Scores on MEAP stay high in district

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Northville Public School students continued to score well on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test, according to figures released by the district last week.

Improvement over 1987 MEAP scores was shown in eight of the nine categories used to test the achievement of students in the fourth, seventh and tenth grades.

"We just got the MEAP scores and I have not had an opportunity to analyze the scores in depth, but overall they look excellent," said Superintendent George Bell.

"The scores are competitive and in most cases above last year's scores," he said.

Bell said the 1988 MEAP test results will be presented to the board of education at its Nov. 28 or Dec. 12 meeting.

The MEAP test, administered each year to fourth, seventh and tenth graders in Michigan schools, is divided into mathematics, reading and science sections. The program tests students' for minimal competency of certain skills; for example, multiplying mixed numbers and problem solving.

Each skill is tested by three questions on the MEAP test. If a student answers two of the three correctly, the student is considered competent in that particular skill.

"The MEAP test is a measure of whether students in the state are able to meet minimal objectives in many

Causes of tax vote dissected

By BOB NEEDHAM

Several possible reasons are being suggested for the city vote against a park millage last week, and a self-described "guerrilla strike" by a few citizens is a leading contender.

Local recreation officials have already begun discussions on why city voters last week killed a proposal to levy .9 mill for two years to develop the Northville Community Park site. Township voters approved it, but overall passage required a yes vote in both municipalities.

The Recreation Commission is considering its next shot at developing the park site on Beck Road above Five Mile. But before that effort gets underway, recreation officials want to know why the city voted down this proposal in the first place.

"We're going to be looking at trying to determine why the election went like it did, which I guess is an obvious step. When we determine why we went wrong, we'll try to address (that) and go on from there," Northville Recreation Director John Anderson said Monday.

One factor in the defeat may have been a small group of residents called Citizens for a Better Northville, who passed out fliers opposing the tax near the two city polling places on Election Day. The "guerrilla strike" came about because the group opposed both the basic idea of the millage and the way the support campaign was conducted, one group member said.

But both sides of the campaign agreed that the anti-tax effort was not the only cause of the proposal's defeat in the city.

"It was very, very spur of the moment," Citizens for a Better Northville member Jeff Hampton said Monday. The group was basically about six people who decided — 10 days before the election — to oppose the millage request, and who chipped in to have some fliers printed up.

The group purposely kept a low profile until election day. The members felt their best chance was a "guerrilla strike," to "come out of

Officials confident on county land plot

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

After more than 50 years of negotiations and planning, Northville Township officials said they are encouraged by steps taken by Wayne County to finalize development of 1,040 acres of county-owned property in the township.

At an informational meeting held Friday, Wayne County officials presented Township Supervisor Georgina Goss with a timetable that would terminate the entire project by April 1989.

According to the schedule, a final agreement between the county and developer would be completed and signed by April 15, 1989.

"I think it is very encouraging that they (Wayne County officials) have a time schedule," Goss said. "It looks like a good plan and I hope they can stick to it."

Goss added that although the issue of selling county-owned land has dragged on for many years, she said she thinks it can be resolved within the new time schedule.

"I see no reason why the matter cannot be turned over to qualified developers to do their job," she said.

Thief escapes from prison

By BRUCE M. WEINTRAUB

A prisoner of the Western Wayne Correctional Facility, serving a three to five year sentence for larceny, escaped last Wednesday. Western Wayne Correctional is located on Five Mile just west of Beck Road. Prison officials said the escape may have been due to a mistake on the part of a maintenance supervisor.

James Arthur Odom was last seen by Western Wayne officials at 2 p.m. Wednesday afternoon, but was not reported missing until 4 p.m. The prison listed his escape method as walk away.

As of late Monday afternoon Odom had not been recaptured and was still at-large, Western Wayne Warden Luella Burke said.

Western Wayne Assistant Deputy Warden Charlita Frazier said Odom, who was doing maintenance work in the minimal security portion of the prison prior to his escape, should have been checked by prison guards at 3 p.m., but apparently was not checked.

"When on maintenance detail, there are two prisoners working per every supervisor," Frazier said. "Prisoners are supposed to be checked by a maintenance supervisor every one hour per the procedure of Western Wayne. We are investigating the situation and at this point we don't know who is at fault."

Odom, a 34-year-old black male, is 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 180 pounds. He has black hair and brown eyes and was last seen wearing blue pants, a yellow t-shirt and a jacket.

Frazier said Odom, who is currently scheduled to be released in April 1991, is not considered armed or dangerous by Western Wayne officials.

"Mr. Odom is not armed to our knowledge and has a low assault and property risk rating," she added. "He has no record of assault in his history."

Frazier said a $100 reward is being offered by the state for information leading to Odom's return. Frazier said the reward amount is not determined at the institutional level, but said it is indicative of the fact that he is not considered a dangerous prisoner.

"Based on the fact that he does not have any record of assault in his background, it is believed that Mr. Odom does not pose a threat to the area," she noted.

Resolution seen on Main Centre

By BOB NEEDHAM

The Main Centre development plan is alive and well, and likely to be back before local officials for consideration by the end of the year.

"It is certainly not dead," City Manager Steve Walters said Tuesday of the Singh Development plan for the southwest corner of Main and Center streets. Before the month is out, the disagreement over parking cost will probably be at an end, he said.

"I think it's in the process of being resolved by the developer reevaluating his position," Walters said. Singh Vice President Michael Kahn, the company's point man on the project, was not available for comment Tuesday afternoon.

The project was deadlocked earlier this fall after the plan itself won approval from the city's Planning Commission. That approval did not address parking for the development, leaving that issue to the City Council.

City officials and the developer reached a degree of agreement on parking, settling on a plan to repave the existing lot off Center and Cady streets and adding a parking deck.

The deadlock came over the share of the project the city would finance. Singh said the company could pay no more than $2,000 per space for the deck, while the city said $3,000 per space was the lowest price it could charge. The difference worked out to a $160,000 gap.

"It's just not as dead as you (the Record) reported," Walters said Tuesday.

After Singh's option on the land expired, two local architects volunteered to examine the plan for possible cost cutting. But Walters said the plan will likely go through in the form the Planning Commission approved.

Santa will arrive soon

Santa Claus is coming to town — specifically, this Sunday at noon. The annual downtown Santa Parade will take place on Nov. 20.

The parade will start at City Hall on Main Street in downtown Northville, travel east along Main to Hutton, down Hutton to Dunlap and then west up Dunlap. Following the parade Santa will be hearing the wishes of Northville children until 5 p.m. at the gazebo in the downtown park off of Main Street.

There is still time for any organizations and individuals interested in entering a float in Santa's parade to contact the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce at 348-7640. There is a contest for first and second place best floats.

Immediately following the parade the downtown merchants will be sponsoring the annual Christmas Walk until 5 p.m. All of the downtown stores will decked in holiday finery and the streets of the city will be appropriately festooned as well.

The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce will again be sponsoring its annual Window Dressing Contest. Judges will be checking on the windows during the Christmas Walk. Winners will be selected in three categories: clothing, service and general.

The winner will receive $100.

Resident, board clash on newsletter

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The publication of a newsletter by the Northville Township Board endorsing two local millage questions is raising serious ethical and legal questions.

Entitled "Talk of the Township" the four-page newsletter, which was written by board members, contained among other articles, endorsements of both the police and park millage questions. The newsletter was sent to residents on Nov. 4. Both millage questions were approved last week by township voters.

Susan Clark, Supervisor of Field Services for the Michigan Bureau of Elections, said Attorney General Frank Kelly's opinions, beginning with opinion 64.23 on Feb. 24, 1987, have ruled that it is improper for townships to spend public money endorsing political views.

"Attorney General Kelly has said that local municipalities cannot use public money to either support or oppose political agendas," Clark said.

Township Supervisor Georgina Goss said she stands by her earlier statements "that the township newsletter was an informational piece sent to all residents with two factual columns, which made up only a portion of the newsletter; regarding the millages."

Goss also said she did not feel either the police or park millage articles were politically active. She said she believes brochures sent by citizens regarding the millage questions are examples of politically active material.

Goss said the board, which approved the newsletter concept some time ago, did not consult Township Attorney Ernest Essad before publishing the material.

The questionable nature of articles in the newsletter was brought before the board at their meeting Thursday, Nov. 10, by a Northville resident. Jeff Hampton claimed the contents of the township's newsletter influenced the passage of the local police millage.

"This newsletter came out three days before the (Nov. 8) election and I believe its sole purpose was to try and persuade public opinion about the upcoming election," Hampton said to board members.

"And I think this was done with the use of taxpayers money," he added.

The newsletter is intended to provide communication between the board and residents, according to board members. Page two of the newsletter is devoted entirely to an explanation and endorsement of the proposed police and park millages.

The second paragraph of the newsletter's first page reads "This first edition includes articles (see page 2) explaining the need for both an additional millage to provide funding for the Police Department to cover expenditures and a millage to fund development of a community park within the township."

On page two of the newsletter, two articles entitled "Police Millage Proposed" and "Park Development Sought" break down the financial aspects of the millage questions and then ask for Yes votes on both.

"...This amounts to less than thirty cents per day. We hope you agree that this is not too much to pay for your continued safety and security. Please vote YES for the police millage on Nov. 8," reads the last paragraph of the police millage article.

Township Treasurer Richard Henningsen, who wrote the "Police Millage Proposed" article, said the timing of the newsletter's release was strictly coincidental, with respect to the election.

"I look at it (the newsletter) as if it is blatant enough for us (the board) to say 'vote for us', but the newsletter is here to sell better protection for the community and it is a community effort," Henningsen said.

He added the board made a public announcement when it decided to turn out a newsletter and said since it is a township newspaper it was decided that the first issue would present facts on the millage questions.

After the board meeting, each board member said they had no problem with the contents of the newsletter, which has been given a budget of about $2,000.

"I don't think it was wrong," said Trustee James Nowka with respect to how the township handled its first newsletter.

"He (Hampton) does have a point on how the issue was handled, but I won't back down on how right I think it was," Nowka added.

Hampton, who ran as a Libertarian candidate in the 36th District state House race, said this is "strictly a moral issue. Is it morally correct to use people's money to print a piece of literature in opposition to their views?"

"They (township board members) took the public's money and used it to further their own political agenda," Hampton said. "To me, that is not proper use of tax dollars but an abuse of it."

Hampton added that a possible solution to the problem would have been to have someone with an opposing viewpoint also have an article appear in the newsletter.

Most of the board members said they had not thought of running an opposing article and such an idea sounded good in retrospect.

Henningsen said however, he does not think the newsletter had an effect on the outcome of either the police millage, which passed by about 1,200 votes, or the park millage, which passed in the township by 300 votes but failed in the city by 800 votes.

"I don't think it (the newsletter) had an impact on the township vote because people get a lot of literature," he added.

Henningsen said future township newsletters, as with this one, will provide residents with one way of keeping abreast with what is going on in township government.

In addition to the newsletter, township board members contributed time and money to Citizens Organized for Police Service (COPS), a volunteer organization in support of the police millage.

Armed with a $5,000 budget, COPS sent out mailers, put together information sheets and put up signs supporting passage of the police millage.

Hampton said he spent an undetermined amount of his own money campaigning

Police recover stolen auto, but equipment missing

A car stolen from a city home was found in the township last week, but several thousand dollars worth of laboratory equipment was missing from the trunk.

According to a police report, township police found the car early Thursday morning, Nov. 10, parked on Six Mile west of Sheldon Road. A city resident had reported it missing several days before.

A door lock and trunk lock on the car were punched out and the steering column was broken, the report said.

Items missing from the trunk included digital scales, a monitoring camera and television receiver, a laser pointer, three microscopes, microscope slides, mold cultures, measuring cylinders and assorted other lab equipment. Total value of the stolen items was put at $8,803.

COMMUNITY CENTER VANDALISM — The Northville Community Center on Main Street suffered a few hundred dollars in vandalism recently, according to a recent police report.

Around 10:45 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 5, a water fountain was discovered flooding the front lobby of the building. Someone had apparently sat or stood on the fountain, making it pull out from the wall and break the pipe, the report said.

The glass front of a fire extinguisher case at the southwest exit was also kicked in.

Total damage was set at $388.

AUTO THEFT — A black 1988 Pontiac was stolen from a house on Coldspring last week, according to a city police report.

The vehicle was taken between 10 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9 and 7:20 a.m. the next morning, when it was found missing. It had been left unlocked and had a Northville High School parking sticker in the window.

RADAR DETECTOR MISSING — A Yorktown Court resident reported a radar detector missing from his car Sunday after chasing a suspect from his garage.

At about 4:15 Sunday afternoon, the man saw someone leaving the garage and noticed the radar detector missing from the car, according to a police report. He chased the suspect to Taft Road but then lost him. The suspect did not appear to be carrying the detector, the report said. The suspect was described as a white male about 13 years old, wearing blue jeans and a white football jersey with blue letters.

RECORDER STOLEN — A pocket cassette recorder was reported missing from Cooke School last week, according to a police report.

Between 4:30 p.m. Wednesday and 5:30 p.m. Thursday, the recorder was taken from a desk in an office at the school. It was valued at $75.

AMPLIFIER STOLEN — An amplifier/graphic equalizer for an automobile was stolen from a vehicle parked on Lexington Boulevard Friday, a city police report said.

The theft occurred between 7:30 p.m. and 11:15 p.m. The unit, valued at $72, was a Beveda brand.

ILLEGAL PRUNING? — A Novi Street resident last week reported to police that several trees on his property had been pruned without his permission.

The pruning took place some time during the night, the report said. The resident told police the same thing had happened several times before.

DRUNK DRIVER ROUNDUP — Three people were arrested recently for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor in the township, according to township police reports.

A Novi resident was arrested at 3:23 a.m. Friday. Police stopped a car on Sheldon Road near Seven Mile after clocking it at 50 mph in a 35 mph zone. The driver failed all field sobriety tests. Two breath tests showed a blood alcohol level of .14 percent and .16 percent; .10 percent is legally drunk. The driver was held in prison until he sobered up and paid $100 bond. He has a Dec. 15 court

A Northville resident was arrested at 9:50 p.m. last Monday. Police stopped the car on Six Mile Road after clocking it at 25 mph in a 45 mph zone and observing the car moving left of center and onto the shoulder. The driver failed all field sobriety tests. Two breath tests showed a blood alcohol level of .11 percent and .12 percent; .10 is legally drunk. The driver was held in jail until he sobered up and paid $100 bond. He has a Dec. 8 court date.

A Livonia resident was arrested at 2:19 a.m. last Wednesday. Police stopped the car on Seven Mile Road when the car was observed moving left of center, then across the broken line in the curb lane in a jerking manner. The driver failed all field sobriety tests. Two breath tests showed a blood alcohol level of .20 percent and .23 percent. The driver was held in jail until he sobered up and paid $100 bond. He has a Dec. 15 court date.

AUTO THEFT — A 1980 blue Olds Cutlass was reported stolen from Meijer's last Thursday, according to a township police report.

A Detroit resident and employee of the store said she parked the vehicle, worth $3,700, in the north parking lot around 4 p.m. She said she returned to the lot at 12:10 a.m. and discovered the car was missing.

The employee checked the entire lot and could not locate the car. Both police and the woman said they have no suspects or witnesses.

CONSTRUCTION RIP-OFF — Almost $4,200 worth of construction equipment was reported stolen from the Blue Heron construction site, according to a township police report.

