The classic 'Romeo and Juliet' tale of "West Side Story" comes to Northville High School this weekend. The high school theater will be transformed as members of the cast sing and dance their way through this memorable tale. Above, cast members warm up for a dress rehearsal. The play runs tonight, Thursday, and Friday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3.50 for students and senior citizens.

Library debated at public hearing

By STEVE KELLAN

The Northville City Council heard from people on both sides of the proposal for a 44,800-square-foot library in the township, during its Monday night public hearing on a new cooperative-services agreement with the township.

About 40 people crowded into the city council chambers, many to voice their displeasure with the Haller Library plan and some to give their support.

When one resident asked whether the township might be willing to cooperate with the city on a library in another location, City Manager Steven Walters said, "That was not the option that was issued to the city by the township. It was either join in or not."

Complete hearing coverage/6-7A

One resident spoke out against moving shared services like senior citizens activities to a township facility. "This is just an example of why this is a bad idea," said Steve Caulkins. "We live in the city, and you were elected by us, and the city needs magnets to draw the people into the downtown. There are a lot of other things that can bring people downtown. It's not just about borrowing books. Why should that be going out there and drawing senior citizens

Shared services

Under the new agreement the city would pay for shared services based on an equal-millage formula for the first time, so that as the township's population continues to grow faster than the city's, the township would pay a greater share of the services. The Community Recreation, Youth Assistance and Senior Citizens programs would all be funded on this basis.

The library would also be funded this way — to a point. A 25,000-square-foot portion of the library, about 56 percent, would be funded by both the city and township, based on the state equalized values of the respective communities. The remaining 19,800 square feet, or 44 percent, would be funded by the township alone.

Under the current cooperative-services formula, the city would pay 38 percent of the cost of community library services in 1992. Under the proposed agreement, the city would pay just over 28 percent instead. The projected cost to the city in the year 2006 would drop to just under 26 percent of the total cost.

The total cost for construction of the Haller Library is estimated at $6.9 million

Alternate library plan unveiled

By STEVE KELLMAN

While the Northville City Council considers city participation in the township's Haller proposal, a local resident's plans to provide a larger community library were unveiled at a public hearing Monday.

At that hearing, local architect Gregory Presley unveiled plans for conversion of the community's Wing Street post office into a library, if the post office ever vacates the site.

Presley said he first had the idea for the proposal when he heard rumors that the post office was considering moving out of its present location. "I thought, 'Well, heck, why the heck are we looking outside the business district (for a library site)?" he said.

Presley has been working on the proposal since January, he said, but he wanted to wait for the right moment to present it. "I was looking for the right forum," he said. "I didn't want to call the Record and appear to be against the Haller proposal. I wanted a positive forum to present it as a positive alternative."

The big question is whether and when the post office will be available for reuse. According to the Northville postmaster, that question is far from being answered.

"We haven't met with anyone on giving up this building at all," said Northville Postmaster Wally Cates. Cates said the post office signed a 20-year lease with the city in 1981. But he admitted that the post office is currently involved in a five-year expansion plan, and plans to expand its Northville facility to 35,000 square feet within that period.

"Whether that's adding on here or moving to another facility within this ZIP code, I don't know," Cates said. "But with our growth, we've just about outgrown this building." The Wing Street facility is 12,500 square feet.

Presley remains fairly certain that the post office will become available. "It's certain that they will expand," he said, "and my guess is that if they need 30-35,000 square feet, they will expand out of that location."

At the hearing, Presley suggested a phased approach to renovation of the post office as a library. The first phase, which he estimated would cost $1.2 million, would be to renovate the existing facility. In the future, he said, a 14,000-square-foot addition could be built on the south side of the building over the present parking area, and parking could be provided to the west.

The total cost of the project would be an estimated $4.1 million, he said, and provide a 26,500-square-foot

Middle school brawl foiled - weapons seized

By MIKE TYREE

Meads Mill Middle School officials Friday suspended six students and confiscated several weapons after learning of a gang fight scheduled for a site near the school.

Principal David Longridge said four seventh-grade and two eighth-grade boys were suspended after they admitted bringing weapons to school for a fight that was to occur at the end of the March 23 school day.

The fight, which reportedly was prompted by an argument over possession of a skateboard, did not take place and no students were injured, Longridge said.

Approximately "40 to 50" students were interviewed about the fight and Longridge estimated that up to 200 students could have been involved in a melee planned for Cedar Lake, which is located near the Lakes of Northville subdivision, just across Six Mile Road from the school.

Longridge said the trouble apparently started after an argument over a skateboard. He said a recruitment process soon began between the students, who were enlisting their friends to help them fight.

Reports that the fight was racially motivated were unfounded, Longridge said.

"I would say no, it wasn't racially based," he said. "There was a black kid involved and he was suspended, but that's not what it was about."

School officials were tipped off to the possibility of a fight by a parent the afternoon of March 22. Longridge said the parent called back Friday morning with a list of 10 students who allegedly were ringleaders in the planned fight.

After the Meads students arrived at approximately 7:45 a.m., the 10 students were monitored by school officials. At approximately 7:50 a.m., Longridge said a sixth-grade student told Assistant Principal Jeff Rad-

Walters considers Plymouth vacancy

By STEVE KELLMAN

Northville City Manager Steven Walters is one of two current candidates for the job of Plymouth city manager, a position which has been vacant for almost a year since the departure of former manager Henry Graper.

"I was asked to consider it a couple of weeks ago by representatives of the Plymouth City Commission, and that's what I'm in the process of doing," Walters said last week. "I never even applied, but I indicated that I'd consider it."

"You have to think about what your career pattern's going to be," he said about his consideration of the position. "The average length of service by city managers is seven years, although there are several long ones in this area." Walters cited Novi City Manager Ed Kriewall's 16 years of service as an example.

"When something like this hits you, you at least stop and think," he said. "Needless to say, city managers usually only have opportunities for promotion by going to another city."

Walters has met with Plymouth's interview committee and is participating in Bartell & Bartell's evaluation process, "which is largely like taking a test — a long test," he said. Bartell & Bartell is the consulting firm hired by Plymouth to perform the search for a new city manager.

A Bartell representative met with Walters Monday for an informal interview, and was scheduled to meet with former Battle Creek Manager Gordon Jaeger Tuesday, before presenting recommendations to Plymouth officials Tuesday.

If he did leave, Walters suggested that it would not be because of dissatisfaction with his present position. "I've been here for 16½ years," he said, "so obviously I'm here because I like it."

This would not be Walters' first job in Plymouth. He was assistant city manager there from 1967 until 1970. "It was my first job out of the University of Michigan," he recalled. Walters graduated from the school with a master's degree in public administration in 1966.

"The last time I didn't apply to Plymouth was in 1981," he added. At

Harrassment probe clears police officer

By MIKE TYREE

An anonymous sexual harrassment complaint lodged against a Northville Township police department official has been dismissed after an investigation failed to substantiate the allegations.

Supervisor Georgina Goss directed township attorney Niels Eric Hansen to investigate an anonymous letter she received approximately two weeks ago which alleged that a male police official sexually harrassed female members of the police department.

In a March 22 letter to Goss, Hansen concluded that the charges could not be substantiated after the female personnel denied knowledge "of any harrassing-type activities by any members of the police department."

Monday, Goss was ready to close the door on the letter, which she said was unsigned and undated.

"I am absolutely satisfied there is no case of sexual harrassment," she said. "According to our attorneys, there is no case."

"They've interviewed the women in the police department (and) there was not a complaint."

The township police department employs three female dispatchers. Two dispatchers were involved in the alleged harrassment, according to the letter.

The dispatchers have not responded to requests by the Record for information on the alleged incidents.

The two vehicles involved in the fatal crash on Sheldon Road.

Plymouth Township resident killed

By MIKE TYREE

A Plymouth Township woman was killed March 21 after the vehicle she was driving crossed the center line of Sheldon Road and struck a north-bound vehicle.

According to Northville Township police, Shirley Tucker, 68, was driving south on Sheldon Road, south of Six Mile Road, when she collided head-on with a vehicle driven by Harry Smith, 54, of Ludington.

Township police officer Matthew Mayes was alerted to the accident by a passing motorist and arrived at the scene at 3:40 p.m. to find Tucker without a pulse, according to township police records.

Mayes performed cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) on Tucker before she was transported to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, where she was pronounced dead at 4:33 p.m.

Police said Tucker was wearing a seat belt and police found no evidence that alcohol was involved in the accident.

Smith was treated for minor injuries at St. Joseph's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

There were no passengers in the two vehicles, police said.

The traffic fatality was the first recorded in the township since March 1986.

Some shops still open in Northville mall

By MIKE TYREE

Don't rule out a haircut or a perm at Continental Hair Designs because of the woes that closed a portion of a local shopping mall.

Carol Stempien, operator of Continental Hair Designs, located on the east end of troubled Northville Plaza Mall, said Tuesday that word of the March 9 closure has adversely affected her business.

"I'm getting calls from people who thought we were closed," she said.

"Our salon is open and I plan to keep on thriving."

Stempien said confusion over the status of her shop and two others — Silver Jet Travel and China Fair restaurant — came about after an article in the March 22 edition of the Record reported that Northville Township officials had succeeded in attempts to get the Seven Mile Road mall closed for repairs.

The article stated that A&P, Perry Drugs and Big Lots remained open, but did not mention the three other shops that remained open.

The Northville Plaza Mall is owned by Christopher Redding of Franklin Associates in Pontiac. Attempts to reach Redding for comment on the mall closure — and of a reported back tax bill amounting to nearly $300,000 — have been unsuccessful to date.

A Wayne County Circuit Court judge gave Redding until May 9 to make repairs to the mall as specified by chief township building official Mick Kruszewski. Kruszewski cited general disrepair, including badly leaking ceilings, as the basis for the closure request.

Stempien said Redding is obligated to maintain her shop, which she said she has operated at the mall the past five years. She reported no problems with repairs.

Kruszewski agreed with her assessment.

"They're still open," he said. "(There are) no maintenance problems there."

Siren will blow in city tornado test

Northville City Police will be testing the city's Tornado Warning Siren System on Wednesday, April 4 at 10 a.m. The test will consist of a steady three-minute signal on the siren at City Hall.

Residents are asked not to call the police station during the test, except in case of an emergency.

The test is designed to assure that the siren will work in an actual emergency. If a tornado is sighted in the future, a steady three-minute siren tone will be broadcast.

In the event of an actual emergency, residents should seek shelter immediately and listen to local radio or television stations for more information. Residents should not call their local police or fire departments for weather information.

The test is done annually at the start of the tornado season. Most tornadoes occur between April and July, usually between 3-5 p.m. Nationwide, Michigan has the third highest rate of tornado-related fatalities each year.

Pamphlets on tornado safety are available from the Northville city police station.

Man arrested on child-neglect charges

Northville city police arrested a Milan man on Eight Mile Road east of Novi Road after stopping him for speeding, when they discovered three outstanding civil warrants on him. The man was stopped March 23 at 10:06 p.m. and a police computer check turned up a paternity warrant from Washtenaw County and child-neglect warrants from Washtenaw and Wayne counties. The man, who could not post the total $27,188 bond amount, was arrested and turned over to Washtenaw County authorities.

BAD BET — A township man was arrested by city police at Northville Downs March 19 at 7:04 p.m., for a previous charge of child neglect. In the course of another investigation, the city police had found an outstanding civil warrant from the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department on the man. The man, who was unable to post the $21,000 bond amount from the case, was transported to the city police station and held until picked up by Washtenaw County authorities.

BAD FORM — A Detroit man was arrested at Northville Downs March 24 at 7:21 p.m., after bringing a beer into the racetrack, when Northville city police discovered an outstanding warrant on him for paternity from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department. The man could not post the $500 bond, and was taken to the Wayne County Jail.

MORE TRACK NEWS — A Ferndale man was arrested outside Northville Downs March 23 at 8:24 p.m. after city police found an outstanding felony warrant on him from Oakland County. The warrant was for failure to pay court costs and attorney fees after a conviction of possession of cocaine.

LESSONS IN LARCENY — Two teachers at the Amerman Elementary School on Center Street had wallets stolen out of their purses from their classrooms March 21, according to city police reports. In one incident, a substitute teacher's brown wallet valued at $10 and containing $83 in cash was reported stolen sometime between 2-3 p.m. after she left the room. In another, a second-grade teacher's blue tri-fold wallet valued at $20 and containing $20 in cash was reported stolen sometime between noon and 4:30 p.m.

BUSTED DOWN ON BECK — A Northville man was charged with operating under the influence after being stopped for speeding on Beck Road north of Eight Mile March 23 at 1:54 a.m. The man was clocked at 84 miles per hour in the 40 mph zone. After being stopped, the man could not speak intelligibly and failed a sobriety test. His blood alcohol level was later measured at .17 percent, well above the state's legal limit of below .10 percent. He was charged and released on a bond of $85.

GETTING TO KNOW YOU — A blue 1990 Chevrolet Geo valued at $8,000 was reported stolen from in front of the Northville Green Apartments on Randolph Street March 26, sometime between 6:30-7 a.m. According to city police reports, the owner had lent the car to a friend, who dropped it off that morning and locked the keys inside after placing them under the front seat. When the owner arrived with another set of keys to pick up the car, it was gone.

BLOWING IN THE WIND — A car stereo, 20 cassette tapes and a wallet were reported stolen from a car parked at an Abbey Knoll residence sometime between midnight and 7 a.m. on March 23, according to city police reports. The wallet's contents were found scattered over several adjoining yards the next morning. The stereo, a black Pyramid Gold Series cassette player, was valued at $225, the tapes were valued at $100, and $10 was missing from the wallet. A stereo equalizer was also damaged in the incident, apparently during an attempt to steal it as well.

ABUSED CARS — An estimated $226 in equipment was stolen — and an estimated $1,460 in damage done — at the used car lots at McDonald Ford on Seven Mile Road. The incident occurred between 6 p.m. on March 16 and 8:30 a.m. on March 19, according to city police reports. The perpetrator or perpetrators apparently used a jimmying device to get into the estimated 10-15 vehicles which were found unlocked after the incident, as no signs of forced entry were found and no windows were broken. A black and chrome Kraco stereo cassette player valued at between $150-$200 and the inside rear view mirror valued at $60 from a Ford pickup were stolen. One vehicle's headlights were spray-painted blue and other "random damage" was done to the vehicles, according to the report.

LIGHTS OUT — A Northville man had the taillights of his Cadillac Seville smashed March 23, sometime between 11-11:30 p.m., while it was parked outside the VFW hall on South Main Street. Damage was estimated at $400.

YOU DON'T KNOW ME, BUT... — A Glenhill resident had a purse stolen from her car sometime between 10:45 p.m. on March 22 and 7:15 p.m. on March 23, but the purse and its contents were later returned. The person who returned the purse left an anonymous message on the woman's answering machine, saying that the purse had been found in their yard.

IT'S NO CADILLAC, BUT IT'LL DO — A Chrysler hood ornament valued at $40 was reported stolen from a vehicle parked at the Northville Recreation building on Main Street sometime between 3:43 p.m. on March 23 and 12:20 a.m. on March 24, according to city police reports. The vehicle was parked near the east side of the building at the time.

BROTHER, CAN YOU SPARE A DIME OR TWO? — A Whitegate Drive resident reported the theft of some loose change from the glovebox of her car, which was reportedly unlocked at the time. The incident took place sometime between 10:30 p.m. on March 22 and 11:30 a.m. on March 23.

WINDOW PAINS — Two glass doors inside a house under construction on Coldspring Court were broken sometime between March 24-26, according to city police reports. The pair of doors was valued at $800.

LET'S TAKE A WHEEL — A pickup truck parked at the Wagon Wheel Lounge on South Main Street was the apparent target of an attempted robbery March 20, according to city police reports. An estimated $35 in damage was done to the side of the vehicle by a pry tool sometime between 5-5:30 p.m., and the truck's cab door was found open. The only thing of value in the vehicle was a spare tire in the bed.

LAWN JOB — A Battleford Street resident reported that someone drove over his lawn March 19, sometime between 8:30-10:25 p.m., according to city police reports. The incident caused an estimated $25 in damage.

FENDER-BENDER — A driver turning south onto Center Street from Eight Mile Road March 18 at 3:35 p.m. struck a vehicle heading east on Eight Mile. The driver, a Northville man, was cited for failing to yield.

MEIJER GREATEST HITS — Township police responded to the following larceny reports at Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, during the week of March 17-23:
A 20-year old Pontiac resident was arrested at 4:26 p.m. March 17 after attempting to steal pants, shoes and cigarettes.

A 24-year old Farmington Hills resident was arrested at 11 a.m. the same day and charged with larceny in the theft of rings, earrings, shoes and sunglasses.

A 29-year old Ypsilanti resident was arrested at 1:30 p.m. March 20 and charged with the attempted theft of an answering machine.

A 25-year old Mt. Clemens resident was arrested at 12:45 a.m. March 20 on a larceny charge.

GONE WITH THE WIND? — A pair of reports charging that rented video tapes were not returned to Northville Video, 43197 Seven Mile Road, were filed with township police March 16. The complainant said both subjects had rented tapes Jan. 14 and had not returned them.

RIDE LIKE THE WIND — A 28-year old Livonia man was charged with reckless driving and fleeing and eluding an officer after his arrest March 21 at 2:07 a.m. Township police said the driver of a 1990 Chevrolet ran a stop light at the corner of Haggerty and Five Mile. Using their red lights and siren, police followed the man eastbound on Five Mile until the vehicle did a U-turn west on Five Mile and then turned south on Knolsen.

Police said the vehicle hit speeds of 70 miles per hour and drove across several lawns before striking a number of garbage cans. With the assistance of Livonia police, the vehicle was finally stopped at the intersection of northbound Ross at Jamison.

BOTHERED BY THE SUN — Township police received a complaint that someone broke into a 1986 Toyota Celica parked near Andover Court between 4:30 p.m. March 18 and 8 a.m. March 19 and stole two pairs of sunglasses. The glasses were valued at a combined price of $150.

DEPARTMENT OF VEHICLE LARCENY — A Neptune Court resident told township police the driver's side window of his 1985 Cutlass was shattered and a radar detector and Nikon 35 mm camera were stolen sometime between 7:30 p.m. March 18 and 6:55 a.m. March 19.

A tool set was stolen from a vehicle parked at a residence on Northville Forest in the early morning hours of March 17.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Township board to discuss police chief position tonight

By MIKE TYREE

The township Board of Trustees will consider a plan to consolidate administration of the township police and fire departments at a special meeting at 6 p.m. this evening (March 29).

Township Manager Richard Henningsen and Treasurer Betty Lennox have spent the past month reviewing proposals for replacing former police chief Kenneth Hardesty, who resigned amid a gun transaction controversy in December.

Based on research compiled by Henningsen and Lennox, it is expected that the board will be asked to approve a change to a public safety director — an administrator who would preside over both the police and fire departments.

Henningsen would not state a preference Monday.

roduction and discuss both sides of the issue," he said. "We will ask the board which program they would like to pursue to fill the chief of police vacancy."

In a letter to the board, Lennox estimated that the selection of a public safety director could save the township approximately $130,000 in salary, fringe benefits and vehicle costs over the next three years.

She said her figures were based on a public safety director's estimated salary range of $42-$55,000, minus the salaries and benefits of a police and fire chief.

"I took the salary we projected to pay the public safety director and subtracted the police chief's figure and then subtracted the fire chief's salary," she said.

"These are the theoretical savings if we went to a public safety director."

The fire chief in Northville Township is paid approximately

"We will ask the board which program they would like to pursue to fill the chief of police vacancy,"

— Richard Henningsen,
Northville Township Manager

$35,000 a year and Hardesty was earning a yearly salary of just over $40,000 when he resigned.

Lennox said a switch to a public safety director is plausible because of the changing nature of the township.

"With the increasing growth and increasing needs, this may be the best direction," she said. "A lot of communities are going this way."

Henningsen and Lennox traveled to two neighboring communities — Canton and Oak Park — two weeks ago to review public safety directors there. Both later said they were impressed with that form of administration.

A public safety director would be a civilian administrator who would replace the chiefs in both departments. A ranking officer would be retained in each department and they would report to the public safety director, as opposed to a chief.

Both departments would eventually be cross-trained to handle police and fire duties under the public safety director system, Henningsen said.

Though the police department's top slot is now vacant — Captain Philip Presnell is acting chief — the fire department still has Chief Robert Toms on board.

Supervisor Georgina Goss last week said a switch to a public safety director would not threaten Toms' career.

"Chief Toms has been a faithful public servant for many years," she said. "A change will not affect his position."

Lennox agreed, and said her figures were based on two vacancies.

"We don't know when Chief Toms is going to retire," she said. "He's going to stay as long as he wants."

"These figures are for comparisons."

Opinions

away from the city?

"I just think it's a terribly dangerous thing and ought to be avoided at all costs," he said.

His remarks drew scattered applause from the crowd.

He later said, "I'm enough of a fatalist to believe that the train has already left the station on this one. Please, tack on the requirement for a bike path so that my kids have some chance of getting to the library without getting run over."

Planning Commissioner David Totten, speaking as an individual citizen, said, "The entire proposal here, the way it's been presented to us, has a financial look to it, but there ought to be other things considered besides the cost. This is still the center of the township, kind of. The township surrounds the city."

"This is part of downtown. That's not," he said, referring to the Haller site at the corner of Six Mile and Sheldon roads.

Said Totten, "I don't think a vote against participating should be seen as a vote against cooperation, (but) it seems to me that the city should be looking at what is being offered, and what is good for the city."

Kathleen Otton, another planning commission member, said, "I think that we're subtracting (from our city) now by allowing a facility such as our library to be taken away."

Susan Lapine, a city resident, said the city draws residents who like being within walking distance of services like the library. "We moved to this community because we really like a small-town atmosphere," she said. "That's important to us and it was an important assumption we

Record/CHRIS BOYD

City resident Steve Caulkins speaks against the Haller site made when we moved into this community as opposed to any other." She said people who moved into townships expect to commute to services.

Gregory Presley, a Downtown Development Authority member who had a suggestion of his own for a library site (see related story), worried aloud that the council might be seen to be giving tacit approval to the Haller proposal by accepting the proposed cooperative-services agreement. "My concern is that a vote for a shared-services agreement becomes a vote for the Haller

"...it seems to me that the city should be looking at what is being offered, and what is good for the city,"

— David Totten,
City Planning Commissioner

Library," he said. "I think the two should be disconnected." Presley said the proposed shared-services agreement was a good one from a city perspective, but disagreed with the site choice.

