lity mulls grant proposals

By BOB NEEDHAM

Several projects - including improving public facilities for the physically disabled, preparing a development plan for the area near Northville Downs, and park development — have been proposed as uses for the money the City of Northville has available through the community development block grant (CDBG)

The CDBG is an annual, federal program which provides money for community improvements which must qualify as providing some special benefit - for example, to low or moderate income residents, which, by the program's guidelines, includes senior citizens and the physically handicapped. The City of

Northville gets CDBG money through both Wayne and Oakland

The city has allocated its available Oakland County money to improve barrier-free entry to the Northville Community Recreation building. The city has about $150,000 available through Wayne County, including money left from past years.

The city must submit an application for the money by the end of

A memo to the city council from City Manager Steve Walters suggested several possible projects:

 Supplement the Oakland County money for remodeling the entrance to the community center. At the city council meeting Feb 16, Recreation Director John Anderson said with some additional money, "we could really redo our entrance and make it in fact barrier free.'

· Build barrier-free improvements to street intersections.

• Install an elevator in City Hall to make it barrier free inside. "With the anticipated relocation of the library and the use of that space for various general municipal activities, the need of the public to move between the two floors in the normal course of activities at City Hall will be greater," Walters's memo says.

• Prepare a retail development plan for the area between Center Street and Griswold Avenue from Mary Alexander Court to Seven Mile Road. This plan could include parking and new retail sites, the memo says.

In addition to Walters's suggestions, other proposals include:

· New equipment at Fish Hatchery Park on Seven Mile Road. Anderson suggested this project, saying that the equipment there now "has probably seen its best days already.'

· Building an elevator from the bottom level of the Cady Street parking deck up to Main Street. Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers suggested this project, saying that the elevator would be useful as barrier-free access to Main Street if the deck is torn

• Beginning development of the Northville Community Park on Beck Road south of Six Mile Road. City council member Jerry Mittman suggested this project at the council

Situation improves for township sewers

By ANITA CRONE

The Michigan Water Resources Commission Feb. 18 gave unanimous approval for expansion of the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority sewage treatment plant, thus clearing the way for Northville, Canton and Plymouth townships to send their sewage to Ypsilanti.

Still to be completed, however, is a contract between YCUA and the Western Townships Utility Authority, the design for the system to service the three communities and construction of an outfall on the Rouge

the current outflow would be diverted to the lower branch of the Rouge and all future discharges of effluent would flow into the Rouge.

Under the agreement, which is expected to be finalized during the Water Resources Commission's April meeting, YCUA would be allowed to expand from its current 29 million gallon a day capacity to 58 million gallons per day providing the plant maintains a 30-day average phosphorus limitation of .8 milligrams per liter during the nongrowing season and a .6 milligram per liter limit during the growing season (May 15- Sept. 15).

Also required is that YCUA and WTUA would complete an impact

YCUA could maintain the Belleville Lake discharge as an emergency outlet. A WTUA attorney said the next order of business for WTUA would be to finalize the contract with YCUA and to begin the process of finalizing engineering plans.

No one would estimate any costs for the project or whether federal funds would be available. The North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley plan, also known as super sewer, is expected to receive some federal grant monies for at least the first phase of its project.

Assessments to rise on Northville homes

By BOB NEEDHAM

Homeowners in the Oakland County part of the City of Northville will see their property assessments rise an average of 10 percent this year, while Wayne County city homeowners will see a seven percent average increase

In the township, Treasurer Richard Henningsen said that the assessors have completed their work and rates will rise an average of 15 percent this year.

"There will be no factor as far as we know now, but home selling prices have just skyrocketed," Henningsen

Don Bailey, an administrator in the Oakland County equalization divi-sion, stressed that the 10 percent rise in the city is an average figure. 'Some of these areas might be going up slightly higher and some might be going up slightly lower," he said.

George McEachran, Wayne County's equalization director, said the Wayne County figure for the city is also an average, and that an individual assessment might be more or less than a seven percent rise.

Both countles are in the midst of preparing the tax rolls for delivery to rive at the city relatively soon.

However, residents of the Oakland part of the city can already get word of their assessment. The city tax office has valuation field sheets from the county equalization division which will show new assessment figures As of Tuesday, the city tax office had no figures from Wayne County.

The city's board of review is scheduled to meet from 1 to 4 and 6 to 10 p.m. March 15, from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. March 29; and, if necessary, March 24 as well.

In the township, the tentative dates are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 8 and 14, and from 3-9 p.m. March 9 and 15. Appointments may be made by calling township hall.

The city's three-person board of review meets at City Hall. The board of review process offers a property owner the chance to protest an assessment. An appeal may then be made to the state tax tribunal, but no one may appeal to the tax tribunal without first going before a local board of review.

James Cutler, chairperson of the city's board of review, said it is imtheir local communities, the officials portant for a person coming before Specifically, an appellant should try to show an assessment is unjust by providing evidence of three sales of similar homes in the general area which sold for less than double the appellant's valuation. By law a property valuation must not exceed half the property's true market value.

Appointments are required for an appearance at the city board of review. Appointments are made through the tax office at City Hall.

McEachran explained the process used to arrive at an assessment: The assessor conducts two 12-month sales studies. For this year, the first study compared sales during the last nine months of 1965 and the first three months of 1986, to 1985 assessments, to get a ratio. Then sales from the last nine months of 1986 and first three months of 1987 are checked against 1986 assessments. An average of the two ratios is then com-

That figure, he said, must be between 49 and 50 percent for no assessment increase to be levied. If the figure is less, assessmemnts will

super sewer last year and have been seeking WRC approval to expand the Ypsilanti plant since that time. Super sewer received preliminary approval from the Department of Natural Resources on Feb. 1.

. Proponents of both sewer projects see them as a means of helping to clean up the Rouge River, as well as to solve a continuing problem of combined sewer overflows in Wayne County.

Super sewer was first proposed in 1 1958 and it took 30 years to gain the necessary approvals to finalize a basins will be built in Canton regional plan for the system.

WTUA officials are confident that construction of the lines to Ypsilanti will not take as long.

"I would think that once the DNR sees plans and we look them over, the first thing that would be built would be the retention basins," the WTUA attorney said.

Engineering plans should be in place by the end of the year, explained the attorney

"If everything goes well, we're talking about starting the construction of the retention basins in the spring of 1989," the attorney said. The Township and WTUA officials were cautiously pleased with the commission's ruling.

"I've been dealing with govern-ments for too long to get excited before there is any formal agreement," said Maurice Breen, WTUA chairperson sad supervisor of Plymouth Township.

Georgina Goss, Northville Township supervisor, said she did not know what effect the Water Resources Commission ruling will have on the Haggerty Road sewer.

"I really don't know when we can get approvals for the Haggerty Road sewer, but from what I understand, it will be sometime after the commission gives final approval," said Goss.

At least two large projects - a worship center for Ward Church and a 600,000 square foot office plaza by Kirco Development Co. — are relying on the Haggerty Road sewer.

Act 98 permits (sewer taps) for Northville Township projects have been held up until the sewer issue has been resolved; however, even with the approval gained last week, the Department of Natural Resources is unlikely to issue permits unless there is a plan showing capacity of the sewer system to handle the increased

While Goss said she did not know what would happen with the current capacity in the Detroit sewage treatment plant held by the three townships, she did note that Northville would continue to use its contracted capacity in the forseeable future.

Breen, on the other hand, indicated that Plymouth Township would look toward pulling out of the Wayne County system soon.

"I think it was our intention all along to send all our flows/to Ypsilanti." Breen said.

Breen said that attorneys WTUA currently were looking at any provision in contracts with Wayne County that would allow the three communities to transfer their capacity to other communities that are part of the Detroit system.

"There seems to be a precedent for that action," he said.

The three townships are under contract to Wayne County until 2015; however, new contracts signed by municipalities participating in the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley system, extend beyond that time

CHURCH ST. ONE-WAY - Church Street, the short street yunning from Main to Cady at the east end of downtown, is now a one-way street.

The city council Feb. 16 declared that the street is one-way south, on the recommendation of Police Chief Rod Cannon. At the council meeting, City Manager Steve Walters explained that with the angle parking on the street, it is not really suited to two-way

WATCH THE SNOW — The city is reminding residents that it is illegal to push snow into a public street. The police department has been giving warning handouts where they see it.

CABINET CHAIR — Thomas Watkins, Jr., director of the Michigan Department of Mental Health and a township resident, has been appointed 1988 chairperson of the Governor's Human Services Cabinet.

The cabinet consists of the directors of the departments of Social Services, Mental Health, Public Health, Civil Rights, Management and Budget, and Corrections; the directors of the Office of Substance Abuse Services and Services to the Aging; and, the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

DOGGIE DEADLINE - Oakland County residents have only through next Monday to purchase county dog licenses without having to pay a delinquent fee. Animals that have been spayed or neutered pay $5 instead of $7. However, March 1 the $15 delinquent fee will be in effect. Licenses may be purchased at local municipality offices, country treasurer's office or the Oakland County Animal Control Division.

EASTER SEALS WEEK - The City of Northville is participating in the annual, national Easter Seals effort by declaring next week "Easter Seals Appreciation Week."

At its meeting Feb. 16, the city council approved a resolution designating the week in support of the Easter Seal Telethon.

PLANNING APPOINTMENTS — The Northville city planning commission may soon be back up to full strength.

The commission currently has seven members; its full size is nine. Mayor Chris Johnson — who with council member John Buckland is screening applicants for the positions — said at the council meeting Feb. 16 that the committee may recommend appointees at the March 7 council meeting.

JACK BE GOOD — Jack Bee Dandy, a 2-year-old gelding, won top state honors last year in judging for the top halter

The horse also was chosen the ninth best showing animal in the nation in the halter gelding class. Jack Bee Dandy is owned and shown by Jim Spagnuolo, owner of The Liquor Shoppe in downtown Northville. Spagnuolo also owns Whiskey Creek Farms in New Hudson.

Is 30 mph limit near at schools?

ficials have their way, people will have to slow down when they approach Eight Mile Road and Center

"Since the early 1970s, a number of surveys have been done and a number of suggestions have been made, but it wasn't until 1984 that anything was done," said Burton Knighton, assistant superintendent for administrative services, noting that a traffic signal and warning flashers have been installed at Eight Mile and Taft roads, and a 10 mile per hour reduction in speed was instituted.

But the remaining problem, Knighton said, is still very much with the district — there is more traffic on Eight Mile, there are two schools at the intersection, and there has been no reduction in speed.

"The only thing we can do is ask the city's support in petitioning the Wayne County and Oakland County road commissions to reduce the speed limit and to provide traffic light warning flashers on Eight Mile both east and west of Center,' Knighton said.

Trustee Robert McMahon, noting that a traffic study by Reid, Cool & Michalski, Inc., commissioned by the City of Northville, suggested closing the Center Street entrance to the high school or restricting it to outbound right-hand turns only, and also building new tennis courts north of Eight Mile and using the site of the existing courts for additional parking, suggested that now would be a good time to approach the city.
"Did the city ask our input or did we give any," McMahon asked.

"The answer to that is no and no," responded Superintendent George Bell said that part of the problem with asking the city for help in reducing the speed along Eight Mile is that no one is quite sure which county -Oakland or Wayne - has juridstic-

Council reacts

The release of the Northville Traffic Study sparked some varying reactions among the members of the city council last week.

Some members of the council said the study - which, among other changes, recommends making Center Street three full lanes between Eight Mile and Dunlap and closing off Randolph at Center - offered some interesting options.

"I was pleased," Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers said at the council meeting Feb. 16. She said a preliminary report from the engineers who did the study offered no recommendations and had no timetable for completion, but the new draft doesn't have those deficiencies.

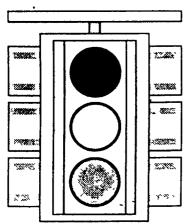

Ayers said the recommended closing of Randolph Street is the most interesting of the suggestions in the

But council member Paul Folino said he was disappointed that the study covered a lot of old ground in some cases, and ignored history in some others. He said many of the suggestions were things the police department has recommended in the past, but which the city could not af-ford at the time. "These were just things that could not be done," Folino

On the other hand, he said, some history is not included - such as a plan in the past to widen part of Center along its east side, where the new study recommends any widening take place on the west side of the

Ayers said the fact that the engineers reached the same conclusions as the police department was a good sign that the suggestions be taken seriously.

The Mill Pond may soon have more signs

City may post more signs at the Mill Pond

New signs prohibiting ice skating may soon go up along the city-owned shoreline of the Mill Pond.

The pond, above Ford Field, has some public-owned shoreline in addition to private. There has been one sign up on the shore warning of unsafe ice, but after an attorney's recommendation, the city plans to add more signs.

A letter from city attorney James Kohl, responding to a question from the city, reads in part, "Under a theory of nuisance, an injured party could create a question of fact as to the city's liability.

City Manager Steve Walters said the city owns shoreline of the pond at two points, at the end of Horton Street and at Mill Race Historical Village.

principle to a property trade which allowed the Plagens retail development to proceed. Last week, the council formally approved the swap.

The trade involves two pieces of land — each about .14 acre — at Main and Hutton, the site of the new development. The city will deed a piece of land just off the corner to the Plagens family, and in return will get a piece of land just to the north, on Hutton just next to the city parking

A memo to the council from City Manager Steve Walters outlines the tale of the trade:

When the council approved the idea of the trade in 1986, the plan for the Plagens retail development had not been approved by the planning commission and historic district commission. Those bodies approved the site plan, but last year the plan was reduced from two stories to one. The council approved the revision last Ju-

As part of the deal, the Plagens; development will make the city's new land part of the adjacent public parking lot.

The council voted 5-0 Feb. 16 to authorize the mayor and city clerk to sign the deed for the city's half of the

Senators scuttle education bills

Although the Michigan Senate turned down a pair of bills that were supposed to address the issue of school quality, Northville Public Schools Superintendent George Bell said this would not be the last time the Legislature will be asked to address educational quality or funding.

"These bills are preceived as quality school bills, so I expect they will come back in some other form," Bell

Sen Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, whose district includes Novi, also indicated he expects the bills to be addressed again.

"It's not our intent to scuttle them but there is no agreement on where to get the money," said Faxon after the vote. He and Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, Township, voted in favor of SB 548, which would have required local boards of education to make a core curriculum, consisting of required and elective courses, available to all pupils attending a public school

The curriculum included career education, communication skills, computer science, foreign language, health and physical education, math, science, social studies, visual and performing arts and vocational education.

