Reynolds of merger

By BOB NEEDHAM

Anger over city taxes led a couple of people to suggest a return to the old idea of merging Northville city and township government recently — out from a different angle than in the past.

At a public hearing on the city budget Tuesday, May 30, two residents suggested that the city and township might do well to merge their operations. However, unlike past efforts for the township to become part of the city, the latest suggestion was more along the lines of the city becoming part of the township.

The two residents at the hearing suggested the city might reduce its tax rate by merging with the township into a single governmental unit. One former township resident, who now owns property in the city, said a city home is taxed more than a comparable township home.

That's true: the city tax rate for general operations is 12.35 mills, while the township total for last year was 3.77 mills.

When someone at the hearing asked about the differences between city and township taxes, City Manager Steve Walters listed several reasons.

One goal away

Mustang kickers are second in state

By JEFF HAWKINS

Above stood parents, peers and fans, who came to watch the Mustangs in the 1989 girls soccer tournament championship game against Troy-Athens at North Farmington High School last Saturday afternoon.

They screamed their passions toward the players, opponents and even the referees whose decisions delighted, frustrated and even angered the partials that stood in the stands.

The teams lined up to a deafening roar from the crowd. "Come on Mustangs let's bring it home," shouted one Northville admirer.

As the game continued, it developed into one of the classic confrontations that few had ever seen. The players controlled their destiny by playing good, smart soccer.

"Northville dominated the possessions," spectator Marv Moran said. "But the forwards just couldn't finish off the plays."

By halftime, the score was at a standstill as neither team could put one past the other's cement-solid defense.

"One goal just might win this game," a man whispered to his wife.

And it did. When Angie Marino came backdoor to receive a pass, she dribbled, looked for an open teammate, and let loose with a floating spiral that hugged the upper-crossbar and eluded the elevated grasp of Northville goalie Kristi Turner, giving Troy-Athens the lead and eventually the game.

"They tried really hard and gave it their best shot," spectator Jenny Stevens said, summing up the crowd's thoughts as the Northville players were cheered off the field.

Schools' plan will include a bond issue

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB and ANN E. WILLIS

"Don't be happy, worry."

That was the sentiment expressed by George Bell, superintendent of Northville schools, when he presented the results of the district's Strategic Planning committees.

Bell said much work needs to be done to take Northville Schools into the 21st century.

Bell made his comments during Monday's board meeting, as over 100 people — most of whom were volunteers on the strategic plan — looked on to see the entire plan package.

Bell began his remarks by noting that over 5,000 hours of time spent by volunteers "transformed this strategic plan into an action plan."

He praised the volunteers for their magnificent outpouring of work. "We received tremendous input from the community and staff as to where this project will go."

Board members also expressed their thanks to the community for helping the district complete the five year long-range plan.

"I am amazed at the breath and vision of the report," said board vice president James Petrie. "This plan gives us a clear map for the future."

By approving the plan, the board agreed to implement 17 of the 74 goals outlined by eight action planning committees who worked to identify the district's needs in a number of areas.

Three points in the plan which garnered the most attention by Bell and the board, were: an impending bond issue; the need for more space at the middle school level — meaning reopening of Cooke School or construction of another middle school; and the upcoming millage election renewal.

During his presentation Bell said the increasing population at Meads Mill will force the district to meet those needs by 1990-91.

He said the district will either have to reopen Cooke School or build a new middle school building. To facilitate either option, Bell said the district will have to seek a bond issue.

In deciding which option to pursue, Bell said he is accepting volunteers to form a committee to study the proposals (see related story).

In addition to the middle school

Taxpayers object at budget hearing

By BOB NEEDHAM

About 10 residents kept city officials busy for about two hours answering protests over taxes at recent hearings on the city budget.

In the hearings just before adoption of the budget Tuesday, May 30, several residents objected to their large — and growing — tax bills in light of recent assessments and the city millage rate. City officials had answers for all the points raised, but some less-than-satisfied residents left the meeting with a suggestion to consider merging the city with lower-taxed Northville Township (see related story).

Although the total city tax rate is dropping from 16.96 to 15.40 mills, higher residential assessments are expected to result in an average tax dollar increase of 6 percent for city homeowners.

In presenting the $6.5-million budget, City Manager Steven Walters said the increase is due mostly to the rising cost of trash disposal, electric bills for lighting the new subdivisions, and a bigger library budget.

In the Truth-in-Taxation hearing called to consider an overall 4.1 percent tax increase, several unhappy residents said their tax bills are getting to be too large to bear. Some spoke of tax bills around $9,000 or $10,000.

One resident had appealed an assessment to the city board of review, but lost because the board concluded the house was accurately assessed at half the property's actual market value. "With taxes at $9,800 on my house there is no fair market value, because I couldn't sell it," the homeowner said. "I'm surprised this room isn't packed with people. I really and truly am."

Another resident suggested the taxes from Abbey Knoll Estates and Pheasant Hills should bring in plenty of revenue: "I look at these two new subs and I think, 'gee, you guys must be rolling in money.'"

"Enough is enough. I can't believe what I pay," another added.

One resident said he owned a $500,000 house in California and paid $6,000 in tax. "Abbey Knoll has some of the highest taxes in the country for the size of the house," he said.

Several people said the taxes in Northville are making it difficult to live in the city.

Some suggested budget cuts were the better way to deal with a gap between expenses and revenue. The city is planning cuts of 1.15 percent in the general fund, but some suggested that was not enough.

"It's the same with us at home. If we can't afford something, we don't buy it," one resident said.

Less police protection was suggested as one possible place for cuts. That was one option the council considered, and rejected, to balance the budget.

At the hearing, Mayor Chris Johnson said that taxes are a problem, but said officials also hear lots of complaints about break-ins, speeding and other concerns of the police department.

One resident said the pressures

Administration presents tight budget for schools

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

"This budget leaves us little for emergencies," said Northville Superintendent George Bell, during the district's presentation of its 1989-90 school budget on Monday.

During the presentation, district business manager John Street outlined the basics of the budget, which is in its first draft.

Street said the revenue's for the 1989-90 year will increase by 11 percent over last year to $19,224,000. He said expenses will also increase from last year, roughly 9 percent to $18,769,682.

Street said the unallocated amount of roughly $450,000 will be divided as follows: one percent or $190,000 of the budget will be placed into the district's fund balance and the remaining $260,000 will be put into a discretionary fund.

Bell said the fund balance allocation has been prompted by the board's direction for him to put one percent of the district's revenue into the fund balance for the next five years.

He added the current amount in the fund balance is about $100,000 or about 1/2 percent of the district's revenue.

Bell said the $260,000, which the district has set aside as discretionary money, is being reserved because the state has not finished working on this year's state aid formula.

"The yearly state aid bill, which has been approved by the House, now has a kicker of putting the state contribution to social security into the formula," Bell said.

If the contribution is included, Bell said the money would be subject to recapture by the state from the out-of-formula district's.

He said the Northville district could stand to lose $300,000 if the bill is passed by the Michigan legislature. Bell noted that the Senate has come back with a different version of the bill which does not include social security.

"The senate says the state has a surplus of funds and it can fund education without the recapture," Bell said, adding the Michigan Legislature should soon resolve the matter, since school budgets need to be approved by July 1.

Bell said if the House bill wins approval, Northville will pay for the recapture with its discretionary funds. If the recapture is not included, Bell said the money would be used for capital improvements.

"There will be no capital improvements if the money is recaptured by the state," Bell said.

Included in the 1989-90 budget is a provision for the hiring of approximately 14 new teachers and the reopening of Moraine Elementary. Bell said the district expects to have an enrollment increase of between 110 and 140 students next fall.

"This budget is an estimate and will be solidified in the fall based on the number of students," Street said.

In addition to getting a first draft presentation of the budget, board members also approved the operating millage rate and debt retirement rate for next year.

Including passage of a Truth in Taxation increase, the board approved a millage rate of 30.46 mills for 1989-90. This rate is seven percent lower than the 1988-89 millage of 32.79 mills.

Although the tax rate for the next school year is actually lower, most residents will pay more money because of higher property assessments.

Bell said this is the third consecutive year that the board has had to roll back the millage rate per the Headlee Rollback amendment.

Northville voters approved a millage rate of 35.4 mill in 1985.

Like the millage rate, the debt fund also will decrease to 4 mills from this year's level of 4.75 mills. Voters approved a debt millage rate of 7 mills in 1985.

Wayne County receives four proposals for land development

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Wayne County officials said four proposals were submitted prior to last Thursday's deadline, for the development of 1,040 acres of county-owned land in Northville Township. Included in three of the four proposals are golf courses designed by legends Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer.

County business developer Bill Wild said four proposals were submitted to the county from a list of 12 developers being considered for the project.

Wild said many of the developers "teamed" together to come up with one proposal. He said the county will take six to eight weeks to review the proposals before narrowing the list of four proposals to two.

The four development teams include: Holtzman and Silverman, Nicklaus-Sierra Development Corp., LoPatin and Co., and Duke Associates; and J. & J. Slavik Inc., Byron Trerice Co., Vidosh Inc., and Trammell Crow Co.

The other two groups include: R. A. DeMattia Co., Selective Group, Heinz C. Prechter, ASC Inc.; Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co.; and Charter Development Co. (Arnold Cohen/Walter Cohen), John Boll, Joseph P. Ministrelli and Hubert Wright.

Walter Cohen, partner of Charter Development Co. and Arco Construction in Southfield, said his team has talked with Palmer about designing a golf course, but added no commitment from Palmer has been reached.

"I think we will receive a commitment (from Palmer), but until we do, I think the matter is still premature," Cohen said.

Nicklaus has already committed to be part of the Holtzman and Silverman team, while Trevino has committed to the R. A. DeMattia group.

Wild said he hasn't looked at any of the four proposals, but added all four of the teams are experienced and "there is no reason to assume that any of the proposals are inadequate."

Wild added he is confident that one of the four proposals submitted by the teams will be the one chosen by the county to develop the land.

He said the plans will be reviewed by a committee of county executives and an advisory committee which includes commissioner Susan Heintz (R-Northville) and Township Supervisor Georgina Goss.

"The advisory committee will have an opportunity to examine the proposals and provide input before any decisions are made," Wild said. "Before we eliminate anyone the committee will have looked at the plans."

The list of proposals will be shortened to two, Wild said, adding negotiations between the county and the final two teams will then begin.

Wild said the county should award the development team the project by mid-September.

Before proposal deadline, the Township Planning Commission held a special study session on Tuesday, June 6 to discuss master planning the entire county land site.

Township Planning Consultant Claude Coates said the planning commission discussed master planning the site two years ago, but noted talk about the plan ended without resolution.

Coates said planners came up with five options during its discussions two years ago, all of which contained varying amounts of single-family, cluster and elderly housing, research and development, golf course and office areas.

After Coates presented a review of all five plans, commissioners agreed to wait and see the proposals submitted by the four development teams before making any changes to the master plan.

Township Planning Director Carol Maise said the entire county land site is zoned in various degrees of residential housing, ranging from single-family to elderly.

Besides discussing a master plan for the site, planners also talked about creating a planned unit development (PUD).

Coates said a PUD community is similar to a planned residential development (PRUD), but some differences exist including a minimum acreage requirement in a PUD.

Planners instructed Coates to put together an outline of a potential PUD for the site, based primarily on the current PRUD ordinance.

Commissioner Charles DeLand said the PUD should encourage preserving the land while creating something attractive for the community.

Planners identified potential land uses for the site as parkland, research and development, all types of residential housing, retail, hotel small office, restaurant and small industry.

Besides have Coates prepare a PUD outline, commissioners voted to have planning Chairman DeLand ask Goss if a commissioner can be part of the advisory committee reviewing the development proposals.

"I think the planning commission should be involved at this point from now on," said Planner Larry Sheehan. "We need input and someone to get feedback immediately."

Wild said no matter which development team is chosen, it will be up to that group to go to the township with their plan.

He added that a contract may be worded to be contingent on the developer's agreement with the township over zoning.

Master plan progresses

An update of the city master plan is taking shape in the planning consultant's office, leading members of the planning commission to ask for a meeting to catch up on the study's status.

"I'm happy to say we are making progress," Planning Consultant Don Wortman told the planning commission last week.

He said a recent survey of city residents is being tabulated on a computer. Response ran at about 30 percent of city residents.

Wortman's office has "modified the base map" in the current master plan showing the actual land use of each piece of property in the city, he said. A section of the plan on population, economic statistics and the like was expected to be ready at any time.

Once the survey results are tabulated, Wortman's firm — Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May of Ann Arbor — will develop policies for inclusion in the plan. The policies will cover things like "in-fill" development, where single lots instead of major projects are the concern; acceptable development densities; and the role of strip commercial development.

After hearing the report on the status of the master plan update, Commissioner Rolland Stapleton said members of the commission should have more input on the direction of the study. Dollars and time are being spent at the consultant level, he said, taking the study in a certain direction.

"It becomes very difficult to deviate from that direction once these steps are made," he said.

Stapleton added that the master plan is a vital function of the commission. Often, the commission spends a lot of time on certain aspects of writing ordinances, for example, he said.

"We slip off into the irresistible and ludicrous minute details and we lose focus on controlling what's going to happen to the city on a large scale," he said.

Wortman suggested a meeting dedicated to going over the master plan, and the commissioners agreed.

The commission is scheduled to consider the master plan update at its next meeting, 8 p.m. Tuesday, June 20 at the Northville City Hall.

The planning commission has the sole authority to adopt a master plan.

Volunteers sought to sell raffle tickets

Raffle tickets to support the first Northville Victorian Festival are on sale at locations around town, but festival organizers are looking for volunteers to sell them.

Raffle chairperson Betty Burch is seeking individuals who are willing to sell the tickets. She can be reached at work — Grandma Betty's Sweets 'n' Treats — at 349-4477, or at home at 347-4394.

Tickets sell for $1 or $10 for a book of 12. There will be four drawings throughout the summer, on the 17th of June, July, August and September. Downtown merchants will be selling the tickets.

Drawings will be held at 3 p.m. at the downtown bandshell off Main Street. The first three prizes will be $200; the final prize, drawn on the closing day of the festival, will be $1,000.

The festival has enough money on hand to cover the first drawing, scheduled for this Saturday. Ticket sales are expected to cover the future prizes.

Burch encourages as many people as possible to sell tickets. If necessary, tickets can be delivered to interested sellers, she said.

Police Blotter

Indecent exposure cases occur in both city and township

Two cases of indecent exposure were reported last Wednesday afternoon, apparently committed by two different men — with one man arrested for one of the incidents.

In the first incident, a Madison Heights resident was spotted exposing his genitals by a Meijer store detective on Wednesday, June 7 at 4:10 p.m.

Police said that when they arrived at the scene, they asked the subject to halt so they could question him. Police said the subject ran from the scene and knocked downtown Meijer employees in the process.

The man reluctantly gave up to police before he entered a wooded area behind the store. Police said they booked the man, and released him pending a warrant request.

Shortly before that incident, at about 3:15 p.m., two female students reported an indecent exposure at Northville High School. Two 17-year-old students were walking down the driveway to Center Street when a black pickup approached from the school area and offered a ride, a city police report said. The students saw that the driver of the truck was a naked man.

The man was described as a white male about five feet, eight inches, weighing about 125, with long, straight brown hair. He was thin and approximately in his 30s.

Police concluded this was a different man from the one arrested in Northville Township.

LAWN ORNAMENTS DUMPED — Six lawn ornaments were dumped on a Jeffrey Drive lawn recently, according to a police report.

A resident on the house watched while two unidentified people dropped the ornaments in the front yard and left. The ornaments are a Dutch boy missing his head and a Dutch girl; a flower, a bird, a rabbit, and a welcome sign.

The ornaments are at the city police station for the owner to claim.

WINDOW HIT — A Maplewood home was damaged by a shot from a BB or pellet gun, according to a city police report.

An upstairs bedroom window was damaged with a small hole between May 19 and June 4. Damage was set at $125.

TAILLIGHT TAKEN — A car parked at Allen Terrace was noticed to have a taillight lens missing last Thursday, according to a city police report.

The lens was taken from a 1984 Ford Fairmont, but the owner was not certain whether the theft occurred at Allen Terrace or somewhere else. Value was set at $90.

FENDER-BENDERS — At least one automobile accident was reported by township police over the past week.

A two-car accident occurred on Tuesday, June 6 at 5:56 p.m. on Eight Mile Road near Haggerty. Police said the driver of car one failed to yield to car two. Police said car two was southbound on Haggerty and added car one was exiting the north end of the Meijer parking lot. The driver of car one was issued ticket for failing to yield.

STOLEN ITEMS — Over $450 in merchandise was reported stolen from a garage on Baintree between June 6 and June 8 by township police.

The complainant said unknown persons entered his garage, probably through the door and stole two tackle boxes worth $300, a $90 hand buffer and a $78 weed whipper.

The complainant said no other items were taken and no other section of the house was entered.

PROPERTY DAMAGE — At least two incidents of property damage were reported to township police over the past week.

In the first incident, about $200 in damage was caused to a 1987 Ford Mustang parked on Seven Mile Road on May 31 and June 1 between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.

The complainant said unknown persons damaged the front windshield, wipers and outside passenger mirror of the car. He added beer bottles were also found smashed against the car.

Police said they have no suspects at this time.

In the second incident, about $1,800 in damage was caused to a 1988

Porsche parked at Meijer on June 5 between 9:45-10:15 a.m.

The complainant said unknown persons used a sharp tool and "keyed" the passenger side and hood of the car. Police said they have no suspects at this time.

STOLEN SOUND — A speaker box worth over $550 was stolen from a 1988 red pick-up truck parked on Rippling Lane on June 6 between 3 a.m. and 7 a.m., according to a township police report.

The complainant said unknown persons broke the passenger door window of the car and stole the speakers.

The complainant noted that $150 in damage was also caused to the door window of his vehicle.

MEIJER THEFT — A Farmington Hills resident was charged with larceny in a building after attempting to steal $111.85 in merchandise from Meijer, according to a township police report.

The store detective said the subject exited the south doors with the merchandise. Stolen items include $7.97 in drill bits, a $59 thermostat, a $37.88 data entry system and $7 worth of cigarettes.

The detective said he saw the subject select the thermostat and data entry system, and place them down the front of his shirt.

The detective said the subject then concealed the cigarettes and drill bits in his coat before trying to exit the south doors of the store.

The subject was detained by store detectives and charged with larceny by township police.

DRUNK DRIVING ROUNDUP — At least four drivers — including one who was in an accident — were ticketed for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor (OUIL) by city and township police over the past week. The incidents included:

A local resident was ticketed after his car hit a Detroit Edison pole on Orchard above Scott, according to a police report. The driver told police he lost control when a cat ran in front of his car at 2:25 a.m. Saturday, but Breathalyzer tests after 3 a.m. showed an illegal blood alcohol level.

Tests showed a level of .10 and .11 percent. A level of .10 or above is considered OUIL.

Skid marks 51 feet long indicated the car was probably travelling faster than the posted 25 miles per hour limit, and was across the center line, the police report said. The car's gas tank ruptured as a result of the accident.

The driver faces a July 1 court date.

A Redford resident was ticketed after being stopped on South Main at 1:34 a.m. Friday. The driver was pulled over after being clocked driving 38 miles per hour in a 25 zone and 51 in a 35 zone. Breathalyzer tests showed blood alcohol levels of .13 and .12 percent. The driver was jailed until sobering up and paying a $100 bond. The driver faces a July 7 court date.

A Northville resident was stopped for OUIL on Tuesday, June 6 at 11:21 p.m. on Seven Mile Road near Silver Springs Drive. Police said the subject, while executing a left turn onto Silver Springs, left the roadway and went over the curb. After failing all field sobriety tests, the driver registered a blood alcohol level of .17 percent. Police said the driver has been arrested three other times for drunken driving. The driver was charged with OUIL, held in jail and released on bond pending a warrant request.

Township police stopped a Northville resident on Sunday, June 4 at 3:06 a.m. on Northville Road near Jamestowne. Police said they were going south on Northville Road when they noticed a driver going north on Northville who was driving on a suspended license. After stopping the driver, police said they noticed a strong odor of intoxicants coming from inside the car. After failing all field sobriety tests, the driver registered a blood alcohol level .12 percent. The driver was charged with OUIL, held in jail and released on $100 bond. He faces a July 6, 9 a.m. 35th district court date.

