No water pressure woes foreseen

By STEVE KELLMAN Staff Writer

While Novi faces a potential water crisis in the coming years, Northville experts predict little immediate danger of a water shortage in this community.

Earlier this month, the head of the Michigan Department of Public Health's (DPH) water supply division had warned that 14 communities including Northville and Novi faced a potentially critical shortage of water. "We should expect a problem this year," James Cleland said.

Cleland added that a 12-mile Detroit water line extension is needed to prevent a future crisis, and that new development in the region could be threatened if the line is not laid.

The $35-million extension has already been funded, but is being delayed by objections from Franklin. Bingham Farms, Beverly Hills and Bloomfield Township. The communiquisitions and the removal of trees and shrubs.

"Last year wasn't a real problem," he added. "A lot of it depends on the weather.'

The proposed Detroit water line will prevent another crisis like 1988, Warner said, by boosting both the water supply and pressure available to the city. Warner said the 12-mile extension has been planned for years, even before the 1988 drought. It was all master-planned years before that,"

Seven finalists face test for police chief job

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

Seven applicants will face a threehour, 320-question written test June 30 as the search continues for the next police chief of Northville Township.

The seven candidates were interviewed by a panel of local law enforcement officials June 19 at township hall

Findings of the law enforcement panel will be factored into the final stages of candidate selection for the $42,000-$52,000 position atop the township police department, said Treasurer Betty Lennox.

The finalists will be interviewed after the June 30 test by a township executive committee comprised of Supervisor Georgina Goss, Manager Richard Henningsen, Clerk Tom Cook, Lennox and Constable James Schrot, she said.

Lennox said the test covers "various areas" of police and administrative expertise, with some of the questions "very specific to police investigative work

The test was purchased from International Personal Management Associates at a cost of $10.25 per test, with an additional one-time $30 service fee.

Township won't release names

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

Northville Township officials Friday refused to release to the press a list of seven finalists for township police chief.

Treasurer Betty Lennox said Supervisor Georgina Goss told her Thursday she "did the right thing" in not releasing the names of the applicants for the $42,000-$52,000 position.

Lennox, who is heading up the police chief search, said the township determined the candidates potentially could be hurt if their names were released.

"She (Goss) said I did the right thing in not releasing the names because it would not be fair to (the applicants) and their communities," Lennox said.

Goss was out of town Friday and was unavailable for comment. Citing right-to-know privilages under Michigan's Freedom of Infor-mation Act, Record Managing Editor Ann E. Willis sent a letter to township Clerk Tom Cook requesting the immediate release of the names of the remaining applicants.

"Because the position of police chief is an important one in the community and is a public position, the public certainly has the right to know these names," Willis said. "As a newspaper, we represent the public and I feel we have to press to get these names published."

THE REAL PROPERTY AND A

Lennox said she spoke to Goss Thursday after the Record asked for the list of candidates. The supervisor told her the names of the eventual two or three finalists could be released, she said.

"We're trying to be fair to the applicants," Lennox said. "I think the press should have enough confidence that we'll pick the best three; then the public can have input if they choose.

Fifty-six police chief hopefuls originally applied for the position. That figure was reduced to eight after the candidates were reviewed by a township committee consisting of Manager Richard Henningsen, Goss, Cook, Lennox and Constable James Schrot.

A panel consisting of local law enforcement officials questioned seven applicants June 19 and passed their findings on to the township. One candidate dropped his name from consideration prior to questioning from the law enforcement panel. Lennox said.

The candidate field is expected to be pared after the seven undergo a three-hour, 320-question written test June 30.

"We're not trving by not releasing names," Lennox said, when asked why the public should not have access to the list. "We have the best interests of the community in mind."

Bed race: The annual Bed Race through the streets of downtown Northville, part of the annual Fourth of July festivities, desperately needs entrants.

Dundalk Lane/Dundalk Court of Northville Commons subdivision has already "threepeated" the event. The champs want to take on all comers.

Rules and regulations are available at the Northville Community Center, 303 W. Main. entry deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, June 29.

Volunteers: On Wednesday, July 18, The Association for Retarded Citizens of Northwest Communities and Northville Schools will host a field day "To Celebrate the Individual".

The emphasis of this special day is to provide the severely mentally impaired and the severely multiple-impaired athlete individual and competitive sport opportunities.

The field day will be held at Northville High School from 8 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. Please contact Vickie Greiner at Old Village School at 344-8460 for further information.

Victorian Festival: The Second Annual Victorian Festival invites non-profit groups in the Northville area to join the fun and raise money for their organizations by participating in this year's festival Sept. 14-16. Groups interested in operating a booth should contact Sarah Minor, 348-8596 or Judy Dore, 349-1052 or 349-4550 (office).

Red Cross aid: The Northville Group of the Red Cross volunteers is looking for help during mobile blood banks held in the Northville area. Several of the faithful volunteers are unavailable during the summer months and staffing at blood banks is becoming difficult.

Volunteers help in registering blood donors, making the bags to hold the blood, escorting donors to the canteen area and manning the canteen itself. Usually volunteers are only asked to help on one or two blood banks per month. The banks last for about six hours.

Anyone interested in joining the Northville Red Cross Volunteers Group should call Sue Anger at 349-0068, Evelyn Harper at 349-5781 or Mesa Campbell at 349-1748.

Art volunteers: Northville Friends of the Arts are looking for volunteers for Art Market during the Victorian Festival on Sept. 14-16. The organization is looking for help in giving artists breaks during the festival. Any volunteer should contact the Art Market at P.O. Box 99, Northville, 48167.

This old house: The first meeting of the Friends of the Sally Thornton House will be Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Novi Civic Center. Anyone interested in historic preservation, especially of the circa-1838 Novi pioneer homestead, is encouraged to attend. The new group is a pet personal project of Kathy Mutch, who is also president of the Novi Historical Society.

The clock is ticking for the Thornton house, which will be destroyed if it is not moved from its home behind Home Sweet Home restaurant. Mutch hopes that with the help of a few "friends" a new site for the building can be found.

Police fund-raiser: Representatives of the Novi Police Officers Association will be soliciting donations over the next five weeks in order to fund various community projects, including support of area group homes, aid to senior citizens, a $1,000 scholarship and aid to needy families. This group is entirely local and funds only local projects. This is not part of a national fund-raising organization as previously stated in the Novi News. Road to school won't be so rough

A pair of special assessment districts were created in Northville Township last week to pay for road paving projects.

Residents of Pickford Avenue will share the expense of paving a 1,526-foot stretch between Valencia Avenue and the proposed Pickford Meadow subdivision.

A portion of Waterford Road, estimated to be 800 feet long, will also be paved.

The special assessment districts were approved by the township Board of Trustees June 14.

The $31,349 Pickford price tag will be split between seven properties and will be based on lineal feet of property frontage along the project.

The work on Pickford will be completed before the end of July, said Abe Munfah, township engineer.

The Waterford Road project will provide paved frontage extending to the west end of Meads Mill Middle Clerk Tom Cook told the property owners they did not have to take part in the project.

"If 51 percent of the people that own land want it paved, we have to do it." he said.

Cook said Northville Public Schools owns 51 percent of the Waterford Road frontage and the Board decided to limit road construction to the school and Rymarz properties.

Estimated cost of the Waterford Road project was $58,000 for the five parcels in the original plan. The amount was reduced after the decision to pave only the school and Rymarz frontage.

School aid issue reaches stalemate

By TIM RICHARD SCC News Service

LANSING - Not a shot is being fired in the biggest state school aid battle in years.

The issue is whether the state will stop making $600 million in payments for Social Security, pensions and other "categorical" aids to wellheeled districts which get no general state aid.

The House is being tough, and the Senate's being tough," said lobbyist Jerry Dunn, who represents many such out-of-formula districts in the western Wayne County suburbs.

DThe issue is in a conference committee - three senators and three representatives - whose job is to work out a settlement. As of last week, no meetings were even scheduled.