Russell Dore, president of the Northville Players, was one of a handful of people who spoke in favor of the Haller site. He argued that the community as a whole had a desperate need for public rooms like the proposed auditorium, for programs such as his own. "We're obviously looking forward to a place like this, or in the post office, or in the Ford Plant," he said, referring to two other proposed library sites. "But none of those are happening. This one's happening."

Phelps Hines of the Northville Arts Commission also argued in favor of the Haller Library, and the space it would provide for his group to hold concerts, recitals and plays. "Please, keep the Arts Commission in mind," he told the council and the audience. "We're a living, breathing thing in Northville and we want to become more so."

Several citizens suggested that the council table a vote on the cooperative-services agreement until after the township holds its bond election on May 1. The city council is planning to vote on the agreement at its April 2 meeting.

Mayor Chris Johnson seemed wary of tabling the vote. "I think the township wanted us to vote on this before the election," he said, "so that township voters know what the final bill would be." If the city opts out of the shared library services, township voters would be paying nearly 30 percent more for the library.

"The ballot wording wouldn't change, but the ultimate bill to the taxpayers would change," he explained. "The ballot wording is such that, with or without the participation of the city, the township is ultimately responsible for the library."

After several more suggestions from the audience to table the council's vote, Johnson said the council would at least consider such an action. Said Johnson, "I anticipate that there will be a lot of discussion" before the agreement comes to a vote. "Just the fact that you're voicing it tonight means we'll be considering it."

Betty Griffin, a member of the original Library Site Committee, said the Haller proposal had come along just in time as far as the committee was concerned. "The site committee had really reached kind of a dead end when the Haller property came through," she said, "and we thought it was a dream come true."

The Ford Plant was not seriously considered at that point because it was not known at the time whether the Ford Motor Co. would sell it to the city. The plant was not officially on the list of proposed sites studied by the site committee. The Ford Plant did appear at that time as a "wish list" site, according to Johnson.

The committee had recommended that the community choose between either a Cady Street site behind the Community Recreation Building or one at Fish Hatchery Park.

Lapine asked the council, "Do you have any sense if the township would be willing to come back to the table and re-discuss the issues around the library?" Johnson said that was not likely, because the township was so actively pursuing the Haller proposal.

Several members of the audience expressed mixed feelings about the Haller proposal. Some also questioned the fact that the library proposal was coming to a vote in the township but not in the city.

"The Haller Library is a good business decision, it really is," said Charles Keys, a city resident, "but there is a cost issue and the cost is quality of life. I don't know for sure which way I want to go, but I think it's dangerous for this council to go into this decision without really going into the community. I don't think the people of this city have really made up their mind yet. At least I haven't."

Responded Johnson, "It's just one of those things where a point has to come where a decision must be made."

The Haller Proposal

facility. "All the things that are included in the Haller proposal are here," he said. Presley's plans show several different library areas for children and adults, a separate space for up to three meeting rooms similar to the Haller proposal, and a large administration area. But his proposal does lack an auditorium.

Presley said his main purpose in presenting his plan is not to see a library at the post office, but to show that the Haller site is not the only place available.

The post office site may not even be Presley's first choice for a library. "My romantic choice would be the Ford Plant because of its associative history," he said.

"I really intended to point out that there are other alternatives to the Haller proposal, and in fact they are less costly," he said.

The main issue in the library debate is location, as far as Presley is concerned. "The driving force for me is that I firmly believe that the library should be located within the business district," he said. "It's a business just like any other."

"I don't hear other people talking too much about location, and I feel very strongly about it."

Presley said he admired Northville City's concentrated small-town atmosphere, and the fact that there was a specific boundary to the city. "I think you give up part of that when you create an alternate cultural center," he said.

"My concern is that if we create an alternate cultural center, you won't know where Northville starts or ends off," he said.

"My point is this, that there are other alternatives to the Haller location," he said. "It's not a free gift. Essentially what we're doing is paying fair market value for the land plus the cost of the library."

DDA member Gregory Presley shows plans for an alternate library site.

Township on course for Haller

By MIKE TYREE

Several Northville Township officials watched with interest Monday's City Council public hearing on the proposed joint services plan.

Supervisor Georgina Goss, Township Manager Richard Henningsen, Treasurer Betty Lennox, Trustee James Nowka and Finance Director James Graham attended the public hearing — and they heard an earful from some city residents.

"It was a public hearing, we were there to listen to comments on the joint-services agreement," Goss said. She deferred further comment to Henningsen.

"I thought the public hearing went fairly well," he said. "A lot of city people had the opportunity to speak for themselves."

"They were standing and speaking their opinions to the city council."

Henningsen said the alternate library plan introduced at the meeting had little bearing on the township.

"Our plans have not changed for the Haller Library," he said. "We're going to proceed as normal."

The township has set a May 1 date for a millage election for a proposed $6.9-million, 44,800-square-foot library complex to be built on the corner of Six Mile and Sheldon Roads. Township voters alone will decide whether or not to accept former resident Frieda Haller's donation of 72 acres at that site, in return for the building of the library complex.

After months of negotiating a new shared services plan, the township board March 8 agreed to recommendations proposed by the city for a joint-services agreement. The agreement includes a formula for funding the Haller Library venture.

The city council is scheduled to vote on the shared-services agreement April 2.

Haller option seen as best investment for city

By STEVE KELLMAN

As part of Monday's public hearing presentation on a new proposed cooperative-services agreement between Northville city and township, City Manager Steven Walters briefed residents on the various library options available to the city.

One of the five options he listed was the township's proposed 44,800-square-foot Haller Library complex.

Walters began the meeting by reviewing an extensive report prepared on the history of the search for a new library site, and a cost analysis of several of the options available to the city at this point.

The first option Walters analyzed was operating a city library at the present location and with the same city budget contribution. The cost to the city in 1992 would be .76 mills, he said, which would be the same amount if the current library agreement and programs with the township were maintained.

Jim Petrie at the hearing

But because of the loss of township funding if the Haller proposal is approved by township voters, services would have to be drastically cut for a city-only library. The library's hours would likely be cut from 58 hours per week to 24 hours per week, special services like children's reading programs could be cut, and the book stock would be considerably less.

"So while that would have no millage impact, you would have a severe impact on service," Walters said.

Operating a city library at its current location and at the current service level would cost an estimated 2.22 mills in 1992, Walters said. The cost includes maintaining the book budget at its current level and replacing the lost books and shelving over several years, and reducing the staff by about 20 percent. Because there would be fewer people using the library, Walters predicted "somewhat less of an activity level, and many fewer books being checked out each day."

A city library in bigger quarters would cost an estimated 3.4 mills, Walters said. Among the assumptions he made in finding that figure was a 12,000-square-foot library operated at the current level of service.

The proposed Haller library complex would cost the city 1.87 mills in 1992, under the proposed cooperative-services agreement. But because the proposed agreement would reduce the cost of other shared services by .59 mills, the actual net cost would be 1.28 mills, which would be .52 mills over the cost of the city's current agreement.

"There's a double impact here," Walters explained. "There's a reduction in cost to the city for the recreation, Youth Assistance and Senior Citizens programs."

Under the proposed shared-services agreement — which is predicated on passage by township voters of the Haller complex proposal — the city would only be paying for construction and maintenance on half of the 25,000-square-foot library portion of the building. The township would pay the other half, based on the respective total State Equalized Valuations (SEV) for each municipality. The township alone will pay for the construction and maintenance costs of the remaining 19,800 square feet, or 44 percent of the library.

Because 56 percent of the agreement is based on the communities' SEV, as the township population continues to increase faster than the city population, the city's total contribution to operating expenses will continue to drop.

What this means, Walters pointed out in his report, is "the cost of the proposed agreement is no more than the cost of the current agreement in the long term."

"Looking at that kind of picture 15 years from now," he said, "we'd be paying the same for Haller as we would for our own."

O'Brien, manager discuss uproar

By MIKE TYREE

Township Manager Richard Henningsen and beleaguered Planning Commissioner Barbara O'Brien were scheduled to meet yesterday (March 28) to discuss O'Brien's future role with the township.

Supervisor Georgina Goss directed Henningsen to set up the meeting after she received an opinion from the township attorney which addressed procedures for removing a planning commissioner.

Goss had asked township attorney Ernest Essad to render an opinion after Planning Commission Chairperson Charles DeLand requested that O'Brien be removed from the commission.

Goss said the meeting between O'Brien and Henningsen could have a bearing on future decisions concerning O'Brien.

"The attorney sent a letter explaining the procedures for removing a planning commissioner," she said. "That letter, along with DeLand's, will be turned over to the manager, who will meet with Mrs. O'Brien to review both letters."

Goss said Essad determined that a planning commissioner could be removed from the position after a public hearing and a meeting of the township Board of Trustees. She said a board meeting to discuss O'Brien's fate had not been scheduled.

DeLand said he sent a letter to Goss detailing his complaints with O'Brien March 1, two days after O'Brien broke up a planning commission quorum by leaving the Feb. 27 regular meeting at 11:40 p.m.

O'Brien said she had instructed DeLand of her intention to leave early throughout the evening. DeLand said he did not hear O'Brien make that request.

In his letter to Goss, DeLand also said that O'Brien was inattentive, did not qualify no votes on developments as advised by the township attorney and had not progressed as a planning commissioner.

He called her decision to leave the planning commission meeting before adjournment "irresponsible."

O'Brien fought back by placing a $540 advertisement on page 3A of the March 22 edition of the Record. In the advertisement, she charged that she was not afforded the opportunity to face her accuser and stated that she made her concerns of the late meeting hour known to DeLand.

"It was money well-spent," she said, regarding the advertisement. "I felt I was attacked and it's a matter of family honor."

In the advertisement, O'Brien called DeLand's comments a "barrage of political fire."

Tuesday, O'Brien said quotes attributed to DeLand in the March 15 news article "were unprofessional and unethical."

She said she welcomed the chance to speak with Henningsen.

"He said (the meeting) is intended to be friendly, to get it out of the headlines," she said. "I have a long list of concerns and the meeting is a nice gesture on his part."

Henningsen said the purpose of the meeting was to "gather information."

"I'd like to sit down and hear her side of the story," he said. "I'm going to ask her what she expected from the job and what her perceptions of the job are."

wanski to search a waste container located in the building.

Radwanski found a gym bag which contained a five- to six-inch hunting knife.

The 10 suspected ringleaders were then brought to the principal's office, where six confessed to bringing weapons to school.

Other weapons discovered included a pair of brass knuckles and a "ninja star" throwing device.

School officials then conducted a locker search — which netted two more knives — and called township police for assistance.

Friday's most persistent rumor was that a gun had been hidden in the school, Longridge said. An exhaustive search of the school did not turn up a firearm, however.

Acting Police Chief Philip Presnell said the police department began its involvement around 10 a.m. and continued surveillance until after 2 p.m. Police confiscated the weapons, Presnell said.

Presnell said the department was continuing its investigation and did not know if charges would be brought against any of the students.

"It's a difficult process," he said. "You have to establish possession of the weapons."

Longridge said school was "quiet" Monday. He said the suspended students and their parents were to meet with school officials yesterday (March 28), after the Record went to press.

He doubted that the students would be expelled.

"There will probably be a plan that they'll have to follow," he said. "They will be under supervision from the time they arrive until the time they leave."

Longridge said the suspensions would last three days.

"You have to remember their ages," he said. "You think something like this is not going to happen, but it does at this age."

"We're indebted to the parent that called us," he added. "After getting the tip, we were right on top of it."

Teens are topic of program

The teenage years can be a tumultuous time for both a teenager and family members. It is difficult for everyone involved, but there is an end to it. An understanding of what is happening, tips for coping and the knowledge that it's probably normal, all help to get the family through this time of growth.

The University of Michigan M-Care Health Center in Northville will present a program on Thursday, April 5 from 7-9 p.m., to discuss the medical and emotional aspects of growth and development during the teenage years. Topics will include what's normal and what's not, warning signs, tips on what you can do and suggestions for when to seek professional help.

Susan Laurent, M.D., pediatrician at the U-M M-Care Health Center at Northville and Jacque Martin-Downs, M.S.W., family therapist at Psychotherapy and Counseling, Northville, will discuss these issues. A question and answer session will follow the presentation.

I'm excited for this opportunity to sincerely thank all whom are currently experiencing the quality of fresh food products at MANCUSO'S in Northville. For those who have yet to visit MANCUSO'S, I openly invite you to do so this weekend from Friday, March 30 thru Sunday, April 1.

WHAT TYPE OF MARKET IS MANCUSO'S? Mancuso's is a quality fresh food market specializing in fruits, vegetables, meats, deli and the personal service and respect people in this area deserve! MANCUSO'S offers premium in-season fruits and vegetables transported from all areas of the country and the world. At MANCUSO'S you will also discover what I believe to be the most unique meat/meal counter anywhere. Unlike other area stores which offer a seemingly endless aisle of meat counters, MANCUSO'S takes the confusion out of your meal and its preparation.

Over the years, as a wholesale produce purveyor for many of the area's top quality hotels, restaurants and institutions and working with several chefs, I always envisioned the concept of pre-prepared meals available for the active family. For example, try the popular oven ready Cranberry-Sage stuffed Chicken Breast; pick-up a fresh Caesar Salad (just one of many varieties of salads-to-go), a fresh bunch of California Asparagus, along with some Yukon Gold Potatoes and finish it off with Ben & Jerry's Chocolate Fudge Sundae Ice Cream. You can plan your entire week's meals at MANCUSO'S.

My offer to you is this: Stop in this weekend, with this ad, make a $10 purchase and I will give you your choice of a Stuffed Cranberry-Sage Chicken Breast or a premium quality New York Strip Steak to signify my confidence in your guaranteed satisfaction. Discover MANCUSO'S!

Novi seeks control over waste sites

By JAN JEFFRES

NOVI — The city council Monday gave City Manager Edward Kriewall a message to deliver to the Oakland County Solid Waste Planning Committee by this afternoon.

The council, at the recommendation of the Environmental Advisory Committee, passed a resolution seeking greater local control in the siting of solid-waste facilities. Locations in Novi are currently under consideration for a Holloway Sand and Gravel Co. construction-waste landfill at Eight Mile and Napier Roads and for an eight-community trash recycling and transfer station.

The deadline for written comments on the county's Michigan Public Act 641 solid-waste management plan is 5 p.m. today.

"We think the plan as it has evolved has caused us some problems. Holloway registered with the county irrespective of the local community. We've had a lot of feedback from the residents in the community. I hope the county commission will give us a little respect and heed some of the comments we make," Kriewall said.

The council resolution makes the following points:

□ The council is opposed to the inclusion of the Holloway landfill site in the county's Public Act 641 plan.

□ No community should be required to host more than one operating solid-waste facility at a time without consent of the local government.

□ The Oakland County Solid Waste Management Plan should include a fast-track process for disposal facilities, similar to those followed in Monroe and Wayne counties.

□ As part of this fast-track process, the developer should be required to get approval from the community's government.

□ Communities in which disposal facilities are located should be compensated by the county.

□ Disposal facilities should be limited to those needed for no longer than a 20-year time span (to avoid the state claiming a right to use a longer-term landfill site).

□ Facilities needed for additional capacity should be determined during five-year plan updates.

□ Before the Oakland County Solid Waste Management Committee agrees to place a site in the Public Act 641 plan, the host community must be notified in writing with sufficient time to respond to the committee before any requests are accepted.

The question is whether the county will adhere to Novi's resolution.

"I sure hope so; otherwise this would just be an exercise in futility. However, I don't think that one community has the power to change the 641 plan. I think it can only be done through several communities, but I think this will at least get people thinking," said Chuck Kureth, who serves as chair of the city's environmental advisory committee and its planning commission, as well as co-chair of the county's Landfill Siting Advisory Committee.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to the Oakland County commissioners; County Executive Daniel Murphy; State Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, and State Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford.

Kureth said that the planning commission has not yet received any submittals from Holloway. The company was instructed by the council to submit its current plans for the reclamation of the gravel mining site as a landfill to the commission.

School strategic plan proceeding on several fronts

By MIKE TYREE

Northville Public Schools' Strategic Plan 1989-1994 is operating as projected, according to school administration officials.

Superintendent of Schools George Bell and Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services Dolly McMaster recently discussed the strategic plan — which outlines the goals and direction of the school system well into the 1990s.

"It's proceeding very well," Bell said of the plan, which was announced in June of 1989 and hinged upon the successful passage of a $16-million bond issue.

District voters approved the school bond proposal by a nearly 2-1 margin in October and the schools wasted little time implementing aspects of the strategic plan, Bell said.

He pointed to the ongoing renovation of Cooke School — which will reopen as a middle school in the fall of 1990 — as a direct effect of the bond election and a well-thought-out educational strategy.

At its Feb. 5 meeting, the Board of Education decided to create a 6-7-8 grade structure for Cooke, to help alleviate overcrowding at Meads Mill Middle School and a steadily increasing projected growth rate in the school district.

The board also set attendance boundaries for Cooke. Middle-school-aged students in the Moraine and Amerman Elementary attendance areas are scheduled to attend Cooke, while Silver Springs and Winchester Elementary area students will attend Meads Mill.

Proceeds from the bond issue have been used to renovate or prepare for renovation the gymnasium floor, computer labs, kitchen equipment, parking lot and roof, McMaster said.

Also, Jeff Radwanski, assistant principal at Meads Mill, was selected as the new principal at Cooke.

In addition to the Cooke renovations, virtually all the remaining school facilities in the district have undergone improvements since the bond-issue approval. Floors have been carpeted, asbestos encapsulated and other needed repairs designated in the strategic plan have been addressed, Bell said.

The school district is in the final stages of selecting a site to build a new elementary school, Bell said. He said the facility would be constructed in the northwest portion of the school district, with an expected occupancy date of the fall of 1992.

He would not divulge the proposed site, but said the board would make a site decision by mid-April.

Barton-Malow was selected as construction manager for the bond issue renovation projects after a long period of negotiations. Bell the school district could concentrate on the administration of the schools by retaining a projects manager. For its expertise, Barton-Malow brings with it a price tag of $800,000 for consultation fees.

Another portion of the strategic plan was to establish a Partnerships for Education Program in the school district.

McMaster said Jan Purtell was hired to supervise the program, which is set up to integrate the resources of area businesses and individuals with school programs. The goal of the program is to help students prepare for their post-high-school careers by familiarizing them with advances in technology, McMaster said.

A recurring theme at recent board meetings has been classroom size on the elementary level. At least four parents have approached the board in the past month to discuss growing class sizes. Bell and McMaster both said the school district is determined to keep elementary class sizes at the present 28-1 pupil/teacher ratio.

Bell said some of the upper elementary grades may be edging above 28-1, but smaller class sizes in the lower grades maintain the desired class structure.

He also said the administration feels smaller class sizes in the lower levels of elementary are more important to maintain than in the upper levels.

"Unfortunately, kids don't come in neat little packages of 25 or 27," he said. "Obviously, a class size of 15 would be the best ... but our situation is not in a crisis level."

McMaster said school administrators monitor class sizes biweekly and would enact solutions to possible overcrowding "when we determine it is appropriate."

Other parts of the strategic plan presently being enacted or undergoing discussion include improving the district's school library and media programs, updating and replacing existing instructional equipment, developing and implementing plans to serve students with special needs, complete evaluation of the high school program and the development and implementation of plans to improve school climate, McMaster said.

Few on council fazed by Plymouth's offer

By STEVE KELLMAN

While Northville city officials say they would hate to see City Manager Steven Walters leave, few were surprised that the City of Plymouth has asked him to consider becoming their new manager.

As Mayor Chris Johnson explained, "When you've got talent like Steve, that situation is bound to occur."

"It's not that surprising or new to me," said Council Member Dewey Gardner. "Over the past 12 years, I can't tell you how many times he was offered a job."

"He's a fantastic city manager," Gardner said. "I have never met one or worked with one — and I have worked with a few — who compare to him."

But Gardner had little fear about Plymouth's offer. "I'm not really concerned about it," he said. "I don't think he has any interest in leaving."

City officials did say that Walters' departure would have serious consequences for the city. "You literally are changing the administration at that point," said Johnson. "People often confuse the mayor with the administration, but in our city that's not the case. (The city manager is) probably the single most significant position in the city." While Johnson saw his own role as mayor as a policy-making one, he said the manager oversees the actual operation of the city.

"If you ask me, he's been instrumental in most things the city's done in the last 15 years," Johnson said. He cited the city's downtown development program as one example, and said Walters was a catalyst for that.

"He's kind of quiet and unassuming, but he's the man who gets things done," Johnson said.

"He's a very talented individual, and you hate to lose someone like that," Johnson added. "If there's anything we can do about it, we'll do it."

Council Member Carolann Ayers agreed, saying, "I think we'll do everything to keep him here."

"I can't blame Plymouth for trying to hire Steve," said Council Member Paul Folino. "Steve is a good city manager, a very dedicated city manager, and he works very hard at his job."

"He's right on top of most everything that's happening in this city, because he's that type of city manager. I'm sure we at city council will be discussing the situation and trying to close the door so he can't get out. Maybe we'll have to fence in the city," he said, laughing.

Council Member Jerry Mittman said the city council would work to keep Walters in the city, if necessary.

"I think we'll be discussing some alternatives with Steve, and let him make the decision," he said. "From our standpoint, we would sure hate to see him leave."

Mittman cited the MainCentre project, and the creative financing solutions found to resurrect the program after Singh Development nearly backed out of the plan, as one of Walters' many achievements.

"But there's no person, I don't care who he is, who couldn't be replaced if we had to," he said.

Walters under consideration for Plymouth city manager

that time, Walters was asked to consider the position but told Plymouth officials he was not even interested in considering it.

Walters said he has several concerns about the Plymouth position, including the fact that department heads in Plymouth are required to live in the city. Walters is currently a Northville City resident.

Some of the other issues that he has been considering are Plymouth's financial constraints. The city has reached its millage levy limit, and has a $250,000 deficit from increases in refuse collection fees. Other concerns he cited were "a couple of legal matters with unknown liabilities to them."

