or looks ahead to 1989 in the City of Northville

By BOB NEEDHAM

It's been a little more than a year since Chris Johnson took office as Northville mayor, and it's the start of a brand new calendar year. With these occasions in mind, the Northville Record asked Johnson to sit down last week for a look back and a look shead at issues before the city. A slightly-edited transcription of the interview ap-

Being as general or specific as you want, could you assess the city's progress in the past year?

Johnson: I think we've made a fair amount of progress. We've done it in areas that aren't necessarily as visible. They're not splashy kinds of things.

I think there's been progress in having a lot more of the boards and commissions know what's going on in other boards and commissions. I think there's a lot more coordination than there was, in terms of long-range planning and almost immediate planning. Decisions aren't made now for a particular problem, to deal with it right now, without considering some of the long-range implications

That's a change in mind set, and that's a real difficult thing to get people to do. That's something I'm most pro-

We've made substantial progress on a lot of issues all over the city. The Main Centre project, for example, seemed to be on-off, on-off, on-off for years. I think what we had to do was really focus on the main issue of parking and what's an appropriate share for city taxpayers to fund in it, what's an appropriate share for the developer to fund in it. I think that project alone demonstrated that the city can be very flexible, come up with some new ideas, listen to new ideas as they were proposed, and then meld them all in a package.

Admittedly, we haven't started digging the footings for the foundation yet, but we're real close. That's something that really makes me pleased. I'm real pleased about

One thing that I thought was real important was getting the lockup remodeling done. It's not an issue that is a glamor issue by any means. Getting the funds for the gasoline and Diesel storage tanks was an important thing. Not something that's glamorous — you don't go show off your new storage tanks — but it's one of those kind of investments that if you don't make it today, you make it twice as much down the road.

I'm real pleased to see that the city is doing those kinds of things with infrastructure that (are) going to make our job a whole lot easier three, four, five years down the road, even though you can't point to "Oh, yeah, that gasoline storage tank looks great." That's the kind of thing that I think I am most pleased with, the way the city.

Did you have any qualms with the way the Main Centre financing eventually worked out, using tax capturing?

Johnson: It was a creative solution to a problem that we couldn't solve, I thought, in many other ways. So long as all the parties knew about it going in, I felt com-

I especially thought it was important that the school district be aware, participate and approve of it. Because ultimately, as we discussed so many times, I think it's beneficial to all the taxpayers in the Northville Public Schools to have something like that project come on the tax rolls.

In the short term, it's a minimal increase. In the long term, it's a substantial increase. That's kind of what I was saying before about the community is looking forward instead of (saying) "What am I going to get today? What's today's bottom line?" They temper today's bottom line with what's possible in the future, and that's I think the important thing.

Other officials to fill slot in township

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Two weeks after receiving a resignation from Manager Steve Brock, township officials indicated department heads and staff will "pick up the slack" until an appointment is made.

'In this type of situation, everyone pulls together," said Supervisor Georgina Goss. "The department heads will pick up some extra work and I will pick up a portion until a new manager is hired.'

Although the added duties may place a strain on local government employees, Goss said a normal timetable for hiring employees will be followed and no urgent hiring will be made.

'We don't operate under urgent conditions. With proper cooperation we will get the job done until we find the best possible candidate for township manager," she noted.

Goss said she assumes a search committee will be formed in selecting a candidate to fill Brock's position. She added however, no formal plans will be made until the next board of trustees meeting on Jan. 12.

In previous township hirings, search committees have consisted of three board members and two township residents.

Brock, who was hired as township manager in Dec. 1986 to replace the late Bruno Scacchitti, had been retained on a one-year contract, which was typically negotiated in late January

Goss said Brock's 1987 contract had to be approved by the board of trustees, but his 1988 contract was herself and Brock.

She noted negotiations on his 1989 contract had not begun prior to Brock's tendering of his resignation.

In addition to the township manager, the financial director, planning and zoning administrator and building official all work under a one-year contract or what's known as an Employee Service Agreement.

In the recently approved 1989 budget, the board set the township manager's salary at $31,500, a 3.3 percent increase from the preceeding year.

Brock, 28, said the fact that a new contract had not yet been negotiated played no role in his decision to leave the manager's position.

"I just feel that it's time to move on," Brock said. "When I was hired I felt I would like to stay longer than two years, but I decided that I would do an assessment after being here for two years.

"When doing the assessment, I felt that if I was having an impact on the community and trustees I would stay longer, but it did not seem to pan out and it seemed the time to go."

Brock, who came to Northville from Hortonville, Wis., where he was village manager, said his job mostly entailed acting as a liason between department heads and the board.

'I was mainly responsible for getting the funding that department heads needed to accomplish their Ground - make that cement could be broken for the project at Main and Center streets by early summer.

In a talk to the Northville Rotary Club Tuesday, officials behind the development updated its status. And they said if everything falls into place, construction should be well underway this summer.

"We think it's going to be a terrific success for us as well as the city and surrounding community," said 'like Kahm, vice prosident of Singh Development Company, "This is a project we feel very strongly about and are moving ahead with it."

Steps yet to be taken include finishing design drawings and get-ting permits from the city. In addition, a contract with the city over parking has yet to be finalized. Once all that is done, construction can begin — probably by June or July, Kahm said.

The development is planned for the southwest corner of Main and Center streets, stretching all the way down to Cady Street on the abandoned Northville Lanes property.

The plans approved by the city call for a building of four stories on Cady and three stories on Main, with the difference coming because of the Center Street hill. The Center Street frontage will go in steps from three to four stories.

Most of the building will consist of about 70 luxury apartments, both one- and two-bedroom, some in a townhouse configuration. Rents are expected to range between $650 and $1,000. Size ranges from 650 square feet to 1,300 square feet.

"There's quite a range in opportunity, depending on what people are looking for," architect George Erdstein said.

Retail stores totalling about 19,500 square feet are pigured along the ground level of Main and Center streets. The ground level on Cady is expected to house a restaurant In addition, there will be a small amount of office space. Outside, the building will be mostly brick. Features will include a recessed courtyard above the first level and a short tower right on the Main / Center corner. The project is designed "to keep the scale down to the Victorian character that is cherished so much here," Erdstein

"We feel very strongly this will be a major addition to the city, a positive one, and we're very excited about it," Erdstein added.

Kahm said the project is Singh's first apartment venture in this area. The company developed the Quail Ridge and Pheasant Hills subdivi-

One baby in running to be first in 1989

One entrant has already been received in the annual Northville First Baby Contest.

Each year the Northville Record and local merchants sponsor a First Baby Contest for the first-born baby of the new year. As of press time Tuesday one family had notified The Record about a 1989 birth. Anyone else who knows of a birth should contact the Record office.

The first baby born in 1989 to parents with a Northville mailing address, and the baby's parents, will receive 12 gifts in the 33rd annual First Baby contest.

The deadline for birth announcements is noon, Tuesday, Jan. 10. Parents, neighbors or friends may report the birth to the Record at 349-1700. Time of birth must be confirmed by the attending physician or the hospital in which the baby is born.

Local merchants welcoming the First Baby of Northville in 1989 and their gifts include:

Schrader's developer seeks parking deal

By BOB NEEDHAM

The redeveloper of the old Schrader's Home Furnishings site on Center has asked the city for a deal on parking space credits, and the request may spur a redraft of the city's parking policy.

Gary George and GCD Development are restoring the old Schrader's site into three separate buildings for retail and office use. The first tenant, a bike shop, is open for business.

As part of the redevelopment, the project needs to find 30 new parking spaces under the city's formula for parking requirements.

At a recent City Council meeting, GCD Development proposed buying credits from the city for $2,000 per space, with the assumption that the new spaces would come through a reconfiguration of City Lot Number 2, right behind the project.

Joseph Fazio, representing the developer, proposed a 15-year, semiannual payment schedule beginning next July.

In the past, the city had charged a flat rate of $1,800 per space. That was replaced with a policy saying the charge would basically match the actual cost of developing the new parking When parking for the planned Main Centre development became an issue, the city and Singh Development settled on the basics of an agreement under which Singh will provide some spaces on its own, and Singh and the city will share the cost of a parking deck.

In support of his proposal, Fazio said the Schrader project was a changing use of an existing facility, and that the city has not charged more than $1,800 per space in such a situation. George used that figure in working out the project, he added. Fazio also said George has spent about $200,000 on the renovation, and that restriping the lot could probably get 30 spaces at about $2,000 each.

"A charge above $2,000 will seriously hamper his ability to continue the project, or anybody else,' Fazio said.

The City Council members voted to ask the city administration for a general parking policy which would address the GCD request.

Mayor Chris Johnson said a problem with the flat rate of $1,800 was that the city found it impossible to provide parking spaces for that City Manager Steve Walters said the developer was not waiting until the last minute to make the request; that George had looked into parking concerns months ago but was delayed by the city until the Singh situation was resolved.

Township OKs large-lot subdivision off Beck

By BRENDA DOOLEY

Following suit with a decision recently made by planners, Northville Township Board of Trustees approved preliminary plans for construction of Pickford Meadows subdivision.

The proposed subdivision consists of about 25 acres south of Seven Mile Road, east of Beck Road. Pickford Meadows consists of 12 lots. Lying to the north of the site is the proposed Crestwood Manor subdivision, which also gained preliminary approval from both the township board of trustees and the planning commission.

Likewise, Northville Township Planning Commission approved preliminary plans for the Pickford Meadows subdivision at its Nov. 29 meeting.

Trustee Richard Allen, who acts as a liaison between the planning commission and board of trustees, told board members that access to the development would be obtained via Pickford

Street, currently a gravel stub street.
The developer plans to pave a portion of Pickford, a factor questioned by Township Treasurer Richard Henningsen.

Project developers explained that the paved road was part of the service provided to residents living in Pickford Meadows subdivision. Trustee Thomas Handyside pointed out the existence of long leads to the proposed sanitary system and asked that they be reviewed again before final site plan approval was granted.

