She's first in '88

Northville's First Baby of 1988 is Margaret Rose Bacigal, daughter of Patricia and Paul Bacigal of 302 Orchard.

Little Margaret Rose arrived at 11:53 p.m. Jan. 5 at Botsford Hospital to win the 32nd annual First Baby title.

She weighed seven pounds, two ounces, and is being welcomed at home by her sister, Claire, 3. The new Northville resident arrived home Friday evening.

Time of Margaret Rose's arrival was verified by personnel in the Botsford labor and delivery room Friday afternoon after her birth was reported to The Record earlier that day.

While no baby was reported born to parents with a Northville mailing address by the first deadline of noon, Tuesday, Jan. 5, Margaret Rose's birth and the births of three other baby daughters this week were called in to The Record before the extended deadline of 5 p.m. Friday. Margaret Rose was the first, however.

Track keeps hold of handle while attendance falls

By BOB NEEDHAM

Jackson at Northville racing attendance dropped last year, but the total season handle stayed almost the same as in 1986.

Total 1987 attendance at Northville Downs for the Jackson at Northville season was 167,313, about a six percent drop from the 178,335 attendance in 1986, Controller Joyce Schultz said. The total handle (amount of money bet) during the Jackson at Northville season was $38.59 million, down slightly from $33.86 million in 1986, Schultz said. The addition of an additional race on some cards (12 races instead of the traditional 11) may have helped the handle figures, she said.

Schultz said the Jackson at Northville figures have dropped each of the past few years, a countrywide trend.

City planner quits, Nino cites distance

City Planning Consultant Ron Nino has resigned from his position, a result of time commitments and his distance from Northville.

In a letter to Mayor Chris Johnson, dated Dec. 21, Nino resigned from his part-time, consulting post as city planner. Nino is president of Ronald F. Nino and Associates of Grand Blanc, a planning consulting firm, and is also supervisor of Grand Blanc Township.

Nino's letter followed a meeting with Johnson in which, Johnson said, the two discussed Nino's availability and time commitments. The city may look to its planning consultant for additional effort in the upcoming months, as a full review of the city master plan gets under way.

"I think (resigning) was his decision," Johnson said Tuesday.

A copy of Nino's letter went out last week to members of the city council, the city planning commission, and historic district commission. An accompanying memo from City Manager Steve Walters said the council will hear a proposed procedure for hiring a new planner at its next meeting, set for Monday, Jan. 25.

In his letter, Nino agreed to serve as planning consultant until the city hires a new planner. Walters

"The building season starts in April ... It's important to have a planner on board by (the start of) the building season."

— Christopher Johnson
Northville mayor

notes that Nino's availability may be limited, however, due to a heart bypass operation Nino had last week.

Johnson said he hopes the city can hire a new planning consultant by mid-March.

"My guess is we can probably do it in two months," he said. "The building season starts in April, for all intents and purposes. It's important to have a planner on board by (the start of) the building season."

Walters' memo asks city officials to submit names of planning firms for consideration as the city's consultants.

Still no agreement on Gerald Avenue

A committee of Gerald Avenue property owners, striving to reach a resolution on paving and providing water and sewer service to the street, is no closer to reaching an equitable solution than the Township of Northville was a year ago.

Nevin Rose, an attorney representing some of the property owners, said he expects to sit down soon with the township attorney in an attempt to resolve the ongoing problem.

Rose said part of the problem revolves around a question of jurisdiction over the road and whether it is the township's or Wayne County's responsibility, and that another question is whether the entire project — water, sewer and road paving — should be undertaken.

"At this point, we need to agree on exactly what we can and can't do, and exactly what we are willing to pay for it. We need to get some agreement among the property owners before going to the township with a plan," Rose said.

Two attempts by the township to create special assessment districts for paving and water and sewer had been met with lawsuits instituted by property owners and the township eventually dissolved the special assessment districts.

"I don't know if we will be able to resolve the issue, but we do know that as it stands now, something needs to be done about the road," Rose said.

He noted that there had been an earlier effort by the property owners to pave the street on a temporary basis.

"I don't know if we will be able to resolve the issue, but we do know that as it stands now, something needs to be done about the road."

— Nevin Rose

Jim Long, president of Long Mechanical and one of the property owners, said the paving materials were provided by the township and that one of the property owners spread it.

"The road was in the best condition in years after the paving," Long said.

School board hears Headlee fund status

Slightly more than six months after voters in the Northville School District agreed to override the Headlee Amendment, all but $14,951 of the $381,700 in additional funds realized by the vote have been allocated.

Superintendent George Bell told the Board of Education Monday that each of the three elementary schools have received seven Apple computers at a cost of $33,565; the roof at Moraine School has been replaced and the roof at Meads Mill has been repaired, carpeting in all but one room at Amerman School is in place; and room dividers have been constructed at the middle school at a cost of $208,329. The new science program has been implemented in the elementary schools at a cost of $69,301 and furniture and capital equipment is in place.

"Each of the schools has received some benefit from the override vote, benefits that would not have been possible if the voters had not given their approval," Bell said.

"We expect by the time we mop up the projects, the money will have been spent," he added.

Included in the expenditures was $10,000 for furniture at the high school, including desks and art stools in the art department.

Bell noted that the carpeting at Amerman has been very beneficial in keeping classroom noise at a minimum.

"I've heard from teachers that they can really tell the difference now that the carpeting has been installed. The noises from dropping pencils and simple things like that have been virtually eliminated. The teachers didn't know how much noise that dropped objects were making until after the rooms were carpeted and there was no more noise," Bell said.

He noted that the one room that is not carpeted is currently being used for storage.

Firefighters battle a house blaze last week

Heat tape blamed in fire on Baseline

A fire last week caused an estimated $35,000 damage to a home on Baseline Road, Northville Fire Chief Jim Allen said.

The fire started about 11 p.m. Jan. 6, and burned for 45 minutes or an hour before city firefighters got it under control, Allen said. It took about three hours to completely clear the scene.

"So far in our investigation it looks like it was caused by some heat tapes," Allen said Monday. The tapes may not have been entirely stretched out, he said.

"Don't do this with heat tapes. You have to get it completely stretched out," Allen advised.

The insurers of the home are still investigating the fire, Allen said.

The fire department estimated the fire did $35,000 worth of damage to the structure.

Allen said some neighbors brought out hot drinks for the firefighters. "We sure thank the people who brought out hot coffee and tea," he said. "It's very much appreciated on a morning like that."

HYPERTENSION

By Jack A. Kaufman, D.P.M.

More than 40% of the population over the age of forty has hypertension. As a health care provider I am vitally concerned about hypertension (high blood pressure) and vascular disease (heart and circulatory problems). First, because I am interested in all aspects of my patients health and treatment program. Second, I support the goals of high blood pressure detection, treatment and control.

As a podiatrist I need to know if a patient has any of the following cardiovascular or related conditions:

• Hypertension and/or Cardiovascular Disease

Hypertension sometimes causes diminished circulation and decreased sensation in the extremities. Also, increased or periodic swelling in a patient with high blood pressure may mean that hypertension has resulted in heart failure.

• Rheumatic Heart Disease

Persons who have had rheumatic heart disease must be protected with prophylactic antibiotics prior to any surgical intervention.

Education report draws local fire

By ANITA CRONE

William Bennett is not the most popular man with Northville Public Schools administrators. In fact, it might be more accurate to say the secretary of education's latest effort, a model high school curriculum, has George Bell, superintendent of schools, and David Bolitho, principal at Northville High School, doing a slow burn.

"Whether we like it or not, we live in a pluralistic society. We have students with different needs and we try to meet those different needs," Bolitho said.

"I don't think Mr. Bennett is fully up to date on what a real high school is," Bell said. "Look at the report. There are no electives in the first two years and almost nothing but electives in the last two. You aren't going to keep students in school with a program like this."

Bennett's proposal calls for students to complete four years of English, three years of social studies, math and science, two years of physical education and foreign language and one year of fine arts.

"For a district such as Northville, it may be fine, since we offer nearly that now," Bell said. "But what about an urban district? What about a district that is facing a severe dropout problem? How are you going to keep a youngster in school with a curriculum like that?"

Both Bell and Bolitho pointed out that computer education — something that Bell advocated when "A Nation at Risk" was published in 1980 — was noticeably absent from Bennett's model curriculum.

Northville High School has its own computer science department, and, Bolitho said, already matches some of the secretary's suggestions in its course offerings.

At NHS, graduation requirements include four years of English, with composition an integral part of the program, three years of social studies; two years of math, although, Bolitho said, most of the students take at least three years; three years of science; and two years of physical education and fine or practical arts.

"In looking at the secretary's plan, with the exception of an elective, there is no behavior science program," Bolitho pointed out, adding that one of the most popular high school classes in Northville is a program called "adult living."

"That truly is a behavior science class. And we also have a humanities program that attracts more than 90 students," Bolitho said.

He pointed out that although there is no foreign language requirement, more than half of this year's high school students are enrolled in either French, German or Spanish classes.

Bell noted that the school district had revised the high school curriculum and graduation requirements three years ago and was constantly looking at it.

"Under the plan, we intend to revisit the curriculum every five years and make it a one-year study to make sure we meet the needs of our students and the community," he said.

Three years	Social Studies	Three years

"Judging from this program, I suspect Bennett is thinking that every high school student is 5-foot-8½, weighs 138 pounds and wears a size 9 shoe," Bell said. "All I can say is thank God we answer to the community and not to the secretary."

Livonian leads chase through area

A Livonia man led officers from two police departments and the state police on a high-speed chase on two freeways, a freeway bicycle path, and through five communities before being arrested by Livonia police officers Monday night in Northville Township.

A 20-year-old Livonia man was scheduled to be arraigned Wednesday on felonious assault, fleeing and eluding, driving while his license was suspended and improper plate charges in 17th District Court.

A state police spokesman said Tuesday that state police responded to an 11:10 p.m. report Monday of a chase in progress. The spokesman said the incident began in Redford Township and continued on Interstate-96, where speeds exceeded 105 miles per hour as the fleeing driver sought to elude pursuing officers.

State troopers got into the chase on I-96 near Levan. With state police and Livonia officers in pursuit, the suspect car rammed a Redford police car at I-275 and Six Mile.

After ramming the police car, the suspect car headed south and damaged a second Redford police car before exiting onto the bike path next to I-275 and heading north.

At Seven Mile Road, the suspect vehicle exited the bike path and headed west to Northville Road/South Main Street with Livonia and State Police cars still in pursuit.

A State Police spokesman said speeds on city streets were recorded at more than 50 miles per hour.

Meanwhile, Northville city police — on a request for assistance from the state police — tried to block South Main, but the suspect car continued north into town. The city police followed, but did not actively participate in the chase.

The car turned north off Main and drove through town, police said, and finally turned onto Baseline. The suspect vehicle stopped on Baseline near Eight Mile, where it was surrounded by police cars, police said.

The state police spokesman said the subject then locked his car doors and tried to ram his way through the barricade, damaging a state police car and injuring Trooper Rich Torngau in the process.

The driver then tried to escape on foot, but Livonia officers quickly apprehended him, police said.

Torngau was examined at Providence Hospital in Novi and released.

Courts give edge to Bush

A recent court ruling on Michigan's GOP presidential delegate selection process "delighted" Vice President George Bush's local supporters, while supporters of other candidates downplayed its effect.

Kent County Circuit Judge Roman Snow overturned changes in party rules enacted last month by a conservative anti-Bush coalition, including supporters of Rep. Jack Kemp and former television evangelist Pat Robertson. Snow ruled last week the changes violated Michigan election law.

"We're delighted," said Bush supporter Daniel Piercecchi of Livonia. "Now, we can get back to the business of the party."

Kemp and Robertson supporters, including the chairpeople of the 2nd and 15th district GOP committees, downplayed the ruling.

"My reaction is hold the presses," Michael Legg of Northville Township said. "There'll be appeals and I'm sure they'll be successful." Legg, GOP 2nd district chairperson, supports Kemp.

"As soon as they (moderates) aren't in control, they're filing lawsuits," 15th district chairperson David Thompson said. "But what the media is failing to report is that we were abiding by the rules all along, it's the Bush people who wanted changes." Thompson of Saline supports Robertson.

But 17th District chairperson Andy Anuzis, a Kemp supporter who backed the Bush group's efforts, said the ruling could strengthen his candidate while weakening Robertson.

"It deals a major blow to the Pat Robertson effort — a major muscle has been overturned," Anuzis said.

The 2nd district, which includes Northville Township and the Wayne County part of Northville, has been a hotbed of controversy. Issues haven't been as explosive in other nearby districts such as the 15th, which includes portions of the 15th, or the 17th, which includes Southfield.

Democratic congressmen represent the 15th and 17th districts in the U.S. House of Representatives.

In the 2nd district two separate conventions have been scheduled.

One convention, called by Legg, will be held at the Livonia Holiday Inn. "There'll be a convention at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 14," Legg said. "I've heard rumors to the effect there might be another."

Another, called in November by Piercecchi, chairperson of the district's Wayne County portion, will be held simultaneously at the Plymouth Township Hall.

Piercecchi said he sent out a call to convention, as required by the Wayne County clerk, sometime in November.

"The county clerk annually sends me a letter wanting to know the number of precinct delegates and the formula for choosing them. We have given the clerk the information and so there is no doubt that this is the official convention. The problem may be that (Legg) sent out his call in the middle of December," he said.

Piercecchi added that there are more than 100 precinct delegates in the Wayne 2nd district and from that list the delegates to the state convention will be chosen. The district is allocated 33 delegates and 33 alternates to the state convention, from which the national delegates will be selected. He said that the district is assured of three delegates to the national convention in New Orleans.

Legg is equally adamant that his convention is the proper meeting, and, if the two groups cannot agree, a floor fight at the state convention, Jan. 29 and 30 in Grand Rapids, would determine which delegation will get to vote on state party issues and from which delegation the national convention delegates will be selected.

The Kent County ruling appears to affect the 2nd district more than any other in Michigan. It also appears to give the Bush faction a leg up on consideration for seating at the state convention.

Legg, arguing that the Wayne 2nd district was a club, not a fully-functioning arm of the party, ordered delegate selection from the district level, a plan believed to favor the conservative coalition.

Piercecchi and other Bush supporters argued for county-selected delegates, believed to favor the vice president.

Many local Republican activists have made their choice as to which convention they will attend.

Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss said she plans to attend the meeting at Plymouth Township Hall, as does Wayne County Commissioner Susan Heintz.

"The courts and the party have ruled that the convention called by Mr. Piercecchi is the bonafide convention," said Heintz, who has previously been a delegate to Republican national conventions.

Elected officials such as state Sen. R. Robert Geake and state Rep. Gerald Law both said they also intend to attend the convention at Plymouth Township Hall.

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell will be in Washington during the conventions, but a spokesperson in Pursell's local office said the congressman's staff will be at both conventions.

Pursell, Goss, Heintz, Geake and Law all have announced their support for Bush.

