Fire millage rejected

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Township voters Tuesday narrowly defeated a .5-mill fire services request but a township official said the issue will likely reappear on the November ballot.

Voters rejected the .5-mill levy proposal 1,274-1,103, or 54 percent to 46 percent.

The fire services millage expired in December 1989 and township officials asked voters to approve a proposal that would allow them to assess up to .5 mill in an effort to raise nearly $200,000 in department operating funds.

The 1990 fire millage rate was .33 mill after Headlee rollbacks.

Supervisor Georgina Goss said township fire services could be cut as a result of the vote.

"Fire services are critical to residents' safety and critical to insurance rates," she said. "The township board will have to look to see if it goes back on the November ballot."

"My recommendation is that it should."

Treasurer candidate Rick Engelland — a fire millage opponent — lost his bid for a board seat, but said voters spoke clearly on the fire issue.

"I think there is an underlying feeling that taxes are too high," he said. "People are saying enough is enough."

Engelland also said the township obscured facts of the millage request when they called it a renewal, as opposed to a tax increase.

But Goss said the potential loss in Lennox treasurer choice

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Overwhelming support from absentee voters swept incumbent Betty Lennox to the victor's circle in Tuesday's Republican primary township treasurer race.

Lennox beat runner-up Rick Engelland by a 44-36 percent final margin, but retained her township board seat with a strong 411-104 tally in two absentee precincts.

Overall, Lennox garnered 807 votes to Engelland's 665.

Challengers Jack Hosmer (215 votes) and William Butterfield (164 votes) trailed.

Lennox was appointed to the treasurer position in December 1989 and knew where she won the race for the part-time $9,000 post.

"Absentee voters seemed to be (the key)," she said. "I really appreciate all the help and support everybody gave me."

Engelland needed no help interpreting the loss.

"I got killed on the absentees," he said. "I did not campaign on the absentees and couldn't have made that up. The people must not have seen the (televised) debate or read the materials in the paper."

Engelland called the race a "good, high-level campaign" and said the partisan election — with four Republican candidates and no Democrats — was difficult.

Engelland, who won seven of 10 regular precincts, would not comment when asked if he would run on a different ticket in the November general election.

Lennox extended an olive branch to her counterparts.

"We had some really good candidates," she said. "I think they're dedicated and capable and we need them in the township."

Law easy winner

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Incumbent Gerald H. Law easily defeated fellow Plymouth resident Kathleen Keen-McCarthy in the Republican primary to hold onto his 36th District state house seat.

Law won 4,033 votes throughout the district — 69 percent of the votes cast in the Republican race. Keen-McCarthy garnered 1,789 votes, for 31 percent.

Democrat Dennis F. Shrewsbury, also of Plymouth, received 1,577 votes county-wide in his unopposed primary race for the same seat, and will face off against Law in the Nov. 6 general election.

In Northville the light voter turnout favored the incumbent. Law won 78 percent of the Republican vote in the city, garnering 162 votes to Keen-McCarthy's 46. Township votes, where Law won by a 1,258 to 504 margin for 71 percent of the Republican vote, more closely mirrored county results.

Only 17 percent of the city's 4,137 registered voters turned out for the primary, while nearly 22 percent of the township's 11,490 registered voters took to the polls.

The 36th district includes Northville, Plymouth and Canton.

Law said he was happy and thankful for his primary win. He attributed the victory to a loyal constituency which appreciates a hard-working incumbent.

"I look forward to serving them in the future," he said. "I kind of look at it as just doing my job."

Keen-McCarthy said she considered her respectable showing a comment on Law's previous four terms as state representative. "I consider it really saying to Gerry Law that there's a large percentage of your constituency out there that's not happy with the job you're doing," she said.

She added that this is just her first run for political office. "I'm still not happy with the way things are going, so I'm not going to stop," she said. "It's time to make a change."

"I hope that Gerry Law will pay more attention and listen to what his district is saying... and I hope that the district is going to benefit," she said.

Law believes his chances in November are good, but he plans to run hard against Shrewsbury.

"I always take races seriously and get nervous," he said. However, he added, "I have a Republican district, so it's obviously an uphill battle for the Democrats."

Thomson project incomplete - ZBA

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Terms of a reclamation agreement between the developer of the Thomson Sand and Gravel site and the township have not been satisfied, the township zoning board of appeals (ZBA) determined Monday.

The ZBA directed the Shores of Northville Limited Partnership to complete topsoil grading and seeding of slopes on the 360-acre site as recommended by township engineers.

The ZBA also authorized the release of a portion of $600,000 in an escrow fund to the former owner of the property. The release of escrow monies reflects the percentage of the reclamation project deemed complete by township engineers.

The decision was the culmination of two hours of debate between the ZBA and the developers of the proposed 401-unit subdivision.

Township engineer Abe Munfah told ZBA members that 40 percent of the property lacks sufficient topsoil cover as required under a sand and gravel mining permit signed in 1984. In addition, half of the property must be seeded as a provision of the same agreement, he said.

The township originally did not want to release escrow funds until the reclamation project was complete, but the decision to release a portion of the money came after a plea by the attorney of the former property owner.

"There's nothing to hold (the township) from releasing the escrow funds," said John Ashton, attorney for the Thomson family. "My clients put the $600,000 in escrow (and are) very anxious to get the money."

The reclamation agreement included the provision that $600,000 remain in escrow until the gravel pit site was restored to the satisfaction of the township.

When the Thomson family sold the property, the developers were required to restore the land, with the Thomson money remaining in escrow.

Township attorney Ernest Essad advised the ZBA they could release portions of the escrow.

Ashton suggested that Munfah determine the cost to complete reclamation, multiply that figure one-and-a-half times, and subtract that amount from the $600,000 to determine the amount to be released to the Thomson family.

The ZBA accepted Ashton's proposal and Munfah was directed to submit a cost estimate.

Township engineers determined in July that the developers had exceeded portions of the reclamation agreement and had not fulfilled other areas of the same contract.

Munfah then recommended the matter be settled by the ZBA.

ZBA Chairperson Karen Baja said the question before the board was clear, despite long side-issue discussions.

"The owner of the property needed to satisfy the ZBA that reclamation was complete," she said. "We didn't feel it was complete."

Nor did the developers.

Township eyes three police chief finalists

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A public safety director, a state police intelligence officer and a deputy police chief are Northville Township police chief finalists, the Record has learned.

James Davis, Beverly Hills (Mich.) Director of Public Safety, Michael Swope, Inspector with the Michigan State Police Criminal Investigation Division in Livonia, and Chip Snider, Plymouth Township Deputy Police Chief, recently completed the latest in a battery of law enforcement tests.

Site reclamation still incomplete

In a July meeting with the township board and planning commission, Vincent DiLorenzo, a partner in the project, said reclamation was not complete. He argued that the trip before the ZBA was a waste of time because the developers agreed with Munfah's calculations on reclamation work.

Now, the developers must complete site rehabilitation before returning to the planning commission for subdivision approvals, Baja said. "It's my understanding the developer will have to complete the terms of the agreement before the planning commission approves (site work)," she said.

News Briefs

CORRECTION — The township board will not have to approve a final site plan recently granted to Ward Church by the planning commission, as was reported in an article in Monday's Record. Planning commission approval serves as final determination for this stage of development, township Planning and Zoning Administrator Carol Maise said.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENT MEETING — The Northville City Council will meet Monday, Aug. 13 to confirm a special assessment agreement with The Selective Group. The council is also expected to adopt a bond sale resolution for sidewalk repairs, parking lot reconfiguration and water main projects. The bond resolution is needed to allow a bond sale by the end of August to finance a September start of the parking lot and water projects.

TREASURE HUNT — The Northville Downtown Merchants Association will host a Scavenger Hunt/Road Rally on Saturday, Aug. 18. Anyone can play and there is no fee.

Players begin with a book of clues which will direct them to various places around town. At each stop, they must obtain the item mentioned in the clues. The winner is the one who accumulates the necessary items in the least amount of time.

The hunt will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Players can start at any Downtown Merchants store, where they will get a time stamp and a clue book. They can begin at any time during that period since they are judged on their start-to-finish time.

Valuable prizes are being offered for the top finishers, with no prize worth less than $25.

Parents who want to play without their children in tow can occupy them with a pet show, and a stuffed animal and doll show, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Bandshell. Interested entrants in either the Scavenger Hunt or the shows at the Bandshell should call Betty Burch at 349-4477 or 347-4394.

FIRE SAFETY VIDEO — The Northville Fire Department gave city council members an advance screening of the recently-completed fire safety video filmed in town. The 11-minute video — entitled "The Fire Fighter is Your Friend," — uses scenes of Northville firefighters, footage from actual fires donated by the Farmington Hills fire department, and shots of the Sterling Heights fire hall to show children that firefighters are people to turn to in an emergency. Fire Inspector Bob Turner teamed with film student Rob Stenger and Norm Fenkell of Industrial Video Productions to make the film. It is being made available to area rescue and law enforcement agencies to promote fire safety.

AMUSING TICKETS — The Northville Recreation Department has discount tickets available to several area amusement parks: Cedar Point, Kings Island, Boblo, the Detroit Zoo, Sea World, and more. You can save up to $5.25 on some tickets. Tickets are on sale now at the Northville Community Center, 303 W. Main St., 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. For special prices, call 349-0203. For children 9 years and older to go to the Four Bears Water Park in Utica. The $14 fee includes a hot dog lunch, admission to the park and transportation. To register, stop by the recreation department office.

Field narrowed to three

A five-member township executive committee will review the Bartell results and make a recommendation to the township board at a special meeting this month, Henningsen said. Four additional finalists were not tested by Bartell. But Henningsen said all candidates remain in contention for the job.

But Henningsen said Monday he expected the new chief to come from the group tested by Bartell.

Pressure maintained during water repairs

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville residents lost little water despite last Friday night's repair work on a major Detroit water main, said spokesmen for the city and township.

The Detroit Water and Sewerage Department (DWSD) announced Thursday that a 42-inch wide water main under Eight Mile Road between Farmington and Wayne roads would be shut down between 11 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday for emergency repairs.

The repairs were needed after a failed attempt to install a pressure recording device in that water main flooded the intersection of Eight Mile and Farmington roads.

Supervisory Foreman Paul Vertres at the city's public works department said the slight drop in water pressure did not hurt the city. "We lost about 16 pounds [of water pressure] when they shut us down," he said. The city's average water pressure is 60 pounds per square inch.

Vertres said the DWSD was able to compensate for the lost pressure to the north by raising the pressure at its Plymouth pumping station at Joy and Sheldon roads.

"They were able to supply us from the south," he explained.

But the major concern of public works officials was that the shut-down would leave too little pressure to fill the city's reservoir and water tower on a hill near Northville High School. "Our worry was that there wasn't going to be enough pressure to get up that hill to fill the reservoir," Vertres said. "When the reservoir's expended and the tower's expended, that's it."

The city faced just such a crisis during the drought of 1988, when the water pressure from Detroit was not great enough to fill the half-million-gallon reservoir or tower.

But last Friday night's repairs went so quickly that the city faced no such crisis this time. Vertres said that the DWSD completed repairing the leak by 12:30 a.m., just 1½ hours after repairs were begun.

"Sitting in this seat, Detroit was very thorough," Vertres said.

The city's public works department notified residents by mail of the shutoff, and advised them not to use their sprinklers and to conserve water.

The township also lost little pressure during the repairs, according to water and sewer department foreman Randy Tillman.

Tillman said his department managed to hand-deliver notices to about three-quarters of the township before the repairs, despite little advance warning from Detroit. Residents on the north side of town were notified first because that was where water pressure shortages were anticipated.

Portions of Northville, Plymouth, Livonia, Novi and Farmington were all affected by the shut-down.

The Detroit Health Department urged residents in affected communities to boil all drinking water for 24 hours after the main was repaired. Public water can be contaminated by back siphonage through household plumbing whenever water pressure is interrupted, according to the DWSD.

Residents were advised to fill and refrigerate drinking water bottles, fill the bathtub with water to help flush the toilet, disconnect or turn off automatic sprinkler systems and flush all faucets for several minutes 24 hours after water pressure is restored.

The DWSD predicted that pressure would be low for some customers in the affected communities, while others would lose their water altogether.

DETECTIVE AT WORK

When your dentist looks into your mouth, he puts all his powers of detection to work. Tooth decay or unhealthy gums are easy to spot. But he has to look closer than the obvious. Mirror, light, x-rays and other instruments help. So do his years of training and practice.

Your dentist is a trained medical observer. He'll be able to spot any suspicious lesions, lumps, discolored areas, or sores that might be malignant. Early detection saves lives.

Lips, tongue, cheeks, any part of the oral cavity are proper sites for inspection. If there's any suspicion of oral cancer, a biopsy or sample of the tissue under suspicion can be sent to a pathologist for examination. In most cases the suspect tissue may be found to be normal and not malignant. It may be just a minor irritation that's causing the problem.

But it's always best to be sure. If there is a problem, it's so much easier to cure if discovered in time. Your dentist is trained to spot other medical symptoms as well as give you the care you need for good dental health.

Jogger threatened by dog owner

A man who was jogging in the area of Stratford Court told township police that he was threatened by the owner of a dog that allegedly chased him Aug. 1. The man told police that he kicked gravel at a dog that was chasing him and then kicked the animal after it continued its pursuit.

The owner of the dog then came out of a nearby house, shouted an obscenity at the jogger and told him he was going to run him down with his car. He also threw a rock at the jogger. The jogger turned northbound on Westhill and the dog owner began to follow him in a silver Ford Taurus.

The jogger told police he ran into a yard to avoid a confrontation with the man and the car. The driver of the car then reportedly told the jogger he would "come after him if he ever came down the street again."

The jogger told police he wished to press charges against the man.

CONSTRUCTION EQUIPMENT STOLEN — A land-grading machine valued at $8,000 was stolen from a site on Six Mile sometime between July 26-30, township police said.

OUIL'S — The following persons were arrested by township police for operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol:

An 18-year old Plymouth man was arrested at 12:43 a.m. July 29 near the Maxwell/Rayburn intersection.

A 40-year old Northville woman was arrested July 31 at 2 a.m. on westbound Six Mile near Haggerty.

A 41-year old Redford man was arrested July 28 at 1:27 a.m. west of Maxwell.

WALKWAYS — Walkways from Northville State Hospital, 41001 Seven Mile, were reported July 28 at 7:56 p.m.; Aug. 2 at 11:58 a.m.; and

Aug. 2 at 5:52 p.m., township police said.

INDECENT EXPOSURE — A pair of joggers told township police that while running on Hines Drive south of Six Mile Aug. 2 they witnessed a man standing naked in the Rouge River exposing himself. The incident occurred at 5:15 p.m., police said.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY AT MEIJER — A larceny suspect struck a member of the Meijer security staff during a confrontation in the parking lot of the 20401 Haggerty store. Township police said a pregnant black woman in her 20s punched a security woman in the head after the security woman wrote down the suspect's license plate number. The suspect fled northbound on Haggerty after the incident, which occurred July 27 at 3:05 p.m.

CONCESSION STAND VANDALIZED — A mobile concession stand parked at the Northville High School baseball field was broken into sometime between 10 p.m. August 3 and 7 a.m. August 4. The vandal or vandals broke a window on the east side of the stand and opened a sliding glass window. Candy apples, cotton candy and hot dog buns were strewn around the inside of the stand during the attack, causing some $328 in damage. Fifteen bags of cotton candy valued at $23 were stolen.

City police found fingerprints on two pieces of broken Plexiglas and a tin foil tray during their investigation.

STORE VANDALIZED — The Northville Wine Shoppe, 680 Eight Mile Road, was broken into early on the morning of August 4. The only items suspected stolen were adult magazines including Playboy and Penthouse.

BASEBALL BRAWL — An Alliance, Mich., resident told city police that his 16-year-old son was struck during a scuffle between two baseball teams at Northville High School August 5. The man told police that his son was struck in the back by a Danville man about 3:45 p.m. during the fight.

The Danville man was discharged from the game by umpires, and could not be found by Northville police. When asked to come to the city police department to file a complaint, the complainant refused.

HOME-MADE EXPLOSIVES — Two High Street residences were the sites of apparent bomb attacks at 12:05 a.m. August 4, though no serious damage was reported. The remains of a plastic two-liter soda bottle were found at one site, containing small amounts of a suspected explosive mixture used to blow up the bottle. No damage was reported except for some liquid that splashed on the house. According to city police, the explosive was similar to that seen in incidents in Northville and Novi about two years ago.

ATTEMPTED CAR THEFT AT ARBOR DRUGS — City police received a report that someone tried to break into a vehicle parked at Arbor Drugs, 133 E. Dunlap St., between 4-9 p.m. July 27. The vehicle's owner returned to find pry marks on the top front and rear corners of his car, causing an estimated $150 in damage.

FENDER BENDERS — Northville city police reported two accidents last week. A vehicle parked at Arbor Drugs Aug. 2 was struck by a hit and run driver about 7:40 p.m. The vehicle's owner told police he was only in the store for about five minutes before returning and finding the damage. The incident is the latest of several hit-and-runs at the Arbor Drugs parking lot in the last month.

A 36-year-old Northville man backing his vehicle out of a parking space at Northville High School struck the car next to him August 3, at 7:40 p.m. No citations were issued.

UNCLAIMED BICYCLES — Northville City police will auction off as many as 18 unclaimed bicycles in September if their owners do not claim them first. The bikes were found as far back as two years ago. They include one 12-speed and eight 10-speeds, and include brand names like Raleigh, Schwinn, Ross, BMX, and Huff. Anyone missing a bike is asked to call the Northville city police at 349-1234 with a more detailed description.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Fireworks firm denies blame for injuries have been smoldering by the time they reached the ground.

Colonial Fireworks of Ypsilanti has denied responsibility for several injured spectators at its Fourth of July display near Northville High School.

Several viewers of the evening display were burned slightly by falling debris from fireworks, and two were advised to seek medical treatment for their injuries before the display was cut short.

City officials blamed a wind shift for part of the problem at the time. But a Colonial Fireworks official said his firm's fireworks were not the source of the fallout, no matter where the wind was blowing.

"Every fireworks display has fallout and the direction of the wind and its strength determine where this fallout is deposited," secretary/treasurer Charlie Pick wrote. But Pick noted that fallout from Colonial Fireworks rockets consists of small pieces of paper, ash and rice hulls, and he said the particles would not Pick recommended that a better site be found for the display, one in which spectators and valuable property can be kept out of the downwind fallout area.

City officials are beginning to question the source of this year's injuries as well.

"It is possible that what hit the crowd was not from that display, because there were quite a few amateur missiles being launched," said City Manager Steven Walters.

Walters explained that people often bring their own fireworks to the display, and said police typically collect several bags full of firecrackers and bottle rockets from the crowd at such events.

City Police Chief Rod Cannon did not recall the confiscation of any fireworks at this year's display. But he said small fireworks are easily concealed in the crowd.

Plan to build bridge discussed

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

A proposed pedestrian bridge over Center Street is still receiving mixed reviews at City Hall, though officials expressed little hope of convincing Singh Development to drop the plan.

The bridge would extend from the city's expanded Cady Street parking deck to Singh's MainCentre mixed-use development.

The council agreed to approach Singh Development about other options to the bridge, after opposition from a local resident.

John Kaloustian, a resident instrumental in organizing citizen protest against a Center Street parking deck, told the council Monday night, "I think we've gone from bad to worse."

Though he praised Singh for agreeing to move the planned deck from Center to Cady Street, Kaloustian argued that the resulting pedestrian bridge will be aesthetically displeasing to the city.

"Is it going to offer a reward to residents equal to its aesthetic impact on the town?" Kaloustian asked. He suggested building a pedestrian sidewalk between the deck and MainCentre, and installing heating elements under Center Street to keep snow and ice off the crosswalk, as one alternative.