Local committee supports school speed zone on Eight Mile

By BOB NEEDHAM

A local committee studying traffic at the Eight Mile / Center intersection last week endorsed a plan to create a "school speed zone" in the area.

The committee, composed of city and school district representatives and citizens at large, has been studying the corner for several months. It was formed in the wake of complaints from individuals, the city council and the school board about speeds on Eight Mile Road.

The particular worry was about students on foot going to and from Amerman Elementary School, as well as Northville High School.

The committee met last week to consider a Wayne County Road Commission suggestion that a locally-funded school speed zone be established on Eight Mile near Center. The committee felt it was "probably as good a resolution as we could get from them," said Burton Knighon, assistant superintendent of the school district and a member of the committee.

Under the county plan, local sources — most likely the city and / or school district — would pay to install signs marking a 30-miles-per-hour school speed zone. The signs would include flashing yellow lights to operate during the time the lower speed is in effect.

The current speed limit on that stretch of Eight Mile is 40 miles per hour.

Although the committee hopes the city and school district will share the cost of the sign — estimated at $15,000, although that could be reduced — neither the city council nor the school board has been formally approached about paying. Both governments are operating under tight budgets.

Knighon met with a road commission official Monday to discuss some details of the mechanics, installation, and control of the signs. If all permits are granted and funding secured, the school speed zone could be operating by September.

The city police would activate and control the sign, Knighon said. The system will probably work on one-week clocks and be shut off during times when school is out, he said.

The project could save money if local people — such as those in the city's department of public works — were used to install the equipment, Knighon added.

"We feel that we can save a significant amount of money," he said. "After (Monday's) meeting, we're not sure what it's going to cost."

Knighon said the school district will probably approach the city to request a "joint venture" to fund the project. The approach will probably not be made until all the approvals are in hand, he added. "We don't see that (asking the city), though, until after we've got the permit."

Knighon concluded: "It looks promising. Certainly, we're a lot farther ahead than we were before we started our committee. It looks like we're going to get some kind of relief that's going to help."

County work on Beck Road to be completed next year

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Wayne County officials said Tuesday that Beck Road in Northville Township between Five and Eight Mile roads should be completely paved by mid 1990.

"The road will be a good high class road for this major rural thoroughfare," said Ed Siemert, county director of engineering. "It will definitely be a high class improvement."

Siemert said the paving of Beck Road began last year, as the stretch of Beck between Five and Six was paved in late 1988.

He said Beck between Six and Seven is currently being constructed and Beck between Seven and Eight is currently in the design stage.

"The pavement of all three sections will include two 12-foot wide asphalt driving lanes with a three-foot wide asphalt shoulder on either side," Siemert said.

"There will also be a five-foot wide gravel shoulder beyond the paved shoulder and the road will be six inches thick," he added.

Siemert said the county decided to pave Beck because it is a mile road and "since there is a lot of development in the area we need to get that road out of the mud."

He said that about 1,000 to 2,000 cars travel on Beck Road between Five and Eight Mile roads each day. "We are not paving the roads to ease congestion, but to make them driveable."

The county places the asphalt on the road following reconstruction of the road by a contractor Siemert said.

Siemert said because the county engineering staff is backed up with work, an independent contractor has also been hired to design the road and do the engineering.

The engineering firm of Tucker, Young, Jackson and Tull Inc., has been hired by the county to do the design work for each of the three segments of Beck Road.

Siemert said the first part of the project, Beck Road between Five and Six Mile is almost finished. He said some seeding, sodding and ditch restoration still needs to be completed.

Siemert said the total cost of this portion of the project is about $538,000 and added the reconstruction contractor Woodlove Construction should have the final items completed soon.

The Six to Seven Mile portion of Beck Road is currently under road reconstruction by Woodlove Construction, Siemert said. He added the contractor is widening the road, improving the grand and working on getting a proper site distance.

He said the contractor should be completed by mid-August and the project should be done by late September a total cost of $680,000.

The third and final portion of the project is paving Beck Road between Seven and Eight Mile. Siemert said this portion of the project is in the design stage and added the county should go for bids for road reconstruction by mid-August.

Siemert said the project should be completed by mid 1990.

Northville High School Principal David Bolitho examines the red paint that was spread on the windows of the administration offices

Vandals strike Northville High School

By BRENDA DOOLEY

Last Thursday morning Northville High School administrators saw red. Literally.

Twenty-seven windows on the outside of the high school's administrative offices were smeared with thick red oil-based paint, the work of unknown vandals.

David Bolitho, high school principal, estimated the incident occurred sometime between 2:45 and 6 a.m. on Thursday, June 8.

Bolitho explained that custodians make regular checks of the high school grounds throughout the day just to make sure there is no suspicious activity. Before 2:45 a.m. Thursday, no unusual happenings were reported.

"If this is an end-of-the-year prank, we want to get the message out loud and clear that we consider it pure vandalism," Bolitho said. "We will prosecute to the full extent of the law whoever did this, if it's a student or non-student."

A police report was filed and Northville City police are investigating. Bolitho said the school has a history of end-of-the-year pranks, but the red paint incident "by far exceeds pranks — it's vandalism."

Last year, for instance, roofing tar was spread at a bus stop area, although the tar wasn't readily noticeable because it blended into the road surface. When students got off the bus, the tar was tracked into the high school building from the bottom of their shoes. It cost the district about $2,000 to clean the tar off the floor, Bolitho said.

He estimated clean-up of the paint off the tinted, double-thermal windows and successive repair work to cost $1,200 to $1,400.

Maintenance workers immediately contacted manufacturers of the school windows Thursday morning to determine what kind of cleaning solvent to use for removing the red paint.

In a phone interview on Monday afternoon, Bolitho said the cleaning solvent stripped the finish off the outside window frames and window sills, both of which will require repainting.

All traces of red paint were removed from the surface of the windows,

— David Bolitho
Northville High Principal

but the glass surface is still streaked and will need to be cleaned again. Bolitho said the school district might not be able to finish the clean-up work, forcing school officials to contract the work out.

"It's been unusually quiet regarding the incident," Bolitho said Monday afternoon.

He said there are no leads or suspects in the case.

After the red paint was discovered, school officials went right to work in investigating the incident. Teachers checked students' fingernails for traces of red paint.

Other staff members patrolled the high school parking lot in search of cars displaying any signs of red paint.

"We're asking parents to cooperate by checking fingernails and clothes for red paint," Bolitho added. "If this vandalism is, in fact, a prank, we have to stop it."

Bolitho said he had no theories on why the incident occurred. No paint was found on any other portion of the school, targeting the vandalism solely on the administrative offices.

On a more positive note, Bolitho said 169 students were honored in a convocation ceremony last week, as high school seniors look forward to graduation.

"We're not going to let this cloud our achievements," he said, referring to the red paint incident. "This has been a good senior class."

Student organizations are planning to offer a reward for any information leading to the capture of the person responsible for the vandalism.

To be on the safe side, security was beefed up at the school this week to guard against any other so-called pranks. Today (Thursday, June 15) is the last day of school for Northville students.

Township names interim manager

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The search for a new township manager is now moving full speed ahead, following board approval last week of a resolution establishing the position and accepting an ad-hoc committee's list of recommendations on the position.

Until a new manager is hired, the board also named Township Treasurer Richard Henningsen as interim business manager.

"My job responsibilities will just basically be increased as treasurer," Henningsen said. "I will maintain the daily operations of the office in the absence of a township manager."

Recently retired from General Motors, Henningsen noted he intends to apply for the full-time manager position.

Township Supervisor Georgina Goss said Henningsen was named interim business manager to take some of the workload off herself and temporary office manager/financial director James Graham.

Goss nominated Henningsen for the position because he offered his services. She noted she had been putting in full-time hours as supervisor, even though it is only a part-time position.

Members of the ad-hoc committee examining the manager position include: Betty Lennox, Jean Day-Couse, Karen Woodside, Dan Nelson and Wallace Bailey.

Committee members said they feel the report has strengthened the township manager position, although the authority associated with the job will be about the same.

"No authority has been added to the manager," said committee member Wallace Bailey. "But the position has been made stronger by clarifying it."

Bailey said he believes the committee came to the conclusion that the manager position had not run efficiently in the past. The township has had three managers dating back to 1981.

He added the committee tried to establish the position so that every township employee "knows and understands what the position is and how the position functions."

"The perception of township residents was that there was a lack of understanding of the manager position and we've tried to make it clear how the position should function," Bailey said.

Township Supervisor Georgina Goss said the manager will be the individual to whom all department heads report and will be responsible for the daily function of the township government.

Goss agreed with Bailey that the committee's report clarified the function of the manager position.

"All department heads report to the manager and the manager reports to the supervisor," she said, adding she believes the manager position is the key post in the township.

Committee member Karen Woodside said she believes the power associated with the position will be the same, "but it will be more well-defined."

Woodside said the position will be more successful than in past years because the lines of communication will be better drawn.

Goss said earlier that the major difference in the manager position will be a salary increase and a little more experience needed from the individual.

According to the committee's recommendation, the board approved a starting salary for the manager of between $37,000 and $45,000.

Of the three previous township managers (David Lelko, Bruno Scacchitti and Steve Brock) the highest salary paid was approximately $31,500, to Brock last year.

Bailey said the committee recommended the salary increase "because of the investment in time and money needed to train someone to be a manager, we felt the township should hang onto this person for a longer time."

Although the board accepted most of the committee's recommendations, it decided not to establish the manager position by ordinance — a move that went against the committee's suggestion.

Goss said the board's decision to establish the position by resolution, rather than ordinance was based on the recommendations of Township Attorney Ernest Essad.

"Legally, an ordinance is the law of the township," Essad said earlier. "Resolutions are good only until acted upon by the next board. Unless a board has an individual picked out to do the job, then it is better to set it up by resolution."

"A board can much more easily change a resolution for the job function to fit the individual or the individual to fit the job function," Essad added.

Bailey said the committee spent a lot of time and effort on the study and added they felt that defining the position by ordinance was the right way to go.

"Establishing the position by ordinance clearly states to everyone how the position should function and not one person in particular," Bailey said.

Accident leaves three injured

By BRUCE WEITNRAUB

Three people suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident that occurred on Eight Mile Road near Liorac Drive on Sunday, June 4, at 9 p.m.

Police said the driver of car one was westbound on Eight Mile when a blue Cougar, going eastbound, drove on the eastbound shoulder and slid sideways across Eight Mile.

The driver of car one said she went onto the westbound shoulder of the road and hit another car going eastbound on Eight Mile.

The driver of the blue Cougar said he was eastbound on Eight Mile and his accelerator stuck to the floor of the car.

Police said a mechanic checked the Cougar and said he found no damage to the accelerator.

The driver of the Cougar was issued a ticket by township police for careless driving.

Township approves final sewer abatement orders

By BRUCE WEITNRAUB

Northville Township officially became the first community last Thursday belonging to the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) to approve a final order of abatement — paving the way for the building of the WTUA sewer system.

The abatement agreement, which was reached last month between WTUA and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR), will set up a timetable over the next two years for WTUA to complete planning and design work on the sewer project.

"I feel very comfortable with Northville Township participating with WTUA in the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority (YCUA)," said Township Trustee Tom Handyside, following unanimous approval of the agreement by the board.

"It (the agreement) means our sewer capacity problems with the DNR are almost over," said Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss earlier.

The sewer project will hook up the three WTUA communities of Northville Township, Plymouth Township and Canton Township, to the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority (YCUA) treatment plant.

"You are passing one of four abatement orders which shows the DNR that WTUA has committed to build the project," said Township Attorney Ernest Essad.

Essad said the WTUA board has already passed an agreement which guarantees it will build the system. Both Canton and Plymouth Townships voted on the agreement on Tuesday (after Record deadline).

Essad noted each community is approving an agreement for the amount of sewer capacity they will have in the sewer system.

WTUA Attorney Robert Van Ravenswaay said the Water Resources Commission published an announcement of the agreement on May 18 and has scheduled the matter on its June 15 agenda.

"We look for execution of the order by early July," Van Ravenswaay said, adding the DNR could begin issuing Act 98 permits — assuming approval of the agreement by Canton and Plymouth Township — by mid July.

Township Engineer Abe Munfah said Michigan's Act 98 states that "every municipality that has a sewer system will have to receive a permit from the DNR before expanding or adding to the system."

"Any project involving the public sewers in Northville Township will have to apply for an Act 98 permit from the DNR," he added.

Munfah said a key date in the agreement between WTUA and the DNR includes WTUA submitting a detailed set of plans on the sewers and the pump station by May 1990.

According to the agreement, construction on the system must be completed by WTUA no later than May 31, 1993.

Resident James McNeely questioned both Van Ravenswaay and Munfah on the validity of Northville Township sending its sewer flows to Ypsilanti.

"Somebody should show me why we need to go to Ypsilanti for $30 million when we could have gone to Detroit two years ago for $41 million," McNeely said.

Van Ravenswaay said the WTUA system will provide Northville with the opportunity for future growth in the township, something the Detroit system would not do.

After some heated remarks made by McNeely to both Munfah and Van Ravenswaay, Essad said the board meeting was not the place for a personal confrontation.

Essad added the Detroit sewer project could not have provided Northville with enough sewer capacity to account for future growth.

Munfah said he basically followed a program developed by McNeely which included his engineering company's seal on the study.

McNeely's firm was formerly the township consulting engineering firm. The firm's contract was not renewed in September of 1987.

"When he worked on the project, his recommendation was to transfer Northville's flow to Ypsilanti," Munfah said.

Parents deliver senior invitations "Back to the Future" style during lunch last Friday

Seniors go 'Back to the Future' for party

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

It's not every day that a Delorean pulls up to the cafeteria door at Northville High School.

But such was the case last Friday, when, in keeping with this year's senior party theme "Back to the Future," parents of seniors staged the Delorean's entrance, before handing out invitations to students.

Invitations to the party, which is planned for Northville High seniors on Friday, June 16, were extremely elaborate in their design.

Featuring a Delorean on the cover, the invitations were colored in silver and black, and had the names of students attending the party on the inside.

Parents have been working on the party since last February and the volunteers said had been keeping the theme a secret until the invitation ceremony.

"We've got approximately 125 to 150 parents volunteering for some committee to help prepare for the party," said general chairman Cheryl Swayne.

With each committee split into different assignments, Swayne said at least one group has been at the high school each night of the week, working on the party.

"I think parents are here for their kids," she said. "This is really a labor of love. We all think the senior class is great and this is a way for us to show them."

While being careful not to divulge any secrets, Swayne said the volunteers have worked very hard in preparing for the party.

"This party has become a tradition in Northville for the past 20 years," she said. "The parents are hoping to provide a means of keeping kids in an alcohol-free environment after graduation."

Beginning with a meeting of parents of seniors last September, Swayne said each parent came up with 10 theme ideas which were narrowed, by general consensus, to three.

She added the committee decided on one theme from the group and began working in February on the decorations and other preparations for the party.

Swayne said between 85 and 90 percent of the 1989 senior class have bought a $20 ticket to attend the party, which will run from 9:30 p.m. until 4 a.m. on June 16.

"The kids really look forward to the party because it is the last time they will be together as a class," she said.

Parent Kris Gardine, who works on a decoration committee, said she is happy to make a contribution to the senior class through her work as a volunteer.

"I didn't feel involved in other areas for my child, but since I love art, I knew working on the senior party would be my strong suit," Gardine said.

Gardine said her committee, consisting of about 20 people, has had a real strong nucleus and that everybody has pitched in to help.

Volunteer Pat Bosscher, said parents have had a large commitment to the party right from the start.

"This committee has a lot of different personalities, but everyone is committed to putting on a great party," Bosscher said.

Swayne said family and friends of the senior class may look at the decorations made by the parent volunteers tomorrow, June 16 from 6-9 p.m.

Plant study done; city waits on Ford

Although an architect's study of possible futures for the Northville Ford Plant is essentially complete, city officials have so far been unable to show the results to Ford.

City Manager Steve Walters said last week that the study was basically finished, but that he wanted to discuss the results with Ford officials before releasing it publicly. He said Tuesday that the city had not been able to set up a meeting with the appropriate people.

The city council approved the Ford plant study with money from the federal Community Development Block Grant program. Quinn Evans / Architects, a firm partly specializing in historic building preservation, conducted the study for the city.

A preliminary version of the study was leaning to some kind of public use for at least part of the plant site. A library or community center were two options specifically mentioned.

At the planning commission meeting last week, Planning Consultant Don Wortman said the recommendation will probably be for a combination of a library and retail space.

A joint city / township committee has been looking at possible future library sites. A public hearing or two to discuss the issue has been held up for several months pending the results of the Ford plant study.

The plant's future is basically in the hands of two entities: Ford Land Development and the City of Northville. Control of the property is expected to revert to Ford Motor Company's land division in the fall for action. The city's power rests in zoning; the site is now zoned for industrial use, and any other use would require city approval.

The plant ended manufacturing operations Friday morning, according to a Ford spokesperson. The hourly workers at the plant transferred to other plants in Dearborn and Livonia. One person retired rather than transfer, the spokesperson said.

Code officer expected

With a couple of residents appearing before the city council last week to complain about property upkeep in town, the city is almost ready to hire a half-time person to concentrate on enforcing such ordinances.

The city council Tuesday, May 30 heard complaints about the condition of two pieces of property in the city. The complaints were referred to the city's building official for action.

But City Manager Steve Walters has been saying for months that the building official already is overloaded with routine inspections and other duties. To relieve the load, Walters proposed a 20-hour position of ordinance enforcement officer to actively enforce items like the city's new property maintenance ordinance, which otherwise would not get as much attention.

Walters said Monday that the ordinance enforcement officer should be hired by the end of the month and start work in late June or early July.

Currently, "We're not out cruising the neighborhoods," Walters said.

"We certainly respond to every complaint we get."

One of the complaints at the council meeting, about a vacant house, could be better handled by a person dedicated to this type of enforcement, Walters said.

"There's no requirement that a house be occupied, and there's no requirement that it be kept up beyond the maintenance ordinance," Walters said. "A vacant house looks kind of bad."

An ordinance enforcement officer could concentrate on looking for specific violations to keep such a property looking as good as possible, he said.

"That's why we need the person on. Joe (Attard, the building official) doesn't have time for the inspecting he's got now," Walters added.

The city plans to advertise the position within the next couple of weeks, he said. The position is expected to be funded, at least for a time, with money available charged to property owners for building inspections.

CITY OF NOVI RESIDENTS YOU CAN HELP KEEP WATER RATES DOWN

There are various factors which enter into Detroit's rate making methodology to establish "cost of service." Among the factors which have a strong influence on the water rates are each community's peak flows, peak hour flow, and maximum day flow.

Each year these factors are updated by Detroit, based on records from the previous year.

WHAT YOU CAN DO

You can directly influence these factors. This can be accomplished through the lowering of maximum day and peak hour flow rates. The key factor contributing to this high demand is summer lawn sprinkling.

RESIDENTS CAN DEMONSTRATE THEIR CONCERN BY COOPERATING IN A VOLUNTARY CITY WIDE SPRINKLING PROGRAM.

WATER CUSTOMERS WITH AN EVEN NUMBER ADDRESS SPRINKLE ON EVEN NUMBERED DAYS.

WATER CUSTOMERS WITH AN ODD NUMBER ADDRESS SPRINKLE ON ODD NUMBERED DAYS.

IF POSSIBLE DO NOT SPRINKLE DURING THE PEAK DEMAND HOURS OF

6 A.M. - 9 A.M.

5 P.M. - 8 P.M.

ALL WATER CUSTOMERS WITH AUTOMATIC SPRINKLING SYSTEMS SHOULD SET THEIR TIME CLOCKS FOR SPRINKLING BETWEEN THE HOURS OF 12:00 MIDNIGHT AND 6:00 A.M., WHICH IS NORMALLY A LOW DEMAND PERIOD.

City to consider water ordinance

An ordinance to allow emergency restrictions on water use is under consideration in the City of Northville.

Last summer's drought spurred the city to enact voluntary restrictions on outdoor water use. When violations were noticed, the person was simply asked to comply.

The new ordinance, if enacted, would mean deliberate violators of water use restrictions would be guilty of a misdemeanor. Such ordinances are one element of a water use reduction plan which the state Department of Public Health (DPH) has developed for the entire metropolitan area.