The construction manager of the site, which is located on Beck Road between Six and Seven Mile roads, said two master locks to one of the construction trailers were cut in the theft. He said the trailer was not damaged.

Stolen items include: an $1,200 air compressor, a $900 air compressor, a $320 air hose, an $800 electric saw and a $420 electric cord and reel.

Council approves appeal to put fence in street right of way

A Main Street home will be able to move its fence to the other side of the sidewalk.

Finalizing an approval from the city's Board of Zoning Appeals, the City Council Monday agreed to allow the owners of a home on West Main to replace their front-yard fence just inside the sidewalk. (The fence had been included in the council approval was a requirement that the homeowners get some extra insurance to protect the city against any accidents arising from the fence in the right of way. A letter to the city from the homeowners explained that they moved into the house in August intending to replace the old fence with a new, white picket fence just inside the sidewalk. But they did not realize the city has an ordinance prohibiting front-yard fences, since there was already a fence existing on the site.

The Board of Zoning Appeals unanimously approved putting in a new fence, which is planned to be a short, white picket fence and more historically appropriate than the old fence. But the BZA approval was conditioned on the City Council saying it was OK for the fence to be replaced within the city's road right of way.

The council also approved the request unanimously.

School district passes radon test

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Northville School officials announced all of the schools in the district have been proven safe from radon gas, according to a report submitted to the Board of Education Monday.

"We did tests in all eight of the schools and I see no readings to be concerned about," said Superintendent George Bell.

Radon testing of Northville schools comes only four weeks after Bell said he did not plan to conduct any tests.

"People are beginning to ask questions about radon and in anticipation of the questions I thought we should do the testing," Bell said.

"If people have questions (about radon) why not get a definitive answer?" he added. "We can't react to every question in the community, but it was relatively inexpensive to do the testing, so I figured we should go ahead with it."

Administrative Assistant Tom Bailey, who earlier indicated none of the classrooms are below grade, said he placed the radon kits in the lowest part of each building with the least amount of ventilation.

"This (the placing of radon test kits in basements) was not always possible because some of the newer buildings have ventilation elsewhere, so I picked areas in each building that met the criteria," Bailey said. "Many of the areas where tests were taken are not normally occupied."

He said the 20 test kits were purchased from the Radon-One company at $10 per kit.

"I shopped around at local hardware stores and this was the most economical kit," Bailey said, adding that Radon-One is approved by the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The highest reading (3.41 picocuries/liter) in the radon testing was obtained from Amerman Elementary. Bell said this reading was achieved in an area where kids don't go and he added the district will take another test.

Bailey said the district does not plan any other action with respect to the radon testing at this time.

The level of four picocuries has been set by the EPA; above four are recommended for additional testing and possible corrective action. Health officials believe prolonged exposure to high concentrations of the gas cause lung cancer.

Alex Johnson, Project Director of the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan (ALASEM), said test results have shown about 30 percent of the homes in the 48167 ZIP code to be above four picocuries per liter.

Laura Hicks was named Citizen of the Year by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce

A real honor

Award winner just likes to help

By ANNE E. WILLIS

"She's a good example of what Northville's all about," Charles (Clancy) Ely Jr., said in describing what Laura Hicks, Northville's Citizen of the Year, is like.

What makes a resident Citizen of the Year? Well in the case of Laura Hicks, just doing good wherever she sees the need. "She's known very well by people in the community as someone who does things for people," Ely said. "She's a good basic citizen, the kind of person who often goes unnoticed, but she's out there doing it."

A quiet woman who takes her work for granted, Hicks is a little surprised by all the fuss. "I'm still sort of overwhelmed by it," she said.

"It's a real honor," Hicks said when interviewed last week in her home. "I'm real excited about it. I'm very proud and very humble. I never dreamed of such a thing."

Hicks has lived all but three years of her life in Northville. She grew up on Wing Street and has lived on Horton for 38 years.

A typical week for her involves a wide array of activities. She is an active member of the First United Methodist Church of Northville and spends an average of one day a week helping out there, working on the newsletter and any other things that need doing.

Hicks said she tries to visit the Star Manor in Northville once a week or so, as she has a friend who lives there that she has known since she was a child. In addition she makes a point of driving those who cannot get out, to shopping or on errands — just because she cares.

"My greatest treasures are people — my family, my community and my church," Hicks said during her acceptance speech. What does she like best about Northville? Why, the people, of course.

Winning the Citizen of the Year honors came as a total surprise to her, her husband Fred said. The surprise wasn't kept until the award ceremonies, however. Fred said it would have been impossible to explain why they were going to dinner at the Wyndham Hotel in Novi on a Saturday night, without telling her the news.

The family is "all pretty excited" over the honor, she said. The Hicks have two children, Patricia Fitch of Almont, Mich. and Fred Robert Hicks of Sandusky, Mich. The couple has five grandchildren, Matt, 13, Laura, 9; Jacqueline, 8; Amanda, 7, and Christina, 1.

When passing out the thanks for the honor, Laura said she gives a large measure to her husband. "If it wasn't for him I couldn't be what I am," she said.

The couple enjoys fishing and hiking. Laura sews, quilts and knits hats for newborns at Mott Hospital. According to Fred, she knits to keep her mind off of the freeway traffic whenever they're out driving.

A former neighbor of the Hicks, visiting them on the day of the interview, noted that they were wonderful neighbors. "There were always pies, cookies, fresh fish, popcorn," put between the doors of neighbor's houses as a gesture of friendship, she said.

The couple has been married for 46 years, and according to Fred Hicks, the honor was nice, but really quite understandable. "It's really no surprise," Fred said. "She's been woman of the year with me for 46 years."

Dial 911 in city for emergencies

The emergency phone number for the City of Northville — and all of Oakland County — is now 911.

Anyone in the city requiring emergency service — fire, police or medical — can just dial 911, as of Monday, Nov. 14. In Northville Township, the emergency number stays 911.

Both the city and township are part of a new, enhanced system for locating the source of an emergency call. And phone customers in both jurisdictions will find a new, 20-cent-per-month charge on their phone bill to pay for it.

Both the City of Northville and Northville Township are included in Oakland County's Enhanced 911 network, which is going on line several months ahead of a planned Wayne County system.

The enhanced system automatically routes an emergency call to the appropriate jurisdiction to handle the call. In other words, if you call 911 from the City of Northville, the call automatically goes to the Northville Police Department. If you are in Holly or Rochester — or anywhere else in Oakland County, whether or not you know what city or township you're in — a 911 call will send you to the right place.

In addition, the enhanced system has an almost-instant readout of where the call is placed from. Each dispatcher in the system has a computer which shows the address of the source of the call about two seconds after contact is made.

So if you are driving up Haggerty around 14 Mile Road and need emergency service, things will be a lot simpler than in the past. Instead of trying to figure out if you are in Novi, Farmington Hills, West Bloomfield Township or Commerce Township — and then finding the correct department's phone number and trying to describe your location — just dial 911. The call will automatically go to the right jurisdiction, where the person answering the phone will get a readout of the address you're calling from, before you even speak a word.

The enhanced system is therefore expected to be particularly useful to children, the elderly, the hearing impaired and people who don't speak English.

A call to 911 can get any type of emergency service — fire, police or medical. For any non-emergency calls, though, the regular department seven-digit numbers should be called. The non-emergency number for City of Northville police and fire is 349-1280. The non-emergency number for Northville Township is 349-9400.

Although Northville Township's emergency number has been 911 for some time now, the enhanced system is new. The City of Northville's emergency number is changing from 349-1234. However, calls to that old number will still be answered as emergency calls, the Police Department said.

Fundraising for the well now totals almost $7,000

Last week's Marquis Theater benefit performance of "Shenandoah" and a Chamber of Commerce raffle have brought the fund to benefit the Northville Well to almost $7,000.

Figures announced at the Northville Rotary Club meeting Tuesday showed the "Shenandoah" benefit brought in $2,200 with some money still to be collected, board member Jim Petres said. The theater donated all proceeds from the performance to the Rotary's well fund, and Rotary volunteers worked as theater staff.

In addition, Rotary Tuesday received a check from the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce for some proceeds from a raffle. The raffle netted $1,000 for the effort, Petres said.

The new money is added to $2,200 raised in a McDonald Ford promotion and $1,500 donated by a film production company which recently shot an automobile commercial downtown. That puts the total at around $6,900, Petres said.

"I think that's probably going to be enough to do what we have to do right now," Petres said. A preliminary guesstimate at the cost to redrill the well was $6,000.

The Rotary Club — which has adopted the well as a special project — wanted to exceed that total so it would have some money to pay for general operations. "There's always some continuing costs," Petres said.

The well dried up earlier this year after years of progressively worse clogging in the water pickup. A redrilling is planned next spring.

The Northville Rotary Club is still accepting individual donations to meet well costs. They may be sent to the club in care of the First Presbyterian Church.

Waste rules move ahead

In spite of a host of pending regulations at the state and national levels for disposal of medical waste, the City of Northville is moving ahead with an ordinance of its own.

Kathleen Otton is a member of the Planning Commission who first suggested the city adopt such an ordinance after medical waste washed up on Lake Michigan beaches this summer. The city administration has done some preliminary work on drafting an ordinance for council consideration.

At Monday's City Council meeting, Otton reported that President Ronald Reagan had signed a bill requiring the Environmental Protection Agency to develop a system to track medical waste. In addition, she said, the state Legislature has seen 20-some bills introduced which will likely be rearranged into a package during the winter.

Otton asked the council if perhaps adding city regulations to those laid down by the federal and state governments might be too many requirements for local medical facilities.

City Manager Steve Walters

responded that a basic ordinance requiring safe disposal will give the city a way to react locally to any problems which may arise. In addition, he said, if any state law conflicts with what the city may pass, the state law will simply take precedence.

Council members agreed that the city should continue to consider its own medical waste disposal.

Meeting on Eight Mile scheduled

A meeting to discuss traffic control on Eight Mile road was scheduled this week between officials of Wayne County, Oakland County and the Michigan State Police.

Erma Clarke, an information services manager with Wayne County, said representatives from the three agencies were scheduled to discuss a long stretch of Eight Mile at a midweek meeting. They would focus on a Wayne County study of the road from Napier to Grand River, through Northville, Northville Township, Novi, Livonia and Farmington Hills.

Clarke said the study was just completed and that results will not be announced to the public until after the meeting. A few months ago, a preliminary look at Eight Mile in the city by a Wayne County official suggested that a higher speed limit might be indicated in some areas.

That idea would contrast with a position taken earlier this year by the Northville School Board and the Northville City Council. Both bodies voted unanimously to ask for a lower speed limit on Eight Mile around Center Street, the site of Amerman Elementary School and Northville High School.

Clarke said that the chances for a lower speed limit were not very good, but that this did not necessarily mean a higher speed limit will result either.

Local residents express concern over prisoner escape

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

As James Odom's escape from the Western Wayne Correctional Facility enters its second week, concern remains among some Northville and Plymouth Township residents who live in and around the prison complex.

"I'm frightened to go out of the house when I hear that someone has escaped from one of the prisons," said a Northville Township resident who requested anonymity.

The resident, who lives near the Scott Regional Correctional Facility, which is across the street from the Western Wayne complex, said prisoner escapes are very rare and the area is generally safe.

Prison officials confirmed that escapes are a very infrequent occurrence. Charita Frazier, Assistant Deputy Warden of Western Wayne, said Odom's escape is the first escape in over three years at the facility.

Plymouth Township resident Jackie Asher, who also lives near Scott, said although prisoner escapes make her tense "I do not think prisoners would bother people living near prisons.

"I've been told that when prisoners escape, they first try and get away from the area as quickly as possible," Asher said, adding her decision to move to the area three months ago was unaffected by the location of the prisons.

"I've lived here since August and I've never felt threatened to move, but I do pay close attention to the sirens going by," she added.

Besides locking her doors and windows after learning of Odom's escape, Asher said she may send her children to stay with relatives downriver until the situation is resolved.

"I have a big dog for protection, but I worry anyway," she said.

Frazier said the minimal security programs, from which Odom walked away last Wednesday, will continue to be instituted.

"We see no flaws in the program and we are currently investigating the situation," she said of the minimal security program, which allows low risk prisoners to work on certain tasks in a minimal security portion of the prison.

While prisoner escapes may be rare in the Northville area, four weeks ago, according to a Northville Township police report, an escape attempt was made by an inmate of the Scott facility.

Police said on Oct. 19 they received a call from Scott officials that at about 10:30 p.m. on Oct. 18 a prisoner serving time for first degree murder kicked out the window of his cell and fled to a fenced area.

"The inmate eventually reentered his confinement cell by climbing back through the window," the police report said, adding the prisoner is currently in solitary confinement and is to be scheduled for transfer to another prison.

Northville Township Police Chief Ken Hardesty said in the event of a prisoner escape, each of the three facilities would contact the department.

"We have an immediate response to any situation in the prisons," Hardesty said. "We would patrol the area, although the state police have primary jurisdiction in this type of situation."

The day after Odom's escape from Western Wayne, Hardesty was still unaware of the situation. A check of the Western Wayne emergency calling log by Warden Luella Burke showed that the township police had been notified of the situation.

Late Monday afternoon it was learned that Northville Police dispatcher Brian Schief was called by Western Wayne sometime Wednesday evening between 5 and 6 p.m.

Schief said he put out a BOL (or all points bulletin) alert out on Odom and sent the information through the proper chain of command.

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry said his department was notified of Odom's escape by Western Wayne officials at 5:37 p.m. on Wednesday.

Berry said in previous years "we were lucky to get a call at all about a prisoner escape. But since Warden Burke took over things have definitely improved."

As for notifying local law enforcement officials about an escape, Burke said calls are made by a designated officer to the Plymouth Township police, Northville Township and City police, Wayne and Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department among other departments.

Burke said the escaped prisoners identifications are put out a lien machine by Western Wayne and fliers are sent out to local newspapers and police departments.

"It is our intent to appraise all local police departments of the situation and our records show we do that," Burke added.

Inmate flees from local prison

Township Police Chief Ken Hardesty said Odom could still be in the Northville area, but he added that escaped prisoners generally leave the vicinity.

"The majority of the people will take the railroad tracks or have someone waiting for them because they generally don't leave without having somewhere to go," Hardesty said.

Hardesty added that although residents should not panic with respect to Odom's escape, he said he does not think prison officials can determine if Odom is armed or dangerous.

"After all, he is not in jail for being a boy scout," he noted.

Before being transferred to Western Wayne in April 1988, Odom spent six months at a Community Residential Program (CRP) in Detroit.

If and when Odom is recaptured he faces an added six months to five years for escaping from a secured adult facility, according to Frazier.

Local family is reunited

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Four years after meeting his daughter for the first time in 23 years, Northville resident Dick O'Hare got another surprise visit.

He met his granddaughter. Stationed in Okinawa at the end of his four-year stint with the Marine Corps from 1961-64, O'Hare was abruptly ordered to return to Northville by the Marines.

Among the things O'Hare had to leave behind was his baby daughter.

O'Hare said he tried everything in attempting to locate his daughter — with each attempt proving unsuccessful.

But with help from the Pearl S. Buck Foundation, O'Hare was able to locate his daughter, Mari, a feat which ended his 20-year search.

"I just couldn't believe it," O'Hare said. "If it wasn't for the Buck Foundation, there's no way I would have found this kid."

