Local boy does bad Alternative magazine is big hit

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Papa's got a brand-new bag — and it's an entertainment mag.

The proud papa in this case is former Detroit punk rocker and Northville High School graduate Jerry "Vile" Peterson, and his baby is a new magazine called Orbit. And although this is not Peterson's first foray into the publishing world — he's been the creative influence behind such seminal punk publications as White Noise and Fun — Orbit is a brand-new brainchild for the erstwhile musician.

It's his first shot at a mainstream audience, after years of skewering punk culture through his magazines and living the life as the front man for Detroit bands like the Boners, Love Snot with Jerry Vile, and the Martini Set.

Peterson, still dazed from the strain of producing the magazine's first issue, described its birth at the second-story offices of Orbit the day the premiere issue hit the streets.

He led the way past tables littered with fast-food boxes, wadded pieces of paper, ashtrays and a Tabasco bottle through the several rooms on the second floor that Orbit occupies above a body shop on Main Street in Royal Oak.

Along the way, he stopped several fellow employees as they headed out the door, advising them to cut down on the number of magazines they were leaving at distribution points — and suggesting that they sneak back into some of the places where they had already dropped magazines off to take some copies back.

It seems there weren't quite enough issues to go around.

The twice-monthly paper is available for free throughout metro Detroit, in places as far north as Novi and Walled Lake, and as far west as Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti. One of the few places that you cannot find the magazine is Northville.

Which is a shame, because its editor is a former resident and Northville High School student.

Peterson recalled his first live ap-

"Punk rock is so much different now than it used to be, too. Now it's just a product."

pearance — not on a rock stage, but at Northville High School in a production staged by he and some friends. "It was really inspired by National Lampoon records," he said. "It was just a series of skits that were humorous, and then they shut us down at lunch hour because kids went home and complained to their parents because we used some dirty words."

Peterson made his musical debut in the Northville area as well, but it was an equally inauspicious start. "I think I sang like a couple times in high school bands, but I thought I had a horrible voice, which I do," he said. "But then when punk rock came along, I guess that didn't matter."

Punk led to publishing when Peterson and several friends combined talents to produce a small music review magazine called White Noise. That led to the publication of Fun.

Peterson recalls Fun with fondness. "We made a difference, however small, on the lives of certain people," he said. "I think we were the first ones to make fun of (news anchor) Bill Bonds' toupee. People just ignored those attributes, but now even he jokes about it on the TV."

Fun also took a scathing view of the punk bands which it covered. "We just teased people unmercifully in Fun," Peterson said. "Our gossip column would talk about a band just signing a contract, a contract for their janitorial services, and always telling bands not to quit their day jobs."

There are similarities between Fun and Orbit, Peterson said, but the differences far outweigh them. "This is how Fun started out, writing about music and weird pop culture," he said. But Orbit's focus is much broader, covering most forms of entertainment in the metro Detroit area rather than the punk scene alone.

"Punk rock is so much different now than it used to be, too," Peterson said. "It implies mohawk haircuts and stuff like that, and I think then it was more just the real creative people were into it, rather than some kid who saw something on MTV and rushed out to the punk rock store to buy it. Now it's just a product."

Orbit also avoids the political issues tackled by established publications like the Metro Times, and Peterson said that was a conscious choice on the part of its creators.

"The alternative newspaper goes so far to get the other side of the story, the leftist view, that it's worse or just as bad as the conservative point of view," he said. "You just don't need anymore hack journalists writing about subjects they don't know anything about."

The new magazine is a graphic artist's dream — or nightmare, depending on your perspective. The table of contents section — called "In Orbit" — shows a blown-up view of the week's publication and points out just where each story is located. It's a sort of road map through the mag.

Quirky stories and music, movie and restaurant reviews are grouped under headings like "Blast Off," "High Performance" and "Sonic Boom." Orbit's mascot, a globe-headed figure named Orby, reappears throughout the pages, laughing or dancing depending on the subject at hand.

The stories — big surprise — are written with pen planted firmly in cheek.

CMA Awards take note of country music newcomers

By Mary Ann Townsend and Amy Schmidt

Their country music careers have just crested the horizon, and now one of five nominees will receive the aptly named Horizon Award at The 24th Annual Country Music Association Awards, to air live from Nashville Monday, Oct. 8, on CBS.

This year, a recent Horizon Award winner will join Reba McEntire as co-host of the awards. Randy Travis, the 1986 Horizon Award winner, took a little time recently to reflect on the changes he has seen in country music.