He said that several historic district commissioners were opposed to any sort of pedestrian bridge as well. But council member Carolann Ayers said she had found the historic

City expects late-summer finish

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The city's new Cady Street parking deck would be finished by May 1 if the MainCentre developers had their way, but city officials called that estimate a bit too optimistic.

City Manager Steven Walters presented the council with the construction schedule prepared by Singh Development, but called it "already a little out of date."

The schedule, completed July

16, calls for the deck and MainCentre pedestrian bridge to be finished by May 1, 1991.

Singh vice president Michael Kahm said adhering to the schedule was "essential for the market success of our MainCentre mixed-use development."

But Walters suggested that the deck would probably not be completed until June or July. The city's parking consultants, Rich and Associates, said the deck may not be done until mid-July or early September.

Matthew Jobin, Rich and Associates project manager for the deck, wrote, "the parking structure itself has a considerable amount of excavation, foundation work, retaining walls and masonry that would prohibit the structure from being completed any sooner."

The deck will be built by Rich and Associates but financed largely through the sale of parking credits and tax capturing from the MainCentre and other developments.

deck or permanent carparks at the MAGS lot dedicated to MainCentre residents."

Johnson said the options were spelled out in a contract signed by the city and Singh.

"If the city does not do one of those two things, they're liable. And I guarantee that there's a circuit court judge out there who will enforce that contract," he said.

City Manager Steven Walters urged Kaloustian to separate his aesthetic differences to the bridge and consider it from a planning angle. "It makes absolute sense from that perspective," Walters said.

MainCentre residents would have reserved parking spaces on the lowest level of the new deck, probably the least popular parking spaces for the general public, and they would exit via an elevator to the pedestrian bridge. The bridge is intended solely for MainCentre residents, because it crosses to the apartments themselves and not the shops or offices that will be located on the first two floors of the development.

But Kaloustian continued to disagree with the bridge, saying, "If we let them know that enough residents and historic district commission members and planning commission members oppose it... they (Singh) might look at something else."

fire millage revenues — which last year amounted to approximately $123,000 — could be damaging.

"We have a professional, dedicated volunteer fire department that works hard to keep costs down," she said. "It will be a critical loss to the community if we have to cut fire services."

Township Fire Chief Robert Toms called the vote "a surprise."

"My first reaction is that it's broken our back," he said. "I really don't know what we're going to do; maybe take First Responders off the road."

"I think the people were blinded by a call for no more taxes," he added. "I thought we had a better reputation than that."

City, township plan late August meeting

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Members of the township board and city council will meet later this month in a joint session to discuss shared services and other issues of mutual concern.

Township Clerk Tom Cook and Manager Richard Henningsen met with Mayor Chris Johnson, Manager Steven Walters and council member Carolann Ayres last Friday in an agenda setting session at city hall.

The officials scheduled a tentative 7:30 p.m. Aug. 30 meeting at township hall. Back up date for the joint meeting is Aug. 28 in the city.

The city council Monday approved the Aug. 30 meeting and the township board will discuss the session at its meeting tonight. The township and city will discuss a resident survey, library services, youth assistance and senior citizen programs and the recreation department at the meeting.

Johnson said the joint session was necessary because the community is "desperate" for relief in library and recreation services. "The city council thought it would be of some value to get together with the township board," he said.

Henningsen invited city officials to provide questions for a resident survey the township is considering. He said questions concerning joint services would be welcome on a survey, which may not be implemented until the end of the year.

The officials also discussed youth and senior citizen services, and Walters asked that the meeting agenda include a possible joint recycling program.

The township and city both operate recycling collection centers and the officials agreed that both facilities have shortcomings.

City officials did not discuss their recent purchase of a house that they say may be used in conjunction with library services, but Johnson did say the library topped the city's list of concerns.

He said the "universal consensus" of the city is that the community library is too small.

"We don't know if the public feels that way," he said.

Henningsen said the township will contact former resident Freda Haller in September to discuss her property on the corner of Six Mile and Sheldon roads. He did not indicate what the township would propose for the property.

The city and township last met in January to discuss shared services.

Landlord role creates new task

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

City Manager Steven Walters said the city's role as the landlord for the recently-purchased 222 Wing St. property is nothing new for Northville. But the property itself poses unique problems to a potential landlord, he said.

"Occasionally you fall into being a landlord for a while," Walters said. "Usually you're renting the houses on a short-term lease arrangement . . . usually they're acquired with something (else) in mind even if there's a several-year time frame to it."

The city bought the Cady Street property for potential reuse as part of a community library site in connection with the post office property at the corner of Cady and Wing streets. But the city council heard protests and threats of legal action from neighbors of the site following the purchase.

The city's problem now is finding a renter willing to repair and maintain the home. "The Welch house has quite a lot of work just to be kept presentable," Walters said.

"You really want it to look good while you own it, and it needs some work to look good."

The city manager said he plans to advertise for renters soon. "Potentially, we'd advertise it as available for rent if it was a house that was able to be rented in a normal way," Walters said. "We may very well find somebody initially on our own initiative willing to do it on our terms."

Walters said the city would prefer to rent the property at a substantially-reduced rate to a renter who would perform minor repair and renovation work on the home. That work includes interior and exterior painting, minor ceiling repairs and landscape work.

The house has a new furnace, hot water heater and roof. "It's sound structurally, it just needs typical homeowner repairs," Walters said.

Though the city does not plan to invest much money in the property because it may eventually be leveled for part of a library site, Walters said the property would not be let go. "We have to hedge both ways, of course," he said. "The other hedge is that you've got to keep it in a good, marketable condition if you're going to sell it. And that's a very real possibility."

The half-acre property was purchased from owner Sheila Welch for $92,000, on a five-year land contract after an initial $22,500 down payment.

The property costs the city $800 a month, more than half of which is the cost of 11-percent interest payments. Walters said that the city would look to cover the interest costs at least, and make sure the house is maintained. "We'd like to get the house painting done fairly quickly," he said.

The deadline for inquiries about the house is August 17. Potential renters should contact Walters or Public Works Superintendent Ted Mapes.

The city's major previous role as landlord came in the late 1960s and early 1970s, Walters said, "when property was being assembled for what turned out to be MAGS, what started out as Northville Square."

The city rented out several apartments in the area before they were demolished to make way for the MAGS building.

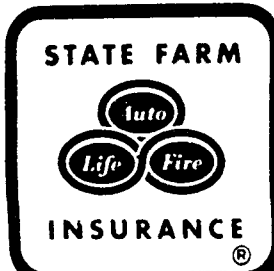

Since then, the city has rented out the occasional city-owned apartment or house before the property is reused for something else.

For example, Northville continues to rent a house at the corner of Church and Cady streets that the city purchased several years ago. The former owner stipulated that the city allow his tenant at the time to remain in the house, at the same rental rate.

"It was a person who had been renting for a number of years," Walters said.

Walters also cited two other Cady Street homes the city once owned. One was moved to Mill Race Historical Village, where it was renamed the Cady Inn. The other was sold to a dentist who moved it to a lot behind Main Street, saving the city the trouble of tearing it down and hauling away the debris.

Teachers study Rouge to demonstrate method

It's a typical school scene. Students, in casual clothes, file into class — laughing, talking with each other — carrying their days' homework in big looseleaf binders.

But this time, the students are teachers.

Some 30 area high school and middle school teachers have been out along the Rouge River this month, studying the western Wayne County river, then coming back to the University of Michigan-Dearborn to report their findings.

"What we're trying to do is put together a Rouge program for their students to use," said UM-D environmental studies professor Orin Gelderloos, who is supervising the project.

Earlier this month, teachers gathered at six study sites, observing fish, insect and plant life, as well as land use in areas near the river. Later, they checked the water for chemical traces.

Teachers activities aren't a formal research project, such as recent river studies sponsored by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments. Rather, they're a way of letting students know how such studies are completed.

"We're not talking about their (SEMCOG's) findings, but how they go about obtaining those findings," Gelderloos said.

By observation alone, teachers were able to determine the water quality near old Meads Mill in Northville was fairly good.

"We found larvae from black flies and caddis flies," said Herm Boat of Dearborn Edsel Ford High School. "That's a sign the water quality is pretty good."

Not all those involved are science teachers. Several social studies teachers are also participating.

Nor are the majority from suburban schools. While teachers from Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham's Roeper School are participating, about two-thirds of those involved teach in the Detroit Public Schools.

"It's important to show that people from an urban area do care about the environment," said Miriam Turner, who teaches at Renaissance High School, a magnet school for Detroit students.

There, student Rouge projects have drawn upon their talent in art, physical education and music, as well as more traditional academic disciplines.

"The goal isn't to have a separate Rouge curriculum, it's to infuse the Rouge throughout the curriculum," Gelderloos said. "It's to incorporate the Rouge in science and social studies as well as other classes."

The class prepares teachers for participating in the larger Rouge study project brought to area high schools by Friends of the Rouge, the environmental group that also sponsors the annual Rouge cleanup.

"This brings them up to speed and, hopefully, they'll pass that along to their students," said Larry Coogan, Friends of the Rouge executive director.

That means students, when they return to class, will soon be out on the Rouge, following in their teachers' footsteps.

Buyer's market

Local home sales slump but prices still rise

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Though it may not be a slump, a recent decline in Northville home sales may reflect a "buyer's market" for residential units.

But the buyer better bring lots of cash.

According to statistics released by the Western Wayne / Oakland County Board of Realtors, 173 houses and condominiums sold in Northville in the first six months of 1989. By the end of 1989, that figure had climbed to 330. But only 146 units were purchased through June of this year, a 16-percent drop over last year.

Part of the sales slump may reflect the fewer number of houses and condominiums for sale. From January to June of 1989, 432 houses were listed in Northville, while only 396 houses were listed the same period this year, an eight-percent drop.

The average price of a Northville home rose four percent in the same period, from $156,780 to $163,336.

Mark Christiansen, City of Northville assessor, observed in July that, "It just seems like what was up for sale is not anymore . . . roughly a month and a half ago there were twice as many homes for sale."

He was uncertain whether the change was due to the homes being sold or the owners taking them off the market.

"Frankly, I don't know if I'd call it a slump," he said. "There's nothing coming through my office that indicates a slump."

Christiansen also has a personal perspective on the market's current conditions. A Grosse Pointe Woods resident, he has been trying for several months to find a home in the Northville area. "We've had real difficulty so far trying to find a buyer for our house," he said.

With a 7-year-old daughter going to school in Grosse Pointe Woods, Christiansen and his wife are trying to move between school years, a common time for families to change homes.

Gene Komarynski, the broker for Northville's Bruce Roy Realty office, noted that people's faith in the country's economic stability and their perception of whether interest rates will rise or fall are two primary influences on the residential real estate market.

In January and February, he said, a slump in car sales had Michiganans worried about the economy and afraid to invest in a new home. "They heard plants were closing, Chrysler wasn't doing well, and so they were getting a little nervous in the market," he said.

"It's no longer a seller's market, it's a buyer's market. Now people feel that interest rates have bottomed out. They don't think it's going to go much lower."

Gene Komarynski,
Bruce Roy Realty

etplace," he said.

"Interest rates were going up, and sales were down," he added. "That's confusing. Where's the money going?"

"Now interest rates have gone down."

His office reported brisk sales in December and January, and a softening of the market February through April. Since then, he said, sales have picked up dramatically.

"It's no longer a seller's market, it's a buyer's market," Komarynski said. "Now people feel that interest rates have bottomed out. They don't think it's going to go much lower."

Three months ago mortgage rates were pushing 11 percent, but rates have recently slid to the 10 percent range, he said.

"There's nothing better than Northville in terms of numbers," Komarynski said. But he warned that the market will soon be flooded with residential units.

"It's strong now, but I see it getting soft," he said.

With new developments planned or in progress throughout the Northville and Novi area, Komarynski anticipated a glut on the local housing market in the next few years.

"In the next decade you'll see an oversupply in Northville similar to what you see in California, where builders are giving people free trips to Hawaii if they buy," he predicted.

Northville builders may also be pricing themselves out of the market, in part due to higher land costs. "You couldn't sell a building site in 1981-82 for $25,000," Komarynski explained. "But in 1984, that same building site you could have sold for $70-75,000. A builder uses his land cost as one-fifth of the finished product . . . and those numbers just don't change."

The result is that many new houses are priced between $300,000 and $400,000, well outside the range of all but the top one percent of homebuyers.

Compost site sought

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Canton Township officials are considering a new location for a compost collection center after residents trashed a proposal for an 80 acre site on Beck and Geddes roads.

A collection center for leaves, branches and yard wastes may be selected within 30 days, said Canton Township Clerk Loren Bennett.

The composting site is to be funded in part by a state grant and by contributions from member communities of the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA), including Northville Township and Plymouth Township.

Member communities will be allowed to use the composting center without charge, according to WTUA bylaws.

WTUA Executive Director Ann Bollin previously said the Beck and Geddes site would open in July, but Bennett said Canton Township residents expressed concerns about a composting center in an agricultural area.

Bennett said members of the Canton Township Board determined the center would be more appropriate in an industrial setting.

The township and composting site developer CSI are currently looking at a new site, Bennett said. He would not reveal the location, but said it is "slightly larger" than 80 acres and is situated in an area zoned for industrial use.

Bennett reaffirmed Canton Township's commitment to WTUA. He said the loss of the original site did not threaten Canton's membership in WTUA.

"In no way, shape, or form was there any disagreement between the communities," he said. "The board wants the composting program to go forward."

"It's environmentally benign and is a safe alternative to landfills. There will be no backing away from the program whatsoever."

An announcement on a new site could come soon, Bennett said.

"There are some negotiations that I'm aware of that will take place next week," he said. "We could have a proposal within 30 days."

Police assaulter charged

By SHEILA PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

A 21-year-old Farmington Hills man has been charged with assaulting a Novi police officer.

Kurt Allen Wellhausen allegedly punched a uniformed, on-duty officer in the face outside of the TJ Maxx store in the Novi Town Center the night of July 29.

He was arraigned July 30 on two charges resulting from the incident in the Walled Lake division of the 52nd District Court. Count one is felony charge for resisting arrest and count two is a misdemeanor charge for drunk and disorderly behavior. Bond has been set at $2,500 cash.

A preliminary exam is scheduled for Aug. 10 in front of Judge Brian MacKenzie.

The suspected assault occurred after an officer was patrolling the Town Center area around 10 p.m. on July 29 in conjunction with the '50s Festival and spotted a young couple arguing in the alley alongside TJ Maxx.

Wellhausen, who was allegedly yelling at his girlfriend and smashing a shopping cart into a nearby brick wall, tried to evade the officer when he attempted to arrest him for disorderly conduct, police said.

Wellhausen allegedly jumped on a bike, yelled an obscenity at the officer and punched him in the face while the arrest attempt was made.

Wellhausen's bond was set at $2,500 cash during arraignment, and a preliminary exam is scheduled for Aug. 10.

Renovation continues at Cooke

By MAUREEN NASZRADI
Staff Writer

Each day the crew at Cooke School brings the facility a little closer to being ready for Sept. 3.

New Cooke Principal Jeffrey Radwanski, a steady stream of volunteers, the Cooke custodial staff and other district employees throughout the summer have worked to ensure a smooth opening of the middle school on Taft Road.

Projected enrollment increases and overcrowding at Meads Mill Middle School created a need for additional capacity at the grade 5-8 level, according to the district's 1989-1994 Strategic Plan.

The bond issue approved by voters last October provided funding for the district plan to update existing facilities and equipment and provide technical hardware and programs.

Cooke operated as a middle school until 1985, when the district's middle school population was combined at Meads Mill.

Cooke until this summer housed several programs and operations—Northville schools maintenance, Gifted and Talented, Science Resource, Early Childhood Develop-

"These last two weeks everything has been falling into place. I feel a lot more confident than I did in May. On day one of school, it will be ready."

Jeffrey Radwanski,
Cooke School Principal

ment, Civic Concern, Northville Youth Assistance, Senior Citizens, Co-op Preschool and Community Commission on Drug Abuse, for example—which have been relocated throughout the district.

"There have been a lot of changes in the last month," Radwanski said. "I didn't have an office until two weeks ago," he laughed.

Radwanski spoke enthusiastically about the physical changes that already have been made and all the other plans for after school opens.

To people who have been to Cooke before, it will not look like the same school, he said.

A brief walk through last week evidenced newly arrived stage curtains, freshly painted lockers, a media center filled with furniture, counters full of computers, many boxes of books, cartons of science equipment, an almost-completed public-address system, a transformed gymnasium and work in progress.

A lot of the items purchased with the money generated by the bond issue have arrived, Radwanski said. Approximately $1 million of the $16 million bond issue was earmarked for Cooke equipment and renovations.

Eight rooms of furniture were brought from Meads Mill to Cooke to add to the planned purchases and the items that had been salvaged there, Radwanski said.

For example, the principal said, several science tables that were discovered in a back room were brought back to life by the Cooke maintenance staff. Sanded and freshly painted, the tables now sit in neat rows in a soon-to-be occupied classroom.

The gym was totally renovated, Radwanski said. Warped floorboards were replaced, then the entire floor was sanded and refinished. New glass backboards were installed at both ends. The side backboards needed only repainting and the old scoreboard simply needed a mechanism replaced, he added.

Other renovation projects are ongoing, Radwanski said. The cables that will connect computers classroom-to-classroom-to-media center are expected to be laid this week, for example.

Projects completed during the last nine months include painting, ceiling replacement, light installation, plumbing repairs, carpeting and restoration of the neglected courtyard.

Radwanski said when he was assigned the job as Cooke principal in February, his biggest concern was that the building was occupied by other programs.

"These last two weeks everything has been falling into place," he said. "I feel a lot more confident than I did in May."

"On day one of school, it will be ready."

Mill Race Matters

Hope you've been able to take part in one of the program/workshops going on this week at Mill Race Village. Everyone's preparing for the city's upcoming Victorian Festival. Remember the Village is open every Sunday from 1-4 p.m. and this week we have a special attraction.

During those hours in the New School Church we will feature a Trunk Show. A variety of dealers will show reproduction and original clothing of the Victorian era. Items will be available for sale, you may be able to order that special something to finish off your costume, you will be able to rent if that's your preference, or you may just wish to browse. Whatever your desire be sure to be there this Sunday, Aug. 12 from 1-4 p.m.

Today a brief note about the Cottage House. We believe the building dates from the 1890's. It came to Mill Race in 1976 donated by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Folino. It originally stood at 430 N. Center St. between Lake and Rayson. Research on the building is incomplete although it did serve as a home for employees of the Morse Dairy and had been previously used as a home by the Sessions family. If you have information to supply contact the office at 348-1845.

Trust program threatened

The Michigan Education Trust (MET), a prepaid college tuition program launched in 1988, faces economic disaster apt to encroach on the future quality of higher education, according to the results of a new study by University of Michigan law professor Jeffrey Lehman. He predicts the program will require tax bailout to remain solvent.

Sour grapes, counters Richard Kaye, a Coopers & Lybrand actuary who sets MET enrollment prices and monitors the program's finances.

"They're (university officials) scared out of their minds because they don't want someone looking over their shoulder when they pass along future tuition increases," said Kaye, who lives in West Bloomfield.

MET, designed to protect parents against high tuition inflation in the coming years, assures future college costs at state institutions for children in the program. During the first two years, more than 49,000 contracts were sold at a total cost of $300 million.

Much of MET's success is the program's relatively low price, according to Lehman. But such pricing spells trouble.

The program is dependent on the assumption tuition will increase slowly in the future. If schools face reduced tuition income, they will be forced to cut back on instructional programs, the study concluded.

Not so, said Kaye. The MET tuition increase assumption of 7.3 percent is based on actuarial accountings of the past 20 years that consider both actual tuition costs and mitigating circumstances.

Lehman's figures rely only on actual costs which, Kaye maintains, are simplistic and do not accurately reflect future costs.

The study also questions MET's taxing policies. Money from the purchase of a contract is viewed as non-taxable. Only income earned on invested monies is taxable.