O'Hare said his wife Jody, daughter Kelly and son Steve worked hard to arrange Mari's second trip to Northville — a trip in which she brought her three-year-old daughter Julius.

"This was the only time Mari could get away from her employer to come to Northville," he added.

Kelly said she arranged Mari's trip to America "because she's my sister and I missed her. I also wanted to see my niece for the first time."

She referred to her niece who could not speak a word of English, but who was the apple of her grandfather's eye.

Although she speaks very little English, Mari seemed to have little trouble communicating with her family. Perhaps because love is an international language.

Kelly said she talked to Mari on the phone quite a lot since her last trip to Northville. "It feels good to see her again."

"It feels great to be a grandfather," O'Hare exclaimed, as he picked up Julius and gave her a big hug. "I feel very proud and privileged."

Mari said she is happy to be back in Northville and admitted she is considering a move to Michigan someday.

"It feels wonderful to be here," she added.

O'Hare said he has not seen Mari's mother since he left Okinawa almost 25 years ago, but he said that he has spoken with her on the telephone.

O'Hare's wife Jodie, said she was aware of and accepted her husband's daughter when they were married in 1965.

Jodie said she considers Mari to be like one of her own children, and added she also has talked to Mari's mother.

"We've talked on the phone many times and I'd like to think that we have a lot in common," she said with a smile on her face.

O'Hare said he feels very lucky that Jody and Mari's mother get along.

"People take a lot of things for granted and many times they don't realize how lucky they really are until something like this happens," he said.

O'Hare noted he is appreciative of all the help and support the people of Northville have given him in his initial quest to find Mari and then bring her here for a second time.

And as he sat down on a couch in the family room, with Mari Jodie and Kelly by his side, little Julius ran into her grandfather's arms.

"I feel like I'm on top of the world," O'Hare said.

Grant money available soon

The latest allocation of Community Development Block Grant money is becoming available, and the City of Northville is expected to have about $6,600 to spend.

Northville gets some CDBG money through both Oakland and Wayne counties, and the two work on different schedules. The planning now being done is for the Oakland County 1989 allocation.

Preliminary figures show the city eligible for about $6,600 in Oakland CDBG money. The City Council Monday called a public hearing for Monday, Dec. 5, to hear proposals on what to do with the money. Oakland County is requiring project applications to be in by Dec. 23.

The city has been using its Oakland CDBG money to make barrier-free improvements to the Northville Community Center, and City Manager Steve Walters said the Recreation Department may request another appropriation. The council directed Walters to come up with other suggestions for the money as well.

CDBG is a federal Department of Housing and Urban Development program designed for three basic purposes: to benefit low or moderate income populations; to prevent or eliminate slum or blighted conditions; and to meet an urgent community need where other funding is not available.

Specific projects eligible for CDBG money include improving a wide variety of public facilities, clearing and demolition, rehabilitation and preservation, and planning.

Next move on park planned; opponents promise fight

BY BOB NEEDHAM

The recent defeat of a local park development tax has both sides — supporters and opponents — vowing to continue the fight.

Last week, city voters killed a proposal to levy .9 mill for two years to develop the Northville Community Park site. Township voters approved it, but approval from both municipalities was required for passage.

Recreation officials have already begun discussion about what to do next to try for development of the park, including possibly bringing the proposal back onto the ballot. And one private group which may have played a part in the recent defeat is promising to oppose any future proposals as well.

Before getting into too much speculation about why the city voters defeated the park millage, the Community Recreation Department plans to survey city voters for some clues, Recreation Director John Anderson said. He expects the survey to get underway within the next week or so.

Based on the survey results, the Recreation Commission — a group of appointed residents of the township and city, plus one representative from the Township Board, City Council and School Board — will decide the next move. That might be to give up on the plan, or to recommend a change in the structure of the proposal. It would ultimately be up to the City Council and Township Board to place another proposal before the voters.

"Whether we'll come back on the ballot or not, I have no idea," Anderson said Monday.

Jeff Hampton, one of a half-dozen local residents who formed the Citizens for a Better Northville to oppose the park tax, said the group will continue its opposition.

The group will "absolutely" fight any future ballot proposal for park development, he said. "We think it stinks" that the city and township could return with another plan on the ballot, Hampton said.

"The citizens have already spoken once," Hampton said. "When does it stop?"

In last week's election, the Citizens for a Better Northville decided their opposition would be most effective with an unexpected, last-minute blitz at the polling places in the city. But if another proposal is put on the ballot, Hampton said the group would start earlier and be more organized.

"Our opposition will be much more formidable this time," Hampton said.

Before this vote, the Community Recreation Department twice tried to get state grant money to fund partial development of the park. Both applications were turned down.

Last-minute campaign may have contributed to park vote nowhere and do what we could," Hampton said.

The group disliked the way the Recreation Department supported the proposal by having supporters pass out fliers at the Community Center building on Main Street, Hampton said.

"We didn't think that particularly was cricket," Hampton said, particularly when fliers were passed out to guests at the annual Halloween party at the center.

"That, I just thought, was real bad politics," he said. "We didn't think it was a real fair fight."

Anderson responded that the campaign was run appropriately. "There were no public employees that were passing them out," he said, but a few volunteers did. He said he gave a few fliers at the party to people he knew already supported the proposal.

Copy-Boy Printing donated the pro-park fliers, and no tax money supported the campaign, Anderson said.

The pro-park fliers emphasized that the tax would have run for only two years and been dedicated to park development. It also mentioned that much of Northville's local recreational facilities are borrowed or leased.

Activists in Citizens for a Better Northville printed up their own fliers — headed "Keep property values up! Vote no on park millage" — and passed them out on Election Day at the city's two polling places.

Hampton said he distributed the group's fliers outside City Hall for 12 hours. Hampton himself was on the ballot, as the Libertarian candidate for state representative from the 36th District.

The flier listed several points of opposition to the proposal, including existing parks in the community, the proximity of the site to three prisons on Five Mile Road, high taxes, the presence of a state ballot proposal for recreational bonds, a fear that the tax would extend beyond two years. The flier also suggested that private enterprise — along the lines of Softball City — could meet any community need for more ball fields.

"If you want to play baseball, there are literally dozens of fields around," Hampton said Monday.

Anderson disagreed with some points on the anti-tax flier, calling it "in some respects misleading." Specifically, he said, while there are ball fields in Maybury and Hines parks, Northville has no control over maintenance and scheduling of them. The same would be true of private fields. He also said the state bond proposal was geared to upkeep of developed parks more than creation of new ones.

In addition, Anderson said the proposal was for only two years. "It's not at our option to suddenly extend it without a vote or anything," he said.

"I'd hate to think that (the fliers) were responsible for the negative vote in the city, but it may be a possibility," Anderson added.

But Hampton said those are moot points, and that the heart of the issue is that government has no place being involved in "niceties" like recreation in the first place.

"Government thinks they know how to do everything and provide everything for its citizens. We just can't take it any more," he said.

"You have to sit down and finally say, 'What is the role of government?' The role of government is to do the things private citizens cannot do," Hampton said.

Anderson countered that recreation is an appropriate need for government to meet.

Recreational facilities are not one of those things, Hampton added. Softball and baseball leagues can be run through corporations, service clubs, or chambers of commerce, he said.

"We run a program for preschoolers up through and including senior citizens," Anderson said. A profit-making business is less suited to meet the needs of all citizens than is a government "trying to keep the good of the community at heart as the basis of their program," he said.

The millage failed by a wide margin in each of the city's two precincts, the only places where Citizens for a Better Northville campaigned. The proposal passed throughout the township precincts except for absent votes and one precinct, Precinct 10, where it failed by only one vote.

"Basically our campaign was the same all over. We didn't separate city or township," Anderson said. "We were very pleased with the outcome in the township."

Although Anderson and Hampton said the fliers probably contributed to the vote, they both also said there were other factors involved.

Anderson suggested the campaign strategy may have been misdirected. The basic effort was a phone calling campaign to get likely yes voters — that is, people who use recreation programs — out to the polls. Those voters might have been more concentrated in the township, he suggested.

Hampton said the Citizens for a Better Northville concentrated on the city both because it was more efficient — only two precincts to cover as compared to the township's 10 — and because they felt city voters were more likely to be against the proposal to begin with. Talking with residents, people in the center of town seemed more sensitive to taxation, Hampton said. In addition, the group figured the city population was maybe less likely to use park facilities, he said.

The city vote against the millage was 1,853 to 1,076. The township vote was 3,697 in favor and 3,322 against.

If the proposal had passed, both city and township voters would have paid a new .9-mill tax for two years, generating an estimated $732,600. For a $100,000 home assessed at $50,000, the tax would have been $45 each year. A mill is $1 of tax per $1,000 of assessed property value.

The money would have been earmarked to develop the Northville Community Park off the west side of Beck above Five Mile. The Recreation Department's plan for the land includes three lighted ball fields, two outdoor soccer fields, three outdoor volleyball courts, restrooms, a concession stand, spectator seating, a parking lot and a maintenance shed. The millage proposal of .9 mill was set to match the estimated cost of that work.

Township decides against selling radon testing kits

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Despite the recent spate of information released on the limited presence of radon gas in Northville, the Township Board voted against selling radon test kits from township hall.

By a narrow 4-3 margin, the board decided not to sell Radon-One test kits, chiefly because they did not want to get into the retail business, board members said.

"I don't mind encouraging people to use radon test kits, but I think (if we sell them) it puts us in competition with retail stores and that is something I can't accept," said Trustee James Nowka. "I won't support this."

Nowka added he may feel differently about selling radon kits from township hall if a crisis situation existed, "although I don't know that one doesn't exist."

Township Treasurer Richard Henningsen said he supports Nowka's position and added he does not think that the board has the time to undertake selling the test kits.

Township Supervisor Georgina Goss, who also voted against the selling of radon kits, said the board defeated the issue for two reasons: first, they do not want to be put in competition with private enterprise and second, "it is not our business to be in a profit-making commercial venture."

Goss added that although the board has decided against a plan of action, they are urging township residents to purchase a test kit and complete the procedure.

However, some board members said they felt a recommendation to residents was not a strong enough response by the board.

"This (the selling of radon kits at township hall) is something that I support and I think we should put it out there for people to buy," said Trustee Donald Williams.

Township Clerk Thomas Cook said he has no problem with the township selling radon kits and added it is probably easier for residents to pick up a test kit at township hall.

The matter of selling radon test kits at township hall was brought before the board by Township Manager Steve Brock, who said he recommended the issue "as a public service for convenience sake."

In a letter to board members, Brock said the possible presence of radon gas in homes has been "bandied about" a lot lately.

"The gas may or may not be present in homes in Northville but there may be residents of the township who would like to test to determine if the gas is indeed present in unacceptable levels," Brock said.

Brock, who said the Radon-One company test kits have been approved by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), suggested the sale price for the kits at $19.95.

"We should not be in competition with retailers and that was not my intention," he said. "But I just thought that if someone was here (township hall) doing business or passing by, this may be something they would want to pick up."

Officials from the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan (ALASEM) however, said they understand the reluctance of Northville board members in selling radon test kits.

"I hear the same response from townships and cities all the time," said ALASEM Project Director Alex Johnson. "I think the Northville board is justified in not wanting to sell radon kits because they are available in retail establishments."

Johnson said no matter where residents obtain test kits, everyone should test their home for radon gas. He added based on current test results in the 48167 ZIP code, 29 percent of the 300 homes tested are above four picocuries per liter.

The level of four picocuries has been set by the EPA; levels above four are recommended for additional testing and possible corrective action. Health officials believe prolonged exposure to high concentrations of the gas cause lung cancer.

Johnson said none of the test results have been above 20 picocuries per liter.

Above 20 picocuries, the EPA recommends action to correct the problem. Above 200 picocuries, the action should be immediate, he added.

"Don't panic, because we aren't seeing emergency-type numbers in Michigan," Johnson said. "We are seeing high numbers, but they're the kind you can take your time to fix, and you don't have to spend a lot of money to fix them."

Board OKs seedling purchase

By BRUCE M. WEINTRAUB

Not only is Northville Township planning on protecting trees, but they are hoping to grow new ones.

In addition to its woodland ordinance which is in the works, the township board recently approved a beautification commission request of $500 for the purchase of about 2,000 seedlings.

Five seedlings per family will be distributed to township residents on a first come first served basis on the last Saturday in April, according to Beautification Commissioner

Catherine Sellas.

"This will be a nice community service from the township board and the beautification commission, to raise resident's awareness as to the importance of trees," Sellas said.

"We (the beautification commission) heard that Canton Township recently passed out seedlings to its residents and the program went over well there," she added. "So, we want to do something for our community to promote new tree growth."

Sellas said the seedlings will be purchased from the Wayne County Soil Conservation District through the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service.

She said the type of seedlings purchased will include: scotch pine, douglas fir, norway spruce and blue spruce. Some deciduous tree seedlings will also be purchased.

"The seedlings will be distributed free to township residents along with a sheet describing how to plant and care for the trees," Sellas said, adding residents will be free to choose where to plant the seedlings.

She said the last Saturday in April was chosen as the date to distribute the seedlings with Arbor Day.

New Doctors Discovery
Weight Loss Pill Approved for U.S. Gov't. Patent

'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight Already Sweeping U.S.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and caloric reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard to get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally"
Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles each acting like a tiny magnet "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated "Automatically" Lose Fat

According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, the new fat-bonding process is a "lazy" way to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug.

The fat magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public

If you are trying to lose 20-50-100 pounds or more you can order your supply of these no risk highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie reduction plan for even better results). Parking policy protested

By BOB NEEDHAM

A recent letter from the current owner of the vacant Main / Center property accuses the city of unfairness in its parking policy — and threatens legal action — but the mayor is not worrying.

Kevin Callahan, president of Equity Advance, bought the land at the southwest corner of Main and Center streets from the local Ten Grand Club a few months ago. Callahan's plan to develop the land ran into financial problems when the parking requirements were figured in. And parking cost also halted, at least temporarily, a plan from Singh Development, which had a purchase option from Equity Advance.

In a letter formally received by the City Council last week, Callahan objects to the city's parking requirements — calling them

"unreasonable demands" — and hints at a lawsuit. The city essentially requires that any new development must provide adequate new parking for itself.

"The requirement that Singh Development Company build a parking garage or develop its own off-site parking in spite of the large municipal parking lots adjacent to the site renders development of my site financially unfeasible." The letter reads in part "It is now clear to me that the city has a plan to exact from the developer of my property either a major parking garage for downtown or a new surface parking lot of substantial dimensions, which will benefit the entire downtown area."

The last sentence of the letter says, "I have referred this matter to my counsel so that we may proceed to protect my property rights in court."

City Manager Steve Walters, to whom the letter was addressed, had no comment on it last week. The letter may already be out of date; information this week indicates the Singh plan is probably going through after all (see related story).

City Mayor Chris Johnson discounted it as an angry venting of steam. Johnson, who works as a municipal attorney, also said the threat of legal action was not very realistic.

"Our ordinance is fairly specific and it doesn't require any development of off-site parking at all," Johnson said Friday. "What he's talking about is something different than what's in our ordinance."

He added, "I don't think the city's in any real jeopardy of litigation over our ordinance."

The new development would be part of the city's Downtown Development Authority, which oversees an area around the central business district. Buildings in the district are subject to a certain amount of tax capturing for improvements in the area.