"About 10 years ago it got so boring and all because everybody was trying to cut crossover music," Travis explained. "They were basically country singers and it was the same people over and over, and, you know, a lot of that changed over the past several years."

This year's Horizon Award nominees are evidence of that return to traditional country, from the tried-and-true sounds of Alan Jackson, Garth Brooks, Lorrie Morgan and Travis Tritt, to the country/Southern rock sensations of The Kentucky Headhunters.

This year's top nominee, Garth Brooks, is modest about his seemingly sudden fame. His "If Tomorrow Never Comes" is up for best single and best song, and "The Dance" is nominated for best music video. The Horizon Award nominee is also up for Male Vocalist of the Year.

Taking a break between concert appearances in Virginia, Brooks talked about the two things that made his career blossom this year, in particular. First was the song, "The Dance," and second was new, more aggressive marketing tactics by Capitol, his recording label.

But the reflective Brooks thought of two others who have seen him through the leaner years. "There's no doubt that the good Lord is the reason things happen," Brooks said, thinking who he might thank if he wins an award Monday. "Then my wife, Sandy."

For newcomer Alan Jackson, the past year has been phenomenal. The Newnan, Ga., native released his first album titled Here in the Real World March 1. By April 6, it had topped the charts. On Sept. 5, it went gold.

The 6'4" blue-eyed blond, a former mechanic and construction worker, has followed on the boots of Dwight Yoakum to become country music's newest sex symbol. "It's funny how you get better lookin' when they find out you're on the radio," said Jackson of the screaming throngs of ladies who attend his concerts. His CMA nominations include album, song and single of the year, as well as the Horizon Award.

Also up for four awards is the backwoods boogie band The Kentucky Headhunters. While brothers Richard and Fred Young and cousin Greg Martin have been perfecting their sound since the late 1960s, it wasn't until they joined brothers Doug and Ricky Phelps in 1984 that The Kentucky Headhunters were born.

"We haven't tried to run away from our rural upbringing as much," explains rhythm guitarist Richard Young. "We're playing basically rock and roll music, but it's played with such a country attitude that it comes off country."

Up for album, vocal group and music video of the year, these Horizon Award nominees realize they may have to creatively share should they win an award. "You can bet that we'd saw that sucker in five pieces, six countin' our manager," Young joked. © TV Listing Inc.

Our Business Is You

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN
Executive Director,
SW Oakland Cable Comm.

An abundance of energy is the first prerequisite of a cable company's television production staff. In the early years of cable franchising, many cable company staffs were committed to cover every community event. Eventually, this was modified to provide reasonable coverage of large community events. One of the persons that handles those responsibilities is the cable coordinator. Omnicom has just hired Ms. Kelly Wingo, a recent graduate of Eastern University, in this capacity.

The responsibilities of Omnicom's Public Access Coordinator include teaching Public Access video workshops, assisting access users (residents trained on the television equipment) in developing their ideas and production techniques, and coordinating the use of the PA facilities (camcorders, studio and editing). Much to Kelly's delight, she will also be responsible for coordinating Omnicom's local origination programming for sports, leading the pack as the television crews cover on-location high school football games once a week. Three or four people will make up the crew, with two or three on camera.

As a Cum Laude graduate majoring in Telecommunications and Film, Kelly minored in both General Business and Comprehensive Communications. Omnicom Cable's Community Affairs and Program Director, Maria Homes, explains that Comprehensive Communications includes public speaking, interpersonal communications and small group interaction. Kelly Wingo is the recipient of the Dean's List Recognition of Excellence Award. Her professional experience includes teaching assistance in video production, data processing and business management. Welcome aboard, Kelly!

We would also like to introduce MetroVision's Community Access Coordinator Ms. Kathleen Freidrichs. Kathy has proudly worked with her staff and the cities of Farmington, Novi and Farmington Hills since 1983 to develop the Community Service of Community Access Television. Confusing to some, but most functional for our television audience, is the concept of Community Television. With a Masters in Telecommunication Arts from the University of Michigan, Kathy gathered experience as a freelance writer. The interviewing and people skills which she developed have served her well while working closely with individuals and their television dreams.

Where Omnicom has a division between the residents' produced television shows and those initiated by the cable company staff, MetroVision's access Community Channel is a cooperative blend of both. This concept is unique and yet makes the marketing of community ideas simple and enhances a singular objective for both the cable company staff and the government authority staff.

