Party for ghosts is frightful highlight

With Halloween fast approaching, Northville city firefighters are again preparing to sponsor a community Halloween party.

The annual event is scheduled at the City Fire Station, next to City Hall, for Monday, Oct. 31. Trick or treaters of all ages are invited to enjoy popcorn, cotton candy, apple cider and soft drinks beginning at 6 p.m.

At 7:30 p.m., the firefighters will sponsor a costume-judging contest at the Northville Community Center. A panel of celebrity judges will award prizes for the best costumes in five age groups: newborn to 3, 4 to 6, 7 to 11, 12 to 15, and 16 and older. The number of age group categories has been expanded this year, in order to better recognize the large number of excellent costumes expected.

For those planning to trick or treat, city Police Chief Rod Cannon has suggested:

- Wear light-colored clothing short enough to prevent tripping, and add reflectors.

- Make sure children can see through face masks.

- Accompany young children.

- Go out in daylight and carry a flashlight in case of delay.

- Stay within the neighborhood and only visit homes you know.

- Only give or accept wrapped or packaged candy.

- Examine candy before allowing children to eat it.

Cannon said each year the city police are notified of one or two incidents in which candy has been tampered with, but "I think that is common all over."

"Parents should make sure to look over all candies and anything not in a self-contained package should be immediately thrown away," he said, adding that one piece of candy is not worth a possible injury.

In addition to the efforts of both local police departments, the National Safety Council and private corporations are sponsoring a Halloween safety program for local elementary school students.

Children are being given a special trick-or-treat bag which includes safety tips, along with special fluorescent ink printed on both sides.

Steve Ludkowski, director of program management for the sampling corporation of America, said a child will be highly visible to motorists because of the bright reflection of the color.

"This is especially important at dusk, which is a time of day when visibility is generally poor," he added.

It's Jack o'lantern time in Northville and that means plenty of fun for children like Nolan Richards, 3, pictured above. Nolan was one of the many adventurous souls who decided to brave the autumn chill to pick out a pumpkin at the Meyers Berry Farm on Beck Road. Halloween is this Monday and that will mean Nolan will be using this scary face to get tricks and treats.

Town loses Russell Amerman

Longtime Northville resident and former Superintendent of Schools Russell H. Amerman died last Thursday. He was 88 at the time of his death.

"I don't know anybody who has lived in Northville more than 10 years, whose life has not been influenced by Russell, directly or indirectly through their children," longtime associate Donald Severance said.

Remembered by friends and colleagues as a mild-mannered, gentle man with the determination and strength of his convictions, Mr. Amerman in many ways shaped the way in which the current school system and community are run.

He was born on Oct. 28, 1899 in Ypsilanti to Herbert and Mary (Hendrick) Amerman. He graduated from Belleville High School and entered the Student Army Training Program at Hillsdale. He graduated with a degree in science. He moved to Montpelier, Ohio to begin his career as a math teacher.

Mr. Amerman married Ethel Florentine Comstock and the young couple moved to Mineral Point, Wisconsin where Mr. Amerman taught science for two years before becoming principal.

The Amermans moved to Northville in 1927. He was principal at the high school before becoming superintendent of schools in 1933. Although legend has it that Mr. Amerman took the superintendent's job "just until the board could find a replacement," a suitable replacement was not found until his retirement 32 years later in 1965.

He received a master of arts degree from the University of Michigan and was awarded an honorary associate in arts degree by Schoolcraft College in 1981.

Mr. Amerman served the community in a host of positions during his lifetime in Northville. He was a member of the Northville Rotary and served as president of the local chapter in 1937-38. He was named district governor for Rotary and served in the 1967-68 year. He was an active member of the First United Methodist Church of Northville, served on the state health curriculum committee, served 16 years on the board of directors of Wayne County Crippled Children's organization, was chairman of the city's Building Authority, a member of the Recreation Commission and a member of the citizen's advisory committee for Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital.

Following a fire at the old Main Street Elementary School, a new school was built in 1955 and named Amerman Elementary in recognition of the contributions to the school and community made by Mr. Amerman. He was named Citizen of the Year in 1965 and honored by the Northville Rotary for 50 years of service in 1983.

"He was a very wonderful person," Rev. Eric Hammar of the First United Methodist Church of Northville said. "He was a person of deep faith and commitment. He was very interested in the children and youth of the church and the church school. He was a quiet, unassuming man — a gentle person. Soft spoken, but still a

Two tax votes in township

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Less than two weeks before the election, local police and recreation officials seem confident that it will not prove detrimental to have two millage proposals on the November ballot.

Specifically, Northville Township voters will be asked to decide on a two-mill increase for the police department and a .9-mill tax for the recreation department.

Township Police Chief Ken Hardesty said he does not think a recreation millage question will have an impact on the police millage or vice versa.

Northville Recreation Director

John Anderson agreed with Hardesty, and said having two millages on the same ballot won't have a large affect. "If people understand that the school district has decided to roll back its millage rate."

Anderson is referring to a recent decision by the Northville School District to roll back millage rates by 3.3 mills.

In an unscientific poll conducted Monday by the Record, township voters appear to share the same feelings as Hardesty and Anderson regarding the two millage questions.

Race for Congress heats up in area

By BOB NEEDHAM

After a history of relatively quiet elections in Michigan's 2nd Congressional District, things this year have suddenly gotten a little noisy.

Incumbent U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) is facing his toughest opposition since he first won the seat in 1976. The challenge is coming from Lana Pollack, a state senator (D-Ann Arbor) who has raised more money and more challenges than any of Pursell's previous opponents.

Together, the two are expected to spend well over $1 million on the campaign to represent the 2nd District for the next two years. The district includes Northville Township and the City of Northville below Baseline Road, and stretches through Ann Arbor, Jackson and all of Hillsdale County

The Baseline Jug will be awarded to the winner of Friday's Novi-Northville football game. Above, Hatzi Smith prepares the jug.

Battle for Baseline Jug

Which team is the best? That's it, pure and simple. Which football team is the best in 1988 — Northville or Novi? And which team will be this year's winner of the "Baseline Jug" trophy?

While the Northville football team competes in a different conference than its nearby rivals, the Wildcats, there is no denying that the last game of the season is more than just a non-conference letdown for both teams.

The last game of the football season involves two home-town rivals. Neighbor against neighbor. Fan against fan. Since the two schools reside within two miles of each other, the final game is for the bragging rights of the area

The Northville Record and The Novi News — hometown newspapers for both teams — have decided to formally recognize this traditional gridiron clash, by sponsoring a traveling trophy for the annual winner of the game. In the proud tradition of such memorable trophies as the Little Brown Jug and the Old Oaken Bucket, the newspaper will bestow upon the winners of this Friday's game "The Baseline Jug" which will remain in the possession of the winning team until next year's game.

So let the fun begin — and to the victor will go the spoils — or at least the trophy.

Local officials deny two millage proposals will overload ballot

to plan to vote in the November election said they will judge the millage questions separately.

If the millage for the police and recreation departments are needed I'll vote for them," said a resident who asked not to be identified.

Another resident said she will carefully evaluate both millage questions before making decision, but added each millage proposal will be judged on its own merit.

Hardesty said he was pleased with the results of The Record poll, but added he will wait until Nov. 9 (the day after the election) to feel secure.

I believe that people will make their decision (on the police millage) on the type and amount of police service they want in the community," Hardesty said.

Two township residents surveyed said they were unaware that police and recreation millage questions will be on the November ballot.

Hardesty said the Citizens for Organized Police Service (COPS) organization was set-up to answer questions about the police millage and to spread the word to residents about the necessity of the millage increase.

"We (COPS) are trying to explain what the police millage will do, so Northville Township residents can decide if they want to continue services," Hardesty said.

He noted about 25 COPS volunteers are sending mailers to voters, putting together information sheets putting up signs throughout the township.

"We need to pass the police millage to maintain and grow with the Northville community," he said. "I'm hoping this campaign will help to pass the millage."

Township Finance Director James Graham said a two-mill increase, which would raise the police tax rate to 4.2 mills, will be sufficient to balance the police department budget through 1992.

"I believe the additional money is needed to even the police department's revenues and expenditures," Graham said.

Since fiscal year 1983-84, the police department has been running at a deficit ranging from $109,655 in 1984-85 to an estimated $462,952 in 1988.

According to the 1988 Northville Township State Equalized Valuation (SEV), Graham said the police department will receive $593,000 for 1988 and would get an additional $557,000 with a two-mill increase.

He said the last police millage, which was passed in 1981, was renewed for the identical 2.2 mills. One mill is equal to one dollar of tax per $1,000 of assessed value. For a resident whose housing assessment is $50,000 a two-mill increase would translate into a $100 tax hike.

Hardesty has said he thinks the police department would have to make cuts in the future, if a proposal of some sort is not passed.

As for the park millage, Anderson said he thinks the chances for passage are pretty good.

"I would prefer to be the only millage question on the (November) ballot, but I think people who are likely to be for the police millage will see the need for added recreation money," Anderson said.

He noted, however, that the recreation commission decided last July, to place its millage question on the November ballot, before the police millage was placed on the ballot.

"We (the recreation commission) discussed putting our millage question on the August ballot, but went for the November ballot because we thought we'd have a better opportunity to get our message out," Anderson said.

In trying to get the message out, Anderson said a volunteer group called the Northville Community Park Millage Campaign Committee has been formed.

Anderson said there are 100 volunteers in the group, which is operating on a budget of about $250, compared to the COPS budget of about $3,500.

"We're a real grass roots operation, not well versed in professional organization, but we feel we're pretty organized," he added.

The 9-mill tax is slated to develop the Northville Community Park site on Beck Road between Five Mile and Six Mile roads.

NEWS BRIEFS

CHANGE OF LOCATION — The series of three lectures by Michael Farrell announced last week are now being planned for a different location. All three lectures are now scheduled at Northville City Hall, 215 W. Main.

The series, which combines lectures and slide presentations, begins Nov. 10. For more information, call Kathryn Peltier at 348-7026.

GIFT OF LIFE NEEDED — The Red Cross will have its mobile blood unit in Northville on Thursday, Nov. 3, from noon until 6 p.m. The unit will be at the American Legion's Veterans Memorial Hall, 100 W. Dunlap. Anyone able to donate blood at that time is urged to contact Lloyd H. Green, Post 147, to set up an appointment. Call 349-1060. The Red Cross has noted a severe shortage of blood during the last few months, causing hospitals to postpone surgeries until blood supplies are refilled.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING — The general membership meeting of the Lakes of Northville Homeowners Association will be held Saturday, Oct. 29 at 10 a.m. at the Northville Township Hall. Election of Board of Directors for the 1988-89 year will take place. Capt. Phil Presnell will give a presentation on deterring residential crime and programs available through the Northville Township Police Department. All members of LNHA are invited to attend.

BOARD OF REVIEW APPOINTMENT — The Northville Township Board Thursday, Oct. 13, accepted the resignation of Edward Bondy from the Board of Review.

To replace Bondy, the board appointed Charles St. Louis for a term to expire Dec. 13, 1988.

NEW BUSES APPROVED — The Northville Board of Education Monday, Oct. 24, approved the purchase of five 66-passenger buses and one 48-passenger bus from Jack Bielfield Ford.

Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton said the approved contract of $216,564 was the lowest of the two bids submitted to the district.

He noted the district circulated bid requests to five Ford dealers, but received only the two bids.

"With 23 buses in daily service and the prospect of having to add one or two buses to the fleet next year to accommodate anticipated student growth, it will be necessary to add six buses to the fleet next year. . .," Knighton said.

GIFTED/TALENTED PROGRAM — The Northville Public Schools are now accepting parent nominations for the third grade gifted program for the 1989-90 school year.

Gifted/Talented Facilitator Gayle Fountain said parents who think their second grader exhibits exceptional ability and has a need for the magnet class environment, may consider requesting an assessment.

Nomination forms are available from the Gifted Resource Room at the Cooke Center or by mail through the Gifted/Talented office.

For more information contact Fountain at 344-8448.

Right time?

This weekend marks the end of daylight savings time and that could mean a lot of work for Dan Anderson of the Northville Watch and Clock Shop. But Anderson has solved the problem by making sure only one clock out of the many in the shop, has the correct time. The others keep their own time. Daylight savings will change Sunday morning.

Officials begin new city planning

By BOB NEEDHAM

Discussions about what direction the City of Northville should take began last week, with several different opinions offered about the future of the city in general and the "Cady Street Corridor" in particular.

At a meeting of the city Planning Commission Tuesday, Oct. 18, officials took the first steps in two formal studies of the city's future: an update of the official city Master Plan and an in-depth look at the area around Cady Street, presumed to be in transition to some more developed use. Both studies, being conducted by city planners Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May, are funded through federal Community Development Block Grant money.

Planning Consultant Don Wortman said the Cady study would probably take about six months, and would consider alternatives for land use, parking arrangements, and even street patterns. Although formal public workshops / hearings will probably be held eventually, he said, Tuesday's meeting was designed to get initial feelings from the planning commissioners, as well as two members of the Historic District.

Police Blotters

Assault with bat reported

A Walled Lake resident has been arraigned on a charge of felonious assault after a Northville resident reported the other man hit him twice with a baseball bat.

According to a city police report, two men with bats came to a home on Grace after 3 a.m. Oct. 2. A resident of the house, who had been in a dispute with the men earlier, came outside and was hit twice by one of the men, the report said.

The alleged attacker was arraigned Wednesday, Oct. 19, in 35th District Court. He pled not guilty to the charge. A preliminary examination is scheduled for Oct. 31.

STEREO STOLEN — A Pioneer brand car stereo was reported stolen from a vehicle parked on First Street last week, a city police report said.

The theft occurred between 7 p.m. Friday and 5:40 p.m. Saturday. The stereo / tape player was estimated to be worth $280.

B & E ATTEMPT — Two windows were pushed out of the concession stand at Northville High School last week in what police are investigating as an attempted breaking and entering.

Plywood covering windows was found knocked out Monday afternoon, Oct. 17, and the incident was estimated to have occurred over the weekend. The plexiglass window on the women's rest room was also pulled out, a police report said.

The stand has been the site of several suspected break-in attempts by people prying at the lock, the report said.

TREE HIT — A car ran into a tree on Clement — probably on purpose — over the weekend, according to a city police report.

The tree was hit by a vehicle Friday night or Saturday morning, stripping three feet of bark off, the report said. The tire tracks indicated the damage was probably intentional.

PHONE STOLEN — A cellular phone was taken from a car parked on Randolph last week, a city police report said.

The theft occurred late Thursday or early Friday. The car had been left unlocked, the report said.

The phone was valued at $299.

CHURCH LARCENY — Three $20 bills were taken from a purse left unattended for an hour and a half last week at the First United Methodist Church, a city police report said.

The purse was placed under a coat while the owner was away, the report said. The theft occurred Sunday, Oct. 16.

TIRES SLIT — Three tires on a trailer parked at the Ely Fuel yard were slit or punctured over the weekend, according to a city police report.

The tires were slit between 8:30 p.m. Friday and 8:45 p.m. Saturday. Value was set at $190.

HOOD ORNAMENT THEFT — Northville Township police reported over $150 worth of damage occurred and $170 in merchandise was stolen from automobiles parked outside three Swan Lake Drive residences.

The complainants stated unknown persons between 9 p.m. and 12 a.m. last Wednesday, did damage to the vehicles and stole hood ornaments from two of the three vehicles involved.

Police said no physical evidence was found at the scene.

DRUNK DRIVING ROUNDUP — Three people were arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor in three separate incidents in the township and city last week, according to police reports.

They included:

- A Plymouth resident was ticketed for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor last Sunday.
- Police said they observed a vehicle travelling southbound on Haggerty Road, going 88 mph in a 45 mph zone. They stopped the vehicle on Haggerty south of Five Mile Road.
- After the driver failed two of three field sobriety tests, a preliminary breath test showed a blood alcohol level of .12 percent at the scene and .11 percent at the station. In Michigan, anything above .10 percent is legally drunk.

The driver was given a citation for OUIL, held in jail and released on $100 bond.

- A West Bloomfield resident was stopped at 9:52 p.m. Saturday after police saw him swerving off the road and across the center line near Main and Griswold, a report said.

Chemical breath test results showed blood alcohol levels of .11 percent and .10 percent. The driver was cited for OUIL.

- A Howell resident was ticketed for OUIL last Wednesday, according to a township police report.

Police said they observed a vehicle travelling southbound on Northville Road south of Six Mile Road which crossed over the solid white line. Police also said the vehicle was going 50 mph in a 40 mph zone shortly before they made the traffic stop.

After failing two of three field sobriety tests, a preliminary breath test showed a blood alcohol of .13 percent at the scene. The driver was given a citation for OUIL, held in jail and released on $60 bond.

A car fire was handled Monday by township fire fighters when it broke out near Northville Regional Hospital. The car apparently suffered from a gas leak, leading to the fire. The 1987 Dodge Aries suffered $3,000 in damage according to the fire department.

State plans no Northville site

Northville is not likely to get a new Secretary of State's office any time in the near future, but an office in Livonia is expected to move a little closer to town.

A letter from State Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville Township) explains that the original plan was to open a new Northville site after closing the old Secretary of State's office in the Northville Plaza shopping center on Seven Mile Road.

"The department's desire to relocate was prompted by inadequate maintenance of the physical plant and also the fact that the location was undersized for their current workload and the floor plan no longer met their needs," Geake's letter states.

However, the Department of State could not find a suitable, cheap enough location in Northville, Geake said. So in mid-December, the state plans to combine the Northville office and a Livonia office into a new facility at 19227 Newburgh Road, in the Fountain View Plaza between Seven Mile and Eight Mile roads. The Livonia office which is slated to close is at 33250 W. Six Mile.

"I am sorry that we will not have a Secretary of State branch office in Northville in the near future, however, it appears that the Secretary of State is doing its best to accommodate our needs within their limited budget by establishing a branch office close by," Geake's letter reads.

Other Secretary of State offices in the area include:

- Canton — 6034 Sheldon Road
- Livonia — 17150 Inkster Road
- Livonia — 29885 Plymouth Road
- Redford — 25700 Joy Road, scheduled to open in mid-November, to replace a Dearborn Heights office.

Township OKs new business logo for all its stationery

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Completing a project which lasted almost four years, the Northville Township board recently approved a new business logo to be placed on all of its stationery.

Three trees and a house on a half-acre background make up the graphic, with the township name appearing at the bottom of the logo.

Local officials said the logo is intended to depict some of the qualities of the township.

"It's very representative of the characteristics of Northville Township," said Township Supervisor Georgina Goss. "The Beautification Commission did an outstanding job in putting together the logo and we plan on using it (the logo) in our first newsletter."

Township Trustee and Beautification Commissioner Don Williams said the commission had been dealing with a local sculptor for quite a while, trying to put a logo together.

Williams said the sculptor would have erected a sculpture for Northville Township to be placed at the township hall. He added the logo was to be a picture of the sculpture.

He said an inability to find a place for the sculpture and a large expense for the artwork made the project unworkable.

"I think however, that the logo approved by the township board appears to be a facsimile that represents the township well," Williams said. "I think it's a great logo, but if something comes along that's better we can always change it."

Beautification Commissioner Barbara O'Brien said the commission suggested the logo idea four years ago to "identify the character of Northville Township."

O'Brien said the commission contacted the Center for Creative Studies (CCS) in Detroit last May, and after two meetings decided to hire artist Ken Hajdyla to design the logo.

"The whole Beautification Commission met with Ken and decided that his ideas and suggestions were what we were looking for," she said, adding that the logo concept is based on a combination of Hajdyla's artistic ability and suggestions by the commission.

"We tried to have the logo represent Northville Township as a family community and we decided the house would represent the family and the trees would be an important part of the concept," O'Brien said.

She noted the beautification commission presented the Township Board with four logos and the one chosen by the board was their first choice.

"The reproduction of the logo (which was chosen) came out better and it is quite distinct," O'Brien said. "We (the beautification commission) liked all the logos, but went with our favorite."

Artist Ken Hajdyla said he designed the logo based on his own ideas and those suggested by the beautification commission.

"I thought this was a great opportunity to get involved with Northville and interact with the community," Hajdyla said, adding that he would someday like to live here.

"I just appreciate doing art as opposed to getting paid," he said, noting it will feel "weird" to see his logo on Northville Township stationery.

Hajdyla, who graduated from CCS last May and is currently working for a design display house, said the Northville Township's logo is the first he has designed for a community.

He said he has designed logos for private companies.