A public hearing on the ordinance is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, June 19 at Northville City Hall.

The ordinance would permit the city manager to declare a "water supply emergency" when depletion of water supply, low water pressure, or failure of the water supply system are present or expected.

An emergency would be declared with an announcement over radio or television and, when practical, on the local cable television station, in the Record, and on the city hall telephone answering machine. The declaration is to include effective date and time, period of time the restrictions are in effect, and the types of outdoor water use which are restricted.

City Manager Steve Walters, who presented the ordinance to the city council last week, said the most likely restriction will be allowing outdoor water use on alternating days.

The ordinance would allow for punishment of violations by up to a $500 fine, 90 days imprisonment, or community service. It is based on a similar ordinance in Novi.

The procedure to use the ordinance would probably be to make the announcement of a water emergency, then issue a written warning to violators. Anyone who violates the restrictions after getting a written warning could be ticketed, Walters said.

"It really kind of structures and makes official the kind of thing we did last summer," Walters said.

Last summer, the city experienced water pressure and delivery problems during the drought. A program of voluntary restrictions was in place for much of the summer.

At the time, Council Member Paul Folino suggested an ordinance similar to the current draft. He suggested the determination of a water emergency be made with the city's department of public works head and the fire chief.

"This situation is never appropriate for a committee action. It has to be done faster than that," Walters said. He added that he would consult with the DPW superintendent: "You can bet I would never do this after Ted Mapes said it was not a good idea."

In proposing the ordinance, the city is following along with an area-wide plan from the DPH. That plan, presented in Novi last week, has several factors.

Under the plan, local communities would initiate a voluntary water use ban on the direction of the DPH.

In addition, the Detroit Water and Sewer Department — which supplies water to Northville and other suburbs — must determine a critical water supply point. Information from Detroit will help the DPH determine when a water supply problem exists.

The plan encourages development of local programs to control water use. Mandatory reductions will be put in place if voluntary cutbacks do not result in a substantial water use reduction.

Incumbents win race for Schoolcraft seats

Three incumbents and a recent graduate were the winners in the Schoolcraft College Board election Monday.

Unofficial vote totals provided by the school's president's office showed three six-year board seats going to Mary Breen, Jack Kirksey and Harry Greenleaf. All are incumbents.

One open, four-year seat on the board went to Thaddeus McCotter.

The unofficial totals for the six-year terms are: Breen, 10,894;

Kirksey, 8,832; Greenleaf, 7,029; David Tatman, 4,597; and Lawrence Whitmarsh, 3,505.

For the four-year term, the unofficial results are McCotter, 3,077; Thomas Davis, 2,936; Patricia Sacha, 2,296; Ronalee Bowman, 2,172; Richard Hayward, 1,819; and M. Andrea Taylor, 1,320.

Totals from Northville were not available by press time. The results must be certified by boards of canvassers before they become official.

Victorian singers

Although the Victorian Festival will not take place until September, these three singers from Northville High School are already hard at work preparing for their part in the festivities. Many of the high school students will be participating in the

SEMCOCG study backs no change on Eight Mile

A recent review of speeds on Eight Mile Road concludes a lower speed limit is not warranted.

However, a recent Wayne County recommendation suggests a form of a lower limit may be in order (see related story).

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOCG) — an inter-governmental planning group — reviewed traffic speeds on Eight Mile near Center at the request of Wayne County Commissioner Susan Heintz. The SEMCOG review, based largely on recent studies by Wayne County and the Michigan State Police, came to the same basic conclusion as the studies of the other agencies: the speed limit should not be lowered.

The SEMCOG report does not address the issue of a higher speed limit, which has been mentioned as a possibility. Both the Northville Board of Education and Northville City Council have asked for a lower limit over concerns of students and other pedestrians in the area.

A summary of the SEMCOG study contains five main points:

• "There are no unusual or high accident history or patterns along this section of Eight Mile Road."

• Two speed studies established an "85th-percentile" speed of 43 miles per hour. This means 85 percent of the drivers are driving at 43 or slower. Traffic officials use the 85th percentile as a guide in setting speed limits.

• The Eight Mile / Center intersection has several traffic control devices, including pedestrian signals, crossing guards and the overpass just to the west.

• The county has prepared an estimate of the cost to put flashing lights on pedestrian crossing signs.

• School speed zone signs with flashers could be installed.

"The above represents a significant effort on the part of the Wayne County Department of Public Services traffic engineering staff and the State Police to respond to the community request for a lower speed and increased safety in the school zone area along Eight Mile Road. A lowering of the existing speed limit of 40 mph does not appear to be warranted based on safety consideration, the substantial number and types of school crossing safety devices and the results of the speed studies taken," the report reads.

The letter is signed by Carmine Palombo, manager of transportation programs for SEMCOG.

Mall fire violations addressed

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Residents can continue shopping at the Northville Plaza Mall on Seven Mile Road east of Northville Road — at least for the time being.

The Northville Plaza Mall is owned by Franklin Properties. Two of the largest stores in the mall are Big Lots and A & P.

Township Attorney Ernest Essad said the township's lawsuit against Franklin Properties has been adjourned until mid-July, after serious violations concerning fire safety were addressed.

"The sprinkler system is now operating," Essad said, noting the system has been certified by an independent contractor. "There has been substantial progress in correcting the most serious violations."

Essad said the court date has been postponed so that an additional inspection of the mall by township fire personnel can take place.

It is clear that their (the owners) intent is to rehab the mall," Essad said, adding Franklin Properties "is making progress."

Franklin Properties Partner

Christopher Redding who has said his group handles the Northville Plaza Mall property, could not be reached for comment.

In an interview last February, Redding said his group intends on complying with the fire department's regulation.

Township Fire Chief Robert Toms said approximately 115 violations were issued against the mall last February. He said he recently got a letter from Dominion Fire Protection Co. in St. Clair Shores, stating the sprinkler system is working.

"I told the attorney (Essad) to give them (Franklin Properties) two more weeks and we'll inspect the building again during that time," Toms said. "If the violations are not corrected, then at that time we'll take legal steps."

He said both the township's fire and building departments will inspect the building within the next week. "It looks like they're trying to comply though."

Toms noted that mall stores Big Lots, A & P and Perry Drugs had their sprinkler systems working even though the system in other portions of the mall were not functional.

In addition to legal problems confronting Northville Plaza Mall, township officials said last week that a site plan has been submitted to the planning commission by Franklin Properties on behalf of Ward Presbyterian Church.

The matter is scheduled to be considered during the commission's next meeting on Tuesday, June 27.

Township Planning Director Carol Maise said the site plan calls for the Livonia congregation to rent 17,500 square feet of space inside the mall.

She said the plan would allow for between 3,000 and 4,000 feet of office space, a 6,000 square foot assembly hall and 7,500 to 8,500 square feet of Christian education classes and meeting room.

Maise said since the plan includes an assembly hall, it must be reviewed and receive approval by the planning commission. She said the site plan seeks both preliminary and final approval.

Ward Communications Coordinator Kelly Sharkey said she could not comment on whether Ward intends to seek site plan approval.

No decision on Starting Gate

A decision on the appeal of a 25-day license suspension at the Starting Gate Saloon is due any day, according to a clerk at the Liquor Control Commission (LCC).

An order on the appeal could be announced Thursday or Friday of this week, a clerk at the LCC's Lansing office said Monday.

The Starting Gate has appealed a decision which, if upheld, would suspend the bar's liquor license for 25 days. The suspension was ordered in November.

The order resulted from the arrest last year of a waitress in the bar for selling cocaine to off-duty state police troopers. The suspension was appealed on the grounds that the bar's owners knew nothing of the transaction, and were not even informed until months later, after the waitress pleaded guilty to a drug possession charge.

The case was argued in an appeals hearing recently at the LCC's Lincoln Park office.

Schrader project moves ahead

People involved with the renovation of the old Schrader's site on N. Center have assured Northville city officials that everything is well underway.

Architect Greg Presley told the planning commission last week that some financing difficulties were solved and that the renovation of the site was back on track.

A letter to the city from Garfield Construction Company to Building Official Joseph Attard states that the work behind the barricade in front of the building should be finished some time this month. The barricade is necessary to protect equipment inside the building and to shield pedestrians from any falling debris, the letter explains.

"The weeks ahead will see significant change occur both inside and outside this structure; I trust the planned renovation of this building will contribute positively to the ongoing process of renewal and improvement generally throughout Northville," the letter reads.

A few changes to the rear of the building were approved recently by city officials as a minor site plan revision. At the planning commission meeting, Presley said a barricade is required at the back of the site as well as the front. Both will eventually come down, he said.

Commissioner David Totten joked, "We thought it was a theme."

Proposed changes to Northville sign ordinance

Merchants protest sign rule ideas

By BOB NEEDHAM

A few downtown merchants turned out at a city council meeting Monday to protest what they see as potential over-regulation in a proposed new sign ordinance.

The proposal was the only subject at a special, two-hour study session attended by members of the council, planning commission and Historic District commission. Several downtown business owners also showed up, however, with some objecting to the ordinance as drafted.

One sticking point was a proposed limit of 10 "message units" for any sign. At a previous study session, most—but not all—officials present agreed with the concept of a message unit limitation, although many felt the idea needed better definition.

Basically, a message unit is a word or number. A sign would be limited to 10 words or numbers, or any combination. The entire area of certain changeable signs—a theater marquee or church events sign, for example—would be considered a single message unit.

The idea behind the 10-message-unit limit is to limit sign clutter.

"What do you people consider clutter?" Shoe Repairing owner Andy Piccoli asked the officials. "If the letters are too small, the sign becomes worthless. It's kind of self-regulating."

Council Member Paul Folino agreed, saying that tighter proposed size limits are enough to regulate signs. "If (a business owner), in a sense, clutters that sign, it's not going to do him any good," he said.

Council Member Jerry Mittman defended the concept on safety grounds, saying a confusing sign can cause accidents when people driving by try to read it. "You want something you can quickly focus on, and go on," he said.

Piccoli responded that smaller signs are harder to read, and that, in any case, he doubted the city had ever suffered a fatal accident because of someone trying to read a sign.

Trying to lit the amount of message on a sign "is an awfully difficult thing to do effectively," planning commission member David Totten said. "You can't control everything... What's clutter to one person is not necessarily clutter to another person. We can define size. I'm not sure we can define clutter."

City Manager Steve Walters suggested that although clutter might be difficult to define, message units might be possible.

Planning Consultant Don Wortman, who worked on the proposed ordinance draft, said a message unit restriction has worked in other communities.

"I, for one, think it would be a good thing. I also think 10 message units is not overly restrictive," Wortman said.

John Bueter, president of the Merchants Association and a manager at Lapham's, disagreed. He said the store already has more than 10 message units in its sign and hopes to add more.

"Right now we're over the limit," he said. "I'm in trouble with the 10-character limit, and I can't consider that as clutter... It's simple, it's straight, but it's over the line."

Some merchants also objected to the way the ordinance would bring non-complying signs into compliance. Non-conforming signs could stay up and be repaired, but if they are substantially changed for any reason, they would have to be brought into compliance with the new restrictions.

"It sounds to me you're going to be very busy enforcing this ordinance," Genitti's co-owner Toni Genitti said.

Mayor Chris Johnson said sign controls are one reason downtown Northville looks as good as it does. "I don't think you'd be seeing what you see today" if not for regulation, he said.

Piccoli then said it is possible to regulate businesses so much they will shy away from the city.

"It doesn't do any good to have a beautiful downtown if we're turning over businesses like McDonald's turns over hamburgers," he said. "If I were 30 years old and starting a business in this town, I'd be on my way out."

"We're in business to make money... I should be the one to determine if my sign is hurting my business. This is my money I'm spending. This is my investment... I don't want to be regulated by a group of people who don't know anything about commercial business," he said.

Dick Crawford of Crawford's restaurant asked who should make a determination of what is best for a business owner: "Should he make it or should some Mickey-Mouse government?"

Bueter said the merchants have no problem with regulation, but they need some freedom within the regulations.

"I think we're hearing that loud and clear," Johnson said.

Several other issues were covered at the meeting, including an extra sign for stores with rear entrances, a proposed limit of 25 percent of window area being covered with signs, and whether ground signs should be encouraged over signs on poles.

In addition to the other limits, the proposed ordinance would greatly reduce the permitted size of signs in the city.

The officials worked through about six pages of the 20-page draft at Monday's meeting. This was the second study session on the proposal. A third is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, June 26.

The sign ordinance overhaul began at the planning commission over a year ago. A committee was formed and several drafts created.

The commission approved the current draft after a public hearing in February. The city council would have to hold another public hearing and vote on a draft before it would go into effect.

Taxpayers ask about government merger

Some services which the city provides are privately contracted in the township, Walters said. Trash pickup is a big expense, accounting for more than two mills of the city budget, he explained this week. Township residents must still dispose of their trash, but the cost does not show up in the tax rate, he explained.

In the township, Wayne County is responsible for snow plowing—which forces some areas to contract privately, Walters said. Snow removal is included in the city tax rate.

Walters also mentioned the city leaf removal service, which the township does not have. Other city services, such as maintenance of streets and public property, are done by the county in the township.

In addition, because of the formula agreed upon by both sides, city residents pay more than township residents for shared services like the library and recreation, Walters said.

Finally, the city has heavier local police patrols, although the township also has the Wayne County sheriff's department available.

When one resident at the budget hearing asked if a city/township merge had ever been considered, Mayor Chris Johnson said that township voters defeated annexation attempts twice.

Walters later recalled that both attempts came in the 1970s, and both would have made the township fall under the existing city government. That type of move is an annexation.

There is one other option, called consolidation, under which the two units would create an entirely new government with a new charter, Walters said.

Some of the residents at the meeting favored a consolidation with an organization more like the townships, presumably with a lower tax structure. A couple people said they could do with less local police protection. One resident said she would rather pay costs like trash collection in a separate payment than in property taxes.

Johnson said the two communities clearly have some common concerns, and the idea of consolidation could be taken up with township officials. However, he said, annexation would not be possible and would be seen as an unfriendly move.

Township Supervisor Georgina Goss agreed that annexation would indeed be seen as an unfriendly move. But consolidation might be a little different.

"My reaction is that we are definitely not interested in annexation. We have not really had any discussions on consolidation," Goss said.

She added that the township would listen to any consolidation proposals the city brought forward.

Walters said last week, "I certainly don't plan to" approach the township about consolidation. "I just don't think it's politically feasible at this point, because I don't think the township wants it."

He added that the votes in the 1970s showed a definite position among township residents: "I think it was a desire to keep the township structure and a rejection of going to a city structure."

Walters said the only two annexation attempts he remembers in the recent past were initiated by the affected property owners. "The city has never initiated, as far as I know, an annexation effort since the Novi Township annexation in the early 1960s," he said.

Strategic Planning

Plan goals include hefty price tag

By ANNE E. WILLIS

Strategies approved by the school board for the coming 1989-90 school year as part of the strategic plan will not come without a serious price tag.

The Board of Education approved Monday 17 action plans for the coming year. Of those 17, maintenance needs, land purchase, building construction costs and computer equipment will push up the price.

The overall costs of the 17 strategies is dependent on the choice made by the board between building a new middle school this year, or remodeling Cooke School as a middle school. That decision will be made later in the summer.

The estimated costs of the proposed strategies are as follows:

STRATEGY II — Developing and implementing facility plans to meet enrollment increases and aging physical plants.

• A-1: To increase middle school capacity to meet enrollment requirements in the 1990-91 school year. (To open Cooke school) Cost - $250-300,000.

To build a new maintenance facility (Cooke is the current maintenance facility and opening Cooke would mean all equipment would be moved out) Cost - $400,000

• A-2: To increase middle school capacity. (Build new middle school) Cost - $12-15 million.

Regardless of whether Cooke is reopened or a new middle school built, the strategy calls for the district to purchase a site big enough to hold both a new elementary school building and a middle school building — for construction in the near future as space diminishes in current buildings. Site acquisition cost - $1.5 million, for approximately 40-45 acres.

• B: To increase elementary school capacity of the district in 1993-94 school year. Cost of building new elementary school - $7 million.

• C: Capital expenditures plan — to repair aging buildings, roofs, update equipment, furniture, etc. Cost - $3.75-3.85 million.

STRATEGY III — To develop and implement plans to reduce stress created by overextended human resources.

• A: To improve class size where necessary. Cost - $10,000.

• B: To provide on-going formal programs for employee assistance/stress management. This plan is subject to grant approval. If the grant is approved the district will supplement with cost of $15,000.

STRATEGY IV — To develop and implement plans to serve students with special needs.

• A: To initiate an educational planning team in each building whose responsibility will be to identify and recommend programming or a course of action for students with special needs. Cost of study - $10,000.

STRATEGY V — To develop and implement plans to evaluate and improve community support.

• A: To establish a "Partnerships for Education Program" in the Northville Public Schools. This strategy is dependent on receiving a grant, cost if grant is approved would be $25,000.

STRATEGY VI — To develop plans to evaluate the high school program and implement appropriate changes.

• A: To develop a school day that increases course selection options for students. Cost - $5-6,000.

STRATEGY VII — To develop and implement plans to improve school climate.

• C: To promote a sense of community in Northville Public Schools through district-wide activities. Cost - $5,000.

STRATEGY VIII — To develop and implement plans to upgrade instructional equipment, materials and supplies.

• A: To implement computerized technology into the schools by integrating curriculum with technologically advanced computer equipment. Cost - $1.2 million.

• B: To establish a preventive maintenance program that will ensure that instructional equipment in the school district will be usable throughout the school year. Cost - $200,000.

• C: To improve school library/media programs. Cost - $315,000.

• D: To establish a funded schedule for updating/replacing existing instructional equipment. Cost - $1.5 million.

Approximate total cost for the 17 strategies if the board decides to reopen Cooke school to increase the middle school capacity would be $16.25 million.

Approximate total cost for the 17 strategies if the board decides to build a new middle school would be $27.5-30 million.

Volunteers needed to advise schools on issue

By ANNE E. WILLIS

In an effort to attain maximum community input before making a tough decision to either build or renovate a middle school, the school district is asking for more help from its residents.

In its Saturday study session, the board agreed that the best process to arrive at a decision on the critical question of whether to renovate Cooke School or begin building a new middle school, needed more input from residents — who will be faced with approving the money to do either.

Superintendent George Bell will put together a Blue Ribbon Committee to advise the board on the two middle school options. Any residents interested in working on the committee should contact Bell at 344-8440.

The committee will begin meeting in July, and Bell stressed that this would not be a long-term time commitment on the part of the volunteers.

A decision must be reached by mid-August for the board to put together the necessary bond issue election.

Build a school?

By ANNE E. WILLIS

To build — or not to build?

The tough question of whether a new middle school should be constructed beginning with the 1989-90 school year, or of renovating the existing Cooke School building, is squarely before the Northville School District.

One of the most challenging problems confronting the district following completion of the 17 strategies, is the problem associated with a growing school population.

The action plan committee charged with looking at facilities had the objective of assuring space for quality K-12 programs and maximizing the use of all existing schools through 1993-94.

The committee began by defining a school at maximum capacity if every class was utilized 100 percent of the day; space available for classroom teachers; shared space for special classes; no ancillary programs (defined as early childhood development, pre-primary impaired, and community education); and storage space for custodial maintenance only.

Workable capacity was defined as space for all K-12 classroom teachers; shared space for some special classes; shared space for ancillary programs, storage space for audio visual and custodial maintenance.

Ideal capacity was defined as a room for every K-12 teacher; space for ancillary programs and storage space for manipulatives, audio visual and custodial maintenance.

For the 1989-90 school year, Amerman, Winchester and Northville High School are considered to be at ideal capacity. Moraine and Silver Springs are considered at workable capacity. Meads Mill is considered at maximum capacity for the coming year.

By the 1991-92 school year the overall elementary school capacity is projected to be at the workable level and by 1993-94 Winchester is projected to be at maximum capacity.

If Cooke School is used beginning in the 1990-91 school year, projections are for both Meads Mill and Cooke to be at ideal capacity conditions. That will change in the following dilemma, Bell said the district will be faced with building a new elementary school by the year 1993-94.

He said the cost of a new elementary building will be around $7 million, while the cost of a new middle school will be about $12 — $15 million.