When being considered by the planning commission, residents living along Pickford expressed concerns about the condition of the street and the impact a subdivision would have on it. They noted that the road is already difficult to maintain.

Although planners sympathized with the residents' concerns, it was noted that the road lies under county jurisdiction, leaving the township no authority over it.

Developers agreed that they would take responsibility for maintaining the road during construction of the subdivision.

TIMING AND TOOTHBRUSHING

Does toothbrushing prevent tooth decay? One has to wonder because tooth decay is widespread despite the increased sale of toothbrushes and dentifrices.

There are reasons for this paradox. One is that the toothbrush is usually not used at the time when it could be the most effective. Acid the most effective. Acid formation on the tooth surface begins within moments after sugar has entered into the secluded areas and reaches a maximum in 15 to 30 minutes. This is why the toothbrush should be used immediately exert its greatest effect in disrupting acid formation. Brushing teeth after getting up or before going to bed has teeth after getting a beneficial cosmetic effect and a stimulating action on the gum tissue, but is not of much help in controlling tooth decay.

If the teeth canot be brushed promptly after meals or snacks that have a high sugar content, rinse the mouth thoroughly with water. The flushing action can remove the soluble, fermentable sugar from the sheltered areas before the acid attack takes place.

Police Blotters

Three auto windows smashed in one night at track single night at Northville Downs last week, according to city police

In the earliest reported case, the passenger window was broken on a 1986 Lincoln Mark IV parked at the track The hand-held receiver was stolen from the car's Mitsubishi mobile phone, a report said. The incident took place between 7 15 and 10 30 p m Tuesday, Dec 27

Between 9 30 and 10:45 p m., a window was smashed on a 1986 Ford Taurus parked in the main lot Between 7 30 and 11 p m, the rear window was broken on a 1985 Cadillac Seville A lug wrench — apparently thrown through the window - was found inside the car, a report said

AUTOS COLLIDE - Minor injuries resulted when high speed caused a driver to lose control of a car on Sheldon last week, according to a city police report

A Flymouth resident was driving north on Sheldon at Hines Drive at 9 30 a m Tuesday, Dec 27, when the driver lost control of the car, the report said. The car went across the center of the road and ran into another auto pulling a horse trailer, spun around, hit the other car again, crossed the road and finally stopped when it hit a barricade

The driver was taken to University Hospital in Ann Arbor complaining of hangings

Three different incidents of car leg pain Tickets were issued for a window smashing were reported on a basic speed violation and for driving basic speed violation and for driving on a suspended license. Two people in the other car said they received bumps on the head, but declined to be taken to the hospital, the report said.

> BRAKE FAILURE - A car brake failure just below Main Street on the Center Street hill caused an accident last week, and the driver turned out not to have a license

According to a city police report, at about 2:20 p.m Tuesday, Dec. 27, the brakes of an auto driven by a Northville resident failed when the car tried to stop for a red light on Center at Main. The brakes did not work and the car coasted backward, hitting another vehicle, the report said.

The driver was ticketed for improper backing, driving with a license revoked, and defective equipment No injuries were reported

ALLEN TERRACE VANDALISM Some damage was done to the furniture and carpeting at Allen Terrace, the city's senior citizen apartment building, when a fire extinguisher was sprayed in some common areas of the building. According to a city police report, at around 5:30 p.m. Monday someone took fire extinguishers from the walls and sprayed them in the hallways The foam damaged three sofas, five chairs, five tables and some wall

The mist left over from the extinguishers also made the building's fire alarms go off, the report said.

HIGH SCHOOL VANDALISM - A window was reported broken at Northville High School recently, a city police report said

The window was discovered broken by a police officer on patrol. It was not immediately known when the damage was done

The window was apparently shot with a BB or pellet gun, the report

RETURN OF THE GRINCH -Two homes in the city had strings of Christmas lights stolen from their yards on New Year's Eve, according to city police reports.

Between 9 and 11 p.m. a Reed Court home was robbed of about 15 strings of large blue lights. Between 10:30 p m. and 4:30 p.m. the next day, a Welch home had three strings of multicolored lights and a six-foot extension cord stolen

CAR STOLEN - A 1983 Cadillac Eldorado was stolen from the Northville Downs parking lot Thursday night, a city police report said.

The car, owned by a Detroit resident, was taken between 7:15 and 10 p.m. It was reported as blue and silver in color and worth about $11,000.

items were stolen and other damage done at McDonald Ford recently, a city police report said.

Between 6:30 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. the next morning, four tires and wheels were stolen from two cars parked at McDonald Ford on Seven Mile. Another wheel was off the axle and jammed into a wheel well, and some wheel locks were broken off.

Total stolen and damaged was put around $2,400.

The night before, a black tonneau cover and three support bars were stolen from the bed of a pickup truck parked at the business, a police report said. CAR THEFTS — Two cars were stolen last week from the Meijer store parking lot, according to township police reports. Last Thursday, a 1984 red Trans Am worth $6,000 was reported stolen sometime between 11:45 p.m. and 3:30 a.m. from the north end of the parking lot.

The victim said clothing, baseball equipment and 50 cassette tapes were inside the car and were stolen

Police said they found no physical evidence.

In the second incident, a 1984 silver Mercury Cougar worth $6,600 was reported stolen last Friday. $180 worth of cassette tapes, a $100 radar detector and a $15 jumper cable were inside the car, the victim reported.

ATTEMPTED RIP-OFF Township police report an attempted robbery last Monday from Meijer.

According to the store detective, he observed the suspect, a Highland Park resident, select a keyboard off of the shelf and pull off the price tag. The suspect then attempted to obtain a refund for the item. Unable to obtain the refund, the suspect tried to leave the store with the keyboard, but was apprehended by the detec-

The suspect was charged with larceny and held in jail. He was released to Brownstown Township police, who arrested him for being unable to post bail.

DRUNK DRIVING ROUNDUP —

City and township police issued five citations for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor (OUIL) over the holiday weekend, according to reports.

At 2:34 a.m. Friday, police stopped a Northville resident after seeing the auto weave along Main and Hutton streets. After having trouble with preliminary sobriety tests, a breath test at the station showed a blood alcohol level of .16 percent. Anything above .10 is considered OUIL. The driver was also ticketed for violating a restriction on the hours allowed to bond.

Ethics code talks continue in city

By BOB NEEDHAM

A proposed code of ethics for city employees and board members continues to take shape with suggestions from the affected people themselves.

City Manager Steve Walters proposed the code of conduct — covering conflicts of interest and similar concerns - in November, and has been collecting comments and reactions since then The code has been presented to city groups like the Planning Commission, Historic District Commission and Board of Zoning appeals, as well as to the City Council.

The Northville City Charter currently contains a few paragraphs about financial misconduct. But in introducing the idea, Walters said those standards are too limited and not grouped together. A formal set of standards would provide a base for employees and board members to judge when they should bring a possi-ble conflict of interest to the attention of others, and for the City Council to judge possible cases of misconduct,

The status of the proposal was updated at the City Council meeting Monday, Dec. 19. "I think (the proposal) was generated because we didn't have any standards or any guide posts," Mayor Chris Johnson said Monday. "We're trying to avoid the problem before it becomes a problem.

Walters said some board members had recently asked for some might imply it.'

guidelines. Much of the proposal is based on state law, he added

The proposal has not been voted on by the council, but is scheduled to return to the council agenda for Mon-

Much of the policy would prohibit an employee or member of a board or commission from getting any special benefit — either personal or financial — from their position with the city. Possible conflicts would be reported to a supervisor or head of the board / commission, which could discuss the situation

Other provisions would prohibit disclosure of confidential information and presenting a personal opinion as that of an agency.

At Monday's meeting, Walters presented some additions to the proposed code which came from suggestions he received One change is the addition of examples to distinguish when a conflict of interest may be present:

"A DDA plan which benefits a DDA member (required to have a financial interest in the district) in the same general way as other property owners in the district would not imply a conflict of interest, whereas a unique benefit to a member's specific property could imply it. A decision to extend a water main to serve an en-tire subdivision in which a council member lives would not imply a conflict of interest, whereas a decision to extend a water main to exclusively serve a council member's property

Township introduces ordinance to regulate mining

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Tight government control on the mining of sand or gravel from township land is one step closer to reality, as the board recently introduced an amendment to the existing mining ordinance

On a 6-1 vote, board members approved the ordinance amendment which will require excavators to receive a special land permit before mining

The amendment will be presented to the board for final approval at its Jan 12 meeting

Supervisor Georgina Goss, Clerk Thomas Cook, Treasurer Richard Henningsen and Trustees Richard the of Don Williams and Tom Handyside voted for the amendment Trustee James Nowka voted against it

Plaining Director Carol Henry said the new amendment is the second of a two-step process in making the township's mining laws as restrictive as possible under state statutes

Henry said the board passed an amendment last September requiring businesses to obtain a license from the township before mining

The impending amendment would require businesses to also obtain a special land use permit from the township as well Henry said to obtain a land use permit, the excavator would have to submit a detailed plan of land restoration or reclamation and some form of bonding.

Both the mining license and special land use permit would have to be approved by both the planning commission and board of trustees to become effective.

"I like these amendments because they require the business to submit a specific restoration plan," Henry said "Businesses will have to tell us what they intend to take out and how much, among other things. In other words, these amendments will protect the township from businesses coming in, digging big holes and just leaving Hemy added she assumes the mining license and land permit will be applied for at the same time. "This may seem overlapping, but it is very straightforward.

Supervisor Goss said in creating the amendment, it is her intention to make it as restrictive as allowable under Michigan Law

'This is a good ordinance because it has a lot of meat and it gives us a lot of control," Goss said "We're trying to protect ourselves against someone who won't restore the land and make it a benefit to the townwship.

However, Trustee James Nowka said he feels the amendment is not strong enough and does not give the board sufficient control.

