Not all trees protected by ordinance

By BRUCE M. WEINTRAUB

The atmosphere surrounding his home is serene and tranquil. The trees which abut the property lie still in the dead of winter, but in the summer create a wildlife home.

For Northville Township resident Jerome Esper, the quiet was broken recently and the long awaited woodlands ordinance passed by the Board of Trustees last week, offered little help.

Three days before the board passed the or dinance under an emergency clause allowing it to take effect earlier than usual, an unidentified treecutting company cut through about 150 yards of fully grown trees near his home off of Philips

For Esper, an 18-year resident of the township, the entire ordeal has been particularly ullic

"I felt real sick to see the trees taken out," Esper said. "I know this may be the beginning of things to come, but I think they did not have to take all of the trees out.'

According to Esper, last Monday and Tuesday large trucks and machinery came onto the proper-- which is owned by Detroit resident Ruth Shapero — and cut down trees of all sizes.

"I've never seen anything as big as that machinery in my life," he said "The workmen took out all of the larger logs and made woodchips of the smaller ones.

"There's only a pile of dust left there now." Attorney Norman Hyman, who is representing Shapero's estate, said most of the trees removed were small and many were determined by a registered forester to be sick. However, according to the township's woodlands tree survey report, the trees cut down on the site were "tall, straight and healthy look-The report, which was complied for the township by recent Michigan State University forestry graduate Heather Hopkins, listed the overall diversity of the woodland area as good.

The area is made up of "tall, straight trees with many bark patterns against green. The windblock is moderate to good with good understory and ground cover," the report noted.

Tree types in the area include white ash, sugar maple, bass wood, black cherry, American beech and ironwood. The soil is described as moist and good in the report.

When asked why the trees were cut down, Hyman, said "to remove them.

"A very small amount of larger trees were cut and only a small portion of land was affected," Hyman said. "We did not disturb the vast bulk of trees on the site and have no intention of doing so." Hyman added he knows of "no planned development for the site.

K-5 students to Moraine to end crowding

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

After a long, drawn out process of finding a solution to the Amerman Elementary overcrowding problem, the Northville Board of Education unanimously approved Superintendent George Bell's recommendation to open Moraine Elementary as a K-5

Included in the board's decision is the option for parents of fourth grade students for their children to remain at Amerman or to switch to Moraine for the fifth grade.

The solution to open Moraine which entailed over a year and a half of analysis and study by the board's facilities subcommittee - seemed to appeal not only to board members, but to parents attending Monday's meeting as well.

"I've supported the board in the past and I think they chose the best solution to solve the overcrowding problem at Amerman," said resident Mary Jane Brugeman.

Brugeman, who has a child that will change schools, said the board's decision was "a good move to continue the quality education offered by Northville Schools."

Resident Jeff Lightfoot, who is also a teacher at Amerman, said the

Northville wins reaccreditation

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Once marred by scandals, budget cuts and inflated patient attendance, the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital has come full circle and won national accreditation last week for the first time since 1980.

Northville Regional Director Walter Brown said the accreditation was issued by the Joint Commission on Hospital Accreditation, an agency that rates hospitals across the coun-

Brown said the accreditation agency toured the Northville facility last September, after the hospital passed a 1987 pre-accreditation survey.

He added that hospital patients, staff, and the entire Northville community can feel good about the reaccreditation

'We can now point to ourselves as providing appropriate care as attested to by the national accrediting body and it certainly will improve the morale of the entire staff," Brown long way towards reestablishing Northville as an appropriate place for people to come who have these kinds of problems."

Tom Watkins, director of the state Department of Mental Health, said the accreditation is a type of "Good Housekeeping seal of approval," whereby Northville patients and families know the hospital is providing a high level of care for the mentally ill. 'The accreditation removes a

Armed robbery is suspected at store

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

A suspect carrying what witnesses said appeared to be a gun, robbed the Little Caesar's Carryout - located on Seven Mile Road near Northville Road - of $50 last Saturday at around 9:30 p.m. Township police report that a lone suspect entered the store wearing a nylon stocking on his head, a beige three-quarter length coat, blue slacks and white tennis shoes. The suspect is described by store employees as a white male in his early 20s, five feet ten inches tall, and of medium build. Witnesses told police that the man entered the store, which was fairly

Witnesses said the register would not open, at which time the suspect told employees to open the register. An employee opened the register and the suspect stole $50 in paper money.

The employee then told police that the suspect reached over the counter with his left hand - while keeping his right hand in his pocket - making it look like he had a gun or wanted them to think he had a gun

The employee said the suspect exited through the front door and went into the west portion of the parking

Police said a Michigan State Police dog was brought in and followed the suspect's trail into the Player's Choice arcade where a search was made, but the suspect was not found Fingerprints were taken from the cash register, according to police Be patient

A new telephone system being installed for the Green Sheet is causing problems for customers wanting to place classified ads.

Persons experiencing difficulties should allow the phone to ring a number of times, according to Classified Manager Grace Perry.

"It is a problem beyond our control while we are undergoing this changeover," Perry explained. "We hope our customers will be patient and understand the dilemma. It is not our fault, but we are doing our best under the circumstances.

Ford plant future discussed

By BOB NEEDHAM

The first full-blown discussion of what should replace the Northville Ford Plant took place last week, with some consensus arising that the site should be as much a community asset as possible.

In the first public presentation from the architectural firm hired to look at possible uses of the site, many ideas were tossed out and many ideas exchanged between the consultants and the Northville Planning Commission. But by the end of the night, the consultants heard some directions the commission members would like the study to take

Ford Motor Company has said the plant will close within the next few months. The site is reportedly already on the market, although the company has said it won't act until it sees the result of the city study The land is zoned for industrial use, so any other kind of development would require city approval of a rezoning or a variance.

"For other than light industrial, we probably have the right of first refusal. It has to be rezoned first,' City Manager Steve Walters said.

The land in question is really two parcels: the area immediately around the Ford plant of 85 acres; and the area across Griswold slightly to the north, 5.8 acres of parking lot and the Ford Field. The field is currently leased to the city.

During the end of the discussion last Tuesday, Jan. 26, panning commissioners and others present voiced some definite opinions about the site: generally, that it should remain at least partly open to the public; that public uses like a library or recreation center should be strongly considered; and that the existing plant building should stay standing.

But before getting into the nuts and bolts of future uses, the consultants from the firm Quinn Evans / Architects discussed some aspects of the site — environmental and market — that will partly control whatever is done with it (see related stories).

Quinn Evans looked at the possible uses of the land in the context of site suitability, building suitability and market suitability - that is, whether the site would support a given use, whether the existing building would, and whether the Northville market area would.

The preliminary draft of the study looks at these questions for 12 different categories of uses, with some categories examined

The Northville Ford plant site

Floodplain affects use

By BOB NEEDHAM

Several natural and environmental concerns will play a part in determining what replaces the Northville Ford plant, city officials heard last week - most importantly, the site's location in the Rouge River floodplain.

Gary Cooper, from the firm Quinn Evans / Architects, told the Northville Planning Commission last week that the floodplain location significantly restricts the amount of land that can be developed on the Ford site. The Middle Rouge River branch runs just past the plant building. In addition, several environmental problems will need resolution before any development, he said.

A floodplain is divided into two areas: the floodway, which goes underwater during flooding, and the floodway fringe, the outer areas of the floodplain There are both floodway and floodway fringe areas on each part of the Ford site - the east part, around the plant, and the west part, the site of a parking area and Ford

The west parcel in particular is limited, Cooper said.

Personally, I don't think the land is going to be very developable. I don't think you're going to be able to build much of anything," he said.

Fire chief's request for ambulance fee hike OK'd by board

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Citing the inability to cover expenses, the Northville Township Board unanimously approved an increase in ambulance fees at the request of Fire Chief Robert Toms. The action occurred during last Thursday's board

"We are not in the business to make money, we're just trying to break even," Toms said, adding the $25 increase, which raises the flat rate cost to $100, should alleviate the problem.

Toms said the $100 fee covers any medical treatment administered by the paramedics and transportation to the hospital.

'Medicaid and medicare only pay about half of the rate, so we needed the increase to balance costs," he said, noting the township ambulance service functions only as a backup system.

Under contract, Community Ambulance is the first response unit for emergency assistance. The township ambulance is used only when more than one ambulance is needed.

Last year, we only hauled about 15 people, but even though Community is called first, in a personal injury accident we go too, just in case we're needed," Toms said

Diane Parcella, finance director for Community Ambulance, said their ambulances are placed strategically in the areas they cover to respond to emergencies.

Parcella said one car is placed in Plymouth and one in Novi Those cars also must cover Northville and Northville Township.

"Our response time with the first car is usually under six minutes and the second car typically arrives within six minutes of being called," she said, noting other ambulances are in use without being assigned to a particular

City hires firm to design parking

The "Main Centre" retail / apartment building moved forward on one front Monday night, but stayed still on one other

The city Monday hired Rich and Associates to design the parking deck for the project. The council approved a contract with the firm to design a deck of 270 to 300 spaces to serve the project and possibly provide additional downtown parking.

A memo to the council from City Manager Steve Walters states that the city will probably bid the deck project, and Singh Development which is developing the main building - will be invited to bid.

Singh and the city are sharing the cost of the deck Having the city contract with the architect allows for the most control over its design, Walters said

Rich and Associates developed some preliminary deck drawings for the city last year, when the downtown development authority site of the current Cady Street public parking deck The new deck will be on the south

Meanwhile, Philips Road resident Sam Tagami said he hates to see the trees go, but added he understands that development and growth must

"This is a quiet neighborhood and the trees definitely add to the atmosphere of the area," Tagami said. "Long ago, you couldn't see through the woods to buildings on Haggerty Road. Now, you can see through anymore," he said.

"The trees aren't there for us

Township Planning Director Carol Henry said the newly passed woodlands ordinance, which went into effect last Thursday, will only protect trees from developers, not residents

"As of last Thursday, if anyone brings in a site plan within two years of cutting trees down, they will be responsible for replacing them," Henry said.

Under the ordinance developers would be required to provide summaries or inventories of the trees they plan to remove on their site plans. Ordinance provisions also require developers to erect protective barriers for trees and plants on a

However, the ordinance does not protect trees from residents cutting down trees on their property. Also, if a developer submits a site plan more than two years after cutting trees, he or she would not be required to replace them.

'What we're trying to do is say to developers 'when the site plan comes an area can't be cleared of trees for development,' "Henry said.

Planning Commissioner Richard

Allen said previously that the woodlands ordinance will "hopefully encourage people to consider trees and not take a bulldozer mentality and level things.

Henry noted whoever is responsible for the site plan is also responsible for the trees within the two year period. In other words, if trees are cut down on a protected area and the property is sold, the new owner is responsible for those trees.

Township Attorney Ernest Essad Northville's woodlands ordinance offers as "much protection as the township is going to get."

Last September the planning commission decided to make the woodlands provisions part of the site plan review regulations and not a separate ordinance.

"This is relatively a new area in law, but this (the woodlands ordinance) will have the same affect as other zoning laws," Essad said.

Henry said for developers there will be no difference in having the woodlands provisions part of the site plan review as opposed to it being a separate ordinance.

In any event, Essad noted greater emphasis will be on environmental issues in the future, primarily because greater control has gone to local units of government.

'Woodlands, wetlands and land fills are going to be the hot topic of zoning laws and land use in the 1990s," Essad added. All of the protected woodlands areas are designated on a woodlands map, which was recently completed. Also, a woodlands inventory guide provides a description of each pro-

Ground water has slowed the progress of installing a meter pit at Eight Mile and Novi Road.

Water problem slows Novi sewage project

By BOB NEEDHAM

A new machine to monitor sewage flow from Novi into Northville is going into the ground off Novi Road and Eight Mile, but a groundwater problem has slowed up the process.

The City of Novi is installing the device — even though it's within the Northville city limits — to measure the amount of flow through the sanitary sewer system. From Northville, the lines continue on down to a sewage treatment plant in Detroit.

The work, which has been going on since the middle of last week, is part of a legal agreement between Novi and the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR). "It was a requirement that we monitor our flows into the Huron-Rouge (sewer) system," Novi Department of Public Works Superintendent Bruce Jerome said.

The problem that has cropped up is that the contractors doing the work cannot get down to the sewer line without running into groundwater.

The Novi-DNR agreement is required for Novi's participation in the regional "super sewer" system expansion. The City of Northville also has such an agreement with the DNR, although it does not include any projects as large as Novi's sewage flow monitor.

The problem that has cropped up is that the contractors doing the work cannol get down to the sewer line without running into groundwater, explained Kevin Scane, a construction inspector with Novi's engineering firm, JCK and Associates.

"The water table from here (Eight Mile Road) all the way to Nine Mile Road is about five feet underground," Scane said at the work site last week.

