ters okay school bond issue 2-1

BY MIKE TYREE

Residents of the Northville Public School District said yes to educational building and equipment Oct 5, approving a $16-million bond issue.

Sixty-eight percent of 2,241 voters cast ballots favoring the sale of bonds to renovate, re-equip, and construct facilities within the school district.

But Superintendent George Bell said the district's work has just begun

'The vote means we've got a tremendous amount of work to do now," he said "We've got to ensure the passage of the bond proposal that the trust in the school district and board of education is maintained during the following steps."

Bell said repairs to some school facilities will begin "almost im-mediately." Slated for early repair are roofs at several schools and the gymnasium floor at Cooke Middle chool.

The process of reviewing architectural designs for larger-scale construction projects will begin soon as well, Bell said, with actual work to start in about 120 days

The superintendent cautioned that would not bring high-tech changes to Northville overnight. "People won't see truckloads of computers pulling up to the schools right now," he said. "We have to identify a networking process that works and is effective to meet our needs.

Bell said officials from the Nor-thville School District attended a meeting on the implementation of high-tech products in public schools a week before the bond vote. He said the computer system in the Forest Hills Community School District near Grand Rapids was used as a model, and that Northville would be doing research on the compatibility of the two districts.

"We'll be using experts to help us select our system," he said. "We're going to be very careful with the computers. Bell said each elementary school would add a computer lab, three labs would be placed in each middle school, and the high school computer system would be expanded and modified.

"It's not going to happen over-night," he said. "But we eventually will have computers in every applicable classroom,"

Though the school district will be and we want to move as quickly as going through what he termed "a dramatic, high-tech change," Bell stressed the importance of of standard instructional techniques.

'The bottom line is still the interaction between the teachers and kids," he said. "That idea won't change."

The superintendent said a site for a new elementary school had not been selected, but that the district would be picking up the pace toward a purchase

We'll be looking a property right away," he said. "We're going to need in the neighborhood of 20-22 acres, what we proposed," he said.

possible there.

Bell previously identified land in the northwest portion of the school district as ideal for construction of a new school.

Last week's vote for the bond issuance was attributable to hard work on the part of many, Bell said, and he said low voter turnout was not indicative of the feeling toward the school system.

"The people who were very concerned voted. I feel stronger than ever the committment to accomplish

Though attendance at Monday's public hearing on the city's sidewalk policy was lower than that at the first hearing in September, residents' emotions ran just as high.

The hearing was the second of several on the proposal by city of-ficials to build sidewalks throughout the city, and charge residents for their construction and maintenance.

'It is absolutely the most unfair thing this council has ever done," said Kevin Hartshorne, running for a seat on the council next month. "I think it's blatant arrogance to charge the taxpayers for a public improvement, an improvement on public property." Hartshorne drew several rounds of applause from the audience during his prepared speech. "Not to stake my entire campaign on this issue," he said, "but it is my hope and my resolve that the council will hear these people.

"What had begun as an innocent and noble campaign has become a bitter controversy," he said. Most of the nearly 50 people at Monday's meeting were from the city's northeast quadrant, whose residents had been sent notices of the estimated assessment they would

Homecoming

Northville High School's Homecoming festivities brought out the spirit in students all last week. Special events and activities took place throughout the week, but things really heated up as Friday approached — the day of the Homecoming football game against

Plymouth Canton. The Chiefs ended up winning the game, but the other activities provided plenty of fun. Above, members of the senior class cheer during a pep rally Friday. Since the September meeting, the city council has re-examined that policy, and is now considering sidewalks on at least one side of the street in many areas. According to a letter from City Attorney James

Several speakers criticized what they saw as a lack of consideration given to the city's other three quadrants by the council, and warned council members that they would face similar complaints again. "I'd hate like hell to fight this battle four times," said Earl Bryant of Rouge

Officials examine land donation

BY MIKE TYREE

Frieda Haller's gift of 71.83 acres to Northville Township last week created an avalanche of excitement in the halls of the township offices and produced a growing number of questions in its aftermath.

Township officials this week discussed the donation of the land on the northeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon Roads, reaffirming their contention that the site is ideal for a community library and recreation

"As far as I'm concerned, the site will become a centerpiece, a real hub for residents of Northville and the township," said township Trustee James Nowka. "This site is going to be a wonderful cultural center.'

Nowka defended the passage in Haller's letter of intent which stipulated that a 44,800-square-foot library must be built on the grounds. Construction of a library on the Haller property alters previous identification of the closed Ford Plant on Main Street as a possible site for a

"The Ford site sits in a place that would be good for an office, but with the nature of the roads there, you would have limited accessibility," he said.

Township Supervisor Georgina Goss said options for a new library were still open.

"I don't know that the Ford Plant was ever finalized as a site," she said.

Goss noted that the committee which has worked to select a new library site had suggested 25,000 square feet as appropriate for the facility. But she said she has no qualms about building a much larger library

Record/CHRIS BOYD

"I find it (44,800 square feet) acceptable for the size of a library," she said.

Nowka said a large library could benefit the area in a number of ways. "Libraries arren't just bookshelves," he said. "They have a lot of uses. As far as the Ford site, I think it came down to a forced issue, where people didn't have options.

Group recommends township manager tonight

BY MIKE TYREE

A selection committee's candidate for the vacant Northville Township manager position goes before the township board this evening.

Members of a managerial search committee announced earlier this week that a finalist has been chosen for the $37,000- to $45,000-per-year job, but refused to release the name of their choice pending approval by the board.

Dan Nelson, a member of the fiveperson selection committee, said he will make a formal presentation to the board this evening to highlight the qualifications of the recommended candidate.

Three members of the board of trustees were members of the selection committee, including Township Supervisor Georgina Goss, Richard Allen, and Thomas Handyside.

Nelson said he did not want to give away the identity of the candidate, but said the selection committee was pleased with its choice.

"This person has a great deal of ex-perience," he said. "The person we will be recommending was a unanimous choice (of the committee).'

Nelson said the list for the manager's position had been whittled from several applicants to three within the last few weeks. He said the final decision proved difficult.

"Out of the people we interviewed, there were three people I would have been comfortable with," he said. "I would be secure saying that the top three could have handled the position.

Nelson would not release the names of the final three job seekers. The selection committee's candidate excelled in a variety of ways, according to Nelson.

'We asked some tough questions, and we were looking not only for the response, but how (they) handled themselves," he said. "Some people we talked to did some special things, and they asked some good questions. 'They understood what we expected of them," he added. Nelson was asked if the candidate possessed the qualities outlined by an ad-hoc committee that took four months to draft a report on the ideal township manager.

"Yes, and I don't expect there will be a problem with his acceptance, and I think the board will review the person in a positive manner, as well," he said.

Nelson said the new manager would have a big impact in the township.

"We need this person in place now," he said. "He will have to be strong on a staff level and not a political level.

"We've got a lot of important issues before us, and this needed to be take care of this."

The board of trustees will be meeting at the township hall at 7:30 this evening.

Township mulls wetlands rules

BY MIKE TYREE

The right of self-determination along with the idea of environmental protection - may lead to the adoption of a wetlands ordinance in Northville Township

"State protection is not enough to ensure environmental quality," said Northville Township Planning Commissioner Barbara O'Brien.

O'Brien said the Michigan Department of Natural Resources guidelines affect only five-acre sections, and the spectre of increased large scale development in the township warrants local controls.

"I don't know a whole lot about what the ins and outs of a wetlands ordinance would be," she said. "But it's time we looked at better protecting the environment.'

Planning Commission members briefly discussed a wetlands ordinance at their regular meeting Sept 26. Admittedly smarting from their inability to impact development at a site on Waterford Pond, commissioners vowed to enact regulations which would guarantee that their influence contained an appropriate amount of bite.

Northville Township officials learned at that meeting that their role in the development of a replacement wetland at the Waterford Pond would be limited to "receiving" information from the Jonna Construction Company, developers of a pro-ject in Livonia. The Waterford pond site is being changed to a wetland area to replace wetlands disturbed by the Livonia project. O'Brien said a wetlands ordinance may find its way to the commission within the next two months

"I want to get it on the study agenda," she said. "Once it's presented, everyone will see what is needed.

"We didn't act quickly enough on Waterford Pond," she added. "You have to protect yourself and the environment.

O'Brien said such an ordinance could control the impact developers have on the environment. She used an example of raised tee areas on a golf course as potentially promoting chemical runoff into streams, ponds, and underground water supplies. She also said a wetlands ordinance could keep developers from working "right to the bank" of a stream or pond.

Township Planning & Zoning Ad-ministrator Carol Maise said the commission has "toyed with the idea of a wetlands ordinance, but put it on the back burner.'

She said the developments at Waterford Pond could push the commission toward a decision soon, but cautioned that such action would not be easy

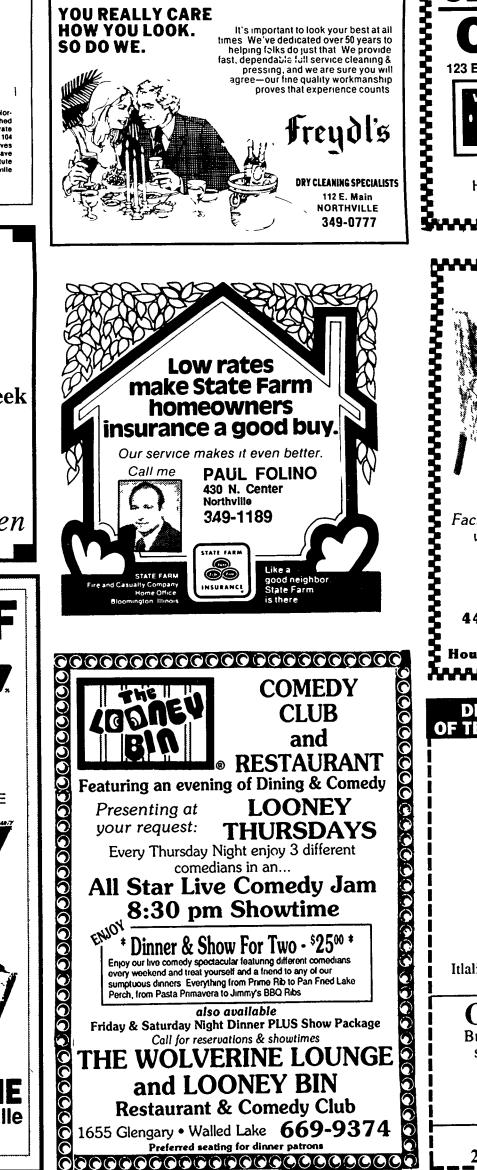

"It's a major undertaking," she said. "We would have to hire a consultant to do it, and administratively it could get messy.

We have to avoid conflicts between the DNR and the township,' she added.

MainCentre developers host groundbreaking ceremony

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

Even the rain cooperated during last Thursday's groundbreaking for downtown Northville's MainCentre development project, holding off until the ceremony was complete. The last thing any of the city officials wanted to do, from Mayor Christopher Johnson on down, was rain on Singh Development Company's parade.

Though excavation on the site began weeks ago, the ceremony gave city and Singh officials a chance to meet formally, and publicly congratulate each other on a job being well done. Over 50 people gathered under the yellow and white tent across from the development to share in the city's enthusiasm for the project

MainCentre, the company's first mixed-use development, was designed by Siegal / Tuomaala Associates of Farmington Hills. The four-story project will incorporate over 27,000 square feet of space for retail shops and professional offices on the first and second floor. Upper floors will house 74 one- and two-bedroom luxury apartments, ranging in price from $695 to $1,145 a month.

Many of the apartments overlook one of two landscaped courtyards in the center of the complex. The apartments each incorporate their own security systems with video monitoring of the lobby to screen incoming guests. The center will house its own clubhouse as well, with a private library and lounge.

Singh officials are still negotiating with city officials over the design of a parking structure to serve the facility. The structure, to be located south of MainCentre on Cady Street, may include another 51 apartments.

'It's been a long time coming for us," said Singh Vice President Michael Kahm. "We've been ' rking on this project for almost two years.

Kahm mentioned other residential developments that his company has been involved with, including the subdivisions Pheasant Hills and Quail Ridge in Northville, the Arbors in West Bloomfield, and Turtle Creek and Bradford of Novi.

Kahm thanked city officials, including the planning commission, ci-ty council, Historic District commission, downtown development authority, and City Manager Steven Walters for their cooperation and help with the project. "That particular cooperative attitude was particularly helpful in getting where we are to-day," he said. "Without their help and their foresight in agreeing to use tax capturing to construct the parking deck, I don't think this project would have become a reality.

Kahm was referring to a process whereby the district can "capture" some of the tax money from rising property assessments downtown, a process used to help the city finance the project's parking garage on Cady Street - as well as the downtown improvements made in the Mainstreet 78 program.

Following Kahm at the podium was Mayor Christopher Johnson, who praised Singh for its cooperation with city officials and for its willingness to incorporate their suggestions into the final plan.

very good neighbors in Singh Development and the MainCentre project," he said.

Laurie Marrs, executive director of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, emphasized the importance of commercial development to the city's future. "I hope we all keep in mind that as the community of Northville grows, the business community chould grow business community should grow along with it," she said.

After Johnson, Standard Federal Bank Vice President John Behr and Singh Development President Gurmale Grewel participated in the shovel ceremony and the crowd of well-wishers returned to the tent for a catered meal. When asked about the significance of MainCentre to the city's future, Walters said, "It's a confirmation of the downtown project primarily. The purpose of that was to generate interest in the downtown

Joseph Hanania, director if the Singh Management Company, described the project as "a second rebirth for the town of Northville. It's going to bring new retail to downtown Northville, and residents, long-term residents who like to live in downtown Northville. We're seeing it already with the type of applications we've received." The company began taking applications for the 74 apartments several weeks ago, and has already rented several of them.

According to Singh Leasing Director Beverly Hoeft, 25 to 30 percent of the retail and office space has been rented already as well. "They're not trying to bring in large chains," Hoeft added. "They're trying to br-ing in more specialty shops. The peo-ple are going to have to have a reputable name."

'I think it's going to have a major impact on town," Grewel said, "and a very, very positive impact. Certainly it will change the landscape of downtown.

Grewel described the center as representative of a growing trend amoong shoppers. "There's a trend where people are tired of going to these big malls," he said, "where they want to move towards these small, quaint types of towns. People want to move into this area because of downtown Northville."

Grewel, who operates the business with his three brothers, said that Singh was excited to be involved in such a development. "This is our first venture of this kind," he said, "We're going to find that we have "hopefully the first of many."

Planners favor rural flavor

BY MIKE TYREE

Casting a wary eye at local residential development, township planners last week took steps to slow the pace of growth in the Northville area

At a special study session Oct. 3, Northville Township Planning Commission Chairperson Charles DeLand told fellow commissioners that he wants the area to retain its rural community flavor And he said the burden of that task sits squarely on the back of the planning commis-

'The developments I see around here tell me let's go as far as (we) can," he said

Commissioners then debated a series of proposed township ordinance changes which would limit density in residential areas Topping the list of potential alterations were measurements in the township. Using a chart developed by the township's consultants, Vilican-Leman & Associates, Inc., the planning commission compared present

lot sizes in three types of land zoned for residential use. Although minimum lot sizes in the R-1 areas would remain at 43,560 square feet, boosts are being considered for R-2 (from 18,000 square feet to 20,000), and for R-3 (from 12.000 square feet to 15,000)

Additionally, changes are targeted for R-2 and R-3 minimum lot width (by five and 10 feet respectively). In areas designated for open-space subdivision, the total area needed to obtain permitting would be increased by 152 square feet in R-1 to 35,000, in R-2 by 600 square feet to 15,000, and in R-3 by 2,400 square feet to 12,000.

The planning commission agreed to consider adopting minimum sideyard setbacks of 15 feet on each side, revisions to the standard lot size or 30 total feet, which represented a change in areas zoned R-2 and R-3

Concerned about forecasts of continued growth here, the planners stressed the idea of restructuring ordinances to attract low-density, highquality developments. Citing previous mistakes made by the township, Commissioner Richard Allen pledged to take a careful look at the ordinances to make sure they would hold up in court.

The proposed changes in Northville Township lot sizes would represent some of the most restrictive land use ordinaces in the area. Information supplied by Vilican-Leman compared seven nearby communities, with only portions of Novi, Plymouth, and Bloomfield townships demanding as much space for minimum lot size

The discussed changes have been added to the agenda for the planning commission's regular Oct. 31 meeting.

Movie actor plays at Marquis

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

To be or not to be an actor, that's the question facing Morris Sullivan these days

The Detroit native has returned to town from a movie shoot in Seattle, and is working with the latest theatrical production, a musical called "The Desert Song," at the Marquis Theater

"It's not a thing that I really heavily pursued," he said of his movie career. "It's a dangerous business to try too hard in because you can set yourself up for some major disappointments.

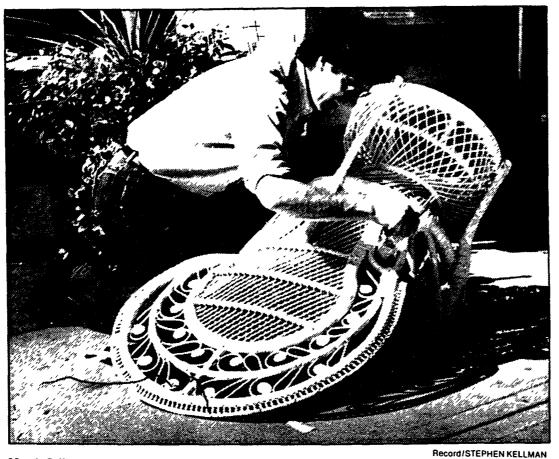

With a degree in scientific and technical communications from Michigan Technological University, Sullivan's background is hardly the one a person would expect for an actor. Sullivan did minor in theater, though, "to have something interesting besides science and math."

Sullivan has dabbled in a number of creative arts over the years, including painting and writing. His writing career hit a high point at Oakland Community College with the publication of a regular food column called "Din-din with Morris." Since then, he's written several short stories.

To make ends meet in Seattle, Sullivan took up wildlife carving three years ago He sells his work, typically carvings of waterfowl, to galleries around the Seattle area. That, coupled with acting, is how I make my living," he said. In his latest movie venture, Sullivan is Kevin Kline's stand-in in the soon-to-be-released movie "I Love You to Death." The black comedy, filmed in Tacoma, Washington, also stars comedian Tracey Ullman. River Phoenix, and Victoria Jackson of "Saturday Night Live."

The movie, supposedly based on a true story, casts Kline as Joey Boca, the owner of a small pizza parlor. Boca's wife Rosalie, played by Ullman, tries to kill him throughout the movie. "She puts arsenic in the

Sullivan spent six weeks on location for the shoot, working as many as 12 to 16 hours a day, six days a very lengthy things," he said of the experience. "All I did was work on spaghetti, she hires a couple of thugs, she and her mother plot these different murder possibilities," Sullivan said.

In the end, Rosalie is caught and goes to prison, but in true Hollywood fashion, Joey takes her back in when she gets out.

Sullivan was chosen as Kline's double because of their similar height, weight and appearance. Regarding the similarities, Sullivan said, "Kevin was amazed when he first met me. I was, too."

The similarities did not end there. Sullivan and Kline shared the same birthday, he said, though they were a year apart in age. For the record, Morris is 40. Being a stand-in, Sullivan said, involves doing the same things that the actor does. "You spend a lot of time in front of the camera," he said. "You work with the director of photography, you go through the identical scene, and the identical movements that Kevin will do when 's actually time to shoot it."

Off the set, Sullivan received star treatment. "We had fabulous food all the time from a Hollywood catering company," he recalled. "I never ate so well in all my life."

The set even included a "pizza consultant," who made pizzas for cast and crew members throughout the day. "His position was to teach Kevin and River how to make pizzas exactly the way they were supposed to be made," Sullivan said. "That's what

Local legislator pushes for new district judge

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

State Rep. Gerald Law (R-Plymouth) has introduced a bill in the Legislature that would allow an additional judge for the 35th District Court.

The 35th District Court now has two judges, and covers Northville City and Township, Plymouth City and Township, and Canton Township. Acording to Law, many of the district courts in the area are having difficulty keeping up with their caseload. The 35th District Court, with a larger caseload per judge than other courts, recently began to fall behind as well. The court therefore

The two current judge. Garber and John E. MacDonald, are in favor of adding a third, Law said. What they are saying is that they have the need for a third judge, and they have the numbers to prove it," he said.

To qualify for an extra judge, courts must meet certain criteria set by the state. "We look at a whole variety of figures, and there's no set " said James McComb, direccutoff tor of the state court's felony sentencing guidelines. These figures include the total number of filings at a court, the types of filings and dispositions, the number of court sites in a district. the state equalized value of a district's community, and the community's population and filing trends.

For example, a judge who has to travel between several different courts is considered differently than one who works out of a single location

"We do take a court's caseload into consideration," McComb said. That's a big factor."

The caseload per judge at the 35th District Court is well above the state's average, said Court Administrator Marion Belding. While

"What they are saying is that they have the need for a third judge, and they have the numbers to prove it."

> Gerald Law state representative the statewide average number of cases per judge in 1988 was 11,882, the number at the 35th District Court was 17,487. "That's 47 percent higher than the state's average," she said. According to McComb, the state court's recommendation would likely be made to the state Supreme Court within the next two months, and then to the state Legislature for approval.

If the bill is enacted into law, the respective municipalities would have to agree to provide the necessary funding for the position. "The state can't force an extra judge on a community," Law said. The state and affected communities would each pay a portion of the judge's salary, with the state paying up to 90 percent of the cost. The average district court judge's salary in the state of Michigan is $90,992.