The point is moot, Kaye said. A ruling by the IRS confirms MET policies, and it is unlikely the IRS will refute its own ruling.

Finally, the study concludes MET faces an eventual shortfall of $100 million that will require a bailout by taxpayers. If so, the primary beneficiaries will be Michigan's most affluent citizens because half of those enrolled in the program are in the top 20 percent of income.

Sabrina Keeley of the Michigan

Department of Treasury refutes Lehman's findings.

"He believes in his study. We believe in MET and we stand by what our experts tell us. They have thoroughly researched the issue. Based on their findings, we are overfunded," she said.

An audit of Sept. 30, 1989, credited the program with a surplus of $1 million, said Kaye, who is a certified public accountant and a fellow of the Society of Actuaries. MET is legally represented by Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone.

"We don't feel we have to defend ourselves. There are a lot of happy people out there" enrolled in MET, Keeley said.

John Lore of Plymouth Township, a former college president and past president of the Michigan Colleges Foundation who now serves on the MET board of directors, agrees.

"Our audits show very clearly we are overfunded, and it's a very positive program," said Lore.

A university, Kaye added, "must be run like a business and if the University of Michigan doesn't think so, it's 15 years behind the times." Kaye, incidentally, is a U-M graduate.

THIS IS WHAT DUCHENNE MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY GRADUALLY DOES

It wastes them away.

Duchenne is a "progressive" disease, so the child grows weaker over time. The muscle loss can't be stopped. And it can't be reversed.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is striving to cure Duchenne. And on Christmas Eve of 1987, in what MDA Chairman Jerry Lewis called "a holiday gift of hope," MDA researchers announced a landmark advance: discovery of the cause of this dread disease.

Now we're directly on the path to a cure for Duchenne. And MDA researchers are racing against time to save the children stricken today.

You can help save these children — and youngsters and adults with other muscle diseases — by making a tax-deductible contribution to MDA. The Association receives no government grants or patient fees for services, so its work is funded entirely by private donations.

Please send your support to MDA today. And maybe soon we'll see Duchenne, not muscles, disappear.

The Northville Record

City's list of goals is repetitive and vague

Most businesses set goals as a method for planning and also as a means of measuring progress. Goals must be structured and achievable, yet must stretch individual and corporate resources. Most importantly, goals must be measurable — so that progress, or a lack of progress, can be seen.

DEVELOPMENT

Northville City Council recently set its goals for the 1990-91 year. Originally City Manager Steven Walters presented four goals for the council. Council decided to accept those four with some modifications and to add five more of their own.

While it might be easy to applaud the council for setting goals at all, the rather slipshod method of determining the goals, and the fact that this is not the first year we have seen some of them, leads us to wonder what purpose the council is serving in setting the goals at all.

The nine goals listed were: developing plans for a new community library, adding recreation facilities, consolidating public services, consideration of more senior citizen services and facilities, reconfiguring the city's parking lots, implementing the remaining recommendations of the 1988 traffic study, developing a local plan to meet the Wayne County Solid Waste Plan, determining the fate of the Ford Motor Plant, and completing the Master Plan.

All of these goals are noble endeavors, but the sad part is that so many of them have been on this list before. In addition, many of them are vague. Consolidating public services — does that mean a combined township/city police and fire department? What does it mean?

Omnicom didn't give voters whole picture

The League of Women Voters did Northville Township residents a huge service last week when it sponsored a debate between candidates for the position of township treasurer.

Although turnout was light — distressingly so — the differences between candidates was shown clearly by well-asked audience questions. As usual, the League ran the question-and-answer session professionally, giving all participants an equal chance at all the issues.

A second chance to view the debate was offered by Omnicom Cable, the Northville community cable system. This too, could have been a giant service for township voters, giving those unable to attend the debate firsthand a chance to see the candidates and hear their responses at times throughout the week.

Unfortunately for voters, while Omnicom taped the event on Tuesday, July 31, the broadcast was not supposed to be aired until Monday, Aug. 6 and Tuesday Aug. 7, election day. During a quick look at the local access channel on Saturday, another showing was apparently added on Aug. 4.

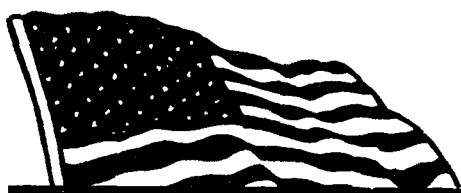

While the effort to tape and show the debate is noteworthy, the lack of Shouldn't the specifics be spelled out for the public so that progress can be monitored?

While the council voted to rate the current list of ongoing city projects — 21 in all — by priority, they failed to do the same thing to the nine goals listed. Is developing a local plan to meet the Wayne County Solid Waste Plan as immediate a need as implementing the remaining recommendations of the 1988 traffic study? Does finding recreation fields take priority over establishing a new library? Where should the city manager be focusing his time?

Goal-setting by a local government accomplishes many things. It alerts voters to the priorities held by their elected officials. It lets the city manager know what his bosses, the council, consider to be the priorities for his time. Just as a company must be held to its goals if it is to remain profitable, a city must be held to its goals if it is to be well run and well planned.

Council members are on the right track in setting goals. But a more reasoned method and a more structured timetable are the next steps to making the goals a realistic map for the coming year.

GOVERNMENT

timeliness in its airing deserves mention. The lack of planning in this aspect of local access television continues to be a problem. Because the cable company did not know enough in advance to alert cable guide printers of the times for the debate to be shown, viewers could not check normal sources to find out when the debate would air. This newspaper was only able to list the times as of Monday, Aug. 6.

Watching the debate the day before the election, or even worse, on the day of the election, is not enough notice for voters to make the most use of the information.

A little better scheduling would go a long way to making Omnicom a service for the community.

Ann Willis

I was at a Christmas party two years ago.

A man, making casual conversation, asked me what I did for a living.

"I'm the editor of a newspaper," I said.

"Which one?" he asked.

"The Northville Record," I said.

"I'd love to edit a little paper some day," he said nodding and smiling. "Maybe when I retire, that would be a nice little hobby."

He left then to go check out the shrimp bowl so there really was no sense dumping my drink on his head. Besides the carpet was white and I didn't know my hosts very well.

Now I'm leaving the Northville Record and I'm going to miss meeting people like him.

There is perhaps no better way to get to know a community intimately than to write about it. What you don't learn in the writing, you learn in the phone calls the next day.

Over the years people have disagreed with the paper. They've disagreed with me. They've called me at home. They've cornered me at parties, at parades, on my porch and while I'm walking the dog. Over the years, a few have even agreed with the paper. Most of them have been members of my family, but I count them. Everyone needs fans.

Throughout this time the one thing I've never been able to say about the community of Northville, is that people don't care.

Whether it's a car wash at the Methodist Church or a township planning commission meeting — people care. Whether it's a downtown sidewalk sale or planting bulbs at township hall — people care. Whether it's a debate over the site of a new library or a discussion of skateboard rules — people care.

I've had the good fortune to watch the community's commitment close up. I've seen the township fire department work to get a victim free after a car crash. I've taken pictures at boy scout Blue and Gold banquets and I've sat through school board meetings. I've had lunch with the Woman's Club and eaten dinner with the V.F.W.

I've judged Fourth of July parades and Halloween costumes. I've spent hours at Maybury and in Hines Park. I've played volleyball and softball on Rec leagues and I've eaten my way through most of the restaurants in town and around town.

Now I get to join the dedicated ranks of citizens who call Northville home.

And if I don't like something — I'll just write a letter to the editor.

Smooth Sailing

Bob Needham

In the wake of Tuesday's primary voting there were, as usual, a lot of expectations fulfilled and a few surprises.

Locally, the favorites won in Republican nominations for things like the Oakland County Commission, state Senate (in Oakland County), and Northville Township treasurer. Surprises (to some people — like me) included the denial of the Northville Township fire millage and the size of Denise Alexander's commanding victory in the race to oppose state Sen. Jack Faxon in November.

Statewide, the TV pundits did a masterful job of backpedaling and Monday-morning quarterbacking, trying to explain Clark Durant's unexpectedly strong showing in the U.S. Senate race.

The Oakland County Circuit Court contest offered up the most surprising results, however. Dennis Drury, who a lot of people expected to move ahead, finished last of six candidates. Rudy Nichols, a state Senator with (I thought) good name recognition, had a mediocre showing.

The whole event served to put writers of newspaper editorials in their proper place, as elections often do. In the most obvious example, Drury won the endorsement of just about every newspaper that circulates in Oakland County (including this one), and a fat lot of good it did him. In the closely watched Democratic primary for the 13th Congressional District, the Detroit News made a big push for Alberta Tinsley-Williams, who finished a distant fourth. The Northville Record recommended a yes vote on the failed Northville Township fire millage.

At this point in the campaign — after all the sound and fury, signifying nothing — we all need and deserve a break. But that's the kicker with primaries: they're only the beginning.

If you're tired of campaign commercials on TV and campaign signs on every streetcorner, brace yourself. What we've seen so far is only the prologue.

From now until Nov. 6 — that's a long three months from now — the rhetoric will build and build to such a crescendo that we'll barely be able to stand it. As usual, here at the paper we'll do our best to provide you the information you need to make decisions on the more local races. We hope it proves useful.

Perhaps the most interesting thing to come out of the whole primary was the fight for the Republican nomination in the 24th District of the state House of Representatives — the district which includes Wixom, Walled Lake and West Bloomfield. The unofficial totals showed Barbara Dobb winning with 2,338 votes — and Debbie Schlusel second with 2,337. That's a difference of one vote.

Painful as it may be, I'm going to follow all the races as closely as possible. These things truly are important, and the old cliché is true: Every vote really does count.

Hat tricks

Coaches and team members from Northville schools' Odyssey of the Mind group (a problem-solving program for K-12 graders) had a workshop session recently to make Victorian hats. The hats will be sold at the Victorian Festival Sept. 14-16. Funds from the sale will be used for state and world competition for the teams. Here, coach Nancy Fiske puts some finishing touches on one of the hats. For more on the Victorian Festival, see page 2D.

Letters

What's the rush?

To the Editor:
After attending the Charter Township of Northville Planning Commission meeting on July 31, 1990, I was shocked to find writing this letter!

I have attended numerous planning commission and zoning board of appeals meetings over the past three years, concerning various issues, and I have never witnessed a board so intent on granting a developer exactly what HE wanted as this board was concerning SP89-2, Ward Presbyterian Church-Revised Final Site Plan.

I have to agree that the issue of the height was resolved by the developer lowering the peak of the roof to 65 feet, within an average of 45 feet, which is 3 feet below what the ordinance requires, but to allow the front-yard parking variance to be extended by the Township Attorney, Mr. Ernie Essad, for a "reasonable amount of time," whatever that means, is ludicrous! First of all, one of the reasons stated on the petition to the ZBA for the request of this variance was to enable this developer to share parking with Kirco on an adjoining parcel, (which would also enable this developer to have additional ingress/egress onto Haggerty Road to possibly help alleviate some of the traffic on Six Mile Road). Since Kirco is no longer interested in purchasing this parcel and the developer has not sold this parcel to another, shouldn't this variance become null and void? Granted, I am not a municipal law attorney, but doesn't a developer have to return to the ZBA to request an extension on any variance prior to expiration according to Township Ordinance?

Also, I have never witnessed a Final Site Plan being granted with so many outstanding issues, i.e. incorrect site plan drawings. The usual procedure that I have observed is to have the issue, sensitive or not, tabled until ALL concerns are corrected and the Final Site Plan Drawings are exact. I feel that I must ask the commissioners, "What is the hurry?"

I congratulate Karen Baja, Barbara O'Brien and Karen Woodside for their courage in voting no on granting this Final Site Plan. As to the years, I realize that all of the commissioners dedicate long hours preparing for and attending meetings, but my understanding is that you are appointed, not elected, so that you will be nonpartisan, and if this were a perfect world, you could not be swayed by any special interest and would vote for what is best for our township within the guidelines of our township ordinance.

Discouraging

To the Editor:
Because this letter was written and submitted prior to the Primary Election, it cannot be considered gloating or sour grapes.

I just had to say that your endorsement of the fire millage and Mrs. Lennox as Township Treasurer were less than encouraging and about as clear as the fire millage question itself. In both cases, your endorsement is buffered with conditions. You say that we should approve the fire millage, but that the township board should only assess the lower rate; we should vote Betty Lennox, but then she has to change as well.

You don't get married hoping that your spouse will change after the wedding. You either put off the wedding until you are sure, or you marry the right person.

You don't buy a Ford hoping that the truck it stays in the driveway, it will eventually become a Chevy. You either don't buy the car, or you buy the Chevy you wanted.

The Township Board has had ample opportunity to approve assessing only .33 mill on the fire millage question. If they could not do so, a no vote would have meant that they come back in November with the correct millage language. Fire services would not have suffered in the meantime.

Mrs. Lennox has also had ample opportunity to refine and display the characteristics you say she is lacking, but the refinement has yet to occur.

If the Northville Record cannot clearly endorse a candidate or an issue, then don't endorse them.

Poor sport

To the Editor:

I am very disappointed in your coverage of high school sports this spring. Your coverage of girls sports has been quite lackadaisical.

Your sports writer has been inefficient in his sports coverage. I find it in poor taste when he cuts down a team and makes unknown problems eye-sores to the public. For example, Mr. Geoghegan wrote an end-of-the-season article on the girls soccer team. This article stated the cause of a dismal season was due to personal problems and internal conflicts. I believe these statements are false. Inadequate descriptions of the kickers' season.

As a close associate of the Northville Soccer Program, I find this article to be distastefully written and a disgrace to the soccer program. The problems said to "plague" the team were problems to be resolved and dealt with by the team, not the public. I feel the team's privacy was unrightfully violated.

Another area, which I find disturbing, is your lack of attention to the girls who received Honorable Mention, All-Division and All-Conference honors. These girls deserve to be recognized. In the wrap-up article, these names were strewn together into a one-sentence description of their accomplishments.

Recently, I have seen entire pages of the sports section devoted to baseball and softball players who have made All-Area or Sliger-Livingston teams. In these articles, only one or two players have been from Northville. I feel that the four girls who received All-Division and the three girls who received Honorable Mention honors have been cheated of their recognition in the community. In seasons past, articles have been written to illustrate these accomplishments. Has an article not been written this year because of a supposedly "disappointing" season?

The girl I feel who has been unjustly omitted is Kristi Turner. Not only did she win All-Conference honors, but later went on to win All-State first team honors. Your writer only dedicated one small column to this valuable individual, telling of her accomplishment. How many athletes in Northville ever receive All-State honors? I feel the writer should have written one article on this outstanding player. She was voted the best in the state, and happens to play for Northville. The community should be honored to have such a valuable player in their midst.

It also upset me to see Kristi's success jammed in between the summary of the J.V. soccer season and other soccer briefs. This important accomplishment deserves individual attention and is much more worthy of writing space than any article on a J.V. season.

I sincerely hope that in the future, your sports writers will take more pride in their work to adequately portray valuable individuals in the Northville community and to give equal, unbiased representation to each sport.

Horsing around in the garden

Mother's Day present for the lady of our house was 500 pounds of horse manure.

It's a free country. The lady of your house can ask for five pounds of chocolates if she wants. The lady of this house asked for 500 pounds of horse manure.

It's paying off in the garden. Getting the horse manure was a bigger project this year. A stable overlooking Northville Downs race track used to give away the stuff. It has been replaced by tax-producing condos.

To make a long story short, a young woman we met at a wedding turned out to be a horse trainer in Jackson County — standard-breds (trotters and pacers).

That's the kind of horse manure you want. The late R.T. "Tommy" Thompson, a racing writer and editor both downtown and in the suburbs, said so. He used to tell us thoroughbred (runner) manure wasn't worth you-know-what. The Jackson trainer's compost pile turned out to be eight years old, with the best stuff on the bottom. Digging and hauling it in the station wagon were my job.

As I spent the following months poring over state budgets and Supreme Court opinions, the lady of the house ran the garden.

The tomato plants stand 6-feet-6. The green tomatoes on them are as thick as clusters of grapes.

The bibb lettuce is the size of cabbage leaves.

Our Norwegian elkhound used to scoop out a spot in the garden and lie in the cool earth on hot days. No more. I think she's afraid the tomato plants will reach out, like a creature from a swamp, and envelop her.

While supermarkets displayed sickly yellow beans (before Aug. 1 anyway), we were wolfing down van-sized helpings of the tenderest, biggest beans this side of Eden. No, you can't have any. No, we won't even sell you any.

The real test will come when we see what we can do with corn. In recent years, the sweetest — and most expensive — corn came from a nearby farmer. He has sold off much of his land for a subdivision of homes as big as Don Quixote's windmills. The lots cost double what my entire house cost new. In this McWages eco-nomny, we're wondering how folks can afford such behemoths. There can't be that many drug dealers moving out of Detroit, can there?

Anyway, those houses are going up in the old corn and tomato patch, so we're trying our hand at sweet corn — "Michigan gold," I call it. Corn is supposed to be "knee high by the Fourth of July." Ours was bellybutton high. The experiment is looking good.

Purists say you should cook sweet corn immediately after picking. You should get the water boiling first and run from the field with your bucket of corn. If you trip and fall along the way, forget it and get fresh corn.

Our cornfield is two feet from the patio. No such problems.

Michigan gold can be boiled a few minutes, or it can be soaked in water with a few husks on it and roasted over a charcoal fire until the kernel tips start to turn brown.

Give the elkhound my steak. I'll take the sweet corn.

I've smelled Florida citrus groves in February, Atlantic fish tugs, tobacco curing in a Carolina barn. Good smells, no question.

But the most succulent odors are fresh vegetables from a Michigan garden in August. And here is a toast to the 500 pounds of standardbred horse manure that made it possible.

WASTE REDUCTION TIPS FOR BUSINESSES — Oakland County's solid waste department is recommending the following garbage reduction tips for area businesses:

Buy in bulk to eliminate unnecessary plastic wrappings or foam padding. Insist that suppliers haul packaging back for reuse. Choose durable equipment that will last and can be repaired.

Eliminate disposable napkins, dinnerware, coffee cups and containers in employee cafeterias.

Use refillable pens and the second side of paper. Buy recycled paper, motor oil, building materials and plastic.

RECYCLING GRANT SCHOOL — Six special workshops, designed to assist local governments and private organizations interested in applying for grants and loans under the Solid Waste Alternatives Program, will be offered by the Michigan Recycling Coalition and the Department of Natural Resources. Bush's tax stance a relief to area Dems

President George Bush's declaration late last month that tax increases will have to be a part of any deficit reduction plan won him few new fans on either side of the congressional aisle.

One area Republican expressed disappointment with the president while another said he'll adopt a wait-and-see attitude and supports the president. Area Democrats expressed I-told-you-so glee.

"At least now he's fessed up," said U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Westland, who represents Garden City, Taylor, Canton Township and part of Livonia.

"You can't run government on credit cards and expect our grandchildren to pay for it."

Although Bush's words lift a burden from Democrats, who have long feared being blamed for any new taxes, Ford doesn't believe the president deserves kudos for admitting the inevitable.

"He doesn't know anything now that he didn't know in '88. He was sweet-talking voters when he should've been shouldering responsibility," Ford said.

The Office of Management and Budget released its midyear review July 15.

OMB director Richard Darman said he expects the fiscal 1991 deficit to be about $168 billion.

Ford, like other House Democrats, would like to see a shift in the tax burden to those in upper income brackets.

"In my district the average person is neither poor nor rich, but working class. Every tax bill since Reagan has given them a bite. I'd like to see the burden shifted away from the middle class."

"I'm not going to support the president's tax package no matter what if he doesn't support higher taxes for higher income earners."

The President's statement, which also called for spending cuts, growth incentives and budget process reform, garnered a kinder, gentler response from U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, a Southfield Democrat whose district includes Redford Township.

"The reversal of policy is welcome even though inevitable," Levin said.

"The question remains what will the summit package look like. Will it promote economic growth that will benefit Americans?"