This week, workers were attacking the problem by drilling a deep well — 18 to 20 feet — and sending a submersible pump down the hole. "They'll drain it down just like a big, ordinary well," JCK Vice President Frank Naglich said. The water may demand more than one such well, he added.

The project is required to be done by the end of the month to comply with the Novi-DNR consent agreement, and is budgeted at $52,259.

"I don't think (the monitor) is critical or crucial, but it's something that the DNR required us to do and we're going to go ahead and do it," Naglich said.

In addition to metering the sewage flow down the system, Jerome said that Novi's requirements also include inspection of several miles of sewer lines for inflow and infiltration — that is, leaks into the system Problems will have to be corrected by grouting, rebuilding manholes or whatever it takes, he said.

City may allow veterinary clinics

By BOB NEEDHAM

Veterinary clinics may yet be allowed in downtown Northville.

The Northville City Council Monday decided to pursue consideration of an ordinance change which would allow veterinary clinics to locate within the city's central business district (CBD) zoning, including the entire downtown area, when some special conditions are met.

The city's planning commission last month recommended allowing the clinics in industrial zoning, but not in the CBD. The issue arose when a veterinarian asked the city to allow vets in the CBD so that she could open a clinic in a CBD-zoned building on East Dunlap.

Currently, veterinary clinics are allowed only in general commercial district (GCD) and race-track-area zoning. The planning commission recommendation, which passed that body on a 5-4 vote, would have added additional restrictions to vets in the GCD.

With the planners' recommendation in hand, members of the city council Monday agreed to follow an alternative from City Manager Steve Walters. Walters suggested that the city could write an ordinance which would allow vets in the downtown area, but still address the concerns raised among the planning commissioners — concerns like noise, smell, size of animals, overnight boarding, and adequate parking at the site.

A memo from Walters outlines the basic idea: to allow veterinary clinics in the CBD — but only in buildings which have no other activity in them, and which have no walls in common with other properties. Several buildings besides the Dunlap site would qualify, Walters said. Practice could be limited to small animals, and overnight boarding could be prohibited.

Several members of the commission had said they thought the specific case which started the issue — 115 E. Dunlap, a former doctor's office — would be suited as a clinic because of its parking, the fact that it stands alone, and the building has no other activity in it.

Walters said Monday the clinics could be limited to buildings which were not built all the way out to the lot line. That would prevent a situation from occurring where a common wall is created by someone building next door, he said. The restriction could even be a little looser, to allow common walls under a common owner — so if the owner's tenants do not object, there is no problem, he said

Council members noted that situations similar to a veterinary clinic had not caused many problems in the past. Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers said the Puppy Love grooming salon exists on Main Street with lots of traffic, and with a wall common to other establishments. Council Member Jerry Mittman said there used to be a pet shop on Center Street, and that had many animals there overnight.

"I really thought (veterinary clinics) would be a good addition to the range of services we have downtown," Mayor Chris Johnson said.

"I would like to see a way to control it, but allow it," Ayers agreed.

Johnson directed Walters to return to the council with a draft of an ordinance for consideration by the council. A formal public hearing would have to be held before any ordinance change.

Mittman suggested whatever restrictions are put on veterinarians in the CBD should also apply to pet stores.

Walters said a draft ordinance could be back before the council by the end of next month.

The Dunlap Street case, meanwhile, is scheduled to go before the Board of Zoning Appeals Wednesday, Feb. 1. Debra Zarish, the veterinarian who wants to move into the site, has said that a practice would provide a good service and no adverse impact.

Two other local veterinarians have expressed some interest in relocating downtown if the city allows it.

Local cable fees increase

By BOB NEEDHAM

The sharp hikes in Northville cable television rates over the last couple of years are basically due to two things: much higher costs to the local company for the programs, and a standardization of rates within the local company itself.

Lisa Boland, general manager of Omnicom Cablevision, outlined that situation Monday before the Northville City Council. After the latest increase, the council had asked someone from Omnicom to explain the reasons for the hikes and to discuss cable service in general.

Basic service went up to $17 this year, from $14.50 last year.

Boland said a big reason for higher costs to customers is higher costs to Omnicom itself. Last year, Omnicom's programming costs - buying Home Box Office, Cable News Network and the rest - rose by 30 percent, she said.

At the same time, she said, Omnicom held its own local costs to a 2 percent increase. "We have been very successful, particularly the last couple of years, keeping our fixed costs down," she said.

There isn't anything the local companies can do about higher programming costs, Boland said, since the larger channels are confident customers will accept the increase. "I think ESPN is fairly certain we're not going to drop them," she said.
Omnicom's contracts with most of the major services were up for renewal this year, which helps account for the size of the increases, Boland said; usually, annual increases are around 5 to 10 percent. 'Next year, we can basically rely on a 5 to 10 percent increase in our costs again," she said.

But the other side of the coin is Omnicom's own rate structure, which was in the process of being evened out over a two-year period, Boland said. Basically, Northville started out as lower than the rest of the Omnicom area, and its rates have been catching up. Most of Omnicom's service area including the city and township of Northville, the city and township of Plymouth, and Canton Township are all on the same rate structure, Boland said. Some more recentlyacquired areas' rates have not been raised to meet the structure yet, she

Council Member Jerry Mittman, who first suggested inviting someone from Omnicom to a council meeting, asked if rates could be lowered with fewer channels.

"You're here to serve the community," he said. "I would expect you would talk to the consumers, do some research . . . to find out what they want.'

Boland said the company did do a survey about two years ago, and is planning a customer satisfaction survey next month. She said any change in offerings - even moving a service to a different channel causes an uproar. She also said that adding subscribers does not spread out the cost of channels, since the channels charge Omnicom on a per-customer

Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers asked about community service and local programming, suggesting that there might be more oriented to Plymouth or Canton than Northville. In sports broadcasts, she said, it seems Northville is only shown when playing a Plymouth-Canton team. Boland said Omnicom is more active in local origination programming than most companies, and offers 30 hours a week of local programming. "If there's been a bias (against Northville programming), I don't know. I know it's not intentional,' she said

About 49 percent of Northville subscribes to Omnicom, Boland said, and about 56 percent of the homes in their western Wayne County area do.

At the end of the discussion, Boland suggested the city and Omnicom get together in a committee format to talk about cable service to the city before the franchise agreement expires. There are four years left on the city's 15-year agreement with Om-

Final exams mean last minute jitters

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

While many Northville High students spent their day off Friday at local malls or video arcades, the atmosphere inside the school on Wednesday and Thursday was anything but relaxed.

That's because last week was final exam week, one of the hardest and most pressure-filled times in the life of a teen-ager.

All-night studying, sweaty palms and last minute guesses typified the two days of exams, which brought seniors one step closer to graduation and introduced freshmen to an event most will face well into their college

High school principal David Bolitho said he understands students may dislike taking finals, but added they (finals) serve an important role in secondary education. 'Final exams are the focal point of a course because they not only give teachers feedback on student learning, but they also give students an opportunity to get a comprehensive assessment of the class," Bolitho

While teachers have the freedom to make finals either a chapter test or comprehensive exam, he noted the final can have a maximum impact of 20 percent on each student's grade. "We don't want the final to be the 'entire course," Bolitho said. "It should only serve to monitor instruction to see how well kids are learning. 'The comprehensiveness of a final depends on the course. It is up to the teacher's discretion, and as the Freshmen Cathy Terwin and Jennifer Vigh both said they weren't nervous about taking their finals, but added the 'gh school experience is quite dif: rent from middle school.

'I studied for finals when I had time, but when I got the test I blacked out," Vigh said "I read the material on the test over again, and it came back to me after a while.

Terwin, who said she had just finished taking five final exams, noted she learned some valuable lessons in her first final exam experience.

'First, I learned to save my notes for the entire term rather than throwing them away, and second, I learned that finals must be studied for in advance, not the night before," Terwin

In practical terms, Vigh said finals usually only determine a grade's plus or minus. She added however, that determination can be important.

'Finals can mean a difference between getting an A minus or a B plus, so it can really be important," Vigh

'Although I wish I never had to take them, some of my grades are lower than I want, so maybe they'll raise them," she added.

High school math teacher Darrel Schumacher said finals are a great way of preparing students for col-now and know how to do it later." he added. "This experience is definitely worthwhile for the future "

Schumacher said it takes a typical student about two years to learn how to go about studying for and taking a final exam.

"By their junior year, students should pretty much know the tricks of studying for a final exam and feel comfortable taking one under pressure," he said.

Although he said he thinks it is wrong to base an entire grade on a final exam, Schumacher said it is good to put a fair amount of emphasis on the test and give them an opportunity to see at an early stage that a final can make or break a grade.

"By making the final worth something, a student will learn better throughout the semester and know to review the material to completely finish the learning experience.
"And all this will help them in the

Suspect found in local break-ins

Police believe they have solved a series of break-ins in Novi, Northville and other suburban communities with the arrest of a Novi man.

Daniel Kulvelis, 32, of Rathlone was arraigned on charges in the 52nd District Court on Dec. 15.

Kulvelis is charged with three counts of stealing and retaining without consent a financial transaction device, two counts of receiving and concealing stolen property in excess of $100 and one count of possession of stolen property less than $100.

Kulvelis stood mute on arraignment and a "not guilty" plea was entered on his behalf. A preliminary examination date was scheduled for Jan. 6, but has been postponed at the request of the defendant's attorney and has not been rescheduled.

Novi Police Detective Ralph Fluhart said Kulvelis was developed as a prime suspect in a rash of breaking-and-enterings which oc-curred in the Connemara Hills subdivision last August.

Fluhart reported that he contacted the Michigan State Police and arranged to have Kulvelis followed by an undercover surveillance team. The surveillance team picked up the suspect as he was leaving home carrying a brown paper bag on Sept. 2 and followed him to the City of Dearborn where he was seen throwing the bag into a dumpster, Fluhart

After retrieving the bag, the undercover unit resumed the surveillance and followed Kulvelis to Redford where he allegedly was observed breaking into a residence. Kulvelis was arrested upon exiting the house, Fluhart said.

According to Fluhart, the paper bag retrieved by the surveillance team was found to contain several items stolen during a break-in of a Northville Township residence. Police subsequently exercised a search warrant for the suspect's home and seized a "large quantity of items," said Fluhart.

The items were put on display in the Novi Police Department and various breaking-and-entering victims were invited to review the recovered property. Fluhart said a Grosse Pointe Woods resident identified a camera, a Novi resident identified a radio and a wristwatch, and another Novi resident identified a Samsonite bag and Walkman ear-

In addition, Fluhart said, police were able to determine that a Discovery credit card stolen from a Northville Township residence allegedly had been used by Kulvelis to purchase items from the Sears stores in Novi and Livonia. Fluhart reported that a witness identified Kulvelis as the individual who had used the stolen credit card at the Novi Sears store.

Ford history is part of story

One fact which could influence the redevelopment of the Northville Ford Plant site is its ties to the history of the area and the automotive in-

Gary Cooper, a consultant from Quinn Evans / Architects, told the city planning commission last week historical significance, both on its own and as a part of an official national historic district. In fact, he said the location within Northville's Historic District could conceivably have some financial implications

According to the preliminary Quinn Evans report, the Northville Ford Plant was the first of Henry Ford's "village industry" plants to go into operation, although there was one other on the drawing boards before Northville's

Ford bought an old mill in 1919 and the building began making valves the next year. He replaced it in 1936 with district, Cooper said a building designed by Albert Kahn Associates, and that is the building which still stands Two additions - in 1957 and 1966 - are also still on the

Cooper said from an historical standpoint, the building itself would not be too valuable if not for Ford's involvement

"I think the associative thing is important more than the building," he said "If Ford had not been associated with this, if it had not been one of his village industries, it would have limited historical significance "

The two additions, particularly, are less important because Albert Kahn was not involved in their design, Cooper said

The possible financial implications enter in because of the building's status as a "contributing structure" in a national register historic

The plant building could be eligible for special tax status under the 1981 Economic Recovery Tax Act, Cooper said To comply, a certain amount of the walls of the structure have to remain in place — under one of two formulas - as well as 75 percent of the internal structural framework Cooper said removing one or both of the plant's additions might still comply with these requirements.

In addition, the historic status could prohibit the use of federal money to demolish the plant or to erect a new building, if that was ever to happen, Cooper said.

If federal funds were to be used on the site, a special review by state officials would occur to see if any adverse impact would result. If the state review said it would, a federal review would follow, Cooper said

Northville market is ripe

By BOB NEEDHAM

As far as the market is concerned. the site of the Northville Ford Plant might be able to support just about

As part of a presentation to the Northville Planning Commission last week, consultants outlined a study of the Northville market in general and in particular, the area within a 25mile radius of the Ford plant.