The maneuvering occurring in the Wayne 2nd hasn't taken place in the 15th or 17th districts.

"Really, there aren't too many Bush supporters here," Thompson said, "but we have representatives of all presidential candidates and we seem to get along pretty well."

Though he broke with other Kemp leaders, Anuzis said he remains committed to seeing his man nominated for president.

"We did this to maximize Kemp's delegates," he said.

Northville man helps create art from ice in Plymouth

Before the masses descended on Plymouth to see the Ice Sculpture Spectacular, Jim Ryder spent days in the bone-chilling cold of Plymouth's Kellogg Park, overseeing the unloading of ice, assisting the chainsaw sculptors, and running his Detroit plant by phone.

Ryder, who lives in Northville, owns Midwest Ice, the prime sponsor of this year's festival.

Midwest supplied $10,000 in donated ice and services, as well as the ice renderings of Walt Disney characters, birds and other figures that line Ann Arbor Trail, Main Street, Forrest and Penniman in Plymouth through this weekend.

It's a welcome break from Ryder's daily routine, which entails supplying bagged ice for 1,500 supermarkets, the big three auto companies, and most of metro Detroit's hotels and restaurants.

"This is a big kick for me," said Ryder, who helped the Mayflower Hotel's Scott Lorenz plan the first Ice Sculpture Spectacular in 1982.

"Ice carving basically was an art that up to 10 years ago was dying. Ice carvers weren't passing it on to the younger people. The Ice Sculpture Spectacular helped promote it through community colleges," Ryder said.

"Now it's a part of their culinary arts program. Students coming out of school are going to work for the Westin, Plymouth Hilton and other major hotels."

"Ice carvings, if done properly, are a beautiful piece of art created by a person who's able to share a thought in their mind," Ryder added.

"It's something that can't be duplicated, and depending on the temperature, will sit there for many, many people to enjoy."

Ryder's family — wife Leslie, and sons Jamie, 15, and Matt, 7 — has enjoyed this sidelight of his business, he said.

"Jamie has worked for me since he was 4, stacking ice and loading trucks. Now he's driving semi-tractor trailers in my yard," Ryder said.

Ryder's "yard" is two acres of land on Linwood between Oakwood and Fenkell in Detroit. Formerly Borin Ice Co., a business founded in 1927, the plant encompasses 60,000 square feet and three buildings. Inside is state-of-the-art ice manufacturing equipment.

Water bills at Midwest are about $10,000 a month.

A team of more than 40 refrigeration engineers, production workers, sales people, office staffers and drivers have collaborated on off-beat jobs aside from the ice show.

During the 1980 Republican convention, Midwest delivered six-foot-tall carved elephants. When the six animals melted, Midwest replaced them.

The company, which records sales of $1.5 million annually, also has provided frozen models of Grand Prix racing cars for parties hosted by Detroit Mayor Coleman Young.

"The bulk of the ice business has died off. It died when the horse and ice wagon died," Ryder said.

While Ryder doesn't find the ice business as satisfying as his former occupation, teaching, he's thrilled about reviving the art of ice carving via the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

"I think kids need to see things like this. It's a good thing for families and older people, and something neat for a community to have," Ryder said.

The ice industry is well aware of Ryder's expertise in ice carving. He's been invited to speak on the subject at the upcoming national convention of the Packaged Ice Association, of which he is a board member.

Jim Ryder of Northville Township takes a breather on one of the blocks of ice he supplied to the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

Omnicom increases its cable rates

Northville subscribers to Omnicom got an unwelcome New Year's present from the cable company: an increase in their bills.

Fees for individual subscribers increased from $1.50 to $2.51 with additional increases added for additional services.

The increase came less than three months after Northville Township's Board of Trustees and the Northville City Council agreed to cancel the company's insurance bond, but Frederic Collman, Omnicom general manager, said the two events were totally unrelated.

"Generally, at the end of the year, we evaluate the service. Costs have gone up sharply and we needed to increase our rates to try and recover some of those costs," he said.

"The bond is simply for insurance purposes and has nothing whatever to do with costs for service."

The largest increase in costs affected those subscribers who have basic service only, and those subscribers received the largest percentage of increase, Collman explained. He noted that overall, bills in Northville increased 6 percent to 7 percent.

"But the basic service increase was $2.51 and that is a higher percentage than the cost for having basic service and some of the premium channels," Collman said.

The average western Wayne County Omnicom subscriber has the basic service and two premium channels. There are about 22,000 cable customers in Omnicom's subscription area, which also includes Canton Township, Plymouth, and Plymouth Township, in addition to Northville and Northville Township.

The system also services the City of Hamtramck.

Early morning blaze destroys portable classroom

An early morning fire Monday at Christian Community Church School on Six Mile Road totally destroyed a portable building at the rear of the school, but no one was injured in the blaze, fire officials said.

Fred Betcher, church treasurer, had been working at the church when he noticed flames coming through the walls of the east building. He immediately called township fire officials who spent more than an hour extinguishing the blaze.

Fire Chief Robert Toms said the fire apparently started in the furnace room and spread through the walls and ceiling of the building. He estimated damage at $30,000.

The portable classroom was used for bible classes.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED — A 17-year-old Northville resident was arraigned Jan. 6 on two counts of embezzlement, both resulting from incidents at the Community Federal Credit Union totaling over $1,000.

The youth, a former employee of the credit union, pleaded not guilty to the charges at the arraignment. A preliminary examination is scheduled for Jan. 18.

According to a police report, $800 was taken from a credit union account Oct. 27 and shortly after, the same sum was deposited into the suspect's account. A similar incident, involving $450, was reported Nov. 4. The credit union replaced the money in the victims' accounts in both cases, the report said.

At the arraignment, the suspect was released on $10,000 personal bond.

DRUNK DRIVING CHARGED —

A Metamora resident was issued a citation for driving under the influence of liquor, a result of an accident in the city last week.

According to a city police report, the man was driving south on South Main at about 12:40 a.m. Friday, Jan. 8. He stopped at the light at Seven Mile behind another car. The car in front moved into the intersection and stopped, and the car in back hit it, the report said.

When the police arrived, the driver of the rear car was staggering and smelled of alcohol, the report said. A preliminary breath test showed a blood alcohol level of .184 percent, the report said. Legally, 10 percent is drunk.

YOUTH CHARGED — A 16-year-old township youth was issued a misdemeanor violation for having alcohol in a public place Jan. 9.

Township officer Larry Demeter said he observed the subject walking in the Highland Lakes Shopping Center parking lot, carrying an open can of beer.

The youth was arrested and transported to the township jail, from where, three hours later, he was released to the custody of his father.

EMPLOYEE ARRESTED — A Detroit man, employed by Meijer's, was charged Jan. 5 with disturbing the peace at the Northville Township store.

Loss prevention employees called township police when the man, obviously intoxicated, they said, refused to leave the store when asked and used profane language at employees and customers.

When officer Jeff Larente asked the man for identification, the subject also cursed at the township police officer. So Larente placed the man under arrest and transported him to the Northville Township jail.

A routine Law Enforcement Information Network check revealed that the subject had two outstanding warrants from Detroit. The man was lodged in the township jail until a Detroit officer arrived to pick him up.

Before being turned over to Detroit officers, the subject was issued a township appearance ticket for 35th District Court on a charge of disturbing the peace.

DOOR BROKEN — The rear door at the Wagon Wheel Lounge was broken by an angry customer who the bar would not serve, according to a city police report.

The incident, on Sunday, Jan. 3, caused $450 worth of damage, the report said.

EXPENSIVE SCRATCH — A car parked on E. Dunlap was scratched to the tune of $250 Dec. 31, a police report said.

A scratch, looked like it had been made with a key, ran across the left front fender of the car, the report said. The victim said the same thing had happened to the same car twice before.

WINDOW SMASHED — The rear window of a car parked on Randolph Street was broken Sunday, according to a city police report.

The window was broken between 4:30 and 11:50 p.m., the report said. Parts of a broken beer bottle were found inside the car.

Damage was estimated at $150.

Her job's keeping up with Ilitch

By BARBARA ZIEMBA

Karen Daavettilla's relaxed demeanor belied the hectic pace she'd been keeping for several days.

Her boss, Mike Ilitch, president of Little Caesar's Incorporated and owner of the Detroit Red Wings hockey club, had just announced plans to purchase the Fox Theater in downtown Detroit, renovate it and move part of Little Caesar's operations into the former movie palace.

The phones hadn't stopped ringing since the announcement was made. "It was just like the time he bought the Red Wings," she remembered with a grin.

As administrative assistant to a high-profile individual whose corporate moves ripple throughout the business community of metropolitan Detroit, Daavettilla's job can be anything but a ho-hum, nine to five routine.

In recognition of her performance during her 10 years with Little Caesar's, she was voted "Employee of the Year" last May and was honored at the company's business conference at the Westin Hotel in Detroit. Daavettilla was selected by a committee to recognize her contributions to Little Caesar's and her growth within the company.

"I was so surprised I didn't know what to say," she said, with a rueful smile. "After I sat down, I thought of a thousand things I should have said."

Not many people can say their bosses buy hockey teams and old movie houses all in the course of a day's work, but Daavettilla thrives on the variety her job offers her. "Every once in a while we think we've got things organized, and then he (Ilitch) goes and makes another announcement, and..." Daavettilla shrugged her shoulders and laughed. "But that's what makes it exciting, because I know there's always going to be things happening."

A Northville resident, Daavettilla graduated from South Lyon High School, then went to work at banks in South Lyon and Ann Arbor before she joined Little Caesar's in 1977. At that time, only 25 people were on the payroll, now over 500 are on the staff. A friend of Daavettilla's had just started in the payroll department and told her about the possibility of a job opening for her. "I stopped in to fill out an application, wound up talking to one of the guys instead, and just started working," she said.

Becoming Mike Ilitch's administrative assistant was an evolutionary process for the unassuming young woman. Rather than progress from one clearly defined position to the next, the job gradually grew around her, matching the growth of Little Caesar's. "Back then the departments were much smaller, and fewer people wore more hats."

"Starting where I did — on the switchboard — helped me learn about the different departments and the overall company," Daavettilla explained. "It really proved to be helpful for my job now, because I have to know where to direct people."

The Little Caesar's chain stretches over 48 states, Canada and England and currently has 1,600 stores in operation. By the end of the year, that number will increase to over 1,800.

Karen Daavettilla is used to big numbers. She's from a large family — 15 children to be exact — and almost all of them still live in Michigan. "We have three at home now. One's a senior, another is a sophomore and one's in the 8th grade. A couple of them went to school in the Upper Peninsula, and they live there now," she recited, ticking them off on her fingers.

Daavettilla is a Finnish name, and the Finnish culture is strong in upper Michigan, she explained. "My parents own a cottage in central Michigan, and we just had a big get-together there. Everyone made it except one. When you add in the nieces and nephews, it's always a major event," she laughed.

Asked what it was like growing up in such a large family, she replied, "I guess it's just what you're used to. I really didn't think about it that much. If you come from a family of three, multipl that by five and you'll get the idea."

However, 10 of Daavettilla's siblings are brothers, so family life centered around sports. When the Daavettilla boys decided to choose up sides for a game, everyone was recruited regardless of gender. "You had to participate to even the teams up, so you really didn't have a choice," smiled Daavettilla.

When she's not being recruited for a game of baseball, she enjoys water and snow skiing and, "of course, hockey."

Another avocation Daavettilla enjoys is travel. Two years ago, she visited Alaska and loved it. "You need a lot of time when you go there and it can be rugged, but it's worth it. You go a mile out of Anchorage and you're in the mountains. We went white-water rafting and climbed part of the way up a glacier." Her own glacier-blue eyes sparkled as she reminisced.

As for the future, Daavettilla loves her job and plans to continue as Mike Ilitch's administrative assistant. "He's a great person to work for, and I really don't see myself making a switch." Then she hesitated and grinned. "Unless I open up my own Little Caesar's store."

Maybe in Alaska?

City planners see revised plan for Pheasant Hills sub

By BOB NEEDHAM

A new plan for the second part of the Pheasant Hills subdivision — revised in a settlement with the DNR over a wetland on the site — came to the city planning commission last week, and stayed there.

The commission tabled consideration of the new plan until several points were settled between the Singh Development Company, the city's consulting engineers, and "other interested parties."

Some of the issues include:

- Further evidence that some lots which fell partly in utility easements were suitable for building.
- Clarification of how to measure lot widths. McNeely and Lincoln Associates, the city's consulting engineers, said some lots were too narrow.
- The type of approval being sought at present. Members of the commission and representatives of the developer disagreed on where the plan fell in the approval process.

The commission voted 7-0 to table the latest plan until the items in consultants' reviews were all addressed.

The new Pheasant Hills plan came out of discussions with the state Department of Natural Resources. Singh applied to fill in some wetlands on the site — much of which were already disturbed from a city sewer line put through the area — and create new wetlands.

The DNR did not allow that plan, but has agreed to allow some modified wetlands filling and replacement. The major change in the plan is the elimination of the southern half of the planned Pond Island Drive, a road already shown on Northville maps.

The new plan shows the road ending in a cul-de-sac halfway down its length. In addition, McDonald Drive, where it met the old Pond Island Drive, is straightened out in the new plan.

The company also rearranged and reduced some lots to increase the total size of the development from 130 to 132 lots, Singh Vice President Michael Kahm said at the meeting.

Kahm also said the DNR-approved plan includes crossing of wetlands, using large culverts, in three places.

The Oakland County Drain Commission also required some changes to the previous plan, and those were done, Kahm said.

All the lots are buildable as proposed, Kahm told the commission. He also said he had not known until the meeting of McNeely and Lincoln's objections to the plan.

Silt in pond not yet resolved

The question of who will clean up a dirt-filled water retention basin off Taft and Eight Mile — if it's cleanable — is still unanswered.

The issue arose again at a city planning commission meeting last week, when the Singh Development Company presented the latest plans for developing the second phase of its Pheasant Hills subdivision off Eight Mile.

Residents have said that building the first phase caused the pond, in the Lexington Condos development, to fill with silt. The city's consulting engineers have been directed to study the situation.

At the meeting, Singh Vice President Michael Kahm said in answer to a question that the city engineers will report on "what, if anything" happened to the pond.

Planning Commissioner John Hardin responded: "It's quite simple to say what happened. It filled up."

Kahm answered, "By virtue of construction you can't stop all siltation." He said the company had installed controls to limit erosion, including a filter, around a large pile of dirt on the Pheasant Hills land accused of causing the problem.

"There were several contributing factors to that pond filling up. We admit that our development, to an extent, contributed to part of it," Kahm said.

The issue will be resolved after the city engineering firm, McNeely and Lincoln Associates, makes its report, Kahm added.

Condo plan wins approval

A plan for a condominium development on the St. Lawrence Barns land received preliminary approval from the planning commission last week, subject to a list of conditions.

The Selective Group, developers of the site, returned to the commission with a revision of an earlier plan. The new plan includes more visitor parking and other minor changes suggested during an earlier commission meeting.

