Program aids reading

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

With a little initiative and a lot of creativity, two teachers at Silver Springs Elementary have come up with a way to help their students read English better — and pick up a little French too.

Drawn together two years ago after learning they had a similar background in French, second grade teacher Linda Hojnacki and kindergarten teacher Chris Modrack decided to pair off their students into two-person reading groups.

And the results have been nothing but positive ever since.

"I found out that Linda taught French in another district and since I also had training in it we decided we could work together and get French going for our kids," Modrack said.

So, at the beginning of the school year, partners between the classes were randomly chosen and the groups now get together at least once per month to practice reading and to learn French.

Modrack said the practice is a "cross-age tutoring session," which helps the younger children learn to read and gives the older children a chance for a one-on-one experience.

"I also find that an early introduction to French carries through and students choose to learn French later on in high school," she said, adding the French experience also is good for developing listening skills and following directions.

Hojnacki said a project that many students enjoy involves the kindergarten children writing and illustrating pattern books, which they share with their second-grade partners.

"The kindergartners feel good about beginning to read and the second graders love to help them," Hojnacki added. "Children can and do learn from one another. The children really enjoy working together and helping each other."

Modrack said parents of both second graders and kindergartners have been very enthused about the shared reading program.

"Parents especially enjoy their children singing 'Happy Birthday' to them in French," she added.

Second-graders and kindergartners currently taking part in the program appeared very excited about the learning experience.

Kindergartner Michael Hiemstra said he likes the program "because my partner reads a lot to me. He teaches me things, like words in a book that I don't know."

Meeting air protests over group home

By BOB NEEDHAM

Lexington Commons residents packed a public hearing Monday to question and oppose a plan for an adult foster care home on Lexington Boulevard, primarily on financial grounds.

About 75 area residents, county and state officials, group home employees and others came to the three-hour hearing, run by the City of Northville to record opinions. Mayor Chris Johnson said the city plans to send the results of the hearing to the state Department of Social Services, which licenses group homes.

Although the comments and objections about the group home plan covered a wide variety of issues, the overriding theme was financial. Residents argued that a group home in the area would damage their property values, and that the state could save a lot of taxpayer money by operating group homes in less expensive neighborhoods.

Officials present at the meeting countered that studies have shown no relationship between group homes and the value of nearby properties. They also said that the state tries to find group homes in a variety of types of neighborhoods, and always in an area where someone would like to live.

Other concerns raised by the residents included traffic, changes to the house itself which might not fit the neighborhood's character, control over the residents of the home and the staff of the home, and many others.

In addition to the officials present, a couple of people — parents of developmentally disabled adults,

Assessment hikes frustrate citizens

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Long lines of frustrated residents were the rule at township hall this week, as homeowners looked to local officials for explanations about their assessment increases.

Residents began crowding outside the township treasurer's window on Wednesday, March 8 — only two days after the township mailed assessment notices.

Those notices included an average assessment increase for township residents of 16.93 percent, according to Township Supervisor Georgina Goss.

The increases have meant busy times for township staff employees.

"We've been very busy," said Township Administrative Assistant Nancy Molloy. "Many residents are comparing their assessments to their neighbor's assessments. Some people are just getting frustrated at the amount of their tax increases."

Molloy quickly pointed out, however, that the amount of assessment increase does not equal the increase in taxes.

To satisfy the large amount of residents unhappy with their assessment increases, the township has scheduled two extra Board of Review dates.

In addition to the regularly scheduled dates of Monday, March 13 and Tuesday, March 14, the Board of Review met last night and will meet again today from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The board is also set to meet on Monday, March 20 from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Tuesday, March 21 from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Molloy said all appeals are being handled by appointment only and the rest of the Board of Review days are completely booked except for some openings today.

"We mailed out assessment notices only to residents who got an increase and this year we sent out 4,480 notices, more than we've sent out in any previous year," Molloy said. "Almost every piece of land in the township got some type of increase. That's why the Board of Review dates are so crowded."

George Bell wins award from group

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Administrators and teachers of Meads Mill Middle School weren't the only Northville school staff members honored during the Michigan Association of Middle School Educators (MAMSE) conference.

Superintendent George Bell was honored as "Middle School Administrator of the Year" by MAMSE during the conference banquet held last Thursday evening.

"I am very flattered, of course," Bell said, in becoming the first superintendent to be honored in the 19 year history of the award.

"I don't feel I did a lot to deserve it, however, because the Meads Mill staff is a very close knit group and an excellent team," Bell said.

Members of the Meads Mill staff though, said they felt that Bell was a major factor in the school recently being identified as an exemplary place of learning in the state.

"Without George Bell's administrative guidance this school would not do the creative things it's doing now," said Meads Mill Assistant Principal Jeff Radwanski.

"George is a dynamic leader who makes himself very visible in the schools," Radwanski said, adding it is not unusual to see Bell teaching students in the pod area or acting as a substitute conductor for the school band.

In nominating Bell for the award, Meads Principal Dave Longridge said Bell is a big reason why their program has won so many awards over the past four years.

"His (Bell's) expectations of himself contribute to an extremely high level of visibility and a feeling of being a part of the educational process," Longridge wrote in his nomination letter to MAMSE.

"Characteristics such as these 'rub off' on people," Longridge added.

Longridge said Bell was one of the catalysts in instituting the daily team planning period at Mead Mill.

The team teaching concept has four or five teachers working

City mails resident survey

By BOB NEEDHAM

A major, wide-ranging survey of city residents was mailed out this week to gather opinion on the city's direction.

Part of a complete re-examination of the city Master Plan, the survey went out in the mail this week to most city residents. City officials are hoping for a big response to the survey, since the results are supposed to help shape city policy for the next few years.

Since the city used its water bill list for the mailing — and some apartment and condominium residents do not get water bills — some residents will not get the survey form. Anyone who does not get a form in the mail may get one from city hall.

City still has slots to appeal assessment

As of Tuesday afternoon, 126 people have signed up to appeal their property assessments in the City of Northville, but there were still some slots open for appointments, the tax office said.

Appeals started at 1 p.m. Tuesday, and were set to run until about 10 p.m. with a break for dinner. More appeals were scheduled today (Thursday).

Upcoming appeal dates are: Monday, March 20; Tuesday, March 21; Tuesday, March 28; and Thursday, March 30. To make an appointment, call the city at 349-1300 and ask for the tax office.

There are basically two types of appeals: inaccuracies and hardships. An inaccurate appeal is one in which the homeowner argues that the assessment is simply incorrect. By law, assessments are supposed to be 50 percent of a home's true cash value. A hardship appeal is simple inability to pay.

Documentation is important for appeals. If a homeowner believes an assessment is inaccurate, they are advised to come armed with evidence that comparable homes are selling for less than a figure which would be double the assessment of the home under appeal.

Voters required to declare party preference in 1992 primary

Beginning with the 1992 presidential primary, voters will have to declare a party preference at least 30 days before the primary in order to participate in it.

The law was passed last year. Many people have already declared their party preference, which was an available option at last year's general election. If not, though, there is plenty of time left to declare.

Prior to 1983, Michigan had an "open" presidential primary system, where voters were allowed to vote in either the Republican or Democrat presidential primary without declaring a party preference beforehand.

Opponents of this system said that it allowed voters to "cross over" and vote for candidates of the other party who did not have the backing of their party regulars, thus boosting their chances of winning. This is what happened in 1972 in Michigan, when Democratic maverick George Wallace won the Michigan Democratic Presidential Primary over mainstream candidates George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey. The National Democratic Party, in an effort to stop this, refused in 1980 to accept presidential primary results from open primaries. The Michigan Democratic Party followed suit and refused to participate in the state's presidential primary, establishing instead a caucus system to select the party presidential nominee. The state Legislature abolished the system in 1983.

The caucus system of nominee selection, however, met with objection from Michigan voters who did not participate in political party activities and were thus unable to take part in the presidential nominee selection. After two presidential elections using this method, the presidential primary was re-established by law last year.

Michigan voters can indicate their party preference between now and Feb. 17, 1992:

- when they register to vote or change their address at their city or township clerk's office
- when they register to vote, change their address or renew their driver's license at any Secretary of State branch office

Four injured in two-car accident

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Four people were seriously injured Wednesday, March 8 in a two-car accident on Seven Mile Road, west of Smock in Northville Township.

Northville resident Sharon Watson, 25, and Stephen Robinson, 33, of Redford Township — traveling in an orange 1980 Ford Fiesta — were listed in good and guarded condition respectively, at St. Mary's hospital in Livonia, according to hospital spokesperson.

Shigeyasu Kozaki, 27, and Shigeru Orito, 30, — traveling in a rented 1989

Dodge — were listed in fair and stable condition respectively, at Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills, a hospital spokesperson said.

Both Kozaki and Orito are Japanese citizens on a temporary job transfer to a Plymouth company. They are living in Farmington Hills.

Police said the accident occurred when the Fiesta, traveling west in the eastbound lane on Seven Mile, struck the Dodge — which was going east on Seven Mile in the far right lane.

"Why the Fiesta was driving on the wrong side is currently under investigation," Anderson said, adding that both Watson and Robinson were not wearing seat-belts, while Kozaki and Orito had their seat-belts on.

"The two people not wearing their seat-belts definitely got the worst of it," he said.

Anderson also said Kozaki was driving the Dodge, but the driver of the Fiesta could not be identified until an investigation has been completed.

He noted the "Jaws-of-Life" machinery had to be used by firefighters to pry out Kozaki from the drivers seat of his automobile.

Seven Mile Road was closed for approximately two hours while the accident was investigated and the roadway was cleaned up and vehicles were removed.

A video cassette recorder worth $700 was stolen from Meadowbrook Country Club sometime between 10:15 p.m. and 10 a.m. on March 3 and March 4.

The complainant said the VCR was bolted to the television cart which it was mounted on. He said only four people knew the items were there.

JACKET STOLEN — A leather jacket valued at $300 was stolen from Northville High School last week, according to a city police report.

Between 7:20 and 8:20 a.m. Thursday the coat was taken from off a chair, the report said. It was a mens brown leather bomber-style coat, size 42. A wallet was in the pocket.

STOLEN AUTO — A 1989 black Chevy Eurosport was reported stolen Thursday, March 9 from the parking lot at Meijer's, according to a township police report.

The complainant said she parked her car — valued at $13,000 — in the employee lot at 7:30 a.m. and noticed the car missing at 4 p.m.

The complainant said she had only a stuffed animal inside the car.

STOLEN ITEMS — $200 in merchandise was reported stolen on Monday, March 6 from a car on Ironwood Court, according to a township police report.

The complainant said the items were stolen from her 1988 grey Buick between March 1 and March 6 sometime between 9 p.m. and 11 a.m.

The complainant said she found the doors of her car unlocked, but is sure she locked them before leaving the car. No damage was reported done to the car.

Items stolen from the car include: a $30 picture, assorted cassette tapes worth $160, and a $10 folder.

SIGN SWIPED — A dentist's sign was stolen off the wall of a Center Street office building last week, a city police report said.

The evening of Monday, March 6 or the next morning, the two-foot by two and a half-foot sign was removed from a wall at the rear of the building at 339 N. Center, the report said.

WHEEL STOLEN — A front tire and wheel was stolen from a car at McDonald Ford over the weekend, according to a city police report.

Some time after 6 p.m. Friday, one Goodyear tire and wheel was taken from a new Ford Escort at the dealer. McDonald has been hit with a string of similar thefts.

ACCIDENT — A two-car accident at the corner of Bloomcrest and Caldwell left both drivers injured and one with a ticket from city police.

One driver was on Bloomcrest at the corner when the other driver crossed the center line and clipped the front corner of the first car, according to the report. The driver at fault suffered minor injuries and was ticketed for driving left of center. The report said the other driver was taken to St. Mary Hospital for examination.

FENDER-BENDERS — Three automobile accidents were reported by township police last week.

• A two-car accident occurred Saturday, March 4 at 2:26 a.m. on Silver Springs Drive near Longwood Court. Police said the driver of car one was going southbound on Silver Springs Drive when he fell asleep, crossing the center lane and striking the parked car on the opposite shoulder. The driver was issued a ticket for failing to use due care and caution.

• A two-car accident occurred Tuesday, March 7 at 6:35 p.m. at the intersection of Haggerty Road and Five Mile Road. The driver of car one said he entered the intersection on a yellow light trying to make a left turn onto Five Mile and did not see the northbound car. The driver of car two said he entered the intersection and car one turned in front of him. The driver of car one was issued a ticket for failing to yield for a left turn.

• A three-car accident occurred Tuesday, March 7 at 6:10 p.m. on Seven Mile Road near Silver Springs Drive. The driver of car one said he was going eastbound on Seven Mile and stopped at the intersection of Silver Springs Drive so he could turn left onto northbound Silver Springs. The driver of car one said he didn't see car two due to traffic and pulled in front of car two. The driver of car two said she was westbound on Seven Mile Road in the right lane — going less than 40 mph — when car one pulled in front of her. The driver of car three said she was southbound on Silver Springs Drive, waiting to turn left onto eastbound Seven Mile. The driver of car three said she tried to move to the right to avoid being struck by car one, but to no avail. A witness said he was going westbound on Seven Mile and saw car one hit car two and then hit car three. Police issued a ticket to the driver of car one for failing to yield the right of way for a left turn.

DRUNK DRIVING — At least three drivers were arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor (OUIL) by township and city police over the past week. Incidents include:

• A Northville resident was stopped on Six Mile Road east of Northville Road by township police on Sunday, March 5 at 4:18 a.m. Police said while following the driver that he was unable to maintain control of the car, weaving in and out of his lane and crossing left of the center line four times. After failing all field sobriety test, a preliminary breath test showed a blood alcohol level of .15 percent. In Michigan, .10 percent is considered OUIL. The driver was held in jail and released on $100 bond.

• A traffic accident on Wednesday, March 8 at 7:30 p.m. apparently involved a drunk driver, according to a township police report. Police said the driver of car one was westbound on Seven Mile, east of Gerald Avenue when he hit car two and drove car two into car three. The driver of car two, described as a black male, left the scene. Police said car two was improperly plated, but was otherwise clean. The driver of car three was taken by ambulance to Providence Hospital. The driver of car one failed all field sobriety tests and a preliminary breath test showed a blood alcohol level of .12 percent. The driver of car one was charged with OUIL, held in jail and released on personal recognizance. He faces an April 13, 9 a.m. 35th district court date.

• A Northville resident was ticketed on Saturday, March 4 at 1:13 a.m. by township police. Police said they were behind the car going northbound on Haggerty Road north of Five Mile Road. Police added the car weaved in and out of the left lane and crossed the center lane two times and stopped the car on Haggerty north of Seven Mile. After failing all field sobriety tests, a preliminary breath test showed a blood alcohol level of

.12 percent. In Michigan, .10 is OUIL. The driver was held in jail and released on $100 bond.

MEIJER'S THEFTS — At least two people were charged with larceny at Meijer's, according to township police reports.

• In the first incident, a Walled Lake resident was arrested on Sunday, March 12 at 3:40 p.m. for attempting to steal one pair of high-top shoes.

The store detective told police the subject put on the shoes and walked around the store, then exited. The subject was stopped by store detectives.

The man was charged with larceny in a building and faces a April 6, 9 a.m. 35th district court date.

• In the second incident, a Northville woman was charged with larceny after being caught trying to steal $65.87 in merchandise on Monday, March 6.

Store detectives said they observed the subject in the woman's department of the store selecting items and proceeding to the children's department. Along the way the woman was placing items in her coat and in a diaper bag.

Among the items the woman attempted to steal are: a girdle and bra worth $13.99, a swim suit worth $20.96, a $6.97 belt and a plastic plate worth $6.42.

The woman faces an April 6, 9 a.m. 35th district court date.

Commission approves plans for 15-unit apartment building

Plans for a small apartment development off Eight Mile passed the Northville Planning Commission last week after two years of rejections and deferrals.

The commission awarded preliminary and final site plan approval to a 15-unit apartment building just east of the Northville Wine Shoppe.

According to consultants' memos and comments from the planning commissioners, the most recent objections to the plan were basically resolved in the latest submittal. A couple new issues were raised at last week's meeting, but the commission approved the plan after the points were settled in discussion.

One of the biggest questions in the previous submittal of plans was how to classify the project — one building or three. When finished, it will be three blocks of five apartments each, but the three blocks are connected by a common roof and trim.

The question of classification was important for fire code reasons. If the project was one building, it was fine. But if it was three buildings, then the distance between the buildings was not wide enough.

That issue was resolved early last month in a meeting between the architect, developer, city building official and city fire inspector. The group agreed that the project could be considered a single building as long as appropriate fire precautions are taken in building the outside walls.

Another commission worry, Eight Mile Road traffic, was reviewed by the city police department. A passing lane and review by the Wayne County Road Commission was suggested, and Metti said the plans are currently under county review.

In addition to landscaping, one new issue at last week's meeting was

"Here we go again. We are victimized because of changes in the ordinance. We are again caught in this change of regulation and it (may) hold up the project."

— Metti W. Metti,
Developer

whether the project would violate the city's new deck ordinance. A few months ago, the city adopted an ordinance regulating backyard decks and completely prohibiting them from the required front yard area. An older section of the ordinance allows for a porch of up to 10 feet.

City Planning Consultant Don Wortman said the plans — with a front porch or deck extending three feet into the required setback — might be prohibited under the new part of the ordinance.

"The only problem we have with this submittal is this deck issue, and we didn't have a problem until we amended the section," Wortman said.

"Here we go again," developer Metti W. Metti said after hearing the situation. "We are victimized because of changes in the ordinance. We are again caught in this change of regulation and it (may) hold up the project."

However, the commission members agreed that the new deck provisions were designed for single-family homes, and apartment buildings were not really addressed when the ordinance change was being considered.

City Manager Steve Walters said there appears to be a conflict between the two sections. "If you take each one at face value, you can't have both of them, in effect," he said. "It strikes me that there is an or-dinence defect . . . To me, it doesn't make sense to apply it as it's written. It seems to me some correction is needed."

Walters said the section of the ordinance could be revised to allow a small porch encroachment into the front. Several members of the commission favored allowing the Metti project to move forward while looking into a resolution of the conflict.

Other issues settled at the meeting dealt with landscaping. Metti and his architect agreed to add more vegetation to shield the development's parking lot from neighbors. A new design for a landscaped retaining wall, and a sign for the development, must still return for commission consideration.

The apartment project has been under consideration for about two years. Among many delays along the way were a zoning ordinance change, a three-way property exchange and a rezoning of part of the site.

Workers picket at township site

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Carpenters working at Country Club Village Estates picketed the site on Monday in dispute of the hiring of some non-union workers.

Country Club Village Estates is on Six Mile Road near Haggerty in Northville Township.

The picketers message was received on Tuesday, as the developer — Pulte Homes Inc. — granted the union a meeting next Monday to air their differences.

"They're having out-state people come in and build homes at cheaper rates," said Bob Hadous, business manager for Carpenters Local 1234.

Hadous said the contractors for the project have brought in non-union workers for about one-half the salary of the union workers, without benefits.

"We're asking that the contractor pay a competitive rate with benefits so the unions can compete with these people," he added. "It is impossible to support a family on the $8 an hour that they're paying the non-union people."

Pulte representative Jeff Parsigian said he had no comment on the employees being hired to build the development.

Parsigian said however, that Pulte subcontracts the building of homes to other companies, so Pulte does not choose the employees who work on their sites.

"All I can say is the pickets have been disbanded and we will be having a meeting with the union next Monday," he said, adding no slow-down in construction has been caused by the picketing.

Parsigian said he had no comment on whether the union will return to work after the meeting next Monday.

Buck Walters, business agent for Local 1234, said a number of different locals supported the picketing Monday by the Carpenters Union.