Cities like Northville and Livonia can use unlevied millage for the increased costs of refuse collection. Northville faced a similar problem this year when the rising cost of landfill fees rose an estimated $80,000 more than the city's budget, but was able to pay for the increased costs through unanticipated revenues and savings in other areas of the budget.

The problem stemmed from an increase in trash dumping fees at the Arbor Hills landfill in September. Both Northville and Plymouth use the landfill.

"This is a dilemma that they have, so I'm sure that there are factors like that that applicants have been looking at," Walters said. "I guess if you're smart, you don't take a job that you anticipate you'd probably fail at."

Walters said he had not yet discussed salary with the Plymouth officials. As Northville City manager, he presently makes a base salary of $55,578 and an additional $800 for longevity pay.

Plymouth city officials had offered Grand Blanc City Manager Randy Byrne $59,500 for the job before he turned it down at the end of February. The top two other candidates also turned down the job.

Byrne was reportedly also concerned about the city's $250,000 budget deficit, and the other candidates expressed surprise at the high cost of housing in Plymouth in their decisions to turn down the position.

"The timing is not the greatest, but then it's not my fault," Walters said, referring to the upcoming budget review season. "Even if it got to the point where I agreed to go, it would be after the budget period, which would mean May at the earliest," he said.

Walters said he expects to hear more from Plymouth officials sometime this week. "I presume that's what I'll be hearing later this week," he said, "whether they'll want to be talking seriously or not."

"Their position is that they're waiting for their personnel advisor," he said. "It's kind of on hold for me until I hear from them. I've got work here to do so I'm not going to worry too much about it. I've done with Bartell what they've asked me to do."

"At first I didn't want to talk about our funerals. But, now I'm glad we did."

We chose Forethought<sup>SM</sup> funeral planning.

It's one of those things that's so easy to put off, put out of your mind. And I guess that's what I was doing. But, once he started asking me questions about how I wanted my funeral to be, I realized how important it is for the people we leave behind to know these things. He had no idea that I wanted a simple eulogy, and just that discussion alone started us on all sorts of other topics. I found out he doesn't like organ music. We even had a few laughs.

Forethought is funeral planning... before the need arises.

I thought planning our funerals together would be a terribly sad thing. But, actually, it brought us both a great sense of relief. Now we know neither one of us has all those decisions facing us in the future and we won't have to second-guess whether we did the right thing... did what the other one would have wanted. It's all planned and even paid for with the Forethought life insurance policy designed and approved specifically for Forethought funeral planning. And, there's a policy available to anyone up to age 100. There's a real peace of mind that comes with having it taken care of ahead of time with Forethought.

Novi committee seeks tighter guidelines on landfills

By SHEILA PHILLIPS

NOVI — Novi Environmental Committee members put the finishing touches on a proposed citywide landfill ordinance this week.

The ordinance attempts to restrict the placement of landfills within the community.

"The ordinance puts certain criteria on landfills within the city," said Planning Commission Chair Charles Kureth, who also sits on the environmental committee.

The document would create a buffer zone between landfills and neighboring development by prohibiting landfills to come within 300 feet of the property line. Furthermore, that number would increase to 500 feet next to residential property and would rise to 1,000 feet adjacent to sensitive receptors — which includes schools, hospitals, nursing homes and day-care facilities.

On the other hand, the ordinance does not limit landfills to any particular zoning classification. Therefore, a garbage dump could be sited within a residential district as long as it is far enough away from neighboring development.

"The idea of restricting zoning came up in our committee meetings, but we aren't allowed to legally," Kureth explained.

"Basically, we are not requiring any more from them than what they give to the state — we just want to be able to review the information."

— Chairman Charles Kureth, Novi Planning Commission

But to promote environmental tranquility within legal guidelines, the ordinance requires developers to come up with an end use for the landfill that conforms with the site's current zoning.

It also calls for a lengthy review process by the city.

"It would force a landfill to go through the entire site-plan review process," Kureth said. "In addition, the developers would be required to submit an engineering plan as well as a hydrogeological study."

"Basically, we are not requiring any more from them than what they give to the state — we just want to be able to review the information," he added.

In addition, developers would have to submit a transportation plan and all heavy trucks would be barred from residential subdivisions.

Design requirements in the ordinance exceed Department of Natural Resources regulations.

A dual-liner containment system with leachate detection and collection devices would be mandated for all type II solid-waste facilities.

Type III facilities — like the proposed Holloway landfill for construction waste — would be required to have a single synthetic liner. Currently, no liner is required by the DNR if the site is already clay-lined.

The Environmental Committee finalized the ordinance on March 26 and is expected to forward the proposed document to the city council within two weeks. A public hearing will then be held by either the planning commission or city council.

The ordinance would then need planning commission and council approval before going into effect.

Rouge waste not constant problem

Toxic waste isn't a Rouge River problem during most times of the year, according to a Michigan Department of Natural Resources study.

The DNR study, announced earlier this month, found no traces of toxic waste in the river during dry times. It indicated toxic waste only became a problem during heavy rainfall or winter thaw.

"Without rain, there appears to be no toxicity problem," DNR specialist Margaret Fields said.

The study examined water quality samples taken at various Rouge sites at four different times last year.

Study findings aren't considered an indication the Rouge is now safe for swimming, fishing or boating — or that the $900-million Rouge area sewer construction program is unnecessary.

Instead, Fields said, it indicates river use could begin without massive dredging of the river's bottom.

The study will be discussed at length during a June 20 meeting of the multi-community Rouge River Basin Committee.

Basin committee members, meeting recently, wanted more information on the study, they said. The study's results could be misleading, at least one member said.

"People shouldn't get the wrong idea; there are still substances in the river that shouldn't come into contact with human skin," said Jim Murray, Wayne County public works director.

Additional sampling might also be conducted.

"There was a feeling that data was limited," Fields said.

Study findings were considered somewhat surprising because of the large amount of industrial waste believed present in Rouge River sediment.

It is believed rainfall stirs up toxic sediment on the river bottom, but Fields said the study indicated human waste was a worse pollution problem.

"What this indicates is that industry isn't the problem," Fields said.

Outmoded combined sewer overflows dump human waste into the river as they back up during rainy periods.

Storm water runoff and other non-point pollution are also considered problems.

Toward that end, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments has commissioned a study to document the extent of water runoff pollution in the Rouge.

Special attention will be given to chemicals used in lawn, golf course and cemetery maintenance, as well as to coal, scrap iron and automotive storage areas, SEMCOG spokesperson Ted Starbuck said.

In addition, the study seeks to evaluate the effectiveness of wetlands as storm water retention areas.

SEMCOG seeks to tap $1.2 million in federal Environmental Protection Agency grant money available for Michigan projects. At this point, it isn't certain whether individual communities will be asked to come up with matching grants.

Despite the overall findings, the study indicated some areas of the Rouge may have an ongoing problem with toxic substances.

Heavy fish kills were found in the two areas — one in Southfield, the other near Livonia — but no proof was found that the fish died from toxic chemicals.

A 100-percent fish kill was recorded in the Evans Creek area, north of Eight Mile in Southfield. One-third of the fish died in an area of the river near Warren Road (on the border of Detroit and Dearborn Heights), just east of Livonia and Garden City and south of Redford.

We're looking...

... anyone in the community who was active in celebrating Earth Day 1970. The Northville Record is hoping to interview local people as part of a project commemorating Earth Day 1990, April 22.

We would also like to talk to anyone who lives in an environmentally sensitive home — one using alternative energy sources or otherwise takes special care with ecology.

Please call 349-1700 and ask for Bob Needham.

Sign Language.

Call it a sign of the times. Everywhere you go, wherever you look, Red Carpet Keim signs are popping up. Entering new neighborhoods, selling more homes, and selling them faster.

But it's not just the Red Carpet Keim signs that are selling the homes. It's our company, and the people behind our company. Red Carpet Keim salespeople just plain work harder than the rest. They make the extra calls, drive the extra miles, and even stay that extra hour or two to talk about your concerns. And they're backed by one of the oldest real estate franchises around—with approximately 500 offices across North America.

So when you decide to sell your home, talk with a Red Carpet Keim salesperson. When you put us in your front yard, it's sign language everyone will understand.

Teen drinking is problem for Novi

By SHEILA PHILLIPS

NOVI — Novi teenagers seem to believe that weekends are made for Michelob.

However, the Novi Police Department is trying to convince them otherwise.

In 1989, city police officers made 186 arrests for liquor-law violations, and minors in possession of alcohol accounted for the majority of those offenses.

"We have a problem with teenagers drinking," said Capt. Richard Faulkner.

But the kids are getting the booze from somewhere, and that is the root of the problem.

"We have stores in Novi selling to minors," Faulkner said. "We have cited three establishments since October."

The police, however, would not release the names of these establishments until depositions are completed.

Another pipeline of alcohol to the under-aged is people who purchase the beverages for them.

"There are young adults who hang around in party-store parking lots and charge minors to buy them booze," the captain explained.

He said the store owners should stop selling to someone who repeatedly buys alcohol on a particular night.

"As a responsible licensee, they have to continually monitor who is buying alcohol in their store," the captain said.

Bar employees also need to check everyone's identification.

"What kids will do is have one of age person go up to the bar and ask for a pitcher with five glasses, but it is the waitress's responsibility to check all five IDs," Faulkner said.

If a server does not check IDs, he or she can be cited for selling to minors.

Faulkner said the battle against sales to minor needs to be fought on three fronts.

"We will ticket the minors, the person who bought it for them, and the establishment they bought it from," the captain said.

If a business is cited for selling to minors three times, its liquor license can be revoked, according to Faulkner.

A minor found in possession of alcohol can be fined up to $25 for the first offense and/or required to do some form of community service. The second time, the fine rises up to $50, and the third time, up to $100.

Furnishing a minor with alcohol or a driver's license is a misdemeanor and can result in the suspension of that license. Furthermore, any vehicle used in the purchase of alcohol for a minor may be impounded, even if the vehicle is from out of state. The owner must then convince the court why the car is a necessity before it is returned.

Parents also need to provide police reinforcement in the battle against under-aged drinking, Faulkner said.

Officers rely heavily on tips to identify which establishments are selling to minors.

Faulkner said when a teen-ager comes home drunk, the parents should question their youngster about how he or she obtained the alcohol and alert the police to the particular store.

"Parents have to be responsible and find out where their kids are buying alcohol and report their findings to us," he said.

The Novi Police Department also offers classes in how to avoid liquor-law violations to area party stores and taverns as a proactive approach to the teenage drinking problem.

Officers also talk to middle and high school students to educate them on alcohol-related laws.

Heat put on drinking drivers

By SHEILA PHILLIPS

NOVI — The Novi Police Department is sending out a message: don't drink and drive.

And especially not in Novi, because local officers are waging war against drunken drivers.

In 1989, police officers arrested 317 people for driving under the influence of alcohol — an increase of 456 percent over the last 5 years.

In the last two months, Novi officers have arrested over 64 people for drunken driving.

"We are averaging over one arrest a day," said Capt. Richard Faulkner. "People are getting stopped for drunk driving all the time."

"You hear about it in on TV; you read about it in the newspapers — still, people just don't think it will happen to them."

But the reality is that it can.

It can take as little as one to two drinks an hour to be legally intoxicated, according to police figures.

"People just don't think about the consequences," Faulkner said. "The reality is that they can have their licenses suspended, taken away or worse."

The first time someone is convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol, it is a misdemeanor punishable with up to 90 days in jail and/or a fine of $100 to $500. The person's driver's license is also suspended for at least six months but not more than two years.

The second conviction within seven years can carry a jail sentence of up to one year and/or a fine of up to $1,000. The person's license is also revoked.

The third time in 10 years, the person is guilty of a felony and could spend up to four years in prison.

Anyone pulled over for suspected drunken driving can expect to be given a sobriety test on the spot.

"If an officer detects the odor of alcohol or if the person has been driving erratically, he or she will be asked to get out of the car and walk heel-to-toe and to raise one leg at a time," Faulkner said.

"We are averaging over one arrest a day. People are getting stopped for drunk driving all the time."

— Richard Faulkner, Captain, Novi Police Department

"The individual will also be asked to take a preliminary breath test and if their blood alcohol content is over .10, they are arrested, their car is towed away and their rights will be explained," he continued.

The individual will be taken down to the booking room and asked to take a Breathalyzer test. If the person refuses, their license will be suspended and they will have to appear at a separate hearing before the state department, according to Faulkner.

The person will still face drunken-driving charges and even if found innocent, their license may still be suspended.

"Our society clearly has a drinking problem," Faulkner said. "But the question is, what do we do about it?"

He said the police department is engaged in a proactive battle against drunk driving — holding information sessions in the middle and high schools.

Nevertheless, drunken driving is still on the rise in Novi.

More officers on the road making arrests and population increases were two reasons cited. But an increase in the number of establishments serving alcohol is probably the biggest reason, according to the captain.

Prior to 1970, the City of Novi only had 10 liquor licenses, but 15 more were added during the '70s and 21 were added in the '80s.

"There are more people out there to drink and more places for them to drink at," Faulkner said.

Fowlerville woman charged with Novi bank robbery

By SHEILA PHILLIPS

A 40-year-old Fowlerville woman has been charged with the Oct. 5 robbery of the Comerica Bank on Novi Road.

Patricia Anne Kozdron was arraigned in 52nd District Court on March 12 for the Novi robbery, in which $2,100 cash was reported stolen.

Police said that a woman approached a Comerica teller at 10:30 a.m. the day of the robbery. She handed the teller a black clutch purse and asked her to fill it with money.

"The teller told us that the woman asked her to fill up the bag and not be stingy," Novi Det. Jack Grubb said.

The suspect did not have a gun at the time of the robbery nor did she indicate that she had a gun, according to Novi police.

Witnesses told police that the suspect was a middle-aged woman wearing a light brown wig and sunglasses.

A woman matching that description was apprehended by Meridian Township Police on Feb. 20 after a high-speed chase on I-96 west of Fowlerville.

The Meridian police were responding to a 10:26 a.m. report of a bank robbery at the Capitol Federal Bank in Okemos, when they spotted a vehicle matching the description of a car reported to be involved in a string of bank robberies in the area.

Meridian Det. Robert Olko spotted the gray Pontiac Phoenix hatchback on Okemos Road six minutes after the reported robbery. He engaged in a high-speed chase down I-96 and called for back-up.

Kozdron was apprehended after crashing into the back of a police car which was blocking her path, according to Olko.

She was in possession of $3,900 at the time of arrest — the exact amount taken from the Capitol Federal Bank, Meridian police said.

A light brown wig and a stolen license plate were also in the car. The plate, reported stolen from Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi the day of the Comerica robbery, was found in the trunk.

Kozdron has been charged with a total of five bank robberies. In addition to the Novi robbery, Kozdron was arraigned in Mason District Court for the Nov. 30 robbery of a Republic Bank and the Feb. 20 Capitol Federal robbery.

She has also been arraigned in Lansing District Court for an Oct. 27 robbery of a Michigan National Bank and a Feb. 6 robbery of a Manufacturers Bank in Lansing.

Olko could not assign a dollar amount to the string of robberies but said that over $1,000 was taken in each incident.

Olko said that a gun was not used in any of the crimes, nor was the threat of a gun.

Kozdron is currently in the State Forensics Center in Ypsilanti to determine whether she is competent to stand trial. Bail has been set at $100,000 for the Feb. 20 Meridian Township robbery charge, $50,000 for the Novi robbery charge and $10,000 each for the other three charges.

financial stresses of having a diabetic child.

Children's Hospital encourage families in the Northville/Novi area with children and adolescents who have diabetes requiring insulin to attend the April 25 clinic. It will be held at the Children's Hospital of Detroit.

Children are seen by appointment only. Appointments can be made by contacting the master of Northville Masonic Lodge 186 or William R.

Park visitors can view maple syrup process

A heaping stack of pancakes, dripping with butter and maple syrup, is often considered to be a great winter's breakfast, but in reality, nothing tastes better any day of the year, especially if that maple syrup is home-grown.

At Kensington Metropark's Farm Center, visitors can get a firsthand look at the maple sugar/syrup process from tapping the tree to boiling the sap down.

Hordes of children, parents and teachers visit the farm every spring to watch this process, hear an explanation of how it's done and maybe even sample the results.

Dave Moilanen, farm manager, and his assistant, Debbie Cavallero, have great fun with the student groups who tour, even to the extent of squeezing a drop of syrup on each child's finger so they can see how good it tastes.

The Farm Center has an abundance of maple trees, just right for producing a lots of sap for sugaring.

The history of maple sugaring goes back to the American Indians who are credited with the discovery of creating sugar from the sap of the maple tree. As Moilanen and Cavallero tell their young visitors, "Each March, when the first crows were seen, the Indians would go to their sugar camps for the season."

"Gashes were cut into the maple trees and the sap collected in bark containers," Moilanen continued. "Sugar and syrup were made by dropping rocks that had been heated in a fire into the sap until it boiled down."

Today, the boiling-down process is much simpler, because the stove in the Sugar Shack at Kensington and the long trays for syrup are standard equipment. No camp needs to be set up and no big fires constantly stoked.

When Europeans settled North America, maple sugar and syrup were an important part of Indian life and diet. Settlers soon acquired a taste for the sweetener and learned the process from the Indians.

Kettles were placed on a fire and kept filled with sap, yielding a dark, inferior syrup.

"As the sweetener became an important commodity, improvements were made in the process," Moilanen explained.

Three kettles were used to improve the quality of the syrup by decreasing the amount of time any one batch

"Today, the basic process hasn't changed from that used in the past."

— Dave Moilanen, manager, Kensington Metropark Farm Center was boiled, the Farm Center manager said. Soon after this pans were developed to replace the kettles.

Collecting the sap by cutting gashes in the trees, as was done in the old days, badly damaged and soon killed the trees, wasting the valuable sap.

Drilling holes and putting in carved wooden "spiles" (such as a staghorn sumac) proved less damaging and more efficient.

"Today, the basic process hasn't changed from that used in the past," Moilanen said. "Each March the maple trees are still tapped, spiles are inserted and the sap is collected."

"Then, it is boiled down into syrup or sugar."

However, commercial operations use evaporators to boil the sap faster, and tubing is used to pipe sap from plastic or metal spiles to a collecting tank.

According to Moilanen, sugar and black maples are the trees of the best commercial "sugar bush." Many other species of trees can be used, but the resulting syrup is usually of inferior quality.

"The sap begins to run when an extended period of freezing temperatures is followed by a period of warm weather," the farm manager noted.

This usually occurs in early February or March in Lower Michigan.

The highest quality, and yield, of sap occurs when freezing nights are followed by days above 32 degrees. This is the time to tap.

"When tapping, select only the healthy trees greater than 10 inches in diameter," Moilanen recommended. "The number of taps that can safely be made in a single tree are: a tree of less than 10 inches, no taps; a tree of 10-14 inches, one tap; a tree of 15-19 inches, two taps; a tree of 20-24 inches, three taps; and 25 inches or more, four taps.

"Maple's Sweet Story" and a tour of the maple sugar activity is slated from noon to 4 p.m. this weekend at the Farm Center. During the week, arrangements for groups may be made in advance by calling Kensington Park at 1-800-47-PARKS and asking for the Farm Center.

Learning materials created by group

The League of Women Voters (LWV) of Livonia and the LWV of Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Nowi are developing college-level lecture materials for use by professors of urban planning as one approach to protecting groundwater resources. The project is part of the Groundwater Education in Michigan (GEM) program of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

"Groundwater is an integral part of the water resources that are so important to our area's overall quality of life," said Diane Rockall, project director. "It is important that we understand the impact that various human activities have on the quality of this resource. Our project will prepare three to five hours of college-level lecture material to distribute to professors of urban planning at the seven schools in Michigan offering postsecondary education programs in urban planning. The lecture material, entitled, 'Groundwater Contamination: A Michigan Perspective,' will stress the importance of groundwater quality considerations in professional planning curricula. Upon completion, the materials will also be made available to local planners through several planning organizations."

"The funding will augment our ongoing volunteer activities and enable us to become a more effective citizen education organization," said Gretchen Pugsley, president of the local chapter. "We hope our citizens will join with us in our groundwater protection efforts."

New initiatives by the League of Women Voters of Michigan to protect groundwater are supported by a three-year, $298,442 grant to the League of Women Voters Education Fund from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation in Battle Creek. The pass-through grant from LWVMI of $2,600 will support expenses associated with developing lecture materials to help focus citizen and policy maker attention on local groundwater concerns.

The Kellogg Foundation GEM program is a collaborative effort between the Foundation and Michigan State University's Institute of Water Research. The program seeks to increase public awareness and understanding of the groundwater resource and encourages action-oriented, community-based groundwater protection initiatives.

Expert commends school for autistic

Burger Center, Wayne County's beleaguered school for autistic children, received a boost recently from a nationally recognized expert on autism.

"I was really impressed by what I saw at Burger Center; I don't think shutting it is the answer," said Temple Grandin, a Colorado-based researcher and author, in an appearance before Burger Center parents and teachers.

Grandin is considered a particular expert on the disorder. As a child, she was diagnosed as autistic and completed most of her early schooling in special-education classes. As an adult, she has become a livestock consultant with a worldwide clientele, has written a book detailing her childhood experiences and has discussed autism on nationwide television talk shows.

Burger Center, in Garden City, was scheduled to close after this school year, but will stay open at least one more year. An agreement between the Garden City Schools and Wayne County Intermediate School District for $155,000 repairs to the aging building will preserve the center program through June 1991.

Burger Center's crumbling walls and roof, however, are only one issue clouding its future.

Center-based classes for autistic children are also in jeopardy because of a dispute among Burger Center parents. While some want the program to remain as it is, others favor a mainstreaming approach that would place their children in regular classrooms.

The best approach, Grandin said, is one that supplements center-based programs with some degree of mainstreaming.

"Younger children (at the center) do need contact with other younger children," Grandin said. "High-functioning older children can succeed outside the center, but they need a mentor — a teacher or employer who is willing to take the time necessary to help them reach their potential."

Mainstreaming, she said, should be done gradually.

Grandin's comments drew praise from parents who have been fighting to keep Burger Center open beyond the end of the 1990-91 school year.

"I think she underlined what we've been saying all along," said parent Debbie Hunt of Westland.

Autism is characterized by emotional withdrawal and a failure to communicate with other human beings. The disorder has only recently been recognized and is frequently misunderstood.

Current research cited by Grandin indicates autism is a brain disorder, linked to abnormal development in the cerebellum, rather than an emotional one.

