Glorious playoff journey comes to a last-minute end

Chief Toms to step down

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Two weeks of fishing in the balmy climes of Florida helped convince township Fire Chief Robert Toms that it was time to hang up the boots.

Toms, the colorful co-founder of the township fire department and 42-year firefighting veteran, Monday announced he will step down from his position at the end of January.

Toms informed Supervisor Georgina Goss of his intentions Monday morning.

"I'm so tanned and relaxed that I just told them I quit," Toms said, after emerging from Goss' office. "I built their fire department and now I've had enough."

Toms' departure was not completely unexpected, Goss said, but the announcement still had a big im-

Theft suspect nabbed at scene

An early-rising restaurant owner may have helped police foil a robbery attempt at his Northville Township business Monday morning.

Robert Ruffe, owner of Ruffe's Restaurant, 18730 Northville Road, entered the front door of the restaurant at approximately 5:10 a.m. and heard "loud banging noises", according to township police Sgt. John Sherman.

Ruffe alerted township police, who surrounded the restaurant, Sherman said.

Moments later, a man identified as Livonia resident Michael Brian Moesta, 31, emerged from the back door of the restaurant, police allege.

Moesta was arraigned Monday at 35th District Court. He faces a Nov. 26 preliminary exam on a breaking and entering charge and is currently lodged in Wayne County Jail.

Police said Moesta was holding "over $2,000 in property" when he was arrested.

According to township police reports, Ruffe said he arrived at the restaurant at 5:10 a.m. and heard loud noises and hammering. He contacted police, who responded and witnessed a broken lock on a glass and steel security door. Pry marks were noticeable on the door, police said, and the door was not locked shut.

Ten minutes after police first arrived, they allege that Moesta walked out of the building on a rear kitchen door. Police said he had a set of keys in one hand and restaurant property in the other.

Moesta dropped the property when police identified themselves, but did not resist arrest. Police said Moesta's 1986 Toyota was parked behind the building and said it did not appear that he was working with an accomplice.

A search of the restaurant did not reveal other suspects, police said.

Moesta was also carrying what police called "a suspected crack cocaine pipe."

Moesta has prior convictions for armed robbery and counterfeiting, according to police records.

Christmas Walk

Bruce Turnbull takes a turn around Mill Race Historical Village on Sunday as part of the annual Christmas Walk. People packed into Mill Race and the downtown area to shop, stroll and enjoy the holiday atmosphere. For more pictures of the day, see page 8-A.

Auctions speak louder than words

Santa Claus is comin' to town! And he's bringing two auctions along with him.

The Downtown Merchants Association is hosting its first annual Silent Holiday and Grab Bag Auctions. The items will be auctioned off Sunday in conjunction with Santa Parade festivities at the Main Street bandshell near the Victorian clock.

The annual Santa Parade through town starts at 1 p.m. this Sunday, Nov. 25. It will feature floats, marchers, music, and of course the arrival of Santa Claus.

The parade travels through downtown, starting at the Northville Community Center on Main. It will move east on Main to Hutton, north on Hutton to Dunlap, west on Dunlap to Center, and south on Center back to Main.

And then there are the auctions. The Silent Holiday Auction will be held from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, while the Grab Bag Auction will be held 4-5 p.m.

The items to be auctioned off are on display at Manufacturers Bank, 129 E. Main St.

The donated items include wreaths, winter clothing, Christmas ornaments and decorations, and music boxes, just to name a few.

Proceeds from the auction will benefit the Northville Kiwanis Club and promotional programs by the Merchants Association.

More than 60 Northville businesses have already donated items to the auctions. Anyone wishing to make a donation is asked to call Toni Genitti at 349-0522.

pact Monday at township hall.

"It's truly a major loss to the community," Goss said of the 64-year-old fire chief. "He started the department from scratch and was only going to (work) a couple of years."

"He is a township institution (and) we'll all miss him."

Township Manager Richard Henningsen said Toms had dropped retirement hints in the past, but had never really set a date.

"People should appreciate his efforts," he said. "He's built the fire department from nothing and now we've got a pretty good department."

"I think it just gets tough getting up at 4 a.m. and putting on the boots to go to a barn fire," Henningsen said.

Toms signed on with the township in July 1977 to build a fire department. He had retired from the Detroit Fire Department in 1974, but agreed to return to the hot seat because he "wanted to do something for the place I lived."

Toms spent the past two weeks at his Panama City, Fla., retreat, pulling trout and flounder from the Gulf of Mexico. He said he longed for more freedom than his job could afford and realized it was time to step aside.

"After 42 years, it's time to hang it up," he said. "I've probably fought 80-90,000 fires and that's enough."

"I'm getting older and I'm getting tired of sitting on the edge of the bed (waiting for an alarm). I want the freedom to come and go when I want."

The township must find a new fire chief for the first time in 13 years. Goss said it was too early to tell which way the township board would go in a search for his successor.

Assistant Fire Chief Rick Rosselle is waiting in the wings and he received strong support from his boss. "I highly recommend my assistant chief to take over my position," Toms said. "He's got all the qualifications." Goss would not commit to Rosselle.

"We've never been through this process," she said. "(But) our assistant fire chief is a well-trained firefighter, there's no doubt about that." Toms admitted to being discouraged by recent battles over a township fire millage. He said the millage controversy may have greased the pole for his slide into retirement.

"I've killed myself trying to make the fire department run in the most economical fashion," he said. "When people say we're wasting money, or don't need what we ask for, it hurts."

But Toms does not plan to enter retirement on a down note. Instead, he thinks about gulf breezes and good fishing.

"I'm still fairly healthy," he said. "There's still lots of things I'd like to do."

I LOVE A PARADE: The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce is seeking people to participate in the annual Santa Parade through town, scheduled this year for this Sunday, Nov. 25.

Individuals or groups interested in marching or sponsoring a float are encouraged to call the chamber office at 349-7640.

PARKING PERMIT RENEWALS: Northville city residents who park overnight on city streets or in city parking lots must renew their overnight parking permits before Jan. 1, 1991. The $5 yearly permits exempt residents from the city-wide ordinance that prohibits parking on city streets or lots between 2:30-7 p.m. The permits can be renewed at Northville City Hall, 215 W. Main St., and are available now.

CHAMBER SEEKS PHOTOS . . . The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce is looking for photos of the second Victorian Festival. Anyone willing to share their pictures is asked to contact the chamber at 349-7640 or to drop the photos off at 195 S. Main St.

AND PHOTOGRAPHERS: The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce hopes to find a photographer to take Victorian-style pictures at the 1991 Victorian Festival. Chamber Director Laurie Marrs said the festival may include a setup where people can have their picture taken in the old photographic style in Victorian costume.

She asked that anyone who knows of a photographer able to do this type of work call the chamber office at 349-7640.

VICTORIAN VIDEO: Anyone with a videocassette recorder may relive this year's Northville Victorian Festival with a special 20-minute videotape available to take out from the Northville Public Library. The tape is with the library's regular video collection.

VICTORIAN PARADE: Still basking in the glow from Northville's second annual Victorian Festival? Can't wait for next year's edition? The long time between festivals may be eased somewhat with a trip to Ypsilanti on Dec. 1 for a Victorian Parade in that city's Depot Town.

Ypsilanti officials are sending out a call to Northville Victorian Festivalgoers that they need marchers for their parade. Anyone with an appropriate costume is welcome and encouraged to march in the half-hour parade in Ypsilanti.

For more information call Steve Gross at 482-1780.

HOST FAMILIES NEEDED: The American Institute for Foreign Study seeks host families in the area to host teen-agers from South America, Europe and Asia.

Students will arrive in mid-January and live with their host family until mid-June, attending the host family's local high school. No fee is charged to the host family. Families are also needed for students who will arrive in mid-August for the 1991-92 school year.

For more information call the AIFS local representative in Plymouth, Lynne Levenbach, at 453-8562.

NORTHVILLE PLAYERS: The Northville Players present "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever" the weekend of Dec. 7-9.

The play will be performed at 8 p.m. Dec. 7, 2 and 8 p.m. Dec. 8, and 2 and 5 p.m. Dec. 9 at Mill Race Historical Village, on Griswold between Main Street and Eight Mile.

Tickets are $5 each, and only 75 are available for each performance. They are available at Bookstall on the Main, 116 E. Main, 348-1167; or from Judy Kohl, 348-2678.

Holiday festivities under way

Other local holiday projects are well underway. They include:

GIFTS FOR HOSPITAL: Once again Phil Ogilvie is heading up efforts to provide holiday gifts for the patients at the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital on Seven Mile Road.

The facility houses about 700 patients, 65 to 70 percent of which are males. Most of them have no family support, and without donated gifts they may have a disappointing Christmas.

The patients need sweaters, knit hats and gloves, pajamas, purses and blouses for women, shirts and wallets for men, and cigarettes. Cash donations are also welcome, payable to the NRPH Patient Benefit Fund.

Gifts should be wrapped, and on the outside should be written an indication of what it contains. Deliver gifts to Ogilvie's office at 104 W. Main St. in Northville no later than Dec. 19.

CIVIC CONCERN FOOD DRIVE: The Civic Concern Committee — serving those in need in Northville, Novi, Livonia, Farmington, and Farmington Hills — is planning its annual holiday food drive.

Items needed for distribution include canned goods (especially fruit), paper products, soaps, cereal, toiletries, diapers, frozen products and money donations. Some diabetics also need special products. This collection also supplements the group's regular, biweekly food boxes for families and senior citizens.

Food or individual donations may be taken to the Scout Building, 215 W. Cady St., from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays. Clothing to donate may be taken to Holy Family Catholic Church, 24505 Meadowbrook Road, Novi, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Civic Concern is a nonprofit, entirely volunteer organization. For more information call 344-1033.

CANDY CANE FUNDRAISER: Grandma Betty's Sweets & Treats, 124 N. Center St., has set aside special holiday candy canes to raise funds for Civic Concern. The candy canes cost 50 cents each, and all the proceeds from their sale will go to Civic Concern.

WINDOW CONTEST: The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce is again sponsoring its window

decorating contest this year.

Judging will be done Nov. 25, the date of the Santa Parade.

There are three categories: clothing stores, services and restaurants, and general and gifts. The chamber will also award a single President's Award for the best overall window.

Windows will be judged on a basis of 50 possible points. Originality is worth up to 10 points; creativity, up to 20; and overall theme and impression, up to 20.

For more information call the chamber at 349-7640.

ROTARY LUMINARY SALE: The Northville Rotary Club is selling luminaries for the Christmas season.

Kits cost $6 each, with the Rotary supplying free delivery to subdivisions in quantities. Each kit contains twelve white bags, twelve six-inch plumbers candles, and two bags of sand.

The kits may be purchased at News Printing, 560 S. Main St. (next to Allen Monuments), 349-6130, Pat Bradley, Monday through Friday; or downtown Northville by the clock on Sunday, Nov. 18 and 25, and also Saturday, Dec. 22.

GOODFELLOWS PAPER SALE: The Northville Rotary Club will hold the annual Goodfellows Paper Sale in conjunction with The Northville Record on Saturday, Dec. 8 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Rotary members and other volunteers will sell special editions of the newspaper to raise money for needy children during the holiday season.

DECORATION DONATIONS: The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce asks businesses to donate money to help meet the cost of the downtown Christmas decorations.

The chamber asks as a general guideline $30 per professional office and $45 per retail business or industry.

Donations cover the cost of the street and mall decorations (greens, bows, lights and bulbs), Santa, taped music through chime speakers on the clock, a live band dressed in period costume, advertising on radio stations.

For more information call the chamber at 349-7640.

Dice game investigation leads to man's arrest

City police arrested a 20-year-old Detroit man at 11:15 p.m. Nov. 17 while investigating a reported dice game in a men's restroom at Northville Downs. The man was wanted by Pontiac police for failure to appear on a charge of driving an uninsured vehicle and driving with an expired license plate. He was held on $1,000 bond until picked up by the Pontiac police.

LARCENY FROM HIGH SCHOOL LOCKER: A wallet containing $80 in cash was stolen from a Northville High School locker sometime between 10:30 a.m.-12:10 p.m. Nov. 16. The blue wallet was decorated with red flowers, and contained a student's keys, permit and boat license as well as the cash. The combination locker was reportedly locked before the theft.

