DeMattia describes Huntington Falls

By ST
Staff Writer

The Meadowbrook Country Club provided a fitting backdrop for developer Robert DeMattia's presentation of conceptual plans for the posh Huntington Falls development planned in Northville Township.

And the major players in the development were all present at last Thursday's presentation, including representatives from The Selective Group and The Heritage Group, two other developers involved in the project.

Officials from Northville township and city, as well as Plymouth Township, were invited to hear the latest plans for what may be the largest single development in western Wayne County's history.

Robert DeMattia, head of the Plymouth Township development firm of R. A. DeMattia, conducted the hour-long talk and slide show presentation. His firm heads the group which purchased the 933 acres of land between Five Mile and Six Mile roads from Wayne County earlier this year, for $32 million.

The group plans to build roughly equal portions of residential, recreational/open space, and office/light industrial development on the land.

DeMattia said his group has completed negotiations with Wayne County over transfer of the former county land to the developers involved in the mixed-use development.

He said the agreement is now before the Wayne County Board of Commissioners awaiting their final approval.

"As a practical matter, we're not in a position to bring anything official before the township planning commission or board," DeMattia told the roughly 30 people who turned out for the informal presentation.

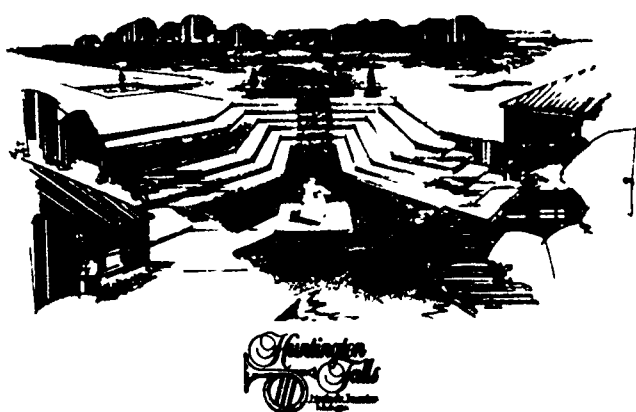

But DeMattia said that interest in the project is running high. He said his company has already received calls from dozens of people interested in Huntington Falls homes.

DeMattia added that his development group is committed to seeing the Huntington Falls project through to its finish. "I moved to Northville when I got out of Vietnam, and I've been living here ever since," he said. He added that his company has a majority of its investments in the Northville/Plymouth area, as does the Selective Group.

"So we have a lot at stake in this, and we are not speculators on the land," he said. "We're here to execute this thing over its entire 11-year

Spirited parade planned

From a bed race to fireworks, the annual Northville celebration of Independence Day will be filled with fun and patriotic zeal.

The annual Fourth of July celebration will begin with a bed race through the streets of downtown Northville. The bed race is in desperate need of entrants this year, however. According to the Northville Community Recreation Department, Dundalk Lane/Dundalk Court of Northville Commons subdivision has won the event three times running and is more than anxious to take on "all comers".

Rules and regulations for the race are available at the Northville Community Center, 303 W. Main. Entry deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, June 29.

This year's Fourth of July parade and Mill Race barbecue is sponsored again by the Northville Jaycees. The parade will begin at 10 a.m. Grand Marshalls for this year's event are Glenn and Lois Long. The route will start at the Northville Downs parking lot. The group will travel north on Griswold to Main Street, go west on Main to Rogers, south on Rogers to Cady, east on Cady to Wing Street, south on Wing to Fairbrook, east on Fairbrook back to the Downs.

The theme of this year's parade is "We've got the spirit". Everyone is welcome to participate with floats, antique vehicles and marching groups. There are prizes awarded for all classifications.

There will be a decorated bike contest as usual this year. Children participating in the contest should meet at the Downs parking lot no later than 9:15 a.m. for judging.

All groups participating in the parade should meet at the Downs starting spot no later than 9 a.m.

The finale

No stage fright kept Tricia Putvin, 8, of Gayles Dance Place from doing her best during last weekend's Summersong Festival in downtown Northville. Tricia performed in the gazebo during one of the many entertainment sessions of the day. Entertainment returns to Northville each Friday in the gazebo as the Northville Arts Commission sponsors music programs.

Other activities sponsored by the Jaycees on the Fourth of July will include the barbecue at Mill Race Village which runs from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the fireworks display.

The annual picnic at Mill Race will include a dunk tank and a watermelon eating contest, courtesy of the Northville Rotary Club. The menu for the barbecue will include hot dog dinner, $3.50; bratwurst dinner, $4.25; sausage dinner, $5. Dinners include sandwich, cole slaw, chips and pop. All items will also be sold separately. Ice tea and lemonade will be available from Guernsey Dairy.

The Novi Concert Band will provide music in the Mill Race gazebo from 1-2 p.m.

The annual fireworks celebration is scheduled for 10 p.m. at Northville High School's athletic field. Parking donations of $1 will be taken at the high school and Amerman and Cooke schools.

While the Northville Jaycees are sponsoring the day's events, many donations are necessary to make the day successful. Donations can be sent to the Northville Jaycees at P.O.

Box 241, Northville, 48167.

Anyone with a convertible vehicle who would like to drive a dignitary in the parade should contact Bob Cummings at 349-4528.

The Jaycees are also seeking parade judges. Anyone interested should contact Cummings at the number above. Judges work at city hall from approximately 9:30-11:30.

School budget okayed

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A 1990-91 operating budget of more than $21 million was unanimously approved by the Northville Public Schools Board of Education June 25.

The new budget reflects a nearly $2-million increase — or 9.9 percent — over the revised 1989-90 district general fund budget — an increase which was generated by heightened property-tax revenues.

The budget adoption was the culmination of meetings and hearings which began in January, said Director of Business and Finance John Street.

The school budget is based upon enrollment and will serve as a working document, but will not become official until next fall, after the release of fourth Friday enrollment figures, Street said.

Superintendent of Schools George Bell said school enrollment is expected to climb by 252 students for 1990-91.

The increased budget revenue will pay for the additional students, he said.

Street said the district expenditures amount to approximately $5,400 per student.

The first consideration in the budget process is the enrollment estimate, Street said. He said enrollment affects the number of teachers and supplies needed to operate the school.

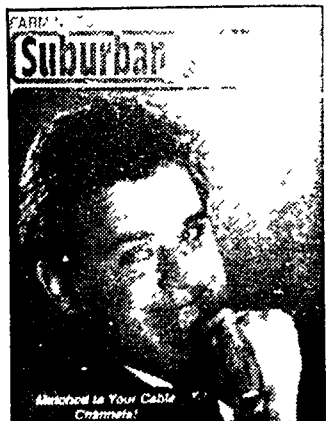

He noted that salaries and fringe benefits of school employees account for more than 80 percent of the operating budget.

State Prep Champions:

It's never an easy task to successfully defend a championship in any sport at any level of competition, but 33 of the titles won by schools in Michigan High School Athletic Association tournaments during the 1989-90 school year were repeat efforts.

In all, 73 schools laid claim to the 93 first-place trophies presented in 23 sports, with 29 of those schools winning for the first time in those activities. In addition to 31 successful title defenses, two schools — Schoolcraft in football and Birmingham-Detroit Country Day in boys basketball — moved up in class and repeated as champions.

Eleven of the 73 schools winning in 1989-90 took more than one crown, led by Marquette and Escanaba, which each won five championships. Three crowns were taken by Fowler, Ann Arbor-Pioneer, Grosse Pointe Woods-University Liggett and Country Day.