The bill was defeated 18-13.

The Senate also, by a voice vote, refused to take up SB 549, which would have required local school boards to make annual educational "That's taking away local control reports that covered accreditation of local school districts," he said.

riculum activities, student achievements and dropout and retention rates.

"This was the first recommendation of the Harden Commission," said Sen. John Engler, the majority leader. "The governor recomended it in his State of the State message. But now he's lobbying to vote on it to cover up the lack of program his party has in the House."

The Republicans have tied the school quality bills to a plan to guarantee $2,750 in school funding for every pupil. But Faxon called the proposal unfair because metropolitan Detroit school district costs are 22 percent higher than the rest of the state.

Bell has opposed the funding plans presented by the Republicans and the Harden Commission, saying that either plan would have a negative effect on Northville.

"I've said right along that if the state would just fund the formula, there would be no need for a lot of this activity to come up with more money," Bell said.

He said that Northville Public Schools, an out of formula district, already offer a number of classes similar to those suggested for a core curriculum and he opposes any attempt by the state to institute such a requirement statewide.

meeting, and Anderson agreed it would be a good idea to pursue.

• A request for $475 from The Information Center, a Wyandottebased agency involved with the area-wide Homeshare program. • A proposal for $2,500 to $3,000 from the Lexington Condo Homes Association to develop a park on a piece of vacant land just west of the subdivision entrance on Eight Mile Road. "Such a plan would be in keeping with council's concern for usage of the area as expressed while agree-ing to lease the land to the Lexington Condo Association," the request

The proposed projects are all subject to approval under the CDBG program guidelines. Walters told the council he would discuss all the proposals with county officials, and report back at the next council meeting on which would probably qualify for the money. That meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. March 7.

In his memo, Walters proposed that the council develop a priority list of projects — including any new ideas — at the March 7 meeting. The council could then take a final vote on its proposal March 21, allowing the submission of the application by

AMERMAN

February finds the Amerman Publishing Center a busy place. All our fifth graders have just completed an individual essay that will appear in their yearbook. Students in grades 1-4 now have the opportunity to become an Amerman Author by watching their handwritten stories turn into a fully published book We are very proud of our students' writing ability, especially as they share their completed book with our principal, Milt Jacobi, and other classmates

Although the Amerman PTA's pancake supper was canceled due to the snow storm on Feb 11, it has been rescheduled for March 29 Plan to join your friends and neighbors in watching the pancake flippers prepare your supper
The PTA's evening meeting in February was a success, and the plan is to continue to have several regular business meetings in the evening.

This month, the computer committee presented its recommendations for 48 software programs, three Image Word 2 Printers and various computer supplies to be purchased by the PTA for the school. Those purchases will be made as soon as possible, and many thanks to the ladies who spent many hours researching the information: Beth Maupin, Jan Purtell, Lynn Noonan, Marilyn Robison and Kathy Bock.

Congratulations to Jeff Sieving from Vi Wuestnick's fourth grade for his winning essay on how Michigan will look in the year 2037. Jeff's essay is part of the Michigan time capsule.

Amerman's science fair will be held on from 6 to 7:30 p.m. March 3, All students in grades 1 through 5 are invited to display their projects in the gym Set up will be at 11 a.m., and classes will visit the science exhibit that afternoon

The Junior Enrichment Series committee has arranged for Channel 4 weatherman Chuck Gaidica to speak to Amerman students during two assemblies, at 1 p.m. and 1:30

SILVER SPRINGS

Something new at Silver Springs was the appearance in January of the Silver Springs Science Newspaper. Many of our third graders are par-ticipating in this project. PTA volunteer Janine MacKinnon is helping put the paper together.

We had a very successful Family Night supper on Feb. 2. We would like to thank chairpersons Mary Poole and Carol Koskela for doing a wonderful job.

On Feb. 5 our students were treated to pianist Maria Maralis from Young Audiences of America. This was an entertaining and educational program.

Wayne County conducted hearing tests in the kindergarten, first, second and fourth grades during the week of Feb. 15.

Our fund-raiser got off to a big start with an assembly on Feb. 19. We hope everyone will participate and any questions should be directed to Val Troschinetz.

Our student council has decided to adopt a red kangaroo from the Belle Isle Zoo. This group is now in the process of coming up with ideas to raise money to make this project possible.

We would like to congratulate our spelling bee winners. In the fourth grade the winner was Dana Rossiter and the runner-up Emily Belanger. In the fifth grade the winner was Liz Huntington and the runner-up Bill

Our art appreciation program will be starting in April. We would like to thank the following volunteers for making this possible: Marlene Roney in kindergarten, Karen Riebling in first grade and Melody Arndt in second grade.

Our publishing center is in full swing under the direction of Paula Stachura.

As part of our celebration of the bicentennial of our Constitution many Silver Springs students memorized the document's pream-Parent conference week will be ble. The Art Appreciation Series began Feb. 15. Lonna Petrie has done a wonderful job organizing this program for our children. Through this rogram the children are introduced to famous artists, great works of art, and learn techniques and different styles of art. On Jan. 15 the fourth graders went to the Detroit Institute of Art. Their program was an in-troduction to the museum student tour. March 15-16 the fifth-grade class will also be going to the DIA for an American Heritage student tour.

Pat Humantel will be presenting a math workshop for parents on how to help your child with math, March 16 from 7 - 8:30 p.m.

The Invention Convention and an art show will be on display during Parent-Teacher conferences March 22-25. A balloon launch will take place March 25, to celebrate March "Reading Month." The third Continued on 7

Man slips, then flees during assault

Township police are seeking a white male in connection with a reported assault on a township woman Feb 11

The woman told officers that she was clearing snow off her auto, which was located in her driveway, when a white male grabbed her left arm. twisted it behind her back, and said, 'We're going in the house

The woman said as they turned, the man slipped and fell. She got into her car and began backing it out of the driveway while the subject fled on loot

The man is described as being about 6 feet tall, in his mid 30s, blueeyed, with a medium build and shoulder-length hair

The woman was treated for a sprained arm at Botsford Hospital and released.

AUTO THEFT TIMES TWO - A car was stolen from the parking deck on Cady Street last week, and later recovered - the second time in a month that the same car was stolen from the same location

The car - a 1979 Chevrolet - was parked on the top level of the deck Wednesday, Feb. 17, while the driver was at work, a city police report said. The car was parked and locked at about 5:45 p.m., and the owner saw the car missing at about 11:15, the

The driver had the keys to the car, but the driver's jacket was also reported stolen In the earlier theft, the keys were taken from the driver's jacket while the driver was at work

A city police officer found the car in a no parking zone on East Cady east of Church Saturday, Feb 20 A routine check showed the car was stolen, so the police impounded it

The same car was stolen from the top level of the deck Jan 20 and later found When the car was stolen the second time, the owners looked where they found the car the first time, but it was not there

HIGH SCHOOL VANDALISM -Two windows at Northville High School were smashed and two doors scratched last week, according to a city police report.

The windows, 60 inches by 48 inches, were worth $400, the report said Damage to the doors was estimated at $75.

The doors were scratched with two names. As of Monday, there were two suspects in the incident

POSSESSIONS STOLEN - A Northville Place resident told police Feb. 10 that his car was broken into between 9:30-10:30 p.m and a black leather briefcase and a watch were stolen from the car

Officers called to the scene noticed that the passenger side vent window was broken and theorize that entry to the locked car was gained through the door

The missing equipment is valued at

EIGHT MILE ACCIDENT - A Northville resident got a ticket for failing to yield the right of way Wednesday, Feb. 17, after an accident at the corner of Eight Mile Road and Novi Street.

Two witnesses told police that a car going across Eight Mile on Novi Street pulled out in front of a second car driving west on Eight Mile. The two cars collided, injuring both drivers and one passenger.

Police issued a ticket to the driver of the first car for failing to yield the right of way.

Suspect's son, employee testify in Wixom murder

By ANN E. WILLIS

At his pretrial hearing, Henry "'Hank" Johnson Jr heard his son Lee, 19, testify that the teenager found the body of Wayne County Deputy Russell Francis Dickson covered with a bloody sheet and lying in a room of their Wixom home at 3 am.on Feb 7

Lee Johnson said his father had . thim help move the dead body from

An employee of Hank Johnson, Brad Scott, testified that he received a phone call on Saturday, Feb. 6, at about 8.30 p.m from Hank Johnson saying there was a '' dead body in the house, that he had killed his first human being and he wanted me to help move he body.

Hank Johnson, 58, was bound over for trial on charges of open murder and commission of a felony with a firearm after the pretrial hearing on

Johnson is being held without bond in the shooting death of the off-duty 36-year-old sheriff from Livonia Dickson's body was found by a passing motorist in a roadway in the Twelve Mile and Napier Road area of Wixom on Feb 7 Cause of death was determined to be multiple gunshot wounds to the head, according to the autopsy report.

During the hearing, Johnson's son Lee testified that his father had been drinking most of the day and was very intoxicated" when the son returned to the home at approxbimately 5:30 p.m. on Feb. 6.

'He hardly ever staggered . . . he can drink all day and not stagger, and he was staggering at 5:30," the son testified.

Lee Johnson said a man came to the house about 6 p.m. and that his father motioned the man into the house. According to Lee's testimony, the two men were sitting in the office area of the house, talking and drinking together, when he went upstairs to bed

The son testified that he awoke at 3 a.m. and found his father asleep on the couch with the television set blaring He said he then found the body stretched out in front of the desk in the office area. "I got scared and ran upstairs and called my mom," Lee

Johnson testified. The son said he woke his father after talking to his mother in Alabama and asked him, "Why the hell he done it?" According to Lee Johnson, Hank Johnson said 'something about the man accused him of taking his check book" and "it could have been me laying on the floor instead of him." "He took his (Dickson's) wallet out," Lee Johnson said of his father's actions "and he showed me he was an , then he kicked him once officer or twice. I'd never seen him like this before," Lee said. "He was totally different . . the sound of his voice the things he said, scared me. I'd never heard him say things like that

The son said he then helped his father take the body down Twelve Mile to a spot near Napier Road in Wixom "He said something about the first was supposed to be the hardest and this one was easy," Lee Johnson testifled.

Lee Johnson agreed to testify even after being informed that his words could be construed as selfincriminating. He has not been charged in the matter.

The son said the next day he went to work delivering wood for his father's firewood business as usual. When he returned he said "the rug had been moved and a chair had been moved to cover the biggest spot of blood in front of the desk.

examination by Defense Attorney David Girard that his father had been "intoxicated on a daily basis" and had been "drinking more every

"His whole attitude changes when he's drunk," Lee Johnson said. "He's a totally different than when he's straight.

Brad Scott, an employee of Johnson's, said he received a phone call from Hank Johnson at approximately 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, Feb "He asked me to come to his home," Scott testified.

"First he said he had a job for me to do and that he wanted me to come to work I said I couldn't come. He said he had a special job for me. that there was a dead body in the house and that he had killed his first human being and he wanted me to help move the body," Scott said

Scott said he did not go to Johnson's house until the next morning. "I thought he was joking," he said. Scott said he saw blood in front of the desk in Johnson's house and on the walk going into the house. Lee Johnson testified that his father had a "bone-handled pistol" in his hand before they removed the body, but the gun was not in sight when he returned.

The autopsy report showed three gunshot wounds to the head, Judge Harold M. Bulgarelli noted following the testimony. Bulgarelli bound the matter over to circuit court. Johnson is being held in the Oakland County Pagala Phagara Baker Street Interiors, Ltd., wishes to express its' sincerest apology for what happened the last two years.

We thought today's customer was more QUALITY minded.

We thought today's customer was ready for a BETTER IDEA when it came we thought today's customer wanted the BEST PRICE possible without sacrificing SERVICE and APPRECIATION for their business.

We thought today's customer wanted "REAL PROFESSIONAL DESIGNERS" and "DECORATORS" who didn't work on commission in a "Quiet - No Pressure" showroom. OK...SO WE WERE RIGHT! But we were wrong too!
Using our most optimistic projections on anticipated sales for the first three years we set up our showroom, sales staff, manufacturing facilities and delivery WELL...YOU FOOLED US AGAIN! The first year we were open our sales well surpassed anything we thought we would see in the first four years. After driving the crew to near mutiny, we expanded our staff and facilities for the second year. WELL...YOU FOOLED US AGAIN! Sales jumped so high the second year nothing we did could keep up. We have a reputation for quality, price, service, and appreciation, and you tried to give us more business than we could handle. You almost succeeded. In fact we will admit we slipped a few times. This is a real business with real people and occasionally we were less than perfect. OF COURSE WE WERE ALWAYS BETTER THAN OUR COMPETITION, BUT WE WERE LESS THAN OUR REPUTATION. Our customer referral rate was still over 75%. We didn't get that kind of business with lots of "tricky" advertising, "phony," sales, and a "mob" of salespeople working on commission. We got it by putting our money into "customer service" where it belongs. Getting new customers from satisfied customers is the best way to run a NOW WE KNOW YOU ARE GOING TO TEST US AGAIN THIS YEAR! Redesigned our furniture displays Reworked our "NATIONAL AWARD" winning drapery displays Added more "national brand" suppliers Expanded our manufacturing facilities Added additional designers 6) Offer more design services BUT WE DIDN'T STOP THERE!!! Because Baker Street Interiors, Ltd., (previously Ryan's Spring Crest Draperies, Inc.) has always had a reputation for innovation and exclusive distribution. We knew we had to take another step into the future. In house now, and currently being set up, are the finest and fastest computers available today. We can draw to scale, your neighborhood, your property, your home, your floorplan, your room, your furniture, your draperies, and your accessories. And we'll do it in color if you like. We can track your orders better, we can research the best pricing, and we can demonstrate in minutes what other designers need days to sketch. # Escaped youth caught after hitting township police car

A 14-year-old escapee from the Wayne County Youth Home rammed a Northville Township police car Feb 21 with a stolen vehicle, jumped a chain link fence and finally was apprehended by Officer William Harrison inside a van parked in Sen. R. Robert Geake's garage.

William Helke, while on routine patrol, said in his report that be engine running on the shoulder of Eight Mile Road east of Westview.

observed a car parked with the Upon investigation Helke said he noticed a white male slouched down in the driver's seat of a 1966 Chevrolet Celebrity, sleeping. Helke said he woke the young man by pounding on the window and asked the youth to turn off the ignition. The youngster responded by putting the car into reverse and backing into a township police car, which was not damaged.

