DeLand calls industrial development plan premature

By MIKE TYREE

A proposal which would bring approximately 300 acres of light industrial development to Northville Township is premature, according to the chairperson of the township planning commission.

Planning Commission Chairperson Charles DeLand recently said that a proposed development plan for 930 acres of county land purchased by the R.A. DeMattia Company may not be compatible with the township's development goals.

Speaking about a concept map

• Special report on county land, its history and future/10-11A showcased by the DeMattia firm, DeLand said he would frown upon the addition of large tracts of industrial base to the township.

"The (DeMattia) plan I saw had too much intensive industrial development," DeLand said. "Industrial research and development brings tax base, but too much of that is shortsighted tax base.

"You have to be careful," he added. "Too much (industrial) will devalue a community."

According to DeMattia's concept map, the 930 acres would be divided into roughly equal portions of light industrial, open space/recreation area and residential development.

DeLand said a planning commission subcommittee, formed the day before the Jan. 24 announcement of DeMattia's $32-million purchase of the county land, has been studying a planned unit development (PUD) ordinance which would set land-use guidelines for the county land.

The subcommittee will present its PUD plan at the March 27 meeting of the planning commission, DeLand said.

"I asked the subcommittee to prepare a PUD ordinance and a master plan of land use for that area," he said. "I'm sure there will be considerable discussion at the (March 27) meeting."

The PUD is a land-use strategy that enables developers to increase residential and/or industrial intensity in return for tighter control of some facets of the development by local municipalities.

DeLand said the adoption of a PUD ordinance would allow the township to negotiate with the developer within a strict set of guidelines.

"They may have to negotiate with us," he said. "But the impression is that he and the company are of very high integrity, and he should be a very good person to work with, based on media accounts."

Everyone counts in census

By STEVE KELLMAN

Though a person's worth to his or her community may be immeasurable, a dollar figure can be set on at least part of that amount.

Much of the revenue that a local community receives from the state is figured on a per-capita basis, which has real implications for the results of the 1990 census. In short, the more people a community has, according to the census, the more money that community will receive from the state.

The city and township both receive revenues back from the state from sales tax, income tax, and single-business taxes. The state-retained revenues go into the local government's general fund, for use as the local government sees fit.

While the amount of sales tax revenue that the communities receive is based on a per capita amount, the other two taxes are multiplied by the community's "relative tax effort factor," a number that reflects the local community's millage rate as compared to the average millage rate for both cities and townships across the state.

For the city this year, that factor is 1.208, while for the township the factor is about .271. The different numbers reflect the fact the city's millage rate is higher than the state average for cities and townships, while the township's rate is much lower. Cities typically have a higher millage rate than townships.

According to projections from the state Office of Management and Budget, Northville City is expected to receive $78.64 per person in state-retained revenue this year, while the township should receive about $52.92.

The communities should also receive about $81 per person for gas and weight tax revenues. Those revenues are earmarked for local and major road improvements.

While the city receives that money directly, the township's share goes to Wayne County, which is charged with maintaining the townships' roads. "The township doesn't get that directly," explained City Manager Steven Walters. "But it's still a per-capita distribution to that jurisdiction."

The city's total population was figured at 5,698 during the 1980 census. The township's population, 12,987 in 1980, was refigured at 14,276 during a special 1987 census.

Even using those old figures, the city would receive $910,000 in state-retained revenues this year. The township would receive $755,000 directly from the state, with the township's share of the gas and weight tax revenue going to the county.

And those numbers do not reflect the results of this year's census.

"Needless to say, it's worth it for people to fill out their forms and be counted," said Township Finance Director James Graham.

Clean sweep

Township Firefighter Mike Evans brooms a grass fire which occurred on the county land near the Julia Molloy Hall, west of Sheldon Road. According to Township Fire Chief Robert Toms, the fire "didn't start by itself." The blaze was reported at 12:56 p.m. on Monday, March 19 and was extinguished by 1:10 the same afternoon. For a complete look at the history and future of the Wayne County land, see a special report on pages 10-11A.

City sets shared services hearing

By STEVE KELLMAN

After more than a month of negotiations, the Northville City Council is on the verge of accepting a new cooperative services agreement with the township.

Now, all that is needed is public input on the proposal.

With that aim in mind, the council scheduled a public hearing for Monday, March 26 to discuss the agreement. The council could then vote on acceptance of the agreement at its April 2 meeting.

Under the proposed agreement, the city would be responsible for funding half of 25,000 square feet of the proposed Haller Library complex. The township would shoulder the cost of the building's remaining 19,800 square feet.

The township board accepted the city's previous proposal on March 8, after altering a single word in the cooperative services document.

"The board substituted the word 'equitably' for the word 'equally' in a portion of the proposal which dealt with the disposition of the Haller complex assets in the event that the city and township dissolve the agreement."

The agreement determines the share of funding for shared services including senior citizens, Youth Assistance, community recreation and community library services.

Official fears landfill history may repeat itself

By SHEILA PHILLIPS

Some Eight Mile and Napier area residents are having a case of déjà vu, brought on by Holloway Construction Co.'s recent landfill proposal.

Holloway representatives have maintained that the company will only put construction waste in the landfill.

But local residents have heard that before.

Holloway applied for a construction permit in Salem Township back in 1968 to fill in a 78-acre gravel pit site on the southwest corner of Six Mile and Napier roads. That site later became the Arbor Hills Landfill.

"We fear that Holloway will do the same thing on the Eight Mile and Napier site," said Northville Supervisor Georgina Goss.

But she said the township will do all it can to make sure that history does not repeat itself.

"We will do everything we can to fight the landfill and are willing to work with the City of Novi if it needs us," she said. "We are also willing to help out local citizen groups."

According to an article in the Dec. 31, 1968 issue of the South Lyon Herald, Holloway attorney Harry Meisner assured township officials and local residents that only inert or non-decaying material would be landfilled on the future Arbor Hills site at the time a township permit was granted.

However, Holloway later sold the landfill to Browning-Ferris Industries. The site is now being used as a type II solid-waste facility which is not limited to construction waste.

Officials at Holloway did not return phone calls and could not be reached for comment by press time.

However, circumstances surrounding the Eight Mile site are not identical to the Six Mile situation back in 1968.

Oakland County solid waste engineer Gerald Miley said that it is more difficult to convert a type III construction landfill to a type II solid-waste use under current Department of Natural Resources guidelines.

"Converting a type III landfill to a type II is not an easy thing to do any more," he said. "The DNR has stiffer design requirements for type II landfills."

He said that unless Holloway builds its type III landfill up to type II standards, it would be difficult to convert to conventional solid-waste use.

Holloway would also have to upgrade the site on the county's solid-waste plan and apply for an additional DNR permit.

To be upgraded on the county plan, Holloway would have to get review board permission. This board would consist of solid-waste committee members and representatives from the City of Novi, according to Miley.

A public hearing would also be required.

The City of Novi is still opposed to the proposed construction use and is taking steps to ensure that no landfill of any kind ends up on the Eight Mile site.

The county solid waste committee is expected to review Holloway's construction landfill proposal at its April 5 meeting. Committee member and Novi Mayor Pro Tem Ed Leininger has said that he will make a motion to strike the site from the county plan if it is still on the plan at that time.

Novi's Oakland County commissioner, John Calandro, has been reviewing Holloway's proposal and said that he is ready to take action.

When asked what that action is, he replied, "I have no comment."

After being asked why he would not reveal his intended action, he said, "I need to talk with Mr. Leininger, other city officials and some of the my fellow commissioners before I say anything."

"Let's just say that I have some concerns about the site," he added.

City tackles solid waste issue

By STEVE KELLMAN

It may not be a pretty sight, but Northville City officials are rolling up their sleeves to tackle the issue of refuse disposal and recycling.

Officials are currently preparing a flyer to inform the citizens of proposed changes to the city's recycling center, and fine-tuning a new Refuse and Recycling ordinance to replace the city's current Garbage and Rubbish ordinance. The current ordinance has no provision for the disposal of recyclable materials.

The city council debated several changes to the proposed ordinance on Monday night, including the requirement that clear plastic bags be required for the disposal of all refuse and recyclables as of July 1.

The council had previously discussed a recommendation by City Manager Steven Walters to require all trash and recyclable materials to be placed in clear plastic bags by May 1.

Several members suggested Monday that only recyclable materials need be placed in clear bags. The city had previously agreed to require grass clippings to be separated at the curb.

Said Walters, "People are going to be able to get around doing this to some extent. It's only going to be on a visual basis that the trash collectors are going to be able to function at all."

"That's the dilemma of how you're going to discern whether recyclables are being separated from the trash," he said.

He also agreed that leaving garbage in normal trash bags and placing recyclable materials in clear bags may be an alternative, if a limit is set on the amount of garbage that will be collected.

"It may be that we want to say clear bags for grass only," he said. He also pointed out that containers like plastic or metal trash cans can be used instead of bags for both garbage and recyclable collection.

The council was generally in favor of the new ordinance, though members suggested several minor changes. Council Member Jerry Mittman recommended specifying in the ordinance where materials such as paints, drain oil, and other prohibited rubbish can be disposed of.

One unique aspect of the proposed ordinance is its inclusion of a "List of Recyclable Refuse." The list would include materials that should be separated out of the normal household garbage for collection and disposal at someplace other than a landfill. The ordinance allows the list to be changed as the number of recyclable materials grows, without

NEWS BRIEFS

DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS — An article in last week's Record on a resolution passed by the Township Board opposing a construction-waste landfill proposed for a site on Eight Mile and Napier included a quote from Trustee Thomas Handyside which said the landfill owners would have to investigate the effects of such a facility on the lives of residents. Handyside's statement should have read: "The proposed landfill will have an impact on the quality of life for Northville Township residents with no effort to mitigate these effects." The Record regrets the error.

An article in the Feb. 22 issue of the Record called Pastor Mark Freer of the Open Door Church the leader of an anti-abortion demonstration in Northville the previous week. Though he acted as a spokesman for the group, Freer did not lead the demonstration. Also, the pastor was not involved with demonstrations on Feb. 24 or March 17.

CHEERLEADER TRYOUTS — The first pre-tryout meeting for cheerleading at Northville High School will be held on Friday, March 30 from 6:30-8:30 p.m. in the High School Activity Center.

Those students interested in cheerleading at the High School should attend this meeting. Clinics will be held Monday, April 2 through Thursday, April 5 from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Tryouts will be held on Friday, April 6 from 5-9:30 p.m.

SPRING STORYTIME — Northville Public Library's Spring Preschool Storytime registration will begin today, Thursday, March 22. Children, 3½ to 5 years old, and not yet in kindergarten, may enroll for either of the 10:30 a.m. or 1 p.m. programs which will take place on Wednesdays, April 4 through May 16. There will be no storytime on April 18. Parents are asked to remain in the library during these half hour sessions. To register, visit the library or call 349-3020.

SCHOOL BOARD POSITIONS OPEN — Nominating petitions for Northville Board of Education positions are due by 4 p.m. April 9, according to John Street, director of business and finance.

Street said 20 valid signatures are needed to nominate a person for the two open board positions. The date of the school election is June 11 and Street said interested parties can contact the Business Office at 501 W. Main, or call 344-8444.

LUNCH WITH THE EASTER BUNNY — Northville Recreation Department still has openings for the popular lunch with the Easter Bunny program. Children over age 4 and their parents or guests are invited to enjoy a pizza lunch, stories and a fun hunt for eggs. Two dates are available: Tuesday, April 10 and Wednesday, April 11, both at 12:30 p.m. at the Northville Community Center. Registration fee is $4 per person.

Northville mall closed for repairs

By MIKE TYREE

Wayne County Circuit Court has sided with township building department officials and ordered the Northville Plaza Mall to close for repairs.

The mall, located on Seven Mile Road east of Northville Road, is owned by Christopher Redding of Franklin Associates of Pontiac, and housed several shops, including two businesses affected by the closure: the Detroit Free Press offices and Mitchell K, a hair-care business.

A&P, Perry Drugs and Big Lots remain open because they handle their own maintenance duties and are not directly connected to the mall, according to Mick Kruszewski, the chief building official in the township.

Kruszewski said the March 9 closure of the mall was the result of a year-long attempt to get Redding to maintain the mall to the township standards.

"Since the spring of 1989 we've been trying to get Redding to take care of the place," he said. "I sent him 10 tickets in a row for lack of maintenance."

"There's an inch of water across the whole floor (of the mall)," he added.

Kruszewski said the citations issued to the mall were ignored and the township went from district court to circuit court to file a complaint to remedy the maintenance problem.

Township Building Official Mick Kruszewski gazes at the leaky ceiling in the Northville Plaza mall.

After the court agreed with the township on the complaint, the affected areas of the mall were padlocked, Kruszewski said.

"The court gave them until May 9 to make repairs to my specifications," he said.

Redding, who did not return the Record's calls by press time, previously attempted minor repairs to the mall, Kruszewski said.

"He did a little bit, like when he was ordered by the court to fix (overhead) sprinklers," he said. "But he didn't want to do any of the major items until he was forced."

Kruszewski said he fielded numerous calls from customers and business operators in the mall about the facility's disrepair. He compiled a summary of the conditions in a letter to the circuit court judge for the

March 9 hearing.

The following is the list of problems noted by Kruszewski in 1990:

- Jan. 5 — "First tenant complaint revealed major water leaks throughout entire west mall entrance. Buckets and ladder across corridor to reroute pedestrian traffic."

- Jan. 10 — "Leaks still present, buckets catching water as it is leaking from the ceiling; also noted water leaking at wall between Perry's and mall directly through an emergency light."

- Jan. 17 — "Still leaking, buckets catching water; water on floor"

- Feb. 6 — "Snow melting; major leak seems to have doubled in size; water coming up when walking on tiles; also noted is approximately one inch of standing water in vacant store directly behind the cleaners"

- Feb. 22 — "Leak is still present and spreading; steady stream coming from roof in rear of hair salon. Also received complaints when investigating from customers in hair salon that were getting wet as they entered the building."

- March 1 — "Called because of concerns from the fire department on structural faults in Big Lots. It was discovered at this time there was at least a two-inch crack in the front wall which may be evidence of a structural fault. Stantion outside had been hit numerous times which may

An Open Letter from Barbara O'Brien

TELLING IT LIKE IT IS

Last week in the Northville Record, I read, as you did, an interview with Charles DeLand, chairperson of the Northville Township Planning Commission. DeLand said he had written a letter to Township Supervisor Georgiana Goss expressing dissatisfaction with my services as a Northville Township Planning Commissioner and asking for my dismissal. Apparently, he shared the letter with everyone but me.

At this writing, I still have not received a copy of the letter and know no more than you about its contents. And, despite my calling Supervisor Goss twice, she has not returned my calls. I am limited to what I have read in the Record, as are you.

The Record has not received a copy of DeLand's letter to Goss either; last week's story was written from an interview by reporter Mike Tyree with DeLand on Monday, March 13, in which DeLand quoted from the alleged letter.

When Tyree called me later the same day, I believed he thought I had knowledge of the letter. Although I was unaware of the reasons behind Tyree's questions, I answered as fully and clearly as I could, and those responses were attributed to me in the article.

On Friday, March 16 (the day after the article appeared), I asked Tyree why he didn't tell me about the letter when he interviewed me. He said that until published, the information available to the Record was privileged.

I would have like an opportunity to face my accuser, but since I was not given that courtesy—nor even the full knowledge of what I am being accused of—I have taken out this advertising space to rebut DeLand's charges as stated in last week's Record article—my only notice of his complaints.

With regard to DeLand's question of my competence, I think my resume speaks for itself:

- Graduate of the University of Michigan
- Resident of Northville Township for 24 years
- Realtor for six years
- Community service
- Northville Branch WNFGA for 20 years
- Northville Woman's Club for 19 years
- Northville Township Beautification Commission for 6 years

Regarding my abstaining vote, the Michigan Township Association had informed me that an abstaining vote is not illegal for a Planning Commissioner. Michigan statutory law only makes reference to Charter Township Boards, i.e., supervisor, clerk, treasurer and trustees, being prohibited. I have abstained only once—because I felt I needed to restudy the issue before I could cast an informed vote. The Planning Consultant and the Zoning Administrator were present and could have commented had it been illegal. They did not comment as they frequently do for DeLand and others when assistance is needed to understand the law.

Concerning my "no" vote on other issues, it is arguable that my reasons were evident in the discussions preceding those votes. However, if I had been asked to justify my vote at any time, I most certainly would have done so.

Last, and perhaps most important, is DeLand's charge that I left the Planning Commission meeting "early" on February 27. The time I left was 11:40 p.m., and we had started at 7:00 p.m. I had informed DeLand before the meeting started that I could stay until 10:00 or 10:30 at the latest because of personal commitment. I did not ask to be excused from the entire meeting but instead said I would stay as long as I could, because I knew beforehand that several other Commissioners had to absent that evening.

I reminded DeLand during our coffee break (around 9:10 p.m.) that I had to leave by 10:00 or 10:30 p.m. Because I was sitting beside him during the meeting, I discreetly reminded him of the hour at 10:30, at 11:00 and again at 11:30 p.m. but he ignored my petition.

I do not make a practice of missing meetings or even parts of meetings; in fact, I believe I am the only Planning Commissioner who has had 100 percent attendance during my 15 months on the Commission, and if the Commission needs additional meetings, I am prepared to attend.

In January, the Commission had three meetings / One of those adjourned at 1:23 a.m.—and we still had not completed the agenda. The quality of our deliberations when we move into new agenda items after 11:00 p.m. concerns me, and I also have observed that citizens are unable to stay till all hours and frequently leave before they have heard the agenda item of their interest. The late hours effectively discourage citizen participation. Also, as the hour grown late, proposals may receive a less stringent review than those presented earlier in the evening.

The Michigan Municipal League, which has more than 90 years of experience in these matters, recommends that after 10:00 p.m. a Commission should finish only the agenda item already under consideration and if it cannot be finished by 11:00 p.m., adjourn the meeting with the business to be completed at the next meeting.

It is my opinion that the citizens of Northville Township who are interested in good government are entitled to more consideration than they have been getting. It is time to adopt a sensible rule of procedure regarding Planning Commission hours. If they are to be public as required by law, they must be held at a time and in a place which is convenient for the public. Developers can pay people to attend meetings until the wee hours of the morning, but what of they many people of Northville Township who work hard and long to be in this wonderful place? How are they to protect their home investment and the quality of life that brought all of us here?

I have no intention of resigning from the Planning Commission under DeLand's barrage of political fire, but I hope that out of this can come some changes for the better in our Commission meetings—changes that would allow the Commission to function at its best and allow Northville Township residents to participate fully—but before midnight, please.

Drop me a line at my home address concerning your thoughts on these matters.

With all sincerity,

Police blotters

Greedy steal from the needy with Cooke School heist

Northville City Police investigated the theft of an estimated $695 in food from Cooke School at 21200 Taft Road. The theft apparently occurred between Feb. 22 and March 5, when the food was found to be missing. Stolen were 25 bags of groceries, four Biltmore brand turkeys, and a large ham. The food had been collected by Civic Concern, for distribution to needy families in the area.

DEJA VU — Northville City Police recovered a stolen vehicle on Eight Mile Road by Novi Street on March 16. The vehicle, valued at $500, belonged to a Martin, Mich. woman and had been stolen from Grand Rapids. A grey suitcase with women's clothing, a pillow and a blanket were found in the car when it was recovered.

After the vehicle was recovered, a police officer recalled observing the car on the side of Eight Mile two days before. The officer said the car's driver, a black male, claimed the car had broken down. The officer said he also ran the car's license plates but the car was not listed as stolen at that time. So the officer had the city's police dispatcher call the man a cab.

HOODLUMS DEFACE HOOD — Northville City Police reported the theft of a silver hood ornament valued at $15 from a Cadillac DeVille parked in the parking lot of the Northville Green Apartments at 735 Randolph Street. The theft reportedly occurred between 3 p.m. on March 3 and 6 p.m. on March 4.

HEAVY METAL — Another Cadillac hood ornament, a gold one valued at $125, was reported stolen from a car parked at Newcastle Development at 1339 North Center Street. The theft apparently occurred between 2-3 p.m. on March 11.

UP IN SMOKE — A Northville City police officer responded to a fire in the men's room on the lower grandstand at Northville Downs at 10:54 p.m. on March 15. The fire was apparently set in a toilet paper dispenser, causing an estimated $20 in damage.

BAD BREATHALYZER — A Brighton man was charged with driving under the influence by Northville City Police after being stopped on Eight Mile Road March 18 at 11:45 p.m. Police observed the man run a red light while turning west onto Eight Mile from Novi Road, and followed the man at speeds up to 60 miles per hour in the 40 m.p.h. zone. After being stopped, the man failed several sobriety tests. He refused to take a breathalyzer test at the police station, was charged, and released on $100 cash bond.

INN TROUBLE — Township police responded to six complaints of larceny or attempted larceny at the Hampton Inn, 20600 Haggerty, in a two-day period spanning March 12-14. Included in the police reports were the following incidents:

- A window in a 1989 Plymouth Acclaim was shattered and a radar detector valued at $200 was stolen sometime between 7:20 p.m. March 12 and 7:50 a.m. March 13;

- A window of a 1990 Chevrolet Astro Van was shattered and a radar detector valued at $248 was stolen sometime between 11:45 p.m. March 12 and 6:45 a.m. March 13;

- A window in a 1989 Jeep Cherokee was broken and a cassette player and a slide projector, combined value $520, was stolen sometime between 9:30 p.m. March 12 and 9 a.m. March 13;

- A window was broken and a color television valued at $250 was stolen from a 1986 GMC Van sometime late March 13 or early March 14.

- Two rental vehicles received windshield damage as well. Police said the windows of a 1990 Volvo and a 1990 Buick were broken sometime between 9:30 p.m. March 13 and 7 a.m. March 14. Police said all the cases are under investigation and are open at this time.

NOT WHAT MEIJER SHOPPERS BARGAINED FOR — A 59-year-old Wixom woman was arrested and charged with larceny at Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, at 3:35 p.m. March 12 after attempting to steal panty hose and foot products, police said.

A woman reported that a black man driving a "sporty" black car stole her purse from a shopping cart in the Meijer parking lot at 2:35 p.m. March 13. The woman said the purse contained several credit cards and approximately $20. Police said the case is open.

PRAISE HIM? — Township police recovered a walkaway from the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital

on Seven Mile Road March 13. The township officer said he observed a man walking on the north side of Seven Mile and stopped to ask him where he was going. The man replied that he was out on a walk and was on his way home. He then reportedly told the officer "I am Jesus Christ and God. I made you. You are naked and this is my car," referring to the patrol car. While talking the man reportedly struck himself with his right hand three times in the face. Hospital security personnel were summoned and soon returned the man to the hospital.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY — A 19-year-old Canton woman lodged a complaint with township police against a 30-year-old Northville man for assault and battery at 11:40 p.m. March 10.

The complainant said an argument occurred between the two over the complainant's confiscation of two of the suspect's guns (reportedly a handgun and a rifle). The complainant threw the contents of a drink at the subject, who in turn hurled a glass at the woman, who received cuts on her hand. After putting his hand in the face of the woman and knocking her into a car, the suspect reportedly told her that he would "take my Uzi and spray you and your family" if she did not return the guns. Police said the complainant was pressing charges against the man.

BREAKING AND ENTERING — In a case police said was related to a breaking and entering reported in last week's police log, a Pierson resident reported the theft of an acoustic guitar, a telephone answering machine and a briefcase, total value $610, sometime between 3:45-11:45 p.m. March 9. Police said warrants were being sought for three subjects in the case.

QUIL — A 36-year-old Northville man was arrested at 2:26 a.m. March 9 for driving under the influence of alcohol on southbound Northville Road south of Seven Mile Road. The case is open pending court, township police said.

Burden of property-tax relief may be shouldered by business

BY TIM RICHARD

LANSING — Business would pick up the tab for a homeowners' property-tax relief plan which House Democrats pushed through a committee last week.

On a party-line vote, the House Taxation Committee reported out a bill to eliminate $400 million in single business tax credits for investment in new equipment.

Area Republicans Susan Grimes Munsell of Howell and Willis Bullard of Highland voted against the measure.

"You will be sending a negative signal to the business community," warned John Thodis of the Michigan Manufacturers Association. "Increasing taxes $400 million to job providers is irresponsible — ludicrous."

"The capital acquisition deduction (CAD) is one of the major pro-investment vehicles. Business already pays $2 billion in taxes to state government."

"Every manufacturing job creates 2.3 other jobs. Without a job, it doesn't matter what you do with property tax exemptions. This bill is anti-business and anti-job," Thodis said.

The CAD has been declared unconstitutional in the state Court of Claims, but manufacturers are carrying the case to the Court of Appeals.

"It allows business to make a deduction from the single business tax base for equipment — tangible, depreciable assets, a complete write-off as an alternative to depreciation," said Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, vice chair of the taxation committee.

Manufacturers get about 45 percent of the credits; finance, real estate and insurance firms, 21 percent.

The Democratic measure is House substitute for Senate Bill 598. The new money would be split two ways: $59 million in aid to local government, $341 million to homeowners' property tax relief.

Two other bills in the package would amend the property-tax and personal income-tax laws to give the tax relief. They were supported by both parties.

The panel didn't consider two other plans floating around Lansing — a $30-million package offered by Gov. James Blanchard, a Democrat, and a 20-percent assessment reduction package offered by his Republican challenger, Senate majority leader John Engler.

The current "circuit breaker" gives homeowners a state income tax rebate when they pay more than 3.5 percent of income in local property taxes. The state rebates 60 percent of the excess, to a limit of $1,200.

The House bill would raise the rebate to 75 percent and the limit to $2,600.

Republican Munsell offered an amendment to index the $2,600 cap to the consumer price index, but Democrats shot it down on a party-line vote.

"With only 9 percent bumping up against (receiving) the $1,200 cap, even fewer would be bumping the $2,600 cap," said Democrat Kosteva.

Record/CHRIS BOYD

City looks to change Eight Mile Road rut

By STEVE KELLMAN

Spring is in the air, and with it the sound of chirping tires.

As the ice disappears from Northville's streets, cars proceeding along Eight Mile Road can be heard to groan in protest as their suspensions rattle over the potholes that have appeared as if by magic in the pavement.

But local officials are no longer content to sit back silently and let their vehicles do all the complaining.

The Northville City Council adopted a resolution at its Monday meeting urging that the stretch of Eight Mile between Center Street and Haggerty Road be repaired. Describing the road as "very hazardous because of the turning movements and bad condition of the road surface," the resolution "strongly urges Wayne County to proceed with the reconstruction of Eight Mile Road from Haggerty Road to 1,000 feet west of Center Street before further deterioration and traffic volume increases result in additional traffic accidents."

The motion passed unanimously. Council members also had words of advice for concerned residents like John Haas Jr., who described the stretch of road as "in the condition of some back roads in a third-world nation" in a letter to the Record.

When Haas asked the council Monday what he could do to speed the road repairs, the members urged him to put his complaints in writing and forward them to Wayne County officials including Commissioner Susan Heintz, Executive Edward McNamara, and Public Works Director James Murray.

Wayne County is responsible for upkeep of Eight Mile Road east of Taft Road in the city.

The award winning Symphonic Band at Northville High School

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Band hits right notes

By MIKE TYREE

You can't fault Michael Rumbell and the 54-member Northville High School Symphonic Band for wanting to blow their own horn.

Overcoming illness, snow days and concern over a perceived lack of preparation, band director Rumbell and his squad garnered the top rating available at a recent Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association festival in Ann Arbor.

The band received straight ones and straight first-division honors from each of the four judges while facing stiff competition at the festival, according to Rumbell.

Of a total of 33 grades, the band earned 31 A's, one B-plus and one B in what Rumbell said judges termed one of the "two best performances of the day."

"We pulled together and we were all going in the same direction," Rumbell said. "We were focused on the task, and everyone pitched in and gave a team effort."

"There's a lot of pride there and a lot of talent there," he said of the band.

Preschool returns

By MIKE TYREE

The annual free preschool program conducted by the Northville High School Parenting Classes will be held May 1 through May 17, according to Carla Tibble, program director.

High school students enrolled in Tibble's Parenting Preschools class will help supervise and coordinate the preschool, which is recommended for children who will be entering other preschool programs or kindergarten in the fall.

The theme for this year's program is "A Trip Through Time." Children will become involved in activities based on prehistoric, medieval, pioneer, 1920s, 1950s, and present and future themes. Classes will be held from 9:45-11:15 a.m. daily.

An orientation program will be held for parent and child April 27 from 10-11 a.m., during which time the parents and children will be able to view the preschool.

"We want people to know this free program is taking place," Tibble said. "It gives the students in my class an opportunity to meet with preschoolers and their parents."

Those interested in the preschool program can pick up enrollment forms at the high school office, and the forms should be returned by April 5. Tibble said enrollment is limited to the first 20 respondents. For additional information, call Carla Tibble at 344-8420 (ext. 46) or after 4:30 p.m. at 349-4896.

Rezmierski receives national honor

By MIKE TYREE

Leonard Rezmierski, executive director of the Northville Public Schools Special Education Services, was honored March 8 at the Michigan Council for Exceptional Children Conference as the recipient of the International Susan Phillips Gorin Award.

The Gorin Award was established to recognize the efforts of Council for Exceptional Children members who give their time to student members and to exceptional individuals. Nominations are received from the 50 states and 10 Canadian Provinces, with one person selected to receive the award.

Rezmierski will be presented the award April 24 in Toronto at the International Council for Exceptional Children Convention.

School officials mull building site

By MIKE TYREE

Northville Public School officials are nearing a decision on a site for a new elementary school.

Superintendent of Schools George Bell said a site may be selected within the next two weeks.

"I'm not in a position at this time to announce (details)," he said. "But it appears we are within two weeks of finalizing a purchase."

Bell said a project architect would be selected in the next few days, followed by the elementary site, which he said would be "in the northwest section of the school district."

He would not elaborate on the location of the new elementary school.

Bell said the new building, which is part of the $16-million bond issue approved by district voters last October, would be approximately 70,000 square feet. The building would be constructed on 16.5 acres, would house K-5 and some preschool students and is scheduled to open in 1992.

"...it appears we are within two weeks of finalizing a purchase,"

— Dr. George Bell,
Superintendent of Schools

Project architect applicants include TMP Associates of Bloomfield Hills and CDPA of Southfield, who handled the recent high school renovations and is the architect for phase I of the bond issue, according to Bell.