"I feel that mining has as much value to Northville Township as a major airport," Nowka said. "Since the mining ordinance is not tied to the zoning ordinances, I don't know if it is thorough enough to protect us.' Trustee Richard Allen said although the new amend ment is a tad wordy, he has been assured by Township Attorney Ernest Essad that the mining ordinance is strong enough and has been successfully tested in court. "Land fills usually are the end result of mining, so I was primarily looking for tight controls on reclamation and restoration," Allen said "And I think this ordinance provides for it"

Essad was unavailable for comment as of press time

Fire destroys Highland home

A Christmas Day fire completely gutted a home on Inlet Court, according to a release from the Northville Township Fire Department Preliminary reports indicate that a fire was observed near the Christmas tree in the home, part of the Highland Lakes condominium complex, at 5 43

The residents were at home when the fire started and tried to extinguish it, but could not do so, the release said. The Northville Township Fire Department responded and extinguished the blaze.

The interior of the residence was completely destroyed There were no reports of injury to residents. Chief Robert Toms said that "three or four" of the firefighters responding to the fire were injured at the site, but none were taken to hospitals. Toms said that firefighters were injured when they fell through the floor

Officials are investigating the cause of the fire. The Christmas tree was an artificial tree, Toms said in a phone interview Tuesday. The fire chief said the condominium unit was a complete loss.

No additional information is being released at this time.

Omnicom Cable raises rates its rates as of the beginning of the year, and that means higher bills for everyone in Northville.

Omnicom is the cable company servicing Northville City and Township residents

According to Lisa Boland, Omnicom general manager, the company is paying more for cable programming and is merely passing a portion of that increase on to its subscribers

"We were hit very hard with programming rate increases," Boland said "They went up in excess of 30 percent." She said that usually the increases amount to only a 5-10 per-

In addition Boland said that the company is now evening out the price structure between the three communities it services — Plymouth, Canton and Northville The three communities were not previously governed by the same rates, but will be following this month's change.

Northville, Northville Township, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township subscribers with basic service only - 25 percent of subscribers - will pay $17 a month. That's up from the 1988 rate of $14.50. Basic service includes about 40 channels with no premium movie chan-

The Northuille Record

Our Opinion

The year ahead: In the city

As usual, the Record is taking this space to help set an annual agenda for local governments — to identify some issues we think ought to be addressed during the year.

In the city, two big concerns of residents are parking and traffic. As downtown becomes more of an attraction for visitors, these problems just get worse. With a traffic study in hand and two others — a Master Plan update and a Cady Street-area study — in the pipeline, the city is poised for some large strides. Realistically, the op-portunities for action this calendar year may be limited; the studies need completion. But the opportunities are definitely not nonexistent. The traffic study did include some isolated suggestions which would not impact any major changes, and many of these would not cost much. And the reconfiguration of city parking lots needs to move ahead quickly to provide some needed relief.

Getting the development at Main and Center streets off the ground is another big concern. The details of the parking funding agreement need to be worked out soon. The development obviously won't be finished this year, but it should see significant building pro-

Along similar lines, the future of the Northville Ford Plant site ought to be settled. Assuming it closes some time early in the year, the city will have to play a role in figuring out the best use for the site. A top priority should be preservation of the water wheel and the area for the ducks and

As the Cady Corridor study takes shape, the city will face an interesting challenge in attracting appropriate private development to the area. We like Mayor Chris Johnson's idea to charge the Downtown Development Authority with this task, and we hope it comes about.

Looking at the community as a whole, one of the most important issues is the library's lack of space. The situation is not worthy of the rest of the community. With a public hearing on a site for a new building planned for February, that should provide enough time for township and city officials to settle on a site and send a financing proposal to voters. The city election in November would be a good

Park development efforts will continue to require a lot of attention from recreation officials. The year certainly ought to see a final resolution of the Lapham Field purchase, and certainly one more effort — of some sort or another — to develop the Beck Road

Back in the saddle

By Bruce Weintraub

Wow! I can't leave this place for a minute without something major happening. I was gone for only five weeks and on my first day back I find out the township manager and a planning commissioner both resign and a subdivision off of Six Mile Road is denied by both the board and planning commission.

Yes, I am alive and no, I haven't moved on to "bigger and better things.'

With the help of medical science and a huge pot of Mom's chicken noodle soup, I survived the dreaded fiveweek ordeal more commonly known as mononucleosis.

Twenty-five pounds and three waist sizes later, I entered the newsroom for the first time last Wednesday and felt a chill run up and down my spine. I mean it really felt good to be back after five miserable weeks in bed.

The first week of my sickness wasn't bad. I got plenty of needed rest, and I caught up on some reading that I put off because of work. As that first week went on, though, I got progressively more sick and ended up spending the second week of my illness at Sinai Hospital in

Now this should not be looked at as a knock against the medical profession, because being in the hospital definitely speeded up my recovery. But being in the hospital can be a very unnerving experience. X-rays at 10 p.m. and blood tests at 5:30 a.m. made the first two days of my five-day stay a bit hectic. However, now that I have completely recovered I thank the Lord for the great care I got in the hospital. And I thank Him for health in-

Although I was sick, being out of work for five weeks is a strain on everyone. My co-workers did a great job in pitching in for me during my absence. It certainly helped me to know I was getting plenty of support by everyone at the Record.

While I'm at it, I may as well thank my family and my girlfriend Rachel for their continued help and support during the entire ordeal. I know caring for me for five weeks wasn't easy for them. Thanks a lot.

But, now that I'm well, I'm ready to dive back into the issues facing the township and school district. Key issues in the coming months include the appointment of a new township manager, the impending sale of Wayne County-owned land, and the definitive solution to the Amerman Elementary overcrowding.

I'm sure there will be a lot of other important news for Northville residents happening in the new year, and feeling fit as a fiddle, I'm excited to get started.

Now, if I could only find my pen and notebook.

In the township

Possibly the most pressing and talked about issue in the township is developing greater local government control over the drilling of oil. Local legislators have vowed to introduce legislation attempting to give the local units that control. It is imperative that township leaders lobby hard for legislation on this issue. Keeping the pressure on county and state leaders is the best way for Northville Township to move this issue along.

County land. These two words have been an enigma to both township officials and residents for the years. Time and again county officials present a plan of action for the sale of the 1,040 acres of land it owns in the township; and time and again those plans fall far short of fruition. The latest timetable submitted by the county calls for the land to be sold to developers by April, 1989. Township officials must make the sale of this land a priority for this year. That means continued pressure on the county for

With the unexpected resignation of Township Manager Steve Brock, the township is about to undergo a shakeup at one of its most important posts. The township manager does not have a vote on the board. but, because the elected officials hold only part-time positions, he or she does control the day-to-day function of the government. The manager's position is crucial to a smoothly run and fiscally responsible local government unit.

The appointment of a person to fill this position must take place in a timely manner. That appointment will definitely affect the township in the coming year and so must be done with cautious and measured regard for the

Finally, with the YCUA/WTUA sewer agreement in place, the township could undergo a development boom in the near future. However, armed with a strong set of ordinances including the newly passed woodlands ordinance — the board and planning commission possess tight control over the type of development that will be seen in Northville Township. Without putting a halt to the development process, we hope the board will preserve the character and beauty residents have come to expect

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

"What an idiot," she bellowed as Mike Gillette's chip shot, even-I-could-make-it field goal called wide left or wide right or whatever stupid direction it sailed at the end of the second quarter.

'What a choke artist," she roared. "Why does Schembechler keep that clown on the team? Why waste a scholarship on somebody who chokes every time the pressure is on?

'If that Bozo had kicked that easy field goal against Notre Dame earlier this year, Michigan would probably be headed for the national championship right now . . if they could just stop trying to give this game away."

She was mad, bless her little maize-and-blue heart. Ranting and raving after every overthrown and underthrown pass. Stomping around the living room like the game mattered or something.

It got worse in the second half as first one two-point conversion attempt - and then another - went awry.

But, just as I had promised, things worked out in the end. Michigan prevailed. Snapped the post-season jinx, and won the Rose Bowl for General Bo.

"See, my little Wolverine-ette," I said. "I knew all along that everything would work out just fine. Ya can't let little things like missed field goals bother you."

And that, sports fans, is just exactly how it happen-

In the schools

The coming year could be one of the most exciting in recent memory for the Northville school district. The district will begin its strategic planning program on Jan. 26 and that will kick off a year-long intensive look forward for all members of the Northville community.

The hiring of an outside consulting firm to direct this planning should in-sure that the district goes beyond mere philosophy and develops concrete, definable and measurable goals for the schools. This planning sequence will affect the way education is run in Northville for years to come, and its importance to the community should not be minimized.

The district must come away with a mission statement which will summarize what the people of Northille expect from their schools. The planning team must address the issues of curriculum, overcrowding and the economic future of the schools. This is an ideal opportunity for community members to determine what students should be taught, how they will be taught and in what sort of physical set-

Other issues needing the school district's attention in 1989 include the immediate problem of overcrowding at Amerman Elementary School. School officials have begun to outline possible solutions for this matter and they must come to a decision before tne start of school next fall. The strategic planning process will no doubt be of help in this area.

In addition, the district must address community concerns regarding the Eight Mile Road and Center Street intersection. While preliminary talks have begun between the city, county and school officials, the district should take the lead in pressing for continued work on this. Accidents are occurring with some regularity at the intersection and the issues of speeds and turning traffic need to be dealt with before another school year begins.

Everyone should know cocaine facts

This another in the continuing series of columns written for the Record by Charles Stilec, Northville High School Student Assistance Program Coordinator.

This is Part III of a three part series "Everyone Should Know Cocaine Facts." Blair Miller MSW, CSW, program supervisor for Inpatient Health Center, Detroit, and member Northville Action Council did much of the work for this series.

Cocaine is a powerful, frightening drug. It knows no economic, cultural or geographical boundaries, it is easily obtainable and we have noticed an increased interest in cocaine in the last few months. However, let's back up for a moment and look at the age drug use begins for many cocaine users.

