H.sty targeted in probe

Vol. 122

By MIKE TYREE

Northville Township Chief of Police Kenneth Hardesty is the subject of an investigation by township officials for alleged violations involving the internal sale of department weapons, according to a source close to the case.

A source said Hardesty allegedly used his position to purchase one or more guns in violation of township, possibly state and federal and guidelines.

Attorney Ernest Essad, representing the Charter Township of Nor-thville, confirmed that an investigation into the police department is ongoing, but he refused to comment on specific allegations against the police chief.

"It would be unethical . . . I won't comment on an ongoing investiga-tion," he said. "It's not fair to those involved.'

Essad said a report was being com-piled on the investigation, and would be "delivered to the Supervisor's office Friday.'

Township Supervisor Georgina Goss, as Hardesty's immediate supervisor, is reportedly conducting the investigation, which sources say has taken place over the past two weeks. She was out of town and unavailable for comment at presstime Tuesday evening.

Township Manager Richard Henningsen said he was instructed not to comment on the investigation. Hardesty, contacted at his home

Tuesday afternoon, declined to comment on the case. He was named Northville Township Police Chief in November 1981, began his service with the department in 1970 as a reserve officer, and was hired as a full-time patrolman in 1973.

Ironically, Hardesty took over the police chief role after the previous chief, Ronald Nisun, was demoted for his role in an improper gun purchase.

City residents question new library plan indication, city residents remain divided over the township's proposal biggsor is always of a library at Six Mile and Sheldon on the 72 acres of land donated by Frieda Haller.

Over 20 residents attended the meeting to ask questions about the proposed library and to voice opinions on the site.

Following the study session, Mayor Chris Johnson was authorized by council members to pursue negotiations with the township over a shared service contract involving the city's participation in the 44,800 square foot Haller library. In addition, Johnson said he would like to work with the township in appointing a committee to explore the issue further.

Haller stipulated in her donation that a 44,800-square-foot library would have to be built on the site within two years of voter approval of the library. Voter approval would

Council member Carolann Ayers added, "This is the first time that the city council has discussed this, so I'm sure we'll have some questions on

City Manager's report studied

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

In a report on the library for the ci-Walters analyzed several alter-natives for the council to consider — including participating in the township operation of a library at Six Mile and Sheldon.

In the 11-page analysis, Walters outlined four alternatives for the city, including:

operating a city library at its present site within the city's current budget contribution · operating a city library at its present site to provide the level of service currently provided by the community libraryparticipating with the township in hours a week. Special services like the children's reading program could also be cancelled.

To maintain the current level of service to a reduced readership without township participation, Walters said, the city could lay off some staff. If township participation ended, though, the township would be entitled to half the books, periodicals and furniture. City replacement of the 19,500 volumes lost would cost an estimated $487,500, and replacement of furniture and shelves would cost an estimated $45,000.

With the same hours and book and periodical budget, and replacement of the books and equipment owned by the township, the city's annual con-

Attorneys, school administrators, and other officials huddled in Northville this week to provide testimony during hearings in the Terry Phelan shock device case.

U.S. District Court Judge Barbara Hackett last week ordered Northville Public School officials and attorneys for the severely disabled 15-year old youth to continue discussions on whether or not Phelan would be allowed to wear a device that administers an electric shock during periods of self-abuse.

Hackett's ruling postponed a lawsuit brought against the Northville School District by Phelan's parents. The suit was intended to force the school district to allow Phelan to wear a Self-Injurious Behavior Inhibiting System (SIBIS) while he attends the Bryant Center in Livonia, an educational program under Northville Public School jurisdiction.

Phelan, who resides in Westland, reportedly goes through periods of self-abuse where he strikes himself in the face up to 150 times per minute. The SIBIS delivers an 85-volt shock during self-abusive stages, and

Bond payments may strap city

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

Northville is financially fit, said the city's auditor last week, though bond payments could leave the city strapped for cash in the short run.

Ken Kunkel. an auditor with Plante & Moran, presented the 1989 financial report at a recent city coun-cil meeting. "You're pretty much right on target for what you planned to do," he told the council. The 42-page report covers the fiscal year ended June 30, 1989.

Property taxes showed a "very healthy increase," Kunkel said, rising from $1,312,000 in 1988 to $1,535,000 in 1989. He attributed the increase to a growth in the residential and commercial area's desirability, and efforts by city officials to enhance the downtown business atmosphere.

But, he warned, "when you're in the process of developing these things, your city costs start to go up.'

State shared revenues, half of which come from sales tax and half from income and single-business taxes, has not grown as fast as other revenues. The state-shared revenues rose from $484,000 to $518,000 in the past year, but declined from 17 percent to 16 percent of total revenues.

These revenues are based on personal income, Kunkel explained, and the personal income of city residents has not kept pace with the growth in other revenue, like property taxes.

the operation of the proposed library at Six Mile and Sheldon providing an enlarged city library with the expanded service which was planned for the new joint library

Walters' report predicted a millage rate of between 0.74 and 2.28 for operating a city library at its present site in the basement of city hall, depending on whether the current level of service was maintained. The city's current share in the community library costs 0.74 mills.

Walters predicted that maintaining the library at its present site - and within the city's current budget contribution of 0.74 mills - would likely require a reduction in staff, and a decrease in library hours to about 24 tribution would have to increase from $114,232 to $350,789 - a tax increase of 1.54 mills.

Participation in the township's plan for a 44,800-square-foot library at Six Mile and Sheldon — on the 72 acres of land donated to the township by Frieda Haller - could cost the city between 1.68 mills and 2.42 mills depending on the cost-sharing agreement reached with the township. The figures are based on a 50-percent increase in the current library's book stock, the addition of one librarian and some part-time help, and a 15year bond issue at 7.5-percent interest.

The difference between the two figures is based on whether the city

Kailroad safety audit delayed until 1990

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

Release of the Federal safety audit of the railroad line that runs through Northville has been delayed until 1990

Federal officials, blaming delays in the release of the audit of CSX Transportation on the size of their staff, said the report should be available to the public by the first of January. The report was originally scheduled to be released after Sept.

The report was ordered after a July 22 derailment of CSX chemical cars in Freeland, which forced the evacuation of about 900 people. The same line suffered a derailment in Highland Township on April 25.

Public hearings on the Freeland derailment turned up an oversized flatcar carrying a 150-ton boiler as the likely cause of the accident. The flatcar had been involved in three previous derailments in Michigan within the last year. A blood sample from the train's brakeman also tested positive for cocaine.

The Northville section of the line has had its problems as well, including runaway boxcars which killed a person on Seven Mile Road in 1985. The study examines the entire length of the CSX track, from Midland to Toledo, Ohio.

Federal inspectors began their audit of the CSX line in August. The inspectors rode trains to observe the company's handling of hazardous materials, and examined equipmentrepair procedures and pre-departure inspections at several of the rail yards along the line.

The CSX report is just one of many of the Federal Railroad Administration's (FRA) current projects, said Kaye Wood, an FRA spokesperson in Washington, D.C.. The FRA office is also responsible for drafting accident/incident bulletins, railroad / highway grade crossing

Ely Fuel ordered to fix violations

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

A local fuel company has been ordered to clean up by several state agencies. Ely Fuel, Inc. of Northville City has been notified of several violations of state fire safety codes, and was asked to clean up ground contamination at its Railroad Avenue site by the state.

The current violations were first discovered by Northville Fire Inspec-tor Robert Turner. Because the business is an above-ground storage facility for flammable liquids, it falls under strict state regulations, Turner said. When several violations were found, an inspector from the state fire marshal's office was called in to inspect the site. Turner listed eight violations, and required that they be corrected before the stop work order be lifted. Among the improvements required were:

Installation of proper fusible links at the tank valves

Repair of diking at pipe throughfittings, and cleaning of weeds and debris from diking Labelling of all tanks with product

name and capacity

Cleanup of ground contamination around discharge valve Installation of a product catch for discharge valve

Turner placed the stop work order on the site after finding that owner Charles Ely had not obtained the necessary local building permit before renovation of the facility's loading dock. Turner said that another local inspection will be made of the site after state officials have finished their investigation, and ap-doing quite well," Turner said. "He's been adhering to the stop work order.

The state fire marshal's office became concerned when notified that Ely had relocated an above-ground storage tank on the property without notifying the state. In the process, Sergeant David Stayer of the state fire marsial's office inspected the site early this month, finding many of the violations listed. "What we're concerned with is the storage of flammable and combustible materials," Stayer said. Stayer described Ely's maintenance of the site as "somewhat lax."

Ely was also criticized for relocating the above-ground storage tank without obtaining prior plan approval from the fire department, and asked to send a revised site plan to the state fire marshal's office in Lansing.

"Our office has inspected them before, and have found recurring violations," he said. "Some of the ones I cited were ones that previous inspectors had cited." These included minor violations such as neglecting to relabel tanks after they were repainted, and failing to secure the property when the site was left unattended.

The ground contamination is the result of fueling operations, according to Turner. "Over the years where he would fill his tank some discharge would come out," he said. According to Tony Pitts, an en-condition. We've inspected the site over the years, and we're sending them a letter at this time to make it clear that they need to respond."

"The letter will call for an extensive evaluation and cleanup," he added. The evaluation could require soil investigations and analysis of soil samples

Pitts said that the company has had "a few problems with spills before." When notified of previous problems, he said, the company had been quick to respond. "We don't expect that they'd be any less cooperative this time," Pitts said.

Businesses are typically given 20 to 30 days to clean up a site, he added, though he refused to discuss the DNR's response in cases where businesses do not clean a site within the time frame specified by DNR.

According to Ely, the lack of a local building permit was a simple mistake. "I was just relocating my loading dock," he said, "and I was working under a permit from Wayne County and didn't realize I needed a permit from the city." Ely said the ground contamination at the site has been cleaned up, saying, "I just removed it from the area they wanted it removed from." The soil was moved to another location on the site and covered to prevent further ground contamination, he said.

The present renovations, including the relocation of the bulk plant and loading dock, are intended to free up land for further industrial development, Ely said. "Hopefully, we can get some more industrial property in there." He recently purchased about an acre of land near the site from CSX Transportation, and he said the new industrial site would be about 1* acres.

Ely said the business was originally started by his grandfather in 1946.

funeral planning It's one of those things that's so easy to put off, put out of your mind. And I guess that's what I was doing. But, once he started asking me questions about how I wanted my funeral to be, I realized how important it is for the people we leave behind to know these things. He had no idea that I wanted a simple eulogy, and just that discussion alone started us on all sorts of other topics. I found out he doesn't like organ music. We even had a few laughs.

Forethought is funeral planning... before the need arises

I thought planning our funerals together would be a terribly sad thing. But, actually, it brought us both a great sense of relief. Now we know neither one of us has all those decisions facing us in the future and we won't have to second-guess whether we did the right thing...did what the other one would have wanted. It's all planned and even paid for with the Forethought life insurance policy designed and approved specifically for Forethought funeral planning. And, there's a policy available to anyone up to age 100. There's a real peace of mind that comes with having it taken care of ahead of time with Forethought. ^{£1968 Forethought Policy Sense A2 & A3}

Plans to upgrade continue in city

Northville City's capital outlay program is still on target, despite several unforseen budget items. City Manager Steven Walters reported the program's status at a recent city council meeting. City officials had budgeted for $272,150 in improvements over four years, including remodeling of the police department's lock-up facilities, recycling equipment, fuel tanks for the Department of Public Works (DPW), a DPW pole barn ad-dition and a DPW trash compactor. While the lock-up remodeling was completed for less than budgeted, a $14,214 bid for a DPW Yard Gate Access Control System was more than was budgeted for the DPW. City officials had also discussed adding another bay to the pole barn for the proposed city trolley. The cost of the additional bay would be $4,856.

Also, the maintenance contract for the city's new Emergency 911 telephone system, at $2,250 for this year, was not budgeted because the amount was not known during planning of the budget.

Walters reccommended that the council postpone purchase of the trash compactor. The compactor's payback potential has dropped, he said, because of an expected reduc-tion in the amount of trash and in-creases in the landfill fees. Postpon-ing purchase of the $32,000 comp pactor will allow payment of the 911 maintenance contract, completion of the DPW yard gate and the addition of an extra bay to the barn. Council members approved the revisions.

City receives award

Northville will receive an Amer-cian Automobile Association Pedestrian Safety Achievement for its 1988 safety record.

The award was presented during a meeting of the Wayne Coutny Traffic Safety Committee in Southgate on Wednesday. Northville is being honored for going 16 years without a pedestrian fatality. This is the 50th anniversary of AAA's Annual Pedestrian Protection Program, which recognizes cities and states for reporting low numbers of pedestrian traffic accidents or conducting effective programs that teach pedestrians how to avoid colli-sions. More than 2,500 communities nationwide participated in the pro-gram this year, with 400 cities and states receiving awards. Par-ticipants were judged by a panel of safety experts and traffic engineers who evaluated pedestrian casualty rates and safety programs of comparably-sized areas.

Northville is one of 49 Michigan cities recognized by AAA for conducting successful pedestrian safety programs.

New Northville Historical Society President Art Rockall.

Renovating the past Historical group names new head

By BRENDA DOOLEY

History is everybody's business. As newly-named president of the Northville Historical Society, Arthur Rockall certainly has made history a part of his life.

He dons working clothes every week and heads to Mill Race Village where he and nine other volunteers work steadfastly at remodeling the Cady Inn. So far, they've installed siding on the back exterior of the building and insulated the interior, making it possible for them to work inside the building throughout the winter.

"It's been a lot of fun," Rockall said, referring to the remodeling project. "We're learning something new all the time."

When he's not busy restoring the Cady Inn, Rockall spends time conducting business for the 400-member Northville Historical Society. Prior to acting as president of the group, he served on the board of directors for two years. Rockall has' been a member of the society for a total of five years

He became the group's newest leader upon the resignation of Steve Ball, who gave up the presidency because of other commitments. One of Rockall's goals for the group is to change its image. "It's (the Northville Historical Society) often perceived as a closed group," he said. "We want to open it up to the community and to involve more people."

Working to achieve the goal, Rockall said he'd like to encourage more residents and groups to use Mill Race Village, a quaint historic village on Griswold Street, just north of Main Street in Northville.

"The village belongs to everyone, really," Rockall says. "We're (the historical society) just the caretaker.'

Rockall noted that the village's New School Church is regularly rented out by residents and groups. And he'd like to see the other buildings in the village used just as frequently.