Bell said the Board of Education would review recommendations for the elementary school site and project architect at its April 2 meeting.

Officials dispute claim of caller

By MIKE TYREE

A local subdivision is not being underassessed, despite complaints to the contrary, Northville Township officials said last week.

Nancy Molloy, administrative assistant to the treasurer, said callers have complained that residential property in the Phase V portion of Northville Colony Estates is underassessed. She said callers have charged the area is considered to be unimproved land and the township cannot determine proper assessments because it does not have sufficient staff to survey the site.

Glen Shaw, township assessor, of the Wayne County Appraisal Company, said the site is not underassessed.

"The properties are improved, but not finalized," he said. "It has to be finalized so that we can put a fair market value on it."

Shaw said a late-1989 review of the site, which is located approximately a half-mile west of Haggerty between Five and Six Mile roads, determined that heavy construction equipment was still present at the development. The presence of such equipment has a bearing on fair market value, he said.

"Because of the ongoing construction, the market is not there to resell," he said. "For that reason, we assess at one to two percent less than for (improved and finalized homes)."

The determination that the properties are not finalized means an "$8,000-$10,000 difference in assessed value for finalized lots as opposed to the others," Shaw said.

Shaw said he was not surprised by the caller's complaint.

"It's a legitimate question for a caller to raise," he said. "But it is not based upon understaffing in the township. We definitely have enough people (eight full-time assessors, he said) to assess the whole township."

"We look at sellability, and those 52 lots are unfinished, as far as assessments are concerned."

Shaw said the developers of Northville Colony Estates are expected to complete construction at the site this year.

"It will then be considered a normal subdivision," he said. "It would be reflected on the 1991 assessments."

Shine speech to benefit library

A wine and cheese afterglow will follow the benefit appearance in Northville of Free Press columnist Neal Shine on Wednesday, April 4 at the Marquis Theater.

Following the 7:30 p.m. talk by the popular writer, those who plan to go to the afterglow will cross the street to Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall Restaurant.

The evening's events are sponsored by the Northville Citizens for a New Community Library.

The talk at the Marquis is free to Northville residents but because of limited seating, tickets must be picked up in advance at the Northville library or the Marquis Boutique, 133 E. Main Street.

Tickets for the afterglow, available at the same locations for a $10 donation, must be presented at the restaurant. No tickets will be sold at the door.

One of the most popular speakers in the metropolitan area, Shine will reprise an amusing talk he has given in the past in which he reminisces on the delights of the libraries of his boyhood on Detroit's lower east side.

Shine started at the Free Press in 1950 as a copy boy and became a reporter in 1955 upon his return from a stint in the U.S. Army.

By 1963 he was assistant city editor. The jump to managing editor was made in 1971 and senior managing editor in 1982.

Earth Day activist discusses environmental movement

By STEVE KELLMAN

Peg Campbell, director of public affairs for University Hospital in Ann Arbor and a Northville resident, is organizing a series of local events in honor of Earth Day, 1990. The Record spoke with Campbell about her involvement in the original Earth Day in 1970, her involvement in the environmental movement since then, and her recent efforts to organize a local Earth Day celebration.

How were you involved in the original Earth Day?

CAMPBELL: I was there on the University of Michigan campus during the teach-ins! I was working at the university then. I attended some of the programs, some of the teach-ins that we had. The '70s were such a fun time, there was so much going on all over. It was such a fun time with all the peaceful demonstrations and teach-ins, and people really caring about other people.

What has happened since the first Earth Day celebration in 1970?

CAMPBELL: The big thing that came out of the 1970 Earth Day was that the Environmental Protection Agency was formed and there was a clean air and a clean water bill that was passed. And then it just kind of died out.

I think a lot of the change had to do with the governmental administration and where our priorities went after that. Part of it is the Reagan administration and different priorities. The hippie movement sort of ended and we all just kind of turned into yuppies and other things and got on with our lives.

Do you believe the environment has gotten better or worse since the original Earth Day?

CAMPBELL: I think it's gotten worse. It's funny because, when I took earth science in college, we heard about this far-flung theory of the greenhouse effect, and it sounded like it was light years away. Now, here we are, 20 years after the first Earth Day, facing the prospect that there may really be a greenhouse effect that's happening. And I think that unless we do something, that it will continue to get worse.

I don't think we can afford to take the chance that it's not the greenhouse effect. I know the jury's still out on that. But I think we ought to try to stop doing those things that could possibly be causing it.

When did you again become involved with the environment?

Myself, I've been thinking about it since 1988 when we had the drought here. I live out by Maybury State Park and I was training for a marathon that summer. Every morning I'd get up early and I'd go out and run. And the air just smelled so stagnant and so stale because it hadn't rained in so long, and it made me really start thinking about, "What if this really is global warming that's happening? What if it's the greenhouse effect?"

I started thinking back to the '70s and how we used to be so environmentally aware and I started thinking, "Well, what happened to the energy conservation that we used to do?" I was trying to remember when I stopped doing it because I used to recycle. I used to make sure that I only had a few lights on, and I still do turn the thermostat down and put a sweater on, but I tried to think about why we stopped and I just couldn't come up with any good reasons, and thought, "Gee, I'd like to recycle again," except in Northville there was no place to recycle.

So this thought stayed in the back of my mind until Christmas this year, when the township got their recycling center. And I was really pleased to see it and I thought, "Well, gosh, now I can start recycling." And then at that same time I heard about Earth Day 1990 and the fact that the same guys who organized Earth Day 1970 were organizing it. I thought that would be a really good way to help raise awareness in the community, the need to recycle and about the recycling center, and to teach people to do it properly.

What did you do then?

I went out in the community and started talking to people about it to see if there was an interest, and I've been just absolutely thrilled with the responses that I've gotten from everybody — the activities, the willingness to help, people have ideas and come up with things that they can do. And people have been so supportive with wanting to publish our calendar and information — the city, the township, the Rotary, the Chamber of Commerce, Community Recreation — everybody's really gone out of their way to really be helpful and get the word out.

I've done a lot of campaigns and promotions and activities, and I think every time you do something and you ask people to become involved it means a lot of work, a lot of effort and energy for them. And sometimes you have to do some arm-twisting or some real motivational techniques to get people interested in helping. But with this I just really had to mention what this was about and people jumped on the bandwagon.

How many volunteers do you have now?

CAMPBELL: Right now we probably have at least 35 pledges.

What's evolved is, there are events for everybody. The support's been tremendous, and if I had more time I'm sure it could be just limitless. But I'm kind of limited with the amount of people that I can get out to and ask.

How is this generation's concern about the environment different from 20 years ago?

CAMPBELL: I don't think it's got quite the idealism, but I think people are coming around to the realization that something has to be done because it's becoming very apparent in local communities that there are problems with landfills.

Speaking of landfills, how have you been involved in the controversy over the proposed Holloway landfill on Eight Mile Road?

Well, when I got started I had no idea that I would personally get involved in anything. But that (site) is like a mile away from me.

I went to a public hearing in Pontiac on March 1, and that really scared me a lot because I found there were several hundred people from Oakland County who were saying, "Not in my back yard." This was simply to voice your opinion about the landfills, and there were three or four different landfill sites in Oakland County that people were opposed to.

Some of the people from other parts of Oakland County told about the devastation that their neighborhoods faced with having landfills in the area — groundwater contamination, the seagull blight, the pollution from the seagulls contaminating the lakes in the area, health problems. It made me really very aware of the fact that there's no space left in this area.

And that just kind of pushed me over to really feeling committed that we need to do something. I think this is a grass-roots movement that's taking place about the environment, and that a good place to start with it is locally. If we can start looking at what we're doing with the landfill situation, help to motivate people to recycle, help to get the awareness out there that we want to recycle things, more plastics reprocessing recycling plants will be developed. That's the problem right now, that people do want to recycle but there's nothing to do with it.

What do you think about the recent cutback in hours at the Northville City recycling center?

CAMPBELL: Hopefully, people will become interested enough in the need to recycle that they may somehow let the City Council know that they really need more extended hours and more availability of the site. I was really so pleased with the township site because you can just go there any time.

Recycling itself is really difficult. I think you really have to be committed to do it. It does take an investment of time, effort and energy to clean the cans, to peel the labels off the jugs and to crush them, and then to store them and save them until you have time to go to the center. Then when there's a limited time that you can go it's going to be more difficult.

So the easier that it can be for people to do it, the more people will do it.

Do you feel that people are willing to begin recycling?

Yes. When I first started doing this in January one of the first groups I asked was the BPW (Business and Professional Women's Club). I did a little survey when I talked to the group, and I asked if they recycled, and if they didn't, why not. Nobody said they didn't have time. They said either they didn't know how to or they weren't really aware of the need. And when I asked whether or not they would be interested in learning more about it, almost all of them said yes.

So I think that there's an interest and a willingness, it's that we need to educate and maybe in some ways motivate people to do it, and to try to make it as easy as possible.

How do you see this year's Earth Day celebration?

I see it as a real beginning. I think once people start recycling, they just naturally start thinking more globally. And then people may begin thinking about the greenhouse effect, the hole in the ozone, the deforestation problems, and how small the earth really is and how everything is related.

So I see this Earth Day and talking

Library foes release survey results

By MIKE TYREE

A group opposed to the construction of a new community library on the corner of Six Mile and Sheldon roads Monday released the results of its library survey.

Jeff Hampton, of the "eight to 10 member" Citizens for a Better Northville, said the survey results show that the proposed 44,800-square-foot Haller Library Complex has not been accepted by the community.

"I guarantee you, this thing is in trouble," he said. "It appears to us it is just a way of keeping up with the Joneses."

Hampton said 265 city and township residents responded to the survey, which asked 13 questions, including "Does Northville need a new library?", "Would you be willing to pay a nominal fee for book rental?" and "Should city residents be held responsible for part of the five million dollar bond debt without voter approval?"

According to Hampton, the survey was conducted at the post office in Northville and at other selected areas, with respondents asked if they were registered township or city voters. He said he did not have figures to indicate a breakdown based on city versus township respondents.

"I have to admit that we're non-professional canvassers," he said. "But I feel we had a real good blend of township and city voters."

The results of the survey indicate that 82 percent of the respondents said city residents should be allowed to vote on a bond issue.

The May 1 vote on the proposed $6.9-million library complex will be limited to township voters, who also will bear a greater burden of the construction expense.

The survey also indicates that 72 percent of respondents said reprioritization of current government expenditures should take precedence over constructing a library with new taxes.

Hampton also said 56 percent of those who responded to the survey were willing to pay a nominal fee for book rental.

"There are other ways to fund this except through straight taxes," he said. "If we charge a nominal fee for book rental, can this help us defray costs?"

Hampton said he thinks his group can help defeat the May 1 bond request, despite being, in his terms, "outmanned, outgunned and out-financed."

"We're guardedly optimistic," he said. "I'm sure there are more people opposed to this thing."

Township Manager Richard Henningsen was not convinced by the outcome of the group's survey.

"If the survey wasn't carried out by someone that was impartial, I would question whether the results were valid," he said.

Cultural exchange program offered

The First United Methodist Church of Northville is pleased to offer an exciting concept in Christian outreach as it hosts "The New World Mission" March 25-29. Guest missionary for the five day program of worship and cultural exchange will be the Rev. Eric St. C. Clarke, President of the Methodist Church in the Caribbean and the Americas.

This special Lenten program will begin Sunday, March 25 with worship services at 9:15 and 11 a.m. A potluck dinner and informal program for adults and children will follow on Sunday evening from 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Rev. St. C. Clarke will continue his message at evening worship services Monday, March 26, Tuesday, March 27, and Thursday, March 29 (communion service). These services will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be followed by "chat-backs" with the congregation. Babysitting is provided.

The public is invited to the New World Mission which hopes to create a forum for the exchange of ideas between different cultures and shares the interesting experiences of Rev. St. C. Clarke's 40 years of ministry in the countries of the Caribbean, Central America, and West Africa.

Aid hike called unlikely

By TIM RICHARD

LANSING — The state Senate budget bill may boost Schoolcraft College by one faculty salary and begin the phase-out of Wayne County Community College's unique subsidy.

But Sen. Harry Gast, who chairs the community college appropriations subcommittee, Tuesday warned officials of 29 two-year schools they're unlikely to get the $37.5 million boost they want to full fund a state aid formula.

"The way they (college lobbyists) start a conversation is, 'What's going to be your excuse this year?'" said Gast, R-St. Joseph, only partly in jest.

Gov. James Blanchard proposed $223 million for community colleges for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 — five percent more than the current year but $37.5 million short of an ideal legislative formula worked out several years ago.

At the close of a budget hearing, Gast had a staff member outline what the Senate substitute is likely to include when it is reported out this week:

- Boosts per college will be in the range of 3.5 to 7.5 percent instead of the 2 to 9 percent proposed by Blanchard.

- That's good news for Schoolcraft, which was scheduled for just 2.9 percent by Blanchard. Vice president A.H. (Butch) Raby said it would amount to $35,000, the equivalent of one salary.

- It may be bad news for Lansing Community College, for which Blanchard proposed 8.1 percent.

- No figures were available for Oakland Community College (OCC), for which the governor proposed a 4.8-percent increase.

- Blanchard's proposed "teaching excellence" prizes of $100,000 for 40 faculty members will be dropped.

- Wayne County Community College, which has been getting a special $10-million state grant because voters have refused to approve a property tax, will see the grant phased out over five years beginning in fiscal 1992. WC3 is the only community college district in the state that has no voter-approved property tax. WC3 also gets $12.6 million in state aid.

After the meeting, OCC Chancellor R. Stephen Nicholson said he was still disappointed that state aid as a percentage of OCC's budget continues to decline. "State support has fallen to nearly half of what it was a few years ago," he said.

Nicholson said the formula tends to give the least to growth colleges and favor those with enrollment losses.

James Stevenson, president of Muskegon Community College and former provost of OCC's Orchard Ridge Campus, said tax increment financing authorities (TIFAs) have hurt his school. Cities set them up to "capture" all new property taxes on downtown developments.

"We don't want to be obstructionists," said Stevenson, "but it seems unfair that we're credited with valuation increases. We have to roll back millage because of (assessment) increases we never received."

Gast replied that TIFAs would likely stay, but he blistered General Motors Corp. for battling its assessments.

"GM is getting a lousy image fighting all these assessments," said Gast, a former township supervisor and assessor. "The state is paying $1 million a year to fight GM and their battery of tax cases."

Gast quoted state Treasurer Robert Bowman as saying the state's fight, through the attorney general's office, amounts to a $1-million subsidy to local units.

Richard Norris, president of St. Clair Community College, said that since 1982 kindergarten-through-12th-grade appropriations have been increased 85 percent, universities 82 percent and community colleges 57 percent.

The fate of the former Wayne County Training School

By STEVE KELLMAN

As the development firm of R.A. DeMattia begins building more than 1,200 residential units, a golf course, and light industrial buildings on either side of Northville Township's Sheldon Road, they will be treading on ground trod by thousands of others.

The developers are following in the footsteps of the students and staff who — for nearly 60 years — called the campus of the Wayne County Training School and Child Development Center their home.

HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

The land which R.A. DeMattia bought has a venerable history. The 39 brick buildings on the site were constructed in 1925 as the Wayne County Training School, at a cost of $2 million.

The school was built to house trainable mentally retarded children and youngsters, as well as "problem" youth.

Construction was supervised by Detroit resident William Maybury, who was also instrumental in the creation and construction of the Maybury Sanitarium on the site of the present Maybury State Park.

That facility, which provided treatment to tuberculosis patients, was built in 1922. Closed in 1969, the buildings there rapidly deteriorated due to vandalism and neglect. They were finally demolished in 1973, to make way for the state park.

Until recently, the history of the Wayne County Training School has been largely the same.

The training school on Sheldon Road was originally situated on more than 1,000 acres of land on both sides of Sheldon. While most of the buildings were on the east side, the larger area to the west was used for farming and raising cattle — occupations in which the training school students assisted.

The school then became the Wayne County Child Development Center — home to as many as 800 retarded children at a time.

The new school functioned much like the training school did, providing specialized care to the special-needs children.

But the center closed in October, 1974, in the midst of a state-wide move towards residential housing of special-needs people, and the land remained under county ownership.

A SMALL TOWN

The campus of the Wayne County Training School, which once had a staff of hundreds and a total population near 1,000, amounts to nothing less than a small — though now derelict — town.

The buildings on the east side of Sheldon include 18 identical two-story "cottages," an administration building complete with clock tower, a medical facility with two sick wards, and even a fire station.

The largest structure — the three-story school — houses an empty 75-foot swimming pool, a basketball court overlooked by two balconies, and an auditorium. The building also boasts a two-lane bowling alley with semiautomatic pin-setting machines.

Under the school are two miles of tunnels, through which most of the steam vents, electrical and telephone lines ran to the various buildings. One tunnel even runs under Sheldon Road to the school's former garage.

THE DEATH KNEEL

After the closure of the Child Development Center, Wayne County officials reviewed dozens of proposals for use of all or part of the property. But most of the proposals fell through for lack of funding or support.

In 1978, the county finally announced it would shut off the heat to the buildings, despite local fears that such a move signalled the death knell for many of the structures. Wayne County officials cited heating costs of $1,200 a month and annual maintenance costs of $200,000 a year for the site in their decision.

At the time, the county was laying off hundreds of its own employees due to the statewide fiscal crisis.

Though local officials expressed concern that the abandoned buildings would suffer the same fate as the Maybury Sanitarium, the county promised that patrols by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department and local police would prevent damage to the structures.

Since then the buildings have been the site of frequent fires and vandalism. Township police have recently been investigating reports of occult activities in the tunnels underneath the school.

The purchase of the county-owned property by R.A. DeMattia in January may mark a rebirth for the property, as the developer has announced plans to save some of the property's structures. The developer had previously estimated the cost of razing the buildings and removing the rubble at $4 million.

Some buildings may remain

By MIKE TYREE

A dozen or more vintage 1920s-era buildings may dodge the wrecking ball when the R.A. DeMattia group develops the 933-acre Wayne County property in Northville Township.

Gary Roberts, vice president in charge of development at the Plymouth-based firm, said some existing buildings east of Sheldon Road may be saved when construction begins on the site.

"Nothing is definite yet, but we feel we may have enough good buildings left for an adaptive reuse," he said. "My best estimate is that not less than a dozen of the buildings would be preserved."

Roberts said the DeMattia group, now awaiting county approval of a $31.75 million bid for the property, may convert some of the old Wayne County Training School buildings into residential use, including condominiums and townhouses.

Roberts added that one of the structures, which has sat vacant since 1978, may find another use.

"There is an opportunity for one of the buildings close to Sheldon to be used as a restaurant," he said.

Many of the buildings are damaged beyond repair, Roberts said, but he noted that many seem to be in good shape.

"There is no reason why we can't go ahead and use some of the structures," he said. "We're interested in preserving some of the buildings that may have a historic value or significance."

Wayne County Executive Edward

McNamara announced that the DeMattia team had won the right to develop the property Jan. 24.

The Wayne County Board of County Commissioners must approve the sale and the Northville Township Planning Commission has to okay a planned unit development (PUD) ordinance before construction can begin on the site.

The proposed development, dubbed Huntington Falls, will contain roughly equal amounts of light industrial areas, single and multi-family residential housing and an 18-hole golf course.

Construction will be completed in phases, according to information provided by the DeMattia group, with a target date of the year 2000 for project finalization.

County Land: Back to the Future

Former residents stroll down memory lane

By STEVE KELLMAN

Originally home to hundreds of retarded and "incorrigible" children, the deserted campus of the Wayne County Training School on Sheldon Road has lain vacant for more than 15 years.

But memories linger since the occupants of the brick buildings saw the last of their students pass out the school gates.

Memories linger for former training school employees and visitors in particular. Marcella Douglas, 89, the school's principal from 1939 until 1965, fondly recalls her days at the school.

FORMER SCHOOLMARM

As principal, Douglas oversaw the school's staff of 45 teachers. "It was marvelous, it really was," she said.

Of her former students Douglas said "I always say they were more sinned against than sinning."

Douglas saw the school as a respite from real-world concerns for the special children. "The pressure was taken off," she said. "I think that was the whole point — to take off the pressure." Many of the children came from broken homes, and many were from inner-city Detroit, she said.

The school offered a wide variety of activities for the youths, from woodworking and printing for the boys, to sewing and cooking classes for the girls. "We even had an apartment at the campus that wasn't lived in," Douglas said. "The girls just took care of it." The experience gave them firsthand knowledge of home economics and domestic chores.

"This being a resident school, of course, every child went to divine services," she added. Services in the Catholic, Protestant, Lutheran and Jewish faiths were offered. Every student had three sets of clothing — one for schooling, one for playing, and one for church.

"You can imagine that as a small town, we had everything that a small town has except a council and a mayor," Douglas said. "We had a superintendent instead."

Robert Hascall was the training school's first and longest superintendent, retiring in 1970.

Douglas holds a master's degree from Wayne State University, "and of course, that was a long, long time ago," she said. "Teaching was a very popular activity for the girls, that and nursing. These were about the only two openings, unless you wanted to teach."

After earning her degree, Douglas taught in the Detroit public school system, and trained teachers for work in training schools, before becoming the principal at the Northville facility.

Douglas is reluctant to speculate on the causes for the eventual closure of the school. "I don't know what happened — maybe the county ran out of money," she said.

Marcella Douglas, former principal at the Wayne County Training School, fondly recalls her days at the school.

"In the communities, they were setting up better programs in the local schools," she added.

But she wonders at the way the poverty has been allowed to deteriorate since its closure. "Why didn't they get some people in there?" she asked. "They should have had somebody there to stop that destruction."

Douglas now lives in Plymouth, and at the age of 89 she has few friends left from her training school days. "Of course, I've outlived almost all my co-workers," she said softly. But she did recently meet one of the teachers whom she taught, who now lives nearby.

35 YEARS OF SERVICE

Fred Hembrey has a similarly long history with the training school, having worked at the site from 1937 to 1972, except for a four-year stint in the Navy. Hembrey supervised the campus cottages and spent several years with the Child Development Center's fire department as well.

The department included eight full-time employees and 30 volunteers working different shifts.

The fire department was not the only unusual service the campus had. "We had our own warehouse, meat lockers, everything," he said. "It was like a little town, and what would be a first-class restaurant if it were anywhere else."

"Back in the early days of that place, it was as nice as any college campus that you might have been on," he said. "They kept it right up to snuff."

"Hascall would get your butt if he caught you walking on the grass," he added, referring to the school's superintendent.

Hembrey has resigned himself to the deterioration of the campus he called home for 35 years. "I'm kind of used to it," he said. "When I first saw it happen, I was kind of sad for a while, but now when no one else gives a damn about it, why should I?"

But he looks back on his days at the training school with pride. "It was a lot of fun, and a hell of a lot of work," he recalled.

BASKETBALL AND BOY SCOUTS

Local historian Bruce Turnbull, 70, was a frequent visitor to the training school as well. Turnbull and his Boy Scout troop used to make use of the school's 75-foot pool, which was the lap of luxury as far as the Scouts were concerned.

"They had the only swimming pool in the whole district," he recalled. "It was real luxurious because nobody had anything like that outside of Detroit. It was a beautiful pool," he added.

The local Rotary Club also held their annual Christmas parties at the school, and invited the people of Northville to them. The students would hold a concert, Turnbull remembered, entertaining the crowds of townspeople by singing popular Yuletide songs.

The students also brought their prized Holstein cows to the annual Wayne County Fair, Turnbull said. The Holsteins were raised on the school's farm, across the street from the campus.

Turnbull even remembered a huge bull named Tiny that was raised on the training school farm on the west side of Sheldon. The bull was one of the most popular exhibits at the fair, as he recalled.

The fair was held on the site of Northville Downs, before the racetrack opened up in the 1940s.

Turnbull also remembered when the training school made its gym available to Northville High School basketball teams. "The Northville coaches used to get permission to use their gymnasium to practice for state tournaments for about a week or two before the tournament," he recalled. The training school gymnasium stood in sharp contrast to the smaller Northville High School gym, and gave the players a chance to stretch their legs on a full-sized floor before playing in the state tournament. "That was a huge, big floor. It was actually bigger than a college floor," Turnbull recalled.

The training school campus also rivaled those of other colleges. "It was almost like Michigan State's college campus," Turnbull said. "They used to keep it up so pretty with shrubs, flowers and lawns."

Previous plans for school use failed to bear fruit

By STEVE KELLMAN

The recent $32-million sale of county land to a Plymouth Township developer marks a new chapter in the life of the former Wayne County Training School on Sheldon Road.

But while the latest developer, R.A. DeMattia, ponders the fate of the various buildings on the 933-acre site, the campus has already seen more than a few well-laid plans go astray.

END OF AN ERA

The Wayne County Training School, which was built in 1925 and became the Wayne County Child Development Center in 1970, provided housing, schooling and training to hundreds of special-needs children.

But the school eventually closed due to changes in the state mental health code and a state-wide move towards deinstitutionalization.

Since its closure in 1974, local agencies have found several uses for the training school site.

Northville Township used one of the school's buildings between July, 1974 and October, 1978 for township offices and police department. From there the township offices moved to their present site on Six Mile Road.

The Novi Ambulance service also used the site's fire station in the early 1980s.

In June, 1974, the Wayne County Planning Commission prepared a report on the site. "The buildings are substantial and sound," the report noted. "They are scattered about the site with very generous spaces between them. The rolling topography adds to the attractiveness of the site."

The county commission recommended several different uses for the property at that time, including a county conference center, local township uses, day care for the Northville/Plymouth area, and outreach programs for Schoolcraft College

TO BE OR WHAT TO BE

At the same time, the Wayne County Board of Commissioners was involved in reviewing the proposals for use of the property. Among the many groups requesting use of the site were:

- Detroit-Wayne County Mental Health Services Board, which sought to reserve the site for "the unique needs of handicapped children and adults."

- Steele-Bos Inc., which planned to build a housing and education complex for the deaf;

- Canton-Northville-Plymouth YM-CA, which wanted to use the main building with its 75-foot-long indoor pool for their programs;

- Northville Public Schools, which wanted to use the site for future school construction;

- Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service;

- Michigan Department of Management and Budget;

- Michigan Mental Health Foundation;

- Central Baptist Temple,

- Northville Recreation Commission.

Other proposals followed for an alcoholic rehabilitation center, U.S. Olympic Team training center and a joint campus for Schoolcraft College and Wayne State University. But those ideas all went the way of the previous ones, largely due to the inability by the proponents to secure the necessary funds.

In the summer of 1977, the county began negotiating with the state to use the facility as a medium-security prison. At that time, the land was appraised at $14 million. Fierce lobbying by the Northville community finally resulted in the state withdrawing the plan.

THE BEST-LAID PLANS

The most serious site proposal came shortly thereafter, for 1,200 retirement units in what was to be known as the Jerome P. Cavanaugh Retirement Village. The $70 million senior citizens village — named after a former Detroit mayor — was first proposed in 1982.

The Northville Elderly Development Company, developers of the proposal, sublet 101 acres of the property — including much of the training school campus — from the Economic Development Corporation (EDC) of Wayne County in August of that year. The EDC had previously signed a 99-year lease with the county for the property.

Many of the structures on the site were to be maintained under the development company's proposal.

Officials even broke ground on the site in 1984, though little actual construction, besides the erection of a sign, took place. The idea finally ran out of steam in 1986 when the county rejected a proposal by the developers to change the age limit of the elderly allowed to rent units, and to open a third of the units up to renters of any age.

The developers argued that because of the cancellation of many government assistance programs for the elderly, the market for the units had all but disappeared.

A state proposal to move a planned state prison to the Plymouth Center for Human Development property — just across the street from the training school — may have also scared off potential investors. The prison was the same one that local opposition had kept off the training school site several years earlier.

Township to discuss public safety director idea soon

By MIKE TYREE

A decision on whether Northville Township will hire a public safety director or retain its police and fire chief system will be debated at the April 12 Township Board meeting.

Township Manager Richard Henningsen said last week that he and Treasurer Betty Lennox interviewed public safety directors at two neighboring communities to determine if that form of administration would be compatible with Northville Township.

"We talked to public safety directors in Canton and Oak Park to get a feel for what it looks like for this community," Henningsen said. "The treasurer (Lennox) and I had a list of questions and were impressed with the things we heard."

He did not want to discuss the questions asked of the local directors.

Henningsen said the idea of a public safety director, an administrators who would overlook the operations of both the police and fire departments, is a "viable alternative to the selection of a police chief."

"The board will meet and decide which way they want to go," he added.

Lennox said the talks with the public safety directors was an information-gathering tool meant to give the board a clear picture of the two forms of administration.

Captain Philip Presnell has served as acting police chief in Northville Township since the resignation of former chief Kenneth Hardesty in December. Chief Robert Toms heads up the township fire department.

Under the public safety director system, each department would retain a captain, but the director would act as the top officer of each branch. The employees of both departments would report to the public safety director, Henningsen said.

A public safety director's salary would range between $40,000-$55,000,

— Richard Henningsen, Township Manager

based on the salaries of directors in comparable communities, he added.

But the police and fire chief system has not been ruled out, Henningsen said.

"I don't mean to infer that we're not discussing police chiefs," he said. "We haven't advertised for any positions yet and we've already received 13 applications for that post."

Novi man faces drug charges

By SHEILA PHILLIPS

A 34-year-old Novi man faces a life sentence after being arraigned on charges of delivery of and conspiracy to deliver narcotics Friday in 20th District Court.

Douglas Siebert, who lives in the Nine Mile and Garfield area, was arrested at the Novi Hilton the night of March 14 in connection with an attempted cocaine sale. He possessed $230,000 in cash at the time of the arrest, according to Lt. Gary Citner of the Livonia Intelligence Bureau.

A kilo of cocaine was seized during the attempted sale, in which an undercover Wayne Narcotics Unit officer posed as a potential buyer, police said.

The drug charges against Siebert carry a mandatory life sentence if he is convicted.

Raymond Oatman, a 29-year-old Dearborn Heights man, was also taken into custody the same night at the Livonia Holiday Inn on Six Mile at I-275 in connection with the suspected drug trafficking operations.

He was also arraigned on charges of delivery and conspiracy to deliver last week.

Both charges are the result of an eight-month investigation by the Wayne County Narcotics Unit.

Also seized in the investigation were numerous guns, Siebert's bank account, his home and two automobiles, according to Citner.