When approving the logo design, the township board indicated the logo would be colored. Hajdyla said he recommends a turquoise blue color "because it is pleasing to the eye."

Goss said the board has not decided on a color for the logo as of yet.

Haunted houses in nearby communities are ready to scare people

Although Northville residents don't have a haunted house all their own to visit, this year, there are other chances to be scared within easy driving distance.

The Northville Jaycees, who have sponsored haunted houses in the past, were not able to find a good location this year, and are not sponsoring a haunt.

But other local Jaycee chapters are sponsoring their haunts as usual. They include:

• Novi — The Novi Jaycees will be holding a "haunted house" at a storefront in the Novi Town Center on Oct. 31. The haunted house will feature a number of Jaycee specialties, such as the "coffin room" and a number of other scary features.

"The story is that the Town Center was built on vacant land, with a bunch of old homes on it," said Jaycee Secretary Betty Staab. "They disturbed a lot of ghosts."

"We're just assisting them in getting back and scaring the people they want to scare," she said.

This year, the haunted house is located between Moto-Photo and the Donut Scene in the Town Center on Novi Road.

The hours are 8 to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 p.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday. The price is $3 per person, or $2.50 for kids under 12 years old. Group rates can be arranged by calling the Novi Jaycees at 348-NOVI.

• Plymouth / Canton — A haunted house is set up in the F and M Plaza on Ford Road west of Haggerty. Hours are 7:30 to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 7:30 to midnight Friday and Saturday. Admission is $2.50. For more information call 455-9308.

• Westland — The lower level of the Westland Mall features a haunted house. Hours are 5 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, noon to 9 p.m. Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. For more information, call 721-7702.

• Others — Haunts are also underway at Pontiac Trail and North Territorial Road in Salem (call 437-2810) and at the Wayne Theater on Michigan Avenue in Wayne (call 427-1359).

Bullard stresses experience in Legislature

Incumbent Willis Bullard Jr. (R-Highland Township) is vying to win his fourth term in the State House of Representatives. A graduate of the University of Michigan and Detroit College of Law, the 45-year-old Bullard has served in the House since 1983. Bullard is a former Highland Township trustee (1978-80) and supervisor (1980-82). In 1984, Bullard was named Legislator of the Year by the Michigan Townships Association. Bullard is divorced and the father of two children. He is a practicing attorney in Milford. The following questions and answers stem from a personal interview with Bullard about his candidacy. Responses were edited as necessary.

WILLIS BULLARD JR.

Why do you think you are the best candidate for the position?

I think that experience is important in any job. There is a benefit to experience and seniority. I feel that I'm just at the point now where I understand the system that we're working under. I understand the people, the major players.

I'm able to accomplish things when my communities need something accomplished. I think that at a certain point your experience reaches a plateau and probably there is a time for everybody to leave a job. I think maybe I have a few good years left. I'd like to try it another term or two and see.

Also, we have 46 members of the House Republican Caucus. I've been elected each term to the leadership of the Republicans in the House, which is seven leaders out of the 46. I think that shows my colleagues have confidence in me and that's why I think I deserve re-election.

What significant accomplishments stand out in your mind during your political tenure as state representative?

I was named Legislator of the Year in 1984 by the Michigan Townships Association for a variety of legislation passed in regard to local governments. In the same area, we fought a year's battle to get the City of Novi the extra revenue sharing money due them as a result of the special census.

As far as this legislative term, I've been working almost full time on a dangerous animal bill which passed the House in May, 103-0. I'm hoping to get the bill passed by the end of the beat his head against the wall to try and change the formula to Oakland County's advantage for a number of years. We (the Legislature) passed a package of bills and proposals and we raised last year $100 million in new revenue for roads on top of what we had before.

As part of that, Senator Fessler could not politically change the distribution formula, but what he did was he tailored one of the new funds (economic development fund) to Oakland County. I think that Oakland County will get upwards of $20 million per year. Basically, Fessler is the one who did that and who should get credit for it.

Do you support the $25 vehicle registration fee proposal? Why or why not?

I'm voting "yes" because I see it as the only practical way of getting more money into the system. What I'm telling people is if you want any extra money for roads in Oakland County over and above what there is now, you have to vote "yes" on it. If you don't want any extra money or you don't want to pay that additional amount, vote "no." What it really amounts to is it will probably be a year or two before we get any more money for roads on a statewide basis. Probably in a year or two you might have a two-cent gas tax increase. But, so far, the governor has been totally unwilling to support that I don't have any problem with people voting "no."

What's the status of the proposal to reform ways to fund Michigan's public schools? What are your personal thoughts on the matter?

It's a terrible political problem. I have never been more discouraged about an issue in my life as I have been about school finance and property tax reform because I think the direction the Legislature is headed in is the wrong direction.

I think in November the conference committee of (SJRK) Senate Joint Resolution K will come up with a report of a comprehensive change in our system. It is extremely complicated and I think if they put it on the ballot March 7, which is the plan as I understand it, it will be resoundingly defeated by voters of the state and we will still have the same system which everyone says we will have to change, and I agree.

There is a couple things about the plan I'd like to point out. It's going to be a $400 to $500 million net tax increase. I don't think people are in the mood to support that. The sales tax would go up two cents. The property tax would be cut. Under the plan it isn't an even property tax cut. Instead of limiting the SEV (State Equalized Valuation), they're limiting the mills to 28 mills (for each school district). It will benefit the higher millage districts because they will get more of a cut.

My plan would be a strict shift from the sales tax to the property tax. What I would do is cut property tax 50 percent across the board for everyone in the state because to pass the proposal I think you've got to have two elements, two different groups to form a coalition. There is a group out there who are primarily interested in cutting their property tax. I think if you gave them a 50 percent property tax cut they would accept a (two-cent) sales tax increase if you have some mechanism for limiting their future property tax increases.

The other element is a group of people who are in in-formula districts who think disparity between poor and rich districts is too great. You cannot take districts who are better off financially and cut them back. What you have to do is give rich and poor districts more money, but you do it on a sliding scale so that you give a poorer district a higher percentage each year. I would get that money out of the general fund.

I think you need the people that support both concepts (property tax reform, school finance reform). I think you have to tie the package together because half of the people will vote for property tax relief and the other half vote to see their schools improve statewide.

What is your position on Proposal A and why?

I support Proposal "A" and I will vote "yes" on it. I have taken a position since I entered the Legislature that the Legislature should not fund abortions for anyone. The reason I feel that, is I don't know when a life begins. Some people think it begins at the moment of conception and any abortion is murder. I don't know if the pro-choice people are correct.

As long as there is a dispute on the subject and as long as an abortion could possibly be the taking of a human life, I'm not in favor of the state paying for abortions. This proposal strictly concerns whether the state should fund abortions for poor people.

On a dollar-for-dollar basis, Proposal "A" will result in a bigger drain on the state budget. Michigan is one of only 13 or 14 states which pays for Medicaid abortions. So we're out of line with most of the rest of the country. In other states that have cut off Medicaid abortions, anywhere from 50 to 80 percent of the women who formerly had state-paid abortions, have abortions anyway.

I don't think you're going to see a dramatic drop in the number of abortions. I think you're going to see an impact that some women and their partners will be more careful. I think

Election '88 in Northville

Thornbladh emphasizes competitiveness

Kurt Thornbladh, a practicing attorney for 13 years who resides in Lyon Township, is a Democratic challenger for the State House of Representatives in District 60, which includes the cities of Northville, Novi, South Lyon; the townships of Lyon, Milford, Highland, Holly, Grosse Pointe, and the villages of Holly and Milford. Thornbladh is a graduate of Ripon College where he earned honors in history. He also is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School. From 1975-76, Thornbladh worked as a VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) volunteer. He helped to organize the Senior Citizens Law Center in Flint. He is a member of the Executive Board of the Oakland County Democratic Party. Thornbladh also is a veteran of the U.S. Army, where as a lieutenant he volunteered and served in the Paratroops from 1970-72. The following questions and answers were recorded during a personal interview with the candidate. Answers were edited as necessary.

money for Dial-A-Rides. I think we have a sufficient number of senior citizens in the area that we can have a Dial-A-Ride program.

The only way we're going to get a Dial-A-Ride program is if enough people take an interest to put the time into seeing if we can get the money, seeing if we can get a volunteer board together and seeing if we can come up with the program and seeing if people will receive it.

Two million dollars seed money is available as a general proposition seed money for Dial-A-Ride. There is discussion about increasing that amount of money. The State Agency on Aging has been talking about increasing that amount of money. It's there; somebody's taking advantage of it. We're not.

What's the possibility of altering the road fund formula, established by the Michigan Department of Transportation, to help Oakland County's road woes?

I think most of Oakland County's road problem comes from the way Oakland County governments administer. There is a duplication of effort between the drain commission and the public works commission, for example. (Thornbladh believes this is costing the county up to $3 million.) In terms of local county roads, I think we have adequate funds within the county government to do a better job if we just learn how to spend it correctly.

I don't know the state formula on roads I honestly don't know, but I can learn it. I do think that roads around here are a major problem. Within District 60, which is the one we're in, north/south roads are bad. Our north/south roads are just inadequate for our transportation needs. From South Lyon it takes about 45 minutes to get to M-59. Milford Road south of I-96 has got some problems. In Lyon Township there has been a lot of criticism of gravel trucks in the southern Milford/northern Lyon Township area using the dirt roads people live on and that's a danger to family and to houses. I don't know anyone who lives around here who hasn't lost a car window to a gravel truck.

Do you support the idea of a $25 vehicle registration fee proposal? Why or why not?

It's going to lose by a vote of 90 percent to 10 percent. I think it's too little. I think it's borne by people who can least afford to pay. I am opposed to it.

The only immediate alternative I have is to get greater efficiency out of the county government. I think people will accept paying more money when they have to, but not if they think the money they're paying now is being wasted.

What's the status of the proposal to reforming the funding of Michigan's public schools? What are your personal thoughts on the matter?

The current position, which is supported by the Michigan Education Association (MEA), calls for a two-percent increase in sales tax. There are some problems with that. Sales tax is typically borne by people who can least afford to pay it. Senior citizens pay it. I think it is necessary to give senior citizens property tax relief.

I think it is necessary to have a big state component to the education system. I think a lot of people vote against this measure and oppose it because they don't think this tax is the way to solve that problem.

Thornbladh referred to a position paper on the subject he wrote titled "Seven Steps to Bring About Financial Reform." He listed the following steps:

1. Develop a mixed system, which would be a state/local board partnership with the funding component varying from district to district.

2. Continuing efforts by local boards to offer sports, student discipline, PTA, student activities, social studies, library content.

3. State-implemented comprehensive foreign language instruction and international business curriculum. Offer aid to distressed districts and to special education.

4. Make the above changes gradual and begin at once.

5. Make changes a shared process that involves business, labor and community groups.

6. Honestly disclose facts and issues to voters. This should be done by government.

7. In state component to funding, emphasize economics of scale, tangible good and services rather than revenue sharing. In addition, with respect to the state component, Thornbladh said he supports the idea of increasing the amount of lottery revenues appropriated to education and developing uniform principles of assessing major industrial property.

According to Thornbladh, as communities compete for plants they have granted favorable property treatment. The result has been that at this time such property only constitutes 25 percent of school revenues. Much of the disenchantment of senior homeowners arises from this trend, he said.

What is your position on Proposal "A," the proposal to ban Medicaid funded abortions, and why?

I, for a long time, tried to think out how I really morally felt about abortions and to try to make up a legal rule which reflected my moral stance. I couldn't do it and I don't think anyone can.

On the other hand, you find people in the ghetto or in a rape situation... maybe incest situation... maybe a woman afraid to say what happened.

I can't make a rule for them in that situation. Those people have to decide for themselves. I thought about this and I thought about this. Finally, one day I just thought why should government try to solve this problem that people should be solving for themselves? So, I thought let the woman decide and it will be the woman's responsibility to do it.

Now, on Proposal "A," my thinking is that what a welfare system ought to do is teach poor people how to become middle class people. The way you do that is give them the same kind of choices middle class people have.

Holly Township has been identified as a potential prison site. What is your stance on this issue and why?

The people of Holly are opposed to the prison and I am too. A lot of the debate over this has gone along partisan lines. Most of the reasons which are convincing are environmental reasons.

I think the governor makes a mistake by accepting from the prior Milliken (former Governor William Milliken) administration the principle of regional prisons. I have no commitment to regional prisons.

I've been in prisons as a lawyer to visit with prisoners. I don't know that the regional prison concept does any good for prisoners. Sometimes, I think it's better for people to get away from the environment that caused them to be screwed up. I don't have any commitment to the regional prison system and I would certainly vote to end the concept if it would help the people in Holly.

I think the best solution would be to find some third (alternate) site which is available and would be acceptable to both people in Holly and Pontiac. My understanding is the state is the largest employer in Ionia County. If Ionia would accept more prisoners, then that is fine with me.

Explain the substance of the $800 million environmental bond issue and the position you have on it.

Both my opponent and I support the bond issue. What he has not spoken to is there is going to be a contest to apply that money to both natural environment, as we have around here in the way of parks, and to urban projects.

I think money was intended for parks and for natural environment and not for urban projects. I think it's going to pass. I support it. I think we have to look ahead a little bit and understand that with respect to a place like Kensington Metropark or Island Lake State Park or some of the beautiful parks around here, someone has got to make sure they get their fair share.

Election '88 in Northville

Pursell and Pollack face off at interview

Here is the text of a joint interview with 2nd Congressional District candidates Carl Pursell and Lana Pollack. Only minor editing, for clarity, has been done.

To what extent can Congress take credit for the relative prosperity the country is enjoying?

Pursell: I don't give any particular person or institution credit for all of our good prosperity. I have to say that we've turned around the deficit from $200 billion in 1985 down to $145 billion. I think our money markets and general trend-setting pace of getting down to a balanced budget by, hopefully, '93 or sooner shows some market-oriented, free-enterprise concepts.

We're not looking for heavy debt. I think there is a degree of bipartisan fiscal restraint on many of the members of the Congress, basically in the middle, Democrats and Republicans, who are concerned about the deficit.

I think we generally tend to let the monetary policy flow through Alan Greenspan and the Federal Reserve System. We don't tamper with that politically. Institutionally in Congress we never interface with that monetary policy — interest rates and letting money in terms of more loose or tight money policy. That's really controlled by the monetary system.

Congress fiscally, I think, is in the right direction. I hope it's bipartisan. I hope the next president will try to adhere reasonably to Gramm-Rudman targets, which I support, and which Senator Carl Levin supports. I had the chance of serving on the Gramm-Rudman conference committee with the House and Senate to try to put caps and targets to fit some kind of fiscal behavior for Congress.

Pollack: Taking credit for getting the deficit down from $200 billion to $145 billion is like taking credit for your kid who stayed out of jail all but three times this year. I don't feel it's a very good record. I don't feel the point we should compare with should be the very worst deficit beyond our wildest dreams eight years ago.

So it's better that it's going down, but it's nothing to be proud of, at all. Of course, in the last couple years, both houses are dominated by Democrats, so this is hardly a partisan statement. I would like to see Congress have done better, and do better.

I think the prosperity (resulted partly from the) loss of the devastating inflation, which was very helpful. I think OPEC did us a favor there when they fell apart and the price of oil fell dramatically.

I think the Fed — I agree with the congressman — did us a favor with the tight money supply, especially in the early '80s. And I agree with Lloyd Bentsen: You can fund prosperity for a while, if you're willing to write $200 billion worth of hot checks, but ultimately we're mortgaging our future to pay off the debt to foreigners who are buying into this country's economy at an alarming rate. We have to do better.

Who, the Congress or the President, would be in the best position to take the lead in "doing better?"

Pollack: I'd always like to see the leadership come out of the presidency. Because it is an individual, that person has an opportunity to galvanize the American public and direct the American public. But when the president fails, the Congress has to be there.

And in fact, even when the president's doing a good job, the Congress has a critical role to play. It's the genius of our government that we don't have power secured in any one branch of government.

But there are 435 members of Congress. Not all people are created equal in that House; some people do a lot better job at leading than others. But I certainly think Congress — and again, in some ways I'm faulting my own party in this — has been extremely remiss in letting us get mortgaged, as I said, to foreign interests.

Pursell: I think, obviously, the founding fathers expected the president to lead in terms of presenting a budget to the Congress and to the nation. They do that every January.

I think the president could be faulted for not vetoing more appropriations bills, he's vetoed one out of 85, two supplementals and two continuing resolutions.

So frankly, I think the next president, whoever it may be, will exercise leadership in presenting, hopefully, a fiscally-sound budget consistent with Gramm-Rudman

LANA POLLACK

Lana Pollack, Democrat. Since 1982, she has been a state senator from Washtenaw County. She was a trustee on the Ann Arbor Board of Education and is a former chair of the Ann Arbor Democratic Party. She holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Michigan. Affiliations include the League of Women Voters, Michigan Citizens Lobby and the Jackson Chamber of Commerce. She is 45 years old and is married with one child.

early in my years in the state Senate, writing the legislation for the Resource Recovery Act in Michigan to recycle and get rid of our landfills. I consider that sort of a visionary view at that time, because we are still using landfills today and I think the Legislature should be a lot tougher in that area.

I built the bicycle paths and fishing docks and helped start the initiation with the Jaycees locally that helped clean up the lakes here, and the river, and supported legislation to do that.

I'm chairman of the Great Lakes regional bipartisan conference of legislators in the region to preserve and keep the Great Lakes clean. It's important. The lakes give us the fresh water of the world. One-fifth of the body of (fresh) water in all the world is here in our Great Lakes. We don't want to divert it, we opposed diversion of the water, we opposed that's a precious resource for this region. We support and have led the funding in Congress for the Great Lakes laboratory for research on the Great Lakes in Ann Arbor, have been in the forefront of that fight for years.

We have a high record of overall environmental voting records in the state Legislature and also in Congress. I was co-sponsor of the Michigan Wilderness bills, spoke in committee on that, spoke on the floor for the wilderness bill, and have a very strong record on the environment. We're proud of our environmental record.

I don't serve on that committee; I serve on the appropriations committee. It's not a day-to-day activity, but it's important for this nation, important for the people of our district. We live in Plymouth because we enjoy the Hines Park system.

We have a tough water project there. I've supported all the legislation to fund the interceptor system for that system, and have been consistently active with local community groups and volunteer organizations in making an attempt to clean up the Rouge. And it's a very expensive, probably a $800 million expenditure, that will take some local funding (and) state funding. I support the bond issue statewide to help a partnership in that funding process.

So we're making progress; we've got a long way to go, but it's not something that can be fiscally resolved in one day.

(Responding to ratings of him as anti-environment): That was a group that doesn't have big standing in Congress. A lot of reporters and news people didn't even go to the press conference. It's a liberal group who want a lot of spending, which I would like, ideally, but (which is) not available because of our deficit. I've got to come back and be fiscally responsible on the deficit.

But they took what I call irresponsible positions: whether I co-sponsored a bill. You don't record a legislator's policy record on whether they co-sponsor bills or whether they're signing letters to certain agencies of the federal government.

The conservative/liberal environmental groups in the United States generally rate me higher than my political party on environmental record, and if you look at the voting record, you'll find that I do have a higher voting record than most of my colleagues.

Pollack: I think Congressman Pursell has grossly inflated his record. The one issue that I have found that is least able to be tagged with a "liberal / conservative" identification is the environment. Everybody's concerned about the environment. Congressman Pursell not only voted against the Clean Water Act, but he actually sponsored an amendment to cut funding there by over $6 billion in a five-year period. Fortunately, he lost on that.

It's fortunate because just last week, (Wayne County Executive Edward) McNamara announced that there would be $154 million coming from the federal government from those monies to this area for rebuilding a system... to prevent pollution in the Rouge River. Had Congressman Pursell won, that would not have been there.

I remind people that the federal government takes 75 cents of everybody's tax dollar; 25 cents is left divided up among property tax and state income tax and sales tax and the rest. If the federal government doesn't pay to rebuild the sanitary and storm sewers, if the federal government doesn't pay to at least help rebuild the water treatment plants, then you're asking the property tax payers to pay. And that's virtually impossible, or else you would keep flushing the stuff in there.

Also, clean water is now associated with clean air, and we know that a lot of the water pollution is created by airborne pollutants.

Furthermore, it doesn't necessarily take enormous money to clean up the environment, if we would do one significant policy change at the state and the federal level, and that's make the polluters pay. That's what George Bush is saying, but there's no evidence that he or the administration of Congressman Pursell believes truly in pursuing that. That's what my legislation in Lansing is.

