Church receives front parking

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Plans for Ward Presbyterian Church's proposed 1,821 space parking lot received approval for a front-yard parking variance by the zoning board of appeals (ZBA) on Monday.

Ward officials pursued the variance since a section of their proposed parking lot lies in its front yard along Six Mile Road.

The church property is located on the corner of Six Mile and Haggerty roads.

The ZBA voted 4-1 to approve the variance, with board members Donald DiComo, Tom Cook, Bernard Bach and Robert Willerer voting in favor of it. Karen Baja voted against the variance.

In order to gain a variance, a petitioner must prove to the ZBA that a hardship affecting their property precludes them from being able to adhere to an ordinance.

Ward officials said they were asking for the variance based on the soil qualities of their property.

Home is still opposed

By BOB NEEDHAM

Although the state has approved a lease for an adult foster care group home in the Lexington Commons subdivision, residents and officials are still opposing the issuance of a license for the facility.

Both the city and the residents' association have investigated the possibility of filing suit against the state to prevent the group home. Both are waiting for action, however: City officials have said they cannot really consider filing until they get extensive information from the state, and Lexington Commons Association President Ron Abramovich said the association probably won't consider suing unless a license is actually issued.

November could see park vote

By BOB NEEDHAM

A new park millage election in the City of Northville could apparently wait until November after all.

Legal opinions had suggested that if the city was going to hold a second election on a park millage, it would have to come well before November in order for both the city and township to levy the millage this winter. But now, city officials and State Rep. Gerald Law (R-Plymouth Township) believe a November election would be valid.

City officials were interested in a November election so that, if they decide to return the question to voters, it could be a part of the regular city election in November. A special election was estimated to cost around $1,500.

A memo to the council from City Manager Steve Walters explains that the state legislature annually adopts a bill which allows certain local governments to have millage elections in the fall and levy the tax in December.

Northville Township Attorney Ernest Essad had previously issued two written opinions saying November would probably be too late

UAW charges violation of Ford accord

By BOB NEEDHAM

The local United Auto Workers chapter has filed a charge against Ford Motor Company alleging a violation of a local agreement on the shutdown of the Northville Plant.

According to the charge, when the plant closing was announced in 1986, the company offered employees the option of transferring to other plants of their choice. The complaint charges that the company has since rescinded this offer.

Ford public relations representative Jay Meisenholder said the company would make no public response directly to the charge. However, he did in effect deny it by saying the company's offer to the Northville employees has stayed the same.

Local 896 President Norm Fultz filed the charge with the National Labor Relations Board Friday.

He said Monday that he may file additional charges over the plan to shut the plant down, alleging a violation of a plant closing moratorium in the Ford / UAW contract. There is already a grievance pending on that point.

Ford has said all along that the Northville action is not a closing, but rather a consolidation, since the Northville employees are being offered employment at the Dearborn Engine Plant and Northville is managed through Dearborn.

The plant itself is scheduled to close down operations June 9 and be vacated by September.

Sewer capacity woes might ease

By PHIL GINOTTI

Local officials are reporting a break in a sewer tap moratorium that has substantially slowed development in the City of Novi and in Northville Township.

Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall said some encouraging news was relayed during a "sewer summit" held in Lansing Thursday (April 13) — news that could have an impact on Northville Township and Plymouth.

"They are sensitive to our plight ... they know something needs to be done," Kriewall said. "We're getting green lights all down the boards."

The sewer summit was a meeting of a variety of state and local agencies involved with the erstwhile "super sewer" project. The topic of discussion was the overall lack of sewer capacity for rapidly developing communities in southeastern Michigan.

Kriewall said he left the meeting with the impression that the DNR will allow approximately four cubic feet per second (cfs) of additional sewer capacity in the Wayne County system. That additional capacity could serve three communities, including Novi, who are looking for additional capacity on an interim basis while "super sewer" works towards

Novi Rouge River tests may show danger

By PHIL GINOTTI

NOVI — Studies done on sediment at the bottom of the Rouge River show high levels of a possible cancer-causing material, according to a preliminary report from Novi's engineering consultants.

Those studies, by JCK and Associates, are currently being rechecked for accuracy by the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and more information should be available by late May, DNR officials said.

JCK sediment samples taken in February from various sites along the middle branch of the Rouge River in Novi, which also runs through Northville, showed extremely high levels of Polynuclear Aromatic Hydrocarbons (PNAs), according to DNR official Maggie Fields.

The substance is present in creosote, which is used to weather-proof and preserve railroad ties. Some of JCK's sample sites were near the Chesapeake and Ohio (C & O) railroad line, which runs through the center of the city, north to south.

When the high levels were found, the DNR was immediately notified, said Charles Kureth, Chairman of Novi's Environmental Advisory Committee.

Kureth said he was briefed about the results by Susan Keast, an environmental analyst from JCK. Keast did not return phone messages left Monday and Tuesday by the Record.

"I'm not convinced at this point that it is a serious health threat," Kureth said. "But it is being pursued. There are a lot of questions being asked ... the answers are not yet available."

Fields said the DNR collected additional samples from the Rouge and is currently checking them out.

"What we are currently attempting to do is, one, confirm the test results, and two, determine if it is connected to the railroad ties," Fields said. "We don't have any of our results back at this point."

Levels as high as 73,000 parts per million (ppm) were found in the river sediment, which was described as "unusually high" by Fields. Contact with PNA in those quantities over an extended period of time may cause cancer, she said.

Fields said the DNR is currently checking with scientists about the possible health threat of PNA.

Kureth said it is probably only cancer-causing on ingestion, and not through routine contact.

"If you walk through a field of the stuff, you're not going to have any problems," he said. "If you sat down and ate the soil, you're going to have a problem."

What caused the high levels is unclear and whether or not such carcinogens are present in other communities along the Rouge, like Northville and Plymouth, hasn't yet been determined.

The high PNA levels were discovered during a routine check for other pollutants in the river. Fields said few other communities do this type of testing.

"If anything, the City of Novi deserves some credit for doing it," she said.

Novi city officials have long been critical of the railroad's handling of excess ties. Last year, Rouge Rescue Day workers reported finding dozens of pieces of railroad ties submerged in Novi waterways near the tracks, because of the railroad's practice of discarding cut sections of ties in the Rouge.

DNR officials said they doubted that the high levels were caused by PNA draining from under the tracks, such as during rainfall. Fields said the substance used to coat the railroad ties hasn't shown signs of doing that in the past.

What this means for Rouge Rescue Day this year is also unclear. In the first week in June, volunteers from throughout southeastern Michigan are slated to go into the river to clean up debris.

City OKs law for day care in homes

By BOB NEEDHAM

Small day-care operations in residential homes are now allowed in the City of Northville.

On consecutive 4-1 votes Monday, the city council approved two new ordinances on child day care. One will permit in-home day care serving up to six kids in single-family-residential zoning. The other requires city registration for homes serving more than four kids.

Before Monday's action, the city zoning ordinance did not address day care in a home at all, and therefore prohibited it in effect. The issue came before the council when neighbors complained about one day care home, and the operator was cited for violating the city zoning ordinance.

Only one resident spoke to the council at a public hearing Monday on the proposed ordinances. Susan Mihalik said she favors day care in homes, has used it in the past, and does not find it to have an adverse impact on the neighborhood.

"I think we would all like Mary Poppins or someone, but she's just not available, and we couldn't afford her if she was," Mihalik said. "I, for one, would welcome a family day care home in my neighborhood."

Most of the city council members also said they were pleased with the plan.

"I think it brings us into conformity with what is actually going on in the community," and provides a needed service, Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers said.

Mayor Chris Johnson added, "All in all, I think this is a fine ordinance."

The council members as a whole objected to one point: in counting the number of children served in a home, the council had earlier wanted to include kids under age seven who live in the home. The version passed Monday does not include that provision.

City Manager Steve Walters said it was taken out of the proposal on the recommendation of the city attorney. The method of counting children is consistent with that in the state day-care laws.

Council Member Paul Folino voted against the

As far as a lawsuit from the association, "We've looked into it, but we're not sure what our course is and what the cost is," Abramovich said.

A 45-day waiting period before the home's license could be issued expired April 4. If approved, the home will be run by New Outlook Inc.

Group home still opposed

"We've had no official return of our requested material," City Manager Steve Walters officials have said they will probably not send the city its information for a few weeks.

However, the city has been assembling some of the information, such as the lease, separately, he said. The city could possibly file suit over the lease, which Abramovich has said is higher than the true market price. "That's really the only viable issue that's left," Walters said.

According to a copy of the lease Abramovich acquired, the state will pay $2,068 per month to private investors in Arizona. That works out to $25,060 per year, and $14.71 per square foot.

Both Abramovich and Walters said the lease price appears to be above the fair market value of the home, at 20415 Lexington. In opposing the lease before the state administrative board, Abramovich said a similar home in the subdivision recently rented for $1,350 per month.

The state's director and assistant director for adult foster care licensing could not be reached for comment this week. At an earlier public hearing on the proposed group home, state Director of Mental Health Tom Watkins said the proposal is a good value for the state.

The association has requested the state auditor general to review the lease, Abramovich said. "I still have a concern about the state expressing hardship . . . and spending excessive amounts of money to make investors money in these group homes," he said.

However, the auditor general's office is not planning any action at this time. Assistant Auditor General Richard Krieger said the department gets a lot of complaints on leases and is too busy to chase down each one.

The department does plan an overall audit of the lease procedure, but that probably won't start until a year from now, Krieger said.

"All we can do now, really, is put it in a file with some other different complaints we've received," he said. "There's so many of these homes out there . . . It's damn near impossible to run every one of these things. We don't have enough staff."

The larger scale audit is a better way to address any problem that may exist, Krieger said. "We've had it kind of on the back burner for a year or so," keeping busy with other things, he said. "It's just impossible for us to get involved a house at a time. You look at a symptom here and a symptom there and you never attack the disease."

Abramovich also said some residents of the association who have developmentally disabled children have written to state officials in opposition to the group home plan. The home would house four developmentally disabled adults, which means

NEWS BRIEFS

CORRECTION — An article about delinquent parking tickets in last week's Record contained an error.

The article incorrectly reported that the fine for all unpaid parking tickets is the same. In fact, the city is charging the original fine plus $5 for delinquent tickets.

A delinquent ticket for parking longer than the allowed time is $8, but other violations have higher fees, City Manager Steve Walters explained. Fines range up to $30 for an overdue violation of parking in a space reserved for a handicapped driver.

The Record regrets the error.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY AUCTION — The Northville Historical Society will hold its annual auction in the New School Church in Mill Race Village on Wednesday, April 19 at 8 p.m.

ACADEMY NOMINEE — Lynn M. Higgins of Northville has been nominated to attend the Air Force Academy by Congressman Carl D. Pursell (R-Northville). She is a senior at Northville High School.

CALLING THE COMMISSIONER — For the second straight year, the uninitiated may have a tough time finding the local phone number for Wayne County Commissioner Susan Heintz (R-Northville Township).

Just like in last year's phone book, in the new book the number for Heintz's office in Plymouth is listed under "S," as in Susan, rather than "H," as in Heintz.

Incidentally, the number is 453-5010.

CHURCH PARKING — There are seven new handicapped-only parking spaces at the First Presbyterian Church on Main Street.

After a trial period, the city council Monday agreed to designate the first three spaces on Church and the first four spaces on Mary Alexander Court — just below Main — for handicapped parking only. The restriction only applies from 6 a.m. to noon on Sundays.

MAINCENTRE UPDATE — The apartment and retail building set for the southwest corner of Main and Center streets is tentatively set for a July 1 groundbreaking.

Following the recent demolition of some existing buildings, initial soil borings have been done. Monday the development company met with city police, fire and public works officials to discuss the project.

A plan to control traffic during construction is expected to be discussed at the city council's May 9 meeting.

CHANGE OF PLANS — Bob Black of Black's Hardware said Tuesday he does not think he will go to court with the city over the issue of outdoor storage.

Black had planned to fight in court to be allowed to store some retail items outdoors which could not be kept inside. But he said Tuesday that a compromise with the city council on keeping some items outside will probably be good enough.

SUMMER HOURS — New office hours for Northville Township Hall have been issued by Township Office Manager James Graham.

Beginning April 15 through Aug. 31, the township hours will be 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On Sept. 1 through April 14 the hours will change to 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The previous hours of the township were from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

WTUA officials seek federal money

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Officials from the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) went to Washington D.C. recently, attempting to secure a federal grant to help fund their sewer project.

Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss said WTUA feels it can attract some federal funding through a national demonstration grant.

"We are trying to secure a demonstration grant because our project will in effect be cleaning out the Rouge River," Goss said, noting the tertiary system will empty into the Lower Rouge, cleaning the river.

In addition to Goss, other officials journeying to Washington included supervisors from Plymouth and Canton Townships, Wayne County Commissioner Susan Heintz and Northville Township Engineer Abe Munfah.

Goss said WTUA is looking for a grant totalling approximately $20 million, with the money being distributed in yearly increments of $5 million.

"WTUA feels that our community has made a commitment involving a heavy financial burden for sewers and we'd like to receive some federal funding to defray our costs," she said.

WTUA's bid to gain any federal funding is still a long way from being decided, according to Gary Cates, press secretary for Rep. Carl Purcell (R-Plymouth).

"We did meet with WTUA officials in Washington, but we're now in the process of looking at their proposal before we can make any decision," Cates said.

In addition to support offered by Purcell, Cates said the entire Michigan delegation will have to play a role in securing a grant for WTUA "because this request will require direct appropriations needing each legislator to enlist his support."

Last month, WTUA sold approximately $88 million in 1989 series bonds in order to fund the project, which is set to be completed in 1993.

Cates said it is too early to tell at this point whether WTUA waited too long before applying for the grant.

"We'll research this proposal to see if any money is available."

Whether WTUA gets the federal grant or not, Goss said the group is "going ahead with the project anyway. We're just hoping the federal government will sponsor this project and give us a push."

WTUA's quest for federal funding rests primarily on the sewer being viewed as a demonstration project. The proposed WTUA wastewater transport system will carry wastewater from Northville, Plymouth and Canton Townships to the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority (YCUA) for treatment.

"At first I didn't want to talk about our funerals. But, now I'm glad we did."

We chose ForethoughtSM funeral planning

It's one of those things that's so easy to put off, put out of your mind. And I guess that's what I was doing. But, once he started asking me questions about how I wanted my funeral to be, I realized how important it is for the people we leave behind to know these things. He had no idea that I wanted a simple eulogy, and just that discussion alone started us on all sorts of other topics. I found out he doesn't like organ music. We even had a few laughs.

Forethought is funeral planning... before the need arises

I thought planning our funerals together would be a terribly sad thing. But, actually, it brought us both a great sense of relief. Now we know neither one of us has all those decisions facing us in the future and we won't have to second-guess whether we did the right thing...did what the other one would have wanted. It's all planned and even paid for with the Forethought life insurance policy designed and approved specifically for Forethought funeral planning. And, there's a policy available to anyone up to age 100. There's a real peace of mind that comes with having it taken care of ahead of time with Forethought.

Electrical equipment stolen, but some is recovered

About $1,900 worth of electrical equipment was reported stolen from the Marquis Theater last week, but one of the pieces was later recovered, according to a city police report.

A sound mixing board valued at $1,000 and a light board valued at $900 were reportedly stolen between 11:45 a.m. and noon Sunday, April 9, the report said. Police began investigating.

The next day, the light board was found in the theater basement. The sound board was not immediately recovered.

OUT OF THE PARK — A long home run in a Northville-Redford Union baseball game Saturday apparently damaged a car parked on Ely Drive, according to a city police report.

At around 2:10 p.m. Saturday, when Northville High School was deep into a doubleheader against Redford Union, an Ely resident waxing a Lincoln Mercury heard a loud cheer. A moment later a baseball came sailing out of the sky and bounced right into the car's hood, the report said.

Redford Union players had five home runs on the day, to none for the Mustangs. Damage was estimated at $100.

VANDALS NABBED — A man whose car was hit by a chunk of asphalt ran down and caught two youths who admitted to dropping it, according to a city police report.

The man was driving west on Eight Mile April 3. As he was passing under the walkway just west of Center Street, a piece of asphalt hit and cracked his windshield, the report said. The man saw two youths running away, so he chased them down and caught them. One was a 13-year-old Northville resident and the other was a 14-year-old out-of-town visitor.

Both eventually admitted to police they were involved in the incident, and their families agreed to pay for the $221 damage. The local youth was referred to Northville Youth Assistance.

CAR SCRATCHED — Over $500 in damage was reported in a car-scratching incident last week, according to a city police report.

The damage occurred between 9 p.m. last Wednesday and 5 p.m. last Thursday. The scratches were to the hood of a Chevy Cavalier.

During the time of the incident the car was parked on Sherrie Lane and was also out of town for a while.

SEVEN MILE ACCIDENT — A Northville resident was ticketed for failing to stop after running into a garbage truck last week, a city police report said.

The truck was backing into Seven Mile near Eaton with the aid of an outside observer who saw the road was clear. The second driver turned onto Seven Mile and, blinded by the sun, ran into the back of the truck, the report said.

No injuries were reported.

FENDER—BENDERS — At least five automobile accidents were reported by township police last week.

• A two-car accident occurred Friday, April 7 at 8:50 a.m. on Eight Mile Road near Llorac Drive. Police said car two was going east on Eight Mile and almost came to a stop due to heavy traffic. The driver of car one said she was changing radio stations and didn't see car two, striking it from behind. Car two was pushed on to a lawn on southbound Eight Mile. Police issued a ticket to the driver of car one for failing to stop within an assured clear distance ahead.

• A two-car accident occurred Saturday, April 8 at 6:54 p.m. on Seven Mile Road near Silver Springs Drive. Police said the driver of car one was going westbound on Seven Mile in the process of making a left turn onto Silver Springs Drive. Police said car two was going eastbound on Seven Mile when car one started to make a left turn and did not see car two, causing car two to hit car one in the rear. Both driver's said the traffic light was green. Police issued a ticket to the driver of car one for failing to yield during a left turn.

• A two-car accident occurred Monday, April 10 at 7:30 a.m. at the intersection of Eight Mile and Haggerty roads. Police said the driver of car one was eastbound on Eight Mile directly behind car two. Police added the driver of car two stopped for a red light at Haggerty Road and was hit in the rear by car one. Police issued a ticket to the driver of car one for failing to stop within an assured clear distance ahead.

• A two-car accident occurred Wednesday, April 12 at 2:20 p.m. at the intersection of Haggerty and Eight Mile roads. Police said the driver of car two was going northbound on Haggerty and stopped at the traffic light at Eight Mile Road, waiting to make a right turn. Police said car one was behind car two and could not stop, hitting car two in the rear. Police issued a ticket to the driver of car one for failing to stop within an assured clear distance ahead.

• A two-car accident occurred Thursday, April 13 at 5:20 p.m. on Seven Mile Road near Northville Road. Police said the driver of car one was going westbound on Seven Mile behind car two, approaching Northville Road. Police said car two stopped for a traffic signal and was rear-ended by car one. Police issued a ticket to the driver of car one for failing to stop within an assured clear distance ahead.

PROPERTY DAMAGE — At least four reports of property damage were recorded by township police over the past week.

• Almost $1,500 in damage was caused to a car parked on Northridge Drive on March 31 and April 1 sometime between 7 p.m. and 10 a.m.

The complainant said unknown persons scratched his 1968 red Lincoln Mark VII. He said the car was parked in an assigned space in a car port at his residence at the time of the incident.

Police said they found about 10 scratches on the car. Police said the scratches went through the car's paint to the metal and it appeared a screw driver was used.

• Almost $1,000 in damage was caused to a house on Parklane on March 7 and March 8 sometime between 4:30 p.m. and 1 p.m.

The complainant said unknown persons shot a hole through his picture window. The window was approximately four feet by seven feet large.

Police said they found a small BB gun type hole in the double-pane window.

• Approximately $200 in damage was caused to a 1989 black Blazer parked on Northville Place Drive on April 8 and April 9 sometime between 10 p.m. and 8 a.m.

The complainant said unknown persons sprayed shaving cream, spread toilet paper and broke eggs on her car. She said her car was parked under a carport just south of her residence at the time of the incident.

• $200 in damage was also caused to a residence on Laird Haven Way sometime between April 7 and April 10.

The complainant said unknown persons broke the window in the back of the location. Police said the hole in the window was the size of a small baseball.

MEIJER'S THEFTS — At least two people were charged with larceny at Meijer's, according to township police reports.

• In the first incident, a Union Lake resident was charged with larceny in a building after attempting to steal a hand massager worth $39.97 on April 7.

Store detectives said they saw the subject place the hand massager in his coat and try to exit the store without paying for the item. The subject was stopped by store detectives.

The man faces a May 11, 9 a.m. 35th district court date.

• In the second incident, a Livonia resident was arrested on April 8 at 4:54 p.m. for attempting to steal an auto care kit.

Store detectives said the subject was standing in the auto section of the store and took an auto care kit off the shelf and tried to return the item.

Store detectives added the subject had purchased an item exactly like it an hour before and tried to return the new merchandise with the old receipt.

Police said that when the subject was denied a refund, he tried to leave the store with the item and was stopped by store detectives.

The man was charged with larceny in a building and faces a May 11, 9 a.m. 35th district court date.

Bed-and-breakfast inn planned at Haggerty and Six Mile

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

A bed and breakfast inn, to be located at Six Mile and Haggerty roads, is the latest project to receive approval in the proliferation of development near the busy township intersection.

During the regular meeting on Tuesday, March 28, the Township Planning Commission granted preliminary site plan approval for the hotel, and earlier approved a site plan for Standard Federal Bank, which will be located on Six Mile near Haggerty.

In addition, commissioners met last night to review a site plan for Ward Presbyterian Church, which owns property on the northwest portion of Six Mile and Haggerty.

While discussing the Country Hearth Inn site plan, planners indicated that they are very concerned about possible future traffic problems in that area.

"The traffic flow is already congested and we're concerned with the safety of people using roads in that area," said Commissioner Karen Woodside.

On the hotel's site plan, only one entrance into the development was indicated. The entrance was accessed from a driveway going from the hotel to Six Mile Road.

Commissioners said they felt it would be more convenient for residents and guests if another access point is included on Haggerty Road.

Michael Gurlinger, of Investment Resources, Inc., the development firm, said the plans call for two buildings consisting of a total of 110 units.

The buildings will each be two stories high, and about 33,000 square feet.

Gurlinger noted 65 to 70 percent of the buildings will include a brick exterior. He added there will be no lounge, bar or restaurant included in the project.