The new position could then be filled during the November, 1990 general election. The third judge's term would then begin January 1, 1991

The bill has been referred to the House Judiciary Committee, where it will be taken up this winter, ac-cording to Brett McCrae, counsel for the committee. "What we're waiting for is the state court administrator's office's (SCAO) report," he said. "If the 35th is included on the SCAO list, then there's a very high probability that the judgeship will be created."

Master plan revisions snagged by county line position

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

Northville City's straddling of the county line has caused problems for planning consultants trying to view the city as a whole.

Planning consultants Don Wortman and Glenn Bowles presented the latest proposed revisions to Northville's master plan at last week's planning commission meeting.

Commission members criticized the statistical comparisons of population characteristics between the Wayne County and Oakland County sections of Northville. "You keep comparing Wayne and Oakland County," said Chairperson John Hardin, "almost as if there were a wall down Baseline."

'We weren't trying to create a tale of two cities," Bowles responded. "But there is a definite difference between the north side of Baseline and the south side.'

City Manager Steven Walters disagreed with that conclusion, saying, "It's kind of an arbitrary line. 'What's the point?'

Commission Member Christopher Gazlay aded that the real dividing line for residential development has been Eight Mile Road.

Bowles said the presentation by county was due to the difficulty of finding information about the city as a whole, but he eventually agreed to combine the sets of figures. "There's very little that you can collect that's entirely from the city," Bowles explained.

Despite the difficulties, commis-sion members agreed that much of the information in the draft could be useful if presented in the right format.

Among the background studies being used for the master plan is the 1980 city census, a 1988 population analysis, a 1989 downtown parking analysis, a survey of Northville Public School enrollment from 1970 to 1988, and land-use trends.

Based on a 1984 forecast by the Southeast Michigan Council Of Governments (SEMCOG), Northville's population is expected to grow from an estimated 6,400 in 1990 to 7,000 by the year 2005. Based on the growth in the number of dwelling units since 1980, the planning consultants predicted a population of 6,740 residents in 1990 and 7,860 by 2005.

"The most significant local demographic trend over the past

According to Northville planning consultants, the city may not need more active recreation after all.

Planning consultants Don Wortman and Glenn Bowles made the assertion at last week's planning commission meeting, while presenting the latest revisions to Northville's master plan.

"Most of your active recreation is taken care of outside the city, in other places," Bowles said. "People are not interested in paying taxes for a major recreational development. I couldn't advocate a major development because there just doesn't seem to be a demand.'

The joint city- and township-run recreation department is pushing for more locally controlled active recreation land, particularly in a millage proposal on the city election ballot next month.

The city has an "acceptable" amount of recreation areas, according to state standards, Wortman said

Some officials quickly questioned the consultant's conclusions, however.

We are assuming a reliance on areas outside the city," said City Manager Steven Walters. "We're assuming other things are available and will be available."

When one of the commission members mentioned the community's recent loss of Lapham Field to development, Walters said, "There's a good example of a problem we had. That one evaporated on us.

According to the report, there are currently almost 33 acres of recreational land owned or leased by the city, over 38 acres of the Cass Benton park system, and another 115 acres of private park facilities available. The report urged the linkage of the separate parks by trails or bicycle paths.

"Socio-economic analyses of Northville show a trend toward a more affluent, older citizenry," the report read. "Tennis, golf, bicycling, and pedestrian-oriented recreational facilities are projected to be needed to serve future populations. Golf facilities must be provided outside the city because of the lack of any available land.'

The report went on to recommend the development of better pedestrian and bicycle access between the city's parks. Specific areas mentioned were Maplewood Park and the Allen Drive area twenty years," according to the report, "has been the 'aging' of the population. Analysis conducted as a part of the 1981 master plan shows that the portion of the Northville population under 19 years old decreased from 2,100 in 1970 to an estimated 1,333 in 1984 while simultaneously the senior population (over 65 years old) increased from 564 to 839.

"We're getting to the point in the master plan where we want to develop a future land-use management plan," Wortman said, "or at least an alternative plan." Such a plan would address the possibility of alternative land-use arrangements, the appropriate size of housing, and the appropriate scale and character

Traffic congestion woes studied in city

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

In trying to strike a balance between continued growth of the city and traffic snarls in downtown Northville, city officials may get some help from the master plan study.

As part of the ongoing study, planning consultants Don Wortman and Glenn Bowles analyzed the flow of traffic through Northville City.

"The goal of much of this is not to prevent the traffic," said City Manager Steven Walters, "it's to reduce the total volume."

"Downtown is a dense, concise, somewhat congested area to begin with," Bowles observed. "That's the nature of the area."

Despite that, the consultants and commission members suggested some creative ways of managing the traffic flow. The consultants recommended re-engineering the entrance to the Northville High School.

Commission Member Stephen Ball suggested more devices, like the Victorian clock on Main Street, that force drivers to slow down by breaking the straight line of the road. Such devices, he said, could help discourage drivers from using downtown as a short-cut to other places.

Center bolsters skills of students

BY MIKE TYREE

Robert Burns spends his afternoons building houses An admirable occupation for anyone, but the significance of the job increases when one realizes that Burns is a high school senior

Burns is part of a 13-member en-tourage from Northville High School presently taking classes at the William D. Ford Vocational/Technical Center in Westland Affiliated with Wayne-Westland Community Schools, the vo-tech center is a multi-million dollar facility which specializes in bolstering the marketable skills of unemployed or underemployed adults as well as high school students

The school offers a wide array of programs designed as an introduction to the high-tech business world.

According to Northville High School Assistant Principal Laura Wiener, the program is exactly what many of her students need to improve their chances for employment.

"The Ford school does increase awareness of what's available," she said "It offers students the opportunity for technical and voca-tional training where there is modern, up-to-date equipment."

Wiener said students receive class credit for their daily 25-minute drive and three-hour stay at the facility.

College-bound students take the votech courses in addition to those with their sights set upon the job market immediately after high school graduation, she said.

"Some of these kids aren't as suited for the standard book studies," Wiener said. "Vo-tech does help keep some kids in school."

While Burns is busy constructing a three-bedroom house with five more aspiring carpenters, other Northville students have chosen classes suited to their own tastes. Jon Dickinson

Most of the Northville students looked at the vo-tech program in a positive light.

Students face changes in MEAP test

BY MIKE TYREE

Students in Northville and throughout the state will be facing a new challenge over the next two weeks, as a modified version of the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) makes its debut.

Fourth-, seventh-, and tenth-grade tudents will take part in the program, which tests reading, math, and science skills through a series of examinations Oct. 9-20.

The major change in the MEAP rogram is in the reading section eading comprehension will be stressed much more than in the past, when tests were based upon the accumulation of several skills. The change is meant to evaluate tudents' complete thinking abilities.

Those taking the exam will undergo two reading selections longer and more challenging than past tests Students will then be asked to answer four types of questions about each of the two reading selections, including constructing meaning, topic familiarity, knowledge about reading, and a self-report of per-formance, effort, and interest

The performance of the students will be based upon how well they do on the constructive meaning portion of both reading selections To receive a satisfactory score on the test, students must achieve a score of 300 or better on each selection. A score between 150 and 299 means the student needs improvement in that catagory

Locally, almost 2,000 students in the Northville School District will be taking the MEAP. Officials here are anxious to examine the results of the new version of the test.

"The old test set forth minimal reading objectives," Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services Dolly McMaster said. "The language and content has been changed to essential reading objectives. It's now more difficult, and we're very pleased with that.

"It gives us an idea how our kids are doing compared with other schools across the state," she added. McMaster said the changes in the test reflect Michigan's attitude of educating with the 21st century in mind "The job market is demanding more problem solving and critical thinking," she said. "Students are going to need higher order thinking skills, and this change is meant to give us insight on deficiencies in those areas.

Those shortcomings will be analyzed via assessment on both a classroom and individual basis, McMaster said, and strategies will be implemented after the results are released and returned to the school districts in late November

McMaster thinks academic careers can be salvaged after studying the test returns, even for tenth grade students.

'We certainly hope we can save them," she said "As soon as we get the test scores back .we try to find ways to make interventions We go item by item to help determine which skills need to be enhanced '

Bill lacks support

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

State Rep Gerald Law (R-Plymouth) has introduced a bill to the Legislature that he doubts will

"I don't think it will ever have a chance of passing," he said of the bill, which would reduce property-tax assessments to 40 percent of the true cash value of property, down from the current 50 percent "It's more or less my protest against out-of-control assessments.'

"Assessments tend to be something that you have no control over," Law said He noted that the Michigan constitution stipulates that the state cannot assess at more than 50 percent of a property's market value, but sets no limit on the minimum percentage that can be assessed. "With assessments increasing all the time," Law wrote in a recent press release, "this would provide an instant rollback to the total dollar amounts people were paying several years ago While the long-term question of propertytax reform is certainly complex, this would at least provide some immediate relief for people whose ability to pay is stretched to the limit by ever-increasing assessments "

Law predicted that the bill would fail because of the number of peo-ple making their living off property assessment increases. "Too many people have a lot at stake in keeping assessments high," he said

The bill has been submitted to the House Taxation Committee

Sidewalk hearing draws fire

Street "I think you're going to." Mayor Christopher Johnson explained that Monday's hearing was not restricted to residents from the northeast quadrant, but that they were the only ones to receive the proposed assessments. "The northeast section has turned out to be a sort of est case," said City Manager Steven Walters, "in terms of the number of ssues raised."

Many of the residents protested the lack of public input into the decision to upgrade the city's sidewalk system. "At what point does the will of the council overrule the will of the people?" asked Daniel Loiselle of Carpenter Road.

"I believe the city council should represent the people," Hartshorne said.

"Why fix something that's not broken?" asked William Norton of Reed Court. "These communities have gotten along for years and years without sidewalks."

Several residents questioned where the idea for sidewalk construction originally came from. The current construction plan grew out of the city's sidewalk repair program begun this summer, according to

Walters Several council members said sidewalk construction has been a long-term goal of the council According to Paul Folino, a council member for more than 10 years, the council has always been involved in sidewalk improvements, though "not anything like this, trying to go citywide as we have here "

'Over the years that I've been on the city council," he said, "it has always been the intent of the council to try to repair sidewalks wherever we could, and those costs were assessed to the homeowner."

Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers characterized the current proposal as the final stage of a process begun by the council years ago. "This is not a new idea of the council's," she said. "I continue to feel that it's a realistic goal for a community such as ours which is no longer rural, which is a suburban area.'

Several residents took issue with that definition of their neighborhoods, saying that much of the northwest quadrant was indeed rural. "Sidewalks were not even a thought back in the days when these streets were laid," said Greg Swanson of Carpenter Road Council members agreed to consider limiting areas to be considered for sidewalks. Some of the criteria they discussed included whether an area was developed before or after enactment of the 1962 sidewalk policy, the amount of traffic and traffic complaints in an area, and the topography.

Said Council Member Jerome Mittman, "I feel strongly that before we put a sidewalk in any area that we should go out there, talk to the residents, and see what's in disrepair We have to be cautious as far as what we do in respect to putting sidewalks in any area.'

Council Member John Buckland agreed, saying, "We as a council have to be consistent." Buckland also agreed that the council should consider exempting residences that were built before the cidewalk policy took effect.

Johnson repeatedly mentioned the importance of safety considerations in the implementation of a final "Safety, for my mind, is an policy. issue, and is important," he said. "At least one side of most streets deserves sidewalks."

The next study session on the sidewalk policy will be Monday, Nov 27, at 8 p.m., and the session is open to the public

Our Opinions Donation is wonderful, but it raises concerns

The gift of about 72 acres of land — beautiful land — on the northeast corner of Sheldon and Six Mile is a wonderfully generous thing for Frieda Haller to do. It could very well turn out to be the key to the future of public development in the community.

But before that is ever going to happen, a host of issues must be settled and that may not be too easy. It may not even be possible.

The present came with some str-ings attached. For one, the township must build a 44,800-square-foot library on the site. Voters must approve new property taxes for the library within a year, and construction must start within two years. The entire site must be used for public uses, and township officials are initially hoping to use some of the land for recreation - ball diamonds, soccer fields and the like. A senior citizen center and a new township hall are other possibilities.

On the surface this sounds great; all these projects are needed. But reflection brings some concerns.

The library requirement is troubl-ing. A long site selection process iden-tified three sites for a possible new library, and this site isn't one of them. The closed Ford plant was probably the best possibility. All three sites were close to the center of the community, the downtown area.

This direction made a lot of sense. The current library is downtown. It is within walking distance of several schools and many homes, and within easy biking distance of the majority of the Northville community. Downtown is the center of town for the township residents as well as for the city. It makes sense for the library to be in the hub of the community. In addition, not using the Ford plant for the library rekindles the question of how best to use that site – and the professional consultants said that a library would be best.

Further, the requirement on Sheldon is for a library much bigger than that which even the library of-diamonds and soccer fields are essentially the same things proposed for the Northville Community Park site on Beck Road — which is already com-munity owned. If the millage passes in the city next month, officials will have an awful time trying to sell an almost identical project a year from now.

If the Community Park millage does not pass, the voices of city residents will have been heard loud and clear for two years in a row - that they do not want to be taxed for such a project. They would hardly be any more likely to support recreation at Six Mile and Sheldon than at Beck between Five Mile and Six Mile.

Again, the township could undertake the recreation project on its own. However, this would mean greater costs to the individual residents if the city does not help pay. Again, it would destroy the cooperation in shared services. All kinds of logistical problems would arise. Who would maintain it? The township has no department of public works, the county can barely keep up with its own parks, and the recreation staff is a shared service. Would city residents be allowed to use the park if they had no part in paying for it? If not, could they realistically be kept out? Would the township really want to try?

Financial concerns also abound. For years township officials have complained - understandably so, appropriately so — about the overabun-dance of public land in the township which is unavailable for development and, therefore, for tax base. Yet here they are very anxious to remove 72 valuable acres from the tax rolls while the Community Park site - which could serve at least some of the same purposes - sits vacant.

Important move

By Bruce Weintraub

During the next couple of weeks - beginning tonight (Thursday) - the shape of Northville Township government will be decided for years to come.

One issue in particular has come to the forefront: the appointment of a new township manager by the board.

One of the names which has been under consideration is Richard Henningsen, the current township treasurer, who made it at least to the semifinalist stage. If he ends up as the appointee, the township will be drastically going against the recommendations of a fivemember citizen committee.

Following the acceptance of former township manager Steve Brock's resignation last January, board members voted to accept a recommendation by Township Supervisor Georgina Goss to form an ad-hoc committee to study the manager position.

Some of the committee's recommendations included: administrative and operational issues should be handled by the manager under authority of the supervisor, the manager position should be considered a "long term growth" position, and the starting salary should be between $35,000 and $45,000.

In addition, the committee recommended that the successful manager candidate "should have a minimum of a bachelor's degree (preferably a master's in public administration) and several years of experience in similar positions at other Michigan community governments," and "be non-political in dealing with township affairs."

During a special meeting in June, township board members voted to accept all of the ad-hoc committee's recommendations - except that of establishing the position by ordinance. Instead, board members voted to define the position by resolution.

At that time, Township Attorney Ernest Essad said defining the position by resolution would give the board more flexibility in making changes to the position.

If Henningsen is in fact approved by the board tonight as the township's next full-time manager, having the position established by resolution will certainly provide board members with enough flexibility to make the move

But, I wonder if the ad-hoc committee had someone like Henningsen in mind when they presented their report to the board. Don't get me wrong. After spending years at General Motors in supervisory positions before retiring earlier this year, Henningsen could be viewed as a qualified leader.

However, he does not possess many of the qualifications set forth by the ad-hoc committee. No matter the rationalization, Henningsen's only training as a township manager stems from his appointment last June as Northville Township's interim manager. And even if he resigns as treasurer, how can a previously elected individual who has run as a Republican be viewed as nonpolitical?

Just the fact that he was interviewed for the manager position is a mystery. After all, five people on an ad-hoc committee spent months researching what a township manager should be.

Now, only four months after the township board accepted the committee's findings, it appears they may appoint an individual without any public-administration experience.

If Henningsen was the most qualified individual of the 50 or so candidates who applied last summer, then I wonder if township board members considered readvertising the position?

To be fair, I am not a resident of Northville Township, so I have no stake in this issue. But, if I was a resident, I would definitely attend tonight's township board meeting (it starts at 7:30 p.m. at township hall) and find out what direction my local governmental body wants to take for the future ficials have said is needed. Of course, if they are given the extra space, they'll take it — but building the library becomes that much more expensive when the building is so much bigger. In highly taxed Northville, the nigher the cost, the less likely it is that the library millage will pass at all.

Of course, the township and city could always go two different ways, building two libraries. That, however, would increase costs even more. In addition, it would dilute the strength of both libraries. It would also increase the problem of an oversized library on the Sheldon site, and would leave more questions about how much of the Ford site the city alone would need. And, of course, it would crush the entire concept of shared services which has served the Northville community so well.

The cost for all these projects is going to be immense. People in Northville already complain about high taxes, even in the township, which has a lower overall rate than the city. How likely are residents to approve new property taxes for all this building?

Finally, the timetable seems questionable. Can proposals be developed and campaigns put together to get all these things passed within a year? Maybe, but watching the progress of the community park and the library, it seems like it would be difficult.

We hate being the wet blanket here. We wish we could feel completely enthusiastic about this donation. But until an awful lot of things are settled, we're keeping our excitement in check.

The Yerkes House is gone. What was left of the historic Eight Mile home was knocked down Wednesday morning by demolition crews.

It's too bad the house was not preserved. But it wasn't, and I suspect it doesn't do much good to continue writing laments about the demise of the old house.

Besides, I still have my memories of Ed Yerkes, the last member of the Yerkes family to live in the house. He was retired when I really got to know him. He was an attorney and he looked it. The very epitome of what a successful small-town attorney should look like in his pin-stripe suits and the gold chain from his pocket watch.

Ed used to stop by the house to chat when we both lived a couple of blocks apart on Dunlap Street in Nor-; thville. I remember the time that he and his wife werewalking down to the Drawbridge restaurant for dinner.

"It's free," he said as they strolled by. "These nice." people invited us to dinner so they can show us a: travelogue about a retirement village in Arkansas. We're not really looking for retirement property, but we enjoy the movies . . . and we've had a lot of very nice. dinners that didn't cost us a cent.'

Ed Yerkes was rather knowledgeable about Detroit's better restaurants. He knew them all, and he knew the best deals at each of them. He could tell you. what time to go to a certain restaurant so you wouldn't: have to wait in line. And he could tell you what time the restaurants switched from their luncheon to the dinner menus.

"Luncheon portions are a little smaller, but the: food is basically the same . . . and luncheon prices are: just a fraction of what they charge for the same thing on : the dinner menu."

I was just getting to know Ed Yerkes when he died: several years ago. It would have been fun to get to know; him better.

Keep PTAs exempt from sales tax

Editor's Note: This is a copy of a letter sent to the Michigan House of Representatives Taxation Committee.

Representative Lynn Jondahl:

I am writing in behalf of Northville Council of PTAs, representing six parent groups in the Northville Public Schools, to urge passage of House bills 4200 and 4201.

We support the Michigan State PTA's position that 501 c 3 organizations, such as PTAs, should not pay state sales tax

The educational share of the state budget continues to dwindle, providing less opportunity for curriculum enrichment. The Northville School District receives almost no revenue from the state. Our local PTAs fund-raise to provide muchneeded enrichment programs and equipment for the Northville students. Special student assemblies, parent education programs, school pride activities, reading and art programs, health education (i.e. antidrug campaigns and AIDS information) are just a few of the services PTA provides to virtually every student.

In addition, each PTA enhances the district's instructional materials and equipment by purchasing such items as computer software, sports and playground equipment.

All these programs are funded and staffed by volunteers working for their local school.

By requiring non-profit organizations to collect and pay sales tax, file forms and keep cumbersome bookkeeping records, the state is discouraging volunteer support for the schools at a time when education has become a national priority We urge your support in sending HB 4200 and 4201 to the (full) House for passage.

For the Northville Council of PTAs Lynda Baca President

To the editor:

This week, the Michigan Legislature took the first step toward passing legislation that would take driver licenses from high school dropouts Some people think we have found the solution to a serious, growing problem I think the legislation is discriminatory

In making public policy, quick fixes to complex problems can be attractive Attacking the dropout problem looks good in the public's eye. Additionally, for those who believe that young people are best motivated by threats of punishment, the dropouts-lose-license program is heaven sent. Some young people will, in fact, "jump through hoops" — or at least stay in school - if that qualifies them to drive However, this approach is flawed in a number of ways.

Since this program is optional for school districts, only some of them will use it - most likely districts where teens can afford automobiles. In low-income school districts where the dropout problem is more serious, the program will fail because young people cannot afford automobiles.

For low-income pupils, we need a dropout policy that deals with causes, not one that heaps punishment upon those already in trouble

This program creates lawbreakers For every youngster who stays in school another youngster will break the law merely by driving a car It is foolish to create a new class of lawbreaker in order to "bribe" others to stay in school

The dropout problem needs solutions based on the following principles

First, they must be comprehensive - that is, targeted at all dropouts If we pass the driver-license program, we are less likely to develop a comprehensive program

Second, programs must deal with the reasons youngsters leave school. regarding dropping out, there is a lot of knowledge about causes and successful interventions For example, alternative education programs for court-placed children have succeeded in lowering the dropout rate among the most difficult teens by having skilled teachers work with small groups of pupils - and, it is expensive

Third, dropout programs should not be punitive. We know that sucwith difficult, court-placed cess youth does not depend on punishment Too many schools permit a culture of hostility among members of the local community. We need school programs that include, as a goal, the development of a bond among students, school personnel and parents The driver-license program is inconsistent with forming this bond

The driver-license / dropout scheme is the easy way out The Legislature should not accept this insufficient measure, educators should not accept methods that ignore the heart of the problem When people tackle problems half-heartedly, the problem remains and grows worse. I hope citizens will tell their elected officials and their local educational leaders they want the dropout problem handled thoughtfully and energetically. I hope they will ask these community leaders to get down to serious work and commit themselves to a solution for all.