The qualified approval passed the commission 7-0. The listed conditions include:

- A sidewalk to Wing Street.
- A raised curb and gutter at the entrance (off Seven Mile).
- Landscaping on the east side of the development that does not hinder sight.

- Submission of a detailed plan for the open area in the middle of the site, to include contours and expected water flow.
- Considering, with county officials, a five-lane intersection at Seven Mile and Wing, with the development's entrance aligned with Wing.
- The entrance sign meeting city ordinance requirements.

November jobless rate in area lower than state

Local unemployment rates for the month of November were considerably lower than the rates in the region and the state, according to Michigan Employment Security Commission figures.

In Northville Township, the November unemployment rate was 2.7 percent, MESC analyst Brenda Njiwaji said. The township recorded a labor force of 6,154, with 5,985 employed and 169 unemployed.

In Northville city, the Wayne County part of the city showed an unemployment rate of 2.8 percent for November, while the Oakland County part showed a 3.5 percent rate, Njiwaji said. The city had a total labor force of 3,357, with 3,252 employed and 105 unemployed, she said.

The City of Novi noted a 5 percent unemployment rate for November, with 13,847 in the labor force, 13,151 employed and 696 unemployed, Njiwaji said.

The seven-county southeast Michigan region saw 7.3 percent unemployment for the month. Total labor force was 2.20 million, with 161,000 of those unemployed, MESC figures show.

At the same time, the state's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 7.4 percent for November, up from 6.9 percent in October. The number unemployed in the state during October was 335,000.

dent in the business at the downs. Schultz said Matinees at the Windsor Harness Raceway probably hurt the figures at the six Jackson at Northville matinees this season too, she said

"They're getting pretty saturated with race tracks now. It is reflected in the figures, definitely. All the tracks are down," Schultz said

"We're pleased that (the total Jackson at Northville handle) stayed even. Sports Creek definitely was a factor in the last two years," she added

"We just seem to be losing people, and people seem to be the name of the game," Schultz continued. "We keep looking for new ways to get people interested in going."

"It's a national trend. It's not just Michigan," she said

Figures for average attendance and average handle in the Jackson at Northville season have gone down consistently since 1984

Average attendance in 1987 was 2,497, Schultz said, compared to 2,662 in 1986, 2,891 in 1985 and 3,227 in 1984

Average handle in 1987 was $501,376, compared to $505,395 in 1986, $549,379 in 1985 and $556,927 in 1984

Jackson at Northville only had one race day cancelled because of snow and that was on Dec. 28, Schultz said

The Jackson Harness Raceway sponsors racing at Northville Downs from October through December. The Downs own season runs from January to April

Kirksey wins Schoolcraft College seat

Jack Kirksey is the newest Schoolcraft College Trustee

Kirksey, a former member of Michigan House of Representatives and an unsuccessful candidate for mayor of Livonia, was a 4-2 choice of the current board and topped a field of 16 candidates

After two evenings of interviews, only Kirksey and Nancy Kitzman, a Garden City resident, received any votes by the board, which named Kirksey to fill the unexpired term of Laura Toy, who resigned from the board after winning a seat on the Livonia City Council

Kirksey is president of the Schoolcraft College Foundation board which oversees the Schoolcraft Foundation, a private, non-profit fund-raising group that helps underwrite scholarships and programs at the college

Kirksey will serve until June 1989 and already is considering running for re-election

Saying the need for "balanced financing" between tuition, taxes and state aid is a top priority, Kirksey said, "If the board wants me to go to Lansing on its behalf, I'm more than willing to do so. I'm here to serve them."

Geake, Law don't expect education funding reform

By ANITA CRONE

Although there are at least four major plans to revise funding for education and 83 bills having at least some connection to education already introduced in the Legislature, neither state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville Township, nor state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, expects any action on the state level.

"I don't support any of the plans," said Geake. "They all try to even out the expenditures per student but there is no data that shows that the expenditures are connected with performance. And none of them will help a Northville."

Law based his assessment on previous performance. "Unless you have the unions, the school boards and the state all in agreement, bills dealing with education just don't tend to pass," he told members of the Northville Board of Education and school district administrators Monday during a breakfast meeting at Schoolcraft College.

George Bell, superintendent of schools, said he called the meeting to allow board members and local legislators to exchange views on education and to allow the board to get a sense of exactly what is happening in Lansing.

"What I see from all of the bills and proposals is an erosion of local control. But what I don't see are the bankrupt school districts we keep hearing about," Bell said, in asking what the governor sees as a priority in education.

Law said that the Legislature doesn't really know what the priorities are. "What you have, at least in the House, is the speaker noting that pre-school education and help is his priority. We do know that curriculum is a priority with every major newspaper in the state, so, yes, the idea of working with a core curriculum or with preschool or with graduation requirements is going to keep coming up."

"But I don't think at this time we can afford across-the-board funding for preschools, or that there is money currently for a core curriculum," Geake said.

The legislators noted that any preschool plan is likely to leave out the more affluent school districts like Northville.

And as far as core curriculum is concerned, Geake said, "as a board, I wouldn't be overly concerned about it. It just isn't likely to get through in Lansing."

"What we are concerned with is that there might be a tradeoff to soothe the savage beast," noted Dolly McMaster, assistant superintendent for curriculum. "Since we aren't going to get funding reform, maybe they will give the people the standardized curriculum or competency testing."

$1.6 billion debt threatens federal student loan program

For years many college-bound students could count on getting a helping hand from the federal government for financial assistance.

But Uncle Sam may soon decide to keep his hands deep in his pockets unless a number of former college students start paying back a reported $1.6 billion in loan debt.

To slice the debt, the federal government is reviewing its guaranteed student loan program.

The plan provides those who qualify with as much as $2,500 a year for tuition. Loan repayments to banks, credit unions and savings and loan associations are deferred until six months after the student either graduates or leaves school, with a schedule of four to six years to complete payment in most cases.

However, too many students are not living up to their end of the deal. As a result, the federal Department of Education will disqualify schools whose default rates surpass 20 percent as of December 1990.

"They will flat out eliminate those schools (with high default rates) from consideration," said John Tomey, director of financial aid at Schoolcraft College.

But Tomey said Schoolcraft College probably won't be squeezed out of the program. "We're very fortunate our default rate (now 14.77 percent) falls below that."

The decision to monitor university default rates, designed to tighten controls on institutional eligibility, was announced recently by U.S. Secretary of Education William Bennett.

Colleges will be penalized for the fiscal irresponsibility of students who have received loans under the federal program but who have failed to make payments.

Many other students who need financial aid for their college education would suffer.

"We need to raise the social consciousness of borrowers," Tomey said, noting that the expected federal crackdown on defaults "denies future students access to these funds."

Oakland University's financial aid director, Lee Anderson, agreed with Tomey that students who really need federal assistance will be hurt the most by those defaulting in repayments.

They may not be able to attend the school of their choice. Instead they may have to look at alternatives, including less-expensive community colleges, Anderson said.

Meanwhile, Paul Kinder, financial aid director of Southfield's Lawrence Institute of Technology, maintains that colleges shouldn't be blamed for the default program. LIT's default rate is 8.8 percent, he said.

According to Kinder, colleges do not have a say as to who receives the loans.

"The law does not allow schools to deny aid to qualified students," Kinder said. "We must do what regulations require, and we have little control over the loan process."

Anderson concurred, adding that he doesn't agree with Bennett's assessment to hold schools responsible for defaulting students.

"I've got a problem with that because we don't make loans. We certify eligible students," said Anderson, who estimated Oakland University's default rate at 13 percent.

To slow the default pace, colleges may need to offer additional training or direction, the officials said.

"Those schools with high default rates need to implement programs to reduce that, because they're hurting all schools," Schoolcraft's Tomey said.

"One way might be to have exit interviews with graduating students, to remind them of their obligations, so they know exactly when the repayments begin," he said.

And Anderson said colleges "have the responsibility to educate students as to their responsibilities" in paying off the loans.

A shrinking job market and low pay for new hires are two reasons why college graduates are having problems paying off the loans, Tomey said.

"Either students aren't getting the kind of jobs they thought they'd have, or they're not paying what was hoped for. As a result, they are unable to make the payments," Tomey explained.

Kinder said many students don't even reach graduation day, further padding the default numbers.

"It's the freshmen and sophomores, who attend college for one or two years — students with low grades and poor employment prospects — who account for the majority of the default rate," Kinder said.

He noted that although the Internal Revenue Service withholds tax refunds from those in default, it's not always enough.

When the default rate of nearly 7,300 colleges is calculated in December 1990, at least 30 percent will have default rates of more than 20 percent, according to the federal education department.

Though the federal government may restrict the loans, Kinder doesn't think it will stop people who really want a college education.

"But it will make them look at their choices," Kinder said. Those may include going to community colleges, taking fewer credit hours and working jobs to pay school costs," he said.

"If somebody wants to go to college, they'll make an effort one way or another," Kinder explained. "But it won't be the way it was when their brother or sister went five or 10 years ago."

Financial aid meetings set at NHS, Madonna

Northville High School and Madonna College have scheduled meetings dealing with financial aid for college.

At the high school, a representative from Schoolcraft College and from the Michigan Department of Education will be on hand at 7 p.m. Jan. 26 to answer parents' questions about college financial aid.

The meeting will take place in the High School Forum.

On Jan. 21, a statewide telecast will be shown at 7:15 p.m. in Kresge Hall on the Madonna Campus.

Although the screening is free, preregistration is encouraged and may be completed by calling 591-5038.

Alumni search starts

The search has begun for candidates to become a Northville High School Distinguished Alumnus for 1987-88.

The award is annually given to honor an NHS graduate who has contributed to the school as well as the community.

Any person may nominate a candidate by submitting a letter detailing the accomplishments of the nominee to Northville High School, 775 N. Center St., Northville, MI 48167 by April 4.

A screening committee of representatives from the community, faculty, central office, high school administration and students will make the final selection and the award will be presented during commencement exercises June 17.

"Northville High School has graduated many outstanding people who have made significant contributions to our society on the local, state, national and international levels," said NHS principal David Bolitho, in announcing the beginning of the search.

Bowman decision changes look of congressional race

State Treasurer Robert Bowman's non-entry into the 2nd District Congressional race turned a potential adversary into an ally for one Democratic challenger, while "sharply focusing" the race for the other.

Bowman announced Jan. 3 he wasn't entering the race. Instead, he threw his support behind state Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor. Pollack faces a primary challenge from former party nominee Dean Baker, also of Ann Arbor.

Bowman had long been considered a potential candidate for the 2nd District seat even though he lives outside the district. The seat, currently held by U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, includes all of Northville Township, the City of Northville below Baseline Road, part of Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, most of Washtenaw and Jackson counties, all of Hillsdale County, and parts of Lenawee and Branch counties.

Pollack said she wasn't surprised by Bowman's non-entry but was pleased to gain his support. "He's a strong man, a strong person, with good name recognition," Pollack said. "I didn't look forward to a primary against him."

Political insiders speculated Bowman's move could boost Pollack's standing among moderate-to-conservative Democrats. Baker said Bowman's support of Pollack wouldn't affect his own grass-roots campaign.

"It doesn't make a large difference," Baker said. "It still shapes up as a grass-roots campaign against a big money campaign. This only sharpens the focus."

Baker lost to Pursell in 1986 after pulling an upset in that year's Democratic primary. A spokesman for Pursell speculated Bowman withdrew because he didn't figure to defeat Pollack.

"Bowman was looking at a primary situation and he probably felt he couldn't win," Pursell spokesman Gary Cates said. Bowman, however, denied that assumption, calling the seat "eminently winnable."

Neither senior citizens nor youngsters are left out of the programs. Special senior citizen classes are offered at Allen Terrace and the Senior Citizen Center at Cooke School and include seminars, art classes, bridge and square dancing. For the younger set, there are babysitting classes, ceramics, dancing, volleyball and painting programs, to name a few.

Ballroom dancing, fly tying and a course geared to the homeowner who is considering remodeling or renovating his or her home are among the leisure course offerings for adults.

The home remodeling and renovation class will cover basic carpentry, plumbing, electrical work, tiling, roofing and siding.

Most classes begin the week of Jan. 25. A full schedule, including fees, days and times of classes and instructors may be obtained by calling the community education office at 349-3400.

No registration will be accepted over the telephone.

"Someday, I would like to run for office. But I couldn't say what that office would be at this time," he said.

"My allegiance is with my current job and employer. My feeling was that I could best serve the people of Michigan — all the people of Michigan — by staying on as treasurer."

— Robert Bowman
State Treasurer

The past year Bowman, however, didn't rule out a future attempt for elective office.

By staying on the job, Bowman lends stability to a Blanchard administration marked by transition. Chief of Staff Steven Weiss, budget director Shelby Solomon and legislative liaison William Kandler have all joined the administration in

Northville Community Education classes start next month

A full schedule of activities and classes is being offered by Northville Community Education, beginning Feb. 1.

Registration for the courses is ongoing and may be completed in person or by mail. In addition, the Community Education Office in Room 310 of the Board of Education office will be open Tuesday until 8 p.m. to accept in person signups.

Courses being offered this winter include high school completion, a GED preparation class, arts and crafts, computers and personal grooming.

Also on tap are field trips which will take people throughout the area, to Saginaw for a visit to the antique warehouse, to play bingo at the Chippewa Indian reservation, to Pewabic Pottery and to Brunch with Bach in Detroit.

Single parents or couples can take advantage of parenting skills classes, including effective teenage management and child management, designed to help parents cope with their youngsters.

Home construction in Oakland County continues to boom

Construction in Oakland County wasn't as good in 1987 as it was a year ago. But it was still ahead of 1985.

An estimated $1.4 billion in building permits were issued in the county in 1987, a 9-percent decline from the record $1.53 billion of 1986.

"We need a little breather. We're not prepared to handle that kind of growth," said Joseph D. Joachim, director of the county's department of community and economic development.

In 1985 local units across the county issued $1.23 billion in permits, so 1987 was the second biggest on record.

"High Tech" is more recession proof than manufacturing," said Joachim, explaining Oakland's continued strength.

"Just-in-time" delivery to auto plants means there should be fewer ups and downs for suppliers, he added.

Jack Driker, Oakland's marketing and research coordinator, underscored those ideas in his 1988 forecast.

"If the national economy does well," Driker said, "we look for good performance in Oakland County. Forecasts for the national economy range from flat to strong growth."

"Motor vehicle manufacturing continues to be the bellwether of the area's economy, but the sharp reduction in manufacturing operations employment since 1980 and dramatic growth in technical and other service sectors have resulted in a stronger, more diversified economy."

On the basis of nine-month reports, Driker has made these projections for each segment of the construction industry for 1987:

□ Commercial (retail) — the hot spot at $53 million, up 54 percent from a year ago.

□ Residential — $528 million, down less than $1 million and 0.2 percent from the 1986 level, indicating people are still moving into Oakland to live.

