First Baby

Late arrival wins annual Northville contest

Carmen Maria Kiniry is the 1990 winner of the First Baby Contest, sponsored annually by The Northville Record and local merchants.

She earns a host of prizes for her parents, Mike and Maria Kiniry of Country Estates Mobile Home Park in Northville.

One of the earliest arrivals in the contest, she was born at 3:40 a.m. Jan. 1 at Huron Valley Hospital in Commerce Township.

Baby Carmen weighed 7 pounds, one-half ounce. She was delivered by Dr. Ian Phillips of South Lyon Medical Arts.

"She has long black hair and dark eyes, just like her sister, Susan, 14," the baby's mother reported.

In addition to her sister, Carmen has a brother Billy, 15. She is also welcomed by two grandmothers, Shirley Kiniry of Redford and Carmen Hernandez Zrespo of San Lucar, Spain Carmen's parents met and married when her father was stationed at the Naval base at Rota, Spain, for 3½ years with the United States Marine Corps. Billy was born there before his father was discharged and his parents took up residence in the U.S.

Maria said the doctor had told her to expect the baby around Dec. 17, but now she is happy the delivery occurred two weeks later.

Big sister Susan notified the Record about Carmen's birth. The time was verified by the hospital.

Gifts for Carmen and her parents, courtesy of Northville merchants, include:

DiComo wins contract for Haller library

By MIKE TYREE

The firm of Kamp-DiComo Associates was awarded the architectural contract for the proposed Haller Library at the Jan. 11 meeting of the Northville Township Board of Trustees.

The board voted 6-1 to enter into a $268,800 contract with Kamp-DiComo for architectural services on the proposed 44,800 square foot library to be built on the northeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon roads.

Trustee Richard Allen cast the dissenting vote.

Township resident Donald DiComo told the board of his interest in participating in the building of the library, emphasizing his firm's local connections and experience with library facilities.

He said the firm has been the architect for Livonia-based Madonna College and its projects include the $4 million Madonna College Library and the $7 million Civic Center Library in Livonia.

DiComo said the design and construction of two large libraries has helped his firm gain "a solid understanding of the specific requirements of this project."

In a presentation package given to board members, DiComo wrote "(Kamp-DiComo) can offer a sensitivity to this project which we believe to be of utmost importance; a genuine feel for the country character of Northville Township; and a one-of-a-kind knowledge of the property involved, having worked on its Master Plan for the Haller Proposal."

"We know the 'lay of the land,' its soil conditions and are familiar with the facilities on the site," he wrote.

DiComo, a member of the township Zoning Board of Appeals, served on a committee that discussed the purchase of the Six Mile and Sheldon site with former township resident Frieda Haller in the spring of 1989.

Haller surprised township officials last September by donating almost 72 acres at that site to Northville

May day chosen for library vote

By MIKE TYREE

Northville Township residents will determine the fate of the proposed Haller Library at a May 1 election.

The township Board of Trustees approved the May 1 election date at their Jan. 11 meeting.

Township Clerk Thomas Cook said May 1 would be submitted to Wayne County for approval as an election date. He said specific ballot wording would be decided at a later time.

In an interview with the Record last week, Township Supervisor Georgina Goss said a May vote would give voters a chance to hear reasons for and against the proposed construction of a 44,800 square foot library on 72 acres donated to the township by former resident Frieda Haller.

The library would be built on the northeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon Roads.

Township Manager Richard Henningsen said the library election would cost the township approximately $4,000.

He would not comment on what part, if any, the City of Northville would play in the May 1 election.

Henningsen did say a "Northville Community Library Development Fund" had been established to raise money to promote the library and election.

Township officials and volunteers will soon begin meeting and speaking to groups interested in the library plan, Henningsen said.

Students accused of vandalizing school

By MIKE TYREE

City police officers apprehended two youths during the early morning hours Jan. 12 — moments after the teens allegedly spray-painted portions of Northville High School with obscenities and occult slogans.

Police said they will charge a 17-year old as an adult and a 16-year old as a juvenile for their role in the spray-painting incident, which allegedly occurred at 2 a.m.

Both youths are students at Northville High School and have been suspended while the school awaits a police investigation, according to David Bolitho, high school principal.

Police estimated the damage to the high school and nearby swim club to be in excess of $800.

Police said they were on a routine patrol of the high school area early Friday morning when they noticed two youths running into a wooded area near the high school.

Officers followed and tracked the two teens through a layer of fresh snow before apprehending them at an apartment complex near the corner of Eight Mile Road and Randolph Street.

Bolitho said he arrived at the school at 2:30 a.m. to witness the damage. He said the school had been spray-painted with red, black and orange and that obscenities and vulgarities, as well as several references to the occult, covered the west side of the building.

Markings on the school walls included: "666 we live," "Satan," "disobey," "Facists (sic) at Northville High School," "addiction," "Bolitho is God!!!" and several profanities and references to the high school and personnel there.

Bolitho said the students had been suspended and may be expelled from the school under the guidelines of the 1989-90 Student Handbook.

The handbook states "the Northville Public Schools Board of Education has determined that if a student engages in any of the prohibited acts listed below, then the student shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor and shall be suspended or expelled as set forth in this Student Code of Conduct."

Bolitho pointed out that Section B of the Prohibited Acts portion of the handbook states "A student shall not intentionally cause or attempt to cause damage to school property . . ."

He said the fate of the students, if they are found guilty of the police charges, would be studied.

"After we get the final police report, we'll determine the ultimate point of action," he said. "But according to the Code of Conduct, they can be expelled."

The two students had not caused severe problems in the school prior to their alleged painting spree, he said.

Most of the spray-paint was cleaned off the walls by mid-morning Friday, Bolitho said.

He said a maintenance crew from the intermediate school district used a special chemical solution and a high pressure water hose to clean the walls and another solvent was to be used on affected doors.

Bolitho expressed his appreciation to the city police and said acts of vandalism serve as a reminder that all is not perfect in the school district.

City seeks commercial reappraisal

By STEVE KELLMAN

After years of criticism that commercial properties in the city have been undervalued, Northville officials are planning to contract with Oakland County to reappraise the city's commercial properties in 1990.

According to City Manager Steven Walters, the Wayne County equalization department does not have sufficient staff to do the reappraisal itself.

Wayne County officials have given tentative approval to the proposal, he added.

The reappraisal is expected to be much more expensive for the city this year. While Wayne County typically prepares a factor analysis during their appraisal of the city's Wayne County properties, which costs about $8 per lot for the city's roughly 1,000 lots, the Oakland County appraisers will be performing the reappraisal of the city's 250 commercial lots on a lot-by-lot basis, at an estimated cost of between $20,000 and $25,000.

Because of their limited staff, the Wayne County Equalization Department typically prepares a simple factor analysis of the city's commercial properties, rather than an in-depth review. In the analysis, the assessor examines overall sales averages and compares them to assessment levels. The property's new assessment level is based on an average, rather than the actual value of the specific property.

"Since the City does not want to assume the annual reappraisal responsibility on a permanent basis," Walters wrote, "a process had to be worked out that was satisfactory to Wayne County, to accept the results then integrate them with their system. In addition, familiarity with the community was important, even though the project would be done on a one-time basis, and this appears to be best accomplished through Oakland County personnel rather than a private appraisal contractor." Hiring a private contractor would have likely cost more than $100 per lot, or more than $25,000 for the entire commercial reassessment, Walters said.

Walters was quick to explain that Wayne County's equalization department has been cooperating with the city over the proposal, and that the department is merely too understaffed to provide the type of assessment that the city is looking for.

"You'd think the county would be motivated to provide funds to the department devoted to keeping the tax base up," he said, "but that doesn't seem to be the case in Wayne County as much as it is in Oakland County."

Though the city had been considering hiring a private assessing firm to do the reassessment, private firms typically use their own computer equipment and software, Walters said, and the information obtained would not be as easily transferred to Wayne County.

"It appeared more feasible in both

Hearing held on Cooke School

By MIKE TYREE

Northville Public School officials held a public hearing at the high school auditorium Monday evening to field questions from parents and staffers on the impending reopening of Cooke School.

"This is a chance for us to hear you," said Board of Education President Glenna Davis. "We want to be sure we understand your concerns."

Several members of the approximately 50 in attendance voiced opinions on the reopening of Cooke, which the school district said is necessitated by steadily increasing enrollment figures.

Superintendent Dr. George Bell told the audience that the present enrollment at Meads Mill Middle School was 862. He said that figure would climb next year to about 930 students and that Cooke would house middle school-aged students.

He said the attendance boundary format had yet to be determined but that the school board would receive his recommendations and decide on the major issues at a Feb. 2 meeting.

Bell discussed some of the options that face the school board.

"Assuming Cooke opens with a (grades) six through eight population, the attendance boundaries for Cooke could be from Amerman and Moraine (elementary schools) in the north," he said. "Silver Springs and Winchester would act as boundaries for Meads Mill in the south."

Under that scenario, Bell said approximately 390-410 students would attend Cooke next fall, with 510-530 attending Meads Mill.

Bell said he had heard some discussion in the community about turning Cooke into a fifth and sixth grade school, with Meads Mill housing seventh and eighth grade students

State may pay for local cleanup, protection of Rouge River

BY TIM RICHARD

LANSING — The Rouge would get a state-paid "river partner" under a proposal by Gov. James Blanchard.

The staffer would help local units "preserve and protect the integrity" of the Rouge and seven other "crucial rivers," according to last week's state of the state message.

"The state will provide grants for full-time positions at the local level — in local units — to clean up and protect the rivers," said David Dempsey, the governor's environmental adviser.

Youth Employment Corps and Conservation Corps workers will be made available for such projects as removal of debris, Dempsey said.

Some $2 million will be in Blanchard's budget, due in February.

Other "crucial rivers" are the Clinton, Kalamazoo, Grand, Cheboygan, Menominee, Manistique and Saginaw. Dempsey provided no other detail during a news briefing last week prior to Blanchard's speech.

Nor was there any indication of how state grants would be parceled out or which of the 42 communities which the Rouge drains might win them.

The state will target newsprint and plastics for recycling in its continuing effort to reduce landfilling, said Carol Lintel, another Blanchard aide.

The governor's text said he will designate recycling as a "target industry" for the state, seeking to develop the market for recycled products. Several community programs to recycle newsprint have been discontinued as the demand for recycled newsprint has plummeted.

Blanchard said he will seek laws "to force a reduction in solid waste landfilling and establish mandatory and voluntary targets for recycling and purchase of recycled products." The goal, he said, is to reduce the amount of trash buried in dumps 70 percent by the year 2005.

Blanchard endorsed Senate Bill 375, by Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, to provide for faster cleanup of toxic spills.

Other details of his environmental program are expected at an April 18-20 "Earth Day 1990" conference in Battle Creek.

Temporary wall

Carpenter Mike Accettora of Jon Lehman Limited, begins the first phase of building a covered walkway near the MainCentre project. The walkway will protect pedestrians from the construction site at the corner of Main and Center streets. According to Accettora, curbside construction crew chiefs should still be able to watch the building process — peep holes are planned in the design.

Oakland asked for appraisal

cost and interaction with Wayne County to work through Oakland County," he said.

Technically, the reassessment would not be done by the county itself, but by Oakland County employees who have been authorized by the city and sanctioned by the county to perform the work.

Though the reassessment will be more expensive, Walters predicted that it would result in a substantial increase in the assessed value of commercial properties in the city, and a resultant increase in tax revenue. "The reappraisal will increase some significantly and most somewhat," he said.

"It should be kept in mind that many commercial assessments will continue to be lower than market value for a period of time," Walters wrote in his memo, "because existing leases will limit the income potential of these properties in the short run." Oakland County appraisers will create a record of such properties so that they can be reappraised as their leases expire, he said.

City officials have been exploring the option of an outside appraisal since last spring. According to Walters, Oakland County's equalization department was too busy to reassess the city's properties last year. If the county does accept the city's proposal this year, the reappraisal will likely begin in May and be completed by the end of the year.

Police Blotters

Woman wrestles purse snatcher at Six Mile station

A purse was stolen from a woman's car while she was attempting to pay for gas at the Mobil gas station on 39245 Six Mile Road, Jan. 5. The woman told township police that while inside the station, she saw someone inside her car. The woman said she ran out of the station, yelled at the subject, and grabbed him while he was inside the car.

She said she grabbed the man by the hood of his sweatshirt and pulled him out of the car and onto his knees. The subject was able to get to his feet and run off down southbound Haggerty, she told police. The man escaped with the purse and about $100, she said. The subject was described as a white male with short light brown hair, approximately 5'7" tall and of medium build. He was wearing blue jeans and a blue hooded sweatshirt. The woman said she did not get a good look at the man's face. No getaway vehicle was noticed and the area was checked by police to no avail.

B&E SUSPECT ARRESTED — Northville Township police announced the arrest of a Detroit man on Jan.

10 for allegedly breaking and entering two apartments in the Swan Harbor Apartment Complex. Police said the suspect was a known breaking and entering specialist. He was arrested in cooperation with Livonia police and is lodged in Wayne County Jail pending trial.

MELJER REPORTS — Township police reported the arrest of a larceny suspect at the Meijer store, 20401 Haggerty, Jan. 11 at 7:25 p.m. The case is open pending further investigation, police said.

Township police responded to an indecent exposure complaint at Meijer Jan. 6 around 8 p.m. The complainant said she exited the south door at Meijer and walked to her car, which was parked about three-fourths of the way down a parking lot aisle. A car was parked next to the woman's vehicle and the two driver's doors were adjacent. The complainant said she put her groceries into the passenger's side of her vehicle and started to get in when she noticed someone in the neighboring vehicle.

She said the subject in the other car then turned on an interior light and exposed himself. The complainant said she walked to the back of her car and then toward the store. The subject then started his car and left the aisle heading north. The complainant said she did not know if the subject left the parking lot.

The complainant could only describe the suspect's car as a small, white vehicle. The suspect was described as a white male with short brown hair, brown eyes, no facial hair, no glasses, with a slim build and approximately 35-40 years old. She said he was wearing a red t-shirt, a dark colored jacket and a dark blue stocking hat.

LARCENY FROM AN AUTOMOBILE — A man told township police that his vehicle had been broken into while it was parked in a friend's driveway sometime between noon Jan. 6 and noon Jan. 7. A briefcase valued at $300 and two bank books were taken from the back seat of the vehicle, the man said. Police have no suspects in the case.

ASSAULT & BATTERY — Township police arrested a subject for assault and battery Jan. 8 at 9 p.m. on Swan Lake Drive. The case is open pending further investigation and a court appearance.

ESCAPEE REPORTED — Township police received a report of an escapee from Northville State Hospital, 41001 Seven Mile, Jan. 7 at 6:48 p.m. No further information was available from the department media log book.

ROPED NECKLACES — About $350 in cash and an undetermined amount of jewelry were reported stolen from an unoccupied house under renovation on Lexington Court, according to city police. The theft apparently occurred Jan. 14 between 1:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. The rear door was found open by the owners when they returned to the house that evening, though they did not realize a theft had taken place until more than an hour after their return. Fingerprints were found at the scene, and the case is still under investigation.

CEILING FAN LIFTED — A white four-blade ceiling fan was stolen between Jan. 7 and Jan. 10 from a building being renovated on Main Street, according to city police reports. The $60 fan was stolen from the second floor of the building.

TIRES BLOWN — A vandal or vandals punctured the drivers' side tires of a vehicle parked on north Center Street between 7 p.m. on Jan. 9 and 6:45 a.m. on Jan. 10, according to city police. The $116 in damage was apparently caused by an ice pick.

DRUNK DRIVER REPORTED — A South Lyon man was arrested Jan. 12 for operating under the influence, after a Northville City police officer observed him speeding east on Eight Mile Road at 9:16 p.m. While following the vehicle, the officer reported seeing him swerve into the west-bound lane, nearly striking another vehicle. After stopping the vehicle, the officer observed the driver climb out and nearly fall to the ground. The driver's speech was reportedly slurred and he was unable to perform several tests of equilibrium, including walking a straight line. His blood alcohol level was measured at .15 percent, over the state's limit of below .10 percent.

FENDER BENDERS — A driver west bound on Six Mile Road, a half mile west of Northville, was involved in an accident Jan. 5 around 7:30 a.m., according to Township police. The driver was traveling 50 miles per hour in a 45 m.p.h. zone and hit an icy patch on the road, lost control of the vehicle and struck a tree. The driver received a bump on the forehead and a citation for failure to drive with due care or caution.

City police reported an accident Jan. 13 at 9:20 a.m. at the intersection of Center Street and Dunlap Road. A Northville woman driving south on Center reportedly ran the red light, and was struck by a car heading west on Dunlap. The woman was cited for disregarding the traffic signal.

Northville citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to contact city police at 349-1234 or township police at 349-9400.

Police investigate possible drug sale at Novi Middle School

By SHEILA PHILLIPS

NOVI — Novi police confiscated a small quantity of suspected marijuana from lockers in the Novi Middle School during an isolated search on Jan. 12, according to police officials.

At least three, seventh and eighth grade students are under investigation in the incident. Novi Police Captain Richard Faulkner said the department is investigating the possibility of alleged drug sales in connection with the incident.

He said that a member of this group allegedly sold marijuana to another student.

However, only a small quantity of the apparent substance was actually confiscated from the students' lockers — about enough to roll a couple of cigarettes, according to the captain.

"But the quantity is not the issue, the youngsters should have never brought the stuff to school," Faulkner said. "It would make it worse."

The alleged marijuana will be sent to the laboratory for analysis. "But preliminary examination indicates that it is marijuana," he said.

No charges have been brought at this time. However, the matter is still under investigation, according to the captain.

He said the results of the investigation will determine whether any charges will be made.

School officials were the first to find out about the alleged drug deal, according to Middle School Principal Charles Nanas.

"We knew that something was going down for about a week," he said. "We got an anonymous tip, which is usually how we find out about these things — the kids don't want the drugs here any more than we do."

"As soon as we found out about it (the alleged drugs), we shared the information with the police," he added.

When asked if the middle school had a drug problem, Nanas said, "This is the first drug incident in the school this year."

Typically, he said, the middle school averages about one drug incident each year.

"Some people say that one incident is a major problem and others say that two or three incidents are a problem," Nanas said. "But if one incident is a problem, then I guess we have a problem."

He said that the schools will attempt to handle the matter internally by working with the kids and their parents in lieu of pursuing legal action.

Nanas said that the kids are all first time offenders and he will follow the district's outlined procedure for handling first time drug incidents. The procedure includes:

- Mandatory parent notification;
- A possible suspension of 5 to 10 days, depending on whether drug sales or trafficking are involved;

- Referral to the proper agencies; And
- A parent conference.

Early last week a sixth grade student — who just graduated from the Novi Meadows' Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program — was approached by an eighth grader, asking him to buy marijuana, according to police officials.

"He used one of the eight ways to say no outlined in DARE and called me," said Officer Robert Gatt, the DARE program instructor.

The department was already aware of possible drug activity at the middle school but the important thing was that the sixth grader said no and contacted a police officer, which is a credit to the DARE program, Gatt said.

"The DARE program is working right out of the box," he said. "It has already shown positive results."

"It just goes to show that the DARE program really works," Faulkner added.

Former hospital worker faces arraignment on drug charges

By THOMAS M. VARCIE

A Lyon Township couple, charged with storing and selling drugs at their home, has been bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court for arraignment.

Glen Leroy Hysell, 39, a 15-year public safety officer employed with the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital, and his wife, Ann Elizabeth Hysell, 36, face a Jan. 22 arraignment in front of Circuit Court Judge Gene Schnelz.

The couple was arraigned in district court Dec. 28 by 52nd District Court Judge Brian MacKenzie and charged with delivery of a controlled substance, possession of a controlled substance less than 25 grams, possession of a controlled substance — non-narcotics, and possession of a controlled personal substance.

Their son, Bobby Allen Hysell, 19, was also arraigned by Judge MacKenzie and charged with possession of marijuana. Further information is being withheld about his case, according to 52nd District Court officials.

The three Hysells were arrested during an 11 p.m. drug raid at their home on Sept. 28. Narcotics officials from Michigan State Police, the South Lyon and Milford police departments and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department participated in the bust.

During the raid, police seized various illegal narcotics, pharmaceutical drugs, a semi-automatic machine gun, cocaine grinders, weighing scales for drugs, drug records indicating previous sales and pickups, and other drug paraphernal, according to Trooper Tom Cremonette of the Michigan State Police Brighton Post.

Glen Hysell has been suspended without pay from his job at the Northville hospital, according to Dr. Walter Brown, director of the facility.

Walk softly and carry a big bill

By MIKE TYREE

Floorcraft Floor Carpeting, Inc. of Mount Clemens was recently awarded the carpeting contract at a pair of Northville Public Schools facilities.

The Board of Education authorized the firm to provide carpeting services at Cooke and Old Village Schools during their Jan. 8 meeting.

The cost of the contract is not to exceed $36,708.

Cooke and Old Village are the last schools to receive new carpeting under the guidelines of the 1989 bond issue approved by school district voters in October.

Carpet bids were approved at the Nov. 13, 1989 board meeting for Moraine, Silver Springs, Winchester and Meads Mill schools.

Northville High School and American were recarpeted recently and do not need additional work, according to school officials.

