Northville High School principal David Bolitho explains his position on censorship to journalism students

Local students react to court ruling

By ANITA CRONE

Northville public school journalism students are not at all sure that the U.S. Supreme Court was correct when it ruled in favor of the Hazelwood Public Schools and against the high school newspaper.

But the students all agree that such a case could not happen in Northville. Students in Lori Moore's journalism class, many of whom work on the Mustang, the high school newspaper, generally agreed that they would not like to see sensationalism in the newspaper, and the checks and balances are in place to ensure that doesn't happen.

"You have to know who ultimately is responsible for what is in the paper," said Todd Van Hoosear. "And here, it's Mrs. Moore. She's the person who works with us."

High School Principal David Bolitho said he and the students had discussed the case about two days before the Supreme Court rendered its decision which gave high school administrators the right to censor school-sponsored newspapers.

"The net result of our discussion was that we do have a newspaper at Northville High School and that it should reflect what is going on in our environment. If there are questions, the first line of defense is the teacher and the second is the school administration," he said.

Bolitho added that there has not been one instance that Moore had taken a story to him with a question. "The one thing about censorship is that if the administration is doing the censoring, it makes the teach seem incompetent. It's like she doesn't know what's going on," noted Kelly Calhoun.

"But in the case of that article, wasn't the problem that it named some names? I think some protection is needed, but it should have been rewritten rather than censored," said Rob Sawyer.

At Meads Mill, the students were a little more wary of the ruling, especially since they said the rules that apply to the high school do not necessarily apply to middle school

Assessments under review

By ANITA CRONE

Township treasurer Richard Henningsen was not happy when he learned that Wayne County was considering placing a factor of more than one on township property.

But instead of moping about the problem, Henningsen has done something about it, asking the township assessors to review selling prices and increase assessments where necessary.

"Apparently, some houses are assessed at less than 50 percent of the fair market value, based on the selling prices of comparable homes in comparable areas," Henningsen said. "Because we have very little industry in the township, it is important that homes be fairly assessed."

Julian Komarynski and Gene Chmielewski, under contract to the township, currently are completing sales studies of township subdivisions and hope to have a report ready for Henningsen and Supervisor Georgina Goss within two weeks.

"The final decision as to whether to raise the assessments stays with the township board," Komarynski said. "All we do is the leg work."

He said that the two men prepare a sales study of individual subdivisions and then look at assessment rates of similar homes in the same subdivision.

"If the similar homes are assessed at less than 50 percent of the actual sales prices, then we point that out to the board," Komarynski said. "It's up to them whether to raise the assessments."

The assessors look not only at subdivision homes, but also at homes on individual lots and at acreage.

Once the township treasurer's office approves the assessments, property owners do have recourse if they disagree with the ratings, a visit to the Board of Review.

Board of Review meetings usually are scheduled for late February or early March.

Area GOP weathers convention storm

By ANITA CRONE

As far as Republicans in the Wayne County portion of the 2nd Congressional District are concerned, last Thursday's county conventions went smooth as silk. The problem for the two slates of delegates and alternates, if there is one, will occur Jan. 29 when the state party leaders will have to determine which slate of 33 delegates will be seated on the convention floor.

While many county conventions started out as one group and then divided into pro-George Bush and pro-Jack Kemp/Pat Robertson forces, the Wayne 2nd started out with two conventions — one called by Wayne 2nd chairperson Dan Piercecchi, the other called by 2nd District chairperson Michael Legg.

Each group elected 33 delegates and 33 alternates and, as expected, the delegates chosen at Piercecchi's convention, held at Plymouth Township Hall, overwhelmingly favored Bush. At Legg's convention, the delegates split their support with 20 pledged to Robertson and 13 pledged to Kemp.

Piercecchi and Legg both insist that their conventions were the true convention and that the delegates selected are the only valid delegates.

"Under state party rules, when there is no countywide party organization and the population of the county is more than 1.5 million, the authority to call a convention rests with the district chairperson," Legg said.

But Piercecchi countered that the Wayne 2nd has routinely called conventions and has never before been challenged.

"I'm the person who the county clerk contacts for precinct delegates and the distribution I have the right to call the convention," Piercecchi said.

"I don't think that this will have any effect in August. I think that the Republicans will rally behind whomever is the candidate."

Each of the slates contains a number of Northville residents, with Sally Williams, Georgina Goss, Dorothy Gaul, Greg Dawson and Velma Belasco winning seats at the state convention from the Plymouth Township meeting and Kim Assenmacher, Legg, John Leinonen, Ruth Anne Stormont and Lynn Turk earning seats from Legg's convention, held at the Holiday Inn in Livonia.

Assenmacher, Leinonen, Stormont and Turk are pledged to Robertson while Legg supports Kemp.

Dawson, who volunteered to sit on the credentials committee for the state meeting, will be one of the people who will have to determine who will be seated.

Dawson said he expects a number of challenges and said that the efforts by both camps could result in an all-night meeting by the credentials

Essay on the future wins honor

The future. Everyone thinks about it. Many people dream about it. Some people worry about it. And Jeff Sieving has written about it.

Sieving, a fourth-grader at Amerman School, is one of a number of Michigan school children who entered a state-sponsored contest to predict what the year 2037 will be like. Sieving, unlike most of the contest entrants, came up with an essay that so impressed the judges they declared him a winner and invited him to participate in the closing ceremonies of Michigan's sesquicentennial celebration.

Sieving and the other winners, all of whom were given the topic: "Michigan, the Year 2037," will be honored at a reception in Lansing and Sieving's essay will be placed in a time capsule at the Capitol so that in the year 2037, when the capsule is opened, people can see how closely Sieving came in his prediction.

Readers of The Record don't have to wait to see what Sieving predicts. Here is his winning entry:

MICHIGAN, THE YEAR 2037

By JEFF SIEVING

The year 2037 is 50 years away. I think the houses will be in the air. A thick pole will be holding them up. It will have apartments at the top end of it. I think the houses on the inside will have a fast elevator that goes up or down and air conditioning that adjusts to each person as they enter the house.

Cars and jets will be solar powered from the moon and the sun. We will have no highways or streets. We will have cars that travel in the air and not on the highways. Jets are going to be more computerized. There will be more high-tech weapons and the jets will go faster like mock 8!

People will know a lot more about space than we know in 1987. They will have homes on the moon and they will be able to go to Jupiter. They will have rockets for their children.

In the medical field doctors will be able to clone hearts. The doctors will be able to cure AIDS and brain cancer. The doctors will have perfected their artificial blood.

Fifty years from now should be a very exciting time in which to live.

NEWS BRIEFS

THEY'RE APPOINTED — Laurie Marrs has been named township representative to the Northville Youth Assistance Advisory Council for a two-year term and Richard Henningsen has been named as the board's liaison to the library commission for a 6-month term.

Both appointments were made by Supervisor Georgina Goss and confirmed by the trustees Jan. 14.

CLEANING UP — The fences at Browning-Ferris Industries' landfill are back in place. The fencing was removed in order to allow work on the site, but also allowed paper and other rubbish to escape the confines of the landfill.

OOPS — Northville Township had a small discussion Monday, whether to belatedly close in honor of Martin Luther King Day. The police department's administrative and clerical staff was given the opportunity to go home, since the police contract calls for giving employees a holiday if the state officially declares one.

After checking with the township attorney, township officials discovered that they could declare an official holiday, but were under no obligation to do so. Northville, Plymouth and Canton townships all remained open.

"All I can say is 'oops,'" said Supervisor Georgina Goss.

NEW UNION — There will be a new union in the township. Four employees of the water and sewer department unanimously voted to affiliate with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees union Friday.

MCF SEEKS VOLUNTEERS — The Michigan Cancer Foundation is recruiting volunteers to serve as in-home companions. These volunteers will go into the home of a cancer patient for a few hours each week to offer companionship, some help with activities of daily living, and respite care for family members.

Training for new volunteers will be held Tuesday mornings, Feb. 9 through March 8, from 9:30 to 12:30. Sessions will be held at MCF's Plymouth branch, 173 N. Main Street. After training volunteers will be assigned to cancer patients in their own communities.

For more information, or to register for the training, contact Barbara Bicking, at 833-8710, ext. 348, or Catherine Cameron, ext. 245.

HEARING ISN'T BELIEVING — There apparently is a discrepancy between the sounds of chimes and the hands on the Main Street clock. On Tuesday morning, the clock face definitely showed 8:30 a.m., however, the chimes distinctly bonged six. The time was actually 8:35.

After more than a year of discussions, the township planning commission got a station it liked

Gas 'N' Go on Six Mile reopens

After nearly two years of meetings, planning and construction, the Gas & Go station at Six Mile and Haggerty has reopened with a new design and an expanded service.

But the expansion project — which is "the most expensive station we've ever built," according to the company's construction manager, John Getz — is nearly complete and the station is open.

The township planning commission and the township ordinances were partially responsible for the delay.

"When they (Gas & Go) first came to the township with their standard

"The planning commission held steadfast to its commitment to do anything within reason to give the entrance to Northville Township a quality look."

Matt Modrack
community development director

cookie cutter plan with an extremely garish yellow and lime green building, a multitude of signs, no roof treatment and very little landscaping, the commission wasn't very happy," said Matt Modrack, community development director.

"The planning commission held steadfast to its commitment to do anything within reason to give the entrance to Northville Township a quality look," Modrack said.

The result is a facility with brick accents on the sign and the building, a ground sign as opposed to a pylon sign, a mansard roof on the building and the canopy and a building that, Modrack says "appropriately reflects the quality of Northville Township."

Getz said that the station is not yet in its final form, and he would not say whether the time spent in working out the plans before the planning commission was worth it.

"Only after we get our customers back and the landscaping goes in will we know," he said.

Although the station is open 24 hours a day for self service, the company plans to add full-service.

Getz said that he was involved in the project for about a year and part of the problem between the company and the township came in planning commission's procedures.

"Nothing was really spelled out in black and white. So we really didn't have any idea of what would be required when we started."

"We found out quickly, but it took time to iron out the details," said.

Teaching about phone can lower bills

Parents can help prevent unwanted high telephone bills by having their children ask permission before dialing "sponsored program" "976" services, according to the Better Business Bureau of Detroit and Eastern Michigan.

The bureau has received a number of complaints from consumers that children calling "976" services have run up bills as high as $1,000. Charges for "976" calls range from 20 cents to $35, plus applicable toll.

The "976" designation refers to the telephone prefix callers must dial to reach the services, which provide recorded information or entertainment messages — including weather, sports and soap opera updates, as well as joke lines, music trivia contests and gab lines, among others.

"There are almost 100 different '976' services currently operating and more are going on line all the time," said Bureau President Thomas F. Ashcraft. "To avoid unwanted charges on their phone bills, parents need to educate their children about '976' services."

WTUA, super sewer projects near OK from state agencies

By ANITA CRONE

The long delayed North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley facilities plan and a proposed expansion of the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority plant could actually become reality.

Although the two projects are separate, the fate of one has hinged on the fate of the other since Northville, Plymouth and Canton townships, originally part of the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley project, withdrew from the regional sewer and instead sought to have their additional sewerage transported to the YCUA plant.

Support for both projects has been given by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and the county's new Division of Public Works Director James Murray, as well as by the Southeastern Michigan Council of Government's Rouge River Basin Subcommittee.

Despite the growing support, each project has snags that must be overcome. In the case of super sewer, all 10 communities remaining in the project must sign service agreements with Wayne County by the Feb. 1 cutoff date.

In the case of the Western Townships Utility Authority, which includes Northville, Canton and Plymouth townships, Water Resources Commission approval for YCUA expansion, from 29 million gallons a day to 58 million gallons a day, is mandatory.

Currently all but two communities — the City of Northville and Livonia — have signed the joint service agreement with Wayne County for super sewer. Northville is expected to reach a final decision at its council meeting on Monday and Livonia is scheduled to vote on the matter Wednesday.

To spur action on the project, abatement orders requiring communities to make corrections in their own sewer systems, to provide operation and maintenance programs once the corrections have been made and to provide the Department of Natural Resources with a performance certification plan, have been issued through the DNR offices in Northville.

Roy Schramack, surface water quality division director in Northville, said the abatement orders were scheduled to be sent to Novi, the City of Northville, Dearborn Heights, Livonia, Inkster, Redford Township, Romulus, Van Buren Township, Wayne and Westland.

The YCUA expansion question is tentatively scheduled to appear on the Water Resources Commission agenda in February.

The Basin Committee, chaired by Dearborn Heights Mayor Lyle Van Houten, indicated its support for the two regional sewer projects during its Jan. 13 meeting. In a list of recommendations, the committee said that to improve the Rouge River basin it was recommending approval and construction of the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley project at an estimated cost of $70 million and recommending the design, approval and construction of the WTUA project.

"The big discussion now is the amount of phosphorous that the WRC will allow us to discharge into the river. If we can get them to agree to the current level or a little higher ... and get the agreement to discharge into the Rouge, I think we're very close to an agreement."

— a WTUA attorney

While the YCUA deadline is not critical, the Feb. 1 cutoff date for the North Huron Valley project is critical. Federal grant funding under the Clean Water Act for projects like super sewer, is scheduled to be phased out in favor of low-interest loans effective with the 1989 fiscal year. Super sewer proponents expect the federal government to pick up 55 percent of the project's $70 million price tag.