Besides the school building plans, Bell outlined numerous objectives proposed by the high school committee to improve Northville High.

Bell said the high school improvement committee will study the recommendations made by the strategic planning committee and will make a recommendation of which to implement.

Bell said if the objectives of all eight plans are accomplished and Cooke School is reopened, the total cost to the district will be $16.5 million.

He said if all objectives are completed and a new middle school is built, the cost to the district will be about $30.5 million.

Bell said the district can accomplish the building of a new school and the buying of equipment through a combination of short and long-term bonding.

"This has nothing to do with the people we'll need," Bell said, noting the district will have to hire new people for these project through its operating millage.

The Northville School District approved millage rate of 35.4 mills is set to expire in 1990-91 and Bell said the district will have to decide the rate renewal figure.

"These are big projects that will move Northville Schools into the year 2000," Bell said. "We want to provide the opportunity for Northville kids to be as well prepared as any other child in the country."

"If we implement this (strategic) plan, it will make a difference in the quality of life and education in Northville," he added.

"I am amazed at the breath and vision of the report. . . . This plan gives us a clear map for the future."

— James Petrie
School Board Vice President

The district began its Strategic Planning process in October of 1988. A core planning team was selected which evaluated and decided on beliefs, a mission statement, parameters and objectives. Strategies were developed to reach the objectives and over 200 community volunteers worked on action plan committees charged with developing plans for achieving the strategies.

Now that the board has approved those strategies the superintendent will assign members of the school administration to work on achieving them. Timetables will be determined and the first quarterly review of the progress of the plan will be made in October of 1990. The plan will be updated on a regular basis so that the district will always be planning ahead.

Schools outline parameters while working on five year strategic plan

In deciding on the objectives of the school district in planning for the next five years, the strategic planning committees had a set of parameters from which to work.

1. We will always provide for input from appropriate levels or segments of this school-community in the decision-making process.

2. We will not allow expenses to exceed revenues.

3. We will always maintain physical assets of the district in a safe and workable condition.

4. All proposals for new programs or services must clearly demonstrate that benefits exceed costs, contain provisions for necessary staff training and include procedures for evaluation.

5. We will always give funding priority to the K-12 program.

6. We will always maintain an up-to-date Strategic Plan.

7. We will not adopt any new program which is inconsistent with the Strategic Plan.

from the new subdivisions, including street lighting, are not a good reason for the higher taxes. "I don't believe you're incurring those kinds of expenses," he said. "They're not real expenses. I don't see them."

Council Member Paul Folino said a new resident can live in the city for over a year before being taxed for the city services.

Walters said the new subdivisions may not have been major expenses yet, but that the street lighting, for example, is supposed to start this summer. The new budget year — the one under discussion recently — starts July 1.

The officials also said that the city budget is not the only destination for local property tax dollars. City Manager Steve Walters said the city accounts for roughly 25 percent of the total tax bill, with the Northville School District getting the largest share. Other taxing units include the counties, Schoolcraft College and the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

The wide-ranging discussion touched on several other issues, including the status of the city street repair program and whether higher commercial assessments are appropriate downtown.

Under the new budget, the city will take in about 4 percent more tax money from existing property than it did last year. "The basic problem we're facing is that while we're projecting the property tax increase at 4 percent, other revenue sources are declining," Walters said.

Since commercial property assessments rose more than residential, the actual dollar increase for homeowners will average around 6 percent, Walters estimates.

Wayne and Oakland counties do the actual assessments. The city is considering hiring an outside firm for commercial assessments.

Along with the tax increase, the city is requiring budget cuts of a little more than 1 percent from the general fund.

"I don't want you to think we've gone through this budget frivolously at all," Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers said. "We do our homework as best we can."

Schools address funding

By ANNE E. WILLIS

"It's all contingent on money."

That was the bottomline given by Superintendent of Schools George Bell during a Saturday study session with members of the Northville Board of Education.

On Saturday, June 10, the board discussed the 17 strategies presented by the eight strategic planning committees, and one of the two major topics of conversation concerned funding of the program.

Several major parts of the plan call for large expenditures of money. To come up with the necessary money, the committee charged with "aggressively pursuing increased funding" determined that holding a successful bond issue election in the 1989-90 school year to fund facilities and maintenance recommendations, was the route to go.

How large a bond issue the district will seek from voters, has yet to be determined. The board approved the concept of an election in the 1989-90 school year for a bond issue — but not the exact amount. How much will be necessary will be dependent on several things — one big one being whether Cooke School is renovated as a middle school, or a new middle school building constructed (see related story).

The Northville School District Strategic Plan 1989-1994 decided several key issues, all of which are based on gaining the necessary funding.

The facilities committee broke down into two subcommittees, one dealing with maintenance — or the study of the aging physical plants; and two, enrollment, charged with planning for the increased student populations affecting the schools now and projected for the future.

The maintenance portion of the plan calls for a ranked capital expenditure plan and allocation of funds for capital repair and replacement.

The enrollment portion calls for acquisition of land for building a new elementary school and middle school — based on already high enrollments and projected increases.

Another large expenditure is called for in the area of increasing the technology of the Northville Schools. The committee charged with upgrading instructional equipment and supplies noted that the "Northville School District is presently so far behind other districts and the society around us in technology that attention is needed immediately."

The committee recommended a minimal equipment purchase to maintain the following:

One computer per classroom district-wide; one computer lab per elementary school; Media Center computers based on the information in "Information Power: Guidelines for School Library Media Programs"; three middle school computer labs for word processing, computer-aided instruction and computer function instruction; upgrading of the high school computer lab; and a high school Computer-Aided Design system for graphic arts.

In addition to the bond election this year, the district will be facing a millage election the following year. Bell pointed out that the bond issue will cover facilities and capital expenditures — but increases in personnel and operating costs are millage expenses.

The district will be levying 30.5 mills in the coming year. It is authorized to levy up to 35.4 mills, with voter approval. That millage will have to be voted on before July 1, 1991.

Part of the increased funding effort strategies accepted by the board for immediate implementation, was one which seeks to improve, through diversification, the tax base of the Northville School District. The board hopes to improve cooperation and communication between the district and both the township and the city, regarding plans for future developments.

The committee compared the percentage of property tax base for surrounding school districts with that of Northville. The comparison showed that 76 percent of all property tax collected in Northville comes from residential land; 16 percent is from commercial and industrial land; 2 percent from agricultural, and 6 percent is personal.

In neighboring Novi 43.3 percent is collected from residential land; 45.7 percent comes from commercial and industrial land. Livonia has a 60 percent residential rate and 26 percent collected from commercial and industrial land. Farmington Hills collects 76 percent from residential and 16 percent from commercial and industrial.

The strategy of diversification calls for discussions between the board and the municipalities, particularly Northville Township, about the mutual benefits derived from increased office/commercial/light industrial development.

It also calls for continued information to district residents about how the Northville Public Schools are funded, and how an improved tax base will benefit both the schools and the community.

Schools to ponder new facility

ing year when both schools are projected to be at workable capacity.

The committee came to the conclusion two possible plans could be considered for the overcrowding at Meads Mill.

The first plan would renovate Cooke School and would make use of all existing classroom space in the school district. However, if Cooke School were used as a middle school, that would gradually eliminate the ancillary (early childhood development, pre-primary impaired, community education) and community programs (senior citizens center, Civic Concern, Youth Assistance, Co-op Preschool, Community Commission on Drug Abuse) currently using or planned for housing in Cooke School.

In addition, the operations functions would have to be moved out of their current space in Cooke and a new maintenance building built.

This option still calls for building a new middle school building in 1994-95 to meet projected increases.

The second option would be to build a middle school by 1992-93 school year, meaning work would begin toward that in the 1989-90 school year. This option would allow continued operations facilities at Cooke; it would allow for a "state-of-the-art" middle school to be designed to the district's award winning middle school program; it would continue to allow space for early childhood development, Community Program on Drug Abuse, Civic Concern, Northville Youth Assistance, Co-op Preschool and Senior Citizens Center.

The new building would not be ready for the 1991-92 school year, however, so students would have to be moved to temporary quarters of some kind for that year.

The difference in price between the two options is considerable. The first plan for renovation of Cooke School would cost approximately $250,000,000 plus a cost of about $400,000 for a new maintenance facility.

The new middle school option would cost $12-15 million, without including the cost of site acquisition.

A citizen committee is being organized by Superintendent George Bell to advise the board on the community response to the two options.

Our Opinion

Strategic Plan needs community involvement

Planning for the future is not an easy task. The Northville School District recently received some necessary help from community members as it began a visionary look five years into its future.

The Strategic Plan for the district was adopted Monday by the Board of Education. The amount of time and commitment put into the plan by members of the community and employees of the school district was truly amazing. The comprehensive job done by these volunteers deserves praise by everyone in the community.

But like most plans, the Strategic Plan for the Northville School District is nothing without action. The action plan committees laid out specific, definable goals for the coming school year. These goals involve some comprehensive reorganizations of people, equipment and facilities. They also call for some large outlays of money for capital equipment (computers), maintenance and repair work (roofs, carpets) and for new schools.

These are large plans and will require an equally large commitment on the part of Northville voters if the proposed bond issue (and subsequent millage vote) are accepted as routes to fund them. As anyone who has watched the school elections in surrounding communities knows, that is by no means a certainty these days.

While the acceptance of the Strategic Plan may be viewed by some as an ending point, in many ways the work is just beginning for the whole community. The big questions — such as whether to build a new middle school or to renovate Cooke School, and whether the bond issue should be passed — will require a knowledgeable and active voting public.

Superintendent of Schools George Bell has called for the formation of a blue-ribbon advisory committee made up of community volunteers to look at the middle school question before the board makes a decision on renovation or construction. The issue is complex and has serious political and economic consequences, and Bell and the school board are wise to ask for as much community input as possible before deciding. Recent events in the Troy school district regarding the building of a new high school can't help but make people cautious.

We urge people to call Bell at 344-8440 to get involved on the committee. This is an opportunity for those who don't usually get involved in school questions — but do pay taxes — to take a serious look at the issue. This committee should have more of the 'devil's advocate' volunteers than school boosters. When it comes to spending money, when it comes to raising taxes — and when it comes to the quality of our schools — every effort to examine the issue and make sure all questions have been nailed down, should be made.

If the plan is good it will stand up to tough questions. And if there are weak points — the time to find them is before the vote.

The community should not overlook the many strategies in the Strategic Plan that do not have a price tag attached. The plan calls for a reorganization of the high school day, a "Partnership in Education" program, and much more. The plan makes sure that aggressive accounting and budgeting methods will be used and that every effort to secure grants and other outside funding will be made.

The plan makes good reading and everyone in the Northville Public School District — with or without children in the schools — should take the time to look this over. Much of the future of the schools and individual taxes will be decided with this plan. Copies are available at each school office and at the Board of Education offices on Main Street and may be checked out.

Taxes need early input

It was interesting to note that some residents attended the public hearing on the Northville city budget, and raised some strong objections to their tax bills. The give-and-take between the taxpayers and the council members was a wide-ranging and interesting discussion, even exploring the idea of consolidating city and township governments.

We're not about to go into the consolidation question, not at this point. But the Northville tax revolt took an interesting stance. It would be nice if they had made it a little bit sooner.

It is very difficult to gauge public opinion as a whole from the few people who might attend a city council meeting. Are most residents in the city satisfied with the city tax and spending structure, and so did not see a need to attend? Or are the few who showed up just the tip of the iceberg, indicating a vast reserve of strong anti-tax sentiment in the city?

No one may ever know for sure. But whether or not those people are an indication of something bigger, their position deserved attention. In essence, they told the council that yes, indeed, they were willing to see cuts in city services in exchange for holding the line on taxes.

This was a thought the council members never really addressed in their budget deliberations. Cutting city services seemed to be almost seen as taboo. The idea of laying off a police officer arose at one point, but the administration recommended against it and the council quickly rejected it.

We agreed, and still do agree, with that approach. Taxes in the city are high, but they've helped make Northville what it is. People buying homes here know, or should know, what their taxes are going to be like. Long-term residents had no way of knowing how their taxes would rise, but they've had years to protest to the officials. The quality of services, the quality of life, has been the primary concern.

Maybe things are different now. This could be the breaking point, as the people recently suggested. If so, however, they missed the boat.

The budget hearing is, of necessity, basically a formality. By that time, the council has made its decisions. The nitty-gritty work on the budget came weeks before that, in a series of special budget sessions. At those all-important meetings, the only one in attendance not connected with city government was the Northville Record reporter.

If the idea of major budget cuts was to be seriously examined, it needed to come up long before it actually did. And many more people needed to make their feelings known. If the sentiment truly exists, the lesson should be learned for next year.

Cady concerns

By Bob Needham

The future of the "Cady Street Corridor," the area just below Main between Center and Griswold, has been a topic of discussion ever since I started this job more than two years ago. In the past few months the talk has become progressively more interesting, with a formal study of the area's future nearing completion.

Before long, the city planning consultants expect to release a recommended plan to develop the East Cady Street area over the next five to 20 years. Just to get in on the fun, and because absolutely no one asked me, I thought I'd offer my two cents on things I think ought to happen with Cady. Things like:

- A nice city park is vital. Aside from the small number of stores, the only weakness of downtown Northville is the lack of a treed, grassy park. The Town Square Park with the bandshell is a nice resource, but it's just not the same thing as a place where people can bring a picnic lunch or take the kids for a break from a shopping trip. The area behind the library is not close enough and is more lawn than park anyway. Think about Kellogg Park in Plymouth and Shain Park in Birmingham. They are absolutely key to the success of those downtowns. The Cady study seems to be moving toward the idea of some smaller, open plaza areas, but a full-fledged park has not really been discussed. It ought to be.

- More stores, as many as possible. Downtown's current retail offerings are great, but there just isn't enough diversity to provide a sustained attraction. The emphasis on Cady ought to be stores much more than offices or any other use. The study, I think, will say basically the same thing. If enough space is available — dare we even think it? — maybe the dime store might come back.

- The study proposes a "green belt" — that's a strip of grass, not something you wear with a leisure suit — along the east side of Center for the half-block above Cady. This would, I think, be a mistake. Center needs as much retail frontage as possible to encourage shoppers to walk between Main and Cady. The sheer, almost windowless faces of the Masonic Temple and the Fraternal Order of Eagles hall make that link difficult from the start. Other pedestrian links between Main and Cady, emphasized in the study, will also be important.

- The corridor clearly must provide additional parking. But the form of this parking is a vital concern. I think the city ought to go to great pains, including moving the street, to hide the parking as much as possible behind the stores. A lot or deck with direct access to the street might be a little more convenient — just a little — but it will be a lot uglier. A deck stretching across the street, which has been discussed, would be a real drawback to pedestrian shoppers no matter how well it's done. Again, Northville could take its cue from Plymouth, where the downtown parking deck is hidden very well but still gets lots of use.

- The study may not address architecture, but I really hope the city encourages a continuation of the Main Street look on Cady. The classic, small-town downtown theme really ought to be maintained, even to the point of copying authentic building plans.

- Long-term, the study may suggest "destination commercial" businesses along a new street connecting Center and Griswold, sweeping through the Northville Downs parking lot or even the grandstand. I think such a street is a very long way off; the track's $2-million renovation program shows that it is going to be around for a while. If the new street ever does materialize, I don't think destination commercial is the right thing to put there, especially not with the suggested parking in front. These businesses are a specific destination, like a video store, rather than a place to stop while wandering through town. If they belong in downtown Northville, they can move in anywhere. They don't need a designated area, and they certainly are no reason to abandon the city policy against front-yard parking.

After the fact

I tried to put one over on her. But it didn't work.

I hatched the little plot after reading that the musical revue "Oba, Oba" would be playing at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit for several weeks.

I don't know how much you know about "Oba, Oba," but it has enjoyed some popularity in New York and it's supposed to be a fun show to see. Plus we haven't been out by ourselves in some time, so I decided to ask if she'd like to go see whatever was playing at the Fisher.

"It's been a long time since we've done anything special," I said solicitously. "Waddaya say we go out Saturday night . . . head down to the Fisher and see whatever's playing?

Sounded good, didn't it? Something a caring husband would propose.

"Isn't that musical revue from Brazil playing at the Fisher right now?" she asked.

"Geez, I'm not sure," I lied. "But now that you mention it, I think you're right. I think it's called 'Oba, Oba.'"

"And isn't that the revue that all the reviewers are calling 'Sexy, Sexy, Sexy?'" she asked. "And isn't that the revue that has all the scantily clad women with the gorgeous bodies running around the stage in not a whole lot more than G-strings?" she asked, already knowing the answer.

"Geez, I'm not sure," I mumbled, attempting to sound innocent.

"But it also has a lot of scantily clad men with gorgeous bodies running around the stage in not a whole lot more than G-strings," she continued.

"Ya know what," she added, "a trip to the Fisher might be a lot of fun. I'll order the tickets right now."

Leave auto racing to the Grand Prix

To the Editor:

This upcoming weekend, Detroit hosts the Grand Prix on its downtown streets. Fortunately, the Grand Prix is not held and never will be on the Rayson/Horton curve in Cabbage Town (even though some driver's think so with the new pavement).

There are prizes and trophies for top speeds obtained by the Grand Prix Winners. There are only losers, humiliation, guilt and jail sentences for the speeding drivers who carelessly race down our streets. (I doubt a dead child run over on his big wheel would be much of a trophy to anyone trying to save a few precious seconds of time.)

Leave the racing downtown for the professionals. Make our neighborhood streets safe for our children by reducing the speed of vehicles on our streets. Children play in our neighborhoods, walk to school and friend's homes on our sidewalks and cross our streets frequently. Let's look carefully, stop at posted stop signs and keep our speeds down.

Many of the employees have worked in the bar/restaurant business for 20 years and more, and none of us have ever worked in a cleaner, more above-board operation.

The Starting Gate Saloon is geared toward a family clientele, and there are no drugs (or any other illegal activity) tolerated.

The unfortunate incident involving a former waitress should have no reflection on the owners and management of The Starting Gate.

Aolescent contracts help discipline kids

This is another in the continuing series of columns written for the Record by Mary Ellen King, Director of Northville Youth Assistance.

Many of the parents I interview tell me that they are at the end of their rope with their kids. They state that they have tried every type of disciplining technique with their kids and nothing seems to work. In most cases the problem is that the parents are not consistent with their discipline. Also, on many occasions, the parents use grounding which can lead to inconsistent enforcement.

A 15-year-old girl told me that she was grounded for four weeks because she did not keep her room clean. The dad said that after 1 1/2 weeks his daughter badgered and hounded him so much that he finally relented and let her go out with her friends. The parents wanted this girl to learn that a clean room was important to them. Instead the girl learned that she could get her own way. The parents' goal was not accomplished.

In most instances grounding does not work with teenagers. After a day or so the adolescent does not remember what they did to cause the grounding and the parents are very frustrated because they are living with a person who is jailed up.

A technique that I have found that works well with many teenagers is having the parents and the teenager work together on a "Home Contract". By using a contract the parents are better able to be consistent and teenagers know exactly what is expected of them. There is no guessing game on either the part of the teenager or parents.

A contract is written to meet the requirements of the family. An example of contract areas are: Safe places in my community I can go, curfew hours and jobs to be done around the house. A contract could read as follows:

These are safe places in my community where I may go, remembering to get my parents' permission - list five or six places.

These are dangerous places for me and I will NOT go there - list five or six places.

If I go to any of the above dangerous places for me, I will tell my parents and take the following consequences - list three consequences.

For a curfew a contract can be written as follows:

These are the time limits I am setting for myself: I will be in the house at x p.m. on weekdays. I will be in the house at x p.m. on weekends. If I am irresponsible and do not follow these limits: I will tell my parents and take the following consequences - list three consequences.

It is important to reward positive behavior so I recommend adding something like the following statement: If I am responsible and follow these time limits faithfully for one week, I may earn one extra half hour of time added to my curfew. I can continue to enjoy the new curfew time as long as I am punctual in coming home.

The contract should be formally written. The parents and teen must sign it and agree to adhere to the guidelines. It is of utmost importance that both the parents and the teenagers have input into writing the contract. If the parents write it and hand it to the teen it will probably not be as effective and the teen may become resentful that they have less control of their life.

Friends of Library appeal to township and city for much needed storage space

By BOB NEEDHAM
and BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The Friends of the Northville Library need some space, and if they don't find it, their popular used book sales might come to an end.

