Solution nearing on sewer

By ANITA CRONE

One week from today Northville Township will know whether it has a plan to transport its sewerage to the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority plant in Ypsilanti.

"We are definitely on the agenda (of the Water Resources Commission)," said an attorney representing the Western Townships Utility Authority, of which Northville Township is a member. Other WTUA members include Plymouth and Canton townships.

But while the three townships are waiting for a thumbs up or thumbs down from the commission, which will determine whether YCUA can expand from its current 29 million gallons per day capacity to a potential 58 million gallons per day, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources is investigating whether the City of Novi is exceeding its purchased capacity in the North Huron

Township takes first step toward a woodlands law

By ANITA CRONE

Northville Township has taken the first step toward creating a woodlands ordinance.

In a meeting last week, representatives of the township administration, the planning commission and beautification commission determined that a woodlands ordinance would be beneficial and could protect the township's natural resources.

Richard Allen, a trustee and planning commission member, noted that the initial meeting was very preliminary. "I think it would be accurate to say that we had a discussion that was a preliminary potential investigation," he said.

Also in attendance were Pat Wright, a member of the planning commission; Matt Modrack, director of community development; Carole Pappas, Wray Pomeroy and Catherine "Tina" Sellas from the beautification commission, and Steve Brock, township manager.

Allen said that one of the first priorities would be to have an aerial survey to locate the trees, followed by a lot of foot work. Funding for the survey could come from block grant monies; however, Modrack said that already there are more requests for block grant projects than there is money.

Supervisor Georgina Goss estimated that it would cost $17,000 to complete the inventory.

The adhoc committee currently is reviewing woodlands ordinances from other communities, including surveys from Farmington Hills and Novi.

"There is no timetable to complete the survey or even to complete the inventory," said Allen.

Modrack said now is the perfect time to undertake the effort since the township, while touring the property that formerly housed the Wayne County Child Development Center, a stand of woods was located.

"We know about that stand, but what we don't know is where other trees and woodlands worth preserving are located," Modrack said.

"The planning commission and the beautification commission already have indicated that there is a concern for preserving the natural resources in the township."

"We opted to look at woodlands rather than wetlands since the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has a pretty good handle on wetlands," added Modrack.

Woman stops for 'police,' finds robber

A 23-year-old Northville woman who stopped for what she thought was a police car was robbed at gunpoint Feb. 4.

The woman who waited until the following morning, Feb. 5, to report the incident to police, said that she had been at a workout, had stopped at a Farmington Hills restaurant, then at the A & P on Seven Mile road and never noticed a car behind her.

However, while traveling northbound on Silver Spring Drive about 11:30 p.m., she noticed another vehicle less than a car length behind her, flashing its headlights and shining a spotlight into her car. The woman said the spotlight was mounted on the driver's side of the trailing vehicle.

The woman said she pulled over to the curb, rolled down her window and, thinking that the car was a police car, and its occupant a police officer, was looking in her purse for her driver's license.

She said a male subject approached her car and demanded her money and her jewelry. The woman said the man held a flashlight under his arm and she could not identify him, but she did see a gun in his hand.

Although the woman could not identify the man, she told detective Michael Panagiotides that he was wearing a dark, police-type jacket and dark pants.

The man took about $11 in cash, necklaces, a bracelet and rings valued at more than $2,400.

Township officers expressed some concern about the incident.

"Usually, if there is a police officer or law enforcement official involved, there will be a red or blue flashing light on the car," explained Capt. Philip Presnell.

"But, there is a thin line. I would caution people if they have any questions at all to proceed to a well-lit area before stopping."

Presnell said that incidents where people think they are being stopped by a police officer and instead are robbed are not common, but do occur.

"Usually we'll get one or two reports a year through our computer," he said, adding that the incident that occurred Feb. 4 was the first reported in the township.

Statistics show slight increases in crime in city

Year-end counts of crimes reported in the City of Northville showed numbers pretty close to what they were the year before.

Major crimes reported during 1987 were up five incidents from 1986, 247 as compared to 242, according to the police department's report for December.

No homicides were reported in either year. No rapes were reported in 1987, compared to one report in 1986.

Reported robberies dropped from two in 1986 to one in 1987, but aggravated assaults went from three reported incidents to nine.

Burglary reports increased from 31 to 35, and larcenies from 176 to 190. Auto theft reports dropped from 17 in 1986 to nine last year.

Arson reports fell from 12 to three.

Among less serious crimes, reports of malicious destruction of property rose from 113 to 146. Moving violations issued went down from 2,605 to 2,592. Parking violations also fell, from 4,322 to 3,990.

Commissions sign up for scrutiny

The ordinance regulating signs in the City of Northville could see some changes in the fairly near future.

Members of the city's planning commission and historic district commission have begun a series of monthly meetings to review the city sign ordinance for possible changes. The group, dubbed the "Last Thursday of the Month Club" at the planning commission meeting last week, may end up recommending specific changes in the ordinance for the city council to consider.

At the planning commission meeting Feb. 2, commission vice chairperson John Hardin reported that initial discussion of the sign ordinance was productive.

Commissioner Greg Presley, who also attended the "last Thursday" meeting, said that a lot of consensus was reached during the three-hour meeting.

Specific suggestions made at the meeting, as summarized in the minutes, deal with several different aspects of the ordinance. The suggestions have not been considered for recommendation or adoption by any city body yet, but may provide a basis for additional discussion and eventual action.

The items include:

- Expanding the aesthetic control of the Historic District Commission to all signs within the district, and possibly stretching the boundaries of the historic district out to the city limits at certain points. This would allow the historic district commission to work on entrance signs for the city.

- Giving the planning commission more authority over signs outside the historic district.

- Changing the sign ordinance's restrictions on free-standing pole signs in several ways, including:

- Changing the 35 foot height limit to 12 feet.

- Changing the limit on sign area from a formula — based on distance from the street — to a straight 24-square-foot limit.

- Prohibiting internally lit freestanding signs and neon freestanding signs.

- Specifically permitting directional (enter or exit) signs of generic style and four square foot maximum size.

- Changing the restrictions on wall signs in several ways, including:

- Reducing the allowed size from 2.5 square feet per lineal foot of building frontage (or 1.5 square feet if there is a secondary sign) to .5 square feet per lineal foot of building frontage.

- Allowing one identification sign per business in a building.

- Allowing second-story commercial tenants an additional six feet of sign at the entrance.

The next joint meeting of the planning commission and historic district commission is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25. The meeting is open.

After the group finishes discussion of the sign ordinance, it is charged with considering the city's fence ordinance in similar fashion.

WRC holds key to sewer plan

Valley/Rouge Valley system.

An engineer with the DNR said Monday that an actual visit Wednesday to the metering site at River Street and Seven Mile Road revealed that Novi's flow from that station "on that particular day at that particular time was over the four cubic feet per second that they have purchased."

The engineer said the DNR has asked Novi to file weekly flow charts with the department. The city currently files its reports quarterly.

The City of Northville also has meters at the River Road/Seven Mile Road site, but, using the same calculations that Novi uses, is not over its purchased capacity, the engineer said.

"What happens is that the flow coming in from Northville is metered and the outflow from the site is also metered. The difference is Novi's flow," he said.

Novi and the City of Northville have signed agreements to participate in the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley facilities program, also known as super sewer.

That project is currently under review by the DNR.

The three townships have opted out of super sewer and are awaiting Water Resources Approval for YCUA expansion in order to begin work on their sewer project.

"We'd like to have a prepackaged deal that everyone — the DNR, YCUIA and we — are comfortable with. But if that's not possible, we'll discuss it during the commission meeting," the WTUA attorney said.

He added that if approval is given by the Water Resources Commission, the next step for WTUA would be to finalize its contract with YCUA.

"I would expect the DNR to begin working on abatement orders at the same time," he said, noting that the orders issued for other projects include a time frame for completion.

"I know the DNR is very interested in getting things rolling on retention basins," the attorney said, adding that the basin construction is necessary to equalize flows to YCUA.

Deputy slain, Wixom man charged

By ANNE E. WILLIS

A Wayne County Sheriff's deputy, Russell Francis Dickson, 36, of Livonia, was found dead in Wixom last Sunday, Feb. 7.

A Wixom resident, Henry L. Johnson Jr., 58, was arrested at his home later that same day Johnson was arraigned on charges of open murder and possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony in 52nd District Court on Monday, Feb. 8.

According to a statement released by the Wixom police department, Dickson was found by Wixom police officer James Osborne at approximately 5:58 a.m. Sunday. Osborne had been dispatched to the area of Twelve Mile Road east of Napier in Wixom on a call of an injury accident.

Osborne found Dickson lying face down in the roadway at the scene. A check by the officer and medical technicians at the scene determined that Dickson was deceased. The police report noted an initial report of massive injuries to the head area.

A check for identification found that the man, Dickson, was employed by the Wayne County Sheriff's department as a deputy.

The crime lab division of the Northville State Police was dispatched to the area. An investigator from the Oakland County Medical Examiner's office took charge of the victim for transport and autopsy.

Canceling school is no flaky decision

By BRENDA BONZHEIM

On howling, blizzardy, winter nights when most people are tucked warmly in their beds, a handful of local school officials often brave the cold temperatures to carefully monitor road conditions.

In Northville and Novi, the final decision about closing school rests on the shoulders of school superintendents George Bell and Robert Piwko. However, several men behind the scenes provide the information on which that decision is based.

Burton Knighton, assistant superintendent for administrative services at Northville schools, explained that the administrative assistant for operations and the head mechanic routinely conduct road checks of the entire school district when winter storms occur. These two men remain on the lookout until the early morning hours if a storm arrives in the evening.

In Novi, Assistant Superintendent

William Barr and the district's maintenance and transportation directors drive down the roads to determine if they're safe enough for school buses to travel.

"Safety is our number one priority in determining whether or not to close school," Piwko said. "We look at a variety of factors, but the safety of our students is the ultimate one."

Knighton and Barr stay in close contact with the school staff during winter storms to see if roads may be potentially severe at the break of a school day morning.

"If it looks like it would not be wise to run the school buses because they can't travel the roads safely, I'll call the superintendent with a report," Knighton said. "We then contact the local and state police posts to get further input and at that point we try to make a final decision on whether or not to close the schools."

Knighton had the opportunity to test his operation Feb. 3 and 4, when

Victim screams for help, foils purse-snatching try

A Farmington Hills woman was pushed to the ground Feb. 2 when she refused to give a white male her purse after he demanded it at about 6:15 p.m.

The woman, who returned to her home before contacting officers, said she was loading packages in her trunk and had her purse on her left shoulder as she finished shopping at Meijer's at Eight Mile and Haggerty. She turned around, she said, and noticed the subject, whom she described as a white male, possibly in his 20s, standing directly behind her with his hand in his pocket.

The woman told officer Matthew Mayes that the man told her, "If you don't give me your purse, I'll kill you."

She said the man grabbed for the purse, but the woman began screaming and pushed the subject. She added that the man grabbed her glasses, threw them to the ground, and ran off to a waiting vehicle.

Township police have no suspects in the incident.

PICKING UP WORK — A man who told construction workers he wanted a job, didn't get any employment Jan. 27, but he did get some transportation — a 1977 Chevy Luv pickup belonging to the construction company working at the site.

According to construction workers interviewed following the incident, the suspect, described as a white male in his mid-20s, wearing jeans, a blue jacket and tennis shoes, had gone to a job site at Parklane and Knightsford, apparently looking for a job

The workers became suspicious and called township police, but by the time the officers arrived, the suspect had driven off in the company pickup.

The truck was valued at $1,000 and was entered into the police computer as stolen.

DEER KILLED — A hit and run driver struck a deer on Seven Mile Road near Northville Road, Feb. 2, sped off and left the injured animal in the roadway.

When township officer Charles Cole arrived on the scene at 7:35 p.m., the animal was struggling to get to its feet.

Cole said in his report that the animal was bleeding from lacerations to its hind quarters. Since the animal was unable to regain its footing, Cole destroyed the deer with a single shot from his service revolver.

WIRED — A South Lyon man is facing theft charges for taking about 100 feet of coiled aluminum wire belonging to Detroit Edison.

Township officer William Helke said in his report that he had received radio communication from officer William Harrison regarding a possibly disabled pickup truck on the shoulder of westbound Six Mile east of Whitehaven.

Helke said he observed fresh snow tracks and a single set of tail lights. When he approached the vehicle, at about 1:59 a.m. Feb. 4, Helke said it turned out to be a pickup truck without a license plate.

Helke said he stopped the vehicle and found the wire in the rear of the truck.

He said he asked the truck driver to accompany him to the township police department, where officers contacted Edison regarding the wire.

An Edison representative identified the wire as the company's, and the South Lyon man was notified that township officers would be requesting a warrant from the Wayne County Prosecutor's office.

TV STOLEN — A color television, valued at $200, was reported stolen Jan. 27 from a residence on Wintergreen.

The complainant said that the television, which was in the basement, was the only item taken from the home during the breaking, which occurred between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Entry to the residence was gained through an unlocked doorwall.

BREAK-IN THWARTED — An attempt to break into an Innsbrook Apartment went awry Jan. 26 when the perpetrators discovered that they were trying to break into an occupied apartment.

According to a township police report, the complainant heard voices outside her apartment and moments later heard two loud bangs against her door.

She told officers that she then heard someone say, "Oh s—. They're home."

The woman said no one gained entry to her home, however, damage to the front door of the apartment was estimated at $80.

Police are continuing to investigate.

Armed robbery nets a Mercedes from Novi mall parking lot

The Novi Police Department is seeking a black man in his mid-20s for stealing a car from a Farmington Hills man at gunpoint on Feb. 4 in a parking lot at Twelve Oaks Mall.

The armed robbery occurred about 8:50 p.m. in the mall's Lord & Taylor parking lot when the suspect allegedly approached a 39-year-old Farmington Hills man and his daughter with a sawed-off shotgun and ordered them to get out of a 1987 black four-door Mercedes while leaving the keys inside, police said.

After ordering the man and his daughter out of the car, the suspect got into the Mercedes and drove away, according to police reports.

The man and his daughter were not hurt in the incident and no attempt was made to take his wallet or personal items.

The suspect is described as a black male in his mid-20s with medium dark skin, about 5-feet 7-inches to 5-feet 10-inches tall, weighing about 150 pounds, with a light mustache and a rough complexion. Police composite drawings indicate the suspect has long, messy straight black hair that is worn combed back. The man was wearing a knee-length gray coat at the time of the robbery, according to witnesses.

Police records state that the suspect concealed the sawed-off shotgun under his coat and exposed it to the victims when speaking to them. The shotgun apparently has a shiny barrel and may be made of nickel.

A dirty mid-size gray car in poor condition, possibly a 1975 General Motors model, may have been involved in the robbery, police said. The suspicious car was parked directly behind the Mercedes at the time of the incident.

The stolen Mercedes, valued at $35,000, was recovered by Detroit police on Feb. 7.

To report information about the robbery or the suspect, contact the Novi Police Department.

Commission, county executive differ on jail funding plans

A Wayne County commissioner says voters should be asked for 2 mills to pay for jail expansion and anti-crime programs.

But the county executive's office says the county might be able to add prisoner space without a tax increase.

Commissioner George Cushingberry, D-Detroit, proposed asking voters for a 2-mill increase Thursday. The proposal, he said, could appear on the November ballot. The new tax would be collected for 10 years, beginning in 1989.

"We either have to find a revenue source or go ask the taxpayers for money," Cushingberry said. "We can talk about it all we want, but sooner or later we're going to have to come up with the money."

The increase would raise an estimated $38 million annually. It would amount to $75 a year for people living in $75,000 houses.

The money could be used for youth camps, mental health counseling and for the prosecutor's office, Cushingberry said, as well as expand the county jail.

Commissioners received the proposal without comment. The proposal is expected to be submitted to

"We either have to find a revenue source or go ask the taxpayers for money. We can talk about it all we want, but sooner or later we're going to have to come up with the money."

— George Cushingberry County commissioner

the commission's committee on Public Safety and Judiciary for review.

Regardless of its fate, Cushingberry said the proposal is a way of promoting discussion of anti-crime measures.

"If anything else comes up in the way of funding, fine," Cushingberry said. "But I want to be the ramrod. I want to go back and tell my constituents I've done my best."

A spokesman for county executive Edward McNamara, however, said the county could hold more criminals without seeking new taxes.

We are committed to seeing fewer prisoners being released," deputy executive Michael Duggan said. "But we are not convinced the solution is to raise taxes."