No price has been set for YCUA expansion, since WTUA engineers wanted Water Resources Commission approval for the project before sitting down to detail construction costs.

In October, the YCUA officials withdrew their expansion request from the WRC agenda when it became apparent the commission would not approve expansion as long as the effluent flowed into Belleville Lake.

However, a new proposal, whereby the discharge would flow into the Rouge, is being favorably considered by the DNR and by the commission.

"The big discussion now is the amount of phosphorous that the WRC will allow us to discharge into the river,"

"And once that is approved, I think you'll see some very quick movement on North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley, too."

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"

According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public

If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W24, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) Censorship not an issue for Northville students

"Our editor is the No. 1 stop and if he agrees, then it goes to the teacher and then it goes to the principal. I think if the principal felt strongly, he would still discuss it with the writer," said Kevin Worth.
Leanne Michelas, who is the typist and designer for the Meads Mill paper, said: "If it's (the subject of an article) something that can be proven and that doesn't hurt anyone, then I don't think anyone should be able to censor it. But I guess it all depends on whether students have the same rights as adults."
Jim Thompson, a high school student, had the strongest views on the

"The Supreme Court illogically decided the case I say illogical because the idea of a school paper is to teach a student the ethics of journalism, how to protect sources, how to judge what the people should not know and if the story is honest and unbiased.
"Furthermore, every paper has an editor to decide which articles to print and how to fix them to be printable. Our student paper is no different. Therefore it is illogical of the Supreme Court to decide to allow administrators to censor school papers," Thompson concluded.
Barbara Willoughby, Meads Mill journalism teacher, said she thought the decision placed a whole lot of responsibility on the administration, an idea with which her students did not disagree.

"The principal and the whole administration are the people who are going to hear the effects of what we write. I guess it's up to them to draw the line somewhere," said Heather

Lee, editor of the Meads Mill paper.
"Basically, this could be a case where you can win the battle but lose the war. If you don't allow someone to be in charge, you could end up without an advisor and if you don't have an advisor, you don't have a newspaper," Bolitho said.

"I think you'll find that all this infighting is making a mockery out of Michigan and I think you'll find that people like Mike Legg are going to ride this out to the limit," Dawson said, adding that he hopes the state party would call a pre-convention credentials meeting, a move that Legg also advocates.
"Given the number of challenges — I think there are about 1,000 already filed — there is no way you can have a credentials committee meeting at 7:30 on Friday and expect to have the convention open at 9 a.m. Saturday," Legg said. "At some point in this process we're going to have to call a Republican State Committee meeting and deal with this issue."

But Dawson contends the state meeting is not necessary. "The challenges have already been heard by the court and in all three decisions the rulings have favored the Bush camp," he said.
Nor is the threat of a challenge enough to keep the delegates from either camp from attending the convention.
"I pray that there won't be a challenge," said Assenmacher, who, at 22, is attending her second state convention and her first as a delegate to select the presidential nominee.
"They (the Robertson people and Mike Legg) sought me out, I think because I contributed to Mr. Robertson's other campaign, The 700 Club, to become a precinct delegate. And the Robertson delegates really shouldn't be challenged. They are doing everything legal and they won it fair and square."

Leinonen said that while he thinks "Grand Rapids has the potential to be a bit of a zoo," he did not think that the two conventions on the county level were wrong.
"The (convention) called by Mike Legg was every bit as valid as the one called by Mr. Piercecchi. It's unfortunate that there was a split, but from what I understand, both conventions were very orderly," he said.
Goss said the Plymouth Township convention lasted about an hour and about 48 people attended. Legg said there were about 150 people at the Holidome and that convention broke up about 10 p.m.
"It wasn't at all like the convention in Bloomfield Hills, where they came in and turned out the lights," said Legg.
The 18th District convention, held at Bloomfield Hills Lahser High School, began at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 14 and at 5:10 a.m. on Jan. 15, the school custodians turned out the lights.

Although Legg said he believes that he acted properly in calling a convention in December after Piercecchi had issued his call to convention in November, he said that by the time the primary election rolls around, the political infighting will have little effect on the election.
"I don't think that this will have any effect in August. I think that the Republicans will rally behind whomever is the candidate."
"What will happen is that the 9,000 new people who are getting involved in the process for the first time will stay with it and that's something good that is coming out of this," Legg said.

Police Blotters

Southgate man's stolen truck recovered in township

A 1984 Ford pickup belonging to a Southgate man was found Jan. 14, parked behind the Northville Forest apartments.

When found, the truck was missing two outside mirrors, the tailgate, dashboard and possibly a radio.

Township officer William Helke, who responded to the report of a car tagged with a 48-hour towaway sticker, said in his police report that the truck had a red hood that was not bolted to the truck body, which was black.

NHS VANDALISM — A metal plate was screwed to two metal doors at Northville High School early last week, causing the hinges to break when the doors were forced open, according to a police report.

Between 11 a.m. Sunday Jan. 10 and 7 a.m. Monday Jan. 11, the plate was fastened to two outside doors on the south side of the school, between the pool and the auto shop, the report said.

As of Monday, a warrant was being sought for the arrest of two suspects.

APARTMENT VANDALISM — Over $700 in damage was done to the Northville Oaks complex off Taft Road early this month, according to a police report.

Between Jan. 3 and Jan. 13, three thermopane windows worth $200 each were broken. Three carport security lights, each worth $40, were also broken. A marble, which may have been used to break a window, was found at the site, the report said.

EQUIPMENT STOLEN —

Building materials, including thermal ply sheeting and foam insulation were reported stolen from a Rayburn construction site Jan. 13.

The material was valued at more than $420. There was no sign of any forced entry to the site.

WHEELCOVERS MISSING — All four wheelcovers from a 1987 Buick Skylark were taken from the car parked in the Innsbrook Apartments parking lot Jan. 13.

The owner of the car told township police that she parked her car in the lot at about 9:30 p.m. Jan. 12, but when she returned to it the next morning, the wheelcovers were missing. They were valued at $190.

FIRES EXTINGUISHED — Township officers investigated the report Jan. 15 of a number of small fires burning in 55-gallon drums at a construction site in the Maple Hills subdivision.

Although no construction workers were at the site, police theorize that the workers started the fires to dispose of scrap materials.

WALLET STOLEN — A woman shopping at Meijer's Jan. 16, told township police that her wallet was apparently taken from her purse.

The woman, a Farmington Hills resident, said she had taken the wallet out of her purse to give her daughter $1 and she distinctly remembered returning the wallet, but not closing the purse.

When the woman tried to pay for her purchases at the checkout stand, she noticed it missing.

The woman said she had about $20 in cash in the billfold, along with personal documents and various credit cards.

She told officers that the store was crowded and she remembered being jostled, but had no idea who had taken the wallet.

Officers are continuing to investigate the incident.

ESCAPEE RECOVERED — A patient at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital was returned to the facility Jan. 16 by township officers after he was found walking in the roadway at Crestview Circle west of Winchester.

He was turned over to hospital security by township officers.

The patient was one of three who reportedly left the hospital without permission last week.

OUIL ARRESTS — Township police officers arrested five people last week on drinking and driving related charges. All were housed in the township jail until they were sober, posted bond and were given court dates.

VIDEO THIEF — Three videotapes were reported stolen from the Northville Public Library last week.

Between Jan. 5 and Jan. 12, a police report said, someone stole a tape of the movie Harry and the Hendersons. Then, between Jan. 17 and 19, Back to the Future and Crocodile Dundee were stolen. Empty boxes were found for all three films.

Gerald Ave. could get new SAD, but court is probably a first step

Township attorney Ernest Essad told the Board of Trustees Jan. 14 that it is possible a new special assessment district would be created to pave and provide water and sewer service to Gerald Avenue, but it was unlikely that would occur without at least some litigation.

"As I understand it from the attorney representing a number of property owners along the road, there is unanimous desire to have the improvements made, and the property owners would like the district established based on the square footage of the benefiting parcels," Essad said.

He added that he asked for petitions from the property owners as required by state law and to confirm the interest.

Mark Caverly, who said he owned two of the parcels in question, supported Essad's assessment.

"At this time, we have everyone on Gerald Avenue in agreement except one person. We have agreed to give up some of the right of way in order to create a 60-foot easement which would allow Wayne County to then take over the road," Caverly said.

Essad said that in talking to the county, it was his understanding that the county would be willing to handle the road, but would not pay for it.

The attorney said there was no schedule for completion of the project or for turning the road over to the county.

"Right now, though, even though there may be litigation, it seems as if the one person is more concerned with the fairness of the assessment, rather than the need for the improvements," Essad said.

Cady Inn waits for foundation

building is still sitting on the wheels that brought it.

Members of the historical society said last week that Mike Dedes, the contractor handling the project, has made a good start on digging the foundation. But a couple of problems along the way have delayed the building's installation — and increased the cost of the process from $14,000 to $23,000.

The digging uncovered a layer of loam which is too soft for a foundation, explained Art Rockall, a society board member in charge of the Cady Inn project. Then, after going deeper, the workers ran into an underground spring.

"That's where we're at now but the weather now is killing us," Rockall said.

The spring can be diverted to the creek, a Rouge River tributary, which runs right next to the building's new site, Rockall said. But the concrete can't be poured until the site has had at least five days of thaw at least a foot deep.

So the costs continue to go up. Society President Carol Kiraly said the building has cost over $30,000 already, and it's not on its foundation and no restoration is started.

"Not bad for a free house," Rockall joked.

The historical society took the building from its Cady Street site after the city bought the lot for future parking expansion.

To raise money beyond its usual sources, the society may sponsor a candlelight Christmas walk this year, with all the village buildings decorated to their periods and open for visitors. "That's one of the considerations for a fundraiser, and we're always open to suggestions," Kiraly said.

Restoration of the building, expected to take about two years with lots of volunteer work, will give the society a new home base.

Youth forum identifies needs

This is another in a series of columns by Mary Ellen King, director of Northville Youth Assistance, written for The Record.

Many Northville city and township organizations, including public and private schools, churches, the recreation department, the police departments, youth assistance, etc. have contact with the youth of our community.

Collectively, these organizations provide a wide spectrum of services to youth and their families. Last year, NYA recognized a need to encourage additional dialogue between the organizations to better coordinate youth services on a communitywide basis.

As a result, the Northville Youth Service Forum was organized last September. All identified Northville community organizations that service youth were invited to participate, and once formed, the group set a number of goals, including:

□ Identify and/or better understand the needs of youth and determine how best to address those needs;

□ Promote a clear understanding of the roles and services of each community organization. Share information regarding the timing and content of special activities being sponsored by the individual groups;

□ Identify the need for and encourage referrals between organizations, when appropriate. Eliminate duplication of services where they exist.

Representatives of participating organizations continue to meet monthly at Moraine Center. The Forum meetings may include anything from small group discussions to presentations by guest speakers, and all meetings are intended to stimulate participation and encourage the free flow of ideas.

At one of the initial meetings, Parent To Parent, based in Livonia, had a representative address the Forum on how Livonia is trying to increase parental awareness of the behavioral symptoms of drug abuse.

Another topic discussed by Forum members was "the merits of increased participation in school and community-sponsored activities in reducing the incidence of troubled youth."

We believe the Forum will be able to provide the basic framework of interagency communication to best address these and other issues.

Township starts police study

By ANITA CRONE

A Pennsylvania firm has been retained by Northville Township to study the police department — its staffing needs, its use of manpower, its organization, operations and investigative and support services.

The hiring of Bartell & Bartell Ltd. came as a result of the department's request to add a second captain, with primary jurisdiction over road patrol, to the command staff.

Currently, Phil Presnell is the department's sole captain and his primary responsibility is to head the detective bureau.

While the Board of Trustees turned down the promotion request made by Chief Kenneth Hardesty, it did recommend the study, which is expected to take four months to complete.

Roderick J. Bartell, leader of the study team, is expected to be in the township in early February and to meet with members of the board and the township manager to gather information and opinions regarding the police department.

"We have already provided the company with about 30 items they requested and plan to have our first meeting with them here in February," Steve Brock, township manager told the trustees Jan. 14.

While Bartell & Bartell Ltd. will perform the study, it does not implement any of its recommendations, leaving that to the township manager or in-house staff.

"We need to look at needs of the department as seen from an outside, professional company," noted Treasurer Richard Henningsen in issuing support for hiring the consulting firm.

"After we see their recommendations, we'll have a better idea of what the department needs."

The township board in December authorized the study at a cost not to exceed $15,290.

Hardesty said promoting a captain from the ranks of lieutenants and sergeants would have cost the township an additional $10,000.

Included in the fees are 20 days of professional services, 11 days on-site study and travel expenses and printing of the final report.

Any additional time for meetings on implementing the company's recommendations and technical guidance would cost an additional $82 per hour.

This is the second time Bartell & Bartell has been requested to make a proposal to the township board. The only change from the original proposal is the inclusion of a study of the department's space needs.

Our Opinions

Resignation will have strong impact on city

The recent resignation of Ron Nino earlier this month from his post as planning consultant for the City of Northville may well shape up to be a very important change for the community.

Nino played a key role in the redevelopment of downtown Northville. During his years as planning consultant the city made a lot of progress toward the goals of Mainstreet '78. Even though his advice isn't always popular, or always followed, it is, at least, always well considered and reasonable.

