Project start is delayed

By DARRELL CLEM

Revised plans for the MainCentre complex in Northville have triggered a 60-day setback in the project, a developer said last week.

Mike Kahm, vice president of the Birmingham-based Singh Development Co., attributed the delay to design complications and the planned reconstruction of South Center Street.

Kahm said design changes created a "snowball effect," delaying work that officials had expected to begin by now on the building's foundation.

He said design revisions will be submitted for approval to the Northville City Council at the council's July 24 meeting.

Among the major changes made in the MainCentre project — a 112,000-square-foot, four-story complex of retail stores and luxury apartments — is the planned reconstruction of Center Street, south of Main.

Kahm said that Center is expected to be re-graded to make it less steep, to provide on-street parking and to give it the character of other downtown streets.

"It would make that part of Northville feel more like the rest of downtown," Kahm said.

He said that Singh plans to assume "the lion's share" of the added costs associated with Center Street.

Land deal hampered by delay

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Wayne County officials said progress has slowed on the sale of the 1,040 acres of county-owned land in Northville Township, but the township planning commission has moved forward in rezoning the land.

"We had to get a new financial-advisor firm, which held us up a couple of weeks," said county business developer Bill Wild. "We haven't made much progress on the plans yet."

Wild said the delay in choosing a financial advisor should not significantly alter the mid-September deadline established by the county for naming a development team.

He noted the financial-advisor firm of Coopers and Lybrand withdrew from the project. Plante and Moran, a Southfield-based accounting firm, has been hired as financial advisor.

In early June, four development teams submitted proposals to the county for development of the land, which runs along Five and Six Mile roads between Beck and Sheldon.

Included in three of the four proposals were golf courses — designed by legends Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, and Arnold Palmer.

Wild noted earlier that it would take the county six to eight weeks to review the proposals before narrowing the list from four to two.

He said Monday, however, the county should be able to slash the initial review period to about three weeks and then begin negotiations with the finalists.

Former Northville city clerk McAllister-Arms dies at 62

By DARRELL CLEM

Former Northville City Clerk Joan G. McAllister-Arms, who helped automate her office but never lost her human touch in dealing with the public, died Sunday at her Novi home. She was 62.

Friends said that Mrs. McAllister-Arms, who was city clerk for more than nine years before accepting a similar position in Oak Park, had been battling cancer.

"Joan was very thorough. She always wanted to do a good job," said Novi City Clerk Gerry Stipp, who had known her both professionally and as a friend for about 10 years.

"Joan was a very considerate person. She worked well with people," Stipp said. "She was just a very sweet and caring person."

Mrs. McAllister-Arms, a Detroit native, was born March 11, 1927 to Roy and Helen (Giddey) Grant. She lived in the area for 20 years.

Mrs. McAllister-Arms served as Northville city clerk from March 1, 1976, to June 14, 1985, when she changed jobs and was replaced by City Clerk Cathy Konrad.

"She was a friend to all of us here," Konrad said. "We had a good working relationship."

Konrad said that Mrs. McAllister-Arms oversaw the computerization of the city clerk's office's voting records, licenses, parking tickets, and other functions.

"She was instrumental in getting this office automated," Konrad said.

Longtime Northville City Council Member Paul Folino said Mrs. McAllister-Arms "was a very nice person to know."

"She cared about people. She would always find the time to listen to them," Folino said. "People would come in to talk to her about their taxes, and she would always be there to help."

Stipp said that Mrs. McAllister-Arms was "very active" in the Michigan Municipal Clerks Association, serving a one-year term as president beginning in June 1984.

She also served as president of the Oakland County Clerks Association and as chairperson of the election administration committee of the International Institute Municipal Clerks Association (IIMC).

Mrs. McAllister-Arms also had been convenor and panelist at IIMC conferences, and was appointed by Secretary of State Richard Austin to a task force to study the feasibility of enhancing the efficiency and accessibility of Michigan's voter registration system. She held CMC / AAE designation.

She was the first woman in Novi to coach little league baseball for boys ages 13 to 15. Among the organizations in which she served as officer were the Novi Boosters Club and the Oakland County Educational Secretary Association.

She had been active in the First United Methodist Church of Northville.

Mrs. McAllister-Arms is survived by her husband, H.C. Arms; two sons, Price McAllister of Northville and Robert McAllister of Novi; one stepdaughter, Molly Arms of Novi; three brothers, Harlan Grant of Wyandotte, Gary Grant of Texas, and William Grant of Northville; one cousin, Lois R. Mills; and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at First United Methodist Church with the Rev. Eric S. Hammar officiating. Interment was in Glen Eden Memorial Park in Livonia. Visitation was at Casterline Funeral Home in Northville.

The family would appreciate memorials to Personalized Nursing Services, 2010 Hogback Road, Ann Arbor, or to The Living Memorial Fund at First United Methodist Church.

Bond amount now lies with school board

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Results from the survey conducted by a citizens advisory committee show no clear-cut consensus exists as to whether the Northville School Board should place a $16-million or $30-million bond question on the Oct. 5 ballot.

However, Northville School Board members said the citizens advisory committee has provided valuable information for deciding which question should be put in front of voters.

Superintendent George Bell said the election date, originally Oct. 16, will be Oct. 5 due to scheduling conflicts with the Wayne County Election Department.

"This committee spoke with many well-connected and knowledgeable residents, which gives a lot of weight to the results," said school board President Glenna Davis.

"Now, we need to talk amongst ourselves and the members of the community to find out what voters will pass and what is in the best interest of the district," Davis said.

The citizen's advisory committee, which was made up of about 20 residents, canvassed their neighborhoods last week trying to gauge community support for an October school bond issue election.

Specifically, Bell asked committee members to research whether residents would be more likely to support a $16-million or $30-million bond issue.

If the $16-million question is placed on the ballot, the district would be committed to reopening Cooke School as a junior high — and to making repairs at all of the schools at a cost of $4 million, updating instructional equipment for $3.22 million, and building a new elementary school by 1993-94 at a cost of $8.5 million.

Placing a $30-million question on the ballot would include all of the above items except reopening Cooke as a middle school. In place of that, the district would build a new middle school within the next 2½ years at a price of $12 million to $15 million.

Approximately 11 of the committee members said a majority of people they spoke with favor the $16-million question.

About eight committee members said the residents they surveyed were in favor of the $30-million bond issue and building a new middle school facility.

Since Cooke School is already built, many residents favored reopening the school as the first alternative to ease overcrowding problem at

WTUA gets state composting grant

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) was recently awarded a $242,081 grant for composting projects by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

"We're now getting a chance to get into recycling," said Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss. "I am excited and looking forward to exploring projects in recycling, along with composting."

WTUA is a joint municipal authority formed by the townships of Northville, Plymouth, and Canton to provide trash-management and sewage-disposal alternatives. WTUA communities are currently involved in a sanitary-sewer project with the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority (YCUA).

"Northville Township is committed to solid-waste-stream reduction, and this grant will certainly help our efforts," Goss said.

WTUA received the grant by applying for Quality of Life Environmental Bond funds, a program approved by Michigan voters last November.

Plymouth Township Supervisor

Maurice Breen said in a press release that the funds will be used to divert yard waste — such as grass and leaves — from WTUA-area landfills.

He said distribution of the funds will occur after final legislative appropriation.

"When approved, the grant will represent a major development in our communities' recycling and environment efforts," Breen said. "It's really a tremendous boost for the three WTUA townships."

Without any composting or recycling plans currently in place, Goss said, the grant will give WTUA its first opportunity to "take a concrete step forward."

She noted WTUA applied for the grant last April. "This is just one more benefit in being combined with other townships," she said.

Since the grant has been awarded for composting, Goss said the money could not be diverted to WTUA's sewer project. "I'm excited that we're branching out to more than sewers," she said.

She added WTUA has also recently applied for a DNR recycling grant.

Meads Mill Middle School, according to many of the committee members. "People I talked to favored reopening Cooke since they felt the district should use what they already have," committee member Rill Currie said.

"This did not seem to be a money decision." Meanwhile, committee member Barbara Hall said many of the 25 or so people she surveyed were not even aware of the school's overcrowding problem.

After explaining the issue, Hall said, most of the residents favored the $16-million question.

"The consensus was to reopen Cooke," Hall said. "The universal thought of people I talked with was that the community programs (which are currently housed at Cooke, and would be displaced) were not an absolute necessity."

Township resident Francis Durham said, however, that most of the residents he spoke with were in favor of addressing community growth and building a new middle school.

"People said they did not want to use a stopgap program, but instead wanted to put up a building,"

Durham said. Bell said he will make a recommendation on which question he supports to board members at their July 31 special meeting. The board will then decide on which question to place on the ballot.

Reconstruction plans force 60-day delay in MainCentre project

"We don't have any problem with that," he said. City Manager Steven Walters said the city also may help cover the added expenses. Kahm said that he did not yet have cost estimates and that details of a cost-sharing agreement between Singh and the city remain to be worked out. Based on costs, Kahm said that Singh will need to make a final determination on the feasibility of on-street parking. Kahm said that 13 parking spaces have been proposed for Center Street. That many spaces would cost about $35,000 if they were included in a parking deck planned for MainCentre, he said, although additional work to reconstruct Center Street will drive up that cost. Kahm had pegged earlier total cost estimates at about $6 million. In what he termed a "little setback," Kahm said the changes forced developers to make "ever-so-slight" revisions in the building plans. Walters noted that the latest revisions are not the first. Earlier, city officials worked out a plan with Singh in which the developer agreed to have the Main Street facade of MainCentre set 20 feet back from Main, instead of the originally planned 10-foot setback. In exchange, Walters said, the city agreed to give developers an additional 10 feet of space near Cady Street for the complex. Meanwhile, Kahm predicted that work on the underground utilities for MainCentre will begin in early August. A groundbreaking on the building's foundation could be held in mid-August, he said, depending on whether orders for steel are delivered by then. And in other developments, the Historic District Commission last week gave final approval to the architectural design of MainCentre, including such items as brick color.

Kahm predicted that the project will be completed in about 15 or 16 months, although he said some retailers could conceivably begin moving into MainCentre as early as next spring. Kahm said the complex should be in full use by next fall. He had predicted as recently as last month that the project could be in full swing as early as next summer.

"At first I didn't want to talk about our funerals. But, now I'm glad we did."
We chose ForethoughtSM funeral planning. It's one of those things that's so easy to put off, put out of your mind. And I guess that's what I was doing. But, once he started asking me questions about how I wanted my funeral to be, I realized how important it is for the people we leave behind to know these things. He had no idea that I wanted a simple eulogy, and just that discussion alone started us on all sorts of other topics. I found out he doesn't like organ music. We even had a few laughs.
Forethought is funeral planning... before the need arises
I thought planning our funerals together would be a terribly sad thing. But, actually, it brought us both a great sense of relief. Now we know neither one of us has all those decisions facing us in the future and we won't have to second-guess whether we did the right thing...did what the other one would have wanted. It's all planned and even paid for with the Forethought life insurance policy designed and approved specifically for Forethought funeral planning. And, there's a policy available to anyone up to age 100. There's a real peace of mind that comes with having it taken care of ahead of time with Forethought.

MANAGER UPDATE — Township Supervisor Georgina Goss said the manager selection committee has received about 400 applications for the unfilled position.

She added the selection committee — made up of herself, trustees Tom Handyside and Richard Allen, and Betty Lennox and Dan Nelson, will be meeting this week or next week to begin the initial review process.

BIN DELAYED — A recycling bin that had been scheduled to arrive at the Northville Department of Public Works yard on July 11 still had not arrived early Tuesday afternoon, July 18.

Officials said the company making the bin has been faced with a backlog of orders, causing a delay in the delivery.

A spokesperson at the DPW yard said Tuesday that she did not know when the recycling bin would arrive.

The bin will be used as a drop-off point for tin cans, glass and plastics. It will be used on a voluntary basis.

LIBRARY SCHEDULE — Due to inventory procedures, the Northville Public Library will be forced to close its doors to the public on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings during the month of August.

The schedule during that month will be 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Mondays, 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesdays through Thursdays, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Fridays.

SUMMER READERS — Northville Public Library's Summer Readers will celebrate their final party at 2 p.m. Wednesday, July 26.

Reading certificates, prizes, and refreshments will be awarded, and the Actor's Company will perform "Tales from the Arabian Nights."

Last week's attendance again surpassed 200 and included poster puzzle contest winners Tiffany Chichester, Caroline Coza, and Sarah Gutowski.

CWW APPOINTMENT — Daniel P. Gilmartin was appointed the new executive director of the Conference of Western Wayne (CWW) at the organization's June meeting of its board of directors.

CWW is a consortium of seventeen western Wayne County communities, including Northville Township and the City of Northville, established in 1980 to improve local government and administration through cooperative effort. It offers a coordinated base for discussing mutual problems, rendering special and general services as may be deemed advisable, and by fostering greater public awareness of local governmental issues.

Gilmartin, 23, has been a citizen of Livonia since 1969. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan — Dearborn with a degree in economics and political science. His previous work experience includes a 1988 stint in the office of state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville Township.

Mill Pond residents petition city

By DARRELL CLEM

Lacy and Bill Michaluk have pulled debris from Northville's Mill Pond in attempts to keep the water clean.

Although they've had help from neighbors, they fear that their efforts are about to dry up — literally.

Since they moved to their pond-side home at 536 Rouge St. about 10 years ago, the Michaluks have watched Mill Pond slowly deteriorate and become less suitable for fishing, boating, and swimming.

They've seen small islands form in the pond and grow bigger. And they've seen worsening mosquito problems from the stagnant pond, located northwest of Griswold Street and southeast of such streets as Rouge and Lake.

"It used to be just a beautiful, deep pond," Lacy Michaluk said. "It has just gotten to be a murky mess."

Now, the Michaluks and 17 other Mill Pond households have signed a petition asking the City of Northville to take action.

Lacy Michaluk said last month's floods triggered a deluge of debris that flowed from the Rouge River into Mill Pond, adding to the problem.

"And we get all of Novi's garbage," Bill Michaluk added. "I think it's a disgrace."

In the petition, Mill Pond residents urge the City of Northville to explore whether Novi-area developers should have some responsibility "in keeping the Rouge clean and in rectifying some of the damage their dirt has caused."

"At any rate, prompt inquiry into this aspect of the problem seems to be in the city's best interests," the petition states.

Moreover, the petition notes that Mill Pond islands "are mostly located over the main sewer line that is laid in the pond." Residents believe the trees growing on those islands could interfere with the sewer system.

The combined problems led Lacy Michaluk to pose the question: "Are we even going to have a Mill Pond in 10 or 20 years?"

Although she said residents can still fish in the pond, she said the debris and islands have made the water increasingly inappropriate for boating or swimming.

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Mill Pond resident Lacy Michaluk wants the city to clean out the pond. With her are husband Bill, sons Kendall and Nicholas, and neighbor Ed Schutz on a growing island in the pond

Ed Schutzler of 522 Rouge St., who used to go boating on the pond, said he is disappointed to see it in its current condition.

"It's just gradually filling up," Schutzler said.

Ideally, residents would like the city to implement a dredging program to restore the pond to its previous condition — or to maintain the water's current depth.

"At the very least," the petition states, "we would like to know what help the city can give us in our efforts to keep the mouth of the Rouge unblocked by debris, rocks, and dirt."

Lacy Michaluk said that she and a neighbor, Jean Bryant, organized the petition, in part, because local residents cannot bear the burden of keeping the pond clean.

Bill Michaluk added: "We pull garbage, hubcaps, and everything else out of the water. But we just can't keep up."

Ted Mapes, superintendent of the city's Department of Public Works, said that in the 20 years he has worked for the city, a dredging program has never been implemented at the pond.

"It would certainly take some engineering studies," he said.

And some money, too, City Manager Steven Walters noted.

Walters said he did not know what a dredging program might cost, although he added that it would undoubtedly cost "at least $10,000 or $20,000."

He noted that the city "is not trying to maintain (Mill Pond) as a resort lake."

Walters said no funds have currently been set aside in the city budget to correct problems at Mill Pond. He said decisions about whether to take action would have to be made by the Northville City Council, which would need to set aside money for the project in a future budget.

Walters also said such a project would require the city to receive approval from the state Department of Natural Resources.

Lacy Michaluk, meanwhile, said she and her neighbors will wait for a response from the city before deciding what their next step might be.

"We really want to see something done," she said. "I would think that most people would want to keep Mill Pond."

Now 20 years later on the occasion of WHITEHALL'S 38th Anniversary we wish to simply, without fanfare, say thank you... to our friends, ...to our listeners, ...to our residents, and ...to our loyal staff who have made these 38 years so wonderful!

Lloyd and Mabel Johnson

Messages from Lloyd R. Johnson and Mabel K. Johnson, founders of Whitehall

It was July 20, 1951 and we had just purchased a nursing home which had only 2 patients at 40875 Grand River Avenue near Novi. My mother, she came in as the third patient.

Mabel cooked lunch and I carried the trays in and Mr. Pfeiffer, one of the patients said, "Who are you?" We then realized the previous owner had not told the patients that they were selling to us.

Now it is 1989 and we are celebrating 38 years. The company has grown to three divisions, Whitehall Convalescent Homes and Home for the Aged, WAAM Radio, and Whitehall Retirement Apartments in Florida.

With more than 200 wonderful employees, we have had the privilege of serving hundreds of patients and residents over the years; we have had the most popular radio station in Washtenaw County with the age 35 and over population, and we provide retirement apartments for 212 people in Florida.

We have been truly blessed. Mabel and I sincerely hope God will grant us a few more years heading up this exciting company.

Lloyd R. Johnson
I also want to say thank you.

The summer concert series at the downtown bandshell continued with a return visit by the Northville Jazz Orchestra last week. This week's concert is the Detroit Brass Society; the NJO returns Sept. 1.

Board endorses creation of Eight Mile school zone

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB and DARRELL CLEM

The creation of a school speed zone on Eight Mile near Center got the formal endorsement of the Northville Board of Education last week.

The school board approved the installation of the signs marking the zone and requested the City of Northville to install the signs.

There has been no formal agreement on who will install the signs, although the city has applied to the county for permission to do the work locally. Both city and school officials have mentioned — but not formally approved — a 50-50 cost sharing for the project.

The council last month adopted a resolution requesting Wayne County to create a "school speed zone" reducing the speed limit from 40 mph to 30 mph in the area of Amerman Elementary School and Northville High School.

Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton, who served on a local committee studying safety in the Eight Mile / Center area, said the signs will cost about $13,000. If the city installs the signs, Knighton said, the cost will drop by about $6,500.

"The work done by the committee and County Commissioner Susan Heintz (R-Northville Township) helped us find a solution," Knighton said. The committee formed in response to concerns about student safety in the area around Amerman Elementary and Northville High School.

The signs will include warning flashers to be turned on during the times students are going to and from school. An undetermined stretch of Eight Mile around Center will go from a speed limit of 40 mph to 30 mph during these times.

Knighton said the county will decide where the signs will be placed, even if the city installs them.

School trustee James Petrie praised the Amerman committee and Knighton for following through on this issue and finding a compromise solution.

School Superintendent George Bell emphasized the safety aspect in a July 5 letter to the Wayne County Office of Public Service, Division of Roads.

Bell wrote that "the safety of children crossing at the corner of Eight Mile and Center has been a great concern to the Northville Public Schools and to the Northville community for a number of years."

Bell added that the concern has "become heightened recently due to the increased volume of traffic on Eight Mile Road and the growth of the residential community serving the two schools."

Knighton said that an official from the Wayne County Road Commission contacted him in late May, alerting him that the county would allow the district to install "school speed zone" signs.

Prior to the road commission's proposal, Heintz sent a letter to State Senators Jack Faxon and Robert Geake, State Reps. Gerald Law and Willis Bullard, and Oakland County Commissioner John Calandro, informing them of the dangerous situation.

Knighton said the Amerman committee reviewed the plan in early June and endorsed the proposal.