"It's considered a brain immaturity," she said.

Research also indicated the disorder is passed genetically, perhaps with genes that also produce high intelligence.

"Einstein, for instance, exhibited many traits associated with autism," Grandin said.

Newer research, she added, indicates high- and low-functioning autism could actually be separate disorders.

Her own research has indicated techniques used in handling wild animals could also be successful in countering anti-social behavior in autistic children.

Our Opinions

Shared service vote addresses major issues

The discussion over library issues in the Northville community is winding to a close.

This Monday's public hearing, ostensibly on the new shared-services plan, may have been the last "official" hearing held before the May 1 township vote.

GOVERNMENT

In one sense the hearing, held by the Northville City Council, was misidentified. While it was advertised as a public hearing on the newly drawn up shared services plan, it turned out to be a chance for city residents to air their views on the Haller Complex proposal.

The hearing served its purpose, regardless of why people turned out. The issue of where Northville will build its next library, how much it will cost, and how it will be paid for, is one of the largest to hit the community in some time. There are few issues, other than school issues, that require the community to think as one unit — not as separate township and city residents. This is one of those issues, and it is one that is building to an enormous finish.

A key vote in that finish will take place this Monday, April 2 at Northville City Hall. City council members will vote on the proposed shared-services agreement with the township. It is the only vote that anyone in the city will have in the Haller proposal.

At first glance, the matter seems cut and dried. The new agreement is definitely fiscally in favor of city residents. The new agreement uses a straight "millage" formula. The township's millage provides more revenue. This makes sense based on their larger percentage of the population. They pay more now, and will in the future as their population increases.

From a city council perspective that looks promising. But the problem with the new shared-services agreement is its direct tie with the Haller Complex proposal. As much as it would be nice to divorce the two, a vote in favor of the new shared service agreement by the city council is, in effect, a vote in favor of the Haller Library/Community Center project.

Several city residents proposed a compromise to the city council. They asked the council to table the issue until after township residents vote on May 1. This compromise, while a nice thought, is impossible for all involved.

Township voters must be given accurate information for their May 1 vote. Part of that information must be whether city residents will be paying approximately 30 percent of the cost of the Haller building. While the ballot wording will not change should the city withdraw from the agreement, the tax bill presented to township voters in 1991 will. And township residents deserve to know exactly what that bill will be before casting their ballots on May 1.

If the city council votes in favor of the shared-services plan and township voters approve the Haller proposal — the city will be involved in the Haller project. There will be no pulling out after the fact — as township voters will have made their decision based on the city's participation.

If township residents vote down the Haller proposal, the proposed shared-services agreement is gone. The old agreement goes back into place until such time as a new one is again agreed upon.

The decision over the city's involvement now rests with the city council. There is no alternative but a yes or no vote on the shared-services agreement.

A yes vote guarantees the city's participation should the Haller proposal be approved. A no vote could separate township and city residents for some time to come. And the unfortunate part may be that no one is really sure about any of it yet.

City council members must swallow hard and come up with a vote on Monday, one way or another.

Ignoring census form will cost community

The message is clear — stand up and be counted.

In the next few days, citizens across the country will be receiving census forms in the mail. Your participation can mean a real difference in terms of the dollars the Northville community will receive from the state. The difference can affect the community's revenue for the 10 years.

In Northville city, each person is worth an estimated $78.64 to the city in terms of state-returned revenue for income tax, sales tax, and single-business taxes. These revenues will go into the city's general fund and can be used for just about anything by the city.

The city receives an additional $81 per person from gas and weight tax revenues each year, which are dedicated to the improvement of major and local streets in the community.

In the township, each person represents $52.92 in state-returned revenue for income tax, sales tax, and single-business taxes. The figure is lower than in the city because the amount of the revenue is based on the township's millage as compared to the average millage of cities and townships across the state. The low size of the number is a reflection of the township's low millage rate in comparison to the state average.

Northville Township receives its gas and weight tax revenue by a more circuitous route. The money goes directly to the county, which is responsible for maintaining the township's roads.

So the message, though complicated, is clear. Every person who fills out the census is contributing to the upkeep of their community — in terms of increased police and fire protection, public improvements and road repairs. This is one time when the average person can make a difference.

A good trend

By Ann Willis

We ran a story last week about a challenge issued by Borders Book Shop to children in the area. The idea was to get the kids to give up TV for a week, with the thought that they would read more instead.

Jan Jeffres interviewed some children who met the challenge, and who didn't find the sacrifice all that hard.

As a bit of a TV junkie myself, I feel a little bit guilty about the whole thing.

Feeling guilty for watching TV is not a new emotion for me. It seems like ever since I became old enough to socialize with trendy people wearing grown-up clothes I've been apologizing for knowing all the words to the "Love Boat" theme song.

When I was in college and working in the dorm cafeteria, the pot-scubber team on which I proudly served was rather well-known for our stirring renditions of such popular theme tunes as "Green Acres," "The Beverly Hillbillies" and that all-time classic, "Gilligan's Island."

TV was a unifying cultural identity for my generation. While my parents' generation had the big-band sound and Frank Sinatra hits to hum to as a group, my peer group related to TV.

Then they pulled the rug out from under us. Somebody decided that TV and its rather mindless hour after hour of sitcoms was not socially acceptable. People looked down their noses at you at parties if you dared to bring up what happened on Dallas. "I really don't watch TV at all," was the popular mantra.

Well, a lot of us went underground with our addiction. Don't get me wrong — books, magazines and obviously newspapers play a very big role in my life. But I have been known to while away the time while watching some of TV's trashiest moments. I'm not proud of it — but I am resigned to it.

But one thing the new-found sense of order has done is put TV in its place. It shouldn't be the first thing we turn to when we're looking for something to do. The children who gave up TV for a week found the time was easily filled with books, games, music lessons, sports and just using their imaginations in good-old-fashioned play.

A lot of us adults could learn a lesson from that. As a person who makes her living writing, or at least pushing the written word off on people, I am thrilled there is a movement afoot to return to books and the gentle art of reading.

A couple of Sundays ago I stopped in at Borders Books in the Town Center and was pleased to see something that I normally hate to run into when I'm shopping. Crowds of people.

What a wonderful turn of events. This may be a trend I can get into.

Count me in

By Bob Needham

We're told that, just like paying taxes and voting, it's our civic duty to answer the U.S. Census. (Actually, the government sends us the message that sending in that form is even more important than voting: it's illegal not to answer the census.)

I have every intention of answering the census. I want to do my civic duty. I want to be sure my city gets all the state-shared revenue that's due to it. I don't want to be convicted of a misdemeanor.

But wait a minute. Nobody told me it would be so hard!

When, along with countless other Americans, I pulled the census form out of the mailbox last Friday, I felt just a twinge of uneasiness at its size. A visit to my parents' house confirmed my suspicions: I was one of the randomly chosen, one-in-six people who get to answer the long census form.

The Census Bureau is telling people that the long form includes 30-some questions and should take about 45 minutes to fill out. I don't know about the time estimate; I've been to scared to tackle it. But I do know that the announced number of questions is a cheap ploy. The questions end at number 33, all right, but they're interspersed with extra questions which have an "H" in front of them and a whole new series of numbers.

Plus, lots of the questions have all kinds of sub-questions. Like, you might not just have question 5; you might have question 5a through 5f. And a lot of the questions have to be answered separately for each person in the home; it's a good thing I don't have to count my cats. (Do I?)

In short, this thing makes my 1040 form look truly EZ. (As a matter of fact, there are eight income questions on my census form. Can't they just call up the IRS?)

Don't worry, I'm going to fill in all the blanks. I'll send it back in time. I'm not, however, going to enjoy it.

I just don't know about this census stuff. It seems like the bureau might not get the rate of return they want with the approach they're taking: telling people they should answer the form. I haven't even started mine yet, and already the civic-duty argument is wearing pretty thin. So answer the census. You won't get arrested.

Readers speak

Library site suggested by reader

To the Editor:

It has been with amazement that I read the last crop of letters opposing the new Haller Library. The arguments against it have ranged from the site, the expense and most of all the speed at which it is being done. The latter is especially amusing since most citizens complain that governments move too slowly at best!

In a more serious vein, though, I would like to take issue with the one letter that cited the former Ford plant as a possible new location. I, too, thought it to be ideal; close to the downtown area, a big building, pretty site, etc. It is only by doing a little homework however that serious shortcomings become apparent; the per-square-foot cost of refurbishing the building is very close (within $1 to $2) to building a new one fully compatible to 21st-century needs; the very strong probability of asbestos contamination within the old building and the contamination of soil on the exterior; the inadequacy of parking, plus the high cost of buying the property. It isn't as though Ford has offered to give it to us.

The location of the proposed Haller Library looks, at first glance, to be totally out of whack of where our community's population is centered. But the sale of the Wayne County Training School and its subsequent development, along with the development of other vacant land in the township, will cause our community's population center to shift to the area of the new library. As for being too far from downtown, how about the use of the wonderful "Victory" trolley or some sort of shuttle between the two areas?

This new library and community cultural center present a wonderful opportunity for Northville City and Township to grow in a positive way into the next century. Check out the facts and I am sure you'll agree.

Robin Polletta

No to Haller

To the Editor:

"Library Backers Present Weak Platform"

The Northville Citizens for a New Library" committee recently distributed an information flyer throughout the Northville community. Please take the time to read it. If you do, you will probably come to the conclusion that we do not need a 45,000-square-foot multi-use building on the corner of Six Mile and Sheldon roads.

We in the township currently pay taxes to maintain library services in Wayne County, which include Plymouth and Northville. I personally have found these services to be more than adequate.

Information in the flyer would lead people to believe that the new plush offices (and library) for township officials would cost the homeowner with a $120,000 SEV $114 per year for 15 years for a total of $1,710. We know that $1,710 is just the tip of the iceberg. When is the last time your SEV remained the same for two successive years? It's amusing that many of the new library backers are the same people who opposed a state prison on township land because that action would remove the land from township tax rolls. Can we now afford to remove 72 acres of land for a multi-use building?

Most citizens are fighting to reduce excessive taxes, but it appears that a majority of elected officials in Northville Township are supporting yet another proposition to escalate tax bills.

Ray Kugler

Editor's Note: Current plans for the Haller Building do not show offices designated for township officials. Meeting rooms, conference room, art display area, atrium, auditorium, Friends of the Library office, seniors room and Haller museum are shown on the floor plan in addition to the library facilities.

Library worth it

To the Editor:

In the discussion about the Haller Library I wonder if we haven't lost sight of what a wonderful opportunity this is for our community and our children.

The land is valued at close to three million dollars, and if the vote on May 1 succeeds, we will be able to share this resource into (and present) opportunities that we can take pride in both in this generation and the next.

I realize that the library represents a sacrifice from all residents. Aren't we and our children worth it? What more important gift can we offer to others than a place where the heritage, beauty and truth of past generations provides guidance for our current generation and is given to the next?

I hope citizens of the city and township can share a common vision of how this resource can enrich all of our lives.

Please don't miss the chance to vote for our future.

Jim Petrie

More opposition

To the Editor:

From the newspaper accounts, one might gain the impression that the replacement of the Northville Public Library by the proposed Haller project is a foregone conclusion. It is not, and opposition to the proposal is growing as residents realize that the Haller project is not in the best interests of our community.

The issue is not whether a replacement library is needed. There is little disagreement that our needs do exceed what the present facility can meet. Rather, the issue is whether the replacement library should be located far outside the city, as the Haller project would have it. There are several reasons why it should not.

First, moving the library outside the city would seriously detract from Northville's quality of civic life. One of our community's greatest virtues is its preservation of viable small-town life, as seen in our pleasant neighborhoods, healthy business district, local churches and schools, and centrally located city services, including the Northville Public Library. This quality of life, however, did not just come about spontaneously. It has resulted from all these elements coming together to create the civic life we now enjoy. Many residents chose to live in this community because of the perception that Northville has a civic identity, unlike so many of the sprawling suburbs of the metropolitan area. The loss of our city's public library would not only diminish the neighborhood in which it might have stayed, but would be a serious blow to the common civic life which is so important to Northville's charm and to the lives of its citizens.

Second, moving the library would create an incredible inconvenience for most of Northville's residents. A new downtown library would remain easily accessible for most residents through walking or riding their bicycles. This both encourages use of the facility, as well as enhances community life. It makes little sense to move unnecessarily an established neighborhood library out of the city onto a high-volume traffic corridor (Sheldon Road) where children and their families can no longer go safely, let alone conveniently, unless they are driven.

Third, moving the library outside the city would undermine the economic health of Northville. The civic life referred to above is no mere sentimentality. It depends on a vital economic life. What kind of message would the Haller proposal send to our existing and prospective downtown merchants? It would appear (and might be the case) that our community has no real commitment to supporting city retailers and residential projects. A library outside the city would do nothing to attract downtown investment, and in fact would have the opposite effect, causing a further dispersion of city and commercial services. Our merchants, as much as we their customers, need our city's vote of confidence by maintaining a city library as part of Northville's commitment to a viable downtown and healthy local economy.

Before the Haller proposal is accepted as inevitable, it is important that Northville residents consider the larger ramifications of the plan. There are feasible alternatives that would retain a new, expanded library within the city, accruing all of the advantages therefrom, enhancing our civic identity, quality of life, and business climate. Northville citizens deserve to know exactly where their city officials stand on these matters. Citizen groups, merchants associations, the Chamber of Commerce, library patrons, and other concerned residents must voice their opinions before no choice remains.

Father can affect child's self-esteem

This is another in a continuing series of columns by Northville Youth Assistance Director Mary Ellen King.

Increasingly, I see fathers who are over-involved in their professional careers and who do not take time to be with their children. A dad recently told me, in the presence of his wife and daughter, that his number one priority was his job. His second priority was his family. As he was speaking, his daughter cried, yet he did not change his statement. Situations like this one, where a father is over-involved at work and the family lacks his attention, often leads to diminished self-esteem in children.

Joseph Fischhoff, M.D., head of psychiatry at Children's Hospital of Michigan, says that early in a toddler's life, a father can have a strong impact on a child's self-esteem by playing with his child. Physical activities are especially beneficial. By engaging in physical play, a father can help the child feel comfortable with his or her body. Wrestling and other playful jostling can develop a child's confidence in their physical strength. A father's involvement can add another dimension to a child's development and may help build self-esteem.

A child's self-esteem can be built by other activities with the father. A child's self-worth grows as the father spends time with the child. A dad's involvement with his child indicates that the child is important to him. The child feels worthy of his time. The type of activity is not particularly important, but it is important that the child sees that his father is interested in him or her. The father who chooses to spend time with his child makes the child feel valued. This develops a child's self confidence.

When I recently attended an evening seminar for parents on building a child's self-esteem, I noticed that about 75 percent of those in the audience were women. More dads need to take an active role in parenting. It is common for dads to get involved when the child misbehaves or when there is a crisis in the child's life, but it would be very helpful if more dads provided support, encouragement and nurturing in their children's lives.

A Northville miller

By Barbara Louie

Barbara Louie is the local history librarian at the Novi Public Library. She is currently working on two books of history — one on Novi, the other on Northville. Her columns about the history of Northville will appear occasionally on the pages of the Northville Record.

In the early 1820s, a man by the name of John Miller traveled to Michigan, settling in what would later become Northville. A miller both by name and trade, he constructed one of the first gristmills in the territory. With only two other mills reportedly in existence in the general area at the time, Miller's stone mill served a much-needed purpose for residents of western Wayne County.

Previous to the establishment of this mill, area farmers had to travel to Ann Arbor or Pontiac to have their corn or wheat ground into flour.

John Miller began his gristmill sometime between 1825-1828, according to various accounts. Located on the site of what is now Mill Race Historical Village, Plymouth Township's first mill was built by neighboring hands, all helping to construct both the building and the dam for the raceway in what was known as a "building bee."

Using a large boulder found a short distance from the site, Miller, along with Israel Nash, a millwright, was able to make up his own burr stones to be used as grinding wheels.

Built cheaply, with the machinery made largely of wood, the mill was not as modern as it might have been, but it was efficient and practical.

John Miller's mill was a rotary mill, which made use of the rubbing action of the two circular burr stones as the basic principle in grinding the grain.

Miller was a man of firsts: besides building the first gristmill in Plymouth Township, he was among the earliest to settle in this remote land. He also built the first house in the slowly-developing area. It was a small log cabin and stood on the property near where the mill would soon be built.

This first modest little house and its accompanying mill became the major force in creating the tiny town of Northville. From its beginnings in the 1820s, the mill was eventually purchased by Captain William Dunlap who tore it down in 1847, building a more imposing structure known for many years as the Northville Milling Company, or simply, Northville Mills. By 1889, this company was capable of grinding 1,000 bushels of grain per day.

Changing technology gradually meant doom for many of the old mills. A new process of grinding wheat was developed in the mid-19th century. By placing the two millstones farther apart, the grain could now be cracked rather than crushed, resulting in a higher quality white flour. By the late 1800s, metal rollers replaced millstones in many American mills.

In 1890, the Northville Mills was purchased by the Yerkes brothers who were able to keep up with the changing technology somewhat, by making use of this new, improved process.

However, with automation taking over in the early 1900s which produced flour even more efficiently and of a better, more consistent quality, the old days of the gristmill and the millrace were definitely numbered.

Today, nothing remains of Miller's stone gristmill, or the larger Northville Mills, but the pond is there, as is the millrace and a lone, worn millstone.

In memory of these bygone days stands the charming, Victorian-style outdoor museum known as Mill Race Historical Village, located on the very site that Miller settled over 100 years ago.

Pen pals

New design offered in dog pens

By MARILYN HERALD

Playpens for infants are fairly standard equipment in the homes of most young parents, even many grandparents, but "playpens" for dogs are quite new on the local scene. Yes, dog owners have had pet carriers and pens to confine their dogs on various occasions, but few are as fancy or attractive as the ones Ursula Sass of Lyon Township now markets.

Fanfair Enterprises, maker of this new concept in the dog industry, offers pens in four different heights — 24 inches, 30 inches, 36 inches and 45 inches — to accommodate all breeds of dogs, according to Sass.

"With the availability of these new pens, there is no reason to walk or tie a dog," Sass added.

What makes these pens different from the usual standard variety is that they are constructed of 24-inch-wide panels and made of one-inch PVC plastic (plastic pipe often used for plumbing).

"They are really attractive because the panels come in three decorative colors — all white, grey and white, and mauve and white," Sass said.

"You can purchase two colors of decorative sunscreen to match. These sunscreens absorb about 85 percent of the sun's rays so your dog can be left outside in one of these pens.

"For your escape-artist dog, the panels can be put on top to completely enclose the dog. These pens have no crossbars so the dogs cannot climb out, which is another unique feature."

The pens are lightweight. The panels swivel at the hinges and fold like an accordion for easy transport, Sass added. She said they are also guaranteed against chewing and can be hosed off for easy cleaning.

"These pens can be used in campgrounds, rest areas, recreational parks, condominiums and most everywhere," Sass said. "They are great for keeping your pet confined either inside the house or outside."

The pens start at $121.50 for a 24-inch, 4-foot by 4-foot square, and panels can be added to make different pens. Sass and Fanfair Enterprises of fans accessories which allow the pen to be expanded, subdivided, anchored, stacked and covered.

In addition to the dog playpens, Sass sells "Rover Closers" which are portable gates for the home. They come in the same heights and colors as the pens and can be used to keep canine pets from wandering outside their limits in the house.

Sass will have a booth displaying Fanfair Enterprise items at the Livonia Fennel Club Show at the University of Michigan Fieldhouse in Dearborn on Sunday April 8. This all-breed show runs from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sass will also be at the Saginaw Valley Kennel Club show from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 7. The all-breed show will be held at the Saginaw Civic Center.

Wills provide for family futures

Death can strike anyone at any time — and if it strikes before you've written a will, the state may very well take control of your assets and decide the fate of your family.

Your child could end up being raised by a family member you distrust, a spouse could be saddled with exorbitant fees and taxes, and if the surviving spouse remarries, somebody else — or somebody else's children — could eventually inherit your assets.

If you want to control what happens to your family, your home, and your assets after your death, the Michigan Association of CPAs advises you to stop procrastinating and write a will.

For instance, a will enables you to name a guardian for your children. This may be the most crucial element in your will. When making this decision, ask yourself who would be able and willing to raise your children with values similar to yours if both you and your spouse died in an accident. Make sure that you also specify "successor guardians" in case the designated guardians cannot accept the responsibility.

The next critical decision you need to make is who should serve as the executor of your estate. As overseer of your estate, he or she will face arduous and time-consuming tasks. Executors have to inventory all your assets, collect all money owed you, liquidate assets, notify insurance companies and collect the proceeds, pay outstanding debts, arrange for your immediate family's living expenses, prepare and file all tax returns, and distribute your estate.

If your executor has no financial expertise, you may want to select a second party, perhaps your CPA, to serve as co-executor with a family member.

Next, take an inventory of your assets and decide exactly how you want them distributed. Try to think in percentages rather than dollar amounts. Consider, too, the implications of each provision of your will as well as the circumstances and resources of each beneficiary.

For example, do you want to divide your assets equally between your two daughters if one of them has five children and the other has none? Should a financially irresponsible son have full access to his inheritance as early as age 18 or should you use a trust to distribute his share of your estate in small amounts over his lifetime?

Another question you need to ask is how old and self-sufficient are your children? If they are succeeding financially, you may want to leave a greater portion of your estate to your spouse.

In addition, you should consider incorporating a trust or other safeguards into your will to protect your children from the possible consequences of a spouse's remarriage.

Besides insuring that your estate is distributed according to your wishes, a will can also reduce the financial burden placed on your heirs.

For example, the administrator of your will is required to post a performance bond to protect your estate from fraud, embezzlement or negligence. Bond fee premiums cost about $5 per $1,000 of the estate's gross value and are payable annually until probate is completed — which ranges from a few months to several years. The bond is meant to protect your estate, but may be unnecessary if the executor is a trusted friend or family member. If you wish, your will can waive this bond requirement in certain jurisdictions.

Tax claims on an estate can also be substantial. Since state laws vary, ask a CPA to review your state's laws on estate and inheritance taxes. Under the federal estate tax law, you do have a degree of protection. If the gross estate, plus the value of certain lifetime taxable gifts, is under $600,000 filing a federal estate tax return is not required.