The 1986-87 Pride Questionnaire Summary Report revealed that 6 percent of high school students in grades 9-12 reported using cocaine within the last year. This percentage increased to 9 percent for seniors. A higher percentage of the cocaine users were males (64 percent) as compared to females (36 percent).

First, use of the gateway drugs (cigarettes, alcohol and marijuana) revealed that the adolescent cocaine user was much more likely to begin using these drugs at an early age than were non-cocaine using

For example, approximately one-fifth of the cocaine using students began using cigarettes and alcohol under the age of 10 years and this percentage increased to more than one-third of the students by the time they reached 11 years old. Marijuana use for cocaine users was even more dramatic. Nearly half (49 percent) of cocaine using students reported first use of marijuana at 13 years or under as compared to the total sample use of ten percent (i.e., cocaine users were five times more likely to have reported this early use of marijuana than students in the total sam-

In looking at the frequency of other drug use by cocaine users the data suggests that these students not only began using gateway drugs at an early age but have remained frequent users of these and other drugs. The majority of cocaine users are poly drug users who use alcohol and marijuana on a weekly or daily basis and who use other drugs such as uppers, downers and hallucinogens on a regular but less frequent basis.

The parents of adolescents, as well as concerned others, need to realize the age of onset of drug use (cigarettes included) is critical, according to Dr. Estroff, a noted child and adolescent psychiatrist. The younger they are the faster they develop serious problems (10-12 times faster) due to not being mature and in many ways are unstable and unable to handle the consequences of drug use.

Cocaine use progresses rapidly and the following symptoms usually indicate criteria for entering an inpatient setting:

- 1. Violence
- 2. Weapon possession
- Attempt to kill self or others
- 4. Behavior out of control
- 5. Withdrawl 6. Can't quit use through outpatient set-
- 7. Court order

8. Danger of withdrawl from amount and frequency

9. Parents unable to control 10. Drug-induced physical illness

Act now, intervene early, get to know your childs' activities. Adolescents because of vulnerability need to be treated for several things: psychiatric disorders, drug dependency, learning disabilities, etc. It's seldom that a person comes in voluntarily to get off cocaine. They need to be forced in

The cocaine prevention battle, according to Ellen Morehouse, director of adolescent treatement at Stony Lodge Hospital in New York, really begins with cigarettes and alcohol. Not everyone who smokes or drinks turns to cocaine, but there are very few cocaine users who did not first use tobacco, marijuana or alcohol at an early

Foreign sports stories

By Neil Goeghegan

As a person who's never set foot in a foreign country other than Canada, I have always been interested in faraway places all over the world. How do the people live? What is peculiar about their culture? And what about the big cities, the architecture, the roads and the buildings?

One way to get a pretty accurate idea about a foreign city is to to look at one of its newspapers. That's why when my mother-inlaw returned from a vacation in London, I was pleased and interested to see she brought home a copy of "The Sunday Times" — the largest newspaper in the British Isles.

It was dated Dec. 11 and was as thick as a novel. Right at the top of the front page it proudly proclaimed a Sunday circulation of 1,270,000 — mighty impressive. The cost: 60 pence, which is a little over a dollar.

My first impression was surprise. I was very stunned to see an eight-column advertisement at the bottom of the front page. The front page! The ad was for Kuoni Airlines, hawking exotic holidays to places like upper Egypt, the Caribbean and South America.

But each story was written in very eloquent style with typical British rlair. The author's names were even impressive. The lead story about the high death toll in Armenia was penned by Simon Freeman and Angus Roxburgh — but my favorite was Neville Hodgkinson.

Among the many sections were 'Books', 'Appointments' (jobs) and 'New Society'. The lead item in the 'Review' section was a piece entitled "The Magic of Burton", as in Richard. The 'Sunday Times Magazine' was in the mold of a 'Parade' but was bigger, more colorful and more classy. The lead story in the magazine was "Britain Buys America" — a look at all the U.S. companies now owned by Great Britain interests - they say $60 billion worth.

Not surprisingly, the area of most interest to me was the sports pages, which were buried in the back of the first section, and were a scant five pages. The top story was a feature on a racehorse named Desert Orchid and then there was a column about the BBC Sports Personality of the Year Award by a distinguished gent named Brough Scott. There were also reports on various sports like cricket, sailing and

I was especially interested in a game story by Brian Glanville because it was crafted by a writer who obviously has a mastery of the English language. The first few paragraphs were easily read and lavichly expressive. The words seemed to flow off the page with impressive pace. But I noticed one big problem — you really couldn't understand what he was writing about. In the body of the copy, Glanville never gave the actual score, the two competing teams or the sport!

Here's the first paragraph: What you might call an expense of spirit in a waste of shame. Less moral shame than technical shame. You could tell that Christmas was coming by the good-natured frequency with which both teams gave the ball away. Sterile it was, and goalless it properly ended.

Through intense investigation, I discovered that the author was giving his account of a 0-0 soccer match between Norwich City and Arsenal

In all, it was very interesting and revealing. I read every sport story from front to back and enjoyed them all. But on many of them, I still couldn't tell you what they were

Johnson seeks to maintain level of services in city

I felt very comfortable with it, because everybody knew what we were doing and why were doing it We must have discussed that particular plan for months before it actually came into reality So there was a lot of opportunity for people to comment and question and iron out all the issues before we got involved with it

One thing that's been a big concern, especially during the last part of the year, is the three studies — the Master Plan update, the Cady Corridor study and the Ford plant study. When can the residents hope to see the tangible results of those studies?

Johnson If you're talking about a brick and-mortar-type solution, we're still a couple of years away from actually seeing some building going on

But I think you see some sort of tangible result when you consider what happens on Cady Street as a part of the whole process of what's going on downtown, and seeing the Ford redevelopment as a continual part of that So often, we were tending to look at things in bits and pieces without the overall focus. I think by having these studies going on and being aware of what's happening with all the individual studies, there's a significant benefit that's tangible to the community right now

The ideas were going to generate in all the studies, I think, will be useful all over town We're not going to have a situation where any one group is working in isolation I think that's a tangible result

We're probably going to be looking at receiving preliminary reports on the Cady Corridor for the Downtown Development Authority this spring, so we can react to those. Financing is one of the key components of that.

The idea of how to generate more parking spaces is going to be one of the central portions of the Cady redevelopment, and probably is the focus of one of the biggest problems the city faces However we actually generate more physical parking, you can't wave a magic wand and solve that kind of a problem. When the Cady Corridor study reaches a conclusion — which I hope it will be doing this summer as we then start refining the plan and then developing the plan - it will give us a real focus on how to solve that critical issue. That will be a real tangible result that will benefit the city.

The Ford redevelopment study has been a lot slower than we anticipated Ford is still using the property for its own industrial uses and we just haven't gotten as far as we thought we would We need to exchange more information and receive a lot more information from Ford before we really can take off with that study So that's going to be much slower than we originally anticipated

But I think we're starting to see some tangible results now.

What do you think are going to be the city's biggest challenges or problems to solve in the next year?

Johnson: Maintaining services at the reasonable rates we do is always a challenge. The city provides an awful lot of services to the community and to its residents, and I think that level of service is expected. It's the standard we want to maintain, and that's difficult. That's probably the single most difficult challenge.

And then making sure that all these developments — especially Main Centre and the Cady Corridor — develop in a manner that's consistent with our goals in the community.

Those, I think, are the hardest ones

Do you have any specific goals for yourself as mayor or for the city as a whole this year?

Johnson: For myself, I've been doing an awful lot of learning. There's a phenomenal amount of things you have to learn in a very short span of time There's no honeymoon . . The election, and a week later you take office. It's not a lot of time. No one can really prepare you for the kinds of things that occur until you're right in the middle of it. I've been trying to personally grow with the job. I try to listen, I try to assimilate the informa-

It's my personal goal to build a consensus prior to taking off in one direction or another direction and then have people bounce around between polarized positions. Assuming you have the time to do that, that's the importance of always trying to look at issues far enough in advance before you make a decision. But if you look at all the information while you can still disagree about the ultimate decision, I think people will feel more comfortable that all the options were explored, all the rationale was discussed.

That's a goal that I try to bring, as mayor, to the city: That everybody has the opportunity to discuss. And then I expect when the decision is made that we all live with that decision and try to make that decision work. That's the kind of goal I try to bring to this job as mayor.

Do you favor another miliage proposal to develop the Northville Community Park (similar to the one defeated in November)?

Johnson: I have not made any decision on that at all.

There were a lot of different issues that were out there and about, one of which came up Election Day, in terms of being able to defeat the millage

If the council were to place that kind of thing back on the ballot again, it would have to be scrutinized very carefully. You would have to look at the cost in terms of what the city would have to do. It will require a special election if we did that. Since that's the case, we've got to look at it long and hard. I don't have a position on that right now.

Do you know when the council may vote on putting it back on the ballot?

Johnson: We would have to make a decision by March (or) April to get a successful campaign off, if there was to be one. The township attorney indicated to the Township Board that they had to make a decision by October as a practical matter. That sets deadlines for the city in terms of August, or possibly July, at the latest (for an election). And that means if you decide to do that, you've got to do it in March or April time frame. A decision, one way or the other, would have to be made by then.

Do you have any thoughts on why the first miliage was defeated? Do you think the Election Day blitz by the Citizens for a Better Northville made a difference?

Johnson: I think it made a significant impact. When you talk about any issue being decided in the range of a couple hundred votes, obviously, any time you get a specific campaign in there like that it would have an im-

Those people that are closest to some of the recreation problems are a lot more knowledgeable about specifics in terms of what they were trying to accomplish.