Dr. Burton Knighton, assistant superintendent for Administrative Services, said Floorcraft was the low bidder for each of the schools needing recarpeting. He said the firm has been awarded all the district's carpeting contracts over the last few years and "has done creditable work for us on their installations."

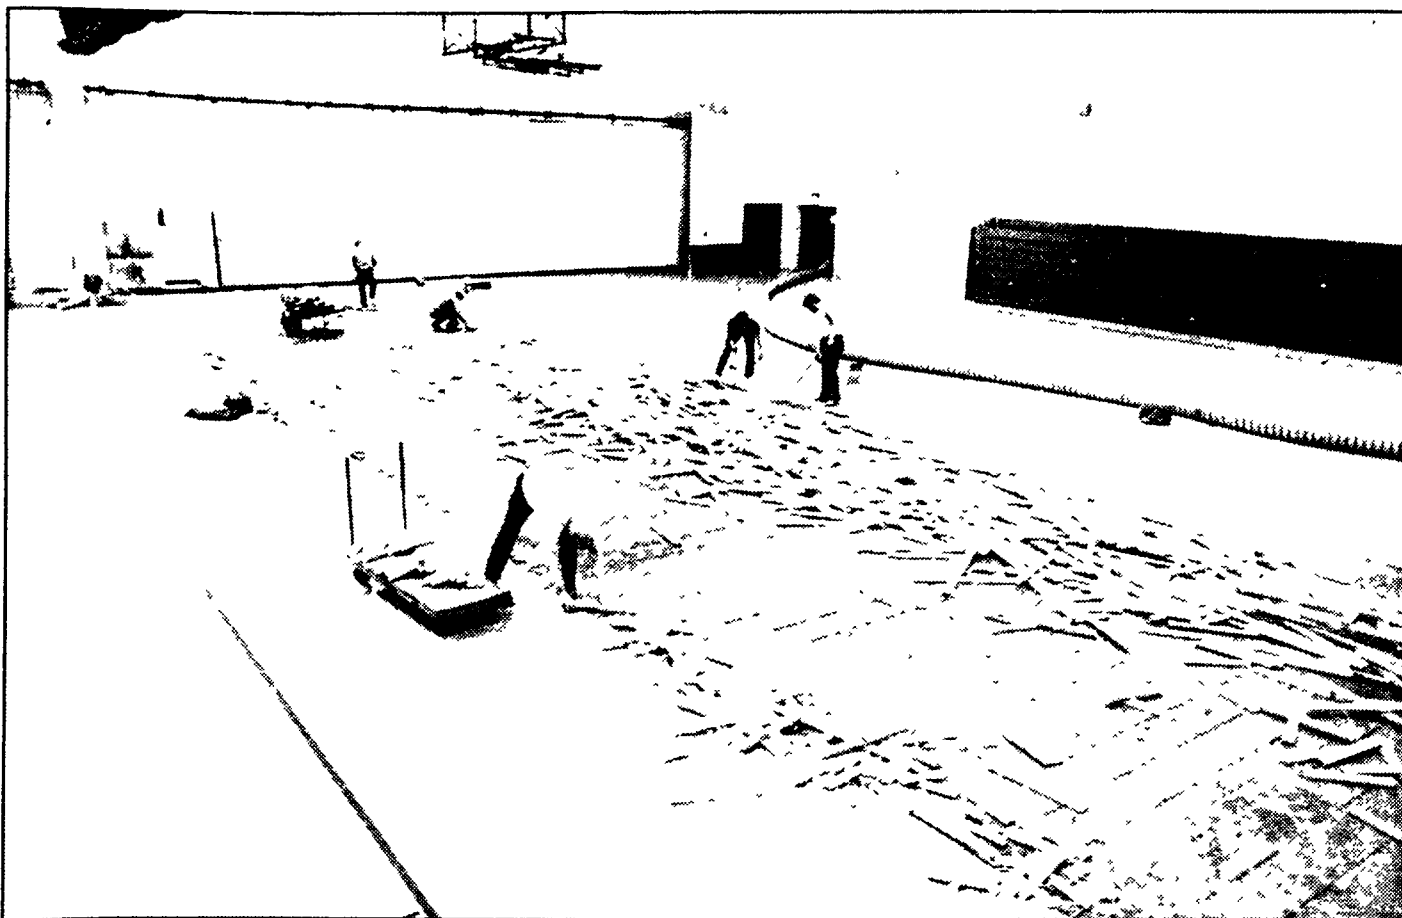

Cooke School will receive complete carpeting and recarpeting, and Old Village School will receive recarpeting where needed.

Drug use discussed

Friends and neighbors who comprise the membership of Northville Action Council, (NAC) will be hosts to Susan Pearce of Grosse Pointe when she appears as guest speaker at 7 p.m. Thursday evening, Jan. 18, in the school board conference room, room 302 of Old Village School. Pearce is the Student Assistance Coordinator for the Grosse Pointe School District.

The NAC is always interested in learning how other communities are responding to the spread of drug use and Pearce will outline recent and positive anti-drug programs in Grosse Pointe.

Everyone is welcome to join Northville neighbors and friends to hear Susan Pearce, and then to enjoy refreshments after the NAC meeting.

All wet

A water pipe burst in the ceiling of Northville High School on Christmas Eve. The break, near the northwest entrance to the school, sent water down the wall where it poured out of a pay phone and onto the floor of the entranceway. The water soaked through to the wood gym floor below causing damage. Above, workers remove the flooring to be replaced. NHS Principal David Bolitho said the extent of the damage to the floor has not been assessed, but that the school's insurance will cover it. In the meantime some athletic events are affected by the lack of floor space.

The reunion has been a happy one for left, Doris Lewis, and her newly found daughter Karin Vastine.

Together again

A mother and daughter reunion

By BRENDA DOOLEY

For the first time in 32 years Doris Lewis can look into a mirror and stop wondering if someone, somewhere shares her facial features.

And finally Karin Vastine has completed the search for a vital, missing piece of her self-identity.

A long, painful separation recently ended for Lewis and Vastine — mother and daughter — who were reunited this weekend (Jan. 12-14) in a cozy, townhouse in Northville.

The ordeal began on May 25, 1957 when Lewis gave her daughter up for adoption, beginning what she calls "the longest pregnancy in history" because she wasn't able to hold her daughter or see her after she was born.

Lewis said she decided to give her daughter up because the pregnancy was the result of a rape and she didn't feel mentally strong enough to raise the child.

"I never felt like I did the wrong thing," Lewis said.

But she never stopped thinking about her daughter.

"I've always wanted her to find me," Lewis said. "I thought about looking for her but I didn't want to mess up her life in case she didn't know she was adopted."

Ironically, for most of her life,

Vastine lived within 10 to 15 minutes of various members in the Lewis family — first in Madison Heights, then Ferndale. But she had no idea who her mother was. Eventually she moved to Houston, where she decided to begin to search for her roots.

Vastine said curiosity prompted her to start looking for her mother. "I wanted to know who I looked like," Vastine said. "No I looked like you."

"Adoption was never an issue in my family," Vastine said. "My adoptive parents didn't hide it from us — I had a brother who was adopted too."

Vastine contacted an international group known as Adoptees Liberty Movement Association or ALMA in July 1989. She was able to obtain copies of her adoption papers — the biggest hurdle in the process — and "from there it was easy."

"There are so many books to help people who are looking for their natural parents," Vastine said. "But you have to be emotionally ready because you don't know what you're going to find. I was very lucky."

After she had learned the name of her mother, Vastine called information and asked for the phone number of a Jerold Lewis in Northville. Because Jerold is such a unique spelling, she said tracking down a phone number wasn't as hard as it could have been.

On Sept. 18, 1989, Lewis received a phone call from Vastine, who was calling from her home in Houston.

"I always wondered how I'd react," Lewis said, referring to her reaction to her daughter's phone call. "I screamed and cried and we talked for two hours."

"And they haven't stopped," added Jerold, Lewis's husband.

"It's fantastic," Jerold said about the reunion. "You can't put words to it. I'm glad it came about — finally."

"For all these years I couldn't talk about — I couldn't tell people what had happened because you just didn't talk about these things in the '50s," Lewis said. Finally she was able to share her story with her children, Greg, 25, and Andrea, 20.

"The kids were happy to know they have an older sister," Lewis said. "It's still unbelievable."

Vastine agreed.

"It's only been four months since we've known each other ... it still has to sink in ... We're so much alike it's scary," she said.

Both are planning future visits — Lewis expects to travel to Houston in February.

"We've got all these years to make up for. It's like a dream come true."

"A wonderful thing came from a bad situation," Lewis said.

Schools review conflict policy

By MIKE TYREE

Members of the Northville Public Schools Board of Education reviewed a proposed conflict of interest policy at their Jan. 8 meeting.

Dr. Len Rezmierski, executive director of Special Education Services, told the board that the newly drafted proposal is "a more descriptive yet inclusive" and "much more expansive" plan than had been reviewed by the board's policy subcommittee in December.

According to the proposed policy, members of the Board of Education "should avoid all situations where prejudice, bias or opportunity for personal gain could influence their decisions. Board members shall avoid situations which suggest favoritism or personal gain as a motivating force in their conduct. The objectives of this conflict of interest policy are to maintain an impartial administration of the business of the School District and to maintain public confidence in the Board of Education and the Northville Public Schools."

In addition, the policy states that "no member of the Board of Education shall engage in or be a party to any of the following activities:

- Disclose or release confidential information, not otherwise available to members of the general public, in advance of the time prescribed for the release; provided, however, that this provision shall not prevent a Board of Education member from divulging or releasing confidential information regarding suspected violations of law.

Cub Scout Ricky Ryan, 9, of Pack 712, winds up his shuttle for the Pack's Space Derby at Silver Springs Elementary School last week. The derby, run in much the same way the Cub Scout Pinewood Derby is run, used spaceships instead. The boys made the spaceships and raced them along strings to determine whose was the most "aerodynamically" sound.

Northville Schools to join lobbying group

By MIKE TYREE

The Northville Public Schools Board of Education authorized Superintendent Dr. George Bell to apply for membership in the Michigan Out-of-Formula District Association (MOFDA) during its Jan. 8 meeting.

The move paves the way for Northville schools to join approximately 120 fellow state out-of-formula districts under the lobbying umbrella of the MOFDA.

Northville is one of 160 of the state's nearly 500 school districts that are classified as out-of-formula, Bell said.

Designation as an out-of-formula school comes from the amount of financial resources available to an individual district, and Bell said in-formula schools are acting more aggressively with attempts to secure state funding.

"I have resisted joining (MOFDA) because of the divisiveness it causes (between districts)," he said. "The in-formula schools are becoming more militant in trying to recapture F.I.C.A. (social security) and retirement funds."

"The lobbyist for out-of-formula strictly protects schools like Northville."

Bell said Governor James Blanchard "had $1.25 million open for grabs" from the Northville Public Schools with his plan to recapture social security and retirement funds. The recaptured funds would be dispersed to in-formula districts, he said.

Bell said the failed November education ballot proposals highlighted the need for cooperation by out-of-formula schools.

"Very frankly, the quality of education here could be hampered if they succeed (in recapture efforts)," he said.

"Depending upon the percentage which might be subject to recapture, the impact on Northville Public Schools could be anywhere from serious to disastrous," he added.

In a letter to Bell, Tom Mateer, chairperson of the MOFDA, said the time had come to "get even more vocal about the state commitment of dollars for K-12 education."

"Shifting monies between in- and out-of-formula districts does not solve the problem of inadequate funding for our children's education," he wrote.

The Board of Education unanimously approved the membership application and the half-year dues fee of $834.

Interest high in Cady development

By STEPHEN KELLMAN

While the city considers sending out requests for proposals to develop the portion of Cady Street known as Cady Corridor, area developers continue sending their own Cady Street proposals to city hall.

The latest two proposals call for development of the northeast and southeast corner of Cady Street and Center Street. Singh Development Company of Birmingham, builders of the MainCentre project, have proposed a 23,605-square-foot retail and office building opposite MainCentre, to be called CadyCentre.

The four-story building, valued at $860,000, would include space for retail stores on the first floor and professional offices above. Because the building would be located within the city's historic district, the proposal will be reviewed by the historic district commission as well as the planning commission.

Another proposal, by Quality Appraisal Services of Northville, calls for alteration of an existing building on the southeast corner of Cady and Center, for development of a 1,500-square-foot office building. The building would house a real estate office on the first floor and a one-bedroom apartment above. The building's existing floor area would not be enlarged under the proposal.

On the opposite side of the Cady Corridor, the Tri-County Title Agency has proposed demolishing the existing building on their two lots at the northwest corner of Cady and Griswold, and building a much larger structure on the site. The owners sought to acquire city-owned property north of their lot in order to build the larger structure.

The building would have below-ground parking for 36 cars, and provide about 7,000 square feet of office space on two floors above. About 3,000 square feet would be used by Tri-County Title, with the remainder available for lease as office space.

Tri-County Title President Charles Parrott proposed the redevelopment at the Oct. 23 city council meeting, but the proposal was postponed due to the ongoing Cady Corridor study.

King holiday celebration modest in schools

By MIKE TYREE

Although federal offices and many private companies closed their doors Monday in observance of the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday, it was business as usual at Northville Public Schools.

Superintendent Dr. George Bell said no district-wide programs were planned to commemorate the birthday of the slain civil rights leader.

"The schools make P.A. announcements to make sure the students are aware of the holiday," he said. "But it's mainly up to the individual teachers to decide how they want to handle the day."

Bell said King's role in the civil rights movement of the 1950s and 1960s is a topic that receives considerable attention in the district's secondary schools.

"There are special activities in some classes," he said. "It's up to the discretion of the teachers, for the most part."

Bell said the schools in the district remained open because students are required to receive 180 days of classroom instruction.

"The schedules have been set for a long time," he said. "We've got to get in 180 days of instruction and we don't take off every holiday."

Township nixes amended plan

By MIKE TYREE

The Northville Township Board of Trustees rejected a request Jan. 11 to amend a planned residential unit development (PRUD) on a Haggerty Road site south of the Country Club Village development.

Developer Lawrence Garon asked the board to approve changes in the Woodside Village site plan so that final site plan approval could proceed on the proposed 70-acre PRUD site.

Garon told the board that his firm, Real Estate Interests, Inc., had made changes in a site plan originally presented to the township Planning Commission in April 1988.

Garon said the changes, which included preserving additional woodlands and wetlands areas on the site, would benefit both the township and the developer.

"We think our new plan is improved and better," Garon said. "The new plan would save approximately 27 acres (of open space) as opposed to 11-13 in the original."

The planning commission ruled Dec. 12, 1989, that the Woodside Village site plan did not substantially conform to the plan that planners approved in July 1988.

Garon asked the board to rule that the site plan did conform to the previous plan and he provided drawings of both plans for the board to compare.

But Trustee Richard Allen, who sits on both the board and planning commission, told Garon the new site plan was incomplete, undefined, and unacceptable in its present form.

"The planning commission has serious concerns that this property is qualified for a PRUD," he said. "(The plan) did not substantially comply with the approved site plan."

Garon did not agree. "We were totally taken by surprise (by the planning commission's decision)," he said. "We thought we were in substantial compliance."

— Lawrence Garon

Carol Maise, township planning and zoning administrator, told Garon that the best step would be to go before the planning commission at the Jan. 30 meeting with a revised site plan. She said a public hearing could be scheduled in February and barring difficulty, a review by the board could occur in March.

She said though Garon's plan was altered and considered substantially different by the planning commission, the proposal could be held up as little as one month, if the developer correctly followed the township's planning guidelines.

Garon said the planner's decision constituted "a hardship" and his firm would be held up at least three to four months if the board did not rule in his favor.

But the board refused to go along with Garon.

"We don't second guess our planning commission," said Trustee James Nowka. "You have to have faith that the system works."

"I have to support the planning commission."

The board voted 7-0 to reject the amendment request.

Maise later reiterated her statement that the action of the board and planning commission would not severely hamper the Woodside Village development.

"It's very feasible that they could submit a phasing final site plan," she said. "It's going to end up putting them a month behind."

Whiz Kids

Meads Mill students master knowledge game

By MIKE TYREE

Imagine two groups of middle school students — 24 in all — sitting around and staring into a video monitor.

The typical adult might react with scorn. "They're wasting away with MTV and Nintendo and 21 Jump Street," the adult in you might grumble. "Back in my day..."

But hold on folks. The kids at Meads Mill Middle School huddle around computers and engage in rough and tumble academic competition with 1,100 other schools across the nation.

And (gasp!) they're having fun, too.

Two dozen Meads Mill students took part in the National Knowledge Master Open Dec. 2, a computerized trivia competition that ranks schools on the students' ability to quickly and accurately answer 200 questions from all curricular areas, according to academic coach Robert Stover.

"It's fun, they really like it," Stover said recently. "Some of the kids aren't good at sports and they can feel like a part of a team by using their brain."

The Meads Mill kids are using their heads well, if test scores are any indication.

Stover said that this year's Knowledge Master squad ranked third out of 50 participating state schools and 105th out of the 1,100 national schools.

A sampling of the questions that faced the students reads like some twisted entrance exam at an obscure liberal arts school.

"What is the volume of a cube that measures seven feet on a side? A — 343 cubic feet, B — 49 cubic feet, C — 28 cubic feet, D — 210 cubic feet, E — 560 cubic feet; and "Which of these Italian musical terms means very loud?" A — Fortissimo, B — Pizzicato, C — Diminuendo, D — Adagio, E — Staccato.

Who really cares about such things? The kids do, that's for sure.

"It's cool. It helps you develop teamwork," said Meads Mill Knowledge Master captain Nate Connell. "You can't go out and get everything right yourself. Everyone helps out."

Connell, an eighth grade student, said each question appears on the monitor for 60 seconds, during which time the students try to make a quick decision on the correct answer. He said certain signals are used to let teammates know if a student is sure of an answer and if no one is sure of an answer after 30 seconds, a quick poll is taken to determine which answer to choose.

Connell said individual students concentrate on specific areas — math, geography, science, etc., before the competition, and work together to achieve the best results during the actual event.

And that teamwork is gratifying, Connell said.

"It gives you a chance, by yourself and as a group, to show your skills," he said. "You pick up a lot of information you never knew before."

Stover said students are selected to be on the Knowledge Master team through a system similar to athletic tryouts. He said students are given tests to check their skills and the team often is made up of the academic cream of the crop at the school.

"There is a lot of pride involved with getting on the team," he said. "That's what we're trying to instill, that academic pride."

"These kids really get into the excitement of the competition."

City to sell bonds for improvements

By STEVE KELLMAN

Northville city officials are planning to sell about $6 million in bonds to cover several upcoming expenses, including water main improvements, sidewalk and road repairs, and the MainCentre parking deck.

Except for the parking deck, the projects may be lumped together to sell as one special assessment bond and one general obligation bond. The reason for combining the bonds, as City Manager Steven Walters explained in a memo to the council, is "because the larger combined issues will cost less in legal fees and will receive more attention in the bond market, hopefully resulting in a more favorable interest rate."

Many of the amounts listed are larger than the actual estimates because of uncertainty over the amounts that will ultimately be charged to special assessment districts. That amount may be changed when the bonds come before their public hearings, which should be held sometime in February according to Walters. While the amount of a bond proposal as stated in a notice of intent can be reduced, it cannot be increased.

The proposed $670,000 in special assessment bonds includes $400,000 in enlargements to the water mains from the MainCentre project on Cady and Wing streets to Fairbrook and Center streets (see related story), $70,000 for the city's sidewalk repair program, and $200,000 for parking lot reconstruction in the downtown area.

The proposed $2.2 million in general obligation bonds includes $100,000 in MainCentre water main enlargements, $300,000 in enlargements to the water mains from East Main and Griswold streets to Hutton Street north of Dunlap, $90,000 for the city's sidewalk repair program, $300,000 for the Wayne County sewer program, and $1,500,000 for the city's road repair program.

A further $1,025,000 in special assessments and $3 million in general obligation bonds for the MainCentre parking deck are also included in the proposed bonds.

While cost of the parking deck has been estimated at $3,600,000, Walters wrote, the proposed notice of intent reflects a larger amount to allow for the possibility that the excess parking spaces in the deck may be sold to other businesses by the time the bonds are issued, or held by the city for future sale.

The sidewalk bonds are for last year's sidewalk repair program, and the amount of the special assessment bond may drop as residents continue to pay their assessed costs of the program. "Some people are paying them all off," Walters said, "so the assessed part may be a little lower."

The sewer bonds portion is for the city's participation in Phase II of the North Huron Valley sewer repair program.

The road repair costs cover an additional $1.5 million on road repairs which were completed in the last several years. When the original $3 million bond issue was voted, it was intended mainly for repaving of the city's roads. Since then, several roads including Baseline Road and West Main Street have been almost completely rebuilt. "Brand new streets were built, with new storm sewers, curbs, gutters, the whole works," Walters said.

The $1.5 million represents the additional road work that was done, said Walters. "When we got all done, the price tag was that much bigger."

The parking lot reconstruction includes funds to rebuild the city parking lots behind the Marquis Theater on Main Street and the old Schraders building on Center Street. Walters estimated the cost of each of those projects at $60,000 to $80,000.

Reconstruction of the theater lot should add about 45 parking spaces, he said. Reconfiguring the Schraders lot could add up to 56 spaces, he added, depending on the final development proposal from the Long Development Company to build on their Center Street lot opposite the MAGS building.

