Two die in manhole accident

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Two persons died Friday while working on water pipes in a 9-foot manhole near the Northville Commons subdivision on Six Mile Road west of Haggerty.

Christopher Rosetto, 28, of Taylor, died on arrival at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, according to township Fire Chief Robert Toms.

Township police officer Sgt. Clyde Anderson said Gary D'Ascenzo, 32, of Dearborn Heights, died at about 3:30 a.m. Saturday at St. Mary. He was transported to the hospital and listed in critical condition until his death.

Keith Longmire, spokesperson for the Wayne County Morgue, said the cause of death for both men is being listed as asphyxia due to inhalation of toxic fumes.

According to Toms, the fire department responded to a call at 11:21 a.m. on Friday, of two unconscious persons trapped in a manhole.

"When we got there we found the two victims in the bottom of the manhole," Toms said, adding firefighters at the scene had to wait until air packs arrived before rescuing the victims.

Anderson, who was the first officer on the scene, said a hazardous gas was leaking into the manhole and "we could not safely enter the hole until the firefighters arrived with the air packs."

Anderson noted when both men were pulled out of the hole, neither one was breathing. "Township firefighters and police performed cardio pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) on both victims and were able to resuscitate one man."

He said the preliminary report filed by township police lists the deaths as accidental, but he added their investigation into the incident has not been concluded. Anderson said the Michigan Department of Public Health is also investigating the incident.

Toms said firefighters first pulled D'Ascenzo out of the manhole, after he apparently entered the hole to rescue Rosetto.

The men, who worked for Guardian Plumbing and Heating of Redford Township, were apparently hired by the Northville Commons subdivision association to service the water pipes on Sutter's Lane.

Toms said the men were using freon gas while working on the pipes and apparently the gas cut off their oxygen supply in the hole.

Anderson said he believes the freon gas was being used to freeze the water in the pipes so a leak could be repaired.

Helen Rydzak, a bookkeeper for Guardian Plumbing, said the incident is under investigation by the company and they are currently unsure of what happened.

Development of county parcel is back on track

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Wayne County's on-again, off-again sale of the 1,040 acres of land it owns in Northville Township is on-again — for now, according to county officials.

"We are withdrawing our request to the commission for $300,000 in consultants fees and will go forward with the project," said Deputy County Executive Michael Duggan.

Duggan is referring to a request for $350,000 by his department to complete testing on wetlands, soil borings, financial analysis and legal fees.

"This is not the best way to go (without consultants), but it is clear that the (Wayne County) commission intends on dragging this project on forever," Duggan said, adding the in-house county staff will be used in lieu of consultants.

He said the county has decided to move ahead with the project because "the real estate market is getting worse and if the project is not developed now, the property will not be on the tax rolls until the 1990s."

Attempting to have a developer chosen by July, Duggan said requests for a detailed development proposal will be sent to the 12 potential developers this week.

Developers currently being considered for the project by the county include: Biltmore Properties Corp.; J.D. Blain, Inc.; Charter Development Co.; R.A. DeMattia Co.; Farman/Stein & Co.; and Hottelman & Silverman.

The list of developers also includes: LoPatin & Co.; Pulte Home Corp.; Schostak Brothers & Co., Inc.; J. & J. Slavik Inc.; Trammell Crow Co.; and Victor International Corp.

County Commissioner Susan Heintz (R-Northville) said it sounds like the county has worked out its funding problems and can focus on moving ahead with the project.

Worker may have sold hospital drugs

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Over $75,000 of prescription drugs have been reported missing from the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital (NRPH), according to a Michigan State Police audit.

"We have completed investigating the case and have turned it over to the Michigan Attorney General and the Wayne County Prosecutor's office," said State Police Detective Sgt. Ron Mattioli.

Mattioli said the investigation conducted by the state police, which lasted for almost two years, uncovered that the prescription drugs were missing from the hospital's pharmacy.

"There was a problem with the record keeping procedures and pills are very small," Mattioli said, adding the Michigan Department of Mental Health and Northville Hospital have cooperated with the investigation.

He said the investigation has centered on a hospital employee who sold the hospital's drugs to metro-Detroit drug stores below wholesale prices.

"In comparison to controlled substances, the chances of getting caught stealing prescription drugs are far less, the cash flow is easier to conceal and there is less of an ability for authorities to monitor it," Mattioli said, adding he does not know if the employee or employees being investigated are still working at the hospital.

Planners talk over Cady Corridor plan

By BOB NEEDHAM

Discussion of the Cady Street Corridor study by the city planning commission last week showed some general agreement with the study's direction, but prompted some questions from commissioners about how the study views the long-term future of the street.

A partial preliminary draft of the study came up for planning commission review Tuesday, March 21. The draft had already been discussed at a meeting of the downtown development authority (DDA), which is the city body directly overseeing the Cady study.

The preliminary draft of the study covers a lot of material, including summaries of the physical conditions of Cady Street and the surrounding areas; suggested policies for developing the area; and three rough alternatives for development.

In presenting the draft to the planning commission, city planners Glen Bowles and Don Wortman stressed that the draft is incomplete and preliminary, and will be revised as city officials continue to give input.

Some of the conclusions and recommendations in the draft are:

- Eventually to reduce Cady's role to a service drive for the adjacent parking and businesses.
- Eventually to replace Cady with a new, sweeping street which would go from the Cady / Griswold intersection southwest to merge into S. Center Street.
- Add parking capacity by redeveloping lots for better capacity and by instituting a special program for downtown employee parking out of the prime spaces. Add new parking on Cady.
- Possible retail and office develop-

Victorian festival planned for fall

By BOB NEEDHAM

A new, Northville-community festival with a Victorian theme is being planned for this fall.

The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, Northville Arts Commission and other interested parties are planning a Victorian festival for Sept. 15-17, chamber Executive Director Laurie Marrs said. While few details are settled, the event will be designed to highlight the history and character of the Northville community.

Marrs said the chamber hopes to get wide participation from many different groups and individuals in Northville. The festival will be designed as much for resident participation as for attracting tourists.

The Victorian festival will replace the Autumnfest of recent years, and,

"It really celebrates something that's intrinsic to the community."

— Greg Presley
originator of idea

like Autumnfest, will run in conjunction with the arts commission's Art-market.

The idea for a Victorian festival was brought up at a meeting of the chamber's general membership. Greg Presley, a local architect, suggested it.

"We were looking at how we could promote Northville," Marrs said. The Victorian theme seemed ideal, considering the architecture and history of the town.

The chamber has been considering many different ideas for activities, including a mock mystery party based on the history of Northville; a Victorian ball; a Sunday-afternoon picnic; horse-and-buggy rides and many others.

"We have to involve a lot of people to make it a success," Marrs said. "It's going to involve a lot of service groups as well. Community wide."

Marrs said the chamber expects to have committees organized soon, so that anyone can volunteer to get involved in a particular aspect of the plan. Currently, a nine-member steering committee headed by Marrs and Presley is organizing the event.

The Victorian era is getting a more positive image lately, Presley said.

"There's a real diversity of expression in the Victorian area," he said. "We used to think of Victorian as being equal to prudish behavior. I think we want to dispel that myth, and celebrate the best that was Victorian."

The steering committee is concentrating on three sub-themes within the idea of the Victorian era: history, romance, and art / beauty.

Presley said the general idea arose around his kitchen table.

"My wife Lois and I were sitting in the kitchen, sort of brainstorming about what would be a good thing for

Assessors discuss group homes

By BOB NEEDHAM

When you're talking about the effect of group homes on nearby property values, local assessors said this week that about the only conclusion you can draw is that you can't draw any conclusions.

Wayne Community Living Services recently announced plans to open a group home for developmentally disabled adults on Lexington Boulevard. That announcement brought many objections from residents of the area, with one of the biggest being that the home would depress the value of surrounding property.

Officials countered the worry with a pamphlet summarizing eight studies which concluded that the presence of a group home does not really affect property values of the neighborhood. Those studies did little to allay the concerns of the neighbors, some of whom said at a recent public hearing that the studies' results did not make sense.

Assessors questioned this week reported a mixed bag of impressions on how — if at all — a group home will affect a property value.

"We have mixed reviews," Livonia City Assessor Ronald Mardiros said. In one case, a home right next to a group home might show a significant decline in value, he said — "and then another will come along — we don't know what the circumstances are — but it sells at market."

"I think it depends on the way the group home is operated. The good operators have little effect," Mardiros said. "As a rule, it does affect the market value. But how much? Who knows? I think it depends on how they operate it."

Abundance of hospital beds may halt Providence's plans

By AMY ROSA

NOVI—Providence hospital may have more trouble building a new hospital in Novi than it bargained for, as a moratorium of sorts is in place for all new proposed hospitals within Oakland County.

"Oakland is an overbedded area by certificate standards," said state Department of Public Health official Walter Wheeler. "Unless the standards change, it is unlikely we'll approve a new hospital in Oakland County."

Wheeler, who is acting chief of the Bureau of Health Facilities, was referring to the "Certificate of Need" that his department must award, before any new hospital can be built in the state.

Providence officials have said they will be seeking the certificate, if they can close a deal with owners of the Westbrooke golf course to purchase 150 acres on which to construct a new full health care facility.

The hospital acquired an option to purchase the land — located on the southwest corner of Grand River and Beck roads — last month, but will try to have the zoning changed first. Currently the site is zoned for residential use only.

Greg Knepley, vice president of Providence's planning and marketing department, has said that hospital officials have been looking for a site in Novi ever since they were defeated in a 1987 attempt to build one at the Ten Mile and Taft Road intersection.

Knepley cautioned that Providence's plans are only in a preliminary stage for now, and that a hospital might not be realized at the golf course site for five to 10 years.

However, Wheeler said that several hospitals within the last few years were all denied Certificates of Need, based on the overbedding situation. He said the hospitals are currently in litigation with the state, trying to overturn the rulings.

The reason for the overabundance of beds, he said, is because of the many hospitals built prior to implementation of the 1972 certificate standards. Plus, recent trends in the health field are moving toward more out-patient care, and consequently hospitals have seen a decline in occupancy, Wheeler added.

Regardless of the situation, said Wheeler, every hospital that wants to build or expand has a right to apply and argue their point before the state.

Knepley has said that Providence officials are aware of the overbedding problem, but still feel the hospital can make a good case for bringing one to this particular area.

However, Wheeler said the state would look at Oakland County as a whole, and make its decision on that basis.

The standards haven't been changed in 17 years, and overbedding has been the situation since at least 1978, said Wheeler. But that doesn't mean a change won't be forthcoming.

A new Certificate of Needs Commission was just appointed by Governor James Blanchard last week, "but it's too early to tell," he added.

SPECIAL STORYTIME — A special evening preschool storytime will take place at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 10. It is hoped that this one-time session will accommodate those children, 3½-5 years of age, whose parents are unable to attend daytime storytimes due to conflicting work schedules. Parents are asked to remain in the library during the half hour period. To register, visit the library or call 349-3020.

SILENT PARTNER — Northville City Council Member Jerry Mittman underwent throat surgery recently, rendering him mute for last Monday night's council meeting. But it didn't slow him down a bit.

Mittman came equipped with a series of small signs so he could second motions, vote yes or no and even declare himself present. He also made some comments and motions, written out by Mittman and read aloud by the council member in the next seat, John Buckland.

WEDDING BELLS — Township Planning Director Carol Henry will exchange "I do's" with her fiancé Peter Maise on June 3 in Northville.

Henry said she is not sure where the couple will be spending the honeymoon, but said they will be residing in Northville Township after the nuptials.

KINGS MILL NEWS — At the recent annual election held by Kings Mill Co-op, a new board of directors was elected to govern the complex for the coming year. Elected were Herbert Timmons, president; Lee Blaim, Edward Harrison, Bernice Henk, Gus Manheimer, Russell Rathbun and Kathryn Redford.

The co-op also recently completed redecoration of their large club house. In the last completed census it was found that Kings Mill is home to nearly 800 residents.

DRUG ABUSE SERIES SCHEDULED — The Northville Action Council and the Northville Board of Education are sponsoring a five-part educational series "Are You Concerned?" on alcohol and drugs, use and misuse.

The program, which is sponsored by Maplegrove Community Education and the Northville Action Council, will take place at 7:30 p.m. at Northville High on April 11, 18, 25 and May 2 and 9.

Northville Action Council representative Al Qualman said donations for the series will be accepted. He said the average attendance for the series shown in other communities has been around 400 people.

SIGN ORDINANCE AT THE CHAMBER — The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce did not take a position on the proposed city sign ordinance last week, but may do so in the future.

Executive Director Laurie Marrs said the chamber board wants to study a copy of the ordinance before taking any position. The issue is expected to return for discussion at a future meeting.

BUDGET UNVEILING PLANNED — The Northville city budget for fiscal 1989-90 is scheduled to be presented for the first time Monday night.

City Manager Steve Walters expects to present the preliminary budget to the city council as part of the council meeting starting at 8 p.m.

Rollover

Workers from the Wixom Redi-Mix company prepare this overturned cement truck for righting. The truck flipped over on Tuesday afternoon on the soft shoulder of Beck Road south of Main Street. The driver of the truck was shaken up, but unhurt. His half full load of concrete, six cubic yards, was dumped at the site.

Cocaine suspect to return to court

A March 31 hearing date before Recorder's Court Judge Craig Strong has been set for Northville Township resident Zoueflickar Nehmeh, in connection with his arrest last November on a cocaine charge.

A Recorder's Court clerk said an evidential hearing has been set for Nehmeh "so that Judge Strong can determine if there is enough evidence or not for a trial."

Nehmeh, who lives in the Maple Hill subdivision off of Six Mile Road, was arraigned last November on a charge of delivery and possession of a controlled substance.

River Rouge resident Alonzo Maxie, an employee of Nehmeh's, was charged with three counts of delivery and possession of a controlled substance. Both men pled not guilty to the charges.

If convicted of the charges the defendants could be sentence to life in prison.

Nehmeh could not be reached for comment.

Nehmeh, who owns the Nehmeh

Car Center on 11246 Jefferson in River Rouge, faced a final conference hearing before Judge Strong on Feb. 17.

The court clerk said the hearing, which gives the defendant an opportunity to decide on a plea or go ahead with a trial, was adjourned until the upcoming evidential hearing.

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano said earlier that an undercover sheriff's deputy bought a kilo of cocaine from Nehmeh on Nov. 3. The deputy paid $23,000 for the cocaine, Ficano said.

Nehmeh and Maxie were both arrested, and another five ounces of cocaine was found at Maxie's residence in River Rouge.

"After we arrested (Nehmeh) we executed a search warrant" at the couple's home, Ficano said.

"We seized 30 ounces of cocaine, $500 in cash and 10 weapons — two handguns and eight rifles," Ficano noted, adding 30 ounces of cocaine could have a street value of $70,000 or $80,000. Three cars were also seized.

Car stolen in city is recovered in Detroit the next day

A car stolen in Northville Thursday night was recovered Friday in Detroit.

A 1984 Chevrolet Eurosport was reported stolen from the Northville Downs parking lot between 9 and 11:30 p.m. Thursday, according to a city police report. The car was entered into the area law enforcement computer as stolen.

Detroit police called Northville at 5 p.m. Friday, saying they had found the car that afternoon with two suspects inside. The car was driveable, but the steering column was punched, the radio missing and the dashboard damaged.

ARREST IN THEFT — Two Northville men have been charged with breaking into a local apartment.

A January theft netted a stereo and television worth $1,470 from a city apartment. Timothy John Hymes and Terry Lee Rowe were charged with the theft and arraigned Monday before Judge James Garber in the 35th District Court.

The two pleaded not guilty and were released on $100 cash bond Monday afternoon. A preliminary examination is scheduled for April 7.

The equipment has been returned to the owner, police said.

AUTO ROBBED — About $1,525

worth of goods was stolen from an auto parked in the Cady Street parking deck last week, according to a city police report.

Between 9 and 11 p.m. Sunday, March 19, the vehicle was entered when a lock was broken. An Epson computer printer worth $500, about $1,000 worth of optical tools, and a briefcase were reported missing.

SALON ROBBED — Margo's of Northville was robbed of $90 Friday morning, a city police report said.

About $500 damage was done to the shop during the break-in, which is believed to have occurred between 1:15 and 7:25 a.m. Friday. The theft was similar to another one the salon suffered a couple of years ago, the report said.

The theft is under investigation.

BREAK-IN ATTEMPTED — Freydl's cleaners was apparently the victim of an unsuccessful break-in attempt last week, according to a city police report.

Between 6 p.m. Thursday and 8:29 a.m. Friday the window on a door was smashed, the report said. Damage was estimated at $100, but the shop was apparently not entered.

Police are investigating the incident.

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS

STOLEN — Three fire extinguishers were stolen from the Northville Community Center recently.

The thefts occurred between Feb. 20 and March 20, according to a city police report. One of the extinguishers could have been taken at any point in that time period, while another was taken March 14 or 15 and the third was taken between March 18 and 20, the report said.

The fire extinguishers were valued at $50 each. Two were Amerex and one was a Sentry make.

FENDER-BENDERS — Two automobile accidents were reported by township police last week.

A two-car accident occurred Saturday, March 25 at 3 p.m. on Haggerty Road near Seven Mile Road. Police said the driver of car one was southbound on Haggerty directly behind car two. Car two stopped to turn left onto a driveway and car one was unable to stop, striking car two. Police issued a ticket to the driver of car one for failing to stop within an assured clear distance ahead.

A two-car accident occurred Thursday, March 23 at 3:01 p.m. at the intersection of Haggerty Road and Five Mile Road. Police said the driver of car one was going northbound on Haggerty and failed to stop at the red light at Five Mile Road, entering the intersection striking car two. Car two was going westbound on Five Mile Road. A witness said she was behind car one and observed the accident. The driver of car one was issued a ticket for disobeying a traffic signal.

