ers decide millage

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Northville Township voters rejected a .5-mill fire department operations request in August. The township board acted to place a millage request on the November ballot at .33 mill. Township officials say the fire millage will raise approximately $130,000 for fire services that otherwise would come from the township general fund. Last week the Record asked Fire Chief Robert Toms, Assistant Chief Rick Rosselle and firefighters Guy Baklok and Ron Lane to discuss the department and the upcoming fire millage.

RECORD: Township voters rejected the August millage request. Why try again? Didn't the voters speak?

TOMS: I don't think they really understood what the fire millage was doing. We've been operating on that millage for about 10 years and the millage they turned down, I think they thought it was going to be a big tax increase.

The fire department operates on roughly $36 a year per family — per household. For that, the services we provide . . . we not only fight fires, we inspect all building plans, we provide emergency medical services, we teach fire safety to the children in schools, we fight fires on a 24-hour, seven-day-a-week basis. When you compare this with the small amount of money that the fire department spends of the township taxpayers' money, that's certainly not unreasonable.

I talked to one lady and she thought we were going to build a new fire station. That's not what we wanted to do. We just want to survive and continue to offer the services we have.

Bonds on ballot

Northville city is asking voters to approve $1.6 million in general-obligation bonds to fund continuing city street improvements.

The bonds will allow the city to finish a street repair program and continue repaving, recurfing and landscaping many of the city's key downtown and residential streets. Under the program, new sub-bases, asphalt, curbs and gutters have already been built on many city streets.

City officials have attributed the cost overruns to the fact that more street repairs were needed than originally thought. The street program is almost complete, but repairs are still needed to Hutton, East Main between Hutton and Griswold, Fairbrook, and South Wing. Streets like Baseline Road, West Main, Grace, Carpenter and Horton have already been improved. Many of those roads were entirely rebuilt rather than simply repaved as originally planned.

The 10-year bond does not represent a specific amount of additional millage, said City Manager Steven Walters. The city will try to pay the bond from general funds, rather than asking voters for a millage increase.

A 17-0 'Baseline Jug' win over Novi sends Mustangs into first postseason

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

When Northville football coach Darrel Schumacher and his wife Janet entered Getzie's Pub late last Friday, he was greeted with an unrehearsed but hearty round of applause from the patrons.

That's because several hours earlier, Schumacher had guided his Mustangs to an impressive 17-0 win over Novi in the 1990 regular season finale. The win meant a 6-3 record — and perhaps more importantly — a spot in the MHSAA Class A playoff field. Only 16 teams are now qualified for an opportunity to win the Class A state title, and Northville is in that position for the first time in school history.

The win, combined with Detroit Mumford's 22-8 win over Highland Park, enabled the Mustangs to secure the fourth and final playoff spot in Region IV. After suffering through four straight losing seasons, Northville picked an opportune year to turn things around because the MHSAA playoff field was doubled from 64 teams to 128 teams earlier this year. A 6-3 mark in any other year wouldn't have been good enough.

Northville also benefited from being placed in a weaker region. For example, Pontiac Central went 8-1 this fall but missed making the Class AA playoffs by a few percentage points.

The win also gave the Mustangs possession of the "Baseline Jug" for another year — Northville's third in a row. The traveling trophy was first awarded to the winner of the Novi-Northville clash in 1988 by The Northville Record and Not News.

In round one of the playoffs, the Mustangs will travel to Wyandotte to take on Roosevelt High School, located at 540 Eureka Road. The host Bears sport an 8-1 record and feature a high-powered option offense that's outscored its opponents 268-106 during the season. Roosevelt won the Wolverine "A" Conference title for the first time in school history this fall, but experts believe the Western Lakes Activities Association is much stronger from top to bottom. The Mustangs placed third in the WLA Western Division and sixth in the conference.

Going to Wyandotte?

Both programs struggled to a 4-5 record in 1989, but rebounded this season thanks in part to a pair of talented juniors. For Northville, it's quarterback Ryan Huzjak (1,247 yards passing, 618 yards rushing), and for Roosevelt it's tailback Joe Alfano (over 1,000 yard rushing, 21 touchdowns).

Board OKs many cuts in budget

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A $3.4-million 1991 budget, hinging in part on a Nov. 6 fire millage vote, was adopted Monday by the township board.

The board agreed with a township finance committee's recommendation to chop more than $250,000 from an August preliminary budget proposal. Thirty-three line-item reductions spanning 12 administrative and departmental categories were included in the cuts.

The board's action guarantees a balanced 1991 budget by combining projected revenues of $3.3 million with a present $186,149 fund balance.

Under the adopted budget, the township will operate in 1991 with a $65,066 fund balance.

Board members passed a resolution branding the new budget an "interim" document. The interim budget satisfies state budget deadline requirements and allows the township to modify the budget should voters approve a .33-mill fire millage Nov. 6, Supervisor Georgina Goss said.

The township board will officially adopt the 1991 budget Nov. 8 after a 7 p.m. public hearing.

The interim budget does not antcipate a fire millage victory. Without the fire millage, the fire department will be funded completely through the general fund.

If the fire millage is approved, approximately $130,000 in additional revenues will be generated.

Funds freed by passage of the fire millage will be directed to areas that suffered cuts, including the fire department, Goss said.

The trimming process hit some departments harder than others.

The police department recorded an $87,785 loss from its $1.6-million 1991 request. The department will forgo installation of a $50,000 communications system and may add one new officer in 1991 — as opposed to a request for two officers.

Township contributions to the Northville Public Library were $43,277 less than requested by library Director Pat Orr. Orr had asked for additional funding to allow the library to remain open on Saturdays throughout the summer, but her plan was not well-received by officials in either the township or city.

The city also slashed $26,749 from Orr's proposed budget.

Other losers in the budget-cutting process included residents who live

Cutters braced for a recession

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

The township budget review committee proposed cuts in 33 budget areas for 1991, but the group's collective eye was focused squarely on the future.

Treasurer and review chairperson Betty Lennox said the committee compiled nine recommendations to help guide the township through a possible economic downturn in 1992.

"Our concern is for 1992 when revenues do have to meet expenditures," she said, referring to a drop from a $186,149 fund balance in 1990 to a $65,066 fund balance in 1991.

The lack of budgetary leeway will become more troubling because rollbacks in property taxes will limit township revenues, Lennox said.

Lennox and fellow budget review committee members Wes Henrikson, John Sassaman and Frank St. Louis targeted an increased fund balance as a major player in maintaining township financial solvency.

The committee recommended that "the fund balance of the combined General, Police and Fire funds should be brought as close to 5 percent of 1991 expenditures of these funds as possible. For 1992 and beyond the fund balance should be a minimum of 5 percent with a target of 10 percent to 15 percent of that current year's expenditures.

Treasurer Betty Lennox

"This level of fund balance will facilitate cash flow operations and be available for unforeseen economic downturns," the committee said.

Next year's fund balance represents 1.9 percent of police, fire and general fund expenditures.

The committee also asked the township board to consider eight additional recommendations. Those recommendations include:

● Closer monitoring of attorney and contract services. The township has budgeted more than $180,000 for legal fees in 1991.

Foreign substance used in fire

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Laboratory tests have determined that a chemical found on the floor of Tiffany Art Glass after a fire gutted the store Sept. 29 was not one used in the store.

Floor samples containing the substance were sent to the State Police crime laboratory on Seven Mile Road. The substance appeared to be located at the origin of the fire.

While the State Police lab could not determine the exact type of substance found, Fire Chief Jim Allen said, "it was something that burned very well."

The substance found was foreign to the business as far as investigators can determine. "We could not match it with the chemicals normally used by the business," Police Det. Sgt. David Fendelet said.

City police and fire officials are still investigating the possibility that the fire which gutted the 121 E. Main St. store was deliberately set. "It's still a suspicious fire," Allen said. "It could be accidental but someone's got to explain how it got started, when it got started."

The fire, which also closed Holloway's Old Fashion Bakery downstairs (see related story), was first reported about 7:40 a.m. when an explosion blew out the windows of the second-story shop.

Fire officials have been unable to determine a cause. "We're not at a dead end, but we don't have a lot of leads," Allen said. "We're still in the process of interviewing people."

The state fire marshal has completed a report on the fire, and forwarded it to the city police department, but police would not release its findings because of their own ongoing investigation. "It's really being handled at this point by the local police, fire department, and the insurance companies," Allen said.

The insurance companies represent building owner Joe Spagnuolo, Tiffany Art Glass owner John Zawadzki, and bakery owner Rich Holloway.

on or near 13.4 miles of township-maintained gravel and dirt roads.

The budget review committee recommended $27,500 in road maintenance cuts that would have paid for two applications of palliatives — oils and chemicals that are spread over gravel roads to reduce dust.

Additional victims of the budget review committee included an $18,000 elections machine; a $16,000 left-turn apron to be built on the south side of Six Mile Road in front of township hall; and $6,297 cuts in township legislative legal fees.

All told, cuts approved by the board totaled $251,215. Goss said expected fireworks from the board over the cuts did not materialize because of the thoroughness of the review committee, which was headed by Treasurer Betty Lennox and included township residents

Wes Henrikson, Frank St. Louis and John Sassaman.

"The board knew we had to take a hard line," Goss said. "There was nothing else we could do."

Board bemoans tax villain image

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Monday's township budget review session was punctuated by one recurring theme: the idea that the township is unfairly blamed for assessment hikes and property tax increases.

Board members and budget review committee members alike continually harped about the way the public perceives the township.

The township serves as a semi-annual tax collection agent for itself, the county and the school district. Officials feel residents blame the township for tax woes, even though the township portion of the tax bill is relatively slight.

"I think we have to stress more that we take (only) so much of the pie," said budget review member Wes Henrikson. "The dollars we take in and the way we use them is very fine."

"We have to communicate to taxpayers that only about 9 percent of their tax bill stays with the township," Treasurer Betty Lennox said. Trustee Donald Williams was more blunt.

"I don't think one out of ten understands what the tax bill (means)," he said. "They just write one check and (complain)."

Finance Director James Graham's figures indicate that $85 of every $1,000 collected in taxes is earmarked for the township. Public school funding accounts for $676 of the bill and county collections comprise the other $239.

Graham also compared millage rates for surrounding communities. According to his figures, Northville Township's millage rate is lower than rates levied by Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Novi, Northville City, Livonia, Redford Township and Canton Township.

Graham described a 1990 tax breakdown scenario on a house with a cash value of $200,000 in Northville Township.

The total tax bill in such a case would be $5,037, Graham said. The portion owed the Northville School District would amount to $3,406. Wayne County's share of the bill would be $1,202, with the remaining $429 owed the township.

"Township government is the most value-laden government there is," said Trustee James Nowka. "It's where you get the most bang for your buck."

Officials do not have the answer on how to improve their public relations image. A change in the billing process may be on the horizon, though.

"Some of the (budget review) committee members thought that if we made taxpayers write three checks to the township (for taxes owed the township, public school district and Wayne County) it would help educate them," Lennox said.

Finance Committee members (from left) Wes Henrikson, Frank St. Louis and John Sassaman discuss budget cuts with the township board Monday

Future concerns budget group

- A charge by the fire department for service calls.
- Review of township employee benefit packages to search for savings in life insurance and medical and dental coverage.
- Preparation of a five-year capital improvement plan.
- Closer scrutiny of purchases over $1,000.
- Increased communication between department heads and Finance Director James Graham when expenses exceed budgeted amount for line items.

- A written analysis of the township's financial condition to the board on a quarterly basis.
- A city and township committee should review non-union shared services salaries and salary increases as compared with city and township non-union salaries.

Many of the recommendations were well-received by board members. Of special interest was a perceived need to cut back on attorney and consulting fees.

Trustee James Nowka said the township should consider hiring a full-time, in-house attorney.

"If the space were here, I think (it would be) one of the top things on my agenda," he said.

Trustee Richard Allen said the various township boards and commissions should use more discretion before shooting questions off to township attorneys.

"I think one area I'm in (planning commission) tends to get a little carried away with legal opinions," he said.

The board also promised to look into ways to reduce employee benefit costs.

Henrikson said a review of employee benefits revealed that the township was paying "up to 42 percent (of a salary) for fringe benefits."

Robber rifles, ransacks Ridge Road residence

Eight rifles, a videocassette recorder and a television were stolen from a Ridge Road residence Oct. 27, township police said.

Police said a door to the home was kicked in and two rooms ransacked sometime between 8:30 a.m. and 1:10 p.m. Police said a gun cabinet in a master bedroom was broken into and thieves stole two .16-gauge shotguns, a .22-caliber semi-automatic rifle, two .12-gauge shotguns, a 7-millimeter rifle, a .35-caliber shotgun, and a .30-06 rifle, as well as a rifle scope.

Also stolen were a television and video cassette recorder, police said. The missing items were valued at $3,605.

STUDENT'S POSSESSIONS LOST: A 14-year-old Meads Mill student's possessions reportedly were damaged by a knife-wielding fellow student Oct. 24. Township police said the 14-year-old was sitting on a bench in front of the middle school at 3:15 p.m. when another student sat next to him.

According to police reports, the second student was playing with a jackknife and asked the victim if he wanted a hole cut in a nylon gym bag. The victim reportedly said no, but the student with the knife proceeded to stick the knife in the bag.

The boy then asked the victim if he wanted a hole in his coat. The victim again said no, but the suspect grabbed the boy's denim jacket coat and drove the knife through the folds of the left sleeve.

The victim then left to go to a friend's house, police said.

The suspect did not make any direct knife threats against the 14-year-old, police said. Police are attempting to contact the second youth. The case remains open.

CORVETTE RECOVERED: A red Corvette stolen from a Cady Street parking lot Oct. 23 was found stripped two days later in Farmington Hills, according to city police reports. The $24,000 corvette was found Oct. 25 in the parking lot of the Trinity Episcopal Church, 26880 La Muera.

DEER LOSTS IN COLLISION: Township police said a Brighton man struck and killed a whitetail deer while driving west on Seven Mile east of Napier at 11 a.m. Oct. 23. The man was not injured in the incident.

LARCENY FROM RESIDENCE: Cash and a watch reportedly were stolen from the purse of a Sunnydale Lane resident sometime between 7 p.m. Oct. 6 and 1 p.m. Oct. 7. The victim said $351 in cash and a $1,000 watch may have been stolen during a party at the residence.

MAILBOX STOLEN: A mailbox and wood post were reported stolen from a residence on Old Bedford Road late Oct. 22 or early Oct. 23, township police said.

OUIL: A 27-year-old Ypsilanti man was arrested and charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol Oct. 24 at 2:12 a.m., township police said. The man was arrested near the intersection of Six Mile and Haggerty, police said.

OUIL: A 17-year-old Northville man was arrested and charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol Oct. 26 at 2:14 a.m. Police arrested the man after he struck a curb near the Innsbrook and Seven Mile intersection. The man also was charged with driving with a suspended license, police said.

ATTEMPTED AUTO THEFT AT MEIJER: A Meijer employee told township police that someone attempted to steal her 1984 Pontiac Sunbird while it was parked in the 20401 Haggerty Lot between 11 p.m. Oct. 27 and 6 a.m. Oct. 28. The Meijer employee told police a window in the vehicle was smashed and the steering column was broken.

OUIL IN CITY: City police arrested a 48-year-old South Lyon woman for drunk driving Oct. 28 after watching her car skid into an intersection. According to the city police report, an officer on Eight Mile Road saw the westbound driver brake suddenly for a red light at Taft Road, and slide sideways into the intersection. The driver then reportedly straightened the vehicle out and continued west before being pulled over.

MALICIOUS DESTRUCTION: The front window of a Fairbrook Court home was broken sometime between 11 p.m. Oct. 23 and 7:45 a.m. Oct. 24, according to city police reports. The damage was estimated at $50. Police could not find the instrument used to break the window at the scene.

FOUND BICYCLE: A boy's bike was found by city police on Ford Field Oct. 27. An unknown female had told the police of the bike beforehand. Anyone wishing to claim it is asked to call city police at 349-1234 with a more complete description.

ARSON INVESTIGATION: Northville city police are still seeking information on the early-morning fire that gutted Tiffany Art Glass, 121 E. Main St. on Saturday, Sept. 29. Fire officials consider the blaze suspicious and have been unable to determine a cause. Anyone with information on the fire, or who observed suspicious activity near the Main Street store that morning, is asked to call Fire Chief Jim Allen at Allen Monuments, 349-0770, or Det. Sgt. David Fendeleit at the city police station, 349-1280.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Hollway's Bakery won't reopen after damage

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville shoppers have one less option for morning doughnuts and fresh-baked bread, as the owner of a Northville store has decided to close its doors.

Hollway's Old Fashion Bakery, 123 E. Main St., will not reopen after being forced to close by the fire that gutted Tiffany Art Glass Sept. 29.

"We're not going to reopen," owner Rich Hollway said. "I'm done now. We've had plans of going up north, and this really forced our hand."

"We're not going to reopen . . . I'm done now. We've had plans of going up north, and this really forced our hand."

RICH HOLLOWAY
Bakery owner

Hollway said he plans to open a new shop north of Alpena. The family will build a home on land they own in Onaway, and open a bakery in Rogers City, at 141 W. Erie St. The decision may mark the end of a 20-year tradition of bakeries at the Northville site. The former tenant, Bertha Foltyn, started her own bakery at 123 E. Main St. in 1971. She closed it after a fire gutted the store in 1980.

Hollway opened his own bakery there shortly afterward. According to a store employee, the smell of smoke from the 1970 fire lingered in the bakery until shortly before this year's fire broke out in Tiffany Art Glass upstairs.

Hollway said the fire could not have come at a worse time, despite his previous plans to close the store. "I really needed October, November and December, because those are the three prime months for a bakery," he said.

"We've been planning on doing something, but we weren't planning on doing it this quick. Maybe it's fate."

Because of smoke and water damage from the fire, the state health department ordered Hollway to throw out all his food supplies, boxes and bags. He has since cleared all his equipment out of the store as well.

Hollway lives in Northville Township with wife, Jan, and their two sons, Charlie, 14, and Doug, 12. The couple both worked at the bakery.

He has called Northville home for more than 25 years, and admitted that moving would be difficult. "I was on the city fire department for fifteen years, and I've been on the township for nine," he said. "Sure it's going to be hard; it'll be hard on the boys, too."

Building owner Joe Spagnuolo said he has not decided on a new tenant for the store, but he is looking for a business that differs from current downtown stores.

Spagnuolo said that estimates on the damage to the building have ranged between $30,000-$100,000.

4 GOOD REASONS TO VOTE YES FOR METRO AIRPORT BOND ISSUE

- 1. IT DOESN'T COST TAXPAYERS. THE AIRLINES PAY THE BILL

Don't be confused by ballot language. Even though this referendum is on the Wayne County Ballot, the airlines at Metro are responsible for paying all these bonds without ANY cost to taxpayers. The issue will permit $100 million worth of improvements to make Metro a safer, more efficient and more convenient airport.
- 2. A YES VOTE PROTECTS 50,000 JOBS

Metro Airport provides more jobs than six Saturn plants would. Passage of the bond issue will create 20,000 more airport-related jobs.
- 3. METRO IS OUTDATED

When construction began on Metropolitan Airport in the 1950s, no one dreamed air travel would become as important to business and vacation travel as it has. Metro now serves 14 MILLION PASSENGERS per year -- and the demand for air travel is growing. The bond issue will provide more parking and a safer, more convenient airport.
- 4. METRO WILL GET QUIETER AND QUIETER

Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara has begun a campaign to make Metro Airport quieter. This bond issue will also pay for noise abatement measures.

Blue Heron home burned; stray torch sparks blamed

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Stray sparks from a worker's cutting torch ignited the wall of a partially completed residence in the Blue Heron Pointe subdivision Monday afternoon, causing an estimated $25,000 in damages.

Assistant Township Fire Chief Rick Rosselle said the fire started after a construction worker used an oxy-acetylene torch in the basement of the northern-most residence on the west side of the Beck Road development.

The fire was ruled accidental, Rosselle said.

"A hot spark jumped off where he was cutting and must have caught some trash outside or inside the (north) wall," he said. "The flames ran right up the outside wall, caught an overhang on the second floor and went back inside."

The north end of the building's roof was ablaze when firefighters reached the scene, Rosselle said. He said firewalls were not in place and the building was susceptible to more extensive damage.

"The whole roof would have been completely gone within two or three more minutes (after firefighters arrived)," he said.

Dennis Park, president of Blue Heron Construction, said the home has been sold to a Northville family and was due to be completed "prior to Christmas."

He said the damaged residence was priced in "the $300,000-$400,000 range."

"It appears the damage is fairly minor," Park said. "It should be repaired relatively soon."

Park complimented the fire department.

"They did a very commendable job," he said. "They were here in a hurry."

The township's Fire Station No. 2 is located on Seven Mile between Beck and Ridge, less than a mile from the Blue Heron blaze.

No injuries were reported in the fire.

A spark from a cutting torch was blamed for the fire, which caused about $25,000 damage

Novi Dental Center
A. Allen Tuchklaper
D.D.S.

WHY REPLACE MISSING TEETH?

Why is it so essential that missing teeth be replaced, even if they are in a part of the mouth that doesn't show? For starters, the teeth on either side of the space may drift into the space and close it. This is unhealthy, since the roots of our teeth are designed to absorb stress in a vertical direction. When a tooth tilts, it is no longer taking the stress the way nature intended. The result may be periodontal pockets (separation between gum and teeth) causing food traps, gum disease and decay. This will require further dental treatment and, possibly, premature loss of these additional teeth. Also there is the problem of the tooth directly above or below the space. Without the bite pressure on it, it may move upward or downward into the open space, causing a problem of tripping the teeth as you move the jaw from side to side. This will tend to loosen the adjoining teeth and lead to further lost teeth. In a nutshell, if you have missing teeth, they should be replaced as soon as possible to prevent the "Domino Effect" of further tooth loss.

Parents and educators discuss health model

Conference provides information

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

A conference at Madonna College on the Michigan Health Model answered the questions and calmed the fears of many concerned parents, and provided a forum for a few to lobby against the model.

An estimated 30 of the approximately 150 in attendance were from the Northville Public School District, said Dolly McMaster, assistant superintendent for instructional services.

Intended to answer questions for concerned parents and educators, the annual conference was sponsored by the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency (RESA) on Oct. 25.

But a few parents attended the forum to express dissatisfaction with the model, organizers said.

"Some sections of people were there and really wanted more information," said Lynda Baca, a mother of students in the Northville school district who attended the conference.

"Some people were there with preconceived notions," said Baca, who is also a member of the Northville Parent Teacher Association/Parent Teacher Student Coordinating Council.

A few people attempted to distribute anti-Michigan Model literature, but because they did not have permission they were asked to stop, said Judy Cavell, a health educator for RESA.

But, in general, the conference ran smoothly, Cavell said.

"People behaved relatively civilly," Cavell said. "It went smoother than we had anticipated it would. I had expected more disruption."

One protestor was asked to leave because she continued to distribute flyers after having been asked to stop, Cavell said.

The conference was divided into three seminars. Each person could attend two. An overview of the health model, a discussion of the "problem solving with people" portion of the model, and a discussion of homework strategies for parents were seminar topics.

"Probably three or four in each session had their minds made up that it was bad," Cavell said. "The kinds of questions they asked, and the kinds of things they said, were very negative."

"Those people were obviously there to lobby (against the model)," But the idea behind the conference was to provide information to parents with questions, not to debate the health model, Cavell said.