However, if estate assets plus the value of certain lifetime taxable gifts exceed $600,000 after deducting administrative and executor's fees, funeral expenses and outstanding debts, the federal estate tax rate kicks in at 18 percent and goes as high as 55 percent for estates over $5 million.

There is one major exception to this rule. Under the unlimited marital deduction, you can leave your entire estate to your spouse without incurring federal gift or estate tax — regardless of your estate's worth. But when the surviving spouse dies, tax will be charged against your combined estates, thus placing a potentially tremendous tax load on the second estate.

If your estate is substantially higher than $600,000, you can minimize the tax burden on the estate by dividing your assets between your spouse and a credit-shelter or bypass trust, which can provide your spouse and children income for life and enable you to take full advantage of the unified tax credit.

Another option is to divide assets equally between you and your spouse prior to death. Or you can make tax-exempt gifts of up to $10,000 annually per recipient (or $20,000 with your spouse's consent) without incurring a gift tax.

In addition, these amounts will not be added to your estate upon your death. Keep in mind that educational or nursing home bills may also be deemed gifts if you pay the bills directly.

Once you draw up a will, be sure to keep it up to date. Revise a will after a marriage or divorce, when you have a child or when tax laws change.

New map of county offered

Detroit Edison and Oakland County have just made it easier to find the perfect business location.

A new, improved and colorful map of the county showing all industrial and research parks — the only central listing of all the county's industrial and research parks — is now available.

The new map will be distributed to developers, Realtors, local governments and economic development professionals who have an interest in doing business in Oakland County.

For more information about obtaining a business in Oakland County or to receive a copy of the industrial and research parks map call Detroit Edison at (313) 645-4293 or the Oakland County Department of Community and Economic Development at (313) 858-0732.

Beware of scam to get rich quick

The Detroit Better Business Bureau advises consumers to exercise caution when considering responding to advertisements that offer an opportunity to earn extra income by doing work at home, especially those that promise large profits in a short period of time.

One scheme which continues to generate numerous inquiries to the bureau is "Enveloping Stuffing."

Typically, the scheme operates in the following manner: A company or individual places an advertisement in a newspaper or magazine which claims a person can earn extra income at home by stuffing envelopes.

When an interested person responds to the advertisement, they usually receive a mailing which makes another pitch for the program. The mailing also states that a deposit or application fee ranging from $15 to $50 is required.

What a person is likely to receive for their money, however, is instructions for placing the same advertisement to which they initially responded.

As part of its traditional commitment to promoting honesty in the marketplace, the Better Business Bureau suggests that consumers thoroughly investigate a company's reliability prior to making any type of commitment. You may reach the bureau by contacting 962-7566 or by writing BBB, 150 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, MI 48226.

Hamburg pair splits up work to create pots

By Phyllis Stillman

When Al and Hatzi Smith of Hamburg Township make their pots, they divide up what is a time-consuming process.

First, liquid mud, called slip, is pumped into molds, made of plaster of paris which absorbs the water. Hatzi and Al have more than 3,000 molds, some of which are collector's items over 40 years old.

"We use molds from a company in Texas and they have European designers for their pieces; so they're unique," Hatzi said. The slip stays in the molds for about six hours, while more moisture is drawn out. Then the piece is removed.

"At this stage this is just wet mud, same as the mud on your shoes when you come in from the driveway or from the yard. It has a few chemicals added to it, but basically it's just dried mud," explained Al.

After being removed from the mold, the piece is allowed to dry for about three or four days. At this point, the piece is called greenware and is still quite fragile. It is basically just dried mud. Al and Hatzi remove the seam lines with a scraping tool. Then they gently sand to remove imperfections.

Then Hatzi takes over. The piece is fired in an electric kiln. The process takes about 24 hours — eight hours to get the kiln up to the right temperature (about 1,875 degrees Fahrenheit for most pieces), eight hours to come back down and eight hours for the piece to cool. When it emerges from the kiln, it is called bisque.

Colored glazes are then applied to the bisque and the pot is fired again, giving the piece its final appearance. Hatzi is the expert on glaze. Glaze, which looks like paint, is actually glass.

"When you put it in the kiln, the glaze melts and makes a coat of glass on your piece which is fired right into the bisque so it won't ever peel off," explained Hatzi.

The glazes are not the color they will be after the pot is fired. "I used to tell the students, 'Trust me, it will be green.' I always thought, one of these days a manufacturer is going to put the wrong label on a jar and I'll be saying, 'Trust me, it will be green,' and it won't be green."

Part of the obsession with ceramics may stem from the fact that you never know what you're going to find when you open up the kiln.

"Every piece comes out differently. I've got all my certification and I'm supposed to know it all," Hatzi said. "I kept asking why I did two different pieces and I did them both the same and one turned out different than the other. All I'd get was 'ceramics is not an exact science.'"

Retirees obsessed with ceramics

By Phyllis Stillman

Retirement means different things to different people. To some, it means time to travel. To others, it means time to relax and get away from the rat race.

To Hatzi and Al Smith of Hamburg Township, retirement means time to pursue an obsession — custom designing and glazing ceramics.

"We're not really a business, but we are. This is a hobby and it happens that some people like to buy the stuff," explained Hatzi.

Because they are semi-retired, she and Al are able to take the time to experiment with different techniques and different finishes, creating unique ceramic pieces which they sell to interior decorators, gift shops and even J.C. Penney.

And they maintain high standards of quality. "He (Al) won't let anything out the backdoor unless it's right," Hatzi said.

It all started when Hatzi saw a sign in a store window advertising 40 percent off all ceramics. "When you see a sign for 40 percent off anything, you're going to go in and buy," Hatzi said. Then, after she had taken some classes and become more interested, she got her own equipment.

"He bought me a kiln and I was afraid of it. I did two little snowmen. I took those out of the kiln and they were still warm. And if I say it, it sounds real hokey, but it was almost like I gave birth," she said. And the seeds were sown.

"If you start into ceramics, you will never get out of it. It is addictive. There is no cure; there is no hope for you after you do the first piece."

The obsession eventually turned into a business for Hatzi, who operated Hatzi Craft in South Lyon, where she sold ceramics and taught classes for eight years. She enjoyed it and still likes to brag about her students, some of whom took their work to ceramic shows. "And one year, we had six (student) entries and came back with six ribbons," she said.

She also worked with students who wanted to set up their own businesses. "I taught them how to pour, how to fire, and they set up their own studios. I don't get any money for that, but I get a lot out of it," she said.

Hatzi said she is currently very excited about another project along those same lines. She and Al supply ceramics to an interior decorator from Iraq. When the decorator's family came from Iraq to visit, they saw the things Al and Hatzi were doing and decided they wanted to set up a similar business in Iraq.

Hatzi and Al have been researching what the family will need, trying to find distributors for them, and determine whether the family can get supplies in Iraq.

"They have no ceramic businesses in their country and working with them has been very interesting. I don't know how it's going to work, teaching someone through an interpreter, but it's exciting," Hatzi said.

Hatzi has had to overcome obstacles in her teaching before, and has found it very rewarding. "I've taught deaf people; of course, then you've got paper and pencil when things get technical."

She has also worked with the elderly. "I've taught the elderly in nurs-

Design for smaller families

By James McAlexander

The Rainbow 1 has a deceptive exterior that only hints at the interior size and unique design features.

The home is designed for the smaller family or singles.

The spacious garage features a built-in workbench and mechanical storage. It has its own door into the main entry/airlock.

The simple main entry leads into a hallway that serves to allow private access to both wings of the home. Temperature is controlled through the airlock concept.

The triangular den/guest room with large windows, closet and access to a full bath is to the right. To the left, a door gives access to an interior hallway that leads to the fully functional utility.

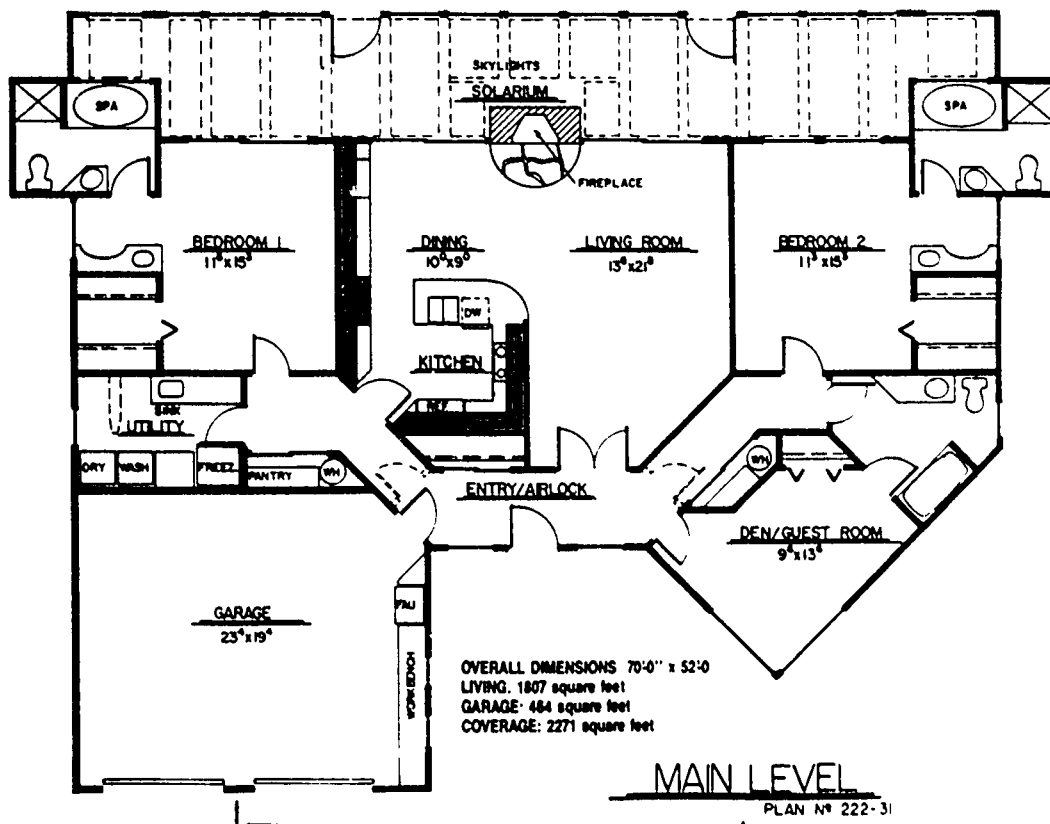

Just ahead from the main entry is the double-door entrance to the large "great" room. The living room space and dining area are featured here with a curved counter separating the kitchen.

At the upper of the great room is a fireplace with a half-circle hearth. Flanking the fireplace are sliding glass doors that give access to the striking solarium.

To the rear of the home, on both sides, are near mirror image bedrooms with private master baths. One bedroom has sliding glass doors leading out to the solarium, while the other has large windows overlooking it. The unique feature, plus the entry halls, makes it possible for two single people to share the Rainbow 1 with separate private space. The utility and great room area would be shared quarters.

For a study plan of the Rainbow (222-31), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Who's to blame for costly housing market?

By James M. Woodard

Are the actions of greedy home builders and developers a major reason for today's astronomical home prices?

Recent letters have expressed this concern and question. But housing industry leaders say this view is far off-target.

In fact, as costs and other pressures grow for home builders, more of them are inclined to leave the field entirely. This pulls down the number of new homes and forces up prices of individual homes.

The cost components of building a home—land, infrastructure improvements, developed lot costs, building materials, labor and financing—are going up, not down, according to Martin Perlman, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

He added that over the long term, if home prices are too low to cover the cost of raw land, development, construction, overhead, financing and normal profits, builders will stop building and prices will rise.

If home prices rise beyond the point necessary to provide normal profits after paying normal costs, then more builders will enter the market and the competition will bring prices back into line, Perlman reasoned.

Over time, housing has been a safe, steady and profitable investment. Over the last 20 years, the median price of new homes has increased at an overall rate that is greater than the Dow Jones average.

"The relative lack of volatility in home values and the effectiveness of home ownership as a hedge against inflation reflect the fact that acquiring shelter is the primary motivation for most homes purchased," Perlman said.

"People generally don't dump their homes, as they might stocks or bonds, in response to a shift in the market."

He also pointed out that there are considerable tax and leverage benefits to home ownership, which will contribute to price stability over the long term.

Although the long-term prospects for housing are excellent, several factors are making the outlook for the near future less than rosy, Perlman said.

"Mortgage interest rates, which we had predicted would drop, are increasing as we approach the spring selling season," he said. "The overall economy is sluggish and spotty. And consumers appear to be adopting a wait-and-see attitude."

"What had looked like a relatively flat year for housing about a month ago has now taken a turn for the worse. We're getting dangerously close to a housing recession."

Perhaps the single most important factor affecting the housing market at present is the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act (FIRREA), which restructured the thrift industry, Perlman said.

Its provisions are making it much more difficult for builders to secure financing for acquisition and development of land and construction (AD & C) loans for new home projects.

While seeking new sources of development financing, home builders (via NAHB) are also researching new building techniques and materials that could reduce new home construction costs.

The builders are also working with the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) to develop a new home financing plan for low- and moderate-income families. The program is called the Affordable Housing Initiative.

This relatively new concept—private industry working with government in a positive way—is now the most encouraging sign for families who want but cannot now afford a home of their own.

Q: Where can I obtain a complete list of current reverse mortgage programs?

A: Reverse mortgages are becoming increasingly popular with senior home owners over age 62. It's a method by which the senior can receive additional monthly tax-free income for the remainder of his life—or as long as the senior continues to own and reside in his home.

That is the most popular type of reverse mortgage. There are other types.

For a free list of reverse mortgage programs, send a business-size self-addressed, stamped envelope to: National Center for Home Equity Conversion, 1210 E. College Drive, Suite 300, Marshall, MN 56258.

The center also offers a "Financial Guide to Reverse Mortgages" for $35. Information on the subject can also be obtained from the American Association of Retired Persons.

Q: Is it difficult to buy investment real estate in Mexico?

In Mexico, there are still limitations of foreign investments. But the Mexican government is now making a real effort to promote more foreign investment and tourism.

A real estate law expert, Arthur O. Spaulding Jr., of Cox, Castle & Nicholson, clarified the current situation:

"Foreign ownership of real estate located in areas within 100 kilometers of the international boundaries of Mexico and within 50 kilometers of the Mexican coastline is still flatly prohibited," he said.

"However, a person or company may hold an interest in a trust and be entitled to the use and occupancy of property held by the trust in the restricted zone. The new regulations now make it possible for the current 30-year duration of the trust to be extended for at least an additional 10-year term, and perhaps multiple 30-year terms."

Prior Mexican law limited the duration of trusts to not more than 30 years, and at the end of that period the property was required to be conveyed by the trust to a Mexican citizen or a Mexican company, with the net proceeds at sale going to the foreign beneficiary.

The new regulations also make it possible for foreigners to own stock in corporations which own real estate in the restricted zone.

Retirees obsessed with hobby

ing homes, and of course some of them can't see very well. You'd be surprised how much they can do just by the feel. It made me feel good to be able to show these people.

"Some of them have never created anything, and they're just sitting there. What can they do now? And to give them just a clear, glazed vase, they held it like it was — and I felt like it was — some big work of art. Because they made it themselves," Hatzi said.

Back when Hatzi was operating the South Lyon shop, Al was on the road working as a consulting engineer all over the United States and in other countries, including Brazil, Mexico and Puerto Rico.

He was gone for long stretches of time, sometimes as long as six months at a time. Hatzi and the children (they have two sons and a daughter, all grown) had some unique opportunities to see other cultures when they visited him.

"That's where we were lucky.

When we travelled, we didn't go to the tourist spots. When he worked in Mexico, we got to meet the Mexican people," explained Hatzi.

"Mexico City I liked. Mexico City is like one huge art museum. Oh, those people are talented. Little bitty kids on the street corner, painting these pots. Talking and throwing a ball and painting these beautiful pots."

Another favorite was Puerto Rico. "They have a lake there. At night, wherever the water is disturbed it lights up like a fluorescent light. They don't know why. I think there's only one other lake in the world like this. This is something we found by accident, because he was working with these people and they mentioned it just in talking. He speaks Spanish, so he gets along good down there."

"They took us down there to this lake at night in a little old rowboat. You get into this little bay, and as the oars disturb this water, or if you throw something out, it lights up," Hatzi said.

Several years ago, Hatzi and Al decided to retire. "Working all those years, you get tired of smiling when you have a headache, or listening to people complaining when your feet hurt as much as theirs."

"I was at the shop 12 hours a day, and had the house to take care of and my dogs (two very cute and very spoiled Lhasa Apsos), and it just got to be much too much. If you're going to have your own business, you have to work at it or you're going to lose your shirt," said Hatzi.

But she didn't want to give up ceramics completely, so she and Al started looking for a studio, finally finding the home with its 100-year-old barn where they now live in Hamburg.

Then Al took over. "We bought this property. Then I came out about four months ahead of time to prepare the barn. Then we shut down the retail operation and came out here and started up in this custom-finish business," explained Al.

Al converted the barn into a studio. "It's over 100 years old, and if you look, the original timbers are all pegged; they're not nailed. I've put a few nails in that wood. That wood is oak. It's hard to drive a nail in that wood. That's when I realized why the original builder, that's over 100 years ago, used pegs and dowels. He'd burn a hole in the oak with a rod, and then he'd put a peg in it. I know now why."

There are stories that the barn is haunted. That doesn't bother Hatzi. "They (the spirits) don't stay here. They're down the road (in a 150-year-old stone house). But if they get upset with what's going on there, supposedly they come here. I don't mind. They're welcome here as long as they don't break the greenware (unfinished pottery)," she said.

Even without ghosts, Hatzi loves the barn. "I've always wanted an art barn and it took me a while but I got it."

Now, after spending so much time apart while Al was on the road, Hatzi and Al are together most of the time. "He putzes around here and I putz around and we're together 24 hours a day and believe it or not, things have been fantastic," she said.

Al and Hatzi like the pace that their new lifestyle offers. They have time to spend with their children and grandchildren who all live nearby.

Once the pottery is removed from the mold, the piece is allowed to dry for three to four days and is known as greenware.

Around the House Repairs

Hardwood floors may not so tough

By Gene Gary

Q: We are considering having a wooden floor installed in our kitchen, dining, day and recreation rooms. The continuous flow of wood in these areas would provide a beautiful look. However, we are worried about the durability and life of wood with three young children and inevitable pool drips, food spills, walker wheels and other child-caused abuse.

Would you recommend proceeding?—G.D.

A: Often, hardwood floor dealers will tell you that newer, commercial-grade flooring made of solid wood with protective coating in acrylic, urethane or polyurethane acryl up well enough for use in kitchen and bath areas. I disagree.

Most of these high-maintenance floorings are coated with wax. In kitchens and bathrooms particularly, prefinished (wax) floors don't hold up well because they require constant waxing.

On such a finish, spills leave a water spot on the floor and the consumer, trying to rub it up, wears through the wax, making the floor look shoddy.

If the water spots are not removed immediately by careful blotting, only a new coating of wax will remove the stain.

Unfinished flooring must be sanded and coated after it is laid down. These floorings can have any stain or finish applied after installation.

Coating with a quality polyurethane product, such as those used on the floors of gymnasts, will give you a more maintenance-free finish. You can now buy polyurethane in a satin finish. If you wish to avoid the shiny surface. Another advantage is that this finish is not prone to yellowing in the sun.

Several coats will give you a durable surface, but the hard finish will be subject to scratches. A rug is a must under furniture such as tables and chairs. Scuffing from children at play and heavy foot traffic can also be a problem.

From start to finish, the cost of the unfinished floor is generally more than a prefinished floor.

Q: Is there any way to clean a watercolor picture without smearing it? We have one, framed without glass. It is getting grimy from dust and dirt.—J.H.

A: Try the following: Take the center of a loaf of fresh white unsalted bread. Compress part of it into the size and shape of a golf ball. One loaf will make about three such balls. Then rub this over the watercolor surface.

Be sure to replace the ball with a new one as it becomes soiled. The bread picks up dirt effectively, but you'll wind up with bread crumbs all

Long days cause for a celebration

By Carol Cutler

We're almost over the hump. Though summer may not really arrive for almost a month, daylight-saving time begins at precisely 2 a.m. April 1.

For most of us, the lengthening of the day means more time for pleasurable pursuits. Here we have true cause for celebration.

Despite the fact that the clock is supposed to be pushed ahead in the wee hours of the morning, we begin thinking about it Saturday night.

After all, that's the time most affected if a full night's sleep is to be enjoyed.

A dinner party is a novel way to cheer in the new season. But it should be an efficiently orchestrated affair to guarantee that everyone gets home early enough to make up that extra hour of sleeping time. This means a menu that is largely prepared ahead of time to avoid any delays in serving.

Begin the meal with Shredded Lettuce Soup, an emphatically flavored chicken broth poured over crisp iceberg lettuce. The soup is better if prepared in advance and simply reheated.

Ground lamb makes an inexpensive and unexpected main course. First season the meat well with onions, garlic and especially ground cummin for a Middle Eastern flavor.

Form meat into flat patties or shape into a sausage and gently slip onto a skewer. Either way, grill the meat just before people arrive and keep in a warm part of the kitchen; it does not have to be served piping hot.

Mix your own three-bean salad by combining cans of well-drained and rinsed chick-peas, black beans and kidney beans. Add chopped scallions and a zesty dressing.

You will have a far fresher-tasting salad than the ready-mixed versions that have been marinating in a can for goodness knows how long.

Take the easy road for dessert. Order a cake from a local baker and have him decorate the top with chocolate icing.

Shredded Lettuce Soup

8 cups chicken stock
1 1/2 teaspoons curry
3 tablespoons soy sauce

1/2 teaspoons Tabasco, or more to taste
1 head iceberg lettuce
2 teaspoons dark sesame seed oil

Yields 10 servings.

Pour chicken stock into pot. Make thin paste of curry with a little water, and add it to stock, along with ginger, soy sauce and Tabasco. Cover and simmer 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, shred lettuce and distribute among 10 soup bowls. When soup is ready to be served, remove it from stove and add sesame oil. Remove ginger slices and ladle hot soup over lettuce, which will remain somewhat crunchy.