"The bed and breakfast facility is only there for guests," Gurlinger added.

At present, there is no sanitary sewer capacity available. Gurlinger said the project will wait for sewers before moving forward, and added septic tanks will not be used.

In reviewing the plan, commissioners noted the project currently includes a very sparse landscaping plan.

"The Country Hearth Inn in Canton Township is sparsely landscaped and we would like to see more landscape in accordance with Northville Township," Woodside said.

Gurlinger noted the landscape plan would be changed to satisfy the commission.

Speed at corner getting attention

By BOB NEEDHAM

More officials are considering the issue of speeds on Eight Mile near Center Street, and they don't seem to be leaning toward lowering the limits.

The Northville City Council and Northville Board of Education have gone on record in favor of a lower speed limit on Eight Mile near Center because of safety concerns, primarily for students walking to Amerman Elementary School. Wayne County Commissioner Susan Heintz (R-Northville Township) is looking into the possibility.

But a study by the Michigan State Police and Wayne County is expected to recommend no change in speed limits on Eight Mile between Taft and Novi roads. And other officials are tending to agree.

Heintz wrote letters to state legislators in the area, and one state senator — Jack Faxon (D-Farmington Hills) — responded that he is not in favor of a lower limit.

In a letter to Heintz, Faxon suggests leaving the limit at 40 miles per hour and widening the road to better accommodate traffic.

"Indeed, the area traffic situation must be of concern due to the area development and expansion. My concern is that measures be taken to develop the pedestrian and traffic patterns to accommodate present, as well as, future developments and maintain a high degree of safety," Faxon wrote in part.

He suggests that lowering the speed would increase congestion and pedestrian risk, and offers widening as an alternative. "This would also have the added benefit of restraining current and future developers from requesting an increased limit to handle traffic that will definitely occur with future expansion. It would also make the area even more appealing to planning future landsites," the letter reads.

The corner is also getting attention from the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), a regional planning group.

SEMCOG recently came to Northville to study the corner, and is working up a recommendation of its own, said Carmine Palombo, SEMCOG's transportation chief. That recommendation is probably not going to be for a lower speed limit.

"We're in the process of doing our analysis," he said. "I think the county's done a pretty good analysis at this point. . . . It looks like the speed limit that's out there is in pretty good shape, at least from a technical point of view."

The state police / county review is based on a long list of factors, including finding a speed limit which 85 percent of the drivers will obey. The theory behind this is that the closer everyone's speeds are, the fewer accidents will occur.

In addition to the area officials, there is a local committee considering traffic control at the corner. Northville Police Chief Rodney Cannon said the committee has not met in a while, but "it's still alive and well."

Police continue probe of manhole deaths

BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Township police said they are continuing their investigation into the deaths of two men in a manhole on Friday, March 24.

"We are doing interviews with a number of witnesses," said Township Police Capt. Phil Presnell. "We're also doing laboratory work on a number of things involved with the case."

In the accident, Christopher Rosetto, 28 of Taylor and Gary D'Ascenzo, 32, of Dearborn Heights died as a result of asphyxia due to the inhalation of toxic fumes, according to the Wayne County Morgue.

D'Ascenzo was a co-owner of Guardian Plumbing and Heating of Redford Township, the firm hired to work on water pipes in the Northville Commons subdivision on Six Mile Road west of Haggerty.

Presnell said that accidental death, which police initially listed as the cause of death, is still being listed as the cause of the accident.

D'Ascenzo's brother, Anthony, who also owns the company said earlier that Guardian has hired an independent investigator to look into the accident.

Anthony D'Ascenzo said Tuesday that their investigation has not been completed and "we're waiting for reports from township police and the Michigan Occupational Health and Safety Association (MIOSHA) before completing the investigation."

He added he does not know at this time what, if anything, his company will do with their investigation once it is completed.

Presnell said no one from Guardian has contacted him about any outside investigations.

Recycling center slated at landfill

Browning-Ferris Industries is planning to open a recycling center at Arbor Hills Landfill this year, and is also getting ready to hire a community educator on recycling issues.

Arbor Hills, the landfill where most of Northville's garbage currently ends up, is located on the southwest corner of Six Mile and Napier roads. It is currently just a landfill, or, more accurately, two landfills right next to each other owned by BFI, one of the largest trash management companies in the nation.

But Arbor Hills Manager Dan Nelson wants to change that, by opening a recycling drop-off center within the next few months.

"We're definitely going to do some sort of recycling," Nelson said recently. "Our goal is to establish a way for the people who live within driving distance of the site to come to the site and bring refuse ... and recyclables."

The exact nature of the facility is still up in the air, Nelson said, because Salem Township owns the property BFI hopes to use for the center.

The center will probably involve drop-off boxes for garbage which has been separated by type — newspaper, glass, metals, and so on, Nelson said. Two landfills in Canton are currently operating such facilities.

Nelson wants to organize the recycling center to make it easy for people to use, to "provide that kind of facility for these people without putting them in line with our working traffic," he said.

The long-term plans for Arbor Hills include an actual recycler, a facility to actually begin the recycling process, Nelson said.

This could service high-volume industrial customers and do some processing of recyclable materials, such as baling paper or starting to treat other materials, Nelson said.

The planning for these projects is well underway, but that's about all. "We're starting. It's going to take a few months," Nelson said.

He has already interviewed one person for the new position of recycling education coordinator. Once the person is hired, they will be available to travel to schools.

Downs totals drop again but matinee betting rises

Evening attendance and betting at Northville Downs fell again during the past season, but matinee races continued to show growth.

The Northville Downs season, which ran from Jan. 1 to April 1, saw a 4.5 percent drop in evening handle (betting) and a 5.5 percent drop in evening attendance. But at the same time, matinee betting was up about 6.5 percent, the Downs' Sue Hall said. Matinee attendance was up a fraction of a percent.

"Our matinees were very successful this year," Hall said. "I think everyone really enjoyed coming out in the afternoons."

The track ran 12 matinees this season, and excellent weather helped boost participation, Hall said. At the same time, several nights with bad weather or bad weather forecasts probably cut into the evening business, she said.

"The evenings did drop . . . We had some miserable icy roads in the evening," she said. Other times, bad weather was forecast but did not materialize — but people still kept away.

Drops in evening figures and increases in matinees have both been trends over the last few years. That has basically been true of both the fall Jackson at Northville season and the winter Northville Downs season. The decline of evening racing has been attributed largely to competition from Sports Creek Raceway near Flint.

This year, the track had to fight to keep running matinee races because of worries in the state racing commissioner's office about a shortage of horse stock. The commissioner's office eventually allowed the matinees on a trial basis, with the understanding that they could be discontinued at any time if horse stock became too thin. The last two Saturdays in March had no matinees.

Evening handle for the season was $38,241,831 and attendance was 187,202, Hall said. Average handle was $490,280 and average attendance was 2,400. There were 78 evening race programs during the season.

For the matinees, the total betting was $4,734,662. Total attendance was 25,445. Average handle was $473,466 and average attendance was 2,400, Hall said.

The Jackson at Northville race season is scheduled to start again in October.

City discusses track security

By BOB NEEDHAM

City budget discussions have led to some renewed interest in the idea of a private security force at the Northville Downs race track.

Currently, track security is provided by City of Northville police officers. But discussion at a city budget session last week — concerning the revenue the city gets from the Downs — led to a renewed suggestion for some private security at the track.

The state taxes race track business. Under a state law, the local government is supposed to get a return of 20 percent of the state tax money from its track. This money, which the city gets beyond the track's property taxes, theoretically reimburses the city for the extra services a track requires.

There is a cap of $900,000 on how much a city can receive as track tax return money. Although Northville Downs' business has been falling in recent years, the 20 percent share would have regularly gone beyond the $900,000 cap.

However, in actual practice, the 20 percent formula is not used. Instead, the state legislature appropriates a lump sum to the track cities. Northville's actual track tax return was $712,410 in 1987-88, for example.

A budget memo to the city council from City Manager Steve Walters explains the 20 percent share would have brought the city $910,406 for the current (1988-89) budget year. However, the city expects its actual return to be about $735,000. But that amount is reduced in the actual budget figures by almost $4,000 because the state required a repayment by the city from the previous year.

The resulting $731,000 track tax return for the current budget year is $17,880 below what was projected in the original budget, Walters explained.

After hearing this information last week, Council Member Jerry Mittman returned to the idea of using some private security at the track to ease the city's financial obligation. The idea has come up before at the council table.

Walters said he was unsure if the city could make that change legally, since the state might view it as not meeting the requirement for safety services on which the tax return depends.

Council Member Paul Folino said Hazel Park Harness Raceway and the Detroit Race Course both use some private guards, with the police serving in a more administrative capacity inside the track and for traffic control outside.

Walters said he would put together a report on track staffing for the council.

He also repeated a caution he has stated before: warning against making too much noise at the state level, since many legislators do not believe in the idea of any tax return at all.

Schools move ahead with plan

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Asbestos management plans in the Northville Schools is proceeding apace, according to Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton. The district recently submitted 11 reports to the school board. The reports are the results of the district's asbestos management plan. Following the board's approval of the plans on Monday, April 10, the texts have been shipped to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for inspection.

"We have no major asbestos problems in any of our schools and I am confident that our asbestos management plan meets the prerequisites of the Asbestos Hazardous Emergency Response Act," Knighton said.

The district's study of an asbestos management plan was required to be completed by May 9, 1989 under the Asbestos Hazardous Emergency Response Act (AHERA) through the EPA.

School districts throughout the U.S. are being required to submit a detailed management plan for each of their buildings to the EPA.

Knighton said the EPA will begin reviewing Northville's asbestos plans and they hopefully will make their decision before the 1989-90 school year.

"The Michigan Department of Public Health will act as the reviewing body for the EPA," Knighton said. "They will either approve the plan or identify portions of it that do not meet their specifications and must be added."

Knighton said he is confident that Northville's plans will be approved because of "the time and energy we put into the study."

The district contracted in March 1988 to have the study, inspections and plans for each school completed by PTM Consulting.

Knighton said the rules for adhering to AHERA stated that an outside consulting firm do an independent study of each school. The plans were originally due by Oct. 1988, but all school district's received a deadline extension to May 1989.

He said the volumes prepared for the district by PTM Consulting include inspection information for each building, floor plans and sample locations, sampling methods and recommendations for ongoing monitoring and maintenance and abatement.

He added that district administrative assistant Tom Bailey has been trained to provide quarterly checks on the school's asbestos status.

School board vice president James Fetrie said he is quite pleased with the way the school's administration has handled its asbestos inspection.

"We seem to be far ahead of any other school district and I want to commend you (Knighton) for your outstanding work," Fetrie said.

The results of the study have shown that the district has no major asbestos problems and that all areas containing any asbestos have been encapsulated.

"Our ongoing inspections are centering on reinspecting our encapsulated areas since many of them are beginning to show the affects of aging," Knighton said.

"All of our asbestos is encapsulated with a protective coating to keep it from getting airborne," he said, adding no asbestos in any of Northville's schools is in the air.

Knighton said the district has spent approximately $100,000 on asbestos treatment before the PTM study and "appears to be in good shape in comparison to most other districts."

Older buildings have a greater chance for asbestos problems Knighton said, noting most of Northville's school buildings are more modern.

Copies of the asbestos management plans will be kept in the building they refer to and are open to residents who wish to look through them.

Galway will not get sidewalks

NOVI — No sidewalks for Galway.

After about two months of wrangling by the Novi City Council, planning commission and various consultants, that's the final determination.

Council members voted 5-2 to waive the sidewalk requirements for the Lexington Green subdivision. Sidewalks will still be required for the proposed Bradford of Novi II and III developments, which will occur near the area and hook up with Galway Drive.

"This is a tough one, but based on the way this is laid out, looking at the subdivision, there is truly a waiver involved," said Councilman Edward Leininger.

Mayor Matthew Quinn said the Galway situation represented a special case that called for special attention.

"Given the special circumstances, they deserve this out-of-the-ordinary relief," he said. Quinn said he didn't feel the council's waiver was "precedent setting."

The controversy over sidewalks in the Lexington Green subdivision began in the mid-1980s.

When residents began moving into their new homes, most reported being unaware that sidewalks were planned for the area at the developer's expense.

Some said they only began to find out about the sidewalks when workers began staking the area for sidewalk construction.

A group of residents petitioned the city in 1984 and won a reprieve, of sorts. The city council allowed the sidewalk requirement to be suspended for the street until development occurred further west of Lexington Green, off of Galway Drive. Such plans — the proposed Bradford of Novi phase II and III subdivisions — are currently under consideration.

The petition drive against sidewalks was revived this year when plans for Bradford II and III began coming under consideration.

The walks are required on Galway since it is considered a "collector street" — a slightly wider street which is designed to collect traffic from interior subdivision streets and funnel it out onto major roadways. City planners have encouraged the collector street designation since they reduce the amount of entrances and exits (curb cuts) onto the major roadways.

Residents have said Galway — even with the new construction — won't meet the definition of a collector street since it is no longer planned to go all the way through to Beck Road.

Since 1984, the money to construct the Galway sidewalks has been held in a letter of credit from Pulte Homes, developers of Lexington Green.

Council Members Joseph Toth and Nancy Covert both voted against the waiver — favoring sidewalks in Lexington Green.

Toth said he felt the council was establishing a bad precedent.

Readers have asked about the number of Super Lotto winners using "Easy Pick" selections, in which the numbers are randomly selected by the Lottery computer, instead of choosing their own numbers. This column is in answer to these questions.

Q. How do I play an "Easy Pick"?
A. Instead of choosing six numbers for a play on your Super Lotto bet slip, just mark the "Easy Pick" box. This asks the Lottery computer to randomly select six numbers for you. Or you can just tell the sales clerk that you want one or more Super Lotto "Easy Picks."

Q. Can I combine the two types of play on a single ticket?
A. Each Super Lotto bet slip has five panels for playing the game. You can select your own numbers or use "Easy Pick" for as many as you wish. "Easy Pick" wagers will be followed by EP on the ticket.

Q. Is one method better than the other?

A. Any set of Super Lotto numbers, no matter how they are chosen, has exactly the same chance of winning as any other.

Q. How many Super Lotto winners come from "Easy Pick"?

A. In a drawing where the top prize is a minimum $1.5 million jackpot, "Easy Pick" wagers matching four, five or all six of the winning numbers range from 45 to 55% of total winners.

Q. What percent of Super Lotto jackpots have been won with "Easy Pick"?

A. Of the 138 jackpot winning selections since the start of Super Lotto in 1986 through the March 25, 1989 drawing, 71, or just over 51% were "Easy Pick" selections.

Q. Do most other jackpot winners use a particular system for picking numbers?

A. From my conversations with jackpot winners, it is apparent that lucky numbers are chosen in many ways. While some used rather unusual methods, many wagered family ages and birthdates, or numbers selected at random.

Q. How many possible six-number combinations are there in Super Lotto 6/44?

A. There are some seven million possible combinations.

Q. How many of these are wagered in an average Super Lotto drawing?

A. The percentage usually increases as play increases for larger jackpots. When the jackpot was around the $30 million level on two occasions in 1988, about 92% of possible number combinations were wagered.

Honored for service

Police post; William Helke, Northville township police officer in the detective bureau; James Petres, an 18 year veteran with the city police force; and Fred Fisher, a 10 year veteran in the city fire department.

Council cleans up zoning ordinance

What was described as a "technical correction" to the city zoning ordinance won quick city council approval Monday night.

The council Monday amended the articles of the zoning ordinance which deal with changing the ordinance — both the text of the ordinance and the zoning map.

The change makes it clear that the planning commission must hold a public hearing on any proposed change to the zoning ordinance. This is required by state law, but was somewhat ambiguous in the ordinance covering text amendments.

The change also combines two articles of the zoning ordinance into one, so that city-initiated changes and petition-initiated changes are covered under the same article. There is no procedural change here.

Finally, the new version adds to the requirement of who must be notified of a proposed zoning change. The old ordinance required notification to all property owners within 300 feet of the property in question. Now, the requirement is for all property owners within 300 feet or five lots, in all directions, whichever is greater. That change arose from a planning commission suggestion that the 300 feet requirement could conceivably include very few property owners in a large lot area.

The council passed the ordinance change 5-0 with no discussion. No citizens spoke in a public hearing on the change Monday.

Surveys get big return

Northville City Manager Steve Walters is pretty happy with the response to the city's survey of residents.

A recent count shows that the city got back 1,267 of its five-page resident surveys. If you figure that the potential responders were registered voters, that makes a return rate of about 31 percent, Walters said.

"It doesn't really matter too much how you measure it, it's a very good survey response," he said.

The city separated the surveys up into four quadrants of the city, with the axis being at the corner of Eight Mile and Center streets. The return was 213 from the southeast quadrant, 160 from the northeast, 409 from the southwest and 485 from the northwest. A survey of businesses had 83 returned.

The survey asked residents about many aspects of city life and services, including what they value and what needs to be improved. It was planned as a basis for the city planning commission's discussions about updating the official city master plan.

Now comes the big task of tabulating the results. Walters and city Planning Consultant Don Wortman were scheduled to meet Tuesday night to talk over how to gather the data together — with a computer base or on paper.

Library hearing is still weeks away

Any public hearing on possible sites for an expanded Northville Public Library is probably going to wait for several more weeks.

Library Director Pat Orr and city Mayor Chris Johnson both said recently that they are still waiting for the results of an architect's study of the Northville Ford Plant — which, depending on the final results of the study, may be included among the possible sites. An early version of the study suggested a library might be a suitable use for the plant building after it closes, which is currently scheduled for June 9.

The two sites which definitely remain under consideration are the area just behind the Northville Community Center on West Main; and an area at Fish Hatchery Park on Seven Mile.

Johnson said last week the city is hoping to see the Ford study by the end of May.

An architect has already done preliminary studies of the other two sites. Once the information is all together, the officials have said they plan to put it all out to the public for consideration, and then hold at least one special hearing to gather input.

The current library, in the city municipal building, has been considered overcrowded for several years. No decision has been formally made on whether to build a new building.

Local PTA honors its distinguished guests

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Recognition is one of the last reasons why this year's Distinguished Guests of the ninth annual Founder's Day Banquet got involved with their local PTA.

But years of hard-work and dedication have vaulted this year's winners, Nancy Trabin and Martha Nield, into the spotlight.

Trabin said she became involved with the PTA 10 years ago as a way to get to know her children's teachers and schools.

"I found Northville Schools to be excellent and also found the PTA to be a good organization to maintain that level of excellence," Trabin said.

"The PTA is an integral part of the community which tries to give something back to the community," she said, noting the organization tries to meet the ancillary needs of the district.

"We try to combine with the school to support them in offering the best education possible," she added.

A member of PTA organizations beginning at Winchester Elementary, Trabin said she has been a member since her children Jennifer, now 18, and Debbie, 16, were youngsters.

Besides being a member of the PTA, Trabin has also been a member of a number of other community organizations, including the Northville-Novu Hadassah, Northville Youth Assistance and the March of Dimes.

Despite her group affiliations, Trabin said her family always comes first. True to form, Trabin will be at a family gathering in San Francisco on Founder's Day, the same night she is to be honored for her community involvement.

"This will be the first honors day that I'll be missing, but I know I could not have won this honor without the help of other members in the PTA," Trabin said.

"I think every parent with a child in school should be a member of the PTA," she added. "And then they can see the type of excellent education that their children are getting."

Martha Nield, current PTA Coordinating Council president, said she has come a long way in the PTA since she became a member six years ago.

Her dedication and commitment to the PTA are just two of the reasons why Nield is being honored as a distinguished guest by her organization.

"With both of my children in school I felt I needed to be fulfilled by getting involved and also I wanted to show them my support," Nield said.

Nield's two children in the Northville school system are Stacey, 13, at Meads Mill Middle School and Jeffrey, 10, at Silver Springs Elementary.

"Parents in Northville can make a difference in their children's education by getting involved and the PTA is one way to help provide enrichment programs," she added.

During her years in the PTA, Nield said she has felt the school district has received their input very well.

"This is a small school district providing a great deal for our children and we should all look at this as a team effort," she said.

In addition to the PTA, Nield said she has also been a volunteer for the March of Dimes, Northville Historical Society and Girl and Boy Scouts.

"This (Founder's Day distinguished guest) is really a tremendous honor because I am astonished at the people I was chosen over," she said.

Nield said she will be ending her term as PTA president soon, but added she will continue her work in the schools behind the scenes.

"I think this is a great time to leave because a lot of people are doing a great job," Nield said. "It will be fun to watch."

PTA vice-president Linda Baca said Trabin and Nield are both excellent honorees and "are most well-deserving people."

"Martha does a lot of work and is a very dedicated person," Baca said. "And Nancy Trabin, well you can call Nancy at five minutes notice and she'll always help you. She's just a super person who's been involved in the district for many years."

Besides Nield and Trabin, the PTA will also honor at least two people from each of Northville's Public Schools.

PTA honorees from Meads Mill Middle School are Kathy McLean and Sharon Romine, while honorees from Northville High are Darrel Schumacher and Kevin Cavanaugh.

PTA honorees from Bryant School are Don Matheson and Barbara Ianitelli, honorees from Old Village School are Susan Oleson and Sandy Malaniak and honorees from Moraine Elementary are Evelyn Zeuner and Bob Hines.

Township board approves three assessment districts

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Three water or sewer assessment districts are set to accept bids following their approval by the Northville Township Board on Thursday, April

In the first two districts, Ambrose Estates off of Five Mile Road was approved for a water and sanitary sewer system.

Thirty parcels of property make up the water district, which has a total cost of $165,340. The cost to each parcel works out to $5,511.

Thirty-eight parcels of property make up the Ambrose sewer district, which costs a total of $279,500. Construction costs make up a big portion of the total package with a price tag of $212,300.

The 38 parcels of property will split the cost of the project and the figure works out to $7,355 per parcel.

Finally, a water assessment district was approved by the board for the Meadowbrook Estates subdivision off of Seven Mile Road.

The total cost of the project is $293,764, involving 50 parcels of property. The cost of the project per property is $7,467.

Planning groups gain momentum

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Seeing glimpses of a "light at the end of the tunnel," volunteers involved with Northville Schools strategic planning study are nearing the end of the project.

A few volunteers said that while the task has been rewarding, being on one of the eight planning groups has at times, been a real struggle.

"We're doing real well right now," said facilities team chairperson Linda Baca. "But in the beginning we had to do a lot of brainstorming."

"Everyone in the facilities committee came to the group with their own private agendas and it became a matter of jelling for a common goal," Baca said, adding after her group identified the issues they divided into two subcommittees.