DRUNKEN DRIVING: A 48-year-old Dearborn Heights man was arrested for operating under the influence of liquor at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 17, after city police saw his car swerve onto the shoulder of Seven Mile Road and Edward Hines Drive several times. The man was driving west on Seven Mile and Hines when he was stopped. He had a prior conviction for driving while impaired and OUIL.

FENDER-BENDERS: City police reported two accidents last week. A car parked at the corner of Jeffery and South Ely was struck by an unknown vehicle sometime between 2-11 p.m. Nov. 16. The same night, a 16-year-old Northville boy turning into the parking lot at 217 N. Wing St. struck the curb and drove up on the sidewalk. No damage was reported, and no citation was issued.

VEHICLE STOLEN FROM

MEIJER LOT: A 1987 red and gold Chevrolet Blazer reportedly was stolen from the parking lot at Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, Nov. 13, township police said.

A Meijer employee told police he parked the vehicle in the southwest portion of the lot at 5 a.m. The vehicle was still in the lot at 10 a.m., but was missing at 1:30 p.m., police said. Police found no physical evidence of the theft at the scene.

LARCENY AT MEIJER: A 26-year-old Detroit woman was arrested and charged with larceny after she attempted to steal candle holders and a bud vase from Meijer Nov. 14 at 10:25 a.m., township police said.

LICENSE PLATE STOLEN: An Old Bedford resident told township police someone stole a license plate from his Dodge B250 late Nov. 12 or early Nov. 13.

MEIJER LARCENY: A 49-year-old Livonia man was arrested Nov. 15 and charged with larceny after he attempted to steal a 50-piece silverware set and a hunting knife, township police said.

BOAT STOLEN: A paddle boat valued at $502 was reported missing from a Swan Lake residence, according to township police reports. The complainant told police the theft occurred between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15, but he waited until recently to report the incident because the boat has been missing before but "usually shows up."

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Policy addresses traffic problems

Many local governments are neglecting traffic engineering—the science of moving vehicles more efficiently and safely than they're doing now.

So says the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, which deplores the 190,000 crashes, 600 deaths, 56,000 injuries and costs of $1.7 billion that occur each year in the seven-county region.

SEMCOG's newly adopted Regional Traffic Safety Policies says: "Fourteen communities have a population greater than 50,000. For communities this size, the Federal Highway Administration recommends a full-time professional traffic engineer on staff."

"Yet... only six employ a full-time traffic engineer," said the report, offered by Donald Jensen, an Oakland County commissioner from Birmingham.

The policy, adopted unanimously, advocates:

- More college programs in, and local use of, traffic engineers.
- More truck inspections. Michigan's limit of 1,674,000 pounds is double the limit of any other state. Only three states allow semi-trailer lengths greater than Michigan's 53 feet.

- Better screening of drivers over age 55. They are twice as likely to be involved in fatal accidents as the 25-54 age group. More roadway design research is needed to understand elderly drivers' reaction times and vision.
- Efforts to reduce crashes at highway construction and maintenance work zones, where 4,165 accidents occurred in 1987.
- A tighter definition of drunk driving.

ing through lowering the allowable blood alcohol content, currently 0.10 percent.

- Greater consistency in court sentencing of drunk drivers. District judges were praised for their program in this area.
- More use of seat belts, including making failure to wear a belt a "primary" offense for which police may stop a driver.
- Licensing, more training and higher standards for emergency medical service (EMS) personnel.

- More comprehensive traffic records, particularly by local government, which maintain 70 percent of all roadways in southeast Michigan.

Gunman sought in kidnapping

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A chain-smoking gunman abducted two men from a Northville Township car wash Nov. 17 and later robbed them near a Detroit street corner, township police said.

The two victims, both 18-year-old Livonia residents, said a white male abducted them from National Pride Car Wash on Five Mile east of Haggerty at approximately 4 p.m. The victims told police the man threatened several times to kill them and forced the pair to drive him to the Five Mile/Lahser intersection.

The man robbed the victims of $40 and fled the scene on foot, police said.

The Livonia men were uninjured, police said. "The guy just came around the corner of the car wash and pointed a handgun at them," said township police Det. Fred Yankee. "They said he threatened to kill them."

Police did not have a composite sketch of the man by press time Monday. Yankee said a suspect has not been identified and added that police are still working to obtain the gunman's description.

Yankee said the man was described simply as a "white male, in his 30s or 40s."

The victims also told police the man was smoking during the incident.

The victims could not identify the type of handgun used in the incident, police said.

Yankee said police are investigating the abduction scene and have followed up on leads. He said others may have seen the man prior to the abduction.

"I think he'd been walking around there a little while," he said.

Turn lane added at MainCentre

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Drivers heading north on Center Street may soon be able to make a move that's been illegal for 16 years.

City officials approved a plan to install a center lane for northbound traffic on Center at Main, to allow drivers to turn left onto Main.

Left turns have been illegal at the intersection since 1974 because of the poor sight distance north on Center south of Main. But Singh Development's regrading of Center in conjunction with their MainCentre development will improve the sight distance enough to allow left-hand turns.

The regrading will allow drivers heading north on Center to see at least 150 feet north, to spot southbound vehicles.

The city council originally approved a Center Street redesign which added 14 parallel-parking spaces along the street. The new plan

"I suggest we go with this (plan for a center lane on Center Street) first, because we can always replace the parking later."

STEVEN WALTERS
Northville City Manager

will do away with three of those spaces along the east side of the street north of Mary Alexander Court, and install a center lane for northbound traffic.

The lost parking spaces would have been between 1 and 3 feet above the sidewalk grade on the east side of Center, and would have required steps down to the sidewalk. "You eliminate the need for steps . . . where the heights are the most severe," City Manager Steven Walters told the council.

"I suggest we go with this (center lane plan) first, because we can always replace the parking later," Walters said.

City officials hope the new plan will improve downtown traffic circulation, and say that the move may allay the danger of vehicles sliding on the hill when ice forms on the road, because fewer cars would have to stop on the slope of the hill.

Council Member Dewey Gardner opposed the plan at first, saying he liked the protruding landscaped island on either side of Center Street in the original street design. When

Council Member Paul Folino said, "that's the trade-off for improving the traffic pattern," Gardner replied, "I don't think we need to make trade-offs."

But he eventually deferred to the rest of the council, saying, "If you could embellish the Mary Alexander Court area, I think it would work."

Council member Jerry Mittman also was opposed to the plan at first, but for a different reason. While the plan first designated the center lane as a left-turn lane, Mittman argued that using the center lane for both left-turning and through traffic and designating the right lane as right-turn-only might make for a better traffic flow pattern.

The council finally voted to go with the center lane plan, while postponing a decision on a left- or right-turn lane.

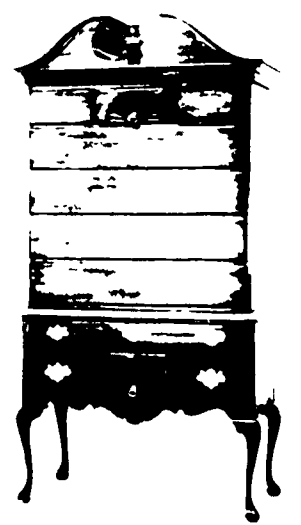

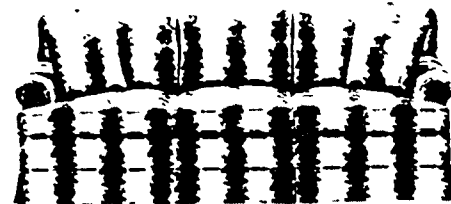

City officials plan to have Center Street reopened and the barricades on the south side of Main west of Center removed within two weeks.

TIPS FROM TUCHKLAPER Novi Dental Center A. Allen Tuchklaper D.D.S.

PROTECTING PRIMARY TEETH

By the time your child is five or six, all of his primary teeth will have formed. Then the process begins of acquiring the permanent teeth that can last a lifetime with good dental care.

As the primary teeth gradually loosen and fall out, they are soon replaced with permanent teeth. But what about a primary molar tooth that is lost well ahead of its time, long before the permanent tooth is ready to erupt. If this should happen to your child, see your dentist for treatment.

If that space remains vacant for a long time, the teeth on either side of it will try to fill the space. This will throw them out of line and may cause the permanent teeth to come in crooked.

To protect your child's permanent teeth, any primary molar tooth lost ahead of time should be replaced by a space maintainer until the permanent tooth is ready to erupt. If this should happen to your child, see your dentist for treatment.

Elitist tone overheard in master plan draft

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The city planning commission's final draft of the 1990 Master Plan has come under fire for its "elitist" tone from the city council and other city officials.

The draft — the result of two years of meetings by the planning commission — was the subject of close scrutiny at a recent joint meeting between the commission, council, historic district commission and downtown development authority.

The master plan provides "a legal basis for any zoning changes," planning consultant Don Wortman explained during the meeting. "But also, and I think more importantly, the master plan provides guidance to the community over the next five years."

"It tries to give the community a road map as to where you are headed," he said.

The heart of the plan is a land-use map to assist future city planners, Wortman said, "especially in terms of future rezoning, and what is our idealized picture of what this community should be in 20 years."

"It may not all be practical but it's certainly what we'd like to head for," he said.

Wortman said the land-use plan showed few changes north of Eight Mile Road from the current zoning map, except for its designation of the northwest corner of Center Street and Ely Drive North as a park. The land use plan also adds an "Office/Research" category, and shows slight expansion of the Central Business District east and south of its present boundaries.

If the master plan acts as a road map for the community's future, some city officials did not seem happy with the direction in which the draft led.

"The master plan provides guidance to the community over the next five years. It tries to give the community a road map as to where you are headed . . . It may not all be practical but it's certainly what we'd like to head for."

DON WORTMAN
Planning Consultant

Officials were most concerned with sections of the plan that suggested revising single-family (R-1A and R-1B) zoning districts. Council Member Carolann Ayers asked, "So the idea of the master plan is to have larger lots, which means higher land costs, which means that we want to move the city to a more elitist, more restrictive community?"

Planning Commission Chairperson John Hardin replied that the commission's intent was to maintain the existing neighborhoods when lots are rebuilt, not make them more exclusive. "We were concerned that whatever goes back into place fits the character of the neighborhood, so that it isn't destroyed by infill more dense than the existing area," he said, "not to create larger lots per se."

Wortman agreed, saying, "It wasn't so much to create anything exclusive or elite, or shut anybody out of the community."

But other officials were reluctant to drop the matter. City Manager Steven Walters asked why the plan proposed changing some neighborhoods from their existing R-1B designation to a more restrictive R-1A, when most neighborhoods are already R-1B in character.

Wortman downplayed the proposed change, saying, "Ultimately, you have your existing zoning, and you're not going to be able to take a use away from existing landowners . . . This is a policy statement, so it would not kick in unless someone comes in for a higher density."

But Walters continued to argue that the master plan was, indeed, proposing to take a potential land use away from landowners. "The master plan's projecting making that more restrictive in the R-1B area," he said.

Walters also found fault with a policy statement that linked residential infill and a neighborhood's density. "Density is not the number of houses but the number of houses per acre," he said.

Ayers urged that the plan be reworded to avoid even the appearance of elitism. "Oftentimes we are looked upon as kind of an elitist group," she said. "We already say if our children moved here they couldn't afford it, and if I had to move here now, I probably couldn't afford it."

Said Wortman, "I don't think the planning commission was talking about an elitist-type situation."

Wortman said the language in the master plan could be toned down to avoid such an impression: "If the language has a flavor which is elitist, I think that should be changed."

But, he continued, "We're a long way from rezoning."

Wortman said part of the reason behind the planning commission's proposal was the fear of an overabundance of condominiums and cluster housing.

Walters disagreed. "It has nothing to do with cluster housing or multiple-family (housing) because that's not allowed (in R-1B) anyways," he said.

Council Member Paul Folino asked about the projected extension of the Central Business District (CBD). Wortman said, "We're not proposing extending commercial, we're talking about more clearly defining the CBD, and more clearly reflecting what is actually there now . . . We purposely tried to avoid getting down to the specific zoning issues."

In response to another question, Wortman said the intent of the "Commercial Corridor" designation in the land-use plan was to begin addressing potential traffic improvements to the city's two major traffic corridors — Center Street and Northville Road/S. Main. The designation calls for minimizing curb cuts, increasing landscaping and screening off-street parking areas.

"The plan, I think, does a good job of scratching the surface, but a more detailed plan is needed," Wortman said.

Downtown Development Authority (DDA) Member Margie Davis objected to what she called "an overemphasis on Victorian" in the plan. "I think it would be a horror if this turned into a toy town," she said.