Congressman Pursell voted against regulating hazardous waste haulers, except the very largest. Now, since most hazardous waste is not carried by very large corporations, he was voting to exempt regulation. One of the reasons we have pollution problems is we're not regulating people, we're not monitoring them and then when we catch them — if we can catch them without the regulations and the monitoring — we're not making them pay. We're asking the taxpayers to pay. That's the wrong approach.

Cause people to feel the pain of their own pollution, financially, sometimes actually by putting them in jail if it's willful. Congressman Pursell voted against allowing people to sue nuclear contractors if, as a result of nuclear negligence, there was a nuclear accident. He said you can't sue. What we've seen on the news today, down in Ohio, is the information that there is a nuclear plant there that has been leaking and the Energy Department knew it. Now, I'm not blaming that on Congressman Pursell, but the point is when you give people immunity — when you can't follow it up and hold them responsible, because they work for the government or because they work for some other protected category of people — they will have to be responsible.

And finally, I don't think you can talk about water without talking about nuclear waste. There has been a nuclear waste (storage) facility built east of the Mississippi that has not leaked. They all leak. Every one of them has leaked. There's every reason to believe that if there's one in Michigan, containing either our own nuclear waste or the waste of six other states, that one's going to leak too. And I think that's why we have to say no, Congress has to take action, take this thing back, site it where there is an arid climate, environmentally sound climate. I disagree on all those points.

Abortion is an issue which seems to be more and more a concern as time goes on. Should it be legislated on a national level, and if so, what should such a law say?

Pollack: I think there should not be such legislation on a national level or on a state level. Since there is a constitutional right that a woman, not the government, decides the disposition of a pregnancy, you don't legislate those things.

Nobody, no level of government, should tell you or me ... that we either must terminate a pregnancy or cannot terminate a pregnancy. It's a personal decision. (I have been) very consistent in that position.

I know that Congressman Pursell has a 79 percent pro-choice voting record; that's why I cannot get the endorsement of National Abortion Rights Action League or Voters for Choice or, at this point, even the Women's Campaign Fund, who said Pursell has been so helpful to them on the abortion issue over the years that they won't support me, which causes me a little irritation, but that's the way it comes out.

Pursell: I think there is a major difference between the two of us: she is pro-choice and has been consistent and been principled in standing out for her position. I respect that, her point of view.

I do not support abortion except in the case of rape, incest or the medical life of the mother. We have been consistent with that since the days in the Michigan Senate.

I can't speak for Lana, but I think we both oppose a constitutional amendment. There is some difference here — of abortion promiscuously and just open-ended, anybody can just go in and have an abortion. I oppose abortion, I think there are better alternatives for better education, family planning.

I support and am on the committee that funds the family planning system in the country, in which we teach and educate young people to say no, and have an opportunity to use alternative measures of preventive conception. And so I basically oppose abortion except in those three cases Where do we go from here for health care in the nation?

Pursell: The United States is the best health-care system in the world. Our high technology and our medicine is the most advanced in the world. We are achieving some high costs for that, and a lot of people are not being served under the health care system. I'm very well aware of that, and so is the Congress.

The general fund shows a deficit of $145 billion today. We've had opportunities to look at various aspects of improving our health system. The catastrophic health bill, which came originally out of the House, was very costly. We supported the conference report, when it was improved, when the Senate and the House got together and passed a catastrophic health bill so we'd have some alleviation of the health problem with families, particularly if it would bankrupt them and really impact on their family budgets.

The long-term care I think is unanswered at this time by everybody in Congress. The liberals, including my opponent, supported the (Claude) Pepper bill. I have to say, Congressman John Dingell, Congressman Bill Ford, myself, and others, felt that they were trying to put that through as a political gimmick for the election, and there was no committee hearings, no testimony in respect to the Pepper bill.

And so the Democrats, with the Republicans, said we want to take some time ... and look at the financing of a good health care system. So the Congress will address that next year and the following year, but I don't think we can just jump right in and say OK, we'll go with the Pepper bill, we'll expand Medicare, we'll double the appropriation for clean water in '89, we'll support affordable housing and all of the other nice social programs that are well-intended but can't be financed fiscally.

And I have to say that the fiscal budget today does not allow for a Pepper bill to be financed until we find some kind of a cost-sharing arrangement with employers, with third-party payers, with a broader involvement in improving the health-care system of this country.

I serve on a committee. We finance and have been an advocate of better health-care programs presently, now. Medicare and Medicaid are funded now over $100 billion from my committee. In fact, the appointee who ran that program was a woman who I nominated, Dr. Carolyn Davis from the University of Michigan, to head up Medicare and Medicaid. We've added expanded reimbursement, DRGs (diagnostic-related groups), to control the cost of various programs so that we can have more available revenue to expand the system.

But until we find a way to finance it honestly and candidly with the American people, I'm not going to just jump out and say, "Oh, yes, this is a great bill, we can finance it," put it into the budget, without adequate congressional hearings, without looking at the alternative sources of financing and being fiscally responsible for a good health care system that the people of the United States will support.

A lot of senior citizen people even opposed the catastrophic health (bill) because we raised their premiums. Well, that's the only alternative Congress has today because of the general fund situation. And until the deficit is down and we're in a better, what I call more affordable, situation, we need to look with some honesty.

I can't look a senior citizen in the eye and say, "Oh, yes, I'm for the Pepper bill, but I don't know how to finance it, I'm going to up your premiums." I don't know any other alternatives and neither does Congress.

Congressman John Dingell, who's the ranking member of the Health and Education and Energy and Commerce committees, felt the same way I did and spoke against the Pepper bill. He's been a great leader in health and it's been a bipartisan problem of trying to find a way to finance either the Pepper bill or some alternative.

We're all for great health care, ideally and in principle, but I think you still got to have an ability to know how to finance it soundly and adequately.

Pollack: The catastrophic health bill was indeed a tax increase on my mother. You really stuck it to people with that. Now, there's some benefits from it, and I applaud those benefits. But I want to tell you, when you say no tax increase but you put it on the Medicare premiums of seniors, they have no choice. They can't opt out of that. They can't say no, I'm not going to take that. It's just there on them.

My big objection, however, is the vote that (Pursell) took on Claude Pepper's bill. There is a way to finance it. It had a finance function attached in the bill, and it said that they would include the same Social Security tax that all of us in this room are paying, or at least most of us in this room who are making less than $45,000 are paying.

That Social Security tax currently cuts off at $45,000. You don't pay that on income above $45,000. Claude Pepper said we are going to ask people whose income is over $45,000 to pay the same. No more, but the same, rate as those under $45,000. That money would be designated to afford health care at home for seniors.

We know that seniors are being put out of hospitals sooner, that hospitals are not taking people as long as they could. The Claude Pepper bill — whether Dingell was for it or wasn't for it — was a good bill. There was a way of financing it and it wasn't putting it all on the backs of the seniors like the catastrophic bill did. It was putting the same tax on other people that the rest of us are already paying. So that's a very specific difference I would have with Congressman Pursell.

Generally speaking, though, although ours is the best health care system in the world in terms of high technology, it's not if you're a pregnant woman who doesn't have access to prenatal care. It's not if you don't have access to good nutrition.

We know that we have a higher infant mortality rate in this country than 17 other countries. Really, that's an indication that our medical system is not what it should be, that people in some areas of this state actually have a higher infant mortality rate than Honduras and other underdeveloped countries.

The people in Jackson, Michigan, need to get in the car and hope that they're not going to deliver their babies before they arrive in Ann Arbor, because they don't have facilities to take care of Medicaid babies in Jackson, and they lose a lot because of that.

What would I like to do? I'd like to see everybody in this country covered by health insurance; health insurance that would be on an ability to pay. The health insurance that I have would be just fine, I would continue to pay for the health insurance that I (have). Other people can pay less for health insurance.

Some people, I know, can't get into groups. Small business people, for instance, who employ just themselves, or maybe one other person, are paying up to 20 percent of their income on health insurance premiums. That's wrong, because often they don't have any.

I want to see, not the federal government run a health care system, but I want to see the federal government guarantee through co-pay plans that everybody has health insurance they can take and go to a physician and say, "this is my health care insurance. Can I be covered here in the community in which I live, so I don't have to go to some public hospital and hope that I can get there before my baby arrives?"

The federal government has come under some harsh criticism for failing to act to combat AIDS more than it did, sooner than it did. Keeping in mind that hindsight is always 20-20, is there any legitimacy to that criticism?

Pollack: I think there's some legitimacy to that criticism. Originally, the thought was that this is a disease of just homosexuals, it's not something that the general public needs to respond to. But viruses and public health threats have a way of reaching out to all parts of the population, and surely we should have seen this coming.

It's partly with education, it's partly with research. I think we're late. I'm hopeful that we'll move in that direction.

Pursell: The Congress has been funding AIDS for a number of years. This year's appropriation is the highest in its history, $1.3 billion. National Institutes of Health are about $7 billion.

My concern was, we didn't have the research, we didn't know what causes the problem. We didn't have antibiotics or any drugs that had been developed either by the private or the National Institutes of Health. But it's now one of the highest funded categories in Congress in appropriation for National Institutes of Health funding.

My major concern is we're having more deaths in chronic illnesses, not AIDS: cancer, heart, lung. I offered a $3 million appropriation this year to increase research for chronic illnesses because more people are dying at a younger age from hypertension, cancer, heart, lung, diabetes, and some of the chronic illnesses. There are about six major ones.

Present testimony that I've seen from the National Institutes of Health indicates it's going to be a long time before we find a cure. Probably it will come from the private sector, not the federal government.

But we are doing the research, we have a coordinated team between the Centers for Disease Control and other institutes looking at the problem of AIDS. I think we're on the right track and I've been supportive of the financing, but I think we're getting very close to the point of having problems of allocating our priorities to the more chronic illness case in which more people are dying.

What new steps, in addition to what has already been done, can the federal government take to control drug abuse? And specifically is drug testing a part of that?

Election '88 in Northville

Pursell: My history on drug prevention goes back to the state Legislature. I was the one that proposed in the Appropriations Committee (to) consolidate all our alcohol and drug abuse under the governor's office, and we created the legislation, with Congressman Bob Davis, to do that, which has now been current law for a long time. I also made the leadership opportunity as a state senator to create the drug lab here in which we do all our investigation and research on drugs, (at) the Michigan State Police (post) right here in Northville. That was a Pursell project.

I've been on the committee for 10 years now of funding alcohol and drug programs and quite frankly, I think it's a very uncoordinated approach both at the state and local and federal level, because we have no what I call "drug chief."

I think we've got legislation now in place in the (recently-passed) drug bill, which I supported. This is the second drug bill that we've financed in the last three years in which we've funded money back to the substance abuse centers.

I prefer that we look at drug prevention in early grades, particularly as a former elementary and secondary teacher. I think if you can learn to say no and teach drug prevention, both in the elementary and junior high school, that you're going to go a long way to reduce the demand side.

This bill will fund 60 percent of that $2.6 million to drug prevention and 40 percent will go to interdiction. Obviously, members of the Congress in Florida and California and Texas feel the supply side is really the problem they have within their communities.

I've met with our local three sheriffs, in Washtenaw, Wayne and Jackson (counties) — they tell me the cocaine users are on such a high that tomorrow they'll go out and commit either another crime, a break and enter, or anything to get dollars to buy and stay on cocaine, all because of the nature of that drug.

The law enforcement people here in the district tell me that crime and drugs is the most serious issue, and I see that. I see it in the communities, I see it in the various meetings and seminars, drug conferences in the district I have been concerned with the drug issue for a long time and I think the federal government has a role in research and funding money, but it's still the local family, it's the local church, it's the local schools, and if the community can stand up and be counted and take a strong position against the use of drugs.

And it's an educational problem more than anything else, and I think our young people are turning around and stopping and I think use of marijuana is down. I hope in the district we're seeing a decline in the use of cocaine, but as long as there's big profits for that I think we're going to be faced with the issue. I think we need both strong law enforcement (and) we need a strong prevention program.

I support drug testing in key sensitive positions. If you're a pilot of a commercial airline you should be tested. Amtrak had a series of accidents in which the engineers had been using drugs. So yes, I support carefully drawn management decisions of employers groups to test those in sensitive positions that have impact on the control and life of other people, passengers in the case of transportation. But I don't support across-the-board mandatory testing.

Pollack: I think that drugs is the toughest problem we face. I'm glad to hear Congressman Pursell say he supports prevention as well as interdiction. I certainly make both statements myself.

I would question why he didn't vote for the $1.2 billion prevention and education program in 1985. It passed without his vote, he didn't vote for it, it passed by 201 to 200. And Congressman Pursell was there that day. It almost failed, I'm glad it passed, even without (his) help.

There is an inconsistency in the record. Everybody wants to be Rambo this year. Congressman Pursell was voting against the DEA (Drug Enforcement Agency) and support for the Coast Guard, support for interdiction, up until now. But ultimately it comes down to assistance from the federal government for resources delivered to local communities. I think everything from the 4-H clubs and the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts and afterschool programs are helpful in the anti-drug effort.

I think quality day care is essential to getting kids started right so they can go into school. I think that's part of an anti-drug program, as well as the law enforcement. We recognize that drug addiction, once it's started, has an enormously high recidivism rate.

People who've been addicted to drugs do need support after the punishment part is over, they need support such as AA (Alcoholics Anonymous)-type programs to stay off, and that support has not been there. The federal government has actually cut funds in the last eight years while the problem has gotten worse.

The funds for treatment and support have gone down, and if you talk to anybody who works in the field they will tell you the monies have gone down. And it's interesting because the law enforcement people themselves, the sheriffs, they'll say the same thing: you've got to get at the demand side. And yet Congress is cutting money for that.

I think that there are reasons to let pilots and people know who have the lives of the public in their hands that as a condition of their jobs they may very well be subject to random testing, but I think random testing for other individuals without some indication that they're on drugs is an intrusion of privacy and frankly doesn't help reduce drug use at all.

Over the last couple of years we've seen some big developments in arms control. Are you satisfied with the accomplishments, and where would you like to see the country move next?

Pollack: I'm pleased that we're much further along than we were a year or two ago, but I'm certainly not satisfied. This country is essentially being drawn deeper and deeper into deficit and again that means we are being more and more obligated to and becoming more and more dependent on foreign money to keep our economy going, largely because of overspending in the military budget.

The deficit was caused by two primary actions: one was the 1981 tax cut which was primarily a tax cut for the rich, but it also had some trickle-down benefits for more modest people. That was worth $800 billion. There was a $700 billion increase in military expenditures. If we don't look at security in terms of economic security, in terms of our independence from foreign nations, we will not be secure.

I think we may be at a historic point in time with changes in the Soviet Union allowing us to carefully negotiate considerable further reductions, but I put the emphasis on careful. It has to be mutual, it has to be cautious, but even without negotiations, we could get rid of some of the redundancies, the waste,

3. APPROVAL OF COUNCIL MEETING MINUTES:

The minutes of the regular meeting of September 19, 1988, were approved as corrected.

4. CITIZEN COMMENTS:

Robert Borthwick, 21841 Stanstead, asked Council about the progress of the Back Road berm.

Mayor Johnson stated Council will have a report from the administration on this at the next meeting.

Tom Brouil, 21300 Summerdale, was very displeased with the lack of progress of replacing landscaping when the water and sewer project was completed last fall.

Manager Walters stated the contractor will be on the job tomorrow and if not, another contractor will be retained and paid from the performance bond. This summer's drought has caused many landscaping delays in the City's projects.

5. ADOPTION OF THE AGENDA & APPROVAL OF THE CONSENT AGENDA:
Moved, supported, carried, to adopt the agenda as amended, and consent agenda through M.

6. NORTHVILLE JAYCEES RE: JULY 4TH EXPENSES:
Moved, supported, carried, to allocate $864.00 to the Northville Jaycees' 1988 Fourth of July expenses.

7. S.B. DAY CARE PROVISION IN ZONING ORDINANCE:

Manager Walters reviewed his recommendation to amend the Zoning Ordinance to clarify the issue of day care services provided by residents in their own homes to allow six or less children to be cared for in a residence for periods of less than twenty-four hours per day. He also reflected that this would be a home occupation, prohibiting employees other than family. It is recommended that a public hearing be called for November 7 for this amendment.

Mr. Ellis, 1042 Canterbury, had several questions he asked Council to consider at their next meeting.
Mayor Johnson requested the child day care provision be placed on the October 17 agenda.

The BOCA Basic/National Building Code/1987; the CABO One & Two Family Dwelling Code/1986; the BOCA Basic/National Existing Structures Code/1987; the BOCA Basic/National Plumbing Code/1987; the BOCA Basic/National Mechanical Code/1987; the NFPA National Electrical Code/1987 along with the 21 technical amendments recommended by the Reciprocal Electrical Code, Inc., 1987 Edition; and the BOCA Basic/National Fire Prevention Code/1987.

10. PARKING CREDITS FOR MAIN/CENTRAL PROJECT:

Manager Walters reviewed the status of the Main-Centre project parking. During the discussions with Singh Development a concept was developed based on a parking deck structure on the northeast corner of the MAGS lot with two above ground levels. The higher cost of parking deck spaces resulted in the City charging $3,000.00 per deck parking space (188 deck spaces). If tax capturing was endorsed by the School District as part of the financing plan, also, the developer would rebuild the MAGS lot and a new lot at the Scout Building for the postal employees and McNeely-Lincoln employees. The School Board needs 2-3 weeks to officially endorse the plan for capturing taxes. The developer indicates the project cannot support a parking space assessment more than $2,000.00 per space, which leaves the City and developer $100,000 apart.

Mike Kahn, Vice President of Singh Development, stated they have worked very hard on this project and want this project to proceed, but they are working under time restraints. They could change the design and cheapen the building to gain finances for parking development, but they are not willing to do so. They prefer to build the plans approved by the Planning Commission and not change the quality. They want to do this project very badly, but they are also prudent businessmen and their costs cannot be brought in line on the parking requirement. They can't go higher than $2,000/parking space.

Mayor Johnson appreciates Singh's position, but additional parking must be created for this development and the City has financial restrictions also.

Mayor Johnson felt there are a lot of disappointed people. None have worked harder on a development at Main and Center and he appreciates the integrity of Singh Development.

11. PHEASANT HILLS PHASE II IMPROVEMENTS:

Moved, supported, carried, to accept the public roads and underground municipal utilities (sanitary sewer, waterlines and storm sewer) of the Pheasant Hills Subdivision No. 2, upon receipt of a letter of credit in the amount of $22,000.00, as recommended by the City Engineer.

12. ALLEN TERRACE 2ND FLOOR CORRIDOR BID:

Moved, supported, carried, to waive sealed bids for expediting floor finishing for the safety of the Allen Terrace residents.

Moved, supported, carried, to approve the low bid of A.R. Kramer for $3,008.00, to apply a skumcoat to the second floor corridor at Allen Terrace.

13. 1988 RACETRACK STATUS:

Moved, supported, carried, to adopt the resolution opposing Jackson racing at Hazel Park as causing a financial hardship to the City of Northville.

14. NORTH HURON VALLEY/ROUGE VALLEY SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM - FINANCING PLAN:

Moved, supported, carried, to finance the City of Northville cost of the North Huron Valley, Rouge Valley Sewage Disposal System through the Wayne County Bond Issue.

15. M. ALEXANDER CT. &amp; CADY ST. PAYING BID:

Moved, supported, carried, to accept the low bid from Palmer Paving Co. of $7,325.00 to finish paving behind the Presbyterian Church along M. Alexander Ct. and Cady St. parking area.

16. COUNCIL COMMENTS:

Councilman Buckland asked for the speed check on 8 Mile west of Taft.

Councilman Buckland asked to meet with the City of Novi to discuss the future development of 8 Mile Road.

Councilman Folino asked for a copy of S.B. 887 re day care centers, and more information on the Michigan Property Tax Rebate Program for senior citizens.

Councilman Folino asked the Police Department to review posting no parking signs on Butler Street again.

Councilman Folino asked the Police Department to react to the realtor signs on 8 Mile directing people to Novi home sales.

Councilman Folino suggested amending the Garage Sale Sign Ordinance by requiring the permit number be placed on the signs to assist the Police Department.

Councilman Folino suggested eliminating some of the signs on the new parking lot on Cady Street to have only two entrances/exits.

Mayor Protem Ayers asked the progress of the sidewalk repair program.

Mayor Johnson announced the City of Northville received the AAA award for 15 years without a pedestrian fatality.