This means the Northville School District — a larger property tax collector than the city — would receive less revenue than if the new project was being built outside the DDA district.

School Superintendent George Bell said the project will probably be on the school board agenda Dec. 12. Walters said the city will explain "where we got with the developer" to the board for consideration.

"As a courtesy, Mayor (Chris) Johnson and Steve Walters have discussed it with us," Bell said Tuesday. "The school district will have to take a position on it."

Bell said he and board President Jean Hansen are the only school officials who have yet seen the details of the plan.

"I expect a position (to be taken) because it does, ultimately, affect the conduct of the school district," Bell said. "We're not exactly in great financial shape as it is."

Walters said the City Council will probably consider the situation at a meeting in December, after the school board vote.

The land, from Main to Cady along the west side of Center, is currently owned by Equity Advance. That company's president, Kevin Callahan, recently wrote a letter to the city saying the parking requirements were excessive and could prohibit the site from ever being developed (see related story).

Last year, Equity Advance submitted its own plan for the site, but it ended in financial trouble.

The Singh plan for the site is a retail and residential building. A restaurant would face Cady, and retail stores would line Main and Center in a sort of arcade. Above the shops would be three floors of luxury apartments.

and Economic Development, said the county's number one goal in this matter is to tighten up its schedule.

"If we receive a good proposal hopefully we'll be able to tighten up our schedule," Henry said.

He added the county advertised for development of the land last month, either in pieces or as one whole piece of property, and received 14 proposals.

Henry said however, the land will be readvertised from Nov. 13 through Nov. 23, due to inadequate proposals. "We thought the proposals were not adequate in terms of content."

He noted to consider a developer for the project the county will need to see detailed information on their financial capability, experience, staffing, and other projects with which they are involved.

Henry said although the county is not precluding development of the land in portions, all of the initial 14 proposals were for the entire piece of land.

The township's preference, Goss said, is to have one developer for the entire piece of land. "We think it brings in a coordinated mixed use quality development. In a piecemeal type of development the project ends up looking piecemeal."

Trustee James Nowka said the township will be looking at certain aspects of a county-land deal including: the continued existence of fire station number two (which is currently on county land) and the need for recreational property within the township.

"I also think it would be a good idea for a single coordinator of a whole plan for the area," Nowka said, adding that with one developer the township can work on implementing a master plan for the entire area.

Both Goss and Henry stressed that the township and county are willing to look at any plan submitted by a developer.

Northville students score well on standardized statewide exam content areas," said Assistant Superintendent Dolly McMaster.

McMaster said the MEAP test is primarily designed to point out students who need to be brought up to a minimal competency level — something Northville students are usually above.

"In a district like Northville where students are expected to and do achieve, I look at the test as one of many indicators of validating our curriculum and students," she added.

Scoring of the MEAP test is broken down into four categories of achievement and expressed as a percentage of students who fall into a particular category. The first (lowest) achievement category is the mastery of zero to 25 percent of the test objectives; second is the mastery of 26 to 50 percent of the objectives; third is 51 to 75 percent; and fourth is 76 to 100 percent.

McMaster said besides examining the scores by percentage, she also does an item analysis of how many students achieved each objective.

"Through item analysis I want to make sure to pinpoint the curriculum issue or hole of a group of kids that must be filled," she said.

McMaster said through item analysis, it can be determined whether students have previously had the information taught to them and if it needs to be stressed again.

McMaster added that although she is pleased with the overall MEAP scores, she expects Northville students to achieve 75 percent or more of the objectives "because our curriculum is much richer than the minimal objectives."

"Northville has a good core curriculum and the socio-economic status in the community establishes educational values in both parents and children," she added.

Northville MEAP test results are:

Fourth grade reading — fourth category 94.9 percent; third category 3.9 percent; second category 1.2 percent and first category 0 percent.

Fourth grade science — fourth category 94.9 percent; third category 3.1 percent; second category 1.2 percent; first category 0.8 percent.

Fourth grade mathematics — fourth category 86.7 percent; third category 10.8 percent; second category 2.5 percent; fourth category 0 percent.

Seventh grade reading — fourth category 93.9 percent; third category 3.9 percent; second category 1.1 percent; fourth category 1.1 percent.

Seventh grade science — fourth category 93.8 percent; third category 34.1 percent; second category 9.3 percent; fourth category 2.9 percent.

Tenth grade mathematics — fourth category 84.1 percent; third category 9.7 percent; second category 4.0 percent; first 2.2 percent.

Tenth grade reading — fourth category 93.9 percent; third category 4.7 percent; second category 0.7 percent; first category 0.7 percent.

Tenth grade science — fourth category 48.7 percent; third category 35.4 percent; second category 11.9 percent; first category 4.0 percent.

McMaster said the science portion of the MEAP test, which was first administered in 1986, was not given in 1987 but reinstated in 1988.

She said writing, health and social studies sections may be added to the MEAP, with those portions tested on fifth, eighth and eleventh grade students.

Our Opinions

Township newsletter must not be political

The Northville Township Board recently took a fairly good idea, and with uncharacteristic bad judgment, turned it into a truly bad one.

The board wanted better communication with township residents. That's a good idea. They decided to write a newsletter to keep residents updated on what was happening in the township. In the recent issue of "Talk of the Township," which came out directly before the elections, board members wrote articles "explaining" the need for the proposed police and park millages. These explanations included "Please vote YES for the Police Millage on November 8," and "Please vote YES on November 8" regarding the park millage. That was a very bad idea.

While we felt strongly that the park millage was a good idea, and endorsed the millage, the method chosen by the township to support its passage was not a good one.

It is hard to believe that no one in township government had the sense to see that what they were publishing was blatant political propaganda. Articles that outlined what the millages said, and why the board had seen fit to put them on the ballot, would have been somewhat understandable. But the words "Vote YES for the Police Millage" are beyond "explanation" and clearly into the realm of lobbying.

Taxpayers' money is used to fund the newsletter. Public money should not be used for political purposes. That would seem to be a very obvious point of reference for anyone in government.

When the township supervisor refers to residents using their own newsletters to lobby for or against a political question, she is correct in saying they are politically motivated. And they are funded through private donations by citizens who believe in using their money for that purpose. When the township crossed the line away from "news" and into "lobbying" they forfeited the right to use taxpayer money.

A spokeswoman from the Bureau of Elections for the State of Michigan said that the Attorney General has opinions on file about the inappropriateness of using public funds for political purposes. The board must have been incredibly naive in this instance, to not first checking with their attorney before publishing this particular issue of the newsletter.

There are strict rules regarding elections because the system must be protected. Although Northville is a small town still, when it comes to elections and the proper use of taxpayer money, the board should take the time to ask for specific legal opinions.

Road tax turndown should not be misread

Not surprisingly, the Oakland County vehicle registration fee on last week's ballot failed by a wide margin — as much as five to one in some areas.

In fact, City of Northville voters turned it down by more than four to one: 291 to 1,369. Countywide results bore out the landslide predictions of many pollsters and observers.

We supported the proposal — because it was the only immediate way to address an immediate problem — but we understood the reasons to vote against it. We hope that state legislators, particularly the governor, understand them as well.

The overwhelming defeat is not a telling sign that Oakland County drivers are satisfied with the condition of their roads. Rather, it is simply a predictable reaction to a bad proposal.

The question lacked fairness. It would have levied the fee on each driver with no concern for how much wear and tear that driver is putting on the roads.

Passage also would have represented a triumph of sorts for the state's terrible gas tax and weight tax formula, which currently funnels funds raised in Oakland County to other parts of the state. In fact, only about 58 cents of every dollar raised in Oakland County stays in Oakland County. The rest generally subsidizes outstate roads.

If voters had approved this question, it would have represented a sort of surrender for legislative efforts to alter that formula. And that is where the energy must now be redirected.

Two other things could happen, and neither is desirable for Oakland County residents. For one, outstate legislators can see the landslide as a message that the road problem was exaggerated by Oakland County politicians. For the other, the Oakland County Road Commission can sit back and relax, having made its dutiful attempt to raise money for its huge funding shortfall.

We hope the Oakland road commission doesn't hold its drivers hostage by pointing to this proposal years from now. But more importantly, we hope the right message gets to Lansing.

Outstate legislators and the governor should take this overwhelming defeat as a strong message that Oakland County voters want their fair share before any other funding questions are put on the table. And local legislators should make sure that's the message they hear.

Use good sense

By Phil Ginotti

Enough is enough. Now that all the cowering, chest-thumping liberals have had their say, let's make some sense out of this business of Michigan high schools and American Indians.

Lately, the big stink has been nicknames and logos, some of which can be viewed as extremely demeaning to American Indians. No argument there.

It all started when the Michigan Civil Rights Commission recommended that high schools rethink those nicknames in light of the image they portray — that of violent, screaming, blood-thirsty savages. There's The Walled Lake Western Warriors, the Plymouth Canton Chiefs, the Milford Redskins, and my alma mater, the Birmingham Brother Rice Warriors, and many more.

It's not so much the name as the logos. Butch cuts, feathers, evil eyes. Yelping, war hooping it up, terrorizing young maidens in frilly dresses — all the stuff we saw on Davy Crockett movies and mimicked out in the alley.

Yeah, I guess I'd be a little offended at a team called the Bad Axe Wops or the East Detroit Dagos. American Indians have every right to be miffed too.

The nicknames should go.

But after reading some of the trash I've seen on this, I can understand why people come to the conclusion that newspapers have a "liberal," bleeding heart bent.

We — some of us anyway — tend to talk to you as schoolteachers talk to children, and that's wrong. Some of the people making editorial decisions look more at what is supposed to be and don't temper that with what is. And anything that doesn't match that set of lofty ideals is condemned — as if they themselves aren't really a part of society.

They assume a perfect world and a perfect past history that should have been aligned with their rosy ideals.

What's really wrong with these Indian nicknames is that they simply got too old. They didn't stand the test of time. They were created in an era that was simply a little less "perfect," a little more naive than ours today, and now we have to correct that.

We have to bring them up to date, just as they will be brought up to date again by future generations who are just a little more peaceful, a little more sensitive than ours.

This began to make sense to me one night as I watched an old interview with Branch Rickey, the man who helped to break baseball's color barrier in 1946 with the signing of Jackie Robinson.

In the scratchy, black-and-white filmed interview, Rickey, a giant of the era — perhaps of all time — talked of Robinson as a "Negro of great strength" and "colored man" who would have to control his colored passions off the field.

Was Branch Rickey — the man who caused a furor by calling for white and black athletes to room together — a racist? Well of course he wasn't.

But what he said, how he talked about blacks, how he acted, was a stark reminder of how much things have changed over the years. He didn't know any better, and I'm almost disgraced to say that about someone whose contributions were so positive.

With the nickname thing, we're 20 years behind the times. But that's not anybody's fault.

Like the word "negro," like colored drinking fountains, and the other things that wouldn't cause a batted eye 30 years ago, it's time for these Indian nicknames to take their place on the scrapheap of history. The school boards can get it done. They can do it tomorrow. Dump the nicknames.

But editorial boards, stop the knuckle wrapping. And think back to your days running around in the alley, pointing cap guns and taking mock scalps with rubber tomahawks.

Poor Mr. Clark

She's amazing. It's not unusual for her to get up in the morning, stick her head out the window and say something like, "Smells like rain." Or look at the clouds and say, "It's going to start snowing about four o'clock ... probably be pretty heavy, too."

I'm in awe of people who can smell, hear and see changes in the weather by watching the clouds or observing changes in the wind direction.

But I'm not one of them. Fortunately, I have something even better — something even more accurate than the senses to detect weather changes. It's a "weather rock" which was given me several years ago by Ron Ward, a Novi resident and director of the Agape Smiles Foundation.

It's a little rock about two inches in diameter inside a little mesh bag. All you have to do is hang it outside your window, and you have a foolproof weather machine.

"If the rock is wet, it's raining," said Ward when he gave it to me a couple of years ago. "If it's swinging back and forth, it's windy. And if it's covered with white stuff, it's snowing."

My weather rock has never been wrong yet. In fact, I've been thinking about sending one to the National Weather Bureau.

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

Ginotti and I were discussing editorials in my office the other day when he looked out the window and said, "Those look like snow clouds."

"What?" I asked. "Snow clouds? You can look at those clouds and tell it's going to snow? That's incredible."

Actually, I know several people who can forecast the weather accurately without having to rely on satellite pictures, weather maps or any of those other weather-ometers which are so popular today.

None's better than my wife, who was raised on a farm up in Tuscola County.

Do not allow oil, gas exploration

To the Editor:
As a member of the Northville Preservation Association, we have spent countless hours researching the issues of oil and gas exploration and how they may impact highly populated residential areas. The information that we have compiled is frightening at best. If we as a community let these oil companies into our backyards, we can kiss away the quality of life that we now enjoy. It is the very strong opinion of our organization that oil and gas exploration does not belong in the neighborhoods where our families now thrive. The risk of explosion, hydrogen sulfide pollution, obnoxious odors and reduced property values is nowhere near offset by the negligible compensation offered in return. This opinion is shared by the Northville Township Directors, the Northville

Beautification Committee, Farmington Hills City Official, the Farmington Hills Homeowners Associations and Representative Gerry Law. However, due to the lack of local control, the only protection we as homeowners have is to not fall prey to what we believe are the unacceptable tactics used by the land leasing companies. This is the message that we must get out to our residents before it is too late.
We as an organization have been very disappointed with the quality of the articles written by Mr. Bruce Weintraub and published by The Northville Record. Unlike some articles that have appeared in The Detroit News and The Farmington Observer, which possessed journalistic merit, our cause has had to suffer because of the obviously inexperienced writing of your reporter, Mr. Weintraub's articles lacked any hard investigation and many times cited data irrelevant to the problem in Northville. We believe that it is your responsibility to support the residents of this community by printing stories that accurately portray the situation that confronts us.

We have a long battle ahead of us if we desire to maintain the quality of life that many of us now take for granted. This battle becomes even more difficult if we cannot count on the support of our local newspaper. What's your viewpoint?

Stephen R. Toth

Thanks for vote

To the Editor:
On behalf of Northville Community

Recreation, we'd like to thank the voters of Northville and Northville Township for their support in our most successful Community Park Millage campaign. Marv Gans, the chairman of our campaign committee, contributed much to the campaign, as did the hard working inner circle of Bob Frellick, Bill Braund, Judy Kohl, Micki Lankes, Jim Nowka and Paul Folino. We had 98 other members on the committee.

Northville Community Recreation recognizes the critical need for developing our own park land, and vows to work hard to obtain our community's recreational needs.

Once again, thank you, one and all.

Local kids are part of the statistics

This is another in the continuing series of columns written for the Record by Mary Ellen King, Director of Northville Youth Assistance.

The cover story of a recent U.S. News and World Report was titled "Save the Children". In the article it was pointed out that on a nation-wide basis, in one day, "988 children are abused; 3,200 children run away from home; 49,322 children are in public juvenile correctional facilities; five teenagers commit suicide, and 2,989 kids see their parents divorced." These numbers are staggering and what is even more staggering is that the children of Northville are included in these numbers.

While working with children in our community, in the last year and a half, I have seen kids who have been verbally abused, kids who have run away from home, kids who have been placed in juvenile correctional facilities and children whose parents ask that their children be placed in agencies outside the home.

I have seen kids who would rather die than have to live out their lives, and approximately one fourth of the children I have seen live with only one parent due to divorce. Northville is not immune to the problems of the nation.