When it comes to negotiating real estate deals, dollar for dollar cash has unbeatable clout. In many ways, a Pre-approved Mortgage from Chase is almost like having "cash in hand" — it can be your "passport" to a fast hassle-free transaction. Informed realtors and sellers recognize the clout that a mortgage commitment from Chase gives you. Chances are, they'll respond by showing you preferential treatment.

The competitive edge
Now is an opportune time to take advantage of one of the many values currently available in the real estate market. A Chase customized financing package can give you a competitive edge in your negotiations. Programs like our Pre-approved Mortgage effectively establish you, in advance as a qualified buyer.*

Negotiating Power
Because Chase can provide a written pre-approval within 72 hours after receipt of a completed application, you can negotiate with confidence. And once you qualify, you'll be approved upfront for a specific amount of financing up to $1 million or more, so you'll know in advance what your full potential buying power is. In competitive bidding situations, this means you can negotiate on your terms and may be able to acquire more opportunities.

Let a Chase Personal Financial Consultant show you how
One of our Chase Personal Financial Consultants is a dedicated professional, will work closely with you to expedite your loan approval, help you assess your real estate financing needs and to help you select the best financing package for you. This package could include options such as an interest rate lock and programs designed to bridge the transition between selling your current home and purchasing that dream home.

To find out more about how Chase can give you real estate financing clout, simply call your local Chase PFS office listed below.

Some guys got it, Some guys don't

By Cristina Ferrier

"Why would anybody mind being bald?" asked Herb Happel, a man who has never really had a thick head of hair.

"There are some perfect heads and others that have hair," he said. "Everybody tries to hide his mistakes. I think God hid his mistakes with hair."

Why, indeed, is there such an emphasis on hair in our society? "Because our culture attaches so much emotional and physical significance to hair, dealing with its loss can be a stressful experience," according to an informational pamphlet for the hair-restoring product Rogaine.

Upjohn, the company that makes Rogaine, launched a nationwide ad campaign in late 1988 that showed a slightly balding man on a beach, talking about how bad he felt about being bald. Then, the man said in the ad, he went to his doctor about it and learned ways to treat his hair loss. Now, he said, he has hope.

Happel is not buying the stereotype image that bald men are less attractive or less virile, and he thinks the guy in the commercial must have problems that go deeper than his scalp.

"First of all, I think the guy is a hypochondriac for running to his doctor for something like being bald," he said.

"Also, he's got an identity crisis.

I mean, look in the mirror. Either you're bald or you're not . . .

"Stand on a scale," he added. "Either you're fat or you're not. Stand next to a ruler. Either you're tall or you're not."

Happel points to overall self confidence, not a full head of hair, as the key to a good self-image. "If you're comfortable with yourself, whether you're tall, fat, skinny, bald or not bald, you project that image to other people and that's what comes across," he said.

"If I were selling people something to get rid of baldness, I'd want them to feel guilty about being bald, too," Happel explained. "But I'm not, so I don't."

Lack of hair has not stopped Happel from doing anything. His many past experiences include blue-water sailing, white-water rafting, flying airplanes, hunting, fishing and scuba diving. "I didn't have hair when I was doing any of those things," he said. "I didn't need it."

Not only that, he said, but baldness is an asset, not something that people should feel they must overcome.

"It's a real treat in the morning," he said. "Other people have to mess around with blow dryers and synthesizers and curling irons, when all I need is a little Mop-N-Glo and I'm on my way."

"How can you feel the fresh spring breeze with all that hair on your head?" he asked.

Hair today, gone tomorrow — dealing with baldness

By Marilyn Herald

The old saw about being "bald as a billiard ball" isn't funny any more. It probably never was too comical to the men who go through life wearing a hat, a cap or even a beret to cover their head's nakedness.

Male pattern baldness (MPB), or alopecia androgenetica, is the most common form of hair loss and accounts for as much as 95 percent of the varying degrees of hair loss experienced by 30 million men in the United States.

Those are statistics published by The Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo, the company which markets Rogaine, a prescription drug it says has been scientifically proven to grow hair on some men with MPB.

According to Upjohn, the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) rules which took effect Jan. 8 prohibit firms from making unsubstantiated claims that their over-the-counter products can grow hair or stop hair loss. Since Rogaine is a prescription drug, it is not affected by the ruling, the drug company said. And according to studies conducted by Upjohn, Rogaine is effective in producing some increased hair growth in about 48 percent of cases after a year's use.

But what causes hair loss in humans, not only in males but in 20 million females in the United States as well?

MPB accounts for an estimated 95 percent of all hair loss among males and is believed to be caused by a combination of three factors: age, heredity, and the male hormone testosterone.

There are a variety of other types of problems which account for the other 5 percent of hair-loss problems. These include patchy baldness (for which the exact cause is unknown) and such things as chemotherapy, thyroid disease, high fevers and other systemic problems.

According to the Hair Awareness Information and Research Service of Upjohn, the usual progression of MPB develops as the hairline begins to recede into an "M" pattern. Around this same time, or perhaps a little later, hair loss begins to become noticeable on the crown of the head as a smallish round spot.

Time passes and the point of the "M" continues to recede while the bald spot on the crown widens. Eventually, the two meet, leaving only a horseshoe-shaped fringe of hair encircling the back and sides of the head.

The Hair Awareness Service explained that individuals who are predestined to develop MPB have normal hair follicles in that horseshoe-shaped fringe area of the scalp. The hair follicles in the area destined to become bald have a genetically predetermined sensitivity to a normal body compound called dihydrotestosterone (DHT).

This is produced from testosterone by an enzyme called 5 alpha reductase. Genetically sensitive hair follicles shrink when exposed to DHT.

As these follicles become smaller, their hair-growing (anagen) cycles shorten and their resting (telogen) phases lengthen, Hair Awareness explains.

The hairs themselves become increasingly thinner, shorter and less deeply rooted and eventually, hair growth ceases.

Researchers have found a greater incidence of hair loss among various racial and ethnic groups than among others. Caucasians are more likely to lose their hair than Asians, Hair Awareness pointed out as an example.

And while the most well-known, hair-loss condition is called "male" pattern baldness, current evidence seems to indicate that the genetic predisposition for thinning hair can be passed down equally from both the mother's and father's sides of the family, Upjohn said.

If you have always thought your hair grows at the same speed every week, you are wrong, according to the experts.

Hair growth occurs in cycles, they say. During the anagen or growth phase, scalp hairs grow at an average rate of one-half to one inch per month.

This spurt of growth lasts for anywhere from 2-6 years, followed by a two- to three-month telogen or resting phase.

According to Hair Awareness, during the resting period, the hair is called a "club hair." When the growth process resumes, the club hair falls out of the follicle and is replaced by a new, emerging hair.

Hair Awareness stated, "It is normal to lose as many as 50-100 strands a day this way, with the hair usually showing up in a comb or brush or at the bottom of the bathtub or sink after the hair has been washed."

Rogaine, currently the only prescription drug marketed for treatment of MPB, has been available since October 1988. According to Upjohn, it is the only product considered effective and safe in the treatment of MPB.

Dr. Ronald Kerwin, a West Bloomfield dermatologist affiliated with Huron Valley Hospital at Milford, prescribes Rogaine for use by many of his patients, both male and female, according to his office manager Daisy Paeprosante.

Paeprosante said it is used particularly by the younger patients, "to help them stop losing so much hair. It has worked for my brother who is 22."

Paeprosante said approximately 10-15 percent of Dr. Kerwin's patients come to him because of baldness or thinning hair problems.

"There are different nozzles on the Rogaine bottles, but it is applied much like hair spray in most instances," Paeprosante explained. "It's something they have to do every day, like brushing their teeth."

Rogaine, according to Upjohn, is a "topical solution of minoxidil. Minoxidil in tablet form has been used since 1980 to lower blood pressure. The use of minoxidil tablets is limited to treatment of patients with severe high blood pressure."

Rogaine Topical Solution has a low-level absorption of minoxidil in most persons (much lower than that of persons being treated with minoxidil tablets for high blood pressure). Upjohn pointed out.

Solution offers hope for some bald heads

doing research in how Rogaine works to stimulate hair growth in some people, the exact reasons are still not known.

There is no evidence that Rogaine is useful in causing hair to grow on the front of the scalp, the drug company states. However, at the end of four-month studies, hair counts of patients using Rogaine Topical Solution showed that on average there was significantly more hair growth than on those persons in the studies who used a placebo (similar solution without the active medication).

Rogaine is designed to be applied in a one-milligram dose twice a day, once in the morning and once at night. Applicators in the packages of Rogaine are designed to apply the correct amount of the solution with each application.

It generally takes up to four months to show a response to the treatment, Upjohn said.

The company stresses that Rogaine is a treatment, not a cure. A person who's scalp responds by growing new hair, will need to continue using the product to maintain or increase the hair growth.

Those who stop using the product, will probably shed the new hair within a few months, Upjohn noted.

According to Upjohn, although most users of Rogaine experience no side effects, it is possible that in some persons the same side effects caused by minoxidil tablets may occur. "Individuals with known or suspected underlying coronary artery disease or the presence of artery disease or predisposition to heart failure would be at particular risk if systemic effects of minoxidil were to occur," Upjohn stated in its Rogaine literature.

"Physicians, and patients with these kinds of underlying diseases, should be conscious of the potential risk of treatment if they choose to use Rogaine," Upjohn cautioned.

Volunteers wanted to index Record

Three years ago a group of dedicated volunteers began the lengthy process of indexing the Northville Record. This project is continuing and volunteers are welcome to take part. Contact Al Smitley at the library, 349-3020, if you are interested.

As part of this project we are happy to announce the first 10 years of the index is now ready for use. It is stored with the microfilm at the Northville Public Library. We hope that all researchers will find it of value. Please ask to see it when you are in the library.

SILVER SPRINGS ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

The Silver Springs Parent Teacher Association Fun Fair was a very popular family evening on March 2. We would like to extend our thanks and appreciation to the community businesses that donated items to help make our evening such a success. Baked goods were donated by: Meijer, MacKinnon's, Genitti's and Crawford's.

Raffle items were donated by: Town and Country Cycles, Novi Hilton Hotel, Robin's Cloverdale Cafe, Baskin-Robbins, Subway, Sunshine Pet Center, Bookstall on the Main, Genitti's, Gordon's Office Supply, Northville Video, Village Bible and Bookstore, Northville Camera, Perrins, Northville Pharmacy, Black's Hardware, Traditions, O'Sheehan's, Mr. Glow Car Wash, Grandma Betty's, The Kitchen Witch and anonymous donors. We would also like to thank the businesses that gave us a discount on food: Pizza Cutter, Mancuso's, and A&P.

It goes without saying that we give a big thank-you to all the families which helped bake, set up, serve food, oversee the raffle, run a game, sell tickets, and clean up. We also want to thank, last but not least, the teachers and staff who participated in the teacher raffle, running a game, or helping clean up. Our hats are off to the chairpeople, Val Troshchietz, Diane Surma, and Carolyn DeCoster for a job well done. The success of the evening was evident from all the smiling faces!

Our Art Appreciation Program has begun under the direction of Julie Johnson. Parent volunteers include: Linda Doinidis, Sue Tomes, Karen Marburger, Karen Stephens, Laurie Hagan, and Debbie Jarvis. The instruction is four to six weeks depending on the grade level.

Students from Janet Rigney's, Connie Wall's and Judy Higbee's classes enjoyed a field trip to Lansing recently. They visited the Michigan Library and Historical Center.

The third graders from Diane Vanston's and Phil Demski's classes are having a family reading night tonight from 6:45 p.m. through 7:30 p.m. There will be a Read-a-thon held the week of March 26 at Silver Springs.

The last skating party of the year was held on Sunday, March 25, from 5-7 p.m. at Skatin' Station in Canton. We hope to see you there.

There will be half days of school March 27 through 30.

The second grade Collegial Team and Student Council, under the direction of Jeff Lauer, have set aside March 31 to promote physical fitness through "Jump Rope for Heart." The three-hour event, 9 a.m. through noon will benefit the American Heart Association of Michigan's research. Parents are invited to participate in the event. If you aren't able to work with a team of six, stop by the gym to say hello and encourage the participants to meet their goal.

Our next meeting will be held on Tuesday, April 24, at 9:15 a.m., in the music room. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Our Campbell Soup labels were very successful. The students collected over 30,000. Congratulations to Winchester students.

Winchester PTA will hold the next meeting on April 4. All are welcome to attend.

MORaine ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

The March meeting of the Moraine PTA was held on the evening of Wednesday, March 14. After the meeting Dr. Bell gave a brief run-down on the re-opening of Cooke School. Jacques Martin-Downs, a local psychotherapist, showed a brief video to the group and discussed self-esteem and our children. The next PTA meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 11 in the media center at Moraine.

The Moraine students are responding positively to the new Art Appreciation Program and lectures. This will run through April 12. The results of the "Look Again" contest should be announced soon. The contest dealt with identification of various activities in a large print entitled "Children's Games" by Peter Bruggel. This print is on display at the school.

Sandy Basse reports that the Book Fair will begin next week during conferences. Books, posters, pencils and bookmarks will be available at the sale. If you have any questions or wish to volunteer you may call Sandy at 349-7290.

Plans are still being formulated for the June 8 Fun Fair at Moraine. Mark your calendars for that day from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Chairperson Arlene Greenlee and her many committee members are still looking for volunteers.

The Campbell Label Campaign has ended. Joan Julow extends thanks for all the contributors. The goal of 15,000 was exceeded. Thank you also to Shopping Center Market, A&P/Farmer Jack, Meijer and Kroger stores who helped by giving bonus labels. We are waiting for our new educational and playground equipment to arrive this spring.

Congratulations to our well-deserved honorees from Moraine for the April 25 Founders Banquet. They are Moraine Principal Mary Najarian and PTA President Cheryl Spinazze. Tickets and/or information can be obtained from Marie Carlson.

Cindy Benedict reports the "Storybuilders" theatrical group will perform stories written by our children in short plays on Thursday, April 26 at 9:45 a.m. There will be lots of audience participation. This will be brought to Moraine through the support of the Michigan Council of the Arts Touring Arts Agency.

AMERMAN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Our recent brush with spring is getting everyone in the mood for the arts! Amerman Art Appreciation will begin April 23. Parent volunteers will be visiting the students in their classrooms to discuss Rembrandt, Renoir, Van Gogh, Picasso, and several others. There is much enthusiasm among all the people involved in this enriching program.

April 26 students will have the thrill of watching their very own stories performed on stage. JES and the Michigan Council for the Arts are sponsoring "Storybuilders." Stories submitted from each classroom will be performed by this very talented group right before our eyes! The council has awarded Amerman a grant totalling $130 to help defray the cost of this fine performance. We're looking forward to it.

Can you believe it? Spring recess is just around the corner. Easter break begins at the end of the day April 12 and we will hop back into class on April 23.

Our fifth graders headed for Cooke School in the fall had a visit from Mr. Radwanski, Cooke's principal. He explained about the organization of sixth grade, and let the students vote for their choice of mascot and school colors. They are getting geared up for middle school.

Amerman honorees for Founders Day have been chosen. They are Irene Fleming, Milt Jacobi and Jan Tiplady. Special recognition will be given to these honorees at the banquet April 25. We are very proud of these individuals who have given so much of themselves to make Amerman School the great place it is. Congratulations!

Students have been able to visit our library once again. All books have been recorded and all very worn books have been donated to a shelter. We are well on our way to being computerized, which we hope will be completed in the fall.

Total Campbell Soup labels collected have given us 20,000 points. Our order will soon be placed for an assortment of playground balls, jump ropes and gym equipment. Once again by working together, we have been able to provide our students with something worthwhile. Thank you to everyone who took the time to peel labels.

Our next PTA meeting is April 3 at 7 p.m. The agenda will include the election of 1990/91 PTA officers followed by a 7:30 p.m. presentation of the Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education. Come find out how this new curriculum will provide a healthy future for Northville Public School children.

Mary Mattis

Odyssey in Greece

Taxi driver steers visitors on wild adventure

By Sally Davis

Greece, the beautiful, Greece, the splendid, Greece, the historic, Greece, the home of Elias Anastasopoulos.

Having sailed through the Corinth Canal on a friend's yacht a few years ago, I was familiar with the small island of Trizonia, which lies in the Gulf of Corinth, across from Patras. Another friend and I decided to visit Greece and create our own classical excursion, away from structured group tours.

Our adventure began at the Trizonia Yacht Club where we became the owner's first guests to arrive by land. Sailors from all over the world make a stop at Trizonia for a drink, a meal and a chat.

We left Athens and took a bus and ferry to the nearest point on the mainland to reach Trizonia, a fishermen's village. Ion, the owner of the yacht club, wrote me and said that we would meet a moustachioed taxi driver, Elias, who would deliver us to Hanlia.

As we were getting off the ferry at Agios, we were confronted by the hired taxi driver, holding a sign that read, "Ion, Trizonia."

There was no chance for him to miss us. We looked like Americans and we were the only passengers with large suitcases. Graciously, he took our luggage and ushered us to his awaiting taxi. His English was nonexistent, as was our Greek. We crammed into his car.

There wasn't much room because he had brought his wife and young daughter along, who both knew a bit of English and could translate. There was much joking and laughing along the way to the dock where we were to take a boat taxi to our yacht club destination.

After a few days of getting acquainted with the island, we decided to take some day trips through the country. Ion, our host, arranged for Elias to drive us to our desired destinations.

Our first stop was Messolongi, the memorial cemetery dedicated to the Greeks who were killed during the Greek-Turkish war in 1826. Also the burial place of Lord Byron.

After a full day of sightseeing, we decided to head back to the yacht club and rest up for our next day's journey.

We talked of renting a car to see the sights of Peloponnesos, but Ion advised us that it would be cheaper and more convenient to rent Elias and his taxi for the week. So, we took a few trial runs to see how we felt about our charioteer. Delphi was a breeze. Meteora was four hours travel each way and the taxi was much quicker and easier than the bus, which takes seven or eight hours one way. It also gave us a chance to check out Elias' driving ability in the mountains. He easily passed.

We felt privileged to hear his car horn play its song, "Never on Sunday." We were treated to his song of the horn only if there was a pretty girl by the roadside or if the road disappeared behind a hairpin curve in the mountains.

Near Kalambaka, we visited the hanging monasteries at Meteora, high on top of the rocky pinnacles. When the site's noon closing time arrived, we ended up staying until 12:15 p.m. As we retreated to the parking lot, Elias was waiting impatiently, making heated remarks in Greek and pointing at his watch.

By this time, we had learned to say, "parakalo" and "efkharisto;" "please and thank you." Our efforts to teach Elias English, however, fell on deaf ears. His limited English ironically consisted of "stop" and "no."

Elias chose to use his own style of communicating. He was very demonstrative in getting his point across and would punch our shoulder or arm for emphasis. It took nearly a whole day for our arms to heal.

He became very protective of us and would search out hotels for us, speaking to the desk clerk first to pave the way for his non-Greek speaking clients. We turned down a couple of sleazy rooms he suggested and made him drive to the next town. He didn't understand. Hotels were hotels to him.

When we finally settled on a place, he dropped us off and we said, "Avrio" and gave him a time to pick us up in the morning. We did much speculating as to how he spent his evenings, but he was always waiting for us in the morning at the restaurant in the hotel, sipping his little cup of strong Greek coffee. "Kalimera, Elias," which means "good morning."

One day, we drove through the mountains, and Elias stopped along the road to climb a pear tree and treat us to pears. "Patera," father, he said pointing at his chest.

Elias had a nasty habit of throwing trash out the window. We quickly looked up the word "illegal."

"Ameriki, no," we said.

"Greco," he replied, as he tossed out an empty cigarette box.

"Litterbug" became his nickname.

I don't think he will ever understand two independent women, traveling alone around Greece. We both own and drive cars, which we were sure he had difficulty comprehending. After we convinced him we could drive, he said "Ameriki" and drew a straight line in the air. Then he said "Greco" and made waving movements to indicate there were mountainous roads in Greece, implying that women could drive in America because it was easy. Again, his macho quality was showing.

We went to Areopoli to see the splendid caves. It was crowded and the last two digits on our tickets determined the order in which we would be admitted for the boat ride. Elias didn't accompany us while we toured the archaeological sites, but he decided to join us to view the caves. Immediately, he jumped over the gate and began talking to the entrance guard. We gained admission before our numbers were called. And he made sure we got the best seats in the front of the flat bottomed boat that cruised through the cave, thought of as the "Underworld" to the ancient Greeks.

The tapes of Greek music Elias played in the car seemed endless. After playing his favorites over and over, we grew to like them. One day, I turned on a tape I had brought along, a Beethoven symphony, but the cassette was quickly removed from the player. Elias made snoring sounds to let me know of his boredom.

"Elias disco," he said, rotating his shoulders and pumping his elbows like pistons.

We arrived in Nauplion, using it as a base to visit Epidauras and Mycenae. The morning before, Elias announced that he had been sleeping in his taxi for a couple of nights to save money. We suggested that he should take a shower and shave in our room upon our return from Mycenae.

The day before we were to leave Greece, Elias drove us back to Athens. He was to take us to Sunion and the Saronic coast on the last day. We decided that having our own taxi, along with its delightful driver, was a marvelous mode of transportation. So much so, we extended our journey with him from seven to 10 days. We began to call him "Ulysses" and "Hercules," which he thought suited his image.

After our trip to Sunion, we returned to Athens and bought lunch for Elias before he left for his home in Trizonia. As he got ready to leave, he had a waitress translate for us that he said we had become sisters to him.

The next morning, we came down for breakfast. It was very quiet and something seemed to be missing. It was Elias and his little cup of Greek coffee.

Amtrak toughens up new smoking rules

(AP) — Two lawmakers who succeeded in snuffing out cigarettes on most domestic flights announced March 21 that Amtrak is about to make it tougher to light up on trains.

Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., and Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., said Amtrak's new policy will take effect April 1.

"These new rules are another victory for health and common sense," said Lautenberg, chairman of the Senate Transportation Appropriations Subcommittee. "It's further acknowledgement that non-smokers should not be forced to breathe other people's smoke."

Lautenberg and Durbin jumped the gun on Amtrak's own announcement of the new policy, which had been scheduled for March 22. The new policy will continue to permit passengers to smoke in sleeping compartments. But otherwise, according to Amtrak spokeswoman Sue Martin, smoking will be banned in:

- First-class cars on all trains in the Northeast Corridor that don't require reservations. Reserved-seat Metroliners will carry smoking cars and will set aside smoking areas in first-class cars.

