial sites, office buildings and apartment complexes are among Brainer's customers who use this convenient service.

Brainer's also has satisfied residential customers who chose not to do their own planting. Homeowners with extensive planting requirements will discover that a home does not have to be an estate to receive the same attention from Brainer's.

Although the spring and summer months brings customers looking for flowers and shrubs, autumn is the start of Brainer's most intense selling season.

From field grown plants to potted shoots to finished plants, the seasonal poinsettia takes over Brainer's greenhouses.

"We probably sell more finished plants than anyone else in this area," he said. He back his selections with his reputation.

"We have the largest selection in the area," Brainer said.

Brainer's Greenhouse sells a complete line of trees, wreaths and Christmas products.

Brainer's goal is to sell the public what it wants to buy. "That means quality plants at a competitive price," he said.

Open year round, Brainer's hours are 8 a.m.-5:30 p.m., Monday-Saturday. From October-December, the busy season, Brainer's is open the same hours on Sundays.

Dr. Kenneth Poss and Associates

Uses laser foot surgery to reduce pain and trauma

They're called podiatrists or foot specialists and what they offer may be surprising.

They were the forerunners in the use of laser surgery on the foot, one of the few practices to offer 24-hour emergency service, treat patients from infants to senior citizens and most of all, continue to make house calls.

Feet are the part of the body that most people neglect. We go for check-ups for all parts of the body, but when was the last time you had a foot check-up?

The professionals at Foot Health Centers located in Novi, Northville and Livonia offer all services related to the foot and ankle.

Dr. Kenneth Poss and Dr. Randy Bernstein like to stress that taking the right steps towards better foot care can pay off. They treat all types of problems from sports related injuries, to children's in-toe or out-toe conditions, to complete reconstructive surgery of the foot like bunions and hammertoes to circulation and nerve problems of senior citizens.

By being one of the first podiatric practices in the state of Michigan to use laser technology, Dr. Poss and Dr. Bernstein have used lasers with much success.

The laser is used primarily for treatment of fungus nails, ingrown nails, growths, warts (hands and feet), plantar corns and some nerve tumors (neuromas). By using the laser, there is less trauma and less pain for the patient. "The patient," Dr. Poss said, "is given a local anesthetic and walks out of the office when the procedure is done. 'The problem is that not many people are trained to use laser properly. It should be noted that laser technology has not been perfected yet in treating bone disorders.'"

A large part of the doctor's practice is made up of senior citizens whose feet are beginning to show signs of wear. These ailments fall into four categories.

1) As we age, we begin to suffer from chronic illnesses, such as heart disease or arthritis. These may present direct or indirect problems to the feet.

2) Lifelong neglect of the feet become apparent as feet age. Trouble from "wear and tear" accumulates and the eventual effect may be dramatic.

3) Some foot problems are encouraged by the aging process. Slower circulation and hardening of the arteries are major contributors.

4) Feet become more vulnerable to injury with age. Senior citizens should see Dr. Poss at the slightest sign of change in the condition of their feet. Quick treatment could prevent problems before they become major, thus limiting the possibility of additional medical treatment and costs.

Keeping feet healthy contributes to a longer, more comfortable, and more active life. Older people should think in terms of prevention, to discourage infections and discomfort by routinely examining their feet for changes in color or temperature. These signs might indicate problems which could lead to gangrene and amputation.

Diabetic feet also need extra tender loving care. People with diabetes or poor circulation must take special care of their feet because they could lose them to an infection. In addition to providing general foot care, diabetics should be sure to wear adequate shoes and avoid constricting socks or stockings. Sensation is diminished, so look at and feel feet daily to check for cuts, cracks or redness. Contact Dr. Poss immediately about any ongoing foot problem. Especially report any sign of infection or violet-skin discoloration.

Surgery for bunions and other foot deformities can for the most part be done on an ambulatory basis in our office or as an out patient at one of our hospitals. This means that the patient does not have to remain in the hospital following surgery. "I prefer ambulatory surgery because my patients can return home immediately after their procedure," Dr. Poss said. "They can recover in the comfortable atmosphere of their own home."

Dr. Poss has been practicing in the area since 1978. He is a graduate of Pennsylvania College of Podiatric Medicine in Philadelphia. Poss completed his surgical residency at Monseigneur Kern Hospital for Special Surgery in Warren, where he received advanced training in foot and ankle surgery.

Dr. Kenneth Poss checks a patient's x-ray prior to surgery.

He is director of residency training at North Detroit General Hospital as well as being on staff at Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills. He is a member of the American College of Foot Surgeons (Associate), American Board of Podiatric Surgery, and the Academy of Hospital Podiatrists.

Dr. Poss also lectures across the country on foot and ankle surgery and gives many second opinion consultations on foot surgery.

Because of his advanced training in foot and ankle surgery, Dr. Poss is available for 24-hour emergency care. He will meet a patient at the office or hospital at any time, thus saving time of waiting in a hospital emergency room. Putting the patient first is a priority for Dr. Poss.

He believes children should have a foot exam within the first year and senior citizens should have their feet checked approximately every two-three months for infection, nail care and making sure the circulation is adequate.

Free transportation is offered for patients who need a ride and house calls are available for those senior citizens who are unable to leave their homes.

When you call for an appointment, Dr. Poss' staff members are trained to ask the nature of your problem. Please give them as much information as possible. This will help them schedule enough time for your complete foot care.

Town Center: Novi gets likeness of downtown in center

What do Northville, South Lyon, Milford, Brighton and Howell — not to mention Plymouth, Farmington, Birmingham and many other communities — have that Novi does not have?

The answer is "a downtown."

But all that is about to change. Novi is getting a downtown. Or, at least, it's getting a modern facsimile of a downtown, in the form of a massive project known as the "Novi Town Center."

Currently under construction on 70 acres at the northeast corner of the Grand River/Novi Road intersection, the Novi Town Center will provide some 485,000 square feet of retail space and include such major retailers as Mervyn's, T.J. Maxx, Highland Superstores, Children's Palace, F&M, General Cinema, Children's Palace and Vic Tanny International.

It's a significant infusion of retail area for any community. But when you stop to consider that Novi already contains Twelve Oaks Mall, West Oaks I and West Oaks II, the addition of the 485,000 square foot Novi Town Center will make the community the number one retail center in southeastern Michigan.

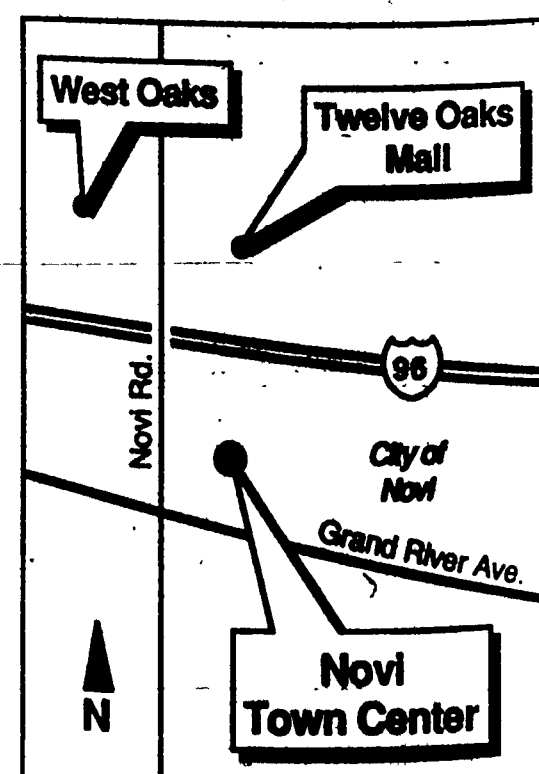

So how did it all come about? And what are the consequences of such a concentration of retail development in a single community of approximately 28,000 people?

Nobody knows why Novi does not have a downtown. Why do the Northvilles, South Lyons, Milfords, Brightons, Howells and Plymouths of the world have attractive downtown areas while Novi does not? Is the answer that communities with established downtowns were fortunate to have enlightened planning leadership 50, 75, 100 years ago? Or is the answer that those communities were merely fortunate?

Regardless, the fact remained that for all intents and purposes Novi does not have a downtown... a commercial focal point that lends identity to the community.

The absence of a well-defined retail center was a significant shortcoming... a shortcoming abundantly obvious to city leaders who have talked about having a downtown (town center) for better than 20 years.

In fact, city officials had designated the property around the Grand River/Novi Road intersection as a "Town Center" area in the 1980 Master Plan for Land Use Development. But drawing lines on master plans is easy; the hard part is making those lines become a reality.

How do you take a largely undeveloped area and convert it into a "downtown?"

One answer is that you get a benefactor. And that is essentially what happened in Novi in the form of the Trammell Crow Company, the Dallas-based company which is the largest developer of commercial real estate in the United States.

"Benefactor" is, of course, the wrong word. Nobody harbors any illusions that the motives of the Trammell Crow Company are anything other than profit-oriented. At the same time, however, the Trammell Crow Company's extensive financial resources have made possible many things which would not have been possible with a

Sylvan Learning Center

Guarantees educational skills can be improved

Supplemental education has been a mainstay for the Japanese educational system for years. Now supplemental education is becoming popular in America and the Sylvan Learning Centers are leading the way.

Supplemental education helps students sharpen their skills and keep up in their studies.

"In America we've always had tutoring but that never really addressed the important issue; a tutor may not always be able to pinpoint what the real problem is," said Dr. Louis Porretta of Sylvan Learning Centers.

Dr. Porretta is director of the Ann Arbor and Novi Sylvan Learning Centers. He has been in the education field for 37 years and is currently professor emeritus in the College of Education at Eastern Michigan University.

Dr. Porretta believes most learning problems can be traced back to lack of basic reading and math skills.

"Maybe the child missed some school because of sickness or being moved from one district to another and missed an important lesson," Dr. Porretta said. "Then there is a gap."