'Because we're not open all yearround, it's difficult to gain visibility," he remarked. "Eventually, I would

School hires firm for bond projects

By MIKE TYREE

In preparation for construction projects outlined by the 1989 bond issue, the Northville Public School District announced it has retained the services of an architectural/engineering firm.

The district Board of Education Nov. 13 agreed to hire Southfieldbased Cogillard, Dundon, Peterson and Argenta, Inc. to design and construct a district-wide Facilities Renovation Program.

Assistant Superintendent of Administrative Services Dr. Burton Knighton said several projects listed under the bond issue plan required architectural and/or engineering design before the school district could start construction.

He also said that school districts are required by law to employ an architect/engineer for projects over $15,000 that involve the construction or renovation of buildings.

In a memo to Superintendent of Schools Dr. George Bell, Knighton listed some of the projects that needed architectural/engineering design. Included in the list were: districtwide storage facilities and additions, football stadium renovations, parking lot and sidewalk repairs and installation, boiler replacement, fuel tank removal and replacement, gymnasium footings and floor repairs, tennis court renovations, replacement of large gym folding doors, city water and sewer hookups for Moraine School, and folding wall and room partitions.

Knighton said Coquillard, Dundon, Peterson and Argenta previously worked for the school district during the high school renovation and helped prepare the 1989 Bond Issue Projects documents for approval by the Department of Education. He added that the firm knows the district, has architectural plans of all district buildings, and is ready to proceed on top priority projects.

The firm will be charging a fee of 7.25 percent of the cost of the project, which will cover all of the phases from the design through the completion of each project.

Two agreements were signed by the district and the architectural firm. The first includes services provided when a construction manager is not involved, and the second agreement covers projects that use a construction manager. Knighton said that it has not been determined which projects would utilize such a manager, although larger construction efforts using sub-contractors would necessitate a manager.

He added that without a construction manager the architect would be dealing directly with the school district. With a construction manager, the architect would be working through that person as the district's project representative.

Vandalism arrests are on the rise By MIKE TYREE

Results of a recent township police report indicate that arrests for vandalism and disorderly conduct in the Northville area are on the rise, while citations handed out for traffic violations have dipped dramatically over the past year

Township Police Chief Kenneth Hardesty presented his department's September monthly report to the Board of Trustees at their Nov. 9 meeting. The report details cases handled by the department and makes comparisons between Sept. 1988 and Sept. 1989, and year-to-date versus last year-to-date.

According to the report, 31 more vandalism complaints were handled by the department by the end of September 1989 than were reported during that same time frame last year. In addition, disorderly conduct charges were up by 68, to 182. Arrests for operating under the influence (OUIL) were down by 69, to 73 for this year, and 639 less traffic citations had been issued to date.

Hardesty says the figures can be interpreted in many ways. "Some of the numbers are up, some are down," he said. "I don't find anything alarming in the September report.

Hardesty pointed to staffing pro-blems within the department as a possible reason for some of the lower arrest or citation statistics.

"We've actually had less men on the workforce," he said. "We've had to replace two officers and three of-ficers have been injured this year, and the (new officers) have to be with a field training officer.

"Combined, we've almost had an officer off for a whole year." Hardesty attributed increased staffing in the detective bureau for a boost in felony arrests. He said felonies generate a large amount of work, and the additional detective manpower "has a direct relationship on the arrests we make. We don't get as far behind (on paperwork) as we did before.'

He also said the decrease in OUIL arrests reflected a statewide trend. "(OUIL) arrests are down eight percent across the state, the last I heard," he said. The monthly report indicates increased department involvement this year in criminal sexual conduct cases, robbery, larceny, nonaggravated assault, vandalism, child neglect, liquor law violations, disorderly conduct, miscellaneous complaints, liquor inspections, family trouble, missing persons, open building calls, warrant arrests, and felony arrests. The township police have had less activity this year in calls pertaining to burglary, motor vehicle theft, fraud, sex offenses, operating under the influence, traffic/vehicle complaints, motorist lockout assistance, alarm calls, suspicious circumstances, traffic citations, and fire assistance. Though narcotic drug arrests totaled only four to this point in 1989 (from none in 1988), the Chief said the public should not assume that illegal drugs are not a problem here. He said most of the investigations for narcotics are conducted by the Michigan State Police, Wayne Coun-ty Sheriff's Department, and the Drug Enforcement Agency, and do not show up on local police statistics.

"I don't think you've got a lowlevel drug problem here," he said, adding that there are some "major cocaine players" in the Northville area.

Hardesty said the addition of a patrol officer in January and another later in the year will help alleviate staffing problems for 1990.

"We're in exceptionally good shape for next year," he said.

The Northville Township Fire Department responded to 62 calls during the month of October, according to a report received Nov. 9 by the township Board of Trustees. Fire Chief Robert Toms said the calls included 28 medical emergency runs, a service provided by the department the past three months.

Toms' report included the date and address of each fire run call, department personnel involved, and the census tract of the run, which he said helped identify areas visited most often by the department.

The use of fire department personnel during October ranged from one firefighter who responded to an unauthorized burn on Seven Mile Road Oct. 16, to 18 members who showed for a grass fire on Arselot Oct. 29. Toms estimated that each fire run cost the township about $100. "We get about seven men on the average fire call," he said. "It costs about ten bucks a head, and with wear and tear, I figure it runs about a flat $100."

False alarms were included in the report. Toms said the department responded to seven false alarms in October, involving a total of 58 men.

"False alarms usually involve burglar and fire alarms going off by mistake in people's homes," he said.

Toms said the fire department's medical emergency team has evolved into an important part of the department

"Before, we were only going to personal injuries, peo-ple involved in car accidents," he said. "Now, with our basic ambulance service, we're able to respond to a lot more people who need medical attention.

"We want to make sure the people of Northville Township have the best service that we can provide," he added. "The people we've attended to think we're doing a great job."

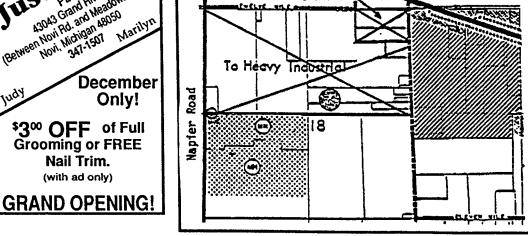

Toms said the township will be adding another firefighter after the first of the year, bringing his fulltime staff to four. He said the new employee would be selected from his volunteer staff.

"I prefer to have people I'm familiar with," he said.

Happy holidays.

Northville residents Lee Ann Schanne and Lynne Berquist are extending such Christmas greetings by sending about 1,400 holiday cards to inmates at Scott Prison.

The Christmas card project is sponsored by the First United Methodist Church of Northville and was first organized last year.

Schanne reported that the response from prisoners was so great that the

'We got letters from prisoners telling us how grateful they were and that made it all worthwhile," Schanne said.

Members of the church congregation plan to sign holiday cards between services on Sunday, Dec. 3 and Sunday, Dec. 10.

"We need all the help we can get," Berquist said, referring to the task of card-signing. Those assisting in the project are congregation decided to send cards asked to sign their first names and a short holiday message inside the cards.

Children in the church's Sunday School sessions plan to sign some of the greetings, as well as members of the church youth group.

Most of the cards were purchased by the church, but others were donated by the congregation.

School board adds classes to Meads Mill curriculum

By MIKE TYREE

Proposals for four new middle school elective courses and one revised academic enrichment program were accepted by the Northville Public School District Board of Education at their Nov. 13 meeting.

A 10-week audio technology course will be added to the music department's catalogue of eighth grade classes at Meads Mill for the 1989-90 school year.

The course is designed to introduce students to various electronic com-ponents used in audio systems, including the concepts involved in making a good audio recording, giving them the opportunity to make a good audio recording, introducing them to the concepts of good PA system sound, and introducing them to the science of sound.

Topic areas for the class include studio procedure, mixing of sound, and tape function. Students will be using recorders, connectors, microphones, VU meters, PA systems, and editing machines.

Class instructors say the students will gain an appreciation of the quality of recorded sound and learn to respect the value of electronic equipment by taking the course, and that they will learn some of the skills necessary to a career as a sound engineer or a recording engineer.

The students will learn how to load tape cassette and reel to reel tape into a recorder, how to select the proper microphone for a given task, proper studio procedure, line and microphone mixing, tape editing, and copying from various audio sources.

Another addition to the eighth grade electives' list is "Creative Pro-blem Solving," which is intended to help students develop interpersonal skills through group assignments and projects, and introduce them to new situations which require intelligent decision-making procedures.

Once the students have learned six basic steps involved in Creative Problem Solving, instructors hope to teach methods of applying the process to school and world problems. It is expected that the students will develop self-respect for the ideas of others, as well as developing their own confidence through successful decision-making and their ability to effect change in their lives.

Instructors say the career implica-tions of the Creative Problem Solving class include teaching students to appreciate the value of risk-taking, and learning how to solve problems by working cooperatively in small group situations.

Seventh grade students at Meads Mill will soon have the opportunity to take a 10-week Performing Arts elective. The class will explore the evolution of drama, teach the students pantomime, conduct radio broadcasts and how to read a script, explore the writing of character analysis, and instruct on the incorporating of body movements with acting.

The topic areas are meant to help students appreciate the elements of drama, and give them the opportunity for creative expression, along with chances to perform in groups and individually.

According to the class outline, Performing Arts students will be taught proper diction, public speaking, writing skills and critiques, self-confidence through performance, and an appreciation for the purpose of drama. Potential careers for students who choose to take this class include acting, public speaking, journalism, and public relations.

An elective entitled "Introduction to Foreign Language" will be offered for the first time to sixth graders. The students will take basic steps to learning French and Spanish, specializing in novice-level vocabulary units. By learning French and Spanish words found in the English language, the students will learn to appreciate the similarities and differences among languages. They also will learn about the French and Hispanic cultures, and understand the advantages of learning a second language.

Class instructors say that students of foreign languages have more career opportunities than other students, and can grasp these chances by learning about other cultures.

In addition to the four electives, a science enrichment program will be instituted at Meads Mill. Topics to be covered in the 10-week course include a study of the earth's major biomes, ecology, an animal research report, a study of plant structures and types, and graphing and charting techniques

The instructors hope the students emerge from the class with a better understanding of their environment and a clearer vision of the adaptability of plant and animal species.

An increased appreciation of all earth life could lead the students into several diverse careers, the instructors say, including medical, forestry, or naturalist fields.

Dr. Dolly McMaster, assistant superintendent of Instructional Services, said work on developing the new elective courses had taken place for a 1½ years. She said the elective course plans were reviewed by the K-12 Curriculum Council in October.

New city dog ordinance wins approval by council

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

Despite some public debate, the city council passed a new dog or-dinance that makes it illegal for dogs to soil on private property.

Local resident Bob Lockwood guestioned the ability of people to control where their dogs go, while city of-ficials questioned the legality of allowing a dog to go wherever it wish-ed. Lockwood suggested amending the proposed ordinace to forbid allowing dogs to defecate on private property unless the owner im-mediately cleaned up after the dog. 'This is written on the concept of 'Curb your dog'," said City Manager Steven Walters. "The theory of this ordinance is that the dog owner should not allow his dog on the private side of the sidewalk in general. There is a legal qustion whether the city can pass an ordinance permitting people to permit their dogs to defecate on private property.

"I'm really concerned about us granting permission in an ordinance, in a sense, to trespass," he said. 'There are private property rights involved here, and as much as most of us wouldn't be concerned with it, there's a problem on a governmental level in allowing it.'

The main problem may not be dogs on leashes at all, one council member said. "The biggest problem is not people who walk their dogs, but people who let their dogs out loose," said Jerry Mittman. Mittman noted that the city had already passed a law re-quiring pets to be on a leash, but that the law was difficult to enforce.

Council members said the new ordinance would not be enforced unless there was a complaint. Police Chief Rod Cannon agreed, saying, "We wouldn't go out and solicit complaints, we would be reacting to com-plaints." The new ordinance was unanimously passed.

School floors to be carpeted

Students and staff in six Northville Public School District buildings may soon notice a little more bounce in their steps, thanks to voter approval of the $16 million bond issue.

The district Board of Education this month accepted bids totaling $168,955 from Floorcraft Floor Covering, Inc., Mt. Clemens, for re-carpeting all or parts of Moraine, Silver Springs, Winchester, and Meads Mill schools. Floorcraft offered to subtract $2,000 from its bid package if the district chose the firm to do all four buildings, lowering the final cost to $166,955.

Cooke School will be recarpeted after a planned painting project, and the Board of Education offices at for us on their installations. Main Street School will receive new carpeting at a later date.

Northville High School and Amerman School were recarpeted recently and do not need additional work, according to school officials.

Floorcraft outbid A.R. Kramer Flooring of Livonia by more than $50,000 for the right to tackle the project. The school district invited 10 companies to bid on the re-carpeting, but eight of those declined to submit offers, according to Dr. Burton Knighton, assistant superintendent of Administrative Services.

Knighton said Floorcraft has been awarded all of the district's carpeting contracts over the past few years "and has done creditable work

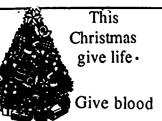

"(They are) a very dependable company, we highly recommend them," he said.

Knighton said carpet work on the buildings could begin in December, and the actual installation of carpet would take place in the afternoon and evenings after 3 p.m. and on Saturdavs.

The district's contract with Floorcraft stipulates that the carpeting firm furnish all labor, materials and equipment required, and furnish and install all carpeting, including vinal base, and thresholds, complete with accessories and incidental work as specified. The company must also remove all existing carpet from the buildings.

A scheduled final site plan review for the proposed Ward Presbyterian Church project on Six Mile and Haggerty Roads was tabled Tuesday evening by the Northville Township Planning Commission.

The planners based their decision to table upon the advice of township attorney Ernest Essad, who informed the commission that Ward has entered an appeal that was previously filed in Wayne Circuit Court by township residents opposed to a height variance granted by the township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA).

In a letter to township Planning and Zoning Administrator Carol Maise, Essad wrote that a decision on the site plan should not be made while the issue is in court

"Please be advised that the Township Planning Commission should not continue the review process for Ward Church so long as the matter is in litigation," he wrote. 'This is based upon the fact that the site plan which is being submitted rests upon a variance which is being contested. Should the variance be defeated, the site plan would be il-

In September, the ZBA granted the church a variance which would allow a 107-foot sanctuary to be built on the site. Opponents of the ZBA's decision say the township should enforce its 48-foot structure height.