He said that Siebert's home will be forfeited as a drug-sale asset.

His confiscated bank account contained $50,000, according to Citner. The 1985 Cadillac and 1986 GMC pickup truck seized in connection with the drug sale also belonged to Siebert.

Four homes were searched in association with the bust on March 14 and March 15. In addition to Siebert's home, search warrants were issued for residents in Dearborn Heights, Livonia and South Lyon.

Citner said the confiscated guns were found in Siebert's residence, along with a small quantity of suspected cocaine and marijuana.

However, the kilo was not taken from his home, and Citner would not reveal where it was confiscated.

"It was taken during an attempted sale to an undercover narcotics officer and I can't reveal the location of that deal," he said.

Both Siebert and Oatman are currently in the Wayne County Jail, and a $1 million cash bond has been set in both cases.

A preliminary hearing has been set for 9 a.m. the morning of March 28 in 20th District Court in Dearborn Heights.

A female from Westland was also arrested in association with the case during the search of Siebert's home. But no charges have been brought at this time and the suspect has been released pending further investigation.

A South Lyon resident was also taken into custody and then released in association with the South Lyon search.

The search of the residence revealed a small quantity of money and an undisclosed amount of suspected marijuana and cocaine. However, no charges have been brought in connection with that search.

Citner said the narcotics unit investigation of the suspected drug ring will continue.

Police try to check drug flow

By STEVE KELLMAN

While local celebrations like Red Ribbon Week encourage public awareness of the dangers of drug abuse, a group of western Wayne County police officers are working undercover to cut the flow of drugs before they enter communities such as Northville.

Lt. John Schewell of the Western Wayne Narcotics Unit briefed the Conference of Western Wayne on the unit's progress at its latest meeting.

Northville City is one of several Wayne County communities contributing funds to the unit's operation. Other contributors include Canton, Westland, Livonia, Garden City, Van Buren Township, Wayne, and Belleville. Northville Township does not contribute.

Said Schewell, "Northville has been a big help to us. Chief (Rod) Cannon is very supportive."

Over its three-year history, Schewell said, the unit has made 374 arrests and followed up more than 534 criminal complaints. In the process, more than $7 million in drugs have been seized.

Most of the seized drugs have been cocaine shipments, with smaller amounts of heroin and marijuana. "Cocaine is the drug of choice right now," Schewell said.

"We've scored multiple kilos of dope, and we've put people in prison for life," he said. "But they were, in our opinion, big dope dealers."

"We concentrate on all types of enforcement, both local and large dealers," he said. "It's just as important to get the nuisance out of the local neighborhoods as it is to cut off the supply."

While the source of the drugs is typically Detroit, Schewell said that a fair percentage makes its way into the Northville community. "It doesn't have any boundaries," he said. "It's pretty spread out all over."

Schewell said that it is often difficult to pinpoint a dealer's exact location. But, he added, "we do work dealers in Northville."

Schewell said that three drug buys have been made in Northville city and township in the last year by undercover agents, but that figure does not give an accurate indication of the drug problem in the area. There have been 15 drug-related arrests made by the unit in Northville as well. One celebrated case was a bust made at the Northville Party Store three years ago, in which several kilograms of cocaine were seized, he said.

While the Western Wayne Narcotics Unit was created to enforce drug legislation in this area, the unit often works with neighboring enforcement agencies.

"Our boundary is actually the state of Michigan, because we do cross boundary lines," Schewell said. The course of a drug investigation can meander across both state and national boundaries.

Despite the successes of the narcotics unit and other drug enforcement efforts, Schewell has not seen a noticeable decrease in the drug problem. "It doesn't seem to be going away," he said. "But we keep enforcing it and keep educating. That's what we advocate, enforcement and education."

As part of its education program, the narcotics unit supports the DARE program, a program sponsored and conducted by law enforcement agencies to educate school children and young adults about the dangers of drug abuse.

"That's our extent of education here because it is an undercover operation," Schewell said.

The nature of the operation also discourages the unit from bragging about its past accomplishments in any detail, because former users and dealers can occasionally be of more use to the unit after they're busted. "Sometimes we flip these people," Schewell said. "We try to get back to the source."

Business seminar series continues

The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce is continuing its popular seminar "The Needs of the Business Owner" with the last two weeks in the series.

On March 29 the topic is "Qualified Sick Pay Plans." If you or one of your key employees became disabled, would you continue to take or pay an income?

The IRS rules are quite clear. If you believe you can routinely pay "deductible" wages to a disabled employee — even a stockholder/employee — you need to be better informed about the law.

This class will cover the rules and process of establishing such a plan along with the information needed to determine if you should take on the risks or transfer them.

On April 5, the last class is "Cafeteria Plan/Flexible Benefits." Flexible benefit programs are the hot topic of employee benefit programs. Could there be a plan that decreases employer taxes as well as increases employee take-home pay? Should the employees have an individual choice in benefits? A detailed explanation of these plans, their pluses and minuses, tax implications and a prediction for their future will be included.

This series is being made available through the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce to provide education in the legal, insurance, and accounting issues facing the small business owner. Classes will be held at the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce office at 195 S. Main Street in Northville. They take place on the Thursdays listed from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The cost for chamber members is $10 for each program. The cost to non-chamber members is $12.50 for each program. For more information or to make a reservation contact the chamber office at 349-7640.

Local woman discusses first Earth Day

locally about recycling as a real step forward to raising people's awareness and consciousness about all the problems that we're facing in the environment.

My real goal in doing Earth Day is to have this calendar of events and these fun things to get people out to. And we're going to have several thousand of these printed up. It's going to be a fact sheet, and on the back side of it we're going to have something that says, "Here's what you can do," with more defined information about recycling and recycling locations. I think that's the first step, getting the information out there, and in order to get people to listen to it, if you give them something that's fun then they'll want to come out and celebrate Earth Day.

What else do you want to accomplish with this event?

CAMPBELL: I hope that the other thing our campaign can do is make people more aware, to make it socially acceptable, to make it the thing to do to recycle, kind of like what's happened with alcohol over the past decade. It's just not socially acceptable to over-drink anymore. It used to be a way of life. The way people used to do business, you used to go out and have three-martini lunches. People just don't do that anymore. So I hope we can do the same thing with recycling, to make it really socially acceptable so that people will even small-talk about how they're recycling, and different things that they've picked up, and feel that they're not contributing to society if they don't do it.

Jet ski controls discussed

By TIM RICHARD

Suburban roads aren't the only places seeing traffic jams, unsafe equipment and reckless driving.

Lakes, too, are becoming unsafe. Political leaders from Oakland and Wayne counties are considering regulating jet skis and boat mechanics.

"This package has been developed to further ensure the safety of Michigan boating enthusiasts," said Sen. Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, chair of the Senate State Affairs, Transportation and Tourism Committee.

He and Vice Chair Michael O'Brien, D-Detroit, have introduced a five-bill watercraft-safety package. Meanwhile, the Oakland County Board of Commissioners has endorsed similar House bills on jet skis.

A Fessler aide said the senator was prompted to start his bills by the death of a two-year-old Birmingham girl in the explosion of a boat owned by her parents. In addition, the Oakland County sheriff's marine division reported eight jet ski accidents during the summer of 1989.

Fessler last week said the Senate package, if enacted, will:

- Prohibit operation of jet skis within 100 feet of another vessel and other dangerous maneuvers.
- Prohibit operation of jet skis at night, from 30 minutes after sunset to 30 minutes before dawn.
- Prohibit persons under age 14 from using jet skis.
- Require 14-16-year-olds on jet skis to be accompanied by an older person.
- Require jet ski operators to wear flotation devices.
- Prohibit boat liveries from renting jet skis to anyone under 16.
- Require licensing and certification of boat mechanics and boat-repair facilities. Written tests would be mandated. Dealers would have to register with the Secretary of State and meet restrictions similar to auto dealers.

Oakland County commissioners endorsed bills introduced by Rep. Alvin Hoekman, R-Holland, pending in the House Marine Affairs and Port Development Committee.

House Bill 5140 would prohibit boat liveries from renting jet skis to persons under 16.

HB 5141 would mandate use of flotation devices, prescribe use of an engine cutoff switch, prohibit use of jet skis at night and establish guidelines for operating jet skis.

Township woodlands protected; wetlands still open

By MIKE TYREE

An ordinance designed to protect woodlands in Northville Township was enacted in 1988, but don't look for a wetlands counterpart for the township in the near future.

The township planning commission discussed the feasibility of adopting a wetlands ordinance at its March 6 meeting, but concerns over costs of administration and potential litigation caused the talk of a wetlands ordinance to be tabled indefinitely.

Planning Consultant Claude Coates told the commission that several lawsuits brought by developers against municipalities are pending which will help determine the strength of local government wetlands ordinances. He suggested the township wait for those cases to be decided before attempting to formulate a wetlands policy.

"Pending lawsuits will clear the air on the legal grounds (of local wetlands ordinances)," he said.

Coates also said the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) maintains control over wetlands areas of five acres or more or where the wetlands are contiguous to a lake or stream.

The DNR holds no jurisdiction over woodlands areas, necessitating local control for the protection of trees, Coates said.

"I think a high percentage of wetlands areas are being protected right now," Coates said. "What they (communities with wetlands ordinances) do is very expensive, but also very beautiful."

It is the potential cost of a wetlands ordinance that apparently makes many in the township shy away from such a plan.

"The woodlands ordinance was done through community development block grant funds," said Carol Maise, township planning and zoning administrator. "Funds just aren't available right now. I don't know where the money would come from."

Maise also said the township does not have the technical staff to administer a wetlands ordinance.

"We would have to use consultants and there would be a large administrative cost," she said. "West Bloomfield has one of the strictest wetlands ordinances and they have three to four people there working just on enforcement."

'Funds just aren't available right now. I don't know where the money would come from.'

— Carol Maise,
Township Planning and Zoning Administrator

"Enforcement is difficult and you could look forward to a lot of litigation."

But Commissioner Barbara O'Brien said the wetlands plan adopted in Novi was reasonable.

"The cost to the community in Novi is only $10,000 per year," she said. "They farm it out (consultation and administration) and it becomes a part of their engineering wing."

"They feel it's quite effective."

O'Brien expressed concern that small parcels of potential wetlands areas are routinely overlooked by the DNR. She asked her fellow commissioners to keep the wetlands discussion on the front burner.

"The importance is protecting our drinking water, not just protecting some exotic wildflowers," she said.

"I wish we could have a deeper study than what we've done tonight."

Commissioner Karen Baja said a wetlands plan could create difficult political situations.

"The water comes from other areas (and would be difficult to protect locally)," she said. "I don't think local efforts would be the best outcome. The state should take care of the wetlands."

Commissioner Richard Allen agreed.

"I think the DNR rules the roost. I'd have a tough time supporting an ordinance," he said.

"There was no protection for the woodlands, but there is for wetlands," said Chairperson Charles DeLand. "I suggest we drop the issue until it's needed."

Day in court may cost more

A date in 35th District Court could cost you more, if a third judge is added to the court.

Court and government officials offer differing opinions on the chances that court costs could rise to pay increased expenses because of a third judgeship.

State Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, who introduced a bill to a House committee in September to seek a third judge, is asking about the cost.

"What does all this cost?" Law said. "I don't really have a concern, but I don't have any facts and figures."

District Judge John MacDonald said court costs — typically added to fines levied in court — would not rise to cover the cost of a third judge.

"I don't know if there is any noticeable pattern one way or another" on district court costs rising after a judge is added, said Bill Nelson, court analyst with the Michigan Court Administrator's Office. "It depends on the decision of the local funding unit (local government)."

MacDonald predicts a 90-100 percent chance the state will add a third judge to the court.

The court serves Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, Northville and Northville Township.

MacDonald said the case is clear for a third judge to handle a rising case load. There are an average 17,491 cases per year here compared to the 11,883 statewide average, according to figures compiled by the court.

To create that third judgeship, the court administrator's office must first recommend it. The recommendation could come "pretty soon," court spokesperson Tom Farrell said.

Next, the state Legislature would have to approve the request, there would be an August primary, and an election in November, before a new judge would join the bench in January 1991.

Law said the state would pay 90 percent of the judge's $91,080 annual salary, while local taxpayers in the area served by the court would pay other expenses sparked by creating the judgeship.

Law estimated renovation of the court building to house a third judge would cost $500,000; MacDonald estimated $400,000.

Local taxpayers would also pay salaries for two new staff positions created by the third judgeship — a court officer and court recorder — about $60,000, MacDonald said.

"Will there be less money for the local communities, will they have to write more tickets?" Law said. "Running these operations is pretty expensive."

"I'm just a little leery about creating things that create expenses for my local units of government."

Running bridge

If the weather has broken somewhat, and if the first day of spring is behind us, what could be more appropriate than the start of spring sports at the high school. Above, members of Northville's track team head out for practice across the Eight Mile Road foot-bridge during a recent afternoon.

Abortion foes aim at doctors' homes

By STEVE KELLMAN

Anti-abortion protestors took their battle to the home front last Saturday with pickets in front of the homes of 21 Bloomfield area doctors.

The doctors were believed to perform abortions by the protesters.

According to Lynn Mills, who organized last month's anti-abortion demonstrations on the streets of Northville and Novi as well as last weekend's protest, the latest protest was a sign of things to come in the abortion debate.

"The message we wanted to send is that you can't kill babies during the day and go home and try to appear respectable at night," Mills said. "I would want to know if there were abortionists in my neighborhood."

Mills, who repeatedly referred to the clinics as "abortion mills," said her group will continue to picket outside the homes of doctors performing abortions. "We have abortion addresses in Bingham Farms, in Troy and in Farmington Hills," Mills said. "Anytime we have someone's address we're going to picket them. They can be very wealthy off the blood of dead babies. We're going to let their neighbors know about that."

None of the doctors targeted by last month's Northville protest were included in last Saturday's picket, Mills said, primarily because her group had not been able to obtain their home addresses. "We sure tried," she said. "We've got lots of people out doing research and investigation."

The silent protests were only one part of the protesters' campaign, Mills added. "We leafleted the neighborhoods in their newspaper boxes on the side of the road."

"The bottom line is education," Mills said. "We can picket and sit in front of doors all day long but education is the key."

Mills, who said her organization could reach up to 2,500 supporters throughout Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, said "We're just a loosely organized bunch of activists."

According to Pastor Mark Freer of the Open Door Christian Church in Northville, several of his parishioners participated in last week's protests, though he did not. Freer and other parishioners were involved in the Northville demonstration on Feb. 14.

"I've been a spokesman and I've been involved because we want people to do this out of a personal conviction," he said.

Dance around the clock

It was a charity dance at Northville High School and it brought out the spirit in everyone. Members of the school danced from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m. last weekend to raise funds for the Northville Action Council and the Alzheimer's Association. Left, students at the ball cheer for the rap group which entertained. Below, members of a rap group from Pontiac Northern High School were a big hit with the crowd early in the evening of the all-night charity dance.

Back taxes mount for mall owner

By MIKE TYREE

Maintenance woes are not the only problem facing Christopher Redding, owner of the Northville Plaza Mall. According to township and county tax records, Redding owes well over $200,000 in back taxes on the Seven Mile Road mall and faces a May 1 auction if 1987 taxes are not paid prior to that date.

Combined penalties for delinquent 1987-89 taxes will top $300,000 by May 1, based on county tax figures.

A Wayne County Treasurer's Office employee who identified herself as Ms. Moore said the account registered to Redding indicates delinquent taxes and penalties amounting to $100,087.61 for 1987.

"There will be an auctioned tax sale scheduled for May 1," Moore said.

Moore said anyone bidding on the property at a tax sale will in effect be purchasing a lien for the amount owed for 1987. The bidder holds a purchase of certificate for one year, she said, during which time the owner can buy back the lien by satisfying the back taxes and penalties for that year.

In addition to the 1987 taxes and penalties, Redding also owes 1988 taxes amounting to $54,484.71. "If paid this month," Moore said. Also, county records show that Redding is in arrears $76,580.70 for 1989 taxes.

Redding could not be reached for comment by press time, nor could his attorney, Robert Weller, of the law firm Columbo & Columbo of Birmingham.

Nancy Molloy, administrative assistant to the treasurer, said the land on which the mall is located is appraised at $190,790. The buildings, which include the still-operational A&P store and Perry Drugs, is valued at more than $1.4 million.

Township Building Department officials argued successfully March 9 in circuit court in Detroit to close the mall due to lack of maintenance.

A&P and Perry Drugs were excluded because they provide their own maintenance for their buildings, according to township Chief Building Official Mick Kruszewski.

Local mall ordered closed for repairs

be causing the damage. Major leak in rear of storage area. Unacceptable exposed wiring and electrical conduit present in storage area. Width of aislesways are definitely not acceptable. Sprinkler head at entrance has been removed and replaced with a bolt; also noted damage to metal protectors around fire hydrant, making it inoperable.

March 6 — "Approximately a 400-square-foot area of the aisleway is covered with water from a steady stream of water pouring from ceiling, now leaking just inside the entrance of the hair salon."

March 7 — "Still leaking; hole has been punched in ceiling tile and bucket put underneath to catch draining water in aisleway. Also noted is that the glass in the empty building behind cleaners has been permanently etched from mildew."

Kruszewski said he was pleased with the decision to close the mall. "It's nice to see the judicial system work to the benefit of the people," he said.

Student hosts sought

Have you ever considered hosting an international student in your home? Teenagers (14-18) from Spain, Germany, & Japan are eager to experience life in an American school and family. The students will arrive at the end of August.

They will live with their host families for one or two semesters. The students have enough money to pay all of their personal expenses, including school lunches. The sponsoring organization, American Institute for Foreign Studies, rewards host families with generous scholarships for foreign travel and/or study. Families with or without children of their own are welcome to apply.

Most families that have hosted foreign students in the past say that hosting is fun. For more information call AIFS at 1-800-322-4678 or call the AIFS local representative in Plymouth, Lyne Levenbach, at 453-8562.

Local flavor factory still claims healthy market share

By STEVE KELLMAN

Upon approaching Northville Laboratories at 100 Rural Hill Drive, the casual observer is struck more by the heady scent of ice cream in the air than the unassuming structure, which is as it should be.

The company has been producing some of the world's best vanilla flavoring since its inception in 1929.

But these are not easy times for the pioneering flavor manufacturer. From a staff of 40 in 1981, Northville Labs now employs 20 people.

Northville Labs was also once one of the largest producers of industrial vanilla in the country. Now, according to Vice President Pat Kilpatrick, the firm is still responsible for a considerable percentage of the nation's vanilla production.

"We're a large producer of vanilla, but not necessarily one of the largest," said Kilpatrick. "We have probably 25 to 30 fair-sized competitors and, other than the two or three largest, we're right up there in the thick with the others."

"No one has over 15 or 16 percent of the vanilla business across the country," he added. "We have something between five and 10."

GIVING THE OTHER GUY FITS

Though the flavor business has been flat for the company recently, Northville Labs is proving reports of its imminent demise have been greatly exaggerated.

"The reports of the company's death are wishful thinking on the part of some of our competitors," Kilpatrick said.

"This month we're about 10 percent over February of last year, and we plan to keep going in that vein."

The company has been searching for a new president since the death of company President Paul Newman last May. Said Kilpatrick, "We're very interested in keeping the company here in Northville, and we're very interested in our jobs. This is a very viable organization, the plant is old, but it's still very operational and capable of putting out a lot of flavors and doing a good job of it."

"We give some of our competitors fits, which is why, you might say, they are a little hurried to anticipate our demise."

A PIONEERING COMPANY

The idea behind Northville Laboratories dates back to 1914, when owner E.C. Langfield first began manufacturing flavoring extracts and drug specialties. Langfield established the firm in 1929. When he retired, he left the business to his son, Conrad, who in turn sold the business to Newman in May 1966.

Newman was no stranger to the field himself, as his father had previously made flavorings for soft drinks in Detroit. Unfortunately, Newman's death in May of last year culminated a gradual decline in the company's business since its heyday seven years ago.

The company is now operated by the employees and searching for a new owner.

THE VANILLA KINGS

Northville Labs makes a wide variety of flavorings, such as cinnamon, for mouthwashes and toothpaste, and flavorings and coloring for foods as diverse as vitamin pills, pickles and dog food.

The company also produces fragrances for candies and cosmetics, and creates "industrial deodorants," fragrances that cut down the offensiveness of products like house paints and insect repellent.

But the mainstay of the business is the production of vanilla. Its award-winning vanilla flavor has twice won the coveted Monde Selection gold medal from the World Food Organization.

The vanilla is made from select Bourbon beans from Madagascar and Java beans from Indochina. The beans are chopped and put in 50- to 60-pound bags and then immersed in alcohol inside one of the plant's 10-foot-tall percolators. From there, the extract is poured into one-gallon jugs or 55-gallon steel drums, depending on the size and needs of the client ordering the extract.

The company produces more than 1,000 gallons of vanilla each month, for a yearly production of between 15,000 and 25,000 gallons. "That's a multiple-fold base," Kilpatrick said. "To extend that out into fold strengths, it would be the equivalent of probably 50 to 60,000 gallons of single-fold vanilla."

Record/CHRIS BOYD

As he explained, vanilla comes in various strengths from one-fold to 10-fold. The "pure vanilla extract" that people buy in the store is actually only about 10 percent vanilla, and 35 to 40 percent alcohol to keep the vanilla from spoiling while it sits on a store's shelf.

The company markets vanilla between three-fold and 10-fold in strength, and their customers cut the vanilla before marketing or using it.

What, no TV?

Kids enjoy full week of just books

By JAN JEFFRES

Don't touch that dial!
"Turn off TV, turn on to books" — the challenge to give up TV for one full week — was recently issued by Borders Book Shop, and almost 300 children from Novi and surrounding areas heeded the call.
Was it tough? Were young addicts sneaking off to the neighbors for a quick fix of "He-Man and the Masters of the Universe"? Was it an excruciating sacrifice, demanding long, nail-biting hours of mind-searing boredom?
Not particularly, according to two Novi kids who kicked the habit from March 4-10. Their mothers each kept a diary, to make sure the commitment was kept.
Jason Kupfersmid, 9, a third-grader at Orchard Hills, has a weekly schedule so full that the daily hour of television he denied himself was hardly missed. Jason had karate, bowling and tennis to keep him busy, but he also worked with a computer, built Lego creations and caught up on his reading: two books from the Hardy Boys series and four from the Polk Street School series by Patricia Giff.
"Cause I like reading a lot and I don't really have a lot of time during the week to watch TV anyway," he said.
Besides, Jason has a vested interest in reading: he's co-editor of the Orchard Hills school paper, the "Mini-Cat Review," and spends Wednesday afternoons filing his stories into a computer.
So did Jason feel a little twinge, a little pang about tuning out for seven days? He does confess to missing "Teen-Age Mutant Ninja Turtles."
Jason especially appreciated the 10-percent discount at Borders that was part of the package. He estimates that he's already bought 18 books this year.
His mom, Chris Kupfersmid, was all for the program.
"I think it's excellent. I think it will give kids an incentive. Like we stress in our family, if you don't read you can't do anything. Reading is the key to life," she said.

Jennifer Bovair, 10, a fifth-grader at Novi Meadows, owned up that it might have been a little tough at first. The first night she turned off the TV, she had to miss her favorite show, "America's Funniest Home Videos."
"At first it was kind of hard because you're used to it. Toward the middle of the week, it wasn't so hard," Jennifer said.
But she found plenty to do, including reading, dragging out her Barbie dolls and practicing the violin and French horn. She also rediscovered Nintendo and borrowed extra games from friends.
Jennifer's sister Elizabeth, 7, a first-grader at Village Oaks, also participated in the program. Elizabeth spent more time practicing her tap and jazz dance routines last week.
But neither of the Bovair girls is actually a chronic TV fiend to begin with. Their mother, Carolyn, said Friday — 48 hours away from the last television-less day — that the girls usually only watch about an hour daily. This is far from the norm estimated by author Marie Winn in her book "Unplugging The Plug-In Drug." Winn calculates that the average child will plunk down for 15,000 hours of TV by age 17.
"I don't allow them to watch TV all the time. They have been excellent about not pestering me about it. They have resurrected things they haven't seen in a while. We've had Barbies all over the family room all week," Bovair said.
"They're eagerly waiting for tomorrow to be over."
Like Jason, the Bovair girls enjoy reading. But they did miss "The Cosby Show" and "The Wonder Years."
"I think this has been a very fun experience. A lot more people

'At first it was kind of hard because you're used to it. Toward the middle of the week, it wasn't so hard.'

— Jennifer Bovair.
Fifth-grader at Novi Meadows should try it. I think they should do this again," Jennifer said.

The Borders program offered incentives they all found attractive: the 10 percent off of books from Feb. 18 to March 10 and a drawing for children who signed up to swear off the idiot box. Prizes include a $50 gift certificate and Borders T-shirts and book bags. The program was only offered at the Novi store.
A bookstore may be one of the few businesses which can market consumerism directly to children and still win the applause of parents and teachers. Nancy Levy, publicity coordinator for Borders, said the response was greater than anticipated.
"One mother said it was a great idea. 'Would you do it again next week?' A lot of people mentioned how quiet it was around the house. A lot of the kids said they got a lot of reading done," Levy said.
While she got the idea from an article on a Connecticut school district which conducted a similar program, Levy actually gave up television for a week once herself, while in junior high.
"It was hard not to watch TV for a week. It gave you a chance to see what you can do without watching TV," she recalled. "It was challenging."
So what's next? Maybe Highland Superstores could run a promotion inviting kids to give up books for a week?

'Rent-a-judge' program passed by state senate

By TIM RICHARD

LANSING — Former judges could be hired to mediate civil lawsuits and reduce court dockets under a bill passed by the state Senate.
"Some of our major corporations could benefit," said Sen. Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, vice chair of the Judiciary Committee and a strong backer of the plan.
Contract disputes and corporate takeovers are the kinds of cases the "rent-a-judge" program could handle, Fessler said during floor debate last week.
The idea grew out of an Oakland County Bar Association effort to find alternative methods of resolving disputes. Oakland's economic boom has given its circuit court one of the busiest dockets in the state.
The bill won 33-2 approval. Supporters included Republicans Fessler, Robert Geake of Northville, and Democrat Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills, whose district includes Novi.
Sen. Virgil Smith, D-Detroit, delivered a strong objection: "This bill would create a dual system of justice. Those who can afford it do not have to stand in line. If there needs to be an additional judge, let's put one on the bench and pay for it forthrightly. Let's not create a private system."

But Sen. Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, who chairs the Judiciary Committee, said the bill has two safeguards: "The parties have to agree on who the rent-a-judge will be. And the list has to be approved by the Michigan Supreme court."
The other nay vote came from Sen. Gil DiNello, D-East Detroit, who objected to using judges defeated by voters. "The people have spoken, and I don't think the person voted out of office ought to be put back," he said.
"Another way of looking at it," Nichols replied, "is that someone else won the office."
Backers said judges not re-elected shouldn't be considered unethical. "People get on the wrong side of a political power play," said sponsor John Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe.
The bill would allow former state Supreme Court justices, Court of Appeals, circuit, probate, district, common pleas and recorder's judges to be hired as private judges in civil cases.
"It's an alternative way to resolve a dispute and must be according to law," said Nichols. "A rent-a-judge's decision is appealable."
The measure, Senate Bill 635, now goes to the House.
Nichols said a similar bill was passed by the Senate in 1987 but died in the House.

Company brings unique flavor to Northville community

FAVORITE FLAVORS

Overall, vanilla production accounts for between 35 and 40 percent of the company's business, according to Kilpatrick.

The most common use for the flavor is in — of course — ice cream. But Northville Labs makes other ice-cream flavors as well, like strawberry, cherry, and caramel.

"We make all kinds of flavors here," Kilpatrick pointed out. "It's America's favorite dessert. There's a lot of it consumed. A lot of people are making it, and they never really tire of it."

"We're making quite a few flavors that are used in yogurts and soft-serve yogurts," he added.

The flavors are typically sold to the companies that make the soft-serve mixes, and those companies then sell the finished product to ice cream stands or chains of ice cream stores.

MULTI-FOLD BUSINESS

Overall, the company has created an estimated 6,000 flavor formulations, including several different varieties of particular flavors, for all sorts of uses. For example, its shelves boast more than 30 cherry flavors alone.

The final flavors are the result of many different tastes. "We do taste testing here, the end user does taste testing, their quality control tests it, it's tested for compatibility in their formulas and with the other flavors and ingredients in their formulas," Kilpatrick said. "For baking purposes, a flavor must be heat-stable and for ice cream or freezing it must withstand cold temperatures and still be there in the product when it's consumed."

Susan Cipicchio, a lab technician at Northville Labs, makes a taste test sample. She must taste everything that leaves the lab.

SECRET RECIPES

While Northville Labs sells its flavorings to many nationally recognized brands, officials are not allowed to release the names of those companies. "I couldn't give you the brand names of our end users," Kilpatrick explained. "We don't market to the consumer ourselves, we market to the manufacturer, and we have privacy or protection agreements with those manufacturers that we won't reveal the source of the flavor."

"I will tell you this," he said. "We sell flavor to practically every ice-cream manufacturer in Michigan, several in Ohio, Indiana, some to New York State and quite a bit to California."

"We sell to candy manufacturers here, to bakeries here, we sell to leading candy manufacturers in Chicago," he added.

In fact, Northville Labs just submitted 10 of its flavors to the plant of a national dairy business in Nashville, and eight were found to be equal to or better than the businesses' present flavors.

"We can go out that far and get business in Nashville, Tenn., where sometimes it's difficult to get business from as near as Livonia," Kilpatrick said.

WORLD-CLASS COMPETITION

In November, Northville Labs took its show on the road, to the biannual Food and Dairy Exposition trade show in Chicago. The show is a chance for food and flavor suppliers from around the world to strut their stuff before potential customers.

"That was a good time for that to happen for us," said Corporate Secretary Ruth Jacobs, "because it showed people that we were still here and making good products."

At the exhibition, the company unveiled eight new ice-cream and yogurt flavors, drawing an enthusiastic response from the crowd. The new flavors included Newberry Twist, a combination of blueberry, raspberry and strawberry flavors.

The soft-serve ice cream comes out of the machine in a blue and white swirl, and according to Jacobs, a representative of the company supplying snacks to Disney World was intrigued by the flavor.

"He said, 'My God, kids would love that.' He said they were always looking for something that would grab the kids' eyes, and that would certainly do it," she said. "Besides that, it had a lovely flavor. You could taste the three berries in there very easily."