The boy then fled in the car westbound on Eight Mile Road until the car hit a chain link fence. The suspect exited the car, jumped the fence and ran into the yards of several Westview Drive residence before finding the unlocked garage and the van inside on Eight Mile.

Officers were able to trace that youngster's movements by following his footprints in the snow

A LEIN check revealed that the car the youth was driving had been stolen from Farmington and that the youngster had escaped from the Wayne County Youth Home.

Township officers have filed a petition charging the juvenile with unlawful entry of a garage and posession of a stolen vehicle.

City increases fire lane fine after violations at the Downs

The fine for parking in a fire lane in the City of Northville has increased from $10 to $20.

At the Feb. 1 city council meeting, the council reviewed a police department report of activity at Northville Downs for October through December, 1987.

At that meeting, council members expressed concern about the number of tickets issued for parking in a fire lane at the track: 13 in October, 95 in November and 111 in December. Police Chief Rod Cannon told the council it seemed that some people were willing to take the fine in order to get a prime parking space.

So, on the recommendation of Cannon and City Manager Steve Walters, the council Feb. 16 voted to double

The police department surveyed nearby communities to see how Northville's fire lane violation fine compared. Other fines are: $25 at the 35th District Court and in the City of Haze Park, which has a harness ract track; $20 in Novi; $15 in Ann Arbo and at Metro Airport; and $10 Livonia, home of the Detroit Rac

In approving the increase, council members noted that fire lane violations are serious. "It could be the cost of somebody's life," council member Paul Folino said,

The Northuille Record

Our Opinions

Senators acted correctly for the wrong reasons

Sometimes people do the right thing for the wrong reasons

As far as the Northville Public Schools are concerned, that is exactly what happened last week when the Michigan Senate turned down, once by a voice vote and once by an actual vote, two bills that would have required schools to follow a core curriculum and also to be accountable to the state for students who drop out.

The senators who voted against the measures said they did so because there were no plans to fund the bills.

But proponents countered that the efforts were the first steps toward implementing the Harden Commission recommendations toward revising educational funding in Michigan.

On the surface, the commission report strives to equalize educational funding and programs, thus benefiting thousands of students enrolled in public schools. In reality, the commission report and the bills that are affiliated with it do little to help Northville Public Schools.

Superintendent George Bell has maintained since the report was issued that the way to provide quality education is for the Michigan Department of Education and the state Legislature to adequately fund the existing formula.

He also has insisted, with the statistics to back his contention, that Northville Public Schools go beyond any core curriculum in their academic afferings

Bell's fears, and the fears of other area superintendents whose districts receive only categorical state aid because they do not fit into the state's funding formula, is that any move toward a core curriculum or accountability to the state Board of Education would remove local control of local schools.

When the Senate turned down the measures, they did not do so to benefit Northville, or Detroit or Romulus. They said they did so because there is no money to back up the proposals.

While finances are very important, also important is the effect a centralized curriculum will have on students and parents. And, if the state works as it has done in the past, any move toward increasing demands on local districts will not result in a corresponding increase in aid. There is no extra credit for already having a proper educational plan in place.

As Bell has indicated, this is not the end of the issue of educational reform. It most likely will return in some other form. Hopefully the result from the Legislature will be the same. The need is for reform is real and we would like to see our Legislators press for reform that will aid our types of communities.

Communities are unique

By Jean Day

When Neal Shine, columnist and senior managing editor of the Detroit Free Press, told the sellout crowd at the Friends of the Northville and Novi libraries' luncheon "I am singularly blessed, I am exactly what I always wanted to be," I concurred.

It is a special and wonderful privilege to be able to place your thoughts in print, to try your best to keep your readers informed and, yes, entertained. While some newspaper reporters become successful fiction writers, in my experience most want to become columnists or feature specialists. I've heard many dream aloud of traveling the world as a travel writer, for instance. Not many attain that goal.

As Neal Shine related, however, as he grew up, he traveled the world through books. His very appearance on Feb. 11, the day of the season's worst snowstorm, attested to his appreciation of libraries and librarians. The Friends and guests who filled the meeting room in the Novi library in turn attested to Shine's popularity. And those who struggled through the snow to attend weren't disappointed.

This cooperative annual luncheon sponsored by the Northville and Novi Friends has been an immediate success. The strength of both organizations in their respective communities is a plus. At a time when, in many areas, organizations are struggling to attract members, especially members who will be active, both the Friends groups are having excellent response.

Likewise, in Northville the Northville Woman's Club is reaching the maximum membership of 175, a number set by the limitations of meeting places that will accommodate this many people. It only takes a reading of our papers to become aware also that organizations such as the PTAs and historical societies are well supported by residents.

The fact that these organizations are flourishing in a time when many towns report lack of interest in clubs (and as many women go to work) points out the uniqueness of our communities. Newcomers who move in beside longtime residents do so in large measure because they want to become part of a community. They want to become involved in the Friends, the historical society and, if they have children, the PTAs. Teresa Folino, president of the Northville Jaycees, observed recently it's no longer "in" to be a Juppie. It is now "in" to be part of an organization and become active in your community.

In both The Northville Record and Novi News we try very hard to keep readers informed about our organizations and what they are doing. We feel it's part of the newspapers' obligation to publicize the Newcomers' activities as well as special church events and many other functions.

On a little different note, because I want to tell you of; an unusual obituary this week, we also feel readers, especially longtime residents, want to know about deaths, engagements, weddings and anniversaries of their neighbors.

Last Saturday, Norman J. Walters, a resident of the area for 35 years, died at St. Mary Hospital at the age of 62. He was a plumber who had been in business for himself for 10 years and was known to many as Norm the Plumber. Because he had never married and had no family and his body had been donated to the University of Michigan, a friend, B.E. McIsaac, was afraid there would be no mention of his death.

Therefore, he brought in an obituary, noting that "Norm was an orphan taken in to St. Francis Orphanage" in Detroit when he was three years old and remained there until sometime in his teens. From there he was taken in by a farmer and his wife, along with several other boys, who lived in the Wixom-Milford area, staying with them until old enough to be employed at public works. His first work after the farm was in Cadillac, Mich!"

The writer went on to explain that Norm was drafted in World War II and, on return, went to work for Long's Plumbing in Northville for 27 years before going into business for himself. He wanted Norm's friends and acquaintances to know what had happened and noted that "he will be missed." In communities like ours, he will.

'Tis the season

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

I was kind of surprised. I had walked into The Gate for a short break about ten-thirty Monday night, fully expecting to see the Michigan-Michigan State game on the big television screen.

I was right about that part. The thing that surprised me was that everyone was watching the Olympic ice dancing competition on the little television screen instead.

Don't get me wrong; I don't underestimate the regular crowd down at The Gate one little bit. I can't; I'm one of them.

The thing is that it tends to be a somewhat macho crowd as the night wears on . . people coming in after the race track closes . . . the kind of people who play country-western on the juke and aren't reluctant to question the musical tastes of anyone who plays Barry

Manilow instead . . . the kind of people who very definitely would be more likely to watch a college basketball game than Olympic ice dancing.

But there they were, the Starting Gate regulars, watching the ice dancing competition while Dick Buttons oohed and aahed in the background.

The Wolverines and Spartans were doing their thing on the big screen virtually unnoticed, while all eyes were glued on the Protopopovs — or whoever the Protopopovs are this year — whirling around the ice in dramatic facsimiles of waltzes and tangos.

One of the race track regulars made some disparaging remarks about a handsome blond Russian skater wearing rather sissified-looking white pants. But he dropped that line of conversation when a pretty young lady at the bar — also a regular — said she thought the white pants looked pretty good.

"I'll bet we could do that if we just spent more times practicing," said the guy who didn't like white pants to the good-looking girl who did.

It was Big Joe Bush who finally put it all into; perspective. "Shoot, I can do that stuff right now," said; Big Joe, after watching one of the skaters go slip-sliding; across the rink. "You ever watch me try to skate out of this blace at night?"

Manager's evaluation is long overdue

Mayor Chris Johnson has suggested to the rest of the city council that the city begin a written, annual evaluation of the city manager. Johnson's idea is a good one, and we hope the council implements it soon.

As the mayor pointed out at the last city council meeting, the establishment of such a process is no reflection on the performance of Steve Walters, the present city manager. As far as we can tell, Walters is an excellent administrator for the city, and Northville is lucky to have him.

But the point is, we can't tell very far. As any executive can tell you, there is no substitute for a written evaluation. It gives the employer a firm basis for any decisions involving the employee, and it gives the employee something to look at and think over

With the city, of course, it can mean even more. Walters' goals will be closely tied to the city's goals, and an annual review of these will be an excellent chance to focus the city's direction.

Once the time for such an evaluation/goal session arrives, Walters will face a decision. Under the terms of the state's open meetings act, he can choose to make his evaluation public or private. Since the taxpayers pay his salary and his job is of concern to the residents of the city, we hope the evaluation is open.

But for now, the important thing is to work out the process. Shortly before and after his election, Johnson emphasized the importance of the city manager's job, and of the manager's value to the city council. He was quite right. And anything that important needs a formal review.

Parental concern can help kids say no

This is another in a continuing series of columns written for The Record by Charles Stilec, Northville High School Student Assistance Program coordinator.

Northville Public Schools superintendent George Bell has noted that "Growing up is tough enough without the frustration of the absence of limits. As concerned parents, we must express our love by setting reasonable limits, guidelines for conduct and consequences for misbehaving. Only then will our child grow with the security that comes from knowing that we care enough to say

The Northville Action Council has chosen National PTA Drug Awareness Week, March 6-12, to introduce its parent handbook. 'As Parents We Will . . . " to the community.

The book, developed over the past two years, is a guide to parents on key issues such as curfews, parties, parent/child communication, chemical abuse and parent/parent communication.

It is the feeling of the council that there is a need to educate and unite the community. The information and concrete suggestions are a starting point for setting limits for our children.

From kindergarten through grade 12, communicating with other parents is helpful when setting limits for your child. This can be done either informally or in organized, grade-level, parent discussion groups.

The consensus of other parents is often useful information. You, of course, must make the decisions for your family. However, you can draw support when you know others have set similar Teach our children that saying "no" is OK. True friendship means being accepted even if one chooses not to do what others do.

Allow only well-supervised parties for young people in our homes, limiting the number of invited guests to a size we or our children are able to control. We will not serve alcohol to minor guests, nor allow them to bring alcohol and other drugs into our

Eighth grade 9:30-10 p.m. 10:30-11 p.m. Ninth grade 10th grade 11-11:30 p.m. 11:30-midnight 11th grade 12th grade midnight-12:30 a.m. Call the adult in charge of an activity to verify the occasion, location, duration, adult supervision and policy on alcohol. If the activity seems inappropriate, express your concern and encourage alternative activities.

A 1986 Michigan State University survey of 2,000 high school students shows that in a typical two-month period

· Sixty-seven percent of ninth -12th graders attended drinking parties • More than 50 percent of the students reported getting drunk • Two out of five have ridden in a car with a drunk driver

• Twenty-five percent drove after heavy drinking

David Elkind, professor of child study at Tufts University, has written, "We are producing too many young people who may never be productive and responsible citizens, much less lead happy and rewarding lives. When 50 percent of our youth are at one or another time abusing alcohol or other drugs, then something is seriously wrong with our socie-

Lodge Freeway deadline prompts new invention

By PAT BRAY

The Lodge Freeway repaving project completed last spring did more than just give commuters to downtown Detroit a smooth ride to

It paved the way for a Highland Township businessman to form what he expects will be a multi-million dollar enterprise Donn Ellis, founder and owner of Pro Drain Systems, explained his new business began after he approached the general contractor for the highway project in an effort to have that firm use a pre-fabricated drain system on the roadway.

The new plastic drain was to be supplied through Construction Supplies Inc., a firm owned by Ellis'

Although the contractor agreed we use the drain system — the heart of which is a plastic sheet with protrusions on both sides that makes it resemble an egg carton - he wanted a way to direct the collected water to catch basins away from the roadbed.

'They (the contractor) had a $30,000 a day penalty if they were late completing the job. We were working under the same penalty. That can lead to a lot of inspiration.'

> - Donn Ellis, president Pro Drain Systems

The only problem was such a product did not exist.

"They (the contractor) had a $30,000 a day penalty if they were late completing the job. We were working under the same penalty. That can lead to a lot of inspiration," Ellis said

What a drain system does is increase a road's longevity by removing water that seeps through the pavement into the roadbed and by forming a barrier to prevent water moving underground from getting under the roadway from either side.

That is considered important because freezing and thawing water is a major contributor to cracks and breaks in pavement.

Ellis said a number of people within the firm gave ideas on how to best accomplish the task of directing the collected water.

The idea the firm developed into a product, which Ellis expects will generate $3 million in sales this year with a 30 percent growth over the next five years, is simplicity itself.

Line-by-line review of new tax forms

At first glance, the 1987 Form 1040 pay look very much the same - but Bon't be fooled, cautions the Michigan Association of CPAs

The final results of two years of jegislative work and hundreds of pages of tax reform law have, in eflect, been summarized in the twopage 1040 form and the corresponding schedules Most of the changes brought about by the Tax Reform Act gi 1986 became effective Jan. 1, 1987, and taxpayers are now face-to-face with how tax reform affects them.

Filing requirements have changed Generally, the Tax Reform Act raisthe amount of income a person may have before being required to file a return. This means fewer taxpayers will have to file returns for

For your benefit, the Michigan Association of CPAs offers the following line-by-line account of some of the major changes you are likely to encounter on your 1987 Form 1040.

☐ Personal Exemptions Line 6: The amount allowed for each personal exemption is increased to $1,900 for 1987 - up from $1,080 in 1986. The Tax Reform Act of 1986 eliminated the extra exemption for being 65 or older or legally blind. Instead, these taxpayers will be eligi-ble for the additional standard deduc-

Taxpayers claiming exemptions for dependents who are at least five years old by the end of the tax year must provide the dependent's Social Security number.

For 1987 returns, a personal exemption may not be claimed by a person who can be claimed as a dependent on another taxpayer's return This means children who can be claimed as dependents on their parents' returns may not claim exemptions for themselves on their own

Money Management

□ Tax—exempt Interest Line 9. Tax-exempt interest income (such as interest on certain state and municipal bonds) received during. the tax year 1987 must be shown on this line ☐ Dividends Exclusion Line 10: There is no longer an exclusion from income for the first $100 ($200 if filing jointly) of qualifying dividends. All dividends earned during 1987 must be reported here.