"We began picketing at 7 a.m. this morning (Monday) and a number of locals have honored our line, including Detroit Edison," Walters said.

Hadous said without picketing the site, the contractor could break the union by continuing to bring in non-union employees. He said he believes many of those employees have come from Mexico.

However, Nate Gleton, Communication Director of the U.S. Immigration Border Patrol, said there have been no citations against Pulte for illegal aliens.

"And, if there have been any violations I'd know about it," Gleton said.

Parsigian said he has no comment on the issue of illegal aliens.

Township Police Chief Ken Hardisty said Local 1234 has not been rowdy during its picketing. "They have thrown some military game balls at some cars going to work, but we've had no problems with them."

After months and months of planning commission and council decisions regarding plans for the main/centre project in downtown Northville, some serious activity was seen recently. The old

Planners table cluster plans

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The momentum for developing a new cluster project across the street from Meads Mill Middle School vanished following the tabling of a preliminary site plan by the board last Thursday.

The preliminary site plan, submitted by Rymarz Development Co., was unanimously approved by the township planning commission on Tuesday, Jan. 31.

However, despite the commission's approval, Township Planning Director Carol Henry said board members voted 5-2 to table the project because "they wanted more information relating to the parcel of land to see if it qualifies for a cluster option."

Six unit condominiums are proposed for the two-acre triangular piece of land located at Six Mile and Waterford roads. Floor area of the condos will be about 2,800 square feet.

According to Henry, board members primarily want more information about the potential for paving Waterford Road. The road is currently unpaved and in poor condition.

"The board is not approving the conditions for qualifying for a cluster option, but are voting on how the option applies to the area," Henry said. "Because it's a subjective opinion, the board feels they need to involve everything on the parcel and surrounding areas."

Although Waterford Road is owned by Wayne County, in tabling the issue board members instructed developer Roger Rymarz to contact both the county and Northville schools and inquire about paving the road.

"I think the major issue is the road and it's something that should be brought into focus immediately," said Trustee James Nowka. "At some time we'll have to face the issue of paving Waterford Road and I believe we should face it head on."

Rymarz said that board members were supposed to vote on the feasibility of the cluster option, but instead have thrown a wrench into the entire project.

Rymarz said his option to purchase the land will run out sometime in early April if he does not have a final site plan approved by the planning commission.

"After April I'll lose my option to the land," Rymarz said, adding he does not think the board was confused on what they were supposed to vote on, but he just got "railroaded."

"After talking to Carol Henry this week she said she is pursuing a special meeting this week, but if it does not happen the township can continue to look at a barn on the property," Rymarz said.

Henry said she is currently pursuing letters from the county and school board as to their plans on paving Waterford. Also, Henry said she is trying to obtain a cost estimate from the township engineer on the expense of paving Waterford.

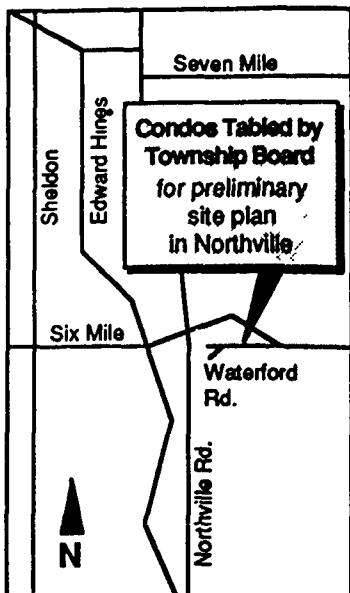

Rymarz architect David Schaff said adding the expense of paving Waterford Road to the cluster project would not be possible.

"We can't put in a road and turn around and sell the property with a special assessment district hanging over it," Schaff said.

He added that he understands some people have already showed an interest in the condos, which will be in the $250,000 price range.

Trustee Richard Allen, who voted against tabling the issue, said he does not think the board should hold up this project over the issue of paving the road.

"I don't think we should hold this guy up to have the school board and county come to an agreement over the paving of Waterford Road," Allen said.

"The amount of traffic generated by six homes is not significant in relation to the existing traffic by the school," he added.

Allen, who is the board liaison to the planning commission, said the commission made the correct decision by approving Rymarz's cluster option.

"A cluster option is an appropriate land use for the shape and density of the land," he added. "The road situation will be there and these people should participate in paving it, but they should not support it."

During the commission's approval of the cluster project on Jan. 31, Henry said the land qualified as a cluster development under the odd-shaped parcel category. Henry said there are 11 categories by which a developer can qualify for a cluster development and in effect put more units on a smaller piece of property.

Historical dinner

The Northville Historical Society held a very successful progressive dinner last weekend, and the Yerkes House above, was the site of a pre-dinner cocktail party. The dinner was a fun-

One school board seat open in June election

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Monday, June 12 has been formally adopted by the Northville School District as the date of the upcoming school election.

However, school officials said no names have yet been submitted for the one vacant board seat. School board president Jean Hansen has said she will seek a third term this June, following the expiration of her current four-year term.

"I plan to run again," Hansen said earlier. Besides being board president this year, Hansen — who is an eight-year veteran on the school board — also served as president in 1984.

District business manager John Street said Hansen's seat on the board will be the only opening in the June election.

Street said residents interested in running for the school board seat can fill out petitions through April 10 at 4 p.m. Petitions must be signed by 20 registered voters.

He said it is still too early to tell at this point whether any other issues or questions will appear on the June election ballot.

City hall elevator OK'd for grant

An elevator for the city municipal building was approved recently as a project for using Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) money.

The city council unanimously voted to apply its 1989 CDBG allocation toward installing an elevator at the city hall building on Main Street. The proposal is subject to county approval, but the elevator project has been approved as a use for past years' CDBG funds.

There is currently $71,300 available to the elevator project from past years; the new decision is expected to add $60,000 to the total.

City Manager Steve Walters, who suggested the elevator as the use for the money, said that the 1989 allocation will probably be more than enough money to complete the project. If that's true, the city can hold another hearing to use the rest of the money, he said.

City officials have considered the elevator necessary for an expected expansion of city operations. If, as planned, the library moves out of the municipal building, city offices will expand into the current library space. That will put city government on two different floors, leading Walters to recommend the elevator for barrier-free access within the building.

At a public hearing on the CDBG money recently, no one offered any suggestions for use of the money beside the elevator project.

The CDBG program is administered locally by county governments with money from the federal government. It is designed to improve communities within certain specific guidelines, emphasizing benefits to low- or moderate-income residents, physically handicapped residents, or senior citizens.

Because of Northville's position straddling the county line, it gets CDBG money through both Wayne and Oakland counties. The elevator project is being done with the Wayne County allocation.

City nixes banners

The Northville City Council recently denied a request for an exemption to the city's sign ordinance.

The new Clean-A-Rama cleaners on Dunlap Street was issued a violation for having banners outside, which are permitted in the city only for up to 48 hours for special events. The company petitioned the city council to allow its banners until a permanent sign goes up.

Saying that once regulations are in place, they ought to be enforced, the council denied the request.

"They've used up their 48 hours, and they're asking for council consideration of a variance," City Manager Steve Walters said in introducing the plan. "We have said no to all requests I am aware of in the past."

Council member Paul Folino said, "I think we kind of have to stick to our guns on a request of this nature."

Johnson directed Walters to send a notice of denial of the request, and to look at future enforcement.

Meads Mill hosts state conference

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Planning, organization and quality

Those were the words used by many of the guests and staff of Meads Mill Middle School last week, regarding Northville's hosting of the Michigan Association of Middle School Educators (MAMSE) conference.

"I have attended many MAMSE conferences over the past few years and I think the people of Northville have done an outstanding job in preparing for it," said MAMSE board member Tim Fox.

"This is certainly a better planned conference than I have attended over the last few years," Fox added.

"This is a very impressive school," said Berrien Springs Middle School teacher Richard Fedoruk. "Obviously a lot of planning went into putting on this conference."

According to Meads Mill Assistant Principal Jeff Radwanski, almost 1,800 educators, administrators and parents of middle school children, attended the conference — which ran last Thursday and Friday.

"All the feedback that I got from people over the two days of the conference has been nothing but positive," Radwanski said.

He noted that most of the planning and organizing done for the conference was by the teachers and staff of Meads Mill. "The teachers deserve the credit because they pulled this off."

"We feel like the day after winning the Rose Bowl," Radwanski said in a Monday interview. "But this (hosting MAMSE) has been a boost to the Meads staff and community."

To honor the Meads staff, the Northville Board of Education passed a resolution commending the school on the fine job it did in preparing for the conference.

"You've made us all proud and I have never heard as many compliments about our schools as I did last week," said board President Jean Hansen, during Monday night's meeting.

"You were a credit to Northville schools and the community," Hansen added, as she presented a plaque to Meads Mill counselors David Adair and Sharon Pernia, who coordinated the preparations for the MAMSE conference.

"This whole thing was truly a team effort," Adair said.

In addition to the staff of Meads Mill, over 200 parent and student volunteers helped in hosting MAMSE, according to PTA member Marilyn Robison.

"We started planning this conference a year ago and it's been a total team effort," Robison said.

"The teachers of Meads Mill did the planning for the conference and the parents and students (helped) to execute that plan."

Parent volunteer Judy Kohl said she decided to help out at the conference because she had some free time on her hands and wanted to get involved.

"A lot of women who work can't volunteer," Kohl said. "But, since I don't work, I decided to get involved and help out at the conference."

Organized down to the most minor details, a toy robot helped direct guests around the school, while students did everything from serving food to hanging coats.

Sixth grader Erich Doehler handled the videotaping of the conference, as he walked around the school filming guests and staff.

"Mr. Longridge (Meads Principal) asked me to do it and I enjoy working with camera equipment and here I am doing it and loving every minute of it," Doehler said.

He added that being around the conference was exciting "and I am also real proud of Meads Mill."

In all, 204 speakers made presentations on a variety of subjects related to middle school education including substance abuse, curriculum changes, textbook selections and school climate.

Local speakers included Northville Youth Assistance Director Mary Ellen King, Student Assistance Program Coordinator Charles Stilec and Meads Principal David Longridge.

Besides the presentors, over 80 exhibitors were on hand from across the U.S. to sell education products for middle schools.

Nystrom Co. representative Margaret Huddleston said she attends conferences such as MAMSE to "get feedback on what type of materials teachers need."

"I go to about six conferences statewide every year, and although we don't sell much merchandise at the conference, this is a good opportunity to know the needs of the districts," Huddleston added.

Marshall Middle School teacher Dick Cronk, who was looking over Huddleston's merchandise, said he came to see the speakers and find out the innovations in middle school teaching.

As for buying new materials, Cronk said he intends to carefully look over the merchandise and "see if my district has any extra money to spend."

Toting his plastic bag given to him by the Northville Chamber of Commerce, Cronk moved past the exhibit tables to the shuttle bus which took him to the Novi Hilton. On the way to the bus Cronk commented that Meads Mill is a beautiful school.

"I would love to have these facilities in Marshall," he said. "They're just great."

Park foes ready for battle

The news that November would be too late for a new Northville Community Park millage election has jolted opponents of the park back into action.

Jeff Hampton, member of Citizens for a Better Northville, said Monday that the group had not done much work lately but was ready to start becoming active again. The group, which passed out fliers at city polling places last November, was partly credited or blamed with the park millage's defeat in the city while winning in the township.

The Northville Community Recreation Department had proposed a two-year, .9-mill tax in the city and township to develop the Northville Community Park site on Beck Road between Five Mile and Six Mile. Hampton's group opposed the idea.

After the election, the group started looking for alternative ways to develop more park facilities not using tax money. At the same time, local officials began looking into the idea of another millage election in the city, possibly in conjunction with the general city election this November.

But a recent legal opinion stating the millage must pass by Sept. 30 in the city if it is to be levied in both the city and the township has changed the complexion of things.

Mayor Chris Johnson said last week the city may look into putting the park issue on the ballot along with a statewide proposal for public school financing, if the state Legislature puts one on the ballot before the end of September.

And that is spurring the Citizens for a Better Northville back into action, said Hampton, a Northville Township resident.

"We probably have taken our foot off the gas a little more than we should have," he said Monday.

He said the group has been investigating a private developer for the community park site. They want to know what a private recreation company would require to develop the park with private money, he said.

"That's kind of the major thrust: what do the private people need?" he said. "We've got some fairly good ideas."

As things now stand, private development of the site would probably violate its deed, Hampton said.

The group hopes to find out if the deed can be altered by the state Legislature, and if the local representatives would introduce legislation to do that. "That's what we're hoping would happen," he said.

The recreation department's plans for the Beck Road site include lighted ball fields, soccer fields, outdoor volleyball courts and support facilities.

Township distributes federal grant funds

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

$74,000 in federal grant monies were distributed into six departments by the Northville Township Board last Thursday, following a public hearing on the issue.

Township Administrative Assistant Maureen Osiecki said Northville Township has received money from the federal government, known as community development block grant (CDBG) funds since the 1970s.

"These are federal funds which are administered by Wayne County," Osiecki said. "The county distributes the money according to the population of each community."

She noted the township received $71,800 in CDBG funds in 1988.

Osiecki said the money is supposed to be targeted for low to moderate income families, seniors, housing rehabilitation and is allowed for comprehensive planning and other programs deemed necessary for the community.

Osiecki said there is a CDBG manual which list the regulations for qualifying for the money, and any residents wanting information on possible eligibility can call her at 348-5800.

$20,000 of the entire grant will be used to help residents pay for water and sewer special assessment districts (SAD). "The money is ideally for seniors who have lived in their homes for a long time and need help to pay for a SAD," Osiecki said.

Another $23,000 has been earmarked for public services, which helps to pay for the senior's bus and telephone services.

$14,600 is being committed for the new township fire truck. The township is in the second year of a three year payoff for the truck, which costs approximately $35,000.

$5,000 is being sent to both the planning department and into a housing rehabilitation fund. The housing rehab fund helps primarily seniors afford necessary repairs for homes.

The final $6,400 is earmarked for administration costs, as each community is allowed to pay up to a 10 percent fee to the individual in charge of coordinating the CDBG budget.

In dispersing the funds into the six categories, Osiecki said a big problem is that most township residents do not financially qualify to receive CDBG funds.

"Since the funds are for low to moderate income families, we sometimes have a problem finding eligible recipients in the township," she said, adding the township sends postcards to residents who are potentially eligible to receive CDBG funds.

Osiecki noted the CDBG funds can be cut off by the federal government at any time. She added after completing all the necessary paperwork, the township should see CDBG funds by the middle of August.

Facts about assessments and the appeal process

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Russell Fogg, 57, is chairman and seven-year member of the Board of Review, a three member body which hears all resident appeals on property tax assessments. An industrial Realtor, Fogg and his wife Lee have been residents of the township for 19 years. Following is a slightly-edited version of an interview about the appeals process and assessments.

Russell Fogg

"The common mistake is that(residents) they don't know what the board is about. The Board of Review simply reviews what the assessor has put on the field sheets. We don't make tax policy and we don't do the assessment."

— Russell Fogg

considered by an assessor?

Generally not. If a home starts out with a field sheet, people are expected to maintain that house. After all, you can't let your house go and expect your assessment to go down.

How can a resident appeal an assessment?

You can appeal to the Board of Review for one of two reasons: hardship or inequity. You can support the inequity argument in one of two ways: by comparable sales in the area that maybe it's too high or too low, or other homes similar to your home that are assessed at a different rate than you are. There are many factors involved however, because two homes may be equal but the lots may not be equal. For hardships, you must prove the basis of your need.

Where does the process of appealing begin?

It begins with residents going down and looking at the field sheets whenever they want. Then if you feel there is an inequity, you should come before the Board of Review.

Do you need a lawyer?

No. You can have one if you want, but to sit down and compare sales figures I don't think requires having a lawyer.

What do residents need to complete prior to appearing at the Board of Review?

Just homes as comparable to yours as possible. If they're assessed at a different rate or if they are selling at a different rate.

During your seven years on the board, how many appeals have been successful?

That's hard to say. Of the hardship cases probably a very high percentage.

tage. We don't see many of those, but some of them are very severe. As far as the other appeals, very few because I think people, unless they investigate the sales figures themselves, don't have enough information to present to the board.

How long do residents have to appear before the board and is it enough time?

Ten minutes. If people don't have all the information we'll give them a couple of weeks to acquire the information before making a decision. If they can support their position fine, it shouldn't take long.

How long does it take the board to make a decision on each appeal?

The board doesn't make any decisions until after about April 1, for everybody.

How have the number of appeals fluctuated in recent years?

They have been going down. For one thing, the last two years, the assessments haven't come near the actual sales price of the home. This year, for the most part, the basis for appeal just isn't there because the houses could sell for greater than what they're assessed. There is less of a gap this year than last, however.

Any tips for appealing?

Only that if residents need help we're there and they can give us a call. And if we can help them out in any way we'll be glad to.

What are some mistakes residents make when they come before the board?

The common mistake is that they don't know what the board is about. The Board of Review simply reviews what the assessor has put on the field sheets. We don't make tax policy and we don't do the assessment. The biggest mistake is people want to be angry at the Board of Review. We're basically there to be on their side. If residents haven't prepared well we will help them with their argument.

If a resident is not happy with the board of review's decision, do they have any recourse?

A resident can take their appeal to the Michigan Tax Tribunal and information on that procedure has been included with their assessment notice. People should remember that they do have an option following the Board of Review decision.

Board of Review member Zo Chisnell added that those residents appealing on the basis of hardship should bring a copy of their 1988 Michigan State tax return and the 1988 Homestead tax return. It is also a good idea to bring along a federal tax return and W-2 form information, Chisnell noted.

An Easter tradition of "forced" Spring blossoms.

Neighbors object to group home at public hearing

who do not live in the neighborhood — spoke in favor of the group home proposal, saying that the homes are a useful, effective program.

The home, planned for 20415 Lexington, would house four adults with developmental disabilities — mental retardation, epilepsy, cerebral palsy or autism. It would be run by a company called New Outlook, which operates several group homes in Wayne County; supervised by Wayne Community Living Services, and licensed by the state Department of Social Services. A license has been applied for, but cannot be issued until a 45-day waiting period expires April 4.

It would be the first group home in the city. A formal city council complaint against the proposal was based on the number and size of mental health and state prison facilities in the area, including the prisons on Five Mile, the psychiatric hospital on Seven Mile, two group homes in Northville Township, Hawthorn Center on Haggerty, and two special education facilities run by Northville Public Schools.

At Monday's public hearing, the first issue raised was property values, and that continued as a concern throughout the meeting.

"There have been extensive studies to that effect. It has had no significant effect on property values," said Virginia Rainey-Harmon, executive director of WCLS.

When residents asked why the City of Livonia gives a 15-percent tax break to homeowners who live near group homes, WCLS' Chris Herter said it's probably the Livonia assessor's personal opinion that there is an effect.

"I live right next door to this fiasco," Jim Lapham responded, saying he heard of a home in Plymouth which decreased values for three blocks. "I can't understand why it wouldn't decrease mine... I expect at least a 15 percent reduction in taxes."

Carolyn Abramovich suggested that property values might not be affected in some cases just because real estate agents are not allowed to disclose the presence of a group home in a neighborhood.

Neighbor Edith Pegrum said she believes a group home cannot help but reduce nearby property values, in spite of any studies suggesting otherwise. "I don't believe them, and I don't think any intelligent person would ever believe them," she said.

Some residents suggested the state should guarantee their property values will not fall, and provide them with the cash difference if they do fall.

The other side of the financial coin discussed Monday was the cost of the house. The rent comes from a formula based on an appraisal of the house's worth at $160,000. Some residents suggested the appraisal was too high, while others said the state could easily have found a cheaper house somewhere else. In either case, they charged, the state would waste money.

"How is a $180,000 home justified by a so-called destitute Department of Mental Health?" resident Dan Boland asked.

