Residents file lawsuit over Ward church

BY MIKE TYREE

A lawsuit has been filed in Wayne Circuit Court by Northville Township residents opposed to a variance granted Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church by the township zoning board of appeals (ZBA).

According to Sue Hillebrand, a vocal opponent of the church's plan to build a 107-foot sanctuary on its new Six Mile and Haggerty site, the suit was filed Oct. 6 by six homeowners residing near the area.

"We're filing an appeal against the decision," Hillebrand said Tuesday. "We're asking for the decision to be (overturned), and we think the ZBA abused some of their power."

Hillebrand said the suit represented the feelings of many who feel they would be impacted by the new church.

"Roughly 400 people have given money to support this appeal," she said. "We're really amazed, actually quite overwhelmed, by the response we've seen."

Hillebrand said her group felt the church failed to prove a hardship was evident when it asked the ZBA to approve a variance to the township's 48-foot height ordinance.

"We're not opposed to the church," she said. "If they want to adhere to our ordinances, fine. But we're afraid of the precedent (for similar structures) this sets."

"According to most of the attorneys we've talked with, this does set a precedent," she added.

ZBA member Thomas Cook voted for the variance. He disagrees with Hillebrand.

"No, the decision does not set a precedent," he said. "Each and every one (appeal) is judged solely on its own merits by listening to both sides, to the pros and cons."

Cook said he felt those filing suit were "perfectly within their right to do so," but he felt the ZBA's position was defensible.

"Each member of the board voted its conscience," he said, adding that he was undecided until the vote was taken.

"Roughly 400 people have given money to support this appeal ... We're really amazed, actually quite overwhelmed, by the response we've seen."

— Sue Hillebrand township resident

"I don't know why the others voted as they did," he said. "Up until I voted, I was a no-vote."

Cook said he sided with the majority because he felt the church "had the rules changed on them" after the township board adopted a height ordinance limiting buildings to 48 feet. The new ordinance was adopted after the township planning commission negotiated with Ward Church to downscale the sanctuary from 125 to 107 feet.

Hillebrand feels court action will support the opponents of the ZBA ruling.

"If a judge decides to hear the case, we want him to look at the minutes of all the meetings and look at our ordinance," she said. "We want the judge to decide if the township abused its power and to decide if the township granted a variance when none was necessary."

Richard Poehlman, representing Hillebrand and the other residents, called the matter "a simple appeal of a variance approved by the zoning board." He said it would probably be a month before the case is heard in circuit court.

Board hires Henningsen as manager

BY MIKE TYREE

Richard Henningsen is the new Northville Township manager.

The township board voted Oct. 12 to hire Henningsen for the vacant position.

Henningsen, who has been serving a dual role as interim business manager and township treasurer, beat out two unnamed finalists and was awarded a one-year contract and a $40,000 salary.

Dan Nelson, a member of a five-person manager selection committee, submitted Henningsen's name to the board during its regular meeting last Thursday evening. Nelson said the committee had gone through a long search process which began with 45 applicants for the position. After whittling the list to three through interviews, tough questioning, and what he termed "putting people on the spot," the committee arrived at its decision.

Other members of the selection committee were Georgina Goss, Richard Allen, Thomas Handyside, and Betty Lennox.

Nelson said the selection group was looking for a candidate with good people skills, management experience, decision-making abilities, and knowledge of computers. In addition, the committee said the new manager should be "strong but positive, flexible, an idea person, and not a yes person."

According to the selection committee, the choice was obvious.

"You go through that list and one candidate stands out," Nelson said. "That one is our treasurer, Dick Henningsen."

Handyside, who also serves on the board of trustees, said Henningsen's familiarity with the township played a role in the selection process.

"Part of the things we evaluated was ... his knowledge ... and bringing a new manager up to speed on community affairs," he said. "We couldn't have found (a better) choice."

Trustee James Nowka also gave Henningsen high marks.

"Very few people can handle that job more effectively," he said. "(Henningsen) will get a running start."

Henningsen was happy to accept the job offer.

"I'm thrilled to take that recommendation," he said. "I'm committed to spending a number of years in this community."

He said Frieda Haller's recent 71.83-acre gift to the township on Six Mile and Sheldon roads would demand much of his attention.

"The donation from Mrs. Haller is going to make this position a real challenge," he said.

Township Supervisor Goss said Henningsen was selected because of his experience and dedication to the township.

"He jumps in and gets the job done," she said.

Henningsen said he would resign his elected political position as treasurer to take the non-partisan manager's job. Township Clerk Thomas Cook said Henningsen's old position would need to be filled through an election or appointment, and he added that the township would ask for submission of candidates from the community at large.

Township accepts 71.8-acre donation

BY MIKE TYREE

The Northville Township Board of Trustees formally accepted a land donation during its Oct. 12 meeting and immediately set out to win support for a community library proposed for the site.

By unanimous vote, the board agreed to accept a gift of 71.83 acres on the northeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon Roads and to honor stipulations outlined in a letter of intent from the donor, former Northville resident Frieda Haller.

Conditions of the intent letter include the construction of a 44,800-square-foot public library, with a detailed funding plan to be implemented within a year of the gift announcement.

Construction of the library must begin by late September 1991, according to the letter. Failure to comply with Haller's provisions would void the township's claim to the property.

Township Supervisor Georgina Goss announced that a letter had been written to City of Northville Mayor Christopher Johnson, asking for the establishment of a joint township / city committee to "plan, develop, and build the library under the guidelines (set) by Mrs. Frieda Haller."

The township's letter asks for the support of the city council, and noted that growth and development in the city and township warranted the strengthening of services provided by both governments.

"We believe," the letter states, "that the Joint Services Agreement used by the city and the township for the past ten years has led to our strong recreation, library, senior citizen, and youth assistance programs for all our citizens ... With the development of this site, the vision for the future can be one of a more unified community effort in expanding services for the library, for aiding our increasing senior population, for assisting our youth, and for developing a stronger recreation program for all our citizens."

The joint committee proposed by the township would be formed by the township supervisor and the mayor, and would work under the auspices of the city and township managers, ac-

Group home now open on Lexington

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

With little fanfare, the Northville City group home for developmentally disabled adults first proposed in February was open for business at the end of September.

According to Joseph Schwinger, assistant division director of the adult foster care (AFC) program for the state Department of Social Services (DSS), the Lexington Boulevard home was granted a license to operate Sept. 21.

The temporary license is good for six months, after which the DSS will reinspect the home and, if satisfied with the safety conditions, grant the home a renewable two-year license.

The home is being supervised by Wayne Community Living Services of Northville Township, an agency serving more than 2,200 people throughout the county. As of Sept. 25, the home housed two clients, according to Wayne Community Public Affairs Director Denise Mogos. The house will eventually be home to four developmentally disabled adults

Election series highlights issues

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

With the addition of a last-minute entry, the Northville City Council race has become something more than a game of musical chairs.

The three-way race for two four-year council seats will be decided November 7. In the weeks before the election, the Northville Record will be running a series of questions answered by the four candidates, and in-depth interviews with the three candidates for city council. The series starts today on page 7-A.

Former council member G. Dewey Gardner is seeking the seat he lost in 1987, during an unsuccessful campaign for mayor against Christopher Johnson, while incumbent Jerome Mittman is seeking his first full term after being elected to a two-year term in 1987 to replace Gardner. Northville businessperson Kevin Hartshorne, the self-proclaimed dark horse in the race, is seeking a council seat for the second time; his first run was unsuccessful.

Johnson, an 11-year member of the school board, is running unopposed for the two-year term of mayor after winning it for the first time in 1987. Present City Council Member John Buckland is not seeking a second term.

Hartshorne, who ran for a council seat nearly a decade ago and lost, is now running behind a groundswell of local ire towards the city's sidewalk policy. He has also spoken out against the city's tax rate, especially in relation to that of the township, and called for the use of an assessor other than the county's when reassessing property.

Gardner, a city council member for 10 years, argues that taxes are essential to provide the services the city enjoys, and assures voters he will work to lower the millage as the tax base increases. He is in favor of more development, though only within the boundaries specified by the Downtown Development Authority.

Mittman, who has been involved in many of the city's boards and commissions, urges continued efforts to attract quality residential and commercial development to the city. At the same time, he recommends maintaining the city's small-town charm through resident input in the master plan, and a closer relationship with surrounding communities.

City council rejects proposal for apartments over parking garage

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

Northville City will have more available parking spaces and fewer apartments that Singh Development has suggested, if the city council has its way.

The company's proposal to build 51 apartments above the parking garage south of their MainCentre development has been rejected by the council.

The council made its decision at a meeting Monday, after Singh Development officials made another pitch for the apartments. Singh Development Vice President Michael Kahm afterward, "I had to have my day in the sun."

Council members were concerned that the apartments would limit further development of parking at the site. Members were also concerned with the visual impact of a six-story building on the neighborhood.

Said Carolann Ayers, "I think it just ties our hands in the future as to our parking needs. It really does limit what we can do with the parking on that entire deck."

"Although we do benefit from the added tax base," Mayor Christopher Johnson said, "I guess I'm leaning towards the smaller deck."

Singh officials had proposed two structures to the council. A "large deck" — consisting of four stories of parking on the structure's south side and two stories of apartments on top — would have provided 572 parking spaces, 86 of which would be required for the apartments. A "small deck" would provide 485 spaces, one fewer than the number left over for MainCentre and other parking in the large deck.

While the structure would run down Center Street nearly the length of the parking lot behind the MAGS building, the small deck would only stretch 120 feet west of Center, and the large deck would stretch 180 feet, leaving some surface parking opposite the post office on Wing Street. The small deck could also be built so that an extra level of parking could be added in the future, and both would allow further construction to the west.

Donna Bongiovanni of South Center St., whose home will be just south of the structure, was unhappy with either development. "Either way," she said, "I am going to have to sit in my back yard and look up to get air. You're talking about a six-story building in a small-town Victorian setting." Bongiovanni also cited the fear that patrons of the parking structure could see in her windows, and hurl things at her house.

Council members and Singh officials discussed a number of ways of limiting the structure's possible impact on the neighborhood to the south, including planting a row of pine trees on the south side of the site and putting decorative screens in the windows of the structure.

City Manager Steven Walters reminded residents that the structure would be reviewed by the planning commission before receiving site plan approval. Resident input was welcome at that time as well, he said.

Police information switch prompted by lawsuit threat

A "litigious society" has helped prompt a change in the amount of information released to the media by the Northville Township Police Department.

According to Captain Philip Presnell, township public information officer, the threat of lawsuits resulting from information provided to the media culminated in the change to a media log book last month.

"Our biggest concern is the liabilities potential," Presnell said. "The Chief (Ken Hardesty) and I were very hesitant to make the change, but we're public servants and we have to do what's right for the public."

Hardesty said the department had discussed a change in policy regarding the log book for several months. Prior to mid-September, the police log book would be open to the media. Reporters would select request certain items from the log and would be able to look at the full police reports about the incidents.

Under the present department guidelines, a "media book" is updated for review every Monday. The book carries reports of police activity during the previous week, but may not carry every incident acted upon by police. The media book does not list names, addresses, and other information previously reviewed. The Record generally did not print the names of people involved in most police reports.

The policy was implemented after a new reporter took over the township police beat.

"He (Presnell) had talked about it for some time," Hardesty said. "He had brought the issue up, and with the change of reporters... we decided it was the ideal time (to change)."

After the department verbally announced its policy change, the Record requested the police provide the newspaper a written set of guidelines stating its exact position on the matter.

Monday, Hardesty said no formal statement would be issued.

"You (the newspaper) can go by the guidelines of the Freedom of Information Act," he said. "That's what our system is based upon."

"We're not going to make ours (policy) any more restrictive than state or federal guidelines," he said.

"You'll probably be getting as much, or just about as much as before," Presnell added.

Presnell said specifics and blocked-out passages in the media book may still be discussed, depending on his office's interpretation of the individual case. But he said some cases will be withheld from the media.

"Certainly some will be held back," he said. "We'll hold information on serious crimes that we need to proceed with on a case."

He also said others looking for information, such as lawyers and insurance investigators, would have to follow the program set up for the media.

Hardesty said the plan had the backing of the township's legal advisors, and Presnell said the move was simply a matter of self-protection.

"Some of the materials the paper had printed in the past had (created the threat of a lawsuit)," he said. "It's no fun to be sued."

Asked when the threat of a lawsuit had occurred, Presnell said he could not recall the date, and the incident had not taken place within the past year.

"It really cuts down on a lot of work for both of us (police and newspaper)," Presnell said. "I think it will work out."

SWEET TOOTH — NO TOOTH

If you have a "sweet tooth", you'll probably have to pay a penalty for your pleasure. This is especially true for youngsters and that penalty will be found in the form of increased dental decay. Too much sugar or sugar-sweetened foods taken too often bring on the plaque brigade in full force. When the bacteria in plaque (an invisible film on your teeth) combines with sugar, it forms an acid which eats away at teeth causing decay and a host of other problems. Plaque has a sweet tooth of its own. Don't feed it.

To prove the point, a dental team in Connecticut asked the mothers of almost a thousand children to keep complete records of what their children ate for one complete week. The children's teeth were then examined and the results were matched with the diet diaries. The findings showed that children who liked more between-meal snacks had more cavities than those who ate less. They also found that children who ate more fruit and vegetable treats had fewer cavities than those who liked candy — cookie — cake treats.

Keep that sweet tooth under control. You'll be glad you did.

Ford plant for sale soon

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

The former Ford Valve Plant in Northville will be up for sale soon, according to a spokesperson for the company.

But city officials may no longer have the same interest in the property they once did, as the donation of property in the township provides another opportunity for development of a community library.

According to Robert Day of Ford Land Development, the corporation is considering offering the property "in the near future."

"The latest word I have on the plant is that some of our studies are continuing," he said, explaining why the property was not yet for sale.

"The current plan is to put it on the market for sale," Day said. "It would be a matter of weeks or months; we don't have a specific date in mind."

Meanwhile, the donation of 72 acres of land on the northeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon Road has presented the community with another opportunity for development of a library. The donor, Frieda Haller, stipulated that the site be used for the construction of a community library. She further required that the library be at least 44,800 square feet. The preliminary response of Northville City officials to a township proposal of a joint project has been favorable.

Ford Motor Company undertook a series of studies as part of a closing environmental assessment at the site in June, 1988. Recommendations were made then to replace damaged asbestos insulation in the plant with non-asbestos materials, remove or replace PCB capacitors with non-PCB capacitors and clean the area around them, and remove all abandoned equipment including scrap material and chemical substances in drums.

The assessment found almost 7,000 feet of asbestos-insulated pipes in the building, and an additional 3,650 square feet of asbestos insulation around the building's three boilers.

The assessment also recommended disposing of oil-stained soils at the site and removing the plant's three 10,000-gallon fuel tanks. A 500-gallon gasoline tank was to be tested for leaks.

A study of potential uses commissioned by the city found the property to be suitable for a variety of uses. The study, by Quinn Evans / Architects of Ann Arbor, found the west side of the site, across Griswold St. from the plant — that is, essentially Ford Field — to be best suited to its present use of outdoor recreation. Some of the suggested uses for the east side of the property were as a community center, library, museum, municipal building or retail and commercial development.

With an upgrade of the electrical, heating and plumbing systems, as well as the building's interior finish, the plant was pronounced suitable for a community center, library, museum and municipal building.

As part of the study, the financial consulting firm of Kennon & Co. Inc. of Monroe explored two redevelopment concepts, both of which incorporated a 22,500-square-foot library in the building's east wing, and community use or storage facilities in the building's basement. A mixed-use concept includes a 31,100 retail and commercial development, at an estimated cost to the city of $3,890,000. A public-use concept includes a school services center and public lobby at an estimated cost of $7,450,000. Neither estimate includes the cost of acquiring the land.

The now-closed Northville Ford Plant will soon go on the block

The report concluded that, in terms of redevelopment of the entire site, little could be done. "When required setbacks and other development regulations are met," the report read, "additional development on the site, outside of the existing building, is all but impossible." On July 12, a copy of the final report was sent to Ford Land Development's corporate real estate office in Dearborn. A letter by Mayor Christopher Johnson said the plant "offers a significant opportunity for our community to provide important public services while maintaining the historical value and natural features of the site." In the letter, Johnson proposed that the property be transferred to the city for redevelopment.

Council reconsiders city projects after land donation

BY STEPHEN KELLMAN

A 71.8-acre land donation to Northville Township has Northville city officials reassessing development plans in the city as well.

City officials have responded favorably to a township call for joint cooperation in development of the parcel.

The city council discussed the township's offer at its Monday meeting, agreeing to explore the possibility of joint development of the property at the corner of Six Mile and Sheldon roads.

The gift has implications for two ongoing community projects, the park millage and development of a

"We'd have to be crazy not to consider it. Realistically, we're going to have to go with the township's plan. The city can't afford to develop a library alone."

— Steven Walters
Northville City Manager

library. The millage approved by township voters and rejected by city voters last year was originally intended to develop a community park at a site on Beck Road.

Council members agreed Monday that the money would be better spent at the Sheldon Road site, because of its more central location in the community and the greater ease of developing the parcel. "It seems more appropriate to me location-wise," said Mayor Christopher Johnson, and several council members agreed.

Also, according to Recreation Director John Anderson, because grading problems at the Beck location are not present at the Sheldon Road site, the $732,000 raised by the millage over two years could be used to develop an extra soccer field and ball diamond on the site. The Beck Road proposal included three soccer fields and three lighted ball diamonds, and the Sheldon Road site could support four of each.

"We'll be getting more for our money," Council member Carolann Ayers said.

The change in site would likely delay construction of the park, Johnson noted. "It may move construction on the field back six to eight months," he said, "but it seems to me it would be better to wait."

Council member Paul Folino asked if it would be legal for city voters to vote the funds to a different site than the township voters had. "The ballot was specifically worded not to specify Beck Road," said City Manager Steven Walters, because of the possibility of another site then. "It's really only a question for the township, and the township voters, which we can't resolve," he said.

Ayers recommended keeping the millage funds available for use on either site, rather than specifying a single site. "I'd like to have it available for a community park wherever the need arises," she said. "I prefer the Sheldon Road to the Beck Road site, but I would like to leave it open."

The council eventually agreed to pursue a joint agreement, subject to the township acquiring the property. As one council member pointed out, the Beck Road site would still be available for future use.

The property could also be used for development of a new library, council members agreed.

according to Goss.

The first order of business conducted by such a committee could well focus on the idea of a library located outside the city limits. Construction of a library on the Haller property would mean the abandonment of the Ford Plant as a possible library site. A search committee had previously identified the in-city Ford building as one of three viable sites for the new library, and an independent consultant studying the building said a library would be an ideal use.

Members of the board of trustees admitted that a number of pertinent questions had been raised about the land gift, but felt confident that solutions were available.

"I think the issues will be resolved," said James Nowka, who initiated contact with Haller. "I think everything is going to come together."

"I feel pleased to be a part of this," he added. Goss said she hoped the township and city would meet soon to discuss the site.

"This donation really will be a benefit to all of the residents of the Northville community," she said.

over the age of 26, supervised by staff members of New Outlook, Inc. of Livonia. New Outlook has a contract through the state's Department of Mental Health (DMH) to provide the service.

The clients for such homes, Mogos said, are typically from DMH facilities or specialized nursing homes for the developmentally disabled.

Developmental disabilities are cerebral palsy, epilepsy, autism, and mental retardation.

This is the first time many of the clients have lived outside an institution. "They're having a lot of new experiences that they should have enjoyed years ago," Mogos said. Mogos emphasized that the house was less a facility than a home to the clients.

When asked the name of the facility, she asked, "Do you have a name for your house?" The house is referred to within the Wayne Community Living network as the Potomac home, she said, because of its proximity to Potomac Rd.

Clients will be transported by van to workshops in Wayne County during the day. A case-management specialist, occupational therapist, speech therapist, psychologist and dietician will also be available for the clients.

"We just want to move in and be good neighbors," she said, "just like everyone else."

The group home was originally proposed in February and scheduled to open in April or May. The home was opposed by many Northville residents at a public hearing in March, some of whom argued that such a facility would lower the property values in their neighborhood.

Members of the city council discussed the possibility of litigation to stop the proposal. The council formally objected to the home in March, arguing that the area around Northville already housed a large number of state facilities, including the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital, Phoenix Correctional Facility, Scott Regional Correctional Facility, and Wayne Correctional Facility in Plymouth Township.

City Manager Steven Walters noted that one out of every nine people in Northville city and township combined was the resident of a state facility.

The state Department of Social Services (DSS) rejected the city's arguments in a letter in April, noting that there were no state-run facilities within the city itself. The DSS also noted that the nearest state-run facility to the proposed site was over two and a half miles away.

Township modifies two ordinances

BY MIKE TYREE

The wording on a pair of ordinances underwent some changes at the Sept. 26 Northville Township Planning Commission meeting.

The township modified its approach to site plans for planned residential unit developments (PRUD) and cluster developments by obligating developers to indicate the location of central air conditioning units, heat pumps, swimming pool heaters, and any other noise-producing systems which are to be located on the exterior of residential units.

The plan would keep potentially noisy devices from negatively impacting existing or proposed residences.

In addition, the machines would be located or screened to the extent that they would not be bothersome to other residences.

In a letter to Township Planning &

Zoning Administrator Carol Maise, Township Attorney Ernest J. Essad Jr. said the suggested additions are "appropriate and will enable the township to require and regulate proper screening of these outside mechanical systems."

The change was approved unanimously by the commission.

Also addressed were revisions to zoning standards for auto washes and oil-change centers. In a move meant to eliminate conflicts in off-street parking requirements, the commission agreed to adopt three as the number of spaces which must be provided for each wash bay at a self-serve auto wash.

Oil-change facilities must provide two parking spaces for each lubrication stall, rack, pit, or similar service area, or a minimum of three spaces, whichever is greater.

The car wash and oil change additions were both accepted unanimously by the planning commission.

The Candidates' VIEWS

Q: What are the major issues facing the city, and how would you deal with them?

Mayor Chris Johnson is running unopposed for re-election. Three candidates are vying for two four-year terms on the Northville City Council. The election is Tuesday, Nov. 7

Christopher Johnson - mayor

• How the city grows. While most of the large parcels of land have been developed in the city, how we manage growth is our most important issue. There will now be pressure for redevelopment and rezoning since undeveloped land is unavailable. During my first term, the city began three comprehensive studies to plan for our future.

First, the planning commission is doing a comprehensive review of the Master Plan. This review should bring the Master Plan into the 1990s and be the basis for development and redevelopment decisions in the years to come.

Second, the Downtown Development Authority is actively working on Phase II of its plan. These plans will present the council with ideas and plans for reviewing the parking problem and increasing our tax base.

Third, the city was actively involved in examining alternatives for the Northville plant owned by Ford Motor Company.

The city has become proactive rather than reactive on these growth issues. Spot rezoning requests must be dealt with in the context of an updated Master Plan. A poorly-considered decision on a rezoning question can ruin a neighborhood.

• Development of the new library. This issue has received a great deal of attention from both the city and the township. The recent donation of land to the township at Six Mile and Sheldon Road provides our community with a very unique opportunity. Joint planning between the city and township will need to begin immediately in order to present a comprehensive plan to the voters next year.

• Solid waste. Trash and garbage are not exciting subjects; however, in the past few years, this item has become a major concern. Landfill costs have skyrocketed, and the impact upon the budget has become very significant. The city will have to change the way we have done business. Some form of recycling and composting will have to be a significant part of our solution to the problem. Since the city is small in comparison, it will be necessary for the city to join other governments in this process. I will also favor recycling solutions over incinerator solutions since these are sounder for the environment.

This is part one in a series of three questions presented to each candidate for city office by The Northville Record. Each candidate's prepared response is printed above. The other questions will appear in future issues of The Record.

G. Dewey Gardner - council

• Taxation. Taxation is one of the most prominent concerns of everyone. When you think of government, you think taxes. Revenue from taxation is essential to afford the city services we need to keep our city safe, clean and the best community in which to live. As a past council member, I worked hard to keep taxes within a desired level. I know the budget art procedure and will continue to work diligently to make sure we get the most out of our tax dollars spent and lower the millage as the tax base increases.

• Ford Valve Plant. The Ford Valve Plant closing has cost the city a considerable loss in tax revenue. I believe this property can be developed in the best interest of the entire community. It could be developed not only to increase the tax base, but also set aside a portion for public use such as a library or a similar community project. We need to pursue projects and work with Ford Motor Co. in the development of this property. This area is zoned industrial; however, there are certain restrictions within the building that limits industrial production; i.e. ceiling height, building size, etc. Any other use would require rezoning and would have to be compatible with the surrounding area.

• Parking and downtown development. The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) is currently studying plans for Cady Street development, parking expansion and retail service mix. As a businessman and member of the DDA since its conception, I am very involved in the efforts. Additional parking will be gained through the reconstruction and enlarging the present parking deck with more productive layouts and striping of our present parking lots. I am not in favor of any additional development outside the DDA boundaries or any future development without on-site parking.

• Solid waste. Solid-waste disposal is a real issue we must acknowledge and address at this time. The cost and limited availability of landfills alone, not considering the regulations relating to environment and ecology, will force us to maintain a recycling and separation method of collection. It's an economic issue between landfills or recycling and separation. In the long run we will benefit the most from recycling and separation.

Kevin Hartshorne - council

Of the many issues facing this city today I would list sidewalks and taxes as the major problems we must address in the immediate future. Obviously the number-one issue in the minds of many residents is the recently-begun sidewalk program.

For those who already have sidewalks and especially in the older neighborhoods, it is hard to argue their need for repairs. Tree roots and water damage have taken their toll and something needed to be done. If the program had started and ended there I am sure there would be no problem now.

The real problem arises when you address the residents without sidewalks. After speaking with several hundred citizens in this category I have come to the following conclusions.

Any resident whose home was built prior to the ordinance that requires sidewalks be installed should be exempt from the program unless the city receives a specific request to be included.

Those residents who reside in homes that were built after the ordinance was adopted (sometime in the sixties) should not be forced to install sidewalks. The only problem here is that these homes are non-conforming and have no legal legs to stand on.

In the few instances where safety is a legitimate concern I expect it will become the overriding factor. The council must not, however, use the safety issue as a shield to guard against the will of its citizens nor as an excuse to blanket the city with sidewalks. I also feel no single taxpayer should have to pay for sidewalks. Maintenance will be a big enough burden. The sidewalk program should have been planned in conjunction with the road resurfacing program.

It was also a public improvement on public property but it was paid for with bonds that will be repaid out of the city's general fund by business and residents. Are sidewalks that much different? It is not really all the questions and unique situations that bother me about this issue, it's the answers — here they come, like it or not.

As unsettling as the sidewalk issue is, it pales in comparison to my view on taxes. There are two proposals on the ballot in this election that will displace some of the tax burden from property taxes to sales taxes. That just is not enough.

We must rid ourselves of the county assessor and hire one of our own.

Jerome Mittman - council

• High property-tax burden. High property taxes affect all Northville residents and place an especially severe burden on senior citizens and those with low or moderate incomes.

It is time for a thorough review of city services, plus the operation of all city departments, if the tax burden is to be reduced. In business and industry we have learned by necessity to do more with less. I feel confident this can also be done with city government.

• Retaining small-town atmosphere. Northville's small-town atmosphere and charm are an important asset and what drew many of the residents here. Growth and expansion within the area (primarily outside the city) will make it increasingly difficult to retain these unique characteristics.

The master-plan review that is currently in progress will help define the course of Northville's future development. I recommend including a number of open study sessions in the master plan review process to obtain input from residents.

In addition, a closer working relationship between the city and surrounding communities should be established. Annual meetings with both Northville Township and Novi should be considered.

• Downtown Development. The heart of Northville is the downtown area. We must continue to strengthen it through quality development. We need to continue to approach changes cautiously to assure that the proper balance of land use is maintained.

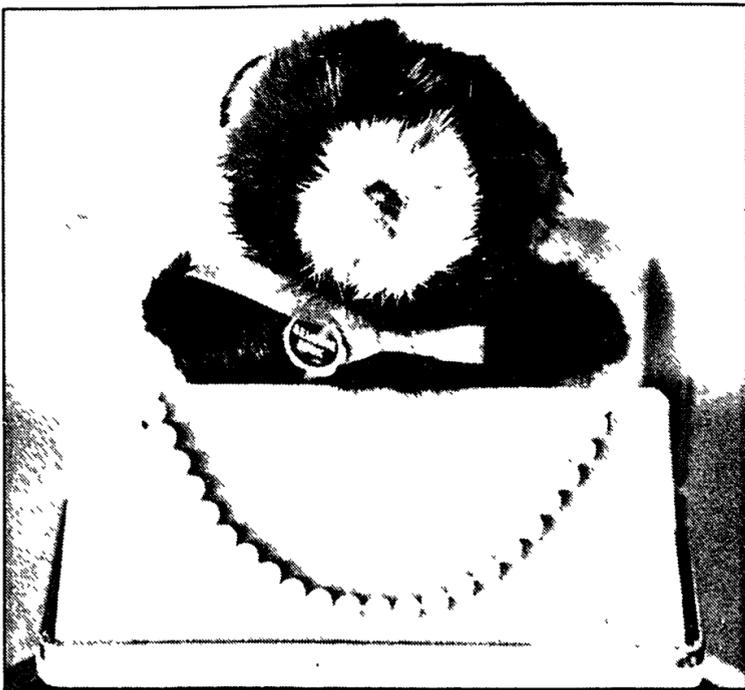

• Traffic / parking. We need to continue to incorporate the recommendations from studies and other improvements as permitted within budget constraints.