"We're in a stalemate. Everybody is digging in," said Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, a member of the conference panel.

Keith was sponsor of the Senate Bill 830's House counterpart which seeks to reduce categoricals and use the money in the general state aid formula.

Another member of the panel is Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, whose district includes Novi. Faxon is supportive of out-offormula districts.

Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, who represents an outof-formula district and formerly taught in another, Oak Park, analyzed her schools' political problem.

"Only one-third of House members have out-of-formula school districts in their legislative districts. So

OH SAY CAN YOU GEE

America the Beautiful.

there's not much feeling in the House for the problems of out-of-formula districts," Berman said.

But the majority of senators have at least one out-of-formula district because they have larger districts. They have a more balanced perspective," she said.

If they lose categorical aid, out-of-formula districts either must cut expenses, dip into working capital or seek property tax increases from voters.

Gov. James Blanchard has joined Keith's team opposing state coverage of Social Security and pension costs for out-of-formula districts, which generally have large property tax bases.

"Given the resources," a budget aide told lawmakers last week, "we felt the most responsible use of the money was to put as much as possible in the school aid formula."

The out-of-formula districts are waging a battle to keep their categorical aids, but some lawmakers concede privately the end of the road may be near.

"If we took every dollar on the state level that we have available for K-12 schools and put it in the formula," Keith said at a recent rally on the Capitol steps, "we would equalize close to 90 percent of the children in this state and bring 80 districts that are out of formula back into formula." Currently, only about 70 percent of Michigan's 562 school districts receive state aid under the formula. The Senate didn't meet at all last week, and the House held only brief morning sessions, as a dozen or more conference committees meet.

Overall, the state general fund budget will be about $7.3 billion, with $3 billion going to schools. The new fiscal year starts Oct. 1.

Boosted by voter approval of a Headlee Amendment override, Walled Lake school officials have drafted an unprecedented $56.2-million budget plan that keeps intact programs that were threatened earlier.

The proposed 1990-91 budget, scheduled for approval June 28, reflects a 16-percent increase in revenue compared to the previous budget of $48.4 million.

It includes $4.4 million in new revenue stemming from recent voter approval of the Headlee override that will cause taxes to outpace inflation.

The money will protect ninthgrade athletics, gifted classes, junior high alternative education and other programs that would have been slashed from the budget. It also will avert the layoff of 18 employees, including 13 teachers.

Moreover, school officials will set aside $700,000 to enhance programs, though no decisions have been made about which ones will be selected for improvement.

The school district's fund equity is expected to be $5.4 million, compared to $3.7 million for the previous year, though $1.7 million is scheduled to be used to add 14 new classrooms to various elementary schools. Building repairs that had been delayed, such as new roofs, will also be possible

School officials appeared generally optimistic about the district's finances during a recent budget hearing. But there was some cause for concern.

If Senate Bill 830 passes, the state is expected to recapture $1.3 million in state aid to the district, which would be left with only $75,000 from the state. Of the $1.5 million in state aid for the last year, the state recaptured just $570,000.

School officials voiced concerns that SB 830 will take money from some school districts to help others.

They're taking it from one hand and putting it in the other," school trustee Joel Silberblatt said.

Officials are also concerned about whether the school lunch prices are on the low end of other programs in Oakland County.

In other financial news Thursday, the school board established a millage rate of 36 mills for 1990-91, an increase from the 33.98 mills over the previous year. Under the Headlee override, the district could have levied 38 mills to reach its state authorization, but officials had promised voters that no more than 36 mills would be levied.

Superintendent James R. Geisler said it was important for the board to set the 36-mill rate because it is *completely consistent with what we talked with the community about.

Senate draws the line at parks

Bill protects open spaces

By TIM RICHARD SCC News Service

LANSING — Communities would be able to make special assessments to preserve open space and natural areas under a package of bills on this week's Senate calendar.

"Suburban areas are undergoing rapid development and wanting to preserve open space before it's all paved over," said the sponsor, Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield.

His bills are co-sponsored by Reps. Willis Bullard, R-Highland, and Susan Munsell, R-Howell.

Honigman last week told the Senate Local Government Committee his 11 bills don't expand the power of cities, villages and townships to take property. Rather, they expand the definition of "park" to include open space, natural areas, wildlife aras and bird sanctuaries.

The committee Thursday gave 3-1 approval to the package of Housepassed bills.

The bills were stiffly opposed by the Southeastern Michigan Builders Association and Apartment Association of Michigan.

Jack Walker, lobbyist for the regtonal builders group, saw the bills as the product of the "slow growth" and "stop growth" movement in areas popular for building.

Walker foresaw a scenario where a group of lakefront homeowners could gang up and persuade a township to exercise the right of eminent domain for a parcel on which they wished to stop development.

Under new guidelines, open space would be defined as protected land

"Nothing in these bills mandates a willing seller," Walker said. Sen. Virgil Smith. D-Detroit, came to Honigman's aid. "All these (current reasons for special assessments) are for builders sewers, drains, roads — all the profit stuff. They have what they want. They want to stop at public parks and open space," Smith said.

Committee member Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, took issue with the builders' contention that the governmental right of eminent domain should be exercised only for reasons of "public health, safety and welfare." Said Nichols: "The constitution says

'just compensation,' not "health, safety and welfare.' "

Jack Schick, lobbyist for the apartment owners, said his group objects to the special assessment mechanism. "If all the community can enjoy it, all the community should pay. It shouldn't be a burden on just a few property owners," Schick said. "I disagree," said Honigman. "It's more appropriate to tax those who benefit. It's like taxation by neighborhood democracy."

Lobbyists for the Michigan Municipal League, representing cities and villages, and the Michigan Townships Association supported the package, known as House Bills 4120 through 4130.

MML's William Davis said cities will welcome the power to levy special assessments for the operation and maintenance of parking structures, as well as for construction.

The Senate panel voted to recommend the bills, if adopted, for immediate effect. Otherwise, they would not become law until about April 1, 1991, well into the next construction season.

Amendments kill 'polluters pay' bill

By TIM RICHARD SCC News Service

LANSING — Republican leaders are in a quandary following Senate rejection of their version of a "polluters pay" environmental bill.

"Tm not sure what to do next," said a stunned Sen. Vern Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, chair of the Senate Natural Resources and Environmental Affairs Committee. His version of Senate Bill 375 went down on a 22-16 vote after an all-day debate låst week.

"The goal was to embarrass me," said Senate majority leader John Engler, the GOP gubernatorial hopeful.

"I want to take my name off this abomination," said Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, saying Ehlers' amendments gutted the bill she originally sponsored. She said environmental groups may petition to place her original bill before voters. Currently the Environmental Response Act (PA 307 of 1982) requires the state to pay for cleaning up toxic wastes and sue polluters in court afterward. The goal of both versions of SB 375 is to give the state Department of Natural Resources powers to get faster cleanups of 2,600 known toxic-waste sites by charging identifiable polluters. Ehlers' version was shot down by 16 Democrats and six Republicans.

Several Republicans feared it would "push industry out of the state" and opposed giving the DNR too much power. One Republican thought it was too weak. Casting no votes were Democrats Pollack, Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills and Republican Fred Dillingham of Fowlerville.

Dillingham said he voted no "because I was very concerned about the devastation it would have on small business."

He said the leaders' "sense of urgency" at passing the measure didn't coincide with the far-reaching impact it could have on business. Dillingham said that if leaders were concerned about policy rather than politics, they would have put together "a bipartisan and bicameral agreement" before bringing it to the floor.

Faxon voted no for the opposite

D-Warren, said "it's not worth the paper it's wrote on." "du "Empty rhetoric," replied Ehlers. ter

"Empty rhetoric," replied Ehlers. He said his version gave Pollack, environmental groups and DNR director David Hales "up to 95 percent" of what they wanted.