But the change is probably necessary. Nino is a man with a lot of commitments. In addition to heading up his own planning firm — which has a lot of municipal clients besides Northville — Nino is supervisor of Grand Blanc Township. If the other responsibilities don't keep him too busy, Northville is still a distance to travel from

Grand Blanc

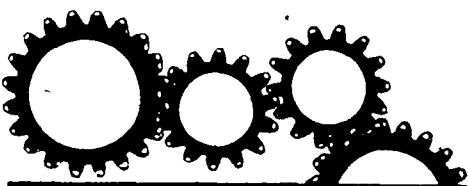

In short, Nino really hasn't had the time to devote to Northville's planning concerns. And, with reviews of the master plan and several city ordinances in the works — not to mention the consideration of the traffic study and parking problems — the city is going to need more and more time from its planner.

Nino's resignation gives the city council a chance to hire what the city has really needed for a long time: a planning firm that can devote adequate time to its needs, and one that is near enough to keep a close eye on what happens in the city and the area.

It will be too bad to see Nino leave his post; we wish him all the best. And we look forward to the hiring of a replacement, a move which should keep the city moving toward its goals.

Ordinance wording was for the best — this time

Developers of the enlarged and renovated Gas & Go service station on Six Mile and Haggerty roads raised an interesting point: part of the problem with getting their plan approved by the township was the lack of wording that specifically spells out exactly what requirements the township planning commission has for certain areas.

DEVELOPMENT

That lack, if indeed it does exist for this particular project, has worked to the community's advantage. The township allowed the reconstruction of the station but the commission set stringent rules on landscaping, and signage, and then used the vagueness of the zoning ordinance to get the company to put up a mansard roof and a brick building.

In this case vague apparently is better. The company was willing to alter its usual design because it wanted to expand its service station and keep control of the corner which has made the station one of the biggest in the state in terms of volume.

But what would have happened had the company not been willing to cooperate? Could the very vagueness of the ordinance wording have worked to the disadvantage of the township had the developer chosen to go to court rather than work out an arrangement with the planning commission?

Because the station is now in place the question is moot. But, at Five Mile and Haggerty another oil company has presented a proposal to construct another service station. And, just as Gas & Go learned that the planning commission can be very tough, so, too is Sunoco learning a hard lesson.

Given the fact that two oil companies have now built or are in the process of building stations in the township and with a distinct possibility that more service stations could be in the township's future, it might be a good idea were the planners to consider specific requirements for service stations. That way, everyone would know the rules and requirements going in and everyone could save a great deal of time and effort, not to mention design time.

For now, however, if anyone wants to know exactly what type of service station is allowable in the township, all he or she has to do is pass by Six Mile and Haggerty. The cooperative results speak for themselves.

Moving east

By Brenda Bonzheim

The weekend rendezvous are over. No more monotonous two-hour road trips along I-96 late Friday night, no more teary good-byes on lazy Sunday afternoons, no more long stretches of not communicating. We see each other practically every day now.

Since moving to the southeastern Michigan area about three weeks ago, my fiancé, Kevin, and I spend a lot more time together. We were forced to carry on a long-distance relationship for two years because he lives in Birmingham and I lived in Belding, somewhere remotely near Grand Rapids.

Now we can meet for dinner on weeknights, argue face-to-face instead of over the phone and concentrate on our September wedding plans. It's nice to know he's a mere fifteen minutes away now and at the end of most days I can look forward to a comforting hug or a reassuring smile.

But that's not the only change I'm learning to adapt to. Being a western Michigan native, I've found this side of the state to be quite a bit different from the surroundings I became accustomed to in more rural settings.

Lifestyles are more fast-paced and upbeat here. There are more multi-lane roads and highways, more shopping areas, bigger malls and just plain more people. While covering my former beat at the Daily News, in Greenville, I'd drive miles and miles on deserted country roads with nothing to look at but potato and corn fields. If I divert my eyes from the road when driving home along Novi Road or Grand River Avenue during rush hour, I run the risk of experiencing a massive coronary as cars daringly weave in and out of my lane.

Apartment complexes and sprawling residential suburbs have replaced rustic barns and apple orchards as scenic attractions in my new habitat. It takes a few seconds to get to a fast food restaurant now, rather than driving a half hour for a Big Mac.

The economy in the Belding-Greenville area was drastically different, too. Both tiny cities are recovering from the shock of losing two major employers and depression hangs in the air like a damp dishcloth. The Belding school district recently suffered a setback when voters soundly defeated a request for more millage. Imagine my delight when I was assigned to cover the planning commission and school district in Novi, where the atmosphere is charged with the excitement of new development and high academic achievements.

Friendly, helpful co-workers at The Northville Record and The Novi News are making my transition easier and I no longer feel like a fish who flopped out of familiar waters. And I've discovered there's still a sense of the friendly, small-town atmosphere in this new environment I've moved to.

Yesterday, a smiling elderly gentleman at a Farmington Hills service station gladly emptied a bottle of dry gas into my gas tank to help absorb the early morning dampness that caused my car to keep stalling.

And when staff photographer Chris Boyd brought me on an "official" tour of the area during my first week here, he drove down a dirt road and for a moment felt like I was back in Belding.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

If you don't like this column, you've got a giant case of "tough luck, Charlie."

Don't call me to complain. Don't waste your dime. It won't do you any good. I'm not going to be here.

And don't think about calling anybody else on the staff to register your beef. They're not going to be here either.

In fact, none of us are going to be here. We're hanging it up. Calling it quits. Au revoir, daddy-o. Adios, amigos. We're out of here. History. Gone with the wind.

Why all the tough talk? Easy, we've figured out a foolproof plan for winning that $25 million jackpot in the Michigan Lottery. We'll start celebrating Wednesday night — right after our numbers come rolling out of that little treadmill.

And by the time you read this, we'll probably all be aboard a plane bound for Cancun. If we can't get a flight, maybe we'll buy our own plane. Maybe we'll already be there ... stretched out on those beaches, sucking down pina colodas beneath the swaying palms.

What we did was decide to pool our money. A total of 10 people chipped in $10 apiece so we could go out and buy 100 tickets. That's it, folks. Simple but effective.

One of those 100 tickets is sure to contain the winning numbers. And even though the idea of having to split $25-million with nine other people is not as attractive as winning it all, I figure I can get by if I only win $2.5 million.

Of course, I suppose there's a remote possibility we might not win the big one. Maybe somebody else has bought 100 tickets. And if they pick the same numbers we did, we'll have to split that $25 million by an even higher number. Which would only leave me with $1.25 million. Or maybe even less. And I suppose there's even a possibility we might not win at all.

Then I'd be in deep trouble. Now that I think about it, please disregard that macho stuff at the start of this column. I was just kidding. Honest. I didn't mean it.

Allen Terrace needs shoveling

To the Editor:
After consulting with Karl Peters, the Plymouth Department of Recreation, the Northville Department of Recreation and the Northville Department of Public Works, I have decided to write to you.

The residents of Allen Terrace are all senior citizens. Some have heart trouble, arthritis and various diseases associated with the elderly.

To come directly to the point, we have trouble shoveling the snow between our cars and cleaning off the cars after a storm such as the recent one. The City of Plymouth has a snow-shoveling service for its senior citizens and also the seniors living in Northville, but not for the residents of Allen Terrace, since this is a city-owned complex.

The City of Plymouth does not charge for its services, but I am sure some of us here at Allen Terrace will be willing to pay a reasonable fee. We will look forward to hearing any suggestions that may be forthcoming.

Very truly yours,
Dorothy F. Smith

To the Editor:

I am tired of all of the bad press handguns and firearms in general are getting these days, and your editorial last week, "Time to Outlaw Handguns," upset me.

Mr. Geoghegan should research his articles a little better. In his article he quoted a case where a Detroit man, Cleo Kern, accidentally shot his wife. I read that particular article and he shot his wife with a shotgun, not a handgun (The Detroit News, Dec. 30, 1987, Page 1A).

After searching for 10 minutes in that and other publications, I found 11 other articles where six handguns (and five other firearms) were used to stop crimes ranging from burglary to rape to murder. As bad as Mr. Kern's accident was, we have to remember that the operative word is accident. Irresponsible people can kill another person at anytime, be it with a handgun, a knife or a car.

The most recent statistics that I could find were in the 1988 almanac. There were approximately 77,300 accidental deaths in 1985. Of those, 45,600 people died in motor vehicle accidents, 11,300 fell to their deaths, 5,700 drowned, 5,000 died from poison, 4,900 died due to fire and 1,600 died from firearms (slightly over 2 percent). Compare 1,600 with the number of accidental deaths from firearms in 1975 (2,380), which is a drop of over 33 percent.

I am not sure why Mr. Geoghegan would label the majority of people who advocate our right to bear arms "arch-conservative," or why he finds it ironic that they all hate homosexuals, Russians, rock music and the ACLU. I also do not see why he even needed to bring it up. The political preference, and sexual and musical inclinations of those who support our right to bear arms should not have any part in a mature debate on handgun control.

When it is said that it's a tragedy that people have to die over silly little accidents, you won't hear anyone agreeing any louder than me. However, it's even sadder when people start to think that nothing is worth dying for, that you can't afford to protect those you love because you're not responsible enough to use and maintain a weapon. Thanks for your time.

John E. Snider

To the Editor:

Mrs. Miller and I (and I can speak for four others in my family) all agree with your recent editorial, "Ban the Handguns."

So please add six "voters" on your side!

Sincerely,

Bruce E. Miller

Power lunch

By Ann Willis

Occasionally, in the office here, we start talking about the need for all of us to start eating a healthier diet.

This discussion usually takes place late Tuesday afternoon. On Tuesdays we work from dawn 'til the other side of dusk to make our Wednesday deadline for the paper. In the course of the many months that I have worked at the paper I have noticed that how hard we work to make our deadline is tied directly to our consumption of junk foods.

We start early on Tuesdays. Really early. And that means we start with a less-than-healthy dose of genuine caffeine. We mix the caffeine with liberal doses of sugar in the form of doughnuts. Not exactly the kind of breakfast to make the Quaker Oats man smile.

A former colleague of ours tried to break our doughnut habit by introducing a less noxious substitute — the bagel. A recent experiment, where a box of bagels and a box of doughnuts were placed side-by-side, found that by mid-morning the doughnuts were gone. The bagels are still with us.

Last weekend I read an article in the New York Times (a rival paper of ours) an article about coffee. In it a doctor, who they referred to as a non-practicing physician which makes me just a little suspicious, said that coffee may be getting a bad rap. He said the caffeine mixes with nerves in our brains and produces a feeling that lifts depression and literally betters the drinker's production capacity.

Anyway, this doctor made me feel a bit better about my coffee addiction. I had considered that giving up coffee might make me into a better person. Obviously, what giving up coffee might do is make me into a depressed and less-productive person. That boggles the mind.

So this Tuesday I poured my coffee with the firm feeling that if I was not helping myself become healthier, I was giving my coworkers a buoyant personality to deal with that day. I had more trouble justifying the doughnut, but what's coffee without its starch and sugar sidekick?

As the afternoon stretches ahead of us our stomachs begin to rumble. Concentration is broken as we search the empty doughnut box. Empty. This is serious. We have things to write. We have pages to fill, news to tell and we must eat. Time for chocolate.

By early evening our systems are racked. That's about the time we all start discussing our need to exercise and eat better diets.

TIPS FROM TUCHKLAPER
Novi Dental Center
A. Allen Tuchklaper
D.D.S.

TEETH ARE TOUGH.....BUT....

Teeth are tough! Did you know that the outside layer of teeth (the enamel) is the second hardest naturally occurring substance. Only diamond is harder. That's one reason why more human teeth are found as prehistoric relics than any other part of the body.

It seems paradoxical that such a fabulously hard substance should be such easy prey to decay. It's amazing how teeth can decay in short order from contact with sugar and its eventual change into enamel-eating acid.

Another thing to be careful of is eating extremely hot and cold foods together. For example, drinking hot coffee while eating ice cream is liable to make teeth crack, because tooth enamel and the dentin underneath it expand and contract at different rates as they react to temperature changes. Tooth enamel is not damaged by hot liquids, but if something cold is consumed immediately afterward, the enamel contracts and could crack. Hot drinks are usually about 140 degrees Fahrenheit, ice cream is about 35 degrees. That much sudden change can be harmful to teeth.

Still champ

He may not have his titles anymore. His speech may be slurred and his movements slower. But Muhammad Ali is still the champ and still a hero to youngsters and oldsters alike. Ali and his entourage were at the Sheraton Oaks Monday and the champ proved he can still win friends and influence people by planing a kiss on the cheek of would-be sparring pugilist Damien Meinicke, 2, of Northville. The "kisses" felt by other Ali sparring partners were no doubt a little less tender.

New county cuts cause new protests

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's new round of budget cuts could face a rocky reception from the Wayne County commission. Commissioners were scheduled to meet today (Thursday, Jan. 21) to discuss $2.6 million in cuts proposed by McNamara.

McNamara said cuts were necessary to balance the county budget because the county hasn't yet received authorization to raise circuit court filing fees, because a new airport parking tax was enacted one month later than originally planned and because the commission added $1.2 million to the county budget.

The cuts, however, failed to gain approval during a stormy Ways and Means Committee session Friday.