• Refuse disposal. Costs of refuse disposal have risen dramatically in recent years. Landfills are close to capacity; environmental concerns have been raised. If we are to resolve these problems, significant changes will be required. Since this work is not just a city problem, it is essential that we continue to work closely with surrounding communities and governmental agencies to develop an area-wide solution.

• Other. I have specifically not listed "sidewalks" as a major issue despite the current controversy. Council has not developed a firm sidewalk plan for areas where they do not currently exist. We are soliciting input from the residents to help us make a decision that is responsive and in the best interests of the entire city.

Faltering public support threatens Marquis musicals

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

While children's theater at the Marquis is more popular than ever, the Marquis Theater may soon stop presenting adult musicals in Northville due to the lack of public support.

Theater owner Inge Zayti made the observation after a recent showing of the theater's latest production, "The Desert Song."

The showing of "The Desert Song" drew 170 people, and Zayti estimated that she needs an average attendance of 350 to 400 people per showing of a musical to break even. The break-even point on non-musicals is slightly less, about 250 per show.

A production like "The Desert Song" can cost $50,000 to produce, Zayti said. That includes the salaries of the actors, the 17-piece orchestra, overhead and royalties. Royalties for a typical musical can cost between $5,000 and $6,000, while a "straight show" like "The Foreigner" can cost $800 to $1,000.

"I have to pay it up front," she said of royalties, "before I can open up the theater."

The royalties for musicals cost more, she said, because the performers are sent the orchestral scores to the show's songs after they purchase rights to the show. The music is provided by between 15 and 20 professional musicians, but larger orchestras present a problem, Zayti said. "They have to all be skinny to sit in the pit. And then it's going to be too loud, anyway."

The orchestra typically is made up of violins, violas, bass, percussion, drums, french horns, trumpets, and a piano.

Previous productions at the Marquis have included "Camelot," "Oklahoma," "Peter Pan," "Gypsy," and "Annie."

This year the Marquis has shown "The Foreigner" and "Grease." Of the latter, she recalled, "I cleaned it completely up. See, Grease is really a dirty show, obscene movements, we just couldn't believe it when we saw it."

"My shows have no language here, because I want to keep it a nice, clean family theater," she said. Zayti's sanitized version was a success, she recalled: "We made some money on the show."

Straight plays are not as popular as musicals, Zayti said, and "The Foreigner" was no exception. "Not a lot of people saw that show, but it was a good show," she said. "We had seven very good actors in that."

"I get discouraged, especially if you have a good show and people don't come."

Zayti also runs a day camp for children during the summer. Teachers for the program come from schools like Cranbrook, she said. The cost of the program is $250. Children spend six hours a day at the theater for two weeks, and then stage their own performance of a show.

Advanced classes are also offered, and Zayti is starting a "Star" class for her most gifted students, from 6 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Teachers for those classes will come from schools like the University of Michigan, she said. Graduates of the advanced classes often perform in the theater's children's shows.

"When you see these children here for two weeks, you can pick out how talented they are," she said.

The theater runs two types of children's shows. Some of the performances are cast with both adult and children actors. Earlier this year the Marquis hosted "The Velveteen Rabbit," and this winter the theater will stage "Cinderella" from Nov. 25 to Dec. 30.

"What makes my children's shows so unique here," Zayti said, "is I use only very good actors for adults." Lisa Andres, who plays Susan in "The Desert Song," played the rabbit in this year's production of "The Velveteen Rabbit." Mary Kay Linlen, who is playing the leading role of Margot in "The Desert Song," and two other actresses from the play will be in this winter's production of "Cinderella."

In the other program, one-hour shows are performed entirely by children, for audiences from grade schools as far away as Flint and Toledo. Children in these productions perform up to 72 shows of a single production, with shows at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. on weekdays, and twice a day on weekends.

For these children's shows, two casts are chosen and they alternate their performances. If one performer of one cast cannot make the show, the other performer can fill in.

"The money I'm making on the children's shows," she said, "I have to put in the adult shows to make them work."

Other forms of entertainment have not worked as well as plays, she said. A recent classical concert drew only 50 people.

Zayti said that dramatic performances at the Marquis have been favorably compared to productions at more popular playhouses, but that her theater did not receive the same kind of coverage by the press.

"The reason I can't get the Detroit News or Free Press coming out is because I'm not a union house," Zayti said. "That's the only thing holding them back." To pay union salaries, Zayti said, she would have to charge $25 to $30 per ticket for a performance.

Zayti and her husband, since deceased, purchased the Marquis in 1971. Originally a movie house, the theater was restored in 1978 and the Zaytis began booking concerts and live plays. "Over the years we had Count Basie in here, Woody Herman in here, the Freshmen, The Four Lads, the Ink Spots," Inge Zayti recalled. "I booked some good people in here."

Shortly thereafter, she began staging live shows at the Marquis, though the productions were not always complete successes. "You learn from your mistakes, that's one thing for sure," she said.

After some bad experiences with directors, she took complete control of the productions. "Everything but these people making movement, I'm in charge," she said, gesturing towards the stage. "I hire my director, I hire my choreographer, the music director; I'm in charge of casting, everything, sets, lights, sounds, anything, you name it."

Zayti mentioned several conflicts with past directors. During a production of "Carousel," one director insisted on having a working merry-go-round on stage. "That carousel was on stage for maybe two and a half minutes," Zayti said, "and that carousel cost me almost a thousand dollars. That is really asinine to do things like that."

"One director talked me into getting costumes from Eve Brooks in New York," she added. "How can a person like me afford $5,000 for costumes, if I'm charging $10 a show?" she asked.

"I started all over from scratch," she said, "and then it started getting very successful."

Putting on a production can be a logistical nightmare itself. "It's not only to put the show on," Zayti said.

"It's everything. First you pick a show, and then you pick a director. Then you have an audition, then you pick out the people you want on stage, and then you get involved in the sets; I mean I take care of everything that is done on that stage. I really had to learn the hard way."

Because a typical production takes four weeks to rehearse, and there are typically two weeks between the time one play ends and the next begins, actors are often rehearsing on the set of the previous play, or in the theater's lobby.

"You never have an understudy here," she added.

Zayti, originally from Germany, was first exposed to the theater in school. "In Germany," she said, "if you go to high school you have to go to the theater and do your dues in the theaters."

Bob Frellick, right, accepts a resolution from board President Glenna Davis

Record/MIKE TYREE

Frellick honored by school board

BY MIKE TYREE

A man who has spent plenty of time giving to others got some back recently.

During the Oct. 16 meeting of the Northville Board of Education, Robert Frellick was honored for his continued devotion and dedication to youth baseball in the Northville area.

Frellick, the longtime Northville High School baseball coach, was the subject of a resolution adopted by the board. The resolution noted the thousands of uncompensated hours Frellick has spent bettering the cause of baseball in Northville.

The resolution also referred to Frellick's tireless efforts to develop the Northville High School baseball stadium into one of the outstanding facilities in Michigan. In addition, Frellick was lauded for the nationwide attention he has brought to the Northville area thanks to his work with the Amateur Baseball Federation World Series.

The school board tipped its hat to Frellick by pledging to create and install a plaque commemorating him at the Northville High athletic complex.

Frellick has coached youth baseball since 1957, and was honored by the National Amateur Baseball Federation (NABF) in 1986 as its "Man of the Year."

Frellick helped organize and form the Northville Junior Baseball League in 1975, which serves as the baseball structure for all local leagues from T-Ball through high school. He has also held a number of administrative positions in the NABF and other youth baseball organizations.

According to his friend Joseph O'Doherty, Frellick can often be found at the high school baseball field at 7 a.m., lining the base lines and mowing the infield in an attempt to provide young people the best possible playing surface. The hard work apparently has paid off, as O'Doherty says coaches, players, and pro and college scouts call the Northville High stadium the best in the state.

Frellick said he was humbled by the honor, and said he was "sad that with all the people who do things for the community, only one can be honored here tonight."

It seems Northville's "Mr. Baseball" has given so much that receiving isn't easy.

Guide is available

Suburban Wayne County's population exceeded that of the city of Detroit in 1986, the first time that has happened in the post-World War II period.

A mid-term census showed there were 1,088,780 residents in Wayne County suburbs, compared with 1,086,220 Detroit residents.

That information and other tidbits about Wayne County and its government is contained in a newly-published League of Women Voters county guidebook.

It is the first time the league has published a county guide since 1974.

County history, government, finance, courts, social programs, public services, regional governmental authorities, and elections are discussed in successive chapters. The history of the newly-furnished Wayne County building is described in the book's appendix.

All county government departments and their functions are described.

The guide also includes maps of state, federal and county-commission election districts.

Copies of the guide can be reserved by calling the Northville-Canton-Plymouth-Novi League of Women Voters chapter, 349-3555, or the Livonia chapter, 476-8846.

The project was financed, in part, through a grant from the Michigan Council for the Humanities.

School, township officials talk about future goals

BY MIKE TYREE

A get-acquainted meeting featuring two of the area's main governing bodies was held Oct. 16, and things went so well that it looks like they'll soon visit again.

Members of the Northville School District Board of Education met with the Northville Township Board on Monday to discuss their respective goals and agendas for the coming years. According to School Board President Glenna Davis, the meeting was a natural.

"It seemed logical that governing bodies should be working together," she said. Davis cited rapid growth and development in the Northville area as the reason individual governments should form close associations.

Davis said responsible management is needed to help the community cope with growth.

Agenda items for the evening included the township master plan, the township's receipt of a 71-acre land gift on the northeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon Roads, the school district's "Strategic Plan 1989-94," and the schools' ownership of property on Six Mile Road.

Township Planning & Zoning Administrator Carol Maise updated the school board members on the progress of the Wayne County land sale. She said the county should announce a finalist to buy and develop the 933-acre plot between Sheldon and Beck Roads and between Five and Six Mile Roads by the end of October.

School board representatives asked what type of development would dominate the site, and Maise said residential housing, with a golf course and peripheral light industry were mentioned by the three remaining bidders for the county land. She added that it was too early to tell exactly how all the land would be used, but said the township was working on a Planned Unit Development (PUD) strategy for the site.

"The county has worked very closely with us," Maise said. "The (township) planning commission's standards will mean the township will retain control there."

"They (the county) will make the decision on who develops there, but not what's put in," she added.

Northville Public Schools Superintendent George Bell asked if the township knew of any light industry which could increase the district's tax base without increasing student population.

Township Trustee Richard Allen responded, "Only along Five Mile," and fellow Trustee James Nowka told Bell the township's strategy was to limit industry.

"We generally follow our master plan," Nowka said, "which gives a lot (of preference) to residential development."

Speaking on the subject of the 71.83-acre land donation by Frieda Haller to the township, Supervisor Georgina Goss said cooperation was needed to make the best of the gift.

"We want the community to look at it as a gift for the whole community," she said, adding that the township had sent a letter to City of Northville Mayor Christopher Johnson seeking his endorsement of a plan to create a joint committee to implement a funding strategy for a 44,800-square-foot library on the site.

Goss said the township was in the process of having the land assessed, and that she hoped a funding plan could be voted on by Northville residents as early as next spring.

"It was very informative. Opening up the lines of communication between the township and the school board will be a benefit to the whole community ... It allows us to be aware of each other's concerns."

— Georgina Goss
Northville Township Supervisor

"The Strategic Plan makes some very strong statements to focus the direction of the school district," he said.

Bell said the plan's theme included challenging students, creating a positive school environment, and the development of community support for the public schools.

The superintendent said meetings such as the one with township representatives were helpful.

"We're looking at demographics and growth, what you've shown us tonight," he said. "We think we'll be good into the mid-1990s."

Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton discussed the district's ownership of 129.46 acres on Six Mile Road. The land, purchased in the early 1970's with an eye toward expansion will not be used for five to five and a half years, according to Knighton.

Bell said the undeveloped land may have use to the community as recreation fields.

"The community would be well served if soccer fields were constructed on the land," he said. "The taxpayers are paying for it; they should derive the benefits," he said.

Library used book sale slated

Hundreds of books, on topics ranging from pet care to pollution and pirates to painting, will go on sale Saturday, Nov. 4, when Friends of the Northville Public Library hosts its last used-book sale of the year.

Members of the Friends are invited to a one-hour preview beginning at 9 a.m. The public will be admitted to the sale in the Northville City Council Chambers in the municipal building at 10 a.m. The sale runs until 4 p.m.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to give a major gift to the library in 1989, the 100th anniversary of its founding.

Contributions of books may be dropped off at the library. All kinds of books are welcome, with the exception of "Readers Digest Condensed," paperback romance fiction, encyclopedias more than 10 years old and textbooks K-12. No magazines will be accepted, including "National Geographic."

"The Friends have found that such materials do not sell and create problems with storage and disposal," said Rosemary Mentag, president of the group.

"We are always happy to provide Northville residents with this golden opportunity to buy desirable books at bargain prices, but published material that accumulates and is not attractive to buyers becomes a burden when storage and sorting space is limited," Mentag added.

All hardbound books, with the exception of some choice collectibles, will sell for 50 cents. Paperbacks of any size cost 25 cents or five for $1, and children's books are priced at 5 cents to 25 cents.

Anyone interested in joining the Friends of the Northville Library in time for preview privileges may do so at the library until the day before the sale.

Seniors and students may join for $3; family or individual, $5; contributing, $10; sustaining, $25; and patron, $100.

A new fact sheet outlining what activities the Friends is involved in and what the group has given to the library over the past few years is available at the library.

Jane Park works in her studio

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Northville artist develops unique hobby into career

By MAUREEN NASZRADI

Jane Park is turning an artistic talent she practiced as a hobby into a career.

She signs each work "Jart" — a name that is developing into the identity of her art form — designating the piece as one of hers and as one-of-a-kind.

The Northville resident transforms wood objects — painting color and shapes that give them a unique appeal. An old wooden bowl could become the bright spot in a kitchen; a garage-sale-bargain chair could become a favorite art piece.

One word Park applied to her work was "whimsical." She explained, "Life is so hard, so stressful. It's nice to have something 'light' in your home that's easy to look at."

Depending on the piece, Park said Jart could complement any design scheme. Referring to the eclectic look of her own home, she laughed, "It goes fine in here."

She said the look of her work is somewhat "modern." "Contemporary graphics" is how Park's designs were described by Terri Shapiro, director of the Homestead Gallery of Contemporary Arts in Walled Lake, where some of the artist's works currently are exhibited.

"To put her furniture in their home, Jane's pieces are not as foreign to (gallery patrons) as other contemporary art might be," Shapiro said.

Park said Jart is new and, while she has seen wood painted before, her style is unique. Her range of colors is unlimited, adding much of the character to the objects she paints.

The artist said she usually uses five colors to create one of her designs, which are all "free-hand and free-form, never stenciled." She said she loves experimenting with new colors.

Park also said she carefully considers the type of wood and style of the piece before she paints. Shapiro complimented the "substance" of Park's pieces.

"She doesn't paint just any wooden object," the gallery director said. She recounted how Park looked for weeks until she found the right owl for one of her commissions through the gallery.

Park said she prefers to work with older pieces because of their lines and craftsmanship. Jart is best suited to less ornate furniture styles, she added.

For example, a classic old office chair that the artist had picked up at a garage sale now sports a pattern of green, blue and black circles and triangles. Her paint revived the piece, at minimal cost.

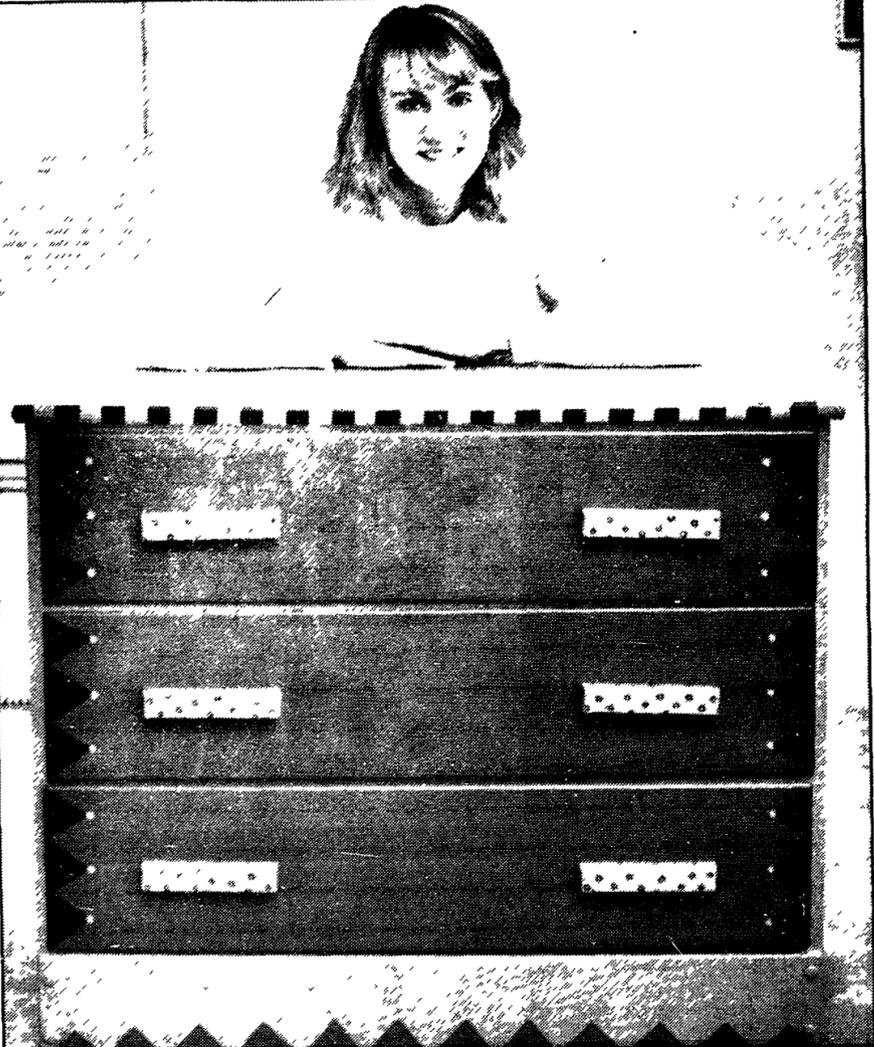

Since she began her creative painting style three years ago, Park said her favorite item was a jade, black and purple "almost checkered" trunk that she sold for about $200. Other past projects include candlesticks in a subdued pattern and shades, and pairs of earrings, which sell for about $12.

Shapiro said Park's ability to tailor her designs to the proportions of the piece is another of her strengths. "That's what makes her things stand out, in addition to the more obvious factors," she said.

When she begins, Park said, she plans out the design by picturing the finished piece in her mind. She works with the lines of the object, creating an overall pattern for the surface. And although most of her painting has been on wood surfaces, Park said she is starting to create some canvas Jart for wall hanging.

She works in the upstairs studio of her Cady Street home. Her most important tool is latex paint, for the hard finish and shine. She also applies polyurethane finish.

Stripping, applying wood filler and sanding are often part of the creative process. Or, she explained, an unfinished piece is ready for her to start on, but oiled wood is not suitable for Jart.

Jane Park displays a finished work of "Jart"

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Park said several factors determine the price of an item. She said she does not charge by the hours of labor she puts into a piece, but rather considers: the size and intricacy, whether it will need reconditioning and the number of colors requested.

Jart is functional art, Park said, with the exception of items such as bowls, which are more for decoration, due to the shellac-like finish.

Park, who decided in February to pursue her hobby full-time, said she doesn't want her clientele to be limited to just the "real artsy, but rather someone who wants to add a spark to their home." Although, she added, most of her current clients first have seen her work at galleries or art shows

The ambitious painter said she enjoys doing custom work and will travel to customers' homes to pick up the object to be painted, consulting with them about colors and setting.

For example, the colors that she painted a chest of drawers — pink, black, plum and salmon — correspond to the colors in a framed print that hangs in the client's guest bedroom.

She said she looks for guidance from her customers in terms of the type of furniture, which colors should be base or highlights, and how intricate of a design they would prefer.

She then incorporates the customers' wants into her own design. The number of shapes she paints is limited, arranged in random or symmetrical patterns. "I don't paint hearts or flowers, ducks or geese," she explained.

In addition to the Homestead Gallery, the Ann Arbor Art Association and the Ariana in Birmingham have exhibited her work. She also plans to exhibit at shows in Bloomfield Hills in October and in Birmingham in early November.

Seeking greater exposure, Park said she has been visiting local craft shows and art fairs to determine where it will be appropriate to display her work, stressing that it does not have a "country" flavor.

Park said she would "love to" eventually open her own shop. She added, however, she currently is "just looking to get her feet on the ground" with Jart. Meanwhile, she is pursuing her education beyond her bachelor's degree, studying to be an elementary art teacher.

Northville group protests park millage, taxes in general

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

A Northville group formed last year to protest the park millage is setting its sights much higher these days.

In a recently-released statement of principles, Citizens for a Better Northville has defined itself as a group opposed to most forms of governmental intervention, particularly in the form of taxes.

"Experience shows that government is inefficient," the statement reads. "People should be able to live with an absolute minimum of government intervention in both their social and economic lives."

"We got involved initially in the park issue, and that was the reason for the formation of the group," said Northville resident Jeff Hampton, the group's unofficial spokesperson. "We think that on a local level there needs to be a group that has the philosophical base to be involved in any issue."

Citizens for a Better Northville continues to protest the park millage, recommending instead reciprocal agreements with other recreation departments and the use of other fields over an increase in taxes.

The city's proposal is for an extra .7992 mills for two years, raising roughly $732,000 for the development of a community park. The millage would represent an annual tax increase of $39.96 for a house valued at $100,000, whose state equalized value would be $50,000.

Though passed by the township last year, the millage suffered defeat by city voters by almost a two-to-one margin. Some blamed the defeat on a Citizens for a Better Northville flyer handed out at the polls.

Hampton said the group is considering also taking a position on the two school-finance questions on the November ballot, and on the proposal of a community library for Northville.

"With that in mind," he said, "we figured we'd better first develop a statement. We think that with the statement of principles, that will allow us to get involved in anything." The statement recommends the transfer of financing of public projects from the governmental to the private sector.

"People should be able to live with an absolute minimum of government intervention in both their social and economic lives."

— Jeff Hampton
Citizens for a Better Northville

"To begin the process of replacing taxation with voluntary financing of government activities," it reads,

"we propose the following: No new taxes or tax increases from this day forward; a sunset provision should be added to every tax statute; tax money should no longer subsidize any government service which can possibly be provided in the private sector."

Proposed bill requires parental consent for abortion

By TIM RICHARD

LANSING — Girls under age 17 may be more careful about getting pregnant if they have to get their parents' consent for an abortion. At least that's the hope of those backing a parental consent bill advancing through the Michigan Senate.

"The point of this bill is that a minor won't make the decision alone," said Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, whose Human Resources Committee gave the bill 4-1 approval Tuesday and sent it to the Senate floor.

He said Senate debate could come as early as Tuesday or Wednesday next week.

Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville — who supported Senate Bill 513 in committee — predicted it would get as many as 30 of the upper chamber's 38 votes but would run into trouble in the House. "It will probably go to Perry Bullard's committee (Judiciary) and be killed there," Geake said.

Barbara Listing, president of Right to Life of Michigan, and the state Department of Social Services took diametrically opposite positions on the bill but agreed on one point: about 6,000 girls in the under-17 age group become pregnant each year and would have to seek parental consent for an abortion if the bill becomes law. Listing said experience in other states indicates 20 to 35 percent of parents will say "no," which would translate into 1,500 fewer abortions in Michigan each year.

In time, however, there will be a reduction in teen pregnancies, she said.

DSS predicted a 28-percent decline in the number of abortions and a corresponding 28-percent increase in the number of births to girls under 17, plus greater costs to the departments of Public Health and Social Services, with no reduction in teen pregnancies.

SB 513, sponsored by Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, is one of five bills by pro-life senators introduced

"The point of this bill is that a minor won't make the decision alone."

— Fred Dillingham
State senator
R-Fowlerville

since the U.S. Supreme Court last summer ruled the states have greater latitude to restrict abortions.

The Welborn bill doesn't cover "morning after" birth-control pills or intra-uterine devices, said Listing, because they aren't intended to terminate pregnancies.

Girls who don't want to confront their parents could ask the juvenile division of any probate court in the state for a waiver of parental consent. The probate judge would have to rule on the waiver petition within 48 hours in a closed hearing.

"This will improve the status of the incest victim," said sponsor Welborn. "Currently they can receive a 'secret' abortion. But if the minor went to court, the secret would be brought to light."

The dissenting vote in committee was cast by John Cherry, D-Clio, who raised several objections.

"I'd like to be informed of any medical procedures my children undergo. I feel I have some parental responsibility," said Cherry, "and this includes financial. I'd like to see the parents (of the pregnant girl) responsible for pre-natal care and care up to the age of 18."

But his amendment died for lack of support.

Cherry also doubted that the probate court procedure would expose an incestuous father, as Welborn suggested. "The child would have turned them in to authorities prior to that," Cherry said.

Conferences set

BY MIKE TYREE

Little Johnny and Susie may not care too much for the idea, but Northville High School parents will have the opportunity to check on their students' academic progress this week.

Parent / teacher conferences were scheduled for Tuesday (Oct. 17) and today (Oct. 19), according to Ralph Redmond, assistant high school principal.

Redmond said 60-70 per cent of the parents of high school students usually attend the fall session of the conferences, at which time they are updated on the progress of their children.

"It's a great opportunity for the parents and teachers to sit down and discuss the kids," Redmond said. "We'll be into the seventh week of school, and kids will have had time to get acclimated, take a few tests, and settle in for the school year."

Redmond said each parent receives a copy of their child's full schedule and may visit with teachers for five minutes. Grade books, tests, and other support materials are on hand to help point out the status of the students. The school's full complement of teaching staff, counselors, and administrators take part in the conferences, and Redmond says that dedication is a reflection on everyone in the school district.

"All those things show a very concerned community," he said. "It goes hand in hand with the overall support we see in Northville, which was showcased in the recent bond vote."

"That says a lot about Northville," he continued. "The majority of the parents are involved with the school."

Counselors will talk to parents of seniors about their child's educational future as well. Redmond said the counselors can explore financial-aid avenues, scholarship programs, and other incentives offered by colleges.

Though he is happy with the response to the conferences, Redmond admitted he would like to spark more interest by some of the parents.

"Sometimes we don't see some of the parents we really should see," he said. "But we're getting the word out, and more and more parents of the kids having difficulty are coming."

Conferences this evening will be held from 4-7 p.m. for parents of students whose last name begins L-Z.

Free weatherization offered in Wayne

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara said recently that low income residents can cut their heating cost by 30 percent with a free home weatherization program which is conducted by the Wayne County Weatherization Agency.

"This is a federally funded program which offers low-income homeowners, renters, seniors, and handicapped residents an opportunity to get their homes insulated — free of charge," said McNamara. "We entered the program in August 1979, and since that time the county has completely weatherized a total of 6,971 homes."

The program allows any homeowner or renter, who is considered low income by current federal guidelines, to qualify for the weatherization services. Upon establishment of eligibility, a Wayne County representative is sent to perform a home inspection and hire a licensed private contractor to perform the work. ADC and SSI recipients are automatically eligible.

According to Wayne County Weatherization Manager Harley Trumbull, the basic services covered under the program include ceiling, wall, floor, and water-heater insulation, caulking and weatherstripping of leaky doors and windows, and many other energy-saving devices.

McNamara recently visited and chatted with an Inkster retired couple whose home had been weatherized last fall by the County. "Mr. and Mrs. Donald Steele stated that since the improvements, their gas bill, under the monthly budget plan, was cut from $65 to $45 over the winter," said McNamara. "For retirees living on a fixed income, that is a significant savings."

Trumbull pointed out that the county's home-improvement programs cover residents in 18 communities in Wayne County. Those communities include the City of Northville and Northville Township, as well as the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Livonia, Garden City, Inkster, Wayne, Romulus, Belleville, Dearborn Heights, Taylor, Canton Township, Redford Township, Van Buren Township, Sumpter Township, and Huron Township. The City of Detroit, the Downriver area, and certain other communities conduct their own programs.

McNamara urged interested residents to call now and register before the weather gets cold and the representatives get very busy at 326-9422.

Kick-off for Novi Pioneer Festival slated for Saturday

Curious about a day in the life of a Novi pioneer?

Residents will have a chance to quell their curiosity this Saturday, when the Novi Adventurers 4-H Club and the City of Novi host the 1989 Ingersoll Pioneer Festival.

Activities take place on the grounds of the Novi Civic Center from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is free.

As a kick-off to the festival, the Novi Historical Society and Novi Historical Commission invite residents to participate in the dedication of the Novi Town Hall Museum. A brief ribbon-cutting ceremony at 10 a.m. at the museum will mark the final phase of a six-year effort to restore the township hall. The upper level of the original hall will be open to the public to view.

The interior of the lower level is expected to be completed in the spring of 1990. A wood-frame structure originally located on the west side of Novi Road just south of Grand River Avenue, the township hall was given to the Novi Historical Society by Frazer Stamen, a former Novi Township supervisor. He donated the structure on condition that it be moved from that site.

After a successful community fund-raising effort by the historical society, the building was moved in the summer of 1986 to its present site on Ten Mile Road, just west of the Novi Public Library. Restoration project directors were Mark Adams for the historical society and Walter Jenkins of the historical commission.

Dedication of the structure ties in with the theme of the festival, which celebrates Novi's heritage.