But Hardin said the term was not meant to suggest strict adherence to a particular architectural style. "I don't think we were trying to dictate tastes," he said.

DDA Member Greg Presley suggested changing "Victorian" to "Historic," a suggestion which was well-received.

Even the loop road controversy reared its head during the master plan review, during discussion of a street and circulation improvement policy which advocated "safe and efficient access around the perimeter of the downtown area."

"It's the non-Loop Road," said Planning Commissioner Chris Galloway. "You might as well hide it."

But Hardin said the master plan statement does not refer to the original Loop Road proposal. "We don't want a loop," he said. "We want to that is going to take a significant effort and a significant funding source . . . This year, nothing's coming out of the general fund."

Folino agreed, saying, "There ain't none."

Wortman agreed to consider adding a statement to the plan saying, "If funds become available."

Folino also criticized a parks and recreation action plan which includes a proposed river walk along the Randolph Drain, which runs along Randolph Street. "You could "Oftentimes we are looked upon as kind of an elitist group . . . We already say if our children moved here they couldn't afford it, and if I had to move here now, I probably couldn't afford it."

CAROLANN AYERS
Northville City Council Member

complete the grid to allow traffic to get around downtown."

Walters recommended changing the phrase "access around the perimeter" to "circulation within the downtown," to clarify the policy statement.

Mayor Chris Johnson questioned the proposal of city funding as the source of several of the master plan's recommended projects. "That's all well and good, but I've got to go out and drum up all that money," he said.

One project Johnson singled out was the proposal that the city acquire the Ford Plant. Said Johnson, "Doing have a lot of strangers in your back yard, and that would concern me," he said. He also questioned a bike path along Johnson Creek, asking, "Do you really want a bikeway through the (Rural Hill) Cemetery, with all the problems with vandalism we've had there?"

Wortman said such projects would only be implemented gradually, starting with a walk around the Ford Plant and possibly continuing west along the stream. "Any park facility, there's certain liabilities," he said. "But there are also opportunities."

The planning commission was scheduled to discuss the joint meeting at its Nov. 20 meeting.

Man with weapon confronts couple at track

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

A man carrying a concealed weapon reportedly threatened a Detroit couple and their six-month-old child in the Northville Downs parking lot Nov. 17.

The man reportedly grabbed the mother by the arm at 8:30 p.m. while she was walking toward the racetrack with her child, and said, "You're stuck up." When her boyfriend ran up and demanded to know what he was doing with her, the man reportedly said again, "You're stuck up, give me your money."

The man kept his right hand in his jacket pocket, as though he was holding a gun. He "appeared very nervous and scared," the woman's boyfriend said.

When the two refused the man's demands, he ran north through the parking lot and out of sight, the boyfriend said.

The man is described as a slim white male with short, dirty blond hair and a thin mustache. He was reportedly wearing a blue windbreaker, blue jeans, and blue Reebok

The couple continued on to the racetrack, where they were notified that their child was not allowed on racetrack property. The woman and child left, and the boyfriend later reported the attempted hold-up to a city police officer on duty at the track.

City police later contacted the mother by phone, and she confirmed the incident. She said she was reluctant to give the man her purse because it contained her "Christmas money."

Shared service budgets placed under microscope

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Recreation and library budget requests faced close scrutiny in both the township and city recently, with both municipalities looking to trim the proposed budgets.

Library Director Pat Orr's request for a 26-percent increase in the 1991 library budget — to $457,867 — to fund an extra day of summer library service was shot down by the township board. The board approved a 6.7-percent increase to $387,841.

The city council also seemed unwilling to fund added services, though council members disagreed on the best way to cut the proposal.

"I think there's still room to reduce more from the library," Council Member Jerry Mittman said. One line item he criticized was the request for $4,500 in postage fees, up from the $300 budgeted this year.

The library staff planned to send out a mass mailing in the coming year, but council members have previously suggested combining a library flyer with other municipal mailings to cut the cost. "I think the economic times we're in right now, that (postage) item should be more a carry-over number," Mittman said.

But Council Member Carolann Ayers disagreed with such close scrutiny of the library budget. "I would not like to see us decide what we do want or don't want line-item by line-item, but rather decide on an (overall budget) amount," she said.

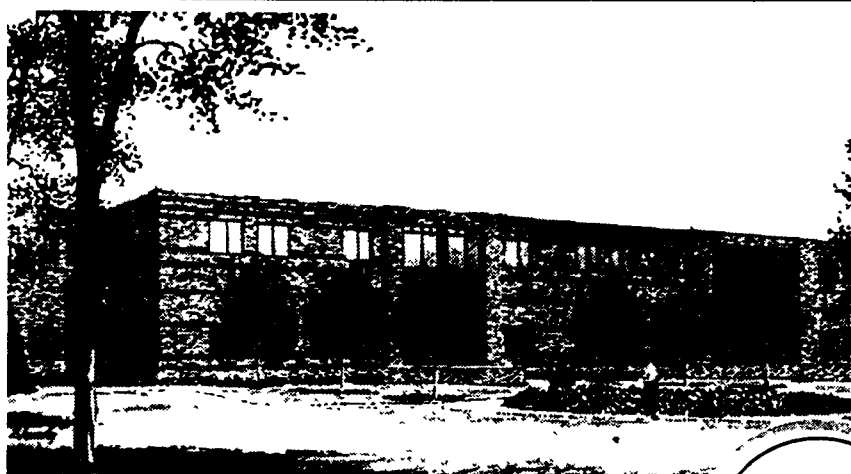

Ayers also serves on the city library board. The township board also cut the proposed increases in the recreation and senior citizen budgets, though by more modest amounts. A $183,900 recreation budget was approved, which was $1,200 less than requested, and $300 was trimmed from the proposed senior citizens budget for a $78,075 total.

Despite the township cuts, Mittman said he was still concerned about the budget increases. "The senior citizens budget is still going up 15 percent for us, which is still more than I'd like to see... There's always ways to cut a budget," he said.

The increase approved by the township would be 11.3 percent higher.

The council postponed approval of the budgets pending clarification of city/township contributions.

Fighting time

'Bobcat' tries to keep war memories alive

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

His comrades called him Zbik — the Bobcat — because he was so ferocious in tracking down his prey.

That was in 1942-44, when Marian Szczepanski was a member of the Polish Underground Army fighting the Nazis in Warsaw, part of an assassination squad gunning for Germans sentenced to death in secret trials.

Today, the 70-year-old Northville resident is equally fierce in his opposition to the reunification of Germany, although he admits the battle is already lost. The two nations — divided in 1945 — became one in October.

"I went through every phase of German persecution of other nations, especially the Polish nation. My motto is this. United Germany equals strong Germany. Strong Germany equals war," Szczepanski tells anyone who will listen, including Detroit-area veterans organizations.

"Let German people live in prosperity and freedom but don't ever let them be united."

A naturalized American citizen, he is waging a war of words, firing off letters to newspapers, the United Nations and heads of state to get his viewpoint across. He is hoping to get a book and a movie made about his life story.

It was this same persistence which kept him alive for a year-and-a-half in the most notorious death camp of all time, Auschwitz.

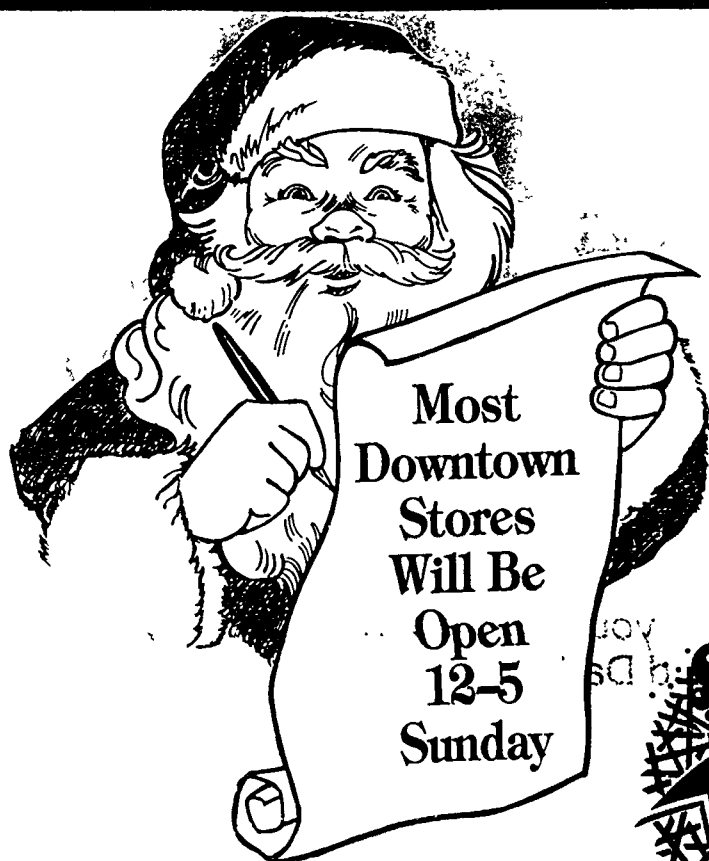

It was this same dogged determination which sent him across Brazil, Argentina and Paraguay in a fruitless search for Josef Mengele, the prison camp's Angel of Death.

As Americans snap up tiny pieces of the Berlin Wall at $10 a chunk, Szczepanski sees a nation — and world — in the grips of a collective historical amnesia. Diving into his extensive collection of material on World War II to illustrate his point — in his living room an oil painting of Szczepanski is juxtapositioned against a shelf which holds a copy of Mein Kampf — he sounds like the proverbial voice in the wilderness as he recalls the four million dead at Auschwitz. His mission in life, he says, is to tell people what happened.

WW II survivor speaks

The world is ecstatic about the destruction of the Berlin Wall. The world has forgotten that it was Germans who first built walls in Warsaw separating the Jewish ghetto, it was Germans who built walls around concentration camps. It was Germans who separated families, children from mothers, son from fathers," Szczepanski, a non-Jew, said.

"I suggest that a monument will be built at Bradenburg Gate in Berlin commemorating destruction of all walls that separate human beings. At least this monument should enu-erate all walls and not only the Berlin Wall. I would be the first to contribute money to it."

The marketing of chunks of the Berlin Wall makes him "sick," he added. In a 1977 return visit to Auschwitz, he brought home pieces of that wall, barbed wire and human bones "just lying on the ground."

He draws on the lessons of history to prove his point. The Versailles Treaty barring German rearmament after World War I, broken. Munich 1938, when the Germans convinced the British and French that they had achieved peace and then invaded Czechoslovakia five months later. The 1934 10-year non-aggression pact with Poland, broken in five years by invasion. The 1939 non-aggression pact with the Soviet Union, broken in two years when the Nazis marched to the east.

As Szczepanski sees it, Hitler had the support of the entire German nation and the entire nation shares his guilt. And it could happen again, he believes. His theory is that a unified Germany could lead to a major war in Europe for a third time, with Germany seeking to drive east into Poland again.

"Who is sending chemical weapons and poison gas to Iran? Germans. U.S. sends boys to Saudi Arabia. If they have to fight Iraq, Iraq will fight with weapons built by Germany. What sort of allies are they for the United States?" Szczepanski said.

"You cannot change, you cannot change the spots on the fur of the leopard. There is something in the spirit of the German nation which for thousands of years makes them commit crimes against humanity."

At Auschwitz, he was one of the last groups of Poles to be set free from the camp. He still has his release papers signed by Commandant Rudolf Hoess. Szczepanski says he is not sure why he was let out — perhaps to spread the word about what was happening as a warning to other Poles: "I survived because I had to get out of there. You cannot kill me here because I have to pay you in percentage."

While at Auschwitz he worked 14-hour days in freezing weather, on a starvation diet. He was tortured. He was subjected to cold and hot water experiments. He witnessed the execution of 15,000 Soviet prisoners of war.

In Warsaw, he watched helplessly while his mother was beaten half to death by the Nazis for selling beef on the black market. Twenty-two percent of the Polish people were killed by the Germans and Szczepanski can't forget witnessing men, women and children being gunned down. He now plans to sue the united German government for compensation.

But he concedes you can't set a price on his suffering. And if he could, he's unlikely to get a paycheck.

"The Germans broke my fingers, they broke my head, they broke my ear. I have German bullets in my shoulder. I have wounds all over my legs and body but what the Germans did not succeed in doing, they could not break my spirit and if anything they made it stronger," he said.