A court-appointed monitor is reviewing jail space, Duggan said. The monitor's recommendations could include ways to speed up the Detroit Records Court docket.

"The faster Recorder's Court clears its docket, the faster we can get people out of the county jail and into Jackson," Duggan said.

Records Court tries criminal cases occurring within the city.

Sheriff Robert Ficano, who proposed adding a third prisoner to county jail cells, said he couldn't comment without learning the specifics of Cushingberry's proposal.

Office plan OK'd

By BOB NEEDHAM

A plan to build an addition on an insurance office downtown has received two of its necessary approvals from city officials.

Wes Henrikson, who runs the Henrikson Insurance Agency in a building at 311 E. Main St., has applied to the city to tear down a garage on his property and build an addition and a new porch.

Tuesday, Feb. 2, Henrikson's proposal won a preliminary, conditional approval from the city planning commission. One of the conditions was approval from the city board of zoning appeals, which okayed the plan the following night.

At the planning commission meeting, several commissioners repeated objections to the plan which had been raised in past meetings. Problems included a question of whether the plan provided adequate drainage, the fact that property elevations were not drawn on the plans, tight parking behind the building, and a technicality required screening fence at the rear of the site.

Other issues raised at earlier meetings — including outside lighting and a question of whether enough fire exits were planned — were resolved to the satisfaction of commission members.

Drainage was a major sticking point. Henrikson's architect, Erick Carne, said that rainwater will drain to a gutter on Main Street and into a new dry well behind the building.

Several commission members, McNeely-Lincoln Associates, the city's consulting engineers, said the plan needed grades drawn on it to show how water will flow. Henrikson has said the city has copies of the grades on the land on another document.

"You're saying that we don't have a fully engineered plan. That's partly true, but a good deal of thought has gone into the drainage plan," Carne said.

Some members of the commission worried that a lot of water might drain into the street and form ice during winter. Commissioner Michael Kowalski responded, "This building is here today. This has not caused a flood problem. I don't see where there's going to be any more runoff than there is today. Not only that, but tomorrow we'll have a dry well that we don't have today."

Planning Consultant Ron Nino said sheet drainage to the street could be a problem, but agreed with Kowalski that the addition will not affect the present situation.

Another snag was a clause in the city zoning ordinance that requires a screening wall between land zoned commercial — like Henrikson's — and land zoned residential, which is the designation on the land behind his.

The clause is intended to shield homes from businesses. But the land drops sharply at the rear of Henrikson's property, creating a natural screen. And even though the land behind his is zoned residential, it is currently a vacant lot next to a Ford Motor Company parking lot.

Commission Vice Chairperson John Hardin said the restriction makes no sense in this case, but the ordinance does include it.

City Manager Steve Walters said, "This has come up before and it's been just as illogical before."

Another issue discussed at the meeting was a letter from the owner of the Plagens building next to Henrikson's. The letter gives Henrikson permission to use about three and a half feet of the Plagens land for his driveway, but commission members said they felt uncertain about the legal status of the letter.

Eventually, the commission awarded preliminary approval to Henrikson's plan, conditioned on the drawing of elevations on the plan; assurance from McNeely-Lincoln that the dry well will be adequate; a letter from the city attorney approving the letter from Plagens; permission from the board of zoning appeals to go without a screening wall; a revision to the parking plan; and, assuming the Plagens letter is acceptable, keeping a grass strip near the driveway.

The commission then voted 6-0 to recommend the BZA award Henrikson the variance for the screen wall.

They're Back

Last year, plans were unveiled for a medical office to be made from two existing houses on South Main Street. But the city later gave permission for the buildings to be torn down, because of structural weaknesses, and replaced. The new version, which will soon open its doors as a doctors' clinic, is shown above.

No firm plans yet for Schrader's site

The new owner of the Schrader's Home Furnishings building on North Center is not quite ready to announce detailed plans for the building.

Gary George said Monday that he is still working with his architect/partner, Dan DiComo, to determine the best way to use the building. They plan to divide the store into several smaller stores, but are still working on an exact layout, George said.

The Schrader's building was on the agenda of the city planning commission last Tuesday, but was removed from the agenda at the start of the meeting. George said there was also some uncertainty about required parking for the building.

According to the building permit filed with the city, George and DiComo plan to use the basement and first floor of the building for leased retail space, and the second floor for office space.

The building has a total of 17,924 square feet of floor area.

WHEEL-F F-RT-N!

Northville resident tries for the big money in show airing tomorrow

By BOB NEEDHAM

Every weeknight, thousands of people across the country tune in to watch contestants compete on the "Wheel of Fortune" game show. Tomorrow night, they'll see a contestant from Northville.

Nancy Odom, a resident of Lexington Commons North off Taft and Eight Mile, heard an announcement on television that "Wheel of Fortune" would be auditioning contestants in the area. She called the number and quickly got through, although a relative of hers got a busy signal for two days.

The show auditioned 800 people at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn last May. The representatives from the show saw 100 people each hour, Odom said.

"First you take a written test. From the 100, at least 80 of them are gone" after the test, she said.

The written test was made up of puzzles like those on the show. "You look at them and think, 'I don't know anything,' but then they start coming to you," Odom said.

Next the potential contestants are interviewed, and finally play mock games. "I had done well in all the games I had played, but even that doesn't mean you will get on the program," she said.

The show looks for a characteristic that makes a contestant stand out from others, Odom said. In her own case, they seemed to like the fact that she is a grandmother.

After a strike interrupted production — and interfered with Odom's hopes to combine an appearance on the show with a trip to visit relatives — the show finally accepted her for an appearance Jan. 11.

Odom and her husband, Howard, flew out to California Jan. 9, she said. The producers tape five shows in a day, and schedule 17 people for the 15 available spots. So a contestant still isn't guaranteed an appearance that day, Odom said.

The actual contestants who will appear on a show are chosen randomly

"It's all like a dream. I never guessed I would be as nervous as I was."

— Nancy Odom
Wheel of Fortune contestant

from the 17

Odom said it's a little hard to believe when people say who have been on a show say how nice everyone connected with the show is. But, "They really are the nicest people. They're just as patient and as nice as can be," she said.

The Odoms were asked to be at the studio by 12:30 p.m., although shooting did not start until 4.

The contestants get a little makeup, and get to see the prizes ahead of time. One attraction at Odom's show was a $75,000 Russian sable coat — and she couldn't resist trying it on. "It was on the floor and the sleeves completely covered my arms, but I put on that coat," she laughed.

Odom said things around the set are so busy, no one really gets a chance to talk to the show's hosts, Pat Sajak and Vanna White.

"They are so busy while they're taping those shows... There really is no opportunity to talk to these people," she said.

Finally, Odom was selected for the second of the five games taped that day, and her television career formally began.

The game involves word puzzles which can earn a contestant money. Contestants spin a seven-foot wheel to win money or prizes, but can lose their winnings if the wheel lands on "bankrupt."

I must have been so nervous. I couldn't tell what number was anything (on the wheel)," she said. However, she wasn't really conscious of the cameras or monitors, she said.

Sitting at home, Odom said, it's easy to second-guess the people playing the game. But playing it for real isn't quite as easy as it looks.

The board and the wheel are easier to see on television, for one thing, she said. And for another, when you're playing with real money, you're a lot more careful about going "bankrupt."

"It's all like a dream," Odom said. "I never guessed I would be as nervous as I was."

On her first turn at the wheel, Odom went bankrupt, but then got the next three puzzles. She ended up winning a few thousand dollars, the most of the three people she played against.

At the end of the show she tried to win a white corvette convertible, she said, but didn't get it.

"At least I made enough to pay for my trip, and then some," she commented.

Her experience may even have taught her something about human nature. After the game, Odom said, she thought a lot about different ways she could have played.

"You keep saying, why didn't I do this and why didn't I do that?" she said. "I think human beings' biggest fault is they're never happy with themselves."

Odom's show is scheduled to run tomorrow evening. Locally, "Wheel of Fortune" is shown at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 4.

Geake bills would allow private operation of jails

State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville Township, has introduced a package of bills designed to allow the operation of city and county jails by private corporations.

The bills, 16 in all, were introduced Feb. 3 and the entire package has been referred to the Senate Corrections Committee.

The legislation is the result of a recent Attorney General's opinion that Michigan may not confine those convicted of misdemeanors in a jail owned and operated by a private company. However, the Attorney General stated that the Legislature certainly has the power to change the law.

"At the present time, jail facilities throughout the state, and particularly in Wayne County, are inadequate for the housing of prisoners," said Geake. "This situation has resulted in the inappropriate release of many persons awaiting trial on serious felony charges as well as those already convicted of misdemeanors."

Geake said his bills would allow municipalities to combine forces, build a jail, and allow a private company to run it.

He said the bills apply only to municipalities — counties, cities and townships — and not to the State of Michigan.

— Robert Geake
state senator

Recently, there have been proposals made by private corporations to build and operate jails, and, in Oakland County, Daniel Murphy, the county executive, has recommended studying such action.

"It is obvious to me that the state needs more jail space. If private companies can come in and safely and effectively operate a prison for less money than it costs the state to operate the prison, we should give the companies that opportunity," Geake said.

"This appears to me to be an area of privatization where the private and the public sector can work together for the good of the citizens of Michigan," he concluded.

Not everyone is happy with Geake's proposal.

"I really think we need to look seriously at how this would apply to western Wayne County," said state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth.

"We already have a number of jails out here (in Northville and Plymouth townships) and I would not like to see the City of Detroit put another jail — a city jail — out here on land it currently owns."

Northville Township Chief of Police Kenneth Hardesty said, "I don't have a problem with the legislation. Right now, we (the local communities) can't get a misdemeanor into the Wayne County Jail because it is over crowded. Maybe if there are more jails we could lock up some of these people."

Hardesty said that Oakland County is currently looking at raising the rates it charges local communities to house prisoners in its jail from $22 a night to $52 a night. Wayne County charges $60 per night.

Deciding to declare snow day is sometimes a tough choice

nearly five inches of snow blanketed the area.

He said he was on the phone to Thomas Bailey, administrative assistant for operations, through the night.

"Tom and Jeff Bailey were actually out on the roads, making sure they are passable and the buses can get through. In some ways, George (Bell, superintendent of schools), and I have it easy. We just look out the window. We don't have to go out in bad weather," Knighton said.

Similar procedures are followed in Novi. Piwko also confers with board of education members when there's a possibility that school may be cancelled.

Most of the time, the decision to close schools in the Northville school district is made by 5:30 a.m., Knighton added. Piwko said he tries to make the determination in Novi by 6 a.m.

When deciding to close schools, both Northville and Novi school administrations use the state police computerized network, LEIN, which disseminates the information to the media.

"We have no control over the announcements at all," Knighton pointed out. "Unfortunately, when we call at 5 or 5:30 a.m. with the decision to close school, it often doesn't reach the media until an hour later. And if the determination is made earlier, it still doesn't hit the media until the morning."

The delay in communication commonly prompts parents to call the school offices to see if schools are indeed closed, he said.

"Occasionally we have closed the schools the night before, yet the information wasn't announced until the morning after," Knighton commented.

Area radio and television stations frequently carry school closings on their morning broadcasts and two to three times an hour when weather conditions are severe.

Knighton said the decision to shut school down early when storms whip up during the course of a day is a lot harder to make.

"In many cases, the parents of students aren't home because they're working and that creates a potential safety hazard especially for the young children, so we put a lot more consideration into those decisions," he noted.

Bell said that if the determination is made to close schools during the day, after classes have already started, the district's main concern is with the elementary school youngsters.

"We want to have the buses available to take the elementary school kids home as close to the regular time as possible. If that means letting out the high school or the middle school early so the buses can complete their runs, that's what we do," he said.

Knighton and Piwko urge parents to listen to the radio or television when weather conditions are questionable so they're aware of school closings. They asked that parents be ready to make arrangements if the schools are closed and nobody is at home to greet their children.

On the average, Northville schools are closed one to two days a year, sometimes not at all. Piwko said Novi schools haven't experienced closings for the past two years.

Abnormally, Northville schools may be closed three to four days a year, according to Knighton.

"The word in this business is that you don't want to be the only one either closing schools or keeping them open," Bell said, noting that it is not unusual for him to be in contact with superintendents from neighboring districts.

But once the decision is made, Bell said, the main concern is notifying staff and employees.

"The biggest problem is with the high school. Since they start so early, we want to notify the high school staff before they start pulling into the parking lot at about 6 a.m.," Bell said.

There is a staff fanout telephone procedure, Knighton said, but Bell added it is "almost impossible to notify parents. If you have a breakdown with parents, you have no way of knowing where it occurred," he said.

In addition to inclement weather, other reasons to close school include mechanical failures, power shortages or water boiler breakdowns. In those instances, the decision to close schools is made when the problems arise.

The most unusual school closing occurred a couple of years ago when an ice storm hit the fringes of Northville, Knighton recalled. He said the roads became extremely hazardous because they were glazed with ice and buses couldn't travel west of Taft Road.

However, the storm never quite reached the city limits and parents living within Northville kept calling the office to see why the schools were closed, Knighton said. At the same time, roads in Northville Township were impassable.

Piwko, on the other hand, said he couldn't recall any unusual circumstances under which the Novi schools were closed.

Previously, state laws didn't limit school districts to the number of days they could be closed because snow days were considered acts of God. Within the past few years, the rules have changed.

Knighton said the school districts are now granted a two-day grace period. Any snow days over the two-day limit are required to be made up.

Wixom man arraigned in killing

An autopsy Monday showed that Dickson had died of multiple gunshot wounds to the head, according to the Oakland County Medical Examiner's office.

Johnson, who stood mute during his arraignment, was ordered held without bond. Johnson operates a wood selling business out of his home on Grand River in Wixom. According to Wixom Police Sgt. Richard Howe, police have no motive for the killing but are still investigating the matter.

Evidence compiled by the Forensic Sciences Division of the Criminal Laboratory revealed that the homicide did not occur at the location that the body was discovered. Police have no motive in the killing at this time. The case is still under investigation.

Johnson will face a pre-trial hearing on Feb. 19 at 8:30 a.m. in 52nd District Court in Walled Lake.

Dickson was off-duty at the time of the incident. He was a 13-year veteran of the department who had recently been transferred to road patrol. In 1981 Dickson received the medal of valor, one of the Wayne County Sheriff's department's highest honors, after being shot.

Cross country skiers try out a hill as Kathy Vigna demonstrates

Skiers glide into class

If it's early on a below-zero February Saturday morning, chances are most people will snuggle further down into the blankets and give serious thought to staying in bed all day.

But then they haven't discovered cross country skiing.

If they had, then those same slug-a-beds might have joined 20 of their neighbors out at Maybury Park in Northville for the Novi Parks and Recreation Department's Cross Country Ski Clinic.

On Feb. 6, a hardy band of beginning skiers braved the icy temperatures for almost two hours of introductory instruction in the Nordic skiing technique. Their guide was recreation teacher Patty Smith.

Smith met the class at the warming/concession/ski rental house inside Maybury State Park. She helped the class find skis to fit and gave a brief rundown on the proper clothing to wear skiing. Best bets? Easy-fitting layers of wool and cotton on the inside and a wind-resistant shell of some kind on the outside.

Outside, students put on skis and got the feel of the free-heel bindings of cross country skis. Many in the class had been regular downhill or Alpine skiers and were used to the tighter fit of those bindings. One of the biggest mistakes first-time skiers make, Smith told the class, is not using the bending motion of the foot and staying too stiff on the skis. Bent knees and relaxed bodies are a must, she said.

The group set off on a trial run through groomed trails in the park. The first real test came in the form of a modest hill leading to the playground area at Maybury. Despite a few spills, all were grinning when they gathered at the bottom for more pointers from Smith.

The group learned two methods for going up hill, and one for going down. Smith spoke about turning styles and skating methods while helping each student adjust his/her form.

Donna Nawrot of Northville runs the concession stand and ski rental at the park. She had a fire going by the time the class returned to the building. Nawrot is a longtime cross country skier who used to teach classes herself. "Anybody can learn to ski and can have fun doing it almost immediately," she said.

Wendy and Gordy Swirles of Novi said it was their first time on cross country skis and that they found the whole thing "kind of fun." All members of the class agreed the exercise was great and that they didn't feel the cold while they were moving.

Chuck and Terry Maple of Novi said they were trying cross country skiing because there wasn't enough downhill skiing available. "I'm willing to give it a try," Chuck said.