A few years ago I had the sense that we thought we were living in a domed community and we were not touched by outside influences. But my feelings have changed. As a community, we seem to recognize that our children have the same problems as all other children. The difference between Northville and many other communities in the nation is that we are taking positive steps to Save Our Children.

During the recent presidential campaign the Democratic and Republican candidates made sincere and honest promises to address the problems of our children. Whether or not any of their promises become a reality is yet to be seen. It is my feeling that the governmental bodies of the city and township of Northville look at our children's problems through non-partisan eyes.

Kids are not Democrats or Republicans, they are human beings and they need our help. For the last two years the city and township have been willing to do something about the problems facing our kids. Both the city and township passed resolutions supporting the drug awareness Red Ribbon Campaign. Both the city and township passed the 1989 budget for Northville Youth Assistance. They saw a need, they were willing to act on it and they are to be commended for their actions.

Because of their actions, hopefully, the children of Northville can be better able to deal with the problems that children are facing today. And maybe one day Northville will be like a domed community — except that while we are not immune to the problems, our children can more effectively deal with them.

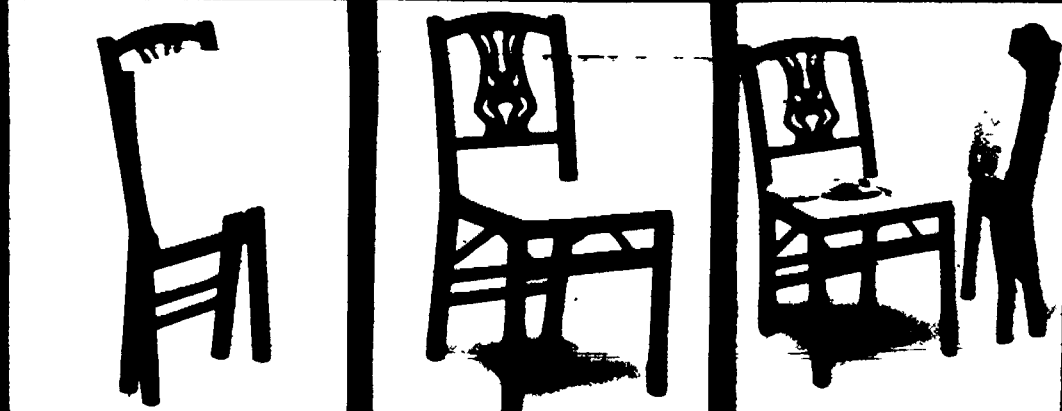

Northville Youth Assistance is here for the children of Northville — if there is a need don't hesitate to call 344-1618.

Bed-and-breakfast complements consulting service

By ANNE E. WILLIS

Don Mroz and Susan Sommer are not your ordinary nine-to-five workers.

They have taken two distinctive careers and molded them into a life and workstyle that suits the energetic twosome.

First the husband-wife team created its own organizational development consulting firm — Atchison House Consultants.

Second, they recently opened a bed and breakfast inn in downtown Northville — in a completely renovated Victorian home.

At first look, the two businesses seem entirely unrelated. The Atchison House, the name of the new bed and breakfast inn, would appear to be enough of a challenge for any couple. All summer long the house was the site of busy work and design crews as the home, a former residence and doctor's office, was transformed into a cozy, antique filled get-away in the heart of Northville's historic district.

But Mroz and Sommer had further dreams. Once the house was successfully launched, they returned to their first business, the consulting firm. Atchison House Consultants has as its primary goal helping organizations, both large and small, become more effective. The two work at integrating people and systems into organizations in such a way as to help the overall effectiveness of the business.

To do this, Mroz and Sommer work at opening communication lines between employees on all levels of the business. They work at devising systems that can help the communication process and break down barriers between departments.

"Organizations can be paralleled with the human body," Mroz explained. "We try to maintain our bodies as well as we can. We try to do preventative maintenance such as running or swimming to keep it in shape. Organizations should do the same thing. They shouldn't wait until a crisis situation occurs to call in a consultant."

To help a business the couple begins by doing an overall organizational diagnosis. This can be interviews and evaluations "to get the pulse of the organization," Mroz said.

From there they begin to work at getting a business plan for the organization — finding out what its goals are and how that translates to the employees and how the company is operating.

"The single biggest problem in any organization is communication," Sommer said. The consultants work at building methods of communication and at team-building and strategic planning.

"We start with 'What is our (the company's) mission' and go through the whole organization to see and show how everyone is a part of that mission — how each contributes," Sommer said. The couple also engages in executive coaching for CEOs of businesses to help them understand that the people who work for them are the company's biggest resource.

The consulting firm works for both large and small companies, and both Mroz and Sommer noted that even the smallest firms can benefit from increased communication and better goal planning.

"All companies have the same problems, it's just a matter of degree," they said.

So how does the Atchison House

Consultants firm fit in with the Atchison House Bed and Breakfast Inn? Perfectly, according to the couple.

They have found that many businesses need to get "off-site" during seminars to open communication lines and learn about organizational patterns. Sitting in the office in traditional roles can sometimes be a hindrance to solving problems. So the relaxed, gentle ambience of the Atchison House in Northville has been used — successfully — by the consultants, they said.

"We work toward developing business relationships in non-traditional settings," Mroz said. Seminars on effective meeting skills or time management can be held in the comfortable confines of the inn, where normal relationships may be bypassed and new communication lines forged, they said.

Mroz pointed out that the value of having an outside consultant working JANET SOUDER WILSON, Registered Dental Hygienist, has been named "Hygienist of the Year" by the Washtenaw District Dental Hygienist's Society. The district includes Washtenaw, Livingston, Jackson, Monroe and parts of Wayne and Oakland counties.

A Northville resident, she will be honored at the seventh annual Michigan Dental Hygienists' Association (MDHA) House of Delegates in Bellaire on Oct. 16. It also is the start of National Dental Hygiene Week (Oct. 16-22) and the profession of dental hygiene's 75th anniversary.

Active in the local, state and national associations, Wilson is currently completing her 18-month term as president of the 900-member MDHA and president of the Washtenaw Children's Dental Clinic, which serves children from low-income families.

Wilson received her BS in Dental Hygiene from the University of Michigan in 1973. She has served patients in the Northville area for the past 15 years as an employee of Werner Grunheid, DDS.

She and her husband David have recently given birth to a daughter, Margaret.

TED WILSON of Northville has been hired by WXYZ-TV/Channel 7 in Detroit as a weekend producer. The announcement was made by News Director Tom Rosenbaum.

Wilson joins WXYZ-TV/Channel 7 after two years as a producer at WJBK-TV in Detroit. Prior to that he served as a producer for WBNS-TV in Columbus, Ohio, and WHTM-TV in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

A native of New York, Wilson holds a bachelor's degree in history and international relations from Colgate University.

He enjoys scuba diving, reading and music in his free time. Wilson and his wife Barbara reside in Northville.

ANTHONY PUPA, a mechanic employed for the past 10 years by Cummins Michigan in Novi, has been named "Maintenance Man of the Month" for July by the Michigan Trucking Association, a 600-member organization which represents trucking companies and allied industries in Michigan.

Pupa is one of 12 nominees for the prestigious "1988 Maintenance Man of the Year Award." The winner will be named at the "Maintenance Man of the Year" banquet at the Sheraton Inn in Lansing on Nov. 1.

Pupa was judged by the results of a comprehensive written exam, an inspection of his shop facilities and a personal interview by a panel of judges representing the Motor Carrier Division, Michigan State Police and professors of truck mechanics from Lansing Community College and Ferris State University.

The "Maintenance Man of the Year" winner will receive a heavy-duty tool storage unit presented by the Snap-On-Tool Company and a trophy in addition to a plaque which each "Maintenance Man of the Month" receives.

Pupa resides in Livonia with his wife Donna and a son.

New home buyers should study kitchen

New home shoppers enter the marketplace with a vast and varied list of criteria ranging from the number of bedrooms to the dimensions of the family room.

When it comes to the kitchen, however, many people are more impressed by appearances than good design. Flaws are not obvious until after the purchase, when the new owners actually use the room.

"It's ironic that kitchens and baths are the rooms that sell homes, yet many novice home buyers are unaware of what constitutes good kitchen design," said Francis Jones, CKD, executive director of the National Kitchen and Bath Association.

"People tend to evaluate a kitchen on looks and newness, as they would a living room or a deck. The big difference is that the kitchen is actually a workshop, where meals are prepared and entertaining is done. A good floor plan is critical to the success of both activities," said Jones.

To help new home buyers evaluate the quality of their kitchens, Jones identified seven key areas that deserve special scrutiny.

□ COUNTER SPACE: The basic requirement is at least 24 inches of space on either side of the sink and 12 to 18 inches on each side of the range.

Avoid an isolated refrigerator with no adjacent counter space. The need for "landing space" next to the handle side of the refrigerator is especially important because people usually remove more than one item at a time. Fifteen inches is the minimum recommended amount of counter space.

'People tend to evaluate a kitchen on looks and newness, as they would a living room or a deck. The big difference is that the kitchen is actually a workshop, where meals are prepared and entertaining is done. A good floor plan is critical ...'

Francis Jones, executive director, National Kitchen and Bath Association

□ STORAGE: What's inside a cabinet is as important as what's outside. Storage aids such as slide-out pantries, roll-out drawers, cutlery dividers, tilt-out sink fronts and roll-out trash bins enhance efficiency.

□ PROPER LIGHTING: The move toward multi-purpose kitchens is accompanied by more sophisticated lighting needs. In addition to general overhead lighting, there is a need for task lighting over the sink and counters.

□ VENTILATION: Especially important in "great room" kitchens, adequate ventilation prevents smoke, grease and odors from circulating through the house. Range hoods may be sufficient to do the job, or additional fans and blowers may be necessary.

□ SAFETY: Traffic patterns should not interfere with the work triangle. The fewer people who intersect the cook's path, the less chance for an accident to occur.

When cross-traffic is inevitable, at least the range-to-sink path should be uninterrupted by household traffic, as this is where grease spills, steaming pots and other hazards are most likely to occur.

Other safety considerations should include avoidance of sharp corners on islands, which are usually eye level with children and hip level with adults. Microwave ovens should be placed no higher than eye level. Any higher and removal of cooked foods takes place with arms raised above the head — at their weakest point.

□ CLEARANCE SPACE: For safety, comfort and efficiency, it's imperative that clearance spaces be allowed for opening the oven, refrigerator, dishwasher and cabinet doors, using the appliances, passing behind seated diners and passing other family members in the kitchen.

For example, for easy access, a dishwasher requires 42 inches from the front of the unit to the surface opposite it. An additional 20 inches of space next to the dishwasher is required for loading and unloading.

A common mistake is to install the unit adjacent to a corner-angled sink or at a right angle to the sink, ignoring the 20-inch requirement. The user cannot stand at the sink or near dish storage to load and unload.

with a company is often not understood. While a business owner may rightfully think he or she alone knows that business inside and out, an objective outsider may see things missed by the insider.

While the business owner or manager may be extremely well-grounded in the nuts and bolts of running the company — their management and communication skills may need the expertise of a consultant, Mroz and Sommer said.

Susan Sommer has a bachelor of arts from the University of Michigan in French and German and education. She has a masters in human resources administration from the University of Michigan. Don Mroz has a bachelor of arts from Northern Michigan University in industry and technology and a masters degree from Eastern Michigan University in guidance and counseling. Both studied with Ron Lippitt on organizational development — plan change.

"Our life's work needs to be reflective of who we are," Sommer said in explanation of the way in which the two lifestyles — innkeepers and consultants — have been merged. "The flexibility of consulting allows the personal touch to be maintained at the bed and breakfast," she added. Both work hard at keeping to their own schedules to make each business a success.

"One of our big interests is to work with businesses, companies and shop owners in these communities," Sommer said.

Catered Thanksgiving

Edward Postiff of Edwards Caterer displays a holiday feast

Turkey time is upon us. Visions of a butter-basted turkey chock full of herbed stuffing, steaming turkey gravy, mounds of mouth-watering mashed potatoes and hot spiced wine garnished with cinnamon sticks, flood your memory.

You find yourself licking your lips in anticipation of the big meal.

Then the anxiety sets in. It's your turn to fix the Thanksgiving meal this year.

Suddenly your schedule of fast-paced, tension-filled days make the festive holiday seem more like a nightmare than the carefully cultivated old-fashioned tradition you remember from your childhood.

What to do? Don't panic. There's a man who can help you.

Edward Postiff, co-owner of Edwards Caterer in Northville, offers a service that may prove to be a godsend to harried families who want to preserve the tradition of Thanksgiving.

Edwards Caterer, 116 East Dunlap, provides a complete Thanksgiving menu featuring homemade food dishes ready for you to reheat and serve at your family table.

For the second year, the caterer is furnishing a full Thanksgiving menu — tasty appetizers, side dishes, pastries and desserts, right down to the turkey itself.

If you choose the catered route, place your orders by the Tuesday prior to Thanksgiving, the earlier the better. Edwards will be open Wednesday, Nov. 23, till 5 p.m. for pick-ups. Call 344-1550 to place your order.

Postiff said four people have ordered turkeys from his establishment this year, compared to only one request for a turkey last year. More common are orders for side dishes and desserts.

"For the most part, Mom and Dad are still cooking their own turkeys," Postiff said. "But they may decide to order side dishes or desserts so they don't have to take the time to make them."

One of his customers — an elderly woman who is serving a holiday meal for two — selected a full Thanksgiving spread from the Edwards' menu, including a turkey, two side dishes and dessert. The meal will cost her about $60 and will provide her with plenty of leftovers for the day after Thanksgiving.

Postiff said most of his customers hail from Northville, Novi, Plymouth and Farmington Hills. He is also drawing interest from Ann Arbor, Brighton, Milford and Birmingham. His patrons tend to be in their late 30s or older, as double income families find it harder to make the time to cook elaborate dishes.

Appetizers on the Thanksgiving menu include mustard caramelized bacon with waterchestnuts, phyllo tartlets with mushroom filling and red-skin potatoes with garlicky spinach and Jarlsberg swiss cheese.

After appetizers, you may choose to serve a salad. Edwards Caterer offers a spinach salad with poppyseed dressing, a wild rice blend with spinach, vegetables and sesame dressing and a romaine version sprinkled with green beans, red grapes, red onion and raspberry mustard dressing.

Fresh turkeys are priced at $34 each and are cooked just under the correct doneness for easy reheating on Thanksgiving Day. Most of them are about 12 pounds and will serve eight to 10 people. A turkey order is accompanied by giblet gravy and stuffing.

An onion sage stuffing is available, as well as a mushroom, apple and onion variety and an old-fashioned stuffing version.

After popping a turkey into the oven, you can look forward to tempting side dishes — butternut squash, twice baked potatoes, brussel sprouts with garlicky sauteed almonds, scalloped potatoes, sauteed garden vegetables with fresh herbs and mushroom pie (the newest edition to the menu).

Top it off with a delicious dessert such as pumpkin cheesecake with a gingersnap crust, apple cake with caramel/pecan sauce, key lime cake, a parisienne gateau (also a new menu selection), deep-dish granny apple tart or a chocolate Kahlua terrine.

Breakfast muffins in a variety of flavors — cranberry apple, granny apple or pumpkin nut — are favorites. Sticky pecan rolls, croissants and strawberry, blueberry or cherry scones also are available. Coffee cake lovers can choose from caramel apple or blueberry lemon varieties.