State Mental Health Director Tom Watkins — who lives in Northville Township, on W. Main — said the idea of group homes is to bring the residents into a community and neighborhood which is a nice place to live.

"We have homes that are in urban settings; we have homes that are in rural settings," he said. "We have homes in suburbs."

People oppose group homes wherever they are proposed, he said: "If we're out in the country, we should be in the city; if we're in the city, we should be in the country."

He also said, "Certainly, we look here in Northville for a home that would meet the barrier-free needs... At the same time, it's certainly a good value for the state."

That touched off a long discussion of the cost of care for developmentally disabled people. Watkins said the Northville home would be much cheaper than care in an institution, but several Lexington neighbors countered that a cheaper house would save even more.

"Why are you wasting the taxpayers' money on that excessive amount?" Ron Abramovich said. "You're raising the cost of other group homes by having this one."

Jay Wendt said if the residents can be served in a $90,000 home, the Lexington home would be a waste of money. "As a taxpayer, that makes me damn mad," he said.

"Providing high-quality care to the people who are developmentally disabled in the state is not going to come cheaply," Watkins said.

The mother of a person living in a home run by New Outlook — directed by Diane Hunt — asked the neighbors to accept the new home. She said her child could not live at home.

"Diane Hunt was instrumental in our making that move," she said. "It's very important that these homes be accepted."

The father of one potential resident of the Lexington home said he is getting so he can no longer drive from Livonia to Caro to see his son in an institution. He said if people had more experience with group homes, "they would not have near as much fear."

A couple of residents responded that they are not afraid of the residents, just concerned for the impact on the neighborhood and on property values. Pegrum said she has regularly dealt with handicapped people and is a very compassionate person. "It is entirely different than living behind them and having the value of our home brought down," she said.

One Lexington resident — whose 12-year-old son attends Hawthorn Center and has regular contact with people with developmental disabilities — read a statement from her son opposing the home. "I am fearful for our safety and well-being. I wish you would not allow it," it read in part.

Other issues raised at the hearing included:

Problems arising — Several residents wondered about potential problems which might come up at the home, and what could be done about them.

One Commerce Township resident said a group home next door to her has been the site of many problems, including a resident who regularly injured himself breaking windows until break-proof windows were installed. "I still have him pounding on the window areas of the home to this day," she said. She also called the home "summarily a business" — not a residence — and advised neighbors of any home to call the police in the event of problems because of poor response from other officials.

"Do we have problems? Yes, we have problems periodically with homes," Watkins said. "We want to be good neighbors. We want to be responsive." He said he wanted details of the Commerce situation, calling it "unacceptable."

Record/ANN WILLIS

Neighbors packed the city council chambers to discuss the group home Monday night.

In the event of an emergency, "I would call the police as well," Watkins added. He also said the first recourse could be to Hunt and New Outlook, then to the county and state.

Hunt commented, "I can't correct it unless I know about it." She offered to meet with residents on a regular basis.

"We'll try to be good neighbors and not interfere with you," Herter said. Watkins said he has received letters from people who first opposed group homes who later changed their minds to write that "I now have the best neighbor I have ever had in my life."

Staffing — In response to questions, Hunt said the home would run on three eight-hour shifts. A worker is not allowed to leave until someone else comes to work. There is an on-call system if a worker does not arrive at all.

Workers must be 18 years old and have a high school diploma or equivalent. They receive 120 hours of base training. There is a probation period and staff monitoring, she said.

Neighborhood appearance — Neighbors expressed concern about alterations to the home out of the area's character, especially the possibility of a circular driveway in front.

Rainey-Harmon said the home would be in accordance with the rest of the neighborhood, adding, "we stand ready to make those commitments in writing if necessary."

When asked about future additions to the building, Watkins said the owner would have to negotiate that with the state. "We have no intention of doing it," he said. The state plans to keep the house so it "blends with the community as much as we can."

Capacity — The license application is for four people at most, but residents asked if that might ever be increased.

Watkins said he can guarantee in writing the limit will stay at four, leading one resident to comment, "What makes me comfortable about that is nothing."

Other facilities in area — The main point behind the city's formal opposition got a little more attention Monday.

One resident asked state Sen. R.

Robert Geake (R-Northville Township) if there hadn't been a promise from the state for no more state facilities.

"No one ever promised me, and I tried to get it several times," Geake said. "It's a good point."

New Outlook — Wendt said he had travelled to about seven other homes run in Wayne County by New Outlook.

He reported they were "equally kept up or better kept up than all the other homes" in the neighborhoods, but added that some of those were poor neighborhoods.

"The basic problems with the homes, we heard, was traffic, cars in the street and in some cases parked on front lawns, (and) noises," Wendt said. "The staff on all homes except one got good marks." That one problem was quickly addressed, he heard.

"We found Diane Hunt operates one of the better homes in the state. I know you don't want to hear this, but these are the facts," Wendt concluded.

Residents' homes — One neighbor asked if the people in the homes could not stay with their families, possibly using the money the state would otherwise spend on the home operation.

Rainey-Harmon said, "If the individual is able to go home, they do so, and we work diligently to that end." Watkins added that there are small state subsidy programs for people caring for developmentally disabled family members.

Traffic — A couple of residents said the traffic impact from the group home would be substantial. One said a formal study should be done before moving ahead.

New Moraine School Principal Mary Najarian.

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Principal lives out a dream

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Some lucky people are able to realize their dream.

After 18 long years in the Northville School District, new Moraine principal Mary Najarian is one person who has finally realized her dream.

"I'm very excited," Najarian said earlier. "This is something that I've wanted to do for the last few years and I look at this as a new challenge."

Currently a building resource teacher at Amerman Elementary, Najarian has taught at all levels of elementary school in the Northville system — something she said will help her in her transition to the principal position.

"I've taught at all elementary level grades, so I now the background of kids this age," she said, adding her experiences this year at Amerman have taught her building management.

"I've done everything here a building principal would do, except I've been assisting (Amerman principal) Milt Jacobi," Najarian said.

During the school board's public hearing to decide whether to open Moraine or Cooke as an elementary school, many residents questioned the quality of the program in relation to the other three elementary schools.

Najarian said parents of children heading to Moraine should rest assured that quality education will be offered at Moraine.

"We're going to look at the overall program that we have at the other elementary schools and make Moraine equal to the other schools," Najarian said.

As for handling the transition of about 300 kids from Amerman to Moraine, Najarian said she plans to start working on a course of action immediately.

"We're going to have the school up and running hopefully so that we have all the staff identified before the end of this school year," she said. "Then we'd like to have an open house, so that when students come next September they'll feel welcome there, just like they would if they were coming back to Amerman."

In recommending Najarian for the Moraine principal post to the board last week, Superintendent George Bell said Najarian will have an opportunity to internally assist students who will be moving from Amerman to Moraine.

"The transition period will be easier for students going from Amerman to Moraine because now they will know their principal before the school opens," Bell said.

Parents of Moraine children also said they are looking forward to having a neighborhood-type school.

Najarian said she plans to institute the neighborhood concept by encouraging parents to come in and work at the building and use the facilities.

"We want to get the community involved in their school," she said, adding the size of building will be advantageous for her as a principal because "the student population is more manageable, so you can get to know the kids and families better."

In hiring teachers for Moraine, Najarian said the school will follow strict district procedures of asking current staff if they are interested in transferring. At present, projections are for 343 students to attend Moraine, to be instructed by about 22 or 23 teachers.

She said she is not sure at this time if new teachers will need to be hired, but regardless, the school will have a staff that is experienced and not characterized as an all-rookie group.

"We're going to have a quality program at Moraine because I'm qualified for the position," Najarian said.

After graduating from Wayne State in 1970 with a degree in education, Najarian said she began teaching at Moraine, and then went on to become a classroom teacher at Amerman, Winchester and Moraine.

Following many years as a teacher, Najarian joined the gifted and talented program, before becoming the building resource teacher at Amerman last September.

"My main focus is the elementary schools," she said. "I love this age of children."

Planners table bank site plan

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Township customers of Standard Federal Bank will have to wait a little while longer to do their business at a branch close to home.

That's because the Township Planning Commission voted 7-0 to table a final site plan for the bank, which is to be located on Six Mile Road west of Haggerty Road.

Commissioners said the move to postpone action on the site was done because the developer did not submit a landscape design with the plan and did not have approval from Wayne County to cut into the curb to make a driveway.

Developer Michael Boggio said he did not realize that a landscaping plan had to be submitted during final site plan approval.

But Commissioner Richard Allen said planners "don't give final site plan approval without a landscape plan."

Boggio said the bank was under time constraints with the federal government to move the plans along. He asked the commission if he could take care of finalizing the landscape design with the township's planning consultant Claude Coates.

Commissioners instead voted to table the plan, which will require the developer to resubmit a plan 19 days before their next meeting and pay a charge of $500.

In addition to the lack of a landscaping plan, planners said the developer needs to show approval from Wayne County before they cut a section from an existing curb along Six Mile. The opening in the curb will furnish the bank's driveway.

Passing lanes and acceleration and deceleration lanes on the existing county roadway must also be shown by developers.

Also, the ownership of a common drive that the developer said would service bank customers and other development in the area must be defined, according to planners.

"We don't have an answer as to who owns the road," said Township Planning Director Carol Henry.

A traffic circulation problem inside the bank parking lot, which was denoted following preliminary site plan approval, was corrected by developers.

Moreover, a dumpster was deleted from the plans and the transformer was moved to near the back of the building. These changes eliminated sight distance problems that were on previous site plans.

Assessment increases frustrate citizens process of appealing his assessment. Homeowner Tim Skoh said he was upset with the 18 percent increase levied on his home in comparison to last year's assessment.

"My assessment went up 18 percent but what do I get out of it?" Skoh asked, adding his assessment went up 10 percent in 1988.

"I've appealed my assessments for the last two years, but this year I may take it to the state Tax Tribunal because I can't afford this mode of living," he added.

Another township resident, who requested anonymity, echoed Skoh's frustration about the high increase in assessments over the past year.

"Many residents are comparing their assessments to their neighbor's assessments. Some people are just getting frustrated at the amount of their tax increases."

Nancy Molloy
Northville Township Administrative Assistant

"My assessment went up 19.5 percent," the resident said. "It's been going up every year for a while, but this is the highest I've seen. You can see people aren't happy by the high turnout."

The resident said homeowners unhappy with their assessments should look through their field sheet and the tax rolls to see what their neighbors were assessed, to determine if their assessments are out of line.

"I suggest that residents get a feel for their neighborhood's increase," she said, adding the township has made it easier to appeal an assessment by adding more Board of Review dates.

Molloy said residents should call Northville Township for appointments between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at 348-5800.

In addition, Molloy said residents should pick up Northville Township's new application form prior to appearing before the board.

The Board of Review is eligible to schedule new dates until the legal deadline of April 3. Molloy said no decision has been made at this time to schedule more dates.

The three members of the board of review are: Russell Fogg, Zowan Chisnell and Frank St. Louis.

Headlee controls actual tax hike

By BOB NEEDHAM

Although many Northville homeowners have recently received assessment notices showing large increases — averaging almost 17 percent in the township, for example — many will not pay that large an increase in actual tax dollars.

And some people with an assessment hike could actually end up paying less than last year, if their percent increase was less than their community's average.

That's because of the operation of the Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment to the state constitution.

Unless overridden by voters in a special election, the Headlee amendment — among other things — limits the total property tax revenue a local government receives. Basically, the government is limited to the same dollar amount it received the last year, plus two adjustments.

As recalled by Patrick Anderson — director of economics at Alexander Hamilton Life, Richard Headlee's company — the amendment came about because taxpayers were tired of those rising assessments and rising taxes.

"People in Michigan were upset that their taxes were going up and the state government was expanding virtually without limit," Anderson said.

In addition, he said, there was a perceived abuse of bond issues by governments, since bonds could be sold without voter approval. "It was a way you could spend taxpayer money and not appear to do it," he said.

The amendment passed in 1978, and included several provisions to limit taxation. The constitution now requires voter approval of certain bonds, limits state taxes to a set share of total personal income in the state, requires state funding for state-mandated programs, and limits reductions in state aid to local governments.

The other main part of the amendment — the limit on taxes received by local governments — perhaps receives the most attention of any part of the amendment.

The basic limitation is on tax revenue for general operations. Headlee limits a government to the same amount of tax money it received the previous year, plus an increase to allow for inflation and new growth.

In other words, the government starts out with the same amount of money it had last year. It then gets an increase matching the national inflation rate. It then gets more revenue to account for the taxes from any new construction within the community.

That figure — which is determined through a set formula — is all the government gets without a special vote of the citizens.

Anderson said it makes sense that Headlee allows the governments to get new revenue from new growth.

"The amendment, I think, is very responsible," he said. "If you're in a place like Novi or Farmington Hills, where you've seen a lot of new people move in, a lot of new businesses move in, government should expand... The local government gets every single dollar of that."

In a case like Northville and Northville Township in recent years, existing residential property has seen assessment increases well beyond the inflation rate of four or four-and-a-half percent. Since property taxes are based on the assessed value of property, if the tax rate stayed the same, homeowners would pay more money — even beyond the inflation rate.

All that "extra" money is what the Headlee amendment controls. Headlee requires that local governments reduce their tax rate so that they don't get this money. The requirement can be overridden,

Northville Players plan new show to aid charity

The Northville Players community theater group is preparing for its second production, and this time the results of their efforts are going to charity.

The play, a comedy / mystery called "The Butler Did It," is scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday, April 7, at the First United Methodist Church on Eight Mile at Taft. Ticket proceeds are going to fight muscular dystrophy.

The cast is set and well into rehearsals, group leader Russell Dore said. He described the play as a two-act comedy and mystery, adding that "it's more of a comedy than a mystery."

The production is being sponsored by the ERA Rymal Symes Company, Realtors. Proceeds are going to benefit Jerry Lewis' drive to fight muscular dystrophy.

Ticket price is $7. Tickets may be ordered from Jan or Barb at ERA Rymal Symes Northville office, 349-4550; or from Diane at the Novi office, 478-9130.

The cast of the play includes Audrey Edwards as Haversham, Judy Kohl as Rita, Jacquie Rundell as Miss Maple, George Hall as Father White, Jeffrey Lauer as Chandler Marlowe, John Bullington as Louie Fan, Jay Bullington as Peter Flimsey, Russell Dore as Rick Carlyle, Lorraine Letarte as Laura Carlyle, and Mary Ann Tweedie as Charity Haze. John Hall is the director.

Anyone interested in the Northville Players may contact Dore at 349-1052. This is the group's second effort; last year, it presented "She's Only a Farmer's Daughter" at the Mill Race Historic Village.

together with a group of students, according to Meads counselor Sharon Pernia. Through this method, the teaching group can look at the social, physiological, academic and emotional side of each child.

Each teaching team is arranged by grade, so that teachers can develop curriculum and problem solving techniques.

Longridge said Bell showed his dedication to excellence in education by supporting this program during financially trying times.

"In these days of financial restraint, this man (Bell) believes in the middle school concept so much that he is a leading advocate of the concept in having it receive Board of Education and community approval," Longridge wrote in the letter.

True to form, Bell said the team planning concept was developed by the staff and administration of Meads Mill, who looked at other middle schools to find out what would most benefit their children.

"My administrative style has always been to surround myself with capable people and let them do what needs to be done," Bell said.

"I need to do what I can to provide the resources and direction and then get out of the way and let them do their job," he added.

Headlee limits tax increases however, with a vote of the people.

"They ought to get that back in terms of a lower millage rate," Anderson said. "It's a real tax increase, and the citizens have a right to have an up-or-down vote on it."

Since the amendment operates with total figures for an entire government — but assessment increases can vary from house to house — the Headlee "rollback" of a millage rate can affect different property in different ways, Anderson confirmed. If a person's assessment went up six percent but the formula requires a nine percent rollback, that person will pay less tax money than the year before. At the same time, someone with a 20 percent increase will pay more taxes than the past year, in spite of Headlee.

Mentions of the Headlee amendment are often accompanied by mentions of the state "truth-in-taxation" law. This is somewhat similar to the Headlee requirement, except that it does not even allow for inflation.

If tax revenue is going to rise beyond the increase due to new construction, the government must either roll back to the new-construction-only level, or else have a special hearing. This is a formal notice to citizens that taxes are going up in dollar amount, even though the tax rate may be lower. The government body must then approve the measure with a special vote, but no vote of the people is required.

Local politician supports bill to discourage dropouts

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

High school dropouts 16-18 years old may lose their driving privileges if state Rep. Gerald Law's (R-Plymouth) latest bill becomes law.

House Bill 4184, introduced Feb. 14 by Law, would prohibit the issuance of a restricted or permanent driver's license to anyone under 18 years of age who does not conform with their school attendance policies or who has been expelled from school and who does not yet have a high school diploma.

"This is something that's been needed for a long time," Law said. "We give students the responsibility of driving a car, yet we don't require them to gain the education that should go along with that responsibility. Granting a driver's license to high school dropouts is just letting a bad situation get worse."

Law's bill is the second part of the driver's license restriction package. House Bill 4183, introduced by Rep. Michael Nye (R-Litchfield), would require the Secretary of State to suspend the driver's license of anyone 16 to 18 years old who has withdrawn from school. The license would be reinstated if the person re-enrolls in high school.

"If a student drops out of school, that person is choosing not to be prepared for the future," Nye said. "That kind of attitude does not merit the responsibility of a driver's license. If suspending the license helps get them back to school, so much the better."

Law's bill would provide for exceptions to the rule, based on personal or family hardship, or for medically-related purposes.

Law said suspending the license of teens is a mainly being aimed at marginal or borderline students.

"I admit that this bill probably will not do much to help chronic truants, but for kids on the borderline, a driver's license is usually the most important thing. Maybe this can tie school and a driver's license together, so marginal students can meet both responsibilities," he said.

Driving is a privilege, Law said, and it must be treated as such. "If student's can't meet the responsibility of staying in school then they don't deserve the privilege of a driver's license."

However local school officials indicated they were less optimistic that suspending a student's driver's license would be a positive move for either the student or the school.

"I want to look more closely at the proposal to determine how it would improve the educational environment of the schools," said Northville Superintendent George Bell.

"It's always possible that if students return to school to keep their driver's license and not to learn or succeed, it could be detrimental," Bell said, adding he needs to take a closer look at Law's bill and its details.

Northville High School Principal David Bolitho said his school probably has one or two dropouts per year and added Law's bill probably would not keep kids in school.

"We're finding that kids leave school for complex reasons and since there are many reasons for dropping out, this bill would only add to their problem," Bolitho said.

Bolitho said suspending a driver's license would probably take away the mobility of a dropout and "it would be another unsuccessful experience for kids who have had problems with success their entire lives."

Looking at alternatives for kids who don't fit in with the regular program may be a better solution to the dropout problem, Bolitho said, adding that attending school may not be the answer for everyone.

Many Northville high students also said they would be opposed to the suspension of a driver's license for dropouts, although for different reasons.

"It's not right (to suspend a license) because there are a lot of reasons why people drop out and it's not fair to take their license away," said freshman Leanne Michaelis, who added students will drop out of school regardless of the status of their license.

Michaelis noted however, that there isn't one solution to the dropout problem, since there are many points to consider.

Senior Rob Walsh said he does not think it would be fair to suspend a license "because if a student chooses to drop out it's up to them....If they're going make a law they should make it against the law for students to drop out, not to drive."

He said a license suspension would help limit dropouts "because kids would not be able to drive to their jobs and it would be a lot harder."

Residents express mixed reactions to license suspension bill

By BRUCE M. WEINTRAUB

Q: Legislation was recently introduced in the Michigan House which would suspend a drivers license for 16-18 year-olds who drop out of school. Do you think this would be a fair law and will this law reduce the drop out rate?