Ducks Unlimited group kicks off drive in Northville

By BOB NEEDHAM

There are ducks at the Ford plant, ducks on coffee mugs and ducks on T-shirts. Ducks on tote bags, on stationery and on Main Street.

It might have been only a matter of time before Ducks Unlimited came to Northville.

Two area residents, John Becker and Charles Brannon, are trying to start a chapter of the Ducks Unlimited organization in Northville. The men, who have been members of the Plymouth chapter for several years, were asked to start up a new chapter because a chapter in Plymouth has outgrown itself lately.

As Brannon and Becker explain it, Ducks Unlimited is a conservation organization which concentrates on making sure ducks have wild areas in which to live.

"It's a nonprofit organization. They have chapters all over the country (as well as Canada and Mexico) that have annual banquets to raise money. With the proceeds they get from these banquets, they will buy or lease land to turn it back (into a wetland) or to preserve it for wildlife," Brannon explained.

Ducks Unlimited already has 170 chapters in Michigan, Becker said, but the group keeps growing. The Plymouth chapter, with over 100 corporate sponsors and over 500 members, raised $50,000 last year, the second highest total in the state.

Brannon and Becker said they hope a Northville chapter will attract people from Novi, South Lyon, Salem, Farmington, Union Lake and other nearby communities.

Brannon said he and Becker have been organizing the Northville chapter's first banquet for several months, and have now begun selling tickets.

Becker explained that Ducks Unlimited concentrates its money on land within the Pacific, Midwest and Eastern "flyways," popular routes for migrating ducks. "The path they take is pretty constant," he said.

The group buys some land, and also leases some from farmers to create new wetlands for the ducks. The basic idea is to provide "safe rest areas with water and food," Becker said.

In general, Brannon said, Ducks Unlimited land is a sanctuary on which no hunting is allowed.

"It's a wildlife organization, but there are a lot of hunters," Becker said. "Like anything, if you raise and develop it properly, there will be an abundance so you can hunt without hurting the species."

However, neither Becker nor Brannon hunt. "I'm not much of a hunter. I enjoy seeing things fly around or walk around," Brannon said.

Although most of the Ducks Unlimited land is within the flyways, Brannon and Becker said they would like to see the group buy land in this area. "We've talked to the gentleman that's in charge of the Plymouth chapter about doing something locally, but we haven't really gotten into it," Brannon said.

The Northville chapter's dinner is set for Thursday, March 10, at Meadowbrook Country Club on Eight Mile Road. Tickets are $50, of which $20 goes to the national Ducks Unlimited organization. The other $30 covers the cost of dinner and door prizes which will be awarded, they said.

After dinner, the two have organized an auction to raise additional money. Art prints, decoys, golf clubs, a collector's shotgun and a purebred golden retriever puppy are among the items up for auction, they said.

"All we have to do now is sell these tickets," Brannon said.

Because of the success of the Plymouth chapter, the two men said they think the Northville chapter will also succeed. And they welcome any kind of assistance.

"Someone else might have different ideas that would be a lot better than ours," Brannon said. And Becker added, "We're waiting with open arms for anyone to help in any way they can."

Tickets for the banquet at Meadowbrook Country Club are available at the Northville Record office (contact Mike Jetchik), MacKinnon's, Genitti's and the Wild Wings Gallery in Plymouth; or from Brannon at 437-8877 or Becker at 349-4882.

Civil Air Patrol learns new winter skills

Eight members of the Northville Mustang Cadet Squadron, Civil Air Patrol, participated in Operation Freeze-Me-Out, second annual bivouac at which cadets and seniors camped out at Woodworth Air Park near Oxford last weekend.

"Purpose of the outing was to see how hard it is to keep warm while on an actual mission in winter and a little of what it might be like for a victim under the same conditions, Fay A. Dickinson, squadron public affairs officer, explained.

Mustang Commander CPT Tim Dickinson now also is the commander for Royal Oakland Group II, it was announced. In addition to his squadron duties, he now is heading group staff and seven squadrons under that command in Oakland County.

Cadet Jon Dickinson of the Mustang Cadet Squadron has earned the Amelia Earhart Award No. 3706, giving him the grade of c/captain. He had to pass an extensive leadership test in order to qualify for the rating. The number on the award is significant in that it is the number of recipients nationally in the C.A.P.'s 52 wings.

It is the second prestigious award for cadets as they complete achievements. Dickinson is the third cadet in the squadron to earn the award, following Kirk Kabel and Dean York.

The squadron also reports the recent Congressional appointment of two of its cadets to military academies by Congressman Carl D. Pursell.

District's insurance premiums decline

The tide seems to be turning in favor of the insured in the insurance market.

At least that's the assessment of John Street, Northville Public Schools' director of business and finance.

And Street had the figures to back up his assessment as he recommended continuing the school district's liability and property insurance with

Corroon and Black

The good news is that the premium has dropped nearly $100,000 from a year ago, when the district paid $337,000. This year, the district will be paying a little less than $233,000.

Street said he asked for quotations from Corroon and Black and from the Michigan Association of School Boards, but opted to go with the current carrier for two reasons.

"MASB had a higher deductible and required a three-year commitment. Corroon and Black had a one-year commitment," Street told the board.

"Basically, it's nice to have something positive to say about insurance," Street said.

The district's former policy expired Feb. 1.

George Bell, superintendent of schools, noted that the Metropolitan Association for Improved School Legislation, an 11-member lobbying organization to which Northville belongs, is currently studying the possibility of creating its own insurance pool for its members.

"I would anticipate that the study would take at least four months to complete. I will keep you informed," Bell said.

Amerman drainage targeted for repair

An ongoing problem since the 1970s of drainage at Amerman School is going to be solved — hopefully.

The Northville Board of Education Monday unanimously approved awarding a contract to LaChance Brothers Excavating Inc. to remove the existing drain pipes and tiles, to rework manholes on the site, to cut and repair asphalt, to install new pipe in the playground area and to remove sand from the playground area and replace it with pea gravel.

LaChance was the lowest bid of three bids received by the district. The company bid $17,755 and, under terms of the bid award, the work cost cannot exceed that amount.

"We had about 20 companies that just did not bid at all," said Burton Knighton, assistant superintendent for administrative services in recommending the bid award to LaChance Brothers.

"And, last fall, when we tried to correct the problem, no one at all bid," Knighton added. He said in response to a question from board member James Petrie that the work would take about seven working days to complete.

Knighton explained that the area and drainage had been a problem for "a while."

Tom Bailey, administrative assistant for operations, said that work on the project cannot start until frost is out of the ground.

High school musicians tuning up in larger numbers

Northville Band Director Mike Rumbell with a student

By MELODY ARNDT

Everyone who comes into the Northville High School music program, whether it be band or the choral program, does so by choice. Music is an elective class at the high school level, and more and more students are opting for a music interlude of one sort or another in the course of their school day.

Band Director Michael Rumbell has participated in a great deal of progress within Northville Schools. For 15 years he has taught band throughout the school system, witnessing first hand what he sees as a turn-around in attitudes toward music.

"We did not have an elementary band program for seven years," Rumbell explains, "so our band program started to evaporate. There was a steady decline until George Bell and the present administration saw the need for an elementary program. It is important to reach kids early so that they won't reject band."

The Northville High School Marching Band, 73 students strong, is currently at its highest participation level since 1976.

Rumbell believes that the students involved in the band program are learning a great deal more than simply how to play an instrument. "Far too little is devoted to right side brain activities," Rumbell emphasizes, "to developing the artistic side of our children. Music is an opportunity to awaken creativity. Music can be brain candy."

After a long day of classes which focus on academics, Rumbell believes that band offers "a tremendous release" for many students. "When you are playing you can't think of anything else," he says with a smile. "In addition, band and choir involve group dynamics — everyone is important; we need everyone, from first chair to last."

When Rumbell speaks of "band" he usually means the high school marching band. However, his responsibilities include a great deal more.

After a morning of teaching elementary band at Silver Springs or Winchester elementary, Rumbell returns to the high school to an environment where, as he explains, "the rehearsing never ends."

With the Marching Band, the Symphonic Band and the Jazz Band, Rumbell keeps more than busy. "We play at all home football games, pep assemblies and band festivals, and then there is the spring musical pit orchestra, followed by commencement band and two weeks in the summer for the 4th of July Parade." Rumbell also manages to squeeze in community engagements.

"It's good to hear the positive feedback from the audience and the members of the community," Rumbell concludes. "This year has been very pleasing — the numbers are up and I am excited for the the schools, elementary, junior highs and here at the High School since 1982," Pryce reflects. "I have followed a lot of my kids up, moving from school to school along with them. Last year's graduating class had a lot of kids that I had known for years."

Pryce has also seen a great deal of change in attitudes towards the music program since she began her career in Northville 11 years ago. "There were only eight students signed up for choir when I first came to the high school," she explains. "The first semester alone we built to seventeen."

Early increases in class size seem a far cry from current choir membership. Several groups are available to students including a 25 member Beginning Choir, the Con-

School Notebook

DAVID SMITH, a junior in the School of Education at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, has been awarded a $300 scholarship as part of the winter 1988 general merit scholarship program. Students who win the awards must have a minimum 3.0 grade point average.

Among the 961 students named to the dean's list at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania was CHRISTINE SCHEUTZOW of Ripling Lane. Dean's list students must carry a minimum of 14 credits each semester, maintain a 3.3 grade point average and receive no grade lower than "C."

Central Michigan University has announced its honor's list for the fall semester and the group includes five Northville students. Those earning honors include seniors ANN CONLEY of Winchester; JENNIFER HOYLE of Six Mile; and, MAY KIMBERLY of Fermanagh; and sophomores NICHOLE LAROQUE of South Ely Drive and PHILIP PENDLETON of North Center Street.

LISA MARIE FELICELLI, daughter of William Felicelli of Bedford Drive and GREGORY STOECKEL, son of Jerome and Mary Stoeckel of Rayburn Drive, have been named to the dean's list at Western Michigan University. To be eligible, students must have completed at least a 3.5 grade point average and carry at least 14 hours of graded class work.

JONATHAN THOMAS, a freshman at Concordia College, has been named to the dean's list for achieving a grade point average of at least 3.5 for the fall semester. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomas.

Two Northville students have completed Ferris State College's graduation requirements during the fall semester. KEVIN BURNS LOCKHART of Center Street has earned a bachelor's degree in advertising and MARY ELLEN SCHWANITZ of Longwood Court has earned an associate's degree in diversified business.

Northville students are well represented on the dean's list at Madonna College. Named to the list, which recognizes superior academic achievement are seniors BRENDA BAUGHAN of Silver Springs Drive, CHERYL BERRYMAN of Rippling Lane, ANN HICKS of Jamestown Circle, PAMELA RASMUSSEN of West Ten Mile, LINDA SHIMP of Westmeath, and SUSAN SNYDER of Pelliston Drive; juniors STEPHANIE CHESNEY of Morgan Circle, SUZANNE GRAVES of Grace Street, WALTER HOLINOTY of Debra Lane, TODD MAI of Hillridge, LISA MURPHY of Baintree, and MICHAEL PANAGIOTIDES of West Nine Mile; sophomores LINDA KRIEGER of Byrne Drive, TERESA PAINE of West Harbour Village Drive and LISA MROZ of Exeter Court; and, freshmen CYNTHIA ALLEN of Pierson Drive, SUSANNE KILSDONK of Old Bedford Drive, MATTHEW MAI of Hillridge, MELISSA MEYERS of Robinwood Drive, LISA RENNELL of Woodhill Drive, CHRISTINE SAWDON of Broquet Drive and SUSAN SERENO of Innsbrook.

Hope College freshmen LAUREN OLIVER and DEBORAH DEFRANCESCO have been named to the dean's list. Both have a minimum 3.5 grade point average.

ANNE MERRIMAN GRIFFITH, last year's valedictorian at Northville High School, has been named to distinguished student list at Purdue University. The honor students represent nearly 12 percent of the undergraduate enrollment and each student achieved at least a 5.5 grade point average (on a 6.0 scale).

cert Choir of about 45 students, Northville Singers — a select group of 16 voices, Girls Ensemble and Male Chorus which are special interest groups, and the popular Barbershop Quartet.

Pryce sees part of the success of the choral program as lying in a change in image or attitude toward music programs in the high school.

"The old image of music students being somehow separate from the mainstream is fading," Pryce explains. "In the early days, those kids really faced peer pressure — now with approximately 10 percent of the school involved in choir, it's not so tough." "We are involved in pep rallies, we sing at football games and even in homecoming programs."

Just as Rumbell described music as "brain candy," Pryce believes that music classes offer something that pure academics do not. "If students are sitting in academic classes all day long, they look forward to music as an outlet," she explains. "My point with my students is that they are learning a life-long skill. They can use it throughout their adult lives."

The community will have an opportunity to enjoy the musical achievements of the Northville High School band and choral groups at the annual Spring Musical scheduled for May 16th — "Fiddler on the Roof."

Our Opinions

Woodlands preservation effort merits support

The effort by Northville Township to preserve its natural woodlands is an effort long overdue.

A well-planned community includes not only residential and commercial development, but an excellent quality of life that includes parks, trees, cleanliness and friendliness.

All too often recreation and the environment suffer when they come up against development since it is development that pays the bills. No matter how deep developers' pockets are, if a development, whether industrial or commercial, single family residential or condominiums or apartments is built without trees or greenery, it subconsciously becomes known as a cheap development.

For years, southeastern Michigan was allowed to develop unchecked. Untold forests were torn down to make way for parking lots, shopping centers and subdivisions.

But now people are saying "whoa" and beginning to realize that some woods are worth saving.

Take a look at upscale subdivisions. They have trees between houses, trees in the front yard and trees in the backyard. We aren't talking saplings, either.

Take a look at new office parks in nearby communities. Those without greenspace are those that have vacancies. Trees, greenery and shrubs increase the value of property.

While studying the county land, township officials have discovered stands of trees that they consider worth preserving. And, instead of wringing their hands, they are doing something about that preservation.

A new ad hoc committee, comprised of members of the planning commission and the beautification commission, is currently looking at woodlands ordinances from surrounding communities with an eye toward enacting a similar law in the township.

That effort has not come a moment too soon. But, as the study process gets under way, there are two issues to keep in mind. It is important that any ordinance do what it is intended to do and be able to stand the test of the court and the test of time.

An ordinance that is so stringent that developers will read it and look elsewhere for their projects may be a detriment to the community. And, an ordinance that is so loose that it is easy to get around fails to perform the very task it is created for: to protect the environment.

Township officials have shown that they realize the importance of protecting the environment. They are willing to at least pursue funding for a woodlands inventory. In some ways, that is the easy step.

The hard part will be creating an actual ordinance that benefits all concerned. And that is where the real work will occur.

We applaud the township for taking the initial step toward a woodlands ordinance and hope funds for the needed study are found in time to protect the valuable green assets within the township boundaries.

Hearts and flowers

As readers of the story of romances on the Our Town section cover will see, we're all in favor of Valentine's Day. The thought of hearts and flowers is a bright one in the midst of winter.

This Sunday a local organization, the Northville Moose Lodge, is presenting area churches with altar flowers as special Valentines. This new effort is the latest of many commendable ones by local organizations that enrich our community. The lodge notes that Sunday begins National Brotherhood Week.

In this issue, also, is a salute to the Boy Scouts of Northville during National Boy Scout Week. Merchants and individuals are giving recognition to the hundreds of boys in scouting — from Cubs to Eagles. That there are packs, dens and troops flourishing is another plus for the community. It is the willingness of parents to support the scouting programs, of course, that makes them possible.

Likewise, residents' support of such functions as the Historical Society's Candlelight Ball on Feb. 27 at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth helps make Mill Race Historical Village another community asset. The society has held its dinner dance annually in February. It has kept the dancing cupid theme to make it a winter valentine for everyone. An evening of dining and dancing would seem an easy way to support a good cause. Chairperson Patsy Johnson and the society office in the Mill Race are happy to sell the tickets.

Up, up and away

By Ann Willis

There aren't many perks attached to being in the newspaper business. There's no such thing as a three martini lunch on the expense account. Mostly it's peanut butter and jelly sandwiches in front of the computer terminal. While friends of mine complain of long weeks spent traveling to the west coast, New York and points south on business, my traveling sends me to Novi, Northville and occasionally to that western metropolis — Howell where the paper is printed.