Only a few points of difference actually were argued. Among them:

• DNR'S ROLE: Ehlers' version set up an Environmental Mediation Panel of three scientists with masters degrees, plus five non-voting public members, to resolve disputes.

The question is whether someone with a bachelor's degree in sociology from the DNR should tell someone with a master's degree in science what to do. I wanted technical expertise," said Ehlers, a former college professor of physics. He said his panel would work faster than the court appeals certain to arise under to hold them liable" and part of the "deep pockets syndrome" of going after the innocent but wealthy.

Pollack said that if the polluter went bankrupt, the cost of cleanup would be "put on the backs of taxpayers." She said the test of any amendment should be whether it puts any burden on taxpayers. • LIMITED LIABILITY: Under Eh-

• LIMITED LIABILITY: Under Ehlers' version, once the state allocated percentages of liability to multiple polluters, the allocations would be frozen, even if collections could not be made from one of the parties.

"It caps the liability of those who contaminate," objected Sen. John Cherry, D-Clio, Pollack's partner in the debate. "It decides allocation and says that's the cap."

• CLEANUP STANDARDS: Cherry charged water standards in the bill were too lax.

reason: he said the heavily amended version "had been weakened to the point of uselessness."

Faxon, whose district includes Novi, said the Ehlers version failed to provide enough enforcement power for the DNR and would let big polluters off the hook.

Voting yes were 14 Republicans, including Richard Fessler of Commerce and Robert Geake of Northville, and two Democrats.

None of the local senators spoke during debate.

Senate minority leader Art Miller,

Pollack's version.

Pollack's reply: "The mediation scheme totally cuts out the public. Environmental groups don't want it . . . At least DNR is a public agency. At last the public can bring pressure on the agency. You can't bring pressure on them (three scientists). You can't fire them."

• LENDERS' ROLES: Ehlers' version excluded from liability banks and loans and other lenders who don't participate in polluting but acquire properties through foreclosure. He said it would be "grossly unfair • CLEANUP STANDARDS: Ehlers' version set up a loan fund to help small businesses with cleanups, defining these as independently owned firms with 50 or fewer employees and net worths of $3 million or less.

Objected Pollack: "It would allow a small business that didn't agree to a cleanup access to the cleanup fund. Nothing says they have to agree to a cleanup plan."

What the Senate will do next is uncertain. Engler noted that a House Republican bill similar to Ehlers' is languishing in committee.

The derogatory graffiti was sprayed in white paint on the south wall of the building, and on a 'Do Not Enter' sign in the parking lot.

MORE MALICIOUS DESTRUC-TION: Three cassette tapes were stolen from an unlocked car parked on Novi Street in Northville between 9 p.m. June 18 and 4 p.m. June 19, according to city police reports. The tape was pulled from the cassettes and they were left at the scene. The vandal or vandals also pulled a dozen plants from the homeowner's flower bed, and urinated on the driveway and in a flower pot at the scene.

BICYCLE ACCIDENT: A 15-yearold Northville boy riding his bicycle east on the north sidewalk along East Main Street hit a car on Griswold Street June 21, at 12:44 p.m. The boy left 33 feet of skid marks before striking the car. He was taken to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia by his father.

Tax foe Headlee fighting drugs too

Oakland County business mogul and one-time gubernatorial candidate Richard Headlee said last week that the scourge of drug abuse had touched his family - a religious, close-knit group of nine children and 31 grandchildren.

Drugs have even impacted my family." Headlee told a group of business people and politicians May 31 during an anti-drug presentation at Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. in Farmington Hills, where Headlee serves as chairperson of the board, president and chief executive officer. Fortunately, we had the family unit in order to battle that.

"Unfortunately, we have a lot of people in society who don't have that reinforcement, the family, church . a caring friend. That (caring

This is a problem of a magnitude; it's going to require the efforts of all of us," Headlee said. "We're concerned about this loss of all these great young people. We're losing a lot of great potential . . . through this devastation of drugs."

Haywood was raised in Mississippi farm country and came to Detroit where he began his basketball career with the University of Detroit Titans. He went on to the NBA in 1969 when he became the highest-paid pro player in the league. He had everything, but Haywood said it wasn't enough.

"I thought by doing cocaine it would round out my career - icing on the cake," Haywood said in a video presented May 31. "I thought I had it all under control. That I could stop ers throughout the state, including state Supreme Court Justice Dennis Archer. "It's just one small effort," said Archer, speaking at last week's breakfast. "But it is my desire to cover, in September or October, the 166 elementary schools in Detroit using Spencer's tape and program.

Cocaine is Oakland County's ruling drug.

Cocaine is drug of

The popular drug represents ab-out half of the illegal drugs tested from Oakland County in the Michigan State Police Forensic Laboratory in Sterling Heights. "The utilization of crack and powder is widespread. We may see a lot of crack in Pontiac. But that doesn't eliminate other areas. It's almost an interlacing," said lab chemist Ralph Sochocki.

Lab chemists test drugs confiscated from users and sellers prior to criminal prosecution.

Anything someone will be tried on in criminal court, we have to prove that it is indeed a controlled substance," chemist John Siefert said.

After the predominant cocaine -both the powder and the smokable rock form, crack --- lab chemists see marijuana, and every so often, "a little bit of heroin," coming from Oakland County, Seifert said.

LSD (lysergic acid diethylamide), commonly known as acid, pops up in Oakland County every now and then. "We see that after a Grateful Dead concert. The former hippies come out trying to continue their youth." chemist Dennis Lippert said. The new drug on the scene, ice, a crystalline form of an old drug, methamphetamine, is more spoken about than seen in Oakland County. "We're not seeing it yet. But it appears it could be coming this way. "We'll most likely see a flood of it if we start winning the cocaine war," Siefert said.

Oakland County drugs tested in the lab are only those that police agencies are enforcing.

Oakland County mirrors the entire drug situation, which means there is an increase from Oakland County," Siefert said. "We are seeing a virtual flood of cocaine.

"In Pontiac you'll see crack. In Troy, you'll probably see powder (cocaine). Real hard-core drug use has been an inner-city thing. Recreational drug use is a suburban thing."

Lippert boils that down to dollars: "He (the suburbanite) can afford a nose job if he ruins his nose with cocaine.

Though the chemists don't keep hard and fast statistics on which drugs show up in which specific communities, they can make generalities. Heroin, for example, usually comes from Pontiac or Royal Oak Township, not the Bloomfields or Farmingtons.

"The amount of heroin you see lessens as you move away from Eight Mile." Siefert said.

Tooting high-grade heroin is po-pular lately in Troy. "I think this drug is going to be coming back. But it has to be potent," Sochocki said.

Heroin is generally associated with intravenous injections. But tooting and smoking would be more common in the suburbs.

Consider that 75 percent of intravenous drug users have the HIV positive virus (AIDS). With a little bit of thinking, people are saying this (tooting, smoking) is another way of experiencing this," Sochocki said.

Marijuana, the drug generally considered as harmful as a bottle of beer, is on the upswing in Oakland County. Marijuana today can be difficult to obtain. That could be a reason why many people are growing it at home, the chemists said.

Despite the popularity of harder drugs, marijuana continues to hold its position in the "drugs of choice" menu.

"There are different confidence levels. Some have stayed with marijuana because they are comfortable with it. For some it's a springboard to other drugs," Sochocki said.

The potency of drugs is stronger than ever. Cutting cocaine with mannitol or a similar substance is rare. the chemists said.

"Most of the cocaine we see is essentially pure now. Crack is, too. It has gotten cheaper. It's plentiful on the streets. They don't have to cut it now," Siefert said.

Marijuana is more expensive and more potent today. The main ingredient, tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), produces the typical effects on a user's mood and perceptions.

While powder cocaine, crack cocaine and marijuana are relatively pure and potent today, heroin's purity rides a roller coaster.

"It's up and down. Sometimes it's high, sometimes it's low," Siefert said.

The chemists don't "quantitate" or analyze the substances in LSD.