Car damaged in Meijer parking lot

About $2,000 in damage was done to a 1983 Datsun parked at Meijer July 9 and 10, according to a township police report.

The victim, a Farmington Hills resident, said she parked her car in the Meijer lot while she shopped. Upon returning, she said she found boot prints and dents on the hood, roof, and trunk of the car.

Police said they found fresh damage to the front and rear quarter-panels of the car. Police added they have no suspects at this time.

ATTEMPTED BREAK-IN — Someone used a blunt object during an attempt to break into Orrin Jewellers on East Main Street, city police said.

Police reported that the plexiglass at the business was broken, setting off the alarm and apparently scaring away whoever was trying to enter.

Damage was estimated at $1,500. Police have no suspects.

CARS BURGLARIZED — Township police report two vehicles parked at the Northville Place Apartments were burglarized and damaged between 12:45 a.m. and 9:35 a.m. Friday, July 7.

The reports said the driver's side windows of both cars were smashed. Two radar detectors, worth $200 and $150, were stolen from the vehicles.

Police said a total of $270 worth of damage was done to the cars.

NORTHVILLE SIGN DEFACED — City police were dispatched Thursday, July 13, to investigate a wooden "Welcome to Northville" sign at Novi Road and Eight Mile Road that had been painted.

The sign had been painted with the words "Home of" — followed by the name of a local resident, police said.

MEIJER THEFTS — At least three people were charged with larceny at Meijer recently, according to township police reports.

A Livonia resident was charged with larceny after allegedly attempting to steal over $49 in merchandise from Meijer on Wednesday, July 12.

Township police said the store detective saw the subject take a pair of Reebok shoes and select them to the courtesy desk for a refund. After being denied a refund, she tried to leave the store with the shoes but was detained by store employees, the report said. The suspect was charged with larceny in a building and faces an Aug. 17 court date.

A Farmington Hills resident was also charged with larceny after trying to steal Nike tennis shoes worth $49.95 on Wednesday, July 12.

Township police said store detectives saw the subject put on the new shoes and leave his own in the Nike shoe box. The suspect then went through the checkout line and bought a mirror, but did not pay for the shoes. The suspect was charged with larceny in a building and faces an Aug. 17 court date.

Police said two Detroit residents were charged with larceny after trying to steal about $42 in merchandise from Meijer on Sunday, June 9.

Police said store detectives found the suspects remove a number of items from store shelves and conceal them in an empty black purse. Both then allegedly left the store without paying for the items. The suspects were both charged with larceny in a building and face an Aug. 10 court date.

PURSE SNATCHING — Township police report a purse worth $32 was stolen from an employee at the Mobil gas station on Six Mile Road and Haggerty on Thursday, July 6.

The victim told police someone stole her purse while it was sitting on a cooler inside the service station. Police said they have no suspects at this time.

RECOVERED VEHICLE — A stolen 1983 Pontiac was recovered shortly before 3 p.m. Tuesday, July 11, in the 4300 block of Doris, city police reported.

Police said the vehicle was found by its owner.

MOPED ITEMS STOLEN — Mirrors and a turn signal bulb valued at $20 were stolen from a moped sometime between 8 and 8:50 a.m. Wednesday, July 12, while the moped was parked at Northville High School, city police reported.

CAR BREAK-IN — City police reported that someone pried the lock off a car parked at McDonald Ford on Seven Mile Road and damaged the ignition and steering column.

Police said the vehicle, a 1955 Ford Bronco, received $650 in damages during the apparent attempted theft that occurred between 3 p.m. Friday, July 7, and 2 p.m. Tuesday, July 11.

Police found no fingerprints at the scene, and they have no suspects.

FENDER-BENDERS — At least two automobile accidents were reported to township police recently. They included:

A two-car accident occurred at 5:20 p.m. Friday, July 7 on Haggerty Road at Six Mile. Police said one car was southbound on Haggerty while another tried to turn onto northbound Haggerty from the Mobil gas station. Police said that car turned into the path of the first, resulting in a collision. The driver of the second car was ticketed for failing to yield.

A two-car accident occurred at 5:45 p.m. Wednesday, July 12 on Northville Road at Seven Mile. The driver of one car said she was northbound on Northville Road, put on her right turn signal, moved into the right-turn lane, and collided with a second car. That driver said the first car moved from the left lane into the right and hit him. Three witnesses reported seeing the accident, and the driver of the first car was ticketed for an improper lane change.

DRUNK DRIVING ROUNDUP — At least one driver was ticketed for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor (OUIL) by police over the past week.

A Plymouth resident was stopped by township police at 2:07 a.m. Wednesday, July 12 on Six Mile Road at Sheldon. Township police said they were alerted by a Michigan State Police (MSP) officer that the subject staggered into a car at the Mobil gas station on Six Mile. Police said they then saw the car on Six Mile weaving side to side. After failing field sobriety tests, the driver registered a blood-alcohol level of .27 percent. In Michigan, 10 is OUIL.

The accident scene at Northville Road and Six Mile

One person hurt in vehicle pile-up

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

A Northville resident was hospitalized briefly from injuries she sustained in a three-car accident Thursday, July 13 at the intersection of Six Mile and Northville roads.

Susan Egner, 25, of Northville was transported to St. Mary Hospital and listed in guarded condition until she was discharged Sunday.

Kimberley Kuburis, 25, and Anthony Kuburis, 52, both of South Lyon, reported minor injuries. Michael Sanfilippo, 25, of Wyandotte and Keith Nabozny, 22, of Lincoln Park were involved but not injured in the accident.

According to township police, a delivery truck driven by Sanfilippo was southbound on Northville Road at Six Mile and went through a red light.

Police said a car driven by Egner was going eastbound on Six Mile and ran into the truck at the Northville Road intersection.

The truck then turned in the intersection and another car, which was driven by Kimberley Kuburis. The truck fell onto the car driven by Kuburis.

Police said they issued a ticket to Sanfilippo for failing to stop for a red light.

Local bank robbery suspect arraigned

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

A Westland man charged with robbing banks in both Northville and Novi was arraigned recently in U.S. District Court on two counts of bank robbery.

James Carson Newman, 30, was released on $25,000 personal bond following his arraignment on information before U.S. Magistrate Lynn Hooe.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Debold said Newman waived his right to indictment and stood at an arraignment, which means he did not appear before a grand jury on the charges.

Debold noted the arraignment on information has the same amount of power as an indictment.

Newman was scheduled to appear at a pre-trial meeting before U.S. District Judge Lawrence Zatkoff on Tuesday, after the Record's deadline.

At the arraignment, Newman was charged with two federal counts of armed bank robbery. If convicted of both counts, Newman could face up to 40 years in prison and a maximum fine of $40,000.

The robberies took place Feb. 6 at the Comerica Bank at 39475 West Ten Mile in Novi and Feb. 16 at the Comerica Bank at 39901 West Eight Mile in Northville Township.

Newman was recently determined competent to stand trial and to assist in his own defense at a hearing before Hooe.

At the pre-trial meeting, Debold said, Newman was to have had the opportunity to work out an agreement with the government or opt to stand trial.

Newman's attorney, Steven Bullock, said any outstanding issues which have gone unaddressed will be settled at the pre-trial hearing prior to setting a trial date.

Bullock added he is pleased that Newman was released on bond at the arraignment. Prior to the arraignment, Newman had been held without bond in the Wayne County Jail.

"All that's happened (the granting of bond) has been within the jurisdiction of the magistrate (Hooe)," Bullock said. "Since he (Newman) had no prior record and has family ties in the community, I sure these two points had an impact on the granting of bond."

Debold said Newman has been placed under close supervision, meaning that his travel has been restricted to the eastern district of Michigan.

He added that Newman also has agreed to enter an outpatient drug treatment program as part of his bail requirement.

Township police receive decade-old conduct case

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

An eight- to 10-year-old case of criminal sexual conduct (CSC) has been referred to the Northville Township Police Department by Wayne County.

The first-degree CSC violation took place at the home of a former township resident, according to township police Capt. Phil Presnell. First degree is the most serious kind of criminal sexual conduct.

Presnell said he could not comment any further on the case and could not release the identity of anyone involved in the incident. He did not say what action the police will take on the referral.

Meanwhile, Margaret Anzinger, director of public affairs for the Wayne County Department of Social Services, also said she could not comment on the case.

Anzinger added the confidentiality associated with cases of this nature would prohibit her from giving any information related to it to the public.

Investing in firearms

Police officials explain increases in gun registration permits

By LISA FELICELLI

While gun registration figures are increasing locally, authorities said growing residential communities and a renewed recreational interest — not a fear of crime — are the main reasons.

"This area's population is expanding in leaps and bounds," said Novi Police Capt. Richard Faulkner. "But most people interested in purchasing a firearm are either after a particular make and model for their collection, a hunting weapon, or a good investment."

"Those after a means to protect their homes aren't in the majority at all."

Homeowners are less inclined to purchase a firearm for their family's protection today because of possible safety hazards, Faulkner said.

Northville City Police Capt. James Petres agreed that recent studies indicate it's much more likely a firearm will be used against its owner or in an accidental firing instead of as protection.

"Between 1,400 and 1,600 people are killed each year through firearm accidents, and between five and seven times as many are wounded in local communities," said Dennis Smith, director of public education at the Center to Prevent Handgun Violence in Washington, D.C.

He added that about a third of all those involved in handgun accidents are under 14 years of age.

Because of these statistics, Faulkner said that when people wish to apply for a license to purchase (LTP) a handgun, the Novi Police Department assures them that police can be at a residential home in a matter of minutes.

"If that doesn't deter prospective owners, we advise them to consult an attorney who can explain to them the ramifications of an over-anxious firearm handler shooting an innocent person. Most of those people end up being prosecuted," Faulkner said.

"However, this is more prevalent in big cities such as Chicago and Detroit, rather than in smaller communities."

Petres added that both the Northville and Novi communities are notably safe, citing only four cases of breaking and entering in his jurisdiction last year.

"More often than not, the same person or same small group is responsible for a number of break-ins, which throws our actual figures way off," he explained.

While the number of break-ins remains relatively low, local firearm registration numbers are continuing to rise, and at a rapid rate.

In Northville Township, Capt. Philip C. Presnell noted that 57 LTPs were issued for 1988. So far, the Northville Township Police Department has issued 66 LTPs in 1989.

"Our figures indicate that gun registrations are really going to jump this year," Presnell said.

Petres said there were 24 LTPs issued in the City of Northville by the end of May, compared to 16 in the same period last year. The city issued 54 permits during all of 1988, he said.

"In Novi we issued 77 LTPs during the first six months in 1988," Faulkner said. "During the first six months in 1989 we've issued 176."

Authorities explained that the LTP and registration numbers are rising because of community growth. Faulkner also attributed the rising figures in Novi to a local gun shop, Hunter's Run, which caters to competitive shooters.

"We've been doing well, but plan to move from retail into a training and program-development facility," said owner Kevin Gasiewski. The retail store closed last week to prepare for the switch.

Although the loss of the shop's firearm sales will most likely have an effect on the number of local LTPs and handgun registrations issued, gun collectors, traders, hunters, and business people looking for a good investment may keep the figures high.

"Guns are a good investment," Faulkner said. "I bought one for less than $100 and sold it in the early '70s for $450. Today, that same gun is worth $600."

Depending on the make and model of a firearm, its value may increase from 25 to 50 percent in a relatively short time, he said.

Handguns, which are classified as any firearm measuring 30 inches or less in length, are also growing more popular with hunters.

"Avid hunters are beginning to choose handguns that handle the same amount of ammunition that the long rifles do, because the smaller firearms are easier to handle," Faulkner explained.

And, of course, just as there are people who collect seashells, shoelaces, and shower caps, there are people who collect guns. These enthusiasts often attend gun shows and purchase more than one firearm at a time.

Township and city police and the county sheriff began issuing LTPs and firearm registrations in 1987 under Michigan law, Presnell said. Before then, residents could only apply for a firearm with the county.

To obtain a license to purchase a firearm, an individual must meet these Michigan law requirements:

- Be at least 18 years of age and, under federal law, at least 21 if buying from a Federal Firearms License dealer.

- Present appropriate identification.
- Have been a Michigan resident for the past six months.
- Be a United States citizen.
- Have no felony convictions or confinement during the last eight years (including terms of parole or probation).

• Cannot have been judged insane, unless restored to sanity and so declared by court order.

"We also require applicants to fill out a fingerprint card for a background information check," Faulkner said. "Through a computerized process we can verify if they are who they say they are."

He added that the average person who wishes to purchase a firearm is a responsible, law-abiding citizen without a record.

"Anyone else wouldn't waste time coming in because they'd know they wouldn't get anywhere," he said. "Criminals usually obtain their firearms by stealing from residential homes." According to Smith, police reported that 100,000 guns nationwide were stolen from homes in 1988.

If the LTP is denied by the issuing agency, the individual can appeal the denial through the civil court.

Following the approval to purchase a pistol, the LTP is signed by the local authority and the license becomes valid for 10 days.

"Applicants must purchase their firearm within that time period," Presnell said. "Afterward, they return to us with the pistol so that we can verify if it has or hasn't been stolen."

If the applicant doesn't return with his firearm during those 10 days, the LTP expires and the local authority contacts the person for an explanation.

Otherwise, the seller completes and signs the LTP, including pistol description and date of sale, the purchaser signs as buyer and returns again to the local authority for a record and safety inspection, and the local authority forwards the LTP, registration and Safety Inspection Certificate to the State Control Gun Files. These are maintained by the Michigan State Police.

Presnell said that new firearm owners are able to order a booklet entitled "Concealed Weapons and Firearms Laws" from the state police that explains their rights as gun owners and offers important safety procedures.

State Rep. Burton Leland, D-Detroit, has authored a bill currently pending in the House Judiciary Committee that requires successful completion of a handgun education course prior to receiving an LTP.

New landfill facility on hold

Michigan's largest landfill operator has been unable to get permission from the state to open a new facility in Salem Township — a situation that has area trash haulers concerned.

Arbor Hills East Sanitary Landfill at Six Mile and Napier, which accepts refuse from 400 customers a day, including Northville, is nearly out of space. The neighboring, new Arbor Hills West "has been ready to go since January," but differences of opinion between the landfill operator and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources have held up licensing, said Dan Nelson, Arbor Hills district manager.

Arbor Hills is on a DNR list of contaminated sites. Liquid containing low levels of benzene and vinylidene chloride has seeped into groundwater in a field east of Napier Road in Northville Township. Benzene is a known carcinogen. Vinylidene chloride has been found to cause cancer in some animals.

Cynthia Noble, senior environmental engineer with the DNR's waste management division, said Browning-Ferris Industries, which operates the landfill, has taken steps to address the problem, but more must be done.

BFI built an underground wall that extends for nearly a mile around three sides of the landfill that is containing the source of contamination, "but contamination that currently exists in the field east of Arbor Hills East needs to be addressed," said Noble.

A myriad of different chemicals have been found in groundwater that flows into the Johnson Drain, said Noble. "Some are human carcinogens, and some are suspected carcinogens. It's not something you'd want to be drinking, that's for sure."

No drinking wells draw water from the contaminated area, Noble said. The Johnson Drain flows northeast to Seven Mile Road and empties into the Middle Rouge River just below Northville Downs.

Said Nelson: "We want to sign an agreement we can accomplish. We have had difficulty implementing an agreement because of what we feel was an inappropriate discharge standard that couldn't be technically supported."

The wall, three feet wide and 89 feet deep in spots, was finished in early June, and BFI "is doing more tests right now in different locations, making sure we know the extent of the problem."

"We are trying to get the best information possible to make this assessment so that we can negotiate those things which need to be modified," said Nelson. "We're also trying to obtain data to design a solution. So obviously there is some frustration on this end."

Customers have been understanding and Salem Township cooperative in allowing BFI to extend its hours, said Nelson, whose facility accepts residential, commercial, and industrial solid waste from most of Wayne and Washtenaw counties, and portions of Oakland, Macomb, and Livingston counties.

"We have to get into Arbor Hills West soon," he said. "I don't know that I want to say it has to be by a certain date; it's a matter of how difficult it is to deal with customers. It's going to get worse. But we simply will find a way to serve these customers. In the meantime, we appreciate them working with us to get through this service deficiency."

Noble said how soon Arbor Hills West opens depends on BFI.

"I can't pinpoint when everything will be pristine. When it will open will depend on them, and whether they're willing to sign an agreement that addresses the problems and concerns. We've tried to work with them, but unfortunately, everything is down to the 12th hour."

Township church rules closer to final approval

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

The controversial Northville Township church ordinance is one step closer to becoming law following a first-reading approval by the Northville Township Board on Thursday, July 13.

If the second reading of the ordinance is approved by the board Aug. 10, the ordinance would go into effect 30 days after publication.

Township Planning Director Carol Maise said the ordinance will apply to churches in residential districts and, among others restrictions, will limit the structures to a 48-foot average building height.

Maise said that in addition to the height limitation, the ordinance will also impose new setback and screening requirements, while prohibiting any front-yard parking.

Since the planning commission began considering the ordinance last January, discussion has mainly centered on the height limit of churches.

Township Fire Chief Robert Toms suggested the 48-foot limit is the maximum height which the fire department can service. He added the township could not provide fire protection for any building over 70 feet high.

Township Planning Consultant Claude Coates said using a building average of 48 feet, a church could potentially stand 66 feet high.

Before discussing the ordinance, Ward Presbyterian Church attorney Harold Larson briefed township board members on his church's feelings about the potential new law.

"We (Ward Church) are concerned about the ordinance, especially in terms of height," Larson said. "We agree with the township that a church's height should be limited, but we feel it should be governed by its relationship to its setback."

Larson said the height of churches should be relative to its setback from the roadway, since "church architecture is distinct from that of an office building."

"To arbitrarily fix on a number to establish church height takes away from the uniqueness of churches," he added.

Township Treasurer and Interim Business Manager Richard Henningsen told Larson that safety is his major concern in considering the height of the church building.

"I am looking at how high our fire department can fight a fire and our chief says it's 48 feet," Henningsen said.

While the ordinance, if approved, will apply to all churches, the timing of its inception has focused discussion of the ordinance squarely on Ward Presbyterian Church.

In January, Ward submitted a site plan for a 125-foot church to be built on the northwest corner of Six Mile and Haggerty roads. The site plan has recently been revised, and the proposed structure has been lowered to 108 feet.

The planning commission is slated to consider the Ward site plan at a special meeting Aug. 8.

Township Attorney Ernest Essad said if the ordinance is passed before the foundation of the building is laid, it could apply to the Ward plan.

He added the ordinance will apply to the Ward plan if it is in effect before the plan is approved.

Essad noted, however, that he expects the planning commission to make a decision on the plan Aug. 8. Planners have tabled the plan twice already.

In addition to the township planners' recommendation for approval of the ordinance last May, the Wayne County Planning Department recommended approval of the ordinance June 21.

Lansing prepares for lively anti-abortion public hearings

BY TIM RICHARD

Look for lively public hearings on anti-abortion bills around September or October.

That's when state Sen. Fred Dillingham's Human Resources Committee expects to take up four pieces of legislation in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision expanding states' rights of regulation.

"It's a committee designed for terror," said Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, a pro-choice vote whose district includes part of Northville. "It was a stacking of the deck — a double stacking of the deck."

"I wanted the bills to go to the Health Policy Committee," Faxon said after the intense Senate debate.

"Dillingham pledged a full opportunity for hearings and input," countered Northville's other senator, R. Robert Geake, a Northville Township resident and a member of Dillingham's panel. "I tend to support the bills, but I will keep an open mind."

The Human Resources Committee is one of the most conservative and pro-life in the Michigan Legislature. Chairperson Dillingham's name is associated with efforts to halt state abortion funding.

Besides Geake, a psychologist and pro-life vote, members are Harmon Cropsey, R-Decatur, a religious fundamentalist and part-time farmer; Gil DiNello, D-East Detroit, a commercial real estate broker; and John Cherry, D-Clio, a political professional.