Over 150 residents and staffers of Northville Schools volunteered to take part in the project, which will effect the district's planning and implementation of procedures for at least the next five years.

Following last January's initial planning phase, which identified a mission statement and objectives for the district, eight groups were set up to create action plans to achieve the objectives.

Assistant Superintendent Dolly McMaster said those eight groups are all moving ahead with their plans and will each submit their findings to the district by May 12.

"These groups really have gone through the muddying stage and are now turning their clarified agendas into specific objectives," McMaster said.

The eight action committees include: finance, facilities, stress reduction, special student needs, community support, high school program, school climate and upgrade equipment and supplies.

McMaster said that for the last two months, each group has come to a consensus on their strategies for addressing their topic and have tried to define their issues.

After defining their issues, she said most of the committees have splintered into subcommittees to try and better respond and react to the issues.

Those subcommittees are now in the process of clarifying how the district can and should address the issues they deemed as important.

Upon submittal of those plans to McMaster on May 12, the plans will be reviewed by the initial planning team in early June and then presented to the school board on June 12 for board approval.

Getting the plans to point of board approval has been an exhausting process for many action planning volunteers.

Baca said her initial reaction to her group was "that we would have to put our own agendas aside and come together for the good of the district."

She added that the group slowly began to jell together and "I became amazed at the number of dedicated people in this group."

"I have 20 people in my group and they come from all facets of the community," Baca said. "This has really been an exciting experience."

In the process of prioritizing and clarifying her group's two agenda items, Baca said the subcommittees are meeting once a week for 2-4 hours at a time to make the May 12 deadline.

"We'll make the deadline even if we have to meet five times per week," she added.

While the facilities committee struggled at the beginning, finance committee chairman Jack Couzens said his group had little trouble from the onset.

"We're currently a little ahead of where we're supposed to be," Couzens said. "We have defined three basic objectives and are now forming action plans for our objectives."

Couzens said his group had little trouble defining its agenda because of "the people in the group and the willingness of the district's administration to help."

"Superintendent George Bell and district business manager John Street gave us plenty of background information to get the group going," he added.

Meeting once per week as a committee and once a week in subcommittee meetings, Couzens said he can already see positive results coming from the strategic planning project — almost two months before it will be completed.

"This project has absolutely helped to involve citizens in the community and it has been a real asset to the school system," Couzens said.

Local union president thinks Ford move will waste money

BY BOB NEEDHAM

United Auto Workers Local 896 President Norm Fultz does not understand why Ford Motor Company is moving its steel fuel tank operations from Northville to Dearborn.

Fultz has filed a charge with the National Labor Relations Board related to the move (see related story). But in addition to that situation, he believes the change just does not make sense.

He believes that setting up the new line at the Dearborn Engine Plant, to take on the work now being done at Northville, will cost a million dollars or more. And when two-thirds of Northville's steel tank production is for the Econoline van, which he said will shift to plastic tanks in about a year, that move will be obsolete, he said.

"What they're proposing to do is a total idiotic move on the part of the company," Fultz said Monday. "They're going to spend upwards of a million dollars, if not more, to transfer this operation to Dearborn" — and then no longer need it a year from now, he said.

Ford public relations representative Jay Meisenholder said the company would not release information on how much the move to Dearborn will cost. It will also not discuss product details — like the Econoline gas tanks — this far in advance, he said.

When the company publicly announced last summer that the Northville plant would cease operations, it said in general terms that the change was due to an industry-wide shift from steel to plastic tanks.

Fultz is not so sure that's true, either. "The understanding is a lot of them are going to go to steel from plastic," he said. "It wouldn't surprise me one bit to see a lot of the models that have gone to plastic go back to steel."

This may happen partly because the plastic tanks need an extra heat shield in warmer climates, thus adding to a car's cost and weight, he said.

But if the company does phase out the steel tanks soon, that makes the move to Dearborn less sensible, he continued. "It's a stupid move, as far as I'm concerned, to spend all this money for nothing . . . A year from now, if you believe what the P.R. statements say, they won't have any need for them."

"They don't know the facts, I think. If they knew the facts, how could they be doing this?"

Meisenholder said the company would not comment on Fultz's statements. "Cost information is something we normally consider to be proprietary," he said.

The same is true of product decisions this far in advance, he said.

The Northville plant has been assembling steel fuel tanks since 1983, when it reopened after a shutdown. For several decades before that the plant made different types of automotive valves.

Union files Ford charge over shutdown agreement

Fultz said that labor relations staff at the Dearborn Engine Plant notified Northville employees of the pending close in 1986. Later that year, he said, the company offered the union an agreement on the close.

According to the formal charge filed last week, "This offer consisted of allowing employees to transfer to other plants of their choice." Between October, 1986 and January, 1989, 33 employees took advantage of the agreement, the complaint says.

It then charges that labor relations staff said March 28 that "the company would not honor this agreement on transfers to other plants. UAW Local 896 Northville Plant requests that the NLRB take immediate action against the Ford Motor Company to ensure enforcement of our local agreements."

It says 18 people are interested in other transfers. There are 41 hourly workers at the plant.

Fultz said all the statements about the consolidation program — which will move Northville's steel fuel tank manufacturing to Dearborn — have included a line about "a strong emphasis on the treatment of affected employees" in the shutdown.

"It just must have been a bunch of b——. That's all I can say, I guess," Fultz said. "If people got the opportunity to be placed right next to where they work now, I wouldn't have held them back."

"The union has no choice now. You either fold up your tent and go home, or take them on. If they're so interested in the treatment of the employees, why the hell are they making them go an extra 25 miles?"

Many of the people at the Northville plant would rather go to Plymouth or Livonia, because of the longer commute to Dearborn, Fultz added.

Meisenholder said Monday that the company will not publicly respond to the union charge.

He did say, however, that the consolidation plan has not changed since it was announced. He explained that Northville employees have three options: retirement if they are eligible, a transfer to the Dearborn Engine Plant, or a layoff with the possibility of preferential placement at a different plant.

"Those really are the three options we have discussed all along," he said.

All the company's public statements since last summer, when a closing date was announced, have said employees may transfer to Dearborn.

"Nobody's being hurt in any way," Meisenholder said. "We're not talking about reducing any jobs or anything like that."

The voluntary layoff is an option open to people who want to transfer somewhere other than Dearborn, but there is no way to predict where the next jobs will open up, Meisenholder said.

"Until we know what the NLRB is going to do, we probably would not have anything to say," he concluded.

NLRB Agent Ray Kassab is handling the Northville complaint. "We'll investigate, and the regional director will render a finding," he said.

The investigation will probably be ongoing for the next several weeks.

NLRB regulations require that no case can be more than 45 days old by the end of a calendar month. Therefore, a decision will have to come by the end of May.

Fultz said more charges may be ahead, though. "Very likely, I'll have to file on all our local agreements we negotiated," he said.

He expects the international union to oppose the shutdown "any day" as a violation of the plant closing moratorium. "We're alleging the company's violating the letter of understanding on the plant closing moratorium," he said. The union is arguing that transferring a whole job resulting in a plant shutdown is a closing in violation of the moratorium. That grievance is waiting to be heard.

Group plans local parade in support of patriotism

A "pro-America anti-Communist march" is scheduled through downtown Northville April 30.

The city council Monday approved a written request for a parade permit for an estimated 60 people. The march is scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday, April 30.

The request explains that the group wants to march to "rekindle the dying flame of patriotism to this great free land." The permit request is signed by Northville resident Adam Forman.

At the suggestion of Council Member Jerry Mittman, the city will ask the marchers to stay on the sidewalks and obey the traffic signals.

The approved parade route will run from Mill Race Historic Village south to Main Street, west on Main to High Street, north on High to Elm Street, and then into the parking lot of St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

City to review vet clinic plan

A plan to allow veterinary clinics in the Central Business District — and other currently-prohibited areas — will come before the city council in a public hearing May 9.

The city zoning ordinance currently only allows vets to operate in areas zoned general commercial district (GCD). The plan now under consideration would expand this to include CBD, local commercial district (LCD) and professional and business office (PBO) zoning. It would also add new restrictions for vets, pet shops, and other animal-related businesses.

The current proposal grew out of a request from a veterinarian to open a clinic in a free-standing building downtown.

Among the restrictions in the proposed ordinance are:

- The animal-related use may not be in a building which has a common wall owned by someone else.

- It may not be in a building where people live.

- There must not be any adverse effects from noise, odor or anything else caused by the animal use to other uses in the building.

- Only small animals intended as household pets may be served. It defines small animals as "dogs and cats, and other small mammals, rodents, reptiles and birds which are being kept indoors as pets. It shall not include horses and other farm animals, such as but not limited to livestock or poultry; nor any animal which is too large to be reasonably transported in a passenger vehicle; nor any animal which as an adult in captivity requires special conditions to provide safety in handling to either human beings or the animal."

- No commercial boarding, except for recovery periods.

- No outdoor animal facilities or external evidence of the animal use, such as noise or odors, which would adversely affect the surroundings.

The definition of small animal was a topic which received a lot of discussion as the ordinance was being drafted. The definition is adapted from a federal definition of small animals, City Manager Steve Walters said.

The planning commission recently recommended passage of the ordinance on a split vote. The council will be able to take action on the ordinance after the public hearing, at 8 p.m. Monday, May 9.

Abbey Knoll Estates pulls together

By BOB NEEDHAM

Pulling together an active homeowners' association in a brand-new subdivision might not be the easiest thing to do, but the people in Abbey Knoll Estates are managing.

Even though the development off of Eight Mile is not quite fully built yet, the association has already had to address a couple of issues important to the residents. And association President Bob Menton has some pretty ambitious plans for the future.

Menton and his wife have only lived in the subdivision about a year and a half, but in that time have seen the area go from a collection of vacant lots to an almost-complete neighborhood.

"When we first picked out the lot, there were three homes under construction. The place was wide open," Menton recalled. Today, of the 98 lots in the subdivision only 10 or 12 are unoccupied and just a couple are still vacant.

"Even the builders themselves were surprised" at how quickly the sites sold and how quickly the owners moved in, Menton said. He attributes Abbey Knoll's rapid growth to several factors: location in a truly residential community, the economic upturn, low interest rates, and a long previous period of little new residential development in the area.

Established neighborhoods often seem to have a certain personality, and while Abbey Knoll Estates didn't start out with one, Menton said it has quickly developed. (Although the uninitiated may find it difficult to distinguish the border between Abbey Knoll Estates and Pheasant Hills, the subdivision immediately to the east.)

Part of the rapid rise of subdivision character may be due to the fact that the new homeowners didn't come from very far away. "There are a lot of people living in this subdivision who moved from Northville," he said.

"This association has so many different faces and so many different personalities," he added.

Menton said he sees the association as having two basic functions: protecting the investment made by each homeowner, and preserving the reason people move here — the community and its quality of life.

Some issues early in the development of Abbey Knoll helped pull people together and take an interest in the association, Menton said.

"There were a couple of growing pains that this sub went through right away," he said — like a couple of aspects to the development that the new homeowners weren't fully aware of.

For one, when people came out to the model homes, many were told that it was an open question whether sidewalks would be used in the subdivision. According to the builders, "it looked like they were not going to go in," Menton said.

However, there was really no question on the part of the city, which had an established policy for sidewalks on all residential streets. Some residents were surprised and upset to find this out, but they have since gotten over it, Menton said.

Although the issue caused a bit of a rift for awhile, the question "made the association and its membership stronger," Menton said. "The nice thing about this community is the people."

But maybe the biggest issue the association has faced so far is the question of the trees and the subdivision entrance.

In a development with no commons, no pool and no clubhouse, one of the few areas of association-wide concern is the entrance. And at Abbey Knoll Estates, some of the residents were unhappy with theirs.

"A lot of people complained about our entrance and how it looks," Menton said. The association wanted to do something to change it.

When they found out there was money at the city sitting ready to plant trees along the Abbey Knoll streets, the association board had what it thought was a brainstorm: since the residents were not all that excited about the street trees, why not use the money to spruce up the entrance?

They quickly found out that, like the sidewalks, the street tree program was an established city policy. The city council voted down an appeal — led by Menton and then-association-president Harry Joboulian — to suspend the tree program in Abbey Knoll.

Skateboard masters

Students convert driveway into ramp

By BOB NEEDHAM

A bunch of enterprising elementary and middle school students in the Abbey Knoll Estates subdivision have turned a driveway into a skateboard park with a homemade wooden ramp.

The group has built and torn down a few of the ramps — called "half pipes" — since this summer, when a lot of them first got really interested in skateboarding. All the planning and construction was done on their own, just getting a few basic ideas from Thrasher magazine.

The kids involved in the project are David ("Shaver") and Marcie Marino, Scott Ellsworth, Kevin and Mark Holdridge, Erik Whitaker, and J.B. and Erica Brevik.

They built their first half pipe on an undeveloped hill in the subdivision, not realizing it was a lot someone owned. They had to take that down, but then built another at the Marino home on Whitegate Drive. The parents eventually required that one to come down, too, since it was taking up the whole driveway. But recently, the kids put up a third, smaller version at the Marino house.

"The last one was a lot bigger. It took us about three days to build it," J.B. Brevik said Friday, as the group put the finishing touches on its latest model. "The other one was way better," his sister agreed.

"My mom always says I'm an accident looking for a place to happen."

But the new one worked just fine, and before long the kids were taking turns skating and spinning on their creation. One good point about their new half pipe is they think they'll be able to save this one, moving it off the driveway when necessary.

The kids built the ramp partly with lumber they scavenged from construction in the area, which they ended up having to pay $80 for. They're managing to scrape the money together. If anyone else is interested in building a ramp, Scott Ellsworth has some advice: "Don't steal the wood."

"The hardest part (in building the half pipes) was patience," Shaver said. Marcie added, "We had to do it over and over" to get a working arrangement. Sometimes when things weren't working out so well, they got a little frustrated with each other, but now that's all settled.

Now, they've got their sights set on bigger things. For one thing, they'd like the recreation department to think about building a skateboard park so they can really enjoy their sport.

But skateboarding isn't their only interest. The kids listed lots of other things they like, including Nintendo, soccer, fast cars, biking, football, and — for the boys — girls.

Skateboarding is still a big favorite, though, even when it ends in some scrapes and bruises. And that can happen to the best of them. Showing a couple of recent injuries, J.B. Brevik commented, "my mom always says I'm an accident looking for a place to happen."

The group tries out their ramp at Abbey Knoll subdivision.

Council to define city storage policy

The city policy on outdoor display of merchandise is going to be firmed up and put on paper.

The city zoning ordinance gives the city council the authority to allow outside display, and the council has given the city manager the authority to allow it in some cases. It is otherwise prohibited.

City Manager Steve Walters recommended Monday that a policy on what is allowed and not allowed be put into writing and approved by the council so that the guidelines are clear to all.

Walters' draft of the proposal breaks allowed outside display into three types:

Outside display on private property — one item or a small group of interest to a typical pedestrian shopper would be allowed.

Outside display on a public sidewalk — the same requirement would apply as for private property. It could not be more than four feet long, could not impede pedestrian traffic, and could not extend out from the wall more than two feet — roughly the amount of room taken up by city planters.

Outside display on sandwich board signs — they would have to be against the building face, not impede traffic, and conform to city design standards. One per business storefront would be allowed.

Any requests not meeting the requirements would go to the city council for consideration.

The new rules should also probably include a formalized permit issuance, Walters said, although probably without a fee.

Council members offered some additional suggestions for the policy. Jerry Mittman suggested the rules include a fixed length of time for a display, and that they only be outside during business hours. He also suggested a ban on stores hanging merchandise on tree branches, saying "I don't think we should be using the trees for that."

Council member Paul Folino said he would rather see single-board signs instead of the sandwich type.

Walters said he would return to the council with a refined draft of the policy within the next few weeks. The council could adopt a policy for the rest of 1989 and review its operation at the end of the year, he said.

Walters said he plans to get opinions on the policy from merchants in town.

County moves ahead in project

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Wayne County Department of Jobs and Economic Development has issued a new schedule which targets Sept. 5, 1989 as the date for finalizing an agreement with a developer for the 1,040 acres of land it owns in Northville Township.

Following up on its declaration two weeks ago to move ahead on the project, County Business Development Director Bill Wild said a pre-bid conference was held on Friday, April 7 for the 12 developers being considered for the project.

At the conference developers were briefed on the detailed proposal list which they were sent last week.

Developers have been given 60 days to submit detailed proposals.

According to the schedule, developers are being asked to "provide proposals that maximize financial returns to the county through, among other things, a long term joint development with the county."

Wayne County Deputy Executive Michael Duggan said each proposal will have to be accompanied by a $25,000 deposit "so developers can show they're interested in the project."

Developers currently being considered for the project by the county include: Biltmore Properties Corp.; J.D. Blain, Inc.; Charter Development Co.; R.A. DeMattia Co.; Farman/Stein & Co.; and Holtzman & Silverman.

The list of developers also includes: LoPatin & Co.; Pulte Home Corp.; Schostak Brothers & Co., Inc.; J. & J. Slavik Inc.; Trammell Crow Co.; and Victor International Corp.

Township Supervisor Georgina Goss said she believes this schedule set forth by the county will be the one that finally brings the county land project to development.

"I've just got a gut feeling that this time the county is ready to go ahead with the project," Goss said, adding she thinks a Sept. 5 deadline may be too ambitious a schedule for the county to keep.

Township may see woes ease

completion in 1992.

The agreement could give Northville Township additional space until its capacity in the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority (YCUA) system materializes.

Township engineering consultant Abe Munfah said Tuesday he had no information on the possible agreement.

"(But) any capacity that is available... I'm sure Northville Township will utilize it," Munfah said.

Several major projects in Northville Township, including the Ward Presbyterian Church complex on Haggerty and Six Mile roads, have been stopped cold, due to a lack of sewer capacity in the township.

Northville Township opted out of the super sewer agreement and instead became a member of the Western Township Utility Authority (WTUA) and has contracted to send sewage to the Ypsilanti plant. Work on the WTUA plan is due to be finished in 1993.

DNR official Roy Schrameck was out of town this week and could not be reached for comment. Jim Murray, director of the Wayne County Department of Public Works, could not be reached for comment after repeated attempts.

"The DNR is apparently fully supportive of releasing additional sewer capacity to Wayne County," Kriewall said. "It hopefully will bridge our problems between now and when the sewer sewer goes on line."

Kriewall said the DNR is likely to closely monitor all future sewer permits, in an effort to prevent overflow in the system.

Kriewall said an additional meeting will have to be scheduled with the communities of Northville and Plymouth, but that additional sewer capacity could be available "within 60 days."

New development in the Haggerty road corridor has been slowed by a lack of sewer capacity in the township.

Novi had been under the DNR-imposed ban on new sewer construction for much of last year. City officials began noticing an anticipated decrease in new growth this past fall, with building department permit fees dropping off substantially.

The decrease in new growth also led city officials to unveil what was described as a "gloomy" 1989-90 fiscal projection, with building revenues expected to be off by as much as 30 percent.

Zoning board OKs Ward plan despite legal snafu

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

A front-yard parking variance was granted to Ward Presbyterian Church by the Township's Zoning Board of Appeal on Monday, even though the planning commission has not yet acted on the plan.

"I have no problem with the parking plan that you have presented, but I don't know if this will be the final plan that is approved by the planning commission," said ZBA member Karen Baja.

"I really feel that we're putting the cart before the horse in this case," she added.

The confusion stems primarily from the complexity of the Ward site plan. Ward officials have had site plans tabled by the planning commission twice for various reasons.

Following the January commission meeting Ward officials and commissioners wondered if the church could go before the ZBA to get a parking variance.

Commissioners surmised that, if the parking variance was denied by the ZBA, then Ward would have to completely redo their plan — something planners wanted to know before voting on Ward.

In a letter to planners in March, Township attorney Ernest Essad said it was his opinion that a site plan should go before the planning commission before going to the ZBA, even if the applicant knows a petition must be obtained.

Following a decision to again table the Ward plan on April 5, planners again inquired from Essad whether Ward should take their parking request to the ZBA before commission action.

Essad said in a letter dated April 14 that a variance attaches to a site plan and not a development.

"If the site plan expires or a new one is submitted that does not meet the Zoning Ordinance requirement, a new variance must be obtained," Essad wrote.

Hence, the variance obtained by Ward only pertains to the current site plan it has submitted to the commission. Any major deviation from that plan will require a new variance for front-yard parking.

hardship arises from the soil conditions and high water table which affect the location of our building," said Ward attorney Harold Larson.

Larson said engineers working for Ward have suggested that the building needed to be moved back from the corner due to poor soils in the area.

He said he believes that the areas chosen for front-yard parking are the most acceptable, provided they are bermed and landscaped to obscure the parking lot and enhance the area.

Ward engineer Phil Borrowman said since a portion of the parking lot will be on poor soils, some problems will occur, but those problems will be less than if a building was on the poor soils.

Borrowman pointed out that five acres of detention area will be at the corner of Haggerty and Six Mile.

Before granting their approval ZBA members quizzed Ward officials on the possibility of shifting their parking lot with a playfield in the rear and how the front-yard parking lot will be screened if a variance was approved.

Ward architect Randall Lindstrom said the parking lot site was chosen in relation to walking distance from the parking lot to the church.

He added the playfields have been positioned in the northwest portion of the site because of their close relationship to a possible K-6 Christian school locker rooms and storage area.

As for screening the parking lot, Lindstrom said the church will install a six-foot berm along with a variety of trees to screen not only the parking lot, but cars as well.

"The berm's goal is to screen the parking lot and the cars as well," Lindstrom said, noting that along with a 44-foot wide berm, the church will spend $350,000 on landscaping for the parking lot.

Following Ward's hour-long presentation, many board members said they were satisfied that the proposed parking lot is best situated in the front-yard.

As a part of their approval, the ZBA required the berm to be constructed at a height of six feet.

ZBA member Tom Cook said he was unsure how the church would be able to hide a parking lot which was "15 football fields long," but added he feels comfortable with the plan as long as it is properly lighted.

Board member Karen Baja said she thinks the parking proposal looks better than anything else that could be on the site, but voted against the variance "because I'm not sure a hardship has been proven."

Senate committee plans on hearing for new home day-care legislation

BY BOB NEEDHAM

A bill in the state legislature to limit the way cities may treat day care homes is set to be up for a committee hearing Tuesday.

Jim Crawford, an aide to state Sen. Fred Dillingham (R-Fowlerville), said that Senate Bill 177 is scheduled for a committee hearing at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday on the fourth floor of the Parnum Building in Lansing. The hearing is before the Senate's Human Resources and Senior Citizens Committee, which Dillingham chairs.