Another unique flavor introduced by Northville Labs was Creme De Menthe Surprise. Said Kilpatrick, "The surprise was instead of being creme de menthe and vanilla ice cream, it was in white chocolate."

TRICKS OF THE TRADE

Like any business, the flavor industry has its share of industrial spies.

"We have people call up and ask for a flavor sample, and if we don't know them... they might be put up to getting a sample of our flavor from a competitor," Kilpatrick said. "In fact, at the trade show, one company's salesman's wife came up and asked for a sample of our vanilla."

Kilpatrick laughs when recalling the encounter. "I said, 'Well, you're a competitor, and she said, 'Yes, but we would like to check out your vanilla,' and I said, 'I bet you would!' Of course, I haven't sent a sample yet."

"We have had, too, customers call up and ask for our formula," Kilpatrick said. "Or they would ask one party for the ingredient statement and they would ask someone else for the percentage of each ingredient, and then they'd try to put the

Wickedly funny

The traveling troupe of actors that visited the Northville Community Recreation building earlier this month, was a hit with the audience, big people and small, alike. Left, the wicked queen, Susan McCoy, plots against Snow White, during the Family Dinner Theater presentation. Below, the enjoyment of the crowd was very evident.

Founder's Day tickets available

Tickets are still available for Northville's 10th annual Founder's Day Banquet, set for Wednesday, April 25. Founder's Day is sponsored by the Northville PTA and is an evening dedicated to honoring volunteers in the Northville Public Schools.

The 1990 Northville Distinguished Guest is Margo Smith. Smith has been Junior Enrichment Series district-wide coordinator for five years. Her involvement in Northville Schools and the PTA began eight years ago at Winchester Elementary School. She was an active PTA member and was Winchester's JES chairperson for seven years, the chairperson of the Holiday Shop for two years, a Junior Great Books leader for two years, and a Cub Scout leader, also for two years. Smith is currently active in both the Winchester and Mead's Mill PTAs. She was part of the Strategic Planning Committee concerned with the high school.

Other PTA honorees are: Amerman Elementary — Milt Jacobi, Jan Tiplady and Irene Fleming; Moraine Elementary — Mary Najarian and Cheryl Spinazze; Silver Springs Elementary — Meg Copenen and Marcia Cromas; Winchester Elementary — Pam Fox and Linda Last; Meads Mill Middle School — Lynda Baca and Jeff Radwanski; Northville High School — Mary Culik and Deanna Siemasz; Early Childhood Development — Julie Betzler and Mary Kay Scullen.

The evening will begin with a punch and appetizer social hour at 5:30 p.m., followed by a buffet dinner at 6:30 p.m. featuring roast beef au jus, shrimp creole with rice, rissole potato, broccoli and cauliflower with cheese sauce, green beans almondine, salad of spring greens and dessert table. The event takes place at the Northville High School Cafeteria.

Master of ceremonies for the evening will be George Bell, superintendent of Northville Schools. Guest speaker will be Carl Cohen, immediate past president of the Michigan PTA, and current commission chairperson of Individual Organizational Development, National PTA.

The community is invited to attend the Founder's Day celebration. Tickets are $13 and are available in each school office and the Board of Education office.

City talking trash

requiring amendment of the ordinance itself.

Said Walters, "The intent is that as different materials become feasible for recycling, they get added to the list."

The City Council set April 2 as the date for a public hearing on the proposed ordinance.

Council members also had several ideas to reduce the city's waste stream in the future, including imposing a weekly limit on the amount of garbage that the city would collect from a household, while allowing unlimited collection of recyclable materials like grass clippings, plastic, glass and metal containers.

The theory is that the limit would encourage people to separate the recyclables out of their garbage, to decrease the amount of garbage they generate.

Rather than having trash collectors refuse to collect garbage over the limit, the council discussed the possibility of charging residents for collection of surplus trash. As Walters pointed out, "Refusing to pick up tends to result in littering and other forms of disposal. It's going to get disposed of anyway."

The council also discussed the possibility of selling marked trash bags to the residents, though Mayor Chris Johnson suggested that a weekly limit might be easier to enforce.

"Volume restriction seems to be something we can work with," he said.

Minutes of a Special Meeting of the City Council of the City of Northville, Counties of Wayne and Oakland, State of Michigan (the "City"), held in the City Hall of the City on the 20th day of February, 1990, at 9 o'clock a.m., Eastern Standard Time.

PRESENT: Members Ayers, Folino, Gardner, Johnson
ABSENT: Members Mittman.

The following preamble and resolution were offered by Member Ayers and supported by Member Folino:

WHEREAS, by resolution adopted on February 20, 1990, the City Council had authorized the issuance and sale of Seven Hundred Seventy Five Thousand Dollars ($775,000) 1990 MICHIGAN TRANSPORTATION FUND BONDS of the City and it is necessary to provide a form of notice of sale of said bonds and to authorize the filing with the Michigan Department of Treasury (the "Department") for approval or an exception from prior approval to issue said bonds

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT,

1. The notice of sale of the bonds shall be in substantially the following form: WHEREAS, the Improvements are in accordance with the purposes enumerated in Act 51, Public Acts of Michigan, 1951 ("Act 51"); and WHEREAS, the revenues received by the City from the Michigan Transportation Fund pursuant to Act 51 in the year preceding this contemplated borrowing are more than sufficient to comply with all the requirements specified in Section 4 of Act 175, NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT

1. The plans and estimates of cost of the improvements are hereby approved and adopted

2. The period of usefulness of the improvements is estimated to be not less than fifteen (15) years

3. The City Council hereby determines to borrow the sum of Seven Hundred Seventy Five Thousand Dollars ($775,000) and issue bonds of the City therefor pursuant to the provisions of Act 175 (the "Bonds"), for the purpose of providing funds to pay for the cost of the improvements

4. The Bonds shall be designated 1990 MICHIGAN TRANSPORTATION FUND BONDS and shall consist of bonds registered as to principal and interest of the denominations of any multiple of $5,000 not exceeding for each maturity the maximum principal amount of the Bonds or that maturity and numbered consecutively in order of registration or transfer. The Bonds will be dated as of March 1, 1990 and payable on

The Bonds shall bear interest to be determined at the public sale thereof and not to exceed the maximum rate permitted by law, payable on June 1, 1990 and semi-annually thereafter. The Bonds shall be subject to redemption prior to maturity as provided in Section 9 hereof

Unless waived by any registered owner of Bonds to be redeemed, official notice of redemption shall be given by the transfer agent on behalf of the City. Such notice shall be dated and shall contain at a minimum the following information: original issue date, maturity dates; interest rate, CUSIP numbers, if any, certificate members (and in the case of partial redemption) the called amounts of each certificate; the redemption date, the redemption price or premium; the place where Bonds called for redemption are to be surrendered for payment; and that interest on bonds or portions thereof called for redemption shall cease to accrue from and after the redemption date

In addition, redemption notice shall be given by the transfer agent in such manner as may be required or suggested by regulations or market practice at the applicable time, but no defect in such further notice nor any failure to give all or any portion of such further notice shall in any manner defeat the effectiveness of a call for redemption if noticed thereof is given and described herein

5. The Bonds shall be executed in the name of the City with the actual or facsimile signatures of the Mayor and the City Clerk and shall bear the actual or a facsimile of the City seal. No Bond of this series shall be valid until authenticated by an authorized signature of the transfer agent designated in the notice of sale of the Bonds. The Bonds shall be delivered to the transfer agent for authentication and be delivered by the transfer agent to the purchaser in accordance with instructions from the Treasurer of the City upon payment of the purchase price for the Bonds in accordance with the bid therefor when accepted. Executed blank bonds for registration and issuance to transferees shall simultaneously, and from time to time thereafter as necessary, be delivered to the transfer agent for safekeeping

6. Any Bond may be transferred upon the books required to be kept pursuant to this section by the person in whose name it is registered, in person or by the registered owner's duly authorized attorney, upon surrender of the Bond for cancellation, accompanied by delivery of a duly executed written instrument of transfer in a form approved by the transfer agent. Whenever any Bond or Bonds shall be surrendered for transfer, the City shall execute and the transfer agent shall authenticate and deliver a new Bond or Bonds, in like aggregate principal amount. The transfer agent shall require the payment by the bondholder requesting the transfer of any tax or other governmental charge required to be paid with respect to the transfer. The date of determination of the registered owner for purposes of payment of interest as provided in this resolution may be changed by the City to conform to market practice in the future. The principal of the Bonds shall be payable at the corporate trust office of Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit, Detroit, Michigan, as registrar and transfer agent for the Bonds, upon presentation and surrender of the appropriate Bond. The City may designate a new transfer agent by notice mailed to the registered owner of each of the Bonds at such time outstanding, not less than sixty (60) days prior to an interest payment date. The City Manager or Treasurer is hereby authorized to execute an agreement with the transfer agent on behalf of the City

7. To provide moneys to pay the principal of and interest on the Bonds and in accordance with the provisions of Act 175, there is hereby made an irrevocable appropriation of the amount necessary to pay the principal of and interest on the Bonds from the moneys to be derived from state-collected taxes returned to the City for highway purposes, pursuant to law, which moneys have not heretofore been specifically allocated and pledged for indebtedness. The Treasurer of the City is directed, each year that any of the principal of and interest on the Bonds remains unpaid, to set aside in a separate depository account, to be designated 1990 MICHIGAN TRANSPORTATION FUND BONDS DEBT RETIREMENT FUND, sufficient moneys from revenues received during such year from the Michigan Transportation Fund pursuant to law to pay the principal of and interest on the Bonds next maturing. The Treasurer is further directed to open a separate depository account, to be designated 1990 MICHIGAN TRANSPORTATION FUND BONDS CONSTRUCTION FUND into which the proceeds of the Bonds, less accrued interest and premium, if any, shall be deposited, which account shall be used to pay the City's share of the cost of constructing the improvements. Bond proceeds remaining after completion of the improvements shall be applied as permitted by law

8. Pursuant to Act 175, and as additional security for the prompt payment of the principal of and interest on the Bonds, there is hereby irrevocably pledged the limited tax full faith and credit of the City, and in the event of insufficiency of funds primarily pledged to the payment thereof, the City covenants and agrees to provide for such insufficiency from such resources as are lawfully available to it and the City shall, if necessary, levy ad valorem taxes on all taxable property in the City for the payment thereof, within applicable constitutional, statutory and charter tax rate limitations

9. The Bonds shall be in substantially the following form subject to such changes as to ministerial form as may be reasonably requested by the transfer agent

O'Brien's woes reflect deeper concerns

When a local official is publicly chastised for inattention and inappropriate behavior, heads naturally turn.

Last week's news — that Township Planning Commission Chairperson Charles DeLand had sent a letter to Township Supervisor Georgina Goss detailing his specific complaints against Planning Commissioner Barbara O'Brien and Goss' comments that she had contacted the township attorney to research the grounds available for removing planning commissioners — is serious stuff indeed.

The allegations made by DeLand and the responses made by O'Brien bring up several points that bear looking into.

First — was O'Brien wrong in leaving a meeting at 11:40 p.m.? The commission had only five of nine members present that night. Five members present is the minimum necessary to hold a meeting, as it represents quorum for the planning commission. Her exit meant the meeting was brought abruptly to a close.

But at least she was there in the first place; four other members of the commission were not in attendance at all. No doubt they had valid reasons for their absences. But anyone rushing to criticize O'Brien should realize that the loss of a quorum was due to five individuals' absences, not one.

The answer here may lie in whether DeLand knew O'Brien needed to leave the meeting early. According to O'Brien, she spoke to DeLand and told him she would be unable to stay past 10:30 p.m. that evening. DeLand said he had no knowledge of O'Brien's need to leave until a 10 p.m. break when he was advised of it.

Who's right and who's wrong in this situation? And who decides what the right thing to do is?

Goss has turned the matter over to the attorney for a legal ruling on just what the state statutes are for removing a planning commissioner. DeLand has stated, "She (O'Brien) has proven as a planning commissioner that she is not as effective as I think she should be." DeLand listed reasons such as inattention, lack of progression and not supplying legitimate reasons for no votes on planning issues as reasons he has asked the township supervisor to intercede in the matter.

The whole matter may come down to a few very simple things. What are the criteria for appointing planning commissioners in the first place? In December of 1989 we asked these same questions regarding the criteria used for Zoning Board of Appeals appointments. The same questions apply to the planning commission. Perhaps if criteria for appointment were stressed and adhered to, questions of competency would not come up several months after the fact. Or if they did, they'd be easily answered.

Consider past

If ever a plot of land were to be haunted, the decades-old Wayne County Training School on the east side of Sheldon Road in Northville Township is a prime candidate.

To walk the site, to see the burned-out hulks of buildings and the deserted swing-sets and soccer fields, one can almost imagine spirits wandering the grounds at night — wringing their hands at the waste.

The school's ultimate demise was due to a number of factors — a move towards residential housing of the mentally handicapped, better local programs for the children it served, and the county's lack of funds for maintenance.

The gradual deterioration of the site may be more a symbol of a national attitude than a local policy

GOVERNMENT

At that time we stated, "Having a set of guidelines makes the position more than just appointment by favor." We advised that making public the necessary criteria for appointed positions sets the standards for the appointment. Such standards would be invaluable now. Has the appointee breached those standards? Hard to say unless there are firm guidelines to measure against.

Common sense leads us to a few conclusions. If a planning commissioner represents quorum and there is still business before the commission, then they have a responsibility to the public to remain until that business is brought to a legal close. Even though four other members do not attend at all, those who do attend should be there for the duration.

Likewise, it would have been more than appropriate if O'Brien had placed a motion before the commission at the very beginning of the meeting requesting that the meeting end by 10:30 p.m. as she was unable to remain, and quorum would be broken, beyond that time. That motion would have made it completely clear to everyone — including the record — that she was up front in her need to leave at a specified time. Like all matters that come before a public body, all discussions that affect that body should be made in public. Private conversations of any nature are subject to interpretation and confusion. Public declarations become matters of public record.

The lack of standards for appointments may make the next step in this matter difficult for all involved. Who decides how "effective" a planning commissioner ought to be and what "progression" in learning is appropriate? What standards of attendance are required? What constitutes a breach of responsibility to the public and what are the appropriate disciplinary actions for such breaches?

And where we're on the subject — what is an appropriate hour to end a public meeting? The public is not well-served — and in fact would be hard-pressed to attend — any meeting that goes beyond 10 p.m. This poses some very difficult dilemmas for a planning commission that is already meeting on a weekly basis far into the night, and sometimes the following morning, to get its work done.

Answers to all these questions must be found, and found quickly. These are serious matters before the township and they deserve quick attention.

change. The attitude is — out with the old and in with the new.

But the Wayne County Training School was a shining example of what a government can do when it sets its mind to it. The program was the only one of its kind — a county-run facility for special-needs children. Thousands of students passed through its gates, and found a level of care and attention that many couldn't obtain in their own communities, because of the lack of local resources.

In its heyday, the campus rivaled that of the most prestigious universities in terms of facilities and appearance.

We hope the firm of R.A. DeMattia will hold to its promise to renovate some of the stately brick buildings on the site, so that all the old isn't lost with the advent of the new.

Music hath charms

By Ann Willis

I picked up the phone the other day and a woman on the other end was eager to tell me about the awards Northville's band had won at the most recent Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association competition.

The woman was afraid I wouldn't take the awards seriously. She told me how hard the Symphonic Band and their leader, Michael Rumbell, had practiced this year. How much time the group had put in and how important the recognition was to the kids and to Rumbell.

Well, she shouldn't have worried. She was talking to an old band kid who still knows where her one blue ribbon from the Michigan Solo and Ensemble festival is stored. That blue ribbon, and the incredible feeling of accomplishment I felt when I won it, makes it very easy for me to understand what she was talking about.

I started out playing flute in the third grade. At McKenny Elementary School in Detroit they used to get kids interested in taking instrumental music lessons by putting on an assembly once a year for the third-graders. Mr. Bekin, the instrumental music teacher who floated between my elementary school and several others, would explain each instrument and have some of the more talented students play a little bit. That was usually enough to ensure a new crop of children learning scales each year. I know it got me hooked.

As I went from elementary school through junior high and on into high school, I always played in the band, the orchestra and whatever other group matched my talent and inclinations that year. In junior high school I was induced to trade my flute in for a french horn. The orchestra was extremely low on those that year. It was a decision my family still holds against me.

Let's just say I could play the flute. When I would practice that gentle, melodic instrument in my room at night, my mother would leave the door open and listen while she did the dishes. When I switched to the french horn the entire neighborhood went for cover. It was not an easy instrument to play at home. Or to carry home, as I recall.

But playing in all those sectionals, bands and orchestras taught me a great deal about self-discipline, teamwork and most importantly — beauty. I don't play an instrument anymore but my appreciation for music in all its many forms is much deeper.

So congratulations to the Symphonic Band, and to everyone who makes music a part of their lives. Believe me, I understand.

Items from our catalog:

• Every now and then I start to forget how many different little pieces go into making up a single issue of a weekly newspaper. And then I get reminded.

The latest reminder came in connection with the "Green Sheet," our classified-ad section. Included in this section is a crossword puzzle. Here in the newsroom we have nothing to do with this puzzle. It comes from somewhere and somehow gets stuck in the paper, but I never see it until the paper comes out. And I usually don't try to work it.

So, if we hadn't received a letter pointing out the fact, I never would have known that in a recent issue a few of the clues were missing. I don't know how it happened, but it did.

"I admit this one was a little more challenging," the reader wrote. "How did I do?" She enclosed a completed puzzle.

Well, I didn't have any better way of knowing the answers than she, so I figured I'd just wait and respond when the puzzle answer came out the following week.

Guess what? The following week we changed the type of crossword we run, and the answer given had no relation at all to the previous week's puzzle. Sorry, but I guess we'll never know how you did.

• Another thing I sometimes forget, and regularly get reminded of, is the amount of great entertainment that can be found without leaving Northville.

The reminder here was a big Friday night dinner at Genitti's. Although I've had lunch there countless times, I'm ashamed to admit it was my first trip for dinner.

It was the most fun I've had in a long time, and easily the best laugh of the week came in hearing John Genitti give my future sister-in-law, Judy, a hard time over the place she lives: Twining, Michigan. (Yeah, that's pretty much what John Genitti said, too.)

• The first time I heard the idea of mandatory, curbside recycling brought up at a Northville City Council meeting, it seemed like a only a very distant possibility. But it may be getting closer.

The trash-disposal problem is only getting worse, and while local recycling drop-off centers have proved popular, they will never achieve anything close to full participation. Two suburban neighbors — Southfield and Dearborn — are making the big jump to required trash separation at curbside starting July 1.

The city council is currently considering a requirement to put some or all trash in see-through bags, one step in the same direction.

We might want to get used to this kind of idea. It could become inevitable.

Why lay blame at O'Brien's feet?

To the Editor:

After reading the front-page story in the March 15 issue of the Northville Record concerning the proposed dismissal of Commissioner Barbara O'Brien from the Township Planning Commission, the first question that came to mind was, "Why is Ms. O'Brien any more responsible for the lack of quorum than the four members who were absent from the entire meeting?"

According to your story, she had informed the chairperson that she had to leave, but she did stay for most of the meeting. We presume that the other absent members also told the chairperson about their absences. The mistake Ms. O'Brien seems to have made is in showing up at all! Our knowledge of this incident is derived only from your account; we did not attend this planning commission session. However, we have observed the commission in operation on another occasion.

During the past year, we have been involved with the zoning board of appeals and the planning commission regarding a Beck Road resident who wishes to build a house behind his existing home. According to the ordinance in effect, a variance was required because of insufficient frontage for a 60-foot access easement. After several appeals, the ZBA granted the variance despite unanimous objections from the homeowners in our subdivision, immediately adjacent to the property in question. Many of these homeowners attended a subsequent planning commission meeting to voice objections to the lot split and to plead, not for any unusual favors, but simply for enforcement of the existing ordinance. Of all the members of the planning commission, only Ms. O'Brien and Mr. Leinonen indicated that they even listened to the residents' pleas and were the only two members voting against easing the restrictions in the ordinance. In fact, as we discussed the course of events after the meeting, the neighbors' consensus was that the public hearing was only a farce; the majority vote seemed to have been predetermined.

Recently, through the efforts of the Northville Township Zoning Board of Appeals, Planning Commission and Township Board, Zoning Ordinance No. 77-03-90 was amended to decrease the easement requirement to 40 feet, thus enabling devastating development of the back portions of properties on Seven Mile and Beck Roads adjacent to our subdivision. The property in question is a beautiful wetland reserve, home of deer, blue heron, ducks, wild turkeys and many other birds, animals and wildflowers. Once developed, it can never be restored, and there are too few areas like this one left in Northville Township.

Is it possible that Ms. O'Brien is under attack because she displays the courage of her convictions in voting against the established majority? Does she rock the boat too often? Perhaps Supervisor Goss should consider the motives and performance of all planning commission and zoning board of appeal members. We need representatives like Ms. O'Brien, who care about preserving the character of our township. Many residents moved here just because of the proximity to nature and the "out in the country" atmosphere, which will soon disappear forever if development is not controlled.

Horst G. and Helen I. Schneider

Editor's Note: Zoning Ordinance 77-03-90 was changed to allow a 40-foot easement requirement only under certain circumstances. If three- or four-time lot split is planned or could occur on the land under consideration, or including adjacent land, the easement must remain 60 feet. If a two-time lot split is the only possibility (including adjacent land) at that time and at any time in the future, the easement may be reduced at the discretion of the planning commission.

Above reproach

To the Editor:

I can't believe Commission Chairperson DeLand has asked for the dismissal of Commissioner Barbara O'Brien from the Planning Commission for being irresponsible. O'Brien has never been irresponsible in her life. She is a dedicated worker who throws her whole self into every project she tackles. She calls "a spade a spade" and says what she believes to be just and right for the township.

Just because she's a controversial person and doesn't go along with the "good ole boys," DeLand wants to get rid of her!

What's the sense in having a commission if everyone thinks the same way? The mere fact that O'Brien has not missed one of the 23 meetings in the 13 months since being appointed must say something for her being a responsible person.

In 25 years of knowing Barbara, her integrity has been above reproach. If she let it be known she was to leave the meeting early, at the beginning of the meeting, she did! I say "Thank God for people like Barbara O'Brien."

It sounds to me like it's a thankless job!

Down payment

To the Editor:

How would you like to receive the down payment on a Rolls Royce as a gift? Let us explain.

1. Yes, we need a new library.
2. A million-dollar gift that costs the township seven million dollars is not a good deal.

3. The leap from needing office space and rental typewriters to needing a community complex is not rational.

There is no argument that the township is growing and that we need to look to the future. A new library can meet the needs of the present and the future without such overkill.

Nearly half of the "library" is not a library, but an auditorium and meeting rooms. Who is going to use these rooms? Why can't the rental on these rooms pay for the cost of their construction and maintenance?

The May vote is the citizens' opportunity to say no to this costly proposal. It is time for the township planners to look again at alternatives. What's your decision; now that the township has given you a "free" down payment on a Rolls Royce, are you willing to make the rest of the payments?

Library needs

To the Editor:

Almost two years ago my husband and I moved our young family to Northville from the east Dearborn/southwest Detroit area mainly because of the excellent reputation of the Northville schools and to expose our children to a more intellectually stimulating environment. A few days after we moved into our new home I paid a visit to the Northville Library. What a disappointment! I thought that perhaps we had made a mistake about the "intellectually stimulating environment" in Northville. I felt a bit embarrassed when a few weeks later a friend from Bloomfield Township brought her daughter to participate in the Northville Library's story-time program with my son, with roughly 15 children crowded into a small, unappealing room; especially since I had just visited the beautiful Bloomfield Township Library with my friend a week earlier. I found solace in the fact that the issue of a new library seemed to be a hot topic in the Northville Record.

I grew up in New York City where the public library was a home-away-from-home for students. It was a place where a young student could go after school to use encyclopedias and research materials, to find a quiet room in which to do homework and read, to meet with clubs and class groups, or to watch an after-school movie. Likewise, Dearborn's public Henry Ford Centennial Library was a place that I enjoyed visiting as a quiet get-away at lunch while employed at Ford Motor Company, not only for its wonderful book collection, but also for its art, photography and nature exhibits. Later, after my son was born, the Dearborn Library became a favorite spot for us with its large, airy children's area where a parent does not have to worry about children's happy voices disturbing other library patrons.

A public library reveals a lot about the value a community places on education, literacy and a sense of civic-mindedness. It is time for Northville to stop giving the wrong message and to get on with the construction and development of the Haller Library — a library that we can all be proud of.

Landfill fears

To the Editor:

We are writing this letter to express our concern and opposition to the proposal by Holloway Sand and Gravel Co. to create a landfill site at Eight Mile and Napier Roads in Novi.

We live in proximity to the current land fill at Six Mile and Napier and know that the site creates smell, dust, debris and heavy traffic. In addition we are concerned about contamination from the landfill leaking into the wells in that area.

The proposed site is directly adjacent to Maybury State Park and we feel having this landfill in that area will be a definite detriment to the natural beauty of the park and to the wildlife in the park.

The Eight Mile and Napier area is too nice an area to be spoiled by a landfill and should be used for a purpose that would provide more enjoyment for people instead of an eyesore.

If we have to have another landfill it would be better to locate it in an area already zoned for industrial use and not destroy this residential area. Please don't let "big business" spoil what few choice locations we have left.

Stop Holloway

To the Editor:

My family and I are residents of Napier Road and as are the rest of my neighbors, we are strongly opposed to the proposed landfill on Eight Mile and Napier Roads.

Recently, there appeared in the March 10 issue of the Detroit Free Press (pg. 16A) an article of yet another area in which the Holloway Companies have had a hand in destroying. The Holloway Co. was found guilty of destroying wetlands in Monroe County and agreed to pay $80,000 for restoration of the areas.

It is appalling to think that a company that has been found guilty of environmental destruction is possibly going to be allowed the opportunity to destroy and contaminate yet again, and in an area where the impact could be so severe due to its close proximity to schools, residential areas and a state park: Thus, making this property unsuitable for a landfill of any kind.

We feel it is high time politics were set aside and the reality be dealt with by denying them the ability to succeed again.

Civic pride

To the Editor:

On Monday, March 5, 1990, with the leadership of the Northville Action Council, the community kicked off the Annual Red Ribbon Campaign reinforcing anti-substance-abuse efforts in our schools and community. A variety of special activities were planned in the schools to promote the project. Literally hundreds of hours of volunteer work by Action Council members, Northville High School SADD members, school personnel and parents resulted in a highly successful week of activities. The community can be very proud of this event as recognized in excellent coverage by area television news broadcasts as well as the Northville Record.

A highlight of the week was the opening session featuring Col. Atchison and a full course dinner at Genitti's restaurant. Typical of John and Toni Genitti's attitude toward public service, they put on a lavish dinner for over 100 people without charge as a service to the community. In addition to the contribution of the Genitti family, the restaurant service personnel donated their time. I'm not sure the community really recognized the tremendous contribution to worthy causes performed by John and Toni Genitti. Somehow, whenever an event occurs which could enhance the quality of life in the Northville Community, the Genittis are there without fanfare and without expectation of thanks, making sure the event is a success. They are truly a community treasure.

On behalf of Northville Schools and the 3,780 students who will benefit from the message of Red Ribbon Week, heartfelt thanks to the Genittis, the Northville Action Council and the community for their support.

Taxed by taxes

An open letter to the Northville City Administration:

I'm truly angry at the continued tax increases we are experiencing here in Northville. You may argue that Oakland County is to blame, (or Wayne County for those living south of Eight Mile road). However, you must realize ENOUGH IS ENOUGH! You have allowed a quiet, charming little community to expand at the inconvenience of the local population. And, you expect us to pay for any increased improvements and employment necessary to accommodate that expansion.

Why can't the increases be levied at those who most benefit from that newly developed segment? I don't realize any real benefit from increased traffic congestion, loss of convenient parking in the village when we are trying to shop with local merchants. Nor do I get a pastoral view of orchards when I attempt to drive along Eight Mile Road. No, I dodge huge pot holes hoping not to damage my car and see endless new apartments and condos. And hope the many big gravel trucks won't throw rocks and break another windshield. Driving along Eight Mile Road isn't enjoyable any more, it's nerve wracking and annoying.

I think back to how nice Northville seemed to be 10 years ago when we moved here. Now we keep thinking about moving out. At one time, we thought we'd continue to live here when I retire. No way could we afford to do that now. Our property taxes have increased 31.9 percent in the last four years, while my income hasn't gone up more than 5 percent. I call that trying to live between a rock, a hard place . . . and hundreds of new homes and apartments, none of which could I afford at today's prices. Funny, we always thought we were in the upper middle-income bracket, too.

Not long ago, there was an editorial about a newly discovered hot zip code known as 48167. Soon there were $400,000 houses popping up like mushrooms on postage stamp-sized lots with few trees around. While it might not have added to the quaintness, we surely thought these newcomers would be picking up the tab for any improvements and expansions planned for the area. While I don't envy those newcomers their tax burden, their arrival here seems to have added to mine. At least that's how I perceive it. One would think with all the expansion, that Northville City, Northville Township and the county would have a huge surplus of money to fund the future of the communities plans and improvements. Apparently that's not the case, but I don't understand why not. There is only more inconvenience . . . and more taxes.

The sad effect of this is, I for one won't be voting "yes" for any added millage whatsoever, however badly needed that might be. Find another way to fund it without me paying for it. There is no tea to dump into the harbour, so only the power of a vote is left. I understand petitions are beginning to appear and signatures are starting to multiply. Perhaps the next administration will have an answer.

Census counts

Dear Wayne County Residents:

Every household in Wayne County will be receiving a questionnaire on or about March 23 from the Bureau of the Census as the U.S. Department of Commerce conducts our nation's 21st National Census.

I can't emphasize enough how important the Census is to everyone in Wayne County. The Census is conducted every 10 years, and its purpose is to gather population and housing statistics for the entire country. These numbers are used to determine how you are represented in both the U.S. House of Representatives and the State Legislature in Lansing.

For many programs, the Census also determines how much Federal and State money is allocated to our communities. This money helps improve our roads, strengthen our school systems and provide adequate housing and other needed social services for our citizens.