"Germany is too poor to compensate me, my family or Poland. If they were to give me a billion dollars, it is not sufficient for a year and a half in Auschwitz. Auschwitz was the worst place in the history of mankind."

Somehow, Szczepanski survived, earned a master of science degree at the University of London, married an Englishwoman and eventually found his way to Northville. In 1962, he formed the International Diamond Tool Company. ("Be sure to put in the article that I am looking for a wife anywhere from 35 to 150 years old," the widower said.)

But he is keenly conscious that he will never recover five lost years of his youth, years when he "should have been chasing girls."

Mustang of the Week

By LAURA WHITELEY
Special Writer

It takes courage and determination to overcome the obstacle of alcoholism, and senior ERIN CAULEY has done just that, helping others do the same in the process. For this, she is being awarded "Mustang of the Week" honors.

Cauley was nominated for this honor by Northville High School Assistant Principal Ralph Redmond. "I have seen her ability to work with other peers and the honest and sincere way she deals with those that have made a poor choice," said Redmond. "She has gained a great deal of knowledge through her personal battle, and has been able to share this information with others in helping them to combat this deadly disease."

Cauley, who lives with her mother and younger brother, spends her free time working as a fountain person at Guernsey. She also attends AA meetings, sober parties, and enjoys being with her friends.

Her college goals include attending the Center for Creative Studies, as she would love to become a self-employed artist.

The "Mustang of the Week" award was created to recognize unique, positive contributions made by Northville High School students. Recipients are chosen by the School Climate Committee, which consists of Northville High School representative staff, teachers and students.

Each student who receives this award has a showcase in the high school lobby prepared in their honor. Additionally, each selected student will be covered in The

In addition to high school faculty and staff, any community member may nominate a student for "Mustang of the Week" honors. Those wishing to submit a nomination should write a letter describing why the individual or group is worthy of this special recognition. Each nomination will be reviewed by the School Climate Committee.

Please send all letters to Ms. Laura Wiener, 775 N. Center St.

Staff Writer

Somewhere inside the confines of the Northville community, a child sits alone, troubled by thoughts he cannot comprehend.

Maybe he feels distant from his parents, unable to talk about changes in his life. Perhaps he withdraws from friends and relatives, and his school work and social life suffer.

Loneliness may turn to bitterness and he may begin to make wrong choices. He may eventually travel down the path of self-destruction.

For want of positive influences, a young life may be lost. And people would ask why.

Northville Youth Assistance (NYA) wants to help answer the whys before tragedy strikes.

NYA, a non-profit organization funded jointly by Northville city and township, matches local volunteers with young people who are perceived to have a void in their lives. The organization hopes to fill that void by providing the child an older friend, someone in whom they can confide.

But NYA needs to plug a gap of its own, according to Director Mary Ellen King. The group needs volunteers — especially men — to lend a shoulder to young people from the Northville community.

"We're looking for anyone who cares about Northville kids," King said last week. "We have a waiting list of male youths that need male volunteers."

"We're looking for anyone who cares about Northville kids . . . We have a waiting list of male youths that need male volunteers. The kids need someone who will listen to them and be on their side; to say they're okay."

MARY ELLEN KING
Director
Northville Youth Assistance

"The kids need someone who will listen to them and be on their side; to say they're okay," she said.

A NYA volunteer training session will begin Jan. 3 at Cooke Middle School on Taft Road and will run five consecutive nights, King said. Potential volunteers will learn communication skills such as listening, problem-solving, decision-making and empathy — as well as bonding up on substance abuse warning signals, she said.

If accepted by NYA, volunteers are asked to spend an hour and a half a week with their matched child, who may come to NYA via police, school, or parental referrals.

Volunteers can play catch with the child, take them for a walk through Maybury State Park, go out for a bite to eat, or just talk, King said.

"It's all about being a companion; it's being comfortable enough with each other to have a discussion," she said.

At least one Northville woman knows first-hand the benefits of the NYA volunteer program. The woman, who preferred not to be identified, is a recently widowed, full-time worker and mother of three boys, aged 12, 8, and 6.

All three boys see NYA volunteers.

"I can't say enough about the program," she said. "I'm widowed, and they have no male role model."

"At first, I was worried about it replacing the dad figure, but now they look forward to seeing the gentlemen. It's the highlight of their day."

If an NYA applicant is at least 21, age is no barrier to a volunteer. King says volunteers range from young professionals to more mature, "grandfather types."

All volunteer candidates are carefully screened through interviews and police and reference checks, King said.

Northville Township Finance Director James Graham has shared his time with a local youth for three years. The program serves a purpose both for him and his 11-year-old confidant, he said.

"The whole idea is to be a non-threatening person for them to talk to," Graham said. "But they still have to solve the problems themselves."

Graham said his youth comes from a one-parent household and was new to the community when they met. Outings generally include sports-related activities, food, pumping quarters into machines at a video arcade, or reading and studying in a local library.

Graham said the relationship helps him see the world from someone else's point of view.

"I was fortunate to have a father around a lot," he said. "I think this situation helps their self-esteem and I think they feel important, too, knowing that someone is volunteering to spend time with them."

For King, who asks potential volunteers to call her at 344-1618, NYA is all about caring.

"I can tell you there's a lot of hurting out there," she said. "I'm not saying they're bad kids; they're just in a lot of pain."

MainCentre seeks tenants

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Singh Development has yet to sign a single commercial tenant for its MainCentre building, despite several interested retailers.

But residential space has found a more receptive audience at the four-story development, where tenants have signed leases for 14 of the 74 apartments.

"I think we're blazing a little bit of a trail in Northville for this amount of retail all at one time," said Singh Vice President Michael Kahm. While several retailers have begun negotiating with Singh over potential stores, he said last week, "Nobody's to date put their name on the bottom line."

Kahm said the potential tenants may be waiting until Center Street is rebuilt and the streetscape along the east side of MainCentre resembles the rest of downtown.

That work should be completed within the next several weeks.

Other stores interested in relocating from their current locations may be waiting until after the holiday season to sign a new lease, Kahm said.

Kahm estimated that one of four retail owners expressing an interest in MainCentre were business owners in this area looking to move to a more central location.

The top three floors of the four-story building are devoted largely to apartments, while the ground floor is available for retail shops and professional offices. More than 27,000 square feet of retail and office space is available.

Singh is seeking a restaurant for the building and currently is negotiating with two eateries, a seafood restaurant and a family-style restaurant, Kahm said. "Both of the ones that we're talking to now would get a liquor license," he said.

"Our target for the restaurant is to attract as large a sector of the market as possible," Kahm said. He described the target restaurant as "not quite a MacKinnon's in terms of the cost and the ambience."

"We hope by the springtime things are going to look up, both with the apartments and retail . . . If this economy deteriorates much worse, maybe not."

MIKE KAHM
Vice President
Singh Development

The new restaurant will be located at the corner of Center and Cady streets.

Other potential retail stores include a delicatessen, a bakery, a crystal and china store, a hair salon and an art gallery.

A physical therapist has also expressed interest in opening an office in the building.

"We were hoping to get a few more apparel outlets interested, but unfortunately the clothing industry is suffering a downturn," Kahm said.

The typical MainCentre store "is probably going to be more of a single-owner establishment, and probably more of a destination-oriented store," Kahm said.

He described MainCentre as "reasonably compatible with the other stores in the downtown area . . . Hopefully, we're going to bring in new blood."

But he said the development will probably not draw national retail chains because most of the chains are already represented in Novi and other communities.

While retail owners have been hesitant to sign on the dotted line, several residents have already decided to call MainCentre home. As of last week, tenants had signed leases for 14 of the building's 74 luxury apartments.

The apartments range in monthly rent from $695 for a 700-square-foot one-bedroom model to $1,145 for a 1,130-square-foot model with two bedrooms and two baths. Many of the apartments will overlook one of two landscaped courtyards in the center of the MainCentre building.

The rental rate includes water and covered parking — though the city and Singh have not yet agreed whether the parking will be under carports or in a new Cady Street parking deck, or both, if a deck is not built soon enough for Singh.

Kahm said "a few" potential tenants delayed signing leases when the city and Singh were unable to agree on a pedestrian bridge between MainCentre and a new Cady Street parking deck.

"We did lose a few. I hope we get them back," he said.

The recent approval of the latest bridge design by both the city council and the historic district commission may allay those tenants' concerns.

"We hope by the springtime things are going to look up, both with the apartments and retail," Kahm said. "If this economy deteriorates much worse, maybe not."

Both retail and apartment space should be available for occupancy by the end of January, 1991, Singh officials said.

Saving a classic structure

Northville man rescues home of Novi pioneer

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Propped on I-beams, surrounded by waist-high weeds, vacant and neglected, for several years the Thornton House seemed to be the house nobody wanted.

Novi pioneer Sally Thornton's clapboard home faced an ignominious bulldozing in the near future if no one took owner Irwin Arkin up on his offer to give the circa 1838 Greek Revival structure to anyone with a good homestead.

Northville resident Bill Garfield came to the rescue recently, with a scheme to restore the farmhouse once owned by his high school sweetheart's family and turn it into a residence for his son, Bill Garfield Jr.'s family.

The Garfields won't plop the house down on a new lot just anywhere in Novi. The designs call for a village green surrounded by the Thornton house and six new homes, all built in a similar 1830s style. The 19th-century-style community, Old Novi Village, is planned for a six-acre site on Eleven Mile Road east of Taft Road.

"We're trying to keep the integrity of the original design and appearance of the thing. We're going to make it as much as it was in the last century as possible. We want to see this wonderful old house go on living for another 100 years. We want to put it in a suitable setting," said Garfield, a Realtor and a minister.

"We're trying to keep the integrity of the original design and appearance of the thing. We're going to make it as much as it was in the last century as possible. We want to see this wonderful old house go on living for another 100 years. We want to put it in a suitable setting."

BILL GARFIELD
Thornton House owner

"We hope to create an on-going community so none of us are outsiders any more. We need to quit moving around. Go west, young man? No, stay still, young man. This is where your roots are."

Garfield and his wife may also move into Old Novi Village.

He hasn't been the only one eyeing the simple white, Greek Revival home, since June a local cause celebre.

As a pet project, Novi Historical Society President Kathy Mutch founded the "Friends of the Sally Thornton House" to try to save the house from destruction. Thornton family members came back to town and offered moral support. The "Friends" plans, which Mutch is not ready to disclose, were just ready to jell when Garfield took ownership of the house.

"We welcome any effort that will successfully achieve our goal which was to preserve, relocate and restore the Thornton house. The plans we were working on would have placed the house in a position to be used for educational purposes that focused on local history in a public setting," Mutch said.

"I've gotten attached to that house. I really have."

The Novi Chamber of Commerce was also looking over the building, for possible use as an office.

Garfield first became acquainted with the Thornton house when he was hired by his girlfriend Mary Rogers' father to paint it in the summer of 1948. He and Rogers—a direct descendant of Sally Thornton—dated throughout their junior high and high school years in their hometown, Birmingham, but later went their separate ways.

"I haven't seen her in years and years. I do want to get her out here," he said.

The Garfields have the qualifications necessary to tackle the ambitious job. The owners of Garfield Building Company in Northville, the family specializes in custom construction and residential and commercial historic restoration.

Garfield projects include renovating Victorian homes in Northville, WMUZ radio station in Detroit and the historic buildings from 109 to 121 North Center in downtown Northville, including the Veranda Shops.

The Thornton house will need to be transported several miles from its present site by a professional moving company. As a worst-case scenario, one wing of the house might be temporarily removed so the building can clear local streets. A foundation and basement will be waiting for it.

Once in place, Garfield predicts that Sally Thornton's homestead will be ready for a new family within two to three months.

"The house is basically sound. A few of the timbers are rotted at certain points, but not prohibitively so," he said.

"It is my hope I can see my son and daughter-in-law and grandchild in the home early in the spring."

Mill Race Matters

On Friday, Nov. 16 the Northville Historical Society honored volunteer members for the 1990 year with a potluck dinner at Mill Race Village New School Church.

It is hoped that this celebration of volunteer workers will become an annual event. Special recognition went to three members who were awarded the first-ever KEY member awards. The honorees were: Betty Omar for her work at organizing Tivoli Fair and the Village Country Store; Rita Turnbull for her continuous diligence in locating and assigning docents to work on a weekly basis as well as her never-ending willingness to help wherever and whenever needed; and Diane Rockall for her work on the Archives Committee, the Oral History Committee, the Mill Race Quarterly, and "Mill Race Matters." President Arthur Rockall thanked all members present by reminding everyone that without its volunteer workers Mill Race Village would cease to exist.