By Ann Willis

Sometimes I'm amazed by the sheer number of people involved with things in Northville. And sometimes I'm annoyed that people aren't more involved. I'm tough to please.

Two weeks ago I went to the Friends of the Library annual dinner at Genitti's. The place was packed. Granted, most of them had probably shown up because they had heard I was doing the introduction of the main speaker for the evening. Oh, and maybe a handful came because they heard Mitch Albom was going to tell them the truth about the Lions' chances this season. And probably one or two showed up because they wanted to see if they could get beyond the pasta in the seven-course Italian dinner.

Realistically, most of the people in the room were there in support of the Northville Public Library. It was a Monday night and I know how hard it is to get excited about going out on a Monday night. It's hard enough to make it through work on a Monday, let alone keeping the tie on for another couple of hours casion. in support of something like the library.

For the most part libraries are like a lot for granted. Yea, they ought to be there. Yea, they ought to have the latest Robert Ludlum thriller for me to take out when I go on vacation. And they ought to have back copies of National Geographic so when Junior has a report due on Guam he can look up the major export and population figures. While a lot of people may take the library for granted, it was pleasant to see so many people out on a Monday evening physically and monetarily supporting something they believed in.

On Tuesday morning I went to the Northville PTA Coordinating Council meeting. There on the third floor of Old Village School was yet another room full of involved people. Volunteers. People who care about their schools enough to spend some time organizing parents and supporting special enrichment programs for students.

The question of involvement came up over dinner a few weeks ago. I was sitting around with some friends and the topic turned to responsibility. When to jump in - and how to balance the involvement.

The topic is one that I think about a lot. both from a personal and a professional standpoint. As editor of the newspaper I try to walk the fine line between involvement with the community as a business and as a resident, and maintaining the distance necessary for objectivity. The compromise I have found seems to require bending that fine line on oc-things in life. We take them pretty much ment in the community. How much of a role live down the street, can't work in a vacuum should people play in their communities? And and certainly shouldn't be allowed to work how much of the running of the township and without their neighbors' input. city can be left to officials?

is the fact that there is room for even more involvement on a day-to-day basis.

The question came up on that social evening, as the candles began to burn down and the coffee pot grew empty, about the role of the citizen in small-town government.

I know a lot of people who follow the news of Northville pretty closely. But I don't know a whole lot of people who attend meetings, even infrequently. What tends to happen is a lot of complaining about the stupidity of elected officials, after the fact. "How could they possibly vote for that thing?" is a frequent cry, well after the vote.

When the cry comes from a person who attended the meeting and who made every effort to make his or her point known to elected officials, then I take the complaining much more to heart. Here is someone who will remember, I think. Here is someone who will make sure that when reappointment time is here, their voice is heard again, making sure But the topic on the cocl September that the idea of representative government is Saturday night was about individual involve- working. The great part about local government starts with that word - officials. Really, the officials in our community are our neighbors. School boards, planning commissioners, zoning board members - they're people from down the block who for one reason or another decided to get involved.

It's hard for most of us to get involved in government on a large scale. But when you consider how much more personal and reachable Northville's three systems of government are, it's a crying shame that more people don't get involved. This is as close to a town meeting type of government as we're going to get. When you raise your

This is another in a continuing series of columns written by Northville Schools Student Assistance Program Coordinator Charlie Stilec.

"A child is a person who is going to carry on what you have started. They are going to sit where you are sitting, and when you are gone, attend to those things you think are important. You may adopt all of the policies you please, but how they are carried out depends on them. They will assume control of your cities, states and nations. They are going to move in and take over your churches, schools, universities and corporations . . . The fate of humanity is in his hands . . .'

Abraham Lincoln

I watched the special "48 hours on Crack Street" recently, and even though I have seen and heard and felt a lot in the many years I have worked with the world of addiction, this show upset me for all the right reasons. These addicted people, men, women and children and their families are the products of our society and our families. There is, as all you know, something terribly wrong in today's world. The drug epidemic is not getting any better, especially in our cities, because the systems set up to deal with the problems are out of control, in my opinion, in most -situations.

However, we as professionals and parents and community members need to realize that there is in Northville an organization which offers hope, some refuge from the storm and the negative effects of drugs.

The Northville Action Council is an organization dedicated to preserving the family with concern, commitment and love. It is nonprofit, staffed by volunteers and was established in 1983.

Things that the Northville Action Council has done are:

· Sponsored speakers to promote community awareness.

 Sent letters to local liquor stores asking them to check IDs carefully and increase their awareness of teen activity on their premises.

• Held panel discussions in regard to prom and graduation festivities.

 Supported the establishment of the Northville High School Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) chapter. • Sponsored "Project Graduation."

 Cosponsored, with SADD, Northville High School's all-school assemblies.

• Funded Northville High School staff members to attend workshops regarding substance abuse.

· Established a video library.

• Encouraged and supported Nor-thville Public Schools' adoption of the Michigan Model For Comprehensive Health Education.

· Sponsored the BABES program in the elementary schools.

• Wrote and printed a parent handbook, "As Parents We Will . . .," which includes warning signs and symptoms and parenting skills to combat substance abuse.

· Sponsored the first Red Ribbon campaign in Michigan to unite the schools and community to stimulate substance abuse awareness.

· Encouraged and supported Northville Public Schools' decision to establish a Student Assistance Program.

 Coordinated the National Red Ribbon Campaign for the Northville community.

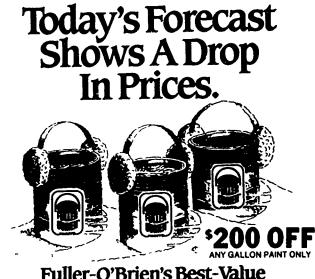

• Sponsored the Maplegrove series 'Are You Concerned.''

· Coordinated and sponsored PTA Drug Awareness Week Red Ribbon Campaign.

• Encouraged and supported the development of the Northville Counseling Center.

This organization shows a true committment of the Northville community to tackle the problem of drug use, abuse and the related problems which affect each and every one of us.

Meetings are held the third Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. at Northville city hall, 215 W. Main.

Noted ski chain adds new store in Novi center

By CRISTINA FERRIER

If your interest runs toward schussing down a snowy mountainside or gliding along a wooded path on a pair of skis, you'll want to visit one of the newest stores in Novi.

Bavarian Village Ski Shop has opened a new store in the Novi Town Center, offering a large selection of ski equipment, apparel and accessories for cross-country and downhill skilers.

The items also cover a wide range in price and are tailored for every level of expertise.

The new store was opened to the public after six weeks of preparation on Sept 7. It is part of a chain of independently owned stores that first began in the late 1950s.

Bavarian Village has grown into one of the best and most widelyknown ski equipment stores in the United States, winning the "Retailer of the Year" award last year for the third time. The chain now has 13 stores in Michigan.

David Sicheneder, manager of the new Bavarian Village in the Novi Town Center, says his store is primarily a "destination location" for customers, meaning that they leave home for the purpose of visiting Bavarian Village.

"We want to offer customers a wide selection at the right prices for all levels," he says.

"The salespeople all ski, and they know about the merchandise. They are skiers wanting to help skiers choose the right equipment."

Bavarian Village also services the ski equipment it sells. It offer a fullservice shop with certified technicians who properly install bindings and adjust them to the skier's height, weight and level of ability.

'We offer the best type of service - certification and training of people by the manufacturers," Sicheneder explained, adding that it is a good idea to have skis readjusted every year.

Renters need special insurance policies

Renters should not overlook the need for insurance to protect their personal belongings

'Unlike the owner of a house, who needs insurance coverage for both the dwelling and its contents, the renter needs a policy to protect just his/her personal belongings," said Terry Buckles, president of the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies (MAIC) If the renter's building is destroyed, the insurance policy purchased by the landlord or property owner will cover the structure only. To recover for the loss of personal effects, including furnishings, the renter must have his/her own policy.

There is a policy tailored to fit the needs of renters, according to Buckles The renters policy or HO-4 covers damage to possessions which result from perils such as explosion, fire or lightning, windstorm or hail, riot or civil commotion, theft and vandalism.

Normally, this policy reimburses losses on an actual cash value basis This means that the insurance company will pay replacement cost, less depreciation. For an additional premium, many insurers offer an endorsement to the policy which will cover contents on a replacement cost basis. Here, the personal property is covered to the extent of the full cost deduction for depreciation of the items

Although the renters policy covers personal belongings such as fur-niture, appliances, clothing and jewelry, there are limitations on amounts of coverage for certain types of personal property which are especially susceptible to loss

Coverage for cash generally has a $200 limit, while coverage for other valuables - such as jewelry, furs, firearms and stamp and coin collections - varies between $1,000 and $2,500. For an additional premium, the consumer can purchase a policy endorsement in which the items are of repair or replacement, without described specifically and each is given a dollar value.

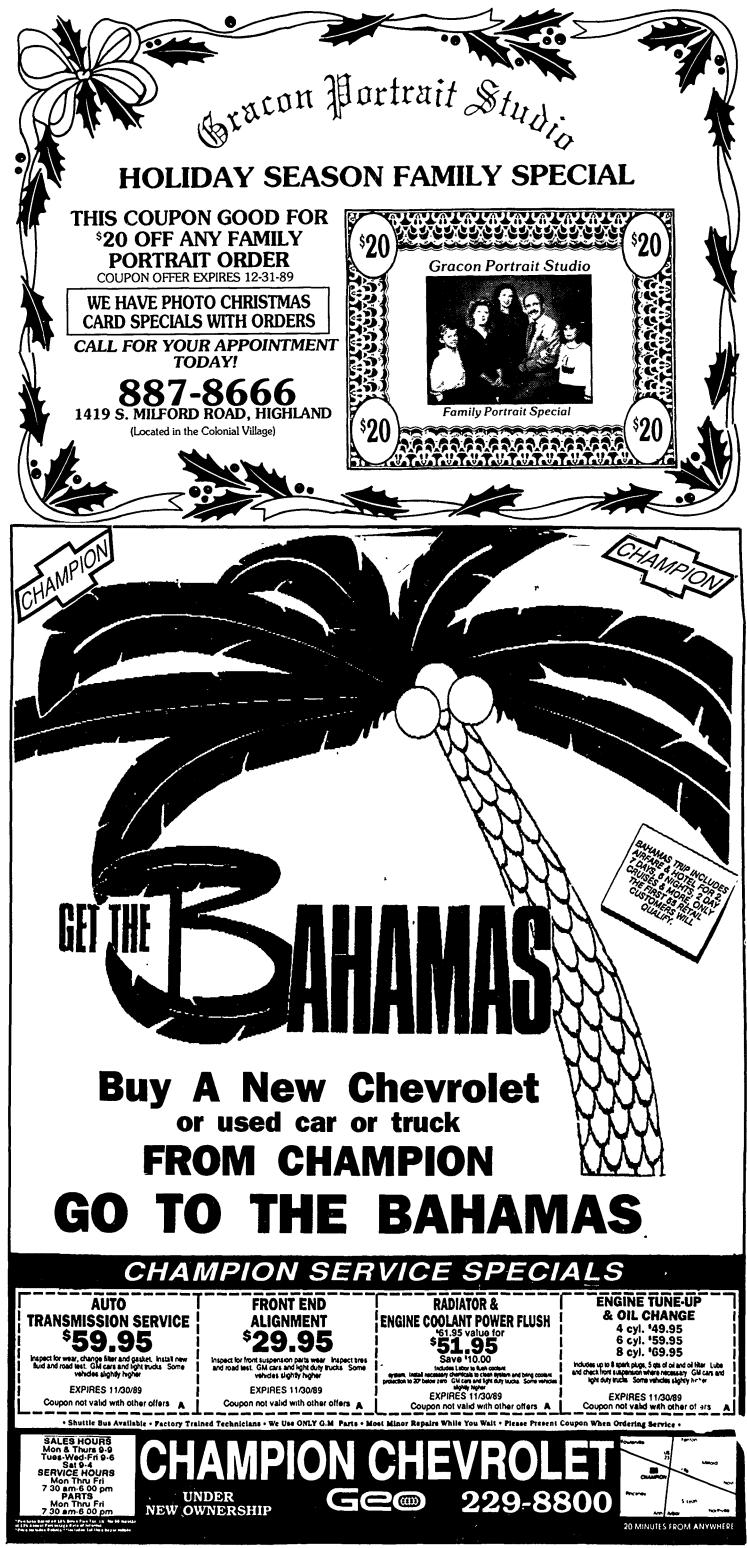

The renters policy usually includes several other coverag's Examples of these are

Additional living expenses which might be incurred if the residence is temporarily uninhabitable following a loss

Personal liability insurance for bodily injury/property damage claims or suits.

Alterations or improvements the renter has made to the building at his/her own expense

C Personal property which is destroyed by covered peril while away from the premises

Her responsibilities will include providing clients with design and development (both traditional and computer-based training), organizational development and technical writing. Training services will include computer applications, manufacturing, training skills and professional development.

Dolan's educational background includes a Master of Science in Organizational Behavior and Development from Eastern Michigan University. Professional experiences, prior to joining ATI, include positions as Technical Vice President and Senior Technical Writer for American Financial Consulting Company, Detroit; Manager of Training for 3PM/McKesson, Livonia; and Past President and active member of the American Society for Training and Development.

CPAs provide easy guide for understanding mutual funds

If you are a newcomer to the world of mutual funds, get ready for an adventure that could daunt Indiana Jones

Call a mutual fund for information and you will soon receive a document that is as easy to read as an ancient Latin text. Terms like "back-end load" and "redemption fees" combine with pages of legalese that can send you scampering back to your simple savings account in the bank down the street

But retreat may not be necessay Armed with this guide, you should be able to venture into mutual-fund investing with confidence

WHAT IS A MUTUAL FUND? According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, a mutual fund is a financial service that pools the money of individual investors- or shareholders - to purchase a specially selected group of in-vestments Designed for both large and small investors, many funds accept opening deposits of $1,000 or less

A primary advanage of mutual funds is that they permit access to a wide selection of securities, some of which might otherwise be available only to big-time investors

Money Management

funds

Equally important, the diversified nature of mutual funds tends to minimize the individual investor's risk After all, one poor performer among a score of invesments is unlikely to drag down an entire fund. In addition, a mutual fund enables you to have your money invested and managed by a team of professionals who study the investment market daily And you can easily redeem your shares any time you choose. market

TYPES OF FUNDS: According to the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), approximately 3,500 mutual funds are available nationwide These funds are grouped into basic categories that reflect different investment objectives. For example, you can choose among aggressive-growth funds, growth funds, income funds, growthplus-income funds, balanced funds, bond funds, international funds, money-market funds and specialty

Each type of fund has a different risk factor. In general, aggressivegrowth funds focus on building capital over time and tend to be somewhat volatile. Conservative investors do best with an income or money-market fund. If you are an expert in a particular industry, say retailing, you may want to select a specialty fund investing in that

Since most investors have several financial needs and the economic environment is constantly changing, many funds are part of a "family." What this means is that you can often move money from one fund in the family to another with just a phone call. Let's say you have invested $1,000 each in a money-market fund and a growth fund belonging to the same family. Suddenly, the international stock market takes off. You could then quickly switch all or part of your investment into an international fund in the same family. Just keep in mind that such an action may result in taxable capital gains or losses

OPEN-END VS. CLOSED-END FUNDS: Mutual funds are distinguished by a lot more than just their investment objectives. For instance, mutual funds can be open-end or closed-end.

Most people select open-end funds, which create new shares for investors as money comes in. The price is set daily by the fund's net asset value per share - in simpler terms, the fund's total assets after deduc-ting liabilities, divided by the number of outstanding shares. Closed-end funds issue a fixed number of shares which are then traded either on an exchange or over the counter. The price of the shares may sell above or below the net asset value, based on supply and demand.

WATCH FOR CHARGES: All funds charge investors for brokerage commissions and daily management fees, usually in the form of an annual charge collected from the fund's assets. But do not make the mistake of assuming that all funds charge the same amount.

Load funds, for example, require you to pay a sales commission - or load - when you make a deposit. In return for the load, you should expect expert advice as to what fund is most appropriate for your financial objectives

Up-front loads generally range between 2 percent and 8.5 percent of the total price of the shares you purchase. In other words, if you invest $1,000 in a fund with an 8.5 percent load, the fund will automatically shave $85 off the top - reducing your investment to $915. Let's say the fund has a bad year and its return is only 9.5 percent. Your account will earn a rather paltry $87, for a total net gain of $2.

Yet another type of load is charged by "contingent-deferred" or "backend" funds. Instead of an up-front load, these funds charge a redemption fee. Back-end load funds charge a certain percentage if you redeem you shares within a certain period similar to the early-withdrawal penalty that banks charge if you redeem a certificate of deposit (CD) prematurely.

Most investment experts advise investors to narrow their selection of funds to those that do not charge a load at all. The management of the fund will still provide information of the types of funds offered, but you will not have the personalized services of a broker.

GRAND RIVER EQUINE FEEDS

23655 Griswold Road, South Lyon 5th Driveway South of 10 Mile

To know exactly what load bokerage and management fees your fund charges, make sure you read the mutual fund's prospectus. As a result of a new SEC requirement, the prospectus must now include a table listing all fees, including sales charges, overhead expense, portfolio management fees and 12b-1 fees (which pay for the fund's marketing and advertising costs). The table must also present a hypothetical example of what impact expenses and fees would have on a $1,000 investment growing at 5 percent a year. CPAs say that in selecting a fund, you should look for consistent performance and a ratio of expenses to average net assets under 1 percent. You should also note the fund's portfolio turnover rate. A 100-percent turnover rate means the fund trades every stock in its portfolio every year. Be aware, too, that a 12b-1 distribution plan that costs 1.5 percent a year may seem insignificant, but over 20 years those fees can reduce your overall earnings by 30 percent

The store also offers a wide range of boots, bindings and poles.

But there's more to skiing than just the skis.

"We have ski apparel for all people," Sicheneder says. Brand names range from the "fashion-conscious skier's" Bogner to the high-tech

'Nevica offers skiers the type of garment that blocks wind and keeps them dry in any weather. It's for the skier who doesn't care how cold or wet it is," said Sicheneder.

And since a 12-year study shows that being 40% or more overweight puts you at high risk, it makes sense to follow these guidelines for healthy living! Eat plenty of fruits and vegetables rich in vitamins A and C—oranges, cantaloupe, strawberries, peaches, apricots, broccoli, cauliflower, brussel sprouts, cabbage. Eat a high-fiber, low-fat diet that includes whole-grain breads and cereals such as oatmeal, bran and wheat. Eat lean meats, fish, skinned poultry and low-fat dairy products. Drink alcoholic beverages only in moderation. For more information, call 1-800-ACS-2345.

Fall is time to think about spring garden

Creative

By Dawn Riffenburg

Think spring!

This isn't generally the time of year your mind turns to gardening, but it could be a good idea to think of your garden now.

To ensure a good garden for next spring, steps need to be taken now. These steps range from clearing the garden of debris to doing some reading during the winter months.

"The first step is to clean up all the leftover plant debris," said Greg Patchan of the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

Gardeners should also make a plan of what was planted where to study over the winter for possible changes, he added

Patchan said it's also important to "cover crop" the ground before winter.

"Cover crop with rye — the grain - which holds in place over the winter and adds nutrients to the soil," he explained. "Turn it around next spring to incorporate the rye into the soil.

Patchan also suggested that gardens use the winter down-time to obtain soil tests to determine nutrient needs

"It's good to do it now when the office is not busy, rather than spring when people get in the gardening he said "Then the farmers will all be submitting their samples as well, and you may not get your test results back soon enough.

Soil test kits are available at the county extension office for $6; kits can be mailed to interested gardeners for $7

Mulching the ground is also a good idea for fall. While leaves left on the garden this fall will not decompose enough by spring to incorporate in the ground, a compost pile can be started for use next year.

A leaf cover of six to eight inches may decompose enough to mix with the soil with a machine such as a rototiller, but not a regular garden hoe, Patchan said.

He recommended a three-sided enclosure made with chicken wire or leftover cyclone fencing for those interested in starting a home compost pile

Put down one or two feet of leaves, then add a few inches of top soil. which will add the necessary microorganisms to begin the decomposition

Place on top of that a light sprinkling of manure (the squeamish may want to use a general purpose garden fertilizer, Patchan said.)

Reapeat these layers, as you rake leaves and remove debris from your garden. Wet down the compost pile as you go along compost pile with a gardening fork. Air aids in the decompostion process. If you don't have any top soil, Patchan suggested purchasing "compost starter," which is literally a bag of microbes which will start the decomposing immediately.

The pile should steam on winter days," he said. "And in some cases, no snow collects on the pile because of the warmth. That means it's working. It shouldn't smell at all. If it smells, you need to get some air into

By spring, the compost pile should have decreased in bulk to about onethird the original size, he added.

Patchan said it helps if the leaves are shredded before being placed on the compost pile.

In addition, woody stalks such as corn, broccoli or brussels sprouts will need to be shredded for easy decompostion

Patchan pointed out that com-posting is a way to reduce the amount of trash going to landfills.