HOLLY SCHWARZ — Northville High freshman

"No, I don't think it's fair because dropping out of school isn't a crime. We want to drive when we go to school. It won't help the dropout problem because it doesn't have any (effect) on grades. Maybe they can't afford to go to school or maybe they have other things they have to do instead of going to school."

BARBARA GALLAGHER — Northville resident

"Yes, I think it's a good idea because a driver's license is real important to kids and it might keep them in school. (This bill) is fair because it's sort of an incentive program."

EARL MCINTOSH — Northville resident

"No, I don't think it's fair because driving is not regulated to an education or an amount of education. I think you are handicapping people enough that have dropped out that they need a license to make it. I don't think it would limit the dropout rate and all it would do is make more illegal drivers."

KEVIN TELEPO — Northville High Senior

"Yes, I think it's fair because I think you should go to school until you're at least 18. It's possibly a good idea to handle the problem because everyone wants to drive and this will definitely keep people in school."

JOAN MASON — Northville resident

"No, I don't think it's fair because I don't think one has anything to do with another. When a person makes a decision to drop out of school that penalizes them because it will already be difficult for them to get a job or function. I don't think it would limit dropouts because it probably would be found unconstitutional, first of all."

"I also like to learn French because my teacher thinks we'll be able to go to France and be able to speak the language," Hiemstra said. His partner, Brett Johnson said he enjoys working with Michael "because he listens good and he's nice. This was also a good way to meet him."

In addition to the academic aspects of the program, Modrack said the students of both classes are also benefitting from the program socially.

"The cross-age program gives social opportunities that help give the older children a real responsibility as a role model and leadership practice, not to mention tutoring skills," she said.

Silver Springs Principal Ken Pawlowski said the program is going extremely well.

"It's providing students with a sense of self-worth because they're not only learning, but helping each other," Pawlowski said.

He said Modrack and Hojnacki came up with the idea for the program. "I encourage creativity and ingenuity from my teachers, and when they come up with an idea I help them put it together."

"This program is good for everyone's concept of self-worth," Pawlowski said. "And it's sending a message to kids that they can and will always learn from one another."

"The kindergartners feel good about beginning to read and the second graders love to help them. Children can and do learn from one another. The children really enjoy working together and helping each other."

A form may be picked up from the front desk at 215 W. Main, or residents may call 349-1300 and request that a copy be mailed to them.

City Manager Steve Walters said two copies of the survey were sent to each residential water customer. Anyone who needs more than two copies for their household may also call or pick up extras.

The surveys are color-coded so that responses can be grouped into four sectors of the city, with the Eight Mile / Center Street corner being the middle point. Walters said anyone requesting a copy of the survey will be asked to say which quadrant they live in, but will not be required to give their address.

"We're asking that they be returned by March 30," Walters said, although the city will continue to accept responses until they are tabulated in April.

The survey form has a return envelope along with it.

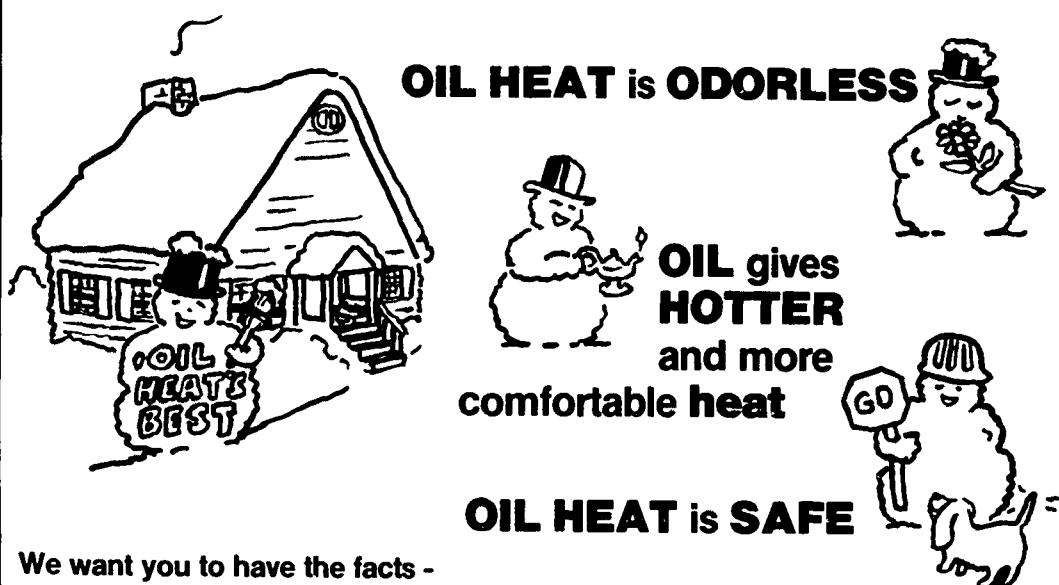

The survey idea grew out of discussion of the official city Master Plan. This document, which includes a map of the city showing land uses, is currently being updated by the city's planning consultant firm and its planning commission.

Planning commissioners agreed that a major survey of all city residents would be a useful tool in guiding deliberations on the Master Plan. The document is expected to include a revised and expanded section on city philosophy and long-term goals.

The questionnaire is a five-page form. It asks for some basic personal information, and then goes into several sections on attitudes of the residents. The survey responder is asked whether they strongly agree, somewhat agree, have no opinion, somewhat disagree, or strongly disagree, with a series of statements.

The statements cover types of housing in the city, types of commercial development, the appearance of the downtown area, traffic and parking, and parks.

The Northville Record

Our Opinion Group home deserves a place in Northville

Emotions are running predictably high over an adult foster care group home proposed for a house on Lexington Boulevard. A long public hearing Monday showed a tremendous amount of concern on everyone's part — the neighbors and the officials as well.

There are a lot of things that need to be said about this issue overall and the hearing in particular.

First, we're glad the city took the step to hold the hearing. It was an invaluable way for a variety of concerns to be aired in a public forum. It's also a good idea that the city will send some written version of the comments on to the state. Even though these efforts are not likely to have any effect, the concerns deserve to be heard and recorded.

The hearing itself, however, was disappointing.

When confronted by residents, the statements from the officials present were often unsatisfactory. Their sentences were clouded with enough bureaucrat-ese to make them sound evasive even when they had a basically straight answer to give.

Some of what the officials said was very hard to swallow. For example, county and state mental health experts say that the presence of a group home does not decrease property values, and they point to seven studies which conclude basically that. We'd like to believe the studies, and maybe someday we will be able to, but right now it's difficult.

The study results fly in the face of common sense, when you consider the extreme negative reaction of the current homeowners to the idea of a group home. It's hard to believe the average, prospective home buyer feels any different. As residents have pointed out, the only way that finding makes sense is if the existence of the home is hidden from the buyers. (By law, Realtors are not allowed to tell.)

But the opposition to the home hasn't made much sense either. Beyond the property value question, many of the other objections to the home do not apply specifically to group homes. Concerns about noise, traffic, parking, and appearance of the home could apply to any new neighbor. Some people are worried about a convicted felon moving in next door; that could happen anywhere, but a written guarantee against it was offered in the case of this group home.

The argument that this wastes taxpayers' money, using an expensive house as a group home, does not hold much water either. Cost can never be the ultimate determinant of adult foster care. If it was, group homes would be run in the worst slums in the state. Cost must be balanced with many other factors — quality care being the most important — which is exactly what the group home system does with a wide dispersal of homes. We agree with a comment made by a county official that developmentally disabled people have as much right to live in Northville as anyone.

The city's formal opposition — the abundance of special education, mental health and prison facilities in the area — is also weak. Yes, these institutions obviously exist within a few miles, but only one, the barely-noticeable and very valuable special education program on Main Street, is within city limits. Honestly, now, what impact do the Five Mile Road prisons really have on life in the city?

One final point to consider: based on the residents' own positions, a group home for developmentally disabled people is less objectionable than other types. It seems to us the potential for problems and abuses is much greater in a home for people recovering from mental illness. If the residents are concerned about the operation of a home for developmentally disabled people, we suggest they take Diane Hunt — director of the company which will operate the home — up on her offer to meet with them regularly.

The question of property values is a real one, and deserves attention in the future. But beyond that, the plain fact is that group homes make sense, and it's surprising the City of Northville hasn't had one before this. Let's welcome these new neighbors just as we would any others.

Schools deserve kudos for a MAMSE well done

Northville has yet another reason to be proud of its school district. Meads Mill staff, parents and students were hosts to the Michigan Association of Middle School Educators (MAMSE) conference last week. By all accounts the entire event was an outstanding success.

From the time the first buses brought approximately 1,700 educators and parents from the Novi Hilton to Meads Mill, the planning and organizational skills of all involved, paid off.

For about one year staff members at Meads Mill have prepared for this prestigious conference. The Northville school was chosen as host in part because of its recent citation as an exemplary school. Remarks by visitors attending the conference made it clear that they agreed with the citation.

Special recognition should go to counselors David Adair and Sharon Pernia, who coordinated the event, and to Meads Mill Principal David Longridge, who started the ball rolling two years ago by polling Meads Mill staff members on their support and then going after the conference. The entire school staff deserves credit.

Many PTA members spent hours helping out both before the conference and for the two days it was held. The service and support of parents and PTA members is invaluable to a school, and helps make an already strong system even better.

Students were given two days off at Meads Mill last Thursday and Friday during the conference. Many skipped the vacation days and chose to volunteer as guides, helpers in the cafeteria, coat rooms and in many other areas. Thanks go to them for the service they provided.

Much is written today about the "climate" in schools, which refers in part to the morale of students, teachers, parents and administrators. When a conference of the magnitude of MAMSE is produced — and produced well — by the whole system, from administrators to students, then it reflects admirably on the climate at that school, and the district in general. Good work.

Limerick success

By Brenda Dooley

Thanks to all of those creative people who entered the first Northville Record/Novi News Limerick Contest. Our readers made the contest a success.

There were skeptics in this very newspaper office who doubted that the idea would work. You helped me prove them wrong.

I must admit that most of the entries — there were 146 in all — were much better than the limericks I wrote a few weeks ago. And there was only one — written by Northville resident Nan Lyons Piekarski — that my editors found a bit unsuitable to run (namely because of one phrase used at the end of the verse).

Piekarski said she was inspired by a previously-published story written by reporter Bob Needham entitled "Speed change denied near Amerman."

In a letter accompanying the limerick, Piekarski wrote that "as a mother of a first-grader who walks to and from Amerman, I am quite concerned about safety at the Eight Mile/Center Street intersection." She stated that she hoped to bring attention to "a very serious situation." Her limerick was about a young rooster named Jock who went on Eight Mile for a walk and got hit by a speeding car...

Special thanks to fifth-graders in Cheryl Holmberg's class at Amerman Elementary School for their limerick entries. Some students wrote about disturbing current events, such as the one penned by Tim Howie, who wrote:

"There once was a Red Wing named Probert.
He did not like to eat yogurt.
So he tried to snort coke.
But then he found out it was a joke..."

Second-graders in Arlene Frayne's class at Amerman Elementary School also made valiant attempts at writing limericks. I especially enjoyed the students' colorful crayon artwork that decorated their entries. It was fun to read them.

A favorite of mine was written by a second grade Northville student named T.C. Lopez:
"There once was an old flock of geese.
Who liked to walk in the street.
They held up cars and vans —
People held up their hands
People said, "these geese won't give us any peace."

Much to the relief of my co-workers, this is the last you'll hear about limericks from me. But I still have some time to get ready for St. Patrick's Day. In the past I haven't paid much attention to the day observed by the Irish in honor of the patron saint of Ireland.

Maybe gaining the last name "Dooley" has something to do with my renewed interest this year?

Remember "Bananas?" The Woody Allen film? Remember how Woody Allen gets projected into the future? And discovers that objects generally held in low regard currently are revered by future generations?

Like those paintings of the urchins with huge eyes that you can buy in the dime store. Despised today. Worth millions of dollars 100 years from now.

Or Twinkies and hot fudge sundaes. Scorned as junk food until scientific research reveals that they contain nutritional values which inhibit the aging process.

I'm not really certain why I'm thinking of old Woody Allen movies right now. But I think it has something to do with Alar on apples and fruit from Chile.

Mi esposa is into all that health food stuff... plenty of fruit and oat bran. I, on the other hand, prefer pizza, Pepsi and Twinkies. What I'm wondering is whether my diet just might be a whole lot healthier than hers. Maybe Woody Allen was right.

The other thing I'm thinking about is this piece about the Shakers I saw on television recently. All I knew about the Shakers is that they make this rather austere-looking furniture which is incredibly uncomfortable.

What I didn't know is that Shakers practice celibacy.

At any rate, the piece on television said there are few very Shakers left. They visited this one-time thriving Shaker community in Vermont and found the only Shakers left are a couple of old women in their 80s. The last Shaker male in the community died 50 years ago.

So what have we learned from this educational column today? The answers, as I see them, are to eat plenty of junk food and, if you want to establish a religion that will last more than one generation, do not espouse celibacy as a major tenet.

Resident irked by assessment hike

To the Editor:
Well it happened. The huge property assessment increases that were previously reported and rumored were found in our mail last Tuesday. The evening before we received our assessment, our township treasurer Dick Henningsen afforded me nearly two hours of his valuable time explaining the ins and outs of these assessments, how they're administered, why and the desired (or required) result. I have to admit I left his office feeling somewhat better about the matter and certainly much better informed. At that time, Mr. Henningsen indicated that he thought homeowners in our subdivision would most likely realize a much lower percentage increase than the township average.

Well, as we all know by now, the township's average assessment increase was projected to be 19.28 percent, but our assessor managed to hold the average to "only" 16.93 percent. To me 16.93 percent is a lot. But the 19.8 percent increase we sustained is ridiculous, and followed by last year's 20.4 percent increase it is ludicrous.

The average in Lakes of Northville subdivision is about 20 percent, 2½ times the eight percent we might have had. If the township's average is less than 17 percent, why is ours 20 percent? Who's then paying "only" 14 percent to offset our 20 percent? A look at our tax rolls shows some subdivisions in the township, on the average, pay less a percentage of their assessed values than others. Now this is not just. The percentages should be very close to identical, regardless of areas or value of the property. I think this may be the year the homeowners will finally have had enough. There must be a better, fairer and certainly less costly way — let's find it and in the meantime try to greatly lower our current assessments. See you all at the appeals board.

School pride

To the Editor:

The Northville community has yet another reason to be proud. Last week, March 9 and 10, the Northville Public Schools hosted the MAMSE Conference at Meads Mill Middle School. This was more than a gathering of educators for a conference. Evidence of pride for our children, community and school was in every classroom and hallway of Meads Mill. I personally was honored to be part of a presentation team for Northville Youth Assistance at this important event. From the parking lot to the cafeteria, we were met by students, teachers and volunteers from the community who had donated their time and efforts to hosting this prestigious meeting of educators from across the state.

The school district, the volunteers and especially the staff at Meads Mill are to be congratulated for their many hours of hard work.

Society thanks

To the Editor:

I wish to use this opportunity to express how very successful this year's Historical Society Progressive Dinner turned out to be.

The members of my committee need to be commended for their time, hard work and contribution to a fun evening. Hearts and flowers to the menu creators: Lynda Heaton and Bard Sixt; reservations: Laurie Marrs; Cocktail parties: the Brugemans, the Bellamys, the Cassadys and the Kosters; typing: Pat Allen and Carole Radzialowski; name tags: Sharon DeAlexandris; wine selection: Dennis Cassidy.

A special thank you to this year's 17 dinner host couples and the four dessert host couples. They all so generously opened their homes with such gracious hospitality.

Merchants and friends in our Northville community proved invaluable with their cooperation and special considerations for this event. I extend thank yous on behalf of the Northville Historical Society to Jim Roth of Good Time Party, to Shopping Center Market and their butcher and meat & deli counter people, to Dewey Gardner and Arlene of Four Seasons Flowers, to Sabayon Bakery, to Guernsey Dairy, to Speedy Printing and to the excellent coverage by the Northville Record.

Though all the bills have not been received at this point, it looks like an approximate profit of $1,500 will be realized from the Progressive Dinner which will go towards the restoration of the Cady Inn at Mill Race Village.

To all the guests who so enthusiastically participated and cooked, special thanks.

Peer resistance skills program helps kids

This is another in the continuing series of columns written for the Record by Charles Stille, Northville High School Student Assistance Program Coordinator.

Imagine you're a fifth grader, close your eyes and remember for a moment what it was like — to wear the right clothes, be in the right group, be accepted by friends and teachers, drink alcohol, skip school, do something wrong, share your work, pressure from parents, pressure from gossip, pressure from wrong perceptions, parties, and want of acceptance that made up part of your life.

Pressure can be positive or negative.

"The student takes his self concept with her/him wherever he/she goes. Are we as adults and as kids influencing that self concept in a positive or negative way? We need to ask ourselves these types of questions. How can a person feel liked unless somebody likes him/her?

"How can a person feel accepted unless somebody accepts him/her? How can a person feel she's/he's a person with dignity and integrity unless somebody treats him/her so. And how can a person feel that he is capable unless he/she has some success?" From Art Coombs, "The Human Side of Learning."

We in the Northville community have indeed been fortunate this past week due to the birth of a new "Peer Resistance Skills Program" which occurred in a timely manner during the March 6-12 National PTA Drug Awareness Week.

The Peer Resistance Skills Program is a lesson and play in peer pressure and techniques for saying "no", that is taught by high school students to younger fifth and sixth grade peers. It was initiated in the 1984-85 school year by a group of five high school students from a Lansing SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) chapter.

The program now is being used by 120 teams of five to eight high school students who have been through an eight hour training. Students involved are high school students who are committed to the goals of SADD and are interested in helping younger students learn techniques for resisting negative peer pressure to do things like alcohol, cigarettes, etc., which lessen self esteem.

There is no group more motivated, dedicated and ready to deliver the message of saying "No" to fifth and sixth graders, than their high school role models.

The goals of the program as viewed by high school students are:

1. To reduce the likelihood of our younger peers using alcohol and driving a car.
2. To educate our younger peers about the four types of peer pressure: friendly, heavy, indirect, and I Dare You — that they will have already encountered.
3. To teach our younger peers skills and techniques to be able to say "no", such as "No thanks, broken record, walk away, strength in numbers and avoid the situation.

4. To have high school students present themselves as positive role models to younger peers, and as high schoolers who care about them and their futures.

5. To have fun.

Believe me I've seen the Peer Resistance Sketch work in several elementary classes this past week. The sharing and caring that takes place between these two groups is evident and all involved come away with the feeling that they have basic rights such as:

1. Saying "no" without feeling guilty.
2. To be treated with respect.
3. To have and express my feelings in ways that don't violate the dignity of others.
4. To make requests.
5. To be listened to and be taken seriously.
6. To set one's own priorities.
7. To be less than perfect.
8. To say "I don't understand."

At present we have 13 dedicated students who have put in a lot of time and energy to put the message across to their younger peers. The response has been overwhelming and positive and will hopefully grow into other programs all for the good of our community and our schools.

If you need further information regarding the Peer Resistance Skills Program call the Student Assistance Program at Northville High School at 344-1825.

Focusing on guns

Salem gunsmith earns world-wide recognition

By MADELEINE GRAHAM

Gun enthusiasts throughout the world recognize the professionalism of B. McDaniel Co., Inc.

The gunsmith shop in Salem Township is owned and operated by Byford McDaniel, better known as "Mac."

McDaniel has honed his craft of building and repairing guns over the past 47 years. Approximately 70 percent of his business comes from out-of-state customers.

Before moving to his present location at 8880 Pontiac Trail about 11 years ago, McDaniel owned a shop in Grosse Pointe Park for nearly 35 years.