Now that the Christmas Walk is over, Mill Race Village will settle back to a more relaxed winter schedule with the next main society event being held Dec. 28 at the New School Church. All members and friends are welcome to join us for the annual wine-tasting party. This year Dennis Cassidy will feature California wines. More details will follow, but why not mark the date now?

CONTEST WINNERS: Lapham's Mens Wear, 120 E. Main St., had some unusually lucky customers during its annual "Wheel of Fortune" Sale Oct. 4-13.

tune. Donna did the same thing two years ago while wearing the same lucky red raincoat she wore for this year's visit to the sale.

Dennis Nissle, branch manager of the downtown Manufacturers Bank site, also spun the wheel, coming up a big winner with a men's Palm Beach suit, valued at $295. As a longtime customer of Lapham's, he decided to purchase a London Fog Down coat after winning the suit. At Lapham's urging, Dennis spun the Wheel again and again came up a 100-percent winner of a $138 coat, the first every back-to-back winner in the sale's history.

This year there were six 100-percent winners in the annual sale event. In addition, Anne Holloway won a trip for two to the Excalibur Hotel in Las Vegas.

The Northville Record

Our Opinions

Work in good faith on Huntington Falls

At Thanksgiving a year ago, talk of a buyer for the Wayne County property in Northville Township was nothing more than rumor, gossip, and innuendo. True, the county was involved in negotiations for the former Wayne County Child Development land, but like everyone else, we'd heard it all before.

January rolled around and suddenly, surprisingly, the county announced that a group headed by local developer Robert DeMattia was its choice. Lock, stock, barrel and crumbling buildings — take it away for $31.75 million.

After the Wayne County Commission formally approved the sale, County Executive Edward McNamara and DeMattia got together for a ceremonial handshake amid the rubble of the county land. And earlier this month, at a township board meeting, a DeMattia representative offered a glimpse of the future by unveiling the plans for Huntington Falls, a dramatic, 930-acre three-part harmony combining industrial, recreational and residential development.

Despite a drawn-out negotiating period, environmental clean-up concerns and nit-picking by the county commission, the developers in no way can be assured that smooth sailing lies ahead. The project has qualified for planned unit development (PUD) status and now will undergo township planning commission scrutiny in what promises to be an excruciating review process.

We have some suggestions for the planning commission.

First, individually schedule all Huntington Falls site plan reviews. Under this scenario, planners, consultants and developers can sit down and focus all their attention on one subject and already too-lengthy meetings will not have to drag on to hours fit only for night-prowling animals.

Second, we ask the nine planning commissioners to scrap their personal agendas and get on with the business of reviewing this plan. We know some won't care for the way we've stated this thought, but individual posturing by some members has been too evident in the past. We ask that they come together and focus on the needs of the whole community.

The third point concerns a fight that may be brewing over an industrial park penciled in for the Five Mile/Beck corridor. Early indications are that some commissioners are prepared to turn their noses up at distribution warehouses and the like in the southwest portion of the development. They say truck traffic from such facilities will have an adverse impact on the community. Please. The most negative impact on the community at this time is inflated property taxes. Development of perhaps 300 acres of light industrial area will shore up the tax base and may — by providing unobtrusive revenue for the school district — eventually help lower tax bills.

Finally, all indications are that DeMattia wants to be a good neighbor. Gary Roberts, a spokesperson for the developer, recently hinted that badly needed facilities such as athletic fields and a fire station may find a home on the Huntington Falls range. Chances to obtain land for these uses should not be squandered.

The PUD ordinance under which this plan will be implemented encourages creativity and planners would be wise to work with that thought in mind. They must stick to township zoning values, but the last thing a project of this magnitude needs is overindulgent review. It's time to move ahead in good faith.

Football players show they're true champs

In the American Heritage Dictionary, the first definition of "champion" is, "One that holds first place or wins first prize in a contest, esp. in sports." Definition two is, "One that defends, fights for, or supports a cause or another person." The third is, "One who fights; warrior."

We could argue that number four should be "the Northville Mustangs football team," but it's really unnecessary. Because the team fits into all the other three definitions.

The players, coaches and fans suffered a very tough loss to Brother Rice High School on Saturday. The (literally) last-minute touchdown by the Warriors means that Northville will not be playing this weekend for the chance to win a state championship.

That's a shame, but it's not what the community will remember most from this season. Northville will remember the great things the team did accomplish, and the great spirit showed in accomplishing them.

Think about it. The regular season was a tremendous success, starting off with four straight wins. Even in the three losses, Northville played hard and spirited football, and tested some of the best teams in the area.

Finally came the traditional season closer against Novi. But this time, everyone knew, a win meant the season would continue. Beat the Wildcats, keep the Babeline Jug in town, and . . . MAKE THE PLAYOFFS!

The Mustangs did it all. Playoff time, for the first time ever. Coach Darrell Schumacher and his players could have been happy just making it that far — but they went farther.

The playoffs opened against Wyandotte Roosevelt, on the Roosevelt field. The experts picked Roosevelt. The experts were wrong and Northville pulled off a stunning overtime win.

Next week, the Dearborn Pioneers. Again the Mustangs went to a hostile field. Again the picks went against them. And again they won in grand style. That made them regional champions and brought them a trophy to remember the dream season.

Then came the semifinals and Brother Rice. Not a chance, said the experts. Here's where Northville gets a dose of reality. The Mustangs can't play with the Warriors.

Wrong again. The teams were evenly matched, holding each other to a single touchdown until the final minute. The final score showed Rice as the winner, but the Mustangs won too. They won respect, pride and admiration from the whole Detroit area and beyond.

The team members are champions in the first sense, winning the division trophy. They're champions in the second sense, playing hard for Northville and for all the positive values associated with high school athletics. And they're champions in the third sense, fighting hard in every game they played.

Congratulations to the football team, and to all the athletes at the high school. You're all champions.

Traffic woes? Knock on wood

A traffic expert for the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments told a yarn that would curl my hair if I had enough to curl.

He was consulted by a county to prepare a report on where traffic accidents occur. He dutifully pulled out and analyzed the crash data.

He made two copies of the report and sat down with the county officials and the designated "risk manager." It's standard procedure. You learn where your problems are and systematically improve the road conditions to reduce damages, injuries, deaths — and lawsuits.

At the end of an hour, the county's risk manager asked the SEMCOG consultant, "Are these all the copies of the report?" The SEMCOG consultant said he had the only other copy.

"May I have it?" asked the county official. The consultant gave it to him.

The county official dropped both copies in the trash basket and ignited them with a match.

"Now we don't know where our problems are," he said.

It meant that the county couldn't fix its problem areas. And if an injured person sued on the basis that a road was defective, the county's alibi could be that it had had no "constructive notice" of the road defect.

The SEMCOG staffer won't reveal the identity of the county. SEMCOG is financed by dues paid by member governments.

Shocking as the story is, it's typical of a lot of what passes for traffic engineering in southeast Michigan.

A normally intelligent person would assume local governments and voters want to provide safe roads so we don't smash up our vehicles and get hurt. Wrong.

Bruce Madsen, the honcho at the Oakland County Traffic Improvement Association, has produced a terrific 20-minute videotape on useless stop signs, a favorite device of people who deliberately seek hazardous roads.

There is such a stop sign in front of my house. It stops traffic on a heavily traveled residential street that is 4 1/4 miles long. Drivers are expected to stop for a stub of a street that is only one block long and has no driveways feeding into it.

Naturally, after dusk hardly anyone stops at the useless stop sign. Through the bedroom window, we can hear 20 cars buzz through for every one that stops.

Goofy teenagers? Hah! The cops stopped violators one night, and they were mostly middle-aged adult males from the neighborhood.

Madsen's film calls such stop signs counterproductive, giving pedestrians and kids on bikes a false sense of security.

My city has put up hundreds of such counterproductive stop signs. I wish the city council would view TIA's film. I've written about it before.

But maybe, like the county risk manager who burned all copies of the SEMCOG analysis and the folks along potholed Fourteen Mile, the council doesn't want safer streets. They would have to make changes that cost tax money. Better to knock on wood and pray that St. Christopher will protect travellers.

City's problems are ours

"You don't have to come here on Devil's Night to see that Detroit is burning."

That was ABC correspondent Judd Rose's one-sentence conclusion to a 17-minute segment titled "Detroit's Agony" and aired recently on Primetime Live.

Reaction to the piece has been strong. I have yet to see or read a comment from a Detroit city official or resident who didn't agree with Mayor Coleman Young's assessment that Primetime set out to do a "chop job" on the city.

Interestingly, however, the reaction of suburbanites has been a bit different. I sort of conducted an informal poll, among as many people as I could ask what they thought of the piece, and the reaction among suburbanites was that Primetime essentially got it right, that essentially it was accurate. Incomplete perhaps, but that is more a function of the medium, television having limits on the amount of information it can convey in a given period of time.

"It didn't tell me anything I didn't already know," was one comment that basically summarized the feelings I heard expressed from suburban area residents.

What I have not heard from anyone, officials or residents inside the city or out, was the idea that the things which are causing problems in Detroit are the same things that are causing problems in the suburbs, Novi and Northville being particularly good examples.

Our problems out in this area have to do with growth rather than decay. Our problems have to do with building up community services and facilities to meet the demands of a growing population. Consider that the City of Detroit has a road network built to handle the traffic of two million residents. Today, that city has less than one million, or at least that is the count offered by the U.S. Census Bureau. Oakland County, on the other hand, has more than a million residents and its basic road network was designed at a time when there were only 200,000 residents living here.

If you are one of those people who will be paying for Novi's recently approved road bond issue, you should recognize that the problems of inner-city Detroit and "flight" to the suburbs just hit you in the pocketbook to the tune of $100 per year or more. And that is only one example of the way this problem costs residents.

Consider that the City of Detroit has so much excess capacity in its water supply system it can sell to much of the rest of the region, including Flint. Yet in Novi, because of inadequately-sized mains, residents often cannot get adequate water pressure.

Consider that in Pontiac, another example of urban decline despite its recent gains, the city's sewer system is running at less than half capacity. Out in that area, getting new sewer lines to the residential areas is a major issue and construction of sewer lines is almost constant.

Finally, consider that the inner ring of suburban cities, considered the haven of those fleeing the city only as far back as the '60s, are now themselves fighting flight and decline.

Could it be that in only another 20 to 30 years, Novi and Northville will also be looking for ways to keep residents around and fend off decay?

If Detroit really is burning, and the flames are now spreading, perhaps we can't just move further out. Perhaps we need to see if you can somehow put that fire out.

Paper shows no compassion

To the editor:

Because of the article in your November 15 Northville Record entitled "Drunk Driving Charged," written by Mike Tyree and Steve Kellman, I direct you to immediately cancel my subscription to the Northville Record.

When your paper has to sink so low as to take such a GOOD human being and bare his problems to the world then I have no further use of said NEWSpaper. If I wish to read something written by people with no more compassion than you have for another human being then I will sink to the National Enquirer.

This man, and his father before him, have furnished such a great amount of help to people without any thought of compensation that neither Mike Tyree and Steve Kellman, nor a lot of other people, will ever be aware of because the majority of their assistance was done in such a quiet way. I only know a small part of it because it touched the lives of people I know, as well as my own life. I have yet to hear anyone complain about the services rendered by Mr. Ray J. Casterline and his father before him. They have a way of easing such sorrowful times. The services there are just so loving and caring. When you ran this story it is apparent that you gave no thought to the damage it would do to his lovely wife and children, his parents, her parents, etc. Just get that flashy, no heart article out there. I understand you said you did this because you felt he might have "injured" the corpse he was transporting. He did not "injure" the corpse he was transporting. Now what was your reason? This man has been working on his problem and making headway with it. I give him a lot of credit for taking steps to beat his problem. You do not do this in a day and you sometimes have to try over and over again. My prayers are with the Casterlines and their families and I am not alone.

One last statement, I note in your Police News column that you have several items regarding OUIs and each item lacks the defendant's name. That is as it should be to my way of thinking.

Mary Ellen Patterson

Positive values strengthen family

To the editor:

Ray J. Casterline II is my father, my role model. He is also an alcoholic.

On September 28, 1990 he was arrested for drunk driving. He made a mistake, admitted it, and is very sorry for what happened. He is now in a recovery program and has been sober since the incident.