Postiff said delivery is becoming a big part of his business. Delivery service must be requested and an additional fee is charged for delivery outside of Northville.

Merchant helps needy

The spirit of giving is best recognized during the holiday season.

However, throughout the year at least one Northville merchant spreads good tidings by donating to a west side Detroit church.

Edward Postiff, co-owner of the Northville-based Edwards Caterer, donates leftover baked goods to the soup kitchen at St. Leo's church at the corner of Warren and Grand River Avenue in Detroit.

Organizers of the soup kitchen, coordinated through Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville, explained that Postiff has been supplying them with baked goods — muffins, breads and scones — since last March.

Freezers are stocked full of the tasty donated morsels until they're ready for use.

"It's too much hassle . . . too much traffic."

"That's a thought. I really haven't made up my mind."

"It's too cold! Every year we've gone . . . I've frozen to death!"

"No, because of the crowds, we don't have any kids it would appeal to."

Simmons spends time decorating for holiday

By DOROTHY NASH

If you are a history buff, like Ruth Simmons, and especially if you enjoy crafts, like Ruth Simmons, you will understand why she has been volunteering so much time as chairman of a committee to plan and produce the first annual Christmas Walk at Mill Race Historical Village.

It will be a tour through all of the buildings in the daytime on the Saturdays and Sundays just before and after Thanksgiving. A member of the Northville Historical Society will be on hand at each place to give historical insight and to answer questions. And Victorian decorations, which Simmons and committee have made, will be on sale.

"I've been here three days a week ever since August," she said, but not always making ornaments and decorations or even planning them. "I've done cleaning sometimes — vacuuming, dusting, and washing windows I cleaned two houses."

But to find out what authentic Victorian decorations were like, Simmons did "a lot of running around and researching," she said. And after she had made duplicates of what she found, she taught her committee how to do it. "It's been great fun," she said. "Working with other people and sharing my talent."

So why don't you plan to take the Christmas Walk? Get into an old-fashioned Christmas mood. And while you're walking around, if you realize you might enjoy learning more about Northville's earlier days and helping preserve their memory, why not consider joining the Historical Society and volunteering time to it?

As Ruth Simmons said, there is a need for all sorts of volunteers — docents, handymen, cleaning ladies and men, researchers into Northville's history and carpenters

Northville resident Ruth Simmons

In Our Town

Sale this Saturday

The annual Ski and Skate Sale of the Northville Mothers' Club will be held this Saturday, Nov. 19 from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. at Meads Mill Middle School at 16700 Franklin Road in Northville.

People interested in selling used sports equipment or clothing should bring items to the school on Friday, Nov. 18 between 4 and 8 p.m. The Mothers' Club takes a 15 percent commission on items sold. There is no charge for items that do not sell. Proceeds from money raised by the club are used to purchase items for the Northville schools.

Unsold items from the sale should be picked up on Saturday, Nov. 19 at 3 p.m.

Historical Society holds candlelight walk

The members of the Northville Historical Society are having a special candlelight tour of Mill Race Village. The tour will be held in place of the annual Christmas cocktail party that has been held in previous years in the Yerkes home. The tour will begin at 7 p.m. and end at 9 p.m. this Friday, Nov. 18. A donation of $5 will be asked.

Edwards Catering of Northville will have a festive table set up in the New School Church and society board members will act as hosts in each of the Mill Race buildings. Parking will be available in the adjacent Ford parking lot. Reservations are requested.

Ruth Simmons, chairman of the Christmas Walk, and her committee have been working since August making decorations and plans for what the society hopes will be an annual event in Northville.

Simmons has had experience working on the Christmas walks at Meadowbrook Hall in Rochester, and has many beautiful ideas to make the Village buildings glow for the holiday season.

Charlene Berry will be in the church playing her dulcimer and music of the season will be heard in the other buildings.

Northville Branch holds Greens Mart Sunday

Members of the Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will be holding their annual Greens' Mart this Sunday, Nov. 20 beginning at 9 a.m. before the Northville Santa Parade and the annual downtown Christmas Walk. The club will be selling beautiful handmade wreaths at the corner of Main and Center streets downtown.

The club is busy this month getting the city ready for the holiday season. Club members will decorate a Christmas tree in the gazebo at the Mill Race especially for the winter birds. The tree will be decked with edible decorations made to entice the birds. Members will also be decorating the fountain at Allen Terrace for the holiday season.

Northville welcomes Santa, Sunday

On top of everything else going on in and around Northville this weekend, the annual Santa Parade will bring the merry old gentleman to Northville at noon on Sunday, Nov. 20. Immediately following the parade, Northville's annual downtown Christmas Walk will take place until 5 p.m.

PATRICIA & RICHARD ALKIRE

Alkires celebrate anniversary

Patricia and Richard (Pat and Dick) Alkire of Northville celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary with an open house hosted by their children.

The open house was held in their honor Oct. 6 at the Woodland Glen Apartment club house in Northville.

Dick Alkire was born in Mitchell, South Dakota, and Pat Alkire (Merrow) was born in Pontiac. They met while working at Consumers Power Company in Livonia.

The Alkires were married on Oct. 12, 1963, at Orchard Methodist Church in Farmington Hills.

They are the parents of three children, Kathleen of Northville Township and Thomas and Cherie of Northville.

The Alkires enjoy fishing, playing cards, traveling and working on their home.

For the first four years of their marriage, the Alkires resided in South Lyon. They moved to Northville, where they have lived for 21 years.

Dick is employed by the Consumers Power Company in Livonia as a gas serviceman, where he has worked for 28 years. Pat works at the Shimizu America Corp. Construction Company in Plymouth.

Both are past members of the South Lyon Jaycees. Pat was a girl scout leader for three years and a past member of the North-West Lioness Club. She also volunteers her time for hospices.

Special friends and relatives attended the open house from Highland, Fowlerville, Morrice, Wixom, Jackson, Detroit, Northville, Farmington Hills and Mt. Clemens.

Pat's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Merrow of Farmington Hills, and Dick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olen Alkire of Northville, also attended the celebration.

Most of the Alkire's wedding attendants were on hand at the open house as well, including Lynn Morris of South Lyon, who acted as flower girl in the Alkire's wedding; Kathy Wakeman of Fowlerville, the bridesmaid; Kathy King of Wixom, the maid of honor; Gerald Stowell of South Lyon, the best man; Aubrey L. King of Wixom, the usher; and Jim Fornash of Detroit, the ring bearer.

Four attendants who were unable to visit with the Alkire's at the open house live in Florida.

The Alkires give special thanks to Steve Fecht, their neighbor and friend, for taking photographs of the event.

getting time for oneself. She believes that by recording what we do all day we can see when we do have free time and what we do with this free time.

There will be lots of time for filling out individual time charts and group interaction to get new ideas on how to use some of your free time on yourself.

Cotter-Laping is a counselor and teacher at Oakland Community College and is a single parent.

Now Providence Hospital gives you more ways to give birth.

More birthing options than any other hospital.

Introducing Providence Hospital's New Life Center. Suburban Detroit's newest, and we think finest, obstetrics facility. Our New Life Center gives you more birthing options, more choices, than any other area hospital.

LDR Suites, a popular choice.

Our ten LDR suites allow mothers to labor, birth and recover in one location. These private suites are a welcome departure from the traditional hospital birth experience. Beautifully decorated, each suite creates the perfect setting for you to spend time with your family and bond with your baby.

Traditional Delivery Suites.

Our new delivery suites are for mothers who wish to have the traditional birth experience or for those who may require a Cesarean delivery. Your husband, or any labor partner who has been through an approved childbirth class, may be with you in the delivery suite during labor, birth and bonding with your baby. Each of our delivery suites is state-of-the-art in every way.

High-Risk Rooms.

For women with medical problems, we have two high-risk rooms which offer specialized care during labor, birth and the early recovery period. Because we have an obstetrician in-house at all times, we can provide the essential medical attention you need in the critical moments before your physician arrives.

Another option, the Family Birthing Center.

Our freestanding Family Birthing Center offers another alternative in the birthing experience. The only one of its kind in the state of Michigan, the Center provides a home-like setting with a staff of experienced nurses dedicated to natural birthing techniques. Our Family Birthing Center is accredited by the National Association of Childbearing Centers and offers the advantages of a home birth. Family and friends are welcome and you can go home in just 24 hours.

Should the need arise, Neonatal Intensive Care Unit.

Our NICU has the advanced medical equipment and the sophisticated technology to care for seriously ill newborns. An obstetrician, neonatologist and perinatologist are available 24 hours a day to care for newborns with special problems.

Learn about your options. Set up a tour.

So if you're planning to have a baby, visit Providence Hospital and learn about all your options. Ask your doctor about Providence, or give us a call at 424-3068 for a free brochure and to schedule a tour. If you don't have a physician, call Providence Hospital's physician referral service at 424-3999.

Granger shares Hollywood secrets

By BRENDA DOOLEY

She broke into movies at the age of 3, when her character was stabbed in the back by a soldier and thrown out a window.

She was friends with actresses Margaret O'Brien and Marilyn Monroe.

As a "tall, lumpy teen" she was kissed by Errol Flynn — the "most handsome man she had ever seen."

And as a magazine writer she has lunched with Nancy Reagan, who is also a friend of hers.

Who is this illustrious lady? None other than entertainment critic Susan Granger.

Granger was the guest of honor at the Northville Town Hall Series last Thursday. She chatted with a receptive crowd of local residents at the Plymouth Hilton, offering stories about her childhood in Hollywood and personal glimpses of stars she is acquainted with.

Dressed in a smart yellow and black suit complete with color-coordinated shoes, Granger spoke to her audience unpretentiously, sharing her stories as if she were confiding in long-lost friends.

The daughter of a movie director, Granger grew up on the "back lots" of sprawling studios during the Golden Era of Hollywood, when moviestars were treated as princes and princesses.

"America has always yearned for royalty, wealth and style," Granger said. "There was no central focus for glamour until Hollywood."

She spoke of rags to riches stories, citing Shirley Temple (now Shirley Temple-Black) as an example. On her eighth birthday, Temple received 135,000 gifts from well-wishers all over the world. She was marketed on 164 different products, including the infamous Shirley Temple cocktail, a children's soft drink garnished with a maraschino cherry.

Now that Temple (Black) is a wife, mother, grandmother and successful career woman, Granger predicted that recently-elected President George Bush would appoint Black to a governmental post.

Granger also remembered the influence of newspaper columnists and Hollywood gossips Louella Parsons and Hedda Hopper. She suggested that the two women were responsible for making the public aware of the extravagant lifestyles of the moviestars — a fascination that still lingers, lending to the popularity of TV's "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous."

Parsons and Hopper were women to be feared, Granger explained. Both had the power to destroy a person's career by what they wrote in their columns.

As a child, Granger appeared in movies such as "Son of Lassie," "Abbott and Costello in Hollywood" and "The Fuller Brush Man." However she quickly acknowledged that she was not a child star, referring to herself as an "and also," because her name appeared in movie credits under the "and also featuring" category.

Life as a child star was difficult, a fact Granger became acquainted with because many of her friends were child actors and actresses.

"Most child actors were the main-breadwinners," Granger explained. "I wasn't. It was fun for me — I worked sporadically."

"On the way up in Hollywood you're clawing, and scratching all the way up. When you get to the top, it's even more desperate ... Hollywood children were expected to be perfect."

Granger recalled some of the children of movie stars who were unable to live up to their expectations, ultimately resulting in suicides — children of Gregory Peck, James Arness, Mary Tyler Moore, Paul Newman and others.

On the same note, Granger said everything in Christina Crawford's well-publicized book Mommie Dearest was probably true.

Fortunately, Granger said she never felt the pressures experienced by most children who grew up in Hollywood. However, she did witness the tragic effects Hollywood movie moguls had on the lives of their stars.

These moguls shaped women and men into stars, but the stars were forced to live by their rules, Granger remembered. When screen star Kim Novak was seeing Sammy Davis Jr., the affair caused such an uproar that Columbia studio's tycoon Harry Cohn is thought to have arranged an accident that resulted in the loss of Davis' eye.

"Conventional movies reflect American culture," Granger said. "Hollywood's job was to make you believe what you saw on screen. Hollywood has always sold illusion — I tend to think it disappeared with the advent of the computer age and special effects."

"Today, Hollywood is more concerned with man's weaknesses. I believe it has lost some of its appeal."

Susan Granger speaks in Town Hall series

Sunday brunch offers relaxation and great food

What could be better than the aroma of sizzling bacon, freshly-baked blueberry muffins and piping hot brewed coffee coming from the kitchen on a weekend morning?

Why a Sunday brunch, of course. Chefs do the cooking for you and it's an all-you-can-eat fanatic's dream.

Several area restaurants are serving up a vast array of brunch selections to appeal to hungry breakfast munchers. Brunch-goers are a fast-growing group, according to several restaurant managers.

Traditional egg, bacon and toast offerings are frequently by-passed for hearty helpings of cheesy lasagna, fruit-covered crepes, greek salads, buttery croissants, rich chocolate mousse, chicken cordon bleu and roast beef cooked to order in local brunch lines.

Most restaurants that serve brunches offer omelette and waffle "bars," enabling their patrons to choose flavorful fillings of their choice to dress up standard omelettes or waffles.

For waffles, fruit toppings are popular, such as strawberries, blueberries, cinnamon apples and peaches, just to name a few. Stuffings for omelettes might include cheese, bacon, shrimp, green peppers, mushrooms or onions. The waf-fls and omelettes are usually made while you wait.

Popular breakfast menu selections for brunch are desserts — rich chocolate brownies and cakes, fruit-filled pastries, gooey doughnuts and taste-tempting pies.

Following is a list of restaurants that offer brunches:

Novi Hilton, 21111 Haggerty Road, serves brunch from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Prices are $13.95 adults, $7.95 children. Reservations are recommended for parties over five.

Novi Sheraton-Oaks, 27000 Sheraton Drive, serves brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Prices are $12.95 adults, $6.95 for senior citizens and children. Reservations are required.

Novi Wyndham Garden Hotel, located at the southeast corner of I-96 and Novi Road, serves breakfast/brunch from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. The price is $6.95 for children and adults. A chef stationed in the restaurant cooks eggs to order, as well as Belgian waffles.

Holiday Inn of Farmington Hills, 38123 Ten Mile Road, serves brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Prices are $9.95 for adults, $8.95 for senior citizens, $5.95 for children 10-5 years old and free for children under five. Reservations are highly recommended.

Plymouth Hilton Inn, 14707 Northville Rd., serves brunch from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Prices are $10.95 adults, $5.95 children. Reservations are not required but are suggested.

Sunday Brunch

T.S. Church's Restaurant/Ann Arbor Marriott, 3600 Plymouth Road, serves brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Prices are $10.95 adults, $9.95 senior citizens, $5.95 children 12 and under. Dolphine's at The Sheraton Inn, 3300 Boardwalk in Ann Arbor, offers brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Prices are $9.95 adults, $8.95 senior citizens, $5.95 children under 12.

Northville guard Karen Baird gets off a shot against Plymouth Salem last Saturday. Record/THOM DOUGHERTY

Salem stalls its way past cagers, 31-23

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

In perhaps the strangest game of the season, the Northville cagers dropped a 31-23 decision to host Plymouth Salem last weekend in the consolation bracket of the WLAA Playoffs.