☐ Capital Gains Line 14: Prior to tax reform, individuals could deduct 60 percent of their net long-term capital gains The 60-percent longterm capital gains deduction is no longer allowed. The full amount of net capital gains must be included in income and is taxed at ordinary income tax rates. For 1987 only, there is a cap of 28 percent on net long-term capital gains.

Densions, IRA Distributions, Annuities and Rollovers Line 16: For lump-sum distributions from a retirement plan, 10-year forward averaging on a one-time basis by those at least 591/2 has been replaced by five-year averaging. Congress created a special transition rule that allows anyone who was at least 50 years old on Jan. 1, 1986, to choose whether to have the distribution taxes under current law or the old ☐ Unemployment Compensation Line 19: All unemployment compensation received after 1986 must be included in income. Under prior law, unemployment compensation was partially excluded from income.

Other Income Line 21: This is the place to report any income you don't find a place for on your return or other schedules

One area of other income that changed affects recipients of scholarships and fellowships granted after Aug 16, 1986 Under tax reform, those recipients who are degree candidates must include in income all scholarship money received for room, board, travel and other incidental expenses.

Only those amounts received for course-related expenses such as tultion, books, supplies and equipment are excluded from income. Nondegree candidates receive no exclusion under tax reform. They must pay taxes on the full amount granted after Aug. 16, 1986.

☐ Individual Retirement Account Deductions Lines 24-a and 24-b: Use lines 24-a and 24-b to deduct IRA contributions. New rules in effect for 1987 may reduce or eliminate the deduction some taxpayers can take for contributions made to an IRA. The deduction a person can take for contributions to an IRA depends on two factors: (1) whether you or your spouse is covered by a retirement plan at work and (2) the amount of your adjusted gross income.

An individual who is not an active participant in an employer retirement plan can still déduct an IRA contribution up to $2,000 of his or her earnings. If you or your spouse is covered by an employee retirement plan, you may be entitled to a full or partial deduction or no deduction at all depending on the adjustment gross income of you and your spouse.

☐ Self-employed Health Insurance Deduction Line 25: This is a new deduction for 1987 Self-employed taxpayers who pay for their own and their families' health insurance may be able to deduct 25 percent of the cost of this insurance from gross in-

☐ Itemized Deductions Line 33-a: This line is for the total of your itemized deductions which you disclose on Schedule A Many deductions have been eliminated by tax reform, while others have been restricted. Refer to the instructions for completing Schedule A for complete details

☐ Standard Deduction Line 33b: For 1987, the standard deduction replaces the zero tax on three factors your filing status, your age and whether or not you are blind. Beginning in 1987, the additional exemptions for age and blindness have been replaced by the additional standard deduction amount

You should note that the standard deduction has been sharply increased. Many taxpayers will find that claiming the standard deduction will be a better deal than itemizing. Once you itemize your deductions, compute the amount of standard deductions, to which you are entitled. Use the larger of the two amounts ☐ Alternative Minimum Tax Line 49: The Alternative Minimum Tax provides a formula for tax computation which in effect disallows certain preferential tax treatment. Under the Tax Reform Act of 1986, the provisions for the Alternative Minimum Tax have been broadened and strengthened and the rate has been increased to 21 percent.

CPAs caution that this is no year to wait until the last minute to prepare your return. With all the changes now in effect, you'll want to allow enough time in the event you need more information or assistance

New IRS publications offer help with taxes

To help taxpayers learn about the changes made by tax reform, the Internal Revenue Service has announced the availability of two new publications that explain the new tax

The IRS said taxpayers need to be aware of these changes now and they should also review their witholding to make sure they will be getting the desired refund next year or do not owe a large amount of tax when they file their 1987 returns.

Both Publication 920 ("Explanation of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 for Individuals") and Publication 921 ("Explanation of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 for Business") show how the new law compares to the old, first in easy-to-read chart form for a quick overview, followed by detailed ar-ticles on most of the tax law changes that affect individuals and businesses. Publication 920 has 15 articles on such topics as simplified and reduced tax rates, changes in the IRS rules, itemized deductions and new limits on personal interest The IRS also said taxpayers should use the last two pages of the booklet to check to see if the tax you are paying now will give you the refund you want next year. Publication 920 has a description of a variety of free tax help programs that IRS offers

Publication 921 covers 10 different business areas such as the changes in business expenses, deductions for travel expenses, business use of homes, tax credits and changes in penalties. Each publication has a complete index at the end to make locating topics easy.

To get copies of the new IRS publications, write to the Forms Distribution Center, P.O. Box 903, Bloomington, IL 61799 or call 1-800-

'Ask the CPA' slated

The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants is sponsoring a free "Ask a CPA" call-in day as a public service during tax season this Saturday, Feb. 27.

CPAs will be taking calls at (313) 855-2288 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for the one-day-only service. Callers will be limited to two questions per call in order to accommodate as many calls as possible.

With the recent tax reform legislation, this is an opportunity to receive free, up-to-date professional advice on financial matters. "Tax reform is going to have a major impact on taxpayers as they complete their returns this year," said Mark D. Rottermond, CPA, who serves as chairman of the "Ask a CPA" call-in.

"The changes can be very confusing. Our goal in holding the free callin is to share our expertise with the public, particularly those who usually complete their own tax returns and may have a few questions," he ex-

The MACPA maintains offices in Farmington Hills and serves more than 10,000 CPAs in Michigan.

Donn Ellis believes the drain adaptor will lead to creation of a multi-million dollar enterprise

Paving deadline leads to new invention

It is a plastic adaptor which snaps onto the end of the drain material. The adaptor is shaped as a thin rectangle where it attaches to drain material and has a six-inch, corrugated diameter pipe at its base.

This pipe then narrows down further into a four-inch pipe to allow an elbow attachment of either size to turn the water toward the catch

"We wanted something simple. All a worker needs to install this (adaptor) is a knife," Ellis said. He explained a similar system on the market requires the use of staples and tape to make the connections between its adaptor and the drain material.

The old method of draining water from beneath roadways was to dig a wide ditch on the side of the roadbed. The ditch would be lined with a plastic material, and a pipe would be laid in the bottom. The pipe was then covered with a layer of gravel before the ditch was backfilled, Ellis explained.

The pre-fabricated system, which can be installed by machine, comes in 250-foot-long rolls and three heights. The ditch needed for its installation is only a few inches wide.

"If they should have a cave-in, it's nothing to really worry about," Ellis

He said by using the pre-fabricated materials, a crew can lay between three and four miles of drain in one day compared to about one mile a day with the old system. That leads to a considerable cost savings even though the pre-fabricated materials themselves cost a little more.

"The contractor told us the system saved him two weeks over the old method," Ellis said. The whole Lodge Freeway repaving project was completed five weeks ahead of schedule.

Since the Lodge Freeway project, Ellis said transportation departments in six states have approved the drain system for use on roadways in

Ellis said he expects close to 20 states will have approved the prefabricated material and the adaptor system by the end of the year.

'Things are really starting to roll," Ellis said.

Pro Drain Systems is located within the Construction Supply Inc. building at 15100 Alloy Parkway of Hickory Ridge Road.

BBB offers helpful tips on selecting financial planners

In the past two decades, financial planning has evolved into a multibillion dollar industry with thousands of advisors who plan and manage investors' finances.

To help consumers select a reputable financial planner who meets their needs, the Better Business Bureau/Detroit and Eastern Michigan has released a booklet titled "Tips on Financial Planners.'

The booklet is the latest in the BBB's Consumer Information Series which offers helpful tips on more than 80 topics of consumer interest. Copies of the new booklet can be obtained by sending a stamped, selfaddressed, business-sized envelope to the BBB at 150 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, MI 48226.

'Consumers should not take the process of looking for a financial planner lightly," said Detroit BBB President Thomas F. Ashcraft.

"The booklet gives advice on what to look for and what to avoid when selecting a financial planner, including a list of questions the consumer should ask.

"It also provides a section on the 'red flags' of fraud and abuse," he

Home mortgage rates expected to be stable

Interest rates for home mortgages in 1968 will not drop to the lows of last summer, but neither will they climb to the highs of the early 1980s, according to local mortgage bankers.

Borrowers should find a broader menu of adjustable rate mortgages along with conventional instruments to serve varying market conditions, said Warren Lasko, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

Local home prices should continue to rise, but at a slower rate than this year, said Donald A. Maiolatesi, 1968 vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of Michigan.

"Most of the pent-up housing demand built up during the early '80s recessionary period has been satisfied," he said.
"With long-term mortgage rates in the 10.50 percent range, however, there are still a large percentage of prospective buyers qualified to purchase a home.' Buyers will see a softening of the home market accompanied by increasingly intense competition

among lenders, he said. 'Overall, new home starts are expected to be off 5 to 10 percent, with home resales dropping about 10 percent from 1987 levels. Interest ratel on a 30-year conventional loan in 1988 will maintain a compact range from 10.25 to 11.25 percent with the high at year's end."

Lasko said the mortgage banking industry is continuing to support housing bill now before Congress. The bill includes provisions to prohibit new user fees by government supported housing agencies, provide permanent insuring authority to FHA and increase its maximum insurable amount.

most provisions of a comprehensive

Founded in 1914 and headquartered in Washington, D.C., the Mortgage Bankers Association of America has 2,800 members involved in real estate finance. They include mortgage companies, savings-and-loan associations, saving banks, commercial banks, and life insurance companies.

Top companies seek consumers' feedback

Companies want customers to dissatisfied complainants tell twice come to them with questions, ideas, compliments and complaints.

Why? Because top management in businesses across the nation have discovered the vital importance of customer feedback — and a company's responses to it.

With each response a business reveals its level of concern for the quality of its goods and services, as well as its commitment to customer satisfaction.

In a study conducted by the echnical Assistance Research Programs Institute (TARP), it was reported that the majority of customers don't bother to express dissatisfaction with a product or service to the firms concerned.

It also revealed that 70 percent of those who do complain and receive a satisfactory response continue to be customers. Only 37 percent of those who do not complain, on the other hand, are willing to give the product or service another try.

According to Elaine Glasser, Oakland County Cooperative Exten-Service Home Economist, as many people about their negative experiences as satisfied complainants tell about their positive interactions. Based on findings that customers are more likely to communicate with companies if they're confident of a positive response, firms are install? ing toll-free, easy-access 800 numbers in their consumer affairs departments More and more consumers are calling. They're finding it easier, not to mention quicker, to ask questions or describe a problem over the phone than in a letter. Studies show that the number of complaints doubles, even triples, and inquiries increase three to 10 times when 800 numbers are made available.

Consumers may want to straighten out a billing matter, obtain information on product use and care, learn where they can obtain service.

To/discover if a company you wish to contact has a toll-free number, call the toll-free information operator at

Model Teens

Every girl dreams of being a cover girl. Local hopefuls, Amy McMartin, Rachel Martin and sisters Laura and Kristen Patee, have taken the first step toward realizing that fantasy.

All four girls live and attend school in Novi. And all four have each attended modeling classes in nearby communities. Amy, Laura and Kristen studied for a year at The Dance Factory in Northville where they also took dance lessons. Rachel took a 20-week course at John Casablancas Modeling and Career Center in Plymouth.

All the girls and their parents rated the experience rewarding.

"I noticed the girls who took the class the year before, and it looked like fun," explained Amy, 14, a freshman at Novi High School. "I enjoyed it. It was a new experience. They gave us self-confidence and taught us how to look better. We took turns modeling in front of the class and criticizing each other. It helped me get over some shyness.'

Laura, 14, also a freshman at Novi High School, said, "They taught us how to apply make-up neatly and how to choose clothes and accessories. It was fun.

Kristen, 12, a seventh-grader at Novi Middle School, agreed. "It was a new experience. They taught you how to walk and talk better, more clearly. It made you less nervous to speak out in school, and just say what you believe. The class was not just for modeling. It taught us how to be polite and carry ourselves better.'

Rachel, 15, a Novi High School freshman, took her classes nearly two years ago at John Casablancas. Šhe inally signed up for but her parents wereso pleased with the results that they allowed her to continue.

"Rachel dragged me into this," laughed her mother, Yvonne Martin. "I wasn't interested in this at first, but it was definitely worthwhile. Overnight, she changed from a tomboy into a young lady.

"It gives the girls a sense of selfesteem," Yvonne continued, "and helped make them a little more comfortable with the world around them.

Amy's mother, Diane McMartin, expressed similar sentiments. "Amy wanted to take the course, and her dance teacher kept saying she would make such a good model. We finally agreed, partly because she was a little shy. The idea was to gain poise, reassurance, confidence. Amy's a different person on stage, she just blossoms.

All the girls have been bitten by the fashion bug and think it would be "definitely neat" to make modeling a

"If it's what she really wants, I'll support her," said Diane McMartin. "But I'd want more information than I have right now. I don't know enough about her chances and opportunities. If you're talking about moving to New York, I'm net real excited about it," she laughed. "If you're talking lady's lingerie, forget it! But if she's thinking of modeling to pay her way through college, I'd be all for it.'

When Amy's Dance Factory teacher recommended her for a real job, modeling wedding and bridesmaid dresses in Dearborn, the fantasy became a partial realihad t when I saw her in a wedding dress. She did a very nice job."

The experience prompted the McMartins to move on to the next, and more expensive step, having professional photographs taken for a portfolio

'It was very expensive. You don't want to know how much!" laughed Diane. "But it's the next step. If you don't do it, you don't know if she really has a chance.'

John Casablancas keeps a file on their students, will help them make contacts with agents or casting directors and will call them if a job comes up that they are qualified to handle. Nearly a year after Rachel attended their course, they called her for a job involving promotional work in area supermarkets.

'They gave us selfconfidence and taught us how to look better. It helped me get over some shyness.'