These skills gap could become more evident later. Some signs that a child is having problems include: doesn't pay attention in class, doesn't like going to school, acts like a class clown, doesn't like to read and of course, poor grades.

For years there was no place for a parent to go if a student was having difficulty in school or problems with reading and math. Often parents resigned themselves to the fact that their child just wasn't a good student.

"There are two things that are very tragic about that," Dr. Porretta said. "One is it's not just a question of being successful in school but rather being successful the rest of their life. And the other part is that there is something that can be done."

The Sylvan Learning Centers offer a guarantee "that something can be done." If a student stays in the basic reading or math program for 36 hours of instruction and then is re-tested, he/she will gain at least one year in reading vocabulary or comprehension as measured by a standardized test or we provide 12 hours free instruction, he said.

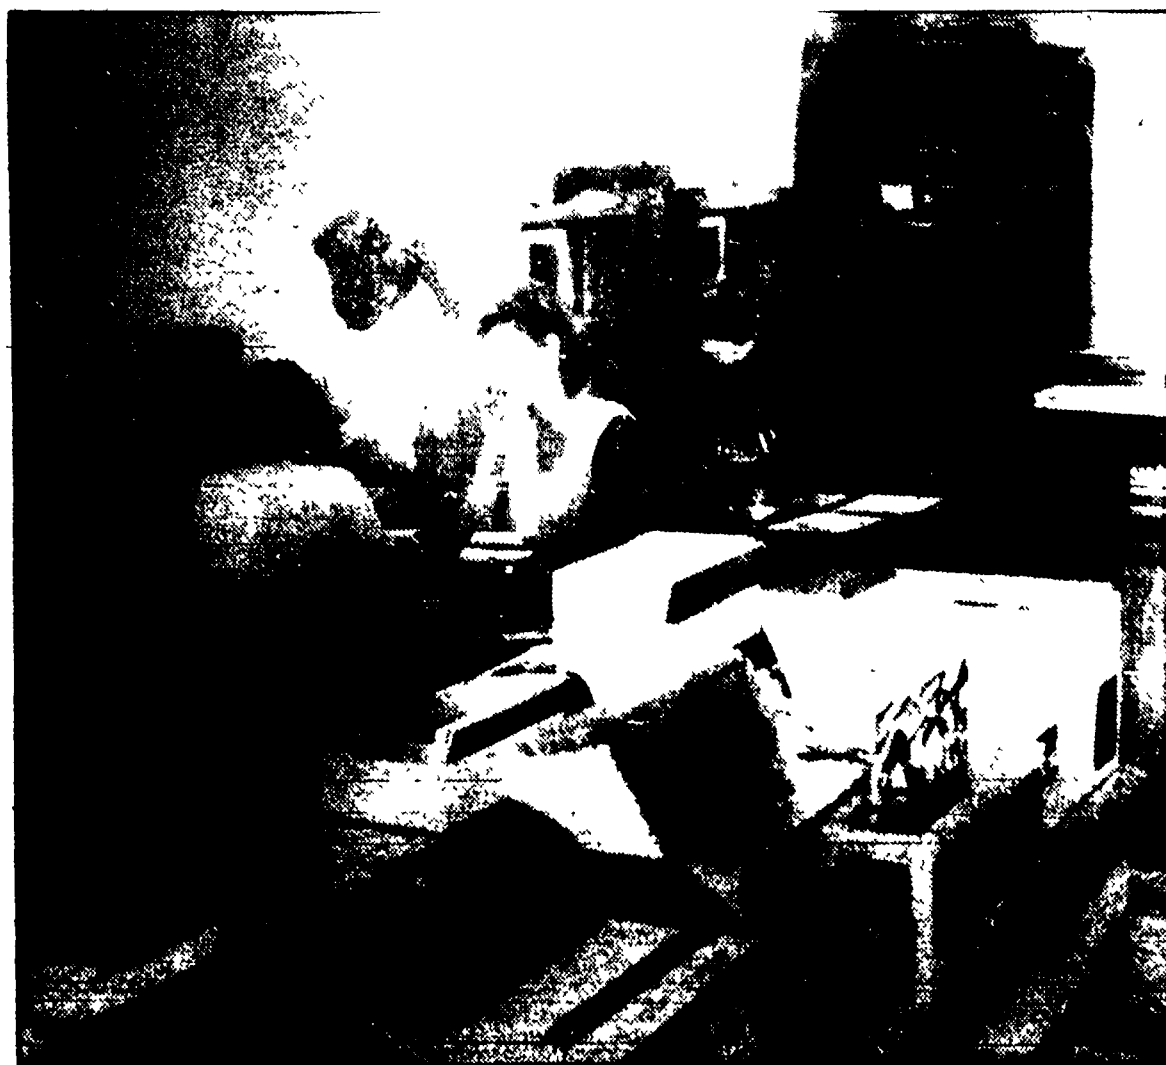

Sylvan works with all ages from kindergarten to adults. It offers programs in reading, math, Algebra, the enhancement of skills and college prep (SAT/ACT).

A student will be given a diagnostic test to identify a student's strength and weakness, then a test for vision/hearing, then a unique prescription program will be designed for the student.

Students attend one-hour sessions twice a week where they receive individualized attention.

Sylvan Learning Center is located at 24099 Meadowbrook Road and 10 Mile Road in Novi. Contact them at 334-1474.

Town Center imitates a downtown for Novi smaller firm.

At this point it should be noted that Trammell Crow's 70-acre Town Center project represents only a small portion of the company's overall holdings in the area. The company owns better than 300 acres of the property from Novi Road to Meadowbrook Road (one mile) between the I-96 expressway south to Grand River Avenue.

Trammell Crow officials have not released plans for all 300 acres. The 70-acre Town Center project is well under way with many of the stores scheduled to open this fall. Also included on the 300 acres will be a Wyndham Hotel and a three-story Lake Pointe Office Center of 150-acres featuring research and development facilities in addition to traditional offices. The hotel is designed to serve business travelers at the Lake Pointe Office Center.

As might be expected, the Town Center project has generated criticism in certain segments of the community. Critics talk about the traffic congestion that will be generated by a retail development that is designed to be regional, not local, in its drawing power.

Planning officials estimate that Novi's four major retail centers (Twelve Oaks, West Oaks I, West Oaks II and the Town Center) will serve a 50-mile radius.

Other critics claim the Town Center is nothing more than a glorified "strip" center.

Novi's professional planning officials tend to believe the latter is true. Community Development Director James Wahl and City Planning Consultant Brandon Rogers tend to believe the criticism will dissipate as soon as several lingering problems are resolved and critics come to realize just exactly what the Town Center project means to the City of Novi.

Assessing the impacts of the Town Center on the community, Wahl mentions the obvious first — tax base and jobs.

But he mentions several other impacts as well. "You have to remember that the Town Center was a severely deteriorated area with a lot of run-down buildings and vacant, boarded-up houses," he said. "All those eyesores have been wiped away now."

Equally as important, according to Wahl and Rogers, is that the entire Town Center project has been undertaken by a single entity with significant financial resources.

"There is no way we would have come out as well as we're going to in the Town Center if one large developer had not come in and assembled all the one and two-acre parcels in that area," said Wahl. "We would have had piecemeal development instead of one large overall coordinated development."

Rogers agreed that the assemblage of the property by the Trammell Crow Company is key to what he believes will become widely-recognized as an outstanding development plan.

"Working with a single developer (Trammell Crow) has enabled us to incorporate a great many highly desirable elements that would simply not have been possible if we were dealing with a lot of smaller developers," said Rogers.

"We were able to develop a guidebook for the Town Center that incorporates sidewalks, benches and extensive landscaping. There's going to be a five-six acre park near the Grand River/Novi Road intersection with a fountain and a gazebo, and there's going to be a coordinated lighting design throughout . . . there's no way we would have been able to get all those things if we weren't dealing with a single developer."

Rogers said the "guidebook" also has a spin-off effect in the city's other retail areas. Other developers are picking up on the theme established in the guidebook with the effect being that there will be a more cohesive appearance to all the commercial areas, he said.

"And don't forget the river walk," added Rogers, referring to plans to establish a walkway along the path of the Middle Rouge River. "It will be a real amenity for the residents and the city, and it would not have been possible if one company had not come in and assembled all the property in the Town Center," he said.

Both Wahl and Rogers admit there will be some "bad" along with the "good."

"The real impact of the Town Center is that we've been able to renew the heart of Novi. Plus we're getting tax base, jobs and image. The people in Dallas, St. Louis and Boston know where Novi is now because of the Town Center — and those are the people where the investments are coming from."

"I submit that in a few years the Town Center will be viewed throughout southeastern Michigan as one of the truly superior jobs of municipal planning," he concluded.

Advanced Dentistry Means "Total Comfort" at Novi Dental

When a patient enters a dentist's office for the first time, he may be anxious. He may be uncertain. Often, he is in pain.

At the Novi Family Dental Center, 24101 Novi Road (in the Michigan National Bank Building), a patient's anxieties are soon dispelled by the friendly welcome he or she receives there. The professional skill and competence of the staff eases any uncertainties the patient might have. And the innovative techniques and advanced skills of Dr. Allen Tuchklaper, D.D.S. soon eliminate the pain.

For seven years the Novi Family Dental Center has been serving patient's dental needs in Novi. Dr. Tuchklaper credits his friendly, professional staff for their constant factor in prevention and successful treatment of dental problems.

At the Novi Family Dental Center, after a comprehensive interview, the patient receives a complete periodontal exam. A mold of the patient's teeth can be made. This study model graphically illustrates for doctor and patient the reasons for a patient's dental problems.

"We spend a lot of time explaining causes and discussing preventive measures and treatment options," says Dr. Tuchklaper. "So much in dentistry is preventable."

Dr. Tuchklaper knows that patient education works. "We are a family-oriented practice," he explains. "Many of professional journals and product reports

One of the most publicized techniques of modern dentistry is known as "bonding," Dr. Tuchklaper uses the bonding process in a number of ways to meet his patient's needs.