Legal audit needed for proper start-up

We have been told that there are a number of agreements our association should prepare in its initial formation once it takes over control from the developer. Can you give us any help in that regard?

We recommend to associations that they establish resolutions regarding bylaw enforcement and collection procedures and have "modification agreements" for those requested to the common elements and a special agreement for handicapped people.

We also recommend a legal audit of the association's condominium documents and operating procedures in its initial stages to ensure that the developer's attorney put into the documents all of the requirements for the successful operation of the association. These are items we usually recommend the association undertake in its first year.

Our industrial condominium is being poorty managed. The developer does not seem to care about the manner in which the units are being maintained by the individual owners and has abdicated that role to the management company, which has never had any experience in an Industrial condominium. What can we do as a practical matter, short of litigation?

Have a meeting with the co-owners of the units to discuss whether new management is necessary and whether a strong letter to the developer would be appropriate to ensure that the units are being properly maintained.

Also, you have recourse under the condominium documents and state statutes to deal with this problem. It he has done for the management may be necessary to shake up the developer before you get a successful resolution.

You may also wish to consult with counsel regarding your various remedies under the particular docu- ney has done work for the managements of your industrial condominium. If you are successful in ensur- her ability to zealously represent the ing that the developer meets its association's interest, particularly if responsibilities in an industrial condominium, you have a better chance to operate the industrial condominium more successfully.

I don't want to sound petty, but our association had food at our annual meeting by way of a boxed lunch for anyone who attended. I was not able to attend, and I think it is unreasonable for the association to have spent this money. Do you have any comments?

There is always a gray area as to what the association can do by way of ham 48010. This column provides entertainment. To me it seems reasonable for the association to spend be construed as legal opinion.

money by way of entertainment for an annual meeting to the extent that the money serves to bring out members to participate in the affairs of the association.

While I do not necessarily think that it would be advisable or proper to have an open bar at the annual meet-ing, I do believe that it is more than reasonable to serve refreshments and, if necessary, a lunch or other type of modest meal to the members of the association who wish to attend.

I do not necessarily believe that that is abuse of discretion. It may be an excellent way of getting people to participate more in the affairs of their association.

Our condominium deed restriction has a provision that says that no dog can weigh more than 35 pounds. Our dog is about 45 pounds, but the board has threatened to take legal action against me. Our management company is using an attorney in behalf of the association who I know also has done work for the management company. I think that is wrong. Can something be done?

You may well have the association wer the barrel on two counts. First, a Michigan Court of Appeals decision has held that a weight restriction on dogs is unenforceable and unreasonable on the basis that a pit bull who may weigh 10-15 pounds may be just as dangerous as a German shepherd weighing 60 pounds.

When the attorney for the association comes after you, you might also point out to the board that the attorney may well be in a conflict of interest if he has not advised and gotten the approval of the board to represent the association regarding the work company.

The board of directors may well be in a conflict of interest under these circumstances and disclosure is necessary to both parties. If the attorment company, it may impair his or there arises a dispute with the management company or if there is any issue as to the performance of the management company,

Time is right for younger buyers

(AP) - The time may be approaching when younger couples can stop grousing and take action to buy a house.

Why?

Prices, for one reason. While those prices may still look high in relation to the prospective buyer's income, conceivably they could look like bargains when matched against prices 5 or 10 years from now.

Interest rates are another reason. The investment climate may be changing for the better. Rate increases are unlikely, and some decline is even possible, a situation that experience shows may be temporary.

Market conditions constitute another reason. Some houses have had for sale signs for a year. meaning their sellers are eager for action and possibly willing to help with financing.

Add at least one more reason: opportunity exists in a time frame. Youth comes once in a lifetime, and real estate bargains appear only a few times more often. Few segments of the marketplace are more cyclical.

There is little question that younger buyers have had difficulties in recent years.

While the ownership rate fell generally in the 1980s to more than 65 percent near the end, the decline was a consequence solely of bad times in the younger age groups.

In the age group 25-29 years,

for example, the 1979 ownership rate was 44 percent but just over 35 percent in mid-1989. In that time the rate for ages 30-34 fell from 62 percent to less than 54 percent.

Meanwhile, in every five-year age grouping from 60 years or more, the ownership rate rose. Since 1980, the rate for ages 60-64 has been more than 80 percent.

Real estate people point out that in those statistics lie opportunity. They call attention to the likelihood that many older homeowners are nct just eager to sell but may be in a position to help with financing. Why should a seller want to help with financing? First, of course, to sell the house but then to obtain a double-digit rate of return backed by solid collateral.

The financing picture is everchanging, usually for the better. While it is true that many banks have been burned, and therefore are increasingly strict in appraising properties and potential buyers, most still want to lend.

Finding the best lender isn't nearly as difficult as it once was, either.

With the multiplication of mortgage products, mortgage specialists have become institutions in many communities and are thoroughly knowledgeable about what individual banks offer. They can choose the right one - and for no

Firm helps cut down payment

How would you like to buy a new three-bedroom house of 1,600 square feet with major appliances. two full baths, two-car garage and a landscaped lot for $85,900?

How about if you could buy the house with a down-payment of $4,300 and finance the balance with a 10-year land contract with a 30-year amortization period and an interest rate ranging from 3-10% percent?

And no closing costs.

You could do it if you buy from Oakland Housing Inc., a non-profit foundation begun 54 years ago to provide homes and financing for moderate income families.

The Birmingham-based foundation will buy 27 houses in the River's Edge development of Pontiac and resell the houses to families whose annual gross household incomes generally range frolm $26,000-$40,000. Children's earnings are excluded.

"To a large degree, these are young families with a promising future, but when they're starting out, they just don't have funds to buy a home," said Robert S. Kenning, director of the foundation and former Birmingham city manager.

The lower the annual family income, the lower the mortgage rate.

An annual income of $28,700-$30,599 would qualify for the 3-percent mortgage. Annual income of $34,900-$37,199 would fetch 6 percent.

In determining income, $2,800 is deducted for each family member in excess of two.

The mortgage rate, if less than 10% percent, would rise by 1 percentage point every two years never to exceed 10¼ percent.

Escrow accounts aren't necessary, but applicants should figure on paying $300-$325 per month for taxes and insurance in addition to principal and interest.

After 10 years, they refinance, pay us off and we go off on other projects," Kenning said. Oakland housing buys houses in the subdivision from the builder, Welcome Homes of Clarkston, then re-sells to individual buyers. Oakland Housing also finances the land contracts.

So far, the foundation has approved nine applicants for River's Edge. Eighteen homes are still available in the subdivision on Orchard Lake Road just west of Wide Track Drive.

Rodger and Trosie Davis, along with daughter Ashley, moved in a couple of weeks ago.

The River's Edge quad is the family's first experience with home ownership. Rodger heard about the development from the office of Wallace Holland, mayor of Pontiac.

"It's nice, really well built," Davis said. "It's convenient, roomy, spacious. There's enough room at each level for maneuvering.

What we're saving is a cut in down payment and closing costs. That's the hardest part of buying a house. As long as you've got good credit, you're fine," Davis said.

No applicant will be denied consideration because of race, religion, age, sex or ethnic background, say promotional materials for the development. There is no application fee.

Potential buyers can get the process started by phoning Oakland Housing at 647-4501.

Arrangements will be made to tour models. We'll send a brochure and application," Ken ning said. "If they send it back, we'll send it to a credit bureau for review. If that's satisfactory, we provide a social worker who calls on them in their home."

The social worker fills in holes in the application, checks to see how applicants maintain their current household and gets an idea how they will do in River's Edge, Kenning said.

The foundation's board of directors, which includes Richard H. Austin, secretary of state, makes the final decision on applications.

If buyers don't live in the homes at least three years, they must reimburse the foundation for the mortgage subsidy.

A big reason Welcome Homes could build new houses so inexpensively is that Pontiac paid for the utilities and made the land available at bargain basement prices as part of an urban renewal effort.