Judiciary Chairperson Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, didn't think the bills belong in his committee because they weren't constitutional in nature.

And the Senate, in a procedural battle, rejected the effort of Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, to send the bills to the Health Policy Committee, chaired by the more moderate William Sederburg, R-East Lansing.

Dillingham was out of town and couldn't be reached for comment, but an aide said a few pieces of mail already have come in. Jim Crawford said Dillingham's committee "has done a lot of health issues. It wasn't shenanigans" to refer the package there.

The package includes:

- Senate Bill 513 (Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo) requiring parental consent for a minor to receive an abortion. The bill contains a "bypass" provision whereby the minor could request judicial approval for an abortion.

- SB 514 (Welborn) patterned after the Missouri law upheld July 3 by the U.S. Supreme Court. It would prohibit abortions in hospitals associated with the state and require medical tests to determine whether a fetus could survive outside the womb. It also contains a preamble declaring that life begins at conception.

- SB 515 (Dillingham) banning abortion counseling by state employees.

- SJR H (Dillingham), a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortions in state-employee benefit packages. A two-thirds vote of each chamber would be required to put the proposal before voters.

The NAC contingent in Lansing

Rally draws praise

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

A smaller-than-expected group of about 15 Northville residents participated in a statewide anti-drug rally held in Lansing last Thursday, July 13.

But despite the relative lack of local interest, the people who went to Lansing last week were treated to a number of informative anti-drug activities, according to local coordinator Scott Wilson.

The promotional tour for the so-called "Stop Drugs at the Source Treaty" program, stopped in Lansing last week as part of a nationwide tour to promote drug awareness.

The tour, which features a huge multi-colored trailer with anti-drug messages written on it, will conclude this September in Philadelphia, after making a stop in the nation's capital. The trailer, which was hand-painted by students, began driving across the nation from Georgia last March.

Wilson said the Lansing rally was the kickoff to an anti-drug campaign being started in each of the United States.

He said the tour is designed to unite and coordinate members of government, education, service organizations, religion, media, law enforcement, and business in an effort to keep drugs away from children.

Even though only three of the anticipated 30 carloads of local residents participated in the rally, Wilson said Northville was the largest group represented.

"I am disappointed in the turnout of the caravan," Wilson said. "I think this was a big step in the right direction, but citizen involvement is the key to getting something done.

"Northville is a close-knit community and is a prime spot to initiate the activities associated with 'the plan,'" he said.

During the rally, Wilson said, a document called "The Plan" was made available to show participants how they could exercise their constitutional rights to stop the availability of illicit drugs.

He added the program will be continued locally by the Northville Action Council (NAC), which helped to sponsor the local rally participants.

"The function of the NAC is really what this program is all about," Wilson said. "They try to bring the community together with a unified cause of fighting drug abuse."

A township resident for the past two years, Wilson said he personally decided to get involved in the anti-drug campaign in order to help his children.

"With a six-year-old and a four-year-old at home, these issues closely affect my children," he said. "I want to make a statement for them, as well as do something for the community."

If his daughter Aubrie's views are an indication, then Wilson's personal crusade against drugs seems to be very successful.

"At the rally, I learned not to use or start drugs," said Aubrie, 6. "Drugs trick your mind about the wrong things and I never want to use them."

In addition to getting a lesson on drug abuse, Aubrie also said she had a lot of fun in Lansing.

"I got to go to hands-on museum," she said with a grin.

Bell mum on schools' use of Ford Plant

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Northville School Superintendent George Bell met with Ford Motor Company officials last week on the possibility of the school district using part of the company's closed Northville Plant.

"I'm not in a position to give any information on the meeting," Bell said.

He did say it is possible the schools will acquire space in the Northville Plant. Details of the district's options are set to be outlined in a presentation of the Ford Plant study tonight (Thursday) at 6 p.m. in the school board meeting room.

Irrespective of the district's involvement with Ford, Bell said Northville schools will still need to be successful in passing either a $16-million or $30-million bond issue in October.

"The district's problem of aging infrastructure must be addressed," Bell said. "And there is no doubt that the growth of the district means we'll need another elementary school."

In addressing infrastructure problems, Bell said the district will need to repair or replace roofs, carpeting, and furniture in most of the schools. It also needs new buses, he said.

He added instructional items also need to be purchased so the district can meet the technology needs of its students.

"We do not have the technology now to satisfy the sophistication of kids' energy at this time," Bell said. "We currently have only 11 or 12 computers at Amerman, which is clearly not enough."

The school bond-issue proposal will likely include four purposes: building a new middle school, building a new elementary school, updating instructional equipment, and repairing the school infrastructure.

Bell said he probably would recommend not separating the purchases into four separate questions. "I believe in putting the package together and giving people enough information to make a decision," he said.

Local leaders say they're optimistic after meeting with Ford officials

By DARRELL CLEM

Local officials walked away optimistic last week after meeting with Ford Motor Co. to discuss potential uses for the automaker's closed Northville Plant.

"It was a good meeting," City Manager Steven Walters said.

Ford officials came here Wednesday, July 12, to meet with representatives of the city, township, and school district and to hear a presentation of a redevelopment study focusing on the Ford plant.

"We wanted to give them a chance to react to the study, and they reacted open-mindedly," Walters said.

Walters added that local officials did not reach the point of negotiating a possible purchase price for the plant, which closed last month after Ford consolidated some of its operations and moved local workers to other Ford facilities.

Several employees still are working at the plant, completing the shutdown.

Walters said local officials and Ford plan to schedule another meeting to open preliminary talks that could lead to local public purchase of the plant.

The redevelopment study cites various options for the Ford plant, including using the building for either entirely public or private development, or a combination of the two.

Officials are leaning toward the latter proposal, which could pave the way for a new location for the Northville Public Library.

Prior to the meeting with Ford, Walters had said the redevelopment study could be revised based on suggestions from Ford officials. But he said last week that Ford did not request any revisions.

"Nothing changed in the draft," Walters said, adding that the study "is going to the printer."

Although the final draft has not been released publicly, Walters has announced plans to publicly present the study in a special session scheduled this (Thursday) evening.

A brief overview of the study will be made by the Ann Arbor-based architectural firm Quinn Evans. Afterward, officials will field questions about the study.

Walters said the meeting, at 6 p.m. in the board of education room at 501 W. Main, will be attended by city, township, and school district officials.

School district employs twenty new teachers

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Twenty new teachers — part of the largest group teachers hired here in the last 15 years — got probationary contracts approved by the Northville Board of Education last week.

"These are 20 very fine people that we're hiring," said Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton, who added that the district still needs to fill four more teaching positions.

Knighton said the retirement of 10 Northville teachers this year, coupled with the addition of 14 new teaching positions, caused the largest district hiring in the past 15 years.

He noted the district posted teacher openings with Michigan Universities on April 17, with a closing application date of June 2.

The district received over 2,400 applications in early June, with the preliminary screenings done by Knighton and Administrative Assistant Don Van Ingen. Knighton, Assistant Superintendent Dolly McMaster, and building principals did the final screening.

School Board Secretary Carol Rahimi said the district should be commended for hiring people quickly and for getting quality teachers for the district.

Knighton said many of the new teachers have signed on for the inservice program the district is currently running.

Of the 20 new teachers hired by the district, only four have acquired tenure in another Michigan school system. Teachers with tenure will be on probation for one year.

State police proceed with testing of new infrared Intoximeter 3000 system

By LISA FELICELLI

Although law-enforcement officials say the Breathalyzer test that Michigan State Police (MSP) perform on people suspected of being intoxicated is effective, a more advanced method of determining intoxication levels is in the planning stages.

The computer-compatible, infrared Intoximeter 3000 has been tested by the MSP but hasn't yet been used in Michigan on actual subjects, according to Sgt. David Ford, who is stationed at the MSP Northville Post on Seven Mile.

"While the new infrared system is becoming more common in many states, the State of Michigan has yet to approve it," Ford said.

Ford explained that the new equipment will be thoroughly tested by Kalamazoo County as well as city, county, and state police branches during a pilot program beginning later this summer. The branches are enthused about working with the Intoximeter 3000 system.

"The Breathalyzer we work with now has been in use since 1954," Ford said. "It is accurate, but the Intoximeter offers updated advantages."

For example, the current Breathalyzer demands approximately four days of training, 20 to 30 minutes to perform the test, and costs $12 per test. The Intoximeter system only requires two days of training, five minutes to perform the test, and costs $2 per test.

"Besides being computer-compatible and automatic, which the current Breathalyzer is not, the Intoximeter also detects substances interfering with ethanol alcohol," Ford added. "The Breathalyzer we have now only identifies the alcohol."

Ford illustrated the significance of this feature by citing a case in Georgia. The state police arrested a man for drunk driving who claimed that he was not intoxicated, but rather that he had been painting and was high from toluene fumes.

The Intoximeter 3000 registered a large amount of ethanol alcohol, but a very small amount of toluene.

"He would have had to have been painting for three or four days straight to get as high as that system registered," Ford said.

Originally, infrared energy absorption, first studied in 1983, was used for drug analysis. However, with the discovery of electro-chemical oxidation, alcohol detection was implemented into the system.

"Basically, after an observation period, two main parts of the system are considered," Ford explained. "The first is for reference. It's simply clean air and acts as a control. Then there is the sample side."

To begin the testing process, Ford said that the person suspected of being intoxicated is first observed for 15 minutes. This allows sufficient time for alcohol molecules to evaporate from items such as false teeth and food particles in the mouth.

"If this time were not allowed, the system's reading of that intoxication level would be enhanced," Ford said. "We're only after the amount of alcohol intake affecting deep lung air."

Deep lung air is what the device registers as being very close to the individual's blood vessels, he added.

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Sgt. David Ford of the Northville State Police Post with the new Intoximeter 3000

The police operator then powers up the Intoximeter's wavelength system. After the individual blows into the chamber (or tube), alcohol molecules are absorbed as an energy source into the infrared wavelength. Meanwhile, the energy is being reflected through a mirror within the chamber.

"The sample side counts the molecules and sends out computerized results, as well as records those results on tape," Ford said. "We look at the reference side for the difference."

Ford added that the Intoximeter system cannot be tampered with because it is computerized.

"Our top priority is to rid the roads of drunk drivers, but we also want to make a legitimate effort to safeguard both the police department and the defendant from a defense attorney's claims that the device was tampered with," Ford said. "These readings are very accurate and can be proven by way of the computerized results."

Forty-three states are currently using the infrared Breathalyzer system, but the instrument will not be used in Michigan until after the pilot program in Kalamazoo County.

Living in pain

Local man survives near-fatal crash, learns to live with paralyzed arm

By DARRELL CLEM

It was March, 1983, when Carl (Bill) Signor III took his trail bike for a spin through a wooded area in Wixom.

It was one of the first warm days of spring, and the world seemed full of promise.

But as Signor rode his bike up a steep embankment, he didn't see another biker coming in his direction from the opposite side of the hill.

Seconds later, the bikers collided head-on, and their mangled bodies lay in shock until a 12-year-old boy, who happened to be wandering in the woods, went for help. Both men survived.

Signor, a Garfield Road resident, suffered a broken leg and internal injuries. But, worst of all, the accident severed the nerves of his right arm, leaving it paralyzed.

Six years later, Signor's emotional scars have healed. But the lingering physical pain rarely lets him sleep for more than two hours at a time.

"Nothing totally kills the pain," Signor said. "You just learn to live with it as best you can."

Signor and his mother, Jean, recently talked about the accident while sitting in their home on Garfield north of Eight Mile Road.

Although he still suffers pain, Signor knows that he's lucky to be alive. For nine days after the accident, he was near death.

"The doctors didn't expect him to live," said his mother. "He was in intensive care just hanging onto dead or alive."

After spending about six months in the hospital, Signor was confined to a wheelchair for another half-year. The accident cost him a $30,000-a-year job as a meat cutter for a grocery chain.

Now, Signor attends Oakland Community College, where he is studying computer programming, and he has learned to use his left hand to carry on his longtime hobby of carving wooden horses, shelves, grandfather clocks, tables, and other items.

He has a shop set up in the basement. Vice clamps are used to hold the wood steady while he works.

The treasured hobby was passed on from his late grandfather, longtime Northville resident and industrial-arts teacher Bud Zwickey. The hobby helped Signor earn several awards at Thurston High School in Redford.

"It gives me a lot of pleasure to make nice things like that," Signor said, pointing to a wooden horse that he plans to sell for $150. "It's one of the few things I can still do one-handed."

Signor said it took him more than three years to return to his craft.

"It took him three years to mentally feel like a person again," his mother said.

Since his accident, Signor has earned an associate's degree in liberal arts from Oakland Community College and is now studying for an associate's degree in computer science. He hopes to eventually earn a bachelor's degree in business, although he is seeking work and plans to complete school on a part-time basis.

Although Signor said he misses such activities as golfing and riding trail bikes and snowmobiles, he has learned to use his left hand for bowling and water skiing.

"I can ski, but I can't switch hands," he said.

Signor also has continued to repair cars, including a 1924 Model-T Ford that his late father, Carl Signor II, bought for $10 as a youngster.

Signor also has taken up a new hobby — reading. His favorite books are western novels.

"He never looked at a book before he had the accident," his mother said. "Reading has opened up a whole new world for him. It has helped him in school."

Signor said doctors have indicated that they could try a complicated back surgery technique in attempts to restore the use of his arm.

But his mother said there is the risk that he could be totally paralyzed — a risk that Signor has decided not to take.

Jean Signor said her son would be willing to have his arm surgically removed if it could be replaced by some type of useful artificial arm. But she said doctors have said that they cannot attach such a device to Signor's damaged nerves.

Still, Signor remains optimistic about the future. He hopes to find a job soon. And his five-year goal is to have some type of business career that would allow him to earn a salary similar to what he earned prior to the accident.

"I just think he's made a remarkable recovery," his mother said, adding that her son probably would have died if his body hadn't been discovered soon after the accident.

"I'm just glad that little boy was walking in that area that day," she said. "I think it was a miracle."

Victorian Festival committee seeks groups for booths

Plans for Northville's first Victorian Festival are moving into high gear and the central coordinating committee is looking for more non-profit groups interested in staffing booths as fundraising events.

The Victorian Festival will be held Sept. 15-17. The festival will encompass three days of street festival activities, Art Market booths, a Sunday picnic at Mill Race, and a Victorian Festival Ball on Saturday night.

Non-profit community groups may sign up for any of the available booths and use the festival as a fundraising event for their group. The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce will provide tables and skirting for the registration fee of $35. All clerks working at the booths must be in costume to fit the Victorian theme. Victorian Festival committee members are available to help plan easy costumes and resource material is available at the Northville Public Library. For more details, contact the Chamber of Commerce at 349-7640.

The following items are still available to be sponsored by a non-profit Northville community group for sale at the Victorian Festival.

Any group interested in sponsoring a booth should contact Greg Spinazze at 349-5855 or Don Mroz at 349-3340.

• Lemonade, strawberry shortcake, corn-on-the-cob, tea with muffins and breads, mums, patterns (for Victorian clothes), root beer floats, soda pop, cider, and doughnuts.

• A civic group is also needed to volunteer to help with parking and transportation duties.

Many local organizations have already volunteered to head up booths. The list includes:

The Kiwanis are sponsoring a popcorn booth; Jaycees are heading up a luminaries sale; the PTA Coordinating Council will sell candy apples and balloons; Single Place of the Presbyterian Church is heading up the sale of Victorian Christmas ornaments; Moraine PTA will sponsor a face-painting booth; Allen Terrace and the Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will sponsor sachet sales; the VFW and American Legion will sell flags and bunting; the band boosters will sponsor the sale of pumpkin bread; St. Paul's Lutheran Church will sell apple pie; and the Open Door Church will sponsor an ice cream social.

Planners cite issues for city's master plan study

By DARRELL CLEM

A recent clash that erupted when some Northville Planning Commission members said that Planning Consultant Don Wortman had taken control of charting the city's master plan study subsided last week.

Last month, Commissioner Roland Stapleton led the criticism of Wortman, suggesting that the consultant had proceeded with the master plan study without seeking enough input from the planning commission. Some commissioners disagreed with Stapleton's assessment.

Last week, the tension appeared to have subsided when the commissioners and Wortman met in a two-hour session to discuss issues that they want addressed as the commission prepares to develop a new master plan.

The city's master plan, a guide to long-term development, has not been revised for nearly 12 years. And Wortman indicated at the commission's Tuesday, July 11 meeting that the old master plan failed to adequately define clear-cut goals, objectives, and policies for the city.

Stapleton agreed, saying he preferred to see the commission "start from fresh" instead of using the old master plan as a guide for developing a new plan.

Wortman said his firm, Ayres, Lewis, Norris & May Inc., wants to help the city develop a more thorough master plan this time.

"We want to help you direct the discussion of the master plan," Wortman said. "But we want to listen, too."

Wortman submitted to the commission a tentative schedule for developing the master plan between now and January or February — by which time the planning commission hopes to adopt the plan and submit it to the city council.

After some initial discussion last week, Wortman placed an easel in front of the commissioners and began to jot down issues they cited as important to the master plan.

Much of the discussion focused on such issues as residential-versus-commercial growth, maintaining Northville's small-town character, traffic flow, and the local tax base.

Commissioner Gregory Presley, who came to the meeting with a prepared list, suggested that the city maintain a three-story maximum for buildings, restrict multiple-family residential development, establish "growth zones" for further commercial development, and enhance greenery.

Presley also said the city should conduct a study to reduce traffic congestion, find ways to increase the public "enjoyment of watercourses," and maintain current density levels.

Among the suggestions from Commissioner David Totten were to physically improve roads leading into the city and to diversify the cultural and recreational opportunities for youngsters.

"If kids aren't born with a (baseball) glove on their hand, there's not a lot for them to do in Northville," Totten said.

Among the needs cited by Commissioner Donald McCulloch were to preserve the city's downtown character and to discourage traffic from passing through the city.

"I want people to come to Northville and then go home, and not just go through on their way to Twelve Oaks Mall," McCulloch said.

McCulloch also called for an increased emphasis on the residential nature of the city, as opposed to commercial, and said that Main Street should be the primary focus of the downtown area.

Commission Chairperson Richard Wilhelm identified the need to address such issues as intergovernmental coordination with neighboring communities, more recreational activities, and the development of a senior citizen housing policy.

Stapleton, meanwhile, said the master plan should serve the purpose of making Northville a "defensible community" in terms of protecting itself against increased crime, economic domination, and other unwanted forces.

Some commissioners suggested that the city "down-zone" in the future, possibly rezoning some areas from industrial to residential. But some also noted that the effects on the city's tax base would have to be considered.

Wortman offered words of caution on down-zoning: "The rule of thumb is that you've got to be very careful about down-zoning. You can get the city in trouble if you try to down-zone from industrial to residential."

Totten said the city must be realistic in setting long-term goals.

"We are not gods," he said. "If we try to propose too many criteria, what we're doing is kidding ourselves, and we're developing a master plan that's not workable."

After the commission defined issues, Wortman also listed several of his own — most of which coincided with those suggested by commissioners.

Wortman said he planned to take the commission's suggestions to his office and have them formulated into a preliminary draft of issues. From that point, he said, the commission should begin to focus on developing broad goals.

The commission also plans to conduct public hearings in the future to receive public input on the master plan.

Proposed real estate office granted final city approval

By DARRELL CLEM

The final hurdles to converting a South Main house to a real estate office have been cleared by the developer, who won final site-plan approval last week from the Northville Planning Commission.

The latest move sets the stage for developer Carl Follmer to proceed with plans to put a real-estate office into a house at 426 S. Main, near the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall.

"I think we've done the things that this board has asked us to do," Follmer said during the commission's July 11 meeting.

Follmer's plan faced stumbling blocks last month, when the planning commission tabled a decision on Follmer-Stone Associates' proposal until questions about outdoor lighting, landscape work, and parking could be resolved.

But Follmer revised the plans and returned to the planning commission last week, winning the endorsement of every commissioner except one, Chris Gazlay.