Cosmetic bonding can provide a non-surgical correction of misaligned, malformed or discolored teeth. Bonding materials also can be used to rebuild teeth that would otherwise require more expensive silver or gold crown work.

Porcelain veneers are the latest development in cosmetic bonding. Porcelain offers an even longer-lasting, stronger surface than conventional bonding materials.

Sealants, another recent development in bonding materials, offer special benefits to children. A clear or opaque sealant is painted on the chewing surfaces of the molars. The natural surface of these back teeth is covered with deep pits and fissures that can trap food and lead to unseen decay. Sealants protect these crevices from decay.

"The use of sealants, regular check-

With this new product there is a solution to the problem of loose, sore dentures.

Thanks to a new space age material, Newsoft dentures fit securely and softly, eliminating the need for adhesives and most denture adjustments. Newsoft dentures can be used for new or relined dentures.

tributions to the steady growth of his dental practice.

We have added staff, as recently as this month — including another dental hygienist to make it more convenient for our patients to obtain an evening or Saturday appointment.

"There is stability here that patients find reassuring. Patients like to return and find familiar faces," Dr. Tuchklaper says.

"We practice holistic dentistry. That is, we look at each patient as an individual. We look at the whole person and his overall well-being. We involve the patient in developing his own dental health care program," Dr. Tuchklaper says.

The more the dentist knows about the patient as a person, the more accurate his diagnosis is likely to be. "When we are familiar with a person's lifestyle and health priorities, we are able to develop a more effective program of preventive dental hygiene and appropriate dental care," says Dr. Tuchklaper.

"We are missionaries for preventive dentistry," Dr. Tuchklaper continues. Patient education may be the most impor-the children we are seeing today have fewer problems than their parents did. They are more aware, more knowledgeable about proper dental care." Patient education—parent education—is paying off.

Although patient education is important, Dr. Tuchklaper recognizes the need for dentists to keep pace with the advances in their field. He is determined to keep his place in the forefront of modern dentistry.

Recently, Dr. Tuchklaper spent a week of intensive study at the prestigious L.D. Pankey Institute for Advanced Dental Education in Florida. According to Dr. Tuchklaper, "It is one of the foremost institutions of its kind in the world. I was privileged to be able to attend."

By participating in advanced study programs, Dr. Tuchklaper brings back to his patients the results of the latest research conducted by the world's leading dental authorities.

In addition to the latest technology, Dr. Tuchklaper researches new products and techniques. His office is filled with pro-

Are educational institutions providing answers and giving direction for the youth of America today? The educational establishment with its humanistic philosophy must shoulder some of the responsibility. Our young people face a dilemma in life which has resulted in drug dependency, involvement in the occult, and suicide reaching epidemic proportions. What is the answer? We at Novi Christian believe in a cooperative effort "of home, church, and school."

When young people are provided the opportunity to develop the character quality of responsibility, they will become the kind of leaders our community, state, and nation need for the future.

Novi Christian School places a strong emphasis on the development of character qualities which will enable young people to learn how to live as well as how to earn a living. The Accelerated Christian Education program uses a goal approach to life which encourages individual responsibility. The objective of these unique procedures is to encourage the student to set and attain achievable academic and deportment goals in his daily life. The concept of positive reinforcement is realized in field trips, special activities, and privileges which are earned.

C. Harold Bloom Insurance Agency takes its tradition of personal client contact into third generation

The C. Harold Bloom Agency has been going strong for 50 years and now, as the third generation joins the insurance agency, the tradition will continue.

The C. Harold Bloom Agency was born during the Great Depression. Bloom had been working at a bank in Northville, selling insurance and handling other bank duties.

He eventually established his own office, in 1937, at 108 W. Main St., where it continues to operate today.

Bloom ran the business alone, catering to the insurance needs of Northville residents and businesses for over 20 years. Then, in 1959, Bloom's son-in-law, Richard Lyon, joined the agency.

Lyon is a graduate of Northville High School, as well as Michigan State University. He has been an active part of the Northville community, currently serving as a member of the board of directors of the Northville Chamber of Commerce and as a past president of the board.

Lyon also has served on the Northville Board of Education and City of Northville Board of Review.

As the second generation at the Bloom Agency, Lyon has watched the Northville community grow and with it, the agency.

"We still emphasize personal service," Lyon said. Clients are given Lyon's home phone number and know if they have a question or problem, they can always reach him.

The Bloom Agency is also one of the few insurance agencies that generates its own bills.

"Nowadays most clients are billed from the companies. But by billing them ourselves, we retain more personal contact with our clients," Lyon said.

That personal attention has kept clients satisfied for years. There are clients who have been with the agency for 50 years and some businesses for over 30 years.

"We're a small-town agency with the capacity to meet present day needs," Lyon said.

Now, as the agency moves into its third generation, Richard's son, Gordon, is looking forward to maintaining, improving and enlarging the business.

"With the Novi, Northville and Plymouth area expanding, there is more opportunity for growth than ever before," Gordon Lyon said.

He also is a Northville High School graduate and a graduate of Madonna College. He has lived in Northville all his life, in the house that has been in the family for five generations.

Northville has always been home for the C. Harold Bloom Agency and as the agency marches into the future, its most unique tradition will continue to be its small-town touch.

Novi/Northville: Red carpet is out in Novi; it's different in Northville

They have rolled out the red carpet to industry in Novi. In Northville, there's no place to roll it.

Novi has been able to take advantage of its location — close to Detroit with easy freeway access — and its relatively recent development to attract not only the cream of the light industrial crop, but the corporate headquarters of a number of small and mid-sized businesses.

Northville, an older community, offers nearly everything an industry could require — location, nearby residential and recreational facilities, and easy freeway access. The one thing Northville lacks is land for industries to locate.

In the very recent past, since the recession of 1978, Novi has managed to attract new and existing industries to its industrial parks . . . without giving away the city to get them. Community Development Director James Wahlsays Novi has some of the most stringent requirements for industries, has more land zoned for industrial use than any city in Oakland County and still is able to attract business to its industrial parks.

In the City of Northville, the land earmarked for industry has been taken by such firms as Belanger, Inc. and the Ford Motor Co. And, until the owners opt to give up their places to others, as is rumored to be happening with the Ford plant in the downtown area, there really isn't room for new companies to move into town.

"It's not that we don't welcome industry to Northville," said City Manager Steven Walters, "it's just that we have nowhere to put them."

In Northville Township, which has a very small industrial area along Seven Mile, the climate is one of waiting.

Wayne County currently owns more than 1,000 acres of land on Sheldon Road, land that is being used exten-ly by industrial developments in Plymouth.

"We have had no trouble in filling Metro West Industrial Park," said Karen Burrill, vice president of marketing for the R.A. DeMattia Company. "Right now, the park is 90 to 95 percent full."

But crossing Sheldon Road into Northville Township is a big step, since the county has taken little action toward actually selling the land and since it currently is zoned for residential uses.

"I think you will see some changes in the industrial climate once the county land is sold," said Richard Duwel, partner in Duwel-Thomas development and a Northville Township planning commissioner. "Until then, though, what industry we have is small, in smaller pockets."

spillover from the City of Northville.

"There has been some moving back and forth, particularly with businesses already located in the city, just crossing Northville Road and extending their operation into the township," said Walters, citing the Belanger operation as an example of spillover.

"He has one operation in the city, then needed additional room. We couldn't provide it, but there was space in the township. Rather than lose the industry altogether, we made the cooperative effort and it has worked out very well."

Novi's Wahl said there have been some rather major changes in the way that city reacts to industrial residents since the recession.

"My predecessor would attend trade shows, beating the drum to have people locate here. I not only don't have the time, since I'm working on site plans and proposals, but it isn't necessary. We don't have to sell Novi as a good place for industry to locate. People are finding out on their own."

One of those businesses is Fife Electric, which last September moved into its new corporate headquarters on Nine Mile near Meadowbrook Road.

Said Marvin Tisdale Sr., president of Fife Electric: there really was little competition for area.

"We knew we wanted the Novi area, since our customer base and our employee base was in the western suburbs."

Since the company moved to Novi, Tisdale said some of the company's 50 employees have elected to move their families into the area as well.

Duvel said Fife's action in a large measure confirms his theory about industrial development in the western suburbs.

"We're talking about small to mid-size, single-owner businesses. They want their companies located close to their homes, and there's no doubt that the residential climate here is very good," he said. "If you provide good schools and easy access to the freeways and railroads, you're going to attract business, too."

International Business Centers

Offers a new concept in business office efficiency

The term is "shared office services" and it is the latest in business office efficiency.

"Shared office services" refers to the ability to lease not only office space (as small as 150 square feet), but office equipment and the staff to run the equipment. All this is one large business complex.

International Business Centers (IBC) is in the forefront of the shared service office concept and has brought this concept into the expanding business community of Novi.

IBC opened its Novi office June 1, thus establishing itself in the growing Novi market. IBC also has offices in Ann Arbor and Farmington Hills.

Gary Cobb, founder and president of IBC, feels Novi has a bright economic future. "Novi is the hub of growth on the west side," Cobb said.

Because of this great growth, Cobb saw the need for small businesses to have all the technological equipment and prestige of large companies but at a far more realistic price. Cobb also saw the need for large-firm satellite offices and distribution warehousing in Novi.

"Novi is the first time we have offered the shared warehouses," Cobb said. Now firms with small secretarial staffs and both office and warehouse needs can tap into IBC's services to reduce or eliminate their own administrative personnel.

The IBC offers office/warehousing with private entrance, individual office space, and warehouses that offer 1,400-2,700-3,600 square feet.

There are 13 office/warehouses. Tenants may participate in the many shared services that are offered. For example, they have the option to tie into phone services, secretarial staff or hire IBC warehouse staff for help loading and unloading.

The IBC office building offers the elegance of many large office complexes. The marble-floored atrium entrance leads to the fully-staffed reception desk. There are 42 executive offices offered in the two-story office complex.