"We were there to give people the information that they had asked for," Cavell said.

Time was a problem for people who wanted to ask questions at the end of each session, Cavell said. The frustration was compounded for some parents who felt the sessions could have been more informative with fewer comments by opponents of the model.

"When they spoke out in class they kind of hung themselves," Cavell said. "A lot of parents are concerned that today it's the Michigan Model, tomorrow it will be burning books."

Baca attended the session about the "problem solving with people" portion of the Michigan Model.

The activity is often criticized for teaching decision-making techniques rather than teaching that absolute rights and wrongs exist. But Baca said she learned the exercise stresses traditional family values.

A list of traditional values like honesty, cooperation, self-reliance, responsibility and respect for property was distributed explaining that these are some of the values the exercise attempts to stress to children.

"Kids are exposed to so much, so early, this really reinforces family values and traditional values," Baca said. "If there is a family who objects to these kinds of things then they're out-of-step with the rest of the community."

The exercise helps her reinforce what she is teaching her children at home, and gives teachers tools for dealing with problems the students bring to school, Baca said.

"I fail to see where the controversy occurs," Baca said. "Frankly, I'm really disappointed that in Northville there is controversy about health education."

The health model, and specifically the problem solving with people exercise, uses traditional ideas used for years in teaching decision-making skills, said Superintendent George Bell.

"We're teaching the same thing I taught as a marching band teacher 25 years ago: make rational decisions," Bell said.

A major criticism of the model is that its relaxation techniques are derived from New Age and Eastern religion.

A "mini-vacation" exercise asks students to visualize a time when they were happy or relaxed, and encourages them to remember the feeling and carry it throughout the day.

This visualization activity is not derived from an Eastern religion, Cavell said.

"Visualization is just another word for imagination," she said, and it is not at all dangerous.

The model is updated every year, and changed if items that could be considered offensive is found in the material, Cavell said.

Local group opposed to model plan

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Increased illiteracy, rising suicide rates and her daughter's conversion to Buddhism are the fault of affective teaching methods like the Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health, said Jolene McGreevy, a concerned parent and researcher of the model.

McGreevy spoke to about 80 parents at a meeting of Family First held at Grand River Baptist Church of Livonia Tuesday.

The problems caused by the model are consciously caused by what Family First board member Marion Dalton called "the movers and the shakers."

"They want to bring down the United States of America," Dalton said.

McGreevy, mother of five, said the Michigan health model is the offspring of 20 years of research done in the field of affective teaching methods, or what she called the teaching of a "mental process."

McGreevy believes that problem-solving techniques and relaxation exercises take up too much time during the school day.

"Academics have been swept into this little bitty corner," she said.

"(Relaxation techniques and problem-solving) is not what I sent my child to school for. I didn't send them to become psychics."

And she said the techniques ultimately fail in their goal of reducing stress and raising self-esteem.

"Apparently our children are supposedly under great stress," McGreevy said. "I do not understand what being put in a trance does for self-esteem."

She said examples of family used by the model are generally negative and force children to criticize their parents.

Especially of concern to McGreevy is the definition of family, used by the health model, which says family members are people you care about, without mentioning blood or marital ties.

She believes children could be led to believe that their school friends and even fellow gang members are part of their family. This line of reasoning could even lead young people to be more susceptible to cults, she said.

"Charles Manson did it... the Hare Krishna has done it," McGreevy said.

Despite state and district denials that the model contains hypnosis techniques, McGreevy believes the relaxation techniques are blatantly hypnotizing students.

"The state keeps saying there's no meditation in the Michigan Model because meditation is religious, it's Hindu," McGreevy said.

She said often unknowing teachers are accessing a student's subconscious mind, which is more susceptible to suggestion than the conscious mind.

"(The subconscious) cannot tell the difference between the truth and a lie," she said. Accessing a student's subconscious is a civil rights violation, she said.

She does agree with proponents of the health model on one point.

"If you want to know what your child is being taught, then you should sit down and read... It takes time, but it's worth it," McGreevy said.

The model exposed her children to problems and ideas they otherwise would not have faced, McGreevy said.

"I really didn't want my children to be exposed to every other problem of every other child in their class," she said. "It didn't matter that my children had two parents at home and I stayed home. I didn't work."

She recommends approaching the school board and school administrators with concerns, but to be prepared for a negative reaction.

"You're going to be labeled a fundamentalist pressure group," she said.

She warned that her experience with her own school was less than positive.

"I didn't even know there were any fundamentalist pressure groups," she said.

But Northville parents should feel comfortable addressing the district with concerns, said Superintendent George Bell.

"Certainly we are open to concerns from the parents of any of the children in the school district," he said.

"Our openness and availability is one of the things people praise in the Northville School District, and it's one of the strengths of the district in my mind."

Health model info available

Concerned parents have had several opportunities to vent their frustrations and learn a few things about the Michigan health model this week, but it's not over yet.

The Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education has been the focus of attention at three meetings including a forum tonight.

"There's a lot of misinformation out there (about the health model)," said Margaret Surdu, president of the Northville Parent Teacher Association/Parent Teacher Student Association Coordinating Council.

Concerned parents who have questions still have several options to answer their questions and voice their concerns.

The Michigan Model manuals used by teachers at each grade level may be studied by concerned parents.

Superintendent George Bell has instructed principals of all elementary and middle schools to permit parents to check out the manuals to review at home. The manuals cannot be checked out until after the school day has ended, and they must be returned at the beginning of the next school day. Parents will be permitted to check out the manuals over a weekend.

Purchase of a manual is available for $25 through the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency.

Tonight's forum will also discuss the model. Representatives from Northville Public Schools will not be in attendance.

The forum is sponsored by a group "Parents Against Michigan Model" according to a flyer advertising the meeting, and will be held in the Northville First United Methodist Church at 777 W. Eight Mile Road at 7:30 p.m.

On Nov. 14, Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency will sponsor an additional informational conference at Harper Woods High School in Dearborn. The conference will be similar to the conference held recently at Madonna College (see related article), and is free of charge. Register by calling 467-1538.

FOOD LOVER'S DIET

To introduce a new approach to dieting, free diet pills were given to 50 people. With The Omicron Diet, one man lost 14 pounds in 5 days and one woman lost 18 pounds in 10 days. The average weight loss was over a pound a day for women and over 2 pounds a day for men. The Omicron Diet is a revolutionary new concept for unbelievably fast weight loss developed and clinically proven by National Dietary Research of Washington, D.C. This significant breakthrough in metabolic weight control was made possible by the utilization of biological information overlooked by other diet programs. With a formulation of natural enzymes along with real food, you shed unwanted pounds extremely rapidly and safely.

Maintain your new weight forever without dieting!!!!!!

With the special enzyme formula Metabolase, it is now possible to reduce your usual weight by up to 10% or to maintain the weight loss after dieting, without changing your normal lifestyle or eating habits. Available through physicians since 1982, the enzyme formula is now available in pharmacies without a prescription. Start enjoying the foods you love to eat without fear of gaining weight. # Department part of Northville Northville 'quality of life'

RECORD: What difference will it make to the fire department if the millage does not pass? Will there be service reductions in some areas?

TOMS: We're going to have to look at what could happen. To continue the service that we now provide, we're going to have to rely on the general fund and the general fund will have to give us the minimal amount. We certainly would have to look at (cutting) the safety programs. Our emergency medical services could well go by the wayside.

We provide this service with a minimum cost to the township. I think we're running a good fire department and I don't think there's anybody in the area that runs one on less than we do and does what we do.

RECORD: Have any of the township money people told you that if the millage falls there will be cuts this year?

TOMS: They haven't actually come out and said this. We know that the belt-tightening will start. It's money that we've used for probably the last 10 years and has been renewed three times. In the last one, people were saying it was a 50-percent tax increase. Well, a 50-percent tax increase for the fire department — if you go from $36 to what, $45 or $50 — that's within reason.

I don't think people quite understand it and if you don't understand something you tend to vote against it. I think this is what happened to us. We still only lost by about 200 votes (actually 177) with people campaigning against us.

RECORD: Would you outline how the fire department operates? You have five full-time personnel and one of them is an administrative assistant, correct?

TOMS: That's correct. We have the fire chief, the assistant fire chief, and the two fire inspectors and these men are fire inspectors, they're emergency medical technicians, they're building inspectors and they're firefighters.

We operate on an eight-hour-day basis and after 5 p.m., we all operate just like the volunteers.

We do a good job. We haven't lost an occupied building in Northville Township in over 12 years. That's probably over 2,000 fires. We're probably going to have more emergency runs and more fires this year than we've ever had. Right now we're at 552 runs (in 1990) and by the end of the year it'll be over 700.

They keep building and bringing more people in here. When we first started out, we had 3,500 people in the township. Now we have close to 18,000.

RECORD: People say the property taxes collected from improved lots should be enough to pay for fire department operations.

TOMS: We run into the problem with the cost of fire equipment. We were operating on that .5 mill. To be honest, we thought that was going to continue. It had always been renewed.

RECORD: Some said you don't need an additional millage and you should operate from the general fund.

TOMS: You just can't continue to use old equipment like we do. Our three pumpers are 1960, 1967 and 1970. The newest one is 20 years old. Fire equipment is extremely expensive.

The .33 mill should bring in about $130,000. It will enable us to continue to provide the service we have in the past.

RECORD: (To Assistant Chief Roselle) Tell me how your volunteer system works.

ROSSELLE: We've got about 24 people that are on call. On medical runs, the emergency medical people are the only ones that respond. Injury accidents, everybody goes. There's no telling what is going to be there. House fires, car fires, any fire whatsoever, we pull a hook (send everyone) because we don't know how many are going to show up.

RECORD: What kind of response do you usually get from the volunteers?

ROSSELLE: We had 80- to 85-percent to (a large barn blaze earlier this month) . . . We had five people that weren't there out of 24. That was at 2 a.m. During the day, we run at about 50-percent (turnout) or less.

RECORD: (To firefighter Ron Lane) Tell me about the status of your proposed water rescue program.

Mill Race Matters

Mill Race Historic Village closed for the season on Sunday afternoon. Everyone will have one more opportunity to tour the buildings this year: on Sunday, Nov. 18 when the village will be open as part of the city Christmas Walk. Come to see the village buildings in their Christmas finery and stop to do a little shopping as well.

This week the Northville Historical Society would like to thank Brickscape and Spectrum Landscaping for the nice job of tree planting along the village's front border. Look for more landscaping changes to the village soon. Donations were received this week from Evangeline Harris; the society thanks her as well.

Rescue program could be hurt

LANE: They're building all these houses on these lakes . . . that really started off as gravel pits. You have a lot more kids running around; you have people swimming in there. We decided to start our own dive team, because right now we'd have to depend on the state police or the sheriff's department for a water rescue team.

You're talking about at least a half-hour to an hour before they could get here. We're going to start our water rescue program this winter and it will be for year-round rescues. From the time of an emergency call, we (certified divers) could be in the water — anywhere in the township — in 15 minutes.

If the millage doesn't pass, it could hurt.

RECORD: (To firefighter Guy Balok) What about the emergency medical service units? The First Responder program is a year old. Will it be affected?

BALOK: From last year, we've been able to go from a very basic life support unit to a unit that can supply early defibrillation and can provide people a 30-percent or better chance of survival.

Our ambulances have made a big difference because sometimes the private care providers cannot respond to the emergencies. There might be more patients at a scene than they can handle.

The system's gone from one ambulance at car accidents to two ambulances that can respond to any medical emergency. Our trucks are designed to support the needs of Northville Township residents.

I believe the First Responder would be in trouble (without the millage). It's not cheap to run. But with the lives we've helped, I think it's already paid for itself many times over.

RECORD: You also go around to schools and give fire safety programs.

BALOK: I do classes ranging from 20-90 kids and I've done probably 300 kids in 1990. The people that most often get injured in fires are young people or old people. We're trying to get the message out about fire safety.

RECORD: Any predictions on the outcome?

TOMS: As I said when we lost that last one, I thought our reputation was better than that. I think the people will realize we do give them good service at a reasonable cost.

I think they'll support it.

Maybury Madness

Over 1,000 kids and adults shared in the Halloween terror at "Maybury Madness," a haunted forest walk at Maybury State Park last Friday and Saturday. The walk, sponsored by Northville Community Recreation and the University of Michigan M-Care Health Centers, was a fund-raiser for Northville schools' Students Against Driving Drunk chapters. Several organiza-

Alexander, Faxon square off in Senate race

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

Republican Denise Alexander, an attorney and member of the Southfield City Council, is squaring off against 20-year incumbent Democrat Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills for the 15th District state Senate seat. The 15th District includes the City of Northville above Baseline Road.

Alexander recently discussed state issues with The Northville Record.

RECORD: What do you suggest for improving the funding and quality of our public schools?

ALEXANDER: Over the last several years we have seen the quality of education decline and seen a global economy develop. Our high school graduates are not meeting the needs of that economy. We're not training our children with enough of the math and science they need to succeed, and they are being passed through to the next grade when they are not ready. I support competency testing for students and teachers.

I am against forced consolidation of districts (Faxon's plan) because it is moving away from local control and toward state control of schools.

There are ways to bring more money into the schools (Alexander advocates budget cuts and elimination of ineffective or duplicate programs as a way to provide more money for education). School districts should be able to contract with each other to share facilities. Districts should not become too big—Detroit is an example of a district that's too big. It alienates people.

With further consolidation, some administrative costs that would be saved would be spent on transportation, additional teachers and other expenses.

In the state Senate's 15th District, which includes the City of Northville north of Baseline Road, 20-year incumbent Democrat Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills faces a challenger from Republican Denise Alexander, an attorney and member of the Southfield City Council.

Faxon recently discussed state issues with The Northville Record.

RECORD: What do you suggest for improving the funding and quality of our public schools?

FAXON: I have a very specific proposal in regards to reorganization of school districts. It would reduce the number of school districts from 564 to less than 250. It would be more effective because it would reduce some of the duplication. Under this plan, each district would be a size that makes it more competitive and comparable and it would also limit the amount of property taxes that can be imposed on residential property.

Basically, reorganization is designed to bring Michigan into the 21st century and offer a full high school program. As it is there are well over 100 districts that are not K-12.

The area in my district that would be affected would be the Clarenceville district, where they (currently) pay one-third more in property taxes than neighboring school districts.

RECORD: What can be done to slow down or reduce property taxes?

FAXON: I've proposed a 2-percent cap on property taxes so they can't exceed more than people (can afford). That would be made up by an increase in the sales tax. There would have to be a clear trade-off so there is no disruption in the municipal balance.

Also, the school district reorganization would help the property tax problem) by limiting the amount of tax that can be levied.

RECORD: What can our government do to clean and protect our environment?

FAXON: I am a supporter of the "polluters pay" environmental legislation (which forces the source of contamination to pay for cleanup). The major financial burden for cleanup would go to polluters.

We do what we can to prevent industry from polluting (in the first place). They should be well-advised before they begin something. They should take precautionary steps to prevent contamination.

RECORD: Would you support le-

THE GENERAL ELECTION

Alexander eyes Senate

RECORD: What can be done to slow down or reduce property taxes?

ALEXANDER: People are just taxed out, but there is no attempt to cut government spending. It's such a monumental task to say we will go in and slash across the board. We need to go one department at a time and analyze cost effectiveness and start consolidating.

We are getting programs (through the government) that already exist through private-sector programs. Also, services are duplicated in different programs. There is no real research to see if programs need to be continued. We can't afford to have money spent that way.

People resent that when their incomes go down they have to cut things they want but don't need, yet the government is asking those citizens — who are making cuts in their own lives — to fund a list of wants.

RECORD: What can our government do to clean and protect our environment?

ALEXANDER: I'm proud that Southfield was the first Oakland County community to start curbside recycling. (Editor's note: Actually, the Village of Holly was first.)

There is so much technology. If we create toxic products, we should be able to develop ways to neutralize or break down those products.

We also need to go back to things that are reusable. I would promote research and development that would make it efficient and profitable to recycle our waste. And we need to encourage people. . . We used to do a lot more dishes, use a lot more glass.

RECORD: Would you support legislation outlawing or restricting a woman's right to an abortion?

ALEXANDER: No. I am pro-choice. My opponent and I do not differ on this issue.

RECORD: How can the state improve our business climate?

ALEXANDER: We need to change the way we tax small businesses — with a realistic tax based on profit. So many small businesses go out of business because the taxes are so burdensome.

The unemployment rate is tied with the business climate. Our unemployment rate is down, but we've also lost two congressional seats. What does that tell you? People have left. We have lost some of our tremendous unemployment to other states.

What is Michigan's greatest resource? Accessibility. We should expand this area as a mass distribution factor. We should improve our position relative to other states.

RECORD: What is your stand on no-knock raids of suspected drug houses as a way of fighting the drug problem?

ALEXANDER: I support it, but I don't provide it. It needs strong legislative review because there's abuse in everything. I would like to implement it with a period of judicial review.

There is a point where liberty and restraint come together and work together. Criminal justice, during the '60s and '70s, moved to the side of liberty. Now it's moving back. We have to be sure it doesn't go too far. My goal is to find the right balance and make it stick.

RECORD: What is your proudest accomplishment?

ALEXANDER: I've planted a lot of seeds. In Southfield I see a lot of those seeds I've planted that have grown. I don't have to take credit for it for them to grow.

I'm also proud to have earned the credibility I've gained. I was recently named one of Crain's '90 for the '90s."

Faxon talks specifics

gislation outlawing or restricting a woman's right to an abortion?

FAXON: No. Absolutely not. I am completely, 100-percent pro-choice. The government should be out of the business of telling people what to do in their private lives.

RECORD: How can the state improve our business climate?

FAXON: I'm the endorsement of the small business association. Small business is really beefing up our commerce, and we can do things to help. Michigan's future will be in high-tech companies, and small businesses have the greatest potential.

The overall business climate has to do with quality-of-life issues. The tax climate is fair. As a state we've done a lot to attract businesses. Things are steadily improving.

RECORD: What is your stand on no-knock raids of suspected drug houses as a way of fighting the drug problem?

FAXON: I am opposed to invasion of homes because of mistakes made in the past. It is appropriate for police to identify themselves.

Police have, in the past, gone into wrong houses or hotel rooms during drug raids. It can give someone a heart attack.

People ought to have a right to privacy. (I say we) don't give up all rights. Privacy in our homes is a very basic right.

RECORD: Are there other specific accomplishments you'd like to mention?

FAXON: I feel very strongly about my ability to return dollars to roads. Right now (my work has led to) Twelve Mile Road being widened between Greenfield and Southfield, and (now I'm at work on) the Haggerty Connector.

I just think my experience has been helpful in getting things done.

Bullard seeks return to Lansing

State Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Highland, is running for re-election to his seat representing the 60th District, which includes Northville north of Baseline Road. He recently discussed issues with The Northville Record.

RECORD: What would you propose to change school financing in Michigan?

BULLARD: First of all, you're going to have to put more money into the system. Additional funds for K-12 system would help eliminate or lessen the disparity between rich and poor districts.

Target more of it to the poorer school districts, thereby easing the disparity top to bottom. The voters, over and over, have rejected an increase in the sales tax so it would amount to earmarking more of the state general fund to education. This will leave the rest of the budget to fight over what's left.

I think we should make K-12 education the number one priority of the state budget.

RECORD: Are property taxes too high and what would you favor as a solution?

BULLARD: I favor cutting property taxes, and have since supporting the Tisch Initiative 12 years ago.

When property taxes are cut I believe any deficiency should be made up by the state.

The House of Representatives tried unsuccessfully to have the Headlee Initiative considered. That measure, not to be confused with the Headlee Amendment to the state Constitution, would cut the property tax ratio by 5-25 percent by the end of the year, cutting it 5-40 percent next year and having every lost dollar from local government be made up by the state.

It would also give private citizens the right to sue to enforce the statute. The House was unsuccessful, however, because the liberal Democrats prevailed.

Instead advocated an expansion of the circuit breaker, something I ultimately voted for as better than nothing.

I think the Headlee Initiative is the best thing out there right now. It will go on the ballot in the fall of 1992. The legislature had a chance to put it on the ballot or enact it, but did not. I will support any reasonable way to cut property taxes.

I supported the Patterson/Anderson proposal which did not get enough signatures to go on the ballot.

RECORD: Give us your views on gun control and waiting periods for purchasing a firearm.

BULLARD: All you really have to do is enforce the present laws. The U.S. Congress will likely enact a 7-day waiting period for handgun purchases.

I would support that measure. Waiting seven days so we can check out your criminal record or mental health history.

I'd support the waiting period but as far as gun control I think we can do it by enforcing the existing laws.

RECORD: Would you vote for a constitutional amendment prohibi-

Geake and McDonald in tough state Senate race

By BOB NEEDHAM
Editor

State Sen. R. Robert Geake represents all of Northville Township and the City of Northville south of Baseline Road. He is running against Patrick McDonald to be returned to his seat.

RECORD: If you had a magic wand you could wave and say, "This is what needs to happen with school finance in the State of Michigan," what would you do?

GEAKE: I'd decrease our reliance on property tax and increase the state general fund share for public school finance.

RECORD: And where would you get the general fund money from?

GEAKE: By decreasing our commitment to the Department of Corrections and the Department of Social Service.

RECORD: Decrease the commitment in what way?

GEAKE: In social services, we can save a lot of money by phasing out the general-assistance program for able-bodied people. In corrections we can divert people we are now sending to prison into intensive probation and parole, community work programs, and home incarceration through the electronic tether program.

RECORD: For what sorts of offenses?

GEAKE: We could use this — we are starting to, we have already got under way — for most offenders who are not a danger to society through the commission of violent crimes.

RECORD: Do you see this kind of thing expanding in the coming years?

GEAKE: It has to. We can no longer afford to build new prisons. Michigan's been building a new 500-bed prison about every six months, and we can't afford to operate that way. As fast as we build them, they fill.

RECORD: OK. Once we have decreased the reliance on local property taxes for school finance, we've got more from the general fund, do we need to do anything else at the state level to improve the quality of education?

GEAKE: My basic philosophy is that local school boards should determine the curriculum and the standards for local schools. And I have generally been an opponent of state-mandated requirements for local school systems.

However, we should do whatever possible to promote competition between schools, so I support allowing parents to choose what school they send their children to, within the school district that they reside in.

RECORD: Could you talk a little more, philosophically, about the school boards determining the curriculum, as opposed to a core? Why do you like the local aspect?

GEAKE: Because even in today's society, with (mass) communications and transportation, it's not realistic to sit in Lansing and say that we should have the same standards in, say, the City of Detroit as we might have in the rural Upper Peninsula.

I'm not only referring to academic standards, but disciplinary standards, too. Some behavior is commonplace and commonly overlooked in our inner-city schools, that they would not stand for in some of the suburban schools. But some people have said we ought to have a statewide standard of under what circumstances a child can be sent to the principal, or suspended, and I've always believed local school boards should make those decisions.

RECORD: You brought up the Department of Corrections. Of course that's a concern to Northville people, with the prisons on Five Mile Road. The Department of Mental Health is perhaps a special concern to local people because of the hospital. What's your overall feeling of the way those departments are operating? Are they efficient; are they getting the job done?

GEAKE: I think the Department of Mental Health is well-run, but suffers from limited financial resources. I support the gradual phasing-out of large psychiatric hospitals, as well as institutions for the mentally retarded.

One of my goals is to see Northville State Hospital completely phased out in the next 10 years.

RECORD: Do you think that will happen?

GEAKE: I think it's entirely possible.

RECORD: And replace with group homes? . . .