Selling bonds requires a public notice of intent at least 45 days before selling the bonds. The city council is expected to review the latest bond proposal at its Monday night meeting.

Water main woes

By STEVE KELLMAN

Northville city faces more than $500,000 in water main improvements, primarily to provide adequate water pressure for the MainCentre project, St. Lawrence Condominiums and Northville Downs.

An estimated $400,000 in special assessment bonds and an equal amount in general obligation bonds have been proposed to provide for enlargement of the water main from the MainCentre project along Cady and Wing streets to Fairbrook Street, and from there to Center Street. The expansion of water mains from the corner of East Main and Griswold streets to Hutton Street north of Dunlap will also be funded by the bonds.

The bonds will also allow the replacement of old fire hydrants throughout the city.

The suggested bond amounts are larger than the construction costs to allow for changes to the special assessment amounts. The special assessment costs will likely be passed on to the MainCentre project, parking deck, St. Lawrence Condominiums, and Northville Downs for the increased water pressure required by those facilities.

The water main improvements are among an estimated $6 million in bonds the city is planning to sell in February.

Young Republicans seek new members

Christopher Ward, chairperson of the Wayne County Teen Age Republicans and secretary of the Michigan Federation of Teen Age Republicans, has announced plans to conduct a county-wide membership drive.

Teen Age Republicans (TARs) represent the high school age division of the Republican Party and is organized throughout the United States.

Students interested in the program are invited to a meeting at the Northville City Council Chambers on Saturday, Feb. 3 at noon. The council chambers are located in the Northville City Administrative offices, above the Northville Public Library on Main Street. Prospective members also write: Wayne TARs, 5080 Pleasant Valley Rd., Brighton, MI 48116.

Plans are being made to include new members in National TARs and State TARs conferences in the summer. Among activities planned for the national conference are congressional and White House receptions.

Program for those death leaves

Record/CHRIS BOYD

John Sassaman, owner of Ross B. Northrop & Son

By BRENDA DOOLEY

The void can be devastating and bewildering, leaving widows, widowers and survivors of death with an inescapable emptiness.

John B. Sassaman, owner of Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home, wants to help these survivors of death. In conjunction with Psychotherapy and Counseling Services, Inc. of Northville, Sassaman is coordinating a special grief counseling program entitled "New Perspectives."

"When I first bought the funeral home I didn't have time to offer such the classes include: "Phases of Grief," "Adjustments and Journal Keeping," "Holidays and Anniversaries," and legal help.

Focus will be given to various subjects, including habits, anniversaries, belongings, money management, feelings and changing relationships.

"If we can't help someone, we'll find resources to direct them to," Sassaman said. "There are all kinds of support groups out there."

Sassaman is also compiling a library of informative books and videotapes on various subjects to help people deal with death. The books and tapes will be available at the Northville funeral home for the public to borrow.

"New Perspectives" isn't an entirely new concept for Sassaman. Before buying the Ross B. Northrop and Son funeral homes in Northville and Redford in July 1986, he was instrumental in starting a grief program at Schrader Funeral Home in Plymouth, where he was employed. The program was an off-shoot of the WISER (Widowed In Service) program taught at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

However, "New Perspectives" is the first program Sassaman has launched in the Northville community. It is part of a three-phase goal he has developed for the local funeral home.

First, Sassaman said he wanted the funeral home to fill a "pre-need" by being available to people who had questions before the need for his services arose. Next, he wanted to focus on the "at-need" stage, by being there for people when they needed the funeral home. Both of those goals have been achieved.

The third phase of his goal is providing "after care," which is where "New Perspectives" fits in.

Eventually, the grief program will be offered on an ongoing basis to serve people in all stages of their grief.

"New Perspectives" is open to the community. Sassaman asks that those planning to attend the program call the funeral home at 348-1233.

a program," Sassaman said. "Now I want to offer it... I'd like to see people benefit from the program."

"Personally, everyone who loses someone goes through different phases of grief. We're going to help them understand those phases," he added.

The program includes five classes, on Jan. 22, Feb. 5, Feb. 19, March 5 and March 19. The classes run from 7 to 8 p.m. at the funeral home, at 19091 Northville Rd., at Seven Mile Road, in Northville.

Each session will include speakers from the metropolitan Detroit area. Authorities from both the mental health and legal fields also will be addressing the group. Topics slated for

Hawthorn director to retire

By STEVE KELLMAN

Dr. Harold J. Wright, M.D., director of the Hawthorn Center for emotionally-disturbed children, announced that he will retire from the post at the end of the month. Wright, a Northville Township resident, has worked at the center since its inception in 1956, and has been director since 1971.

A new acting director, Howard Pierce of East Lansing, was named to fill the post until a full-time director is found.

The Hawthorn Center is a nationally-known state-funded treatment center for emotionally-disturbed children, with a residential program for more than 100 children. Hawthorn also operates a large day treatment and outpatient services program for children and adolescents.

Wright, who holds a doctorate degree from the University of Michigan, has been a member of the Hawthorn Center staff since spending the last year of his residency program at the center. He had transferred from the University Hospital in Ann Arbor.

He followed Dr. Ralph Rabinovitch, professor of child psychiatry at the University, who founded the center. "I came with him at that time and planned to spend a year here," Wright recalled. "But my plans changed."

After completing his residency, Wright stayed on at Hawthorn as a staff psychiatrist. He recalled seeing "enormous change" at the center during his tenure. "It's grown enormously over the last 33 years," he said.

While the center had an initial inpatient capacity of 50 youth, that number grew to a high of 162 before state fiscal cuts in the early 1980s resulted in a cut in the center's budget.

The center presently has facilities for 118 residential patients.

Hawthorn also offers extensive outpatient services. "We've seen just about 28,000 children at the center over the years," Wright said. A day school that originally taught 12 children has grown in enrollment to 75, he added.

Several new programs have been instituted under Wright's directorship. A program for emotionally-impaired deaf children is the only one of its kind in the state, and one of the few in the country. "We have staff who are specially trained to communicate with deaf children through signing," Wright added.

The Hawthorn Center also instituted an early intervention program within the last 10 years, which provides evaluation and intervention services for preschool children to identify possible mental health problems before they become severe.

Another program, in cooperation with the Wayne County Circuit Court, offers counseling to children involved in difficult divorce cases and custody battles. The demand for both programs has continued to grow. "We can't keep up with the number of referrals to either of them," Wright said.

The Hawthorn Center also offers extensive training programs, including the one under which Wright originally began working at the center. Medical students from the University of Michigan and Wayne State University can complete their residencies at the center, as can psychiatric students, social workers, special education teachers and nurses. Wright described the program as "somewhat unusual for a state-sponsored agency."

Wright, 63, is retiring to continue a small private practice, and work as a consultant for the Department of Mental Health (DMH) and other agencies. A certified pediatrician, Wright is also certified in adult and child psychiatry.

Pierce, 52, holds a degree in rehabilitation counseling from Michigan State. A veteran administrator, Pierce joined the DMH in 1977 after serving as a rehabilitation specialist with the Michigan Department of Education for six years.

Pierce served in the Southeast Regional Office of the DMH from 1977 to 1982, and then joined the central staff of the bureau of children's hospitals. Pierce was acting director for the Pheasant Ridge Center in Kalamazoo in 1984, and for the Traverse City Regional Psychiatric Hospital in 1986. He is currently overseeing the adult psychiatric programs for the DMH bureau of psychiatric hospitals.

Pierce will work with Dr. Wright until Wright's departure at the end of the month.

School reopening prompts concerns

He said Novi Public Schools use that system but he said it was not likely that Northville schools would take the same route. He cited busing as one of the major barriers to the split grade format.

"Our inclination is to say six, seven, and eight is the best unit to work with," he said.

Members of the community also wanted assurances that programs and instruction at Cooke would be as good as at Meads Mill, Bell said.

He said some parents wanted to avoid creating rivalries between the two schools and others suggested the schools share an assistant principal.

A popular theme of attending parents was the idea that their seventh grade students now attending Meads Mill be allowed to stay through the eighth grade.

Some parents said it would be disruptive to uproot children from their friends and peers. Several in the audience recommended that eighth graders be allowed to stay at Meads Mill or at least make their own decision about which school they would attend during their eighth grade year.

"My child will be very disappointed if they have to leave Meads Mill," one parent said. "I want this year's seventh graders to have the opportunity to stay at Meads Mill if they choose."

Other parents wondered about the fate of specific programs.

Stacy Fischer asked how the district would identify and implement gifted program strategies after the students had been divided into two schools.

She suggested that the district provide "adequate funding for gifted children at both schools."

Martha Nield questioned the makeup of the athletic programs of the two schools.

"I think for the first couple of years the (school teams) should be combined," she said. "It would help these kids not to compete against each other right away."

Bell said the school district will ask teachers to volunteer to staff Cooke.

"We'll be taking half the kids from Meads Mill and we'll take half the staff," he said.

Bell said if enough volunteers did not come forward to meet staffing requirements at Cooke, others would be assigned to the school. He also said some new middle school teachers may be hired.

Bell said 69 applications for the position of principal at Cooke had been received and that the vacancy would be filled in February.

"The choice will go a long way to determining how staffing at the school is set up," he said.

Township selects library architect

Township

Her gift was prefaced by several stipulations — including one that stated the library must be at least 44,800 square feet.

The Kamp-DiComo fee represents six percent of the projected $4,480,000 cost — at an estimated $100 per square foot — to build the library.

DiComo said the $268,800 fee will be broken down into several phases. He said 15 percent of the cost would go toward schematic design, 20 percent to design development, 40 percent for working design, five percent for bidding and negotiations, and 20 percent during the construction phase.

The township, which will hold a May 1, 1990 election to secure funds for the library project, is responsible for the first two phases of the Kamp-DiComo contract, regardless of the outcome of the election.

Those two stages, schematic design and design development, will cost the township approximately $94,000.

DiComo said the firm will take special pride and care with the library architecture plans.

"This is my community," DiComo said. "We'll be working on the design constantly (and) we'll attend all the public hearings."

With the exception of Allen, the board members applauded the selection of DiComo.

"I'm quite satisfied," said Trustee James Nowka. "DiComo is the person I would feel most comfortable with."

"He'll probably drive past that corner on his way to work for the next 30 years," he added. "I'm sure he'll want to make sure (it's well done)."

Treasurer Betty Lennox added her support for DiComo.

"I have worked with Mr. DiComo through two major projects," she said. "I've never had any problems with him."

But Allen said he was not satisfied with the bidding process.

"I have a problem with this," he said. "I don't think we've done deep enough negotiations."

Allen asked Township Manager Richard Henningsen how much effort was made to contact other architects.

Henningsen said he had received letters from firms in Novi and Canton and that both firms advertised rates higher than Kamp-DiComo.

He also said a firm from Ann Arbor had tendered an offer with an eight percent fee — a full two percent higher than Kamp-DiComo.

"Nobody really understands how hard it is to stop smoking."

We do.

And we can help you find a way. Call us.

THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE ORDAINS:

Section 1. That Sections 61.010 and 61.210 of Chapter 61 are hereby amended, and Sections 61.600, 61.610, 61.620, 61.630, 61.640, 61.650, 61.660, 61.670, 61.680, 61.690, 61.700, 61.710 and 61.720 are hereby added to Chapter 61 of the Compiled Ordinances to read as follows:

61.010 Definitions. This section adds definitions relevant to establishing an industrial pretreatment program, and amends certain relevant existing definitions. In particular, "Control authority" is defined as an entity designated by Michigan to administer industrial pretreatment programs; the "Director" is the head of a Control Authority; an "indirect discharge" is from an "industrial user" who discharges "industrial waste", which may or may not have "pretreatment requirements", into a sewer which discharges to a "Publicly owned treatment works" or "POTW". "Significant users" are defined as certain industrial users who discharge either large quantities or wastewater with special problems, such as heavy metals. In addition, "infiltration" and "inflow" are defined.

61.210 Prohibitions. (p. 10) This section is amended to make it unlawful to introduce new inflow sources to the separate sanitary sewer system in the Township; to construct combined sewers in the Township; and for any new building sanitary wastewater connection to contain footing drain and/or roof leader wastewater contributions.

SUBCHAPTER E-INDUSTRIAL WASTEWATER

61.600 Discharge Prohibitions. (p. 10) This section provides no user shall contribute to a POTW directly or indirectly, any pollutant or wastewater which will cause interference or pass-through. Industrial users shall not contribute listed substances to a POTW. These are generally substances, whether liquid, solid, or gaseous, which may injure people, obstruct the sewers, interfere with operation of a treatment plant, pass through the plant untreated, or pollute the plant's sludges. Industrial user are further prohibited from discharging wastewater containing specific compatible and non-compatible pollutants in excess of stated limitations. The director may grant a variance from these in accordance with rules adopted by the Control Authority.

National Categorical Pretreatment Standards and Requirements shall be met by affected dischargers provided that a more stringent standard applicable under this ordinance, state law, or regulation shall be controlling. Should the Control Authority obtain authorization for, and implement, a removal credit program, applications will be received for removal credits.

No user shall dilute a discharge to substitute for adequate treatment to achieve compliance. Unloading liquid or solid waste from hauling vehicles directly into a POTW is prohibited unless a permit has been received from a Control Authority for unloading such waste. Each industrial user shall provide protection from accidental discharge of substances regulated or prohibited by this ordinance, and shall provide documentation of same to the Control Authority. Industrial users are required to immediately notify the Control Authority of a discharge into a POTW which appears to be more than twice the allowable concentration, and promptly submit a report describing the cause of the discharge and the measures to be taken to prevent recurrences. Such notification shall not relieve the industrial user of liability for damage from such discharge, but shall not be used against any individual in any criminal case, except a prosecution for perjury or for giving a false statement. Notice must be prominently posted advising a user's employees whom to contact if an actual or potential excessive or prohibited discharge occurs.

The Township reserved the right to establish different or more stringent limitations or requirements on discharges to a POTW.

61.610 Fees (p. 16) This section provides for the recovery of costs from industrial users of a POTW through charges and fees, which may include fees to cover the costs of the Control Authority's industrial waste control and pretreatment programs; user fees based on volume and types of waste; and other necessary fees related to the requirements of this ordinance.

61.620 Wastewater Discharge Permits (p. 16) This section provides it is unlawful for significant users to discharge into the POTW without a wastewater discharge permit from the Control Authority except as authorized by the Control Authority or in accordance with the provisions of this ordinance.

All significant users must apply for a wastewater discharge permit, if required, before connecting to the sewers. Existing significant users, and existing industrial users who become significant users must also apply for a wastewater discharge permit within certain specified periods of time.

The application must include certain information such as: name, location name of the authorized representative of the industrial user; wastewater constituents and characteristics for specific parameters; data and information regarding plant processes, wastewater, and the pollutants associated with each process; drawings of sewer connections and sampling manholes, and a flow schematic; spill containment information; and detail on pretreatment facilities and their operation.

After receiving an adequate application, the Control Authority shall determine if a discharge permit is required, and, if so, issue a proposed permit, which may contain certain terms and conditions. The user may contest terms and conditions of a proposed permit.

Permits will be valid for periods from one to five years. Existing permittees shall apply for permit reissuance a minimum of ninety (90) days prior to permit expiration. Permits may be modified as conditions change, whether in regulations or within the user's facilities.

Wastewater Discharge permits cannot be assigned without the written approval of the Control Authority.

Industrial users who have small maximum Daily Discharges of specified amounts of listed pollutants may be exempted from limitations set forth in this ordinance for each such pollutant, but must comply with specified poundage limitations.

61.630 Monitoring Facilities (p. 26) This section requires significant industrial users to maintain sampling structures, such as manholes, for use by the Control Authority in determining compliance.

61.640 Inspection, Sampling and Recordkeeping (p. 27) This section requires the Control Authority to have ready access to the industrial user's premises and records for compliance monitoring. Inspection activities shall be accomplished in a reasonable manner. Industrial users shall maintain records of all information from monitoring activities required by this ordinance or by 40 CFR 403.12(n).

61.650 Confidential Information (p. 28) This section provides that information obtained from an industrial customer will be available to the general public unless the customer specifically requests confidentiality and demonstrates such information constitutes trade secrets of the customer. Trade secrets will not be available to the public, but will be available to governmental agencies in many circumstances. Wastewater constituents will not be recognized as trade secrets.

61.660 Statutes, Laws and Regulations. This section states that unless otherwise provided, any reference to a non-Township document or law will apply only to such document or law as existed on the effective date of this Ordinance.

61.670 Enforcement. This section establishes how the Control Authority will enforce the Ordinance. It is a violation of the ordinance for any industrial user to: misrepresent, refuse access for compliance monitoring, fail to comply with a discharge permit, fail to comply with this ordinance except where an industrial user acts according to a compliance schedule in the user's discharge permit. An upset of a pretreatment process is an affirmative defense if pled properly; the user must show steps being taken to prevent recurrence. The Control Authority may suspend wastewater service or a permit where necessary to stop or prevent certain hazards.

Except in the case of hazards, the Control Authority shall initiate an enforcement action by written notice stating the nature of the violation. The Township shall be notified by the Control Authority of any enforcement activity taken within its boundaries.

When the director has reasonable believes violations are occurring, the director may, except in extreme cases, attempt to have the user eliminate or remedy such violation by conferences, show cause notices and hearings, or cooperation. Procedures and conditions are established for such efforts.

After a show cause hearing, an order may be issued to the industrial user by the Control Authority directing compliance, pretreatment, reports, Control of Discharge quantities; payment of costs for inspection, monitoring, and administration of the industrial user's activities by the Control Authority during compliance efforts, and any other appropriate orders, including, but not limited to, termination of sewer or wastewater treatment services.

A list, summarizing certain enforcement actions taken against industrial users, must be annually published by the Control Authority in a daily newspaper.

Violation of this ordinance is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not to exceed five hundred ($500.00) Dollars for each violation per day or by imprisonment for not more than ninety (90) days or by both. Prosecution shall be through the Township. Discharge violations relating to this ordinance may be enjoined in Circuit Court or other appropriate court. The Control Authority (or the Township) may seek additional relief, and may recover attorney fees, court costs, court reporters fees, and other unusual expense related to enforcement activities or litigation against a violator.

61.680 Review and Appeal (p. 35) This section provides the procedures for reconsideration and appeal to the Control Authority regarding this ordinance, to be used if informal methods have not worked. Generally, this involves a written request for a hearing, a hearing before the Director of the Control Authority. An appeal from the Director's decision can be made to the Board of the Control Authority.

61.690 Delegation of Authority (p. 36) This section commits the Township to delegating, by written contract, administration and enforcement of the industrial pretreatment program provisions of this Ordinance to a state approved control authority.

61.700 Industrial Waste Control (I.W.C.) Charge. (p. 36) This section authorizes a monthly charge on non-residential customers for industrial waste control surveillance, based upon the customer's meter size.

61.710 Industrial Surveillance Permit Fee. (p. 37) The annual Surveillance Permit Fee is determined according to a stated formula based on the amounts and types of wastewaters discharged.

61.720 Industrial Waste Surcharge. (p. 38) The industrial waste pollutant strength surcharge shall be computed in accordance with a stated formula, based on the volume and strength of waste discharged in the billing period.

In accordance with the basic Service agreement between Township and Wayne County, users discharging wastewater into the sewer system must comply with the standards, rules and regulations controlling the quality or quantity of wastewater entering the system, as established by the County.

Section 2. Severability. The Ordinance further provides that any unenforceable sections can be severed from the rest of the Ordinance.

Section 3. Repeal. The Ordinance provides for the repeal of all inconsistent Ordinances to the extent of such inconsistencies.

Section 4. Savings Clause. The Ordinance provides for a savings clause for the balance of Chapter 61.

Section 5. Publication. The Township Clerk will arrange for the requisite publication of this Ordinance.

Section 6. Effective Date. The Ordinance becomes effective immediately upon publication of this summary.

This Ordinance may be adopted by the Township Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Northville at its next regular/special meeting.

Our Opinion

All library decisions need to be followed

It should have come as no surprise that the township is moving quickly on some of the decisions for the Haller Library project.

Last week the board voted 6-1 to hire the firm of Kamp-DiComo Associates as architects for the project. Donald DiComo, a township resident and township ZBA member, represented his firm at the board meeting and made a presentation for trustees. The firm was given a contract of $268,800 for the Haller Library project — if it indeed becomes reality. Even if voters turn down the funding to make the library work, the architectural firm will receive approximately $94,000 for the first two phases of the work.

The board made clear several weeks ago that an architectural firm would be hired to begin initial work on the Haller project. The fact that a firm would probably receive a contract at last week's township board meeting was publicized in this newspaper several times. The fact that a firm was hired on Jan. 11 should not have been a big surprise.

The relative merit of spending at least $94,000 on a project that is not yet a certainty was the first reaction we had to the news that a contract had been given to Kamp-DiComo Associates.

The second reaction was amazement that no residents turned out at the Jan. 11 township board meeting to find out about the selection process for the firm and other library details. This project is big — it carries an estimated price tag of $4,480,000. Also, the decision over what site is best suited to house a Northville community library had been hotly debated in previous weeks.

We had been confident that township officials would be asked tough questions when it came down to signing contracts for the Haller site. As of yet there has been no public hearing for people to ask questions about funding and other site possibilities. But perhaps we were making a mountain out of a molehill.