John Iacoangeli - a developer and real estate broker acting as a consultant in the city's study of the Ford site - said that Northville, from an economic standpoint, is a "vibrant, exciting place to do business."

He said a market analysis can help determine which way a property like the Ford site would best be developed "In many cases, the market's going to dictate what can and can't be put on the site," Iacoangeli said

However, a report from Quinn Evans / Architects, the main consultants on the study, concludes that the affluent Northville market can sustain a variety of possible uses at

"Market data projects that growth will be strong in Northville and the surrounding area and that income levels will remain very high. This suggests that there is a strong market for any use that is well developed, whether it is residential, retail, commercial, office, etc.," the report states.

'However, demand is presently being met outside of the City of Northville. The market feasibility of any particular use is dependent upon the ability to draw from a local and regional base. This emphasizes the interdependency of the business in the CBD (Central Business District) to draw as a group. This is particularly true of retail commercial. Any retail commercial development proposed would be dependent upon the CBD and vice versa," the report lacoangeli presented a set of figures — from National Decision Systems (NDS), a demographics and market information company - profiling the affluence of the 25-mile area and the Northville market. The 2 5-mile-radius area extends roughly from Five Mile to Ten Mile and from east of Haggerty to west of Beck including the entire City of Nor-thville, most of the developed areas of Northville Township, and a good part of the City of Novi. The Northville market is defined as Northville and the area in 16 surrounding

ZIP codes In the 2.5-mile radius, NDS forecasts population growth of 3.3 percent between the 1980 census and 1993. That compares to 1.3 percent population growth in the market area and .1 percent growth in the state of Michigan. Household growth in the small area is projected at 4.5 percent, compared to 2.3 percent in the market area and .7 percent in the

According to NDS, median household income in the 2.5-mile radius is $52,242, compared to $43,781 for the Northville market and $27,250 for the state. Average household income is $54,299 in the small area; $45,574 in the Northville market and $30,558 in the state.

NDS also included "customer segmentation" information - breaking down the market into 12 major groups covering type of household, each with its own subgroups. According to NDS, 70.4 percent of the 2.5-mile radius is in a single one of the 12 groups — the "suburban af-

"The Northville market is ex-tremely stratified," Iacoangeli said. Within the wider market area, 36.4 percent of households are in "suburban affluence" group, compared to 15.9 percent in Oakland County and 10.4 percent in the United States.

A wealth of other demographic figures are included in the report from NDS. The area in the 2.5-mile radius is about 96 percent white, 2 percent black, and 1.5 percent Asian / Pacific island; the median age is 32 years, and about 32 percent of the people above 25 years of age are college graduates Eighty percent of homes are owner occupied; and 88 percent of the addresses are single-family homes. About 48 percent of the households have two cars, while 27 percent have one car and almost 23 percent have three cars.

The statistics come from census data, updates and projections developed by the company.

The NDS report concludes that from a market standpoint, residential and retail uses would probably be particularly strong in Northville.

'The limited information outlined suggests that the market area contains an abnormally high concentration of wealthy households with a higher per capita discretionary income (than) found in most Michigan communities," the report reads. "Regional retail development along the I-275, I-696, and M-14 will maintain the demand for residential development in and around the Nor-

Iacoangeli said the community has great opportunities to capture more of the money spent on retail in the area. "You have an immense amount of retail potential," he said.

In addition, though, a new light industrial use or an "incubator" space for new, small businesses to develop - would also be feasible, Iacoangeli said.

However, one planning commissioner - Rolland Stapleton - noted that anyone wanting a site for a light industrial project could probably get the same kind of facility for less money somewhere else.

City Manager Steve Walters said some industrial companies have asked about the site. "I've had inquiries from manufacturing interests over

Three plans pursued for the site

There are probably three different ways the Northville Ford Plant may be redeveloped, according to consultant Gary Cooper

Speaking at the city planning commission meeting last Tuesday, Jan 17, Cooper outlined three scenarios the plant may follow after its closing. Two of the three, including the one he said is most likely, involve significant participation from the city government.

For one possible route to redevelopment, Cooper said, the city could gain control over the site and then make the necessary improvements to lease it out. The city might keep part of the site for public think if you're going to have a suc-

Cooper said this is "probably the most likely scenario," because there will probably not be any developer willing to redevelop the site without some kind of incentive.

He added that government involvement is important throughout the whole of a downtown redevelopment effort, for both finances and direc-

'Successful downtowns have to offer an alternative," he said, whether it is specialty retail, restaurants, or entertainment. "If you can only get it downtown, you're going to go downtown, if it's a nice environment and an amenable place to be ... I cessful downtown, you're going to have to be a financial partner as well as a personal partner.

A second scenario is complete city control from start to finish, resulting in a completely public use like a recreation center or municipal center, Cooper said.

The third possibility is for an outside buyer to come in and make the necessary improvements on their own, he said.

A key question in determining which route will be followed - and in consideration of the site in general is whether the goal for the site is to maximize tax base, provide a public benefit, or balance the two, Cooper

Floodplain part of any plan

Cooper said that only minimal development is allowed within the floodway — development like parking lots or roads, but only if they do not impede water flow. No structures are allowed. There are also restrictions on development within the floodway fringe.

The steep bluffs around the river on the west part of the site are another big concern that will not allow development unless there is substantial regrading, Cooper said.

Of the site's 14.3 acres, only 3.7 acres on the east side is completely unrestricted for development, Cooper said. Another three acres - 2.2 of it in the west area - is considered potentially developable.

In addition to the natural configuration, there are other environmental concerns on the site, Cooper said. Uncovered in a study conducted by Ford last June, the problems include:

 Oil in the groundwater and river water, probably although not definitely - resulting from an old oil storage site on the other side of the nearby railroad

Sludge and stained soil from the plant's own oil separation system. Three old, underground, 10,000-gailon fuel storage

About 6,850 feet of pipe insulated with asbestos, plus three boilers with asbestos insulation. Capacitors made with polychlorinated biphenyls

Cooper recommended removing all these items, and replacing those that are necessary, as part of any redevelopment effort. In addition, he recommended a leak test on a 500-gallon gas tank currently in use. But Cooper said even if those problems are fixed, much of the site won't ever be suited for development especially the west parcel.

One way to use the west parcel for development would possibly be to combine it with adjacent land, he added.

large cloud that used to hang over the Northville hospital," Watkins added.

Part of the large cloud to which Watkins refers stems from huge cuts in the mental health budget in the early 1980s. Watkins said roughly $150 million was cut from the budget from 1979 through 1982. Since he became director in 1983 almost $500 million has been spent on improving mental health facilities in Michigan. Furthermore, in 1983 Northville had between 1,100 and 1,200 patients. This year the figure is around 800 patients, which is total capacity of the hospital, according to Brown.

The Northville facility is currently the largest mental health facility in

"Northville is a reflection of the recession," Watkins said. "During the lean years, staffing had to be reduced to basic care. However, you cannot expect quality care if nobody steps in and puts up the money to pay

"Since 1983 we've received support from Gov. James Blanchard and the legislature — especially Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville) — for mental health facilities," he said.

He added that while tight budget years may lie ahead, he expects the state to continue its renewed commitment to mental health.

"I anticipate mental health to be a commitment of the governor and legislature and I expect them to maintain their commitment to quality care," Watkins said.

In addition to the financial increase in the budget of the mental health department, Watkins said the leadership of Brown and the commitment of his staff "set the hospital on its course for improved patient care."

Brown, who has been at the Northville hospital since 1985, said through the increased funds the hospital has been able to develop new programs for both the mentally ill and mentally retarded.

He said all of these programs are designed to both streamline the services and give a clear-cut chain of command, giving him the ability to identify who is in charge of a problem

Without downplaying the increase in funds, Brown said the commitment of the staff is the main reason for the hospital regaining its accreditation.

"The staff are the ones who provide the care, and they are the ones who should get the major amount of credit for the accreditation,' Brown said. "You could have all kinds of money put in here and if the staff did not work hard to do what they are supposed to, it wouldn't make any difference."

He noted that although the hospital will not get any federal funding for receiving accreditation, it may receive some increase in reimbursement from Blue Cross and Blue

Brown added since the financial gains are minimal, the result of the reaccreditation will be most felt by the employees and the patients.

'The accreditation should improve the staff's feeling of self-worth,' Brown said. "To the patients, it should show them that they are involved in an institution where people care and are shown to care.'

"I think what we've tried to build here is what I like to call a real community. When I came it felt like people were operating well, but on their own. I think we've pulled together and so for the patients what we should have as a final product is better care for them. And that's the bottom line for all of us."

Signs of improved morale at the Northville hospital were evident, as many of the staff said they were pleased with the reaccreditation

"It's been a long battle," said social worker Diane Jerome, adding she really feels great about the accreditation.

"The staff has worked hard to upgrade the facility over the last three years (since Dr. Brown became director), so I think everyone is relieved that the hospital has been accredited," she said.

Registered nurse I. Chancellor said Northville's accreditation is "really nice because the whole staff has worked hard to achieve it.

"The reaccreditation is great news and it should tell the people in Northville that we've put a lot of effort into the hospital and the community."

A party will be held on Feb. 2 at 1 p.m. in the hospital's Activities Therapy (AT) Auditorium to celebrate the accreditation. Geake and other legislators are scheduled to for specific uses. The categories were retail commercial, office, residential, indoor recreation, outdoor recreation, commercial entertainment, cultural, governmental, education facility, light industry, heavy industry and warehouse / storage.

Cooper said the site "really warrants a look at public use, especially the west part, and the commission members present expressed general agreement.

After hearing a presentation of demographic figures showing a strong market for residential development in the area, Planning Commissioner Rolland Stapleton said he felt such a use would be "fundamentally wrong" and "exclusionary" on the Ford

"It's amazing to me how all the great cities in the world seem to be located on bodies of water for one reason or another," Stapleton said. He suggested a combination of governmental and retail development on the site to make the area open to the general population as much as possible.

The idea of public parking on the site was knocked around at the meeting. Cooper didn't rule the idea out, but questioned whether it would be effective to meet the needs of the general downtown area.

The uphill walk to the rest of the downtown area would discourage parking near the Ford plant, as would the distance itself, he said: People will walk a mile to get to the mall at Christinas, but they won't walk a mile in downtown Northville.'

Some other kind of public use was discussed at length among the officials present.

Several people present at the meeting said it was important for any redevelopment to make good use of the river running through the site, and Cooper agreed. 'Quality - that's always got to be balanced against the market," he

Ideas tossed out for the east side included a new municipal building; a new library, since a move to bigger quarters is under consideration; a new community building to complement the current Northville Community Center, since its available rooms are usually booked solid.

The preliminary Quinn Evans report suggests the same sort of things. It mentions outdoor recreation as a possibility, but concludes that the site and the building are both suited to public use - specifically, a community center, library, museum, or municipal building.

The more public the use, however, the less tax revenue will come from the land. Walters said at the meeting that the Ford land currently means about $15,000 in taxes to the city each year.

An informal survey of the commission toward the end of the meeting showed a consensus in favor of keeping the existing factory building

Cooper ended the meeting by saying that the consultants would try to develop feasible re-use alternatives. They then expect to return to the planning commission for further discussion and then to refine the ideas as final concepts.

Cooper said the next planning commission appearance could come some time in February. The consultants are also expected to appear before the Downtown Development Authority to gather more input

The Northuille Record

Our Opinions

City working to keep Ford a community asset

It was good to learn that city officials and the consultants working on the Northville Ford Plant study seem to be thinking along the same lines.

When Ford Motor Company announced the plant's closing last year, it touched off a flurry of speculation about what would happen to the site. The discussion before the Northville Planning Commission last week seemed to take a big step toward clarifying all the speculation, and as things start to look clearer, they look better as well.

The early direction taken by Quinn Evans, the consulting firm on the project, seems right in line with the thoughts of the members of the commission and the best interests of the community.

What the Quinn Evans people heard from the officials assembled at the meeting was that the public good should be a dominant concern in the study. The site as it now sits is a valuable community resource — both in terms of Ford Field on the west and the duck pond area on the east. And it's starting to look like the closing of the plant won't mean the end of the resource

DEVELOPMENT

Both the professional consultants and the others present last week were giving serious consideration to a completely public use of the site — community center, library or the like. A combination community and retail use — which would still basically be completely open to the public, and have the added tax advantages — was also discussed.

If the thinking continues along these lines, the conclusion may well end up with a project that opens up the site to the public more than it is now, allowing anyone to enjoy the whole riverfront. Of course, Ford Motor Company is going to have a lot to say about whatever happens to its plant. But if things keep going on their present course, the eventual development is going to be a real improvement to the town

Facility rises to honor

Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital has been plagued by a host of problems, many of which resulted in the loss of accreditation in 1980. Money woes, hospital staff problems, and severe overcrowding were all a part of the complicated picture that the hospital presented to the public and staff through much of this decade.