Winning streaks in two sports reached the decade mark in 1989-90. Marquette in girls cross country and University Liggett in girls tennis each won its tenth straight title; Marquette also made it eight in a row in boys tennis.

Area schools lose aid battle

By TIM RICHARD
SCC News Service

LANSING — The Northville and Novi school districts will lose an unknown amount of state aid money under a compromise school-finance plan.

Many suburban school districts will find their state categorical aid cut this fall. The Michigan Legislature last week played Robin Hood with $50 million, closing the gap between rich and poor school districts.

Two committee chairs negotiated the deal in a massive bill that raises overall state aid by 7.7 percent to $3.15 billion.

"Their sentiment was to take from one group of districts to give to another group of districts," said Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

Faxon, whose district includes Novi, was a member of the six-person House-Senate conference committee which was to negotiate a compromise. But he said Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, and Rep. James O'Neill, D-Saginaw, cut the deal without calling the committee together.

All Oakland County senators, including Faxon and Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, and Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, voted against the measure. They were joined by Macomb's senators, including Democratic chief Art Miller of Warren.

The deal was struck Thursday morning, and by noon the Senate passed it 22-14, two votes more than the bare minimum of 20. Among out-state supporters was gubernatorial candidate John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant.

House approval was expected Friday. Gov. James Blanchard is likely to sign it because he has advocated narrowing the rich-poor gap.

A breakdown of how individual school districts will be affected was unavailable at press time, but Northville and Novi appeared to be "losers."

A legislative staff analysis showed Northville having combined local-state revenue of $5,755 per pupil next fall, up 4 percent over the current year.

Novi's revenues will be $5,884 per pupil, also up 4 percent.

But those increases would come in spite of less state aid money, meaning the local districts will spend more local money. That will come from rising property assessments.

Under the compromise plan, Northville and Novi will be using local revenues to pay for part of such state-mandated programs as special education.

Walled Lake appears to be in nearly a break-even situation, with $5,820 per pupil in revenues, up 7 percent.

The leadership's aim was to reduce the gap between the poorest districts, which have only $2,500 per pupil, and the richest, such as Birmingham with its $8,577.

The bill was bitterly attacked by suburban senators.

Doug Cruce, R-Troy, said Oakland County has 11 percent of the state's population, pays 16 percent of the taxes and gets 6 percent of state spending.

"Aw-w-w-w," said a chorus of voices.

Fessler called it a Robin Hood plan that didn't always take from the rich. Low-income districts such as Holly are hit by it, he said.

Replied John Cherry, D-Cllo: "The basic principle is that the funding gap between districts will not widen. There may be losers in this type of plan. But the public understands this (funding gap) can't continue."

"Robin Hood is a positive force for good when things aren't equitable," Cherry said.

Doc Doyle

I read your column encouraging a mother to hold her son back a year before entering kindergarten or at least put him in a pre-kindergarten program because he was a very young 5-year-old. You said it was especially important if it is a boy who is not ready.

Then I read a newspaper article where a local school district did away with their pre-kindergarten program because their evaluation of it showed there was no difference in reading and math test scores by the third grade of those who were held back a year and those who were not. Who does one believe? Why did this district do away with the pre-kindergarten program?

Test scores given three years later in the third grade should not be used to determine if a child is ready for kindergarten three years prior. There is more to school entry than how a kid tests out in the third grade.

I know the district you refer to; it is a fine district. Their pre-kindergarten (an extra year of school for those children considered not ready for formal schooling) grew from 5 percent to 30 percent.

The major problem there was that pre-kindergarten became so popular that many parents wanted to hold their kids back so they would be 6 years old and hopefully be the biggest, strongest, most experienced and brightest kid in their class.

In some districts it literally was becoming like "red-shirting" college athletes has become. Keep the athlete out of college football for one year so he/she is bigger and stronger by their sophomore year while still technically a freshman with four years of eligibility.

Hold the 5-year-old back a year and have a 6-year-old compete with 5- and even 4-year-olds.

The pre-kindergarten, sometimes called development kindergarten or kindergarten, is losing much of its momentum because many school districts are revising their kindergarten curriculums to make it more age-appropriate.

Over the last few years the first- and even second-grade curriculum were being pushed down into the kindergarten.

This pattern was especially prevalent in affluent school districts where children enter school with many enriching experiences.

This parent pressure emanated from people with good intentions, but who don't understand or don't accept the developmental steps necessary for children at this age level. The Japanese do and their kindergarten is a time for children to explore and to become socially and emotionally ready for their next 12 to 17 years of schooling. Shouldn't we give the 4- and 5-year-olds a break for at least one year?

Another major reason for the reduction of pre-kindergarten classes is the cost to the school budget.

In 1988-1989 I was contracted to do a study of the Grand Rapids Forest Hills pre-kindergarten program. The program grew from 5 percent of the kindergarten population to 40 percent. Forest Hills is a high socioeconomic community with informed parents and bright kids.

I found it impossible to imagine that 40 percent of the kids in this community were not ready for kindergarten.

The cost for more teachers to run the program in Forest Hills grew from about $60,000 a year to $183,786 a year.

Since this program added another year of education (a 14th year) for 40 percent of the incoming kindergarten population, the projected cost of the program by the time these kids graduated was $3.8 million. That's a lot of money for teacher instructional materials.

The study you read about takes on a whole new light. The results are probably true, but the reason that district dropped the pre-kindergarten program was cost, which resulted in a new and more appropriate curriculum approach.

Lowry joined the Lawrence Tech faculty in 1985, and taught previously at Oakland University, Oakland Community College and Schoolcraft Community College. She holds undergraduate and graduate degrees from Eastern Michigan University.

Lowry is called a "demanding but fair and caring" teacher by her students and described as a professor willing to spend extra time to assure that they understand course material. Lowry is also active developing continuing education courses with industry, serving as faculty advisor to Delta Tau Sigma sorority, and helping lead such events as the Lawrence Tech Alumni Association golf tournament. She is a member of the Mathematics Association of America and the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

John McDermott displays his table shuffleboard prowess to Cheryl Collins

by FRANK EICHENLAUB
Staff Writer

It dates back to William Shakespeare and the 1500s. Rumors have it that King Edward banned the game because of its immense popularity, although royalty continued to play. Eventually, it found its way to the states in the late 1800s, and has shuffled through times of great and waning popularity for the past 100 years.

But now, listen to Phil Skover, president of The Shuffleboard Federation Inc., and you may believe shuffleboard's past popularity may be a thing of the near future.

Skover's corporation promotes shuffleboard — played on a long table, not on the floor — tournaments throughout the United States.

In fact, the Northville-based federation acts as the sole promoter of the table-top game in the country.

"We know that we can take Joe Blow off the street, show him a shuffleboard table, and show him how to play, and we can hook this guy on the game," said John McDermott, vice president and one of the top 10 players in the nation.

And that sums up one of the distinct goals of The Shuffleboard Federation.

"I always thought about this game," Skover said. "It's a great game. But it was never promoted properly."

According to the federation, table shuffleboard's participation skyrocketed 100 percent over the past five years. Currently, more than 10 million people play in over 5,000 leagues and on more than 500,000 tables.

Skover said much of that upswing in popularity is a credit to his group. In addition to increasing participation, the corporation also standardized a set of rules for the game and developed a handicap system similar to golf's.