DRUNK DRIVING — At least two drivers were arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor (OUIL) by township police over the past week. Incidents include:

A Northville resident was stopped by township police on Wednesday, March 22 at 11:11 p.m. on the curb of Innsbrook Drive. The driver said he was going southbound on Innsbrook Drive and pulled over the curb on the west side of Innsbrook on the grass to wait for a friend.

Police said they observed the subject behind the wheel of the truck with extensive damage to the lawn from the tires spinning. The ruts were from a distance of 50 feet.

Police said they saw the brake lights from the truck, which was on the grass on the west side of Innsbrook. After failing all field sobriety tests, a preliminary breath test showed a blood alcohol level of .17 percent.

The driver of the car was charged with OUIL, held in jail and released on $100 bond. He faces an April 27, 9 a.m. 35th district court date.

A Berkley resident was stopped on Haggerty and Six Mile roads by township police on Sunday, March 19 at 1:27 a.m. Police said while following the driver he was paced at 55 to 60 mph in a 45 mph zone. Also, the driver made a hard lane change without signaling. After failing all field sobriety tests, a preliminary breath test showed a blood alcohol level of .18 percent. In Michigan .10 is considered OUIL. The driver was held in jail and released on $100 bond. He faces an April 20, 9 a.m. 35th district court date.

DAMAGED PROPERTY — Two incidents of property damage were reported by township police over the past week.

In the first incident, $500 in damage to a car parked on Crystal Lake and Andover Ct. was reported on March 18. The complainant said his car was damaged while it was parked on Andover Ct.

Police said it appears that someone shot at the car numerous times with a BB gun at close range, between 8:30 p.m. and 12:30 p.m. on March 17 and March 18.

In the second incident, the complainant said unknown persons drove over his lawn causing $200 in damage. The victim reports that between 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. on Saturday, March 18, he was at home at the time of the incident, but did not see or hear any car in front of the house. Police said car tracks did not break through the sod due to the frozen condition of the lawn.

STOLEN ITEMS — A radar detector worth about $125 was stolen sometime on Sunday, March 26 from a car parked on a driveway on Edenderry.

The complainant said unknown persons broke the drivers side door of the car and stole the radar detector. He said the car was parked in the driveway at the time of the incident and was locked.

Police said they found a rock the size of a softball in the front passenger seat. About $150 in damage was also reported to police.

A gold Bulova watch worth about $200 was stolen between 4:30 and 5 p.m. on Thursday, March 23 from the Oasis Golf Center on Five Mile Road in Plymouth.

The complainant said he took off his wristwatch while hitting golf balls at the Oasis golf dome. He said he laid it down nearby while hitting golf balls and someone took it.

$1,000 worth of Triplex wire was stolen from the Laird Haven construction site on Six Mile Road.

Zoning law change moves to council

A proposal to clarify the procedure for amending the city zoning ordinance passed the planning commission last week — with an addition concerning who gets notified of a pending zoning change.

On a unanimous vote, the commission approved the proposal and sent it on to the city council for final consideration. No citizens spoke at a public hearing called to consider the change.

Part of what the commission recommended was a change in who gets notified of a pending zoning change. The current ordinance requires notification of all property owners within 300 feet of a proposed zoning change, and City Manager Steve Walters said the city has taken that to mean 300 feet from each side of the parcel in question.

Planning Commissioner Chris Gazlay, saying the 300 feet was "kind of restrictive," proposed expanding the notification area. In a large-lot subdivision, the 300-foot requirement might only be one or two lots, he said.

Walters said 300 feet is generally sufficient, but suggested that making the requirement be for "300 feet or five lots, whichever is greater," might address the concern.

The commissioners agreed on that wording.

Walters added that the city always tends toward notifying a particular property if there is any doubt if it falls within the notification area.

Beyond the proposed change in notification area, the rest of the new proposal — recommended by the city's planning consultant — is more procedural than substantive.

City regulations are somewhat ambiguous on the procedure to amend the text of the zoning ordinance, Planning Consultant Don Wortman has said. The question specifically concerns which public body holds a public hearing to consider any proposed change.

In practice, the planning commission has held hearings on amendments to the zoning map — that is, changes to the zoning of any parcel of land — while the city council has sometimes held the public hearing on amendments to the text of the zoning ordinance.

For text amendments which are not proposed by citizen petition, the ordinance does not now specifically state who should hold the hearing.

State law requires that the planning commission hold a public hearing on both types of zoning ordinance amendments, Wortman said. He recommended that that requirement be added to the city ordinance as well.

The new proposal also consolidates two articles of the current ordinance. Proposed zoning changes through a public petition had been covered under a separate article, but the new ordinance would combine the petition procedure into the same article.

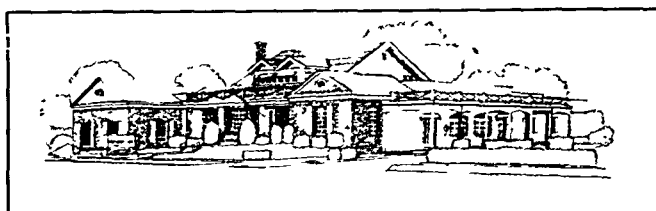

Under the present ordinance the city council always has final authority for making any type of change to the zoning ordinance. That would not change under the new proposal.

The commission held a hearing on this procedure clarification Tuesday, March 21. No citizens spoke.

Northville," Presley said. They came up with two things: hiring a marketing director and establishing a unifying festival.

"As we talked about it... it just hit me: Victorian. We're unique in that respect," Presley said.

He continued to say that Northville may be the most Victorian small town in southeast Michigan. "We have a Main Street and a Center Street that is a lot more narrow (than most major streets)," he said. "That produces a scale of intimacy that you don't find anywhere else."

When he brought up the idea, "it was received very quickly and very warmly," Presley said.

"It seems as if it just hits on that which is truly us. It's our identity, and it just hadn't been put in those words before," he continued. "It really celebrates something that's intrinsic to the community... It's really sort of an intrinsic celebration of who we are, and our history."

Presley said that things Victorian are becoming fashionable. "The Victorian flair is very much in vogue these days," he said. He said a recent magazine article detailed a "returning to sort of a family-oriented, festive, more celebrative lifestyle."

Presley said the festival will be a good opportunity to educate everyone in the community about the history of the town and of the Victorian era.

He and Marrs both emphasized that they hope for a lot of community involvement, both in the planning and in the actual events.

"The idea here is quality. We want it to be a very special event," Presley said.

Marrs said, "We should have our town jumping for those three days."

Anyone interested in volunteering may call the chamber at 349-7640.

Possible activities listed

The steering committee for the Victorian festival Sept. 15-17 is considering many different ideas for activities tied to the theme. The suggestions include:

- A concert in the downtown band-shell featuring music of the era, possibly chamber music.
- A Victorian ball.
- A Victorian menu at area restaurants.
- Horse and carriage rides.
- A play, possibly a melodrama.
- A mystery game at Mill Race Historic Village.
- Luminaries.
- A Victorian tea.

- Chalk art by students.
- A street festival with a "medicine show."
- An ice cream social.
- A horse show.
- An antique show.
- Home and garden tours.
- Punting on the Mill Pond.
- Historic readings.
- Street music, such as strolling musicians or barbershop quartet singing.
- Games like a three-legged race.
- A scavenger hunt for historic facts.
- A "crow's nest" at the Main / Center corner.

Township tables Ward Church plan

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Citing an already large agenda, the Township Planning Commission and Ward Presbyterian Church representatives agreed to hold a special meeting on their plan on Wednesday, April 5 at 7:30 p.m.

Commissioner Karen Woodside, who chaired the meeting in the absence of regular chairman Charles DeLand, told Ward officials that considering the enormity of their site plan, it deserved to be discussed at a special meeting.

After a lengthy look at dates that could accommodate township planners and Ward officials, the April 5 date finally was agreed upon.

However, before formally agreeing to the special meeting, planners tabled the matter to give Ward officials an opportunity to discuss the issue privately.

Upon returning to the township meeting room, Ward attorney Harold Larson said the April 5 date was acceptable, but he inquired how delaying discussion of their plan would relate to the township's church ordinance, which is currently under review by planners.

Commissioner Richard Allen said the township board is looking at a two month wait at a minimum before the ordinance could be approved and put into effect.

Planners send day care zoning to council

A change to allow in-home day care businesses in residential zoning districts won approval from the city planning commission last week.

The commission OK came after a public hearing at which just one person spoke. The zoning proposal — along with a companion ordinance which would regulate such day care homes — now move to the city council for consideration.

The sole commenter in the public hearing questioned several aspects of the proposed ordinance change, although the city also received three written comments in favor of it.

If approved by the city council, the ordinance change would allow "family day care homes" — that is, residences which provide day care for up to six children — as a use permitted by right in all residential zoning districts except R-4.

It would also permit larger day care operations in three commercial districts, professional business office (PBO), local commercial district

(LCD) and general commercial district (GCD).

Currently, the zoning ordinance does not specifically address day care in homes, and only allows larger day-care centers if certain location requirements are met.

Resident Frank Lacca raised several questions at the commission hearing Tuesday, including who would take care of neighbors' complaints. Planning Commission Chairperson Dick Wilhelm said the police department or the city manager could be called.

Lacca said that in-home day care may not be appropriate in some areas, and suggested that the ordinance only allow in-home day care if neighbors vote in favor of it.

He also suggested requiring fences for day care homes, saying that nearby homeowners should not be liable for accidents if day care charges wander onto the neighbors' property unattended. One of the letters written in favor of the ordinance change also recommended a fence requirement.

Mayor Chris Johnson, in the audience for the commission meeting, responded that the city council had considered the issue of liability and believed that the day care giver had responsibility for their charges. The only time a homeowner should be at risk is if there is an "attractive nuisance," and that could be a problem with or without a day care home nearby, he said.

The council did not include a fence provision in its proposal because some subdivisions in the city do not allow any fences.

Of the three written comments, one was from Susan Butz, the operator of a day care home cited last fall for violating the city zoning ordinance. Her citation is on hold pending the outcome of the ordinance consideration.

One other letter, from Judith and Robert Krueger, said they had lived next to a day care home and found no problems. "We believe there is a real need for this type of service in this community. We also believe that this is a valid way for mothers to make needed money while caring for their own children. Under normal care circumstances this is not a detriment to the neighborhood," the letter reads.

The version of the zoning ordinance discussed at the hearing was the second such ordinance to be passed by the planning commission. The commission, with the city planning consultant, developed one day care ordinance and sent it on to the city council. The council took no action on that version, but eventually developed an alternative in conjunction with the city manager and city attorney.

That alternative — which included splitting the proposal into two parts, one covering zoning and the other covering registration requirements — is what is currently on the table. The zoning part of the proposal was all that was under consideration at last week's planning commission meeting. The city council is expected to hold its own hearings on both parts of the proposal.

County plan for garbage gets continued discussion

By BOB NEEDHAM

While the latest draft of the Wayne County trash management plan goes off to be printed, there are still some disagreements between county officials and the Conference of Western Wayne (CWW).

But enough differences have been settled that the county thinks the plan will go out for consideration by individual communities within two months, and the head of the CWW's solid waste committee is saying it's at a point where he might recommend approval.

The county's solid waste committee, headed by Wayne County Commissioner Milt Mack (D-Wayne), last week reviewed a new draft of the plan written after input from officials and the public. "The revised plan is being printed at this time and will be distributed probably in the next week or so," Mack said Monday.

That version of the plan will be put out for further public comment, Mack said, after which the committee will meet to consider it again May 22. He said he expects the committee may vote that day to send the plan out for approval by individual communities, the county commission and the county executive.

The state requires the county to adopt a plan to manage its garbage. Wayne and other counties are running out of space in landfills, which is where most trash now goes.

The county plan would require a 75 percent reduction in the amount of residential trash going into landfills. Officials expect this requirement to eventually have a large impact on the public, possibly in the form of requiring trash to be separated by type for recycling.

"We are looking for any further public comment" on the plan at this point, Mack said.

Probably the single biggest source of comment on the development of the plan thus far has come from the Conference of Western Wayne, a coalition of 17 local governments including the City of Northville and Northville Township.

The conference and the county have been negotiating over aspects of the plan for months, and the conference won some county agreement on several points which are included in the new version of the plan.

"There have been substantial changes in the plan as a result of public comment," Mack said. "There are very few points of disagreement remaining."

But there are some. One long-standing difference is an exemption from the 75-percent reduction requirement for any community which hosts a landfill or incinerator. Mack and the county favor this clause, but Breen and the conference oppose it.

"If a community has to host a landfill or incinerator, they have to receive some form of compensation for doing so," Mack said.

Breen said no communities should be exempt from the requirement. "It seems to be sending a bad signal. I think that's shared by a lot of people," he said.

In addition, a disagreement over applying the 75 percent reduction to commercial and industrial trash generators — instead of just residential — is not fully resolved.

Mack said the latest draft of the plan sets a 50 percent commercial and industrial reduction as a goal, but does not include any way to enforce it.

"It's real difficult to have any control" over commercial and industrial garbage, Mack said, because most of these trash generators do not use municipal disposal systems — they contract independently. To enforce a reduction requirement, "we'd be looking at thousands and thousands of control points. That's far beyond our capability," he said.

"We realize the legal problems in mandating something, as well as the practical ones," Breen said.

Another unresolved issue is the importation of trash from outside

"There have been substantial changes in the plan as a result of public comment."

Wayne County for disposal in the county. Mack said the county is working on language that would not violate constitutional provisions on interstate commerce. "We would like to prohibit the importation of solid waste altogether," Mack said.

Breen also said he would like to see more emphasis on recycling as the preferred alternative method of disposal. "We shouldn't have such an outright reliance on incinerators," he said. "We think they ought to do more. I'm not sure what that is."

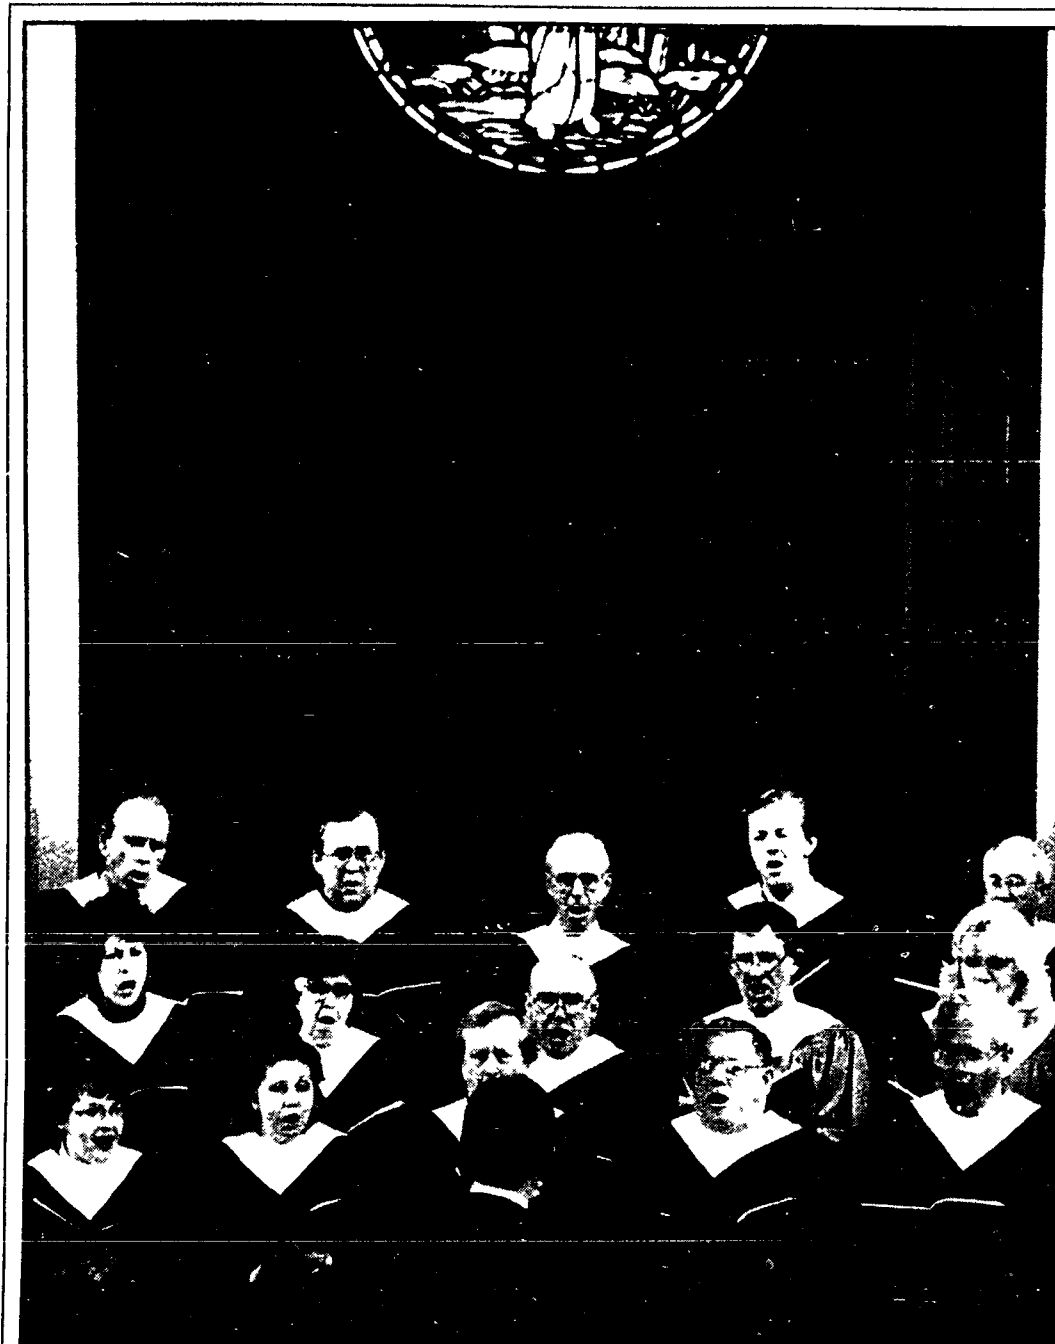

Finally, Breen said, "Wayne County seems slated for an awful lot of landfills. Wayne County just seems to be in the forefront of getting landfills sited."