This is the second year for the Pioneer Festival, with the first one held in 1987. Kathy Mutch, the festival's public-relations coordinator, acknowledged that the event has attracted more popularity this year, proven by the fact that virtually every service group in the city has lent its support.

Margaret Schmidt, director of the Novi Adventurers 4-H Club, first created the idea for the festival. She garnered support for the event by involving members of her group and their parents. Since then residents have been asking when a second pioneer festival would take place, leading to the development of this year's event, Mutch said.

"It's a non-commercial, community event, which makes it unique," she added.

Featured events during the festival include demonstrations of 19th-century skills, continuous performances by traditional musicians and dancers, and countless hands-on activities for children and adults.

Learn how to square dance with helpful instructions by an authentic dance caller. Watch as Sarah Schmidt and Jessie Meehan make creamy butter, using the old-fashioned hand-stirred method. Listen as storytellers offer animated tales of pioneer days.

The Novi Adventurers will sell a limited number of old-fashioned box lunches, home-baked goods, lemonade, cider and coffee. During the festival's first year, volunteers made about 200 box lunches to sell. This year more than 700 were prepared to feed hungry festival-goers.

Following is a schedule of events: 10:30-11 a.m.: Entertainment by Lois Bettsworth and "The Shades of Blue," a fiddler and bluegrass musicians, on the Novi Civic Center stage. 11 a.m. & 2 p.m.: Butter making by Sarah Schmidt and Jessie Meehan at the Ingersoll Room (multi-purpose room of the Novi Civic Center).

11:15-11:45 a.m.: Square dancing with caller at the Novi Civic Center stage.

11:50-12:20 p.m.: Entertainment by Novi Adventurers 4-H Jug Band on the Novi Civic Center stage.

Noon: Bread making by Ruth and Joanne Sill in the Whipple Room (conference room A, B and C in the Novi Civic Center).

12:30-1 p.m.: Dancing by the Sixth Gate Cloggers on the Novi Civic Center stage.

1-1:30 p.m.: More music by "The Shades of Blue" on the Novi Civic Center stage.

1:40-2 p.m.: Pioneer children's fashion show with LoReta Roder on the Novi Civic Center stage. Middle school students and young children will model clothing to reflect the pioneer era.

2-2:30 p.m.: More square dancing on the Novi Civic Center stage.

3-3:30 p.m.: More music by the Novi Adventurers 4-H Jug Band on the Novi Civic Center stage.

3:30-4 p.m.: Entertainment by the "Shades of Blue" on the stage of the Novi Civic Center.

Ongoing displays include a history of dairy farming by the American Dairy Association's Michigan Group in the atrium of the civic center; U.S. Post Office Philatelic Station, featuring stamps and special hand-cancellation from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. behind the civic center (kits will be available); a 4-H display by Kathy

Newkirk of the Livingston County 4-H in the Ingersoll Room of the Novi Civic Center; barnyard animals outside the civic center; and apple-butter making outside the civic center.

Other highlights include a blacksmith with a forge, a buckskinner with a tepee, a beekeeping demonstration, woodcarving, sheep shearing, wool dyeing, hand spinning, loom weaving, basket weaving, a Scottish bagpiper, a hammerdulcimer player, 19th-century games and toys, apple-head doll making, maple-sugar candy making and quilting.

In a related effort, the Novi Library will offer a preview of a planned local history reference room. The room features a display of library materials relevant to local history assembled by Barbara Louie of the library staff.

Throughout the day, members of the Novi Historical Society will sell postcards of the Town Hall Museum, featuring an ink drawing of the structure.

PRESENT: Members Covert, Crawford, Hoyer, Leininger, Toth, Watson and Mayor Quinn.

ABSENT: Members None

The following preamble and resolution were offered by Member Toth and supported by Member Leininger:

WHEREAS, this City Council does hereby determine that it is necessary to acquire and construct street improvements (the "Improvements") in the City described in Exhibit A, attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

WHEREAS, the cost of the Improvements is estimated to be Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000); and

WHEREAS, to finance part of the cost of the Improvements the City Council deems it necessary to borrow the sum of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000) and issue bonds therefor as authorized by the provisions of Act 175, Public Acts of Michigan, 1952, as amended ("Act 175"); and

WHEREAS, the Improvements are in accordance with the purposes enumerated in Act 51, Public Acts of Michigan, 1951 ("Act 51"); and

WHEREAS, the revenues received by the City from the Michigan Transportation Fund pursuant to Act 51 in the year preceding this contemplated borrowing are more than sufficient to comply with all the requirements specified in Section 4 of Act 175,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

1. The plans and estimates of cost of the Improvements are hereby approved and adopted.

2. The period of usefulness of the Improvements is estimated to be not less than twenty (20) years

3. The City Council hereby determines to borrow the sum of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000) and issue bonds of the City therefor pursuant to the provisions of Act 175 (the "Bonds"), for the purpose of providing funds to pay part of the cost of the Improvements, with the remaining cost of the Improvements to be defrayed from funds on hand.

4. The Bonds shall be designated 1989 MICHIGAN TRANSPORTATION FUND BONDS and shall consist of bonds registered as to principal and interest of the denominations of any multiple of $5,000 not exceeding for each maturity the maximum principal amount of the Bonds of that maturity and numbered consecutively in order of registration of transfer. The Bonds will be dated as of November 1, 1989 and be payable on August 1st of each year as follows:

$25,000 1990 to 1997, inclusive; $50,000 1988 and 1999

The Bonds shall bear interest to be determined at public sale but not to exceed twelve percent (12%) per annum payable on February 1, 1990 and semi-annually thereafter. The Bonds will not be subject to prior redemption

5. The Bonds shall be executed in the name of the City with the facsimile signatures of the Mayor and the City Clerk and shall bear the facsimile of the City seal. No Bond of this series shall be valid until authenticated by an authorized signature of the transfer agent designated in the notice of sale of the Bonds. The Bonds shall be delivered to the transfer agent for authentication and be delivered by the transfer agent to the purchaser in accordance with instructions from the Treasurer of the City upon payment of the purchase price for the Bonds in accordance with the bid therefor when accepted. Executed blank bonds for registration and issuance to transferees shall simultaneously, and from time to time thereafter as necessary, be delivered to the transfer agent for safekeeping

6. Any Bond may be transferred upon the books required to be kept pursuant to this section by the person in whose name it is registered, in person or by the registered owner's duly authorized attorney, upon surrender of the Bond for cancellation, accompanied by delivery of a duly executed written instrument of transfer in a form approved by the transfer agent. Whenever any Bond or Bonds shall be surrendered for transfer, the City shall execute and the transfer agent shall authenticate and deliver a new Bond of Bonds, in like aggregate principal amount. The transfer agent shall require the payment by the bondholder requesting the transfer of any tax or other governmental charge required to be paid with respect to the transfer. The date of determination of the registered owner for purposes of payment of interest as provided in this resolution may be changed by the City to conform to market practice in the future. The principal of the Bonds shall be payable at the office of the transfer agent designated by the transfer agent.

7. To provide moneys to pay the principal of and interest on the Bonds and in accordance with the provisions of Act 175, there is hereby made an irrevocable appropriation of the amount necessary to pay the principal of and interest on the Bonds from the moneys to be derived from State-collected taxes returned to the City for highway purposes, pursuant to law. The Treasurer of the City is directed, each year that any of the principal of and interest on the Bonds remains unpaid, to set aside in a separate depository account, to be designated 1989 MICHIGAN TRANSPORTATION FUND BONDS DEBT RETIREMENT FUND, sufficient moneys from revenues received during such year from the Michigan Transportation Fund pursuant to law to pay the principal of and interest on the Bonds next maturing. The Treasurer is further directed to open a separate depository account, to be designated 1989 MICHIGAN TRANSPORTATION FUND BONDS CONSTRUCTION FUND into which the proceeds of the Bonds, less accrued interest and premium, if any, shall be deposited, which account shall be used to pay the costs of constructing the Improvements. Proceeds remaining after completion of the Improvements shall be applied as permitted by law

8. Pursuant to Act 175, and as additional security for the prompt payment of the principal of and interest on the Bonds, there is hereby irrevocably pledged the limited tax full faith and credit of the City, and in the event of insufficiency of funds primarily pledged to the payment thereof, the City covenants and agrees to provide for such insufficiency from such resources as are lawfully available to it

9. The Bonds shall be in substantially the following form subject to such changes as to ministerial form as may be reasonably requested by the transfer agent

The Northville Record

Our Opinions

Local wetlands rules deserve exploration

The steady encroachment of development into Northville Township sends more than a few red flags skyward.

Those who have witnessed large-scale development in other locales can — and should — lend a careful eye to the slick land plans proffered by multi-million-dollar firms negotiating to stake their claim to the township's up-to-date version of 1849 California.

Yes, there's gold in them thar' planned residential communities, and the task of protecting the sanctity of the township lies in the laps of a few conscientious, well-intentioned, but overworked and part-time planning commissioners.

The commissioners rush from their full-time jobs to gather once a month in the township office to help plot a course for the future of this community in transition. The pressures are great, the resources limited, and the allotted time to map strategy is minute. And recently, they've been caught short.

Northville Township has been force-fed the by-product of a development plan in Livonia by the Jonna Company, the result being a mitigation of a wetlands on Jonna property here. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources says "put it here" and the township is powerless to impact, much less stop, action which it may feel is not in the community's best interests.

City council did right in rejecting apartments

City officials should be commended for keeping a handle on downtown development with their polite rejection of Singh Development's proposal of apartments over its parking garage proposed for Center and Cady.

The 51 apartments, while perhaps more aesthetically pleasing than the garage alone, would have resulted in a six-story building on the structure's south side. Needless to say, such a structure would not be in keeping with the one- and two-story homes just south of the site. City officials have made a commitment to let that area remain a neighborhood, and their recent decision reaffirms that commitment.

"Right now I see the end of the commercial area at the end of the lot at MAGS," Mayor Chris Johnson said at Monday's council meeting. "We're very concerned about the aesthetics of this particular deck."

The proposal by Singh Development was not something to reject outright, either. It was a creative attempt by the company to further develop the site. If not for the neighborhood to the south, the apart-

ENVIRONMENT

Caught without the protection of a wetlands ordinance, the township is faced with the cruel fact of having no self-determination over the Waterford Pond site. That hurts, but sometimes even bureaucracies can learn by getting burned.

The time has come for Northville Township to adopt a wetlands ordinance, not only based upon the fear of being pushed around by the big boys, but also because massive development too often can wreak havoc on the fragile ecology of wetlands.

A woodlands ordinance is already on the books in the township; a natural extension is the protection of wetlands supplies and the flora and fauna whose lives suffer with each fertilizer runoff, or diesel oil spill, or over-reaching bulldozer.

There has been talk in the township halls of a wetlands ordinance. There should be more. Such an ordinance is a natural and necessary step to protect the environment of the township, and officials should pursue its adoption.

ments may have been a good idea. While the idea of apartments was acceptable, the scale of the structure was not.

Even after the decision, Singh officials and the city's parking-deck consultant, Richard Rich, worked with the city council to minimize the impact of the deck.

Council members made their decisions for other reasons as well, including the fact that apartments would have prevented the addition of another level to the structure in the future. More surface parking will also be left in the remainder of the MAGS parking lot, and more room to add on to the structure to the west. Such foresight on the council's part bodes well for future development.

City officials should be commended for avoiding letting the dreams of further development blind them to the realities of the neighborhoods where such development occurs. By working with the master plan to define future land use in the city, officials can help to ensure that further development does not negatively impact the city's residential areas as well.

It's no brochure

By Mike Tyree

Not one person told me I was doing the right thing by moving back to Michigan. In fact, when I announced my intention to leave Florida — Sunshine State, the Sun Coast, the Land of Opportunity, and all that jazz — I was met by disbelief.

Laughter and scorn soon followed.

But that's all right. I can step away from the palm trees, and the beaches, and the rum-and-fruit-juice drinks, and the tennis in February, and come back here with a smile on my face.

And that's because Florida ain't all it's cracked up to be.

It's a great place to visit, to be sure, but I didn't want to live there. The glossy brochures touting the state do not tell all. For every sun-drenched photograph of the Naples beach, there are a thousand people struggling at minimum-wage jobs, stranded in an economic time warp because employers know there will always be some other hungry fool stumbling down Highway 41.

For every Gulf-front condominium towering into the sky, there are many more little shacks renting for about $650 a month, with the odd disclaimer, "You gotta pay the sun tax."

And most of those weather-beaten shanties, as well as the condos, come complete with their own starter kit of exotic Florida wildlife. Those of you who winter in the sunny climes know I'm talking about insects. In Florida, they grow cockroaches the size of small dogs, then give them the neutral-sounding name "palmetto bugs." These brash creatures know no cultural barriers — they'll skitter across the floor during a dinner party at an expensive estate, or wrestle a child for the last drumstick in the refrigerator of a dumpy duplex.

Heard enough? Wait, there's more. Scorpions curled up in shoes . . . ornery fire ants waiting to clamp their jaws into an unsuspecting leg . . . battalions of mosquitoes and omnipresent clouds of tiny biting flies called "no see-ums" waiting for victims.

And sports? I don't know about you, but I never could get warmed up to dog racing, jai alai, driving big trucks through mud bogs, and wrasslin' gators. Here, basketball is played in the correct season (winter), and football pre-game warmups don't have to be sanctioned by video preachers. And it will be great to see a hockey game again.

But I'm not here to bury Florida. Instead, I want to make sure Michigan is given its due.

Could anyone ask for more than the gorgeous autumn weather we've witnessed lately? I left the Naples area about a month ago, and the thermometers were still stuck in the mid-90's. You couldn't breathe without perspiring down there, but here, ah, take a deep breath and enjoy the change of seasons.

And weather is not the only climatic difference between the two states. Politically, philosophically, and intellectually, the south just does not compare with the north. My two years in Florida did nothing but reinforce prior negative feelings toward so-called "southern pride," which to me is just another term for blatant racism, ignorance, and knee-jerk conservatism.

Fortunately, Michigan and its cornucopia of treasures beckoned.

Ann Arbor, that island of deep thought, tolerance, and diversity, is just moments away. Pristine trout streams wind through the northern part of the state. Maple trees produce an artist's palette of colors, lie dormant a few months, and usher in the spring with rejuvenating greens. The Pistons, Red Wings, and Wolverines keep us happy with winners.

And most of all, progressive politics, concern for the environment, and the hope for racial equality are much more likely to rear their pretty heads here in Michigan.

So keep on laughing, y'all. Living in a place I enjoy will help keep me warm this winter. I'm glad to have the opportunity to say yes to Michigan again.

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

I was stretched out on the couch when she got home from work. "Enjoying your vacation?" she asked.

"Yep," I answered concisely, attempting to maintain my objective of expending as little energy as possible.

"So what have you done today?"

"You're looking at it," I replied succinctly.

"You've laid on your back and watched television all day? Is that what you're saying?"

"Yep. Well . . . if you must know, I did do a couple of other things," I responded, temporarily forgetting my energy-saving resolution. "I took several short naps, worked a little on the crossword puzzle and read one or two chapters of my book when I wasn't sleeping. But other than that, I haven't moved a whole lot."

I'm not sure why, but she didn't seem pleased that I was relaxing as much as I was.

"What about cleaning the garage?" she asked. "That's something that needs to be done. Or how about cleaning the back room? You could do that? Or the picnic table? The picnic table needs to come off the patio into the garage. You could do that."

"But nooooooooo. You're not doing any of that. You're watching television. Taking naps. Working that silly crossword puzzle. And reading another darn book."

"That's why they call it a vacation," I explained, refusing to let myself feel even the slightest twinge of guilt for doing absolutely nothing.

"And when do you think these things are going to get done?"

"I'm not really sure, Scarlet," I grinned. "And, frankly, my dear, I really don't give a darn. I'm on vacation."

Parkland comments are clarified

To the editor:

We would like to respond to an article which appeared in the Oct. 12, 1989 issue of the Northville Record which pertains to city recreation. The article quotes our firm and states that there are enough recreation sites in the area. We would like to clarify this position because we feel that this is only a partially accurate statement and some of our comments were taken out of context.

First, our comments were primarily directed to neighborhood parks and passive recreation in the city and did not apply to all recreation activities or township recreation. The city does appear to have an adequate amount of neighborhood parks. However, the article did not mention that many of these sites are found on private lands. This includes such facilities as the Swim Club, Pheasant Ridge Park, Lexington Park and Abbey Knoll Park. Without these private facilities, the city could well be deficient in terms of recreation areas.

Our comments were not directed towards community-wide recreation, which combines both township and city activity. On a community-wide level, we recognize the need for additional parks and improvements. The Northville Recreation Department schedules games on leased or loaned sites for softball and soccer usage. This arrangement meets current demand; however, long-term usage and availability of these fields is tentative and it is projected that with the loss of Lapham Field or county facilities, a very clear deficiency will exist for recreation facilities.

Our comments also included an analysis with state and national standards. These standards suggest a "technical" adequacy for certain facilities only if marginal playing fields at certain school sites are included. Many of these fields are suitable for informal play or practice but are not adequate for league play. It is recognized that each community is different, and we are aware that the Northville area is an active and growing community with higher-than-normal demand for softball, baseball, soccer and other recreation use.

In summary, our comments at the planning commission meeting were directed toward only one aspect of neighborhood recreation within the city and were not to be applied to community-wide recreation demand. We also believe that our comments should not have been taken to mean that additional recreation sites or improvements are not necessary for the community.

Gift is exciting

To the editor:

Last Friday I circled and circled downtown Northville looking fruitlessly for a parking place to do two quick errands on Main Street. When I realized that the crowds were for the arts and crafts sale at the recreation building, I rejoiced that it was so successful for all concerned. My pleasure in the fact that so many residents and non-residents flooded our town and brought their money with them was diluted by the fact that I had to cheat a little and park at the library and walk to Main — a pleasure on one of fall's more glorious days. Shoppers for the show obviously were not taking a chance on parking at the library because of the 30-minute limit, so there was space.

My thoughts inevitably progressed to the possibility that the Northville / Northville Township library might someday have its own lovely location away from the busyness of downtown, a place where the availability of parking would be greatly increased and such restrictive time limits probably not imposed.

Two years ago, when the Friends of the Library surveyed the community regarding where a new library might be built, the biggest complaint about the existing library was the shortage of parking space and the too-short 30-minute limit.

A significant number of the respondents want the library to be built in the city so they can walk to it and do their business in connection with other errands. However, when these respondents were asked how often they actually walked to the library, the numbers were negligible.

If our community should build a library on the beautiful 71.8 acres recently donated to the township by former resident Frieda Haller, some residents will be able to walk to the library, but it may not be the same ones who can walk to it now.

It's time to look at the general good and build an adequate library with adequate parking space rather than look to the good of a small group of library users who occasionally walk to the library, worthy though that ideal may be.

Bike trails are in the not too distant future, along with sidewalks, so it may be that those who wish to get their exercise along with their books will be accommodated.

Let us try to soothe ruffled feathers and rejoice in the possibilities this gift of beautiful land will bring to our community.

Betty Griffin

Long-term gift

Editor's note: This is a copy of a letter sent by a local resident to his grandchildren.

Dear Becky, Katie and Sean:

I gave you a present today that you'll have to grow up considerably to understand. I and hundreds of other grandparents and parents just voted for a $16-million school bond issue and the ensuing increased taxes to support it.

This ensures that Northville schools will stay on a par with adjoining school districts, retain a high statewide ranking and continue to provide a quality education.

Unlike most presents I give to you, you won't nicely say, "Thank you, Grandfather!" — at least not for a good number of years, and then I hope you'll truly appreciate what you have been given.

John C. Haas

Cable needs

To the editor:

There are quite a number of retired citizens in the community who, having a keen interest in the affairs of our Federal Government — and time to see it in action — find it less than satisfactory that our local cable company, Omnicom, does not provide us with C-SPAN II, the channel that shows the Senate in Washington, when it is in session.

We greatly appreciate having C-SPAN I on Channel 44, which shows the House of Representatives, gavel to gavel. What better public service can Omnicom provide than to plug us into the workings of our government in Washington?

I implore our local governments to use whatever influence they may have to bring our need to be fully informed citizens to the attention of Omnicom.

Values important in STEP program

This is another in a continuing series of columns by Northville Youth Assistance Director Mary Ellen King.

In the Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (STEP) class, family values and the influence of family values on teen's lifestyle are discussed.

A family value is anything that is important to either parent, regardless of whether both parents are in agreement on the value. There are two basic types of family values — values that family members are conscious of and those which are outside a family's level of awareness. Examples of conscious values are education, religion, money and work. Examples of values that families are not aware of are being in control, the need to be right and overconcern with status and the need to win.

The teen years are the time when young people question parental values. Often the teen rejects family values which causes conflict between parents and teens. Parents need to recognize that it is a normal part of growing up for teens to reject or question their parents' values.

It is important for teens to develop their own set of values. This development takes place by having the opportunity to examine family values. The teen needs to look at what their parents believe, explore the pros and cons which are related to a particular issue, and then take, modify or reject the family value according to their own belief.

There may be many areas in which parents and their teens will have different values and teens will make different value decisions than their parents. If teens are to become independent and responsible, then they need to learn to make decisions for themselves and accept the responsibility for those decisions. The challenge for parents is to give teenagers this responsibility.

If, for example, Bob has a weight problem but insists on eating "junk food," he'll have to live with the results. By making decisions and experiencing the consequences, teenagers can develop strong values for themselves.

In order for teens to be fully aware of their parents' values, these values need to be expressed in a friendly, non-dominating way. Once the parents' opinion has been stated, it is important to encourage a two-way conversation with the teen. The parent may not agree with the teen's values but by discussing the issue a common ground may be reached. Teens need to look upon their parents as people with whom they can explore their values and not just as people who enforce rules and regulations.

Keep in mind:

- Communicate your values clearly.
- Act in accordance with what you say.

If you believe in something, your teen will expect to see you practice it.

- Recognize and accept the fact that teens will make their own value decisions.

If you and your teen's values are miles apart, you are welcome to call Northville Youth Assistance at 344-1618 to discuss your difference.

Supreme shudders

By Tim Richard

Often I find it difficult to suppress a shudder when I read a news story about supreme-court decisions.

The reason is that high court decisions set precedents, and lower courts follow the precedents.

The rule has the Latin name "stare decisis," meaning "let the decision stand." The result is that lower courts and lawyers are bound by the legal rule established in that decision, whether the case makes sense or not.

My latest shudder came earlier this month when the Texas Supreme Court ruled the state's system of funding schools unconstitutional.

"A remedy is long overdue," said Justice Oscar Mauzy's 9-0 opinion. "The legislature must take immediate action."

Again: "A Band-Aid will not suffice; the system itself must be changed."

The case was brought in 1984 by school districts with low property values. Some districts in Texas were able to spend as little as $2,112 per pupil; others, as much as $19,333.

Michiganians should know about it because we fund our schools much the same way Texas does — by a combination of state aid and local property taxes.

The difference is that the gap between districts in Michigan is tighter — $2,500 to $7,000, and that $7,000 is an exaggerated number because it includes capital spending, not just operating costs.

Texas clearly has a worse system than Michigan has. That's scary if the Texas case becomes any kind of precedent — or even an inspiration — to districts challenging the Michigan system.

The odds of its being a precedent are slim, fortunately. First, Texas Gov. Bill Clements is reported to be seeking a special session of the legislature to remedy the situation, so the case is unlikely to be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. Second, the Texas court ruling was based on that state's constitution, not the U.S. Constitution.

But you can see what kind of encouragement lawyers across the country will be getting.

Texas seems to have a pretty terrible situation, yet it's the most terrible situations that make cases which set precedents for the rest of us.

Consider the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in the Stanford Daily case of the 1970s. A student newspaper covered a disruption in which a campus building was taken over by an unruly lot. The lower chief of police decided he wanted the newspaper's files for evidence against the unruly lot.

The Stanford Daily's mistake was to cover the takeover from inside the building — behind the battle lines of the insurgents.

Ouch! The Stanford Daily lost. Since then, files of mainstream newspapers and broadcasters also have become fair game for cops too lazy to do their own detective work.

That's "stare decisis" at work. The current flag-burning controversy arose from another bad case going back many years. The defendant and victorious appellant was something of a creep, as I read the news accounts.

It would have been better if the cops had busted him for fouling the air with smoke or littering the streets with ashes, or some such petty annoyance.

The U.S. Supreme Court reversed the conviction, ruling that flag burning was a form of expression protected by the Bill of Rights. So now Congress and President Bush are competing for popular favor by trying to write corrective legislation.

There's an old saying that "No man's life and property are safe when the Legislature is in session."

Ditto for supreme courts.

Sellers carve pumpkin market

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Although goblins and ghosts won't be trekking across Novi for about two more weeks, local store owners report brisk sales of Halloween's favorite fruit — the pumpkin.

"(Pumpkin) sales have been very good so far and we expect it to be real good for the next two weeks," said Dottie Osiecki, owner of Ray's Produce on Grand River near Novi Road.

Osiecki said a steady rainfall this year has led to a good pumpkin crop, meaning there is a plentiful variety of pumpkins.

"Last year, it didn't rain often and when it did it happened all at once," she said. "Last year's pumpkins rotted fast, but this year we've had perfect weather to grow pumpkins."

With many different shapes and sizes of pumpkins to choose from, Osiecki said most of her customers select a pumpkin based on personal preference.

"Tall pumpkins and bumpy pumpkins are very popular," she added. "People usually like pumpkins with nice sized stems and good color."

Osiecki noted that the most important factor in choosing a pumpkin seems to be where the spherical orange object will be placed by customers.

She said pumpkin prices at Ray's Produce range from $2.99 for an average sized pumpkin to $4.99 for a large one.

In addition to pumpkins, Osiecki's son Ray said tan-colored corn stalks also have been popular this fall holiday season.

"They (corn stalks) are definitely a hot item," Ray Osiecki said, adding that a bunch of stalks costs $2.39 and can be used for decoration around light poles.

Meanwhile, Chris Cagle, owner of Glenda's Market and Nursery on Grand River near Haggerty, said pumpkin sales at his store have also been pretty good.

Cagle said average-sized pumpkins have been popular at Glenda's, as the price of pumpkins at the road-side store range from $1 to $15.

"We'll probably hit peak sales this weekend," he said, noting Glenda's sells between 10 and 15 tons worth of pumpkins each year.

Novi resident Mary Lou Harris, who was buying squash at Glenda's, said she recently bought a pumpkin at a farm in northern Michigan.

"My husband and I were driving by a farm and saw a large pumpkin and thought we'd buy it," Harris said. She noted that buying a pumpkin is not a fall ritual in her home.

Along with the brisk sale of large pumpkins, pie pumpkins also have been selling well, according to Dottie Osiecki.

Charity kicks off with 'walking' start

Wayne County will join communities throughout the nation to sponsor a local first annual "Walk America," a walkathon to raise funds for the local Meals-On-Wheels program and increase public awareness of the nutritional needs of the elderly and homebound.

The walk will be held on Saturday, Nov. 11, from 9 a.m. to noon, at the University of Michigan-Dearborn Fieldhouse.

This event is being held in conjunction with the National Meals-On-Wheels Foundation which is sponsoring a Walkathon to help raise funds for Meals-On-Wheels programs across the country. The national event will include a walk in the Florida Keys on November 24-27.

All proceeds from the local walkathon will be used to provide meals to seniors in 34 communities of Western Wayne County and Downriver. Walkers can designate the exact city in which they want their contributions to be used. The Detroit Area Agency on Aging will also be participating in the event to raise funds for the City of Detroit and east-side communities.

"Wayne County is currently providing over one million meals to seniors in the county," Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara said. "Since 1980, the demand for food service has more than doubled, and the elderly population is rapidly growing."

According to McNamara, approximately 3,800 meals are served per day at 46 congregate meal sites and into 2,800 homes. Limited funds and a growing population of older Americans have caused the county to seek public and private support to meet the escalating nutritional needs of senior citizens. The goal of the county's nutrition services is to eliminate a continually expanding waiting list of seniors for the Meals-On-Wheels service.

The Meals-On-Wheels program provides a hot, well-balanced meal to eligible seniors in need of assistance. In addition, it furnishes liquid supplement to seniors not able to ingest solid food due to medical disabilities. Many celebrities have agreed to participate in the national walkathon. Actor Ann Jillian is the national spokesperson for this event.

Under the guidelines of the "Walk America," participants in the walkathon will agree to obtain donations for the Meals-on-Wheels program. Volunteers will be able to walk the 5 kilometers (3.1 miles) inside or outside the U of M-Dearborn field house.

Transportation will be provided from the Northville Community Recreation Center at 8 a.m. or from homes or apartments by calling 349-4140. Cost for the transportation is $3.00 per person. Anyone may participate.

Tom Rice is the owner of the Gitfiddler Music Shop

Gitfiddler adds practice studios to meet demand

By BOB NEEDHAM

Tom Rice used to think that six studio rooms would be more than enough to handle all the music students coming to the Gitfiddler in downtown Northville.

He was wrong. After all, the Gitfiddler owner started out with only three rooms in his original location on North Center Street. The 1979 move into the old Amoco gas station on Main Street doubled his space for lessons, providing room for about 300 students a week.

In recent years, though, the Gitfidler operation grew so much that there just was not enough room for the students. Rice added a trailer behind the store, but that was a temporary solution at best. The shop built up a waiting list of approximately 100 potential students.

At the same time, there had always been problems with crowding in the store. A room at the back was used as both repair shop and drum studio, making it a little difficult at times to hear the nuances in the instruments out in the main store.

The next step was pretty obvious — expansion.