The group can't seem to find anywhere to store books they will use for the sales. An appeal to the city council last week brought no immediate solutions, and an appearance before the township board did little to help the situation either.

"We just feel we need some help. We've looked around, and we don't seem to have any answers," Friends member Geraldine Mills told the council Tuesday, May 30.

Northville Schools Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton said the district is looking for space for the Friends. Knighton said all the classrooms at Cooke are being used, but he added the district is hopeful that they'll find something accessible to the library group.

"This won't be the same type of space as before," Knighton said. "We're hoping that we can find them something."

He added the district will offer space to the Friends as soon as they identify available space.

Until about two years ago, the Friends were sharing a small storage room in the city hall building with the police department. That arrangement ended when the police needed to use the room as a changing room.

From there, the book storage moved to an empty classroom at Cooke School. The city's department of public works took books from the library to the school, and back to the library at sale time.

Now, however, programs moving from Moraine School to Cooke will force the Friends out of their room. Books are set to be stored temporarily at Northville Downs, but the group seeks a permanent solution.

Book sales have raised $5,881 in the last three years. The Friends have also contributed more than $21,000 in goods and services to the library.

A letter to the city council reads: "In view of this extraordinary service to the community through contributions of goods and services to the library, the Friends are asking ... for assistance in identifying a convenient, heated storage area for books to be sorted and sold so that they may continue this worthwhile endeavor, an endeavor too valuable to be discontinued."

At the council meeting, city officials said they had no answers, but agreed to again ask the school district for any available space.

Friends President Rosemary Mentag said the group had been to the schools, the race track, the Michigan Association of Gift Salesmen, the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital and the Northville Community Recreation Department.

"We're just going to have to discontinue it" if no solution is found, she said.

The council took no vote recently, but informally agreed to ask school officials for another look.

Meanwhile, the township board voted last week to have interim business manager Richard Henningsen write a letter to the Northville School District inquiring on available space for the library group.

"I am writing a letter to Superintendent George Bell to see if they can give any space to the Friends of the Library," Henningsen said.

No decision yet on group home licensing

There is still no decision on whether to issue a license for a proposed group home in the City of Northville, a state official said Monday.

Jim Quigley, assistant director of the Department of Social Services' Adult Foster Care Licensing Division, said Monday that the proposed Northville home is a week-to-week issue.

"It really depends on the facility and when they are able to have the contractors complete all the necessary improvements," Quigley said. Those are mostly for barrier-free access to the home.

A license might be issued at any time, Quigley said. The DSS is in charge of licensing adult foster care group homes.

The home would house four adults with developmental disabilities at 20415 Lexington, in the Lexington Commons subdivision. The city and the local neighborhood association have opposed the home, saying that the concentration of similar facilities in the area is too high and that the home will cost too much. The DSS rejected both arguments as reasons for denying the license.

The neighborhood association has also said the home would adversely affect some residents with developmental disabilities already living in the neighborhood, while a mental health advocacy group has called the association's position a possible violation of the federal Fair Housing Act.

Developmental disabilities are mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy and autism.

Township reaps surplus in 1988 audit

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Northville Township's recently released final audit report for the 1988 budget year indicates the township had a surplus of $82,726.

"You're operating in a solvent manner and your record is in good shape," said Ken Kunkel of Plante and Moran, the firm which conducted an independent audit of the township's budget.

"What happened during last year is pretty much what you expected," Kunkel told board members.

Township Deputy Clerk Eunice Switzler said conducting an independent audit is part of section 42.30 of the state's Charter Township Act.

Switzler said Northville Township conducts an audit of their accounts every year in accordance with the act.

According to Kunkel's report, the township budgeted $2,555,444 for expenditures in 1988, while in actuality only spent $2,540,004.

Township Financial Director James Graham said the largest area of savings occurred in the fire department, where over $9,000 of the $253,674 budgeted for 1988 went unspent.

As for revenues, the township anticipated raising $2,372,292 for 1988, but in fact made $2,439,578, a difference of over $67,000.

Graham said the increase in expected revenue for 1988 came from a number of different areas including: $22,000 from township administrative fees for planning and zoning; $10,000 from insurance refunds; $10,000 miscellaneous services; $3,000 on interest on general fund accounts and another $3,000 from parking fines.

Graham said the excess money gathered from increased revenues and from expenditures will be placed into the township's fund balance, which totaled $422,279 at the end of 1988.

"We ended up in good shape taking everything into account," Graham said. "But without the passage of the police millage (last November) we would have soon run out of funds."

Kunkel noted to board members that despite the positive balance in 1988, the township will not be able to afford any major capital improvements through its general fund.

"If you want to make major capital improvements you'd probably have to work out some sort of millage vote to do it," Kunkel said.

He added the rate structure and benefit package associated with the township's impending sewer project "look adequate to cover sewer costs down the road."

City police union wants arbitration

Labor talks between a police union and the City of Northville are stalled, and the union has filed for arbitration.

The city and the Northville Command Officers Association have not been able to reach agreement on a contract, representatives of both sides said recently.

The state department of labor appointed a mediator to try bringing the two sides to an agreement. Those efforts have now broken off.

Arbitration is a more compulsory form of negotiations than mediation. Both sides must agree on the person who will act as arbitrator, and both sides must abide by the arbitrator's decisions.

The city council met in a closed session recently to hear about progress on the negotiations.

The closed session "was essentially reporting the results of our mediation and the fact that we did not reach an agreement," City Manager Steve Walters said. "We're obviously not close (to an agreement), or this would not have happened."

Walters would not specify the disagreements between the city and the union, but said generally the question is money.

"All the issues are economic," he said. "There's no agreement on any item at this point."

David Fendelet, vice president of the Northville Command Officers Association, said the union has three concerns more important than the others: "We're talking about wages, retirement, on-duty disability. Those

"There's no agreement on any item at this point."

— Steve Walters

are probably the three big ones."

However, there are several other issues outstanding, Fendelet added.

The union decided to file for arbitration a couple of weeks ago. However, the arbitration hearings are not likely to start for quite a while. Fendelet said a date to start the negotiations probably will not be set for "a good 90 days."

Getting the city and the union to agree on an arbitrator takes some time, in addition to the other necessary preparation.

The Northville Command Officers Association represents seven members of the Northville Police Department who have supervisory responsibilities.

Last November, the local union voted to affiliate with the Command Officers Association of Michigan. The vote in favor of affiliating was five to one.

Victorian era info is ready

Okay — so you're all hyped up about Northville's first Victorian Festival this fall, but you just don't know enough about the era.

You can recognize a Victorian home easily enough, especially when there's a date plaque to help you out. And maybe you've got some idea of what Victorian dress looks like. But when it comes to actually making the appropriate Victorianwear, you're at a loss.

The Northville Public Library can help.

In preparation for the festival Sept. 15-17, the library has a selection of costume books, period catalogs and actual clothing patterns available for short-term loans. The material is the property of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the festival and has lent the material to the library.

Among the items available at the library are:

- Catalogs, including "American Dress Patterns," 1873-1909, Bloomington's, 1886, and "Past Patterns."
- Envelopes describing adults' and children's clothing including drawings by local artist Caroline Dunphy.

Elia Nickelas and Steve Ryeson display a Greek salad at the Highland House

Home cookin' Highland House sticks to the basics

By LISA FELICELLI

Management of the Highland House adheres to three simple rules: provide friendly and efficient service, offer good food at a reasonable price and keep the place clean.

But despite this simplicity, the family-run restaurant is a reflection of the staff's hard work, team effort and enthusiasm.

"We follow a basic plan, but have over 70 people working here to carry it out," said Elia Nickolas, part-owner of Highland House, which is located at 2630 East Highland Road in Highland Township.

Conscientious waitresses, bartenders, pizza-makers, buspersons, cooks, maintenance people and salad-makers all contribute to Highland House's popularity, Nickolas said. So does the fact that the restaurant is family-owned and managed.

In 1975, Nicholas' father Tom and cousin Gene Ryeson bought the 13-year-old restaurant and, when it opened in 1976, unveiled its current name. However, Highland House may be remembered by many as the White Swan, or the White Duck with a large chicken on its roof.

"While back the restaurant was Nick's Big Platter," Nicholas explained. "It was more of a truck stop back then, and Nick would serve home-cooked meals with mashed potatoes and gravy. We took off the chicken, but we've stuck to the home-cooked meals."

Highland House specializes in Greek salads, ribs, pasta and fresh fish, but the establishment serves a variety of dishes.

"The restaurant is geared toward casual family dining, so we like to appeal to everyone's individual tastes," Nicholas said.

Highland House also features croissants, hamburgers, baby beef liver and onions, sandwiches and four homemade desserts: cheesecake, mud pie, rice pudding and turtle pie.

The warm rustic decor and casual, friendly atmosphere of Highland House draws diners from throughout the region, including Milford, South Lyon, Northville, Dearborn, Livonia and Brighton.

"Whenever there's a big game — the Pistons, MSU (Michigan State University), U of M (University of Michigan in Ann Arbor) and so forth — we switch on the big screen TV and turn the chairs around," Nicholas said. "The restaurant seats about 300, so things gets pretty crazy sometimes."

He notes that when the home team is winning, the customers are eating, drinking and having a great time.

The 'Sports Room' is a popular stopping off place for visitors at the Highland House restaurant

When the home team is down, everybody is a bit more subdued.

"So we really cheer on the home team," Nicholas grinned. "Everybody has a better time when we're ahead."

Sports memorabilia is a big attraction at the Highland House. In addition to a large family dining room and what Nicholas termed the "party room" — an area set aside for banquets, engagements, receptions and other big get-togethers — the restaurant has its own "sports room."

Steve Ryeson, Gene's brother and also part-owner of the restaurant, brought his unique sports memorabilia collection to the Highland House where customers can enjoy it.

"He's one of the country's top sports memorabilia collectors," Nicholas said. "He's been picking up different things for years."

Highland House's Sports Room walls are covered with over 100 historic framed photographs of a variety of athletes, including baseball player Ted Williams. Steve's hand-blown, self-painted baseballs are also on display in a large glass case.

"High school sports teams like to have their banquets here and often drop in before or after their games for pizza," Nicholas said. "It's a good atmosphere."

Milford and Lakeland High School athletes apparently are not the only customers who think so. Former New York Yankee baseball players Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford dined at Highland House and signed a menu, which is now framed and on exhibit beside a personalized gold record Frank Sinatra sent the four Highland House owners.

"It's an interesting assortment," Nicholas said with a smile.

Nicholas said there are no plans to expand Highland House because the restaurant currently seats 300 customers. He added that the four owners are considering opening a Highland House carryout in downtown Milford.

"We already have one that opened a year ago in Waterford's Atlas Plaza," Nicholas said. "It's been successful, so we're thinking about the possibility of adding another in Milford."

The proposed carryout would feature, in addition to other menu items, gourmet pizza, ribs and Greek salad. It would seat approximately 20 people and be operated by a family member.

"Steve's son Ted and Gene's son Rob work at Highland House now, as well as my mother, Despina," Nicholas said. "One of us would take care of the business over there if we decide to go through with the idea."

Meanwhile, the family will continue to run Highland House.

"We all pretty much think the same as far as business and management goes, so we rarely run into problems," Nicholas said. "It's like working with your best friends."

Schoolcraft program assists businesses

When the Business Development Center Procurement Assistance Program at Schoolcraft College worked on getting the United States Army to change its requirements for buying pizza, the results allowed Little Caesar's Corporation to compete more effectively on overseas pizza contracts.

Since the Business Development Center opened its doors in 1985, it has assisted 910 firms in securing 941 government contracts valued at $86,795,629.

Through its efforts, it have also created 789 jobs.

Although there are 20 similar programs around the state, Schoolcraft College is the first and only community college which assists companies in securing government contracts. The college's Business Development Center has been recognized as the state's most productive program by the Michigan Department of Commerce. In the most recent report, the Center provided 25 percent of all contracts awarded by the state. These results have been recognized by the Federal Government and the State of Michigan. As a result, the College's Business Development Center has been rewarded with more dollars in grants than any program in the state.

A number of companies have taken advantage of the customized training offered by the Center, and numerous classes have been designed for firms which want to upgrade employee skills. A customized management training program complete with a training kitchen has been developed for Little Caesar's Corporation.

Qualified unemployed persons will be given training scholarships and be hired by the corporation following successful completion of the program. All internal management staff and franchisees will receive training as well.

Among the many services the Center offers, the procurement staff will also mail or fax information to anyone interested in the services or products the state is planning to purchase. Through this service, the Center can assist hundreds of firms in bidding on State of Michigan contracts that they otherwise would not have been aware of.

The Center recently created a program to assist firms in implementing the new Drug-free Workplace Act. Because this act affects all government contractors, the Center is responsible for training all other state procurement center personnel as well.

Despite its success, the Center is always looking at other ways to expand its services. An export assistance program is in the planning stage. This program should surpass all of its ventures to date. The biggest challenge the Center faces is obtaining the money and space needed to accommodate this growth.

Tax tips for the 'sandwich generation'

Pat and Jim earn substantial salaries as managers in a Fortune 500 firm. Still, they are having a hard time making ends meet.

The reason for their financial hardship is easy to pinpoint. A large portion of the couple's income goes toward supporting their two children as well as Pat's elderly mother.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, Pat and Jim are struggling with the realities of being part of "the sandwich generation," middle-aged adults who are financially responsible for both their children and their parents.

With the aging of the "baby boomers," who represent about one-third of today's U.S. population, the size of the sandwich generation is bound to expand dramatically.

If you are already "stuck in the middle," you can alleviate the financial pressures of supporting two generations by sharing responsibilities with other family members and by taking advantage of numerous tax provisions.

HIRE A FAMILY MEMBER AS A CARETAKER: If you pay someone to take care of an elderly parent or a young child while you and your spouse work, why not hire another non-dependent family member?

For instance, Bob and Sue hired Bob's father to watch their 2-year-old twins. As a result, the couple not only saves several thousand dollars in day-care fees, but can also claim the dependent-care tax credit — worth as much as $720 for two qualified dependent and $1,440 for two or more.

Remember, if you hire a non-dependent relative as caretaker, you must pay him or her a reasonable wage. In addition, at the end of the year you must supply the paid relative (or any other paid caretaker) with a W-2 form listing his or her annual wages.

Money Management

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF YOUR DEPENDENT EXEMPTIONS: You can claim an exemption for any dependent relative, whether a child or a parent, as long as you provide more than half of his or her annual support — including housing, food, clothing, medical and dental expenses.

Don't underestimate the value of your exemptions. For each qualified dependent you claim, you can generally deduct $2,000 from your taxable income. If you are in the 28 percent tax bracket, that translates into a tax savings of $560 for each exemption.

CPAs point out that you may still be able to claim a parent as a dependent if you and your siblings share the costs for at least one-half of his or her annual support — and no one person provides more than half the support. To be eligible for the exemption, you must provide more than 10 percent of your parent's support. In addition, everyone providing more than 10 percent of your parent's total support must agree in writing on who claims the tax exemption in any particular year.

BUY YOUR PARENTS' HOME: Is your parents' life savings invested in their home? If so, by buying their home you can help convert their house into a source of income.

Let's look at an example. Tom's parents, Sara and Jim, were barely subsisting on a small pension and Social Security. Luckily, their house originally purchased for $50,000, had a market value of $175,000. At the advice of his CPA, Tom bought his parents' home and then began charging them a reasonable rent. Sara and Jim were able to collect the proceeds from the sale of the house tax-free by claiming the $125,000 once-in-a-lifetime exclusion from gain, a provision reserved solely for taxpayers who are at least 55 years old.

By carefully investing the $175,000, Tom's parents can be assured of a steady income for the rest of their lives.

At the same time, Tom now owns a rental property and is eligible for a host of valuable tax breaks, such as property tax and depreciation deductions. Moreover, since Tom's adjusted gross income is less than $100,000, he can deduct up to $25,000 in passive rental real estate losses.

OPEN A TRUST FOR YOUR PARENTS: Another way to provide aging parents with income is through an irrevocable trust (in which you give up all rights to the trust funds). In an irrevocable trust, the trust money is taxed to the trust itself at a rate of 15 percent on the $5,000 of income and 28 percent on any additional income. If these rates are lower than your own tax bracket, an irrevocable trust may be one way to give your parents more money than you may be able to afford otherwise.

BUY NURSING HOME INSURANCE: According to a congressional subcommittee on aging, 70-80 percent of nursing home residents deplete their funds and are forced onto welfare a year or so after being admitted. If you anticipate that a parent may have to live in a nursing home in the near future, now is the time to explore nursing home or long-term-care insurance. Depending on the individual policy, the insurance will cover all or a portion of the daily expense.

Approximately 70 commercial insurers and seven Blue Cross plans currently offer long-term-care insurance. You can obtain the names of companies selling these policies in Michigan by writing to the Health Insurance Association, 1001 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20004.

SHIFT INCOME TO YOUR CHILDREN: By shifting income to your children, you can reduce your overall tax burden and save for your children's educational expenses at the same time.

Transfer just enough income-producing assets, such as a CD, to give each child under age 14 a maximum of $1,000 in unearned income. The assets must actually be in the children's name. If they are, your children will pay taxes on only $500 of the unearned income at a rate that will probably be much lower than yours.

But be warned: any unearned income over $1,000 will be taxed at your highest marginal rate. (For children 14 or older, unearned income is taxed at their own rate, usually 15 percent.)

For more information on how tax laws can help minimize the expenses of supporting children and elderly parents, consult a CPA. He or she should be able to help you get out of the pickle of being a member of the sandwich generation.

HECs offer assistance for house-rich seniors

What if a senior citizen can no longer afford to live in his or her home even though the mortgage has been paid off?

For those who are house-rich but cash-poor, a Home Equity Conversion (HEC) may be the answer. With HECs, consumers can supplement their incomes by tapping into their home equity.

HECs are not the same as home equity loans. With home equity loans, the consumer receives a lump sum of money and then pays back the loan in monthly installments. On the other hand, with HECs, the consumer may receive a lump sum or monthly payments, but not make any repayment on the loan until the note is due. In one plan, the lender collects the money when the house is eventually sold.

HECs are offered by state and local government agencies, banks, savings and loans associations, and mortgage banks. Currently HECs are not available in every state, but that may be changing. This spring, the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) will begin insuring mortgages made by private lending institutions. This may encourage these lenders to develop reverse-mortgage programs.

There are many types of HEC plans. Carefully choose the one that meets both current and future needs. For example, one plan provides a one-time lump sum to pay for a home repair.

Another is an annual loan to pay for property taxes. Seniors may also opt to sell the home and remain living in it, receiving the down payment and monthly purchase payment from the buyer.

The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) offers a free publication on home equity conversions. To receive a copy, write to Home-Made Money, AARP Fulfillment, P.O. Box 2240, Long Beach, CA 90801.

And there are other plans as well. Investigate every plan that is available and don't forget to ask about any possible risks. Review the plan with a banker, investment adviser or attorney.

Before signing up, make sure you understand all the terms of the plan. Consider all the costs, including "points," interest charges and closing costs. Also think carefully about the length of the loan. If you choose a loan with a specific time limit, such as three or 12 years, you may have to move or sell at the end of the loan period in order to repay the debt.

A defense against cancer can be cooked up in your kitchen.

There is evidence that diet and cancer are related. Some foods may promote cancer, while others may protect you from it.

Foods related to lowering the risk of cancer of the larynx and esophagus all have high amounts of carotene, a form of Vitamin A which is in cantaloupes, peaches, broccoli, spinach, all dark green leafy vegetables, sweet potatoes, carrots, pumpkin, winter squash and tomatoes, citrus fruits and brussels sprouts.

Foods that may help reduce the risk of gastrointestinal and respiratory tract cancer are cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi, cauliflower.

Fruits, vegetables, and whole-grain cereals such as oatmeal, bran and wheat may help lower the risk of colorectal cancer.

Foods high in fats, salt- or nitrite-cured foods like ham, fish and types of sausages smoked by traditional methods should be eaten in moderation.

Be moderate in consumption of alcohol also.

A good rule of thumb is cut down on fat and don't be fat. Weight reduction may lower cancer risk. Our 12-year study of nearly a million Americans uncovered high cancer risks particularly among people 40% or more overweight.