But, with the resurgence of funds into the mental health department by the State of Michigan — which were obtained in part due to the work of State Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville) — combined with the competent leadership of Mental Health Director Tom Watkins and Northville Hospital Director Walter Brown, the facility recently regained its accreditation. This is extremely good news not only to the staff and patients at NRPH but to the Northville community as well.

We congratulate the fine efforts of Watkins, Brown and everyone involved with the Northville facility for producing such positive results. Since the hospital will get very little federal funds from the reaccreditation, both Watkins and Brown have said employees and patients will be the major benefactors.

Certainly, eight years after losing accreditation the employees can now take pride in knowing they work at a quality facility, while the patients can be assured that their care is first rate.

And the Northville community as a whole can feel good about the hospital's progress. Because of its location in the township, the hospital can play an integral role in the daily routine of Northville's residents. People can now rest easier knowing quality care is being offered at Northville Hospital.

Volunteers are needed

Calls go out for volunteers from various organizations, both within Northville and further afield. Many answer those calls. We have been running occasional articles on volunteers from Northville who give of their time to worthwhile organizations of diverse origins.

Whether it is PTA committees, planning commission, library board, hospital help or delivering meals to seniors — many in our community give of the most valuable resource of all — their time.

Last week we watched the swearing in of a new president. Millions of people around the country watched this historical moment. Whatever a person's political bent, at a time of new beginnings a sense of hope and a wish for success accompany the new administration.

One thing above all others struck us about Mr. Bush's speech. He called for an army of volunteers to get involved with the problems that have invaded America today. Stating that the federal government did not have the money to cure all of the ills of society, he called to individuals to become involved in fighting drugs, poverty and homelessness.

On a front much closer to home, Northville residents have a host of community groups in which they can become involved to battle similar ills that affect our community.

Last week in his regular column, Charlie Stilec, Northville High School Student Assistance Program Coordinator, made a call to the community for further involvement in the fight against substance abuse.

Stilec asked for help in the continuing struggle to present new programs and educational opportunities for Northville. To give a hand call Stilec at 344-8420. The Northville Action Council meetings are held the third Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. in Northville City Hall.

Many gave willingly of clothes and food during the Christmas holidays, but leaders of the Northville based Civic Concern organization remind us that help is needed all year round. To find out more, contact Civic Concern at 344-1033. They are located at Cooke School, 21200 Taft Road.

A special thanks to all those residents who have already begun their involvement, through civic, school and charity work throughout the community.

In-betweeners

By Ann Willis

We're in-betweeners.

We're the people caught living in two different cities. People stuck with one leg in Northville and one arm in Novi. Or more accurately, people with kids in Northville schools and a tax bill from Novi. Our address says Northville, our tax assessment says Novi. In-betweeners.

There must have been a simpler time when your address determined where you lived. Growing up I had it easy. Detroit was on my mailing address, and it was where I lived. Later when my parents moved to Novi and I was living away from home, things were a little more complex. "Where are you from," someone would ask. "Novi," I would reply. In Maine or Chicago the answer would be followed by a dull stare from the questioner. "Uh, that's a suburb near Detroit — in Michigan," I would follow-up.

But now I live in Northville. I think. My address is definitely in Northville. But when I look on a map my house lies just inches over the rather unevenly set border — in the city of Novi.

The topic of in-betweeners has come up often around here. When we write stories for the Northville Record we like to cover Northville first, and surrounding communities of interest, second. Which is all well and good if you live in Northville. But what if your address is Northville and when you call the police it is the Novi P.D. that shows up at the door? Does crime in Novi become a pretty interesting subject for you to read about? Probably.

But if your address reads Northville your children go to Northville schools and that means you want to know what is going on with that school board, not Novi's. See, it gets complicated.

And what about community organizations? If I vote in the Novi City mayoral election I probably care a lot about what is happening with that city government. But if I shop primarily in downtown Northville and ride my bike in Northville Township, I care a lot about development and business news in Northville, as well as new ordinances that might affect that area. Basically as a reader I want to know only what affects my life and those that I care about. I'm picky. But I'm also lucky. I have easy access to two newspapers.

This whole thing came to a head recently when I was having lunch at my church. The church I belong to is in Novi. Like many things, church affiliations cross over many community lines. Northville First Presbyterian Church pulls its large membership from several communities. First United Methodist Church of Northville has people attend their programs from Livonia, Plymouth and other surrounding communities.

Someone asked me where I lived. I said Northville. Then I said Novi. Then I said I wasn't sure. I asked them what they meant. Pretty soon the questioner turned away and started talking to someone who could answer a simple question. The issue is getting complicated.

Ties to a community can be measured in so many ways beyond mere addresses. The schools your children attend. The place you go to worship. Your favorite walk after dinner. Where your kids play baseball, where you shop, go to the doctor and get your car fixed.

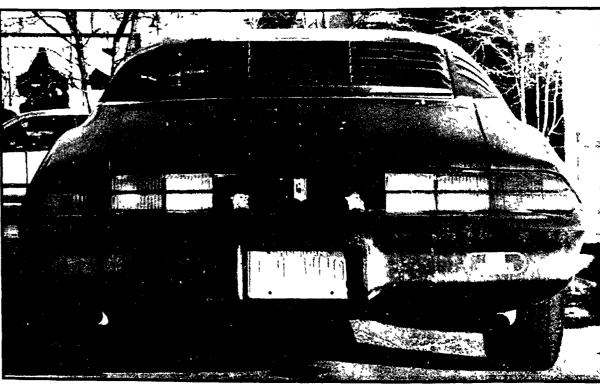

When I first started working at the newspaper my beat was Novi. I remember one of my first stories was in a subdivision off of Novi Road, directly south of Nine Mile Road. I talked to a group of residents about a vacant section of trees that they felt were doomed to development, despite their affection and constant use of the area. The article ran soon after in the Novi News: I received a call some time later from one of the residents wondering where the article was. Although I knew that the subdivision was in Novi, she knew that her address was in Northville, that her children attended Northville schools and that she went to a Northville church. She had a subscription to the Northville Record and in her eyes the story had never run.

I don't know what the answer is in terms of newspaper coverage, nor in terms of what city I should officially call home. For now I'll turn to yet another problem: Which county do I buy a dog license in? I live in Oakland, but I walk my mutt in Wayne. In-between again.

Who's car?

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

Have I got a thoughtful crew, or what? Of all the things I truly wanted for Christmas, it was the thoughtful individuals right here at the paper who got it for me. What I'm talking about, of course, is my very own Chia Pet.

Just like you, I had seen them on television. And, just like you, I had marvelled at how these wonderful little pieces of pottery made by Mexican artisans managed to grow little Chia seeds until they became beautiful little Chia plants . . . perfect for any home or office.

It was a week ago Tuesday that I decided it was time for my Chia Pet to do his thing. I soaked the little fellow over night, just like the directions said. And I soaked the little Chia seeds in water for 30 minutes before spreading them over his little Chia body. Then I sat back and waited for him to become a beautiful, flowering plant . . . just like on TV.

The problem is that Ed (I decided to name him Ed) isn't doing that well. The box said it would take three to five days for the seeds to germinate. Well, five days came and went with no signs of life whatsoever.

I was a good father, too. I filled him with water and "misted" him daily. I talked to him . . . encouraged him to take seed and become all that he could be. "Upward, my friend. Higher and higher, greener and greener. Spread your sprouts to the heavens," I urged in a benign, supportive voice.

And it's starting to pay off. Ginotti spotted the first little green sprouts. And, sure enough, after close examination, it turned out to be true — Ed was indeed beginning to germinate.

He doesn't look quite as good yet as the Chia Pets you see on TV. But what the heck. Give him time. He's doing the best he can. Maybe he's going to be one of those late bloomers.

Planner defends vote on subdivision

To the Editor:
In the Jan. 12, 1989 issue of the Northville Record, on page 9A, Bruce Weintraub wrote an article called "Board Again Rejects Northville Trails Plan." This report on the Northville Township Planning Commission's special Jan. 5 meeting was most accurate except that he failed to mention a conditional motion made by me but never voted on. However, in an editorial article on page 14A entitled "Denial Was a Good Move," my statements and actions at this meeting were greatly

For example I never said "The developer presented a workable site plan with all of the commission's concerns resolved," nor did I vote to pass the revised site plan. But, what I did do was make a motion to approve this second revised preliminary site plan, provided the changes that satisfied the concerns of both the neighbors and the commission members be made prior to submitting a final site plan for the commission's approval.

mentioned in Mr. Weintraub's article. My motion did not go to a vote for lack of a second. After further commission discussion another motion was made, to deny this second preliminary plan. This motion was properly seconded and then voted on. Seven of the planning commissioners voted to deny and I voted against denial. I still felt that the better way to resolve the issue was to take the positive action of giving a preliminary approval with these same required changes, not what I considered the negative approach of a second denial, especially since the petitioners had corrected the "Fundamental problems" of the first plan that was denied.

These changes are the same ones

So I voted my conscience. Further, I did not suggest that numerous preliminary site plan problems can be worked out at the final stage, I firmly stated in my motion that these problems must be worked out prior to submitting their final site plan, and that final site plan must include these changes to get approval. If you care to review the minutes of the Jan. 12, 1989 meeting you'll see that these facts are the true facts.

The end result, if the petitioners get an approved final site plan will be the same, they know they must make these changes to get that final approval. We now must have two more meetings instead of one, which is an extra expense for the petitioner, plus, in this busy coming year is an extra burden on the township staff and consultants. I believe that a preliminary plan is exactly that — preliminary, and that a final plan is for final approval, so that is how I voted.

The first preliminary plan in November 1988 which had "Fundamental Problems" was denied unanimously by the commission and, yes, I voted for that denial. However, personally felt the second preliminary plan was workable with the agreed changes, so I voted my conscience accordingly. For you to infer that because of this action I don't have the same concerns regarding "The shaping of the aesthetic and practical nature of Northville Township" is totally unfair.

I do not take this assignment lightly, I am very concerned. Each member of the planning commission is a resident of Northville Township and a very dedicated and qualified individual. After careful research and deliberation the commissioners should be able to vote their own conscience without intimidation.

The purpose of such commissions is to assure that a cross section of community views are represented and that by majority vote the best in-terests of the township as a whole are protected. The actions taken at this meeting fulfilled that purpose. I believe that this present planning commission, comprised as it is of an excellent mix of township residents, serves this end well and is doing a great job.

Parents need to emphasize balanced diet

This is another in the continuing series of columns written for the Record by Mary Ellen King, Director of Northville Youth Assistance.

One of the questions that I ask of youths whom I interview is "How do you send your free time?" The majority of youths respond that they watch TV, play video games or hang out at the mall and eat "junk" food. This means that many youths are not actively working to keep their bodies as fit as they could be.

This is a disturbing trend to me since I have observed a correlation between kids who eat poorly and are inactive and kids who are depressed, lonely and get into trouble at school and at home.

As adults we need to teach children that eating a balanced diet is essential to good physical health. It is important for children to eat from the four food groups each day: fruits/vegetables, meats/proteins, breads/cereals, and milk/cheeses. We also need to encourage our children to eat more fish and chicken and less fried foods, and beef and pork.

We need to emphasize the value of cutting down on their intake of salt and sugar. Most teenages will resist giving up "fast foods". Let them know that it is OK to enjoy a cheeseburger, fries and shake now and then but not to rely on them for most meals.

To maintain a healthy body, children not only have to eat right, they also have to exercise. Here are a few suggestions for parents to pass on to their children.

• Go for a walk with a friend instead of talking on the phone.

· When stuck on a homework problem, go for a walk to clear your mind.

· Ride a bike to a friend's house instead of asking for a ride.

Children can also be encouraged to consider aerobic activities such as bicycling, swimming, walking fast, roller skating, cross-country skiing, hiking, jogging, dancing, or playing basketball at least three times a week. Aerobic activity is best if it continues for at least 20 minutes. Joining a team sport such as soccer, basketball or swimming is an excellent way to get aerobic activity.

Parents need to instill the value of eating properly and exercising regularly into children when they are young, so that when they reach their teenage years, these values are part of their daily routines. We have often heard the statment that with a healthy body comes a healthy mind. From my experience working with youths, I can whole-heartedly attest to the validity of that statement.

Hunting vacuums

By Brenda Dooley

There we were, faced with a line-up of Hoovers, Eurekas and Singers.

Sweat beaded our brows. My mouth went dry. They just sat there on a platform of burgundy carpet, their motors silent, their front lights dark, their plastic-coated cords wound neatly around the spindles on their handles.

We stood staring at them, immobilized by indecision. Minutes ticked by.

This is ridiculous. They're just vacuum cleaners," I muttered. "Which one looks good to you?"

Kevin shrugged his shoulders. "Let's try them out. Look, you can plug them in.'