GEAKE: Group homes, but also purchase of inpatient psychiatric care from private hospitals.

GEAKE: Yes.

RECORD: Are there, do you think, people still going to psychiatric hospitals who could be served with something less intensive?

GEAKE: No, no. Persons being admitted now to inpatient care are persons who really are, at least in the short term, unable to function in the outside world. Frequently, with modern medicine and psychotherapy, they don't have to stay very long.

RECORD: And we believe you would also like to see more privatization in corrections.

GEAKE: Yes. I introduced legislation several years ago to permit counties to contract with private corporations to build and operate jails.

RECORD: What is the climate for that kind of thinking at the state?

GEAKE: Well, the Republicans like it, but the Democrats, who are closer to the unions, have been inconsistent.

RECORD: Do you think we'll see more of it?

GEAKE: I think we'll have to, because the states that have gone with this system have been able to save so much money.

RECORD: We're hearing a lot of shifting of budget priorities that you'd like to see.

GEAKE: Yeah, and as vice chairman of the appropriations committee, we have moved a little bit in that direction every year.

RECORD: What do you think of the business climate in the state as a whole right now? How "good" is it, and . . .

GEAKE: Well, there's been a lot of research on that subject, and it indicates — the research is pretty convincing — that our business climate is not good compared to other northern industrial states, and very poor compared to the United States as a whole.

RECORD: Why don't we hear more about that? Michigan's unemployment is considerably higher than the rest of the nation, yet it doesn't seem to be a real pressing issue.

GEAKE: I guess the gubernatorial campaigns have tended to focus on education, crime, property-tax relief . . . but all these things are related to the business climate.

RECORD: How would you improve the business climate?

GEAKE: Reduce taxes, both property taxes and the single-business tax.

RECORD: Reduce the single-business tax?

GEAKE: Yes, and make it a tax on profits rather than simply a business-activity tax as it is now. I would reform workers compensation and unemployment compensation.

RECORD: In what direction?

GEAKE: By making it more difficult for people to collect who don't really need that protection.

RECORD: Do you think there's a lot of waste in those areas right now?

GEAKE: Yes. If we, for instance, were to go to a one-week — or, better yet, a two-week — waiting period, we could save a lot of money that way and people would make themselves get a job a lot quicker.

Also, there's a problem with product liability laws in Michigan, which are very liberal. They make it much more expensive to do business in this state than other states.

RECORD: Abortion, of course, has been and is likely to continue to be a topic of concern at the state level. Could you just state your position on the various issues?

GEAKE: I regard myself as pro-life in philosophy. I voted for the bill to ban Medicaid funding of abortion. I voted for the bill to restore parental consent for minors to get abortions.

RECORD: Would you like to see abortion outlawed, with or without exceptions?

GEAKE: Yes. I would support that.

RECORD: With exceptions?

GEAKE: The answer is without, and the reason is that any exceptions that we allow will become a loophole. For instance, young girls who want abortions will claim they were raped by their boyfriend, and simply (not) admit that they consented, and we would be back in a situation of tens of thousands of abortions because of the rape exclusion.

RECORD: When you look back, what do you consider some of your biggest accomplishments?

GEAKE: Certainly, my role in sponsoring part of the package, and cosponsoring the rest, for the Wayne County solvency. I sponsored two of the bills, including the one to raise the cigarette tax, which helped restore fiscal solvency to Wayne County.

I was also the sponsor of the so-called triplicate prescription bill, which makes it possible — for the first time for Michigan — to trace schedule II drugs. Those are drugs that are legally manufactured that are highly addictive. Until this bill passed, we were one of the leading states in the use and disappearance of schedule II drugs.

And then, I am also the sponsor of the budget bills for mental health and social services, which our committee has undertaken. It's extremely complex and requiring very delicate negotiations.

RECORD: What's on the agenda for the next four years if you win?

GEAKE: Certainly property-tax relief. Long overdue. More adequate funding of public education. Business environment reforms, we discussed that. Improvement in delivery of mental health services, both inpatient and outpatient. And increased contracting out of state services, what we call privatization. If I can accomplish all that, I'll be doing well.

RECORD: That takes care of the questions we had prepared. Are there other issues you'd like to touch on?

GEAKE: I think we've covered just about everything except environmental issues, which I guess I would add to my list of priorities, things I'd like to see done. We need to encourage recycling. We need to find a solution to radioactive waste disposal. We need to increase air- and water-pollution standards.

By BOB NEEDHAM
Editor

Patrick McDonald, a Livonia attorney and former Redford Township supervisor, is vying to unseat state Sen. R. Robert Geake.

RECORD: What do you think of Bob Geake's record?

MCDONALD: Well, I just generally think, when you talk about someone's individual record, or generally the record of the state as a whole, it's my feeling that there are several areas that could use some improvement.

I think the first area would be quality of education. The level at which our children are achieving, I think, has been less than it should be. We're obviously not competitive, for whatever reason. I don't believe it's a lack of money solely; I believe it's a lack of direction.

He and I differ over the issues of core curriculum and requiring mandatory minimum standards. I think those are essential to evaluate any system. It's my feeling that if children can't read and write and do things with math skills, they just can't compete in the world. Those are the fundamental cornerstones of being able to do anything, and if we don't master those, then we're turning people out who simply can't get by in our world, and that's not right.

I think we may have to look at different types of programs. Some people have suggested making the educational system more competitive. Allowing students to choose, allowing them to compete with private-sector schools.

We may have to look at the method in which we finance schools, property taxes as the base.

RECORD: That was one of the questions we were going to get to. If you could wave a wand and say, "This is how schools in Michigan should be financed," what would you do?

MCDONALD: Well, I believe that the state has assets which would allow it to limit . . . local property-tax loads. I think, in addition, the state has to ensure that before it adds additional programs, before it sets forth specialized programs and funds special needs, we may need to ensure that all districts are able to have a basic level of education.

RECORD: And how does that happen?

MCDONALD: Again, I think it's a matter of the priorities in terms of how government is run. We certainly collect a significant amount of money in sales tax and income tax annually. From what I understand, we've been diverting some funds from that area and replacing them with lottery funds as opposed to appropriating more funds from those areas.

Let me give you a philosophical overview. It's my feeling that unless we educate people properly, we end up paying for them ultimately in the system anyway. We pay for them in the form of joblessness, we pay for them in terms of Medicare/Medicaid, we pay for them in the criminal justice system because all of those people that can't find jobs or can't compete or can't function in society at a self-sustaining level end up being a burden on the public. And so that's why I feel that this system of education is essential. All these other things are offshoots of the problems that at least can somewhat be related to our educational system in terms of how we prepare people to go out in the world.

RECORD: If we were to reallocate some of the other state money back toward education, as a partial solution, where would we take it away from?

MCDONALD: It's always a tough question. I would say that we have to take a look at the overall budget in virtually every sector, from administrative to social services to other programs that we have. Transportation. Unless we can do something in that area, all the other problems will continue to grow. And we're seeing, the recent crime statistics show, we can't house, or we can't build jails fast enough to house all the people we need to put in. Part of it has to do with the problem of not educating them, not being able to find them some type of job.

RECORD: Would you consider higher state taxes of some sort, higher sales tax or something?

MCDONALD: I think people are tired of being taxed to death. I think if you're going to advocate any type of (tax increase), I think you'd have to allow a referendum on it, people to vote on it. If they decided (on an increase), then I would insist that the funds be earmarked specifically for education and not like the lottery system or some of the other systems that allegedly were to go to education and never did quite end up there.

RECORD: Let's move on to some different areas. Abortion, of course, has been and continues to be a concern of a lot of people in the community and throughout the state. Could you just state your position on the various issues?

MCDONALD: I've basically taken a pro-life position.

RECORD: Pro-life? Any exceptions?

MCDONALD: Well, I think there's always the obvious exceptions for incest, rape, where the life of the mother is at stake.

RECORD: Other instances should be outlawed?

MCDONALD: Basically that's the position that I have taken, yes.

RECORD: What do you think of the business climate in Michigan? Is it "good" right now, in general terms? And whether it's good or bad, how would you like to see it improve?

MCDONALD: I think it's fair at the current time, at least in comparison to the rest of the country. I think we do have to continue to diversify the types of jobs that are available, and I think, very frankly, we've got to encourage our major manufacturing companies to keep jobs in this state.

I think every time we lose jobs — when I say jobs, I'm talking about moving plants to other locations, or out of the country, or whatever — it dramatically impacts upon the economic well-being of the state. Not only do you lose those jobs, but if you're familiar with any type of simple economics, there's always a multiplier effect — for each job you lose, you lose a couple more, because that money's not in circulation. Those things are things that we have to deal with.

RECORD: What can the state do to help encourage businesses to stay?

MCDONALD: Well, they have provided some property-tax incentives. They have modified some of the costs in terms of workmen's comp, unemployment compensation. They have addressed . . . cost of health care as a benefit. Those are some of the things that probably continue to need to be monitored.

I think that as a general proposition, when you talk about a major plant closing, the state ought to be able to take some significant steps to encourage that continued functioning in this area if at all possible.

RECORD: The state departments of corrections and mental health are perhaps more of a concern to some people in Northville than they would be to your average state resident, because of the fact that we have two of the correctional facilities and a large psychiatric hospital. What's your view of the overall way those departments are running? Are they doing the job? Is there anything the Legislature could do to make them operate better?

MCDONALD: I think, at least in the area of the Department of Corrections, as I indicated to you earlier, we just can't seem to build prisons fast enough. So I think we have to take a little different tack.

I was struck by a program on, I think it was (channel) 56, about two or three months ago, where they aired a study out of California on individuals who had been in the prison system for a considerable period of time, and some of them have come back several times. Anyway, they did a study to see how many of them would stay out, and for how long? Basically virtually 90 percent of them were back in within a year, people that they paroled or placed on probation. And the problem that they found was that unless these people had some type of job or could be employed, or become a productive part of society, and be integrated back into society, they just fell back into their old ways and ended up back in prison.

So I think in addition to just simply housing people in prisons, we have to see if we can't train them and maybe perhaps find them some type of jobs, maybe offer business some type of incentive to take these people, try to retrain them. There has to be some method (of) making them somehow productive parts of society. I think we're going to have to make the shift to places like halfway houses, maybe boot camps, less costly means of housing prisoners who are nonviolent or have a history of being nonviolent.

RECORD: Would the same approach hold true for mental health?

MCDONALD: Mental health's a little bit different situation. I think the general approach of the state in the past several years — to try to shift away from institutions and back into private sectors, group homes, that sort of system — has generally worked fairly well. There are always continuing problems any time you have that size a system.

In terms of the funding of the mental health, it's like every other area: I'm sure they all could use more funding. I think as a general proposition our mental health system here is better than most states.

RECORD: That pretty much hits the questions we had prepared. What other concerns do you have? If you're the new state senator, what's on your agenda?

MCDONALD: I think one of the things that, at least, Bob (Geake) and I differ on is that I do believe there is room to roll back insurance rates. The studies that I've seen indicate that there is, to some degree, some amount of gouging that has taken place in that area.

Secondly, we may need to have some additional state involvement in the system of insurance and reinsurance. We may have to require that they abide by some of the antitrust laws that all other businesses do, so that there is proper competition and there is not collusion in terms of fixing rates. They all just don't get together and say, "This is what we're going to charge," and there's no alternative for the public to go to. I think those are appropriate measures. I'm not saying always and everywhere insurance companies do that, but sometimes they're a little bit like the gas company, if they have an excuse, sometimes they'll use that to make additional dollars. We're all kind of captives, we have to have insurance. It's mandated by state law. We have to monitor to ensure that the public's fairly treated.

RECORD: Anything else?

MCDONALD: I'd like to see this state — all over the country of course, but this state particularly — become very involved in recycling and preserving of resources, and to encourage businesses particularly to use recycled materials, give them some type of incentive to create businesses that are willing to provide for a method of using recycled materials.

I was struck by a local group that used to pick up newspapers, but there was no place to get rid of the newspapers. It seems to me that it's a shame that we can't provide incentives to people to dispose of newspapers and preserve them, and not only do it here, but perhaps be a model to the country in the sense that we encourage businesses to invest their money in preserving our environment and our resources. The states are very well-equipped to do things of that nature. We give incentives for all different types of business; we certainly should do it, I think, in this area.

Shrewsbury, Law discuss economy, politics

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Gerald Law is trying for his fifth term as a state representative, running against Plymouth attorney Dennis Shrewsbury for the 36th District state house seat. Law recently discussed the relation between property taxes and school finance reform, as well as the state of the state's economy, with The Northville Record.

RECORD: How would you solve the school financing dilemma, and what do you think of the current solution where taxes are being recaptured from out-of-formula school districts like Northville to help fund poorer school districts?

LAW: It was very upsetting to us, because it's an unfair approach to the problem. It has totally alienated all of the out-of-formula school districts, which are one-third of the total number of districts. And the worst thing about it was that the school districts that got the money thought it was peanuts. It doesn't begin to solve their problems.

Three points need to be addressed in any school finance reform package. One, it has to include property tax reform. Two, it has to stay within the limits of the Headlee regulations. And finally, it has to be politically feasible.

I also think you have to reduce the reliance on property taxes. But educators like property taxes, because they stay level.

One way to do that in many communities would be to share your SEV (state-equalized valuation) statewide, in other words to have one big pool of a property tax system, or part of a pool where you would have X amount of mills levied on the whole statewide SEV. That would go into a trust fund, producing X amount of money, and then divide that by each student. Thus you would share the SEV growth statewide no matter where you lived. If it went up, a student in a poorer area would benefit as much as a student in a richer area.

That was in Proposal B, and that might be a little more palatable to school districts than going totally to, say, an income tax. We had tried to indicate that you could take eight mills and share that statewide, and then the rest of the millage that a school district had, they would keep themselves.

But I'd have to talk that over with Northville and Plymouth. Is this an advantage to Northville, now that they're going to be experiencing a large growth over there on Five Mile with the DeMattia project, which is going to bring in the next 10 years a substantial amount of SEV to Northville Township and the school district? Do they want to share part of that with anybody now, after all these years of being a bedroom community with no industrial or commercial tax base? It may be something offensive to them, but that's something you can look at.

I think the other thing that's needed is to establish some minimum standards of quality of education, and we're trying to do that. The public is not going to accept spending more money without some accountability, improved accreditation, improved quality, in delivery of their educational system.

It doesn't mean in Northville they don't sell their education well, but I'm saying a lot of school districts don't and voters in many instances are not happy with the product they're getting. And unless they feel that education is improving and being more responsible, as your police and fire departments have to do, they're not going to vote for anything or approve anything.

The other thing that has to be included is you have to maintain local control. I'm not going to vote for any program that's going to give up local control of the school district.

RECORD: Local control in terms of what?

LAW: The local school board makes the decision on the quality, the type, the education, the materials used, etc., right down the line, just like they are today. This is always one thing that the local school district is very afraid of when you talk about statewide programs of funding, the loss of control.

We have 560 school districts, roughly, and whether you're in the Upper Peninsula or down here people think differently, they want things done differently in their schools, they want their kids educated a little differently. Some are a little more liberal, some are a little more conservative, and I think they ought to have that say locally within certain guidelines. We still want certain qualities and certain core curriculums offered.

And the other thing that would be mandatory in any program of property tax and school finance reform is to allow local enhancement of educational programs through additional voted millage. We will not bring on board school districts that can afford to spend more if we lock them into a base where, even if the people in their community want additional programs and want to vote for additional programs, and want to pay the taxes for additional programs, are prohibited from doing so. You always have to have that certain allowable millage, whether it's four mills or something like that, for local enhancement.

The problem with education in this state is not indicative of the Northville school district. They're doing a pretty good job, and that's why they resist change. And I don't think they totally resist all change. Northville people that I've talked to are pretty understanding, and they understand that there are problems in the state in education and they can't be totally ignorant and just live in Northville and not care about how the rest of the world is doing. They understand that there have to be some changes. Their concern is how will it affect Northville and I understand that.

RECORD: What about property tax reform specifically?

LAW: If you want to talk strictly about property tax things that don't have a lot to do with school finance reform, that we could do very quickly, without going through a whole petition drive, we could improve the "circuit-breaker" at the state level. This would especially help senior citizens a little more and even people in Northville.

The circuit-breaker is predicated on the amount of taxes you pay as compared to the amount of money you make. This is a $700-million rebate program and it's a unique one in the country. I don't think any other state has it. But right now you're capped at $1,200, that's the maximum you can apply to the state for, and that's been there since '74. It should have been indexed, and it should be up to $2,600, because people have hit the cap and they can't collect any more. We can do that statutorily and we should.

And I think the other thing statutorily we could do is limit the growth of assessments on each piece of property to no greater than the rate of inflation. Headlee does this but it doesn't do it individually. It does it by taxing district. What it says simply is that the taxing district can't collect more money from this year to that year that exceeds the rate of inflation. But it starts to vary on each individual property within that taxing district.

You get some people who say, "Well, yeah, Headlee helped because it doesn't affect my assessment, but it forces the school district and the township or city to roll their millage rates back." But it would be beneficial, I think, and would help a little bit on the problems we're having locally, to say that your assessment cannot go up more than the rate of inflation. People would see it directly on their piece of property—if inflation's 5 percent that's the maximum that assessment can go up on that piece of property.

Now obviously you would start out on a new base. If I sold my house and you bought it, and bought it for more than it was being assessed at because at some period of time that market value got ahead of assessment, well, then you would start at a new base for that home. And then it would go at the rate of inflation from there.

I think the local school districts and everybody could agree to something like that. For the people in my district, that's something that I've supported. It wouldn't cost the state a tremendous amount of money but assessments are a big problem in my area. We could do those two things statutorily, and we have bills pending on them, but we tend to load them up with a whole bunch of other tax items so that they just fall by the sheer weight of their expense.

RECORD: How would you describe the current business climate in the state, and how could it be improved?

LAW: The business climate in the state has been shown in a number of studies as not being real favorable, due to the fact that we rely too much on the auto industry, which is very cyclical with the national economy. When things are going well, we do very well, and when things are going bad, we do very bad, and very quickly. So we have to get off reliance on the auto industry, and it's not easy to do because they've seen such a mammothly large industry and employed so many people in the state of Michigan at all levels, from the factory worker to the top management people.

The other thing that has always been bad in this state, and we haven't substantially improved it, is that compared to the other states around us our unemployment and workmen's compensation costs are very much higher. And that's the cost of doing business in this state. Obviously our property taxes are high nationally, and that's another cost of doing business, and I'm not sure whether tax abatements per se have really been tremendously beneficial to attracting that much industry to the state, or preserving that much industry.

I think the governor does a decent job of promoting Michigan as a place to be, but we have to improve our transportation. Our roads and our bridges, our infrastructure are in need of repair and we haven't found a responsible way of keeping them up, and of course any type of business that's located in the state wants good transportation.

Our higher education is coming under a lot of fire. I noticed where our top university, the University of Michigan, has fallen in national rankings all the way from ninth to twenty-first. Now they are our number-one university. Their argument is that the state is not giving them enough money. They're having to raise tuition, and all the costs that go along with that. A good higher education program will attract businesses, research and high tech. They congregate and come to where the major higher education centers are. Massachusetts is a good example, as is California.

That's what businesses look for, and they also look for a good standard of living, residential homes, which is something Michigan has always had. That's why we attract a lot of people to the Plymouth and Northville area, and we will; it's a good residential area if people can afford it.

The other thing that businesses are very upset about and we haven't done anything about is product liability. There are a lot of archaic laws out there, liability lawsuits on products that somebody buys and they totally misuse the product for what it's intended, and it injures them, and then they sue the manufacturer or the company. You can have a product that's 20 years old that's misused, it injures somebody and they come back with these multi-million-dollar lawsuits.

So if we can deal, even in a small way on many of those items, it would give a perception that we are moving Michigan to become more favorable to business. I cannot do anything about the cost of labor in the state. This is something they contractually bargain with their unions. And like it or not, Michigan is a highly unionized state.

Something else we have to look at is why did Saturn (the new GM manufacturing facility) not locate here. Why, of the 10 major manufacturing plants that the Japanese and other people have built in the United States for automobiles, have we only gotten one, Mazda? And that took $300 million in subsidies from the state to get them here, and Ford gave them the Flat Rock facility because they wanted to unload it. We just spent an ungodly, immoral amount of money in tax abatements and everything to get them here. I don't even consider that a normal business proposition.

But we've gotten nobody else. Why? It's easy to cheerlead, and say Michigan's a good place to live in, and it is, but we have cost problems. Businesses are very competitive, especially in these industries, and they look at the bottom line, and the bottom line is, "What does it cost to do business here?"

Michigan has a lot of good things to sell, but we're missing out on the bottom line, and that has to be improved.

And the other cost that I did not mention that we have to work on and we have not, and everybody's having the same trouble, is the cost of providing health insurance. It's grown so expensive. That's a cost of doing business, the most expensive fringe benefit offered. And we have to somehow develop the initiative to hold down those costs. But that's a little difficult just due to the fact that some of that's contractually bargained for, and as a state we don't really get involved in contractual and union negotiations.

What we have to do at the state level is not pass any more laws that mandate that certain health coverages be provided by all health insurers. When we mandate it, we mandate a cost.

Even though there are a lot of good programs out there, our health insurance costs have maxed out basically and we don't know how to handle the costs we have, let alone new ones.

RECORD: What's your overall view of the state departments of corrections and mental health, with Northville and Plymouth housing jails and the psychiatric hospital. Are they living up to their responsibilities?

LAW: The prisons are doing a better job now that we slapped them down in court. It was not a local problem. I don't think we've ever had a major problem with the local wardens or superintendents of those prisons.

The reason we have a better relationship is because we passed a law. I wrote a law and the biggest part of that law was that we limited the number of prisoners in each prison, so we're not overcrowded. They tried to overcrowd them. Northville Township went to court, and won at the circuit court level. The circuit court wanted to throw the director of corrections in jail because he wouldn't comply with their order. And then of course they had nothing better to do, so they appealed and the appeals court upheld the circuit court so they got on board. The biggest thing we have going for us is the law, and it says we can only have 500 prisoners in Western Wayne, 311 in Phoenix, and 550 in Scott, which is what they're built for. They'd like to put a thousand in each one. Then we would have problems.

The Northville hospital is something we're always working at. The biggest problem is keeping people on the grounds, and we've had this for many, many years. The unfortunate part is that the population at the hospital has changed over the years. It used to be most of the people there were voluntarily committed. Now, 85 percent are involuntary, and they don't want to stay so they walk away or run away. Or they wander through the woods and into the subdivisions and frighten people.

I really think the state has an obligation to keep people on their own property. And I don't think their argument is a good one to say, "Well, we were here before the homes were." That doesn't matter. There's a difference between public and private property, and when you buy private property you have a right to the enjoyment of the property.

We always keep working at them and they're cooperating, but slowly, under their own budget constraints. They also try and outreach to the community and make available their services. I don't know how much Northville's taking advantage of this, but for substance abuse, the people that they have working in the Hawthorn Center and whatnot come into the community and put on lectures for nothing, so that's a valuable resource.

RECORD: What's the single biggest problem facing the state right now, in your opinion?

LAW: The number one problem we're facing in this state is when we go back next year for a budget.

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Dennis Shrewsbury, a Plymouth attorney, opposes Plymouth Republican Gerald Law for the 36th District state house seat now held by Law. Shrewsbury recently shared his views on the state economy, state politics and property taxes with The Northville Record.

RECORD: How do you think the state's current business climate could be improved?