Rachel. "I was excited about it, although it was harder than I expected. It involved dealing with the public, saying the same thing over and over, acting enthusiastic about the product. It was more like acting than modeling. I think photographic modeling wouldn't be as hard." Still, Rachel would like to continue, and when the question of assembling a portfolio arose, her grandmother paid for the professional photographs for her birthday Story by Sharon Rose

Record/Chris Boyd

"She really thinks I can make it," Rachel smiled, "probably because she's my grandmother

When Rachel first went into this, I never saw it as a career for her," said her mother. "But after that first job, it began to seem like a possibility. There are a lot of small agencies around, and I'm told that they're looking for new faces all the time. If you're willing to take the time and drive her around to jobs, you can find

A girl can get started almost anywhere. Modeling classes are offered in a variety of places and price ranges - at dance schools, through community education and school districts, or at professional modeling schools and agencies. Instructors are helpful in recommending professional photographers and assisting with portfolios and composites (a resume including vital statistics). And a girl doesn't have to be tall, there is a growing demand for petite models.

Still, it helps to have a back-up plan. Laura, Kristen, Amy and Rachel all see college as part of their futures. All an volved in extracurricular activities ranging from band to cheerleading, dance lessons and babysitting.

In their dreams, they may be cover girls, but in reality, they have their feet planted firmly on the ground.

Amy sums up her plans for the future this way, "I'd like to be a dental hygienist someday. And I'd like to own my own dance studio (my mom can be the bookkeeper). And I'd love to be a model, so I'll try to fit that in somehow, too."

Former Miss America lauds pageant

By SHARON ROSE special writer

First things first. Is Pamela Anne Eldred, Michigan's homegrown sweetheart who won the Miss America title in 1970, still turning heads and stopping traffic in 1968?

Answer: Yes. Pam still has the blonde, Barbie-doll looks which helped her earn the crown in Atlantic City 18 years ago. And she's sharing a few beauty secrets with the teens of today

Few are better qualified After a broken foot sustained during a hallet rehearsal sidelined Eldred's dance plans, she enrolled in the Patricia Stevens School of Modeling. The School happened to be one of the sponsors of the Miss Detroit Pageant. Eldred quickly became their star student, capturing the triple crown of beauty pageants -Miss Detroit in 1968, Miss Michigan in 1969 and Miss America in 1970. Along the way, she picked up a few trophies for talent and swimsuit competitions.

Those years in the limelight were a heady experience for 21-year-old Eldred. Was she sorry to see it end?

'Not at all," she smiles. "Even though it was a thrilling experience, and I hated to say good-by to the pageant people who helped me during the year, no one could keep up that pace for long. I never expected to win the Miss America Pageant, and when I did, there was no time to think about it. The next day, I was swept off to New York and immersed in the business of being Miss America.

What about some of the criticism leveled at beauty pageants recent-

"I could never downgrade it," Eldred says. "It was a wonderful experience and opened many doors for me In the sixties, it was one thing a woman could do and really accomplish something. Now, women are much more common in the work force. Women are doctors, lawyers, executives. The pageant offered women, then, a chance to aspire. Even the women who didn't win were provided with many opportunities and went on to do interesting things.

"Miss America was a positive experience for me," she continued. "But it was not the end-all to a dream. It was an opportunity. And it changed me It made me a stronger person I can persevere at a goal a lot longer and be more patient about getting there."

Eldred followed up the exciting year with a return to Mercy College of Detroit to complete her degree in Speech and Drama. She moved to New York for a year and took additional classes in dance, voice and diction and continued her modeling. The years since have brought marriage, motherhood (daughter, Hilary is 7), divorce, and a career that has continued virtually without Today, Eldred keeps busy with a lot of promotional work (she's spokesperson for several companies), public speaking, teaching and modeling. She teaches at the Barbizon School of Modeling in Southfield and in various other communities, such as Farmington, Farmington Hills, Birmingham and Bloomfield. She's often asked to speak to young people about goalsetting, etiquette and selfimprovement.

Garden group plans day in Ann Arbor in high post

By JEAN DAY

For their March meeting members of Northville Branch, Woman's National Farm and Graaden Association, were scheduled to participate in "a surprise day in Ann Arbor." As plans have been finalized, it's no longer a surprise but a full day's outing on March 15.

Barbara O'Brien, greeter for the day with Patricia Kitchen, points out that this is a change of day from the usual Monday. Members will gather in the parking lot behind the M.A.G.S. building at 9:45 a.m. to go first to the University of Michigan Museum of Art where head docent Bobby Lavine will escort the group.

A Wearin' of the Green luncheon will be at the Ann Arbor Women's City Club. En route home participants will visit Domino's Farms. Members may bring guests.

Woman's Club members know it's 'Almost Spring'

Louise Whittington of IV Seasons Flowers and Gifts will demonstrate how to combine fresh flowers with silk ones at the Northville Woman's Club program, Almost Spring, at 1:30 p.m. March 5. The program will be held in the New School Church in Mill Race Historical Village Designer Louise Whittington joined the staff of IV Seasons in 1968, one year after Dewey Gardner had purchased the flower shop from Lila Collins who began the business in a Center Street location in 1956. The store later moved to Main Street where the Liquor Shop now is located. In 1971 it moved to its present location on Main Street.

The shop has expanded to include antiques, plants, silk flowers and dry and silk arrangements. "From a shop with two designers we now have 10 who produce a wide variety of styles in both fresh and silk flowers," Whittington explains. She adds that owner Dewey Gardner has a master's degree in design and has trained with some of the top designers in Europe.

Dates set for popular events

More and more residents of our town (as well as those who come from some distance) are finding that dining at Schoolcraft College is a gourmet experience. The Valentine dinner dance sponsored by the Schoolcraft College Foundation Feb. 13 drew diners from as far away as New Boston and Sylvan Lake.

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees is sponsoring a French dinner dance at Waterman Campus Center March 26. These events include a cash bar and table service. Donation is $15 a person. Call the college for reservations, 591-6400, ext. 212.

Meadowbrook Country Club's popular spring fashion show is scheduled for April 20. Shirley Wold is chairperson for the style show at 1 p.m. following lunch at noon.

Guests are limited to four and sponsors expect there will be a waiting list. Think spring!

dividual can make a difference."

That was the message brought to those attending three "peacemaking" programs conducted at First United Methodist Church of Northville by Phyllis Wezeman

Wezeman, director of religious arts, education and Peace Is Possible ministries in South Bend, Ind., conducted a workshop with children Feb 14 emphasizing peacemaking activities An evening workshop for adults followed. A class for M.O.M S. (Moms Offer Moms Support) group was held Feb 15

"Peace is more than absence of war." Wezeman told parents and teachers

"People need to discover that each person has a part in peacemaking Through exploring and experiencing tugged; the turnip came out, proving positive, creative ways, many people can own themselves as peacemakers," she said.

Wezeman developed this concept with the Sunday school children by having them make body-puppets to illustrate a Russian folktale

She told them: "Grandpa planted a turnip to feed his family. It grew so large that no one could help him pull it out of the ground. Everyone held together and tugged and tugged, but the turnip wouldn't budge.

"Finally, a little mouse said, 'Let me help Maybe I can make a difference.

"'Oh, no,' everyone replied 'You are too small and insignificant'

'Well, you know the rest of the story. The little mouse pulled and peace and justice in a variety of the little mouse unique and positive, creative ways, many people valuable," Wezeman related, pointing out that the mouse did make a difference.

"People of all ages need to discover that peace is not someone else's responsibility," she concluded, noting, "It is theirs for the future of themselves, their families, their community, their nation and their world. By catching the vision and acting on it, peace is possible "

Jane Berquist, church Christian education director, was in charge of presenting the special series. Wezeman is an artist/teacher who currently is the managing director of No Strings Attached Puppet Troupe in South Bend as well as a consultant for the office of Global Education, Church and World Service and the National Week for Peace and Justice

Puerto Vallarta is winter paradise

By PHILIP JEROME

Don't let anybody tell you Puerto Vallarta is a quiet little fishing

Maybe at one time when it was first "discovered" by such Maybe at one time luminaries as John Huston and Liz Taylor But not any more.

As Puerto Vallarta's popularity with North American tourists continues to grow, the once-quiet little fishing village on the shore of the Pacific Ocean about 400 miles northwest of Mexico City has become a bustling little town.

The malecon - a broad cement walkway which follows the curve of Banderas Bay and fronts the myriad of small shops which comprise the central business district - is a torrent of activity from the early morning well into the night.

The smell of exhaust from the taxis, cars and trucks zooming around the city makes Americans appreciative of their country's emissions standards.

At times it seems the people of Puerto Vallarta — or maybe it's the tourists - never sleep. Discos open at approximately 10 p.m. and don't close until 4 a.m. Peak activity is around 1 a.m.

The roosters and the garbage trucks announce the arrival of dawn only a few hours after the revelers have left the streets. Quiet little fishing village? No way.

So what is it that makes Puerto Vallarta an increasingly popular vacation spot?

First all all there's the physical setting. Located on Banderas Bay, Puerto Vallarta offers tourists a haven from winter with temperatures around the 70-80 degree mark during February vaca-

The cliffs rise sharply from the bay, providing a stunning visual effect of the Pacific Ocean on the west and mountains on the east. You don't have to drive very far or very long to get out of the city and into the jungles of the mountains.

Then, there's the village itself. It wasn't too many years ago that Puerto Vallarta was indeed a quaint fishing village, inhabited exclusively by Puerto Vallartans. Look beyond the hustle and bustle, and the quaint village is still there. Cobblestone streets which shake and rattle the taxis and buses. Paim trees swaying in the breeze. White stucco buildings with red-tiled roofs. And flowers. Flowers everywhere. Streaming down the sides of buildings, adding color and a festive spirit.

There appear to be three primary 'hotel' areas. The newer, nicer and more expensive - hotels are located north and south of the city. The Sheraton Buganvilias and the Fiesta Americana are located on the north side of the city which is also the site of the marina where cruise boats sail into and out of Puerto Vallarta.

South of the city off the Mismaloya Highway are the Garza Blanca (with double occupancy rates of $185 per day) and The Camino Real ($125 for

It's possible to stay in Puerto Vallarta for considerably less money at one of the numerous hotels within the city. Be aware, however, that Puerto Vallarta is a city that never sleeps. Crowing roosters at 6 a.m. may be quaint, but you may not be appreciative if you've just dozed off to sleep after the last band of revelers has packed it in.

One area in which Puerto Vallarta gets top grades is restaurants. There are restaurants virtually everywhere you turn . . . and many of them are surprisingly good. You can eat Mexican food, of course, but many of the top restaurants feature more continental cuisine. Virtually all the hotels which front the ocean have open-air restaurants along the water front, enabling diners to watch the sun set over the ocean while enjoying their meals. Daiguiri Dick's is one of the best.

Other first-rate restaurants include Capriccio's (a visually dramatic restaurant overlooking the city which also features one of the city's best discos), Le Bistro, La Louisiane and Manantial.

Along the malecon are Casa Blanca and Las Palomas. You could probably eat at a different restaurant every night for several months and be pleased with them all.

Another feature is the city's art galleries. Perhaps the leading gallery is Galeria Uno which specializes in art by contemporary Mexican artists and artists living in Mexico. Sergio Bustamente, one of Mexico's best-known artists, also has opened a bright new gallery in town featuring his intriguing, surrealistic

Puerto Vallarta also has several galleries dedicated to Mexican folk art. The best may be Viva's where the owner has been in business more than 20 years, collecting art from jungle tribes and bringing it into the city. Next door to Viva's is Olinala -Galleria de Artes Indigenes, which features gorgeous masks and handetched chests and other handmade native art.

Puerto Vallarta is no longer heaven on earth, as John Huston (who helped put the town on the map by filming "Night of the Iguana" just outside the city) found it. The city is noisy and dirty, and there are plenty of hucksters working to separate the tourist from his dollars.

But it does have its redeeming qualities: excellent dining, several unique art galleries and, of course, the ocean, the sun, the sandy beaches and an exchange rate of approac

Season comes to sudden halt for grapplers

The 1987-88 campaign came to a sudden halt for the Mustang wrestlers, but facing opponents like Novi and Redford Catholic Central, both ranked among the state's best, in tournament action, the team has nothing to apologize about.

At the Michigan High School Athletic Association team district on Feb. 17 at Novi, Northville topped Brighton, 42-28, in round one but was then crushed by the host Wildcats, 52-8, in the finals. Three days later, junior Mike Hale — the only Mustang to qualify for the individual regionals held at Plymouth Salem - failed to place among the top four and missed a chance to compete in the state meet, but was just one victory away from doing so.

Northville registered eight wins over Brighton in the district. The winners included Kevin Khashan (98), Kevin Delaney (119), Andy Frey (126), Dave Gudmundsen (132), John Frisbie (138), Curtis Cureton (145), Donovan Campbell (185) and Jason Vertres (167).

"(Brighton) had an adjusted lineup and we did too," Northville Assistant Coach Bob Boshoven said. "We wrestled pretty well, but it's hard for the kids to get motivated with Novi up next. We gave Mike Hale the night

Northville didn't have a prayer against Novi in the final round. With several regulars wrestling up at least one weight classification, and several other reserves stuck in the starting line-up, the Wildcats still came away with wins in 11 bouts and a draw in another. Northville Coach Jack Townsley also had numerous non-regulars in the line-up, already conceeding the win to Novi.

'We all knew Novi was going to win it, so everybody threw a lot of J.V. performers in so it wasn't a very realistic test," Townsley said.

Dave Gudmundsen's pin in the 132-pound match over Carlos Mejia provided the Mustangs' only victory. Darren Kehoe did score points with a draw at 145 against Andy Price.

In the other matches, Brian Paquette topped Khashan, 5-4, at 98; Chris Wenzara (105) pinned Chad Bosscher in 1:17; Ron Nutt (112) pinned Mike Mathes in 1:44; Kevin Moody (119) decisioned Keith Graham, 5-4; Scott Brown (126) pinned John Kochanik in 1:19; Dan Brogan (138) decisioned Frisbie, 8-1; Dan Rickfelder (145) beat Cureton on a technical fall; Jeff O'Neili (167) pinned Vartres in 2:58; Ron Fritz (185) decisioned Campbell, 9-2; Chris Zammitt (198) pianed Mike Mazza in 2:21; and, Bret Keir (Hwt.) pinned Chuck Shuff in 2:40.

"It would have been nice to score more points but Novi is real tough,' Boshoven said. "They may be the second best team in the state, behind Catholic Central."

At the individual regionals, Hale wrestled well in the first round, but lost a close, 10-8, decision to Temperence Bedford's Vick Watkins. In his first match in the consolation round, Hale pinned Ann Arbor Pioneer's Phil Cartman in the first period to advance to the semifinals, but he then fell to Catholic Central's Lee Krueger in the second period. A win over Krueger, one of the state's best at 198, would have given Hale at least a fourthplace finish and a berth in the state meet this weekend in Battle Creek.