Gazlay, who said he fears that the real estate office will create more traffic in an alley behind the house, voted against the plan.

Planning Consultant Don Wortman, in recommending that the planning commission approve the proposal, said that Follmer had addressed previous concerns of the city's consultants.

Follmer said his company has agreed to pay for landscape work to be done at the site. He said that $500 would be placed in an escrow account until landscape details can be worked out with the VFW.

Follmer also said a traffic pattern has been planned in which those parking at the building would exit onto Main via the VFW parking lot — not the alley.

He indicated that a small section of the alley would be used, but only so that motorists could make a U-turn from Follmer-Stone Associates through the VFW lot. He said one-way traffic flow would be marked by directional arrows.

Gazlay raised additional questions about parking, saying that Follmer would encourage employees to park at the rear of the building "and not clutter Main Street."

Follmer said there would be six parking spaces for the building, which he said would be occupied by no more than three or four real estate agents at any given time.

"I don't think most people would want to park on the street, anyway, unless there was absolutely nowhere else to park," he said.

Meanwhile, Commissioner David Mielock Jr. raised questions about a parking light proposed for a corner of the parking lot. Mielock indicated that the light, due to its proposed location, could shine onto Main Street.

"It could be an eyesore," Mielock said.

He suggested that the light be moved more to the center of the parking lot — a plan that Follmer accepted.

Another concern voiced at last week's meeting came from Commissioner Greg Presley, who questioned whether a handicap access ramp at the house would meet codes.

"We will be up to codes," Follmer responded. "We can assure you of that."

In a memo to the planning commission in which he recommended Follmer's plan be approved, Wortman attached six conditions:

- A one-way "Do Not Enter" sign be posted at the alley egress.

- An approved parking lot lighting plan be attached to the site plan.

- The triangular "dead space" at the west end of the angled parking be landscaped and curbed.

- A building floor plan be submitted with the site plan.

- The required front yard, except the access driveway, be curbed and landscaped according to city standards.

- The agreement for common use between Follmer-Stone and the VFW for some portions of the property be recorded with the Wayne County Recorder of Deeds.

Wortman indicated to the planning commission that Follmer has met those requirements. Said Wortman: "Everything is acceptable to us."

The project, which will also include a new roof and a bathroom renovation, is expected to cost about $10,000. Follmer did not indicate during the meeting when he expects the project to be completed.

Traffic light for intersection of Main, Griswold designed

By DARRELL CLEM

Wayne County road officials have designed a traffic light for the intersection of Main and Griswold streets in Northville, clearing another hurdle in the project.

But Irma Clark, press secretary for Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara, said county officials are not yet sure when the signal will be installed.

Clark said the next steps are for road officials to determine the project's cost and then obtain signatures from city and county government officials stating they will split the tab.

Northville City Manager Steven Walters said the county is helping to pay for the project because "two of four legs at the intersection are on county roads."

Walters said the cost has been projected at $16,000 to $20,000. The city's portion will come from surplus funds that Oakland County allocated to communities two years ago for road work.

Part of Northville is located in Oakland County, and Walters said Oakland officials "have no problem" with the surplus funds being used for road improvements in Wayne County. He said Northville's portion of the surplus funds was $10,900.

Clark said the layout for the computer-timed, four-way traffic light has been completed and that road officials should have a precise cost in the near future.

Afterward, signatures from city officials will be obtained and then turned over to the Wayne County Commission, which must formally give final approval.

The next step would be for Detroit

Edison to install a pole for the traffic signal.

"As soon as the pole is put up, we can install the light," Clark said.

Walters said the computerized signal will be timed to create the smoothest possible flow of traffic for both Main and Griswold streets. For example, the light may stay red longer for Main Street motorists during peak traffic hours on Griswold — and vice versa.

Moreover, it is possible the signal could be set to flash yellow or red during late-night hours, when the amount of traffic is substantially reduced.

Walters said local police will monitor the signal after it is first installed to see whether the initial timing adjustments appear to be appropriate for the intersection. If problems surface, the signal would be adjusted.

Merchant calls proposed city sign ordinance too strict

By DARRELL CLEM

Renewed criticism of a proposed city sign ordinance surfaced last week as the Northville City Council met for a fourth time to debate revisions to the ordinance.

Three local merchants who attended the special session remained mostly quiet during the two-hour discussion. But one merchant voiced lingering concerns about the ordinance as he left city hall.

Andrew Piccoli — owner of Cobler's Corner (Shoe Repairing) on Main Street and a member of the Northville Merchants' Association — charged that the city's plans to limit the number, size, and height of signs appear to be too stringent.

"I'm pretty sure that when the businesses get a copy of this (ordinance) they will be up the creek without a paddle," Piccoli said.

Piccoli criticized a section of the ordinance which states that "interior window signs permitted on each floor level shall not exceed 25 percent of the window area on each floor level." The section also notes that window signs must extend back 12 inches from the inside of the window surface.

"I don't know of any governmental body that has the right to come in and regulate a business like that," Piccoli said.

Mayor Christopher Johnson said the city is not attempting a large-scale regulation of businesses, but simply wants to ensure that signs are appropriate for the downtown area.

Piccoli also contended that the penalties for violating the sign ordinance — a fine of up to $500 or a jail term of up to 90 days — are too rigid.

Johnson said later that while the city could choose to reduce the maximum penalties, it has always relied on the courts to decide the appropriate punishment. The $500 / 90-day maximum is relatively standard for misdemeanor violations of city ordinances.

Piccoli said he believes that the city is tightening the sign regulations for all businesses because it is upset with signs put up by a few businesses.

"We're caught in a Catch-22," Piccoli said. "The signs are getting smaller and smaller, but the trees in the city are getting larger and larger. Pretty soon you won't be able to see the signs."

Ken and Elizabeth Burch, owners of Grandma Betty's Sweets-N-Treats, also attended the July 13 meeting, during which the city council discussed the sign ordinance with members of the Northville Planning Commission and the Historic District Commission.

"We just came to be enlightened," Elizabeth Burch said.

Johnson said revisions to the sign ordinance are designed to "make the city more aesthetically pleasing." He said the city hopes to avoid problems that some areas, such as Ford Road, have.

"Ford Road is a jungle," Johnson said. "Everybody is trying to have the biggest sign out there."

Johnson said he believes that stiffer regulations are needed because "people who put up the signs won't self-regulate."

During the meeting, Council Member Paul Folino questioned whether sign makers come to city hall to review the sign ordinance before making signs. He suggested that copies of the ordinance be passed on to such businesses so that thousands of dollars will not be spent for signs that violate the ordinance.

Planning Consultant Don Wortman agreed that "we're not here to give businessmen a hard time. We want to be cooperative on that."

Johnson has stressed that businesses will not be ordered to take down the signs they currently have. He has said that businesses would not be forced to conform to the ordinance until they replace signs or make repairs costing more than half of a sign's value.

Signs also would have to conform to the new rules if a new business moves to town and replaces an old business, which would result in a new sign being posted.

Meanwhile, city officials agreed to further discuss the sign ordinance during a fifth special session scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 7. The one-hour session will precede the council's regular meeting.

Once the council wraps up its work, the ordinance will be sent to the planning commission for a public hearing, which Johnson said should be held sometime in September. The planning commission will then make a recommendation to the city council, which will decide whether to adopt the ordinance.

As Piccoli left last week's meeting, he said the public hearing has the potential to draw large numbers of merchants — some of whom attended an earlier council meeting to protest the ordinance.

Piccoli urged city officials to make copies of the ordinance available to every business listed in the city register at least 10 days prior to the hearing.

Although Johnson didn't promise that copies will be mailed to every business, he indicated that copies will be circulated to the Merchants' Association.

Our Opinions

$16-million school bond question is best choice

The results of the citizen investigation into a school-district bond issue proposal did not reach any firm conclusions. This is unfortunate, because the choice is really quite clear.

Leaving aside, for the time being, the question of whether any bond issue at all deserves to be passed, the issue before the school board is whether they should propose a $16-million bond sale or a $30-million sale. The $16-million proposal is the better one.

The basic difference between the two options is whether the district should reopen Cooke School or build a new building to house the growing population of middle-school students. Either bond proposal would include other elements as well, such as building a new elementary school within the next few years.

The $16-million plan probably has a better chance of being passed, and rightly so.

For one reason, this is not the only major project coming before voters. A library bond issue is likely next year, and a second vote on Northville Community Park development could come up in the city this fall. These are expensive projects, each of which, if approved, will add to already-high tax bills.

Knowing the board's options, heavily-taxed Northville voters are not likely to look kindly on a proposal which is nearly twice the cost of its alternative. This is true even if the voters understand the implications of the lower amount — namely, that community programs now housed at Cooke would be kicked out of the building.

EDUCATION

None of the programs at Cooke deserve to be kicked out. But that is a school building, built to educate students in the Northville School District, and if the district needs that space it will have to ask for it back.

This may sound cold hearted, but it only makes sense. The $30-million question does not ask voters to build a new middle school as much as it asks them to provide space for these community programs. But in a school bond issue which includes several other items, that fact would be hidden.

If indeed another building is necessary for these programs, perhaps it should come as a separate vote. If the community votes on buying part of the Northville Ford Plant as a library site, community-center space for the displaced programs could be included in that proposal. The same is true of any library proposal that might come before voters.

Timing would have to work out, so that the displaced programs are not without space for a few months. But the question of housing those programs would certainly be more appropriate with the library question than in the school bond issue.

Elmsmere drain woes shouldn't be repeated

Water drainage in part of the Northville Estates subdivision is apparently quite a mess.

The Elmsmere Drive area experiences a lot of problems with rainwater. The system of drainage ditches is simply not working for the residents of that area. In addition, everyone involved seems to agree that the ditches are dangerous. The ditches are very deep, and yet they do not seem to be adequate to control the water flow.

The situation has led the city council to agree to fill in the ditches and install storm-sewer lines. This is an appropriate and necessary move, but it seems to have come a little late.

The cost of the project is pegged at $127,297 — more than a lot of people had expected it to be. That cost is going to be paid through a bond issue, so there is no immediate pressure on the city's general-fund budget. That's still a lot of money, though, and it's going to have to be paid.

With a little foresight, it seems, the city could have avoided this problem. The technology and expertise should have been available to judge how storm water would flow in Northville Estates, and what kind of drainage system would be necessary to contain it.

In short, the need for storm sewers could have, and should have, been foreseen before the subdivision was built. The sewers would have been much cheaper to build at that time.

There is a lesson to be learned here about the value of careful planning and attention to detail when developing land. Unfortunately, the lesson will not do much good for the mostly-developed city. Let's hope the township continues to avoid such problems as it sees new subdivisions spring up. A situation like Elmsmere's should not arise again.

Moving north

Why Detroit?

I can't count the number of times I heard those two words when I told friends in Kentucky that I planned to move to the Metro Detroit area.

So what if I wanted to move to a metropolitan area and it just so happened that half of my relatives — and several close friends — lived here?

So what if the Pistons were on the brink of sweeping the L.A. Lakers for a national basketball championship. Even basketball fanaticism — Kentucky-style — has its limits.

No. Nothing, it seemed, would warrant a move to the beleaguered Motor City. To observers from the Bluegrass state, such a move was unthinkable.

Although most of my friends had never visited Metro Detroit — "That's the last place I would go on vacation," they said — they were adamant in condemning it.

They had seen the national media reports of cars being burned in the streets. Of crack houses on every corner.

They remembered the 1967 race riots. The disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa. And everybody knows that even Motown Records sold out and moved to the West Coast.

And wasn't Detroit one of those cities where winters never end and the snow isn't even white?

Metro Detroit was, quite simply, an industrial wasteland — a giant smokestack spewing pollution on a dying city.

When my Bluegrass friends threw a going-away party for me, they even managed to dig up that old tune that starts out with some hokey line — "Last night I went to sleep in Detroit City" — and ends with the lyrics: "I want to go home. Oh, how I want to go home."

It's true. I will always want to go home to Kentucky. To walk along a winding road and watch the morning sun rise over the misty, rolling horse farms near Lexington. To pitch a tent on some remote mountaintop in eastern Kentucky and reminisce around a campfire with friends I've known since childhood. To keep those Kentucky roots firmly planted.

But I also know that sometimes it's good to make a move. To see life from a different perspective. To live in a new place, set new goals and have new experiences.

In the few short weeks since I moved to this state, I've camped on the beaches of Lake Michigan, eaten at some fine Greektown restaurants, celebrated a national basketball championship, and taken a boat trip across Lake Erie to an island near Ohio.

I've had what my friends and I believed were philosophical discussions over beer in the pubs of Ann Arbor — one of the most interesting college towns I've ever seen. I've watched July Fourth fireworks explode over the Detroit River, seen the down-and-out Tigers play in their hometown stadium, and heard more Motown classics on the radio than I would hear in a year's time in Kentucky.

And I've learned about cities like Northville that are trying to maintain their quality of life in spite of the Metro area's westward growth.

Perhaps most important, I've rekindled some old friendships and made some new ones.

Although Metro Detroit has its problems, I continue to wonder why many people criticize it without ever experiencing it. True, preconceived notions die hard. And there are probably some Michigan residents who still view Kentuckians as shoeless hillbillies who gulp moonshine and shoot it out on a wild Saturday night.

It's the kind of stuff — ignorance — that leads to intolerance of those who are not like us.

But I'm happy to report that four of my Kentucky friends have visited me since I moved here and have left with a different attitude.

It seems they didn't get mugged. Their cars weren't burned. It didn't snow in July.

And, contrary to that old song, it seemed that they weren't in any hurry to go home.

Heck. Two of them who had never thought of Metro Detroit as a likely place to visit have already been back a second time.

And a third trip is in the works.

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

"Are you rocking the table?" she asked as we were settling in for dinner at El Nibble Nook.

"No," I replied. "Do you feel the table rocking?"

"It's not so much a rocking motion," she answered. "It's more like waves. The table looks very wavy."

I knew what the problem was. Nope, not one too many margaritas. The woman I married just doesn't drink that much. The problem was resting on the end of her nose.

"You don't suppose your new glasses have something to do with the wavy table?" I asked. "I understand it takes awhile to get used to bifocals."

She grimaced slightly. Then sighed. "Do you believe it," she said. "Me. Bifocals. I always thought bifocals were for older people. And here I am. With bifocals. They look nice, don't they? They make them nowadays so they don't even look like bifocals."

"They look great," I told her.

"I really needed them," she continued. "I can see fine for most things, but when I have to read things or look at something up close to me . . . well, I definitely needed bifocals."

"That's what's important. Being able to see," I said. "And as for older people needing bifocals . . . don't look now, my pet, but we aren't getting any younger. In fact, the last time I checked, we're too old to be considered yuppies anymore."

I saw a pained expression cross her face suddenly. "Geez, don't take it so hard," I said. "It happens to everybody."

"Oh, it's not that," she replied. "It's just that I was reaching for a tortilla chip and put my hand in the guacamole instead. I've got to get used to these new glasses."

Bottled up

By Tim Richard

Slowly but surely the beverage industry seems to be learning.

The Michigan Legislature last week put the finishing touches on the second of two bills to use unclaimed deposits from beer, pop, and wine-cooler containers for environmental cleanup.

Those are the dimes we paid for bottles and cans that we broke or discarded. Wholesalers have been pocketing that money, estimated annually at $12 million (by the industry) to $38 million (by the state Department of Natural Resources).

Retailers will get 25 percent of the money, the state the rest. For 10 years, the money will be collected in a state trust fund and invested.

Then the interest — estimated at $50 million a year — will be used for cleanups of toxic and hazardous wastes, solid waste programs, recycling programs, and enforcing environmental protection laws.

Gov. James J. Blanchard is expected to sign the second bill as promptly as he did the first.

On this, the third deposit law fight since 1976, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) had to complete only part of a petition drive before the Legislature caved in and passed something acceptable. The original bill this year split the money between toxic cleanups and alcoholism programs.

To appreciate the deposit laws, you have to understand that Michiganians are extremely proud of their state's natural beauty and don't want it littered. For the opposite philosophy, drive through Kentucky.

The first battle began in 1976 when MUCC and allies sought a deposit law for beer and pop containers. The Legislature dilly-dallied, so MUCC led a petition drive to put the bill on the ballot.

The beverage industry organized a Committee Against Forced Deposits, which I prefer to call the Litter Lobby. They coated the papers with ads declaring, falsely, that beverage containers were only a small fraction of the trash on roadsides, woods, and lakeshores. Yeah, and I suppose my dog severed a tendon in his foot on a gum wrapper and not a broken beer bottle covered by a quarter-inch of snow.

After a bitter campaign, Michigan voters gave nearly 70 percent support to the deposit bill, which became law in 1978.

The second battle occurred when wine coolers came onto the market in the early '80s. MUCC sought a state Liquor Control Commission (LCC) rule requiring a deposit on wine-cooler empties. The Litter Lobby denounced the effort as unpatriotic, reasoning that the wine cooler was a totally American industry.

I remember that day well. I picked eight wine-cooler empties off my lawn that morning.

The Legislature decided LCC lacked authority to adopt such a rule. After a battle in which MUCC applied pressure by starting a second petition campaign, the Legislature mustered a three-fourths vote to bring wine coolers under the deposit law.

For the unclaimed-deposits issue, MUCC had to collect only 150,000 of the needed 300,000 signatures to put the bill on the ballot before lawmakers saw the light.

At this writing, I can't predict what the fourth battle against litter might be. But I hope the Litter Lobby has learned its lesson and doesn't force a knock-down, drag-out battle that it can't win.

Summer program gives teenagers hope

This is another in a continuing series of columns by Northville Public Schools' Student Assistance Program Coordinator Charlie Stilec.

SWAP, or the Summer Workshop on Awareness and Prevention, is a special summer project aimed at helping young adolescents, ages 12-15, who are experiencing school and family problems. SWAP is sponsored by the Community Commission on Drug Abuse, Northville Public Schools, Livonia Public Schools, and Wayne-Westland Community Schools. SWAP began in 1986, in part through a grant from the Skillman Foundation, which has continued its generous support each year.

The program's goals — through the use of art therapy, recreation therapy, and group counseling — are to help youth develop a positive self image; develop a sense of responsibility; reduce acting-out behaviors; and provide a variety of experiences, including art, recreation, problem solving, education, and fun.

As a co-director of SWAP, it's very exciting to see the efforts of many people and organizations result in the present program.

SWAP 1989 is being housed at Emerson

Middle School in Livonia. At present, 58 youths and families are registered, and 23 staff people are working with them. The program runs July 5 through August 3, Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to noon daily. Each day is broken down into parts, such as early-morning energizers and announcements, art or recreation therapy, break, and group counseling. Each youth is placed in what is called a team, in which he or she will remain for the entire five weeks of the program.

As you can imagine, teams and staff grow close and trust increases weekly. Each team has a staff comprised of a team leader, two peer counselors, and a licensed therapist. Each staff team meets weekly to discuss each youth, plan the next week's goals and make recommendations.

Many of the issues which affect these youths daily are family alcoholism or drug abuse, divorce, death of a loved one, suicide attempts, their own drug use, negative peer associations, child abuse, low self esteem, family problems, school problems, authority problems, and a general inability to act in a positive way.

To say the least, the program is a challenge because many of the youths have not been shown the care, concern, support, and love they find in SWAP. So each day is a victory if they show up.

At the current time, registrations have come from Northville, Livonia, Westland, Wayne, Canton, Plymouth, Inkster, Novi, Garden City, and Redford.

What does SWAP mean? It means these kids won't be on the streets during SWAP, it means they can get help and be listened to, and it means hope for many of the families — in terms of guidance and recommendations for further counseling or treatment, even after SWAP has ended.

As one peer counselor stated, "SWAP is a family of people helping each other to learn and grow. So many times I wish I could just reach out and take the kids home with me."

As one of the boys said, "In SWAP I learned that I am not alone in my group. People care about you and your problems. We learned how to talk about our problems and how to solve them. In our group we help solve each other's problems."