There being no further business to come before the City Council, Mayor Johnson adjourned the regular meeting at 8:35 p.m.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED,
CATHY M. KONRAD, CMK
CITY CLERK

Election '88 in Northville

Pollack presents Pursell with biggest challenge yet

Pursell's campaign is concentrating on his record in the Congress and in the Michigan Senate. In a joint interview with the two candidates last week, the phrase "fiscal restraint" recurred as a Pursell theme in legislation and voting. He calls Pollack a liberal who might be likely to spend beyond the country's means.

Pollack, meanwhile, challenges Pursell with a long list of votes with which she disagrees, an approach he called "irresponsible." The environment and health care for seniors are two issues on which she says Pursell is particularly weak. Pollack does not hesitate to blame the Democrats — her own party — for failing to control the federal budget deficit.

A transcription of the joint interview follows this story.

The environment has become one of the major issues in the campaign. Pollack points to her endorsement by the League of Conservation Voters and to Pursell's being named one of the 12 most environmentally-damaging members of Congress by Environmental Action.

A particular Pollack focus is Pursell's effort in 1985 to amend the Clean Water Act to reduce the proposed funding to an earlier-proposed level. With water quality problems in the Rouge River — and the "super sewer" improvement project depending in large part on federal money — Pollack said Pursell's 1985 amendment is a particular example of a poor record which also includes not voting on the creation of a national groundwater commission and on expanding the Superfund for clean-up.

"With over 100,000 plants and factories dumping industrial wastes into Michigan lakes and rivers, and the Environmental Protection Agency estimating municipal sewage treatment costs in excess of $100 billion, Pursell chose in 1985 to introduce an amendment to the Clean Water Act to cut spending on water pollution control through 1990 by $6 billion," Pollack said in a prepared statement. "All the while figures furnished by the Wayne County Department of Health show alarmingly high levels of fecal coliforms — from animal and human waste — present throughout the area."

Pursell responded last week that Pollack is taking the vote out of context, that it was part of a budget control effort and that his overall record shows support for clean water.

"The people of the district can be the judge. April of 1977, Pursell on the Water Pollution Act, yes. October 1981, Water Pollution Control Act, Pursell voted yes. In January 1987, the Water Quality Renewal Act, Pursell voted yes. February 1987, the override of the president's veto, Pursell ... voted to override the veto. So you've got six major yes votes on clean water since Jimmy Carter days," he said.

Of the 1985 vote, Pursell said there was bipartisan support for a $2.6 billion appropriation rather than a $4.6 billion he said contained a lot of "pork-barrel" projects.

"When the liberals — and I assume she would be in that category, since she doesn't like my vote on that particular act — on the clean water subcommittee, the authorization committee, voted to double that, up to $4.6 billion," he said.

"We lost the amendment, then it came back, it was cleaned up and improved by the Senate and we supported the bill," Pursell added. "I think the consistency is there except for one year in which we faced a $200 billion deficit ... I think I've got a strong record on clean water. For one opponent to take out one vote out of the context of six or seven votes to me misleads the public and I think that's irresponsible."

In the joint interview, Pollack criticized Pursell for missing other votes, such as funding for drug prevention, or "no" votes on others, such as the Long-Term Care bill recently defeated.

"She says I voted against drug prevention, I voted against this or I voted against that. I've cast thousands of votes, represented this district for 20 years, and if people want to indicate I voted against a particular bill, I think they ought to document that with the vote number ... and I'd be happy to explain that position at that time," Pursell said.

While Pollack criticized many of Pursell's votes, the only Pollack vote which Pursell directly criticized was on an issue dealing with the state constitution: a proposal to call a constitutional convention to consider a balanced budget amendment. Pursell supports a federal balanced budget amendment.

Pollack responded that the issue was really calling a constitutional convention, not the balanced budget proposal. Such a convention would have left the entire state constitution open to change.

"You open up the whole constitution (by calling a convention). That's what I voted on," she said.

In concluding remarks after the joint interview, Pursell returned to his theme of fiscal restraint.

"Fiscal restraint and budgetary responsibility is very important. The people of Northville want a balanced budget amendment and I support that and I think just raising taxes and cutting the defense budget is not going to get us a balanced budget. We're going to have to exercise fiscal restraint in many of our programs to finally get to a balanced budget," he said.

Pollack concluded with a lesson she said she learned as a member of the Ann Arbor School Board.

"I kept waiting for (Ann Arbor school board members) to address the real issues. There were some obvious problems. And there was silence on those issues," she said. "When I spoke up it was like a dam bursting. Too many people are singing the same chorus in Washington, Republican and Democratic alike, and not enough people will stand up and do what I do, and what I'm known to do. I'm very, very forthright ... When is it that one becomes a liberal? When one disagrees with Carl Pursell? In the end, the public is not talking labels."

Pollack and Pursell are scheduled to debate in public twice next week.

At 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 1, the Ann Arbor League of Women Voters is sponsoring a debate at the Ann Arbor City Hall, Huron and Fifth streets in Ann Arbor. At noon Wednesday, Nov. 2, the Northville, Plymouth and Livonia chambers of commerce are sponsoring a luncheon debate/forum at the Plymouth Hilton, 14707 Northville Road. The Plymouth event costs $15 per person; call 349-7640 for reservations.

Meads Mill shows its spirit

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Sometimes the actions of a few people can help many.

That was the case last week at Meads Mill Middle School, as students celebrated spirit week by donating a record amount of canned food in the annual food drive.

"The amount of food donated shows that the kids care about disadvantaged people and it shows that in Northville we really have people who care," said Meads Mill Assistant Principal Jeff Radwanski, declaring spirit week to be a "tremendous success."

In addition to a school food drive, which resulted in 1,187 articles of food being donated, students participated in handbook cover designing and school color contests.

"School spirit contests are crucial so far as getting kids to like coming to school and establishing pride in school and being a part of it," Radwanski said.

He noted that the contests were broken down into categories between the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. Students received one point for each article of food, one point for each piece of clothing with the school colors (maroon and gold) worn.

Sixth graders won the week long competition with 549 points, seventh graders with 549 points and eighth graders finished third with 549 points.

Each student was given a pass to the Christmas parade in their first place finish.

"Pride in school keeps middle school students motivated and this year the students have not let the school down," Radwanski said. "The students have shown pride in their school and in their community."

she thinks spirit week is not only fun for the students, but also helps poor people as well.

"It makes me feel really good to help people and I think it's great that the school did that much to help people," Hayden said.

As for winning the handbook contest, Hayden said she was very surprised and did not expect her entry to win.

With three lockers in the background and various sports, music and academic equipment making up the contest entry, Hayden said she tried to think of all the activities in Meads Mill.

"I never thought about art as a career, but I am going to kind of consider it now," Hayden said as she proudly wore her new Northville sweatshirt, which was the first place award for the handbook contest.

you're going to see somewhat less pregnancies. I think the women who want to have an abortion are going to get the money to have an abortion no matter how poor they are.

Holly Township has been identified as a potential prison site. What is your political stand on this issue and why?

It's not centrally located. There's no transportation system. The roads are terrible in the area, plus there is a major environmental question. I spent several months calling the Department of Natural Resources in Northville telling them there is a major contamination problem at the Adelphi Academy property in Holly Township, that the State Corrections Department may want to site (locate) a prison there. I asked them if they would hurry up their assessment of this so we can determine the scope of the problem.

I think the people in Holly feel and I feel that the DNR was stalling because the people in the Corrections Department then they checked the property and they found out that the property was contaminated.

So the department wanted to know what the state was going to do about it. I don't know the answer to that question. I think the state is going to have to make a decision about whether or not they want to build a prison there.

About the city, Lansing, Michigan, the city of Lansing is going to have a problem with the city of Lansing. I think the city of Lansing is going to have a problem with the city of Lansing.

I think the people in Holly feel and I feel that the DNR was stalling because the people in the Corrections

Explain the substance of the $800 million environmental bond issue and the position you have it?

Proposal "C" is $660 million for hazardous waste cleanup and then some solid waste projects and some water quality things, and some money for incinerators. Proposal "D" is $140 million, goes for recreation infrastructure improvements. Seventy million dollars would go to the state, such as the DNR, and another $70 million would go to local communities.

It is a political compromise. That's how it was split up. My initial feeling was that we should put all the money into the environmental cleanup because even $800 million would not clean up all the toxic waste sites... or build some more solid waste landfills.

I'm not as enthused about Proposal "D," but I'm going to support both proposals. I'm pretty sure Proposal "C" will pass, and I'm pretty sure Proposal "D" will pass, too.

Record/THOM DOUGHERTY

The Northville School District hosted an annual four-county food evaluation program last week. Representatives from school food services throughout the area descended on Bryant School Wednesday, Oct. 19 for a day-long testing of products from food suppliers. Northville Food Service Supervisor Yvonne Stevens said the evaluation is both objective, for quality, weight and the like; and subjective, for taste.

Downtown stores on merry-go-round

The move of Black's Hardware to the old D & C store site on Main Street has touched off the latest round of musical stores downtown.

D & C announced it would close this summer after its lease expired and the building's rent increased, and Black's Hardware said it would move into the site to almost double its current cramped space.

That left the present Black's site, 117 E. Main Street, up for grabs. And another Main Street business is moving in there.

Bill Richardson, who owns the Northville Camera Shop at 105 E. Main, said that operation will move into the old Black's site after a complete inside-and-out renovation. The camera shop will consolidate with the Pictures Plus frame shop run by Dee Richardson and currently located on Cady Street.

"We're moving both stores to 117 East Main," Richardson said. He hopes the new operation will be open by the first of the year.

No new tenant has been announced for the Cady site being vacated by the frame shop. But the present Northville Camera location is already spoken for.

Nelda Morrison, who now operates Morrison's Northville Consignment from a location above the camera shop, said that store—which deals in antiques and fine home furnishings on consignment—plans to move that business downstairs into the camera store location.

"We've done real well in Northville, and now we're going to double in size," Morrison said. The shop, which is undergoing a gradual name change to simply "Morrison's," has been in its upstairs location for seven years.

And finally, Morrison said that local basket maker Barbara Teubert plans to open a shop in the space vacated by the consignment business. "We're real excited about that," Morrison said.

"There will be a lot of shifting come January," she added with a laugh. "Everybody's staying; we're just all getting bigger. I think it's a real good sign for the town."

very strong person," he said.

"Russ was a very honest guy, he never misrepresented anything," Severance said. "He conveyed the strictest moral principles to the student body. His moral fibre is imbedded in the community."

"I may be the present superintendent of Northville Schools, but as long as Russ Amerman was around he was the real boss," George Bell said.

During his 32-year tenure as Northville Superintendent, Bell said, Mr. Amerman was responsible for everything from personnel direction to business management.

"He worked on limited resources for 32 years as superintendent, so he had to be good at his job," Bell added.

Bell said one story he heard about Mr. Amerman involved him giving a student $20 to purchase a textbook. "He was just that type of person,"

"Russell Amerman will never die because he touched the lives of so many people," Bell said. "His memory will live forever."

District Administrative Assistant Donald Van Ingen said Amerman was a compassionate man "who never looked to be in the limelight."

The eight students competing for the state Honors Choir are, left to right, Beth LaManna, 10th grade; Christy Richins, 12th grade; Robert Foalkrod, 11th grade; Jennifer Johnson, 11th grade;

Susan Bickner, 11th grade; Gwendolyn Gabrys, 11th grade; sitting are Stacy Brown, 12th grade and Melissa Petro, 11th grade.

Eight students vie for choir honors

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Eight budding singing stars from Northville High School were recently honored in the regional competition of the State Honors Choir contest.

Northville Choir Director Mary Kay Pryce said all eight of Northville's students advanced to the state competition on Dec. 3.

"Northville Schools are in the top 12 percent of the schools that sent kids to the regional competition, even though we're quite a bit smaller than most of the other competing schools," Pryce said.

"It's nice to have Northville well represented in the state competition."

The eight Northville students who qualified for State Honors Choir competition include: seniors Stacy Brown and Christy Richins; juniors Robert Foalkrod, Jennifer Johnson, Susan Bickner, Gwendolyn Gabrys and Melissa Petro; and sophomore Beth LaManna.

Pryce said the regionals, which are the first leg of the competition, are open to choir students throughout the state.

Students are required to memorize a song that is chosen by the state Honors Choir Committee. This year's song was "I Love My Love" by Holst. Pryce said the students are then judged on three points: singing from memory, sight reading of music, and vocal quality.

She said the eight students from Northville must work extra hard for the state competition, as the number of pieces to be memorized increases to five.

Pryce added that students who are chosen to be on the State Honors Choir must memorize more music, in preparation for a performance at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor in January.

She said the State Honors Choir competition benefits not only the students involved, but the entire school.

"It (the competition) lets us have a feel for what other kids at the State Honors level are doing, and our competing students bring their experiences back to the school, which is wonderful for us," she added.

Pryce said the five students who were named to the State Honors Choir last year have done incredibly well in pursuing music in their freshmen year at college.

"Since we have only two seniors competing for State Honors Choir, the students who don't advance will have a better chance of making the squad next year," she noted.

Senior Christy Richins, who plans on attending the University of Michigan next year, said this is the first time she has tried out for the State Honors Choir.

"I was excited because I didn't plan on making it," Richins said, adding that she decided to audition

"because I thought it was a good way to meet people."

Richins said she is excited to participate in the state competition, "although I probably won't pursue music in college either way (win or lose)."

Senior Stacy Brown said she is looking forward to the state competition, but she admitted that she is a bit nervous.

Brown said she thinks all eight Northville students have a good chance to advance to the choir.

"Our high school program is real good and if we all practice hard I think all of us have a good chance (to advance)," she said.

Brown said she intends to go on with choir and possibly piano when she enrolls at Central Michigan University next fall.

"I really think that advancing in the State Honors Choir competition can be a springboard to the future for me," she added.

Politicians face off in Nov. 8 election

Pursell: I have a major difference with my opponent, who wants to unilaterally cut the defense systems.

Nobody denies... there's waste and abuse in every federal agency (which) needs to be cleaned out and that takes good management. In respect to arms control, we've had a very successful executive, President Reagan, and the Congress in positioning ourselves internationally to solve the INF agreement, reduce the short-range ballistic missiles. It was a historical development, and few presidents in American history (have) accomplished that major an achievement. Even Democratic leadership recognized that.

We've done that from a position of strength. That doesn't mean I support every weapons system, I don't. I've voted consistently against the B-1 because we have the stealth bomber in place. The F-18 was too expensive. There were other weapons systems that are not necessary. We didn't need 200 MXs that Carter proposed or 100 that Reagan proposed.

We put together a bipartisan committee led by Tom Foley, Al Gore and others that went to the White House and prepared ourselves for the negotiations by putting together the commission report. Harold Brown and Tim Schlesinger, both Democratic former secretaries of defense, were part of that recommendation and we have now negotiated a very successful INF agreement... We had a strong negotiating position at the negotiating table in Geneva. We've negotiated from a position of strength and obviously that's been very successful.

Carl Pursell and a group of moderate Republicans recommended a freeze on the defense budget back in 1985. Part of my freeze amendment movement, which was successful on the House floor on seven issues including clean water.

So we feel very strongly that yes, we can make reductions in defense, but I don't want to unilaterally disarm this nation and I think we need a bipartisan foreign policy to be tough with the Soviets and to eliminate chemical weapons and reduce any opportunity we can, any weapons system, including conventional weapons systems, in which we can do it bilaterally, do it together.

If Congress were to vote weapons systems out (unilaterally) you'd have no position at the bargaining table for negotiations on START, which I support.

Local youth program looks for volunteers

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The Northville Youth Assistance (NYA) program will be holding a volunteer counselor training session on Wednesday, Nov. 2, 9, 16, 30 and Dec. 7 between 6-9 p.m. at the Livonia Senior Citizen's Center.

NYA Director Mary Ellen King said the training program is open to any Northville resident, age 21 or older, "who is concerned and cares about Northville's youth."

"We are looking for people who want to make a difference in the lives of Northville's youth," she added.

During the training, volunteers will learn communication skills, listening skills, empathy skills, values clarification and information on substance abuse.

King said trained volunteers, probation officers, school personnel and police officers will speak to the volunteers.

"Not one volunteer who has gone through the training has said it is boring," she noted. "In fact, even if the volunteer is not matched with a youth, many of the them have said they have gained a lot through the training."

Following the 15 hours of training, King said each volunteer will be matched with a youth from Northville and will work with that youth for about 1½ hours per week for approximately six months.

She noted the meeting times between the volunteer and youth are set up at their convenience and can be done on weekends or evenings.

"Through this program we find that the kids enjoy having someone special for them," King said. "The youths like knowing there is a person who cares about them and is concerned about teens."

She said most of the youths who participate in the NYA program are police referrals, first time offenders or teens having problems adjusting in society.

"The NYA program has been very successful because we have found that 80 percent of the first time offenders are never again heard from by police," King noted.

The NYA program began in April 1987, and this will be the organization's sixth volunteer counselor training session.

For more information about the program, prospective volunteers are to call King at 344-1618 to set up an appointment.

Officials discuss the future

Commissioner who also attended

Possible changes in streets mentioned at the meeting included extending Hutton down to Cady, and taking Cady all the way back out to S. Main. Former Mayor Mike Allen said that Cady once did intersect S. Main, and that it was the only route into town.

Commission Chairperson Dick Wilhelm said the city should guard against Cady becoming a high-speed alternative to Main Street.

Commission Vice Chairperson John Hardin said that Cady should become a definite part of downtown. "I think you've got to bring the center of town down the side of the hill," he said. Specifically, he added, the present parking deck creates a barrier which might need to come down, at least in part.

He also said Cady becomes something less than a street when it passes Center. "You're suddenly in a parking lot and kind of on a street that may or may not be there."

Commissioner David Totten said that officials should not expect too much of Cady street, since the area has been recently mentioned as an alternate route through town, a new shopping district, and an area to develop more parking. "I'm not sure we can get it to do all those things," he said.

One challenge the officials mentioned is creating any kind of unification between Main and Cady because of the steep hill between the two. Allen said the city has wrestled with the question for decades.

"Two levels is a big problem," Allen said. "How do you get the people up there, down here; down here, up there; and be happy and satisfied?"

Northville Downs entered the discussion, too, primarily as a chance to work out some sort of shared parking. "There's a lot of flexibility once you start looking at deck parking," City Manager Steve Walters commented.

Wortman also mentioned the small Rouge River tributary which runs through the area as a resource which could be better used. "To a large extent that stream has been ignored," he said.

The officials spent some time discussing the character of the city, and including some description of that character in the preface to the Master Plan. The plan update is expected to take about a year, and will include a survey of residents before settling on plans for land use, capital improvements, recreational facilities and the like.

The talk on the nature of the city began with some comments from Glenn Bowles, a planner with Ayres, Lewis. He characterized the city as having a downtown theme of country boutique-type stores.

"The question is, do you want to stay that way? Will that theme maintain itself when this whole area isn't country any more?" Bowles asked.

Some of the officials present disagreed with the description.

Walters suggested the theme of downtown is more along the lines of an unstated, nonspecific strategy to maintain a traditional downtown area. The mix of different retail stores, restaurants and services is vital, he said.

"Many of us feel the loss of the dime store is something to be concerned about," Walters commented.

Commissioner Kathleen Otton said those types of businesses are important to the community. "I think we need to keep some of our warts because they serve our townspeople," she said.

Hardin agreed that a small-town atmosphere is the real attraction of the city. "I think you need to have that overall mixture of everything to make it an entity in itself," he said.

Some commissioners said Northville should guard against development like Birmingham, Ann Arbor or Plymouth, saying those cities have expanded to attract visitors at the expense of convenience to residents.

Historic District Commissioner Fran Gazlay said that officials cannot really decide what direction the city will take.

"America doesn't work that way," he said. The free market will control the city's character more than anything else, he added.

Last week's discussion is only the first of many discussions expected on these issues. Planners, commissioners and other officials will meet in committees and other forums to continue discussing the studies as they progress.

The next two scheduled sessions are:

- Master Plan — a committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight, Thursday, Oct. 27 at City Hall.

- Cady Street Corridor — 8 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 1, at City Hall, with the members of the Downtown Development Authority and others.

Law passage may affect city

While the Northville Planning Commission prepares to debate how the density of in-home day care operations should be regulated in the city, the state Legislature may decide the issue — at least in part — for them.

Three bills which have passed the state Senate would, if also passed by the House, require local units of government to consider home day care a residential use of land, and not a business. The City of Northville Zoning Ordinance currently views in-home day care as a business, but the City Council is considering a change. One likely possibility is treating small day care operations within a home as a special land use, requiring an extra city permit after a public hearing.