Rice got his necessary city ap-

The Gitfiddler now has 13 studios and the capacity to offer private lessons for 800 students per week

Novi News/KATHRYN BENDER

provals and went about the project. Except for a few finishing touches, it is now completed and in use.

"Back in '79, we never envisioned running out of studio space," he said recently while surveying the new rooms. "We reached 400 (students a week) when we decided to put on the addition."

The store now has 13 studio rooms with a total capacity of about 800 students a week, Rice estimated. "It's kind of like a little Gitfiddler Academy here," he said.

The addition allowed the old repair shop to become a sound room which Rice said is "not soundproof but extremely sound retardant." There is a separate drum room now, as well as an expanded repair shop. The store now has someone doing repairs — of "everything that makes music," including brass instruments and electronics — full time, he said.

In addition, for the first time in his 16 years owning the Gitfiddler, Rice now has a small office.

"In 10 years I was here (in the Main Street location), I worked out of a little cubbyhole," he said. "Now we have a place to come and solve the mysteries of business. And they are mysterious."

In spite of the overall expansion, Rice still concentrates the business on teaching people instruments. When he first opened the store, he said, "My main focus was to provide people a place to come and learn to play music in a comfortable environment."

The store offers lessons for a wide variety of instruments including such things as the dobro and the hammer dulcimer — for which they have three different teachers. The store employs a total of 33 teachers and draws students from Northville, Novi, South Lyon, Plymouth, Canton, Livonia, Redford, Detroit and Ann Arbor, Rice said.

No cause for alarm over corporate takeovers, says UM prof

"There's no cause for alarm, no reason for panic" because of corporate takeovers, a University of Michigan professor told an audience of business leaders recently.

"There's no supporting evidence of harm to people or communities" when one company bids successfully for control of another, Michael Bradley, a professor of business administration, finance and law told an audience gathered by the U-M business school.

Bradley's numbers showed that stockholders in targeted companies are big gainers, and there are no big layoffs resulting from takeovers.

"The popular press has Americans going to hell. They don't know what's going on or else they're listening to targeted managers," Bradley said.

Hostile takeovers are just one form of corporate restructuring. One company, often called a "raider," offers a price 30 percent or more beyond the market price for control of the target firm.

Other restructurings, said Bradley, are negotiated merges and "leveraged buyouts," or LBOs. With an LBO, a firm's managers fight a hostile takeover by issuing risky, high yield "junk bonds" to take a firm off the stock market and into private control.

"Junk bonds are not doing very well," said Bradley, adding that they are really equity rather than debt instruments.

During the Reagan presidency, the number of transactions doubled from 2,000 in 1981 to the 4,000 range currently. Total value of the transactions tripled from $60 billion in 1981 to a high of more than $200 billion in 1986.

Shareholders of the targeted firms are big winners. "Takeovers are paid for mainly by cash distributions. Much net wealth is created. These are not paper profits. These are pictures of George (Washington) you can go out and spend."

After a takeover, research and development expenditures tend to rise.

He said a U-M doctoral student is studying the effects of takeovers on employment and so far has found "no negative effect. There's more employment... That's where the research is going, but it's very slow."

An audience questioner raised the case of United Air Lines (UAL), where employees bought control at $300 a share of a company whose stock earlier had been less than $100 a share.

"Will you feel better getting on UAL? I'll feel a lot worse with an over-leveraged, rather desperate corporation run by desperate people," the listener said.

"I can make just as many arguments that it will be more efficient," Bradley replied. "We need some evidence. I don't know. I don't think there will be a material change (in safety)."

Merritt Fox, a law professor, replied that gains to targeted shareholders weren't the only consideration.

"There's a sense of demoralization (at the targeted company)," Fox said. "It's difficult to get managers to identify with team interests if they don't know the team will be around. The sense of team identity disintegrates. They are working in an environment where you have a high chance of losing your job."

Fox noted a tendency for new owners to move operations to lower cost areas, resulting in a geographic redistribution of wealth between regions. "There are clearly losers," he said.

Joel Seligman, also a law professor, said the hottest area of anti-takeover law these days is at the state level. Legislatures are passing laws to protect local firms. "But state law may have gone too far in protecting management," he said.

He noted the U.S. Supreme Court, in a 6-3 decision, upheld an Indiana law saying target boards had the right to ask stockholder approval of a takeover. Michigan has adopted a similar law sponsored by Rep. John Bennet, D-Redford.

Seligman said there still are difficulties with state anti-takeover laws: The federal government has jurisdiction over interstate commerce, and federal law is pre-eminent when there is a conflict with state law.

State law can have only limited impact, he said, because 60 percent of all U.S. corporations are chartered in the State of Delaware.

Existing home sales buck national trend

Bucking a national decline in existing home sales, the local market continued to gain in July with a 2.7 percent jump from a year ago.

A monthly report from Metro MLS, the state's largest multiple listing service, showed its members closing sales on 1,530 single family homes and 128 condominiums. This brought the combined year-to-date total to 11,412 units or 3.7 percent above the 1988 pace.

"One reason may be the substantial differences in prices here compared to many other sections of the country," said Eric J. Hunt, Metro MLS president. "Nationally, the median price has climbed to $93,000 while it remains at $81,000 in our area of the Detroit metro market."

Despite strong sales through the first seven months of 1989, Hunt said there is no shortage of good homes in most areas of the local market.

"Listings this year have run more than eight percent higher than last year with more than 7,500 active at the end of July," he stated. "But, with the recent dip in mortgage interest rates, well-maintained homes in preferred locations usually disappear off our lists in a hurry."

Metro MLS member offices serve a 1,600 square mile territory covering northwest Detroit and major portions of Wayne, Oakland and Livingston counties. Sales in Detroit this year have included 1,049 units with neighborhood median prices ranging from $26,000 to $40,000.

Suburban sales leaders and their median prices include Livonia (1,018 units, $89,900); Farmington/Farmington Hills (804 units, $132,000); Dearborn (660 units, $69,000); Redford Township (659 units, $55,000); Westland (627 units, $61,900); Canton Township (508 units, $102,600); Southfield (496 units, $80,000); Dearborn Heights (443 units, $58,500); Walled Lake (347 units, $85,000) and Novi (344 units, $113,500).

Novi mall announces new hours on Sunday

New Sunday hours at Twelve Oaks Mall are going to give customers more time to shop during the week's most productive shopping day.

After a successful tryout, Twelve Oaks has decided to extend Sunday closing time one hour to 6 p.m. The center opens at noon on Sundays.

"Over the last few years, we have been noticing a gradual change in the shopping habits of our customers," explained Philip Morosco, Twelve Oaks general manager. "As two-income families become more the rule, Sunday becomes the only chance many people have to shop. We've extended our hours to accommodate these shoppers."

Current national and local marketing research verifies that Sunday has become the week's most productive shopping day.

"The latest demographic studies show that the pressures of life today allow families less and less leisure and discretionary time," said Tom Adams, vice president of marketing for The Taubman Company, managing agent for Twelve Oaks Mall.

"People try to pack all of their social and recreational activities into Sunday, and they sometimes get a late start on their shopping," says Adams. "We feel that extra hour of shopping time late Sunday will make a measurable difference to many."

Twelve Oaks joins three other major Detroit-area centers — Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn, Lakeside in Sterling Heights and Briarwood in Ann Arbor — in extending Sunday hours until 6 p.m.

Lifestyle a poor reflection of net worth

To their neighbors, Bob and Helen appear to be living examples of the high life.

They own the biggest house on the block, a vacation home in the mountains and a Mercedes Benz to boot. What's more, they've just spent a few weeks vacationing in the South Pacific.

If this description makes you green with envy, take another look. Bob and Helen are up to their ears in mortgages and personal loans. And the credit card bills for that South Pacific vacation may sink them further into debt.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, lifestyle is a poor reflection of wealth. If you have only a small mortgage on your house, your car loan is paid off, and you have a solid nest egg of IRAs, savings accounts, and some stocks and bonds, your net worth is probably much more than the free-spending Jones'. In other words, you may not be as rich as Rockefeller, but you may be worth more than you think.

WHAT IS NET WORTH? Simply put, net worth is the difference between what you own and what you owe. What this means is that sometimes the true measure of wealth is not who owns more, but who owes less.

Let's look at an example. Bob and Helen purchased their $200,000 home with a $30,000 down payment and $170,000 mortgage. Thus, the house accounts for only $30,000 of their net worth. On the other hand, Joe and Sara own a $100,000 house and owe just $5,000 more on the mortgage. As a result, their home represents a healthy $95,000 in net worth.

Money Management

CALCULATING AND EVALUATING YOUR NET WORTH: Of course, net worth cannot be judged solely by one's real estate holdings and mortgage balances.

To calculate your net worth, you have to add the market value of all your assets. In most cases, these will include your home, car, the cash surrender value of life insurance policies, personal property such as jewelry or furs, bank accounts and other types of investments.

If you have IRAs and other retirement plans, be sure to add in the cash value of each account. Pension funds should also be included in your list of assets, but only if they have a present value. If you are not yet vested and the funds have no current measurable worth, you should not view them as assets.

The same is true of any other resource that you will be able to access only if you eventually satisfy a certain requirement, such as working a minimum number of years at one firm or reaching a specified age.

After you determine the total value of your assets, subtract your liabilities, including such items as mortgages, car loans, consumer loans, taxes owed and credit card balances. The figure you obtain is your net worth.

By itself, a net-worth statement is simply a snapshot of your financial standing at one particular point in time. But don't underestimate its importance. Your first net-worth calculation serves as a benchmark against which all future calculations will be measured. By comparing "snapshots" of your finances taken at different times, you will be able to gauge your financial progress — or downfall. In other words, if you are striving to reduce consumer debt and accumulate assets, a semi-annual or annual net-worth calculation will provide you with a vivid and indisputable account of how close, or how far, you are to obtaining your goal.

IMPROVING YOUR FINANCES: Let's assume that you have calculated your net worth and, to your horror, you discover that you actually have a negative net worth. Should you worry? The answer depends on your age and circumstances.

If you have just obtained your first job and your first home, there is nothing unusual or alarming about carrying a student loan or purchasing new furniture with credit cards. Remember, most of us build net worth slowly over the years. As a result, younger individuals tend to have a much lower net worth than older people, who have had time to establish themselves.

If you are young and concerned about your net worth, CPAs recommend that you save at least five percent of your after-tax income. In addition, you should start building an emergency cash fund equivalent to three months of living expenses.

If you are nearing retirement, you had better take a long, hard look at your net worth statement. Make sure that you consider not only the bottom line — how much you are worth — but also the types of assets you hold. In most cases, you should probably begin transferring assets to investments that will generate dividend payments that can supplement your retirement benefits.

For example, if you and your spouse are the only ones living in a four-bedroom house, you may want to sell it and trade down to a smaller, more manageable home. Such a move will enable you to convert the equity in your home into cash for investments.

And if you are age 55 or older, you may be able to turn your home into an income-producing asset without having to pay taxes on the capital gain. As long as you meet the age, use and ownership requirements, you can generally exclude from your taxable income up to $125,000 of the profit you realize from selling your home. Your CPA can provide you with all the details about this valuable once-in-a-lifetime tax break.

Whatever your age or personal circumstances may be, the Michigan Association of CPAs recommends that you begin to monitor your financial health by calculating your net worth. If nothing else, you may discover that you are better off than you thought.

Connelly and his family live on a Milford Township farm where they breed and raise Arabian horses. He is president of the Arabian Horse Association of Michigan and a director of the International Arabian Horse Association.

Catherine and Jennifer Connelly, his two daughters, are also pursuing law careers. Catherine attends the University of Notre Dame Law School and Jennifer is in pre-law at the University of Michigan.

DR. EDWARD A. ROSE of Novi has completed continuing medical education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), the national association of family doctors.

The requirements call for the members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. The Academy, the country's largest medical association with more than 60,000 members, was the first national medical group to require members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education.

The Academy, founded in 1947 and headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., was instrumental in the establishment of a new primary specialty in family practice in 1969.

LEONA AND JOHN BERGMAN of Novi were honored for their achievements as Shaklee Sales Leaders at the 1989 Leadership Convention at the Scottsdale Princess, a unique luxury 450 acre resort in Arizona. Travel, accommodations, food and entertainment were provided by Shaklee Corporation as one of the benefits for top sales performance.

New products introduced at the convention include Performance, a fluid-replacement sports drink developed for the pilot of the Daedalus Project, world record holder for human powered flight; Formula I, a nutritional supplement with six vitamins and four minerals which are all key immunoreactive nutrients to help in supporting a healthy immune function; and Natural Impressions, a new line of complete skin care products which guarantees healthier looking skin in just three days. In addition, new extensions to Shaklee's BestWater Purification System were featured.

Procurement center assists small businesses

When the Business Development Center Procurement Assistance Program at Schoolcraft College worked on getting the United States Army to change its requirements for buying pizza, the results allowed Little Caesar's Corporation to compete more effectively on overseas pizza contracts.

Since the Business Development Center opened its doors in 1985, it has assisted 910 firms in securing 941 government contracts valued at $86,795,629.

Through its efforts, it has also created 789 jobs.

Although there are 20 similar programs around the state, Schoolcraft College is the first and only community college which assists companies in securing government contracts. The college's Business Development Center has been recognized as the state's most productive program by the Michigan Department of Commerce. In the most recent report, the Center provided 25 percent of all contracts awarded by the state. These results have been recognized by the Federal Government and the State of Michigan. As a result, the College's Business Development Center has been rewarded with more dollars in grants than any program in the state.

A number of companies have taken advantage of the customized training offered by the Center, and numerous classes have been designed for firms which want to upgrade employee skills. A customized management training program complete with a training kitchen has been developed for Little Caesar's Corporation.

Qualified unemployed persons will be given training scholarships and be hired by the corporation following successful completion of the program. All internal management staff and franchisees will receive training as well.

Among the many services the Center offers, the procurement staff will also mail or fax information to anyone interested in the services or products the state is planning to purchase. Through this service, the Center can assist hundreds of firms in bidding on State of Michigan contracts that they otherwise would not have been aware of.

The Center recently created a program to assist firms in implementing the new Drug-free Workplace Act. Because this act affects all government contractors, the Center is responsible for training all other state procurement center personnel as well.

Despite its success, the Center is always looking at other ways to expand its services. An export assistance program is in the planning stage. This program should surpass all of its ventures to date. The biggest challenge the Center faces is obtaining the money and space needed to accommodate this growth.

The problems of animal abuse just get bigger...and bigger...and bigger.

Studies show animal abuse can lead to human abuse.

On the morning of February 18, 1986, a 40-year old Dearborn man became annoyed at the barking of his sister's 9-year old German Shepherd, Toro. So annoyed, in fact, the man fashioned a spear out of an 8-inch knife taped to a 5-foot length of pipe and stabbed the dog repeatedly until he dropped to the floor. The stabbing was so severe, Toro later had to be destroyed.

But the cruelty didn't end there.

Just 10 months later, the same man approached a 56-year old Dearborn woman outside a local shopping center. Throwing her to the ground, he attempted to gouge her eyes out and choke her. He proceeded to stab a responding Dearborn police officer and had to be shot twice before being apprehended.

Disturbing? Yes.

Coincidental? No.

A recent study by Dr. Alan R. Felthous, M.D. of the University of Texas and Stephen R. Kellert, Ph.D. of Yale University concludes "a pattern of substantial animal abuse may conceivably be associated with a pattern of recurrent violence against people."

Granted, every case of animal abuse doesn't lead to human abuse. But too often, evidence shows that those who commit crimes against another human being have abused an animal in the past.

One such example is a 10-year old Boston youth who took perverse pleasure in trapping puppies and kittens in orange crates and shooting arrows into the box. The young man's name? Albert DeSalvo, later known as "The Boston Strangler."

Unfortunately, such animal abuse is usually unreported or ignored until it escalates.

The problem is that violence inflicted upon an animal, especially at the hands of a child, isn't always considered a problem. It's dismissed as a childish prank or rationalized as an error in judgment.

At the Michigan Humane Society, we do consider it a problem. Because animal abusers all too often grow into human abusers. That's why the MHS, as the only defense against animal abuse, is the first line of defense against human abuse.

That's why we continue to battle for stronger legislation, vigorous prosecution, tougher punishments and mandatory counseling of offenders.

The fact is, normal people don't abuse animals. Such actions are an early sign of deviant behavior. Recognized, it can be corrected. Ignored, it gets worse.

If you want to help prevent animal abuse, support the MHS with a generous contribution. If you're concerned about the increasing violence in our society, support the MHS.

Because if we can allow someone to commit an act of violence against an animal, we shouldn't be surprised when that individual strikes out against another human being.

The hard truth is, left unchecked, the next victim could be your pet, your child or even you.

Yes, I want to help prevent animal abuse.

Now's the time to send them packing

By Jim Wood

They pass your face like a breath of air and never touch you. They're like shadows or black butterflies, and if you listen hard, they squeak in the tiniest of voices.

The Germans call them fledermauser, or flying mice. We call them bats.

They are associated with Halloween, Batman, caves, haunted mansions and belfries... but it's your attic they actually prefer.

As many know, bats can be heard rustling in and out, and they raise a stink with their droppings and when they die. There's the danger of rabies if you're bitten. Women fear bats flying into their hair. And they're so hard to get rid of.

But not if you know what to do and when to do it.

That time is now, before the frosts become too frequent. Once cold weather closes in, the bat colony at your address is home for good.

"It's not always easy to get rid of bats in your home," says Glenn Dudderar, an extension wildlife specialist at Michigan State University, "but it gets impossible in winter. If you allow the bats to go into hibernation in your attic, that's where they'll be until spring. There's no way to rouse them once they've entered their dormant state."

The impatient householder would think of extermination at that point, but the professionals would say advise against it.

"If absolutely necessary, only in an emergency," said Kevin Clark, president of Critter Control Inc. in Westland. Like Dudderar, he is unwilling to kill the tiny flying mammals because they are so beneficial to man and the ecological balance.

Specifically, they eat lots and lots of insects people would sooner be rid of. And there are other reasons.

"Poisons are available to kill the bats, but that leaves you with dead bats to remove to avoid a smelly mess," says Dudderar.

"If some of them crawl or fall into places where you can't reach them, you could be smelling them for quite a while. Killing the bats really doesn't solve the bat problem because it does nothing to prevent more bats from moving back in later."

Neither does driving them out. Mothballs sort of work—if you can stand five pounds of them for every 2,000 square feet. Bats are sensitive to high-frequency sounds and can be forced to leave by some commercial sound devices.

An inexpensive one suggested by Dudderar can be made by attaching 2-3 "silent" dog whistles to an air pump, such as a large aquarium pump, and running it continually near the roosting area.

Brightly illuminating the roosting area continuously with four or more 100-watt bulbs has also worked after several days.

These measures, says Dudderar, "range in effectiveness from adequate, if used properly, to worthless." None of them keep the bats from returning promptly.

Doing that means getting them all out and preventing them from getting back in.

"This may mean standing on a different side of the house around sunset on several consecutive nights until you spot the bats leaving," says Dudderar.

Go outside a bit earlier so your eyes have a chance to adjust to the waning light, he said. Bats can be hard to see at that time.

When you've spotted where they're coming out, move fast while they're gone: stuff the openings—likely to be under eaves, around chimneys or near windows—with wood, window screening, hardware cloth, caulk, fiberglass insulation, masonry or some other material.

An alternative is to wait for a bright day and observe the darkened roosting area from the inside: you should be able to find the openings from light leaking in. Block all but one or two openings. When the bats leave by these at sunset, close them up, too.

Clark said he uses "check valves" when blocking up the exits. These are essentially PVC pipe placed vertically, say under eaves, which allows the bat to leave but is too slippery for it to crawl up through again.

He likes copper mesh, hardware cloth with only one-eighth to one-quarter-inch mesh to plug holes. Half-inch is too big, he said.

Sometimes he traps them. Sometimes he recommends a bat house.

A bat house is up on a pole like a martin house, a plain box made of cedar on the outside, anything rough on the inside, with a hole in the floor. Bats come up through the hole and cling to the rough walls.

There are six species of bats in Michigan, said Clark—the red, the hoary, the pallid, little brown, big brown and the endangered Indiana bat. Little browns are the most common in this area, followed by the big browns.

Big browns only nest in single-digit numbers, said Clark, but the little

When that happens, they tend to migrate into the walls, usually coming out in the basement, fluttering about and alarming folks.

He gets five or more calls a day at those times of the year, he said.

While it's true that bats shouldn't be killed simply because they're inconvenient or "creepy," and because of the fact they are ecologically beneficial, it's also true that they're very often rabid (see accompanying story).

This may not mean the bat is ill, but it will definitely make you ill if you're bitten by it. Seek medical treatment immediately. By the time symptoms develop, in as early as 10 days, death is certain. The incubation period is shorter for bites in the head and neck region.

It is also important to kill or capture the bat responsible so that it can

Watch for rabies

Bats are beneficial to man and nature, but don't get bit by one.

That is, rabies are believed to be endemic with bats. Through Sept. 26 of this year, said Marilyn Lee, director of preventive health services at the Livingston County Health Department, 21 animals (out of hundreds tested) have tested positive for rabies in the county and 18 of them have been bats. Last year, it was 21 out of 35.

"You must assume that a bat is rabid," she said.

On the other hand, unlike some rabid dogs, bats with rabies don't go looking for people to bite. It isn't even known, said Lee, whether rabies makes them ill, only that they carry the virus.

If bitten by a bat, however, get medical attention immediately.

"Once the symptoms of the disease develop in man, death is certain," says a booklet prepared by the county health department. "The incubation period varies from 10 days to one year, the average being 2-8 weeks. Bites to the head and neck region are of a more serious nature and apt to produce symptoms much earlier.

"Symptoms in man include extreme depression, headache, irritability, muscle spasms, delirium, coma, respiratory paralysis and death within a few days."

If bitten by a bat, immediately cleanse the wound thoroughly with soap and water. Then call your doctor or the health department.

Also, catch or clobber the bat—without getting bitten, of course. Or call the Livingston County Animal Shelter to do it. It will need to be sent to the Michigan Department of Public Health lab in Lansing to determine if it is rabid.

If there's any doubt, a series of rabies shots for the victim is necessary.

If you have pets, especially a cat, make sure they've had their rabies shots.

"Dogs and cats known to have been in contact with or bitten by a wild animal that tested positive for rabies have had to be quarantined for six months if the animal's shots aren't up to date," says the health department booklet. "A pet may come in contact with rabid animals without your knowledge."

"Bats were the third most commonly reported species, accounting for 14 percent of all rabid animals," in the nation in 1988, according to the National Center for Disease Control. This was up one percent from the year before.

Bats were the most widespread rabies carriers in the country—reported in 42 states, 10 of which had no other cases but bats.

Cats accounted in 1988 for the greatest proportion of domestic animals with rabies, for the first time, said the NCDC.

browns will average 20-40 in a colony, up to several hundred.

Clark, who is chairperson of the National Pest Control Association's Vertebrate Control Committee, said his phone starts ringing off the hook twice a year—in July-August and again in January-February. That's when sleeping bats in people's attics get too hot and too cold.

be tested for rabies. Call the Livingston County Animal Shelter or health department for this.

With all the horror literature about vampires and Halloween coming up, it's probably necessary to state that you won't be attacked in your bed by a bat, even a rabid one. Bats don't bite except in extreme defense, such as your hand closing on them.

Around the House: Designs for Living

An efficient ranch design

By James McAlexander

Three bedrooms/two baths is the minimum room arrangement for most growing families, and 1,200 to 1,300 square feet is the maximum size for many family budgets. In the Akron, these requirements intersect without sacrificing either privacy or convenience.

The master bedroom has a private bath—unusual in a house this size. The two front bedrooms share the centrally located main bath. All the sleeping areas lie along a side hall and are well separated from living and work spaces by the bathrooms and intervening closets.

The living room is just that, an all-purpose space for lounging, entertaining, work or play. An offset wall divides it from the cooking/eating areas behind, while maintaining an open traffic flow.

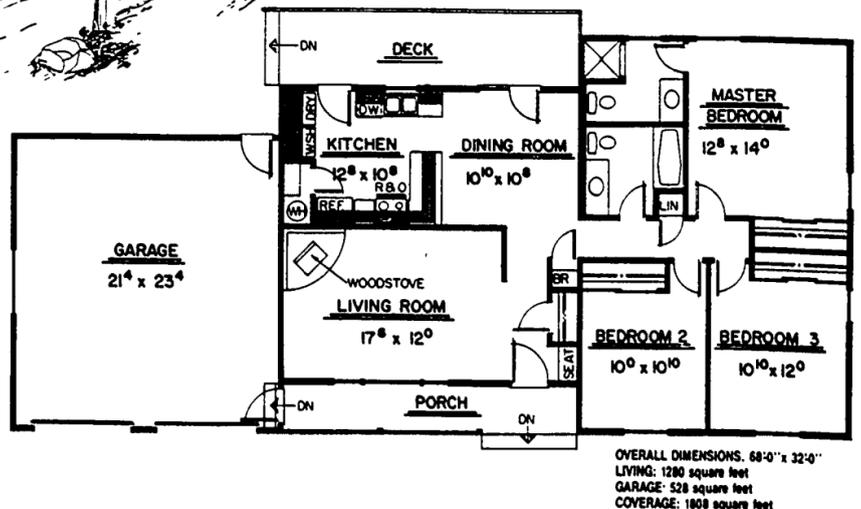

Although the dining room occupies the same framing space as the kitchen, it feels like a separate room because of the visual barrier of a serving bar and hanging cabinets. The sense of openness in the dining room is increased by double doors that look out onto a back deck.

The U-shaped kitchen has counters and appliances down either side, with pantry and cabinets in the far wall. This is also the location of the washer/dryer.

Placing utilities in the kitchen is the main space compromise in the Akron. It conserves square footage for a third bedroom, and answers numerous requests for combined work areas in smaller homes.

The Akron is conventional ranch style, but the inclusion of a covered front deck adds a touch of luxury, as well as providing a protected pathway between the two-car garage and main house.

For a study plan of the Akron (288-04), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Satsuma tea set

Antiques

Satsuma cups valued at $300 to $325

By James G. McCollam

Q: My tea set consists of tea pot, sugar and creamer, six plates, six saucers and five cups. The bottoms of the cups are transparent and show a picture of a geisha girl when held up to the light.

A: This would be classified as Satsuma, a type of ceramics made in Japan. It might sell for about $300 to $325 as is. A complete service with six cups would be worth about $350 to $375.

The transparent cup bottoms are called lithopanes.

Q: The enclosed mark is on the bottom of a figurine of a lady holding her shoes in one hand and her skirt in the other. She is 10 inches tall.

A: The mark your provided was used by the Kalk porcelain factory in Eisenberg, Germany, from 1904 to the present. The figurine would probably sell for about $125 to $135.

Q: Will you estimate the age and value of my stoneware clock? It is 13 inches tall by 12 inches in diameter and is hand-painted with a blue floral spray.

A: It is marked "E. L.P. Norton, Bennington, Vt."

The Norton Pottery was founded in 1793. From 1865 to 1882 their stoneware was marked "E. & L.P. Norton."

Your crock would probably sell in the $500 to $600 range.

Q: I have a Marilyn Monroe autograph. I am sure it is very valuable.

A: There are different types of autographs. Marilyn Monroe's signature on a piece of paper, menu, program, etc., sells for at least $100. A hand-written, signed letter would run $300 to $500. A single typewritten letter or document would be worth about $250.

I'm sorry but it is beyond the scope of this column to become involved in sales.

Q: I would like to know the vintage and value of a ceramic jardiniere marked "Regina" and "Made in Gouda, Holland."

A: It is 12 inches tall by 14 inches in diameter and is decorated in bright, posterlike colors.

Your Gouda jardiniere was probably made between 1900 and 1915. A dealer would price it about $225 to $235.

Q: I have a washbowl and matching pitcher in what looks like the Blue Willow pattern, but it is marked "Buffalo Pottery," with a picture of a buffalo.

Please tell me what you can about this set.

A: John Larkin and Elbert Hubbard founded this pottery in 1901. Blue Willow ware was one of the patterns made about 1910. By 1920, the company was producing nothing but hotel china.

A toilet set such as you describe would probably sell for $265 to $285 in good condition.

Sew Easy
Kid-size director's chair easy to do

By Barb Griffin

Give a lucky child the best seat in the house—one of his very own.

Start with a kid-size director's chair, add simple machine-sewn appliques and bright trim.

Materials:
Patterns; one child-size director's chair with yellow canvas chair back, seat and pocket; 1/8-yard each: white poplin, geranium-pink chintz, periwinkle-blue chintz, shirt-weight fusible interfacing, Stitch Witchery fusible webbing; scrap of orange poplin; one package green piping, 2 yards jumbo spring-green rickrack; 1/2 yard hot-pink, extra-wide bias tape; 1 1/2 yards 1/16-inch-wide periwinkle satin ribbon; three pink 1/2-inch star-shaped buttons, royal blue embroidery floss; disappearing ink fabric-marking pen; Scotchguard spray; matching threads.

Construction:

1. Back white poplin with fusible interfacing. Using patterns, cut out four small ducks and one large duck, all facing left, from the poplin. From orange poplin, cut four small duck bills and one large duck bill. Set aside.

2. Cut 24 each pink and blue triangles. (Note: Chintz has a shiny right side; be sure to cut all triangles right side up.)

3. Stitch pink and blue triangles together along diagonal sides to form patched squares, using 1/4-inch seam allowance; press. Sew nine squares together to form strip for pocket and 15 squares for strip for chair back; press.

4. For chair back piece, carefully mark outer side seams with disappearing-ink marking pen and remove stitches from side seams; unfold seams. Baste green piping along bottom hem stitching of chair back. With right sides together, pin raw edge of pieced strip along raw edge of piping.