Now, more than ever, we know you can cook up your own defense against cancer. So eat healthy and be healthy.

No one faces cancer alone.

Around the Yard: Gardening

By Patrick Denton

Today I have a few timely thoughts to share with my gardening friends.

Strawberry Feasting

The big treat of the month of June in many home gardens is strawberries—sun-warmed, juicy, sweet, tantalizing strawberries.

Straight from the plant to mouth is the unsurpassable method for fully savoring their delights. However, the adventurous gourmands among us will want to explore other delicious ways of enjoying this favorite of all home garden berries.

A very simple and elegant snack or strawberry dessert is to serve the berries with stems left attached and accompanied by nice things to dip them in.

My own favorite dippings are sour cream and brown sugar. Pick up the strawberry by its stem, dip it lightly into the sour cream and then dip it into the sugar. It's wonderful.

Strawberries also take on a special attraction when dipped in melted chocolate, orange juice or orange liqueur and then whipped cream. Or try yogurt and honey and then shredded coconut.

Strawberries don't continue ripening after they're picked. So for optimum enjoyment of your planting, gather only fully colored berries about every two days. And while for on-the-spot snacking, berries picked in sunny warmth are a sensational luxury, berries for gathering are better picked in the morning or the cool of the evening when they will not be sun-softened. Place the berries only a few deep to avoid crushing bottom layers.

Picking immediately before the berries are to be used is ideal, but when this is not possible, store them in a cool spot, preferably in a single layer. If you have some decidedly cool area or cupboard in your home use it rather than the refrigerator for keeping strawberries. They'll stay in far better condition in temperatures a little warmer than inside the fridge.

Asparagus

Another succulent home garden delicacy, asparagus presents flavorful spears for our enjoyment during the spring. The actual length of harvest will depend upon the age of the planting and the state of the roots.

This is a perennial vegetable that takes three years in the garden to hit full production but then, if cared for well, the plants will continue to yield abundant harvests every spring for around another 15 years or more.

Watch your asparagus plants in June, and discontinue cutting the spears when they begin to come up thin. This is a real signal that the roots are ready for a little rest and plumping. Scatter a light sprinkling of a balanced granular fertilizer over the root area of the planting, and cover the fertilizer with a layer of some rich organic material such as compost and/or old or processed manure.

Keep the asparagus bed well watered during dry weather, and allow the ferny top growth to grow freely. It will be working to rebuild the roots for next spring's crop. Cut down the top growth only when it has turned brown in late autumn or early winter.

Spring Flower Bulbs

Any plantings that are crowded or that you wish to move should be dug now. Lift them carefully and dry the bulb surfaces in a warm, airy place out of the sun. Then clean them up, but leave on their "tunics"—the dark papery cover that is nature's protective skin for bulbs.

Store the bulbs cool, dark and dry in shallow boxes or open paper bags with a little powdered sulfur.

A good gardening friend who grew up in a bulb-growing family in Holland digs her tulips every year after foliage has ripened. She's an inquisitive sort of gardener who clearly enjoys monitoring yearly the condition of her display bed tulip bulbs.

A few weeks ago she showed me some colossal bulbs that her Golden Parade tulips has produced. This is a Darwin Hybrid, a class of tulip that is noted for its vigor, reliable flowering and good bulb production.

Artisan recreates classic designs

Builders, carpenters and plumbers aren't the only ones benefitting from the boom in new home construction throughout the western suburbs.

Artists and artisans — those whose craftsmanship can add to the beauty of the home — are benefitting from the building boom as well.

And one of those artists who is finding an increased interest in and market for his work is John Zawadski, who owns and operates Tiffany Art Glass at 121 East Main Street in downtown Northville.

Zawadski, who has operated Tiffany Art Glass for 12 years, readily admits that times are good and credits a portion of his success to the booming residential market — particularly, the interest in larger homes with plush interiors.

"I think now, more than ever, there's a market for my work," he said.

"Most of my work is residential," he continued. "And a lot of it has to do with the building boom. A lot of people are putting stained glass in their homes — front doors, double doors, lampshades for kitchen and dining rooms, even stained glass windows in a room they want to make special."

Zawadski, 39, says he more or less taught himself how to make stained and leaded glass windows, lamps and doors.

During a period of unemployment back in 1974, he signed up for an adult education class in stained glass at Troy High School. "I was living with my parents and looking for something to do," he recalled. "My mother convinced me to take the class."

"I didn't learn much except how to cut glass and where to purchase supplies. But that class was what really set the wheels in motion."

His mother also was his first customer. She asked him to make things for her home and to give as gifts. And soon his friends started asking him to make things for them.

At about the same time, Zawadski found a friend who also had taken a stained glass class. They began working together, exhibiting and selling their wares at various art fairs.

As there seemed to be an interest in their work, the pair decided to open their own shop and eventually found a location in Northville where they opened in 1977.

The friend is no longer around, but Zawadski is still turning out specialized works in stained and leaded glass for interior designers and business in addition to private citizens.

As the name of the store suggests, reproductions of Tiffany lamps is one of his specialties.

"There seems to be even more interest now in the reproductions than there was a few years ago," he said. "The reproductions we do here are some of the best you can get in Michigan — or perhaps even in the Midwest."

reproductions is just phenomenal," she said. "He has an outstanding sense of color and how to blend colors. And those are critical in Tiffany reproductions."

Loren, herself an artist who works side by side with her husband in their second-story studio, also notes that he is very demanding in the type of glass he uses. "The type of glass makes a huge difference," she said. "John demands high-quality glass, and that's another thing which sets his work apart."

Zawadski said the current trend to large, luxurious homes is definitely advantageous to his business. "People who buy stained glass tend to be those people who put a high priority on the quality of their homes and have the income to afford designer accent pieces which set their homes apart," he noted.

"My customers tend to be the kind of people who want the best for their homes. They want to have the beauty of stained glass to enhance the beauty of the basic building."

Although reproductions of Tiffany lamp shades form the basis of his business, Zawadski said there seems to be an increasing interest in the use of stained and leaded glass in other parts of the home as well.

Stained or leaded glass doors are popular. As are stained glass windows along the sides of the doors.

But stained or leaded glass also can be used in cabinets, room dividers, room dividers and over fireplaces.

Zawadski has just finished a piece for a client who wants to hang it on a wall as a freestanding piece of art.

He also has done a large 42 square foot stained glass window which has been installed above the front door of a residence in Wabek.

Although he admits that the current residential building boom has spurred his business, Zawadski expects interest in his work to remain strong in the future.

"Glass never goes out of style," he said. "It's classic."

"There's something very beautiful about light passing through a stained glass window. It looks so pretty and is very soothing. A beautiful piece of glass is an asset to any home."

Around the House: Designs for Living

Tranquil courtyard welcomes guests

A walled yard and covered entry walk give a western flavor to the Grant.

Unlike a typical rambling ranch house, however, the floor plan forms a staggered "H," with two parallel wings on either side of the entry. This design allows maximum separation between the working and sleeping areas of the house.

The master suite, main bath and two smaller bedrooms occupy the wing to the right of the courtyard. To the left are the kitchen, oversized dining/family room and utility room.

The living room connects the two halves of the Grant. Tall windows front and back also provide a visual link between the courtyard and rear deck. The deck can be reached from either side, through the family room or the master suite.

There is another outside deck on the side of the house, accessible only through the second bedroom. This unusual arrangement is ideal for a teenager who requires some extra privacy and growing room.

Many furnishings come as built-ins with the Grant. The kitchen has an eating bar, under-counter rotating shelf, and double-door hall pantry.

The family room fireplace is designed with flanking shelves. Both of the smaller bedrooms come with alcoves for desks and books.

The garage is intended to have a 12-foot workbench and a walk-in storage locker.

Some homeowners may find the

Helmet-lidded pitcher is worth $75 to $85 today

By James G. McCollam

Q: Enclosed is a picture of a very colorful pitcher; the helmet is a removable lid. On the bottom is "Majolica" and "Sarreguemines."

Can you identify this piece and estimate its value?

A: This would more correctly be called a "character jug." Majolica is a type of pottery and Sarreguemines is a town in France. The name of the manufacturer is Utzschneider & Co.

Your character jug would sell for about $75 to $85.

Q: My Limoges dresser tray has the attached mark and measures 8 by 12 inches. It is decorated with red and yellow roses.

Please tell me anything you can about its origin and value.

A: This tray was made in Limoges, France, by Boisertrand & Dorat during the early 20th century. A dealer would probably price this at $65 to $75.

Q: The mark on the bottom of my vase is a castle with five crosses on top. The vase has a double wall; the outer wall has a lacy or woven appearance. It is decorated in a sort of Arabian style.

Please tell me whatever you can about this vase.

A: The mark you describe was used by a company founded in the early 19th century by Vilmos Zsolnay in Pecs, Hungary.

Your vase was probably made in the 1800s and might sell for $325 to $375.

The term used to describe the outer lacy wall is "reticulated."

Q: I have a dozen large dinner plates with a three-inch-wide lacy gold border. They are marked "Pickard, Rosenthal, Selb, Bavaria."

Can you tell me anything about their origin, vintage and value?

A: These plates were made by the Rosenthal China Co. in Selb, Germany. They were purchased by the Pickard China Co. in Chicago, Ill., where, during the 1920s, the gold trim was applied. The set of 12 would probably sell for $800 to $900.

Q: The mark on the bottom of my vase is a crown with "Amphora, Austria" below the crown. The vase is 11 inches tall and is decorated with pink and blue flowers. Can you tell me who made it, when, and how much it is worth?

A: This vase was made by Riessner, Stellmacher & Kessel who operated the Amphora porcelain factory in Teplitz, Austria. It was made between 1900 and 1915 and would probably sell for about $165 to $185.

Q: I have a blue-and-white 10 inch-bowl that I would like some information about—who made, when and its value. The bottom is marked "P. Regout, Maastricht, Holland."

A: Petrus Regout founded a pottery company in Maastricht, Holland, in 1836. The company discontinued operations in the 1930s.

Your bowl was made during the first quarter of the 20th century and would probably sell for about $35 to $45.

Around the House Repairs

Silverfish are problem

Q: Please help me with a problem I have with silverfish. They eat holes in synthetic as well as natural fabrics. No amount of spraying with black flag and other popular sprays seem to help.—B.L.

A: The best method of stopping such infestation is to eliminate the original source of the problem. Silverfish can enter the home in several ways. Often you carry them into the house in old handbooks, cardboard boxes or old papers.

If your home is new, they may come in with the wallboard and green lumber and found a feast of wood shavings, sawdust and wallpaper paste. Humidity from newly poured cement gives them the dampness they need. These long-lived nocturnal insects may be making their way inside from flowers near your home's foundation.

Preventing and controlling silverfish begins outside. Close off any holes around pipes entering walls. Relocate flowers growing around foundations some distance from the structure because these insects like the mulch in flower beds.

If you collect old books, check all new acquisitions carefully before setting them on your shelves. Clean out bookcases periodically, shaking out the books for any sign of the insect.

Repair any plumbing leaks. Check any lined draperies you have; silverfish often hide between the lining and outer fabric.

Once indoors, silverfish hide and lay the eggs in wall cracks behind baseboards.

Usually the first signs of the insect are damaged papers or books. They eat the sizing on paper and chew ragged holes in the paper itself. They also eat cereals, dead insects, linen, cotton, silk, paste and glue (as used in book bindings).

One of the best non-toxic controls is technical borate acid. Technical borate acid is tinted blue for easy identification, and is treated electrostatically to cling up to the insect's coat. The powder clings to the insect and the poison is carried back to its lair, where others pick it up.

It is available in hardware and builder's supply stores. The powder should be blown with a bulb duster into any baseboard crevices and around door and window frames.

Control may take several weeks. There are also commercial chemical products on the market. Look for one that specifically lists silverfish on the label.

Q: The previous owners of our house smudged paint along the top and sides of our large fireplace, which looks as if it is made of sandstone.

Can the paint stains be removed? We are afraid that a conventional solvent, such as acetone, might leach to stone and spread the stains further.—P.B.

A: You should be able to remove the paint with a chemical stripper. This is a messy and labor-intensive job. Intensive scrubbing with a stiff bristle brush is necessary to remove the paint residue from the cracks and crevices.

Brick and masonry dealers should be able to recommend a chemical stripper.

One such product is Sure Klean Gel-type Solvent-alkaline. This is a heavy-duty solvent-alkaline remover that was specially formulated to remove paint from masonry surfaces. If you have trouble finding the product, write to the manufacturer: ProSoCo Inc. P.O. Box 1578, Kansas City, KS 66117.

Be sure to follow the manufacturer's instructions carefully. Protect yourself by wearing rubber gloves, goggles and a face mask. The room should be well ventilated. Use a drop cloth to protect the floor area beneath the fireplace.

Send inquiries to Here's How, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190. Only questions of general interest can be answered in the column.

Around the House: Decorating

Sleep sofa expands space in today's small homes

Q: My problem is space—or rather, the lack of it.

The baby we were expecting when we moved into our first house turned out to be twins. So now there is a live-in au pair in what was our guest room and we have no place to put the proud grandmas, aunts and cousins who are eager to come see our double hit.

Do I dare put a sleep sofa in my living room?—S.H.

Long gone are the thick look and stiff seat that used to be dead giveaways for sleep sofas.

New technology has made slim new styling possible, and there is virtually no limit to your choices in fabrics. So whether your room is, say, refined traditional or sleek and modern, there is a sleep sofa to fit it.

But good looks are only one factor here: comfort is a major consideration, both when your guests are merely sitting on the sofa and when they crawl in for a night's sleep. Make it a good night's sleep by buying wisely when you shop for your sleeper.

Some checkpoints:

•Study the sofa when it is closed to see if the cover is well-tailored with straight welting, matching patterns, neat seams and tight buttons, if there is tufting.

•Ask for the inside details: The frame should be made of kiln-dried hardwood with double dowels and corner blocks for durability. The best padding for sleepers is fiberfill or a combination of fiberfill and foam (you seldom will find down used in a sleep sofa).

•Try it on for comfort. Sit and bounce and lounge on the sofa. You shouldn't be able to tell there is a bed hidden inside.

•Open it up for sleeping. Do it yourself, so you can see how easily it works. You should hear no creaks or grinding as the metal mechanism unfolds.

•Be your own guest. Stretch out on the mattress. It should be either innerspring or urethane foam that offers uniform support with no lumps or ridges. And there should be a tilt-up headrest for reading in bed and TV watching.

and is just the right size for the exercise machines we own.

My question: What kind of floor covering should I put down? It must be durable but not too hard.—B.G.

A: Two easy answers here:

1. Resilient flooring, the slightly cushioned-kind that comes in rolls to be loose-laid or cemented down. Such vinyl flooring is durable, kind to bodies doing sit-ups and such and very easy to damp mop clean.

2. Commercial carpeting. Choose a man-made, such as nylon or a nylon or a nylon-wool blend with dense, low pile for utmost durability.

Make sure it's surface-treated to repel stains and oil and have it installed over a light- to medium-density padding.

Q: The windows in my bedroom are not alike—one is at least six inches lower in the wall. What can I do to even things out?—W.P.

A: You have lots of options, depending on your decorating scheme. If it's fairly formal, you might use cornices covered in fabric to match your curtains. The trick here: Mount the cornice on the wall over the shorter window so the top is even with the other cornice (which you mount on the window frame itself).

You could also dress the windows in gathered curtains mounted at the ceiling line and swagged back to cover the fact that one is lower than the other.

Q: My two-room apartment was carved out of the library of a wonderful old townhouse, so I am blessed with walls and walls of shelves—which is also a curse since I collect old prints and art posters. There's literally nowhere to hang anything without covering up the shelves. What to do?—T.L.

A: Do exactly that—hang your prints like a second decorative layer right in front of the shelves.

An actor I know has made what he calls a "collage" over the book-lined walls of his Greenwich Village apartment, and the effect is as visually interesting as it is practical.

Classic boxer shorts have undergone styling changes through the years, like the striped ones pictured above, courtesy of Fredyl's in downtown Northville

BRIEFLY ABOUT BOXERS

By Brenda Dooley

It's almost Father's Day and we have an important question to ask all the men out there.

Do you prefer boxer shorts or briefs?

Yes, it's kind of an embarrassing question, but there's a good reason for asking. Simply because we want to know.

Two reporters on our staff, both female, mind you — the guys in the office wouldn't touch this question — mustered up the courage to pose this query to 10 unsuspecting guys in the Northville and Novi areas.

One local man who shall remain anonymous because . . . well, you know why . . . said he wears both — not at the same time, of course. He simply switches to boxers when he's tired of briefs and vice versa.

Charles Fredyl, owner of Fredyl's men's clothing store in downtown Northville, substantiated our unscientific poll by revealing that briefs are still the hot sellers at his business. He said most men probably prefer briefs because of the support they give.

So who wears these boxer shorts to make a bold fashion statement? The answer may surprise you — women and teenage girls.

Fredyl said his daughter, who is married and has children of her own, wears boxers. Get this — females who prefer the comfort of boxer shorts usually don't even bother to wear anything to hide them. Instead, they select boxers in colorful prints or stripes and wear them

Seven said: "Briefs"
Two said: "Boxers"
One said: "Both"

"I can't believe you're asking me this"
"What if I said - 'neither?'"

Volunteers

Cutler offers to listen

By DOROTHY NASH

Helping people turn their lives around after they have been in trouble with the law, is a volunteer activity Mary Louise Cutler has been in for 10 years.

She is a probation officer, and she meets monthly in private afternoon sessions at the 35th District Court House with probationers — men and women, ranging in age from 17 to 80, who have been brought to court for misdemeanors such as driving under the influence of alcohol, shop lifting and soliciting homosexual acts.

"I usually spend 35 to 40 minutes with each person," she said, for six months to a year. "The judge decides the length of time."

This is not counseling — "just checking up to see whether the person is obeying his probation," and each month, Cutler said, "I go over the terms which the probationer has to abide by. I also ask whether there has been a change of address or employment, has it been reported?"

If pertinent information is not reported to the judge, she said, the probationer may be sentenced to a jail term of 60 to 90 days.

"I try to get people to talk," Cutler said. "It gets some of the anger out of their lives. They're all angry at first. They'll say, 'I'm not bad. I just got caught.'"

Cutler then asks, "How can you make this minus in your life turn into a plus? I'm here to help you."

It's volunteering that's well worth her time, she commented, and there is a need for more probation officers.

Is there training for it? Yes. Volunteers spend 10 hours in a court room and five hours with each of the two judges — plus attend two meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous, take a course in communications at Schoolcraft College, and attend three sessions of a class in Alcoholics Anonymous.

If you are interested, call the chief probation officer in Plymouth. The telephone number is 459-4740.

Historical Society Board to meet

The Board of Directors for the Northville Historical Society will meet Thursday, June 22 at 7:30 p.m. at Mill Race Village.

New board officers include Stephan Ball, president; Mary Jane Cryderman, vice president; Arthur Rockall, vice-president; Janice Jahasz, secretary; Carol Kiraly, treasurer; and Ruth Crawford and Ruth Simmons, new members to the board.

The group will not conduct a meeting in July, but will resume meetings on the third Thursday of each month, until December, when no meeting is held.

In celebration of the Northville Historical Society's 25th anniversary, a scrapbook and old photos are currently on display for the public to view in the museum at Mill Race Village.

Docents will be on duty at the historical village every Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. until October to provide guided tours.

Class of '79 plans 10-year reunion

Graduates of Northville High School's Class of 1979 can look forward to quite a weekend Aug. 25-27.

That's when classmates plan to gather to celebrate their 10-year reunion. Activities begin Friday, Aug. 25, when classmates are encouraged to have a party to get reacquainted with friends.

On Saturday, Aug. 26, fellow graduates are invited to tour downtown Northville, just in case it's changed since they've seen it last. A tour of Northville High School will be conducted at 2 p.m. and those participating are asked to meet at the front entrance of the school.

Official reunion activities kick off at 6:30 p.m. with cocktails (cash bar) at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth. Dinner and entertainment begins at 7:30 p.m. Men are asked to wear a sport coat and women casual dresses.

On Sunday, a Class of '79 reunion picnic will be held at Maybury State Park, beginning at noon.