Kathy's job has evolved throughout seven and a half years. She joined the company when the early television workshops were being developed. Her writing skills enabled her to build up her strengths while learning the television equipment first hand. Passing on her knowledge to the public was quite an intellectual challenge.

Known for her delightful smile and quick wit, Kathy still enjoys teaching the workshops. It is through this activity that she recharges her energy. The residents' enthusiasm inspires her, especially the Senior Adults. Kathy says, "They are appreciative of the television classes and are thrilled with the skills they learn. This is so rewarding!"

As both Kathy and Kelly embark upon the creative fall season, both spoke about their roles as being a service in an arena where you gather with others who enjoy learning. Refreshing and real are the individuals who come to the workshops and then go on to become local access video crews.

Kelly, commenting on local residents, said that "most fear getting involved because they think it is going to be hard." She went on to observe, "They learn that being creative is more than drawing. Through television they find a new medium and then let the creativity flow out."

The staff quarters of the Community and Public Access Television have always been available to the public. Kathy, having recently moved down the hall into her own office, wanted you to be sure to know how happy she is when you pop your head in and eagerly tell her of what you are about to produce and say "hi." "I am still as accessible as ever!"

To meet Kelly Wingo of Omnicom call 459-7335. To talk with Kathy Freidrichs of MetroVision call 553-7303.

James Earl Jones stars in 'Gabriel's Fire'

Actor in another quality role

By ANNE WHEELER

James Earl Jones almost always seems to be involved with quality projects, and his role as ex-con Gabriel Bird in ABC's "Gabriel's Fire" is no exception.

The role was created especially for Jones, who likes the character's ingenuous perspective toward re-entering society after 20 years. "not having an attitude, or as they say, 'a'tude' about things, leaves him kind of pure. He's got to look at things for what they are, and that's something he's learned in jail," Jones said.

Bird was sent to prison for intentionally shooting, and subsequently killing, his police partner during a raid to save the life of a woman and her child. Now, two decades after Bird's trial, a defense attorney finds he was not defended properly and springs him from prison on a technicality.

Laila Robins plays Victoria Heller, the defense attorney who discovers the irregularities of Bird's case while examining the case of a client who has just been killed in prison.

Bird, however, is torn between his new freedom and his feelings of guilt for not having served enough time for his crime.

"I think what's interesting about Gabriel Bird is that, yes, he's guilty, he pulled a trigger, he did it. And as is said in the pilot, 'You could have shot him in the arm and the leg, but you didn't.' And that's what he's had to live with," said Jacqueline Zambrano, producer/writer of the ABC series.

"He was a man who was a policeman. He believed in law and order," Jones explained of his character. "And now that side of him is very real. A person who can't get rid of the guilt, I think, is very realistic, and that is who he is."

Although he is physically released from prison, Bird finds himself imprisoned in other ways, such as having to cope with changes that have taken place while he was incarcerated. He experiences small changes in everyday life, as well as more monumental alterations, like seeing his daughter for the first time in 20 years, or searching for the graves of his parents, who died while he was in prison.

Despite the fact that many of his projects have serious themes, including "Gabriel's Fire," Jones has a delightfully touching humorous side. In fact, he was being considered for a situation comedy at the same time ABC was considering him for the role of Gabriel Bird.

The 59-year-old actor, whose Broadway work has garnered him Tony Awards for "The Great White Hope" and "Fences," said he is turning to television and feature films because the routine is less strenuous with a regular filming schedule versus rehearsing and performing eight shows a week throughout the run of a play.

"You get up at 6 every morning, and they come get you," Jones said about working for a television network. "And they put stuff on your face, and they push you out in front of the camera."

STAR NOTES

'Wonder Years' mom not like Alley Mills

By Amy Schmidt

If you've seen actress Alley Mills on ABC's hit series The Wonder Years, you may have the impression that Kevin Arnold's mom off-stage is a soft-spoken, passive woman. Not so.

Mills, who is rather taciturn on the show, in real-life is a mile-a-minute talker. The vivacious actress grew up in New York City, the daughter of a TV writer/producer, and a magazine editor dedicated to providing her daughter the best education possible.

Accordingly, Mills became one of the first female attendees of Yale University, and graduated magna cum laude. By contrast, Norma is only a high-school graduate.