Sure enough, a row of outlets lined the base of the store wall. We picked one of the cleaning machines at random and brought it to life with electricity.

"It's too LOUD!" Kevin shouted over the roar of the motor.

"What?"

He grabbed it away from me and turned it off.

"It's too loud. I don't want one that makes a lot of noise."

"A silent vacuum? I've never heard of such a thing." I grumbled.

We exchanged scowls.

Three vacuum cleaners later, Kevin was still unhappy with the noise factor. I wondered why I had invited him along on this shopping expedition.

The next two models wouldn't pick up the foreign fuzzies that speckled the carpet. Soon every speck of dust on the floor became

"Wow, this beauty has power surge. Look, honey." I can still see the giant maroon and gray Hoover, complete with a little removable dust buster that conveniently plugged into its own compartment in front. Boy was it impressive. I couldn't wait to try it out.

Kevin simply fingered the price tag, his indifference mounting. He choked.

I was under the huge Hoover's spell. I turned it on. It hummed to life and practically vacuumed by itself — I was reminded of an episode on the Jetsons.

Kevin brought me out of the spell by pointing to the price tag again.

"Maybe someday you'll be mine," I whispered to the Hoover as I returned it to its spot in the line-up.

Kevin could no longer hide his impatience.

"You pick one out," he spat. I eyed the giant maroon model. "No, not that one." Again I wondered why I had chided him out of watching the weekend football game to accompany me to the store.

We finally decided to go to another store. At Sears in Twelve Oaks Mall we were faced with the same selection. A kindly saleslady must have sensed our distress. She smiled sympathetically.

I asked her what the main difference between the vacuum cleaners was (by this time. Kevin had retreated to another department in the store). She explained that the size of the motor was the major difference the larger the motor the larger the price.

After assessing our needs and price range, she helped us pick one out. I've never been so relieved to make a purchase.

It doesn't have the power surge feature, our little gray vacuum, but we've become attached to the cleaning machine. Kevin uses it practically every day.

School board chooses to reopen Moraine

board acted very responsibly in making its decision.

"I think the board had to give parents the option (of allowing fourth graders to stay at Amerman)," Lightfoot said. "Amerman has to have a reduction in population and Moraine is the best facility to minimize the anguish for kids. I also see many of the fourth graders going to Moraine, but the option gives parents input.'

In making his recommendation to the board, Bell said the community's input helped him formulate his decision. He said he received about 25 letters from concerned parents since last Monday's public hearing.

"I am really pleased at the tremendous outpouring of thought and concern evidenced by the quality of these communications," Bell said.

He said the decision to give fourth graders the option of attending Amerman or Moraine was facilitated by some parents expressing a desire for all of their children to attend the same elementary school, while others felt that fifth graders should not have to change schools for a second time.

Many of Amerman's fourth grade students began school at Moraine, before the school was closed in 1984.

In addition to giving fourth graders a choice in schools, other recommendations by Bell included: making Taft Road south to Lexington Boulevard to Potomac, the east/west boundary between Amerman and Moraine; installing partitions in Moraine to close open spaces in the middle centrum; to prepare facilities at Cooke School to service two rooms of child care and two classrooms of Kid's Creative Corner.

The last recommendation deals with a portion of the Early Childhood Development program which is currently housed in Moraine. With the elementary school proram beginning at Moraine in the fall, Early Childhood Development Principal Mary Kay Scullen said her group's offices will be moved to Cooke. Scullen added that Wondergarten and one class of Kid's Creative Corner will be continued at Moraine and one Wondergarten section will be offered at Silver Springs. She noted a latch key program will be offered at both Moraine and Silver Springs. Other programs at Moraine, such as the Northville Youth Assistance and Northville Preschool Co-op will have to be relocated, with Cooke School being a possible location, Bell

Bell said the Senior Citizen Drop-In Center, currently operating in the cafeteria at Cooke, will not be impacted by the the elementary school move to Moraine By having part of her program at

Cooke, Scullen said her staff may have the opportunity of integrating their program with the seniors. We've tried to do this in the past, but were unable to get it off the ground due to transportation problems. That won't be a problem

now," she said. As for the cost of opening Moraine as an elementary school, Bell put it last week at around $80,000. Added to that cost will be the partitions at roughly $6,000, carpeting and redoing part of Cooke for the pre-school program and a number of other expenses — making the total cost "in the neighborhood of $200,000," Bell

With the Headlee rollback resulting in a lowering of the millage rate, the community will have to work to make this happen," Bell said, adding the district may consider curtailing some programs to find the funds necessary to support Moraine.

Overall, board members expressed support with Bell's recommendation. Board President Jean Hansen thanked the community for its input in the board's decision and personally spoke in favor of Bell's recommen-

"I support the administration's proposal for the following reasons: first, the current enrollment projections and number of planned new home starts suggest that Meads Mill may meet capacity in a couple of years. Cooke is a junior high and if we open Cooke as an elementary school, we will have no way of assuring the kids at Cooke that they won't be moved again.

"Also, Moraine fits the description of a perfect neighborhood elementary school. Its atmosphere is definitely conducive to elementary students.

Board Vice President James Petrie said no matter which solution was selected, Northville's high standard of quality education will be maintained at Moraine.

"The board will take care to make sure the quality found in the other elementary buildings will be duplicated at Moraine," Petrie said. 'We know the community was patient when Moraine and Cooke were closed in 1964 and we hope you'll have the same patience in re-opening

Milford brothers build reputation on used car sales

By DAWN O'LEARY

From an early age, Jeff and Brian Saunders learned to appreciate exposure to fine automobiles and the hard work and dedication it takes to successfully operate a used car business in a small town

Consequently, it came as no great surprise to the Milford community when the two brothers teamed up as co-owners of Colonial Motors at 221 South Main Street.

Their parents, Bill and Donna, had established the business in 1966, and by 1983 were ready to retire to Indian River. It was at that point the brothers assumed control of Colonial

The boys grew up watching their parents oversee the car business, and gradually the siblings became in-

"We were the only kids in school who hated time off because of snow days. We had to come in and shovel the car lot," said Brian, 26.

Although they candidly admit they are as different as night and day, the brothers enjoy a harmonious business relationship based on a longstanding family commitment to providing customers with quality

The young partners specialize in the sale of collector cars and select used automobiles. Because they are dedicated to customer satisfaction, both brothers said they are known to be extremely selective when purchasing cars to be sold on their lot.

'It has to be a good car," said Jeff, 29. "Not necessarily a Corvette or a Mercedes, but it has to be in excellent condition for us to even consider it.'

Wednesday/Thursday - January 25/26, 1989

Each car the men purchase for Colonial Motors' inventory is subjected to a four- to eight-hour inspection, during which both men drive it to gain working knowledge of the automobile

"We want to know what the owner did for maintenance. If it was poorly taken care of, we'll usually find it during an extensive test drive. A lot of times we won't even get to a price after the test drive," Brian said. Prices on most cars sold at Colonial Motors vary between $2,000 and $15,000, depending on the age and condition of the vehicle, including mileage.

Jeff said mini-vans are in high de-mand, hard to obtain and on the high end of their price range.

The brothers said with the trend toward longer financing of automobiles, it is becoming increasingly difficult to find low-mileage us-

Over the years the business has received high marks not only from customers, but also from those persons who sell cars to Colonial Motors, Brian explained.

"A guy wanted us to buy his car and we wouldn't. Two years later he came back to buy a car from us because he figured we only sell quali-

Jeff said a big interest at the mo-ment is unrestored 1950s and 1960s larger luxury cars.

The brothers said their livelihood is tied to the business' solid reputation, word-of-mouth and repeat business. "We just don't wash them and put them on the lot. We do a lot of prepping. We're known to have the

And they are not adverse to experimenting with new ideas. Since

June they have been very successful in renting a fleet of three cars.

son stereotypes has not always been easy, but both agree that buying a used car can be an excellent bargain.

The initial cost of the car and insurance rates are low, Brian said. 'Let's face it — buying a new car doesn't necessarily constitute trouble-free driving." The next big project the brothers plan to tackle is a renovation, including refinishing the building's exterior, scheduled for this spring. Plans are not complete on details or cost, Jeff said.

CPAs foresee strong economic outlook

Again, the short-run outlook is good with

76 percent of Michigan CPAs responding

Michigan CPAs responding to a na tionwide poll believe the next six months look good for business, but that unemployment in Michigan will rise over the next year.

Area CPAs also expect Michigan personal income tax rates to remain steady over the next year. The poll was conducted by the American Institute of CPAs in cooperation with the Michigan Association of CPAs (MACPA)

A total of 94 percent of Michigan CPAs responding think that current general business conditions in the country are either excellent or good. And 85 percent of the Michigan CPAs expect conditions six months from now to be the same as they are now and another 4 percent expect conditions to be even better.

This view is similar to that held by CPAs from around the United States.

The longer-term outlook is more mixed, however. The proportion of Michigan CPAs who expect that current conditions in the country will hold up over the next year drops to 54 percent. The proportion who believe that conditions will worsen jumps from 11 percent to 29 percent, while the proportion who expect that conditions will get better rises from 4 percent to 16 percent.

Looking at our state, Michigan CPAs typically hold a favorable opinion regarding current general business conditions in Michigan. Seven out of every 10 respondents

Again, the short-run outlook is good with 76 percent of Michigan CPAs responding expecting current conditions to continue for the next six months, with another 9 percent expecting them to be even better.

The longer-term outlook is again mixed, with slightly more than half of the respondents seeing conditions one year from now as about the same as they are now and 33 percent of the respondents expecting conditions to

While good business conditions continue to be predicted, Michigan CPAs also believe that inflation and unemployment rates will rise over the next year. A total of 44 percent of the Michigan CPAs responding see higher interest rates in the state six months from now.

expecting current conditions to continue for the next six months, with another 9 percent expecting them to be even better.

About seven out of 10 Michigan respondents anticipate about the same level of consumer spending in the state six months from now. A year from now, however, the proportion of Michigan CPAs who expect lower consumer spending doubles from 23 percent to 46 percent

Half of the Michigan CPAs responding see capital expenditures at about the same level six months from now as they are currently, while 13 percent see a higher level and 35 percent a lower level of capital expenditures. Over the longer-term, the outlook for capital expenditures is somewhat less optimistic.

Michigan CPAs believe income tax rates in the state will hold steady. Eight out of 10 respondents expect personal income tax rates to be about the same a year from now, with 68 percent believing the rates will remain steady over the next two years.

Finally, Michigan CPAs agree with CPAs around the country that the federal budget deficit is the single most important factor that will affect the economy in 1989. Interest rates were listed second by Michigan CPAs, while inflation, the trade deficit and foreign exchange rate of the dollar round out the top five.

"Since CPAs are involved in all aspects of the affairs of business and individuals, the results of the survey are significant," said Phyllis Peters, CPA, president of the Michigan Association of CPAs.

The MACPA maintains offices in Farmington Hills and serves more than 10,500 CPAs through its educational and professional programs.

This tree died ofa heart attack.

Carving hearts on trees seems harmless enough.

But the fact is, it cut short the life of this majestic oak.

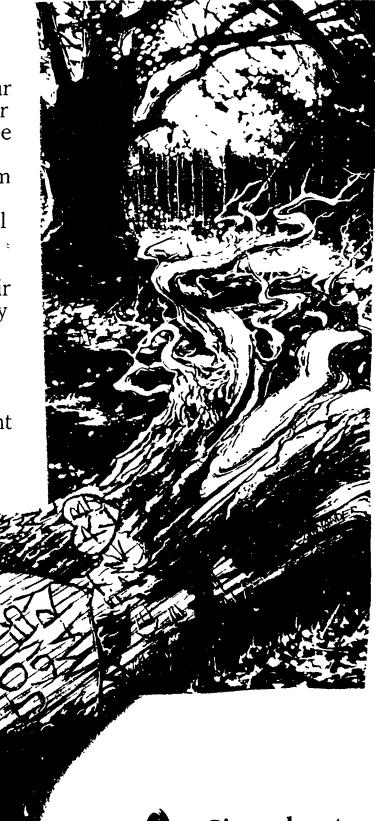

By gouging into the bark, vandals crippled the tree's vascular system. So, like thousands of other innocent victims each year, the tree slowly died.

But the fight against vandalism is gathering strength from the example of Lynn Brauer and Carol Eichling.

When vandals girdled a 300 year old Chinquapin Oak near their Marthasville, Missouri home, they wrapped the wound in sphagnum moss and tended the tree daily, despite blizzard conditions.

If not for the severe winter, arborists feel the Chinquapin might have survived.

We believe miracles can take root. When people care enough.

Give a hoot. Don't pollute.

glaring sun beats down on a field of fresh

Briefly you're blinded by intense white light. You squint your eyes and reduce your vision to a pair of narrow slits.