With the remaining objections, Breen said he is "wrestling" with the question of whether he would recommend approval of the plan as it stands.

Once passed by the solid waste committee, the plan will go out for consideration by local governments and county officials. "We would like to have that process complete within 90 days," Mack said.

Two-thirds of the communities in the county would have to approve the plan to put it into effect. If the county plan is not approved, the state Department of Natural Resources has said it will impose a plan on the county.

Mack said he hopes to get all of the objections out of the way at this stage, so that approval of the plan comes easily.

Spring break

Students, teachers enjoy time off

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The lazy days of summer may still be a couple of months away, but that isn't stopping many Northville students and teachers from relaxing in the sun during this week's spring break.

From kindergartners to high school seniors, students as well as teachers are flocking to far away places like Arizona, Florida and California, to relax in preparation for the home stretch of the 1989 school year.

"I'm going to Tucson, Ariz., to visit my aunt and watch some baseball games," said Northville High freshman Jerry Birdsall. "I also can't wait to swim and just relax in the sun."

Birdsall's friend and Northville High freshman Jeff Berkaw said he's going to spend his week off in Los Angeles — playing baseball and touring the area.

"I'm looking forward to not having to do homework and resting my mind for a week," Berkaw said, adding the stressless period during his vacation will be a welcome change from his normally hectic schedule.

Winchester fourth grader Karen Hough said she is going to Houston for a week to visit her relatives and spend some time in the sun.

"I haven't seen my cousins in quite a while," Hough said, adding she really needed a break.

"I'm not excited to come back, just to get away," she said, laughing. Meanwhile, Michigan's recent surge of summer-like weather has also given students planning to stay in Northville for the holiday, a chance to relax and take in some sun.

That is unless getting a Florida-like sun tan is a necessity. "I'm not going anywhere during vacation, but I am going to spend some time at a tanning booth," said junior Regina Laramie.

Shopping at Twelve Oaks and spending time with friends is the way many Northville students will spend their week off, according to freshman Tracy Janbor.

"I'll be staying at home for the holidays, but I really need a week off," Janbor said, adding the shops at Twelve Oaks may not be the same after spring break.

Enjoying a week at home or far away is not limited to students during spring break.

High School English teacher Mike Tarpinian said he plans to spend the holiday week at his cottage in Houghton Lake "relaxing and doing nothing but watching television."

"Spring break is like the Army's rest and relaxation breaks," Tarpinian said. "Vacations help prevent burnout and let teachers and students get their batteries recharged for the final phase of school."

Northville High secretary Nan Oliver said she plans to visit her daughter in Dallas for five days and catch up with what's going on with her family.

"Because I use so much energy while working, getting away usually lets me catch up with myself and get ready for the end of the school year," Oliver said.

More info on millage sought

The question of whether to hold another park development millage election in the city may come before the city council next month, but probably only after the question of election scheduling is clarified further.

Northville City Manager Steve Walters said Monday that the city was waiting to hear from state officials on when the election could be held. Officials had been investigating the possibility of including another park vote as part of the general city election in November.

The millage was a joint proposal in the city and township last November. Township voters approved it but city voters defeated it, meaning it could not be levied in either community.

The question that has been discussed since then is, how long can the city wait and still have passage of the question be valid to levy the tax in both communities?

Two written opinions from the township attorney have concluded that the millage would have to pass in the city by September in order for the tax to be levied.

Walters said Monday that the city was checking with state officials — through State Rep. Gerald Law's office — to check on the limits of when the election may be held.

Once the information is in hand, the issue will probably be put on a city council agenda as an informational item, Walters said. It is not yet scheduled on any particular date.

The council has not yet voted on whether to hold another election.

If levied, the tax would be 9 mill for two years. It would develop the Northville Community Park site on Beck Road above Five Mile with ball fields, soccer fields and other facilities.

Assessors analyze sales after group homes arrive

Contrary to a comment made at the Northville public hearing, Mardiros said there is no across-the-board assessment break for houses next to group homes. Any reductions come the usual way — through the city board of review — and those cases are taken individually, just like any other appeal.

"It depends on what the board of review thinks (about) having the group home in the neighborhood. It's their discretion," Mardiros said.

If the board reduces an assessment because of a group home one year, the next year, "I put 'em all back again," he said. "The assessor does not reduce homes in the neighborhood of a group home a penny."

The Livonia board often considers a group home a business, he said. Originally, it was thought values in an entire block might be affected, but lately the board has reduced the perceived influence of the homes, he added.

Now, Mardiros said, the board hears appeals based on the group home as a nuisance — similar to people asking for assessment reductions because of an irritating neighbor. "We've got people coming in, saying they've got a loose cannon behind them and it's making their life miserable," he said.

"We've got a good number of group homes. The overall picture is rather serene, but we have three or four incidents each year," Mardiros said.

In addition to property value, Mardiros said another concern is the number of people who will consider buying a home next to a group home. "It does reduce the number of people who would look at your home," he said.

Realtors are not allowed to disclose the presence of a nearby group home, and Mardiros suggested that fact might mean something. "If you mask something, there must be a reason," he said. "I think there's something inherently wrong in that logic somewhere."

In the City of Plymouth, Assessor/Treasurer Ken Way reports no noticeable impact from group homes. He said Plymouth has three group homes, two of which are in expensive, single-family residential neighborhoods — New England Village, northwest of Sheldon and North Territorial, and Parklane, east of Sheldon on Beech.

"I haven't noticed any dramatic change in the values in those two areas," Way said. "They're in two very nice subdivisions. I don't believe they've made any change, from what we can see."

Way said one reason for that may be the strong market for homes in Plymouth. "Our demand for homes seems to exceed the supply," he said. "The community as a whole is coming up."

Wayne County Director of Assessment and Equalization George McEachran said he had no real evidence of group homes affecting nearby property values.

However, he said, it is not uncommon for communities to lower assessments of houses immediately adjacent to a group home. That should never happen without direct documentation of the effect, he added.

"We don't recommend (an assessment reduction based on a group home) without some kind of proof or testimony or whatever," McEachran said.

He added that such an effect is possible. "If it happens one place, chances are it would happen again," he said.

John Person, secretary of the state Tax Commission, said the commission had no hard data of its own on any effect of group homes on property values.

"It's hard to find someone who's not biased one way or the other. And sometimes they're living in the same house," Person said. "It becomes a very emotional thing sometimes in some communities."

Like McEachran, Person emphasized the need for evidence before assessments are changed. "Our view of something like that would be if there were some empirical demonstration of values increasing or values decreasing, that were related to that or any other factor, the assessing officer would have to take it into account," he said.

Worries about property value declines can become a self-fulfilling prophecy, Person added. If a seller expects a group home to affect the value, and a buyer expects the group home to affect the value, then it certainly will.

But a group home does not necessarily have to have an impact, Person continued. If it is not expected to happen, it might not, he said.

"That's something we really don't have any empirical information on. What it does is generate some conversation. How knowledgeable that conversation is — that really varies case to case to case," he said.

Huron Valley Hospital's Physicians Referral Program.

Because some things
just can't wait.

One of the most important parts of good health is a regular checkup, for everyone, not just the kids. If it's been "too long" since someone in your family has seen a doctor, no matter the reason, you can do something now. Maybe just a little reminder and a gentle nudge are all it will take. But perhaps some help finding the right doctor will be necessary. If that's the case, let Huron Valley Hospital's no charge Physicians Referral Program go to work for your family.

As close as the phone, our health care professionals are ready to listen and help. They understand all the reasons for needing a referral — new in town; doctor has retired; never had a doctor; just not comfortable with this doctor. Whatever the reason, whatever the need, the Huron Valley Hospital's Physicians Referral Program can help your family find the right doctors.

Ask us about office hours and locations. Give us your preference for male or female doctors. Do you want a Family Practice physician? Do you need a specialist? Huron Valley Hospital has more than 300 physicians on staff. Our doctors are located here in the community and throughout Oakland, Livingston and Wayne Counties. We'll find just the right doctor for you. And when we do, you'll have the comfort of knowing that if hospitalization is ever necessary, you'll stay in the neighborhood, because you, your family and your doctor are all part of the same Huron Valley Hospital family.

Fax machine Ok'd for city

The City of Northville is joining the fabulous world of facsimile.

The city council Monday agreed to spend $2,000 on a fax machine to transmit and receive images over phone lines. That will include both the cost of the fax machine — about $1,800 — and the installation of a new phone line.

City Manager Steve Walters recommended the purchase for several reasons.

Most importantly, he said, a fax machine will soon be required by the 35th District Court. The court will need it to communicate with local police departments, Walters said.

The new machine will be located in the police department, but will be available for general operations of city government.

The police department will be able to use the fax machine for things like information-sharing with other departments, Walters said.

In addition, he said, the city has been using a commercial fax service to exchange documents with people like the city attorney and city planning consultant. That costs about $3 per page.

A memo from Walters to the council says that the fax machine was not specifically budgeted in the current year, but is within the amount for administrative purchases.

County land sale history continues with new twist

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The sale of the 1,040 acres of Wayne County-owned land in Northville Township has been talked about for the past 11 years. The county-owned land deal has at times looked like a sure thing, while at other times it has looked like it may never occur.

Following is a brief recap on the history of the sale of the land.

• FEBRUARY 4, 1967 — Bob Wisler, county communications director for economic development said the county is advertising the land in local publications for proposals from developers.

"I do believe that some of this land will be sold, and I think it (the sale) will go through this time," said Supervisor Georgina Goss.

"I'll get excited when the sale goes through," said former community development director Matt Modrack.

• APRIL 2, 1967 — The Lambrecht Company, based in Detroit, received the endorsement of a four-person committee to survey and market 1,040 acres of Wayne County owned land in Northville Township.

• APRIL 9, 1967 — Questions from the Wayne County Commission about hiring the Lambrecht Company to market the 1,040 acres of county-owned land delay the sale.

The recommendation to hire Lambrecht is made by the county executive's office.

"I have had the recommendation (to hire Lambrecht) on my desk since March 26, but I have some very serious questions which I need to have resolved before I can bring the matter to the commission," said Commissioner Arthur Carter, D-Detroit.

• JULY 23, 1967 — Deputy County Executive Michael Duggan said the commission is "playing politics" by holding up the awarding of the contract to Lambrecht.

"There is no reason not to award the contract, get the marketing study completed and the land on the tax rolls," Duggan said.

He noted that the contract had been in a commission committee for months now, and there has been no action.

• DECEMBER 17, 1967 — James Mawson, president of the Lambrecht Company, said his firm is in the process of completing the study of the property and has been meeting regularly with officials in the county's economic development department.

"But to be perfectly honest, the county keeps changing what it wants to do with the land," Mawson said.

• DECEMBER 31, 1967 — County Executive Ed McNamara meets with local officials in what is termed a "preliminary meeting" regarding the sale of the land.

Goss said the meeting was amiable and that the executive "wanted to see what uses the township currently has for the land."

McNamara informed township officials that it would be 60 more days before the Lambrecht land valuation study would be completed.

• JUNE 2, 1968 — Dewitt Henry, deputy county executive for economic development said a rough draft of the Lambrecht study has been completed with "no surprises."

Although he would not release details, Henry did say there were "no surprises and no golf course" proposed in the draft.

Henry said he expects a "minimum of two years" before any building actually takes place.

• JUNE 23, 1968 — A contract with a developer for county-owned land is expected to be signed by Dec. 1, according to sources in the county executive's office.

By then, a developer's contract should be "signed, sealed and delivered" for the 1,040-acre site, said Bob Wisler.

"Construction would begin with the next construction season," Wisler said, adding a March-April 1969 date seem likely.

• FALL 1968 — A series of unanticipated obstacles hinder the project from being completed by December, according to county business development director Bill Wild.

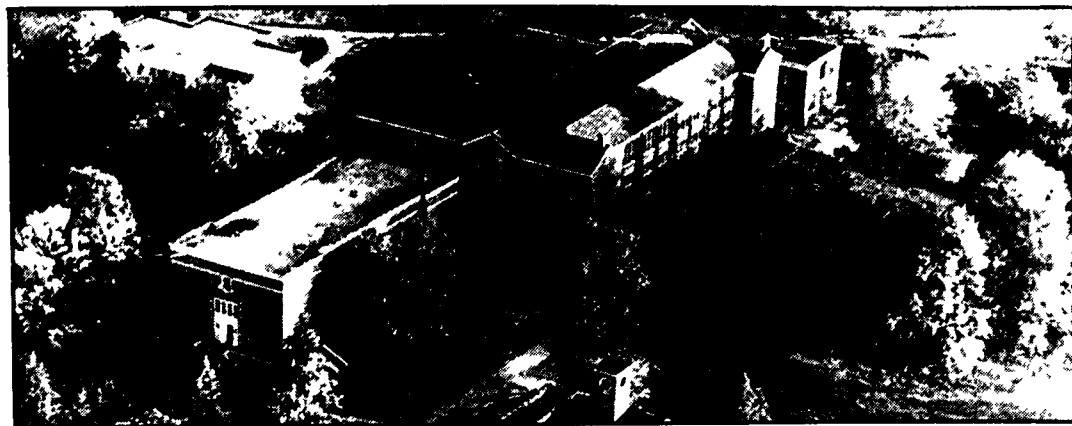

"We had to spend time on these obstacles, which put the project on hold until everything else could be attended to," Wild said adding one of the obstacles was how the land deal would relate to the Wayne County solvency program.

"The state did not want the Northville land disposed of until it knew its role in the county's solvency package," Wild said.

• NOVEMBER 17, 1968 — In a meeting with township officials, representatives from Wayne County present a timetable that would culminate with an agreement between the county and a developer by April 15, 1969.

Henry said the land is being readvertised and "if we receive a good proposal hopefully we'll be able to tighten up our schedule."

"I think it is very encouraging that they (Wayne County officials) have a time schedule," Goss said. "It looks like a good plan and I hope they can stick to it."

County plans to restart sale

"I think that it is in the best interest of Northville Township for the project to get moving whether consultants are to be used or not," Heintz said, adding she is happy to see the project "back on course."

Movement on the project came to a halt last month after the Commission's Ways and Means Board voted 3-2 to deny funding of the $300,000 proposal.

Dewitt Henry, county director of economic development and jobs, said on Feb. 27 that "the project will sit idle until something happens."

"This has come down to a power struggle between the (county) executive and the commission over the budget," Henry said then, adding the funding delay had nothing to do with the county land sale.

Heintz, who was one of the two committee members to approve Henry's budget request, said the proposal was defeated because a funding source had not been secured.

On March 3, Henry sent letters to all of the potential developers of the land, informing them that the project was delayed due to the commission's failure to approve the $300,000 proposal.

"The apparent issue is that the County Executive does not have the identifiable income at this time to cover the $200,000 to $300,000 of expenses we are asking the commission to approve," Henry wrote in his letter to developers.

In response to Henry's letter, Commissioner Clarence Young (D-Ecorse), wrote Henry that he "misled ... developers about the real status of the Northville project."

"Perhaps the misrepresentations ... are an effort to divert attention from the lack of cooperation — or lack of interest in developing the Northville site — which you have encountered with the executive branch," Young wrote.

Heintz said the apparent power struggle between the county's Democrats is "not my cup of tea. My main concern is that the interests of Northville Township are served."

Noting the executive's office is very frustrated that the commission could not appropriate the money, Duggan said he thinks Heintz could have done more to get the proposal through.

"The project has dragged on for two years and we (county executives) have been frustrated at every turn," Duggan said, adding he believes the commission's metro Detroit caucus is responsible for the delay.

"The county has behaved in a juvenile manner in this whole affair and I wonder if any developer will want to do business with us," he added.

Heintz said Kay Beard (D-Westland), a member of the commission's suburban caucus, voiced strong objections to the county's consultant proposal.

"The Ways and Means Board objected not to the project, but the process of funding the county's proposal," she said, adding commissioners only wanted to see a secured funding source.

Meanwhile, Duggan said he believes the commission did not have the best interests of Wayne County or Northville Township in mind.

"Their denial of the proposal hinders our ability to structure the project for the long-term in the best interests of the county and Northville Township," he noted.

Despite the denial of funds, Duggan said the project is "back on, unless the commission can find another way to screw it up."

Planners' comments differ on Cady Street future

ment along Cady, the study estimates a market exists in the area for 50,000 square feet of retail space and 10,000 square feet of office over the next 20 years.

- Emphasize pedestrian traffic with small open plazas and easy walking between Main and Cady. Wortman suggested "Cady Court" as a working concept.

- Maintain and enhance a Victorian, rural theme for the community — including brick facing and no buildings above three stories

- Develop an efficient transportation network.

The three alternative concepts for development all mix retail, parking and office use in different amounts and configurations. One would stretch a parking deck across Cady Street.

Any redevelopment should be considered in a phased approach over 20 years, Wortman said, particularly the idea of relocating Cady to make a more direct connection between Griswold and Center.

"It's likely that Cady Street will probably exist in some form for at least the next five years," he said. Assuming the track continues to operate as it is currently, a new route is not likely, he said.

At the same time, Wortman said another alignment should be kept as an eventual possibility: "We have to keep our options open."

But some commissioners objected to the idea of reducing the role of the current Cady, some saying they thought it should be expanded to relieve traffic on Main Street and provide an east-west route through town.

"I object strenuously to the atrophy of Cady. I'll say it again and again and again," commissioner Chris Gazlay said.

Commissioner Don McCulloch also said Cady should become a thoroughfare, and said the three development alternatives were really one. He also questioned the need to develop Cady with more retail space.

"I don't know of anyone, other than the people who own property downtown... who really want to develop along Cady Street," McCulloch said. "The downtown business people want more retail development, as long as you don't build a bicycle shop next to my bicycle shop or a clothing store next to my clothing store, or closer to parking than my clothing store."