Just a fraction of what we spend dining out could help pick up the tab for a good cause.

If we all shared just a small amount of our money and time with the causes we really care about, it would be a sure recipe tor success.

Against hunger. For better health. Or to improve our arts and culture. Millions of people have helped establish five percent of their incomes and five hours of volunteer time per week as America's standard of giving

If we all reached this standard, we could generate more than $175 billion every year. With a force equivalent to 20 million full-time workers So make it your goal to give five. And help keep society well-nourished.

Meadow Brook opens 27th concert season

When it comes to her husband's birthday, Judy Laskos of Troy has just the ticket.

Make that two tickets - to a Meadow Brook Music Festival concert. Each year, Laskos gives concert lickets to her husband for his June birthday, and, as she wrote recently, that has led to many fond memories.

"It's one of our few 'just the two of us' getaways," she wrote. Last year, they went to a Three Dog Night con-cert, and, she wrote, "We went to the concert and not only enjoyed the concert itself, but the outdoors, the scenery and the crowd."

Enjoying an evening of music under the stars at the outdoor concert venue is part of summer for many people such as the Laskoses. Many also bring picnic baskets, lawn chairs and blankets and picnic on the rolling lawn in front of Baldwin Pavilion.

Meadow Brook Music Festival, in a peaceful wooded setting on the grounds of Oakland University in Rochester, opened its 27th season Thursday, June 21, with planist Garrick Ohlsson playing the music of Mozart, Dvorak and Rachmaninoff, with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Conductor was James DePreist.

The festival this year has a new managing director, Gregg Bloomfield. Bloomfield said he will aim to appeal to more diverse musical tastes. In general, however, he said he will make no changes to Meadow Brook's recipe for success, which includes providing a musical variety of classical. '60s rock 'n' roll, jazz, and easy listening.

You keep all the good things, you try to come up with some innovative programming that will attract people to the facility, and you take things that are less successful and reduce those kinds of performances," says Bloomfield, formerly festival manager. The thing that has been the most successful for us in recent seasons has been the old rock-and-roll shows, the children's concerts, and our Laser Light programs."

Rock 'n' roll stars new to Meadow Brook this year include Chubby Checker. The season will also end on a rocking note, with a show by Fats Domino, Hank Ballard & The Mid--nighters, and Bill Haley's Comets, on

Meadow Brook has been the summer home of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for 27 years

Wednesday, Aug. 29.

The children's program has been expanded with the addition of three family nights, including "Serious Fun with The DSO," "New Vaudeville," and "Santa's Summertime Stage" which includes the Thanksgiving Parade.

"It will be the first time that the people who put on the Thanksgiving parade have staged an event in Oakland County," said Bloomfield. "They are going to have the floats and character heads and all sorts of things for that evening. It should be fun."

Laser Light shows have been increased from two to three shows. Bob Newhart will be one of several artists who will perform at Meadow Brook for the first time.

"He was not really convinced he would do well playing a large outdoor venue, but he changed his mind," said Bloomfield. "As soon as he changed his mind, we grabbed him." Many will return to the Meadow Brook Music Festival to see the Detroit Symphony, which has its summer home there, and was the reason the outdoor venue was founded in 1964.

"They have a very faithful following of people who have been coming to Meadow Brook since 1964." said Bloomfield.

"Meadow Brook is one of the few summer homes of symphonies where the orchestra is not amplified in some way in the pavillion. Meadow Brook really has been proud of its fine acoustics. It really is a very fine place to have outdoor music.

Not offered by Meadow Brook is today's rock 'n' roll, which is offered by nearby Pine Knob, and The Palace. Bloomfield said he does not believe the just-announced outdoor amphitheatre to be built at The Palace will present a problem for Meadow

"We really don't think that the new Palace facility will have a deep or significant impact on Meadow Brook, the reason being that they are planning an 18,000 seat facility and we have a facility that accommodates about 7,500 people. There will always be audiences who are appropri-ate to one or the other venue."

The musical play, "Bye Bye Bir-die," starring Tommy Tune, who replaces the originally scheduled Bert Convy, is scheduled from Tuesday through Saturday, July 17-22. Additional concerts may still be announced, said Bloomfield.

Concerts are not the only reason people enjoy Meadow Brook.

There are the surrounding incidental things to the Meadow Brook experience," said Bloomfield. "It is not just coming to a concert; it is coming in and walking around the grounds, which is part of Meadow Brook's 1,600 acres of land which was donated by the Wilsons," he said referring to Dodge widow Matilda Dodge Wilson and her husband, who resided in nearby Meadow Brook Hall. "It's about bringing your own picnic, and eating on the picnic tables, or dining at Trumbull Terrace, which has a buffet just about every evening, or its about coming with your hamper and sitting on the lawn.

"The other advantage that we have as a smaller venue is that we have egress onto two different major thoroughfares so that there are rarely any long traffic jams to get in and out of the facility.

Visitors can also rent tents for parties. There are two tents on the grounds.

Judging by sales, it should be a good season.

"It's looking pretty good," said Jackie Sferlazza of Rochester, Meadow Brook group sales. "Most of the Saturdays are sold out; however, we are always happy to rent off campus tents."

She said that more and more corporations are renting the tents as opposed to churches and individuals, formerly their biggest customers.

There is one other ingredient not to be overlooked as the new season begins.

"We've scheduled beautiful weather," joked Sylvia Coughlin, Meadow Brook Music Festival director of public relations.

Class nips trouble in the bud on local scene

While Michigan community organizations and agencies observe the Month of the Young Child, it is fitting to focus on a serious problem that can affect families in any community --- child abuse and neglect - which is the primary mission of Family Focus, a private, non-profit volunteer agency serving Oakland County.

Family Focus believes that "at the root of many cases of child abuse and neglect is stress, the lack of basic parenting skills, poor family communications, along with the need for better knowledge of money management and problem solving skills."

Therefore, the organization sponsors parenting classes, taught by highly skilled professional teachers. These eight-week sessions are offered throughout the year at various Oakland County locations. While some attending these classes are referred by the courts, churches or other community organizations, others come on their own when they recognize that they are experiencing difficulties.

year-old," explains Family Focus Director Dee Dise, "but may not understand their teenager. These classes can help guide parents."

A modest fee is charged for the classes, but scholarships are available.

Family Focus also maintains a parent advisory phone for the community. Callers will be given referals to agencies available to assist them in their particular situation. A mother at the end of her rope may call," said Dise. "Or, a parent who suspects that his child may be on drugs might call for guidance."

Monitored visitations ordered by Probate or Circuit Court are a primary function of Family Focus. This program provides a visit between noncustodial parents and their children in a neutral

With monitored visitation we protect the child at risk and see that the child and parent have the opportunity to know each other," said Dise. This program is unique to Oakland County and relies on volunteer monitors, donated monitoring sites, such as the YMCA or Salvation Army, and donated materials.

A voluteer undergoes five training sessions and usually works two hours a week.

Most volunteers work with one family at a time, although some have two," said Dise. "We have retired teachers, grandmothers, college interns. There is a constant need for volunteers."

For more information on volunteering, parenting classes or the parent advisory phone, call Family Focus at 642-3083.

At a concert given by a usual local band, the rules are pretty much set: the band performs and the audience passively listens, or maybe dances, if they are extra riled up.

These rules of concert behavior simply don't hold true at a Laughing Hicks concert because, well, the Laughing Hicks are a bit different from other bands.

John Novak, the Hicks' lead singer and strange man extraordinaire, puts it this way: "I'm pretty much a fruit on stage . . . a noodle."

We're not going to argue with that assessment because it pretty well sums up the situation. Novak is into making a concert a participatory event. Instead of remaining on the stage, like most other lead singers, Novak spends half his performance time roaming around in the audience.

rangements are reminiscent of King Crimson's experimentations. Their skillful playing of unusual time settings is something a casual listener might not notice, but, the other musicians hold in awe.