Using a zipper foot on your sewing machine and 1/4-inch seam allowance, stitch the strip in place.

Fold up strip and press. Turn back top of pieced strip 1/4-inch to wrong side and press. Pin jumbo rickrack just under fold line of pieced strip so peaks just show to simulate waves; stitch in place along end of pieced strip.

5. Position three small ducks evenly across chair back and fuse in place (with fusible webbing)—be sure to note fold line of side seams with spacing ducks. Applique ducks with medium-width zigzag satin stitch and matching threads.

Embroider eyes, using two strands of royal blue embroidery floss with satin stitch. Tie three small bows using 1/16-inch-wide blue ribbon and tack one at each duck's neck as indicated by "X" on pattern piece. Sew star buttons along top outer edges of chair back. Restitch side seams of chair back and press.

6. For chair seat, sandwich green rickrack between folds of pink bias tape so peaks just show. Baste to chair seat 1/4 inches from bottom edge. Stitch along edges of bias tape. Stitch 1/16-inch-wide blue ribbon 1/8-inch from top edge of bias tape. Position and fuse (with fusible webbing) small duck applique to lower right hand corner of seat, just above rickrack. Complete duck applique and trim per step 5. Press.

7. To trim pocket piece, remove stitches from side seams and open. Baste green piping 1/4 inch above bottom seam of pocket. Attach nine-square pieced strip and rickrack trim as per step 4.

Position large duck just above "waves" in center of pocket, fuse (with fusible webbing) and applique with medium-width zigzag satin stitch and matching threads. Embroider eye with satin stitch, using two strands royal blue embroidery floss. Tie six-loop bow of 1/16-inch-wide blue ribbon and tack at neck. Sew or glue star button to center of bow. Restitch side seams. Press.

8. Spray chair back, seat and pocket liberally with Scotchguard spray. Allow to dry overnight and spray again.

Dr Pepper has eager market of collectors

By Linda Rosenkrantz

I'm not sure where Dr Pepper currently ranks on the soft drink Top Ten list, but when it comes to collectors, it follows close on the heels of Coca-Cola and Pepsi.

There is an eager market for all manner of Dr Pepper advertisements—from signs and syrup dispensers to calendars and clocks.

While Coke and Pepsi have fairly straightforward histories, Dr Pepper comes complete with a romantic—if possible apocryphal—tale of origin.

Once upon a time, the story goes, a young man named Charles C. Atherton worked at the soda fountain of a Virginia drugstore owned by a Dr. Pepper.

Charles fell in love with the beautiful daughter of Dr. Pepper, who disapproved of the match, summarily letting the lad go—but not before Charles had spent a considerable amount of time trying to concoct a soft drink that would please his ladylove.

Atherton (elevated in some versions to the position of pharmacist) then moved on to Waco, Texas, where he got a job at Wade Morrison's Old Corner Drugstore, around 1884.

He continued to mix various flavors and ingredients until he hit upon a formula that he and his customers deemed a success. Supposedly, since he had talked so much about his lost Virginia love, the brew jokingly was dubbed Dr. Pepper's.

(To complicate matters, one chronicler has Morrison, not his employee, as the unrequited lover.)

One patron who was particularly interested in Atherton's blend was R.S. Lazenby, a local ginger ale bottler, who took it to his Artesian Bottling Works and continued to experiment with and refine it. He finally patented it on Dec. 1, 1885, as Dr Pepper's Phos-Ferates" and increased its distribution to soda fountains in and around the Waco area. By 1910 the syrup had become one of the principle items exported from Waco via Wells Fargo Express.

The product remained a regional Texas specialty until the early '20s when Lazenby's daughter married a young Pennsylvania Army officer who saw more far-reaching commercial possibilities for Dr Pepper.

He set up an extensive sales and distribution program, and initiated an advertising campaign promoting the drink as a source of between-meal energy, using the slogan, "Drink a bite to eat at 10, 2 and 4." This was gradually telescoped to a cryptic "10, 2, 4," which appeared on the bottle.

The company thrived, moving to Dallas and eventually attaining annual sales of over $1 billion in the United States.

Collectors today compete strenuously for early Dr Pepper material. Some recent prices cited in the eight edition of "Schroder's Antiques Price Guide" include:

- Syrup dispenser, Pho-Ferrates, square ceramic marble base, 21 inches—$7,500.

- Syrup dispenser, china with metal legs, cylindrical, 18 inches—$800.

- Tray, oval, two women, 13½ by 16½ inches—$750.

- Calendar, 1938, lady in yellow gown, complete—$250.

- Watch fob, St. Louis World's Fair, silvered brass, 1904—$125.

Linda Rosenkrantz edited Auction magazine and authored five books, including "Auction Antiques Annual."

Trend toward moderation in 'country'

By Rose Bennett Gilbert

Q: I love the country look, but it has really gotten cutesy beyond my taste. I mean, who wants those dusty dried herbs hanging down in the kitchen anymore, or all those ruffles at the windows.

Isn't there a happy medium between Shaker-spars and an overdose of "charm"?—Less Is More

Your signature says it all: The trend is toward more moderation, less froufrou in all modes of decorating, country included. You'll hear it called "high country," or "up country" these days, meaning the look is getting more sophisticated, leaner and cleaner.

As Jack C. Davis, the respected editor of "Country Decorating Ideas" and "Country Almanac" magazines, puts it: "For too long, home decorators have equated 'country' with 'clutter.' A better word is 'comfort.' Surround yourself with the things you love and take comfort from, but don't complicate your life, either visually or physically.

"Better to pare your rooms down to your favorite pieces, confine your collections to groupings that make an impact, and fill the rest of the space with warm color. That's the essence of the country look, and the reason it may change and go through stages, but never go out of style."

The accompanying photo is an apt illustration of what Jack means. There is no questioning the room's country provenance—what with the mille-fleur wall covering and old pine frame table and chairs. But there is no suffocating clutter: a collection of brass candlesticks marches neatly across the plain pine mantel; windows are simply dressed in matchstick blinds, and the floor is centered with a flat-weave carpet in compatible colors.

The net effect is clean, warm and very livable—and there isn't a dried herb in sight.

Q: Our 1930s-vintage apartment has a mirror built in above the fireplace. It runs right up to the ceiling and reaches from edge to edge.

We have been given a rather fine painting—and English hunting scene that really should be shown off and enjoyed in the living room. Dare I hang it over the mirror? And what about a light?—J.S.

A: Go right ahead, provided you don't mind having holes drilled in your old mirror. Hang it in the center several inches above the mantel—your eye is your best guide.

And use a small standing light to illuminate it; the light rests on the mantel and the cord can run unobtrusively to the side and down to a plug. The standard-type lamp that mounts on the frame and shines down on the painting would have its cord reflected in the mirror under the painting and be a double eyesore.

Q: Don't ask how I drew this assignment, but the faculty committee at the school where I teach has asked me to redecorate the faculty bathrooms, hers and hisens.

These are two long, narrow rooms with freestanding sinks and about a 12-foot ceiling.

My budget won't stretch far beyond a few cans of paint. Do you have any good, cheap ideas?—R.G.

A: Faculty baths may be public spaces in a sense, but do what you can to make them feel homelike, cozy and warm.

Paint can do it. I'd suggest painting the "hers" a soft peach on the side walls—peach flatters everyone. And how about a deep, rich hunter green for the men's room walls—and they will think they're in an old boys' club.

Paint can change the proportions of the room, too: If you paint the end (short) walls and the ceiling in the women's bath a deep warm brown, the room will look squarer and more cozy.

In the men's, you might consider putting wall covering on the end wall, say, a dark paisley with the same rich green background (choose a vinyl) covering that is easy to hang and maintain).

If you have any budget left, consider building cabinets to enclose the sinks and buying lamps if there is a place to set them. By bringing the lighting level down to more human scale, you will raise the coziness and warmth levels dramatically.

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Letting go of a family tradition

Story by Cristina Ferrier

Meyers put farmhouse on market, but plan to keep farm operational for now

Sherri Meyer is having a barn sale. The shelves are filled with antique china, candleholders, picture frames. Tables and chairs fill the floor, and a bride doll lies in a box, waiting for someone to adjust its veil.

After 40 years of calling it home, the Meyer family is selling the farmhouse at the Meyer Berry Farm on Eight Mile.

It's been empty a lot since Sherri Meyer started spending more and more time in Florida two years ago. She had been holding on to it for sentimental reasons, according to her son, Larry Meyer.

The farm is not for sale. They want that land to stay the way it is. But the summers of picking berries may be numbered for the public.

Sherri Meyers' son, Larry, runs the berry farm now. He estimates that several thousand people come to the farm every summer to pick corn, strawberries and other produce as it comes into season.

But this year he's cut down on the number of plantings. "We're de-emphasizing the farm," he says.

He also works as a project engineer for Eaton. His son and daughter are both away from home now, and he's finding it difficult to find family members who want to help out with the 45-acre farm.

"Nobody's interested in it any more," he says. "In the next few years it will probably cease."

"I guess you can't stop progress," Sherri Meyer says. "But when we bought this in '42, they told us that this would one day be all built up all the way to Ann Arbor and on to Chicago."

Things have stayed pretty much the same along Eight Mile to the west side of her house. She would keep it that way if she could.

Developers have approached the family more than once about buying the farm. The answer has always been no. The farm will stay in the family.

Meyer's Berry Farm has been a local institution in this area for as long as many residents can remember. Sherri Meyer thinks a big reason for that has been the sheer recreational aspect of picking the berries.

Once, she says, a businessman who was visiting the area alone and staying in a hotel kept coming to the farm every day to pick berries. "I just enjoy walking all the way back to the woods every day," he had told her. "I give the berries away to anyone who might want them."

Last year's drought and this year's flooding have been bad for the farm. "But that's the life of farming," she says.

Sherri Meyer is aghast at the prices people are paying for the brand new houses along Eight Mile to the east of her century-old farm house.

"They don't even have any land!" she exclaims.

She's asking $280,000 for hers. It comes with the barn and an old stone milk house (it was once used to keep the milk cool before it went to the dairy). There's also a small guest cottage, a 2-stall horse barn, a 2-car garage, and two acres of land.

The house, built in 1827, is a landmark. It has wooden floors, natural fireplaces with big boxes for wood storage, a formal dining room, a front parlor and a cavernous attic.

The basement supports are logs — complete with the bark — that were cut from the woods that stood at the rear of the original farm property. The walls in the basement are made from stones that were collected from the land where the house now sits.

Sherri Meyer points to two stained glass windows which she installed personally. "When I installed them I never thought I would leave this

Schultz organizes pinochle

By DOROTHY NASH

Supervising the weekly pinochle tournament for senior citizens at the Novi Civic Center is a volunteer job, and Doris Schultz has it — from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

She said it means getting the tables ready — six and sometimes seven — "putting out the cards, pencils, tallies and blocks to hold the trump indicator so you know what's trump."

Then as the players come along, she signs them in and takes their money — 50 cents apiece — which is divided up at the end into four prizes plus a 50-cent booby.

As they play it at the center, Schultz said, "After each game the two winners from each table move to the next table. Everybody gets a different place if they win.

"I've been doing this for about a year. I had been coming here to play, and then the woman who was supervising the games moved away. So they asked me to take over."

Why the increased interest in pinochle since she took over? Schultz didn't say, but she commented that "When I took over we had three tables. Now we're up to six or seven."

But Doris Schultz is on the scene from 10 a.m. to 2 and 2:30 in the afternoon two other days a week, also, and as she described it, she's not apt to be just sitting around.

"If they're short of help somewhere, I help."

And among the places she has helped are calling out numbers for bingo, serving the noon lunch, packaging dinners for Meals on Wheels, and "setting up tables for whatever's going on."

For her, it all started five years ago, Schultz said, when she decided she needed some place to go three days a week because "I can't stay home every day and do nothing."

If you are a senior citizen living in Novi and you feel the same way, call 347-0414 and talk to Glyda Berend, coordinator of senior volunteers.

Local doctor to speak to Northville Woman's Club

By BRENDA DOOLEY

Dr. William Conley will speak to members of the Northville Woman's Club about new hope for battling the "silent disease" — postmenopausal osteoporosis — at their meeting this Friday, Oct. 20. The meeting will be held in Fellowship Hall at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville, beginning at 1:30 p.m. Helen Garber was originally scheduled to speak to the group, but she will now speak on Jan. 5, 1990. Friday also is guest day for group members.

Conley is in general practice in Northville and is co-founder of the American Osteoporosis Institute, which is headquartered in Farmington Hills. A native of Detroit, Conley attended Catholic Central High School. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame and the Stritch School of Medicine, Loyola University in Chicago.

After interning at Detroit's Receiving Hospital, Conley entered the Army. He was stationed in France. While there, he directed outpatient care for the Paris area.

Following release from active duty, Conley completed post-graduate work at the University of Iowa and the University of Colorado.

Conley also spends a lot of time volunteering medical service. He is currently the medical director of Angela Hospice in Livonia, medical director of Dawn Farms Drug Abuse Center in Ypsilanti, and spends Saturday mornings at St. Patrick's Senior Center in Detroit's Cass Corridor.

He will speak about osteoporosis, a bone disease that affects women as they grow older. Statistics indicate that women over 45 account for one million fractures annually. Of women over 65, one-fourth will experience a fracture.

According to Connelly, the cause of this tendency to fracture is postmenopausal osteoporosis, or PMO. It often occurs without symptoms until a fracture results. He will discuss new ways of treating and diagnosing the disease.

Northville Antique Show planned

Antique lovers will have a chance to shop for collectibles during the Northville Antique Show on Friday, Oct. 20, Saturday, Oct. 21 and Sunday, Oct. 22 at the Northville Community Center.

Hours are Friday and Saturday, noon to 9 p.m.; and Sunday, noon to 5 p.m.

Admission is $3. The semi-annual show is held in March and October of each year. The upcoming show will be the 29th semi-annual event, according to organizer Helen Meisel.

Forty antique dealers will present quality antiques during the two-day show. The dealers are from Ann Arbor, Auburn Hills, Ohio, Indiana and St. Clair Shores, just to name a few. Refreshments also will be available, prepared by a chef from Schoolcraft College.

Discount tickets offering 50 cents off the $3 admission price are available at several downtown stores.

Newcomers plans upcoming events

Northville Newcomers hosts its annual progressive luncheon on Thursday, Nov. 16 from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The event begins at the home of Sue Hillebrand, 42130 Sutters Lane in Northville, where appetizers will be served.

Chairpersons of the luncheon are Hillebrand and Kathie Nelson. Reservations will be accepted from Oct. 23-30. Call Hillebrand at 344-8723 to make a reservation. There is a limit of 40 guests.

Cost is $10 per person. Alumni members of the Newcomers are welcome to attend.

Members also are invited to take part in a dinner theater, featuring a murder mystery, on Saturday, Oct. 21 at the Ford Museum Theater in Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village. Cocktails begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m.

Chairpersons of the dinner theater event are Kim Woodruff and Linda Cooley. Cost is $46 per person.

Friends hosts used book sale

Need to stock up on reading material for those long winter days? Friends of the Northville Public Library will host its last used book sale of the year on Saturday, Nov. 4.

Members of the Friends are invited to take part in a one-hour preview of the sale beginning at 9 a.m. The public will be admitted to the sale in Northville City Council Chambers at 10 a.m. The sale runs until 4 p.m.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to give a major gift to the library in 1989, the 100th anniversary of its founding.

Contributions of books may be brought to the library. All types are welcome, with the exception of "Readers Digest Condensed," paperback romance fiction, encyclopedias more than 10 years old, and textbooks K-12. Also, no magazines will be accepted, including "National Geographic."

Hardbound books are 50 cents, except for choice collectibles.

Paperbacks are 25 cents or five for $1. Children's books are 5 cents to 25 cents.

Anyone interested in joining the Friends of the Northville Library in time for preview privileges may do so at the library until the day before the sale.

Seniors and students can join for $3; family or individual, $5; contributing, $10; sustaining, $25; and patron, $100.

Town Hall season heats up

Several audience members attending the first lecture of the Northville Town Hall season could be seen fanning themselves with their programs last Thursday afternoon.

Why? Because it happened to be mighty hot in the room where David Eisenhower spoke. As a result, hostesses of Town Hall were asked repeatedly if the air conditioning system in the Plymouth Radisson could be turned on.

But it wasn't that easy. It wasn't a matter of flipping a switch. The hotel's air cooling system had been turned off for the season to prepare for the cold blast of winter. It seems no one planned on a surprise visit by Indian Summer.

Reflections of Romney's speech

What do women really want? Local gentlemen need not be mystified. Ronna Romney, guest speaker at the recent opening luncheon of the Northville Woman's Club answered the question quite succinctly. Today's women — as well as yesterday's women — merely want all the things that men do. They want to love, be loved, be respected, be productive and be needed all the days of their lives.

Northville AAUW hosts party

The Northville Branch of the American Association of University Women is sponsoring a wine and cheese tasting benefit performance of the musical "Desert Song" at the Marquis Theater on Oct. 20.

Wine and cheese tasting is from 7 to 8 p.m. Proceeds from the event will provide scholarships for Northville High School students.

Tickets are $12.50 each. For tickets or information contact Jean Hansen at 348-6096 or Ann Thompson at 349-3207.

Anyone holding a baccalaureate or higher degree from an institution on the AAUW list of qualified institutions or a degree from a foreign institution recognized by the IFUW, shall be entitled to and shall receive admission to membership on presentation of proper credentials and payment of dues to either the association treasurer or the branch treasurer.

For membership information contact Dawn Eule at 349-1636.

Northville Woman's Club offers grant

The Northville Woman's Club is offering a one-time grant of $500 for college or vocational education.

To be eligible, the applicant must be a child of a member of the club and enrolled at an accredited college or vocational training school. Applications may be obtained from scholarship chairperson Judy Kohl, 1034 Springfield Drive, Northville, 348-2678. Applications should be mailed to Kohl's address by Nov. 15.

The grant was made possible through the efforts of Ronna Romney, speaker at the opening luncheon of the club's 97th year. Romney requested her speaking fee go toward furthering the education of a young person.

Christmas shopping trip set

Ready to begin Christmas shopping? Northville Recreation Department will offer a one-day shopping trip to New York City on Tuesday, Nov. 28.

Participants will have a chance to shop at Macy's, Bloomingdale's, Tiffany's, Gucci and others.

Other options include viewing the Radio City Music Hall Christmas Show, touring the Museum of Natural History, walking through Central Park or eating lunch at Rockefeller Plaza.

Cost is $135, which includes round-trip airfare to and from Metro Airport from Newark to Macy's Department store. A $25 deposit is required to confirm space on the plane.

Seats are limited. Call the Northville Recreation Department for more information at 349-0203.

Garden club wins awards

When Northville High School students headed back to class this fall they were likely to find some changes on the school grounds.

Through the special efforts of members in the Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, the patio area at the high school was landscaped and spruced up. The club also purchased orange tulip bulbs to be planted at the school.

In other garden club news, the Northville branch recently received state and national awards for marketing — for the club's greens mart — and for horticulture therapy.

Northville BPW to meet

The monthly meeting of the Northville Business and Professional Women's Club will be held Monday, Oct. 23 at Genitti's Restaurant.

Social hour is at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m. Linda Gundersen, fashion sales coordinator at Jacobson's in Livonia, will present the program "Having It All." She will discuss transitions in dressing from office suits and attire to after-business social events without going home to change clothes.

Most of Mrs. Gundersen's career has been spent as a flight attendant with an airline that eventually led to a position of flight supervisor. However, her personal interest and talent in fashion brought her into her present position in retail sales. She has a long history of international travel. She will be accompanied by Ms. Ewald, who specializes in accessories.

For more information contact Berclay Ruschak at 348-1167.

Group plans mini fashion show

Ladies in Northville Township's Highland Lakes complex will host a mini fashion show on Thursday, Nov. 2 at 1 p.m.

Fashions will be provided by Unique Accessories, 88 Wing St. in Plymouth. The show will focus on basic fashions and ways to make them look different by using interesting accessories.

Models will include Dorothy Burhop, Elsa Danke, Chris Hinkle, Jean Stabler, Carole Wilson and Martha Forstrom.

Committee members organizing the event include Dorothy Burhop, Lesley Reiland, Lottie Nelson and Fifi McCutchan. Shirley Brocardo is coordinator of the show.

Desserts and coffee or tea will be served following the show. Door prizes also will be available. Tickets are $2.50 each.

Historian David Eisenhower speaks to a crowd during his recent appearance at Northville Town Hall

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Eisenhower speaks out

Noted historian discusses presidential roles with local Town Hall crowd

By BRENDA DOOLEY

Dwight D. "Ike" Eisenhower and Pat Nixon had a lot in common.

Both were typical Americans with humble beginnings, raised in a country of equal access. Both rose to positions of prominence. Both learned how to cope with euphoric triumphs and devastating disappointments.

And both had children who wrote books chronicling their political lives. The correlations between Ike and Pat were drawn by David Eisenhower — grandson of the former general and U.S. president — during his recent presentation as part of the Northville Town Hall series.

In 1986, David Eisenhower wrote "Eisenhower at War," the first in a trilogy of books about the Eisenhower years. Shortly afterward, his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, completed a book about her mother — former first lady Pat Nixon. The occurrence proved that "two books can happen in one home," Eisenhower remarked.

While researching the books, the husband and wife discovered that their subjects shared a lot of common, especially the notion that times were changing.

David Eisenhower's writing career began at the age of 10, when he wrote a manuscript entitled "Janet Stay." Typical of most White House occupants at the time, the young Eisenhower brought his manuscript to a presidential secretary and asked that it be typed. He then made copies of it and sold them for 15 cents to visiting dignitaries, one of them named Richard Nixon.

Shortly afterward, David received a letter from Nixon, describing the young writer as one of his very favorite authors.

Politics became a way of life for Eisenhower at a young age. He admits that he didn't meet a Democrat until the fall of 1962. At that time his school roommate, Fred Grandy — popularly known for his role as "Gopher" on the "Love Boat" TV series — got him elected to the Young Democrats Club.

"Granddad was not amused," Eisenhower recalled when Ike heard about the prank.

In 1966 he headed off to Amherst College, reflecting upon his college days as "a vivid time." It was also during 1966 when, at the suggestion of his grandmother, David paid a call on Julie Nixon, who was attending Smith College. It was the beginning of a long and memorable courtship.

Together David and Julie witnessed the election of 1968, when Richard Nixon was elected president, an event that "marked the turnaround for the Republican Party." They were married by Norman Vincent Peale just one month before Nixon's first inauguration.

"I entered the White House again on Jan. 1, 1969, as a member of an extended family," Eisenhower remembered.

He graduated from Amherst in 1970 and entered the U.S. Navy. His service in the Navy ended in 1973, when Eisenhower left to become a sports writer for the "Philadelphia Bulletin." The career was short-lived, as Eisenhower decided to enter law school at the University of Pennsylvania.

As his life progressed, Eisenhower reflected on events that had occurred during his boyhood, marveling at how history had a tendency to repeat itself — especially in the arena of politics.

"There was always a theme of changing times," Eisenhower said. "I heard it a lot in the times my grandfather was president. And I continued to hear it as Nixon left office."

His reflections prompted Eisenhower to begin researching the "Eisenhower at War" book. Most of the data included in the book came from White House documents because "Ike didn't talk to me a lot about himself," Eisenhower said.

The research brought him back to World War II, when Ike served as general, leading to his ascension to the presidency. And he began to discover parallels between the presidencies of Nixon and of his grandfather: they both had foreign-policy administrations and were popular presidents. Ike was forced to deal with the war in Korea, and Nixon was forced to deal with Vietnam. And the parallels continue with other presidencies.

Eisenhower is continuing his political research as he collaborates with Julie on a book about the year 1968. Meanwhile, he keeps busy with family activities that include his parents, his in-laws and his three children. The Eisenhowers reside in Valley Forge, Penn.

"Recent history is a very rich subject — I can testify to that," Eisenhower said. "In time, when true history is written, this is the story that counts."

Nov. 16, 30 and Dec. 7. Ellens will speak on Nov. 2.

Recent reader questions on Michigan Lottery instant games are answered in this column.

Q. When will the Lottery have a new instant game?

A. "Joker's Wild" was introduced at all 8,000 instant game retailers on September 11.

Q. Does this mean "Fame & Fortune" will end?

A. No. The very successful "Fame & Fortune" will continue for an indefinite period, so players will find two scratch-off games being sold at the same time.

Q. What's different about "Joker's Wild"?

A. All "Joker's Wild" prizes are cash and are paid by any retailer selling instant games, while "Fame & Fortune" features tickets showing three TV entry symbols offering a chance to appear on the weekly televised game show.

Q. How is "Joker's Wild" played?

A. Play in "Joker's Wild" is similar to that of previous instant games. A panel on tickets covers six hidden playing card symbols—9 through Ace plus a Joker. When scratched off, any three matching symbols win a cash prize. As the name states, Jokers are wild cards and combine with any two matching symbols to win.

Q. How much can I win in "Joker's Wild"?

A. Prizes range from $2 up to $100 with odds better than one in seven that a ticket will be a winner.

Q. Has the Michigan Lottery ever sold two games at the same time before this?

A. Only in isolated instances after a new game was introduced and retailers continued to sell tickets on the previous game until their supply ran out.

Q. Why are you starting it now?

A. While most instant players seem to like the chance to appear on statewide television others prefer games in which they can collect prizes immediately. So now, as slot posters indicate, we are offering them a choice of "One for the Money and One for the Show."

Q. Who decides what kind of games will be offered?

A. It could be said that players do. Lottery officials constantly monitor sale of various instant games here and in other states while exploring new possibilities. Their decisions on the type of games to be offered are based primarily on indicated player preferences.

Q. Can we look forward to more new instant games?

A. The Michigan Lottery tries to keep all its games as fresh and exciting for players as possible. This undoubtedly will lead to continued periodic changes in its instant games.

For submitting the first question leading to this column, Marie Burhard of Eastlake will receive 50 "Joker's Wild" tickets. Note: When duplicate questions are received that with the earliest date stamp upon arrival wins. In cases of a tie, the winner is selected by random drawing.

If you have a question not yet covered in these monthly columns, send it to "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, PO Box 8077, Lansing, MI 48909.

She remembers when two of her sons — Larry and Howard — were very interested in cowboys when they were youngsters.

One day a man showed up at her door. "There are two little boys walking down Eight Mile Road!" he announced irately.

She jumped into her car and went to find them. When she spotted them, trudging along in their cowboy boots and dragging their toy guns, she asked them what they thought they were doing.

"We're going out west," they responded.

Today, Eight Mile continues to develop as people go west. Meanwhile, Larry Meyer is getting ready for pumpkin season at Meyer's Berry Farm.

West Michigan train route serves hungry tourists

By BRENDA DOOLEY

"All aboard," the conductor shouts. "Train departs the Paw Paw depot at 7 o'clock sharp."

What's he talking about? And where in the heck is Paw Paw?

The conductor is shouting for passengers to board the Michigan Star Clipper Dinner Train, which began service from Paw Paw — just east of Kalamazoo — in August.

Operated by Trains Unlimited Inc., the train provides a unique year-round dining experience for tourists. If you're tired of eating in the same ho-hum restaurants and you don't mind the drive to western Michigan, dinner aboard a train may be in order.

Passengers enjoy a three-hour excursion that starts at Paw Paw and travels west through the state's wine country, past vineyards, orchards, forests and Lake Cora. In addition to the scenic trip, a four-course dinner is included, all for $39.95.

Diners may choose from a menu of Iowa prime rib, cornish game hen or grilled swordfish. Meals include soup, main entree, salad and dessert. Drinks and gratuity are extra.

The train's dining cars were part of the famous Keystone Train, a one-of-a-kind train built in 1956 by the Budd Company for prestigious passenger service on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Newly remodeled, the cars are decorated in colors of burgundy and hunter green. Both have dark carpets and are furnished with fan-back chairs, candles in frosted glass, romantic lighting and linen tablecloths and napkins.

The Star Clipper runs on the KLS&C Railway. It was developed by Marj and Jack Haley of Waterloo, Iowa, when they were looking for ways to increase revenues for the Cedar Valley Railroad that Jack Haley owns. The Haleys visited Eureka Springs, Ark., to review a dining-car restaurant operation. "We thought it was a great idea, except for the fact that the cars only traveled on two miles of track and the food was not prepared on board," Marj Haley stated.

So they went to work to refine the idea. Their first dinner train was the Iowa Star Clipper, which began service in 1985. A second train, the Newport Star Clipper, started operation in Rhode Island in October, 1988. The Michigan Star Clipper is the third train to be introduced. The Passengers enjoy a three-hour excursion that starts at Paw Paw and travels west through the state's wine country, past vineyards, orchards, forests and Lake Cora.

Haleys eventually plan to set up others in other states.

"The Star Clipper will be a major attraction for southwest Michigan," stated Jerry Pilcher, marketing director for Trains Unlimited Inc. and the KLS&C Railway.

The train departs Paw Paw at 7 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday; and at noon Sunday. Expanded noon departures also are scheduled. Major credit cards are accepted.

Also, the Star Clipper is available for private charters, group tours and corporate functions.

Tennis team qualifies for State Meet

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

It's always nice to share and share alike, but in the competitive world of athletics, that only goes so far.

After placing second in the WLAA Meet on Oct. 10-12, the Northville tennis squad was forced to share the Western Lakes Activities Association title with Plymouth Canton. But two days later at the MHSAA Regionals in Ann Arbor, the Mustangs held off the Chiefs to place second in the 13-team field and qualify for the state meet as a team.