"Ultimately, we're all going to be composting," he said. "Soon the trend will be no landscape waste going to landfills. Some states require that already.'

to order catalogs and plan for next year's garden.

For large-scale gardeners, he suggested considering crop rotation. Many books and brochures are available on the subject.

"Read how to expand the productivity of your garden by doublecropp-Patchan suggested. "Some ing, vegetables like warm weather and are killed by cold weather, some vegetables prefer colder weather and don't thrive in hot weather. It's possible to start early in the year - as soon as the soil dries out a little -

Fall and winter are also good times with crops such as leaf lettuce, spinach and radishes, crops that quit when the hot weather comes in.

Then you can plant beans, tomatoes, vegetables that like warmer weather and finish out the year with another cool-weather crop perhaps

He did add this is not something he would recommend for first-time gardeners

The extension office has a gardening hotline, where gardening questions can be answered by trained staff That number is 858-0902, Monday-Friday, 9 a m. to noon.

Coquill: Vacation living with full-home amenities

By James McAlexander

The Coquill offers efficient vacation living with the amenities of a full-size house Unlike many secondhome designs, the Coquill also provides substantial privacy

Identical bathroom suites flank the central living area. Each has its own private bath, vanity and walk-in closet, as well as access and view onto the large front deck. For co-op arrangements, this allows each owner to maintain a locked area while leaving the rest of the house open for coowners or renters Dominating the central area is the vaulted living room, which looks out onto the front deck through tall windows and glass doors. Light streams down from an arched window on the upper level.

The living room floor is sunken one step below with the rest of the main floor, further accentuating the impression of space.

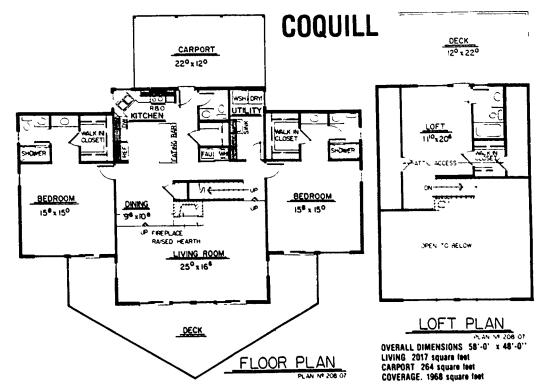

Besides the bedroom suites and living room, the main floor also includes a kitchen with eating bar, a dining and half-bath. A utility room has space for washer, dryer, sink and work counter.

An open staircase leads up to a loft that overlooks the living room directly opposite the arched front window. The loft can serve as a sturdy, third bedroom or sleeping bag dormitory.

It has its own full bath, walk-in closet and outsider deck above the carport.

The common entrances to the Coquill are the glass living room doors and a door from the rear carport. The bedroom suites have private doors off the main deck. The house does not have the heavy central focus of a traditional front entrance, but then the Coquill is designed to look out onto a view, not to be seen from a street.

For a study plan of the Coquill (208-07), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P O. Box 2307 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Leftovers don't have to be blah

By Carol Cutler

No one wants to be caught short of food or drink at a dinner party. So we go to the other extreme and have a refrigerator full of leftovers. The family is no help in this matter. Except for Thanksgiving, they do not look kindly upon a surfeit of a particular food.

Any disguise of a leftover has to be pretty thorough, either in appearance or flavor, to keep them happy, if not fooled. Here are a few ways around a perennial quandry.

Rice-It often is hard to judge ex-actly how much rice guests will eat with their fish or grilled chicken. So at least a brimming bowlful remains. Give it a new nationality and serve Chinese Stir-Fried Rice.

Asian cooks take the name of this method of cooking seriously and stir constantly while frying over searingly high heat. Most cooks, however, are more comfortable with slower cooking, less stirring and more moderate heat. It works just as well.

As many oddments can be added to the rice as you like, but all must be sliced or chopped before beginning. Even a slower fry is pretty fast. First, in a wok or heavy skillet, saute some onions or scallions in a little oil. Add bits of vegetables, meat or fish and fry a minute or so. Then add the rice and keep stirring until the grains are lightly browned.

The dish can go to the table as is or moistened with a little plain yogurt (not traditional) or a beaten egg or two stirred in off the heat (tradi tional). The residual heat will coagulate the eggs to the proper consistency Season with soy sauce, if you like Corn on the cob-The very best thing to do with boiled corn on the cob is to leave it whole and broil. Place ears in a pan or on aluminum foil and smear with a little margarine or butter. Broil until sugar in kernels turns nutty brown. Turn ears with tongs and continue turning and browning. The resulting flavor is a surprise, something akin to grilling over charcoals.

Grilled hamburgers-Give this one total change of character. With a fork, break up hamburgers into small pieces. Thin your favorite barbecue sauce with a little water, beer, wine or fruit juice and heat in a pot. Heat sauce and simmer for a few minutes. Add broken-up hamburger and cook just enough to heat meat thoroughly. Serve on hamburger buns.

Grilled steak-I would simply slice it and serve cold. Nothing could be better. But in case more of a disguise is called for, turn it into a salad.

Slice meat into long slivers and toss with sliced Bermuda onions, capers and pitted olives and put all into mixing bowl. Make a sauce with sour cream, prepared mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Pour sauce over contents in bowl and toss together. Serve on lettuce and garnish with tomatoes and hard-boiled eggs, if eggs are on your diet.

Hamson 4NS@1989

Roast chicken—Leftover slices of chicken or turkey can be pretty humble-looking. Give them a glamor treatment and create an elegant first course in the bargain.

Cut poultry meat into small dices, lightly season with any herbs you like, moisten with a little wine, chicken stock or fruit juice and chill. Also chill canned consomme that contains gelatin. In fact, food producers seem to use "consomme" to indicate that there is gelatin and "broth" when there is none. It's not accurate, but that's the custom.

Besides, one can always read the list of ingredients and check for gelatin.

If they sit in the refrigerator, also chill cooked vegetables cut into small pieces. Cooked peas and corn kernels work very well, too. When ready to serve, mix some of the poultry meat and vegetables together in a soup cup or other small bowl. Stir up contents of the jellied consomme to break it into small pieces and spoon some over each bowl.

Call it Glistening Chicken or Chicken Glisten and even the family will be impressed with your creativity.

Mixing patterns revives memories

By Rose Bennett Gilbert

Q: I have a wonderful childhood memories of playing on the floor under my great-aunt's grand piano, my "dollhouse."

What I remember so fondly is the flower-patterned carpet that covered the entire floor. It was made in narrow strips but sewn together to go almost wall-to-wall.

Memories aside, my question if this: Could I possibly add such a rug to a room already filled with antiques and a number of different patterns? Will it look hopelessly busy-Nostalgic in Knoxville.

A: Such a happy melange of patterns is what the currently popular "English Country Look" is all about. I put that in quotation marks because there is speculation that we Americans actually invented the look; the English just live it, adding pattern to print without a thought to style.

Of course, the eclectic results may be an acquired taste-acquired over generations of random hand-medowns

More of today's liking on this side of the Atlantic are patterns that somehow relate to each other, in terms of either color, design or scale. That is, if the patterns share a common color thread and are markedly different in scale, they will live together harmoniously even if they aren't anything alike.

One other point of interest: Your great-aunt's carpeting obviously was made before the days of modern "broadlooms." That is why the strips were sewn together to achieve the room's width. Broadloom is a descriptive adjective when applied to contemporary carpet, not an indication of quality, as some advertisers might have you believe, by the way.

Q: I'm doing over a very small room as my at-home office. The one window (tall and skinny) has no view and less room for a window dressing that takes up space.

What can you suggest-besides plain mini-blinds-that will fit close to the panes and still give me a little softness to look at?-D.V.

A: Un-plain mini-blinds are something new under the sun.

At least one compnay (Hunter Douglas) makes blinds in a variety of fabrics and lets you order additional fabric to match, so you could make a short valance, cover a cornice, sew up a throw cushion for your desk chair.

Their Fabrette blinds, by the way, are the kind that are translucent enough to admit some light even while they're closed-a good solution for a window with no view.

You might also consider vertical blinds laminated with your choice of fabric, wooden shutters with fabric inserts, or a translucent roller shade in a pretty color trimmed or stenciled to match your wall color.

Cozy up to these casserole cozies for ideal hostess gift

By Kelle Banks Barfield

Colorful casserole cozies are an ideal hostess gift, especially if you're taking a covered dish to a dinner party, and pre-quilted fabric makes the project a snap.

Using the following instructions for measuring your casserole dishes, you can make a cozy for any dish of your own or for a standard size pot if the cozy is a gift.

First measure from any point on the rim of the container, down its side and to the midpoint of the container's bottom. Add ½ inch to this measurement to determine the width of your outside fabric strip, which you will make from pre-quilted fabric. Add 1¼ inches to the pot measurements for the width of the lining fabric.

For a length of both fabric pieces, measure the circumference of the pot and multiply this by 11/2 to 2, depending on how full you want the gathered pot cozy to be. You should find that cutting across 45-inch-wide fabric will be adequate length for most casserole dishes. Fold the quilted fabric in half, right sides together, and stitch the ends together with a 1/2-inch seam. Press the seam allowance open and stitch both seam edges to the fabric. Repeat this step with the lining fabric, then turn back 1/2 inch of the lining fabric to the wrong side all the

Place the ring of lining fabric inside the ring of quilted fabric, right sides together, so that the side seams of the two fabrics aren't in the same spot. Position the bottom, unturned edge of lining fabric even with the bottom edge of quilted fabric and sew the two together using a 1/2-inch seam. Turn right side out.

for the bottom drawstring of the pot

Next stitch around the ring ½ inch from the seam edge to form a casing

stitching again 2 inches down from the edge. Clip the threads in the side seam of the quilted fabric in both casings for inserting the drawstrings. To make the bottom drawstring, cut a 24-inch piece of double bias tape in a coordinating color and stitch along the edge to secure it. For the top drawstring, cut a piece of elastic 12 inches shorter than the circumference of the pot and cut two pieces of double-bias tape both 18 inches long. Insert each end of elastic into one end of a bias strip and stitch along the edges of both pieces of bias tape.

Use a safety pin attached to one end of the elasticized drawstring to pull it through the top casing, in the opening of the side seam, around the cozy and back out this same side opening. Do the same with the other drawstring through the bottom cas-

Pull the bottom drawstring to form a 3-inch circle, tie off the drawstring, and tuck the ties inside the cozy. Set the casserole dish inside the cozy and pull the top drawstring, making even gathers around the dish. Tie the top drawstring into a bow.

quilted fabric to form a border around the cozy. Topstitch this border in place. Form a second drawstring casing in the cozy by stitching around it 10

Turn the 1/2 inch of lining fabric that extends past your quilted fabric way around one edge at the top over the right side of the

I would like to know when it was made and its value.

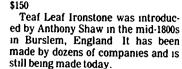

A: This is not genuine Wedgwood. This Wedgwood & Co. mark was used by Podmore, Walker & Co. in Tunstall, England, during the late 19th century

It probably would sell for about $75 to $85

Can you tell me anything about it? A. Stradivarius made violins in Cremona, Italy, in the early 1700s Today they are selling for hundreds of thousands of dollars

Experts believe that all genuine Stradivarius violins have been discovered. THe last "new" Stradivarius was found over 80 years ago

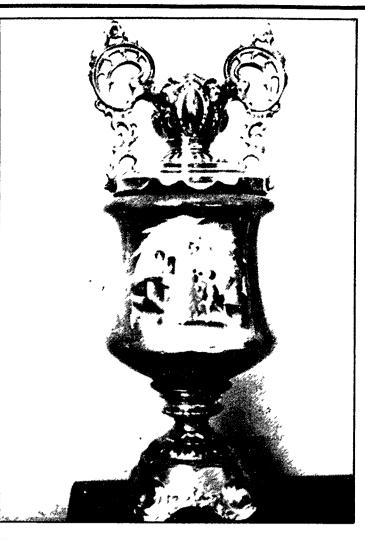

Czechoslovakia was founded in 1918, so your violin was made sometime after that

The value of your violin would depend on its musical quality, it is not a aluable collectible

Q: Does the mark, "E.B.P. Co." identify the maker of my three-piece tea set? It is decorated with a floral design and has gold trim. Does it have any value?

A: Your tea set was made by the Edwin Bennett Pottery Co. in Baltimore, Md., in the early 20th century The company was founded in 1846 and went out of business in 1936. Most tea sets like this sell in the $65 to $75 range

Q: A dealer said that my plate was "Quimper." It is marked "H.R. Quimper, France." It is crudely painted with figures of a peasant man and woman.

Early 1900s vase valued at $300

What can you tell me about Quimper? When and where was my plate made? How much is it worth?

A: Quimper is a city in France and all the pottery made there takes the name of the city H.R. is the mark of Jules Henriot who founded one of those potteries in 1886

Your plate was made in the early 20th century and probably would sell for about $35 to $45

Around the House: Where's the beef? It's back in style

By Carol Cutler

The human spirit can be very perverse.

We Americans are supposedly on a health kick as never before. We are jogging, doing aerobics, cycling, swimming and hitting little golf and tennis balls with a vengeance.

Why, we even pay homage to dieting and nutritional eating.

But there are two sides to that coin. Restaurants that offer lean menus find that dieters reward themselves for eating so wisely by blowing it all on wicked desserts. And there are more dessert cookbooks on the market than Devon has cream.

In recent years, beef took such a hard rap from nutritionists that market sales of poultry and fish soared But while being so cautious at home, what can we do in restaurants? Order beef.

Figures tell a large part of the story. A three-ounce serving of lean beef has about 189 calories. The same three-ounce serving of roasted chicken without its skin has 162 calories.

The following recipe is one I devised for one of my own cookbooks. I had tasted it in several Marseilles French restaurants, but could never find a printed recipe for it.

Start the meal with a cold soup, perhaps cucumber or beet. With the stew, serve a starch to absorb the sauce. Polenta (cornmeal), bulgur and couscous are good choices. Conclude with a granita, sherbet or fresh pineapple sprinkled with rum.

Rhone Beef Stew

4 pounds eye of round or bottom round, trimmed of fat

1/4 cup olive oil 2 cups wine, red or dry white 1 (2-ounce) can anchovies <sup>3</sup>4 cup chopped sour pickles 3 tablespoons capers, drained 4 garlic cloves, sliced 4 teaspoon thyme 1 (1-pound) can tomatoes 1 celery rib broken in half 2 bay leaves Pepper Salt, if necessary

Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Place meat in enameled cast iron casserole. Pour olive oil and 1/2 cup wine in blender or food processor. Add anchovies, pickles, capers, garlic, thyme and tomatoes. (Add 1/4 cup more pickles and extra garlic clove for a stronger flavor.) Process to a puree.

Pour puree over meat, adding more wine until sauce almost covers meat. Wrap celery around bay leaves, tie together into small bundle and tuck into marinade. Cover and and tuck into marinate. Cover and marinate meat in cool spot or refrigerator for at least 12 hours. Turn meat occasionally. Preheat oven to 250 F. Put casserole on medium heat and slowly bring marinade just to a boil. Sprinkle with pepper, taste for salt and correct if necessary.

Place sheet of aluminum foil over contents, then cover with lid. Place in oven and cook slowly for about 5 hours or until meat is tender. Turn meat once or twice during cooking.

To serve: Slice meat and arrange in center of warmed platter. Discard celery bundle and spoon hot sauce liberally over meat.

Ladies bowl in spirit of friendship

Story by Brenda Dooley

hen September rolls around, Thursday mornings are reserved for bowling. It's an unwritten ground rule for a ladies bowling league known as the Novi Pin Pointers

The bowlers have been meeting over steaming cups of coffee for 25 years to renew friendships, share juicy tidbits of gossip and of course . . . to bowl.

The league was first formed in 1964, when bowlers met at Country Lanes in Farmington to practice scoring strikes and spares. In 1969 the league moved to bowl after 24 years on the league, Novi Bel-Aire Lanes on Orchard Lake Road in Farmington and has been bowling resident Audrey Blackburn jokingly said "Because I have to bring my "No, really I do it because I enjoy it. These people are my friends, neighbors and people who go to my church," Blackburn said. "Our kids knew they could never get sick on Thursdays and if they did, they came along with us.

half the women on the league and they asked me if I wanted to bowl, so I said, Sure, why not?' '

Dettore is now vice president of the league

The league's season runs from September through April, including an end-of-the-season banquet. And it goes without saying that bowling is part of the fall schedule of activities for this group of dedicated women.

Novi's Shirley Thorpe is another longtime Pin Pointers member.

"I was out a couple of years when I was pregnant, but I just drifted back,' she said "It's enjoyable and I love all the gals After so many years it's just part of the routine.

The bowling habit was passed down

"In Novi we really didn't have anything as far as a social group," said Barbara Pietron, a Pin Pointers member for 24 years. For just that reason, the idea for a Thursday morning bowling league was born.

"I love it - it's a fun league," Pietron added. "There's some things in life worth doing, and bowling is my form of recreation Pietron's sentiments are echoed among other league members.

"We like bowling so much that some of us who work part time arrange our work schedules to have Thursday mornings off," Blackburn added

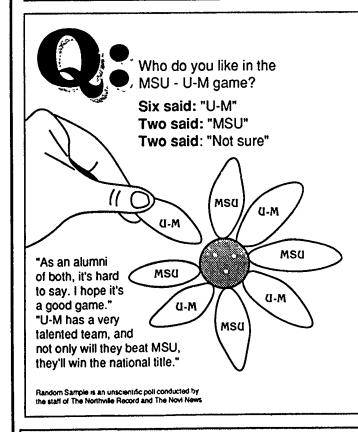

Novi resident Linda Dettore has been When asked why she continues to a Pin Pointer for eight years "I know

Schanne lends hand at church

By DOROTHY NASH

"Reaching out to others" is the way Lee Ann Schanne, housewife and mother of three small children, describes her volunteering as chairperson of the Church and Society Committee sponsored by First United Methodist Church of Northville

The committee of nine men and women has been meeting monthly since it was formed two years ago, and, currently, Schanne said, it has four projects in which people in and out of the church may participate:

1 Prison inmate visitation program at Scott Regional Correctional Facility on Five Mile. Volunteers visit prisoners, whose average age is 21 and who have no other visitors.

Also at Christmas they send cards to each of them - "last year 600, maybe 1,300 this year," she said.

2. Project Angel Tree. "This is supervised by Prison Fellowship, which is a national organization," Schanne commented. The group provides Christmas gifts to local children of prisoners being held anywhere in the country.

"We contact the children, whose names have been given to us, and invite them to write their names and wants on angels, which are hung on the tree at the church.

"Anyone who wants may then pick an angel or two and follow through with buying gifts, wrapping and delivering in the name of the prisoners. Last year there were 60 '

3. Shelter for the homeless. This is a project sponsored by the Baldwin Avenue Methodist Church in Pontiac, where unemployment is high.

This year they raised money through a barbecue and gave it to a fund which helps put families up in apartments. And beyond that, Schanne said, "We collect food for the soup kitchen."

4 Help with Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital.

In Our Town Northville Town Hall opens season with Eisenhower

By BRENDA DOOLEY

Northville Town Hall kicks off its 29th season of bringing celebrity lecturers to the area today (Thursday, Oct. 12), by welcoming David Eisenhower

The lecture begins at 11 a.m. at the Radisson of Plymouth, former-ly named the Plymouth Hilton. The hotel changed its name on July 1, but its new identity will have no effect on the Northville Town Hall series. Ticketholders are reminded that the lecture series will take place in the same place it was held last year.

A luncheon, also served at the hotel, follows the lecture at about noon for season-ticket holders. Audience members will be invited to participate in a question and answer session with Eisenhower following the luncheon

During Northville Town Hall's first presentation for the 1989-90 season, Eisenhower will discuss his best-seller "Eisenhower: At War.'

As the grandson of former president and general Dwight D. Eisenhower, he provides special insight into how "Ike" helped the U.S. defeat the Nazis in World War II. David Eisenhower also describes how Ike contributed to the American political scene as president.

David and Julie Nixon Eisenhower have been married for nearly 20 years. They met while attending colleges in western Massachusetts - David at Amherst, Julie at Smith. They were married by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale just one month before President Richard Nixon's first inauguration.

The Eisenhowers currently reside in a suburb of Philadelphia with their three children.

In addition to his work as a lecturer in political science at the University of Pennsylvania, David is working on the completion of the last two volumes in his Eisenhower trilogy. His wife is assisting him with the project.

Upcoming speakers in the new season include travel expert Art Frommer on Nov. 9; astrologer Joyce Jillson on March 8, 1990 and Michael Walsh on April 5, 1990.

Last season's Northville Town Hall celebrity lecturers were con-sumer reporter John Stossel, Hollywood critic Susan Granger, ghostwriter William Novak and folk singer Phil Marcus Esser.

Applications may be obtained from scholarship chairperson Judy Kohl, 1034 Springfield Drive, Northville, 348-2678. Applications should be mailed to Kohl's address by Nov. 15.

Free dance lessons offered

Interested in learning how to dance? For the next three Tuesdays the Northville Area Senior Citizens Center will offer free dance lessons by instructor Mary Savona.

Transportation will depart from the Northville Community Center at 9 a.m. Call 349-4140 for reservations.

City recognizes business week

At its Oct. 2 meeting the Northville City Council proclaimed Oct. 15-21 National Business Women's Week. The proclamation stated: "Whereas working women constitute 50 million of the nation's working force and are constantly striving to serve their communities, their states and their nation in civic and cultural programs, and Whereas major goals of business and professional women are to help create better conditions for business women through the study of social, educational, economic and political problems; to help them be of greater service to their community; to further friendship with women throughout the world, and Whereas all of us are proud of their leadership in these fields of endeavor.3

This year marks the 61st anniversary of the week, sponsored by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women and locally by the Northville club. Nationally, President George Bush will be issuing the declaration for the third full week in October.