McCulloch said vacancies in Novi could easily get worse.

"Who wants it? Who needs it? The citizens of Northville?" he asked. "If I want more retail I'll go up to Twelve Mile and Novi Road."

"So the commercial goes some other place. Who cares? I don't care if you bring people in from South Lyon. I want my neighbors to come downtown."

Mayor Chris Johnson, who was sitting in the audience for the commission meeting, broke in at this point to say that redeveloping Cady should be a good way to improve services to the residents of the community.

"Fifteen years ago, downtown Northville was dying. It was literally rolling up and going away," Johnson said. The reason for the formation of the DDA was to improve downtown as an asset to the community.

"It's pretty much the collective feeling of the DDA that the mission has not been accomplished," he said. "We need more to sustain a viable downtown... than what we have right now."

The DDA view is to "replicate, as much as possible, what we have along Main Street... so that the rest of downtown survives," he said.

McCulloch countered that there is little reason to think stores on Cady would serve residents any more than existing stores.

Johnson also said developing Cady will provide needed tax base to ease the tax burden on citizens.

Commission Chairperson Dick Wilhelm said he has heard comments from citizens which back up Mc-

Culloch's view. "I hear from people in the community that they like the open spaces. Why do they have to fill everything in downtown with brick and mortar? Why can't they leave some of it open?"

Wilhelm also took issue with part of the study, specifically the policy to maintain a Victorian and rural character. "We're not, because we're not doing it now," he said.

Expectations of an improving quality of life are based on "wild assumptions" about a continuing healthy economy and low inflation, he added. If the city really wants to improve quality of life, he continued, there should be policy statements recognizing that the community is changing.

Commissioner David Totten responded, "We have to walk a tightrope between leaving the city as it is, and letting it possibly molder away... We don't want that; on the other hand, we don't want a real high-speed situation."

The community needs to take a middle road, "without overdeveloping, Birmingham style, or without letting it completely die," Totten added.

Gazlay added, "Basically, I'm not happy with the overall view of this restricted Cady Corridor... It's my feeling that you still have to get cars through there."

Commissioner Greg Presley suggested opening Cady through as a two-way street to Wing might be a good step. He also said phased commercial development on Cady would be good for the city.

"A modest increase in commercial is all right by me in the next five to 20 years," he said. He agreed that services to residents should be a primary concern.

Presley favored the third of the planners' three alternative designs, the one with a deck across Cady.

"It would be a pretty dominant structure," Wortman said.

Commission Vice Chairperson John Hardin favored the first two schemes. "I don't ever recall seeing a three-story Victorian parking deck," he commented.

Wortman said the planners would further consider the questions of the future character of Cady, and of the need for an east-west connector road.

The commission also discussed parking in regard to Cady, a topic which also got a lot of attention when the DDA looked at the study draft.

Bowles said several different ways to calculate the need for parking downtown suggest that the problem is more one of distribution than of a lack of spaces.

Although using the formula in the zoning ordinance shows a shortage of 424 spaces, other methods of calculating show a need for fewer Bowles said. The spaces mostly do exist downtown, but not in the exact right places, he said.

Changing patterns of employee parking could address that, he added. "The employees downtown are taking the good spaces so the customers have to park somewhere else," he said.

Wortman said that based on that, the planners were recommending that only part of the available land along Cady be used for parking.

A couple members of the commission were unsure about underestimating the need for parking.

"I am still apprehensive about cutting the parking figure down this much," Totten said. "I agree, at two o'clock in the morning you can sure as heck park around here."

After the discussion, Wortman said the planners would refine their designs and continue to meet with officials. The study will eventually include a refined, recommended development concept, including a plan for implementation and funding.

The goal is to finish work in about two months, Wortman said.

The study is being funded through the Community Development Block Grant program.

Prescription drugs missing from NRHP

Neither the Michigan Attorney General's office nor the Wayne County Prosecutor's office would comment on the investigation.

He noted that no local druggists are involved in the sale of the hospital's prescription drugs, which include blood pressure, inflammation and ulcer medication.

NRHP Director Walter Brown said he has no comment on the state police investigation, but said an internal investigation is also being conducted and should conclude within one week.

"We've been conducting an internal investigation long before the police audit," Brown said. "But we are also working with the police to help them in their investigation."

Brown added the hospital's investigation of stolen prescription drugs from their pharmacy has been going on for "quite some time."

Mattoli said the state police do not normally conduct an audit of state hospitals, but decided to pursue the matter based on a complaint.

"This has been a very complex investigation because we have had to look through a great number of invoices and amounts of drugs," Mattoli added.

Our Opinions

Manhole deaths need thorough investigation

No one would deny that the death of two men working in a local manhole Friday was a painful tragedy. But the story does not end with the deaths.

The apparent cause of death — inhaling freon instead of oxygen — deserves a prompt and thorough investigation.

There is a real danger here that the inquiries into the death will be only cursory, considered to be a terrible accident, sure, but nothing more.

It cannot be assumed that this accident could not have been prevented. Maybe it could have been, and maybe not. The investigators from the Northville Township Police Department and the Michigan Department of Public Health need to take a very serious look at this question. We hope they fully examine the possibility of filing charges; they owe that to families and the men who died.

No one should die from inhaling freon in a manhole. The question of why two men did, desperately needs an answer.

Victorian festival is good idea for Northville

This newspaper has some ties to the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce. The paper has a membership, and the editor sits on the chamber board of directors.

Because of that, we hesitated to editorialize in support of a planned Victorian festival, an event the chamber is organizing. But we didn't hesitate for very long — because, all chamber ties aside, it's a great idea.

The new event would replace the Autumnfest, a somewhat undistinguished event of recent falls. There was no real problem with Autumnfest, but it didn't attract the kind of interest and crowds of which Northville should be capable.

A Victorian festival in the community ought to change all that. It fits the character and history of the town, it's very distinctive, and the theme gives rise to all kinds of possibilities for events and activities.

There are plenty of fall festivals around, but how many with a Victorian theme? If organized and publicized well, this event can be a real regional attraction for Northville. And a lot of fun for the residents as well.

The steering committee behind the festival wants a lot of community participation, and we strongly encourage people to get involved. Greg Presley, who suggested the idea, and the chamber as a whole, have a real winner here, at least in concept.

Pursue Ford recognition

The news that the Ford Plant is finally closing on June 9 — as far as we know — means a chapter in Northville history will be coming to an end. While the community has been gearing up for the closure for over a year now, the impending end to operations at the corner of Griswold and Main streets means the time is here to begin serious discussions on what will happen next.

As part of that process, the historical significance and value of the Ford plant should be highlighted. Placing buildings on the National Register of Historic Places is a time-consuming task. While the significance of a place on the national register is primarily ceremonial, the process by which a building is registered can help individuals and communities realize the value of the structure.

The Northville plant has a significant background. Henry Ford purchased the building in 1919 and renovated it. The site became the first of Ford's "village industry" plants in operation and eventually employed almost 200 of the nearby farm residents as workers at the plant.

The history of the structure is tied closely not only with the industrial cycle of Michigan, but with village life in Northville. The plant is already part of the city's Historic District, but it may deserve national dedication on its own.

A resident or community group would do Northville a favor by pursuing the placement of the Northville Ford Plant on the National Register of Historic Places. The process begins at the state level with the Michigan Historical Society.

March madness

By Neil Geoghegan

If it's March, the NCAA College Basketball Tournament must be in full force. There are many who really don't care about it, but it's hard to imagine anybody in the country who doesn't know that it exists, simply because of the vast media exposure. That's excluding, of course, the jurors assigned to the Ollie North trial.

It all starts when 64 teams are picked by the NCAA committee to participate (although certainly not the top 64 teams) and all the newspapers print the bracket in their sports section the next day. Soon there are office pools, bets and the like all over the place. At the Record, we have a pool and the completed brackets are hanging on the wall. My sleeper was Florida State, Phil Ginotti went with Georgia Tech, Bob Needham liked West Virginia and Bruce Weintraub thought it would be Southwest Missouri State (who?). They all lost in the first two rounds — maybe that's why photographer Chris Boyd is currently in first place.

I heard that Princeton, the Ivy League representative, was a billion-to-one longshot to win the title. But it didn't look like it when the Tigers went out and almost pulled off the biggest upset in tourney history before falling to top-seeded Georgetown by one point. There are other lesser-known colleges — like Robert Morris (no relation to Jack Morris) and George (don't call me James) Mason — who also made the field. And a team like McNeese State — who never made a tournament appearance when Piston star Joe Dumars was on the team — somehow made it.

The great thing about March Madness is that there are usually upsets and that leads to Cinderella teams that the common fan can really get behind. I wouldn't know East Tennessee State from Middle Tennessee State, but I have to admit it was fun to see both teams do well in the first round.

There were a few upsets in the first-round (where is Sienna and how did they beat Stanford?), but none in the final 16 this year. Where are the Richmonds, the Rhode Islands and the Penns? Minnesota was the only low seed to go very far, but they can not be considered a Cinderella team. Big Ten squads aren't allowed and Gopher Coach Clem Haskins would look silly in a pair of glass slippers anyway.

Everybody has a favorite for one reason or another, and when that one gets knocked out, there is usually a few back-ups. Meadowbrook Country Club Professional Andy Soley is a graduate of Ball State in Muncie, Indiana. When the Cardinals finished the regular season at 28-2 and upset Pitt in the first round, he was on cloud nine. Mighty Illinois ended Ball State's run in the next round, however, so Soley was rooting for favorite number two — Bob Knight's Indiana team. "I always liked Indiana," he said.

In the office, Weintraub and Ann Willis — Michigan grads — are hoping former Coach Bill Frieder's abrupt exit to Arizona was just in time to end the Wolverines' tournament woes. Michigan State backers like Ginotti, Brenda Dooley and myself have to settle for the NIT tournament this year. It's still hard to believe it was 10 years ago this month that Magic Johnson led the Spartans to the National Title.

The experts say only the Super Bowl and World Series can match the NCAA Tournament for public attention and that's amazing.

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

I don't want to ruin my incredibly macho image, but... guess who had to do the shopping last Saturday night?

I know what you're thinking. I know it's virtually impossible to picture me shoving a shopping cart up and down the aisles of the Shopping Center Market. Busting bronses in a corral, yes. Swapping punches with some palooka in a friendly little workout down at the Kronk Gym, yes. Pumping iron over at the Powerhouse, sure.

But shoving a grocery cart? Never.

But the fact remains that that's exactly what I was doing, wheeling my way between the cauliflower and brussel sprouts in search of eggs, bread, cottage cheese and cat food.

And just about the time I was feeling most sheepish about doing what I was doing, I spotted her up ahead of me. Melissa Faulkner. The daughter of Novi Police Captain Richard Faulkner, and a young lady who will never ever win an ugly contest.

"Hey, Melissa," I yelled down the aisle, trying to sound as macho as I could while loading 28 cans of Little Friskies into my cart. "What're you doing here, tonight?"

Turns out that Melissa is living in Northville now. Has a little place on Beck Road, north of Eight Mile. She's also a professor at Wayne State University.

I checked out her shopping cart and discovered that she's eating well. No junk food whatsoever. Lots of fruit, vegetables and whole wheat bread. It's pretty obvious that her parents raised her well.

The only bad part of the whole thing was that she still calls me, "Mr. Jerome." But overall we had a nice little chat. In fact, I just might volunteer to do the grocery shopping next Saturday night.

Home support comes from distance

To the Editor:

Regarding the editorial on the group facility published in the March 16 Northville Record: the position of the editorial staff pretty much reflects that of most of the people outside the Lexington South neighborhood.

Put succinctly, the concern over placement of the facility is inversely proportional to distance from the facility. "Just keep the darn thing out of my neighborhood and I won't complain" seems to be the popular opinion. Besides if Lexington South gets this home, the pressure will be off the other city neighborhoods in this state controlled game of "musical" houses.

It should be noted that both editors of the Northville Record, who take the pompous position that Northville should gratefully accept this facility, live approximately 2.5 miles from the location. One being a neighbor of Senator Bob Geake who a year ago vigorously opposed the placement of a similar facility in a Northville township neighborhood. That blocking effort was successful by the way, and a grateful resident said "we couldn't have done it without Bob Geake". Where was the Record editorial staff then?

Arguing that the city's formal opposition to the home does not make "much sense", the editors rhetorically inquire "what effect do the prisons (and other public facilities) have on life in the city (Northville)? Evidently these local, well informed representatives of the journalistic profession have not noticed that over the last eight years the city and township have become the highest residentially taxed areas in a state that is a running joke for excessively high taxes.

The correlation that is beyond the editors' grasp is that the huge percentage of land under public domain in the form of prisons and mental health facilities is a revenue "sink" and not a "source" as is the case with business or residential property.

In fact, I can't recall ever seeing a Record editorial which was critical or even questioned the ridiculous rate of property taxes in Northville. Usually the Record's position supports increased taxation.

The editorial also states that the physically disabled "have as much right as anyone to live in Northville". Well I have as much right as anyone to live in the most expensive West Bloomfield neighborhood, but I must also live within my economic means. Evidently the understanding of fiscal responsibility is also beyond the grasp of our editors.

In conclusion, the editorial shows little investigation or understanding of the situation. We understand the limitations of a small, weekly newspaper. However, let's not in addition be so pathetically condescending as to use the collective "we" and "us" in suggesting a welcome for our new neighbors.

Harrison answer

To the Editor:

I have in my hands a copy of your recent article addressing the issue of a proposal to increase the number of high school football classifications, and you have made numerous comments regarding the Harrison Football Program and coaches which I feel you should be more informed on.

1. Harrison does not put extra emphasis on the football program at the expense of others. This year's boys' basketball team was very successful and as for the girl's basketball team and other sports, we do not have a very strong Middle School program to get our students involved and therefore, some sports suffer.

2. Evidently you have not done your homework on the budget issue of Harrison vs. Farmington or you would have known that they receive the same amounts from Farmington Public Schools for football. We do have a strong parent booster club which I will agree with you, contributes to the success of the football program but isn't this our right as free Americans? Farmington is just now realizing that they need to do the exact thing to be successful in their program and we at Harrison wish them the best.

3. As far as putting our eggs in one basket, you are right. In that basket we have Coach Herrington, Coach Sutter, Coach Sallow and many people helping to make our program a success. During football season these coaches spend a minimum of ten hours on Sunday preparing the game plan for the week and this is only one of the ways in which they help our team be successful. How many coaches do you know that are that willing to give of themselves to be constantly judged by false statements such as those in this article for a job well done.

We moved from Detroit one year ago and I sought out (was not recruited as many people think) a good high school with a strong football program and have been extremely proud of Harrison and all the athletic and academic programs. I feel you owe an apology to the school as well as the coaches for your untruths and your totally unfounded comments.

One last item, this year before the game between Harrison and Northville, the cable channel in your area aired some rather nasty accusations on how we were going to clean our clocks. THANKS! We didn't need your help to win but it sure did help. Harrison Football Program has a lot of class, maybe something could be learned from them.

We realize that we are always under attack because we are so successful but it is very frustrating for those who put in so much hard work and time to always be criticized. If you are really interested in learning what makes us successful, come visit with us, see for yourself and learn for yourself what our program and school is all about. I will be happy to help you.

Cheering thanks

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to offer a big "Congratulations and thank you!" to the 1988-89 Northville High School Varsity Cheerleading Squad. I felt that this was the only way these girls would get any public recognition for the hard work they have done throughout the year. The cheerleaders are often overlooked and very few seem to appreciate their contributions to the school and the community.

Beginning last June, they have worked their hardest to boost morale and project a good image of our town.

The cheerleaders practiced through a long, hot summer to be prepared to present enthusiastic and creative cheers to the students, faculty, athletes and fans. During the football season, the girls sacrificed much of their own time and money in decorating the houses of the football team to encourage school spirit.

They had a short break in November, but started right up again when the basketball season began. The cheerleaders continued to provide smiles and encouragement to the basketball players, as well as more of their own time and money. Then, most recently, the girls won first place in their league at a competition involving several other schools. This achievement is certainly deserving of some recognition.

I am not a parent of a cheerleader. I am a student, and I do not even go to Northville High School. I am just a friend of some of the cheerleaders, and I felt that the lack of appreciation for the squad was unexcusable. I think that everybody — students, fans, the community and especially the athletic organization at Northville High School — owes the Varsity Cheerleaders a big thank you and congratulations on a job well done.

The excellent work of the Freshmen and Junior Varsity squads should not be forgotten, either. The Junior Varsity cheerleaders won third place in their league at the competition, also. Let's show the cheerleaders how much we appreciate them; they have definitely earned it!

Big gains

To the Editor:

The Northville Action Council wishes to thank The Northville Record, especially Editor Ann E. Willis and Staff Reporter Bruce Weintraub for the continuing support in our effort to inform our community of the need of drug awareness and control.

From a small beginning last June, to the present, substantial gains have been made and more are to be expected. It is through the Northville Record that much of the gains have been possible.

For this reason I am writing you so that you realize that your concern and efforts are gratefully appreciated.

Luncheon recognizes youth assistance

This is another in the continuing series of columns written for the record by Mary Ellen King, Director of Northville Youth Assistance.

Wayne County Executive, Edward McNamara declared March 19-25 Youth Assistance (YA) Week in Wayne County. A reception and luncheon were held on Monday, March 20 honoring all of the county YA programs. Proclamations by Ed McNamara were presented to the program directors.

The Youth Assistance concept began in 1982 in Livonia. At that time, an administrative assistant to then Mayor of Livonia, Ed McNamara, conceived the idea of matching youths who were referred by the Livonia Police Department with local volunteers.

It was learned that the police were sending juvenile offenders to Wayne County Juvenile Court and the court was dismissing the majority of the cases. The offenses that were being committed were not serious enough for the court to take action. Therefore, the youths were not learning the consequences of their behavior.