"He's asking us to make these cuts when we don't even know how much new revenue we've received from airport parking and from the cigarette tax increase," commissioner George Cushingberry, D-Detroit, said. "He's trying to grab budget authority (from the commission)."

Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Detroit, said the commission "moved money around in the budget" but didn't add new spending.

"I was disappointed to hear the executive say that," Beard said.

Ways and means members neither recommended nor denied the cuts. Instead, they passed them to the full commission without comment. Commissioners have 30 days to produce alternatives or the cuts become law.

While at least eight currently vacant positions would be eliminated, McNamara said there would be no layoffs.

Among the major cuts:

- There would be a $400,000 reduction in money reserved for claim settlements.

- There would be a $299,071 cut in Sheriff's Department services, including a $48,400 cut from the county park patrol. The money was originally authorized by the county commission.

- There would be a $220,000 cut from the county clerk's office from money authorized by the commission.

- There would be a $200,000 cut from mental health services.

McNamara said the mental health cut involves money that would have been used to match a state grant that is expected to be canceled. County mental health board director Angela Kennedy said she was aware of state cutbacks but hadn't received word on whether the Wayne County grant would be eliminated.

The county seeks to raise court fees from current, $40 levels to as much as $100, McNamara said. The move would produce an estimated $618,000. Raising filing fees would add an estimated $1.5 million.

McNamara said the state Legislature could allow all 83 counties to raise their filing fees or merely allow Wayne County to do so.

"We don't care how they do it," he said.

Also pending in Lansing is legislation that would allow the state Legislature and governor to monitor finances of financially-plagued counties and communities.

"We feel this is a much better system than receivership," State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said.

The legislation is backed by Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant.

"It's tie-barred to the other legislation," McNamara said. "Theoretically, if it went down, we could lose the other things we sought, but that's not likely."

Clad in an Easter Bunny outfit, Gwen Gerrard of Costumes Unlimited enjoys the festive atmosphere of the business

Shop specializes in costumes for every occasion

By LISA BURKS

If you need to get dressed up but don't know where to go for the right costume, chances are you haven't visited Milford's Costumes Unlimited.

"If you don't see what you have in mind here, we will create or special order it for you," said Manager Gwen Gerrard.

Owner John Mason moved Costumes Unlimited from its original 726-square-foot location in Brighton to Milford with the bare necessities in time for Halloween last October, but it has been fully stocked since November.

With over 2,800 square feet in the Allen Center complex at 236 Summit, the new space serves as a showroom as well as a warehouse for its second outlet in Garden City.

"Milford is a growing community and many of our customers were from this area, so it made sense to move here," explained Gerrard.

The business built its reputation seven years ago on a wide variety of outfits, but the fun doesn't stop there. Besides selling and renting masks, apparel, props and accessories from holiday heroes such as Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny to Halloween and historical period outfits, the store also boasts the area's largest balloon inventory and novelty items that defy even the wildest imaginations.

"There's not a necessity in this place," said Gerrard, referring to counters full of items such as table lighters in the shapes of airplanes, cameras and machine guns; humorous greeting cards; magic tricks and "Outrageous Envelopes."

There's even a remote-controlled helium blimp. Who could live without one?

"It's definitely a fun business," conceded Gerrard.

Costumes Unlimited currently carries over 10,000 latex and mylar balloons that commemorate every occasion, from going "over-the-hill" to a divorce to get-well wishes. More than 80 varieties are available for birthdays alone, and plans are in the works to carry the largest selection of Valentine balloons in the area this February.

Balloons are sold on a retail and wholesale basis.

Tucked away in a curtained-off corner of the store is an adult room that features items of mature humor, and is not intended for anyone under-aged.

"We carry things for bachelor and bachelorette parties, but it's tastefully done," explained Gerrard, who noted that no books or magazines are carried because she believes they are considered pornography.

"Every box is clearly labeled 'for novelty use only.' If it's not your cup of tea then you don't go in, but it's not staring you right in the face with this

IRS offers new publications to help taxpayers

To help taxpayers learn about the changes made by tax reform, the Internal Revenue Service has announced the availability of two new publications that explain the new tax laws.

The IRS said taxpayers need to be aware of these changes now and they should also review their withholding to make sure they will be getting the desired refund next year or do not owe a large amount of tax when they file their 1987 returns.

Both Publication 920 ("Explanation of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 for Individuals") and Publication 921 ("Explanation of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 for Business") show how the new law compares to the old, first in easy-to-read chart form for a quick overview, followed by detailed articles on most of the tax law changes that affect individuals and businesses.

Publication 920 has 15 articles on such topics as simplified and reduced tax rates, changes in the IRS rules, itemized deductions and new limits on personal interest. The IRS also said taxpayers should use the last two pages of the booklet to check to see if the tax you are paying now will give you the refund you want next year. Publication 920 has a description of a variety of free tax help programs that IRS offers.

Publication 921 covers 10 different business areas such as the changes in business expenses, deductions for travel expenses, business use of homes, tax credits and changes in penalties. Each publication has a complete index at the end to make locating topics easy.

To get copies of the new IRS publications, write to the Forms Distribution Center, P.O. Box 903, Bloomington, IL 61799 or call 1-800-424-3676.

THE KITCHEN STAFF at G. Williker's Eatery & Spirits in New Hudson has undergone a reorganization, promoting Bud Farmer (left) to head chef and Robert Reinhardt (right) to kitchen manager.

"We offer the best quality fresh food, good service and generous portions," Farmer commented. "And now we are adding more daily specials... new seafood items and specialty salads."

Farmer has 25 years experience in the restaurant business, including positions at a country club, yacht club and prestigious New Orleans restaurant.

Reinhardt, 27, has been at G. Williker's since it opened in September 1986. His two years at culinary arts school and 10 years experience have contributed to his development as a saute chef, specializing in Cajun style cooking.

"We have seen a trend toward more chicken and fresh fish entrees this past year," Reinhardt said. "However, we still serve a lot of marinated filets and 20-ounce New York Strip Steaks."

Both Farmer and Reinhardt are excited about the new "Appetizer Sampler" plate, which is comprised of shrimp, mushrooms, chicken, potato skins, barbecue ribs and four sauces.

Data system proposed on health care service

The Michigan Task Force on Health Care Services Data is recommending the establishment of a voluntary statewide data system that will help Michigan companies find the best and most cost effective health care for their employees.

Ron Sheppard, co-chair of the task force, said, "The Task Force is pursuing a unique and innovative approach. More than 30 states have mandatory health data systems that utilize government sanctions to require the submission of data. We in Michigan want to establish a voluntary system that is comprehensive and provides the public access to the data needed to make good decisions."

The other co-chair, Jim Jannausch, stated, "The recommendations, if adopted, could help reduce the cost of doing business in Michigan."

"The major cost of doing business is providing health care coverage for employees," said Jannausch, director of human resources for Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. "In 1986, Michigan employers spent an average $2,046 per employee or a total of $6.2 billion on health care benefits. Employers need a better set of tools to understand their options and reduce their costs. A statewide health care data system can help business owners make quality decisions."

Sheppard, president of Mercy Information Systems, went on to say, "The Task Force's aim is to enhance the ability of all interested parties in making decisions about health care services in Michigan. These recommendations may also improve the ability of health care providers to deliver quality services to Michigan residents."

The Task Force was convened by the Office of Health and Medical Affairs in the Michigan Department of Management and Budget with assistance from the business community, labor, consumer organizations, health care providers, government agencies, health insurers, consumer-provider-business coalitions, universities and experts in data system development.

Major Task Force recommendations include:

□ Selection of a private, non-profit organization to maintain the data system which will involve representation from purchasers, consumers, health care providers and others.

□ Utilization of existing data resources for building the data system.

□ An initial focus on hospital data with expected expansion to a broad range of health care services and issues.

□ Provision for access to the data by employers, labor, health care providers, consumers, insurers, government agencies and researchers.

□ Establishment of a number of reports that would be routinely published and made available to the public.

□ Development of financial backing for the data system from both public and private sources.

□ Establishment of a work group that will implement the recommendations of the task force.

□ Public evaluation of the effectiveness of the statewide data system two years after it is activated.

setup," she added.

Gerrard also noted that she has not received any complaints about the adult room thus far, and that customers who do access it have expressed relief about being able to come to her store for these types of gag gifts rather than a so-called "adult bookstore."

Sports memorabilia is yet another avenue Costumes Unlimited has expanded into. A corner of the store is devoted to collectables of all kinds, including baseball cards, posters, shirts, keychains and card games, which are sold on consignment.

As if gags, games and sports collectables weren't enough to keep shoppers in browser's heaven, products of a more serious nature are also available. Name-brand electronics like answering machines, car stereos and cordless phones are all priced under $80. Also in stock are Santo's gold jewelry pieces, which come with a five-year warranty.

One of the more popular tricks at Costumes Unlimited is the age-old, stink bomb, an item which recently prompted a visit by a Huron Valley School District principal who requested some restraint on its sale after some bombs exploded, disrupting classes at his school.

"There is an age limit and strong words of advice on the purchase of some items," Gerrard asserted.

Because of the nature of the business, Gerrard explained that the realm of Costumes Unlimited's goods and services is not tightly structured. "If you have an idea, we can pull it together for you," she said.

For example, customers may want a clown or other character for a child's party, but do not want to dress up themselves. Gerrard said she has access to performers who will show up dressed and ready to entertain. They will not strip, however.

Costumes Unlimited is open Monday through Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Thursday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. For more information call 685-8400.

GRAND OPENING

MAPLE PLACE VILLAS

Obviously, people still appreciate a classic.

SOLD OUT UNTIL FALL 1988

How embarrassing! Here we are, all set to announce the official opening of five model homes brilliantly decorated by Perlmutter/Freiwald but we've sold almost every home we can build until next Fall (120 sold in six months).

Why don't you come out anyway, visit our furnished models and visualize living in a forest surrounding Maple Place Villas in West Bloomfield.

You can still get on a waiting list for a home that might become available in an earlier phase.

After all, it isn't easy to own a Classic these days.

ring us another pitcher!" The rallying cry of the Goat Farm waitress echoes from the walls on a Friday night.

In the midst of the post-cocktail hour, 6 p.m., the room is building to a larger noise. After-workers sit at the bar, sit at the long tables elbow-to-elbow in front of the microphone and small stage, and line the benches of the booths near the bar.

"Bring us another pitcher!" a man shouts at a retreating waitress.

She turns, smiles and says "No, your waitress will be right here, I'm leaving now," and walks away.

"But you're the best waitress," he entreats. Too late. It's shift change at the Goat Farm.

The new frontline trickles in from the kitchen. Stashing purses and cigarettes near their station at the bar, the waitresses quickly divvy up the sections. Booths aren't bad but there's only five. Back room is good, but a private party can be a lot of work. First waitress on the floor gets prime pick. It's a system that's simple and time-honored, as is most of the art of waitressing.

These women work as a well-oiled team. Dressed in denim or sweats they all wear tennis shoes. "Dress-to-run" is the uniform of the night.

There's a rhythm to work in a bar. There's an economy to the motions used and a sense of where to be — when. Every bar has a pulse, times when things are hot and crowded and energy runs through the room. That's when experience makes the job work.

Watching a waitressing team work when crowds stand two-deep at the bar and a line stretches past the rest rooms, is like watching a dance.

She weaves in-and-out of the crowd, expertly avoiding elbows, hands and drinks held high. She smiles at the table, takes the order, clears the glasses, grabs the pitcher and begins the weave to the bar. Sliding to the station she orders in a curt, efficient tone and steps away. While the order is filled she takes a breath. She laughs with the other waitresses, counts her tips and watches her section. The game plan continues. She knows who she'll go to next and the best path to get there.

Waitressing at The Farm

"This is very much a public-relations business," said Christine Puckett, night manager at The Farm.

"You have to hang tough. Wimpy people don't survive long here," Puckett said. "A sense of humor is a must. They really work for their money."

"Excuse me — behind you, excuse me — behind you!"

Waitresses squeeze between the bar and the crowd. Getting through the crowd is the number one complaint of the waitresses at The Farm. Regulars like to stop and chat on their way to the rest rooms in the back of the bar, and the long passageway clogs up with people, making a waitress' ability to part the way with her voice a big priority.

Flaring tempers are rare despite the crowded, high-spirited atmosphere.

"I just walk away from rude customers," Lauri Cuppetilli said. She works part-time at the bar. In her other life she's a freelance make-up artist for videos, commercials and training films. Waitressing provides her with a necessary cushion as she starts her own business.

Many of the waitresses at The Farm on this Friday night have other lives. Kirsten Dean is a veterinary technician during the day, and works with two-legged beasts at night. "They're not too rowdy," Dean said about her customers. "They just like to have fun."

Charlotte Styes enjoys working at the bar. "It's a lot easier than working in a regular restaurant," Carole Singer has a tough job waiting for her at home after every shift. She's mother to a three-year old. "It's either stay at home and talk to a three-year old or come hear and talk to these guys," she said.

The night is slow to take off. The after-work crowd has left and it's still too early for the onslaught of the Friday night revelers. The waitresses patrol their sections and gather at the bar. Business is down following the wild Christmas binge. January is a notoriously slow month for bars and restaurants, the waitresses said.

One thing they don't mince words about is tipping. When asked who are the biggest tip-pers in the bar they turn as one and shout "Men!" Liberation has not reached the home of a shot-and-a-beer it seems.