Quick, grab the sunglasses!
Sunglasses aren't reserved for the sun and sand of summer. They're equally essential for those who ski, skate and enjoy winter sports.

Long ago man invented ways to protect his eyes from the brightness of the sun. According to "The Sportsman's Eye: How to Make Better Use of Your Eyes in the Outdoors" by James Gregg, tinted lenses made of colored quartz or re used by the Chinese 14 centuries ago, dating back before the invention of spectacles about 1300 A.D.

Eskimos and Himalayans used materials such as wood, bone, skin and metal shaped to fit in front of their eyes and cut narrow slits or punched holes in the material to reduce reflection.

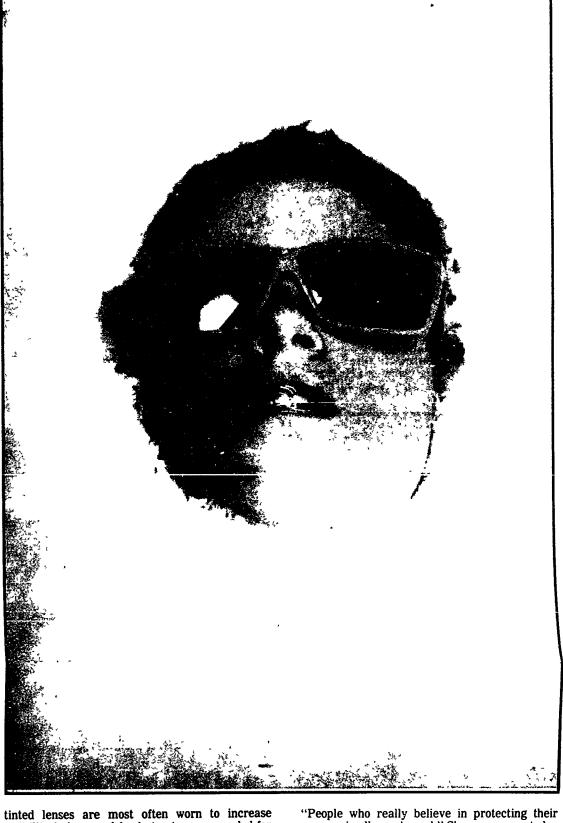

Fortunately, we've come a long way since the days of sunglasses carved from bone. Today consumers have a vastly varied selection of sunglasses to choose from.

There are so many sunglasses, in fact, the selection may become awesome. But it you're serious about protecting your eyes from the sun there are a few pointers to make the selection easier.

The Home Medical Library's "The Complete Guide To Eye Care, Eyeglasses and Contact Lenses" recommends dark gray or greenish-tinted lenses as the best for all-around sunglasses. Pink and blue-tinted lenses cut the glare from artificial lights and are often bought for cosmetic use, but are not suggested for those seeking good protection from sunlight.

Sunglasses with brown-tinted lenses are good for cool climates and cut through blue haze. Yellow-visibility in haze and fog but not recommended for all-purpose use.

Sunglasses are meant to protect the eyes from the sun's ultra-violet and infra-red rays. Both are invisible, although infra-red can be sensed as heat on your Manufacturers have begun to label sunglasses according to their ability to filter out ultra-violet rays in an effort to make it less confusing for consumers when purchasing them. Properly-made glass lenses are touted as the best for protection from the sun. If in doubt, seek professional advice to find the best type of lens to fit your lifestyle.

Sue Cherry, manager of Sun Vision in Novi's Twelve Oaks Mall, said the season for the heaviest sunglass buying is May to September. Because of the glare from snow, she added that sunglass sales are strong in the winter as well.

eyes come in all year 'round," Cherry commented.

Popular sellers at Sun Vision are Ray Bans (made by Bausch & Lomb), according to Cherry. She noted that Ray Bays were the first brand of sunglasses to hit the market 50 years ago. Cherry said the longevitinue to enjoy popularity.

Other popular brands of sunglasses are black Wayfarers, as well as the aviator-type of sunglasses, Cherry said. Gargoyles "44 Blues," the model of shades worn frequently by football player Brian Bosworth also enjoy popularity at the Novi

The most commonly purchased color of sunglasses is black or blue for the frame with bluetinted lenses, Cherry remarked.

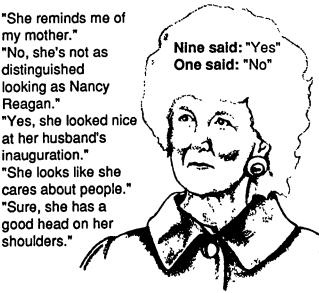

"Anything with blue is the most popular," she

Otton donates time to Huron Valley Hospital

By DOROTHY NASH

You're an adult? Or are you a teenager? You're bored? Maybe you're looking for a career to get excited about?

Kathleen Otton has an answer that may help. Call 360-3454. That's the volunteer office at Huron Valley Hospital in Milford. Ask for an orientation tour of the place to find out what's available on the volunteer scene. You'll notice a warm and friendly attitude there, she said. In fact that's why she was attracted to Huron Valley two years ago when her husband had to be hospitalized. Then later, when she wanted to "pay back a little of the kindness" they had been shown, she offered to volunteer.

She started out in the surgical care waiting room, helping to relieve the anxiety of relatives and friends - talking with them and getting information for them from nurses and doctors on the staff.

"It was a most gratifying experience," she said. "I was there for a year and a half. I'd come in once a week at seven in the morning and stay until three in the after-

After that she was asked to edit the newsletter for the hospital auxiliary. She's still doing that, once a month. It's five or six pages of printed material, which is mailed to the 200 volunteers. She assembles the news, much of which is given her by the Director of Volunteers and the Community Relations Director.

She writes all of the copy, except for a special letter from the Auxiliary President. Then she turns it over to a professional typist who prepares it for printing.

As for anyone else who is at all interested, Otton repeated, Huron Valley Hospital is the place, and the number to call for an orientation tour is 360-3454.

Look it up

Mothers' Club begins compiling new directory

The Northville Mothers' Club is beginning the monumental task of compiling their popular community

Every two years the club puts together the listing of Northville resi-dent addresses and telephone numbers which many in the community have learned to rely on for constant and easy reference.

The Mothers' Club directory includes pertinent school, city, township, police and fire numbers as well as a classifed index of merchants in the community

The directory committee of the club is currently beginning their advertising drive, seeking community groups and merchants willing to advertising to support the

The group is selling classified and large ads and is using the 1987-88 directory as a starting point, but is anxious to hear from new businesses that are not currently listed in the

Jackie Payne is heading up the committee charged with putting out the directory, and Payne said they are looking forward to hearing from businesses that would like to be included in the book. The committee member in charge of large ads for the directory is Lani Bond, 349-2889; classifieds are handled by Kathlee Arenz at 348-3429.

In addition to rounding up advertisers, the committee will soon begin the task of compiling the hundreds of Northville names and addresses from the west area Ameritech white pages. Each committee member is charged with going through a certain number of pages in the directory and pulling any Northville data.

But the committee does not rely solely on that process, Payne noted. The Mothers' Club will be in touch with all subdivisions in the Northville area, including those subdivisions officially in Novi, but that carry a Northville mailing address and lie within the Northville school boundary. These subdivisions can provide the club with an even more precise listing of Northville names and numbers, Payne said. She urged anyone who would like to be listed in the directory to give the pertinent data to the subdivision president, or board members, for listing. In addition, Payne and co-chair

Sue Shepard will be taking calls from people in Northville who would like to include their numbers in the Mothers' Club directory - if their name does not appear in the west Ameritech white pages already Also, any community member whose name appears in the current Mothers' Club book with an error or change, should contact Shepard at 348-6544 or Payne at 348-9729.

A cover design for this year's directory will be sought from student's at Northville High School. Payne said. The directory should be out sometime this fall

When is the Best Time to look for a Physician?

(see answer below)

No matter how healthy you are, anyone can fall victim to an unexpected accident or sudden illness. When that happens, it's nice to have a personal physician you can turn to. Someone who knows your medical history and can promptly respond to your medical needs.

Finding the right physician isn't easy. That's why St. Mary Hospital established a no cost, no obligation, physician referral service. Our representatives can help you find the right physician specialist near your home or work, who has convenient office hours and accepts your insurance plan. It you desire, you can even be connected to the physician's office for an appointment. Best of all, the physician is affiliated with St. Mary Hospital of Livonia. St. Mary has been providing quality care to area residents for over a quarter-of-a-century.

So, before you look for a physician in the yellow pages, or compile a confusing list of names and telephone numbers from friends, call this evening of family fun.

Once again, the students at Winchester will have the opportunity to participate in the St. Jude's Research Hospital Math-A-Thon. This event will begin on Jan. 26. MORAINE EARLY CHILDHOOD DEVELOPMENT CENTER

Many Moraine participants have joined a bright fashion trend, sporting red sweatshirts imprinted with an original logo designed by one of our Kids' Club youngsters. "Pretty spiffy, huh?" says little Christopher.

We certainly are!
The recently developed High Scope curriculum gained a greater following during an afternoon workshop overview conducted at Moraine last week. This format, based upon the specific cognitive needs of the individual child rather than upon more traditional teacher chosen activities hoping to meet more general group goals, seems to answer many of our concerns about promoting individual learning in the group situation.

Increasing our skills in observing and recording learning in relation to concise key experiences, and sorting out logistical glitchs are immediate goals as we adapt what we learn to our situation.

High Scope's work began in Yp-silanti in response to the need to in-crease success for disadvantaged children, and has since been applied to work with all groups. Research claims that thoughtfully implemented preschool experience does, indeed, decrease dropout rates, delinquency, teen pregnancy. Welfare and correction costs may seem a little far-fetched until we make the connection that the child accustomed from an early age to planning, choosing, taking ultimate responsibility for learning according to his/her observed needs, might well be in a stronger position to live productively. It's interesting, exciting information, and we're challenged by the opportunity to continue to learn.

JoAnn Robinson, an employee at Gatsby's, pours a drink at bar of the local watering hole.

Gatsby's offers unique atmosphere

By KARIN SWAN

Gatsby's is two strangers slowly slouching into each other at the bar over mugs of beer.

At Gatsby's couples in blue jeans and gold chains eat steak in booths, laugh into each other's eyes, dance on the parquet floor. It's also a group of guys with baseball caps pulled over good haircuts downing hamburgers and watching the Red Wings on big-screen television.

Ambience. Carved oak doors with beveled glass, stained glass window panes, dim lighting from Tiffany lamps. Small groups share nachos and small talk at oak and brass

"We've created an atmosphere. People out here didn't have any place nice to go," said Russell Johnson, owner of the lounge on Grand River between Taft and Beck roads in Novi.

"It's the nicest place in the area. People can have a good time. We have excellent food, friendly waitstaff. It's a fun place.

"It's been worth the time, the work. If you're not efficient in this business, you don't make it. It's not just selling food. It's septic tanks breaking down. It's power failures.

'It didn't just happen. We've worked at it. This is what I intended to do. It's exciting to have an idea and take the risk of putting it into action. To do what you want to do.

"We care about the people here. Novi has been good to us."

On most nights, a disc jockey spins compact discs, records and tapes. The music ranges from top-40 tunes with videos to heavy metal, rock and roll, occasional oldies.

The deejay tests the mood of the crowd . . . asks for requests. It's Saturday night and people are mellowed out, relaxed. Nobody wants to dance.

The deejay plays "Dirty Dancin" music, "Hungry Eyes," "The Time of your Life" and "Do you Love Me?

He brings up the volume. The energy level rises. Several people brave the dance floor.

Voices. John Cougar, Madonna pulse through the speakers and flash full form on the big screen backing the dance floor. Going through the motions, the videos play with the music. On the wall, moving behind the dancers like shadows.

"The sound system is excellent here, and so are the videos," said Johnson. "We're going to add a light show soon. "Traffic lights" that flash to the beat of the music.

"It's a friendly crowd. People range in age from about 25 through 45. Friday nights are usually big dance nights."

"It isn't just a bar," added manager John Johnson. "It isn't just a restaurant either. We try to create a very comfortable atmosphere

"My father and I are partners. He also own the Rusty Nail Lounge in Canton."

"I've grown up in the business. I started at the bottom. I worked in the kitchen when I was a kid, chopped, cleaned and cooked on weekends. I stuck with it.'

The Johnson opened Gatsby's in December 1988 after months of renovation. Major renovation. Everything is renovated. Neighbors, staff and family all helped.

"I scraped the ceiling until my hands were raw, did the finish work," said Johnson. "We turned this place around."

Wrestlers one win away from division title

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

A 44-21 victory over Walled Lake Western on Jan. 19 puts the Northville wrestlers in an unfamiliar position a win over Livonia Churchill tonight (Jan. 26) would propel the Mustangs to the school's first ever WLAA Western Division title.