"For the first time in the history of the sport the rules are standardized," McDermott said. "You can leave home for a competition and not have too many surprises."

Skover said that the company has over 30 amateur and professional competitions "under our belt" in its three years of existence.

And now the company has picked up corporate sponsorship for its largest tournaments. For example, over Memorial Day weekend shuffleboarders could compete in the 1990 Budweiser Michigan Shuffleboard Tournament.

All net proceeds from that event went to the Michigan Agent Orange Commission, which serves the children of indigent Vietnam veterans who have special needs.

To give away prize money, the federation had to be tied to and raising money for a state-approved organization. Skover, a Vietnam veteran, decided to develop relations with the agent orange commission.

Although the corporation is three years old, Skover began researching past promoters six years ago. Skover said that at least five people have attempted to promote the game.

"It was a good time to make a career change about six years ago and I took a shot at this," said Skover, who was formerly a real estate broker. "I thought that if it was promoted properly and exposed to everyone, it would catch on. And I know people are going to love it."

Skover, McDermott and Cheryl Collins, vice president, presently log 60-75 hours a week in working full time for the company.

Now six years and "a lot of money" into the venture, Skover considers it a success.

McDermott said, "We know that in a couple years everybody will be aware of shuffleboard and they'll think it was an overnight success."

However, to become truly successful the table-top type must overcome a glaring identity crisis.

"I think what most people don't know is that it's not what the older people play on the floor," said Collins, who is in the top 10 in women's rankings.

In fact, the floor game is a derivative of table-top shuffleboard.

The story passed among generations of shuffleboard players, Skover said, is that the game originated in English prisons as "shovel penny."

Prisoners drew a line in the dirt and the closest to the line with a penny won.

In the late 1800s, shuffleboard tournament coverage reached an all-time high, earning as much newspaper space as baseball and prize fights. The game's popularity was also high before World War II and immediately after.

But hustlers and pool eventually spoiled shuffleboard.

"The hustlers definitely had an effect," McDermott said. "There were a number of guys 20 to 30 years ago who were literally living on this, going town to town pulverizing local players."

Mixed-use development pitched to planners

build-out. Some of it's ego, and some of it's that we're here."

DeMattia then listed some of the developers' goals in building Huntington Falls. "A goal is a dream with a deadline," he said. "We have to have this project move forward."

DeMattia said his group wants to create "a comprehensively planned mixed-use development unique in the marketplace . . . that allows residential and business uses to exist in harmony."

The crowd viewed a high-tech slide show presentation, complete with a musical score, interspersing shots of young children and horses with conceptual drawings of homes and offices and interior and exterior shots of previous DeMattia projects.

An equestrian theme dominates the entire Huntington Falls project. "We want to pursue a Lexington, Kentucky feeling," DeMattia said. White picket fences, special landscaping, and horse stables and pastures on either side of Sheldon Road would contribute to that feeling, he said.

Another unique concept is an aqua driving range, a pond with "target islands" and "target barges" at which to drive floating golf balls. The balls would then be collected for reuse.

"The objective is not the country club feel but the golf club/health club feel," DeMattia said.

Other recreational uses would include horseback riding trails in the summer, cross-country skiing trails and ice skating in the winter. "We're going to encourage the populace to come out and enjoy this area," DeMattia said.

DeMattia admitted the development will still change with input from township officials and further site work. The township's proposed Planned Unit Development (PUD) ordinance will also impact the development, he said. That ordinance has been referred to the Board of Trustees by the planning commission, and could be approved within the month.

"But generally speaking, the development concepts and land use proportions of this plan will be the same," DeMattia said.

Gary Roberts, vice president of development for R. A. DeMattia, said the development's land use ratios and placement were influenced by the surrounding area. "What we're doing is moving these perimeter uses and extending them into the development in a logical fashion," he said.

The proposal calls for the southwest side of the property to be office and light industrial, including research and development. An 18-hole golf course open to the public would run from east to west through the center of the property west of Sheldon Road, separating the office portion from residential sites to the north. The east portion of the property would be primarily given over to residential uses.

DeMattia said a relatively small portion of the office area could be available to retailers and restaurant uses.

"The total project looks like it's going to have a value of over $2 billion," DeMattia said.

He said he expected construction to start next summer, providing the project is approved by the township. He said the first phase of the project would involve a "three-pronged attack," including building of the per-

He estimated the township would start realizing tax revenue from the development in a year and a half.

WALKAWAYS: Walkaways from Northville State Hospital, 41001 Seven Mile Road, were reported to Northville Township police on the following dates and times:

June 18 at 6 p.m.; June 19 at 2:10 and 5:07 p.m.; June 20 at 12:19 p.m.; and June 21 at 12:05 p.m.

DISTURBING THE PEACE: Northville Township police received a disturbing the peace call from Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, June 18 at 11:25 p.m. The report indicated that unruly subjects refused to leave the store area.

LAWN DAMAGED: A Rayburn resident told Northville Township police someone drove over his lawn causing an estimated $400 damage. The incident occurred June 16 between midnight and 6 a.m.

BIKES STOLEN: A pair of bikes valued at $275 were reported stolen from a Lehigh Court residence June 15 between 9 p.m. and midnight.

BREAKING AND ENTERING: Township police received a report of a breaking and entering at Lirato's Party Store, 41106 Five Mile. The complainant reported that 12 bags of aluminum cans — valued at $300 — were stolen from a storeroom area sometime between 10:45 p.m. June 15 and 6:40 p.m. June 16. Thieves reportedly gained entrance to the storeroom by peeling off a section of a corrugated aluminum roof, police said.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234, Northville Township Police at 349-9400, or the Novi Police Tip Line at 349-6887.

School budget increase is blamed on enrollment under the new budget, Street said, and funds which normally would have been targeted for facilities and equipment were put to other uses.

"We're fortunate we had the (1989 voter approved $16-million) bond issue," he said. "We were able to fund a lot of the capital outlay (which) enabled us to focus more on the day-to-day operational costs."

Street said school administrators presented a proposed budget to the school board in early April. He said a Truth in Taxation hearing was held June 11, at which time the public was allowed an opportunity to voice opinions on the proposed budget.

"There were no public questions at that hearing," he said.

Street said the 1990-91 budget was consistent with the goals of the school district.

"I think the community and board have provided a direction they want to see the school go in," he said. "Within the constraints of revenue, the budget carries forward the program from previous years."

Air patrol changes command

A "Change of Command" was held on May 9 at the Northville Mustang Cadet Squadron, Michigan Civil Air Patrol-United States Air Force Auxiliary.

The squadron was honored by the Deputy Commander Maj. John Spannos, performing the duty of "Change of Command." Maj. Timothy Dickinson was relieved, at his request, of his duty as Squadron Commander of the Northville Mustang Cadet Squadron. The command was awarded to 2nd Lt. Carl Seaberg, II.

Spannos thanked Dickinson for his outstanding performance of six years as a squadron commander. As commander, he spent two years at Novi, then he chartered Northville in 1986. He recalled the growth of 22 cadets and 12 seniors from the original six cadets and three seniors under his leadership at Northville.

Spannos also remembered the many excellence and merit awards achieved by the cadets and seniors during these years. He was pleased to know Dickinson would remain with the squadron in an advisory position. At this time Spannos addressed the squadron and hoped they would be as dedicated under the new command of Seaberg. He asked that they continue to strive for excellence in all they endeavor.