Unlike Norma, too, Mills is single and has no children. She is currently "involved" with someone but declines to mention who. "I'd rather not say," she confesses. "We've been photographed in The Enquirer, though." This isn't much of a clue for fans diligent upon going through back issues, because she has been pictured with a number of so-called "romantic interests" in the tabloid, including her Wonder Years husband Dan Lauria.

Mills says the cast really is like a big family on the set, however. "I really do feel like their Mom, in a way," says Mills of her show kids Fred Savage, Jason Hervey and Olivia d'Abo. This year on the show, Norma takes a job outside of the Arnold home.

The Major League Baseball season continues its stretch run toward the climactic World Series this week when CBS Sports broadcasts the conclusion of the National and American League Championship Series.

Since 1969, when both leagues expanded to 12 teams and divided into Eastern and Western Divisions, the League Championship Series confrontations have provided baseball fans with great sports moments.

That year the upstart New York Mets, a 7-year-old expansion team that had never had a winning season, swept the Atlanta Braves in three games then went on to beat the Baltimore Orioles in the annual fall classic.

In 1985 the LCS expanded to the best four-of-seven series and earned a prime-time viewership that rivaled that of the World Series when the Orioles came back from two games down to defeat the Toronto Blue Jays, while in the National League the St. Louis Cardinals won four straight after dropping the first two games to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Game 2 of the American League airs Sunday on CBS, while the National League teams play Game 3 Monday afternoon. Game 4 of the NLCS will be played Tuesday, and Games 3 and 4 of the ALCS will be played Tuesday and Wednesday. Games 5 through 7 will be televised, if necessary.

Mary Hart happy with reviews of second syndicated special

Mary Hart, Entertainment Tonight co-anchor, happy with the reviews of her second syndicated special, Mary Hart Presents Power In The Public Eye, reminds fans not to compare her to Barbara Walters. "My show is totally different. I'm trying to create something unique from the Barbara Walters format," she said. However, she plans to do only three specials a year.

Mary Hart

Wendy Kilbourne, who portrays KJCM radio station owner Devon King on the NBC series Midnight Caller, will leave her regular role on the series after completion of this season's fifth episode. Kilbourne, who makes her home in Los Angeles and is expecting her first child in November, has opted to leave the series, which films on location in San Francisco. "My husband (actor James Read) and I are thrilled about the upcoming birth of our baby. It is unfortunate, however, that the demands of commuting to the San Francisco location are incompatible with the needs of an infant," she explained.

Actor Paul Winfield will host PBS' Showcase Week Sept. 30 through Oct. 6. It offers a sample of the series that will air on public television this fall. Winfield will appear during breaks to talk about the value of public TV.

The new half-hour CBS comedy series Lenny, starring Lenny Clarke, is set in Clarke's real-life hometown of Boston and parallels many of the comedian's personal experiences.

A world-wide search has begun for a beautiful, and perhaps unknown, actress to play America's most celebrated and intriguing First Lady—

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis—in a six-hour miniseries. Based on the C Davis Heymann best seller A Woman Named Jackie, the miniseries, costing $20 million, will air on NBC.

Belita Moreno stars as Lydia Markham in the ABC comedy Perfect Strangers, Fridays.

'SB' role familiar to Karen Moncrieff

By Candace Havens

Karen Moncrieff is what the critics call an "eye-catching beauty," and she has an enormous amount of talent to complement that amazing beauty. She is one of Santa Barbara's newest shining stars as the somewhat manipulative Cassandra Benedict.

"Cassie is a kind of enigma. She's been ingratiating herself into the lives of the people she knew when she was about 8 years old," commented Moncrieff in a recent interview. "She has basically assured everyone that they can trust her, and now she is going to wreak havoc in all of their lives."

While the character's obsession with Mason Capwell hasn't come full tilt, we will all soon be witness to Cassie's undying affection for him. "Her obsession with him is kind of a sick thing, because he is the one who abused her the most when she was a child. She's like the little puppy who goes back to the abusing master," explains Moncrieff.

The actress is certain that her character will pose no threat to super couple Mason and Julia. "There is just something about them and nobody else on daytime comes close to what they are doing. They have a unique chemistry and humor in their relationship," Moncrieff said.

A few years ago on Days of Our Lives, Moncrieff found herself in the same situation. She played Gabrielle Pascal, who was obsessed with gaining the love of Shane (Charles Shaughnessy). Unfortunately, he was part of another favorite super couple.