Though Ward representatives were told prior to Tuesday's meeting that planners would most likely table the site plan, Ward attorney Harold Larsen approached the commission and asked to speak on the record.

'We object to your attorney's opinion, and we object to the planning commission not discussing (the site plan)," he said.

Larsen said the church had completed all the steps necessary for final site approval.

"We were prepared to file for final site plan approval," he said. "The church has been granted the right to intervene (in the appeal) by Wayne County Circuit Court.

'We're prepared to move ahead as soon as the township is prepared

The planning commission voted unanimously to table the final site plan approval pending the outcome of the litigation.

New chairs for township bodies

By MIKE TYREE

Northville Township officials and employees may soon find their working environment a bit more pleasurable, thanks to a plan to purchase 63 new chairs for the township office.

The Board of Trustees, at their Nov. 9 meeting, gave Manager Richard Henningsen the go-ahead to buy new chairs at a cost not to exceed $18,000. Henningsen said most of the chairs in the township offices were original equipment from when the hall opened 12 years ago.

"I believe in the quality of life theory," Henningsen said. "Many of these chairs are ragged, and I've had to buy pants for people who have ripped them (on loose chair parts), and many of the four-caster chairs are not up to OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Administration) qualifications." Henningsen said the companies involved in the chair purchase included Hampton Products, Inc., and Midwest Business Interiors. He said the purchase would most likely be made this week, with delivery possible before Christmas.

He said he was surprised at the expense involved in buying chairs.

"I've tried to get the lowest price from the one with the widest varie-ty," he said. "The costs were a little higher than we had anticipated."

He said the fate of the old chairs has not been determined.

"We'll ask the rest of the service organizations around here if they need them," he said, adding that many of the chairs would be retired.

Henningsen said the chairs would be paid for with surplus township operations funds.

"We're using money we didn't an-ticipate having," he said. "This pur-chase will really be a plus to the people who work here."

bulletins, and other reports, said Wood.

"We have a limited staff, so we're trying to get it as fast as we can," she said of the CSX report. "They're working on it as quickly as they can." The report is currently in the hands of Ed English, director of the FRA's office of enforcement in Washington. English described his desk as the "last stop on a long line" for the report. English must review the draft and submit it to the FRA's technical writers before the final report is published. "The report is all written and basically it's done," he said. "Basically it's a matter of getting it to the printer and having it printed."

The report's final draft is currently 194 pages long, he said, though final editing could trim it to less than 150 pages. "Our field people have a tendency to repeat themselves quite often," he said. The report's length is average for such studies, he added.

The report represents a comprehensive assessment of the safety of the CSX railroad line from Toledo to Midland. Such reports typically include reviews of a company's operating policies, staffing pro-cedures and training programs.

Such a report is usually released first to the railroad line in question, English said. "What we do on the report is issue concerns and recommendations," English said. "It's really a document meant to help them. If we find any serious problems we will issue citations and collect money from them."

English declined to comment on whether the CSX report had turned up any such "serious problems."

public elementary schools are conducting a label collection drive. The program is called "Labels for Education." Campbell Soup Company is offering free equipment to Amerman, Moraine, Silver Springs and Win-chester schools in exchange for labels from their products. They are collecting from November 1989 through March 1, 1990.

Residents interested in helping with the project should save the front portion of each label from all canned Campbell's soups, beans, Prego Spaghetti Sauces, Campbell Juice

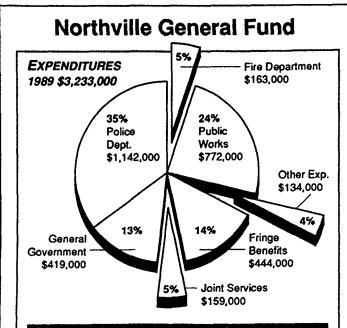

Students at all of the Northville Bowl Juices, Campbell Fresh products and V-8 Juice. Other Campbell's products include: From Swanson frozen foods save proof of pur-chase seals, save quality pledge for Mrs Pauls, lids from Vlassic Pickles jars, UPC seals from all Pepperidge Farm cookies and bakery items. Lastly, safety seals from Maria's Salad Dressing.

People in the community can be a tremendous help to the program. They can do so by saving labels and giving them to students who are neighbors or by dropping them off at the local elementary school.

Auditor calls city 'financially fit'

"You get maybe $70 per person per year from the state for sales tax," he said.

One of the major factors in the state's revenuesharing formula is population, Kunkel said, and he sugested a publicity campaign by the city to urge residents to comply with the 1990 annual Federal census. "That's a high-priority item," he said, 'because it does cast the die for the next 10 vears.'

Kunkel had good news concerning the city's DDA fund - the fund that financed much of the recent downtown development. For the first time since the program was enacted, the revenue such as property taxes is more than expenditures such as the debt retirement costs. "It's been a long struggle," he said, "but it's really terrific because now it's going to pay for itself."

Current bond payment such as the Huron River Valley Water Project are costing the city a lot of money, though. "You're water department on a whole has been just on a break-even point, and we're suggesting you look at your rates," Kunkel said.

While the city is still able to pay off existing bonds, Kunkel cautioned against entering into too many new ones. "You really have a lot of things on the board," he said, including the MainCentre parking deck and road repairs.

"You're sort of at a low cash ebb, and you're going to find a tight cash crunch here for another. year," he warned. He said the city currently has, about $13,000 (fund) balance in the general fund, but noted that officials are working to increase. that amount.

Overall, Kunkel issued the city "a clean opinion, without exception." He praised the city's accoun-ting department, saying "we've been very pleased with what we've seen here."

Kunkel then asked to be reappointed as the city's auditor. When asked his opinion of the reap pointment, City Manager Steven Walters told the council, "We're perfectly comfortable with them". and have found them very supportive, however they're your auditors checking on us." The council unanimously reappointed Plante & Moran.

State reapportionment battle heats up

By TIM RICHARD

Chambers of commerce and state Republicans are raising money for a 1990 battle over congressional and legislative reapportionment. They fully expect organized labor will be active on the Democratic side.

"Reapportionment gives us in the business community the best chance to see change in Congress, the state Legislature and county boards," said Robert LaBrant, vice president, general counsel and lobbyist for the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

Metropolitan suburbs could lose two congressional seats, gain a state Senate seat and probably a state House seat, he said. The party that wins control of the State Capitol in 1990 will write the apportionment laws

With 98 percent of U.S. representatives routinely reelected, LaBrant told a western Oakland County audience, the makeup of Congress can be changed only after a 10-year U.S. census.

"Reapportionment is the most important political decision to be made in a decade," he told a luncheon audience of chamber leaders in Novi. Michigan will lose two of its 18 U.S.

House seats by 1992, it is widely agreed.

"Detroit will continue to have two congressional districts. Somewhere in the suburban ring will absorb the loss," he said.

Republicans will target the 14th District seat of Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit; Democrats will target either the 18th District of William Broomfield, R-Lake Orion, or the 2nd District of Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth. Chamber officials are seeking donations of $19.89 (no corporate checks) for their political action fund to aid candidates.

Amy Hamlin of the Novi chamber said the fund will be used only in legislative races, not local ones.

State Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, is leading a Michigan Reapportionment Fund which LaBrant said will raise money for computer support and possible litigation.

He said chambers are being asked to aid that fund. He reported the state chamber gave $10,000 and local chambers a total of $12,000.

cheap. It costs money to fight a battle like that.'

census will be California, 4-6 seats; Texas, 3-4; Florida, at least 3; Arizona and Georgia, 1-2 each.

Big losers will be New York, 3; Pennsylvania, 2-3; Michigan, Ohio and Illinois, 2 each.

Congressional reapportionment will be done by act of the Michigan Legislature. Currently the state House is 61-49 Democratic, the state Senate is 20-18 Republican, and the governor who signs bills is a Democrat - a possible deadlock unless the 1990 elections change things

"In 1992, for the first time since 1968, Republicans may have a shot at control of the state House," said LaBrant, adding that Democrats have their shot, too.

"For us in the business community, politics will not get any cheaper. Swing districts will be very expensive," he said.

On the legislative side, LaBrant predicted Detroit will lose one of its state Senate seats and that it will probably go somewhere in Oakland or Macomb counties.

Detroit will lose three or four state House seats. Western Oakland and Livingston counties will gain one of them, he predicted.

Reapportionment of the. Legislature will be done by the Legislature itself for the first time since the 1950s. Reason: The State Apportionment Commission always had deadlocked, 44, along party lines, forcing the State Supreme Court to handle legislative apportionment. So the high court declared the Apportionment Commission invalid.

In 1991 courts will intervene only if the Legislature is deadlocked. The State Supreme Court would handle legislative reapportionment; the federal court, congressional reapportionment.

In addition, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1986 that partisan gerrymandering is a justiciable issue, LaBrant said. But the courts have never taken a case in which partisan gerrymandering was charged.

Winner of the Scary Story Contest Daniel Mihalik, third grader at Amerman School.

City passes interim light code

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

While the city's planning commission grapples with the wording of a new lighting ordinance, city council members have passed an interim measure to regulate the city's lights. The new ordinance requires all external lighting for parking areas, buildings or signs to be directed away from and shielded from adjacent roads.

The ordinance reads in part, "All external lights, including parking area lighting, building lighting, and lighting for signs, awnings and canopies, shall be shielded or otherwise positioned so that the source of the light does not adversely affect driver or pedestrian visibility, and does not adversely affect private properties."

In his latest memo on the ordinance, City Manager Steven Walters noted that the planning commission was working on an ordinance that would set specific limits to the amount of light allowed on a sign or at a property line. "In the meantime," he wrote, "the above wording would allow the Building Department to react to extreme cases.

Tale of horror! Student honored in writing contest

By MIKE TYREE

Winning a writing contest doesn't seem like such a big deal to 7-year old Daniel Mihalik of Northville. In fact, penning horror tales is just a pleasurable hobby for the Amerman Elementary second grade student.

"I want to be a scientist but I still like writing," he said. Daniel recently placed third in a "Scary Stories Con-test" held by Border's Book Store of Novi. His entry, "The Ghostly Tree" was selected as a winner, and entitl-ed Daniel to a prize of two books.

The young author scripted the tale in Arlene Frayne's class at Amerman, and he said the plot for the story came from a nearby source.

"I like trees and it was supposed to be a scary story, so that's where I got the idea," he said. "There's a tree in my back yard that's really old. Since it's so old, it makes it kind of spooky." he said.

Daniel said he will enter another writing contest ("if there is any"), and he likes scary books. He says reading is his favorite thing to do, and he enjoyed the limelight when his teacher read the short story in front of his second grade class. "Mrs. Frayne read it to the class before anyone knew it was a winner," he said. "I liked it when she read it." Following is Daniel Mihalik's winning story, "The

Ghostly Tree.'

In a dark, dark wood, there was a ghostly tree with sharp, sharp claws. These claws were only used for catching ghosts. It ate the ghosts it caught. It got a lot of ghosts. It went to sleep in the day. Was it awake in the night? It was sometimes awake in the night, but not all the time.

No one knew about the tree. One night someone went out. It was a ghost. The tree looked like it was asleep, but it wasn't. It had a big fight with the ghost, and the tree won. Then the tree really fell asleep.

Haggerty connector backed

The Haggerty Road "connector" a multi-lane boulevard - was the solution to traffic congestion recommended Nov. 21 by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

The five-mile road - Alternative 4A in a series of proposed road designs - is scheduled to be built west of Haggerty Road from I-96 north to Pontiac Trail. Several homes in Sims Hill subdivision in Novi are scheduled to be levelled in 1992 to clear a path for the roadway. Residents in the neighborhood have signed a series of petitions denouncing the road, which they say will devastate the rural environment of their subdivision. Arthur Valenti, who will lose his home if the road is built, said this week that the neighborhood plans to continue its battle against M-9. He called MDOT the "masters of deception" for maintaining that the widen-ing of Haggerty Road was not a feasible alternative.

"If necessary, we will go to court. We've got the EPA (federal Environmental Protection Agency) on our side. We've got all the wildlife people on our side," he said. "We're getting more people up against it now.'

MDOT's announcement that it endorses building a six-to eight-lane boulevard west of Haggerty followed three years of studies and meetings between MDOT officials, community leaders, business representatives and citizens.

The proposal, one of several that had been considered, won the en-dorsement of the Novi City Council, West Bloomfield Township Board, the Walled Lake Board of Education and numerous other area government boards that formed a united front to support a new boulevard. An Oct. 9 target date has been set for taking bids on the first construc-tion contract for the road.

The long-awaited decision, announced by MDOT officials during a special session at Commerce Township hall, drew immediate criticism from citizens opposed to urban sprawl and potential environmental damage.

We oppose it and we will continue to oppose it," said Lorna McEwen, co-president of Concerned Citizens for West Bloomfield, "This will not solve the problem. It will create more traffic congestion because of the new development it will spawn."

The next step for the project, estimated to cost $75 million, will be to prepare a final environmental impact statement that will be submitted for approval to the Federal Highway Administration. MDOT spokesman Hank Lotoszinski said MDOT hopes to receive federal approval by next October, at which time initial bids could be taken. Lotoszinski said the five-mile boulevard could be completed in late 1994 or early 1995.

Lotoszinski said the Haggerty Road connector would provide new access to the freeway system that includes the interchanges of I-96, I-696, 1-275 and Eight Mile Road. He also said it would ease traffic congestion on roads, such as Haggerty, that have become swamped by motorists due to new residential and commercial development in Oakland County.

Access to the new highway will be at Twelve Mile, Thirteen Mile, Fourteen Mile, Fifteen Mile roads and at Pontiac Trail.

A proposal had been made to extend the new boulevard north from Pontiac Trail to M-59. But MDOT officials have stressed that decisions about extending the boulevard will be reached independently and only after additional studies are completed in coming years.

McEwen said some citizens and government officials appear to believe that "it is a foregone conclusion" that the boulevard eventually would be extended. "We're against that too," McEwen said.

However, project manager Mike Flajole has said that 90 percent of all comments made by area citizens at public hearings pointed to a new boulevard as the most feasible way to address traffic problems.

Officials had considered other options, such as widening the existing Haggerty Road. But Flajole said it could cost as much as $121 million to widen Haggerty, compared to an estimated $75 million for the new boulevard.