The entire squadron applauded Dickinson. After the ceremony each cadet and senior member personally thanked him and pledged to carry on under the command of Seaberg in a manner that would honor him and the Civil Air Patrol.

MONDAY BUSINESS

Forty years and counting

Local roofer sees life change in area

By RICK KEATING
Special Writer

Othal "Bim" Baggett, owner and operator of Baggett Roofing and Siding, is celebrating 40 years in business this year and is showing no sign of retiring anytime soon.

"We intend to keep going until we can't climb ladders anymore," he says.

Baggett, who came to Northville in 1937, began roofing as a teen-ager, working for Sterling Fryman. In 1950, he started his own business, working out of an apartment on Randolph Street in Northville. He made $2,800 that year, but notes that "Every year's been better. Every year we increase the business."

Baggett Roofing and Siding is a residential commercial roofer, although they are phasing out the commercial work and the siding. When he began, Baggett was doing the work himself; now he hires 10 to 12 employees to assist him.

Baggett's employees do most of the roofing. Much of his time is spent measuring the job and getting permits.

"We didn't used to have permits," says Baggett. "Now you have to have permits for everything. Now it's quite an involved thing, getting the permits and measuring the job. I don't have a lot of time to work on them anymore. But, I still do occasionally."

Despite the hassles, Baggett feels it's beneficial for the homeowners. "Our customer is assured he's getting a licensed contractor, someone who's normally insured. Then they have a record of it, if anything goes wrong," says Baggett.

Baggett has done roofing work for governments, including the old fish hatchery on Seven Mile, Northville City Hall and the historical section of Northville. "We do jobs for just about everybody," he says.

When Baggett first started out, in the early '50s, working on new houses was the primary focus of his business. "Back at that time, all the old carpenters used to get everything. There were no specialty items back then. At that time, the only thing there was new work, so we had to go and do new houses. We did new houses for 25 years."

By the time the older houses started needing roofing repairs, most of the older carpenters had retired.

Few if any were really interested in doing a roofing job. Baggett came in and repaired and replaced the roofs.

"It got to be a specialty thing at that time," he explains. "Everybody did their own thing. A roofer did his thing, a carpenter did his, and that was the extent of it."

Today Baggett very rarely does new houses, which sometimes involve working in the winter. Only for friends or long time customers will he consider doing the job.

"We don't specialize in new houses," he says. "Only re-roofs."

Baggett notes that many things have changed since he first started out, when Northville was much smaller. "I used to know everybody in town, practically," he says. "Now I don't know anybody and I work with people in town every day."

Despite that feeling, he still tries to maintain a personal relationship with his customers.

"Everybody I do a job for I talk to," he says. "I don't send a salesman out to anybody to sell them a job. That's how we get most of our jobs, from referrals. We try to follow up. If somebody has a complaint, we try to resolve it."

In keeping with this philosophy, Baggett goes up on the roof himself and inspects it before giving repair estimates. "We always check them out thoroughly, so that when we give somebody a price on a job, they know what it's going to be; there's no hidden extras."

Although he has always operated out of Northville, Baggett at one time used to do business over a vast area of southeastern Michigan. These days, he concentrates more on the local area.

"We used to travel quite a ways," he says. "We used to go to Ann Arbor, Bloomfield and Detroit. Now we keep it confined to this area: Northville, Novi, Farmington, Livonia and Plymouth. It's getting so populated here now that you don't have to travel. We always get more work than we can handle."

Baggett prefers working locally, because he can give everybody better service and get the job done faster as well.

Baggett and his crew work six days a week and are on the job from 7 a.m. to as late as 10 p.m. But, despite the uncertain hours, he prefers the work he does to the perhaps more financially rewarding job of the white-collar office worker.

"The job where you get up and go in the morning, that's routine. You get tired of that. It's boring. I don't quit at 4:30. If we've got a job we started, and it's going to take us until 8 at night to finish it, we're going to finish it."

The shingles Baggett uses are made primarily of asphalt and fiberglass. The selection has grown from six or seven colors and styles to more than 300. Because of this large selection, Baggett no longer keeps stock.

"We keep nothing any more," he says. "We used to. When we did new houses, we always stocked materials because we knew what we were going to use."

"Now there are so many different things on the market that we might not use the same thing twice in a month."

Fortunately, since he gets his supplies from local wholesalers, ordering materials is rarely a problem. They usually come in the next day.

The manufacturer warrants the material for anywhere from 25 to 35 years, depending on what is used. Baggett guarantees the labor for one year, and while he only does roofing from spring to December, he offers maintenance service all year long.

Knowing the topic key to seminars

I'm interested in conducting seminars about my company and what we offer to our business customers. How do I get started?

Before anything else, keep in mind that the purpose of a seminar is to inform and educate participants on topics they know little or nothing about. If your proposed seminar does not attempt to do this, it will be perceived as nothing more than an obvious sales pitch among attending guests.

To help you decide on prospective seminar topics, consider the most common questions asked by potential customers about your business or industry.

For example, I recently spoke with a management consultant who developed a seminar on legal forms of business for the would-be entrepreneur. You can also review the upcoming events section of business publications to get an idea of the seminars being offered by industry professionals.

First-time seminar programs may initially be offered to local community groups (such as rotary clubs, business networking groups, and service organizations) as part of their monthly luncheon programs or annual membership meetings. Taking advantage of these speaking opportunities allows you to fine-tune your presentation skills before you offer them to industry associations and other professional groups on a fee-paid basis.

Regarding compensation, you will find that most organizations offer honorarium (a standard fee ranging from $50 to $100) to guest speakers conducting short seminar sessions (two hours or less). Of course, you are free to sponsor your own seminar at local community centers, libraries or other facilities. In this type of situation, the person seminar fee may range up to $75, depending on session length, material preparation or distribution costs and room rental rates.

What are some of the common mistakes first-time seminar leaders make?

The laundry list is as follows: (1) not knowing enough on the seminar topic being presented; (2) not practicing the seminar presentation enough to be completely comfortable with the material; (3) trying to cover too much material in too short a time frame; (4) reading the seminar presentation from a script or note cards; (5) not having enough handouts or business cards for distribution; (6) not making a point to collect business cards from guests; (7) failing to follow up on any leads generated as a result of the presentation.

Changing titles at Chrysler Corp.

Chrysler Vice Chairperson Gerald Greenwald quit the other day to go to work for my ex-brother-in-law, who is a pilot for United Air Lines. Which ought to make Dick happy, since he has been worried about his pension ever since the United Air Lines pilots union decided they wanted to run their own railroad, so to speak.

Greenwald's announcement that he is quitting Chrysler to head up the employee buy-out of UAL came as a shock to everyone who assumed that working for Chairman Lee had something of the same kind of job security as, say working for the Pope. People a little closer to the organization noticed that Mr. Iacocca had a habit of asking two guys to sit at the table with him at the same time, and only holding out one chair.

Regardless, the announcement set off the usual round of stories about a "shakeup" at Chrysler and a secondary fallout of speculation about who will succeed Mr. Iacocca as chairman, when that time comes.

This line-of-succession stuff always fascinates me, since I never could figure out exactly why anybody gets to run a major auto company. Bailing out Chrysler seems to get you a leg up.

Another thing the movers and shakers have in common: Everybody at Chrysler came from Ford. This doesn't really count, however, since Chrysler hasn't hired any guys starting from scratch in about 15 years, and nobody leaves GM because the pensions are so good.