If you read some of the negative things that were stated about the proposal — The idea of restoring the well as a community project on a donated, volunteer basis, was something you could handle at $5,000 to $6,000. Doing the park, and doing all those changes, at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars, isn't the same. So when somebody says, "We'll just donate into the kitty," we would be donating into the kitty for the next 35 years and probably still not come up with the funds that we'd need to do that. That's comparing an apple and an orange rather than comparing two things that were equal in terms of what a volunteer project could do.

So I think a lot of those kinds of issues needed to be explained in much more thorough detail before, and it would have to be part of such a campaign. It still can be a choice, but the choice is not going to be whether or not a park can be done on a volunteer basis, it has to be whether or not they're going to have a park that the community can participate

And when I say community, I mean the city and the township It's a community park, not a park for one or the

What about a new library? First of all, do you think the library needs a new building?

Johnson: I think they do Especially if they're going to do anything more in terms of adding additional programming, there's going to be additional space needed to do the kinds of things that a lot of libraries in our general area do They do need another building

another building
A location of that building becomes real important, because that will dictate a lot of what's available in the building itself, the building specs. We turned that over to the city administration when we got down to the last two potential choices (at Fish Hatchery Park and behind the Community Center on Main Street). I think the kinds of things they're looking at now are significant components of that decision, too, before the ultimate decision is finally made.

Each site offers unique and different things that they can do. They're important to look at, the differences of what each site can do.

Building specs and everything else being equal, do you favor one site over the other?

Johnson: Not at this point.

Do you have any thoughts on how it might be proposed to be funded? Would you like to see a bond issue, or something else?

Johnson: It would have to be one of two methods, probably: one would be a bond issue, the other way would be a millage.

In the long run, since the community benefits for a long time, this is the kind of project that is appropriate for a bond issue. You do spend more on a bond issue, over the life of a bond issue, than you do with a millage. But you spread that over the cost of all the people that would be using it. So it is an appropriate funding mechanism. Bond issues are usually easier to sell—not necessarily, but usually—and it's an appropriate way of looking at things.

But that's a decision the City Council and Township Board have to make together. It has to be one funding mechanism that would be available to both communities. That won't be a decision the city will make alone.

No Blood No Foul

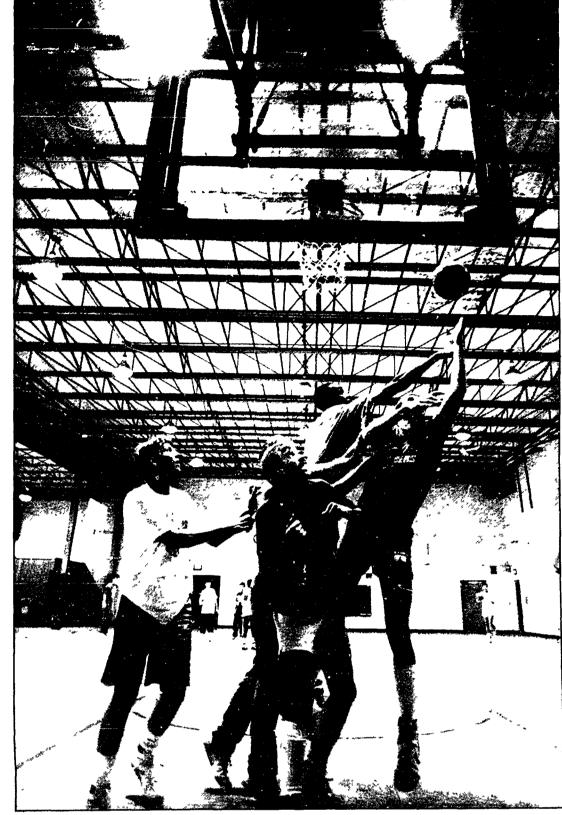

The squeak of rubber on a hard wood floor. The slap of tennis shoes, smell of sweat and sound of grunting players lets everyone know it's a game of pick-up basketball in pro-game of pick-up basketball in progress.

Last week the Northville Recreation Center played host to many such games. The vacation week meant time for fun for college students and their grade school counterparts.

One group of college players was on the floor when a visiting Record photographer entered. The rules were simple. You play to 12 points and you must win by two. Four players to a side, winners stay on the floor. Teams are decided by shooting free throws at the start of a game. Miss a shot at the charity line and you could be sitting for a while.

Fouls are called on the floor by the players. Standard rule is the same on courts everywhere: No blood — no foul.

Park millage, library site among issues facing city

There's been some discussion as part of the Master Plan and Cady studies on what is the character of the city as a whole and the downtown in particular. How do you describe Northville to someone who has never been here?

Johnson: Essentially, we're a residential community and we have a wonderful downtown that supports it And I think the residential community also supports the downtown It's a mutually beneficial situation

I think there's probably two main things that attract people to the community of Northville, whether they're in the city or the township, and that's the school system - it's an outstanding school system - and I think the second area is what you'd characterize as a charming downtown. Even if you live in the township, the downtown is all of our downtown in many respects.

It's something people like to do, and talk about, and bring their friends to It's an amazing thing to see how many people come in and show off the downtown to their friends who are just coming in visiting from out of town That doesn't happen in a lot of communities. That kind of essential character - residential and commercial balance - probably isn't present in a lot of different areas.

One of the interesting challenges in the coming years, once the Cady Corridor study is completed, will be atto it, to enhance the current price downtown. Do you have any thoughts on how the city can encourage the sort of development it wants?

Johnson: I think it's a task that we can probably assign, successfully, to our Downtown Development Authority That is a fairly energetic group of people who have a lot of business expertise, as well as the citizen appointees who are sensitive to the community

That group will be an excellent group to try and attract business as well It has never been, historically, part of their typical assignment, but I forsee in the future that becoming a role, assuming that the council would agree with that. I haven't formally proposed it, but it's something I can foresee, a good place to start. It's in the nature of a downtown development authority It's probably the next logical step as the physical bricks and mortar is established, what comes into that physical structure is important too And I foresee that being a task they can undertake.

What about keeping the businesses that are here? Should the city actively encourage some businesses -- like the dime store — to stay, and if so,

Johnson: I'm not sure that the city specifically can

There's a lot of things that the city can do such as making contacts with commercial entrepreneurs, but the city isn't in a position to buy every building downtown so it can become tracting the right sort of businesses a landlord at a particular, given

The D & C stc.e - it's a classic example They were talking about a certain rate they had been dealing with for years and years and years, which was under $4 a square foot for that space That was an incredibly low amount of money. The amount of money that the new lease was going to entail was - relatively speaking to what other landlords were getting a very low amount also.

D & C simply said, "We won't do it unless we get this under-$4 rate." I think D & C was being very unrealistic about that kind of a posi-

We loved having the D & C store there, and we certainly didn't chase them out But it's not the city's responsibility to buy up a whole new store and lease it at two times under the market value so a private corporation can make a profit, or more of a profit than maybe they should

So I think what you have to do is just make sure you have more than one kind of store. It's important that we don't have too many of any one given kind of store, and try to be attracting and generating those people that are interested in coming to the

We don't want to be any other kind of community. We don't want to be a mall. We want to maintain that kind of single-store nature of a downtown that makes it unique. We won't subsidize that to the point of having to buy up every building in town. We

Last question: Have you decided if you will run for re-election in November?

Johnson: Having a two-year term, I think I would. A two-year term is just a very short span of time. By the time the first term is over, you've almost gotten to the point where you really understand what you're supposed to be doing

And that's kind of unfortunate in many respects, this continual running process. Any two-year term -Congress, state representative have the same kind of problems. I would like to run again. I think I've done a fairly good job and deserve the support of those people who first

Is there anything else you'd like to

Johnson: I guess one of the things I'm most impressed with over the past year is the dedication that our various volunteer boards and commissions give. Untold hours are given to this community by all sorts of people, and a variety of different people in a variety of different responsibilities.

Anything from something that is very unglamourous - say, the appeals board for tax appeals — that's a really difficult thing, and yet there's three citizens that are willing to give up days, evenings, afternoons to do that. Our Planning Commission meets on a regular basis. We have a real dedicated Historic District Commission; I happen to know that times. By saying some I don't mean

It's really amazing, the amount of caring that the citizens of this community have. And it's not just the same people doing all the same jobs.

And what's been really delightful, I think from a council perspective, is when we ask for resumes we usually get five times more resumes than we can use. When we go through those interviews and those kind of processes, we never find a shortage of good candidates. That's never a problem, and that's an impressive thing to say about a community.

People can complain all they want about things, but in this community, they tend not to be complainers. If they think there's something they'd like to see done, they come to the council and say something to the council in a positive, constructive manner, and see what happens. And they're willing to be part of the solution. In this year, I don't think we've had any group that's said, "Not only do you have to do something about this problem, but we won't help you in getting to the solution."

I deal with a lot of communities in my role as an attorney, and to go to boards or council meetings in some other communities - it's just amaz- a third lane, then you have an impact ing, the fighting that goes on for the sheer delight of the fighting. The insults that are hurled back and forth are the night's entertainment for some people. This community isn't like that, and you can't say enough because I see them work a lot of good things about that, because it shows something about the people that live here, and want to work here and want to live here. They want things to go right and they're willing to do something about it.

> Overall, again, I just see the quiet, unglamorous things happening for the next couple years that becomes a springboard. You do the studies and you do the work to make sure it's done right.

I think the traffic situation is a classic example. We did get a report back, things are coming back and forth as we're looking at doing

But that report just said, "Do these three things." That doesn't necessarily mean that your traffic problem is solved; you still have to do it in a planned, phased manner. I would rather wait maybe a few more months, and then the choice that we choose is the right one, than just, say, closing down Randolph Street because it was in the report. That's a big step for the City Council to do. Once you start changing those kinds of patterns and behavior, in terms of routes that people are taking, what you do at one place will affect the other areas of the city. Any time you close or open a street, or just try and encourage traffic to move by way of somewhere else.

I am pleased to see that it is going slow. Some people may be frustrated with a slower approach. I think overall it's to the benefit of the city.