A toolmaker by trade, McDaniel has discovered the value of his skills in designing special tools to make parts for guns that have become scarce or are obsolete.

An 1899 Mannlicher Chaenauer (German rifle) is just one of the many rifles McDaniel has been asked to restore.

Bluing is an oxide treatment placed on the barrel to prevent rust. Further refinements serve to enhance the original sheen.

A sense of humor is an added specialty. "We're a little bit different from the others (gunsmiths). We do things right," quipped McDaniel.

Accurate measurements are imperative in fitting and designing rifles. McDaniel spends many hours using specialized equipment to handle the job. Lathes, mills and saws are some of the McDaniel tools used.

A diamond is used to dress a grinding wheel on a surface grinder to allow high precision when a part is made, explained McDaniel.

Wood for making the stock of a rifle is imported from all over the world.

Black walnut that is at least 25 years old is extremely expensive and is carefully carved to give the correct fit, he explained.

After much sanding and refinishing, the stock has a beautiful luster. French walnut and many other wood varieties are also available.

Rifles vary in size, weight, firing capacity and uses. There are specific firearms for specific purposes, stated McDaniel.

Many hunters have called upon McDaniel's expert advice when selecting proper hunting equipment. A man in Africa once asked McDaniel to design a rifle made of a solid bronze rod to eradicate elephants.

Women comprise 5 to 10 percent of the gun shop's clientele. Because women generally learn from scratch how to shoot guns, they have the potential to be more accurate shooters, the veteran gunsmith said.

"A lot of men have misunderstandings about shooting practices that you can't shake, but most ladies come in knowing nothing and you can teach them without having to contend with bad habits."

"They often end up being better shooters than their husbands when it's over with," he said.

Women are fit differently for rifles because of nerves which run along the breast line, he explained. "You have to be very precise about how you fit a lady for a rifle. It can really make a difference on the firing accuracy."

Sales at B. McDaniel aren't limited to rifles. Many handguns and accessory items are also available. Roger, Smith and Wesson are just a few of the many manufacturers of handguns that McDaniel carries.

Customers seeking a 44-caliber Magnum, which actor Clint Eastwood made famous in the movies, will also find their heart's delight.

Although using calling cassette tapes to hunt animals is illegal in most instances, many wildlife observers and hunters enjoy playing the tapes to attract animals for their viewing, stated McDaniel.

It is legal, however, to use calling tapes to hunt coyote, fox and crow because the animals are considered vermin, the gunsmith said.

Electronic callers are also popular. McDaniel hopes to have video tapes available on hunting in the near future.

Books discussing handguns, rifles and hunting methods are sold frequently. McDaniel said hunters are pleased to discover that he offers the books since most distributors don't carry books.

Many hunters opt to reload their cartridges, explained McDaniel. For those who exercise that option, various specialized equipment is available at the shop for accurately measuring powder used in the reloading process, he said. Electronic scales are sold as well.

Ear muffs, binoculars, holsters, slings and shell belts are some of the many accessory items available.

Customers feel comfortable about making purchases because of the time given to explaining the various firearms, explained McDaniel.

"A lot of ladies come shopping for their husbands. They're not taken advantage of, and they get the right thing," he said.

Muzzle-loaders have become popular with children and women. The growth rate annually is between 10 and 15 percent because of a relatively low cost of $3 for a full day of shooting, said McDaniel.

Various forms of targets are offered for practice shooting. "Many individuals enjoy shooting for competition," he said.

B. McDaniel's is licensed by the federal government. "Ironically an 18-year-old can buy a gun from a private citizen, but you must be 21 to purchase from a professional gun dealer," explained McDaniel.

The shop must file a Firearms Transaction Record issued by the Department of Treasury before any firearm is sold. If a handgun is purchased, state laws require an additional form be filed for a handgun license.

The number of repairs ranges between 3,000 and 4,000 annually while the number of firearms sold at McDaniel's varies between 1,000 and 1,500 annually.

Much effort has been placed into making sure that adequate safety and security measures have been met.

quick explosive force. Therefore, it is treated with great respect. The black powder is locked tightly in a vault, stated McDaniel.

Smokeless gun powder is more commonly used for firearms these days. "One gallon of gasoline has more power than 100 pounds of smokeless powder," explained McDaniel.

At night rifles and various other firearms which have been brought in for repair are locked safely in a vault. Guns and rifles which are located in the showroom are secured with heavy steel cables.

"We can't make the building 100 percent secure, but we can delay them and take the profit out of it," McDaniel stated emphatically.

The building itself is secured with double walls and a central alarm system linked to a computer, which immediately notifies police of any unauthorized entry. Riot shield windows have also been carefully installed.

"Security is our number one headache today. When I first started I just locked the doors and that was it," declared McDaniel.

McDaniel's business is family operated. His wife, Lois, handles much of the counter work, while his son, Don, is the buyer and also works the counter.

McDaniel's son, Joe, follows in dad's footsteps as a designer and gun repair specialist.

Seven years minimum are required to become a competent gunsmith, while 10 to 12 years are necessary to learn the skill of building guns, said McDaniel.

Trophies of a tsessebe, impala, warthog and wildebeest are some of the many success stories from Africa displayed on the walls of the showroom.

A safari is the best way to ensure success because a guide leads the way through dangerous territory, explained McDaniel. Many tribal areas require a fee and proper papers.

"They don't have a sense of humor about that," said McDaniel.

Anyone interested in learning about proper firing techniques is advised by McDaniel to become a member of a gun club where one or two individuals are willing to teach, he added.

B. McDaniel Co., Inc. is open Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; and Fridays from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. For more information call McDaniel at 437-8989.

Teens should start looking for summer job possibilities

The last thing some people may be thinking of right now is summer employment, but now is exactly the right time to begin the search for a summer job.

"We generally tell people who are looking for a summer job to start the day after New Year's," said Hugh Day, a Job Service counselor with the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

He advises job seekers to fill out applications with 50 employers or more, and to follow up on all of them. "You should overdo it," he said.

Joyce Jones, a training instructor with Kentucky Fried Chicken National Management, Inc., reminds young people that employers will probably ask for at least two pieces of identification, including one picture ID and a Social Security card. She advises job hunters to apply for IDs well ahead of time, as it takes six weeks to obtain a state of Michigan ID and four weeks to obtain a Social Security card.

Jones and Day agree that job hunters should go to prospective places of employment in person and ask to fill out an application, rather than merely telephoning to inquire about jobs.

"Many times the application is the only thing we have to go on," Jones explained. She said that a manager preparing for an interview will judge a job-seeker based on how neatly and completely the application has been filled out.

During an interview, the employer looks for people with initiative, said Jones. "It's important to have a good attitude."

Perry Freelon, an employment specialist with Meijer, Inc., said the way applicants present themselves at interviews is an indication of what their personality will be on the job.

"We can teach you about the products, we can teach you how to write up a sales slip, but we can't teach you how to smile," he noted.

Union employees have recourse

Unionized employees have recourse if they become displeased with their union representation, according to Steven Fishman.

Fishman is senior principal of the Fishman Group, a law firm representing management across Michigan in labor law, employment litigation and employee relations matters.

"The problem is that employees aren't usually aware of the options they have available," Fishman recently told business leaders at the State Chamber of Commerce's First Labor Law Conference.

"Employees have four basic rights when they want a change in their union relationship," said Fishman.

They are:

- ☐ the right not to join a union;
- ☐ the right not to be bothered by a union,
- ☐ the right to work against a union; and
- ☐ the right to throw out a union.

Union membership has been on the decline over the past decade while the work force has been growing steadily, according to the Union Sourcebook (1988 supplement). In 1970, 25.7 percent of the 82 million people in the work force were unionized.

In 1987, with nearly 40 million additional people in the work force, 14.8 percent were represented by unions.

"Unions are like clubs," Fishman said. "Once employees know the club rules, they may not want to belong."

When this situation arises, Fishman said employers can inform employees of their rights, but cannot tell them what to do.

Employees have what Fishman calls "R&D rights" when faced with a union that is no longer wanted. They have the right to resign from the union, revoke union authority, de-authorize dues payments and decertify the union.

Realtors anticipate another good year

The new year will be a good one for the real estate business — and consumers, according to Richard J. Loughlin, president and chief executive officer of Century 21 Real Estate Corporation.

"I don't think you're going to see a great deal of difference in the market between 1988 and 1989," said Loughlin during a nationally televised interview.

Century 21 experts forecast a stable year in the areas of home availability and financing opportunities.

"Home prices will continue to appreciate," said Loughlin. "They generally rise about 2 percent faster than inflation, so we can expect to see a 5 to 8 percent appreciation factor in 1989."

"There are going to be many homes available in 1989, just as there were in 1988," added Loughlin. "Home availability will not be a problem for qualified purchasers."

"Home prices will continue to appreciate, but there are many aggressive programs for lending to qualified purchasers," he said. "It is important to know your own buying power. Know your ability to pay and don't buy over your maximum," he advised.

"Prepare for what may lie ahead this year in real estate by beginning to work now," Loughlin said, "and be willing to own the ownership market via purchase of a good starter home."

"A responsive sales agent is sensitive to the needs of both the buyer and the seller," added Loughlin. "You should feel 100 percent comfortable discussing your career and earning capacity, as well as your family's wants and needs, with your agent," he said.

Century 21 Real Estate Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, is headquartered in Irvine, Calif., and is the largest real estate organization in the world, with more than 7,000 independently owned and operated offices. Approximately 11 percent of all residential real estate transactions completed in this country in 1987 were handled by a Century 21 office. Collectively, an estimated $55 billion worth of real estate was sold that year through the Century 21 system.

LIMERICKS

By the Ford Plant, a doctor named Jack
Had found his way right to the back.
He said, "Don't you see "Someone's calling for me."
The ducks then repeated, "Quack, quack."
— Mr. John C. Colling, Northville

There once was a dachshund named Sunny
Whose actions were ever so funny.
She snapped at a fly,
And said with a sigh,
"That sure would taste better with honey."
— Andrea Parent, Novi

You thought that signing a petition
Would do more good than just wishin'
But in Novi you find Councils make up our mind
So all we can do is keep bitchin'
— Rawland Storm, Novi

There once was a boy named Tom
Who had a temper of a nuclear bomb.
A boy made him mad,
Tom got very bad
Then the little boy ran to his mom.
— Ryan Staples, Novi

There once was a leprechaun named Shane.
He usually carried a cane.
His favorite color is green
And boy is he mean
In fact he is a great pain.
— Brian Klem, Novi

We asked you to write limericks and you answered our request. The results of our first Limerick Contest far exceeded our expectations — a total of 146 Northville and Novi residents submitted entry forms.

When faced with the task of selecting a winner our panel of judges decided to choose more than one winner — an adult and child from each community.

Here's a briefing on each of the winners. Amanda Benish, 8, of Northville is a third grade student at Amerman Elementary School. She has two younger sisters.

Her mother said she loves writing poems and stories. Amanda's interest in writing prompted her to enter her creative limerick.

Our adult winner, Marie G. Rumbley, has lived in Northville with her husband and two children for about four years. She is vice-president of the Northville Newcomers and teaches jazz and tap dancing.

Writing limericks and humorous articles for her friends is a hobby for Rumbley, who also enjoys playing volleyball and softball. She said she throws a big party every year in honor of St. Patrick's Day and invites 140-150 people. Now that's showing your Irish spirit!

There was a young lady from Spain
Who no one could ever call plain.
He loved her on sight
And keep him she might,
She had always wanted a Great Dane.
— Ruth Wolff, Novi

It comes once a year, along with its lore,
The day that all the Irish wait for.
St. Patrick's Day is its name,
Makes other holidays seem tame
As it is celebrated from shore to shore.
— Michael Sarkissian, Novi

There once was a four-leaf clover
That sadly was deformed all over.
There was just no way
He would make St. Patrick's Day.
He'll just have to wait till it's over.
— Heather Marks, Novi

St. Patrick's Day is near,
I'd better get out of here.
I'll get pelted with green,
Which I think is so mean
And from me they'll draw a tear.
— Chris Duprey, Novi

You've heard of the planning commission?
They're added (by their own admission)
They donate their time.
They don't get a dime
And they're flogged when they take a position.
— Eva Dawn Aruffo, Northville (mailing)

There was a young boy named Larry, who fantasized about Mary.
His other obsession, was weekend confession -
His knees were as red as a cherry.

Adult winner: Marie G. Rumbley, Mayo Drive, Northville

There was a leprechaun who was selfish,
He said, "One day I wish I was eifish,"
He took a trip,
On a ship,
And all he ate was shellfish.

Child winner: Amanda Benish - 8, Wood bend, Northville

Wearing green is for Kermit the Frog
It wouldn't look good on a hog
Now you may not think
That I should wear pink
So today I'm "Miss Piggy Go Braugh!"
— Suzanne Everett, Novi

He came from Erin with a dream in his eye,
And worked hard for his piece of the pie.
After he made his money
He said to his honey
"Tis a shamrock, this place called Novi.
— Larry Aho, Northville

Our readers proved they have a lot of Irish spirit. Thanks to everyone who entered our first limerick contest.

It wasn't easy to select the winners. Whether inspired by local issues or fictional characters, there were several limericks that were favorites among our panel of judges. Following is a sampling of those favorites:

I was lucky down at the track,
Put my money in a big old sack.
Oh, what a day!
The sack blew away
Guess I'll go sit on a tack!
— Tyler McCarthy, Northville

There was an Irish lad named Flynn,
Who's hair was beginning to thin.
Magic potions he sought,
But he finally bought
A cigar box to keep his hair in.
— Irv Kalb, Novi

A destitute "Lady of Chance"
Passed many an eye with no glance
She bet on a horse
It tripled, of course,
And now she's "Queen of the Dance!"
— S.L.U., Northville

There once was an obnoxious punk,
Who tried his best to flunk,
He never did his best,
On every single test
In the end he became a monk.
— Karen Roach, Northville

In Our Town

Historical Society shares two recipes

By BRENDA DOOLEY

A host of festive Northville residents gathered at Mill Race Village Saturday evening to enjoy cocktails before splitting into groups and heading off to the 17 different homes that took part in this year's Progressive Dinner, sponsored by the Northville Historical Society.

JoAnn Dalziel, chairperson of the dinner, said response to the event was excellent.

Hors d'oeuvres including mouth-watering tidbits such as mushroom croustades and skewered tortellini were served prior to the dinner. Following are recipes for the two party treats.

MUSHROOM CROUSTADES

FILLING:

- 1 bunch green onions, minced
- 6 tablespoons melted butter
- 1 pound fresh mushrooms, minced
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 4 teaspoons dried parsley
- 4 tablespoons chives, soaked in 4 tablespoons water
- 4 tablespoons lemon juice

Saute green onions in butter. Add minced mushrooms and cook for 10 to 15 minutes, until moisture is gone. Remove from heat and add flour, stirring until well blended. Add heavy cream, bring to a boil and simmer for two minutes.

Remove from heat, add salt, cayenne pepper, parsley, chives and lemon juice. Mix well and cool. Prepare croustades. To fill the baked croustade cups, use a long-handled baby spoon or other small spoon. (Cups can be frozen at this stage). On cookie sheets, bake filled cups at 350 degrees for 10 minutes (12-15 if frozen). Serve within a short period of time after baking.

CROUSTADES:

- 1 1/2 pounds Brownberry White Bread (24 slices), or similar bread
- 1/2 cup butter, melted

Trim crusts from bread slices. With rolling pin, flatten each bread slice and cut into four squares. Using miniature muffin tins, place 1 teaspoon melted butter into each muffin cup. Gently push each bread square into muffin cups. Bake at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes until browned.

SKEWERED TORTELLINI

- 4-5 quarts boiling water
- 1 tablespoon oil

Edie Pegrum, left, and Bruce Pegrum enjoy cocktails and hors d'oeuvres at Mill Race Village prior to the Historical Society's Progressive Dinner

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 7-ounce box Ferrara Tri-Color Tortellini
- 1 large red pepper, washed, cored, seeded, cut into one-inch squares
- 1 box fancy, five-inch wooden picks (with cellophane at one end)
- Dipping sauce (recipe below)

Mother's Club fashion show held

The Livonia Jacobson's store served as the setting for the recent Spring Fashion Show, sponsored by the Northville Mother's Club.

Sue Todd, chairperson of the annual event, said 265 tickets were sold for the benefit fashion show, which was held Tuesday, March 7. Proceeds from the show aid Club projects for the Northville Public Schools.

Fashions included bright neon swimsuits by Cherokee and Anne Cole. Navy and white emerged as strong colors for this year's sportswear selections. Other favorites were soft linens and silks in shades of pink, cream, white, taupe and terra cotta.

Evening fashions featured in the show included an ivory chiffon strapless dress with a bodice of lurex lace overlaid with a trapeze jacket and a flounced dress of black sequins, ribbons and lace.

Following the fashion show, ladies were served a dessert of lemon mousse and coffee and tea.

Those attending the show also were given small take-home gifts of fragrances, courtesy of Jacobson's.

New Doctors Discovery Weight Loss Pill Approved for U.S. Gov't. Patent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight Already Sweeping U.S.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called 'fat-magnet' has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally"
Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat
According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a 'lazy way' to lose weight because the pills alone 'automatically' reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public
If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Interior Designer Kay Isola displays a fabric swatch to members of the Northville Woman's Club

Decorating tips

Interior designer offers helpful hints

By BRENDA DOOLEY

Pea green is out. Creamy buttercup yellow is in.

Hues of harvest gold also no longer appeal to today's interior designers. But neutrals with pink undertones and shades of green tinged with bluish casts are making a big impact in paints, fabrics and decorations for the home.

Members of the Northville Woman's Club heard those helpful hints and several others at their recent meeting, when interior designer Kay Isola was guest speaker.

A professional interior designer for 30 years, Isola travels the country lecturing about the newest decorating trends.

Isola encouraged ladies in attendance to get into their cars more often and to drive to outlying areas to shop for home fashions. She explained that decorating a home takes more effort than simply shopping at the neighborhood furniture store.

High on Isola's list of places to visit were Gorman's, a recently remodeled furniture store in Troy, Creative Expressions, a new store in Birmingham and the Treasure Mart in Ann Arbor.

She also recommended shopping at estate sales and garage sales for items to decorate the home. And reading "Metropolitan Home" to keep up on the newest trends in home decorating.

"We've passed the era of decorating the living room in Italian furniture — the 'good girl era.' Now our living rooms look like places to live," Isola commented.

Rich, old-fashioned styled tapestries also are making a comeback on the home decorating scene. Another trend is the "zig-zag" print on fabric, a colorfully-weaved design influenced by the Southwest or Santa Fe look, Isola said.

"Yellows are terrific in Michigan," she noted. "They can warm dreary days."

"We are lightening up our rooms and striving for less cluttered walls," she added, referring to current trends in interior design.

Isola suggested adding a contemporary touch to traditional homes, such as combining "the old with the new."

"We're framing a lot of antique plates and platters in acrylic boxes," she said. "Or framing antique photos in plexiglass — something old in something new. Brass frames would provide a clean look for traditional homes."

For bathrooms and kitchens the dominant color currently is white, Isola commented.

Today's interior designers are using patterned carpeting and dimensional or textured wallpapers to achieve an updated look in homes, she continued.

"The world is painting paneling and brick in lighter colors ... the days of dried flowers are gone — empty vases, pots and bowls are used to decorate the home now," Isola said.

A salt and peppery granite look is "in" for formica, linoleum and wallpaper. And some designers and homeowners are wallpapering in fabric, providing excellent sound absorption.

Current window decorating techniques include laying lace curtains flat at the windows for a French look. Or hanging old-fashioned white bridge tablecloths in triangles from a brass curtain rod, according to Isola.

She distributed several fabric swatches and paint chips to give her audience a chance to see what she was talking about. Following Isola's presentation, several members asked for hints on how to update the look in their homes.