The government uses census population figures for the next 10 years to allocate these dollars to local communities. An inaccurate count can result in lower funding for these community programs and services. Therefore, it's important that we all complete the census questionnaire promptly and accurately as soon as it arrives in our mailboxes within the next several days.

Remember, it's a civic responsibility for all of us in Wayne County to participate in the census. Your responses to the census are kept confidential. Under Federal law, the Bureau of census is prohibited from revealing any information about you or your household to any person, including other Federal agencies.

If we have 100-percent participation in this year's census, we will retain our proper representation in Washington and Lansing and continue to receive the federal and state dollars we deserve.

Edward H. McNamara
Wayne County Executive

Heartfelt thanks

To the Editor:

The members of Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville wish to thank the Northville Record for its positive articles and editorials about our hospitality project for the homeless. During the week of March 4-11 we were able to provide meals and a place to sleep in our church for over sixty people each night.

This effort to offer Christian service to those in need was supported by hundreds of people from our church and many others in our community. We would especially like to recognize the following businesses for making donations of food and supplies: Edward's Caterers, Mancuso's Quality Market, Guernsey Farms Dairy, Papa Romano's Pizza, Little Caesars Pizza, USA Video, Black's Hardware, Giftfinder's Music, Northwest Airlines, Meijers, Dr. Mark Wegzyn DDS and Dr. David LaRou DDS. Ford Motor Company and Ford Motor Credit provided us with large passenger vans for transporting our guests. First United Methodist Church and First Presbyterian Church of Northville loaned their vans as well.

We appreciate the contributions of everyone who helped make this week possible. You all were important to the success of this enriching experience.

whole thing together. "That can be done in a larger company where the left hand doesn't know what the right hand's doing, and vice versa," he said. "But we're a small enough company that we know what's going on."

NO NEW FLAVORS

While Northville Labs is continually fine-tuning its flavors, the tried and true tastes are the ones that all flavor companies depend upon.

"There's really not any new flavors or new fruits being invented, there's just variations of them," Kilpatrick explained. "The first one with a new combination gets a little bit of an edge over someone else."

The company also combines flavors for different purposes. "For example, the peach will be fortified with apricot," Kilpatrick said. "It gives it a stronger impact after cooking or freezing."

"In my opinion, the ice-cream companies have all gone into a tizzy," Jacobs said. She attributed the craze for exotic flavors to Baskin Robbins and its wide array of flavors.

"But now everybody gets kind of hoity-toity about the flavors," she said. "Nobody wants to try a new one, they want a tried and true flavor that they don't have to think about."

FRESH TASTES

But ice cream companies still depend on fresh flavors for new customers. "They need a new flavor for each season, but it has to be interesting enough to attract instant business," Kilpatrick said. "They have to sell in quantity to make money; they don't want flavors that are just going to be a flash in the pan or a fad."

The need for a flavor sensation is more acute for ice cream companies because their sales season is shorter, especially in the north. "Candy and beverages, why, they can take longer, as they can plan to market them longer," Kilpatrick explained. "But in the cold-weather states at least, ice cream is still seasonal."

Companies sometimes approach Northville Labs with an idea for a new flavor, but the company more often comes up with its own flavor and sells its customers on the new idea. "Very frequently, we will have companies call us and say they are working, say, on a new peach variation," Kilpatrick said. "They'll ask what we might have or what we might be able to offer on it."

Local publisher to receive award

Publisher Philip H. Power will receive a presidential award next week from U.S. Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole for his role in Michigan's Job Partnership Act programs.

Power, board chairperson of Suburban Communications Corp., parent company of this newspaper, was chosen "outstanding private sector volunteer," Dole said in a letter.

"You have certainly distinguished yourself in your selfless dedication to improve training and employment opportunities for the economically disadvantaged," she wrote.

Since 1983 Power has chaired Michigan's Job Training Coordinating Council, a 60-member group which advises the governor on all job training issues.

There are some 70 job training and related programs with more than $800 million in state and federal funds that need to be coordinated and made more "user friendly" to the disadvantaged, a state Labor Department spokesman said.

Power will go to Washington March 27-29 for a reception with Michigan's congressional delegation and for the presentation by Dole.

He was nominated by Gov. James J. Blanchard, state Labor Department Director Elizabeth Howe and Joe Forbes, director of state job training programs. They credited Power with helping to make Michigan a national leader in the job training area.

"The greatest single challenge facing America in the next 20 years is to improve the skills level of the American work force," said Power.

He said the task involves "radically improving the skills kids have when they leave school for the work place. Our competitors — Europe, Japan and the Asians — are doing better than we are by almost any measure."

Novi ZIP code situation still scrambled

NOVI — The City of Novi's crusade to have the city unified under one ZIP code has met with mixed results with the U.S. Postal Service.

Until July 1, some Novi residents will continue to have Walled Lake, Northville and Farmington ZIP codes. On July 1, the city will have four new ZIP codes and no portion of the city will have a Walled Lake or Farmington mailing address. But one section of Novi will remain with a Northville code.

According to Charles Pearson, an address information systems analyst at the postal service's management sectional center in Royal Oak, here's how the new ZIP Code realignment will work.

□ Portions of Novi now within the Northville 48167 code will remain unchanged.

□ Every section of the city west of Taft Road and south of Interstate-96 will have a 48374 code.

□ All Novi delivery areas east of Taft Road and south of Interstate-96 will have a 48375 code.

□ Post office boxes in Novi will have a 48376 code.

Taxing terminology needs understanding

If your eyes glaze over whenever you read terms like adjusted gross income or acquisition debt, you're not alone. Many individuals have a hard time comprehending the tax terms that start cropping up this time of year. To help you plow through all that jargon, the Michigan Association of CPAs has provided some easy to understand definitions of frequently used tax terms.

GROSS INCOME: The total amount of taxable income you receive from all sources — including wages, tips, interest, dividends and alimony.

ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME (AGI): This term refers to the balance you obtain after reducing your gross income by certain exclusions, adjustments and deductions — such as alimony payments, certain trade and business expense adjustments or deductible contributions to an IRA or Keogh plan. Your CPA can outline the adjustments for which you are eligible.

TAXABLE INCOME: The amount of income remaining after you claim all adjustments, exclusions, itemized deductions or standard deductions and personal exemptions. In other words, taxable income is the figure you use to calculate your actual tax liability.

DEPENDENCY EXEMPTION: A fixed deduction that you may claim for any individual who qualifies as your dependent. For 1989, each exemption equals a $2,000 deduction.

ACTIVE PARTICIPATION IN A RETIREMENT PLAN: The term active participation means that you were eligible to participate in an employer's retirement plan for any part of 1989. To determine your status examine the appropriate information box on your W-2 form. If the box contains a pre-printed mark, the IRS considers you an active participant in a retirement plan. Active participation in an employer's retirement plan may reduce or eliminate the deduction you can take for Individual Retirement Account (IRA) contributions.

BASIS: A figure used to calculate gain or loss. Basis is also used in determining the amount of depreciation you can claim. To simplify, your basis is generally the amount of money you originally paid to obtain an investment — such as real estate or stock — plus any related out-of-pocket expenses. For example, if you bought a house for $80,000, paid for home improvements totalling $10,000, and then sold your house for $100,000, your basis would be $40,000. The $60,000 in profit is your capital gain. Basis must be reported to the IRS whenever you sell an investment.

ACQUISITION DEBT: A fancy term for debt used to buy, build or substantially improve a principal residence or second home. Interest on acquisition debt is generally deductible on amounts of up to $1 million.

HOME EQUITY DEBT: A loan or credit line based on the market value of your house minus the amount you still owe on it — that is, your equity. Interest is fully deductible on home equity debt of up to $100,000.

POINTS: A point is 1 percent of a loan. For instance, four points on a mortgage of $150,000 equals $6,000. If the points are a processing fee, rather than a service fee, they are generally deductible. If you obtained a mortgage to purchase or improve a primary residence in 1989 and paid the points with funds from your checking or savings account, you may be able to deduct the points in full on your 1989 return. If you do not meet these requirements, you will have to deduct the points over the term of the loan.

UNEARNED INCOME: Any income other than employee compensation, wages, tips, or salaries. Examples of unearned income are interest, dividends and capital gains.

Business Briefs

WILLIAM C. McCLIMENT, P.E., executive vice president of Orchard, Hiltz & McCliment, Inc., the Livonia based consulting Engineering firm announced the appointment of Dean McComb, P.E. as manager, airport section. McComb is a graduate of the University of Michigan with a B.S.C.E. degree and is a Registered Professional Engineer in Michigan. He is a resident of Northville Township.

The Airport Section offers a full range of consultant services including master planning, design and construction, electrical, structural as well as liaison with the Federal Aviation Administration and the Michigan Bureau of Aeronautics.

McComb's background includes 23 years of experience with the Wayne County Road Commission and he completed his tenure as Engineer of Construction with principal activities at Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport and the Willow Run Airport in Ypsilanti.

THE MEMBERSHIP of the Construction Association of Michigan, CAM, has chosen the Oakland County Jail Addition and Renovation as a winner of the 1990 CAM Construction Showcase Award. The contractor, DeMaria Building Company, Inc. of Novi, and the architect, Neumann-Smith of Southfield, were presented with plaques at the CAM Expo '90, held Feb. 7 and 8 at the Pontiac Silverdome. Ten awards are presented each year to projects that are examples of the finest craftsmanship and design in Michigan.

The jail addition and renovation, completed in March 1989, was built to relieve overcrowding of both male and female inmates, and to bring inmates placed elsewhere back into the county government's central Service Center near Pontiac. Construction and staff training were completed simultaneously allowing for quick inmate occupancy of the buildings.

Brenda Zimmerman, Director of Public Relations for CAM, quoted that "the Oakland County Jail Addition and Renovation was in part chosen for the teamwork required between the county, the sheriff's department and the contractor to finish the project on time without sacrificing high security requirements."

GREG BROOKS has been appointed to the position of sales manager for Johnny on the Spot, local carpet and upholstery cleaning company.

Brooks, a former social studies teacher at Redford Bishop Borgess High School, started with Johnny on the Spot in February of 1988 as a tele-marketer. When substantially lower enrollments at Borgess caused Brooks to be laid off from his teaching job, he came aboard full time, at Johnny on the Spot to head its sales department.

Owner Steve Pichan of Northville says that, "Among his main duties, Greg handles the obtaining of new commercial and residential business for the company. I know that, with his 20 years experience in part time sales, he will be a definite asset to the future growth of Johnny of the Spot."

Area chambers sponsor Expo 275

The Livonia Chamber of Commerce is pleased to announce its fourth business trade show, "Expo 275 - Your West Suburban Product and Services Exposition." Produced by the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, the show will be held in cooperation with the Belleville, Canton, Garden City, Northville, Novi, Plymouth, Redford, Wayne and Westland Chambers of Commerce.

The show will be held on May 15, 16, 17 at Roma Hall in Livonia, 2777 Schoolcraft Road (I-96 & Middlebelt). Over 120 exhibitors will be displaying their products and/or services. Exhibitors in the show represent a wide range of business types including utility companies, banks, insurance agencies, medical services and health care agencies, large manufacturers, educational institutions, and retail sales businesses.

A cocktail reception featuring hor d'oeuvres and food specialties of over 20 restaurant and caterers from the west suburban area will kick off the show activities on Tuesday night from 6-9 p.m. Tickets for the reception are $15/ticket ($10 per ticket for purchase of 20 tickets or more). This price includes all the food you can eat and an open bar.

Show hours on Wednesday, May 16, will be from noon - 8 p.m., and Thursday, May 17, from noon - 8 p.m. Admission is free for these two days.

Tickets for the opening night cocktail reception and for general admittance are now available at the participating Chambers of Commerce.

For more information regarding Expo 275, call the Livonia Chamber at 427-2122.

Refund policies are up to merchants

While laws protect consumers from misrepresented or defective goods, there are no laws that require merchants to offer refunds, exchanges or credits on merchandise they sell, warns the Better Business Bureau (BBB).

These voluntary practices have become wide-spread among retailers wishing to make shopping in their stores as attractive as possible to customers. But consumers should never assume that merchandise can be returned unless this policy is specifically stated by the store. Return and exchange practices vary from store to store, so consumers should understand the store's policy when making a purchase.

Virtually all stores with exchange or refund policies require that the product be returned within a specified time period, in new condition, with all packaging in place, and with the original sales slip.

Because of health laws, these return policies seldom apply to underwear, bathing suits or hats.

The BBB emphasizes that customers should not confuse return and exchange policies with product warranties. Products often come with stated or implied warranties from their manufacturers. Read the warranty before returning a defective product to the retailer.

Financial planners guide out

In the past two decades, financial planning has evolved into a multi-billion dollar industry with thousands of advisors who plan and manage investors' finances.

To help consumers select a reputable financial planner who meets their needs, the Better Business Bureau/Detroit and Eastern Michigan has released a booklet titled "Tips on Financial Planners."

The booklet is the latest in the BBB's Consumer Information Series which offers helpful tips on more than 80 topics of consumer interest. Copies of the new booklet can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-sized envelope to the BBB at 150 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, MI 48226.

"Consumers should not take the process of looking for a financial planner lightly," said Detroit BBB President Thomas F. Ashcraft.

"The booklet gives advice on what to look for and what to avoid when selecting a financial planner, including a list of questions the consumer should ask."

"It also provides a section on the 'red flags' of fraud and abuse," he said.

Taxpayers must beware of tax bill

Alternative Minimum Tax — three words that can strike fear in the hearts of the bravest taxpayers.

Yet few of us really understand what Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT) means.

Congress invented the AMT to ensure that all taxpayers — even those who slash their regular tax bills with clever write offs — pay a minimum level of income taxes. Since the Tax Reform Act of 1986, more taxpayers have found themselves subject to the AMT due to the significant changes made to both the regular tax and AMT systems.

If you take advantage of many special tax breaks and have substantial itemized deductions, you may very well incur the AMT. The Michigan Association of CPAs advises taxpayers who think they might be subject to the bite of the AMT to calculate their tax bill under the conventional method and then under the alternative minimum tax method. The method that yields the higher tax is the one that must be used.

Computing the alternative minimum tax is no easy task, as you will see as we walk through the AMT formula. First, you must determine your regular taxable income. Then, you must add back any net operating loss deductions claimed for regular tax purposes. In addition, you must determine certain "adjustments" and "tax preference items" and add them to your regular taxable income as well.

Adjustments are generally deductions claimed for regular tax purposes that are not allowed under the AMT. By adding these items back to regular taxable income, you are effectively excluding the deductions from the AMT calculation. Tax preference items are items that have been given favorable treatment by the tax law. Usually, these items must be recomputed using methods permitted under the AMT.

Some of the more common adjustments which must be added to regular taxable income are listed below:

- personal exemption amount;
- state and local income taxes, real estate and personal property taxes, consumer interest and miscellaneous itemized deductions; and □ passive activity losses allowed for regular tax purposes.

Some of the common tax preference items which must be recomputed and included for AMT purposes are given below:

□ untaxed appreciation on certain assets you contributed to charity and used as a deduction for regular tax purposes;

□ tax-exempt interest from certain private activity bonds, such as industrial development and housing bonds, issued after August 7, 1986; and

□ the excess of depreciation claimed using an accelerated method over the straight-line method for real property and leased personal property placed in service before 1987.

As you can see from these lists, identifying adjustments and tax preferences can be a complicated matter. Unless you are very confident of your own expertise in this area, you should probably consult your CPA. He or she will be able to examine your tax records and advise you accordingly.

After adding all adjustments and tax preference items to regular taxable income, the result is Alternative Minimum Taxable (AMT) income. This amount is then reduced by your AMT exemption which is $40,000 for married taxpayers filing jointly, $30,000 for single or head of household taxpayers, and $20,000 for married taxpayers filing separately.

For those individuals with higher incomes, these exemptions are further reduced by 25 cents for each dollar that AMT taxable income exceeds $150,000 for joint filers, $122,500 for single filers and heads of households, and $75,000 for married persons filing separately. The exemption is completely phased out if you and your spouse file jointly and your AMT income tops $310,000. The ceiling is $232,500 for a single taxpayer, and $155,000 for a married person filing a separate return.

Thousands of gadgets line the aisles at Kitchen Witch in Northville

Kitchens a far cry from past

By Aileen Wingblad
special writer

It's more vibrant, expressive and stylized than ever — a far cry from its stark, drab counterpart of years past.

The kitchen. What was once a place many of us tried to avoid is now becoming something more and more folks — men included — are truly enjoying.

For today's kitchen, the focus is on organization, efficiency and convenience, accented by warm, rich colors and welcome expressions. And, say local merchants, the kitchen of the '90s is chock-full of functional, practical helpers, not only new-fangled gadgets but the time-honored classics as well.

"What is hot today? As for gadgets, I'd have to say spaghetti spoons . . . More and more people are being turned on to them. And cookie scoops, the miniature spoons used to scoop uniform amounts of dough on the cookie sheets. Also, salad spinners and diet scales are always popular, especially after the holidays," said Beth French, manager of Lechters Housewares in Twelve Oaks Mall.

Yet along with this increasing interest in gadgetry and kitchen doodads, French added, is a growing customer demand for organizers, baskets and anything else that can help keep a kitchen looking sharp and orderly. "Organization, on the whole, is very big," says French.

Her co-worker, Assistant Manager Sherry Wilson, agreed. "People nowadays want to be organized, and we carry a full line of products to meet those needs," says Wilson. "We have baskets in all shapes and sizes, carts on wheels, items in plastic, wires . . . that sort of thing," she said.

And this trend toward order transcends its obvious practicality, according to Ronnie Cambra, owner and manager of The Kitchen Witch in Northville.

"Yes, organization is a biggie, but some of the items are used to also protect and display kitchenware," says Cambra.

"For example, we've seen a tremendous rise in demand for pot racks, those that suspend from the ceiling or the wall. It's very hard to keep them in stock; in fact, they are something I have to order monthly. The racks enable you to hang your good-quality cookware so that the pots and pans don't bang around in the cupboard all the time and get damaged. This is especially good for copper or black-coated cookware, and people like to display these things. Pots and pans are much more attractive today than they ever were," says Cambra.

Indeed, with the newer non-traditional lines of enamel-coated carbon-steel cookware, said Cambra, colors are alive and well in the world of pots and pans, which now are available in reds, grays, almond, and cobalt blue to coordinate with a variety of decors. "And cheese fondues — which are becoming popular again — are now designed to be pretty and stylish, too," she added.

Of course, copper, chrome, brass and wood products in the kitchen still seem to be the mainstay, regardless of whether people's tastes lean toward country, European or contemporary styles. And a return to some of the accessories of yesteryear, some of which have updated features for safety and reliability, is also being noted.

Pizza stones and paddles, for instance, are being asked for more often, as are cuisinarts and woks, Cambra said. "And I'm seeing a new interest in pressure-cookers — they are very popular again. And they are safer than when Mom or Grandma had them," says Cambra. "There is no reason to be afraid of them anymore because they now have nice, refined features and they are very quiet. Pressure cookers really are great . . . They come in several different sizes now — we even have pressure fry pans. And the best part about them is that they cut cooking time to one-third; speed in fixing meals is very important."

In fact, efficiency in meal prepara-

Designs for Living

Exterior belies logical design

By James McAlexander

While a first glance it looks complicated, the Concord's exterior belies a surprisingly logical and formal interior floor plan.

Guest designer Floyd Dinger of Creswell, Ore., worked the pieces together like a refined jigsaw puzzle, to create this natural-looking contemporary home.

Each of the three hexagons, joined by two squares, has a distinctly different purpose. Living space is at the center, with private sleeping areas and garage located at opposite ends. A substantial deck, which wraps around the entire back of the home, helps unify the elements.

A large living room, brightened by windows on the three sides, spreads across half of the central hexagon. It's easily large enough that the far end could fill in as an informal family room, while the section closest to the fireplace and entryway could be furnished more formally.

The kitchen is relatively large. Generous counter space lets family members cook together without cramping each other's styles.

Utilities and a half-bath with linen closet are convenient to both the living area and a garage with plenty of space for two cars, a workbench, tools and other storage. A trash compactor fits neatly into a nook just outside the back door, while a water heater nestles into a matching space on the other side.

Despite a number of odd angles, this home contains very little dead space. An experienced carpenter would have no trouble with construction.

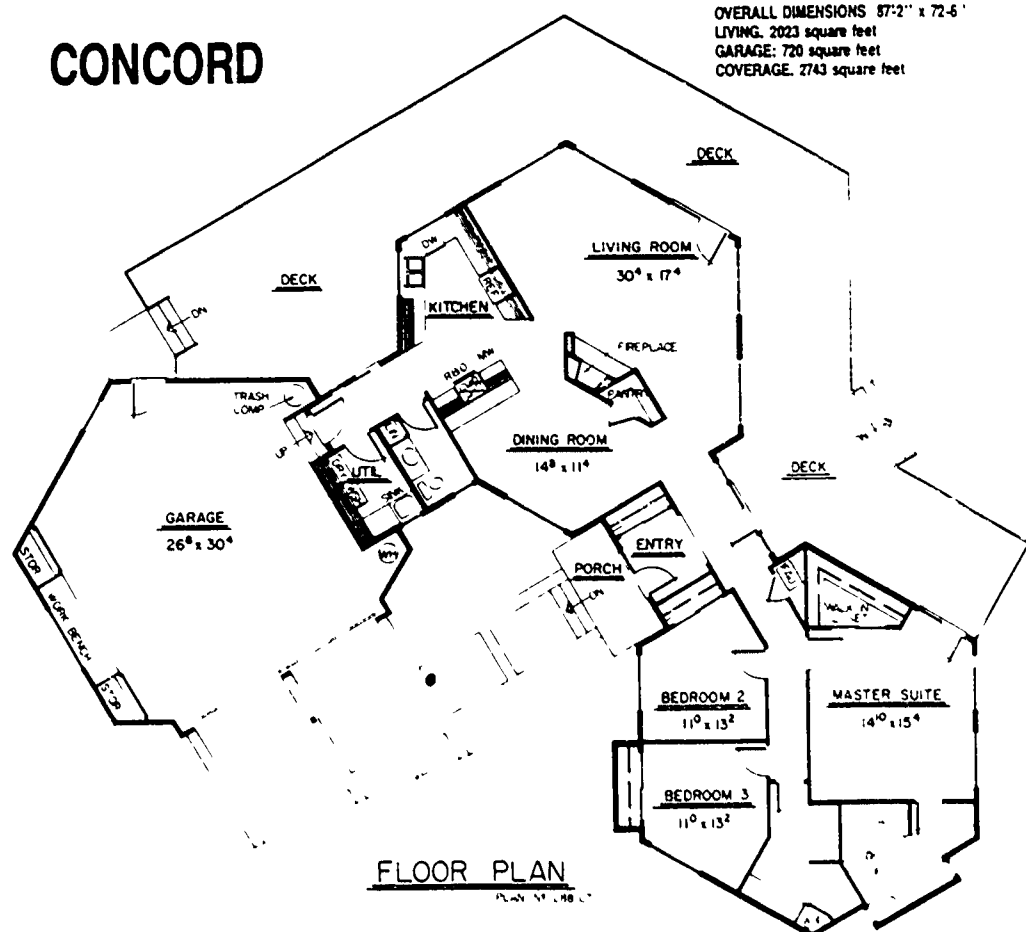

Most rooms, including the dining room, are designed with at least one square corner so that tables, beds, couches and whatever can be aligned to please the eye.

Although the bathrooms in the sleeping area contain several irregular angles, nothing looks out of place.

The 87-foot-wide Concord needs a good size lot, preferably with a scenic view to the back.

For a study plan of the Concord, (288 07), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Late 1800s stein could be worth $3,500

By James G. McCollam

Q Could you please let me know if this Mettich stein No. 2122 has any value? I have been curious about it for a long time.

A This stein was made in Mettich, Germany, by Villeroy & Boch during the later 1800s.

It originally had a pewter lid with a ceramic insert. The original stein, complete with lid and in good condition, would be worth about $3,500.

It is impossible for me to assess the diminished value due to damage or missing parts.

Q What can you tell me about a gallon-size wooden bucket with a paper label "Heinz's Apple Butter"? It is made of staves held together with finger-lap joint rings. It is complete with lid.

A: Your bucket was made around the turn of the century, and there is a disparity in the prices listed.

I find one just like you describe listed for $65. I find a similar bucket without the label listed for $200. Isn't that a temptation?

Q: My mother had one of the first Barbie dolls; perhaps you can tell me if it is worth anything.

A: She has a brown ponytail with curly bangs and gold hoop earrings. She is wearing a black-and-white, strapless bathing suit. There is a bracket that fits into her feet so she can stand erect.

A: Your well detailed description matches the original 1959 Barbie.

In reasonably good condition, it would sell for $500 to $600. In mint condition in the original box, it would be worth more than twice as much.

Q: What is the difference between salt glaze and tin glaze? Which one is better?

A: Salt glaze consists of throwing common salt into the kiln when a ceramic body is fired.

Tin glaze is accomplished by coating a ceramic body with tin oxide before firing (baking).

Neither one had much to do with quality. The quality depends on the ceramic body.

Stoneware is salt glazed; Delft and Majolica are tin glazed; Wedgwood Queen's Ware is lead glazed; porcelain is glazed with feldspar.

Book review

"The Lyle Price Guide to Collectibles and Memorabilia" by Anthony Curtis; The Putnam Publishing Group, 200 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10016; $11.95, plus $2 postage or at your local bookstore.

Each of thousands of items are illustrated with a detailed description and price. This book is essential reference guide for both collectors and dealers.

Today's kitchens highly stylized—and efficient

tion is vital in today's kitchen, said Cambra, especially due to the fact that more and more women are working out of the home. "People want quality and they want good meals, but it has to be quick and easy. Gourmet feasts and entertaining, which take more time, is still enjoyed but it's reserved for the weekends," she said.

Another sign of the times is that men are steadily becoming more involved in the workings of the kitchen and seem to be especially in tune with many of the newer products and gadgets available. "Whether they are sharing cooking responsibilities with someone else or are single, men are definitely taking a real interest in cooking. And even though my customers are generally women, the male customer is really on the rise," Cambra says. "And they are kind of cute and funny about it. They seem to read a lot about what's out here now, and come in asking for certain items that they happen to hear about."

As for the trends in color for the kitchen, some of the warmer colors like peach and seafoam green, as well as the ever-popular country blues are reportedly those that are making their way into homes today. This is readily apparent in the kitchen linens and appliance covers carried in shops. More contemporary styles often call for black and white, of course, but Cambra insists that the traditional or country look is still one of the most sought-after among many of her shoppers.

U.S. census has own long history

By BARBARA LOUIE

Counting the people since 1576 reveals more than just numbers

When Alex Haley began working on his phenomenal family history — told in the pages of "Roots" — he began with the U.S. Census. Looking through roll after roll of microfilm at the National Archives in Washington, D.C., he finally found what he had been seeking:

"After several of the long microfilm rolls, tiring, suddenly in utter astonishment I found myself looking down there on: 'Tom Murray, black, blacksmith ...', 'Irene Murray, black, housewife ...', followed by the names of Grandma's older sisters ... It wasn't that I hadn't believed the stories of Grandma and the rest of them ... It was simply so uncanny sitting staring at those names actually right there in official U.S. Government records."

Haley's excitement spurred a national interest in family genealogies. Since his revelation, thousands of people have had similar experiences in finding long-lost ancestors thanks to U.S. census rolls.

The idea of census-taking, or counting the population, is an ancient one dating back to Biblical times. When the first wave of Europeans began to cross the Atlantic to the new country, they brought their census techniques with them.

The very first census in North America was reportedly taken in 1576, in order to count the number of Spain's American possessions.

Census counts were taken in the original colonies as early as 1624 in Virginia and 1698 in New York, and other colonies soon followed their examples.

Envisioned as a major government function, the taking of the census was written into the U.S. Constitution and first conducted by these young United States in 1790. Since then, the census has been conducted every 10 years, without exception.

Methods of census-taking, as well as information provided by census reports over the years, have varied as greatly as the population.

Formerly going door-to-door, early census takers received relatively little information from their interviews. Basically all the first census reports indicated were the names and numbers of people living in the new United States. The 1790 census listed almost four million people living in an 18-state area along the east coast.

Most of the U.S. census tracts, from 1790 through 1980, are still available on microfilm at most public libraries. However, no early reports are known to exist for six states — Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, New Jersey, Tennessee and Virginia. It is believed that these schedules were destroyed during the War of 1812 when the British burned the capital buildings in Washington, D.C.

As the years went by, more information was included in the reports.

In 1810, people were first asked about their jobs; by 1850, ethnic backgrounds were questioned as well. With more and more immigrants entering the country, the census was relied on to provide the basis for immigration quotas. This year — for the first time — an attempt will be made to include statistics on the homeless in the census reports.

The national population rose 35 percent between 1790 and 1800. Through the years, the increase remained consistent until the turn of the 20th century. At that time, population growth lagged until it reached an annual low of 7.3 percent increase in 1940. It did not begin to rise again significantly until the end of World War II in what is now known as the "baby boom" era.

It is anticipated that the 1990 census, sent through the mail to most residences, will show over 250 million people living in the United States.

Michigan first appeared in the country's fourth census report in 1820. Though white men had traveled through the Upper Peninsula as early as the 1600s, with Detroit founded in 1701, the area was not recognized as important enough to be counted until the 19th century.

The 1820 census, which can be seen on microfilm, includes the entire territory from Wayne County to Michilimackinack — all on one narrow roll of film.

The Territory of Michigan was indeed slow to grow. When Detroit was a floundering fort on the banks of the river in 1701, the total population was 200. Population was so low, with only two births per year, that by 1719 the closing of the fort was seriously considered.

Through the years, Detroit's population began a gradual rise, but a heavy infant mortality rate continued to keep the numbers down. To encourage emigrants to the new territory, an offer was made that few desperate men could refuse: Detroit's governor-general vowed to provide every man who agreed to settle in the town with farm tools, seeds, a cow and the support of his family for one full year.

This incentive brought a significant number of settlers to the riverfront community, and the future of the fort was guaranteed. The population began to climb little by little. Then, in 1825 the Erie Canal was opened, releasing a flood of immigrants into Michigan from the East coast.

From Detroit, the eager newcomers looking for greener pastures headed for places such as Novi and Northville, both of which were settled around this time.

Census reports show that southeastern Michigan kept drawing New Yorkers and New Englanders in particular to its fertile farmland. Immigration soared; 15,000 people arrived in 1830, with as many as 900 passengers landing in the port of Detroit during a single day in 1834.