Needless to say when Jean Day, editor of The Northville Record, told the five ink-stained wretches in our newsroom that she had found a way that one of us could spend one day in the Bahamas at company expense — we were all ears. I quickly told my co-workers that since I tan very well and was willing to work very, very hard on getting the travel story that was part of the little junket, they ought to step aside and let me be the lucky one. Being the considerate types they are — they mowed me down in an effort to convince Jean that they were the best reporters for that arduous task.

Bob Needham, Northville Record reporter, won the trip but fell ill and had to be replaced by the back-up — me. Oh darn! The trip was set for the end of January.

I worked late the night before the trip getting copy ready for the next day when I would not be in the office. I cheerfully typed away thinking about the fact that in the morning while my co-workers sat in sweaters drinking coffee and sweating out deadlines, I would be in a bathing suit lying on a beach drinking rum punches and simply sweating. It was a very nice vision.

It had snowed during my brief night of sleep. Deep and white the snow buried my little car. I spent the first half hour of my getaway day up to my ankles in snow brushing off my car. The cute white pants I was wearing for my day in the sun were freezing and I was not enjoying myself. The drive to the airport was a nightmare. I sort of slid sideways down I-94 as I searched for the lane that would lead me into Metro. My head hurt and my feet were still wet when I walked into the terminal for the flight.

A line stretched from the ticket counter to the door. Grinning people in pastels waited patiently at that ungodly hour to have their birth certificates checked. I find it hard to speak in the morning so I kind of stood there in the fluorescent lights of the airport and listened to the chatter around me. Two women behind me in line were making plans for exactly what they would do from the minute the plane touched the ground. They figured they had a relatively few hours in paradise and they were going to make good use of it.

The woman behind the counter didn't like my birth certificate. She said it was a hospital certificate and not official. I said that it had my footprint on it and if she wanted we could compare the pads of Baby Girl Willis' little feet with my ever so slightly bigger Grown-Up Girl Willis' feet. She was not amused, but she let me by.

The cafeteria was not serving coffee. That depressed me. It was also not serving beer which depressed the two women with partying on their mind. It was a sign and, if I had been smart, I would have checked my horoscope then and there, but I got on the plane and stowed my stuff and waited with everyone else. I sat next to two college-age kids who'd been given the trip as a present. They were in love and spent the hour-and-a-half that we waited on the plane staring into each other's eyes and deciding what t-shirts they would buy in Nassau.

The trip was eventually canceled because of mechanical trouble with the plane. I don't like to fly and I was very nervous when people kept telling the steward on the flight to just take off — they were missing valuable shopping time.

I made it back home in time to shovel the walk, change my clothes and go in to work. So much for my trip to the sun. Oh well, there's always Howell.

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

I didn't tell you the best part of the Michigan Press Association (MPA) convention in Grand Rapids two weekends ago.

I wrote about the convention in my column last week. About how I arrived at the same time as Gov. Blanchard and had to fend off television crews as I entered the Amway Grand. It was an okay column; no better than okay.

But it wasn't the best part of the convention. The best part of the convention came at the reception just before dinner Friday night. Longtime readers of this column may recall that two years ago the company sent me to the Suburban Newspapers Association (SNA) convention in Montreal. And that one of the speakers at the convention was a lady named Barbara Dill, an attorney who used to work in The New York Times' legal department before she left to start her own libel consulting firm.

Longtime readers also may recall I was quite taken with Ms. Dill because she was attractive and intelligent and a lot of fun. And that I had the good fortune to have been seated directly next to her at dinner the first night of the convention.

All of which is by way of introduction to the following question — Guess who was at the MPA convention again this year? Guess who I ran into at the reception before the Friday night dinner? Guess who claimed to remember my name? Guess who asked if she could sit with me at dinner that evening?

Guess who came up to congratulate me after Jean Day and I walked up to accept the "General Excellence Awards" for The Northville Record and Novi News in front of the collected membership of the Michigan Press Association? And guess who asked me if I'd send copies of our paper to her home in Miami Beach?

If you answered Barbara Dill to all those questions, you're right. And when I filled out my convention evaluation form guess who I strongly urged be brought back to present another libel workshop next year?

Plan's history provided

To the Editor:
What prompted my getting involved with the zoning ordinance is as follows.

This all started the first part of November, 1987. First, I never received from the city four items of correspondence regarding my property and suggestions on what should be done so approval could be met. This correspondence was between city officials. It affected important decisions. However, I was chastized for not acting on the matters contained in the memos.

Yet I'll bet I've furnished 40 copies of plans that have been distributed to different city departments.

I've obtained an architect.
I've passed the Historical Commission.

I've gone to the hearing in Lansing to the Barrier-Free Design Division and received the necessary rule exceptions.

The Zoning Board of Appeals said I don't need a screen wall on the rear of the property — Ford Field, my neighbor, is zoned R-1 or residential.

I've attended four commission meetings and two others I was forgotten to be put on the agenda or my file was lost.

I've spoken to the city engineer and one of his employees to see what is necessary and how to resolve any problems.

I've spoken to commission members to make sure what I was doing was proper.

I had a hole dug in my parking lot to make sure my property would perk.

I was asked to get an agreement for property usage; I did. It was typewritten and signed, yet the city attorney has to look at it to see if it is legal.

Now I have one problem and only one problem. In 1972 the city demanded we pave our parking lot or "be fined or have our occupancy permit revoked." We hired an engineer to measure elevation for slope and draw up plans. The city approved them and the work was done.

Now, 16 years later, because I'm adding additional paving of 14 by 16 feet and the original plan didn't show the elevation on the north side of the property line (this is one measurement), the planning commission wants me to hire another engineer to get that elevation so they can see which way the sheet water runs. Cost $250 to $300.

I have agreed to a "dry well," costing $1,000.

I have agreed to additional curbing to keep water off my neighbor's property and to drain into the dry well, costing $250.

I have spent approximately $1,300 for all other items and I still don't have my architect's final bill.

The Henriksons have lived in Northville since 1968. Henrikson Agency was established in 1971 and in late 1971 moved to its present location (33 E. Main). This is the location we are attempting to add a porch (to put it back to its original condition); add a two story 24 by 30 office area; tear down a garage and shed; and make the property a "keeper."

I guess it's too bad I didn't do my building prior to March 1, 1979, when "the state legislature made significant revisions to the city and village enabling zoning act." Then maybe I wouldn't have had any "unreasonable problems in the approval process."

I probably wouldn't have had to get involved or even write this letter.

Very truly yours,
Wesley R. Henrikson Jr.

To the Editor:

In regards to the Public Hearing on the new zoning ordinances, I didn't say to simplify restrictions for getting approval. I'm not looking for something for nothing. I said the present ordinance should be understood by the administrative members, i.e., where you can park and cannot park; where planning commission authority ends and the building inspector starts. When the city engineer says something is in order, why isn't it accepted at face value?

A letter presented to those in attendance contained a statement

"which in its opinion made the ordinance more comprehensible to the lay reader."

I would ask the "lay reader" to explain it to me.

The process of getting approvals for city building permits should be simplified and a cooperative venture between parties.

Very truly yours,
Wesley R. Henrikson Jr.

Clothing drive

To the Editor:

The Mission Committee of the First Presbyterian Church of Northville would like to take this opportunity to thank the entire Northville community and surrounding areas for their generous donations of clothing during their recent clothing drive.

The clothing drive was held during the first three Saturdays in October, 1987, and over 350 bags of clothing were donated. The clothing was transported to Fort Street Presbyterian Church in Detroit. The Fort Street church in turn provides the clothing for needy and underprivileged people.

We will forever be grateful to the people of the Northville community for their generous support and concern for a worthy cause.

Sincerely,
Ed Harp

Avoid 'enabling' abuse

This is another in a continuing series of columns provided by Charles Stille, director of the Northville High School Student Assistance Program.

Drugs are a big problem in our community. There are many aspects in drug use and abuse, the area I would like to cover is "Enablers."

Enabling is engaging in behavior which promotes or fosters substance abuse in other people. Some enablers in this community are parents who are substance abusers themselves and set the substance abuse standards for their child; parents who leave their children alone for the weekend, enabling substance abuse parties, and parents who allow kids to spend the night without contacting a parent, thus allowing themselves to possibly be enablers.

Many times enablers are children with substance abuse problems who have been so disruptive in their own homes they've left and are going from home to home trying to keep a roof over their heads. Parents who don't monitor their child's companions and whereabouts are often enabling a youth to continue a life of substance abuse.

According to Detective Sgt. David Fendeleit of the Northville City Police Department, there is a city ordinance, "Concealing Runaway Juveniles," which reads:

"Concealing Runaway

Juveniles age 16 and younger No person shall knowingly and willfully aid or abet a child under the age of 17 years to violate an order of a juvenile court or knowingly or willfully conceal or harbor juvenile runaways who have taken flight from the custody of the court, their parents or legal guardian."

In dealing with high risk substance abusing kids and their families it is apparent that within our community there is a network of enabling in which some families harbor these kids. We need to realize it only gets worse. Penalty on connection is 90 days in jail or/and a $500 fine.

In summary maybe we, as caring parents, need to review these enabling behaviors and put a stop to them so we can clean up the substance abuse in our community.

As someone in the school and in the community, it greatly concerns me that we are too busy or too trusting or too blind or too tired or don't care enough to see what is and has been happening. I was a kid once and I was a master at conning and manipulating to get what I wanted. It appears kids these days are much more sophisticated.

For instance in the Detroit Free Press Feb. 3, 1988, front page article, "Principal Warns Against Teenagers Hall Parties," a Grosse Pointe principal, warns parents about the latest high school fad parties organized by students in banquet halls on weekends.

It has become very apparent to me in dealing with Northville youth and parents that the youth have the means and the sophistication to get involved in this type of activity. So, parents, be aware and get verification of where your kids are. As the principal indicated "some intoxicated student will be involved in a car accident or a fight as a result of these parties."

We need to keep our kids safe from themselves and away from drugs and alcohol. Believe me, in years of dealing with kids I've learned they don't go out and drink a half a glass of wine with dinner, they go out to party hard and abuse to excess or are at parties where this is the norm.

In the February 1988, Northville High School Calendar of Events, Dave Bolitho, principal, confronts another enabling system in a statement regarding excused and unexcused absences:

"We want your son/daughter in school unless they are too ill to attend. Attending school regularly and on time is a shared responsibility between student and parent."

We, as parents, need to realize that enabling systems exist and, in my opinion, reflect symptoms of a larger problem of a breakdown of rules, regulations and consequences.

Contest bug bites 11-year-old victor

By PHILIP JEROME

Christopher Clark is a lot richer than he used to be. And he's planning to be even richer in the near future.

"The results of the Publishers' Clearinghouse contest are supposed to be announced in a couple of weeks, and Chris is ready," reported his mother, Linda.

"I think we've got a contest monster on our hands."

Chris, the 11-year-old son of Kevin and Linda Clark and a fifth grader at Amerman Elementary School, recently won $100 in a scavenger hunt sponsored by WNIC Radio.

Buoyed by that success, he's on to bigger and better things.

"He feels he can do just about anything," sighed his mother.

Linda admits she was skeptical when her son got interested in the WNIC scavenger hunt. Every morning at 7:11 a.m. for 26 consecutive weekdays, the radio station announced a different item to be collected. Entrants were to bring all 26 items to the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn on Saturday, Dec. 19, to determine the winner.

Grand prize was $5,000 to be split between as many people who were able to collect all 26 items.

Chris got interested in the contest when the first item was a $1 bill containing a certain sequence of numbers. He checked his wallet, found that he had the bill with the proper sequence and the rest — as they say — is history.

"When he found that dollar bill, he thought, 'Hey, I can do this,' and that's what got him hooked," reported Linda.

"I wanted to tell him his chances of winning were nil, but I'm glad I didn't. He was very determined."

Linda said she became increasingly concerned when it became necessary to spend money to collect some of the required items. For example, one of the requirements was to place a classified ad in one of Detroit's daily newspapers saying, "Chris Clark listens to WNIC Radio."

Another required item was tokens from the Canadian side of the Windsor Tunnel.

But while Linda was fretting about the expenditure of money and the probability the contest would end up as a major disappointment for her 11-year-old son, the rest of the Clark family was involved in an crusade to collect all the items.

"In retrospect it was really a good experience. Kevin (her husband) got as interested in the contest as Chris, and they drove all over the place collecting the necessary items," she reported.

"One of the items was to measure the circumference of the big toe on the Spirit of Detroit outside the City/County Building, so Chris and his dad drove down to Detroit to take care of that."

"Another item was to write down the locations of five WNIC billboards. That one took a lot of driving, but they eventually found them. It was really a good father-sons project. Of course, all the rest of the kids got dragged along too while Chris and his dad were collecting all those things, so it was really a project for all of them."

And, as you might expect, the items got tougher as the end of the contest approached.

And, as you also might expect, even skeptical Linda got deeply involved before it was all over.

One of the toughest items was a completed book of S&H Green Stamps. Father and son drove down to Toledo, Ohio, on the Friday before the Saturday deadline to meet grandparents who drove up from Cleveland with a book of S&H Green Stamps.

Panic. The book was not complete. Linda got on the telephone and eventually found a completed book.

Another hard-to-find item was a genuine four-leaf clover. Again, Linda started making phone calls until she found one.

But perhaps the toughest item to find — the one that separated the men from the boys, so to speak — was a 1957 Chevrolet. Which, of course, had to be presented at the Hyatt Regency.

This time it was a Northville man who came to the rescue. After numerous inquiries, Linda eventually discovered that Tony Linzey had the designated vehicle.

"I met a friend at a Christmas luncheon who said her daughter's boyfriend had a buddy who had a '57 Chevy," said Linda.

"We called him on the phone, and he was terrific. He never asked what was in it for him, he was only interested in how he could help."

The entire Clark family trekked over to meet Linzey shortly before noon on deadline day, which also happened to be Chris' 11th birthday. And the two-car caravan headed off for the Hyatt Regency.

Literally hundreds of people showed up to check in. But when all the items were checked off, only 54 had met all the requirements.

Chris was the youngest. Five thousand dollars divided by 54 comes out to approximately $94, but WNIC officials decided to round it off and gave all the winners $100.

Was it a good experience? Linda replied affirmatively.

"I think he (Chris) learned you can do anything if you really set your mind to it," said his mother. "He also made sure to give part of his prize to Tony (Linzey), so he learned that you've got to thank people who help you out along the way. That was a good lesson, too."

Schoolcraft, county police chiefs ponder pre-training school

If the Western Wayne County Police Chiefs Association has its way, there will be a new officer training academy in the county.

Schoolcraft College, which already offers some courses in law enforcement, would offer a pre-service program, providing in 12 weeks all of the course work and training that would be required to become a police officer.

The new academy graduates would then be eligible for certification by the Michigan Law Officers Training Council and would not necessarily have to go through further training at a regional training academy.

"As I understand it, this pre-service academy would allow the law enforcement candidates to complete their requirements without having to go to one of the regional academies and would save the local departments some money," Hardesty said.

He noted that there already are three regional training academies in the area — one through the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, one at the Metropolitan Detroit Police Academy and one through Oakland County Community College.

"At Schoolcraft, the students would be able to complete their pre-service training at their own expense, then the student would have one year to find a job," Hardesty said.

He added that current entry to the regional training academies is through departmental recommendation with the individual departments picking up the cost of the student's training.

"It (the proposal with Schoolcraft) would allow a student to come on the job quicker. The student or new officer would not have the three month training period at the regional academy."

Hardesty said another benefit to the Schoolcraft program is that the student in the pre-service academy could use part of his academy training toward earning an associate's degree.

"We require at least an associate's degree, but a lot of departments don't," Hardesty said. "In a business sense, a student who goes through the Schoolcraft program is more marketable."

Schoolcraft officials said the academy could be created with a one-time $13,000 facilities cost, primarily involving renovating a locker room. Staffing could cost some $35,000 annually, said associate professor Edwynna Copal.

Copal added that entry into the program would be through a priority list, with Schoolcraft criminal justice students receiving top priority; those people already involved in a cadet program next; followed by students who have earned an associate's degree from another college. Recruits from area police departments would be fourth on the priority list, she said.

If the Michigan Law Officers Training Council certifies the program, Copal said the first class could be admitted by the spring/summer term of 1989.

The chiefs association will present its proposal to the Conference of Western Wayne on Friday.

Roads reap rewards of car registration, license fee increases

The Secretary of State's Office has announced that fee increases for driver licenses and vehicle registrations enacted into law in December will soon go into effect. The revenue generated from the fee increases will be used for road improvements in the state.