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women Clubs of the United States began in 1928 "to dramatize women's con-tributions to the economic, social and political life of the community, state, nation and the world." The Northville club began in 1948. A display will be housed in the window of the Northville Pharmacy, depicting the areas in which the Northville members are employed. The Northville BPW Club hosts monthly dinner meetings at Genitti's restaurant. For more information call Berclay Ruschak at the Bookstall on the Main at 348-1167.

Single Place sponsors new workshop

Single Place hosts a five-week workshop called "Positive Approaches to a Single Life: A Singles Guide to Relationships Part II" by Betty Byrd, an instructor at Oakland Community College.

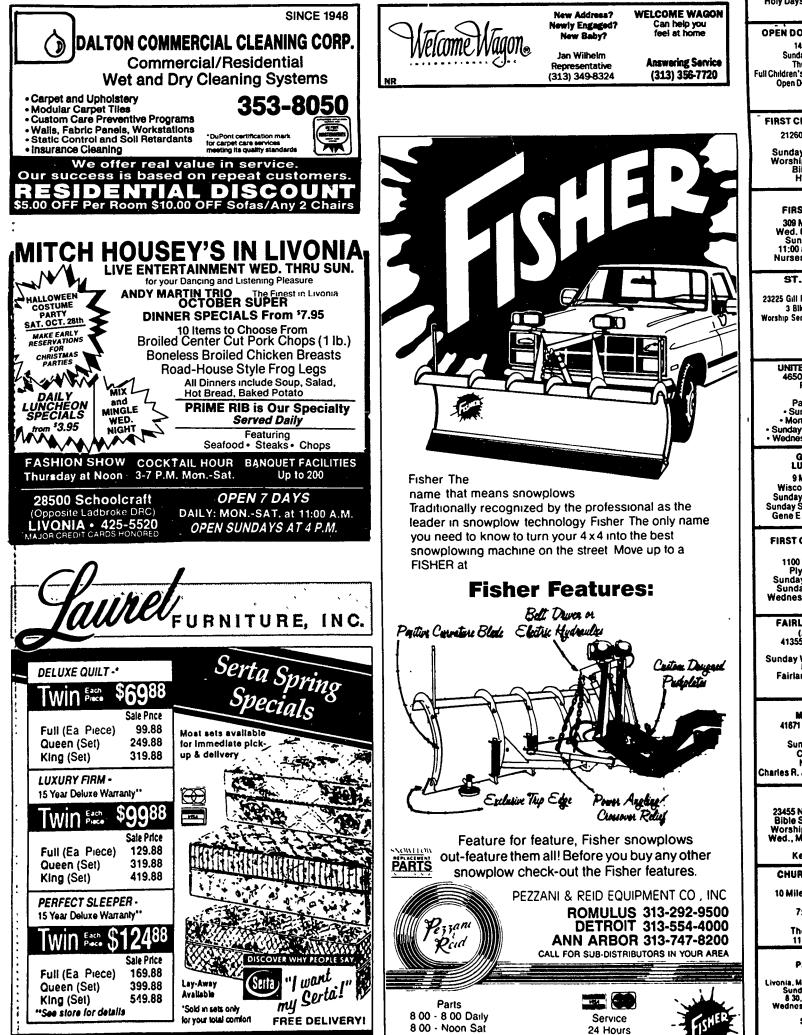

The workshop begins Sunday, Oct. 15 and concludes on Sunday, Dec. 3. Sessions are held from 7 to 9 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville

Following is a schedule of topics to be discussed during the workshop: Sunday, Oct. 15: "How to Enjoy Yourself and Have a Good Time." The session focuses on the importance of "positive self-esteem." Sunday, Oct. 29: "What Do Men Expect From Women In a Relationship, Part I."

Sunday, Nov. 5: "What Do Men Expect From

Women In a Relationship, Part II." During the past two decades or more the roles men and women play have changed dramatically. We have gone from "accepted courting ethics" to a more liberated "intimate revolution" - from strict, well-defined expectations to anything goes. These two workshops attempt to clarify some of the confusion.

by Mildred and Ronald Poirier of Northville. Wilbur is Mildred's father.

Relatives gathered at the Poiriers' Northville home on Welch Road to swap stories and enjoy birthday cake. Mildred Poirer said relatives have been celebrating the twins' birthday jointly for the past three years.

"The doctor said they both have the hearts and lungs of men in their 40s," Mildred commented.

Wilbur Atkinson resides in Southfield with his wife, Duffie, while Walter lives in Clare.

The brothers served in the war together and were in the same regiment, according to Mildred. When they were three years old their family moved from Indiana to Arkansas via covered wagon, with a cow and surrey tied to the back of the wagon. Both are active in their churches, and Wilbur occasionally teaches

Sunday school.

Special guests at the 90th birthday party included Walter's daughter and her husband, Ethel and Art Goudie of Clare; Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Scantlind of Auburn Hills; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Halloween puppet show planned

Local ghouls and goblins are invited to take part in some Halloween fun.

other on and offer a lot of encouragement

'Yeah, but we cry loud and complain a lot," Barb Walling chirped in. Canup, an 18-year Pin Pointers enthusiast, said she became involved in the league "to get out of the house."

"It's a great place for companionship," she added. "You feel like you're getting out to do something for yourself."

In between individual games, ladies take time to chat. The sound of bowling pins toppling onto the wooden lanes mingles with cheers of joy, groans of dismay or heartfelt peals of laughter. Together the ladies have stuck side by side as they raised their children, launched careers and watched the city grow. Exclusively a Novi group in the beginning, the league now attracts bowlers from Northville, Farmington, West Bloomfield and Livonia. Northville's Carol Irwin takes part in the league as a substitute bowler. This is her second year as a member of the league and she, too, enjoys the companionship. "It's fun," Irwin said. "It's more about having fun than bowling really well.'

Some of the league's original members acknowledge that the city's newer bowling leagues are attracted to Novi Bowl because the lanes are closer to home. But the Pin Pointers say they're happy at Bel Aire Lanes and don't plan to bowl anywhere else.

"The management here makes it so nice," Blackburn said. "Bill brought in a playpen for us to use when our kids were babies," she add-ed, referring to owner Bill Winkel.

Team names include Never A Doubt, B&Ls, Adventurers, Eager Beavers, By A Hair, Hi Los, M&Ms, Look-N-Good, Century 21 West and Bowling Bags.

The league is currently in need of substitute bowlers. If interested in becoming a member and for more information about the Novi Pin Pointers, call Barbara Pietron at 474-0531

OLV School hosts candy sale

The OLV Annual Candy Sale went to Sept. 25. Students sold candy, cheese, sausage, and small decorations.

The candy sale is sponsored by the OLV School Committee, whose members have pledged to raise $13,000 for the school's operating budget. This will help keep down the cost of tuition. Diane Braziunas is chairperson of this fundraiser. Any profits realized beyond the $13,000 commitment for operational expenses will be allocated to the new computer lab.

Open House was held at OLV school Sept. 14. Parents visited the classrooms and received information about the goals, objectives, procedures, and methods of evaluation used by the classroom teachers. Parents also signed up for individual conferences with their children's teachers.

Parent-teacher conferences will take place the first week in November. The OLV Book Fair will take place during conference week.

Pat Reardon and McCrae Electric completed the installation of the wiring for the new computer lab. Students began classes recently. Karen Black is our new computer teacher.

Bill Stockhausen has bolted the new library shelves to the walls, and the library now has a new junior high section. Selections especially suited to this age group now occupy the area which formerly contained the computers. Visit our library during the book fair.

Colleges recognize local scholars

Hiram College junior JAMIE CLARKE, a Northville native, is currently studying in Cambridge, England, as part of the college's extramural studies program.

The schedule for the fall program includes two weeks of touring in London. South Wales and the Cotswolds. Once in Cambridge, students follow a rigourous course of study under the direction of two Hiram professors. Classes are held near the city center and students are housed with families in Cambridge.

Clarke is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke of Northville.

CHUNG-jen HSIN of Maple Hill in Northville was recently awarded a Barton Scholarship for the 1989 fall semester at Eastern Michigan University.

Recipients of the $500 awards must have earned, or be in their final semester of completing, bachelor's degrees at EMU. They also must have a cumulative undergraduate grade point average of 3.5 or better and be newly enrolled in graduate studies at EMU or the University of Michigan with no previous graduate work completed.

JENNIFER A. STREETMAN, a resident of Northville and a graduate of Southfield Christian High School, received a $500 honors scholarship for the 1989-90 school year from Calvin College in Grand Rapids. Streetman is a freshman at Calvin. An honors scholarship requires a high school or previous college grade point average of 3.5 or better. These scholarships are awarded to students in approximately the top 25 percent of the incoming freshman class. The scholarships are renewable if a student maintains a grade point average of 3.5 or higher while at Calvin.

"This character is very different from what I have done before because I have to be evil and I'm not used to that," Carrothers said in a press release issued by the college.

She is a 1988 graduate of Northville High School, where she was involved in theater. Her freshman year Carrothers was seen on stage in "The Passion of Dracula" and "This Property Is Condemned." She is also a member of the Albion Performance Troupe, a mime and story theater group.

Northville Woman's Club welcomes Ronna Romney

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Mary Louise Cutler, Geraldine Mills, Ronna Romney and Lonna Lemmon chat before the Northville Woman's Club's opening luncheon.

'Desert Song' opens at Marquis

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

The Marquis Theater's latest musical production, "The Desert Song," transports theatergoers to turn-of-the-century Morocco, to witness the shifting alliances and dalliances at an outpost of the French Foreign Legion.

The year is 1925. The scene is a French outpost in Morocco, where the Foreign Legion, under the command of General Birabeau and Captain Paul Fontaine, has ruled the Moroccan natives with an iron hand. The native Riffs have luck on their step ahead of the French, raiding herself curiously attracted to the Red Shadow

The two-act play is based on a book and lyrics written by Otto Harbach, Oscar Hammerstein II and Frank Mandel in 1927, with music by Sigmund Romberg. The music at the Marquis is provided by a 17-piece orchestra.

The play, which opened Oct. 7, will run through Sunday, Oct. 29. Performances are at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, and 2:30 p.m. on Sundays Tickets cost $10 and $11. The play is produced by Inge Zavti, and directed and choreographed by Michigan

The Red Shadow is played by Ken Haering, an opera performance graduate of Indiana University who has toured twice in "Oklahoma," and in "Curtain Time" with the U.S. Coast Guard Band. Jeffrey Wooley plays the comic role of Benjamin Kenly Worthington Kidd III, an English society reporter from France who gets caught up in the battle. Wooley has appeared in several Marquis productions, and performed in the MOT production of "Pirates of Penzance.

By BRENDA DOOLEY

The best compliment anyone could give a woman 400 years ago was to call her a "good wife " But in 1989, Ronna Romney, political dynamo, writer, lecturer and mother of five, is living proof that there's more to a woman's life than being a wife. In turn, she encourages other women to become in-volved, take risks and most importantly - not to sell themselves short.

"You can't place a value on what you really know," Romney told members of the Northville Woman's Club at their opening meeting on Friday, Oct. 6. Her presentation follow-ed a luncheon at Meadowbrook Coun-try Club. "It takes living experience to write laws to run the country, experience young legislators fresh out of college don't have yet.

"I could get all of you women together in a room and ask you to solve the education problem in Detroit and I'm sure you could do it," she added, receiving a round of enthusiastic applause.

Lending support to her argument that women, indeed, can make a difference in today's social and political arenas, Romney related momentous events in her life to a captive audience. She described herself as a typical suburban housewife - until the release of "Giving Time a Chance: The Secret of a Lasting Marriage," a book she co-authored with Beppie Harrison. The book, she said, changed her life. The events that prompted Romney to write the book were the first in the cycle of change affecting her life. "My goal was to find a good man and hook 'im ... and that's what I did," Romney said, referring to her life before the book. "I really have changed a lot.

Romney settled into her suburban lifestyle, raised five children and did the grocery shopping, car pooling and all the things a mother is called upon to do.

Then something happened. At the age of 37, the death of a friend's husband and the breakup of another couple close to Romney made her realize you can't plan your life and say nothing bad will happen.

'It hit me. They both led perfect lives," she said of her friends. "Suddenly they were alone and I realized it could happen to me.'

Romney took charge and enrolled at Oakland University, where she planned to further her education. But family responsibilities and pressures caused her to drop out just six weeks later. Shortly afterward Romney read an article - "probably in the 'Enquircr,' " she joked — that entic-ed her to write a book. She sent proposals to prospective publishers and was "rejected about 200 times." At the age of 38, Romney learned another of life's difficult lessons how to deal with rejection.

Meanwhile Romney, her husband, Scott, and their five children were living with her in-laws, George and Lenore Romney. And Ronna developed an idea for a book - how to sustain a happy marriage. She used the political clout of her influential father-in-law when contacting sources for her book, sources such as Richard Nixon and Billy Graham, just to name a few. They agreed to be interviewed for the book. Better yet, a publisher expressed interest in the idea.

Then Romney was faced with a paramount problem. "I didn't know how to write," she admitted. But that didn't stand in her way. She contacted a friend at church (Beppie Harrison) who was known for her poetry writing. And together the women wrote "Giving Time a Chance: The Secret of a Lasting Marriage." The book became a bestseller and led to another collaboration in "Momentum: Women in American Politics Now.<sup>3</sup>

Romney began traveling to promote her book. She no longer spent the majority of her time in her suburban home And she began to realize her potential. Her life changed.

When researching the book about women in politics, Romney became infinitely interested in the state of American politics as a whole. She's first to point out that she isn't pleased with what she sees.

For example, she hates the fact that there are career politicians whose main goal is to stay in office. Those who do are merely there to appease their constituents, she said. She'd like to see more focus on solving problems within the educational system and on developing laws that promote "givers," not "takers.'

"I really believe that women have a responsibility to change things," Romney added. "Let's complement each other. Women should stand side by side in the legislative quarters of Congress

Romney stressed that women don't have to run for political office to make a difference. Instead, she advises women to become involved in their communities.

"It makes no difference what you're trying to accomplish if you have enthusiasm," Romney said.

Dinner theater Marquis teams with Genitti's in new venture

By CRISTINA FERRIER

If attendance for the Marquis Theatre's "Desert Song" isn't high enough, it will be the last "grown up" musical to appear there, according to theater owner Inge Zayti.

But a new dinner-and-theater program being planned in conjunction with Genitti's Hole-In-The-Wall restaurant may bring in the crowd that Zayti would like to see.

Toni and John Genitti originally started their restaurant as a complement to the theater in 1978.

"Pat Master, one of our first customers, wanted a place to eat before he went to the theater," explained Toni Genitti. The first dinner was for 15 people. "We brought our dishes from home," she remembers. After several months, it grew into what it is today.

The new venture will work the same as the original one. After dining on a seven-course Italian meal, customers will walk across the street to watch the play.

Although the actual theater began much earlier, the Marquis Theater of today also began in 1978.

That was the year that the Zayti family began the extensive restoration on the building to make it look similar to when it was built 80 years ago

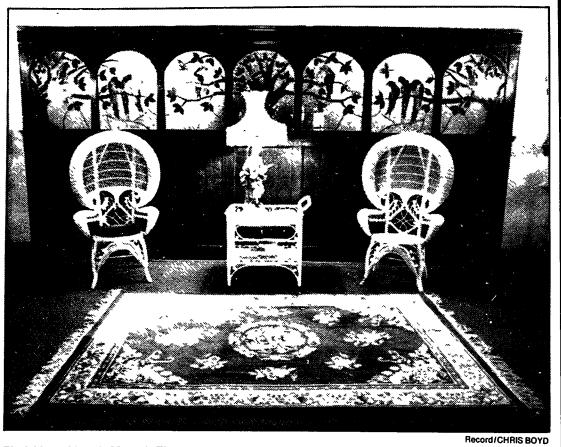

Zayti says that hers is a professional theater, not a community theater. In addition to open auditions that often discover local talent (Laura Genitti, the restaurant owners' daughter, landed a small role in "Desert Song") the theater uses the Professional Actors Hotline to find actors.

"Desert Song" is a story that takes place in the 1920's in war-torn Morocco. It involves secret identities and forbidden love. "It's very funny schmaltzy but beautiful," Zayti said. "It is probably one of the best shows, voice-wise, that we've ever had.' (For more on "The Desert Song," see page.)

However, Zayti said, these musicals are not getting enough support from the community. "A lot of people come to every show, regularly. But it's not enough."

The cast of the recent production of "The Foreigner" found themselves playing to only half an audience. "That's not fair to the people on stage," Zayti said. "One guy traveled three hours round trip every day for rehearsals."

The last musical cost over $50,000

The lobby at historic Marquis Theater awaits visitors enjoying the new dinner theater program

"If the people of Northville don't support musicals, there will be no more. We will only do the children's shows ... That would be a tremendous loss for the people of the community."

> Inge Zayti Marquis Theater owner

"That would be a tremendous loss dollars to produce. The immensely for the people of the community,' popular children's plays have been paying for the other plays. The Zayti said. theater, she says, cannot operate

The dinner-and-theater experience will not only include a the play, but also a completely unique eating experience.

Eating at Genitti's is more than just a meal. It's like being involved in a big party. The atmosphere is casual, with people seated all together, family style, at big tables. John Genitti warms up the crowd with a monologue before the dinner is served.

6-D

Thursday, October 12, 1989

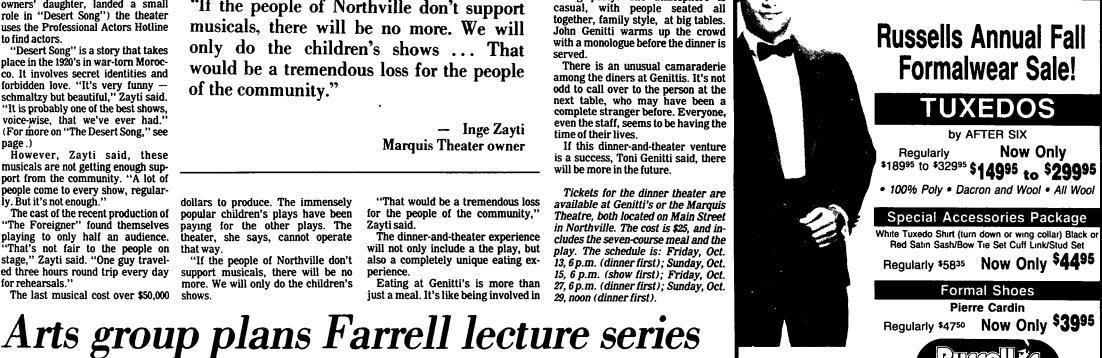

There is an unusual camaraderie among the diners at Genittis. It's not odd to call over to the person at the next table, who may have been a complete stranger before. Everyone, even the staff, seems to be having the time of their lives.

If this dinner-and-theater venture is a success, Toni Genitti said, there will be more in the future.

Tickets for the dinner theater are available at Genitti's or the Marquis Theatre, both located on Main Street in Northville. The cost is $25, and includes the seven-course meal and the play. The schedule is: Friday, Oct. 13, 6 p.m. (dinner first); Sunday, Oct. 15, 6 p.m. (show first); Friday, Oct. 27, 6 p.m. (dinner first); Sunday, Oct. 29. noon (dinner first)

Canton spoils Homecoming with 33-6 win

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

'A rash of second-half blunders combined with some questionable officiating and just plain bad luck turned a close defensive struggle into a 33-6 wipeout last Friday (Oct. 6) in Northville's 1989 Homecoming clash with Plymouth Canton.

Are the Chiefs — now 6-0 for the season — really 27 points better than the Mustangs (2-4 overall), 2-3 in the WLAA)? Probably not, but it was the kind of game that snowballed into a laugher in the second half when Northville made a bevy of crucial mistakes and Canton was more than happy to turn them into quick points — 21 in the third quarter alone.

The star of the game was quarter-back Karl Wukie, who was on the passing end of all five Canton touchdowns — including a fleaflicker late in the game that seemed to add insult to injury to the home team.

"It was just one of those games," Mustang Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "Disappointing is the best term to use because we know we're a better team than that. It's really hard to put a finger on what happened in the second half.

Northville moved the ball inside the Canton 40 on three separate occasions in the first half, but came away empty-handed each time. Those offensive failings may have been the big difference in the game.

"I felt that in the first half we were in the game and playing even with "(Canton)," Schumacher said. "It would have been a totally different game if we would have been able to score. We should have been ahead no less than 7-6, but the mental errors "hurt us.

As it turned out, the Chiefs took the learly lead and never looked back. On their first possession of the game, Canton drove 55 yards in seven plays and scored on a 24-yard pass from Wukie to Jason Eby. The extra-point attempt was wide to the left.

The Mustangs took the next two possessions and moved down the field both times. The first march covered nearly 50 yards, and the big play was a slant pass from Ryan Huzjak to Tim Kerns that gave Nor-thville a first down inside the 35. A big gain by runner Bill Kelley was then negated by a holding penalty, Kelley put the Mustangs in great position with an interception a few plays later, but again, a penalty put the skids on the drive. On a fourth and two at the 39, Huzjak was stopped short of the first-down mark and Northville was forced to turn the ball over on downs.

"The penalties can kill you," Schumacher said. "We had two big ones that really kept us from scoring in the first half.'

A great punt by Steve Bastian pinned Canton deep in the Chiefs' own end as time was running out in the first half. With 1:10 remaining, linebacker Garnet Potter recovered a fumble on the 26 after lineman Jeff Todd forced an errant pitch by Wukie. It was an ideal break, but the Mustang offense had more problems.