Once the program was in operation in Livonia, many of the juvenile offenders were able to stay within their own community and work with a volunteer. The volunteers helped the youths understand their actions and encouraged them to discontinue their delinquent behavior. Since the program began, 80 percent of the youths that have successfully completed the program have not returned through the Criminal Justice System.

Because of this success rate, other communities in Wayne County developed YA programs. Northville was the eighth program in the county. Today there are 18 programs servicing 22 communities in Wayne County. Long term plans include establishing YA programs in every community in Wayne County, thus providing families throughout the county with access to a community-based service.

Each program in the county uses the basic model of the Livonia program but then adjusts its format to meet the needs of the youths in their area. Since Northville has a much smaller population than Livonia, it was decided from the onset that the program would not rely solely on police referrals, but also call upon the schools to refer youths to the program who could benefit from being matched with an adult.

To date, NYA has received 1/2 of their referrals from the police, 1/2 from the schools and 1/2 from parents seeking help. Ninety-seven percent of the youths in Northville referred by the police have had no further contact with the police department. Keeping youth within their own community seems to be the wave of the future.

The 22 communities in Wayne County with YA programs are to be commended for their concern for their local youths. And Ed McNamara is to be commended for honoring the communities' efforts.

Commission Order - CFI-104.89A

(Under the authority of Act 230 of the Public Acts of 1925, as amended)

Statewide Trout and Salmon Regulations

Under the authority of Act 230 of the Public Acts of 1925, as amended, being sections 300.1 to 300.5 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the Natural Resources Commission, at its February 10, 1989, meeting, ordered that for a period of four years:

The open season on lake trout in Lake Huron and its tributary streams and in Lake Michigan and its tributary streams shall be from May 1 through Labor Day.

On the Great Lakes and connecting waters the size limit for trout and salmon shall be 10" and the possession limit shall be 5 fish singly or in combination but no more than 3 of any one species except pink salmon nor more than 2 lake trout or splake from Lake Michigan. A bonus of 5 pink salmon may be taken from the St. Mary's River from the last Saturday in April through September 30.

On inland lakes the size limit on trout and salmon shall be 10" and the possession limit shall be 5 in any combination. On streams from the last Saturday in April to September 30 the size limit on trout and salmon shall be 7" in the Upper Peninsula and 8" in the Lower Peninsula and the possession limit shall be 10 in any combination but no more than 3 over 16" unless they are pink salmon; at all other times of the year on streams open to extended trout and salmon fishing the size limit shall be 16" and the possession limit shall be 3 trout or salmon in any combination.

This order modifies the Commission order entitled "Statewide Trout and Salmon Regulations," effective April 1, 1988 and assigned number CFI-104.88.

This order shall take effect on April 1, 1989, and shall remain effective through March 31, 1993

On her own Fedrigo owns Palm Beach Patio

By PHILIP JEROME

She figured out how to get through high school quickly by enrolling in alternative education classes.

She dropped out of college after six months because it "was costing me money."

And today, at 29 years of age, she's president of her own company — Palm Beach Patio, which recently opened its second store in the Novi Town Center.

"I guess I have a different way of looking at things," smiled Jane Fedrigo, one of a growing number of young female entrepreneurs.

"I know how to work with the system."

Even her entry into the patio furniture business was unique.

After dropping out of Rochester (New York) Institute of Technology, Fedrigo took a variety of jobs, working at Chatham's, UPS and on the line at the Ford Motor Company's Wixom Assembly Plant until she had saved enough money to purchase her own home — a three-bedroom ranch in Livonia.

And what do you do with your own home?

You build a deck, of course. The only problem was that Fedrigo couldn't find any patio furniture she liked. So she traveled to Florida to visit a company named Pride which makes patio furniture out of polyvinyl chloride (PVC).

She liked what she saw so much that she purchased the furniture for her own patio. And, while she was there, purchased an entire truckload of the furniture to bring back home and sell in Michigan.

"I wasn't sure where I was going to sell it, but I had 60 days to work things out so there wasn't any real pressure," said Fedrigo from a small office in the back of her new store in the Novi Town Center.

"It just seemed like the thing to do," she added.

Fedrigo eventually found a small shop located in front of a mini-storage facility on M-59 in Waterford. She had the truckload of furniture delivered to the storage facility and opened her doors for business in the small shop.

"It was a pretty simple operation," she recalled. "Strictly a one-person business. I had enough room in the display room for eight display sets."

"Whenever I sold something to a customer who wanted to take it with them, I put up a sign that said 'Back in five minutes.' Then I got in the customer's car and we drove around back to the storage facility. We loaded it up, then I returned to the store to wait for the next customer."

"Somebody called the Better Business Bureau about me once because they thought it was a pretty strange way of running a business. I guess they just didn't understand the simplicity of the operation."

Today, Fedrigo is a member of the Better Business Bureau.

Fedrigo started Palm Beach Patio approximately five years ago. She found shortly later that the 1,000 square feet in the M-59 store front was insufficient for her needs, so she purchased a former Richardson's Dairy building containing 17,000 square feet on M-59 and was able to operate both a showroom and a warehouse out of the same building.

"By that time the patio furniture business looked like it had possibilities and I needed more room," she explained. "I had picked up my real estate license, and the building looked like a good investment regardless of whether the business made it or not."

Shortly later, Fedrigo began selling artificial Christmas trees from the Waterford store to keep things moving during the off-season for patio furniture. And the business continued to grow.

The opening of the new store in the Novi Town Center is obviously a major step forward for Fedrigo and JANICE SPARKS of Florals by Steven in South Lyon has been certified as a Junior Designer by Florists' Transworld Delivery Association. Executive Vice President John A. Borden announced recently.

Achieving certification in the Junior Designer category requires completion of a flower identification test and passing a series of tests requiring the design of specific floral arrangements from predetermined categories. Evaluation of arrangements is handled by an FTD Certified Floral Design judge.

Once all the requirements are met, newly-certified Junior Designers receive certificates presented by FTD in recognition of their accomplishment.

The Designer Club program was introduced by FTD in 1986 to encourage excellence and creativity in floral design, and to recognize the achievements and talents of those designers who excel in their work. FTD is a member-owned floral wire service comprised of over 24,000 retail florists throughout the United States and Canada.

GARY ELDRIDGE has been named to the newly-created position of Employee Benefits Manager at K.A. Tappan & Associates Ltd. of Novi.

Eldridge has served clients for all facets of employee benefits insurance for 15 years. The general areas of employee benefits are health, life, disability, dental and retirement plans.

Tappan & Associates provides commercial insurance to business clients.

FIREBAUGH & REYNOLDS ROOFING of Novi has been named "Master Contractor" for 1989 by Firestone Building Products Company, a division of The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company. It is the second consecutive year the company has achieved "Master Contractor" status.

According to Firestone, the coveted "Master Contractor" certification is conferred upon only 100 contractors from its organization of licensed roofing contractors throughout the U.S.

Firestone, the leading manufacturer of rubber membrane for installation on commercial roofs, annually certifies its top 100 licensed applicators, based upon the quality of their work in the installation of Firestone Roofing Systems. Quality points, based on the inspection rating given each installation, are aggregated throughout the year. The top 20 point-earners in each of the five Firestone sales regions are annually named "Master Contractors."

Those certified for "Master Contractor" status are rewarded with Firestone-originated local and national publicity, increased Business Builder's Co-op Advertising Fund and recognition at a Firestone-sponsored awards ceremony and dinner at the annual National Roofing Contractors Association Convention & Exhibit.

Firestone also publishes each Master Contractor's company name, address and phone number in a brochure which is made available to building owners, architects and general contractors for potential job referrals.

New tax bill contains some good news

While you weren't looking, Congress came up with yet another tax bill.

The good news is that the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988 (TAMRA) contains some pleasant surprises. Originally designed to correct certain "errors" in the Tax Reform Act of 1986, the new legislation contains provisions which can directly benefit individual taxpayers, including a Taxpayer Bill of Rights designed to prevent potential problems with the IRS.

The following summary, provided by the Michigan Association of CPAs, highlights some other features of the new law that are most likely to affect average taxpayers.

Tax-free College Savings Bonds: One provision sure to be a hit with low- and middle-income families is the introduction of college savings bonds that are free from federal income tax.

Interest on U.S. Series EE Savings Bonds purchased after 1989 will generally be tax-free as long as the bonds are redeemed to finance the qualified education expenses of the taxpayer, the taxpayer's children or a dependent spouse. (Note that qualified expenses include tuition and other required fees, but not room and board costs.)

To take advantage of this next tax break, you must meet certain requirements. First of all, you have to be at least age 24 when you purchase the bonds. Second, you have to be either the sole owner of the bonds or own them jointly with your spouse. Third, interest earned on the bonds is tax-free only if the student's annual education expenses equal or exceed the bonds' redemption amount.

If the amount redeemed exceeds the year's qualified educational costs, the amount of tax-free interest will be reduced proportionately.

One last point: the break is phased out for joint filers with an adjusted gross income (AGI) of $60,000 to $90,000 and for single filers with AGI of $40,000 to $55,000.

Parents Get a Break from Paperwork: If the new "kiddie tax" rules added to your filing woes last year the act may offer welcome relief. Starting with 1989 tax returns, some parents with children under age 14 may be able to report their children's income on their own tax returns as long as the income consists solely of interest and dividends and does not exceed $5,000.

In this case, the child will usually not be required to file a separate return. Before the new law, children with any unearned income and a total income over $500 had to file their own individual tax returns.

Good News for Mutual Fund Investors: Again: Have you heard the one about the tax rule that never took effect? The Tax Reform Act of 1986 introduced a provision requiring mutual funds to report certain investment expenses as income to the individual shareholders — even though those shareholders never received a corresponding payment.

The shareholders could then deduct the expenses as itemized miscellaneous expenses. As a result, taxpayers who could not itemize or whose miscellaneous expenses did not exceed two percent of their adjusted gross income could not deduct the expenses and would be taxed on income they never received.

In 1987, this rule was "temporarily" delayed. The 1988 Act extends the delay by two years — through 1989.

Exclusion of Gain Extended to Handicapped Taxpayers: If you are a homeowner, you probably know that you can defer tax on the gain from selling your primary residence as long as you reinvest the gain in a new home of equal or greater value within two years.

What you may not know is that, until the signing of TAMRA, a surviving spouse was not entitled to this tax break if he or she became widowed any time after the sale of the old residence and before the purchase of the new one.

Fortunately, the new tax law eliminates this problem. A surviving spouse may now defer gain on the sale of a primary residence provided he or she meets all other sale and replacement rules. The ruling is retroactive and applies to all sales of primary residences after December 31, 1984.

Exclusion of gain Extended to Handicapped Taxpayers: Without question, one of the homeowner's most valued tax breaks is the one-time only $125,000 exclusion-of-gain provision.

Under this rule, taxpayers who are at least age 55 may exclude tax on up to $125,000 of the gain from selling their primary residence. To be eligible for the exclusion, the taxpayer must live in the residence three out of the five years prior to the sale.

For taxpayers forced to sell their homes due to a physical or mental disability, the three-year requirement has sometimes meant losing a much-needed tax break. Under the new law, taxpayers who have become so physically or mentally incapable of caring for themselves that they must move into a nursing home or similar facility may now claim the $125,000 exclusion as long as they lived in their primary residence for at least one out of the previous five years. (This provision applies to sales of residences after September 30, 1988.)

And the Bad News: Two provisions of TAMRA may cause some groans among taxpayers. First, loans from single-premium life insurance policies taken out on or after June 21, 1988, will be treated first as taxable income and then as a return of investment.

In the past, the funds would have been free from tax. Moreover, if a policyholder withdraws funds prior to age 59½, the funds may also be subject to a 10 percent excise penalty.

The second piece of bad news mostly affects home-based workers and investors. Starting in 1989, no deduction will be allowed for the business or investment portion of the cost of the first telephone line.

The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants points out that these items are just a few of the provisions introduced by the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988. To ensure that you do not miss an opportunity or unknowingly violate the new law, the Michigan Association of CPAs suggests that you consult your own tax advisor.

Female entrepreneur sells patio furniture

Palm Beach Patio

Fedriga said she decided to open another store approximately two years ago — and selected Novi as the place she wanted to expand.

"Novi is the hot spot right now," she explained. "It's upscale, and it's growing fast. Plus a lot of my customers at the Waterford store came from Novi so it was a pretty logical place to move."

"Originally, I wanted to build my own facility, but it was difficult to find a place to build a freestanding retail outlet in Novi so I ultimately decided on the Town Center after checking out several of the other shopping centers."

"The Trammell Crow (owners of the Town Center) people have been very cooperative, and the city officials have been very easy to work with."

"It's a good spot, it's a very friendly city."

Palm Beach Patio still carries the line of Pride patio furniture which got Fedriga started five years ago. But Fedriga has expanded the product line considerably since that time.

Today, the store features such brands as Brown Jordan, Tropitone and Allibert to name only a few.

"Patio furniture is really diverse. Everyone has their own ideas on what is the best product for outdoors," Fedriga noted.

"We carry wrought iron, aluminum, steel and wood in addition to the polyvinyl chloride. There's no one material that everyone agrees is best for outdoor use. It's all very opinionated, each material has its pros and cons."

"We also carry outdoor accessories," she continued. "Tables, chairs, weighted bases and outdoor lighting. We've even got plates that will stick to the table in any wind short of a hurricane. And you've got to see our 'post lamps.' They can make a patio awfully romantic on a summer night."

Five years after buying a truckload of patio furniture with no firm idea of what she was going to do with it, Fedriga said the business is going well.

Most of the profits are re-invested in the business. Fedriga said she spends a lot of money on advertising and expanding her product lines.

Personally, Fedriga does not drive an expensive sports car. And she doesn't take expensive vacations. In fact, she doesn't take vacations at all.

"I enjoy working," she said. "I like to see my business grow. I'm not in business to make a lot of money as much as I'm in it for the satisfaction of taking a business and making it successful."

"It's the challenge — the achievement — that I find gratifying."

Fedriga said a current goal is to have three stores by the time she's 35. "Some day I would like for Palm Beach Patio to be a chain," she said. "I would like it to be 'multiple outlets' some day."

"I'm young and a little bit inclined on the risk-taking side," she continued. "But you've got to take risks when you're young because security becomes too important when you get older."

As for personal luxuries, Fedriga admits to only one.

"You should see the deck on my house," she said. "I have the most beautiful deck with the most beautiful patio furniture you could ever imagine. It's really stunning."

Tax tales from the IRS contain surprises

Guess which deduction the federal Tax Court has allowed: fees paid to an Indian medicine man or the meal costs incurred at a local hospital by two doctors who owned a professional corporation?

If you guessed the doctors' dinner expenses, you may know less about taxes than you think. Tax law can be quite surprising — as demonstrated by this April Fools' collection of true tax tales gathered by the Michigan Association of CPAs.

What a difference a comma makes: If you ever thought a misplaced comma was unimportant, this story may change your mind. Alice received a refund check for $49,000 rather than $4,900 due to a mistake made by an IRS computer. Alice notified the IRS of the error several times, but was told that the money was hers.

Over two years later, the IRS realized that it had blundered and tried to collect the inflated refund. However, the deadline for correcting mistakes on refund checks had elapsed, making it impossible for the IRS to get the money back. Alice kept the $49,000.

At the age of 40, a high school teacher decided to seriously pursue his dream of becoming a professional golfer. Not only did he take on an after-work job as an unpaid assistant to the pro at a local golf course, but he also practiced almost every day.

Over three years, he reported $3,000 in tournament winnings and $21,000 in expenses. The IRS disallowed the losses, arguing that golf was just the taxpayer's hobby. But the Tax Court disagreed. Since the aspiring golfer clearly intended to make a profit, the court deemed the losses legitimate.

Another side to medical deductions: A homeowner who was severely allergic to mold sneezed her way to an unusual deduction. The siding on her house had grown moldy, aggravating her allergies to an unbearable level. Her doctor recommended that she change her siding to alleviate her condition. The ruling? The cost of the siding (minus any increase in the home's value attributable to the new siding) was deductible as a medical expense.

In the dog house: A woman set a stack of bills in front of her certified public accountant. "These are my kennel bills," she explained. Since the woman had to put her dog in a kennel whenever she traveled on business, she intended to deduct the bills as unreimbursed business expenses.

"I wouldn't have the kennel expenses if I didn't have to travel for my job," she reasoned.

"Sorry," explained her CPA. According to tax law, she wouldn't have the expenses if she didn't have the dog. The kennel bills would not be deductible as a business expense.

A cheating spouse: For a number of years, Ralph hid money from his wife in various bank accounts. As a consequence, he underpaid his taxes during that time. When the IRS discovered the hidden accounts, it accused Ralph of tax fraud. But the Tax Court interpreted events differently.

According to the court, Ralph intended to hide the money from his wife and not the IRS. Since the IRS couldn't prove that tax evasion was Ralph's primary motivation, the court held that the IRS couldn't collect the tax for those years for which the statute of limitations had run out.

A costly boast: A drug dealer's boast resulted in a hefty tax bill. In a conversation with undercover IRS agents, the drug dealer bragged about the amount of money he earned as a result of his activities. Although the IRS found only $870,000 in the dealer's possession, it hit him with a $34 million tax bill based on the information he gave the undercover agents. In tax court, the multimillion dollar tax bill was upheld.

Diving for a deduction: A staggered work schedule enabled Randy to earn additional income as a rescue diver and as an instructor of searching for underwater treasures.

After three of his students found their fortunes in sunken shipwrecks, Randy decided it was time to do a little treasure-hunting of his own. He bought a specially-equipped boat and began searching for sunken treasure. Although he located a few shipwrecks and recovered several artifacts, his findings were essentially worthless.

However, the costs incurred during his treasure-hunting dives came to $11,851.

When Randy deducted his losses, the IRS objected since his activities had not resulted in a profit. But the tax court argued that Randy's treasure hunting was not just a recreational activity. Randy had conducted his activities in a business-like manner and had proof that successful discoveries could result in millions. The end result: Randy was entitled to a small fortune in tax deductions.