While we have a tendency to agree with Trustee Richard Allen that the selection process went much too quickly and that not enough research was presented during the meeting, there appeared to be no hue and cry from an interested public. Township officials will have to move quickly to make the deadlines imposed by the Haller family. It should come as no surprise that residents will have to stay on top of this entire process in order not to miss a word of it. Interested residents do not have the time to dally now and ask questions later. All decisions have been made at public meetings to this point. The next few meetings will no doubt be critical as officials will have to nail down the exact funding schedule for the city and township shares of the library.

Hopefully this is one molehill that will get plenty of attention in the next few weeks.

Cady Street requires fairness to all parties

While Northville continues to fine-tune a request for proposals for development of Cady Street, city officials are wondering what to do with builders seeking to develop their own parcels in the Cady Corridor.

Tuesday night, Michael Kahm, vice president of the Michael Development Company, made his proposal to the planning commission for retail and office development of Singh's lot across the street from their MainCenter development.

As Kahm explained at the meeting, "I'm not trying to upset the applecart at this stage of the game, but we have property along the west side of Center and we're trying to protect our interests there. We felt that we couldn't turn our backs on our own project."

"The dog's wagging the tail," Kahm said, "and we're the tail."

But is Singh the tail in this case, or is the company at the forefront of development proposals, being muzzled by the city? Another developer, Tri-

County Title, approached the city in October with a plan for redevelopment of their property at the corner of Cady and Griswold, but that project was put on hold as well.

The question facing city officials is how to respond to developers in their own legitimate interests with their properties. Singh is not the first developer to put their proposal before the city, and it won't be the last.

As City Manager Steven Walters suggested at Tuesday's meeting, perhaps these developers should be encouraged to continue within the framework of the Cady Street development proposal, rather than told to hold while the city waits for the rest of the dog to catch up with its tail.

"We can't ask the developer to sit tight until something happens," he said.

The key appears to be working with these developers closely, while not tying them up waiting for the next stage.

On the town

By Mike Tyree

Naturally, I was delighted to see that the Northville Record and Novi News were running a restaurant poll to determine the brightest and best among local eating establishments.

Contests such as this one are wonderful methods to judge the sentiments and tastes of a community — as well as pointing out area hot spots.

Newspaper folk are always looking for tips and the response to the restaurant poll thus far has eclipsed what many of us initially expected.

In case you missed it, recent editions of the Record and News have ran solicitations for your favorite restaurants in the Northville/Novi area. Fifteen categories were listed, including best overall restaurant, best service, best seafood, fast food, pizza, etc., and voters were told that one ballot would be picked at random, the winner to be whisked off for a dinner for four at the restaurant of their choice.

Not bad at all.

But as some colleagues and I perused the nominations, an alarming trend began to unfold.

Oh, the big names — MacKinnon's, Genitti's, Chez Raphael and Victor's — made plenty of appearances on the ballots and less expensive places like Red Lobster, Red Timbers, O'Sheehans, Cloverdale's and Getzie's Pub showed up as well.

Even a local fast food joint, scorned in our office for their never-fail "sorry it took so long" explanation tallied a few votes.

But several of us were alarmed to realize that not only had we never eaten at most of the places favored by readers of the community papers, we also didn't even know where many of the restaurants are located.

I promised my editor that I wouldn't grouse about wages in this column and I won't. Suffice it to say that MacKinnon's is an abstract thought to this reporter, much as Picasso's Les Femmes d'Alger is to an admirer of the artwork in a Garfield comic strip.

The Taco Bell mentality is much easier to comprehend.

Of course, it was rather sobering to realize that many of our readers actually wear clothing other than blue jeans and don't have to order over the sound of Slim Whitman yodeling from the depths of a juke box when enjoying a night on the town.

It was also amazing to note that many of the poll respondents eat out often, some up to four or five times a week. Balloters expressed opinions on a wide variety of restaurants, indicating a willingness to try new places, styles, and recipes.

Several voters even maintained that the area doesn't have enough fine restaurants. They want more variety, more exquisite food and refined service staffs and pricier menus.

Which is all very interesting to me. In fact, after looking at all those great comments and recommendations on the restaurant poll, I'd kind of like to go out and try some of the places. A quick glance at the contents of the old wallet should help align my taste buds for this evening's selection of fine cuisine...

... Uh, maybe I'll have a can of soup instead.

After the fact

By Phil Jerome

The problem was that I caught a glimpse at the score on the television as the hostess was leading us to the table and could not help but notice that Michigan was leading Minnesota by a narrow margin with a little less than two minutes left on the clock.

Actually, that wasn't the problem. The problem was that I decided to have a seat at the bar to watch the rest of the game while the hostess and my lady friend continued on to the table.

"It's a good one," said Jimmy the Bartender, referring to the Michigan/Minnesota game as he brought me a big glass of sangria. "You here by yourself tonight?"

I told him what was happening, had a big sip of sangria and took advantage of a time out in the game to try to see where she had been seated.

And when I finally spotted her, I could see she wasn't real happy about the fact I was watching the game with Jimmy instead of nibbling nachos with her.

So I did the logical thing. I winked at her.

And then I summoned the waitress. "See that good-looking lady sitting by herself back in the corner?" I asked. "Send her a drink and put it on my tab. Tell her it's from the tall good-looking fellow sitting at the bar."

The waitress delivered the drink and then returned. "The lady said she's by herself tonight and wondered if you would like to join her," she said.

"It's one of the better offers I've received in a long time," I replied. "Did she seem sincere. Or do you think she's just leading me on because of my looks?"

"She did say one thing else," reported the waitress. "She said if you don't stop watching the basketball game and get your enchiladas over to the table, you're going to have to go home by yourself tonight."

What goes up...

Why so much attention to Ward?

To the Editor:

The problem with the Ward Presbyterian Church has gone on for the better part of a year. Frankly I cannot see why so much attention is being paid to an organization which does not pay taxes and is provided fire and police protection at public expense.

If they want to put up a tower 150 feet high, let them. They are isolated on their own rather large parcel of tax free property. If it should catch fire it would not endanger adjacent property. I would just let it burn.

Put up a sign at the entrance stating, essentially, "This property has no fire protection — enter at your own risk."

Oleg Z. Zaleski

Center praised

To the Editor:

It was gratifying to learn that the Western Townships Utilities Authority has established a collection center at 16155 Sheldon Road for receiving recyclable goods such as Newsprint, glass, plastic, metal cans, oil and batteries of all kinds.

Township officials are to be congratulated for their foresight and concern regarding the future of our environment, by promoting the recycling of the goods that heretofore have been destined for ever more hard to find landfills.

I must wonder why the cities of Northville and Plymouth are not included in this worthwhile venture of protecting our environment.

Alfred P. Galli

EDITOR'S NOTE — The City of Northville has had a recycling center open since July of 1989. Residents of the city may drop off newspapers, glass and cans at the Department of Public Works yard on Doheny Drive.

My apologies

To the Editor:

Ed Bender wishes to publicly apologize to the lady whose car door I opened for her in front of the Northville Post office last month — by doing this I literally scared this poor lady out of her wits. She exclaimed that she had just purchased some Christmas presents in the back seat, got in her car — without saying thank you or drop dead you creep.

I've been known to do this many times in my 74 years in Northville and this lady put a scare into me.

I promise to be more discreet in the future and try hard to mind my own business.

The days of boy scouts helping little old ladies across the street are over — it's a horrible world we've made for ourselves.

Again, I'm sorry lady.

Referrals made for variety of reasons

This is another in a continuing series of columns by Northville Youth Assistance Director Mary Ellen King.

Since the inception of the Northville Youth Assistance (NYA) program over 120 kids have been referred to the program. The children have come into the program for a variety of reasons. Some of the reasons children have been referred to NYA are listed below:

- Decline in grades
- Demands an unreasonable amount of attention

- Speaks out in class
- Hits classmates
- Does not interact with other children
- Parents going through divorce
- Parents remarrying
- Parents alcoholic
- Parents experiencing financial setbacks
- Death in family
- Fights a great deal with siblings
- Short-tempered
- Does not stand up for own rights
- Poor personal hygiene

- Angry a great deal
- Has dropped out of activities
- Overly defensive
- Seldom happy
- Does not talk to parents
- No personal goals or ambitions
- Steals from parents
- Few or no friends
- Sleeps a great deal

If your child is experiencing one or more of these difficulties over an extended period of time, call NYA at 344-1618. We are here to service Northville youths and their families.

Winds of Change

By Tim Richard

Look for an end to property tax abatements for industrial moguls if Michigan elects John Engler governor.

Look for de-emphasis of government-provided job training, replaced by a mandatory high school economics course heavy on business planning.

Under an Engler administration, look for repeal of the inheritance tax that's making capital and valuable consumers flee the state.

Expect repeal of the usury laws that forced Michigan's credit card business into South Dakota and Delaware.

As Gov. Jim Blanchard scurries to finish his "state of the state" address by Wednesday afternoon's deadline, Senate majority leader Engler beat him by six weeks, unveiling his economic plan for the 1990s last Nov. 30.

"Building Entrepreneurial Michigan," written by economic consultant Gene Heck, is certain to be Republican Engler's policy outline as he challenges Democrat Blanchard for the executive office.

Let's get it in context:

□ Blanchard's philosophy is similar to Alexander Hamilton's. Washington's Treasury secretary used government as a tool to promote business and economic growth. Certain industries were targeted for help. Government provided credit.

□ Engler's philosophy is closer to Adam Smith's. In "The Wealth of Nations," the Scots philosopher said the free market was a better spur to production than "the folly and presumption" of a politician or a governmental council.

□ A third philosophy holds that "corporation" is a dirty word. Industries are polluters and oppressors which the people, through government, must tax and regulate into social service.

(Happily, since Blanchard came on the scene, this business-bashing voice within the Democratic Party has been stifled — a mutter in a few union halls and the People's Republic of Ann Arbor.)

The Engler blueprint, today's topic, is a 430-page tome, much of it intricate detail. Author Heck has five degrees from the University of Michigan, worked on the House staff and currently is a senior economic consultant to the Saudi government.

Heck says the Blanchard administration conned us into believing we have a robust economic recovery by comparing the current jobs picture to the bottom of the recession, December of 1982. But when we compare the peak of the current boom to 1979, Michigan ranks 42nd among the states in non-agricultural job growth.

Politics aside, Heck is right about Blanchard's jobs numbers. Many of the jobs, jobs, jobs are rehires, not growth; some of the unemployment was due to people moving out; and the group known variously as the "chronically jobless" or the "underclass" has continued to swell in southeastern Michigan.

"The new philosophy of development," as Engler's writer phrases it, says:

□ "Growth comes from within" — stimulating existing industries — not from the outside. Financial and tax incentives "to lure industries from other jurisdictions" are "irrelevant."

□ Successful states create an attractive economic climate for all businesses "rather than wasting limited resources on costly efforts to attract a favored few."

□ State government should be reduced in size and cost, thus holding down taxes and business costs.

There are specific ideas for inner cities, a surprising area of concern for former farm boy Engler.

I leave the details for the months ahead and endorse nothing at this point.

It's no rich man's plan. It's a vision, somewhat different from Blanchard's, of how to bring prosperity to all classes and corners of the state.

Underground Railroad

By Barbara Louie

Barbara Louie is the local history librarian at the Novi Public Library. She is currently working on two books of history — one on Novi, the other on Northville. Her columns about the history of Northville will appear occasionally on the pages of The Northville Record.

The mid-1800s were a turbulent time in the history of the United States. Like other small towns and big cities alike, Northville was caught up in state and national affairs of the mid-19th century. It came to play an important role in helping slaves escape from the South, as part of the "Underground Railroad."

The Underground Railroad was run solely on trust and hope. What the "railroad" actually consisted of was a long line of people — black and white — extending from far into the South all the way up into Michigan and even Canada. This chain was made up of people dedicated to aiding and freeing slaves, providing relief, transportation — in the way of wagons, carts, horses and mules — food, shelter and safety all the way into Windsor and beyond.

The passing of the Fugitive Slave Act in 1850, which stated that slaves could be arrested in any state for attempting to escape, enraged many northerners and increased the strength of the anti-slavery movement.

Detroit newspapers of the day called it

"that most execrable law that ever disgraced the records of a civilized government." They were proud of Michigan being a free state, and that "neither slavery nor involuntary servitude shall ever be introduced into this State."

To assist the safe escape of runaway slaves to Canada, a number of Underground Railroad stops were established throughout Michigan.

The routes from the south leading from Illinois or Indiana took runaway slaves into Michigan at Cass County, heading up to Niles. From there they turned northeast directly to Battle Creek, Lansing and straight to Port Huron to cross the St. Clair River to safety.

Others would pass from Indiana or Ohio through Ann Arbor, Salem, Northville, Farmington, Birmingham, on into Detroit and across the river to Windsor.

Slaves would be hidden along the route during the day in private homes, barns, cellars, abandoned buildings or empty shops. Travel was done mainly at night, from one station to the next, which were generally placed within reach before daybreak, about 15 miles apart.

In Northville, a number of places, some still in existence today, once served as stops on the Underground Railroad.

One of Northville's oldest buildings is now known as the Cady Inn. Moved to Mill Race Historical Village in 1987, this house was reportedly built in 1835. Until its transfer to the historical village, it stood on Cady Street, where it was said to have been a tavern and — at one time — a station of the Underground Railroad.

Another one of the stations in Northville was located near Beck Road between Six and Seven Mile. Originally owned by the Starkweather family, the farm was one of the stops for escapees from the Ypsilanti area in the 1860s. The barn where slaves were hidden stood for nearly a century before being demolished.

Other Northville stations were located on the southwest corner of Main and Center streets, and near what is now Meads Mill Middle School.

At the southeast corner of Plymouth and Stark Roads in Livonia once stood a tavern owned by David MacFarlane. This and another building at the corner of Middlebelt and Six Mile served as Livonia's two depots for the Underground Railroad.

Many people escaping from the South found safety here in Michigan, and decided to settle in various communities in the state. Salem Township was one such place where freed slaves chose to settle.

Cinema owners cater to family trade

By PHYLLIS STILLMAN

If you're looking for good, clean, family-oriented entertainment, South Lyon Cinema probably has what you're looking for.

Since opening the theater at 126 East Lake Street (Ten Mile) last February, owners Ed McFarland (who also manages the theater), Gary Anderson and Dave Gramlich have been providing just that.

South Lyon Cinema shows mostly G- and PG-rated movies. "R-rated movies don't do well for us at all — even the really good ones," McFarland said.

With a lot of family business, South Lyon Cinema feels a responsibility to create a family atmosphere. "This is a kid-oriented town. I mean, there are a lot of kids. Most R-rated movies — there's no law that says I have to keep anybody out," said McFarland. "But as an unwritten rule, we try to prevent the younger kids from coming in. And when I do that it hurts me, but still you can't let them in when there's a lot of sex or violence."

This attitude of doing the right thing is reflected in other areas. "I think one thing (we've done) is we haven't tolerated any fooling around by the kids. They're all good kids, but if no one makes them behave, they have a tendency to fool around and make too much noise. That made it hard for adults to come in and watch the movie," Anderson said. By not allowing this kind of behavior, South Lyon Cinema gets a lot of repeat business — people coming back again and again.

The size of the audiences has been encouraging and, in fact, some performances have even sold out. "The people have been really receptive to us and have been real good," McFarland commented.

His sentiments are echoed by Anderson. "It's a wonderful little town." And so South Lyon Cinema wants to give something back to the community.

One of the ways it's been able to do this is through fund-raisers. Working with various school and community groups, special performances are arranged, with the group selling advance tickets and keeping half the proceeds from ticket sales.

South Lyon Cinema also offers discounts for its customers. "We have a senior citizens' night every Monday — two for one," McFarland said.

Two-for-one coupons were also offered in the Pumpkinfest coupon book and the local newspaper. In addition, South Lyon Cinema is cooperating with its downtown neighbors. Goodie's Ice Cream & Sweet Shop is right next door, and the two businesses have worked together to benefit each other and their customers.

"We try to help each other with a special deal — buy a couple of sundaes and get a free pass to the show,"

McFarland explained.

South Lyon Cinema, with tickets selling for $2, is one of several small-town theaters in the area that is trying to compete with the larger theaters by selling tickets at a lower price.

The Howell Theater and Milford Cinema also offer discounted tickets. The smaller theaters cooperate with one another, sharing information, expertise and sometimes even spare parts. "Everybody kind of helps each other," McFarland said.

The current owners are not the first in South Lyon to offer discount ticket prices. The previous owners, who operated the theater from Nov. 1988 to Feb. 1989, found that running the theater took up too much of their time.

The current owners have solved that problem by designating one person, McFarland, as an owner-manager. He does just about everything around the theater, from ticket sales to janitorial work, so that hired staff can be kept to a minimum.

Other changes include remodeling of the concession stand and the entryway. "All the doors were on one side and we moved them so people could have a direct route out and it doesn't bottleneck when we have two shows," McFarland explained.

Although McFarland works in the theater on a daily basis, his partners help out on large projects, and the three of them were able to do most of the remodeling themselves. They've also added movie posters of coming attractions so customers can see what's showing next.

One of the most lucrative parts of the business for South Lyon Cinema is the concession stand, and the owners are proud of the products they offer. "We've got the best popcorn around. They like our popcorn and we sell a lot of it," McFarland said.

And it's not just the popcorn. "We track the candy. We try to see what sells and what doesn't sell — what people like. And we put in coffee."

Movies usually run for a week, changing on Friday. Sometimes, however, a movie that is expected to draw large crowds will be offered for two weeks.

The normal schedule is 7 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, and 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, with a matinee most Saturdays at 2 p.m.

Sometimes in the summer two movies will be offered — an animated feature for the matinee and a more adult film in the evening. McFarland would like to do more of that type of programming, if audiences will support it.

"South Lyon is growing by leaps and bounds. It's getting big fast," McFarland said.

South Lyon Cinema wants to provide the kind of entertainment and the kind of atmosphere that will allow the theater to grow with the community.

Apply now for federal college loans

If you plan to apply for federal financial aid to pay for next year's college costs, the time to file is now. The federal government started accepting applications last week and procrastination can be costly.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, the federal government frequently runs out of program money well before the fiscal year expires at the end of September. Remember, too, that many colleges have submission deadlines as early as Jan. 31.

Don't underestimate the importance of federal financial aid. Last year, the federal government provided 75 percent of all available student aid. States and institutions supplied the remaining 25 percent.

THE BASICS: To obtain a federal financial aid form, contact your high school or college financial aid office. The three most common forms are the College Scholarship Service's Financial Aid Form (FAF), the American College Testing Program's Family Financial Statement (FFS) and the Application for Federal Student Aid (AFSA). Ask your high school or college advisor to help you decide which form to submit.

Be warned: tackling one of these applications can be as trying as filling out a 1040 form. In fact, all three applications ask you to supply specific information related to your 1988 income tax return. If you choose to estimate your income and tax information, your application may very well be delayed due to inquiries regarding your figures — especially if any estimate is off by more than $200.

For this reason, you may want to prepare your returns prior to filling out the financial aid application.

THE NEEDS TEST: Once completed, the application is sent to a needs analysis service which then examines your application and determines your ability to contribute to college costs.

In fact, one of the most critical factors established by a needs analysis is the estimated family contribution, also referred to as the Student Aid Index. While you may judge this amount to be beyond your current means, the federal government will nevertheless use this figure to assess your eligibility for a loan as well as to establish the amount of the loan.

Of the six federal financial aid programs, five require a needs test for eligibility. Don't let the word "needs" scare you off. Several factors, including the number of children in your family, can enable a middle-income family to qualify for aid. In addition to the needs test, each of the six federal financial aid programs has its own requirements and purposes.

A Stafford Loan (formerly called the Guaranteed Student Loan or GSL) allows you to borrow money from a bank at relatively low interest rates. You won't have to begin repaying the loan until six months after you graduate or leave school, and you'll have up to 10 years from that time to complete the repayment. Because of their long terms, Stafford Loans make inflation work to the advantage of the borrower.

In 1989, the Stafford Program permitted first- and second-year undergraduate students to borrow up to $2,625 per year, while third-, fourth-, and fifth-year students could borrow up to $4,000 per year. The actual loan amount, however, is reduced by loan origination fees paid to the lender.

Eligibility for a Stafford is based on remaining need, which is — in plain English — the amount remaining when you subtract the sum of your estimated family contribution and any other aid (such as a scholarship or VA benefits) from the cost of attending your particular school.

PLUS and SLS: Parent Loans to Undergraduate Students (PLUS) and Supplemental Loans to Students (SLS) provide two other ways to reduce or eliminate remaining need. Last year, both programs allowed undergraduate students to borrow up to $4,000 per academic year to a maximum of $20,000.

To determine the maximum loan amount for which you are eligible, simply subtract the amount of aid received from all sources from the cost of attendance. Unlike Stafford Loans, the repayment of interest and principal on PLUS and SLS loans begins 60 days after the loan is taken out. Interest rates are adjusted annually and are usually calculated on the basis of the 91-day Treasury Bill rate plus several percentage points. The repayment period ranges from five to 10 years.

PELL GRANTS: Pell Grants are designed specifically for students who demonstrate financial need. Last year, the grants ranged from $200 to $2,300. Unlike a loan, Pell Grants do not have to be repaid. Eligibility for a Pell Grant is based on the Student Aid Index. If you doubt your eligibility, apply anyway. If you don't, you may jeopardize your eligibility for other federal financial aid programs.