He is an important part of our community and has helped many people in many ways. Words cannot express the love I feel for my father and how very proud of him I am. He has taught me how to be sensitive, caring, and most importantly how to forgive.

Many of you know alcoholism is a disease which not only affects the actual abuser but also their family and friends. My father had a family; unfortunately, in the beginning he made the wrong one; he is now working to correct it and should be commended.

It takes great courage to admit you are an alcoholic. Recovery is a family process. It is not only making us stronger individuals but we are a stronger family and in time nothing will be able to touch us. As of right now we are taking it one day at a time and as each day passes we are getting better and better.

So do not dwell on the negative, but focus on the positive because life can make us bitter or better.

Sincerely,
Courtney Rae Casterline

Playing with sparks misses fire

To the editor:

From the perspective of an expert on group dynamics (I facilitate organizational meetings for a living) the Northville Record front-page article (Nov. 5) about "Forum Raises Sparks" missed the real story. I was personally offended at the unbalanced reporting. The pastor and the reporter made playing with sparks (an isolated incident) the news, rather than seeing the fire lit for parental concern and involvement in their children's education as the news.

As a participant in the session, I had several reactions to this incident. The pastor opened his church for discussion of an issue: the role of parents in deciding what their children will or will not learn in school about values, feelings, and abstinence versus "responsible usage" of drugs, alcohol and sex.

This was not an "anti-religious" group, yet the pastor treated the people as if they were. Not only did he put a letter in The Northville Record before the meeting to be clear about his "neutrality" concerning this forum, but he introduced the session with a strong message that "controversy" was the real issue. Clearly his bias against those challenging the state's educational system, further revealed in his Nov. 8 letter to the editor, prevented him from even beginning to understand the topic and its significance. He truly missed an opportunity to support a meeting where parents who are concerned about potentially dangerous techniques being performed on their children in school exercised their responsibility to become informed citizens.

There are some important points that Northville citizens should know concerning the Nov. 1 meeting, which were misrepresented in the Record article. First, the Michigan Model advocates chose not to come to this meeting. This has been true of most other attempts to get state agencies and local school administrations who back the Michigan Model to represent it in an open forum. This fact seems to have eluded the pastor and its significance was lost on the reporter. So much for understanding an open forum.

Second, if we followed the pastor's logic (a forum is open if both sides are presenters or everyone can just jump in), then the "established order" could just decline participation in any such forum. This would automatically close down this type of opportunity for raising and sharing alternative viewpoints. So much for supporting an open forum.

Third, the format for the session has been planned ahead of time, noted at the beginning of the meeting, and led to over an hour of questions and answers at the end. As most would recognize for a group this large (over 200), it is a well-advised practice to have questions written down (National Press Club, for example). Furthermore, people were free to and did take up new questions throughout the question and answer period. No attempt was made at stifling discussion, which included varied viewpoints from the audience. The forum was open to those who chose to appropriately participate.

Fourth, although the speaker was a bit irritable (having left his sickbed to attend the session), the incident highlighted in the Record article occurred when the format was violated. An individual interrupted the speaker during his presentation. This person blurted out a question, and when the speaker tried to get back on track, there was an open accusation that the speaker was using the state's tactic with respect to this topic by not answering questions. The accusation was misguided at best at that point, was proven to be inaccurate (as noted above), and tended to create a combative atmosphere. This led to the real "shouting" incident as the pastor intruded on the meeting and interrupted a woman who was obviously caught up in the combative atmosphere. The Pastor was so intent on his intrusion that he talked right over her. This led to the negative remark quoted in the Record. Sparks flew from disruption, but the forum stayed open.

Now, given all of the above, the reporter either:

- did not understand the circumstances of the meeting; decided to make this "neutral" pastor (his letter to the editor on Nov. 8 shattered this myth) look like a hero.

- reported several quotes correctly, while ignoring their broader context.

- advertently or inadvertently became the news instead of reporting on a very significant meeting in the life of our community.

- became embroiled in providing a vehicle to further put down parents who have legitimate concerns about parts of the Michigan Model; or some other bias. So much for objective reporting.

Keep in mind that the state has put down parents through an organized approach for "handling" opposition to Michigan Model. Parents along with committed and competent teachers have been caught in the middle. Unfortunately for Northville, the other putdown came in a Northville Record editorial. The whole point of these genuine concerns about portions of the Michigan Model was missed. I hope we all understand that just having a solution is not enough. Specifically, the issue is not do we have problems with some children in our community (easily shown by statistics), but the real issue is — should all children be exposed to this solution (the entire Michigan Model) that targets some children's problems or worse should any children be guinea pigs for an unproven solution that has been shown to do more harm than good in some areas (as documented, but not reported, at the Nov. 1 meeting).

The truth is that there are validated programs and modules that have been shown to reinforce family values and relationships, while reducing the incidence of illegal alcohol and drug use and the sexual misconduct of our children. The Michigan Model is broken, so let's fix it together. An open forum will surely lead to fire for change and improvement, which has already begun across the state and has now reached Northville — that's the news!

Soccer program faces an immediate crisis over fields

To the editor:

The Northville Soccer Program is at a crisis point right now! All six of the soccer fields normally available for spring play are being lost to development. Even we who are involved with youth soccer applaud this economic development, but mourn the loss of recreation use of this land.

We have been very fortunate to have had the free use of the four Lapham fields and two Training Center fields all these years and we appreciate the generosity of both the Laphams and Wayne County. The crisis we face for next spring, however, very forcefully reminds us that if the community doesn't own its own recreation facilities, it certainly can't depend on their future availability.

Well, Northville, its time to get our heads out of the sand. Next May there will be no soccer fields available in our community for regular season games. We will have only one borrowed field to use at restricted times at Fairlane West Assembly and two half fields for practices behind Cooke Middle School. We will try to rent Schoolcraft fields for home games, but they cannot be used for practices. Teams may be restricted to one practice every other week, coupled with increased fees to pay for field rental for games. This is not a happy scenario for players and coaches who are used to practicing two times a week. We are searching for additional fields for the Spring and we welcome any suggestions from the community. Any 50-60 square yard grassy area could be used for practice.

Thankfully, the Recreation Commission has finally taken some action to improve the long-term position, as follows:

Two new "borrowed" soccer fields have been graded and seeded behind the current "borrowed" field at Fairlane West on Six Mile Road. These three fields should be available to use for three years or until the church develops the property. All three fields, however, will have restricted hours.

The Beck Road "community park" property between Five and Six Mile Road will be cleared to add three permanent fields.

None of these fields will be ready before the fall of 1991, nor do they permanently replace the six lost fields.

If we have great luck in growing grass on these new fields next summer they may be available by fall 1991. But, in three years we will still be short six fields compared to the nine to eleven fields needed for a program of 650-700 players per season, based on current rates of growth.

With soccer the fastest growing youth sport in the USA and growth likely to accelerate due to the 1994 World Cup games (which could be as close as Ann Arbor), we need the community's help and support.

The Recreation Commission has reluctantly agreed to develop the Beck Road park, but this does not solve Northville's recreation field programs for the future. We believe the Township Planning Commission must take a stronger stand with respect to how land is allowed to develop, and we believe the citizens of this community must take a far-sighted view of our children's recreation needs.

If you have any suggestions or would like to help us solve these problems, please contact any of us through the Northville Recreation Department.

Worries about brain damage not just a myth

To the editor:

I am writing in response to an article by Susan Laurent, M.D., entitled "History behind Immunizations, vaccines" (Nov. 8).

I am compelled to take issue with Dr. Laurent's statement "recent studies indicate that permanent brain damage occurring after the DPT shot is a myth."

If this is true, how does the good doctor explain away the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986, Public Law 99-660, which is a federal compensation system for injury and death resulting from DPT and other childhood vaccines.

The law states that all individuals or legal representatives of children who have died or been permanently injured by diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus, measles, mumps, rubella and polio vaccines are eligible to apply for federal compensation. Our federal government does not compensate "myths."

The doctor is doing no service to parents by not informing them that some children do indeed suffer permanent brain damage from DPT vaccine.

Dr. Laurent calls it a "myth." We, the parents, caring for these brain damaged children call it reality.

Parents wanting more information can write to the National Vaccine Information Center, 128 Branch Rd., Vienna, VA 22180.

Some kids won't get beans for Christmas.

In this season of joy and good cheer, it's hard to believe that there are children who will go hungry this Christmas. For the Salvation Army, it is not at all unimaginable. But it is unacceptable. We want every child—and every adult—to have a special Christmas meal. That's why our staff and volunteers spend countless hours distributing and preparing food for the needy during the holidays. And we will continue to provide food, shelter and clothing in the cruel months to come. Your donations make it possible for us to help. Making a donation during the Christmas season may not be easy. But imagine what would happen if you didn't.

Sharing is Caring

Madrigal dinner highlights Schoolcraft events

The Schoolcraft College Music Department and Gourmet Club will use their talents to recreate a 16th-century English feast, merriment and song fest at the annual Christmas Madrigal Dinners being held at the college on Dec. 6, 7 and 8. The proceeds from the dinners will go to the Music Department and the Gourmet Club for student scholarships.

The Madrigal Singers, under the direction of Donald Stromberg, will enter the hall in full costume at 7:30 p.m. This is followed by the presentation of the Wassail and a toast to the Christmas season. Each course is presented to the court with trumpet fanfare and ceremony, including the presentation of the Boar's Head. A court jester will entertain during dinner and after dessert, the madrigal singers will present a concert. Bradley Bloom will serve as production manager.

According to Craig Coe, president of the Gourmet Club, the menu will include hot wassail, brandied fruit, compote with honey butter, roast prime rib of beef au jus, harvest mixed vegetables, Yorkshire pudding, roasted red skin potatoes, horseradish sauce, and old English fruit pudding with rum sauce.

Ticket orders are currently being accepted. Tickets are $25 per person and tables seat eight people. Make checks or money orders payable to Schoolcraft College and indicate a first and second choice of the night you wish to attend. Mail the check or money order and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Madrigal Dinner, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Hagerty Road, Livonia 48152-2696. If you have any questions, please call the Office of Special Events at 462-4452.

NURSING TRAINING: Thanks to an innovative program established this fall, Schoolcraft College's Business Development Center is providing on-site nursing training for nurse's aides at the Westland Convalescent Center. The new program is the first in the state to provide work-site training for nurse's aides. Upon completion of the program, the students will be licensed practical nurses.

The current nationwide nursing shortage has made it necessary to develop creative methods to recruit and train more students. Westland Convalescent Center administrator Judy Caroselli knew many members of her staff wanted to receive training to become nurses, but finding time for full-time, traditional college courses was difficult. Caroselli worked with representatives of Schoolcraft College's Business Development Center to work out a plan to bring classes and instructors to the Westland Convalescent Center.

Caroselli says, "I have been a nursing home administrator for 20 years. If I were to retire tomorrow, I would consider this the finest thing I could ever accomplish in employee relations. I'm glad to be able to help our staff reach their personal goals and professional potential."

Requirements for the program were that students be employees of the Westland Convalescent Center for at least one year. Students receive financial assistance through funds earmarked for scholarships, and federal grants and loans. There are 13 students in the program who meet at the Westland Convalescent Center twice each week for four-hour classes. The program began in September 1990 and students will graduate in March 1992.

This contracted program is just an example of Schoolcraft College's Business Development Center on-site education programs that can be developed for area firms. For more information, call 462-4438.

NURSING GRANT: Schoolcraft College has received a $20,000 grant from the Helene Fuld Health Trust to fund interactive video equipment for its nursing department.

The video equipment will provide nursing students opportunities to view simulated patient care situations on a video screen. Students will view patient symptoms on the screen, interact with the program using a computer, and make diagnoses. Monica Sullivan, the college's nursing coordinator, says, "This video equipment helps students learn in a non-clinical setting and develop their problem-solving and patient assessment skills."

Schoolcraft College was selected for the grant based on the outstanding quality of the nursing program and the high scores graduates receive on state nursing board examinations.

The Fuld Health Trust is devoted to improving undergraduate education for student nurses. The Helene Fuld Institute has developed computer software and provides hardware and workshops on computer-aided nursing instruction to member colleges like Schoolcraft College. The institute's aim is to ensure computer-aided instruction is available in every nursing program in the country.

MUSIC LESSONS: Schoolcraft offers private lessons, chamber music and repertoire classes for violinists. The private lessons include studio work with a performance class. The instructor is the successful, well-respected violin teacher Amy Shev-

South Lyon restaurant returns with new identity

By MARILYN HERALD
Staff Writer

If enthusiasm and friendliness help business grow then the South Lyon Bar-B-Que House at 22870 Pontiac Trail should have no problems with success.