SHREWSBURY: What the governor's been doing for the past eight years has been trying to improve the business climate so that Michigan is less dependent on a single source of revenue, which traditionally has been the automobile industry. I think that we're about 35-percent less dependent on the auto industry right now than we were several years ago.

The governor and, I think, the Democrats in general have been trying to attract more industry, and there's been an improvement in the jobs situation in Michigan—I heard a figure that there are about 600,000 more jobs now in Michigan than there were eight years ago—but I certainly don't think that that's the end of it. We need to continue to work on those things, attracting new business and helping business that's here.

But I think that we do have to be aware of the needs of workers as well as businesses, so that if people are injured on the job they know that they've got adequate care, adequate insurance to take care of them. If there is a downturn in the economy, there needs to be some assurance that workers are not going to starve, that they've got some worker's compensation benefits, unemployment benefits, so that they can maintain at least some standard of living until the economy improves.

RECORD: Do you agree that property tax relief is needed, and if so, at the expense of what other programs?

SHREWSBURY: Everybody wants to have some kind of tax relief. I don't want to pay as much taxes as I do, neither do you, neither does anybody. But it seems to me that there are only two things that you can do: either cut services or raise taxes. If you're going to pay for the services you have, you've got to pay for them, because there's no free lunch.

Let's say that we cut property taxes. Right now, my understanding is that property taxes basically help pay for education. So whose kids do you want to kick out of school so that somebody else's property taxes can be cut? As soon as you tell me that, then I'll be glad to say, "OK, let's cut everybody's property taxes in half and your neighbor's kids won't go to school."

RECORD: So do you think the claims by candidates like John Engler that they're going to come in and cut property taxes are a lot of rhetoric?

SHREWSBURY: I don't know what his plan is. He says he's going to cut taxes 20 percent. Well, if he's going to cut taxes by 20 percent then it follows that services have got to be cut by at least that much, probably more if there's a deficit. If we're spending more than we're taking in right now and he cuts taxes by 20 percent, then we've got to cut services by more than 20 percent just to break even. And that makes sense to me, but then I'm not in Congress.

The problem is we've got long-term problems and short-term politicians. If I'm elected, I'm going to be elected for two years. What kind of programs can you have, generally speaking, that a short-term politician who wants to keep his or her job is going to go out on a limb and say, "We've got to do this, we've got to raise taxes, we've got to cut these services, we've got to get the thing under control?"

Gov. Blanchard is willing to take those tough stands to do those things. I think he's one of the few politicians right now who is willing to take the long view, regardless of how it might hurt him in the short term. I would like to think that if I were elected I would be willing to do that too.

I think it's the epitome of shortsightedness to say, "I want to cut my property taxes because I don't want to pay for the schools down in Detroit; why should my tax money go down to pay for those schools?" Why? Because those are human resources down there, just like the kids in our local schools, and if we don't use those resources properly—that is, the kids who are coming through the schools—and teach them how to read and write and how to work, so that they can go out and get a job and be useful in the economy, they're just going to be another drag on the economy. And that goes for whether the kid is from Detroit or Plymouth/Canton, or Northville, because we've got kids here that graduate and can't read either, or can't get a job.

So we're just cutting off our noses to spite our face. Who's going to pay for your Social Security if you've got a bunch of kids that are 15 years younger than you who can't read and write and can't get a job? Somebody's got to pay for that. This is just looking out for our own future to pay for kids that are going to school right now.

RECORD: How would you solve the problem of school financing, and what do you think of the current solution?

SHREWSBURY: I've got a lot of opinions but I'm not sure I've got any solutions. If I'm elected, I'll go to Lansing and I'll study it and I'll talk to the experts and I'll see what I think can be done. I don't have any cut-and-dried pat solution right now.

RECORD: We've heard it expressed from voters and politicians that a lot of the voters feel they've been cheated or tricked in terms of the lottery money going into the school funding and the fact that other school funding money was removed, rather than the lottery money actually becoming a supplement to school funding.

SHREWSBURY: It's unfortunate that people think that. I can understand that feeling but here's my understanding of what happens with that money. The school costs are billions of dollars, or at least hundreds of millions. The percentage of lottery income that pays for education is relatively small, because if the lottery paid for all of it, we wouldn't have to have the property taxes.

They took the lottery money and said, "Look, the state's got to pay out of the general fund, from whatever tax money comes in, for all the school costs or whatever percentage we're obligated to pay." So what difference does it make if we take the lottery money and write a check directly to the schools and say, "Here's your lottery money, here's the schools, that pays for 5 percent of the schools?" We've still got to make up 95 percent of it with the state treasury. What's the difference if you do that, or if you take the lottery money, put it in the general fund, and when the bill comes for the schools, you pay it? The money's still there, it just went through the general fund instead of directly to the schools. You and I still have to pay for it whether it comes from the lottery or the taxes.

I personally don't think there's anything funny going on with the lottery money. What do they think, somebody's going out and spending it on cars, on wine, women and booze?

RECORD: What's your stance on abortion?

SHREWSBURY: I came out early and strong as being a pro-choice candidate. I'm here to give the women, and any men who might be interested in this district, a choice in making their own choice. I'm not ashamed to say I've been endorsed by the National Organization for Women and the Michigan Abortion Rights Action League. I welcome their support because I have always thought the choice of abortion, whether to have one or not, should be the choice of the woman whose body is being used. If any particular woman who's in that situation wants to ask her husband, or her boyfriend, or her parent, or her doctor, or her clergy person, if she wants to ask that person and get other, outside advice, that's fine.

But if she says "I don't care what any of you people say, I'm having an abortion," that should be her choice—up to the point where you start getting into the third trimester, when there's no question that then you've got a fetus that may be considered a human being. That's a different story. But most abortion decisions are made much earlier than that.

RECORD: What's your overall view of the state departments of corrections and mental health? Are they doing the jobs they should be for local residents?

SHREWSBURY: I don't really know what good or bad those facilities are doing out there in Northville and Plymouth. But if nothing else, somebody around here in Northville and Plymouth and the townships have got to be working there. At least there's some kind of income. I've noticed that, on the corner of Sheldon and Five Mile Road, there's two fast food restaurants that just went up recently. A half a mile down the road there's a great big prison facility where the guards probably don't like to stay there all day. So they're stopping and spending their money here in Northville and Plymouth.

RECORD: What are your top issues, and how will you address these issues if elected?

SHREWSBURY: Well, I guess my top issue is women's rights, and not just abortion. We need laws to stop violence against women in any form, whether it's date rape, or spouse rape, or whether it's just beating up somebody.

Another one is senior citizens, health care, and parenthetically, health care for the public in general, for all of our citizens.

Challenger Taub opposed to state sales tax hike

Democrat Robert Taub is trying to unseat incumbent state Rep. Willis Bullard to represent the 60th District, which includes Northville north of Baseline Road. Taub recently discussed his views with The Northville Record.

RECORD: What would you propose to change school financing in Michigan?

TAUB: I favor the governor's plan for school finance reform which would keep assessment increases in line with inflation.

While I am in favor of closing the gap between rich and poor districts, such a thing could reduce efforts to cut school costs.

I am not totally in favor of equalization because it will hurt efforts to lower taxes. You can reduce property taxes by lessening equalization.

I am not in favor of increasing the sales tax to bolster school finances.

Tax money for education should stay in the area. People move to this area and they're willing to pay taxes for excellent schools.

I don't want to put more money into the state funding formula.

RECORD: Are property taxes too high, and what would you favor as a solution?

TAUB: I favor Gov. Blanchard's plan. It's the best.

That plan would keep increases in assessments in line with inflation.

That plan would do everything the others are attempting to do, but more easily.

That plan was introduced early this year and has the best chance of going into effect.

RECORD: Give us your views on gun control and waiting periods for purchasing a firearm.

TAUB: I am in favor of gun control but I see a real problem with handguns.

Everyone has a right to own a rifle or shotgun in their home to protect themselves.

Handguns, though, go beyond home self-defense.

I am definitely in favor of a waiting period for gun purchases and that would help eliminate some purchases by criminals.

The problem is the nuts and the career criminals making it too easy to get handguns.

Everyone should have the right to have a weapon in their home to protect themselves and their families.

RECORD: Would you vote for a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion and what are your views on the parental consent legislation?

TAUB: As a married person without kids who has looked into adoption, I am personally opposed to abortion.

But as a potential legislator, I understand the right of any woman to make a choice on the abortion issue.

I really feel women should have a right to choose whether they want to have an abortion or not. What they wish to do with their health is their decision.

Those opposed to abortion have the right to not have an abortion and can convince people to not have abortions.

In parental consent it still comes down to the woman's right to choose.

I think all women of child-bearing age have the right to make the decision because they are the ones who ultimately have to live with it.

RECORD: Why should the voters choose you over the other candidate?

TAUB: My opponent William Bullard has consistently voted with the state chamber of commerce.

In eight years of time in the Legislature Bullard has passed little legislation, and it is time for new blood. It's time for a change.

Being a Democrat, I can work with the governor better and with the House, which is controlled by Democrats.

It's not intended to be a lifetime position and I think it is time for the voters to make a change.

The voters have to ask what Mr. Bullard has done for them. And the answer is probably not much.

As an attorney, I have dealt with the tough issues and can get better representation for the voters of this district.

I could work with the governor instead of being part of the loyal opposition.

My experience in financial matters will help me particularly in the state Legislature.

Bullard would pump more money into schools

biting abortion and what are your views on the parental consent legislation?

BULLARD: I voted for the parental consent bill and a provision requires 7-12th graders would have to be informed of the legislation. The reason I supported that bill is I believe it has far more to do with parental rights than it does with abortion.

I supported the compromise, to have an adult relative rather than a parent to consent, that was advocated by pro-choice groups.

I would not support a constitutional amendment making abortion illegal. In eight years only two questions have come to the Legislature — medicaid funding and parental consent. Unless the Supreme Court overturns the Roe v. Wade decision, I don't think we'll have a major decision to make. If it is overturned, I would not vote for a law to make it a crime to have an abortion. I believe it's a difficult decision and I don't see a consensus that we make something a crime the majority of the people do not see as a crime.

RECORD: Why should the voters choose you over the other candidates?

BULLARD: If people look at my voting record I think most would conclude it's pretty close to what the average person feels.

My record has been in line with the majority of the people in this area would support if they voted themselves.

Clean Water Michigan only gave endorsements to six legislators with 100-percent environmental voting records and I was one of them.

I feel my voting record is excellent on issues such as crime, drugs, environment and others.

I've been voting on the side of the people, except I'm a minority on issues like tax reform. I have the experience and background to represent the people of this district successfully. I am accessible and available. I am willing to serve another term and hope the voters will look at my record and see it is worthy of another term.

Police chase I-96 speeder

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

A 30-year-old Lansing man was arrested Oct. 25 after leading State Police on a high speed chase from Howell through Novi on eastbound I-96.

John Harold Harrington, 30, was stopped by State Police near the intersection of I-96 and I-275 in Farmington Hills, said Michigan State Police Sgt. Richard Mills. Three State Police cars were damaged in the chase, which reached speeds of 120 miles per hour, he said, adding that minor injuries to Harrington and three police officers resulted from the incident.

Police said Harrington was charged with felonious driving and malicious destruction of police vehicles. Harrington was held at the Livingston County Jail following the incident.

According to Livingston County Sheriff's Deputy Cheryl Jackson, Harrington had been scheduled for arraignment Oct. 26. But the arraignment was postponed indefinitely after the Livingston County Sheriff's doctor ordered mental evaluations on Harrington. He was taken to the Ypsilanti State Hospital on Oct. 28 for those evaluations, Jackson said.

"He will stay there until they decide what to do with him," she said.

The chase began at about 10:30 a.m. Thursday on I-96 near Howell. Several motorists called the State Police on cellular phones to advise that the man, who was travelling in an older model Chevy pickup truck, had run several motorists off the road, police said.

Officers from the State Police post in Brighton first responded, caught up with the pickup near Howell, and began chasing Harrington along I-96, Mills said. The officers pulled up next to Harrington, signaling him to pull over.

According to police accounts, Harrington then began waving a white Bible and shouting at the officers. He then forced the police car into the road median, Mills said. The chase continued with two cars from the State Police post in Northville joining pursuit near Milford Road.

Harrington exited I-96 onto M-102 with police still chasing him. Near I-275, a Northville trooper rammed Harrington's truck into the path of a Brighton trooper's vehicle. The Northville trooper was forced into the median while Harrington and the Brighton trooper went into a ditch, according to police.

"We have no idea why he did this," Mills said. "An investigation to see if drugs or alcohol was involved is being done."

An undetermined number of other vehicles were forced off the road along I-96, he said. No other injuries were reported in the incident.

Fire department needs tax

Three months ago, township voters defeated a .5-mill request for fire department operations. Township officials immediately placed a scaled-down version of the same request on the November ballot, and now hope voters will ignore gloomy economic forecasts to shell out a few dollars — in the form of .33 mill, totaling $130,000 — for the fire department.

We think the fire millage is needed to continue the evolution of the township's progressive, well-trained fire department and urge residents to vote YES Nov. 6 on the fire millage — for safety and economic reasons.

The initial fire millage defeat shocked township officials. But it became apparent that officials had confused and alienated voters during public and private debates on the .5-mill request. Disgruntled voters perhaps also saw a chance to stand up and bite the township over a perceived $94,000 Haller Library lark.

But the fire department — which has virtually no detractors, even among millage opponents — suffered the worst blow in the township board/voter struggle. And the department now faces possible service cuts in 1991 — and certainly in 1992 — if the millage is not passed.

As the township's proposed budget now stands, all fire revenues will come from the general fund. Approval of the .33-mill plan will remove the bulk of fire service costs from the general fund. The fire department witnessed only minor cuts during a recent budget review process, but equipment, safety programs and manpower may suffer if the .33-mill request does not pass. Ironically, residents may feel more pocket-book aches if the millage falls.

The fire department is presently undergoing review by monitoring agencies which may result in improved service ratings. If the department attains that higher standard, business and homeowner insurance rates will drop. Regression from the department's current status could cost taxpayers much more — via their insurance premiums — than the $50 or so a year garnered by the fire millage.

Other important programs, such as the department's First Responder ambulance service and a proposed water rescue team, may fall by the wayside if additional revenues are not generated. The township's newest water pumper is 20 years old and updated equipment is vital to dependable service.

Fire department services are perhaps the best value in township government. We think it would be a shame to backslide on a department that has fostered good will and provides fire protection, emergency medical services and fire prevention education throughout the community.

Re-elect Pursell

This year's challenge to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, is Elmer White, an Ann Arbor attorney making his first attempt at public office. White seems thoughtful and intelligent, but offers no reason to oust Pursell from his post. Voters in the 2nd District, which includes most of the Northville community, will be well-served by returning CARL PURSELL to office.

Pursell has always been an active, independent thinker in his time on Capitol Hill, and continues to grow into a leadership role in the House. A moderate, he is finding more clout among his colleagues, even as a member of the minority party. During the recent federal budget mess Pursell acted coolly and sensibly, and was a credit to his district.

With both a home and an office in Plymouth, Pursell remains visible to — and in touch with — his constituents in this area.

His experience and rational positions should continue to win Pursell more influence in Washington next term. He is in position as something of a "rising star" in the House, and it would be a disservice to the area to turn him out.

Geake earns post

Republican State Sen. R. Robert Geake faces a challenge this year from Patrick McDonald, who served as an effective Redford Township supervisor in the mid-1970s. Because of his continuing dedication to representing his constituents and cutting waste, we recommend returning BOB GEAKE for another term in the 6th District, which includes Northville Township and the city south of Baseline Road.

Geake is not among the flashier state senators, and his critics sometimes say that with his experience and education he should have a greater leadership role than he does. Maybe so. But he works very well in the areas on which he concentrates.

Among Geake's accomplishments are key roles in the Wayne County bailout and in the higher return of state horse-racing tax money to cities housing tracks — including Northville and Livonia in his district. A trained psychologist, Geake chairs the subcommittee which writes the budget bills for the Department of Mental Health. Considering the hospital on Seven Mile, it's a good place for Northville's state senator to be. Geake pushes hard for increased privatization at the state level, a concept which at the very least deserves more exploration for potential cost savings.

Geake knows his own mind, is always well-prepared, and takes consistent stands. He is responsive to constituents yet rarely misses sessions in the Legislature. His hard line on abortion — he would see it outlawed completely — may lose him favor, but his opponent is also pro-life.

McDonald is no real choice. Although he knows something about the issues and has had some past political success, Geake clearly outweighs him by being better-informed and by boasting far greater experience. And quite frankly, we can't see McDonald becoming any more of a leader in the Senate than Geake is. Geake has definitely earned a return trip to Lansing.

Law merits vote

The race for the 36th District state House seat is a study in contrasts. On one side we have Republican Gerald Law, trying for his fifth term and campaigning quietly on a platform of school finance and property tax reform, and the need to prioritize the state budget and justify any cuts made.

On the other, we have Democrat Dennis Shrewsbury, the Plymouth attorney whose committee has run advertisements accusing Law of being in cahoots with the owners of Mettetal Airport in their attempt to sell the airport off.

Shrewsbury has also picked some admirable campaign planks of his own, including women's issues and health care. But he seems to have a very weak grasp of the mechanics of state government. He raises valid points, points that have been raised by others before him, but advances no new ideas of his own.

Law, on the other hand, has mentioned several specific ways to limit if not reduce property taxes and increase the fairness of school finance without punishing out-of-formula school districts like Northville.

We endorse GERALD LAW for a fifth term the representative from the 36th District, which includes Northville Township and the City of Northville south of Baseline Road.

Law has a clear understanding of the many issues which are involved in property tax reform and school finance, and he has what sounds like reasonable plans to address, if not altogether solve, these problems. Law also knows the political game, and we believe he will continue to be the best player on our behalf.

Street repair

Northville city residents will have the chance Nov. 6 to vote on $1.6 million in general obligation bonds for city street improvements. During these taxing times, a voters' gut reaction might be to veto such bonds, but the repairs are necessary and extensive. The bonds will allow the city to continue repaving, recurbing and landscaping many of the city's key downtown and residential streets.

The cost overruns have been attributed to the fact that more street repairs were needed than originally thought. Many of the roads were entirely rebuilt rather than simply repaved as originally planned.

Also, city officials have promised to try and fund the 10-year bonds from the general fund before approaching the voters again for any additional millage.

Our vote would be to continue the current street improvements and see them through to the end. The result, according to city officials, will be streets that will last another 20-30 years. To vote against the bonds would be short-sighted, especially as we attempt to attract more business to the city, and more visitors to our downtown.

Elect Campbell

One of the important choices on the ballot next Tuesday — for Northville and voters across Wayne County — is the standoff between William Leo Cahalan Jr. and Patricia Campbell for one of four seats on the Wayne County Probate Court.

The decision holds extra importance locally, because the winner of this particular race — for a newly created judgeship — will hold court at the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital. And it should be PATRICIA CAMPBELL filling that post.

This is an easy call for the informed voter. Campbell has collected endorsements from Civic Searchlight, the Detroit Bar Association and others. She has 15 years of experience as an attorney, compared to Cahalan's three. Campbell has worked in the probate court as a referee since 1981, so she knows the duties and the system — which will be vitally important for a judge spending the next eight years away from his or her actual court building.

As if all that is not enough, The Detroit News this week made the revelation that Cahalan's driver's license has been suspended seven times in the past four years — with two of the suspensions still in force — because of unpaid traffic tickets. This is not the sort of respect for the law we expect from our judges.

Send a message

Truth be told, U.S. Rep. William Broomfield, whose district includes Northville north of Baseline Road, is one of the most powerful congressmen in Washington. He is on the foreign affairs committee and he has played an integral role in international affairs. He's kept a close watch on our troop movements in the Persian Gulf. He's been deeply involved in the budget debates. He is a senior member of the GOP, and therefore he has the ear of the president himself.

But to residents of the 18th District, he seems quite distant indeed. Residents, local officials and state lawmakers have complained over and over again about Broomfield's inaccessibility. Broomfield himself is apparently unaware of the criticism: "I have hundreds and hundreds of people that visit me here, in Washington," he said in our election interview as evidence of being in touch.

That is why we are recommending voters here cast their ballots for WALTER BRIGGS. Ultimately, we believe only this: cutting Broomfield's margin in the election by as much as possible will send a message to Broomfield that he needs to pay more attention to his district, to meeting with local officials and carrying forward their agendas, and to emphasizing constituent relations work.

Should lightning strike, Briggs would indeed make an acceptable representative. Despite the fact he has no elective experience, he is articulate and intelligent with a good command of the issues.

Return Faxon

The Democratic incumbent in the state Senate's 15th District, which includes Northville north of Baseline Road, faces a capable and articulate — but inexperienced — challenger, Republican newcomer Denise Alexander. We believe incumbent Democrat JACK FAXON has performed well in his post and should be returned to the state senate.

Faxon is a veteran lawmaker, having served seven terms in the Senate. Nonetheless, he is often viewed as a maverick in the Senate, one who does not follow the mainstream of thinking in that chamber.

Regardless, Faxon has been an outspoken advocate for several points of view we believe are deserving of representation in the Senate. For example, he has been a support of arts and cultural programs statewide. Such programs may not be the top priority of state government, but they deserve a voice there.

He has also been a strong voice for civil liberties. When lawmakers in Lansing get in a reactionary mood, proposing laws to crack down on crime, Faxon typically argues with a clear head for the protection of constitutional rights. Faxon has also been an advocate for education, both public and private.

We believe Faxon is the clearly better choice for voters in his district.

Bullard in House

Incumbent Republican WILLIS BULLARD JR., R-Highland, once again earns our vote for re-election to the state House from the 60th District (including Northville north of Baseline Road) due to his persistent opposition to increased property taxes and government waste, commitment to the environment and accessibility.

Bullard's voting record throughout the years shows that time and again he has supported cutting property taxes. On that issue he has the unqualified support of his constituents. He also shows a pro-business voting record.

And when it comes to the environment, Clean Water Action, one of Michigan's leading environmental groups, recently honored Bullard for his leadership on environmental issues. Bullard was only one of six legislators to receive a perfect score of 100 percent for his voting record on environmental issues that included "polluters pay," incinerator ash, recycling and underground oil tank storage.

Bullard's particular strength is on issues affecting townships, a byproduct of his large Highland/Milford constituency. His constituents at this end of the district, however, live in incorporated cities, and we sometimes wonder if Bullard forgets that fact.

We agree with Bullard when he speaks of advocating establishment of a code of ethics for legislators, complete with an enforcement mechanism.

While Democratic challenger Robert E. Taub argues that a Democrat would have in edge in the House because of his party's majority, Bullard's experience coupled with his popularity and visibility in the district earn him our recommendation.

Firefighters: invaluable asset

To the editor:
In response to recent misinformation given either via the polls or letters to the editor, we, the Northville Township firefighters' wives, would like to point out a few facts that many people may be unaware of or have not thought about.

The Northville Township Fire Department includes five full-time employees, with the remaining 26 being volunteers. The full-time firefighters also volunteer for calls when not on duty.

The Northville Township Fire Department serves the community in many ways: responding to automobile accidents and fighting fires are probably the two services most people are aware of. Our fire department also responds to hazardous materials incidents, conducts fire-safety inspections, provides comprehensive fire-safety education to people of all ages with their expert background and resources, responds to medical injuries and emergencies (First Responder program), and CPR emergencies, including early defibrillation.