Everybody at Ford first went to Princeton and then became a vice president in about three years, then they start looking for a job at another car company. Which is why, if you look around, nearly everybody everywhere in the auto business came from Ford. But I digress.

Mr. Greenwald and Chrysler Chief Financial Officer Robert S. Miller also were veterans of the first Chrysler bailout. Miller even bailed out the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Bailing out Chrysler thus seems a good way to get a shot at the top job. But former Chrysler President Hal Sperlich also bailed out Chrysler, and look where it got him.

It's also worth noting that both Greenwald and Miller worked in Venezuela, while Sperlich didn't. Clearly the Venezuelan connection is important, since two out of four of Chrysler's top executives were recruited from that country.

Sperlich did, however, spend a lot of time in Europe, which is where current Chrysler President Bob Lutz worked his way up a couple of corporate ladders. There is some question as to whether working in Europe helps on the climb to the top, since if you stay there to long you get a good tailor and everybody in Detroit starts to view you with suspicion.

Actually, the main thing the top guys at Chrysler have in common is a mentality something like the last guy to catch a Chris Craft at Dunkirk. They went through a war together, and sometimes it seems to have left top management in the same frame of mind as one of those World War II fighter pilots who had to go into smuggling in Africa to get some of the same sense of excitement.

Greenwald, in fact, put together a small consulting effort shortly after the Chrysler crisis seemed over to use his own and other Chrysler executives' expertise in getting other big corporations out of trouble. Nothing much came of that, but it seems obvious that the UAL situation is the corporate equivalent of answering an ad in Soldier of Fortune magazine.

Whether it works out or not, it's got to be an exciting time again for an executive whose best times were pulling order out of chaos.

Energy efficient

Simple steps and common sense can save energy and keep bills lower

By AILEEN WINGBLAD
Special Writer

Today's rising costs of natural gas and electricity and increasing environmental awareness have seemingly fueled a fire in many people who are now striving for wiser and more frugal use of energy in the home.

Thanks to energy-saving ideas in new home construction as well as helpful tips from Consumers Power Company representatives, area folks can more easily head toward lower energy usage and cut those monthly bills.

"Most of the people we talk with are certainly very energy conscious," says Ed Funke, vice president of marketing for Cambridge Construction in Northville, a company which is in its 11th year of custom-designing homes.

"Energy efficiency is definitely more common today than we have seen before. It is first and foremost in many people's minds," Funke says, adding that it "doesn't take a whole lot to make a home energy efficient — homeowners can take it as far as they care to."

So builders, like Cambridge Construction, are responding to this growing demand among their customers by making available a whole range of options to upgrade the energy efficiency of new homes. For example, quick recovery appliances including high efficiency furnaces, are often standard features of new homes. Cambridge, Funke says, also offers automatic set-back thermostats, which are becoming more and more common, to regulate the temperature in one's home to coincide when the occupants will be home. The furnace can be programmed to turn down at night when everyone is asleep, heat back up as morning nears, and perhaps be set to go back down during the day if no one will be home.

"We advise our homeowners and give them the choice of every option that's out there for energy conservation," says Funke. "And it's important because people are hanging out more in their homes nowadays and putting the money into their homes where it makes sense. Of course, energy efficiency is one idea that makes sense."

One relatively new item that Funke says is also becoming quite a common upgrade is "Ty Vekt," a polyester membrane made by DuPont that is wrapped around a home during construction and left in place permanently to act as a barrier for air infiltration.

"And Ty Vekt is not that costly," says Funke. "For a 4,000-square-foot house, for example, it would cost maybe around $1,000."

Prefabricated fireplaces, built with open air cavities behind them and fan blowers to circulate the heated air are also becoming readily acceptable in the home, adds Funke. Old-fashioned fireplaces, he says actually vent warm room air up the chimneys and can waste energy.

Using the right type of windows in a home is another important step toward energy efficiency, and Funke recommends solid wood casement or double-hung windows, and no aluminum or vinyl frames. "At one point, there was a push for vinyl — it was real trendy. But we find that wood is really the best insulator and keeps constant the two temperatures on either side of the window. And since homes are often built with plenty of windows today, the need for the best kind of window has grown."

"Your greatest heat loss is through the glass in the home and the roof. So it's necessary to have the better windows and to bump up ceiling insulation — we recommend an R-factor of 38," says Funke.

"But again, it doesn't take an awful lot to make a home energy efficient. If a home is built properly, it really should have high efficiency. Of course, you don't want it to be airtight by any means, because you do need fresh air exchange. But a home needs a nice, equal, balanced result," he says.

Tom Rugh, communications director for Consumers Power Company, agrees that most steps toward energy conservation are simple and, in fact, are often disregarded by lots of people.

"Most of the energy-saving suggestions we give to customers are pretty common sense sort of things that, quite frankly, lots of people just plain ignore."

Adding that "any effort that a customer or resident makes — no matter how simple — is well worthwhile," Rugh offers these energy conserving tips:

- Keep blinds and curtains closed on cold, cloudy days and opened on warm, sunny days to gain solar advantages.

- Keep furniture away from cold air returns and warm air ducts to insure full movement of air.

- Close off unused rooms (if room has no water pipes).