Here's a rundown on the new fees: Driver License fees: Effective Feb. 16, any motorists whose licenses expire on or after April 5, 1988, will be required to pay $12 to renew their driver license, $20 to renew a chauffeur license. Persons applying for an original driver license or an original chauffeur license on or after Feb. 16 will also be required to pay $12 and $20 respectively.

Effective Feb. 16 the Secretary of State's Office will begin charging for each road test it administers for an original license. The fee will be $11 for a driver license, $25 for a chauffeur license or classified endorsement.

Beginning April 5 replacement licenses will be issued for $4 if they are reported lost or stolen within 120 days of being renewed. Motorists whose driver license must be replaced after 120 days will be subject to the $12 renewal fee.

Vehicle-related fees: The price of all vehicle registrations that expire on or after April 5 will increase by $5 effective Feb. 16. The fee increase will also apply to renewal of expired license plates, historic license plates, the government X plate and the non-profit organization Y plate.

Original trailer coach registrations, which include campers, will also increase from 54 to 76 cents per hundred pounds on Feb. 16. The new price will apply to renewals which expire on or after April 5.

All title-related fee increases take effect on April 5. Among the new fees will be $10 for a title, $8 for a title transfer, and $15 for a 15-day late title.

Reinstatement Fees: A motorist whose driver license has been restricted, suspended or revoked is advised that the price of reinstatement fees will increase on April 5 regardless of when the action against the license was taken.

The price of reinstating a license suspended for failing to answer a citation (FAC), failing to comply with a judgment (FCJ), or failing to clear parking violations (FCPV) will increase from $10 to $25. These fees are paid directly to the appropriate court.

The price of reinstating a license suspended, revoked or restricted by the Secretary of State based on driving performance will increase from $25 to $60. These fees are paid when the driver license is reinstated.

Love of horses makes enjoyable business venture

By DEVON MCCLUSKEY

His love for the Arabian horse started out as a small pleasurable hobby. Now, it's a successful and enjoyable business venture.

Bill Autrey, a Novi resident, grew up with horses and has always particularly liked Arabians. "I think they are the prettiest and nicest of all horses. They are very affectionate and gentle animals," he said.

He bought his first Arabians in 1972, keeping them at a farm in Col-dwater. The horses were so far away that it was difficult to have hands-on participation with them.

He purchased his farm in Novi 11 years ago. "I wanted to find a real nice property, a nice barn and house, close to a community," he explained.

Bill and Lil Autrey found the perfect facility on Nine Mile, bought it and "Autrey Arabian Farm" was born.

The Autreys own 25 Arabians all of which reside on their Novi farm. The majority of their horses are of the Egyptian bloodline. There are several different bloodlines in Arabian horses — Polish, Russian and Spanish.

Autrey prefers the Egyptian line. "Physically, the Egyptian horse is of finer bone and has a nicer head than the other bloodlines, but it's a matter of preference."

The Arabian horse is known for its beauty and endurance. The Arabian is of small bone and fine build. They have a high-tail carriage and exquisite neck extension. Perhaps what the Arabian is best known for is its beautiful and intelligent head.

"The Egyptian is the original Arabian and currently only one percent of all Arabians are pure Egyptian. They are a little more rare and cost a little more," Autrey said.

Tax Reform reduces eligible reductions

The good news about the Tax Reform Act of 1986 is that tax rates have been reduced. But along with lower rates come fewer breaks, cautions the Michigan Association of CPAs.

By eliminating some deductions and curtailing others, the new tax law is likely to subject more of your income to taxes.

Before tax reform, most taxpayers had a fairly good idea of whether they should itemize or claim the standard deduction. This year, faced with a fatter standard deduction and a leaner choice of itemized deductions, many taxpayers will have to re-examine their positions.

As you review your itemized expenses, you're likely to find that many of the deductions you have come to know and love have been affected by tax reform. The following is an overview of some of the major changes.

Several deductions escaped the ax. Mortgage interest on first and qualified second homes remains tax-deductible under the new law. Likewise for real estate and personal property taxes and state and local income taxes. Keep in mind, however, that these deductions become less valuable as tax rates drop.

Among those deductions curtailed or eliminated by Congress are the two-earner deduction and the deductions for state and local sales tax and consumer interest. The tax credit for political contributions has also been eliminated.

Prior to tax reform, married couples with two working spouses were allowed to deduct 10 percent of the income of the lower-paid spouse — up to $3,000. Not any more.

Sales taxes paid after 1986 are not deductible, and the credit you previously could receive for contributions to candidates for public office has been repealed as well.

But the big news for most individual taxpayers is that the deduction for consumer interest is being phased out. Before 1987, all interest paid on credit cards, charge accounts, automobiles, and student and personal loans, was fully deductible. For 1987, 65 percent of consumer interest will be deductible. That amount drops to 40 percent in 1988, 20 percent in 1989 and 10 percent in 1990. Beginning in 1991, no deduction for consumer interest will be allowed. CPAs caution that this new rule can significantly hike the after-tax cost of borrowing.

If you're a homeowner, you can get around this restriction by financing your purchases with money drawn from a home equity line of credit. A home equity loan is considered a mortgage loan and, as such, the interest is deductible. Keep in mind, however, that the interest is deductible only to the extent that the loan amount does not exceed the cost of your home plus the cost of home improvements. (An exception to this rule allows you to deduct interest on additional borrowing if the money is used for home improvements or to pay for qualified medical or educational expenses.) Be careful, however, not to use a home equity loan to finance purchases that are in excess of your budget.

There also are new rules for old deductions. Deductions for interest paid on money borrowed to finance investments are subject to new limitations. Under the new rules, you may deduct investment interest up to the extent of your net investment income for the year. Prior to tax reform, investors were allowed to deduct up to $10,000 of investment interest above the amount of their investment income.

Again, to ease the burden, the new rule will be applied gradually, following the same schedule devised for consumer interest. That means for 1987, 65 percent of any excess investment interest can be deducted (up to a maximum deduction of $6,500). CPAs recommend you keep track of your interest costs because, unlike consumer interest, investment interest that can't be deducted one year can be carried forward and deducted in future years.

Five other deductions changed by the Tax Reform Act are outlined here.

For 1987, medical costs are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income. This is up from 5 percent under the old law. If your total adjusted gross income is $30,000, you may deduct only those medical expenses that exceed $2,250.

Before 1987, charitable contributions could be claimed by itemizers and non-itemizers alike. This is no longer the case. For 1987, charitable contributions can be deducted only if you itemize.

Miscellaneous itemized deductions is an appropriately named catch-all category which covers several minor deductible items including union or professional dues, safe deposit box rentals, tax counsel and preparation fees and a few others.

Prior to tax reform, such expenses were deductible in full but now are deductible only to the extent, in the aggregate, they exceed 2 percent of your adjusted gross income. So you must add up your miscellaneous itemized deductions and compare that figure with your adjusted gross income. You may deduct only that amount that exceeds two percent of your adjusted gross income.

Beginning in 1987, qualifying moving expenses are deductible only as an itemized deduction and not as an adjustment to income, as was the case in earlier years. You now have to itemize to get the benefit.

You can continue to claim casualty losses to property caused by events such as theft, natural disasters, fires, auto accidents and other similar occurrences. Such losses are deductible only to the extent they exceed $100, and then only if the total of your losses exceeds 10 percent of your adjusted gross income.

Realtors note decline in sales for December

December historically is the year's slowest month for home sales and 1987 proved to be no exception.

Metro MLS, the state's largest multiple listing service, reported sales of 734 single family homes and condominiums in December, about half the average of other months. This represented a near 10 percent drop from a year earlier and was down about 28 percent from November.

The average price for the month, $77,324, however, was one of the lowest of the year and well below the record $80,525 recorded in September. The full-year average ended at $79,225, an increase of $6,189 or 8.4 percent over the final 1986 figure.

"We are pleased to see that listings, which were down nearly 11 percent during the year, did show a slight gain for December," said Metro MLS president Marjory R. Pickett. "The slowdown posed a problem for home buyers throughout 1987, so we hope that this jump is a positive signal for the new year."

"With the continuing increase in prices, we hope many of this year's buyers may choose to move into the market early. By year's end, we expect our average price to be around $85,000 in our 1,600 square mile territory."

Pickett said final Metro MLS sales figures for 1987 showed member-aided sale of 16,879 units, about 10.6 percent below 1986. The total included 15,914 homes and 965 condos.

"It ended as the fourth best year in our 67-year history and showed the Detroit metro market as alive and well," she said. "This year's market may start slow, but should pick up as we move into the spring months if buyer fears about the economy begin to subside."

"No significant drop in mortgage interest rates is expected, and rising prices could demand higher loans for desired properties if buyers wait too long to make their move."

She noted that last year's first quarter was the second best sales period during the year accounting for some 26 percent of all sales just three points below the peak second quarter.

Changes in tax laws alter jobless benefits

Some of the 140,000 who are currently receiving jobless benefits in Michigan may see as much as a $2 a week change in their unemployment checks, said Richard Simmons Jr., director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

Simmons explained that recent changes in state and federal income tax withholding and Social Security taxes affect a worker's after-tax earnings. Since after-tax earnings are used to compute weekly benefit amounts, the tax changes may cause weekly unemployment benefit rates to change for some claimants.

"While some individuals currently receiving unemployment benefits may notice a $1 or $2 adjustment in their benefit amounts because of the tax changes," Simmons said, "most unemployment claimants will not be affected and most of those who are affected will see an increase rather than a decrease in their benefit amounts."

In addition, Simmons said, the maximum weekly jobless benefit amount will increase $13 to $242 because of a rise in the state's average weekly wage (SAWW). The new higher maximum, however, affects only those filing new jobless benefit claims after Jan. 3, 1988.

He explained that weekly unemployment benefits equal 70 percent of a worker's after-tax earnings. Benefits, however, cannot exceed the maximum allowable weekly benefit payment, which becomes $242 for claims filed in 1988 and remains $229 for claims filed in 1987.

The new maximum weekly benefit rate is based on 55 percent of the SAWW. The SAWW for 1988 is $440.77.

Horse farm makes enjoyable business venture

Autry breeds two of his stallions Sid Farasha is a 10-year-old Egyptian stallion. He is the son of one of the most successful Arabians in history — Asadd Pedigree is very important in the horse world, it helps determine the value for selling purposes as well as stud fees.

El Mobarak, Autry's other stallion, is a four year old. He has already had a very promising start to his show career, placing first in an English Pleasure class at his very first show.

Autry plans to offer his stallions to outside mares in the future, but it is not a major priority. "I like to keep it

(the farm) a very private place, and you can't do that if you bring in a lot of outside horses," said Autry.

The stud service fee will be $1,500 for Sid Farasha and El Mobarak respectively. Autry has several offspring and siblings of the stallions with prices running from $10,000 to $20,000 for the weanling and yearling colts to $25,000 for weanling fillies.

The business side of his Arabian horse hobby is relatively new to Autry. He has entered a highly competitive and expensive industry — an industry in which promotion is the key to competing successfully.

Promotion of the stallions lies in showing and buying ads in various Arabian breed magazines. It can be an expensive venture because the horses usually need a professional trainer for that all-important show career. Professional training can cost from $300 to $500 a month, including boarding at the trainer's barn.

Autry has six to eight horses that he would like to show and is hoping to bring in a trainer to his farm. With the help of his barn manager, Dan Morris, Autry hopes to increase his showing and breeding, thus promoting his stock as well as his stallions.

Although the horse business currently is on a major down-swing, Autry believes it is just a natural leveling off from prices and stud fees that were artificially high.

"The horse business has its ups and downs, but the horse market is certainly not dead," he said.

The horse business definitely will continue because it is not made up of just investments and profits, but of people who love horses.

"I just like going to horse shows. I like to watch the horses and riders. I just enjoy being around horses," said Autry.

O H, WHAT A FEELIN G!

Story by Brenda Bonzheim

Valentine, will you be mine?

That infamous cupid's question has been posed at least a hundred times over hundreds of years. Yet no matter what form it takes, a glittery valentine message never goes out of style and never loses its romance.

Whether accompanied by a candlelit dinner, a dozen red or pink roses, a heart-shaped box of chocolates or a passionate kiss, receiving a valentine always generates a feeling of genuine love.

Several longtime Northville and Novi sweethearts shared their recollections about Valentine's Day and noted how the romantic occasion has changed for them over the years.

John and Clare Genitti, of Northville, will always remember their first Valentine's Day together because on that day 41 years ago, they became engaged.

"I was making homemade noodles and he came up to me with a ring and surprised me completely," Clare remembers. "We were married five years later — I'd do it over again in a minute with the same man."

The Genittis celebrate Valentine's Day by having dinner at home now and it's a holiday they still look forward to, she said.

"I have a lacy old-fashioned valentine that's about 30 years old and I take it out every year and display it," she added.

For William and Rosie Richards, the holiday signifies a time for a double celebration because William's birthday falls on Feb. 13. The Northville couple celebrated their 50th anniversary last month.

On their first Valentine's Day together, the couple went out for dinner and a movie. William also presented Rosie with a box of valentine candy.

"It was very romantic," Rosie recalled.

She said her favorite Valentine's Day occurred the year her first child was born because they were able to share it with her.

Like the Genittis, the Richardses also celebrate Valentine's Day with a special dinner now.

"I look forward to it more and more now because my husband's still with me," Rosie said. "Valentine's Day gets more wonderful every year we spend it together."

Dick and Betty Alexander, of Novi, commemorated their first Valentine's Day together by presenting each other with sentimental gifts.

Betty received a mouton lamb coat, an article that was quite popular in those days, she remembered. On a more personal note, she reluctantly confessed that she gave her husband underwear with hearts on them for Valentine's Day.

The Alexanders have been married almost 42 years and now they celebrate Valentine's Day by giving each other cards.

"My favorite Valentine's Day was in 1950 because my daughter, Jodi, was born the day after," Betty said.

Preserving the tradition, she said she always sends the entire family Valentine's Day cards now.

Over 46 years ago, Della Gustaf received the first valentine gift — a box of candy — from her future husband, John. She soon learned that he had also given a valentine to another girl, someone she worked with. Della said after she found out about the "other valentine," she wouldn't eat the candy.

"My husband is a very thoughtful man and he hated that incident — he certainly didn't mean to hurt anyone's feelings," she said.

Since that first fateful Valentine's Day, Della said the occasions have gotten 100 percent better. She said all the Valentine's Days she has spent with her husband are her favorites.

"We love it — my husband always remembers to bring me a box of candy or something for Valentine's Day," she said. "It's a special day because it comes from the heart."

Likewise, Gustaf said her grandchildren always remember her with small Valentine's Day gifts, too.

Arthur and Clara Janetzke, of Northville, have been married almost 52 years, and although they have spent just as many Valentine's Days together, Clara said a favorite one doesn't come to mind.

"My husband sometimes buys me roses for Valentine's Day. One year he bought me a necklace and earrings, but I don't remember the exact year," she said. "We usually don't celebrate it very extravagantly."

Dreamy Valentine's Day cards are important to celebrating the sweethearts' holiday for Clay and Lil Perry, of Novi, who have been married

Q: Will you miss Kirk Gibson?

Six said: "Yes"

Four said: "No"

"He's the fire that leads the Tigers."

"Who?"

"He scored 96 runs last year and let in 96 runs because of his bad arm."

"They'll miss him more in the clubhouse than on the field."

Mothers: Take care medicating to kids

Many mothers keep home medicine chests well-stocked for treating their children, but often use the drugs ineffectively and sometimes dangerously, according to a University of Michigan researcher.

"There are no heroes or villains here. A series of events conspire to get this stuff into kids. Everybody means well," said Marshall H. Becker, professor and associate dean at the U-M School of Public Health.

"There is a tremendous need to educate mothers about which over-the-counter medicines are useful for what symptoms and about which over-the-counter medications not to use," Becker said.

Mothers also need to be alerted to the potential danger of saving prescription drugs for reuse after they have expired, he said. Tetracycline, for example, is a commonly prescribed antibiotic that can be toxic if used beyond its shelf life.

In one study, Becker and colleagues interviewed 500 mothers about the kinds of drugs they stocked and which ones they gave to their children.

All 500 mothers reported medicating their children, 79 percent said they would medicate their children for fever without consulting a doctor. Fifty percent of the mothers kept seven or more categories of drugs on hand for their children, with one or more drugs per category.