"We really didn't mind sharing the WLAA title with (Canton), but we thought enough was enough when we got to the regionals," Northville Coach Uta Filkin said. "With only the first two teams advancing to the state meet, it was extra special to beat Canton by one point."

The Mustangs scored 12 points in the tournament, one more than the third-place Chiefs, but 15 behind Ann Arbor Huron, the state's top-ranked team. Northville failed to produce a champion in any of the seven flights, but did boast five semifinalists and one finalist.

"It was a total team effort," Filkin said. "I never expected us to do this well — this was supposed to be a rebuilding year. We did a lot better than I anticipated."

The highlight of the meet was the play of Merilyn Millgard and Julie Howard in the No. 3 doubles slot. After grabbing an individual title at the WLAA Meet, these two advanced to the finals with impressive victories over teams from Ypsilanti and Plymouth Canton before falling to Lori Brewer and Sarah Schriber of Ann Arbor Huron 0-6, 3-6. The second-place finish was the Mustangs' best.

The remaining two doubles flights also made appearances in the semifinals before exiting. At No. 1, Neysa Colizzi and Kavitha Sriraman were seeded second, but dropped a 4-6, 5-7 decision in the semis to Amy Snow and Courtney Richa of Livonia Stevenson. The loss was disappointing because Colizzi and Sriraman had beaten the Stevenson duo earlier in the year.

At No. 2, Tricia Tumminia and Rebecca Bellamy were also seeded second, but after beating a team from Plymouth Salem, they fell to Julie Hallock and Maura Mueller of Ann Arbor Pioneer 1-6, 2-6.

Karen Vogt and her sister Diane also scored some points for their team in the singles flights. At No. 1, unseeded Karen beat competitors from Belleville and Livonia Ladywood but was a 1-6, 3-6 loser in the semis to Patti Quisiboni of Ypsilanti. Quisiboni — an exchange student from Colombia — later went on to the finals.

"I think Karen played well — it was a difficult final match," Filkin said.

Diane was victorious against players from Livonia Stevenson and Ann Arbor Pioneer, but in the semis, she fell to Jodi Brewer of Huron 2-6, 1-6. Despite the loss, Filkin said she had "a phenomenal day."

Shannon Price scored a point by beating an opponent from Livonia Churchill in the first round of the No. 3 flight, but then lost to Salem's Shieka Kapila (3-6, 2-6). At No. 4, Alicia Hanson dropped her first match.

The state finals will be held Oct. 20-21 in Midland.

WLAA MEET: The Mustangs — who were a perfect 11-0 in conference dual meets — needed only to finish in front of Canton to grab sole possession of the WLAA title, but it didn't happen. The Chiefs placed first with 21 points, and Northville was the runner-up with 15. Thus, the shared title.

Kavitha Sriraman (above) and No. 1 doubles partner Neysa Colizzi were upset in the early rounds at the WLAA Meet

"We didn't do as well as we had hoped," Filkin said. "Canton had a much nicer draw than we did, and they are a very good team."

The Millgard / Howard team entered the meet as the top seed at No. 3 doubles and lived up to expectation with a title. They beat Jennifer Flanigan and Katherine Wira of Livonia Churchill (6-4, 7-5) in the finals. The duo finished the regular season without a loss.

"These girls are good players," Filkin said. "On other teams, they would probably be playing singles or high doubles, but we have so much depth. They have been our strongest link all season long — they didn't even lose a set during the regular season."

Northville's only other title came at No. 2 doubles. Tumminia and Bellamy got to the finals by beating a team from North Farmington they had lost to earlier. In the finals, they nipped Sue Bell and Laurie Richa of Stevenson 7-6, 6-3.

"They have really showing improvement after starting slow this season," Filkin said. "They have really matured."

The big disappointment in doubles was an early loss by Colizzi and Sriraman, who were seeded first heading in. They fell to Terri Kobylarz and Brenda Riedel of Churchill (6-7, 4-6).

"They had a bad day," Filkin admitted.

In singles, Karen Vogt reached the semifinals before dropping a 0-6, 0-6 decision to Cori Davidson of Farmington Harrison. Davidson, one of the top singles players in the state, was the eventual champ at No. 1.

Diane Vogt also lost to the eventual champ at No. 2 in the semis. After a win against a Farmington opponent, Canton's Sherry Bajer knocked her out with a 6-4, 6-3 victory.

Price and Hanson were the third seeds in the No. 3 and No. 4 singles flights respectively, and both advanced to the semifinals before falling to the eventual champs from Canton. Prive was beaten by Alisa Huth in straight sets and Hanson was on the short end of a 0-6, 1-6 match with Michelle Sparkman.

"It was really eerie the way we kept drawing Canton players," Filkin said. "We should have been playing them in the finals, but it was the unluck of the draw."

Franklin hands gridders another home defeat, 23-7

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

With the remaining games this season against powerful Plymouth Salem and Novi — on the road — the Mustang gridders may be in store for their third 2-7 campaign in the last four years.

Last Friday's clash with Livonia Franklin was another golden opportunity to move a step closer to the .500 mark, but Northville gave up 19 unanswered points to the Patriots in the final three quarters. The result was a 23-7 loss to a team that entered the game with one win in six tries.

If the Mustangs are to win another game, it will have to come on the road — but maybe that's not such a bad thing. Northville finished the season 0-4 at home in '89.

"We knew Franklin was a good football team, but we still felt we had the ability to win it," Mustang Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "We just didn't get it accomplished."

"The blame has to fall on me — I just didn't get the kids ready to play the game. The kids were flatter than flat."

Northville actually had a one-point lead after one quarter and trailed by only two at halftime. But the second half was a nightmare as Franklin — behind the passing of quarterback Brian Bartz — put the game away with two third-quarter touchdown drives. For the game, the Mustang offense was almost non-existent, gaining 99 total yards and just four first downs.

"The mental part of the game is so important, and it seems like every time we get going offensively, a mistake pops up like a penalty or a turnover and it sets us back," Schumacher said. "We had trouble blocking them — they have more size and more strength than we do — and it showed."

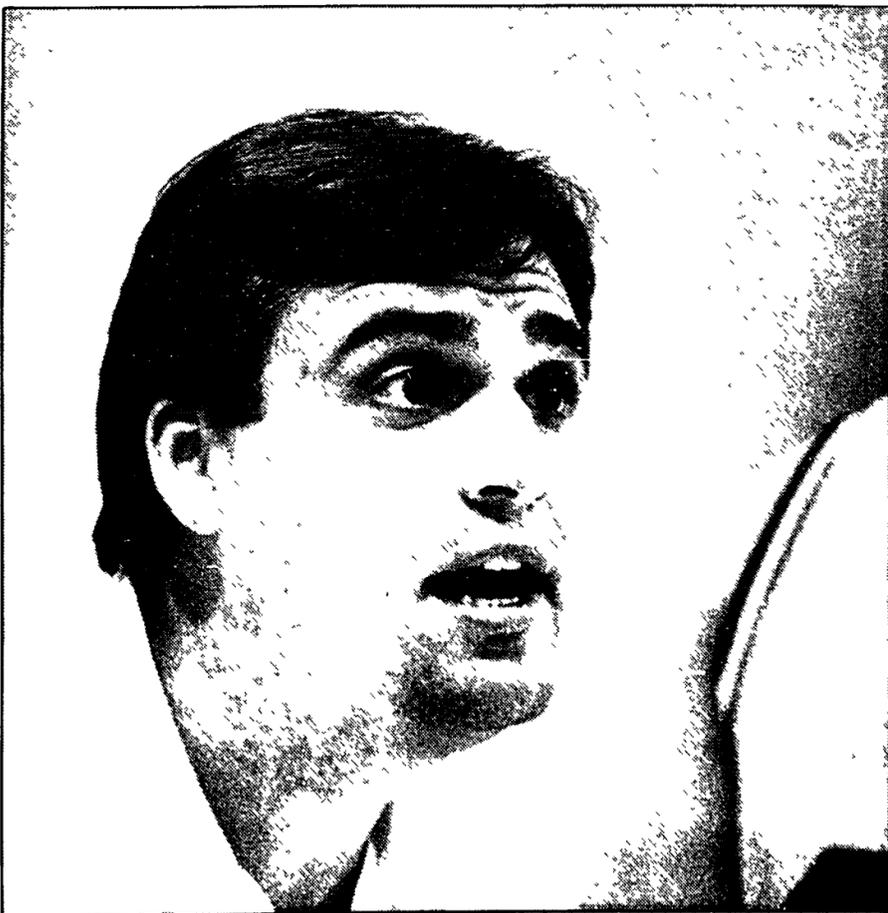

The Patriots didn't waste any time getting on the scoreboard. Early in the game, Franklin engineered a five-play, 77-yard drive that was capped by a 40-yard scoring strike from Bartz to Scott Marinkovich.

"We didn't do anything well defensively at that point in the game," Schumacher said. "Their quarterback picked our secondary apart — they literally moved the ball at will."

Midway through the first quarter, Bartz made a mistake and senior Steve Bastian picked off a pass and then rambled 67 yards for an exciting, scrambling touchdown. It was Bastian's fifth interception of the

Newcomer provides spark in 68-30 triumph over Harrison

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville's 68-30 prep basketball victory over lowly Farmington Harrison on Oct. 12 went pretty much as expected, but the game did provide one surprise: the debut of sophomore Kara McNeil, who has a bright future.

McNeil was brought up from the junior-varsity ranks a couple of weeks ago because of her outside shooting prowess. In only her second game as a varsity player, McNeil was very impressive against the Hawks, scoring a team-high 13, including a pair of three-point buckets. The victory put an end to a modest two-game losing skid for the Mustangs and provided coach Ed Kritch with even more optimism for the future.

"Kara is going to be a fine player," he said. "We thought she could help us with her outside shooting, and she hasn't disappointed us."

Northville set the tone early behind the scoring of Kate Holstein and Sue LaPrad, who combined for 13 of their team's 15 points in the first quarter while holding Harrison to just six free throws. The Mustangs then exploded for a season-high 24 points in the second quarter to take a commanding 39-10 halftime advantage.

"We went to our zone trap in the second quarter, and it was very effective," Kritch said. "We outscored them 24-7 in that span and that was the game. All 10 of Harrison's points in the half came at the free throw line — they didn't hit a shot from the field."

In the second half, Kritch emptied his bench, and Northville still continued to build the lead. He was particularly impressed with Kristen Ross and Shari O'Bramovich, who combined to score 15 against the Hawks in their first extended stint of playing time this season.

"We substituted freely and we got some good bench play," Kritch said.

Holstein scored all her points in the first half and ended up sharing scoring honors with McNeil (13 points each). Andrea Najarian paced Harrison with 17 points.

WALLED LAKE WESTERN 55, NORTHVILLE 52: After a slow start, the Mustangs gave the Warriors all they could handle on Oct. 10 but ended up "one play away from winning the game," according to Kritch.

Trailing by 11 heading into the fourth, Northville employed a zone trap that caused havoc in the Western backcourt and turned things around. With 2:20 remaining, junior guard Maria MacInnis nailed a three-pointer that tied the game at 47-47, and another trey by Karen Pump a minute later made it 53-52 at a time when it appeared the Warriors had re-established control in the final minute.

The Mustangs then forced a turnover and had possession with 15 seconds left, but a 15-footer by Sue LaPrad — who scored five points in the final eight minutes of the game — was off the mark. Northville had to resort to fouling and Western made two free throws as time expired.

"I really thought Sue was bumped on that last shot, but it wasn't called," Kritch said. "We lost, but it was a good effort on our part. We were playing a team on the road that took Plymouth Canton into overtime and who beat Livonia Franklin. Both those teams beat us handily this season."

The Mustangs fell behind 10-3 when a MacInnis three pointer was the team's only points in the first quarter. The Warriors increased the lead to 30-17 at halftime.

"We came out and didn't shoot well," Kritch said. "(Western) took us out of our offense. They also did a nice job of defeating our half-court pressure defense and ended up getting quite a few easy transition baskets."

Led by Holstein's eight points in the third quarter, the Mustang pulled to within nine, but Western hit a shot at the buzzer to go ahead by 11 heading into the final eight minutes.

Holstein ended the game with a team-high 17 points and nine rebounds. LaPrad added nine points, MacInnis eight, and Pump chipped in with five assists and five steals.

"All in all, it was a very positive week for our program," Kritch said. "We continue to improve offensively."

Northville (7-5 overall, 3-3 in the WLAA) will host Livonia Churchill tonight, Oct. 19.

Kickers down Western 2-1 to end skid

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

If a soccer team's dropped five matches in a row and has managed a total of one goal in that span, a win — any win — is a welcome relief. But when it comes against a solid opponent, it makes the accomplishment even more impressive.

Faced with the prospect of losing its eighth match in the last nine tries, the Northville kickers put forth one of the best efforts of the season on Oct. 11 to end the skid, 2-1, over host Walled Lake Western. Simply put, the Mustangs entered the game looking for a victory, but the Warriors came in with a lot more at stake — like a share of second place in the WLLA Western Division.

"(Western) had a lot of incentive in the game, so we were very happy with the victory," Northville Coach Dave Yezback said. "The boys were very relieved because they were a little worried about our ability to score goals. It was a win we really needed to boost our confidence."

Two goals isn't normally an offensive breakthrough, but for the Mustangs — who have struggled all season in that area — it was a landmark. And the victory certainly wasn't a cheap one — it came on the road against a team that held the state's eighth-ranked team, Plymouth Salem, to a scoreless tie earlier this season.

"The boys got some ball-control offense together against a fine defensive team," Yezback said.

Midway through the first half, Northville pulled in front 1-0 when Steve Lang picked up a rebound and rifled it into the back of the net from the left side. Dan Brugeman, who took the initial shot from the right wing, was credited with the assist.

The score remained the same until the Warriors scored the equalizer midway through the second half.

"Western came out really inspired in the second half," Yezback said. "We dominated the play in the first half with our ball control, but they came out and played a more wide-open game in the second half."

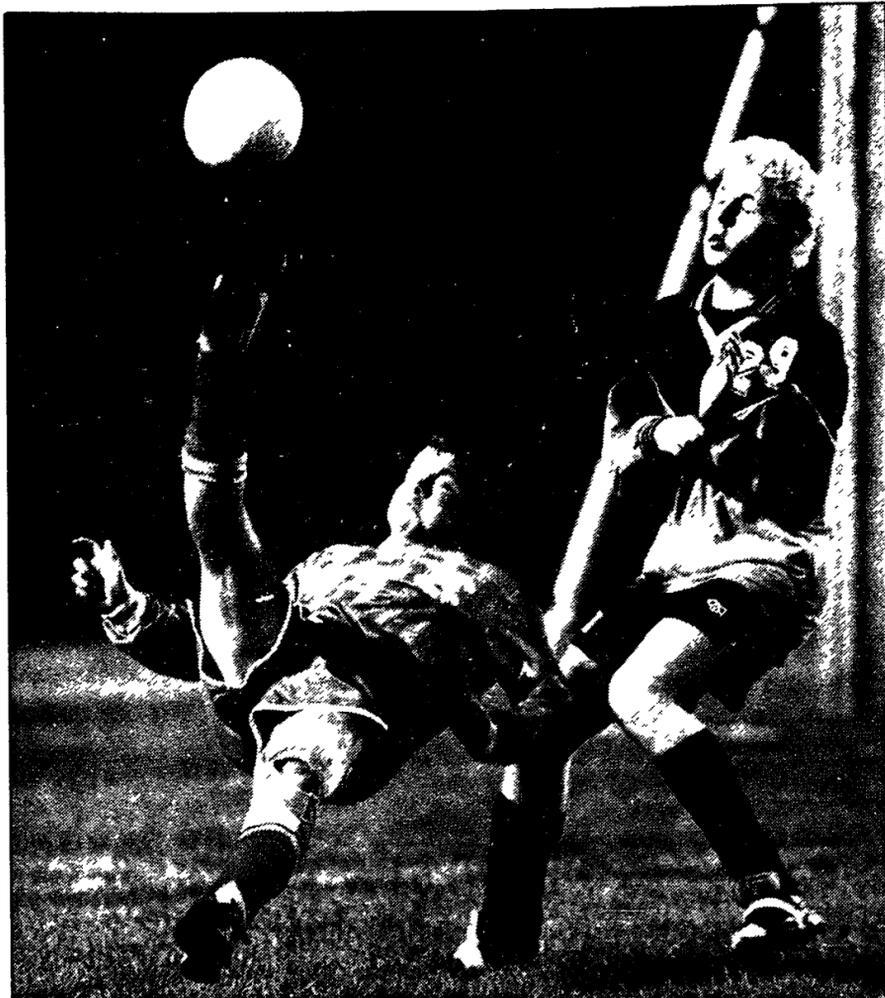

But with about five minutes left on the clock, and darkness descending on the field, Brugeman was tripped by a defender on a breakaway and Northville was awarded a penalty kick. Senior Chris Hinz took the shot and notched the game winner.

For the game, Western outshot the Mustangs, but converted one less opportunity.

"It was very important for our confidence," Yezback said. "Success breeds success and confidence."

LIVONIA CHURCHILL 4, NORTHVILLE 0: The Mustangs suffered another shutout on Oct. 9, but it came against the top-ranked Class A squad in the state.

Although Northville has had more than its share of scoreless games this season, getting shutout by the Chargers isn't unique to anybody. After 10 WLLA matches, Churchill has yet to give up a goal.

Mustang Soccer Coach

"I'm not in awe of them, but you have to give them credit — they are a very good team," Yezback said. "We had a few scoring chances against them, but they've been shutting out teams all year."

The Mustangs held the Chargers scoreless for the first 20 minutes, but in a flash, it was 2-0. Churchill scored a pair of goals in a 2-minute span, and that ended up being the difference in the game.

Midway through the second half, defender Ed Petit knocked a sure Churchill score out of the net with his hand and was given a yellow card. The Chargers were also awarded a penalty kick, that was successful,

"It was a calculated risk by Ed Petit," Yezback said. "It would have been a score anyway, so he made them earn it with a penalty shot."

After the third goal, Yezback replaced starting goalie Larry Osiecki with sophomore Drew Leppert, and with 13 minutes left, Churchill scored the game's final goal against him.

"Larry did a yeoman's job again this game," Yezback said. "After the third goal I figured he had enough. I didn't want him to be overworked and lose his confidence. And it was good experience for Drew to face the top team in the state."

For the game, Northville delivered six shots on goal. The Chargers had 26 and Osiecki made 20-plus saves.

Northville (5-10 overall, 4-6 in the WLLA) was slated to play Walled Lake Central on Wednesday, after Record deadline, in the WLLA playoff round at Central.

Sherman leads golfers in post-season tournaments

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Prior to the '89 season, Northville golf Coach Don Morgan didn't think his linksters had even a remote chance to defend their Western Lakes title.

So when the Mustangs finished fourth at the rugged WLAA Meet on Oct. 11, he was pleased. The big surprise, however, came earlier in the season, when Northville improved enough to be competitive with anybody in the conference.

The Mustangs were 18 strokes behind first-place Walled Lake Western with a score of 423, but just seven days earlier, Northville had nipped the Warriors by a stroke in dual-meet action.

"I didn't think we had a chance before the season, so all things considered, being fourth was very good," Morgan said. "We were actually a few scores away from really contending."

The Mustangs boasted two of the top four individual scores in the tournament — held at Huron Meadows near Brighton — but didn't get the kind of production from the third, fourth, fifth and sixth scorers the team needed to contend.

"We didn't get the scores from the bottom four guys, but we sure did well at the top," Morgan said.

Juniors Jason Sherman and Chris Lemmon both grabbed All-Conference honors by placing third and fourth respectively as individuals. Sherman had an 18-hole score of 40-37 — 77, and was only three strokes behind medalist Chris Sobriek of Walled Lake Western.

"Jason's really improved a lot," Morgan said. "He's been giving Lemmon the kind of intrasquad competition that is good to see. It's very healthy because they push each other."

Lemmon was just one stroke behind Sherman with a consistent 39-39 — 78 round.

"Chris was very consistent," Morgan said. "They both made All-Conference and they deserve it."

They've been doing it all season for us."

The next Mustang finisher was Paul Warner, who shot a 42-44 — 86, but didn't place in the top 20. He was followed by John Schreiber (45-46 — 91) and Kevin Krupansky (48-43 — 91).

"We weren't that far away as it was, even with our number three, four and five guys all shooting pretty high," Morgan said. "I knew we'd need to have three guys in the low 80s to be in contention, and we didn't get it."

MHSAA REGIONAL: Sherman continued his hot streak on Oct. 13 at Oak Pointe, but it wasn't quite enough to propel the Mustangs into a top-three team finish, and thus a spot in the state-meet field.

Northville ended up placing fourth out of 17 teams, but missed out on qualifying for the state meet by seven strokes. Howell took first-place honors with a 310 score — 20 better than the Mustangs

"Just like at the WLAA Meet, we had two great scores and then the rest," Morgan said. "We did a bit better, but not quite enough."

Sherman did earn a spot at the state meet as an individual by tying for fifth place honors with a 39-39 — 78. Lemmon (41-38 — 79) also played well but missed the cutoff by one stroke. Northville qualified as a team in '88 but Sherman wasn't one of the team's top five players, so it will be his first appearance at the state meet. The event is slated for 9:30 a.m. on Oct. 21 at Michigan State's Forest Akers Golf Course.

"Jason reminds me of Kevin Telepo, who performed very well at the state meet in '87 and '88," Morgan said. "He seems to be pretty loose and he doesn't choke up at the big meets. That's why I expect him to do well. He definitely has the ability."

The rest of the Mustang competitors included Krupansky (43-43 — 86) and Warner (43-44 — 87)

NORTHVILLE 213, FARMINGTON 217: The Mustangs wrapped up the regular season on Oct. 9 with a three-stroke win over the Falcons at Meadowbrook Country Club. The team finished the season with an 8-3 overall record, 6-2 in the WLAA.

"The scores were higher for both teams, but I'm sure playing at Meadowbrook for the first time had something to do with it," Morgan said. "I thought that took away our home-course advantage a bit, but we still came out on top."

Lemmon paced Northville with a 40 and Sherman was close behind with a 41. Warner (42), Schreiber (43), Steve Porter (47) and Krupansky (52) all followed for the Mustangs.

"It was a nice win because Farmington won the WLAA Lakes Division title this season," Morgan said. "We knew they were one of the conference's best teams, but we did what we had to do to win."

Three-peat:

Northville's Doug Kurtis, 37, added another first to his long list of accomplishments: the first runner to win the Detroit Free Press International Marathon three straight years. The 37-year-old Kurtis won the 12th annual, 26.2-mile event through the streets of Detroit and Windsor in two hours, 17 minutes, 34 seconds. He finished nearly four minutes ahead of his nearest competitor and maintained his streak of sub-2:20 marathons, now at nine.

League Line

SOCCER: Retzbach scores five times

BOYS UNDER 10: Tim Whelan scored a goal for the Northville Hot Spurs, but the team fell to Kensington No. 1. The MVPs for the Spurs included Matt Wormer and Kevin Martin. The Northville Express got a pair of goals from Bobby Allan, on assists from Jeff Clark and Ryan Schreiber, but Kensington No. 2 ran away with a 4-2 victory. The defensive stars included Alex Lucas and Danny Basse. Goals by Geno Peters and Mike Fueling paced the Northville Sting to a 2-1 win over Plymouth No. 7. ### COLTS: Varsity grabs first win

VARSITY: The Nov-Northville Colts put it all together earlier this month to grab the season's first victory, 19-7 over Ann Arbor East. Jeff Betzler directed a strong, effective offensive attack and ended the day with 53 rushing yards and 9-of-14 passing. Eric Bristol caught a 39-yard pass that set up a Brian Kelley touchdown from the one to put the Colts ahead. Brian Jackson converted a critical fourth down play on the yard sweep by Kelley, who later scored his third touchdown of the game and ended with 83 yards in 13 carries. Defensively, Chuck Apligan, Jeff Luterek, Brian Jackson and John Wilds were all key contributors.

their game with Ann Arbor East to earn an 18-18 tie. Todd Zayti scored the first TD from six yards out, and an onside kick worked to perfection. Brandon Spence scored the second touchdown with about three minutes remaining and another onside kick gave possession of the ball back to the Colts. Zayti then hit Justin Cataldo for a 60-yard scoring pass that proved to be the game-tying points.

FRESHMAN: The Colts freshman squad also battled to a tie against undefeated Ann Arbor East. The score was 6-6. John McMahon caught a 17-yard scoring strike from Nick Bagini to give the Colts an early lead, but Ann Arbor scored the equalizer later in the game. Defensively, the Colts were paced by Bagini, Cory Darling and John McMahon.

JUNIOR VARSITY: The Colts scored 18 unanswered points in the final six minutes of Mustang quarterback Ryan Huzjak tries to avoid a Livonia Franklin defender

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Mustang footballers now 2-5 after 23-7 loss to the Patriots

Season, Noel Korowin's extra point made it 7-6. "(Bastian) is doing a nice job for us," Schumacher said. "He comes to play every Friday, and he's having an excellent senior year."

Franklin regained the lead in the second quarter with a 30-yard field goal by Tad Dennis that followed a 50-yard-plus drive that stalled at the 13. Northville did move into Franklin territory later in the half on a 28-yard pass from quarterback Ryan Huzjak to Tim Kerns, but Bastian fumbled away the drive at the Patriot 39.

Franklin continued to move the ball down field in the second half. Runner Mark Little caused most of the damage in a 59-yard march on the second possession of the half. He carried the ball six times in the 10-play drive, including a 3-yard T.D. run.

On their next possession, the Pats went 55 yards in four plays to make it 20-7. Bartz connected with Marinkovich on a 32-yard pass and that set up a 1-yard plunge by Bartz. Franklin added a late field goal by Dennis from 27 yards out to provide the final margin of victory.

"We just didn't move the football," Schumacher complained. "We hurt ourselves with penalties and missed assignments, which is something we've done all year."

Luck certainly wasn't on Northville's side either. In the second quarter, for example, Kowowin picked off a Franklin pass only to fumble it back to the Pats for a first down.

"A play like that makes you feel very low," Schumacher said. "(Korowin) made a nice play, and then we hand it back to them and lose some yards on the exchange — it was frustrating."

The Mustangs managed just 34 yards rushing and 65 passing — a season low. Huzjak was good on 5-of-15 in the passing department but the leading rusher was Ryan Kilner, with only 19. Jamie Miller had three pass receptions for 31 yards.

Northville (2-5 overall, 2-3 in the WLAA) will travel to Plymouth tomorrow (Oct. 27) to take on Salem for the second time this season.

Chargers edge Northville tankers

Despite registering 12 personal best times and qualifying for post-season competition in a several more events, the Northville girls swim team dropped its second dual meet of the season Oct. 12.

The Mustangs' 87-5-84.5 defeat at Livonia Churchill was a classic matchup between two fine teams that went down to the final event. But in the 400 freestyle relay, the Chargers came out on top to secure a hard-fought victory.

Northville managed just four firsts in the 11 events, but did add a host of seconds and thirds to keep it close. The highlight of the meet would have been Pam Holdridge's effort in the 200-yard IM, because it qualified the Mustang senior for the state meet in November. But she managed only third place in the event against the talented Chargers.

The Northville wins came from Barb Woodruff in diving, Holdridge in the 100 butterfly, Teri Juhasz in the 100 breaststroke, and the 200 medley team featuring Debbie Buell, Juhasz, Holdridge and Jodi Wesley.

Claire Cryderman led the runner-up finishes with two — in the 500 freestyle and the 200 freestyle. The other seconds came from Beth Frayne in diving, Buell in the 200 IM, Wesley in the 50 freestyle and the 100 freestyle and Megan Holmberg in the 100 backstroke. The thirds came from Juhasz in the 100 butterfly, Kathy Lang in the 100 freestyle, Holmberg in the 200 freestyle, Allison Sieving in the 500 freestyle and Buell in the 100 backstroke.

In addition to Holdridge making the state cut, Woodruff has now joined teammate Beth Frayne as a qualifier for the MHSAA Diving Regionals.

The Mustangs (4-2 overall, 3-2 in the WLAA) will host Plymouth Canton tonight (Oct. 19) in another Western Division clash.

Dart takes second in 21-40 defeat to Plymouth Canton

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The times weren't particularly outstanding, but the Northville runners seem to be gaining ground on powerful Plymouth Canton in girls cross-country action.

On Oct. 5 the Mustangs were on the short end of a 21-40 defeat, but it was the closest a Northville team's been to the Chiefs in quite a while.

"It's the best we've done against them in the three years I've been here," Mustang Coach Nick Dunwoodie said. "Actually, it's the first time we weren't shut out by them."

Neither team ran well, but Northville's top two runners should not be lumped into that category. Junior Marcie Dart notched her best time of the year at Cass Benton Park (22:06) to take second-place honors overall. Senior Rozann Staknis got off to a great start, but some nagging injuries slowed her down near the finish. She ended up taking fifth place with a time of 22:25 — also a season best.

"I thought it was Rozann's best race of the season," Dunwoodie said. "Her two-mile split was 13:59, which is under a 17-minute pace. Nobody on our squad has a time like that in the first two miles so far this season."

The rest of the Northville contingent included Lisa Brown in 10th

"It's the best we've done against them in the three years I've been here. Actually, it's the first time we weren't shut out by them. The overall times for both teams were slow, and I can't really figure out why."

place (23:03), Rachel Davis in 12th (23:59), Kamal Bagga in 13th (24:05), Angie Nelson in 14th (24:28) and Cheryl Mittman in 15th (24:29).