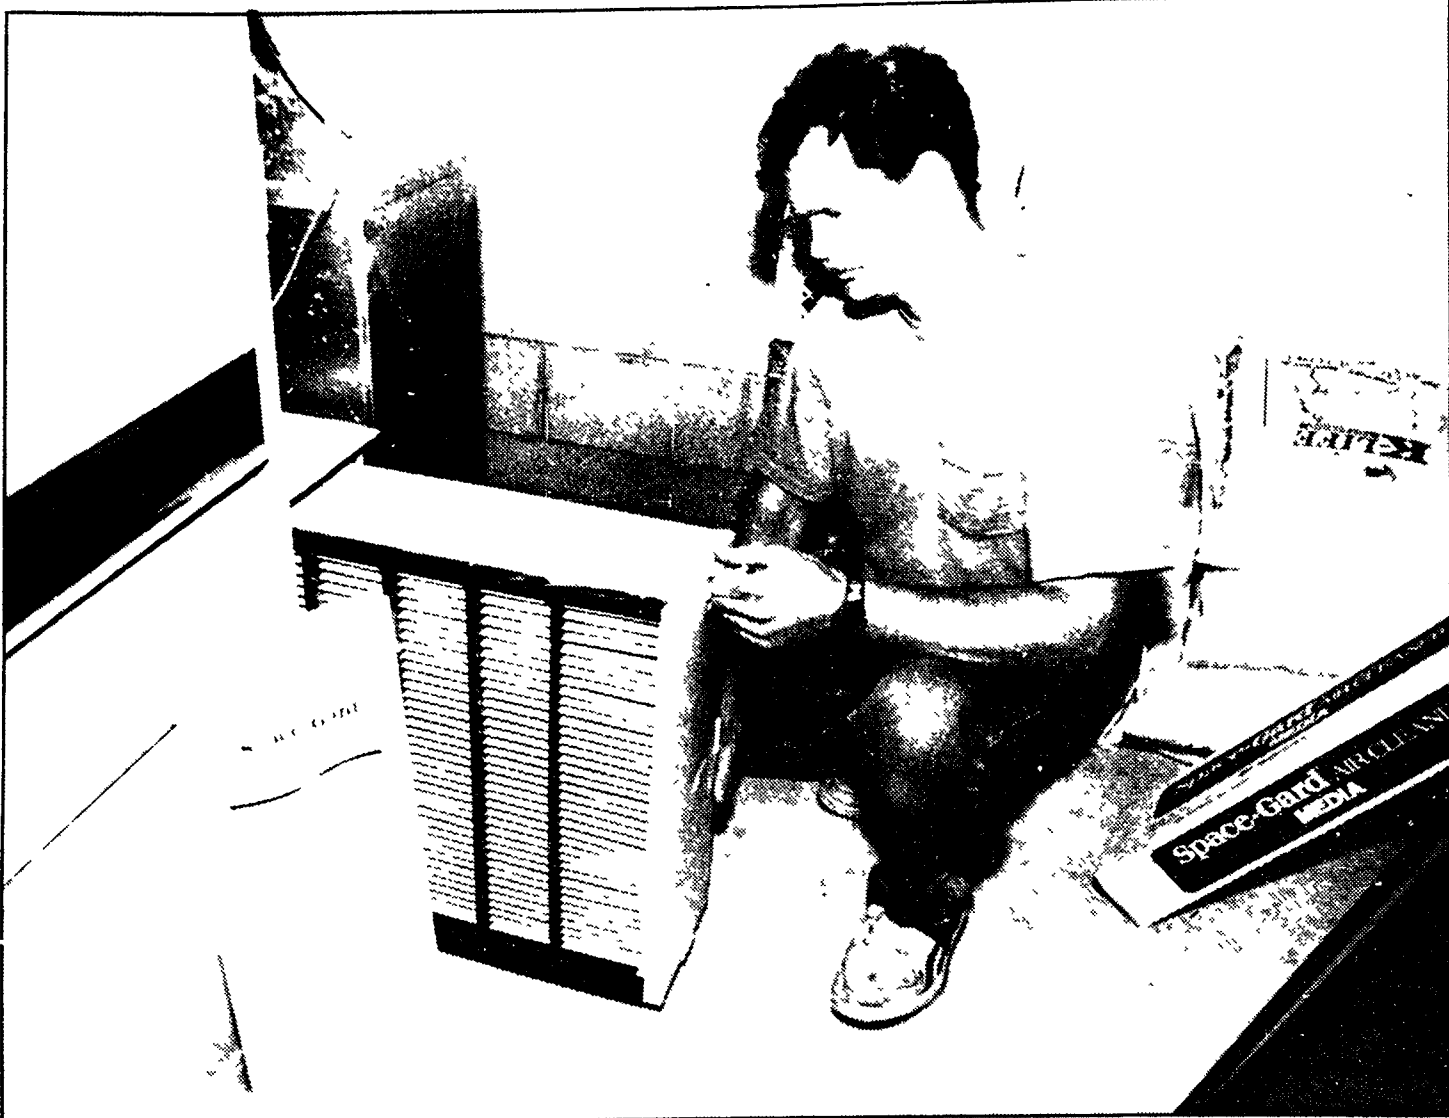

- Change furnace filter as needed, approximately once a month. And don't forget the air conditioner filter in summertime.

- Make sure cracks and leaks around the home are caulked and weatherstripped.

- Change washers on faucets if they drip.

- Use water-flow restrictors which allow for increased water pressure.

Rugh also says that new energy-saving products will continue to be developed and foresees a "dramatic change" for home heating in the future, possibly with individual self-contained energy units rather than the central power plants as sources.

Robert Meisner/Condo Queries

Use by church raises questions

Our condominium is thinking about renting out our clubhouse for use as a Sunday school service for a local church. The board says that it will be paid approximately $50 per Sunday and thinks it is contributing the clubhouse for a good cause. Do you have any comments?

This is a particularly controversial issue because the establishment of a church at the condominium may well be a violation of the "commercial activity" section of the condominium documents.

It is more difficult when you consider that there are members of the association who may disagree with the use of the clubhouse for any religious institution of any type. They may argue that the use by the church is no different than a member of the association using the clubhouse for a personal property or a business gathering.

Others may argue that it is no different than allowing an aerobics class in the clubhouse because presumably members of the association may be able to use it and renting the use of the clubhouse for a church is, in effect, a good deed.

I would suggest that you have your association attorney thoroughly review your condominium documents and provide you with an opinion regarding the legal and perhaps the political ramifications of this decision. It may be very similar to the controversy created by the abortion issue.

I am writing in regard to a continuous problem I have had with my basement flooding in my condominium. I have lived in the condominium for 1 1/2 years and the basement has flooded four times. My unit is 10 years old. Neither the management company nor the association has done anything to resolve the problem. Each time the basement floods, a company has been out to take care of the flooding, but it comes back a year later. Is the association responsible to fix the problem and are the previous owners responsible for any other obligations to me since I was never informed of the problem before buying the unit?

You have asked a very complex series of questions. First, it would be necessary to review your condominium documents to confirm that the condominium association is responsible for taking care of the basement of your unit. In many condominium documents, the basement is a common element, and the association has the responsibility to maintain, repair and replace it if necessary.

Assuming this is the case in your situation, there may be a number of causes of the basement leak problem from rod holes to insufficient drainage. If your association has been unsuccessful in obtaining a competent contractor, you should put the association and the managing agent on notice that you will be retaining a consultant (i.e., either an engineer or architect to investigate the basement problem).

You will expect that the association reimburse you for this expenditure since it has presumably been unable to find the real source of the problem. Hopefully the association or the management agent will accept our suggestion and pay for and authorize your retention of an architect or engineer to find out the source of the problem. After that time, it will take the recommendations of the architect or engineer and the hiring of a contractor to fix the problem.

If the association is responsible for the basement, it is not necessarily the previous seller's responsibility to have the problem fixed. Obviously, if the association is not responsible and the basement problem was, in a sense, a latent defect, you may have recourse against the previous seller.

Dorothy Lemkuhl/Organizing

Plan ahead to improve work organization

I'm getting discouraged at work. I work hard and always have too much to do, yet it seems like I continually have bad luck. The last thing to happen was I got beaten out of a promotion by someone who's only been there half as long as I have. Somehow it seems I'm always a "day late and a dollar short."

From the tone of your question, I'd say you need to learn two lessons: 1) To stay in control of the present by working smart; and 2) To plan ahead. I realize this is easier said than done.

Working smart means calculating the value of the results of your actions and concentrating on your most important tasks. (Never underestimate the value of staying organized as one of those important issues.) Since I've written much on Lesson

No. 1 before, I will elaborate on Lesson No. 2 today.

Advance planning is vital to success, and no business, government or individual can remain successful without it. People don't usually fail because of bad luck — they fail because of lack of anticipation. In other words, they don't plan to fail — they fail to plan.

Planning ahead saves time in the long run. Too many managers come up short on their budgets and are forced to do work the hard way because they failed to anticipate peripheral needs. Some great social events have been missed because of incomplete office work that had to be done.

One General Motors executive told me recently after a hiring freeze was lifted another department head complained that before she could fulfill the requirements necessary to hire another person, the freeze was reinstated. When he remarked he had hired someone the day the openings occurred, she asked incredulously, "How did you do that so quickly?" He smiled and answered, "Because I had already picked out the individual I wanted and when the opportunity arose, I grabbed him."

A good bidding rule in the game of bridge is to know before you bid what your response will be to your partner's answer. Try applying this rule to your life. By anticipating possibilities and planning your responses to them, your bad luck can turn to success.