Sometimes it can take another ambulance service from 15 to 20 minutes to respond to medical calls in our community. Our Northville Township Fire Department has an average time of five minutes.

If the Fire Department is not able to provide these services for the community, people may die. You can't put a price on life. Our husbands volunteer their time, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, including holidays. This is on top of the full-time positions they hold at their primary jobs. They risk their lives to save your family, home and property. It was said that the Fire Department averages less than two runs per day. Does the number of calls really matter when one of them could be your family or home? An average is an average. Some days there are no runs; other days there may be 10 runs or they may be fighting a fire all night long.

In addition to responding to calls, they spend many hours in training and updating their knowledge and abilities to offer the best service they can to the community. The Northville Township Fire Department is up for a proposal for a tax renewal. This means the taxpayers pay the same amount of money, while the Fire Department continues to update and improve its services. We are very proud of the services the Northville Township Fire Department provides to the community at a minimal cost!

The Fire Department is a service that people hope they don't need, but if they do need it, they want it to be there. They are an essential service in our community! If the Fire Department suffers, then the community suffers! If you have any questions, please feel free to stop by the Fire Department and we are sure that when you leave, you'll share the pride we feel. With our increasing population, do you really think that we should decrease our fire service? Vote yes on the Northville Township fire millage renewal!

Schools not involved

To the editor:
To the editor:
A front-page article in the Oct. 25 Northville Record served notice of a "forum" to be held Nov. 1 on the subject of the Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health. Please be aware that this meeting is not being sponsored by the Northville Public Schools. In fact, a flyer distributed at a recent information meeting about the Michigan Model identified the sponsoring organization of the Northville forum as "Parents Against the Michigan Model."

The Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health is an adopted curricular program authorized by the Northville Board of Education. Parents who have concern with any part of the curricular program in the Northville Public Schools are invited to first make contact with the child's teacher. If satisfactory resolution of concerns are not achieved through a meeting with the teacher, the parent should request a meeting with the building principal who will either resolve the problem or refer the parent to the next step in the process for addressing the concern.

No representative of the Northville Public Schools Board of Education or administration will be present or involved in the "forum" on Nov. 1.

Football team congratulations

To the editor:
Congratulations to the 1990 Northville varsity football team!

Coach Darrel Schumacher, you deserve the best and you got it! The respect and admiration the athletes have for you is beyond a mentor.

The 1990 football team is the first ever to represent "little" Northville in the state playoffs.

It could not have happened to a nicer group of young men who truly are fond of one another.

Going to the playoffs is the culmination of hard work and dedication of these fine young people. The esprit de corps between these athletes is a kinship of love and brotherhood — the two ingredients that nurtured their success.

Good luck in the playoffs!

'Model' is dangerous in schools

To the editor:

In a recent editorial in The Northville Record defending the Michigan Model Comprehensive Health Curriculum, I noticed many inaccuracies. In the numerous workshops for the Michigan Model that I have attended, in order to try to understand the state's logic behind the promotion of the Michigan Model, I found that the representatives such as the author of last week's editorial, never quite tell the whole truth; like saying the Model is a recommended curriculum, but conveniently leaving out the information regarding whether or not it has been passed into law (a health program is mandatory — but not necessarily this one).

The statistics quoted in the editorial imply that the children of Michigan need instruction in regards to sex and drugs. Either they don't know or don't want to know that portions of the Michigan Model, excluding PSP, ASC and calm-breathing, have been instructing our youth on sex and drugs under various titles for over 15 years. I recall my parents being very concerned about the sex education curriculum being offered in my high school in the early '70s. This explains why statistics such as those exist. Obviously sex and drug education has some flaws. Adding PSP, ASC and calm-breathing will elevate these statistics.

William Coulson, the originator of the Model, has done a 15-year study on the effects of the Model nationwide in regard to sex and drug education. He admits it sounded good but just is not working out the way we planned, on our children. Children are not laboratory mice to be experimented on. They have different personalities and environmental circumstances.

Dr. Coulson added that the all-too-early bombardment of sex and drug information on our children is causing our children to become desensitized toward it. They make choices expecting help from the state in carrying out their choice as well as rescuing them from the consequence. They eventually have no fear or respect of these dangers in their teen years, seeing sex and drugs as the "norm." This makes them rather complacent about their involvement. This is so dangerous.

If parents can't or don't want to handle these areas in their children's lives, there are elective courses a parent and child can take together. Even a visit to a doctor or pastor would be helpful — not just a visit to a Planned Parenthood or school-based clinic.

With the election quickly approaching, the public should be aware of where the pressure is coming from to have this implemented by 1990 in all Michigan schools. Former Gov. Milliken and Gov. Blanchard are personal promoters of the Model. The fact that Northville held out against implementing this until now is encouraging, as other areas received it earlier. Although I am not endorsing a particular political preference, I ask you to get informed before you go to the polls. It will truly affect your children's lives.

Michigan Model valuable program

To the editor:

In response to your recent letters to the editor, I feel the Michigan Comprehensive Health Model is being unfairly judged. I believe the majority of the people who question the appropriateness of such curriculum content are simply misinformed. Before a person condemns, one should learn the true facts. I urge you to look at a copy of the curriculum being presented in our schools. The concepts are age-old teaching practices that are applied in the classroom to help children cope with various situations.

The Michigan Health Model is simply a comprehensive health education program that teaches children to value and protect their health (health meaning physical, social and emotional well-being). Traditionally, health education has been taught with little or no parental involvement. Our comprehensive model seeks and utilizes parental involvement and reinforcement. Parents were members of the Curriculum Committee prior to the adoption of this program.

Northville Public School parents participated in a survey during the 1988-89 school year. Over 4,000 surveys were returned to provide input for the program's effectiveness. As a result of health education in classrooms, parents reported that their children were more aware of their health and were showing improvement in personal hygiene. Furthermore, 87 percent of the parents surveyed reported that they believed health instruction was very important for the well-being of their child.

This method of health education has been endorsed by the National Governors Association, the National Association of State Boards of Education and the National Parent Teacher Association as being the most effective way of providing health education regarding hazards associated with substance abuse and social pressures. Children learn self-esteem enhancement and problem-solving skills to help them cope with stress and learn to make better decisions which might affect their health and well-being. Each grade level has a parent-involvement component providing suggestions for activities which might be done at home to reinforce what has been taught in the classroom.

Education begins at home. Northville Public Schools have adopted a comprehensive health education curriculum to help assist values that parents have instilled in their children. Positive reinforcement with

Judicial elections highlight flaws

Next Tuesday is election day.

In a day or two we will be inundated with well-intentioned urgings to get out and vote, together with observations about democratic elections being the basis of our democratic freedoms. All true, of course.

At the same time, odds are that voter turnout will be very low. This is nothing new; voter turnout falls every election. At the same time, there is something very troubling about electing governors, state representatives and judges when less than half of those eligible actually vote.

There's a contradiction here: the value we profess for voting versus the reality of low voter turnout.

There is no better illustration of this contradiction than the results of a poll of attitudes toward judicial elections as reported in last week's issue of Inside Michigan Politics, a useful and informative newsletter published by Bill Ballenger.

The first question asked 800 voters how much they felt they knew about candidates for judge and what the candidates stood for. Only 3 percent felt they knew a great deal, and another 19 percent thought they knew a fair amount. More than half (57 percent) said they knew "very little," and one voter of every five (21 percent) admitted knowing "nothing at all" about candidates for the bench.

These findings certainly confirm the widespread suspicion of vast ignorance of the various candidates for Michigan judicial offices locally (circuit, district and probate judges) and statewide (Court of Appeals and Supreme Court).

The second question asked whether, given the fact that most knew very little about judicial candidates, it would be better to appoint judges. The answer: a resounding "No." Sixty-four percent favored election, 30 percent preferred appointment, and 4 percent preferred some combination of appointment and election.

This is a strange and contradictory result. What can explain it?

Simple. Even though voters realize they know little about who is running, they don't want to turn over the power to select judges to the political establishment, be it the governor, the Legislature, the courts or the State Bar Association.

Look at the detail. Excepting people who vote straight Republican (and who can be expected to view appointment by Democratic Gov. Blanchard as a bad idea), the groups most strongly favoring continued election in ignorance were those at the fringes of our political system. They included lower-income blue collar workers, those not married but with children, and those whose family income was less than $10,000.

But I think there is something more.

For one thing, I sense a profound distrust of the way the political establishment works. A big majority of people admit they know almost nothing about judicial candidates. But they don't want anybody else's hand on the election process. Governors and legislatures and courts may be tolerable in the abstract, but people seem to be saying they don't want them messing with their right to direct election.

In reporting widespread ignorance, the data also portray a profound failure of the news media to do their jobs in covering the non-glamorous but profoundly important political contests for offices like judge.

It's easy and fun to report on the sexy races like governor and senator. But how much coverage did you see on TV, hear on the radio or read in the big daily papers about judicial races and qualifications of the candidates? Not much. I'm even dissatisfied with the local coverage this newspaper has provided.

It's hard to say it, but I think it's true. In practice, we in the news media have abdicated our professional responsibility to report on the daily grind of politics at all levels to the easy-to-prepare but next-to-useless voters guides and summary wrap-up stories.

So the next time you run into a self-satisfied editor or reporter blaming the politicians for the mess we're in, just ask them how much coverage they devoted to the race for local district judge.

Oppose 'Model'

To the editor:

I do not believe that the current philosophy of teaching a "relative morality," which is being taught through the Michigan Model lessons, has any place in the classroom. Teachers trained for PSP (problem solving with people), which is a big part of the Michigan Model, are to act only as facilitator when the children are asked to vote on a solution they feel is best for the group in regard to a predetermined situation. No direction is given whatsoever as to what is right or wrong so the child is left to think that whatever the group decided, right or wrong, is acceptable. If Bible-based morality is prohibited then so should this "relative morality."

Because of my serious objections to the Michigan Model, of which PSP is only one of many, I requested that my child be excused from the Health Class in accordance with my rights per Michigan Compiled Laws, Section 380.1501 and 380.1507, subsections 1 through 7. The Michigan Model Health Class falls into the category of Sex Education because 8 of 10 areas are included in Section 380.1507, subsection 1.

However, I was advised that the principal could not honor this request and permit my child to just remain in his classroom rather than attending the Health Class. So, each week I take my child out of the school for the half hour Health Class.

During a meeting with the assistant superintendent, to discuss my rights in accordance with the law, I was told, in essence, that the board was above the law. Further, she advised that if I continued to take my child out of the Health Class each week, (a total of about 17 hours for the school year) that she would consider calling Protective Services!

What on earth happened to our system or even the local government that would allow an assistant superintendent to tell me that I have no authority over what my child is taught? And further, why would our elected School Board members permit her to speak for them in regard to being above the law? Why should I have to pay for a legal defense when there are laws already on the books that address these issues? I am a parent, and a tax-paying one at that . . . Where are my rights? Elected Board Members: Where are you? What do I do now . . . call the police department?

Karen Montgomery Herndon

To the editor:

In regard to your article on the Michigan Model for Comprehensive Health Education, I can't understand why there aren't provisions for parents to remove children from a program that is not acceptable to them. I don't know the contents of the program, but obviously Mrs. Lemieux has taken the time to look into it and doesn't believe it is right for her children.

Our society goes to great lengths to protect the rights of criminals, why not the rights of average citizens to reject something they don't approve of for their own children? It would be a very upsetting situation to have your children involved in something you felt was harmful to them, and be denied the right to protect them.

Connie Smith

Dear Board Members:

We are very alarmed at the implementation of the Michigan Model of Comprehensive Health Education in our school system. We find much of the curriculum objectionable from a religious standpoint, a psychological standpoint and from the view of traditional family values.

I have reviewed large portions of the program. As a medical professional I recognize many of the exercises as being psychological testing and therapies. What really alarms me is that our children will be led through these experiences by educators who are not licensed or qualified as health professionals. We strongly object to our children being subjected to this by anyone through the school system.

In reviewing studies of the program's effectiveness we find the program sadly lacking in data to support it. We realize this program is being pushed by Lansing, and it's packaged in a very smooth, effective manner. On the surface it looks good. But we urge all of the board members to take a closer look at this curriculum with an open mind.

As our elected officials we are disappointed this program was implemented after an apparently superficial investigation. There are many good, solid health curriculums that are available (and they are abstinence-based in the sex and drug education portions). It concerns us that a program as controversial as this one was accepted without a publicized public hearing after the one-sided presentation by state and county representatives.

We realize the people in opposition to this program are being labeled "right-wing Christian fundamentalists" by the school administration. I'm sure some are. But we implore you to look past that prejudice and listen to the people who voted you in. This plan needs a much closer look, and hopefully modification or replacement.

classroom activities, help children to learn, cope with and solve problems. The claims of inappropriateness are unsubstantiated and will prove harmful to uninformed listeners. Help keep the education of our children the very best it can be . . . Learn the facts.

Margaret Surdu
PTA Council President and Parent

To the editor:

I am so pleased to be able to write that I think the Michigan Model is a very good program. I can say this now, in good conscience, because I have taken the time to read it. What I found was a program with practical, common-sense guides for teaching health. All the old ingredients were there: bones, teeth, muscles, etc. But there is something new since my school days, inclusion of a child's approach to himself and others.

Look around us. Children today are confronted with issues we never knew existed. We can tell our children not to do things, but ultimately they will have the choice. Teaching them to think for themselves, to learn what making choices entails, can only serve to reinforce any values they've learned at home, not contradict them. Teaching children how to "get calm," identify what they feel, and problem-solve can only make for a better learning situation. It serves the purpose of discipline in the classroom.

It is ironic that it takes a bit of controversy to make parents better informed. Let's not get carried away with rumor and innuendo; read the Michigan Model! There are more than a few of us who think it serves a good purpose. I speak for myself. But I have read it!

Ann Dee Tatto

To the editor:

I am writing this letter in support of the Northville Public Schools and the Michigan Model for Comprehensive Health Education.

As a parent who has had children in the Northville Public Schools for the past eight years, I have found the administration not only attempts to make us aware of the curriculum planning that takes place, but invites us to participate in it. Citizens have been encouraged to participate in long range planning, including curriculum development, as recently as 1 1/2 years ago. Parent representatives are included in the ongoing curriculum review committee.

Dr. (George) Bell and Dr. (Dolly) McMaster have always had an open phone line to the community and have encouraged input. They are also willing to address our questions and concerns.

I am a registered nurse working in a collegiate setting. Daily I am exposed to young adults, including Northville High School graduates, who lack the knowledge and understanding of how their daily life practices effect their life long health status. They are under tremendous pressures from home, peers, school and work.

Many of them lack the understanding or knowledge of how to deal with these pressures and turn to alcohol or drugs for relief. Their eating habits and rest patterns are atrocious. Many of them deny that their sexual practices can lead not only to unwanted pregnancies, but can be deadly.

Our children today are the young adults of tomorrow. Without a comprehensive health education program they will follow in the same pattern that many of today's adults have.

The Michigan Model for Comprehensive Health Education was developed by the Michigan State Department of Education in an attempt to educate our children in an area where past generations have failed.

As to the "infiltration" of the Model into the school curriculum, not only has the Northville Public School system made the curriculum available to all parents to review, they have been supportive in the development and presentation of Michigan Model Parent Education Workshops. These workshops have been offered the past two years and are open to the public.

I encourage all parents with questions or concerns regarding the Michigan Model for Comprehensive Health Education to contact their school for factual information, review the curriculum and to attend one of the Parent Education Workshops.

Offerings at the herb barn at Sunshine Farm and Garden range from the common to the unusual

Commerce family grows garden of herbal delights

By Dierdre Dancy

If you enjoy gardening but are tired of the same old petunias and marigolds, Sunshine Farm and Garden in Commerce Township has a unique gardening experience awaiting you.

Located at 2460 N. Wixom Road, Sunshine Farm and Garden offers a vast selection of unusual plants ranging from witch hazel to pineapple sage. It also offers dried flowers, herbs, gardening classes, and a wide assortment of books on a variety of gardening techniques.

Owners Bob and Jean Riggs, along with their daughter, Roxanne, opened Sunshine Farm and Garden in 1976. Bob left his job as principal at West Bloomfield Junior High and took a teaching position at West Bloomfield High School so he would have his summers free.

The original farm where they are located dates back to 1835. The existing house was built in 1882 and the barn was added in 1904. The barn is occupied by several registered Morgan horses, a hobby of the Riggs family.

The grounds are dotted with many separate gardens. The herb garden is located "as close to the back door as possible," Jean explained. It is filled with an assortment of herbs for cooking.

Next to the herb garden is the Shakespeare garden which contains the plants and flowers that Shakespeare mentioned in his writings. There is also a Biblical garden, a fragrance garden, and a medicinal garden which contains plants used to heal. Each garden follows a theme.

There are two greenhouses, one of

Liquidators fare well in good times or bad

"You can walk into a facility that looks like a pit . . . and we clean it up like a candy store," Montgomery said.

Promotional services like maintaining lists of dealers and individuals interested in liquidations is what brings companies to hire auctioneers.

"They don't maintain buyer's lists we maintain. They're not professional auctioneers," Montgomery said.

Robert Levy elaborated. "That's the main part of auctioning — marketing. We use direct first-class mail, brochures, newspapers, trade journals, fax, telex. All of this is specially created for each situation. We have a very good group of people who follow our sales."

Levy said he does more than 100 auctions or liquidations per year with an aggregate sales volume of more than $100 million.

"Occasionally, you'll find a bargain," he said. "Then in other situations, a machine will go for a better price than new. It all depends on need."

For example, if there's a six-month wait for a new machine and a business needs an available older machine for an immediate job, it may pay more now for the old.

Strange things sometimes happen at sales.

Levy recalled the case in England where a specialized machine he figured would fetch about $750 actually brought about $50,000. A competitor who lost a contract for a job in which the machine was needed bid up the price in anger.

Nostalgia sometimes will pit individuals against dealers at auctions. "You might find people who attended a club who want a chair," Montgomery said.

Both men have been around the world as part of their work. Levy lived in England for a couple of years while running the firm's overseas operation. Montgomery has had jobs in London, Singapore and Toronto.

"It's exciting. No two days are the same," he said.

Business reversals are good for guys like Robert Levy and Richard Montgomery. But so are the good times. Even in the best of times, business expansions often make loans and equipment obsolete or no longer crucial to operations and need to be disposed.

Levy and Montgomery specialize in appraisal, liquidation and auctioneering work.

"Banks and bankruptcies are our bread and butter," said Montgomery, whose firm, RJM Auctioneers, is based in Plymouth. "You meet all kinds of different people, do something different every day and make a good living at it."

"We typically do industrial, any type of manufacturing facility either being liquidated or a tremendous amount of appraisal work for collateral-based lending," said Levy, president of Norman Levy Associates in Southfield.

"Most of it isn't bankruptcy," he added. "When a business finds itself phasing out a facility for a product change, it will have equipment to sell. An auction is one of the best ways to turn idle machinery into working capital."

Appraisal work generally brings a flat fee.

For liquidations, Levy and Montgomery might get a percentage of the sales at auction; they could buy the facilities themselves, then dispose of the assets; or they could guarantee minimum sale at auction and divide the excess.

Clients are referred by trustees in bankruptcy proceedings, repeat business from satisfied customers and general referrals.

And it's not just small, obscure businesses on the way out, either. AT&T, Chrysler and Unisys have hired his firm, Levy said.

"We do work for small firms as well," Levy said. "We've pretty much got the system down to a science."

Montgomery, who got his start in the business working for Norman Levy, Robert's father, described the process.

"I started working for Mr. Levy washing machines, preparing for auctions, inventorying equipment and tools. I ended up in the ad department," he said.

"Then I went to work for Robert Williams for five years," Montgomery said. "I was one of the auctioneers and supervised field work."

which is heated to house the perishable plants during the winter months. A large production garden is used to grow the flowers which are dried and sold in the herb barn.

A goldfish pond is nestled in the middle of the "overgrown" perennial garden. Watercress grows among the goldfish.

"The pond is for decoration," Jean explained. "We grow watercress because we have the pond. We don't have the pond for the purpose of growing watercress." The goldfish will soon be moved into a tank in the heated greenhouse.

A small barn and outdoor pen houses a flock of peacocks and gold pheasants. The birds are a hobby; however, the Riggs do sell some of the offspring.

More and more builders turning to advertising

Advertising is nothing new in the business world, but it wasn't until recently that builders began to promote their projects and services to the general public.

In the past year, the names of builders are becoming widely known as more begin to advertise their abilities.

Kojalan Properties in West Bloomfield has been regularly running advertisements in such publications as the Wall Street Journal, Time, U.S. News and World Report and Crain's Detroit Business. Pistons fans in the Palace of Auburn Hills and commuters along I-75 have also been exposed to the Kojalan name with arena and roadside billboards.

Angela Kimball of Kojalan's corporate communications said the company advertises — "to attract customers."

Advertisements for its build-to-suit services, which emphasizes Kojalan's expertise in everything from site selection to construction management, is a new thrust for the company.

"Here we're trying to reach the corporate executive officers and the people who have to make these decisions. We want people to know we're in the arena — and I don't mean in

The herb barn offers a large variety of dried flowers, candles, baskets, and handcrafted items. There is always a staff member on hand to offer advice or helpful hints with your selection.

Classes in "growing" are offered in the spring. These classes detail gardening techniques. Classes in "playing" are offered in the fall. The fall classes include a variety of fun subjects like wreath-making and natural cosmetics. A listing of classes is available at the farm.

The Riggs are considering expanding their business with a mail order service. With the rising cost of gas, it may become a necessity in order to accommodate their customers.

Sunshine Farm and Garden is open from April to December. It is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Wednesday through Sunday. Call 685-2204.

the Palace (of Auburn Hills) — and we can help them with their building needs," she said.

Advertisements with similar messages for the R.A. DeMattia Co. in Plymouth have cropped up in similar places.

Mary Beth Winkworth, manager of community relations with Kirco Realty and Development in Bloomfield Hills, said the company has a select audience, and different companies have different methods of reaching the audience.

Kirco advertisements present a very businesslike message mainly on radio.

Other companies have tried more humorous, light advertisements, but Kirco believes it can best convey a respectable corporate image through serious advertisements.

Kojalan Properties, on the other hand, has made a conscious decision to develop an advertising strategy that will reach a wider audience, Kimball said.

From a Palace of Auburn Hills billboard, which is designed to create name recognition, to the "humorous" magazine and billboard advertisements, Kojalan is trying to convey an image of a friendly, human company, she said.

Choose the mutual fund for you

If you are a new or uncertain investor, the thought of putting some of your hard-earned dollars in the stock market may send your blood pressure soaring. But, according to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, there are other investment options that are less risky and still offer a consistent return on your money. One of these is mutual funds.

WHAT IS A MUTUAL FUND?

A mutual fund is a financial service that pools the money of individual investors — or shareholders — in order to purchase a specially selected group of investments. Many mutual funds are ideal for both large and small investors, and some will accept opening deposits of $1,000 or less.

Mutual funds offer several advantages. First, they allow you instant diversification — that is, access to a wide selection of securities, some of which would otherwise only be available to large investors.

Furthermore, the diversified nature of mutual funds makes them a lower risk. If one investment in a fund should happen to do poorly, it is unlikely that the entire fund will be dragged down with it.

Another advantage of mutual funds is that they are managed by professionals who study the investment market daily and are generally in a better position than individual investors to predict soaring or souring trends. And you can easily redeem your shares at any time you choose.