"The overall times for both teams were slow, and I can't really figure out why," Dunwoodie said.

It was the Mustangs' first dual-meet defeat of the season in division action after three straight wins. Northville (3-2 overall) will host Livonia Franklin today, Oct. 19, in the last dual meet of the season.

"We saw Franklin at the Schoolcraft invite and they beat us," Dunwoodie said. "But they run at Nankin Mills, which is very flat, so we'll have the advantage as far as the home course goes."

JOHN GLENN FRESHMAN/SOPHOMORE INVITE: The Northville underclassmen provided some hope for the future by placing third out of eight teams at the Westland invitational on Oct. 10.

The Mustangs had one runner place in the top 20 and two more just out of the running for a medal. Freshman Lisa Hojnacki paced Northville with a 24:37, good for 18th overall. She was followed by sophomore Joleen Filkin (25:11) in 21st place and sophomore Julie Buser (25:15) in 23rd place overall.

Harriers try to put 28-point loss to Canton behind them

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

You can't blame Northville cross-country coach Ed Gabrys for looking ahead — especially if a 17-45 defeat against Plymouth Canton on Oct. 12 is now behind him and his team.

Canton is as strong as ever this fall, and Gabrys is predicting another Western Lakes title for the Chiefs. That's why last week's loss wasn't a surprise at all — for either team.

"They are very good," Gabrys said. "They had seven of the top nine finishers."

Sophomore Steve Coon carried out his pre-meet assignment of breaking into Canton's top five runners. Coon's time of 17:24 was his second-best effort of the season and was good for fourth place — just one second out of third. Senior John Meele was next for the Mustangs in eighth place, with an 18:24.

The highlight of the competition was sophomore Karl Goersky's 10th-place finish. This transfer student from Dearborn had a time of 19:00, which bettered his previous best at Cass Benton by 30 seconds. The rest of the Northville finishers included Jason Hoose in 11th place (19:22), Jamie Groves in 12th (19:41), Dave Borg in 13th (19:49) and Mike Conery in 14th (19:55).

"Even Goersky's time wasn't a surprise," Gabrys said. "He comes from a fine cross-country program at Dearborn High School, and he should be down near 18 minutes by the time the conference meet rolls around."

Northville (1-4 overall, 1-3 in the WLAA Western Division) has one more chance to grab another dual-meet victory today, Oct. 19, when Livonia Franklin comes to town.

"We've still got a lot of work to do," Gabrys warned. "We're looking forward to a good performance against Franklin. We're looking ahead because we pretty much had an idea of what was going to happen against Canton."

JOHN GLENN FRESHMAN/SOPHOMORE INVITE: The Mustangs had two individuals place in the top eight at the Westland invitational, but overall depth hurt the team.

Northville ended up fourth overall out of eight teams and was led by Coon, who placed second in a time of 18:11 on the John Glenn campus. It was the fourth-fastest time ever for an underclassman from Northville on the course. Goersky was eighth overall in 19:09, but no other Mustang runner broke the top 20.

"We have a few good young runners, but we don't have enough of them," Gabrys said. "Depth is a problem, so recruiting runners will be high on my priority list in the off season."

Mustangs of the Week

ROB SPRADLIN

JASON SHERMAN

Northville's 23-7 football loss to Livonia Franklin was a big disappointment, but the Mustang coaching staff had nothing but praise for senior defensive tackle Rob Spradlin. The 6-foot-5, 265-pounder continues to show improvement and notched one of his best outings of the season against the Patriots last Friday. We think Spradlin is a logical choice for "Mustang of the Week" honors. He ended up with nine solo tackles, five assists, two sacks and a blocked field goal in the game. "Rob was all over the field," Northville Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "He played very, very well. He has been improving and is playing quite hard."

Junior golfer Jason Sherman put it all together last week, and it happened at just the right time. That's why "Mustang of the Week" accolades are going out to him. Sherman earned All-Conference honors by placing third overall at the WLAA Meet on Oct. 11, and led Northville to a fourth-place team finish. His 18-hole total of 40-37 - 77 was just three strokes off the pace. Several days later, he qualified for the MHSAA State Meet by tying for fifth place overall in regional competition with a 39-39 - 77 effort. "(Jason) seems to be pretty loose, and he doesn't choke up at the big meets," Northville Coach Don Morgan said. "That's why I expect him to do well. He definitely has the ability."

Experts recommend formula diets

By JAN JEFFRES

Formula isn't just for babies anymore.

While millions of TV viewers watching Oprah Winfrey melt into her Calvins may have given a publicity boost to the "liquid diet" industry, the savvy dieter today doesn't just opt for a quick-fix solution.

The liquid or pudding-like formula is at best the foundation for a transition to a healthy new lifestyle.

In the seventies, liquid diet crazes included an over-the-counter collagen fluid made of horse hooves which dieters frequently took without medical supervision, sometimes to the detriment of their health.

That's why Dr. Charles Lucas, M.D., doesn't even like the terminology "liquid diet." Lucas is director of the William Beaumont Clinics for Preventative and Nutritional Medicine in Birmingham and Troy.

"At his clinic, dieters go on a 500- to 900-calories-per-day high-protein formula diet, hoping to lose three to four pounds weekly. Composed of milk and egg products infused with vitamins and minerals, the powder can be mixed into a liquid or pudding form. Flavors available include chocolate and vanilla.

About 100,000 people have been safely and effectively treated nationwide on formulas of this nature, Lucas said, citing experiments that show that dieters lose more on a 1,000-calories-per-day formula diet than on a comparable food diet.

Patients going on the formula should be at least 40 pounds overweight. The typical patient at the clinic is 60 to 100 pounds overweight, while the average weight loss at the program is 60 pounds. They will stay on the formula an average of 23 weeks.

"People don't crave to eat more of this. Mostly, they'll have an extra to satisfy a biological hunger," Lucas said.

One side effect of this restricted diet is that a patient may feel terrific. Hyperglycemic ups and downs may become stabilized. A patient is no longer exposed to food sensitivities he or she may not have been aware of previously.

"They will feel better than they felt before. The reasons are probably because they are in control. I think it's psychological, the relief," Lucas said.

Less-pleasant side effects include a possible hair loss in about 5 to 10 percent of the formula users; a feeling of cold caused by weight loss; and a drop in blood pressure, which can counteracted by an increase of salt in the diet.

Dieters may also miss socializing with friends in a food-loving society.

The Birmingham clinic has on staff a psychologist, an exercise physiologist, a dietitian, nurses and physicians to help patients restructure their lifestyles. The goal is not just to lose weight, Lucas explained, but to create a complete behavioral change in the patient.

Patients are expected to make a long-term commitment to the program, about two years on the average although some have stayed as long as seven years.

"You should plan on staying as long as you can," Lucas said, adding that the clinic's maintenance program includes nutrition classes.

Studies of the program have found that, as a rule, four years later a patient will keep off one-half of his or her weight loss.

"The profile of a successful formula diet graduate is someone who doesn't dine at fast-food restaurants, avoids fat foods like cheeses, sweets and desserts, and observes an exercise regimen, Lucas explained. The clinic's facility includes exercise machines.

Exercise is also a key word at the Lifestyle Medicine Clinic in Lathrup Village, directed by Dr. Lawrence Power, M.D.

"We're heavy not because of the way we eat but because of the way we sit," said Power, former chief of medicine for Detroit General Hospital and a nationally syndicated columnist.

"The future lies in changing your habits. . . We teach them the facts of life in regard to food, fitness and moods."

"The weight problem is not a psychology problem, it's a medical problem. It's a lethal disorder. People are caged by their fat. It's a disorder of affluence."

Patients may opt for a formula diet at the Lifestyle Medicine Clinic or they may choose a low-calorie food diet.

Besides "losing a ton of weight in the first six weeks," Power sees another major bonus to the formula diet: no more time-consuming food decisions, no hunger pangs.

From models carrying an extra 20 pounds to 700-pound patients, the formula dieters typically restrict themselves to 400 calories per day for one to two months.

Both clinics require patients on formula to have regular blood-pressure and heart-rate checks, and blood testing.

Power finds that the first week off standard food is the most difficult. It's uphill after the second week.

They learn how to prepare the formula into custards and souffles, sometimes mixing it with diet pop for "milk shakes."

"I'm free," they say, "free at last," he said.

As part of the program, patients attend weekly lecture sessions conducted by Power over a six-month period and covering topics such as food cravings, anxiety-based eating, anti-cancer diets and managing anger.

They are also put on a serious daily walking program, aiming to build up to the 15-minute mile.

Power is emphatic that obesity itself, and not just the afflictions it creates, is a medical problem.

"These people are not gluttons, it's a metabolic problem. Thin people eat a lot more than fat people. Heavy people weigh more because they tend to shunt food into fat," he said.

His clinic is more than a weight-loss establishment, Power said, it offers a way to fend off "today's diseases" — stress, cancer, high blood pressure and heart ailments.

The Clinics for Preventative and Nutritional Medicine requires potential patients to attend an hour-and-a-half orientation session. They will be placed on a waiting list. The clinic prefers not to release a cost breakdown on the program. For information, call 646-6500.

The Lifestyle Medicine Clinic also has a waiting list. Advance payment for group lecture sessions is $80 per month. The formula diet program is $60 a week, which includes services such as consultations the doctor and a nutritionist. For information on this program, call 424-8888.

Fitness Tips

Heart disease directly related to risk factors

By JUDITH COLLINS

Every minute, an American suffers a heart attack, and for 90 percent of those people, the first heart attack is fatal.

More than one out of three adults in this country has a higher-than-desirable cholesterol level, which is one of the major risk factors leading to the development of heart disease.

Your risk of heart disease is directly related to the number of risk factors you have. The average cholesterol level of someone who has a heart attack in this country is 230 to 240 mg/dl.

The National Cholesterol Education Program Expert Panel in 1987 recommended cholesterol levels should be below 200 mg/dl, no matter what the age. A total cholesterol level is determined from a small blood sample and fasting is not required when your total cholesterol level is checked. If the total cholesterol level is above 200 mg/dl, a more complete test with a 12-hour fast is suggested since the total cholesterol level only reveals part of the risk picture.

Cholesterol is carried in the bloodstream by complexes including low-density lipoprotein (LDL) and high-density lipoprotein (HDL) cholesterol. LDL, often called the bad cholesterol, normally transports cholesterol throughout the body, where it is used to make the membranes around cells, essential hormones and vitamins for digestion.

When it is present in excessive amounts it may deposit the cholesterol in the linings of blood vessels, causing gradual obstruction of the flow of blood to vital organs and tissues. If the LDL level remains high over the long term, the eventual result can be a heart attack, a stroke and / or poor circulation in the legs, among other problems.

HDL, often called the good cholesterol, is involved in removal of cholesterol from the system by taking it to the liver for breakdown and excretion. Another type of fat in the blood stream, triglycerides, is formed in response to the dietary intake of fat, sugar or alcohol, and when it is present in excessive amounts in some individuals, it may be associated with a greater risk of blood-vessel disease.

For those with total cholesterol levels above 200 mg/dl, a more complete blood analysis, including HDL and LDL levels and triglycerides, is suggested.

The LDL cholesterol level should be less than 160 mg/dl in the absence of other risk factors, less than 130 mg/dl with risk factors. In some instances, a high cholesterol and LDL level can be related to having an underactive thyroid gland, to medications you are taking, or to a problem with other organs in the body, such as the liver or kidney. A thorough evaluation by your physician should be performed along with lab studies to check for secondary causes.

The first step in lowering your cholesterol should be to meet with your physician for dietary advice. If this is inadequate to accomplish your goal, you should meet with a registered dietitian to learn the best approach you can take to improve your diet and lose excess weight.

Regular cardiovascular exercise (preferably four to five times a week for at least 30 minutes) helps to control body weight, boost the level of HDL in some instances, and lower the triglycerides. Actually, contrary to popular belief, exercise alone does not usually lower cholesterol and LDL levels to a significant extent, but along with diet helps to accomplish weight reduction in those who are overweight.

Medication may be recommended if other methods do not reduce the cholesterol level. Usually before physicians consider medication therapy for high cholesterol, they recommend a heart-healthy diet and regular exercise program for about six months. However, if the LDL cholesterol level is very high, if the person is at high risk for heart disease and / or if the fats in the blood do not improve significantly after a trial of diet and exercise, a number of medications are available for effective treatment.

Scientific studies have shown that for middle-aged men with cholesterol levels above 250 mg/dl, every 1-percent reduction in blood cholesterol is associated with a 2-percent reduction in risk for heart attack. Therefore, a 10-percent to 30-percent reduction in cholesterol represents a 20 percent to 60 percent reduction in heart-attack risk.

Judith Collins, R.N., B.S.N., is clinical nurse coordinator for MedSport Cardiac Programs. The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.

How to prepare your house for sale

"Put a gingerbread mix in the oven, throw out the kids and gather last year's utility bills," advises Edith Lank, author of "The Complete Homeseller's Kit" (Longman Publishing).

But before you start baking, there are other, more important things you need to do to prepare your house for sale.

A few dollars spent painting, landscaping, repairing and cleaning can produce a home that buyers will fall in love with — plus more profit for you.

Do you know how much your home is worth? Most frequently a home's value depends on its location and real estate professionals can help you determine the going rates in your neighborhood.

Will It Sell: If your house is on a quiet side street, it will be more in demand than one that fronts on a thoroughfare. Corner lots, too, tend to be more prized (one less neighbor to worry about, better parking).

In general, large lots are more valuable than small ones, but you may run across a buyer who wants to avoid maintaining a large piece of property.

An old house in a neighborhood of newer homes benefits from the greater value of the new homes around it. The opposite is true of a new house in an old neighborhood.

Nearby churches and shopping centers are a positive factor — as long as they're not so close that they cause parking and traffic problems.

Mature trees can add as much as $1,000 per tree to the value of a home and homes with views sell at higher prices than those without.

Fix Up Tips: No matter how great your home's location, if it isn't in tiptop condition, it won't get the best price.

Paint is by far the cheapest improvement you can make. The few dollars you spend painting the inside and outside of your home can add thousands of dollars in increased value.

"Another most-for-your-money item is resealing a blacktop driveway to give the outside of the house a crisp, clean appearance," advises Lank.

Any real estate agent will tell you that your home must be clean to impress prospective buyers. It should be light, bright and shiny — not dark, dull and dirty. You may want to spare yourself the hassle of constant cleanliness by hiring a daily clean-up service — at least until the house is sold.

First impressions are crucial. Keep the garage door closed and clean the windows. Repair and repaint fences and make sure nothing outside the house, such as a detached downspout, needs fixing.

faucets, bleach sinks and regrout bathroom tiles. Remove and replace old shower curtains. Clean the fireplace.

Finally, ask a friend to critique your home. It's easy to become blind to things you're used to living with.

Professionals: In addition to home repair and cleaning experts, there are other professionals who can help you sell your house quickly, easily — and for the best possible price.

Once your house is polished and ready to go, you'll need to determine the asking price. A professional appraiser can help — fees range from $100 to $300, depending on where you live.

You can also ask local real estate agents to evaluate your home. But be careful you don't find yourself agreeing to have an agent represent you before you're ready.

Do you really need an agent? According to a survey conducted by the National Association of Realtors, 80 percent of home sellers use agents and, of those who don't, 75 percent say they wish they had.

The advantage of handling the sale yourself is that you save the sales commission. There are books that can help. One is "For Sale by Owner" by Louis Gilmore (Simon & Schuster).

Make sure the porch light and doorbell work. Replace any torn screens.

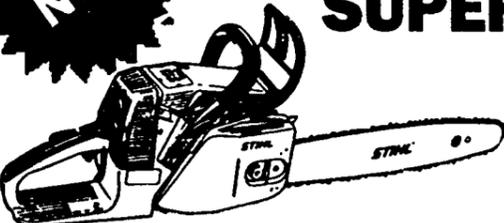

The yard should look green and well-tended. Fertilize the lawn. Use pots of brightly colored flowers to add touches of brightness. Enlist the services of a professional gardener or tree trimmer if necessary.

Have floor coverings cleaned and repair any cracks in plaster walls. Fix leaking

Options for stump removal

If you want to get rid of a stump in your lawn, you have several options, all requiring various investments of time, money or effort.

"The quickest way to remove a stump is to hire a lawn or tree care service to come in and grind it out for you," says Doug Lantagne, extension forestry specialist at Michigan State University. "It is also the most expensive way."

When the stump-grinding machine is finished, you're left with a hole three to four feet wide and one to two feet deep. All you have to do is fill it with topsoil and reseed with grass.

You can also remove a stump by hand, "the good old-fashioned way," Lantagne says. You dig around the stump and cut the roots, then pull the stump out.

"The problem — aside from the fact that this is a lot of back-breaking work — is that it seems there's always one more root that needs cutting," he observes.

An alternative to digging out the stump is to dig down around it and remove the dirt so you can cut off the top. The aim is to lower the top surface of the stump so that it's one to two inches below ground level. You can then cover it with soil, reseed the area and let the stump rot naturally.

"It may be difficult to get a saw down low enough to cut the stump off, but it's less work than digging the stump and cutting the roots," Lantagne notes.

Drilling holes in the top or making criss-cross cuts with a chainsaw will speed up the deterioration by increasing the surface area for fungi and other organisms to work on, Lantagne adds. Even if you do nothing else to a stump, increasing the surface area will help speed up the rotting process.

Another option is to mound soil over the stump and build a raised bed over it. The stump will eventually rot, but while it's doing that, you will have a decorative landscape element instead of an ugly stump.

How long it will take a stump to rot away depends a lot on what kind of tree it was, how large it is and whether it stays moist or dry.

"Different kinds of trees rot at different rates," Lantagne says. "If they're kept moist, spruce, fir and pine stumps can be easily broken apart in two to three years. Birch, box-elder and other less dense deciduous trees also rot quickly once they're dead. More dense hardwoods such as elm, oak and maple take longer."

Bed dressings lean toward extravagance

By Carol Olten

Beds from Maine to California may be having bad dreams these days.

Not another pillow, they groan. Off with the crewel and swags, skirts and ruffles, plush and fluff. Enough is enough.

Not since the late 19th century, when Victorians swathed beds in passionate festoons of velvet draperies and tassels, have so much time, effort, consideration, money and genuine worry gone into the dressing of beds.

Many beds are getting to look like they're ready either for a debutante ball or going to sea — although the latter could be dangerous. There is so much stitchery on board that they very well may sink.

But if a four-poster actually goes down, let's hope somebody is able to save the sheets — at $500 a piece they're well worth recovering, or at least, cause for an insurance claim.

Nobody has been able to offer a decent explanation why designer sheets — white sheets — have escalated to as much as $500 a piece.

Granted, they do have a well-known name attached; they are made of fine, soft cotton; they have handsomely finished edges and more thread counts per square inch than ever before. According to nice advertisements in nice interior design magazines, sometimes they have last been dried under the Italian sun to account for their special freshness.

But one wonders if it will be necessary to jet the dirty linen back to Italy when it's time to wash. I'd take them for $450 less, thank you, and have them dry in local sunshine.

Overdressed beds begin with overpriced sheets, if not white cotton ones, which are the prettiest and most versatile, after all, than overpriced ones with flowers, stripes, dots, paisleys, teddy bears, abstract geometrics and little pinpoints designed by computers.

Practically all the designers, from Givenchy to Perry Ellis, from Jack Lenor Larsen to Ralph Lauren, have their names on sheets, and more seem to be joining the list every day — including Mario Buatta, the prince of chintz, whose floral extravaganzas are expected shortly in department stores.

And, then of course, there are any number such as Laura Ashley who have their names on bed linens as part of an extension of wallpaper, tile and other decorating lines.

Designer bed linens haven't necessarily made beds look any better, but they have certainly increased the choices of pattern and color.

And of course, they lend themselves to status play when it comes to creating a look.

There are no doubt those who simply can't sleep nights without an entire Ralph Lauren natural wicker bed dressed in sheets, shams and pillow cases in the "Allison" floral pattern. They wouldn't think of dropping off to sleep without the special 27-inch square "European" side pillow nearby. And no sleep would be lost

Give your bedroom a Victorian flair with lace and floral fabric over the $5,000 price tag for the whole business.

The purchase of opulent bed dressings may sound like just an activity of the female social set that has nothing else to do after lunch. Not so.

The manager of a home-furnishings department in a major store recently told of a yachtsman who purchased $3,000 worth of Italian silk bedding made by La Scala — and that was for the queen-size bed on his yacht.

Bed pillows are almost a subject unto themselves. Steadily, beds are piled with more and more of them in shapes and colors that call to mind the Great Pyramids or the entire Rocky Mountain chain.

Daily, there is the piling on and piling off of all those pillows. Who ever said living with excess was easy? Indeed, the art of pillow piling is one of the true decorating challenges of the late 20th century.

After the bed pillows come the mix-and-match swags and drapes, the duvets and ruffles, the Empire canopies and tasseled drapes, the coronas and bows.

According to bed history, it all started with the ancient Egyptians, who reclined on beds of gold and marble splendor. It continued with the Romans, who slept with luxurious silk coverlets and feather mattresses.

The European aristocracy of the 16th and 17th centuries had elaborately carved and jeweled beds draped with silk velvets and brocade that became potent icons of wealth and privilege. The 18th century beds, especially in France, added garlands and puffs as well as a few fashionable conveniences, such as bed-chambers built into an architectural shell or wall.

Later, the Victorian era witnessed revival par excellence of pseudo-baroque, neo-Renaissance and other highly decorative bedchamber idioms. Ironically, the descriptions of Victorian beds "swathed in a lugubrious passion of drapery, covered with braid thick as thatch and swaying with gigantic golden tassels" sound like the bed dressing going on now.

The new bed fashions are — yes — more opulent, with rich, dark patterns and colors suggesting Moroccan and Arabian nights. Never mind that you need a sultan's ransom to buy them.

Experts say one of the reasons people spend more mind and money on bed dressing today is that the bedroom is becoming a private retreat. More time is spent in the room as it is used for office homework and other activities previously reserved for different rooms.

Compared with the 1960s and '70s, when beds frequently were so minimally dressed they sometimes carried not even a solitary sleeping pillow, today's beds are bacchanalian decorating bonanzas.

It's that time again for a little restraint and a little more creative invention in how beds relate to other objects in a room.

One of the rules to apply to bed dressing is to use a minimum of materials but use them well. Two well-chosen pillows can easily be more effective than 15 selected for no particular reason.

If you have a canopy bed that demands fabric and draping, keep the lines soft and clean by employing lightweight materials rather than those that seem better suited for a castle.

Basic tips for flower arranging

A bouquet of flowers never goes unnoticed. It's inviting, dramatic, the finishing — and often the most personal — touch to a room, a reflection of our taste and sense of style and creativity. But when it comes to arranging flowers, the task often is daunting.

Flower intimidation can be alleviated by learning some basic guidelines of arranging. Beyond that, it's just a matter of trusting your instincts.

Before you dash off to the florist, take a minute to picture the bouquet in its setting. Will it be formal, casual, large, small, colorful or monochromatic?

More than trends, it's the feeling of the room that takes precedence. If it's warm and cozy, a mix of garden or wildflowers arranged casually often works best. A high-style room can take a more stylized bouquet, such as two rows of yellow daffodils or a lone calla lily.

In a Victorian or traditional setting, you might choose an abundance of dark flowers arranged in the rounded English style.

"Choosing flowers is like pulling together an outfit," says Hoen Meiers, a floral designer in New York City. "White flowers can accent a dark sofa like white pearls on a navy suit."

There is no right or wrong way to mix colors and flowers and every florist has a different "favorite bouquet," but a few basic color rules will see you through the choices:

- Variations of a single color make a sophisticated bouquet — especially deep, dark colors.

- White is always distinguished, always elegant.

- Color-wheel opposites — red and green or blue and yellow — make for dramatic arrangements.

- A combination of dark and light colors creates depth: dark colors appear to recede while pale colors come forward.

- Muted colors you would use to mat a painting — beiges, creams, soft yellows — are good transition or filler colors to surround the "star" or more dramatic flowers. (Yellow is best for blending.)

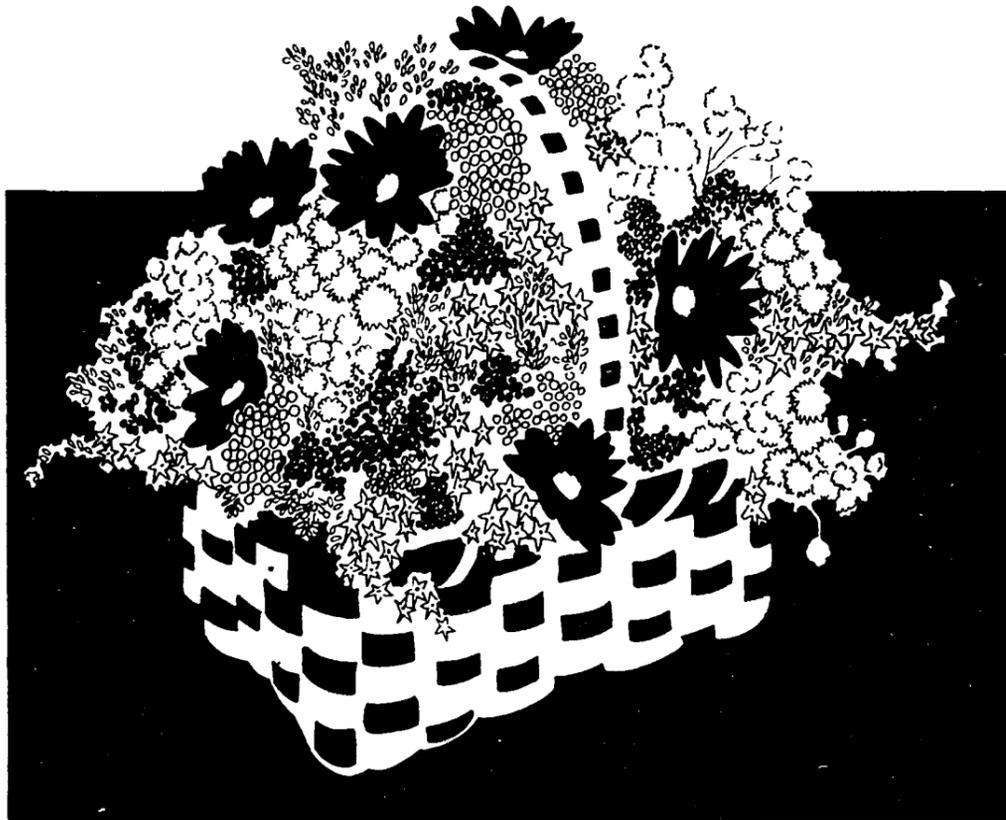

- Buy flowers in triplets so you can form visually balanced triangles within a bouquet — a triad of red roses, a cluster of daisies.

Though color is the selling point for most flowers, experienced flower buyers also look for a mix of textures, sizes and shapes for excitement and added dimensions. Bigger, brighter, more exotic-looking flowers are used as focal points and balance nicely with small, more humble varieties.

If you're making a centerpiece, suggests Sura Kayla, a New York City florist, look for flowers with big "faces," such as anemone, peonies, wide-open roses and tulips. Just one of these covers the same area as a few small flowers. Also, for a centerpiece, there is no need to buy long-stem flowers since you'll end up cutting them to table height.

Consider scent, too — especially if you're arranging a bouquet for a bedroom or other intimate space.

"Unfortunately, the hybridization of flowers has taken away a lot of their scent," says Jenny Lee Irey, spokeswoman for Florists' Transworld Delivery (FTD).

Some of the more aromatic varieties are tuber roses (and other roses), stock, lavender and mauve carnations, gardenias and sweet peas.

You also may want to consider a flower's longevity, though some of the shorter-lived varieties are the most sensational — daffodils, irises, tulips — and worth their few days of glory. Those with more stamina include gladioluses, snapdragons, tropical chrysanthemums, carnations, liatris, statice and stock.

Contain It: A vase can be an integral part of an arrangement or take a back seat to flowers. Either way, a container's texture, shape and style should echo the feeling of a room and help instill that feeling in the flowers.

A crock or ceramic milk pitcher is perfect for an informal, country arrangement, while a traditional setting might be complemented by a graceful vase of colored glass. Clear glass vases are fairly contemporary and universal, but best for light, less dramatic arrangements.

To be prepared for all flower-filled occasions, keep on hand at least one bud vase, one low (4- or 5-inch high) round vase for centerpieces and a heavy container such as a water pitcher for a big bunch of peonies or other substantial flowers.

Greenery Guide: Many people make the mistake of filling in a finished bouquet with greens. In fact, experts usually put greens in first to set the framework for the flowers.

"Think of greens as another design element, another flower," says Meiers, "and don't feel compelled to use all the greens the florist gives you."

The empty or negative space between flowers is one of the most important parts of a successful arrangement; too many greens can make it seem cluttered. A florist generally will pack in a few sprigs of fern, but experiment with other greens to add a unique, exotic touch — for free.

Ask to see your florist's selection of greens. Varieties that can be curled around the edge of the vase, like grape leaves, can soften the "line" separating vase and flowers. Or look in your own back yard — ivy, pachysandra, evergreen and boxwood are good substitutes.

Support Strategies: Any style bouquet needs support — oasis, "frogs," marbles or stones — to help anchor the flowers and point them in the right direction.

Frogs come in two basic types — the kind with porcupine-like points that poke into stems (great for small arrangements that don't need a lot of support), and the ones with round or grid holes that support stems from the outside (better for larger bouquets).

For a very tall arrangement, crumple chicken wire into a loose ball to give flowers support three or four inches up the stems," recommends Meiers.