'Both us and Churchill are now 4-0 in the division, so whoever wins it, wins the title," assistant coach Bob Boshoven said. "It's been a long time since a Northville wrestling team's been in a position to challenge for something like this."
The Mustangs (12-4 overall, 6-2 in the WLAA) continue to improve from week to week, and now that 135pound star Andy Frey is back in the line-up after missing a few meets with an injury, a division title is a strong possibility. With Frey in the line-up, Northville improved by seven points against Western in the span of five days.

"We beat (Western) 38-22 at the Novi Round Robin, so we improved," Boshoven said. "We had a stronger line-up with Frey and John Kochanec back in there but so did they. We were much more aggressive this

The Mustangs won nine of 13 bouts, including the first four in a row. Kevin Khashan (103) got things rolling with a pin against Jeff Rester in 3:46, Brandon Mardosian (112) then decisioned Nick Mendosa 12-2, Mike Mathes (119) pinned Todd Coughlin in 58 seconds and Mike Huff (125) whipped Larry Gallaty 17-3 to prove the early advantage.

The other Northville winners were Frey (135), Garnett Potter (145), Bob Townsend (160), Darren Kehoe (171) and Derek Forbing (Hwt.). Frey pinned Anthony Noble in 54 seconds, Potter topped Marty Bradley 6-2, Townsend pinned James Lee in 1:26, Kehoe nipped Greg Hannon 3-2 and Forbing pinned Rob Hatton in 1:14.

The only real disappointment on the day was Mike Hale's stunning loss to Matt Wilhite at 189. Hale was pinned in 1:50 for his third loss of the year and the second to Wilhite.

N O R T H V I L L E QUADRANGULAR MEET: The Mustangs wrapped up a fabulous week by placing first in their own four-team competition with a perfect 3-0 record on Jan. 21. South Lyon was second (2-1), North Farmington third 2 in the last two weeks.'

(1-2) and Ann Arbor Pioneer fourth

Northville dumped Pioneer 45-23 in the first round, but the Pioneers handed the home team four easy wins because of defaults. Khashan (103), Huff (125), Kochanec (130) and Hale (189) were all credited with wins without even breaking a sweat.

The other Mustang triumphs included Mardosian's pin against Chris Lusk in 1:45 at 112, Mathes' pin over Max Domrowski in 4-15 at 119, Frey's 5-1 win over Jason Adams at 135 and Forbing's pin of Gary Grob in 3:28 at heavyweight.

Northville then crushed North Farmington 48-% in round two, winning eight bouts and pinning all eight. Khashan (103) pinned Dan Cassady in 3:08, Mardosian (112) pinned Jeff Head in 3:02, Mathes (119) pinned Scott Bucvkzeiga in 55 seconds, Kochanec (130) pinned Brian Walny in 1:30, Frey (135) pinned Adam Foreman in 1:30; Potter (152) pinned Gary Evangelista in 1:30, Townsend (160) pinned Rob Jamrog in 1:05 and Hale (189) pinned Jeff Alekman in 25 seconds.

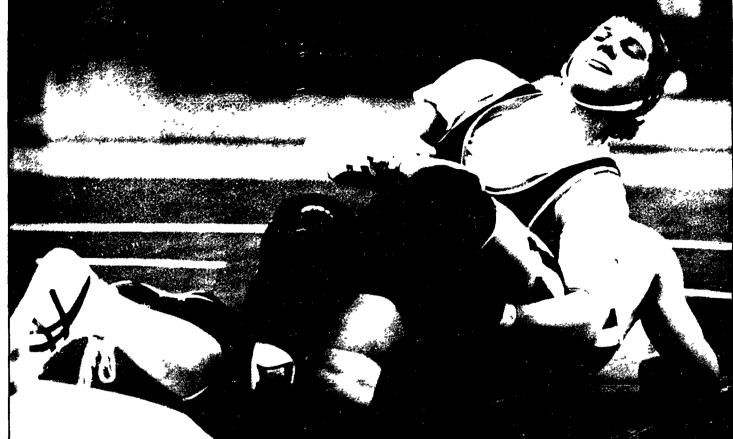

That set up a showdown between the two remaining unbeatens. Northville won the battle with South Lyon 36-28, but needed a last-meet surge to pull it out. The Mustangs trailed 28-21 heading into the final three matches but proceeded to outscore the Lions 15-0 including some heroics by Forbing in the heavyweight bout.

"We were ahead 33-28 heading into the heavyweight bout, so we needed Derek to avoid a pin if we wanted to pull it out," Boshoven said. "Not only did he avoid the pin, he beat Norm Klawender 2-0."

Kehoe (171) pinned Bob Rabloff in 1:15 and Hale (189) pinned Gary Beckstein in 2:25 to complete the comeback. The other Northville winners were Khashan (103), Mardosian (112), Frey (135) and Potter (152). Khashan pinned Mike Herbert in 1:28, Mardosian clobbered Chad Reemtsma 15-0, Frey cruised to a 15win over Wade Smith and Potter pinned Eric McMillian in 1:00.

"Forbing's been wrestling better than he has all year and Kehoe has been solid for us," Boshoven said. 'Their records may not be great but they did the job against South Lyon.

'It was a nice week for us. We're 8-

'Bad week' drops Mustang cagers to 5-6

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville basketball Coach Omar Harrison summed it up best when he said "it was a real bad

The Mustangs fell to Walled Lake Western at home and to Farmington Harrison on the road last week and fell below the .500 mark for the first time this season. Northville (5-6 overall) has now dropped three of the last four and stand at 2-5 in the

The 67-54 defeat at Harrison on Jan. 20 wasn't really a poor outing by the Mustangs — but rather a fabulous individual performance by Hawks' senior guard Chad Burgess, who set a schoolrecord for points in a single game. A 19-10 scoring advantage in the third quarter broke open a close game and Harrison cruised to their 10th victory in

"I felt we played real well," Harrison said.
(Harrison) has some good athletes and Burgess is an excellent player — lets face it."

In the first half, the Mustangs fell behind early but never let the Hawks pull ahead by more than six. Northville was still in the game at halftime, but trailed 21-18.

Late in the third quarter, Harrison's pressure defense forced a few Northville turnovers and those mental lapses enabled the Hawks to open a 10-point lead heading into the final eight minutes.

Down the stretch, Burgess continued his offensive assault while the Mustangs hit on only 9-of-16 from the free throw line. Harrison won going

"We hung in there so I'm not disappointed with the effort," Harrison said. "We did well against their pressure but we had a few mistakes in the third quarter and they converted it into points."

Rob Walsh led Northville with 14 points, Heath Myers added 11 and Chris House 10. Point guard Mike Karfis chipped in eight points, four assists and three steals. Burgess poured in 12-of-23 from the field and 9-of-10 from the free throw line for 35 points. He also hauled down 14 rebounds

WALLED LAKE WESTERN 47, NORTHVILLE 38: A three-point second quarter by Northville gave the Warriors a 10-point cushion and that was basically the difference in the game on Jan. 17 as Western pulled off the road upset.

Sieving nabs two wins at swim meet

Local members of the Clarenceville Swim Club performed very well r' he Bulldog Aquatic Club's annual 'A' meet held at Livonia Churchill High School.

Northville's Jeff Sieving (10 and under division) was first in the 100 breast stroke (1:21.41) and the 200 IM (2:33.87), second in the 100 butterfly (1:09.77) and the 100 IM (1:13.42), third in the 50 butterfly (31.77), the 100 freestyle (1:04.32) and the 200 freestyle (2:20.07), and was a member of the 200 medley relay and the 200 freestyle relay teams . Both placed third.

Teri Juhasz was fifth in the girls 13-14, 200 butterfly (2:29.19) and joined with Megan Holmberg, Jennifer Knapp and Jamie Anderson to place second in the 200 medley relay (4:24.18).

NOVI BOBCATS: The Novi Bobcat Swim Club took to the water last weekend at the same competition and also performed well. At the meet, Erich Kelly placed in the top six in seven of the boys 10 and under age group events. He was first in the 200-yard freestyle (2:15.74) and the 100 backstroke (1:14.57), second in the 200 IM (2:38.20), the 100 freestyle (1:02.58) and the 100 breast stroke (1:25.37), third in the 100 IM (1:14.65) and fifth in the 50 freestyle

Kelly has now qualified in every event offered at the state meet.

Swimming in the boys 11-12 age group, Shawn Kelly finished third in the 50 backstroke (35.17) and fourth in the 100 freestyle (1:04.92). Christy Tokraks was fifth in the 100 butterfly (1:17.04) in the girls 11-12 division.

'We had a great outing as a team with every swimmer dropping their times," said Bobcat Coach Brad Burget. "That's what it is all about."

The Bobcats will be busy swimming meets through February to get final qualifying times for the state meet. The Bobcats will also be hosting their own 'B and C' meet at the Novi High School Pool on Feb 11-

Northville's Lee LaChance prepares to hit the vault during gymnastics action last week

Gymnasts triumph despite low scores

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

What Northville gymnastics Coach Michelle Charniga viewed as un-necessarily low marks from the judges put a damper on what should have been a joyous occasion: the Mustangs' first dual meet victory after three tries this season.

Northville won the meet 117.05-97.658 over Belleville on Jan. 16, as expected, but the team's score was a full 10 points shy of the school record set just four days earlier against North Farmington.

"I thought the scores were completely outrageous," Charniga said. I had a feeling this would happen because it usually does when we go against a low-scoring team. I really can't understand it because our performance was good - maybe (the judges) were trying to keep the scores as close as they could." Despite the low marks, the Mustangs (1-2 overall, 0-2 in the WLAA) already have three of the required four scores over 117 which are needed to qualify a team for the MHSAA Regional competition. Unlike a year ago, Charniga's team should reach that goal by the end of "It was still a qualifying score, so all we need is one more," she said. "Last year we were fighting to get that last one right up until the final couple meets of the season. This year, our goal is to not have any scores under the qualifying cut-off. Our main goal is to reach 130 and 1 think it is a realistic goal." Northville got off to a flying start in the vault. with all six scores at 7.3 or above. With a 31.95-27.8 advantage out of the blocks, it looked like Charniga's squad was off to another record-setting performance.

Senior Wendy Beach took first place honors with an 8.55, freshman Melanie Apligian was second (8.1), Yvonne Beebe was third (7.7) and Stacy Kasmarick was fourth (7.6). The rest of the Mustangs competitors were Lee LaChance (7.55) and Becky Carney (7.3).

The first hint of trouble came in the uneven bars event. Charniga and her gynmasts discovered that the distance between the high bar and the low bar wasn't regulation - and that necessitated changes in the girl's routines. Northville ended up taking a season-low 28.29 in the event.

Beach took first place honors again with a respectable 8.1, but the rest of the scores dropped off dramatically after that. LaChance was second (7.1), Beebe was third (6.95) and Carney fifth (6.1). The other scores came from Megan Graham (6.0) and Robyn Chatman (5.5).

'The equipment wasn't regulation so we had to change the routines at the last minute," Charniga said. "I thought the girls did a great job considering the circumstances, but again, the scores were low. Yvonne (Beebe) had a very nice routine and received a 6.95 - I couldn't believe

More equipment problems marred the balance beam event. According to Charniga, the distance from the top of the beam to the floor was a good five inches shorter than the standard distance (474-inches), and it really made a difference.

It wasn't the standard height and it threw us off," she said "It made a big difference on the dismounts. I was just glad nobody was hurt ''

Beach was first (7.9) and LaChance third (6.7m, but the team score was also a season-low 26.85. The rest of the Mustang performers were Karen PylY (6.15), Beebe (6.1) and Graham (5 75).

Northville wrapped up the easy victory with a 30.00 in the floor exercise. Beach made it a clean sweep with another win (8.5), LaChance followed in second (7.3), Chatman was fourth (7.15) and Tracie Surdu fifth (7.05). Kasmarick (6.4) and Alicia Estigoy (6.2) also competed in the event.

Beach took all-around honors with a 32.05 - which is impressive considering the low scores.

The Mustangs were to travel to Saline to take on the Hornets on Jan. 18, but the meet was cancelled. The squad will get back into action next Monday (Jan. 30) in Farmington against Harrison.

Northville swimmers suffer first defeat

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

When a swim team notches 22 personal best efforts in one dual meet and there's only 19 individuals on the entire squad — it's obviously a successful outing.

That's exactly what the Northville tankers went out and did against Plymouth Canton on Jan. 19. Unfortunately, the great team effort still wasn't enough to spring an upset as the Chiefs handed the Mustangs their first dual meet loss of the season, 98-74.

"It was a pretty good meet," said Northville Coach Mark Heiden. "We put our 19-man team against Canton's 38-man team and we were very competitive. We had at least threefourths of the kids get personal best times, so I was very pleased with the time drops.'