For further information on SWAP or other concerns, call the Community Commission on Drug Abuse at 261-3760 or myself at 344-1825. We are there to help.

Local Awards

By Bruce Weintraub

Moving around Northville each week, I am exposed to many wide-ranging and provocative local issues. Time and again these issues tantalize my curious taste buds.

Even though my reporter's ethics code book does not allow me to interject personal opinions into a story, as a human being I can't help formulating conclusions.

Thus, in a truly left-handed way, I am opening the first annual "Weintraub's Winners and Losers Awards." J.P. McCarthy — eat your heart out.

Winner: The Northville Action Council (NAC) — In the long, hot summer months, I can understand how an organization would be naturally inclined to take a break. But not the NAC. The NAC is continuing its fight against drug abuse during the summer months by coming up with innovative and timely ideas, such as a teen dance and participation in an anti-drug rally in Lansing.

I know, I know. I really have tooted the horn of the NAC since I stepped foot in this community in June 1988. But it's hard not to compliment a group whose sole function is to better society by helping kids. By the way, I think the "just say no" campaign is a real plus.

Winner: Township Trustee Don Williams — I know I should be cynical about political types, but this guy is a real gem. He may not always be the most informed about local issues, but his heart is in the right place. Whether it's buying dinner for area seniors or helping sponsor a beautification committee function, Williams is always there to lend his support. Right now, he is studying how to improve the sound system at township hall. Good job, Don, and for all you do....

Winner: Jan at Holloway's Old-Fashioned Bakery on Main Street. I normally wouldn't praise a business. I figure if any business wants ink in the newspaper, it can always buy it. But I have to make an exception for a place that I've frequented for an entire year and not grown tired of. Keep up the good work, Jan, and keep baking those chocolate chip cookies.

Loser: The Northville Recreation Department. I am going to include them in the losing category, but I admit this classification may be a bit premature. Since the park millage failed last November in the city, there has been a lot of speculation about when and if it would be put in front of voters again.

Now, with the school district planning to seek a bond issue in October, you have to wonder what affect this could have on a possible park millage vote in November. It just seems to me that if the issue is going to be put before city voters again, campaigning for it should have begun by now. After all, with a school bond issue coming up and a library question not too far away, voters may really have to be convinced about the advantages of the park millage before approving it.

LOSER: The Wayne County Copy Department — While going to circuit court last week to look up court records, I decided I needed one copy of four separate pages. I gave the originals to the court clerk and he gave me the copies, along with a bill for $8.

After receiving CPR from the woman next to me, I picked myself off the floor and asked him why the bill was so expensive for four measly copies. He said the copies were $2 each. I am now maybe the only person in southeast Michigan who had to go to a money machine in order to pay for four copies.

The clerk who waited on me, however, was also a pretty nice guy. A little later that day, I took him four more pages to be copied and plunked down $3 on the counter. He looked at me and said I had paid enough and cut the price to $4 for the set.

Just think; I got a bargain by paying only $4 for four copies. No wonder the county is getting out of debt.

Used book sale set for Aug. 5 to benefit library

Hundreds of used books will go on sale Saturday, Aug. 5, when the Friends of the Northville Public Library set up shop on the sidewalk in front of the MAGS building at 133 W. Main St.

Books of every variety — fiction and non-fiction — will be displayed on tables featuring categories from adventure to zoology.

Photos taken by the Northville

Record during the past year but not used in its pages will also be available at low prices.

Browsers among the books will be treated to free cups of orange drink, courtesy of the M-Care Health Center on Griswold.

Over the years, the Friends have kept the same prices for the used books: 50 cents for hardbound, 25 cents or five for $1 for paperbacks; and 5 to 25 cents for children's books. Collectibles are priced individually.

Contrary to earlier published reports, the library is continuing to accept contributions of used books up until Tuesday, Aug. 1. Donations of all types are welcome with the exception of textbooks for grades K-12; encyclopedias more than 10 years old;

Readers Digest Condensed Books, and magazines, including National Geographic.

Shoppers may look at the books during set-up time but no books may be purchased before 9 a.m. All unsold books will be removed by 5 p.m.

All proceeds from the sales of used books are spent by the Friends on goods and services not provided in the library's annual budget. In recent years, the Friends have given the library a photocopier, a microfilm / microfiche reader and printer, a map case, a glass display case, and a computer and printer.

Special grants of $500 have been given for materials during the recent Michigan Sesquicentennial observance, the observance of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, for staff development, and for funding the special programs of the library's centennial this year.

The Friends subsidize the Northville Genealogical Society, the children's Christmas and Summer Reading programs, and share in the funding of the Oral History Project with the Northville Historical Society.

County officials say sale of land in township is slow

"We hope to begin screening finalists within three weeks and then begin negotiations with one developer a short time later," Wild said.

He added that officials in the Wayne County executive's office are still planning to make a recommendation on the development to the county commission by mid-September.

As for the zoning of the property, township planners met in a special meeting Tuesday, July 11 to discuss options regarding possible use as a planned unit development (PUD).

Township Planning Director Carol Maise said planning consultant Claude Coates is currently drafting a PUD ordinance to address the concept as a separate zoning district and / or a special zoning option. A PUD would provide more than one land use in a large, comprehensively-planned area.

Maise said planners seem to favor giving developers an option of using a PUD on projects which encompass a "large amount of land."

She said commissioners have not yet decided the exact acreage a project would have to be to qualify for a PUD classification.

"The PUD ordinance would give developers flexibility to include a multitude of land uses, and it would give the township some control of what could and could not be included," Maise said.

She added planners have not focused on specific zoning percentages with a PUD, but have instead talked about transition zoning and getting an outline of the ordinance.

"Planners want to give developers a lot of flexibility to use different land uses to make a large project look unified and not fragmented," Maise said.

Commissioner Barbara O'Brien said she is hesitant to support the PUD as it is currently being shaped by the planning commission.

"I am a little uneasy about the PUD," O'Brien said, adding she believes the township is giving up too much control by allowing developers to address a project as a whole.

"There are parts of the PUD that I like and parts I don't like," she said. "I just have a feeling that I would like to vote on the merits of each parcel than the project as a whole."

Wild said it doesn't make a difference to the county whether the township decides to zone certain areas as a PUD or make it an option, since the county land site will qualify either way.

"We are treating the property as a single, unified plan," Wild said, adding he left the study session feeling optimistic that the township understands the role of the PUD classification.

The four development teams to submit proposals include: Holtzman and Silverman, Nicklaus-Sierra Development Corp., LoPatin and Co., and Duke Associates; and J. J. Slavik Inc., Byron Trerice Co., Vidosh Inc., and Trammell Crow Co.

The other two groups are: R.A. DeMattia Co., Selective Group, Heinz C. Prechter, ASC Inc., and Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co.; and Charter Development Co. (Arnold Cohen / Walter Cohen), John Boll, Joseph P. Ministrelli, and Huber Wright.

Township planners study possible increase in home lot sizes

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Using homes in the Maple Hills subdivision as an example, township planners continued discussion Tuesday, July 11 of a possible increase in minimum lot sizes for residential zoning districts.

Township Planning Director Carol Maise said planners specifically focused on increasing lot sizes of homes in R-3 (residential) districts, where currently the minimum size is 12,000 square feet.

Maise said planners are particularly concerned that if a developer proposes a planned residential unit development (PRUD) in an R-3 district, the minimum size could dip below 12,000 square feet.

In the PRUD ordinance, a developer can increase the building density of a project by allocating a percentage of the property to open space or recreation.

To alleviate shrinking lot sizes, Maise said planners are considering increasing the size of required side yards from its present level of eight feet to 11 feet.

At the commission's June 6 meeting, planners said they are considering increasing the minimum lot sizes to one-third, one-half and one acre. The increase of lot sizes would correspond to R-3, R-2, and R-1 residential zoning, respectively.

Maise said planners again discussed this type of increase at the last meeting and added Township Planning Consultant Claude Coates will prepare a draft of the ordinance at the August planning commission meeting.

DeMattia Co. founder attributes success to good employees

Bob DeMattia, founder of the 13-year-old R.A. DeMattia Company, said what's made him a success is "finding employees with a zest for quality and integrity, and who have a work ethic that fits what we're into. You have to be committed to not accepting incompetence."

The Northville Township resident's company plans, develops, and builds industrial parks and commercial projects in the United States, West Germany, Japan, and the United Kingdom.

Anchored by the expansive Metro West Technology Park, DeMattia industrial parks dominate the M-14 / Five Mile corridor in Plymouth Township. DeMattia is one of several developers bidding on a multi-million dollar project to encompass the square mile bounded by Five Mile, Sheldon, Six Mile, and Beck in his hometown. The site once housed the Wayne County Child Development Center.

Speaking before the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce at the Hillside Inn recently, DeMattia explained his business philosophy and addressed problems his industry faces.

There's a trick to keeping good employees, said DeMattia, who attended a Jesuit boarding school in Wisconsin and earned his bachelor's degree in civil engineering and master's degree in business from the University of Detroit.

"The solution to keeping these employees is that you have to take care of them. We work hard at that every day, with training and communication."

"We spend more time awake at work than at home, so we work hard at providing an environment that's a nice place to work and live. We spend an inordinate amount of time in communicating, explaining where we're going and problems we have. We subsidize luncheons for different divisions, have barbecues, and constant meetings where we exchange ideas."

"We have quality-control groups that meet with no management to come up with ways to better our firm. I found that if you get great people, they'll solve the problems."

R.A. DeMattia Co. doesn't believe in exalting outstanding employees.

"We don't have stars. Is the person who seals a $10-million project any more important than the word processor who prepared the project, or the artist who did the renderings, or the courier who delivered the plans?"

It irritates DeMattia to hear people complain about their employer.

"I get upset when I hear people bitching about their employer. I'll go right up to them and say, 'Well, leave. No one says you have to work somewhere.'"

DeMattia said, "Our new metro parks are the envy of Michigan and other states because they're controlled. We've had many offers to purchase our firm and our land. But we're having too much fun to even consider that."

Metro West tenants are willing to pay association dues "because they want a place that's clean," where litter is picked up and the grass is mowed.

Getting there hasn't been easy, he acknowledges.

When Metro West Technology Park was just an idea, "everyone I saw was telling me I was nuts."

Lack of acceptance and knowledge — and being new in the field — contribute to financial problems, he said.

"When you first start in business, no one wants to lend you money," he said. "We faced problems trying to find capital."

A problem that's thankfully part of the past is "overall acceptance of poor quality," said DeMattia.

"You faced a lack of integrity in the people you worked with, the people you went after, and subcontractors. I found later it isn't like that," DeMattia said.

Northville shop offers 'like-new' women's clothing

By LISA FELICELLI

Instead of sorting through an array of yesterday's favorite designer blouses, sweaters and dresses and lamenting you have nothing to wear, imagine being able to clear your closet for profit — and pick out affordable, like-new fashions at the same place you rendered your own.

Sharon Gorman, a self-made entrepreneur and owner of Consignment Clothiers on West Seven Mile in Northville, came across such a unique boutique in Lansing while working as an operational specialist for Meijer three years ago.

"The shop was called Second Time Around, and it accepted like-new, freshly-laundered designer clothing on a consignment basis, which means the owner of an item has given it to an agent to either sell or hold," Gorman said.

"The first time I walked in, I remember thinking, 'I hope nobody I know sees me.' But I was curious."

Gorman's curiosity paid off. After browsing through the shop, she discovered a navy blue Seville suit in mint condition that sold, brand-new, for $300 at places such as Gantos Boutique.

"But I bought the suit for $60," Gorman said.

She learned that that the Seville garment's previous owner had only worn it a few times before becoming bored with it and bringing it in. But more importantly, Gorman learned

New boutique caters to career women that 50 percent of the sale's profit would be returned to the woman.

"The next time I visited the shop, I brought in a practically new suit of my own that I decided I didn't really care for anymore," she said. "The owner and I agreed upon a set price, and I left."

Not more than a week later, Gorman discovered that someone had purchased her suit and she, too, could claim 50 percent of the profit.

"I said to myself, 'Hey, this really works,'" Gorman recalled.

She asked Second Time Around's owner for information about what it would take to open up a consignment shop of her own, but the owner was reluctant to share her success secrets.

"She told me that she'd go out of business if she gave advice to every shopper who asked for it," Gorman said. "But she did suggest I write to Kate Holmes for her monthly consignment shop newsletter. So I did."

Holmes started her own shop, One More Time, in 1975. She began with 50 women who brought in "gently-used, good clothes" for her to sell on consignment. Thirteen years later, the ambitious entrepreneur found

"... I decided that I didn't like the word 'thrift.' It makes me think of this dark, dingy little place where people drag in things they've hoarded for years in garbage bags. I didn't want my shop to be anything like that."

— Sharon Gorman, owner

herself servicing 12,000 consignors. She noted in her how-to manual, "Too Good to be Threw," that she now sells in a six-hour day what she used to sell in a month.

Inspired by Holmes' enthusiasm and success, Gorman took a deep breath and decided to take the plunge into self-employment.

"I sacrificed a steady and well-paid career for what I really believed would work," she said. "If you're willing to put in the kind of hard work it takes to become successful, you will be."

A former student of Austin Modeling School in Lansing — "I had to do something with this tall and skinny body" — and a previous manager of a Tansy's women's shop, Gorman incorporated her fashion knowledge with insight she gained from others already running productive consignment shops.

She attended a National Association of Resale & Thrift Shops Conference, which is open to owners, partners, executives, managers and employees of resale, thrift and consignment shops across the country.

"I learned a great deal from these people, but I decided that I didn't like the word 'thrift.' It makes me think of this dark, dingy little place where people drag in things they've hoarded for years in garbage bags," Gorman said. "I didn't want my shop to be anything like that."

Gorman's shop isn't.

She's carefully tailored the clean, well-displayed boutique to appeal to today's career-oriented woman, whether she's already established or just about to strike out on her. Gorman emphasized that she will only accept like-new designer clothes and accessories.

"And everything must be freshly laundered and brought in on hangers. I'll be happy to supply hangers," she added.

Although she's only been open since May, Gorman is enjoying an increasingly prosperous business. Part of that is, of course, because she applied her in-bred fashion sense with acquired business know-how.

But another reason for her boutique's popularity is her own warm personality, sincere smile and enthusiasm to help her customers, in addition to the experienced saleswomen she has assisting her.

"I can't take credit for the shop's success by myself," Gorman said. "We're a team here."

She added that Consignment Clothier's friendly atmosphere is also due to the fact that her customers are also a part of the team.

County offers booklet

Oakland County is increasing its efforts to make vendors more aware of how to do business with Oakland County.

A booklet titled "A Guide to 'Doing Business' with Oakland County" is available from the Oakland County Department of Management and Budget's Purchasing Division. The booklet gives information about purchasing procedures and addresses of participating county divisions.

"The purchasing function is vitally important to all of us in government and to all businesses and citizens who are concerned with the prudent expenditure of public funds," said Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy.

There are several ways a vendor can be eligible to do business with the county:

□ The Master Bid List. The list is used by buyers or other county representatives to distribute requests for quotations or requests for proposals on specific commodities or services.

Formal bid lists are maintained by Oakland County Purchasing Division, Oakland County Road Commission and Oakland Schools. Vendors who wish to be placed on the list should send a written document to the agencies.

□ Many county agencies use appropriate trade journals to solicit bids and proposals from vendors. Vendors are encouraged to follow these journals for notices about county purchasing needs.

□ Local newspapers also are used to inform businesses about county purchasing opportunities. These publications should be followed closely.

Around the Yard: Gardening

Vacation calls for special plant care

By Patrick Denton

When families opt for a summer vacation away from home, the question of houseplant and garden care during the holiday inevitably arises.

Just what arrangements should be made depends a lot upon how long the holiday will be. Even during the summer, both potted plants and garden can be set up to survive nicely without human intervention for a week, but beyond that a little help will be called for.

To prepare the outside garden for your absence, weed it thoroughly and remove all faded and fully open flowers. Pick all the fruits and vegetables that will be past their prime when you return. Clear the lawn of any furniture and mow it just before your departure.

During the last day or two before leaving, water every area of the garden, making sure the ground is well and deeply soaked. Topping up the soil around as many plantings as possible with layers of compost, alone or mixed with processed manure or damp peat, will help to hold moisture in the soil. Soak before and after the mulch is laid.

If you will be gone for two weeks or more, offer to friends or neighbors the picking from your pea vines, lettuce patch, raspberries or whatever will be ready for gathering while you are gone. Often a congenial arrangement can be made that gives your friend half the crop and you the other half, if it's something that can be readily processed and frozen.

Make arrangements to have the lawn mowed at least once a week if your holiday is to be a long one. Often a young person in the neighborhood can be found for such a task. Or exchange labor with a neighbor who will be holidaying during a different period in the summer.

Some areas of the garden will very likely require watering if you will be away for more than a week. What I do is situate stakes to indicate the best sprinkler positions for the least amount of hose and sprinkler shuffling. This is another task that can often be exchanged for your care of another family's garden while they are away.

It's usually sufficient to gather all the houseplants together in a cool position out of the sun and water them thoroughly to keep them in good order over the course of almost a week. For any longer, something extra will be needed in the form of an automated or human watering device.

If most of the houseplants are vacationing outdoors, make sure that a sprinkler position is organized to cover them. Indoors, if only two or three houseplants make up the collection, it probably would be simplest to farm them out to friends.

One method I've used successfully for keeping my collection of houseplants alive during two-week vacations is to set them in the bathtub on a thick pad of well soaked newspapers or old bath towels. This works well if the room receives some fairly good natural light.

A little refinement to the bathtub houseplant holder is to suspend a clear plastic tent over the tub to retain moisture and prevent the plants from drying. Individual plants can also be placed inside their own plastic bag with a stake or hoop of wire to keep the plastic from touching the plant. Keep all plants under the plastic in locations out of direct sun.

Right now, I'm fortunate to have a next-door neighbor who waters my plants when I'm away. I just leave a list of their locations on the kitchen table, and place stick-on notes on the pots of any plants that require special conditions; dryish soil in winter for the clivias, for example, or water to be placed in the funnel of my vriesia.

In return, I water the plants in his house when he and his wife are away. They collect them all in one room on a table for easy tending.

Cluster housing at LairdHaven

Looking for an ideal living environment — the type of environment an architect might create if he were designing it for his very own mother?

The description might sound a bit fanciful, but it is precisely what happened at LairdHaven, a small, secluded development of nine single-family cluster homes located off Six Mile in Northville Township.

Brad Moore, a professional architect and the developer of LairdHaven, noted that his mother purchased the heavily-wooded, four-acre parcel immediately adjacent to the Brooklane Golf Course approximately three years ago.

"She was looking for land to build her retirement home," said Moore. "She bought four acres with the idea of subdividing it into three single-family home sites — she would live on one of the sites and then sell the other two."

Things didn't work out exactly as originally planned. Patricia Moore, principal of Central Middle School in Plymouth, and her son were told by township officials that the long, narrow parcel could not be developed with single-family homes as they had hoped.

However, they introduced the Moores to the township's cluster housing option. And the cluster option proved to be the answer to their problems.

In essence, the cluster option permits developers to "cluster" dwelling units closer together than is permitted in conventional single-family zoning districts. Although density levels remain more or less unchanged, the ability to push the individual dwelling units together permits the rest of the property to be used for other purposes — or just left vacant with large stands of trees, for example.

"You still have single-family homes, but you create open areas under the cluster option," explained Brad Moore. "When applied to large pieces of property, the cluster option allows you to save enough property for a lake or a golf course."

"It's a concept that is finding a lot of favor across the country as land becomes a more valuable commodity," he added. "You can't afford to lose a lot of land to 20-foot sideyards which are more or less useless in conventional single-family housing."

Moore noted that he would have been able to build up to 12 cluster units on the LairdHaven property, but chose instead to build just nine.

"When I laid out the site for 12 units, it became too difficult . . . too urban," he said. "We didn't want to create a piece of downtown in the country; we wanted to create a country lane with country homes."