Of course, a restaurant has to offer good food at reasonable prices and an attractive and clean environment for dining. The Bar-B-Que House has it all, with Ruben Dimoski of Livonia as the manager and his brother, Louie Dimoski, and their father, Tom Dimoski, as the behind-the-scenes chefs.

Not that the senior Dimoski is always in the kitchen. Quite the contrary since Tom owns and runs Kevin's Diner in Southfield. Louie is the full-time chef at the diner and part-time chef at the South Lyon restaurant. Tom makes all the soups for both places as well as the specials which are offered.

"My dad is the owner of the diner and Louie and I are co-owners of the Bar-B-Que House," Ruben explained. "I do the books for both places and my brother comes out here to cook after the diner closes since it is only a breakfast and lunch place and is open 6 a.m. to 4 p.m."

Ruben said the family, which purchased the South Lyon restaurant about six months ago, at first viewed it as a lunch and dinner place, open from 8 a.m. to around 9 p.m.

"The breakfast trade is good around here and I saw an opportunity to expand the business so we started opening at 6 a.m.," Ruben reported.

He added that weekends are "excellent" with lots of senior citizens coming in to enjoy their 10 percent off anything on the menu.

"This is basically a dinner place and our barbecued ribs are the house special," Ruben said. "But we have five fish dinners and other seafoods as well as steak and chicken."

Possibly the local restaurant's most popular meal is the full slab of barbecued ribs for two. The barbecue beef sandwich at lunch time is also a favorite with the customers, Ruben noted.

"We keep our barbecue sauce on the light side, not too spicy," he said.

"There is always a bottle of sauce on the table so that people can add more if they want, but a lot of people don't want too much spice."

What does it take to build a restaurant business in a small town, or anywhere for that matter? According to Ruben Dimoski, lots of personal attention from the owner and plenty of good help are two prerequisites.

"Appearance is important, too. The food plates have to look good. People then automatically think it is good and it just tastes better to them if it looks good," he said. "And the food has to be good every time and served quickly. The customer may come in 10 times and be happy and then something isn't quite right on the 11th time and that's what they remember."

The Dimoski family, originally from Yugoslavia, brought a good number of years of experience in the restaurant business with them when they purchased the former Silverman's Restaurant on south Pontiac Trail. Kevin's Diner has been serving satisfied customers in Southfield for nine years. Prior to that, the senior Dimoski and his brother owned a "Flag's Restaurant" in Belleville.

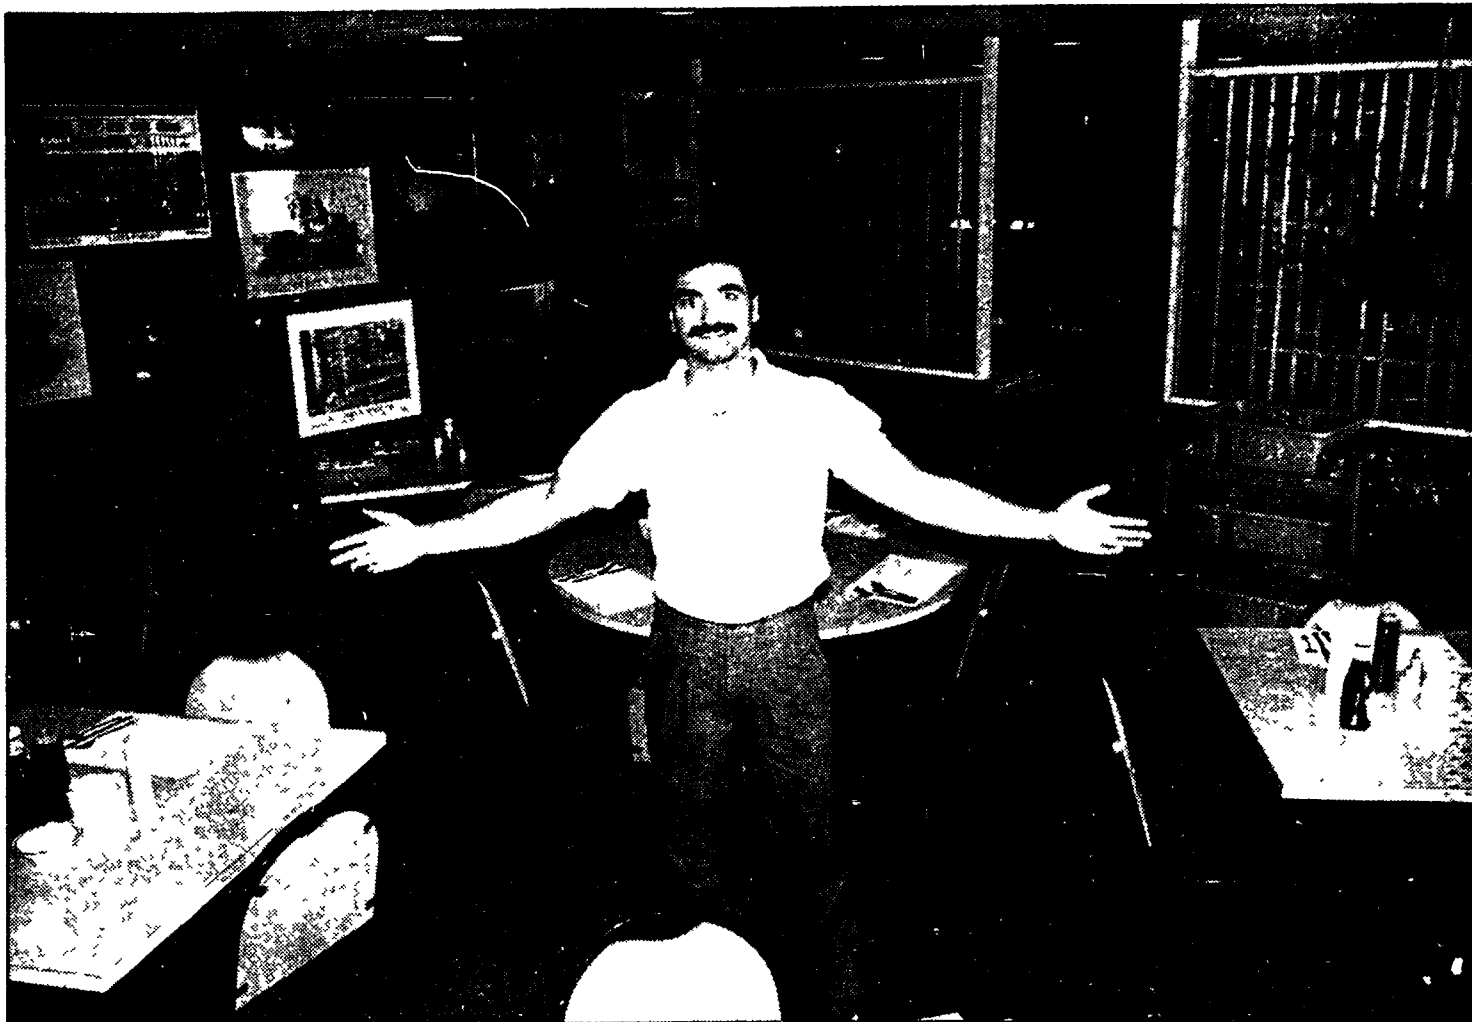

Tom eventually bought his brother out and changed the name to Vaskos, but the quality remained the same. When he bought Kevin's Diner, he sold the Belleville business.

Like most small business owners, Ruben, a business graduate of Oakland Community College, has learned that you have to know how to do every job in the place.

"You'd be surprised how often somebody calls in sick," he said. "I run the register, serve the food and even cook when I need to. I think I'm a good cook, but I'm not as fast as the regular chefs."

Ruben said the key to his family's success as restaurateurs is always buying quality food to start with. "We don't cut corners. What you start with is what you end up with. All our food is homemade."

Ruben, who admitted his own breakfast included a "big" steak and four eggs, said the restaurant offers five breakfast specials under $2 Mondays through Fridays. "We offer smaller portions on those breakfasts and a lot of people, especially senior citizens, like it that way. There's plenty to choose from on the menu if they want more food."

The dining room of the South Lyon Bar-B-Que is open for customers

The barbecue house looks basically the same as when it was Silverman's Restaurant. In fact, the big black, lighted mirror in the dining room still proclaims it is "Silverman's."

It will be changed to South Lyon Bar-B-Que House shortly, according to Ruben. The Dimoskis did make extensive revisions in the kitchen after moving in. They also completely changed the menu. They are now in the process of retelling the rest rooms.

"I'd like some day to add a greenhouse-type dining area," Ruben admitted. "I really like the looks of those and we have enough property to do it."

"I really like South Lyon and the atmosphere here. When you own a business, you have to be there and I'm here from 5:30 a.m. until closing nearly every day."

CPAs advise strategies for investing in stocks

Just because the stock market sometimes behaves like a roller coaster, that doesn't necessarily mean you should pass up the ride. In fact, the Michigan Association of CPAs says that market fluctuations can mean profits for small investors. If you follow some carefully tested market strategies

THE GROWTH FACTOR

Smart investors do research before they invest in the market. It's up to you to look for companies that meet important criteria for growth, including several years of solid earnings, a reasonable or even declining debt and the ability to expand into new markets.

Take the example of a major fast-food chain. When its rocket rate of growth began to slow, the company took action. It introduced new services, including drive-in windows and a breakfast meal. In addition, it moved into the European market. Those steps moved it back onto a growth track.

Information about a company's earnings and future plans can be found in its quarterly and annual reports. One way to determine how a company's stock is expected to perform in the future is by checking to see if officials of the firm have purchased stock of the firm over the last few months. People tend to sell stocks for various reasons, but they only buy when they expect to make money. Publications that list this kind of information are available in libraries or from a broker.

Before you invest in a company that has had a great track record of growth, find out if it can sustain that growth. One sign would be a high reinvestment rate which indicated that the company is profitable and is pouring most of its earnings back into the company.

INVEST FOR THE LONG-TERM

To make money in the market, be prepared to hold onto your investments for at least a year. A company's earnings grow over time, which means it may take three to five years before you'll see a real return on your investment. In other words, if you are planning to withdraw funds in the very near future in order to pay for a child's college education or purchase a new home, think twice. You don't want to be forced to cash in an investment just when the stock market hits a new low.

Money Management

PLAY DETECTIVE

Cautiously follow up on any solid leads related to your own profession or trade. For example, suppose you own a retail store that, among other products, sells personal computers. You notice that the cost of computer paper is beginning to rise. If you then decide to buy stock in companies that supply paper, you may have an edge of six months to a year on professional investors. Stay alert for market trends that indicate the time is right to invest in a company whose stock is still a bargain.

A WORD OF CAUTION

Just because the current yield is very high doesn't mean the stock is a good bet. Some companies offering terrific yields are in deep trouble and those wonderful yields could vanish quickly. For instance, some financial advisers suggest shying away from companies whose debt exceeds 40 percent of total capital.

KEEP TABS ON YOUR MARKET INVESTMENTS

Once you buy stock, don't sit back and wait for the dividend checks to start rolling in. Keep track of your investment by reading the company's quarterly and annual reports and newsletters. However, be aware that management may sometimes view a company's performance through rose-tinted lenses.

Find out how the company's products are selling. Does its merchandise still have an edge on the competition? For instance, suppose that you've invested in a company that manufactures specialty T-shirts, which are the craze among teenagers. Then you notice that kids have stopped wearing the shirts. In fact, your local department store is selling them at drastically reduced prices.

These indications may suggest that it's time to trade the company's stock.

DON'T PUT ALL YOUR EGGS IN ONE BASKET

Smart investors also diversify their portfolios, never putting all their investment eggs in one basket. CPAs suggest that you buy at least six or seven solid stocks and keep an eye on a number of other potential buys. Consider spreading your investments among varying types of assets, including stocks, equity and bond funds, certificates of deposit and money funds. A financial planner can help you decide how to divide your money among these assets.

TO BUY OR NOT TO BUY
For further advice on investing in the stock market, consult a qualified adviser, such as a CPA.

We won't send you any monthly reminders to buy the Trane XL90 gas furnace. But your utility company will.