Marbles and stones are mostly decorative. They give support to smaller groupings. A good alternative is a marble bean bag, which uses a barely visible netting to hold marbles in place for more support.

Oasis, a block of spongy foam, is best at keeping flowers absolutely still. It's great for florists who need to ship bouquets, but isn't necessary for the amateur. (Oasis tends to clog up stems, cutting a day or two off the life of the flowers).

Florist wire is used to make flowers stand up straighter or to send them in directions they don't want to go. Just gently twist it around the stems in an upward spiral. Professionals also use florist tape to provide additional support by creating a crisscross grid across the top of a vase.

Staying Power: All tips on flower prepping have the same goal — getting fresh water through the stems to the flower heads.

First, the stems have to be made as absorbent as possible. Most flowers do well if cut on a diagonal to increase the surface area of the open stems. Use a sharp knife or razor blade rather than scissors, which can pinch closed some of the water channels.

Then immerse the stems in water immediately, or else too many water-blocking air bubbles will form inside the stems. (Serious arrangers do the cutting under water to prevent air bubbles altogether.)

Stems with milky sap should be seared with a match or lighter at the bottom to prevent them from becoming clogged. Woody stems, which have a more difficult time "drinking" up water, should be crushed with a hammer or split several times at the bottom with a knife to create extra surface area.

Another trick is to put flowers up to their necks in water for about an hour to get them accustomed to drinking through the entire stems. Let them fill up with water so they're firm, not limp, then begin your arrangement.

Flowers that spring from bulbs — irises, daffodils and tulips, for example — have soft stems and will do best in shallow water — about three inches for a 12-inch stem. For most other blossoms, fill your vase. Use cool water (you can even toss in an ice cube) to make flowers last longer.

If you're urging some buds open, use warm water until they bloom, since heat makes them grow faster — and die faster, too.

The packet of powder a florist includes with your bundle of blossoms is an antibacterial to keep water clean and, therefore, extend the life of the bouquet. A spoonful of household bleach added when you change water will do the trick, too. Any leaves or foliage that dip below water level will quickly deteriorate and spoil the water, so be sure to trim the stems.

Ideally, recutting stems and changing water daily will give them the longest life, but this is rarely practical, especially if you've spent some time arranging your flowers.

If half your bouquet is ready for retirement but the other half has a few days of life left, dump the wilted flowers and move the rest into a smaller vase. Even if only one flower has survived, place it in a bud vase surrounded by greens.

You'll probably need to cut down the stems to adjust for the smaller dimensions. You might even supplement them with two or three new flowers — an inexpensive trick that can give you a nearly endless bouquet. Recut the stems before switching to clear up any clogs.

Resources: For information on flower arranging courses, contact the botanical gardens, parks system, garden clubs or horticultural society in your area, or the horticulture department of a nearby university. Check also for local continuing-education and community-sponsored programs.

You can call The American Horticultural Society if you have specific questions on arranging or gardening. Though non-members can call in, members' calls take priority. Membership is $30 a year and includes the bimonthly American Horticulturist magazine, as well as information on tours and symposiums. Call 703-768-5700.

How to beat trauma of buying new home

If you've been renting for a while, chances are the thought of owning a home of your own causes strong emotions.

Of course you want a house. It's painful to watch housing prices soar upward, like a jet that took off and left you on the ground, not to mention the divine right of doing what you please to a piece of property.

On the other hand, saving for a down payment can mean sacrifices — and the hunt can be stressful. You're in competition for the biggest purchase of your life and you have to act fast.

It's worth it. You'll have an investment and an opportunity to build equity. There are tax advantages. You can finally have that golden retriever (or fish pond) you've always wanted. You'll experience pride of ownership.

Financing your future home is the biggest hurdle, but it's not impossible.

Save, Save, Save: If your bank account is empty, don't despair. Make a commitment to begin saving.

Set a goal. Study the housing market and determine how much you'll need for a down payment. Be realistic. Chances are, you won't be able to afford a 1,800 square-foot house like the one you grew up in. Most first time buyers start out with houses that are less than perfect. The important thing is to start.

If you expect to buy in the next two years, visit a lender and find out what kind of loan you can expect to qualify for. Ask about closing costs and other expenses.

Make a budget. Establish a special savings account for your new home and make regular deposits. Perhaps your employer offers payroll deductions for savings — it's easier to save money you never see.

Before You Shop: In a hot housing market, the process of financing your new home begins before you find it.

Before you start putting red Xs next to "homes for sale" classifieds, search for the right lender. Sure, you can use a lender recommended by a real estate agent, but you could miss out on a better deal.

You might want to contact someone who has access to a wide variety of loans, such as a mortgage broker, or a direct lender, such as a commercial bank, savings and loan, or mortgage banker.

When you find a lender whose terms you can live with, fill out the paperwork necessary to pre-qualify for a loan. Once you know how much money you can borrow, you'll have a head start when you find the home you want to buy.

When you process the paperwork for pre-qualification, be up front about liabilities such as car payments and other outstanding debts. Otherwise, you could nullify the pre-qualification and let that lovely home slip through your fingers.

Know Your Terms: To compare lenders, you need to ask about more than interest rates. Here are other factors to consider:

- Qualifying ratios. How much income you need in order to qualify for the amount of the loan you want (balanced against how much debt you have).

- Conventional or government insured. A conventional mortgage is not FHA insured or VA guaranteed.

- Fixed-rate or adjustable-rate mortgage. On the first, the interest rate is constant for the entire term of the loan; on the second, it fluctuates based on a prearranged index.

- Loan-to-value ratio. The percentage of a property's value lent to a borrower.

- Amount of down payment. This is how much money you'll have to pay to make up the difference between the purchase price of a house and the mortgage amount.

- Number of points. A percentage of the loan paid to the lender up front. Each point equals 1 percent of the amount of the loan.

- Monthly payments or biweekly. Find out how frequently you'll be expected to make your mortgage payments.

- Payoff period. The length of time over which you'll pay off the loan, usually 30 years or 15 years.

Also ask about prepayment penalties, any fees you'll need to pay for appraisals and credit checks and any other qualification requirements you should know about.

If the above listed terms sound foreign, perhaps even intimidating to you, you're not alone. Most people shopping for loans need to become familiar with the vocabulary of finance.

Many lending institutions offer free booklets that detail the loan process and define terms. Be sure to ask. Another source is the real estate section of your bookstore.

How to conserve home resources

By Tersha d'Elgin

Today, conserving home resources is easily achievable and affordable.

You can increase your existing home's energy efficiency and take advantage of new technologies by making a careful personal or professional energy audit from basement to attic.

Find out which areas may be losing heat and determine the condition of your plumbing and whether water is being wasted. This audit will include checking insulation, windows and doors, the heating system, pipes and ducts, and appliances.

If you don't feel confident to do this yourself, most utility companies provide inspection either free or for a minimal fee. A professional energy audit walk-through takes less than two hours. You will receive a written analysis outlining conservation options and their price range later. In some cases, the fee is refunded if homeowners follow one of the recommendations.

Among the most troublesome appliances are:

- For clothes dryers, save time and money (and extend the life of your clothes) by cutting down the drying time. Dry full loads and always clean the lint screen before starting the machine.

- In the washing machine, wash full loads, preferably in cold or warm water. Also use energy-saving wash cycles.

- Buy energy-saving incandescent light bulbs. Low wattage is fine for hallways and areas that don't need blinding light. Try energy-efficient fluorescent bulbs to light up work areas.

- Load up the dishwasher fully before turning it on. Use short-cycle and air-dry selections to save energy.

- Refrigerators are energy guzzlers. Avoid opening refrigerator doors often and don't stand in front of an open refrigerator waiting for divine inspiration.

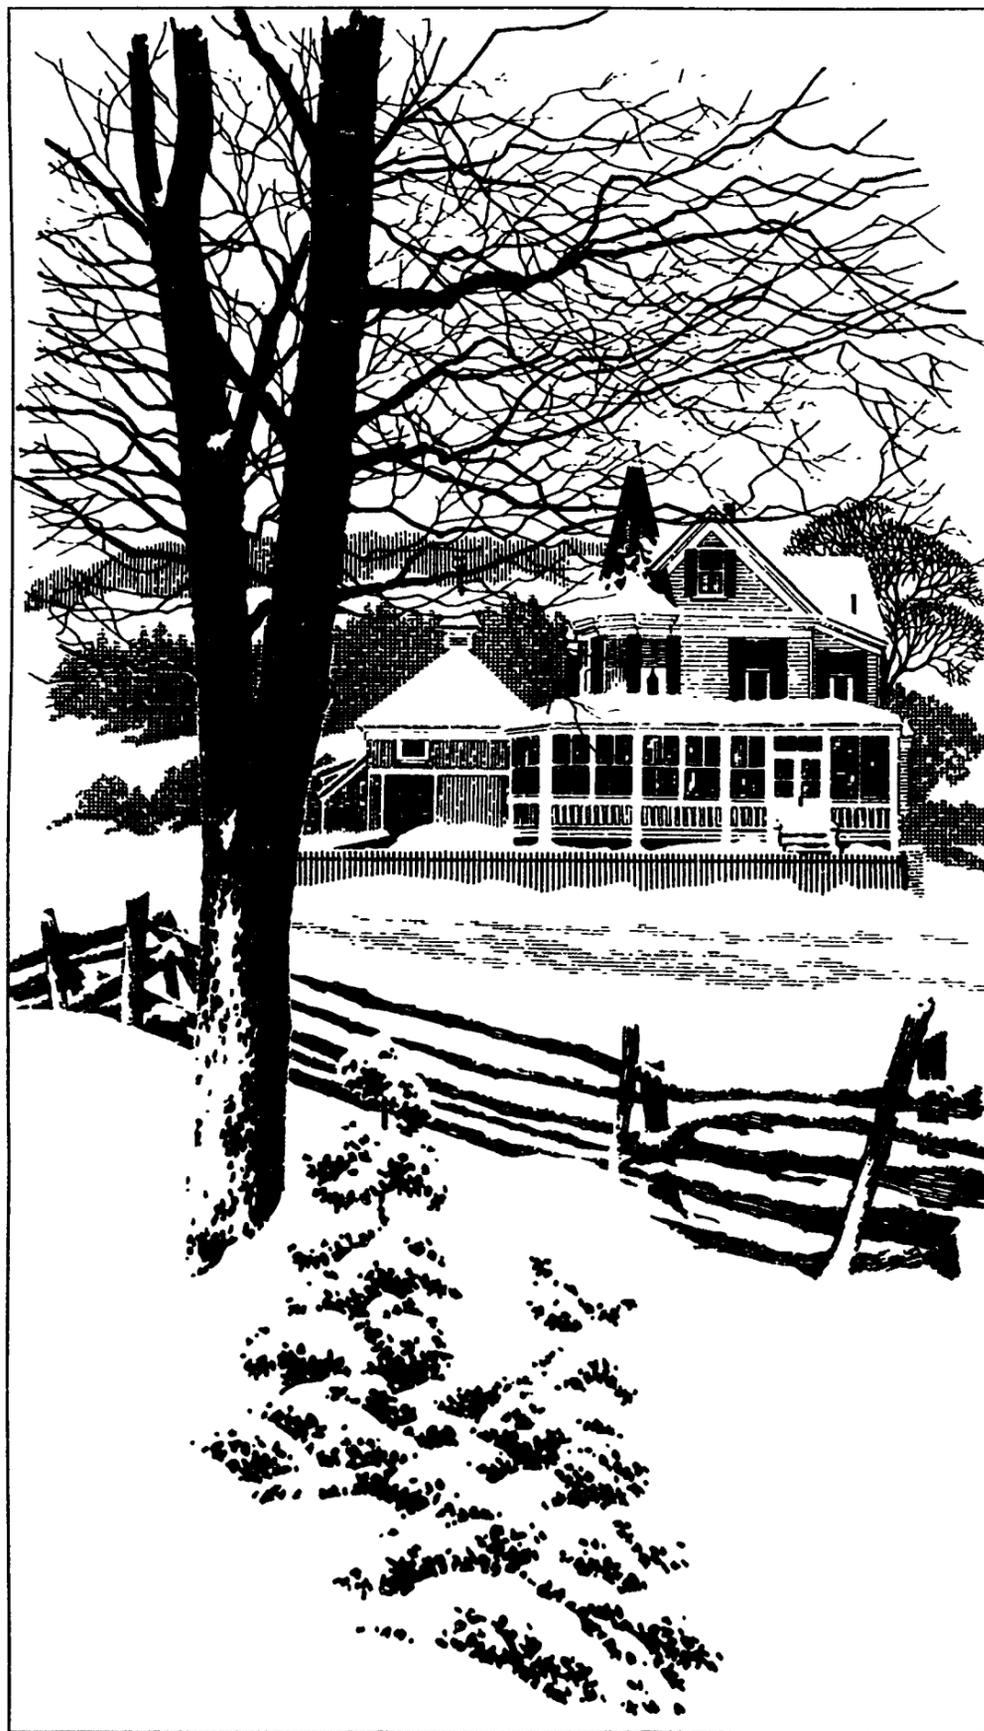

Shop for an energy-efficient refrigerator, such as one with a water dispenser or a small compartment that holds items you want to get to frequently.

But appliances aren't the only problem. A reputable plumber can help pinpoint areas of water leakage or faulty piping. If you need assistance in locating a competent plumber contractor, call your local chamber of commerce.

Most houses have areas that could be a little warmer. Heat escaping through the attic may account for up to half of a home's entire heat loss. You can add attic insulation yourself with products such as CertainTeed Fiber Glass Insulation. Touch'n'Foam Instant Insulation from Convenience Products can be used around pipes and electrical outlets.

Install weatherstripping and caulking around doors and windows, and use storm windows and doors if necessary. In case you're not ready to make the sizable investment in storm windows, most building supply and hardware stores sell kits for making your own from plastic sheets.

Don't block registers or radiators with rugs, furniture or drapes. And wrap extra insulation around the outside of hot water heaters. Turn the temperature down on the water heater thermostat: 120 degrees Fahrenheit should be sufficient. You also can get by with lower temperature settings on wash loads.

To maximize heating system output, make sure the furnace is cleaned and tuned. Like many other home appliances, thermostats have gone electronic. Heating system thermostats can be programmed to reduce temperatures during those hours when you're away from home or asleep.

If your schedule is not conducive to a standard pattern, it is now possible to telephone your home and command your heating system to turn on in advance of your arrival.

For every degree your thermostat is lowered in the winter and raised in the summer, your fuel bills can be reduced by three percent, according to government energy reports. At the rate of 15 percent reduction for two-thirds of the day, this would translate into a savings of as much as $300 a year. Most electronic thermostats cost less than $200.

If your heating system is really decrepit, a new system may be justified. The pulse combustion systems, which inject fuel into the furnace to be mixed with air in controlled spurts, are nearly 100 percent efficient.

Heat recovery ventilators recover heat from evacuating air and transfer it to the cooler air entering the system. Some HRV's can be retrofitted into existing heating installations. Others require a separate duct system.

Low-emissivity or low-E glass has the highest insulating properties for new windows. And insulated metal doors should be considered, rather than wooden doors.

Fireplaces are another household energy culprit. About one-third of all household heat can disappear up a chimney without glass fireplace screens.

When improving insulation in your home, don't overlook ventilation. Without some kind of circulation, moisture and stale air will accumulate and provide problems even more severe than the high cost of energy.

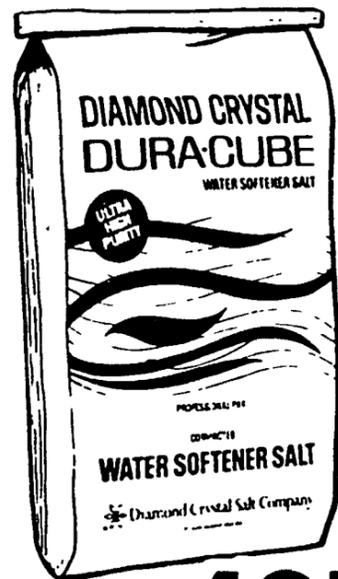

Today's homeowners can go solar to almost any degree. But getting the most watt per dollar and fixture is not always a matter of the most collectors, controllers, heat storage equipment and insulation. Thoughtfully plotted architecture together with a few solar energy elements can be just as ecological and economical.

Water conservation is more than a passive effort to use less. You should be retrofitting your toilets and shower heads with water-saving devices and checking for leaks, especially in the toilet. Toilets account for 40 percent of all water usage. Toilet leaks can waste up to 100 gallons a day. Fixing these leaks is usually as easy as adjusting the plunger ball or the overflow pipe.

If your house was built since 1978, the law requires a low-flush modulator that uses three and one-half gallons or less per flush. Older houses probably still have a five to seven-gallon toilet tanks and should be outfitted with a water-filled plastic bottle or bag available from local water companies. These take up extra room in the tank and result in less water per flush.

If you're adverse to shorter showers or turning off the water while you scrub, why not install a low-flow shower head that will reduce output? Don't let sink water run while your brush your teeth or shave.

Use the minimum water level in dish and clothes washers and use double cycles only when absolutely necessary.

Trends lean toward home and hearth

By Jackie Fitzpatrick

With the '90s upon us, the trends of the new decade are making themselves known — particularly in interior design.

Yuppies no longer, people are into home and hearth in a big way.

We're cocooning, say sociologists. We're staying home and watching "Roseanne," ordering in, getting comfy.

Designers say the lifestyle is reflected in the homes we're creating.

"I hate to use the terms 'cocooning' and 'nesting,' but people want a comfortable home now," says Betty Gollrad, a spokeswoman for Hunter Douglas, a New Jersey window-covering firm. "The country and Victorian styles are the new look. Designs are a lot softer. The high-tech, spare interiors have gone. People want classic comfort."

The look this season is European country, with splashes of bright color — Byzantine sapphire and Regency jade or flickers of tangerine, red, violet or turquoise.

Furniture fabric, wall and window coverings are an eclectic mix of prints and patterns. Whites and beiges may make up most of the backdrop — but they're highlighted by tapestries and antique silver, worn wood floors and expansive garden views. An ancestral portrait might stare across at floral double-pleated shades and terra cotta flower pots.

"It's a mix of old-world designs and rustic," says Joseph Ruggiero, editor-in-chief of Home magazine. "The popular look of the home in the '90s is sophisticated European country. It's a relaxed, put-your-feet-up kind of thing."

Designers offer the following tips for your own little country province:

Start with the living room. A few strong pieces set the tone for the room. A Chipendale chair, a classic bookcase or an antique end table can lend a nice touch to a couch reupholstered in a majestic teal.

The best part of the European country look is that it can be acquired with the right accessories — none of which has to burn a hole in the wallet. Cluster framed family portraits, books and fresh flowers on end tables. Cover wood chair seats and benches with floral prints and place baskets about the room as well.

Teri Seidman, an interior designer and author of "Decorating Rich: How to Achieve a Moneyed Look Without Spending a Fortune," encourages choosing an upscale look but searching the flea markets and tag sales to find bargains.

For example, expensive tassels on draperies that are a must. Hunt for them on old lamps at flea markets. Or cover a pillow in pieces from used Oriental rugs and arrange elegant accessories on skirted tables.

Next, meander to the kitchen. If you happen to have a central cooking space, an island in the center of the room, that's perfect, says Ruggiero.

Europeans are long known as intimate party-givers, and an open kitchen allows the host to mingle as they cook. It doesn't cost much to give the room charm. Hang copper pots, cookware, dried herbs or maybe a long rope of red peppers from movable hooks.

Kitchen hutches are the rage these days. They can sometimes be found at New England auctions and tag sales and can be used to store everything from crockery to food.

Bedrooms are for romance, according to today's designers. Canopies drape softly over beds. The drapes are pulled back with lace. Vanities are back, and they might sport a wicker-framed mirror, a plate of chocolates and a copper vase filled with peace roses.

Other tips:

- Rip out the wall-to-wall carpeting hiding those wood floors and bleach or stain the wood below it. The Oak Flooring Institute provides copies of a hardwood finishing and refinishing manual for 50 cents by writing to the institute at 804 Sterick Building, Memphis, Tenn., 38103.

- Do-it-yourselfers — basements are a great remodeling spot. Often a remodeled basement can mean a 200 percent investment return and can provide additional family space in the home.

- Stenciling is a great accent in children's rooms, kitchens and bathrooms. For ideas, visit a well-stocked art supply shop.

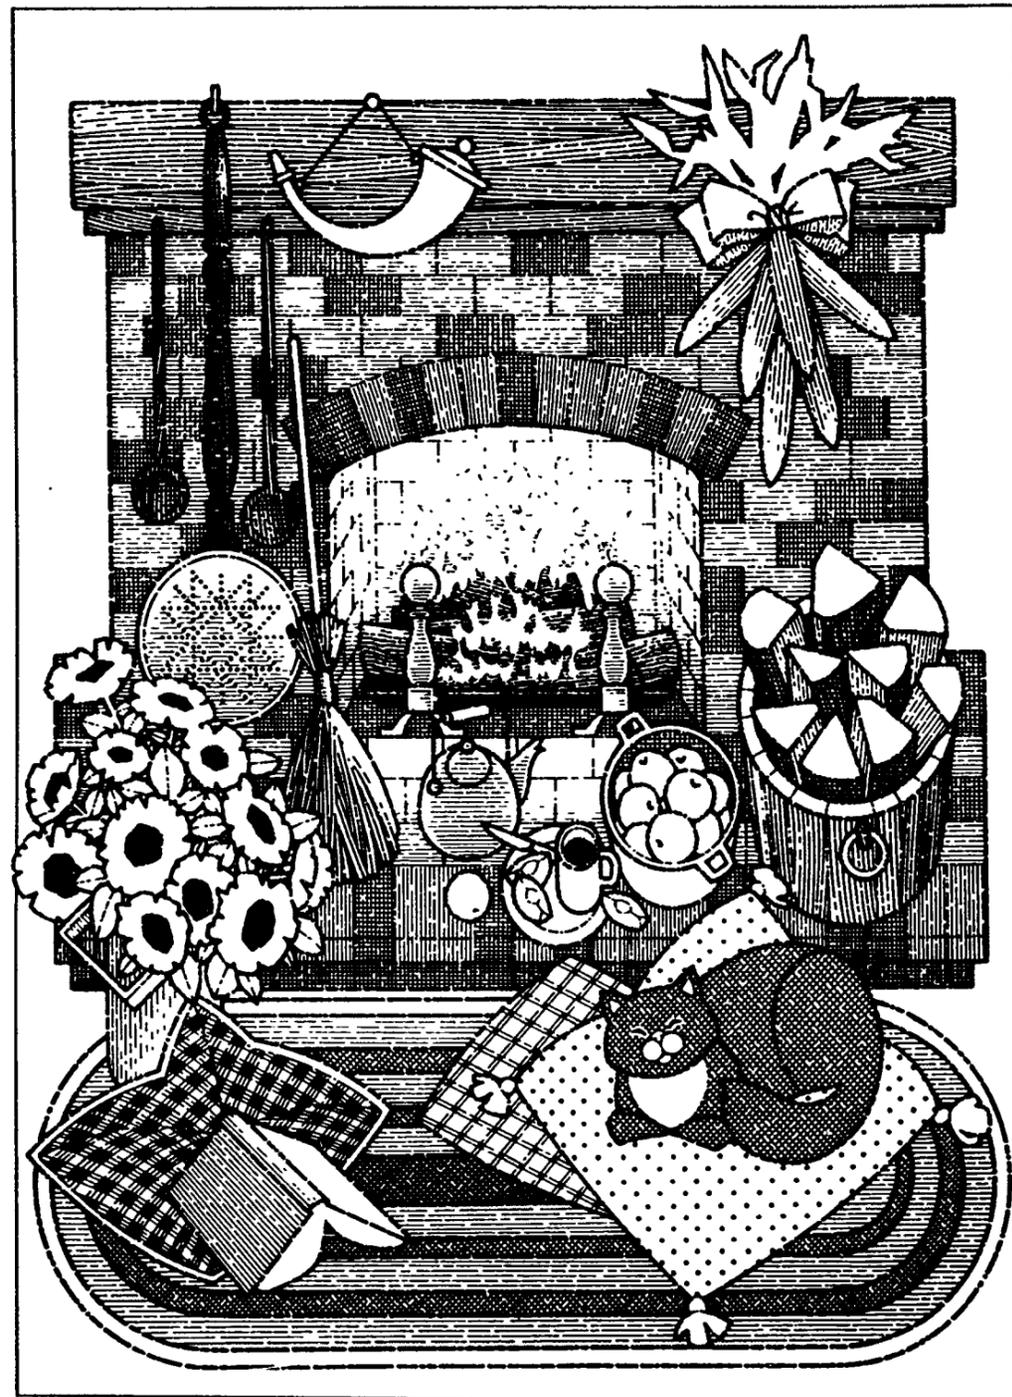

- Contact an interior designer if you're seeking the advice of an expert. The American Society of Interior Designers has a free referral service in 49 cities. It's advisable to look for an individual with solid credentials and a membership in a professional association.

Be sure to have a budget to present along with specific ideas of what you want your room (rooms) to look like. If a designer is out of your price range, many furniture and department stores offer design services as part of a package with certain household purchases.

- Apartment dwellers can turn a rental into a home with many of the same tactics. Cluster accessories, enlarge space with wall mirrors, place a Southwestern rug over a dull carpet, increase lighting to brighten rooms.

If painting or wallpapering is a must to give your apartment the feeling of a true home, check with a landlord. He may be convinced to pay for some or all of the upgrade.

- Rent furniture. Although rental furniture once seemed synonymous with back-to-basics, today's furniture renters can get everything from washed oak and wall hangings to complete dining ware for six. You can opt to rent pieces of furniture for an entire three-bedroom home. According to the Furniture Rental Association of America, costs can range from $60 a month for a three-bedroom package to $800 a month for the luxury line.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Resources for decorating tips

By Jackie Fitzpatrick

You don't have to spend a fortune to build your own library on interior design. Bookstores, libraries and magazine stands are teeming with books that are themselves filled with ideas on how to improve the look of your home, be it a three-bedroom, two-bath, a condo, an apartment, a mansion or a shack.

Before consulting the manuals, though, you need ideas. One of the best ways to get ideas is to browse through some of the many magazines focused entirely on the home.

Some of the many available include Home, Architectural Digest, Metropolitan Home and Home Ideas. With the new interest in country decor, new magazines are appearing dealing solely with that look.

In addition, most women's magazines — and even fashion magazines — devote articles each month on interior design or how-to tips. Don't forget the home sections of the newspapers, usually appearing weekly with a wealth of information.

Once you have some concrete ideas on the look you want, you may be ready to invest in a couple of books. There are hundreds available. Two that are highly recommended by Home editors are "Interior Design," by John F. Pile (Abrams Books) and Conran's "Do-It-Yourself Home Design" by Jocasta Innes and Jill Blake (Viking Penguin Books).

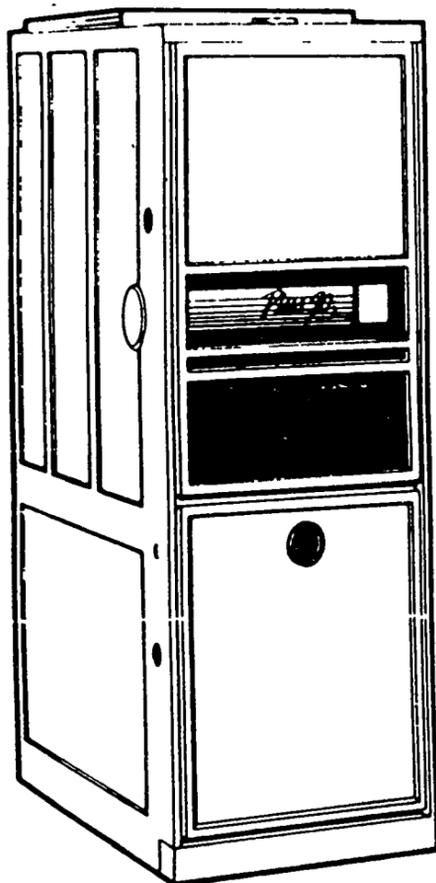

Although a random check of video outlets in several major cities didn't yield a large number of available videos on the subject, experts in the field say the numbers are growing slowly. Check with video stores that carry a business line. The same goes for software companies.

Satisfaction Guarantee

We at Damman Hardware work to provide our customers with a complete selection of quality merchandise at competitive prices. If for any reason our customers are dissatisfied with a purchase we will replace an item or issue a refund, whatever we can do to keep you, our customer, satisfied and coming back.

Here's how it works...

Stop in and visit our Livonia Damman Hardware. Pick up an entry blank at the service center. Walk through the store and imagine winning any item you see. Take your time and consider every item. You can select from power tools, small appliances, B.B.Q.'s, home security system and thousands of other items. When you decide on one item in the store, complete your entry blank and leave it with the cashier. 5 entries will be drawn and they will be awarded the prize on their entry. So come in and join the fun! Also we will be giving away many quality door prizes.

Dear Homeowner

We at Damman Hardware are pleased to have the opportunity of joining your community. We are bringing to you over 69 years of experience and service in the Metropolitan Detroit Area. Our fifteen stores and distribution center give us the buying power to offer you everyday competitive pricing throughout our store. Personal Service, in-depth selection and wide organized aisles are yet a few more of the reasons we offer you to become a regular Damman "Satisfied Customer."

I would like to take this opportunity to invite you to visit our store in Livonia, enter our Grand Opening Drawing and join in the celebration. With your help, we know the opening of your Damman Hardware will certainly be Grand!

Sincerely,

RICK DAMMAN