The cluster option filled another need in Moore's desire to build a retirement home for his mother. Under the cluster option, the homes are owned by the resident . . . but all the property is owned by a homeowners association. As a result, said Moore, the maintenance of the exterior grounds is taken care of by the association, freeing the homeowner of the responsibility of mowing the grass and other responsibilities.

Eight of the nine units in LairdHaven are attached. The only detached unit is occupied by Mrs. Moore.

But Moore said the eight attached units are attached either through a garden wall or a garage wall. "Living areas are not attached to other living areas," he explained. "There's no possibility for the noise that's sometimes associated with condominiums, for example."

Units range in size from approximately 2,200 square feet to around 2,400 square feet. Three separate floor plans offer such amenities as spacious master bedroom suites, great rooms with cathedral ceilings, decks, formal dining rooms and kitchen features to satisfy the most exacting cook.

All nine units have brick and fieldstone exteriors, 2½-car garages with electric door openers and other safety and energy-efficiency features.

The basic price includes a Jacuzzi tub and tile in all the bathrooms, an over-sized water heater, wood-burning fireplaces and two decks — a formal deck off the living room to entertain guests and a "privacy deck" located in such a way that residents can have a cup of coffee in his or her bathrobe without being seen by other residents.

Moore notes that the kitchen cabinets are solid hickory and are made by an Indiana company which employs Amish cabinet makers. "They're furniture-quality cabinets," he said.

Prices for the three basic models start at $275,000 and range to $301,000, although Moore said that buyers may ask for special features which may add to the cost of the overall home.

Four of the nine units have already been sold, and Moore said the development is receiving considerable interest from other prospective buyers.

Around the House: Designs for Living

Tudor style reflects elegance

By James McAlexander

The Roosevelt 3 is a Tudor estate house, embodying the classic elegance of stone and half-timbered walls. It is a home to be actively enjoyed. Within its formal exterior, a large proportion of the floor plan is devoted to recreation and relaxation.

The basic living areas—kitchen, dining and living rooms and bedrooms—are clustered at one end of the house, which is not to say they are skimpy. The kitchen includes a walk-in pantry, breakfast nook, eating bar, island range and garden window. Upstairs, the master suite has a full bath with vanity, shower and oversize tub. A private sitting room has its own fireplace and wood storage.

But this is only half the house. Downstairs a large solarium looks out onto a deck and backyard pool. A separate exercise room provides shower and changing facilities for guests. Even the garage is more than a parking area, with its built-in cabinets, workbench and attached gardening room.

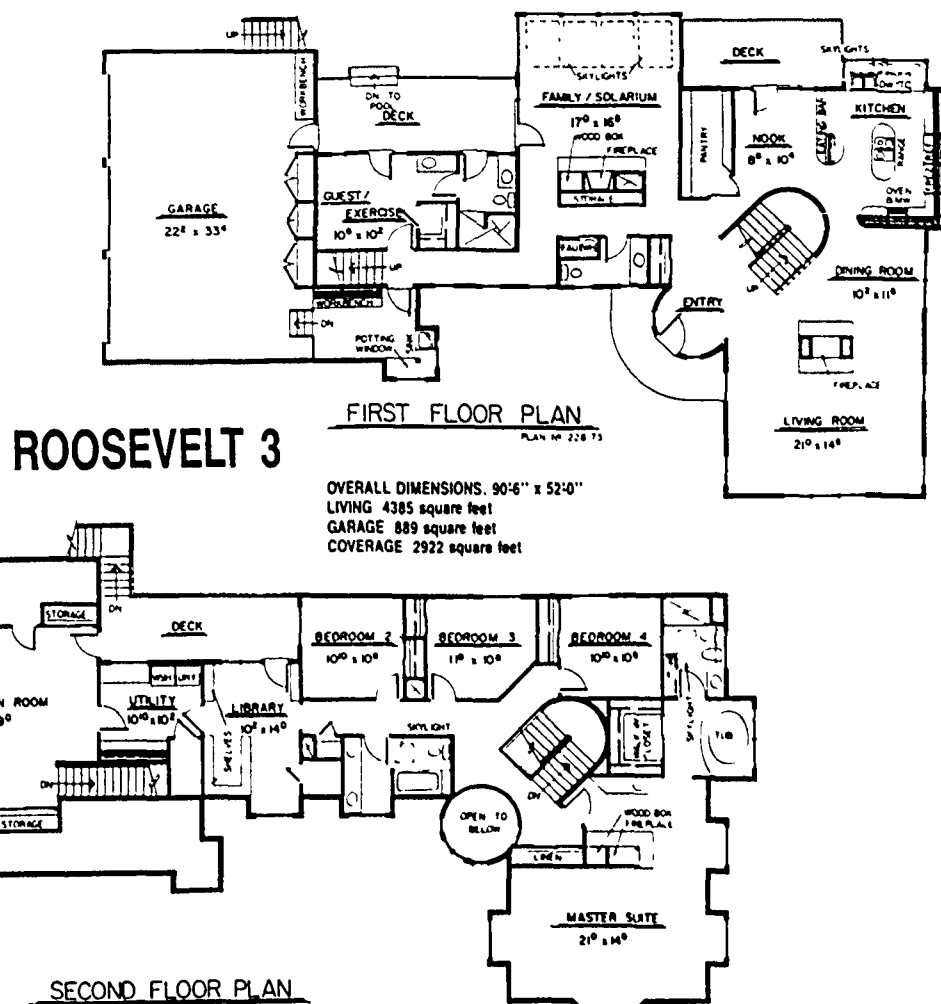

On the second floor, the main hall leads from the bedrooms through a library that opens onto a hanging deck. Outside steps run down to the pool, and at one end of the deck is the door to the large recreation room above the garage.

Despite its myriad rooms, the Roosevelt 3 is an easy home to navigate in. All the public rooms, including the library, rec room and upstairs utility, are accessible from at least two sides. No space is far from a bathroom or from storage.

The exterior presents a different problem. This is an impressive building and it may be difficult to find a lot that will do it justice.

For a study plan of the Roosevelt 3 (228-73), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Kitchen areas are well designed with high tech appliances mixed with cozy decor.

The name LairdHaven comes from the Moore family's Scottish heritage. "Laird," in Scottish, means "lord," or "owner of the manor."

LairdHaven means that the homeowner is lord of his own manor," said Moore. "We wanted this place to be a peaceful, restful setting where the residents are the masters of their own environment. There's a sense of relaxation here that is enhanced by the fact that residents don't have to worry about outside maintenance.

"That feeling is enhanced by the creation of the common areas," he continued. "We will have walkways through the woods, landscaping and a gazebo where residents can enjoy the natural, woody setting of the site."

Moore's list of projects includes the Oak Meadows Condominiums in Ann Arbor, Burwick Farms in Howell and the Fox Ridge Condominiums in Howell in addition to numerous single-family homes in Bloomfield Hills and West Bloomfield.

But the 30-year-old University of Michigan graduate makes it clear that LairdHaven has been a labor of love.

"There's no question that what we've done here is something of a payoff for my mother," he said. "She raised three kids single-handedly and made a lot of sacrifices along the way for us. This is one of the ways I can show her how much I appreciate what she has done for me."

The two-story living room soars to the ceiling and is visually warmed by a functioning fireplace.

Around the House: In the Kitchen

Fool your family — disguise some foods

By Charles Britton

Fruits and vegetables have well-defined roles most of the time, both in botany and in dining custom, but sometimes our expectations will be surprised when foods show up in unexpected contexts.

Science tells us that fruit is the part of the plant that springs from the blossom and surrounds the seeds. Vegetables can be almost anything else—leaves, stalks, roots. This technical definition takes second place to the common way of looking at it: You use fruit for dessert, vegetables for the rest of the meal.

It may be more difficult to define the difference between a fruit and a vegetable in this sense, but we know which is which when we see them. A tomato is a fruit according to botanical taxonomy, but it's a vegetable because we think of it in salad, in a pasta sauce or broiled along with a steak.

The law, in a surprising display of common sense, has adopted the everyday view. In the last century, vegetables brought into the United States had to pay a tariff, whereas fruits did not.

"Ah-ha!" said an importer of tomatoes. "My tomatoes are fruits because science says so, and therefore I don't have to pay."

Good try, replied the U.S. Supreme Court, but no cigar. Tomatoes count as vegetables, the justices ruled, because that's the way they are consumed, with the main part of the meal, not as a dessert.

From a scientific point of view, our tables offer plenty of examples of botanical fruits serving as vegetables: eggplant, green beans, bell peppers, squash, cucumbers. Fruits per se may turn up as a garnish for the main course, as with cranberries and turkey, but no one mistakes them for veggies.

It's much harder to find contrary examples, vegetables taking the place of fruit.

We're going to look at a few cases in which, in a culinary sense, things may not be quite what they seem.

Among vegetables that are consumed as though they were fruit, the most blatant example of confused identities is rhubarb. It's plainly a vegetable, and you usually find it among the lettuce and the carrots, not with the apples and oranges. But virtually its only job is to make desserts—unless you happen to be Azerbaijani. That Central Asian population has pronounced sour tooth and eats rhubarb raw, like celery.

The rest of us will add plenty of sugar to offset the tartness. Rhubarb seems to be something of an acquired taste, but once developed, it becomes an enthusiasm.

Here's a simple and refreshing dessert in which you bake the vegetable... I mean, fruit... well, you know what I mean.

Baked Rhubarb

2 pounds rhubarb (about 6 cups cut up)
1 cup sugar or to taste
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
1 tablespoon cornstarch (optional)

Choose fresh, crisp stalks. They will vary from light pink to cherry red, perhaps with some tinge of green. Wash and trim them. Remove any leaves; some people say leaves are poisonous if eaten in quantity.

Preheat oven to 350 F. Cut rhubarb into ¼-inch lengths. Place most of them in 6-cup baking dish, reserving enough to arrange on top. Mix together sugar, spices and cornstarch. (The cornstarch will thicken juices, but you may prefer them with natural thinness.) Sprinkle sugar mixture over rhubarb. There will be enough room in space between rhubarb pieces. Arrange reserved slices in a neat pattern over top. Bake about 30 minutes, until rhubarb is quite tender. It will render quite a bit of juice. Serve warm. This dessert is delicious with cream, a fine non-fat dessert without it.

Carrot cake—a shameless case of a vegetable assuming the place in dessert usually accorded to fruit—is another example that comes to mind. (And there's a zucchini cake, too, although there we are dealing with a botanical fruit, since it contains the seeds of the parent plant.)

As with some other root crops, carrots hold a portion of sugar, and sweetening is often added to the vegetable when served as a main-course garnish. This allows the carrot to make an easy transition to dessert. In the old days, the French made a carrot pie with the sweetened puree of the vegetable.

We'll shock the expectations less with this attractive pudding, adapted from the works of James Beard.

James Beard's Carrot Pudding

2 pounds beets (large, tough ones are fine)

4 cups sugar
1 tablespoon ground ginger
1 cup slivered or coarsely chopped blanched almonds
2 medium lemons

Put washed, whole beets in water to cover and simmer until tender—up to an hour, more or less. Rinse beets in cold water until cool enough to handle, then peel off skin. It should slip off easily.

Cut beets into ¼-inch pieces. Put into heavy saucepan with sugar, ginger and almonds. Do not add water; mixture will render enough juice to cook. Stir so that beets are evenly coated. Cook over very low heat for half an hour, stirring from time to time. Check carefully so that mixture does not burn.

After half hour, chop lemons fine, peel and all, discarding seeds. Add lemon to saucepan and continue a very low simmer for another half hour.

At this point, test jelly. Put a little on a plate and let stand for 5 minutes. It should be of jamlike consistency. If not, cook preserves a little longer and test again.

You can put this preserve into sealed canning jars, but it is much easier simply to store it covered in the refrigerator, where it will keep for a long time.

Carrot Pecan Crunch Pie
1½ pounds carrots, cut up
2 beaten eggs
1 14-ounce can (1¼ cups) sweetened condensed milk
1 tablespoon pumpkin pie spice
Dash salt
1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
½ cup packed brown sugar
¼ cup margarine or butter, melted
1 cup chopped pecans

Yields 8 servings
Cook carrots, covered, in about 1 cup water for 30 to 40 minutes or until very tender. Drain. Puree carrots in blender, food processor or food mill until smooth (You should have about 2 cups.)

Preheat oven to 375 F. In large mixing bowl combine eggs, sweetened condensed milk, pie spice and salt. Add carrots; mix well. Turn into pastry shell. In small bowl combine brown sugar and margarine; stir in pecans. Sprinkle evenly over pie. Cover edge of pie with foil.

Bake for 25 minutes. Remove foil; bake for 20 to 25 minutes more or until a knife inserted near center comes out clean. Cool completely on wire rack.

WHEN YOU HEAR ABOUT U.S. SAVINGS BONDS' COMPETITIVE RATE...

Copyright © by Universal Pictures, a Division of Universal City Studios, Inc. Courtesy of MCA Publishing, a Division of MCA, Inc. Used with permission from the Harpo Marx Estate

Everyone's amazed when they hear what U.S. Savings Bonds have to offer.

Savings Bonds earn market-based interest rates—just like money market accounts—so you're guaranteed a competitive return, no matter what happens to interest rates. All you have to do is hold your Bonds for five years.

What's more, the interest you earn is completely free from state and local income taxes. And federal taxes can be deferred.

You can buy Bonds for as little as $25. And it's easy—purchase them where you work or bank. For the current rate, call 1-800-US-BONDS.

A trio of Shar-pei puppies sit at attention and offer hopeful gazes

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Picking the PERFECT PUPPY

Story by Brenda Dooley

Perhaps you're planning a new addition to the family...

A furry, wide-eyed, floppy-eared, tail-wagging, wet-nosed best friend — a puppy.

The little critters are cute, cuddly, eager-to-please and irresistible. Before taking a pup home, however, it's important to realize puppies are also big responsibilities.

The decision to add a puppy or dog to the family should be carefully considered, according to a local pet store owner and veterinarian.

Families are advised to research the different types of breeds and to match their needs with the characteristics most common to the pooch of their choice.

Yvonne Jacques, owner of Sunshine Pet Center in Northville Township, recommends that potential pet owners use common sense when shopping for a puppy.

"You should be able to accommodate the dog's lifestyle," Jacques says. In other words, a St. Bernard puppy is likely to outgrow its surroundings if brought home to a cramped, one-bedroom apartment. A more appropriate pooch for those in small living quarters may be a bichon frise, a small, lively, white dog.

Jacques insists that choosing to purchase a dog should never be an impulse decision. She also doesn't recommend giving puppies or other pets as gifts to celebrate the holidays, mainly because there is too much confusion in the household at those times.

"It's like having a child," she says. "It's a lot of responsibility having a dog. Sometimes people don't realize what they're getting into."

Meadowbrook Vet Clinic in Novi, agrees.

"All too often, people don't know what they've got after they pick out a dog — except maybe the things they've heard from other people."

The solution? Ask questions. Ask a lot of questions. At the same time, consider your family habits, likes, and dislikes. Do you want the dog for protection or for companionship? Do you want a dog that's good with attention-seeking children or one that prefers independence?

Christlieb suggests determining several factors before ultimately selecting what kind of puppy to add to the family.

"As far as breeds go, I like them all," Christlieb says. "There's a wonderful breed of animals out there — almost any breed has good qualities."

Volunteers

Grosh counsels women

By DOROTHY NASH

"I feel so much better, just talking to you" is a typical comment that Glenna Grosh hears as a volunteer peer counselor at the Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center.

Women of all ages and from all sociological, educational, and economic groups call in and walk in to air their problems or to ask for information on free support groups or tuition classes about which they have heard.

"We have a whole wall full of free handouts they can come in to get," Grosh said. They're for mothers, divorced women, abused women, single parents, and those wanting or needing training for a career.

Some women, however, have problems about which they don't know what to do, and they want solutions

But, Grosh said, "we don't give solutions. We just listen to people tell about their problems and then help find what their options are."

Some women want to talk about their problems on the phone. Grosh said, however, "We encourage them to come in and not tie up our phones."

And when women walk in with their problems, she said, "We have tables, chairs, coffee, and Kleenex, and even toys for the children."

"You have to have a lot of empathy for this volunteering," she admitted. To gain that empathy there is a required several-weeks course, followed by on-going reinforcement in staff meetings to which people from other agencies come to tell what they are doing.

Glenna Grosh is one of about forty counselors, she said, who volunteer for three hours one morning or afternoon in the five-day week the center is open.

Her assessment of this peer counseling? "I love it," she answered. "Sometimes I come home depressed," but, she said, she isn't apt to quit something she has been doing for ten years.

Anyone who wishes to get involved in peer counseling may call 591-6400, ext. 430 for information.

Longtime Northville doctor Victoria Lovewell attends a special luncheon in honor of her retirement

Time to retire

Lovewell retires after 61 years as physician

By BRENDA DOOLEY

"I've enjoyed every minute of it." That's what Dr. Victoria Lovewell says about her 61 years of practice as an osteopathic physician and surgeon. For 54 of those 61 years, Dr. Lovewell has worked in Northville.

Known by most of her patients as "Dr. Vicky" — because her husband also was a physician and it was confusing having two Dr. Lovewells in the family — Victoria Lovewell has decided to retire.

A special luncheon was held in her honor Friday, July 21, hosted by

"I have enjoyed working for all these years . . . Most of my patients I call my friends."

— Victoria Lovewell,
Northville physician

Esther Cockin and Winifred Mumery.

Guests attending the luncheon at the Cockin residence, on First Street in Northville, included Mrs. Robert Kukey of Columbus, Ohio, Lovewell's daughter; and many friends from Plymouth and Northville

Mrs. Cockin and Lovewell have been friends for 54 years.

"I have enjoyed working for all these years," Lovewell said about her career. "Most of my patients I call my friends."

Upon retiring, Lovewell plans to enjoy reading, relaxing and visiting friends. She also plans to vacation in Empire, Mich.

"A lot of people have asked me if I plan to travel, but I've been to every state in the U.S. except Oklahoma," Lovewell commented. "I'm going to relax."

Classmates sought for school reunion

Wow... how time flies. Northville High School Class of 1984 is planning a five-year reunion, its first such celebration.

Organizers of the reunion report that only about 70 classmates have responded and paid for tickets to the event. They are worried that they didn't reach a lot of their fellow graduates and they need help.

The reunion takes place Saturday, July 22, at Joy Manor (or Joy Hall) on Joy and Middlebelt roads in Westland. The event begins at 7 p.m. and runs until 3 a.m., featuring food, an open bar, a disc jockey, dancing, and reminiscing. Dress is casual.

Cost is $35 per person, but the price may be reduced if more classmates respond.

Participants should send checks payable to: Jeff Darrow, Class of '84, 37565 Scotsdale, Apt. 104, Westland, MI 48185. Tickets will be reserved for the classmates who send their payments. The tickets will be held at the door. Payments also will be accepted at the door on the night of the reunion.

Classmates who are unable to attend the reunion are asked to send an RSVP so the reunion committee can tell everyone what they're doing and where they're living.

Graduates who have information about new addresses or phone numbers of fellow classmates are asked to call Doug Doyle at 349-0851, Jeff Darrow at 454-1304, or Darlene Piskor at 451-1434. Darlene Piskor works at the Starting Gate Saloon in downtown Northville. Anyone who needs directions to Joy Manor is encouraged to stop in to ask her for more information.

The reunion committee includes Kim Abraham, Jill Anger, Becky Baumann, Steve Crawford, Jeff Darrow, Doug Doyle, Steve Hamilton, John Kaley, John Kunz, Heather MacDonald, Darlene Piskor, Donna Piskor, Larry Salmeto, and Kim Terwin. All committee members urge other classmates to attend the reunion.

Pompon camp offered

Mid-America Pompon Inc. will offer its four-day summer pompon camp at the Northville Community Center from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. during the week of Aug. 14-18.

All-new routines, cheers, chants and jumps will be taught by the collegiate Mid-America staff. Pompon routines are set to top-40 music and include kicks, arm movements, and various dance steps.