Members on the reunion committee need help in contacting all classmates they haven't heard from yet. Responses and a final payment of $25 per person are due July 14. For current reunion information contact Karen Boll at 478-9700, Trinky Platte-Talbot at 349-5688 or Ann Dayton-Turnbull at 348-6514.

Checks must be made payable to the Class of '79 Reunion Fund.

Those unable to attend are asked to send a letter telling former classmates what they're up to so reunion committee members can pass the information on to old friends.

The committee is compiling a memory book that includes current information on each classmate from those long-lost high school years. Because the project has been time-consuming and expensive, classmates are asked to observe the July 14 deadline.

Local Schoolcraft employees recognized

Northville residents who have given years of hard work and dedication to their careers at Schoolcraft College, stand and be recognized.

At Schoolcraft College's annual Employee Recognition Luncheon, President Richard McDowell presented several employees with commemorative gifts for their years of service.

Northville residents receiving honors for 25 years of service included Marvin Gans, Walter Hoffmann, Luther Kleckner, J. Bryce Lockwood, Richard Gordon, Patricia Kozak, Prantosh Nag and Larry Williams.

Embroiderers host anniversary party

Colorful works of stitchery were highlighted during a special open house hosted by the Mill Race Chapter of the Embroiderers Guild of America last Thursday.

Donna Dorr, president of the Guild, and Cheryl Kinvelt, a group member, kindly extended an invitation to the Record. Sorry we couldn't be there, ladies.

The reception was held to celebrate the Guild's 10th anniversary. Those in attendance were treated to hors d'oeuvres and refreshments. Members and guests met on the second floor banquet room of the FOE Eagles.

OLV students receive honors at end of year ceremonies

PTA News is published weekly in the Record. This week's news is from Our Lady of Victory School. Any school interested in publishing its PTA or school news in the Record should contact the newspaper at 349-1700.

OUR LADY OF VICTORY SCHOOL

As the school year drew to a close, there were several special events involving our OLV students.

The eighth grade graduation was conducted Thursday, June 8 at 7 p.m. in church. This traditional ceremony is always a moving occasion, as we say good-bye to these young people who have meant so much to our school.

Monday, June 12, at 7 p.m. was the time for our Honor's Convocation. Academic awards were given out at this time, highlighted by recognition of those students who were on the honor roll for at least one quarter this year. We were honored to have Rev. Clifford Ruskowski as our guest speaker. Rev. Ruskowski was on radio for many years, taught at St. John's Seminary and produced and directed many of the theatrical productions at Orchard Lake Seminary. Service awards for those students who have given their time and talents in a variety of ways to OLV were presented following the closing school mass on Tuesday, June 13.

Ms. Bonnie Williams, fourth grade teacher, was hard at work planning our Field Day activities for the entire school. This fun-filled day will take place on Friday, June 9. Special thanks go out to the parent volunteers — there were more than 55 — who assisted in a variety of ways. Father Frank is hosting the hotdog roast in his yard and all in all it was a great way to wind up the school year.

Our kindergarteners held a graduation prayer service on Tuesday, June 6 at 10 a.m. in church. They wore caps and gowns and took responsibility for the liturgy. A reception followed for family and friends of the students.

On Wednesday, June 7, families enjoyed an ice cream social from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Artwork completed by the students throughout the year also was on display. Mrs. Sharon DeAlexandris did an incredible job of exposing the children to a variety of art forms.

OLV observed the Memorial Day weekend by being off on Friday and Monday, May 26 and 29. We trust that the students and their families had a chance to enjoy this time together.

A very special observance took place on a recent Tuesday as a Peace Pole was erected near the school sign facing Orchard Street. A prayer service built around the theme of peace was celebrated in church. Then all proceeded to the front of the school for the actual dedication. The children released helium balloons from the parking lot as a finale to this joyous occasion. It is hoped that all parishoners will stop by to see this fitting symbol of our common desire for peace, with its inscription of "May Peace Prevail On Earth" in four different languages.

The safety squad was treated to the annual outing at Boblo amusement park in recognition of their service to OLV school. They provide invaluable assistance on a daily basis and we thank them for their willingness to serve. Special recognition is also due to our scouts, who cleaned up the gravel from the playground that had spread onto the parking lot. We sincerely thank them for helping to keep the area around school looking neat.

The honors continue to mount for our OLV students. The latest recipient is fourth grader Jackie Korreck, who won a $250 shopping spree at Livonia Mall for an essay entitled "My Marvellous Mom." We are very proud of you, Jackie.

Plans are moving ahead for the computer lab which will be part of our school next year. Many donations have been received and volunteers are being trained.

This will provide an excellent opportunity for our students to become computer-literate and will greatly enrich the educational process.

It was a time for celebration at OLV. Following up on the very successful Grandparents Day, we also recognized those people most special to us — our mothers. Third and fourth graders hosted a celebration for their moms on Thursday, May 11 in the chapel.

Kindergarteners, first and second graders joined for a program for their mothers on Friday, May 12 in the chapel. An all-school mass in honor of these important people took place on May 12, followed by a luncheon at the OLV "French Cafe."

Mrs. Joann Dalziel, French teacher, coordinated the project. Singers, dances, gymnasts, musicians and magicians attended to showcase their talents.

The eighth grade students attended a retreat on May 3 at the Marionhill Retreat Center in Dearborn Heights. It was a moving experience for all and helped focus the students' attention on building a community and working together.

Our library shelves continue to expand, thanks to the generosity of many donors. Thirty-two new books were added in one week alone. We thank all for your ongoing support.

A representative from the World Book company visited the school to present a "Look It Up" program in each classroom. The children have earned encyclopedias for their room through the "Partners in Excellence" reading program. Now they know how to put these reference materials to good use.

Brandon Dalziel has again been honored by placing second in the ninth annual student writing competition, sponsored by the Wayne County Intermediate School District. His essay was entitled "Celebrating Cultural Differences," and Brandon will be the recipient of a trophy and a cash prize. Congratulations on this latest honor, Brandon.

OLV Art Appreciation program has ended for another year and many thanks go out to the volunteers who have given their time to increase our student's awareness of fine art and artists. This is an excellent program and it is hoped that it can be expanded to include the kindergarten classes next year.

The eighth graders recently toured the Ford Wayne Assembly Plant as part of their "Project Business" program. It was an especially exciting trip, as Ford Motor Company officials videotaped the OLV tour as part of a public relations promotional tape that will be viewed around the world.

as summer shorts. The more modest women sew up the fly.

Merchants at Perrins Sports and T-Shirts in downtown Northville also said boxer shorts are definitely popular with the younger crowd — both male and female. Perrins sells funky pairs of boxers that appeal to sports enthusiasts of all ages. There are boxers printed with green Michigan State University Spartans, blue and gold University of Michigan logos and even Red Wings' insignias.

Tracing a "brief" history of men's underwear — excuse the pun — it's safe to say that you've come a long way, guys.

According to The Pictorial Encyclopedia of Fashion by Ludmila Kybalova, Olga Nerbenova, Milena Lamarova and translated by Claudia Rosoux, "Men have worn washable garments under their hose since ancient times. Usually short or knee-length, they were suspended by a tie at the waist. In the 18th century, they were shaped like the outer breeches and as long trousers became fashionable in the 19th century, they became tightly fitting and longer, reaching almost to the ankles."

Whew, imagine how hot those must have been.

Authors also noted that men in the fashionable upper classes wore knitted silk undergarments, while others sported flannel versions. In the late 19th and early 20th century, undergarments were available in wool.

Knee-length men's underwear was re-introduced in the late 19th century, appealing mainly to the younger men, and very short crotch-length trunks were introduced after 1945, according to The Pictorial Encyclopedia of Fashion.

Shortly after World War I,

American men were wearing very short, tight, close-fitting underpants, similar to bathing trunks.

Bill Gale and editors of Esquire Magazine wrote in Esquire's Fashions For Today that shaplier clothes begot shaplier underwear. As a result, "contemporary underwear fits more like a second skin — not too tight to squeeze, not too loose to wrinkle and sag."

A 1971 department store ad in the New York Times boldly introduced an ad for men's underwear, featuring

But drivers like Danny Sullivan, Bobby Rahal and Al Unser, Jr., will make the competition just as exciting at this year's

Great Stuff store sells Pistons garb

By JEFF HAWKINS

Think back to the beginning of this decade when the Detroit Pistons were playing with a collection of rag-tag, stumble if you have the ball type of players.

Before the time of the Palace of Auburn Hills. And certainly before the time when the Pistons were about to claim the NBA championship.

Most people fail to remember the time when the "Bad Boys" really were the bad boys of the National Basketball Association.

The Pistons were so bad that teams used to love seeing Detroit walk out on the court. They were so bad that at one time, instead emphasizing defense as the key to winning, they emphasized reducing turnovers as the key to breaking their losing habits.

But times change and — fortunately for the fans who survived the years of turmoil, we can look back and laugh or cry.

But now the Pistons are playing the Los Angeles Lakers for the NBA title for the second-straight year. And along for the ride are the countless numbers of supporters who have jumped on the Bad Boy bandwagon with items ranging from shirts to flags to frisbees.

The fever that began to spread about a year ago has now reached the critical stage. The further the Pistons climb through the mountain of NBA avalanches, the higher the market gets for items bearing the Bad Boys logo.

For Great Stuff, a store that specializes in stocking Piston

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Great Stuff salesperson Jennifer Jones helps Matt Paul of Brighton pick out a Pistons T-shirt paraphernalia, the further Detroit goes, the better it gets for business.

"At every level the Pistons have been during the season and through the playoffs, business has increased," said Terry Adam, manager of the Twelve Oaks store.

With locations in Summit Place,

Lakeside and Twelve Oaks, Great Stuff opened because of the demand for Bad Boys items and it was easier to go to the malls than anywhere else, Adam said.

While the store remains relatively new, the demand for their stock has grown tremendously.

"Business has been great," Adam said. "It could be compared to Christmas."

Prices for the different items include $4 for a frisbee; $4 for license plate; $12 for a pair of sunglasses; $13 for a baseball hat; $14 for the different array of shirts and $120 for a flag.

When asked what cross-boned shirts with an orange circular background have to do with the Pistons becoming the champions of the NBA, most would agree with Adams' philosophy of why they are as good as they are.

"It describes their style of play and it appeals to everyone," he said. "They do what it takes to win."

It has been a long road from the cold, chilly Silverdome days. Watching in horror as teams ran, shot and humiliated the Pistons to the depths of basketball despair.

Well not any more.

Now we have the Motor City Bad Boys playing the best basketball of their lives. And right along their side is the City of Detroit, clinging on every shot as they move that much closer to the title.

But how long will this love-affair last?

According to Adam: "As long as the Pistons want it to!"

The Northville Record

Northville falls 1-0 in soccer finals

Northville goaltender Kristi Turner (right) pokes away a Troy Athens' shot while defender Kim Kaphengst (4) looks on

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Troy Athens wins first state title on third try

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville's bid to become only the second team in state history to win two Class A girls soccer titles fell just short on June 10 when Troy Athens edged the Mustangs 1-0 in the championship game at North Farmington to win their first title in three tries.

Northville was forced to battle the third-ranked Red Hawks without star defender Heather Sixt, who didn't even dress for the game. Sixt was suspended from school and the team for disciplinary reasons. It was the second time in two games the Mustangs were shorthanded a key player due to a suspension.

Athen's championship is the first ever girls Class A crown that didn't go to a Western Lakes league squad. A WLA team had won the previous seven in a row since the state tournament was initiated back in 1983.

"I couldn't be more proud of the effort," Northville Coach Bob Paul said. "We were fourth in the WLA and we battled our way to the state finals. I don't think there is any doubt we peaked at the right time. Unfortunately, we didn't win the state title and I know the girls are very disappointed."

With gusty winds blowing from north to south, the Mustangs had a distinct wind-advantage in the first half of play. As expected, Northville dominated much of the first 40 minutes and had several prime scoring chances — but couldn't take advantage of them. After surviving the first half, the Red Hawks turned it up a notch in the second half — with the wind at their backs — and made good on one of many scoring opportunities. That was the difference.

"(Athens) took us out of our game plan in the second half," Paul recalled. "We moved the ball and scared them a little in the first half, but as the match continued, we had a tougher and tougher time controlling the ball.

"Eventually, we reverted back to a 'kick and run' game without any control at all. It looked more like a volleyball game than soccer, and when we started playing like that, we were in trouble."

Early in the first half, Shannon Loper took a crossing pass from Amy Goode and had a scoring chance that was stopped by Athens goalie Kristi McGough. Minutes later, fullback Debbie Stevens moved the ball up from her defensive position and into the box area, but her shot went wide to the right. The only scoring threat for Athens in the first half came at the 26-minute mark when forward Beth Huck fired a shot into the left corner from about 20-yards out, but goalie Kristi Turner made a diving save.

For the half, Northville had a 9-5 shots on goal advantage.

"We were really excited at halftime because we thought we'd win the game," Paul said. "Midway through the first half, I told the coaches that it looked like about a 3-1 win, but we didn't take advantage of our chances. When you get them, in the state title game, you can't let them slip away."

The only goal of the game came off the foot of freshman Angie Marino at 29:21 of the second half. A corner kick by the Red Hawks was headed from out in front of the Northville goal mouth area, and after a brief scramble, Marino took control of the ball and lofted a shot from about 25-yards away that floated just under the crossbar, over the outstretched hands of Turner.

"It was a very good shot," Paul said.

Down 1-0, Paul moved Marcie Dart — who started the game in Sixt's spot

Was Northville/Athens final just round one?

and BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The Northville soccer squad is relatively young, with only four seniors on the squad and one of the state's most outstanding sophomore classes. But Troy Athens may be even younger, with five freshman and three sophomore starters in the line-up — and only two seniors.

That's why many experts are predicting that last Saturday's Class A championship game between the Mustangs and the Red Hawks may have been just round one.

"We have the nucleus for a powerhouse for the future," Athens coach Tim Storch admitted. "We're a young team. We have the best freshman group in the state."

DEFENSE — McQUAID STYLE: The most celebrated ninth grader on the Athens team is Lisa Grace, who has great speed and led the Red Hawks in scoring in '89 with 23 goals and 14 assists. But in the finals, sophomore Michelle McQuaid held her scoreless. Grace did have several scoring chances but McQuaid — called the fastest player on the Northville squad by Coach Bob Paul — was right with her all the time.

TROY WHO?: Northville's opponent in the finals, Troy Athens, is no stranger to the state championship game. As a matter of fact, the Red Hawks have been in the Class A championship game three of the last five years under coach Tim Storch.

Athens (22-2-1) ended the regular season ranked third in the state and topped previously unbeaten and number one-ranked Farmington 2-1 in semifinal action.

The title was Storch's first as the girls coach, but he already has three state titles as the coach of the Athens' boys squad.

MUSTANGS SLAY THE GIANTS: A small but boisterous group of Kalamazoo Central fans came to Northville for the MHSAA Class A Soccer Semifinals on June 7 equipped with cow bells and pom poms. For much of the game, the Giant fans shouted their Northville counterparts.

The game — originally scheduled for 7 p.m. — was moved up to 4 p.m. because the Kalamazoo Central graduation ceremony was slated for later that evening. With the game ending at almost 7 p.m., and a two-hour drive to follow, the team members missed much of the festivities.

The Giants are the first team from the western half of the state to make it to the MHSAA Class A Soccer Final Four. The 1989 season also marked Kalamazoo Central's first ever Regional Title. The team's two losses during the regular season came against Troy Athens — Northville's opponent in the championship game — and to a select team of all-stars from Indiana.

EXTRIS-CURRICULAR: With seven minutes remaining in Northville's semifinal victory over Kalamazoo Central, the game referees warned all the players to 'ease up' because the play was getting very rough and there was a lot of activity off the ball.

The warning didn't seem to have much of an effect, however, and the physical play continued. Several minutes later, Mustang Coach Bob Paul told his players to 'keep their comments to themselves' after an official complained to him. Much to the chagrin of the Northville fans, the Mustangs were issued four yellow card warnings in the game while the Giants failed to receive any.

SMALEC ALERT: The man who coached Northville to the 1984 state title — Stan Smalec — was on hand for both the semifinal and final clashes last week.

"It's in the big games like these that I wish I was still on the sideline coaching," he said. "This is a group of great kids."

Smalec retired from coaching at the high school level at the conclusion of last season after leading the Mustangs to yet another final four appearance.

BOARD APPROVAL — During their meeting on Monday, the Northville Board of Education took time out to meet members of the 1989 girls varsity soccer team.

In honor of the team's run for the state title, which fell one game short, speeches of praise were made by Athletic Director Dennis Colligan and Principal David Bollito.

Team coach Bob Paul said the team had a good year and added since many of the girls are underclassmen, the future for the team looks bright.

Edward's goal sends Mustangs to finals

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Senior forward Abby Edwards broke a 3-3 deadlock with a dramatic goal on the sixth kick of a shoot-out which ended a remarkable two-and-a-half hour defensive struggle and gave Northville a 1-0 semifinal victory over visiting Kalamazoo Central on June 7.

The win sent the soccer squad into the MHSAA Finals for the first time since the Mustangs won their only state title back in 1984. Ironically, Northville won the title that year on the eighth kick of a shoot-out over Livonia Stevenson.

The Mustangs managed to win the game without sophomore All-Conference midfielder Marcie Dart, who was suspended from school and the game for unidentified disciplinary reasons several days earlier.

The game itself was marked by aggressive play, fine defensive soccer and a slew of missed scoring opportunities for both teams. The Mustangs (14-3-4) entered the game ranked ninth in the state among Class A schools while the Giants (15-3) were rated seventh.

"The whole game was a fantastic experience to be involved in," Northville Coach Bob Paul said. "Our defenders like Nesya Colizzi and Debbie Stevens were the unsung heroes for us. We knew heading into the tournament that a shoot-out was a possibility, so we worked on it in practice and it paid off."

The two squads battled to a scoreless tie in a pre-season scrimmage back in April and regulation play was almost an exact replay. In a relatively uneventful first half, both teams had opportunities but neither could cash in. Kalamazoo forward Amy Loulan had possession of the ball and a wide open net in front of her early in the game but she fanned on the kick. Moments later, Abby Edwards had a pair of scoring chances off a throw-in and a break away, but failed to convert. Later in the half, Shannon Loper and Ashley MacLean also failed to score off good opportunities.

In the second half, defender Debbie Stevens saved the game for Northville when she made a diving block of a shot that was heading for the open net at about the 16-minute mark on a shot by Kalamazoo's Lisa Johnson. Johnson had somehow moved in behind goaltender Kristi Turner just prior to the shot.

With just over five minutes remaining, forward Karen Cavanaugh — who was moved to Dart's normal position — almost ended it for the Mustangs, but her header in front of the net hit the cross bar. Regulation time ended with a scoreless deadlock, but Northville did outshoot the Giants 22-14.

Tempers flared on both sides as play became even more intense in the first 10-minute overtime, but neither team threatened to score. In the second 10-minute OT, Turner made a spectacular save on a drive by Alicia Webster after she got behind the defense, but that was the only real scoring bid.

Two, five-minute sudden death periods followed, but again the defenders seemed to dominate and when that ended 0-0, it was on to the shoot-out. Five players from each team tried their luck from 18-yards out but even that failed to produce a winner as both teams scored three times.

The Northville tallies came from Amy Goode, Michelle McQuaid and Merilyn Millgard — in that order — with Millgard's coming under a lot of pressure. The Giants were ahead 3-2 when she stepped up to the ball for the team's fifth and final shoot-out attempt. A miss would have given the match to Kalamazoo Central and ended the '89 season for Northville, but Millgard put it in the lower right-hand corner of the net.

"There was a lot of pressure on Merilyn Millgard — and she didn't even get to play in the regulation," Paul said. "We put our lowest keyed athletes in there for shoot-outs."

The one-on-one phase of the shoot-out was next. The Giants' Carrie Harris went first, but her shot was stopped by Turner, and that set up Edwards' game-winner. The biggest goal of her career sailed high, into the left corner and moments later she was mobbed by her teammates.

Gerlach reflects back on '89

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Like the Detroit Pistons, the Northville girls softball squad needed to experience a championship game or series atmosphere before they eventually went out and won the title.

A year ago, the Mustangs grabbed the school's first WLLA Western Division title and were within one game of a conference championship. This season, coach Bob Gerlach set his sites on another division crown and that illusive conference title — and the squad went out and accomplished it.