A number of developments made the game so weird — not the least of which included a scoreless quarter by Northville, a five-minute stall by Salem at the end of the game and an overall defensive battle between two explosive offensive teams.

The Mustangs (14-6 overall) got off to a slow start at the offensive end and hit rock bottom in the second quarter as the Rocks shut them out. But a solid third quarter and a nice start in the fourth brought Northville back to within two points. From there, Salem went into an all-out stall, and behind the great ballhandling of All-State guard Jill Estey, they salted away the clock and the Mustangs' comeback bid.

"That was the first time we've ever been shut out in a quarter since I've been here," Northville Coach Ed Kritch said. "(Salem) was struggling as much as we were on offense so our defense kept us in the game."

A 5-4 Mustang lead after one quarter became a 16-5 halftime deficit when the Rocks went on a 12-0 scoring binge in the second quarter. Estey had 10 points in the first half while Northville hit only 2-of-29 shots from the field and were 0-for-5 from the free throw line.

"We were intimidated," Kritch said. "Deep down inside, we must have felt that we couldn't beat (Salem). Needless to say, I was angry at halftime and let them know it. I feel we can play with anybody. It was an uncharacteristic half of basketball for us."

The talk must have worked because the Mustangs came out in the third quarter and played very well. By outscoring the Rocks 12-7 in that quarter and then scoring the first four points of the final stanza, Northville pulled to within a basket at 23-21.

"We were intimidated. Deep down inside, we must have felt that we couldn't beat (Salem). Needless to say, I was angry at halftime and let them know it. I feel we can play with anybody. It was an uncharacteristic half of basketball for us."

"That run got us back into the game," Kritch said.

Salem then went into the stall with five minutes left and it turned out to be a winning decision. Down the stretch, the Rocks scored eight of the last 10 points to wrap it up.

"It was a good comeback but their stall worked and that's a tribute to Jill Estey," Kritch said. "She controlled the ball for almost the whole fourth quarter and didn't turn it over."

Karen Baird had another fine game with a team-high 14, including a pair of three-pointers, but Debbie Stevens was held to a season-low four. Estey led all scorers with 16.

"Against a very good team, you can't have a half like we had and still win," Kritch said. "So for us to be down by only two with five minutes left after such a bad start, it makes you wonder 'what if?'"

NORTHVILLE 57, WESTLAND 46: THE MUSTANGS jumped out to a big halftime lead and then cruised the rest of the way to defeat the Rockets by 11 on Nov. 8.

Again, Northville got off to a poor start, and fell behind 8-4 in the opening minutes. But after settling down, the Mustangs took control and built a 33-18 advantage at intermission behind the scoring of Stevens (18) and Kristi Turner (nine points off the bench).

"We threw away the ball in seven of our first 10 possessions," Kritch said. "We settled down and played solid the rest of the way. We had a comfortable halftime lead."

The lead grew to 15 after three quarters but then Baird fouled out and Glenn chopped it to seven in the fourth. Kritch moved Stevens to a guard position and she helped the Mustangs hang on.

Stevens ended with 26 points and nine rebounds and Turner added 13. Baird chipped in a dozen before fouling out and Heather Sixt had four steals.

Mustangs to host Lions in district play

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville High School will serve as host to one of the more intriguing girls basketball district tournaments in the state, today through next Tuesday (Nov. 22).

The 15-team field includes a Plymouth Canton (19-1 record) ranked among the five best Class A teams in the state and Plymouth Salem (15-5), one of the most respected public school programs in the state.

In addition, host Northville (14-6) and South Lyon (12-7) are two very capable teams and one of the two stand a great chance to make it at least to the finals. To round out the competitors, there will be the 2-18 Novi — the ultimate Cinderella team — looking for a miracle in a very difficult tournament. This district has everything.

"It's a heck of a district," Northville Athletic Director Dennis Colligan said. "I'd say it's one of the better ones around. We have four teams with very good records and realistically any of the four have a shot at winning it. Anything can happen."

If you discount Novi, the rest of the field has a combined record of 60-19!

The district draw was announced late last week and almost everybody was pleased with the result. Northville has beaten both South Lyon and Novi convincingly this season and wins against those two would propel the team into the finals against the Canton-Salem winner.

"If we could have hand-picked the draw ourselves, we would have picked it exactly the way it ended up," Mustang Coach Ed Kritch said.

Novi got a first-round bye and will face the South Lyon-Northville winner Saturday. It gives the 'Cats a chance for revenge in the district semifinals against one of two teams who've had their number this season.

"We like our draw," Novi Coach Debbie Harris said. "It's nice to get the bye and we would rather play the South Lyon-Northville winner than the Canton-Salem winner. It's our best shot to spring an upset. Just one win and we're in the finals and that would definitely make our season."

South Lyon has an opportunity to avenge a 13-point defeat to the Mustangs in the first round, so they are happy and Salem gets another crack at Canton — the team who wrestled the Western Lakes League title away from them this season after holding it for three straight seasons — so they're happy.

Perhaps the only unhappy team is Canton, who must tackle talented Salem and All-State Guard Jill Estey again in the first round. All coaches know it's very hard to beat a competitor team twice in one season. Colligan is expecting standing-room-only when the two Plymouth schools battle it out Saturday (Nov. 19 at 6 p.m.).

The sleeper of the whole thing has got to be Northville, who will be playing on their own home court and feature standouts like Debbie Stevens and Karen Baird. According to Kritch, it's the best team Northville's ever put out on the court. The Mustangs fell to Canton 50-39 back in mid-October and just fell to Salem last week by eight (31-23). But Kritch is more worried about South Lyon right now.

"South Lyon figures to give us problems even though we beat them by 13 early this season," he said. "We've had a week to prepare for them and we need it because they scare us."

Northville tankers prepare for WLAA Meet with 109-62 victory

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Northville swimmers primed themselves for the all-important Western Lakes League Meet by dismantling Farmington Harrison 109-62 on Nov. 10 in a regular season ending dual meet. The victory ups the Mustang's season mark to 10-1 overall (3-1-0 in the WLAA Western Division).

"(Harrison) has a small team so we outpointed them in every event," Northville Coach Bill Dicks said. "They swam well but didn't have the depth to stay with us. Even if they would have won all 11 events, they would have lost the meet because we took so many seconds and thirds."

"The score wasn't a very good indication as to how competitive the meet was. Harrison isn't that bad but I don't want to take anything away from our girls. They all swam well."

According to Dicks, the outstanding individual performance came from diver Michelle Beacham, who took first place honors in the event and topped the 200 point total for the first time in her career. Her score was an impressive 207.5.

"Beacham had a good meet," Dicks said. "To break 200 is an outstanding individual effort."

The rest of the winners included Megan Holmberg in the 200-yard IM, Pam Holdridge in the 50 freestyle and the 100 backstroke, Julie Hillinger in the 100 butterfly, Teri Juhasz in the 100 freestyle and the 400 freestyle relay team of Debbie Buell, Michelle Stephens, Becky Frayne and Holdridge.

Northville Swim Coach

Second place honors went to Fortenberry in the 50 freestyle, Wendy Beach in diving, Buell in the 100 butterfly, Kristen Woodsum in the 500 freestyle and Susan Kowalski in the 100 breast stroke. The thirds went to Frayne in the 200 IM, Barb Woodruff in diving, Kowalski in the 100 butterfly, Alison Sieving in the 500 freestyle and Stacy Lang in the 100 breast stroke.

"Everything is coming together," Dicks said. "The attitudes are good, the times are improving and we are right where we need to be."

Northville's only dual meet defeat of the season came against Livonia Churchill in late September but it cost the team a division title. The Mustangs will have a chance for revenge this weekend at the WLAA Meet at Plymouth Salem. The Prelims started yesterday (Nov. 16) and the finals are slated for tomorrow (Nov. 18).

Churchill and Plymouth Canton appear to be the two main threats for Northville in the race for the conference crown. One thing is for sure: the Mustangs will be a top contender.

"I think we'll be in the hunt," Dicks said. "We'll go in and do the best we can. It's a different format from the dual meets and it has nothing to do with the dual meet records. If we win the meet, we'll be WLAA champs."

"I believe we have a good chance: The girls are excited and we've had a great season already. This is the strongest and best team I've ever coached since I came to Northville 10 years ago. Regardless of how it turns out, we're very happy with the regular season. This year, 90 percent of the girls met their goal times and the season isn't over yet."

'A great fall season'

By Neil Geoghegan

Northville Athletic Director Dennis Colligan called the 1988 fall sports season "a great one" for the Mustangs.

And why not? It will probably go down as one of the most successful campaigns ever in Northville. And we're talking about eight programs, not just one: girls basketball, boys soccer, football, tennis, golf, cross country and soccer.

"I don't think there was any doubt this was one of the best seasons we've had," Colligan said. "It's been very uplifting for the kids and the coaches are in great spirit. It makes for a positive environment for athletics."

The Mustang girls' basketball team is probably the best Northville's ever put out on the court. Coach Ed Kritch's team includes what he calls the best all-around player (Debbie Stevens) and the best point guard (Karen Baird) in school history. With 14 wins and the state tournament still to come, it's already — without a doubt — the most successful.

"It's the most successful team we've had and also the most exciting and entertaining," Colligan said. "Ed Kritch has done a remarkable job and a lot of it has to do with stability. It's great to be so competitive in a very respected league."

The Mustangs are usually outstanding in swimming and tennis each year, and the 1988 season was no exception. But the remarkable success of Don Morgan's golf team was an added bonus. The Northville linksters grabbed Division, Conference and Regional titles and then capped a great season off by placing sixth in the state tournament. Golfers like James Nordbeck, Chris Lemmon and Kevin Telepo all had outstanding seasons along the way.

"We aren't great every year in golf but I'm not surprised at how well they did because it was an excellent team with loads of talent," Colligan said.

In swimming, coach Bill Dicks' group was solid last year and returned almost every single letterwinner. This year, the Mustangs have been ranked among the top 10 in the state and sport impressive depth in every event. As for tennis, Northville captured its third consecutive WLAA Western Division title under coach Uta Filkin and boasted two of the most successful players in the state: Abby Edwards and Karen Vogt. Both completed undefeated campaigns.

As for football, the Mustangs were only 4-5 but a season ending victory over Novi — one of the best teams in the state — more than made up for some of the disappointments. Northville was very competitive and very talented but never seemed to put it all together until the Novi game. Seniors like Mike Karfis and Mike Hale were superstars and others like Rob Spadin, Todd Daniels and Sam Khashan were also standouts.

"It was one of the biggest football victories we've had in a long time," Colligan said. "We made a statement in the Novi game because we were so close to winning games like these and we finally did it. More than anything, we showed ourselves we could do it. If it had happened earlier in the season like against North Farmington (a 10-9 loss), maybe the season would have turned out different."

Colligan compared the upset of Novi to the stunning 52-17 victory his 1983 team had against a solid Plymouth Salem squad.

The boys and girls cross country teams ended with losing records but both programs established a base for future success. Four of the top five runners for Ed Gabrys' boys team were underclassmen, including freshman Steve Coon and sophomore Andy Haas — the top two. Nick Dunwoodie's girls were devastated by injuries but sophomore Marcie Dart emerged as a star of the future. And without losing any runners to graduation, Dunwoodie is looking forward to '89.

The only team that was a disappointment was probably soccer. Coach Dave Yezback's team suffered its first losing season in seven years. But the already young and inexperienced Mustangs were hit extra-hard by injuries to key players and a killer schedule in the second half of the season.

'88 football season featured season-ending win over Novi

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The following is a game-by-game recap of the 1988 Northville football season:

NORTHVILLE 9, BRIGHTON 7: The Mustangs got off to a nice start in the season-opener in Brighton on Sept. 3 by nipping the Bulldogs on a 41-yard Chris Kuffner field goal with time running out. Northville forced a fumble and scored its only touchdown with 41 seconds left in the first half and that set up Kuffner's heroics. The defensive effort was spectacular and it was a nice indication of things to come. Mike Hale led the way with 10 tackles.

NORTH FARMINGTON 10, NORTHVILLE 9: A botched extra point with five minutes on the clock probably cost the Mustangs a victory on Sept. 10. Northville outplayed the heavily-favored Raiders and took a slim 3-0 lead at halftime. North scored twice early in the first half to go in front 10-3 but the Mustangs came back with what appeared to be the game-tying touchdown from Mike Karfis. Unfortunately, the extra point attempt by Kuffner was blocked. For the game, Northville almost doubled the Raiders total offense numbers.

FARMINGTON HARRISON 35, NORTHVILLE 14: The Hawks' All-State quarterback Millard Coleman shredded the Mustang secondary for over 300 yards and four touchdowns in this lopsided affair on Sept. 17. The state's number-one ranked Class B team received an outstanding performance from flanker Bryan Waulderon as well. The Hawks took a 20-0 halftime lead and even though Northville narrowed it to 21-7 early in the second half, it wasn't long before Coleman was putting more points on the board. Mustang quarterback Greg Price threw three interceptions in the game.

NORTHVILLE 13, LIVONIA GURCHILL 10: In the home opener on Sept. 23, the Mustangs overcame some sloppy play — particularly in the first half — to edge the Chargers by three points. Tailback Randy Jones scored two touchdowns to make up for a pair of fumbles in the first quarter. Jones and fullback Mike Karfis combined for 146 yards in 24 carries.

PLYMOUTH CANTON 21, NORTHVILLE 15: Perhaps the lowest point of the season came on Sept. 30 when the Mustangs fell to winless Canton. It was a close game throughout with Northville trailing 12-8 at the intermission, but ahead 15-12 after three periods. Canton tied it with a field goal in the fourth and then won it with an impressive touchdown drive with less than three minutes remaining. It was a game Northville should have won, according to coach Darrel Schumacher. The Mustangs had more first downs and more total yardage, but lost the real battle on the scoreboard.

LIVONIA FRANKLIN 22, NORTHVILLE 8: The locals dropped their fourth game in five weeks against a capable Franklin team on the road, Oct. 8. The Patriots converted several Mustang turnovers into a 16-0 halftime advantage. The deficit grew to 22-0 before Northville put together a 73-yard scoring drive, culminated by a 33-yard run by Karfis. Price had his best outing of the season, connecting on 13-of-22 for 118 yards, but it wasn't enough.

NORTHVILLE 13, WALLED LAKE WESTERN 0: In only the second home game of the season on Oct. 14, the Mustangs shut out the Warriors, making the '88 Homecoming Game a success. A 49-yard drive gave Northville a 7-0 lead after two quarters of play and a 53-yard interception by Jones set up the second touchdown in the third period. Karfis rushed for 114 yards in 14 carries but it was the defense that made the big difference — holding Western to just 103 yards in total offense.

PLYMOUTH SALEM 21, NORTHVILLE 14: The Rocks' Pat Bowie rushed for 178 yards and three touchdowns in this WAAA cross-over match on Oct. 21. Salem never trailed in the game but Northville came back twice to tie the score at 7-7 and 14-14. The winning touchdown, a 14-yard run by Bowie, came in the final eight minutes of play. Bob Dudley led the defense with 11 solo tackles.

NORTHVILLE 23, NOVI 18: In a stunning upset, the Mustangs dumped previously unbeaten and state-ranked Novi on Oct. 28, to win possession of the new 'Baseline Jug' for the next year. The Northville defense notched a pair of safeties in the first half and the offense came alive with three touchdowns in the second half, including two key scores in the final 10 minutes of play. Karfis outdualed Novi's star runner Scott Wladischkin and defenders like Rob Spradlin, Todd Daniels and Sam Khshan were also key factors in the win.