The first play, an end-around by Bastian, lost seven yards and eventually forced Northville to attempt a 41-vard field goal. Noel Korowin's kick was long enough but wide to the left. The half ended 6-0.

"We had a great chance and the offense moved backwards instead of forward," Schumacher said. "Noel is capable of hitting a field goal from that distance, but there was a crosswind and it caught the kick and push-ed it to the left."

A bad exchange in the backfield on the first play from scrimmage in the second half handed Canton the ball at the Northville 28. Six plays later, Wukie found Jason Riggs in the flats on a fourth and goal from the four, and he took the ball into the end zone for a 13-0 lead.

Moments later, a screen pass from Huzjak to Bastian fell incomplete, but the officials ruled it was a lateral and the Chiefs took over on the 10. The Mustang defense held, but on a fourth and goal from the 12, Wukie hit Brian Riggs with a 12-yard T.D. pass off a fake field goal attempt. With only six minutes gone in the third quarter, the lead had ballooned to 20-

"On film, it clearly shows that Huzjak's pass was a forward pass and not a lateral," Schumacher complained. "And as far as the fake field goal, we told the kids to expect it but I guess somebody wasn't listening." On the very next possession, Canton took possession deep in Northville territory when a punt snap sailed over Bastian's head Wukie then Bill Kelley (41) looks on in disgust as Canton players celebrate a third-quarter touchdown last Friday end zone from 27 yards out, and the rout was on.

The only Mustang score came midway through the fourth quarter. Korowin picked off a Wukie pass and rambled 52 yards to the Canton 13. Three plays later, Kelley carried it in from 4 yards out for the score. The two-point conversion failed and it was 27-6.

The final score of the game happened with less than two minutes remaining, and it came on a double pass from Wukie to Hanna to Dave Makara that covered 29 yards

Schumacher wouldn't criticize the play, but was clearly unhappy that Canton Bob Khoenle chose to run up the score

"Let's just say it's not something I would do — I don't see the point in it," was all Schumacher would say. Kelley led the offense with just 35 yards in 10 carries. Huzjak had an off day, hitting just nine of 25 for 77 yards. Defensively, tackle Rob Spradlin had another outstanding game with six solo tackles and four assists. Jeff Todd added seven solos, including two sacks.

Northville will host Livonia Franklin (1-5 overall) tomorrow (Oct. 13) in the home finale of the '89 season.

"We're playing now to stay out of the bottom half of our division," Schumacher said. "For us to have a successful season, it's almost a mustwin game. Franklin is traditionally one of the stronger, physical teams we play and I'm sure they will give us a battle.

"I think our guys are tired of losing, so we hope to do something about

Tennis team grabs fourth division title

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Northville tennis dynasty continues

With an easy 7-0 win over Walled Lake Western on Oct. 2, the Mustang netters grabbed the program's fourth consecutive WLAA Western Conference championship.

Two days later, after a 6-1 triumph over Livonia Stevenson, Northville wrapped up a perfect 11-0 record against the rest of the WLAA and headed into the conference meet on Oct. 10 (after Record deadline) all alone in first place with a clear path to the team's third conference title in the last five years.

Even though the win over Western clinched the division title, the win over a much more formidable Stevenson squad was the big one, according to Mustang Coach Uta Filkin.

"Things looked very good after the first sets because we won all of them," she said. "But we were a little shaky in the second sets, so it was not as easy as the score indicates.

"Stevenson is traditionally very strong in doubles, and that's where I was concerned. But we won all three of them, and two were three-setters. We played very well." The No. 1 doubles team of Neysa

Colizzi and Kavitha Sriraman played what Filkin called "their best match of the year" en route to a 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 victory over Amy Snow and Courtney

Riena. They are 12-1 for the year. "Those two played very well," Filkin said. "Snow is probably the best doubles player I've seen this year, but we controlled her fairly well. They played smart and mixed it up.'

Tricia Tumminia and Rebecca Bellamy were down in the third set in the No. 2 match but came back to win it (6-2, 4-6, 7-5), and the third team of Julie Howard and Lori Bailey turned back Kelli Miller and Karen Bailey, 6-3, 6-1.

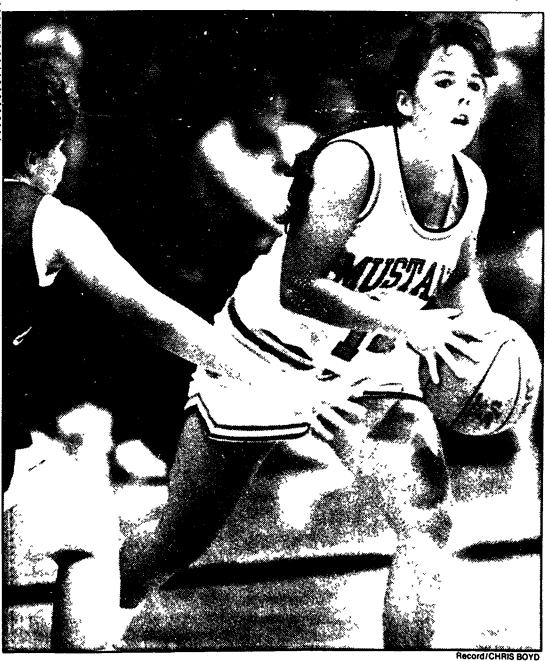

The singles winners included Karen Vogt, Diane Vogt and Shannon Price. Karen dumped Holly Findling at No. 1 (6-2, 6-4); Diane dropped nine of the first 10 points to Renea Bonser, but rebounded to win 6-4, 6-2; and Price had little trouble with Laura Perry (6-3, 6-3).

NORTHVILLE 7, WALLED LAKE ESTERN 0: Filkin was so confident her team would win the match, she brought in two completely new doubles teams and the squad still cruised to a shutout.

"We did great — as predicted," she said. "(Western) was rather weak."

Holstein leads Mustangs past Glenn, 53-50, in OT

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

With junior forward Kate Holstein dominating the boards and getting some much-needed scoring help from Maria MacInnis and Karen Pump, the Northville cagers pulled out an important 53-50 overtime victory against Westland John Glenn on Oct.

It was the Mustangs' first overtime experience of the year, and the squad responded by scoring the first six points of the extra period and then held on the rest of the way.

'It was a good win for us," Northville Coach Ed Kritch said. "We played very well. The thing that is so encouraging is that we are showing improvement offensively. Glenn is young and a lot like us, so it could have gone either way. We needed to play well to win the game - and we dıd.'

The Rockets took a 16-12 lead after one quarter, but it soon vanished and the Mustangs were ahead 25-24 at the intermission. Northville led much of the second half, trying to protect the lead, but Glenn hit a three-pointer to knot the score at 47-47 with 12 seconds left on the clock.

In the final seconds, Holstein, MacInnis and Pump all had opportunities to win the game, but all three shots were off the mark and it was on to the OT.

Undaunted by the misses, Holstein, MacInnis and Pump came back to score a trio of buckets to start the overtime, and a late three-pointer by the Rockets wasn't enough.

"Glenn hit five three-pointers, and that kept them in the game," Kritch said. "We didn't hit any.

"I was very happy with the way we

Holstein was the driving force in the victory as she poured in a game-high 19 points and added 17 rebounds, including seven offensive boards and

"Kate completely dominated the boards," Kritch said. "She is really coming on. It was her best game of the year, no question about it.

MacInnis added 12 points, Pump chipped in 11 and Karen Cavanaugh dished out seven assists.

LIVONIA FRANKLIN, 48, NOR-THVILLE 38: The powerful Patriots jumped all over the Mustangs in the first eight minutes of play on Oct. 5. Even though Northville outscored Franklin 32-31 the rest of the way, the deficit was too much to overcome.

The Mustangs opened the game with a box-and-one defense designed to slow down Franklin star Dawn Warner, but it backfired a bit as her teamate Julie Stesiak burned Northville for eight points in the first quarter alone. Pam Yezback led the Mustangs with three buckets, but the team trailed 17-6 heading into the second quarter.

"They really jumped on us," Kritch said. "We came out a little tentative, and it took us a quarter before we realized we could play with this team.'

Northville cut the lead to eight (26-18) with about two minutes remaining in the half, but the Pats scored the final six points, including a threepoint bomb by Patti Shea at the buzzer to take command, 32-18.

"That was a huge three-pointer," Kritch said. "It gave them some breathing room."

Led by guards Sue LaPrad and Cavanaugh, the Mustangs picked up the intensity in the second half and Holstein started to pick up the pace at the offensive end. With the inside bottled up, Holstein went to the outside and hit a trio of three-pointers en route to scoring 12 of the team's 20 points in the second half. Un-fortunately for Kritch, Northville never got the lead below 10.

"We never did make a run at them," he said. "But Cavanaugh and LaPrad really made a difference on defense, diving for loose ball, getting steals, tipping passes and getting the ball to Holstein."

Holstein was again the game's top scorer with 19, but the next highest Mustang scorer had just six. Warner and Stesiak paced the Patriots with 10 each.

Northville (6-4 overall, 3-2 in the WLAA) will host Farmington Har-rison tonight (Oct. 12).

Northville golfers edge overconfident Warrior squad

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Walled Lake Western golf team learned a valuable lesson on Oct 4. Don't take the Northville golfers lightly. Despite facing underdog status, Northville went out and nipped the Warriors 215-216.

Heading into the dual meet, the Warriors were undefeated and poised for a season-ending battle with Plymough Canton for the WLAA Western Division crown. The Mustangs, on the other hand, had already suffered several defeats and had to travel to Bay Pointe Country Club - Western's home course - for the match It didn't matter.

"I thought the Western coach was tooting his horn a little too much for my liking before we started play-ing," Northville Coach Don Morgan ing said "It's really not a smart thing to do, and we used it as a motivational tool

The Mustangs didn't play particulaly outstanding — just consistent enough to slip past the overconfident Warriors. Chris Sovieck paced Western with a 38, and grabbed medalist honors, but he didn't get

The rest of the Northville participants included Steve Porter (44), Kevin Krupansky (45) and John Schrieber (52). Schrieber settled down nicely after a nightmarish 10 on the first hole, but the damage was done.

"It was cold, and we faced the low sun and were looking right into it on three or four holes," Morgan said. "Maybe that had something to do with the relatively high scores.

The Mustangs (7-3 overall, 5-2 in the WLAA) will not win the Western Division title this year, but they still had a legitimate shot at defending their WLAA title at the conference meet on Oct. 11 (after Record deadline) at Huron Meadows. "We are still battling," Morgan said. "In think in an 18-hole tournament we can perform with anybody in the conference. People are making a mistake if they overlook us. We've ruined our chance to win the division again, but we can still win the conference by winning the WLAA Tour-

"We didn't play particulaly well, was second overall with a score of 40 through nine holes. He was followed but neither did they," Morgan said. Fox Hills golf complex offers 45 holes and two clubhouses

Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth is unique in several aspects.

First of all, its title is a misnomer as it is run as public links. Second, it is owned and operated by three women - two sisters and their mother. Third, with the addition of an outstanding new 18-hole course designed by Arthur Hills, it now has 45 holes and a magnificent practice area. And fourth, it has two clubhouses - one brand new.

The original property, a neglected, run-own country club, was purchased by Alexander Dul and his family in 1974. They renovated, remodeled and operated the 18 holes on a daily fee basis. It took time, patience and much effort for the undertaking to find its feet. Sandy Mily, the younger daughter and club general manager and business promoter from the outset, spent long hours seeking out golf leagues to boost weekly play. Fox Hills now has 30.

Estelle Dul, the wife and mother, day, keeping the books, banking and buying merchandise for the golf shop while her husband oversaw the maintanance of, an improvements to, the property. But it was Kathy Az-novorian, the older daughter, a CPA by profession, who felt that expansion was the answer to success. Nine more holes were added in 1984 as the population of the area increased. Then, when Alexander Dul died in 1986, she assumed the reins.

Eager to expand further as play escalated, Kathy and Sandy negotiated with three local famers for several parcels of adjacent land totaling 225 acres - enough to accommodate a first class course, clubhouse and practice area.

"Our choice for a top-flight course architect was Arthur Hills for his longstanding reputation," Aznovorian said.

Hills was delighted with the property. What he found was "gently rolling farmland, with mature wooded areas, a beautiful brook wanderwetland."

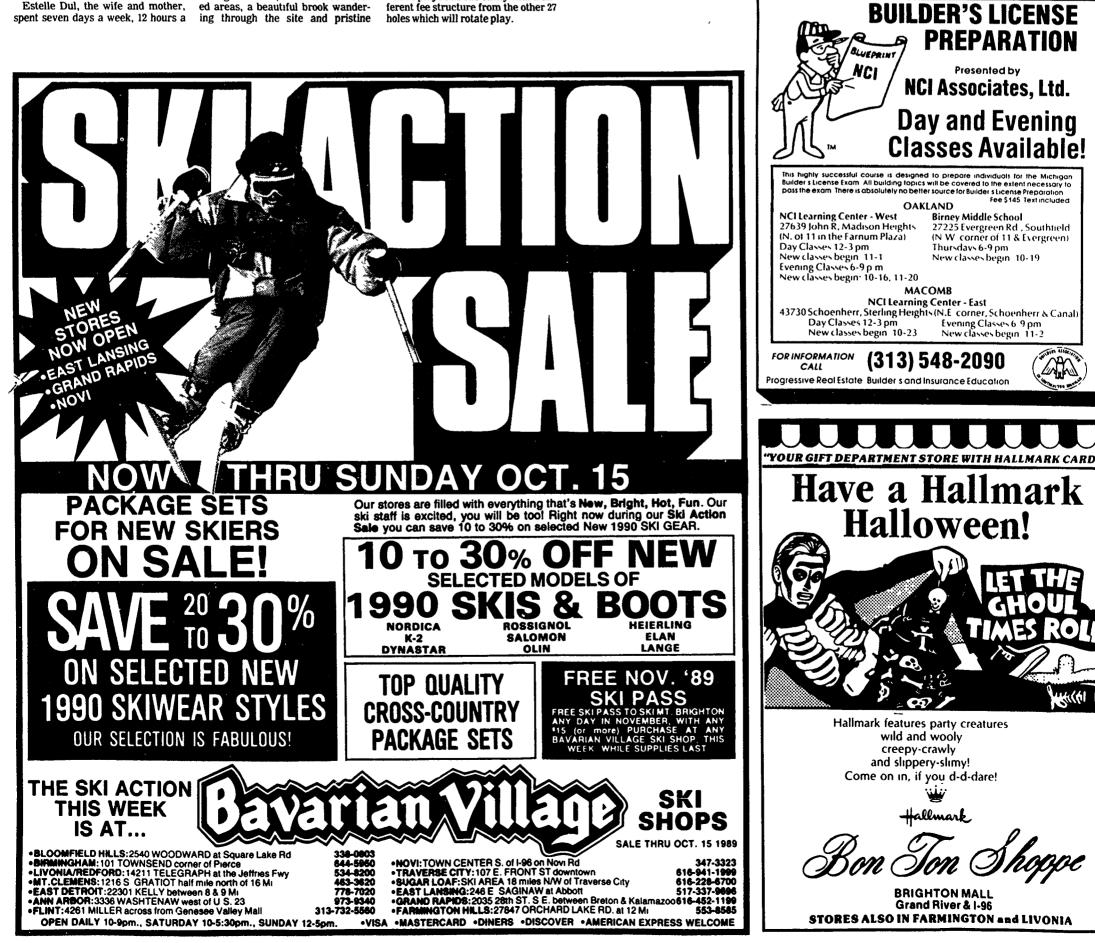

The course, now known as "The Golden Fox," can be stretched to 6,800 yards, and Hills assures all golfers that no hole even faintly resembles another.

"The course compares favorably with outstanding resort courses across the country," Hills said. "From its beautiful bentgrass multiple-tee complexes, through its groomed fairways to its crafted, subtle greens, The Golden Fox is a course to excite the knowledgeable golfer. He or she will want to return to play it again.

Hand in hand with the construction of the course has arisen a two-story, 32,000-square-foot clubhouse with banquet facilities ready to serve the community in various capacities year round.

The older clubhouse will continue to serve the other 27 holes from April through November. The Golden Fox will be played as one entity with a different fee structure from the other 27 holes which will rotate play.

Coach Ed Gabrys couldn't hide his disappointment as he talked about Northville's 26-30 dual-meet defeat to Livonia Churchill in WLAA boys cross-country action Oct. 5 at Cass Benton Park

"It was fairly close, but they were the better team (Thursday)," he said glumly. "I thought it was a tossup heading into the the meet. We closed the gap from the last time we faced them at the Schoolcraft Invite, but it just wasn't enough.

The loss dropped the Mustangs into a fourth-place tie in the six-team WLAA Western Division with a 1-2 mark. The team is 1-3 overall.

Northville standout Steve Coon stayed with the Chargers' top runner Scott Westover - for much of the race, but down the stretch, Westover widened the gap and won the race in a time of 17:23 Eleven seconds later,

Coon crossed the finish line in second place. The Mustangs ended up placing six in the top 10, but four of those came in the seventh through 10th spots The rest of the Northville finishers included Jon Meek in fourth place overall (18:27), Jason Hoose in seventh (19:02), Jamie Groves in eighth (19:17), Dave Borg in ninth (19:29) and Aaron Wiseley in 10th (personal best 19:33).

"For Hoose, his time was just a second off his personal best time ever at Cass Benton," Gabrys said. "I think that's a good sign he is getting back into it after a knee problem.

"We got six of the top 10 but we really needed to get three of the top five, but Churchill went 1-3-5-6. That killed us "

REDFORD UNION INVITE: The Mustangs placed 10th out of 14 teams at the Redford Union Invite on Oct 3 Cass Benton

"We had some good times, and I thought we did pretty well," Gabrys said

Coon set a new sophomore-class record (breaking his own mark set last week) with a 17:24 effort, which was good for 17th place overall. He was followed nearly a minute later by Meek, who was 45th in a time of 18:19

"Jon is another guy who is coming back from an injury," Gabrys said "In about another week, I'd say he'll be 100 percent He is behind because of the injury, but he's getting back into form

The rest of the Northville finishers

were Borg, who knocked 40 seconds off his previous best time and placed 63rd (18:52), Groves in 68th (personal best 19.05); Hoose in 69th (19.06); and Mike Connery in 84th (19 45) The pleasant surprise was the 19-37 clocked by sophomore Karl Goerky, who placed 17th in the J.V. race Goerky is a transfer from Dearborn High School who made his debut with the Mustangs that day.

Conference favorite Plymouth Canton is up next for Northville today (Oct 12) at Cass Benton. The Chiefs beat Walled Lake Western by 10 points earlier this season and the Warriors clobbered the Mustangs by 27 -- so the outlook isn't very good.

"We'll give Coon the green light, and it should be a good race for him," Gabrys said. "Right now, we're interested in improving our times."

Dart leads runners to perfect 3-0 mark

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Don't look now, but the Northville girls crosscountry squad is tied for first place in the WLAA Western Division with a 3-0 mark.

So what if two of the three victories came against teams (Walled Lake Western and Farmington Harrison) that failed to field a full team and suffered disqualifications. After all, being in first place is a situation the Mustangs haven't been in for many years.

A 21-35 triumph over Livonia Churchill on Oct. 5 was the team's latest, but after two automatic wins, it was the team's first real victory against a WLAA team.

"It went pretty good for us," Northville Coach Nick Dunwoodie said. "We took the top three finshes and our sixth runner beat their fifth, so that was encouraging

"I expected to win this one because we've seen (Churchill) at the Schoolcraft Invite and at Marshbank, and we beat them both times. Despite a hamstring injury that just won't go away, junior Marcie Dart paced the race and finished first in a time of 22:25 Lisa Brown was second (22:37) and Rozann Staknis (22:41) was third. The rest of the Mustang finishers included Rachel Davis in seventh place (23:32), Kamal Bagga in eighth (23:35), Angie Nelson in 10th (23:41) and Cheryl Mittman in 16th (25:06).

"I was hoping we'd run a little faster, but the injuries are something we are still struggling with," Dunwoodie said. "We have quite a few girls who are running hurt, so we did well considering that "

REDFORD UNION INVITE: As part of a strong, 15-team field on Oct 3 at Cass Benton Park, the Mustangs scored 296 points and finished in the bottom third of the standings.

"I can't complain, because the girls ran their best times so far this season," Dunwoodie said. Dart ended up leading Northville and placing 46th overall in a time of 22:20. It was her best time at Cass Benton this season. She was followed by Davis in 57th place (personal best 22:50), Brown in 58th (22:56), Staknis in 62nd (23:12), Nelson in 73rd (24:00), Bagga in 75th (24.06) and Mittman in 87th (24:43).

"Dart is still trying to overcome her injury, and she is showing a lot of guts," Dunwoodle said. Northville (3-1 overall) will host Plymouth Canton today (Oct 12) at Cass Benton.

NEYSA COLIZZI

KAVITHA SRIRAMAN

As Northville drives towards its third WLAA championship in the last five years, coach Uta Filkin has maintained all along that the backbone of her team is in doubles. The No. 1 doubles team of Neysa Colizzi and Kavitha Sriraman is 12-1 so far this season and has been a key contributor in the Mustangs' perfect 11-0 record against conference opponents during the regular season. The duo played what Filkin called "their best match of the year" en route to a 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 victory over Amy Snow and Courtney Riena from Livonia Stevenson in a clutch 6-1 dual-meet triumph over the Spartans on Oct 5. "Those two played very well," Filkin said. "Snow is probably the best doubles player I've seen this year, but we controlled her fairly well. They played smart and mixed it up." Colizzi and Sriraman also topped Ann Wentzel and Sara Jaffe (6-1, 6-1) of Walled Lake Western eariler in the week. For their efforts last week and all season, "Mustang of the Week" honors go out to both of them

Soccer squad's losing skid reaches four

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Northville kickers just may be the best 4-9 soccer team in the state. but that's hardly any consolation to Mustang Coach Dave Yezback. His squad has been competitive with many of the premier teams around, but the lack of an offensive attack has led to defeat after defeat.