From Detroit, many pioneers went west through the marshes and forest. Some travelled along the old Chicago Road (Michigan Avenue) to Plymouth and then to Northville. Others went through Farmington along Grand River Road to settle in Novi.

As Detroit continued to grow, so did its outlying areas. The 1820 census showed a population of a little over 1,400; by 1970 the city was ranked fifth largest in the United States.

From a tiny, fledgling fort of just 200 people, Detroit rose to one of five cities in the nation in 1960 with a population exceeding one million.

All the figures listed here were taken from census reports. The U.S. Census provides the basis for a number of vital uses for social and economic surveys throughout the country.

The population count is used to determine how many seats each state will have in both the U.S. and each state's House of Representatives. City and business planners rely on the census for locating companies, hospitals, schools and housing facilities. State and federal fundings are also based on population statistics.

The U.S. Census has been providing such information, as well as for genealogy, historical research, verification of war records and immigration reports for the past 200 years.

Volunteers

Helping to better the community

By DOROTHY NASH

"Everybody knows that the country would be better," said Diana Canup, "and that the local community would be better if everyone helped make it better."

And she is doing her part by volunteering — for the 11th year — on the seven-member Novi Parks and Recreation Commission.

Once a month she attends meetings, helping oversee the recreational needs of Novi citizens of all ages — from small children to seniors.

"We're a liaison between residents of the city and the department and the city council," she said, "setting policies and advising the council."

Also once a month Canup attends a meeting of a subsidiary committee. Each commission member attends the meetings of one committee for a year. This year her committee to encourage and advise is the Arts and Culture Committee. If the committee is working on a new idea, she reports it to the commission.

The other committees, she said, concentrate on matters like parks and facilities, senior citizens, sports leagues, physical fitness classes, special events, special interest groups, and health screening.

All of the members of those committees, Canup said, are also volunteers.

Narrowing in on athletic leagues, for example, she praised the volunteers who run them. "We couldn't function without them," and as for excellence of program, she said, "I think we have the most outstanding offered in the state."

If you are interested in looking in on a meeting of the Parks and Recreation Commission, Diana Canup said, "We're open to the public, and we encourage audience participation."

The time is 7:30 p.m. on the second Thursday evening of the month. The place is the Novi Civic Center.

Area family traced

By BARBARA LOUIE

The Yerkes family of Novi and Northville was a prolific one, and can be traced through census records. Here, for example, is information found on Robert Yerkes, son of one of the area's original settlers.

It was discovered that Robert was but a check mark on the 1830 report, listed under his father William's name as one of five sons between the ages of "under five" and 14.

His own name does not appear until 1850, when it shows that Robert was a 21-year-old male born in Michigan.

Ten years later, Robert was a farmer with a family of his own and real estate valued at $4,000.

Since relationships to the heads of families were not yet listed, it must be assumed that Sarah, also aged 30, was his wife and not just "Housekeeper" as indicated, and John, aged 2, their son.

In 1870, Robert, aged 40, was still a farmer, owning $9,000 worth of real estate. Sarah was "Keeping House," and their children included William, 10; George B., 5; Donald P., 3; and Robert C., 2.

Mysteriously, John, listed 10 years earlier, was no longer named in this census.

The relationship of each person to the head of the family was included with the 1880 census reports.

Robert, white male aged 50, was a married farmer whose father had been born in Pennsylvania and mother in New York. Sarah, his wife — finally verified — was still listed as "Keeping House."

Their sons included Willie, 19; George, 15; Donald, 13; and Robert, 12, all single and still attending school.

At the turn of the century, even more information was provided by the census.

In 1900, 70-year-old Robert Yerkes, born in September, 1829, had been married for 44 years. He was still employed as a farmer.

His wife, Sarah, had given birth to five children, four of whom still lived. From these figures, it is finally clear that John, aged two in 1860, did not survive his childhood.

By 1910, Sarah was gone, and Robert was a widower at 83. As

As part of this project we are happy to announce that the first 10 years of the index is now ready for use. It is stored with the microfilm at the Northville Public Library. We hope that all researchers will find it of value. Please ask to see it when you are in the library.

Northville's annual Florida reunion draws 90

The annual Northville Reunion in Florida was held at noon on Friday, Feb. 23, at the Crown House Restaurant in Sarasota. Despite an overcast and rainy day, 90 friends of Northville, former and present residents and their spouses and friends attended.

Following the lunch, a moment of silence was offered in memory of recently deceased friends of Northville. The program consisted of reminiscences from the floor by several of the attendees: Dick Ambler, Connie (Burgess) Wahlberg, Dorothy (Niemi) Barry, Ted Strasser, Jim Harper, Dick Simmons, Hazel Starr and others.

Anyone who finds himself or herself in Florida in the late part of February next year is encouraged to put themselves on a mailing list. Contact Dick Simmons: P.O. Box 635, Minneola, Florida, 34755.

Professional women to meet at Genitti's

The monthly meeting of the Northville Business and Professional Women's Club will be held Monday, March 26 at Genitti's Restaurant.

Touch of Ireland

Peter McGrane, Jan Mordenski and Mike Gruber of the Irish folk group Innisfree perform their traditional ballads for the Woman's Club's end-of-the-year luncheon.

Social hour and networking will begin at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 6:30. The March program is the second of a two-part series on "Dependent Care."

This month the club will examine the topic "ElderCare Choices." The speaker will be John R. Fusik, president of Empa-Care. Empa-Care provides home health care, case management and educational services for persons dealing with eldercare concerns. Fusik conducts workshops that provide education in the myriad of detail that is essential to accurate planning and selection of an eldercare program.

For more information and reservations, call Berclay Ruschak at 348-1167.

Area girl honored

Young people have managed to do a lot in their relatively few years on earth.

That's certainly true of the Good Citizens honored by the Sarah Ann Cochran chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The annual program honors outstanding high school seniors.

"It's mind-boggling to think of what they do," said Doris Richard of Plymouth Township, chairperson of the Good Citizens program. "They do community work. Some of them have jobs. You wonder how in the world they can do all that."

Students were honored at a Feb. 19 luncheon held at the Plymouth Historical Museum. This year's local honorees are:

• Rachel Henry, a Plymouth resident and a senior at Plymouth Salem High School, the daughter of Robert and Waltraud Henry;

• Jenny Luelleman, a Canton resident and a senior at Plymouth Canton High School, the daughter of Tom and Carol Luelleman;

• Heather Mijal, a Garden City resident and a senior at Garden City High School, the daughter of Lorene Mijal and John Mijal;

• Margaret LaCroix, a Lathrup Village resident and a senior at Ladywood High School in Livonia, the daughter of John and Natalie LaCroix;

• Jennifer Longwell, a Livonia resident and a senior at Livonia Franklin High School, the daughter of Nanci Longwell and Gary Longwell;

• LEANNE LACHANCE, a Northville resident and a senior at Northville High School, the daughter of Lou and Cindy LaChance.

It's been going on many, many years," Richard said of the Good Citizens program. Students are honored for their scholastic standing, participation in student activities and contributions to family and community life.

"It's a great honor," she said. Each student receives a pin and a certificate at the luncheon. Many students attend the luncheon with family members and with teachers.

The Good Citizens program doesn't stop at the local level; it also includes state and national competition, Richard said. Financial awards are given to students honored at the state and national levels. Students who participate in the program write a personal report on their contributions to community and family life. They also write an essay on a patriotic topic, with "My Responsibility to Our American Heritage" the topic for this year. Each student who attends the Good Citizens luncheon speaks briefly, discussing his or her background and plans for the future.

"It's inspiring to go and hear them," Richard said. "They really are very outstanding."

Woman named chef

They uncorked the champagne — actually non-alcoholic peach wine — for Northville resident Mary Brady during a recent Schoolcraft College staff meeting.

Brady, an instructor in the college's culinary-arts department, had just been named a certified executive chef. As such, she's one of only two women to achieve the honor in all of Michigan.

The celebratory beverage may have been a bit below the traditional standard — "After all, it was 7 in the morning," she said — but the honor, and her career, have been well above standard.

The new title, the second highest given a chef by the American Culinary Federation, is the highlight of a career that began at Michigan State University's school of hotel and restaurant management. Perhaps it is also a sign of changing times in the profession.

"When I was in school there weren't a whole lot of females in the field," Brady said. "Now, half the students in some of the classes I teach are female."

A food service industry veteran, Brady and her husband, Tom, own and operate Diamond Jim Brady's in Southfield.

"I do the cooking and he works up front," she said. The couple lives in Northville.

Before becoming affiliated with the family-run restaurant, she worked for the Steak and Ale restaurant chain.

Her arrival at Schoolcraft was part by design, part surprise.

"I was looking for something to diversify my life and, no sooner did I talk to them than one of their instructors went on leave," she said.

She has taught a number of food-service courses during her three year stay at the Livonia-based community college. Currently, she is maitre d' at the student-run American Harvest Restaurant. At the same time, she is teaching students proper techniques in preparing and serving food.

In addition, she helps out at St. Leo's soup kitchen in Detroit.

"It's something myself and a number of chefs feel very strongly about," she said. "That's why we've become involved with anti-hunger activities."

The ACF, based in St. Augustine, Fla., awards professional titles based upon experience and ability demonstrated in regional and national competition.

Local kids in 'Aladdin'

There are several local children who will be performing in the classic fairy tale of "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp" at the Marquis Theater.

They are: Katie Bondy, a fourth-grader at Amerman Elementary; Kara Fagnam, a fifth-grader at Winchester Elementary; Renne Guidrey, a seventh-grader at Meads Mill Middle School; and, eighth-grader Traci Stachura, also a student at Meads Mill.

The play is one hour and includes colorful costumes and sets, a genie, magician, and some special effects.

The stage play is performed at various times through April 8.

Volleyball offers fitness and fun

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Jogging in record numbers, mass consumption of oat bran, and dozens of aerobics tapes at the local video store are all byproducts of the American health craze. But there are still many athletes who go out and compete in their given sport because they like the game, the competition, the companionship. The health benefits are just an added bonus.

Take the women's volleyball program sponsored by the Northville Recreation Department for example. Head over to the Community Center on a Thursday morning and out on the court you'll see a wide variety of competitors — from young mothers who have limited volleyball experience to former high school volleyball standouts who refuse to give up the game. In essence, women who enjoy playing the game and appreciate the opportunity to get away once a week to be with their teammates and opponents.

The program has been very popular in Northville since it was started six years ago, with winter, spring and fall sessions offered every year. Each session lasts 8-10 weeks and there are currently seven teams of eight players apiece.

"This league is very convenient for someone who has a little bit of free time, or can find some free time," said League Supervisor Traci Gottschalk of the Northville Recreation Department. "It really appeals to someone who works part-time as well as young mothers and housewives."

Before each season, a captain for each team is selected randomly.

Those captains then observe the players during an evaluation session and then go about drafting their teams player-by-player.

"We used to pick the names out of a hat but we switched to this way because it seemed to give us pretty balanced teams," Gottschalk said.

One of the big draws to the program is that babysitting is offered. For a fee of $1.50 per hour, mothers can play while their youngsters are looked after by Maria Muzzin, who gets high marks by everyone involved in the program.

"I'd say at least a third of our players take advantage of the babysitting," Gottschalk said. "It is quite a drawing factor."

First-year player Rose O'Hara drives all the way from Milford every Thursday to play volleyball, and admits that the babysitting service is the main reason she joined the league.

"I wouldn't be able to make it without it," she said. "The rates are reasonable and there is a very nice lady who watches the kids."

Sue Bush of Northville Township has been playing recreational volleyball for seven years, and when she originally joined the league, the babysitting was a big draw. Now, the draw is volleyball.

"I love it," she said. "I also play in the Wednesday co-ed league and the open-volleyball on Thursday nights here in Northville. This league was my first experience with organized volleyball and I've seen the league grow and improve. Once we got referees about four or five years ago, it really seemed to improve the play."

A member of the Chain Gang team pounds the ball at Spike and the Gang in recreation league volleyball

Cost for each session is $17 per person and includes a free luncheon at the end of the season for the winning team.

"There are some good players, but anybody regardless of skill level are welcome," Gottschalk said. "We have people who have played in high school and have continued, and we have some that have never played in an organized league before."

In Novi, adult volleyball, with men's and coed leagues, are offered during the fall and winter.

The Northville Record

1989-90 All-Area volleyball squad selected

Urbahns, Parke named to first team

FIRST TEAM

AMANDA PARKE, Northville, setter: This transfer student from Ohio burst on the scene this season and was one of the area's top setters. Only a junior, Parke led her team in service aces (21) and boasted near-perfect percentages in areas like setting and serve reception.

"Amanda is a very spirited and emotional player," Mustangs coach Paul Osborn said. "She's very quick on her feet, which enabled her to get to balls quickly and make a more accurate pass. She never seemed to be out of position. She has excellent volleyball skills and she's very court-wise."

The 5-foot-6 Parke attempted 380 sets during the season, making good on all but 24 of them (94 percent). Her serve-receive mark was 94 percent, and she also connected on 83 percent of her serves and 78 percent of her hits.

"She's very well suited to be a setter," Osborn explained. "She has the three things you need: quickness, agility and good hands."

Bailey, an 81-percent server, led the area with 95 aces this past season.

"Nikki's serve can be awesome at times," Lions coach Ed Baldwin said. "Very rarely did teams side out on her when she got her serve in. True, her percentage is down a bit, but you'll accept that when her ace total is so high."

Bailey's other statistics include 170 service points, 90 kills and 24 solo blocks. Her assist total was unavailable, but she did lead her team in that category.

"Nikki can do a lot of things," Baldwin added. "She's a good setter and hitter. She could change positions next year, too. With her talent, it's not fair of me to make her do one thing."

PLAYER OF THE YEAR: Pam Whiteman — Lakeland.
COACH OF THE YEAR: PAUL OSBORN — NORTHVILLE.

HONORABLE MENTION: Amy Anderson, Katie Coxen — Lakeland; Jennifer Sitko — Milford; Lynn Scheloske — South Lyon; Deanna Reed, Stephanie Tolsdorf — Novi; SUE LaPRAD, KAREN VOGT — NORTHVILLE.

JENNY URBAHNS, Northville, middle hitter: On a team without any superstars, Urbahns clearly stood out.

This 5-foot-10 senior was a team leader in areas like solo blocks (97), kills (2.4 per match), and graded high in other categories like hitting (90 percent), setting (94 percent) and serve reception (84 percent). She was an All-Western Lakes Activities Association Western Division pick as well.

"Jenny did her job and she did it well," Mustangs coach Paul Osborn said. "She's a very level-headed kid, she knows what she wants to do and she knows how to go about doing it. She did a lot of good work for us at the net. She was our top hitter and she times her jumps well."

JENNIFER FORNWALD, Novi, outside hitter: The Wildcats didn't have a banner season as a team, but Fornwald was the bright spot individually. The 5-foot-7 junior paced Novi in almost every statistical category, including a truly incredible performance from the service line.

Fornwald was successful on all 128 of her service attempts. It's not often that an athlete is perfect for an entire season, but Fornwald fell into that category.

"Jennifer did have some incredible stats," Novi coach Amy Rademacher said. "She did real well. She is our team leader and she's a very well-rounded player. She is an excellent server and she hits well."

"Even with mini-sets, Jennifer was able to do something with the ball," the coach added. "She covers a lot of ground out there, and a lot of that is due to hustling."

Fornwald led the 'Cats in aces, kills and hitting (248-of-289 for 86 percent). She also had impressive numbers in areas like serve reception (85 percent) and passing (88 percent).

NIKKI TAYLOR, Milford, middle hitter: This senior led the Redskins in hitting and defense — a rare combination for a 6-footer.

"Nikki moves very well for someone her size," Milford coach Terry Mareski said. "She made a lot of real nice defensive plays. That was probably the biggest improvement in her game over last year."

Taylor's front-row skills were strong as well. She led Milford with 166 kills (2.1 per game), 53 solo blocks and 82 assist blocks. She also was an 87-percent server, recording 152 points and 33 aces.

"Nikki was definitely my best player," Mareski added. "She is planning to try out for the Central Michigan volleyball team next fall... and I really feel she has a good chance at making it."

PAM WHITEMAN, Lakeland, middle hitter: This All-Kensington Valley Conference first-team performer led the Eagles in most statistical categories.

"Pam does it all," Lakeland coach Patty Wilson said. "She's an extremely strong hitter and she has tremendous court sense, which allows her to do the other things as well. She really focuses out there. She one of the smartest players I've seen."

A 5-foot-9 senior, Whiteman finished with 109 kills, 62 aces, 101 digs and 36 blocks. She also was an 84-percent receiver and an 80-percent server.

"Pam was extremely important to our team," Wilson added. "When she wasn't on the court, we didn't function very well. She was a stabilizing factor out there."

Whiteman is considered Lakeland's top female athlete, excelling in basketball and track as well.

SECOND TEAM

KRISTI TURNER, Northville, outside hitter: Steady, solid, stable. You hear the same words when you ask someone to describe this 5-foot-7 senior on the volleyball court.

In the major statistical categories, Turner was at or above 88 percent in all of them. That includes hitting (99-of-112), serving (132-of-146), serve reception (99-of-111) and setting (65-of-69). Her serving percentage was a team best, and she added 10 aces.

Osborn builds rock-solid program

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

In three short seasons, Northville volleyball mentor Paul Osborn has built a rock-solid program.

Consider these facts:

- The Mustangs have a dual meet record of 51-35 under Osborn.
- The squad has never suffered a losing campaign in that three-season span.

- In the past two seasons, his teams have never lost back-to-back dual meets.

- For the second time in the last three years, Osborn has been selected the Sliger-Livingston East "Coach of the Year."

Northville finished another solid, if unspectacular, season with a loss to Livonia Stevenson in the district finals. The team was 9-5 in dual meets, 22-12 in all matches (including tournaments) and 8-5 in the brutal Western Lakes Activities Association. A major disappointment, if any, was the Mustangs 5-5 mark against Western Division opponents, which was good for a third place-tie in the six-team field.

"I thought we'd do a little bit better in our division," Osborn admitted. "The Conference Meet went about as I expected — we finished sixth — but we should have been second in our division."

As usual, graduation losses will be stiff, but Osborn has a nice nucleus of returnees for next season. He'll need all the help he can get because seniors Jenny Urbahns, Sue LaPrad, Kristi Turner, Colleen Hesse, Neysa Colizzi and Kelly Frederick won't be around.

"We have some girls coming back and that's a positive, but we are losing some very good players," Osborn said.

Urbahns was the team's top hitter and was awarded All-Area and All-Division post-season honors. LaPrad — a three-year letterwinner — was a back-row expert who led the team in serve reception (895 percentage). Turner was a force at the net and led the team in serving accuracy, and Hesse was the team's premier middle blocker until a foot injury ended her season prematurely. In addition, Colizzi was the team's top setter percentage-wise (94.1) and Frederick was a typical unsung hero.

"Kelly played an excellent back row for us," Osborn said. "She does a lot of things and I don't think she got enough credit for it, and that's my fault."

The top returnees include four regulars — Ashley MacLean, Karen Vogt, Amanda Parke and Beth Ursel — and other contributors like Shannon Price, Karina Zabicki and Marci Dart. All seven will be seniors next winter.

"This team — all 13 girls — were real close friends," Osborn said. "It was a tight-knit group in the positive sense — no cliques and no bickering. I'd say in 10 years of coaching, it was the closest group I've ever had, and that helped us bounce back from defeats."

"We got blown out by Livonia Churchill on Jan. 22 and many teams would have folded after that, but we didn't. We showed maturity and came back to beat Plymouth Canton a couple days later."

The team statistics for the season were quite impressive. In the service department, the Mustangs connected on 742-of-872 for 85 percent. The hitting (81 percent) and setting (93 percent) numbers were also acceptable, but the one low area was serve reception (80 percent).

"I think our serve and setting percentages were good in anybody's book, and our hitting isn't quite where we want it, but it was good enough to win some matches," Osborn said. "But the reception numbers weren't good and it cost us some games. Someday we'll be up around 85 percent."

TEAM AWARDS: At the Northville Volleyball Banquet on March 5, senior Jenny Urbahns was named the team's Most Valuable Player. The other winners included Karina Zabicki (Most Improved), Colleen Hesse (Most Spirited) and Amanda Parke (Go-Getter Award).

The Mustang spikers have a dual meet record of 51-35 under coach Paul Osborn

Lakeland's Pam Whiteman honored as 'Player of the Year'

By MATT SEIDL

For Lakeland's Pam Whiteman, the final year of her prep sports career has been somewhat disappointing.

The problems started last fall when she was hospitalized with pharyngitis, tonsillitis and mononucleosis. Not only did she miss six basketball games, she also lacked the strength and conditioning to lead the Eagles once she returned to the lineup.

Her teams' lack of success has been frustrating as well. The Lakeland eagles lost 15 of 21 games, while the volleyball team went 13-20

Most feel Whiteman — although she will never admit it — is a standout athlete with a mediocre supporting cast. She was head and shoulders above her basketball teammates, not to mention the premier player on Lakeland's volleyball squad this past winter.

To Whiteman's credit, however, she rolled with the punches and did everything possible to help her teams. She also focused on individual development — which is common for someone in her position.

In volleyball alone, that development produced All-Kensington Valley Conference first-team honors, as well as Sliger-Livingston East Player of the Year recognition.

Lakeland coach Patty Wilson was impressed with Whiteman and the way she handled the adverse circumstances.

"I can't say enough about Pam," the coach commented. "She was a team player all the way. She could have pouted or complained, but she's just not like that. She went out and did her best every match."

Whiteman's best produced 109 kills, 62 service aces, 101 digs and 36 blocks this past season. She later was voted "Team Leader" by her teammates.

"That's the highest award we give out," Wilson said. "Pam really deserved it, too. She helped the team in so many ways. She's a good player a good leader. When she was off the floor, we just weren't the same out there."

Whiteman, a 5-foot-9 middle hitter, has been a varsity volleyball player since her sophomore year. Her first two seasons were different, however, since she was surrounded by talented upperclassmen.

She admits the adjustment took some time, yet, in the long run, she enjoyed the season and the relationships with her teammates.

"It was hard at times," Whiteman said. "When you want it more than some of the others, it gets kind of tough. But I guess everyone is a little different."

"We all got along and had fun, though, so that was nice. I guess we just never got use to playing with each other."

Possessing a 27-inch vertical jump, Whiteman was one of the area's most explosive hitters. She also excelled defensively and mentally.

Whiteman's college plans include attending Central Michigan University, studying medicine and trying out for the volleyball team. The Chipewas scouted her midway through the season, but did not offer a scholarship.

College volleyball is no stranger to the Whiteman family. Pam's sister, Jill, is a member of the Purdue University squad and has one year of eligibility left.

Pam believes Jill, the SLE Player of the Year in 1986, has been a motivating factor in her athletic career.

"Just watching her in junior high really helped me," Pam explained. "That got me interested in sports. I go and watch her play now, too, and that's exciting. It always makes you want to do better."

RECREATION BRIEFS

AAU BASKETBALL: Northville played host to 10-teams at the Michigan AAU Regional Basketball Tournament last weekend for under-16 girls.

The local team, the Western Wayne Wildcats, were coached by Northville's Ed Kritch and South Lyon's Ron Shanks and ended up finishing with a 2-1 record. The mark was enough for the team to advance on to the AAU State Playoffs on April 6-8 in Sandusky, Mich.

The under-15 Western Wayne Wildcats, featuring Northville High School star Karen Pump, also competed over the weekend in Plymouth. The team finished with a 3-2 record and placed fifth in the 19-team field, but failed to qualify for the state tournament.

SPRING VOLLEYBALL: Registration for a spring coed volleyball league will continue through April 6 at the Northville Community Center.

The season will be eight-weeks long starting on April 25 and games will be played on Wednesday evenings. Entry fees will be $100 per team.

ADULT SOFTBALL: There are still a few openings left in Northville Recreation's adult softball leagues. Teams looking to play should contact Traci Gottschalk at 349-0203.

KAYAKING COURSE: Schoolcraft College's Continuing Education Services division is offering a beginning kayaking course that will meet on April 20 from 7-9 p.m. and April 21 from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

This course provides students with the skills necessary to go into open water safely. Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile roads in Livonia. For further information, call 462-4413.

BASEBALL UNIFORMS: Uniforms from last season may still be brought in without penalty to the Northville Community Center at 303 West Main St.

Uniforms are the property of the Northville Junior Baseball and the Northville Girls Softball programs.

DIRECTOR OF UMPIRES: Northville Junior Baseball is seeking a new director of umpires. Interested persons should call the Northville Recreation Department at 349-0203.

METROPARK PERMITS: The 1990 Huron-Clinton Metroparks annual vehicle-entry and annual boating permits are now on sale at Kensington Metropark near Milford as well as the other 12 Metroparks in the five-county area.

The costs will be the same as in 1989: regular vehicle entry permit — $10 ($5 for senior citizens), regular boating permit — $13 ($6 for senior citizens). Daily permits will go on sale Jan. 1, 1990 and are $2 for vehicles and $3 for boats.

No permits will be sold by mail. For more information, contact the Huron-Clinton Metroparks at 1-800-24-PARKS.

League Line

BASKETBALL: Vigh paces Gophers

BOYS 4th-5th GRADE BASKETBALL: Scott Vigh scored 10 points, including six points off steals, to lead the Gophers to a come-from-behind 18-16 victory over the Badgers. The Badgers scored the game's first eight points, but the Gophers came back in the second half with tenacious defense and held them to just eight points. Scott Vigher, Kevin Watkins and Mike Welcher also scored for the winners. The Wildcats fell to the Hoosiers 26-4. James Giammarco canned a 20-footer and Justin Stein hit a driving shot, but that was the extent of the Cats' offense. The defense was keyed by Tyler McCarthy, Josh Ott and Tim Velzy. The Wildcats also fell to the Illini 30-15. Stein was 4-for-4 from the free throw line and finished with a team-high six. Jared Chromas, McCarthy, Jason DeSiro and Mike Livanos also scored for the Cats. The Gophers won their fourth straight game by edging the Buckeyes 23-20. Scott Vigh led the way with 10 points and Chris McLaughlin chipped in five points and four rebounds. Also scoring for the winners were Mike Mills, Danny Schultz, Kevin Watkins and Scott Welcher.

BOYS 6th-7th GRADE BASKETBALL: The Cavaliers had a five-point lead heading into the fourth quarter but the Jazz made it close before falling 25-14. The Jazz tied the score with three minutes to go but Peter Wickman sank a clutch field goal in the final minute to provide the margin of victory. Wickman ended up with 10 points and nine rebounds and Stephen Nickrand added 10 points. The defensive stars included Tim Champagne and John McMahon. Nickrand blocked a lay-up in the final 10 seconds to preserve the win for the Cavs.

Northville's Turner selected to volleyball's second team

our team," Northville coach Paul Osborn said. "She's very level-headed. If we got into trouble as a team, she was really a stabilizing force out there."

"She's a good athlete. She gave up basketball in the fall to concentrate solely on volleyball."

EMILY BURTON, South Lyon, middle hitter: The Lions' most successful front-row player finished the season with 135 kills and 27 solo blocks.

"Emily really developed as the season went on," South Lyon coach Ed Baldwin said. "Her serving, especially her velocity, improved in the middle of the year. She was instrumental in a lot of wins."

An 82-percent server, Burton's statistics included 123 points and 30 aces.

The 5-foot-10 junior also received praise for her passing skills and court sense. "A lot of big people play volleyball, but big people who can play back row and front row are rare," Baldwin added.

JULIE CAMERON, Milford, outside hitter: A 5-foot-7 sophomore, Cameron possesses the natural ability to excel in all sports.

"She's a gifted athlete," said Redskins coach Terry Mareski, noting that Cameron played some varsity volleyball as a freshman. "She's good in just about everything she does."

Cameron, a track and field standout as well, recorded 67 kills this past season. She also was a 77-percent server, totaling 77 points and 13 aces.

"Once Julie becomes more consistent, she should be a real strong player," her coach commented. "She shows flashes of great play right now. Her serving and blocking were problems early in the year, but she improved in both areas. Hopefully she'll keep getting better."

Cameron was hampered by an ankle injury most of the season.

DANELE DUNHAM, Lakeland, outside hitter: Dunham's consistency, dedication and team-oriented attitude made her a valuable asset for the Eagles.

"Danele gave 100 percent all the time," Lakeland coach Patty Wilson said. "She cared so much about the team that she'd actually ask to come out when she wasn't playing well. She didn't want to hurt our chances."

But those down times were at a minimum for Dunham as she recorded 43 kills, 39 service aces and 81 digs in 55 games. She also was an 86-percent server and 78-percent receiver.

"Danele's very steady," Wilson added. "You can always count on her. She's not very big or strong, but she does the right things on the court. Plus, she was the only one on our team that didn't miss a practice or a game."

BRENDA HEILER, South Lyon, outside hitter: Heiler, along with teammate Lynn Scheloske, performed most of the passing and defensive duties for South Lyon.

"Passing was one of our overall weaknesses, so we tried to limit the others and use Brenda and Lynn as much as possible," Lions coach Ed Baldwin explained. "Everything in the back row was designed around them."

The 5-foot-7 junior also excelled around the net, recording 102 kills and one block. Her serving statistics included an 88-percent grade, 145 points and 35 aces.

"Brenda's exciting," Baldwin added. "It's been fun watching her grow as a player. She was this wimpy string bean as a freshman, but now she's got a whip for an arm."

BECKY PINGSTON, Milford, setter: This 5-foot-7 senior is recognized as one of the area's most versatile performers.

Not only was she a 94-percent server with 189 points and 25 aces, she also accumulated 427 assists, 85 kills, 131 digs and 22 solo blocks.

"Becky had a lot of responsibility this year," Redskins coach Terry Mareski said. "She did a little of everything for us. Her experience as a four-year player was a definite asset, as was her athletic ability."

Pingston is a quality basketball and softball player as well.

Harrison reflects back on title drive

By NEIL GEOHGEAN

In a season filled with records and first-time accomplishments, the Northville cagers notched the most important milestone of them all this winter — a division championship.

Tying for the six-team WLAA Western Division crown may not sound like much, but it is when you've never done it before. Mustang Coach Omar Harrison guided his squad to a 14-7 overall record — the program's best since the 1985-86 campaign.

"I enjoyed the season," Harrison said. "I really didn't know how we'd do, especially after we struggled early in the year."