The case of the missing "John Hancock": If you think that forgetting to sign your tax return is just a small mistake, you should talk to Gloria. The IRS treated her unsigned return as if it had never been filed. As a result, Gloria had to pay penalties for failure to file a timely return.

If you want to make sure you don't get caught by some unpleasant tax law surprise, the Michigan Association of CPAs suggests that you consult with a tax expert before filing your return.

County map highlights new business locations

Detroit Edison and Oakland County have just made it easier to find that perfect business location.

A new, improved and colorful map of the county showing all industrial and research parks — the only central listing of all the county's industrial and research parks — is now available.

"Oakland County has seen an 18 percent increase in the number of industrial and research parks in the past year," said Marva L. Goldsmith, Detroit Edison's economic development consultant in Oakland County.

Oakland County has more than 100 industrial and research parks totaling 5,700 acres. There are more than 290 such parks in the tri-county metropolitan Detroit area.

Many changes have been made to the map since it was first developed by Detroit Edison a year ago, according to Goldsmith.

"Information needed to make site-selection decisions has been added to improve the map's usefulness to business people," Goldsmith said. "In addition to park locations, the map includes current information on major parcels of vacant industrial land, transportation networks and economic development services available to companies looking for new locations.

"The map helps businesses put each park's location and size into perspective."

Also featured on the map is a section on "automation ally," a major industrial sector that supplies advanced automation technologies, such as robotics, to American manufacturers.

As Michigan's largest private promoter of economic development, Detroit Edison has helped many businesses locate or expand in Southeastern Michigan.

For more information about locating a business in Oakland County or to receive a copy of the industrial and research parks map call Detroit Edison at (313) 645-4293 or the Oakland County Department of Community and Economic Development at (313) 858-0732.

PLANTS IN POTS

Plantings take root for patios

By Ann Willis

There was a time when gardens were as much a part of the American backyard as picnic tables. A time when if you could afford a small place of your own, a portion of it was given up to orderly flower beds and a small plot just right for a few tomato plants, peppers, some lettuce and beans.

But like much of life in America — gardens have changed.

While gardening, both flower and vegetable, still constitutes one of the biggest hobbies in America, the backyard has changed.

For many people space is at a premium. Apartment construction is growing in the western suburbs and every city and township boasts more than a few condominiums. Even the large single family homes going up in many areas have smaller and smaller backyards, relying heavily on the popular decks for family space outside of the home.

So is traditional gardening out of the question for these people? Not if the growing popularity of container gardening is any indication.

Local gardening centers are stocking more and more clay, concrete, wood and plastic pots to service the new-age gardener.

According to John VanHouten of English Gardens in West Bloomfield, the apartment dweller with a sturdy railing, or the condo owner with a patio, does not have to do without fresh flowers and vegetables.

VanHouten said brackets for pots to hang over balconies are very popular. The popularity of the container system, VanHouten said, is partially because of limited space, and partially because people like to move pots around to catch the right light and to decorate their patios.

Wick watering systems are gaining popularity as well. A representative at Frank's Nursery said the convenience of the enclosed watering system is the big sell there. Mike Disner of Disner's in Wixom echoed that.

"Self-watering containers are becoming more popular. You can go away for the weekend and don't have to worry about watering. That's a big advantage."

While many of the nursery and greenhouse spokesmen said they recommend containers for both flowers and vegetable growers, one did not. Dick Brainer of Brainer's Nursery in Wixom, said that while he recommends pots for flowers, and sells a lot of them, he does not recommend containers for vegetable growing.

"Frankly, by the time you buy the tomato plants and the container, it would be cheaper to buy the tomatoes at a market," he said.

"Plant flowers, then you can enjoy the beauty of the flowers. For the amount of vegetables you can grow in a container and the money spent on a container... you may end up with 2 or 3 pounds of tomatoes and in the height of the season a pound of tomatoes sells for 79-89 cents a pound. It's just not economically feasible."

Patio veggies make hit with apartment dwellers

By Marilyn Herakl

The days of full-scale vegetable gardening as our mothers and fathers knew it seem to be on the wane for those living in the suburbs near metropolitan areas.

Raising veggies for the entire family or even canning huge supplies to put away for winter are the ways of a nearly forgotten era in some places.

As more and more citizens move to apartments, duplexes or condominiums, however, the demand for patio-style plants of all kinds continues to grow greater.

Some residents still want the satisfaction of "tasting the fruits of their labors," while others find the luxurious foliage and colorful vegetables growing in containers on the windowsill or the patio serve as good conversation starters.

Of course, most people are also looking for the early varieties which produce edible produce as quickly as possible.

One of these, known as a "patio hybrid," is the Pixie II tomato. It's 52-day fruiting and is the answer for those who are tired of the somewhat tasteless tomatoes shipped into the area during the winter.

"Remember," warns Ron Colasanti of Colasanti's Produce and Plants of Highland, "the shorter the growing time on any product, the smaller the fruit and the less firm it will be."

He recommends growing an early tomato, like Pixie, and a later variety such as Big Boy along with it. That way you get both that early taste of fresh fruit and the later enjoyment of larger, more firm tomatoes.

Both types need to be staked to support the plants as the tomatoes form. They should be grown in large clay pots or fiber-type containers and must have good drainage. Place pebbles or broken pieces of crock in bottom of pots to provide drainage.

Pixie II tomatoes have been bred to provide sturdy, smaller plants that fit well on a patio.

Tony Raney of Raney's Rainbow Gardens in South Lyon said he carries an early tomato called "Patio" that is designed particularly for pots. "We also have a dwarf-bush cucumber that does well in a five-gallon container."

Raney said a five-gallon plastic paint bucket with holes punched in the bottom for drainage can be used for patio planting. "Rocks are good in the bottom to give the container extra weight (so that it won't tip over) and for added drainage. You don't have to use as much potting soil to fill the pot, either."

Speaking of potting soil, Raney advises purchasing sterilized soil so that weeds and diseases are virtually eliminated from the planting. "You can eliminate about 90 percent of the possibility of disease by using sterilized soil."

Raney said he has seen zucchini squash and egg plant also do well grown in large containers.

The Basket King Hybrid tomato takes 55 days to mature and has cascading branches that bear clusters of small, but sweet tomatoes. They not only look pretty, but provide taste treats as well.

What else can you grow in large pots or baskets on the patio? How about patio bush peppers, basket tomatoes, pole beans, leaf-type oriental cabbage (for its curly and colorful foliage) and snap peas?

Everything's in bloom in pots

By Buddy Moorehouse

You don't have much space. You like flowers. What can you grow?

"You can grow anything," said Lori Meier of Meier Flowerland in Brighton. "You just have to know how tall the flower is going to grow and not put it in a pot that's too small. But you can grow anything in a small space."

Indeed, Meier said that you don't need a yard the size of a football field if you want to start a flower garden. Even if you only have a small porch or patio to work with, you can still grow a variety of flowers.

There are, however, a few rules of (green) thumb to follow.

"You want to make sure you don't overcrowd your flowers," Meier said. "When you first pot them, you have to allow for their growth, or you'll lose them."

Meier said it's also important to keep a constant eye on your flowers.

"You have to make sure your plants aren't calling out for water," she said. "If your soil is dry, make sure you give them water before you fertilize them. Always make sure they have enough water before you start putting in fertilizer."

While you can technically grow any flower in your patio garden, certain types will work out better than others, Meier said.

"You might want to stick with the low-growers," she said. "Plants like daisies, geraniums, petunias, calendulas and snapdragons work out well. You can get a nice, full effect that looks very nice with those flowers."

If you don't have much light to work with, you'll also want to steer toward certain flowers.

"Impatiens and begonias are good for low-light situations," Meier said. "Growallia, coleus and dusty miller also work well in low-light places."

Meier also said that one man who visits her store came up with an unusual way to spice up a patio garden.

"He mixed his flowers with his vegetables," she said. "He was growing some geraniums, and he planted parsley between the flowers. It looked great. You don't need much room for parsley to grow, and it really added some volume to his garden."

If you're unsure of what flowers to grow and how to grow them, the best advice is to consult your greenhouse operator. You can even have them prepare a potted garden for you.

"I've made up some combination pots for people that they've really liked," Meier said. "People can bring their pots in and we'll fill them up for them."

Single Place welcomes noted speaker Seaser

Single Place presents an evening with Paul Seaser on Friday, March 31 at 6 p.m. at Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church of Northville.

Seaser will offer a program "Flirting — The Fun of It." He will focus on ways to open avenues of communication, methods of meeting and relating to others in social and business situations and how to attract people and to hold their attention.

Seaser is no stranger to Single Place. A well-recognized personality, he is a frequent visitor on radio and TV talk programs. Seaser organized one of the largest singles programs in the downriver area and he speaks at many adult community programs.

A $3 donation is requested. Child care is available during the presentation.

Following the program, members of Single Place plan to go to the Starting Gate for food, fellowship and dancing.

Upcoming events sponsored by Single Place include a Grief Recovery Workshop, which will be held on Thursdays, April 13, 20, 27 and May 6 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The workshop is designed for those who have lost loved ones. It will be led by Dr. Wesley Brun, executive director of the Samaritan Counseling Center of Southeastern Michigan. Joining Brun is Carol Butler, staff counselor at Samaritan Counseling Center.

Cost of the workshop is a donation of $22. For more information and to make reservations for the workshop call the Single Place hotline at 349-6474 or the church office at 349-0911.

Single Place is a Northville-based support group for adult singles. The group meets regularly at First Presbyterian Church of Northville.

Plans begin for Boys State

Thirteen young men who are currently in the junior class at Northville High School will have the chance to attend American Legion Boys' State on the campus of Michigan State University June 15-21.

Cost for attending is $170 per participant. The costs are being underwritten by 11 local sponsors, including the Northville Mothers Club and Northville Rotary, each of which will sponsor two boys.

Other sponsors are the Northville Kiwanis Club, VFW Post 4012, American Legion Post 147, Northville Lodge 186 F. and A.M., Jack Doherty Supplies Inc., Belanger Inc., Exotic Rubber and Plastics, Multi-Feed Inc. and Insurance Exchange Agency.

For the past 52 years nearly 1,000 qualifying high school students have gathered on the Michigan State University campus each June to learn about politics.

While taking part in Boys' State, they discover how city, county and state governments function by setting up their own "state" with all of its governmental bodies, problems and opportunities.

In addition to that activity, those attending the program will tour the State Capitol where they will meet Gov. James Blanchard, Lt. Governor Martha Griffiths and state senators and state representatives from their communities.

Most importantly, the boys will have the chance to return home charged with the enthusiasm to become an active part of their community and committed to make our state a better place in which to live.

The participants will be selected by the Northville High School administrative staff. Interested young men should contact Mrs. Alta Olson, junior class counselor, before April 1.

Northville American Legion Post has been recognized by the state commander for the number and quality of young men representing Northville in the program.

Former Northville Mayor Paul Vernon is the Boys' State Chairman for American Legion Post 147 again this year, assisted by his daughter and son-in-law, Carmen and Roy Kuckenbecker. They can be contacted at 349-7227 for more information.

SILVER SPRINGS

The Campbell Label contest winners for the month of February were: lower elementary — Pat Collin's first grade and upper elementary — Janice Henderson's third/fourth grade. Keep those labels coming as we will continue the contests through the end of the year.

All of our fourth graders took a trip to the Michigan Space Center in Jackson on March 2.

Vision Screening was conducted in grades kindergarten, first, third and fifth the week of March 6.

Sea World came to Silver Springs on March 20. The "Hands on Whales" program featured two assemblies at 9:10 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. These assemblies introduced the students to whales with slides, inflatable whale models and special activities. Small group sessions for each grade level allowed time for questions, more in-depth discussion and a hands-on examination of whale artifacts.

Our third graders celebrated National Reading Month by holding a Special Reading Night on March 16 for their parents at which they will have both oral and silent reading. They also had a Read-a-Thon which we will have more on in next month's column.

Our Spring Musical is going to be held on May 11 at 7 p.m. Grades 2, 4, and 5 as well as the Glee Club and Silver Springs Singers will take part. The theme this year is "numbers".

On St. Patrick's Day our Student Council held a Green Day whereby they chose someone from their classroom wearing green to accompany them to the Student Council meeting that day. The Student Council also sponsored an Easter Egg Hunt for the school which was held the day before Spring Break.

Our Grounds Chairperson, Dave Troschinetz, is starting an Adopt-a-Garden Program at Silver Springs. He has designated various garden areas and is having groups sign up to take care of these areas throughout the year. Girl Scout Troops, Cub Scout Dens and the Silver Springs Student Council have committed already. Dave hopes to not only beautify the grounds but to instill in the children a respect for their school.

A date to get on your calendars now is May 19. This is when Silver Springs will be holding their first ever Art Fair and Ice Cream Social. More information will follow.

We are in the process of filling our slate of officers and committee chairpersons for the next year. If you are interested in volunteering for a position please contact Martha Nield.

Our next Parent Teacher Association (PTA) meeting will be April 18 at 9:15 p.m. in the Art Room.

AMERMAN

On Tuesday, March 21 a transition committee meeting was held at Amerman Media Center. The subcommittees reported on goals dealing with disbursement of Parent Teachers Association (PTA) funds between Amerman and Moraine, preparation of students making the move to Moraine in the fall, and the sharing of proceeds from the P.I.E. program, flower sale and ice cream social.

The next PTA meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 5 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Amerman Media Center. The election of officers for both Amerman and Moraine will take place at this meeting.

The next Amerman roller skating party is slated for Thursday, April 6.

This will be for students in the third, fourth and fifth grades and their families.

Parent-Teacher conferences will take place the week of April 10. The book fair will be held in conjunction with the conferences on Tuesday through Friday. The book fair will be operated like a book store with orders and lists coming home with the students in advance of the sale, according to Sandy Basse, chairperson of this event.

Barb Flis reports that the extremely successful Partners in Excellence program has been concluded. Each classroom will gain a set of new World Book Encyclopedias as a result.

After weeks of preparation, the computer scores were in at the regional competition of Odyssey of the Mind in Grosse Pointe on March 4. Congratulations to the numerous Amerman teams and coaches who came away with awards and successful performances in many creative problem-solving endeavors.

WINCHESTER

The last meeting of the Winchester Parent Teacher Association (PTA) was held on Wednesday, March 1. The many parents in attendance heard plans for a busy and exciting month ahead.

Winchester students participated in Drug Awareness Week during the week of March 6-10. Many different activities were enjoyed by the students during this week. Each student received a red ribbon to wear during the week. Individual packets of materials relating to the theme of drug prevention were given to each student. The Girl Scouts of America and the Boy Scouts of America made posters and these were displayed throughout the building. The students of Winchester enjoyed participating in this program.

Students are awaiting the publication of the next issue of "Kids's Stuff" magazine. This magazine is made up entirely of entries submitted by students. The upcoming issue will feature drawings, poetry, riddles, and other original material.

The Junior Great Books reading program continues at Winchester. Many students in second, third, fourth, and fifth grades are participating in the program this year. The staff of Winchester is assisted by many parents who serve as leaders for individual groups.

Winchester students are eagerly awaiting the performance of Sea World. They are coming to Winchester on March 21. A life size whale will be among the many items that the children will see. This event promises to give the students much new information about life under water.

Students at Winchester will also enjoy a performance entitled "Ben and Me" on April 3. This program will be presented by the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The Fun Fair is another exciting event that the students are anxiously awaiting. This year, the Fun Fair will be held on Friday, April 21 from 6 to 9 p.m. This year's fair will include new games as well as popular favorites of past years. As in past years, refreshments will be available for purchase by those attending. This year's Fun Fair promises to be an exciting evening for everyone.

The next meeting of the Winchester PTA will be held on Wednesday, April 5, at 9:30 a.m. All parents and interested persons are encouraged to attend.

Growing vegetable gardens on patios remains popular activity

Not every vegetable plant grower will have patio-type varieties to offer, but they are worth looking for if you want to enjoy growing your own summer treats. Or you may want to order seeds from some of the well-known seed catalogue companies like Burpees.

If you want to try pole beans, a sturdy pole with hoops at top and bottom to string with weatherproof nylon monofilament is pretty much a must. Burpees and some local greenhouses offer these and they can be reused for years.

Pole beans need slightly more room than some patio vegetables and a space about five-feet square by at least six-feet high is recommended. The "bean tower" will support up to 12 pole bean plants or 36 snap bean vines.

For a nice privacy-style growth on the patio, put up a trellis and grow either pole beans or cucumbers. You can train them up and down the trellis so that they have plenty of room without going astray. Vines that produce larger, heavy fruits, such as melons or winter squash, are not practical for this, however.

A trellis or bean tower provides good air circulation for the plants and makes harvesting easy.

Colasanti said patio growing has the added plus of not needing the use of as many chemicals to protect plants from their natural enemies. "You may need a spray to keep the aphids away because they will sap the chlorophyll out of the plant."

Full light is needed for most of these vegetables to do well on the patio and plenty of water is also a necessity, according to Colasanti. "The sun warms the pot faster than it would plants in the ground. You may have to water them twice a day."

"And the more you water them, the more they need fertilizer since the water leaches the fertilizer out of the soil."

Colasanti said fertilizing once every 10 days to two weeks is advisable during the growing season. Using less fertilizer and adding it more often is recommended rather than putting too much on at once.

Since nearly everyone is anxious to taste those first tomatoes, when is the best time to put them out on the patio.

Colasanti suggests around May 15 is a suitable time, but be prepared to cover them at night or bring them in if the weather turns cold. "If they are under a canopy, they won't freeze as they would out in the open."

While growing tomatoes, cucumbers and peppers so that you can have a fresh salad every day from mid-summer until frost is not very difficult, Colasanti cautions that trying the more ambitious gardening on the patio may not be worth the trouble.

"You probably aren't going to grow many meals of beans or snap peas, but you may be able to have a fresh cucumber every day."