One local musician, upon hearing the Hicks, remarked, "These guys are great musicians - those songs are really impossible to play."

Novak sings/talks through the songs Frank Zappa-style. This is not necessarily due to lack of vocal talent - it is because the Hicks consider their songs to be poems. If Novak says the words instead of singing them, audiences are more apt to understand the lyrics.

"Some parents may get along well with a two-location, monitored by a trained volunteer.

This need for these visitations arises when one parent has been accused of abuse or neglect" said Dise. These visitations will continue until the case is adjudicated. We don't make a judgment. The allegations could be wrong.

If you must stack, keep it organized

You've written before about putting papers in binders, but that's too complicated. I still don't like filing papers, though. Isn't there another way to organize my stacks?

While I don't recommend them, there are several ways to organize piles effectively. If you have large flat areas you can designate spots for specific types of papers. Action items might be piled on the corner of a desk, pending items in a stack next to those, etc. You will find this gobbles up lots of space and collects dust in a hurry, however, and unless you're careful, it looks messy.

For piles of single papers, intro-ers — say article clippings — label a folder "Articles" (with a category such as Health or Organizing, if possible) and slip those into the folder as you look for other things. Most of your stack will at least become grouped into topics.

Horizontal slots might help you. You can buy expensive desktop organizers with horizontal spaces that will provide four to 24 blocks to hold different sizes of papers. An inexpensive version of the same idea would be nine-compartment cardboard shoe organizers, which hold lettersize papers nicely and can be stacked.

Each slot can be labeled for duce file folders gradually into the categories of papers. These would be piles. If you have several similar pap- the same subjects as would use for vertical files such as bills to pay, current events, decisions to be made, copies to make, seminars to attend, etc. One or more slots could be desig-nated for stationery or other supplies.

Frequently used papers can be kept in slots at your work station, with less frequently used items in a more remote location. Tax returns from years past should not be retained in the same place as current financial papers, for instance. Dividers may also be placed in different locations according to where work is done. One set might be kept near a computer and others in an adjoining office, while work done regularly at home could be kept there. Remember to purge outdated papers regularly.

While certainly not ideal, the advantages of this system will appeal to certain people. It is informal, unpretentious, visible and unintimidating. Storage is instant with no "laborious" steps to follow such as opening file drawers, finding appropriate files, etc. Most importantly, it allows horizontal piling - in an organized manner.

He seems to enjoy strolling up to unsuspecting members of the audience and singing right into their faces to get a reaction. More often than not. the audience members are delighted to be singled out and yell things back to Novak and wave at their friends.

On the other hand, some audience members at a recent concert at Cross Street Station seemed a bit hesitant to walk near the stage for fear of suddenly being made into part of the show. Since the path to the restroom at Cross Street leads patrons in front of the stage, we'd venture a guess that a lot of people were ignoring nature's call that evening so that they wouldn't have to step into the limelight.

"We're trying to outrage and amuse everyone at the same time," said fellow Hick Rob Felenchak.

They are doing just that. Consider Novak's dancing. It, too, is quite unusual. At first glance, he appears to be dancing wildly in random patterns and, in the process, looking not unlike a schizophrenic ostrich.

Upon closer inspection, his dancing begins to make sense. His weird, seemingly haphazard gyrations and staccato, angular movements are exactly in time to the music.

Pretty amazing, considering that the other Hicks — Ted Smith, Dave McGlinnen and Felenchak — play some of the most complex rhythmic patterns around.

"(My dancing) was labeled as 'geometric,' " Novak said. "Ive listened to a lot of jazz rhythms that aren't based in 4/4 time and it's hard for me to dance to regular rhythms." The Hick's difficult rhythmic ar-

"People say they like it because they can understand what the words are," said Smith.

The lyrics combined with Novak's movements help to get the Hick's of-ten politically charged messages across to the audience.

"I try to act out songs to a certain degree. I think of them in a way that can be told with the body in mind." said Novak.

That said, all of this meaningful movement doesn't add up to a rigidly choreographed show. At a Laughing Hicks concert there is a feeling of being on the edge, that anything could happen. That's probably because anything can, and in fact often does, happen.

"If I start to go off on a tangent, I will start improvising ... making up poems in my head," said Novak.

This doesn't bother the rest of the band because they seem to have an almost unearthly creative link to each other. This band harmony serves them well whether they are improvising in front of an audience or working out arrangements for new songs.

"John says things like 'I want this to sound like ice," said Felenchak. referring to the band's song-writing process. What is amazing is that the rest of the band understands such nebulous descriptions as this and will, in fact, play something that does sound like ice.

This adds up to material that is almost dauntingly creative. Audiences who are used to the easy-to-swallow, hey-dudes-let's-party genre of music will find themselves initially taken aback by the Hicks' extremely challenging music.

Challenging music, yes, but ultimately satisfying. These guys are truly a ground-breaking quartet.

Acura, Buick surprises on trouble list

Consulting often seems to be the art of getting paid for pointing out the obvious. At least that's the feeling I get every time I read one of those ranking lists for automotive quality published by self-proclaimed consultants such as J.D. Power, which at their worst get even more pedantic and opinionated than self-proclaimed automotive journalists.

Not that I begrudge the befuddled consumer who is simply trying to figure out if the car he is about to buy is going to leave him feeling as though he brought home the Alien for a house

Regardless, it is awfully easy to put together a list of "10 best" or rate something as vague as "consumer satisfaction" and palm it off as if such standing really keeps the battery charged on a cold winter morning. That never seems to deter the advertising community, which, given the generous supply of lists that rank everything somewhere, figures every car deserves a ranking as the top something-or-other.

So it was a bit refreshing when I discovered a list in Automotive Industries that ranked the most complained-about automobiles in the U.S. as compiled by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Frankly, I don't think the guys at Campbell-Ewald will be running down to get copies of this one. Most of the complaints seem to stem from problems with "drive-ability", which seems to cover everything from a chronic stumbling when you start in the morning to something akin to sudden acceleration.

But one of the first things that catches your eye on the AI list is that both the Buick LeSabre and Acura Legend are among the top five mostcomplained-about cars in the U.S.

The NHTSA list also brought to mind the time , I called the NHTSA about my daughter's 1974 Toyota Corolla, a notorious rust bucket that was suffering from severe structural deterioration commonplace with that model, according to local Toyota dealers. NHTSA said they had never had a complaint before.

I still don't know whether this is evidence of some kind of cover-up. More likely, the point is that such lists rarely are compiled with any kind of reasonable methodology — and the result is that odd factors often intrude.

In fact, most quality lists aren't based on lists of actual problems with the cars, but lists of the opinions of their owners. Sure, the owner's opinion is important, but in fact, opinions are formed by everything from his experience with the dealer to how his girlfriend liked the car. This last explains how buyers remain satisfied with Mercedes, which, reliability aside, regularly hands routine service bills to owners that would have a Toyota prospect running for his lawyer.

Roger Penske, who has been a dealer, manufacturer and racing team manager, once suggested that the only real quality criterion is warranty cost - the amount a manufacturer pays to fix a car after it is built. Such figures are kept a close secret, for obvious reasons, although I suspect that if they become public, someone would figure out a way to play with them.

Still, it's something worth putting on your list of things to think about.

Joseph DiRado, owner and president of Brickscape Inc., was recently honored with the Young Entrepreneur Award for Michigan 1990" which is presented by the Small Business Association. The award is given to an entrepreneur under 30 years of age whose company shows a certain percentage growth over the past three or four years. DiRado is 26.

Brickscape's primary business is installing brick patios, sidewalks and driveways. They also sell the brick, which comes in about 10 shapes and sizes, to do it-yourself builders. The company is currently installing brick accents on Main Street in downtown Northville and has done all the new brick work in the city since 1987. The color and style the city prefers is antique Durastone.