The bills — sponsored by state Sen. Jack Faxon, who represents the north part of the city, and Sen. Lana Pollack, who is currently running for Congress in the 2nd District — would also limit density of such homes. The Northville City Council recently directed the Planning Commission to consider how the city should control density.

As passed by the Senate, day care homes could not locate more than 1,500 feet from each other — although a local government could increase the density.

Some opponents of the bills said they would usurp local control. Others objected that group day-care facilities are indeed businesses and should be treated as such.

"What Northville may want to do is fine. If there's any desire to locate them closer than (1,500 feet), it would be up to the local unit of government," Faxon explained. A special use permit would probably be an appropriate way to handle that, he added.

"The bills really take on the function of making the local units of government inoperative" in zoning for home day care, Faxon said. "Essentially, these facilities are state-licensed to start with."

He added, "The main thing is that we don't want to force these operations into business structures ...

This legislation is really designed to insure child care will be available in neighborhoods."

Faxon said the bills would encourage most home day care operators to apply for licenses. Licenses are now required, but officials believe few operators ever apply. Faxon said this is partly because such an application could bring them to the attention of city officials who might say they could not operate in a home.

"It was like signing your own execution, and so many homes in the state have been operating without any state license," Faxon said. The legislation would encourage home day care operators to apply for a license, he said, helping to insure conditions in the homes.

"It's difficult for me to see why the issue of local ordinances should be held over the issue of safety and welfare of children," Faxon said.

The bills — Senate Bills 687, 688 and 689 — passed by votes of 22-12, 24-11 and 23-12. Northville's other state Senator, R. Robert Geake, voted in favor.

Sen. William Sederburg (R-East Lansing) spoke against the bills in Senate debate. Partly sympathetic to the bills, he told how his wife agreed to care for a neighbor child after school and found she had to have a state license.

"So we went through this entire process where my wife had to go through training, even though she had a master's degree in child psychology and taught school, she had to go through their day of training for people taking care of children.

"Our house has been inspected by their people. We got on their mailing list, which was a real treat, and for the last three years we've been getting phone calls from people wanting to know whether we take care of children for a business within our home.

"We made a mistake in trying to fulfill the intent of the law, I guess. Most people would have just taken care of this child and not paid any attention to the law."

Sederburg said, "We really should be treating family day-care homes slightly different(ly) in the law and not have them go through the same zoning requirements as other facilities."

But Sederburg criticized the sections covering group day-care centers as inconsistent.

Such homes must "maintain the property consistent with the visible characteristics of the neighborhood, but at the same time require adequate off-street parking for employees."

"That seems to me in most neighborhoods would automatically mean you could not be consistent with the general characteristics of the neighborhood."

CITY OF NORTHVILLE NOTICE OF ENACTMENT

The City Council of the City of Northville, following a public hearing on Monday, October 17, 1988 at 8:00 p.m., in the Council Room of the Municipal Building, 215 W. Main Street, has adopted the following ordinance.

AN ORDINANCE TO REGULATE THE MAINTENANCE OF EXISTING BUILDINGS AND PREMISES IN THE CITY OF NORTHVILLE; TO ESTABLISH MINIMUM MAINTENANCE STANDARDS FOR BUILDINGS AND PREMISES; TO FIX THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF OWNERS, TENANTS AND OCCUPANTS OF ALL BUILDINGS AND PREMISES; AND TO PROVIDE FOR ADMINISTRATION, ENFORCEMENT AND PENALTIES.

The City of Northville ordains:

Section 1. Title 4, Chapter 17, Property Maintenance of the City Code of Ordinances of the City of Northville is hereby adopted to read as follows:

Section 4-1701. SHORT TITLE. This ordinance shall be known and may be cited as the "City of Northville Property Maintenance Ordinance."

Section 4-1702. PURPOSE. The purpose of this ordinance is to promote the public health, safety and welfare by prohibiting the deterioration and inadequate maintenance of buildings and premises, which contribute to fire, safety and health hazards, and adversely affect the property right of adjacent owners and occupants.

The intent of this ordinance is to provide minimum standards for the construction and maintenance of buildings and premises. Nothing in this ordinance shall be deemed to supersede, modify or reduce the requirements of other City ordinances, codes and regulations.

Section 4-1703. DEFINITIONS. The following words and phrases, as used in this ordinance, shall have the following meanings:

(a) BUILDING shall mean any structure, framework or housing, public or private.

(b) CITY shall mean the City of Northville, Michigan.

(c) CITY COUNCIL shall mean the Northville City Council.

(d) PREMISES shall mean any lot or parcel of land inclusive of the buildings.

(e) WORKMANLIKE MANNER shall mean the manner of carrying out such activities as construction, maintenance and repair such as to secure the adequate maintenance of buildings and premises, to sustain the property right of adjacent owners, and to eliminate conditions which contribute to fire, safety, and health hazards.

(f) YARD shall be an open space on the same lot with a building unoccupied, and unobstructed from the ground upward, except as otherwise provided herein. The measurement of the yard is the minimum horizontal distance between the lot line and the building or structure. Front yard shall be a yard extending the full width of lot, the depth of which is the minimum horizontal distance between the front lot line and the nearest line to the principal building on the lot. Rear yard shall be a yard extending the full width of the lot, the depth of which is the horizontal distance between the rear lot line and the rear line or line of the principal building on the lot.

Section 4-1704. COMPLIANCE WITH STANDARDS REQUIRED. All premises and buildings within the City of Northville shall be maintained in a workmanlike manner in accordance with the provisions of this ordinance. The enforcement officer shall apply the provisions of this ordinance so that minor variations which do not create any fire, safety or health hazard, or adversely affect the property rights of adjacent property owners and occupants, shall not be considered a violation of this ordinance.

Section 4-1705. STANDARDS FOR MAINTENANCE OF PREMISES. All premises shall be maintained in accordance with the following provisions:

(a) All premises shall be maintained in a clean, safe and sanitary condition free from any accumulation of rubbish or garbage, except in accordance with City regulations.

(b) Trees and shrubbery shall be kept trimmed in accordance with Section 7-207 of the City Code so as not to adversely affect structures or impede pedestrian or vehicular traffic. Grass shall not be permitted to grow higher than six (6) inches.

(c) No machinery, equipment, vehicles, lumber piles, crates, boxes, building blocks, furniture, recreation equipment or other materials either discarded, unsightly or showing evidence of need for repairs, with or without a current license, shall be stored, parked, abandoned or junked in any yard; and should such use of land occur, it shall be declared a nuisance. This section shall not apply to construction material while such material is being actively used in the maintenance or construction of the premises.

(d) Firewood shall be stored behind the front building line and in such a manner as to not cause rodent or other pest infestations.

(e) Dog pens and dog runs shall not be placed in front of the front building line nor in the required side yards. They shall be located at least ten (10) feet from adjacent property lines unless an obscuring fence is provided. This restriction shall not apply to those premises containing dog pen and dog runs prior to the effective date of this ordinance until those premises either change ownership or no longer conform to the use in existence on the effective date of this act. All dog pens and runs shall be kept free of feces, garbage and other odor-causing conditions.

Section 4-1706. STANDARDS FOR MAINTENANCE OF BUILDINGS. All buildings shall be maintained with the following provisions:

(a) The exterior of every building shall be maintained in a workmanlike manner, and all surfaces thereof shall be kept painted or protected with other approved coatings or materials.

(b) Permanent repairs to a building shall be made with the same or similar materials used in the construction of the building and in such a manner as to permanently repair the damaged area.

(c) Exterior surfaces of every building shall be maintained free of broken, loose, rotting, crumbling, missing or inadequately finished materials.

Section 4-1707. RESPONSIBILITY OF OCCUPANT. The occupant and the owner or his designated agent shall be responsible for the maintenance of a building at all times. No person shall maintain or permit to be maintained any conditions prohibited by this ordinance upon any structure or property owned, leased, rented or occupied by such person.

Section 4-1708. ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT. Whenever an enforcement officer of the City determines that there exists a violation of this ordinance, or has reasonable grounds to believe that such violation exists, he shall send notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the person responsible for the property based on the tax roll records of the City and to the premises. The notice shall contain the following information:

(a) a description of the property sufficient for identification;

(b) a description of the violations which are to be corrected;

(c) a correction order allowing a reasonable time for the repairs, actions, or other improvements required to bring the structure and premises into compliance with the provisions of this ordinance and other City ordinances, codes and regulations;

(d) a statement about the right of appeal to the Board of Zoning Appeals, if the owner feels that the correction order is unreasonable.

Section 4-1709. APPEAL. A person who has received a notice pursuant to Section 8 of this ordinance may appeal such notice to the Board of Zoning Appeals, in accordance with the procedure set forth in the Zoning Ordinance, provided that such appeal must be filed with the Building Department prior to the deadline for compliance which is provided in the notice. Such appeal shall state the basis on which the owner feels that the required correction is unreasonable, and the alternative, if any, that the owner proposes which would alleviate the alleged problem.

Section 4-1710. SEVERABILITY. If any provision of this ordinance or its application to any person or circumstances shall be held invalid, the remainder of this ordinance or the application of the provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected.

Section 4-1711. PENALTY. For the purpose of this ordinance the penalty will be as defined in Title 1, Chapter 1, Section 1-108 General Penalty.

Section 4-1712. EFFECTIVE. This short ordinance shall become effective ten (10) days after enactment thereof, and after publication thereof.

The Northville Record

Our Opinions

Downtown change overdue good news

It was nice to hear about all the stores planning moves around downtown.

Black's Hardware's move down the street to larger quarters in the vacated D & C site touched off a chain reaction of other moves — all of them into better locations for the respective businesses. The downtown camera and frame shops are consolidating into the Black's space; Morrison's Northville Consignment is moving downstairs into the camera shop space; and a new basket shop is opening in that vacated space.

This round of changes downtown is very good news. And it's really just the latest few items in a string of similar changes: Chirri and Sons moving to a more appropriate location on Seven Mile, bringing in E. Christie; the same sort of move for the Yankee Clipper, allowing the expansion of Village Sweets and Treats; and so on.

Before all these latest moves were finalized, though, the downtown business climate was starting to look a little unhealthy. The latest, apparent failure of a Main / Center plan; the delay in leasing the old Schrader's Home Furnishings space; and the closing of D & C, which made this round of "musical stores" possible in the first place, were all negative signs. Taken together with the continuing office vacancies around town, we were really starting to wonder if all was well.

The new changes, taken together,

DEVELOPMENT

certainly don't allay all the fears and worries. But they do help.

It's obvious that when several businesses are doing well enough to expand, something is going right. But it's equally obvious that when a community like Northville becomes too expensive for the dime store, something is going wrong.

The moves set off by the D & C closing at least help even out the ledger between positive and negative indicators downtown. Really, the only conclusion that can be drawn from all this activity is that Northville is a city in an incredible transitional phase.

Realizing that, it seems an ideal time for city officials to be undergoing all this formal planning for the future on the Master Plan and Cady Corridor study. But as far as the future of the downtown business climate, we have to agree with a comment made at the Planning Commission meeting last week: no matter what anyone would like to see happen, the free market is going to be the final determinant.

Russell Amerman will be missed by Northville

"There isn't enough good things that can be said about Russell Amerman," Rev. Eric Hammar said.

Many people contribute to the life of a community. Some give of their time, some of their wisdom — but few have given as much as Russell Amerman gave to Northville.

"His moral fibre is imbedded in the community," Don Severance noted.

Mr. Amerman was a quiet man of conviction who worked, played and truly lived his life in Northville. He came to the community in 1927 and never left it. He was superintendent of schools for 32 years and left a legacy of commitment, honesty and strength to one of the community's most important institutions — its schools.

Mr. Amerman oversaw the Northville Public Schools during the depression years. Throughout that time he maintained a reputation for quality education and a commitment to excellence which is the trademark today of the Northville schools. "I was on the school board with him when the total school budget was $300,000," Severance noted. "Russ was a very honest guy," he added. Honesty and perseverance in the face of overwhelming odds are qualities worth noting today.

In addition to his work with the schools, Mr. Amerman found time to serve as chairman of the city's building authority, which was responsible for the construction of Allen Terrace. His belief in the quality of life for all members of the community made him a strong proponent of planning and building for the future.

When talking to present day residents of Northville, Mr. Amerman's quiet, polite and caring demeanor are the most noted characteristics. "He was a person of deep faith and commitment," Rev. Hammar said, which is perhaps the best legacy of all. Mr. Amerman has left the children of Northville with a role model beyond compare, and he has left all of the citizens of the city with a vision of what life can be when a community truly pulls together and works toward the future.

Russell Amerman — 1899-1988. He will be missed.

Time to care

By Ann Willis

In the mornings I see her walking quickly toward the lighted house. She is always hurrying, carrying a blanket-wrapped bundle close to her breast. She is dressed in heels and hose and balances a diaper bag and briefcase. I don't know her name, I'm just the figure walking a dog every morning who nods and says "Good morning." She has no time for idle chatter.

Twice now I've walked the same route at night, around 6:30, and seen the same woman walking slowly home, the bundle now a wide-awake child who sucks his hand and stares about. Mother and child are coming home.

When people talk about day care, as so many are doing nowadays, it tends to get emotional. Some would like to keep it on a fact-only basis. The talk around town and around the state is about home day care businesses. Should they be allowed in residential areas? How should they be regulated? How can we make sure they are properly run and licensed? All good, unemotional questions that deserve factual answers.

But the problem is we are talking about parents and children and the issue gets very emotional, very fast. Day care is here to stay. Home day care has been here forever and will stay here. Say what you will, do what you want, but I know mothers, fathers and kids, and they will circumvent the best intentioned laws to make a tough situation work for them.

Remember the old TV shows where single parents dealt with the job of raising children? Uncle Bill was responsible for Jody, Buffy and Sissy but he had the implacable Mr. French who lived in, worked night and day and never took time off. In "My Three Sons," good ol' Uncle Charlie slaved away at the laundry and cooking while Steve, the dad, smoked his pipe and went to work. These people never worked overtime or had to go in on Saturdays to finish a project. It's a dream world.

I was a nanny for a time in my life. If you're a writer your working life takes on many forms, I've discovered. Although I do not speak seven foreign languages or have a degree in child psychology, I found that I was in great demand for child sitting. Working couples are desperate for day-help with their children. They don't even mind a nanny who comes with her dog and reads Sports Illustrated to their six-week-old.

A friend of mine recently had a baby. Her maternity leave is only for the first six weeks after the baby's birth. She needed to find a place that would care for her infant. A woman around the block from her home takes care of four other neighbor children in addition to her own toddler. Barb was talking to her over the fence one day and they struck a deal. The baby is in a home she can trust, close to her own home, which is ideal for Barb and Mike and means more time is spent with the baby and less in transport.

Last winter I did a feature article on day care in Novi. One interview still sticks in my mind. It was a cold evening about six, and the lights of the cars could be seen on the walls of the day care center as the parents pulled into the parking lot to pick up their children. A small, young woman came in, obviously tired from work, and picked up a tiny child. I spoke with her about her search for daycare and she brought out a very serious facet to the daycare situation. A great many of the users are single parents with one income and no chance to stay at home with the children. One of their biggest problems is finding good, affordable day care for infants. And finding the time to go look at places isn't easy either — bosses don't give time off to employees to go find day care facilities.

Day care is a subject that cannot be divorced from the emotional side of the issue. I see too many women's faces when I think about the need for it. License these homes, regulate them, but don't discourage them. It's bad enough that employers still pretend that having children is a liability for business — not just a fact of our lives.

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

These political polls they've got nowadays are terrific.

Sure, sure, I know what you're thinking.

You're thinking that they out to be banned. Outlawed. You're thinking they take all the fun out of election day. Why go out and vote if you already know who the winner's going to be?

Like the situation several years ago when all three major television networks had announced the winner of the presidential election while people were still lining up to vote in California. Remember? After they knew who had won, the people from the land of fruits and nuts jumped on the bandwagon to turn a narrow victory into a landslide.

But that's regressive thinking. Hey, this is the '80s. Try to keep up with a high-tech society, will ya.

Just think of how much time and energy it saves. Knowing the results well in advance helps the winners prepare well-conceived victory speeches. And it helps losers prepare well-conceived concession speeches. Winners can proceed with plans for elaborate victory parties. Losers can start cutting their losses by scaling down their election night affairs.

And newspapers. Think of how much easier it makes our jobs. There was a time when election night was filled with excitement . . . waiting by telephones for precincts to report . . . writing two conflicting headlines in advance so you can slap in the right one just as soon as results come in.

Now we can plan ahead. With certainty. "Landslide for Bush." "Riegle buries Dunn." "Road fee hits pothole."

Yep, these polls have made things a lot easier. But just between you and me, I'm not going to write any stories before the results are in. Just for old times sake. Call me old-fashioned.

Baseline Road needs major repairs

To the Editor:

The following is a letter sent to the Northville City Council.

The Cabbagetown Residents' Association joins the Baseline businessmen in their concern over the condition of Baseline Road. This heavily travelled major street, important for both commercial and residential travel, has been allowed to deteriorate shamefully. The surface is breaking up. It is probably the only major street in Northville without curbs and gutters.

Just resurfacing a road in such a state, given its heavy daily truck usage, would be nothing more than putting a band-aid on the problem. Such a short term fix would in the long term be a waste of taxpayer money. The road needs to be completely redone.

The Cabbagetown Residents' Association went door to door asking for a yes vote in support of the road repair bond issue just prior to the June 24, 1986 election. We did so in good faith, based on information conveyed to us by city officials and as summarized in The Northville Record. We did not expect that some of the roads in the worst condition, such as Baseline, Hutton and River would be put off indefinitely. We were assured by Mr. Walters both in letters and in person that these streets would definitely be done in 1988. At the very least we feel misled, and we feel that we have in turn misled our area's voters. We would be reluctant to go to our residents with a city proposal again. The issues of credibility and project management need to be addressed here.

The other issue we see is the choice of which streets were done. Why was Taft, which is still quite driveable, chosen for work when Baseline and Hutton are almost rubble in places? Hutton in winter is positively dangerous.

Like any other major city project, this whole effort merits public discussion and review, regarding what was done, how well it was done, cost, quality of work and effective oversight. For this reason, we are sending this letter to both the City Council and The Northville Record. This was a major bond issue and the voters had specific expectations. How well were they met? Cabbagetown Residents' Association

Deny millages

To the Editor:

Wayne County and Northville are both seeking millage increases. To vote these in, the minimum tax increase for a $50,000 assessment is $350 per year. The administrative "hogs" have to go hungry. We voted in 1 mill for a county jail. The police want 2 mills, special ed wants an indefinite 1 mill, parks want 9/10 mill. Will it never end!

Special Ed is receiving a $11.6 million dollar increase from the state (Leacher's voice). Northville could have purchased an already usable park (Oasis) and the police could function without a 2 mill increase for another year.

We must start to close the wallet and make administration more frugal. They must start living within a reasonable budget.

Arts thanks

To the Editor:

The Northville Arts Commission would like to thank Margo's of Northville for their contribution to ArtMarket '88. Their "Create-a-Crown" booth was extremely popular with children and adults alike, and it created a very festive atmosphere. We regret their omission from the previous thankyou; they deserve a big round of applause for all of their time, effort and creativity!

Support Friday's red ribbon festivities

This is another in the continuing series of columns written for the Record by Charles Stilec, Northville High School Student Assistance Program Coordinator.

On the evening of Friday, Oct. 28, the National Red Ribbon Campaign will culminate with the Red Ribbon Sports Evening Festivities prior to and during the halftime of the Northville — Novi Football Game.

The Red Ribbon has become the symbol to eliminate substance abuse. Many communities across America have organized Red Ribbon Campaigns to create an awareness of alcohol and other drug problems. The Red Ribbon is a symbol of the commitment to live a drug free healthy lifestyle. Our objective is to establish a parent community network to support drug free lifestyles. The network should include all aspects of our community; schools, parents, youth, religious institutions, businesses and industry, law enforcement, government, service organizations, media, medical, social services, legislators and you. Demonstrate your commitment for a Drug Free Northville by wearing and displaying Red Ribbons during Red Ribbon Week October 23 — 30, but most of all by attending the activities at the Northville — Novi Football Game which begins with pre-game Red Ribbon activities at 7:00 p.m.