Northville got off to a 2-2 start in the pre-Christmas portion of the schedule, including a disappointing 55-41 defeat at Novi. But the squad came back at the start of the new year and went on a 6-1 run, including a stunning upset over division-favorite Farmington Harrison on the road. From that point on, the Mustangs were in the hunt for their first-ever division title.

"When you beat a team like Harrison, on the road, you know you can play with anyone in the league," Harrison said. "That win really helped us get into the race."

Northville stumbled, however, against Livonia Churchill and in the rematch with the Hawks, and needed a five-game winning streak at the end of the regular season to pull even with Harrison. Both teams had 8-2 intra-division record.

"When we lost that second game to Harrison, the kids could have folded, but they didn't," Harrison pointed out. "The senior leadership was the key."

Perhaps the most disappointing part of the season came in the WLAA Playoffs. The Mustangs dropped two in a row before edging Churchill in the battle for seventh-place in the 12-team tournament. Add a 97-60 loss to powerful Plymouth Salem in the first-round of the MHSAA Districts — on Northville's home court — and the squad ended the season with three defeats in the final four tries.

"We accomplished our goal of at least a share of the division title, but after that we played like we didn't have a lot at stake," Harrison said.

The locals had an impressive 1-2 offensive punch, with senior Joe Kaley on the perimeter and 6-foot-6 senior Scott Meredith under the basket. Add 6-6 junior Mike Lang to the inside picture, and another long-ranger — junior Bill Kelley — to the outside game, and you have some potent weapons.

"Joe had an excellent season, particularly from the outside, and with Meredith on the inside, we had a good inside/outside attack," Harrison said. "We really didn't plan it that way, it just sort of fell into place."

Kaley came on strong in the last half of the season and ended up being the program's first-ever All-Conference selection. He went from the depths in December (a scoreless outing versus Dearborn Edsel Ford) to the heights in February (a 20 point per game average in the final 10 games of the season). At the team's banquet on March 19, he was named the 1989-90 Most Valuable Player.

Just 6-0, Kaley led the team in scoring (14.9 points per game), steals (2.9), free throw percentage (.729) and three pointers (41) from his small forward position.

"I don't think there is anybody in school history who's had 41 triples for their career, and Joe had that many in one season," Harrison said. "I know it's a school record for a season and I am pretty sure it is a career record as well."

"He really came on strong. The other coaches in our league told me that they designed their defenses to stop him."

Meredith led the team in rebounding (10.1) and field goal percentage (.507), and was second in scoring (14.4). He was an All-Western Division selection in only his third year of organized basketball. Lang averaged 9.6 points and 4.6 rebounds an outing, while Kelley connected on 27 three-point baskets.

"We depended on Scott for scoring and rebounding and he accepted his role," Harrison said. "Early in the season, he carried us offensively. And Mike Lang was our most improved player and he knows the game. He will be an inside force for us next season."

Kaley and Meredith will be lost to graduation and so will sixth-man Paul Grant, who came off the bench and was another key inside player for Northville.

"We will have three starters returning but we lose two guys who averaged nearly 30 points a game," Harrison said. "I'm cautiously optimistic about next season. I feel good about the players coming back and the sophomores coming up."

Channel 50 to televise MHSAA basketball tournament finals

The finals of the Michigan High School Athletic Association's Boys Basketball Tournament will enjoy their most widespread television coverage in 1990, with the announcement of Detroit's WKBD (Channel 50) serving as the flagship station for the MHSAA Championship Network.

Recognized as the major independent station in Michigan, WKBD will give the MHSAA Championship Network a clearance in the seventh-largest television market in the nation, and also reach over 700,000 cable television subscribers on 366 systems, touching nearly every city in the state.

The MHSAA Boys Basketball Finals will be played at The Palace of Auburn Hills on March 24. The Class B game will begin at 10:30 a.m., followed by the Class D-C doubleheader at 2 p.m. and the Class A finale at 7:30 p.m. The Class A game will air on WKBD on a tape-delayed basis at about 10 p.m., following the Detroit Pistons-San Antonio Spurs basketball game.

Ray Lane, veteran sports director of WKBD, will serve as the play-by-play announcer for the four championship games, and will be joined by former Michigan State University basketball standout Gregory Kelser and Rick Berkey of WKMI-TV in Grand Rapids. Kelser will provide the color commentary, while Berkey, who has been the play-by-play announcer for the last four MHSAA Boys Basketball Finals, will host the program, as well as conduct interviews and produce halftime features. "Becoming associated with WKBD is a major step toward providing citizens of Michigan an opportunity to see our popular spectator event, even if they can't be there in person," said John E. "Jack" Roberts, executive director of the MHSAA. "We're looking forward to working with WKBD and the other stations on our boys basketball tournament finals network."

"This is a very exciting opportunity for us here at WKBD," said Paul Prange, director of programming. "Twenty-five years ago, we were the first Detroit television station to broadcast local high school sports. As we celebrate our silver anniversary this year, we are extremely pleased to once again bring our viewers more of the same great high school competition they once enjoyed on TV-50."

The production for this year's finals is being coordinated by the Television Production Center at The Palace of Auburn Hills. Roberts praised the staff of The Palace the Detroit Pistons for their assistance in the television production area.

"One of the positive aspects of moving the boys basketball finals to The Palace was its ability to produce and market the event for television," Roberts said. "We are appreciative of the efforts of Harry Hutt, the Pistons' vice president for broadcasting, in securing WKBD as our flagship station."

WKBD also serves as the station for Detroit Pistons and Detroit Red Wings telecasts. Other stations on the MHSAA Championship Network will be announced in coming weeks.

Seven principles for food shopping

By SHEILA PHILLIPS

It's a familiar scene. It happens in neighborhood markets across the country. No one is immune, so beware.

At supermarkets everywhere, people enter with lofty goals of nutritional shopping but then spy that box of Double Stuff Oreo Cookies in aisle two and somehow it ends up in the cart. Then a bag of cheezie wheezies is soon keeping it company, and that to-die-for double fudge cake in the bakery section looks too scrumptious to pass up.

Pretty soon the cart seems like it belongs to Roseanne Barr. Just looking at the mounds of mouth-watering goodies in most grocery carts is enough to make anyone's arteries blog.

The average shopper must be well-armed in order to win the battle of the bulge in these days of Ding Dongs and Haagen Dazs. To avoid turning into Jabba the Hut, the most crucial ingredient is a supermarket battle plan.

"To make sure your grocery purchases are nutritious, the first thing you must put into your shopping cart is the dietary guidelines," said Dianne Odland, a nutritionist at the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

She said each shopper should opt for a variety of menu items from the various food groups.

Her recommended step-by-step plan of attack is as follows:

In the Produce Section: No need to be on guard here. Stock up on enough food to allow for five to four servings of vegetables a day and two to four servings of fruit. The only hidden diet-blowing mines are high calorie produce like coconuts, nuts and avocados, but all other types are fair game — so bon appetit.

In the Dairy Case: Slow down a bit and watch your tracks. Stock up on enough food for two servings a day by opting for lowfat milk products rather than whole milk. It provides the same amount of calcium but has 60 fewer calories and seven grams less of fat per serving.

Processed cheese spreads are hemlock to the diet conscious. They are lower in calcium and higher in sodium than most natural cheeses. But chemical junkies take heart, there are lowfat and low-sodium versions of processed cheeses if you can't do without those additives.

At the Meat Counter: Carnivores rejoice! The meat counter is teeming with sources of iron, zinc and vitamin B. Furthermore, two to three, seven ounce servings are recommended daily.

But keep watch for fat. Poultry without the skin and fish are wise choices.

Beef can also be a healthy option, but study up on butcher block jargon. Lesson number one: Select grades of beef are leaner than choice cuts, which are leaner than prime cuts.

Lesson two: Choose leaner sections of beef like round, loin, sirloin and chuck.

Lesson three: When choosing ground beef, choose mothers choose ground sirloin or ground round. Both are leaner than ground chuck, which is leaner than regular ground beef.

The rule of survival in this section is to avoid any processed meats such as hot dogs, bacon or sausage.

In the Bread and Cereal Aisles: Whole-grain items are the allies here because they are higher in fiber than those made from refined flours.

But there are a lot of imposters lying in wait. Look out for wheat bread — just because it says wheat doesn't mean it's whole wheat, so check the ingredient.

Passwords to diet bliss are cracked wheat, bulgur, oatmeal, whole rye and scotch barley — all are aliases for whole wheat.

At the Snack Racks: This is diet killer alley, a virtual torture chamber for weight watchers.

But if you can't resist temptation, at least avoid items listing sugar as the first ingredient on the nutritional label like the plague.

Remember, those armed with knowledge and a battle plan can master any supermarket.

Twelve Oaks is site for walk program

The Novi/Northville area is participating in the 1990 Walk Michigan Program, and Twelve Oaks Mall is the site for the next three events. On March 23, April 19 and May 15, walkers will be meeting at the Lord and Taylor mall entrance at 8 a.m. There will also be three other events this summer.

Each time a person participates in one of the scheduled walks, their name will be entered into a grand prize drawing: a trip for two to Macinac Island to participate in the annual bridge walk on Labor Day.

For more information, call 347-0400.

Nutritionally Speaking: Madonna College in Livonia presents "Nutritionally Speaking" as part of the Fireside Chat Series on March 26 at 7 p.m. in the Founders' Room.

The program will help you focus on how to incorporate proper eating habits into a busy schedule to increase mental and physical alertness.

The cost is free and the guest speaker is Maria Stawarz from St. Mary Hospital. For more information, call 591-5056.

EXERCISE PROGRAM: A one-hour exercise program is held Monday and Wednesday mornings at Twelve Oaks Mall. It takes place 9-10 a.m. in the Lord & Taylor corridor near the east entrance.

The program, conducted by The University of Michigan Division of Physical Education, is particularly aimed at older people and others who would benefit from an invigorating but non-strenuous exercise program.

"The format consists of carefully guided warm-up and stretching exercise followed by light aerobics and a cool-down period, all synchronized to music," according to Prof. Phyllis E. Weikart, director of U-M's Adult Lifestyle Program. "Our objective is to improve the participants' strength, flexibility and energy level through activities which are safe and enjoyable."

Fitness Notes

Weikart and her staff have been leading the popular Fitness Over 50 classes for 12 years on the U-M campus and for the past two years at Ann Arbor's Briarwood Mall, where it regularly attracts some 125 participants.

By expanding the program to Twelve Oaks Mall, they have made it more accessible to residents throughout Livingston, Wayne and Oakland Counties.

"Twelve Oaks is open an hour before the stores open (at 10 a.m. daily and noon Sunday) to accommodate people who want to use the mall for walking," notes Twelve Oaks marketing director Elaine Kah. "This exercise program adds a new dimension to this activity. We are pleased to be a part of the program."

Fitness Over 50 welcomes all interested persons, regardless of their age and current activity level. Call the Twelve Oaks Management Office, 348-9438, for further information.

Twelve Oaks is a major regional shopping center located in Novi on I-96 and Novi Road. The center hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; and Sunday, noon to 6 p.m.

HALF-MARATHON: The annual West Bloomfield Half Marathon has been scheduled for April 22, at 12:30 p.m. This will be the 14th running of this TAC (The Athletics Congress)-certified race which is sponsored by West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation.

The race begins in the front of West Bloomfield High School, Orchard Lake Road at Green Road, and winds through the scenic residential streets of West Bloomfield Township.

Annually the race attracts runners from many midwest states and Ontario, Canada. A new course record was set in 1989 by Doug Kurtis, 37, of Northville, with a time of 1:07:32. Cheri Sly, 24, of Dexter, Michigan set the women's course record at 1:15:57.4 also in 1989.

The 1990 race looks to continued excitement in long distance racing and high quality in race organization. Categories this year will include walkers and wheelers in addition to the many runner divisions.

For an entry form, send a self addressed, stamped envelope to West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation, 3325 Middlebelt Road, West Bloomfield, Michigan 48033. Entrants in the 1989 race will automatically receive an entry form. Registrations are taken up until one-half hour before race time.

Entry fee for the event is $11 through April 13. This early registration guarantees the runner a t-shirt. After April 13 and through race day the fee is $14. There are no guarantees on a t-shirt with a late registration.

For further information, contact the parks and recreation office, 313-334-5660. The West Bloomfield Half Marathon is directed by Sally Slater Pierce.

FREE SCREENINGS: Botsford Hospital's Health Development Network will offer free blood pressure and vision screening the second Monday of every month from 1-4 p.m. The screenings take place in the main lobby of Botsford General Hospital at 28050 Grand River in Farmington Hills.

For more information call 471-8090.

Fitness Tips

Take the time to organize your workout gear

By MARCIA PASSALAEQUA

You just finished your work shift and you've raced over to the fitness center of your local club just in time for class. After throwing your uniform in the bottom of the locker you start pulling out shorts, shirt, socks, and where are your shoes? After dumping out your entire bag you realize you forgot your running shoes.

No shoes. No workout. No kidding. It's an exerciser's biggest letdown. One you've scheduled time to workout, how can you make sure you have what you need when you need it?

Taking the extra time to organize your gear may sound like a chore, but planning ahead will save you time in the long run. Think about how much time is wasted every time you get to the gym and realize you forgot something vital. You either have to run home, purchase it there, or forgo your workout completely, not to mention the damper it puts on your workout to exercise without needed equipment such as goggles, gloves, towels, etc.

The first place to start is by making a list of the things you use during and after your workout, including personal toiletries. Cross trainers may need a different list for each different activity. Chances are they need different equipment for each workout.

PUTTING IT ALL TOGETHER

Some other helpful techniques include:

- Make a visual checklist. Envision yourself starting at your head and working your way to your feet, putting each item in your bag as you see it.

- When packing, pack your "after workout" clothes at the bottom of the bag and add each item in reverse order, so the things you need first are on top. This way you won't have to search through your bag for what you need.

- Buy solid colored athletic wear so you can mix and match easily. Prints and patterns usually need to be worn in specific sets. Also, buy clothes you enjoy and feel comfortable in. If you don't like to work out in them, you'll be less likely to organize them.

- Buy travel-size containers of personal hygiene products, you can use them and throw them out, or buy a set of plastic bottles and fill them with your own products. This way they take up less room and are much lighter.

- Whenever possible, use products provided by your club. You might even be able to rent a locker to keep the things that you use during each workout. The cost might be justified by the lighter load on your shoulder.

EVERYTHING IN ITS PLACE

You can take it with you — especially when you have a bag with many compartments. These bags make organizing your workout a snap. Just check each compartment to make sure you've stored everything you need. An empty compartment might mean you're forgetting something.

Fun ways to stay fit—row, skate, tennis

Bored at the gym? Tired of tennis? Craving the challenge of a new sport?

We demand a lot of our exercise—we want to stay in shape and have fun doing it. Luckily there is a new crop of exercise options to choose from, in addition to old standbys that have been revamped and revitalized.

If you're thinking about taking up a new sport, start by taking a class through the local gym or continuing education courses. Or look for a book, video or special interest magazine to preview a new activity.

Terms of endurance

Nothing beats aerobic exercise for burning fat and maintaining a healthy heart. Your options, however, are not limited to traditional favorites such as jogging.

Walking is getting the most attention these days. More health clubs have added treadmills to their stable of Lifecycles and stairclimbers, and parks are filled with people walking to get their daily exercise.

You can, of course, simply go out and walk at a brisk pace. But there are also methods that allow you to get a more challenging total-body workout.

Power walking, speed walking and striding are all techniques that emphasize a long stride and vigorous arm swing. Walkers sometimes add hip or ankle weights to make it more challenging. If you have a competitive streak, try racewalking. This little-known Olympic sport has been attracting weekend walkers who want to upgrade their walking program, as well as some converts from running.

What sets racewalking apart from other walking methods is that it has rules: One foot must maintain contact with the ground at all times and the supporting leg must be straight as the body passes over. (Break the rules, and you can be disqualified from a race.) The seemingly awkward hip rotation helps the walker move faster without breaking form.

If you want to learn to racewalk, the best way is to take a class or rent a video. Learn to do it correctly, and you could find yourself passing joggers in the park.

Water workouts

If you're looking for a fun, low-impact way to stay in shape, take to the water.

Memberships in rowing clubs around the country are swelling, especially as more women enter the sport. People are attracted by the elegance of rowing, as well as the unbeatable, total-body workout it offers.

You can compete as part of a team in a two- to eight-person shell or row for fitness in a one-man craft. Kayaking and canoeing offer variations on the rowing theme.

For conditioning for other sports, try deep-water running. Wearing a flotation vest, you literally run through the water, using its resistance to build strength. Deep-water running is a low-impact favorite among Olympian athletes, including Jackie Joyner-Kersey, Steve Scott and Joan Benoit Samuelson.

For the layperson, there is low-impact aqua aerobics. This is ideal for seniors who want to get into shape but don't want the impact of landlubber aerobics.

Additional water sports to consider include windsurfing, which requires strength and finesse, or snorkeling.

Aerobics plus

Aerobics have come a long way, baby. When a high injury rate led to the development of low-impact aerobics, instructors started looking for new ways to make their classes fun and beneficial.

The next step after low-impact classes was non-impact aerobics—a fluid yet challenging form of exercise that saves joints and muscles. The newest innova-

How to set yourself up for fitness fun, success

By Alison Ashton

I lost 25 pounds this year. People ask me what kind of diet I was on (none) and want to know how I did it.

How I lost the weight is pretty basic—I got moving. What got me off the couch was the closet full of clothes that no longer fit. I was also fed up with feeling tired all the time and envious of my fit friend's glow of health.

Getting in shape was an admirable goal, but how many times do people say that only to give up after a few days or weeks?

Start by setting yourself up for success.

Don't try to make sweeping changes in your lifestyle. Completely changing your diet and going all out on a new exercise regimen is overwhelming. Start with small changes, such as cutting back on fat in your diet or signing up for an aerobics class.

Set goals. It might be deciding to exercise at least 30 minutes, three times a week. Others might want to set weight-loss goals (aim to lose gradually, so the pounds stay off) or become proficient at a new sport.

Re-evaluate your goals as you improve: I started out wanting to learn to racewalk; now I'm training for my first marathon.

Olympic track champion Jackie Joyner-Kersey writes down her training goals every Sunday for the following week. You can do the same on a monthly or quarterly basis.

Pick an activity you enjoy. If you find aerobics classes dull or hate to jog, you're bound to drop out. There are lots of ways to get in shape: cycle, row, walk, swim, play tennis, roller skate, ski, dance, box. You're more likely to stay with an activity you enjoy.

Take a class. This can help you get started and learn how to do a sport properly. There are classes for everything from badminton to racewalking offered through the YMCA, college continuing education programs, community centers and wilderness outfitters (for rugged activities such as rock climbing, Nordic skiing or orienteering).

If you're not new to an activity, look for classes and groups to hone your ability and provide greater challenges. Masters' swim classes will tune up your swimming program; marathon training clinics will help runners prepare for their first marathon.

Get a training partner. This is a popular source of motivation based on the idea that if you promise to meet your partner after work (or at the crack of dawn) you won't want to let him down. It works.

Even better, try to find a group of people to train with so that you'll always have safety in numbers. Local sports club and local branches of groups such as American Youth Hostels can help you find training groups. You can also get valuable coaching and training tips through clubs.

Cross train. This popular concept is borrowed from triathletes, who bicycle, swim and run. Cross training prevents boredom and injuries. It also keeps you flexible in terms of not having to skip a workout because the weather is bad or a

Cut back on 'bad' foods for a healthier you

The average adult thinks he's special. He (or she) assumes he can get away with a doughnut and coffee for breakfast, a grilled cheese and soda for lunch and a hamburger and french fries for dinner.

He's fooling himself. He may think he's immune to cancer and heart disease, but by the way he eats, you'd think he wanted to die young.

If this sounds uncomfortably like you or someone you love, we have good news.

You don't have to give up the unhealthy foods you enjoy in order to protect yourself from disease. Simply eat them less frequently, and choose more often the foods you know are good for you.

Studies indicate the typical American needs to eat more vegetables and fruits, less fat and more fiber. It's also a good idea to take a balanced vitamin and mineral supplement daily.

It's okay to make changes gradually. For example, each time you shop:

- Substitute a low-fat dairy product in place of one made with whole milk.

- Replace products made from refined flour or processed grains with one made from whole grains (i.e. whole-wheat or rye bread instead of white).

- Get in the habit of reading product labels. Watch out for products that include saturated fats and select those high in fiber and vitamins A and C.

- Purchase several fresh fruits and vegetables, and make a point of trying new vegetables.

Vegetable variety

Many adults as well as children think only green things that taste good are lime-flavored Lifesavers.

If agree, consider this: There are ways to make vegetables appetizing. They don't have to be bland and tasteless.

For example, you can top cooked vegetables with something yummy: parmesan cheese, melted low-fat cheese, white sauce, bread crumbs, sesame seeds or chopped nuts.

Dislike cooked vegetables. Eat them raw. Dip them, party-style, in assorted low-fat dressings.

Or sneak them into other dishes. Using a blender or food processor, grind up cabbage, broccoli and whatever else you want to get rid of and add the mixture to meat loaf, soups and stews.

Tuck a layer of spinach into lasagna; add grated pumpkin, zucchini or carrots to muffins.

If vegetables in any form are distasteful, eat fruits instead. They're just as high in nutrients. Slice them into salads, cereal, yogurt, ice milk and cottage cheese.

Here's how you'll benefit: Beta carotene, a form of vitamin A, has been associated with reducing the risk of cancers of the lung, bladder, larynx and lungs. It is plentiful in dark yellow and orange fruits and vegetables and leafy green vegetables.

Vitamin C has been associated with lowering the risk of cancer of the stomach and esophagus.

Sources include citrus fruits, strawberries, tomatoes, red or green peppers and vegetables in the cabbage family.

The tie that binds

It's ironic that the more civilized man becomes, the more he refines his food and the less healthy it is for him.

Primitive man ate the seeds and skin of fruits and vegetables—and he probably didn't suffer from cholesterol cancer or hypertension.

Fiber is indigestible, so it passes through the body quickly, moving foods through the intestines. It prevents constipation and promotes a healthy digestive tract.

Fiber has gotten a lot of press lately for helping to lower blood cholesterol. You'll find soluble fibers in oats, barley, beans and most fruits and vegetables, insoluble fibers in wheat bran and whole grains.

The typical American should double the amount of fiber in his or her diet, from 10 to 20 grams a day to 25 or 35 grams. You can do this by eating two to four servings of fiber-rich foods daily.

But make the increase gradually so your system can adjust. Start by choosing a bran cereal or muffin for breakfast and substituting fresh fruits for fruit juices.

Cut that fat

Quick. Name two good reasons you should cut back on your fat intake.

You are what you eat, but is what you eat really good for you? The benefits of healthy foods, such as yogurt, can be negated when combined with sweet sugar-filled toppings

If you said, "Fat is fattening and too much can lead to heart disease," good for you. Now, we'll tell you why fat is hard to give up: It tastes good. Fat adds flavor to foods.

It's tough to re-educate your taste buds, but it doesn't have to be torture.

"Self" magazine suggests we look beyond our own borders for low-fat, high-flavor cooking: "Oriental noodle soups, corn tortillas filled with a wide range of vegetables and one or two ounces of minced chicken or fish cooked "en papillote" (in a sealed foil pouch with fresh herbs and vegetables) are all low-cholesterol choices that taste delicious."

The key is to look at healthy eating as an adventure instead of a form of deprivation. With that in mind, we suggest you:

- Eat less butter, margarine, oil and other fats.

Fitness fun

How did we ever exercise before VCRs? Regardless of your age, shape or goals you want to accomplish, there's a videocassette to fill your needs.

Special Interest Video offers the Personalized Training Video Library that covers golf, running, tennis, skiing, weight training, aerobics, body-sculpting and more. Also from this company is "The New Miracles of Rebound," a video that accompanies your trampoline fitness routine.

There's also "Karate Aerobics,"

"Dance Away," "Maximum Potential" (secrets for bodybuilders) and "Buns of Steel." "Health Walking" and "Bunnetics" are other titles to look for.

If your cycling is limited to a stationary bike, try changing the scenery to keep boredom at bay. Choose Hawaii, New England, Yellowstone National Park, San Francisco or the Oregon Coast from the "Videocycle" collection or "The Cycling Experience," which takes you through the mountains and across the desert.

Jane Fonda's series, including "Jane Fonda's Complete Workout" (War Home Video), is still popular. If you're working out with a film or television personality, look also for "Angela Laurus's Positive Moves: A Personal Program for Fitness and Well-being at Any Age," "Shape Up With Mary Hart," produced by Avon, or "Pumping Iron" from ES. This takes you behind the scenes with Arnold Schwarzenegger, Lou Ferrigno and others.

tion is moderate-impact aerobics, which combines the best of high-, low- and non-impact techniques.

Aerobics classes are also moving to a different beat. Classes accompanied by Top-40 tunes are still popular, but you'll also find special themes. Pick one that inspires you—live conga drums, Broadway show tunes, a Motown twist, rock 'n' roll classics.

Instructors are also motivating students and adding challenge with moves using small hand-held weights and heavy rubber bands. More advanced students are also raising heart rates by jumping rope.

New at the gym

The gym is also offering more ways to stay in shape.

For an aerobic workout, there are treadmills, stairclimbers and high-tech rowing machines in addition to the very popular Lifecycles.

Another innovation is personalized workouts. That doesn't mean you need a personal trainer to supervise your every move, but you can work with trainers at your health club to devise a weight-training regimen using a combination of weight machines and free weights to build and tone according to your own goals.

For the fun of it

There are other ways to add fun to your fitness. Try a variation of your favorite activity.

If you walk or jog, hike on the weekends. Contact the Sierra Club or local wilderness outfitters for day- and weekend-long treks.

Tennis players can try their hand at another racket sport, such as racquetball, squash or badminton.

Other options include other ways to add fun to your fitness without the snow.

Combine the elements of sailing and skating with a heavy-duty skateboard with a sail attached. It's sort of like wind-surfing on land.

For fun and skill, try something off the beaten path, such as horseback riding, badminton or ballroom dancing (a great social skill that teaches grace and agility).

Another option is to take up or renew your interest in a team sport, such as volleyball, basketball, softball or football.

Another fun outdoor option is mountain biking, for which there are also classes and organized excursions to help you learn.

Bright colors reign supreme in fitness wear

There was a time when serious athletes were distinguished by their lack of fashion sense. They took pride in wearing regulation gray sweats, old T-shirts and beat-up, definitely un-chic shoes.

Those days are long gone, now that sports gear has become a booming fashion industry. And the sporting new fashions don't come cheaply. High-tech shoes in can cost more than $100. Designer tennis warm-up suits approach $200 (prices for really high-end suits are even more astronomical).

But with the ever-growing fashion statement, there is improving technology in fabrics, materials and design.

Whether it's shoes, shorts, leotards or accessories, bright colors reign supreme. Black, accented with neon shades of blue, green, pink and orange, is a favorite. So are bold patterns and manufacturers' logos.

Shoe tech

Shoes are probably where you'll invest the bulk of your athletic wardrobe budget. Don't skimp in this area, and give yourself time to shop around—wearing the right shoes for any sport can help prevent injuries.

All the top manufacturers have made a contribution to shoe technology. Some innovations, say podiatrists and athletes, are marketing gimmicks. Others are definite improvements. Don't always assume that a high price tag means a better shoe for you.

Know what you want out of a shoe before shopping. If you pronate (your feet roll in), some shoes are better than others. If you have weak ankles, you'll want sturdy high-tops for aerobics. Or perhaps you need a stable shoe for tennis.

Some of the more recent innovations include the Adidas Torison system, which has a notch at the midsole to allow for greater flexibility and less muscle strain.

For shock absorption, Nike has Air soles (pressurized gas inside urethane skin) and Reebok has an Energy Return System, which is supposed to give back energy that you put in. Also for shock absorption, Brooks has the hydroflow system in which silicone passes from the heel to the ball of the foot.

High-tops are still big news, especially for aerobics, basketball and hiking. Look for technology that increases stability without making the shoe heavy. Nike even has a high-top that inflates for more cushioning.

Women who have spent years swimming around in men's athletic shoes will be happy to know that more manufacturers are making their shoes designed for women. Saucony, Asics, Addidas and Nike, for example, all offer women's models with the same technology as their top men's shoes.

In addition to high-tech innovations, shoes have exploded in a riot of wild colors and state-of-the-art styling. Shoes, however, are one area where you should opt for function (how they fit and feel) over form.

Cross training

For fashion apparel, people are less sport specific. Instead, they want gear that can take them from the gym to a run in the park without a change of clothes.

Cross-training fashion usually consists of Lycra bicycle-length shorts, capri- or full-length tights and, perhaps, a matching top.

New fabrics also make for lighter, more efficient clothes. You'll find running shorts and jackets made of lightweight Supplex nylon. For warm-weather work-out, CoolMax fabric channels moisture away for the body so you stay cool and dry.

Fabrics for foul-weather workouts include Thermax, which lets perspiration evaporate while retaining body heat, and Microfine, a fabric with built-in water repellency.

Aerobic attire

Aerobics classes across the country are where fitness fashion reaches its zenith.

Looks are inspired by everything from cycling gear to dancewear. Patterns are geometric, floral and funky tie-dye. Colors range from soft pastels to vibrant colors.

Ballet master Mikhail Baryshnikov got into the fitness wear act a few years ago and offers a line of sturdy, high-fashion exercise gear, including traditional, ballet class-inspired tights and leotards. Other top manufacturers include Danskin, Jacque Moret, Gilda Marx and the fashion-forward Dance France.

Lace tights are still hot, ever since Flo-Jo wore them to sprint to victory in the '88 Olympics.

Only the very confident are the swimwear-inspired thong leotards. You'll also see racer-back leotards and cropped tops, which can double as a sports bra.

To make the most of your fitness efforts, look for figure-slimming panels of color and highcut legs on leotards.

Athlete accessories

Athletic gear doesn't stop with the basics. Round out your wardrobe with a few accessories and you're ready to go.

Socks are more than something that comes between your feet and your shoes. They should fit snugly (to prevent blisters). Some athletes swear by pure cotton, although synthetic blends, such as Orlon or rayon, prevent blisters by allowing moisture to evaporate.

Other accessories include a hat to protect you from the sun in warm weather and retain heat when it's cool, gloves for cyclists and golfers and sweatbands.