Committee consideration of the bill was stalled for several weeks because of opposition to it from individual cities, the Michigan Municipal League, and others. But Crawford said Monday that, although the opposition still exists, they will take the bill to committee and see how far it gets.

"I suspect we will pass it out of committee," he said. "It's going to be real close on the Senate floor."

Crawford predicted the most likely version of the bill to pass the committee will be the same as the Senate first passed last year. That bill was changed in the state House of Representatives, and the new version failed by one vote in the Senate with two known supporters absent.

Although the bill covering cities did not pass last year, similar bills for townships and rural counties did pass and are now law.

Senate Bill 177 is sponsored by Sen. Jack Faxon (D-Farmington Hills) and its co-sponsors include Sen. R. Robert Geake (R-Northville Township), both of whom represent part of the City of Northville. The Northville City Council, along with many other cities, is opposed to the bill.

If passed, the bill would require cities to consider in-home day care as a residential land use — something the City of Northville is already doing, as of Monday night (see related story).

But, if passed in the form in which it almost passed last year, there would be a couple of conflicts between the city and state statutes. Most noticeably, the state would require cities to allow residential day care homes to serve up to 12 children with a special use permit. The city ordinance allows homes to serve only up to six children in a single-family residential area.

In one other possible conflict, the city ordinance prohibits the operation of the day care homes between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. The most recent language in the state bill would allow cities to regulate, but not prohibit, operation during these hours.

Faxon has said he proposed the bill to prevent local governments from altogether prohibiting in-home day care, which he sees as a needed service. He argues that the bill would still allow local control over some aspects of operation and would not prevent local inspection and oversight of day care homes.

Opponents have argued that, among other things, the bill would erode local control over zoning. Some have said that day care operations are a full-fledged business and do not belong in residential areas.

Crawford said that state officials met with the Michigan Municipal League and others to try to work out the differences over the bill. Those efforts at compromise fell through, so the decision was made to see if the bill has enough support to pass as it is.

Schools to host Special Olympics

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Athletes from around the Wayne County area will be flocking to Northville on April 29 and May 5 to take part in the region's Special Olympics program.

"We are extremely pleased to be selected as the host district for these events," said Leonard Rezmierski, director of special education for Northville Schools. "This is quite an honor for us and the people involved with special education here are very happy."

Rezmierski said approximately 500 athletes will take part in the indoor portion of the competition, set for Saturday, April 29 in the Northville High gymnasium.

Events scheduled for the indoor competition include gymnastics, weightlifting and wrestling, to name a few.

In the outdoor competition on Friday, May 5, Rezmierski said approximately 1,000 athletes will invade Northville High's outdoor track and football field.

Besides the athletes, 450 volunteers will also descend on the area to assist athletes in a number of ways including passing out lunches, walking and celebrating a victory.

"In being chosen to host the competition, we feel that our strongest selling point is our enthusiasm," Rezmierski said, adding volunteers will also help in preparations for the games.

Admission is free for both the indoor and outdoor competitions for anyone wanting to attend the games.

Rezmierski said anyone wishing to volunteer for either the indoor or outdoor games should contact John Campbell at Northville High at 344-8420.

City council OKs home day-care rules proposals, repeating objections he raised at earlier meetings.

For one, Polino said there should have been a requirement that the outdoor play areas be fenced. This idea was dropped because some city subdivisions do not allow fences.

Polino also opposed the exemption from city registration for homes serving four or fewer children. "I feel very strongly that they should be (registered)," he said.

He also questioned the need for a city ordinance, in view of pending state legislation which would settle most of the issues for the city (see related story). "All of this is going to be thrown out the window in the next few weeks when the state passes its family day care statute," he said.

The new ordinances adopt state definitions for a "family day care home," a private residence serving six or fewer kids; "group day care home," serving seven to 12 kids; and "child day care center," which is anything else, including a full-scale day-care business.

The city will now allow family day care homes in any residential zoning except R-4, which is a high-density apartment zoning currently used only for Allen Terrace. Group day care homes and child day care centers are allowed in professional and business office (PBO), local commercial district (LCD) and general commercial district (GCD) zones.

All day care operations will have to abide by a set of registration requirements, although only homes serving more than four children will have to actually register and pay the annual fee.

The requirements for family day care homes include:

- Having a valid state license.
- No operation between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.
- Compliance with all applicable city ordinances.
- A protected outdoor play area of at least 400 square feet within walking distance.
- No sign on the outside of the home.
- No greater impact on the neighborhood than a typical single-family residence.

The council's adoption of the new ordinances comes after several months of discussion at the planning commission, city council and administration levels. They go into effect 10 days from today.

City may be able to hold park election in fall for a valid election. But Essad has since drafted bill language for Law to send to the state's Legislative Service Bureau which would allow a November election and a December tax levy.

Walters' memo indicates that "it appears this procedure can be implemented routinely." It also says that Law plans to go ahead with the process, which "would give the city council the choice of scheduling the election in November, but would not require the council to do so on the basis that the statute was passed."

In spite of all these official maneuvers, the council has not formally decided whether to hold another election.

Walters said Tuesday he did not know when the council might take the issue up. The council would have until the end of August to make a decision on the November ballot, he said.

The first election for a millage to develop the Northville Community Park was held last November. Both the city and the township offered voters the same proposal: .9 mill for two years to develop the park site, on Beck Road above Five Mile. The tax was only to be levied if both municipalities approved it.

Township voters did OK the plan, but city voters defeated it. The city defeat was blamed in part on a last-minute blitz of anti-millage fliers. The Northville Recreation Commission requested a new election in the city, saying they would fight the opposition once they knew it existed. The opposition, a small group called Citizens for a Better Northville, have said that recreation needs should be met by private concerns rather than government.

Officials should begin testing on Rouge River

Some rather disturbing news came out of Novi this week.

Preliminary tests done by JCK and Associates, the engineering consultants for the City of Novi, found unusually high levels of polynuclear aromatic hydrocarbons (PNAs) in the mud at the bottom of the Middle Rouge River. PNAs are believed to cause cancer if ingested.

We don't want to go shouting "fire!" in a crowded theater here. At this point, there is no reason to panic. For one thing, the PNA threat is believed to be primarily from ingestion, and we don't know of anyone who's been eating mud from the Rouge. For another, the sediment samples have only been tested once; the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) plans to check the results. And finally, of local concern, the tests were done only in Novi.

On the other hand . . . The Rouge flows from Novi through the middle of the Northville community. Since Northville is downstream from Novi, it stands to reason there is a good chance that any contaminants present in Novi are also present in Northville. And if the substances do exist, it is a matter of legitimate concern. The knowledge about cancer and its causes changes regularly, and any such possible danger should be addressed.

The community obviously needs more information, as quickly as possible. Someone, be it the DNR or local consultants, should move quickly to test the sediment in Northville and downstream to see just where the situation exists, if at all. There really is no reason to panic. But there is definite reason to act.

Environmental board for City is a good move

An intriguing idea has arisen from Planning Commissioner Chris Gazlay's suggestion for some kind of woodlands protection ordinance in the city.

At a recent commission meeting, the city's planning consultant, Don Wortman, suggested that woodlands issues might be handled by a new city board. But he then went on to say such a group — he called it an environmental quality board — could oversee a lot of other issues, if the city chooses to create the necessary ordinances. He spoke of things like requirements for hazardous materials storage, action plans to prepare for a chemical spill, and wetlands issues.

In a developed community like the City of Northville, it may sound strange to speak of a need for added environmental protection. But think a minute. The city has waterways, including the Middle Rouge River; it has trees; it has businesses (gas stations, for example) which deal with substances carrying the potential for environmental damage.

It is precisely because the city is so developed that its remaining natural resources need protection. A new group to specifically address these needs — to propose and oversee new ordinances to meet the needs — is a great idea. It deserves quick action.

Praise for local officers

To serve and protect. For firefighters and police officers the goal is simple and honorable.

Last Sunday, on a bright and beautiful afternoon, families and community members gathered at Northville VFW Post 4012 to honor the 1988 Outstanding Police and Firefighters of the Year for the township and the city.

The VFW and its Ladies' Auxiliary have been sponsoring the award ceremony and dinner at the post home on S. Main Street for years. Every year the post is filled with VFW members, honorees and their families and friends and invited guests from the community at large.

The fact that the VFW and its Ladies' Auxiliary take the time, year after year, to sponsor the event, is proof of the group's commitment to the community and the people who serve it.

Five men — James Petres, Fred Fisher, William Helke, Ronald Lane and Daniel Atkinson — were honored for their service to the community during 1988. Each of those five represented a group of dedicated people — the city police and firefighters, the township police and firefighters and the Northville Post of the Michigan State Police.

The words spoken last Sunday by a grateful public are worth repeating. The Northville community is lucky to have such an outstanding group of public servants. When accidents or fires hit, too often the people putting their lives on the line are taken for granted, and once a year it is more than fitting that a word of thanks is given for their service.

First step

By Bruce Weintraub

Sitting around the newsroom on a Wednesday morning:

After becoming very involved in the issue of drug abuse awareness programs offered in Northville Schools over the past few months, I find it comforting to see Novi Schools finally make a move concerning drug abuse.

Part of my zeal in covering the Northville drug situation is the overall honesty displayed by school officials. Their way of dealing with this epidemic — and yes, drug use is becoming an epidemic — is to admit there is a problem and then go about combating it.

During their annual red ribbon campaign held last month, I had a chance to sit down with Northville High School Assistant Principal Bill Hamilton and talk about the school's philosophies concerning drug awareness.

Primed with a grin on his face, Hamilton showed me a study recently conducted by a local university relating to drug awareness.

"The University of Michigan has come out with a 1989 study, which cites substance awareness programs as the major reason for a decline in substance abuse among adolescents," Hamilton told me.

A little bit later in our conversation, Hamilton said the amount of drug abuse incidents at Northville High have decreased over the last five years.

Then in the same breath he said Northville still has a drug problem. "Of course there are students who are involved with substance abuse," he said. "We'd be naive to deny it."

After leaving Hamilton's office, I strolled over to talk with Charles Stilec, Student Assistant Program Coordinator (SAP) in Northville Schools.

Stilec told me that he regularly sees about 70 to 80 students per week, 90 percent of which have been substance abusers at one time or another.

Imagine, Stilec sees 70 to 80 students per week in one of the most affluent communities in all of Wayne County. If it can happen in Northville, it's probably happening everywhere — even Novi.

Novi Schools took a big step last week by permitting its police department to participate in a drug prevention program at its schools.

Crime Prevention Officer Robert Gatt, who'll head up the drug education program, said last week that he has seen the city "grow up" into a drug problem.

"Do we have a problem in Novi?" asked Gatt. "The answer is 'yes.' We're growing up too fast."

Novi Schools has begun the long, sometimes frustrating struggle to fight drug abuse among its students. It is much easier to deny a problem and shove it under a rug than to be open and admit a problem exists.

But, considering that the future of our youth may be at stake, opening up and fighting drug abuse will definitely be worth the risk.

You took a big first step Novi. Let's hope, for the good of your youth, that similar supportive steps will be made in the future.

When I was leaving Hamilton's office during our meeting last month he said something that will probably stick with me for a while.

"I really think the amount of drug use by your students is somewhat directly dependent upon the kinds of programs your're running with regard to drug abuse," he said.

Definitely words to live by.

Right up your alley

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

Bob Gatt was dead serious. Which was rather unfortunate for him because he was the only one.

"Honest," said the Novi Crime Prevention Officer earnestly while the rest of us sat around and grinned at him. "Whenever you feel a cold coming on, boil some water, put your head over the steam and breath it in through your nose and throat."

"Within 48 hours your cold will be gone. The germs cannot survive in that kind of environment," he continued. "But you've got to get to it quick. You've got to do it the first sign of a cold coming on."

"I saw an ad in the back of a magazine about this thing you can buy for $39.95 which does the same thing.

But you don't need it. All you have to do is boil the water like I told you."

"What kind of magazines you been reading?" asked Ralph Fluhart, a detective. "High Times?"

"I saw an ad in the back of a magazine for a machine which will enlarge your bustline," I added. "But I'm not going to buy that either. You can't believe everything you read in the backs of those magazines, Bob."

"Do you have a license for practicing medicine?" asked Fluhart.

Maybe you had to be there, but it was funny at the time. It really was. And it was all that much funnier because Gatt stuck so fervently to his story.

"Go ahead and laugh," he said. "But it works. You guys can yuk it up all you want, but I think you should let people know about it. When the word gets out, we can cut down on illness. We can increase productivity. There will be no more sick days as a result of colds."

"I'm not kidding. It works everytime," he continued. "It's a medical breakthrough in the fight against the common cold."

Factual updates are very helpful

To the Editor:

As a group of 24 mothers living in Northville Township with 56 children, we are naturally concerned about the safety of our neighborhood. We believe the existence of drugs, dealers and their related firearms within our neighborhood threatens the physical and moral well-being of our children. The raid of a home and arrest of one of our neighbors has reinforced our awareness that the drug problem threatens everyone regardless of where they live. We are anxious to have the suspect, if guilty, convicted and removed from our family-oriented neighborhood and hope that he will not be set free through plea-bargaining. We ask the police of our community to continue to help us maintain a wholesome environment to raise our families and thank the Northville Record for providing continued factual updates on our current problem.

The Lakes and Hills
Babysitting Co-op

Praising series

To the Editor:

The first presentation of the lecture series "Are You Concerned?" has come and gone and personally, I believe it was too long. Steps I am sure will be taken to prevent a recurrence.

But, during the evening I realized something exciting was happening, not only here but in Novi, in Livonia, and thousands of communities across this great land of ours; that, at long last after being bombarded by the media and infiltrated by the drug kings; that we the people are uniting and saying, "We have had enough. We are going to rise up and protect our young and our loved ones, from drunk drivers, from the crack pushers, from Saturday night specials, and from the media. We are going to make our streets safe again, not only here but in Washington D.C. and in other large cities including Detroit."

We the people, are declaring that as we were willing to defend our country in an all out effort against a common enemy in 1941, we are now willing to defend our country against a more insidious enemy, our own indifference.

This effort must extend beyond borders and color differentiation. We, as a people, are making ready to defend our morality so that we as individuals can enhance our nation's immortality.

This is really what the "Are You Concerned?" meetings are all about, and it is going to take a lot of work and a lot of soul searching, plus a lot of time, but a national attitude turnabout can be accomplished.

Please show your support by attending the meetings, as the momentum has started and must be kept going. We are a blend of many origins, but we are a good people. We are a proud people. We are courageous. We are determined. Let us prove it.

Wonderful play

To the Editor:

There are many things I like about Northville High School, but when spring comes my like turns to love when they present their musical.

This year's "The Sound of Music" was wonderful! Congratulations to the cast and crew and the directors for again giving us the feeling of being close to Broadway.

But I am from South Lyon, and there if we do not give our musicals a standing ovation, the cast and crew are disappointed. Myself, along with five other people in a crowded auditorium Thursday evening, were the only ones standing at the conclusion of this superb performance. I would like to suggest that if you like the performance next year that you will join me and stand to show our appreciation to the fullest extent.

Troubled youths cry out for attention

This is another in the continuing series of columns written for the Record by Mary Ellen King, Director of Northville Youth Assistance.

Many youths have been referred to Northville Youth Assistance (NYA) by the city and township police for shoplifting. They have been apprehended at various community businesses, including grocery stores, hardware stores, drug stores and other establishments.

When first interviewed, most of the youths say they stole the item because they needed it or just wanted it. Upon further exploration I usually learn that something in the youth's life has changed — for example, a move to a new city, a birth of a sibling, divorce of the parents or re-entry of the mom into the work force. The youth is looking to get attention, to feel power or excitement, to get revenge or to feel superior. When the youth steals, the business calls the police and the police in turn call the parents. The youth then gets a great deal of attention from the parents. The attention that the child gets is negative but many youngsters have told me that the only time their parents notice them is when they get in trouble. The youth probably feels that negative attention is better than no attention at all.

A 14-year-old girl I recently interviewed confided in me that when she was caught shoplifting she wasn't surprised. This was the first time she was caught but it was the seventh time she had shoplifted. This young girl was crying out for attention from her parents. The parents were extremely busy with their work schedules and they were basically ignoring their daughter. This girl was secretly hoping that her parents would become aware that there was a problem behind her stealing.

When the parents take the youth home from the police station it is important that they don't lecture or moralize. It is imperative that the parents do some active listening in order to find out why the youth stole. It may be necessary for the family to make some changes in their lifestyle so that the youth feels like an integral member of the household. If the youth feels good about himself and his position in the family, he will not be as likely to steal to get attention or to feel superior.

If a teenager is stealing money, the stealing may indicate that there is a more serious problem. Some youths will steal money from their parents in order to buy alcohol or drugs. If a parent believes money is being stolen it is important then, for the parent to observe if other behavioral changes are occurring and to take the appropriate action.

If you are concerned that your youngster is stealing, help is only a phone call away. Call NYA at 344-1618.

Farewell to a clever tongued educator

This is a column by Tim Richards, special writer for the Northville Record. Richards covered the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees for the Observer and Eccentric Newspapers.

ROSINA'S Rosinaisms grew on you.

"You never really lose an election; sometimes you just don't win," said Rosina Raymond, who won election to the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees on her third try in 1971.

Last week Schoolcraft's longest serving trustee died at the age of 77, and it caused many of us to swap Rosinaisms.

The one about never losing an election was more than a rationalization. Her point was that a candidate learns and grows from electioneering. In her case, I'm sure it made her a better Schoolcraft trustee.

In the early days, the college district elected three trustees at large and one from each of the member districts — Northville, Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia and Plymouth — regardless of population.

The late Sam Hudson, a pioneer Schoolcraft trustee and author of the college history, recalled that Raymond was his rival for a 1965 at-large seat. While she carried her home base of Livonia, voters in the smaller districts — particularly Northville, where she was endorsed by The Record — ganged up and gave a majority to Hudson, of Plymouth.

With that political pattern, little Plymouth, then with only 20 percent of the college district's population, wound up with four of the eight board seats.

It sensitized Raymond to the four smaller school districts.

After someone discovered the U.S. Constitution and ruled that all Schoolcraft trustees should be elected at large to assure "one person, one vote," Raymond won a seat

"Laura, not only am I the dean on the board, but I'll be the pope of the board. This will be my last term, and I'll do and say as I wish."

— Rosina Raymond
Late Schoolcraft Board Member

in 1971. Soon the board had six Livonians in seven seats.

"As it is now, a popular candidate from Livonia can outdraw everyone. That really isn't good, is it?" she said.

Her next Rosinaism was to advocate a nine-member board. Hardly anyone else could understand why, but she was right if you studied election results. With a larger board, candidates from smaller districts stood a better chance of winning by running second or third.

Here was Rosina Raymond, the Livonia liberal, looking out for the small districts, and they failed to appreciate it.

Son Eldon remembered his feminist mother telling him, "When Lincoln freed the slaves, he included women."

Laura Toy, her political protege on the Schoolcraft board, recalled a Rosinaism in her eulogy: "Laura, not only am I the dean on the board, but I'll be the pope of the board. This will be my last term, and I'll do and say as I wish."

It was a double-barrelled Rosinaism — a declaration that she was senior enough to speak independently with impunity, and a gibe at her former church's male chauvinism.

Raymond referred to God as "She" facetiously, not because she was the kind of feminist who resented men but because she wanted a fair break for women. I suspect she also had a loftier view of the creator of the universe.

She liked men and only wanted us to to think a second time before popping off, though she wasn't above developing a hidden agenda in consultation with other she-trustees.

Other Rosinaisms can stand by themselves without explanation:

"There are still a few horse's asses out there, and my apologies to the horse."

"It's one thing to run, and another to serve."

"What's your hur-r-r-y?" she wheedled and cajoled as trustees considered leasing college land on Seven Mile Road to a private developer for a tidy rent. Her sense of history was speaking, reminding everyone that land in the public trust shouldn't be let go without lots of thought.

It took time — sometimes years — to appreciate Rosinaisms. But if you were patient, the truths appeared.

As eulogist Laura Toy summed it up: "Father, Mother, God, you are getting one of our most precious friends. Please don't let her tire you out."

But talks continued between the association and City Manager Steve Walters, eventually leading to a compromise: trees would go in, but the subdivision would get back $100 per lot to improve the entrance. "I thought (Walters) did an outstanding job at the end in finding a nice compromise for everybody," Menton said.

The entrance has now been completely redesigned, using a style reminiscent of an old English mantel clock. Both the tree planting and the work on the entrance are supposed to start any time.

In addition to addressing issues like these, the association has other regular functions. It puts out a directory and newsletter, including a network for neighborhood services like babysitting, lawn cutting and snow removal.

In addition to Menton and Joboulian, the association board includes Don Wolfe, Fred Nickrand, Bob Kothari, Marc Eller, William Hooth, Melonie Colaianni and Keith Anolick. They meet every couple of months, and a separate architectural committee reviews things like pools, fences and structures.

The association also has some hopes for the future.

"I think you'll see us more visible in all sorts of different areas," Menton said. For one, he'd like to see regular attendance at city meetings. Instead of residents becoming active only over specific issues.

There has been interest expressed in the subdivision for some neighborhood activities, like maybe progressive dinners, and Menton hopes to see that type of thing take shape. "People do want to get involved in a brand-new development," Menton said.

Perhaps most importantly, though, Menton would like to see the subdivision become more accepted into Northville.

"We want to be as much a part of this community as possible," he said. Sometimes, the residents of the newer subdivisions don't feel completely welcome, he said.

"I know the folks downtown don't care for us. I wish I knew why," Menton concluded. "We want to grow with the community. We don't want to be a part that's not accepted. . . . Yes, we have our own personality; but at the same time, we want to fit in."

This is the fourth in a series of articles about residents' associations in Northville.

Hard work pays big dividends for asphalt company

By EILEEN ISOTALO

Hard work and dedication has paid off for two brothers who go their start in the asphalt business by painting yellow road markings.

Michael and Thomas Ford began coordinating asphalt maintenance projects in Michael's garage in Plymouth 20 years ago.

They eventually moved their operation to various areas in Farmington Hills. Last fall the business relocated to a new industrial facility at 4755 Old Plank Road in Milford Township.

Michael, 44, and Thomas, 41, are the sole stockholders of the T&M companies.

The companies are comprised of T&M Asphalt Paving, Inc.; T & M Asphalt Sealcoating, Inc.; T&M Ford Development Co., Inc.; T&M Ford Investment Co.; and Pollman Enterprises.