As the hour creeps toward 8 p.m. the pace picks up. The big wooden door opens often. People stream through, looking for seats.

"Back in the high-life again," Randy Bizer, the evening's entertainment, croons over the talk and laughter. Singing over noise is "just part of the job," for Bizer.

Waitressing is tough work. You're on your feet for up to nine hours straight with breaks consisting of a quick cigarette in the corner while you watch your section. Only those who hustle win the tips — and the only glory in the job comes in counting the change at the end of the night.

"It's a job. It's hard work. The worst thing is to work your butt off all night and come home with $20," Singer said.

"Lots of times I'm real tired by 11 or 12 at night," Dean said. "I'm not smiling as much by then, but as long as you get the drinks on the table, people will tip," she said.

Regulars are the best of the customers, all agreed. These men form the core of the bar's business. They drop in after work or on a Saturday night, and the waitresses and bartenders know them by name — and personality. Most are congenial, but some are tough to handle, and their reputations are passed around in words of advice.

A first-time waitress on the floor for one night only is warned away from a table in the corner. "He's a grouch, I'll get him," a veteran offers.

"I feel sorry for the older men alone at the bar sometimes," Dean admits. But the Goat Farm is not a nurse-your-beer atmosphere. In the summer, baseball teams pack the tables on a regular basis, and on weekend nights, anytime, the noise level is high.

By nine there's less time for talk and more speedy steps between bar and tables for the waitress crew. The smoke hangs heavy across the room and people wave from far tables to catch the eye of their waitress.

"Bring us another pitcher!" they shout. It's a job and she's on her way.

The best waitperson in Michigan

By LAURA FOLKMAN
special writer

Some people wait on tables to make extra money, others to pass a summer vacation.

But for Tammy Nolan, a waitress at the Novi Hilton and recipient of the Michigan Lodging Association's Waitperson of the Year Award, waiting tables "is definitely a profession . . . and not an easy job like people may think."

When asked what makes a good waitperson, Nolan had trouble identifying the traits which come naturally to her after so many years of waitressing.

"I know what to look for," she said. "You know when someone needs something, when their drink is low. When their ashtray gets dirty, you empty it." Nolan said she watches everyone at her tables constantly, and finds it simply common courtesy to pay attention to people's needs.

Eye contact with guests helps Nolan know when something is needed. With business people, however, especially those who seem to want to talk without interruption. "I try to keep away . . . I watch them look at me." A waitress learns to look for that kind of signal, which, she added, can sometimes be hard to spot.

Tammy Nolan stays 'tuned in' to Novi Hilton customers

What makes a poor waitperson? Nolan believes the worst thing you can do is let people sit. Waiting tables, for Nolan, seems synonymous with not allowing customers to wait.

Nolan's hours are long — she's up at 4:30 a.m. for her shift which runs from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. — but she emphasizes maintaining an easy-going attitude, both with the hotel staff and restaurant customers.

Her pleasant, almost reserved, manner seems to be the key to her success. "The hotel staff seems to click really well; I enjoy everyone I work with," Nolan cites as one of the best aspects of her job, which she has held since the hotel opened three years ago.

The life of a waitperson is not without its pressures and aggravations, as Nolan attests. A customer who comes to the Hilton restaurant with "an attitude of McDonald's prices" can certainly be trying. Nolan points out that some people don't expect the higher prices of the hotel, and "lots of people think it's our fault . . . it affects our tip."

To avoid this, she tries to explain the menu items so that people know what to expect.

What of the irate customer who is displeased with a dish? "If it's not

Woman's club to host exec from WTVS

Joette Marano, an executive at public television's WTVS/channel 56 in Detroit, will speak to the Northville Woman's Club at 1:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 22, on "The High Cost of Communication."

Marano, executive assistant to the president and general manager at WTVS/channel 56, has held her present position for three years, after working as an associate producer.

As associate producer she worked on "The Country Express," a national country music video show, "The Beat," a rock video show, and "Detroit Week in Review."

As executive assistant to the president, Marano shares a variety of responsibilities related to the administrative side of public television. Coordinating the various elements of the president's office, negotiating with independent producers, and representing the president's office on committees throughout the community are just a few of the activities in which she is involved.

Marano's speech to the woman's club is scheduled at Northville's First Presbyterian Church.

what they think it is, I try to offer them something else really quick" so they do not have to wait any longer. Poor tippers, Nolan said, can be upsetting, but she says you simply have to let it pass. Someone else later on will tip more generously, so it does balance out.

Still, Nolan does feel it unfair when someone tips the same percentage at the Hilton as they would at a fast-food place.

Diners who ask lots of questions on everything from the special of the day to what kind of cream is used in a sauce do not disrupt Nolan's calm manner — only when the restaurant is very busy do such questions cause her to run a little bit behind.

"Everyone should know the menu well enough to answer questions," Nolan said of the wait staff. A two-week training session, including extensive tests on prices, entrees and other menu items, was required for the staff before the restaurant first opened.

If a guest seems to be in a bad mood for whatever reason, Nolan said she'll try her hardest to change their mood before they leave. She even finds this cheering-up a kind of challenge.

The job of a waitress does not seem to permit personal emotions to intervene, but Nolan said waitpersons have rough days, too. When this happens, Nolan laughed, "I usually sing to myself... that helps." Or she will go in the back and yell. Above all, Nolan stresses, you can't show the guests your bad mood.

The restaurant staff is a big help here. Nolan feels they are like a family, and all try to encourage better moods when one of them feels low. Nolan works the breakfast and lunch shift, which she says is not as relaxed as the dinner crowd, but the fast pace does make the morning fly by. After her shift is over Nolan teaches karate and helps her husband at his karate school in Taylor.

In June Cindy Barron, former restaurant manager at the Novi Hilton, nominated Nolan for the "Waitperson of the Year" award in the Michigan Lodging Association's competition. This is the second year of the competition, which includes the categories of roomkeeper, bell person, waitperson, kitchen employee and front desk person.

The association sent nomination forms in the spring to the owners and operators of its approximately 530 member hotels and motels — from bed-and-breakfasts to large luxury establishments.

In our industry," said Phyllis Poe, executive vice president of the Michigan Lodging Association, "you're only as good as the service you provide." The panel of judges, Poe said, consisting of personnel companies and others familiar with the lodging industry, look for the unusual things an employee does for a guest, something exceptional about the employee.

Poe mentioned one example of an employee who found $500 in a bathroom and made sure it was returned to the guest.

The waitperson award includes a pin, a $25 gift certificate from American Express, and, said Nolan, who did not know the award existed before she received it, congratulatory letters from other Hilton managers. But recognition is the key appeal of the award.

Gary Seibert, general manager of the Novi Hilton, who first saw the announcement of Nolan's achievement, emphasizes the employee incentive of such awards. "You can see the perking-up of the service personnel," he says of both the Lodging Association award and the recognition awards the hotel provides internally. "It puts some recognition where it's due."

Nolan also accompanied Seibert to the annual Michigan Lodging Association Convention and Trade Show at the Ann Arbor Holiday Inn.

Nolan came to the Hilton with 10 years experience as a waitperson — she has worked at such varied establishments as the Airport Hilton, two country clubs, Lord & Taylor and Long John Silver's.

How do these places compare in Nolan's mind? "I enjoy waiting on people more than just handling them something," she said of her fast-food experience. And, she added, "It was neat to watch the people" at the upscale country clubs.

In the future, Nolan hopes to get into restaurant management; she feels ready for that change. In addition she would like to develop further the karate school with her husband. She can't imagine herself pursuing, for instance, a secretarial career because she likes the constant contact with others at the hotel.

Rev. Sparks brings excitement to First Baptist Church

EDITOR'S NOTE: This profile of the Rev. Stephen Sparks is one in a series of articles on local churches and their clergy.

By ANN CHOWDHURY

When the Rev. Stephen Sparks, Northville's First Baptist Church's pastor, was a teenager, he found church services extremely boring. "That's the main reason I wanted to go into the ministry," he said. "I didn't want it to be boring for other people."

"The Bible has the most exciting message in the history of the world and the last thing on earth it should be is boring."

His father, a steel worker in Allen Park, wanted his son to be a dentist.

"He figured there was more money in that than in the ministry. He was right, too," Sparks laughed. "I told him I couldn't see myself putting my fingers down people's throats all day and he agreed. . . . The family was behind me all the way."

Sparks, who moved to the Northville church in May, said keep the Bible fresh in his own mind is a priority with him and a matter of daily renewal.

"I had a professor in school who said, 'Gentlemen, don't let this book become a textbook to you . . . don't lose the awe.'"

"It's always exciting for me. I never lost the awe that an eternal God would take the time to communicate his love and knows how many hairs are on my head."

Sparks trained at Tennessee Temple University, Chattanooga, and was pastor of Faith Baptist Church in Royal Oak before moving to Northville.

He followed Pastor James Luther who had been with the church for 10 years.

These men followed a long line of ministers. Pastor Nathan Noyes, the first pastor, left interesting records:

"I arrived in Michigan in April, 1833. I found myself in the woods, almost among entire strangers; obtained a house near Northville for a short time. I now began to look about, and see if I could suit myself anywhere in this region of the country. I found a few Baptists scattered in this place, who appeared much rejoiced, because my lot had fallen among them."

A site was acquired two miles west of Northville on Taft Road and a small log building housed the new Baptist Church. There were 17 members.

The present site at the corner of Randolph and Wing was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap on May 1, 1843 and the next year the church building was erected.

It is known that the congregation discontinued renting pews in November, 1859, and that the trustees were authorized to erect 14 stalls beside the church building which were to be sold to the highest bidders. The proceeds were used to pay for the building of the stalls and to erect a fence around the meeting house.

The Samuel Rodgers family contributed $278.75 for the 1,000 pound bell, and also placed it in its tower at a cost of $3.65.

Other changes took place in the intervening years, most notably, the work begun in 1960 to add a new auditorium and other remodeling.

Sparks explained that the part of the church usually called a sanctuary by other denominations is known in the Baptist Church as an auditorium. "The sanctuary is a person's heart, the place the Lord dwells."

Long time church member and chairperson of the board of deacons Burton DeRusha stated, "Pastors come and go, but congregations and mortgages remain."

"God gives gifted men to the church," DeRusha said. "Each has a different gift. Pastor Luther was a master in the teaching ministry, in putting the Bible into today's context. Pastor Sparks is a champion persuader for the Lord. He is more evangelistic. He has a bubbly personality and what you see is what he is."

Jed McDaniel, 15, thinks the new pastor is "something else."

"I have a great time in church. I used to sleep all the time, but not any more," he admitted. "In fact, my parents laugh at me because I always used to be quoting from movies and now I am always quoting from the service!"

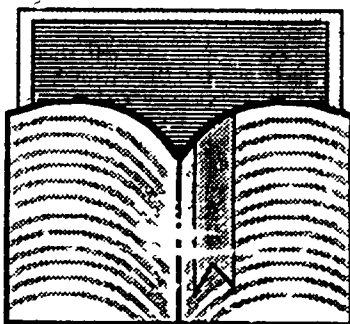

"Everybody is smiling after church and you feel as though you have learned something," he said. "The Pastor walks around the church while he is preaching and shows us things. He just says it straight, keeps it lively, and gets people to join in by asking them things while he is preaching."

Sparks' idea for walking around during the service came, he explained, when he was watching a lawyer on television walking back and forth before the jury.

"He really had their attention, so I decided to try it," Sparks explained.

In the Pulpit

An introduction to area ministers and their churches

"I have had a hard time standing still since I was a kid so it works for me."

"It also helps provide a relaxed atmosphere. So often in church, people look very tense. I don't think you can have a good relationship with anybody if you are tense, so how can you have a relationship with God?"

First Baptist Church is, Sparks explained, an independent church and not controlled by any hierarchy. Such churches choose their pastors by mutual agreement.

"There are as many Baptists as Howard Johnson has ice creams, but we are not affiliated with any Baptist group. We are totally autonomous here, and if the Southern Baptists say something, or the American Baptists say something, they are speaking for their own group, not for us."

"Our church has congregational rule. Within that structure we have a board of deacons, a board of trustees and six other committees including a missions committee, a deaconess committee, a music committee and a long range planning committee."

"The deacons oversee the spiritual needs of the church and the trustees, the material needs of the church."

Deaconess Nancy Crawford explained that deaconesses are elected. They set up the communion, help prepare for baptisms, assist the sick, prepare meals after funerals and take meals to families for five days after the birth of a child.

Sparks does not consider himself a traditional Baptist minister.

REV. STEPHEN SPARKS

"I'm very outgoing and I love to enjoy life. I'm a motivator. God gave me the gift of communication and I use it and I enjoy it very much."

"There's a lot of humor in my messages. . . . I'm sure it's already having an effect on the congregation. I think there's a more relaxed atmosphere than when I came, and hopefully more joy and happy people."

He supports his church's belief that women should not be elders in the church.

"My stand point is based on the qualifications for an elder in Timothy, Chapter Three. He must be the husband of one wife. Just as soon as a lady will be the husband of one wife, then she has the right to be an elder in the church."

He added that Christianity did more to raise the level of women in society than anything else in the history of the world.

"A woman was nothing in Greek and Roman times. She had no power, no authority, she was nothing. Christianity . . . raised her up, gave her a position in society that was greater than she ever had."