Participants may bring their own pompons or may purchase them at camp. The camp is recommended for six to 12-year-olds. Advanced registration is required at the Northville Recreation Department. For more information call 349-0203.

Cost of the camp is $20 for residents and $25 for non-residents.

Library Used Book sale set

Members of the Friends of the Northville Public Library are making plans for their annual used book sale in conjunction with the Northville sidewalk sales.

The book sale will feature books of all kinds and will be held Saturday, Aug. 5 in front of the MAGS (Michigan Association of Gift Salesmen) building at 133 W. Main St. Early browsers are invited to browse through the numerous volumes available for sale, but books cannot be purchased before 9 a.m. The sale will end at 4 p.m.

Free orange drink will be available to thirsty shoppers, courtesy of M-Care Health Center on Griswold Street. Photos not used by the Northville Record during the 1987-88 year will be sold at a separate table for 25 cents each. Many of the photos feature children from the community.

Book prices are 50 cents for hardbound copies; 25 cents of five for $1 for paperbacks; and 5-25 cents for children's books. Collectibles are individually priced.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for major gifts for the library. Contributions of books may be brought to the library until Tuesday, Aug. 1. All books are welcome except textbooks, Reader's Digest Condensed Books, encyclopedias more than 10 years old, and magazines, including National Geographic.

Friends of the Northville Public Library plan to store books at Cooke School for another year, thanks to cooperation from Superintendent George Bell. The group embarked on a community-wide search for a place to store books after learning that a storage room in the City Municipal Building was no longer available to them. The storage space was shared by the Friends and the Northville Police Department.

Books were then moved to storage spaces at Cooke School. But when Moraine Elementary School was scheduled to reopen, many programs in the building were moved to Cooke School, forcing the Friends to move the books again.

Storage space was found at Northville Downs, where the books will be stored until the August sale.

were named to the Dean's Honor Roll for the spring day term at Lawrence Technological University. To be named to the honor roll a student must maintain at least a 3.5 grade point average for the term and be a full-time student.

Helpful tips offered to new dog owners

First, decide if you'd like a dog that sheds or doesn't shed. Keep in mind that those that don't shed often require more grooming, which means regular trips to the doggie salon.

Next, determine what size of dog that's most appropriate for the household. Size will help pet owners narrow the selection of available dog breeds. If you have your heart set on a large dog, a Lhasa apso probably wouldn't be a wise choice. And if a small dog is more desirable, a strapling Newfoundland wouldn't be a good bet. In between are several breeds of medium-size dogs.

Now it's time to choose the personality type and energy level of the doggie of your dreams. Do you want an aggressive dog or a non-aggressive dog? Those shopping for a quiet lap dog may find everything they're looking for in a Shih Tzu. More active types include Welsh springer spaniels or pointers.

Useful information about the characteristics, basic size and history of 124 different dog breeds is contained in The Complete Dog Book, the official publication of the American Kennel Club. Another helpful guide is The Perfect Puppy by Dr. Ben and Lynette Hart, both animal behaviorists who examine the basic characteristics of 56 dog breeds. Christlieb and Jacques highly recommend reading a dog book and looking at photos before selecting a family pup.

Once you've decided on a breed, where should you buy your pooch? Jacques and Christlieb suggest contacting a reputable breeder. Unless, of course, you're in the market for a lovable mutt or mixed breed. In that case, the Michigan Humane Society might be more suitable.

Pet store owners and veterinarians often keep lists of quality breeders, so help is just a phone call away. Jacques suggests talking to other people who have bought dogs from a breeder or to ask for the breeder's references.

"It's always helpful to be able to see one of the (puppy's) parents," Jacques says.

Also, Christlieb advises people to call a local veterinarian to ask questions about a dog breed before making a selection.

You've selected what kind of dog you'd like and where you'd like to purchase it. Now comes the difficult part — picking your puppy from a litter of happy-go-lucky pups. Christlieb recommends against selecting the shyest pooch in the bunch or the most aggressive one in the litter. Instead, a good rule of thumb is to find a puppy that's fairly placid and happy to be with you. Also, look for signs of good health — clear, bright eyes, a shiny coat, and playfulness.

"The basic personality of a puppy is set at birth," Christlieb says. "You can't teach a puppy to be different — if it's shy it will always be shy. If it's a leader, it will always be a leader."

"Its personality is built in when it is born and it's the single most powerful trait that will carry with the dog throughout its life," he says.

Upon choosing your pooch, it's a good idea to take it to a vet within 10 days of purchasing it to make sure the puppy is in good health. Most reputable breeders offer a health guarantee with the dogs they sell. If the breeder doesn't, ask for one.

A vet will also be able to tell a pet owner if and when the puppy needs shots or vaccinations.

Jacques' recommended breeds include black and yellow Labrador retrievers, golden retrievers, and collies as excellent family dogs. She says all of these breeds are good with children.

Among Christlieb's favorite breeds are golden retrievers, standard poodles, schnauzers, toy poodles, and collies.

"There's no absolute breed that should be recommended," Christlieb says. "One good piece of advice if you've settled on a specific kind of dog is to call a veterinarian and ask the vet what he thinks. There's a dog to fit anyone's needs."

WINNERS CIRCLE

BY LAURIE KIPP

With the opportunity to become a Michigan Lottery Millionaire occurring in every twice-weekly Super Lotto drawing, readers asked for more information on winning

Q. How many prizes of $1 million or more have been won in Michigan?
A. Through the end of June this year, there had been 352, with 39 of these prizes awarded to lottery clubs

Q. How many of these were jackpot winners in a Lotto game?
A. There have been 365 Lotto jackpot winners Of these, 284 received prizes ranging from $1 million up to $17 million

Q. How many have been won this year?
A. Through the June 28 drawing, 28 prizes worth $1 million or more were won this year, or an average of about one a week. This is slightly ahead of the 1988 pace when 51 were awarded during the full year

Q. How many Lotto jackpot prizes have been worth more than $10 million?
A. As of this writing there have been 10, with 45 others in the $5 million to $10 million range. The largest number of winners, 128 won prizes worth $2 to $5 million. Another 103 lucky players won between $1 million and $2 million

Q. What determines the size of the jackpot for each drawing?
A. The top prize is based on the number of plays in the game since the jackpot was last won. When a rollover occurs, Lottery officials establish a new guaranteed minimum based on the amount already in the jackpot plus anticipated sales for the next game

Q. How many plays does it take to add another $1 million?
A. About 2.2 million. From each dollar in Lotto game sales, 26 cents is placed in the jackpot prize pool for investment to pay a prize over 30 years. But, because winners collect this money plus all the interest it earns over that 20-year period, $1 million can be awarded with only about $550,000 in the prize pool

Q. Are my odds of winning the jackpot better when it goes above a $1.5 million minimum?
A. Your odds of hitting the jackpot remain the same, about one in seven million, no matter how large the jackpot is. But, as larger jackpots attract more players, there is a greater chance that the top prize will be shared by two or more winners

Q. How many times have there been multiple jackpot winners?
A. Through the end of June, the Super Lotto jackpot has been won 107 times with multiple winners in 37 drawings

Q. Since the start of Lotto play in 1984, how many other prizes have been won in these games?
A. As of the end of June, 3,561,450, which includes more than 80,000 players who matched five numbers for awards worth up to $4,767. Winners matching four numbers have received prizes of up to $144

Q. What is the total won in Lotto games in Michigan?
A. Counting the full value of jackpot prizes, the total is now past $1.38 billion

For submitting the first question leading to this column, Surrah J. Patel of Taylor will receive 50 "Pam & Fortune" tickets. Note: When duplicate questions are received, that with the earliest date stamp upon arrival at Lottery Central wins. In case of a tie, the winner is selected by random drawing

If you have a question not yet covered in these monthly columns, send it to "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery PO Box 38077, Lansing, MI 48909

Northville quartet 3rd at Gus Macker tourney

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Defense and teamwork have always been the cornerstone for successful basketball — even if it's employed in a three-on-three game on the street corner of a small town in mid-Michigan.

A foursome of Northville boys learned that lesson on their way to a third-place divisional finish at the world famous "Gus Macker three-on-three Basketball Tournament" earlier this month.

The event is held every year on the streets of Belding, Michigan — nicknamed "Mackerville USA" — and is the premier outdoor event of its kind, drawing thousands of players and even more spectators. The tourney received nationwide attention several years ago thanks to a Sports Illustrated feature, and the publicity piqued the interest of local youngsters Mike Lang, Jason Flading, Bill Kelley, and Paul McCreadie. A year ago, these four Northville High School buddies joined forces and signed up for an offshoot of the original tournament held in Port Huron.

This spring, the team tried their hand at the Macker tourney in Saginaw as a sort of warm-up for the big event in Belding.

"They read about it, and on a lark they got the team together and signed up to play last summer," said Mike's mother, Sharon. "The four boys are in the same class and they've played basketball together for the last couple of years. They are good friends."

After less-than-impressive results in the first two tournaments, the locals found themselves among more than 16,000 participants and 4,000 teams in Belding, with more than 100,000 spectators on hand for the three-day event.

"We were really overwhelmed by the number of people — it was unbelievable," Lang said. "At the other tournaments, there were only 2,000."

First-round Gus Macker games are up to 20, and a team must win by two. Consolation round contests are up to 15 and each basket is worth one point, unless it is from the perimeter — then it's worth two. The two-point line is the same distance from the basket as the high school three-point line.

"You have to call your own fouls," Lang said. "If there are disputes, there is a guy called a 'Gus-Buster' assigned to every court, to resolve the problems."

The Northville squad won four games in six tries in the tourney to capture third place out of 24 teams in their division. Three criteria are used in selecting the divisions: age, experience, and height.

"We were happy to be third because it was our highest finish, but we thought we could win the whole thing," Lang said.

The team won a couple matches in the first round but then fell to the eventual champs 23-21 in a grueling, sudden-death clash. In the consolation round, the Northville squad won two more times but dropped a 16-14 decision to the team that ended up taking second.

"I was disappointed," Kelley said.

"We took a very tough past 20 points but we ended up losing it."

With four players and only three spots available on the court at one time, the local team developed a substitution system where a new player was rotated in after every three baskets.

"We tried to play our hearts out and then sit out and get a breather," McCreadie said. "We have a very balanced team and that's important at the Macker. We have two big guys and a few smaller guys who can shoot well."

When Lang (6-foot-5) and McCreadie (6-foot-2) were on the court at the same time, the Northville team went to a post-up inside game. When one of the two were on the sidelines, a more perimeter-oriented attack was employed.

"Bill Kelley is our outside shooter and Jason Flading drives a lot," McCreadie explained. "Mike and I post-up."

The four-man rotation ended in game five when McCreadie went down with a twisted ankle. Although the injury wasn't serious, he was unable to walk and was lost for the remainder of the competition.

"We had to abandon the rotation and I'm not sure if it hurt us or not," Lang said. "But we were very competitive, even after the injury to Paul."

According to Flading, tough defense was the key to the team's success.

"The reason we did better this time was we played better defense," he said. "In tournaments like this, a lot of teams don't play defense."

With sights on a first-place finish, the Northville foursome plan to enter two more Gus Macker tournaments this summer in Rochester and Lansing.

"We were disappointed that we lost two real close matches but we know that third place is good," McCreadie said. "It was our best finish but we couldn't help but think 'we could have been in first place.'"

Seventh-inning collapse crumbles Holzer team spirit

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The schedule says Tom Holzer Ford's final regular-season game is on July 21, but according to Coach John Osborne, the campaign came to a crashing halt in the seventh inning of a heartbreaking 2-1 defeat to Hines Park Lincoln Mercury back on July 14.

In that game, the local LCBL entry put together six innings of solid, winning baseball. But a total collapse in the final inning resulted in another loss — and perhaps more importantly, the crumbling of the team's spirit.

"It was a battle, but I'm afraid it was also the death of our team," Osborne admitted.

As the game unfolded, a pitchers' duel developed. Neither team scored a run until Holzer broke the deadlock in the top of the fifth. Tom Skynar reached base on an error, moved up on a ground out by Chris Williams, and later scored on a throwing error.

It remained 1-0 until that fateful seventh, when — according to Osborne — "the season ended for us." With one out, a lazy pop fly in foul territory down the left field line dropped in when Osborne thought it should have been the second out. With new life, the Hines Park batter ripped a base hit, stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch, and scored on a suicide squeeze.

To make matters worse, Holzer didn't even salvage an out on the play because nobody covered first on the bunt. The runner ended up scoring the game-winner following a passed ball and a single.

"It's a very hard way to lose a game," Osborne said. "I was very upset because we played well for much of the game, and then we collapsed."

Starter and loser Todd Griggers was the real victim of his teammates' poor defense. He was brilliant, allowing only three hits through six innings, but was still tagged with the defeat. Holzer managed just three hits in the game.

"Todd pitched a fine game," Osborne said.

DUFFY'S PLUMBING 10, TOM HOLZER FORD 3: The week started off with Holzer fighting much of this July 12 contest in order to avoid a mercy-rule defeat.

Duffy's scored two in the second and five in the third off starter Craig Bowman, while Holzer countered with a run in the third on an RBI single by Rob Baumgartel.

Duffy's added three more runs to take a 10-1 lead in the fifth, and were going in for the kill when Holzer completed a double-play to avoid falling behind by 10 runs, which would have automatically ended the game.

In the sixth, Holzer's Eddie Walsh led off with a single, advanced on a ground out, and scored on another grounder. Later in the inning, Jeff Kot drove in the game's final run with a hit.

"Duffy's is a good-hitting club, and they really came after us pretty good," Osborne said.

LITTLE CAESARS 10-10, TOM HOLZER FORD 0-0: Osborne's worst fears were realized two days after the disastrous loss to Hines Park when Holzer dropped both ends of a doubleheader to Little Caesars on July 16 by a combined score of 20-0.

Dispelling any doubt, this twinbill was a graphic indication just how costly the previous defeat had been. For the first time all season, Holzer wasn't the least bit competitive.

"We fell apart," Osborne admitted. "Our pitching and defense weren't there, and we really haven't hit the ball all season. We were not competitive."

In game one, Caesars broke a scoreless tie with five runs in the third and then ended it with a four-run rally in the fifth. Holzer threatened once, loading the bases with one out in the fourth on two infield hits and a walk, but two quick outs ended the inning.

The nightcap featured more of the same. Caesars broke a scoreless tie with five runs in the third and then ended it with a four-run rally in the sixth. With the score 10-0, the mercy rule was invoked.

Starter Rob Moore went the distance and suffered the loss. Infielder Steve Ross was the only Holzer player with two hits.

"Those were two embarrassing losses," Osborne said. "The bright side is there are only two more games left in the season."

With last week's setbacks, Holzer's season record is a dismal 2-21.

Northville grabs win number one

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

After suffering through a 12-game losing skid, Northville Connie Mack Coach Bob Kehoe wasn't fortunate enough to be on hand — in person — to see his squad end that streak.

The Northville team notched victory number one of the 1989 season on July 10 with an impressive 7-5 win over North Farmington-West Bloomfield. With Kehoe out of town on business, assistant coach Bill Kaley presided over the victory in his absence.

"I wasn't there, but I was sure happy to hear we won it," Kehoe said.

Spurred on by the win, the Northville team won another game to wrap up a week that featured two wins in three tries. With just one week remaining in the regular season, Northville improved its record to 2-15.

Starting pitcher Aaron Hodgkin deserves much of the credit for the win over North Farmington-West Bloomfield. In seven innings, Hodgkin allowed only four hits while fanning nine and walking six.

In the first inning, Northville took a commanding 4-0 lead thanks to hits by Joe Kaley and Hodgkin sandwiched around two walks and two errors. North Farmington-West Bloomfield got a single run back in the second, but Northville added three more in the third — on five walks and another error — to make it 7-1.

From there, the locals held on to win, but not before a four-run rally in the fourth cut the lead to 7-5.

"We only had two hits but we took

Holdridge takes first at Flag City meet

A foursome of Northville youngsters performed very well at the 1989 Flag City Invitational Swim Meet in Ohio as members of the Clarenceville Swim Club.

Twenty-nine teams and 424 participants were on hand for the long course meet, held at Riverside Park in Findlay, Ohio. Northville's Teri Juhasz, Craig Sieving, Jeff Sieving, and Bob Holdridge all had numerous top-10 finishes, with Holdridge grabbing the area's only first-place victory.

Holdridge — who will be a sophomore this fall at Northville High — won the 400-meter freestyle event in the boys age 15-16 division with a 4:35.54 effort. He was also second in the 200 freestyle (2:10.41), third in the 200 IM (2:30.53) and the 100 freestyle (1:00.01), fifth in the 50 freestyle (27.86), and sixth in the 100 breast stroke (1:22.17).

Jeff Sieving topped the local swimmers with seven top-10 finishes in the age 11-12 division, including a second in the 100 breast stroke (1:33.27), thirds in the 50 butterfly (35.39) and 50 breast stroke (42.28), sixth in the 100 backstroke (1:28.05), eighth in the 200 IM (3:02.65), and ninth in the 50 backstroke (41.24) and the 50 freestyle (33.58). He was also a member of the 200 freestyle relay team that was second (2:16.47) and the 200 medley relay team that was also second (2:36.62).

In the boys 9-10 group, Craig Sieving was fifth in the 100 butterfly (1:44.76), seventh in the 50 butterfly (43.25), and eighth in the 50 backstroke (45.16). He was also a member of the 200 freestyle relay team that was third (2:44.95) and the 200 medley relay team that placed fourth (3:14.59). Juhasz was eighth in the girls age 13-14 100 butterfly (1:16.70) and ninth in the 200 IM (2:47.53) and the 100 breast stroke (1:27.03). She was also a member of the winning 400 medley relay team (5:11.07) and was a member of the second-place 400 freestyle relay team (4:41.94).

DISCUSSION, OLYMPIC STYLE: The Michigan Stingray Swim Association sponsored a "Michigan Salute to Swimming — Olympic Style" from 7:30-10:30 p.m. July 18 at Farmington Harrison High School.

The featured speakers at the event included former USA Olympic team members Mary T. Meagher and Dave Berkoff. Meagher competed in the 1984 Olympics and still holds world records in the 100-meter and 200-meter butterfly events. Berkoff was a silver medal winner in the 100-meter backstroke of the 1988 Olympics and was a member of a gold medal winning relay team.

advantage of the other team's mistakes," Kehoe said. "Hodgin worked his way out of a few jams too."

YPSILANTI 10, NORTHVILLE 3: Ypsilanti is one of the top two or three Connie Mack teams in the area, but the win on July 12 wasn't an easy one.

Without regular starters like Hodgins, Mike Best, or Tim Hubbert available, Kehoe went with catcher Mike Padden. He didn't allow a hit in the first three innings and continued to frustrate the Ypsilanti batters.

"Padden pitched extremely well early on," Kehoe said. "He was really frustrating the Ypsilanti team."

While Padden sailed along, he helped his own cause by delivering an RBI hit in the first inning. Three hits — including a run-scoring single by Best — and a walk in the third made it 2-0, but the lead was short-lived as Ypsilanti finally woke up and exploded for six runs in the fifth. In the bottom of the inning, Northville scored another single run to make it 6-3 but Ypsi tagged reliever Dave McKee for two more in the sixth to provide the final margin of victory.

"We outplayed them for the first four innings, we just couldn't hold on," Kehoe said. "We had only nine players, so I was forced to bring back Darren Kehoe, even though he is still bothered by an injured ankle."

R.C. Heaton (2-for-4), Best (2-for-3) and Padden (1-for-2, with two walks) led Northville offensively.

NORTHVILLE 4, WEST SEVEN 3: The locals wrapped up the week on July 13 with a dramatic win that included a game-winning run in the bottom of the last inning.

"Right now we are in a very good frame of mind," Kehoe said. "We are playing better."