TYPES OF FUNDS

Mutual funds are divided into categories depending on investment objectives. For example, you can choose among aggressive-growth funds, growth funds, income funds, growth-plus-income funds, balanced funds, bond funds, international funds, money-market funds and specialty funds.

Each type of fund has a different risk factor. In general, aggressive-growth funds focus on building capital over time and tend to be somewhat volatile. If you're a conservative investor, stick with an income or money-market fund.

If you are willing to take bigger risks, you may want to consider investing in a sector. These funds invest in a single industry. They can offer big gains — or big losses.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Many companies offer investors a family of funds from which to choose, based on their special financial needs and objectives. Investing in a mutual fund family means that you can move money from one fund in the family to another, often with a phone call.

Suppose that you have invested $2,000 in a money market fund that belongs to a family of funds. If the international stock market suddenly takes off, you can take all or part of that $2,000 and switch it to the international fund in that same mutual fund family. But keep in mind that when you make that switch, you may end up with taxable capital gains or losses.

OPEN- AND CLOSED-END FUNDS

Mutual funds are also distinguished by the way they create shares. Most people select open-end funds, which create new shares for investors as money comes in. The price of these funds is set daily, based on the fund's net asset value per share or the fund's total assets after deducting liabilities, divided by the number of outstanding shares. Closed-end funds issue a fixed number of outstanding shares, which are then traded either on an exchange or over the counter. The price of these shares varies, depending on supply and demand and may be above or below the net asset value.

HOW MUCH WILL IT COST YOU TO INVEST?

Mutual funds charge investors for brokerage commissions and management fees, usually in the form of an annual charge collected from the fund's assets. However, not all funds charge the same amount. And with annual fees rising quickly today, it pays to be a cost-conscious investor.

Load funds, for example, require you to pay a sales commission — or load — when you make a deposit. In return for the load, you should expect advice concerning which funds would be most appropriate for your financial objectives. Up-front loads generally range between .75 percent and 8.5 percent of the total price of the shares you purchase.

Back-end or contingent-deferred load funds charge a certain percentage if you redeem your shares within a certain period. This is similar to the early-withdrawal penalty that banks charge if you redeem a certificate of deposit (CD) before maturity.

Many investment experts suggest that investors look for no-load or low-load funds.

Dan McCosh/Auto Talk

What the Power survey doesn't say

This is the first year in history that an auto manufacturer managed to build a car that nobody complained about.

The source of this startling information is the J.D. Power & Associates "initial quality survey" of new cars. Power's people survey new car owners and ask them if they have anything to complain about. The results are tabulated annually and then the auto companies brag about them if they are on the top of the list or complain about the survey if they are at the bottom.

The Power survey is the one that ranks new cars according to quality that you probably have seen referred to in advertisements — at least, those not written by Lee Iacocca, who does his own quality surveys, something he started to do after he looked at how much Power was charging him and realized that he was paying the guy to insult him.

Automakers scramble to get a good ranking in the Power survey so they can claim their car is better than the next. What they don't want anybody to notice is that according to Power, all cars are still pretty lousy.

Power says that two-thirds of the people buying the best-quality car in the world (the Toyota Cressida, according to the survey) complain about it anyway. In fact, until this year, no car brand had averaged fewer than 100 complaints per 100 cars, which means that somebody was complaining about every car.

Even really terrific cars have more than one person complaining about them. Buick, for example, had 1.13 complaints per car, which means that somebody's spouse must have put in their two cents' worth. Most cars get at least two complaints, and some get up to three, which means that probably the neighbor came over and picked at something as soon as he saw the thing pull into the driveway.

I think one reason that Power gets so many complaints is that he is basically a nice guy, and when he asks people to complain about their car, nobody wants to disappoint him. "Yeah, I've got a few complaints, but what the heck, nobody's perfect" already adds up to about 300 complaints per 100 cars sold.

Actually, if you spend a lot of money on a car, you aren't about to complain, which I figure is why Mercedes, Lexus and Buick usually do pretty well on Power's complaint survey. On the other hand, when you find yourself driving, say, a Dodge Omni, you probably have other worries and aren't so picky anymore, which explains why the Omni ranked higher than the Honda Civic on this year's survey. I never really complained about my Omni, but I muttered a lot.

How you feel about your car is clearly the deciding factor as to whether you complain about it. For example, my old Triumph had lots of flaws — such as a glove box that was a real cardboard box that was supposed to be attached behind a little leather-covered door that unlocked with a key. But when you put a set of socket wrenches in it (don't ask why), the box would fall off and hit your passenger on the ankle.

Then you had to put the glove box with the wrenches in it in the trunk, which meant that you could open the little leather-covered door with the key, hold your hands up behind the opening and do a passable rendition of a Punch and Judy puppet show.

I thought it was astute British engineering that left space in the trunk for the glove box. Funny, I never thought to complain about it. I wonder what Mr. Power would have thought of that.

The Tiffen

A porch, daylight basement and plenty of storage

By James McAlexander

A wide front porch, complete with railings and posts, gives country charm to the otherwise contemporary Tiffen.

When built as designed, perched on the gentle slope of a hillside lot, downslopes at the back and sides are put to good use, creating a daylight basement and garage.

Combined square footage of nearly 1,600 square feet in this lower level provides so much storage, homeowners will be challenged to fill it all. The basement could be developed as a rough-and-tumble rumpus room for kids, a shop, a craft area, a studio or whatever.

Larger families might even want to consider partitioning it off to create extra bedrooms. Plumbing is in place of installation of a third bathroom here, if desired.

Vaulted ceilings and a generous use of windows in the family area—entryway, dining room, kitchen, eating nook and living room—create a feeling of luxurious spaciousness.

Sliding glass doors provide easy access to the deck from the large country kitchen, inviting outdoor dining when the weather permits. It also has an eating bar.

In the central utility room, there is additional space for a freezer as well as for an industrial-strength sink.

The master suite has a large walk-in closet and is fitted with two vanities, one inside the bathroom and the other outside.

Siblings are sure to fight over who gets the front bedroom due to its extra-large windows, topped by an elegant half-round.

INSULATE

Tired of Pink? Try insulative sheathing

When you think insulation, what comes to mind? A pink or yellow roll of fiberglass? Maybe some blow-in or loose-fill insulation? If you're really a student, maybe an expanded polystyrene board.

In the never-stagnant building environment, insulation has moved well beyond these basics. But few ever peel back the outer layers of a home or building and peer beneath.

Almost anything in a home today can be considered insulating, but the nuts and bolts insulation—the wraps, the blow-ins, the modular wall panels, the polystyrene panels—forms the first line of defense to both cold and heat loss.

Insulative sheathing is a strengthened, expanded polystyrene foam applied to the outer frame of the building, said Simplex Products Division spokesman Gerald Gassman.

Insulative sheathing serves as a base for an exterior covering. It is a fairly common insulative material, but has been improved in recent years, he said.

Sheathing provides insulative value in three ways, Gassman said. One, it has an intrinsic insulative value; two, it seals seams and openings in walls; and three, when properly installed, it has a reflective value.

"The sheathing is actually set away from the wall—about three-quarters of an inch—and that reflects heat back into the house like a Thermos bottle reflects heat back into a bottle," Gassman said.

Insulative sheathing comes in rigid panels that also add strength to a wall to prevent bowing, cracking and warping, Gassman said. Finally, insulative sheathing adds to a house's fire wall rating, he said.

Another alternative offers not only insulation but a finished appearance as well, said Ward Pimley, spokesman for Dryvit Systems Inc., the leading manufacturer of "outsulation."

Dryvit is marketed locally by Jarecki Distribution Inc. in Plymouth.

Unlike other types of insulation, outsulation is a finished wall, Pimley said. Others require an exterior brick, stone, or siding finish, but outsulation requires no additional covering.

With exterior wall and insulation systems, an acrylic top coat is applied over reinforced mesh layered with fine Portland cement, which is applied over an expanded polystyrene foam base, Pimley said.

Besides adding insulation value to a home, outsulation also comes in a virtually unlimited supply of colors and textures and can be carved to resemble columns, brick work and other features, Pimley said.

sandwiched between stranded lumber—particle or chip board—facings, he said. Preassembled stressed-skin structural panels—which come in anywhere from 4-by-8 to 8-by-20 foot panels—offer strength similar to a continuous column and do not require wood studs.

Instead, the panels are connected by studs in channels at the top and bottom and between panels by overlapping joints "like blocks sliding into place," Savoy said.

"Once a house is done and the sheathing is put up, you can't tell the difference."

The solid construction prevents bending, twisting and warping, he said, which gives the wall greater strength and thermal stability because there is less settling and shifting.

Also, because the wall is preassembled—rather than building wall sections, standing them up, connecting them and adding insulation—homes are closed up within hours, he said.

And because the stressed-skin structural panels are connected with overlapping "thermal splining," air infiltration is cut dramatically. The tighter home is far more energy efficient.

Housewraps, which act as an air filtration barrier, serve a similar purpose to the moisture-blocking paper of the past, but today's synthetic plastic wraps are far better, Gassman said.

Housewraps literally wrap around a home to keep air from seeping through cracks and seams. Although housewraps have no insulation value in themselves, they do help keep a home energy efficient.

"Even under 10 mph wind conditions, the average insulated wall will allow air seepage through small cracks and seams—and that reduces a home's energy efficiency," Gassman said.

Housewraps also block ultra-violet rays that degrade the older moisture barriers, he said.

While not a problem if a house is closed up and the exterior walls are covered with brick or another type of siding, some projects—especially do-it-yourself cabins or second houses—may have to stand up to the elements for months.

Moisture barriers will break down and allow water and condensation to damage the wood beneath; ultraviolet-resistant housewraps do not break down, Gassman said.

Finally, housewraps allow moisture to escape from within walls to the outside without allowing cold or hot air from outside to enter, he said.

There are several advantages to outsulation, he said.

"First, it places the insulation on the exterior where it does the most good."

A key here is that outsulation minimizes thermal shock. In the typical wall, cold air infiltrates the wall in the winter, and warm air builds up in the wall in the summer.

In a wall fitted with the exterior wall and insulation system, heat is stored in the wall in the winter and outside heat is deflected in the summer. The cost of heating and cooling is much lower, he said.

Outsulation, which is seamless, also seals thermal bridges and prevents air infiltration as well as sealing out the elements, Pimley said. Conventional walls absorb water and over a period of time, walls buckle or warp and insulation value is lost.

Another option is the preassembled stressed-skin structural panels. Although available for nearly 20 years, they are only beginning to catch on among the nation's builders, said Tom Savoy, technical director at AFM Corp. in Minnesota.

AFM, with plants throughout the country, including Grand Rapids, builds the preassembled insulated panel, which is essentially a rigid expanded polystyrene board

REAL ESTATE

Expanded roles for real estate brokers

By James M. Woodard

There is a new high-tech glint in the eye of your friendly neighborhood real estate broker, as he focuses on expanded services and revenues.

Utilizing latest computer-generated capabilities, many brokers can now not only find a home for a prospective buyer, but they can also line up the best possible financing package.

Using a computerized loan-origination system, a broker can quickly compare the interest rates and other terms from a number of lenders. From this up-to-the-minute information, the loan that is most favorable to the home buyer (borrower) is selected.

Some systems can qualify the buyer and actually submit a loan application to the selected lender electronically—all from the comfort of the broker's office via his increasingly sophisticated computer.

These special loan services usually involve a lender-pay or buyer-pay arrangement. In a typical lender-pay setup, the system is owned by a third party. The broker participates in the computerized network system.

In a buyer-pay arrangement, the home buyer pays an agreed-upon fee to the broker for the service. Normally, it's all spelled out in a "mortgage location service" agreement, signed in advance by all parties.

The growing involvement of real estate brokers in mortgage origination, and the right real estate brokers to collect a fully disclosed fee for providing additional services, was recently discussed by Norman Flynn, president of the National Association of Realtors at a hearing before the Housing Subcommittee of the Senate Banking Committee.

The concept of providing a variety of services, including finding a buyer with a mortgage to purchase the seller's home, represents the future for the real estate industry, Flynn said. The concept, often referred to as "one-stop shopping," is made possible through these loan origination systems.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development outlined its position on the use of these systems by real estate brokers during a Sept. 18 hearing before the Housing Subcommittee of the House Banking Committee. HUD underscored NAR's contention that the systems can benefit consumers by providing a wide choice of mortgages, interest rates and loan terms in the convenience of the broker's office.

"Real estate brokers do far more than simply show houses," Flynn said. "Today's buyers expect us to have the most up-to-date information possible on home loans. They view it as part of our role."

Both HUD and NAR believe that payment to real estate brokers using the system is allowed under the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act. The law, enacted in 1974 to raise consumer awareness about the nature and cost of settlement fees, does prohibit payments for simple lender referrals, which involve no work from a broker. However, the law clearly allows the collection of fees for actual services rendered.

Several states have addressed real estate broker involvement in mortgage origination. A clear trend among states is to permit payment to real estate brokers providing mortgage location assistance, although some states do require real estate brokers to obtain a separate mortgage broker license in order to charge such a fee.

For obvious reasons, many mortgage bankers frown on the emerging trend, thinking the brokers are stepping on their turf. But most industry leaders and legislators seem to feel the expanded role of brokers is in the consumers' best interests.

Q. Is farmland still a no-no as a viable real estate investment?

A. It's increasingly becoming a yes-yes form of investment. Here is the view of Nick Klaus, a very knowledgeable writer for the "Century 21 Real Estate Investment Journal":

"Farmers who survived the farm crisis of the 1980s are looking forward to a bumper crop this year in most areas across the United States. Many have expanded their operations, encouraged by strong commodity prices and an improved export market.

"With prime farmland values on the upswing, confidence in the long-term investment value of farmland is making a strong recovery as well."

"Farmland values rose an average of 8 percent to 9 percent in Iowa and Nebraska in 1989," said Dean Glock, executive vice-president of the Omaha-based Farmers National Co., the nation's largest farm management firm. "Similar gains occurred in most of the 22 states in which we're active."

In a special report from Bob Crane, chairperson of the Land Trends and Values Committee of Realtors Land Institute, Iowa Chapter, it was revealed that Iowa land values increased during each of the past four years—up 44 percent since the fall of 1986.

Q. Is it true that RTC sometimes uses an auction to dispose of foreclosed real estate?

A. A nationwide auction in which 71 properties were to be sold was planned by the Resolution Trust Corp. The auction—a method to quickly dispose of real estate owned by failed savings and loan associations—was to be televised via a close-circuit TV setup.

However, at the last minute the auction was canceled. It will possibly be rescheduled in the future, it was reported.

Inquiries are invited and may be answered in this column. Write James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

This late Victorian love seat could bring $700-$800 in good condition.

Your love seat is late Victorian

By James G. McCollam

Q. The enclosed photo is of a love seat I purchased about 40 years ago from an estate sale in San Francisco. The man who reupholstered it said it was solid golden walnut.

Any information you can provide will be appreciated.

A. This is a late Victorian love seat made in the fourth quarter of the 19th century to about probably sell for $700 to $800 in good condition.

Q. This mark is on the back of a portrait plate depicting a beautiful girl wearing a large brimmed hat and an ermine wrap.

Can you tell me anything about the age and value of this?

A. The letters, "K.P.M." stand for the Kistler Porzellan Manufaktur, the Krister Porzellan Manufaktur, or the Kister Porzellan Manufaktur. Usually there is an additional mark that indicates which of these three.

Your plate was probably made in the late 19th century and might sell for $100 to $300 depending on the complete mark.

Q. I have a brown glazed pitcher with a hound handle.

How can I tell if this is a genuine Bennington Pottery pitcher?

A. First, the chance of this being genuine Bennington Pottery is slim. However, here are the clues:

- The hound's nose should rest on his paws.
- The hound's collar should be chain link.
- There should be room for the hand between the hound and the pitcher.
- There should be a deer on the body of the pitcher.
- The glaze should be mottled brown streaked with green.

Q. I have an antique French figurine of a lion walking on his hind legs. It is marked "K & G—France."

What do the initials stand for? When was this made? How much is it worth?

A. Your figurine was made by Keller and Guerin in Luneville, France, about 1900. It would probably sell for about $125 to $135 in an antique shop.

Q. Can you identify a beer set with the following mark. It consists of a helmet with crossed swords over the name "Warwick." There is a pitcher and six mugs; each has a picture of a monk or a friar.

A. Your beer set was made by Warwick China Co. in Wheeling, W. Va., during the 1890s. It would probably sell for $365 to $385 in good condition.

Q. Enclosed is a picture of my antique bed. I believe it is called a "cannonball bed." It has wooden pegs in the side rails and head and foot rails.

Can you tell me the approximate age and value?

A. The pegs were used to lace a rope back and forth to support a feather bed. This feature is characteristic of beds made in 1825 and 1850.

Your bed would probably sell for $500 to $600.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item to James G. McCollam, P.O. Box 1087, Notre Dame, IN 46556. All questions will be answered, but published pictures cannot be returned.

Useful books for the home gardener

By Patrick Denton

Two new books in Garden Way's "1001 Gardening Questions Answered" series are volumes published earlier this year on "Fruits and Vegetables," and "Herbs." The clear and simple setup of these books makes them useful quick reference manuals for the home gardener.

The first half of "Fruits and Vegetables," for example, begins by considering questions on selecting a site for fruiting trees, bushes and plants. Next, a planting and growing section deals with preparing the soil, fertilizing and pruning, container culture and environment-friendly controls for common pests. Then the individual tree fruits, berries and grapes are considered.

In the strawberry section, the first question deals with the differences between June-bearing, ever-bearing and day-neutral types of strawberry.

Following questions consider soil preparation and planting, fertilizing and watering, keeping the birds away and harvesting, growing strawberries in containers.

Sketches along the page edges illustrate clearly how best to position a strawberry plant in the soil, how to space the plants in the plot, and how to set up a strawberry barrel.

The vegetable section of "Fruits and Vegetables" follows a similar pattern, starting out with questions on subjects such as selecting a site, deciding what to grow and planning a small beginner vegetable plot. Helpful sidebars list short-season and long-season vegetables, cool weather and warm weather vegetables, space-efficient and consuming vegetables.

Preparing the soil, forming raised beds and composting are further subjects explored in question form.

In the "Fertilizing" section questions such as these are addressed:

- What is the difference between organic and inorganic fertilizers?
- What do the numbers on the fertilizer bags mean?

- What is a transplanting fertilizer?
- Do some types of vegetables have special fertilizer needs?

Here, too, the advantages and disadvantages of both natural and commercial fertilizers are explored, and a full-page chart gives the nutrient composition of commonly used organic materials.

Following a chapter that answers questions on indoor and outdoor seeding, transplanting, succession planting, container vegetables gardens, harvesting and pest control, there is an encyclopedia of 40 vegetables from artichokes to zucchini which features complete growing and harvesting instructions.

"Herbs: 1001 Gardening Questions Answered" also devotes its second half to an encyclopedia of over 50 herbs, which includes historical background and suggestions for using the herbs as well as complete growing and harvesting information. A handy chart follows, giving at-a-glance information on the characteristics of favorite herbs (height, basic uses, propagation methods, such and soil requirements and so on).

Introductory sections in "Herbs: 1001 Gardening Questions Answered" cover planning an herb garden, growing the plants, solving problems and enjoying the herb garden. "Herbs for Special Places and Purposes" answers such questions as:

- Which herbs can I grow for seeds to use in breads and cookies?
- Are there any herbs that make good ground covers?
- What herbs should I use for a these garden of plants for herbal teas?

"Enjoying the Herb Garden" answers such queries as when to harvest herb leaves for fresh use and when to cut the foliage for drying, whether herbs can be dried in a microwave oven, how to make herb butters and herbal vinegars, which herbs are suited to making holidays wreaths, and how to make herbal teas.

Poisonous plant precautions

Among children under 5, poisoning from plants is second only to medicinal poisoning. Know some common poisonous plants around your home.

- Some common poisonous flowers are bleeding heart, daffodils, delphinium, foxglove, hens and chickens, lantana, lily of the valley, lupine and sweet pea.
- Some common poisonous shrubs: azalea, mountain laurel, oleander, privet, rhododendron and yew.
- Some deadly houseplants: caladium, philodendron, dieffenbachia, philodendron.
- Some poisonous wildflowers: buttercups, jimson weed, autumn crocus, mayapple, poison hemlock, moonseed berries and water hemlock.

This tree died of a heart attack.

Carving hearts on trees seems harmless enough.

But the fact is, it cut short the life of this majestic oak.

By gouging into the bark, vandals crippled the tree's vascular system. So, like thousands of other innocent victims each year, the tree slowly died.

When vandals girdled a 300 year old Chinquapin Oak near their Marthasville, Missouri home, they wrapped the wound in sphagnum moss and tended the tree daily, despite blizzard conditions.

Tradition with style.

In 1927, when Burroughs Farms recreation area was established, there was a real sense of tradition, of elegance and style. That tradition of classic elegance has been updated and transformed into Oak Pointe. Condominiums and single family homes reflecting contemporary style and taste have been skillfully placed within the natural landscape.

Two excellent Golf Courses, including the Arthur Hills designed Honors Course, weave their way through protected wetlands, mature trees and gently rolling hills.

A Beach, Private Marina and community picnic areas are at the disposal of Oak Pointe residents. There are Tennis Courts and paved paths for jogging or for evening walks through secluded nature trails.

For year round enjoyment, Oak Pointe's famous and historic Roadhouse Restaurant, built in 1870, reflects the heritage of the area while offering a menu befitting the Oak Pointe lifestyle.

ENJOY THE LIFESTYLE DREAMS ARE MADE OF!

Centrally located near the interchange of I-96 and U.S. 23 Take I-96 West to Exit 147, turn right on Spencer Road, it will become Main Street and then Brighton Road

WHO'S WATCHING THE CHILDREN?

"I can't find anyone to care for my baby when I go back to work. I have to find somebody. I can't afford to stay home."

"Well, I've decided to stay home anyway. It's going to be tough for us to get by on one income, but I want to be the one who raises my children — not someone else."

Parents are facing tough decisions. In a society where only seven percent of the population lives in a household in which the father's job is the sole source of income, day care is already becoming the major issue of the 1990s. Carol Maise, Northville Township planning director, just had her first child Sept. 24 and now she's looking for day care so she can go back to work part-time.

Is she having trouble finding day care? "Very much so," Maise said. "In fact, my goal for this week is to find it. It's not fun."

She's been checking libraries and doing research. She's been calling day-care centers. She's finding that her choices are limited because many centers don't take children under the age of 4 year

"A lot of it is word-of-mouth," she said. "I have to go back to work soon. I'm very fortunate because I have a sister-in-law that will take her until the end of the year."

After the end of the year, though, she's not sure what she'll do.

Part of the problem, she explained, is that she did not know what her work situation would be. She now knows that she can return on a part-time basis, but before she left for her maternity leave, the work situation was still not clear.

"When I was pregnant, people were asking me if I'd found day care, but I was in a position where I didn't know exactly what I was doing," said Maise.

Job situations pose different problems for different new mothers, Maise added.

"It's very hard. I'm in a situation where cost isn't that much of a factor for me . . . but for a lot of

Barbara Willoughby volunteers for the arts in Northville

Willoughby plans fine arts variety

By LESLIE PEREIRA
Special Writer

Everyone needs at least a small taste of the fine arts, says Northville resident Barbara Willoughby.

As a member of the Northville Arts Commission she hopes to give help scheduling enough of a variety so everyone can find something they enjoy.

This year the group scheduled a series of art lectures, published a book of poetry, set up a summer full of outdoor concerts, and planned trips to other cities to enjoy their fine arts.