"Krueger is real tough but I thought Mike wrestled well," Boshoven said. "All around, he had a great year. It's easy to forget that this was only his second year as a wrestler.''

"To be only one match away from going to the state meet isn't bad at 'all,'' Townsley concurred.

Gymnasts win 4th straight dual meet

The Northville gymnasts got off to a nice start, took a five-point lead over Saline and then held on in the final two events to register a hardfought 118.55-116.30 non-conference victory on Feb. 17. The win was the Mustangs' fourth in a row. After a 2-2 start, Northville has now compiled an impressive 6-2 overall dual meet record (4-2 in the WLAA) and coach Michelle Charniga is ecstatic about the whole thing.

"It's a great record for our program," she said. "It's the best we've ever done and the season isn't over yet. I'm really proud of these girls."

and then outscored Saline by nearly five points in the parallel bars competition. But another sub-par effort on the balance beam followed by more problems in the floor exercise enabled Saline to come back and narrow the gap, but it wasn't enough to wipe out the big early deficit.

'I knew it would be close, but we hung in there and pulled it out,' Charniga said. "It was a competitive meet and we needed it because we hadn't had one in a couple weeks." Juniors Wendy Beach and Yvonne Beebe both scored 80 in the vault to lead Northville and tie for second The Mustangs put together a nice place overall Lee LaChance was down in fifth (7.25). The other com-

Robyn Chatman (7.4), Becky Carney (7.25) and Megan Graham (5.88).

The slim .25 lead after the first event suddenly ballooned to over five when the Mustangs outscored Saline 29.3-24.85 in bars. Beach took first place honors (8.0), LaChance was second (7.85) and Beebe fourth (7.15). The rest of the Northville competitors were Kathy Abraham (6.3). Carney (5 05) and Graham (5.0).

By placing just two individuals in the top six on the balance beam, the Mustangs started to lose ground The only bright spot was LaChance's first place score of 7.9. Beach was way

Pyle (6.15), Graham (5.5) and freshman Jessica Henthorne (4.75).

Saline saved its best effort for last by outpointing Northville 31.10-29.75 in the floor exercise. Beach was second (8.0) and LaChance was third (7.85) but no other Mustang placed in the top six The remaining Northville performers were Chatman (7.25), Abraham (6 65), Pyle (6.3) and Mandy Berlinski (54).

"Saline had some real good tumblers and they scored very well in the floor exercise" Charniga pointed out 'the more all won the me inetition.

Cagers playing at .500 clip the last two weeks

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

You could hardly categorize the Northville cagers' 1967-68 campaign as a 500 season, but the team has been playing at an even clip the past two weeks, and that has coach Tim Lutes feeling pretty good.

The Mustangs put together their best two-game series of the season last week, and even though the squad didn't win both games, they did notch their third victory of the season against Walled Lake Western, 48-47, on Feb. 16, and were very competitive against a fine Farmington Harrison club on the road Feb. 19. Northville eventually fell to the Hawks, 45-39, in a defensive struggle.

The Mustangs (3-14 overall, 3-10 in WLAA) are 2-2 in the last four games, and 3-6 in the last nine. Although not at a championship pace, the team's recent showing is far better than the team's 0-8 start.

Northville came out strong against Walled Lake Western and put together what Lutes called, "our best half in quite a while, both offensively and defensively." Behind the scoring of Heath Myers (12 in first half) and Chris House (eight points in first half), the Mustangs built something very unusual — a lead. They were ahead, 11-9, after one quarter and, 31-19, at balftime.

But the Warriors came back in the second half as Northville started to play more tentatively with the lead. The margin was still 10 points heading into the fourth, but things only got worse for the Mustangs and Western continued to alice into the '(Western) switched defenses on us and picked up the pressure and the kids basically just didn't know how to play with a lead," Lutes said. "We haven't had a lead at all this season.

"(Our players) felt like they choked a little in the second half ... I told the kids 'a win is a yin."

Tim Lutes Mustang Basketball Coach

The games we've won have been come-from-behind wins.

The tentative play got progressively worse and the Warriors really made a move in the fourth quarter, cuting the lead to two several times with time running out. "We simply didn't look inside or penetrate with the ball so we weren't looking for higher percentage shots, Lutes pointed out. "We also missed about six layups in the fourth.' Northville turned the ball over three consecutive times down the stretch and Western had three chances to tie the score in the final 25 seconds, but failed each time, and the Mustangs rebounded all three to hold

"(Our players) felt like they chok-ed a little in the second half," Lutes said. "I guess they were unhappy with the way they played but we hung on for the win. I told the kids a win is a win.'

Myers didn't score in the second half, but still paced the team with it points. House added 10 points.

'Cardiac Kids' win another swim meet

If the Northville swimmers don't watch out, they may end up with a nickname like the 'Cardiac

For the fourth time this season, the Mustangs were involved in a very close dual meet, and for the third time, the tankers pulled out a win in the last relay On Feb. 18, the victim was North Farmington, and the score was 43-40 in favor of Nor-

"I don't know what it is, but this one went down to the final relay and we pulled it out," Northville Coach Mark Heiden said. "We had a lot of real good times The guys are swimming a little more rested and we're seeing the results."

The Mustangs (7-3 overall, 5-2 in WLAA) won their fourth dual meet in a row against the Raiders by taking six of 11 firsts and a few key seconds and thirds Freshman Eric Newton paced the team with two individual victories in the 200-yard freestyle (1:52 07) and the 500 freestyle (5:00,32) The rest of the Northville winners included Mike Fortenberry in the 500 freestyle (23.89), Rob Devyak in diving (234.7 points), Andy Viskantis in the 100 butterfly (57.56) and the heroes of the meet the winning 400 freestyle relay team featuring Fortenberry, Newton, John Warren and Craig Smith (1:23.17).

The Mustang runner-up swims came from War-ren in the 200 lM (2:17.56), Steve Lang in diving (188.8 points), Smith in the 100 freestyle (51.79), Andy Wayne in the 100 backstroke (1:03.60) and the 200 medley relay squad of Wayne, Warren, Viskantis and Fortenberry (1:49.45).

Dave Frayne led the way with two, third-place finishes for Northville in the 200 IM (2:19.73) and the 100 breast stroke (1:13.9). The rest of the hirds included Dave Morante in the 100 backstroke (personal best 1:03.97), Jason Stringer in the 100 freestyle (personal best 54.85) and Smith in the 50 freestyle (24.31). 'In the final relay, we needed the first and if we didn't get a third as well, we would have still won, but only by one point," Heiden explained. "I told our guys in the relay that we needed their best efforts to pull it out and they came through.

"This meet really gave us a lot of momentum Everybody is really up for the remainder of the season. It was a big win and we really needed it."

The tankers will host Farmington Harrison tonight (Feb. 25) in a final tune-up for the WLAA conference meet scheduled for March 2-4 outscored Harrison in two of the four quarters and outrebounded the Hawks, 32-25, for the game, but a lapse in the second quarter cost them a chance for a stunning upset. After taking a 9-7 advantage after eight minutes of play, Northville fell apart, was outscored, 11-3, in the second and trailed, 18-12, at halftime. "We couldn't hit anything," Lutes admitted. "We played 10 kids in the second quarter to see if anybody could put the ball in the basket and only five of them scored, so five missed every shot they took."

A 13-8 Northville run in the third made things more interesting and the lead was actually down to four with a little over three minutes remaining. But a costly turnover and a threepoint field goal by Harrison pushed the lead back up to seven and the Mustangs never got any closer.

"We didn't handle the ball well," Lutes said. "We had 15 turnovers and even though that's better than our average, they seemed to come in key situations.

Meyers and Scott Stephens took scoring honors with 10 apiece.

Volleyball team improving; end three-match losing skid 15 points to even the match at one their own game," Osborn said "But

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Northville volleyball team is improving, and even though the victories aren't piling up, week after week, coach Paul Osborn has been pleased with the recent overall performance of his squad. It could be a very important turn of events, especially with the end of the regular season fastly approaching.

The Mustangs (5-7 overall, 4-7 in the WLAA) came up with one dual meet victory in two tries last week, but the team is playing its best volleyball of the season. Statistically, Northville had a great effort on Feb. 15 against North Farmington, but the Mustangs still fell 15-11, 6-15, 9-15.

Two days later, the Mustangs put their three-match losing skid to an end by staging a dramatic come-from-behind 6-15, 15-12, 15-9 triumph over Livonia Franklin on the road.

The Franklin match was a good one," Osborn said. "We beat them earlier in the year at home so they came out for revenge and our girls came out a little cold.'

The slow start resulted in a demoralizing loss in the opening game for the Mustangs, but they didn't give up. In game two, Northville trailed, 8-4, before coming back strong and scoring 11 of the next

game aniece

In the third and deciding game, the Mustangs fell behind, 7-5, and then came back again. With the score tied, 9-9, senior Denise Akroush executed a fancy shot down the net to put Northville ahead for the first time and the play seemed to spur on the Mustangs and demoralize the Patriots. Katie Brugman then served out the game and the match.

On the day, the Mustangs were successful on 58-of-61 serves, 57-of-67 hits, 74-of-76 sets and 46-of-54 on serve reception. The star of the match was Akroush, who not only provided the big play in the third game, but also made 7-of-8 serves and 9-of-10 hits.

"Denise's play in the second and third games were outstanding," Osborn said. "This was one of her smartest outings at the net in her career. Her play sparked the whole Game one against North Farmington went very well for Northville, but the Raiders changed their game plan after the 15-11 loss, and from that point on, it was a struggle for the Mustangs.

they went away from hitting entirely after that and the girls couldn't adjust They aren't used to teams that free-ball it over a lot. In the last two games, I'd be surprised if North Farmington had more than six or seven

'They executed a lot of nonmistakable shots and that's what won it for them It was a good move by their coach — maybe we were just out-coached "

Statistically, the Mustangs played their best match of the year Service (90), hitting (75), setting (98.8) and serve recpetion (72) percentages were all very high

'It's the best we've done all year, that's why it is so hard to understand why we didn't win," Osvorn pointed out. "It was the best game our staring six have played so far as a team.'

Becky Bajoreck was inserted as a starting hitter for the first time this season and the 5-foot, 7-inch junior responded with a fine outing. Bajoreck was 5-for-5 in serves, had five hits and was 12-of-14 on serve recep-

"In the last two games, the kids have really played well," Osborn "In the first game, (North) tried to said. "It's too bad we only have one

Schoolcraft hires athletic director

Like tumbling dominoes, the end of one successful sports dynasty has felled another.

Last June, Marvin Gans stepped aside as athletic director at Schoolcraft College. Gans, a Northville resident, has been the school's only AD, filling the post since

The position remained vacant, with Dr. Fred Reibling, dean of instruction, assuming Gans' duties — until Jan.

SC has finally found a successor to Gans: Ed Kavanaugh, longtime Livonia Ladywood girls' basketball coach and AD, and former SC women's cage coach. Kavanaugh's hiring for the part-time AD's position creates another vacancy, this one at Ladywood. In 12 years as the Blazers' coach, Kavanaugh compiled a 245-42 won-lost record, including two Class B state titles (1963 and '85) and a pair of second-place finishes in the Class B state tournament ('80 and '84)

No successor for Kavanaugh has been announced. "I'm leaving all positions at Ladywood," Kavanaugh confirmed. Why? "Basically, it allows me to be at one place," he amswered. "Schoolcraft has a lot of potential, and I was interested in getting involved in it."

Kavanaugh currently teaches mathematics at SC and will continue to do so.

Pursuing the SC job was not an easy decision to make, Kavanaugh said. "It was an extremely hard decision to make. They have a lot of good, young talent (at Ladywood). It took me a long time to decide, because I knew it would mean leaving Ladywood.

"It really has to do with time. I was tying up whole summers and nights during the season with coaching. I guess I was just ready to stop coaching, that's all."

Exercise tapes popular in winter

By BRENDA BONZHEIM

Winter often causes havoc for outdoor fitness freaks, as pleasant sidewalks are replaced by ice slicks and grass-lined running paths give way to snowy slush and frozen mud.

Yet there is relief for those who feel the need to exercise, but don't like to hang out with the fitness club crowds. The solution? Home exercise videotapes.

. The exercise videotapes offer a wide variety of routines to fit every type of lifestyle. There are fitness routines for men, women and senior citizens on the shelves of almost every local video store.

At Take Five Video in Novi, Jane Fonda's workout tapes enjoy the most popularity. Customers buy and rent the tapes, according to store employees, although purchasing them is most common during the holidays.

Newcomers to Fonda's exercise videotape series include "Jane Fonda's Workout With Weights" and "Jane Fonda's Challenge Workout." The "workout with weights" videotape is a two-part program designed to develop strength and balance in the exerciser's main muscle groups, as well as reducing the risk of low back, knee and ankle pro-

Fonda's "Challenge Workout" tape is a vigorous 90-minute exercise class designed to build strength, develop flexibility and increase endurance.

Also available on home video are "Jane Fonda's Workout;" "Jane Fonda's Pregnancy, Birth and Recovery;" and "Jane Fonda's Prime Time Workout."

But Fonda's tapes aren't the only choices available to exercise buffs. Others include Vanna White's "Get Slim/Stay Slim," Jane Greggain's "One-on-One" and "Richard Simmons and the Silver Foxes."

Simmons' videotape offers a 52minute fitness program for people over 50 years old. Taped at Florida's Club Health in Century Village, Pem-

Exercise videotapes designed exclusively for men are "Phil Simm's NFL Workout," starring 1986 Super-Bowl MVP Phil Simms; the "Armed Forces Workout," featuring Bill Dower, the veteran Marine Corps drill instructor who trained actor Lou Gossett Jr. for his performance in "An Officer and a Gentleman;" and "Lou Ferrigno's Body Perfection," a program featuring instruction in nutrition and vitamins, how to exercise at home with minimal equipment and a question and answer session with Ferrigno, formerly known as television's muscle man, the "Incredible Hulk."

It is recommended that the exercise regiments be practiced at least three times a week on alternate days and that a regular time be set aside for performing them

Prices for the videotapes range from $19.95 to $29.95, and some come with illustrated workbooks.

Before popping an exercise videotape into the VCR and jumping up and down to popular music tunes, it's advisable to consult a doctor to make sure the exercise routine is

Fitness Tips

Screenings for hearing deficiencies is essential

By NEIGATHA GRANEY, M.D.