□ Industrial — $74 million, down 38 percent from last year's $119 million.

□ Office — $129 million, down 42 percent from last year's $224 million.

□ Other — $287 million for the first nine months, up nearly 15 percent from the same period of 1986. This segment includes hotels, churches, institutions, amusement places and schools. Many are non-taxable by local government but they still mean jobs for the construction industry and people who work there.

Among the companies building in Oakland currently, high technology dominates, Driker said.

Under way in 1987 were the Chrysler Technology Center, BASF-Lamont, Tachi-S. Engineering U.S.A. Inc., Starboard Industries, Trevarrow Inc., Mitsubishi Turbo Inc., GKN Automotive Components Inc., Computware Corp., Diolight Technology Inc. and GE Plastics.

Also Akezo Coatings, Lear Siegler Technical Center, Harvard Industries, American Climflex Corp., Budd Co. Technical Center, Alps Electric Co. (USA) Inc., FEV of America, Siemens' Technical Service Center, Borg Warner Automotive Inc., ITT Automotive Inc., Pentair Corp. and GMF Robotics.

But if the construction industry is strong, the overall state picture may be weaker, according to R. Stephen Nicholson, chancellor of Oakland Community College.

"There is a possible executive order reduction of 3 percent" in state aid, he warned the board of trustees recently.

In OCC's case, state aid makes up a bit less than one-third of the college budget, so a 3-percent cut amounts to an overall 1-percent cut in the $44 million budget.

"It will be prudent," Nicholson said, "if we reduce expenditures the next couple of months."

The Michigan Constitution requires the governor to reduce expenditures during the fiscal year when it appears revenues are dropping. Local units and colleges dependent on state aid received a series of executive order cuts in mid-stream during the 1980-83 recession.

Nevertheless, said Nicholson, "there's evidence the governor is concerned about higher education," particularly as community colleges contribute to retraining workers in Michigan's economic recovery.

Our Opinions

Meeting on funding is a good beginning

An information exchange between two state legislators and the Northville Public Schools should not be a one-time event.

At the invitation of Superintendent George Bell, state Sen. R. Robert Geake and state Rep. Gerald Law Monday met with school board members and district administrators to discuss not only the various plans for education financing reform, but also the chances of passage of any, all or none of the proposals.

It is too bad that two other invited legislators, Sen. Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills, and Rep. Willis "Bill" Bullard of Milford, were unable to attend so there could have been a true exchange of ideas.

As it was, the lawmakers were made aware of concerns the district had, particularly as to how financing reform might hinder the programs already in effect. And the board members heard Geake say that he did not expect any of the plans actually to come to fruition.

More important than the exchange of views, however, was the opportunity for the board to meet their legislators and vice versa. All too often government officials are simply names to the general public, rather than flesh and blood individuals. And to state lawmakers who usually make it a point to know local elected officials, school board members are somehow removed from the political process, so, unless there is a special meeting such as the one held last Monday, there is little interaction between the officials.

Hopefully, the meeting will not be a one-time event, but rather the first of on-going sessions and continuing communications. And it would not be a bad idea for other governmental units or boards to avail themselves of the same opportunities as the school district has done.

Why couldn't the recreation commission, for instance, meet with members of the Natural Resources Commission to better understand the workings of that board and its interaction with local communities?

And why shouldn't the school board meet more often than annually with the legislators who ultimately will determine what, if any, changes are made in school funding?

Bell, Law and Geake have taken the first step. Follow up and follow through with continuing communication is definitely in order.

Considering options

The Saga of the Sewer in the western suburbs is probably going to go down in history. In fact, it already has, and it's nowhere near over yet.

Finding the adequate sanitary sewer capacity for the building in this area has been at a crisis level for many years. The crisis is still with us, and a solution, although it might come this year, doesn't really look any more likely now than it did in the recent past.

It's time to do something. No, it's past time — way past. The crisis is real, but it's become the norm; like the old national energy crisis, we get so used to it we don't pay attention any more.

Northville residents have watched two separate efforts: the decades-old "super sewer" regional plan, which is an expansion of the Detroit system, and the Western Townships Utility Authority, which hopes to connect to Ypsilanti. Officials behind the super sewer plan have tried to maintain the atmosphere of a crisis, because that's the best way to get communities to agree to the plan.

Unfortunately, repeated warnings about "the last chance for federal funding" are now sounding, in the words of Northville City Manager Steve Walters, like television commercials for "New York Super Sewer World."

The City of Northville, with its small size and mostly-built-up status, is better off than many. But the state Department of Natural Resources and Wayne County's Department of Public Works have said the city is still over its capacity, and needs more. Super sewer has always looked like the way to go, but the city has had to wait far too long for the system to materialize.

At its last meeting, the council was scheduled to consider agreeing, once again, to participate in the regional sewer plan. This time, though, the council delayed action to look at another alternative.

This other idea is building a sewage storage tank which would hold sewage during "peak flow" times and pump it into the system when there was room.

The council is supposed to hear at its next meeting how cost-effective a tank would be. It probably won't be cost-effective at all, even compared to the huge cost of the regional sewer.

But it will be useful to know this for sure before proceeding again with super sewer. And if that plan falls apart once again, it may be critical to have another option.

Ban the handguns

By Neil Geoghegan

A new year is upon us, so I think it's time for me to get back on my soap box and call for a handgun ban once again.

I think it's one of the quickest and most effective ways to cut down handgun-related tragedies — and there have been a lot of them lately, but what else is new? Recently, newspapers and televisions all across the nation have been reporting the gruesome details of mass murders within families. The two most widely publicized cases happened in Arkansas and Iowa.

This phenomenon has human behaviorists working overtime, trying to figure out why, for instance, a man would murder 16 people in the span of several hours, including 14 members of his own family. They've since come up with a list of similar traits these people exhibited, and guess what was number one on the docket? Experience with firearms, and plenty on hand at the time of the murders.

Several weeks ago, I read the tragic story of an elderly Detroit couple who thought a burglar was in their home. While the husband went to search for his handgun, the wife proceeded downstairs to check out the noise. As you can probably guess, the husband then went downstairs with the gun — assuming his wife was still upstairs — and fatally shot her in a case of mistaken identity.

In my opinion, loosening gun control laws is a travesty. They tried it in Florida in 1987 and the results were predictable. Many law-abiding citizens shot one another at alarming rates until the loopholes were closed. Now, we need to continue to move more in this direction.

I realize that a lot of people buy these guns for protection, and that their motives are genuine. What they don't realize is that the odds of ever catching a thief and effectively using the gun is very remote. The odds of someone accidentally shooting someone else in their own family is more common. So more times than not, buying a handgun for protection only makes a home less safe.

Many people talk about their "right" to own a gun, as guaranteed by the Constitution. But I wonder why they can't just get a rifle of some sort if they have to have a gun? The Constitution says we can bear arms, but it doesn't mean we can all have sub-machine guns sticking out of our front doors, anti-aircraft guns in our garage or hand grenades in our mailboxes. You have to draw the line somewhere, and I say let's put hand guns behind that line.

A large majority of the people who would rather die than give up their "guaranteed rights as an American to own, operate and accidentally kill other Americans" with their handguns are arch-conservatives. It's kind of ironic because it's often the same ones who want to kill homosexuals (and the Russians), outlaw rock music (and other subversive activities) and are always at the front of the line when it comes to denouncing everything the A.C.L.U. does.

In the classic film High Noon, Grace Kelly sadly remembers that her father and brother were killed by guns and says: "I don't care who's right and who's wrong — there's got to be a better way to live."

How appropriate.

After the Fact

By Phil Jerome

Joella Shulman did it to me. And I didn't even have it coming.

I was attending a civic function Sunday — dedication ceremonies for Novi's new civic center — and I was having a grand old time, renewing acquaintances with a lot of people I don't see as often as I would like, when she walked up and let me have it right between the eyes.

"I got a chuckle out of your column last week," she said with a big grin on her face. Moments later the gracious comment was only a ploy to throw me off guard.

"Yes," she continued, "I'm one of the few people who actually reads it."

Honest. That's what she said. She actually stood right there and told me she was one of the few people who actually reads my column.

The grin on my face disappeared immediately. My hands started shaking. And I choked on the little egg salad mini-sandwich with the slice of olive on top I had been eating.

"Joella," I stammered finally. "Say it isn't so. Tell me you don't really think the blood, sweat and tears I put into writing my column every week aren't appreciated by hundreds and thousands of people throughout Metro Detroit and the entire seven-county SEMCOG region."

"Tell me, please, that people who read my column in the paper every week are not some kind of endangered species... afraid to 'come out of the closet' and admit their strange peccadillo."

In fairness to Joella, I would like to point out that I don't think she had been trying to hurt my feelings. I really believe she meant her original comment as a compliment.

And as soon as she realized I had been stunned by her intimate little revelation, she recovered quickly. "Here, Phil," she said graciously, "why don't you have another sandwich?"

Cold weather tips

With temperatures hovering around the zero mark, Consumers Power Company is offering some tips to customers that may help them better cope with the severe cold and keep their heating costs within reason.

"We know that most of our customers made preparations for winter, such as putting up their storm windows and checking the furnace," said John Robbins, district manager of Consumers Power's West Wayne District, "but this Arctic cold calls for additional measures to keep comfortable in your home. Here are a few suggestions:"

- Close off unoccupied rooms. Shutting off registers or turning down thermostats in these rooms can re-direct heat to areas that are being occupied and help with keeping warm. However, if the room has any adjacent water lines, it should be kept heated to prevent the pipes from freezing.

- Block off drafts around doors. Feel around the door and if you feel cold air coming through, place a towel or other material at the threshold.

- Check drapes and furniture. Make sure that window shades and furniture do not obstruct the free movement of air from heat registers and cold air returns. On sunny days, leave drapes and shades open to take advantage of the sun's heat. Close them in the evening.

- Close off openings to the outdoors. Double check your windows and storm windows to make sure they are closed all the way. Keep doors of attached garages closed. Consider placing plastic sheeting on windows that are in shaded areas. Make sure that vent dampers from kitchens, bathrooms and dryers are tightly closed when not in use.

- Maintain the humidity in your home around 30-40 percent. If the air in your house is dry and you don't have a humidifier, place a pan of water in front of the register or just boil a pot of water on your stove to increase the humidity.

- Check the fireplace. If you have a fireplace, make sure the damper is closed tightly. If you don't have fireplace doors, you might consider covering the opening with plastic sheeting and not using the fireplace until the worst of the cold weather moves on.

- Replace furnace filters. Clogged filters not only put an extra strain on your heating system, but also reduce its efficiency. Some experts recommend changing the filter monthly during the heating season.

- Check heating ducts for leaks. Inexpensive duct tape can seal off leaks that waste energy and add to heating bills.

"These recommendations should help people use their heating systems more efficiently and cope with the severe cold," said Robbins who offered one last suggestion: "Keep in mind that warmer weather is only a few weeks away."

How do parents encourage saying no?

This is another in a series of continuing columns written by Charles Stillec, director of the Northville Public Schools' Student Assistance Program.

By CHARLES STILLEC

Q. As a parent, how can I help my child "Say No" to drugs and alcohol?

A. Approximately 30 percent of boys and 22 percent of girls classify themselves as "drinkers" by the time they reach age 13, according to figures released in 1987 by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

There is no simple answer to the question of assisting youngsters, but by following guidelines and goals that are routine to most parents, the youngsters can be helped.

The goals of most parents for their children is to help the children feel good about themselves, have good, caring friends, do as well as the child can in school, and, grow into productive, responsible adults.

Several steps to help parents help their children "say no" to drugs are as follows:

- Talk to the child about alcohol and drugs. Make sure the child understands the dangers and problems of drug use (You, as a parent, may need an education and I'd be happy to help if you call 344-1825).

- Learn to really listen to your child. Keep open the lines of communication.

- Help the child feel good about himself. Give lots of praise and encouragement at appropriate times to help the youngster believe in his self worth.

- Helping a child develop strong values and a sense of right and wrong can give him the courage to make decisions based on facts, rather than on pressure from other kids.

- Be a good role model or example. Kids are very aware of adults' attitudes and habits concerning alcohol and drugs, cigarettes, coffee, etc and may follow an adult's lead.

- Help the child deal with peer pressure.

- Set firm rules about drinking and other drug use. Family rules need to be clear and consistent. The consequences of violating the rules also should be clearly spelled out.

- Encourage healthy, creative activities.

- Talk with other parents, share information.

- Know what to do if you suspect a problem. Learn the signs of use and abuse, and, if you do have concerns, contact a professional

Officials disagree on private jail idea

Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy is cheering efforts of a Dearborn businessman to build a private jail for misdemeanor offenders.

"It's a great idea. He's going at it systematically in light of the attorney general's opinion," Murphy said.

Chip Acey, president of a tool company, is proposing to build — and operate — a 448-bed minimum security jail in southern Wayne County. It would house non-violent offenders who are sentenced to jail but promptly released because the Wayne County Jail is overcrowded with felony defendants.

But state attorney General Frank J. Kelley, in an Oct. 21 opinion, said jails may not be privately operated though they may be privately built.

"Whether Michigan does it this time or another time — it's still a better way," said Murphy, a Republican who advocates contracting government work to business whenever it will cut costs.

"It (Acey's plan) doesn't take away from the sheriff's responsibility. The sheriff still sets the standards," Murphy said.

"We've talked to Chip Acey. I don't see a problem" with the practical side of operating a jail, Murphy said.

But Robert Ficano, current Wayne County sheriff, opposes privately-operated jails.

"There have been too many questions that have never been answered. What happens if it goes bankrupt? What about liability?" The U.S. Supreme Court says civil rights violations cannot be delegated to private industry — so if there is an offense, a municipality or the county is still responsible," Ficano said.

Murphy has proposed that Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties hire a private company to build a jail that all three counties can use for minimum security offenders. Wayne County prosecutor John O'Hair said in an interview he would consider the idea.

Under Murphy's proposal, the counties would pay the private contractor on a per-diem basis. Several states — Tennessee, Florida, Minnesota, California and Texas among them — reportedly already have privately-operated jails.

"It's a tremendous savings in the long run," Murphy said.

"It costs us as much to house a drunk driver for six or eight hours as it does for a felony criminal," Murphy said.

County jails also house persons convicted of lesser offenses requiring less than a year in jail. It is these persons Acey is proposing to house in a privately-built and operated jail.

Schraders closing doors after 81 years of business

Matt Hinds and Mark Deal get ready for the hordes of shoppers at Schraders in Northville

By JEAN DAY

Many of the shoppers who waited in lines to snap up bargains in the going-out-of-business sale of the 81-year-old Schrader's Home Furnishings store in downtown Northville last week were friends and long-time customers of owner N. C. Schrader III and his wife, Diane.

As she assisted at the cash register, Diane Schrader said the reaction was mixed.

"Some wondered if they should be giving condolences while others questioned if congratulations were in order," she said.

"We assured them that it definitely isn't condolences," she added.