- Everywhere except a portion of the lounge on other trains requiring reservations.

- Coach cars of reserved-seat double-decker Superliners west of Chicago. Currently, Amtrak allows smoking in the last four rows of Superliner coaches. The new policy will limit Superliner smoking to the lower level of the lounge car, she said.

- All no-reservation trains of three or fewer cars.

- Stations smaller than 1,100 square feet.
- At least three-quarters of the area of larger stations. On all trains currently, Amtrak designates certain cars as smoking cars, or certain areas in a car as smoking areas.

The new three-car restriction "will affect a number of trains in the East, some in the Midwest and one in the Northwest," she said.

"Seventeen routes will have some trains that at least on some days have no smoking at all."

Amtrak's ultimate goal is to separate the 25 percent of its passengers who smoke from the 75 percent who do not, Ms. Martin said. Toward that end, Amtrak will begin locating its smoking cars at the front or rear of unreserved trains so non-smokers need not walk through smoking areas to reach their seats.

Amtrak is not banning smoking altogether because "it simply doesn't make good business sense," Ms. Martin said.

The Amtrak policy was criticized by the Tobacco Institute, the smoking industry lobby. "Once again we're seeing unnecessary regulation above and beyond what is necessary," said spokesman Thomas Lauria.

Train travelers have accommodated each other, smokers and non-smokers alike, ever since we've had trains, Lauria said. "Obviously this is an attempt to put smokers in the back of the bus once again."

Lauria said he expected resistance from smokers to the ban on smoking in small stations. Lautenberg and Durbin, a member of the House transportation appropriations panel, said after the Feb. 25 beginning of their airline smoking ban that they would turn their attention to railroads.

"It is my hope that eventually nonsmokers will be able to ride smoke-free on all forms of public transportation," Durbin said.

Greenbrier displays elegant coaches

(AP) — An Amtrak train rolls past the depot at The Greenbrier and for a few brief seconds the Curlyhut comes to life.

The luxurious 1931 train car fitted out royally from the brass clock to the detailed woodwork and Chippendale furnishings is one of four that have found a new home at the hotel. About the only thing noticeably absent is the clackety-clack, clackety-clack of the rails.

Besides the Curlyhut, built in 1931 for a wealthy New York City businessman, there are the Randleigh, the Virginia and the St. Nicholas. The four luxury, private railroad cars were brought to the hotel last year, and soon will be put back into service as a novel setting for private parties and receptions.

"They were called mansions on rails," said Robert Conte, historian for The Greenbrier. "They were the epitome of wealth. The people who owned these cars might have lived the resort life, riding in their own cars from one to another."

"They are a nice addition to The Greenbrier," Conte said. "And it seems to me a very appropriate one, because from 1870 to 1970, the vast majority of people came here by rail."

The depot, an attractive white brick building built in 1931, will be restored to its original condition to complement the addition of the railroad cars.

"The cars are museum pieces," said Rodney Stoner, director of food and beverage. "And we think having a reception in that kind of setting will appeal to some of our customers."

Stoner said basic food preparation would most likely be done in the kitchens of the hotel, and finishing touches done in the train car kitchens.

"It will be for small groups," Stoner said. "Each dining room can seat eight people, so the entire party would have to be no more than 32."

"There's something unbelievable romantic about these cars," Conte said. "But the real appeal of them is that they are pretty much in their original condition. There have been very few changes in them since they were built."

Each car is different, having been custom-built, but all four have finely-trimmed woodwork, brass lighting fixtures and details, and stainless steel kitchens with attached cook's quarters.

The Curlyhut may be the best preserved of the group, having much of the original furniture and upholstery, glass globes, porcelain bathroom fixtures and pine paneling. In the kitchen, it still has the original coal-burning stove.

Conte, whose book "The Greenbrier: America's Resort" details the colorful history of the world famous hotel, said the sight of the train cars at the siding fits in well with the atmosphere of the resort.

"It wouldn't have been uncommon in the past to see private cars sitting there, maybe as many as 20 or 30 of them," he said. "We look at these cars as another resource for our customers who are always wanting new ways to entertain here at The Greenbrier."

Stoner said.

"These are a wonderful addition, a part of our history, and another option for our customers to enjoy the amenities of the hotel," Stoner said.

Hobby for history lovers —and others

By LESLIE PEREIRA

If you have ever believed you were descended from a king or queen, there is a way to find out.

But be prepared — you might discover instead that you are the offspring of Mayflower voyagers or a Civil War criminal hung for treason.

"I've got three people in my line who were accused and tried for witchcraft in Massachusetts during the 1600s," said Patrick Persons, a librarian at the Northville Public Library and active genealogist for 14 years.

"I also found out that I am distantly related to my wife," Persons said. "But if you go back far enough all of the lines start crossing."

Persons is just one of an increasing number of people who make a hobby out of digging through old photographs, poring over birth records, and frequenting cemeteries, as they actively seek out their roots.

The Northville Genealogical Society is dedicated to uniting these like-minded people who trade insider information on the latest search techniques and sometimes share success stories.

Began in 1986 with only about 12 participants, it has mushroomed into its current membership of 45.

Gloria Collins and her husband Raymond started the Northville Genealogical Society over three years ago although her keen interest in her heritage dates back more than six years.

"I started after my mother died because she left a large box of photographs of people I didn't know," Collins said.

she took her search abroad.

Collins described as "addictive" the moments of her trip when she connected with the churches and other buildings with which she has familial ties.

However, most genealogists will agree that those moments of glory in finding a link to the past, are often too few and far between.

The bulk of genealogists' time is spent with their noses in dusty books, chasing an endless paper trail which bounces them back and forth between birth records and death records, marriage certificates and deeds.

Because they deluge the same resource centers time and again, they become accomplished researchers as they gain an almost intimate familiarity with the primary sources needed for a thorough search.

And sometimes they gain a bit of notoriety among resource center employees.

"If they had never made that movie 'Roots' we wouldn't be having the problems we are now," said Peggy Calkin, supervisor of vital statistics at the Oakland County Clerk's office.

"Roots" was a novel-turned-television movie which traced the lengthy history of an extended African family.

The problems Calkin cites are the ever-thickening pile of mail search requests they receive and the increasing number of people accessing the records they house.

"You should see these people," Calkin said. "They have to file everything and they all carry around these huge folders. It's unbelievable."

Gloria and Raymond Collins of Northville started the Northville Genealogical Society in 1986 necessity when you have been researching for 25 years, like Alan Smitley has.

"The search never really ends," said Smitley, also a Northville librarian who began sleuthing at age 14. "I am back to the 1680s in one line."

And Smitley should know about the endless nature of the quest. He has been "stuck" for five or 10 years. Getting stuck is genealogical jargon meaning no new significant bits of information have been found and the branches on the family tree chart have stopped growing. Is genealogy a particularly librarian-type hobby?

"No," said Persons, "it is really for anyone with a strong interest in history and an inquisitive mind."

The Northville Genealogical Society meets monthly and publishes a newsletter for members detailing exciting new developments in the world of genealogical research or compiling lists of helpful information.

The group is open to anyone with an interest in tracing their family history.

These youngsters take the space-age escalator down to the display floor at the Detroit Science Center

A super-hero trip to Science Center

By Buddy Moorehouse

What kid hasn't wondered what it would be like to have X-ray vision, like Superman? Or the chance to crawl through your own web, like Spiderman? Or the ability to deflect an enemy's bullets with your bare hands, like Wonder Woman?

Well, youngsters can feel what it's like to be a super hero, just by visiting the Detroit Science Center this month and next.

From now through April 30, the Science Center is offering an exhibit called "Super Heroes—A High-Tech Adventure." The exhibit contains a number of different components, each designed to show kids the technology behind their favorite super hero's powers.

with a makeshift crime lab, hospital and workout room. Children can move from area to area, sampling the different super-power technology.

The Science Center is set up to devote its entire exhibit floor to one topic. Exhibits rotate throughout the year.

"It's a 100 percent hands-on exhibit," a Science Center spokesperson said of the super-hero display. "The kids can play with everything there."

She said the most popular part of the exhibit (which opened Feb. 1) has been the pingpong ball cannon. It shoots out pingpong balls (not very fast, of course), and the youngsters have to deflect them with their wrists.

"It allows them to test their reflexes," the spokesperson said. "They can pretend they're Wonder Woman deflecting things being shot at her."

In the makeshift hospital is an X-ray machine, which allows kids to see through things—just like Superman. There are also displays showing fiber optics and ultrasound.

In the crime lab, kids can see how crimes are solved by using a high-tech computer which draws composite sketches of criminal suspects. There's also a fingerprinting display.

Other parts of the super-hero exhibit are a night-vision tunnel and a workout room where kids can see how many pull-ups they can do.

The other exhibit currently at the Detroit Science Center is "Seasons," a movie being shown on the 80-foot-high Omnimax Theater screen.

You'll see picturesque events from all four seasons, including 80-foot pansies bursting into color and a raft trip down whitewater rapids.

Upcoming events at the Detroit Science Center include a live underwater sea exhibit (April 30 through May 12) and the always-popular dinosaur exhibit (May 18 through September).

The Science Center is located at the corner of John R and Warren, behind the Detroit Institute of Arts. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays and noon to 6 p.m. Sundays.

Admission is $5 for adults, $4 for children ages 6-12 and $2 for children ages 4-5. Children under 4 are admitted free.

For information, call (313) 577-8405.

dining out

JAN LEWIS

A quietly elegant spot in Oakland County has returned, bringing back superb dining. Truffles Restaurant, a favorite of many, closed some time ago, to the dismay of regular patrons.

Terry Cioti, one of the original owners of Truffles, re-opened the restaurant a few weeks ago, with the addition of Chef Jeffrey Baldwin and Manager Joann Militello.

Baldwin has a long list of credits to his name including work at the Van Dyke Place and The Whitney in Detroit. He brings a new look to the menu, offering diners an impressive array of choices, all composed with fresh ingredients and a bow to several ethnic influences.

Perhaps one of the most welcome moves at the restaurant is the new addition of "petite" portions to the menu. Most of the menu offerings may be ordered in "petite" portions, allowing diners to sample freely from the menu hors d'oeuvres, soups and salads, without feeling overwhelmed with the main course.

Dinner guests are treated to a smooth complimentary portion of chicken and duck liver pate at table, upon their arrival. The open and well appointed dining room, actually two rooms, is done in subtle, country french colors, making a cozy, welcome ambience for diners.

Hors d'oeuvres are nicely prepared and the presentation is elaborate. Specialties include the duck and Traverse City cherry wontons with a honey dijon dipping sauce, and roasted quail filled with wild rice and pistachio stuffing, resting in a potato nest finished with a truffle Maderia glaze. A thin crust pizza with zesty tomato sauce, mozzarella and fontinella cheese, grilled chicken, artichokes, fresh basil and sun dried tomatoes will tempt just about anyone.

Truffles on Haggerty Road offers daily specials

The roasted rack of lamb with rosemary dijon crust and chevre cheese, served with a cabernet sauvignon sauce flecked with sun dried tomatoes is exquisitely prepared and presented. Accompanying asparagus and potatoes were lightly seasoned and complemented the meat. Sauces on entrees are light and blend well with the meat, but do not overpower.

Daily specials are offered varying from a grilled veal chop to fresh fish and a game special of venison, quail or duck.

The service, like everything at the restaurant, is detail-oriented. Militello and Baldwin have instituted team-oriented managing at Truffles, and diners are served by a team of waiters, allowing for maximum service. The wait staff was extremely knowledgeable, both about the menu items and the wine list.

Wines are well represented at the restaurant. A significant, but not overwhelming list of California, French and a few German, Italian and Australian wines are listed. Only one Michigan, a 1988 Riesling, Chateau Grand Traverse, is carried.

Desserts are exactly what they should be—light, fun, and sinfully rich. Bananas Foster is prepared at tableside and a smooth chocolate mousse finishes a wonderful meal.

Guests who linger over dessert and coffee are often rewarded with a visit from the Chef as he tours the dining room checking on the reception his combinations received.

Truffles is open for lunch. A wonderful selection including omelettes, pasta, and "American Comfort Foods", including chicken pot pie cassiolette and a beef and veal cassiolette with vegetables and potatoes in an onion cabernet sauvignon sauce with a delicate pastry, is available. A Sunday brunch is extensive and a step beyond the usual brunch menu, offering eggs Benedict, omelettes, beef and veal pot pie cassiolette and much more in a four course setting.

Truffles is located at 2750 Haggerty Road at the corner of Pontiac Trail. Lunch is served Tuesday through Thursday from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Dinner is served Tuesday through Thursday from 6-10 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 5-11 p.m. Sunday Brunch is served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Reservations are recommended. Call 624-6700.

Top basketballers named to all-area squad

GREG PETRU

MATT HUTCHINS

SCOTT ARMSTRONG

MARK FISHER

JOE KALEY

Mustang long-ranger, Joe Kaley, selected to first team

Good teams always seem to have good players.

Prep basketball in the area this winter had both, and that's what makes the 1989-90 Sliger-Livingston East All-Area squad so impressive.

Of the five teams in the area, Milford, Novi, Northville and Lakeland all had winning records. Two of them — Northville and Milford — won either a division or a conference championship, with the Redskins advancing all the way to the MHSAA regional semifinals before dropping its first game of the season. The combined win-loss record of all five teams was 63-45, and that includes South Lyon's 3-18 mark.

Senior forward Scott Armstrong and junior point guard Greg Petru were the driving force behind Milford's 20-0 regular season record. Joe Kaley gunned Northville to its first-ever Western Lakes League Western Division crown, while Matt Hutchins and Mark Fisher were the unquestioned leaders of Lakeland and Novi, who tied for second place in the Kensington Valley Conference.

Good teams, and good players. Here's a closer look at the players, as selected by sportswriters from The Northville Record, the Novi News, The Milford Times and the South Lyon Herald:

FIRST TEAM

SCOTT ARMSTRONG, Milford, forward: One of the Kensington Valley Conference's all-time greats, this 6-foot-2 senior frustrated opponents with a variety of skills.

Armstrong is best known for his baby-soft shooting touch — which produced 596 points (24.8 per game) this past season — but he has other abilities that should not be overlooked. They include passing (2.3 assists per game), rebounding (7.0) and defense.

"Scott's game is complete," Milford Coach Don Palmer said. "If he has a limitation, it would be that he's not exceptionally quick. He does everything else, though. He can score, he can pass, he can defend, and he also plays an intelligent game."

Armstrong is Milford's all-time leading scorer with 1,253 career points. This past season, he converted 241 of 499 field goal attempts for .483 percent and 93 of 115 free throws for .809 percent.

He also carries a 3.975 grade-point average.

"Scott is probably the best all-around player we've had here," Palmer said. "Some have done certain things better, but I don't think anyone has the entire package like him."

MARK FISHER, Novi, forward: To say this 6-foot-6 senior carried the bulk of the offensive load for the Wildcats this past season would be an understatement.

Fisher averaged 10 points more per game than any teammate, and also led the team in important areas like rebounding, blocked shots and field goal percentage.

"I thought Mark had a great season," Novi coach Bob Shoemaker said. "Everybody we played concentrated on stopping him, but he played above that."

Fisher played center as a junior, but made the move to small forward this season — and was a threat inside and outside. He was third in the area in scoring (17.0 points per game), and among the top 10 in rebounding (6.3), field goal percentage (.495) and free throw percentage (.708).

He added 35 blocks, 23 assists, 31 steals and seven three-point buckets.

"Early in the season, Mark was scoring well over 20 points a game," Shoemaker said. "He was really our only offensive threat."

"As the season progressed, we got more guys into the offense and his scoring went down. But that didn't have anything to do with his effectiveness. He sacrificed his numbers for the good of the team."

MATT HUTCHINS, Lakeland, guard: This 5-foot-11 senior averaged 21.8 points per game, with his main weapons being a quick first step and an accurate three-point shot.

But, according to Lakeland coach Bob McFarland, Hutchins does not get all of the credit he deserves.

"A lot of people think of Matt as just a shooter," the coach commented. "He does a lot more than that, though. He's a tenacious defensive player and an excellent passer."

"Matt's also an outstanding leader," McFarland added. "He's the guy who keeps practices alive and gets everyone going when they start to drag. He contributed a lot more than just points."

Hutchins led the area in three-point field goals (69) and steals (70), while ranking second in points (436) and third in assists (87). He also converted 146 of 329 field goal attempts (.444 percent) and 75 of 109 free throws (.688).

A three-year starter for the Eagles, Hutchins holds school records for most points in a single game (40), most three-pointers in a single game (11) and most three-pointers in a season.

"Matt should be able to play college ball somewhere," McFarland said. "He has quite a bit to offer."

JOE KALEY, Northville, forward: Although undersized for a forward, Kaley was one of the most feared shooters in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

This 6-foot-1 senior led the Mustangs to a share of the WLAA Western Division crown and eventually was named to the All-Conference squad — a first for Northville boys' basketball.

"Joe really came on strong at the end of the season," Mustangs coach Omar Harrison said. "The other coaches in the league told me they designed their defenses to stop him, and that's quite a compliment."

Kaley ended the season with a team-high 14.9 scoring average, but over the last half of the season his average was nearly 21. He also led Northville in steals (2.9 per game), free throw percentage (.729) and three-pointers (41).

"I don't think there is anybody else in school history who had 41 threes for their career, and Joe had that many in one season," Harrison said.

The well-rounded Kaley also hauled down 3.7 rebounds a game, was second on the Northville squad in assists (2.9) and was honored as his team's Most Valuable Player.

GREG PETRU, Milford, guard: His statistics are mediocre, but anyone who has seen this 5-foot-10 junior understands his value to the Kensington Valley Conference champions.

"Greg was very good at handling pressure and getting the ball to people in the right spots," Redskins coach Don Palmer explained. "He's a capable scorer, too. We would like him to shoot more, but he just takes the game as it comes to him. He was definitely a key for us this year."

Petru led the area with 132 assists (5.5 per game), which set a new school record, and committed only 58 turnovers in 24 games. He also scored 228 points (9.5) and pulled down 105 rebounds (4.4).

In the shooting departments, Petru converted 80 of 160 field goal attempts (.500 percent) and 38 of 56 free throws (.679).

"No one was able to dominate him this season," Palmer said. "We definitely feel we'll have one of the best point guards around next season."

SECOND TEAM

ALAN BAALAER, South Lyon, forward: A consistent performer throughout the season, this 6-foot-4 senior led the Lions in scoring (10.0 points per game), rebounding (8.4) and free throw percentage (.786).

"This was Alan's first full season on the varsity," South Lyon coach Dave Soderquist said. "Still, knowing what we had, I knew last June that Al would have to play a lot."

Baalaer scored 210 points on 82-of-187 shooting from the floor and 44-of-56 marksmanship from the free throw line. He also was a solid defensive player, recording 30 steals and 14 blocked shots while drawing 11 charging fouls.

MIKE BOLLING, Lakeland, center: In his first full season of organized basketball, this 6-foot-5 senior put up some impressive scoring and rebounding totals.

Bolling recorded 354 points (16.9 per game) and 285 rebounds (13.6), with the latter figure setting a new school record.

"Mike was probably the best rebounder in the (Kensington Valley Conference)," Eagles coach Bob McFarland said. "He's a quick leaper, plus he has no fear of being

Coach: Redskins mentor picked

By MATT SEIDL

Milford basketball coach Don Palmer was asked a tough question recently.

Not long after his team completed a 23-1 season — which included Kensington Valley Conference and Class A district championships — someone wanted to know what he was going to do for an encore.

The question also came after Palmer was named Class A Coach of the Year by the Associated Press.

"I'm not sure if we can improve on what we've already done," he admitted. "We've kind of created a monster here. To be honest, I don't see us winning 20 games every year. The last three seasons have been special. I just hope the community is appreciative of it and understands that it usually doesn't last."

Under Palmer, this year's Sliger-Livingston East Coach of the Year, the Redskins have won three straight KVC titles. They shared the crown with Howell twice before claiming it outright this past season.

But winning hasn't always come easy for the 39-year-old psychology teacher, who took the scenic route to success. He needed six years to post his first winning season, four more to win a league championship and another two to push his career record over the 500 mark.

Palmer's first taste of success came during the 1983-84 season when the Redskins won 16 of 21 games. Then, four years later, they went 20-4 and captured the school's first league championship in 32 years and first district title in 33 seasons.

But it wasn't until this past season — Feb. 13 to be exact — that Palmer officially became a winning coach. As a result of Milford's win over Pinckney, he finally had more career victories than defeats.

Palmer's current record is 132-125. Of course, if you count the 186-92 record he has compiled as the Milford girls' coach, his winning percentage suddenly rises to .594.

Perhaps Palmer's biggest accomplishment, however, is his boys' record over the last three seasons. Milford has won 64 of 71 games, good for a 90.1 percentage.

"It's been nice," he commented. "But you have to look at two things.

First of all, we've had a good run on kids. In the public schools, you have to coach what walks through the door. You can't go out and recruit. Sometimes you luck out and sometimes you don't. We've just been lucky the last few years."

"The other key is that winning breeds more winning. There's no doubt about that. People are excited about basketball in Huron Valley and they want to get involved. That definitely helps."

"I'm just pleased to have had this type of success... because I know what the other side is like. My early years humbled me quite a bit. A few years ago, my two biggest goals were getting over 500 and winning a league title. I've done both of them, so I have to be pretty happy... no matter what happens in the future."

Speaking of the future, Milford more than likely will contend for league and district titles again next season. Point guard Greg Petru, center Brandon Phillips and top reserve Tom Kofahl are eligible to return, leaving the Redskins with a solid nucleus.

Palmer is not ready to think about next season just yet, though. He has been coaching basketball non-stop since the summer and feels a rest is in order.

"Hey, I was disappointed when we lost to Battle Creek (Central in the regional), but it felt great to walk out of school the next day and not have to go to the gym," he said.

"To be honest, I think I need to find some other interests. My wife made that comment, too. You just get consumed with the winning and the fear of not being prepared for a game. You don't want your team to lose a game it shouldn't lose."

Player: Honors go to Milford's Armstrong

For the fourth consecutive season, a Milford High School representative has been named Sliger-Livingston East Boys Basketball Player of the Year.

Shaun Hayward, who now stars at Concordia College in Ann Arbor, received the honor in 1987 and 1988. He is best known for the long-range shots which enabled him to graduate as Milford's all-time leading scorer with 1,163 career points.