"It was our goal to start the season," he said. "We wanted the division but we also knew we had a shot at the conference."

Behind the pitching of senior superstar Amy Freimund and a rock-solid defense, Northville cruised out to seven wins in a row. After stumbling a bit in mid-season due to an offensive drought, the Mustangs won a pivotal game against first-placed Walled Lake Central on May 8 and that kept them in the race.

"We were down, but the win against Central was very important," Gerlach said. "After that loss (Central) collapsed and lost four of the next five. From that point, it was us against (Westland) John Glenn."

A victory over Farmington Harrison on May 17 assured the team's second division title and several days later, Northville turned back Glenn for their first conference crown. A year earlier, the same scenario was in place, but Glenn was the victor.

"Glenn was the only team in the league we hadn't been able to beat since I started coaching, so it's nice to know we've been able to beat them all now," Gerlach said. "We handled the big game against Glenn much better than we did last year. In '88, we were just happy to win the division and we didn't know what to expect. We didn't get it but it made us hungrier."

Gerlach said another big highlight was a 2-1 squeaker back in late April against Plymouth Canton set the tone for the championship run. Freimund outdueled Stacy Thompson for the win.

"Even though we didn't know it at the time, it set us up for what eventually happened," he said.

Freimund was outstanding all season, going 14-2 with an unbelievable 0.61 earned run average. She had five shutouts (including a no hitter), struck out 145 and walked only 14. Opposing batters had a paltry .108 batting average against Freimund and she had eight or more strike outs in 12 games.

"Pitching and defense is our number one priority," Gerlach admitted. "We survive offensively on the breaks. We're patient at the plate and that's how we get baserunners. Then we rely on a timely hit now and then."

The top hitter was undoubtedly senior Karen Baird, who led the team in almost every offensive category, including hitting (.452), runs (16), RBIs (17), on base percentage (.74) and slugging percentage (.833). Sophomore Melanie Apligian was second on the team with a .385 average, but no other Mustang was even above .300.

Despite the offensive problems, Northville outscored its opponents 119-13 for the season. The team drew more than 100 walks, which was in keeping with Gerlach's strategy: don't beat yourself. The Mustangs followed that creed all season — except for a 9-1 district loss to Ann Arbor Pioneer in district action.

"Except for Pioneer, we just didn't beat ourselves," Gerlach pointed out. "That's the way we like to approach things."

Northville ended with a school-record 19-5 overall record, which could never be overshadowed, despite the early exit in the state playoffs.

"We have a winning attitude now and we certainly don't want to revert back to the way it was four or five years ago," Gerlach said. "Next season we lose Amy and Karen but our opponents better not take us lightly because I have some outstanding kids coming back."

"All of the seasons are fun but this one was extra special because we met our goal of winning the conference trophy. It makes it all worthwhile."

Reknown designer heads renovation of Walnut Creek

By MIKE MCGLINNEN

Members of the Walnut Creek Country Club at 25501 Johns Road in Lyon Township are excited about having renowned golf course designer Art Hills in charge of the renovation of the former Godwin Glen links.

"He (Hills) is one of the top five course architects in the country. Our intent is to have 36 Art Hills holes when we are done with the renovation," said Jim Conrad, president of the private club.

Club members purchased the 243-acre, 27-hole Godwin public course in 1987. An adjacent 89-acre parcel was purchased shortly thereafter in order to provide room for future expansion, said Tom Coleman, a club director.

Members plan to have Hills remodel the existing 27 holes and then design a fourth nine on the 89-acre parcel.

Hills and his associates recently completed the renovation of the "white nine" at Walnut Creek.

Hills has added mounds and bunkers to many fairways and extended several water hazards on the 6,653 white nine in order to provide members with a more challenging course.

"This course is designed to be played aggressively. You'd rather be long than short. There are no bunkers beyond the green. They are in front," said Coleman.

The "red" and "blue" nine will be renovated during the coming months. The red nine was closed June 1 and should be open during the spring of 1990, according to Thomas MacFarland, co-chairman of the public relations committee.

Walnut Creek will have 18 holes open throughout the entire renovation.

The eventual plan is to have the red and blue courses comprise one set of 18 holes. The recently opened white nine and the new course from the adjacent parcel combine to form the second 18.

Conrad stated that the two courses will have more descriptive names such as "the lakes" or "the woods" when the renovations are complete.

The Walnut Creek Country Club came into existence when members of the Farmington Hills Country Club decided to relocate. Club members selected the former site of Godwin Glen in Lyon Township after their previous location at Twelve Mile and Haggerty Road in Farmington Hills became too crowded.

"We were feeling restricted by Haggerty Road with the growth that is taking place out there," said Conrad.

Most members of the club have remained affiliated since the move, according to Conrad.

The club has increased its membership since moving to Lyon Township. Formerly, 266 members were allowed in the Farmington Hills Country Club; the new limit is set at 310, said J.B. Warford, co-chairman of the club's public relations committee.

In addition to the renovation of the golf courses and construction of the new nine, a driving range, new clubhouse, tennis courts and swimming pool will also be part of Walnut Creek Country Club.

Construction of the enormous new clubhouse is under the direction of the A.Z. Shmina and Sons Company.

The clubhouse opens for members July 1 and a grand opening reception is planned for Aug. 1, MacFarland said.

The clubhouse will have men's and women's locker rooms, a large dining area, kitchen, men's grill, a mix-ed room, board offices and meeting rooms, according to Conrad.

The Wayne County round will be played at Brae-Burn Golf Club in Plymouth on June 26.

Mary Yurko, IYGC Chairperson for the Wayne County Independent Insurance Agents, says more than 900 young golfers entered 18 qualifying tournaments in Michigan last year.

"Winners of the local tournaments will compete in the Michigan finals on July 16-17 in Cadillac," Yurko said. "And the top six Michigan winners will have the chance of a lifetime to play with a PGA pro at the national IYGC finals at the Texarkana Country Club this August in Arkansas."

Teen golfers are paired with touring pros for the final IYGC round. Last year's participating pros included: Billy Mayfair; U.S. Amateur Champion, Bill Rogers; former British Open Champion Tommy Armour, III. ## Athens ends state title bid as center fullback — back to her normal spot as a midfielder, in order to generate more offense. As a result, the Mustangs seemed to pick up the pace a bit.

At the 17-minute mark, Dart was positioned in front of the net and headed a throw-in from Loper but it sailed just wide to the right. At the 13-minute mark, Goode put a shot on goal off a direct kick, but it was stopped by McGough. And with less than two-minutes remaining, Goode beat her defender wide to the left and had an uncontested shot from a tough angle on the left side, but it missed the mark to the left. It was Northville's last scoring chance.

In the huddle after time ran out — as the Athens players were celebrating — Paul said this to his team: "I couldn't be prouder of you — even in losing, you are still champions. You represented Northville very well, so keep your heads up."

Despite the second half run by Athens, Northville still held a 12-11 edge in the shots on goal department when it was all over. Each player received a runner-up medal during the post-game ceremonies and Paul accepted the runner-up trophy on behalf of the team and the school.

When Athens Coach Tim Storch was awarded the title trophy, he turned to the Mustangs and said "You're a super team and you did a good job today."

It was Athens first girls soccer title after appearances in the finals in 1985 and '86.

"We're a young team — we have only three seniors — so it means a lot to me as a coach," Storch said. "I was not happy after the first half because I thought we were intimidated. But in the second, we put a lot of pressure on them and we had the wind."

"I thought we were a little deeper but both teams were very fit. We know Northville's a great team defensively but they've had problems scoring goals. We thought one or two goals would win it."

Throughout the entire ceremonies, the Mustangs kept their composure.

"The kids still managed to hold their heads up, even though they were very disappointed," Paul said. "They carried themselves with class. The whole community should be proud of these kids. I know I'm honored to be associated with them."

"I have no complaints at all. But I fully intend to be back in the final four next season."

Suspensions cloud championship run

By JEFF HAWKINS

Northville's run for the girls state soccer championship took a sharp turn for the worse when senior defender Heather Sixt had the unfortunate distinction of becoming the second player in as many games to be suspended from action for undisclosed disciplinary reasons.

"It's an issue that was obviously disappointing and it hurt us in the games," Head Coach Bob Paul said.

Sixt was relieved from duties after she was involved in an incident that forced that the administration to take action against her.

"It was tough," Paul said, but he would not comment further on the issue.

Sixt joined teammate sophomore halfback Marcie Dart, who was suspended for the Mustangs' semifinal game against Kalamazoo Central the Saturday before the finals.

Dart, one of the premier 10th grade players in the state, was permitted to participate in the finals against Troy Athens, while Sixt watched from the stands.

Both players were named to the Western Lakes Athletic Conference first-team All-Conference team this past season.

The game was played at North Farmington High School before a crowd estimated at 1,000 with the RedHawks defeating the Mustangs 1-0 for the state title.

While the exact details of the incidents were not released, the administration did comment on their reactions to the situations.

"It is an internal situation that has been dealt with," Northville High Principal David Bolitho said. "There is no sense in dragging it through the public when it is a school problem."

Bolitho said he would not comment further on the problem because "there has been enough turmoil and those kids don't need any additional publicity."

"Kids make mistakes and they've paid the penalty," he added. "That's all they need to go through."

Paul said the team reaction to the news was somewhat surprising.

"Oddly enough, there wasn't any resentment toward these two players from the rest of the team," Paul said.

Bruce Weintraub and Neil Geoghegan contributed to this story.

Motorsports induction slated for today

By PHIL JEROME

The future of the proposed Motorsports Hall of Fame of America should become a whole lot clearer shortly after Thursday, June 15.

That's the date of induction ceremonies for the first eight members into the hall. And Novi's Larry Ciancio believes the success of the inauguration ceremonies will go a long way toward making the dream of a Motorsports Museum of America become a reality.

Ceremonies will be held at the Roostertail in Detroit, and better than 500 people are expected to attend.

"We're coming to the climactic thing — the first real event for the Motorsports Hall of Fame of America," said Ciancio, commissioner of the hall and former director of racing for PPG Industries.

"If things come off as planned — if we get the media exposure we're hoping for, it should go a long way toward demonstrating the viability of our concept," he added.

"After we demonstrate that we're for real, it should help us get the backing we need for our plans to build the Motorsports Museum of America."

The eight people to be inducted into the hall are Cannon Ball Baker (motocycles), Don Garlits (drag racing), Barney Oldfield (general), Richard Petty (stock cars), Jimmy Doolittle (air racing), A.J. Foyt (open-wheel racing), Phil Hill (sports cars) and Bill Muncy (power boats).

Four of the five living inductees — Foyt, Garlits, Hill and Petty — are expected to be present to accept their awards personally at the Roostertail. Doolittle, who is 92 years old and living in California, will accept the honor via a videotaped interview with ESPN's Larry Nuber, who will serve as master of ceremonies for the event.

Also expected to attend induction ceremonies are such luminaries from the world of racing as Carroll Shelby, Chris Economaki, Shirley Muldowney, Tom Sneva, Vince Granatelli and Bobby Unser.

Unser, who serves on the hall's board of directors, will be the keynote speaker.

Ciancio is clearly excited about the prospect of seeing those figures gathered in the same place at the same time.

"I'm not a historian, but I rather doubt that the four inductees who will be present have ever sat down together at the same time," he said. "It's going to be an exciting event."

The first-ever inaugural ceremonies mark the culmination of approximately four years of work toward making the Motorsports Hall of Fame and Museum a reality.

Ciancio "sold" the idea of establishing the Hall and Museum in Novi four years ago to Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall and then-Mayor Robert Schmid.

Long-range plans call for the Hall to be located in the Museum which will be constructed in Novi. City officials are so supportive of the concept that they have donated a 99-year lease on a 10-acre parcel east of the Novi Town Center as the future site of the museum.

Ciancio is convinced that the Motorsports Hall of Fame and Museum is a viable concept and will bring national exposure to Novi.

"There are 55 million racing fans in the United States," he said. "That's a lot of people... a lot of interest. And we could make Novi the home of motorsports."

"I think there's the potential that Novi could become to motorsports what Cooperstown is to baseball."

Although he admits it has been an uphill climb, Ciancio believes the induction ceremonies that will drive plans for the museum forward.

He noted that 22 major corporate sponsors have each donated at least $5,000 toward first-year expenses. The list of sponsors includes the Ford Motor Company, Valvoline, STP, Chevrolet, Cadillac Motor Car and Northwest Airlines.

"I think there are other potential sponsors out there in the wings, waiting to see if we can pull this off," said Ciancio. "With the exposure we receive from the induction ceremonies, a lot of people are going to realize that this concept is valid and will come on board very quickly."

"I think we're right on the verge of being able to proceed with plans for the museum."

Mental training workshop offered

Schoolcraft College and The Competitive Performance Center are hosting a Mental Training Program for dedicated athletes and coaches in the Schoolcraft College Physical Education Building. Separate workshops for both athletes and coaches are being offered.

Many experts believe that as much as 90-percent of an athlete's performance under pressure is related to mental attitude. More athletes and sports professionals are learning that mental conditioning, as well as physical skill, is crucial to performance. Athletes who have not developed their mental skills will not reach their maximum.

Workshops for athletes are being offered on July 8, 10, 12, 15, 17, 19 and August 1, 3, 12, 19, 25, 27. The fee is $195. Workshops for coaches are being offered on June 24 and August 5 and the cost is $125.

Detroit Red Wing Team Psychologist and Northville Resident Hugh Bray will discuss the mental aspect of sports. He is the first full-time sports psychologist in the National Hockey League and is successful in working with both professional and amateur athletes. Terry Mills, the Director of the Competitive Performance Center, will offer his expertise on performance enhancement. He is a sports psychologist, a former youth coach and a competitive athlete.

Heart risks in women rise with age

Most people consider it a man's disease.

But heart and blood vessel disease is the No. 1 killer of women over 40.

That fact from the National Center for Health Statistics may be overshadowed because younger women have a relative immunity to coronary heart disease compared to men. Even so, women need to watch the same risk factors men do — smoking, high blood pressure and high blood levels of cholesterol, says the American Heart Association.

Many investigators have theorized that the reason premenopausal women have less risk of coronary heart disease than men of the same age is due to some protective effect from the female hormone estrogen. But studies have shown that, for unknown reason, estrogen increases the risk of heart disease in men.

During a nine-year study at 10 lipid research clinics in the United States and Canada, scientists investigated the role fats and cholesterol play in coronary heart disease. They found that women who took estrogen for menopausal symptoms had one-third the risk of death from heart and blood vessel disease of women the same age who did not take the hormone.

The Lipid Research Clinics Program Follow-Up Study, published in the June 1987 issue of the AHA's journal Circulation, included 2,270 women who were between 40 and 69 when the project began.

"In every age category where cardiovascular deaths occurred, estrogen users had cardiovascular mortality rates lower than those of non-users," the researchers said.

Statistical analysis showed that about half of the protective effect was due to estrogen's ability to increase levels of the so-called "good" form of cholesterol — that carried by high-density lipoprotein (HDL).

The beneficial effect of estrogen appears to be reinforced by a Harvard Medical School study. Six researchers analyzed data from 32,317 healthy postmenopausal women in their Nurses Health Study. The nurses were between the ages of 30 and 55 in 1976, and about half used estrogen. The younger women were considered postmenopausal if they had had their ovaries removed or had no ovarian function.

By 1980 the researchers found that the incidence of both fatal and non-fatal heart attack among nurses who had used estrogen was half that of those who had never used it.

"The results of this prospective study and other investigations are consistent with the hypothesis that post-menopausal hormone use markedly reduces the risk of coronary heart disease among postmenopausal women," they reported.

In contrast, another study in the same 1985 issue of The New England Journal of Medicine came to a different conclusion.

The Framingham Heart Study, a long-term study of residents in a Massachusetts town near Boston, included 1,234 postmenopausal women between the ages of 50 and 83.

After eight years the estrogen users had twice the risk of stroke and heart disease — heart attack and angina (chest pain) — of the non-users. Yet despite the apparent higher risks, the overall death rate in the two groups, from all causes and from cardiovascular diseases, was essentially the same.

Another report on the Nurses Health Study looked at whether there was a difference in heart disease risk between women who had a natural menopause and those who had hysterectomies (the removal of the uterus), with or without the removal of ovaries.

That study found no abrupt increase in risk of coronary heart disease at menopause among women who had a natural menopause, in which the ovaries gradually decrease production of the hormones estrogen and progesterin. Risk among women who had undergone hysterectomy alone or with the removal of one ovary followed a similar pattern.

However, there was an increased risk among women who had undergone a hysterectomy with the removal of both ovaries. But estrogen replacement therapy seemed to eliminate that risk, the researchers said.

"I think the studies are overwhelmingly in favor of estrogen's being beneficial," said Elizabeth Barrett-Connor, M.D., an epidemiologist at the University of California at La Jolla and co-author of the Lipid Research Clinics' report. She is also chairperson the AHA's Council on Epidemiology.

She said most of the 19 major studies she reviewed support that conclusion.

"Eleven of the 19 found that women who used non-contraceptive estrogen had a reduction in risk of heart disease of 50 percent or greater. Four of the others had a reduction of 30-50 percent. Two reported no difference. And two (the Framingham study and another that looked at a small number of women) found increased risk," she said.

Barrett-Connor said the apparent conflicts between the Framingham report and others could be because the women in the Framingham study were quite a bit older than those in the other studies and started using estrogen after, rather than during, menopause.

"We found excess heart and blood vessel disease in women over age 60 who took estrogen replacement therapy," said William P. Castelli, M.D., director of the Framingham Heart Study.

Castelli said he did not disagree with the other studies of estrogen as they related to women under 60. He said in the Framingham study heart and blood vessel disease occurred mostly in women who smoked, and there was almost no such disease in women under 60. Also the women in the Framingham study, which was begun earlier than the other studies, were given higher doses of estrogen than is now recommended.

"If you weigh all the positives and all the negatives of estrogen replacement therapy for menopausal women, overall I believe it is beneficial," said Castelli. "The estrogen dose should be kept as low as possible, and women should be warned that smokers are asking for trouble," he cautioned.

Fitness Tips

Rest and relaxation can relieve stress, boredom

By SCOTT DREWS

Are you feeling tired, stressed out, bored or just plain restless?

You're not alone. All of us have these feelings from time to time.

Vacations are one solution to the problem. Defined as a period of time for rest and relaxation, that is just what a good vacation should do — rest and relax you as well as prepare you for the inevitability of going back to work.

The mental and physical aspects of this period of rejuvenation are equally important.

Business meetings, phone calls and deadlines are all stress-inducing factors we would just as soon forget about while on vacation. Normally we just want to get away from it all. There are some simple yet effective ways to help you get through your well-deserved freedom and ways to avoid the possibility of the vacation itself becoming just what you don't want — a stressful situation.

Rest, exercise and food (REF) are important requirements for mind and body, especially if you're travelling and spending time in a new environment.

Rest is often overlooked when vacation time rolls around. The temptation to "do it all" is sometimes too great to overcome. Try not to vary your regular sleep patterns too much or your body's natural time clock may become disoriented and leave you tired or tense.

Exercise is important in any lifestyle and just because you're on vacation you shouldn't stop keeping your body in shape. Plan in advance for your daily dose of exercise, be it walking, swimming, biking or hiking. You can look for accommodations with fitness facilities available. These may include an actual fitness center as well as swimming pools, walking or nature trails and possible bike rentals.

Don't forget to pack accordingly. Bring along your hiking boots or running shoes, swimsuit and other appropriate gear.

Generally, 30 minutes of an aerobic activity each day will keep you feeling fresh and invigorated. A brisk walk after dinner, a bike ride or swim in the morning, a game of tennis, whatever you feel comfortable with is what is important.

Food is extremely important while you are away from home. The tendency to overeat and eat poorly leaves many of us with the feeling that we "let ourselves go" while on vacation. Try to be conscious of what you're eating and avoid the greasy spoons. Find the restaurants that serve nutritious foods with lower saturated fats, cholesterol and salt. Most establishments will be happy to assist you if you ask for help with the menu.

If you plan to camp or prepare your own food, then plan ahead and purchase with your health in mind. Remember, a daily diet consisting of 55 percent carbohydrates, 15 percent protein and less than 30 percent fat is what you should strive for.

So, let the good times roll, and most importantly, get plenty of rest and relaxation.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.