Experts express varied opinions about benefits of planting in pots

ble. You have to be a realist. And I just don't see that much beauty in a vegetable," Brainer said.

He recommends clay pots for growing flowers, as plastic ones don't breathe or drain well, he said. "We sell an awful lot of clay pots."

Several growers disagreed with Brainer, saying growing vegetables in containers was a matter of proper care and proper selection of varieties. A spokesperson for Frank's Nursery said that dwarf varieties of plants and vegetables, such as cherry tomatoes, do well.

All agreed that to grow vegetables you must have a good size container. Dinsler said that many people are grouping a few different plants together in a large pot.

"Combining annuals with vegetables, like a tomato plant and a few marigolds for color, is popular," Dinsler said. He said vegetables do "pretty well" in pots as long as you don't put too many in the container.

Dinsler also noted that containers can help a gardener get an early start on vegetables or flowers by allowing him to set the immature plants in a sheltered place until the ground and air warm up enough to allow planting in the ground.

Even strawberry plants can be grown in containers, Dinsler said. He said they can be put in hanging baskets, as they are a vine. "They don't produce a lot of fruit because they're so restricted, but they have a pretty foliage."

He noted that birds like strawberries as well, but that they can be messy hung over a patio or deck.

Prices on containers vary from the inexpensive plastic pots that sell for 60-70 cents to more expensive and decorative concrete holders with sculpted figures that can be as expensive as $100.

Already planted clay pots sell in the $25 range.

Libraries offer wide variety of videos

By AMY ROSA

You may not know it, but your friendly neighborhood library may have as great a selection of videos as your local video store does.

A library may not contain as many titles as, say, a Blockbuster Video, but often-times you can find movies and unique non-fiction videos in a library that you can't find in the stores.

For instance, Novi Library Director Brenda Burrell said her library offers some older, foreign and classical movies that aren't always carried elsewhere. "We try to focus on getting those movies that are less available," she said.

Some examples, she said, include silent movies starring the likes of Charlie Chaplin, and the films of Laurel and Hardy. Also, Burrell has received recent requests for such movies as "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," and "Gone With the Wind." People seemed surprised to learn the library carried them, she added.

Novi's library carries about 1,000 videos in all, Burrell said.

Joanne Dewey, children's librarian at Northville's public library, says they, too, have a good selection of the "harder-to-find" videos. They carry about 500 movie titles.

Dewey said some of her library's travel and child care videos, as well as the "how to" videos fall into that category.

Golf, quilting, cooking and how to learn the fox trot or ballroom dancing are examples of the library's how-to video list. "It's a lot easier to learn some things from a movie than from a book," said Burrell.

The arts is another area libraries may be stronger in than just the average video store, Burrell explained.

For instance, Burrell said, she has in stock a number of Broadway

Disney's "The Sword in the Stone" is just one of many video titles available for rental at local libraries plays, like "Sunday in the Park with George," or "Sweeney Todd." She also carries ballets.

Two of the most interesting movies the library has obtained, and which may be rather unusual, said Burrell, are "Bagdad Cafe," and "The Dead."

"Bagdad Cafe" is actually a German film, that was made to show what life in the U.S. is like — all from a German perspective. The movie, which is set in California, has spawned a T.V. situation-comedy pilot starring Whoopi Goldberg, for the fall.

"The Dead," said Burrell, is not a horror story, as one might think, but an interesting "character study."

For all this though, libraries are not without the new releases and popular rentals, upon which the video stores depend. The main difference between the two, said Burrell and Dewey, is the fact that libraries buy only one copy of a movie to rent, rather than having multiple rentals of the same movie.

For instance Northville's library has just received the hot new rentals of "Big," "Punchline," "A Fish Called Wanda," and "Clean and Sober."

Novi's library is now renting "The Good Mother," "The Great Outdoors," and "The Presidio."

Both libraries keep up with current titles by ordering from the same magazines as do video stores. "But we're not in competition with the video stores," Burrell asserted.

Another advantage of renting from the library, besides having a unique selection, is cost. Both libraries rent entertainment videos for $1 and rent education videos for free and for more than just one day. Compare that to the current prices of $2, $3 and $4 elsewhere and you have a deal.

The University of Michigan MATTHAEI BOTANICAL GARDENS

By BUDDY MOOREHOUSE

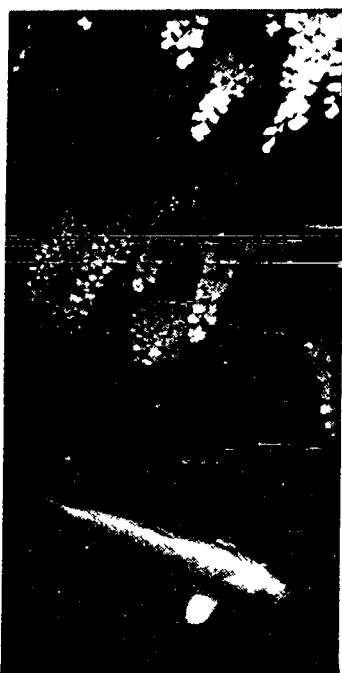

So you think you've got a green thumb?

You might feel like you've still got some learning to do after a visit to the Matthaei Botanical Gardens in Ann Arbor. You name it, they can grow it.

The Matthaei (pronounced "math-ee") Botanical Gardens are owned and operated by the University of Michigan's Department of Biology. The gardens operate as a living classroom for U-M's students, but they also afford nature lovers an excellent opportunity to see Mother Nature at her best.

The Botanical Gardens were formally organized in 1907 under the direction of George P. Burns, a U-M botany professor. Burns helped get 55 acres adjacent to the Nichols Arboretum to house the gardens.

In 1915, the Botanical Gardens moved to a 42-acre site on Iroquois Avenue in Ann Arbor. In 1955, the search for a new site began. A donation from Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Matthaei Sr. made possible the purchase of the present site on Dixboro Road, between Plymouth and Geddes roads.

The Matthaei Botanical Gardens continue to serve as a botany classroom for U-M, but they are also open to the public seven days a week.

Both inside and outside, there is no shortage of beautiful plant life on display.

The Exotic Conservatory is the main greenhouse, where a variety of tropical, warm-temperate, and desert plants live. All of the plants are well-marked, and during the winter and late-spring months, this is the display you'll want to visit.

In one room alone, dozens of exotic cactus strains are on display.

When the weather warms up a bit, and the plants start to bloom, the acres of outdoor trails make the Botanical Gardens even more popular with visitors.

There are four nature trails set up on the grounds, each offering a different array of plants and animals. They are:

THE RED TRAIL. The shortest of the four trails, the Red Trail covers six-tenths of a mile and only takes 20 minutes or so to walk. Along the way, you'll see an oak grove which features 200-year-old oaks, a grove filled with wildflowers and a rare, 40-foot Metasequoia tree from China.

THE YELLOW TRAIL. This 1.2 mile trail showcases a newly planted grove of ash trees and a prairie area which features Big Bluestem grass. The Yellow Trail also passes by a marsh inhabited by frogs, fish and muskrats.

THE BLUE TRAIL. Covering 1.6 miles, the Blue Trail winds through a dense pine plantation. The Blue Trail is an excellent trail for winter viewing.

THE GREEN TRAIL. A number of interesting trees (including a huge cherry tree), wildflowers (including wild bergamot and Queen Anne's lace) and other plants (bayberry and yucca) are displayed along this trail.

Also for outdoor viewing, the Horticultural Specialty Gardens offers a look at a rock garden, medicinal garden, grass collection and spreads of roses, peonies, bulbs and perennials.

If you're planning on visiting the Matthaei Botanical Gardens, you'll have to observe some house rules. Among them: no dogs, no picnicking and no picking flowers.

The gardens are open from sunrise to sunset every day of the year, except Christmas, Thanksgiving and New Year's Day. The inside conservatory is open daily from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Admission is $1 for adults, 75 cents for seniors and 50 cents for children ages 6-12.

Guided tours are available for groups of eight or more, if you call at least three weeks in advance.

The Matthaei Botanical Gardens are located at 1800 N. Dixboro Road. Take U.S. 23 south to Plymouth Road. Head east to Dixboro Road, then south to the gardens. For more information, call (313) 763-7060.

Edwards Caterer: Gourmet carry-out dining out

Imagine a restaurant where you can enjoy gourmet food surrounded by all the comforts of home.

Your own personally selected table and chairs. Your own personally selected table cloth. Your own personally selected silverware.

You don't even have to get dressed up. In fact, you can even wear your own pajamas if it makes you feel more comfortable.

If you're beginning to suspect that something a little suspicious is taking place here, you're right.

This ideal restaurant with all the comforts of home is indeed your own home.

And the gourmet food? It's carry-out. Gourmet carry-out from Edwards Caterers at 116 East Dunlap Street in Northville.

The increase in the number of two-income families and the corresponding decrease in the amount of leisure time has led to rapid growth in the carry-out food industry. Restaurants specializing in carry-out pizza, burgers, Chinese, chicken, ribs and various other types of food are thriving.

But the advent of gourmet carry-out is relatively recent, a product perhaps of more discerning tastes and an indication of the spreading pervasiveness of yuppie ideals.

Then, again, maybe people just want a change from pizza when they're too tired to prepare a meal or go out for dinner after a hard day at the office.

Whatever the reason, Edwards has found a rapidly growing market for its carry-out gourmet meals.

Edwards' carry-out menu would do the vast majority of restaurants proud in terms of the creativity of its cuisine.

Edwards Caterer in Northville offers carry-out gourmet lunches and dinners

Tired of pizza? Order filet of beef tournedoes au poivre instead.

Need a break from Chinese? Then try some herb chicken du provence, goujons of chicken breast with rosemary, sage, thyme, fresh tomatoes, sun-dried tomatoes, spinach and kalamata olives.

For starters, Edwards offers a large selection of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres. Examples include tiny gougers with smoked turkey, tomato chutney and granny apple slices, or, mustard caramelized water chestnuts with spinach and jarlsberg swiss filling.

Entrees include four selections of chicken, three choices of beef and four choices of fish, including fresh Atlantic salmon and sweet and mild smoked rainbow trout.

Also available are more than 15 types of salads and four types of casseroles.

Having decided to give gourmet carry-out a try recently, we selected a dinner that began with a simple mixed-greens salad accented by guere cheese and topped with a mustard vinaigrette dressing.

The entree was crusty mustard chicken, boneless breast of chicken dipped in dijon mustard and French bread crumbs, and sautéed in virgin olive oil. It was accompanied by a fresh basil cream sauce.

Complementing the meal was a vegetable lasagna of rotini pasta layered with ricotta, fresh tomato, basil sauce, white parmesan sauce and fresh grated asiago and parmesan cheese.

From a wide variety of dessert choices, we selected the Key Lime tartlets.

The results of the venture into carry-out gourmet were most satisfying. The salad was crisp. The mustard chicken was tasty. And the vegetable lasagna was quite flavorful — a most acceptable complement to the chicken.

The Key Lime tartlet — made with limes shipped from Florida — was also surprisingly good with a surprisingly delicate pastry shell and a light, under-stated flavor.

If you're among those who have not yet tried carry-in gourmet, Edwards will prove a good place to start.

Edwards Caterer, 116 East Dunlap Street, Northville. 344-1550. Open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Closed on Sundays. Credit cards accepted.

Stan Smalec is in accounting at Cadillac Motors and was the girls varsity soccer coach at Northville High for five years before resigning recently. A 10-year resident of Northville Township, Smalec has been a member of the Northville Newcomers Club and a soccer coach for boys and girls in the Northville recreation program. He and his wife Dianne have one daughter, Jodi, who is a freshman at Western Michigan University.

My Favorite Things

1. WILDLIFE PHOTOGRAPHY. "My wife and I like to drive around the township and take pictures of wildlife and especially deer," Smalec said, adding a lot of people aren't aware of the diversity of wildlife in Northville.

2. WATCHING THUNDERSTORMS. Smalec said he enjoys sitting on his deck at home and watching spectacular lightening. "There was a time when thunderstorms bothered me, but now I enjoy watching them."

3. SOCCER. Of course. The former soccer coach said he still manages to take in a number of games during weekends. "I like the game because every kid on the field is able to contribute and get a sense of accomplishment," he said.

4. JOGGING IN NORTHVILLE. Smalec said in addition to the exercise aspect of jogging, he enjoys running through the beautiful parks and subdivisions in the township.

The Best in area Hoops

The 1988-89 Sliger-Livingston East Boys' Basketball Team is a collection of the 10 best players in the area. These two squads have a little bit of everything: long range shooting specialists, inside scoring threats, heady floor leaders and fine passers and rebounders. Here's a closer look at the teams...

FIRST TEAM

SCOTT ARMSTRONG. Milford, guard: This 6-foot-2 junior doesn't play with a lot of flash, but his numbers do plenty of talking.

A two-year varsity player, Armstrong averaged 18.3 points, 4.8 rebounds and 3.2 assists per game in leading the Redskins to a 21-2 record and Kensington Valley Conference co-championship.

"Scott is an unassuming-type player," Milford coach Don Palmer said. "He's not spectacular, just real solid. His game is one of the most complete around. He does everything pretty well."

Armstrong, a left-handed shooter, converted 152 of 333 field goal attempts (45.6 percent) and 75 of 104 free throw tries (72.1). He statistics may have been more impressive had it not been for an ankle injury, which bothered him most of the season and even kept him out of two games.

"Scott's biggest asset may be intelligence," said Palmer, noting his 3.9 grade-point average. "He understands game plans and adjusts to things very well. Plus, he's a class kid. He's really everything you want in a player."

ED COTE, Novi, guard: Cote is one of the most explosive long-range shooters in Novi history. Just 5-foot-10 in height, he already holds every school record for three-point shooting — including eight treys in one game — and was a unanimous All-Kensington Valley Conference pick.

He was the area's fourth-best scorer with a 17.9 average and also was among the leaders in steals (2.9 per game).

"Ed has great range as a shooter, and when he gets in a groove it's almost impossible to stop him," Wildcats coach John Cicchelli said. "Nobody could take us lightly because he was such a weapon. He had the ability to score in bunches and because of that, he kept us in a lot of games."

On Jan. 6, Cote put on the greatest scoring exhibition in 12 years at Novi when he exploded for 37 points against Howell. It was the third-highest scoring output in school history. A few weeks later, he repeated the feat against the same squad.

"He just seems to go wild on us," Howell Coach Jerry Johnson said. "He had six three-point baskets in the fourth quarter, but we were all over him. It wasn't because we weren't covering him. (Cote) has a quick release and was just hot as a firecracker."

CHRIS HOUSE, Northville, center: A second-team selection last year, this 6-foot-6 pivotman was one of Northville's top scorers, rebounders and percentage shooters. He was the area's best pure center, possessing good inside skills and strength.

"Chris had an ankle injury early in the season and it really slowed him down," Mustangs coach Omar Harrison said. "But once he got over it, he came on strong and played the way we expected he would."

House ended up tying teammate Heath Myers for team scoring honors with a 14.5 average. He also led Northville in rebounds (7.3 per game), blocked shots and field goal percentage (54), and was among area leaders in all of those categories.

Northville won five of its last six regular season games to finish at 10-10 overall. House was a key offensive contributor in that span, averaging more than 20 points per outing.

CHRIS HUTCHINS, Lakeland, guard: One has to wonder what this 5-foot-10 senior would have accomplished had he not fractured his toe late in the season.

"His numbers are impressive when you consider he missed three games, played about half of another and really wasn't in top form the last part of the season," Lakeland coach Bob McFarland said. "He was really on a roll early in the year. He was penetrating well and, if the jumpers were falling, he was just a dominating player."

Hutchins — arguably the quickest player in the Kensington Valley Conference — finished with an 18.0 points-per-game average. He converted 108 of 256 field goal attempts (42.2 percent) and 58 of 85 free throw tries (68.2).

He also averaged 4.1 assists and 2.2 steals per game.

"We're going to miss him," McFarland said. "He did so much for us on both ends of the court. His offensive numbers stand out, but he plays very good defense, too. We usually put him on the other team's leading scorer."

Hutchins held Novi's Ed Cote to nine points on one occasion and Milford's Scott Armstrong to four on another.

RANDY WATTERS, Lakeland, forward: The area's leading scorer with an 18.7 points-per-game average, this 6-foot-3 senior kept defenses off-balance with a combination of inside and outside maneuvers.

Watters was a problem for opponents in the low post area, mainly because of his strength and sound footwork, and also poured in 20 three-pointers in 21 games.

"Randy had a great season considering he had to carry the rebounding and inside scoring load," Eagles coach Bob McFarland said. "Teams really started collapsing on him the second half of the season, but he handled the pressure well. His numbers speak for themselves."

Watters also averaged 10.3 rebounds, 2.0 assists and 1.9 steals per outing. His shooting percentages were 52.9 from the floor and 72.9 from the charity stripe.

McFarland feels Watters has an excellent chance to play college basketball, noting that a handful of small schools have shown interest.

SECOND TEAM

MATT BYRD, South Lyon, forward: This 6-foot-1 senior was the area's premier rebounder (11.2 per game) despite a size disadvantage against most of his opponents.

"Matt really battled. He did the little things," South Lyon coach John Kearney said. "He wasn't a real scoring threat, but he'd get in there and bang. He's the kind of kid who would make the key pass, take the charge, scrap for loose balls ... those types of things."

"He also was an intelligent player. He knew what he could do and how to do it. He played within himself. He was just a super kid to have on the team."

Byrd finished the season with 130 points, 35 assists, 35 steals and seven blocked shots. He also took 12 charges.

His shooting percentages were 40.0 from the field and 52.1 from the free throw line.

MARK FISHER, Novi, center: This 6-foot-6 junior was the only underclassman in the Kensington Valley Conference to average in double figures in scoring and rebounding. Fisher and shooting guard Ed Cote combined to give Novi a potent inside-outside offensive attack.