"If a husband loves his wife just as Christ loves the Church . . . he is willing to die for her. If a man loves a woman that much she is going to have no trouble at all putting herself under his protection. She will delight in it because he will treat her with anything he can treat her with."

Sparks' wife, Jo Anna, a licensed cosmetologist and insurance agent who works part time as a broker-manager in a Southfield insurance office, sings in the church choir and has done a lot of speaking for ladies' groups.

Their children, Stephen, 13, and Melissa, 10, are enjoying Northville and find it easier to get around and participate in activities than when they lived in Southfield.

The Church has morning and evening services on Sunday with Sunday school classes for all ages. Adults have a prayer meeting and Bible study on Wednesday nights.

Pathfinders Group and a Youth Group provide activities for all age groups of young people.

"We rent the Amerman School gym Wednesday nights for athletic activities."

Sparks said the church is planning to hire a full time youth director because of its emphasis on reaching the youth in the community.

The congregation of 250 is growing and, like other Northville churches, the leaders are wondering how to accommodate the growth. "Those are the problems you want to have, though," Sparks acknowledged.

"We are land-locked at this point and there has been talk that one of the things we should consider is moving out of town and buying a piece of property. That's something we'll have to consider as we go along. We could also go to two services on Sunday morning if the need arises."

The congregation is made up of people from Northville and adjacent towns except for one family who travel in every Sunday from Stockbridge, near Lansing.

"They think the difference is worth the distance," Sparks said. "They said they looked around and hadn't found any place they liked better, bless their hearts."

Local girl competes for singing award

Carrie Bickner, a Northville High School senior, will be one of 15 prep vocalists from the tri-county area vying for $2,400 in scholarships Feb. 9 during the Madrigal Choral of Southfield and Maccabees Mutual Life Insurance Co.'s annual scholarship competition.

Bickner, who has appeared in "Fiddler on the Roof" at the Marquis Theatre and "The Music Man" with the Dearborn Civic Theatre, currently is rehearsing for Northville High School's production of "Fiddler on the Roof." She plays Golda.

Bickner sent an audition tape for the competition, and the judges selected 15 finalists to perform at the Wayne State University's Community Arts Auditorium. Judges include educators from Wayne State and from Oakland University.

Bickner, a soprano, will sing "Il Mio Soco" and "My Love Rode By." Tickets for the competition are $3 for adults and $1 for students and are available at the door, or in advance by calling Robin Schakne at 352-9553.

Grand prize is an $800 grant. Four $400 awards for in-state music camp scholarships will also be awarded. In addition, the winners will be offered the opportunity to perform with the Madrigal Choral and to participate in a Michigan Opera Theater production during the organization's 1988-89 season.

Starting Over Single begins new series

The Winter edition of Starting Over Single, a divorce recovery workshop sponsored by Single Place, begins Monday, Jan. 25 with a talk by Dick Todd titled "Stages of Grief."

The talk compares divorce to a death, and Todd shares the stages of grief that many go through whether they are the ones asking for divorce or the recipient. Todd, who is very active in single ministries, is both a United Methodist minister and a clinical psychologist.

Starting Over Single runs for eight weeks on Monday nights from 7:30 to 9:30. A $20 per person donation is requested for book and additional materials.

The sessions are held at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville, 200 E. Main in downtown Northville. For more information, call 349-0911.

Future seminar topics include: Feb. 1, "Legal Aspects of Divorce: How to Keep the Scales of Justice from Tipping"; Feb. 8, "Helping Children Through Divorce," with Dr. Robert Geake; Feb. 15, "Networking," with Lawrence Chamblain; Feb. 22, "Getting My Ex in Focus," with Lu Wagner; Feb. 29, "The Passage of Divorce," a panel discussion; March 7, "Church and Divorce: Spiritual Help," with Jim Russell; March 17, "Friendship and Dating," with Nancy Ray.

Microwave popcorns rated by panel

Remember Jiffy Pop? Everyone would crowd around the stove to see if the aluminum top would really puff up as big as it looked on TV.

Sometimes it did sometimes it didn't.

Well forget about crowding around the stove. The microwave oven's the place to be these days. Flat-as-pancake bags puff up before your very eyes in four minutes or less — depending on your oven. No mess. No fuss.

Ob, sure, say the gourmards. Go ahead and ruin a good thing. Take away the clutter of dirty pots and pans. Take away the savory aroma and crackling sounds of the kernels popping.

Ah, say microwave aficionados, remember the saying, "You can't judge a book by its cover." Well, the same goes for microwave popcorn. You can't judge the product until you've tried it.

A hand-picked crew of popcorn lovers recently put their taste buds to the test in picking the creme de la creme of microwave popcorn.

No expense was spared for this test. Only the best Dixie cups and fresh water to cleanse the palate between tastings — seven, to be exact.

The subjects of their discriminating palates were whatever the supermarket shelf had to offer — Planters Premium Select Microwave Popcorn, TV Time Microwave Gourmet Popcorn, Newman's (as in "Cool Hand Luke") Own Oldstyle Picture Show Microwave Popcorn, Pop Secret Microwave Popcorn, Orville Redenbacher's Microwave Popping Corn, Pillsbury Microwave Popcorn and Act II Microwave Popcorn.

The rating system was simple — taste the popcorn and score it on a scale of one to five — one being the worst (or the bag would taste better) and five the best (all that's missing is the movie).

Top of the heap was Orville's concoction. The gourmards gave it a total of 28 points out of a possible score of 30. Only one panelist rated it a three (it'll do in a pinch).

Orville's was "pretty good," "tastes like popcorn and not too salty" and "just enough of everything — butter,

Microwave popcorn can be as good as traditional salt — and not too crunchy." (We haven't had the heart to tell him that it was Orville's natural style — no synthetic butter involved.)

"It's the Rolls Royce of popcorn; hope the movie's a double feature," one gourmand said.

The lone wolf (there's one in every crowd) found it "kind of soft." His pick for the best — Planters — ended up second in the judging with a score of 25 points.

One gourmand found it would go good with beer because of its salty taste, while another said it was "the most like real popcorn."

"Bright, young, yet not too immature," another said. "But too ephemeral both in taste and texture. Always a bridesmaid..." Translation: It'll do in a pinch.

A distant third place went to Pop Secret, which amassed just 18 points. It rated comments like "a certain indescribable character; a long shot but coming on strong," "good but spoiled by a slight aftertaste," and "bland except for the salt."

"It tasted like the salt was added to cover up something else," the taste tester said.

A close fourth was Act II, which finished with 17 points. Probably the lowest priced of the microwave popcorns sampled, it was about average in the opinion of the panel.

Like Pop Secret the panel found it had an aftertaste, flat, bland and too chewy. But one panelist found it "light, airy and fluffy and had a true popcorn taste."

Paul Newman may be a star, but his popcorn was less than stellar, according to the panel. Ranking fifth, it racked up 16 points and comments like "cardboard flavor and texture," "I wonder if Paul eats this stuff" and "boring."

The sixth- and seventh-place finishers ended up in single digits for scores. TV Time was sixth with seven points, while Pillsbury came in seventh with five points.

In the estimation of the panel, TV Time has direct connections with an oil well. The bag offered an extra half ounce of popcorn, but even that couldn't mask the excess amount of oil.

"It has more grease than a '50s hairstyle," one gourmand said. "I'd rate it a two (good to hang on the Christmas tree), but it'd probably slide off the tree."

As for Pillsbury, that was a butter-flavored brand that got a rating of less than one from two panelists. One could not write a "yech" before the pen slithered out of his greasy hand.

One gave it a two — the popcorn was light and fluffy but butter flavor had a rancid aftertaste.

The panel had to admit that while microwave popcorn is convenient, it has a way to go to catch up with the real thing, which is cheaper than the $1.66 to $2.69 price for the microwave versions.

Carnival in area park

For anyone who couldn't get enough of Novi's Chilly Willy Festival last weekend, or want a taste of the Northville Winterfest next weekend, there's another option this weekend. West Bloomfield Township joins the list of communities sponsoring winter festivals, with its first winter carnival, planned for 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 24.

Snow softball games, homemade dog sled races, sledding, cross country skiing, a giant bonfire and many other activities are planned. Hot chocolate and chili will be available for purchase.

"The pleasures found in a park are year-round," Joey Spano, director of West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation, said. "We are expecting a good sized crowd of snow lovers plus many more who just want to see what our newest park looks like."

The scene for the event is Marshbank Park, on the east side of Hillier Road just north of Commerce Road. Until recently, Marshbank was part of the area's Metropark system, but was recently acquired by West Bloomfield Township.

Volunteers are needed to help direct activities. Interested persons should call Scott VanMeter at the West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation office 334-5660.

Mustang cagers remain winless

If it's any consolation at all to Northville High School basketball fans, it appears the team is improving.

The Mustangs put together what may have been their two best outings so far this season — unfortunately, the squad still came away with two more defeats to remain winless in seven tries.

Northville opened the post-holiday portion of its schedule with a highly competitive, 61-50, loss to Livonia Churchill on the road and then fell to Plymouth Canton 69-54 at home on Jan. 15.

"The kids looked a whole lot better this week," Coach Omar Harrison said. "I think there's promise that we can win some ballgames."

The Mustangs played Churchill with a certain amount of confidence, and that's been lacking for much of the season. After the Chargers opened an 8-2 edge in the first quarter, Northville abandoned its zone defense and got back into the game with an aggressive man-to-man defense. The Mustangs narrowed the gap to 10-7 after one quarter and were within six points late in the first half before suffering another let-down. Churchill pulled ahead 25-15 at halftime.

Northville gained a little ground in the third and actually cut the lead to four several times early in the fourth, but critical misses at the free-throw line and some costly turnovers down the stretch enabled the Chargers to pull away and win by 11.

"With about two minutes left, we started to foul them but they made their free throws," Harrison said. "If they would have missed some, we may have been able to get back into it."

Junior Chris House paced the Mustang attack with 14 points.

Northville played Canton on even terms for two quarters on Jan. 15 and were within striking distance after three quarters, but again a lapse in the fourth gave the Chiefs the necessary edge. Canton held a modest 15-11 first-quarter advantage but the Mustangs came back strong in the second quarter. A turnover at the end of the half gave the Chiefs a slim, 26-23, lead.

"I was concerned about Canton's quickness and their pressure," Harrison said. "We did make some mistakes and it cost us but it didn't get out of hand. I was pleased to be that close at the half. Canton is the class of our division."

In the third, Northville actually took a 35-33 lead, but heading into the fourth, Canton regained an eight-point cushion. In the final eight minutes, the Chiefs outscored the home team 24-17 to win the game handily.

"They got hot on us in the fourth and it was too much for us to make up," Harrison said. "We're not strong enough yet to overcome something like that."

Scott Stephens led the scoring with 14 points and House added 12. From the free-throw line, Northville connected on just 21-of-36 for the game.

"We're still looking for a win but I'm pleased with the kids," Harrison pointed out. "This team shouldn't be judged on just wins and losses, but rather how much we are improving from game to game. We're very inexperienced but we're learning."

Omar Harrison has taken a leave of absence as the Mustang cage coach

Cage coach leaves post temporarily

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville High School varsity basketball coach Omar Harrison announced on Jan. 18 that, due to personal problems, he will be taking a leave of absence from his coaching duties for the rest of the 1987-88 campaign. But Harrison vowed to return next season and Northville Athletic Director Dennis Colligan made it clear the job was Harrison's when he is ready to return.

Harrison met with Colligan and school principal David Bolitho on Jan. 16 and the three came to the conclusion that it was impossible for Harrison to continue as coach this season.

"We feel a family commitment is more important than a coaching commitment right now," Colligan said. "Omar needs the time off to straighten out some problems at home. He did just about everything he could to continue coaching and take care of the family commitment, but it just wasn't possible to do both."

Former Northville varsity coach Tim Lutes, who has been out of coaching for nearly four seasons, has agreed to take over the coaching duties on an interim basis. Lutes was the Mustang varsity coach from the 1977-78 season until he stepped down following the 1983-84 campaign. Harrison was the junior varsity coach during Lutes' reign and took over the varsity duties when Lutes left coaching.

"We decided to bring in an interim coach for the rest of the season because we felt it was in the best interest of the program," Colligan said. "We are not replacing Omar as our varsity basketball coach for good. He's been in our system for 20 years and we feel he is a very successful coach."

The move comes at a very inopportune time. The Northville basketball team is suffering through a dismal season and is currently winless in seven tries. The team also is carrying a 13-game losing streak that began late last season. But Colligan stressed that Harrison's decision to temporarily step down had "absolutely nothing" to do with the 0-7 start.

"We decided to bring in an interim coach for the rest of the season because we felt it was in the best interest of the program"

— Dennis Colligan
NHS Athletic Director

7 start

"There is no doubt that this came at a bad time with the team 0-7," Colligan admitted. "This would have certainly been a lot easier if the team was 7-0 because I'm afraid speculation could imply that Omar is bailing out, and that's just not true."

"He is going to continue as our coach in the future but due to the situation, we feel we should give him a leave of absence for the rest of the season and we feel that Tim Lutes is an ideal person to take over."

Harrison and Lutes are very good friends. Both teach at Meads Mill Middle School and Lutes described the move as a personal favor to a friend.