On Oct. 6, Northville traveled to Redford to take on sixth-ranked Catholic Central and gave the Shamrocks all they could handle. But the resulting 2-0 loss was the team's fourth in a row. The young Mustangs now have just one victory to show for the last seven matches.

"Once again, our defense did a fine job, and (goaltender) Larry Osiecki was outstanding," Yezback said. "Unfortunately, our offense isn't generating much of anything."

The Northville offense - which has scored just one goal in the last four games - managed only four shots on goal against Catholic Central. In the meantime, Osiecki was faced with 19 Shamrock bullets, and he managed to turn away 17 of them.

"Our defensive play held (Catholic Central) in check a lot more than they expected," Yezback said. "To only give up two goals to one of the top teams in the state isn't bad at all. Compared to where we were at the start of the season, we've made great strides defensively - it's just too bad we haven't done the same on offense.'

The Shamrocks scored two quick goals in the first half, and that proved to be the margin of victory. The tallies came at the 39-minute mark and the 4-minute mark of the half. The Mustangs have now held their last eight opponents to two goals or less, but have just two wins to show for the effort.

"The team isn't devastated," Yez-back said. "They don't like to lose, but they are able to take pride in the fact that they can hold a team like Catholic Central down and be competitive against them. I thought they were one of the best teams we've seen this season. They are very, very strong.'

FARMINGTON 2, NORTHVILLE 1: Against a solid Falcon program Oct. 4, the Mustangs were very competitive, but didn't provide enough offensive production and dropped another close one.

"We are still lacking offensively, so we end up playing too much defense in our own end," Yezback said. "The game was a relatively even one."

Farmington held a narrow 5-4 shots on goal advantage in the first half the difference was two of the five shots found the back of the Mustang

"They dominated control of the ball in the first half," Yezback said. Northville took more control in the second, but it took 30 minutes of play before it resulted in a score. At the 10minute mark, Chris Hinz took a throw-in from Brad Maliszewski and scored a goal - the Mustangs' first in five previous halves.

Neither team scored the rest of the way, and the Falcons ended up with a 12-8 advantage in the shots department.

"We played a lot better in the se-cond half," Yezback said. "We had good control of the ball at midfield. but we have trouble moving it up into the scoring areas and developing good scoring opportunities. If we do get a shot off, it usually doesn't have a very good chance of going into the net.'

The schedule doesn't get any easier for Northville (3-5 in the WLAA). After a date with number-one-ranked Livonia Churchill on Monday (after Record deadline), the Mustangs end the regular season against up-andcoming programs like Walled Lake Western and Novi.

"This schedule gets maddeningsometimes," Yezback said.

Chargers drop harriers into 4th place

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Coach Ed Gabrys couldn't hide his disappointment as he talked about Northville's 26-30 dual-meet defeat to Livonia Churchill in WLAA boys cross-country action Oct. 5 at Cass Benton Park

"It was fairly close, but they were the better team (Thursday)," he said glumly. "I thought it was a tossup heading into the the meet. We closed the gap from the last time we faced them at the Schoolcraft Invite, but it just wasn't enough

The loss dropped the Mustangs into a fourth-place tie in the six-team WLAA Western Division with a 1-2 mark. The team is 1-3 overall

Northville standout Steve Coon stayed with the Chargers' top runner - Scott Westover - for much of the race, but down the stretch, Westover widened the gap and won the race in a time of 17:23 Eleven seconds later.

Coon crossed the finish line in second place The Mustangs ended up placing six in the top 10, but four of those came in the seventh through 10th spots The rest of the Northville finishers included Jon Meek in fourth place cverall (18:27), Jason Hoose in seventh (19:02), Jamie Groves in eighth (19.17), Dave Borg in ninth (19:29) and Aaron Wiseley in 10th (personal best 19:33).

"For Hoose, his time was just a second off his personal best time ever at Cass Benton," Gabrys said. "I think that's a good sign he is getting back into it after a knee problem.

"We got six of the top 10 but we really needed to get three of the top five, but Churchill went 1-3-5-6 That killed us "

REDFORD UNION INVITE: The Mustangs placed 10th out of 14 teams at the Redford Union Invite on Oct 3 at Cass Benton

"We had some good times, and I thought we did pretty well," Gabrys said

Coon set a new sophomore-class record (breaking his own mark set last week) with a 17:24 effort, which was good for 17th place overall. He was followed nearly a minute later by Meek, who was 45th in a time of 18:19

"Jon is another guy who is coming back from an injury," Gabrys said "In about another week, I'd say he'll be 100 percent. He is behind because of the injury, but he's getting back into form

The rest of the Northville finishers

were Borg, who knocked 40 seconds off his previous best time and placed 63rd (18 52), Groves in 68th (personal best 19.05), Hoose in 69th (19.06), and Mike Connery in 84th (19 45). The pleasant surprise was the 19-37 clocked by sophomore Karl Goerky, who placed 17th in the J.V. race. Goerky is a transfer from Dearborn High School who made his debut with the Mustangs that day.

Conference favorite Plymouth Canton is up next for Northville today (Oct 12) at Cass Benton. The Chiefs beat Walled Lake Western by 10 points earlier this season and the Warriors clobbered the Mustangs by 27 - so the outlook isn't very good.

"We'll give Coon the green light, and it should be a good race for him,' Gabrys said "Right now, we're interested in improving our times."

Dart leads runners to perfect 3-0 mark

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Don't look now, but the Northville girls crosscountry squad is tied for first place in the WLAA Western Division with a 3-0 mark.

So what if two of the three victories came against teams (Walled Lake Western and Farmington Harrison) that failed to field a full team and suffered disqualifications. After all, being in first place is a situation the Mustangs haven't been in for many years.

A 21-35 triumph over Livonia Churchill on Oct. 5 was the team's latest, but after two automatic wins, it was the team's first real victory against a WLAA team.

'It went pretty good for us," Northville Coach Nick Dunwoodie said. "We took the top three finshes and our sixth runner beat their fifth, so that was encouraging

'I expected to win this one because we've seen (Churchill) at the Schoolcraft Invite and at Marshbank, and we beat them both times." Despite a hamstring injury that just won't go away, junior Marcie Dart paced the race and finished first in a time of 22:25 Lisa Brown was second (22:37) and Rozann Staknis (22:41) was third. The rest of the Mustang finishers included Rachel Davis in seventh place (23:32), Kamal Bagga in eighth (23:35), Angle Nelson in 10th (23:41) and Cheryl Mittman in 16th (25.06).

"I was hoping we'd run a little faster, but the injuries are something we are still struggling with," Dunwoodie said. "We have quite a few girls who are running hurt, so we did well considering that '

REDFORD UNION INVITE: As part of a strong, 15-team field on Oct. 3 at Cass Benton Park, the Mustangs scored 296 points and finished in the bottom third of the standings.

"I can't complain, because the girls ran their best times so far this season," Dunwoodie said. Dart ended up leading Northville and placing 46th overall in a time of 22:20. It was her best time at Cass Benton this season. She was followed by Davis in 57th place (personal best 22:50), Brown in 58th (22:56), Staknis in 62nd (23:12), Nelson in 73rd (24:00), Bagga in 75th (24:06) and Mittman in 87th (24:43).

"Dart is still trying to overcome her injury, and she is showing a lot of guts," Dunwoodie said Northville (3-1 overall) will host Plymouth Canton today (Oct 12) at Cass Benton.

NEYSA COLIZZI

KAVITHA SRIRAMAN

As Northville drives towards its third WLAA championship in the last five years, coach Uta Filkin has maintained all along that the backbone of her team is in doubles. The No. 1 doubles team of Neysa Colizzi and Kavitha Sriraman is 12-1 so far this season and has been a key contributor in the Mustangs' perfect 11-0 record against conference opponents during the regular season. The duo played what Filkin called "their best match of the year" en route to a 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 victory over Amy Snow and Courtney Riena from Livonia Stevenson in a clutch 6-1 dual-meet triumph over the Spartans on Oct. 5. "Those two played very well," Filkin said. "Snow is probably the best doubles player I've seen this year, but we controlled her fairly well. They played smart and mixed it up." Colizzi and Sriraman also topped Ann Wentzel and Sara Jaffe (6-1, 6-1) of Walled Lake Western eariler in the week. For their efforts last week and all season, "Mustang of the Week" honors go out to both of them.

In doubles, the Colizzi / Srıraman duo topped Ann Wentzel and Sara Jaffe 6-1, 6-1; Vicki Eppers and Melanie Apligian downed Tiffany Wackerle and Tina Gardner 6-4, 6-1 at No. 2; and the third team of Peggy Apostolos and Kelly Woodsum slipped past Christine Williams and Shannon Addy 6-0, 6-3. The second and third teams were playing in their first varsity matches ever.

"I thought the necomers did well," Filkin said "Vicki and Melanie had a rough start, but they were nervous and they settled down and pulled out

Cholesterol research questioned

By BOB NEEDHAM

Everybody says that high blood-cholesterol levels are a risk factor in heart disease - and should be treated with diet, exercise and sometimes even drugs. Right?

Well, not everybody. Researcher Thomas J. Moore is making waves in the medical community with a startling new thesis: that much of the attention given to cholesterol is misdirected, that many accepted treatments do not work, and that elevated LDL levels may not pose much risk.

Local health professionals are looking at Moore's work with a skeptical eve.

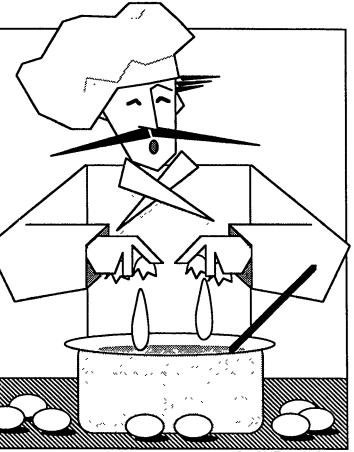

In a new book, "Heart Failure," Moore criticizes many aspects of conventional programs for the prevention and treatment of heart disease. But it is his theories on cholesterol – excerpted in a recent cover story in "The Atlantic" magazine – which are getting the most attention.

Moore has harsh words for the National Cholesterol Education Program, launched in 1987 by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, a unit of the National Institutes of Health. He argues that the program, which encouraged a massive amount of cholesterol screening and modifications in diet. was undertaken without proper research and for no good reason.

In fact, he charges, it recommended widespread testing at a time when blood-cholesterol levels could not be tested accurately enough to truly identify people with dangerously high levels. And anyway, he writes, there was "no such evidence" suggesting that lowering cholesterol levels would save lives.

Health professionals in the area disagree, saying that reducing cholesterol is one important element in coronary health.

'I think this guy is a sensationalist for writing something like this. It's been shown scientifically that there is a link between cholesterol and heart disease," said Dr. Robert Brateman, a family physician in private practice in Novi

Graphic/Tammie Graves

"There is a proven link (between) cholesterol and heart disease," he continued. "It is common knowledge that cholesterol is a risk factor in heart disease."

There are some disagreements about cholesterol within the medical community, he added, over things like what level is too high and up to what age should high cholesterol be aggressively treated. But on the whole, people would do well to follow the advice of their doctors.

"I think intelligent people should go to people they respect for their medical care," Brateman said. "The bottom line here is what is practical for you ... That's something you have to work out with your own personal physician."

Individual doctors can break down a person's statistical risk for developing heart disease and then act accordingly, he said. Diet and exercise usually come first, sometimes followed by medication. "Medical care has to be individualized to the patient," he said.

Thursday, October 12, 1989

12-D

Dr. Shafquat Ali of the Medical Center of Northville said that although cholesterol may get more attention than it deserves, it is important

"The media unfortunately has emphasized cholesterol as the only risk factor (for heart disease). There are so many others which should be brought to the attention of the public," he said. These include high blood pressure, smoking, diabetes, being overweight and genetics. Modifying diet to reduce cholesterol intake can help, but diet should also be changed to reduce a person's intake of fat and sodium, he said. Diet as a whole is "something you can do something about" to cut the risk of heart disease, unlike some factors such as family history, he added.

Marianne Simancek, wellness coordinator at St. Mary Hospital, said her hospital follows the recommendations of the National Institutes of Health.

"They have found several risk fac-tors . . . for a potential heart attack, cholesterol being one of the risk factors," she said. It is "really kind of difficult" to reject the conclusions drawn from the accumulated body of cholesterol research, she added.

Dietary changes can reduce cholesterol levels in some people, although not in everyone, Simancek said.

"The most important thing people need to do ... is (remember) that everyone is an individual," she said. 'I'm a firm believer in dietary changes first, with the advice of a physician.

"If you read something . . . that's going to give one type of opinion, then please be interested to see what the opposite opinion would be like. It's all part of being an educated consumer," she advised

Simple measures can prevent gum disease

By DAN PEPER and SYLVA DVORAK, M.S.

Have you ever wondered why so many people have false teeth? Well, if you know that approximately nine out of 10 adults have gum disease (periodontal disease) in some form, this would not surprise you. However, you may be spared what you thought was inevitable by learning the warning signs that identify gum disease and practicing simple, preventive measures.

THE WARNING SIGNS OF GUM DISEASE

• Bleeding gums, especially after brushing or flossing

- Chronic bad breath
- Tender, soft and swollen gums Pus along gum lines when press-
- ed
- Loose teeth

• Gums retracting from teeth (teeth appear longer)

Change in position of teeth

 Change in fit of partial dentures If you have experienced any of the problems listed above, see your dentist

CAUSES OF GUM DISEASE

Most gum disease is caused by a thin film of bacteria, called plaque, which coats your teeth. Plaque continually forms in your mouth even after you have cleaned your teeth and have not eaten. Further, when food containing sugar enters your mouth, the bacteria in the plaque can produce acid. This acid can lead to cavities and even tooth decay.

Plaque that is not removed hardens into tartar, or calculus. Tartar buildup irritates the gums, which then become inflamed and can start bleeding. Tartar cannot be removed by brushing your teeth. Only your dentist or dental hygienist can scrape it off.

PREVENTION

If you follow some simple preventive steps and form important daily habits, you can prevent gum disease and dental surgery, which can be verv expensive.

Brush teeth thoroughly and carefully with a soft-bristled tooth brush. Replace tooth brush every two months. Ask your dentist to show you specifically how you should brush.

· Brush at least twice a day, if possible after every meal.

• Carry a toothbrush with you to work; compact toothbrushes are available.

 Use toothpaste that contains fluoride. This strengthens tooth enamel and prevents cavities.

 Floss teeth thoroughly. Scrape the sides of each tooth six times. Gently floss between and beneath the edge of the gum. Flossing not only scrapes off plaque, it also massages the gums.

Scrape your tongue. Gently brush from back to front several times, rinsing after each time.

• Stimulate gums by using your finger or toothbrush to gently massage gums.

Visit your dentist at least every six months. It is impossible to keep your teeth 100 percent free of plaque, so a regular checkup and cleaning are very important.

Mouthwash and WaterPik may also be used. They certainly won't hurt, and any little help to good dental hygiene is a plus.

Remember: A tooth that's forgotten is a tooth that'll be rotten.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.

New European truck with American power

Among automakers, one of the hottest areas of competition is upscale automobiles. With profit margins shrinking on low-to mid-price cars, and a widening gap between the affluent and the average workday population, it's no wonder that manufacturers are scrambling for a piece of the upmarket pie.

And whether it's sports cars, touring sedans, limos, or even trucks, there's an automaker out there trying to fill a tiny niche in a small, but highly profitable market. And it's not just the big companies like Nissan and Toyota (Infiniti and Lemus) who are trying to carve out their place in the status market. Plenty of small manufacturers are building limited production luxury machines.

One such manufacturer/importer builds one of the world's most expensive trucks and markets it to select buyers.

The concept behind the vehicle is simple: build the most rugged utility vehicle possible, give it sleek Italian styling, power it with American drive train, and load the inside with leather, walnut, carpet and lots of big-buck features. Then, gather a select group of dealers and sell the vehicle to people seeking a status vehicle that will out-snob their rich neighbors.

The result is the Laforza A&A utility vehicle, an expensive, high status vehicle for the person who already has just about everything.

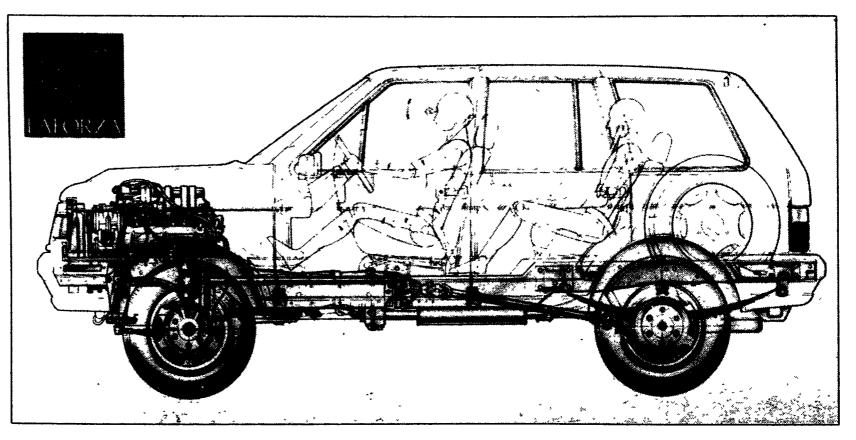

Before we get ahead of ourselves, let's look at the beginnings of the company and its product.

In Italian, Laforza means "the strength." Not a bad name for a heavyduty utility truck that weighs 5,250 pounds, is powered by a 5.0-liter Ford V8, and has a suspension based on that of an Italian troop carrier.

Laforza Automobiles Inc. got its start in late 1984 when two free-wheeling entrepreneurs, Joe Monterossa (president) and Robert P. Oliver (CEO), got together after Monterossa paid a visit to the Geneva Auto Show in 1984 and saw the vehicle that has since become the Laforza.

Back in 1984, the truck was called the Rayton Fissore Magnum and it was powered by a 6-cylinder Alfa Romeo engine, not the V8 that is in today's truck.

Although the original vehicle was a bit crude, Monterossa liked what he saw and began negotiations to become the vehicle's U.S. distributor. However, as negotiations went on, Monterossa and Oliver realized the truck really needed a lot of work to be viable in the United States, so they bought the tooling, materials and design rights and became manufacturers.

They then contacted the vehicle's original designer, Tom Tjaarda (who designed the deTamosa Pantera) and had him make a number of styling and engineering changes—including the redesign of the undercarriage to accommodate an American drive train.

Once that was accomplished they arranged for manufacturing facilities in Italy and the United States—just as Cadillac did for the Allante and Chrysler for the Maserati TC.

The result is a brawny, modern utility vehicle that offers the best in European styling and American reliability.

Laforza is assembled in Italy by Golden Car (they build the bodies for the Maserati Bi-Turbo) and Pinninfarina (Ferraris and the Çadillac Allante are finished here).

Then it is shipped to C&C Inc. in Brighton, Mich., where a Ford V8 engine, automatic transmission, New Process 229 transfer case and American-built drive train are installed.

Once finished, the vehicle is shipped to dealerships in the Northeast, South, Midwest and West.

With a list price of $43,850, the Laforza sells for more than the Jeep Cherokee Limited, Jeep Grand Wagoneer and Range Rover. It's designed to appeal to customers with a median household income of over $150,000. Buyers in this salary bracket can pretty much afford to buy anything they want.

These customers tend to purchase vehicles like the Laforza as much to make a statement as they do for practical reasons. Even so, these folks expect a lot of truck for their buck, and Laforza delivers.

Apart from sleek Italian styling and a beefy American drive train, the vehicles have just about all the amenities one expects for $40 grand plus.

The spacious interior seats five tall adults comfortably and surrounds them in leather-wrapped, walnut-accented, comfort. The six-way electric seats are leather covered, as are the dash, center console and door panels.

In addition, there's full instrumentation, cruise control, electric sunroof, deep-pile carpeting, keyless remote entry/alarm, electric mirrors/windows/locks, rear defogger, rear wiper, tilt leather-wrapped steering wheel, clock, shocks are gas pressure, and there five separate cooling systems—one each for the radiator, engine oil, transmission fluid, power steering and air conditioning.

There's no doubt that the Laforza delivers ruggedness, utility, luxury and status. But is it worth the price? After all, a Range Rover has loads of status and sells for thousands less.

Well, the answer seems to be yes, with qualifications. From the standpoint of luxury, and status, Laforza is sleek, fit and finish are superb, and the luxury is paramount. On the highway the vehicle is smooth, quiet and comfortable with a firm, but refined ride.

As far as the practical side of things go, the truck also gets high marks. Off-road the four-wheel-drive gives the vehicle a surefootedness that is assuring and there's plenty of torque to drive you through the worst Mother Nature can offer.

Yes, it's ruggedly built, good looking and comfortable. But it's not perfect. For one thing, it could use a few more horsepower than the 185 supplied by the Ford V8. The power, while adequate for off-road and around town, is just not there on the hills. And with a loaded trailer, it could be slow going, indeed.

Then there are those little things. You know, those little things that one expects to be perfect on a truck that costs what climate control and quality AM/FM stereo cassette sound system.