Ocelot cage improving

Rebuilding is a fact of life every basketball coach must face. It just comes more often — like annually — to those in the junior college ranks. For Schoolcraft College men's coach Dave Bogataj, that may be a blessing. There's precious little Bogataj would like to keep from his first season as the Ocelot coach. Hired two weeks prior to the season's start, he ran into just about every catastrophe possible: player defections, academic ineligibilities, and, ultimately, losing. Not just losing, but blown-out losing. By season's end, walk-ons were starting against major college-caliber competition. So it was with some relief that Bogataj could announce, as his first full season as coach approached — SC opens at the Macomb Tip-Off Classic against Kellogg CC at 6 p.m. Friday — that he had an "all new" roster. Thirteen freshmen. Most coaches in his situation would be a bit apprehensive. Bogataj was relieved. "Once again, size is not our forte," he noted. "We're quick, and we're not as small as last year. All our players are between 6-foot-1 and 6-6". That's not big enough to challenge for the Eastern Conference championship, nor do the Ocelots have the talent and experience to be serious contenders. But they're far better than last season's 8-22 (1-15 in the conference) team, which relied on one player: Steve Hawley. There's no one of Hawley's caliber on the current roster, but there are five guards who should make the backcourt stronger overall. All five will play, and typical of Bogataj's brand of basketball, "They all can shoot. We've got some real nice shooters, and all of them can shoot the three-pointer." Which makes Bogataj's offensive strategy obvious, relying on the perimeter game, hoping it will "open it up inside for others."

Cataracts common among elderly

Dr. William Myers knows that seniors today are more active than ever.

An ophthalmologist, Myers is director of the Michigan Eyecare Institute. He earned his medical degree from the University of Michigan; cataract surgery is one of his specialties.

And one of his professional objectives is to help seniors maintain active lifestyles. So far, the oldest patient he has seen for cataract surgery is 106. Another patient was 70 years old and active in a bowling league.

"Chronology has very little to do with it as far as I'm concerned," he said. "Seniors are the kind of people who benefit the most. Their expectations are greatly increased in terms of what they want to achieve in life."

When Myers was a resident, "magic numbers" were used to determine when cataract surgery was needed. "The concentration now," he said, "is on something called visual needs."

Myers uses several criteria in determining whether surgery is called for. The first is that there be a cataract. A second or third opinion can be called for to determine that.

At birth, the lens in each eye is clear, except for those with congenital conditions. As some people age, the lens becomes cloudy. That's a cataract.

In deciding whether to perform surgery, Myers determines if the cataract is causing the problem. A visometer test — in which light is projected onto the back of the eye on the retina — can assess beforehand the outcome of the surgery.

Myers also asks if the patient is bothered by the loss of vision. "That's where this tremendous variability comes in," he said.

Cataracts are more common among older adults, although they can affect younger people as well.

"The method of removing the cataract has changed a great deal," he said. Myers and his colleagues prefer ultra-sound removal — a procedure in which a tiny incision is made and the cataract is dissolved with sound waves and removed.

From the doctor's standpoint, cataract surgery has become increasingly complex and difficult. The equipment is tremendously expensive and complex, and requires a support team (including nurses and technicians)," Myers said.

Ophthalmologist William Myers checks a patient for cataracts

But for patients, the surgery isn't at all difficult, he added. "From the patient's standpoint, it seems tremendously simple. And they're seeing very quickly."

After surgery, patients can do pretty much what they want. Myers has had patients go bowling or golfing the day after surgery.

Indicators of cataracts include a general blurring of vision. Some patients don't have that problem, but are bothered by glare from sunlight or headlights.

Those patients are often able to read the eye chart in the doctor's office, but have vision problems elsewhere.

Cataract surgery is done one eye at a time instead of both eyes at once

Myers said he generally waits four to eight weeks after doing one eye before operating on the second, although surgery is sometimes done sooner for those who have traveled a distance.

He said complications are rare, but advised that it's best to wait and be sure the first eye is perfect before operating on the second eye.

Cataract surgery, which has made great progress in recent years, goes back centuries. A technique used many years ago known as "couching" involved poking a sharp instrument into the eye to push the cataract back.

More than 50 years ago — in the pre-suture stage — cataract surgery involved extensive bed rest for the patient. A patient was surrounded by sand bags on the bed to keep him or her from moving. After sutures came about, that was not necessary.

Myers calls the early 1970s the "golden years" of eye surgery. Lens implants were worked on, as were other areas. "A whole host of lasers have come out in the intervening time," he said.

Myers also said the field of eye surgery will continue to be refined. It is possible that an injectable lens will become available. The procedure currently is being studied with animals.

Another type of lens being developed allows the patient to focus on objects both near and far away, but it isn't something you can ask for right now, said Myers.

If approved by the Food and Drug Administration, that lens, which works similar to bifocals, could become available in a year or two, according to Myers.

Disregard myths, let your cold run its course

By DOUG GRAMBEAU

As the gentle breezes of fall give way to the more, ornery winds of winter, more and more of us are faced with the most common of villains: the COLD. Myths abound about the whys and hows of the common cold, and, of course, about what to do to prevent it. How to treat it, once you have it and why it is you're never safe from this ubiquitous invader of our bodies.

Cause: Curiously enough, the agents of cause for most colds are called rhino viruses (perhaps because they make you feel 50 pounds heavier than that beast itself.) Transmission of these viruses can take place through a variety of avenues, but according to a recent study from the University of Wisconsin, the most common cause in adults is a result of airborne transmission. Children, on the other hand, tend to be more susceptible to direct contact.

Prevent colds: Since there is little we can do about it, once we have a cold, the sensible thing to try to prevent those "rhinos" from trampling us in the first place. Precautions include the following:

- wash your hands frequently, especially if you are around a carrier, and avoid touching your nose or eyes

- dispose of used tissues properly
- don't share objects that may come in contact with your face (utensils, phone, etc.) with someone who has a cold.

- paper towels and paper cups in the kitchen and bath are a good idea.
- cover your mouth and nose when sneezing/coughing, whether you have a cold or not.

Remedies: Calling in a witch doctor would be as effective as some of the "cures" invented throughout the centuries. The truth is that the best you can do is treat the symptoms and wait for the cold to run its course.

Treating the symptoms:

- hot drinks especially chicken soup, which increase the flow of nasal secretions and help you to feel better;

- tea with honey, which may bring relief to a sore throat,
- saltwater gargles (¼ teaspoon of salt in 8 oz. of warm water) may also be soothing to a sore throat.

Common misconceptions: When should I see a doctor?

There is nothing a doctor can do for a cold virus. Some symptoms, however, indicate the necessity of professional help: an oral temperature above 103 degrees, or a fever above 100 degrees that lasts more than three days generally indicates that something other than just a cold is involved.

Should I increase fluid intake?

Fluids may ease a dry throat and make you feel better but drink only as much as you want.

Do wet feet, drafts and overexposure cause colds?

No, in order to catch a cold you must come in contact with a virus. There may be some connection in susceptibility to viruses and the role of drafts, chills and wet feet but nothing has proven this to be the case.

Should I continue to exercise if I have a cold?

Listen to your body. If you feel up to exercise, go ahead. However, it is not possible to "sweat it out" of your system as many people believe. A break of two or three days in your program will not significantly set you back if you're not feeling up to it.

Common Sense: In the long run the best approach to dealing effectively with a cold is to use common sense. There are no cures for it and the remedies available may help relieve symptoms but the virus itself must run its course. If you are able to function quite normally with minor irritation, great. If, on the other hand, you feel miserable and cannot bear to face the world, then stay at home.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.

Major changes face fall hunters

Firearm deer and waterfowl hunters should be aware of major changes in this fall's regulations, which are not reflected in the 1988-89 Michigan Hunting Guide.

In addition, all hunters born on or after January 1, 1980, are reminded that before they can purchase a Michigan hunting license, they must present a Hunter Safety Certificate showing they have completed a hunter safety training course, (2) have proof of purchase of a previous hunting license from Michigan or any other state or (3) must sign an affidavit stating they have completed a hunter safety course or previously possessed a hunting license.

A list of all major waterfowl/firearm deer hunting changes for 1988-89 follows:

FIREARM DEER

1. Black-powder substitutes and the use of mini- and maxi-balls have been legalized for the December muzzle-loading season.
2. Black powder handguns, .44 caliber or larger, have also been legalized for hunting during the December muzzle-loading season.
3. Persons hunting with any center-fire or black-powder handgun during the November 15-30 firearm deer season, must now have a firearm license and a valid kill tag in possession.

4. Non-residents must now have a concealed pistol license to carry a handgun issued by their state that permits use of hunting. A safety inspection certificate alone will not suffice. (See page eight of the Michigan Hunting Guide.)

5. An amendment to the Off-Road Vehicle (ORV) law now allows persons with a permit to hunt from a standing vehicle to operate their ORV or snowmobile during the normal closed ORV hours of the firearm deer season, 7-11 a.m. and 2-5 p.m.

WATERFOWL
1. The point system has been eliminated for duck hunting this year and replaced with a conventional bag limit. Daily limit is three ducks (excluding mergansers), no more than two of which may be mallards (one female), two wood ducks, one black duck and one redhead. Effective Sept. 2, 1988, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service approved one pintail daily throughout the season, included in the daily bag. Canvasbacks may not be taken. Merganser limit is an additional five, only one of which may be a hooded merganser.

2. Steel shot requirements are in effect this year for the entire Lower Peninsula and surrounding waters and also for the Munuscong Waterfowl Area and the Potagannissing Flooding in the Upper Peninsula.

3. For the first time since 1977, there will be a quail season this fall for 19 counties in the Lower Peninsula. The season will run from Oct. 28 to Nov. 11 with a five quail daily bag limit. Open counties and other details are listed in the 1988 Waterfowl Hunting Guide. (Due to printing schedules, quail areas and bag limits were excluded from the 1988-89 hunting/trapping digest and placed in the Waterfowl Guide.)

The 1988-89 Michigan hunting and trapping guides may be obtained from DNR offices or from any of the 1,500 hunting license dealers statewide. For more information on hunting rules and regulations, contact the DNR's Law Enforcement Division (517-373-1263) or DNR Information Services Center (517-373-1220).

Don't Play With Stroke.

You can't afford to lose. Strokes are serious. If you've already had one, your risk of having another is many times greater than someone who has never had one. You should also watch your P's and Q's if your family has a history of heart disease or strokes, if you suffer from high blood pressure or obesity, or if you have been diagnosed with diabetes. All of these conditions increase your chance of having a stroke significantly, so you should learn to play this game strictly by the rules.

- High blood pressure is the greatest risk factor for stroke, and it usually has no symptoms. The only sure way to know is to have your blood pressure checked. If you are on high blood pressure medication, take it exactly as prescribed. Don't run out of pills, even for a single day.

- Know what you should weigh and work to maintain that weight.
- Follow your doctor's advice about exercise.
- Eat a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet and reduce salt intake.
- Don't smoke cigarettes.
- Know the warning signs of stroke. They spell DANGER.

Wildcat gridders advance to semifinals

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Big isn't necessarily better. The Novi gridders proved that point last Saturday (Nov. 12) by edging a mammoth Monroe squad 16-15 in the Region II State Football Finals at Jackson's Withington Stadium. The undersized and undermanned Wildcats staged a stunning comeback in the second half to erase a 15-0 deficit and are now just one victory away from a berth in the Class A state championship game in the Silverdome and just two victories away from a state title.

Yes, a state title. "I've been coaching a long time and we've had a lot of big wins, and I'd say this one ranks up there with the best," Novi Coach John Osborne said. "What can I say, I'm just impressed with our kids."

The victory moves the 'Cats to 10-1 on the year and into the semifinals to take on unbeaten Traverse City this Saturday (Nov. 19) at Houseman Field in Grand Rapids. Traverse City knocked Saginaw Arthur Hill out of the playoffs last weekend with a 30-19 triumph.

"We're playing with the big boys now and we're certainly holding our own — that's nice to see," Osborne said.

The win sent shock waves across the state. It was the only Class A quarterfinal match-up in which the favorite failed to win — but prior to the contest, nobody gave Novi much of a chance. The Trojan's average 6-foot-2, 240-pounds per man in the interior line — while Novi has just one starter with that kind of size ("Big" Bob Ahrens). To make the task appear even more impossible, the Wildcats were forced to play without the services of two-way lineman and leading tackler Darin Johnson. He was injured against Okemos a week earlier.

"I'm impressed with our kids ability to go out on the field and play the game," Osborne said. "They don't size up a team before hand. It doesn't matter to them how big or how fast the opponent is."

"But we're a better team than people give us credit for. We're a good team and we play well together."

The Monroe wishbone offense opened the game in high gear and put two quick touchdowns on the board. One coming on a 57-yard run and the other following a costly Novi turnover. The 'Cats threatened just before the end of the first half but came away empty handed and thoroughly dominated.

But the second half was a complete turnaround as Novi started to control things. Superstar runner Scott Wladischkin broke loose for two 50-yard plus runs and a pair of successful two-point conversions capped off the win. The Trojans managed just four first downs in the second half and never really threatened.

Amazingly, it was another second half shutout for the Wildcats defense in the MHSAA playoffs.

"It's just a matter of persevering and having faith in each other on defense," Osborne explained. "These kids don't know how to give up. It was another great, great effort."

Monroe took the opening kick, started at their own 35 and needed just five plays to score. Running back Rod Purkey went off tackle for 57-yard touchdown and then ran it in for the two-point conversion and an 8-0 lead.

On the first play of the second quarter, a bad snap on a punt gave the Trojans possession at the Novi 14 and three plays later Purkey made it 15-0 from a yard out. Monroe had another prime opportunity to add to the score when fullback Joel Scheffler coughed up the ball inside the Novi 25. When the defense stiffened, Lee Baird attempted a 28-yard field goal but it was blocked by Ahrens.

Novi's only scoring opportunity in the half came with less than a minute left. Brian Daniels blocked a Monroe punt setting the 'Cats up on the nine, but four plays netted just seven yards before time expired.

In the first half, Novi had just one first down and 36 yards of total offense.

The same two teams came out for the second half but something was different. Maybe the Wildcats made the correct adjustments in the locker room or maybe the Trojans were overconfident and suffered a let down. For whatever reason, Novi started to control the line of scrimmage and get back into the game.

A 52-yard run by Wladischkin was the key gain in a four-play, 77-yard drive that was capped off by quarterback Ken Kendrian's one-yard sneak. Wladischkin then hit tightback Mike Yankowski on a halfback-option pass for the two-point conversion.

The score remained 15-8 until Wladischkin reeled off another stunning run early in the fourth quarter. The senior speedster broke through the line on a counter play and raced 57 yards for the score. He then added a two-point conversion run with 11:51 left on the clock and it ended up being the game-winner.

"What a great one Scottie is," Osborne said. "He's got to get a (college) scholarship. He's a great kid and a great player."

Monroe moved into Wildcat territory two more times in the game but came away empty handed both times. With about eight minutes left, the Trojans failed to convert a fourth down and one situation at the 44. The game ended with Monroe inside the Novi 40.

"We wanted to run wide in the game and try to spread (Monroe) out defensively but we kept slipping on the turf," Osborne said.