OTHER PROGRAMS: Three other financial aid programs based on need are available through individual colleges, but be warned: much of this money may have already been allocated to students who applied for aid last year.

Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants range from $100 to $4,000 and are usually given to students receiving Pell Grants. Work-study programs provide part-time jobs to students demonstrating need. Finally, the Carl D. Perkins Loan Program allows students to borrow up to approximately $4,500 at extremely low rates. In addition, the grace period following graduation is nine months.

Remember, federal financial aid programs are just one of the resources available to help you pay for a college education. Investigate all options, including employer-funded scholarships. Since many financial aid programs have debt ceilings, CPAs advise you to combine federal, state, college and private aid in order to obtain the most aid at the lowest interest rate.

Good news! You're better off financially

Tri-county residents are better off economically than Americans nationwide, according to the 38th Detroit Area Study compiled by University of Michigan researchers.

That's true even when Detroit, with its massive social and civic problems and at least one-third of its citizens living below the poverty level, is included.

The downside is that the overall unemployment rate for residents of Wayne, Macomb and Oakland counties, 9.8 percent, is nearly double the 5.7 percent unemployment rate nationwide.

Median household income for the United States is $23,000 compared with $27,500 for the tri-county area. Only 20 percent of U.S. households enjoy an income of $45,000 or more a year, compared with 27.3 percent of the households in the Detroit area.

Residents of the tri-county area also are slightly better educated than the average American, the study found. Overall, 78 percent of Americans have a high school diploma, compared with 81.8 percent of tri-county area residents.

But Americans are slightly more likely to have a college degree than are Detroit-area residents — 19.8 percent of Americans have completed college compared with 17.3 percent of tri-county residents.

Other study findings:

□ Residents of the tri-county area are twice as likely as other Americans to belong to a labor union, but not necessarily to hold a blue-collar job. They are slightly more likely to be employed as professionals or managers, or be in clerical or sales positions.

□ Nearly two out of three Americans are Protestant compared with one out of two tri-county area residents. One in three Detroiters is Catholic, compares with one in four Americans.

□ Politically, tri-county residents are much like the rest of the nation; about 47 percent of the population claims allegiance to the Democratic Party. While 45.3 percent of Americans claim to be "conservatives," however, only 35.8 percent of Detroit area residents adopt this label.

The study, one of the most comprehensive of its kind to be conducted in the Detroit area, is based on hour-long face-to-face interviews with 916 residents of Wayne, Macomb and Oakland counties conducted by U-M graduate students and professional interviewers from the U-M's Survey Research Center.

The scientifically selected cross section of tri-county-area residents were interviewed between April and August of 1989. Because respondents were not limited to registered voters or people with listed telephone numbers, the survey sample is more representative of the Detroit area than the samples used in most surveys of the area, the U-M researchers said.

Since 1952, the Detroit Area Study has been a cooperative effort of U-M research units, social science faculty and graduate students who engage in original research on issues of concern to the city and metropolitan area.

THE LIFE YOU SAVE COULD BE YOUR OWN

Study by INSURANCE INSTITUTE OF HIGHWAY SAFETY Found the Volvo 700 Series to be the safest cars on the road today. The lowest death rate.

You're looking at a perfect Volvo A Volvo per formed exactly as our safety engineers designed it to its front and rear ends, for example, collapsed on impact. As a result, much of the crash energy was absorbed in stead of being passed on to the passengers

Keeping 'heart of home' ticking

The kitchen is often called the "heart of the home," traditionally serving as a gathering place for families and friends. It's a special place that transforms daily to meet the disparate activities of a family.

At one moment, the kitchen is a quiet spot where friends share dreams over warm coffee. Later in the day, the room is bustling with activity as family members recount the day's events while busily preparing the evening meal.

For most families, the kitchen also seconds as a work area where youngsters grudgingly complete their homework. Interestingly, studies indicate that a person's sense of smell is the sense most closely tied to memory; as a result, the kitchen frequently represents an emotional tie to the treasured aromas of one's past.

Of the estimated 47 million Americans who will move this year, many families will be temporarily thrown off balance when the security of their kitchen routine is disrupted. Thankfully, this stress is easily reduced if the family follows some practical guidelines when transplanting the "heart" of their home.

Toni Lindenberg, a professional home economist and director of the Bette Malone Relocation Service for United Van Lines Inc., offers tips for moving food products and kitchen appliances and for settling into a new home. These guidelines are helpful whether the family is using the services of a professional mover or renting a trailer and moving itself.

- To guard against damage that can be caused by combustion, leakage or explosion, dispose of aerosol cans of all kinds; liquids, such as furniture polish or bleach in bottles that could leak, matches; food in glass jars. If it is absolutely essential to pack a liquid, such as a medical prescription, the lid or cap should be fastened tightly and taped. The container should then be placed in a tightly sealed plastic bag.

- Take only those items you are sure will travel well. Do not take anything perishable. Temperature extremes are harmful to canned goods. High temperatures increase the chance of spoilage and freezing temperatures may cause swelling, which, in turn, may rust the seams of a can. Storing canned goods in a cool, dry clean place is best, preferably with temperatures below 85 degrees.

- Be wary of badly dented or bulging cans since this may indicate the presence of botulism, a rare and often deadly food poisoning bacteria (Clostridium botulinum).

- Open boxes of dried or powdered foods such as rice, macaroni and cereals should be discarded since they may attract bugs. For a cross-town move, though, boxes may be sealed with tape. Small containers of condiments, bouillon cubes, gelatin should be placed together in a small box before packing in a large carton. Be sure to cover holes of shaker type containers and seal with tape.

- Since spices are expensive, you can tape those which still have a tightly fitting cap. However, if the bottles or cans do not have a cap, it is best to discard the spice.

- If you are moving to a part of the country troubled by pests and insects, it is wise to have your new home treated by a pest service — preferably before your arrival.

When preparing kitchen appliances for a move, Lindenberg recommends thorough cleaning and drying of the products, especially the refrigerator, freezer and range.

This is especially important if the appliance will be in storage for any length of time. The slightest bit of moisture in a warm, enclosed space is enough to cause the growth of mold and mildew with a resultant musty odor and stains difficult, if not impossible, to eradicate.

Grease left on a range will turn rancid and gummy, catch dirt and dust, and leave spots on any items that touch it.

Cleaning instructions for appliances are included in the owner's use-and-care manual which generally accompanies new appliances. If no manual is available, use a mild detergent solution or a good commercial freshener, following the manufacturer's instruction for its use.

Or use a solution of three tablespoons of baking soda dissolved in a quart of warm water to which one tablespoon of vinegar has been added. Do not use harsh abrasives that will scratch or mar porcelain finishes. A soft brush or vacuum cleaner will remove excess dust. Soft rags make excellent drying and polishing cloths.

In order to clean the kitchen range, remove the grids, grates, burner knobs, reflector pans, broiler pans, oven racks and other removable parts and clean them thoroughly. A degreaser (used according to the manufacturer's directions) and a stiff brush will do a good job of grease removal.

Steel wool and a wire brush are helpful in removing grease from the oven and broiler rack. While a wide variety of oven cleaners is available, an excessively greasy oven can be easily cleaned if one half-cup of ammonia in a sauce dish is placed in the closed oven overnight.

Use a mild detergent or the baking soda-vinegar-water solution on the porcelain finish. Wipe out and dry the drawers and storage compartments, then replace the clean dry parts.

The same care must be given to the cleaning of your refrigerator and freezer. According to Lindenberg, it's well worth a little extra time preparing your appliances for a move when you consider the monetary investment they represent.

First, empty the appliance, then disconnect and defrost it. Once it has defrosted, remove all movable parts and wash. Wash the interior of the appliance thoroughly, giving special attention to cleaning cracks, crevices, drawer and shelf slides, door gaskets, drain tubes and all possible places in which food particles or spilled food may be trapped.

Designs for Living

Spanish flavor, modern design

By James McAlexander

On the one hand, the St. Augustine has a traditional Spanish flavor, with tiled hip roofs, stucco exterior and an entry court. On the other hand, the St. Augustine utilizes a distinctive contemporary floor plan.

The main floor of the house consists of three large, interlocking, hexagonal cells.

The central cell contains the main entrance, family room and walk-through kitchen. The kitchen serves into the family room across an eating bar. Because the main counter fits into one apex of the hexagon, it can take advantage of garden windows in both adjacent walls.

The right-hand unit, with living and dining rooms, joins at the entrance. Windows in each of its five outside walls offer a 270-degree view. Half of this cell—the living room—is vaulted. The dining room has its ceiling soffit down to make a more formal, intimate space.

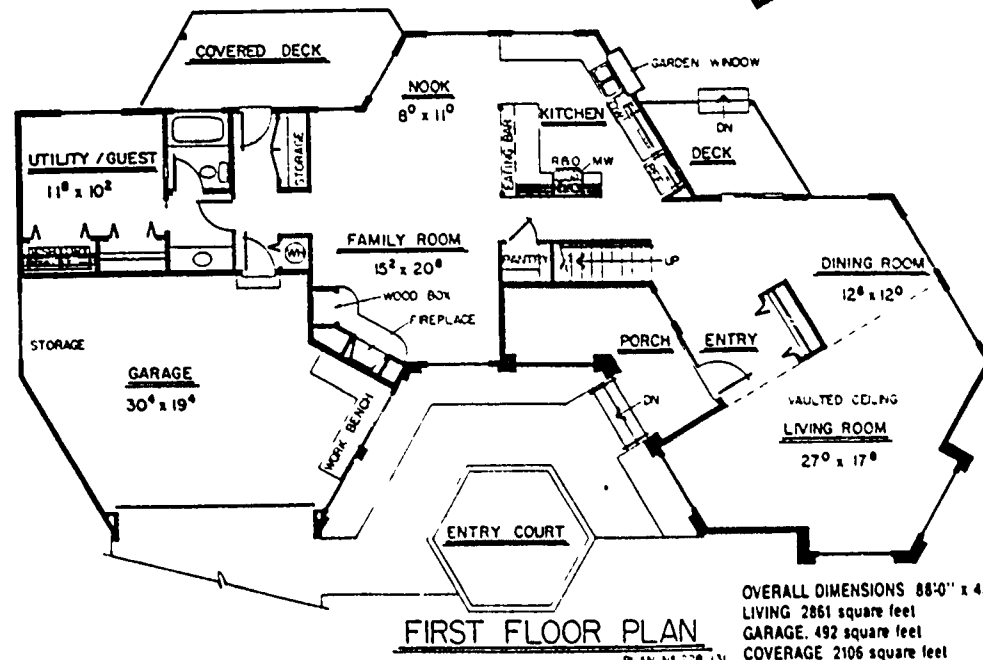

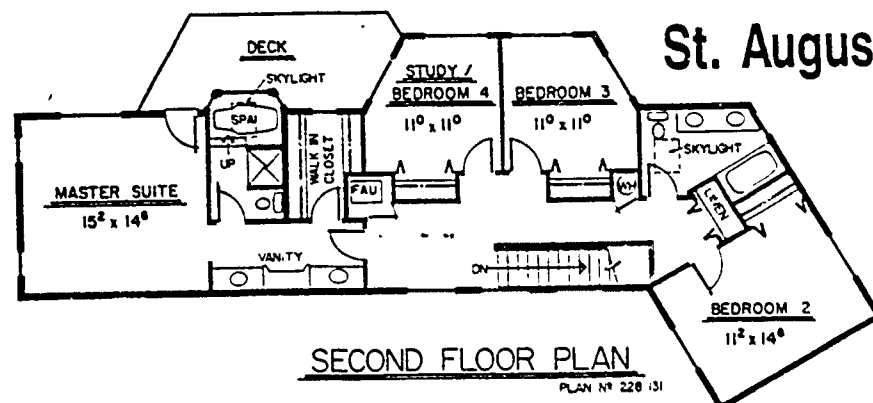

Guest room, utility room, dressing area, den: They all lie in a left-hand unit of the St. Augustine, and all in the same space. This multipurpose area also includes a full bath, and a short hall to one of two outside patios.

Upstairs, the design of the St. Augustine becomes more conservative.

A long hall connects three bedrooms and a master suite. The master suite at one end includes a private bath, walk-in closet and a private deck that forms the cover for the back patio.

The two central bedrooms are quite small, but the third, perched over the living/dining hexagon, is large enough (and close enough to the bathroom) to house two children in bunk beds.

For a study plan of the St. Augustine (228-131), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

New York-style party not far away

By Carol Cutler

What stamps a party as being "New York"? Style, first of all. Lots of money doesn't hurt. But while you can have the former without the latter, no amount of wealth can guarantee style.

Can style be learned or acquired? The late Diana Vreeland would have responded with a vehement "no." Her own emphatic mark on the world of fashion notwithstanding, many authorities believe otherwise. There are books, schools and private tutors to help those not naturally blessed with savoir faire.

One duo ready to help you entertain with great style is Boyce Brawley and Jean Michel Savoca. Their credentials are impressive. They have planned and produced parties at the Metropolitan Opera, on the stage of Carnegie Hall, a Japanese party at the Botanic Gardens and even transformed a floating hospital ship into a birthday cake for Merrill-Lynch.

Obviously, they know a thing or two about throwing a party.

Brawley and Savoca come to all this party-planning through their sophisticated gourmet catering firm named, what else, New York Parties. All, or almost all, of the flair and precision planning that have made them the favorite of rich and famous party-givers in Manhattan, has been compressed between the covers of their book "New York Parties: The Art of Hosting" (Rizzoli).

Glitz parties are not all glitz. Behind all the knock-out photographs of smooth-running events there was an agonizing amount of time of planning, planning and planning. What works for professionals will work for anyone.

"New York Parties" is peppered with sound advice: "Plan every aspect of the party before you extend invitations. Make lists and more lists. Check them off and set your priorities as you go."

Sew Easy

Sewing project will eliminate blahs

By Madeline Hunter

Q: Every year between January and March I get into a real slow-down with sewing projects. Somehow, I can't gear up yet to organize for spring or summer, and I really don't want to tackle any more major winter projects.

I'd like a suggestion of something fun, but not too challenging, to make for this in-between time.

A: Those short days of winter can add up to a case of the blahs and sewing lethargy. What you need is a pick-me-up of blooming color.

While you may not feel like making yet another winter outfit, now is a great time to keep your eyes open for fabric sales. Stitching up a midwinter outfit or dress in tulip pink or sunflower yellow will help brighten those yet-to-come dreary days.

Pick up some yardage on sale of that cheery fabric you passed up for a classic color earlier in the season. (You also can pick up some navy, black or beige fabric to save for next year.)

Another way to add a bit of life to winter is to decorate with flowers. While you're out at the mall, buy a plain felt hat (on sale), and decorate it with embroidered or three-dimensional flowers made from scrap velvet and ribbons. Embroidery also can "wake up" a boring vest or jacket.

A hat is fun though because since the felt is firm, it is easy to work with. You can create a whole garden, just one big bloom or a neat nosegay. Bright strands of wool tapestry yarn, shiny rayon floss, narrow ribbon and even polyester hem tape can be used for the embroidering. Bits of scrap velvet or ribbon worked into flowers make for an elegant look.

If you're a knitter with a special little girl you'd like to make something for, take a look at a brand-new book called "Knit a Nursery Rhyme" by Belinda Rushworth-Lund, published by St. Martin's Press.

Containing more than 40 original garments and toys, this book was inspired by children's favorite nursery rhymes. Colorful photographs and charts accompany each whimsical design, along with its appropriate verse.

Knitting up one of these is sure to chase away the blahs ground of the occasion and location. The recipes used for the event follow, with photographs of each dish.

A quick flip through the book will provide dozens of ideas of how to add panache to the way food is presented. Cold sliced lemon chicken may not sound like much, but imagine it presented thus: The sliced breasts are arranged on an oval platter in a curving shape, sort of a long S.

A mound of pointy straw mushrooms anchors the S. Long slices of pale green celery fill one side of the curve, and braided Chinese long beans fills the other. Chasing a lot of willing hands in the kitchen, the braiding may be forgone, but the beans can still be artfully curved to fill in the S.

A plate of asparagus shouldn't be dumped into a dish. Fan them out instead so that the pretty tips cover more of the plate than the dumpy stalks. A little sprinkle of sesame seeds brightens the whole effect.

And so it goes, from woven strips of salmon and sole to lace-edge napkins artfully strewn across a plate on the diagonal. Many are little touches, but they add up to a dazzling whole.

This stunning book is replete with practical advice, too. After all, parties only work on the foundation of good organization and planning. Whether the affair is a charity ball for 500 or birthday party for 10, they have pointers.

If you are serving with no help, follow these guidelines:

• "Keep menus simple, preceded by plenty of substantial hors d'oeuvres that have been placed in the rooms before guests arrive."

• "Consider setting up food on a sideboard and having guests help themselves."

• "If possible, serve a room-temperature meal."

• "Guests should never help you clear away dishes and never feel pressed into joining you in the clean-up afterward. Considerate guests will not insist too much."

Taking paint off fireplace tedious

By Gene Gary

Q: We recently purchased a condo where the previous owner had painted the brick fireplace a light cream color.

I am not happy with the look of painted brick. Is there any way to restore the natural brick?—A.K.

A: It's a messy and tedious task, but it can be done. You can check with your masonry dealer for recommended paint removers.

One such product is H2OFF, a water rinse, non-flammable paint remover marketed by The Savogran Co., P.O. Box 130, Norwood, MA 02062. This product is particularly suitable because it adheres well to vertical surfaces and can be used safely indoors.

Materials for brick restoration include H2OFF, a box of TSP (trisodium phosphate), scraper, heavy steel wool pads (No. 2 or 3) or wire brush, paper towels, neoprene gloves, paint brush, old newspaper and a plastic drop cloth.

Be sure the area is well ventilated when working with these products. You will want to cover the flooring around the fireplace with the drop cloth, topped with newspapers, which can absorb liquefied sludge and dripping from the removal process.

The H2OFF is a stripper that is best applied by brush. Brush on in one direction only and apply as much as will adhere thickly to the surface.

Next, moisten steel wool or wire brush with the stripper and scrub brick in a circular motion. This will lift stubborn paint out of pores and complete liquefaction.

Wipe off residue with clean paper towels. Repeat steel wool scrubbing. Liquefied remaining paint with another coat of H2OFF.

Then take a clean pad of steel wool, soaking it in a solution of ½ cup TSP to 1 gallon of warm water. Scrub and rinse the remaining paint.

Be sure to wear gloves throughout the entire process to protect your hands.

There are other brands of paint remover available, but the basic removal steps are the same. A non-flammable remover will be much safer for indoor use than one of the stronger chemical varieties.

Be sure to follow manufacturer's directions carefully for any product you select.

find that it is very difficult to keep the rooms which have these ceilings warm during the winter months.

I know that ceiling insulation could probably help, but I don't know how you can insulate this type of ceiling. Do you have any suggestions?—L.L.

A: Insulating ceilings that have bare beams exposed is nearly impossible unless the insulation is placed in the roof, under the shingles. This is both difficult and expensive.

If you don't mind covering up a portion of the beam, you can fill in the spaces between the joists with 3½-inch insulation and then install gypsum board over the insulation between the beams. Of course, the amount of beam left exposed will depend on the depth of the beam.

Another consideration is the installation of decorative ceiling fans. These will help force some of the warm air down into the rooms. They will also help air circulation and keep the ceiling somewhat cooler during summer months.

Weather stripping and insulating treatments in other areas, such as windows and doorways, can help some. Heavy drapes on windows still also help keep cold air out.

Q: This summer we had terra cotta tiles installed in a family room. Unfortunately, the tile installers left some residue of the grout on the face of a number of tiles.

I have been unable to get them to clean these tiles, and I am at a loss on how to do it myself. Can you advise me on how to remove these unsightly stains?—G.S.

A: After the grout has set the removal of the residue is very difficult. However, you can try these methods.

Working in one small area at a time, scrub the tiles with a stiff bristle nylon brush using an abrasive scouring powder such as Comet or Ajax. Rinse thoroughly.

If this fails to do the job, try using a Grout Film Remover (American Clean Manufacturers one such product), which should be available from one of the larger tile dealers in your area.

After the residue has been removed you will need to reseal the area to protect the tile. Your local tile dealer will also have information on the type of sealers and finishing coats recommended for your specific tile.

Showing off china in fine fashion

By Rose Bennett Gilbert

Q: My aunt left me her wonderful collection of "flow-blue" china, something I've admired all my life.

A: But it's turning into a mixed blessing—my own china closet is chock-full. Besides, I'd like to have her collection out on permanent display. Any suggestions?—F.S.

A: This is just why plate rails were invented. If your dining room space allows, you could have a narrow display shelf added around the top of one or more walls in there.

B: But don't limit your thinking: Good display space is anywhere you find it.

To wit: the elegantly traditional sitting room in the photo we show here, where one entire wall is designed to show off a collection of fine old china. The better to dramatize it, the walls are painted a deep aubergine, or eggplant color, while the shelves are picked out in white to match the rest of the room's woodwork.

New York designer Lee Bogert had the shelves made just wide enough to allow other objects, including figurines and books, to be interspersed with the standing pieces, making the entire wall the focal point of the room.

Q: Our apartment has a large entry hall but no formal dining room. Is there any way I can use the hall for dinner parties without cluttering it up between meals?—L.T.