Included in office rental are personalized telephone answering, the use of a fully equipped conference room and meeting room, as well as individualized mailboxes.

IBC also offers all tenants other office services on a pay-only-as-used basis. These include word processing, personal computer services, secretarial support, photocopier, out-going mailhandling, Telex, Facsimile, courier services, and lease of office furniture.

"We offer the ability for an instant office. In two or three days you can be in business without buying furniture, telephone equipment, computers or office staff," Cobb said.

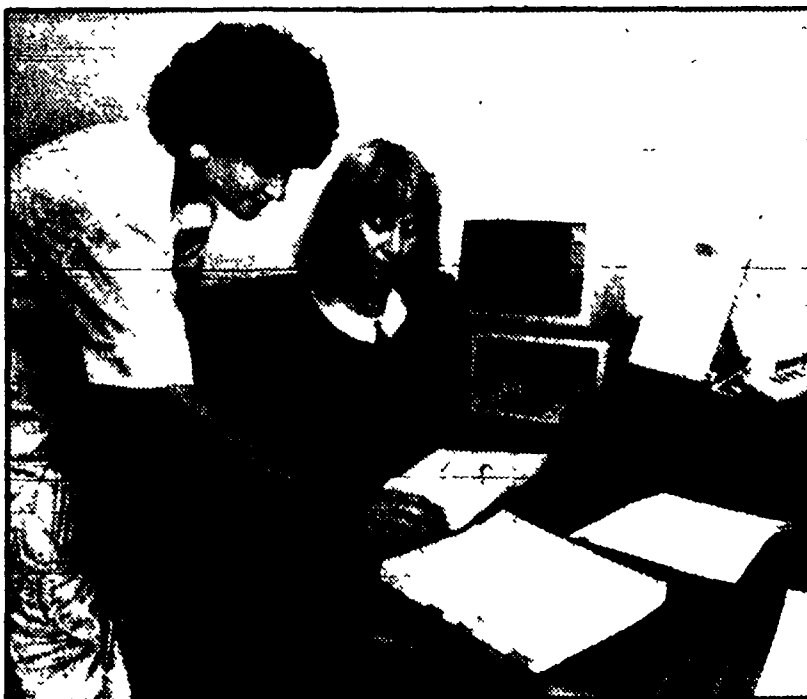

IBC can reduce office costs by 50 percent and can eliminate start-up costs.

Obviously, shared services is a concept that has found its time. In the 60 days that the IBC has been open in Novi, it has already leased to 14 tenants.

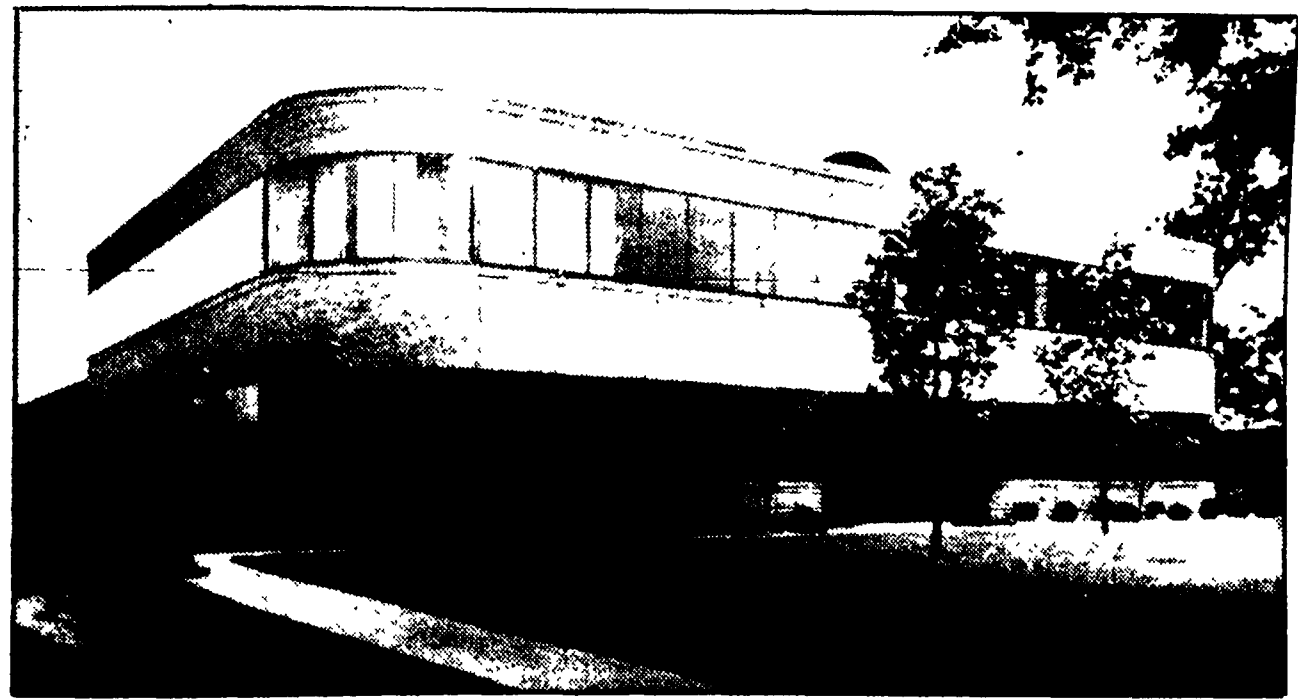

IBC also is an exclusive provider of satellite seminars. Programming examples include legal and management seminars. IBC also offers a satellite video conference room with seating for 75 people.

International Business Centers is located at 43000 Nine Mile Road. Developed and built by Dial Construction Company of Livonia, Dial has recently relocated their headquarters to IBC. For more information, contact Cobb at 344-9500.

Milford: Business is good in area as merchants spruce up

By Stephanie Frania

Milford: It's a nice place to be. Perhaps that motto sounds a bit trite or more like an advertisement for television or radio.

But unequivocally, the consensus of the Milford area merchants and government officials reflects an unflagging admiration for this picturesque community.

"The overall business climate has become very good. Milford businesses are updated, offering a lot and they even look nice," said Milford Area Chamber of Commerce secretary Phyllis Motley. "It's a nice place to be."

With the recent streetscaping in downtown Milford, sponsored by the Downtown Development Authority, the community has been spruced up while the morale of business owners has been boosted.

"All you have to do is open your eyes and walk up and down Main Street," said Roy Danley, Milford Village Council President. "You will see a healthy and thriving business district."

Many individual merchants have been busy renovating and refurbishing the buildings they occupy.

"It's sort of contagious. Somebody makes an improvement and other merchants follow suit," Danley said. "Of course you always have a few foot draggers whose storefronts are deplorable."

Apparently, not every Milford business owner has caught the fever of taking pride in outward appearance.

"These businesspeople need to stand back across the street and take a long hard look at the image their projecting," Danley said. "The ones who are doing well and flourishing are the ones who have been showing improvements."

Although the Milford downtown businesses are offering more and more, he said that the village needs new retail.