Township again rejects new 85-lot subdivision on Six Mile

By BRENDA DOOLEY

Plans for Northville Trails, an 85lot subdivision, were turned down for the second time by township officials.

Northville Township Board of Trustees voted 7-0 to deny preliminary site plans for the subdivision, proposed on Six Mile Road, west of Haggerty Road. The action occurred at the board's Dec. 8 meeting.

By denying the plans, board members echoed a decision made in late November by the Northville Township Planning Commission.

Northville Trails subdivision was proposed adjacent to the Maple Hills subdivision. Plans included several lots that would have abutted the rear of existing subdivision lots, creating

''double frontage.' At their Nov 29 meeting, township planners expressed concerns about the location of the proposed access road to Northville Trails, the existence of back-to-back lots and about potential traffic problems caused by the proposed development.

At that time, Mike Powell of JCK & Associates, designers of the project, explained that the developer's options were limited by the size and shape of the site. He also told planners that land in front of the proposed subdivision was owned by Temple Baptist Church.

Church officials agreed to sell 64 acres at the back of the lot to the developers of Northville Trails However, agreements in the sale contained restrictions to the design of the subdivision, according to Powell.

Several trustees voiced similar complaints about the site plans of Northville Trails as proposed. The board agreed to accept the negative recommendation from township planners, denying the site plan.

What's so bracing as a cup of tea?

By Dorothy Webster

s skies darken earlier these days and snow swirls in the late afternoon air, tea time takes on greater importance, and as four o'clock draws nigh, tea drinkers know it's time to "hot the pot" as my English grandmother was fond of saying.

Those who prefer the lighter brew to coffee take their tea drinking seriously, may use a favorite tea pot handed down for generations, and have been known to drive hundreds of miles to purchase their favorite brands of the dried leaves. Those same particular people rarely order what passes for tea in most restaurants, where warm water, served with a teabag alongside the cup, is presented by the waitress.

To dedicated tea drinkers it doesn't matter whether their favorite drink is served at a formal afternoon tea with starched white linen, fine bone china and dainty fare, or whether it's served from a billy-can in the African desert - what matters is the full flavor of the final brew, the aroma of unfurled tea leaves as the steaming cup is raised, and most importantly, the uplifted spirits which follow those first sips.

"Under certain circumstances there are few hours in life more agreeable than the hour dedicated to the ceremony known as afternoon tea."

— Henry James

Ah, tea. From its beginnings in 2737 B.C. when legend has tea discovered by Chinese Emperor Shen Nung, to the Dutch traders introducing it to Europe in the 1600's, to British Tommies preserving the tea time traditional during the African Campaign in the 1940's, to today's fast-zap in office microwaves - tea has remained popular and almost unchanged.

Donald Wiederecht, executive director of the Tea Council of America, reminds us that tea has been called "the cup that cheers but never inebriates." He adds that business tycoon Malcolm Forbes serves it instead of coffee at corporate meetings, and that baseball pitcher Noian Ryan prefers it to other beverages.

"Tea sold in the United States is usually a blend, and it doesn't vary from year to year," Wiederecht says. "In addition, a six-member board samples the first shipment and sets standards which all succeeding shipments must meet - or the tea is rejected."

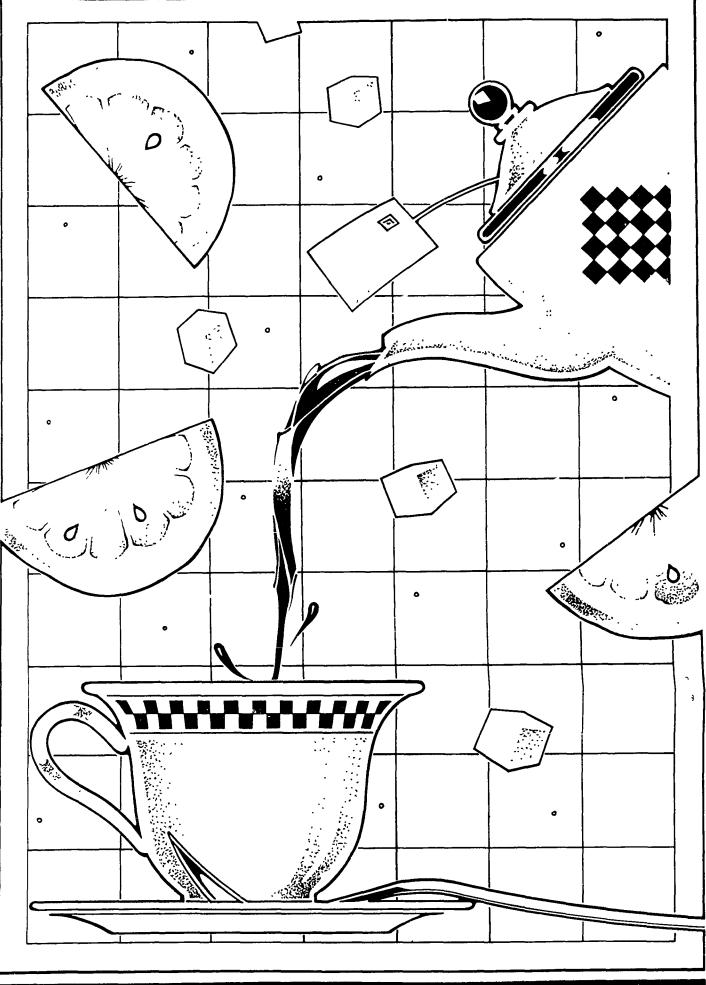

"Sixty-five percent of all tea consumed in the United States is sold in the familiar and convenient teabag form," he continues. "A pound of tea will make 200 servings - either by teaspoonful per cup or by teabag - the measurement is the same." he adds.

"Tea bags were invented in 1904 when a tea merchant sent out samples sewn into small silk bags. Customers began ordering tea packaged that way. Today they're made with filter paper," Wiederecht concludes.

Another milestone was reached in 1904 when hot tea vendors at the St. Louis World's Fair noticed customers lined up only at iced drink stalls during prolonged hot weather. The vendors experimented pouring tea over ice and today's popular iced tea was born - and it was an instant hit even then.

While many think of afternoon tea as a social occasion which can be a formal affair, high tea is celebrated in rural areas and in the Highlands of Scotland. Usually served between five and six o'clock, high tea is a hearty repast which replaces dinner. A broad kitchen table, covered with homespun linen is used instead of a tea table, and homemade bread and butter, smoked fish and local cheese, along with heavy cakes laden with fruit and nuts accompanies fullbodied tea served from an earthenware pot. It's tea "strong enough to trot a mouse" and sustains country folk after long days spent in bracing sea air.

The best tea, of course, is made in brown earthenware tea pots popularly known as "Brown Bettys" and serious tea drinkers never serve tea in metal pots - silver services to the contrary.

MY · CUP · OF · TEA,

The Perfect Cup of Tea:

Empty a good-sized tea kettle and fill it with treshly drawn cold tap water. Put the kettle on high heat to boil, and just when steam starts rolling from the spout, pour a cup or so into a china teapot. Swirl the hot warm around inside the teapot to warm it, assuring that your final tea water stays hot as it infuses the tea leaves.

Measure out a heaping teaspoon of loose tea for each cup, plus one for the pot. As the kettle reaches a full, rolling boil, immediately pour the hot water over the tea. Don't let the water boil on and on, as you'll release the important oxygen bubbles which the tea leaves need to reach their fullest flavor.

Cover the rea pot with a tea cozy to keep the water hot. Let it stand for about five minutes, then quickly stir the contents of the tea pot and pour into individual cups, using a tea strainer to catch the tea leaves.

Experts say that only cold milk, never cream, should be added to tea, and that it should be placed in the cup first. They also advise that sugar doesn't add to the taste. Some prefer thinly sliced fresh lemon. It all depends on one's personal taste, how they have been taught to drink tea as a child, and what type of tea has been brewed. One wouldn't add anything to a delicate tea such as Darjeeling or Lapsang Souchong.

On no account allow the spent tea leaves to stand in the tea pot after brewing, or the resulting bitter drink will turn away even confirmed tea drinkers. Pour the fresh tea into a separate hot tea pot, or use very large cups and measure accurately the first time around. Then brew more tea for second helpings.

Did You Know That:

- * the tea plant is an evergreen belonging to the Camellia family.
- * there are more than 3,000 varieties of tea. Like wine, they take their names from the areas where they are grown, such as Assam, Darjeeling, Kandy.
- * there are three different types of tea black, green, colong. All three come from the same tea bushes, it's only the processing that makes them different.
- * over 97% of all tea consumed in the United States is black tea. The fermentation process turns the leaves black and they produce a tea with hearty flavor.
- * green tea is not fermented, so the leaves stay green in color, resulting in a lighter color when brewed.
- * oolong tea is a compromise between black and green tea, semifermented so the leaves turn greenish-brown and results in a lightly colored brewed tea.

"the familiar word "pekoe" (pronounced "peck-o" not "peek-o") refers only to a size of leaf and not to a type or variety. Other names of sizes are Orange Pekoe, Souchong, Broken Pekoe, Fannings, Fines.

Where to buy teas locally . . .

aste in tea is as individual as coffee brews — maybe even more so because there are so many varieties available. You like the tea you serve to have an unusual flavor, but you don't know where to buy the more exotic blends.

While most supermarkets stock a good variety of the more traditional brands, they seldom carry the rarer types of tea.

The following is a list of some of stores which do stock some of the more unusual blends, as well as the traditional.

Wine Basket, 3542 Duck Lake Road, Highland: Bigeiow teas, buy one box with six varieties — herb, apple, strawberry, raspberry, orange, lemon, or almond orange, apple spice, cranberry-apple, mint blend.

Main Street Wine and Cheese Shop, 400 N. Main, Milford: 12-15 varieties of Twinnings and Celestial packaged teas. No loose tea.