Two walks, a steal, and a passed ball enabled Northville to take a 1-0 lead after one inning. Northville went ahead 2-1 on hits by McKee and Phil Seidler, along with a walk and an error, and then turned back another West 7 surge with a single run in the third, and a 3-2 lead. Kehoe delivered a run-scoring sacrifice after singles by Heaton and Padden.

West 7 knotted the score for the third time with a run in the fourth and it remained tied until the seventh. Two errors put Northville runners on first and second, a fly out advanced them both, and a third error allowed the winning run to score.

Nine new holes under construction at Pebble Creek

This is the second in a series of feature articles on the local area golf scene, courses, and participants. The Pebble Creek Golf Club is located at 24095 Currie Rd. in Lyon Township.

By MATT SEIDL

If you enjoy water and trees, you're going to love the additional nine holes currently under construction at Pebble Creek Golf Club.

A nine-hole course since its conception in 1979, Pebble Creek plans to double its offerings sometime late next summer. The new development is located on the west side of the current course and should provide a scenic and challenging experience for local linksters.

Water — a lot of it — can be found on all of the new holes. This feature adds to both the beauty and difficulty of the course, which already holds water on six of its original holes.

Pebble Creek officials also hope to plant between 1,500 and 2,000 trees within the next 12 months.

"We should be playing golf on the new part by August of 1990," predicted Harold Edwards Jr., owner and builder of the course. "We're excited about it. The holes aren't going to be real long, but they should be interesting. We have a lot of obstacles out there."

Above-average golfers may score quite well on the new holes since the combined length is less than 3,000 yards, Edwards mentioned. But he added that hitting the ball straight will be crucial.

Holes No. 13, 14 and 15 may best characterize the addition. All three are short in length, potentially gorgeous in view and hazardous in play.

Thirteen, a par 4 which covers approximately 310 yards, features water to the left and right of the fairway. A ditch full of water also stretches across the fairway some 100 yards in front of the green.

"It'll be one of those not-too-hard, not-too-soft tee shots," Edwards said with a smile.

The 14th hole appears simple on paper: a 170-yard par 3 with a big green. There is very little room for error, however. If one hits short, the ball falls in the water which stretches from tee to green. And if one hits long, there are woods to battle.

As for No. 15, the shortest hole on the course (a 260-yard par 4), it can be a nightmare for players who hook or slice the ball to the left. Trees soon will line the left side of the fairway, while water sits just left of the green — just waiting for errant tee shots by big hitters.

"After we extend a couple of the current holes and add the new ones, the course will be around 6,000 yards long," Edwards said. "Short is kind of the new trend, though ... short and interesting."

Owners Bonnie and Harold Edwards examine construction of Pebble Creek's new nine holes rent designs of the new holes are somewhat different than the original plans.

"We had a difficult time," he said. "We bought a bad piece of property. There was so much low ground we had to bring in a lot of dirt."

"Also, when you're building a course, you have to worry about safety and traffic flow (while playing the course). We had to make changes here and there as we went along."

Edwards has yet to place sand traps on the additional holes, figuring the course already will play slow and could move to a snail's pace if more trouble spots are added.

Pebble Creek's numbering system will change with the addition as well. Two of the new holes will be among the front nine (No. 3 and 4), while current holes No. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 move up two notches apiece. Today's ninth hole will become No. 18.

The current holes targeted for extension are No. 3 and No. 8. The former will go from a 401-yard par 4 to a 457-yard par 4, while the latter will go from a 449-yard par 4 to a 500-yard par 5.

Edwards estimates that when all of the figures are totaled, the expansion of Pebble Creek — which began four years ago — will cost around one million dollars.

"You can build courses faster than this, but we do things a little differently," he said, explaining the process. "We pay for everything as we go along. Of course, the bad property we bought this time slowed us down even more."

Edwards and his father, Harold Sr., also built Dun Rovin Golf Club in Northville in 1959 and Bob-O-Link Golf Club in Avon, Ohio in 1968. They sold the courses in 1963 and 1974, respectively.

From there, the father-son combination — along with a handful of others — built Pebble Creek on land which Harold Jr. purchased in 1972.

"It's taken us a long time to get going ... it always does with a golf course," the younger Edwards said. "You have to get known. You don't just open your doors and pack the course right away. It sometimes takes 10 years to build a solid reputation."

"We're going pretty good now," he added. "That's why we decided to add nine holes. We need more room to handle the people."

Harold Sr. died in 1983, about the same time he and his son were planning the addition. The younger Edwards pulled back briefly, only to continue the venture with partner Michael McCutchins — an engineer with a course-designing background.

Edwards' plans include expansion of the clubhouse, which is managed by his wife, Bonnie. He also has toyed with the idea of building 27 more holes nearby.

But ... "All we want to do right now is get these nine holes out of the way," he said.

Hypertension — the 'silent killer'

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Known as the "silent killer," hypertension — better known as high blood pressure — continues to stalk its victims with very little warning.

According to the American Heart Association (AHA), about 57 million American adults have or are being treated for high blood pressure and almost half of these people don't know about their life-threatening condition.

"Despite modern treatment methods, many high-blood-pressure victims either don't know about their condition or are aware of it and take it too lightly," said Jeanine Sheppard, registered nurse and member of the AHA.

Sheppard said blood pressure is the push of blood against the walls of the arteries. According to the AHA, high blood pressure exceeds 140 mm Hg systolic pressure and 90 mm Hg diastolic pressure, or 140 / 90.

The systolic pressure is the maximum pressure in the arteries when the heart beats. The diastolic pressure is the minimum pressure in the arteries between heart beats.

Sheppard said high blood pressure occurs when the heart strains to pump blood through the arteries.

Pam Nelson, registered nurse at Providence Hospital in Southfield, said having high blood pressure can lead to a variety of ailments including kidney failure, stroke, and heart disease.

Nelson said the major problem with treating hypertension is that the condition is fairly unnoticeable. "Hypertension does not show any symptoms until the problem is quite advanced," she said.

She added that all adults should have their blood pressure checked at a yearly physical to carefully follow their health. She noted people should also check with their physician as to what blood pressure level is normal for them.

"Ask your doctor what your normal base pressure is, because a blood pressure will typically fluctuate for a number of reasons — especially when a person is active," Nelson said.

"After a person finds their normal level, they should keep records over time to carefully monitor its progression," she added.

Nelson noted however, that a person's blood pressure will elevate somewhat as he or she ages. That's why keeping records over time is important for noticing any unusual increases.

She said teenagers can be also afflicted by high blood pressure and added hypertension is typically more common among blacks than whites. "For some unknown reason, the amount of high blood pressure incidents is higher among the black population than the white population," Nelson said.

If a person suffers from high blood pressure, Nelson said most of the cases cannot be cured, but can be controlled with a regimen of exercise and dieting.

"Eating the correct food and exercising can usually treat the problem," she said. "But, if it can't be controlled through exercise and dieting, a whole battery of medications can be tried."

Sheppard said most high-blood-pressure patients use control methods for the rest of their lives.

"High blood pressure may require some adjustments, but it's nothing to be afraid of since it can be treated effectively," Sheppard said. "The best treatment plan is to follow your doctor's advice and keep him or her informed of any difficulties so that changes in treatment can be considered."

"The death rates from cardiovascular diseases and stroke have decreased significantly in recent years," she added. "This improvement may be a result of earlier and better treatment of high blood pressure."

'50s Festival lets the 'good times roll'

Get out those poodle skirts and blue suede shoes.

The second annual Michigan '50s Festival is scheduled to roll into Novi for five full days of fun and activities beginning Wednesday, July 26, and running through Sunday, July 30.

"We're going to do it again," said Connie Mallett, president of the Michigan '50s Festival Committee and Executive Director of the Novi Chamber of Commerce.

"It's just too much fun not to do it every year," she added.

Although the first Michigan '50s Festival was held just last year, it got its start several years ago when Novi city officials and representatives of the business community began looking for a festival that would be distinctive to Novi.

"We were looking for something which would bring people to town and be as distinctive to Novi as the Cherry Festival is to Traverse City and the Bavarian Festival is to Frankenmuth," said Mallett.

After toying with several ideas, festival founders settled on the concept of celebrating the 1950s — the golden years of rock 'n' roll, Elvis Presley, Pat Boone, frats and greasers, drive-in restaurants and all the other wonderful things which make people recall the greatest

NOVI TOWN CENTER

Michigan 50's Festival Sidewalk Sale

July 27 - 30

LOCATED SOUTH OF I-96 ON NOVI ROAD AT GRAND RIVER

Rock 'n' roll lives again at Novi festival

decade in American history with love and longing.

Adding to the festival will be Novi's emergence as one of the shopping capitals of southeastern Michigan with Twelve Oaks Mall, the West Oaks Shopping Center and the Novi Town Center. Merchants throughout the city will be offering special sales during the five-day festival.

Mallett said the 1989 edition of the Michigan '50s Festival will be a special treat for people who love good old-fashioned rock 'n' roll music.

The festival will feature special events on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights in addition to the Happy Days Beer Tent located in front of the Novi Town Center at the Grand River/Novi Road intersection throughout the five-day festival.

Opening ceremonies will be held Wednesday, July 26, at 3 p.m. and the fun and music will continue non-stop until late Sunday night.

The first of the three major events will come up Friday, July 28, with the second annual "Sock Hop Express," beginning at 8:30 p.m. and running to Mallett: 'We were looking for something which would bring people to town and be as distinctive to Novi as the Cherry Festival is to Traverse City and the Bavarian Festival is to Frankenmuth. It's just too much fun not to do it every year.'

1:30 a.m.

Party-goers can purchase a ticket which will provide free bus transportation to four parties taking place simultaneously at four hotels — the Novi Hilton, the Sheraton Oaks, the Wyndham Garden Hotel (in the Novi Town Center) and the Farmington Hills Holiday Inn.

Each of the hotels will sponsor a special '50s party that evening. The Danny Van Show ("A Tribute to Elvis") will be at the Novi Hilton, The Laredos will perform at the Sheraton Oaks, Moose and Da Sharks are scheduled at the Wyndham and Steve King & the Dittlies will perform at the Farmington Hills Holiday Inn.

Tickets for the Sock Hop Express can be purchased in advance for $12 per person or at the door for $14.50.

Coming up Saturday is a 1950s concert by The Contours, the Motown group which struck fame once again through the Dirty Dancing Tour.

Concerts are scheduled at 3, 7 and 9 p.m. in the Novi High School Auditorium at Ten Mile and Taft Road. Tickets cost $10 in advance or $12.50 at the door.

The '50s Festival will continue in high gear on Sunday, July 30, when the focus will be on 1950s automobiles. There will be a car show in the Novi Town Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. followed by the popular "Cruise Grand River" event from 7-9 p.m.

Mallett said the festival attracted approximately 200 vintage cars and street rods last year. And a larger turnout is anticipated this year.

"Cruise Grand River" gives '50s fans an opportunity to relive the days of the drive-ins. "Cruisers" will have the run of Grand River from Novi to Haggerty Road as well as Meadowbrook Road from Grand River to Ten Mile. Along the route they'll find all kinds of "drive-ins," as Kosch's Deli-Pub, Victor's Novi Inn, the Country Epicure, Red Timbers, Papa Romanow's and others set up special outdoor restaurants with music and entertainment.

Although special events are scheduled on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the festival will offer live entertainment every night — Wednesday through Sunday — in the Happy Days Beer Tent in the Town Center.

"Output" is scheduled Wednesday night, "Bobby Sox and the Greasers" will perform Thursday night and "Sounds Like Fun" is slated Friday night.

On Saturday, "Artie Wolfe and the Pack" will perform from 3-7 p.m. and "The Boys" will perform from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. And on Sunday, "The Way Cools" will take the stage in the afternoon, followed by "Moose and Da Sharks" at night.

Traveling first-class

Last year it was a '57 Chevy. This year it's a '59 Chevy Corvette. Yes, folks, the Novi Rotary Club once again this year will be offering people who attend the Michigan '50s Festival an opportunity to win a vintage '50s era automobile. And you've got to believe that each and every one of your friends will feel the ultimate envy pangs when you drive home in this beauty. Rotarians will be selling raffle tickets on the '59 Corvette during all five days of the Michigan '50s Festival in Novi (July 26-30) and the winner will be drawn at the conclusion of the event. All profits from the raffle will be donated by Novi Rotary to PolioPlus, a worldwide campaign sponsored by Rotary International to eradicate polio and other debilitating children's diseases from the face of the earth.

Festival concert features Motown group

The sounds of Motown will take center stage at the 1989 edition of the Michigan '50s Festival.

The Contours — one of the top groups in the Motown Records stable of stars — will be featured at three concerts on Saturday, July 29.

Also featured will be Hoola Hoop Whiz Matt Plendl.

Concerts will be held in the Novi High School Auditorium on Ten Mile at Taft Road at 3, 7 and 9 p.m.

There is general admission seating, and tickets may be purchased in advance for $10 or at the door for $12.50. Tickets may be purchased at the Novi Chamber of Commerce and the Novi Parks & Recreation Department.

Tickets can be ordered through the mail at P.O. Box 187, Novi, MI 48050. For more information call 349-3988.

Okay. Okay. Technically, the Contours and Motown are not products of the Fabulous Fifties. But the Michigan '50s Festival is structured in such a way as to incorporate all the good sounds and times of the "good ol' days," and the Motown Sound is definitely a part of those good times.

The Contours were one of the most exciting and entertaining groups to come out of Berry Gordy's stable of Motown stars. Their high energy choreography made them one of the most popular and sought after acts of the day.

THE CONTOURS

The Contours were featured on the '1988 Dirty Dancing Tour'

The Contours all hailed from the streets of Detroit, and it seemed a natural for the group to wind up with Motown Records. Jackie Wilson, a close friend of Berry Gordy and a cousin of Hubert Johnson, an original member of the Contours, interceded on the group's behalf and the group eventually ended up with a seven-year contract with Motown.

In the summer of 1962, The Contours struck gold with a song titled "Do You Love Me?" which became Motown's fastest climbing release of all times.

Within two weeks of its initial release, "Do You Love Me?" became the number two song on the national charts and went on to become the Contours' first gold record.

Such hits as "Shake Sherry," "Don't Let Her Be Your Baby," "Can You Do It?" "First I Look at the Purse," "Can You Jerk Like Me" and "Just a Little Misunderstanding" followed in rapid succession.

Today, the Contours are back in the spotlight again — and their resurgence is based on their first gold record, "Do You Love Me?" which was featured in the 1987 movie "Dirty Dancing" starring Patrick Swayze.

The tremendous success of "Dirty Dancing" led to one of the most popular tours of 1988 — "Dirty Dancing — The Concert Tour," which featured the talents of The Contours, Bill Medley, Eric Carmen and Merry Clayton.

Motown Records was quick to capitalize on The Contours'

The Contours headline '50s Festival concerts resurgence by re-releasing "Do You Love Me?" which was written by Berry Gordy Jr. The tune received great acclaim as part of the triple-platinum record, "More Dirty Dancing" and quickly rose up the charts.

Sharing the stage with the Contours at all three '50s Festival concerts will be Mat Plendl, who is billed as the world champion hula hooper. Plendl was featured in People Magazine in a story about the 30th anniversary of the hula hoop.

Wham-O, the maker of hula hoops, is experiencing a resurgence from what they call "biological backlash" — the original hoopsters buying them for their kids.

Plendl, 25, began hula hooping at the age of 10 and went on to become world champion in 1975. From an initial one million contestants, it came down to two who vied for the title on the nationally televised Dinah Shore Show. Plendl won the title before a national audience.

No contests have been held since 1981, but there will be one again this year as a result of the renewed interest. Although Plendl is still considered the world's best, he is expected to serve as a judge in the upcoming competition.

Since that early win on national television, Plendl has been on numerous television shows. He has appeared three times on "The Tonight Show" with Johnny Carson, "The Dolly Parton Show," "Solid Gold," "The Wil Shriner Show," "Hour Magazine" and Merv Griffin. Internationally, he has appeared on major variety shows in Chile, England, Italy, France, Germany and Canada.

Plendl's talent with the hoops has to be seen to be believed. He makes them appear to be made of liquid as he slides in and out of the circular forms to pulsating background music. His training in mime and gymnastics adds to his agile movement.

"It gives the people a window into the possibilities they didn't know existed," said Plendl of his skill with the hula hoop. "It's taking the ordinary and doing what would seem impossible."

People holding tickets from the Sha Na Na concert which was rained out during the 1988 '50s Festival may redeem them for this year's concert featuring the Contours. Tickets may be exchanged person at the Novi Chamber of Commerce office or the Novi Parks and Recreation office. Tickets may be redeemed through the mail by writing to the Michigan '50s Festival, P.O. Box 187, Novi, MI 48050. Redemption of tickets is subject to seat availability. For more information call 349-3988.

Hula Hoop Champion Mat Plendl will share the stage with The Contours

Merchants across Novi and in the Novi Town Center will sponsor a variety of exciting activities and offer special values during the second annual Michigan '50s Festival (July 26-30).

Located at the Grand River/Novi Road intersection, the Novi Town Center will be the hub of '50s Festival activities . . . serving as the site of the Happy Days Beer Tent which will offer live rock 'n' roll bands Thursday through Sunday nights.

The Novi Town Center Merchants Association has planned extensive participation in the festival, and the result is a wide variety of offerings throughout the event.

Branoff Baggage Co will feature a Wurlitzer jukebox and old-fashioned console radio replicas in their window displays which will be available for purchase after the festival.

The Children's Palace will hold hula hoop contests for the public to participate in, while Peter Panda visits with the children and distributes balloons.

Fitness Source plans a weight lifting contest which will entitle the winner in male and female categories to receive 50 pounds of weights and $50 gift certificates.

Lee Wards will help customers create their own works of art on a T-shirt with a paint-spinning machine.

Merle Norman Cosmetics plans a whole weekend of activities. They will feature face-painting for children, five-cent lemonade and a contest to guess the number of gum pieces in a fish bowl. The winner will receive a free makeover and a $25 gift certificate.

NuVision has scheduled a special eyewear designer expo of high fashion frames during the time frame.

Prestige Portraits is co-sponsoring the Novi '50s Festival Baby Contest. Cannisters with each baby's photo will be displayed in the merchant tent. Each penny donated counts as one vote, and proceeds will be donated to the March of Dimes.

Frosty's Ice Cream and Yogurt will hold an ice cream eating contest in the Happy Days Beer Tent on Saturday at 4 p.m. An entry fee of $3 will be donated to the March of Dimes. In their store, Frosty's will feature a contest to guess the number of peanut M&Ms in a jar. The entry fee of $1 also will be donated to the March of Dimes. Frosty's has set a goal of $1,000 for the contest.

Elvis Presley lovers will enjoy the sights and sounds at Sally's Beauty Supply on Saturday from 2-4 p.m. when a local Elvis impersonator is scheduled to perform. Sally's will conduct a Longest Ponytail Contest on Saturday at 1 p.m. and serve free refreshments.

Lazerland also will feature entertainment with '50s era movies and compact discs of classic rock 'n' roll favorites.

Special guest at The Old Ball Park on Saturday from 2-3 p.m. will be former Detroit Tiger pitcher Billy Hoelt. There will be more former Tigers at The Old Ball Park on Saturday at 4 p.m. when Chuck Scrivener, an infielder during the 1970s, will be on hand for one hour. Former Tiger first baseman Jason "Rooftop" Thompson will round out the list of celebrities at The Old Ball Park on Saturday from 6-8 p.m.

Laury Greening, an area storyteller, will tell children's favorites at Border's Book Shop. Sign language interpretation will be added by Kim Willett.

A center-wide sidewalk sale in the Town Center will provide a wide array of summer-time values for area shoppers. Many merchants will offer special discounts.

Rock 'n' roll tunes from the '50s will be blasting from many of the stores to help set the mood along with the performances by the live bands in the Beer Tent. Clowns will tour the shopping center throughout the event, providing entertainment for the children.

Employees in some stores will be dressed in '50s style costumes. Photo and other memorabilia displays in the stores will help create a '50s atmosphere for the festival.