"It is just time for me to do something else," commented N.C. Schrader, who said he had had several opportunities to sell the business, but this year was the first time he had liked an offer.

Gary George in partnership with Dan DiComo is purchasing the building and has indicated there are plans to renovate the store into several smaller stores.

The new stores will not be furniture stores.

The fact was lamented by many of the customers who filled the store all last week, many recalling other purchases they had made at the store on North Center Street.

The Schraders were surprised at the response to their going out of business sale that began last Monday and will continue until the merchandise is sold. The final closing date is March 31.

The closing marks the end of a three-generation business in the community.

It was founded by Schrader's grandfather who first worked for a furniture store and funeral home in Plymouth (a common combination years ago). He and his brother bought out the store in 1903. The Fred Schrader part of the family still is in Plymouth and owns the Schrader Funeral Home.

Grandfather Schrader moved to Northville when the store at 111 N. Center became available. He died in 1936 and N.C. Schrader Jr., then a senior at Michigan State University, came home to take over. He and his wife, Betty, first lived in an apartment over the store.

N.C. Schrader III followed in his father's footsteps and attended MSU, getting his degree in business.

He recalled that he started helping in the store when he was in high school. "I started to help when I was old enough to lift furniture and make deliveries."

He took over the management when his father died in 1979.

In a story about the family business in The Northville Record in August 1986, Schrader attributed the

How to live with someone who's living with cancer.

When one person gets cancer, everyone in the family suffers.

Nobody knows better than we do how much help and understanding is needed. That's why our service and rehabilitation programs emphasize the whole family, not just the cancer patient.

Among our regular services we provide information and guidance to patients and families, transport patients to and from treatment, supply home care items and assist patients in their return to everyday life.

Life is what concerns us. The life of cancer patients. The lives of their families. So you can see we are even more than the research organization we are so well known to be.

No one faces cancer alone

CPAs offer suggestions for selecting the right credit card

The offer sounds pretty good — a VISA or Mastercard with an annual percentage rate (APR) of only 14.5 percent and an annual fee of $20. But wait, here's another — no annual fee, but a 16 percent APR. Wait! Here's another, and another and another.

It can all get confusing. As the deduction for credit card interest is phased out under tax reform, many banks are cutting card costs to attract new customers — or are they? Comparing different credit cards has become like comparing apples to oranges.

According to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, you may not need to compare different credit card offers. In fact, all you may need to do is decide what is best for you, apples or oranges.

There are three factors to consider in deciding whether a credit card fits your needs: annual percentage rate, annual fee and length of the "grace" period. The relative importance of each of these three greatly depends on how you use your credit card.

Money Management

As you probably already know, APR is the rate of interest a bank charges on your credit card balance. You probably also know that different banks charge different rates. What you may not know, however, is that the banks may also use different methods of calculating the interest — and that some methods cost you more than others.

The first method, and the best for you, is the adjusted balance method. With this method, the interest charge is based on the amount you owe after subtracting your payment from the previous balance. For example, if the monthly rate is 1.5 percent (18 percent annually) and your previous balance was $500 and you pay $400 on the account, the 1.5 percent interest on $100 yields an interest charge of $1.50 per month.

The worst method for you is the previous balance method in which you get no credit for payments made during the billing period. Instead, you are charged interest on your balance at the end of the previous month. So, using the same example, your interest cost for the month would be 1.5 percent of $500 or $7.50 — a full $6 more than the adjusted balance method.

The average daily balance method falls somewhere in between the two. In this case, the bank adds your balance for each day in the billing period and then divides it by the number of days in the billing period. If you made that $400 payment on the 15th day of a 30-day cycle, your total balances for the month are $9,000 (15 days at $500 plus 15 days at $100). Dividing the $9,000 by 30 days, your average daily balance is $300. As a result, your interest cost for the month is 1.5 percent of $300 or $4.50.

As you can see, the difference in interest costs can add up quickly if you carry a substantial balance on your card. To find out how the interest on your card is determined, look at the section of your monthly statement where interest costs are calculated. It will state the method by which those costs are calculated. If you are looking at obtaining a new card, ask to see the installment agreement or call the bank's customer service department.

Another factor that can greatly affect your interest costs is the grace period allowed. The grace period is the time between when an item is posted to your account and when interest is charged against it. Like interest rates and calculations, grace periods can vary greatly from bank to bank.

Some banks will start charging interest as soon as the item is posted to your account. If it gets posted on the first day, you'll be charged for a full month of interest before you even get a chance to pay for it. Look for a bank card that gives you a 25-day grace period. That way, you can pay your account in full each month without being charged for interest.

At one time, only travel and entertainment cards charged an annual fee, but no more. Generally, bank credit cards now charge from $15 to $50 and more for the use of their cards. So, you need to shop around. A number of banks offer free cards that really are free. But beware — some banks promise "no annual fee" but then charge a transaction fee for each purchase or a monthly fee for any month in which the card is used. If you use your card frequently, the "no annual fee" charges can amount to more than you pay for an annual fee elsewhere.

Unless you can find a card that combines a low or no annual fee, a low interest rate and a long grace period, you must be willing to compromise a bit. If you consistently carry a balance on your card, you will primarily be concerned with a low interest rate. But also look for one with a moderate annual fee and a grace period.

If, however, you tend to pay your balance each month, look for a card with a longer grace period and lower annual fee. The interest rate will be secondary. After all, you generally won't incur interest charges. A card kept primarily for emergencies or for check-cashing identification should have a low annual fee. In fact, if you don't charge that frequently, you may want to get a card that charges a transaction fee instead.

To find the banks that charge the lowest interest rates, send $1.50 in check or money order for the "Low Interest Rate List" to Bank Card Holders of America, 333 Pennsylvania Avenue, SE, Washington DC 20003. A "No Annual Fee List" is also available for $1.50.

CPAs advise you to identify your needs before you choose a credit card and then select one that best fits those needs. And before ordering a card, be sure to read the credit agreement carefully.

Schraders closes doors

store's success to its effort to cater to the tastes of the community. Most of the furniture that filled the 20,000 square foot facility was in country and traditional lines.

Schrader also pointed out that about 75 percent of the store's business was special order items.

At the time, Schrader noted that he did not intend for his son or daughter to go directly into the business as he had done after college.

Now, he also is exploring what he will do next.

For the upcoming weeks, however, he will be continuing to serve customers. Another crowd is expected at the store Thursday when a large shipment of furniture ordered earlier at the furniture markets arrives. This, he said, immediately will be marked with sale prices.

The hundreds of shoppers amazed Schrader as they stood outside in bitter cold weather as long as an hour-and-a-half before the store opened for the start of the sale a week ago Monday.

With the fire marshal warning that crowd limits must be observed, customers had to wait their turn to enter. Schrader then reduced the hours to 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Wednesday and Sunday when the store is closed.

the fairy godmother's secret is out!

Don't let that "magic wand" fool you! She's tried to make us believe that with a wave of that wand, she can turn pumpkins into carriages, mice into white horses and rags into white gowns. But we know she's just like the rest of us! When we want to turn a baby crib into cash... an older car into a new one... or change from sales clerk to doctor's receptionist... the only magic wand we hold in our hand is a telephone receiver and the only thing we wave is our index finger as we dial the Classified Department of our newspaper! It's like magic the way good things come true for us with the help of Want Ads. And besides, we have a strong feeling that's the way the fairy godmother makes all her magic, too!

Ice presents a sculpting challenge to Randy Finch

Cool hands Artists shape icy beauty

Story by Pat Bray

Brushes, canvas, paint, stone and chisels make up the traditional tools of the artist.

Chain saws, ice, drills and torches are the implements often assigned to lumberjacks.

In the hands of some highly-skilled individuals, the latter grouping of instruments can form shapes that dazzle the eye and confound the mind.

A block of solid ice, measuring 60 inches high, 24 inches wide and 12 inches thick, and weighing 440 pounds, can be transformed in a matter of hours into a phoenix rising from its own ashes or a flock of geese rising from a cattail-ringed pond.

"I got pretty hyped. I carved bars of soap... nothing was safe in the house after awhile," said Randy Finch, referring to his introduction to ice carving while working in Alabama a few years ago.

Now a culinary arts student at Oakland Community College and an apprentice chef at the Sheraton Oaks Hotel in Novi, Finch, 22, has continued sculpting art from the frozen blocks of water.

All of his practice on bars of Ivory certainly paid off when his carving of an eagle catching a fish earned him second place in the amateur division of The Ice Sculpture Spectacular in Plymouth last year.

"You only get three hours to do the carvings, so you go like crazy," said Finch, who lives in Howell.

However, since the sculptors are working with a medium that can break, their haste has to be tempered by that knowledge.

"Having 400 pounds of ice shatter isn't any fun," said Martin Folk.

Folk, 21, is also a culinary arts student at OCC and a chef's apprentice at Travis Pointe Country Club in Ann Arbor. He got started in ice sculpture when a class was offered at his high school.

His sculpture of a bird with a "huge" wing span received fourth-place honors at the annual Plymouth Ice show last year.

Both men agree the most important step in the sculpting process is selecting a block of ice that is as free as possible of "clouding".

Clouding is caused by air bubbles that

Delegation finds women in Africa hold similar goals

By JEAN DAY

"We have had people come to save our souls and others to trade with us, but this is the first time people came only in friendship," a South African woman told Betty Lennox and the 13 other members of a delegation from the United States to South Africa in February, 1987.

The trip was the third as a member of the Delegation for Friendship Among Women that the Northville Township resident has taken.

"In my mind, we have common goals and concerns — our sameness far exceeds our differences," Lennox told members of Northville Women's Club last Friday as she showed slides of the visit which included South Africa, Kenya, Abu Dhabi, Jordan and Egypt.

Lennox, a former Northville Township supervisor who retired last year as City of Northville finance director, explained that she has been a member of the Delegation for Friendship Among Women since 1974. It is a non-profit organization established to promote cultural exchange and understanding among women leaders in the world.

On the visit to South Africa delegates represented nine states and nine professions. They traveled 5,000 miles, arriving in Cape Town via Germany. Lennox said this circuitous route was necessary as some foreign airports do not welcome planes en route to South Africa.

In Cape Town the delegates visited churches, hospitals and government offices. Lennox showed slides of the seaport town with Table Mountain in the background and lots of lush green vegetation.

Talking with members of the women's bureau there, she said, showed there are many issues of concern with apartheid the most important.

"It's not going to be solved overnight," she said, "but all growth is doomed unless non-whites are given a stake in government."

She noted that many skilled whites are leaving the country. One of their hosts related that two of her children were departing, for Australia and Canada. The woman said she was sad to think she would not be seeing her grandchildren often but that she felt the moves were right for her children's futures.

There are differences of opinion regarding the sanctions of American companies in South Africa, Lennox said, explaining that it has been the blacks who have been losing employment as a result. American companies paid well and often offered community services no longer given by South Africans taking over, she added.

While school is compulsory for whites, it is not for blacks, the speaker noted, adding that only an estimated 25 percent of black children attend school. Textbooks are free to whites, but blacks must pay for them, the delegates learned.

While white women were franchised to vote in South African elections in 1930, no blacks can vote.

From Cape Town the delegates visited Crossroads, an area inland in the countryside where many blacks who come from tribal areas at the rate of 200 a day settle. There are several grades of housing, ranging from shacks upward, Lennox said, pointing out the unsanitary conditions existing.

Here and in another area being developed 20 miles from Cape Town, the government is trying to help, Lennox said.

She showed slides of new housing available for rent at $10 a month or for purchase with 3 percent loans.

"Some things the government is learning by trial and error there," she observed, relating that trees planted by the government in the area had been left unwatered or torn down.

Now, she said, the trees are given to blacks who ask, in the expectation that they will plant and care for them.

In Kenya, Lennox said, women are the backbone of the country, caring for their families and for their livestock, crops and even building buildings.

Lennox related that the delegation visited informally at an unscheduled stop with a village group, noting that the head of the village and the teacher spoke good English.

"I think Africa is realizing that education is the salvation for the future," she said.

"I believe we did make friends," she said, relating that her sister, who is the executive secretary of the delegation for friendship, was later invited back to Cape Town to help establish a similar organization for African women. The first group of the new organization visited here last year.

Area, state offer many winter festivals

□ 11:30 a.m., Score-O Contest, an event requiring participants to hit a hockey puck into a net at specific distances from the goal. The contest will be divided into age groups and at noon, a Super Score-O begins, when participants will have the chance to win two tickets to the Feb. 20 Red Wings game.

□ 12:30 p.m., Broomball — adult coed division — limited to two teams and the Little Ms. Icicle Contest.

□ 1 p.m., Broomball — adult coed — limited to two teams, Ms. Chilly Willy and Old Man Winter contests, youth coloring contest judging.

Activities held throughout the day during Novi's Chilly Willy Festival include ice skating, a bonfire, sledding, cartoons, refreshments and cross country skiing. Fifteen pairs of cross country skis will be available hourly for $2 a pair.

Registration is required for the chili cook-off, sno-ball, snow sculpture and broomball events. Forms are available at the Novi Parks and Recreation department. Festival sponsors include Financial Planning and Investments Inc., Reid Lighting, Foote Gravelly Tractor, The Farm, American Speedy Printing of Novi, Mike O'Neill and Northwest Propane.

In Northville, winter enthusiasts will have the chance to test their skills in several activities during the first annual Winterfest on Jan. 30.

Northville Recreation Department Supervisor Traci Johnson said she hopes the festival will become an annual event and attract visitors to the area.

Winterfest begins at 9:30 a.m. with a coed softball tournament at Fish Hatchery and Maybury parks. Cost for the single-elimination tournament is $30 per team and residency is not required. Participants are asked to register at Northville Community Center, 303 W. Main.

At 10 a.m., golfers will brave cold temperatures during the Chili Open Golf Tournament at Brooklane Golf Club. There is a $20 registration fee for the six-hole tournament, which includes a ticket to the chili cook-off. Registration forms for teams and individuals are available at Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, the recreation department and Northville City and Township halls. The golf tournament is sponsored by Northville Kiwanis Club.

Artistic teens have the opportunity to display their talent during a snow sculpture contest at 11 a.m. Pre-registration is required by calling the recreation department.

A chili cook-off to determine who makes the best chili in Northville will take place from 2-5 p.m. at Northville Community Center. The public is invited to taste samples of the chili and place votes for the best recipe. Johnson said 15 to 20 Northville restaurants are expected to take part in the contest. Tickets for the chili cook-off are $4 in advance and $5 at the door.

Northville Community Chamber of Commerce plans to provide free hot chocolate throughout the day in the downtown district.

On Jan. 29, as a preview to Winterfest, a Snowflake Teen Dance will be held at the community center. Johnson said the dance is limited to Meads Mill students. Tickets go on sale one week before the event for $2 and may be purchased at the door for $3. Pizza and pop also will be provided for a small charge during the dance.

On a larger scale, over 40 ski areas in the state are participating in the first "Let's Go Skiing Michigan" campaign by offering free ski lessons, lift or trail passes and in some cases, free use of rental equipment for a day.