Bush's statement divided congressional Republicans. Many feel betrayed by his retreat from the party's strong no-new-taxes stand, a platform on which many campaigned and plan to run again.

"I agree with the president that we cannot ignore the country's mounting debt and continuing benefits," U.S. Rep. William Broomfield, R-Birmingham, said in a prepared statement. "However, I was disappointed to hear the president say he believes that tax increases must be part of the solution."

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, a Republican whose district includes a portion of Livonia and Plymouth and Plymouth Township, said he feels neither betrayed nor is he disappointed in Bush.

Pursell said Bush's "read my lips" comment on taxes was aimed principally at the personal income tax.

Pursell said he'll wait to see the whole budget package before making any decision.

As to what kind of package he'd like to see, Pursell said it would include across-the-board spending cuts. Pursell also supports a balanced budget amendment and encouraged the president to exercise his veto on appropriations bills.

Pursell, a longtime supporter of George Bush, said the criticism of the president is coming from "supply-siders in Jack Kemp's organization."

Shortly after Bush's written statement was released, more than 100 House Republicans signed a letter to the president saying they were stunned by the announcement and would not vote for a budget package that included an increase in tax rates. A similar letter was signed by Senate Republicans.

But Democrats also made clear that they planned to make tax equity an issue in the upcoming budget debate.

Just some of the Tracy memorabilia at The Disney Store

Marketing the Memorabilia Sales of Dick Tracy souvenirs reported slow

Get Tracy!
Or if that fails, get the next best thing. It's merchandise mania time and why should one of the biggest box office movies of the summer be any different?

T-shirts? Got em.
Hats? How many do you want?
Buttons? What color?
Toys? Ditto.

Movie memorabilia? Is this America or what?

Two-way wrist radios? Uh, Japan is working on it.

Publicity-shy Walt Disney, which is handling the merchandising for Dick Tracy since its Touchstone Pictures is distributing the movie, is mum on exactly how much and what kind of products we'll be seeing in the coming months, but many products are now on the store shelves.

But to what response?

Slow, says Suncoast Motion Picture Twelve Oaks Mall store manager Ted Schaafsma. Suncoast, with stores in major malls throughout the country, including Twelve Oaks in Novi and Summit Mall in Pontiac, specializes in movie-related items.

Schaafsma said Suncoast is carrying everything from key chains and T-shirts to buttons and post cards. "We've had them for a couple of weeks now," he said.

With the exception of Dick Tracy key chains, Schaafsma said most items are being received with lukewarm response.

"There are a lot of people stopping and looking, but no one's buying yet," he said. "But then, that's what we suspect."

In reality, few movies generate enough advance excitement to result in significant sales prior to their release. Last summer's "Batman," Schaafsma said, is the rare exception, but then Batman-related items might sell without a movie because Batman has a stable following from his comic book, Saturday morning cartoons and the 1960s show.

"I don't think people are that much into Dick Tracy," Schaafsma said. Dick Tracy does not have the same appeal among young people today as he did several decades ago.

But don't count Dick Tracy out, say others. Dick Tracy has been shot, stabbed, burned, drowned, cursed, blown up, beat up and just about every other form of punishment short of decapitation and he's still around. What's a little competition from one of Hollywood's hottest stars?

Melissa Crane, of United Stars of America, the character apparel division of J.G. Hook headquartered in New York, said the firm is banking its line of Dick Tracy T-shirts, sweat suits, boxers, neck wear and related items will top its sales of Batman movie-related items.

Heavier items, including fleece tops and sportswear, are under way

United Artists of America made nearly $1.5 million on its Batman-related line and "we expect to double that with Dick Tracy," Crane said.

Crane said that while Batman had a tremendous amount of advance sales, purchases dried up quickly after the movie premiered. Dick Tracy, which is only beginning to be promoted, isn't as widely anticipated as was Batman, but Crane and J.G. Hook is expecting a longer afterglow, she said. Designed by J.G. Hook's in-house art studio, the characters were designed to depict the characters in Touchstone's "Dick Tracy."

Walt Disney controls the licensing for the Dick Tracy character. It requires that all memorabilia depict the movie, rather than classic comic strip characters, according to United Stars of America designer Carol Alzenstark.

"I don't think this was really a problem" she said. If the movie is as much of a success as people are expecting, the appeal of the film's stars will be selling points in themselves.

Alzenstark said that while nostalgia buffs may have fond memories of the Dick Tracy character, inspired by his creator, Chester Gould, J.G. Hook officials strove to combine the qualities of the strip and the movie.

"We think it's a nice marriage," she said.

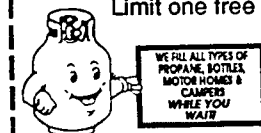

All of United Stars of America's line, for example, strives to mirror the primary color scheme used in both the comic strip and the movies. Adding to the appeal, she said, will be the various depictions of everyone from Dick Tracy and Breathless Mahoney to Flatfoot, the Brow and Pruneface.

"It makes for a very bright, very colorful line," Alzenstark said.

The characters' real-life counterparts — particularly in the case of Breathless Mahoney, who is played by Madonna — may indeed be "the selling point," according to T's-N-Things buyer Amy Simpson. T's-N-Things, in Livonia, carries numerous Dick Tracy-related apparel items.

2nd home is tricky tax territory

Your vacation home may be an escape from the daily pressures of city life, but it is not an escape from the rigors of tax law. According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, if you rent your vacation home for part of the year, the rules on deducting expenses can be complicated and surprising. In fact, just by extending or reducing the number of days that you spend at your vacation home, you can save — or lose — thousands of tax dollars.

How can you unravel the mystery of deducting a vacation home? The answer is far from elementary. If you rent your vacation home for a portion of the year and at other times use it for personal enjoyment, calculating the amount of your allowable deductions can be a monumental task. First, you have to determine whether your vacation home qualifies as a second residence or as a rental property.

If you use your vacation home for personal purposes more than 14 days, or for more than 10 percent of the number of days the property is rented, whichever is greater, the home qualifies as a residence. If the vacation home is the only house you own other than your primary residence, you still get the full property-tax and mortgage-interest deductions. After subtracting these deductions, you can begin deducting rental expenses — but only up to the amount of rental income that the property generates. One pleasant surprise is that you can carry excess deductions into succeeding years to offset any rental income attributed to that same property. Another exception is that if you rent your property for 14 days or less, you are not required to report rental revenue or expenses.

If your personal use of a vacation home is limited to 14 days or less than 10 percent of the time it is rented, whichever is greater, tax law will treat your vacation home as it does any other rental property. Generally, you will be entitled to deduct some or all of the mortgage interest and property tax deductions, plus depreciation write-offs. In addition, you can deduct a portion of such operating expenses as utilities, fire and liability insurance, repairs, advertising costs and even maid service.

To determine the amount of your deductible expenses, you must first determine usage; next, you will have to allocate the rental expenses in proportion to the number of days you use the property for personal and rental purposes. Note that what you see as a personal day and what the IRS sees as a personal day may be very different.

According to Uncle Sam, a personal day is any day that the property is used by you, a blood relative or co-owner, or any person who rents the home at less than fair market value. If you let a friend spend a few days at your vacation home in exchange for a few days at his Miami condo, these days are also considered personal use.

The IRS allows for days spent at your vacation home for the purposes of maintenance or repair. These days are considered neither personal nor rental days. Since an audit may require you to prove that certain days were in fact dedicated to repairs and not pleasure, you should maintain supporting documents whenever possible.

Once you determine the number of personal and rental days, add them together to find the amount of total use. To calculate the percentage of deductible operating expenses (such as maintenance, utilities and depreciation), simply multiply all expenses by the number of rental days, then divide that sum by the total use figure. The result is your tax deductible amount — subject to the passive loss rules noted previously. For example, if your operating expenses were $5,000 and you rented your property for 90 days and the total use figure came to 100, your deductible amount would be $4,500 ($5,000 times 90, divided by 100).

Some CPAs recommend that you figure the amount of deductible mortgage interest and property tax separately from operating expenses. To do this, multiply the amount of mortgage interest and property tax by the fraction of rental days to the total days in the calendar year. You should note, however, that while the Tax Court decisions have upheld this method of determining the amount of deductible mortgage interest and property taxes, the IRS does not.

To make matters more complicated, the tax law also dictates the order in which you deduct the expenses calculated by these two formulas: first, property taxes and mortgage interest, then operating expenses, and finally, depreciation.

In some cases, you may benefit more by extending your personal use so that you can claim the deductions allowed to a second home as opposed to those for a rental.

If you have a loss from renting property, that loss is considered passive and thus can be deducted only from passive income. However, if you actively participate in renting your property, and your adjusted gross income (AGI) is $150,000 or less, you can deduct rental losses of up to $25,000 from your regular income. If your AGI is over $100,000, the $25,000 active rental loss allowance is reduced by 50 cents for every dollar of income above $100,000. Once your AGI exceeds $150,000, the allowance is totally phased out. However, if you rented your home before the new law was enacted (October 22, 1986) and you exceed AGI limits you can still deduct 10 percent in 1990, but none thereafter.

CPAs remind us that the various passive-income provisions are extremely complex and can have a substantially different impact depending on your personal circumstances.

Home starts in a slight slump in first quarter

Gary D. Smith of Muskegon, President of the Michigan Association of Home Builders says, "Michigan's residential housing starts are showing signs of mild slowing with a 15-percent decrease as compared to last month's rates. We still have favorable interest rates and now is an excellent time to consider building a home." Total year-to-date (January to May) starts have increased 21 percent to 20,006 units as compared to 1989 year-to-date units of 16,529. Building activity was very strong in the first three months of the year due to warm weather and continued consumer demand. There continue to be more construction starts in 1990 as compared to a similar time period in 1989.

The industry has started $1.47 billion of residential construction activity during January through May, 1990, and is up 17 percent over 1989.

The residential construction industry remains strong in Michigan. Construction of multifamily units seems to be increasing and single family residences are remaining steady.

The Michigan Association of Home Builders in Lansing is comprised of 8,000 member companies representing over 300,000 people in the home building/construction industry.

Pension plan builds for retirement

In this article I will discuss the use of life insurance in qualified plans and in deferred compensation plans.

Insurance in qualified plans

People make financial plans for their retirement in various ways: investments in equities, mutual funds, real estate, hard assets and so on.

An important facet of retirement plans is a contribution to qualified (pension and profit sharing) plans, which appreciates on a tax-deferred basis. Life insurance plays an important role in the operation of many qualified plans.

There are four principal ways in which qualified plans can be financed with insurance: (1) individual policies, (2) group permanent insurance, (3) group annuities and (4) deposit administration contracts.

Of these, the first two are self-explanatory. The group annuity contract is a method of financing a pension in which units of individual annuity contracts are accumulated each year and are fully paid-for on a regular basis.

In contrast, a deposit administration contract is a form of group annuity in which the employer makes the contribution into a deposit administration fund, which is a single fund for all employees in the group. When an employee reaches the retirement age, enough money is withdrawn to provide the retiring employee with the annuity.

An important aspect of life insurance in a qualified plan is that death benefits provided in these plans are required by law to be "incidental." In a defined benefit plan, which prescribes the monthly income to be received upon retirement, the incidental test is satisfied if the benefit does not exceed 100 times the expected monthly pension benefits.

In a defined contribution plan, which specifies the annual contribution, the insurance premiums are limited to a certain portion of the contributions.

One of the advantages of having insurance in a pension plan is to provide a large benefit for those relatively young employees who die before their money in the qualified plan has a chance to grow. Another advantage of this strategy is to offer insurance protection for the key employees who are "rated" and can only obtain insurance by paying significantly higher premiums.

Premium payments are treated as tax-deductible contributions. The distribution of cash value is treated as tax-free distribution.

Deferred compensation

As a way of providing a powerful incentive, corporations sometimes offer their executives what is known as deferred compensation. A deferred compensation plan is an arrangement whereby the company promises — but does not guarantee — to pay a predetermined compensation after retirement. This helps both parties, since the corporation does not have to pay the money now, while the executive does not pay taxes until the deferred compensation is actually received. Deferred compensation payments are tax-deductible at the time payments are actually made.

A deferred compensation agreement is only as good as the financial arrangements that support it. An employer can promise benefits, but the ability to carry out the commitment depends on solvency at the time payment becomes due. Also, deferred compensation becomes a part of the general assets of the corporation and hence can be attached by its creditors. These problems can be solved by using life insurance as a planning tool.

THIS IS WHAT DUCHENNE MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY LOOKS LIKE

This tree died of a heart attack.

Carving hearts on trees seems harmless enough.

But the fact is, it cut short the life of this majestic oak.

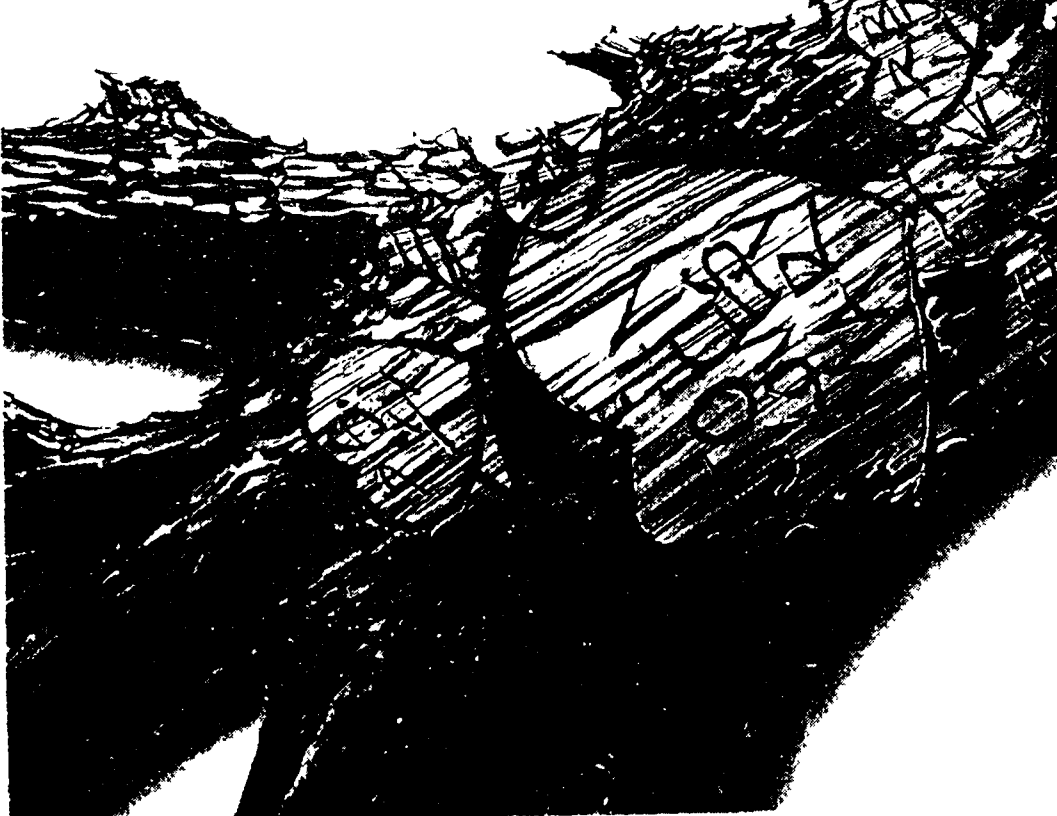

By gouging into the bark, vandals crippled the tree's vascular system. So, like thousands of other innocent victims each year, the tree slowly died.

But the fight against vandalism is gathering strength from the example of Lynn Brauer and Carol Eichling.

When vandals girdled a 300 year old Chinquapin Oak near their Marthasville, Missouri home, they wrapped the wound in sphagnum moss and tended the tree daily, despite blizzard conditions.

If not for the severe winter, arborists feel the Chinquapin might have survived.

We believe miracles can take root. When people care enough.

Give a hoot.
Don't pollute.

The Manita

Turn of the century styling and living room space

By James McAlexander

The wide front porch of the Manita, with its traditional turned posts and railings, practically cries out for an old-fashioned porch swing.

This large 2½-story home is reminiscent of popular turn-of-the-century styling.

Once inside, standing in the two-story vaulted entry, another railing catches the eye. The polished wood balustrade curves along the right side of the living and dining rooms, up to a small balcony overlooking the area, then up to the second floor.

Recessed display boxes nestle into the outside curve of the stairway support, great for objects d'art, family mementos or other knickknacks.

The big comfortable kitchen at the back opens onto the patio. It has a large pantry, a work island, and a nook where most family meals will be eaten. Access to the patio and garage is from this nook.

The adjoining family room is quite spacious. Placing a freestanding wood stove on the hearth combines the visual benefits of a fireplace with the efficient heat production of a wood stove.

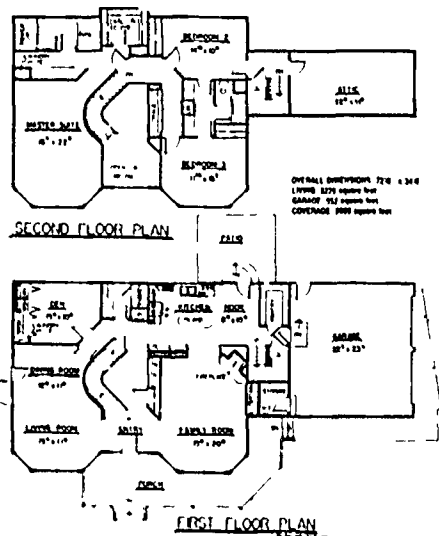

Call it a den, utility, storage, hobby, exercise or guest room, the little extra room in the back is sure to find a use. Laundry dropped down a chute in the master suite falls in a roll-out basket tucked in one corner, and a full bathroom complete with shower is right outside the door.

Sleeping quarters and an attic are upstairs. The Manita's peaked roof is high enough to fit a couple of more rooms over these (the additional half story), should more space ever be needed.

The master suite is huge. It has a large walk-in closet and double vanity outside the water closet, and room for a spa.

The other two bedrooms share a bathroom. Here again a double vanity is separated from the bath area. The two vanities are split by a linen closet for added privacy.

A storage closet is also tucked in the space between the two bedrooms, and plenty more is available in the attic over the garage.

For a study plan of the Manita (209-04), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

SUITE retreats

If your home decor needs a little redifining, then here are some enhancement ideas to make your rooms more like...

When you walk from room to room in your home, are you happy with what you see?

Apart from clutter and cleanliness — do you like the furnishings? Are the rooms well-utilized?

If your answer is "Not really," chances are you're ripe for redecorating — and possible redefining the spaces in which you live.

What follow are enhancement suggestions for rooms that often are given a low priority — but have tremendous potential.

BEDROOMS

In "A Complete Guide to Interior Design" (Simon and Schuster), the editors of House & Garden call bedrooms "serene sanctums around the clock."

The editors' primary suggestion for bedroom interior design is "to remember every detail in terms of comfort and convenience."

These details include simplicity for the sake of serenity, total noise control (sound-baffling wall paneling helps, as does wall-to-wall carpeting) and total control over daylight (block out unwanted light with shades or curtains).

To ensure a good night's sleep, provide yourself with an excellent bed and mattress. You'll also want good reading lamps and a light switch close at hand.

Treat you feet to a bedside rug or soft floor covering, and decorate with your favorite colors, lots of pillows, plants or fresh flowers.

Try to include one or two soft chairs as well as bedside tables with enough space to hold a clock, radio, tissues, books, and more.

Something from the past will lend interest. It could be a picture, an old rocking chair or the bed itself.

Consider decorating with designer sheets. A Laura Ashley or Ralph Lauren collection, for example, might consist of a splashy floral you can combine with coordinated stripes, checks, smaller prints or solids, which you use for slipcovers, curtains and/or table skirts — all of which match your bedding and accessories.

GUEST ROOMS

It's hard to get perspective on your guest room — unless you pack your bags and move into it for a few days.