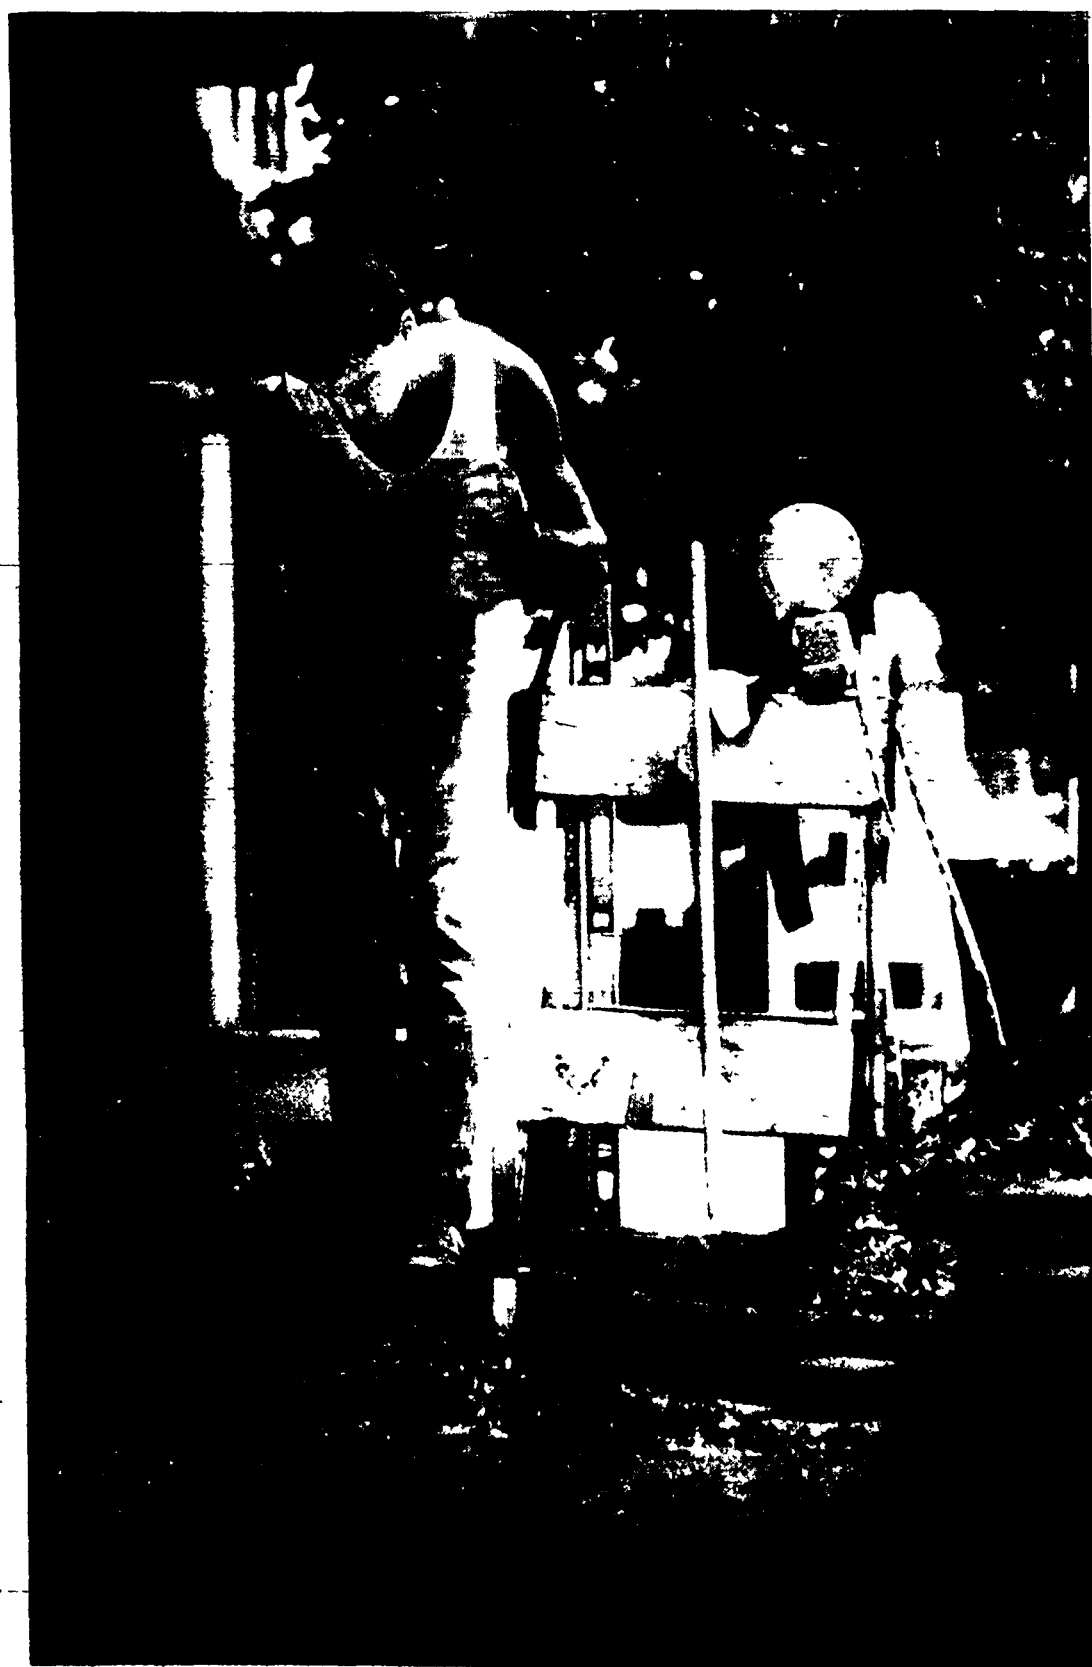

"We need to look for more variety and not overburden ourselves with specialty stores," Danley said.

Not all of the successful businesses are in the Milford downtown area, however. Robert Foley, Milford Township Supervisor said that some businesses are beginning to branch out farther and farther away from the city because of more reasonable land values.

"As long as interest rates stay reasonable, there will be continued growth outside of the village," he said.

Several business owners also are seeing a great deal of potential in the Highland area.

"There's a lot of space to open up in to," said Mike Kowal, President of the Highland Business Association and owner of Stan The Pants Man clothing store.

"Businesses have even moved out here from Milford and because of the anticipation land prices are starting to go up along Milford Road."

As growth and improvements in the Milford area continue, thoughts of the expansion and growth in the Novi area crop up.

"I hope that type of development does not ripple out to Milford," Danley said. "We have something unique and I would fight to save it."

Being located a fair distance from the I-96 expressway is an advantage, according to Danley. "We also have the advantage of the metroparks buffering us from the intense saturation you see in other communities."

its share of problems.

"I think there needs to be an improvement in the way that the village government and the area businesses work together," explained Trudy McMartin of McMartin's Jewelry in Milford. "It's really important for everyone to understand each other and to work toward the same type of goals."

Despite the building improvements made in the downtown district, Danley believes that the businesses on the south side of town need to follow suit.

"The south side of town is the main entrance to our community," he said. "We need to put our best foot forward to show a thriving community with the stamina and growth that Milford is so proud to have."

Noble's 8 Mile Landscaping Supply

A geologist would be in heaven at Noble's 8 Mile Landscaping Supply where rocks of all types and sizes can be found in massive piles across several acres of yard.

Noble's, which has been in the landscaping supply business for over 30 years, is located just west of Middelbelt Road on 8 Mile and stocks an eye opening variety of rock and lumber for the landscaping amateur or pro. The business also carries a wide assortment of other landscaping musts, such as flagstones, statues, top soil, gravel, fresh sod, cements, bricks and wood chips. The list is endless.

"We want people to be aware of our variety. We have materials from all over the country to fit all the landscaping needs a person might have," said Ray Noble, 32, owner of the business along with his brothers, Tom and Bruce. "We carry a lot of standard landscaping materials plus some unusual items."

"A lot of people don't consider the variety of materials that is available to them if they want to overhaul their backyard for example," Noble continued.

Rocks are probably the biggest inventory item at the Noble's yard. They come in all shapes and sizes and for a wide variety of uses.

The stone available includes ground covers such as alabaster, brick crush and dolomite from Michigan, Inca gold and salmon crush from Missouri, rainbow mix from Maryland, white marbles from Vermont, red and black crater from New Mexico and west coast crush from California. Prices for ground covers are in bulk rates and range from $2.99 to $5.29 per 75 lb. bag.

Noble's is open seven days. The hours are from 8 a.m.-7 p.m. Monday through Friday and on Saturday and from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Sundays, weather permitting. Noble suggests landscapers give a call before coming by.

"That also helps us find out what a customer might want so we can be sure to have it," Noble said.

Call 474-4922 for further information about the landscape supplier.

Center for Pain Medicine

Offers a therapy program for those suffering from chronic pain

Dr. William Nagler with an acuscope, a computerized pain blocker

Three years ago, Anne Marshall was in a devastating automobile accident. After many months of hospitalization, strenuous physical therapy and medication so strong it produced its own dependency, Marshall's life still centered on pain.

The pain was so intense that it affected her mobility, her sleeping patterns, her ability to eat, and resulted in severe memory loss.

Today Marshall's life revolves around her children and her work in the health care field. Although she expects chronic pain to always be a part of her life, she has found relief. Today she controls the pain; the pain does not control her.

Marshall is able to control her pain with a hand-held electronic device used in a program of pain relief offered by Dr. William Nagler, M.D., director of the Center for Pain Medicine in Northville.

Dr. Nagler recognizes that whether a patient's pain results from physical causes, such as disease or injury, or from emotional trauma, the symptom of pain itself can be as devastating as anything else produced by the cause of the pain.

Dr. Nagler, a medical doctor board-certified in psychiatry and neurology, who trained at the University of Michigan, the University of California and Harvard University, has dedicated his practice to the relief of pain.

During a patient's initial visit to the Center for Pain Medicine, an interview, a patient's medical history, and diagnostic tests are used to design a program of therapy that meets that patient's individual needs for pain relief.

While participating in a pain therapy program, some patients will continue specific medical care with their primary physician to treat the identified causes of their pain symptoms. Some patients will be referred to other medical specialists for problems revealed by the diagnostic process.

At the Center for Pain Medicine, patients enjoy significant relief of pain even when the underlying cause of the pain is still under treatment.

The hand-held device that Anne Marshall uses to control her chronic pain uses electronic impulses which act as pain suppressors. The one Marshall uses, and others used by Dr. Nagler and his staff at the Center for Pain Medicine, stimulate the body's natural pain suppression system.

Take control of the pain. If you seek relief from pain, whatever the cause, call the Center for Pain Medicine, 349-9111, and arrange a consultation with Dr. Nagler.

Northville Chiropractic Health Center

Relieves patients' of their spinal pain

Have you ever experienced the excruciating pain and suffering the resulting immobility of back pain brought on by a sudden twist or turn in the wrong direction?

Have you ever developed neck pain or headaches after spending hours bent over a typewriter or computer terminal? Do you find that hours spent in a car or truck produce discomfort that doesn't end at the end of the drive?

The Northville Chiropractic Health Center, 42973 W Seven Mile Road, offers relief to patients in pain. Using chiropractic methods, Dr. Mitchell H. Marr provides his patients relief of pain and other symptoms associated with misalignments of the spine.

Dr. Marr provides chiropractic care using a three-step approach individualized to each patient's needs:

1. Providing relief of the patient's pain and/or other symptoms
2. Identifying and correcting the cause of the patient's problem
3. Preventing recurrence of the problem, therefore ending the pain and other symptoms associated with it

"Misalignments," he said, "can cause more than just back or neck pain and chiropractic adjustments can achieve results greater than just relief of localized pain."

Dr. Marr reports that many patients find their total health and sense of well-being are improved after chiropractic treatments. "Spinal misalignments are most easily corrected when discovered early," he said. Many patients recognize the benefits of chiropractic care and seek treatment early, before their pain builds to an intolerable level.

Early discovery is especially effective with children during their development years. Northville Chiropractic Health Center offers scoliosis screening and spinal check-ups for children and young adults.

Why suffer with pain that can be relieved with chiropractic treatment?

Evans Mechanical Contractors

Offers computerized building climate control

Imagine having a computerized system that could precisely control the climate inside your building by adapting to changing outdoor conditions and even changes in efficiency of your mechanical equipment.

Such a system is installed by a local Novi company - Novar of Michigan.

The Novar Logic One system is a building automation system. Intelligent computer modules are installed and wired directly to building equipment, such as heating, ventilating, air conditioning, pumps, lighting - virtually any HVAC or process equipment.

What are the advantages of installing such a system?