FAMILY FARE

The Disney Channel celebrates 4th of July with patriotic shows

By Donna Gooch

The Disney Channel ranks right up there with baseball, apple pie and Mom, and they prove it on July 4 with a full day of exciting Independence Day programming.

The fireworks begin with My Friend Liberty at 9 a.m. Eastern time when young Johnny goes on a dream adventure to New York and meets his immigrant grandparents as they arrive on Ellis Island. Johnny also meets up with Joseph Pulitzer—the newspaper mogul who helped put the Statue of Liberty on her pedestal.

The Disney programming continues with the American Dream Contest at 10 a.m. Eastern time. Children from across the nation submitted their ideas on what America means to them.

A selection of these stories was then made into a 60-minute special of 12 short films, including a profile of New York City's "sandwich man" who makes and delivers more than 200 sandwiches daily to the poor, and a 10-year-old who wanted to give Gorbachev a tour of the country.

Another July 4 show, airing at 12:30 p.m. Eastern time, is All About The Statue Of Liberty which features live action, animation, claymation and still photos as background to children giving their views on America's well-known symbol of freedom.

In Johnny Tremain at 6 p.m. Eastern time, American heroes live and fight again in a stirring adventure set in the turbulent 1770s and based on the popular Esther Forbes novel. From apprentice silversmith to spy to soldier, Johnny Tremain was there to hear "the shot heard 'round the world."

Other patriotic programming slated on Disney includes the Main Street Electrical Parade, Goodbye, Miss 4th Of July, Mark Twain's Life On The Mississippi, The Remarkable Rocket and the miniseries The Lives Of Ben Franklin.

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN
Executive Director,
SW Oakland Cable Comm.

SAMOUELIAN

Tuning into the local television channel is as important as selecting any other option. From my perspective it is even more important because you have a very personal reason. Stop and think. Why do you watch TV? Most will answer, to catch up on what's happening and to be entertained.

This is where the perspective that the local channel is a privilege ties in. Once again the phenomena of being offered a service without giving something is perceived as 'valueless.' No so. We have funded the Community Service through Cable Subscriber Moneys. Therefore, one may understand the concept of underwriting as is done with the Public Broadcast Stations.

Thus documenting that each local channel is of television spectrum value we take another look at how we prepare to cablecast our programs.

The provider does not take responsibility for the content of local shows. As matter of fact the Federal Law forbids the Cable Companies from interfering with such content. The local producer, be they an individual or an organization, take the responsibility for the content. In most cases this explicit edict is respected by most local producers and the content of the local shows are increasingly well researched. Many shows host the authors of challenging theories or testimony to occurrences.

Over the past couple of weeks I have been asking our staff what they could offer in the way of advise to encourage even more successes in Community Television Production. The contributing group consisted of: Todd Whitman, Judy Kral, Susan R. Curtiss, Mary Conway, Kevin Southers, Donnell Conway, Maria Holmes, John Martin, Cary Calderone, David Tietmeyer, and John Kaley. Frankly, each suggestion was spoken with fervor, and upon reviewing one another's ideas, they reinforced each others' suggestions. As you proceed to read these bits of advise I wish you to know the earnestness of the spirit of which the items were expressed. May they inspire you.

- Remember to delegate the work load to several people. Don't overburden one person because you know they 'know how' to do the job.

- On a television series switch around positions. On a long shoot also rotate positions. This will help reenergize the crew and keep them interested.

- Be creative; don't be afraid to experiment!

- Expect to double the time from what you would anticipate the show the take.

- Always, always have a preproduction meeting. You will short cut lots of problems.

- If you don't script or storyboard at least have the over all concept written down. Before you go out on a shoot think out your planned opening (intro) and closing (outro).

- If you are producing a big show or a series, thank those people involved with a cast party.

- Always take the time to white balance your camera!

- Treat your television involvement like a hobby. This will help you relax and follow through on the more regular tasks. Have a good time and enjoy yourself.

- Be sure to check out what 'Grants' are available to underwrite the set design costs from the Community Access Department, Cable Commission etc.

- Look before you shoot. Take a few minutes to determine different camera angle options.

- Check your lighting. Try to minimize the brightness. The subject should be the most prominent object in the picture.

- Preroll your tape before shooting 10 seconds. This will help in post-editing.

- To add variety and cover mistakes be sure to videotape many reaction and cutaway shots. This will add a lot of interest to your program.

- To keep the pace, don't show your examples for too long or show too much.

- Find out who will determine the Channel schedule. Speak with them ample time before you anticipate cablecasting your program to arrange the most appropriate time slot for your show. Think about who your show is intended for. Who is your Audience?

- Remember that your show is not completed when you say goodbye on camera. The actual videotape must be labeled and logged with the name of the show and the specific guests. Remember that later most people reference their shows or ask about shows by the name of the guest who was on.

- Always include color bars and count down because the cable caster will need these reference points to cue up the tape. This also ensures a quality programmed channel.

- For those who have just been certified on television equipment or have graduated from college in television get as much hands-on experience as possible, even if it is volunteer. Try to secure a community internship.

- A preproduction meeting for taping a large community event is so important. Be sure to know the forte's of your crew. This will help keep the production smooth. Ask of the Event Coordinator: Event timing, who is involved, list of character generated information, correct spelling of names for credits and releases to assure that all your time and effort will be able to be telecast, verify electrical capacity and weather set-up options.

- Television experience is trial and error. You do become very learned of what 'technical difficulty' means. Keep your head up and ask questions rather than make more mistakes.

- Start to develop your television ideas early.

- Give the crew plenty of notice. Ask more than enough people to help. Remember, we all have situations which require adjustments sometimes.

- Simplify, simplify, simplify! After your first show add more complicated dynamics if desired, such as audience or call-in.

- Take the time to concentrate on all the technical aspects to be as perfect for your conditions as possible.

- On remote shoots always wear ear or headphones! The meter may be deceptive, listen for interfering noise.

- Never run audio near an AC power line (normal electrical outlet). If you cannot avoid them to be near make sure that they cross one another at a 90° angle.

Jay Leno brings refreshing, clean comedy to late nights

Comedian renews contract as Carson's stand-in

By ANNE WHEELER

Three years ago, old-fashioned comedy refreshingly bounded onto late night television. More precisely, it happened when Jay Leno took the post as exclusive guest host on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

Both Leno and Carson have renewed their contracts and will continue on the NBC schedule for at least another year.

"I'm pleased that Johnny Carson has once again chosen me as his running mate, thus assuring my place in history as the Dan Quayle of late night television," Leno said.

Also a spokesman for Doritos corn chips, Leno reworded the snack's slogan when NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff asked him if he wanted to continue as exclusive host. "He said, 'Just tell the audience to keep watching the show, we'll make more,'" Tartikoff said.

Leno first appeared on "The Tonight Show" as a guest in 1977, then served as a popular guest host numerous times before being named exclusive guest host in 1987.

He has hosted two NBC specials, "The Jay Leno Show" and "Jay Leno's Family Comedy Hour," and has appeared on NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman, Saturday Night Live" and "Friday Night Videos."

Leno, whose humor is based on the foibles and simple ups-and-downs of everyday life, performs more than 200 concert dates around the country each year, selling out performances virtually everywhere, including Carnegie Hall and Caesar's Palace. He visits more than a dozen college campuses yearly.

A voracious sports-car and motorcycle aficionado, Leno's hobby is working on his vast collection of cars and bikes, drawing on his professional experience as a Rolls Royce mechanic-by-day when he was an aspiring comedian-by-night.