A: This is an easy one: The answer has been around since the invention of the drop-leaf table.

Get a good-size table, flat against one wall, hang a mirror over it, and use it every day for keys, mail, flowers and other entry hall stuff. Pull it out at party time, raise the leaves, and you're feasting.

Other equally flexible alternatives: Double-duty furniture: A credenza with a table folded up inside, an armchair with a table that folds down, cocktail-height tables that "grow" to dining size—you'll find these options and more at ready-made furniture stores.

Displayed along a wall shelf, an elegant china set becomes the focal point of the room

But don't stop there. I've dined out—elegantly, I might add—on tables made instantly from padded plywood and folding sawhorses. Both stash in the closet when the guests go home.

Another flexible and pretty idea: several small folding tables instead of one large one. Skirt them to the floor and no one will guess your improvisation.

Q: I want to create a country atmosphere in our dining room. It has no woodwork, no atmosphere at all to speak of now.

I got the idea from a magazine to use a wallpaper border that looks like a chair rail, but I don't know if I should paint the wall below it a solid color, or can I use wallpaper above and below the border?—S.Q.

A: Your choice. If you paint, use the same color as the background of the wall covering above your faux chair rail. Or pick a darker accent color from the paper's pattern and use that.

Wall covering works handsomely both above and below a chair rail. I'd pick out two coordinating patterns; generally, there is a floral or floral strip paired with a geometric or overall small-floral (mille fleurs) motif.

Because the eyes like to see something substantive at the base of an architectural element, such as a wall, I'd suggest that you use the more definite pattern—the floral stripe or geometric—below the rail, with the "lighter" motif on top.

The same logic requires that the chair rail be located approximately at the height of your chair backs since the original purpose was to protect the wall from scraping and rubbing.

Rose Bennett Gilbert is the author of five books on interior designs, associate editor of Country Decorating and a contributing writer to other publications in the field.

Keeping 'heart of home' ticking

Don't forget the evaporator pan. Rinse with warm water and dry. Wash and dry the outside as well. Dust the compressor unit. Some refrigerators have a cold water dispenser or an automatic icemaker, be sure the water reservoir is empty.

After cleaning thoroughly and drying, leave the door wide open for at least 24 hours — longer if possible — so the parts you can't reach will have a chance to dry. The invisible insulation holds moisture and dampness collects under the rubber gaskets on the doors. The open doors allow moisture to evaporate so the appliance will dry completely. Then replace the cleaned dry parts. Be sure the shelves are secure.

To keep the appliance fresh during a move, use a commercial freshener according to package directions or sprinkle the inside with baking soda.

Upon arrival at destination, wash the freshener from the refrigerator freezer with a damp cloth or sponge and the appliance will emerge clean, fresh and ready for use.

When it is reconnected, let it cool before placing food inside. (If moved during cold weather, be sure to let your appliances warm up to room temperature before plugging them in. Plugging in a cold appliance could destroy it.)

When organizing for a move, decide which kitchen items will be needed immediately upon arrival at your destination; then carefully pack them into a moving box and mark this box "load last." That way, this "survival" box will be unloaded first.

Once your family has arrived at its new home, efforts must be made so the kitchen can again assume its position as the heart of your home. To facilitate the family's emotional transition, Lindenberg recommends creating some familiar aromas by warming bread in the oven or making a batch of popcorn. These two comforting fragrances will subconsciously ease some of the anxiety of family members.

Don't overlook the importance of proper nutrition during the first few days of a move. While fast foods may be convenient, they are high in sodium and fats and can make cranky children even more irritable. Cut back on sugar, caffeine and greasy snacks, instead provide bowls of nuts, fruit and raw vegetables for your family.

If you are not up to preparing food, see if the supermarket in your new neighborhood has a salad bar from which you can make some sensible selections.

As another alternative to fast food, try a family restaurant or cafeteria that serves balanced meals with a minimum of fats and sugars. Careful meal planning can soothe jangled nerves and give your family members the energy they need to combat move-related stress.

The stress associated with relocation is also reduced through exercise. Lindenberg suggests the family take a break from household chores in the evening and walk through the new neighborhood. Not only is this an ideal means of relaxation, but the walk also fosters family communication.

It's a great opportunity to discuss the concerns of individual members, perhaps even solving potential problems or alleviating the fears that are a natural part of change. Besides keeping the lines of communication open, family walks also help everyone become acquainted with the new neighborhood and possibly even make some new friends.

United Van Lines' relocation service was created over 30 years ago to assist consumers with questions related to moving. It offers detailed information on more than 7,000 locations worldwide, booklets on a variety of moving-related topics and personal consultations with business executives concerned with the relocation of corporate personnel.

Spices add unique flavors

There they sit. Rows of bottles filled with interesting powders, seeds and dried leaves.

Alone in the dark, they stand at attention on the spice rack collecting dust. Just waiting to be picked up by the hand of a friendly cook. Don't leave them lonely.

Wait a minute, you say. "I don't know what to use them for."

Wonder no more. Following is a brief listing of some of the more uncommon herbs and spices and their seasoning values, as included in "Rodale's Illustrated Encyclopedia of Herbs":

• Basil: Tomato sauce and pesto have made basil famous, but don't stop with these two dishes. It will enliven many other foods. Basil has a rich and spicy, mildly peppery flavor with a taste of mint and clove. Traditional in Italian, Mediterranean and Thai cooking, it is good with veal, lamb, fish, poultry, white beans, pasta, rice, tomatoes, cheese and eggs. It blends well with garlic, thyme and lemon. Basil adds snap to mild vegetables like zucchini, summer squash, eggplant, potatoes, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, parsnips and spinach.

• Cardamom: Native to East India, this spice is a key ingredient in curry powder. It's also widely used in Scandinavian pastries. Cardamom tastes like an airy, gentle ginger with a pinch of pine. The pods of the plant, which can be white, green or black, are opened and the tiny seeds are used whole or ground as needed. It enhances squash, sweet potatoes, duck, pork, pastries, pickling brines, sweet and sour meatballs, coffee (Betty Burch of Grandma Betty's Sweets 'N Treats says she often adds this spice to coffee for a unique taste) and sweet pastries. Its flavor combines well with cumin and coriander seed.

• Chervil: Both the leaves and stems can be used in cooking, and whole sprigs make a delicate and decorative garnish. If you come across "pluches de cerfeuille" in a French cookbook, it means "blanched sprigs of chervil," which are occasionally used in soups. It accompanies parsley, thyme and tarragon in herbs of French cooking and should be added at the last moment to soups, stews and sautes. Lengthy heating turns the flavor bitter. It enhances carrots, eggs, spinach, sorrel, fish (especially oysters), veal, cream, cheese, corn and peas. It complements tarragon, shallots, freshly ground black pepper, marjoram and lemon. Bearnaise sauce and classic French vinaigrette taste best with a little fresh chervil added.

Flavorful spices, front row, are whole allspice — atop a bed of bay leaves — and ginger root. Back row, left to right, are garlic, whole cloves and pine nuts. Scattered in the background is dill seed.

"Grandma" Betty Burch reaches for a jar of spices in her Northville store

Grandma's kitchen always smelled heavenly.

The aromas of sweet cinnamon, allspice and nutmeg consumed the house as she baked pregnant apple pies overflowing with juicy fruit. And the scent of sage stuffing on Thanksgiving tickled our nosebuds as the turkey baked to a golden brown.

Foods created in her kitchen tasted special. And her spice rack is the reason why.

If the standard salt and pepper shakers are the extent of your regular seasonings, you're missing something. There are thousands of spices and herbs that can add the perfect touch to any dish.

Betty Burch, co-owner of Grandma Betty's Sweets 'N Treats in downtown Northville, attests to that. In addition to stocking the shelves in her quaint country store with dozens of jars of spices, Burch says she regularly cooks with them.

"I wouldn't call myself a great cook, but people might think I am because my food tastes different . . . I cook with spices," Burch says.

Fondly known as "Grandma Betty," she says the most important rule to remember when seasoning with spices and herbs is to use them sparingly.

Seasonings find a home at local country store

"A spice should be so subtle that you can't taste it on its own. It should blend with the food to complement it," she says.

Burch's approach to selling spices and dried herbs is unique. She belongs to a cooperative and buys them in bulk — although she keeps small quantities in stock to ensure freshness. As a result, there are no pre-packaged spices on the shelves of her store. Customers may buy just the quantity they need in a certain recipe rather than buying a big can or jar of it.

What gives a spice its name?

What's the difference between herbs and spices?

According to "Rodale's Illustrated Encyclopedia of Herbs," there are no clear-cut divisions between the two. Contemporary writing on the subject of spices tends to focus on them as seasonings. "Rodale's Organic Gardening," for example, offered its readers the following rules of thumb for telling spices and herbs apart:

• Leaves, both fresh and dried, are normally called herbs, while seeds, roots, fruits, flowers or bark are spices.

• Herbs more frequently grow in temperate regions, while spices come from the tropics.

• Herbs are green and often have more subtle tastes, spices tend to be shades of brown, black, or red, with a dramatic, pungent flavor

"Rodale's Organic Gardening" magazine uses the coriander plant to illustrate the differences between an herb and a spice. The plant's fresh, dried green leaves are referred to as Chinese parsley or the herb cilantro. The brown seed from the same plant is known as the spice coriander.

"Historically, spices have not been used exclusively as seasonings. They were valued for aromatic and healing qualities as well. If you accept the broad definition of herb (a plant or plant part valued for its medicinal, savory or aromatic qualities), then you see that spices are herbs," authors in "Rodale's Illustrated Encyclopedia of Herbs" write.

Confused? Don't be. Both are used as seasonings, for healing purposes or to create fragrances. In essence, it doesn't matter what they're called.

Several plants are widely used by the pharmaceutical industry for their healing properties. Although some have traditional healing uses, they most often require processing to extract the drug for which they are known. It's not a good idea to concoct a homemade form of a prescribed drug.

Following is a brief list of some of the plants used for the medicinal qualities, as taken from "Rodale's Illustrated Encyclopedia of Herbs." "The Magic of Herbs in Daily Living" by Richard Lucas and "The Herb Book" by John Lust:

• Aloe The juice from the leaves, dried and powdered, is both a strong cathartic and antiseptic that stimulates new tissue to form. The juice is used in skin lotions and soaps

• Anise This herb is of Eastern

Durham helps local youths

By DOROTHY NASH

There are problem children and there are children with problems, and they're not just in the big city. They're in the suburbs, too — suburbs like Northville — said Francis Durham, a retired Detroit school administrator, who volunteers for Northville Youth Assistance.

His main activity in NYA is in counseling — in being a friend and role model for any youth between the ages of seven and sixteen. That means meeting with the child for an hour and a half a week to talk, to do things together.

This year in addition to counseling, Durham is helping Mary Ellen King, NYA director, in making presentations to teacher staffs to acquaint them with what the agency is all about. They have started, he said, with elementary schools.

"We tell the teachers," he said, "what kinds of kids can use our type of assistance." For example, you'll find the withdrawn child, the loner — or the child with no apparent problem but he starts acting up — or the clinging child. They all probably just need attention, something extra the teacher doesn't have time for.

At each presentation, Durham said, Mary Ellen gives the overall view, and then he and other counselors tell about their case experiences.

Currently, he said, he is counseling an 8-year-old boy, and "it's working fine." In fact he thinks they have achieved the goals they set down at the beginning, but the mother is so pleased, she wants him to stay in a little longer.

There is training for counseling, Durham said. It's a matter of 15 hours in five sessions, dealing with techniques provided by professionals.

Although this isn't the only area in which Francis Durham volunteers, he said he feels especially comfortable in it because of the nature of his former professional work — "trying to help others."

If you are interested in helping NYA through counseling or some kind of promotion, call 344-1618.

Plans progress for Florida reunion

By BRENDA DOOLEY

It's that time of year again.

The cold winds of winter are forcing many residents to the sunny comfort of the south. Those planning a trip to Florida are advised to mark their calendars for an upcoming special occasion.

The annual Northville Reunion in Florida will be held on Friday, Feb. 23 at the Crown House Restaurant in Sarasota, Fla. Community members not on the reunion mailing list but who would like to be, may contact:

Jim Harper, 2165 Preston, Sebring, Fla. 33872, phone: (813) 655-0924, or Dick Simmons, P.O. Box 635, Minneola, Fla. 34755, phone: (904) 394-6219.

Further details about the reunion will be sent to those included on the mailing list.

Gallery offers local art

Art lovers, take note.

Works by Northville artist Linda Banks Ord will be displayed at the Atrium Gallery, Inc., on 113 N. Center St. in Northville through Feb. 4.

January gallery hours are Tuesday-Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Friday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The gallery is closed on Sundays and Mondays.

Ord's exhibit is entitled "Paints About Light."

Base Line Questers to meet

Cupid's busiest season is almost upon us.

With that in mind, "Antique Valentines" will be the program topic at the Jan. 25 meeting of the Base Line Questers antiques study club at 1 p.m. at the Cady Street home of Ruth Mary Atchison.

Co-hostess is Georgianna Chase.

Jeanne Lorenz of St. Clair Shores will bring her collection of old Valentines and discuss the history of the exchange of sentimental verses. She is president of Cady's Corners Questers in St. Clair Shores. A retired teacher, she is a longtime collector.

Base Line Questers, chartered in 1965 with the National Questers in Philadelphia, is continuing plans to celebrate its 25th anniversary in December. The group is seeking an early scrapbook of its first years. Any former member of the group with information is asked to contact historian Eileen Sonk.

Woman's Club to meet Friday

Diamonds. They sparkle and glisten. But are they truly "a girl's best friend?"

David Beyer of Orin Jewelers in Northville is the special guest speaker at the Jan. 19 meeting of the Northville Woman's Club.

The meeting begins at 1:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville. It is also guest day. Chairperson is Barbara Jackson.

Single Place plans sock hop this Saturday

Single Place will present a '50s Sock Hop on Saturday, Jan. 20 at 8 p.m. at Fellowship Hall in the First Presbyterian Church of Northville.

Cost is $5 per person, which includes pop, snacks and a super sub from Genitti's.

Fifties attire is optional. Music from the '50s will be featured.

The public is invited to attend.

Other upcoming events sponsored by Single Place include a movie night on Friday, Jan. 26, when the film "When Harry Met Sally" will be shown. The movie begins at 7:30 p.m.

Beyer will speak on the topic "Diamonds are a Girl's Best Friend." He is a registered jeweler with the American Gem Society and has been involved in the jewelry business for 12 years. He also will present a film on diamonds.

Tea and refreshments will be served following the presentation.

Northville BPW plans meeting

The monthly meeting of the Northville Business and Professional Women's Club will be held Monday, Jan. 22 at Genitti's restaurant.

Social hour and networking begin at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m. The topic is "Managing Our Time Better," which is important because it fits into the club's theme for the year: "Building Personal Worth."

Pamela Welland, member and secretary of the Northville club, will be the facilitator for the program. Welland, a certified public accountant, has been employed by Ameritech Publishing in Troy for six years. Currently she is manager of financial planning.

This will be a working program as all members and guests will be involved. They will discuss time management problems and offer solutions. This problem-solving process will begin during the dinner hour. One of the needs of working women centers around managing their time effectively in the work place, home setting, leisure activities and community involvement.

For more information contact Berclay Ruschak at 348-1167.

Marquis Theater conducts auditions

Now's your chance to steal the spotlight.

The Marquis Theater in Northville seeks actors and actresses, adults and children (ages 9-14), for a children's play, "Aladdin and the Magic Lamp."

The play will open March 10 and run through April 11, consisting of about 50 performances. Those interested in auditioning should be prepared to dance and to read from the script.

Children's auditions will be held Saturday, Jan. 20 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Adult auditions will take place Sunday, Jan. 21 from 2 to 5 p.m. and Monday, Jan. 22 from 7 to 9 p.m.

For more information call 349-8110.

Northville resident writes book

Reflections of Northville are included in "Poems by Foster Ashby," a new book by poet Foster Ashby.

Dedicated to his wife, Barbara, the book contains poems chronicling Ashby's life and experiences. The first entry is entitled "Home in Northville," which tells the story of how he came to "this beautiful place called Northville" more than 45 years ago.

at the home of Ron Dunbar. Cost is $1.50, which includes pop, popcorn and the movie. The event is for adults only.

Single Place also will host a Chinese New Year's Party on Saturday, Jan. 27 at 6:30 p.m. Participants are encouraged to car pool from the First Presbyterian Church of Northville to Wong's Eatery in Windsor for Chinese cuisine.

Single Place is a support group for adult singles. The group meets regularly at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville.

Meads Mill honors promising students

MEADS MILL MIDDLE SCHOOL

The new year is off to a great start at Meads Mill Middle School. Both basketball and swimming schedules are underway, teachers are preparing for the end of the semester, and many students are preparing for academic competitions.

Eighth grade English teachers have just announced the three Promising Young Writers from Meads Mill for 1989-90. They are Julie Romine, Karen Simpson, and Traci Sachura. This writing recognition program is sponsored by the National Council of Teachers of English. The number of nominees per school is determined by the school population. Each of these students entered a piece of writing prepared for class and an impromptu essay on a topic chosen by N.C.T.E. Their writing will be judged as part of a national program of recognition for promising young writers.

The 7A team was awarded the National Middle School Association mini-grant to develop innovative approaches for enhancing instruction and learning experiences for their students in the area of cultural diversity. Teacher Shirley Klokenga wrote the grant which stemmed from the work toward a library or the Coalition on Temporary Shelter located in Downtown Detroit (COTS). Students are continuing work for COTS.

A Junior Enrichment Series program for seventh graders will give the students an opportunity to step inside a human cell model to learn about this aspect of science. The model is one million times the actual size of a cell, and will be in the school on January 23 and 24.

On Jan. 24, the 7th and 8th graders will take part in the Math Counts Competition followed by the Michigan Mathematics League Contest on Feb. 6.

Friday, Jan. 19 is a teacher work day and there is no school for students that day.

In February, the Science Fair will be held from the 5th to the 9th. Parents may see the projects on Feb. 7. Students will have to take projects home Thursday Feb. 8 between 3 and 6 p.m.

There will be an inservice day Feb. 6 with student dismissal at 11:11 p.m.

PATRICIA AND MARK SIMON

Patricia Ann Settles of Lansing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Settles of Woodside Court in Northville, married Mark Gordon Simon of Lansing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Simon of Fort Wayne, Ind., on Aug. 19, 1989.

The 4 p.m. double-ring ceremony took place at Mt Hope Methodist Church in Lansing and was immediately followed by a dinner reception at the Michigan State University Student Union.

The bride's traditional white slipper satin gown featured a Queen Anne neckline, Camelot sleeves with bridal points and a Basque waist, highlighted by embroidered Schiffl lace, seed pearls and sequins. The scalloped hem of the skirt and full train were also of Schiffl lace.

She carried a traditional cascade bouquet of calla lilies, white roses, freesia and English ivy.

Holly Sellen of Northville, a long-time friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathleen Lind of Grand Rapids and Sue Settles of Northville, sisters of the bride.

The attendants wore ice blue, tea-length dresses and carried small traditional cascade bouquets centered with a calla lily.

Best man was Joe Rogers of Atlanta, Ga. Groomsmen were Paul lung of Florida and Mark Shannon of Indiana; all long-time friends of the groom.

The couple honeymooned at Lake Wawasee in Indiana and are now at home in Lansing.

The bride is a 1983 graduate of Northville High School and a 1987 graduate of Michigan State University. She is employed by Dr. Umvero lung of Lansing.

The groom graduated from Olivet College and is program director of the Boys and Girls Club of Lansing.

BEVERLY (KOHL) and GRAY SOBRAN

Beverly Ann Kohl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Kohl of Lاراugh Drive in Northville, was wed to Gray Reynolds Sobran, son of Mrs. Barbara Kligerman of Greenwich, Conn., and Mr. Michael Sobran of Stamford Conn., on Oct. 8, 1989.

The 1:30 p.m. double-ring wedding ceremony was held at the Mystic Congregational Church in Mystic, Conn., officiated by the Rev. Christopher Emerson.

Special guests attending the wedding ceremony included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Dunning of Florida, and the bride's great-aunt, Mrs. Carrie Miller of North Carolina. Other special guests traveled from California, Ohio and England.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown, circa 1943. The silk-satin, Chanel-style gown featured a cathedral train. The bodice was fitted with gathered drapes at the bust and the sweetheart neckline was accented with Chantilly lace. The bride's headband and bouquet were designed with a French country theme, including fresh roses, dried hydrangea and ivy.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Barbara Kohl Kingsland of Mystic, Conn., sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Karen Carney of Lyman, Wyo., sister of the bride; Mrs. Marcia Ouchakof of Madison, Wis., sister of the bride; Mrs. Lisa Kozerski of Ann Arbor, friend of the bride; and Ms.

origin but is now cultivated in many parts of the world. It has an ancient reputation as a carminative, stomachic, expectorant and flavoring agent. Romans and Greeks used anise in relishes, seasonings, sauces and wines, just as it is used today. The seeds were chewed as a breath sweetener and to stimulate the appetite.

- Castor bean Once a widely used cathartic, castor oil is now primarily a base for eye ointments and drops, contraceptive foams and skin creams. An active principle has shown some promise against tumor cells and leukemia in experimental animals.