Follow the above suggestions for creating a beautiful and functional bedroom, but in addition, bless your guests with at least half of a closet, empty except for clothes hangers. Also provide one or two drawers in a chest or table.

Agreeable extras include a full-length mirror and a television set camouflaged in an armoire or chest (so it won't stare back at your guests).

If there's room, add a large trunk that stores extra bedding and can support an opened suitcase.

Is your guest room small — or does it do double duty as a den or library? Go ahead and save space with a sofa that converts into a bed — new versions are vastly more comfortable than their predecessors.

MEDIA ROOMS

If staying home and enjoying a high-tech entertainment system appeals to you, chances are you already own a wide-screen television set, a VCR, a compact disc player and an excellent sound system. But do you have the perfect place to put them?

Consider converting your family room (or the den, attic, basement) into a media room. A large furniture store can supply you with items designed to hold all your equipment — in style.

Comfort is key. You'll need cushy chairs or recliners and an overstuffed sofa. Add a small refrigerator, a microwave oven and whatever else connotes luxury to you.

HOME OFFICES

Computer technology, combined with telephone and fax machines — and such conveniences as desktop copiers — make working at home easier and more efficient than ever. And you can't beat the commute.

Because of increased demand, more and more furniture manufacturers are offering complete lines of furnishings for home offices: desks, swivel chairs, computer tables, light fixtures, filing cabinets and shelving — at affordable prices.

"The environment should fit your work style," advises Success magazine. "You don't have to outfit your office like George Jetson's to be ergonomic. Comfort increases productivity. Have pencils, note pads, tape, floppy disks, a stapler and other everyday tools within arm's length. Your office furniture should fit you instead of your having to contort yourself to fit it."

SEWING ROOMS

If you love to sew, set aside a space for your hobby.

A sewing room needn't be large; you can convert a pantry, breakfast room, walk-in closet or a corner of the garage.

Essentials for your special area include a work table that can double as a desk with your machine set on top of it or just under it, an iron and ironing board just a few steps away, good lighting over your work space and a closet, trunk, basket or chest or drawers to store your patterns, notions and fabrics.

DINING ROOMS

What's new in dining rooms? Halogen pendant lighting instead of chandeliers. Upholstered chairs that swivel like executive office chairs. Wood tables painted or stained in soft, light shades, then "distressed" to look antique. Convertible tables — flip their tops and they become playing surfaces for card games or billiards.

What's out in dining room design? Quite possibly, the once-popular trend toward combination kitchen/dining rooms that are open to each other, ostensibly so guests can visit with hosts during dinner preparation.

The idea is appealing, but one woman protests, "I don't want my guests watching my every culinary move, nor do I like looking into the kitchen 'battleground' when we're at the dining table."

If you share a similar situation and don't want to incur the costs of remodeling, separate the areas with folding screens covered in a fabric or wall covering that coordinates with the rest of the room.

REAL ESTATE

The problem of stigmatized property

By James M. Woodard

Sometimes a real estate broker just can't win. It's technically termed within the industry as "finding oneself between a rock and a hard place."

A prime example is a case where a home, listed by a broker, is the residence of an AIDS patient—or perhaps a home where an AIDS patient has died. Should the broker disclose that information to prospective buyers?

If he does, perhaps the seller (AIDS patient) would accuse him of a discriminatory act in violation of the federal Fair Housing Act. And, after all, the broker legally represents the seller.

If the broker doesn't disclose the information, the buyer might later accuse him of not communicating material information about the property, thus violating full disclosure requirements.

It has been the focus of a rapidly evolving scenario within the real estate market. But legislators and courts are now in general agreement that residence of an AIDS patient in a home being marketed is not a material fact that should be disclosed to buyers.

That residency would not jeopardize the health or welfare of new owner-residents. It is agreed by most analysts. And it certainly wouldn't affect the home's physical structure. To discuss the situation might generate discrimination against the seller and possibly thwart a sale.

The legal basis for this consensus goes way back to the Civil Rights Act of 1866. This post-Civil War statute protects the right of all people to "inherit, purchase, lease, sell, hold and convey real and personal property." The law was primarily designed to protect the civil rights of freed slaves.

In 1968, the Fair Housing Act became law, followed by strong amendments to that act implemented in March 1989. The amendments expanded protections for handicapped people.

However, the wordage in these statutes was a bit vague when applied to cases where home sellers were AIDS patients. Therefore, many states have recently passed laws specifically addressing these situations, freeing brokers from liability when not disclosing the information to buyers.

In California, for example, Section 1710.2 of the state Civil Code is headed, "Sale of Real Property—Failure to disclose that occupant was afflicted with or died of AIDS." It specifies that "no cause of action" can be taken against a property owner or agent for not disclosing this information.

Similar state laws have been enacted in Florida, Rhode Island, Georgia, Oklahoma, Texas, Oregon, Illinois, New York, South Carolina and Hawaii. Proposed laws are now in the works in other states, including New Jersey, Vermont and Massachusetts.

In some states, the issue is addressed by rulings of real estate commissions or human relations commissions. It was pointed out by Robert Butters, deputy general counsel for the National Association of Realtors.

These cases fall into the category of "stigmatized properties"—those where sickness, murders, suicides and other situations have taken place but have no effect on the property itself, he said.

It should also be pointed out that any action by a Realtor that would discriminate against an AIDS patient would violate the code of ethics to which he has pledged allegiance.

That code, established by NAR, specifies (in article 10) that "the Realtor shall not deny equal professional services to any person, or be a party to any plan or agreement to discriminate."

A Realtor is a real estate broker who is a member of a local board, state association of Realtors and NAR. It is a registered term of NAR.

Q: When a major fire destroys a number of homes in a community, how are property values affected?

A: We passed that question along to James Halliburton, who has owned and operated an independent appraisal firm in Santa Barbara, Calif., for 25 years. Over 660 structures, including 592 homes, were destroyed in a recent firestorm that swept across Santa Barbara and adjacent Goleta Valley.

For the most part, there is minimal long-term impact to property values due to the fire, Halliburton said. Houses will be rebuilt, new vegetation will be seeded and grow.

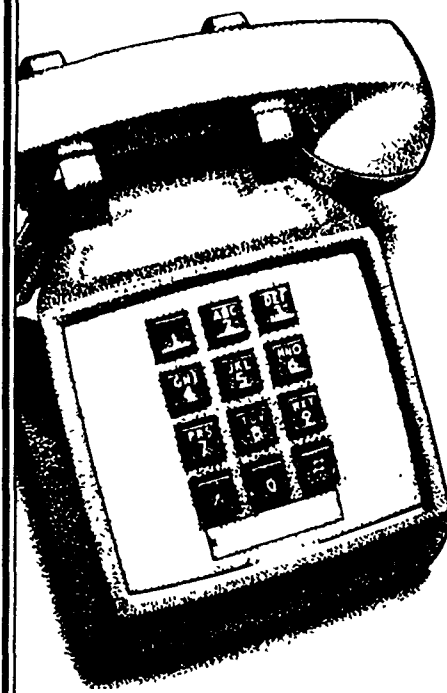

"As far as the Internal Revenue Service is concerned, they only consider the 'actual and factual' value of the property before and after rebuilding," Halliburton said. "The greatest long-term danger to the property and its value is the possible erosion of soil on the site, due to lack of soil holding vegetation."

"Also, the loss of large trees could be a factor. To minimize this loss, plants and trees should be quickly seeded (or planted) and a carefully controlled schedule of irrigation started. Of course, if the community is experiencing a serious water shortage, that's another problem."

Halliburton lost his own Santa Barbara home to fire in 1977.

Inquiries are invited and may be answered in this column. Write James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Drywall plus wet lumber equals poor nail grip

By Gene Gary

Q: The previous owners of a house we recently purchased constructed a room addition.

The quality of the construction is satisfactory, with the exception of a problem we are having with the nails popping out of the drywall. What can we do to remedy the problem?—A.B.

A: The most common cause of nails popping through the drywall is that moist lumber was used to frame the walls.

If the drywall was attached to wet lumber, the shrinking process as the wood dries caused the nails to pop.

The best method of correcting the problem is to refasten the drywall with drywall screws. They grip better than nails, and reduce the chance of more popping.

Drive the screws in 1 inch above or below the existing nails. Make sure the head of the screw is dimpled into the wall. Then drive the popped nails back into the framing lumber. Fill all dimples and holes with two coats of drywall compound. Sand it smooth and repaint.

Q: I have had a serious problem with the breakdown and shedding of paint covering the knots in pine planks used to construct a pergola (lattice frame) over my balcony. Because there is no roof over the pergola, it is fully exposed to the weather.

Before painting, I have always sanded the entire surface, including the removal of any remaining previous coating from the knots, most of which are about two inches in diameter.

I have then applied a sealer over and around each knot, generally shellac, but on the most recent occasion, I applied aluminum paint on the advice of a technician with the paint manufacturers' association.

Over the sealer, I have applied a coat of oil-base primer followed by two coats of flat white latex exterior house paint. In every case, the finish has lasted only a couple of years, after which the remainder of the pergola's painted surface is still in good condition.—C.O.

A: Unfortunately, the methods you have described are the steps we would have recommended.

It is important that the exterior latex paint used be of high quality. There are several factors to look for when selecting the exterior paint to assure superior adhesions and resistance to degradation from sun, moisture and temperature fluctuation.

Look for a paint that contains 100 percent acrylic binder, a high percentage of solids (look for solids that are pigments or binders, rather than extenders such as clay and silica, which are less costly ways to add solids to the product so it will be applied more heavily), a high content of titanium dioxide, a sufficient amount of antifreeze (ethylene glycol) and mildewicide. Such paints will be more expensive, but worth the investment in durability.

Be sure to use a primer recommended by the paint manufacturer. Beyond this there is little that can be done.

Knots are extremely dense and resist penetration. If the knots occur in just a few boards, you might try replacing those boards with a higher-grade pine. The higher the grade, the fewer the knots. Otherwise, your only option is to repaint every year or two.

Q: I have an attractive end table with a veneer finish that has raised in a couple of areas. Overall the surface is unblemished, but the two areas where this has occurred mar the appearance of the entire table.

Do you know of any way to repair this without having the entire table top redone?—M.C.

A: Raised veneer is usually caused by excessive moisture or excessive heat.

Moisten the wood, cover it with a cloth and then apply a medium hot iron to the loose area.

If this doesn't work, try cutting a razor slit in the bubbled area and force glue underneath and then clamp it down. When gluing veneer, use furniture glue and clamps.

If clamping is not possible, contact cement may help. Replacing or patching veneer is very difficult and is best not attempted unless you have some practice in working with the required materials.

Bad news for Rapunzel

By James G. McCollam

Q. I am enclosing a picture of my plate with a portrait of Rapunzel (a character from Grimm's Fairy Tales) together with a copy of the certificate that came in the box with the plate. I would like to know the current value to collectors.

A. The Grimm's Fairy Tale Series plates were produced by the Konigs zelt Bayern in Hanaau, Germany. Your plate was issued in 1982 for $35. It is currently being sold for $25.

Q. The attached mark is on the bottom of a ceramic pitcher 6 inches tall. It has brown glaze decorated with pink flowers.

I would like to know who made it and what it would sell for.

A. This was made by the Cambridge Art Pottery in Cambridge, Ohio. The company made art pottery between 1900 and 1910, it is becoming quite rare.

Your vase would probably sell for $200 to $225.

Q: What can you tell me about the vintage and value of a fancy wicker baby carriage with a parasol?

The sides are shaped like two fans and the wheels are metal with wooden spokes.

A: Your baby buggy was made in the late 1800s and would probably sell in the $800 to $900 range in very fine condition.

Q: I have an opportunity to buy an antique Corona typewriter that is different from most typewriters. The carriage is hinged and folds down over the keyboard for storage. It has only 30 keys, but has three shift positions.

The Rapunzel plate from Grimm's Fairy Tale Series sells for $25.

The dealer wants $95 for it; is that a fair price?

A: This is the famous "jack-knife" portable that was devised for the "hunt and peck" school of typing. They were made briefly about 1918. They usually sell with carrying case for $75 to $100, depending on condition.

Q: Can you provide some information about the vintage and value of my Hummel figurine of a man on horseback slaying a dragon? On the bottom it has the crown mark and No. 55.

A: This is one of the few Hummels that does not have a child for the subject. It is "St. George" slaying the dragon. The mark indicates that it was made between 1935 and 1950.

Dealers are selling figures like this for about $1,000.

The Backyard Gardener Summer project just for kids

By Patrick Denton

Today I have some timely reminders about August chores and a children's project to share with my gardening friends.

A child's garden

Did you know that you can grow plants from seeds taken out of grapefruit, lemons and limes? They all make very attractive little bushes with thick, shiny, citrus-scented leaves.

I once had a collection of three grapefruit and three mandarin orange plants grown from fat seeds I found inside the fruits.

To grow a lemon, lime or grapefruit plant, select the plumpiest seeds you can find inside the fruit. Wash the seeds well to remove some of their slippery coating, and soak the seeds overnight.

Fill a pot 4 or 5 inches wide with sterilized planting mix and plant four or five seeds about 1/4 -inch deep and an inch apart. Set the pot in a warm place and keep the soil moist but not soggy wet. In about three weeks, you should see some shoots.

When the shoots have grown about 4 inches long, pull out all but one or two of the strongest looking ones so that the ones you choose to leave will have lots of room to grow. Keep the soil moist but not overwet, and fertilize the plants about once a month with a mild houseplant food.

If you plant pots with difference kinds of seeds, label each pot so you will know which plants are from which fruit.

Strawberries

A few kindnesses bestowed upon our strawberry plantings in mid-August will pay rich dividends in next year's yields.

The first thing to do is remove any old, worn-out plants and any that have produced poorly this year. Then, give the remaining vigorous plants a health and beauty treatment.

Cut off dead foliage and weed around the plants. Remove all the runners except those ones you want to keep for extending the planting.

Dust the ground around the plants lightly with bone meal, or a low-nitrogen fertilizer with a shallow layer of compost or composted manure mixed half and half with damp peat. Keep the plants well watered until rainy or cold weather arrives. This will help to ensure a lavish set of fruit buds for next year's berries.

To increase the number of strawberry plants, select runners growing from the strongest, most productive plants and secure them with short pieces of bent wire into hollows made in the soil where you want them to grow. They'll soon root and will be nicely established before the cold weather. Runners rooted like this can also be disengaged from the mother plant and transplanted elsewhere once roots have formed.

An alternate method is to root the runners in individual pots buried to the rim in soil. An advantage to this method is that potted runners are transplanted with very little root disturbance. And if you have a cold frame or cool greenhouse, and some extra rooted runners in pots, they can be grown in these shelters for some early berries.

Houseplants

If you have houseplants vacationing outdoors, mid-August is the time to begin getting them ready for their move back inside. Trim away any dead parts and prune each plant to the shape you want. Clean the soil surface of debris, and water with a mild fertilizer solution.

Repot plants that are clearly root bound. Clean the pots well, and spray-wash the plants with Safer's Insecticidal Soap mixed at label rates. Small plants can be upended and swished in the soap mixture. Hold the soil securely in the pot with a piece of plastic and your hand.

Set the plants in a sheltered area such as a porch or on a shelving set against the house in light shade. At the end of August repeat the cleaning process, and bring the plants back indoors early in September before nights cool enough to make the transition extreme between indoor and outdoor temperatures.

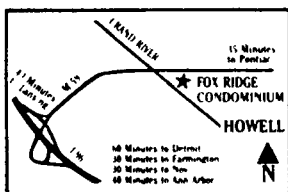

Stop watering amaryllis plants that you want to start up again at the beginning of November for bloom at Christmas. This will give them a September and October rest period with just one or two dribbles of water to keep the bulb plump. Remove the foliage as it dries, and store them in a coolish spot (ideally between 50 and 60 degrees Fahrenheit).

Inmate Donna Kovacs Willing is senior trainer for the prison's leader dog program.

a pup with a purpose

Story by Leslie Pereira
Photography by Bryan Mitchell

To enter the maximum security prison everyone must have an identification card. And that includes Jamie Neubarker. But since Jamie herself can't flash the guard the plastic picture card, Carol Dyer does it for her.

The picture and mug match up, so the 10-month old golden retriever puppy is allowed to pass. The next guard is much less stern and can't resist slipping a hand through the opening in the plexiglass shield to rub a hand over Jamie's fur.

"Everyone needs a pass every time they go in or out," explains Dyer, a 14-year corrections veteran who must filter slowly through the panoply of security precautions several times a day, often with a sleepy puppy in her arms.

Dyer is the driving force behind the novel new puppy-prisoner program recently implemented at the Huron Vally Women's Correctional Facility in Ypsilanti that is not only the first in the state but only the second in the country.

The program allows a select number of supervised prison inmates to assume responsibility for the time-consuming basic training required by aspiring young leader dogs. The inmates receive a puppy that is only several weeks old and socialize, groom, and teach the basic commands necessary to move on to advanced training.

Many involved in the program, both inside and outside of the prison, consider it an exceptional and mutually rewarding arrangement that maximizes the strengths while satisfying the needs of each group involved.

Inmate Betty Manning tries to keep Jamie's attention

For the leader dog trainers on the outside, they can concentrate their limited time and resources on the advanced training for which they are qualified, while allowing the inmates to assume the bulk of the low-level basic training the puppies require. And with training centers able to turn out qualified leader dogs more quickly, more blind people in need of dogs can receive them.

"It is important for the taxpayers to see that the prisoners aren't just saying 'give me — give me,'" says Dyer.

However, according to Dyer, it is the inmates that benefit the most from this program. An increased amount of socialization between inmates, guards, and inmates with guards has been one marked result of the dog program so far.

A result that is not hard to see.

It is slow going as Dyer ambles through the prison grounds with Jamie, trying to make her way over to the training area. Although both Dyer and Jamie are tired on this muggy mid-afternoon, it seemed nearly every prisoner, every guard and every administrator wanted to pet Jamie and talk to Dyer.

Each time Dyer stops.

It is an important part of the puppy's socialization process, she tells herself.

Sharing his spare time

How would Novi citizens and community leaders like to see the town center look — the center being an area radiating from the intersection of Novi Road and Grand River Avenue?

That is a question for which Ronald A. Watson, lawyer, said the Novi Town Center Steering Committee, of which he is chairperson, has been brainstorming for ideas in the last year.

After discussions with a major developer and also the Oakland County Planning Department, Watson said that they have acquired graphics, delineating and detailing the special districts within the Town Center area.

The center would have mixed-use development — office, residential, commercial — and it would be accessible to pedestrian traffic.

The southeast quadrant, in which, he said, "most developers have been interested" would be "Main Street" with sidewalks, storefronts, and on-street parking. There would also be a residential section leading into it.

The southwest and northeast quadrants are either somewhat developed or need clearance for development.

Northwest is an area, Watson said, for which "we have great hopes." Engineers have said a river walk in an urban park is possible.

Town Center is "an exciting area in the city," Watson said, and in serving on the Steering Committee as chairperson since its inception in 1985, he has been working toward giving an identity to Novi, "the image of the town which people see as they pass through."

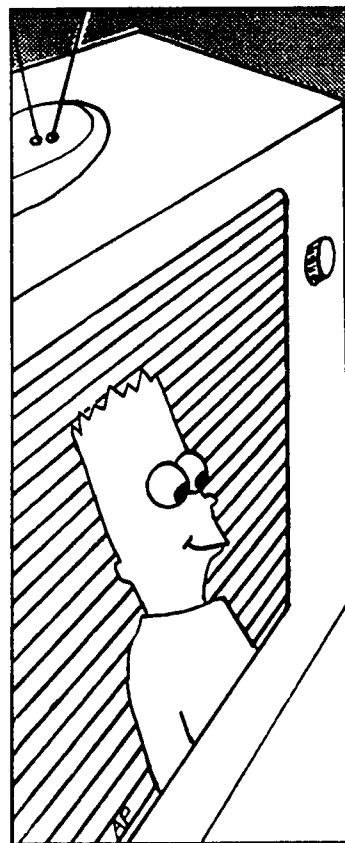

This committee is composed of 12 members — three from each of the City Council and the Planning Commission, five from the business community, and one staff person.