The building climate is much more comfortable. Equipment runs only when it should. This provides the business with substantial energy savings. The building is constantly being monitored by the system so if there is a problem, such as temperatures dropping too low in the winter, an alarm will be reported.

The system also can be accessed remotely over a standard phone line.

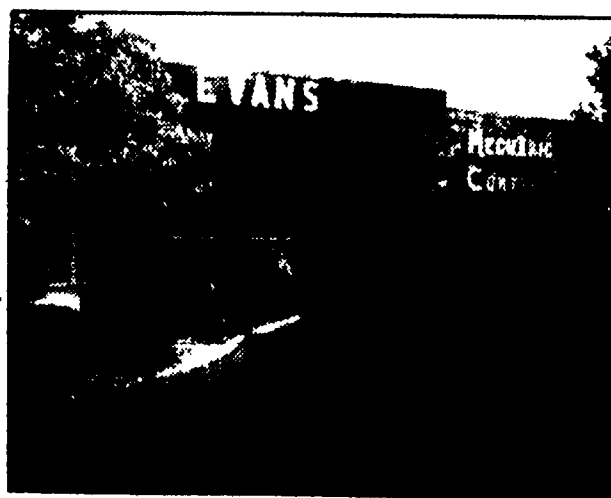

An owner can actually call the system from a home phone to check critical areas, such as computer rooms or freezers. The Novar system responds to inquiries or commands in a clear, simulated human voice. All this adds up to considerable peace of mind for the building owner or manager.

Carl Evans, president of Evans Mechanical and past-president of the Novi Chamber of Commerce, has been a part of the Novi community for nearly 20 years.

Evans selected the Novar Control system because of his intimate knowledge of the energy management system market and Novar's unparalleled capabilities and advanced design.

Novar Controls has worked extensively with NASA, writing the software which will focus the high energy beam from the solar collection satellite to a receiving station on Earth.

Novar has taken this same intelligent, adaptive technology and applied it to its building control system.

The most popular aspect of the system is its simplicity.

"You don't have to have a manual by your side to control and monitor your building. No knowledge of computers is necessary because all commands are in English," says Michael Renehan, project manager. "Building personnel can USE their system."

The simplicity of the Novar system, the peace of mind it offers and the 20-30 percent energy savings help make this automated control system highly attractive to businesses and institutions.

The Novar Logic One system is currently in use in schools, office buildings and factories around the country. See how the power of the Novar system, which controls such facilities as the Honda of America plant in Marysville, Ohio, and part of the World Trade Center in New York, can be put to work for you. Many local schools, factories and office buildings are already enjoying the benefits of the Novar Logic One.

The Novar System can be seen at Evans Mechanical Contractors building at 24300 Novi Road in Novi, where it is controlling the HVAC system, lights and other equipment.

Renehan will be glad to demonstrate its many features. For further information contact him at 349-5585.

Milford: Chamber is making its mark in local services

By Stephanie Franila

Organized for the purpose of advancing the commercial, civic and general interests of the surrounding Huron Valley community, the Milford Area Chamber of Commerce is making its mark.

"To sum it all up in one word, we are community service," said Phyllis Motley, secretary to the chamber board of directors and the chamber membership. "We're here to offer information and anything we can to the community."

Some 199 members strong, chamber membership consists of various merchants, associations, corporations, churches, elected officials and honorary members.

Membership eligibility is open to any reputable group or person having an interest in the chamber objective.

For the most part, the Milford Chamber focuses on catering to existing businesses, rather than recruiting new businesses to the area.

"We try to involve the businesses in existence first," Motley explained.

A top priority for the chamber is publishing a yearly community profile, which includes pertinent and helpful information for current businesses and residents, as well as those new to the area.

A united voice in the Milford business community, the chamber sponsors several standing programs for the promotion and benefit of Milford Village, such as the Milford Christmas Parade, the Citizen of the Year program, and the Adopt-a-Tree program, which replaces trees and provides them as a memorial.

Other chamber-sponsored activities and organizations include the Milford Beautification Committee, business district spring clean-up, annual sidewalk sales, community welcome signs, an annual golf outing, as well as a golf league and the publication of the Milford Business Directory.

The chamber also sponsors Mayor Exchange Day, a Christmas dinner and dance, chamber newsletter and community circus.

Additionally, on a selective basis, the chamber gives financial support to other community projects, generally on a one-time basis only.

"Really, everything we do comes back into the community," said Motley. "All proceeds we make filter right back through to the citizens and businesses of Milford."

Holding general meetings once a month, the chamber also holds board meetings twice a month.

The chamber office in Milford is open from 9 a.m. until noon Monday through Friday.

"I feel that information is the biggest service we provide," said Motley.

However, it is crucial that people are aware that the chamber is here and ready to serve them, she said.

"When we know of a new business, or even an established one that isn't a member of the chamber, we try to let them know that we would like to have them join our organization," Motley explained. "A lot of our recruitment is by word of mouth."

Dan's Auto Repair

Before Dan Douglas, owner of Dan's Auto Repair, was eligible to have his own driver's license, he had rebuilt two cars and the engine in his father's automobile.

His high school, the original Novi High on Taft Road, did not offer auto shop classes, so he learned by doing.

Douglas worked as a service station mechanic while still in high school. He worked rebuilding diesel engines for one of the area's largest construction firms and in the machine shop of a local auto parts dealer. After years of working as an auto mechanic for others, Douglas was ready to open his own shop.

Although Dan's Auto Repair, at 43151 Grand River, Novi, is located on the same site as a previous repair facility, there is no connection between the two. Douglas's business has been built on hard work and his own reputation for reliable service, personal attention and competitive prices.

Dan's Auto Repair is a full-service shop. Whether a customer needs an auto emission test, a seasonal check-up, front-end alignment or a complete engine rebuilding, Dan's Auto Repair can provide any service needed.

"We can even handle the computer systems that most mechanics won't touch," he said. Eight certified mechanics are available to diagnosis and solve performance problems on foreign, as well as domestic automobiles.

"We are competitive with the chain operations; the muffler and brake shops," Douglas said. "But we pride ourselves on our personal service."

Douglas often provides shuttle service to a customer's home or area business. He recognizes that each customer's time is a valuable as his own.

"Our job," Douglas said, "is to make the customer happy. We do that by identifying the problem, then solving it." He knows that satisfied customers not only return, they refer their friends to Dan.

Dan's Auto Repair has developed a loyal customer base. Dan Douglas credits the honesty, pride of workmanship and customer service provided everyday by assistant manager Mike Maguire and the crew of mechanics in the shop and Dan's wife, Nannette, and Wendy in the office.

Whatever your auto repair needs, call Dan's Auto Repair, 348-1238, during business hours 7:30 a.m. - 6 p.m., Monday-Friday and 7:30 a.m. - 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Professional OB-GYN

Has new method in locating pre-cancer lesions

New advancements in gynecology are making it easier to diagnosis certain forms of cervix cancer. A new device called a colposcopy (a microscopic instrument) is allowing doctors to identify pre-cancerous lesions.

"By catching suspicious lesions before they turn into cancer, incidents of cervical cancer are becoming smaller and smaller," Dr. Sylvia Santos-Sio said. She has been practicing obstetrics and gynecology for 19 years and finds the colposcopy one of the more exciting advancements in gynecological medicine.

Dr. Sio is currently practicing in Northville with the Professional OB-GYN Associates. She is a graduate of the University of Santo Tomas (the oldest university in the Philippines) and received her post-graduate training through an internship at St. Mary's Hospital in New Jersey, then a residency at Pontiac General Hospital.

Dr. Sio uses many new and old diagnostic techniques in her practice from pelvic ultrasounds, blood work-ups, PAP smears and the colposcopy.

"PAP smears are just the screening measure," she said. "It's helpful if its positive, if its negative, it may not always be correct you have to correlate it with your physical findings," she said.

There are also new, exciting methods in the area of treatment such as laser surgery and cryo-surgery which freezes the cervix, this is used for the treatment of chronic infections.

While new treatments are successful, preventative medicine is still the best cure. The key to preventative medicine is to have yearly check-ups.

"If a woman is taking birth control pills she should be checked every six months. We like to monitor cholesterol levels and blood pressure," she said.

All other women should have yearly check-ups unless there is a problem. She recommends that women who are not sexually active have a pelvic exam at the age of 25.

Dr. Sio also believes in taking extra time with patients who are having pelvic exams for the first time explaining the procedures and helping to allay their fears.

She also teaches women how to give themselves self-breast examinations, this technique can identify problems before they become serious.

"Many women," she said, "prefer women gynecologist believing that they give a more comfortable pelvic exam and are easier to discuss personal problems with."

Dr. Sio practices both pre-natal and general gynecology. She is the mother of two children, Lloyd, 14, and Hannie, 10. Her husband is Dr. Gregorio Sio, an anesthesiologist at Lapeer General Hospital.

Dr. Sylvia Santos-Sio has an office at 331 N. Center, Northville. She also has offices in Farmington and Farmington Hills, and the telephone number is 348-4004.

South Lyon: It's growing, and growing— a little slow but growing

By Stephanie Frania

It's growing . . . and growing . . . and growing.

It may be a slow process, but South Lyon is steadily blooming into a thriving community of prosperous businesses and industries.

"It will be just a little bit of time before South Lyon is in the state that Farmington Hills used to be in and Novi is now," said Charles Cairns, the city's planning consultant. "I really anticipate this type of growth for South Lyon."

And just what is spurring this growth?

Community assets, according to Cairns. "South Lyon is a very contained community," he said. "They have their own water system, their own school system, their own waste water treatment plant — all very good assets."

Although Cairns is optimistic about the town's development, some downtown merchants aren't so sure.

"We just don't have the volume of traffic like a shopping mall does," explained Stan Barker, of Barker's Flowers and Imports in downtown South Lyon.

"I really don't think we ever will, and I just can't see where we can successfully make improvements in the business environment. It all stems from the fact the residents can jump in their car and be at a major shopping mall in 10-15 minutes where they can do all of their shopping under one roof," Barker added.