The study concluded with a panel of six pediatricians reviewing data from the interviews and scoring the mothers on their choice of drugs and how effectively the drugs were used. Overall ratings were low to moderate. The mothers got fairly high marks for use of pain-killers and low marks for use of vitamins.

"Vitamins are the perfect example of an abused over-the-counter drug,"

Becker said. "There are children in Appalachia and other parts of the country who are in trouble, who are starving, on poor diets, who may benefit from vitamin supplements. But those are rare events; the vast majority of children in this country don't need vitamin supplementation."

Vitamins A and D, for example, are stored in the body and a large surplus can cause adverse symptoms — adults can develop symptoms similar to those of mental illness, but return to normal after the vitamins are discontinued, Becker said.

Mothers who give their children several vitamin pills a day are at risk of similar side effects.

The pediatric panel found that the mothers often picked relatively useless over-the-counter medications to treat upset stomachs and skin rashes, but made moderately wiser choices when treating their children for headaches or runny noses.

Mothers attempting to treat upset stomachs and diarrhea often caused more harm than good.

Becker noted that some mothers give laxatives to their children every day in hope that the medication will prevent constipation. Others give their children one or two aspirin tablets daily to prevent headaches. Neither practice is necessary, and both can cause health problems, he said.

The pediatric panel gave overall lower ratings to mothers of lower socio-economic status. The panel members did not know the socio-economic status of the mothers they rated, and based their scoring decisions solely on the mothers' actions.

"There is clear evidence from our work that the greater problems are with children of lower socio-

In Our Town

'Tis the month for dining and dancing

By JEAN DAY

This Friday is the deadline for reservations for Northville Woman's Club's annual guest night dinner to be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 19 at First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Weldon Petz will be speaking on "The Big Band Sound."

Alice Pooley, 348-2284, is taking reservations for the popular evening which begins with a catered dinner. Tickets are $10.50 a person.

Petz, an authority and frequent speaker on President Abraham Lincoln, was recognized in June, 1987, by the State of Michigan Senate with a special tribute for his state and national contributions to the fields of Lincolniana, Michigan history and music.

Petz played trombone and did musical writing and arranging with name bands during the period of their greatest popularity in the 1940s. He was, at various times, a member of the bands of Horace Heidt, Johnny Long and Jimmy Dorsey. He also traveled on a theater tour with Jimmy Durante and recorded with Ella Fitzgerald.

On his return to Michigan after several years on the road with the bands, he organized a large band under the name of Tommy Weldon. It played for dances, proms and shows until 1952.

After his work as a professional musician, Weldon returned to Detroit and began a teaching career. He served as principal in the Farmington schools, retiring from school administration in 1984.

Schoolcraft Foundation holds Valentine benefit

Schoolcraft College Foundation's fourth annual Valentine's Dinner Dance this Saturday evening at the Waterman Campus Center is offering a chance to dine on gourmet fare and dance to "the actual music of your big band favorites" presented by the 13 performers of "Illusion."

The dinner prepared by the college culinary arts department will be served at 6:30 p.m.

The tickets, a tax deductible donation to the Schoolcraft College Foundation, are $25 a person. A cash bar will be available throughout the evening. For reservations call 591-6400, ext. 218.

Historical society busy with coffee, dance

Tickets now are on sale for the Northville Historical Society's popular Candlelight Ball to be held Feb. 27 at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth. They are available at $25 a person donation from any member or from the office in Mill Race Village, 348-1845.

New members of Northville Historical Society were greeted by membership chairman Lois Winters and president Carol Kiraly and her husband, Phil, at the society's first new member coffee last Sunday afternoon in Mill Race Historical Village. Enid Manheimer and Elaine Elliott represented the village docents.

Various activities were explained and many signed up to work on committees. The program included a VCR viewing of the Cady Inn move and organ music by Robert Delany who led a sing-along.

Silver anniversary brunch for nurses at Madonna

A silver anniversary brunch is planned at Madonna College at 10 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 21 to mark the first nursing alumni reunion and provide an opportunity to meet with classmates and faculty. For information, call the nursing department at Madonna, 591-5105.

Elected to board

Eleanor Breitmeyer Gebert of Farmington, a former longtime Northville resident and retired society writer for the Detroit News, was elected to a three-year term on the board of trustees of the Michigan Cancer Foundation at its annual meeting Jan. 20 at the Detroit Athletic Club.

A valedictorian of her Northville High School class and University of Michigan graduate, she was a reporter for The Northville Record before going to the Detroit News.

Jimmy Launce of Farmington Hills was named an honorary life member of the board.

Methodist church to collect for needy families in area

A collection of items for the homeless and the needy in the community and the immediate area will be held at First United Methodist Church of Northville at Eight Mile and Taft roads between 8 a.m. and noon this Saturday.

Sponsored by the church and its society committee, the collection will aid area families, many of whom are destitute and have small children, a church spokesperson explained.

Anything donated will be used to help families set up housekeeping after short stays in temporary shelters.

Most needed items, in addition to cash and food, include blankets and bed linens, cooking utensils and dishes, towels, soap, brooms and mops, tooth paste and brushes, first aid items, diapers and children's clothing, warm clothing for men and women, including boots and gloves.

Larger items also may be donated, including electrical appliances in good working order, stoves and refrigerators, tables and chairs, beds and mattresses and tools.

The church is asking the entire community to assist in the collection. If a pick up is needed, call the church at 349-1144 before Saturday.

Program slated with author

St. John's Episcopal Church is sponsoring "A Day with Carolyn Huffman" Saturday, Feb. 20.

Huffman, who is from Texas, is the author of two books, "Bloom Where You Are" and "Living Life Between the Questions."

After the death of her six year old son, she began her struggle to find joy and meaning again in her life. She will share her faith journey in three presentations, including time for discussion.

The day begins at 9 a.m. with registration, coffee and sweet rolls and ends at 2:30 p.m. Registration fee is $10 and includes lunch.

The event is open to everyone. For reservations call Tammy, 453-0190, at the church located at 574 S. Sheldon in Plymouth.

Caroline Dunphy picks up watercolor brush and begins

Record/Chris Boyd

Watercolor artist encourages enriching life by painting

"I think inside all of us is some kind of urge to paint," Northville artist Caroline Dunphy said Friday as she demonstrated how to paint garden flowers in watercolor for members of Northville Woman's Club.

What is created "may not be wonderful, but do it for yourself," she encouraged as lilies and irises in oranges and lavenders appeared on her easel.

"I think an artist gets a bit more out of life because you see things differently," she explained.

Dunphy, who has painted professionally for 23 years, related that she had recently encouraged her 85 year old mother in South Lyon to take up painting. With Dunphy's granddaughter also urging, "Grammy, paint with me," she had done so.

Dunphy added that she had framed her mother's first effort and that her mother said, "I can do better" — and did, replacing the original work in the frame with a new one.

"So you see, you're never too old," the artist said.

"Art has been a part of my life ever since I can remember," Dunphy related, noting that she had two parents who encouraged her in what she wanted to do, just as she now encourages her children and grandchildren.

Her paternal grandfather, who was an artist and an architect had guided her, Dunphy said, adding that her mother's mother gave her her love of gardening and flowers.

"I think an artist gets a bit more out of life because you see things differently."

— Caroline Dunphy

Among the watercolor paintings exhibited on the stage of First Presbyterian Church fellowship hall next to the artist's easel was a poster of irises, called Blue Flags, which was a winner in the Detroit Institute of Arts competition last year.

Dunphy recalled that it was her granddaughter, almost five years old, who was instrumental in getting it completed and entered.

"She kept telling people I was going to have a painting at the art institute — she had confidence. It was a high point to go down with my family to see it," she said.

In the cluster of purple irises is a single white iris silhouette.

As she worked with her watercolors and brushes to bring spring flowers onto her paper, Dunphy encouraged would-be painters to "be a bit adventurous."

As she began, she noted that she did have "something in mind" but did not draw any outline with pencil. "I don't like to draw (in pencil) because it's more like coloring in a book — I'm just going to do something springlike."

She explained that she had brought pencil sketches done when her garden was in bloom last year to be sure of accuracy.

"I'm doing a part of my garden which has day lilies in back and iris in front," she said but added that artists have the freedom to change.

"When I do a house portrait, I tell the owners I can steal the neighbors' shrubs or prune yours," she said.

Dunphy said she prefers painting watercolors because she feels a watercolor painting is more a "mood" work. She said she has given up painting portraits as she developed an allergy to oils.

"Northville's a great place for a painter," she said, citing the Mill Race Historical Village and its old buildings as well as the community's ducks as popular subjects. One of her works, called Duck Crossing, she said is one chosen frequently by people leaving the community "who want to take something to remember Northville."

As she painted irises on one part of her paper and lilies on the other, she noted, "there always comes a part when you think it isn't going to work, but the more you do, the better you are."

As she united the two with a circular movement of light and shadows, the artist confided, "The secret is to keep all parts (of the work) at the same degree of doneness."

She promised to complete the watercolor and to place it in the window of her studio, Painter's Place, at 140 N. Center when the valentines come out.

Garden lilies and iris take shape quickly

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Wisner of 19800 Westhill announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet P., to Michael S. Knight of Marquette. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Knight of Marquette.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Northville High School, is a senior at Michigan State University where she is a member of Omicron Nu and Gold Key honor societies.

Her fiancé is a 1987 graduate of MSU with a bachelor's degree in advertising.

The couple plan a fall wedding.

Presbyterian church women schedule White Breakfast for Ash Wednesday

The 22nd annual White Breakfast of the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church of Northville will be held at 9 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 17, at the church.

The special Communion service will open Lenten events on Ash Wednesday.

The breakfast will feature special music by Alice

Chamberlain, assistant music director and wife of the senior pastor, and by Susan Stott, soloist at the Royal Oak Presbyterian Church and a member of the Detroit Symphony Chorus. She also has sung with the Pontiac Symphony of Oakland County. She has a degree in music and performing arts from Wayne State University and teaches piano and voice.

A mezzo soprano, Stott will sing "Cross Cry." Reservations for the breakfast are due by this Friday and may be made by calling the church at 349-0911. All women and men are welcome to attend the breakfast "as a meaningful beginning of the Lenten season."

Planned as a spiritual experience, the meal is shared in fellowship hall.

'Requiem' will highlight Lenten series

"A Look at Redemption" is the title of a five-part Lenten series to be presented at the Meadowbrook Congregational Church by the Rev. E. Neil Hunt.

The church will begin the Lenten season with a potluck supper and worship service on Ash Wednesday (Feb. 17), beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The five-part Lenten series will be held the following five Wednesdays. Hunt will investigate some of the classical Christian theories of redemption as well as some of the more contemporary views. Each of the Wednesday evening study sessions will be basically independent, beginning at 7:30 p.m. and concluding at approximately 8:45 p.m.

On Palm Sunday (March 27), the Chancel Choir, soloists and a chamber orchestra from the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will present the "Requiem" by contemporary English composer John Rutter at 2 p.m.

This premiere performance in the northwest metropolitan area will be held at the Meadowbrook Congregational Church. The church is located at 21355 Meadowbrook Road between Eight and Nine Mile in Novi.

Included in the chamber orchestra will be DSO principal oboist Donald Baker and principal flutist Ervin Monroe. The work will be conducted by Wayne State University Professor of Music Ray Ferguson, organist for the DSO and Minister of Music at Meadowbrook Congregational.

The concert is free and open to the public. Child care services will be provided at no cost. Underwritten in part by the Detroit Federation of Musicians, the concert is presented in cooperation with radio station WQRS-FM.

Anyone interested in learning more about Congregationalism and the Meadowbrook Congregational Church is invited to attend a "prospective members" meeting at the church on Tuesday, March 22, at 7 p.m.

Call the church office at 348-7757 for more information.

Mary Beth Gross married in service in Kerrville, Texas

Former Northville resident Mary Beth Gross of Kerrville, Texas, became the bride of Jim Maxwell of Kerrville in a Christmas season wedding in the First Presbyterian Church of Kerrville.

A 1983 graduate of Northville High School, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gross who moved from Northville to Kerrville. The bridegroom is the son of Marilyn Maxwell of Kerrville and E. A. "Buz" Maxwell Jr. of Corpus Christi.

The Rev. Richard Ryan was the officiant for the 6 p.m., double ring ceremony Dec. 19. During the service the bride's grandfather, Charles Termor, read 1 Cor. 13. The prelude, "We've Only Just Begun," was sung by Sandra Rigdon, who also sang "One Hand, One Heart."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long sleeved sheath gown with the skirt extending into a cathedral train. The bodice, adorned with white cotton lace and seed pearls, was styled with a sweetheart neckline with fabric roses at the shoulders. A floral wreath held the bride's fingertip veil.

Cheri Miller was honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Peggy Downs, Heather Mauze and Andrea Janson, cousin of the bride from Michigan. They wore Christmas green, tea length satin dresses styled with long sleeves and sweetheart necklines and carried red silk roses and holly.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Groomsmen were Mike Grogan, Cameron Mauze and Todd Johnson. Ron McNeil, Danny Maxwell, brother of the bridegroom, Bill Caldwell, cousin of the bridegroom, Charles and Ken Gross, brothers of the bride, were ushers. Charles is a sophomore at Southwest Texas State University and Ken is a high school senior who has been accepted at Texas A & M University.

A reception for 200 was held at the LaFuenta Room, Inn of the Hills River Resort. Guests attended from St. Louis, Mo., Corpus Christi, Texas, and from Michigan.

After a wedding trip to Las Vegas and a stay at Caesars Palace, the newlyweds are living in College Station, Texas, where the bridegroom currently is studying engineering at Texas A & M University. The bride attended Schreiner College in Kerrville where the couple met. She previously was a bank teller at the Charles Schreiner Bank in Kerrville.

Channel 56 executive details cost of public broadcasting

By MELODY ARNDT

Josette Marano took a chance — she accepted an offer of an internship at Channel 56, even though it meant zero pay for her efforts. That chance paid off for Marano who is now executive assistant to the president and general manager of WTVS.

Marano recently spoke on the topic, "The High Cost of Communication," to Northville Woman's Club, outlining the chance that WTVS is taking in accepting the challenges of the community it serves. So far those efforts have paid off with considerable dividends for those it serves.

"WTVS is involved in the community in which we live," Marano emphasized to the women at the Jan. 22 guest day meeting. "The community and its needs decide what we will do in terms of programming."

Marano offered proof of the public broadcasting station's determination to respond to the needs of the community.

"Shortly after arriving here, Bob Larson (president and general manager of WTVS) developed a community service program in order to address the issues that he saw as most important." The high drop-out rate was one of those issues. "We were able to bring together 22 task forces from area high schools," Marano pointed out. "The result was the generation of five recommendations to the Detroit Board of Education — this was the first time that anything like this had happened."

Next on the hit list was a program to attack illiteracy. In response to a recruitment campaign, the station was able to find 2,000 tutors commit-

"We at Channel 56 decided that the next five years of our programming should focus upon teenagers. They are our future."

— Josette Marano

ted to helping in the fight against illiteracy.

Campaigns against drinking and driving, targeted specifically at teens, have taken form at Channel 56. "As a result of our efforts," Marano emphasized, "I think that we can honestly say that the number of teens drinking and driving has substantially decreased."

All of the efforts share an important theme, she pointed out. They are focused on youth. "We at Channel 56 decided that the next five years of our programming should focus upon teenagers. They are our future."

Marano is quick to emphasize that WTVS did not pull these issues out of the air and deem them important. "We are not the one who suggested these programs," she elaborated. "They are a response to the ideas of community groups." In addition the station has brought young people into the actual production process, involving them in putting together the programs that are targeted at their peers.

One brainstorm has been the development of a "youth data clearing house," one center from which people in need can tie into the agency that can best help them in their particular situation. "By dialing one number," she said, "you are assisted in finding the appropriate agency for your problem."

A newsletter for teachers, programs on aging, technological advancements in distribution systems all are programs under development at Channel 56.

Although quick to point out that she is not a "saleswoman," Marano drew some comparisons between the costs of programs such as "Sesame Street" and "Frugal Gourmet" and a 30-second commercial on a non-public station, showing that sometimes the audience does not always get what it pays for — sometimes it gets more, at least in public broadcasting.

Fran Durham lunches with student in Wichita

Durham helps kick off Barbershoppers' year

Fran Durham of Northville, a 1988 international logopedics committee member for the 38,000-member international society for the preservation and encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, recently attended a meeting in Wichita, Kan., to help launch the society's 50th anniversary celebration.