Then there are those extra touches such as the gently sculpted, form-fitting seat bottoms, headrests for all five passengers, a rear seat that pops out for increased cargo space in under 30 seconds, and a full-size spare.

But it's not just the luxury touches that make this vehicle worth the asking price. The mechanics and construction of the truck also are top—flight. The frame is a hefty box construction, body metal is 18gauge steel, the heavy-duty suspension is independent on the front and full floating on the rear.

Four-wheel-drive is shift-on-the-fly,

this one costs.

For instance, some of the gauges had non-glare glass and some did not. The interior door handles are hard to reach, the center console difficult to close, and the lack of a CD player in a vehicle of this caliber is unconscionable.

In addition, the vehicle needs adjustable lumbar support, a locking gas cap and a remote release for the rear hatch.

Finally, I suggest that the manufacturer raise the price to an even $45,000 and include a cellular phone as standard equipment. The targeted high-buck buyers of this vehicle would probably appreciate it.

Seasonal Car Care

Of the usual chores we perform at the beginning of each season, car maintenance is easily the most important because most of us depend upon our cars for primary transportation. And a car that isn't prepped for winter or summer weather will fail to start or leave you stranded. Here are lists of important seasonal servicing items.

COLD WEATHER

•Cooling system: Check to make sure the system is in proper working order. Have the radiator pressure checked and make sure the belts and hoses are in good condition and can withstand the lowest likely temperature in your area.

•Engine oil: Change to an oil that is suitable for cold weather conditions. Oil is thick when it's cold, making it difficult to turn the engine fast enough to start up. Use an SAE (Society of Automotive Engineers) rate 10W-30 or even one of the 5W grades, such as 5W-30 or 5W-40, should be used. Don't use oil treatments during the winter. Many of these are really oil thickeners-not what you want during cold weather.

•Battery: Clean the terminals and tighten the cable end. Also, have a mechanic check the specific gravity of the battery fluid. This will give you a good idea of the overall condition of the battery.

Batteries have to work harder in cold climates, so if the readings indicate a weak cell, have the battery replaced. In the Snow Belt, replace any battery more than three years old.

•Heater: Make sure the control levers and fan work properly. There should be no ing and the transmission in park turn the heater on full blast.

Even if the engine is cold, you should have adequate heat in two to three minutes. Car heaters are small radiators that draw heat from the cooling system.

As the car warms up, look for signs of leaking under the heater. If you see any leaks, have the heater repaired.

•Defroster: Part of the heating system, the defroster is the duct work and fan that blows hot air across the windsheild to keep it fog-free.

Turn on the defroster and place your hand over the vents. You should feel air blowing across the back of the windshield. If you don't, odds are that one of the defroster hoses under the dash has become disconnected.

•Door locks: Moisture in the locks can freeze during cold weather. Spray the locks with aerosol lock lube to keep them operating smoothly.

•Tires: If you don't already run them, consider changing to an all weather tread pattern. Tires with an all-weather pattern generally are good for use in snow up to three inches deep.

In areas of deep snow, you should consider the possibility of installing snow tires. However, be warned that heavy tread snow tires don't always fit frontwheel-drive cars. Check the owner's manual or with your dealer for correct snow-tire recommendations.

•Wiper blades: It's a good idea to replace the blades every fall so you can be sure of having blades that will wipe snow and slush off the windsheild without streaking. Blades in good condition have no nicks and are flexible and pliant.

WARM WEATHER

Winter driving can be hard on your car. Salt, grime, grit and mud can build up on and under your car, dulling the finish and causing rust and rot to meta, surfaces. Inside the car, moisture, salt and mud tracked in by shoes can rot carpeting and can cause the floor pan to rust through.

Routine springtime maintenance is important to reduce wear and tear and prolong the life of your car. The following maintenance tips will help you get your car in top driving condition:

•Oil and filter: Regularly scheduled oil and filter changes are probably the most important maintenance service you can give your car, and the first oil change of the spring is especially important. Use a quality multigrade oil and have a new filter installed.

•Air and fuel filters: Restricted air and fuel filters can hurt mileage and performance, as well as contribute to premature wear and tear. During the winter months, grime, grit and salt can build up in the air filter, and fuel filters can become clogged with gum and filled with water. Have these changed when you change the engine oil and filter.

•Automatic transmissions: The impurities that affect engine oil also affect transmission fluid. This can result in a clogged filter screen which, in turn, can lead to poor shifting. Have the fluid changed and the screen cleaned by a qualified service center.

•Front-end lube: Your mechanic can lube the fittings on the steering linkage and ball joints in about five minutes when he changes the oil and filter. But before you take you car in for this job, be sure to get the undercarriage pressure-washed so that the grease nipples are free from grit before they are pumped full of grease.

I•The undercarriage: Because salt and road grit will have collected in all the nooks and crannies, it is important to clean the wheel wells, around the transmission and drive train, the front suspension, under the trunk and behind the grille.

•The exterior: Even if you normally have your car washed at an automatic car wash, it's a good idea to pressure wash the heavy grit and grime beforehand. This will ensure that the automated equipment doesn't rub the road grit into your paint.

•The interior: Give the carpet a good brushing and vacuuming to pick up the pile-destroying dirt. Then get rid of the residual salt and moisture by having the carpet shampooed. It's also a good idea to clean the windows with a glass cleaner to get rid of the film that has built up on the outside and inside of the windows. •Cooling system: Warm-weather driving places different strains on the cooling system than during the winter months. To avoid overheating problems, take the car to a professional who will check the condition of the coolant, hoses, belts, clamps and radiator. If you do the job yourself, check the hoses and belts first. Look for cracks, bulges, splits and hardness or sponginess in the hoses.

A good method is to squeeze them with your thumb and forefinger. The hose should feel pliant and firm. If it feels mushy, hard, brittle or overly soft. replace it. Check the clamps, also. They should be tight without cutting into the hose, and any that are rusty or distorted should be replaced. Check the belts to be suve they are not loose or too tight.

•Locks and hinges: These are often neglected during the course of the year. Moisture, salt and grit can freeze up locks and make hinges stiff. A graphite-based lubricant is best for locks. Simply squeeze it into the keyhole. As for door, hood and trunk hinges, use a heavier lubricant, such as bearing grease.

Books, video, tapés on car care

One thing is certain in the world of the written word—there is no lack of information when it comes to cars.

Shelves in bookstores are crammed with every conceivable how-to, publications are all over the newsstands and even video distributors are gaining more and more titles.

Have a hankering to get your hands on a Lamborghini? Want to turn your VW bug into a hot rod? Maybe you just want to learn the basics, such as changing the oil or fixing a flat.

Opportunities for learning are as close as the neighborhood bookstore and newsstand, although some specific works may have to be special-ordered. The information is basically in two different categories—how to fix a car and how to buy and enjoy a car.

Books and magazines are often extremely specific as to the make, model and even year of a car, so—before embarking on a trip to a library or calling a video company—it's best to have some idea what it is you're looking for.

BUYING BY THE BOOK

The first step, say experts in the field, is whittling down choices. That's no easy task, considering the huge number of new cars, trucks, motorcycles and Jeeps—not to mention the sheer numbers of used cars available, too.

One of the best ways to narrow your choices is to purchase one of the large, general automobile listing books and read about the features of various autos.

There are numerous easy-to-read consumer-oriented guides with a variety of references that can steer a novice car buyer in the right direction. Some available at bookstores and libraries include:

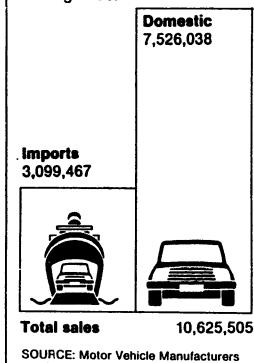

•"The Consumer Guide Automobile Book" (Consumer Reports). This is a great book for the overall view of what's available for car buyers.

•"Edmunds Car Prices" (St. Martin's Press). This is a listing of car prices. Each book is organized for specific brands and years of cars. This is an extremely helpful guide to determining a fair cost for a car you want to buy or plan to sell.

•"The Illustrated Jeep Buyers Guide" by Peter C. Sessler (Motorbooks International). If you want to take the rugged road—or even the smooth ones—in a Jeep, this is a handy book to read first.

CARFACTS

• Over 10.6 million retail passenger car sales were made in the United States during 1988.

such as Motorcycle and Cycle.

Association

But for the Ferrari owner who has eyes only for her own machine or the Chrysler enthusiast, try magazines with editorial content dealing specifically with that type of car. There's MoPerformance for Chrysler owners, 'VW Trends—the list could go on for pages.

One of the best resources in a search for a car or car parts, as well as to find automobile literature, is Hemmings Motor News (Watering Inc.). This mustsee publication has lists of cars and parts as well as lists of newsletters, shop manuals and other literature on specific makes and models.

Dragich Discount Auto Literature is another source for information, from owners' manuals to parts catalogs. Write Dragich at 1660 H 93rd Lane N.E., Minneapolis, MN 55434.

REPAIRS BY THE BOOK, VIDEO

People who fix cars fall into two distinct categories—those who know what they're doing and those who don't. Luckily, reference materials are readily available for both.

Hundreds of books have been written on the topic, but if popping a video into the deck is a preferred manner of study, you're in luck there as well. How-to's can be either make- and model-specific or generally informative. Some best bets include:

•"Motor Auto Repair 1989" (Motor Inc.).

•"Chilton's Truck and Car Repair" (Chilton Publishing).

•"Do-It-Youself Guide to Custom Painting" by Bruce Caldwell (S-A Design Books).

•"Off Roaders Handbook" by James Crow and Spencer Murray (Price Stern Sloan books).

•"How to Build Real Hot Rods" by LeRoi Tex Smith (Motorbooks International). Then there are hundreds tailormade for the kind of car owned. As examples: Chilton's Firebird, Toyota Camry or Ford Mustang or the "Honda Accord Owners Workshop."

Many of the how-to videos are for novices. A sampling follows:

•"Auto Dimensions." Special effects show the car owner exactly how to handle a variety of repairs; 45 minutes.

•"Automotive Tune-up Guide." Certified mechanic Jay Geraghty guides you through parts and procedures in this hourlong tape.

•"Auto Repair for Dummies." Hosted by Deanna Sclar, who writes a car-care column for 'Family Circle magazine.

•"Tune-up America." A series of tapes—one, for example, is on detailing, another on oil change and lube jobs. They each run 22 minutes to one hour.

•"The Woman's Guide to Auto Maintenance." By Janet Guthrie, the Indianapolis 500 racer, this tape runs about 65 minutes.

COFFEE-TABLE BOOKS

For some of us, a book about the history of cars sits in our living room, proudly ensconced next to the candy bowl and other knick-knacks, is just right. These books make great gifts and can be found in bookstores and museum shops.

Here is a sampling:

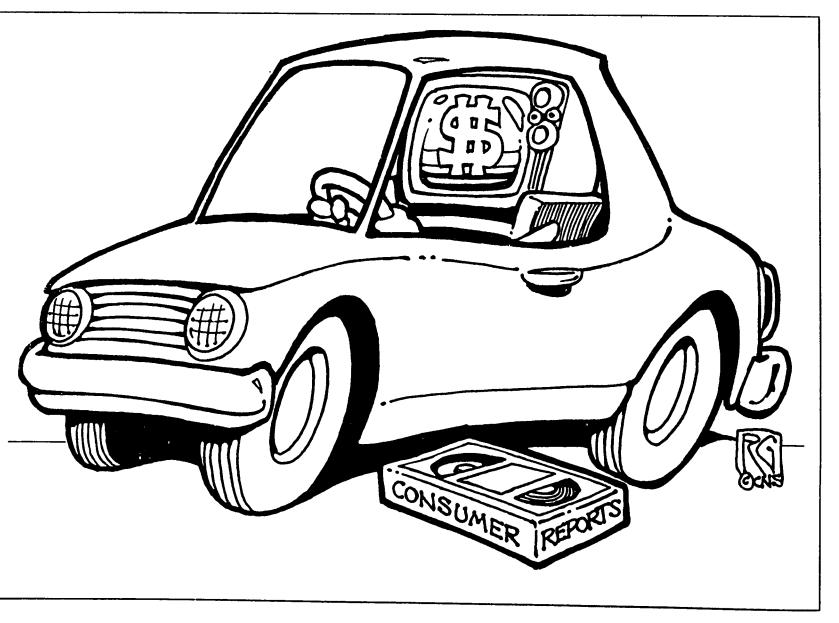

•"The Complete Ferrari" by Godfrey Eaton (Motorbooks International).

•"Ultimate Automobiles" by Alberto Matinez and Jose Rosinski (Motorbooks International).

•"Porsche" by Anders Clausager (St. Martin's Press).

•"The Standard Guide to Cars and Prices" (Krause Publications).

•"The Car Book" by Jack Gillis (Perennial Library).

MAGAZINES, NEWSLETTERS

Once you've made some choices, turn next to magazines. A wealth of information is available at newsstand prices of $1.50 to $5.95 for magazines featuring cars, bikes and trucks.

Most of these have editorial content geared to one type of car. For general car knowledge—for the car lover in you who wants to be up on the latest trends or find the hot spots for driving—try some of the following magazines: Car and Driver, Car, Road and Track, Motor Trend, Automobile or dClassic Car and Sports Car.

There also are many magazines on the market for the motorcycle aficionado, &/Care-East/Oct. 11, 1989

Security systems for autos

At a recent press conference, a high-end car company executive was extolling the virtues of a new warehouse that, according to the representative, always had "at least $36 million in parts on hand."

Offered one journalist from the audience, "and $30 million of that is radios, right?"

There was only a little laughter. Auto and accessory theft is a huge problem in this country. And not only high-end cars are in danger. Another often-stolen vehicle is a small pickup truck.

Some people, in trying to "keep up with the Joneses" make the mistake of purchasing stereos or car phones that don't work but look expensive. Mike Anson, former editor of Motor Trend magazine, says than when a thief finds such a counterfeit, "he'll break all your windows just because you got him mad."

So, what's a car owner to do? Drive a beat-up wreck with an AM radio and ripped ragtop convertible roof to make a thief's access even easier?

Absolutely not. For around $200 you can purchase an effective system to deter thieves.

That should be the price of a basic security system, according to expert Harry Bloem of B&M Electronics in Los Angeles.

Most alarms will flash your lights and

- Carlo

sound your horn or a separate siren is set off. Some systems may include a claxon for the inside of the car that is so loud that it causes physical pain to anyone in the car.

False alarms are a thing of the past with many systems. These annoying incidents are usually the result of a poorly set motion detection device going off, according to B&M's Bloem, "when the lock on your door is pushed out or a window is shattered."

Complete systems can cost several thousands of dollars and would include the remote "chirper" and impact protection, as well as the engine disabling device that prevents the car from being started and a system that automatically closes all the windows, locks the car's door's and even closes the sunroof automatically when the key is turned to lock the driver's door.

For a price, some systems will automatically lock and unlock all the vehicle doors when the key is turned on or off.

Most important when buying security protection for your vehicle, advises Bloem, is to "buy" only nationally adver-tised brands. They may cost a bit more, but they are backed up by ease of installation and you have a warranty good all over the nation." Some of the brands Bloem works with include industry giants Clifford, Vehicle Security Electronics, Codelarm, Alpine and Kenwood.

A new product for convertible and T-top cars is made in France and is called Flash Protection. Once a unit is installed in a car, it is set to read a certain "field," which if invaded by an object, sets off the system. This would allow a car to be left open with some degree of safety and confidence (but remember never to leave any valuables in your car, even in the trunk).

Auto radios are the most-stolen items from any vehicle. Some protection against such thefts are pull-out stereos that allow the owner to physically remove the radio and take it out of the car.

Newer generation radios (such as some offered on GM models by the Delco divisions) have the "brains" of the radio hidden in the framework of the car, and control surface on the dashboard is merely that, just the control area. Stealing that garners the thief little in the way of valuables.

Many cars now come with anti-theft coded radios. These radios cannot operate if the power to them is cut for any reason (including servicing-but technicians in factory dealerships know how to reset them for use when batteries are reconnected). Thieves are smart, too. Once word got out about these radios among them, thief-type burglaries in cars so equipped dropped.

A spokeswoman for Volkswagon of America on the West Coast says that after installing her 40-car press fleet with these radios, thefts, which were a common occurrence, dropped dramatically. A sticker on the car's windows lets the thief know which vehicles are equipped with these high-tech deterrents.

You don't have to go all-electronic and spend hundreds to gain some measure of protection. There are many mechanical locking items on the market that, though bulky and sort of a hassle, can make it impossible for a thief to work his or her way into your vehicle, turn the steering wheel and depress the foot controls.

Your best protection: common sense. Park in well-lighted areas, keep a wary eye out for potential problems (and problem people) and don't keep purses, wallets, etc., in plain view, even driving city streets, (theives will smash a window at a spotlight and take your belongings while you sit by and watch).

New options offered by dealers

The '80s saw some remarkable changes in how we dressed our cars—the "aero" look, the death of the carburetor, the return of the muscle-car. Plastic spoilers and skirts appeared everywhere, as well as digital dashboards that made the Starship Enterprise look dated. Electronics completed the job of making cars clean and economical. Better electronics began the job of making them fun again!

The '90s will see further changes in the way our iron horses do their job. Some of these will begin as options, and become standard equipment as the decade goes on. Most will be quiet and unobtrusive but will ultimately mean a lot more to you and your family than a new shade of paint or a different fiber in the floormats.

You've already seen what happened in the '80s. Sit back and have a look at a little of what the 1990s have in store for you.

STOP AND GO

Antilock braking systems (ABS) aren't really new. They've been available on a few automobiles, such as the Ford Thunderbird, Toyota Camry and Chevrolet Corvette since 1988. This year, you'll see a lot more upper-end cars with ABS. As the decade wears on, this system will trickle down to less expensive models and ultimately become law.

A logical extension of antilock brakes is automatic traction control (ATC). Just as ABS uses wheel-speed sensors that tell a computer when one wheel is slowing down too much, ATC tells the computer when one wheel is starting to spin. Then, when a wheel starts to break free of the pavement, the computer when one wheel is starting to spin. Then, when a wheel starts to break free of the pavement, the computer either closes the throttle, shuts off the fuel or detunes the engine to lower the torque until the wheel stops spinning. Then it allows things to go back to normal.

This isn't blue-sky engineering; a car with ABS already has most of the hardware it needs to make ATC work. It will be available on some models in 1990. The new Toyota Lexus will have it available and the Acura Legend might.

SAFETY FEATURES

Be prepared for air bags in your future. This controversial safety device has been in test labs since the '60s but it's finally becoming available as the government tightens regulations about passive restraints. Air bags are showing up as standard equipment on luxury cars and as options on less expensive models.

You'll see a lot more three-point seat belts in the rear seat of cars in this year, as well as a continuation of the trend toward passive harnesses in the front. Don't forget, though, that those automatic front harnesses alone won't keep you safe; you still have to manually fasten the seat belt.

Toyota has developed a computercontrolled system to anticipate the likelihood of roll-over. It uses a microprocessor to monitor the car's speed and steering angle and the degree to which the car is leaning while making a turn. It increases the pressure in the appropriate adjustable shock absorbers to raise the side that is falling and return the car to a level position.

A similar system debuted in the new Mercedes convertible. In this case a rollbar springs into action within milliseconds when the system senses a rollover.

SMART SUSPENSIONS

Another trend that will be prevalent in 1990 is manually or automatically adjustable suspension. This allows for a soft, bouncy ride at very low speeds, and gradually firmer control as speed increases. It lets the car smooth out very bumpy roads, while at the same time firming up the suspension to prevent frontend dip during very heavy braking.

Until recently, research into "smart" suspensions has been hampered by the lack of a dependable sensor system to inform the computer about road conditions. That may be changing.

Who sold more U.S.-made passenger vehicles during 1988?

<ul> <li>General Motors</li> <li>Ford</li> <li>Chrysler</li> <li>Honda</li> <li>Nissan</li> <li>Toyota</li> <li>Mazda</li> <li>Volkswagen</li> </ul>	3,641,542 2,205,336 1,062,782 375,625 112,125 72,354 31,331 24,943

Nissan has introduced a car in Japan called the Cefiro that uses a sonar device to read the road and accordingly adjust a suspension rebound. If that works out, it may spell the next revolution, not only in computer-controlled suspensions, but in short-range collision-avoidance systems as well.

The next generation of digital instrumentation is something called "heads-up" display (HUD)." Like ABS, HUD is nothing new; it's been used in combat aircraft for several years. This year, it will be an option on the Pontiac Turbo Grand Prix, Corvette ZR1, and possible in a high-ticket Oldsmobile.

A heads-up display takes the information from important instruments and projects it onto the windsheild so that you can see, for instance, what your road speed is without taking your eyes off the road. Sounds like magic, but it's actually so simple you wonder why they haven't been doing it all along.

An LED or liquid crystal display at the front of the dashboard projects a backward image up to a partially mirrored windshield, where it reflected to the driver. The mirror image is reversed, so the driver can read it normally. By properly engineering the mirror, the focal point can actually be set out toward the front of the car so the driver doesn't even have to refocus his eyes to read his instruments.

10/Car Care-East/Oct. 11, 1989

According to Pontiac, the instruments on the windsheild of the Turbo Grand Prix will be vehicle speed, turn signals, highbeam indicators, low-fuel warning and "check gauges" warning that monitors engine temperature and oil pressure.

These are only a few of the things coming our way, mostly by means of new inexpensive electronics. Some of them aren't quite as flashy as the superchargers, fuelinjected engines and convertibles of the last couple of years, but they'll affect the way we drive our cars and on the way our cars will treat us.