Flajole has said the federal government is expected to pay for 76 percent of the project, with state officials picking up the remaining tab

Our Opinions News not all good for property owners

Northville's tax auditor had both good news and bad news for the city this year. The good news is that city plans for growth and development are proceeding largely as planned, and the city's property tax revenue has increased. The bad news is that state-shared revenues, which are based on personal income, have declined.

Personal income in Northville City has not kept pace with the growth of revenue like property taxes, according to auditor Ken Kunkel of Plante & Moran. In other words, the income of Northvile City residents is not keeping pace with the growing value - and cost - of their homes. The statistic lends credence to a recent study by City Manager Steven Walters, suggesting that as the ratio of commercial to residential development drops which it has over the last 10 years — the residential tax burden rises. Residential development costs more than it brings in and as such is not worth as much to the city financially as commercial development, Walters said.

Northville City's current commer-cial tax base ratio of 20 percent is lower than nearly all the surrounding communities, except for Northville Township. Novi, for example, has more than 50 percent commercial development, while Plymouth has nearly 40 percent.

Walters' report has some serious implications for future growth in the city, especially his conclusion that the most the city can hope for is to re-attain the 30 percent of commercial tax base it had 10 years ago. This is due to the commercial and residential developments already planned, and the lack of space in the city for further commercial development.

As the city contemplates the revision of the Master Plan and the Cady Corridor study, these reports must be kept in mind. Several important questions will be answered when these studies become the tools for future development.

If, as Walters says, the city's tax base is so dependent on commercial growth, then city officials ought to look towards insuring continued commer-cial growth, and maximum use of the commercial space we now have. Officials have already begun doing this with projects like the MainCentre development and the Cady Corridor study. Such efforts should continue, and any plans for reducing the current commercial zones should be undertaken with a full understanding by both city officials and residents of the tax consequences involved.

Or perhaps officials and residents alike have no problem with the city becoming more and more a bedroom community. If so, and if residents are willing to shoulder the increasing tax burden, than perhaps the city can begin to purposely map out the areas that it would like to consider for lessintense commercial purposes.

But considering the promises of lowering the tax rate made by officials seeking reelection — and the populari-ty of such pledges — the city would do well to give careful consideration to who will pay for future city growth, and how much they're willing to pay.

Officials are currently faced with finding the perfect compromise: A Northville with a high quality of life at an affordable price. Just what that quality is — and what constitutes affordable — is a matter for continued debate.

Who decided that working out while wearing hot pink, skintight leotards and tights was the newest fashion sensation?

I ask this only because I apparently missed the press release. Silly me, I went to Vic Tanny in Novi to work out and I wore shorts and a sweatshirt. I also wore white gym socks. Imagine my chagrin.

I didn't realize that fashion had come to the locker room.

I'm prepared to be bumped by the fashionable when I traverse Twelve Oaks Mall. I expect to cast envious eyes on well-dressed females when I go to Shopping Center Market. I know that looking good is a national pasttime — and that hair seems to be getting bigger each week — and I'm used to being a step behind.

I still dash to the grocery store in my jeans. I can't seem to cope with the thought of teasing my hair. It all seems just one step closer to the return to weekly trips to the beauty parlor and trying to sleep with a headful of curlers. I had begun to believe that women had attained a semblance of freedom from dryers and girdles and ridiculous shoes that make our feet swell.

Then I went to the gym.

Well, the gym is a bad name for it. But silly me, I went to run and ride a bike and maybe swim a bit. That tends to involve sweating and getting your hair wet and let's face it - not looking terribly attractive.

I went into the locker room to put on my shorts. As I unloaded my decidedly un-trendy bag, where I shove my workout clothes, I happened to look around. The place was alive with hot pink and aqua. Two women to my left were exchanging horror stories about mascara that had proven to run under stress of aerobics. A woman behind me was discussing the need to buy some more Spandex.

I put these things out of my mind. I got ready to sweat. I was sitting, lacing up my basic white (with just a hint of pink - I'm only human) shoes when I heard the loud sound of spraying behind me. The sound and smell of hair spray permeated the room. I looked around ex-pecting to see a woman getting ready to go home, or out on a date after working out. No, she was cementing her hair in place prior to her aerobics class. I knew I was in big trouble.

Locker rooms have changed since I began visiting them regularly in high school and was told by my field hockey coach to always wear white socks when working out because the dye in colored ones would hurt me. Sure create a fashion zero at a young and tender age. I believed her. I have a drawer full of white socks. I'm doomed.

I tried to avoid making eye contact with anyone as I left the locker room. It was too painful. I was in a sea of well-dressed, well-coiffed, never-let-'em-see-you-sweat, thin, probably richer than me, women. It was depressing.

I thought that if I could just get outside, into the real heart of the health club experience, it would all pass. All that stuff about the joy of working out, the euphoria of doing something healthy and right for my body would take over and I would forget the agony of fashion in the ecstasy of sweat.

I made a sharp left at the door of the locker room intending to go straight to the high-tech bicycles to work out my frustrations. I ran smack into a guy combing his hair at the full-length mirror.

He was wearing black and pink tights. I give up.

The first people I spotted were Al and Peggy Jones. Then I saw Susie. And Carol. Then Bill and Clare Williams, of course. And Tucker, Janice and Donna, the Williams kids. Tucker from California; Donna up from Florida.

And there were hosts of others. ne Langtrys. The giivies 1 lie Cowies. George and Gladys Weiss, my old Sunday school teacher up from Arkansas with the Joneses. And so many others I won't even try to list them all.

every community.

An integral slice of Northville's history is captured at Mill Race Village. Operated and staffed by members of the Northville Historical Society, the village reflects a bygone era. Those who visit the New School Church -- which once housed the city's library and served as a meeting place for the Northville Woman's Club - or any of the buildings located within the tiny village relive the town's heritage.

However, not everyone in the community utilizes the village. Arthur Rockall, president of the Northville Historical Society, has made it one of his goals to increase the visibility of Mill Race Village, encouraging residents to make it their own.

Often perceived as solely the domain of the Northville Historical Society, Rockall would like the community

History plays an important role in to understand that the village is open to everyone. We support his efforts to promote the village. He's also exploring the possibility of opening the village during the fall season to make better use of one of Northville's landmarks.

> While increasing the visibility of Mill Race Village, members of the Northville Historical Society also are working toward changing the group's image. Traditionally, the society was seen as somewhat of an elitest group. The society's new leader wants to alter that perception.

By increasing its visibility and involving the community in the Northville Historical Society, the group only serves to strengthen its role in the city. And as the city and township attract new residents, history will become even more important in preserving Northville's ambience.

Lost and found

The occasion was a special gettogether for Bill and Clare Williams on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. Appropriately, it was held in Fellowship Hall at the Northville Presbyterian Church ... appropriately because the Williamses and all their friends have spent so much of their time there.

Pillars of the church. Pillars of the community.

You may be surprised to learn that this is a heavy column for me to write. But these people - Mr. and Mrs. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, all of them - were my parents' friends ... the adults of my childhood ... the people who held my world together during cold wars and missile crises.

You had people like that in your life. Try to imagine them all together again. Just like old times.

Except that it isn't like old times. It can't be. Some of the people who : should have been there have passed . away. My parents would fall into that . category. All of the people who were there are getting older, myself included. And some of them are in poor health.

To me it was a big evening. A great evening. Hopefully, you will be able to relate . . . your names will be : different, of course, but the phenomenon is the same. The passing of time. One generation giving way to another . . . and another after that.

Sobering? Sure. But wonderful too. What life is all about.

Parents should use 'I' rather than 'you'

This is another in a continuing series of columns by Northville Youth Assistance Director Mary Ellen King.

One of the most important theories of the Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (STEP) program is for parents to learn to use "I" messages rather than "you" messages. You messages are statements that put teens down, blame or criticize. For example, saying, "you're inconsiderate" or "you don't think straight" may make a teen feel that they are not worthwhile. On the other hand, an I-message shares your feelings and concerns and communicates that you trust your teen to respect your feelings. Instead of saying "You make me feel bad," you say, "I feel upset.

I-messages have a specific form. To formulate I-messages, it is important to follow the three steps listed below: 1. Describe the behavior you find bothersome. Simply describe, don't blame: "When I see the gas tank's empty..."

2.State your feelings about the possible consequences of the behavior: "I feel angry ... '

3. State the consequences: "because I have to get gas and I might be late for work.'

Simply stated, the format sounds like this: "When . . ., I feel . . . because . . .

Always remember to keep blame out of Imessages. One word that often conveys blame is the word "you." At times parents have to use this pronoun because they're referring directly to the teen, but "you" can be used without placing blame. For instance, saying "When you come home two hours late" doesn't place blame, it merely states a fact.

Sometimes an I-message will leave out a feeling and simply state the behavior and the consequences: "I can't wash the floor when coats and shoes are in the middle of

Remember, also, the importance of nonverbal communication. I- messages are a friendly, respectful and honest way to communicate feelings. But if the parent's tone of voice and body language is out of sync with what is said, teens will be more influenced by the nonverbal behavior than by the words.

Try using I-messages with your teens but remember not to overuse them. If an Imessage is given every time a teen does something a parent doesn't like, a teen may quickly be turned off.

Let me know how giving I-messages is working in your family. Call 344-1618.

Pollsters haven't been in so much trouble since "Truman defeats Dewey" in 1948. People are sore at polls and at the media who report on them so heavily.

A Michigan poll showed Proposal A fairly close to passage, with 47 percent in favor. The same poll showed Proposal B losing but with a healthy 40 percent support.

Both were bombed by nearly 3-1 margins.

In this case, we can't blame those who paid for the poll — the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, which was emphatically against both.

Across the nation, the same thing happened.

A New York Times/CBS News poll gave David N. Dinkins leads of 7 and 15 percent on election night in his bid to become mayor of New York City. Dinkins squeaked in with a 50-48 margin.

Virginia pollsters had L. Douglas Wilder, the Democratic nominee for governor, ahead by 10 points. Wilder's actual was the skin of his teeth.

computers, they report nothing until all tallies are complete late Wednesday afternoon or Thursday following a Tuesday election.

The situation has deteriorated under Austin. I recently stumbled across some 1954 clippings in which a close gubernatorial primary wasn't decided until 2 a.m. Wednesday — in other words, 12 hours faster than Austin and Thomas do it today.

If we didn't have exit polls from TV and radio, we would wait days for election results.

What really gripes the public, according to Michael W. Traugott at the University of Michigan, is the way polls are heavily reported during the course of a political campaign.

Traugott, professor of communication and research scientist for U-M's Institute of Social Research, said, "It's not so much the accuracy of the polls that are called into question, but the intrusiveness of the continual presentation of the 'trial heat' results - the reporting of who is ahead and who is behind."

Traugott compiled the results of six in plurality believes such reporting is "bad for the country."

The public also don't want TV to report election projections in presidential races, fearing such reports will discourage people from voting. (Detroit TV stations refrain from such reports until the polls close at 8 p.m. A friend at WXYZ-TV tells me they know the results hours before the polls close).

As a news junkie, I concur that preelection polls are over-reported, particularly when they are the top page one story.

Polls are a useful tool for the campaign manager, revealing how the candidate stands with young and old, black and white, blue collar and white collar voters. A poll told George Bush he was soft among young voters - hence his choice of a 41-year-old running mate named Quayle.

But polls as page one news? Hardly.

One item in Traugott's article - due to be published in a book next year entitled "Media Polling and Election Coverage: 1988" - made me as a suburban newshawk feel good.

City divided over Haller library

this as well."

The focus of the session was an 11page analysis of city library options by City Manager Steven Walters (see related story). In his report, Walters outlined four alternatives for the city, including operating a city library at its present site and within the current city contribution; operating a city library at its present site to provide the level of service currently provided by the community library; participating with the township in the operation of the proposed Haller library; and providing an enlarged city library with the expanded service which was planned for the new joint library before the Haller donation.

"There are 100 variations of each of these analyses," Walters said.

In summarizing his report, Walters reviewed the previous attempts at finding a library site. "The possibility of locating the library at the Ford Plant was one of the apparently feasable uses," he said. Other sites that were considered before the Haller donation were; behind the Recreation Center on Cady Street and on the east side of Fish Hatchery Park.

If the city were to participate with the township in the Haller library, city officials envisioned a facility that was not fully utilized. Said Walters, "I would picture many areas put to minimal use, a lot of storage areas, and a lot of space. Because you wouldn't have the staff to supervise a lot of rooms."

Ayers argued that more staff would be needed in such a large facility than the one additional librarian suggested by Walters. Walters replied that growth in the library's physical size does not require an equal growth in the size of the staff, because the number of people using the facility would not jump proportionally.

Breaking from the township would involve dividing up the library's current book stock and equipment, under the city and township's current joint services agreement. "It would be fairly easy to divide the property in half," Walters said, "depending on your preference for fiction or nonfiction, perhaps. But we would be doing a lot of borrowing from each other." Most of the library's 39,000 volumes are single copies.

City Council members suggested rejecting Walter's fourth option providing an enlarged city library because of the cost involved. "This option should be scratched," said council member G. Dewey Gardner. Council member Paul Folino agreed, saying that the reduced use would free space at the city hall library if the city did not participate in the township library. But neither ruled out participation in the proposed Haller hbrary.

"I have some problems assuming that bigger is always better," Ayers said. Ayers suggested an analysis of the services that a city library could provide, if funded as much as the city would pay to participate in the Haller library. Walters responded, "The problem with an analysis like that from someone like me, for someone like you is — what's appropriate to cut?"

Johnson agreed, saying "We do have to make an assumption. Which would you rather cut, book stock or hours?"

When asked by a resident if Haller's 44,800-square-foot size requirement was firm, Johnson said, "It's my understanding that that's not a negotiable point."

Township trustee Jim Nowka, who had been involved in preliminary discusions with Haller, agreed. "There wasn't any negotiation involved," he said, "because we were not buying the site. It wasn't a giveand-take type of situation, it was a situation where you had a piece of paper in front of you. Do you accept it or don't you?"

Mark Cryderman, a member of the original Site Committee appointed in 1987 to find a new library site, criticized the official response to Haller's offer. "I'm really disappointed with the way this was handled," he said. "I'm not disappointed with the city, I'm disappointed with the way the negotiations were handled with Mrs. Haller. The township's never going to buy a three mill tax increase."

Cryderman said that his committee, which had originally suggested the Recreation Department and Fish Hatchery sites, were never consulted by township officials in their talks with Haller.

"I've never seen anything that was non-negotiable," he added.