- Chamomile In European countries chamomile tea is a favorite beverage to take before going to bed. It is widely accepted as a domestic remedy for the treatment of nightmares and restless sleep, especially in children.

- Fennel "The friend of the stomach," fennel has been used since earliest times as a culinary herb and medicine. It is reputed to have a soothing effect on the mucous membrane and to be effective in helping people bothered with excessive belching and flatulence.
- Garlic The bulb of the garlic plant is widely cultivated as a culinary herb. It also stimulates the activity of the digestive and relieves problems associated with poor digestion. As an expectorant, it is useful for chronic stomach and intestinal ailments, as well as for chronic bronchitis. Garlic also regularizes the action of the liver and the gallbladder. The problem with garlic is that you inherit the smell along with the benefits.

- Japanese mint Volatile oil from the leaves is nearly 90 percent menthol; this mint is the source of most of the menthol in medicines and cosmetics.

- Sesame seeds The Babylonians loved the nut-like flavor of sesame and used the seeds in making cakes, candies, brandy and wine. Women mixed the crushed seeds with honey and ate the delicacy to tone up their sex glands.

- Thyme The oil of some species is effective against salmonella, staphylococcus and other germs. It is used in some mouthwashes and disinfectants.

- Walnut The leaves of the English walnut tree in a tea are tonic to the stomach and promote good appetite. It is also used externally as a wash or bath additive for rheumatism, gout, glandular swelling, gum problems, sweaty feet, acne, dandruff and other skin problems.

Local shopowner sells interesting seasonings

"When you buy a jar of spices in the store, you pay for the package," she says. "It's easier to buy exactly the amount you need — it's also less expensive."

Many of her customers prefer the option of buying seasonings in small quantities because spices, like everything else, can get stale — especially if they're exposed to heat and light.

"Spices don't go bad," Burch says. "They just lose their taste and they won't do what you want them to do. They should have a distinct aroma."

Also, Burch's spices are not irradiated — a practice used by some companies that exposes spices to radiation in order to kill bugs and germs. She also purchases spices and herbs dried in farms that she has visited.

Dill weed is the spice Burch says she uses most frequently — because its flavor can "perk up" practically any dish.

"It's fun to learn about," Burch says about spices. Over the years she has collected books about the subject, books she encourages her customers to browse through while enjoying a complimentary cup of coffee. She has owned the Northville store — which also stocks interesting flavors of coffee (decaffeinated, too), candy, teas, pasta and small toys — with her husband, Ken, since 1984.

"When I bought the store, I conceived it as a country store like the old-fashioned ones I remember as a kid," she says. And those stores from her childhood always smelled of spices.

Rob Procknow of Livonia scrapes paint from a fence at Tollgate 4-H Education Center

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Horses to benefit disabled

By BRENDA DOOLEY

A group of dedicated volunteers toiled in the hot sun last summer mending fences.

Eager members of area 4-H groups and the Novi Kiwanis South made a project of repairing and painting a white wooden fence at Tollgate 4-H Education Center, at the corner of Twelve Mile and Meadowbrook roads.

Eventually the fenced-in area will be used for a 4-H horseback-riding program for physically challenged people. It will be fully operated by staff workers and volunteers at the Tollgate center.

"The actual program probably won't start until the spring because we still need an inside area for people to ride," explained Cindy Richards, administrative assistant at the center.

"We're hoping to get local 4-H kids in to work with the handicapped kids," she added. "One of our goals is to get regular kids and handicapped kids to work together so they can see that they're not that different . . . and animals are usually a good ice breaker."

Richards speaks from experience. She is recovering from a closed-head injury that occurred three years ago. The Plymouth resident attributes a great deal of her recovery to riding horses at CJM Farms in Northville Township.

"There is something about the power of horses," she said. "Getting around on horses changed my life. Before, I was afraid to get out . . . now I'm back to work."

"It's uncanny how the horses are so in tune with their riders — the kids can become focused in on a ride and begin to feel that they have control. This program can build so much self-esteem."

Preliminary plans for the new horseback riding program include a 100- by 200-foot indoor riding arena, as well as a spacious outdoor riding area and trails. There will be enough stables to board 30 horses, Richards said.

When fully operational, the year-round program may accommodate as many as 120 kids daily. The only other program of its kind is Cheff Center in Augusta, near Battle Creek.

Facilities for the program are expected to be completed in 18 months to two years, although Richards and Tom Schneider, director of the center, said they hope to begin some programming sooner.

Every feature included in the outdoor and indoor arena will be designed to be accessible to all. For example, participants in the program are expected to have access to a grandstand via wooden walkways built to accommodate wheelchairs.

In addition, wider aisles in the horse barn will enable physically impaired riders to become involved in grooming and washing the horses.

They will also have a chance to clean saddles and bridles by using sinks installed at lower levels.

Richards added that the program also will be open to people with hearing and seeing impairments. A beeper system is expected to be used for blind riders, a system that will allow participants to ride a horse to different beeps emitted from the walls of the arena.

Programming decisions for the venture will be made by the state and the 4-H Handicap Council, Richards said. All instructors will be certified by the North American Riding Association, and each horse will be individually trained.

When the program gets underway, Richards said many volunteers will be needed.

"Each rider requires at least two volunteers, sometimes four," she said. "We plan to service all of southeastern Michigan, and we're looking for support from all areas."

An Ann Arbor resident has already donated a horse named "T-Ha" to the program. Donations of horse equipment are still needed, however. If interested in donating to program call Richards or Schneider at 347-3860.

Spices perk up flavor of foods

• Coriander: Its leaves have a bold taste that combines a strong sage flavor with sharp citrus tones. The roots taste like the leaves but with an added nutty flavor. It is used in the cuisines of Southeast Asia, China, Mexico, East India, South America, Spain, Central America and Central Africa. The flavor combines nicely with those of beets, onions, sausages, clams, oysters and potatoes. Whole or ground seeds add character to marinades, salad dressings, cheese, eggs, chili sauce and guacamole.

• Dill: This herb has a dominant personality and well-rounded tang. The feathery leaves are used fresh in salads and as garnishes. The seeds of the plant have a stronger flavor and are used whole or ground in longer-cooking recipes. Dill is delicious with fish (especially salmon), lamb, pork, poultry, cheese, cream, eggs, cabbage, onions, cauliflower, parsnips, squash, eggplant, spinach, potatoes, broccoli, turnips, cucumbers, carrots, green beans, tomatoes, avocados, eggs and apples. It is particularly popular in the salads, soups, sauces, spreads and fish recipes of Russia and Scandinavia.

• Fennel: It tastes like a softer and nuttier version of anise. The leaves, tender stems and seeds are used from the sweet fennel variety; the stalks and bulbs are used from the Florence fennel. Use fresh leaves in salads and as lacy garnishes. The seeds, whole and ground, are popular in desserts, breads, cakes, cookies and beverages. It fares well with fish, sausages (fennel seeds are used often in Italian sausages), duck, barley, rice, cabbage, sauerkraut, beets, pickles, potatoes, lentils, breads, eggs and cheese. The leaves and seeds lend aroma and flavor to herb butters, cheese spreads, salad dressings and Chinese marinades.

• Fenugreek: It has a nutty flavor that combines the taste of celery and maple. The seeds are used whole or ground as needed in East Indian, Pakistani and African cuisines and are used in chutney and halvah. Fenugreek enhances meats, poultry, marinated vegetables and curry blends. Use sparingly. Too much can result in a bitter taste.

• Garlic: Its taste is vibrant and oniony. The bulb of the plant, which is broken into cloves, adds dimension to all foods except desserts. Add minced garlic to herb butters, cheese spreads, breads, beans, broccoli, cauliflower, crackers, salads, stuffings, sauces, marinades, salad dressings, stews, soups, meats, fish, poultry, game, herb vinegars and flavored oils and pickles.

• Ginger: Its flavor seems to be half spice, half citrus. The root of the plant is used fresh or dried in the recipes of China, Japan, Southeast Asia, East India, the Caribbean and North Africa. Add it to beverages, fruit salads, meats, poultry, fish, preserves, pickles, sweet potatoes, winter squash, carrots, beets, pumpkin, rhubarb and peaches. Combine it with onions and garlic. Ground ginger enhances sweet puddings, quick breads, muffins, cakes and cookies.

• Marjoram: This herb is something like a mild oregano, with a hint of balsam. It is good with beef, veal, lamb, roast poultry, fish, pates, green vegetables, carrots, cauliflower, eggplant, eggs, mushrooms, parsnips, potatoes, squash and tomatoes. It complements the herbs bay, garlic, onion, thyme and basil. In Germany it is an important seasoning in sausage.

• Mushroom powder: Has the flavor of fresh mushrooms in a powder form. It stores longer than the fresh variety and can be used as a "hidden ingredient" in gravies and sauces.

• Mustard: Use whole white (or yellow) mustard seeds in making pickles and chutney. This species is the sort used to prepare the familiar bright yellow hotdog mustard, as well as the English and German types. Brown mustard goes into the French types.

• Oregano: Best known for its appearance in tomato sauce, oregano has a hot, peppery flavor. It enhances cheese and egg combinations, including omelets, fritattas, quiches and savory flans. It adds dimension to yeast breads, marinated vegetables, roasted bell peppers, mushrooms, roasted and stewed beef, pork, poultry, game, onions, black beans, zucchini, potatoes, eggplant and shellfish. Its flavor combines well with those of garlic, thyme, parsley and olive oil.

• Parsley: The parsley leaf has a gentle flavor and works especially well at blending the flavors around it. Parsley works with most foods except sweets.

• Rosemary: Its flavor combines both strong and subtle qualities — rosemary is pungent, somewhat piny, mintlike yet sweeter, with a slight ginger finale. Its flavor harmonizes with those of poultry, fish, lamb, beef, veal, pork and game, particularly in their roasted forms. Rosemary enhances tomatoes, spinach, peas, mushrooms, squash, cheese, eggs, lentils and complements the herbs chives, thyme, chervil, parsley and bay in recipes. Gentle soups like potato and eggplant benefit from its robust character, as do marinades, salad dressings and cream sauces.

• Sage: It is lemony, camphorlike and pleasantly bitter. Young leaves are eaten fresh in salads and cooked in omelets, fritters, soups, yeast breads and rolls, marinades, sausages, meat pies and poultry stuffing. They are also cooked with liver, beef, pork, veal, fish, lamb, poultry, duck, goose, artichokes, tomatoes, asparagus, carrots, squash, corn, potatoes, eggplant, snap beans, leeks, onions, brussel sprouts, cabbage, oranges, lemons, garlic, cheese, lentils and shell beans.

• Tarragon: Although it is one of the French fine herbs, tarragon can be dominating and overshadow or fight with other flavors. In general, don't use this herb with a heavy hand. It enhances fish, shellfish, pork, beef, lamb, poultry, carrots, leeks, potatoes, tomatoes, carrots, onions, artichokes, asparagus, mushrooms, cauliflower, broccoli, beets, peas, parsley, chervil, garlic, chives, lemons, oranges, rice and barley. Use it in flavored vinegars, herbed mayonnaise, herbed butters, cream sauces and soups, and with cheeses, eggs, sour cream and yogurt.

• Thyme: It tastes delicately green with a faint clove aftertaste and ranks as one of the fine herbs of French cuisine. Leaves and sprigs are used in salads as garnishes and most famously in clam chowder and French, Creole and Cajun dishes. It works well with veal, lamb, beef, poultry, fish, poultry stuffing, sausages, stews, soups, stocks, bread, herbed butters, herbed mayonnaise, flavored vinegars, mustard, and bean and lentil casseroles. Use it with tomatoes, onions, cucumbers, carrots, eggplant, parsnips, leeks, mushrooms, asparagus, green beans, broccoli, sweet peppers, potatoes, spinach, corn, peas, cheese, eggs and rice. Its flavor blends well with lemon, garlic and basil.

Build your own rink

Recipe suggested for creating ice skating area

Now that the midwest has officially succumbed to the frigid northerly gales of winter, the time has come to make a decision — insulate yourself from the cold by holing up in front of the television, or use the weather to your advantage.

Many are choosing the latter. Winter recreational activities abound in the area, from downhill and cross-country skiing to tobogganing and snowmobiling. And to avoid the frustrations of crowded recreational facilities, the key to an enjoyable winter may be in your own backyard.

With a little patience, hockey and skating aficionados can easily construct a rink to suit their needs, according to Gary Fichter, the head of Park Maintenance for The Ann Arbor Parks and Recreation Department.

The recipe for a private rink is as easy as piecing together a flat outdoor surface, a length of garden hose and a lawn sprinkler, Fichter said.

To build your rink, Fichter recommends choosing an area that is level and within reach of your garden hose. The surface should be relatively smooth and free of debris such as large stones, twigs, branches and leaves. Lawns are usually the best surfaces, he said, and the grass will not be damaged if the ice is thick enough.

The most manageable size for a rink is approximately 20 feet by 30 feet, up to 20 feet by 40 feet. It should be noted that the larger the rink, the more time and water will be required for construction.

To build a base for your rink, try to begin construction over a layer of snow. The snow acts as a reflective surface and will not absorb the heat of the sun. Snow can also be used to form a bank around the rink which will hold in water and cushion the fall of wayward skaters.

The building phase should actually begin after the outdoor temperature has been 20 degrees or below for four or more consecutive days. Check the extended weather forecast, too. Warm spells can put a quick damper on a backyard hockey game.

To build the rink, set a lawn sprinkler on the desired site in the evening and turn on the water. The sprinkler should be checked about every 15 minutes to make sure the operation is proceeding smoothly.

As the ice builds in one spot, the sprinkler should be moved to another location. Cover the rink area with a base and repeat the process another two or three evenings to establish a good base. Daytime sprinkling should be avoided unless temperatures are low enough to permit quick freezing.

Also, remember to disconnect the

The finishing work should also be done in the evening hours or in temperatures 20 degrees or below.

To maintain the surface, keep brushed off the ice. Use the nozzle method described above to spray light coats of water to fill in scratches and grooves.

With proper care, an outdoor skating surface should provide plenty of winter recreation for the whole family.

hose and take it inside to keep it from freezing.

After the base of the rink is made, remove the sprinkler from the hose and replace it with a nozzle. To finish the ice for skating spray the ice by hand with a sweeping motion, using a fine spray. Aim the nozzle upward and let the water fall to the surface. Application should be done in thin coats, as too much water can ruin the base.

The Northville Record

Unbeaten Northville tankers clobber Salem

Northville's Brad Cook shows his freestyle form in action earlier this season

Record/CHRIS FARINA

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

If you hadn't noticed, the Northville tankers are on a roll, and even a three-week holiday break couldn't quell the momentum.

For confirmation, just ask a solid Plymouth Salem squad, who were clobbered by the streaking Mustangs 93-79 on Jan. 11. It was Northville's third dual meet victory in three tries so far this season.

"Once again, we swam very well," Mustang Coach Mark Heiden said. "We had more personal best times than in any other meet. Our times continue to drop, and that's a good sign."

The list of standouts is very long, but junior Eric Newton has to be at the top with a school record, a state meet qualifying cut and a season-best split all to his credit against the Rocks. Heiden also singles out Matt Hanna and Chris Handyside for their fine efforts.

"As we keep winning the big meets, our confidence keeps building and building," he said. "But we are always cautious about being overconfident."

Northville notched victories in nine of 11 events, and Brad Cook led the way with wins in the 100-yard butterfly (57.10) and the 200 IM (personal best 2:07.56). The most impressive first-place effort, however, came from Newton who made the state cut in the 500 freestyle with a 4:51.09 effort.

"That time was as fast as Eric's time in the preliminaries of the state meet last year," Heiden pointed out. "That's really something considering he did it this early in the season."

The rest of the Mustang wins came from Hanna in the 100 breaststroke (1:07.67), Andy Wayne in the 100 backstroke (1:02.23), Handyside in the 50 freestyle (23.32), Larry Osiecki in diving (243.35 points) and Bob Holdridge in the 100 freestyle (51.72). The 400 freestyle relay team of Cook, Handyside, Holdridge and Newton also placed first (3:24.18), but missed a state meet cut by just two-tenths of a second.

The runner-up finishes included Newton's school-record time of 1:50.82 in the 200 freestyle, Holdridge in the 200 IM (personal best 2:09.35) and Handyside in the 100 freestyle (52.25). The Northville thirds came from Jason Stringer in the 200 freestyle (2:00.40) and the 100 butterfly (59.86), Wayne in the 50 freestyle (23.95) and Steve Lang in diving (225.75).

"Things are going very well," Heiden said. "We've been able to stay healthy for the most part and the kids are working very hard. The guys keep each other going because we have such good team-cohesiveness."

The Mustangs (3-0 overall, 2-0 in the WLA) will host North Farmington today (Jan. 18) before traveling to Novi to take on the Wildcats in a non-conference clash on Jan. 23.

Cagers pull out win at Harrison

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Farmington Harrison's great football tradition sometimes spills over onto the basketball court, and that mystique causes many teams a lot of heartache — especially when playing on the Hawk's home court.

After years of frustration, the Northville cagers put an end to that situation with an exciting and close 63-62 victory over Harrison on Jan. 12. It was the second road win in two tries since the holiday break for the high-flying Mustangs, who are now 4-2 overall, 2-0 in WLA play.

"We haven't had a lot of luck beating (Harrison) over there," Mustang Coach Omar Harrison said. "They have a sort of stigma as the state's top football program, and it carries over to other sports. It was something we had to overcome, so we told the kids that we are playing basketball, not football. I guess they got the message."

Northville kept it close early, but a rally in the third quarter put Harrison ahead by nine heading into the final eight minutes. Undaunted, the Mustangs fought back, put themselves in a position to win, and then pulled it out on a 10-foot bucket from the baseline by senior Paul Grant with 17 seconds remaining.

"The kids really hung in there until the end, kept it close, and when you do that, it's anybody's ballgame," Harrison said. "The thing I really respect about our players is that they never quit and they never got down on themselves, even when we fell back by nine. We didn't fold and that was the difference."

The locals fell behind 14-10 after one quarter but came back to take a four-point halftime lead (30-26). Young guards Ryan Huzjak (So.) and Bill Kelley (Jr.) keyed the comeback, combining for seven points in the second period — including a clutch three-pointer by Kelley.

"Bill's three pointer was a big one," Harrison said. "It really gave us a boost heading into the locker room."

Led by All-American football player Mill Coleman, the Hawks regained the lead in the third with a 27-14 run. The rally included four, three pointers — two from Coleman. Down 53-44, Northville crawled back into contention in the fourth, and eventually narrowed the margin to two, 61-59, with just over a minute on the clock. After Coleman missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw opportunity, Mustang center Scott Meredith rebounded the ball and was fouled. He hit both of his free throws to tie the game.

When Northville regained possession with about 30 seconds left, the Hawks were up 62-61, but Grant's jumper gave the Mustangs the lead for the first time since early in the second half. The Hawks then missed a 10-footer that would have given them the lead with three seconds left, and Meredith hauled down the miss.

In the final period, Mike Lang scored six points and Meredith added four free throws in five attempts. Meredith paced the balanced Northville attack with 15 points and 15 rebounds. Lang added 14 and Kelley chipped in 13. Coieman had 14 for the Hawks.

"So much of this game is mental, and after this win, the kids have confidence in themselves," Harrison said. "It could end up being a big one for us."

MILLER TIME: Former Farmington Harrison and Michigan State football great, and current Detroit Lion defensive back, John Miller had his No. 44 jersey retired at halftime of the Northville-Harrison basketball game on Jan. 12.

Miller led the Hawks to the Class A football title in 1982 and the Spartans to the 1987 Big Ten title and 1988 Rose Bowl victory.

The ceremony marked the first time a former Harrison player has been so honored, but probably not the last. Mill (The Thrill) Coleman, the all-time leading passer in Michigan High School history, will probably be next on the list.

NORTHVILLE 64, FARMINGTON 53: The Mustangs started the week with an impressive road win over the Falcons on Jan. 9.

"The long holiday layover gave us a chance to work some things out," Harrison said. "Farmington is a pesky team — they are not an easy win. I felt we could beat them if we played well, but I was concerned about going over there."

After an evenly-played first quarter, Northville took command by outscoring Farmington 20-11 in the second quarter to take a 31-22 advantage into the break. Grant led the assault with nine points.

The Falcons cut into the lead in the second half and eventually pulled to within four midway through the fourth quarter. But a strange, eight-point possession for the Mustangs built the lead back into double-figures and Farmington never recovered.

Here's what happened: Lang hit a left-handed hook, was fouled, and converted the free throw. Arguing the call, a Farmington player was hit with a technical, and Lang hit both of the technical foul shots. On the ensuing possession, Joe Kaley nailed the three pointer.

"The big thing was, obviously, the eight-point possession," Harrison said. "In a matter of a few seconds, we sealed the win for ourselves. We were good and we were lucky, and that's a good combination to have."

Lang and Kaley shared scoring honors with 14 points each. Grant and Paul McCreadie added 13 apiece and Meredith grabbed 14 rebounds.

The Mustangs will host Plymouth Canton tomorrow (Jan. 19). It is the team's first home game since Dec. 15.

Mustang grapplers dump Hawks 58-7

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The Mustang grapplers moved their Western Lake League record to 3-1 on Jan. 11 with an easy 58-7 triumph over an obviously-overmatched squad from Farmington Harrison. It was just the beginning of a busy week for Northville, who went 3-2 in dual meets over the weekend at the six-team Novi Round-Robin Tournament.