Michael is president and chief executive officer. Thomas is vice president and general manager. They both reside in Farmington Hills.

The elder brother designed the 17,000-square-foot building, which can best be described as state of the art. The new offices opened for business last November. The companies offer several services throughout the metropolitan Detroit area.

Those services include sealcoating, asphalt paving, excavating, grading and maintenance of commercial and industrial parking lots as well as private and public roads.

"Our forte is in the paving of streets in condominium complexes, residential subdivisions and parking lots," Michael explained.

"The bulk of our business is in asphalt paving, but we do everything from repair to street paving, and we are adding a new concrete paving division this year," he added.

"We offer residential sealcoating with free estimates, but we don't pave residential driveways unless BOWDEN ASSOCIATES in Northville has been named to the Key Agents Club in 1989 by Citizens Insurance Company. It is the first year in which the insurance agency has achieved the honor.

"The Key Agents Club is a special honorary group established by Citizens to recognize above-average premium combined with outstanding underwriting results by the independent agencies representing us," said James K. Coville, vice president of marketing at Citizens Insurance Company of America.

Bowden Associates placed over $1.5 million in premium with Citizens in 1988 and fulfilled all the other requirements to qualify for the Key Agents Club. The agency was only one of 55 selected from among over 600 independent agencies representing Citizens to receive the honor based on 1988 results.

Citizens Insurance Company of America, located in Howell, markets property and liability insurance through independent agents in Michigan and Indiana. It operates full-service branches in Grand Rapids and Indianapolis.

BARBARA ESTES-SIMMONS of Northville has been named to the new position of vice president of Human Resources for Henry Ford Care Corporation (HFHCC), Michigan's seventh largest employer with 15,000 people.

Her responsibilities at HFHCC will include chairing the Human Resource Council, a group of vice presidents and directors of human resources from all HFHCC affiliates.

Simmons comes to HFHCC from Michigan National Corporation, parent of Michigan National Banks where she was corporate director for Human Resources. Prior to accepting her current position, Simmons served as director of employment at Federal National Mortgage Association in Washington, D.C.; vice president and director of personnel at Advance Mortgage Corporation; director of employee relations at the Bendix Corporation's Electronics & Engine Control Systems Group and Fluid Power Division; and manager of Human Resources for Bendix's Energy Control Division.

HFHCC is the parent company of Henry Ford, Wyandotte, Cottage and Kingswood hospitals; Health Alliance Plan (HAP); and a number of other health-related affiliates.

New map identifies industrial locations

Detroit Edison and Oakland County have just made it easier to find that perfect business location.

A new, improved and colorful map of the county showing all industrial and research parks — the only central listing of all the county's industrial and research parks — is now available.

"Oakland County has seen an 18 percent increase in the number of industrial and research parks in the past year," said Marva L. Goldsmith, Detroit Edison's economic development consultant in Oakland County.

Oakland County has more than 100 industrial and research parks totaling 5,700 acres. There are more than 290 such parks in the tri-county metropolitan Detroit area.

Many changes have been made to the map since it was first developed by Detroit Edison a year ago, according to Goldsmith.

"Information needed to make site-selection decisions has been added to improve the map's usefulness to business people," Goldsmith said. "In addition to park locations, the map includes current information on major parcels of vacant industrial land, transportation networks and economic development services available to companies looking for new locations."

"The map helps businesses put each park's location and size into perspective."

As Michigan's largest private promoter of economic development, Detroit Edison has helped many businesses locate or expand in Southeastern Michigan.

"We work with businesses to be sure they have the necessary tools and information to operate successfully. The revised industrial and research parks map is another important tool," Goldsmith said.

The new map will be distributed to developers, Realtors, local governments and economic development professionals who have an interest in doing business in Oakland County.

For more information about locating a business in Oakland County or to receive a copy of the industrial and research parks map call Detroit Edison at (313) 645-4293 or the Oakland County Department of Community and Economic Development at (313) 858-0732.

The Quality Goes In Before You Do!

Child-care costs can be tax deductible

Today, more than half of all mothers with babies less than one year old work outside the home. That figure has increased significantly since 1976, when only 31 percent of mothers with infants worked.

One reason for the increase in working mothers is the average family's desire for additional financial support. But, ironically, when mom enters the work force to bring in extra income, the family often faces a new financial challenge — paying for child care.

If you are all too aware of how child-care costs can throw a budget off course, the Michigan Association of CPAs suggests you find out how certain tax rules can help you get back on track.

DEPENDENT EXEMPTIONS: As a parent, you can generally claim an additional exemption for each of your dependent children, as long as you supply more than one-half of their annual support. Each exemption is $1,950 for 1988 and $2,000 for 1989. Translated into dollars and cents, claiming two additional exemptions can save someone in the 28 percent tax bracket as much as $1,092 in federal taxes.

Just remember that you are not entitled to the exemption if your child has personal gross income of more than $1,950, unless he or she is under age 19 or is enrolled as a full-time student. (Next year, you will not be allowed to claim an exemption for any child who is at least 24 years of age, unless the child's income is less than the exemption amount.)

However, if you claim an exemption for your child or any other dependent, that person may no longer claim his or her own exemption.

Money Management

DEPENDENT-CARE TAX CREDIT: Do you pay a babysitter to care for your children while you and your spouse work? If so, you may be entitled to a dependent-care tax credit.

To qualify for the credit, you and your spouse must be gainfully employed, unless one of you is physically or mentally disabled or is enrolled as a full-time student. In addition, the child-care expenses must be for a dependent under age 15 for 1988 and under age 13 starting in 1989. You should also note that in 1990 you will be required to supply the name, address and Social Security number of the person providing the child-care services.

How much is the credit worth? Depending on your adjusted gross income (AGI), the credit equals 20 to 30 percent of your qualified child-care expenses. However, the amount of allowable expenses is capped at $2,400 for one dependent and at $4,800 for two or more dependents. You should also note that allowable expenses cannot exceed the earned income of the lower-paid spouse.

Calculating the credit amount is really not as complicated as you may think. To summarize, if your combined AGI is under $10,000, the credit maximum is $720 for one child and $1,440 for more than one.

If your AGI is more than $28,000, the credit maximum is $480 for more than one dependent and $960 for two or more dependents. If your AGI falls between those two figures, you determine your credit percentage by reducing the 30 percent rate by one percentage point for each $2,000 of adjusted gross income above the $10,000 floor.

For example, Tom and Mary have an AGI of $24,000. They must therefore reduce the 30 percent credit rate by seven points, making their maximum credit $552 (23 percent of $2,400) for one dependent or $1,104 (23 percent of $4,800) for two or more dependents.

Finally, if you regularly pay a babysitter to take care of your children, be sure to withhold the appropriate Social Security taxes. If you don't the IRS will hold you liable not only for the unpaid tax but also for any penalties and interest due.

EMPLOYER-SPONSORED DEPENDENT-CARE ASSISTANCE: You may be able to pay for child care with tax-free dollars if your employer offers a dependent-care assistance plan.

How do these plans work? First, you provide your employer with an estimate of your annual child-care costs, up to a maximum of $5,000 if you file a joint return. Your employer will then withhold this amount from your paycheck in equal portions over the year.

The money that the company sets aside is excluded from federal income tax. If this process sounds familiar, it should. The automatic deduction of pre-tax dollars is basically the same procedure as the one normally used in company IRA and 401(k) plans. At regular intervals, you will have to inform your employer of your actual child-care costs as well as the name and the Social Security number of the person or organization providing the service. The company will then reimburse you from the untaxed money it has deducted from your regular pay.

Be aware that, in most cases, you can no longer take advantage of both the dependent-care tax credit and the employer-sponsored assistance plan if your child-care expenses exceed $5,000. For 1989, you must choose between the two tax breaks.

As a general rule, married couples with lower incomes (a combined AGI of $29,750 or less) and child-care expenses under $3,200 will probably do better with the dependent-care credit. On the other hand, higher-paid employees may find company assistance plans more beneficial.

For instance, Mary is in the 33 percent bracket and pays 7.51 percent in Social Security payroll tax. She pays $5,000 a year to a day-care center for her 5-year-old daughter. Through an employer-sponsored assistance plan, she can save as much as $2,025 in tax. If she applies the same $5,000 to the dependent-care tax credit instead, the most she can save in taxes is $480.

Tax rules can take some of the bite out of your child-care bills, but make sure that you have all facts. CPAs point out that many participants in employer-sponsored assistance plans don't realize that they cannot get a refund if their actual child-care expenses are less than what they originally estimated. For further information on the tax breaks discussed in this article, you should consult your own tax advisor.

Newspapers promote coverage of suburbs

SPRING, the suburban Detroit newspaper network, has launched a new promotion to inform media buyers about its network of 45 newspapers.

SPRING is mailing media kits to several hundred media buyers in southeast Michigan and across the nation. The media kit contains rate and circulation information comparing the SPRING suburban newspapers with the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press.

SPRING is an acronym for Suburban Press Ring.

It is composed of 45 suburban Detroit daily, weekly and twice weekly newspapers who together offer combined advertising at rates competitive with the city dailies. The group includes Sliger/Livingston Publications, the Observer/Eccentric Newspapers, Heritage Newspapers, Associated Newspapers and Adams Publishing which publishes the Macomb Daily and the Daily Tribune.

Sliger/Livingston Publications includes the Northville Record, Novi News, South Lyon Herald and Milford Times as well as the Brighton Argus and Livingston County Press.

According to statistics drawn from Scarborough and Belden Research Studies, the SPRING Newspapers reach more suburban Detroit readers than either the Detroit News or Detroit Free Press.

SPRING reaches 53 percent of suburban adult readers, while the Detroit News can only deliver 43 percent and the Free Press just 36 percent. These studies show that SPRING's readership base is more active, affluent and mobile.

To draw attention to the mailing, SPRING is sending the media kits in boxes labeled, "To Improve Your Bating Average In The Suburbs, Go Through Spring Training."

Inside the box, recipients will find the media kit accompanied by a miniature Louisville Slugger baseball bat. The arrival of the media kit coincided with the beginning of spring training for baseball teams. In this case, SPRING hopes to acquaint media buyers with all the statistics and information they need to make the best Detroit area media buys for their clients. SPRING not only reinforces its name, but provides all the media tools to get the season off to a winning start.

In commenting on the mailing, Richard Aginian, president of Suburban Communications Corporation and spokesman for the group, said, "We're proud of the fact that we are able to offer advertisers more circulation in the suburbs, when compared to the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press (suburban circulation), and at a competitive cost per thousand. In addition — we make it easy. With just one phone call, one insertion order, one set of mechanicals and one invoice, you buy all 45 papers."

Hard work pays off for asphalt company they are large estates," Michael added.

T&M Companies incorporated its sealcoating division in 1980.

In 1988 the company used more than 200,000 gallons of sealcoat, which made it one of the largest sealcoat companies in the Midwest.

Sealcoating, a black substance, is used shortly after asphalt is laid to protect and improve the appearance value of the pavement.

"As asphalt ages, it bleaches. Sealcoating stops the aging process and protects the paved area," Thomas said.

The cost for sealcoating is a fraction of the cost it would take to replace the asphalt if it had not been sealcoated, he added.

The Ford brothers attribute their success to a good reputation and selling service to a bank of quality customers.

Some of the customers T&M services are K mart, the University of Michigan, Beaumont Hospital, the Taubman Company and Twelve Oaks Mall.

Thomas said the company built a 750-vehicle lot extension on the east side of Twelve Oaks Mall, which cost nearly $1 million.

"We did everything down to planting the flowers," he added.

With 60 employees and more than a dozen estimators, the Fords know their work inside and out. "We are involved in every aspect of our 12,000-square-foot garage is 12 times larger than their previous garage in Farmington Hills.

With business expanding about 40 percent per year, the firm needed a facility to accommodate rapid growth. "We are also planning to build and rent industrial warehouse buildings on our adjacent property," said Michael.

"We do a lot of work from Rochester to Howell; we see this as a very hot construction area now and in the future," added Thomas.

While the Ford brothers spend many hours at work, they are both married and each has four children. Every August the Fords hold their company picnic at the Milan Dragway.

The company has won top awards for the largest and best fleet in diesel-truck races throughout the state. The Fords also sponsor softball and bowling teams and display several trophies in the lobby.

Rated the 53rd fastest growing company by "Michigan" magazine, the Ford brothers are very optimistic about the future of their business.

Thomas said their parents, Arnold and the late Carol Ford, instilled in them a sense that hard work and dedication are the keys to success.

"They were restaurateurs who had to work hard. When we started our business, they were behind us 100 percent."

business, and we've never had a year we've lost money," stated Thomas.

"We're unique in one aspect because we are brothers and partners. Brothers usually don't get along. We also are not an offshoot of a large company. We handle all aspects of the asphalt business. Most companies are specialized," Thomas explained.

Added Michael: "We own 50 trucks and 100 pieces of equipment, and there isn't a piece of equipment we cannot run or a truck we can't take apart and put back together."

"We put in 12- to 16-hour work days, and we feel leadership is only as good as the leaders," explained Thomas.

"We're here in the morning to get things kicked off, and we're here until all employees have returned from their jobs. With Michael in administration and engineering, I personally go on site for every job no matter how big or small, and customers like our hands-on experience and owner participation," Michael continued.

"We make a lot of our own machinery and have a flair for mechanics, and we often alter machinery to better fit our needs," he added.

SELLING AT A LOSS
QUESTION: It looks like I'm the exception to the rule. I put a lot of money into renovating an overpriced home and now, due to personal problems, I'll have to sell at a loss. Any suggestions?
ANSWER: You might consider renting the house out for at least one year before selling. In that way, the house will be considered a business investment and you can deduct the loss as a business expense from your income. Also, while you're renting it out, you can also benefit from other real estate tax benefits such as depreciation. If you sell a house which is your primary residence and take a loss, this loss is not tax deductible.

GEARING UP for spring gardening

*The kiss of the sun for pardon,
The song of the bird for mirth
One is nearer God's heart in a
Than anywhere else on Earth.*

Every year Pat Eden stakes a sign in her garden carrying this verse.

The same verse decorated Dwight D. Eisenhower's garden so many years ago.

Locally, the sign couldn't be planted in a more appropriate place. Eden and her husband, Earl, are avid gardeners.

Tender green leaves are beginning to poke through the soil in their backyard, where the Edens have planted a variety of spring flowers. A chilly, dreary April hasn't helped the young flowers along very well.

Even so, the couple has taken the first steps in preparing their garden for another growing season. Pat Eden's advice to fellow gardeners at this time of the year is to carefully remove leaves and other materials covering flowers and plants. Removing the debris will clear a growing path for spring flowers.

Before heading out to the garden, though, it may be helpful to follow a few wardrobe hints.

"I never wear new clothes in the garden," Eden says.

Her choices: a worn navy windbreaker; a durable pair of blue jeans; an old, comfortable pair of leather Rockport shoes; a blue cloth hat; a pair of gardening gloves and a kneeling pad to protect her knees.

"Nothing glamorous," Eden remarks with laughter.

For the ultimate in gardening apparel, she refers to her trusty "Smith & Hawken" catalog for gardeners. With relish, she turns to the page displaying British Wellies, knee-high green rubber boots commonly worn by Europeans. They sell for $40 in women's and men's sizes.

"These are the ultimates ... you see them in Europe all over the place," she says.

Other ultimates include pigskin garden gloves, also included in the catalog. They sell for $15.50 a pair in women's sizes and $16.50 a pair in men's sizes. Or nursery aprons in heavy-duty cotton canvas. The water-repellent aprons contain several pockets to hold gardening tools.

But that's as far as the gardening glamour goes for Eden. For now, she's content with her gardening wardrobe choices. Just give her a wheelbarrow chock full of the appropriate tools — plant markers, pruning shears, hand forks, clippers, transplanting trowels, a watering can, a hose, a rake, a crack weeder, a rain gauge, a poacher's spade and a pitchfork.

Armed with her gardening implements, she's off to clear a patch of earth of pesky weeds.

"It's good therapy," she says about gardening.

Earl Eden is in the process of duplicating an English garden right in his very own backyard, which technically rests in Novi. The Edens, however, have a Northville mailing address.

"We like to plant flowers and to attract birds," Pat says, glancing at the boundaries of the yard. She spots a potbellied robin and a tiny chickadee.

Eden and her colleague, Judy Byersdorf, coordinate the Garden of the Month program, featured in the Record. She said she enjoys the job immensely.

"Gardeners are such nice, interesting people," she said.

Q: Did you cheat on your income tax?

Three said: "Yes"
Six Said: "No"

"It's the American way."
"That's none of your business."
"No, but I wouldn't tell you if I did."
"I don't know if it's called cheating, but I fudged it a little."
"No, although with the money I pay I probably should."
"Well, let's just say I cut corners a little."

Gardner takes pride in city

By DOROTHY NASH

You can have it both ways — efficient and beautiful — when it comes to horticultural planning and planting in a city. If you are a resident of Northville, you know it.

But you may not know that one person has been volunteering for a dozen years to achieve that combination. He is G. Dewey Gardner, owner of Four Seasons Flowers on East Main and chairman of the City Beautification Commission.

He and 11 other Commission members meet monthly to plan the planting and maintenance of city-owned property — trees, shrubs, flower beds, and 160 tubs at city hall, the clock, band shell and well areas as well as boulevards, Allen Terrace, and entrances to the city.

"Generally two of us do the selection for the annuals," Gardner said,

"and we try to vary colors and types of materials, but in some areas we use the same each year."

At planting time (fall for the 40,000 tulip bulbs and spring for annuals and whatever else they decide on) many of the Commission members do the actual work with generous assistance from the two garden clubs and hired professionals.

And as any homeowner knows, weeds grow, too. So Commission members, Gardner said, sometimes work at pulling them up.

Watering can be a 24-hour-a-day sort of thing. "And I," he commented, "have been known to check and change sprinklers in over-night sprinkling."

There is usually extra help in the summer, though, he said. "The city hires two college boys who report to me on where to water and weed."

As to funding, he said, "We're budgeted by the city, plus we get a tremendous amount of contributions from private persons, businesses, and service clubs."

Why should G. Dewey Gardner volunteer so much of his time?

He answered, "I like to see Northville as one of the most beautiful cities in the state. I take pride in looking at it, and I try to make it better each year."

Mothers' Club dinner dance attracts average turnout

By BRENDA DOOLEY

Good food, good music and good company combined to make this year's Northville's Mothers' Club dinner dance a festive occasion for all those who attended.

Nancy Rosselot, chairperson of the event, said about 180 people attended the dinner dance. She said the turnout was about average compared to previous dinner dances.

Purpose of the annual event is to raise funds for the group's projects throughout the year. Proceeds from the dinner dance will benefit Northville schools.

"Everyone had a good time," Rosselot remarked.

She added that the music was excellent — provided by the Hy Tymes, a Plymouth band. The band played a variety of music from 1940s tunes to current selections.

Distinguished community members attending the dinner dance included Northville Schools Superintendent George Bell, Northville High School Principal David Bolitho, Meads Mill Principal David Longridge and Silver Springs Principal Ken Pawlowski.

Upcoming events for Mother's Club members include an annual May picnic.

Newcomers hosts upcoming events

How many times have we heard the saying "spring showers bring May flowers?" Well, thanks to the efforts of the Northville Newcomers, budding flowers aren't the only things to look forward to in May.

A mini home tour and road rally for couples are two events planned by the group in the weeks ahead.

A ladies day and mini home tour will be hosted Wednesday, May 17 from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville. Cost is $16.50. Transportation and lunch are available.

Chairpersons of the event are Bev Price and Holly Hambell. Reservations will be accepted April 24-28. The event is limited to 60 ladies. For reservations call Bev Price at 420-4677 after 10:30 a.m.

The group hosts a couples road rally on Saturday, May 20 at 6 p.m. Participants will meet in the south parking lot of Schoolcraft College.

Last year's winners were Greg and Christine Knapp, Bill and Marie Rumbley and Dan and Shelley Sabin.

Reservations for the road rally will be accepted through May 5 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. only. The event is limited to 75 couples. Call Christine Knapp at 348-1279 to make a reservation.

Good times

Record/TERESE KREDO

Cost is $25 per couple and includes dinner, prizes, dancing and lots of fun.

Participants are requested to bring pencils, a yard stick, tape, scissors, flashlights, a 1989 AAA Detroit Western Suburbs Map, a cassette player (car or portable), a 1988-89 West-Northwest Area telephone book, a sense of humor, tongs, dictionary and umbrellas. They should also wear running shoes.

Town Hall ends its 1988-89 series

Author William Novak rounded out the 28th season of Northville Town Hall last week (Thursday, April 13) by speaking to a crowd of area residents at the Plymouth Hilton.

Comments offered following Novak's presentation were favorable. Some audience members were most pleased about Novak's assertion that men and women don't have to sacrifice their families for their careers or vice versa. Novak based this observation on his meetings with Lee Iacocca.

He told his audience that as successful as Iacocca is, the auto executive doesn't work long hours. The key to success, Novak stated, is making every minute count.

During a question-and-answer period following lunch, quite a few residents were most curious for details about Nancy Reagan. Novak is currently working with Reagan on a soon-to-be-published book chronicling "her side of the story" on many issues including astrology, relations with her children, a much publicized scuffle with Donald Regan and life in the White House.

Although Novak would not disclose exact contents of the book, he said he found Nancy Reagan to be a warm, charming woman — not the "dragon lady" he had expected to meet. He said the book should answer the questions people are dying to know about.

Featured celebrities for the upcoming 29th season of Northville Town Hall include David Eisenhower, Arthur Frommer, Joyce Jillson and Michael Walsh. Season tickets are $30 and mail orders are being accepted. Those interested in purchasing tickets are asked to make a check payable to: Ticket Chairperson, Mrs. Bonnie Dewan, Northville Town Hall, P.O. Box 93, Northville, 48167.

Luncheon reservations, which are separate from the season ticket orders, will be accepted after June 1.

Business and Professional Women's Club to meet

The Northville Business and Professional Women's Club (BPW) will meet Monday, April 24. Social hour begins at 6 p.m. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. at Genitti's restaurant.

Guest speaker is Janice Calnan, who will discuss "Women and Power." Calnan will offer suggestions for developing methods of empowerment to feel happier and more fulfilled as a professional business woman.

Calnan is a partner in White-Calnan-White, an Ann Arbor-based consulting firm specializing in executive coaching and human and organizational systems change.

A business meeting will follow the presentation. Reservations are $9. For more information and reservations call Berclay Ruschak at 348-1167.