While the Arts Commission has a set number of positions and is appointed by the City Council, there is another, less-formal group with which the commission works in tandem.

As secretary of the Arts Commission, Willoughby mainly deals with ticket sales but also gets involved with various projects whenever she can.

"In the Arts Commission, the sky is the limit with what we can do, but it takes people coming in and helping out," said Willoughby, an English teacher at Meads Mill Middle School.

Willoughby served as art chairperson at an Alabama school before moving to Northville, and she has long stressed the importance of art in people's lives.

"Northville needs to have its own fine arts," said Willoughby. "It needs to recognize itself as a place with its own culture. We have a lot of talented people."

In addition to her work in the Arts Commission, Willoughby is active at her church and is a life member in the Mother's Club.

"I think Northville will stay the delightful place it is if everyone finds a volunteer niche," said Willoughby. "I really feel like volunteerism is what makes the quality of life in our society."

Genitti's hosts huge senior citizen evening in town

Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall Restaurant organized and hosted 720 senior citizens Tuesday, Oct. 23 for a day and evening in Northville, including a "Millionaire's Party" at the Northville Community Recreation Center.

The night began with a show at the Marquis Theatre followed by dinner at Genitti's.

Following dinner, the seniors were provided with shuttle service to the "casino," where they redeemed $5 vouchers for gambling chips. Some of the seniors took advantage of their trip to shop in downtown Northville. Others took advantage of further shuttle-bus trips to Parmenter's Cider Mill.

Another activity the seniors participated in was a "treasure hunt." Northville merchants had over 350 prizes for the seniors. The participating stores had large pumpkins in their display windows welcoming the seniors. Inside the stores were numbers displayed on a special board. If one of the numbers matched the number on a senior's name tag, that person won a prize.

Artist's exhibit

Watercolors by Northville resident Johnnie Crosby will be exhibited at Frameworks in Plymouth beginning tomorrow, Nov. 2, and throughout the month of November.

Crosby will exhibit all new paintings at the show. She is currently exhibiting at the International Show of the Niagara Frontier Watercolor Society in Lockport, N.Y.; the Northeast Watercolor Society Show at the Trotting Horse Museum in Goshen, N.Y.; and the Main Gallery at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

The exhibit at Frameworks is a diversified show and includes scenes of Harbor Springs, Bermuda, Hawaii and local scenes.

Crosby was inspired for this show by "The Save the Earth Cards," which were promoted by the Plymouth Community Arts Council. It was a competition for Plymouth school students. She said those cards inspired her to portray her observations of the many ways painting is dependent upon beautiful surroundings and the importance of keeping the earth as nature intended.

Framework is located on Penniman Avenue in Plymouth and is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Sunday. There will be an opening reception Nov. 2 from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Girl Scouts

Sharon Whichello of Northville, who is a volunteer for the Huron Valley Girl Scout council, traveled as a visitor to the 45th National Convention of Girl Scouts at Miami Beach, Florida from Oct. 19-23.

Through participation in floor debates, discussions and voting on proposals, the delegates helped shape the future of Girl Scouting. They heard the National Board of Directors' report on major areas such as program design, membership initiatives, communications, corporate management, fund development campaigns, and international events for girls. It is through this process that the National Council Delegates influence Girl Scout corporate planning and play a major role in the evaluation of organizational effectiveness.

Basket Guild

The Mill Race Basket Guild is getting ready for a Christmas Walk basket sale. Members will be selling their baskets at the Mill Race New School Church on Sunday, Nov. 18, from noon to 5 p.m. Admission is free and open to the public.

The Mill Race Basket Guild, which was organized in 1983, presently has about 12 members and meets the first Wednesday of each month from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The membership is open to experienced basket weavers. Baskets of prospective members are juried. Anyone interested in joining the guild may contact Barbara Teupert, membership chair, at 349-8345.

The focus of the guild is to nurture an interest in basket weaving. It offers support to its sponsor, the Northville Historical Society, by demonstrating basket weaving at the Fourth of July celebration, Colonial Days for the school children in the community, and the Christmas Walk as well as being a contributing member of the society. Members also participate at the Tivoli Fair.

Theater Guild

The Plymouth Theatre Guild, which performs at the Water Tower Theatre on the campus of the Northville Regional Hospital, will start its new season off with a bang with their production of "You Can't Take It With You."

Performance dates are Friday and Saturday nights, Nov. 2, 3, 9, 10, 16 and 17. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

"Dulcimer Lady" Charlene Berry

Northville Woman's Club plans dulcimer meeting

Members of the Northville Woman's Club will hear a performance on the hammer dulcimer, an ancient stringed instrument, at their meeting tomorrow at Mill Race.

Charlene Berry, often referred to as "the Dulcimer Lady," teaches the instrument in Northville as well as other adult education programs.

Berry is currently working on a book about the dulcimer and its use. Berry, a librarian at Madonna College, is a graduate of Wayne State University with BSE, MA and MSE degrees. She frequently performs at concerts, receptions, banquets and festivals.

The meeting will open at 1:30 p.m. with Geraldine Mills presiding.

patterns in the West are similar to those caused by glacial movement in Michigan. Key's love of the outdoors has fostered an interest in orienteering, mushrooming, outdoor survival and photography.

people I know — what they make is the cost of the day care. So there's no point for them to go back to work."

Maise said that, at first, she was concerned about taking her son to a day-care center. "People said, 'Oh, you don't want to take him to a center, it's so impersonal and so commercial.' But if you have to go that route, at least the center is licensed."

She said she likes the fact that most day-care centers will allow parents to drop in at any time to observe. She said she worries about the possibility of child abuse in private home day care.

"When you just look in the newspaper and find someone who stays home with her child and she wants to take in a few more, you don't know what you're getting, even if she has references," Maise said. "I mean, she might be great, or she might be sitting in front of the TV all day, smoking cigarettes and watching soaps while your kid's in the next room screaming . . ."

Karen McLaughlin provides day care in her Northville home for her son (20 months) and three other children, ages 9 months, 19 months, and 2 years. She advertises in the newspaper.

"That's a very, very legitimate concern," she said of Maise's fears about day care in a home setting.

"A lot of people are in fear of child abuse because it's easier for that to happen in a private home. You just have to get to know that day care giver."

McLaughlin said she provides a play area in her finished basement, meals, stories and a loving, one-on-one atmosphere for the children in her home.

"I have worked out of the home also, and I had two children," she said. But with her third child, the financial pressures of day care became too great, and she decided to stay home.

"My home is set up as it would be for them at home," McLaughlin said. "I interact with them, but not constantly. It's just like a child being at home with a brother and sister or a neighbor friend. I provide more of a home environment than a day-care center."

McLaughlin said she believes the best atmosphere for a child is to be "at home with mom and dad," but she recognizes that that's not an option for many parents.

"So I try to give them that atmosphere in my home. A lot of parents have their own ideas, but they have to understand that this is your home and they have to trust you with the child."

"I've only had a problem with one (child's parents)," she explained. "And that was because they wanted the child on a very strict schedule. I told them that I couldn't guarantee that the child would be doing exactly what they wanted at those specific times." McLaughlin recommended to those parents that one of them should stay home with the child.

"If you really feel your child should be brought up a very specific way, you should stay home," she said. "It's very hard to, financially, but . . . I think sometimes people need to look at their priorities."

Because her home is small and because she wants to continue to provide individual attention, McLaughlin said she doesn't take in a lot of children — usually only three or four. "I'm always aware of them and I always know what they're doing," she said.

McLaughlin stopped the interview to cuddle and comfort a crying toddler that had just fallen down.

"I just think the nurturing needs to be there," she said. "There's someone there to hug him. It's one-on-one, with me being aware of his needs immediately. That might not happen in a bigger day-care center."

Each morning, Sandy Rochford drops her 4-year-old daughter Kimberly at a Novi child-care center called A Growing Place before heading to her job as a police officer.

"She's doing very well," Rochford said. "She looks forward to going there."

Rochford said the center is good for her daughter, who is an only child. "She gets to socialize with other kids, learn to share, and act in a group."

When her child was very small, Rochford took her to private home day care like McLaughlin's. "When I looked for a day care home I looked for people I personally knew," she said.

She advised that people who don't personally know the care-giver should check out references and observe the children in the home. "Make sure they're capable of caring for the number of children in the home."

Rochford said it was difficult for her to leave her child in day care when she was very small.

"It's the worst feeling in your life, handing your child over to someone. But in the long run you'll be able to provide more, financially."

"It's great if you have the type of career where you can leave for a few years while your child is small and then go back to it. But if it's the type of career where you can't, there's some sacrifices you have to make."

Rochford thinks her relationship with Kimberly is as good as it would have been if she had stayed home with her.

"When we get home we have things to share with each other," she said. "And when I get home I make it a point — and sometimes it's the hardest thing in the world, but you have to do it — to drop everything and spend time with her."

"It's a major juggling act, but with the help of A Growing Place it's been a lot easier."

Korene Jett, director of A Growing Place, heads a child-care center with a waiting list.

Jett, who holds a degree in early childhood education, said her goal, which she shares with her staff, is to provide positive programs that help children grow and develop through play.

"My personal opinion is if you have a child care center, it's really foolish not to provide good programs," she said. "Children are so open to all sorts of new concepts. Here, they learn to socialize, problem-solve and function with a group."

Jett explained that, during the first five years of a child's life, "all the framework is laid" for the child.

"They learn values and develop their basic approach to life," she said. "Personality affects those things, but so does environment. It's our responsibility to provide a very nurturing program where it's safe for them to learn. If you just stick them in front of a TV, they're not going to get much out of it."

A Growing Place is staffed with teachers who hold degrees in early childhood education, elementary education and special education. There are also assistants, who don't hold degrees.

"I tend to think of A Growing Place as a preschool and a child care center," she said. "But it is a preschool foremost."

Children at A Growing Place range in age from 2 to 5. Jett said their activities are structured to meet their level of development.

"We don't push them. We don't stress them out — we're not teaching them to read. It's very play-based. We let them have their childhood. And they get a lot out of it," she said.

Jett added that "staying at home with mother does have its advantages," but she believes that children who attend some type of preschool activity before kindergarten do better when they're older.

"I can walk into a kindergarten room and I can tell who's never been in preschool," she said. "It's not that the others are backward, but children who have been in programs like ours are perhaps more outgoing, and they know a lot."

"The more you expose children to and the more you allow their freedom to explore, the more they learn. If you put them in a situation where you just want them to be quiet or to watch TV, they'll still learn and develop, but not at the same rate. Allowing children to play and explore helps them reach their potential."

Of course, Jett added, an at-home parent can provide the experiences a child needs to grow.

"Mothers who stay at home can provide the same kind of exploration and activity. It's just that a lot of parents, when they pick up their children, say 'I'm sure glad you do these things, because I don't want to do them.'"

The staff at A Growing Place, Jett said, works to provide a balanced program that allows children to develop in all areas, most importantly self-esteem.

Candy sale raises big bucks for Our Lady of Victory

Profits from OLV's Annual Candy Sale exceeded all expectations this year. Not only did 100 percent of school families participate in the fundraiser but students grossed $40,230 in sales. The enthusiasm and community support for OLV generated by this annual event is what makes it so great. Zigmund Grutza, owner of Papa Romano's is going to give a pizza and pop party in November to celebrate the success of this fundraiser.

Thirty percent of sixth-, seventh- and eighth-graders have qualified as candidates for Northwestern University's Midwest Talent Search. These students have scored in the 95th percentile or better on recent national standardized tests. Students who have earned this honor include: Michael Anderson, Meghan Cuzzillo, Anthony Fessler, Lyndsay Huot, Jackie Korreck, Denise Larabell, Sarah Wright, Rick Kowal, Paul Moore, Michaels Clancy, Joshua Grutza, Casey Holtschneider, Sharyn Sanderson, Sarah Anderson, Brian Buser, Kevin Heintz, Greg Obrecht. They will be given the opportunity to take the SAT or ACT (college entrance exams) this year.

Work again this year at OLV, students in grades K-6 are participating in the Book It Program. After the winter holidays, parent volunteers, Diane Brazunas and Kathy Sanderson will be conducting the Great Books Program in grades 5 and 6.

OLV students have been busy writing letters to our troops in the Persian Gulf. Recently six third graders, Meaghan Blake, Jay Zak, Amy Elschen, Jason Fitzpatrick, Maggie McGlinchey and Michael Shea, received letters from their newfound pen pals in Saudi Arabia.

Dave Marino and Dave Fuelling have been selected to represent OLV on the WJBK-TV2/WTVS-Channel 56 Student Advisory Board. Their responsibilities will include representing the views and ideas of their peers to the media regarding topics of educational interest to today's eighth graders.

The school's PTA had a Road Rally Halloween Party on Saturday, Oct. 27. Members enjoyed dinner and dancing after the fun and games on a scavenger hunt. Many came in costumes of every description to add an extra dimension of merriment to the affair.

Send a soldier a holiday card

Are you looking for a way to send holiday greetings to American soldiers in Saudi Arabia but you don't know where to start?

One good place might be Floral Expressions in Novi.

Floral Expressions is offering a program called "Merry Mailers." For a 25 cent donation, anyone can write a personal message in a Christmas card that will be part of a bulk mailing by the store to soldiers in Saudi Arabia for Project Desert Shield.

The store has a display of free cards to sign and add to the collection.

"It's going really well," said Sher Watkins, owner of the store. "I'm really pleased with the response so far."

Watkins estimated that 75 to 80 percent of customers during the program's first week have participated. "And we have regular customers, who come in maybe twice a week, who have participated more than once," she added.

So far there are about 50 cards ready for the trip overseas.

The program is a general mailing, so nobody has sent cards to individuals. Instead, the messages are simply to let the troops know that people in Novi are thinking of them.

Watkins explained that the idea grew from a small notice in a daily newspaper suggesting that people send Christmas cards to the troops.

"We decided to spread the idea around Novi," she said. "It was just one of those small ideas that grew."

The program will be available throughout the month of November. Shortly after Thanksgiving the cards will be boxed and mailed off.

Watkins said she has already contacted the Novi post office about the mailing.

"They didn't think it would be a problem as long as we wrap it appropriately and there are no religious symbols. Their (Saudi Arabian) government has a very strict censorship program."

To fill out a card, "just stop by and fill out a card and make a 25 cent donation," Watkins said. "The 25 cents is for postage. The card is our donation."

The Grand Opening Benefit Ball was held in the opera house on Dec. 1, 1875 with the Bishop's Opera House Band of Detroit furnishing the music. Tickets were $1 each.

"The hall is the largest in the village, up only one flight of stairs, is centrally located, and easy of access from all parts of the village."

Santa is coming already

Santa will make early visit to nearby college

As the temperature drops and the days grow short, minds begin to turn to the holidays. And Santa Claus is already beginning to show up in the area.

Madonna College in Livonia will host one of Santa's first area appearances at the "Holiday Craft Showcase" Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 3 and 4, 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the College Activities Center.

Featuring different exhibitors each day, the show boasts something for everyone with over 160 crafters and artisans from the Detroit area and out-of-state.

Children may have their photo taken with Santa Claus from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. both days. The "signing" Santa is fluent in American Sign Language for the deaf and hearing impaired who would like to pass on their Christmas wishes to the North Pole.

Big Ten fans need road trip guide

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

The Big Ten likes to refer to itself as "America's Premier Conference." And you can make a good case for the argument.

The Big Ten is a group of large, prestigious public universities (with the exception of prestigious but private Northwestern) with over three million living alumni scattered across the world. Located in one of the largest television markets in the country, the Big Ten is big business when it comes to athletics, and the conference routinely sets new NCAA records for attendance in both football and basketball.

The Big Ten is also noted for rabid fans, who will travel great distances to see their favorite team play — whether its in Iowa City or Ann Arbor. Here is a closer look at the schools, and some information you'll need if you want to make a road trip to see big-time college athletics in person.

ILLINOIS: Located in Champaign, Ill. (enrollment 36,000), the Illini have been championship contenders in both football and basketball for much of the '80s. The gridgers play in Memorial Stadium (capacity 69,200) and the cagers call Assembly Hall (16,153) home. The drive to Champaign from the Northville/Novi area is 367 miles and will take about six and a half hours (based on a 60 mph average). The Illinois athletic ticket office number is (217) 333-3470.

INDIANA: The Hoosiers are noted for basketball, but the football fortunes in Bloomington have risen dramatically in the last five years. Like Illinois, Indiana's football field is called Memorial Stadium (52,324) and the basketball arena is Assembly Hall (17,311). The Indiana campus is 260 miles away and the drive will take roughly 4:20 to complete. Call (812) 855-4006 for the Hoosier Athletic Ticket Office.

IOWA: The Hawkeyes, who have recently exhibited a strong athletic tradition, play football at Kinnick Stadium (67,700) and basketball at Carver-Hawkeye Arena (15,500). A trip to this campus in Iowa City (enrollment 29,000) will take about 9:30 as you must cover nearly 500 miles. The Iowa Athletic Ticket Office number is (319) 335-9327.

MICHIGAN: Located in Ann Arbor (enrollment 35,495), U-M is the two-time defending Big Ten football champ, and has the nation's second-largest facility (101,701-capacity Michigan Stadium) to go with it. The Wolverines play basketball at Crisler Arena (13,609). Plan on a half-hour drive to Ann Arbor. The ticket office can be reached by calling 764-0247.

A.J. Casson's 'White Pine' is on exhibit at the McMichael Canadian Art Collection in Kleinburg, Ontario

Museum celebrates Canadian art

We are all shaped by our environment, and the most important environment in the Canadian mind is wilderness.

Like many of us in Michigan, Canadians spend their childhood summers walking between high trees, paddling canoes across cold lakes, exploring the rock and tree country of the Great Lakes.

Several Canadian artists, known now as the Group of Seven, flowered on that landscape when they created the first real Canadian art tradition in the 1920s.

A couple of Danish Canadians named Robert and Signe McMichael loved the wilderness so much that they built a house of logs in the trees north of Toronto in the 1950s and filled the house with Group of Seven paintings.

The McMichaels were, and are, generous people. In 1965 they gave their house, their land and their art collection to the province of Ontario so that you and I could enjoy it. This year they celebrate the 25th anniversary of the McMichael Canadian Art Collection, appropriately set in a rock and tree landscape north of Toronto.

Surprisingly, very few Michigan travelers see the collection because they don't know it is there. It is a half-hour drive north of downtown Toronto, or you can reach it while driving in on Highway 401 and turning north onto Highway 400. You will soon see two signs—one leads to a theme park called Canada's Wonderland, the other to the McMichael Collection in the small town of Kleinburg.

As you approach the parking lot, you will see a group of rough cut rocks scattered across the top of a small grassy rise between the trees. Those stones mark the graves of five of the Group of Seven painters: A.Y. Jackson, Frank Johnston, Arthur Lismer, F.H. Varley and Lawren Harris.

The last surviving member, A.J. Casson, frail now at age 92, came into the museum this year to arrange his burial on that grassy knoll.

Walk on, through the trees, and you will see the current artist-in-residence at work in the Tom Thompson Shack, which memorializes one of Canada's favorite painters. Thompson was still a young man when he died in a canoe accident while painting in Algonquin Park, north of Toronto, in 1917, leaving the world to wonder what might have been.

The big log and stone building with the cathedral roof and a huge stone bear squatting out front is the museum that dominates these 100-acre grounds. The original building was the McMichael's private home, which has been expanded over the years to hold the world's largest collection of Group of Seven paintings and one of Canada's largest collections of Woodland Indian and Inuit art. Admission is $4 Canadian.

You might find a reception in progress in the high-ceilinged lobby, but what you will notice most is the view out the window. Big green trees soar out of sight, their branches layered back against the sky. A true Canadian landscape.

You will see the same thing on the walls of the introductory gallery, which displays one painting from each of the Group of Seven. It was really a group of eight or nine, most of them commercial artists working for a Toronto studio called GRIP.

They met regularly to grouch about the stuffiness of Canadian art, which was really just the European style transferred to North America, and to dream about a truly Canadian art, one that reflected their own country.

Three things galvanized them into action. An exhibit of Scandinavian wilderness paintings in Buffalo, New York, convinced them that they could paint "true souvenirs of the wilderness."

Thompson had already started traveling in Algonquin Park, where the trees, rocks and water landscape really said "Canada." Lawren Harris, heir to the Massey-Harris fortune, bought a red railway box car to carry the group into the wilderness on summer weekends.

You'll see a lot of small oil sketches along with larger works. And if you look at Casson's paint box exhibit in the first gallery you will understand why. They used 8.5 by 10.5 inch birch panels especially made to fit that box so that each painter could pack it easily into the woods, sketch outdoors during the summer and create the larger finished painting indoors during the winter.

You can see their work grow and diversify as you move from whitewashed walls to log-walled galleries and up ramps with full outdoor views. Eventually you reach the McMichael's old living rooms, where the group's history is told in photographs and other memorabilia.

The McMichaels bought their first painting in five $50 installments in the 1950s—Lawren Harris's "Montreal River, Algoma." Most of the Group of Seven visited the property regularly. A.Y. Jackson lived there during the last six years of his life.

When the McMichaels donated the house and a collection of 175 paintings to the province 25 years ago, Robert McMichael became the first curator of the new provincial museum. He was later replaced by a professional museum staff during a controversy over the quality of artistic preservation.

He and Signe live a few miles away now but are still involved and very visible during this 25th anniversary year.

The museum houses a magnificent collection of Woodland Indian and Inuit art, as well as the work of contemporary Canadian Indian artists. The McMichael is the only major museum with an exclusively Canadian mandate and it takes that mandate seriously.

The artist-in-residence (photo at left) at the McMichael Canadian Art Collection displays one of the masks he has made. Located in Kleinburg, Ontario, the museum houses the world's largest collection of Group of Seven paintings and one of Canada's largest collections of Woodland Indian and Inuit art (above).

The Northville Record

Gridders blank Novi; make playoffs

Roosevelt is next opponent

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

"We're going, man, we're going." Northville's Bill Kelley kept saying it over and over again, like he was trying to believe what he was saying. "I can't believe it," he finally said. "We are going to the playoffs. This is the happiest day of my life."

Kelley and the rest of the Mustang footballers qualified for the MHSAA Class A playoffs for the first time in school history with a 17-0 shutout over arch-rival Novi last Friday (Oct. 26). With the clock ticking down, Kelley stood on the sidelines and hugged anybody who came his way.

"We don't get down," he said. "We always bounce back. This team is very close and we've worked very hard, so it's a great feeling. I was here when we were 3-6 a couple years back, so turning this around really makes you feel good."

The win over Novi upped Northville's record to 6-3 — the program's first winning season since 1985. Coupled with Highland Park's 22-8 loss to Detroit Mumford earlier in the day, the Mustangs knew a win over the Wildcats would secure a playoff berth.

"We knew Highland Park lost and I announced it to the team before the game," Northville Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "I knew the kids could handle it, and they responded."

"We really didn't want to finish 5-4 because that would have meant losses in four of our last five. If that happened, everybody would have said we folded, but we played some very tough teams in that stretch — including Novi."

Northville's first round opponent will be 8-1 Wyandotte Roosevelt on Friday (Nov. 2) at 7:30 p.m. The Bears placed first in the Class A Region IV standings and earned the right to host the first-round game. Northville slipped into the fourth and final position, thanks to some help from Mumford.

"We don't know a whole lot about Roosevelt, but we will by Friday," Schumacher said. "I do know they have an outstanding tailback and they are much bigger, physically, than we are."