Al Sandner, senior communications manager at the Michigan Travel Bureau in Lansing, said so far 5,000 people have signed up to participate in the event, which takes place Friday.

"Last year there were 17,000 participants throughout the nation who took part in the learn-to-ski program so we have almost one-third of that total so far in Michigan this year," Sandner said.

Other snow festivals throughout the state include Tip-Up-Town USA: In Houghton, on Jan. 16-17 and 23-24. Originating as a winter fish contest, it takes its name from the ice fishing gadget that "tips-up" when a fish nips at the line. Since then, Tip-Up-Town USA has become one of the biggest carnivals on ice and features pony rides, a longest beard competition, pie and snow sculpting contests, food concessions and ice fishing.

On Jan. 16-24, those shopping for cars, boats and other recreational vehicles may find what they're looking for at the Detroit Auto Show at Cobo Hall, in downtown Detroit. Shortly following, from Jan. 20 to 24, the annual boat, sport and RV show takes place at the Silverdome in Pontiac.

Tradition of ice carving continues to delight viewers

are trapped in the blocks during freezing. The bubbles ruin the transparency of the block and lessen its strength.

Once a block is selected the next step is to decide on a sculpture and sketch its design on pieces of paper.

"I get some ideas by walking through stores, looking at sculptures and porcelain figurines. I've seen just about everything done in ice," said Folk, who admits to a fondness for portraying birds.

"You then have to transfer the design from a flat piece of paper onto a square block," added the Pinckney resident.

After the design has been etched on the block of ice, both men use a chain saw to rough in its shape and cut away any slabs of ice they may need to work on separately before reattaching it to the sculpture.

"Ice is very hard. You'll ruin a chain saw blade a lot faster on it than you would on wood," Finch said.

Having the basic design revealed in the ice, the sculptors then use Japanese carving chisels of high-tempered steel in adding details and textures such as feathers, fur and scales.

For other details, such as eye holes, Finch said he has used propane torches because they burn smooth holes in the cold designs. He also uses hot wires that etch deep lines into the sculpture.

Folk said the Japanese chisels, which come in three different types, including a four-inch, V-shaped and half-circle, are the best tools for putting fine details on wings.

"I enjoy the final product that works out that works out the way you pictured it," said Folk.

"It's kind of sad to see them melt," added Finch. Some of his works include a large Ford Mustang car, a champagne rack and a seven-piece sculpture of some stacked tables for a benefit at the hotel featuring comedian Bob Hope.

Although in most competitions contestants are allowed to use only one block, ice carvings employing as many as 60 blocks are star attractions at many winter carnivals.

In the Plymouth exhibit, area students as well as some professional ice carvers have in past years created such figures as a 15-foot-tall teddy bear and a 30-foot rocking horse.

Although the tools and the design process are the same for the larger sculptures, Folk said there is a safety factor that has to be considered in their construction.

"There is a lot more to those. You have to know how to stack the ice so the weight doesn't collapse it."

"You also have to know how it is going to melt, where some of the pieces will break and fall. You really have to take safety in hand," according to Folk.

Local church to sponsor class in skills for parenting

Classes in Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (STEP) will be offered on Sunday evenings for nine weeks beginning Jan. 24 at the Northville United Methodist Church from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The $15 cost includes the Parent

Handbook, materials and child care during classes.

The STEP approach to parenting is a group discussion program that gives parents effective direction in guiding children's behavior. In an atmosphere of mutual support, parents learn how to encourage their children, how to get them to assume responsibility, how to discipline using natural and logical consequences, and how to run a family meeting.

Interested parents may enroll by calling 349-1144. The church is located at the intersection of Eight Mile, Taft and Randolph in Northville. The church's director of Christian education, Jane Berquist, will lead the discussions.

Mill Race Questers have busy schedule

"Antique Trivia" was the topic for the Jan. 7 meeting of the Mill Race Chapter of Questers antiques study club.

A slide presentation of the Questers national headquarters on Quince Street in Philadelphia is planned for the chapter's Feb. 4 meeting.

In November the chapter heard a presentation on hat pins while antique Christmas ornaments were the topic in December.

The chapter, which meets on the first Thursday evening of each month, is losing its vice president, Maxine Rehyer, who is moving to Virginia with her family.

Noting that it has openings available, Jean Stevens invites anyone interested in the study and preservation of antiques to call her at 348-8746 about membership in the chapter.

Antiques will include china, crystal, furniture, linens, tools, jewelry and more.

Hours for the show are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

There will be a donation of $2 for adults and $1.50 for senior citizens and students. All proceeds will benefit the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

The antique mart, along with the league's fall antique show, are the largest fund raising projects of the league each year.

The show also will feature a "Fireside Deli" catered by Connie's of Old Village. Sandwiches, chips, coleslaw, brownies, donuts, coffee, soft drinks and hot cider will be sold.

Theater flourishes in Ann Arbor

When the word "theater" comes into the conversation, images of Broadway in New York leap instantly to mind. But a great deal of the best and most accessible theater work is done on the regional and local levels.

In the Detroit area many people associate theater with an annual trip to the Fisher to see traveling versions of Broadway hits. A host of other live theater opportunities abound within easy access of the Novi/Northville area.

Although downtown Detroit has several theater groups and the Marquis Theater in downtown Northville has live stage presentations, the Ann Arbor area offers diverse theater productions and locations. Ann Arbor, a half-hour's ride from both Novi and Northville, is the location for many student and regional theaters and performing groups. Many of the groups hold periodic try-outs for those wishing to participate actively in local theater. The following is a partial list of Ann Arbor area theater groups.

Ann Arbor Black Theater, 769-0067. A community theater group that specializes in the performance of works by black playwrights and poets. Performances take place in area churches and schools.

Ann Arbor Civic Theater, 338 S. Main, 663-7222. One of the best known of the Ann Arbor community and regional theater groups, the Civic Theater company started over 60 years ago. The company is a non-profit group which showcases many diverse productions, usually including two musicals during the year. Performances are in the Main Street Theater, Mendelssohn Theater, Power Center and the Michigan Theater. Open auditions are held.

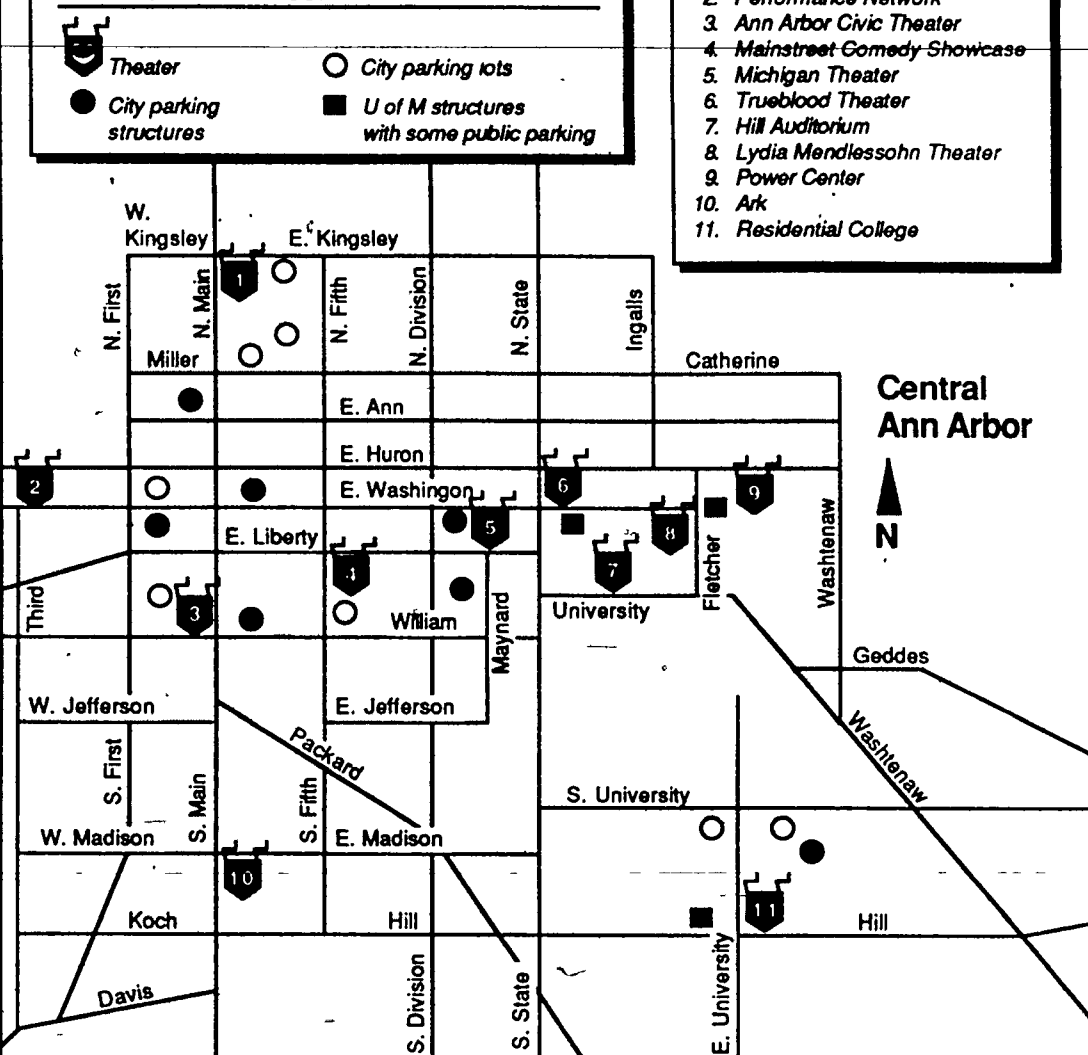

Brecht Company, 701 E. University, 995-0632. The company concentrates on presenting the works of playwright Bertolt Brecht and writers that have been influenced by Brecht's work. Productions are done quarterly. Performances are held in the Residential College Auditorium in East Quad.

The Comic Opera Guild, P.O. Box 1922, Ann Arbor, 48106, 973-3264. This group lives up to its name, by calling on the entire selection of classical and modern operas and operettas for inspiration. Performances are twice a year and are held in the Michigan Theater. Auditions are open.

Common Ground Theater Ensemble, P.O., Box 7126, Ann Arbor, 48107, 663-6433. A theater group concerned with issues affecting the fabric of society, the Common Ground ensemble chooses works by women, minorities and handicapped artists. Performances are held throughout the Ann Arbor area.

Eastern Michigan University Drama Series, 103 Quirk, EMU, Ypsilanti, 487-1153. This series comes from drama students at EMU who give five performances per year. The students perform both serious dramatic pieces, musicals and comedies.

Theaters and Parking in Central Ann Arbor

edies. Performances are at the Quirk-Sponberg Theater. Auditions are for EMU students only.

Hill Street Players, Hill Foundation, 1429 Hill, 663-3336. With two productions per year, this group concentrates primarily on works with political and religious themes. Performances are at locations throughout Ann Arbor. Auditions are open.

Peninsula Productions, 505 E. Huron, Suite 301, 769-0636. This theater group tries to present productions on a slightly larger scale. The group puts on four productions each year and its goal is to promote Ann Arbor talent. Performances are at the Michigan Theater.

Performance Network, 408 W. Washington, 663-0681. This is more than just a theater group. The Network facility serves as a production company for many other theater groups in the area. The facility rents production and technical equipment to interested groups. The company itself presents experimental drama. Auditions are open.

Comedy Company. This is a U-M company that performs student works twice a year. Auditions are open and the group places on emphasis on the involvement of non-theater majors. Performances are at the Mendelssohn Theater.

MUSKET. The MUSKET group is a U-M tradition and it evolved from the old Michigan Opera society. The group performs two Broadway musicals each year. Auditions are for U-M students only. Performances are at the Power Center.

U-M Gilbert & Sullivan Society, 911 N. University, 761-7855. This company performs the works of Gilbert and Sullivan exclusively. Two shows are performed each year. Performances are at the Mendelssohn Theater.

Project Theater. This is a theater company made up of acting professionals. The group performs a diverse collection of works both new and old. Performances are at the Mendelssohn and Trueblood theaters and the Power Center.

University Players. This company is comprised of the theater majors at U-M and allows them a place to show their stuff, under the direction of faculty members. Performances are four times a year and offer a diversity of themes. Shows are at the Mendelssohn and Trueblood theaters and the Power Center.

Wild Swan Theater, 1510 Shadford. A group of dedicated and imaginative adult performers who concentrate on high quality, diverse theater for children. The group centers on work accessible to hearing-impaired and low-income children. Performances are at the Trueblood Theater, the Kerrytown Concert House, and the Ark.

Young People's Theater, 400 W. Washington, 995-3888. Another high quality theater group concerned with presentations to children and adults. The YPT holds drama classes each semester for students K-12. In addition the group presents up to five productions each year which involve children, adolescents and adults. Performances are at 409 S. Division, Power Center and the Trueblood Theater.

The Northville Record

Wrestlers fall to Glenn, place 4th at invite

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Northville wrestlers are applying themselves technically as well as any Mustang team in the last 15 years, according to coach Jack Townsley. But the effort wasn't enough for a win last week as Westland John Glenn nipped the grapplers, 39-30, on Jan. 7 in WLAA action.

"It was close," Townsley said. "We could have won it but we still have some holes in our line-up. I thought we wrestled just about as well as we can."

Northville pulled ahead 15-12 at the midway point of the meet but lost it down the stretch as the Rockets won four of the final five bouts — all by pins. The loss leaves the Mustangs with a 2-2 overall record, 1-2 in the WLAA.

"Technically, we're as solid as any Northville team in the last 15 years, but that doesn't mean we can beat everybody," Townsley explained. "Sometimes we come across kids that are just better wrestlers than we are."

Northville started off slow by losing the first two bouts. Freshman Kevin Khashan made a couple of rookie mistakes at 98 and lost a very close 7-6 decision to Scott Leffer. Chad Bosscher was pinned by Mike Daniels at 105.

But the Mustangs came back with five wins in the next six tries, and it all started with Mike Mathes' 4-2 decision over Jim Pace at 112. Brad Maliszewski (119) followed it up by beating Nate Kemppainen 7-2. Andy Frey (126) pinned Dave Sharer in 30 seconds. John Frisbie (138) pinned Mike McKinney and Garnett Potter downed Cory Buckelew.

At 155, Bob Townsend was ahead the entire match against Craig Kuban, but made a late mistake and was pinned in the final 30 seconds. It was Townsend's first varsity match and it set up the Glenn comeback.

Donovan Campbell (167) was then pinned by Chuck Lauber, Mike Mazza (185) fell victim to Derek Tharp, and Derek Forbing (Hwt) was no match for Joe Williams. The only Northville victory in the final five bouts was by Mike Hale at 198. He pinned previously undefeated Abe Zakhem in the first period.