A special preview for members of the Friends of the Northville Library will begin at 9 a.m. Anyone wishing to join the Friends is invited to do so at that time at the library.

The sale features books of all kinds and videos donated by the library.

Videos will be priced at $5 each. Hardbound books will sell for 50 cents, paperbacks for 25 cents or five for $1. Children's books will range from 5 cents to 25 cents each.

Used book sales offer bargains in all categories of literature, according to Rosemary Mentag, chairperson of the sale.

The sales also raise funds which the Friends use to make major contributions to the library, including goods and services not provided for in the regular library budget.

In the past the Friends has provided gifts to the library such as a photocopier, computer with printer, map case and glass showcase. The Friends also underwrites costs of the Northville Genealogical Society.

The group has made major contributions to buy gifts for the observance of the Michigan Sesquicentennial and the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

Funds raised by current book sales will be used toward a gift to the library in celebration of its centennial year.

THE STAR OF DETROIT
Experience the City Like Never Before

Author William Novak signs a copy of Lee Iacocca's book for Farmington resident Therese Kapolnek

Novak outlines secrets for success

By BRENDA DOOLEY

Lee Iacocca's story made him famous.

Soon he was driving down Massachusetts' streets with Tip O'Neill, collecting details of his life.

And not long after that, he spent afternoons with Sydney Biddle Barrows — the Mayflower Madam — in her New York apartment, taking notes about her fascinating "business venture" involving high class call girls.

Normally a behind-the-scenes man, William Novak recently took the stage at the Plymouth Hilton to share his experiences as a ghostwriter. He was the last lecturer of the Northville Town Hall's 1988-89 season, speaking to a full house on Thursday, April 13.

"I'm sure no young person has ever gone to bed dreaming of becoming a ghostwriter," he said. "I didn't either."

Novak was the man behind the words of the biographies of Iacocca, O'Neill and the Mayflower Madam. Currently he is working with Nancy Reagan on a book expected to be completed in November.

Ironically, soft-spoken Novak had no aspirations of becoming a ghostwriter. His ghostwriting career began about seven years ago when he finished "The Great American Man Shortage and Other Roadblocks to Romance." The book didn't sell well but received a great deal of publicity — he was interviewed over 100 times, including an appearance on the Phil Donahue show.

The publicity brought attention to his writing abilities and soon he was contacted by an editor at Bantam Books. The editor asked him if he was interested in collaborating on the memoirs of a prominent businessman.

Novak decided to give it a try. Months later he learned that the businessman was Iacocca, a familiar name in Michigan but not everywhere in the country.

"Iacocca, Ayatollah ... I didn't know the difference," Novak remembered.

But he needed a job and Novak seized the opportunity. He met regularly with Iacocca, even traveling to Detroit where they talked at Chrysler's Highland Park plant. When research for the book was finished, Novak said he hadn't spent more than 40 hours interviewing Iacocca.

"He's a good talker and didn't repeat himself," Novak explained. "Forty hours is usually very little time when writing a book."

Novak's first attempt at the Iacocca biography was sent back to him because it was "too well-written."

"I found ghostwriting challenging because it required me to speak from another person's perspective," Novak said.

Gradually he mastered a writing style close to Iacocca's voice and the book hit the best-seller list, netting $15 million in royalties. And Novak's popularity flourished. He received requests from people of all walks of life, asking him to write their stories.

"Iacocca made the book — make no mistake about that," he said. "The ghostwriter became famous also."

The writer's next job was working with O'Neill on his biography. He described O'Neill as the opposite of Iacocca — an informal, gregarious, out-going, sweet and gentle man.

"He never took himself too seriously," Novak said of O'Neill. "He had a sign in his office that read 'It's nice to be important but it's more important to be nice.'"

Novak attributed O'Neill's political and personal successes to his ability to communicate with people. While working on the O'Neill book, Novak received a request from the Mayflower Madam, asking him to write her story.

"I liked the idea of working on something naughty after doing two projects that were nice," Novak said. "It was a great business story ..."

Sydney dressed her women in the finest clothes and had them watch 60 Minutes every week. They had to read Time and Newsweek to be able to talk to their clients informatively ...

"She was prim and proper and didn't want to talk about the actual nature of the business. I had to talk to women who worked for her to learn about that."

Through his experiences with the people he has written about, Novak said he has learned valuable lessons. From Iacocca he learned the value of using time well and of concentrating.

"Lee works hard but he doesn't work crazy hours," Novak said. "He doesn't work weekends unless there's a crisis."

He also learned from Iacocca that there is more to life than work and that successful people don't have to sacrifice their families for a career.

"When we were doing an interview, he never took phone calls from anyone except his wife and children," Novak said of Iacocca.

From O'Neill he learned that people are most motivated by other people, not power, politics or blind ambition.

A graduate of York University in Toronto, Novak grew up in Canada. He now resides in Newton, a Boston suburb, with his wife and two sons.

One day Novak said he would like to work with Paul McCartney because he wants to write the story of the Beatles. Or to write a book about someone nobody knows about.

PTA News

Meads Mill plans events for students

PTA News is published weekly in the Record. This week's news is from Meads Mill Middle School. Any school interested in publishing its PTA or school news in the Record should contact the newspaper at 349-1700.

Several special programs will be presented this spring at Meads Mill. The annual Medieval Fair will get underway in April with contests, food, games and costumes of the times for sixth grade teams to exhibit.

The Junior Enrichment Series will present yuck balls, a science-related project from the Detroit Zoo, to the seventh graders on May 10.

Eighth graders of team A will participate in "Blue/Gray Days" on May 24-25. This is a Civil War social studies event which will include films, lectures, dance, music and a period feast to relive the era.

Robert Stover of the media center has announced that the Knowledge Master Open team from Meads Mill will compete with more than 1,200 schools throughout the United States, Canada and the Pacific Basin on April 19. Good luck to our KMO team. Last year's team placed seventh.

The media center will also be the site of the fourth annual car design contest in May. Any student may enter this computer-based contest in which a car is designed, tested in a wind tunnel and tested for speed and safety on a computer. Local engineers will judge the cars and prizes will be awarded.

Congratulations to seventh graders Amy Carlsen and Mindy Mingela for being awarded a certificate of commendation for their entries in the 1989 Detroit Free Press letter to the editor and editorial cartoon contest. Their entries were among 4,272 entries from 382 schools in Michigan and Ohio.

Four eighth graders competed in the Detroit Metropolitan Science and Engineering Fair in April. Braden Robison was awarded a second place ribbon, Taku Hatori and Rick Wiewlora were given third place ribbons and Derek Hanson took a fourth place ribbon.

Dwight Sieggreen has announced the date for his presentation of his Alaska sea bird project. Slides and highlights of his trip will be presented on May 23 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the Meads Mill rondelle. This is a family-oriented program and the community is invited to attend.

As a result of the greatly successful MAMSE convention held at Meads Mill last month, an Apple GS computer was donated to the school on behalf of Sharon Romine, Marilyn Robison and all volunteers who helped make it a success. The computer gift was the first time MAMSE had ever so rewarded the school holding the convention.

The teachers appreciation luncheon will be held May 25 at 11:30 a.m. Anyone willing to help may call Chris Ebel at 349-0535.

The next PTSA meeting is May 8 at 9:30 a.m. Parents of next year's sixth graders are invited to attend.

Childbirth classes set

The Lamaze Childbirth Education Association (LCEA) of Livonia will offer a series of classes beginning in April.

Classes should be started two to three months before the baby's due date. Weekday classes are available from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday classes are offered from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

Wednesdays, April 26-May 31 at Novi High School.

Thursdays, April 27-June 1 at Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Livonia.

Classes offer information about pregnancy, labor delivery, breathing techniques, relaxation exercises, comfort measures and a childbirth film. Instructors are registered nurses and mothers.

For more information about the classes, call 592-8618.

LCEA also will conduct two presentations on April 18. The first presentation will consist of a film entitled "A Cesarean Childbirth Preparation." It will be shown from 7 to 8 p.m.

The second presentation will be a discussion of breastfeeding from 8 to 9 p.m.

Both sessions will be held at St. Matthew's United Methodist Church, 30900 Six Mile Road in Livonia.

For more information about the presentations call 452-9192.

Restaurant serves menu of exotic dishes

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Imagine leafing through a mouthwatering dish of marinated octopus salad or digging into a plate of pheasant-filled ravioli with a brandied wild mushroom cream reduction.

For residents who have had an urge for something fancy, the Hillside restaurant in Plymouth is hoping to quell those appetites — and maybe some curiosity as well.

Celebrating its second annual gourmet food and wine tasting festival next Monday, April 24, the Hillside is striving to generate interest among people who want a taste of how the upper crust eats.

"A lot of people look at the items we're serving as something they wouldn't eat everyday or even attempt to cook," said Hillside special programs coordinator Dorothy DiTommaso.

"But, by the end of the evening they've enjoyed experiencing a lot of different foods," she added.

Exquisitely served with just the right wine, 12 different stations of gourmet food are being offered at the festival, with preparations of the food being handled by Hillside chef Matt Cooper.

"When creating the menu I tried to get a variety of foods and coordinate them with wines," Cooper said, adding he chose the menu before picking the wines.

"I'm trying to give people a chance to be a little daring," he added. "Eating is a common pleasure among people and the public's interest in food and wine seems to be higher now."

Cooper said the menu he has chosen is "simple but kind of different." He added that he tried to pick at least one dish from the meats, seafood and fowl groups.

"I think lamb is my favorite, that is why I included marinated loin of lamb on the menu," Cooper said, noting the succulent meat dish is gently glazed with Ho Sin sauce and served with a selection of Freemark Abbey Cabernet Sauvignon wine.

Cooper added that smoked dishes are also on his favorite food list and the menu includes an elegant dish of cherrywood smoked breast of duckling served with sweet mustard sauce.

A chef at Hillside for the past eight months Cooper said the gourmet festival gives him a chance to show off what gourmet food is about and where it is headed.

"Six years ago the culinary field wasn't as creative, so this type of festival gives people a chance to see the new innovations — at a great price," he said.

Tickets for the festival are $15 per person in advance and $20 per person at the door. DiTommaso said the doors at Hillside will be open at 6 p.m. on Monday, April 24 and the festival will run until 9 p.m.

DiTommaso added that festival attendees will also have a chance to enlarge their wine collection because the featured wines will be available at reasonable bottle and case prices.

"Last year we had 150 people attend the festival and this year we've printed 200 tickets, so we think the festival is doing nicely," she said, adding a ticket allows each person to try food and wine from each of the 12 tables.

For more information about the festival, contact DiTommaso at the Hillside at 453-2002.

Arts commission sponsors lecture series

The series, titled "The Three Bs," is sponsored by the Northville Arts Commission.

In Town

Pitching woes lead Northville to 0-3 mark

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

If the opening week of action proved anything, it was that Northville baseball Coach Bob Frellick's concern about his pitching staff is well founded.

In three games last week, the inexperienced Mustang hurlers gave up 29 runs on 23 hits, and the squad ended up dropping all three. On the flipside, the Northville bats were very productive. For the weekend, Frellick's crew averaged .301 as a team and scored an average of 6.3 runs a game — but still came up empty-handed.

"We gave up 14 unearned runs for the weekend — 29 total — and that really hurt," Frellick said. "But I'm not disappointed. Our earned run average as a team is at five, which is credible for such a young pitching staff. The good thing is that we should get nothing but better as the season continues."

It took the Mustangs six innings to get on track offensively in the season opener on April 14 against Plymouth Salem, and the slow start translated into an 8-5 defeat. The game started off as a defensive struggle but evolved into a slugfest in the late innings. Northville made a valiant comeback bid in the bottom of the seventh with

BOB FRELICK

"We gave up 14 unearned runs for the weekend — 29 total — and that really hurt. The good thing is that we should get nothing but better as the season continues with our pitchers. We hit the ball well... but a lot of them were line drives right at people."

— Bob Frellick

a five-run rally, but the Rocks' held on — thanks to an 8-0 cushion heading into the final stanza.

Salem opened the scoring with three runs on four singles in the second off starter Scott Probert and then increased the lead to 4-0 with another in the fourth. The Mustangs threatened in the third when Randy Jones ripped what appeared to be a two-run homer, but it curved foul by several feet.

The Rocks blew it open with four more in the sixth off Tim Hubbert, who came on in relief of Probert, but the locals never gave up. Down 8-0 in the last inning, Northville pushed all five of its runs across the plate before running out of gas.

John McNeil's pinch hit double scored Mike MacDonnell and that ended the shut out. Brian Frellick then followed with a two-run double — scoring Dave McKee and McNeil — to make it 8-3. A single by Jones, a couple errors and a wild pitch by Salem enabled two more runs to score, but that was the end of the rally.

"We hit the ball well the whole game, but a lot of them were line drives right at people," Frellick said. "(Salem) took advantage of their scoring chances and we didn't, and that was the difference. Both teams had nine hits."

Probert fanned two, walked two, allowed six hits and five earned runs in five innings of work, and suffered the loss. Frellick paced the hitters with two hits and two RBIs.

REDFORD UNION 11-10, NORTHVILLE 5-9: In game one, Union jumped in front with five unanswered runs in the first and never looked back.

The Panthers chased starter Jim Willerer in the second inning after facing only nine batters. Down 6-0, the Mustangs rebounded with a pair of runs the second inning and two more in the third, but the Panthers never let up, adding four more tallies off reliever John Schrieber. It was 10-4 heading into the sixth and both teams scored single runs in the inning to provide the final margin of victory for Union.

"We were hitting well and scoring runs but we couldn't put (Union) away," Frellick said. "It's difficult to come back from a six-run deficit but we battled back."

McKee and Mike Jambor accounted for four of Northville's run total with two hits and two runs batted in apiece. While the Mustangs could manage just two extra base hits (two doubles), the Panthers used the long ball to do their damage. Of Union's five extra base hits, three were home runs including back-to-back shots in the first.

The nightcap was much more competitive, but much more disappointing as well. Northville scored four times in the first inning on three walks, a two-run double by Jones, a sacrifice and an RBI hit by Steve Vigh. Redford Union cut into the lead with three runs in the second off pitcher John Chiavazza and then knotted it at 4-4 an inning later.

The Panthers pulled in front for the first time in the game after scoring twice in the fourth but the Mustangs regained the lead in the bottom of the inning. Vigh led off with a double, Steve Bastian reached base on an error and then they both scored on a single by Frellick. Jones drove in the third run with his first hit of the game.

The lead grew to 8-6 after six innings but Union staged the winning comeback off Chiavazza in the seventh. Three hits — including a homer — three errors and two walks later, the Panthers opened a 10-8 advantage with four big runs. Scott Donnelly's sacrifice scored Willerer to cut the lead in half in the bottom of the seventh, but it ended 10-9. "It was frustrating," Frellick said.

Netters clobber Wildcats

As sure as the sun rises in the east, the Northville boys always seem to handle their Novi counterparts out on the tennis court. That's the way it's been for years and years.

The 1989 meeting was no different as the Mustangs trounced the Wildcats 6-0 on April 14. It probably would have been 7-0 but the No. 1 singles match between Rob Richcreek and Ken Chasse was suspended because of rain with Richcreek ahead 7-5, 4-2.

Of the remaining six matches, only one went into three sets — while the rest were pretty lopsided.

"For the most part, we played well," Northville Coach Dick Norton said. "There were a couple sets that were close and one three set-ter, but overall it was one-sided."

The singles winners included Kurt Reickel — a 6-0, 7-5 winner over Paolo Saranga; Chad Bosscher — 6-2, 6-1 over Andy Anderson; and Brad Telepo — who topped Matt Butler 6-3, 7-5.

The top doubles team of Ken Spigarelli and Jeff Wesley turned back Brian Anderson and Rick Mathias 6-1, 6-3; Todd Booth and Mike Mathes outduelled Phil Hutchins and Mike Everette (1-6, 6-1, 6-4) at No. 2; and Brit Davis and Kevin Telepo crunched Seung-Won Hwang and Doug Cody (6-2, 6-1) at No. 3.

"I'm happy, but I'm still undecided about what to do at third doubles," Norton said. "I thought Davis and (Kevin) Telepo played well and they showed some enthusiasm in their play. I think they have earned a shot at continuing in the line-up for now."

"Telepo is a good athlete, but he's a senior and he didn't start playing tennis until last summer. It's too bad — I think he could have helped us if he had taken up the game earlier."

Northville (2-0 overall) opened the WLAA season yesterday (April 19, after Record deadline) against Farmington Harrison, and will take on Livonia Franklin on April 21.

Friemund leads softballers to 4-1 win

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The hallmark of a Bob Gerlach-coached team is tough pitching and solid defense.

That combination led the Northville softballers to the program's first-ever WLAA Western Division title last spring. With the pitching of Amy Friemund, a steady defense behind her, and some timely hitting, the Mustangs cruised to a school-record 17-9 overall record.

If Northville's season-opening 4-1 victory over Plymouth Salem is any indication, then Gerlach's squad has the potential to repeat in the division and contend for the conference crown. But to do that, the Mustangs will need even better pitching and defense because the hitting just isn't there — at least not yet.

"We do it with the strength of our defense and our pitching," Gerlach admitted, "but right now we're not even close to being as good a hitting team as we were last year. And to be honest, we weren't an overpowering team offensively a year ago."

"My philosophy has always been that if you give us a couple runs, we will usually win."

With a lot of help from Salem, Northville followed that script to perfection in the victory on April 14 — Gerlach's first victory against the Rocks.

"It was the first time we've beaten Salem," he said. "If you want to win the conference title, the road goes through Salem."

It was a bittersweet victory, however. Junior Carolyn Braasch suffered a freak injury when a ball hit her hand and broke it during warm-ups just prior to the game. She is currently in a cast and out for the season.

In typical fashion, the Mustangs took the lead with three runs in the first inning without the aid of a hit. Sue LaPrad opened with a walk and Kerry Bulin sacrificed her to second with a bunt and was safe on an error. After a walk to Friemund loaded the bases, a pair of wild pitches scored LaPrad and Bulin. Friemund later scored the third run on another wild pitch after a steal and a ground out.

"We were definitely helped out by (Salem's) pitcher, but we'll take it," Gerlach said. "She pretty much shut us down from there."

With two out in the fifth, shortstop Karen Baird crunched a triple over the center fielder's head and scored on a throwing error to make it 4-0 and that was plenty for Friemund.

The senior hurler was brilliant through the first six innings but lost her bid for a no-hitter and a shut out in the seventh. The Rocks parlayed a hit, a wild pitch, catcher's interference and a stolen base into their only run of the game. Friemund wound up with 11 strike outs and no walks.

"We handed that run to them," Gerlach said. "Amy had an outstanding game but we also played tremendous defense behind her."

In addition to Baird's triple, Northville's only other hit came off the bat of freshman Laura Apligian.

The Mustangs are scheduled to host Western Division foe Plymouth Canton tomorrow (April 21).

Seven new rules hit prep baseball

Effective with the 1989 high school baseball season, players will be permitted to use metal cleats.

At its summer meeting in Kansas City, the National Federation Baseball Rules Committee reinstated the use of metal cleats after a five-year absence. Since 1984, only non-metal cleats have been allowed at the high school level.

"Because of conflicting information pertaining to injuries attributed to non-metal and metal cleats, the rules committee could not judge which types of injuries were more significant," said Brad Rumble, editor of the National Federation Baseball rules.

"Not being medical authorities, the committee decided that both types of shoes would be allowed."

Six other rules changes were made by the committee, including a penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct by a coach that would restrict him/her to the dugout for the remainder of the game.

As an alternative to ejecting a coach, Rule 3-3-1 now allows the umpire to restrict the coach to the dugout for unsportsmanlike conduct. The decision would be at an umpire's discretion and would be based on the severity of the coach's conduct.

"The intent of the change is to allow games to continue in these situations where the coach's conduct is not blatant," Rumble said. "If a coach is ejected and there is not another adult sponsor or assistant coach, the game is forfeited in some states. This rule change gives the umpire an option for less severe conduct."

Rule 4-4-1 now allows a team that has its final player ejected to continue the game with eight players. Previously, only a team that lost its final player through injury or illness could continue.

Also, because of an increasing number of players wearing protective devices on batting helmets, the committee determined that Rule 1-1-6 no longer will require state associations to approve each particular case.

In another change involving the playing field and equipment, Rule 1-3-1 will permit a double first base by state association adoption. The alternative was instituted in softball two years ago.

"This option was enacted for safety reasons because it reduces the possibility of a fielder and runner colliding on an initial play at first base," Rumble said. "Safety is the number one priority of the committee."

Two changes were made in Rule 6 involving pitching. Rule 6-1 now requires state associations to adopt limits on the amount a pitcher can throw.

"The committee is concerned that pitchers are ruining their arms by throwing too much in a given amount of time," Rumble said. "We are asking that states adopt some type of restrictions so that adequate rest is obtained between pitching appearances."

Beginning next season, a change in Rule 6-1-3 requires pitchers to come to a complete and discernible stop in the set position. Although the rule has been the same in the past, it has been satisfied by a pitcher simply changing direction. Henceforth, the pause must be recognizable and observable.

The rules committee also reviewed field-testing evaluations regarding the graphite bat.

"Due to lack of science data regarding acceleration (how fast the ball comes off the bat), the rules committee tables discussion on this subject," Rumble said. "It will be discussed again at next year's meeting."

"The committee's action this year reflected the major concerns of high school baseball... safety, participation and conduct," he added. "The relatively small amount of changes reflect the committee's belief that the game is thriving and popular, and that there's not a need to make major changes."

Baseball is the fourth-most popular sport at the high school level with 406,046 participants — trailing only football, basketball and outdoor track.

Trackers place 3rd at triangular

Despite two more defeats, some positives did come out of Northville's triangular girls track meet on April 13.

South Lyon won the event with 68 points, Walled Lake Central was second (57) and the Mustangs third (37), but it was an 11-point improvement from a year ago when the three teams hooked up in a similar contest and Northville scored 26.

"We did improve our score but there were some performances that weren't quite up to par," Mustang Coach Mike Webb said. "I expected to score at least 10 more points than we did, but on the other hand, I didn't expect to beat either of the two teams. Overall, it was a bad day."

In 16 events, Northville failed to notch even one win. The squad did get one second — from Ris Fleming in the high jump (4'-6") — and five thirds. They included Shannon Price in the high jump, Angie Tune in the 110 high hurdles, Fleming in the 300 intermediate hurdles (personal best 53.7), Kendra Huard in the 400 (69.0) and Lisa Brown in the mile (personal best 6:03). The Mustang fourths came from Kristen Woodsum in the mile (personal best 6:05) and Rachel Davis in the 200 (30.0).