The Mustangs (4-1 overall, 2-1 in the WLAA) ended up winning five times in 11 events, but didn't have the kind of depth to really make a run at Canton - one of the premier teams in the WLAA.

"I really couldn't ask for any more from my team," Heiden said. "They went out and did exactly what I asked of them - it just wasn't quite enough. Super-sophomore Eric Newton paced Northville with a hand in three Mustang victories. Newton was the Chris Handyside and Jason Stringer. The other Northville winners included Rob Devyak in diving (250.00 point total) and Holdridge in the 500 freestyle (5:16.16). The second place finishes came from Brad Cook in the 100 freestyle (53.00), Matt Hanna in the 100 breast stroke (1:09.83), Andy Wayne in the 50 freestyle (24.32) and Holdridge in the 200 freestyle (1:57.26).

The Mustangs also added six third-place finishes, including Stringer in the 100 butterfly (101.20), Wayne in the 100 freestyle (53.73), Handyside in the 200 freestyle (1:58.98), Cook in the 50 freestyle (24.33), Steve Lang in diving (216.25) and the 200 medley relay team of Wayne, Hanna, Cook and Dave Morante (1:48.84).

'We had 22 personal best swims including the relay splits, so you can see we swam very well," Heiden

Mustangs of the Week

ERIC NEWTON

Swimmer Eric Newton may be just a sopi whore, but he performs weekin and week-out like an experienced senior. In the Mustangs' 98-74 loss to Plymouth Canton on Jan. 19, Newton had a hand in three of Northville's five victories - and that's why he's our choice for 'Mustang of the Week.' Newton was the individual winner in the 100-yard backstroke (59.41) and the 200 IM (1:57.26) and was a member of the winning 400 freestyle relay team (3:30.08) along with Bob Holdridge, Chris Handyside and Jason Stringer. The loss was Northville's first of the season in five

BRANDON MARDOSIAN

Brandon Mardosian may have been the final piece in the puzzle for the Northville grapplers. The sophomore transfer from Livonia Stevenson is one of the better 112pounders in the area with a 17-4 record. In action last week, Mardosian was 4-0 with two pins and led the locals to four victories and they are now just one win away from a WLAA Western Division title. He's an an obvious choice for 'Mustang of the Week' honors. Last week, Mardosian crushed Nick Mendosa of Walled Lake Western 12-2, pinned Ann Arbor Pioneer's Chris Lusk in 1:45, pinned Jeff Head of North Farmington in 3:02 and clobbered South Lyon's

After an evenly-played first quarter, the Warriors went on a 13-3 run to take a 23-13 advantage at halftime. With just one field goal and a free throw, it was the Mustangs worst quarter of the season.

"That second quarter really killed us," Harrison said. "It's kind of hard to believe that in eight minutes, we scored only one field goal. We couldn't hit anything and that was the difference because we were forc-'ed to play catch-up the rest of the way. Maybe we didn't come to play

Northville did narrow the deficit to four a couple times in the second half but Western hit their free throws in the final minutes of play to turn back any come-from-behind plans the Mustangs had

"Western isn't a bad ball club and this Kevin White is a good player." Harrison said. "He hit some big free throws down the stretch and that kept us from catching them.'

House scored 10 but was the only Mustang to score in double-figures. Scott Meredith added 12 rebounds. White led all scores with 15.

With four of the next five contests against WLAA Western Division opponents, Northville is now approaching the most important stretch of the season.

Spikers stage stunning comeback

Volleyballers rebound to top Spartans

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Just four points away from being blown out in two straight games, the Northville volleyballers made a miraculous turn-around and went on to stun Livonia Stevenson 8-15, 15-13, 15-11 in WLAA action on Jan. 18.

The come-from-behind victory may be the most important developement of the year for the spikers - it was the kind of thing that routinely turns seasons around in the world of sports. At 4-4 overall (1-1 in the ŴLAA), the Mustangs aren't desperate for victories, but Coach Paul Osborn has made no secret of the fact that he hasn't been pleased with the way his players have per-formed so far this season — that is until the second game of the Stevenson match.

"For the first time, it was a total team effort," Osborn said. "The difference between our play in game one and game two was like night and

Game two wasn't much better as the Spartans raced to an 11-1 advantage after the first rotation, and were on the brink of a blow-out. At that point, Osborn decided to pull some of his starters and insert reserves like Sue LaPrad, Kris Czapski and Pam Yezback into the lineup. The move seemed to wake up the

'Kris Czapski was stupendous on defense, Yezback did a nice job at strong-side hitter and LaPrad was Osborn said. "For the first time this season, we forced our opponents to make the mistakes.'

The new line-up proceeded to outscore Stevenson 12-2 and knot the score at 13-13, and then senior Jenny Cipicchio served out the match.

"We were four points away from being whipped but the girls never gave up," Osborn said. "The new blood in the line-up didn't hurt. I think the shake-up did the trick."

Stevenson went up 6-1 after the first rotation in game three, but the Mustangs exploded again with eight straight points to take a lead they would never relinquish. The Spartans did cut it to one after the third rotation but Northville outscored the home team 6-3 the rest of the way.

"(Stevenson) is a team that likes to attack from the back row when they get in trouble and at first, it confused us," Osborn said. "But we adjusted by backing off a bit at the net and we eventually took that back row attack Junior hitter Kristi Turner (right) lets loose with a spike in action earlier this season had five kills and was successful on 92 percent of her hits, while Nancy Belding hit at 81-percent efficiency.

"Our serve reception was 51 percent — that was the killer," Osborn said "We couldn't get the ball up to the net to save our souls."

Churchill cruised to a 9-3 lead in game one and then closed it out in a hurry. Then in game two, the Chargers went ahead 7-1 and Northville never recovered.

"The poor start in both games really hurt us," Osborn pointed out. "We were sitting back on our heels, letting the ball play us instead of being aggressive and playing the ball.'

Area coaches warn against steriods

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Remember the old saying, "It's not whether you win or lose that counts, but how you play the game" Well, for some of today's athlete's "how you play the game" can mean the difference between getting or not getting a scholarship to a major university.

And for others it can mean either making it into the professional ranks,

For Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson, playing the game meant running the race of his life in the Olympics, only to be discovered using steroids 24 hours after having the gold medal placed around his neck.

Steroids can be a wonder drugs for some athletes They have been proven to make athletes run faster, jump higher and be stronger in a shorter amount of time than normal training will allow.

But, the side effects of steroids are hard to determine

It is this unknown side of steroids, say athletic trainers and coaches, that is causing them to recommend against steroid usage for athletes—especially among teen-agers.

"We don't recommend steroids for anybody," said John Robinson, athletic trainer with the Center for Sports Medicine and Fitness in Ann Arbor.

Robinson said there are a number of different kinds or steriods, but the type typically used by athletes are androgens — synthetic compounds which mimic the male hormone testosterone.

"Steroids produce an increase in all testosterone affected portions of the body," Robinson said. "This male hormone-like substitute will cause users to bulk up, grow more hair and experience a deepening in the voice"

While steroids will enhance effectiveness and performance, Robinson said the imbalance of hormones created by the increase in testosterone will inflict some known side officers.

"Steroids generally affect two areas: the liver and heart," Robinson said. "We're finding in prolonged steroid use the possible development of liver cancer and a greater risk of heart disease."

He added that taking large doses of synthetically manufactured testosterone can cause sterility in some people.

Robinson said nearly all of the effects generated from steroids can be achieved through proper dieting and hard work.

"In football, for example, speed and bulk are important to success," Robinson said. "But with the proper diet and training almost those same results can occur, just in a longer

"The risk of a person's health is not worth it for a small performance enhancement."

Although steroid usage is gaining attention on the national sports scene, it has not become a problem in Northville or Novi, according to local coaches.

"I don't know if we've ever had an

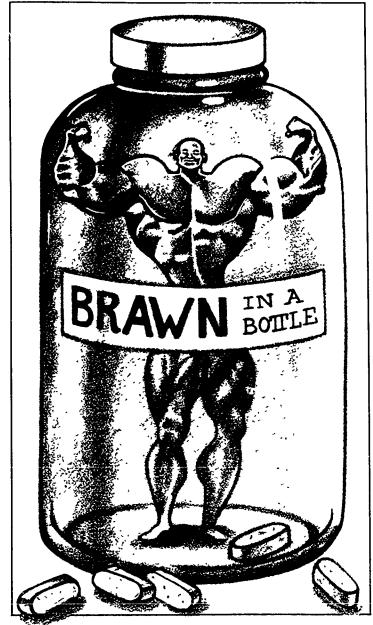

"I don't know if we've ever had an athlete that's been involved with steroids, but I do know we strongly advise against it," said Northville High Football Coach Darrel Schumacher.

He said a problem with detecting steroid use is that the school is unable to conduct any drug testing. He added, however, that he checks athletes for abnormally quick development.

for abnormally quick development.
"This is like any other drug so I think it is a real concern for many people," Shumacher said. "Hopefully we'll never have to deal with it."

Novi Football Coach John Osborne said he also is not aware of any steroid problem with his team. "We tell our athletes that we are not in favor of short cuts and this (steroid use) is not something we will accept."

Osborne added he would be in favor of athletes taking drug testing during their physical exam, "although it won't happen in the forseeable future"

Fitness Tips

Cross country skiing is best aerobic exercise

By SYLVA DVORAK

Cross-country skiing, also called Nordic skiing or ski touring, originates from Scandinavia. Immigrants from Norway, Sweden and Finland popularized the sport in the United States. They also founded the first cross-country ski clubs during the 19th century. Cross-country skiing is one of the best activities of aerobic exercise. This activity requires you to use your entire body. In order for you to keep moving, your arms and legs will have to move simultaneously and therefore, you will use your ab-domen, back and chest muscles as well. Because you have to use your upper and lower body vigorously, cross-country skiing is one of the highest calorie-burning activities. Depending on your fitness level and the environmental conditions, you can "burn" approximaely 700 to 900 calories per hour.

Cross-country skiing equipment costs less than downhill skiing or health club memberships. For a reasonable price you should be able to rent equipment for the day or Clothing should be in layers, so you can remove a layer as you warm up. Polypropylene, stretch nylon and wool are appropriate. Don't forget your sunglasses to protect your eyes from the glare of the snow.

If you are just beginning, it is a good idea to take a few lessons. Any park that provides rental equipment should have someone to help you get started. When you ski, the reach and push of your arms in coordination with your legs should be in a smooth and gliding motion. Give yourself some time to pick up the rhythm and grace of the sport.

Before you begin skiing, you should ski in a slow, relaxed manner for about five to 10 minutes to stretch. This will help you warm up your muscles and increase your range of motion before you exercise, thereby reducing your risk of injury. Ski for at least 20 to 30 minutes for cardiovascular benefits. To prevent stiff or sore muscles be sure to cool down and stretch five to 10 minutes after you finish a cross-country ski ses-

Besides the excellent physiological benefits of cross-country skiing, this sport can change your attitude about winter. Rather than looking out the window and complaining about the cold and dreaming of spring, this sport gets you outside enjoying the snow. Cross-country skiing gives you a positive feeling about the winter environment and a good time awaits you.

Walking, a step in the right direction, is the perfect exercise for anyone who wants to enhance their physical fitness, maintain proper body weight and reduce stress. It doesn't matter what your age or the physical condition you are in — everyone can begin a walking program.

Walking develops cardiovascular fitness and firms muscles with very little chance of injury. And all you need is a good pair of walking shoes.

You don't have to take lessons to learn how to walk. All you have to do is find a place to walk. Step outside your door — almost any sidewalk, street, trail, park, field or shopping mall will do. The variety of settings available is one of the things that makes walking such a practical and pleasurable activity.

When beginning your walking program, keep the following points in mind:

- Patience, not overexertion is the key to a successful walking program.
 Be sure to warm up and stretch before you begin.
- Don't try to walk too far, too fast;
 it's more important to walk regularly.
 - Start off by walking 20 to 30 minutes four or five times a week, at a comfortable pace.

 Get maximum aerobic benefits by walking within your training heart rate.

Walk naturally, taking long, easy strides.
Swing your arms as you walk, to work your upper body and improve circulation.

Try to increase your distance one-quarter of a mile each week.

Gradually pick up the pace. Make your goal three miles in 45 minutes.

• Speed really is not as important as distance. Jogging one mile uses the same number of calories as briskly walking one mile.

• Of course, before starting any exercise program, be sure to consult with your physician.

Besides walking being a nearlyperfect exercise in itself, it is also an excellent way to get in shape for other sports. It can serve as a bridge to more strenuous forms of exercise as your health and fitness develop. Whether you walk alone or share this time with a friend or family member, you can enjoy your immediate surroundings while letting any tension melt away. So take a walk and discover the many healthful and relaxing benefits of walking that will last throughout your life.