Cryderman also read from a pamphlet that was given to the site committee by Library Director Pat Orr in 1987, describing the ideal site for a library. "The best location is near a busy 'downtown' intersection or in any healthy shopping area or center," the pamphlet read. "Since a library circulates books, the building must be easily accessible to "I have some problems assuming that bigger is always better"

Sheldon, and not increasing the number of books proportionally, would hurt the readership. "What you're going to build out there if you build it, is a white elephant," he said,

"unless you're prepared to spend a lot of money to fill it with books."

At this, Library Director Pat Orr spoke up. "The current critical need in terms of the library is not books," Orr said. "Our critical need right now is for space. We don't have enough chairs for the staff working for us. Our patrons have to go

She also disagreed with the complaints of several city residents that the Haller library would be less popular because it would not be within walking distance for many people. A 1988 survey by the Friends of the Library found that over 95 percent of the library's patrons came to the library by car, rather than on foot.

Greg Presley, a member of the Downtown Development Authority, pointed out that development of the larger library on the Haller site would cost $2.2 million more than public development of a mixed-use library facility at the Ford Plant. "This is an extra 72 acres of land which is going to take an extra $2.2 million to develop," he said. "It's not a free gift."

Presley asked about the possible dates for a millage vote on the Haller library proposal. "Just as the options here are limitless," Johnson said, holding Walter's report, "the options of an election are fairly complex too."

Walters pointed out that the city may not even have a chance to vote on the Haller library. According to Haller's original letter of intent, the library must be built by the township.

The letter reads, "The Township must construct a Township Library on the property within the first two years of the conveyance." Depending on legal interpretation of the letter, he said, this may mean that the township would have to sell the bonds for the library itself, and the city contract with the township for library services.

The council finally voted to authorize Johnson to negotiate a possible cost-sharing formula with the township to develop the Haller library, and suggested candidates for a committee to study the proposal.

Ayers commented, "I think in addition to this we owe it to city residents to look at the other options in terms of security. I just think that we need to keep our options open." Other council members agreed.

participates fully in the cost of the new library. "If the city were to participate in the proposed library project to the extent of a 25,000square-foot structure, as was projected in the previous library site proposals prior to the Haller property donation," Walters wrote, the city's share would require a millage of 1.68, or a tax increase of 0.94 mill over the present 0.74 mill contribution. If the city were to participate in the larger library at the present cost-sharing ratio, the city's share would be larger -2.42 mills.

Finally, Walters estimated the cost of building and operating a new 12,000-square-foot city library at $569,332 annually, for a millage rate of 3 70, an increase of 2.96 mills over the present contribution. In making the estimate, he assumed operating the library at its current service level, as in the second alternative.

Shock device debate

Phelan's parents contend that the SIBIS is an effective means of therapy.

The school district does not agree. "This is very much a precedentsetting situation," said Dr. George Bell, superintendent of the Northville Public School District. "(This is therapy) carried to its extreme, giving electric shocks to modify behavior."

Bell said marathon hearing sessions on the case were held Nov. 22 and Nov. 28 at the offices of the Board of Education. He said those in attendance for the Nov. 28 hearing included an attorney for the Wayne— Westland School District and an aide, an attorney and an aide representing the Northville School District, a representative of Protection Advocacy, an attorney for the Phelan family, representatives of the Wayne-Westland School District, officials from the Intermediate School District, Northville Executive Director of Special Education Services Dr. Leonard Rezmierski, and himself.

Bell said the hearings have been established to take testimony and set ground rules for the continuation of the case. Tuesday afternoon, the group was engaged in a conference call with the SIBIS' manufacturing firm.

"This is a process you have to go through when you get into something like this," he said.

He also said the school district feels too many questions have yet to be answered to allow the SIBIS to be used.

Green Oak firm offers new twist on redwood signs

By PHYLLIS STILLMAN

Woodgraphics Inc. in Green Oak Township offers personal redwood signs with a twist - one-of-a-kind, customized signs for campers, boats, cottages and recreational vehicles at non-custom prices

Myers and Al Steward, Woodgraphics provides "handcrafted wooden signs individually done. There's no production-line work," Myers explained.

Each sign is different because of a sandblasting process which exposes the grain of the wood and creates a textured background for the sign "The letters are covered with rubber, then we sandblast around the rubber," said Myers

Since each piece of redwood is fer that at that price to (the naturally different in color and tex- customer)," said Steward. ture, and each piece sandblasts differently, each completed sign is unique. "Every one is like a snowflake -no two are alike. They might have the same colors, but the grain is always different," said Congleton.

Two different types of signs are offered: name or address signs and initial plaques, with one line of lettering; and personal signs which feature three lines of lettering.

Prices quoted are for signs where the text appears on only one side of the sign All signs are also available two-sided, at a 50 percent additional charge

Initial plaques are seven inches by 10 inches, have one initial and cost $15. Name signs are six inches by 18 Started about six months ago by inches and cost $30. Address signs partners Steve Congleton, Rick are eight inches wide and can be either vertically or horizontally aligned.

The price is $45 for addresses of up to three digits and $52 50 for four or more digits "We have competed with the individual plastic-cut letters that look like wood. Basically (our signs) are the same price, with the full number assembled and tailor fit. It can be two-sided and hanging from a post if they want one like that, and they (plastic lettered signs) can't of-

Personal signs come in three sizes: 12 inches by 16 inches priced at $49 50; 12 inches by 24 inches at $75; and 18 inches by 30 inches at $150. Each sign has a logo - a symbol or picture that personalizes the sign for he customer.

Woodgraphics has over 60 different logos available within three groupings: animals, including dogs, horses and deer; sports, such as fishing, baseball and football; and miscellaneous, with logos for both the University of Michigan and Michigan State, along with other choices ranging from flowers to cannons.

Woodgraphics has been able to keep prices down by offering a limited set of sizes, colors and logos for their signs. "In the past (we) made commercial signs, and found there was a great need for the personal signs, so by limiting the colors and the logos and that kind of stuff, we could streamline the price down for manufacturing purposes - make them a little cheaper for the public that way," explained Congleton.

Still, Woodgraphics is able to offer quite a few options. Along with the 60 logos, there are five different lettering styles available for the text, six color choices - including natural for the background, and 15 colors offered for the raised letters, numbers and logos.

Each line of text can be a different color, as can the logo, so a multicolored sign can be created. But if these choices are not broad enough to give the customer what he or she wants, custom signs are still available at a higher cost.

A special sign Woodgraphics recently started offering, and which they hope will sell well as a Christmas gift, is a 12-by-18 inch Michigan sign.

This sign features a raised map of the state painted green. The customer's name and the city in which he or she lives is painted white, and the location of the city is marked with a white star on the Michigan map. This sign would be especially appropriate for RV or cottage owners, and sells for $45.

Woodgraphics has been advertis- nearer Christmas ing on cable television stations around Michigan, including stations in the local area. You can call for a brochure at 437-6566 or 1-800-243-WOOD.

Local customers can also stop by the office at 10179 Colonial Industrial Drive (near the corner of Ten Mile and Rushton Road) from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays to look at sample signs and place orders.

Since each sign is custom made, it currently takes a week to 10 days for 'delivery, with longer waits expected

CPAs offer advice on pension plans

Your company's pension plan may be the key to a comfortable retirement But do you know how the plan works?

Take out that employee-pension brochure tucked away in the corner of your desk or filing cabinet and take another look at the details.

What kind of coverage does your company offer? How much do you and your company contribute to your retirement account each year? Is the contribution based solely on the company's annual profits.

To help you make sense of your retirement benefits, the Michigan Association of CPAs offers the following description of three of the most common types of retirement plans. DEFINED-BENEFIT PLANS: Under a defined-benefit pension plan, your company establishes a single retirement account for all employees and is obligated to pay each and every participant a specified sum every year after retirement - regardless of how well or how poorly the investments in the account perform.

The amount of the individual's accrued benefits is usually determined by such factors as age, years of service and total wages earned.

As a participant in this type of plan, you can generally expect your retirement benefit to equal a certain percentage of your final salary times the number of years that you worked at the firm.

DEFINED-CONTRIBUTION PLANS: With a defined-contribution plan, your employer puts a specific amount of money in a separate account in your names. Generally, the contribution rate is based on your salary, your employer's profits or both

In contrast to a defined-benefit plan, the amount of benefits you will ultimately receive is not predetermined Instead, the pension you receive when you retire depends entirely on how much was set aside on your behalf and how well that money was invested by the company. As a result, if the trustees' choice of investments hits pay dirt, your pension funds could soar. But if the investments hit rock bottom, so could your retirement savings

One example of a definedcontribution plan is a moneypurchase account. Here, your employer's contributions are based on a definite formula, irrespective of company profits Usually, the employer's annual contribution is a fixed percentage of your overall compensation. For example, the plan may stipulate that your employer must make an annual contribution to 10 percent of your annual compensation.

Another type of definedcontribution plan is the profitsharing account. In this arrangement, your company agrees to make a contribution to your retirement fund based on your salary as well as its quarterly or annual profits.

Understandably, if your company has no profit in a given year, it will usually not make a contribution on your behalf.

As with all other pension plans, contributions are invested and accumulate tax-deferred for eventual distribution to participants or their beneficiaries. Depending on the terms of the individual plan, distribution will be made at either retirement or upon the occurence of some specific event - such as a disability. death or termination of employment.

DEEFERRED-COMPENSATION PLANS: A third type of retirement plan is known as a deferreedcompensation account. In simple terms, these types of accounts set aside a portion of our salary for the express purpose of building retirement funds. Whatever amount you contribute reduces the amount of income on which you are taxed.

The easiest way to explain deferred-compensation plans is by describing one of their more well know options, the 401(k). With a 401(k) you establish a salaryreduction agreement with your employer. In most cases, you can elect to contribute 1 percent to 15 percent of your annual salary. Each dollar subtracted from your paycheck is deposited in a special account. In most cases, your company will agree to match some or all of your contributions.

For instance, let's say you make $30,000 a year and elect to deposit 8 percent of your salary in a 401(k) plan. Your company agrees to match 50 percent of your contributions. As a result, your retirement account receives $2,400 of your own money plus another $1,200 in company contributions - for a grand total of $3,600. And that doesn't include interest, earnings or tax savings.

The 401(k) picture is not all rosy, however. As with most retirement plans, you cannot touch the ac-cumulated funds without penalty unless you retire, become disabled or reach age 591/2, as well as regular income tax on whatever amount you withdraw.

CHECK YOUR VESTING SCHEDULE: Make sure you find out exactly how your company's vesting schedule works. Keep in mind that all companies must now adopt either a five-year "cliff" vesting schedule or a seven-year "graduated" vesting schedule for their retirement plans. With the cliff plan, employees become 100-percent vested at the end of five years. With the graduated plan, exployees become vested over a period of seven years. If you are just shy of meeting the vesting requirements of a company you plan to leave, you may consider whether it pays to postpone the job change just long enough to qualify for your benefits. In any case, make sure you review any current or prospective employer's benefit policies with great care.

Preparing your home to put on the market

If mortgage interest rates hold near present levels, members of Metro MLS, the state's largest multiple listing service, looks for higher than normal homebuying activity through the remainder of the year.

"Homeowners who may want to take advantage of favorable conditions by placing their homes on the market should act now to put them in top operating condition," says Eric J. Hunt, Metro MLS president.

'Winter weather provides a severe test for any home in this locale and buyers will be looking for those offering the best performance under the worst circumstances "

He advises would-be sellers to make a thorough check of their home's heating equipment. Have it cleaned and replace any parts that detract from peak operating efficiency or cause excessive noise.

'Buyers will be particularly interested in the age of the furnace and your average monthly fuel bills," Hunt said. "A new furnace with a high fuel efficiency rating has become a selling plus, but if your older model is working well leave it in place and consider this a factor in negotiating your selling price." He also noted that the cool days of autumn offer a good time to check for drafts around windows and doors. These are clear signs that heat can leak out and make fuel bills higher than necessary. A few minutes with a caulking gun can eliminate most such problems. Inexpensive winterizing kits are readily available in most hardware stores for a more thorough job.

"Late-in-the-year buyers also will likely want to know about how well the home is insulated," Hunt states. "If snow is melted off your roof, but not your neighbor's, it could be a sign of poor insulation allowing heat to escape. In many cases, homeowners can add attic insulation without too much difficulty to counter this. Any documentation on original or subsequent insulation and with high resistance to outside heat and cold can be helpful in placing the home at best advantage for buyers

It's also a good idea to take a close look at your roof if it's been on for five years or more, he said. "Alternate freezing and thawing can cause special problems for any loose shingles, and a buyer could discover a new leak at the same time you do.'

While exterior painting is seldom recommended in this area at this time of year, Hunt said it's still possible to scrub down any painted or sided surfaces and repair any that show signs of neglect.

Winters buyers may not appear too interested in lawn or garden areas, but late fall attention is usually well worthwhile," Hunt said. Take time to give shrubs and bushes a final trim as they move into their dormant stage and edge the lawn if it is beginning to overgrow walks or driveways.

"A little time, effort and money expended now could make the difference between a quick or slow sale as well as helping obtain the best possible sales price.

AAA suggests hints for reducing auto insurance

A new free booklet produced by AAA Michigan shows why one driver could pay 20 percent more for automobile insurance than a neighbor with the same driving record and model car.

"The ABCs of Auto Insurance" uses plain English to describe auto insurance coverage and spells out options consumers can use to cut their annual premiums, according to Michael Wild. AAA Michigan assistant vice president for Corporate Relations.

The color booklet reviews cost-saving options for coverages such as Collision and Comprehensive which together account for 57 percent of the typical AAA Michigan auto insurance premium. It also explains the medical, work loss and property protection coverages required under Michigan's No-Fault Law. Rating factors, claim expenses and what to consider before selecting an insurance company also are examined.

The 16-page booklet is available to the public by writing: "The ABCs of Auto Insurance," Public Relations Department, AAA Michigan, One Auto Club Drive, Dearborn, MI 48126.

The weather may be winter, but water's dandy

Imagine going outdoors in a bathing suit on a cold winter day and nestling comfortably in a pool of water.

It may sound ridiculous but actually it is one of the fastest growing crazes. They don't step into an icecold pool, however. They soak in a hot tub.

"It's great because of the contrast in temperature. It's also best to use it at night, just before bed. It soothes the muscles in the body."