"We didn't do too much in the relays and that was a let down," Webb said. "We are weak in the field events and when we don't make it up in the running events, we are in trouble."

Northville was forced to compete without top sprinter Tricia Lukomski, who is still nursing tendonitis in her achilles heel. She is expected to return within the next week.

Northville trackers top Vikings, Lions

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

It's easy to understand why Dennis Faletti and his track squad feel a lot better about themselves today than they did a week ago.

After a lackluster performance against Novi in the season opener — which resulted in a lopsided defeat — the Mustangs bounced back in impressive fashion to take first place honors in a triangular meet on April 13. Northville scored 71½ points and secured the win with a first-place effort in the last event of the meet. South Lyon was second (67½) and Walled Lake Central third (36).

"Things went quite a bit better this week than last week, that's for sure," Faletti said. "I think the guys realized they need to get a little more serious about it, and it paid off."

"Right down the line, the whole team turned it around."

The Mustangs needed to win the mile-relay in order to avoid a tie with South Lyon, and Rob Walsh, Jay Griffith, Allen Kuljurgis and Steve Ventura came through in 3:44.2.

Another highlight of the meet came in the discus when senior Chris Kuffner placed first and set a new school record with a toss of 146'-5".

"It was a great effort by Kuffner, but I'm not surprised at what he can do," Faletti said. "I knew before the season that the discus would be a strength for us."

The rest of the Northville wins came from Mark Kiraly in the 200-meter dash (23.4) and the two-mile relay featuring Jon Meek, Steve Coon, Karl Siegert and Griffith (8:59.1).

"Things went quite a bit better this week than last week, that's for sure."

— Dennis Faletti
Mustang Track Coach

The Mustangs took a pair of seconds in the sprint relays (400 and 800), which added to the team point total in the triangular format. The other seconds included Kuffner in the shot put (42'-6"), Bob Dudley in the discus (123'-0"), Kuljurgis in the high jump (5'-8"), Walsh in the long jump (19'-1¼"), Cory Robinson in the 300 intermediate hurdles (44.9), Kiraly in the 100 (11.7), Ventura in the 400 (54.9) and Griffith in the 800 (2:12.9).

The Northville thirds came from Eric Billimoria in the discus (116'-4"), Walsh in the high jump (5'-3"), Ryan Davis in the long jump (19'-1½") and the 300 hurdles (45.2), Sean Starkweather in the pole vault (10'-6"), Robinson in the 110 high hurdles (19.4), Neil White in the 100 (12.0), Meek in the mile (5:05.1) and Coon in the two mile (10:37.8).

"I think we've turned the corner," Faletti said.

The Mustangs (2-1 overall, 1-0 in the WLAA) will get back into action today (April 20) when Plymouth Salem comes to town for a WLAA clash.

Kickers shut down Brighton in opener

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Only a program as successful as Northville girls' soccer could outshoot an opponent 26-2, register a shutout victory — and then somehow come away feeling disappointed.

That's what happened in the Mustangs' 2-0 season opening win over Brighton on April 11. Northville dominated the game from start to finish but had trouble capitalizing on numerous scoring chances. That's the reason for the disappointment.

"I wasn't pleased, especially on offense," Mustang Coach Bob Paul said. "We dominated the midfield but had trouble scoring goals. We've been focusing so much on defense, I guess it's understandable. But it is nice to get that first win."

Northville's talented goaltending duo of Kelly Kronberg and Kristi Turner each played half of the match and shared the shut out. Paul said he was also impressed with junior Neysa Coluzzi, who played a strong defensive game and has earned her way into the starting line-up as an outside fullback.

The first goal of the game happened late in the first half. Sophomore Karen Cavanaugh took a pass from Marcie Dart and overpowered the Bulldog goaltender for the score.

"It was a long ball played through the center," Paul explained. "It ended up right in front of the goal and Karen hustled the ball into the net. It was a gutsy goal."

The score remained 1-0 until Shannon Loper took a corner kick from Amy Goode and headed it past the goalie midway through the second half, to provide the final margin of victory.

"It was a spectacular goal," Paul said.

The Mustangs never scored again, but had many chances throughout the match. The young and inexperienced Northville forwards had a difficult time turning those chances into goals, but Paul is confident that will happen in time.

"We hit the post twice in the first half alone," he said. "It wasn't really that close of a game. Brighton only had one really good scoring chance the whole day."

"The best part of the game, for us, was our passing in the midfield. The worst part was that we didn't convert those opportunities."

A WLAA Western Division clash with Farmington Harrison, originally slated for tomorrow (April 21), has been changed to May 5. That means the Mustangs' first intradivision contest will be April 24 at home against Livonia Franklin at 7 p.m.

'Soccer Night' coming to area on April 28

By ANNE E. WILLIS

Soccer game attendance at the high school isn't all it should be, according to Dan McQuaid, president of the popular Northville Soccer Association, and his group is trying to change that.

The Association is sponsoring "Soccer Night in Northville" on Friday, April 28 at the high school stadium field. The night will be a special presentation of games and competitions for association team members in between the regularly scheduled junior varsity and varsity matches.

The night kicks-off at 4 p.m. with the Northville junior varsity team game against Walled Lake. At 5:30

Pump places 12th at HotShot finals

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Six teenagers represented the Detroit Pistons at the 13th Annual Pepsi/NBA HotShot competition earlier this month in Cleveland, and two were from the Northville area.

Mike McDonald, 15, and Karen Pump, 14, were two of only 156 qualifiers nationwide to make it to the HotShot finals. Both McDonald (in the boys' 13-15 division) and Pump (in the girls' 13-15 class) ended up placing fifth out of 13 competitors representing the NBA's Eastern Conference teams. McDonald — a Novi resident — was 12th overall out of 26 and Pump — a sophomore at Northville High — was 13th.

"These kids are all good shooters once they reach this level," said Karen's father Tony. "The whole weekend was fantastic for the kids."

Tony, his wife Carolyn and son Tom were in attendance for the competition along with McDonald's parents, Ray and Louise. The sponsors had a fun-filled weekend planned for the competitors — including movies, a dance, sightseeing tours and an awards banquet.

"In those few days, they struck up some beautiful friendships — it was a wonderful thing," Pump said.

The HotShot event is a shooting contest from five designated circles on the court. The more difficult the shot, the more points it's worth, and there are certain ways to receive bonus points. Each participant has one minute to try and accumulate the most points.

The preliminary rounds of the competition were held on April 8 at Cleveland State University and the finals were the following day at the Ritzfield Coliseum. The boys and girls champions in three age divisions were crowned at halftime of the Cleveland Cavalier/Charlotte Hornets basketball game.

"To give you an idea just how good these kids are, one boy missed just one shot in three rounds and he still didn't take first place," Pump said. "He was shocked when he didn't win."

For Pump, a slight change in the timed music — which is played during the competition — caused her problems in the first round. By the time she adjusted to the change, it was too late to recover.

"The music was about three seconds shorter than what Karen was used to," Pump said. "She ended up not having enough time to get her last shot off and it cost her a possible 15 points. From there, it was an uphill climb."

Pump did bounce back to have a spectacular second round. Her score was the third highest single round total of any girl in the contest, but it wasn't enough to pull her into the top two of the Eastern Conference competitors. That would have enabled her to advance to the finals.

McDonald didn't have quite as much trouble in the first round, but still failed to qualify.

Sadly, the NBA announced that it will drop its sponsorship of HotShot, so the 1989 contest may be the swan song of the event.

Mustangs of the Week

CHRIS KUFFNER

AMY FRIEMUND

It looks like senior Chris Kuffner is trying to make up for the disappointments of an injury-plagued football career with a discus in hand. Kuffner's already made his mark in track this spring, and we think "Mustang of the Week" honors are well deserved. In a triangular meet on April 13, Kuffner set a new school record in the discus with a 146'-5" effort. It helped the Mustangs edge South Lyon for first place by four points. A week earlier, Kuffner topped Novi's Daren Johnson — the defending Kensington Valley Conference champ — in the event, and remains unbeaten so far this year.

Pitching sensation Amy Friemund got off to a great start last week in Northville's 4-1 season opening victory over Plymouth Salem, coming within three outs of a no hitter. For the great effort, "Mustang of the Week" accolades go out to her. Friemund blanked the Rocks through the first six innings — but a hit, a wild pitch, a stolen base and catcher's interference ended the shut out bid. For the game, the senior hurler ended up with an incredible 11 strike outs and zero walks. "We handed that run to them," Northville Coach Bob Gerlach said. "Amy had an outstanding game but we also played tremendous defense behind her."

Local AAU hoop team grabs tournament title

A Novi-based AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) girls basketball team called the Western Wayne Wildcats, recently took first-place honors in the 10-11 age group at a double-elimination basketball tournament in Waterford.

A total of nine teams competed in the division, including teams from as far away as Sarnia, Ontario and Cass City, Mich. The Wildcats topped the Brick City Bombers 24-19 in the first game of the tourney and then edged the Bombers again in the championship game, 35-30.

The Wildcats have now qualified to play in the AAU regional tournament in Plymouth on April 21-23. If the team is successful there, they will move on to the state tournament on May 12-14 in Plymouth. The winner there will represent Michigan in the National AAU/USA Girls Basketball Championship in Louisiana.

Six players on the Wildcats are from Novi — Melissa Campeau, Karen Hanley, Kelly Kearney, Becky Pylar, Chris Edwards and Laura Snider. Other players include Julie Angel from Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth, Maura Duggan, Kerry Duggan and Kerry Lacosse from Our Lady of Sorrows in Farmington and Nicole Hayden from Our Lady of Victory in Northville. The team is coached by Larry Cupp of Novi and Mark Chason of Northville.

"I want to express my gratitude to Fred Thoman, the girls varsity basketball coach at Plymouth Salem and coordinator of this region's AAU teams, for all his efforts in providing the girls the opportunity to learn and enhance new skills and to play with and against some of the best players in the state," Cupp said.

'Soccer Night in Northville' scheduled

p.m. there will be a shoot-out competition for under 8-year-olds and under 10-year olds. At 6 p.m. a special game between the United and Express teams, the Northville Recreation Department under-12 year-olds, will take place.

At 7 p.m. the Northville varsity soccer team will play Walled Lake Central in the regularly scheduled match.

A half-time shoot-out for under 12 and under 14-year-old girls will take place, as well as an award ceremony for association coaches who have participated in clinics and received certification.

Winners of the shoot-out competitions will receive a special Northville Soccer Association soccer ball.

Tickets for "Soccer Night in Northville" are $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and children under 12. Children under 5 years of age enter free. Those wearing high school team jackets, orange Northville Soccer jackets or a Northville team uniform also get in free.

McQuaid said that the soccer matches at the high school are often sparsely attended and said that those who support and enjoy soccer are missing some of the best spectator action around.

"We're trying to create more interest in the community in the soccer program — especially in attendance," McQuaid said.

The Northville Soccer Association began over 10 years ago as an offshoot of the Northville Recreation Department. McQuaid is the current president of the association. He said approximately 500 children are members and that 36 teams participate in the league, and over 50 volunteers work in the club in organizing the league and its activities.

"As a club we interact closely with the high school coaches. All the coaches either are or were members of the association," McQuaid noted. Bob Paul, current varsity coach of the girls soccer team at Northville High School, has sponsored many clinics for both players and coaches of the association. Paul is the head of youth development in the club, McQuaid said.

"We attempt to have ball boys and girls at the (high school) games," McQuaid said, noting the strong relationship between the recreation teams and the high school.

Parking for the evening activities will be at the high school only, with cars entering off of Sheldon Road, just south of Eight Mile Road. Refreshments will be available.

'SMILE' regimen benefits seniors

Simple stretching, range-of-motion and deep-breathing exercises can make significant improvements in the health and mobility of the very old who are at high risk for placement in nursing homes, according to University of Michigan researchers.

Their conclusions are based on the results of a twice-a-week exercise program for 75 men and women ranging in age from 65 to 98. Most of the participants were 75 or older. The group was 59 percent white and 41 percent black.

"Most of the men and women in the SMILE (So Much Improvement with Little Exercise) program were overweight, had never exercised regularly and had serious chronic ailments," said the U-M researchers.

Tom Hickey, professor at the U-M School of Public Health, and Fredric M. Wolf, associate professor at the U-M Medical School, collaborated on the study.

Participants often reported having at least three chronic health problems that are exacerbated by inactivity. The conditions included arthritis, hypertension, heart disease or diabetes.

"The most noticeable results of the SMILE program were the reduction in pain from arthritis and improved mobility," said Hickey and Wolf.

"Minor physical improvements can make a major difference in the quality of life," the researchers said. "For instance, one woman said she could hold her cards better. Other participants said they could 'get around and move faster,' 'felt less stiff in the joints,' 'had more energy' and 'were able to walk long distances.' Another woman summed up the overall impact by saying, 'It has helped lift my spirits.'"

The SMILE program also improved walking time over a measured distance of six meters. After six weeks the average time dropped from 7.2 seconds to 5.3 seconds, the researchers said.

The program had some impact on systolic blood pressure as well. Average post-exercise measurements dropped from 135 to 128, "which is pretty good for the very elderly," Hickey and Wolf said. Although the blood pressure drop was not permanent, "Even intermittent drops in blood pressure are good for one's overall health."

Participants also got information about the various health conditions that affected them, the impact of exercise, and how to monitor their heart rate and weight.

"This age group seems to have missed out on health promotion during their lifetimes," the researchers said. "Most exercise programs for older people target the 'young-old' who still are in fairly good condition, and most health education is directed at children and young people. Consequently, the participants in our study were eager for new information about their own aging and the health changes that accompany the aging process."

The exercises were gentle and easy to master. They included neck and shoulder rolls, spinal twists and side stretches to maintain flexibility. Participants also extended, flexed and circled their feet and arms; lifted and swung their legs; shook and flexed their fingers; rocked their pelvises; and, seated on the edge of chairs, leaned forward and backwards to flex the abdominal muscles. Slow deep-breathing exercises also were part of the routine.

After nine months more than 80 percent of the SMILE participants still were attending twice a week and now are learning to conduct the program on their own.

"Exercise programs for the aged will become increasingly important to individuals and to society as the frail elderly population continues to increase," the U-M researchers concluded.

"Regular exercise may prolong independent living and help to keep frail older persons out of nursing homes."

By SUSAN SMITH, B.S., M.S.W.

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month. A recent national incidence study estimates that more than 1.5 million children were abused in 1986. This represents a 74-percent increase in child maltreatment since 1980. More children under the age of five die from injuries inflicted by their parents than die from tuberculosis, whooping cough, polio, measles, diabetes, rheumatic fever and appendicitis combined. Child abuse knows no color, race, religion, education or economic barriers.

Michigan has a 1975 Child Protection Law that gives the Department of Social Services responsibility for investigating child abuse allegations. It mandates that certain professionals report a suspicion of child abuse. These professionals include doctors, nurses, social workers, dentists, audiologists, psychologists, teachers, school counselors, law enforcement officers and child care providers. However, anyone may report a suspicion of child abuse.

The incident study gives statistics about children who have already been abused. Groups and organizations in Michigan and throughout the country are working to stop child abuse before it happens. Perhaps the most alarming rise in reported abuse is that of child abuse.

Parents should realize that good communications is the most critical child abuse prevention strategy. This is challenging and difficult, especially for working parents and adolescents. Here are some things you can do to facilitate communication:

- Talk to your child daily and take time to really listen and observe. Learn as many details as you can about your child's activities and feelings. Encourage him or her to share problems and concerns with you.
- Explain that a person's body belongs only to him or her and everyone has the right to say no to anyone who might try to touch them.
- Tell your child that some adults might try to hurt children and make them do things the child might not feel comfortable doing. Often these adults call what they are doing a secret between themselves and the child.
- Explain that some adults may even threaten children by saying their parents may be hurt or killed if the child ever shares the secret. Emphasize that an adult who does something like this is doing something that is wrong.
- Tell your child that adults whom they know, trust and love or someone who might be in a position of authority (like a babysitter, an uncle, a teacher or even a police officer) might try to do something like this.

If you think the child has been abused:

- Believe the child. Children rarely lie about sexual abuse.
- Commend the child for telling you about the experience. Convey your support for the child. A child's greatest fear is that he or she is at fault and responsible for the incident. Alleviating this self-blame is of paramount importance.
- Temper your own reaction. Recognize that your perspective and acceptance are critical signals to the child. Your greatest challenge may be to not convey your own horror about the abuse.
- Do not go to the school to talk about your concerns. Instead, report the suspected molestation to the police or a social service agency.
- Find a specialized agency that evaluates sexual abuse victims — a hospital or a child welfare agency or a community mental health therapy group. Keep asking until you find a group. Keep asking until you find a group or individual with the appropriate expertise.

• Search for a physician with the experience and training to detect and recognize sexual abuse when you seek a medical examination for your child.

• Remember that taking action is critical because if nothing is done, other children are also at risk.

Try not to scare your children. Emphasize that the vast majority of grown-ups never do this and that most adults are deeply concerned about protecting children from harm.

For more information about prevention of child abuse, you may contact the following organizations: National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse, 332 S. Michigan Ave., Suite 950, Chicago, Ill. 60604; Michigan Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect, 116 W. Golf's stock soaring in Michigan

Michigan is bullish on golf. Indeed, all of the country seems taken by the sport.

Consider this statement from the National Golf Foundation: If a new golf course opened every day between now and the year 2000, there still wouldn't be enough courses to keep up with demand.

Also from the NGF: The number of persons playing golf will double by the year 2000.

Golf's stock is definitely soaring, and Michigan, which boasts 1.3 million players, has more golfers per capita than any other state and more public courses than any other state, is smack in the middle of the boom.

Jim Dewling, of the Oak Pointe golf complex in Brighton, says we haven't seen anything yet.

"We've had tremendous growth in the 80s, but we're really at the front-end of a super boom in the game," said Dewling, who predicts a peak period of growth in the mid-1990s.

Dewling pointed to several reasons for the golf boom.

For one, Americans have more leisure time than ever, giving them the opportunity to play more golf.

Then there's exposure to golf at earlier ages through junior programs run by the PGA. "There's been an on-going effort to promote junior golf, and it's showing up in the numbers of players we have today," Dewling said.

Dewling said the affluent "baby boomer" generation is taking up the game in record numbers. "I can't tell you how many new golfers we've seen in just the 35 to 40 age bracket," he said.

Another reason for the boom, Dewling said, is that developers are finding it economically advantageous to combine golf courses with housing communities of condominiums and single-family residences.

"Financial institutions and banks are looking at golf course investment opportunities more favorably," Dewling said. "They've proven themselves."

And Dewling said the uniqueness of golf—the challenge of the game and natural beauty of the courses—also attracts new players.

Lush, green fairways, bordered by trees and water, provide a spectacular setting for golf

Of course, when you talk about the golf boom, the Northern Michigan explosion of top-notch courses—designed by the likes of Robert Trent Jones, Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer—is being heard around the country.

Rick Smith, the professional at Sylvan Resort's Treetops course, a Trent Jones creation in Gaylord, gives three reasons for the golf boom—affluent baby boomers taking up the sport, successful junior programs interesting younger players and the popularity of the game among retirees.

"I think the success of the senior pro tour has gotten a lot of older players interested in golf," Smith said. "The retirees are more active than ever in golf."

Smith also said that women are discovering the sport. "There's been a huge increase in the number of women players," he said. "They're not intimidated about playing, and they've discovered it's a great game that they can play with friends or by themselves."

Mike Husby, professional at the 36-hole Michaywe Hills complex in Gaylord, says people in the golf business shouldn't underestimate the importance of successful junior golf programs.

"Junior golf is the key," Husby said, "and I think after promoting a lot of junior golf in the 1970s, many courses have forgotten about the juniors. That's a mistake."

New courses taking shape in area

By BUDDY MOOREHOUSE

With over 500 places to tee it up, Michigan holds the distinction of being the state with the most public golf courses.

Even with all those links, though, Michigan's appetite for golf apparently is still not satisfied. Dozens more new courses are in the planning stages now, including several in the Livingston County/western Oakland County area.

Among the courses proposed, planned or currently under construction:

•Oak Pointe Golf Club, Brighton. Formerly known as Burroughs Farms, Oak Pointe is building a championship-caliber layout called the Honors Course. Nine holes have already opened, with the next nine set to debut in mid-1990.

•The Godwin course, Howell. Located 1½ miles south of I-96 on Howell-Pinckney Road, this course is being built by Frank Godwin of Brighton, formerly of the old Godwin Glen Golf Course in South Lyon. Godwin's new course (which doesn't have a name yet) should open in early 1990.

•Hudson Mills Metropark, Dexter. Yet another Metropark golf course, this 18-hole layout is set to open sometime in 1990 at Hudson Mills, located at the corner of Dexter-Pinckney and North Territorial roads, four miles south of Pinckney.

•The Linden Road course, Tyrone Township. Plans for this recreational complex (which will supposedly include a golf course and ski hill) are barely off the drawing board. Developer Paul Clute of Hartland said he is still working out the details.

Another proposed course, at the Whispering Pines housing development in Hamburg Township, was shot down by the township's planning commission and board. For now, that course is dead, but the idea may resurface.

All of those courses will be public. The area will be gaining a private course this summer, as the 27-hole Godwin Glen course becomes the Walnut Creek Country Club.

Walnut Creek is slated to open in June or July, course manager Ed Farhat said. He said there are currently 295 club members and membership applications are available at the clubhouse, located at 25501 Johns Road, between Ten Mile and Eleven Mile roads.

In any case, it appears as if golfers in this area will have even more choices once the 1990s are ushered in.

"There are a lot of golfers up here," Frank Godwin said. "There's a lot of growth in this community, and the type of people moving in are the type of people who golf. I certainly think the area can absorb more courses."

A closer look at the planned courses:

Oak Pointe. Currently, there are three courses at the Oak Pointe site on Brighton Road—the nine-hole Challenge Course, the Championship Course and the Honors Course.

When it's completed, the Honors Course will supposedly be ranked among the top courses in the state. The Oak Pointe people are even hopeful of luring a major state or regional event to the course sometime in the future.

The Honors Course, designed by noted architect Arthur Hills, winds its way around the condominiums and houses at Oak Pointe. The nine holes currently open play 3,488 yards from the back tees.

Those nine holes are actually Nos. 1-3 and 13-18 of the 18-hole layout. Holes 4-12 are under construction on the west side of Chilson Road. The final 18-hole course will play about 7,000 yards from the back tees, with a par of 72.

"We originally had six holes open, and we opened three more last fall," said Jim Dewling, head of the Oak Pointe development. "We've had a terrific response to the course."