The event for 40 international and district society officers was held at the Institute of Logopedics, a national residential school and referral source for children with multiple handicaps. The institute has been the society's international service project since 1964.

In that time Barbershoppers nationwide and abroad have given more than $8 million to the institute to help those with communication disorders and multiple handicaps, including autism, cerebral palsy, seizure disorders, mental retardation and hearing loss.

In honor of the 50th anniversary, the society is conducting a $1 million fund-raising campaign for the institute and has established a toll-free telephone number for parents, professionals and friends of handicapped children to contact the institute: 1-800-WE SING 4.

Since its founding in 1934, the Institute of Logopedics has helped more than 60,000 persons from all 50 states and several foreign countries improve communications and life skills.

Good Shepherd pastor slates Lenten worship

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church will celebrate Ash Wednesday, Feb. 17, with a special worship service at 7 p.m. Lenten services will be held each succeeding Wednesday night until Holy Week.

Pastor Gene Jahnke said the services will focus on the spiritual meaning of Jesus' suffering and death. Audiovisual accounts of Jesus' arrest, trials and crucifixion will be presented for children and adults. The community is invited.

The church is located at 41415 W Nine Mile at Meadowbrook.

Several weeks ago the church began conducting a community phone survey. The pastor reported that to date about 6,000 homes in the Novi/Northville area have been contacted.

He reported the response has been "overwhelming," saying that "almost everyone has reacted to our brief calls with friendliness and cooperation."

He added that the congregation hopes to reach its goal of contacting 10,000 area homes soon. Information about the ministry of Good Shepherd will then be sent to those interested in receiving it, he said.

Valentine's Day recalls romantic pasts

for 40 years

"I used to get traditional gifts like a heart-shaped box of candy, but we don't do much to celebrate it these days," Lili said. "We still remember each other with cards and I look forward to it a great deal."

Now that the Perrys have grandchildren, Valentine's Day has turned into a time to remember family members, she said.

Another Northville couple, Karen and Paul Riebling, celebrated their first Valentine's Day when they were teen-agers.

"My husband surprised me with a dozen red roses and took me out to dinner. It was quite romantic for being teen-agers."

In turn, Karen presented Paul with a Valentine's Day card she designed herself.

Today, the Rieblings also celebrate Valentine's Day with their children.

"It's more of a family-type holiday now because we're trying to teach them what it's all about," Riebling noted.

George and Marilyn McDaniel, of Northville, have been married for 30 years. Marilyn's birthday takes place a week before cupid's day, so she said she doesn't remember many of them because the two occasions fall so close together.

"I usually buy all the kids candy for Valentine's Day, but my husband and I don't do anything spectacular to celebrate it," Marilyn said.

Although the day isn't normally a lavish holiday for the McDaniels, she said they still look forward to it.

"My daughter's getting married this week, so this year's Valentine's Day will be a really special one," she said.

Expert cautions mothers on dispensing drugs

economic status," Becker said.

A number of forces act to influence mothers to medicate their children, he noted. Some believe they are well-informed about the use of medicines. Some actually are. Some want to avoid the cost of going to a doctor or hospital. Others take their coughing, sniffing child to the doctor's office only to be told the child has a common cold and nothing can be done.

"They ask the doctor to give the child a shot or something, and the doctor often just recommends some cough medicine," Becker said. "Mothers are sometimes annoyed when they take their child to the doctor and think they're getting nothing from the visit."

Becker recommends that pediatri-cians assume the primary role in educating mothers about using medicines.

"Pediatricians nowadays are widely involved with well-child care because we have a generally healthy population," he said. "It's the ideal role for pediatricians as educators. It makes the doctor's visit more worthwhile to the mothers. The doctor can't cure a cold, but he can tell you what not to do so you avoid causing more trouble.

"Pediatricians need to be educated to talk with mothers about medicating their children and to ask others what medicines they have been giving to their children."

"We need to raise everybody's consciousness about it, but it's best to get pediatricians talking about it," Becker said.

Toboggan paradise at Echo Valley

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

An ideal day-trip for a cold winter weekend in Michigan is the two-hour journey down I-94 to "Echo Valley" — a toboggan and ice skating heaven just outside Kalamazoo.

You have to experience a quarter-mile long, 60 mile-per-hour toboggan ride — complete with banked curves — to believe it. Winter enthusiasts have been flying down the runs at Echo Valley for 53 years, and, according to owner Rick Herbert, it is the oldest winter sports park in Michigan.

"Going down a toboggan run at 60 miles per hour doesn't seem like anything unless you've been down them," Herbert said. "Adults call and they are worried about their kids, but when it comes time to go down the run, it's the adults, not the kids, who are reluctant to go through with it."

Echo Valley features eight lighted runs. The tracks are formed from concrete and are iced down like a bobsled run. Standing at the top of the hill, the drop looks like it's off the edge of a cliff. After a very steep start, the runs level off, go underneath a small bridge and then proceed into a 180 degree banked turn that eventually sends the toboggans back up the hill to slow them down.

"That's nice because it shortens the walk back up to the top," Herbert pointed out.

There are tow ropes to help the tobogganers get back to the top of the hill for yet another run. In all, the ride takes but a few minutes and covers a quarter of a mile.

The facility also features a 43,000-square-foot ice rink and a heated lounge that overlooks the toboggan runs and the rink. In the lounge, hot drinks and food are available.

Echo Valley has an extremely good safety record, mainly due to a system of lights and towers used to control traffic on the toboggan runs.

The Echo Valley runs

"We have starters at the top of the hill to ensure everybody is packed in properly, and they are the ones who release the toboggan," Rick said. "At the speeds we are able to reach, and the excitement we are able to generate, even I am amazed at our safety record over the past 53 years."

"We have two and three year olds that go down just fine without any problem at all. Some people hang around and watch the tobogganers for a while and once they see that everybody is making it safely, they try it. Then, you can't get them off of it."

Echo Valley is open only on weekends during the winter (Friday 7-11 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m.-11 p.m. and Sunday 1-8 p.m.), but is open every day between Christmas and New Year's Day. An adult day pass is just $5, children (under 12) $4. Over 400 specially designed toboggans are on hand for use and those are included in the admission price.

"We do not allow anyone to use their own toboggans," Herbert said. Echo Valley is located 15 miles east of Kalamazoo near the city of Galesburg. Head west on I-94, get off at exit number 88 and head into Galesburg. Turn right onto 33rd street, proceed two miles to H Avenue and turn left. Echo Valley is one mile down H Avenue on the right hand side. For more information, call (313) 349-3291.

"It's rare that we are open in March because it's difficult to maintain the ice on the runs," Herbert warned. "The later in February we go, the more difficult it is, so we suggest people come as early as they can in the winter."

Barbershop quartets invade Livonia

The Detroit-Oakland chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America presents its 49th annual concert in Livonia Friday and Saturday nights.

The show will feature the Classic Collection, Yesteryear and the Gentlemen Songsters. The event is scheduled for 8 p.m. Feb. 12 and 13 at the Schmidt Auditorium at Clarencetown High School, on Middlebelt just south of Eight Mile. For ticket information call 646-7375 or 647-4807.

QUILT EXHIBIT — Through April 18, the Detroit Historical Museum is showing "Something to Keep You Warm," an exhibit of African American quilts from the collection of Roland L. Freeman.

Beach leads Northville gymnasts at invite

Mustang gymnast Yvonne Beebe competes in the uneven parallel bars

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Canton Invitational on Feb. 6 featured some of the best gymnasts in the state of Michigan, and Northville's Wendy Beach fit in the surroundings rather well.

The Mustang junior came up with one of her finest meets ever and helped carry the Northville gymnasts to a very respectable 119.5 score and a 10th-place finish in the 13-team event.

The Canton Invite featured 115 competitors from state powerhouses like Freeland, Troy, Athens, Midland and North Farmington, and the upstart Mustangs used the occasion to establish their fourth and final team regional qualifying score.

"We weren't trying to beat anybody, we were just trying to improve, learn from the other performers and get that final qualifying score," Northville Coach Michelle Charniga said. "We did all of that so I was very happy."

Freeland ended up winning the invitational with an incredible score of 137.1. The top five teams at Canton all topped the 132-point mark.

"We didn't score as high as some of the teams, but we did great too," Charniga said. "At an invitational, they usually score a little lower than at dual meets, so 119 is a good score for us."

In the vault, the Mustangs didn't have a single score under 7.3. Beach paced the team with an 8.01 and Lee LaChance followed with an 8.0. Beach ended up tying for 26th place in the event, Beebe was 35th and LaChance 37th overall. The rest of the Northville performers were Robyn Chatman (7.5) and Becky Carney (7.3).

In the parallel bars, Beach registered an 8.65 — the highest point total she's ever registered in the event. Beebe was next (8.05) followed by LaChance (7.6), Kathy Abraham (6.25) and Megan Graham (5.85). Beach's effort was good for 10th place overall, and some high praise from Charniga.

"Wendy was outstanding, especially in bars," she said. "Her routine was fabulous and it was great because she was awarded a 10th-place ribbon."

In the balance beam, Beach took team honors again, with a 7.6 and a 27th place finish. LaChance was 30th with a 7.5, Beebe (6.5), Graham (6.45) and Jenny McMillan (6.1) all followed.

Beach wrapped up a great outing with an 8.35 in the floor exercise. The score was her highest of the season and her second highest ever. The rest of the Northville performers were LaChance (7.4), Alicia Estigoy (7.15), Chatman (6.25) and Graham (5.9). In the all-around competition, Beach placed 17th with a total of 30.50 points — LaChance was 25th with a 32.80.

"We had no injuries, the meet ran smoothly and it was a good experience for the girls," Charniga said. "The best part is watching some of the best gymnasts in the state and what they can do. This kind of exposure can only help our team."

In other action last week, the Mustangs won their second dual meet in a row and their third in the last four tries by clobbering Walled Lake Western 116.35-87.5 on Feb. 3.

Northville's point total wasn't as high as it's been the last few weeks, but Charniga was pleased with the win and the performance — except for the squad's continuing trouble with the balance beam.

"We had another tough time on beam, but that was it," she said. "We scored eight in all the other events."

Cagers bottom out in loss to Chargers

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Northville cagers hit rock bottom on Feb. 2. If there can be a low point in the midst of a 1-12 campaign, the Mustangs' 65-32 loss at home to Livonia Churchill was definitely it. The team fell again three days later to division leader Plymouth Canton, 61-48, but according to Northville Coach Tim Lutes, it was a much better effort than the fiasco against Churchill.

The losses were the Mustangs third and fourth in a row, and leaves the team in the WLAA Western Division basement with a 1-6 record.

Churchill got into high gear right from the start, thanks to a bushel-load of Northville turnovers. When the quarter ended, the Chargers were ahead 21-4 and the game was just about over after just eight minutes.

"The kids went out and forgot everything we've been preparing them for," Lutes said. "It was a matter of (Churchill's) pressure — it got to us and the kids stopped thinking."

"We have a habit of getting out to that slow start and it wasn't bad defense, it was turnovers. The first five times down the floor, we passed the ball right into (Churchill's) hands and they went down and scored five easy layups."

Churchill's lead grew to 36-15 at halftime and 50-23 after three quarters. The Mustangs never were aggressive, even after the outcome had been decided. As a team, Northville went to the free throw line just six times, and that bothered Lutes.

1992 Olympics remains the ultimate dream for Swallow

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The dream — the goal — has always been 1992.

Northville's Jerod Swallow and his ice dance partner, Jodie Balogh of Livonia, have never wavered on that. Four years from now, the world will be preparing for another winter Olympics and they hope to be preparing as well — for their first appearance in the ultimate competition for amateurs.

In ice dancing, the road to the Olympics is long and it features many obstacles and hurdles along the way. Each year provides a number of building blocks which can help to elevate a performer or team to a level above the competition. Swallow and Balogh have faced four such hurdles in the past four months, and so far the ride has been smooth and steady.

"One thing we have to remember is that we can't lose sight of our goal, the '92 Olympics, so we want to continue to improve every year," Swallow said. "We've got a long way to go until '92 and it's going to take a lot of building."

The first forward step came at the Regional Championships in late October at Indianapolis. As expected, Swallow and Balogh took first-place honors in the Senior Dance Division, which advanced them on to the next level — the Midwestern Sectional Championships in Tulsa, Okla. the first week of December. The competition was tougher and the pressure greater, but the Michigan duo came through again to grab first place honors.

"We were pretty sure we'd win at the regionals but we were a bit surprised to win at the Midwesterns because there is a team from Dallas that usually beats us," Swallow said. "From there it was on to the National Championships in Denver, Colo. A year ago, Swallow and

Northville ice dancer

Balogh placed 10th, and they felt it was too low. Heading into the competition on Jan. 3 they were shooting for a much higher finish. Five days after the competition began, Swallow and Balogh were in fifth place.

"I suppose we expected to be anywhere from seventh to fifth, so we were pleased," Swallow said. "To go from 10th to fifth was a nice jump — you usually don't see teams move up that fast in ice dancing — so it was a nice surprise."

According to Swallow, placing fifth nationally in an Olympic year can set up an ice dance team for the next Olympics, and that has been his goal all along.

"By '92, I'll be 25 and that's a peak age for ice dancing," he pointed out. "Both Jodie and I should be right at our prime."

"Things really couldn't be better. We get along great and our goals are real similar."

Swallow and Balogh usually compete in at least one international competition a year and in '87, they traveled to Yugoslavia for the "Golden Spin of Zagreb" in mid-November. The resulting second-place finish was the highest they've ever placed internationally in a senior competition. And the opposition was stiff — a total of 21 countries were represented at the event and 12 fielded ice dance teams.

"For an international competition, a second is pretty high," Swallow explained. "Placing that high in a Communist country is something we're proud of. Eastern bloc teams usually dominate this event."

"We like this type of competition because it gives good exposure for future Olympians. We get experience competing with the other countries and the judges in other parts of the world get to see us."

It was a very busy and intense four months to say the least. Swallow and Balogh are now enjoying a much-deserved vacation from competition and are taking a full load of classes at Schoolcraft College.

"It's vacation time now and we have some time to rest and recover," Swallow said. "We have some seminars in April and a big show in Cleveland in May but that's not for a while."

There will also be two very interested spectators when the Calgary Olympics roll around in next week — especially when it comes to ice dancing.

and were never threatened. The resulting 29-point victory was the largest of the season for Northville.

Beach and Beebe led the way with identical 7.8 scores in vault and the two shared first-place honors overall. LaChance was third with a 7.7, Carney was fourth (6.75) and Chatman fifth (6.6).

The lead grew to 15 as the Mustangs outscored Western 28.2-19.95 in the parallel bars. Beebe was first overall (8.15), LaChance second (7.85), Beach third (7.2) and Graham and Abraham tied for fifth (5.0).

LaChance led the team with a 7.45 in the balance beam, Beach was second (7.2), Beebe third (6.55) and Karen Pyle fifth (6.3), but only Pyle's score was anywhere near a personal best.

Northville then completed the victory by winning the floor exercise, 30.6-19.7. Beach and LaChance shared first place honors (8.15), Chatman was third (7.5), Estigoy was fourth (6.8) and Graham fifth (5.8).

"We did real well except on the beam," Charniga said. "We work so hard on it in practice and hit everything. But in the meets, we can't seem to overcome it yet. As a coach, I just try to encourage (the team) and hope it will all come together soon."

Mustang spikers extend winning streak

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

With a pair of wins last week over Walled Lake Western and Farmington Harrison, the Northville spikers now have a modest three-match winning streak.

Perhaps even more important, however, is that all three victories have come against WLAA Western Division rivals and the recent spurt puts the Mustangs in a nice position with half the season already completed.

On Feb. 1, Northville rebounded from a bad opening game to turn back Western, 11-15, 15-8, 15-10. The squad then handled Harrison 15-13, 15-13 but coach Paul Osborn was not pleased with the overall team effort.

Despite continued problems with serve reception and coverage, the bottom line is the Mustangs are winning.

Game one against Western was not one of the team's better efforts as Northville went ahead 8-3 and then became very complacent. The Warriors scored 12 of the final 15 points to grab the win.

"After that first game, I was wondering what was going on because things just didn't happen the way they should have," Osborn said. "We started to play flat-footed after we got the lead, and our serve reception killed us again."

But things started to change in game two. The Mustangs started to attack the ball and eventually established a lead they would never relinquish. With the Mustangs in front, 11-8, Northville scored the final four points to knot the match at one game apiece.