Activities planned include S.A.D.D. members at each gate passing out red arm bands to the fans, a march around the football field by S.A.D.D. members, respective PTA's along with athletes from the fall sports teams as well as other school groups and organizations all carrying banners carrying Drug Free Messages. All the banners will then be hung on the visitor side of the field. As the Northville High Mustangs enter the field they will rip thru a banner signifying the breaking of the dangerous cycle of drug and alcohol abuse. Half time will see the band marching on the field playing a song and forming the word "No" behind the guest speaker. Pon Poms and cheerleaders will stand on the sides of the speaker with signs they have made. The guest speaker will address the problem of drug and alcohol abuse.

As you can see the only part of the program not planned yet is your attendance which is greatly needed to make this work.

Attending this game and supporting Drug Free Northville and America is as important an issue as anything we have ever come up against. For in reality what we stand for and believe in is what our children will be. They will be watching. Please support the Northville Drug Free Activities on October 28.

For further information call the Student Assistance Program at 344-1825 or Northville High School.

Throw Curves

By Phil Ginotti

The $25 road fee is in big trouble, the $660 million environmental bond stands a chance, the $140 million parks and rec question is a tossup, and Proposal "A" will pass without a hitch.

Nobody even knows the crime victim's question is on the ballot.

That's what I say to people who've been asking about these issues over the last few months — thinking us reporter-types have a slightly better handle on public pulse than the average Joe. Hah. Nothing could be further from the truth.

These are ballot questions that have pretty much been handled in a void, and it's tough to elicit strong feelings, or even passing interest from a lot of folk, except for "A," of course, which seeks to end tax funding for abortion. "A" has been the topic of hot debate.

People aren't talking about things in bowling alleys, bars, etc. so it's tough to get a feel for that "pulse." The bigshots I run into during the business day all have too much of a vested interest in this stuff. They're all jockeying for position — want good press, etc.

It's dangerous when this happens. John/Joanna Q. Public is still the variable. I'm not really sure what's going on in his/her head.

But on the gut level, it looks like people aren't going to fall for this $25 road fee, no matter how much sense it makes. There's no faith in the people who handle roads and an overwhelming feeling that we're paying enough already, even though, in reality, we've just begun to pay...and pay, for roads.

This one will be back again and again — be prepared. And the Road Commission will have a reason to hold drivers hostage if it falls just once, and that's unfortunate.

"You shoulda' approved the registration fee," they'll say, as you show them the gnarled pieces of your new Oldsmobile's front end.

The environmental bond issue stands a chance, too. How can you argue with cleaning up toxic sites? Sure, vote against it. It's like voting against puppies or vegetable soup. It's like picking a fight with Fred Rogers.

Too bad we can't get the people who caused all the problems in the first place to help us out a little with cleanup, but eh, what do you want for $660 million?

People are a little bit leery of parks and rec stuff, even though the local communities will get a lot of the loot if the $140 million bond issue passes. Parks and rec money tends to become a discretionary pork barrel fund for legislators.

Proposal "A" is the toughest one of all. You can say it's a choice between providing $300 for an abortion or $5,000 for childbirth and hospitalization for a poor woman, or tens of thousands of dollars in welfare payments to unwanted children of these destitute women. But that also seems to be a fairly barbaric way of looking at this thing if you think life begins at conception. There is no comparative cost issue if you believe life begins at conception — the life's the life.

Good luck John and Joanna. Sort it out, punch the tickets. Throw the experts a curve Nov. 8.

CPAs offer advice on home 'point' deductions

If you bought or refinanced your home this year, you should be aware of the rules surrounding the deductibility of certain costs incurred in the process of financing house points.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, home mortgage or equity loan points are generally deductible, but there are some provisions that may force you to spread the deduction over the life of the loan.

The term "points" is sometimes used to describe certain charges paid by a borrower. They are also called loan origination fees, maximum loan charges or premium charges. If the payment of any of these charges is only for the use of money, it could be deductible.

Points are treated as prepaid interest and are generally deducted

Points are treated as prepaid interest and are generally deducted over the period of the loan unless they are incurred on a loan to buy or improve your principal residence.

over the period of the loan unless they are incurred on a loan to buy or improve your principal residence. In this case, points are deductible in the year paid, provided:

1. The loan is secured by your principal residence;

2. The charging of points is an established business practice in your geographic area in which the loan is made;

3. The points paid did not exceed the number of points generally charged in your area.

In order to get a deduction for points, the loan document should clearly establish that the points were not paid for any specific services that the lender performed in connection with your account under the loan contract. Separate charges should be indicated on the loan agreement.

In addition, you should write a separate check for the points. Don't have the points paid out of the mortgage proceeds as they may then become deductible over the term of the loan.

To determine the annual deduction allowed for points spread over the life of the loan, the IRS, as a matter of "administrative convenience," allows most people to allocate the points ratably. That means you can divide the total cost of the points by the total number of periodic payments due over the life of the loan. That figure is then multiplied by the number of payments made in the current year.

Suppose, for example, that in June of this year you paid $3,600 in points that do not meet the tests for full deductibility in the current year. The term of the loan is 30 years with payments made monthly. That means for this year's taxes, you may deduct $60 of the point cost. ($3,600 divided by 360 payments times 6 payments made.)

Generally, points you pay in refinancing a mortgage, regardless of how you arrange to pay them, are not deductible in full in the year you pay them unless they are paid in connection with the purchase or improvement of a home. If, however, you used only a portion of the loan on home improvements, then only a portion of the points is deductible.

Say, for example, that you took out a home equity loan of $50,000 of which $25,000 was spent on home improvements and $25,000 on consolidating other debts. At the time of closing you paid two points or $1,000. According to the IRS, you may deduct only 50 percent of the points this year with the other half deducted over the life of the loan. This is because only half of the loan went for home improvements.

CPAs advise you to closely examine when and how you paid any points to determine their deductibility. If you are not sure, consult your tax professional.

"This marriage adds a whole new dimension to our already complete services package," said Bress.

RICHARD BENSON of Schoolcraft College has earned his professional certification from the American Culinary Federation Educational Institute (ACFEI). Chef Benson, now a Certified Executive Chef, has taught at Schoolcraft College for the last 22 years.

The ACFEI, a subsidiary of the American Culinary Federation, the nation's largest professional association of chefs, pastry chefs and cooks, was founded to further the education and training of professionals in the culinary profession. The institute's certification program recognizes chefs and cooks who have fulfilled specific requirements in culinary experience, education and skills.

Chef Benson was evaluated by other certified chefs and determined competent for certification. The evaluation was done in 13 different areas of cooking, supervision and administration of a commercial kitchen. Skills were evaluated in such diverse culinary techniques as carving mushrooms, preparing hot emulsion sauces, and producing fat and ice sculptures. Basic cooking skills are not overlooked, of course, with more than 100 areas evaluated.

In addition to the certification program, the Institute sponsors a national apprenticeship program for cooks, an entrance into the culinary profession for hundreds of young people every year.

Chef Benson, his wife and two children have lived in South Lyon for 18 years. He is active in several local charities including the Michigan Chef Cuisine, Kiwanis Club and the Morgan Horse Association.

Chef Benson is currently maitre d' hotel of Schoolcraft College's American Harvest Restaurant and Professors Pantry.

Developers moving west to Ann Arbor

With many areas of metropolitan Detroit saturated with development, area developers have set their sights on neighboring Ann Arbor.

"Ann Arbor is a very vibrant, interesting, exciting market," said Eric Yale Lutz, chief executive officer of Eric Yale Lutz and Associates, a Birmingham-based development firm.

Lutz's firm is one of many that have projects built or planned in Ann Arbor. It owns office buildings, an auto mall and a self-storage facility in Ann Arbor. The firm has an office building at 777 E. Eisenhower and plans for an apartment complex and conference center.

Others firms branching west include:

□ Holtzman and Silverman of Farmington Hills is developing a 520-unit apartment complex called Village Green and an 84-unit condominium project known as the Arbors in Ann Arbor Township.

□ The Jeske Co. of Birmingham is renovating City Center at 220 E. Huron Boulevard, an 88,000 square foot, seven-story building in downtown Ann Arbor. It is also building a fifth building at University Park and renovating the four existing buildings.

□ Westin Development Corp. of Royal Oak is developing Woodland Plaza, a 95,000 square foot retail center on Ann Arbor-Saline at South Main Street.

Anthony S. Brown of Birmingham has two projects planned for downtown Ann Arbor, but would not elaborate.

Beachum and Roeser of Birmingham is developing Williamsburg Square, an office complex on Eisenhower, west of State Street.

Lautrec Limited of West Bloomfield is developing Arbor Meadows, a mobile home village on Michigan Avenue near Ann Arbor.

Kojaian Properties of Birmingham owns 301 E. Liberty Street, an office building, One North Main, an office-condominium project; and Northeast Plaza, an office-research project at Green Road and Plymouth Road. A joint venture with Comerica Bank is also planned, according to Angela Kimble, director of corporate communications for Kojaian. The project will be called Comerica Plaza and will be located at 125 South Fifth Street. Kojaian is also partners in two Ann Arbor Holiday Inns and two Hampton Inns.

Selective Development Co. of Farmington Hills is developing the Boardwalk Office Centre, a 110,000 square foot office complex at Boardwalk and Eisenhower Parkway in the Briarwood Mall area.

Developers say Ann Arbor started gaining popularity as a development spot about four years ago. "We've made a large commitment to Ann Arbor," Lutz said. His firm's developments will continue into the 1990s, he said.

To be successful, a developer must understand what Ann Arbor is and what its people like and dislike, Lutz said. "It's not a Troy or a Southfield," he said.

Building in Ann Arbor involves using a smaller scale, a longer design period and taking a less urban approach.

To maintain contact with the community, Lutz's firm has 250 employees working in Ann Arbor. "We have a very intimate understanding of Ann Arbor," he said.

In developing 101 Research Park, his firm has hired campus environmentalists from the University of Michigan to help develop a land plan, lakes and pedestrian pathways.

At 777 Eisenhower Plaza, Lutz had included an art gallery to try to give his building the qualities Ann Arbor residents feel strongly about, he said.

John Swisher of Swisher Realty in Ann Arbor has been watching the influx of Oakland County developers. "There are a number of them here. It certainly has picked up in the past four or five years."

Swisher said Oakland County developers tend to be a "little more high pressure than local developers." Lutz came in with a large flurry and made his presence known, Swisher said.

David Kwan, vice president of consulting for Peter Allen Associates, a Realtor in Ann Arbor, said Oakland County developers have been welcome in most cases. "A lot of them have been in the community for a very long time," he said.

Apartment development has been very successful in Ann Arbor, Kwan said, but the office market has been soft. "It's been a little slower than many developers had expected," he said.

Opportunities are also limited in the downtown area because of a lack of land, Kwan said.

Richard Roeser, co-owner of Beachum and Roeser in Birmingham, said his firm was attracted to Ann Arbor because of the solid economic base. Ann Arbor has a more level economic climate than what we experience in the metro Detroit area," Roeser said.

Jonathan Holtzman, co-chairman of Holtzman and Silverman in Farmington Hills, said the Ann Arbor market will continue to grow, but it is very different from the suburbs of Detroit.

In Ann Arbor, more respect is given to existing landmarks, Holtzman said. For example, at the Arbors development, his firm has integrated five oak trees into the development.

David Gans of Selective Development Corp. said care has to be taken when developing in Ann Arbor. He said his firm has spent a year and a half learning about Ann Arbor. In designing a project, his firm is trying to avoid being a "white elephant." The Boardwalk Office Centre will be of classical design. "We feel it will be well received in Ann Arbor," he said.

Swisher said he thinks Ann Arbor will continue to gain prominence but keep its own flavor.

Lutz agrees, saying he doesn't see Ann Arbor developing in the same way metro Detroit has. "I don't see it developing in similar patterns. Ann Arbor has to be dealt with in a delicate way," he said.

NFIB gives low marks to state Democrats

Michigan's small-business owners have reason to wonder who their friends are at the State Capitol. Only 47 percent of state legislators voted 70 percent or more in favor of legislation backed by small business during the last biennium, according to the National Federation of Independent Business/Michigan (NFIB/Michigan).

This rating survey released by NFIB/Michigan, the state's largest business organization with more than 21,000 members, revealed voting records on seven key votes in the Senate and nine key votes in the House of Representatives.

The repeal of the Single Business Tax was the most critical Senate issue monitored, while legislative efforts to reform Workers' Compensation benefits were closely watched in both houses.

The NFIB/Michigan survey showed partisan support for small business. Each of the 20 Republican State Senators received a 70 percent or better rating and 13 tallied 100 percent in favor of the small-business position on the surveyed votes.

Only one Senate Democrat received a 70 percent or better rating and none garnered 100 percent.

Forty-six House Republicans fared better than 70 percent and 29 of 46 received a 100 percent rating. Only one of 64 House Democrats registered higher than 70 percent, none of whom received a 100 percent rating.

According to Juanita Pierman, state director for NFIB/Michigan, the ratings symbolize the formidable opposition small business owners face at the state capitol.

"It's sad that out of nearly 3,000 pieces of legislation introduced during this two-year session, only a small number of bills passed that have been helpful to small business owners," Pierman said.

"Most of the approved legislation serves only to increase taxes and the cost of doing business, while also adding greater regulatory and bureaucratic burdens."

Key issues of importance to small business during the two-year period included legislation to reform Workers' Compensation benefits, a decrease in property tax tied to school finance reform, a repeal of the Single Business Tax and an amendment to reduce the cost of Unemployment Insurance.

Taxpayers must know facts about 'kiddie tax,' CPAs say

If questions about the new "kiddie tax" are haunting you, now is a good time to face your fears and learn the facts.

Widely discussed, but frequently misunderstood, the kiddie tax is Congress' way of closing a tax-law loophole that allowed parents to pay less tax by shifting income to their children.

Essentially, the kiddie tax discourages income-splitting by taxing the unearned income of children at their parents' higher rate, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs.

The result? For the first time ever, millions of children had to file tax returns for 1987 at rates as high as 28.5 percent.

How your child's age affects tax rates: The new law actually has two sets of rules — one set for children under 14 and another for children 14 and older.

For a child under 14, the first $1,000 a year in unearned income is taxed at his or her own rate. (Unearned income refers to such investment income as dividends, interest, capital gains and rents.)

It works like this. A child can apply

Money Management

$500 of his or her standard deduction to offset the first $500 of unearned income, making this amount tax-free. The next $500 in unearned income is taxed at the child's rate. All unearned income above that amount is taxed at the parents' highest marginal tax bracket.

Suppose, for example, your 10-year-old daughter's only income is $1,400 in investment income. She applies her $500 standard deduction to reduce her taxable investment income to $900, of which $500 would be taxed at your daughter's rate and $400 at your highest rate.

Unfortunately, in certain circumstances, your child may end-up paying taxes at a rate even higher than your own. To compute your child's tax, you have to add his or her unearned income to your own taxable income — making it possible to bump the total into a tax bracket higher than yours.

These rules do not affect children 14 and older. Their investment income continues to be taxed at their own rates.

Earned income still taxes at child's rate: Income from a job is always taxed at the child's rate, regardless of the child's age. For 1988, the standard deduction generally offsets the first $3,000 a working child earns.

You can make this tax provision pay off if you have a family-run business. By employing your children, you can earn two tax advantages. First, wages paid to your children are taxed at their lowest bracket. Second, you or the family company can deduct the children's wages as a business expense.

Dependent children lose personal exemptions: Prior to tax reform, parents could claim an exemption for a child on their tax return and the child could claim an exemption as well. This tax advantage is now extinct. If a child can be taken as a dependent on a parent's return, the child cannot take an exemption on his or her own return.

Incidentally, to claim dependency exemptions, parents are now required to supply Social Security numbers for all dependents who are at least five years old. To apply for a Social Security number, you must complete form SSA-5 available from your local Social Security office. Failure to supply a Social Security number will mean a $5 fine in 1988.

What happened to Clifford Trusts? Short-term trusts have long been a common method for shifting income from a parent's higher tax bracket to a child's lower bracket. The most popular of these trusts, the Clifford Trust, allowed parents to transfer assets to a trust where the earnings from the assets were taxed to the child. By law, the trust had to last more than 10 years, but when it expired, the trust's assets reverted back to the individual(s) who created the trust.

Clifford Trusts set-up prior to March 2, 1986, retain their tax-preferred treatment for transfers made prior to that date. Income generated by a trust set-up after March 1, 1986, must be included in the grantor's taxable income.

Learning to live with the kiddie tax: Despite the new rules, you can still find ways to save money for your children's future and minimize your tax liability at the same time.

Shifting income to your children, for instance, can have advantages, even today. Remember — the first $1,000 of unearned income is still treated favorably. That means, at today's rates, a child under 14 can have more than $10,000 invested in his or her name before the investment income would reach the $1,000 point where earnings would begin being taxed at the parents' rate.

For children under 14, instead of investing in assets that generate taxable income each year, consider investments that are either tax-free or defer taxable income until the child reaches age 14, when it will be taxed at the child's lower rate.

One of the simplest ways to do this is to buy United States Series EE Savings Bonds in your child's name.

Federal taxes on the interest earned will generally not be due until the bonds mature or are redeemed.

If your child is at least two years old, an excellent alternative is purchasing new savings bonds that mature in 12 years after your child's fourteenth birthday.

Growth stocks that are not paying dividends are another possibility. The potential appreciation accumulates tax-free and the child would be taxed on capital gains only when the stocks are sold.

High-quality, zero-coupon municipal bonds are also a smart investment, particularly for a college savings plan. Like all zeroes, you buy zero-coupon municipal bonds at a price significantly below the value and receive the full face amount when the bond matures. This gives you the advantage of knowing exactly how much your child will receive, while having the gain exempt from federal taxes.

CPAs say that you shouldn't let the kiddie tax spook you. To further explore ways to avoid paying your higher tax rate on funds reserved for your children's future, you may want to meet with a financial consultant.

GOTCHA!

"It was a simple matter of him or me. I saw him, I watched him crawl along for about 10 minutes. Then he came into the clearing. I had no choice. I wasted him. I had to waste him."
— A "splatball" player

Every week, a small, but growing collection of rugged warriors takes to the forests of Michigan, hunting each other in a bizarre variation on the old Cub Scout game "capture the flag."

For the people who play it, the game represents several hours of "pure Adrenalin," plus a unique feeling of accomplishment when a day of making war is done.

"It's 75 percent strategy," said Dennis Nadeau, a 1985 graduate of Northville High School. "There's a large strategy aspect to the game. Everyone's firepower is about the same."

"There is so much suspense, so much intensity to this game," he said. "When you're crawling around... setting up an ambush... running with the flag with 15 people firing at you... you can feel your heart thumping away. You can feel the lump in your throat."

Warriors attempt to fend each other off and make steady progress toward the other team's flag, which is usually well-hidden, well-fortified and defended by a dozen or so ambush-minded opponents.

"Death" comes quickly, almost painlessly. Combatants fire small plastic pellets filled with brightly colored paints — about the size of a slightly oversized marble.

They explode on impact, splashing a blob of paint on the victim. The pellets leave a mark that signifies to judges and other warriors that this soldier's game has ended for now.

The field warriors are armed with a variety of compressed air weapons — ranging from small handguns to larger, rapid-fire machine guns.

"I've been playing for about three years and I haven't lost interest yet, not even close," Nadeau said.

Nadeau and Novi partner Steve Winters play about once a week at various locations in southeastern Michigan.

They are currently in the process of getting a new "war games" team together.

Last year, Nadeau's team — the Motor City Mercenaries — won a national tournament in Ohio, taking home a trophy, prize money and a $400 rapid-fire machine gun. Nadeau later won the gun in a raffle among his teammates. It's the piece he takes with him to make war nowadays.

"I liked to hunt and I liked the outdoors," he said. "This seemed to be a good way to get out in the outdoors all year long."

"Doing this, I've met people from everywhere," he added.

Needham volunteers for Blue Star Mothers

By DOROTHY NASH

The fighting is over and the war has ended — World War II, Korea, Vietnam — but an organization called Blue Star Mothers, originated by women who had sons in the service — is constantly concerned for the casualties who are temporary and permanent patients in Veterans Administration Medical Centers.

And Lucy Needham is one of the Blue Star Mothers who volunteers time in the servicemen's behalf.

She belongs to Chapter 47 in Novi. She is secretary-treasurer, and she has been president. Also she is her chapter's representative at the Ann Arbor V.A. Center.

"We put on parties there twice a year," she said, and in telling about the Christmas Tea, she said, "It's a tree-trimming party in one of the wards. We supply the tree and the trimmings and cookies and punch."

Also Needham is active in the state organization of Blue Star

Mothers. She is a deputy representative for planning meetings for future events.