Hot tub owners were once perceived as families of the upper and uppermiddle classes. Today that isn't the case. Social status no longer is a reason for purchasing the units, according to Phil Breininger, salesperson at Fireplace and Spa, a retailer of portable home health spas, in Southfield.

Typical health spa purchasers, Breininger explained, are blue-collar workers, middle and upper-middle class people. Most of them are between 30 and 40 years old and look for relaxation.

The popular health spas purchased typically cost between $4,000 and $5,000, according to Breininger. However, they can be purchased for as little as $1,500 or as much as $6,000. Financing plans are available at most spa dealers.

This home spells economy

The Oakley is designed for economy in both space and construction costs.

Growing families on a limited budget can get a full three-bedroom, two-bath home at a reasonable price.

As income property, the Oakley also can be built as a duplex, with the second mirror image unit attaching garage-to-garage.

The master bedroom offers small luxuries: a roomy closet and private shower and toilet in a small dressing kitchen. room alcove next to the closet.

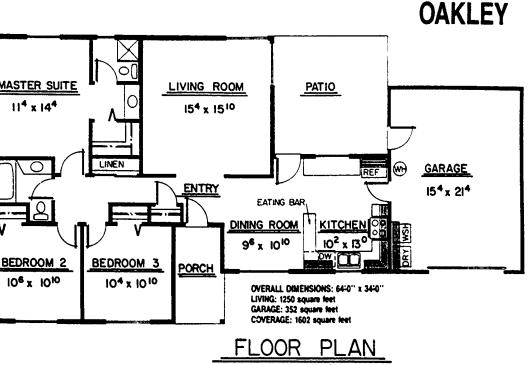

The two smaller bedrooms across from the master suite share a full bath with tub and shower.

Counter space on four sides of the kitchen make for an efficient work area. Meals can be served directly into the informal dining room across an eating bar. An outside door provides access to the back patio for parties and barbecues.

Around the House: Entertaining Just the right antidote to warm a body

By Barbara Floria

Choose your poison-freezing rain, sleet, snow, a "blue Norther" wind, falling temperatures, wet boots and soggy mittens.

Now, choose your antidotesteaming cardamon tea, grown-up hot chocolate with schnapps and creme de menthe, mulled apple cider, hot curried tomato juice or rich cafe Viennese with cognac, cream and freshly ground nutmeg.

Things are getting better already. aren't they?

Yes, 'tis the season to cozy up to a fire with feet and legs wrapped in a blanket and your hand wrapped around a hot mug filled with something delicious

Whether you like the convenience of the exotic coffees and teas presently on the market or relish the challenge of concocting more complex libations, with or without spirits, your time has come.

Many cold-weather imbibers simply switch to hot coffee drinks with spirited liquor additions when the winds howl, while others turn to mulled wines and ciders or hot buttered rum. Almost any liquor or liqueur can be added to coffee, and when you're bored with the obvious choices of Grand Marnier and amaretto, try combining brandy or rum with fruit-based liqueurs.

When you're adding spirits to hot chocolate, keep them in the mint, orange or cocoa families for better flavor harmony.

Several of our recipes are from "Good Spirits: Alcohol-Free Drinks for All Occasions" by Marie Simmons and Barbara Lagowski (New American Library, $8.95).

The more adventuresome welcome new ideas. Hot fruit juices with spices make a warming and nutritious first course or can serve as an introduction to a casual buffet. Many seasonings, such as cloves, nutmeg, allspice and cinnamon, marry well with ciders, cranberry, pineapple or apricot juices.

Hot Buttered Rum

- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1/2 teaspoon butter

Allspice, nutmeg or ground cloves

Yields 1 serving.

Yields 4 servings.

Pickles make mark at world fair

By Linda Rosenkrantz

When visitors left the 1939-40 New York World's Fair in Flushing Meadow, they took with them memories of the Trylon and Perisphere, of Democracity, the General Motors Futurama, Borden's Dairy World of To-morrow, the polka-doted Wonder Bread building and other fascinat-ing, futuristic exhibits.

But they left with tangible reminders, as well-and more likely than not, they had on their lapels one of the millions of Bakelite pickle pins that were given away at the Heinz Pavillion and remain today perhaps the quintessential World's Fair collectible. (In case you're wondering, it's worth about $35 on the current market.)

This was not the first fair to be deluged with Heinz pickles, however. They made their mark much earlier at the 1893 Chicago World's Fair, where Henry J. Heinz had a booth in the out-of-the way food section.

In order to lure people to this Siberialike area, he had his staff scatter small brass tokens all over the fairgrounds. On the tokens was stamped a notice stating that the finder was entitled to a valuable free souvenir at the Heinz exhibit.

Before long, crowds were thronging to the food section to claim their bright green plaster pickle pins; in fact, the ploy was so successful that Heinz's grateful neighboring exhibitors threw a testimonial dinner in his behalf.

Heinz had, from a very early age, been the consummate promoter. At 12, he was selling his parents' surplus produce, at 16 he was employing several women to help him, and at 25

he began to bottle horseradish grown on his property, selling it for the first time in clear glass, so that housewives could see what they were getting

But it wasn't until 1876 when he went into business with the brother (F.) and cousin (J.) that the successful F. and J. (later H.J.) Heinz Co. was launched, its first bonanza being ketchup. Before long, pickles and other condiments were added to the inventory, which eventually grew to over 3,000 products (not just the 57 varieties, which Heinz himself felt was the perfect marketing number). There were several firsts in the brilliant Heinz merchandising career. The first canned food to be nationally advertised was canned soup and Heinz is credited with making canned food a part of American culture.

And the first electric sign to appear on Broadway was a giant (59 foot) Heinz sign above the Flatiron Building in 1900, featuring an enormous pickle outlined by green bulbs and the name Heinz across it in white. Under the pickle, huge electrically lit letters spelled out the names of Heinz's 57 varieties.

The sign-six stories high and ablaze with 1,200 lights-became acknowledged across the country as a successful demonstration of what electricity could do for advertising and was instrumental in spurring other manufacturers to utilize the medium.

Right landscaping can increase value than just make your lawn look lovely-it can save you money on your heating and cooling bills and increase your property value.

The sun is one of the most important environmental factors that affects your home's heating and cooling requirements. By planting trees to block the summer sun and take advantage of winter sun, you can actually save from 10 to 40 percent on your utility bills.

Deciduous (leaf bearing) trees and vines provide shade in the summer and allow winter sun to warm the home after their leaves have dropped in the fall. Most landscape architects recommend shading the east and west of your house to block summer sun.

When planting deciduous trees, keep in mind that it may take from three to five years or more before they are tall enough to be of any utility savings benefit.

It is also important to estimate the size of the mature trees branches and roots. Large, heavy branches may damage your roof or interfere with the gutters and drainage system. The root system may damage sidewalks. driveways or your foundation if planted too close to the house.

Ground covers such as grass, plants, creeping vines or mulch also offer cooling effects. Paved areas reflect the sun's heat. Maximizing your planted areas will help to minimize your utility costs.

The right landscaping can do more home. You can cut heating costs from 10 to 30 percent by planting a windbreak. Windbreaks are usually evergreens that deflect winds upward over your roof. The strongest winter winds generally come from the south.

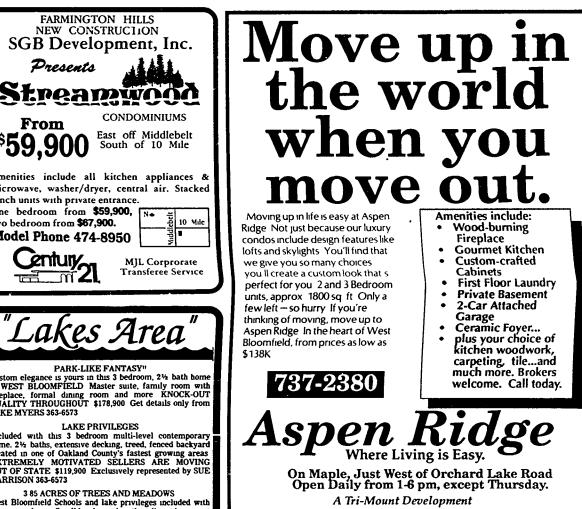

> If you don't have enough room for a row of trees, a fence covered with evergreen vines also will work. Be sure to plant your windbreak far enough away from the house so that doesn't block the winter sun out.

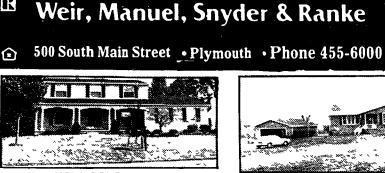

> When planting on the east or west. a good distance is about 50 feet from the house. Choose plants that are visually dense, have stiff branches, don't self-prune and are fast growing. Plant them close together for effectiveness.

Now that you've invested in your landscaping, how has that affected your property value? Research conducted by the U.S. Forest Service showed that trees can contribute an average of 7 percent to the value of a half-acre lot and as much as 27 percent of the appraised value of a residential property.

The study showed that one to 29 trees added value, but 30 or more could reduce the property's value. The value is decreased because excess trees block out needed sunlight and they can be liabilities in severe ice or wind storms.

A tree's basic value is expressed in dollars and is based on the diameter Allowing winter sun into your of the tree measured four and a half home is one way to help heat your feet above ground.

Unique hand-hewn home offers design options for local couple

Story by Stephen Kellman

On a hillside in Northville, a strange structure is beginning to take shape.

The simple frame of thick, oaken posts and beams provides a stark contrast to the skeleton of two-by-fours in typical homes. The structure harks back to an earlier time, when buildings were built without the aid of cranes and fork-lifts when sheer strength and brute force were the main tools of the building trade. The building — a timber frame house - will eventually be the home of John and Debi Gould, and their family of four. "I've always appreciated handhewn, post-and-beam con-struction," Gould said. 'With the versatility of the design, you're unlimited with what you can do."

This versatility stems from the fact that timber frame homes do not need the many structural walls of a conventional home. The massive oaken timbers - some more than a foot wide - allow long interior spans without a wall, and such design features as beamed ceilings, massive rafters and huge cathedral spaces.

The Goulds are taking advantage of all the space their 6.400-square-foot home will allow, with the addition of four fireplaces, hardwood and marble floors, a viewing loft and plenty of windows to take advantage of the view. Their home, surrounded by oaks on the side of a gentle slope, overlooks a small pond and much of Northville Township beyond. Gould's interest in timber frame homes stems from his parents' former summer home in Great Barrington, Massachusetts. The handhewn house, built in the 1700s, was framed in chestnut, a popular wood in short supply since a blight decimated the tree's North American population. The Gould's new home on

Mills gives time to library

By DOROTHY NASH

"You've had a lot of enjoyment out of the library," a friend told Geraldine Mills several years ago. "It's time you gave something back.

The friend was a member of the Friends of the Northville Public Library and it didn't take much to convince Mills to join. In a short time, she took a short term as board president. That got her really involved

For example, this September for the fifth year, she was chairperson of the annual seven-course benefit dinner which Genitti's "Hole-in-the-Wall" restaurant donates.

That means getting a popular literary person to speak, securing a date convenient for the person and Genitti's, arranging for publicity, having tickets printed, getting members to greet people at the door, putting "thank-you" cards for coming to the dinner on each table and handling the sale of tickets which go to the first 100 who sign up at the library.

"It's a let of correspondence and telephoning," Mills said, and "it's fun

She also helped organize the even-ing of chamber music at the library on Nov. 6, in celebration of the library's centennial.

Two days before that, there was a library book sale For that, she helped consolidate the books, box up those that didn't sell and worked as cashier

Mills is also on the committee to index the Northville Record. "I have my time assigned," she said, "for one morning a week for an hour and a half.'

But about that friend who talked her into joining the Friends of the Northville Public Library, she said She was right."

How about you? There are no membership meetings to attend, but there are plenty of opportunities to work on projects that will aid the library joinery — the same technique used to build fine furniture. The joints are secured by hardwood pegs called trunnels, or treenails, a technique often used in shipbuilding - rather than by nails or bolts.

In fact, the differences between timber framing and typical modern construction are so great that timber framers often refer to conventional two-by-four construction as "stickbuilding."

Riverbend Timber Framing is the culmination of the dreams of two men - Frank Baker and Sandy Bennett. Like Gould, Baker's interest in timber framing is hereditary. It dates back to a house his grandfather built in 1948 on the banks of Ohio's Maumee River. The home, built of oak timbers, brick and stone, was the center of family gatherings and reu nions. "That was the place we held them," Baker said, "in that beautiful old structure with those beautiful oak beams.'

Baker and Bennett became fast friends in college. "We did a lot of things together," Baker recalled, "including dreaming about starting a business." After landing lucrative careers as automotive engineers, the two gave up their air-conditioned offices in 1979 to started their own business on the banks of the Raisin River.

Their first timber frame structure, a barn, became the Riverbend shop, and their second became Baker's home. Since then, their company has grown to 50 employees and built more than 500 oak-frame structures from coast to coast. Along the wa Baker and Bennett teamed up with Stewart Elliott, a leading authority on timber framing and author of three books on the subject.

Though the practice of timber framing has been in use for hundreds of years, Riverbend Timber Framers have updated the concept. Riverbend builders use stress-skin panels high-tech building panels made of drywall material, polystyrene insulation and waferboard - to wrap their homes in a solid layer of energyefficient insulation.

"That was one of the things that convinced us that the buildings would be more than just a historical curiosity," Baker said. "The advent of the stress-skin panel and its application to timber framing assured that."

Though specializing in homes, the company has also built timber frame restaurants, park pavilions, chur-ches, bandshells, nature centers and lodges. This September, Riverbend built a new pottery house for Sauder Farm and Craft Village near Archbold, Ohio

Not content to rest on past laurels, Riverbend Timber Framers is broadening its horizons even further - to the land of the rising sun. The company's latest venture is taking timber framing to Japan.

Riverbend has teamed up with the Gakuyyusha company to build homes in that country. This summer, if all goes as planned, container ships will transport packages of timber frames, stress-skin panels and other building materials overseas so the Japanese can experience the quality of timber frame homes first-hand The materials will be shipped to Yamanashi Prefecture in Japan, to be built into a show home and restaurant.

Snowmaking equipment provides Michigan ski areas with ample snow

State's ski areas prepare for winter fun

By BRUCE WEINTRAUB

Sparked by an early influx of cold weather, skiers across the state are now able to schuss on many local downhill slopes covered with artificial snow.

However, cross-country skiers will have to wait for the natural white stuff before strapping the boots to their skis.