"It's purely a friendship thing," he said. "We've worked closely for a long time and we have basically the same basketball philosophies. We wanted there to be as little disruption as possible for the kids on the team — the kids are our number one concern."

Harrison will continue to teach at the middle school. He said he does not want to quit coaching and expressed sadness at the current situation.

"It's a leave of absence," he said. "Tim is doing this as a favor to me and it has nothing to do with the record of the team. It's unfortunate that my problems came up at this time."

Gymnasts nip Glenn, fall to N. Farmington

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville Coach Michelle Charniga knows her gymnasts will start to put it all together sooner or later this season — but she hopes it's sooner.

In WLAA action last week, the Mustangs split a pair of meets but didn't seem to improve much, and that's something Charniga wants to change. In a 119.75-119.45 loss to North Farmington on Jan. 11, Northville was the victim of stiff, conservative judging and continued problems on the balance beam. The squad rebounded on Jan. 14, however, to nip Westland John Glenn 111.25-111.05 in a meet that went right down to the wire. But more low scores on the balance beam almost cost the team a victory.

"It will all fall into place for us in one of these meets and we'll be OK from then on," Charniga said. "I'm just hoping it happens soon."

"I've been telling the girls that we need to get our team scores up — we need to start getting some regional qualifying scores. But individually, we're doing well — Wendy Beach has already qualified in three of four events."

Against North Farmington the Mustangs kept things close for the first two events and actually trailed by just 1.85 points heading into the balance beam competition.

In vault, Beach led Northville with a 7.85 score and a fourth-place finish. Lee LaChance (7.8) was fifth and Yvonne Beebe (7.6) sixth, but no other Mustang gymnast managed to score in the sevens.

In the uneven bars, the Mustangs outscored North Farmington, and again Beach led the way with a fine first place score of 8.0. Beebe was next with a 7.0 (fourth), LaChance notched a 5.95 and Kathy Abraham added a 5.1.

"Wendy's routine on bars was beautiful," Charniga said.

But a disastrous team performance in the beam quickly put Northville behind by more than seven points and any hopes for an upset quickly diminished. Beach paced the Mustangs with a 7.7 in the beam and Beebe followed with a 7.15, but it was only good for third and fifth place, respectively. LaChance struggled to a 5.5, Megan Graham had a 4.95 and Jenny McMillian received a 4.65.

"We scored well in vault and outpointed them in bars but we really fell apart in beam," Charniga said. "Right now, it is definitely our weakest event."

In the floor exercise, the Raiders outpointed Northville 30.8-28.10 to provide the final margin of victory. Beach scored a 7.8 and placed third overall, LaChance score a 7.45 to place fourth and Tracie Surdue chipped in with a 6.65.

"The judging was a lot more difficult than it was in our first meet," Charniga pointed out. "It was real tough."

The triumph over Glenn surprised Charniga a bit, but it wasn't because her team exceeded expectations.

"Glenn's always been strong since I've been coaching but they lost some key gymnasts to graduation," she explained. "It was very close — it came down to the last score in the last event."

Northville got off to a nice start in vault as four individuals registered season-best scores. Beach was first on the team and third overall with a 7.95, and Beebe and LaChance tied for fourth with identical 7.8 scores. Robyn Chatman was sixth (7.3), and Abraham and Becky Carney chipped in with two 6.15's. LaChance, Chatman, Abraham and Carney's scores were all season-best scores.

The Mustangs upped their lead to 3.3 points with another nice showing in bars. A 7.2 by Beach was good for second place overall, LaChance (6.8) was third and Beebe (6.75) was fourth. But most of this advantage quickly disappeared with another poor effort in beam as Glenn outscored Northville 28.65-25.65 in the event. Beach took second (7.55) but no other Mustang performer scored higher than 6.2.

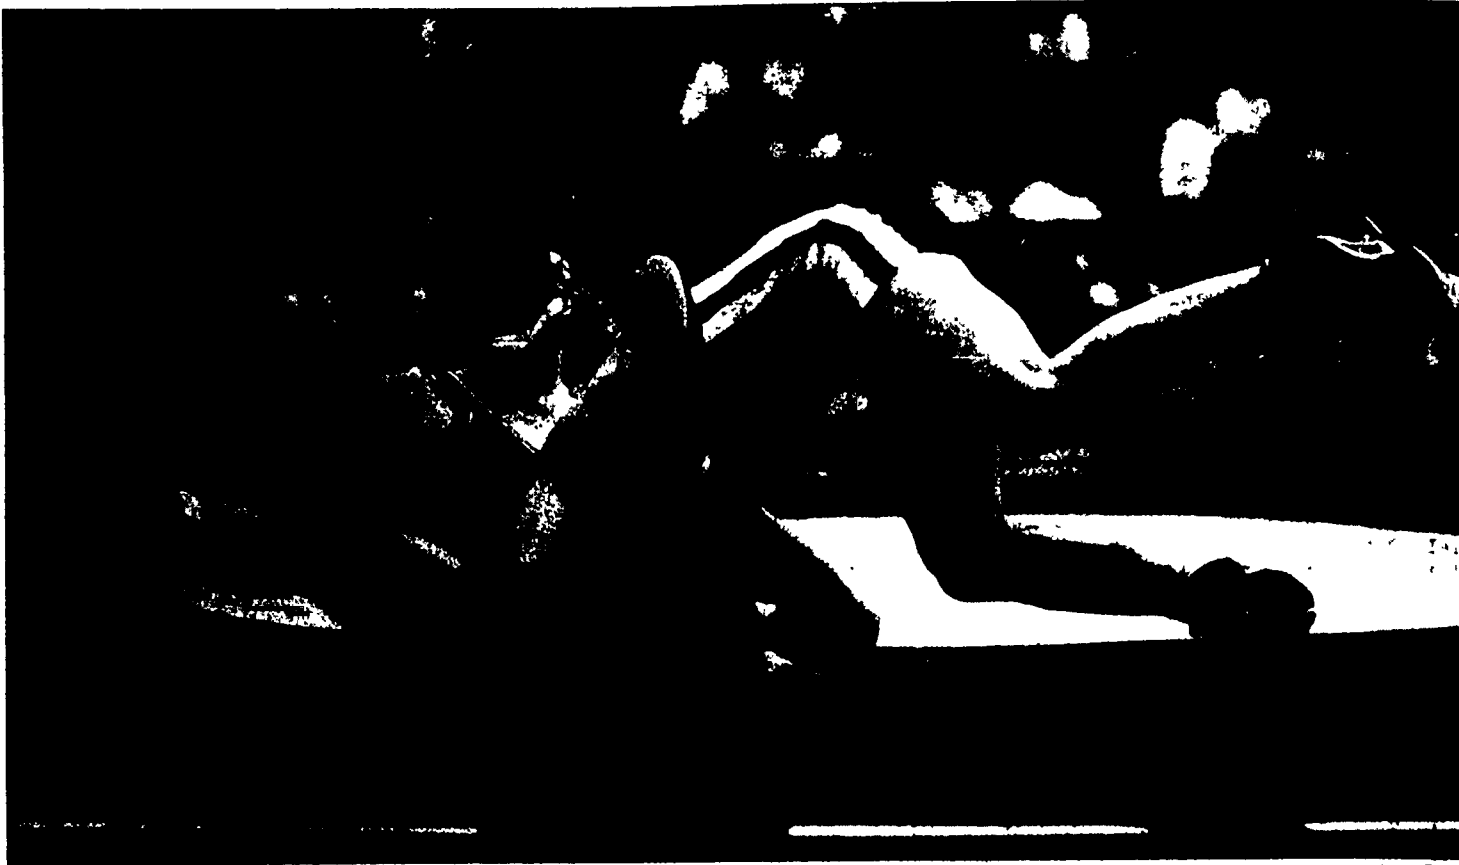

In floor exercise, Glenn did gain another 1, but it wasn't quite enough to complete the comeback. A pressure-packed 7.95 by Beach in the event gave her individual first-place honors which helped the Mustangs hold on and win by a mere .2. LaChance scored a 7.65 and was third, and Alicia Estigoy (6.75) and Chatman (6.3) contributed.

"We had some great vaults but the bars routines were a little sloppy," Charniga said. "We had a lot of falls on beam and even though our floor exercise scores were good, I can still see a lot of room for improvement."

Northville (2-1 overall) will get back into action Jan. 25 on the road at Livonia Clarenceville.

Wrestlers' record falls to 3-6-1 overall

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

For the first time this season, the Northville wrestling team's record dropped below the .500 mark when Plymouth Canton pinned a close 39-30 defeat on the Mustangs Jan. 14.

The team only made matters worse last weekend at the Novi Team Invite. In five dual-meet matches, Northville managed just one win and a tie. The team's overall dual-meet record is now 3-6-1.

The Mustangs got off to a horrendous start against Canton, fought back in the middle weights to pull within three points heading into the final bout, but gave up six points on a pin and lost by nine. Coach Jack Townsley was pleased to see his team fight back, but he wasn't happy to see his team lose their third WLAA match of the season in four tries.

"It was a very close and exciting meet," Townsley said. "We have some holes in our lineup we can't seem to fill and they really got us in trouble early. Canton is a very tough team — I'd say one of the two best teams in our league — and we fought them toe-to-toe."

Northville was forced to forfeit the bout at 98, and then a pair of first-year wrestlers were pinned at 105 and 112 to give the Chiefs a commanding, 18-0, lead.

But the Mustangs came back to win five of the next seven bouts to close the gap. Brad Maliszewski decisioned Josh Barrie, 8-3, at 119; Andy Frey pinned Clinton Docky in five minutes at 126; Garnett Potter pinned Michael Golchuk at 145; Darren Kehoe decisioned Norm Haxson, 6-2, at 155 and Donovan Campbell pinned Gary Golchuk at 167.

In a closely contested match at 190, Mike Hale wore down Jim Crews and eventually pinned him at 4:10. The resulting six points made the score 33-30 heading into the heavyweight bout, but Derek Forbing was pinned by Canton's Jerry French in 1:11 to end any hopes of an upset.

Bobcat swimmers qualify for state meet

Gwen Rowlands has rejoined the Novi Bobcats after an outstanding season with the Novi High School team. And the Wildcat standout demonstrated her pool prowess by leading the Bobcats at the Bulldog Aquatic Club's "A" Meet at Livonia Churchill High School over the weekend.

It was one of two meets in which Bobcat swimmers participated last weekend. The Bobcats also swam at the Okemos Seahawks "B-C" meet in Lansing.

Rowlands set the pace at the Bulldog meet, finishing first in the open 200 freestyle (2:00.62), second in the 100 freestyle (55.89) and fourth in the 50 freestyle (25.95). She qualified for the state meet in all three events as well as the 100 butterfly and 500 freestyle.

"Gwen swam a super 200 freestyle, although she didn't better her time," reported Jim McGowan, coach of the Bobcat tankers.

Lynn Leavoy from the Oakland Live Y'ers managed to touch out Rowlands in the 50 freestyle, just as she did at the Michigan High School Athletic Association Class A state championships last year.

"It was a good race," remarked McGowan. "Gwen has already qualified in the 50 free for the junior nationals at Tuscaloosa, Ala., and is working hard to get her times down to qualify in her other freestyle events."

Alana Marron also qualified for the state meet in the Churchill pool. Marron came to the meet to qualify for the 50 backstroke in the girls 10-and-under division and achieved her goal with a time of 38.63.

Two other Bobcats stood out at the Bulldog meet. Swimming in the 10-and-under division, Erich Kelly placed third in the 200 freestyle (2:21.62), fourth in the 100 free (1:06.39), sixth in the 50 free (30.87) and sixth in the 200 individual medley (2:47.39). Chris Marron placed fifth in the 100 butterfly (1:21.75).

Both boys already have qualified for the state meet in their events.

John Farrar paced the Bobcats at the Okemos Seahawk meet. He finished second in the 50 backstroke (35.70) and fourth in the 50 freestyle (30.40).

Pat Marron, president of the Novi Bobcat Swim Association, reported that the team will have a busy schedule of meets during February to get final qualifying times for the state meets and Junior Olympics. They also will be hosting their own Bobcat "B" Meet at Novi High School on Jan. 30-31.

Anyone interested in more information about membership on the Bobcat swim team may call Marron at 348-3819 or Karen Kelly at 349-3429.

Injuries and illness can't stop OLV cagers

Despite being hampered by injury and illness, the Our Lady of Victory 7th-8th grade girls basketball team continued to overpower league opponents. The latest win was a 29-19 victory over St. Michael's of Livonia.

Karen Pump led all scorers with nine points and Susie Weidenbach chipped in with eight. St. Michael kept the game close until midway through the third quarter when Leah Criner, Mary Grace Yankowski and Pump reeled off 11 unanswered points to put the game out of reach.

Tammy Snider (flu) and Yankowski (mild concussion) were doubtful starters but played anyway. Heather Humphrey (flu) and Katie Wright (broken ankle) did not make the trip.

OLV is still on top of its division with a perfect 5-0 record. The victory guarantees OLV a berth in the Catholic League playoffs.

Record/Chris Boyd

Mustang swimmers turn back Chargers

For the first time since 1985, the Northville boys swim team managed to beat key division rival Livonia Churchill Jan. 14.