But that isn't the end of her involvement at the V.A. in Ann Arbor. She and other chapter members take things to the hospital that people have given them for the servicemen — things like jigsaw puzzles and clothing. If it weren't for the donated clothing, she said, "many men who are ambulatory would have to live in bathrobes all of the time." And they also take slipper socks, lap robes, and ditty bags for the wheel-chair men to carry around with them.

"You get a great satisfaction," Needham said, "out of doing things for these people. You receive a smile. And when you talk with them, you know you're probably the only one who has given them that much attention all day. Hospital personnel don't always have the time."

Authors Judith Guest and Rebecca Hill at Border's Book Store

Record/PHIL JEROME

Author, author

Women authors come to town to sign books

By PHILIP JEROME

Chatting and laughing amiably like a pair of former sorority sisters, Judith Guest and Rebecca Hill strolled into Borders Book Store in Novi Sunday afternoon to autograph copies of their new book, Killing Time in St. Cloud.

The book is a collaborative effort between Guest, author of Ordinary People, and Hill, author of Among Birches and the award-winning Blue Rise.

Arriving shortly before their scheduled appearance at 3:30 in the afternoon, the authors stopped briefly to settle a disagreement about who directed the movie "Angel Heart," then proceeded to a table at the rear of the store to answer questions about the complexities of co-authoring a mystery novel.

Guest and Hill explained that they met 10 years ago at The Loft, a school for literature and the arts in Minneapolis. Guest, a teacher, and Hill, a promising student, decided to form a women's writing group to help overcome the loneliness brought on by the solitude of writing.

They discussed the idea of collaborating on a novel, but the joint project did not get off the ground until Hill moved to Atlanta in 1985.

"We were both thinking that this was a hard way to live — staying in a room and writing alone — so we thought we would try something together and decided it would be a genre piece," said Hill.

The women said Sunday that the title of their collaborative effort — Killing Time in St. Cloud — was arrived at while sitting on a porch with a friend.

"We needed something which sounded like a mystery title, like Killing Time, and our friend insisted that St. Cloud should appear in the title, so we put them both together and came up with Killing Time in St. Cloud," she said.

Hill also said her 15-year-old daughter did not like the title, so the authors developed several other possible titles before returning to the original.

The authors agreed the process of collaborating on a book was a great deal more enjoyable than individual efforts.

"Some of my 'writing' friends have said they'd never do a collaborative effort, but it worked out well," said Guest. "We decided to undertake the project with the idea that we'd quit if it ever stopped being fun."

"It got hard at times, but it never stopped being fun," she added.

They emphasized that the book is truly a collaborative effort. After holding several creative sessions to sketch out characters and plot, Hill went about producing the initial chapters at her home in Atlanta.

Manuscripts were mailed to Minneapolis where Guest added her own touches.

"There's not a character in the book who we both did not touch," said Hill, acknowledging, however, that some characters "were more mine than hers and vice versa."

"I fell in love with the hero, as I frequently do," said Guest, "and I feel Rebecca had a better understanding of the heroine."

"It's hard for me to make a hero I like say and do dumb things. The collaborative effort helped prevent that."

Guest added, however, that one of the dangers of a collaborative effort is that two people working on the same character can make that character somewhat schizophrenic.

Killing Time in St. Cloud (Delacorte Press, $17.95) is the story of how a murder sunders the complex web of interrelationships among people in a small Minnesota town.

A Mystery Guild Main Selection, Literary Guild and Doubleday Book Club Alternate Selection, it also has been optioned by David Geffen Productions for a film to be distributed by Warner Brothers. Guest and Hill will write the screenplay.

Hill said the two authors are planning additional collaborative efforts "down the line; the only question is when."

"We both have things to take care of individually first," she said.

Guest recently sold her second novel, Second Heaven, to Weintraub Entertainment and currently is working on the screenplay for the book. Hill is working on a collection of short stories and has been awarded a grant from the Minneapolis Arts Board to travel to Italy in conjunction with her work.

MORaine EARLY CHILDHOOD DEVELOPMENT CENTER

Seasonal activities spill out of our doors and often on our floors as Moraine children are actively involved in fun and learning.

Cooking is a favorite pastime in many of our classrooms. One of our inventive teachers has devised a cider press operated by people power. Leading children to the realization that, to have cider, one must do more than "just take an apple and hit it" has been great fun for all sizes of us. Our people-pressed cider accompanied by child-made doughnuts provides us with delectable moments!

Little ones' developing concepts of experimentation, procedure and power in all areas of development, beginning with, "What do you think?" and promoted with hands-on activity make our Moraine days lasting, growing experiences.

Save time in an emergency.

When someone you love needs emergency medical care, it's no time for indecision or confusion. You need to get the patient to the hospital quickly and through the registration process smoothly.

Families served by the new Huron Valley Hospital can now prepare for emergencies by preregistering at the hospital for emergency room care. There is no charge for this community service.

The Huron Valley Hospital Emergency Room Preregistration Program puts important patient information into the hospital's data bank for use by emergency room staff. Mom, dad, grandparents and children can each receive their own registration card.

There is no substitute for your community hospital in a life-threatening emergency. Freestanding Urgent Care centers, even those associated with hospitals, do not provide the overnight Advanced Cardiac Life Support care so often required in serious emergencies. Huron Valley Hospital, a 153 bed, full-service hospital, does — with complete cardiac and critical care units; full radio communications to emergency vehicles; a helicopter landing port; emergency-trained nurses and physicians. And additional specialists on staff are available to respond to emergencies in orthopedics, pediatrics, obstetrics, radiology and surgery.

Clip the coupon below or if you prefer, call the Community Relations Department at 360-3300, extension 3450 for your packet.

War game gains fans

Combatants dress in full camouflage outfits, plus required goggles. Some warriors choose to wear facemasks, making a field of them somewhat ominous looking to the casual observer.

The pellets, which now come in a variety of different colors, have been known to sting or leave small welts, so this is definitely not a T-shirt and shorts game. The paintballs can travel as fast as almost 300 feet per second.

"This is one of the more interesting times of the year to play," he said. "You've got the leaves turning, and it's a little cooler. There aren't any mosquitos either."

The average "war gamer" can look at making a substantial investment. Guns range from $40 to $400, plus camouflage outfits, which vary in price, and ammunition, which is now available in a variety of sporting goods stores, or can be special ordered.

Combatants with all the equipment pay $12 to $15 for a day of playing war. People without equipment pay $25 or more to rent equipment and play.

Outdoor "war games" locations are in operation in Port Huron, Brighton and Charlotte, plus several other locations throughout Michigan. An indoor facility recently opened in Detroit.

Acoustic club offers diverse music

By BOB NEEDHAM

Michael Jackson sang at the Palace of Auburn Hills this week Prince was scheduled at Joe Louis Arena. Jimmy Page and Robert Plant just recently left town.

And Peter Dinklage & the Mando Boys were at the Ark.

Huh?
If you've ever get tired of mainstream concerts; if your idea of a musical performance is more like a gathering of friends than a mob scene; or if you just like to hear live music without having your ears bleed the next day — there is an alternative.

The Ark, an acoustic music club in Ann Arbor, has been offering music lovers an alternative outlet for 23 seasons. It's gone through some organizational changes and one move, but the faithful have kept coming. And it has become one of the most thriving enterprises of its kind in the country.

The whole thing began, back in the mid-'60s, as a church outreach program to young people — people who, at the time, were likely to be attracted to folk and other acoustic music.

"It was an idea of four local churches to try to bridge the generation gap, so to speak," explained Assistant Manager Ron Metzger, one of only two paid employees at the Ark. "The churches felt they were losing touch with the youth, and they wanted to maintain contacts. It kind of branched out from that."

Branched out indeed. Although the church support gradually fell away over the years, the Ark continued to flourish, in large part due to the efforts of Director David Siglin. The last church pulled out in the early '80s, forcing a move because the Ark was on church land. They relocated to 637 1/2 South Main, where a 275-seat capacity has proven to be a cozy home.

Although the church support is gone, the Ark remains a non-profit organization run by a board of directors. Although this is the best year ever for the Ark financially, "It's always tough and go. There's no money stashed away anywhere," Metzger said.

The name itself is also a reminder of the Ark's history.

"One of the charter members of the Ark board came up with it. It's got its religious connotations to it," Metzger said. "As I recall... they were trying to bring in all types of different audiences from the community. And they were just trying to make things float."

Although people often think of the Ark as a place for "folk music," the offerings are actually quite varied. "The Ark is an educational institution of sorts. The music we bring in is the music you're not going to hear in many other venues," Metzger said.

"We have the very traditional singers — in traditional I mean American traditional music — as well as the British Isles, eastern nations, South America. It's international in scope," he said. In addition, the Ark features some jazz, new age, country, bluegrass, children's music, and occasionally plays or storytelling.

The Ark offers memberships to those interested, for $15 yearly to an individual or $25 for a couple or family. Memberships give a $1 discount on admission to concerts, plus discounts on other merchandise such as the upcoming Ann Arbor Folk Festival record album. Only members may purchase alcohol at the club.

"We try to reach out and offer a little bit to just about everybody," Metzger concluded. "This is music that is not in the spotlight... It's not a draw like that, but it's very much alive."

The Ark has a mailing list for concert schedules. The phone number is 761-1451. Shows at the Ark this weekend are Scottish group Ossian, scheduled at 7:30 and 10 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28; and Boston singer/songwriter Patty Larkin, scheduled at 8 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30.

Morgan recalls '88 golf season

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Northville golfers went into the 1988 season with goals of a division title, a conference title and a regional title.

For most teams, goals are something to shoot for, but turning those goals into reality is another matter entirely. But the Mustangs did reach all three in impressive fashion, proving once again that the team was something special.

"I felt we had the talent to go as far as we did and win as many tournaments as we did," coach Don Morgan said. "But to go out and do it is truly outstanding."

The only black mark on an otherwise perfect dual meet record for Northville was a one-stroke loss to Livonia Stevenson on Sept. 12. But according to coach Don Morgan, that loss was probably the best thing that could have happened at the time.

"It was a blessing in disguise. I think that one loss gave us the experience and the drive to do as well as we did after that."

It came at a time when the squad wasn't playing particularly well and it shot life back into the team as a unit, paving the way for a great stretch run that included seven straight dual meet wins, first-place honors in both the WLAA and Regional Tournaments and a sixth in the State Meet.

"The WLAA had two teams in the 47-team State Meet, so we know our league is a very good golf league," Morgan said. "That's why taking the WLAA title was such a kick."

Morgan returned a fine group of golfers from last season, led by a foursome of potential stars: Kevin Telepo, Chris Lemmon, James Nordbeck and Dave McKee. The final piece of the puzzle came into place when Mike Crichton transferred from Redford Catholic Central to Northville.

"With the addition of Crichton, it gave us a chance to do all the things we eventually did," Morgan said. "It gave us more depth — it pushed us over the top."

The Mustangs won their first five meets in impressive fashion. The first to fall was St. John's of Toledo — a team considered one of the best in

Cagers avenge loss to Patriots

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

With revenge on their minds and the home court advantage on their side, the Northville girls basketball team turned back a pesky Livonia Franklin squad 60-46 on Oct. 20 to raise its season record to an impressive 12-3.

It was the rematch of a stunning Mustang loss back on Sept. 29 when the Patriots scored off an inbound pass with seconds remaining, to stage a dramatic one-point triumph. There was no last second heroics by Franklin this time, but it was a very tough, hard-fought game and Mustang Coach Ed Kritch felt fortunate his team came away with a win.

"There's no doubt, it was a tough game," he said. "We had to have this game because it was against a Western Division team. I was very impressed with the way Franklin hung in there against us."

The difference in the game was a 46-34 advantage for the Mustangs in the middle two quarters, and a few clutch points down the stretch to hold off the upset-minded visitors. Franklin jumped ahead 14-10 after one quarter but Northville narrowed the gap to 23-22 at halftime with a very productive second quarter.

"We were running our halfcourt offense about as well as we have all season, but (Franklin) was running theirs just as effectively," Kritch said. "They were tearing apart our defense and that surprised me."

Trailing 37-32 early in the third, sophomore forward Kate Holstein went to work inside for the Mustangs and scored five points in two seconds with a key turnover sandwiched in-between. It narrowed the margin to a basket and provided Northville with some much-needed momentum. The Mustangs went on to outscore the Pats 24-15 in the quarter and establish an eight-point cushion.

"Holstein really lifted us up offensively and Sue LaPrad did the job defensively, holding Franklin's big scorer (Dawn Warner) to just a pair of free throws in the quarter," Kritch recalled.

In the fourth, the Patriots cut the lead to 60-58 with just less than two minutes remaining, but a fast break lay-up by Heather Sixt, a lay-in by Maria MacInnis and a 15-footer by Karen Baird built it back up to 66-59. To Franklin's credit, they never quit and eventually cut it to three with a three-point bomb by Warner with 18 seconds left, but the Mustangs ran out the clock.

Baird paced Northville with 22 points and Debbie Stevens added 14, but it was Holstein's 11 points and 12 rebounds that was the key factor. Warner led all scorers with 23.

NORTHVILLE 58, NORTH FARMINGTON 57: The Mustangs got off to a great start in this Oct. 18 meeting, but had to hold on for dear life down the stretch to win by a single point.

A pressing defense forced some turnovers and gave Northville a quick 16-6 lead after eight minutes of play and a 34-26 advantage at halftime — but it also put the team into some serious foul trouble. Baird was whistled for her third foul just nine minutes into the game and Sixt got her third three minutes later.

"We were happy with the start and the way the press was working — the only problem was the foul situation," Kritch said. "I felt pretty good at halftime but I knew North is a capable team and I had a feeling they'd make a run on us."

The Raiders continued to cut into the lead in the second half and eventually pulled even at 50-50 with just two minutes left on the clock, thanks to a three-pointer by Eve Claar.

The Mustangs responded with three straight baskets on successive possessions by Holstein, Baird and Stevens to make it 56-50 with a minute left, but a clutch three-pointer by Kim Gurecki cut it back down to 57-55 at the 20 second mark. Baird then hit one of two free throws and it proved to be the game-winner as North connected on the lay-up off a missed shot at the buzzer.

Stevens had a game-high 22 and 11 rebounds, Baird added 14 points and Holstein chipped in with 13 points and nine rebounds. Donna O'Brien led the Raiders with 20.

Northville will wrap up its most successful regular season in history tonight (Oct. 27) against lowly Farmington Harrison at home and will then begin preparation for the WLAA playoffs.

Bowie leads Rocks to 21-14 victory over Northville

The 'Pat Bowie Show' rolled through Northville last Friday (Oct. 21), although it's doubtful the exhibition received rave reviews from the Mustang partisans.

Bowie, a 5-foot-9, 200-pound junior fullback, punished the Mustangs with 178 yards rushing and three touchdowns to lead Plymouth Salem to a 21-14 Western Lakes League crossover playoff victory.

Bowie scored on runs of one, three and 14 yards. His final touchdown broke a 14-14 tie with 6:41 remaining and dropped Northville to 3-5 overall, thus ending any hopes for a winning season.

"Salem has only two losses and they came against North Farmington and John Glenn," Mustang Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "They run the wishbone and when you face that you have to stop the fullback and we didn't do it. Bowie was our nemesis."

The Rocks never trailed in the game but had to withstand two Northville comebacks that tied the score at 7-7 and 14-14.

Both teams blew scoring opportunities in the first quarter. The Mustangs missed a 47-yard field goal and Salem drove inside the Northville 10 several minutes later but turned it over on downs.

The Rocks put together a 13-play,

64-yard drive early in the second quarter to finally break the scoreless tie. Bowie dove in from a yard out for the T.D. and a 7-0 lead.

But the Mustangs came back to tie it with just six seconds left in the half on a three-yard pass from quarterback Greg Price to receiver Dave Cryderman. A blocked field goal attempt by Mike Hale and the recovery by Sam Khashan set up the 47-yard march.

"It was very important that we score before the end of the half," Schumacher said. "Salem had dominated things in the first half but we got a big boost out of the blocked kick and the scoring drive."

But a fumble recovery by Salem's Mike Jarvey at the Northville 17 early in the third quarter set up Bowie's second touchdown and a 14-7 advantage. Minutes later, the Mustangs were inside the Rocks' 15 and going in for the tie, but tailback Randy Jones couldn't handle a high pitch and the resulting turnover squandered another scoring chance.

Northville rallied again, to tie it with 9:41 remaining in the game on a four-yard run by Mike Karfis. The Mustang negotiated 44 yards in 10 plays.

"At this point, it was still anybody's ball game," Schumacher said.

But a 36-yard kick return gave Salem the ball at the Northville 41 and Bowie wasted no time by capping the six-play drive with a 14-yard touchdown run. The Mustangs never threatened the rest of the way as Price threw a pair of late interceptions in an unsuccessful comeback bid.

"I'm proud of my kids because we stayed close with a very fine team," Schumacher said. "We did the same thing against North Farmington, unfortunately we've come up short both times."

"There's no satisfaction in losing but it was a great high school football game. Those two critical turnovers and the big kick return in the second half was the big difference in the game."

Karfis was held to 53 yards in 17 carries but Price had a fine outing despite the two late turnovers. The senior signal caller connected on 9-of-16 for 98 yards. Northville's defensive wall — featuring Bob Dudley, Nick Salas and Rob Spradlin — had an outstanding game. Dudley led the way with 11 solo tackles and three assists. Salas and Spradlin both chipped in with six solo stops each.

"Our down linemen played well, we just didn't stop Bowie enough," Schumacher said.

Mustangs to face unbeaten Novi

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

In about 30 years, residents of Novi and Northville probably won't remember much about the very first battle for 'The Baseline Jug.'

This Friday's game (Oct. 28) at Northville's football field, will mark the first time these two football teams have vied for the trophy, which is being presented by the Novi News/Northville Record. With so much riding on the clash — especially for undefeated Novi — there really couldn't be a better time to unveil what may become a rich football tradition in these parts for many years to come.

"Novi has an outstanding program and they present a lot of problems for us," Northville Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "It would salvage our season to beat them. This is a chance for our kids to redeem themselves because we think we're better than our 3-5 record shows."

With South Lyon now out of the way, it's the biggest game of the season for Novi. A win would send the Wildcats into the MHSAA Class A Playoffs — most likely with the home-field advantage in the first-round. But a defeat would probably end Novi's season at 8-1. The situation is clear — at least to Wildcat Coach John Osborne: Novi must win the cross-town battle to have even a chance for a state championship.

"We have to win this game to get into the playoffs," Osborne said. "With a win, we should be able to host the first game in the playoffs and that would be a big break."

By beating South Lyon 21-12 last Friday, the 'Cats catapulted past the Lions in the MHSAA Region II

Punchless soccer squad blanked by Salem, 5-0

A defensive approach kept the Northville soccer squad in its WLA playoff clash with Plymouth Salem for nearly 60 of an 80-minute match, but it also limited the team's offensive punch.

The Rocks' patience eventually paid off in a 20-minute scoring barrage sandwiched around intermission, and that provided the difference in a 5-0 Salem victory. It was Northville's eighth straight match without a win and all but guarantees the team its first losing season in a long time.

"We went into the game trying to concentrate on defense and we were successful for the first 26 minutes," coach Dave Yezback said.

At the 26-minute mark of the first half, Salem broke the deadlock with a shot from 18-yards out that beat Mustang goalie Roger Kimary. The Rocks scored four minutes later when a deflected shot wasn't cleared by Northville and then again six minutes after that to make it 3-0 at halftime.

"We played some good defense early but we gave up three goals in the final 13 minutes of the half, so we had a 'breakdown,'" Yezback said. "When we focused on the defense, it took us entirely out of our offense. The middle 20 minutes of the game was the killer."

In the second half, Salem wrapped up the win with two more goals in the first 10 minutes of play. The rest of the action was back-and-forth, but the damage was done. For the game, the Rocks had a 20-12 shots on goal advantage.

The Mustangs — who are now headed into the MHSAA tournament — ended the regular season with a 6-9-3 overall record, 4-6-1 in the WLA. It's good for sixth place in the 12-team conference and second in the Western Division.

"This is the youngest team I've ever had," Yezback pointed out. "We paid the price this season for starting 14 seniors last year but my philosophy has always been to play the best players I have regardless of their class status."

Golf season assessed

Ohio. From there it was smooth sailing to the WLA Western Division crown and a 12-1 overall mark.

Early in the season Nordbeck was one of the hottest golfers in the state. Amazingly, he shot -2 par in the first four dual meets and ended up leading the Mustangs with a nine-hole average of 38.5. His nine-hole average dropped 3.6 strokes from a year ago.