Hayward no longer holds the scoring record, however. That honor belongs to Scott Armstrong, the SLE Player of the Year for the past two seasons.

Armstrong scored 596 points (an area-best 24.8 per game) during the recent campaign, an effort which raised his career total to 1,253. He tallied 19 as a freshman, 253 as a sophomore and 385 as a junior.

Hayward and Armstrong played together for two years and were mainstays on the 1988 squad — which many feel was Milford's most talented group. That was the year Milford opened everyone's eyes with 20 wins, a Kensington Valley Conference championship and a Class A district title.

But Hayward's graduation did not mean an end to the Redskins' success — not as long as Armstrong was around. The local program, which went 21-2 during Armstrong's junior year and 23-1 this past season, has claimed two more league titles and one more district crown.

Milford coach Don Palmer believes the "Armstrong era" will be talked about for quite a while.

"Scott has been a big part of our success over the last three years," he commented. "We felt very lucky to have him. He's a great all-around player with a great attitude, and he works as hard as anyone I've ever coached."

"You have to like him as a person, too. They just don't come much better."

Heiden builds premier swim program

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

After a few lean seasons in the mid '80s, the Northville tankers are back and have now established themselves as one of the state's premier programs.

Ranked among the top-10 Class A teams in the state from the beginning of the season, the Mustangs wrapped up a 10-1 dual meet campaign with a sixth-place finish at the MHSAA State Meet. And with many of the team's top-notch talent expected back, Coach Mark Heiden's squad will probably be even better next season.

"I'm very pleased overall," he said. "Heading into the season, we knew we could do some great things. Everytime there was a meet that we needed to perform — we did it. This year was definitely the highlight of my coaching career."

Northville cruised through its dual-meet schedule, knocking off solid teams like Livonia Stevenson, Plymouth Salem, North Farmington and Brighton. The only setback came on Jan. 23 in a non-conference battle with Novi — another state-ranked squad.

"We've been trying to make our dual meet schedule tougher," Heiden said. "It means we see better teams and that helps make us better."

"We seemed to have the right attitude all year long. We went into the Salem and Stevenson meets knowing we had everything to gain and nothing to lose. We tried not to put unnecessary pressure on ourselves."

The loss at Novi came after draining wins against Salem and North. "That was possibly the only disappointment of the year," Heiden said. "It was hard for me and the team to get up for another big meet. I think our intensity dropped that day and Novi swam great."

Record/CHRIS FARINA

With returnees like Brad Cook, the future looks bright for the Northville tankers

The Mustangs reeled off six straight wins following that setback, however, and headed into the WLAA Meet as the favorites with an 8-0 record against conference opponents. But hopes for the title were quickly dashed by Salem and Stevenson.

"I did not see one kid regretting our performance at the WLAA Meet," Heiden explained. "Placing third wasn't what we were shooting for, but we moved up from fourth the year before. It was disappointing when we got beat 411-410 by Stevenson for second place, but those things happen."

"There was no reason to get upset because everybody performed well."

Regrouping just one week later, the Northville contingent at the State Meet erased any lingering frustration by taking sixth overall with an array of outstanding efforts.

"The whole state meet was a highlight," Heiden said. "It was two days like I've never experienced. It was nice because we wanted to justify our state ranking."

Steve Lang and Larry Oslecki placed fourth and 12th respectively and scored 12 of the team's 57 points at the state meet. Earlier at the WLAA event, Oslecki was the conference champ and Lang was the runner-up.

"They are a great 1-2 punch and they are both juniors," Heiden pointed out.

Another underclassmen, Eric Newton, was a two-time placer at the state meet in the 200 IM (fifth) and the 500 freestyle (10th).

"Eric will be one of the top swimmers in the state next season," Heiden predicted.

With Lang, Oslecki and Newton all returning, Northville will have three premier performers to build the team around. Add standouts like junior Brad Cook, sophomore Bob Holdridge and freshman Jim Fee, and you have the nucleus for another great team.

On the other hand, seniors like Andy Wayne, Chris Handyside, Jason Stringer and Dan Brugeman will all be lost to graduation. Wayne, Handyside and Stringer are four-year letterwinners, and all four are solid swimmers and good leaders.

"We may be able to replace them with other talented swimmers, but you can never replace personalities," Heiden said. "We'll really miss Andy Wayne's leadership and his ability to motivate the team."

At the team banquet on March 20, Newton was given the High-Point Award, Cook the Most Valuable Swimmer Award (as voted by his teammates), and Matt Hanna the Most Improved Award.

Bolling led the area in rebounding and was fourth in scoring. He also ranked fourth in field goal percentage (.522), fifth in free throw percentage (.688) and 10th in assists (43).

SCOTT MEREDITH, Northville, center: This 6-foot-6 senior had a solid campaign in only his third year of organized basketball.

"I think Scott has great potential as a player," Mustangs coach Omar Harrison said. "He has very limited experience, and I believe if he had one more season of high school ball, he'd be an excellent player."

Meredith led the Mustangs in scoring for most of the season, but ended up second to Joe Kaley with a 14.4 average. He was Northville's leader in rebounding (10.1 per game) and field goal percentage (.507).

"He's very mobile for a big guy," Harrison said. "We depended an awful lot on him for inside scoring and rebounding, and he accepted that role."

MIKE LANG, Northville, forward: With Scott Meredith in the middle and 6-foot-6 Lang at power forward, the Mustangs had an impressive inside attack.

Just a junior, Lang was among the area leaders in scoring, rebounding and free throw shooting, and will probably be a force next season.

"Mike was a key underneath the basket for us," Northville coach Omar Harrison pointed out. "He has shown a lot of improvement and he knows the game well. Mike's very young for a junior, but he has all the tools. He just needs to work on his game and he'll be a big inside force for us next year."

Lang was third among his teammates in scoring (9.6 per game), rebounding (4.6) and free throw percentage (.645).

RANDY SEYMORE, Milford, forward: Prior to the season, Milford coach Don Palmer felt this 6-foot-4 senior would be a key for the Redskins.

"With Scott (Armstrong), we felt we had the best player in the conference, and with Greg (Petru), we felt we had one of the best point guards," Palmer said. "But Randy was the key kid. He was a swing man who could do a lot of things. With him having a good year, we went from a pretty good team to a very formidable team."

"Basically, Randy's problem in the past is that he didn't work as hard or concentrate as much as he should have. He alleviated that for the most part this year," the coach added.

Charniga: Gymnasts need more dedication

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

The bottom line for the 1990 Northville gymnastics season shows another winning dual-meet campaign. And analyzing where the Mustangs fit in against other programs in the area is pretty easy. Head Coach Michelle Charniga has her tumblers at several levels above the mediocre programs (Walled Lake Western), and a step above the average programs (Farmington, Harrison and Farmington), but Northville still isn't the caliber of powerhouses like North Farmington, Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton.

The team went 4-0 against the lower half of the WLAA, but were 0-3 against the best. As a result, the Mustangs were fourth in the eight-team conference, had a 5-3 dual-meet mark, and placed eighth in the 17-team regional field.

"It was a good season, a winning season, but I expected our team scores to be higher — like in the 130s," Charniga said. "We never hit 130 this year, but last year the majority of our scores were over 130."

According to Charniga, the main problem was injuries to top performers as well as motivational difficulties. Senior Lee LaChance was hampered much of the season with a severe case of asthma and sophomore Mia DeHart had to deal with a recurring back problem.

"The injuries were really our downfall," Charniga admitted. "Lee wasn't feeling well from mid-season on and Mia entered the season with a bad back. Without those two — our only real all-arounders — at 100 percent, we aren't nearly as strong as a team."

"Last year we could expect all four scores in each event to be in the eighties. This year we had two, maybe three, scores in the eighties, and that adds up."

Northville's season-high score was only 129.25 set on Jan. 15 against Canton. In the last two months of the season, the squad never scored more than 127. Another key loss came when senior Robyn Chatman injured a knee in preseason workouts and was lost for the season.

"After that score against Canton, we had some off-nights and then the injuries started piling up," Charniga said. "But the big thing was losing Robyn for the season because without her, we lost our number-three all-arounder. I knew our scores would go down if we didn't have her and I knew it would hurt our depth."

Charniga also wasn't pleased with the dedication and motivation exhibited by the team as a whole — especially at practice.

"The team as a whole wasn't really motivated to work as hard as they should this season," she admitted. "I was constantly trying to get them focused on gymnastics and after a while it got to me. It's got to change because I won't put up with that."

DeHart was clearly the standout on the team, but Charniga believes the talented sophomore needs more dedication if she wants to be a premier high school competitor in the next two seasons. DeHart was eighth in the WLAA in the all-around (34.35 average) and was first in the Western Division. She led the division with an average score of 8.89 in the uneven parallel bars, was second in vault (8.36), third in the balance beam (8.38) and fourth in the floor exercise (8.65).

"Mia is a good gymnast but to be top gymnast — and she has the potential — she needs to be more dedicated," Charniga said. "She has to improve her routines and get higher levels of difficulty."

A late season back flare-up hurt her chances at the regional competition, and she ended up with just one top-10 finish. The Mustangs qualified for the regionals as a team for the third straight season, and nine individuals also made the cutoff.

LaChance was 14th in the WLAA in the all-around (32.55 average), is a 12th grader, and will be sorely missed. The four-time letterwinner missed the Plymouth Salem meet with an injury and the team scored only 121.15 points — a season-low. The other seniors who will be lost to graduation are regional qualifiers Becky Canry (in the uneven parallel bars) and Megan Graham (in the balance beam).

Joining DeHart as a key returnee is junior Melanie Apigian, who placed fourth at the WLAA Meet with an 8.9 effort in vault — the highest score in that event of the year for the Mustangs.

"Our goal is to close that gap between us and the North Farmington's and Canton's, but it won't be easy," Charniga predicted. "It's going to take a lot of work."

Vaulting specialist Melanie Apigian will return next season for the Mustangs

COLLEGE PERISCOPE

Northville brothers Brian and Mike Krygier are members of the University of Connecticut varsity hockey squad. Brian, a junior center, was named to the All-Tournament team at the Salem State Classic in January. He was also named the East Coast Athletic Conference Co-player of the week ending Jan. 6. Brian scored two goals and dished out five assists in two games. For the season, Brian has eight goals and 17 assists for the Huskies (8-6-1 record). His career numbers include 19 goals and 30 assists in 42 games. Mike, a freshman left winger, has three goals and six assists in 15 games this season. Another brother, Todd Krygier, was an '88 U-Conn graduate and is now a member of the Hartford Whalers of the National Hockey League. In 56 games, Todd has 29 points (17 goals, 12 assists) from his left wing position. Northville native Chris O'Brien, who attends Birmingham Brother Rice High School, signed a National Letter of Intent to continue his football career at Central Michigan University. Johnson, a 6-foot-5, 250-pound offensive lineman, helped lead the Warriors to an 11-1 record last fall. He also competes in track for Brother Rice. Heath Myers, a former Northville High School basketball star, is now a freshman majoring in sports medicine at Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis., and is a member of the varsity basketball team. Myers, the Mustang co-captain and MVP during the 1988-89 season, is playing guard for the Redmen, coached by Kevin McCarthy. Carthage opened the season on Nov. 9 against the Finland National Team and competed in a tournament in Orlando, Fla. during the Christmas break. The team is also hoping to raise enough money to travel to Finland during spring break for a return match with the Finlanders.

Katie Brugman, another former Northville star, was a member of the 1989 Michigan Technological University volleyball team. Brugman played in 12 matches last fall, had one kill, one assist, one service ace and 11 digs in limited action. The Huskies finished the season with a school-record 12-4 mark and a third place finish in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. Katie is the daughter of Tom and Marianne Brugman of Northville. Chip Huber, a senior midfielder for Bethel College in St. Paul, Minn., was named to the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Academic All-Conference team this last in soccer. Huber, the son of Terry and Marilyn Huber of Northville, scored five goals and added six assists for the Royals to lead his team in points. Huber also carries a 3.6 grade-point-average as a speech communication major. Northville's Bob Yeager sports a 13-15 record as a heavyweight wrestler at Central Michigan University. Yeager, a sophomore who prep'd at Redford Catholic Central, has two pins on the season for the Chipewas. Jeff Bainbridge, a former Northville swimming star and now a member of the Kalamazoo College men's swim team, was named to the MIAA All-Conference Swim Team. It was Bainbridge's second such award. At the MIAA Meet, Bainbridge placed in five events, including seconds in both the 100-yard butterfly and 100 backstroke events. The Northville High School graduate is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bainbridge.

Day care enters the fitness realm

By STEVE KELLMAN

Whether working or working out, one of the most pressing needs of new parents is day-care service. Several area fitness programs are in the forefront of the effort to provide such care.

Marilyn Troshak, supervisor of the Novi Parks and Recreation Department's day-care program at the Novi Civic Center, described such day care as "a definite trend for the '90s."

"Basically, we offer our babysitting for our daytime Fitness Factory moms," she explained. The Fitness Factory is an aerobic program offered through the Novi department. The program — and the day care — are offered weekdays between 9-10 a.m. and between 10-11:15 a.m. Though the parks department is considering day care for other situations, the aerobics day-care program is the only one offered presently.

The fitness classes draw about 35 people each, while the day-care program itself draws an average of 10 children a class, Troshak said. "Sometimes we only have four or five kids, but other times we have 15 or 20," she said. Two staff people supervise the day-care program.

Parents pay $1.50 an hour for each child. "At this point, that money goes right to the babysitters," Troshak said.

"This is for people who are in our program at the time it's going on," she added. The fact that several parents have tried to drop children off at the center while doing other errands is a testament to the need for day care.

Children of all ages use the program as well. Though the average child's age is between two and four, she said, "we've had children from six weeks to 12 years old."

"Being a mother myself, I do know that there's a need," Troshak said. "Being an organization that's service-oriented, we're going towards that. We're even thinking about doing something for our employees for child care. That's just an example of what the trend is."

"We have to be providing these things for the members of our community, or they won't be able to come

Record/CHRIS BOYD

Novi Parks and Recreation babysitter Kathy Cassie attracts an audience while moms are busy with aerobics out and use our programs."

Day care is also provided at the Vic Tanny fitness club in Redford. Kris Nichols, supervisor of the club's day-care service, described it as a model program for the chain. "We're the only Vic Tanny that has the nursery right now," Nichols said.

Nichols sees a real need for, as she put it, "child care in general for people who work and people who work out."

"They've had a lot of people in the club who have asked if one could be started in other clubs," Nichols said. "We're hoping that in the future the clubs that they build for Vic Tanny will automatically have a room set aside for day care."

Parents consider it an extremely valuable service, Nichols said. "With the nursery right here at the club, they don't have to worry about their children." The cost — $2 per hour per child — is also more than competitive with traditional baby-sitting fees.

The nursery service is also available most of the hours that the club itself is open. The day care is a carry-over from when the club was a Richard Simmons Anatomy Asylum, she added.

The busiest times for program are between 9-11 a.m. and between 5-7 p.m., during the club's most popular aerobics classes. There are as many as 20 to 25 children in the program at one time, as the classes change over.

There are two people on duty nearly all the time in the nursery. Five out of the six staff members in the day-care program have children, and the one who does not has had years of experience as a babysitter. "As far as I'm concerned, the best experience you have is to have raised kids yourself," Nichols said.

The club opened as a Vic Tanny two years ago, Nichols said, but the center has provided day care since it was a Richard Simmons health club. "Every single one of his clubs had nurseries," Nichols said.

Nichols has worked with Vic Tanny for eight years, and as the nursery supervisor is currently exploring the possibility of day care at other clubs. Though nothing definite has been decided, Nichols said the company is seriously considering similar facilities at other locations.

"In my opinion, it really is a necessity," she said.

'Fitness for the 90s' program offered

The Novi Parks and Recreation Department is offering an eight-week "Fitness for the '90s" class. Aerobic conditioning is combined with progressive resistance exercises using weight machines to reduce body fat and achieve good muscle tone.

Information pertaining to nutrition, diet and stress reduction is provided to complete the total fitness program. Students must be at least age 17 to participate.

The program starts on April 23 at the Novi High School Wrestling Room. The Monday/Wednesday sessions cost $25; the Tuesday/Thursday sessions cost $27. For more information, call 347-0400.

EARTH DAY FUN RUN: A 10K run and a two-mile walk will be among the activities taking place at Maybury State Park on Earth Day, April 22.

The run begins at 10 a.m. and the walk at 10:15 a.m. All participants will receive a finisher's ribbon, a canvas tote bag, continental breakfast and will be eligible for a drawing for other prizes. Awards will be presented to first-, second- and third-place winners in the men's and women's categories in the 10K run.

Entry fees for the run are $7 for the 10K and $5 for the two mile walk until April 13. After that, late fees are $10 and $6. Call 349-0203 for an application.

Fitness Notes

OPEN SWIM: The Novi High School Pool will be open for swimming from now until June 14. Open swimming on Tuesdays and Thursdays will be from 7-8:30 p.m. and lap swimming follows until 9:30 p.m.

Fee is $.50 and senior citizens are free. Children age 10 and under must be with an adult. The pool will be closed on April 17-19.

HALF MARATHON: The annual West Bloomfield Half Marathon has been scheduled for April 22, at 12:30 p.m. This will be the 14th running of this TAC (The Athletics Congress)-certified race which is sponsored by West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation.

The race begins in the front of West Bloomfield

High School, Orchard Lake Road at Green Road, and winds through the scenic residential streets of West Bloomfield Township.

Annually the race attracts runners from many midwest states and Ontario, Canada. A new course record was set in 1989 by Doug Kurtis, 37, of Northville, with a time of 1:07:32. Cheri Sly, 24, of Dexter, Michigan set the women's course record at 1:15:57.4 also in 1989.

The 1990 race looks to continued excitement in long distance racing and high quality in race organization. Categories this year will include walkers and wheelers in addition to the many runner divisions.

For an entry form, send a self addressed, stamped envelope to West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation, 3325 Middlebelt Road, West Bloomfield, Michigan 48033. Entrants in the 1989 race will automatically receive an entry form. Registrations are taken up until one-half hour before race time.

Entry fee for the event is $11 through April 13. This early registration guarantees the runner a T-shirt. After April 13 and through race day the fee is $14. There are no guarantees on a t-shirt with a late registration.

Fitness Tips

Here's some hot facts on old-fashioned cold

By MARIA PASSALAUQA

If your mother and grandmother are anything like mine, you've probably been told a million times not to go outside in the winter with wet hair; to stay in bed and drink lots of fluids when you have a cold; and to stock up on chicken noodle soup when your nose starts to run. Moms are generally smart people, but just how much fact do these cold myths hold?

Here's the hottest research on old-fashioned colds.

• Cold viruses don't "attack" you if you walk outside with wet hair or without socks.

To catch a cold, the virus must physically come in contact with your upper nasal passages. They can do this in three ways:

1. They may travel through the air from someone sneezing or coughing.
  2. They may be transmitted through direct contact (shaking hands with a cold carrier, then touching your face).
  3. They may spread by using the same telephone, towel or cup as a cold sufferer.
- Garlic around your neck won't spare you.

The most effective way to keep yourself healthy from colds is simply by frequent handwashing. Also avoid touching your nose and eyes when around those with colds. Obviously, avoid those objects used by coughing and sneezing family and friends.

• If mom insists on making her homemade chicken soup — graciously accept.

Scientific studies have shown that hot drinks, especially chicken noodle soup, increases the flow of nasal secretions and helps you feel better, and the taste, aroma, and hot vapors don't hurt the therapy. Also, say "yes" to the tea with honey, but "no" to hot toddies, since alcohol dilates blood vessels and may produce more nasal congestion.

• It's true, there is nothing a doctor can do for a cold.

Some symptoms should tip you off that your average cold may be something more serious.

1. oral temperatures above 103 degrees
2. fevers over 100, lasting 3 days or more
3. severe pain in chest or head with or without enlarged neck glands

4. a severe cold that doesn't get better in a week

5. in a child — difficulty breathing, marked irritability, and lethargy

• All these fluids won't wash out your cold.

They do, however, ease dry throats and make you feel more comfortable. But drink only as much as you want. No need to force yourself, it won't flush out the cold any faster.

• Save your money on advertised cold relievers.

Colds will come and go on their own — although you can make yourself comfortable in the meanwhile. Pain relievers (aspirin or generic) can reduce fever and muscle aches. Don't look for your cure over-the-counter. Decongestants may dry up secretions temporarily — but can have a rebound effect that's even worse. Antihistamines may also make cold congestion worse.

• Cover your mouth.

Please do cover when coughing, but don't try to suppress coughing if it is a wet, productive cough. Go ahead and cough, unless it keeps you awake at night — then try hot drinks, steam, or hard candy. However, if it is an irritating, dry, unproductive cough, a cough medication may help you get a good night's sleep.

• To exercise, or not to exercise.

Although it isn't possible to "run off" a cold or "sweat it off" it might not hurt you, if you feel up to it. Never force yourself if you're too tired, or if you have a fever. Some activity might make you feel better, or maybe you just need extra rest. Listen to your body.

• It's tempting, but hibernating in bed won't cure it.

Use your own judgement. If you feel too worn out or too ill to tackle your daily routine; take the extra time and rest that your body needs. But, don't overdo it. Bed rest won't magically cure your cold or actively alleviate your symptoms.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.

PRICES SLASHED!

Walter's Takes On The National Chains With Price & Service, Service, Service...

*Team News Service
Canton, MI*

Spring is starting off with a bang at Walter's Home Appliances. Buyer John Mistak says "Our buying power from our membership in the MARTA organization puts us on par with the national chains price wise, but our service & attention to our customers, puts us way ahead. Combining our top notch brand names and great pricing has our entire sales team fired up. To put it bluntly, we're ready to sell."

Mistak added that Walter's stands behind what it sells with prompt factory authorized service and a guaranteed satisfaction policy on every item sold. "We're dedicated to comprehensive customer service. Our sales staff is professional and helpful. We have various credit options and offer rain checks on most out of stock items. Plus, we offer next day delivery on most items. It's this commitment to service that is most important to us, and it is the reason for our success."

HOW-TO TIP

formed countertops, include an extra 3 inches for each overhanging end and 1 inch for each flush end. Get all pieces larger than your measurements — trimming to fit is easier than buying more.