"We're an advisory body to the City Council and the Planning Commission," he said. "We talk on a preliminary basis," reviewing individual projects, dealing with the concept of the Town Center, "and limit it to that."

Victorian festival costume ball nears

By LESLIE PEREIRA
Staff Writer

It's time to start thinking about what you are going to wear to the 1990 Victorian Festival Costume Ball held at Mill Race Historical Village. One of the biggest social events in all of Northville, the planning for this Sept. 15 evening event is well under way as tickets began selling last Friday.

Costume Ball-goers are asked to dress up in traditional Victorian-era clothing, and many will remember some of the elaborate costuming from last year's Ball.

"It is really fun and everyone just dresses like crazy," said Edward Postiff of Edward's Caterer who provided the food for last year's event. "I couldn't believe the detail."

The $50 ticket price provides participants with a horse-drawn carriage ride from the parking area to the covered tent, beneath which all the fun will take place.

Postiff of Edward's Caterer will be providing the food for the two buffet tables, the tent and table decorations, and "the ambience inside of the tent."

According to Postiff, the all-white tent, the paisley table clothes he is making, the floral arrangements and the candle sticks create a "very Victorian atmosphere."

As for the menu, the buffet will offer whole roasted turkeys with chutney and mustard, a savory tart with potatoes, vegetables and cheese, sourdough rolls, miniature croissants and a bibb lettuce salad with grapes. For dessert, a variety of miniature pastries and such will be offered.

An open bar will be available throughout the evening with a wide selection of drinks.

A live 10-piece brass band will provide the music for the contra dancing, which will be happening in both the church and the tent, according to Laurie Marrs, executive director of the Northville Chamber of Commerce and an organizer for the festival.

"Last year it was a little packed so they are spreading it out a bit," said Postiff.

The 200 available tickets for this year's event went on sale last Friday and Monday. Any extras still unsold after those days may be purchased by calling the Northville Chamber of Commerce of Edward's Caterers.

Author dinner

The annual fundraising dinner sponsored by Friends of Northville Library is quickly approaching. The dinner is set for Sept. 24 at 7 p.m. and tickets will be going on sale soon. The speaker this year will be William Kienzle, author of the highly acclaimed suspense novel-turned movie "The Rosary Murders." Kienzle is a local author who turned to a successful writing career after many years as a priest. He spoke at this very same event six years ago, and was "very entertaining and very popular," according to event organizer Geraldine Mills.

So get ready and stay tuned for more information — this fun event sells out quickly.

Town Hall tickets

Tickets are still on sale for the 1990-91 Northville Town Hall Series. Speakers are: Oct. 11 — Eileen Fulton, an energetic and enthusiastic comedienne and actress; Nov. 8 — Col. Charles Scott, a former hostage held in Iran; Mar. 14, 1991 — Kaye Lani Rae Rafko, a Monroe resident who served as Miss America 1988; and, Apr. 11, 1991 — Jack Reynolds, veteran newsmen.

All of the speakers will begin at 11 a.m. Season tickets for the speaker series can be purchased for $30. To order, contact Mrs. Bonnie Dewan at 437-9845.

Additionally, reservations for the optional after-speaker luncheon are being accepted. Tickets are $11 each including tax and gratuity, or $44 for the entire season. Luncheon tickets may be purchased by Season Lecture Ticket Holders only. For more information, contact Virginia Kaiser at 349-8938.

Beginners take to the streets to learn to drive

Other drivers keep their distance as the students take to the streets

Book learning is a large part of a student's driver training

Instructor Norm Hannawald uses the blackboard to teach the rules of the road

By LESLIE PEREIRA
Staff Writer

Nate's hands never stray from their positions on the steering wheel at three o'clock and nine o'clock. He is uneasy in the driver's seat. It is apparent from the distance between his back and seat as he leans forward edgily and it is obvious from the automatic frequency with which his foot returns to the brake every time a bump, dip or curve in the road appears.

Nate is one of the many new student drivers that take to the streets in droves during the summer vacation months after their sophomore year in high school.

The yellow "Student Driver" sign sitting prominently on the roof of a typically nondescript car is like a scarlet letter to these kids as they cruise through the streets of their hometown branded a beginner. Other drivers on the road keep their distance from the sometimes slow-moving, student-filled vehicle as if it were an escapee from a leper colony.

"I like to drive second because you are more relaxed," says 15-year-old Nate Sant, the tension visibly draining from his face as he hops into the back seat of the car. He got stuck driving first today as he and fellow student Jeff Kinnelly went out for their third time with driving instructor Norm Hannawald.

Although both teens will not be turning 16 for several months, they took their required driver education early so they would have more practice on the road driving with a permit before taking the official licensing test.

So for the past few weeks they have been returning to their high school of fall and winter months for lectures on parking, videos on drunk driving and short stints actually out on the road. With 30 hours of teaching in the classroom and six hours of driving, the class offered at Northville High School is one of the most stringent around.

Or, some would say, the most thorough preparation.

"I think that the six hours behind the wheel is important," says Instructor Jim Daniel. "These drivers are much more prepared and their skills are up to par."

Daniel contrasts the Northville course to those offered through private companies and puts his faith in the one he is teaching. Not only does the high school program spend more time with the students both in the classroom and on the road, but he believes that the teachers have better credentials.

Driver education teachers in a public school are required to have a teaching certificate from an accredited university but the private sector generally does not maintain such requirements.

"One of the most important things is to make the driver comfortable behind the wheel," Daniel says. "You have to be relaxed and talk in a very relaxed tone of voice."

And if a monotone is the mark of an experienced instructor, Hannawald may as well wear his experience on his sleeve. A teacher of driver education for 23 years, his voice never fluctuates as his car travelling topics jump from a stop sign the student just ran through to the year of a Model A Ford driving in front of them.

"At the second light we will make a left," the hypnotic voice of Hannawald's drones on, several blocks before the intended turn is to be made.

His approach seems to work. In 23 years of teaching beginning drivers the rules of the road, Hannawald has been involved in only one accident and it was the fault of the other car.

So the next time you go out of your way to escape one of those marked cars out of fear of a reckless roadster, remember it is probably only a Nate and a Mr. Hannawald — and the odds are in their favor.

Inmates train leader dogs

It is also more than that, as Dyer herself can see. The puppy is helping to forge a sort of bond between the prisoners, guards and herself. Jamie is something they can all talk about, a common cause they can rally behind.

Because the sight of a puppy forces many of them to drop their hard defenses, if only for a moment to talk puppy-talk, she is almost therapeutic with her ability to provoke emotion.

"I learned one thing with B.J.," says inmate Betty Manning of the prison's first dog. "I said the next one I'm not going to get so attached. This one I am going to do my part, but I am going to keep my distance."

No sooner had a common-sensical Manning spoken those practical words when Jamie came bounding across the training room in her direction. Unconcerned about sullying her "state blues"—blue clothes issued to inmates by the state—Manning lay down with her head on the concrete floor as the puppy tumbled over her in obvious delight.

"Jamie, if you're going to give me this much trouble, I am not going to brush your teeth anymore," Manning jokes to the new dog who has not yet learned some basic commands.

In addition to increasing the amount of socialization within the prison, Dyer believes the program offers a boost to the self-esteem of many of the participating inmates.

"They wanted to feel that even though they were locked up they were still worthwhile," Dyer says about the initial idea for the program. "I think they wanted to do something they could tell their kids about."

It is the inmates that supply most of the grooming, training and play-time the dog needs as a puppy.

Additionally, several inmates have been preparing a guide book to train other prisoners to perform the proper dog training commands; they have spent time cleaning an empty storage room to use as a training center; and other inmates have begun to make red "Future Leader Dog" bandanas for puppies they hope to get someday.

"I love it myself," inmate Thelma Pegram says of the many hours she has spent, together with other inmates, vacuuming the unused storage building they intend to use as a full-time training center.

"It is like raising a kid. You want the puppy to have the best just like you want the baby to have the best," Pegram says.

And although Dyer describes Jamie as a "pup with a purpose," the purpose being to learn the skills needed to lead a blind person, another important purpose of the dog program is prisoner rehabilitation. Once outside in the penned in play area, Jamie's red bandana comes off and she runs freely, picking up anything along her path, shaking it fiercely and moving on to something else. Since this is her play time, the inmates sit back and watch—until Jamie rushes headlong into the redwood fence. Without hesitation, inmate Donna Willing had the stunned puppy on her lap, talking to her slowly and softly like a mother to a child that has just wandered off and gotten scared.

"See how good she is," Dyer says quietly as Willing calms the frightened puppy.

The current leader dog program with prisoner involvement evolved slowly from one inmate's incredible idea, to a plan with only a glimmer of hope. It eventually became a working program with a full-time staff person (Dyer) paid by the Department of Corrections.

Still in its infancy, Jamie is only the second puppy to arrive at the women's prison as part of the dog training program. The first dog trained by the prisoners, B.J., arrived at the prison in 1988, left there about 1 1/2 years later, and finally graduated from a leader dog training center in Rochester during the spring of 1990. B.J. now serves as the eyes for a blind person, one of the only 60 percent of dogs that begin training and actually make it through the grueling and selective process.

Dyer believes a prison provides an ideal atmosphere for the initial leader dog training. While still puppies, future leader dogs need to be socialized in such a way to make them comfortable with many different people and various sounds.

"We have different sounds and surfaces, different people, different situations, every hour, every day," says Dyer. And as if to demonstrate her point, she stopped the puppy on the way past the prison kitchen where they were cleaning the floor with a huge, rumbling vacuum. As Dyer kneeled next to the screeching machine, she called Jamie to her in a reassuring voice. "Good girl, good girl," she repeated as Jamie shuffled a little closer and tentatively sniffed at the machine.

Mike Walrath, director of the breeding program for Leader Dogs for the Blind, described the prison as a "small city" in itself and said this is what makes it ideal for the puppy's initial training.

"They have electric carts, noise and confusion," Walrath said. "The only thing they don't have is traffic."

Because traffic training is an important part of a leader dog's education, according to Walrath, the prison dog works in conjunction with an Ann Arbor organization that takes over that task.

But most importantly, the prisoners are able to supply that other essential element—time. And lots of it. "All I have here is time," says Willing. "I mean, we're not going anywhere. That's what makes this program so good."

And Walrath agrees. "Quite frankly, the women there have a lot of time and training a dog is a very time-consuming process."

The program has not received much funding yet because they are still in the trial stages. Jamie's veterinarian bills are paid by the Lion's Club and other expenses are met with outside donations.

"This is a sore point with the taxpayers because there is a tight budget and the Department of Corrections is in the business of housing prisoners," says Dyer.

Dyer, and her trainers, would eventually like to see them training 10 dogs simultaneously.

"The thing about this program is we are taking something, but we are giving something back," says Dyer. "We don't want to lose this—it is very important to them."

Dyer does not fool herself about the nature of the inmates or the reasons they are there. Nor does she dwell on the crimes they have committed. They are there, she is there, and together they have a job to do.

"For whatever reason, every woman in there, even the trainers, are there because the judge decided to sentence them and because society wanted them locked up," says Dyer. But in the same breath she states adamantly that being locked up doesn't mean they can't contribute to society. A society they will all rejoin again someday.

"It is a wonderful program. What it has done for the inmates is extraordinary," says Dyer. "It is bringing out the good in these women."

Local program gives kids a companion, a role model

By LESLIE PEREIRA
Staff Writer

Last weekend Fred Pindzia drove more than three hours to visit Brian in Howe, Ind., at military school. The weekend before that, he did the same thing. Parents are allowed to take their kids out of the academy overnight on the weekends, but at the end of their day together fishing, Brian returned to his bunk and Pindzia retired to a hotel.

Pindzia is not Brian Marion's father. Rather, in a unique twist on the popular Big Brother/Big Sister program, Pindzia and Brian are spending a lot of time together, joined by the Novi Youth Assistance "PLUS" program. (People Listening, Understanding, Sharing).

"Youths at risk" are matched with a volunteer who will serve as a role model and caring companion for at least one year. The young people who participate in this program are not juvenile delinquents, but kids who have lost a parent to either death or divorce and would benefit from a strong adult influence in their lives, according to Janis Wagner of the Novi Youth Assistance.

"It is a preventative measure," said Wagner. "It is for anyone we think would benefit from a positive role model."

Wagner said children often come to the attention of their office because of referrals from teachers, school counselors or parents.

"I sought out the program," said single mom Jennifer Marion, whose son, Brian, is matched with a male volunteer. Marion, a teacher at Novi Woods School, learned of the program through other teachers and felt it would benefit Brian.

"I felt Brian needed a male role model," Marion said. "Without a positive male role model, teens look solely to their peers."

Despite possible strong suggestions from parents of teachers, the program is completely voluntary and no child can be forced into it.

"We never have a child do it that doesn't want to," Wagner said. "Usually it is that child who doesn't get that one-on-one attention at home who is interested in the program."

Marion said Brian was very hesitant about the program when she initially mentioned it but, "once he met Fred, all his doubts disappeared."

The process of matching an interested child with a volunteer is a careful and lengthy one. Both parent and child meet with a Novi Youth Assistance coordinator to work out the details and a list of the child's interests and favorite activities.

Then the child is matched with a volunteer, usually of the same gender, who has similar interests and who the directors feel will be compatible with the child.

"My first two matches we hit it off," said Pindzia. "Both times we had a lot in common."

Pindzia believes it is important for matches to have similar interests because they spend a lot of time together and probably even more time talking.

"I think for a boy it is kind of hard to always talk to his mother," said Pindzia.

And luckily for Pindzia, and Brian, they both like to go fishing.

"He (Brian) goes nuts over fishing, so that is just about all we have done," Pindzia said.

Although volunteers in the program are really only required to spend a few hours, one day a week with their match, Pindzia said he and Brian are generally together about 25 hours each week.

"Fred and Brian have developed a very good friendship," said Marion. "They talk about all kinds of things."

PLUS program directors are careful when introducing the child and the volunteer to call them "potential matches." This is done to ensure that both the child and volunteer feel comfortable with each other. Either is allowed to request a change for whatever reason before the match is made official.

"It is pretty open-ended at first," Wagner said.

Pindzia said he was lucky with two of his three matches so far. His first match, also named Brian, lasted the full year and their friendship continued on even after the program ended. The first Brian still calls him infrequently.

Pindzia, who is single and has no kids, found out about the program through a newspaper article calling for volunteers and was moved to action.

"I started to get those feelings you get just before Christmas and it really kind of made me want to get involved," Pindzia said.

Whatever the reason for his involvement, everyone involved seems to benefit from this arrangement.

"It has had such a positive result in our household," said Marion. "They do things that normally a father would do."

And although Pindzia, as a friend and not a father, is not allowed to take Brian out overnight when he visits in Howe, there are many things they can do.

"I get to do lots of fishing," said Pindzia.

The Novi Youth Assistance's PLUS program is always looking for volunteers — especially male volunteers. Three hours of training, a couple of hours a week for one year, and the desire to help a child are the only requirements. For more information, call 349-8398.

Fred Pindzia spends the day fishing with his "PLUS" match, Brian Marion

Things to do in London town

By Iris Sanderson Jones
Travel Editor

QUESTION: My husband and I will be in London, England, for one week in August. Where should we exchange dollars for pounds? What is the best way to get around? What are some neat places to eat, what light and entertaining plays should we see and where should we shop for souvenirs (not junk)? Thanks for your help. Bonnie.

ANSWER: I've been to London many times, but I sked travel photographer Micky Jones of Farmington Hills to answer your question, because he was there quite recently.

"London is a great place to visit anytime and there is so much to do there that your week will disappear rapidly.

"Before you leave home, visit a local travel agency and buy two Visitor Travel Card Vouchers which entitle you to unlimited use of London's bus and underground systems for three, four or seven days, including the trips to and from Heathrow airport. (They don't cover transportation from Gatwick Airport). The Vouchers cost $15, $21 and $35 and cannot be purchased in England.

"Since you may not have time to get information on London attractions, events, shopping and dining from the British Tourist Authority office in Chicago, you can get what you need from the British Travel Center at 12 Regent St. in London. It is a two-minute walk south from Piccadilly Circus, the London equivalent of Times Square.

"They will provide you with maps and guide books including the current issue of London Planner, containing a complete theater listing. London is like New York in one way, tickets to the top shows are hard to come by unless you pay scalpers prices or are lucky enough to get a cancellation at the box office.

"Half-priced tickets are available to many good plays and musicals at the Half Price Ticket Booth in Leicester Square. They sell matinee tickets from noon to 2 p.m. and evening show tickets from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m. on the day of the performance.

"You may be hustled while in line by scalpers selling very high-price tickets to sold-out shows like the Phantom of the Opera. Agatha Christie's 'Moustrap,' which has played continuously for 38 years, is the world's longest-running play.

"For quality products and souvenirs you can't go wrong at either Harrod's department store in Knightsbridge or Selfridge's on Oxford St. For less quality but more fun try Covent Garden and Portobello Rd. If you will be there Sunday, head for Petticoat Lane on Middlesex St. between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. to see the biggest, most crowded and fascinating street market I've ever seen. It only operates on Sundays.

"There are so many London restaurants that it is impossible to make a few specific recommendations. Prices range from moderate to very high so check the menu posted on the window before entering. Most English pubs serve good inexpensive lunches and are wonderful places to meet the local people.

"Wander across Waterloo Bridge to the South Bank Center which is a large modernistic complex of theaters, concert halls, museums and restaurants. It is a good place for lunch or afternoon tea even if you don't stay for one of the shows.

"What do you do after the Changing of the Guard, the Tower of London, Madame Tussaud's, Westminster Abbey and the British Museum? Take a relaxing boat ride on the Thames; you can choose one that takes 20 minutes or one that takes as long as four hours."

The Prince of Wales Hotel is highly recommended in Niagara-on-the-Lake

Niagara-on-the-Lake

With peaches, petunias and plays there's lots to see around the falls

By Iris Sanderson Jones
Travel Editor

If I stood blindfolded on Queen Street, I would still know I was in Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario. It's not just the smell of fudge from the Niagara Fudge shop, the marmalade from Greaves or the aromas wafting off the verandah at The Buttery.

I would smell the brilliant red geraniums that grow around the clock tower outside the Court House Theater. The flowers that hang from the lampposts and make a red, yellow and blue passage down Queen St., the main street of town.

It is only a few blocks from the place where Highway 55 dead-ends on Queen and the corner where Queen becomes Picton St. and bends out of town between the Shaw Festival Theater and Fort George, but everything you need for a colorful short vacation is along that six-block stretch. The rest is available within a block or two on either side.

The municipality of Niagara-on-the-Lake covers a large area at the end of the Niagara Peninsula, but the picturesque old town covers only a few blocks at the very tip, where the Niagara River enters Lake Ontario 14 miles downriver from Niagara Falls.

Old hands say that Niagara-on-the-Lake has changed in 15 years from a small town full of locally-owned shops to a tourist center. For a newcomer, it has only one flaw. Flowers or not, it costs more than you might want to spend for a few days in the village.

Any accommodation under $100 is considered 'moderate,' although you can search-and-find less expensive mostly-unlisted bed-and-breakfasts. Add $50 a person for a couple of Shaw plays and the bill starts getting high.

Some things cost less Tuesday through Thursday, so we drove in Thursday and stayed where Hwy. 55 dead-ends on Queen St., at The Kiely House, a large white verandah house built as a summer home by a Toronto lawyer in 1832.

Heather Pettit was weeding her large back garden when we parked and walked past the centuries-old osage orange trees to the back of the house. If you arrive in the fall, watch out for the odd-shaped osage fruit, which looks like a large warty orange; it thumps down on unsuspecting parked cars.

"The garden smells wonderful," I said.

"It's the hedge," Heather said in her somewhere-around-London English accent. "Every time you trim it, it smells like oranges."