· Hearing is fundamental to the development of speech and language in early childhood. Children enter an explosive phase of language development between 16 and 24 months of age. A hearing deficiency in a child can inhibit development of these skills Hearing deficiencies are classified as conductive, sensorineural or mixed.

Conductive hearing losses are caused by a blockage of the transmission of sound waves to the inner ear. This impairment causes sounds to be muffled. The greatest number of conductive hearing losses that occur during childhood are caused by ear infections (otitis media) and middle ear effusion (collection of fluid).

About 70 percent of children under 3 years of age will have one or more episodes of otitis media. Fortunately, most of these children will have spontaneous resolution of their hearing loss within a period of a few weeks to several months. Approximately, 10 percent of children suffering a hearing loss will not experience spontaneous resolution and require further medical treatment. If a hearing loss does occur it is generally mild The loss may be intermittent and occur in one or both ears. Approximately 10 percent of cases will require transfusion or middle ear effusions with an associated mild to moderate conductive hearing loss.

Sensorineural hearing losses result when the hearing apparatus or nerves in the inner ear are malformed or damaged. Most sensorineural hearing losses are congenital and oc-cur in about one out of 750 births. Congenital hearing deficiencies are caused by perinatal infections such as mumps and rubella Other causes of sensorineural hearing losses include problems related to premature birth, heredity conditions or acquired hearing loss. Acquired hearing loss is more common following meningitis.

Screening for hearing loss is essential for early detection. The earlier the deficiency occures, the more devastating the consequences for language development. Early detection and treatment enhance the chance of a good outcome.

Treatment procedures vary according to the age of the child. During the newborn period, certain factors place infants at risk for hearing loss, During either the hospital stay or the first office visit, the pediatrician will review each infants hospital course and family history.

This information will determine if a hearing examination should be preformed. If so, a special test that reads brain electrical activity can be used. This should be done by 3 months of age and no later than 6 months,

When a child reaches 3 years of age, hearing may be tested by ear phones using selected pure tones. Prior to this age, behavioral responses to sound may detect gross hearing loss but may not detect less severe hearing losses due to ear infections.

It is recommended that hearing be assessed and language skills monitored in children with frequent bouts of otitis media or persistent middle ear effusions.

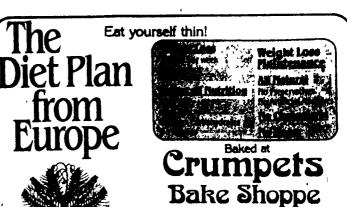

Routine screening exams are generally done in preschool, kindergarten and first grade. Approximately 5 percent of elementary school-aged children do not pass the initial hearing screening tests. Since some hearing losses maybe attributed to infections, children failing the exam should be re-tested several

Any suspected hearing losses or language delay should be brought to the attention of the pediatrician. In general, if your child is developing normally, routine screening is all that is necessary. Routine hearing exams

lt's a natural and needed reply to loss

Someone close to you has died As you struggle to accept this difficult less, you may find yourself consumed by pain and fear and grief

Grief is a natural response to losing someone who was important to you Grief hurts, but it is necessary When a death tears your world apart, grieving is the process that helps put it back tegether

"Grief allows us to let go of that which was, so we'll be ready for that which is to be Mouraing allows us to disentangle ourselves from the bonds we had with the person we've lost," explains Dr Therese Rando, a clinical psychologist and author of Grief, Dying and Death

While grief is natural, it is also highly individual How a person grieves depends on a number of factors. Your relationship with the person who died will certainly influence your grief, but so will the age, your sex role conditioning, your religious beliefs and your previous experiences with death. The age of the deceased and the circumstances of death will also affect the intensity of your grief. In short, no once can tell exactly how you will, or should, experience grief.

Reactions to death of a Still, certain reactions to the death of a loved one are quite common, and you can expect some of them You may go into shock if the death was unexpected, you may even find yourself denying at first that the person has died "You feel numb, you feel like a spectator watching what's going on," explains Dr Earl Grollman, author of Living When A Loved One Has Died and several other grief related books and articles Dr Grollman says this response is nature's way of protecting you, of insulating you from what is happening

Another immediate reaction to a death is anger You may feel anger toward the doctors or nurses who couldn't save your loved one, toward the funeral director and toward God You may even feel anger toward the person who died for leaving you

Unfortunately, most of us were taught as children that anger is something to be avoided, you may therefore feel guilty when your anger will not go away.

It's natural to grieve after a death

"Human relationships always contain some ambivalence, and no matter how wonderful we may have been to our mother, for example, we'll remember the one time we didn't go out and get the mail for her," Dr. Rando says.

As the reality of a death sinks in, it is common for the bereaved to slip into depression. Even if you are normally a committed, caring person, you could find that you don't care about anything or anyone.

You may also feel helpless and childlike. Dr. Rando points out that when you lose someone close, you also experience "secondary losses" that accrue because of the death. A woman who is widowed, for example, "didn't just lose her husband. She lost a friend, a confidant, someone to take vacations with, someone to help take care of the kids."

These secondary losses can leave you feeling confused and panicky. For this reason, you should avoid making any major decisions; try to postpone them until you can think more clearly and have a better idea of how your life is going to change.

Another common reaction among grievers is preoccupation with the person who died. You may think about him or her constantly, re-create the circumstances of the death over and over in your mind, have dreams or nightmares about the person—you may even think you see or hearthe deceased.

Another immediate reaction to a death is anger. You may feel anger toward the doctors or nurses who couldn't save your loved one, toward the funeral director and toward God. You may even feel anger toward the person who died for leaving you.

Many people are surprised and frightened by the intensity of these reactions. "Grief feels like craziness to the person who's undergoing it," Dr. Rando explains, but it's important to realize that, bizarre as they may seem, these reactions are normal.

The mental strain of grief can take a physical toll, as well. It's not unusual for the bereaved to lose weight, experience difficultly sleeping, become irritable or listless, or feel short of breath. Grief has even been known to cause hair loss.

Coping with grief.

How can you overcome the problems of grief? You must first recognize that grief is necessary, and that it is something you must work through. As Dr. Grollman says, there is no shortcut through grief.

One of the best ways to begin working through grief is to attend the funeral. A funeral confirms the reality of death and serves as a focus for expressing feelings of loss. Funerals also stimulate mourners to begin talking about the deceased, one of the first steps toward accepting the death.

Dr. Edgar Jackson, a psychologist who has written several books on death and the grieving process, says that people who don't attend the funeral of a loved one because they want to deny the death often suffer from "unresolved grief" several months later.

Both before and after the funeral, it is important that you express your feelings. Take time to cry, and don't be afraid to share your tears with other mourners. Talk openly with family members and friends.

Don't try to "protect" other family members by hiding your sadness; it helps them as much as it does you. Express your anger if you are feeling it. This is the time to lean on your friends.

They may feel awkward for a while because they don't know how to talk to you about your loss. But you can help them help you by simply telling them what you need

If you normally have a pressing schedule, try to lighten it. Remember, grief is mentally stressful; you don't need the added strain of too much work to do. Set aside some quiet times just for yourself so you can think about the death and your feelings and put things in perspective.

Remember to watch your health. With grief taking a toll on you physically, you need to eat well and get enough sleep. Try to exercise, as well. Physical activity can often help offset depression and provide an outlet for your emotional energy.

What if you can't seem to handle your grief? Again, Dr. Rando emphasizes that there is no timetable for grief, so it is difficult to say when a person needs professional help.

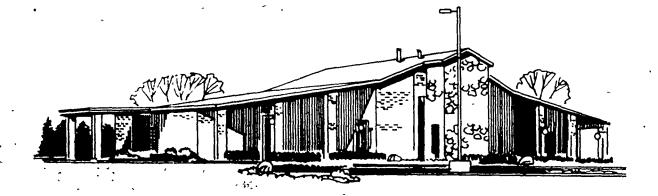

Dr. Grollman suggests that if you are worried that you aren't coping with your grief, it is time to seek help. (You also may be relieved to discover that you are reacting normally.) If you believe you need help, ask your clergyperson or doctor to suggest a counselor. Your funeral director can also offer valuable advice.

Finally, remember that as time goes on, your grief will diminish. This does not mean you will forget your loved one; it means you accept the death and can no longer enjoy the deceased person's physical presence.

But he or she will still be part of your life. Even though your relationship with your loved one has changed forever, its existence and your feelings live on forever.

Pain is always there when your mate dies

You were partners for a long time. You shared everything. Perhaps the two of you brought children into the world. Now your partner has died, and you are alone.

Reactions to a spouse's death

If your husband or wife has died, you will probably experience some of the common symptoms of grief. You will very likely go into "widow shock." You may find yourself denying at first that your spouse has died. Later, you may feel numb or like a spectator watching what's going on. This is nature's way of protecting you, of insulating you from what is happening so you can adjust.

You may also find yourself filled with anger. You may feel angry at the doctors or nurses who couldn't save your spouse, at the funeral director—even God. You may feel angry at your spouse for leaving you—and then feel guilty for this anger.

In fact, you could find yourself feeling guilty for a number of reasons. It is common for the bereaved to feel guilty simply for being alive when someone else has died.

You may believe you somehow should have prevented the death or been present to say good-bye. Because relationships are never perfect, you were bound to have had some disagreements with your spouse. Now you may feel guilty for those arguments, or believe you should have been a "better" husband or wife.

Husbands and wives who have lost a spouse frequently become preoccupied with the person who died. You may think about your spouse constantly, re-create the circumstances of the death over and over in your mind, have dreams or nightmares about him or her—you may even think you see or hear your spouse.

Many people are surprised and frightened by the intensity of these reactions. "Grief feels like craziness to the person who's undergoing it," explains Dr. Therese Rando, a psychologist and author of Grief, Dying, and Death and several other books about death. Dr. Rando says it is important to realize that, bizarre as they may seem, these reactions are normal.

The mental strain of grief can take a physical toll, as well. It's not unusual for the bereaved to lose weight, have difficulty sleeping, become irritable or listless, or feel short of breath. Grief has even been known to cause hair loss.

Secondary Losses

As the reality of death sinks in, it is common for a bereaved spouse to slip into depression and to feel helpless or childlike. Dr. Rando explains that when you lose a spouse, you also experience "secondary losses" that accrue because of the death.

Those secondary losses depend partly on your age. Younger couples increasingly depend on two paychecks to maintain the household.

The death of one spouse can leave the other in a tight financial situation. Younger couples are also likely to have children at home and depend on each other to share the child-rearing duties.

Some women are more likely to depend on their husbands to make financial decisions, get the car fixed and keep the house in good repair. Likewise, many men depend on their wives to cook, clean and otherwise manage the household.

Losing such an important companion can leave you feeling confused and panicky at any age. For this reason, you should delay, if possible, making any major decisions; try to postpone them until you can think more clearly and have a better idea of how your life is going to change.

Perhaps the most difficult secondary loss to accept is suddenly being without your primary companion. You have grown accustomed to living a certain lifestyle and engaging in favorite activities with your spouse. You have grown used to being the object of your spouse's love.

As Dr. Rando says, a woman who is widowed, for example, "didn't just lose her husband. She lost a friend, a confidant, someone with whom to take vacations."

The death of your spouse can also change the relationship you had with mutual friends. If you were used to socializing with friends as a couple, those same friends may have a difficult time interacting with you as an individual. You may begin to feel like the "fifth wheel." Coping with your grief

How can you overcome the problems

you face after your spouse has died? First, you must recognize that grief is necessary, and that it is something you must work through; there is no shortcut.

It is important that you give vent to your feelings. Take time to cry, and don't be afraid to share your tears with other mourners. Talk openly with family members and friends. Don't try to "protect" your children or other family members by hiding your sadness.

Express your anger if you are feeling it. This is the time to lean on your friends. They may feel awkward for a while because they don't know how to talk to you about your loss. You can help them help you by simply telling them what you need.

If you normally have a pressing schedule, try to lighten it. Remember, grief is mentally taxing; you don't need the added strain of too much to do.—

What if you can't seem to handle your grief? Dr. Rando emphasizes that there is no timetable for grief, so it is difficult to say when a person needs professional help. If you are worried that you are not coping well with your grief, you might consider talking to a counselor.

difficult loss of all to accept.

You may even have dreams or nightmares about your child-or think you see or hear him.

The intense grief caused by your child's death can take a physical toll, as well.

You may lose weight, have difficulty sleeping, become irritable or listless, or feel short of breath. Grief has even been known to cause hair loss.

But of all the normal reactions to death, the two you may experience most acutely are anger and guilt. Because the death of a child is unnatural, there is an especially strong urge to blame someone.

You may be angry at the doctors or nurses who didn't save your child, or at God for letting your child die. If your child died because of some traumatic accident, you may be angry at whomever you believe caused his death, you may even be angry at him—and then feel guilty about your anger.

In fact, you are likely to feel guilty for many reasons. Parents often feel terribly guilty simply for living when their child has died. If you had to discipline him shortly before his death, you may feel guilty for not being "better" to him.

But perhaps you will feel most guilty because you believe you should have prevented your child's death. You may find yourself consumed by thoughts of "if only": if only I hadn't let him go outside that day; if only I had checked on her a minute sooner; if only I had been there. A father's grief

Fathers especially tend to suffer guilt over failing to prevent a child's death. While both parents feel responsible for their child's safety, men have often been taught that protecting the family is their primary role.

Many fathers also have a difficult time expressing their grief. They may still believe on some level that "big boys don't cry," or they may want to be "strong" for their wives and other children. Unfortunately, this may keep fathers from working through their grief and resolving it.

Effects on a marrriage

While bereaved parents know they will experience intense grief, their child's death can have another effect they do not expect: It will probably alter their feelings toward each other. "The marriage will never be the same. It may be better or worse, but never the same," says Dr. Earl Grollman, author of Living When a Loved One Has Died and several other books about death and grief.

Dr. Rando explains that parents expect their grief to be similar because they have lost the same child; however, "they've each had a different relationship with that child; the relationship the father mourns is different from the relationship the mother mourns."

As a result, the parents may find it difficult to communicate. "When one's up, the other one's down," Dr. Rando continues. "The husband may want to put up pictures of the child, but the wife can't take it. This puts a lot of stress on a couple when they're used to working together." One parent's physical resemblance to the dead child can also cause difficulties for the other parent.

with the stast of their in the

A child's death often causes sexual problems within a marriage, as well. "One spouse may want to feel intimacy with the other. But the other may not want the closeness, because letting down the emotional barrier means feeling the pain." Sexual problems can last up to two years or longer after a child's death, Dr. Rando says.