She explained that home decorating doesn't always have to be expensive. However, if interested in hiring an interior design consultant Isola told the Woman's Club members to be prepared to pay $50 to $100.

"The look of the '90s goes forward and back ... no matter what you have, it's time to do some updating," Isola said.

Technology boosts television industry

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Chances are, you've probably heard or read about HDTV.

It stands for 'High Definition Television,' but area experts say that it will be several years yet before HDTV becomes a reality. In addition, there is some question if the new technology will ever catch on with the general public.

"I'm reading about HDTV just like everybody else," said Manager Bill Herrick of Novi's Fretter Appliance.

Within the next five to 10 years, television is expected to make the jump from its current standard to the superior High Definition system, which will sport a much clearer, brighter picture and stereo sound. HDTV will have much sharper reproduction because the system has a picture capability that's six-times greater than what you watch now. A normal T.V. has 525 horizontal scan lines, but the new HDTV will have between 1,050 to 1,125 lines. So the basic idea is to send more electronic detail with the signal.

"The first thing they will have to do is upgrade the entire network and broadcasting systems to make it compatible because it has higher-resolution than standard television," said John Kukulka of Highland Appliance in Novi. "When that happens, everybody will either have to buy an HD television or maybe have their old set converted."

One key question is whether the new system — which is guaranteed to fetch a hefty price — will hit it big with the public. Herrick has reservations.

"If you're talking about getting an improved picture, you can look at something like 'Super VHS' for example," he said. "It's been a relatively recent thing but it really isn't catching on — that may happen with HDTV. The very rich may be able to afford something like it but until the general public can afford it and find it desirable enough to go and get it, it won't catch on."

Kim Steven, a salesperson at Fretter's, stands beside a large screen projection TV. Experts predict HDTV will replace conventional TVs within the next decade.

Kukulka estimated the cost for an HD television set at well over $1,000. And the price tag within the television industry to upgrade their system so it's compatible with the new technology will probably reach the billions. But the general consensus is that it will happen sometime in the 1990s because it is expected to be a multi-billion dollar market waiting to be tapped.

"You're talking about a lot of money industry-wide to get all the standard television system redone over," Herrick said. "But it could be well worth it."

The HD TV system is now under development in Japan and Europe, and may be in place there before it ever makes its way to America, which seems to lag behind in this type of technology nowadays.

"We haven't received any official information about HDTV from the company but there's a lot of talk about it," Kukulka said. "I've heard that it's at least five years away, but others have said it's closer than that. The big question is whether the public will want to upgrade their systems right away and pay the price for it."

Newton places at state meet

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

For sophomore Eric Newton, the MHSAA Boys Class A Swimming Championships last weekend were a chance to establish himself as a legitimate force in the seasons to come.

For Northville — as a team — the state meet was the perfect reward for a fine campaign and the ideal momentum-builder for next season. The Mustangs only managed two top 12 finishes and placed 36th out of 42 teams in attendance at the meet on March 10-11 at Michigan State's Charles McCaffree Pool, but it was the performances that had coach Mark Heiden on cloud nine.

"The season couldn't have ended much better," he said. "We really finished strong and I was very pleased with the way it went."

Prior to the meet, Heiden said he thought Newton had a chance to place in the top 12 in two events. Newton promptly went out and did it in the 500-yard freestyle but just missed in the 200 IM. Impressively, Newton notched personal bests in both events and set two more school records in the process.

"It was Eric's second time at the state meet and he seemed comfortable and ready," Heiden said. "He swam very well."

In the 500, Newton entered the meet with a qualifying time of 4:53.21 — which was only the 13th best. But in the preliminary round, he shattered his own school record with a 4:51.38 effort and was seeded 11th for the finals on Saturday. In the finals, Newton broke the school record again and moved up another spot and into 10th with a time of 4:49.31.

In the 200 IM, Newton just missed the finals when he qualified 14th in the prelims with a record 2:01.68. He was one of two alternates in the event but never got a chance to swim in the consolation heat.

The only other Northville entrant to make it to the finals was the 400 freestyle relay team of Newton, John Warren, Bob Holdridge and Brad Cook. The team improved on its qualifying time by nearly two seconds and set a school record in the preliminary heat with a 3:20.86. It was just enough to slip into the 12th and last spot in the finals. On Saturday, the team's time dropped to 3:22.66 and they settled for 12th overall.

"That relay team was swimming on determination alone," Heiden said. "They were shaved and tapered for the WLAA Meet, so to improve on their time by two seconds a week and a half later is an amazing thing."

The biggest disappointment of the meet actually started two days earlier. After placing first in the MHSAA Diving Regional on March 7 at Brighton, senior Rob Devyak tore ligaments in his left foot after he slipped off the diving board in practice. At the state meet, Devyak was obviously at less than 100 percent, but he still went through with it.

"Rob couldn't even walk the day before the meet, so it was a gutsy performance," Heiden said. "It's obviously very difficult to dive with two torn ligaments in your foot." He ended up placing 21st overall with a first round score of 161.9 — which was over 40 points behind the eventual winner — and failed to advance to the finals. The whole thing was very disappointing because many observers believed Devyak had an opportunity to contend for the state title.

"(Rob) would have been a contender for sure," Heiden said. Fellow divers Larry Oslecki and Steve Lang — who placed second and third in the WLAA behind Devyak — just missed making it to the state meet. They finished 13th and 14th respectively in regional action, but only the top 12 were allowed to advance.

Gymnasts 'fall apart' in regional tourney action

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

If the Northville gymnasts could have duplicated their best performance of the season, the MHSAA Team Regional title would be theirs.

Instead, the Mustangs struggled just to reach their lowest point total since early January and had to settle for fourth place honors on March 11 at Plymouth Canton. With the top three teams from each regional advancing to the state meet, Northville was left out in the cold.

"We fell apart," Mustang Coach Michelle Charniga said. "I was so disappointed and so were the girls. It was there for the taking and we didn't respond."

However, two Northville individuals — senior Wendy Beach and freshman Mia DeHart — did qualify for the state meet as individuals by placing in the top eight in the uneven parallel bars.

As a team, the Mustangs scored 128.7 to finish fourth, behind Jackson County Western (133.25), Westland John Glenn (133.1) and Plymouth Canton (132.65). It's the highest finish ever for Northville in regional action, but that fact didn't make up for the poor team performance.

"From the way we performed, we didn't deserve to make it (to the state meet)," Charniga said. "But with the talent we have and the scores we've been getting the last few months, we should have been right there."

Mustangs, 'Cats would benefit from format

By Neil Goeghegan

A proposal to increase the number of high school football classifications from four to six has been introduced, and the move seems to be gaining support statewide.

The idea appears to be very popular in Novi and Northville, and rightfully so. The move, designed to correct the 'David versus Goliath' match-ups often seen in the Michigan High School Athletic Association football playoffs, would benefit the smaller Class A schools more than anybody — and the Mustangs and Wildcats fit right into that category.

Adding AAA and AA designations to the current A, B, C and D classifications would break down the discrepancies in enrollment between competitors. Under the new system, the Novi- Traverse City semifinal clash last November wouldn't have happened. With nearly 3,000 students, Traverse City would be designated AAA while Novi — with an enrollment of only 1,110 — would be in the AA class.

It could also make life easier for the Northville gridders, who have to butt helmets almost every Friday with teams that have a clear enrollment advantage. Ever wonder why football teams from Westland and John Glenn (2,646 students) and Livonia Stevenson (2,168) are pretty successful season after season?

The proposal was initiated by a group of athletic directors from Macomb County. Not surprisingly, that county sports quite a few Class A schools that are on the small side, and they were obviously fed up with their football teams heading into games with a clear disadvantage even before the kickoff.

As a member of the Kensington Valley Conference, Novi has been very competitive in most sports, and truly outstanding in others like football and swimming. But the Wildcats can't match Brighton or Howell for consistent success in all sports. The two Livingston County schools seem to have a lock on the KVC All-Sports Award, but that's only par for the course. Brighton — with 1,580 students — and Howell — with 1,621 — are by far the largest in the conference. The two schools have more quality athletes to choose from.

In the Western Lakes Activities Association, the football situation is very similar, with one glaring exception: Farmington Harrison. On the gridiron, the Hawks are one of the top public school programs in the state, and yet Harrison has an enrollment of only 911. The school has historically been on the border between Class A and B for years.

Opponents to the new proposal would probably use this example as a reason why the six class idea isn't needed. But with Farmington Harrison, you have extenuating circumstances. For instance, at Harrison they put extra emphasis on their football program at the expense of others. The school's girls basketball program is routinely among the worst in the state. At Harrison, the football budget is more than double the amount at nearby Farmington High. That's one reason why the Hawks were the 1988 state Class B champs while the Falcons suffered through another winless campaign.

It's pretty obvious that Harrison puts most of their eggs into one basket — football.

It seems to me the advantages with the new six class proposal clearly outweigh the disadvantages. And for small Class A schools like Novi and Northville, it could make for a system that is fair, and more conducive to winning.

Local athletic directors favor new 6-class football proposal

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Editors Note: This is part one of a two part series dealing with a proposal submitted to the Michigan High School Athletic Association to increase the prep football enrollment classifications from four to six.

A proposal that would increase the number of high school football classifications from four to six is currently under consideration in Michigan, and such a move could have a big impact on the gridiron programs at Novi and Northville High Schools.

The plan was submitted to the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) by the Macomb County Athletic Directors Association and will, in effect, add AAA and AA enrollment designations to the current four-class system (A, B, C, and D). The proposal is designed to alleviate large enrollment spans that currently exist and would allow 32 additional participants in the post-season playoffs.

"I see a lot of advantages in the plan," said Novi Athletic Director John Fundukian. "The enrollment span between the largest and smallest Class A schools has now reached 2,276 students and, in my opinion, that's too much."

Among smaller Class A schools like Novi (1,110 students) and Northville (1,195), the proposal is gaining support. If the plan was approved, both schools would fit into the middle of a new AA class, and wouldn't have to compete against the state's largest high schools — with enrollments over 1,366 — if they happened to qualify for the MHSAA football playoffs. Last fall, Novi advanced all the way to the Class A semifinals, only to lose to Traverse City — a school with a student body nearly three times its size.

"I like the fact that it would cut down on teams having to go against opponents with one or two thousand more students," Northville Athletic Director Dennis Colligan said. "I haven't studied it real closely, but it appears to be an attempt to get the enrollment breakdowns at a reasonable level."

Under the proposed system, the 623 schools in the state that offer varsity football, would be divided into six classes with about 104 schools in each. The current playoff points system would be modified, and points awarded equally for the following three groups: a win over a AAA or AA team would be worth 80 playoff points, over an A or B team would be worth 64 and over a C or D would be worth 48. The bonus point system, and the length of the season would remain unchanged.

Currently, only 64 teams in the four classes advance to the playoffs. Under the proposal, 32 additional teams would be involved in post-season action.

"I'm generally in favor of anything that will get more kids involved in the tournament and bring more parity to the competition," Colligan said. "If (the proposal) can accomplish those things, I'd be in favor of it."

"I'm not sure what problems would arise for our conference (the Western Lakes Activities Association), but I think a plan like this would benefit us more than a large school like (Westland) John Glenn."

The enrollment discrepancy in the largest class would be reduced from more than 2,000 in the current system to just over 400 under the proposed plan. There will be similar drops in all the other classes.

"I think it would be an improvement," Fundukian said. "You'd have a playoff field of 96 instead of 64, and the enrollment discrepancies would drop. But in my mind, it's not so much an issue of size, but rather the idea of getting more schools and communities involved."

Another potential advantage is that by combining playoff points for two classes, the proposal would ease pressure to selectively schedule within conferences. The proposal also points out that nearby states like Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin all sport more than four football classes.

"Combining the playoff points for two classes could solve quite a few scheduling problems we have now," Fundukian said. "For instance, playing (current Class B) Hartland every year in football won't hurt our playoff chances under the proposed system. And with the way things are now, there is the possibility of a team not getting into the playoffs despite a perfect record."

New football proposal gaining local support

The Michigan Football Playoff Committee voted unanimously in favor of the plan at its January meeting and has recommended the proposal to the MHSAA Representative Council, composed of school officials. The council could vote on the proposal in December and, if approved, it would take effect in 1990. The Michigan Football Coaches Committee also voted to back the plan and it has been submitted to the Football Coaches Association and the Michigan Interscholastic Administrators Association.

"I think (passage of the proposal) may be a long ways down the road because this is a major change," Coligan admitted. "It may scare a lot of traditionalists and I just feel it may take some more study. But at first glance, I feel the advantages would outweigh the disadvantages. It would be a benefit for Northville High School."

If the proposal passes and it works well for football, there is always the possibility that the six classes will be employed for all high school sports.

since Mia (DeHart) joined the team. I don't know what happened, I guess we were psyched-out mentally. We may have been a little scared."

The Mustangs opened the competition on the floor exercise, and even though the routines were fairly good, the judging didn't follow. It seemed to set the tone for the rest of the day.

"We were the very first team to perform in the floor exercise and I thought the scores were low," Charniga complained. "It might have affected our confidence."

Beach scored an 8.6 to place 11th overall out of 68 competitors in the floor exercise. DeHart was 16th with an 8.45 and was followed by Lee LaChance (7.9) and Tracy Surdu (7.8). The event score of 32.75 was nowhere near the squad's best of the season.

In the vault, Beach was again the team leader with an 8.35 — which was good for 18th place overall. The rest of the Northville competitors included DeHart (8.25), LaChance (8.25), Yvonne Beebe (8.2) and Melanie Appligan (8.2).

"We had a team score of 33.05 in the vault, which isn't terrible, but we didn't get the outstanding scores that we normally get," Charniga explained.

The Mustangs rebounded in the uneven bars to score 32.9, and that included three falls and the subsequent deductions. It was the top team score in the event.

DeHart was fifth (8.6) and Beach sixth (8.5), which was enough to qualify both for a spot in the state meet. The rest of the Northville competitors were LaChance (7.95) and Beebe (7.85), who placed 16th and 20th respectively.

Familiar problems in the balance beam returned as Northville stumbled in the final event. Beebe wrapped up her prep career by notching a team-high 8.05 (15th overall). Beach was next with a 7.7 and three falls, while DeHart (7.15) and LaChance (7.1) also struggled.

"I can't say the effort wasn't there," Charniga said. "Maybe we tried too hard. I feel real bad for the seniors. It's a shame we had to end a great season on such a down note."

STATE MEET UPDATE: Beach and DeHart are Northville's only qualifiers for the MHSAA State Meet, scheduled for March 17-18 at Troy High School.

They will be competing as individuals in the uneven parallel bars — which was Northville's top event all season. A top-eight finish in the preliminaries on Friday would qualify both Beach and DeHart for a spot in the finals the next day — and that is the goal.

"If they can score in the nines, it would probably put them into the finals," Charniga said. "Both Wendy and Mia have scored above nine this season so it's not unrealistic."

Harrison pleased with stretch run

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The bottom line on the 1988-89 season is really the only thing that still bothers Northville basketball Coach Omar Harrison.

For the year, his Mustangs won 10 games in 21 tries. And even though it was a nice improvement from the disastrous season a year earlier, it wasn't the kind of record Harrison envisioned last fall.

"The only thing that surprised me was that we didn't win as many ball games as I thought we would," he said. "I'm sure the kids feel the same way."

After a decent start (3-3 record by the Christmas break), Northville stumbled through most of January, winning just twice in eight tries. In addition, one of the victory's came against a tiny Class D opponent. Heading into the last month of the campaign, the Mustangs were a sickly 5-9 overall, and with hardly a prayer of reaching the .500 mark by season's end.

The mid-season slide was the by-product of several problems. Senior center Chris House was slowed by an ankle injury and wasn't really 100-percent until February, and transfer student Rob Walsh's production started to drop off dramatically after a nice start. In fact, he was Northville's leading scorer after the first half-dozen games.

And then there was senior forward Heath Myers, who was one of the squad's top shooters but was often bashful when it came to putting it up.

"All those things sort of prevented us from jelling as a unit in the middle of the season," Harrison said.

Walsh never got untracked but House did midway through the season and became the inside force most observers expected him to be. At the same time, Harrison had a frank talk with Myers, and that helped turn the season around. "The main things that turned it around was when I told Heath Myers to start shooting more or I would bench him," Harrison recalled. "He went out and got 26 points the next game."

"During our slump, we seemed to have one quarter each game where we would fall apart on offense, and it always seemed to cost us the game. But once we got Heath to shoot more, we didn't have any more real bad quarters."

The Mustangs rebounded to win five of their last six regular season games to reach the .500 mark (10-1) — which was the team's goal following January's five-game losing streak. In the MHSAA District Semifinals, Northville fell 53-48 to WLA Champ Plymouth Salem, but not before giving the Rocks a battle.

"When we were 5-9, it looked like a big hill to climb to get back to .500, but the kids worked hard for it and eventually accomplished it," Harrison said. "That was certainly one of the highlights of the season."

Myers and House ended up tying for team scoring honors with 14.5 points per game, but both moved their averages up in the final month. In the final 10 games, Myers poured in 18 a game after barely averaging 10 a game prior to that. House wound up one of the area's top rebounders (7.4 per game) and shooters (.535 field goal percentage).

"Other than Heath and Chris, who were expected to score, we were a team of role players," Harrison said. "Guys like Joe Kaley, Greg Price and Scott Meredith were excellent role players. Our point guard situation was a thorn in our side but I thought Mike Karfis — who is more of a football player than a basketball player — did an excellent job for us."

A year ago, Northville was licking its wounds following a four-win season. So even though this year's 10-win campaign was below expectations, it was a nice improvement. And the great finish left the team feeling good about themselves.

Osborn recalls banner year for spikers

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Other than the 'Monday Night Curse,' there really isn't anything negative to report about Northville's volleyball season.

Under second-year coach Paul Osborn, the Mustangs had a banner campaign. The team's 23-14 record is the best by a Northville squad in years, and the third-place finish in the 12-team Western Lakes League is the best ever. Led by senior blockers Debbie Stevens and Nancy Belding, the Mustangs never lost back to back matches all season long and ended up second in the WLAA Western Division behind Livonia Churchill.

The only black mark was the squad's horrendous 2-5 dual meet mark on Monday evenings. For one reason or another, Northville had trouble winning after the weekend but bounced back every time to win later in the week. At Wednesday evening matches — for example — the Mustangs had a sparkling 5-1 record.

"We had our ups and downs," Osborn said. "Monday matches obviously killed us. Coming off the weekend just wasn't our bag this season. The nice thing was we rebounded every Wednesday."

"I think we did a little better overall than I thought we would before the season. And then to be second in the division and third in the conference was icing on the cake."

Mustang Volleyball Coach

Northville did a solid job in the early going but didn't play its best volleyball until the last month of the season. To Osborn's delight, his team started to peak in February and won four of the final five matches heading into the WLA Meet and the MHSAA tournament.

"I think we did a little better overall than I thought we would before the season," he said. "And then to be second in the division and third in the conference was icing on the cake."

"We'd like to peak at the WLA Tourney and I think we peaked at the right time. Our best playing came at the league meet, but winning three dual meets in a row just prior to that gave us the momentum and confidence."

Confidence is one thing Osborn had to spoon-feed his squad at times. On a number of occasions he would tell them that Livonia Churchill was the only team in the division that had the ability to beat them. After falling to teams like Walled Lake Western and Plymouth Canton early in the season, the Mustang players started to believe what Osborn was saying. They promptly dumped Western and Canton in rematches.

"I truly believe we were better than everybody, except maybe Churchill," Osborn admitted. "It was just a matter of getting the girls to believe it."