It also smelled like petunias and nasturtiums and geraniums as I followed the scent down Queen St., past shops with names like Maple Leaf Fudge, Dansk Outlet Store and Cornelius de Jonge Collectibles to the Royal George, the first of the three Shaw Festival theaters I met during my brief love affair with Niagara-on-the-Lake.

I planned to see Shaw's 'Village Wooing' there the next day so I went on past the Courthouse building, on the site where the first capital of Upper Canada, (now Ontario) was built in 1792, and settled in for a bowl of onion soup on the verandah of The Buttery.

From there I saw the passing parade: shorts and baseball caps, tee shirts and Nikes gave way, as theater time approached, to dresses and jackets moving east towards the Shaw Festival Theater.

Any traveler who likes to do things right would start at the east end of town, where they fight the War of 1812 every day in Fort George. The little blue-and-white map, available in all hotels, tells you that this town was settled at the close of the American Revolution by Loyalists, many of them members of Butler's Rangers, based across the river at Fort Niagara.

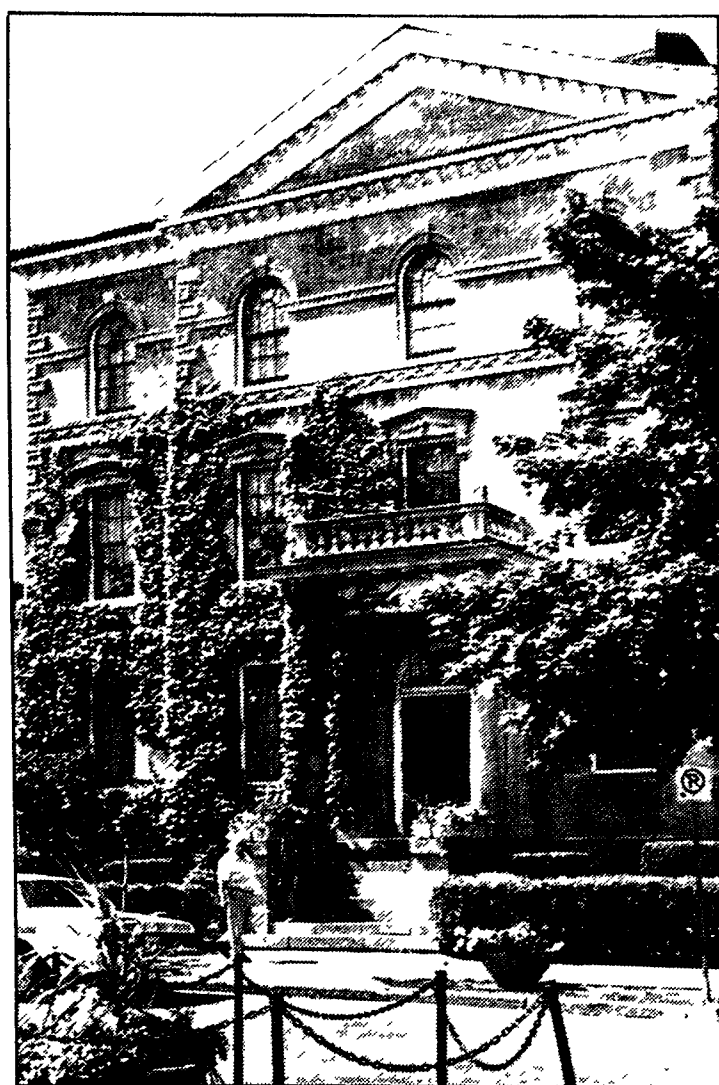

That's why you see signs, as you come into town, pointing to Butler's Burial Ground and the Negro Burial Ground.

According to the Canadian Parks Service, which operates a flowered parkway up the Canadian side of the Niagara River between lakes Ontario and Erie, the 1793 Treaty of Paris gave Fort Niagara to the U.S., where it is still visible across the Niagara river mouth on the American side.

The British, taking no chances, built Fort George on the Canadian side, where it was very busy during the War of 1812. What I like about that war is that markers on the U.S. side say that the Americans won it, and markers on the Canadian side say the Canadians won it.

Whoever won it, when they say 'the war' in Niagara-on-the-Lake, they don't mean World War One or Two, Korea or Vietnam, they mean the War of 1812.

I've never been a very organized

The Court House Building contains the Court House Theater traveler, so of course I didn't start at the historic end of town, but followed the flowers down Queen-cum-Picton street past the city park and the flowered window boxes of the Prince of Wales Hotel and the Moffat Inn, two of the most popular hotels in town, to the Shaw Festival Theater. Those in the know park free at Fort George.

The Shaw Festival started on the third floor of the old courthouse in 1962 and now has three theaters going full tilt. The festival is not just about British playwright George Bernard Shaw. With the kind of poetic logic I appreciate, the mandate is to produce any plays written during Shaw's lifetime, 1856-1950; fortunately he lived a long life.

As B.J. Armstrong of the Shaw Festival staff says, 'artistic director Christopher Newton likes plays that show what happened when the 19th century met the 20th century.' That's a perfect description of Shaw's 'Misalliance,' currently playing with laughter and precision on the Festival Theater stage.

One of the pleasures of a town like this is that you can take one stroll through town and know your way around. By the following morning we felt like old hands: buying Ontario's famous butter tarts from Niagara Home Bakery, oldest business in the village, buying jams and marmalades made by Greaves for 60 years (it changed hands last January).

By noon we had photographed the red double-decker bus and that historic-looking gazebo in Queen's Royal Park. The gazebo looked historic but was actually given to the city by the producers of The Dead Zone, one of several movies made here. We had poked around the waterfront, watched the fishing boats working the river as it flowed into Lake Ontario. You don't get many boats coming downriver from Niagara Falls!

By noon we were back in the lobby of the Royal George Theater, buying box lunches from the Guild ladies for $5; brown baggers eat lunch while watching the daily hour-long performance.

You can go from the Royal George to the 2 p.m. performance at the Court House Theater, which was playing Cole Porter's 'Nymph Errand' when we were there. All three theaters have three or four productions switching back and forth daily, so you could enjoy theater until your eyes and your money gave out.

For us it was time to enjoy some of the other sights and smells of the Niagara Peninsula. Flowers bloom up the parkway to the historic McFarland House and on past Queenston to Niagara Falls.

You can visit several wineries (Inniskillen is considered the best wine) and pick your own fruit. In August that includes some of the best peaches in the world. Locals buy fruit at the Harvest Barn on Hwy. 55 just south of Niagara-on-the-Lake, which also has a bakery and salad bar.

Buy a handful of fresh peaches. Sit on one of the benches set amid the sidewalk gardens on Queen Street. Let the peach juice run down your chin and into your shoes.

You can close your eyes and you'll still know that you are in Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Fine hotels and cozy B&Bs offer comfortable lodgings

By Iris Sanderson Jones
Travel Editor

Where should I stay in Niagara-on-the-Lake? I learned a lot of things, and ran up quite a telephone bill, while trying to answer that question. The area code for all the numbers below is 416.

The Chamber of Commerce (468-4263) has an unusual reservation service. Call or write ahead, tell them what your priorities are, and for $5 they'll find you accommodations that fit your stated needs.

They list 12 hotels and inns, with rates in Canadian dollars. Multiply by .86 to convert to U.S. dollars. Hotel rates range from $C112 to $C325 (U.S. $96-$280) a night for two. Inns range from $C78 to $C140. They also list bed-and-breakfast accommodations from $C55 to $C95.

I was surprised rates were so high, but Ontario prices are high for everything, and you pay extra for staying in a tourist town that can usually fill its beds, especially on weekends.

The largest and newest hotel in town, two blocks from town and overlooking the marina and lake, is Queen's Landing, (468-2195); $C135 to $C325. It is owned by the same family that owns the well-known Pillar and Post, (468-2123) $C132 to $C195.

There is a new hotel across the street from the Festival Theater, the Royal Park, (468-2010) offering special rates of $C95 to $C120 this year. The best known historic hotel is the Prince of Wales, (468-3246) on the main street in the middle of town, for $C112-$C228.

I started calling my friends and learned that many B&Bs are not listed with the Chamber. Sally Sawyer of West Bloomfield recommended the bed-and-breakfast home of Dorothy McCullough 'a delightful elderly woman who loves to play cribbage' at 300 Niagara, (468-4688). A Canadian friend told me she stayed there for $C35 last year. But nobody was ever home when I called.

Al and Shirley Sandner of Lansing stay in the Old Bank House bed-and-breakfast, (468-7136) overlooking the lake three blocks from town. Rates: $C88 with a bathroom down the hall or $C125 en suite (with a bathroom in the room.)

I couldn't get a room there, but they recommended The Wellington House (468-4081), rate $C65, run by Richard and Monica Taylor. By this time my phone bill was rising. Mrs. Taylor was full too. She recommended Carol Grey (468-5423) and Lee and Beth Alma's place (468-4635), rates $C50-$C60, (nobody answered their phones) and the Kiely House, (468-4588) $C75-$C145.

"Take Hwy. 55 until it dead-ends at Queen St and you'll see a large white house with black shutters," Heather Pettit said. Our room at Kiely House was in the 'new wing' built in the 1850s. It's a nice house. The room was small, up a long flight of stairs. The breakfast and ambience were delightful.

It cost $C88 plus tax for the night, which still seems high to me as I adjust to village prices.

I asked two townfolk where they would put their relatives if they came to town. One said the Moffat Inn or the Prince of Wales. The other said The Prince of Wales or the Moffat Inn (468-4116).

The Moffat, next door to the Prince, sells for $C75 to $C90. It doesn't have much public space, no lounge, but it is highly rated and in the middle of town. The Oban Inn, (468-2165) overlooking the golf course and lake, is the most popular place in town for dinner and probably has nice rooms for $C90 to $C130.

THERE'S NO SUCH DISEASE AS MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY.

It's true. Because 'muscular dystrophy' is the term for a group of twelve diseases—and no one disorder goes by that name.

Other facts about muscular dystrophy might surprise you too. For one thing, the disease isn't restricted to children. Any one can be stricken at any time.

For another thing, the Muscular Dystrophy Association battles not just the twelve muscular dystrophies, but twenty-eight other neuromuscular diseases, too.

At MDA, we're striving to put an end to all the devastating disorders you used to think of as muscular dystrophy.

And one day, we're determined this chair will be impractical.

Flying kites for windy-day fun

By FRANK EICHENLAUB
Staff Writer

If there's a kid in all of us, there's a kite somewhere in your future.

Whether you're wealthy and healthy, small or tall, pretty and witty, or rough and tough, there's a kite for you.

You want rough and tough? Try the behemoth Hawaiian at Kites & Fun Things in Plymouth that stretches 16 feet across at its wings.

For the wealthy and healthy, once again try the 16-foot Hawaiian that boasts a price tag of $380. Of course, there are other Hawaiians that run around $130 and Skyburners that cost $200.

"It's like the Cadillac (of kites)," said the shop's co-owner, MarieAnne Trennepohl, of the 16-footer.

Naturally, these are top-of-the-line flying devices. Top of the line generally means the kites have rip-stop nylon and fiberglass or graphite frames, which drops their weight to under 10 ounces.

Kites at the store run as low as $16.95 and as beautiful as traditional dragons, butterflies and boxes. "We have everything from box kites, birds, kites from Europe, dragons—I mean the list is just endless," Trennepohl said.

But the shop is geared more towards the stunt fliers than the pleasure devices. Recently, Trennepohl's husband and co-owner, Jon, finished second at a national competition of this type held in Grand Haven.

MarieAnne explained that stunt flying is divided into four different competitions — ballet, precision, team flying and innovative (which allows the use of props).

Ballet involves flying while incorporating interpretations to music. Precision fliers follow designs, such as circles, boxes or stairs. Team flying means flying in a team and innovative is truly the stunt kiting of stunt kiting.

"Kiting has come a long way. It's not like when we were kids," MarieAnne said. "I don't want to call it a fad or a craze because it's probably a sport that's going to stay around for a long time."

That's probably what they said in China 2,000 years ago where kiting first found its origins.

Over the years, it's been used for hundreds of different uses and by millions of people — including Ben Franklin, the Wright brothers and Alexander Graham Bell in experiments.

Chinese generals also utilized kites in wartime, according to authors Lee and Jay Newman.

Legend has it, the Newmans write, that one general flew a kite into the courtyard of a besieged castle, measured the distance and then burrowed a tunnel under the ground to surprise the opposing forces.

Generals also attached bamboo humming devices on kites before flying them over enemy camps, they write. The devices screamed and hissed, leading the troops to believe that the gods were declaring defeat for them.

Further, kites are represented in Japanese paintings relating to religious subjects.

Like most things, kites also are used for less-than-glorious purposes. Kite flights, although popular in Japan, have been outlawed in Malaysia.

At an annual Japanese festival, participants fly a kite measuring 20 yards in diameter, weighing one ton and with a 485-foot-long tail, the Newmans write.

But the most famous kite isn't that monster named wan-wan — it's Ben Franklin's. You remember the silk kite he flew in a storm to judge the effects of electrical currents, right?

Now that society knows about electrical currents, what good do kites serve? Ask the U.S. Weather Bureau, which raises them to an altitude of over 24,000 feet (or four and one-half miles), according to the Newmans.

Now, it appears that the pastime with the grandest of pasts holds an excellent future.

"I'd actually like to see it become an Olympic sport," MarieAnne said. Since last summer's wind drought, she reported that sales have leapt.

"It's very addicting," she said. "Some people look at us like we're crazy, but once they get that kite in their hands, they just love it."

Franklin Plaza.

"FARTHER WEST" — The Hilberry Theater at Wayne State University will present a Canadian play, "Farther West" by John Murrell, in the "new play" slot on its 1990-91 season. The play is based on a newspaper clipping describing an actual crime in which a Calgary prostitute, May Buchanan, and her lover barricaded themselves in a hotel room and murdered one another. From this fact "Farther West" grew and grew away.

To request a free brochure with complete schedule and ticket information, call the Wayne State University Theater promotion office, 577-3010 weekdays.

MUSICIAN BRUNCH — August is All-American Month at the Detroit Institute of Arts "Brunch with Bach." The popular, informal Sunday morning series features professional musicians, well-known in the area and nationwide, performing a broad spectrum of music. Concerts are at 10 and 11:30 a.m., in the museum's indoor garden, Kresge Court.

Guests may select from two menus — the full brunch at $12.50 including a hot entree, fruit, nut bread and beverage. Advance reservations are necessary and may be placed until noon on the Saturday preceding the desired concert.

The Northville Record

A's capture series crown

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Just keeps getting better and better. Tournament Director Bob Frellick called the 1990 National Amateur Baseball Federation (NABF) Junior World Series "the greatest we've ever had." And this came just one week after declaring the NABF Sophomore World Series "maybe the most exciting and successful we've had."

Frellick, known for his always-optimistic outlook, was justified in his assessment of both tournaments, however. A quick glance at some of the highlights is a good indication: All four championship games in both tournaments were one-run ball games — three of which went into extra innings. And two of those games featured dramatic last-inning comebacks that tied the score.

The Junior World Series championship went 4-1 overall, but four of its five contests were decided by one run.

The Manchester (Ohio) A's, a suburban Akron squad, grabbed the Junior World Series crown by turning back defending champion Lexington (Kentucky) Dixie 3-2 on Aug. 5. The A's started the tournament on Aug. 3 with a 5-4 squeaker over the host team — Northville Mickey Mantle games — and then won three of the next four, and the title, behind a deep and talented pitching staff to grab the title.

"It was the greatest (tournament) we've ever had," Frellick said. "The brand of baseball was outstanding, and you couldn't ask for more exciting games. The difference for Manchester, basically, was that they had the pitching depth."

In the opener, Northville Mickey Mantle fell behind early, and the deficit grew to 5-0 following a four-run explosion in the fifth inning. The rally chased starting pitcher Mike Lang.

In the meantime, the locals were having no luck against A's starter Craig Bush, who limited Northville to just three hits in five innings of work. Professional baseball scouts clocked his fastball consistently between 85-88 miles per hour with radar guns.

In the top of the seventh inning, however, Northville Mantle made a dramatic comeback, but the rally came up a bit short. A walk and a single by Todd Pniwski set up Dan Walsh's RBI single, which broke the shutout. Then, with two out and two strikes against him, George Smoyer tipped a three-run homer off reliever Todd Henney to narrow the gap to 5-4. A third pitcher was quickly brought in to end the game, and shortstop Jerry Birdsall flew out to the centerfielder.

To be down 5-0 and come back to 5-4 against the eventual champs is

"It was the greatest (tournament) we've ever had. The brand of baseball was outstanding, and you couldn't ask for more exciting games. The difference for Manchester, basically, was that they had the pitching depth."

quite an accomplishment," Northville Coach Ed Walsh said. "We played a good game. We out-hit them 6-5, but they had two timely hits that drove in three runs. The comeback is nice to see because we didn't give up."

"I honestly believe that the difference isn't talent, it is that (Manchester) has been in these situations before and they played with great intensity for seven innings. We have no complaints — the kids played hard."

The hitting star was Smoyer, who went 3-for-4 with three RBIs. Lang lasted 4 1/2 innings, allowed five earned runs on five hits, and suffered the loss.

Northville was promptly knocked out of the double-elimination tournament 6-3 by Tecumseh (Ontario) — the Michigan Region winner — on Aug. 4.

"I wasn't exactly pleased with our effort in the second game," Walsh said. "We let a couple early runs bury us. We had our heads down a bit after the first inning."

Starter Gary Meoz lasted just 2 1/2 innings, after surrendering six hits and five earned runs. Northville got on the scoreboard with a single run in the fourth, and added two more in the fifth on two hits, two wild pitches and an error, but it wasn't enough.

"We left a lot of guys on base — so we had our chances," Walsh said. "We lacked timely hitting and we made some costly errors. This was a team we should have beaten."

Birdsall (2-for-4) and Lang (2-for-4) were the only Northville batters with more than one hit.

The Manchester A's advanced to the finals on Aug. 5 without a loss, but Lexington Dixie ended the string with a stunning 2-1 victory in 10 innings. Bush had a no-hitter heading into the seventh inning, but was tagged for a game-tying homer.

That forced a winner-take-all second game, and this time Manchester needed eight innings to turn back Dixie 3-2 for the title.

Neil Geoghegan

Is golf the new 'Sport of Kings'?

is happening in golf. And I'm talking about greens fees, cart rentals and equipment.

There are statistics to prove the point, but nobody could reasonably deny that there has been escalating costs, could they? Here they are anyway: of the courses listed in the 1990 Golfers Map and Guide, 65 percent said their fees for 18 holes were in the $9-and-up range — and many were above $14. In this area, the cheapest 18-hole weekend rate was at Brooklane ($14.50). The costliest public course was Salem Hills ($18). Five years ago, a $10 weekend round was common in metro Detroit.

And keep in mind that these figures do not include cart rental. Seventy-six percent of the courses in the guide charge between $9-$14 for an 18 hole power cart rental. Brooklane and Salem Hills charge $14.50 and $20 respectively, while Novi's Westbrooke is $9 per nine holes.

According to Tee Times Report, a golf magazine published out of Plymouth, golfers must share the blame for the higher fees. Reasons given include 1) Not showing up for a tee time and not cancelling; 2) Refusing to repair ball marks and replace divots; 3) Refusing to deposit broken tees and other trash into receptacles.

So there you go. There are some things you can do to help arrest the rising costs of upkeep and maintenance on your favorite course. But let's be honest — it certainly won't translate into cheaper fees down the road. The costs will continue to rise as long as there are plenty of golfers to pay them.

A recent trend in golf is the way courses are subtly discouraging those who wish to play only nine holes by, for instance, refusing to take tee times for a nine hole round in the mornings on weekends. Another disappointing trend is toward requiring power carts (no walking, which is supposed to be one of the big advantages of the game) in an attempt to speed up play. At least that's the excuse they use, but do you think the extra $18-$20 per round has anything to do with it?