Leno is a creator of words and phrases; he never relies on the shock value of profanity or racial and sexist jokes. Instead he applies his sharp wit to real-life headlines of the day, and makes his own observations of the little things in life. He maintains his perspective from his old-fashioned upbringing. He was raised in Andover, Mass. His father is a retired insurance executive, and his mother, a homemaker, was 41 at his birth. "When I was a kid, my parents were the age of my friends' grandparents, but I liked that, there was more stability," he said.

"This is why it took me a long time to call Johnny 'Johnny.' It was always 'Mr. Carson.' I was raised that way."

Leno has fit right in to the "Tonight Show" family. However, even Leno's personability isn't enough to keep Carson's sidekick, Ed McMahon, hanging on whenever Carson announces he is leaving.

"It's in my contract. The night he says goodbye, I say goodbye. That's gonna be a sad night," McMahon said recently on Bob Costas' show.

McMahon is celebrating his 28th year on the show. He seems to think two more years will be about it. "If it were me, I would say 30. But Johnny has his own mind about that," he said. "You want to leave before Mike Tyson left, you know. You don't want to have that last knockout. You want to go before then. He'll know. He's the master of timing."

SOAP TALK

Politics actress' favorite soap

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I was wondering if the woman who plays Egypt Masters on Loving has been on another soap. I know I've seen her on television before. I would also like to know any other information you have on her.
—Thanks, Laura J., Conroe, Texas

Dear Laura: Linda Cook plays Egypt Masters, a beautiful oddball whose dreams are as wild and wacky as the flamboyant clothes she wears.

Cook was born in Lubbock, Texas, but only lived there until the age of 3. Her father's job meant frequent transfers, so Linda grew up in a variety of locales. For a time, the family lived in Omaha, then Dallas and finally Atlanta. While still in high school, she was accepted into the prestigious Atlanta Civic Ballet.

After a year of college, she decided to embark on a professional dance career. After one summer of dancing in musicals, she became a member of Atlanta's Alliance Theater Company and went on to do numerous roles in regional theater.

Cook is a respected member of the Broadway community. She is also a familiar face to daytime audiences. She played ingenue Laurie Ann Karr on The Edge Of Night. "Laurie Ann was a heroine, but she had some serious emotional problems," said Cook. "She shot someone, got amnesia, left her baby on her best friend's doorstep and was eventually committed." Cook's next daytime appearance—as Lucy Voight on All My Children—showed yet another side of her broad dramatic range. As Lucy, she portrayed a cool, sophisticated investment banker, "a corporate raider, sort of a female T. Boone Pickens."

The actress is married to scenic designer Patrick Mann, and the couple make their home in Manhattan. In her spare time, Linda follows her own favorite form of soap opera—politics—and watches as many TV news shows as she can. "You know how some people can't bear to miss thirtysomething?" she asks. "Well, that's how I feel about Peter Jennings, Ted Koppel and the MacNeil/Lehrer Report."

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

BITS AND PIECES

Looks like Letterman will have many more late nights to come

David Letterman has signed a multi-year contract to continue as host of Late Night With David Letterman. Each night, nearly 3.5 million viewers have tuned in to the program during the 1989-90 season. Since Late Night's debut Feb. 1, 1982, Letterman has hosted each of the more than 1,300 editions. There has never been a guest host on the program.

With 11 series on the '90-'91 network schedules, Lorimar Television has earned the distinction as the leading producer of network television programs for a fourth consecutive season. New from Lorimar next season are two half-hour comedies, Going Places (ABC) and Four Alarm Family (CBS); and two one-hour dramas, Gabriel's Fire (ABC) and DEA (FOX). Returning series are Dallas, Knots Landing, The Hogan Family, Midnight Caller, Full House, Family Matters and Perfect Strangers. Not since '84-'85 has a singular production team had as many series on a fall schedule.

Darlanne Fluegel, who had continuing roles in the Crime Story and Wiseguy series, is joining the cast of NBC's police drama Hunter. She will play Joann Malinski, replacing

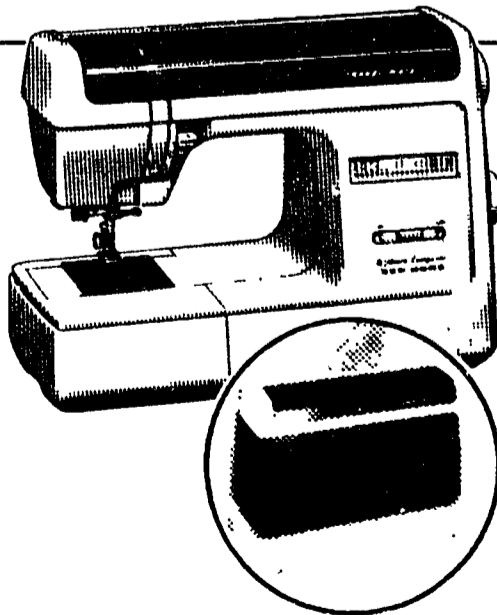

David Letterman

Stephanie Kramer as Hunter's new partner.

CBS Sports and the John Hancock Bowl have agreed to change the date of the 57-year-old football classic, which has been played on the last Saturday in December, to New Year's Eve, Monday, Dec. 31. LET'S TALK

Show business was inevitable for 'Growing Pains' Tracey Gold

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I would like some information on Alan Thicke and Tracey Gold, who play Jason and Carol Seaver on Growing Pains. Where do they live and where can I write to them? —Eddie Dulin, Mortonville, Ky.

A: Tracey was born on May 16, 1969 in New York City, but was raised in Southern California. She is the oldest daughter of a thriving show business family. Her father is an actor's agent in Hollywood, and her mother is a former advertising executive. Tracey started her career at age 5 when she began working in commercials. She made her television acting debut in the miniseries Roots. A recent high school graduate, she hasn't any plans for college at the present. But when she does, she would like to concentrate in the dramatic arts. Coming from a close family, she still lives at home. Alan Thicke was born in Ontario, Canada, March 1, 1947. His first experiences in the world of show business saw him doing stand-up comedy and playing guitar in rock bands. Whereas many actors later become directors and producers, Thicke's career took the opposite turn. He is a writer-producer turned actor. Music remains an integral part of his life. He has written more than 40 TV theme songs, including the ones for Facts Of Life and Diff'rent Strokes. When not working, he devotes much of his time to charity endeavors. The most important element of his life, however, remains his two sons, ages 14 and 12. Divorced, he claims them to be his most frequent dates and companions. Write to Tracey and Alan c/o Growing Pains, Warner Bros. Television, 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, Calif. 91522.

Q: Where may a person find the address to write to Beauty And The Beast? —Mrs. Amelia Howard, Jay, Okla.

A: A person can find the address for Beauty And The Beast right here! Write to Witt Thomas Productions, 846 N. Cahuenga Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

HOROSCOPE

By A. Murphy

July 1 through July 7

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Find a balance between your heart and your head when making decisions about your happiness. Once decisions are made, build toward them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Some situations require being pushy and steadfast. Do not settle for less than what you absolutely need. Assure your own well-being.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Spend some time alone to get to know yourself better. Look toward the positive when you are displeased. Try to learn from the situation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

This may not be a good time to be impulsive. Individuality is important and don't lose it, just keep opinions relatively quiet for a while.

Working late nights for a while may make you feel alone, but it pays off financially. Make sure you also reward yourself with vacation time.