Grandma Betty's Sweets 'n Treats, 124 N. Center, Northville: 30 varieties of loose tea which may be purchased in any quantity. These are stored in large glass jars on the shelves so the customer can see what he/she is purchasing.

Crabtree and Evelyn, 12 Oaks Mail. ...
Novi: Earl Grey, English and breakfast teas, oriental, herb and black teas.

Kroger's, Prospect Hill Shopping Center, Milford: a wide variety of packaged herbal and flavored teas.

"Oh! yet stands the church clock at ten to three? And is there honey yet for tea?"

— Rupert Brooke

Showerman's IGA, Brookdale Square, Nine Mile and Pontiac Trail, South Lyon: Twinnings brand; Bigelow brand, including orange and spice, herb, "I love lemon," fruit and almond, sweet dreams, raspberryroyale, pappermint, wild forest blackberry; Earl Grey, constant coment, cinnanom stick and English tea time; Lipton, herbal tea, lemon soother and special moments; Celestial Seasonings, roastaroma, mint magic, herb tea, chamomile, sleepytime, cranberry cove, cinnamon rose, raspberry patch, manderin orange, lemon zinger, al; mond sunset, morning thunder and plantation mint.

Breen's IGA, 965 E. Summit, Milford: stocks same varieties as Showerman's IGA.

Incredi-Bulk Foods, 732 S. Michigan Ave., Howell: apricot, raspberry, royal fruit, Earl Grey, orange, and decaffeinated in apricot, raspberry; and Earl Grey. Owner Connie Garlock said the teas she carries are not packaged under a name brand. She added herbal teas are known as flavored teas that are decaffeinated.

Healthways, 942 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth: Celestial teas, Seelect, Alvita, Lion Cross, Worthington, several varieties of diet teas and traditional medicinal teas.

For those who like to order their tea by mail, send for a catalogue from Simpson and Vail Inc., 38 Clinton St., P.O. Box 309, Pleasantville, N.Y. 10570. The company carries over 80 types of loose teas from China, India, Sri Lanka and other regions and 20 types of tea bags, as well as a large selection of coffee and tea accessories, such as Ming teapots, gift canisters, teacozies and warming stands.

Simpson and Vail's scented teas include almond, apricot, black currant, blueberry, coconut, plum, strawberry with leaves, vanilla, wild cherry, aniseed, cinnamon, mango, orange spice with peel, peach, raspberry with leaves, apple, cinnamon spice, ginger, lemon spice with peel, and chocolate mint.

Briningstool's season features highs, lows

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Tony Briningstool's second season as a collegiate football player came to an abrupt - and painful - end on Dec. 28 in Jacksonville, Fla. while his Michigan State team was preparing for the New Year's clash with Georgia in the Gator Bowl. Brin-ingstool suffered a separated shoulder and ended up missing the game — a 34-27 Georgia win.

As a redshirted freshmen at MSU,

1988 was the year the former Northville great got his first taste of major-college action after sitting the sidelines throughout last year's Big Ten title and Rose Bowl champion-

It turned out to be a campaign of highs and lows, triumphs and disappointments. But more than anything else it was a tremendous learning experience for an inexperienced and yet promising young player who has fit into Coach George Perles' system very well.

"I am really pleased with the way things turned out," Briningstool said before making the trek to Florida. "I wanted very badly to contribute — and I did. I learned the areas I'm weak at and now I know what it takes to be a complete football player.

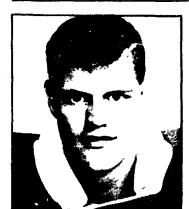

'I got a chance to play and I got my varsity letter, so I can't complain.'

With the graduation of Tim Moore, a starting outside linebacker spot opened up after last season and Briningstool set his sights at the start of spring practice. Heading in, he was listed ahead of Carlos Jenkins — a redshirt sophomore from Boynton Beach, Fla. — but in the course of spring practice, Jenkins moved ahead of Briningstool.

From that point on, Tony was listed as the number two strong-side out-side linebacker and it stayed that way throughout the entire season. While Jenkins started every game, Briningstool was relegated to special team play and occasional back-up duties on defense. "I went into spring training with the attitude I could start," he said. "What I didn't realize is that up to that point, I hadn't played a single down of college football. As a freshman, I was pretty much on the scout team so I didn't really get m ch of a chance to learn the system. So this was really the first year I had an opportunity to really

When Briningstool was dropped to the second team, it was very hard for him to take. He agonized over the summer, wondering what went wrong. But a talk with defensive coordinator Norm Parker helped

"I wanted very badly to contribute — and I did. I learned the areas I'm weak at and now I know what it takes to be a complete football player."

"It took me a long time to accept because I thought that I just wasn't good enough," he admitted. "But Coach Parker told me to be patient, and he was right.

"He said 'you're just a redshirt freshman and you're already on the second team. A lot of guys who've been here a lot longer than that never get to play.' I really took to heart what he said — needless to say, I've learned a lot of lessons this year." From the first game of the year against Rutgers in early September, Briningstool's been a standout on just about every Spartan special team including the kick-off, kick return, punt and field goal teams. As a matter of fact, on the opening kickoff against Rutgers — the first play of the 1988 season — Briningstool was in on the tackle and was credited with

The Michigan State Football Program described his position this way at the start of the season: "The strong-side jipebacker, capably handled last year by Tim Moore, will be filled by impressive sophomore Carlos Jenkins. Red-shirt freshman Tony Briningstool is ready to back up Jenkins.

The Spartans struggled from the outset, dropping close decisions to Rutgers, Notre Dame, Florida State and Michigan in the first five games. It wasn't until the second half of the season that Briningstool started to get more playing time at linebacker. Carly on, he had only the special teams to showcase his talent.

"I really enjoyed playing on the special teams," he said. "Coach Perles puts you there so you can prove you can play at this level. I looked at it as an opportunity to play and show the coaches what I can do.

the first time, I remember thinking practice and weight lifting sessions.

'what do I do?' But with the first snap and the first hit, it all kicked in. It came naturally.'

In his first appearance on national television, Briningstool downed a 68-yard punt by MSU's Josh Butland at season in Champaign, Ill. against the University of Illinois. Midway through the second quarter, the Spartans trailed 14-7 to the Illini, but Brin-

For the regular season, Brin-ingstool was officially credited with six solo tackles and three assists. In addition to the fumble recovery at Illinois, he added two more — one against Indiana and one versus Visconsin.

Briningstool has a reputation among his teammates as a hard worker with loads of enthusiasm. He's always one of the first players

"Nobody on this team works harder than Tony Briningstool," said senior defensive end John Budde and he should know. Budde's father Ed and brother Brad were both All-Americans in college and stellar professionals in the NFL.

The only black mark of the season for Briningstool was something that never actually happened. In the Indiana game on Nov. 4, he was whistled for a clip on a kick return in the first half. When he returned to the sidelines, ABC television captured what appeared to be Briningstool and Perles arguing. Here's what announcers Gary Bender and Dick Vermeil said about the incident:

Vermeil - "Right now, (Perles) is chewing out Tony Briningstool, number 54. He's a 3.5 grade point premed student, so you know he's bright enough to do what he was assigned to

Bender — "Boy, look-it. Is (Perles) after him."

Vermeil — "You know, I agree in that approach to coaching. A lot of guys don't but I think a young kid profits from his mistake directly proportionate to how much you make him suffer after he makes it." Bender — "(Briningstool) was the Vermeil - "They grow up from player of the year in Michigan his senior year . . . Well, a lot of guys can't handle it."

Most people who know Briningstool personally knew that what they saw on the T.V. was an unfortunate — and yet inaccurate - picture of what actually happened. "What everybody saw on T.V. and what actually happened were two dif-ferent things," Briningstool said. "I didn't even realize what had happened until a few days later when a friend showed me the tape. I never worried about it because Coach Perles never said anything to me

According to Briningstool, Perles was mad after the penalty because he thought a personal foul — after the play had been whistled dead — had been committed.

'I told him the penalty was on me, but that it was a clip," Briningstool rarker then approached Tony, along with senior defensive tackle Jason Ridgeway, and they tried to get him to forget about the penalty. They didn't want it to effect his play later on

"They were challenging me not to go into the tank," Briningstool said. "I was down because I thought the block was on the side and not the back - I didn't think it was a clip but they were saying that it's over and not to worry about it.'

Ironically, the following day at a film session, Perles admitted that the clip call was indeed questionable.

The other big disappointment was the injury. Briningstool's teammates have now competed in two bowl games the last two years but he's yet to see a down in the post-season. But early indications point toward a full recovery and he should be ready for that all-important spring practice.

Another outside linebacker spot will be open next spring due to the departure of Kurt Larson, and Briningstool is one of the top candidates. Just like last season, he knows the spot will be won or lost at spring

"The attitude I'm taking is that spring practice is where you make or break your chances so I'm going to work as hard as I can during the winter to prepare myself," he said. 'Then, I'll just see what happens. I'm a much better player now than I was dack in September or a y "I can't tell you how happy I am."

'Everything's really followed a nice, neat schedule so far . . . knock on wood that it keeps happening for us," Swallow said.

Swallow was back in Northville during the holidays, competing at the Midwestern Sectional Championships at the Detroit Skating Club. It was an ideal chance to return home for Christmas.

"It was a nice surprise to be able to come home for the holidays and still compete," he said. "Last year the sectionals were held in Tulsa, Oklahoma."

The event was a qualifying competition for the nationals, to be held the first week in February. The top six teams made it — and that included Swallow and Balogh.

In retrospect, Swallow belives the 1988 season was a very successful one. There were three appearances in international competitions and three top six finishes — a second in Hungary, a third in Austria and a fifth in Thunder Bay, Ontario.

'Things are progressing real well and we feel that as long as we work hard, it will work out in the end," Swallow said. "We're getting closer and it's exciting."

Hartman (35) bulls his way toward the defense and a Hillsdale victory last fall

Hartman wraps up stellar gridiron career at Hillsdale

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Doug Hartman had several offers to give major college football a try following a stellar career at Northville High, but he chose Division II Hillsdale College — and he's never regretted the decision.