Things brightened up considerably at the Romulus Invitational on Jan. 9 as the Mustangs placed six wrestlers and came home with two individual championships. As a team, Northville placed fourth in the eight-team event with 99 points, nearly 100 behind first-place Romulus.

by capturing the title at 198 — he had two pins in three tries en route to the crown. In the finals, Hale pinned Brae Blanc's Dave Kutsick in 5:29.

"It was an extremely exciting match," Townsley said. "Mike wore him down, but it wasn't easy at all."

The other Mustang champ was Campbell at 167. He rebounded from his loss at Glenn and pinned all three of his tourney opponents, including Jeff Hymolka of Ida in the finals (5:30).

Khashan and Maliszewski each recorded third-place honors with victories in the consolation finals. Khashan pinned Romulus's Jim Machinski in two minutes at 98 and Maliszewski decided Shon LaBell of Monroe, 5-1, at 119. Frisbie (138) and Potter (145) also advanced to the consolation finals following early losses, but both fell and had to settle for a pair of fourths.

Northville will host Plymouth Canton tonight (Jan. 14) in a WLAA Western Division clash.

"It will be a real tough one," Townsley said. "This is one of Canton's best teams."

CORRECTION: In Northville's 57-18 wrestling victory over Farmington Harrison on Dec. 16, 112-pounder Mike Mathes pinned his opponent.

Spartans hold on, top tankers 44-37

The Northville tankers took perennial power Livonia Stevenson down to the final race before falling, 44-37, at home on Jan. 7, and Mustang Coach Mark Heiden was pleased with what he saw.

"I kept hearing how good Stevenson usually is and they were very good," the first-year coach said. "It was a very good meet and I thought all our guys swam very well. I just wanted to see if we could keep it close so obviously I was pleased with the results. It went down to the final race, and we could have won it, but their relay was a powerhouse."

After the first three events, the Spartans opened up a convincing 19-5 lead, but Northville came back strong. The Mustangs went 1-3, 1-2, 1-2 in the next three events to tie the score at 22-22 and set up the exciting finish. Unfortunately for the home team, Stevenson was able to stack its line-up in the 400-yard freestyle relay and ended up winning the event by nearly 12 seconds. It proved to be the difference.

Craig Smith was the only two-time winner for Northville. He notched victories in the 50 freestyle (24.1) and the 100 freestyle (52.13 — a season best time). The rest of the Mustang winners included Rob Devyak in diving (197.25 points), Andy Viskantis in the 100 butterfly (59.0) and Eric Newton in the 500 freestyle (5:05.94).

The Mustangs finished second five times, including the relay races. John Warren was second in the 100 breast stroke (1:11.28), Brad Cook was second in the 100 butterfly (1:05.77) and Larry Osiecki was the runner-up in diving (184.45). The 200 medley relay team of Andy Wayne, Viskantis, Warren and Jeff Higgins was second (1:50.05) as was the 400 freestyle relay combo featuring Higgins, Viskantis, Smith and Newton (3:35.29).

In the 200 freestyle, Eric Newton suffered his first individual loss as a prep swimmer — the freshman placed third in 1:54.76. Other thirds by Northville came from Brad Cook in the 200 IM (2:21.17), Higgins in the 50 freestyle (24.68) and Wayne in the 100 backstroke (1:04.2).

"It was good for our kids to swim and be pushed by the members of a good team," Heiden pointed out. "For a kid like Eric Newton, it was good for him to see someone who can swim faster than he can."

"This meet was definitely a positive experience for our team. We had several season-best efforts and everybody was right where they were prior to the holiday break."

The Mustangs (1-1 overall) will face their first WLAA Western Division opponent tonight (Jan. 14) as they travel to Livonia Churchill.

Gymnasts begin season with impressive WLAA win

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

For a season opener, things went quite well for the Northville gymnasts on Jan. 6. The squad beat visiting Farmington 113.95-111.45 for a Western Lakes league victory — and individually, Northville gymnasts reached regional qualifying scores six times.

Mustang Coach Michelle Charniga was very pleased with the outing, but warns that her team still has a long way to go before she is totally satisfied.

"Our team score was only 1.05 points away from 115, which is a qualifying score for the regionals," Charniga said. "And this being our first meet — I was impressed. We still have a lot of improving to do, so we're not in bad shape for this early in the season."

According to Charniga, Northville scored very high on the uneven bars but had a dreadful evening on the balance beam. The final two events — floor exercise and vault — went about as planned.

"Overall, I was pleased with the way the girls performed," she said. "We managed to stay ahead of (Farmington) by about two points in each event and the difference was our depth. Farmington had two girls who scored high for them but that was it. Our depth pulled us through — that fourth place still counts."

In vault, junior standout Wendy Beach took team honors with a score of 8.0, which was also good for second-place overall. She was followed by Yvonne Beebe's 7.95 (third place), Lee LaChance's 7.25 (sixth), Robyn Chatman's 6.4, Becky Carney's 5.8 and Megan Graham's 5.45. Beach and Beebe achieved a regional prerequisite with their efforts and now need only three more similar scores to individually qualify in the event.

"I thought we did pretty well in vault," Charniga said. "They all realized the errors they made and they will continue to work on them."

On the uneven bars, the Mustangs grabbed three of the top four places. Beach was second overall with a 7.7, LaChance and Beebe tied for third with identical 7.6 scores. The rest of the Northville participants included Kathy Abraham (5.55), Graham (5.5) and Carney (4.7). Beach, LaChance and Beebe all attained regional qualifying scores.

"Our top three scorers were all nervous heading in but they did great and they all had falls in their routines," Charniga said. "They deduct .5 for a fall so if it wasn't for that, they would have been in the eights."

The scores dropped dramatically in beam, but Northville still managed to take four of the top six places. LaChance paced the team with a 6.9 — good for second place overall — Graham notched a third (6.85), Beach was fourth (6.7) and Beebe tied for fifth (6.65).

"We had a real tough night on the beam — a lot of falls," Charniga admitted. "We just need more practice."

In the floor exercise, Beach rebounded to take first place overall with a score of 7.95 (another regional qualifying score). She was followed by LaChance in second place (7.75), and Chatman in seventh place (6.85). Beebe (6.2), Graham (6.25) and Alicia Estigoy (6.15) rounded out the scoring for the Mustangs. In the all-around competition, Beach topped LaChance 30.35-29.5 for team honors.

"After their routines, a lot of the girls were real tired, so we still need to build up their stamina," Charniga pointed out. "Other than that, I can't complain about the scores."

The victory was a very important one, considering the next three opponents on the Northville schedule. The squad took on North Farmington on Jan. 11 (after The Record deadline) and now must tackle Westland John Glenn today (Jan. 14) and Plymouth Canton on Jan. 18. All three schools have solid gymnastics programs and are very difficult to beat.

"I don't think we have much of a chance to beat any of the next three so it was important to get this win to start the season," Charniga said. "It gave the girls some confidence and that's important because the next three will be real tough."

Local ski areas sport many improvements

Southeast Michigan downhill ski area operators are working hard to maintain the region's position as the No. 1 metropolitan ski area in the nation.

The fact that Rand-McNally rated southeast Michigan tops in downhill skiing came as no surprise to those whose job it is to promote the region's many activities. Sid Baker, president of the Travel and Tourist Association of Southeast Michigan, points out that the Southeast Michigan climate is far more temperate than those of other major ski areas in the nation, and the region's facilities are based close to a large population.

Southeast Michigan ski areas draw from the Detroit area, Port Huron-Sarnia, Flint, Lansing, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Monroe, Adrian, Toledo and northern Ohio, northern Indiana and southern Ontario. Add to this the state-of-the-art snow-making and snow-grooming equipment and southeast Michigan offers a long, excellent, easily affordable season.

The biggest news on the southeast Michigan ski scene is the completion of Alpine Valley's new Everest slope, which offers a top slope of 1,100 feet with grades from 35 to 60 percent, an intermediate run of 2,000 feet and an advanced run of nearly 100 percent grade. Everest has a 300-foot vertical drop. To serve the new slope, Alpine Valley has added a Riblet quad lift.

In addition, Alpine Valley has redone the rental building and added 2,000 sets of rental equipment. The facility has added new lighting and snow-making capacity and will be offering midnight skiing on four dates this month.

Mount Brighton has completed a new cafeteria in last year's new building. This facility boasts that it is the top snowmaker in the region and, historically, is the first to open. A midnight skiing program will continue to be available this year.

Mount Holly is concentrating customer convenience in this year's improvements. They boast a newly-paved parking lot, a new observation deck, a new bar/restaurant, a remodeled cafeteria and 500 pairs of new rental equipment. Mount Holly has increased its snow-making by 20 percent.

southeast Michigan ski areas, addresses and phone numbers:

Ski program designed for active seniors

Traverse City Ski Country resorts are making it easier and more affordable for senior citizens to enjoy the sport of skiing. Free lift tickets and cross-country trail passes, free lessons, special packages, a variety of activities and a sweepstakes drawing are all part of a program called "Silver Streaks Weeks" being offered to over-55 adults by Traverse City area resorts.

Under the program, the resorts will provide a different special promotion geared to seniors each of the four weeks in February of this year. All Silver Streak programs run Monday through Friday and will be honored at Crystal Mountain, Sugar Loaf Resort, Shanty Creek-Schuss Mountain, the Grand Traverse Resort and The Homestead.

Silver Streak lodging packages are also available at the Traverse City Holiday Inn and the Hampton Inn of Traverse City.

In the first week, from Feb. 1-5, seniors receive free lift tickets and cross-country trail passes. From Feb. 8-12, group lessons are free, and from Feb. 15-19, grandchildren sleep and ski free when staying with grandparents. From Feb. 22-26, all resorts will host family reunion celebrations — complete with contests, races and other special events.

All families with members of three generations staying or skiing at any of the Traverse City Ski Country resorts are eligible to win one of seven grand prize winter family vacations.

"Not all Michigan seniors flee the state when winter comes," said Steve Kermode-Petriz, Traverse City Area Ski Council president. "Yet many of those who stay don't enjoy the recreational and social opportunities Michigan has to offer. The Silver Streak weeks are designed to show that skiing can be a fun sport for people of all ages."

Kermode-Petriz said the Silver Streak program covers both downhill and cross-country skiing.

SKI BRIEFS

DOWNHILL SKIING: Madonna College will offer downhill skiing every Friday from Jan. 15 through Feb. 26, 1-4 p.m. Instruction will be provided at Mount Brighton for beginning, intermediate and advanced skiers in techniques, etiquette and analysis of snow conditions.

First classes meet in the Activities Center on the Madonna College campus at I-96 and Levan Roads in Livonia. Tow ticket and equipment discounts are available.

For more information, call 591-5052.

SKI IN MICHIGAN: Winter activities account for 18 percent of Michigan's $14 million travel industry, and the number of daily lift tickets sold at major ski areas in the state has averaged about 1.6 million annually in recent years.

"Winter in Michigan is an ideal time for sports enthusiasts to enjoy our state's many natural beauties," Gov. James J. Blanchard said. "Michigan has some of the best slopes and trails available in the Midwest."

"Michigan's ski industry also is a major contributor to our economy. As a centerpiece of winter tourism activity, it has the potential to bring even greater revenue and business development to our state."

FREE TRAVEL DIRECTORY: A 56-page booklet highlighting more than 100 attractions in southeast Michigan is available free from the Travel and Tourist Association of Southeast Michigan. The booklet also contains information on lodging and dining in the 11-county region.

The directory may be obtained at the Travel and Tourist Association office at 64 Park St. in Troy between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, or by sending a self-addressed, stamped with 39 cents postage, business-size envelope to: Travel Directory, P.O. Box 1590, Troy, MI 48069.

Proper ski attire: dress in layers

Perhaps the most frequently asked question by beginning skiers is, "What should I wear?" While a skier's attire will vary somewhat based on weather conditions, a few basic guidelines may help the beginner.

Novice skiers should dress more for warmth and comfort than for fashion. They can accomplish both by dressing in layers. Layered clothing tends to trap air between garments, providing insulation from the cold. And should the weather turn warmer, a layer can always be removed.

Once the layering effect has been achieved, the ability to move freely is important. If clothing is too tight, it can cut off or reduce circulation. That's how skiers become chilled.

An example of layering would be long underwear, a turtleneck sweater and a jacket or parka — and for the lower extremities, ski bib pants or insulated blue jeans to protect against wet snow.

Durable, insulated ski gloves or mittens are a must for the beginner. Rope tows take their toll on lighter weight, everyday-wear gloves and mittens. Most ski instructors recommend that ski gloves or mittens have extra reinforcements across the palms for gripping the tow ropes.

Correct socks are very important. Wear one pair of light or medium weight wool socks that extend well above the ankle. The higher the better. Don't wear two pair of socks as they will restrict circulation and allow slippage inside the ski boot.

And last, but not least, wear a head cover. While it may feel great to experience the rushing wind, the head allows more than 50 percent of the body's heat to escape if not properly protected.

Super-skier offers some important tips

A ski trip can be a great idea — and the next one you take may be mountains more fun if you follow these tips from super skier Suzy Chaffee:

□ The first day out, ski only half a day. Break in your ski muscles gently. It's not stretching a point to warm up before your first run. Do some stretching exercises from your head down. Don't ski so much that you're totally exhausted. Take every third day off.

□ Here's a warming thought:

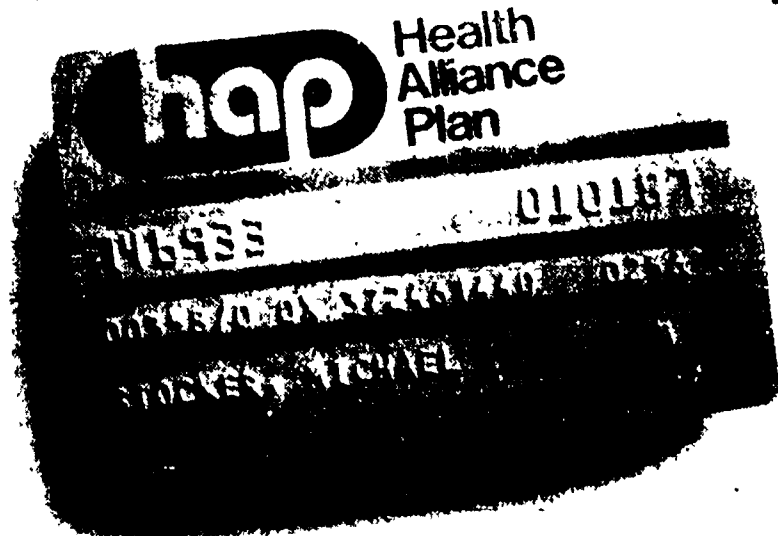

Loosen your buckles when you go up the lift to get warmer feet and better circulation. Tighten them again at the top. Be sure your bindings are well adjusted. Don't think of skiing with anybody else's bindings.

□ It's a bright idea to protect your eyes from damaging glare with sunglasses that screen out harmful rays yet allow enough light to spot a tricky mogul.

□ Save your skin with sun blocks or ski masks and protect your body with warm layers and bright colors.