During her time off between Days and SB, Moncrieff concentrated on "being a human being." "I got married in the interim and took the time to make a home for Michael and myself. I decorated and started a garden—things that I just barely have time to maintain now," she said.

"I enjoy working on this show. The directors are innovative and the actors really care about the continuity and integrity of their parts. It is more than just a paycheck, or a way to fund that second mortgage. It is a really great place to work."

LET'S TALK*FAMILY FAIR*Leigh McCloskey appearing in television commercials

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I have read with great interest your column in the Buffalo Times-Express and would like to ask for some information. It is in regard to Leigh McCloskey in the series Santa Barbara. Has he been dropped from the series? I haven't seen him lately on it. Also what was the name of the first movie he starred in? I think it had the word "midnight" in the title. Is it on videotape? In addition, do you have any background on him — age, birthday, family, other movies or series? —Richard Meloon, Buffalo, N.Y.

A: Leigh McCloskey was born on June 21, 1955, in Los Angeles and made his acting debut in a PTA play when he was in the third grade. He recalls realizing that he wanted to become an actor when he was a sixth grader. Encouraged by his parents, he appeared in school plays at Santa Monica High and went on to study acting at Cal State Northridge. Then he headed for New York, where he studied for two years at The Juilliard School under John Houseman. He had roles in various plays before returning to Hollywood in 1975 to begin working in television, including the series Rich Man, Poor Man, Phyllis, Medical Center, Streets of San Francisco, Blind Sunday, Dallas; the television movies Dawn, Portrait of a Runaway, Alexander: The Other Side of Dawn, Bermuda Depths; and the feature films Inferno, Just One of the Guys and Lucky Stiff. I do not see his name listed as a cast member of Santa Barbara this year, however I see him frequently on commercials. His spare time interests include painting, sketching and sculpting. He plays the guitar, likes basketball and fencing, and is a pro football fan. McCloskey and his wife, Carla, an assistant director, live in Los Angeles.

Q: I am interested in writing ESPN, specifically Bodies in Motion. Do you know how I can write to them? Any information is appreciated. —Andrea Moseley, Marshall, Texas

A: Write to: Mike Soltys, Manager of Program Information, ESPN, Inc., ESPN Plaza, Bristol, CT 06010-9454.

Q: I am hoping you can help me as I am having no end of difficulty in finding what I want. I want to know how I can find who has a listing of old movies that have been taped on VHS tape and possibly copies of them for sale. I suspect all of them have not been taped but I would like a list of those that were and how to get a copy. The particular one I am looking for at this time was a Clark Gable movie in which he was a western mountain man who had been surrounded in a small creek on open ground and was hiding in a group of trees in the middle of the creek. He shot an attacking Indian with the rifle ram rod. I live in a small city which has an incomplete index of movie listings and cannot seem to find the movie. The name of it may be Across the Wide Missouri, but that may not be it either. Can you help me? —Bill Strickland, Huntsville, Ala.

A: Leonard Maltin's TV Movies and Video Guide lists descriptions of movies and their availability on VHS. The book can be found in paperback in any store selling paperbacks. Another paperback by Tom Wiener, The Book of Video Lists, is available in many bookstores located in shopping malls. The Clark Gable film you are looking for could well have been Across the Wide Missouri, however it is not available on VHS.

'Body by Jake's' Jake begins acting

By Christy Bergslien

"The easy way out was to stick with Body by Jake, says Jake Steinfeld of why he decided to try acting in the new Family Channel sitcom Big Brother Jake. "I could have played it safe, but I wanted to extend myself beyond what people might have expected." The show airs Sundays, Tuesdays and Fridays and is the first comedy series the network has ever produced.

Steinfeld's path to stardom has been a circuitous one. He began a career as a bodybuilder and subsequently hosted the fitness program Body by Jake on ESPN.

In Big Brother Jake, Steinfeld plays an L.A. stuntman who returns to Brooklyn to help his recently widowed foster mom (Barbara Meek). She's got a house full of foster children, but unless she finds a male role model, social services will remove them.

Steinfeld manages to mix a little bodybuilding with his acting on the show. If he forgets his lines or makes a blunder, he gets down on the floor and does a set of push-ups, to the delight of studio audiences.

"When I first started working with Jake, I was concerned about his lack of experience," says director Gary Shimokawa. "He has been terrific, really better than I had expected. He works well with the kids in the cast, and he is great at taking direction and fulfilling it."