"We made some super digs and really started to toughen up in the second game," Osborn said. "We came back and took things in hand and that is what we are trying to teach them to do."

In game three, Northville jumped ahead, 8-3, but the Warriors came back to tie the score at 8-8. Osborn called a time out and the strategy seemed to work as the Mustangs won the game and the match by outscoring Western 7-2 down the stretch. Senior setter Katie Brugman was a key performer.

"Katie Brugman is just a super player," Osborn said. "She got us going in that third game. She took charge and she got the girls moving. She's my brains out on the floor and she really knows what I want — she relays it to the players and they responded."

Brugman led the lead with 94 percent serving accuracy and was also good on 22 of 25 hits, including six kills. Jeanine LaPrad also had six kills and connected on 93 percent of her serves, while Nancy Belding chipped in with five kills.

According to Osborn, his team went from the sublime to the ridiculous against Harrison two days later, but the team still managed a victory.

"It was as though the girls had taken sheets and pulled them over their heads and said, 'let's see if we can play blindfolded,'" Osborn said. "I guess we needed something like this though — we played a bad match and we still won."

Northville fell behind in both games but did manage to come back twice on the strength of a stingy defense. Down 13-7 in game one, the Mustangs scored the final seven points to win the game. Then in game two, the team overcame an 11-7 deficit to win, and again it happened after Osborn called a time out and urged his team to buckle up.

"Again, Katie (Brugman) took charge down the stretch, but overall she had an off night, and when she's off, we're off," Osborn said. "The thing that killed us was our coverage."

For the match, Northville connected on serves and hits at a 90 percent clip, but had a very low number of kills. Brugman led the team in that category, but had only three.

The spikers, 4-4 overall, 3-4 in WLAA and 3-2 in the Western Division are scheduled to get back into action Saturday at the Schoolcraft Invitational.

Wrestlers take 9th at conference meet

Two individual third place finishes were the best Northville High School wrestlers could muster Saturday (Feb 6), as the Mustangs skidded to a ninth-place finish in the 12-team Western Lakes Activities Association league championship meet.

Andy Frey, who sported the best record of any NHS grappler during the regular season, beat Steve Lee of Farmington in the 126-pound consolation finals to finish third and Garnett Potter downed Mike Smith of Plymouth Salem 4-1 for his third-place finish.

"We just didn't have a good tournament," Northville Coach Jack Townsley said.

John Frisbie (138) finished fourth, losing to Churchill's Tom Sarah 9-2 in the consolation finals and Keith Graham at 119 pounds, and Mike Hale at 198, both took fifth places.

Graham started out like a house on fire, pinning Bob Knittle in 1:10, but a controversial call derailed his title hopes in Graham's second match. The Mustang was called for stalling in his match against John Glenn's Nate Kempnanninen and lost 3-2.

Hale, who was seeded second and had a first-round bye, got pinned in 5:52 by Charles Wyatt of Farmington, but won his final on an injury default.

Donovan Campbell, who finished sixth at 167, also scored points for Northville.

A slow start put the Mustang grapplers in a bind on Feb. 4 against Livonia Franklin, but it didn't stop the team from coming back and registering an exciting 37-33 WLAA Western Division triumph over the Patriots.

Franklin recorded pins in the first three bouts and took what appeared to be a commanding 18-0 lead, but Northville never gave up. The Mustangs gained some ground in the middle weight division bouts and then pulled off the comeback with key pins by 198-pounder Hale and heavyweight Derek Forbing.

"Some of (Churchill's) best wrestlers are in the lower weight divisions, so we had some trouble with them early on," said Townsley.

The Northville comeback started with Keith Graham at 119 and Frey at 126, but an ill Dave Gudmundson lost an early lead and eventual fell to Kevin Whelan, 8-6, at 132 pounds.

The Mustangs narrowed the gap even further with wins by John Frisbie at 138, Darren Kehoe at 155 and Campbell at 167. After Mike Mazza (185) was pinned by Franklin's Ryan Hickman, Hale and Forbing came through to provide the needed points for a Northville victory. Forbing ended things rather quickly in 37 seconds.

Cagers hit rock bottom

"Only a half dozen free throw attempts shows that we weren't aggressive offensively," he said. "We fell back to our poor shooting habits and I'll bet we had a couple dozen turnovers where we passed the ball directly into their hands. It was a very, very poor game mentally for us."

"We shouldn't make these kinds of mental errors at this stage of the season."

No Mustang player scored more than eight points and the team's 32 point output was a season-low. Forward Greg Price and center Chris House shared team scoring honors with eight. Charger forward Nels Thorderson led all scorers with 20 points.

"This was the low point of the season," Lutes admitted. "If you can find a low-point in a one win season, this was it — everything broke down. Maybe we needed to have a game like this before we could say, 'that's enough.' We can't play any worse."

Northville did a much better job against 11-2 Canton last Friday, but it still wasn't enough for a win. Again, a slow start put the team into an early hole, which made the comeback a long and difficult task.

"They went ahead 14-2 and even though we outscored them 5-2 in the last four minutes of the first half, we were still down 16-7," Lutes said.

A solid second quarter, Nor-thville's first in a long time, kept it close at halftime, and a run in the third eventually narrowed the gap to four. But Canton Coach Tom Niebel called a time out and set up additional pressure to put on the inexperienced Mustangs and the Chiefs widened the margin to 16 heading into the final stanza.

"When it got down to four, they started to put more pressure on us and we promptly turned it over three of four times and that was it," Lutes explained. "We had several chances to stay in the game but we missed, altogether, three or four wide open layups and another three or four with just a little bit of defensive pressure."

The hero for Canton was point guard Brad Carey, who scored 11 points in the third quarter alone and ended up with a team-high 20. House countered with a career-high 23, including 13-of-16 from the free throw line. Heath Myers added 10.

"We played more physical so we ended up taking 27 foul shots," Lutes pointed out. "House played with some real intensity. He took the ball to the basket very well."

Northville will travel to Livonia Franklin to take on the Patriots tomorrow (Feb. 12) and revenge should be a big factor. The Mustangs came back from a 15-point halftime deficit to beat Franklin at home in January and so far it's been the team's only victory of the season.

Northville swimmers notch another division win

The Northville tankers added another WLAA Western Division en counter to the win column last week, and the victory came with surprising ease.

The Mustangs, 5-3 overall, 3-2 in WLAA, topped Livonia Franklin, 50-33, Feb. 4, winning seven of the 11 events. The triumph, Northville's second in a row, pleased first-year coach Mark Heiden.

"It was good to win a home meet," especially against a team in our division," Heiden said. "Overall, pretty much the whole team is showing improvement from meet to meet. We're finishing up the heaviest part of our season, so we swam a little tired against Franklin."

Eric Newton and Craig Smith paced the Mustangs, winning two events each. Newton was first in the 200-yard IM (2:07.36) and the 500 freestyle (personal best time of 5:00.10). Smith added wins in the 100 (52.27) and 50 (24.16) freestyle events.

Also registering firsts were Larry Osiecki in diving (230.7 points), Andy Wayne in the 100 backstroke (1:02.26) and the 400 freestyle relay team of Mike Fortenberry, Jeff Higgins, Newton and Smith (3:32.92).

John Warren paced the runner-up finishers with a pair of seconds in the 200 IM (2:16.02) and the 100 breast stroke (1:11.04). The other Mustang seconds came courtesy of Fortenberry in the 50 freestyle (Steve Lang in diving (189.8 points), Jason Stringer in the 100 butterfly (1:02.6), Jason Hill in the 500 freestyle (5:39.23) and Dave Frayne in the 100 breast stroke (1:13.43).

Northville will travel to Walled Lake Western this afternoon to take on the Warriors, another Western Division rival.

(24.29), Andy Viskantis in the 100 butterfly (57.58), Dave Morante in the 100 backstroke (1:06.65) and the 200 medley relay team of Wayne, Warren, Viskantis and Fortenberry (1:49.7).

Northville added five third-place finishes. They included Chris Handyside in the 200 freestyle (2:03.55),

Rowlands, Kelly pace Bobcats at East Lansing 'A' meet

Six Novi Bobcat swimmers, along with coach Jim McGowan, went to East Lansing for the annual 'A' meet sponsored by the Golden Serpent Swim Club on Feb. 5-7 and the trip proved to be well worth the drive.

Gwen Rowlands placed in six events and managed to qualify in two more — including the IM and butterfly. Rowlands, also a prep swimmer, had not competed in the IM and fly during the high school season. She placed first in the 200-yard freestyle (2:01.97), second in the 50 freestyle (26.29), second in the 100 freestyle (56.44), second in the 200 butterfly (2:28.31), third in the 100 butterfly (1:05.37) and fourth in the 200 IM (2:24.18). Her time in the butterfly exceeded the state qualifying cutoff.

Sheila Osborne, who swims in the 11-12-year-old age group, qualified for the state meet in the 100 freestyle (1:02.89) while placing fourth. Her time in the event was a new Bobcat record. Osborne also placed third in the 50 freestyle (28.75).

Erich Kelly (10 and under) placed in five events over the weekend to pace the Bobcat boys. He was second in the 200 freestyle (2:21.83), fourth in the 100 freestyle (1:06.54), fourth in the 200 IM (2:48.33), fifth in the 50 freestyle (31.15) and fifth in the 100 IM (1:19.02).

Three health clubs serve this area

Deciding to get in shape may be only the first of many choices facing the exercise enthusiast. Picking a place to do the sweating can be work in itself.

For Novi and Northville residents, the health club facility search is not as big a problem as it is in other, more urban, areas. There is a limited number of full-service health clubs within a short drive of both cities. The following is a brief summary of the services and facilities available at three local health clubs and the average cost of membership.

Livonia YMCA, 14255 Stark Road: Many Northville residents find this location closest to their area. If the thought of a YMCA brings back memories of a musty gym with nothing more than a netless basketball hoop for workout purposes, then you haven't been to a Y in many, many years. The YMCAs in the metro-area have fully updated their facilities and offer everything from weights to aerobics.

The Livonia Y has a standard Olympic pool, a free-weight room which holds dumbbells, heavy weights and curling machines; a half-sized gym and a full-sized gym with padded floor; five indoor and six outdoor tennis courts and four handball/racquetball courts.

Classes include free cardiovascular fitness classes, karate, rhythmic gymnastics, gymnastics, open basketball, Aikido, swimnastics and arthritis classes to improve mobility.

More facilities are available for those who join under the fitness membership plan. A Nautilus and Universal weight room, sauna, whirlpool and television lounge are all for fitness members.

Prices are based on the two membership classifications. A physical membership includes all general facilities and activities, and use of a general locker room. A family physical membership costs $318 the first year and $237 every year thereafter. An individual physical membership costs $228 the first year and $147 thereafter.

The fitness membership includes the special facilities. A family fitness membership costs $531 the first year, $441 thereafter. Individual fitness memberships cost $435 the first year and $345 thereafter.

Novi's Vic Tanny features a padded running track

Record/Chris Boyd

Joining a YMCA entitles the member to use facilities at any of the 15 Metro-Detroit YMCAs.

Farmington YMCA, 28100 Farmington Road: Novi residents may find the Farmington YMCA a nearby choice for health club facilities. This branch offers a heated Olympic-sized pool, a cushioned jogging track, a Wellness Center, Camp Star weightlifting equipment, a free-weight room, a full gymnasium and four racquetball/handball courts.

The Farmington YMCA offers a full range of classes and activities and also has facilities that include pre-school classes for children and a separate day-care center. Babysitting also is provided.

Prices for services vary according to the membership chosen. A fitness membership includes a private lockerroom, towel service and a separate whirlpool and sauna.

A family fitness membership is $492 plus a $95 joiners fee for the first two years. An individual fitness membership is $348 plus a $95 joiners fee for two years.

A family physical membership, which includes all the general facilities, is $276 plus a $75 joiners fee for two years. The individual physical membership fee is $180 plus the $75 joiners fee for two years.

Vic Tanny Health and Racquet Club, 43055 Crescent Boulevard: The newest facility in the area, the club was recently built in the new Novi Town Center. The facility is a full-service workout center.

Facilities include weight lifting and exercise machines, including the standard Nautilus and Universal, but others that go far beyond that. There are several sets of weight lifting equipment that are geared toward individual performance areas and cycle lifting. There is a separate women's area, which includes machines built for the smaller reach of women. All other equipment is coded.

The facility has a free-weight area, a large aerobics room where classes are taught several times daily; a padded running track; and a pool which has lanes for lap swimming and a free swim area. There are tanning beds and racquetball courts. The facility also contains exercise machines which include state-of-the-art bicycles, rowing machines and step machines.

Use of the facilities also includes fitness and fat ratio measurements, conducted by the staff, and consultations on exercise programs. There are whirlpool, sauna and steam rooms available.

An affiliate membership at Vic Tanny costs $63 for 12 months plus a $75 yearly membership fee. The membership fee has a 10 percent cost of living increase attached to it and will change annually.

The VIP membership costs $36 for 36 months plus a $100 membership charge the first year. Each year thereafter the membership fee will remain $50.

A Vic Tanny membership can be used at Vic Tanny's anywhere in the Detroit area (other than the Executive Club) and around the United States.

Fitness Tips

Moderate exercise program is recommended

By Eileen Murphy, M.D.

A moderate exercise program can improve the quality of life for women of all ages and should become a regular habit for more women. A regular exercise program can help women to decrease their risk of cardiovascular disease, osteoporosis and obesity. It can also provide important social interactions and promote the development of self-confidence.

Cardiovascular fitness is one important benefit of vigorous exercise. To attain this, exercise must be carried out at least three times a week at a sustained target heart rate and maintained for at least 15 minutes. The activities that promote this type of fitness are called aerobic, and include brisk walking, running, bicycling, swimming, aerobic dancing and cross-country skiing.

Another cardiovascular benefit of regular aerobic exercise is a higher ratio of high-density lipoprotein cholesterol to low-density lipoprotein cholesterol. This helps to reduce the risk of developing heart disease.

A regular exercise program can also be important in weight control. Exercise can help suppress an appetite or enhance satiety. In addition to burning energy, exercise also accelerates metabolism for several hours after your exercise session. Finally, exercise promotes greater energy use by aiding muscle growth and fat loss, since more energy is required to maintain muscle.

Exercise promotes muscle strength. One of the quickest ways to accomplish this is with weights. Weight training should be done with the heaviest weight that can be lifted 8-12 times, usually taking about 30-50 seconds. Additional lifting should not be performed past the point of fatigue, as this can lead to injury. Both weight training and aerobic exercise can enhance the bone density of those bones bearing weight, but this can only take place with adequate calcium intake.

Flexibility and coordination are important benefits of regular exercise. Flexibility is accomplished with slow, deliberate stretching without pain and sustained for 30 seconds. It's important to stretch when warming up so that the muscles don't tear. Coordination skills are usually acquired through sports such as golf and tennis. The nice thing about this skill is once acquired, it will usually remain for years.

Perhaps the greatest benefit from regular exercise is improvement in mood and alertness. This is probably related to an increase in certain chemicals produced by the brain that are stimulated with exercise.

Remember, however, to get any of these benefits you've got to start an exercise program. It's important to use common sense when exercising and to check with your doctor to be sure there should be no restrictions in your program. Next week I'll discuss risks of exercise for women.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics.

LAST YEAR WE GAVE EVERYONE A NEW REASON TO SMILE.

WE OPENED OUR NEWEST BORICS

Last year, we cut more than hair. We cut the grand opening ribbon of the latest addition to BoRics Haircare Salons. The great place to get a great haircut for just $6.

Our trained professionals will give you a quality haircut. They'll wet down your hair with a special cutting solution, cut it the way you want and blow it dry.

Clean hair is necessary for accurate hair cutting. You can shampoo your hair on the day of your visit, or, for a small charge, we'll shampoo it for you. Because, at BoRics, you pay only for the services you need.

You can't beat BoRics for convenience, either. No appointments are necessary. Just walk into one of our convenient locations Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., or Saturday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.*

Don't settle for the uninteresting styles of a barbershop or the high prices of a beauty salon. Stop into BoRics and let us give you a new reason to smile, too.

Since 1865, six generations of the Harden family of craftsmen have been shaping solid cherry into heirloom furniture. Even today, much of the work that goes into creating these 18th century English and American masterpieces is carefully done by hand.

Harden's best Queen Anne style, featuring cathedral doors on the breakfront, shell and leaf carving on the table, chairs with serpentine back rails and vase-shaped splats.