There is also a secondary business: A nursery and garden center which opened in the spring of 1989 and which is run by DiRado's wife, Diane.

"My wife is totally in charge of this." Di-Rado said of the garden center. "And she should get an award because her business is doing great. She has a full line of everything. Whatever you need for your yard, she has it."

As a teenager, DiRado mowed lawns to earn some money. This lawnmowing job became DiRado Landscaping. In 1982, in addition to planting trees and laying sod. the company began bricklaying. By 1986, 70 percent of the business was bricklaying and only 30 percent landscaping. In 1987, the bricks became the primary focus and Brickscape was formed.

Between the garden center and selling the bricks - we sell bricks to landscapers who are starting to do their own brick paving jobs — the company is able to stand on its own," DiRado said.

The garden center is doing so well that DiRado plans to move it and the offices into a large building on the property.

"I had been leasing half of it out to a bunk shop," DiRado said. "But the bunk shop is now gone, and Brickscape Gardens and our offices are all going to move

Brickscape does not manufacture the bricks which are shipped from a plant in Ann Arbor, nor do they have any plans to do so

"We're not manufacturers," DiRado said. "We're installers and we're sellers. A lot of people say, 'Don't you do decks? Don't you do landscaping? No, we just want to do the bricks and do them right."

One thing Brickscape does do beyond paving drives and patios is install steps which are pre-made on the property. These "bricksteps" were developed by Di-Rado two years ago and have a patent pending. They are available in one-or twostep variations.

We can make them in different sizes, shapes and colors." DiRado said of his invention. "They are all made by hand. We do have plans to mechanize that process in the future, but that's a couple of years off yet. The big thing is you don't have to try and build a step. You just install it." Brickscape goes through its inventory, which averages about 15,000 square feet, very quickly. "There aren't a whole lot of people in the state who have more brick

Young entrepreneur Joseph DiRado has directed Brickscape to remarkable growth than we do," DiRado said. "We probably have the biggest selection of brick in the area as an independent dealer."

DiRado explains the advantages of brick pavement. "Brick pavement is a flexible concrete pavement. In the winter time, the ground can expand up and down a little bit. Brick can take that expansion without cracking because all the joints are individual.

"Our product is a decorative product. It is long lasting if it is installed right with proper ground conditions. It usually lasts longer than concrete. By that I mean it won't crack."

Unlike the naturally made cobblestones used to pave streets in centuries very precisely and would be a very smooth street surface if brick roads came into style again.

DiRado believes that is not unlikely and predicts that within five years there will be brick parking lots.

"By 1995, brick won't be used just for decorative purposes," DiRado said. "It will be used because it's a good, cost-effective way to put pavement down."

Brickscape isn't limited to the Northville/Novi area and does work all over Southeastern Michigan, even as far away as Lansing. There are no plans to expand into Ohio, however. "We have too much business around here to travel too past, today's bricks are manufactured far." DiRado said of his company's reasons for remaining in state.

> Brickpaving is a seasonal job, lasting nine months. During December, DiRado sells Christmas trees at the garden center. January and February are reserved for paperwork and a short vacation.

> As for the award, DiRado refuses to take sole credit, saying a group effort was responsible for earning it. The award is in my name but it should be in the company's name, because it's not just me. There's my wife, my mother, my father and all our employees. Everybody has a big role in making the company what it is.

LIBERTY MUTUAL INSURANCE CO. announces that its Novi office has been named 1989 Office of the Year for its Middle West Division. The Middle West Division includes 10 states and 47 Liberty Mutual offices.

Each year, Liberty Mutual recognizes one office from each of its nine divisions for this award. The Office of the Year designation is awarded based on certain criteria, such as overall quality of customer service and interdepartmental teamwork.

"Novi was named Office of the Year for its demonstrated and outstanding team effort, and in providing quality service to our policyholders," Middle West Division Manager Howard W. Grue said. "We consistently strive to provide the best quality service to our customers and our Novi employees have done an outstanding job of doing just that. They should all be very proud of their accomplishment."

The manager of the Novi office is Mark A. Butler, who also serves as Michigan district manager. Butler was recently named "District Manager of the Year."

Gordon LaFontaine, president of the LAWN EQUIPMENT CORP. in Novi, was presented a 1990 Honorary Alumni Award during ceremonies that were part of Agriculture and Natural Resources Week at Michigan State University.

LaFontaine's business career is the typical American dream. He started as a salesperson with the Lawn Equipment Corp. in 1965, and through his hard work and promotional and creative excellence, he rose through the company to become president and majority stockholder of the corporation in 1983. His company is the southeastern Michigan distributor for all Snapper lawn products.

FOOD Bouquet of flavors Flowers for eating or garnish are a blooming business Flowers have been used for culinary purposes for centuries and have long been used in Europe and China. Their use is becoming more popular in this country as cooks discover new ways to use them to enhance the flavor and texture of foods and to make the presentation very special. It's fun to try new and exciting recipes in our own kitchens and be creative.

Edward Postif of Edward's Caterer in Northville has been actively using flowers in his products for some time -mainly as garnish, but often as an edible ingredient.

"If we're catering a party - a wedding or a summer party - it gives a great 'quality of life' feeling." Postif says. "It's satisfying to the senses visually. They usually don't have much smell after we've cut them.

"It's very natural. I don't like to use garnishes that are things sculpted out of other fruits or vegetables. I'm not into that."

Among the popular current trends is the use of ivy trailing down the -sides of a wedding cake.

"Ivy is being used a lot this year." Postif says. "It has that English garden look."

Rose petals, plentiful in Michigan all year round, are very versatile, Postif says. They can be scattered on salads for a dash of color that practically leaps off the plate at you. They can also be coated with sugar for a crystalline effect.

Some flowers such as nasturtiums have a great deal of taste, while others are used for garnishing, although they are still edible. Rose water adds a delicate flavor to cookies and other foods, and squash blossoms can be used to hold foods such - as chicken salad. Tulips, with their pistils removed, are a delightful treat stuffed with tuna salad. Lily buds added to a stirfry add a unique flavor.

From main dishes to desserts, edible flowers will make any meal more interesting. Conversation will be lively around a table when they are used

We must caution all cooks to be positive in the identification of the flowers used and to always choose those that have not been sprayed with pesticides. Although many flowers would make attractive garnishes, they may also be toxic. Don't guess, be positive. The botanical names will help, since a particular plant (or parts of it) in a species may be toxic while another one is not.

Postif buys his flowers from a specialty produce company to assure no pesticides are used. He advises against any store-bought plants. For the home gourmet, a window box of organically grown flowers in your own kitchen can provide you with a convenient, year-round supply. Pick flowers at their peak, cut off British wanted to tax the imported tea. The flowers also make a suitable gamish. Sugar can be flavored by putting a handful of the leaves in a cup or so of white sugar and letting it set for several weeks. Use the leaves when a minty flavor is desired, perhaps on fruit or in a cup of tea.

Calendula (Calendula officinal) is often called Pot Marigold. Its bright golden-hued color is used to tint dishes with a saffrony gold, and the blossoms are used to garnish tossed salads or soups. You might want to sprinkle some petals on brown bread and butter for tea sandwiches, which will impart a slightly salty taste. Folklore tells us that their bright colors ward off evil spells of witchcraft.

Chive Blossoms (Allium schoenoprasum and A. tuberosum) are so versatile in cooking, with their mild onion flavor, when used in tossed salads or floating on a clear broth they add a delicate touch. The blossoms can be steeped in white vinegar resulting in a lovely pink, onionflavored vinegar, handy to use in a dressing or marinade. Its symbolism means usefulness, and that it is.

Daylily (Hemerocallis spp.) often used in Oriental cooking also can be used fresh. A simple preparation is to gather buds while they are still quite green and boil them in salted water for three minutes. Serve with butter, oil and vinegar or a cream sauce. They can be added at the last minute to soups and stews. So named because the flowers are open for only one day, they bloom for several months and won't miss the harvesting.