Against Harrison, the locals were victorious in 11 of 13 bouts, including seven pins and a total of 27 takedowns. No school records are kept for takedowns in a match, but the total is probably an all-time high.

"It went about as we expected, but I must admit we didn't think we'd win by that much," Northville Coach Bob Boshoven said. "We really wrestled well. It was probably as aggressive as I've ever seen our kids on their feet. We really went after takedowns — we had 27 to their six."

In the 103-pound division, Matt Allison pinned Brett Harvey in 5:30 and that started the "pin parade." Brandon Mardossian (125) pinned Eric Brown in 3:21, Jamie Ryder (130) pinned Mark Rebtoy in 29 seconds, Jarrett Beer (135) pinned Chris Roberts in 18 seconds, Garnet Potter (145) pinned Dave Gloetzner in 1:17, Bob Townsend (160) pinned Craig Pattison in 2:37 and Curt Cureton (152) pinned Mark Gloetzner in 2:37.

The rest of the wins came from Kevin Khashan (112) — a 14-4 winner over Dave Prusinski; Dave Kovacovich (119) — a 9-4 winner against Doug Whitten; and Jeff Lower (189) — a 13-11 winner over Brian Ross. Stefan Filkin won at heavyweight by default.

NOVI ROUND-ROBIN TOURNAMENT: The Mustangs went 3-2 in this six-way dual meet on Jan. 13, and placed third overall, but Boshoven was a bit disappointed — especially with his team's 37-28 loss to Novi.

"Losing to Novi was very disappointing," he said. "We didn't wrestle well — at least not up to our potential. We had a problem staying off our backs, and that hurt. We were out-pinned 5-3."

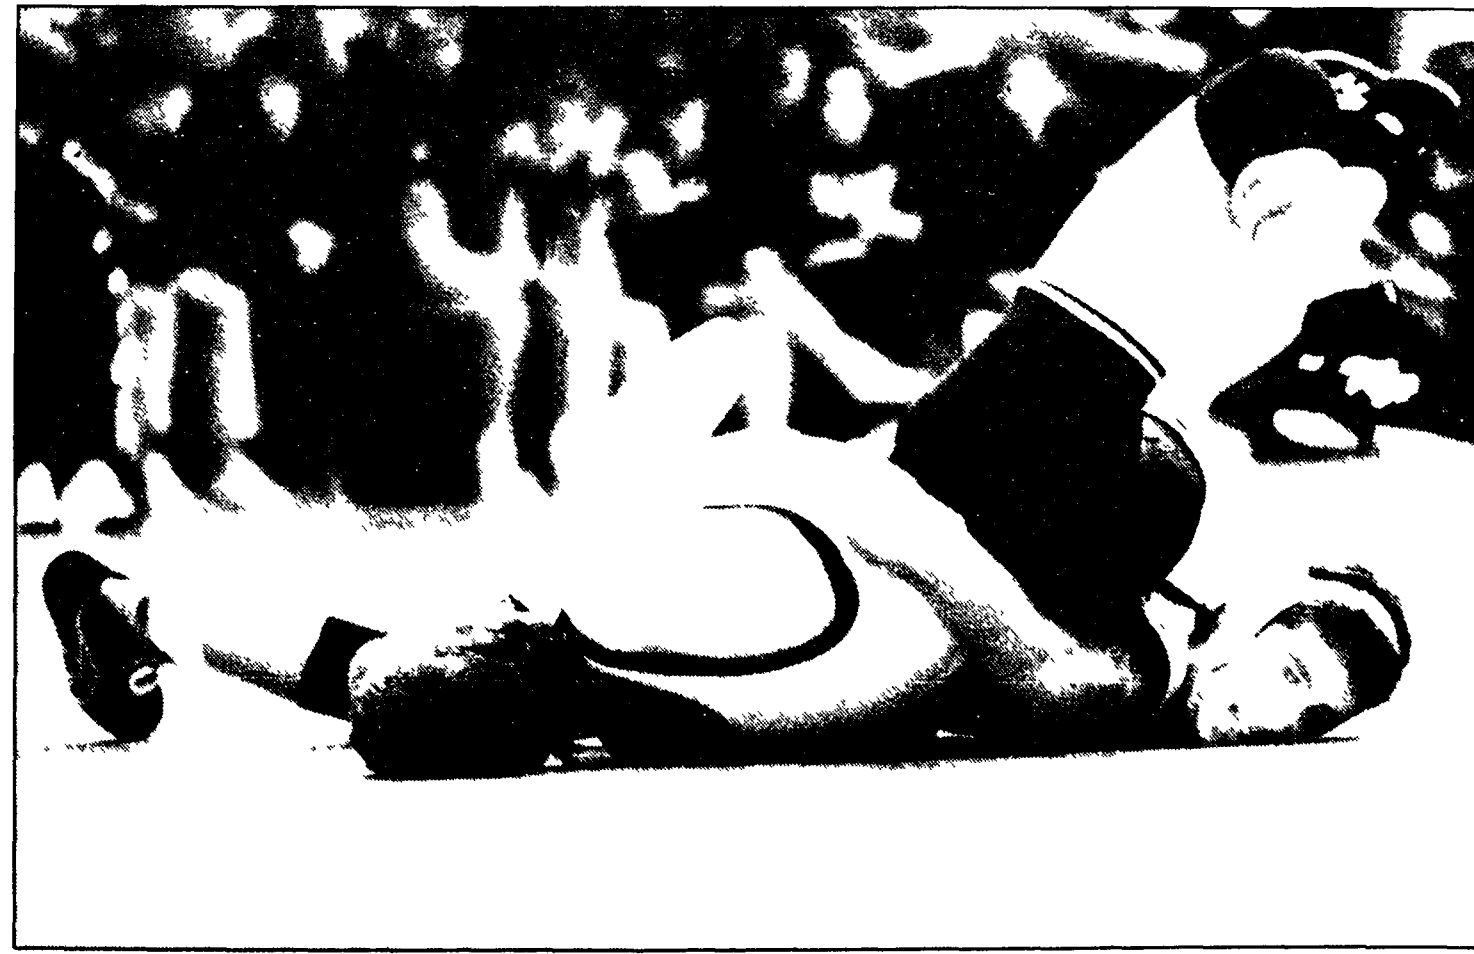

In 13 bouts, Northville managed just six wins. The winners included Khashan at 112, Kovacovich at 119, Mardossian at 125, Potter at 145, Bob Townsend at 160 and Jason Vertrees at 171.

The biggest victory of the meet came at 160, where Townsend came from behind to edge Novi's Jeff O'Neill, 6-2. O'Neill — a defending Kensington Valley Conference champion — was ahead 2-1 with 30 seconds remaining.

If the Novi match was the most disappointing, Northville's 68-3 win over Dearborn Edsel Ford was a highlight. The Mustangs featured wins by Allison (103), Khashan, Kovacovich, Mardossian, Ryder (130), Beer (135), Kevin Delaney (140), Potter, Townsend, Vertrees, Lower (189) and Filkin (heavyweight).

"Ford is having a real down year," Boshoven said. "It was our first match of the tournament, so it was nice to get an easy win right off the bat because it helps get the confidence going."

The most important victories on the day for Northville probably came against Farmington (51-17) and Wall Lake Western (45-22) — two WLA members. Grapplers with wins in both matches were Allison, Khashan, Mardossian, Potter, Townsend, Vertrees and Filkin.

"Farmington is in our conference, so it was a good opportunity to see how we match up with them," Boshoven said. "Especially with the league meet coming up in a few weeks."

"We took on Western at the end, so it was the fifth match of the day. I don't know how accurate a picture we can get from it because a lot of our guys were tired, and Western used a lot of J.V. kids."

The Mustangs lost to the eventual champions from Gibraltar Carlson 40-29 in the fifth and final match of the tournament. Northville won six times (Khashan, Mardossian, Delaney, Potter, Townsend and Vertrees).

"They've got a very strong squad," Boshoven said. "I thought we wrestled much better than we did against Novi, but we still lost by two more points. We've seen top-rated Temperance-Bedford and Plymouth Salem and I'd say Gibraltar Carlson is close to that category."

Even though the tournament was nothing more than five separate dual meets, individual awards were given out at its conclusion. The Mustangs boasted five champions, including Khashan at 112 (5-0 record, two pins); Mardossian at 125 (5-0, two pins); Potter at 145 (5-0, four pins); Townsend at 160 (5-0, three pins); and Vertrees at 171 (5-0, three pins). Potter was the unanimous choice as 'Outstanding Wrestler of the Tournament' in a vote by the coaches.

Northville (7-4-1 overall, 3-1 in the WLA, 2-0 in Western Division) will host Plymouth Canton today (Jan. 18) in another key intra-division battle.

Northville spikers hold-off Falcons

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

If last Wednesday's (Jan 10) match with Farmington is any indication, Northville volleyball Coach Paul Osborn likes the new rule where every WLAA dual meet is now a best three-of-five contest.

That's because his Mustangs — who played poorly in the first two games against the Falcons — were able to end on a positive note in game three. Northville won the match in straight games 15-13, 16-14, 17-15, but under last year's best two-of-three format, that third game never would have been played.

"The coaches in our league have been asking for the best three-of-five format for three seasons now," Osborn said. "We pulled all three of the games out, but we really didn't play well at all — especially in the first two."

What bothered Osborn more than anything else was that his team blew a pair of commanding leads in games one and two and had to hold on down the stretch. It was — simply — too close for comfort.

"I think the girls just relaxed a little when we got the leads," he said. "If we would have blown the first two games, it would have taken the girls some time to recover. We got lucky because although we had spurts of greatness, we weren't consistent."

In the opener, the Mustangs cruised out to a 12-6 lead before Farmington staged a comeback that fell just short. The Falcons, however, ended up outscoring Northville 7-3 the rest of the way.

Game two was almost a replay of game one. This time the locals built a 12-4 advantage, then faded. Farmington notched 10 of the final 14 points to extend the game past the 15-point barrier, but the Mustangs held on — thanks in part to some fine net play by Colleen Hesse.

The third and final game was full of streaks. The Falcons jumped in front

6-1 but then the Mustangs narrowed the gap to 6-4. Farmington rallied again to pull ahead by five (11-6) only to see Northville score 11 of the next 15 points, including a 6-1 streak, that ended the game and the match.

"It was our best game of the match," Osborn admitted. "The girls played well and served well, finally, after two bad games. The attitude and hustle of this group is always great, so I can't complain about that. They are a very positive group and that's a good sign."

As a team, the Northville statistics were mediocre for the most part. The Mustangs served at an 84-percent clip (72-for-87), were successful on 70 percent of their hitting attempts (28-of-40) and were good on 59-of-71 sets for 83 percent. The team's serve reception totals (41-for-59) were also very low.

Individually, Ashley MacLean was 5-for-5 on hits and 11-for-16 at the service line with one ace and Karen Vogt added nine hits, in 14 tries and chipped in one kill. But Hesse was the standout in game two with four of her team-high six solo blocks coming near the end of a very close battle.

Northville (2-0 overall, 1-0 in the WLAA) will get back into action on Jan. 22 for a road match with Western-Division foe Livonia Churchill.

Brooklane Golf Professional John Koch demonstrates his video teaching system

Golf pro to demonstrate video system

The winter months can be very depressing for dedicated golfers. No sunny afternoons on the links, soaking in the sun and missing three-foot putts.

But Brooklane Golf Course professional John Koch can help you improve your game even though the snow and ice are building up on your favorite course at this very minute. Koch, who has $11,000 worth of video equipment for teaching and correcting the golf swing, will demonstrate his program at an open house tonight (Jan. 18) from 6-9 p.m.

"In the winter months, I use the video equipment quite a bit because all the teaching and practicing must be done indoors," Koch said. "I've been using the program for about nine months now and I feel I know more about it and am able to teach more effectively than, say, six months ago."

The 'Quixote Computer Program' is designed specifically for golf and requires a variety of equipment —

"In the winter months, I use the video equipment quite a bit because all the teaching and practicing must be done indoors. I've been using the program for about nine months now and I feel I know more about it and am able to teach more effectively than, say, six months ago."

like a television, two digital VCRs and a video camera — in addition to the computer and program. While students practice hitting golf balls, Koch is busy videotaping the swing and then is able to break it down 160 frames per second.

With the help of the computer program, he then plays back the swing to analyze everything from the address to the follow-through. This is done with special graphic lines plotted on the screen. He can stop the tape at any time as well.

Koch also shows tapes of professionals on the PGA Tour and analyzes what they are doing correctly. He then relates certain common denominators to his students.

"I am learning more about the swing as I go along and can spot what people are doing wrong more easily," he said. "I feel like I am perfecting the art of using the video to teach."

For the open house, Koch will have the entire video system on display and will be giving demonstrations. If time permits, he will analyze individual swings for anyone who attends.

"I want to introduce anyone who is interested in graphic teaching," Koch said.

Koch was the first professional in the State of Michigan to employ such a sophisticated system. Brooklane also has an indoor range for those who have had their swings analyzed and want to put their adjustments into practice.

Brooklane is located on the corner of Sheldon and Six Mile in Northville Township.

Parents: beware of 'Nintendo Neck'

Parents, heed this warning. Beware of "Nintendo neck." No lie, there is such an ailment. The highly popular computer games played with a television set may be giving your children more than hours of challenging enjoyment. Indirectly, the games may be giving kids a giant pain in the neck.

Before panicking, it would be wise to pay attention to how your kids are playing Nintendo.

After spending hours hunched over video games, children of all ages may fall victim to "Nintendo neck," according to Dr. Robert Ducharme of Rochester, president of the Michigan Chiropractic Society.

Ducharme describes Nintendo neck as an ailment suffered primarily by children — a relative of "computer neck" distress suffered by adults who spend long hours at computers or VDTs (video display terminals). Computer neck also results in aching necks and sore muscles.

"Nintendo neck can strike anyone who is addicted to the wonder of video games. The problem can be serious and involves the back and neck muscles, as well as the spinal vertebrae."

Ducharme said the problem comes from lying on the floor on the stomach or side with an arm under the chin or head.

"It puts an abnormal amount of pressure on the structure of the body, particularly the cervical (neck) area," he said. "Abnormal viewing positions over extended periods of time tend to cramp vertebrae, which puts pressure on the discs that cushion the spine."

After lying in such a position for a prolonged time period, the result can be pinched nerves which may cause pain or affect various functions of the Prevention of "Nintendo neck" and its effects, however, is relatively simple.

Ducharme advised that the problem and the pain associated with it can be avoided by playing video games while seated in a chair. No more lying carelessly on the floor while trying to zap the video enemies off the television screen.

Because the popularity of Nintendo games is steadily rising, chiropractors throughout the state suspect that the problem may be widespread. If your child complains of a stiff neck or tense muscles, the cause may be "Nintendo neck."

"Much criticism has been made about what children watch on television and whether it is harmful to their minds," Ducharme added. "But not enough has been said about how they watch television and if it is harmful to their bodies."

Most foot ailments can be prevented

By DAN PEPER
and DOUG GRAMBEAU

We've all heard the saying, "feet don't fail me now!" Considering the fact that these oft-forgotten soles carry each of us an average of three times around the world over the course of our lives, it is a wonder they don't fail us more often than they do.

With 26 bones, 56 ligaments and 38 muscles each, our feet absorb 1,000 tons of force per day so it's not hard to figure out why some problems do crop up. However, with a little bit of forethought and planning, the majority of these ailments can be prevented.

Overuse is, understandably, the most common foot problem most of us encounter. The target area generally affected is the Achilles tendon, which attaches the calf muscle to the heel bone. Tendinitis can often be the result. Proper stretching before and after exercise can help prevent painful Achilles tendon injuries. Avoid running on hard surfaces and work on strengthening your calf muscles as well. Finally, when purchasing new shoes, make sure they fit properly and are shock-absorbing.

Plantar Fasciitis is another common ailment of the feet which is caused through overstretching or tearing of the arch fascia (the gristle covering the muscle on the bottom of the foot, running from heel to toe). Tenderness and pain in the front of the heel bone or in the arch can be caused by sudden turns in direction, inadequate shoe and arch support, too stiff soles, and rolling inward of the foot. Increasing your warm-up time gradually, avoiding hard surfaces and steep inclines as well as buying shoes that are highly cushioned and flexible will all contribute to the alleviation of this potentially nagging injury.

For those of us that are generally active and maintain a fairly regular exercise schedule, stress fractures can be one of the most frustrating of all injuries to our feet. Difficult to diagnose with initial x-ray, these hairline cracks cause severe pain. While a cast is not normally needed, rest is a requirement for the healing process. Again, careful selection of shoes, proper preparation before and after exercise and working out on softer surfaces will help prevent these injuries.

Blisters, callouses, corns, athlete's foot and black nail (the entire nail turns a dark, bruised color) are all common and less serious problems. In general, properly fitted shoes, attention to hygiene (dry carefully, apply moisturizer if needed, powder before putting on socks and trim nails straight across — don't cut out the corners) and proper medical attention if problem persists are all you need to ensure your feet the comfort they deserve.

Take a minute to check out your shoes and the condition of your feet in general. A small investment today may pay the large dividends in comfort and lack of problems in the future.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.

MIA DeHART

Gymnasts score 126 in victory

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Northville gymnastics coach Michelle Charniga expected her team to improve with each outing, but she never expected such a big turnaround in the short span of 48 hours.

Just two days and one practice after a lackluster defeat at North Farmington, the Mustangs rebounded with a vengeance to trounce Farmington 126.7-109.05 on Jan. 10 in the 1990 season opener. It was an improvement of more than 11 points.

"It really makes you wonder how we could jump 11 points so quickly," Charniga said. "It was at home and the girls seemed more relaxed. I knew these kids were capable of scoring this high. I'll tell you this — they felt a lot better going home after beating Farmington than they did after we lost to North Farmington."

Northville outpointed the Falcons in all four events. The highlight of the meet was super-sophomore Mia DeHart's 9.05 score in the parallel bars, which was good for first place honors and set a personal record.

"It was Mia's highest score ever in bars," Charniga said. "She had an awesome night — that's for sure."

The rest of the Mustangs efforts included Lee LaChance in second place (8.35), Becky Carney in fourth (7.25), Megan Graham (6.05), Sue Okasinski (4.65) and Kristen Brown (4.4). The top three Northville scorers surpassed the MHSAA Regional qualifying cutoff. The Mustangs outpointed Farmington 30.7-26.8 in the event, which was a five-point improvement over the previous effort against North Farmington.

Northville registered four more regional qualifying scores in vault, and that translated into a 32.4-29.7 advantage for the locals. This time LaChance paced all the competitors with an 8.25, DeHart was second (8.2), Melanie Apligian third (8.1) and Ris Fleming fifth (7.85). The rest of the Mustang scores came from Carney (7.55) and Liz Torok (7.3).

DeHart came back to score a 9.0 en route to a first-place tie in the balance beam — her second score of the evening in the nines. Freshman Lisa Hojnacki added a 7.5 to place third. She was followed by Graham (6.95), LaChance (6.9), Fleming (6.45) and Torok (6.2). Northville won the event 30.35-27.35.

The Mustangs swept the top five places and scored 33.25 as a team in the final event — the floor exercise. DeHart was first (8.75), LaChance second (8.45), Surdu third (8.05), Torok fourth (8.0) and Leslie Allen fifth (7.5). Newcomer Jeni Couzens chipped in with a 5.85.

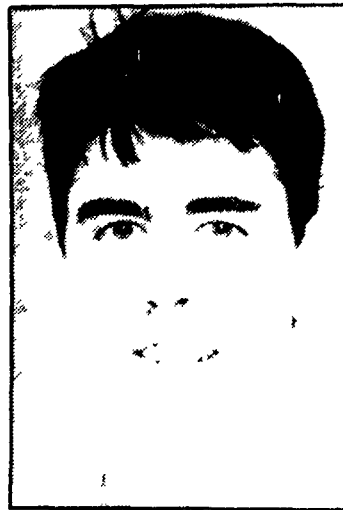

The undisputed star of the meet was DeHart, who won the all-around competition with a score of 35.00 — her highest point total ever.

Northville (1-1 overall and in the WLLA) won't get back into action until Jan. 29 against always-tough Plymouth Canton.

Mustangs of the Week

Mia DeHart's outstanding performances for the Northville gymnasts are commonplace, but her effort in last week's 126.7-109.05 win over Farmington was one of the best ever. The sophomore standout won three-of-four events, set a personal record in the uneven parallel bars, and another lifetime best score in the all-around. It's easy to see why she is a 'Mustang of the Week.' In the parallel bars, DeHart took the honors with an outstanding 9.05. She added wins in the balance beam (9.0) and the floor exercise (8.75) and was second in the vault (8.2). Her all-around score was 35.00. "Mia had an awesome night — that's for sure," Northville Coach Michelle Charniga

In just three events and just one meet, junior swimmer Eric Newton had a school record, a state meet qualifying cut and a season-best split in a relay race to his credit. We're sure you'll agree that it was a 'Mustang of the Week' kind of performance. Newton's school record came in the 200-yard freestyle race (1:50.82), but he had to settle for second-place honors. His qualifying time came in the 500 freestyle (4:51.09) and his season-best split for the 100 freestyle came in his leg of the 400 freestyle relay event (49.6) — and both were first-place efforts.