"Fisher and Milford's Scott Armstrong will probably be the top two returnees in the KVC," Wildcats coach John Cicchelli said. "The thing that impressed me about Mark was that he improved and played his best ball in the last third of the season. He really became an inside threat and that diversified our offense."

After struggling early in the campaign, Fisher was Novi's top scorer the final six games. He averaged 14 points and 10.4 rebounds per game for the season and was among area leaders with 47-percent field goal shooting.

MATT HUTCHINS, Lakeland, guard: Don't be surprised if this 5-foot-10 junior battles for the Kensington Valley Conference scoring title next season.

According to Eagles coach Bob McFarland, Hutchins would have averaged close to 20 points per game this season had he not been on the same team with Randy Watters and brother Chris Hutchins.

"Matt's job was to direct our offense," McFarland explained. "With Randy and Chris out there, he ended up handling the ball and passing it more than shooting it. I wanted him to shoot more, but I'm sure that will take place next season."

Hutchins led the Eagles with 136 assists (6.5 per game), 70 steals (3.3) and 36 three-pointers.

He converted 79 of 204 field goal attempts (38.7 percent) and 59 of 88 free throws (67.0) en route to a 12.3 points-per-game timidated by anyone. People tend to get out of his way a lot."

Irish, who weighs 195 pounds, also excels as a catcher in baseball — a sport which may produce a Division I scholarship for him.

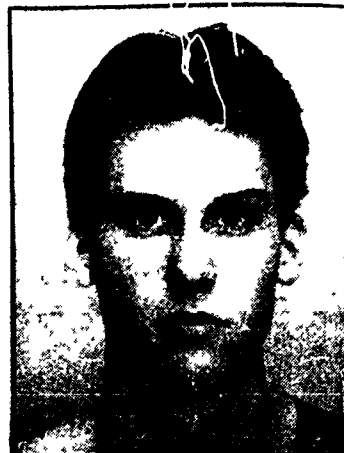

JEFF IRISH, Milford, forward: The value of this 5-foot-11 senior to Milford's program cannot be measured on statistics alone.

"Jeff is a great leader," Milford coach Don Palmer said. "He's the type of kid who will organize a team meeting and talk to the players by himself. They respond, too, because all of them respect him."

A three-year starter for the Redskins, Irish averaged 7.4 points and 6.5 rebounds per game this past season. He also converted 69 of 135 field goal attempts for 51.1 percent.

Perhaps Irish's biggest assets are his strength and leaping ability. They enabled him to outplay opponents who were sometimes four and five inches taller.

"He's a man ... the guy who does the dirty work for us," Palmer said. "He plays hard and he's not in-without emotion."

Palmer, who has directed the boys' program at Milford for 11 years, now owns a 109-124 career record. He is 84-47 over the last six seasons.

The 38-year-old history teacher also heads Milford's girls' team, which has posted a 173-84 mark since he took over 12 years ago.

"Palms does a good job," Armstrong said. "He has us do whatever gives us the best chance of winning. The players really didn't care if we were fast breaking or slowing it down. We just wanted to win and Palms knows how to do that."

Myers, a Western Lakes All-Division selection, led the Mustangs in three pointers (29).

Milford's Palmer, Armstrong combine to form dynamic duo

Batman and Robin have very little on the dynamic duo which helped Milford's basketball team post a 21-2 record and its second straight Kensington Valley Conference co-championship.

Actually, Coach Don Palmer and junior guard Scott Armstrong — who have been named Sliger-Livingston East Coach of the Year and Player of the Year respectively — are very similar to the caped crusaders.

Palmer, like Batman, is a thinker. He pushes the buttons and often is the difference between winning and losing for the Redskins, who have posted a 41-6 record over the last two seasons.

While Batman protects the interests of Gotham City,

Palmer serves the Milford basketball program in a similar capacity.

As for comparing Armstrong and Robin ... holy execution! Robin followed Batman's lead, as did Armstrong with Palmer.

If the coach wanted Armstrong to score from the perimeter, he did it without question. If the coach asked him to drive to the hole, he smiled en route to two points. And when the boss told him to rebound and play tight defense, there was no need for further instruction.

Armstrong, who stands 6-foot-2, led Milford with an 18.3 points-per-game average. He canned 152 of 333 field goal attempts (45.6 percent) and 75 of 104 free throws (72.1).

His other statistics include 4.8 rebounds and 3.2 assists per outing.

"Scott had a very good year," Palmer said. "He had a tough adjustment to make, going from point guard last year to shooting guard this year. But he didn't seem to have any problems with it."

Palmer described his star player as unassuming, yet solid. He believes Armstrong possesses one of the most complete games in the area.

"If Scott has a deficiency, it would be that he doesn't have great quickness," the coach said. "But he makes up for it in a lot of ways. He's an excellent shooter and defensive player, and he plays with a lot of poise — almost without emotion."

Pump, McDonald are HotShot finalists

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Two of the most successful hot shots in the entire country call the Novi/Northville area home.

No, these hot shots have nothing to do with gold chains, expensive cars and trips to Las Vegas — they sport an uncanny accuracy on the basketball court and are preparing for an all-expense paid trip to Cleveland, Ohio.

Novi resident Mike McDonald, 15, and Northville High School freshman Karen Pump, 14, are finalists in the Pepsi/NBA HotShot competition and are on their way to the National Championships in April, representing the Detroit Pistons. McDonald and Pump are two of only 156 nationwide finalists from six different divisions to advance this far in the HotShot program.

One girl and one boy in three age divisions (9-12, 13-15, 16-18) — each representing one of the 26 National Basketball Association (NBA) teams — will be at the championships at the Ritzfield Coliseum in Cleveland. The HotShot event is a shooting contest from five designated circles on the basketball court. The more difficult the shot, the more points it's worth, and there are certain ways to receive bonus points. Each participant has one minute to try and accumulate the most points.

"The officials deduct points for normal basketball violations like traveling," said Karen's father Tony Pump. "Each shooter must have at least one foot in the designated circle on the floor. The distances are 12-feet (two points), 15-feet (three points), 18-feet (four points) and 21-feet (five points) and lay-ups (two points)."

McDonald and Pump won the right to compete in the finals by taking first place, in their age division, at the Regional Championships on Jan. 20 at the Palace of Auburn Hills. The contest was held during halftime of the Pistons-Indiana Pacers NBA game, in front of 21,454 spectators.

"Actually, I wasn't nervous because I've done it before in front of a large crowd," Karen Pump admitted. "I just try to block everything out and concentrate."

McDonald defeated opponents from Detroit, Bryan (Ohio) and Cheboygan in the boys 13-15 contest and Pump topped two girls from the Toledo area and one from Detroit in the girls 13-15 age group competition. They are the first-ever area youngsters to advance to the national championships.

McDonald — who is a sophomore at Redford Catholic Central High School — is a two-time Novi area HotShot champion. He placed fourth in the regional competition last season. McDonald currently plays junior varsity basketball for the Shamrocks and is the son of Ray and Louise McDonald of Novi.

Pump has been the Novi area HotShot champ three years in a row and was second in the Regional competition two years ago. She was a starting forward last fall for the Northville junior varsity basketball squad, coached by Pete Wright. She is the daughter of Tony and Carolyn Pump of Novi.

McDonald had a conflict on Jan. 20 and was forced to miss Catholic Central's J.V. basketball clash with Redford Bishop Borgess. He is the Shamrock's starting point guard.

Pump had other problems on the day of the Regional competition, including a bad case of the flu. Fueled on a diet of Pepto-Bismol and ginger ale, Pump still managed to win the contest. Two years ago, Pump missed making the finals by just three points.

"I kind of expected to get this far because I almost made it two years ago," she said. "I think I have a chance to win in Cleveland but I know the competition will be very tough."

"I've been working very hard, practicing for it. I've been practicing shots from the spots we have in the competition and I have a tape of the music they will play so I know when and where I should be."

Lower dairy fat diet recommended

By PHIL GINOTTI

"Drink your milk. It's good for you!"

That was the line, repeated over and over again, as most children advanced through their primary years into early adulthood. Sometimes it took the form of a stern warning. Other times the deal was sweetened a bit, perhaps with a plate of home-baked cookies, or a thick peanut butter sandwich.

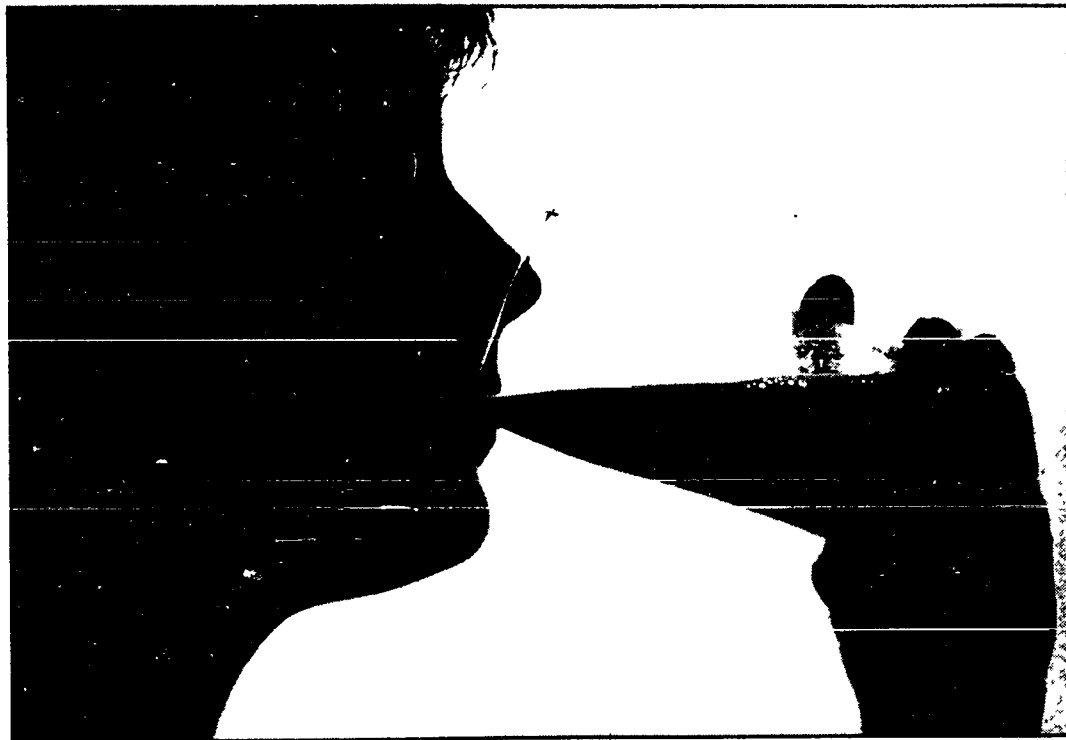

In any case, it was a lesson well-learned for most — one they took with them through adolescence and into adulthood. Milk was milk.

But things are changing. Milk, cheeses, and other dairy products richly-laden with milk fats are coming under a microscope, of sorts, as America re-examines what it consumes on a day-to-day basis and attempts to sort out what is wise and what is truly fact.

"Dairy products are great sources of protein and calcium... but nonfat milk, skimmed milk, has just as much calcium and protein and half the calories," said Kathy Rhodes of "MedSport," a division of the University of Michigan hospital in Ann Arbor.

Diet experts are in agreement that most adults and younger adults should look at substituting lower fat dairy items for some of the whole milk products in their diets. That means consuming lowfat cheeses, lowfat milk, lowfat yogurts, and monitoring intake as part of an overall strategy to reduce cholesterol levels.

Extremely heavy consumers run an increased risk of high cholesterol levels and higher levels of fat in the bloodstream, potentially leading to clogged arteries or heart disorders, according to Rhodes.

Record/JCHRIS BOYD

Milk, cheeses, and other dairy products richly-laden with milk fats are coming under scrutiny

What children should do is still a topic of debate.

How much is enough and how much is too much for children should be examined in a National Cholesterol Education Program study. That topic is currently being investigated. A document should be ready for release in October.

MedSport is currently recommending non-fat or lowfat dairy products for most children over the age of two, according to Rhodes. Other dieticians point to younger children's need to consume more fats while growing rapidly, though the matter is likely to remain in a "grey area" until the cholesterol report comes out this fall.

The recommended diet includes only skim milk, nonfat yogurts, and cottage cheese and regular cheeses produced from lowfat dairy products.

Sandy Gloss, Manager of Clinical Nutrition at Providence Hospital in Southfield, recommends that parents "not overdo it" in the early years.

"Kids have much more of a need for fat than adults do," she said. "We don't necessarily recommend that all children go for lowfat milk."

The average fat level in a cup of whole milk is 8-9 grams. That compares with about 5 grams of fat in "two percent" milk and a gram in "half percent" milk.

Drinking an eight ounce glass of whole milk is equivalent to eating two teaspoons of butter. Two percent milk is equivalent to about one teaspoon, Gloss said.

Lyme disease carried by deer tick in Midwest

By LINDA PASSINI, R.N.

Lyme disease has become the United States' most common tick-borne disease. Ticks are small, blood-sucking parasites, which are larger than their relatives, the mites. There are two families: the soft-bodied ticks and the hard-bodied ticks. Ticks are distributed throughout the world and are second only to mosquitoes as a carrier of human disease.

Lyme disease is a multisystem disorder that is often characterized by fatigue, non-specific flu-like symptoms and a characteristic rash. The disease is named after Lyme, Conn., where, in 1975, two mothers independently notified the state health department of a cluster of cases of juvenile rheumatoid arthritis. A tick-borne cause was suspected due to the presence of a skin lesion which in Europe is associated with tick bites.

Lyme disease is caused by a spirochete, which is a spiral bacterium and the carrier is a deer tick. There have been three primary locations where the disease has been found in this country. These areas are the coastal Northeast states, the Midwest (Minnesota and Wisconsin) and the West. However, Lyme disease has occurred in many other states. Lyme disease is more common in children and young adults and slightly more common in men than women.

In the Northeast and Midwest, the deer tick is the carrier. Adult ticks live on deer. They drop off to lay eggs, which hatch into tick larvae and pick up infection by feeding on the ordinary white-footed mouse. The larvae eventually molt into "nymphs," which is the stage between larva and adult. The nymph resembles the adult in appearance but is so small that it is difficult to see which is the major reason their bites often go unnoticed. The peak incidence occurs when the nymph is most active, during the late spring and early summer months.

Lyme disease has been classified into three stages, which often overlap. The first stage consists of the most obvious early symptom, the development of a rash at the site of the tick bite. It first appears as a small, red macule (a discolored spot on the skin that is not elevated above the surface) or papule (a small circumscribed, superficial solid elevation of the skin). The rash expands to become a large maculopapular lesion with a bright red border and central clearing. The most common sites are the thigh, groin and armpit. Diagnosing the disease at this stage is important since early treatment with antibiotics significantly reduces the effect of the disease.

Approximately half of those bitten will develop secondary lesions, which are ring-shaped and smaller than the initial rash but not associated with a tick bite. This rash usually fades within several days of antibiotic therapy, but if untreated may persist for weeks to months. Malaise, fatigue and lethargy are found frequently during this stage.

During the second stage, neurologic complications may occur anywhere from weeks to months after the onset of the illness. Cardiac abnormalities may also occur during this time.

Stage three is associated with an intermittent arthritis which primarily affects the knees. The onset of arthritis may occur from several weeks to as long as two years after the onset of illness. More serious neurological problems may also occur.

People who are at highest risk live within the three areas identified. Protective clothing such as long-sleeved shirts, pants drawn tight around the bottom and socks are good preventative measures. Tick repellent can also be used.

After clothing is removed, inspect skin for tick attachment. If a tick is found, immediately attempt to remove it by grabbing it close to the mouth with a pair of thin tweezers and pull steadily until it pulls free. Disinfect the area and observe for a rash. If a rash forms contact a physician.

Diagnosis is based on a high index of suspicion with the classic rash being present in a majority of the cases. Tick bite is seldom reported. The long-term effects of Lyme disease has not been studied, but most persons treated with antibiotics in the early stage do well.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.

©1989 BUILDERS SQUARE
Limited quantities. Sorry, no rainchecks.
At least one of each item available in the store at the beginning of the sale.

...JUST TO BE SURE WE'LL HAVE THE ONE YOU NEED.

It takes truckloads of merchandise to keep over 130 warehouses filled across the United States. Truckloads of plumbing, electrical and painting products. Trainloads of lumber, building materials and power tools. Thousands of kitchen cabinets and millions of hardware items.

We bring it in by the palletful and stack it to the ceiling, just so we'll have that one piece you need to complete your project. Because, at that moment, it doesn't matter how many products we stock in how many cities...it all comes down to having that one product in stock, at the lowest possible price, and a friendly smile to help you on your way.

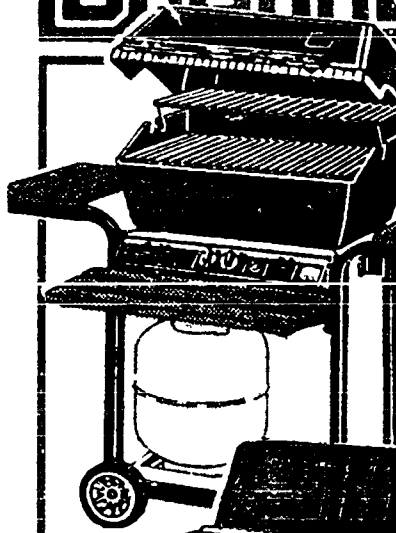

Of the millions of products we sell, we think convenience and service should be at the top of the list.

LOWEST PRICE POLICY

Our policy is to give our customers the lowest price on every item you buy at Builders Square...everyday! And, if you find a lower price at a local competitor (Heaven forbid!) just let us know and we'll change it, plus we'll give you 10% more in SQUARE BUCKS for your next purchase. Identical items only (same manufacturer and model numbers). Offer limited to items in stock. No rain checks. Price comparisons are at time of purchase. We reserve the right to limit quantities to dealers and competitors, and to match non-member club prices, and catalogue prices including freight.