The Mustangs took just six firsts in the meet, but managed to outpoint the Chargers on a number of occasions with superior depth. The 100-72 victory ups Northville season record to 3-1 overall, 1-1 in the WLAA.

"I was real pleased," said first-year Mustang Coach Mark Heiden. "Churchill's been a rival of ours for years, I'm told, and it's been a while since we've beaten them. The kids were very pleased with themselves."

Sophomore Andy Wayne had a fine outing, winning the 100-yard backstroke (1:01.9) and dropping a full three seconds from his previous personal best time. Wayne was also a member of the winning 200 medley relay team along with John Warren, Andy Viskantis and Mike Fortenberry (1:49.5).

Freshman Eric Newton continued his winning streak in the 200 freestyle with a time of 1:53.0. Newton also added a second in the 500 freestyle (5:04.9) and was a member of the winning 400 freestyle relay squad with Fortenberry, Jeff Higgins and Craig Smith. Viskantis placed first in the 100 butterfly (58.4) and Smith was the winner in the 100 freestyle (52.7) to provide the team's final two victories. Smith added a second in the 50 freestyle (24.0).

John Warren was second in the 200 IM (2:15.3) and the 100 breast stroke (1:08.2); Higgins was second in the 200 freestyle (2:03.2) and the 100 freestyle (55.0); and, diver Rob Devyak was runner-up with 179.45 points.

The Mustang thirds came from Fortenberry in the 50 freestyle (24.7), Steve Lang in diving (175.00 points), Jason Stringer in the 100 butterfly (1:02.9), Dave Morante in the 100 backstroke (1:05.6) and Dave Frayne in the 100 breast stroke (1:14.5).

"I wasn't surprised we won because we have the talent," Heiden said. "These kids work hard in practice and it's paying off. They just keep going faster and faster."

Northville's next big test comes this evening when Plymouth Canton comes to town for a Western Division clash.

Vikings start strong, dump spikers in two

The Northville spikers performed better as their match with Walled Lake Central continued — but it was all over too quickly.

Mustang Coach Paul Osborn saw a poor performance in game one turn into a much better effort in game two. At that rate, game three would have been super for Northville but the team never got that far. The powerful Vikings came back to win game two and ran away with a 15-5, 15-13 Western Lakes league victory on Jan. 14.

"I thought we'd give them a tougher battle in the first game than we did," Osborn said. "We should have played the first game like we did the second one."

The massacre in game one was more the result of Mustang turnovers than anything Walled Lake Central did. A combination of mistakes and bad judgment plagued Northville.

"Of Central's 15 points in the first game, 10 were due to our errors," Osborn pointed out. "Hitting the net, stepping over the line, missing serves — things of this nature really hurt us. It's court awareness problems."

Osborn made a few adjustments for game two and they eventually worked. Senior Katie Brugman was setting the ball too close to the net in game one, but she corrected the problem. The Vikings jumped out to an 11-3 lead but Northville came back strong with 10 straight points.

"We were up 13-11 but we broke down again," Osborn admitted. "I told the girls after the match that they have nothing to be ashamed of. They are learning a whole new philosophy and it's going to take some time. They demonstrated in that second game that they can come back — they passed better and set up the plays better than in the first game. It was starting to click."

Northville connected on 83 percent from the service line in the game and was successful 68 percent of the time on hits. But the team added 41 ballhandling errors in the match, including some poor service reception. Individually, Brugman was perfect on all her serves and was 18-of-21 on set attempts. Denise Akroush paced the front line with six hits in eight tries.

Northville (1-1 overall) will host Livonia Stevenson on Jan. 25.

Townsend said he thought his squad wrestled rather sloppily at the Novi Invite, but the level of competition was very stiff. The highlight of the day for the Mustangs was Andy Frey's individual title, but the team could only manage a fourth-place tie in the six-team event.

"We didn't do all that well," Townsend said.

In the first dual meet, Novi crushed Northville 51-11 as the Mustangs managed just three victories and a draw in 13 bouts. Malszewski (119), Frey (126) and John Frisbie (138) were the lone winners. Potter (145) battled to a draw.

"Novi is a very fine team," Townsend said. "They are probably the best in this area and maybe one of the best in the state."

The Mustangs took an early lead in the next dual meet with fellow WLAA Western Division foe Walled Lake Western, but a late collapse enabled the Warriors to pull out a 37-34 win. Northville won six of the first 10 bouts, but ended up getting pinned in succession in the final three contests. The Mustang winners included Kevin Khashan (98), Chad Bosscher (112), Frey, Frisbie, Potter and Campbell (167).

In round three, Northville fell to Gibraltar Carlson 43-27 as Frey, Frisbie, Potter, Campbell and Hale were all individual winners. The Mustangs did come back with a win and a tie in the final two dual meets, however, as North Farmington fell 36-33 and Southfield battled Northville to a 31-31 deadlock. Double winners in those two contests included Khashan, Mike Mathes, Frey and Forbinger.

Frey's title at 126 paced the Northville contingent individually. Frisbie, Potter and Campbell each lost just once to grab runner-up honors, while Khashan and Hale added two third-place finishes.

"Andy Frey is just a super wrestler," Townsend said. "He has excellent technique and he possesses great speed."

Walking offers few drawbacks

Running isn't for everyone. But walking is, even for those with lung or breathing ailments. Walking is also a booming sport.

Running has about peaked, say those involved in putting on races, and according to the shoe companies, whose sales have declined recently. And race-walking appeals to only a small percentage of the population.

But walking is a growth sport, as millions of formerly sedentary Americans find out about the benefits of that exercise without many of the drawbacks of more vigorous activities.

You don't twist ankles or pound your knees on concrete. You don't have to learn any skills to walk — not if you're older than 18 months or so, and if you're reading this, presumably you're over that age limit.

Kathy Robinson, the program services manager for American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan, says that walking is an ideal exercise even for those suffering from chronic lung ailments.

"The more active you are, despite chronic lung disease, the better off you are," she said. "Some people have problems breathing, so they stop exercising. When they stop exercising, their muscles get even weaker and they have more trouble breathing. It's a vicious cycle."

The benefits of walking are the same for the healthy as for the weak. "It makes your heart work and it increases your breathing capacity. It gets your heart more efficient at pumping blood," said Robinson.

"If a car is finely tuned and the carbon is cleaned out, it runs good and gets good mileage. It's the same with the heart. It is designed to work efficiently when it is worked to capacity. You can get as much benefit or more by walking as you can by going to the club for a workout."

According to the Michigan Department of Public Health, a good walking program should involve 20-30 minutes of vigorous walking at least three times a week. In addition to strengthening the heart, walking improves circulation, lowers the blood pressure, burns up to 300 calories an hour, improves flexibility and may even delay the aging process.

Oh, yes, it's fun, too, especially in a place like Hines Park on a spring day with the fruit trees blossoming and the sun gleaming through the bright green leaves of hardwoods.

Though walking is something that comes naturally to most everyone, there are a few tips to learn to get the most out of the sport.

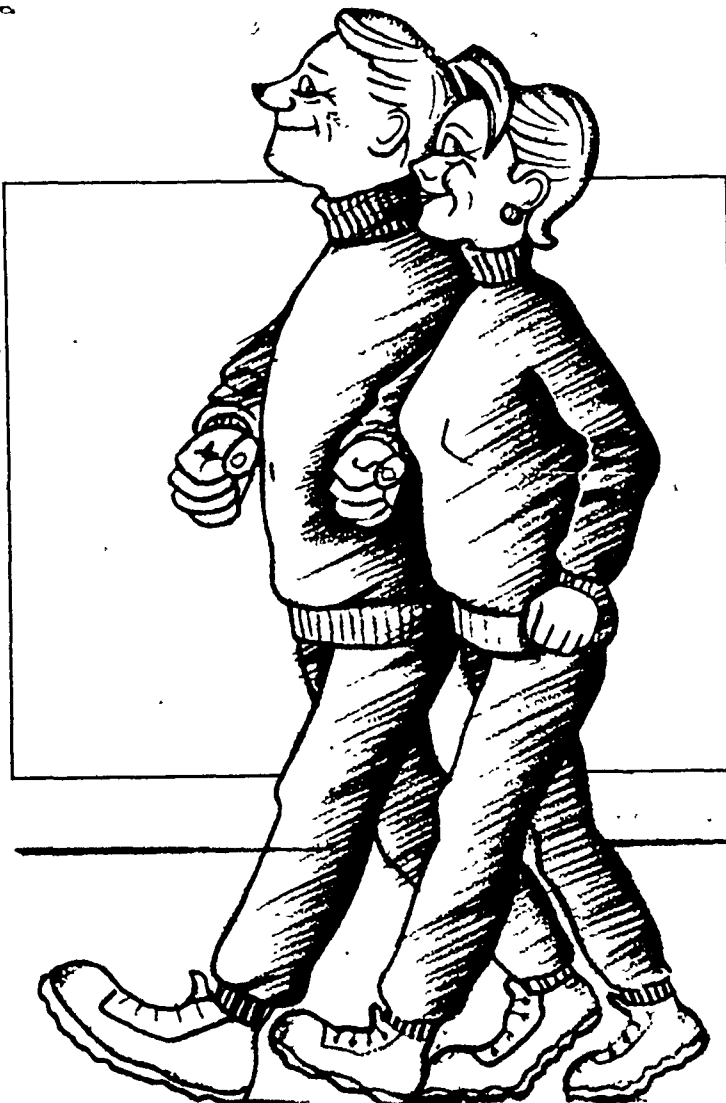

"Belly in, chest out, neck and shoulders up, and keep your arms at your side, letting them swing and sway to the rhythm of your wog," says Dr. Thomas Patrick. Wog? That's a term he coined for walking fast.

You may need to invest $40 or $50 in a good pair of hiking shoes, too. Running shoes will suffice, but they aren't built with much side-to-side support, and if you are going to be doing any walking on trails or hills, you may need more support than jogging shoes offer.

The College of Medicine at the University of Nebraska has compiled tips on breathing during brisk walking.

□ Inhale through your nose. This warms and moisturizes the air and filters it. Exhale through pursed lips.

□ Don't get in the habit of taking extra deep breaths. Concentrate instead on emptying your lungs, not filling them up.

□ Pause after you inhale. This permits more complete lung action, where the oxygen you inhale is exchanged for the carbon dioxide you exhale.

□ Inhale for two seconds and exhale for four. If this is uncomfortable, inhale for 1½ seconds and exhale for 3.

□ Never walk up stairs on the balls of your feet. Place the whole foot flat on each step.

□ Don't step up while inhaling. Exhale as your step up.

□ Don't overdo. If it's too much work, you are likely to quit.

Fitness Tips

Premier winter exercise: cross country skiing

By EILEEN MURPHY, M.D.

Maintaining an exercise program at any time of year can be challenging, but winter can make this particularly difficult. With a little motivation, however, exercise can turn a long season into one which is enjoyable. It can also help prevent us from putting on those extra pounds which come with the holidays and never seem to disappear.

One of the best winter exercises is cross-country skiing. It's a great form of exercise that has no age limitations and is easy to learn. All you have to do is know how to walk and you can get started. Cross-country skiing also enables you to enjoy the beauty of Michigan's winter landscape. In addition, it can be a social activity with family or friends, or a relaxing way to be by yourself.

The health benefits from cross-country skiing are multiple. It can be a great form of aerobic exercise if done at least three times a week for approximately 15-30 minutes. It uses fat as its major energy source and you can burn from 300-1000 calories in an hour depending on the individual and the pace. It uses all major muscles in your body and thus increases muscular strength and endurance. This can result not only in weight loss but muscle toning and loss of inches as well. It is also gentle on joints and connective tissue decreasing your risk for injury.

It is important to apply the basic rules of exercise to minimize your risk of injury. This includes periods of warm up, stretching and cooling down. A warm up should take place for approximately 5-10 minutes before stretching. This increases circulation through your body which, in turn, increases your body temperature and oxygen delivery to your muscles. A warm up should concentrate on the body parts to be used in your exercise. For cross-country skiing this may mean skiing at a lower intensity initially.

After warming up, stretch for 5-10 minutes. Again concentrate on the muscles you will use. Stretch to a point of pain free tension and hold for 20-30 seconds. Do not bounce or push to the point of pain. Breathe slowly and smoothly. Now you are ready to start.

After you've finished your exercise it's important to cool down. This involves the same activity as warming up with stretching for 5-10 minutes. This helps prevent muscle soreness and promotes flexibility and relaxation.

As with any exercise, it's important to use common sense. Start out slowly and gradually increase your length and intensity of exercise. Know the area you're skiing and avoid steep inclines and ice if you are a beginning skier. Most importantly dress properly. Always cover your head and neck as you have your greatest heat loss from this area. Dress in layers, removing or adding as needed. Finally, be sure clothing is not too tight. This impedes circulation and causes fatigue and coldness.

Unfortunately we can only give you a brief introduction. We hope this is enough to encourage you to start. A more detailed booklet is available at the University of Michigan Northville Health Center. Please stop by for your free copy.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.

from Howard Miller to you!

A grandfather clock is the most distinctive home accent you may ever own. It has heirloom appeal and, by some, is considered a collectible. Because floor clocks are such cherished possessions, Howard Miller includes a solid brass plate with every grandfather clock. Your name and date of purchase will be engraved on the plate and once applied to the clock symbolizes, the "Start of a Proud Family Tradition."