"Thanks to technology, there now is skiing somewhere in Michigan from Thanksgiving through Easter,' said AAA Michigan Touring Manager Brian Potter. This is true even when snowfall is 16 inches below normal, as it was in Southeast Michigan last winter.

Despite last winter's light snowfall, Michigan's downhill lift ticket sales rose almost three percent statewide over last season, mainly because of an increase in snowmaking equipment, reports AAA of Michigan.

AAA also reports that 38 of the 46 ski area's listed by them have snowmaking equipment, with many Michigan lodges enhancing snowmaking capability by using an additive called Snowmax.

"We wish for real snow because it gets skiers excited for the winter season," Bill Byberg, general manager of Alpine Vally in White Pine Knob in Clarkston, Mt. Brighton Lake Township. "But, we don't rely on real snow for the ski surface. And besides. the manmade snow is basically the same as natural snow." Byberg said the Snowmax crystals are injected into the snowmaking water system, which allows for the snow to freeze more quickly as it is shot out of the snow gun.

"The Snowmax allows us to produce more snow at warmer temperatures than we normally could," he said.

Byberg said the snow machines at Alpine Valley have been producing snow since Nov. 16. He added the slopes have between a six-inch and 20-inch groomed surface base.

"We've got excellent skiing already this year," he said. "We received colder weather than we usually do this time of year and it's helped.

Byberg said ski lift tickets for weekdays (Sunday evening through Thursday) between 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. cost $13, while evening weekday lift tickets cost $14.

Weekend lift tickets (Friday through Sunday morning) cost $18 for either the day or evening sessions. Ski rental is also available at Alpine Valley.

in Brighton, and Mt. Holly in Holly. Meanwhile, the cross country ski trails at Maybury State Park in Northville are just waiting to be dusted with white stuff from Mother Nature. "We usually like to have a fourinch base for skiing," said park Assistant Manager Leland VerBerkmoes. "The last two years, we have not had any skiing until Christmas.

"Basically, all we're waiting for is some snow," he said. "As soon as it snows we'll open for business.'

Under excellent skiing conditions, VerBerkmoes said over 1,000 cars filled with skiing enthusiasts will pack the parking lot. "This is a popular place to ski because the ski trails go through the woods, so people aren't as affected by the wind," he said.

VerBerkmoes said Maybury park encompasses 945 acres of land and offers nearly 17 kilometers of ski area. He noted most of the ski trails are formed from bike trails and some additional foot trails.

We had a total of only seven ski days last year," he said. "But, if con-ditions are good, then we've got a new rolling device made to pack the snow.

VerBerkmoes said a daily Maybury parking permit costs $2 and an annual permit costs $10. He added the prices of the permits will increase to $3 and $15 respectively after Jan. 1, 1990.

In addition, VerBerkmoes said skiers can rent equipment for $4.25 per hour, with the rental price decreasing each hour.

Other cross country ski trails located in the area include: Heritage Park, Farmington Hills; Independence Oaks and Indian Springs Metro Park, Clarkston; Kensington Metro Park and Proud Lake Recreation Area, Milford; and Oak Point Golf Course, Brighton.

In addition to skiing, a relatively new winter sport in Michigan is "snowboarding," which combines aspects of both skateboarding and skiing.

"Snowboarding is being widely accepted by kids of all ages," Byberg said, adding Alpine Valley does offer a snowboarding area. "It's a skill sport, but it's really fun to do.

Throughout the state, 23 areas are welcoming "snowboarders" to their slopes, compared with 15 last year.

Byberg said Alpine Valley has offered snowboarding for the past six years, but noted the resort recently installed "half pipes" for snowboarders.

"The half pipes are made from the dirt on the slopes itself," he said, and they resemble skate board courses.

The Northville Record

Defense never rests with this All-Area team

In the courts around the Sliger-Livingston East area, the defense never rests.

Our 1989 All-Area Girls' Basketball squad, featured here in a different kind of court - 52nd District Court in Walled Lake - provided the area with a style quite different from all star teams of the past. The explosive, 20-point-plus performers are nowhere to be found. Instead, wellrounded players with as much defensive tenacity as offensive ability are common place.

The five members of our first team are very versatile. Whether it was rebounding, scoring, providing defensive pressure or even leadership, these girls accomplished the job effectively, but with little fanfare.

Judge Brian McKenzie may reside on the bench in Walled Lake, but you wouldn't find these girls on any benches this fall during basketball season

Here's a closer look at the first team

KATE HOLSTEIN, Northville, Forward: The Mustangs' major scoring force, Holstein led the area in scoring (13.2 points per game) and rebounding (9.2 per game). Northville Coach Ed Kritch calls the 5foot-9 forward "the best junior we've ever had." Holstein was among the area leaders in almost every category, including field goal percentage (.345 percent), free throw percentage (.540), steals (46), blocks (16) and three point shooting (7).

"Kate was our main scoring threat and teams really tilted their defenses toward her," Kritch said. "She is an effective scorer from the inside with her back to the basket, but she can also drive and hit the outside shot. She is a very, very good basketball player and I think she can develop into a scoring machine.'

Holstein had a season high 25 points in a lopsided win over Farmington Harrison and scored in double figures in all but five games.

"She's in tremendous physical con-dition," Kritch said. "She played the point of our press and she led us in steals. I think she has tremendous potential.

ADRIENNE MISKOVICH, Novi, Forward: Nothing could stop this Novi forward - not box-and-one defenses, or triangle-and-two defenses, or even a broken finger. Midway through the '89 campaign, Miskovich suffered the injury, missed just one game and was back as the Wildcat's leading scorer (10 points a game) and rebounder (8.2 per game).

"We're really going to miss Adrienne," Novi Coach Chris Drogosch said. "She led us in every category except assists and field goal percentage. She did a very good job leading a young team and the broken finger only kept her out of one game.

She is a very gutsy player." This 5-foot-10 senior was also among the area leaders in field goal percentage (.380), steals (46), free throw percentage (.540) and assists (2 0 per game).

"She has a lot of intensity and a great desire to play," Drogosch said. "She's a fine athlete, she jumps very well and she played an average of 32minutes a game for us.'

KARI HEINONEN, Milford, Guard: Offensive improvement brought this junior out of Lori Montante's shadow, where she had been the previous two years.

Heinonen did not post Montante-like numbers and probably never will, but she was an adequate replacement at the head of Milford's attack

"Kari's a good little guard," Redskins coach Don Palmer said. "She really blossomed this year. She could hit the jumper and also go to the hole. People in our league respected her a lot.'

The 5-foot-5 Heinonen averaged 9.1 points, 3.3 rebounds and 2.9 assists per game. She also converted 52 of 82 free throws for .634 percent.

"Kari will have a lot more pressure on her next year," Palmer continued. "For one, people know about her now . plus she'll be our only returning starter. She'll have to carry the load while the younger players adjust.'

JUSTINA HOLMAN, South Lyon, Forward: Although this 5-fot-9 senior possesses a complete game, she is best known for her defensive skills which frustrate opponents every time she steps on the floor.

"Justina, without a doubt, is the best defensive player I've had," South Lyon coach Ron Shanks said. 'She has tremendous instincts. I could sense that the first time I saw her play. Even when she didn't know anything about the game, she had a knack for anticipating what the other players were going to do." Holman finished the season with 79 steals, 38 blocked shots and an 8.2 rebounds-per-game average. Offensively, she averaged 11.8 points per Miskovich and Carol Pietila - were the stars of the court this fall. The team, shown here before 52nd District Court Judge Brian McKenzie, also included South Lyon's Justina Holman.

The All-Kensington Valley Conference performer also connected on .412 percent of her field goal attempts and .481 percent of her free throws.

'Justina had a good year," Shanks added. "She was able to do more things, like play on the perimeter and shoot free throws. Her free throw percentage slipped at the end of the outing to go along with 1.4 assists.

year, but it was still much better than a year ago."

CAROL PIETILA, South Lyon, Guard: This 5-foot-6 senior bounced back from a disappointing junior year to lead her team in steals with 87 also an area-best — and assists with 67. "Carol's a great athlete, but basketball came a little harder for her," Lions coach Ron Shanks said. "She had led the freshman and junior varsity teams in scoring prior to her junior year, but things just didn't work out last season. She really struggled and had a tough time understanding the game.

"This year, though, was another story. She put it all together. She played outstanding defense and did percent of her field goal attempts.

some tremendous things with the ball. She's probably the best one-onone player I've ever had on the perimeter.'

Pietila, a standout on the soccer field as well, was South Lyon's second-leading scorer at 9.5 points per game. She also grabbed 3.3 rebounds per outing and converted .386

Northville's Kritch is 'Coach of Year'

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Ed Kritch and hoops are synonymous in Northville.

On and off since the early 70s. Kritch has been a key figure in Mustang basketball — whether as a player or a coach. He's been at the helm of the Northville girls' basketball program for six seasons, just completed a fifth-straight winning season, and has been named the Sliger-Livingston East Coach of the Year for 1989.

From 1972 to 1974, Kritch was a varsity player under Walt Koepke and formed one of the school's premier backcourt tandems with teammate Joe Bishop. His first stop after high school was the University of Dayton, where he played baseball for the Flyers.

He later transferred, and eventually graduated from, Miami of Ohio and then returned to Northville and started coaching basketball at the recreation level in 1979. In '81, he moved on to coach the 7th-8th grade girls at Our Lady of Victory, and finally wound up as the girls' J.V. coach at Northville High School in 1983.

His first Mustang team went 17-3, and by the following season, he was the head coach.

Livingston East All-Area Second Team isn't the most explosive we've ever featured.

But basketball is more than just scoring and these five players were competent at every skill. They were capable scorers, but much more. Here's a player-by-player profile of the team:

MARIA MacINNIS, Northville, Forward: The area's top three-point shooter, MacInnis was a key figure in the Mustang line-up. The 5-foot-8 MacInnis was Northville's secondleading scorer (6.1 points per game) and rebounder (4.0 per game)

"Maria is a solid player," Mustang Coach Ed Kritch said. "Without her, we wouldn't have been 11-10. She is a very unselfish player and she played a lot of minutes for us. Her presence on the floor and her knowledge of the game made our other players bet-

With nine three-point buckets, MacInnis was the most dangerous long-range shooter around and she led her team in blocked shots (17). This junior also shot 29 percent from the field and 56 percent from the free throw line.

"Her numbers may not be all that great but she was very important to our team," Kritch said. "Her outside shooting really opened things up in the middle, especially for Kate Holstein.'

BROOKE HAYDEN, Milford, Guard: One of the quickest players in the area, Hayden was instrumental in Milford's sometimes-complicated defensive strategy

"Brooke could do some things on defense," Redskins coach Don Palmer said. "We used her in the box-and-one a handful of times and she usually did a nice job on the player she was guarding. She handled some tough assignments.'

Offensively, Hayden scored 7.6 points per game and handed out an area-best 3.3 assists.

"She was a pleasant surprise," her coach added. "After team camp, we felt she would be a starter and that she was the key for us having a winning season. She did just about

"Her decisions kept getting better and better. She began to make the right pass at the right time and she also learned when and when not to do things. That's the toughest part about handling the ball and running an offense," he added.

Shanks, a two-year starter, is recognized for her sound defense as well She helped the Lions force more than 20 turnovers per game and surrender only 37.7 points per game.

PAM WHITEMAN, Lakeland, Forward: Whiteman - a 5-foot-9 senior - overcame a bout with mononucleosis to lead Lakeland in scoring, rebounding, assists and field goal percentage.

"Pam was very valuable to our team," said Coach Sherry Bell, noting that the Eagles were 6-9 with Whiteman and 0-6 without her.

"She was our offensive leader. true, but her main strength was defense. She played the top of our (3-2) zone and really bothered other teams' guards with her size and quickness She also covered the low post when the ball went to the side. There aren't very many kids with the athletic ability to do that.

for the 20-3 Lions. She was fourth on her team in points (7.1 per game), second in assists (19), third in steals (2.4) and first in free throw percentage (.622).

She also served as the primary ballhandler on a team which averaged more than 50 points per game.

Center: A three-year starter for the Redskins, this 5-foot-9 senior gets the most out of her ability.

Injuries undermine '89 season for Mustang harriers

Sophomore runner Steve Coon was a bright spot in an otherwise frustrating season for the Northville harriers

Northville Cross Country Coach Ed Gabrys doesn't want to make any ex-cuses for his team's disappointing 1-5 record and fifth place finish in the six-team WLAA Western Division but if he wanted too, there is a do it." legitimate one.

The old curse: injuries. The Mustangs entered the 1989 season with four solid runners and a host of other promising youngsters. But when three of the team's top four runners went down with serious injuries in the first few weeks of the season, a once promising campaign turned into a struggle.

"Heading into the season, we thought we could challenge for se-cond place in our division behind Plymouth Canton," Gabrys said. "But Walled Lake Western surprised everybody, then we had a bad meet against (Livonia) Churchill and then we lost a real close one to (Livonia) Franklin.'

Northville's only dual meet victory of the season came against lowly Farmington Harrison, but Gabrys failed to mention all the injuries, and their effects. Senior co-captains Jon Meek (leg) and Jason Hoose (knee) never made it out of pre-season workouts and were forced to miss the first third of the season. But the death blow came at the Schoolcraft Invitational when junior Andy Haas, the team's number two runner, was lost for the season with a stress fracture.

"Losing Haas was a tough one to swallow, because with him, we wouldn't have had any trouble beating Churchill and Franklin," Gabrys said.

Meek and Hoose came back soon after Hass departed, but it took them several weeks to get into shape, and in the meantime, the losses mounted. As it was, Northville fell to Churchill by three points and Franklin by one. "Good teams find ways to win the close ones and we couldn't do it,'

Gabrys said. The highlight of the season was the steady performance of sophomore Steve Coon, who has already shattered almost every freshman and sophomore school record. He ended up finishing 11th in the WLAA, then moved up to fourth in the MHSAA Regional Meet, thus earning a spot at the State Meet as an individual. He finished 50th there in a field of nearly

'Coon's performance this season was certainly one of the things I'll remember about this season," Gabrys said. "He compares well with other great runners we've had at the same stage of his career."

Gabrys is referring to former All-Staters like John Frisbee and Clark Couyoumjian.

"He has that same kind of potential," he said.