One accessory, which time-conscious athletes count on, is a watch. Casio, Free Style and Timex all make digital sport watches to time your efforts. Opt for a basic model with a stopwatch or go all out with one that offers multiple splits and lap counting capabilities.

Setting yourself up for fitness success

You don't have to cycle, swim and run like triathletes; for the layperson, cross training simply means doing more than one activity. If the weather keeps you from running one day, you can always hop on a stationary bike for 45 minutes or swim laps in an indoor pool. Or play basketball. Or take an aerobics class.

A change of location can also add needed variety. If you always swim in an indoor pool, jump into the ocean or a nearby lake for a change of pace. Or try a yoga class if you always do aerobics.

Set up a training schedule. And mark it on your calendar if that gives you more motivation to stick with it. Your schedule might include aerobics classes three days a week and weight training on two. Or you might bicycle two mornings and play tennis on three evenings.

Don't forget to schedule rest days. Your body needs rest, as well as work, to stay in peak condition.

Keep an exercise log. It's very satisfying to see what you've done and it's a good way to keep tabs on your improvement, overtraining and injuries.

You can simply record what you've done, such as how many miles you ran, how long it took and how you felt. Some people like to include their weight, what the weather was like and what they ate that day.

Challenge yourself. After you've been working out for awhile, it's time to test your mettle. If you run, enter a local 10K. If you play tennis, enter a tournament at your club. This is an ideal way to measure your progress, train with a specific goal and find new partners.

Races and tournaments also help add needed variety to your routine.

Take a break when you get bored. Even the best routines can get a little stale. Be flexible enough to recognize boredom and give yourself a refreshing break.

That doesn't mean stopping altogether. You can cut simple back or replace your primary activity with something else for a couple of weeks.

When you're tempted to quit, re-evaluate your goals and review your progress. If you've strayed from your goals or your training has become too stressful and competitive, it could be time to revamp your fitness routine.

HEALTH WATCH

Getting the most from exercise

An ideal exercise program should give the whole body a workout. Biking, hiking, jogging, swimming or aerobics should step up the heart rate to a target pulse rate for at least 20 minutes of exercise. Consult your physician before undertaking any exercise program.

How to determine your target pulse rate range:

1. Subtract your age from 220. This will determine your maximum heart rate.
2. Count your resting heart rate (while lying in bed).
3. Subtract resting heart rate from maximum heart rate to determine heart rate reserve.
4. Divide the heart rate reserve by two, then add to resting heart rate. This will determine your target heart rate.

Advice offered on how to stay fit for lifetime

Is it possible to be fit for life, to start out strong and stay that way through your golden years?

Yes, but it takes some effort, at least at first, to form the right habits. The rewards are well worth it.

If you are a parent, make sure your kids eat properly and exercise regularly. No matter what you age, it's not too late to modify your eating and exercise habits and add years to your life.

Bouncing babies

According to a study by University of Rochester researchers, at age 6 months, nearly one-third of obese infants are destined to become overweight adults.

But even babies can fight fat, advises "American Baby" magazine. A baby can "take swimming lessons, attend classes, and even enjoy the luxury of a gentle massage."

"Once baby gets a little older, she can take a more active role in her fitness regimen—for instance, a swimming class at the local Y or an exercise class."

Exercise programs for both mom and baby also are available on videocassette.

If your toddler is a picky eater, don't aggravate the situation by calling attention to it. Wait out peanut butter binges and never force a child to eat—you could create a lifelong aversion. Involve a child in food preparation and he or she is more likely to eat the results.

Working out in a supervised gym setting is one path to fitness

Fit kids

Today's kids watch television, play computer games and are left alone for long periods of time. As a result, they snack too much and exercise too little.

It does take effort to help your kids become slim, trim, healthy and energetic. But look on the bright side: Three balanced meals a day plus three healthy snacks, along with free play and daily exercise is usually enough to keep any child fit.

As a substitute for snacks that are high in sugar and fat, offer kids unbuttered popcorn, fresh fruit, juicebars and pretzels. Send lunch to school with your kids—a sandwich you prepare is probably better for them than cafeteria fare.

Take advantage of convenience foods available at your local market, such as deboned chicken breasts and precooked turkey.

Plan active outings with your kids. Turn off the TV set and take a walk around the neighborhood, or go bike-riding.

Encourage children to play outdoors, instead of in the house, until dark. Offer your kids plenty of opportunities to join organized sports, but choose the sport wisely. Baseball, for example, is a fun game, but doesn't offer all team members regular, steady aerobic exercise.

Trim teens

Self-esteem is crucial during the teen years, and nothing damages it quicker than excess pounds.

A teen who is fat also is more likely to develop serious health problems later on in life.

What's a parent to do? Consider a weight-loss camp during the summer months. Special counselors and nutritionists know how to motivate teens to lose weight and teach them how to keep it off.

Buy your son sports equipment that he longs for and lessons on how to use it. Take your daughter shopping for pretty exercise wear and encourage her to sign up for aerobics classes.

If you can't seem to keep enough milk in the house, it's probably because your teens are growing so fast they crave calcium. Stock up on low-fat cheese snacks, along with skim milk and yogurt-based beverages.

Active adults

Keep your weight down and exercise regularly, and you'll reap the benefits in later years.

Make aerobic exercise a habit, at least three times a week. Just 25 to 40 minutes each session will benefit your heart and lungs substantially.

Your intake of fat should be one-third or less than your total daily calories. Avoid artery-clogging animal fats; cut back on whole-milk products and switch to vegetable oils, fish and poultry.

If you choose a sport you enjoy, you're more likely to stick it with it. In an interview with "Working Women" magazine, Dr. Kenneth Cooper, founder of The Aer-

Stress can be source of motivation, creativity

If you want to get rid of the stress in your life, think again. It could be a big mistake.

Despite stress' bad rap, experts in stress research and management agree that stress can be a source of motivation and creativity if properly handled. While stress may give stockbrokers ulcers, it also has inspired Olympic athletes to set new world records.

The cause of stress may have changed over the ages but the basic physiological responses have remained constant; that's where the health problems come &HEALTH & FITNESS/March 21 & 22, 1990 in.

For our Neanderthal forefather, stress originated from a close encounter with a hungry sabertoothed tiger, triggering the "fight or flight" stress response: Hormones, adrenalin and cortisol pump into the bloodstream, prompting the release of chemicals that increase heart rate and blood pressure, concentrate blood in the brain and muscles, and release stored energy (sugar and fats).

Our caveman made good use of these automatic physiological changes as he scrambled up a nearby tree, leaving the

Today, stressful situations are rarely as life-threatening, but they are more numerous. Beginning with the first cup of morning coffee, the stress mounts as front-page news, traffic, smog, and angry boss, difficult clients, messages, memos and a late lunch of junk food kick in.

Today, many people are in a constant street-alert state, but the "fight or flight" response, so useful to our caveman, has about as much place in the office as a dinosaur. You have nowhere to run, so your body struggles to cope with elevated levels of stress-produced hormones and chemicals.

The American Academy of Family Physicians estimates that 60 percent of problems brought to physicians are stress related, and $15 billion a year is lost by American industry due to stress-related absenteeism.

But stress doesn't have to be a problem if we manage it correctly.

"To cope effectively, we must become aware of the ways in which stress presents itself in our lives," says Martin Shaffer, Ph.D., author of "Life After Stress."

"It is only when we recognize that we are under stress that we can begin to search out the stressors and develop effective coping behaviors."

We have become so accustomed to living with stress that we often ignore some of the persistent symptoms. Headaches, muscle tension, frequent colds and restless sleep are just accepted. Shaffer says that these symptoms should be used to locate the causes of stress in our lives.

•What are you doing when you get the stress reaction?

•Is it always the same thing?

•If not, is there a pattern that links the different causes? Some causes may require professional counseling, while others can necessitate an entire change of lifestyle.

If left unchecked, stress can contribute to serious health problems such as heart disease, ulcers, a weakened immune system, and even cancer. Listen to your body, scan for signs of stress and control the problem before it grows.

Once you have recognized stress symptoms and tracked down their causes, what do you do now? Relax, that's what all the experts advise.

There are many sources in your community you can turn to for stress reduction. Doctors, hospitals and clinics often provides classes. There are community college and private school classes in relaxation techniques, battling stress, massage, yoga and meditation. Chiropractors and other auxiliary health professionals offer stress-reduction training as well.

Book, record, video and health food stores offer tapes and books that can help you work on stress reduction at home. And local gyms and health clubs sometimes offer one-day clinics, so look around for the program that is right for you.

Relaxation is the most effective antidote to stress. Researchers in the growing field of stress management have developed sophisticated relaxation techniques ranging from Progressive Relaxation to ease tired muscles, to the use of imagery to produce calming thoughts. These techniques often are used in conjunction with biofeedback, which monitors the body's response to stress.

Advice on avoiding those aching body parts

For every inch of your body, there's a body of knowledge that can teach you how best to take care of it. Entire professions are built around callouses, acne, blisters and the relief of chronic pain.

Simply put, for whatever ails you, there's a specialist who can help you. The most valuable information you can glean from a pro is how to best avoid the problem next time.

We can't cover every part of the body in a single article, and we can't give you the complete picture on each. What is here, then, is a little common sense advice for common trouble spots.

Skin

You could go out and spend $100 at the department store cosmetics counter and come home with a wonderful regimen that takes you 10 minutes each night. You feel great, you look great.

Or you could wash your face with soap and a Buf-Puf for $3 and get just as clean. You feel great, you look great.

Either way you go, the bottom line is getting skin clean. How you go about it is a matter not only of economics, but trial and error.

However, "using mild soap and water is the best way to wash your face," said dermatologist Gerald Weinstein in a recent interview.

Toning, or finishing up with an astringent, helps remove even more debris. You can overdo it, though.

"The gray matter a woman sees on the cotton ball after using a toner is sloughed cells, not dirt," says Dr. Marianne O'Donoghue, associate professor of dermatology, Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center, Chicago. Rubbing and rubbing until the cotton comes clean can dry skin. Better to go around just once.

This simple routine at home may be the best, but, as anyone who has ever had one will tell you there's nothing like a professional facial to make you feel as if your skin is glowing.

After cleansing, the best way to keep skin looking its best is to avoid sunbathing and to use a daily sunscreen.

"I generally tell people to put their sunscreen on first and then their makeup," said Weinstein. Makeup products that include a sunscreen usually are too weak, he noted. Finding the best product for you is a matter of testing.

"Some people get a reaction to sunscreens in the sun," Weinstein said. "Some

Other possibilities are "One on One: The Professional's Workout" (Fit Productions) and "Balanced Fitness Workout," featuring Dr. Art Ulene from the "Today" show.

Realize that you don't have to have a perfect body to get started. "Feel Beautiful" from B.R. Anderson Enterprises is a workout video for the full-figured woman, as is "Women at Large—Breakout" by International Video Entertainment.

Pregnant women can benefit from "Kathy Smith's Pregnancy Workout" or Jane Fonda's "Pregnancy, Birth, Recovery Workout." Nurse Femmy DeLyser, who helped deliver one of Fonda's children, has authored a follow-up book to accompany the video. Look for "Jane Fonda's Workout Book for Pregnancy, Birth, Recovery" published by Simon and Schuster.

Karl/Lorimar offers "Reach for Fitness," a video for handicapped people that features Richard Simmons. And Health Tapes Inc. offers "Get Up and Go: For Parkinson's Disease" and "Get up and Go: After Breast Surgery."

Ask your doctor for advice about a workout program, then call (612) 571-5840 to request a catalog that lists more than 200 workout tapes available for sale from the Minneapolis-based company, Collage.

If you run or walk with a radio, audio-cassettes to look for are "Fitness Walking" (tapes for beginning, intermediate, advanced and expert walkers) by Great American Audio Corp. or "Running to Rhythm" by Audio Nightengale-Conant. This tape gives you music for pacing while subliminal messages motivate you.

An excellent book on walking is "The Rockport Walking Program" by Dr. James M. Rippe (Prentice Hall).

Cut back on those less-healthy foods

- Eat fewer fried foods. Bake, broil or roast instead.

- Use polyunsaturated oils and margarine instead of butter.

- Try reduced-fat versions of products like margarine, mayonnaise and salad dressing and dairy products such as milk and yogurt.

- Choose fish, poultry and lean cuts of meat; limit sausage, bacon and processed lunch meats.

- Trim all visible fat from meats before cooking; remove skin from poultry.

- Eat fewer organ meats such as liver and kidneys.

- Cut down on baked goods, especially those made with lard, coconut oil, palm oil or shortening.

- Use fewer egg yolks, use egg whites in cooking and baking.

- Use broth instead of fat for sauteeing.

- De-fat all soups and stews before eating.

Fiber foods

Oat bran cereal and wheat bread are just two ways to add fiber to your diet.

Fruits are a delicious way to get fiber, too. High fiber berries include blackberries, raspberries and strawberries.

obics Center is Dallas, observed, "I've found that the most persistent exercisers are those who focus on one sport, be it swimming, biking or running.

"That sport can serve as the 'core' program from which they try new sports: tennis in the summer, for example, or cross-country skiing in the winter."

Strong seniors

"Long-term aerobic exercise may help older people keep mentally sharp," says "Health" magazine.

You're never too old to start an exercise program, but you may be wise to work with a personal trainer. Once you get your doctor's go-ahead, a trainer can tailor a regimen that is exactly right for you and coach you as you go along.

Whether you go it alone, in a class or work with a professional, you should start each workout with a few minutes of stretching, followed by walking. You'll then alternate brief periods of aerobic activity, such as treadmill-walking, stationary cycling and rowing, with standing floor exercises.

Be sure you have the proper equipment, such as walking shoes that provide cushioning and arch support.

people cannot tolerate PABA, the main ingredient in many sunscreens (but) there are many without PABA—a few are Tiscreen, SolBar or Uval."

As for moisturizers, again, it's whatever feels best on your skin.

"There is no evidence right now that there is any topically applied preparation that has an effect on the skin other than the possibility of Retin-A," Weinstein said.

About that: At least eight institutions are conducting carefully controlled studies on the effects of Retin-A as relates to skin aging. The results will soon start trickling out. Until then, save your money.

Feet

The foot contains 28 bones, held together by more than 100 ligaments, 20 muscles and 35 joints. It almost seems as if they're designed to get injured.

Actually, no. It appears that our shoes are doing much of the damage, seen in the fact that women, with their teetering heels and crunched-up toes, have four times as many foot problems as men.

The National Center for Health Statistics reports that corns and callouses are the second most prevalent condition of the body's muscular-skeletal system. So what do we do about it?

For starters, buy shoes that fit. Shop for shoes in the afternoon, when feet have reached their maximum size.

And, like facials, you can't beat a pedicure for making you feel great all over.

The back

Bad habits are your back's worst enemy, not the boxes you lift or the toys you bend to pick up.

The way you sit, stand and move, all lead to either a healthy or hurting back. Here are several things to think about:

- Even if you've found a good chair to work in and the right posture for you, it's important to get up and move every hour or so to lessen back fatigue.

- Keep fit. Many back complaints are due to back and back support muscles that are out of shape.

- Develop upper body strength in your arms. Women should take some of the stress from heavy handbags and briefcases, babies and grocery bags off neck, shoulders and upper back.

- Practice relaxation techniques. Reduce the stress in your life.

- Get a massage. If you can't afford a professional one, perhaps a gentle neck rub from a co-worker is all you need.

- Strengthen abdominal muscles. "Crunches" are the best form of sit-up, it's now known.

Your knees are shock absorbers of sorts, albeit overused ones. Many of us experience knee pain when we've hit the pavement too often or too hard.

You can't underestimate the value of a good pair of shoes. Not only is fit critical but the amount of shock absorption, as well.

You also can save your knees by bending them more often.

"Bending your knees just 10 extra degrees when you run reduces by 80 percent the amount of shock transmitted through the body," said Thomas McMahon, a Harvard University professor of applied mechanics and biology, in a recent "Prevention" magazine interview.

This style of running places more shock-absorbing emphasis on the buttocks and thighs, less on knees, hips and back. The bonus: You use around 25 percent more calories.

Community Development: Building Local Partnerships

In honor of National Community Development Week, the Oakland County Community Development Division celebrates fifteen years of revitalizing communities and meeting the needs of low and moderate income residents throughout Oakland County. To help improve the quality of life for low and moderate income people and eliminate deteriorating community conditions, the County administers three federal grants from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) -the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), Rental Rehabilitation Program (RRP) grant, and the Emergency Shelter Grant (ESG). Each grant program plays a vital role in maintaining the economic health of Oakland County and meeting the diverse revitalization and human services needs of its urban, suburban and rural communities.

Daniel T. Murphy
County Executive

Community Development is a dynamic, cooperative effort between the County and 49 participating block grant communities. In the report to follow, Community Development announces its accomplishments for 1989 and its proposed projects for 1990. This report will give you information on how the County and your community are spending block grant funds to improve the quality of life for all Oakland County residents.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT

The largest of the three grants Oakland County receives annually from HUD is the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG). The CDBG program infuses federal funds into local communities to benefit low and moderate income persons and keep neighborhoods and business districts structurally sound, attractive, and economically strong. Oakland County has received over $66 million since the CDBG program began in 1975. These funds have been used to improve substandard housing, revitalize neighborhoods and commercial areas, and expand economic opportunities, principally for low and moderate income residents. Oakland County qualifies for annual block grant funds as an "urban county" which is defined as a county with more than 200,000 residents within a metropolitan statistical area. To meet this requirement, 48 Oakland County cities, townships and villages joined hands to participate in the 1989 urban county program.

HUD distributes CDBG funds to Oakland County by formula. Likewise, Oakland County distributes funds among the participating communities based on a precise allocation formula approved by the Oakland County Board of Commissioners that is designed to benefit low and moderate income residents. In 1989, approximately two thirds of CDBG funds was distributed to communities for local eligible block grant projects while one third was retained by the County to implement a housing and commercial rehabilitation program available to eligible residents in all participating CDBG communities. Of the $4.3 million received for 1989, approximately 79% financed projects that benefitted low and moderate income residents or eliminated deteriorating community conditions, while 21% supported planning, management, and technical assistance activities.

COMMUNITY CDBG PROJECTS

Fire protection is a vital component of every community's quality of life (Oak Park).

Forty-eight cities, townships and villages participating in the Oakland County CDBG program reserved 1989 funds for over 100 projects ranging from downtown revitalization to watermain installation, senior citizen centers, home repair programs, parks and recreation facilities, fire stations, and other activities. These projects benefit low and moderate income residents, eliminate slums and blighting conditions within communities, and also contributes to a continued improvement in Oakland County's quality of life.

Downtown development and beautification (Farmington).

COUNTY CDBG PROJECTS

Oakland County uses its share of the CDBG Allocation to conduct the county CDBG Program and implement the Home Improvement Program and Commercial Assistance Program.

Home Improvement Program

Structural rehabilitation of homes owned by low and moderate income residents is a long-standing commitment of Oakland County and the Community Development Division. As the largest single CDBG program in the County, the Home Improvement Program provides low interest loans of up to $7,700 to eligible homeowners to make their houses safer and more comfortable places in which to live. The loan program works on a sliding scale of income and family size. Depending on these two variables, homeowners may receive a zero percent interest deferred loan, three percent interest installment loan or a combination of the two. Incomes as high as $39,900 may qualify for a family of eight.

Community Development technicians inspect each home before, during and after rehabilitation to assure a quality job.

Improvements may include roofs, plumbing, electrical, water and sewer systems or other structural repairs.

All work is completed by a licensed and insured residential builder selected by the homeowner or from the county's list of prequalified contractors.

During 1989 Community Development revitalized 150 homes of low and moderate income county residents. Rehabilitation loans totalling $1,104,585 were issued.

Sixty-nine percent of the loans was issued as zero percent interest deferred loans while 31 percent was issued as three percent interest installment loans. The average cost of repairs per case was $7,364.

Community Development technicians consult with each homeowner about the work to be done.

Commercial Assistance Program

Community Development's Commercial Assistance Program (CAP) provides impetus for communities to improve the visual and economic quality of their central business districts by helping merchants and property owners afford storefront and building improvements. CAP reduces the cost of bank loans to merchants and property owners through a blend of public block grant funds and private financing. This public/private partnership provides financing for commercial property rehabilitation at substantially below prevailing market interest rates. Alternately, applicants may use their savings in conjunction with a CAP loan.

CAP originally restricted rehabilitation to buildings within targeted business districts documented as meeting the national CDBG criterion of the prevention and/or elimination of slum and blighting conditions. In an effort to meet the unaddressed revitalization needs of qualified commercial buildings outside the target areas, the Oakland County Board of Commissioners expanded the eligibility for CAP in 1989 to any commercial property located in a CDBG participating community that meets federal guidelines for spot rehabilitation.

During 1989, CAP financed seven rehabilitation projects with a total cost of $380,000 and initiated 11 additional projects totalling $470,000 in 11 communities. To date, 31 businesses have completed renovations through CAP representing nearly $1.2 million in public and private investment. At present, $450,000 is available in the loan pool which, when leveraged with private funds, will result in over $2.5 million invested in commercial property rehabilitation.

This business in Milford demonstrates the dramatic results possible through Commercial Assistance Program financing packages.

RENTAL REHABILITATION PROGRAM

In addition to CDBG, Oakland County has received $593,130 in federal funds for rental rehabilitation since 1984. The Rental Rehabilitation Program encourages rental property owners to improve and make rentals safer and more appealing for low and moderate income tenants.

Rental property investors can receive a 50 percent rebate on repair costs, up to maximum of $8,500 per unit. Investors must bring the units up to HUD Section 8 Existing Housing Standards, have rents affordable to low and moderate income tenants, and agree not to convert the repaired units into condominiums for 10 years. In addition to the landlord rebate, income qualified tenants are eligible for a Section 8 voucher or certificate. Section 8 is a rent subsidy program offered through the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (Oakland County's contracted housing authority) whereby a portion of a low income tenant's rent is paid directly to the landlord by the government. During 1989, 15 rental units were improved, totalling $96,856.

EMERGENCY SHELTER GRANT PROGRAM

An important issue facing both the nation at large and Oakland County is a problem of homelessness. Under the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act and subsequent legislation, Oakland County has received $116,000 since 1987 for emergency assistance to the homeless.

Emergency Shelter Grant (ESG) funds can be used for a variety of shelter operations and services for homeless persons including food, equipment, shelter maintenance and operations, supplies, counseling and medical assistance. Three shelters received ESG assistance in 1989, including Baldwin Avenue Human Services Center, a 20 bed facility in Pontiac and the HAVEN, a shelter for those made homeless through domestic violence. This assistance, as well as an ongoing contract with South Oakland Shelter, a consortium of over 30 churches providing shelter in southeastern areas of the county, demonstrates Oakland County's ongoing concern for the plight of homeless persons.

Citizen Participation: An Essential Part of the CDBG

Citizen participation is at the heart of the Community Development Block Grant program process. Citizens' ideas and needs are crucial to determining how CDBG funds are spent in each community. To facilitate the greatest possible input by the public, Community Development has brought concerned citizens, property owners, planners, architects, engineers, contractors, tradespeople, entrepreneurs, bankers, public officials, legislators, and public administrators together in a strong partnership transforming federal dollars flowing back to Oakland County into sound community improvements.

During 1989, the Citizens Advisory Council for Community Development met monthly in an advisory role in planning, implementing and assessing community development activities and hosted the annual county level public hearing for 1989 CDBG funding. In addition, each community conducted one or two local public hearings offering citizens an opportunity to have a voice in how 1989 CDBG funds could be spent to satisfy their neighborhood's needs.

The Michigan Housing Coalition, a citizens group, pays a visit to Commerce Township to discuss block grant activities. The input of citizens groups and individuals citizens is vital to the Oakland County CDBG program.

Fair Housing Is The Law

Clifford Schrupp, Executive Director of the Fair Housing Center of Metropolitan Detroit, displays an Oakland County CDBG-financed brochure entitled "Fair Housing is the Law."

Fair housing isn't just an idea. It's the law.

Every person in Oakland County has an equal right to choose housing suited to their needs and financial ability.

April 1990 marks the 22nd anniversary of the National Fair Housing Law, Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, and is an appropriate time to re-examine the rights and responsibilities we Americans have under this historic legislation.

This act, together with the Federal Fair Housing Amendments Act of 1988 and State of Michigan legislation, prohibits discrimination in the sale or rental of housing and calls for equal opportunity for all citizens regardless of race, color, sex, national origin, age, marital status, religion or handicap.

New this year is the Oakland County Center for Open Housing. This private, nonprofit organization, headquartered in Farmington Hills, is building community understanding and support for fair housing and working to achieve a stable and integrated housing process in Oakland County. The center offers information regarding communities and real estate to provide assistance to families seeking a place to live in any Oakland community

If you think you have been the victim of discrimination in the sale, purchase or rental of housing, call the following agencies for fair housing information and assistance:

1990-91 CDBG PROJECTED USE OF FUNDS

STATEMENT OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT OBJECTIVES

Since 1975, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has granted over $66 million to Oakland County to administer annual Community Development Programs pursuant to the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended.

The primary objective of Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act and of the Oakland County CDBG Program is the development of viable urban communities by providing decent housing, a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunities, principally for persons of low and moderate income.

Consistent with this primary objective, the Housing and Community Development Act identifies three broad national program objectives. Oakland County gives maximum feasible priority to CDBG projects which comply with one or more of the national objectives.

NATIONAL PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

- Ensure benefit to low and moderate income persons; not less than 60% of a grantee's aggregate funds shall be used to support activities that benefit low and moderate income persons.
- Aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blighting community conditions.
- Meet other community development needs having a particular urgency because existing conditions pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community where other financial resources are not available to meet such needs.

In promoting the national objectives Oakland County Community Development has developed the following specific objectives and strategies consistent with policy statements for Federal, State, Regional and County levels of government for the 1990-91 program year:

COUNTY PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

1. Encourage communities to realistically plan for future development and to assist communities in developing the capacity to implement activities.
2. Increase each community's commitment to its proposed community development activity.
3. Discourage the use of community development funds on projects which can be funded through other sources.
4. Improve, upgrade and increase property values through the concentration of rehabilitation efforts within the neighborhood.
5. Reduce the number of substandard dwelling units within the county through the rehabilitation of existing residential units.
6. Improve living conditions within housing units and reduce the financial burden of low and moderate income persons.
7. Reduce housing maintenance and fuel costs and enable lower income persons to remain in their housing unit.
8. Instill within homeowners the incentive to maintain and improve conditions within the housing unit.
9. Assist homeowners in using available funding sources to accomplish housing rehabilitation activities.
10. Reduce the isolation of income groups and increase housing opportunities for low and moderate income persons.
11. Increase the supply of affordable rental housing units for senior citizens and low and moderate income persons through rehabilitation of existing rental units.
12. Affirmatively further fair housing and equal opportunity.
13. Encourage communities to develop and implement comprehensive business district revitalization programs.
14. Create a favorable economic climate in commercial business districts for private reinvestment.
15. Forge public-private partnerships among the county, communities, merchants, property owners and financial institutions to accomplish commercial business district revitalization goals.
16. Minimize displacement of persons as a result of CDBG assisted activities through counsel and careful assessment of each project requiring displacement.
17. Provide relocation assistance in accordance with the Uniform Relocation Act of 1970 (24 CFR 42) and mitigate adverse effects of displacement, if any, on low and moderate income persons.
18. Ensure that persons displaced as a result of CDBG assisted projects will be treated fairly, consistently, and equitably so such persons will not suffer disproportionate injuries as a result of projects designed for the benefit of the public as a whole.
19. Ensure that tenants displaced involuntarily and permanently as a result of the use of CDBG assistance to acquire or substantially rehabilitate property will be treated the same as activities covered under the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1970.
20. Ensure that not less than 60% of CDBG funds received annually are used for activities that principally benefit persons of low and moderate income.
21. Provide for citizen participation in the CDBG process by implementing a detailed citizen participation plan. A variety of projects are eligible for community development funding.

The following projects are eligible uses of CDBG funds in accordance with federal and 9/6/88 Rules and Regulations defined in 24 CFR Part 570

1990-91 PROJECTED USE OF FUNDS

The County of Oakland, a Michigan Constitutional Corporation, in compliance with the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended, will submit the following proposed projects and allocations to HUD for FY 1990 CDBG funding totalling $3,519,000.00 on March 27, 1990. Oakland County will supplement the 1990 CDBG entitlement from HUD with $644,716.84 in County Program Income and in Community Program Income generated from 1/1/89 through 12/31/89. The following CDBG projects are consistent with and keyed to the aforementioned National Program Objectives (A, B, C).

ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT

The County of Oakland has prepared an Environmental Review Record in respect to the aforementioned projects and has determined that the listed projects will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, the County has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. The reasons for such decision not to prepare such a statement are as follows:

A. Adverse impacts on the physical or natural environment are negligible and other impacts are beneficial.

- B. The projects will make no significant increased demand on public services and will create no pollution impacts.
- C. The project will not substantially change the income, racial, ethnic, age distribution or population size of the county. Other impacts on the social environment are neutral or beneficial.
- D. The extent of any environmental impact is limited to the county.
- E. The nature, magnitude and extent of any environmental impact on the project, whether beneficial or adverse are such that there will be no significant effect on the environment.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the aforementioned 1990 projects has been made by Oakland County which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth reasons why such statement is not required. The environmental review status respecting the aforementioned 1990 projects is keyed as:

- (1) environmentally assessed
- (2) categorically excluded
- (3) exempt

The Environmental Review Record is on file at the Community Development Division, 1200 North Telegraph Rd., Pontiac, MI and is available for public examination upon request in Room 112, 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments to the Community Development Division Manager for consideration by Oakland County. The County of Oakland, 1200 North Telegraph Rd., Pontiac, MI will undertake the projects described above with block grant funds from HUD under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended. The County of Oakland is certifying to HUD that the County and Daniel T. Murphy, County Executive, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts, if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to Environmental Reviews decision making and action, and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect on the certification is that upon its approval, the County may use the block grant funds and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases:

- A. That the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer of the applicant approved by HUD.
- B. That the applicant's environmental review record for the project indicated omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58) and may be addressed to HUD at Patrick V. McNamara Federal Bldg., 477 W. Michigan Ave., Detroit, MI 48226. Objections to this release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD.

All interested agencies, groups, and persons must specifically indicate whether the objections submitted addresses the Environmental Review or the Request for Release of Funds. No objection received after Friday, April 27, 1990 will be considered by HUD.