Scented Geraniums (Pelargonium spp.) are used in many culinary recipes. The rose, peppermint and lemon varieties are especially nice. A petal or two placed in the bottom of a well-buttered pan before pound cake batter is poured in will impart a special flavor to the cake. The leaves can be used to flavor sugar the same as is done with Bergamot leaves, and they also can be used as a garnish. The flowers can be candied. The first geraniums arrived in Europe about 1632 on Dutch and English ships from the South African Cape.

Lavender (Lavendula spp.) blossoms are used to garnish iced beverages, and a few petals placed in the bottom of a jelly glass before adding the preferred jelly will add a gourmet touch to the finished product. Lavender flowers are always used in the dry culinary mixture, Herbs de Provence, for flavoring poultry and meats. Lavender has long been used to scent linens; toilet water was a necessity for 19th center ladies. The fragrance can evoke many nostalgic memories.

Nasturtium (Tropaeolum majus), called Indian watercress, is probably one of the most recognized edible thoughts are associated with these little gems.

Many flowers can be frozen in ice cubes or ice rings to add elegance to a punch bowl. Try borage, sweet woodruff and the violas. Vinegars can be made with a combination of flowers. Try four parts fragrant rose petals and one part lavender blossoms, or equal parts, pinks, rose petals and rosemary. A cupful of petals to a pint of warmed white vinegar, infused 10 days in a warm place, then strained and bottled, will do the trick. If the vinegar is made of just rose petals it will be ready for the rose petal salad which you will find in the accompanying recipes.

CARNATION VINEGAR 1 cup carnation petals 4 cups white wine vinegar 6 cloves Pull the petals off the flower stems; snip and discard white heels. Wash carefully and dry well. Heat the vinegar to lukewarm. Place the flower petals and cloves in a jar and crush gently with a wooden spoon. Cover with warmed vinegar and cap tightly. Do not use a metal cap. Steep, on a sunny windowsill about 3 weeks. Strain into bottles and cork tightly. Makes approximately 1 quart.

Presented in alphabetical order, here are some of the more interesting and readily available flowers:

Apple Blossoms (Malus spp.) have a delicate taste and can be used as a garnish right from the tree, sprinkled over a fruit salad to welcome spring. They can also be crystalized.

Borage (Borago officinalis) flowers are a bright starlike blue and can be used the same as apple blossoms. Cakes and other desserts and salads are improved by their use, or a single ... blossom floating on a cup of punch is nice. Borage has been known as the herb of courage for many centuries.

Bergamot (Monarda didyma) leaves and blossoms were used to make tea by the Colonists after the flowers, with its peppery and piquant flavor. The orange, red, yellow and creamy white flowers make any dish sparkle when used as a garnish and in tossed salads. The stems can be chopped and added to vegetable soup, a favorite of President Eisenhower. The blossoms will hold dips or sandwich fillers while the leaves make an attractive bed on which to put pickled carrots and the like. In addition, the seeds are pickled and used as a substitute for capers. Nasturtiums were highly valued by Thomas Jefferson.

Pinks (Dianthus spp.) grow readily in the garden and with their clovelike taste add a pretty touch to many dishes. Float some on cold soups or in a punch bowl, or add to a salad. A relative of the carnation, they can be

Squash Blossoms (Cucurbita spp.) will elicit surprised exclamations when served, and since the vines are prolific bearers, a few blossoms won't be missed. Even pump-kin blossoms can be stuffed, and don't forget the zucchini. The flavor is

Here's an easy way to candy flow ers. Pick the flowers after the dew has dried. Then use a soft paint brush or your finger and paint the flowers with a lightly beaten egg white mixed with I tablespoon cold water. Dip the flowers in extra-fine sugar, fry in a very slow oven until crisp, or lay in a single layer on an uncovered dish, placed in the refrigerator for several days. The flavor of these flowers can be enhanced by adding to the egg white: For violets, 2 drops almond flavoring, or to rose petals, 2 drops lemon extract. Eleanor & Ray Heald/Wine After lean times, the Napa Valley stages a comeback

What goes around, comes around. The wine business, as well as fashion, seems to be cyclic in nature. This has been demonstrated in California's Napa Valley.

In 1989, the number of working wineries in Napa Valley reached a high of 143. It took nearly 100 years to achieve a new high. In the interim, the wine industry suffered one catastrophe after another.

In the late 19th century, phyliaxera, a vine root louse, destroyed many vineyards. In the early 20th century, Prohibition followed by the Great Depression reduced the number of producing wineries. By 1960, only 25 wineries had survived.

It's amazing, but the rebirth of the California wine industry, or at least Napa Valley, began only 30 years ago. When people say that the American wine industry is fledgling compared to Europe, this is what they mean. Today, Napa has rebounded to a total of 193 wineries.

In 1886, James and George Goodman built a Napa Valley winery with the intention of using the grapes from their 280-acre Eschol Estate Vincyard. The Goodmans' Eschol Cabernet Sauvignon gained fame after earning a gold medal at the 1888 San Francisco Viticultural Fair.

In 1968, when Napa Valley was still a sleepy community, Gene and Katle Trefethen purchased the old Eschol estate plus 320 adjoining acres and turned their attention from growing walnuts to harvesting wine grapes. At that time, walnuts, peaches and prunes were the cash crops of choice in the Napa Valley.

The Trefethens' son John realized the potential of winemaking in the Napa Valley and undertook the task of renovating the winery, now a national historic landmark of early California winery architecture.

In 1973, John and his wife Janet produced their first 2,000 cases of wine.

Trefethen Vineyards produces 75,000 cases of wine annually from grapes grown exclusively on thier property between the towns of Napa and Yountville, along Highway 29. Trefethen wines are estate grown, produced and bottled. Emphasizing a style that is determined by their estate-grown fruit, Trefethen stresses important vineyard practices like planting, nurturing and harvesting the best grapes the land can give them.

Trefethen Vineyards, in the cool, southern end of Napa Valley, successfully grows chardonnay, white riesling, merlot, cabernet sauvignon, zinfandel and pinot noir. The vineyard property is so large that even today half the Trefethen harvest is sold to prestigious wineries such as Domaine Chandon and Domaine Mumm.

With more than 20 years' experience with its own vineyards, Trefethen has developed a wine style that repeats itself as a continuing thread throughout the wines. Made with a minimum of handling, the theme is clean, crisp, well-balanced wines that showcase fruit rather than oak. "We let the fruit speak through the wine," contends Janet Trefethen.

Trefethen 1989 White Riesling ($9.75) has aromas of apples, flowers and orange blossoms in a totally dry style that is rare among California white rieslings.

Trefethen 1987 Chardonnay ($19.50) has a straightforward grapefruit character to complement food. Fish, seafood or oysters are well-paired with the clean, lean lines of this wine. Since the high acid balance of Trefethen chardonnays always allows them to age, Trefethen has developed a rerelease program whereby consumers can purchase older vintages of chardonnay that have been bottle aged, in perfect conditions at the winery.

These mature wines are labeled "Library Selection" and are offered as limited editions. The 1983 Chardonnay ($22) leaves a clean palate impression consistent with the younger wine. The attraction of this wine is the rich, buttery nose and oak impression not immediately evident in the younger wine.

The 1986 Trefethen Cabernet Sauvignon ($18), blended with 15 percent merlot, highlights blackberry and black currant fruit aromas and soft tannins, in a solid, wellstructured package.

Named after the original estate, the Trefethen Eschol Red and White Wines represent value-priced quality for everyday enjoyment. The wines are non-vintaged so that deep, complex characteristics can be built into the wines by blending aged varietals from previous vintages.

Trefethen Eschol White (7.50) is 90 percent chardonnay, and could be labeled as such, with 10 percent riesling to add aromatic highlights. At the same price, the Eschol Red is an attractive blend of cabernet, zinfandel, pinot noir and merlot, aged at the winery and ready to drink when purchased.