When junior hitter Jenny Urbahns started to make a much bigger contribution to the team midway through the season, it seemed to spur on Belding — and Stevens, to an even greater extent — at the net. Add to that the solid setting of Jenny Cipichio, and Northville had developed into a solid team.

"Towards the latter part of the season when Urbahns started coming on, it provided that extra incentive and really helped Debbie Stevens. Before that, she was really our only hitting weapon on the outside, and that was a heavy burden to live up to."

"Debbie had all the stats this season. Everything she did was in the 90 percentile, which means she had an excellent season. And others like Nancy Belding and Kris Czapski were two girls who would do whatever we asked them to do. They both gave 110 percent."

According to Osborn, the season was a great success — and even more satisfying considering the strong ending.

Experts tout benefits of oat bran

By AMY ROSA

So what is all this talk about oat bran, anyway?

Is it really the modern medical means to low cholesterol, as countless advertisers have been claiming?

To find out we asked the opinion of someone in the know — Sandy Gloss, a registered dietician, who is nutrition manager for Providence Hospital in Southfield and its satellite out-patient centers.

Gloss, who has developed a "heart smart" menu for patients needing to watch their cholesterol intake, said oat bran is definitely one of the foods she recommends.

The reason oat bran is such a valued grain, she explained, is because it contains the highest amount of soluble fiber of any grain. "There are different types of fiber, such as wheat bran, which isn't as high in soluble fiber."

Other foods containing this type of fiber include peas, kidney beans and legumes.

Research has shown that soluble fiber reduces total cholesterol in the blood, thus reducing the risk of heart disease. The fiber is particularly effective in reducing the LDL lipoprotein in the blood, which is termed the "bad cholesterol."

There is a "good cholesterol" called HDL, that appears to clear fat and excess cholesterol from the blood.

If left unchecked LDL cholesterol can collect on the inside walls of the arteries, and build up until they become clogged. Heart attacks and other cardiovascular problems can result.

Although oat bran is currently being thrust down the throats of advertising patrons, the concept of oat bran's health qualities has actually been known for about five years, said Gloss.

In 1984 a doctor, James W. Anderson, went public with research he was conducting on the effects of oat bran, from his base in the V.A. medical center in Lexington, Ky., Gloss said.

"He was tracing the effects of oat bran on blood sugar, as related to diabetics. That's when I first started hearing about it," she said.

But the hailing of oat bran by those in the health industry and advertisers didn't begin until recently, she added. "The real push has been in the last couple of years, since more studies have been conducted linking coronary artery disease to cholesterol."

"There is a lot of new research out there."

But while more and more products are coming out on the market boasting their oat bran ingredients, Gloss said consumers shouldn't be fooled by labels.

"Especially with cereals," she explained. "A lot of cereals, even if they do contain oat bran, still have saturated fats in them." Palm oil and coconut oil are the biggest culprits, she said, noting that granola eaters ought to be particularly careful.

The same advice goes for other products, such as bakery goods, she added. "There are a lot of oat bran muffins out there that are terrible for you," she said, citing again saturated fat as the reason. "Read the labels. The way people market foods, you have to be really careful."

Saturated fat, which studies suggest raises blood cholesterol, is found in shortening, butter, milk, cheese, meat, and lard, in addition to the coconut and palm oils.

On the other hand, oat bran can be found in some foods, even if it isn't listed on the label, said Gloss. Items such as oatmeal and Cheerios cereal contain oat bran because their main ingredient is oats. "Any oat-type cereal has some," although not in as great a quantity as straight oat bran products have, Gloss said.

For those who don't care for oat bran cereals, but still want to reap the benefits of the grain, Gloss suggests "throwing some in" recipes such as cookies or meatloaf. "It's a great way to sneak in some fiber," she said, explaining it can be used as a portion of flour, or in place of breadcrumbs.

Above all, stressed Gloss, people shouldn't be fooled into thinking that eating oat bran is the miracle cure for high cholesterol alone. "Some people think if you eat oat bran, that's all you need to do. 'You still have to watch your eating, and cut back on your total fat intake.'"

Hidden causes can contribute to distress levels

By SYLVIA DVORAK, M.S.

Negative attitudes, unrealistic expectations and belief systems are often not recognized as potential causes of strain and frustration. These hidden causes of stress can greatly contribute to our overall distress level. Further, role conflicts, ups and downs of interpersonal relationships, time pressures and organizational policies (after reading these you now may be stressed out) all interfere with our ability to cope with the rewards of everyday life. Reducing the disabling effects of these occurs when you gain a better understanding of how these impact your life.

OPTIONS

Discovering all your options and alternatives when making changes and decisions will enable you to gain control over life events.

- Know when to let go.
- Believe in yourself.
- Listen to your inner voice.
- Know that you are in control.

QUICKIE QUIETTERS

You may be thinking that all of the above "sound" good, but you just "do not have the time" to relax. Well you are wrong. Below are some quick and easy relaxation techniques. They take approximately one to 10 minutes to complete, so you can't give the excuse of not having enough time to just try them. Whether you sit or stand all day, these "quickie quieters" can work for you when you feel stressed. There are many techniques designed to help you relax, and no one method is better than the other. The important thing is finding out what works best for you.

1. Clock Watch: Stop all activity and observe the second hand on a clock or watch for one full minute. Don't try to speed up the hand, and don't do anything other than watch the hand.
2. Listen and Hear: Focus on some sound in your environment that you are not usually aware of. For example, an air conditioner, passing traffic, typewriters, etc. Concentrate only on the sound.
3. Count to 10: Remember when you were young and your mother told you to hold your breath and count to 10 whenever you were upset? Well, it still works.

4. Temporary Escape: When you feel you are getting nowhere with a problem, a temporary diversion, or leaving the situation can help.

5. Mirror Talk: Have a heart-to-heart talk with yourself while standing in front of a mirror.

6. Deep Breathing: Do this either sitting or standing. Place your hands on your stomach, inhale slowly and deeply through your nose, letting your stomach expand as much as possible. When you've inhaled as deeply as possible, hold your breath for a few seconds before slowly exhaling through your mouth. Do this at least five times.

7. "Tighten Up" Do this either sitting or standing. Close your eyes and "tighten up" your hands, feet or even your whole body. Hold for a few seconds then relax and repeat. Do this as many times as you need to.

8. Mental Imagery: If possible, find a quiet place and either sit or lie on your back, and close your eyes. Slowly relax all the parts of your body and then mentally focus on a single, peaceful work, thought or image. Breathe deeply and relax. Don't allow yourself to be distracted.

Once you have tried these relaxation techniques, use those that work ed best for you. But don't forget the importance of balance in your life. Design a stress management plan for yourself. And remember, personal and professional support teams, realistic time lines, identifying your goal and humor all contribute to positive change responses. For example:

- Physical Activity: Walk, play tennis, work in your garden.
- Eat Well: Limit your use of salt, sugar, caffeine and alcohol.
- Reward Yourself: Take a long bath, read a good book or buy something special.
- Talk: Your family and friends are there for you if you have a problem, or if you want to talk about plans and dreams.
- Sense of Humor: It promotes health and reduces stress.

Go ahead — nail it down!

PICK A NUMBER, any number — make that a large number and you could be $20,000 richer.

It's the popular "House of Nails Contest," returning to the 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, March 18-26 at Cobo Hall.

The plexiglass House of Nails, which is 20-by-26-inches wide, 24 inches tall, with a 12-by-12-inch wide, 17-inch tall addition, is filled with various size nails.

The house is on display at the Builders Show, to give the public a chance to brush up on its estimating skills.

Attendees register their estimate of the number of nails contained in the house. The person estimating closest to the correct number of nails in the house wins $20,000.

Internationale

Biggest Builders Show yet is ready to open

THE 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show has expanded to include more than 800 booths featuring exhibitors from all over the United States and Canada and has become the largest home show in the world, all under one roof.

The show, will cover the entire top floor (500,000 square feet) of the newly expanded Cobo Hall.

"The Builders Show has become an international show with exhibitors from all over Canada, including Uni-lock, headquartered in Toronto, the largest manufacturer of interlocking concrete paving stones in North America," said James S. Bonadeo, president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

"Over the past 71 years, the Builders Show has evolved into a living exhibition, as our participants feature anything and everything for the home," he added.

"THE METRO DETROIT Cadillac Gold Key dealers are sponsoring a pictorial display, from the Smithsonian Institution, titled 'Remaking America,' which showcases new uses for historic buildings. As part of the exhibit, Cadillacs from the past and present will be on display," Bonadeo said.

In addition to the Smithsonian exhibit, other interesting and unusual exhibitors include:

- Invisible Fencing System of Birmingham, Mich., which specializes in "invisible" dog containment systems that safely keep a dog in the yard without a fence. The fencing system consists of a thin wire buried in the ground, a small radio transmitter (usually installed in a garage), a lightweight leather dog collar with a transistorized radio receiver and a conditioning program for the dog. The system has been tested and proved to be harmless to animals and has been approved by the S.P.C.A.

- Pella Window & Door Co. will feature the latest in wood windows, sliding glass doors, French doors, skylights, sunrooms, and a new oak entrance door with Warpguard laminated construction.

- Art Van Furniture will exhibit a full line of furniture for the home and is sponsoring a relaxing walk-through garden.

- Home Planners Inc. will display plan books, blueprints and planning devices for building single-family homes. More than 2,500 home designs will be featured.

- Vacation Villas of Collingwood, Ontario, offers vacation homes at various resorts in Ontario.

- Kavanaugh's Kwarters is a custom builder of Deltec circular panelized homes. These homes are energy efficient, cost effective and are suitable for a variety of purposes including homes, cottages, offices and multiples.

- Lindal Cedar Homes is the largest manufacturer of cedar homes in the world, and has been in the custom home business, internationally, since 1945. They will feature many different home and sunroom designs.

- Sportfishing Charters with Captain Steve Jones offers fishing charters on Lake Huron and Lake St. Clair, with the largest and best-equipped charter boats on the Great Lakes.

- Gavin Design Limited will display portable Sundance spas, which feature the most effective filtration system, quiet operation and luxurious beauty.

- Pierson-Gibbs will feature quality custom-built homes that the owner finishes himself with Pierson-Gibbs' assistance and materials. The company also offers low-interest con-

Contests galore add excitement to the Builders Show.

For instance, win flowers for a year, courtesy of Allied and FTD-4D florists.

The florists will award a year's worth of holiday bouquets, six arrangements per year, to one person each at the Builders Show. The grand prize is a dozen roses per month for one year. To enter, just drop the entry blank attached to the box office ticket in the entry box at the florists' area.

SHOW VISITORS WILL have an opportunity to register to win one of six free daily "Treasure Chest" prizes.

"Treasure Chest" coupons are distributed at the door. To register, the visitor need only fill out the coupon and drop in the "Treasure Chest" boxes scattered throughout the show.

Six valuable prizes will be awarded each day.

UNILOCK, manufacturer of decorative paving stones, is sponsoring the Paver contest. One 100-square-foot package of paving stones will be given away each day of the Builders Show. One of the nine winners will also win an additional 300 square feet of paving stone. To enter, drop entry coupon at Uni-lock booth.

TENNIS anyone? Or basketball, or volleyball, shuffle board, or hopscotch, or soccer, or baseball? Sport Court of America has a sport court that adapts to all of these games — right in your backyard.

Sport Court is a tennis court that accommodates just about any family sport. This innovative sports center will be on display at the Builders Show. Tennis players will be on hand to demonstrate the quality and versatility of this new home recreational center.

BACK BY popular demand at the Builders Show is Standard Federal Bank's "Waterfall Garden," designed and created by Jack Zendt of Zendt Landscaping.

The garden features a waterfall over a boulder wall, which flanks a planting pocket filled with flowering trees and flowers. A gazebo overlooks the pond and waterfall, and a flagstone path allows visitors to view the pond and garden in more detail.

But the main reason for Standard Federal's appearance at the Builders Show, of course, is to distribute information on the many products and services they offer potential home buyers. Incidentally, Standard Federal was the leading home mortgage lender in

Variety of manufactured homes

THE BUILDERS Show is once again the host for a variety of manufactured houses. Attractive, cost efficient, durable, practical — all describe the manufactured houses featured this year.

Manufactured houses provide an alternative for those who want to build a new house suited to their needs and desires.

Manufactured houses are built in a controlled factory environment, then shipped in two pieces to the homeowners' lots.

- Rapid River Rustic offers a beautiful cedar log house.

- The designer at Timber Frame Construction specializes in underground design, solar energy efficiency, timber frame and masonry heater design.

- All American Homes, featuring Pfent Homes, all of which include the highest quality in materials, provide a house selection of floor plans.

- Active Homes is introducing its latest in manufactured modular houses. The ranch-style house has three bedrooms and two full baths.

- Riverbend Timber Framing presents a unusual idea in traditional timber frame houses — no nails are used, and large oak beams replace the usual 2x4's.

- More than 300 dealers worldwide represent Lindal Cedar Homes. The dealers offer a 10-year structural warranty available even to the do-it-yourself builder.

- Kavanaugh's Kwarters specializes in Deltec Circular Homes. These panelized houses are energy efficient, cost effective and suitable for cottages, offices and multiple housing as well.

- Pierson-Gibbs Homes provide yet another alternative: a quality custom built house that the owner finishes himself with the assistance of Pierson-Gibbs.

Quality Homes will build a 1,392-square-foot house by Victorian Homes. The house will include a French door entrance, parquet floors, a fireplace, a studio/den and modern appliances.

The opportunities and advantages of manufactured houses are endless. Since they are manufactured indoors, all materials are protected against harmful weather and vandalism.

In addition, the cost to build these houses is approximately 25 percent less than if built on a lot.

All of these elements combined make the trend of manufactured houses more and more attractive.

Active Homes is introducing a ranch-style house with three bedrooms and two baths at the Builders Show. Other builders will show a cedar log home and a Victorian home with state-of-the-art appliances.

Marketing Plaza has over- the-counter items in 1 area

THIS YEAR marks the premiere of the Marketing Plaza at the Builders Show. Here, a showgoer can find all the items that can be sold over the counter in one place. In the past, these exhibitors have been scattered throughout the show.

Some of the interesting items that are in the Marketing Plaza include brass items for the home, silk flowers, pots and pans, clothing, computer software, woks, blenders, knife sets, car polish, eye glass cleaner, not to mention the handwriting analysis machine. And fur coats — a new addition by Champagne Furs.

If you are looking for a better mousetrap, Whole Systems Design has come up with just that: the X-Terminator Mousetrap. This mousetrap is a new solution to an old problem.

THE INVENTOR, Hueng Y. Ha, became increasingly concerned by the large number of yearly deaths of dogs, cats and even small children due to the poisoned bait used in most mousetraps. So he spent 20 years the X-Terminator.

The X-Terminator uses a spring-loaded door with a treadle release. A small amount of bait is placed at the rear of the trap.

The mouse enters the trap to reach the bait, stepping on the treadle and closing the door. The mouse is contained in the trap, making it possible to dispose of the entire unit without ever touching the mouse.

The traps may be emptied and reused, and the mouse may be released unharmed.

ANOTHER CLEVER and innovative item in the Marketing plaza is the Heat Solution. The Heat Solution is a hand warmer that is a clear nylon pouch round disc.

When the disc is bent back and fourth, it triggers a response that causes the liquid to change to a solid — a solid at 130 degrees. It heats to this temperature in a matter of seconds and stays hot from 30 minutes to 1 hour.

The hand warmer ranges in size from 3-by-4 inch to 8-by-18 inch. It is a solution for winter protection for the outdoor sportsman, and it is completely non-toxic and safe for all living creatures.

The "Handwarmer" made its debut on national television during the Chicago Bears vs. Washington football game at Soldier Field. This game was played in extremely cold weather, but the Chicago Bears used the Heat Solution Handwarmers.

THE TV play-by-play announcers even held up a handwarmer and activated it to show the viewing audience how it worked.

It's a good idea to keep a few in the glove compartment in case of emergency. This type of hand warmer can be reused by dropping it into boiling water and leaving it there until the water has cooled.

Big Boy Restaurants will again be displaying its successful line of trendy Big Boy sportswear. Their sportswear line has expanded to include a whole new line of children's clothing, ranging from bibs and rompers to short set and sweatsuits.

ALSO NEW to the line are all-leather Big Boy sneakers for men and women, which complement the complete line of men's and women's Big Boy Sportswear.

The line will still include Big Boy sportswear favorites such as Big Boy bun warmers, Big Boy varsity jackets and the Champion reverse-weave sweat sets.

Items in the line range from $4.50 to $79 in price and are made of a variety of high quality, colorful and durable materials.

The Sightmobile is fully-equipped with state-of-the-art testing equipment including the Humphrey Lens Analyzer, which reads the prescription of the patient's present eye glasses; the non-contact tonometer, which measures the patient's intra-ocular pressure to check for glaucoma; and the Humphrey Auto-Refractor, which helps determine if prescription changes would provide the patient with better vision.

pairs and improvements to their houses, during workshops to take place at the Builders Show March 23 3-4:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.

Participating in the workshop is Lon Grossman, Detroit Free Press home improvement columnist, along with Michigan State Housing Development Authority officials and representatives from several major banks.

As part of Grossman's involvement in the state housing authority workshops, $1,500 will be donated to the city of Detroit to buy smoke alarms for lower-income families in Detroit.

The first workshop will cover home-improvement possibilities and benefits for lower- to middle-income families. Because many home improvements can increase the value of the house substantially, homeowners must learn to think of home improvements as an investment — not just a luxury.

This workshop also will inform homeowners of low-cost home improvement loans available to families with modest incomes. Interest rates on these loans are 1 to 9 percent, depending on the borrower's household income. Loans can be made up to

THE SECOND workshop will concentrate on methods for lower- to moderate-income families to buy their first house. Subjects covered will include low-cost financing and methods to find just the right house.

About 35 percent of the people who borrow from state housing authority to make home repairs are senior citizens.

Most of the permanent improvements can be made to houses that are at least 20 years old. In newer houses, state housing authority loans can be used for energy improvement, to increase physically handicapped accessibility, for repairs of serious hazards to health and safety, and for repairing damage from a natural disaster.

Applications are made through a statewide network of participating lenders and local governments. In some communities, households with very low incomes can obtain a grant for all or part of the home repairs.

STATE HOUSING authority loans are intended to help homeowners with modest incomes — those with an adjusted annual income less than $20,000. (Adjusted annual income means the household's gross annual income minus $750 for each member of

Arts-crafts adds to overall fun

NOT ONLY does the Builders Show arts and crafts area include many unusual creations from all over the United States, but two child artists are featured.

Twelve-year-old caricaturist Dan Scanlon, who will draw caricatures of Builder Show attendees during the show, has become famous in the Detroit area for his caricatures of famous people.

His caricatures have earned him letters from such celebrities as former President Ronald Reagan, Johnny Carson, Wayne Newton, George Burns and Dick Purtan. Scanlon designed the cover for the Warren chapter of Parents Without Partners' newsletter and has had his drawings appear in a coloring book whose proceeds went to the Easter Seals Society.

Scanlon started his career as a caricaturist at 2. He is working on a comic book, which he plans to publish himself.

ALSO IN THE Builders Show is 12-year-old artist, Nikolas Trendowski.

Trendowski practices the art of Ukrainian Easter egg decorating, called pysanky.

In pysanky, the eggs are decorated in a very complicated process whereby melted bees wax is applied to the egg with a hot stylus.

The artist can draw a variety of designs on the egg with the bees wax, then use special dyes to color the egg after the bees wax has hardened, leaving a white drawing on a brightly colored background.

The art of pysanky has been handed down through generations of Trendowski's family.

Each design is typical of a region of the Ukraine or has a folklore message.

Trendowski, who lives in Detroit, has been decorating the Ukrainian Easter eggs since he was 4.