But Cairns also sees the traffic problem and offers a suggestion. "South Lyon really is an isolated community in terms of access," he said. "A Class A link road to the expressway (I-96) needs to be paved to allow easy access to the city."

Along with road improvements, Cairns believes that a Class A industrial park needs to be constructed, complete with paved roads, water system, and other necessary services.

"That way potential clients can purchase a section of the park at a solid price and not have to worry about making improvements later," he said.

With the offering of an industrial park of sound quality, a direct link to the freeway, and highly contained public services, South Lyon will be well on its way to the flourishing community Cairns says that it is slowly becoming.

But when projects of this magnitude are undertaken, money to make the improvements is obviously an integral factor in getting started.

"Coming up with the money to make the improvements is the negative side of the coin," Cairns explained. "The city has to strive to make these goals a reality. They're going to have to raise revenue to do it."

Robert Berowicz, D.D.S. and president of the South Lyon Chamber of Commerce, agrees that the city is growing. "The area is in state of change. It seems that it is trying to find itself," he said.

"People need to be ambitious enough to see the needs of the community and then aggressively go out there after them," he continued.

As in any business district, businesses come and go — sometimes on a regular basis.

Mary Schraffenberg of Florals by Steven in downtown South Lyon believes that this has become a problem in the business environment.

"We've been here for almost five years and during that time I've seen several businesses come in and then go under," she related. "I really don't think it's the product that people are offering, but it's just that people in the community don't realize the businesses that are here. They just don't really know what South Lyon has to offer."

Although there are several problems, most area business owners concur that the general business climate in and around South Lyon is good.

And if Cairns is right in his predictions, it's going to get even better.

ionitriding[®]

The largest commercial source for ionitriding available in the U.S.

An economical, production proven, glow discharge process for increasing the wear resistance of metals.

Customized Precision Heat Treating and Ionitriding

Constantly upgrading their equipment and instrumentation to meet increasing metal performance requirements, Sun Steel has custom designed and has in operation over 60 salt bath furnaces for in-depth heat penetration at temperatures of plus or minus one degree on large or small parts such as metal cutting tools, forming tools, dies, gages, machine and aircraft parts.

Proper heat treatment by SUN was mainly responsible for extending the life of a spade drill four times; for increasing the life of a tractor link punch three times; for bringing about a new dimension of broaching performance by adding more strength and minimizing warpage on broaching tools; for increasing high speed steel form tool life in some plants to a degree that lathe production was increased 300 percent.

Good heat treating takes time as well as know-how. A once-over-lightly process may be less expensive initially, but when total costs are considered, such as scrap rate, in-process distortion, stability, and tool life factors, experienced SUN heat treatment customized to your part helps assure consistent performance.

Bach Engineering & Associates

System reuses heat

Bach Engineering & Associates has been a part of the Northville business community since 1977. The primary thrust of the company's energy conservation program is directed toward industry.

According to Bernard Bach, P.E., company president, the principal product is the Multi-Jet Energy System, which reduces heating costs with an average payback of 1.3 years or less.

Multi-Jet saves energy by distributing fresh outside air evenly along the ceiling of the plant to utilize the available waste heat as a heat source.

The Multi-Jet reduces the temperatures at the ceiling by mixing cool outside air with the hot air at the ceiling. By reducing the temperature at the ceiling and upper walls, the heat loss is substantially lowered. Air brought in by the system replaces exhaust air and eliminates infiltration.

At the same time, it improves air quality throughout the plant by gently mixing fresh air with plant air, thus eliminating stratification.

The Multi-Jet System can also be used to transfer excess heat from one part of the plant to another. Waste process heat can be recovered. The plus benefits of this process are fresh air make-up and free heating.

Bach Engineering & Associates' business is spread throughout the United States, with Multi-Jet Systems in operation in the Dearborn Glass Plant, Chrysler McGraw Plant, PPG Industries, Champion Spark Plug, as well as many "400" companies.

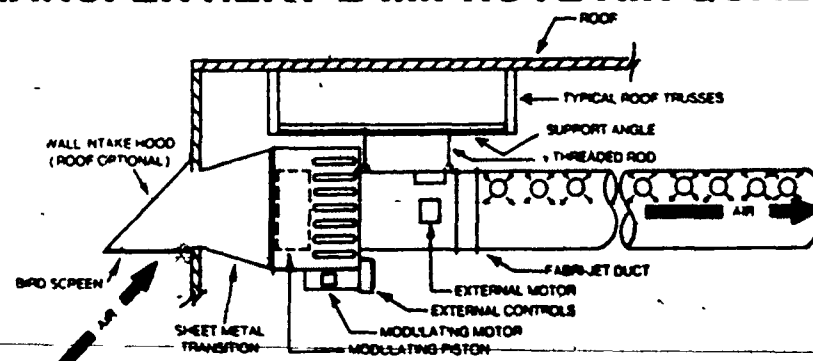

In addition to the Multi-Jet, Bach says there are various energy savings available to industry. Among the programs are ventilation systems, air quality control and infra-red heating systems.

A 30-year resident of Northville, Bach also offers consulting engineering services through his company.

Bach Engineering & Associates is located at 113 E. Dunlap, Northville.

Bodyguard is portable. It's always close at hand. It's easy to use.

With one push of the button, Bodyguard sends a signal, via telephone lines, to a 24-hour monitoring station. Within moments the operator there has alerted local authorities of the caller's identity, location and need for fire, police or medical emergency services - all at the push of a button.

South Lyon: Chamber asks what area needs really are

By Stephanie Franla

Increased promotion. With an expanding South Lyon Chamber of Commerce that is struggling to increase membership, this is the sought-after goal.

Robert Borowiec, local dentist and president of the chamber, said that although the chamber is growing, it is not as active in the community as he would like it to be.

"Quite frankly, it's been hard to get people involved in the chamber and I really don't know why," he explained. "The only reason I know of is that many South Lyon businesses are operated almost solely by their owner. This doesn't give the owners much time to participate in chamber functions."

Recently, the business relations committee of the chamber has been canvassing South Lyon businesses in an attempt to discover what the needs of the community really are and what areas need the most improvement.

"We're constantly striving to provide new, more positive ways to promote the steady advancement of the South Lyon community and its businesses," explained Borowiec.

"We're making long-term plans to foster growth in direct correlation with the business owners' and residents' wishes," Borowiec said.

In the meantime, the chamber regularly pours its support into community projects such as downtown sidewalk days.

The recent addition of flower barrels outside downtown businesses and the erection of the downtown clock were also sponsored by the South Lyon chamber.

"The flower barrels didn't work out as well as we had hoped," said Borowiec. "We went ahead with the project and charged merchants later, assuming that they would want to help out with the expenses in a project that would benefit them. However, we spent $500 on the barrels and could only get $250 of it back from the business people."

According to Borowiec, the basic purpose of the chamber is to provide informative material. "We're familiar with the area and if we can't provide the information people are looking for, we try our best to refer them to someone who can."

Connected with the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, the South Lyon branch is able to obtain a wealth of statistics and helpful information for local businesses, organizations and residents.

Through active participation and by word of mouth, current chamber members recruit new members, and hopefully, new businesses to the South Lyon area.

"With our past achievements and our overall theme of town promotion, we hope to get more businesses interested in coming in to fully develop our community," explained Borowiec. "With a good number of interested people we can really do something positive."

Although the chamber uses no set recruitment techniques, Borowiec said that chamber members seem to know what types of businesses will flourish in the community and then go from there.

With these subtle techniques, and the more aggressive canvassing of community businesses, the South Lyon chamber is slowly growing and gaining more and more ground.

"Of course it's a slow process, and sometimes it's hard getting a good cohesive group that is willing to help," said Borowiec. "But we are growing — it just takes some time."

Kelly Services

Provides satisfying temporary jobs in business

The summer's over, all the kids are or will be in school full time, and the house can be cleaned only so often. You want to earn some extra money, but a full-time, permanent commitment isn't flexible enough to fit into your busy family schedule.

Perhaps you've just moved into a new area. You want to find a job, but would like to familiarize yourself with different companies before making a commitment.

Or maybe you've been out of the job market for years. You're afraid that your skills are too rusty to get a good job, but the idea of flipping hamburgers depresses you.

Kelly Services can match the skills, needs and schedules of people just like you with satisfying temporary positions in area business and industry.

Additionally, Kelly provides specialized training in word processing, data entry and other office skills to make sure that each employee ideally matches the needs of the customer.

Located on Main Street in downtown Brighton, Kelly Services provides office and industrial temporary employees. Resident Branch Manager Valerie Betyne is quick to stress that Kelly is not an employment agency.

"All our Kelly people work for Kelly Services," she said. "When a customer requests a temporary, either short or long term, that person remains employed by us while he or she is working for that customer. Therefore, our customers do not have to bother with payroll, benefits, Worker's Compensation or unemployment benefits. We handle all for that.

"Our most important task is correctly matching the customer's needs to the employee's skills," Betyne explained. "They could be filling in for any one of a number of reasons: a special project perhaps, or a staff member on maternity leave or on vacation."

Currently, Kelly Services is actively looking for new employees. As summer ends, many Kelly "summer regulars", such as college students and teachers, are returning to school. Homemakers are especially encouraged to take this opportunity to apply to Kelly and fit a flexible work schedule into their lives.

"When a prospective employee comes in to a Kelly office for the first time, he or she is immediately put at ease. After a short introductory chat, the person's skill level is evaluated. Then an interview is conducted with the supervisor to assess the person's interests and strengths. Free training may be necessary to sharpen skills.

When an order comes in that matches that person's skills and preferences, she or he is contacted and told where the job is, for how long, exactly what the job entails and the pay. The Kelly employee can agree to take the assignment or pass it up.

According to Nancy Campbell, office manager of the Brighton office, working for Kelly has many advantages.