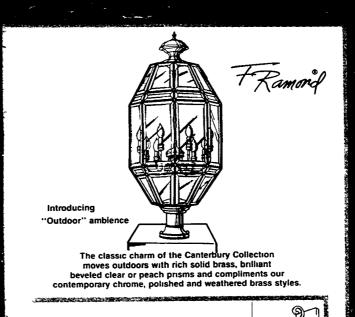

Meek and Hoose will be lost to graduation, along with Aaron Wiseley (the team's number seven runner) and reserve John Okasinski.

But with Coon, Haas and transfer student Karl Goerky all returning for 1990, the top of the line-up should be a strength. Gabrys is expecting a full recovery for Haas and sub-18-minute times next fall. Goerky was approaching the 18-minute mark by the end of this season and should be much improved as well. Junior Dave Borg, who was Northville's 'Most Improved Runner' and number four man in '89, will also be back. Mike Connery (Jr.), Jamie Groves (Jr.) and Doug Huntington (So.) will round out the returning letterwinners

Spradlin rakes in post-season grid honors

There were a lot of disappointments during the 1989 football campaign for both Novi and Northville.

The Wildcats — a pre-season top-10 Class A team - gave up 14 unanswered points in the fourth quarter to Fenton in the second week of the season and lost the game 14-7. Novi then dropped a 10-7 decision to Northville in the last week of the year, which knocked the Wildcats out of the MHSAA Playoffs.

Northville, on the other hand, suffered through its fourth straight losing season, which included lopsided defeats to Livonia Franklin, Plymouth Canton and South Lyon, among others.

But despite these setbacks, both Novi and Northville boasted some talented players who are now receiving their fair share of post-season honors and awards.

The two most recognized players are linemen Bob Ahrens (Novi) and Rob Spradlin (Northville). Together, these two weigh more than 500 pounds and average about 6-foot-4inches tall. They were the biggest and strongest players in the area and among the top interior linemen in the state

The 6-foot-5, 265-pound Spradlin was a second-team All-State pick by the United Press International. He joined fellow Western Lakes players like Ryan Johnson (Plymouth Salem), Tom Luxton (Westland John Glenn), Trent Naumcheff (Livonia Churchill) and Eric Stover (John Glenn), who were singled out for 'Special Mention' by UPI.

Spradlin was also a first-team All-Metro West selection by The Detroit News as a defensive lineman, and an honorable mention pick on The Detroit Free Press All-Suburban squad. He also garnered second team All-Metro honors and was an honorable mention All-State pick by the Detroit dailies.

Head Coach Darrel Schumacher's '89 Northville squad featured outstanding lineman Rob Spradlin

Ahrens (6-foot-4, 251-pounds) was a first team All-Metro North lineman and a second team All-Suburban defensive tackle. Fellow Kensington Valley Conference players like Bob Laura of Lakeland (All-State) and Dave Osborn of South Lyon (All-Metro West) were also honored. Ahrens — like Spradlin — was also a second team All-Metro selection and honorable mention on the All-State second team selection at linebacker and earned honorable mention status on the All-Suburban list, the All Metro squad and the All-State team. Other Novi players earning a variety Novi's Mike Yankowski (6-foot-1, of honorable mention recognition in-203-pounds) was an All-Metro North clude runners Craig Berry and Jason Wladischkin.

All five local players were given All-Area and All-Conference recognition as well.

Gar Frantz, one of the most successful coaches in the Novi School District, has confirmed that he's been relieved of his duties as the girls' seventh and eighth grade basketball coach at the Novi Middle School after more than a decade on the 10b

The Novi News has also learned from a source close to the situation that Frantz's position as the Novi High School varsity baseball coach is in serious jeopardy. The source, who asked not to be identified, told the Novi News that Frantz's teaching schedule at Novi Meadows is at the heart of the problem.

According to reports, when Frantz reported for classes at the start of 1989-90 school year, he was informed by Novi Meadows Principal Tim Falls that his teaching schedule had been changed His normal prep period was moved from the last hour of the day to the second hour, which in effect makes it very difficult for him to continue as the Wildcat baseball mentor. Since Frantz became the Novi varsity coach in 1985, he's used the last hour time to prepare for, and initiate baseball practice.

"I don't think I'm going to be coaching baseball next spring," Frantz said. "I don't want to give it up, but I'm also getting tired of this schedule problem.

'I have, basically, resigned myself to the fact that my coaching career is over.

Novi Athletic Director John Fundukian also confirmed that the schedule issue is posing a problem, but he denied that Frantz is on his way out as the varsity baseball coach at this time.

'Gar Frantz is still our baseball coach but there are some problems we need to address," he said. "He's a teacher first and he's contracted to be at the school until a certain time. From the way I understand it, his current schedule is such that he wouldn't be able to get to practices and games on time.

"Gar is an outstanding coach and we're doing everything possible to enable him to return next spring. I

"I don't feel like it was Tim Fall's fault - he's a new principal and him, but we met recently and talked there really wasn't anything he could do. He came in after the fact.'

> Falls was unavailable for comment.

In eight seasons as a baseball coach for Novi, Frantz has amassed a 131-73 record. He has been the varsity head coach for five seasons, and has an 84-53 record including one KVC title and three runner-up finishes.

'Gar has done so much for the kids over the years and I hate to just sit by and watch them take his teams away from him," one angry Frantz sup-porter said. "He is a very fine baseball coach and I know he did a lot for girls basketball for a long time - they even took that away from him. It doesn't make any sense

Ironically, this scheduling problem has been an ongoing one for nearly Frantz nearly lost his coaching position when school administrators introduced the seventh hour prep period issue and requested that his schedule be changed. After the '86 situation was resolved, Frantz told the Novi News: "I always wanted to coach, but the schedule was the problem. I'm just glad it's over.'

In '87, the problem resurfaced and the issue eventually made its way to the Novi Board of Education meeting on June 18. A group of concerned residents attended the meeting to show support for Frantz, who several weeks earlier had led Novi to its firstever Kensington Valley Conference baseball championship. Jim Tanderys, the father of former Wildcat pitching great Jeff Tanderys, addressed the board.

"His coaching for the varsity level is in serious jeopardy because his last hour (schedule) change," he said. "Why would you take a person like this and change his schedule so that it would prohibit him from coaching a varsity sport? Every ef-fort should be made to keep him as the team's coach.

Novi Superintendent Robert Piwko replied: "I can't say (Frantz) will definitely be coaching next year -it's something we'll have to look at."

Apparently, pressure from the residents worked because Frantz was back at the helm the following spring, with a seventh-hour prep period in tow.

Kritch guides cagers to fifth-straight winning season

gram was coming off a 1-19 campaign and had never experienced a winning season. Under Kritch, the Mustangs almost broke the string in '84 with a 9-11 mark. The following year, Northville upset state-ranked Plymouth Canton and went on to post an 11-9 record to finish in the black for the first time in history. Since then, the Mustangs have finished no worse than 11-9 in the regular season.

"The thing I feel the best about is that our opponents look at us as a team that is capable of beating them," Kritch said. "It wasn't always like that.

"We are now competitive each and every year and we've worked hard to get the respect of our peers."

In six years, Kritch has built a 67-53 regular season record (72-59 overall), including a district title. His '88 squad was a school-record 14-6, but lost to powerful Plymouth Salem in the district final.

Most experts agree, however, that Kritch's most impressive coaching performance came this fall, when he guided a young, inexperienced squad - with no starter over 5-foot-9 - to yet another winning record.

Graduation losses were very heavy heading into the '89 campaign. Three of those players - Debbie Stevens, Karen Baird and Heather Sixt combined to average more than 40 points per game a year ago. As it turned out, just three returnees with any varsity experience to speak of were back, and only one was a fulltime starter.

"It was a very big challenge because we graduated our entire of-fense," Kritch recalled. "We thought heading in that if things fell into place, we could figure out a way to be competitive.'

After the first four games, the Mustangs were 2-2 and struggling, particularly on offense. In a bold move, Kritch decided to insert 5-foot-1 guard Karen Cavanaugh into the backcourt, along with 5-foot-1 Sue LaPrad, which turned Northville into a scrappy, tenacious defensive-thought the small line-up would only exacerbate the team's offensive woes, but that didn't happen. What it did do was bolster the defense.

"We settled on being a very ag-gressive, defensive-style team," Kritch said. "It was a complete readjustment from last season when we had some big-time scorers and we could beat teams just by outscoring them. This year's team was just the opposite.'

from the J.V. in mid-season before," Kritch said. "It was good for the team from a personnel standpoint, but sometimes a move like that wears on a team's character because a young player suddenly moves up and then leapfrogs into the starting line-up. But it didn't happen - the girls hung in there and stuck with the program.

By the end of the season, Kritch was using a line-up featuring two sophomores and three juniors much of the time. With juniors like Kate Holstein, Maria MacInnis, Allison Kennedy and Cavanaugh, along with sophomores like McNeil and Karen Pump all returning next season, the program has never been in a better position.

to the end of the season more than any team I've ever had," Kritch admitted. "To go from losing to Pinckney in our third game, to beating Walled Lake Western and John Glenn and then outscoring Livonia Ladywood by five in the second half of our district game - it was quite a turn around."

Smoking also a physical addiction

By PHILIP JEROME

It's well-known that smoking is a psychological habit.

What receives considerably less attention is that smoking is also a physiological addiction physiological addiction ... and anyone planning to quit smoking should recognize that there will be certain chemical changes in the body which must be overcome along with the emotional addiction.

"Nicotine is a narcotic, and when a person quits - it takes awhile for the nicotine to withdraw from the system," said Caroline Smith, a Registered Nurse associated with the Health Development Network of Botsford General Hospital.

Smith noted that some researchers have explained the urge to smoke in terms of a cycle triggered by various chemical reactions in the body.

Within one to seven seconds after lighting a cigarette, there is decreased pressure in the chest and veins, leading to an increase in blood flow and oxygen to the heart. The result is a relaxed feeling.

Within seven seconds to 15 minutes of inhaling, the nicotine enters the liver which releases sugar into the blood system, resulting in a physical uplift for the smoker.

The high sugar content in the blood leads the pancreas to release insulin which lowers the blood sugar level. The smoker may experience irritability, hunger, fatigue and a desire to smoke another cigarette.

Within 15 to 20 minutes after lighting up, the nicotine stimulates the nervous system which subsequently releases adrenalin. The result is that the smoker experiences increased heart rate, respiration and a tense feeling. Those feelings often lead the smoker to light up another cigarette, starting the entire cycle in motion once again.

Because of the correlation between

It may receive less attention, but smoking is also a physiological addiction aspects of smoking, some stopsmoking programs incorporate dietary guidelines as part of the 'treatment."

"Smokeless," the name of a stopsmoking program developed by the American Institute for Preventive the psychological and physiological Medicine, offers eating management suggestions as a means of reducing the urge to smoke. Those suggestions include the following:

1. Drink up to eight glasses of liquids per day including water, club soda, herbal teas and homemade lemonade (without sugar). This acts as an appetite suppressant in addition to being a substitute for smoking. 2. Eat three meals per day to maintain blood sugar levels, thus reducing the urge to smoke. 3. Drink fruit juices or eat a piece of fruit between meals to maintain even blood sugar levels and prevent fatigue.

4. Eat protein — lean meats, fish, poultry and low-fat cheese to provide low-fat sources of calories and energy

5. Eat plenty of vegetables, fruits and salads - foods that are filling, vitamin-rich, low in calories and can be eaten in larger quantities to stave off feelings of hunger.

6. Eat foods high in calcium such as low-fat milk and cheese several times a day or take a calcium supplement. Calcium is thought to have a soothing effect on the nervous system, but it is flushed from the body along with the nicotine when you stop smoking and needs to be replaced. The "Smokeless" program also recommends that people trying to stop smoking should avoid eating foods that contain sugar. Eliminating sugar from the diet prevents the blood sugar fluctuations that lead to an increased desire to smoke.

Smith said people trying to break the cigarette habit should also avoid caffeine. "Caffeine is a stimulant," she said. "It stimulates the release of insulin and starts the whole vicious cycle in motion again.'

The good news, according to Smith, is that the physiological symptoms should have just about disappeared within a couple of months after the person has kicked the nicotine habit.

The bad news is that the psychological urges may remain. But the person trying to guit smoking can help reduce those urges by understanding how certain foods may encourage the desire for a cigarette.

Fitness Tips

Medsport offers healthy holiday eating tips

ł

the rest of the holiday season fast approaching, the things we most associate with this time of year are family gatherings and a lot of food.

We often justify our overin-dulgence with tradition: "It's Thanksgiving!" or "You can't go to a party without eating and drinking something!"

The Domino's Fitness Center, managed by U-M Medsport, offers the following tips for getting through the holiday season with conscience and waistline intact, while still enjoying the special freats offered at this time of year:

• Whe a party, eat breakfast and junch. Starving yourself before holiday dinners means you're likely to overeat.

• At the party of buffet, survey the

With Thanksgiving behind us and many choices and allow yourself the three items most appealing; serve yourself to a single, moderate portion of each of those chosen.

• Allow yourself to enjoy the foods you've chosen, but focus on enjoying the company of others, particularly those furthest from the serving table. When talking and conversing, it's easy to nibble away if standing next to the table.

Take advantage of bite-size raw vegetable appetizers. Avoid the highcalorie snacks and those snacks laden with fats, like crackers, cheeseballs, cream-based dips, pastries/cookies, eggnog, sour and whipped cream, mayonnaise, salad dressings and gravies. Or modify the snacks - perhaps you could remove the cream cheese from the celery sticks.

• If possible, plan in advance and ask what will be served. Seek support from your host or hostess. Ask to bring a dish as a gift. The dish could be one of your favorites, modified in your kitchen to be low calorie.

· Don't be afraid to say, "No, thank you" to your host or hostess when they offer more. Remind yourself that consumption of food and drink is not the best way to express your love for and acceptance of your host or hostess.

• If you drink at all, drink moderately; try club soda, seltzer or mineral water with lemon or lime. Set a limit on the number of drinks you'll allow yourself at the party. • At the buffet table, decide what you'll eat before you pick up your plate.

• Use a small plate and fill it with raw vegetables.

• Make one -- and only one -- complete trip around the buffet table.

• If you overindulge one day, don't punish yourself by repeating the performance day after day. Just get back to normal the next day.

Post these tips in your kitchen or cut out the most encouraging tip for you and carry it in your wallet or post it on your desk at work. Remember, there are many holiday celebrations and many opportunities to enjoy the same foods. Don't worry, you won't miss those 'favorites' if you reserve some for the upcoming occasions on vour holiday calendar.