OTHER ARTS and crafts exhibits in the 15,000-square-foot area include a blacksmith, glass dishes, beveled glass suncatchers, leaded glass, sculptured

The friendly rivalry between quilters Dian Smith and Ken Taddia that started several years ago at the Builders Show will continue this year — and again for a good cause. The two artisans will make separate quilts that will be raffled off to benefit the Detroit Shriners. Smith owns a quilt shop in Plymouth. Taddia is one of her students.

Moldings making a subtle comeback

AP — Decorating fashions run in cycles, and every cycle is slightly different, incorporating the style and the materials of its time.

In room decor, moldings are coming "in" again, but their use is subtle, in keeping with the color-consciousness of our time. And, they come in a variety of materials, although wood is still the consumers' No. 1 preference.

In our grandparents' day, moldings were big, ornate, and usually dark (like the paints and wallpapers of the day). The pendulum swung, and for many years minimal room accents were the style. Door and window frame trims became simpler, while chair rails and crown moldings (the trim that separates — and integrates — ceiling and walls) went out of fashion altogether.

As today's do-it-yourself decorators turn once again to decorative moldings to top off their rooms, they're choosing lighter moldings in less intricate patterns. The most popular trims are traditional in style, but modern in size, simplicity and hue.

CONTEMPORARY MOLDINGS are less bulky and much less intricately profiled than those of grandma's time. But the selection of designs is as varied — if not more so.

"We make more than 40 patterns of oak moldings alone," said Mike Fara of House of Fara, which manufactures solid hardwood moldings and trims. "Almost all are between two and three inches high and less than 1 inch in thickness. We do make larger moldings — up to four and three-fourths inches with more intricate profiles, but they're used in exceptional houses — usually older, restored homes."

Natural-finished light-toned hardwoods are the biggest sellers, outstripping by far the darker natural woods and somber stains. They are often installed with a simple sealant and a clear finish, for a light, bright look.

Painted moldings also tend to be light in color. One stylish technique to subtly highlight trim is to paint moldings a shade lighter than walls: white molding on cream walls, cream with beige, etc.

VIRTUALLY EVERY home or apartment has molding trim around doors and windows, and as "kick-boards" where walls meet floor. Changes in style have rarely been so extreme as to eliminate these practical conveniences.

Crown moldings top off walls and tie them to a room's ceiling with a flourish. The accent added to a wallpapered room in this way helps create a warmer, cozier feeling by "bringing down" the ceiling — joining it visually more closely to the walls.

A chair rail molding divides a room, circling it at a height of about 32 inches, usually at the top of a wainscot panel or between wallpapered and painted portions of a room. Chair rails are usually thicker than other moldings, but match the crown.

Using moldings as decorations — as finishing touches to a room — creates an opportunity to accent the main decor with an additional touch of color and a distinctive visual flair.

For a gracious traditional look, a do-it-yourselfer can create panels of wallpaper within painted walls by setting off areas with molding. Corners can be cut with a simple miter box and saw.

Special effects, such as rounded or cut-out corners, can be achieved with pre-shaped products sold in most home centers.

There are two sources for buying moldings: lumber yards and home centers. Lumber yards carry large pieces of unfinished, unsanded molding (often up to 20-foot lengths) that the do-it-yourselfer can cut to size, sand and finish. Warning: getting the longer lengths home and up and down stairs may be the most difficult and frustrating part of your project.

THE SECOND SOURCE — home centers — stock some unfinished molding material, but also pre-cut, pre-sanded and sealed moldings. These are hardwood moldings cut to six-, seven-, or eight-foot lengths, sanded and shrink-wrapped for protection, ready for installation and finishing.

Even for a novice do-it-yourselfer, installing molding is more a matter of care than of craftsmanship. Measure carefully, cut exactly. Check the setting on your adjustable miter box before each cut. Work slowly. And, don't forget to use a level.

Paint and wallpaper first, if your crown or chair rail molding is new. If it isn't, paint or finish the molding first, then paint or paper the wall up to it.

Hardwoods can be amazingly tough to nail. If you're working with oak trim, for instance, you'll be wise to drill nail holes in it before installing it, to save yourself a lot of bent nails and/or split wood.

Fire safety house is feature at show

IN AN EFFORT to reduce the number of fire-related injuries among children, the Southfield Fire Department has designed and built the "Children's Fire Safety House," which is a featured exhibit at the 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, March 18-26 at Detroit's Cobo Hall.

In the "Children's Fire Safety House," firefighters will instruct children on how to escape smoke-filled rooms. Firefighters will be on hand to conduct tours and give safety information.

The exhibit will include live demonstrations of fire emergency situations and a fire safety video, which will run continuously throughout the show.

More than 200 children were injured in Michigan house fires in 1988 — many probably would have escaped uninjured if they had had an escape plan.

"THE SOUTHFIELD Fire Department and various Mr. Build contractors have joined forces to build the "Children's Fire Safety House," said Southfield Fire Inspector Randy Fryfogle.

"The 8-by-26-foot-long house is a down-sized mobile replica of a two-story house equipped with a bedroom and a hallway on each floor.

"In the future, the house will be transported to elementary schools to teach children two emergency methods of escaping a burning house during an actual fire drill," he said.

The house is constructed of donated materials by volunteers of both the residential contractor industry and the firefighters.

Blooming treats takes tricks

IT'S NO WONDER THAT perennials are a favorite flower with most folks.

Not only are they ever-bloomin' beautiful, but they require much less maintenance than annuals.

Because perennials are self-perpetuating, they bloom year after year, and have a lower long-run cost than annuals. Although perennials are fairly simple to care for, they do require a certain amount of effort to keep them beautiful every year.

On that score, here's a word of advice from master gardener Carl Krauss of Auburn Oaks Nursery, Rochester Hills:

For good soil preparation, always use peat moss and make sure to rototill the flower bed.

For the many perennials that pop up at the Builders Show, Krauss noted: "We actually trick the flowers into blooming, just in time for the show.

Because perennials are accustomed to blooming at the same time every year, we must speed up the normal process of environmental changes they experience each year."

"First the plant must be left in a below-freezing climate for more than 30 days. Then when they are brought into the greenhouse, they are given gradual increases in the amount of daylight hours to simulate the changing of the seasons. They are also given gradual increases in heat and moisture."

But not all perennials bloom at the same time of the year in nature, he continued, so this process varies from plant to plant. The forcing process starts earlier in the year for some varieties.

"But when the Builders Show begins, all these confused perennials will stand at attention all at once," said Krauss.

Breath-taking gardens create

THE International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show would not be complete without miles of breathtaking gardens, and this year is no exception.

"We're very excited about the many new gardens featured in the Builders Show this year," said landscape architect James Scott, who designs and oversees construction of the many gardens seen at the Builders Show.

"We have a garden of broad-leaf evergreens, including rhododendron, azaleas, flowering dogwood, and much more. These varieties adapt well to Michigan weather as long as they are planted with the proper protection.

"The public can stroll through the gardens and examine the many featured varieties.

"Also new is the garden of poodle-cut evergreens, sponsored by Muellers Sunrise Nursery. These ornamental trees, along with a variety of flowering bulbs, will surround a lighted fountain and a gazebo."

"A REAL TREAT IS the tropical garden, which spans 1,000 square feet. The 50-by-20-foot oasis is divided into three sections: an orchid display with a variety of exotic orchids; a tropical display complete with a live banana tree with actual fruit; and a cactus assortment of flowering and exotic shaped cacti," said Mike Colasanti of Colasanti Tropical Gardens in Ruthven, Ontario. Colasanti is the designer of the tropical garden.

"Also featured are the patio garden, sponsored by the National Bank of Detroit, the waterfall garden, sponsored by Standard Federal Bank, and the pond garden, sponsored by First Federal of Michigan.

"Art Van Furniture, new to the flower show, will sponsor the main entry garden.

"The Detroit Parks and Recreation garden is back by popular demand, along with the Florist Association's exhibit and many more beautiful gardens.

"The Builders Show is famous for tricking annual flowers into thinking its spring, but this year, perennials will be forced to bloom also," Scott said.

"This is an extremely technical process, whereby growers simulate spring with bright sunlight and a gradual increase in greenhouse temperature.

"The flowers bloom just in time for the Builders Show."

NATIONAL BANK of Detroit is the sponsor of a breathtaking patio garden at the Builders Show.

A fountain, 15 feet tall, will bring animation to the colorful garden filled with flowering bulbs, such as daffodils and crocuses.

Visitors are invited to sit and relax in the garden, which will include a winding walkway, made of interlocking paving stones, and park benches.

NBD is also proud to be a part of one of the show's great traditions. The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and NBD share the common goal of providing cost-effective ways for new buyers to acquire homes and for existing owners to upgrade their homes.

Today, having so many types of mortgages to choose from can make it difficult to determine what product best suits a person's particular needs.

The choice depends upon many factors — monthly income, monthly debt obligations, housing payments, home value, long-term financing needs and amounts owed on other loans.

NBD, WITH ITS combination of many mortgage options, extensive expertise and in-depth review of each borrower's needs and resources, can recommend the best choice from the variety of mortgage products available.

Today's market, for example, includes many home buyers who wish to build equity in their home as quickly as possible.

NBD has responded by introducing a new, bi-weekly mortgage plan that reduces the term and total interest expense and speeds up the equity building process, and by offering short-term mortgages.

IN ADDITION, new tax structures

Here it comes — computer landscaping

THE LATEST in video technology has come to the landscape industry. Homeowners can actually see a video image — not just a rendering or drawing — of proposed landscape improvements before the ground is ever broken.

New Image Inc. of Warren will feature the New Image Design System at the 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, March 18-26 in Cobo Hall.

The New Image Design System eliminates the misunderstandings that can occur between landscape architect and client. Homeowners will know that landscaping will make their property look like.

The system includes a 80Mb hard disk, computer terminal, high-resolution color monitor, graphics adapter, drawing tablet, video cassette recorder, video camera and landscape design software.

AFTER THE BLUEPRINT is complete, the landscape architect shoots as many views of the bare property as necessary with the video camera, which is later plugged into the computer.

With a stylus and drawing tablet, any landscape elements in the data can be called up and incorporated into the video image.

The computer imaging system was adapted from a highly successful program being used in the beauty salon industry.

Granted, the similarities between the personal-beauty industry and the landscape industry are few. However, the resemblances in the computer imaging concept are many.

Since New Image can successfully depict how a person would look with a new hair style, new makeup, or even plastic surgery, company founders John Halloran and Kirk La Mar reasoned that they should be able to show how a property looked with new landscaping.

Michigan distributor is Sherry Durkee, 294-3979.

Mr. Build shares talents to help kids

FOR THE fourth year, the Detroit area Mr. Build Team of Independent Contractors will be participating in the Builders Show.

The team of Mr. Build contractors have donated their time and services to the Southfield Fire Department to construct the "Children's Fire Safety House" which will premiere at the show this year.

The house, which is designed to teach children how to survive a house fire, will tour local elementary schools after the show.

ALL OF THE WORK done for the Builders Show and the Children's Fire Safety House typifies the Mr. Build ideal — a network of property service people banding together to provide a complete selection of services that consumers can truly rely on. The Mr. Build Team is made up of reliable, professional "user friendly" companies, each of which stands behind the work they do. With over 30 different property trades represented (including plumbing, remodeling, general contracting, electrical services, carpentry and more), Mr. Build is the one to call when you need a service professional.

Premiering at the Builders Show is the new Mr. Build MasterCard. This is an actual MasterCard that offers special Mr. Build privileges to cardholders. Bonus points can be earned toward Mr. Build services by using the card anywhere.

When the Mr. Build cardholder signs up, they receive 500 bonus points and another 250 points the first time the card is used. After the first purchase, every dollar spent equals one bonus point. Every time the cardholder accumulates 2,500 points, they receive $25 in free Mr. Build services. The Mr. Build MasterCard includes special low finance rates and 25-day interest-free credit. Cardholders can obtain approval just two hours after application. All Mr. Build franchisees and employees are pre-approved for the card.

MR. BUILD organization, headquartered in Windsor, Conn., was founded in 1982 by Art Barlett, the originator of Century 21. The franchise organization is comprised of skilled technicians and craftsmen around the country who possess solid reputations in their communities.

In order to qualify as a franchisee, a tradesman must have a sound financial and work record, be skilled and experienced, fully insured and licensed and have the desire to grow and be a leader in his field. Only 10 percent of contractors providing the same service in one given area are accepted as Mr. Build franchisees.

ing and enjoyable.

"I know a particular man who runs a very large company. He says he loves to get his hands in the dirt and enjoy his garden as often as he can. Gardening can be appreciated by anyone, no matter what their position in life may be," said James Scott, president of James C. Scott and Associates Landscaping. James C. Scott and Associates is designing and constructing all of the gardens at the Builders Show.

"ONE THING THE beginning gardener must remember is to keep it simple. Many times the amateur will plant an elaborate garden with many different varieties. Then, he won't understand why so many of the plants die," Scott said.

"Flowers and plants require many different levels of care. For instance a plant that needs sunlight should not be mixed with plants that need shade. The same goes for soil and watering needs."

To have a successful, yet therapeutic gardening adventure, follow these tips from James Scott:

- Don't be too hard on yourself. Don't plant too many varieties. Instead, use just four or five varieties.

- Plant each variety in a large section, instead of mixing varieties together. This design, called drift planting, gives the garden a more naturalistic look. Don't plant one of this, one of that. Spotted planting is risky because most plant types require different care.

- Have a plan and draw it out on paper. Gardening is not a game of chance — it should always be planned. Just as you would decorate the inside of your house with careful thought, your property deserves the same consideration. Take this plan to your nurseryman and ask his opinions and suggestion.

- Do your ground work. Remove sand or clay from garden bed and replace it with well-drained top soil. Poor soil preparation is one of the most common faults of the average homeowner. Without proper soil, most plants will not thrive.

- Most varieties require specific moisture levels. Each variety should have its own watering schedule.

See what's cooking at Jenn-Air exhibit

SAMPLE delicious food cooked in front of your eyes in the Jenn-Air exhibit at the Builders Show.

"We will be cooking a variety of dishes including Chinese stir-fry, barbecue and pastries, just to mention a few. Jenn-Air food economists will be demonstrating how easy and delicious it is to cook with our gas and electric ranges, woks, and convection baking and conventional ovens," said Michael McKimmy, director of builder sales, Jenn-Air Corp.

"Our convection baking ovens have a fan that circulates hot air throughout the oven. This process makes it feasible to cook some foods up to 33 percent faster and some at lower temperatures. The circulation process cooks the outside of the food while leaving the inside still tender. For instance, baked goods are flaky and crisp outside, but soft and fluffy inside," he added.

"JENN-AIR IS THE pioneer in down draft cooking, which eliminates overhead exhaust systems. Air is pulled down into the range which allows people to barbecue inside. In addition, Jenn-Air has a unique feature called "flavor rocks" which are located directly under the grill. These rocks absorb the juices which drip down from the meat; the juices then evaporate up to the meat and are reabsorbed. This process leaves the meat tender, moist and flavorful.

"Not only do Jenn-Air products make food taste better than you had ever imagined, they happen to be about 10 times more cost efficient than conventional ovens and ranges, when you consider the energy saved and the food that is not wasted due to shrinkage. We estimate that a family can save the equivalent of at least a week's worth of groceries a year if they cook with Jenn-Air products.

"Jenn-Air is not just a range or an oven — it's the cooking system of the 21st century," said McKimmy.

Cadillac dealers sponsor 'Remaking America' exhibit

REMAKING America: New Uses, Old Places" is an exhibition which traces through vintage photographs and explanatory text of the successful rescue of old buildings from destruction and decay.

The exhibition, which is sponsored by the metro Detroit Cadillac Gold Key dealers, will be on display at the Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show to be held March 18-26 in Cobo Hall.

Barbaralee Diamonstein, a leading authority on historical preservation, is the exhibition's curator and organizer. The exhibition travels under the authority of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES).

The past decade has seen an increase in the efforts by builders, developers and cities to reclaim old buildings. "Remaking America" is a look at the adaptive re-use movement — a program which finds appropriate purposes for buildings other than what the original designers planned.

INSTEAD OF TEARING down old buildings, developers are being encouraged to renew buildings which seem to have outlasted their original uses — old warehouses, market places, railroad stations — and transform them into modern spaces for working, playing, shopping and living.

"Remaking America" recounts with 48 "then" and "now" photography panels the redevelopment of once grand buildings into art museums, shopping malls, law firms and even low-income housing. It also illustrates how changing economic and social conditions affect who participates in re-use projects, how the projects are financed and the diverse nature of the finished projects.

Also included in the display is a quilting area where Dian Smith and Ken Taddia of Plymouth will be quilting. Their two quilts will be later raffled to benefit the Detroit Shriners.

Within the arts and crafts area is a section of 16 antique exhibitors. The section will include demonstrations of antique furniture restoration as well as many forms of antique items ranging from furniture to antique lace.

The arts and crafts area at the Builders Show is sponsored by Alice's Promotions.

Handyman Haege 'live' from Builders Show

IF YOU'RE in the metro Detroit area on a weekend morning, listening to the same old jabber of programs, commercials and music on your radio, dial to 1270 AM. You may be in for a DIY (do-it-yourself) education.

DIY information fills the airwaves as Glenn Haege, metro Detroit's foremost "handyman" expert, gives timely tips on simple home repairs.

Haege has served the area's do-it-yourself hardware audience for more than four years. Hardware information is offered in perhaps one of the most unique and unbeatable ways as Haege, known as "The Handyman," broadcasts his radio show from WXYT-AM 1270 each Saturday and Sunday morning from 9 a.m.-noon.

HAEGE WILL BROADCAST his show live from the Builders Show March 18, 19, 25 and 26, from 9 a.m. to noon, both weekends of the nine-day show.

During his talk show, do-it-yourselfers have the opportunity to call Haege and ask him questions with topics that range from how to cure leaky faucets to how to perform driveway crack repairs.

Deemed "America's Master Handyman," Haege's show has at any one time an estimated 41,000 new listeners and a total of 151,000 listeners throughout the show.

It is the highest-rated weekend talk show in the Detroit area.

The Michigan Nature Association is fighting for the lives of rare trees in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

The association is raising money to save hundreds of virgin white pines near the MNA Estivant Pines Sanctuary in the UP.

If association does not raise $100,000 by April 28, the owner of the 80 acres, where the pines now stand, will cut down all of the rare trees.

The association has raised more than half of the money needed to buy the land, thus permanently preserving the pines.

The association hopes to spread the word at the 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, March 18-26 in Cobo Hall.

THE MICHIGAN NATURE

Association, a non-profit citizens' conservation group, is the most active land preservation organization in Michigan.

In its 36 year history, the association has established 114 nature sanctuaries in 42 counties of Michigan. These 5,500 acres of selected natural areas permanently protect examples of 50 percent of Michigan's endangered, threatened and rare species.

All association lands are open to the public without charge for non-destructive uses such as nature study, hiking, photography and bird watching.

The association's accomplishments have been achieved by unpaid volunteers, using money raised through donations — no government money is used.

THE REAL BEAUTY OF A HOW HOME IS WHAT YOU DON'T SEE.

Lots of kitchen cabinets, crown molding, and extra-large closets are things you can appreciate the moment you see them in a new home.

But the intangibles — things like security and peace of mind — take a little while longer to surface.

That's why more and more new homebuyers are insisting on a home protected by the Home Owners Warranty 10 year protection program.

They know they're getting the best protection money can buy. Good for 10 years, and even transferable to the new owners, should you sell your home during that period.

And even though the odds are slim that something will go wrong, it's good to know you're protected against workmanship and material defects the first year. Defective wiring, ductwork, and piping in the second.

And your home is protected against major structural defects that vitally affect the use of your new home for the full 10 years.* Your builder can give you all the details, including the reasonable exclusions.

So when you look for a new home, look for the HOW symbol.