"James was our most valuable performer," Morgan said. "He worked hard in the off-season and it paid off. He had a streak early in the season that was simply phenomenal."

Despite being just a sophomore, Chris Lemmon was rock solid for Morgan, averaging 39.6 per nine holes and 79.6 for 18 — enough to tie him with Nordbeck for second-place among his teammates.

"Chris will be our catalyst for the next two seasons," Morgan predicted. "He's showing maturity with experience. He's a very intelligent player."

The team's top tournament player was undoubtedly Telepo, who led the way with a 78.8 average per 18 holes. Telepo didn't have a great dual meet season (40.3 average) but just like a year ago when he was seventh at the State Meet, Telepo came on strong for the all-important stretch run.

"Kevin seems to concentrate a little more in the tournaments than he does in the duals," Morgan said. "If he has a bad nine in a tournament, he has the ability to put it together the rest of the way."

Crichton (41.5, 84.2) and McKee (41.4, 84.0) rounded out the top five with sophomore Jason Sherman (43.4, 85.0) the sixth man. McKee dropped his stroke average for nine holes by three and Sherman cut his by four strokes compared to the '87 season. Sherman was named the team's most improved player.

"With Lemmon and Sherman back next year, we have a good nucleus to work with," Morgan said. "But with Nordbeck, Telepo, Crichton and McKee all graduating, they will be sorely missed by their teammates and by their coach. It was a very talented group of seniors."

"I think some of those boys have a chance to play collegiate golf at a good program."

Mustangs of the Week

BOB DUDLEY

KAREN BAIRD

Northville defensive tackle Bob Dudley is 6-foot-5 and weighs 220 pounds, and by using all that size and strength last Friday against Plymouth Salem, he ended up having the best game of his high school career. The Mustangs lost the game 21-14 but Dudley was a force in the middle, making 11 solo tackles and three assists. That's why we've named him a 'Mustang of the Week.' Dudley is a first-year player but he's made great strides this season to become a solid contributor. "Dudley is in his first year of varsity football but he has been improving tremendously," Northville Coach Darrel Schumacher said.

The 1988 Mustang girls basketball squad is probably the best Northville's ever put out on the floor, and guard Karen Baird is a key ingredient in coach Ed Kritch's mix. In action last week, the senior had a team-high 22 points in a 69-66 win over Livonia Franklin on Oct. 20, and that included a clutch 15-foot jump shot down the stretch. And in a 58-57 triumph against North Farmington on Oct. 18, Baird tallied 14 points despite sitting out much of the second quarter in foul trouble. For her efforts, Baird is one of our 'Mustangs of the Week.' She is currently the second-leading scorer for Northville with a 14.8 average.

COLTS: Colts dump Belleville

VARSITY: For the first time in five years, the Novi/Northville Colts posted three consecutive victories on a Sunday afternoon. The varsity squad recorded its first victory of the season, downing the Belleville Cougars 14-12. The Colts trailed by six early in the game but put together a touchdown drive behind the passing of quarterback Steve Carter. Joe Forte bulled in from the three yard line for the score and Steve Christensen added the two-point conversion to make it 8-6. Paul Candela then intercepted a deflected pass and set up the second touchdown, a 25-yard pass from Carter to Marc Moran. The Cougars narrowed the gap to two points with their second T.D. but Danny Walsh picked off a pass with just seconds left and Belleville threatening, to secure the win.

JUNIOR VARSITY: The J.V. Colts rolled up 300 yards of offense and held Belleville to 17, on route to a 41-4 whitewash. Ron Kane, Brian Kelley, Marc Van Poperin, Brandon Spence, Marc Golden and Ron Mazzola all scored touchdowns in the contest. The Cougars only score came on a 75-yard kickoff return at the start of the second half. With the win, the Colts are a perfect 8-0.

FRESHMAN: The freshman squad started things off with an 18-0 triumph. The defense was led by Kevin Collins, Matt Jendrychowski and Trevor Surdu. Brett Ireland scored all 18 points for the Colts, who improved their record to 5-0-1.

Mustang netters stand up to comparisons

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The last thing Northville tennis Coach Uta Filkin wants to do is label her 1988 Mustangs as a weak team, compared to its predecessor from last season.

It's true that the current squad failed to defend its Western Lakes Athletic Association Championship, and didn't make it into the 27-team MHSAA State Tournament like the '87 group did. Filkin says that the singles flights were probably better in '88 and the doubles a little weaker but overall, she believes the current group was every bit as strong as a year ago.

Extremely close dual meet defeats against Plymouth Salem, North Farmington and Livonia Stevenson were the only down spots during the regular season as the Mustangs were 10-3 overall. All three losses came against Lakes Division opponents, so it didn't have any bearing on Northville's third consecutive Western Division title, but it did, in effect, take the Mustangs out of the running for the conference crown.

"We had a lot of close matches that could have gone either way, but we ended up on the short end of some heartbreakers," Filkin said. "I think we were every bit as strong as we were last year, and I thought last year was one of my best teams ever. "So I don't want to stamp this team as being weaker."

Northville won nine of its first 10 dual meets, but then ran into Stevenson and North Farmington in the span of two days, and dropped two in a row — almost unheard of for a Filkin-coached team. Both matches were excruciatingly close, at 4-3.

Despite placing second in the WLAA Meet, Northville had to settle for third overall for the season due to the dual meet defeats.

In Regional action, Northville had three champions just like a year ago, but a berth in the state meet eluded the team. The addition of powerful Farmington Hills Mercy was a big factor in dropping the Mustangs to third place as a team and it wasn't enough as only the top two advance.

"Last year and this year we had three regional champions and we also scored the same points," Filkin said. "The circumstances kept us from qualifying more than anything."

With the Edwards and Vogt sisters around, Northville had a very fine singles group. Senior Adrienne Edwards had her best season at No. 1 singles with a fine 10-3 record. And as the squad's top player, Edwards drew the toughest competition week after week.

Her twin sister Abby was a perfect 12-0 on the year at No. 2 and added a conference and a regional title to her list of accomplishments. Abby won both titles last year as a junior and managed to repeat despite a painful elbow injury that's been nagging her all season.

Sophomore Karen Vogt was also 12-0 and grabbed conference and regional honors at No. 3 singles. Vogt was never really challenged all season and is the player of the future for Filkin. Her younger sister Dianne was 8-4 overall at No. 4 singles — which is a pretty good debut for a freshman.

In doubles, the No. 1 team of Neyssa Colizzi and Jackie Trausch were 8-6, but had their share of big wins. Merlynn Millgard and Jennifer Juhász were 10-3 at No. 2, as was the third doubles team of Kavitha Sriraman and Alisa Hanson. Both teams were solid at the bottom of the line-up but the big highlight of the year came when unseeded Sriraman and Hanson came out of nowhere to capture the regional crown.

"We were as competitive as anybody in the state," Filkin said. "If we had a chance, we could probably average some of our losses, but we can't do it. The girls were kind of disappointed with the way the season went but those things happen. I was proud of them."

Novi, Northville ready for backyard brawl

playoff standings and into second place behind Lansing Sexton. Novi made the big jump up from number five because Monroe (number two in the region) fell to Dearborn Fordson, and Portage Central (number four) lost to St. Josephs last week. South Lyon was number three heading into the Novi clash.

The final obstacle standing in the way is a talented Northville team that plays in the always-tough Western Lakes League. The Mustangs are only 3-5 overall, but have been very competitive all season and pose some real problems for Osborne and his staff.

"Northville appears to be a solid team," Osborne said. "They play good competition and they have nothing to lose. All the pressure is on us."

Almost every coach in a similar situation would be worried about his team looking ahead to the playoffs and not concentrating on the task at hand, but Osborne has confidence his squad will be ready to play.

"The kids have been able to focus in on the next game each week and they haven't come up flat for a game yet, so I don't expect it to happen against Northville," Osborne said. "I expect us to respond."

For Northville, a victory would give them four wins in 1988 — double the total output in each of the past two seasons. It would also give the Mustangs a stunning upset against a team now-ranked among the top 10 in the state.

"Novi has to win and we'd like to win," Schumacher said. "They have to win to get into the playoffs, so it's like their first playoff game. Since this will be our last game, we'll approach this game the same way — as our playoff game."

"The pressure is on them." The 1988 game between these two teams was a classic. The 2-7 Mustangs took the 8-1 Wildcats to the limit before falling 12-7. Northville had the ball inside the Novi five-yard line when time expired.

"I feel good about the way we are playing but I remember the 1986 game," Osborne said. "We have a lot of respect for our opponent."

The game will be broadcast on WOVI (89.5 FM). Announcers Randy Thompson and Bob Bates will be on hand and the pre-game starts at 6:15 p.m.

Western tops Northville harriers

Everything went about as expected when Northville and Walled Lake Western met at Cass Benton Park on Oct. 20 for a WLAA Western-division cross country dual meet: Western's All-Stater Brian Grasso ran wild, the Warriors won 22-34 and the undermanned but determined Mustangs kept the score respectable with a nice team effort.

"We held it to a reasonable score and we ran pretty well," Northville Coach Ed Gabrys said. "(Western) is a good team, they are not just a one-man team."

To prove Gabrys' point, the Warriors took the top three places overall, led by Grasso's incredible 15:20.1. It was a new Cass Benton course record — breaking his own mark.

The first Mustang to cross the finish line was freshman Steve Coon, who was fourth overall in 17:53 — a personal best effort. Andy Hass was fifth overall (17:56) and Jay Griffiths sixth (18:06). It was Hass' second time under the 18-minute barrier at Cass Benton and was Griffiths' best time ever.

The rest of the Northville finishers included Jon Meek (eighth place, 18:20), Mike Huff (11th, 18:41), Paul Grant (13th, 19:06), Aaron Wiseley (14th, 19:14) and Kyle Legel (22nd, 19:18).

"Our pack time through the top five was 48 seconds and that's the best of the season," Gabrys said. "This is a young team, but I think we have a shot at making our goal of being in the top six in our conference."

The Mustangs (2-4 overall) got a chance to do just that at the WLAA Meet on Oct. 28 (after Record deadline) at Cass Benton. The team will also compete at the MHSAA Class A Regional this Saturday (Oct. 29) at Ironwood Golf Course in Livingston County.

Mustang runners outlast Warriors, 26-30

Nothing can pump life into a struggling, injury-riddled team like a good old-fashioned victory.

The Northville girls cross country team hadn't experienced a dual meet win since mid-September — that is until last Thursday (Oct. 20) when the Mustangs nipped Walled Lake Western 26-30 in a WLAA Western Division showdown at Cass Benton Park.

"It was close," Mustang Coach Nick Dunwoodie said. "For the most part, we ran well. We had a couple personal best times and we won, so I can't complain."

Marcie Dart continues to lead Northville. She placed first among her teammates and second overall in 21:48 and was followed by Lisa Brown (22:24), who is running with a painful leg injury.

"I know it's hurting her as she runs but she's determined to finish out the rest of the season," Dunwoodie remarked. "She's showing a lot of guts and heart to do that. We really need Lisa — even if her times aren't as good as they were before the injury — but we don't want to make her situation any worse."

Rachel Davis placed fifth overall (23:56) and notched her personal best time at Cass Benton. It was only Davis' second race of the season after an injury-filled first half. The rest of the Mustang finishers included Dawn Burke in seventh (personal best 26:54), Kerri VanNoord in ninth (28:50), Kathy Namy in 10th (30:47) and Lori Potok in 12th (34:00).

"It was nip and tuck at the end," Dunwoodie said. "Davis and Burke both passed Western girls at the end of the race and that enabled us to win."

Northville tankers dunk Novi, 53-27

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

When the Novi and Northville girls take to the pool each fall, you know there will be some good races, some quality times and a friendly rivalry.

This year, the meeting pitted a solid Northville team that's ranked ninth in the state against a Novi group that sports several outstanding individuals who are among the state's best in certain events. This year, overall team depth won out as the Mustangs dunked the Wildcats 53-27 on Oct. 18 in Northville.

"It went about the way we expected it to go," Mustang Coach Bill Dicks said. "We tried to set up some races, and we did, so we helped each other out. Both teams swam well and it was an enjoyable meet."

Northville took seven-of-11 firsts in the meet. Debbie Buell paced the winners with a pair of firsts in the 200-yard IM and the 100 breast stroke. The other wins came from Michelle Stephens in the 50 freestyle, Michelle Becham in diving, Julie Hillinger 100 butterfly, Claire Cryderman in the 500 freestyle and the 200 medley relay team of Buell, Kristin Storm, Pam Holdridge and Stephens.

The Mustang seconds included Becky Frayne in the 50 freestyle, Barb Woodruff in diving, Teri Juhasz in the 100 breast stroke, Megan Holmberg in the 200 freestyle, Storm in the 100 freestyle and Holdridge in the 100 backstroke. Placing third was Hillinger in the 200 IM, Cryderman in the 200 freestyle, Frayne in the 100 freestyle and Holmberg in the 100 backstroke.

NORTHVILLE 131, LIVONIA FRANKLIN 35. The Mustang tankers upped their conference record to 5-1 with this lopsided affair with the Patriots on Oct. 20.

"The big difference was numbers," Dicks said. "We had a lot more swimmers than they did and that pumped up the score more than it should have been. But we were the better team and we did swim past them."

Northville took 10 firsts but the only multiple winner was Storm. She won the 200 freestyle and the 100 breast stroke. The other firsts for the Mustangs included Hillinger in the 100 backstroke, Juhasz in the 200 IM, Becham in diving, Allison Sieving in the 100 butterfly, Pam Mirisola in the 500 freestyle and the two relay teams. Cryderman, Holmberg, Fortenberry and Pam Wesley teamed up for the 200 medley relay triumph and the winning 400 freestyle relay team featured Frayne, Beth Sargent, Cathy Schoenith and Holdridge.

Sandy Loftus in the 100 breast stroke and the 50 freestyle, Sargent in the 200 freestyle, Schoenith in the 100 backstroke, Cryderman in the 100 freestyle, Stacy Lang in the 100 butterfly, Beth Frayne in diving and Kristen Woodsum in the 200 IM all had runner-up finishes for Northville.

"We swam everybody and the most positive aspect of the meet was that we had 25 personal bests times," Dicks said. "Overall, it was a productive week for us and it came at the right time during the season. We're a little more than halfway through the season and the workouts are getting long and monotonous. Right now were in no-man's land because it's still too early to start tapering."

The Mustangs (6-1 overall) will host Walled Lake Western tonight (Oct. 27) in a key WLAA Western Division clash.

Mountain bikes gain popularity

By BRENDA DOOLEY

They look like innocent bicycles but they sure don't act like them.

Sporting lightweight frames and wide knobby tires, "mountain bikes" have acquired a close following of outdoor enthusiasts who seek a more adventurous way of pedaling through the scenic countryside.

Kurt Riebling, owner/manager of Town and Country Cyclery in Northville, explained that mountain bikes started gaining popularity about three years ago. Since then, several modifications have been added to make the bikes even more suitable for off-street riding.

"They've been around for about 10 years — they evolved from the sturdy 'mom and dad' type of bike," Riebling remarked, referring to the old-fashioned hardly-constructed bicycle consisting of upright handlebars, fenders and tires. "People took off the fenders to ride them down hills."

Eventually, the mountain bikes were designed with more lightweight frames; wider, treaded tires; and the characteristic upright handlebars. Modern mountain bikes have come a long way from the converted 'mom and dad' bicycles.

Mountain bikes are commonly ridden through bumpy, hilly, off-road trails. Those who take the sport seriously often race the bikes on cross-country courses. Mountain bike enthusiasts are forming groups throughout the area and touring quite regularly to race as teams.

Riebling said a wide range of mountain bikes are available, catering to every level of riding skill.

Prices for the mountain bikes start at about $100 for the beginner's version and can cost as much as $1,000 for the more souped-up, specialized models.

Entry-level mountain bikes for beginners are just basically "beefier 10-speeds," Riebling said.

These versions have wide, fat tires, upright handlebars, 10 speeds and a heavier metal construction.

The middle-range mountain bike has about 18 speeds, wide tires, upright handlebars and may be slightly more lightweight than the beginner's version. The average price for the middle-level models is about $300.

Mountain bikes for the serious cross-country riders are constructed mostly of aluminum, including the wheels and frame. These top-grade models usually feature 18 speeds and a click-shift located on the top of the handlebars for easy shifting.

Because they're built almost entirely of aluminum, the bikes are very lightweight and can be easily maneuvered through woody areas and up and down hills. Riebling said this type of mountain bike is used mainly for racing.

Mountain bikes of all types regularly appeal to cyclists in the 20-year-old age group and older, Riebling said.

"They really cross the whole spectrum," he added. "The mountain bike has become the 'second bike' for most people who buy them. They've enlarged the whole bicycle market."

Riebling predicted that next year's mountain bikes will feature thinner tires than they have now. In addition, the bikes will be constructed to make them extremely lightweight.

The thinner tires and lightweight frames will allow them to become more all-purpose vehicles because they'll ride more comfortably, Riebling observed.

With a more comfortable ride, he said the newer mountain bikes will probably become more all-purpose vehicles.

Several brand names are available for mountain bikes, including Miyata, Raleigh and Peugeot.

Poisoning is common emergency for youths

By LINDA PASSINI

Poisoning is now the most common medical emergency among young children. Child deaths from poisoning exceed those from other infectious diseases combined.

Parents need to note that 85 percent of all poisoning cases involve children, with 71 percent occurring in the under five age group. Seventy-five percent of all poisonings involving children occurs from the ingestion of "in-sight" compounds or drugs and only 25 percent from agents that are kept "out-of-sight."

This simply means that three out of four childhood poisonings could be prevented by putting all drugs and household products out of sight and out of reach of young hands.

The kitchen is one of the most active areas in the household, which is reflected in the fact that 41 percent of all poisonings occur there. Twenty-one percent occur in the bathroom, 12 percent in bedrooms and the last 26 percent in all other places.

More than 50 percent of all poisonings are from drugs, so it is important that drugs should be administered to children in a matter-of-fact attitude. Taking medication should never be made a game and the medication should never be referred to as candy. Adults should not take medications in the presence of children since they tend to imitate behavior of adults.

Common household products are frequently involved in poisoning. These agents include chlorine bleach, disinfectants, acids, furniture polish and gasoline. These household agents prove dangerous because they either are not kept in the original container or they are removed from this usual storage space. If the storage place is unlocked or the safety closure not properly re-applied, the product becomes easily accessible to children.

Legislative action has occurred to make industry more responsive to the alarming number of poisonings. On July 1, 1988, the "Fair Packaging and Labeling Act" went into effect. This law required that hazardous household products bear information to protect and warn users against accidental ingestion by children. Among other things, the law requires that instructions for first aid treatment be printed on the label along with the statement, "Keep out of reach of children," or its practical equivalent.

When a poisoning does occur, the principle of first aid is to get the poison out or off. Contact should be made with an emergency room Poison Control Center or rescue unit immediately. Swallowed poisons, which include any non-food substance, is an emergency. If advised to dilute the poison, give one to two glassfuls of water or milk; never give a carbonated beverage.

You may be directed to induce vomiting. Do not induce vomiting if the person is unconscious, having convulsions or cannot sit or stand since the vomitus may be breathed into the lungs. If the poison was a strong corrosive (lye, strong acid, drain cleaner, etc.) or a petroleum distillate such as kerosene or gasoline, do not induce vomiting.

Syrup of ipecac, which can be purchased at any drug counter, may be used to induce vomiting. Give one tablespoon (1½ ounce) for a child 1 year of age and older along with at least one cup of water. Adults may be given two tablespoons (one ounce). If vomiting does not occur in 20 minutes, the dose may be repeated once.

There is no need to wait for vomiting to occur. The victim should be transported promptly to a medical facility along with the package or container. If the victim is not breathing, start artificial respirations promptly. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation should be started, if indicated, by persons trained in CPR.

In the case of exposure to fumes or gases, the aim is to get the victim into fresh air. Clothing should be loosened and the presence of breathing should be looked for.

If the eye is involved, wash immediately using plenty of water for five minutes while holding the eyelid open. Contact lenses should be removed and the eye should never be rubbed.

When the skin is exposed to poisons such as acids, lye and other caustics or pesticides, the area should be washed immediately with large amounts of water and soap. Contaminated clothing should be removed quickly.

Contact should always be made with an emergency room, Poison Control Center, physician or rescue unit for more specific instructions.

Poison prevention requires protection as well as education. A few simple steps in the home to safeguard children from accidental poisoning and knowing what to do in case a poisoning occurs may reduce the chance of needless poisoning and perhaps death to thousands of children each year.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.