"There's the ever changing workplace," she said. "You don't get job burnout. For someone entering the job market after being a homemaker for many years, we provide the training needed to sharpen skills and learn valuable new skills, free of charge. And most important to many people is the fact that assignments can be scheduled to fit the time requirements of the Kelly employee. It can be very flexible employment."

Kelly Services Office Manager Nancy Campbell (standing) assists Barbara Price, an in-house temporary, in learning the latest in office equipment.

Kelly is proud of its job training equipment available right at the office. The Kee Simulator and PC-Pro System teaches Kelly temporaries to be proficient in the most common word processing softwares, insuring that there are no unpleasant surprises when a temporary walks into an office and sees an unfamiliar system.

In addition to clerical jobs, Kelly has available many semi-skilled jobs in light production and assembly work, shipping and receiving, inventory, janitorial and maintenance.

There are over 430,000 people across the U.S., Canada and Europe working for over 600 Kelly offices, servicing more than 175,000 customers each year.

The Brighton office is located at 500 West Main Street, right by the railroad tracks in the Historic Western House Building. The telephone number is 227-2034.

New Horizons: Facility lets disabled work for businesses

By Laura Helou

The more than 200 people at New Horizons in Novi represent a wide range of physical limitations, but they share a common goal—to improve their vocational skills.

New Horizons of Oakland County was established in 1984 as a private, non-profit organization providing vocational rehabilitation services to people who live in Oakland County. With four work centers—in Pontiac (the company headquarters), Bloomfield Township, Madison Heights and Novi, New Horizons focuses on rehabilitation and training for vocational needs as well as practical work in industrial sub-contracting.

According to Novi branch manager Karen Blum, New Horizons' purpose is two-fold. "First, we work as a vocational rehabilitation facility for the disabled adult community with evaluation and training to develop work skills," Blum explained. "Secondly, we function as an industrial workshop with sub-contracting operations.

"We service a diversified clientele," Blum added. "We have in our programs developmentally disabled as well as physically and emotionally disabled trainees. I think we are unique in that we provide services for all

The work center and rehabilitation facility opened in Novi in 1985, and can accommodate over 200 'trainees,' or physically limited clients. (It replaced a smaller, 90-capacity facility in Farmington Hills.) "We felt here was a need for such a rehabilitation facility in Novi," commented Blum. "There is such growth going on in this community. We thought we could provide rehabilitation services as well as respond to the need for industrial services," she added.

While providing vocational and rehabilitational services, New Horizons "strives to be located in industrial-type settings," Blum said. "We are a productive setting, and not a day care facility," she noted. All four of the New Horizons workshops are in industrial complexes with the Novi branch in the Vincenti Court complex off Meadowbrook Road.

Trainees are sponsored at New Horizons by a number of public health and education agencies, such as Community Mental Health, Michigan Rehabilitation Services, Oakland County Schools and the Macomb-Oakland Regional Center. Charitable organizations, such as the United Way, and private sources, including insurance companies, provide funding and sponsor the trainees' programs.

A rehabilitation staff of four counselors and eight vocational trainers works with each trainee on an individual program. "People can be here for one week for vocational and aptitude testing or they can stay here and work as regular employees," explained Blum. The counselors work with trainees to identify and develop their vocational skills through a series of vocational, aptitude and evaluation tests. "The ultimate goal is to have the trainees become productive in the community," Blum stated.

With practical experience in a sheltered industrial setting, the New Horizons trainees learn to implement their vocational skills in any of a variety of capacities. New Horizons has the machinery to sub-contract for light machinery work, bench assembly, inspection, collating and bulk mailing, shrink-wrap packaging, electronic assembly and woodworking, and groups of trainees work on a number of projects simultaneously.

According to shop foreman Spencer Swagler, New Horizons customers are pleased with the work done by the trainees. He can guarantee almost 100 percent quality control by using a three-step process.

First, the trainees are responsible for checking their own production; next, a trainer, who works on the site with the trainees, checks their work; finally, a quality control inspector checks the finished project.

"It works mostly because the trainees themselves are concerned with their work, so they make few mistakes," Swagler explained.

"In their letters of approval," he added, "our customers often give thanks for the job we completed and indicate that our quality control is better than that of other companies."

Outside of New Horizons, between 59 and 65 trainees are also working in 'supported employment' programs in the Novi community. Trainees are employed at community sites performing jobs in food services, janitorial, housekeeping and groundskeeping. The trainees have reached their final goals of working in the community. Vocational trainers also work with the trainees at the community sites, providing additional training and supervision.

When trainees are ready to enter the competitive job market, New Horizons' Job Club helps prepare them to become "job ready." Job club assists the trainees in job-search skills, developing a resume and assessing values and self-worth. With a new addition to the building being planned for January, the Novi branch soon will include its own job club program.

The rehabilitation/workshop facility also continually provides trainees with social and personal adjustment training as well as self-awareness and daily living skills, "so that they are not just working at a job here; they are learning daily living skills," Blum said.

Quality is first and foremost with Airservice Enterprises, Inc., 3380 W. Grand River, Howell. It must be for this company since it keeps many of the planes that fly in and out of Livingston County Airport in top notch condition.

Customers are obviously pleased with the high quality of work from company president Randy Dippold and his crew of six because Airservice has been in business 10 years. And word of mouth, he said, is the only "advertising" to date the company has been involved with.

Attempting to compare servicing a car to an airplane is futile, Dippold said, because an airplane has several back-up systems. There are two ignitions on a plane, double the number of spark plugs and so many more moving parts to wear out and secure than a car.

All the mechanics at Airservice are licensed in airframe and/or power plant; otherwise known as aircraft technicians.

These men have a two-year degree in applied science, but have attended as many class hours as those obtaining a four-year college degree, he said.

These aircraft technicians have some 229 items on six pages to check off when doing routine maintenance on a plane. It takes two-three days for an eight-passenger twin-engine plane to undergo this extensive list, Dippold said.

The Airservice check list is one that has been compiled from owners' manuals and check lists.

Aside from routine maintenance during June, Airservice found itself with many waxing jobs due to the acid spill nearby. It takes two men a full day to shine both the top and the bottom of one plane.

There are few things that Airservice is unable to repair. For example, radios and re-upholstering the seats in a plane are what must normally be done elsewhere. Otherwise, Dippold and his service manager, Dale Forton, see a plane at least every 50 hours of accumulated flying time for an oil change, among other things.

Traveling on Grand River, occasionally parked proudly in front of Airservice is a restored World War II bi-plane. It came to Airservice in pieces, Dippold said, and he and his staff reassembled it so it will soar once again.

Dippold began offering flying lessons when former airport manager Spence Hardy retired.

There was a vacuum, Dippold said, after

Hardy retired, so with 500 hours of flying time under his belt 2½ years ago, Dippold attained his instructor's license and is now flying two-three times a day with students.

With the runway extension in the works, Airservice is hoping to expanding its business.

"I've been holding my breath for 10 years," he said. "With the extended runway, I hope something will break and business will skyrocket."

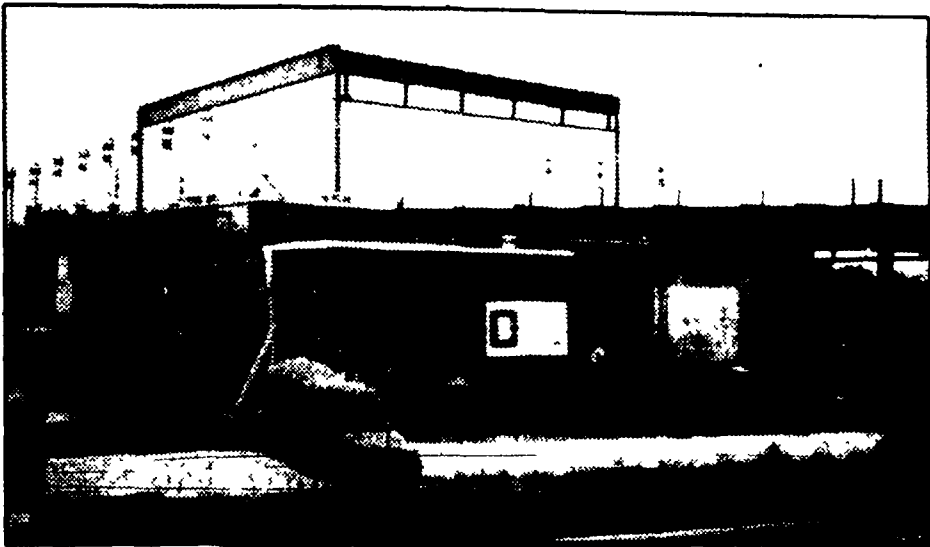

He said he'd like to see planes such as those owned and flown into other airports (because Livingston County is unable to accommodate these larger planes) to be able to land here and subsequently come to Airservice for its routine maintenance business.

We're a young business and striving to grow, Dippold said. Quality control is always on the increase because it's the biggest item on the check list.

Ideal Steel

No job is too small for Ideal Steel at 10800 Hamburg Road, Hamburg

With estimators on the staff at Ideal, an order can range from as small as $5 to as large as $640,000 for such firms as Cars and Concepts in Brighton

With a sales volume of $2.5 million a year, Ideal designs and fabricates residential beams, columns and angles. It will also engineer, design and fabricate structural steel for large buildings.

Owner Frank Venegas started his business seven years ago outside Hamburg. It grew until three years ago it had to expand to the 11,000 square foot building in Hamburg.

Ideal Steel employs 20-25 people on one shift and they are members of Erectors Union Local 25.

"Almost any steel that's in the business can be fabricated here," Venegas said. "We are unique in the business because we have engineers on staff and can fabricate and set steel cheaper than hiring it out," he said, as do other steel fabricators.

Some 85 percent of Ideal's business is done by referral and the company has helped build many of the structures on Northwestern Highway in Oakland County, as well as many Livingston County structures.

This is a tribute to Ideal's quality and dedication to making the best product for the most competitive price in the industry.