Coping with a child's death

How can parents handle the problems brought on by their intense grief? "You need to find someone who can understand your feelings," says Dr. Edgar Jackson, a psychologist and author of You and Your Grief and other books about death. Dr. Jackson, who himself has lost two sons, urges grieving parents to join The Compassionate Friends or other associations of bereaved parents.

It is important for parents to comprehend that severe grief can make them feel like they're going crazy. If you are afraid your grief is out of control, you might consider asking your clergyperson, doctor or funeral director to suggest a counselor. If nothing else, you may be relieved to find out your problems are normal.

Finally, remember that other people will likely feel very awkward around you because they won't know what to say. You can help bridge the gap by simply telling them what you need and letting them tell a child that his brother or sister is "sleeping"; he will be afraid of dying in his sleep.

Don't tell the child that God wanted his sister; he will be angry at God and fear being "wanted" himself. Simply answer the questions as they come, without offering more information than is necessary.

However, you should assure young children that they will not die of the same cause, and that they had nothing to do with their brother's or sister's death. Young children sometimes fantasize that they caused the death by being "mean" to a sibling or by fighting with him.

Remember, your other children need to resolve their grief. They will take their cues from you, so give them permission to grieve by letting them see your own grief. You won't do them any favors by "protecting" them from the grieving process.

A note to grandparents

Grandparents have the double burden of grieving for their grandchild and seeing their son or daughter suffer pain. Although you cannot take that pain away, you can still offer your help in taking care of the other children, making dinner and, most importantly, listening. Dr. Grollman stresses, however, that you should not take over the funeral arrangements—that is something your child, as the bereaved parent, must undertake as one step in working through his or her own grief.

And do not neglect or bury your own grief even as you support your son and daughter. You need to express your feelings as well. This is a good time for honest talk with your family and friends.

When someone close to us dies, the process of grieving is how we begin to untangle the emotional bonds we had formed with that person. Grief is the painful but necessary process that lets us say goodbye.

Reactions to a baby's death

If your baby has died, you will likely experience some of the common reactions of bereavement. You may go into shock or deny that your baby has died. You will likely become depressed. Even if you normally are a committed, caring person, you could find that you don't care about anything or anyone.

The grief caused by your baby's death can take a physical toll, as well. You may lose weight, have difficulty sleeping, become irritable or listless or feel short of breath. Grief has even been known to cause hair loss. There are two normal reactions to death that you will probably experience very acutely: anger and guilt.

Because a baby's death seems so unnatural, there's an especially strong urge to blame someone. You may be very angry at your doctor, believing he should have known something was wrong and saved your baby. You may be angry at God for ;

letting your baby die.

You are likely to feel guilty for many reasons. Parents of unborn babies who die often mistakenly blame themselves for the death. The mother may believe she harmed her baby through an improper diet or too much physical activity. Both parents may tell themselves, that they should have sensed that something was wrong and alerted the doctor.

If your baby died before birth or shortly after, you will likely be overcome by a tremendous sense of emptiness.

Pregnancy brings with it a number of expectations, dreams and fantasies. Now, after the emotional build up of preparing to welcome a child into the world, you must instead accept the loss of both your baby and all your expectations.

Unfortunately, you will for a time be constantly reminded of your baby. You no doubt have filled your home with baby clothes, bottles and a crib. You are likely to receive coupons for baby food in the mail and perhaps a free subscription for a baby magazine. Photographers may call and offer to take baby pictures. Just walking past the infant-wear department in a store may bring on bouts of mourning.

Coping with your grief

How can you resolve this special grief you feel for the baby you lost? Before you can accept his or her death, you must accept his or her life—the baby's existence as a person. No one can tell you how to grieve, but some psychologists who specialize in grief suggest that you hold or touch your baby before he or she is taken away. Some parents even request a photo.

You will want to name your baby and hold a funeral or memorial service. Take your time and decide what you really want to do.

In any case, make sure you and your spouse decide together. Too often, fathers try to "protect" mothers by making all of the decisions. Deciding what to do with the baby is an important step in the grief process for both parents.

Give vent to your feelings. This is the time to lean on your friends and relatives,

SIDS brings trauma to a family

Sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS) is the unexpected death of an infant during sleep. For this reason, SIDS is sometimes referred to as "crib death."

- SIDS is the leading cause of death for infants one week to one year old, and claims about 8,000 lives each year. Doctors are not sure exactly what causes SIDS, but they suspect it involves some kind of respiratory failure.

The death of a child is always extremely difficult to accept, because a child represents a parent's sense of ongoing life. If the death is caused by SIDS, a parent's grief may be especially acute.

Reactions to a SIDS death

If your baby has died, you will likely experience some of the common symptoms of bereavement. You may go into shock or even deny at first that your baby has died. You will likely feel extreme anger. Because a baby's death seems so unnatural, there's an especially strong urge to blame someone. You may be very angry at your doctor, believing he or she should have known something was wrong and saved your baby. You may be angry at God for letting your baby die. Later on, you may even find that you feel angry and resentful toward parents with healthy

There's a good chance you'll also direct much of your anger at yourself in the form of guilt. The primary role of parents in our society is to protect their children; parents whose babies die of SIDS often blame themselves for not somehow preventing the death.

"Parents often say, 'The baby had a cold. I heard the baby cry," says Dr. Earl Grollman, author of Living When A Loved One Has Died and several other books on death and grief. "They say 'I didn't take care of the baby. I must have done something wrong.' '

Unfortunately, your sense of guilt may be deepened by the medical investigation that county health officials are required to conduct after a SIDS death. In order to eliminate other causes of death, a medical examiner must ask probing questions that, to grieving parents, may seem to imply blame.

Later, as the reality of your baby's death sinks in, you will likely become depressed and overcome by a tremendous sense of emptiness. A birth brings with it a number of expectations, dreams and fantasies about the new baby. Now, after the emotional build-up of welcoming a child into the world, you must accept the loss of both your baby and your expecta-

SHARE or another association of bereaved

Remember, grief can be very slow to heal, and there is no set timetable. If you believe you are not handling your grief as you should, you might consider asking your doctor, clergyperson or funeral director to suggest a counselor. If nothing else, you may be relieved to find out that you are reacting to grief normally.

Talking to your other children

If you have other children at home, you will need to explain the baby's death to them. A child's question about death will depend on his age, but your answers should always be honest.

Don't tell a child that God wanted his baby brother or sister in heaven; he will fear being "wanted" himself. Simply explain that the baby was sick and died, then answer the questions as they come without offering more information than is necessary.

They will take their cues from you, so give them permission to grieve by letting them see your own grief. You will not do them any favors by "protecting" them from their feelings.

parents whose baby has died of SIDS may cause bizarre dreams, mood swings and even hallucinations. "Grief feels like craziness to the person who's undergoing it," explains Dr. Therese Rando, a clinical psychologist and author of Parental Loss of a Child. She emphasizes that it is important for bereaved parents to realize their grief reactions, strange as they may seem, are normal.

The grief caused by your baby's death can take a physical toll as well. You may lose weight, have difficulty sleeping, become irritable or listless, or feel shortness of breath. Grief has even been known to cause hair loss.

Coping with your grief

How can you resolve the intense grief you feel for the baby you have lost? First, you need to realize that grief is necessary. It is a process you must work through so you can accept death; there is no short-

A funeral for your baby is one step in accepting his or her death. Planning and participating in the funeral is something you and your spouse should do together. Too often, a father tries to "protect" the mother by making all the decisions.

Both before and after the funeral, it's important to vent your feelings. This is the time to lean on your friends and relatives, to talk about how you feel, to ex-

Saying goodbye

The funeral is an important, needed ritual

It is never easy to accept death. After hearing that a loved one has died, we may feel angry, confused or emotionally numb. We may not know how to express our feelings of loss, or how to say good-bye to the person who has died.

But we do need to work through these feelings, and that's what makes a funeral so important. A funeral is a ritual that can help focus our emotions and bring meaning to the experience of death.

"Rituals link us with the past and the future," explains Dr. Judith Stillion, a professor of psychology at Western Carolina University. "We have rituals for graduations and marriages, and we need a ritual for this most important passage of life."

The funeral serves as a means to commemorate the deceased, but just as importantly, it helps the survivors to heal emotionally. When someone we loves 10 ln Sympalby February 24/25, 1988 dies, we experience the pain of grief. But even though it hurts, grief is not something to avoid. Grief is part of the healing process that allows us to separate ourselves from the deceased person and go on with our lives.

A funeral gives mourners ritual "permission" to express feelings of sadness and loss. Funerals also stimulate mourners to begin talking about the deceased, one of the first steps toward accepting the death. In fact, people who do not attend the funeral of a loved one because they want to deny the death may suffer from unresolved grief several months later.

To resolve their grief, mourners need to accept the reality of death not only on an intellectual level, but on an emotional level, as well. It is for this reason that funerals in our culture are visually preceded by an open-casket visitation period.

Dr. Stillion says she used to feel that viewings were a barbaric custom. But her research into grief has changed her mind. "Nothing helps you accept the death as much as seeing the dead person," she said. "It helps with grieving because it shows that there's no return." Role of a funeral director

A death in the family burdens family members with grief and disrupts their normal lives. With everyone else, these mourners may not want the additional responsibility of thinking through and then planning and coordinating all the details of the funeral.

Fortunately, they don't have to. From the hour of death until the deceased person's final disposition, a professional funeral director helps tabilles through their time of crisis. The funeral director is the one person who, at various times, serves as advisor, administrator, supporter and caregiver.

When the funeral director is called after a person dies, one of his initial responsibilities is to bring the deceased person's body to the funeral home. He also secures information for the deceased person's death certificate, which he then completes and files with the proper legal authorities.

The funeral director meets with the family to discuss arrangements for a visitation, if the family requests one, and a funeral. In accordance with law, custom and especially the family's wishes, the funeral director helps them make choices that meet their needs. These choices may include a traditional funeral service and visitation, a memorial service without the body present or immediate disposition.

Should the family choose to have some type of service, the funeral director helps them choose the place and time for a service and the clergperson or other person who will preside at the service.

He also provides information to help the family choose a casket or other burial container, a memorial stone or appropriate marker and the means of final disposition-usually burial, cremation or entombment.

On the day of the funeral, the funeral director attends to a number of ceremonial and administrative details, as well as to logistical matters such as transportation. Both before and after the service, the funeral director helps the family complete necessary paperwork, including obituary notices, claim forms for social security, veteran's and union

Because the emotional impact of death often makes it difficult to concentrate on the details of legal forms, the funeral director's help in this area is especially

press your anger and grief. Remember, no matter how brief your baby's life, you have just as much right and need to grieve as any other bereaved parent.

You will probably find that some friends feel awkward around you because they don't know what to say. You can bridge the gap by telling them what you need and how they can help.

Even more importantly, talk to your spouse. The death of a child can strain a marriage. No two people experience grief in exactly the same way, and you may find that you and your spouse are on such different emotional wavelengths that communication is difficult. You need to set aside time to be alone together to talk, cry or simply to hold each other.

Perhaps the best way to resolve your sense of guilt is to gather as much information as you can about SIDS. The more you learn, the more you will realize that you could not have prevented your child's death. Remember, despite years of research by top medical investigators, SIDS continues to claim two of every 1,000 babies. You simply are not to blame.

Bereaved parents often find that nothing helps them resolve their grief as much as talking to others who have lived through the loss of a child. You may want to consider joining a self-help group such as The Compassionate Friends or another association of bereaved parents.

Remember, grief can be very slow to heal, and there is no set timetable. If you believe you are not handling your grief as you should, you might consider asking your doctor, clergyperson or funeral director to suggest a counselor. If nothing else, you may be relieved to find out from a counselor that you are reacting normally to grief.

appreciated by grieving families.

The funeral director's role, of course, is not limited to logistics and paperwork. He is also ready to help families work through any concerns they may have resolving their grief.

Today's funeral director is trained to answer questions about coping with death, to recognize when a person is having difficulty accepting the loss of a loved one and to recommend sources of professional counseling for those who need it.

Many funeral directors play an active role as caregivers outside the funeral home. They may be involved with nursing facilities, hospices, and with self-help groups such as The Compassionate Friends and Widow-to-Widow.

In essence, the funeral director's role in serving bereaved people is similar to the general medical practitioner's role in serving the ill: Taking care of their basic needs, and helping guide them to specialists when extra care is required.

Families have virtually unlimited options and they should choose the funeral service—and funeral merchandise—which they prefer and which they believe appropriate for them.

THOMASVILLE GALLERY SALE

Thomasville's American Oak collection is a romantic return to traditional styling from the hand-rubbed oak solids and veneers to the painstaking carvings and sculptured "peg" look, every detail rekin dles the strong spirit and lasting values of a golden age. In addition, Thomasville has added its own special blend of generous storage space and modern versatility. Throughout American Oak's broad range of dining room, bedroom and living room pieces, the charm of the past is beautifully combined, with a up to the minute, solutions to the functional needs of today.

American Country by Thomasville combines the classic look of country living with a subtle touch of contemporary style. Crafted from knotty oak solids and veneers, the collection features gently rounded corners, edges and moldings coupled with a light, natural-looking finish. The result is a warm, inviting ambience that's equally at home in a country villa or a remodeled uptown loft. Classic and comfortable, this collection is wellsuited to today's lifestyles. So, if you're fond of the past but in love with the present, American Country may be exactly what you've been looking for. From the dining room to the bedroom, you'll find a wide range of exciting possibilities.

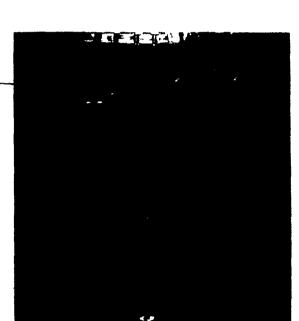

Thomasville's Home Electronics Centers

are carefully crafted to blend beauty and function. Planned for optimum flexibility to accommodate any system of audiovideo components and accessories, including most 27" TV's. Convenient operation features include: easy to pull out shelves for your turntable, VCR and TV; built-in electrical receptacles; and a compartmentalized drawer for organizing VHS/Beta tapes, cassettes and compact discs.