"We had one charity event (the Brighton Area Chamber of Commerce outing) on the Honors Course last summer, and we'll be having several more this summer. A lot of people want to have their outings on the new course."

And if you like the nine holes currently open, just wait, Dewling said. "The second nine should even surpass the first nine," he said.

The Godwin course. "With any luck," Godwin said, "construction will be done late this summer and we'll be able to open in early 1990."

Godwin's new course is located in Marion Township at the corner of Howell-Pinckney and Wright roads.

"It's going to be a little different from any course around here," he said. "There are about 30 acres of woods on the site and three holes are going to cut through them. We'll also have a lot of low-growing shrubbery in out-of-the-way places that may come into play."

"The property itself ranges from quite rolling to gently rolling. There's some good diversity on the property."

Godwin's course will play about 6,800 yards, but the par will only be 70. "We'll have four sets of tees on every hole," he said. "On some holes, it'll be 120 yards up to the ladies' tees. From the back tees, it'll be quite a tough course."

As of now, Godwin doesn't have a name for his course. "I'm a little embarrassed about that," he said with a laugh. "We just haven't come up with anything we're happy with yet."

Godwin said he will also be building a clubhouse for the course. "It should be completed before the course opens," he said.

On the whole, he's optimistic his new

An aerial view of the 171-yard 17th hole at the Oak Pointe Honors Course course will be popular. "It may take a little time for it to catch on, but from the people I've talked to, they're excited about it," Godwin said.

Hudson Mills Metropark. One of two Metropark courses under construction (Indian Springs, in Clarkston, is the other), Hudson Mills should open in early 1990.

"If we get a miracle (with the weather), we might even open later this year," said

Gary Bartsch, park superintendent at Hudson Mills.

Work on the 18-hole layout started in the spring of 1988, Bartsch said. When it's completed, the course will play 6,368 yards from the middle tees, with a par of 72.

"It won't really compare to any of the other Metropark courses around," Bartsch said. "It won't be as open as Huron Meadows (in Brighton). It's really going to be a nice course."

Seeding on the course is taking place this spring. Eventually, Hudson Mills will build a clubhouse for the course. "When we first open, we'll just operate out of a trailer," Bartsch said.

Hudson Mills is located at the southeast corner of Dexter-Pinckney and North Territorial. Access to the course will be off Dexter-Pinckney.

Early Season Tip: "Develop a solid putting stroke early. A good putting method is for one purpose—to produce solid contact between the ball and the putter. Anytime you hit the ball solidly, you can count on it staying on line."

"Keep your hands set square on the putter. Concentrate on your hands, not on the clubhead. Develop a smooth, one-piece stroke, and then visualize a positive result."

"To develop a solid strike, you must first develop a solid stroke. You want to keep several factors in line. First, stand

Early Season Tip: "If you can't see a pro early in the season, use a 'friend check' to develop good habits on ball position and alignment. At the beginning of the year, you've got to go back to the basic fundamentals, and this is where it starts. If your ball position and alignment are off, it'll throw your game off."

"Have a friend stand behind you (to your right if you're a right-hander) and check your ball position and alignment. If you're teeing off, the ball should be just off your left heel. For an iron, it should be 3-4 inches off your left heel."

"For the alignment, you want to keep your body parallel to the target. To make sure you're doing this, have your friend check five points as you're addressing the ball—feet, knees, hips, shoulders and eyes. Everything should be parallel to the target line."

"This is extremely important. I always tell people that if Kirk Gibson is facing out of bounds, he's not going to hit any home runs."

Bob Kuhn

NAME: Bob Kuhn
COURSE: Westbrooke Golf Course, Novi
BACKGROUND: Graduate, Michigan State University; qualified for the Michigan Open 10 times; Course pro, Dun Rovin Golf Club, 1985-86; Westbrooke Golf Course, 1987-present.

EARLY SEASON TIP: "Always start your practice session with short irons. It's like any sport—if you're on a swim team, you don't start out swimming 30 lengths. Golfers always seem to go out and start with their drivers. But if you watch touring professionals, they always start and work twice as hard on their short irons. Golfers should use the practice range for practicing all shots and clubs, not just driving."

John Koch

NAME: John Koch
COURSE: Brooklane Golf Club, Northville
BACKGROUND: Attended Allegheny College; Course pro, New Castle Country Club in New Castle, Pennsylvania, 1965-68; Brooklane Golf Club, 1969-present.

EARLY SEASON TIP: "I try to teach a simple swing—not too complex. It's very difficult for a person to think of 10 different things at once, so I break it down to two moves: your hips and shoulders should rotate in a level, horizontal plane, while your arms and hands rotate in a vertical plane."

Jim Grant

NAME: Jim Grant
COURSE: Salem Hills Golf Club, Northville
BACKGROUND: Attended Michigan State University; earned PGA Card in 1982; won the Michigan PGA Scramble Tournament in 1986 with three other professionals; Course Pro, Godwin Glen Golf Club, 1983-87; Salem Hills Golf Club, 1987-present.

EARLY SEASON TIP: "Whether it's spring or summer, I try to tell my students to keep in physical shape. They should hit balls as often as they can—not so much as for the mechanics but in order to keep in shape. If you start off and try to do too much too soon, it affects your game."

Andy Soley

NAME: Andy Soley
COURSE: Meadowbrook County Club, Northville
BACKGROUND: Graduate, Ball State University; Qualified for Buick Open in 1986; Club pro, Meadowbrook Country Club, 1986-present.

EARLY SEASON TIP: "Once you get out and start hitting balls, definitely start with the short clubs and slowly work your way up through the clubs to the woods. You want to get your feel back and by starting with your wedge or your 9 iron, it will help you build a beginning tempo with your swing."

Ed Muir

Name: Ed Muir
Course: Walnut Creek Country Club, Lyon Township.

Background: All-State at Dearborn Divine Child High School, 1969; four-year letterwinner, All-NAIA and NCAA All-American at Eastern Michigan University, 1969-73; head boys' golf coach at Dearborn Divine Child, 1973-78; assistant pro at Western Golf & Country Club in Redford, 1977; assistant pro at Oakland University's Katke-Cousins Golf Course, 1978; assistant pro at Farmington Country Club, 1979-84; head pro at FCC/Walnut Creek, 1985-present.

Early Season Tip: "In order to get your timing back, which is what you lose during the winter months, you probably should start off by hitting half or three-quarter shots with something like a 7 iron. This way, you can gradually work into a full swing. It's like anything else. Start slow and build your way up."

Bob Floyd

Name: Bob Floyd
Course: Dunham Hills Golf & Country Club, Hartland.

Background: Graduate of Goshen (Ohio) High School, 1957; earned bachelor's degree from Northwood Institute, 1986; non-member head pro at Pine Valley Golf Club in Romeo, 1981-82; teaching pro at Sunnybrook Golf Course in Sterling Heights, 1983; assistant pro at Hillcrest Country Club in Mt. Clemens, 1984-85; assistant pro at Western Golf & Country Club in Redford, 1986; head pro at Valley View Golf Club in Shepherd, Mich., 1987-88; head pro at Dunham Hills, 1989.

Early Season Tip: "This is a time when you should really get back to the basics and correct your faults from the previous year. Take a lesson or two . . . whatever necessary. There's no need to hurry out and play 18 holes. If you can get pro help, it's really the best way to go. You want to improve your game right now before the bad habits start developing."

Tom Kinsley

Name: Tom Kinsley
Course: Lakelands Country Club, Pinckney

Background: PGA member for 31 years; Assistant Pro, Dearborn Country Club, 1953-63; Head Pro, Lakelands, 1964-present.

Early Season Tip: "Make sure your equipment is in shape, too. Over the winter, your grips tend to get hard and dried out from all the oil and dirt on your hands. This is true of leather and rubber grips."

"You should start by running warm water over your grips. Then you should use some cleanser, like Ajax, and scrub the grips clean. Then rinse them under warm water again."

"When you towel-dry the grips, dry them only until they get a little tacky. If you dry them all the way, the lint from the towel will stick to the grips. If the grips are still too hard, use a metal file to soften them up a little first."

"You should also clean your bag at the start of the season. You can either use a grainy cleanser or something like Mr. Clean in its pure form."

Denis Husse

Name: Denis Husse
Course: Tyrone Hills Golf Course
Background: Assistant Pro, Sylvania Country Club, Sylvania, Ohio; Assistant Pro, Washtenaw Country Club, Ypsilanti; Head Pro, Tyrone Hills, 1976-present.

Early Season Tip: "Do some exercises now to strengthen your grip and forearms for the season. This is a strengthening exercise you can do anytime."

"Take your club in your left hand (for a righthander), and hold it about halfway up the shaft. Hold it straight out, your palm facing down."

"Slowly move the club up and down, exercising your grip, wrist and forearm. Holding the club in the middle of the shaft just makes it easier to move it up and down. Gradually move your hand down toward the grip, and keep moving it up and down."

"Keep doing this until you can move the club without it wobbling all over. This is a great strengthening exercise. It's a great exercise to do early in the season, and you should keep doing it throughout the year."

Golf fashion goes lighter, brighter

Pack away your cardigans and conventional navy slacks, this season's golf fashions will feature lighter, brighter colors and sleek, crew and V-neck sweaters.

Geometric patterns and contrasting stripes will spruce up short-sleeved shirts; and pleated, lightweight cotton and polyester pants and shorts will replace traditional, double-knit slacks.

Expect to see athletic-style golf shoes, colorful visors, golf and baseball caps.

If you're a daring dresser, you'll be pleased to see that knickers and wool knee-high socks are back.

For a more conservative look, wear neutral colors in traditional styles.

Meanwhile, Yvonne Garhammer of Walled Lake looks for her ball, dressed in a Periwinkle polo shirt ($29.99) with pastel striped shorts ($41.99).

Her sporty shoes are made by Etonic. Steve Michaels (second from left) is dressed in a bold, geometric crew-neck sweater made by MacGregor and coordinated cotton/polyester blend slacks from Head. Carrying a golf bag, Ron Gilbertson is dressed in a Thinsulate jacket and matching tan slacks by DiFini. Horizontal pin stripes accent his white Jack Nicklaus shirt. What's your favorite course? We asked golfers in the area

David Gee, a district court judge in Brighton, fancies himself a hot property when the summer scramble tournaments roll around.

"They ask me to play in them every year," he said. "I'm the designated putter at these things. They'll drive me around in the golf cart, and it's just like Willie Hernandez coming in from the bullpen. I even have the jacket just covering my one arm. After they get to the green, I'll come in and do the putting."

"That's all they let me do, though. They won't even let me hit a drive."

Gee spends plenty of time on the links, and in this area, he enjoys playing at Huron Meadows Metropark in Brighton. "It's a nice course, and they do a great job of moving the people along," he said. "It's just a very well-run place."

Gee also hauls his clubs down south every year. His favorite hot spot for golfing is Hilton Head, S.C.

"They've got 20 golf courses on the island," he said. "It's paradise."

David Gee

Vincent Boido Sr.

Vincent Boido Sr., owner of RBI Products in New Hudson, is an avid golfer who won't disclose his handicap.

"Seems like I've been playing all my life and I don't get any better," he joked.

Boido prefers to play Pebble Creek Golf Course in Lyon Township. "Every hole is challenging, especially the par 3's," he explained.

As owner of RBI, he also sponsors two leagues at Pebble Creek, consisting of a 62-man Wednesday night league and a mixed league on Friday nights.

Boido is president of both leagues and his son is league secretary, keeping all the computerized statistics.

Boido also likes to golf at Treetops, a resort course at Sylvan Resort near Gaylord, and has gone there for vacations for the last two years.

He recently returned from Boca Raton, Fla., where he played all three courses—Boca West, Hunter's Run and Adios. "I like Adios best because it is stag only," Boido added with a laugh.

Boido said his wife does not golf, but both his son and daughter-in-law join him in the leagues.

"I've played most of the courses around here and I like Pebble Creek best. It is close to work and it is run by really good people," he said, adding he is looking forward to the completion of the additional nine holes now under construction off Ten Mile Road.

Wanda Baad

Wanda Baad, administrator at West Hickory Haven Convalescent Home in Milford Township, enjoys the challenge of golf.

Married to a golfer, Baad said she decided she was not going to be a golf widow and began learning golf when her youngest son was a baby. She plays with a 21 handicap.

Members at Chemung Hills, Baad and her husband live in Howell. They recently returned from a golfing vacation in Doral, Fla., near Miami, and report having had a wonderful time.

"Two years ago, we went to Dorado Beach in Puerto Rico and it was fabulous," she said. "Our sons golf, too, and it's really fun to play together, although now that they are 26 and 18, it isn't quite as easy for us all to get together."

Baad said Chemung Hills is her favorite course in this area, but she also enjoys playing in the Huron Valley Area Chamber of Commerce league.

She has also played golf with her boss, Dr. William Kolbe, at the Dearborn Country Club in Dearborn and found it to be a challenging course.

Dennis McMahon

Dennis McMahon, superintendent of schools in Brighton, is a relative newcomer to golf, and he still classifies himself as a "hacker."

"Don't get me wrong—I'm getting better, but I'm still a hacker," he said.

Still, McMahon gets out and plays whenever possible. He frequents a number of courses in Livingston County, especially Oak Pointe and Huron Meadows in Brighton.

"I live right across the street from Oak Pointe, so I go there all the time," McMahon said. "It's a great course. I basically play the Championship Course. I like Huron Meadows, too. The people there are very friendly."

As for vacation courses, McMahon just returned from a spring-break week of golfing in Arizona.

"It was a public course in Phoenix, and I golfed there every day," he said. "I loved it. I tell you, I could get used to getting up every morning in March and having it be warm enough to golf."

Norma Wallace

An avid golfer for 30 years, Norma Wallace, South Lyon city clerk, has followed the little white ball around most of the courses in this area. She currently has a 28 handicap.

She and her husband Jim are members at Lakelands Golf and Country Club in Pinckney, so naturally, that's their favorite course in the area. However, she also enjoys playing Salem Hills in Salem Township and the Kensington Metroark golf course in Milford Township.

The Wallaces' favorite vacation area is Myrtle Beach, S.C., where they play at least 18 holes a day on a one-week sojourn each year.

Their golfing partners for this annual outing, which has been going on for 12 years, are Bill and Monica Johnson, former South Lyon residents.

"There are 40 courses at Myrtle Beach to choose from, but we like Deer Track North, Quail Creek, Burning Ridge and Eagle Nest best," Wallace said.

She noted that their first golfing trip was to Biloxi, Miss. In addition, the Wallaces spent one vacation at Orlando, Fla., and played all the Disney courses.

"We think the only way to go for a golfing vacation is to buy a golf package. You pick the courses and the times you want to play months in advance and the agent gets the tee times all set up for you."

"That way, you don't waste any time and can always get on the course."

A. John Pikkarainen

A. John Pikkarainen of Fowlerville, a 53rd District Court judge, is an admitted golf fanatic. There are few things he enjoys more than playing, watching or talking about golf.

It was a dream come true earlier this month, then, to spend a weekend at the Masters tournament in Augusta, Ga. He got his hands on some tickets to attend the final two rounds.

"It's just an awesome place," Pikkarainen said. "Standing at the clubhouse and looking out at the course... there's nothing like it. I've wanted to go there for years, and I finally got the chance."

When it comes to playing, Pikkarainen is partial to the Honors Course at the Oak Pointe Golf Club in Brighton. The still-under-construction course has opened nine holes, with the next nine set to open next year.

"I'm quite impressed with it," he said. "It's just a very well-conceived course. If the next nine holes are as nice as this nine holes, they'll have quite a course. I'd say it compares favorably with some of the good tournament courses up north."

As for vacation courses, Pikkarainen is a regular at Eagle Creek, located between Marco Island and Naples in Florida. Ken Venturi is the pro at Eagle Creek, and Pikkarainen's cousin is the general manager.

"It's a very tight course," he said. "There isn't much rough there. You're either in the fairway or you're in the jungle."

Thomas Motley

Tom Motley, owner of Arms Brothers Store for Men in Milford, golfs with a 14 handicap and likes the challenge of a different course every week.

"I enjoy Hartland Glen, Dunham Hills, Tyrone Hills and Kensington Metropark when you can get on it," Motley said.

"Kensington is a nice, long course, but it is so accessible (to lots of golfers) that it's hard to play 18 holes in four hours and that's what I like to do."

Motley said having his own business makes it possible for him to "slip out" one afternoon each week to play with three cronies.

"We play a different course every week," he said. "I like to use all my clubs and not always know in advance which club I'll need."

Crystal Mountain, south of Traverse City, is a popular choice with Motley every fall. "We stay in a chalet up there and buy a golf package so our tee times are all set ahead," he said. "It's the only way to go."

"I like to play 18 holes in the morning and 18 in the afternoon when I'm up there."

Playing the "Black Diamond" course near Orlando, Fla., last year was a real treat for Motley, who said the course was selected by Golf Digest as the No. 1 private new course for 1988.

"The back nine is built around a big lime crater. You have to hit the ball pretty good or it slides over the edge and there's no way I would go down there after it."

Dave Hartman, a teacher in the Novi School District, spends plenty of time hitting the links, especially in the Livingston County area.

"Faulkwood Shores (Brighton) is a beautiful course and pretty challenging, and Hartland Glen isn't bad either," Hartman said. "For me, I like Hartland because I seem to score well on it."

"I don't like Dunham Hills (Milford). I think it's a great course, but you have to be an awfully accurate player to survive there. It eats me up."

As for his favorite vacation courses, Hartman is partial to the Northern Michigan links.

"There are a lot of nice courses in the Silver Lake area, which is southwest of Traverse City," he said. "Interlochen Golf Course (Interlochen) is just gorgeous. Another nice course up north is the West Branch Country Club (West Branch)."

Ed Jamieson, the owner Northville Travel, likes to do his golfing at the Lakelands Golf and Country Club in Pinckney.

"I'm a member, so I really enjoy it there," Jamieson said. "I also golf occasionally at Meadowbrook Country Club (Northville) with clients and it's a very nice course."

Being a travel agent, Jamieson sells himself tickets to some of the better hot golf spots around the country—especially down south.

"I love the TCP Player's Course in Punta Verdes, Fla., (south of Jacksonville) and Calloway Gardens Golf Course (Stone Mountain, Ga.)," Jamieson said.

"Hawaii has some of the best courses in the country. I love all the courses there, but they are very expensive. My favorite is Kapulua Bay Golf Course (Kapulua Bay, island of Maui)."

Ed Jamieson

When he's not busy keeping his Wildcats busy, John Fundukian, Novi High School athletic director, is always up for 18 holes.

"I enjoy getting out on any course I can—particularly the county courses like Kensington (Milford), Huron Meadows (Brighton) and White Lake Oaks (White Lake Township)," Fundukian said.

"I also like Bay Pointe Country Club (Union Lake), Edgewood (Union Lake) and the Pontiac Country Club (Waterford Township)."

As for vacation courses, "My favorite is Bald Mountain Golf Course in Hendersonville, N.C.," he said. "One I would never play is 'The Bear'—the one designed by Jack Nicklaus near Traverse City. Golf is supposed to be fun but that course costs you an arm and a leg and it's designed to beat your brains out."

John Fundukian

Course maintenance, lawn care similar

By DAWN RIFFENBURG

With a great deal of imagination, you could consider your local golf course an oversized lawn.

The same basic procedures that are involved in keeping the greens healthy and vibrant can be used by homeowners on their lawns.

"There is a direct correlation in that both we and the homeowner are in the business of growing grass and keeping it green and well-irrigated," said James Keller, assistant golf superintendent of Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth Township.

Most homeowners begin to think about taking care of their lawn in the spring, however, Keller said the process should begin earlier.

"When you want the lawn to reach that nice, bright green color, you have to take steps in the fall," he explained.

The homeowner should rake the lawn clean in the fall before the leaves are trapped by snow, and then apply fertilizer, Keller said.

"Start with a heavy potash application, but don't use a fertilizer with nitrogen," he warned. "Nitrogen will make the roots of the lawn susceptible to the cold weather. Nitrogen makes the lawn green but strips the lawn of the nutrients it needs for a healthy root system.

"If you fertilize the root system in the fall, then after the spring thaw the turf takes right off. Half the battle is fertilizing in the fall."

Potash is a potassium derivative that works to strengthen the root system.

"Fertilizers work in conjunction with moisture," Keller explained. "Without moisture the fertilizer will just sit there and even burn the lawn if you used one with a high level of nitrogen."

As always, natural is best. Rain is the ideal moisture for a healthy lawn.

"We always plan our fertilization program to go along with rain," Keller said. "If I want to fertilize this week, I'll look at the weather reports. If there's a good chance it's going to rain Thursday, I'll fertilize the green Wednesday. Irrigation is not half as good as Mother Nature."

During hot summers it is more difficult to keep the golf course greens healthy. There are always sprinklers, but Keller said that moisture doesn't penetrate into the soil as well as a good, all-day drizzle.

There are many different kinds of fertilizer, but the kind you put on a home lawn is very similar to what a golf course uses.

A bag of fertilizer is marked with three numbers; for example, 24-4-12. The first number is the nitrogen, the second is phosphorus and the third is potash, Keller said.

Keller also reminded homeowners to water their lawn at night, not during the daylight hours.

"The hot sun will evaporate water from the turf," he said.

Golf course superintendent Gary Perkins, from Harley's Golf Course in Commerce Township, also emphasized fertilizing as an essential step.

The key is to make sure it is applied properly, Perkins said.

"A lot of people go by the 'more is better' theory," he said. "If two aspirins are good for a headache, four aspirins are better."

Another common error for homeowners is a tendency to overwater the lawn.

"Fifteen minutes a zone, or area, is plenty," Perkins explained. "That will keep the roots down deeper in the ground, where there's more moisture. As the weather gets drier and warmer, that time can be increased. We water early in the morning, about 5 a.m., to get rid of the dew and give the water a chance to evaporate through the day."

In addition, it's not a bad idea to periodically, perhaps once a month, soak the lawn and let the water get down into the roots, Perkins said.

Cutting the lawn too short is another common mistake homeowners often make.

"You want to keep it in the 1½ to 2-inch range," he said. "Otherwise you could burn it out. Longer grass holds the water better. If there's a drought, like last summer, you want to keep that height up."

For those especially concerned about their lawn, there are two options that involve renovating the lawn.

Aerification is a process which uses a machine to punch out little cones of turf, about the diameter of a pencil, but only one or two inches long.

This allows the available moisture, air and fertilizer to get down into the root system itself.

Perkins said this process is available through landscapers and lawn care companies can do this as well.