Hillsdale is a small, private school in southern Michigan with just over 1,000 students. But the Chargers boast one of the premier NAIA (National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics) gridiron programs in the nation. In the 1980s alone, Hillsdale has been to the NAIA playoffs five times, and won it all in 1985 — Hartman's rookie season.

Last month, Hartman wrapped up a solid four-year football career. As a member of the team, the Chargers' registered an impressive 37-10-1 record and three GLIAC (Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference) championships.

"It's a great football program and the coaching staff is great," Hartman said. "At first I wasn't so sure about going to such a small school – heck it's smaller than Northville High School — but I got a chance to play and letter three years in a row. I don't think I would have been able to do it if I went to a bigger school.

"I have no regrets — it just went by too fast."

As a prep player in the early 80s, Hartman was one of the finest two-way players to ever wear a Mustang uniform. As a junior, he led Northville in tackles from his middle linebacker spot (47 first hits, 55 assists) and added three interceptions, two pass deflections and two fumble recoveries. Offensively, Hartman averaged 4.7 yards per carry as a fullback without a single fumble. He was a Western Lakes All-

Division selection.

As a senior, Hartman was the team's Most Valuable Player and he missed nearly two games with an injury. He was the leading tackler again with 98 stops and was second in rushing with 700 yards in 107 carries and five touchdowns. Rick VanBuren led the team that year with 1,126.

The list of awards that followed was long and impressive: All-Division, All-Conference, All-Area, All-County, All-Surburban and All-Metro North. Hartman was also an All-Area baseball star for the Mustangs.

"As a player for the Colts and then in high school, my goal was always to get a college scholarship." Hartman recalled. "Looking back, those high school days were the the glory days — and there wasn't much pressure back then. It was a lot of fun."

back then. It was a lot of fun."

Despite offers to walk-on at Division I schools like Western and Central Michigan, Hartman accepted a full-ride scholarship to Hillsdale.

full-ride scholarship to Hillsdale, thus attaining his long-time goal. As a freshman, Hartman was a standout on the special teams and the Chargers went on to an 11-1-1 record and shared the NAIA title.

"As freshmen, our class saw how the team came together and from that point on, all of us knew what we had to do to reach that level," he said.

Hartman continued his special team prowess as a sophomore and started to get more playing time as a fullback. By his junior year, Hartman was a starter — but he still held down a spot on all the special teams.

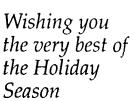

"With each year, I saw more and more action," he said. "I looked at it as like any other position — you have to pay your dues and earn your spot, and that's what I did."

Things really came together for Hartman this fall. In a victory over Saginaw Valley State, he was named the offensive player of the week. The Chargers ended up taking the GLIAC title with a fine 9-1 regular season mark, and Hartman felt very much a part of the success.

"We are primarily a passing team, so the fullback doesn't get to carry the ball very much, but I thought I had a good season," he said. "I tried to go out on the field and do my job—be a silent lead."

Sawmill owner pushes forward into new areas

By LYRIC MATSON

In his quest some 10 years ago for a small retail business which would not require him to wear a suit, John Col-1221 found inspiration for his salesmanship in a furniture store

It was the beginning of Sawmill

It would seem that he was interested in a small business venture, however his years in the corporate world as a national systems anager for Honeywell Inc. must have assisted him in broadening his store's basic appeal. The key words for the Sawmill these days are to be "expansion" and "progress"

The Sawmill business began as a store in Wyandotte, which sold only unfinished furniture. Customers could buy unfinished pieces, which are cheaper than finished pieces, and finish them themselves.

Colizzi said people originally bought unfinished furniture because it was less expensive. But now he finds that his clientele is also more concerned with the matters of quality and craftsmanship. "Now people do it so they can get exactly what they want," said Colizzi, adding that customers don't necessarily have to go with the shades chosen by the manufacturer

When buying unfinished furniture. a customer has the option of matching pieces to other pieces in their homes, or choosing a number of pieces, all from different manufacturers, and having them stained to look like a matched set.

Over a few years in the business, Colizzi noticed that people liked picking out a bare, unfinished piece but didn't always want the timeconsuming trouble of staining, oiling and urethaning — hence the develop-ment of the Sawmill's central finishing shop in Wyandotte.

It serves the Wyandotte store and the Northville retail store, which Colızzi purchased in 1980.

The finishing shop has come to be an essential part of the operation, employing four full time furniture finishers.

Customers may choose furniture from 90 different manufacturers

'Employers cannot discriminate against the handicapped'

Patrick Cannon, executive director of the Michigan Commission on Handicapper Concerns, is familiar with the unusual attitudes some people have toward the handicapped Those attitudes touch him on a personal, as well as a professional level, because

Cannon relates a situation many blind people, including himself, have encountered "A server in a restaurant, rather than addressing the handicapper, will say to a spouse. Would he like cream in his coffee? It's as if the handicapper is unable to communicate or think for him- or

Most people aren't intentionally mean-spirited, he said Rather, they simply don't understand or are misinformed about the handicapped.

In the same way, employers may unconsciously discriminate against handicappers out of ignorance, suggests Cannon

Too often employers look at a handicapped worker and only see what they view as a limitation or a disability," Cannon said "They don't focus on the ability of the worker "

Such misunderstanding has probably contributed to the 70 percent unemployment rate among handicapped people

"It's not because we don't have abilities," said Cannon "It's because we're being denied the opportunity to compete for jobs on the basis of our

"My recommendation to handicappers who go into a job interview is to address the issue of their handicap characteristic," said Cannon. "It's my feeling that even if the question is not on the lips of the employer, it's on

As a blind person going to an interview, Cannon said he would explain his alternative techniques for reading and his mobility aids. Cannon said many employers have the misconception that a handicapped worker will require expensive special accommodations.

Business is 'buzzing' for owner of Sawmill along with pieces from the Sawmill's own manufacturing store

The Sawmill now provides finishing and refinishing services. and will also custom design anything from a coffee table to complete furnishings for an executive office They've grown, and they're continuing to grow

A customer can bring in an antique or an heirloom, and Sawmill will handle the process of stripping, repairing, re-staining and matching it to newer pieces while retaining the essence of "an antique that's been kept in very good condition." Colizzi

"We redid a desk for Hank Ford (of the George B Ford Insurance Agenwe refinished cy in Southfield) the original walnut desk that his father used when he first started the business, put on a larger top and made two matching credenzas. 'The desk was at least 60 years old," noted Colizzi Until recently the majority of Sawmill's clientele consisted of homeowners, looking to buy and match good wooden pieces for their houses. Booming development in the Northville area has certainly not hurt the business, but Colizzi does not rely upon it. "We draw from all over the East Side, Troy, Ann Arbor we're in the Yellow Pages," he said

In terms of long-term growth, Colizzi is particularly enthusiastic about two major areas of recent expansion The Sawmill has begun nationwide distribution of custom manufactured fireplace mantels. This new division will be directed mainly by Colizzi's store manager, Paul "Mac" McAninch, who is also responsible also like to continue expansion of his for installing the store's computer retail stores

The Sawmill has been manufacturing mantels for some time "We sell a lot of them here," said Colizzi, "Now we'll be wholesaling to other stores and contractors - custom-made mantels in any wood they want, usually oak, pine or poplar "Sawmill already accommodates orders of mantels from other stores

Even bigger progress, however, is expected for increased activity in office design Sawmill recently refurnished the offices for the National Truck Equipment Association (NTEA), providing the firm a 22-foot conference table with 30 chairs and an executive office complete with executive desk, computer work stations, wall units and bookcases. The NTEA also commissioned an employee dining room table and

With the number of manufacturers Sawmill has to choose from, its own manufacturing shop, and finishing shop, Colizzi said, "We feel we can do anything a business would want '

He is not limiting himself to large projects, "We're interested in anybody redoing an office who doesn't want metal," he said

According to Colizzi, wood furnishing is more professional than metal in an office environment, it looks nicer longer and it's easier to repair

Meanwhile, in the midst of this progress, Sawmill still retains its original business - selling unfinished furniture pieces for prices which, according to Colizzi, are "10 to 20 percent lower than our competitors. We very actively try to keep our prices

Looking to the future, Colizzi would childs Christmas wish come true. SHARING IS CARING

If you don't keep their names alive, who will?

An invitation to place the name of a member of your family who immigrated to America in the only national museum created to honor them.

Whether your ancestors first set foot on American soil at Ellis Island, or entered through another gateway, here is a unique opportunity to show your gratitude. And to present your family with a gift that will be meaningful now and for generations to come.

When you make a $100 contribution to restore Ellis Island, the name you designate will be permanently placed on the newly created American Immigrant Wall of Honor. You can choose the name of an ancestor or just your own family name. And you'll receive an Official Certificate of Registration. To register additional names, list each name and country of origin on a separate sheet. And remember, there is a minimum gift of $100 for each.

Please send your contribution today. By acting now you assure that the Ellis Island Immigration Museum will be a place to honor your own heritage, as well as a monument to the great American traditions of freedom, hope and opportunity.

Keep the Dream Alive

BORICS WILL GIVE YOU A NEW REASON TO SMILE. BECAUSE YOU'LL LIKE THE WAY YOU LOOK

In fact, we guarantee you'll like it. For just $6, our trained professionals will give you a quality haircut. They'll wet down your hair with a special cutting solution, cut it the way you want and blow it dry.

Clean hair is necessary for accurate hair cutting. You can shampoo your hair on the day of your visit, or, for a small charge, we'll shampoo it for you. Because, at BoRics, you pay only for the services you need.

You can't beat BoRics for convenience, either. No appointments are necessary. Just walk into one of our convenient locations Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., or Saturday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.*

Don't settle for the uninteresting styles of a barbershop or the high prices of a beauty salon. Stop into BoRics and let us give you a new reason to smile, too.