With the cost for 18 holes (with power cart) in the $29-$38 range in this area — and roughly the same all across the state — I'm afraid the average hacker is being slowly but surely priced right out of the golf market. Instead of playing twice a week, the average golfer may only be able to afford to go two or three times a month — or not at all. Many future linksters may never even take up the game because of this.

Polo may be 'The Sport of Kings' but golf is quickly moving in on that same territory.

It reminds me of the way the average Piston and Red Wing fan has been priced out because of ridiculously high ticket prices. For a decent seat, you must either own season tickets, or know somebody (or some company) that does. And rest assured, if a new Tiger Stadium is built, the same will happen there.

I think it's a shame.

Campeau: the softball standout you've probably never heard of

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Krista Campeau may be the best softball player from Novi you've never heard of.

Campeau is a local kid — her family lives in Village Oaks Subdivision — but four years ago she took her talents to Ladywood High School in Livonia. Krista may not be a household name in her own home town, but in Livonia she is recognized as the "scrappy, defensive whiz who played shortstop for the Blazers for three seasons and wrapped up her prep career this spring with a bevy of post-season honors — including a berth on the first team (Class A) All-State team selected by the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Association.

"I always considered myself a strong defensive player, but my offensive game really started to come around my junior and senior years," she said.

Campeau has been an institution at shortstop for Ladywood since 1987. As a freshman, she was a starter on the junior varsity team, and a year later she moved up to the varsity and was the starting shortstop throughout her career.

"All through high school, I played shortstop," Campeau said. "I like it because you get a lot of action there and I was always confident about what I could do defensively."

On the field, she was a natural, but at the plate, Campeau struggled early on. Becoming effective against fast-pitch hurlers at the varsity level took time and experience.

"Hitting a fast-pitch softball is tough, but I concentrated on it because I knew it was the part of the game that I really needed to improve on," Campeau admitted. "Between my junior and senior year, our whole team got involved in lifting weights and that improved my strength. I think that helped a lot."

In addition, with experience, Campeau became a much smarter hitter. As a senior, she batted second in the order and often used the bunt as an offensive weapon or to advance runners. And that meant developing a number of different bunts to fit certain situations.

"I used a push bunt, a slap bunt and a regular sacrifice bunt," she said.

It all paid off this spring when Campeau batted .412 in Detroit Catholic League play (.319 overall) and led the Blazers in doubles (8) and runs scored (16). And, as usual, she was one of the state's finest defensive shortstops with a fine .936 fielding percentage.

"Krista was our team leader and co captain," Ladywood Coach Kim Linenger said. "She has excellent range with a strong arm."

The Blazers ended up finishing second in the Catholic League before being ousted by Northville in the second round of the state tournament.

"We've always done well during the regular season but every year we never seem to get very far in the districts," Campeau said.

Once the season ended, honors and awards started pouring in for Campeau. She was voted as her team's Most Valuable Player, and later picked to the All-Division, All-League, All-District, All-Regional and finally All-State teams. She was also selected to play in the Michigan High School Coaches Association All Star Game on Aug. 4 at Ranney Park in Lansing.

Playing with and against all star caliber players is nothing new to Campeau. This summer she is a member of the Boone & Darr squad of the Ann Arbor High School Women's Fast-Pitch Softball League. The team is made up of star players from all over the metro area and is currently undefeated.

"I like it a lot," she said. "The level of competition is very high. Everybody on my team were stars in high school. I think it gives you a good idea what college ball is going to be like."

That brings us to the future. After narrowing her college choices down to two (Wayne State and the University of Detroit), Campeau accepted a

Novi looking for new hoops coach

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

When the Novi Community School District hired Chris Drogosch to coach the Wildcat girls basketball program back in June of 1989, it was quite a coup. That's because Drogosch, 31, was recognized as one of the top young coaches in the state.

Despite a 6-15 campaign last fall at Novi, with a very inexperienced squad, Drogosch obviously remained 'hot property.' Just as Novi pried Drogosch away from Waterford's Our Lady of the Lakes just over a year ago, another Waterford High School — Class A Kettering — has turned the tables on Novi.

Drogosch confirmed on July 26 that he has indeed accepted the boys varsity basketball position at Kettering and will not be back to coach the Wildcats this fall. Drogosch is replacing Bob Warek, who resigned recently.

"It was really an opportunity that I couldn't pass up," Drogosch said, "as much as I wanted to stay at Novi."

"I ultimately wanted to be a boys, Class A, varsity coach and Kettering fits the bill."

According to Novi Athletic Director John Fundukian, part-time Novi High School teacher Tammi Biesenthal was interviewed and given the Novi coaching job in mid-July, but then tendered her resignation from her teaching and coaching position on July 27.

"So now we are back to square one," he said.

With the season less than a month away, the Wildcats are still without a head coach. Biesenthal's replacement will become the fifth girls varsity coach in five years at Novi.

Drogosch cited several reasons for the change, and the biggest was that Kettering was also attaching a full-time teacher's position in addition to his basketball chores. Novi never did that.

"It wasn't that Novi wouldn't find me a teaching position, I don't think, it was just that there never was an opening," Drogosch explained. "I knew the situation heading in."

Another plus is that Kettering is located just three miles from his Waterford home — as opposed to the 35-40 minute drive to Novi. There was also another key reason.

"I ultimately wanted to be a boys, Class A, varsity coach and Kettering fits the bill," he said. "That's not to say I didn't enjoy coaching the girls. I thought we had something good started at Novi and I didn't want to leave so soon — that wasn't my intention when I first took the position."

"This type of opportunity (at Kettering) just doesn't open up every day."

Drogosch came to Novi after a highly successful seven-year stint at Our Lady of the Lakes — his alma mater. The Laker girls basketball program won four district titles, three regional titles and three quarterfinal crowns during his reign, and had a stellar 128-38 overall record.

At Novi, the 'Cats struggled to a 6-15 mark, but had just one senior in the starting line-up and showed vast improvement as the season progressed.

"Our record wasn't great but we were so young," he said. "I thought it was a good building block and I was happy with some of the things we accomplished at Novi. We started a nice AAU program this summer and I honestly feel I left the program in good shape."

Fundukian knows the school district lost a talented young coach.

"Chris did an excellent job," he said. "He is a fine young man and whoever lands him as a coach has got a gem."

Local swimmers excel at long course meet

A half-dozen or so Northville residents performed very well at the Michigan Long Course Swimming State Championships in Southfield earlier this month. All the local participants are members of the Bulldog Aquatic Club.

The following is a rundown of their performances:

Girls 11-12: Amity Heckemeyer, age 12, placed fourth in the 50-yard butterfly, fifth in the 100 freestyle, eighth in the 200 individual medley and was a member of the freestyle relay team that placed fifth; Rebecca Anderson, 12, was ninth in the 100 backstroke, 11th in the 50 backstroke and was a member of the medley relay squad that placed fourth.

Boys 13-14: Dave Wesley, 14, placed fourth in the 1,500 freestyle, sixth in the 800 freestyle and 10th in the 200 freestyle.

Girls 15-18: Jodi Wesley, 15, placed fourth in the 1,500 freestyle, sixth in the 400 IM, seventh in the 200 butterfly, 11th in the 100 backstroke, and was a member of the 800 freestyle relay team (along with Erica Anderson, Carrie Vanderweele and Shannon Willard) that placed seventh.

Boys 15-18: Jim Fee, 15, placed seventh in the 200 butterfly, seventh in the 100 butterfly and was a member of the 400 medley relay squad that finished eighth.

LOCAL WRESTLER AT NATIONALS: Another local athlete, Matt Allison, who is entering his sophomore season at Northville High School this fall, competed at the USA Wrestling National Tournament last month in Battle Creek.

As a participant in the cadet age group (15-16 year olds), Allison was entered into both the Greco-Roman and Freestyle Tournaments as a 112-pounder. In Greco-Roman, Allison dropped his first two matches and was eliminated, but in Freestyle, he won three times in five matches, including three pins, and was just one victory away from the placing round (top eight).

In round one, Allison was pinned by Brett Choquette of Montana, but came back to pin three straight opponents in the following rounds. His victims were Monty Solberg (North Dakota), Matt Infranca (Missouri) and Donny McMoran (Washington).

Allison was then eliminated in the fifth round by Eric Brown of Illinois.

"For Matt, this is absolutely fantastic experience," Northville High School Wrestling Coach Bob Boshoven said.

Court allows MHSAA to appeal '87 ruling

The Michigan Supreme Court has granted the Michigan High School Athletic Association's application to appeal a lower court decision involving its restitution rule.

The case stems from a 1987 court challenge to an MHSAA eligibility rule. The courts found in favor of the Association, but prohibited enforcement of a regulation requiring the forfeiture of games involving an otherwise ineligible student-athlete who played under a court injunction while the eligibility case was pending.

The MHSAA's restitution rule is similar to those of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and 11 other state high school associations. The Supreme Court has granted the NCAA and the National Federation of State High School Associations permission to file briefs on behalf of the rule.

"We're pleased with the Supreme Court's decision to accept this case, especially with the national implications it has on other intercollegiate and interscholastic governing bodies," MHSAA Executive Director Jack Roberts said.

"But more than that, a rule which our member schools statewide have requested and need to preserve fairness in competition may be restored to usefulness."

Roberts added that many segments of the Michigan education community have shown support for having the restitution rule restored. Resolutions of support have been adopted by the Michigan Education Association, the Michigan Association of School Administrators, the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals and the Michigan Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association.

No court hearing date has been set.

The Our Lady of Victory Booster Club's fundraising activities provide financial support to two boys' and two girls' basketball programs, a boys' baseball team and a cheerleading squad. Approximately 75 youngsters participate in these programs each year.

ANN ARBOR GOLF TOURNEYS: The city of Ann Arbor is sponsoring a golf outing this month: the City Senior Golf Tournament. The senior event will take place on Aug. 17 at the Leslie Park Golf Course. It is open to men and women who are at least 55 years of age. The entry fee is $25. For more information, call 994-1163.

MORE KENSINGTON TOURNAMENTS: There are more tournaments in store for area golfers this summer at the Kensington Golf Course. Last year, the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority sponsored a series of golf tournaments at Kensington Metropark in Milford. The series included six different tournaments including both team and individual competitive formats.

The objective in sponsoring these tournaments, according to tournament director Doug Curry, is to offer the golfing public well-run tournaments using USGA rules and handicaps at a low cost. The tournaments are designed to challenge tournament veterans and first-time tournament players alike. The formats allow players with a wide range of skill levels to have a successful tournament experience.

Entry fees are kept low ($3-$4 per player) and prizes are modest (usually trophies and free greens-fee certificates). That places more emphasis on participation and enjoyment.

USGA handicaps are required thus allowing players at all skill levels an opportunity to be successful. Curry also said that establishing and using a USGA handicap makes the game more enjoyable.

Last year, the tournaments generated a great deal of interest. Over 850 entries were accepted for the six tournaments. This was highlighted by 240 entries in the individual Championship held in September. At least 75 percent of the golfers entered had never played in a USGA-style tournament before.

This year, the program has been expanded. There will be a playoff among at least four of the HCMA courses for both a Senior and Individual Championship.

Course Senior Championships were held on July 30, with the HCMA tournament featuring the top eight from each course to follow on Aug. 10. The Individual Championship will feature qualifying rounds on Sept. 8 or 9, with Course Championships on Sept. 23. The HCMA finals will be on Oct. 7.

Campeau to play at Wayne State partial scholarship to Wayne State. The Tartars boast one of the premier Division II programs in the country and finished last season ranked in the top 10.

"It's a solid program and Wayne State offers a physical therapy program, which is what I want to go into," Campeau explained. "Academics are the first priority for me."

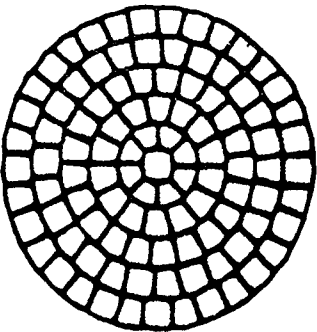

Campeau also excels on the basketball court and already has permission from her college coach to play basketball at Wayne State as well as softball.

"I'm thinking about maybe playing basketball after my freshman year," she said. "I've always loved the game and even though it will be tough playing both, I'd like to give it a shot."

Campeau never was one to back down from challenges.

Healthy back less prone to injury

By SYLVA DVORAK
Special Writer

If you have ever injured your back or suffered from back pain, I am sure you quickly realized how crucial your back is to the slightest movements. Your back is always working: when you lift, bend, sit or sleep. That is why it is so important to keep your back healthy.

A healthy back is less prone to injury and makes daily activities easier to accomplish.

It is estimated that eight out of 10 Americans will have back problems at some time in their lives.

Most of these problems stem from lifestyle habits: lack of exercise, poor body mechanics, poor posture and being overweight.

Prevention is the key. Most back injuries can be prevented if you learn to take care of your back. You are responsible for your own back.

Therefore, whether you already suffer from back pain or want to prevent it, follow the guidelines listed below:

Posture

- You can reduce the amount of stress and strain on your back by maintaining a good posture.

- Stand tall, don't slouch, tuck your chin in and keep your knees unlocked.

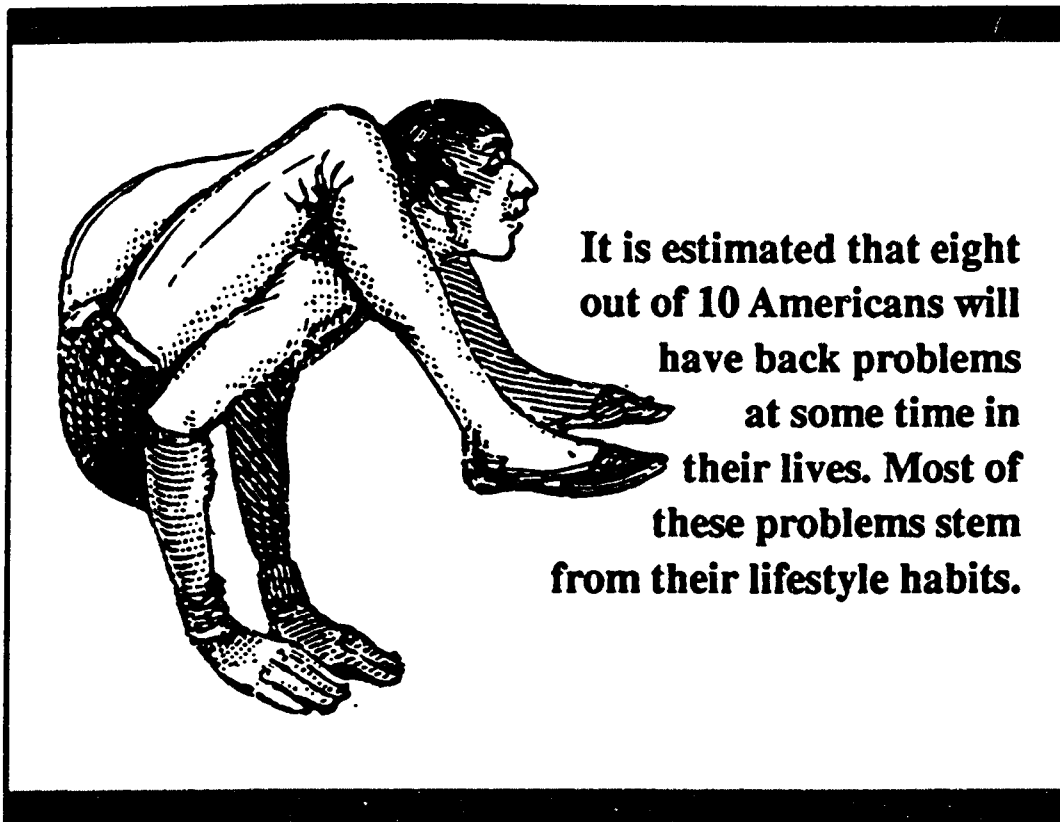

- If you have to stand for a long time, elevate one foot slightly higher; a stool will work well; alternate legs occasionally.

- Don't wear high heels.

Sitting

- Sit in a firm seat to support at least three-quarters of your thighs.
- Sit back against the chair — don't slouch.

- Keep both feet on the floor or prop your feet up on a stool or box; don't cross your legs; this allows better circulation in your legs.

It is estimated that eight out of 10 Americans will have back problems at some time in their lives. Most of these problems stem from their lifestyle habits.

- If you extend your arms to work a machine, use a pillow at the small of your back.

- Change your position often; get up and walk around occasionally, especially if you sit most of the day.

Driving

- Move your car seat forward to keep knees bent and higher than hips.

- Sit straight and drive with both hands on the wheel.
- Use a small pillow or rolled up towel as a back support.

Lifting

- Bend with your knees, not your back.

- Don't bend over with legs straight; don't ever twist while lifting.
- Don't curve your back over the load.

- Get a good grip before starting to lift, don't jerk the load.

- Lift with your legs and hold object close to your body.

- Lift objects only chest high — avoid trying to lift above shoulder level.

- When the load is heavy, get help; avoid sudden load shifts.

- Always be sure of good footing.

Sleeping

- Sleep on a firm mattress; on your side with knees bent.

- Sleeping on your back with a pillow under your knees is also a good position.

- Don't sleep or lounge on soft, sagging, no support mattresses or cushions.

- Sleeping on your stomach exaggerates the lower back curvature and is a frequent cause of low back pain. If you must sleep on your stomach, place a pillow under your abdomen to correct the sagging spine.

Fitness Tips

Fitness program can add years to your life

This is part II of a two-part article on exercise. Last week we talked about the benefits of an exercise program and the importance of warming up and stretching. Today's article will discuss aerobic exercises, the cool-down and strength training.

Aerobic activity

In the absence of an exercise stress test, target heart rate is determined by one's age and current fitness level. The following chart is a quick and easy way to estimate your target heart rate range:

AGE	MHR	70%	80%	90%
20	200	140	160	180
25	195	136	156	176
30	190	133	153	173
35	185	129	150	170
40	180	126	147	167
45	175	121	143	163
50	170	116	139	159
55	165	112	135	155
60	160	108	131	151

MHR: predicted maximum heart rate.

An individual beginning an exercise program should exercise at the lower limit for their age range. Those who are currently exercising regularly or who have a higher initial fitness level may choose to exercise closer to the upper limit for their age group.

Examples of aerobic exercise

- Brisk walking.
- Jogging.
- Swimming.
- Biking.
- Rowing.
- Jumping rope.
- Cross-country skiing.
- Stationary cycling.
- Aerobic dance/exercise.
- Stair machine.

The cool-down

The cool-down period of exercise involves tapering vigorous activity slowly and prepares you for stretching. Benefits include prevention of muscle soreness, decrease in heart rate, increase of blood flow to the brain, relaxation. Examples include slow jogging, walking, slow cycling, swimming easily, etc.

Strength training:

- Increases muscle tone and endurance; firms muscles, prevents injuries.
- To gain strength: increase weight gradually and decrease repetitions.
- To firm and tone: increase repetitions and decrease weight.

- Upper body strength work: lie on a flat surface, bend knees to a 90 degree angle, keep feet flat on the floor and do not anchor them (crunches: slowly curl up, raising your shoulders off the floor; half-sit up: slowly raise upper body 45 degrees off the floor by tightening our abdominal muscles).

Advice for effective weight training

- Always start with a good warm-up and stretch.
- When training with weights, proper technique is very important to prevent injury and maximize gains.

- Be sure to exhale when exerting force and inhale when returning to a starting position.

- Allow for a day of rest between training sessions.
- Keep a record of each workout to monitor your progress.

Congratulate yourself, you are taking charge of your health. A balanced fitness program can add quality years to your life by improving the function of your heart, lungs and muscles. Enjoy the activities you are doing; exercise should be fun. Encourage your family to take part in exercise programs and recreational activities. The time spent together will not only make you a healthier person, but will also bring your family closer together.