Roosevelt's top player is tailback Joe Allano, a junior who's rushed for well over 1,000 yards and scored an amazing 21 touchdowns. Quarterback Dan Yates has rushed for over 100 yards three times and directs the Bears' potent option offense.

"Their tailback is a legitimate big-time player and their quarterback is dangerous," Schumacher said.

Roosevelt won its first-ever Wolverine "A" conference title in '90, and the team's only loss was to Wayne Memorial. The Bears scored 50 points or more on three occasions and added 48 on another and are currently ranked 10th in the state by the Detroit News.

Like Northville, Roosevelt struggled in the mid-to-late '80s but put it all together this season under second-year coach Bart Estola. The Bears and the Mustangs were both 4-5 in 1989 and each program is making its first playoff appearance.

Northville has faced teams that run the option before, but the last time the Mustangs faced a similar offense, Plymouth Salem rolled up nearly 350 yards of offense and won the game 27-13.

The winner of the Northville-Roosevelt clash will play the winner of the Temperance Bedford-Dearborn game in a week, for the right to move into the Class A semifinals.

THE NORTHVILLE JINK?: Novi fell to Northville for the third straight year. The Mustangs have earned possession of the "Baseline Jug" traveling trophy every year since it was introduced by The Northville Record/Novi News Record back in 1988.

After making two straight MHSAA playoff appearances in 1987 and 1988, Novi has missed the last two. Ironically, Northville has knocked the "Cats out of the field both years.

Cagers extend winning streak to six

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

After a slow start, Northville basketball coach Ed Kritch predicted that his team would have to come up with a strong finish to salvage the season and qualify for the WLAAs post-season tournament.

As if on cue, the Mustangs did exactly that. In prep action last week, Northville topped Walled Lake Central and Farmington Harrison to extend its winning streak to six. Since mid-September, the Mustangs have won nine of 12, and now head into the postseason with an 11-5 mark (7-4 in the WLAAs).

"There was a time when we were 0-3 in our division and 1-4 in the conference," Kritch recalled. "That's when I was getting worried about making the playoffs, and I said we needed to wake up and play much better down the stretch."

"I thought all along we had the talent but we weren't playing well together. As the season went on, we developed a commitment to each other and it allowed us to play up to our potential."

ED KRITCH
Northville basketball coach was (who else?) point guard Karen Cavanaugh, who swiped five steals and generally caused havoc in the Harrison backcourt with tenacious, unrelenting pressure.

"Cavanaugh took their point guard completely out of the game at the top of our half-court trap press," Kritch said. "We pretty much did what we wanted to do in the game."

MacInnis paced Northville with 16 points and Holstein added 14 points and 12 rebounds in limited duty. The game's top scorer was Harrison's Heather Hopkins, who scored 18.

NORTHVILLE 45, WALLED LAKE WESTERN 44: The Mustangs kept the streak alive on Oct. 23 with a heart-stopping one-point home victory over the Vikings.

Northville jumped in front 10-2, but Central scored the next 13 points to take a 15-10 first quarter lead. The Vikings slowly pulled away in the middle quarters and built what many thought was a comfortable 39-30 advantage heading into the final period.

But it wasn't comfortable. Behind the scoring of Holstein (eight points in the fourth quarter), the Mustangs climbed back into the game, inched ahead with less than two minutes to play on a three pointer by Karen Pump, and then won it when Kara McNeil nailed two late free throws.

In all, Northville had completed an impressive 15-5 run in the final eight minutes, and held the potent Vikings to just two field goals and no free-throw attempts.

Holstein scored 16 and McNeil wound up with 12 points and 10 rebounds. Central's two inside threats — Kelly Glennie and Jenny Czack — scored 14 and 12 respectively, but were held to just six points combined in the second half.

PLAYOFF UPDATE: The Mustangs have qualified for the WLAAs

Playoffs, and will head in as the No. 5 seed.

Northville will travel to Livonia tonight (Nov. 1) to take on fourth-seeded Stevenson in round one. The clash will be the second meeting between the two teams. The Spartans topped the Mustangs 44-33 back on Sept. 13.

A win there will move the Mustangs into the semifinals on Nov. 6 at home against the Plymouth Salem-North Farmington winner. The finals will also be at Northville on Nov. 10.

Northville retains Baseline Jug, 17-0

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

In what developed into one of the most meaningful Northville- Novi gridiron clashes ever, the opportunistic Mustangs blanked the hard-luck Wildcats 17-0, and now advance to the MHSAA playoffs for the first time in school history.

Northville (6-3 overall) retains the "Baseline Jug" and will open the Class A playoffs tomorrow (Nov. 2) at 7:30 p.m. in Wyandotte against 8-1 Roosevelt (see related story). For Novi (5-4 overall), the regular season ends for the third straight year with a loss to its neighbors to the south. The Mustangs have now knocked the "Cats out of the playoffs the last two seasons.

"I've been here for 17 years, and I think this was the football program's biggest win in that time," Northville Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "It lifts us to a new level. It's great for the program."

When word came from Detroit that Mumford had beaten Highland Park 22-8 last Friday afternoon, the stakes were raised for this heated rivalry. Both teams entered the game knowing the winner would pass Highland Park and claim the fourth and final playoff spot in Region IV. Everyone also knew the loser was out.

"We were aware of the playoff situation," Novi Coach John Osborne said. "But the game itself is so important anyway that we really didn't focus on it."

It was a game of mistakes and breaks, and most of them seemed to go against the Wildcats. A fumbled snap on a punt led to Northville's first score, a tipped ball led to the second, and a tipped ball and catch by an offensive lineman set up the third. In addition, Novi had three touchdowns called back.

"The good Lord was looking down on us," Schumacher said. "We had a lot of breaks go our way."

Despite the breaks, Northville was the team that executed better offensively, came up with the big play in defense, and entered the game relatively healthy. The Wildcats were forced to go without starting quarterback/safety Jeff Schram, who was injured a week earlier.

"Changing quarterbacks like we did put us back," Osborne admitted. "It was like preparing for our game all over again, and we made a lot of first-game mistakes."

The first big mistake came when punter Jason Wladischkin couldn't handle the snap and Todd Osborne recovered the loose ball at the 27. The Mustangs moved inside to five and then settled for a 19-yard field goal by Brandon Hayes.

Neither team scored again in the half, but Novi had many chances. A 44-yard run by Wladischkin later in the first quarter set up a 31-yard field goal try, but Matt Butler's kick was short. Then, Chris Lowery scored what appeared to be a 50-yard touchdown pass from Ryan McCarthy, but a penalty brought it back.

The most important sequence, however, came just before the half. The "Cats moved inside the Northville 10, but failed to score on four straight off-tackle runs by Wladischkin. On the last — on fourth and goal inside the one — Wladischkin was spilled at the line of scrimmage by a host of Mustang players.

"Novi seemed to have us on t ropes early, but the turning point was when we stopped them at the goal line," Schumacher said. "It gave us a big lift. Rick Pierman got (Wladischkin) low and (Bob) Holloway and (Tim) Kerns got him high."

In retrospect, Osborne questioned his own play calling.

"(Northville) was ready for it on fourth down," he said. "We probably should have attempted something else. We thought we scored on third down, so we tried it again."

The Mustangs established control on the second possession of the third quarter. Northville marched 90 yards for the score, a one-yard touchdown plunge by quarterback Ryan Huzjak. A 38-yard scramble by Huzjak moved the ball into Novi territory, and a 13-yard pass from Huzjak to Bill Kelley — which was tipped first by Lowery — helped the Mustangs convert a third-and-12 at the 14.

"That tipped catch by Kelley was one of the greater plays we've had all year," Schumacher said.

The frustration continued for Novi when Daryl Krause rambled 15 yards on the punt early in the fourth, and then fumbled the ball back to Northville's Holloway. The Mustangs then drove 57 yards in just six plays — including the tipped reception by lineman Jason Vertrees — to wrap up the victory.

The march included several big plays, like a 15-yard run by Rob Subotich, a 15-yard pass from Huzjak to Mark Hillinger, and an 18-yard run by Huzjak. Kelley capped it off with a 6-yard scoring run with 8:41 remaining.

"We mixed it up well in that last drive," Schumacher said. "At that time, we just needed another score to secure the win."

His concerns were well-founded because Novi drove the length of the field on the next possession and scored twice on receptions by Lowery, but both were called back because of penalties. The "Cats eventually turned the ball over on downs and Northville's shutout was complete.

"In no way could I have predicted a shutout," Schumacher said. "This game was much closer than the score indicates."

Statistically, the game was close. The Mustangs had a 288-224 advantage in total yardage, but the first downs were even (15-15). Wladischkin had a fine individual game (108 yards rushing and 36 yards receiving), but Northville's attack was more versatile. Huzjak rushed for 85 yards and a touchdown, and was 12-of-17 through the air for 142 yards and a touchdown. Subotich added 60 yards rushing and Kelley hauled in three passes for 53 yards.

Wladischkin was moved from cornerback to linebacker and responded with five solo tackles and five assists to lead the defense.

"Believe it or not, I was pleased with the way we played," Osborne said. "We played hard and the effort was there. Northville has a nice football team. We've had trouble stopping teams this season and they are playing offensively."

The win culminated the first winning season for Northville since 1985. For Schumacher, it was the highlight of his career.

"Going to the playoffs is a great reward for our kids," he said. "Our first goal was the conference title and then the division title. When those didn't happen, it was nice to go for another goal."

Mustang swimmers secure division title

The Mustang swimmers clinched the WLAAs Western Division title by beating a solid Plymouth Canton squad 99-86 on Oct. 25.

The highlight of the meet came when Beth Frayne edged two of the better divers in the region, and she had to break her own varsity record to do it. Frayne's 226.9 score was just 1.7 points ahead of the second-place finisher.

The other winners included Claire Cryderman in the 200-yard freestyle and 500 freestyle, Pam Holdridge in the 200 IM and the 100 butterfly, Jodi Wesley in the 100 freestyle, Megan Holmberg in the 100 backstroke, Teri Juhasz in the 100 breaststroke, the 200 medley relay team (with Holmberg, Juhasz, Holdridge and Jenda Newton), and the 400 freestyle relay team (featuring Wesley, Cryderman, Holdridge and Holmberg).

NORTHVILLE 54, BRIGHTON 35: In a non-conference battle on Oct. 23, the Mustangs handled the visiting Vikings rather easily.

The Mustangs' firsts came from Wesley in the 200 freestyle and 100 butterfly, and in diving, Kristi Wesley in the 100 freestyle, Juhasz in the 100 backstroke, Holdridge in the 400 freestyle, and Wesley, Holdridge, Cryderman and Holmberg. The Mustangs (8-1 overall) have extended their winning streak to five.

Northville runners excel at marathon

Northville running guru Doug Kurtis, 38, added another milestone to his already long list of accomplishments by winning the Detroit Free Press Marathon for the fourth straight year on Oct. 21.

Kurtis won the 13th annual 26.2-mile event through the streets of Windsor and Detroit in two hours, 19 minutes, 36 seconds. Kurtis out-dueled Japan's Watara Adachi by nearly eight minutes and pocketed $2,000 in prize money.

Kurtis set a world record by running a dozen marathons under 2:20 last year, and now has a career total of 54 sub-2:20 efforts. That is 10 shy of the career record of 64, held by Kjell-Erick Stahl of Sweden.

Kickers fall in OT to No. 3 Stevenson

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

The Northville kickers almost did it again.

After battling then-No. 1 Catholic Central to a draw earlier in the season, the Mustangs took No. 3-rated Livonia Stevenson to the wire in the district semifinals on Oct. 24 before falling 1-0 in overtime. The loss wraps up a 7-8-3 campaign for Northville and first-year coach Bob Paul.

"Our guys have just been playing fantastic," Paul said. "We knew we were the overwhelming underdogs, but we played with very ounce of energy we had. To end the regulation at 0-0 was a victory for our kids."

The Mustangs played a strong defensive game, and goaltender Larry Oslecki kept the Spartans out of the net with some spectacular saves. But in the first overtime, with a stiff wind at their backs, Stevenson tallied the game-winner off a corner kick. The shot went across the goal mouth, putting Oslecki out of position, and Matt Grodzicki came in from the opposite wing to hit pay dirt. "We were hoping we could hold on in the overtime because we felt we had a legitimate chance if it went to penalty kicks," Paul said. "With Larry, we are confident in that situation."

NORTHVILLE 2, NORTH FARMINGTON 1 (OT): The Mustangs topped the Raiders for the third time this season on Oct. 22 in the first round of the tournament.

"Even though we beat them two times already, we knew that anything can happen," Paul said. "I was expecting a little letdown, and the score may indicate that, but the kids played well. North Farmington stepped up their play."

Steve Lang scored an unassisted goal 25 minutes into the first half to give Northville the lead. It remained 1-0 until the Raiders tied it with 10 minutes remaining.

The Mustangs then pulled it out when Lou Stoecklin scored five minutes into the first overtime. Matt Oslecki was credited with the assist.

Mustang harriers end year at regionals

Mustang runner Marcie Dart placed 14th at the WLAAs Meet

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Despite an off day from No. 1 runner Marcie Dart, the Northville runners still came up with an impressive performance at the MHSAA Regionals on Oct. 27 at Marshbank Park in West Bloomfield.

The Mustangs placed seventh in the 11-team event with 206 points. Redford Union placed first with 82.

"We went real well," Northville Coach Nick Dunwoodie said. "It was one of our best races of the season."

For the first time in her career, Cheryl Mittman paced the Mustangs and placed 25th overall in a career-best time of 21:31. She was followed by Kamal Bagga in 34th (21:55), Amy Goode in 45th (22:15) and Michelle McQuaid in 57th (22:36).

Dart, who has been the team's No. 1 all season, dropped to 58th place (22:37) but was hampered by a sides-titch pain.

"Marcie was in a great deal of pain and it obviously affected her," Dunwoodie said. "But even if Marcie was 100 percent, we wouldn't have been able to catch (sixth-place) Farmington, who was 43 points ahead of us."

Dunwoodie was hoping for a top-six finish at the WLAAs Meet, but the Mustangs had to settle for seventh place at the 12-team event on Oct. 24 at Cass Benton Park.

"It was real close between the fourth and seventh places — only 29 points — so it was just a matter of a few places," he said. "We ran real well, but the other teams also did well. Overall, the level of competition was much better than it was last year."

Northville scored 149 points, which was 78 points off the pace set by Livonia Stevenson.

"Our times were faster and our point total was the highest it's been since I've been here," Dunwoodie said. "We could have finished anywhere from fourth to seventh."

Dart placed 14th overall (21:17) and earned All-Division honors. She was followed by Bagga in 27th (21:52), Goode in 28th (21:52), Mittman in 30th (22:03), and McQuaid in 50th (23:21). The times by Bagga, Goode and Mittman were career-best efforts at Cass Benton.

"Our last two races were our best two of the year," Dunwoodie said, "so I have no complaints. You want to peak at the end of the season, and that's what we did."

BOYS CROSS COUNTRY: The Mustang boys harriers wrapped up their season with the best performance of the year at the MHSAA Regionals on Oct. 27 at Marshbank Park in West Bloomfield.

Northville scored 227 points and grabbed seventh-place honors in the 19-team competition. The highlight was a top-10 overall finish by Steve Coon (17:07), which earned him All-Region status and a spot as an individual in the MHSAA State Meet this weekend. However, Coon's time was 12 seconds slower than his fourth-place effort on the same course in last year's regional.

But in a curious move, Coon has decided to end his season now and forgo an opportunity to compete at the state meet.

"We discussed it at length and decided it's better for (Steve) to end his season now," Mustang Coach Ed Gabrys said. "He gave it a lot of thought and I concur with his decision."

Gabrys declined to explain the reasons behind the decision.

The rest of the Northville finishers included Jamie Groves in 48th (18:36), Andy Haas in 52nd (18:42), Doug Huntington in 58th (18:46), Parag Parikh in 64th (18:53), Mike Conery in 68th (18:56) and Chris Smith in 96th (20:09).

"Five of our top seven kids had their best times at Marshbank, so we ran very well overall," Gabrys said.

The Mustangs didn't perform as well at the 12-team WLAAs Meet on Oct. 24 at Cass Benton Park, and had to settle for eighth place.

"We had some good runs, but it didn't compare with the regional," Gabrys said. "We had two career bests and three come close, but it was on our home course. If I had to give it a grade, it would have been a 'B.'"

Coon placed 10th overall to grab all-Division honors for the second year, but his time of 17:17 was a full 21 seconds off his best. The rest of the Mustang contingent included Groves in 33rd (18:32), Parikh in 38th (18:37), Haas in 54th (19:10), Conery in 55th (19:10), Huntington in 59th (19:12) and Dave Borg in 74th (20:32).

"Haas had a bad day but he was slowed by stomach cramps," Gabrys explained.

Training facilities provide variety

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

For many, the end of summer also brings to an end a large portion of exercising activities.

One alternative to becoming a winter couch potato is weight resistance training. The Northville-Novi area, like many other communities, offers a variety of health club facilities for residents hoping to shed a few pounds or add a little muscle to their frames.

"We have, basically, a free-weight gym," said Rod Sickels, manager of Bo's Gym in Novi. "It is strictly a workout facility."

The gym, located at 24083 Meadowbrook Road, offers patrons all the equipment needed to firm up or add muscle. Free-weights, universal weight resistance machines, stairmaster and lifecycles are some of the equipment offered by the gym.

"It's not an intimidating atmosphere," Sickels said. "This gym is more for people that have a concern for overall health and fitness."

To help reduce fear about coming into the gym, he said, beginners can sign up for weight training instruction. Beginners are taught the proper techniques and exercises for particular areas of the body that they want to develop.

Most often, the beginner is then put on a three-day-a-week program. "As you become more advanced, you can go up to a six-day-a-week program," Sickels said.

Aspiring weightlifters should begin to feel better and notice changes in their bodies in a short period of time.

"You will notice changes in about six weeks," Sickels said. "People that haven't seen you in a while will notice the changes."

Bo's Gym is open every day, offering patrons plenty of hours to pump up. The gym offers memberships with prices ranging from a few dollars for a day, to $275 for a year.

Having to make a short drive shouldn't deter those in search of a good workout. Like Bo's Gym, Powerhouse Gym in Union Lake offers patrons a multitude of free-weight equipment. The gym also offers Nautilus weight machines and aerobic equipment for a full workout.

"The gym draws customers from Novi, Milford, Walled Lake and West Bloomfield," said co-owner Mario Bitonti. "We have a good mix of women and men from 16 to 75 years old."

A large portion of Powerhouse's patrons are serious about weight training, he said, but the gym isn't "hard-core."

"I want a place for everybody, not just body builders," Bitonti continued. "There is a big move toward fitness, everybody wants to work out."

Novi and Northville residents looking for a combination of weight training and other physical activities may find Bally's Vic Tanny Health Club the best choice for their exercising dollar.

For weight lifters, the Novi club offers Nautilus, Universal and free-weight equipment. Lifecircuit, cycles and rowers, Stairmaster and Versaclimbers are available for an aerobic workout.

Aerobic classes, a padded jogging track and racquetball courts provide the club's other exercising alternatives. In addition, an indoor pool, sauna and whirlpool let patrons unwind.

The club, located at 43055 Crescent Drive in Novi, has 30,000 square feet available for working out. Bally's is open seven days a week.

Although one may not think of a tanning salon as a health club, a deep tan is often associated with being in good physical condition.

"A tan makes you look healthier," said Becky Jones, an employee of Tropical Tan Lines in Novi, "not pasty-white."

Winter months are traditionally the busiest months for the salon, she said. People leaving for vacations or just trying to keep a year-around tan are the company's steady customers, Jones added.

Tropical Tan Lines offers one tanning bed, two standing booths and facial tanning. The salon also offers "tanning enhancers," Jones said.

"We get a lot of people from Vic Tanny's," she said. "We also get a lot of body builders."

Syptoms, treatment for strep throat examined

By GAIL FINCH
Special Writer

A common illness in children is streptococcal pharyngitis, more commonly known as strep throat. This disease occurs most often from October through April. Although anyone can get strep throat, it is most common in ages five to 10. It is caused by the bacteria streptococcus pyogenes (group A streptococcus).

Strep throat is spread by direct person-to-person contact via droplets of saliva or nasal secretions. Symptoms of strep throat include fever (101 to 104 degrees), sore throat with pain on swallowing, red throat, enlarged tonsils with white patches, swollen glands along the jaw line, a generalized achy feeling and weakness. Some children may complain of abdominal discomfort. The incubation period is one to five days.

These symptoms can also occur in viral pharyngitis, for which there is no curing medication; only rest and time will help. If your child has a sore throat and a fever, he or she should be taken to a physician, since it is difficult to distinguish strep throat from viral pharyngitis.

Most physicians will diagnose strep throat by doing a rapid strep screen or throat culture.

If your child has a diagnosed strep throat, the doctor will treat it with an antibiotic. The prescription will usually be for seven to 10 days. It is important that you give your child the entire prescription, even if they feel better. This gives the antibiotics time to kill all of the strep bacteria in the body. Complications of strep throat, if not treated, are rheumatic fever and severe kidney infections.

Your child should not be contagious after 24 hours of the start of antibiotics and may return to school after the 24 hours if there is no fever and if the child feels well enough to stay in school for the whole day.

Sometimes a rash will occur after strep throat. We then call it scarlet fever or scarlatina. The child will have all the symptoms of strep throat plus a fine erythematous (feels like sandpaper) rash. It resembles sunburn with goose bumps. The rash usually appears first on the upper chest then spreads to the neck, abdomen, legs and arms. The tongue may have a strawberry color and texture.

If your child has a sore throat and a rash, you should take him or her to a physician. Antibiotics will cure scarlet fever and again all the prescription should be given.

Important facts to remember:

- A child with a sore throat and a fever (with or without rash) should be checked by a physician.
- If strep throat is diagnosed, take all the antibiotics prescribed to avoid complications.
- Keep the child isolated for the first 24 hours after the antibiotic is started. Offer rest and lots of fluids.
- School and activities may start after 24 hours of antibiotics if the fever has gone and the child feels well enough to participate.

NORTHVILLE: A SHINING EXAMPLE

Northville's historic district continues to shine as an example of balancing beautifully-kept neighborhoods with a thriving downtown business area. Whether you visit Northville regularly, or plan to come for the first time, a number of discoveries await you.

Mill Race Historical Village is located on the outskirts of downtown and features an interesting array of restored buildings that represent the early stages of Northville development. The east end of Main Street features the Northville well, where folks still come from miles around to fill jugs by the gallon with fresh delicious water. Henry Ford's original "cottage industry" plant is located near the well, and while no longer operational, it provides a pleasing back-drop to a large number of waterfowl that call Northville home. And be sure to spend time in our lovely downtown business district. There are many reasons to come to Northville, but the downtown continues to be the community's heart. The merchants of downtown Northville welcome you, and will do all that they can to make your visit a pleasant one.

A SHOPPING ALTERNATIVE

For the Holidays

If you are looking for a shopping alternative to crowded, impersonal malls and strip centers, you need look no further. Downtown Northville features over 70 shops and services and is a splendid place to do your holiday shopping. Old style charm and personality abound in our well-preserved Victorian buildings, which house a variety of businesses and handle virtually every item on your gift list. Friendly, personalized service is standard for each customer.

Most downtown merchants will be open Thursday nights until 8 p.m. for your shopping convenience during November and December. Make a point to visit Northville in the evening, when holiday lights and decor create a mood that you may have thought existed only in the movies.