Central extends cager's skid to five

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Undefeated Walled Lake Central's basketball team ran around, over and through the Northville defense on Jan. 8 and that was just in the first quarter.

The Vikings took control early in the Western Lakes league contest pulled ahead by 13 after one period and things only got worse after that. The outmanned Mustangs were subsequently outscored in every quarter en route to a lopsided 75-40 defeat.

The loss was Northville's fifth in five games this season and extends the team's losing streak to 10 going all the way back to the tail end of the 1987 season.

Central's potent offense and stingy defense caused the Mustangs problems from the opening tip-off. After just eight minutes, the Vikings were ahead to stay, 19-6.

"Basically, we were out of it at the end of the first quarter," Northville Coach Omar Harrison admitted.

The deficit grew to 36-17 at intermission and 56-24 after three quarters. The Mustangs did score 16 points in the fourth, but they weren't nearly enough to even narrow the gap - Central won by 35 points.

"Central is a very good ballclub," Harrison said. "We just couldn't crack their defense and we have trouble scoring points anyway. It was a struggle all the way."

"Our team is going to have to win games with defense and you don't do that by giving up 75."

Junior center Chris House continues to be the only real scoring threat on the floor for Harrison House paced Northville with 14 points, including 8-of-9 from the free-throw line, but the next highest scorer was Eric Halverson with seven.

"House is our most consistent player and if we don't start to get a little more balanced scoring, defenses will start to sag in on him and deny him the ball," Harrison pointed out.

A day after the defeat, Harrison put the basketballs away and called a team meeting. The squad talked about its problems for 45 minutes and according to Harrison, felt better after it was over. Harrison reminded the team that they had yet to take on a WLLA Western Division opponent, and that the team's record against Lakes Division teams (like Walled Lake Central), doesn't really count.

"We discussed what we need to work on and what we need to change," Harrison said. "We still have something to point towards and to set as a goal, and that is to finish high enough in the division to play for the league championship at the end of the season. It's not to late."

The Mustangs opened divisional play on Jan. 12 (after The Record deadline) against Livonia Churchill and will play host to Plymouth Canton tomorrow night (Jan. 15).

"I hope we can turn this thing around," Harrison said. "It all depends on how much pride the kids have in themselves. I know they want to do it and they'll put out the effort, but it won't be easy."

Spikers are competitive at invitational

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville volleyball Coach Paul Osborn told his team to view the Walled Lake Central Invitational on Jan. 9 as nothing more than a scrimmage, but the Mustangs really didn't comply.

The team was placed in a very difficult pool but still managed to play quite well and ended up giving tough teams like Westland John Glenn and Birmingham Marian all they could handle. Once the Mustangs discovered they could play with these teams, they performed with the kind of intensity you don't normally see at a scrimmage.

Even though Northville didn't advance past pool play in the 12-team tournament, Osborn was pleased that it was very competitive. Northville ended up winning just one of seven games - but all of them were close.

"I thought the whole day was a moral victory for us," Osborn pointed out. "The girls looked at Glenn and Marian and thought they may get blown out. But I told them to do what they've been taught. A lot of this game is mental."

In the first round, the Mustangs took fellow WLLA-foe John Glenn to the limit twice, but still fell 15-12, 15-12. In the next round, Northville improved its passing and played even better against Marian - a traditionally strong private school. Marian ended up taking the first (15-10) and third games (15-11), but the Mustangs managed to pull out the middle game by a score of 16-14.

"In both those matches, the girls did a nice job in our first, second and third rotations," Osborn pointed out. "Once we got down to the fourth, fifth and sixth rotations, we broke down a bit and that is because we haven't worked on it very much in practice."

"We still need to improve our passing but our hitting and setting was good. I thought we passed a little better against Marian."

Because Troy - the fourth team in the pool - failed to show up, Northville was pitted against John Glenn once again. The results were the same as Glenn won 15-11, 15-12, but the games were very competitive.

With seven games under their belts on the day, the Mustangs bowed out of the competition while Glenn and Marian advanced to take on the top two finishers in the other pools. Osborn singled out senior setter Katie Brugman for her outstanding play.

"Our hitting and setting was excellent but our passing caused some problems," Osborn said. "But I was very impressed by the play of Katie Brugman. By the end of this season, Katie will be a heck of a setter - she performed well."

Osborn was also pleased with the effort put forth by Nancy Belding, Debbie Stevens and Chris Czapski.

Northville (1-0 overall) will open WLLA play tonight (Jan. 14) on the road at Walled Lake Central. The team will then take on Western Division opponent Livonia Churchill on Jan. 18.

"Walled Lake Central has a good program and we'll have to play our best to be successful against them," Osborn said. "As for Churchill, it's a division match and it's very important. Churchill lost a few key players to graduation, but they always seem to have good players."

Clog your way to improved health

While most cloggers clog for fun, the dance steps that originated in Appalachia also are "great for people who aren't in shape," Paula Trask-Heskett tells beginning cloggers.

Trask-Heskett began teaching a new series of beginning clogging classes last week at the Northville Community Recreation Center at 303 W. Main. She emphasizes that, while clogging can be strenuous, "if you do it right, you won't get hurt."

As she instructed a new group of about 20 last week in the "brush step, rock step" routine, Trask-Heskett watched closely as the dancers circled the gymnasium, making sure they were clogging properly. "Pull your knee in," she instructed one novice, telling another to "let the toe of your foot drag across the floor."

After the basic steps are mastered, she explained, dancers start speeding up, getting a real workout and showing why clogging is called "the dance of sound."

While beginning cloggers arrived for class in footwear ranging from boots to tennis shoes, experienced cloggers were wearing shoes with heel and toe plates. Trask-Heskett calls clogging the "poor man's tap dance."

The loud, distinctive sound is made by the three-piece toe plates with the large, center plate attached loosely to the shoe.

Dancers from age six to 65 master the basic steps of clogging. The lively dances resemble the Irish and English step dances and, like mountain square dances of Kentucky and Tennessee, often are coordinated with fiddle music.

For many, clogging is a heritage. One veteran clogger reported, "my mother and grandmother clogged in the mountains of North Carolina so I decided to learn five years ago."

Instructor Trask-Heskett stressed last week that beginners must practice every day — "and by next week you'll be fine."

She said she knew there would be some sore muscles the first day.

"Practice while you're washing dishes or going down the hall," she instructed, saying that she knew students would begin to "clog everywhere — you'll catch yourself clogging in the grocery store."

She also instructed new cloggers to say the steps aloud as she was doing.

"Make sure your feet and mind are talking to each other — say what you're trying to do."

The calls are specific and clear: "strike/step in place and bend; brush back, out and back. Tap, tap, bend. Tap, tap, step."

Beginning classes are being taught in Northville in eight-week series. Eight weeks of intermediate instruction also are available. The classes are taught Monday nights and are $25 for the series of eight. Experienced cloggers may graduate to the Main Street Cloggers Club which dances at the Northville Recreation Center Thursday nights. Linda Summers, 261-7958, is in charge of reservations.

Fitness Tips

Diet is first defense against high cholesterol

By DR. JUDITH BENN

If your blood cholesterol level is greater than 200, you have a greater risk for developing coronary artery disease than if it is below 200.

The first and most important defense against high cholesterol is diet. A low-fat, low-cholesterol diet will lower blood cholesterol by 10-15 percent in most people. Even if you are taking a cholesterol-lowering drug, diet is still a priority.

Both the amount and type of fat you eat play key roles in your cholesterol levels. Most Americans have a diet too generous in fat, where 40 percent of calories consist of fat. For a low-fat diet, the goal is to have 30 percent or less total calories come from fat.

There are three types of fat in the diet that should be monitored:

□ Saturated fats tend to solidify at room temperature and are usually found in animal products (such as meat and whole dairy products) and palm and coconut oils. These oils are inexpensive, widely available, and used in many products such as non-dairy creamers, crackers and cookies.

It is very important to check labels. Many foods labeled "no cholesterol" are high in saturated fats and just as bad for your blood cholesterol. If "vegetable oil" appears on the label, it is probably one of these oils. Only one-third of the fats you eat should be saturated.

□ Poly-unsaturated fats are usually liquid at room temperature and are generally derived from plants. Corn, safflower and sunflower oils are high in poly-unsaturated fats. These fats tend to lower the cholesterol levels. Similarly, mono-saturated fats lower blood cholesterol but not as much as poly-unsaturated fats. Olive and peanut oils are examples of mono-saturated fats.

□ Cholesterol is a fatty substance manufactured by the body and is present in foods of animal origins, such as meat, whole milk and dairy products. Egg yolks and organ meats (such as liver) are very high in cholesterol. Total daily intake of cholesterol should be less than 300 mg.

The objective of a low-fat diet is to reduce the intake of saturated fats and cholesterol by substituting poly-unsaturated or mono-saturated fats.

You can reduce saturated fats and cholesterol by selecting lean cuts of meat and eating more fish and poultry (with skin removed). Buy low-fat dairy products and avoid products made with coconut and palm oils.

Your weight also influences your blood cholesterol levels. If you are overweight, losing weight may reduce your cholesterol level. Because the cholesterol-lowering diet is lower in fat, it is easy to modify into a weight-loss diet as well.

Fish oils can reduce the cholesterol level in blood. Fish oils contain fats called Omega-3 fatty acids which are poly-unsaturated fats found in deep sea saltwater fish. These fats are now available in pill form. There is no consensus among scientists as to whether or not the fish-oil supplements are beneficial. They do, however, agree that eating fish is healthful and that Americans must change their diets to combat heart disease.

A high fiber diet will also help lower your cholesterol. Undigested fiber is believed to trap cholesterol in the digestive tract before it is absorbed in the blood stream. Good sources of fiber are fresh fruits, oat and wheat bran, and legumes.

Other modifications in your lifestyle can make a difference. Remember that there are two ways cholesterol is carried in the blood — with high density lipoproteins (HDL) which are protective against heart disease, and low density lipoproteins which promote heart disease.

Regular exercise such as a brisk 30-minute walk, run or swim, increases the HDL levels. Also, exercise will help burn up calories and promote weight loss. Quitting smoking also raises the HDL level. Interestingly, alcohol in moderation will increase the HDL levels. Because of the high calorie level and other medical risks, alcohol is not a recommended staple of the low-fat diet.

Starting a new eating pattern may seem difficult and time consuming. Working with a dietitian or diet counselor can be quite helpful. The American Heart Association Cookbook has many helpful hints and low-fat recipes. It also contains a fat/cholesterol chart which will help you become familiar with the approximate fat and cholesterol content of some foods. This book is available at most bookstores and libraries.

The Soo: Nothing fancy, just plain good

If it's fancy-dancy cuisine you're after, there are probably better places in Michigan to go than Sault Ste. Marie. While there are plenty of other reasons to visit the Soo—the Locks, the Snow Train, the skiing, the scenery, etc.—you shouldn't make the 300-mile trip just for the food.

Not to knock Sault Ste. Marie, but there just aren't many "great restaurants" in the area. So while you shouldn't hit the Soo expecting out-of-this-world cuisine, you should be aware that there are several solid, quality restaurants in the area. Simply put, the eating experience in Sault Ste. Marie is neither wonderful nor terrible. It's just plain good.

Especially if you're into seafood. Most of the restaurants on both sides of the border have several seafood specialties on the menu. The fishing in the Upper Peninsula is always excellent, and it shows in the seafood available in the restaurants here.

The Knife and Fork restaurant, one of the Soo's nicer eateries cellent choice is the chicken Italian, served over spaghetti and covered with cheese and a wonderful sauce. It's delicious. All of the dinners are in the $8-$12 range.

For lunch, the Knife and Fork features the standard array of sandwiches, salads and soups. The restaurant also has an excellent salad bar, stocked with plenty of fresh goodies.

On the weekend, the Knife and Fork has a great breakfast buffet. It's better than you'll find at some of the chains, and competitively priced at $4.50.

Aside from the food, one of the best features of the Knife and Fork is that it's located inside the Ramada Inn—one of the largest and nicest motels in Sault Ste. Marie.

Only three motels on the Michigan side have in-house restaurants, and this is one of them. You might not want to battle the U.P. cold just to get breakfast, so lodging here isn't such a bad idea. A nice motel, a nice restaurant.

The one thing the Knife and Fork doesn't have is a scenic view, unless a snowy parking lot is your idea of scenery. For a view, try the Ojibway Hotel, a majestic building located near the Locks at 240 W. Portage Ave.

As of late December, the restaurant in the Ojibway (one of the Soo's nicest hotels) was still closed for renovation. Word has it, though, that it's a dandy place to eat.

If you're in a little wilder mood, try Abner's Restaurant, just up the street from the Knife and Fork on the I-75 Business Spur.

Specializing in seafood, steak and sandwiches, Abner's is just as much as rootin'-tootin' bar as it is a restaurant.

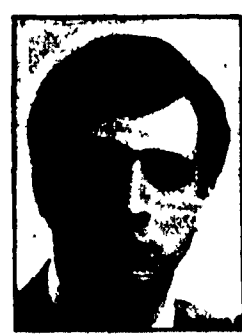

If you're more into familiar surroundings, Sault Ste. Marie has plenty of chain restaurants—Elias Brothers Big Boy, McDonald's, Hardee's, Mr. Steak.

On the Canadian side, you'll have considerably more choices (Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is larger than Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.).

Among the nicer restaurants are the Pagoda Restaurant and Tavern (Chinese cuisine, Hwy. 17B E.), Sandro's Family Restaurant (seafood and Italian food, 465 Trunk Rd.), the Red Lion Steak House (steak, seafood and live entertainment, 2 Queen St. E.), the Alpen Hof (German cuisine, 674 Great Northern Rd.) and Mario's Gondola Restaurant (Italian and American food, 853 Queen St. E.).

John Calandro is the City of Northville's representative on the Oakland County Board of Commissioners. His favorite things involve family and sports.

1. THE LAUGHTER of my children and the understanding smile of my wife.
2. A COACH who will go on fourth-and-one.
3. FINISHING a ten-kilometer race knowing someone is still behind me.
4. HOMEMADE chocolate chip cookies.

Nordica by Thomasville embodies the sleek, clean lines and functional sophistication so evident in classic Scandinavian design. Handsomely crafted from rich ash solids and veneers, each piece is finished in an eye-pleasing, cinnamon tone. Drawer and door pulls are sculpted into solid wood fronts, and horizontal recesses along some doors create a distinctive louvered effect. Comfortable, casual, easy to live with — if that's your style, Nordica is your collection.

Thomasville's Country collection is the ultimate statement of casual sophistication. Featuring a light finish that brings out the natural grain of the ash solids and veneers, with door and drawer pulls sculpted into the solid wood fronts. Horizontal recesses for a louvered (and functional) effect. Country — never too formal — but always first class.

Homecoming by Thomasville is exactly the way it sounds – comfortable, honest and traditional. Quality and styling that you can depend on, year after year. Made from select oak solids and veneers, and finished in a medium-brown tone that complements your interior themes and schemes.