If you'd like to reduce your winter heating costs, get the Trane XL 90 gas furnace. It's over 90% efficient. If your present furnace is over ten years old, chances are it's only 60-65% efficient. Which means as much as 40% of the heat is going up the flue, not into your home. So replacing your furnace with the XL 90 can make a big difference in the amount you spend for heating.

What's more, the XL 90 comes with a manufacturer's limited lifetime warranty on the heat exchangers. Call us today for all the details on the Trane XL 90. Before your next monthly reminder is in the mail.

THIS YEAR, THOUSANDS OF GOOD LITTLE BOYS AND GIRLS WILL GET NOTHING FOR CHRISTMAS.

To most children, Christmas means waking up to toys and presents. But to many needy and homeless children, Christmas means waking up cold and hungry. By supporting The Salvation Army, you can help feed, clothe, shelter, and provide toys for thousands of needy children on Christmas morning. This season, help us make a difference. And make a child's Christmas wish come true.

The Jonell Vaulted ceiling and double doors for the master suite

By JAMES McALEXANDER

A large living room with a vaulted ceiling dominates the Jonell, and catches your attention the minute you enter.

Twin picture windows flank either side of a wood stove, which is installed against a brick backdrop, on a brick hearth.

The dining area claims full view of the living room attraction, as well as having its own view window.

The kitchen has long work counters and sufficient cupboard space, but its outstanding feature is an island with Jennaire range and serving bar. It is open to the dining room, to allow the cook and guests to continue to enjoy each other's company, to enlarge visual space and to take advantage of the flow of the wood heat.

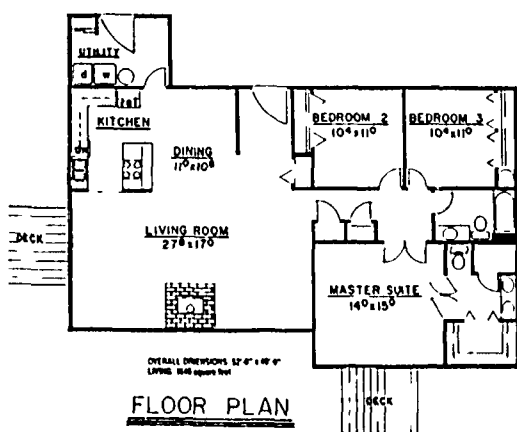

Nearby, a utility room also includes a pantry and space for the bulkier items not often needed.

The entryway provides a guest closet, and the short hallway in the bedroom wing holds closets for a central heating unit and linens.

The two bedrooms on one side of the hall have considerably larger closets than usual. A full bath opens off that hallway for their use.

The master suite opens with the grand gesture of double doors. The windows see double duty as sliding glass doors to a patio and yard. A small privacy garden could be planted here for the year-round pleasure of the master suite occupants.

Cafe doors give some privacy to a spacious bathroom and dressing area without interrupting communications. The dressing area has a double vanity and opens to a walk-in closet. Another special feature is the oversize shower.

For a study plan of the Jonell (108-48), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

"A dumpster on the front lawn is the status symbol of the '90s. It's what the Rolex and the BMW were to the '80s."

That's the latest from Home Magazine's merchandising editor, JoAnne Pier, speaking at a recent seminar co-sponsored by Home and Schoolcraft College's Continuing Education Service.

The theme of the program, at the Michigan Design Center, was "Redesign, Redecorate, Remodel" — the buzzwords of the 90s, according to Pier.

That's where the dumpster comes in. Pier didn't say whether dedicated trendies were abandoning last year's Rolexes and BMWs in the dumpster, but there seems to be room in there for almost everything else.

Traditionalists among us may think of redecorating in terms of new wallpaper or paint, but not those folks at Home.

"Redecorating and remodeling are synergistic," said Joseph Reggiero, editor-in-chief of the California-edited publication. "Redecorating now means tearing down a wall to enlarge an area or to add a bath or potting corner. The ranch home of the '50s is being re-thought and re-designed."

"Housing is prohibitively expensive, people just can't afford to move. A cheaper, more efficient use of money is to turn the attached garage into a master bedroom suite or to install custom-designed windows and French doors to open up a room to the outdoors."

Many California homes, influenced by indigenous Spanish architecture, are open to the environment, hacienda-style. Master baths open to inner courtyards, kitchens and dining rooms to herb gardens. Often, shutters replace curtains, resulting in a less cluttered, country effect."

Ruggiero predicts that, in the '90s, gardening will replace gourmet cooking. Why would anyone want to watch a soufflé rise when they could watch a cabbage grow is his argument.

That's how we got the potting corner. After all, you can't very well throw your garden tools in the garage — you've just turned it into a master bedroom suite. When you were a gourmet cook you displayed your copper pots. Now that gardening is your thing, it's logical to display your garden tools.

So, just take a little space near the back door and

strew the area with clay pots, pruning shears, a few seed packets and some nice black dirt. (But no pesticides — just hide them under the bed.)

It's part of the California rustica look, said Ruggiero, who moved to California from New York a year and a half ago. "Which is adapted from European country. Gardens are European, especially vest pocket gardens in the front yard."

"First impressions are very important. A combination of perennials — old fashioned flowers, such as hollyhocks, roses and daisies — along with pots filled with herbs that smell luscious — as you come up the front walk, creates a much warmer, more welcoming, entrance than closely clipped grass and boxy foundation plantings."

Together, Ruggiero and Pier elaborated on important new decorating elements of the '90s.

To create a personal style, mix textures and finishes — real or simulated natural elements, such as stone, metal, natural grain woods, stoneware and tile fabrics are nubby and textural. Mix is what's important here. Minimalist is out.

American country is giving way to Eurocountry — a cohesive look, putting together a mix of styles, traditional blended with country. The days of one style furniture or one furniture finish are ended. No more relentlessly "Mediterranean" rooms. Mix fabric patterns — plaid, floral, ribbons.

Pier said that natural whites are the bridge between formal and casual. Shades and textures determine the mood. For example, an antique lace runner on a scrubbed pine table modified the country-ness of the table and adds a note of elegance. Queen Anne's lace in a silver teapot, completes the formal/country tableau.

"Grey was the neutral of the '80s. It was everywhere. The neutrals of the '90s are earth tones — taupe, brown, mocha. Jewel and spice tones are hot right now."

"But if you like pastels, as I do, stay with them. It's your home. The main thing is to suit yourself. Live with whatever you're most comfortable with."

Tablescapes and mantelscapes are an important way of displaying both your personal interests and your good taste. A dish of vanilla creams and a pot of ivy just won't do it any more.

Pier cites an understanding anonymous authority who decrees that it's the kiss of death not to change the accessories in your tablescape once a week, a stunning blow if you expect a merit badge for dusting that often.

Tablescapes combine a melange of objects such as books, flowers (in non-traditional containers, such as a mug or a pitcher), a pretty plate, a piece of Majolica ware. All combine to achieve a French country look. "Put a picture on the table and lean it against the wall," says Pier. "It's a very casual look, like you forgot to hang it."

Harmony is vital to a successful mantelscape. Unlike the charmingly disarrayed tablescape, the mantelpiece is a disciplined still life.

For an asymmetrical look, place everything at one side of the mantel, leaving the rest of the mantel bare. Such an arrangement might include an "important" piece of sculpture with Art Deco candlesticks or a "classical" stoneware vase filled with flowers and one or two pictures layered against the wall.

Or, if your life is spent juggling career and family and housekeeping, you might just like to repair to the sink and do the dishes.

Slow homes sales mean resurgence of rentals

By JAMES M. WOODARD

When home sales are sluggish and prices remain high, residential rentals emerge as a more dominant element in the real estate market.

That is precisely what is happening in many areas today. Many sellers are opting to rent their home in slow-sales markets. And prospective buyers, facing high prices, are turning to rentals—at least as a temporary housing alternative.

In my local area, a typical example situation was cited by John Herrick, president of the Ventura (Calif.) Board of Realtors—an active broker and property manager.

"Several owners of our listed homes have recently decided to take their property off the for-sale market and rent it for a year or two," Herrick said. "It's a way to cover ownership expenses while waiting for a more active sales market."

That trend is motivating an increasing number of real estate firms to organize a rental department. And the strategic value of that move is supported by a recent national survey.

The survey, conducted by the RELO International Relocation Network, revealed that corporations planning to relocate employees are now more inclined to seek out a real estate company that offers "full services"—including rental services.

The survey also documents the more transferees are now electing to rent rather than purchase a home initially in their new community. Responding to this growing niche in the real estate market, the RELO organization recently formed a new rental division.

Rental amounts have been bouncing up and down over the past year, seemingly unsure of the proper level in the market. Venture broker Herrick noted one of his own rental properties. A year ago it was rented for $850 a month. He then had to lower the rent to $795. It's now back to $850.

Nationally, the three most expensive rental markets are Honolulu, New York City and San Jose, Calif., according to a report from Runzheimer International, a leading management consulting and research firm.

The least expensive markets are Oklahoma City, Okla., Houston and Colorado Springs, Colo.

In Honolulu, an 800-square-foot apartment residence with three rooms, one bedroom and one bath rents for about $890, it was stated in the report. In Oklahoma City a comparable unit rents for $280.

The national median rental amount for the above-described unit is $375.

Q. What is "Fannie Mae" in the world of real estate?

A. Fannie Mae (Federal National Mortgage Association) is the largest secondary buyer of home mortgage loans in the world. This organization buys existing mortgage loans from primary lenders such as commercial banks, savings and loans and mortgage bankers.

The company is chartered by Congress and shareholder-owned. Its basic function is to recycle more loanable funds into mortgage coffers for more home loans.

Recently, Fannie Mae announced agreements with six major banking companies to provide a total of $14.1 billion in funding for new single-family home mortgages at points throughout the United States. It's the largest single deal ever announced by Fannie Mae.

Q. Since a homeowner can save thousands of dollars by opting for a bi-weekly payment mortgage loan, as opposed to a conventional monthly payment loan, why don't more people go for this type of mortgage?

A. A couple of reasons. First, many homeowners are paid by their employer either monthly or twice a month—not biweekly. Also, with most well-structured mortgage loans, the borrower can make additional payments anytime without incurring a prepaying penalty. So those extra interest-saving payments can be made anytime.

Inquiries are invited and may be answered in this column. Write James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Candle holders were made in the early 1900s

Engraved cranberry glass lustres- made in the early 1900s.

By JAMES G. McCOLLAM
Q. Please tell me when this pair of cranberry glass candle holders was made and what it might sell for.

The candle holders are in excellent condition and there are no prisms missing.

A. These engraved cranberry glass lustres were made in the early 1900s and would probably sell for about $300 to $400 for the pair in an antique shop.

Q. The label on the bottom of a pottery vase that is decorated with lilies on a dark blue background. It measures 12 inches tall.

Can you tell me anything about the origin, vintage and value of this vase?

A. Your vase was made by the Wheatley Pottery Co. in Cincinnati, Ohio, during the early 1900s. It is a collectible but does not have exceptional value; it would probably sell for $35 to $45 in an antique shop.

Q. What can you tell me about an old cast-iron bank in the shape of a goose? It is marked "Red Goose Shoes."

A. Your bank was made in the early 1900s and was given with the purchase of children's shoes. It is currently selling in the $25 to $285 range in good condition.

Q. I have a lamp with a reverse pattern shade that consists of six panels with woodland scenes. The base is marked "B&H."

Can you tell me anything about the origin of this lamp? I would also like to know its value.

A. Your lamp was made by Bradley & Hubbard in Meriden, Conn., be-between 1910 and 1920. It is a very desirable collectible and would probably sell for $1,000 to $1,200.

Q. I have a chance to buy an antique cash register. It is Model

No. 444 made by National Cash Register. The seller wants $500 for it. The condition appears to be excellent.

What do you think?
A. I find that Model No. 444 cash registers have sold for as little as $700 and as much as $1,200. It appears that you have found a good deal. Make sure that it is really in working order and get a bill of sale if you buy it.

Send your questions about antiques with a picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item to James G. McCollam, P.O. Box 1087, Notre Dame, IN 46556. All questions will be answered, but published pictures cannot be returned.

A variety of ways to clean wallpaper

BY GENE GARY

Q. We rented our condominium for a year, but are now preparing to return to it as our permanent home.

When we decorated it, I invested in rather expensive wallpaper. My problem is that the renters did not take good care of our condo and some of the wallpaper is now smudged with stains.

I would like to clean these walls, but I am unsure how to go about it. Do you have any suggestions?

A. If the wallpaper is washable, such as vinyl or vinyl-coated paper, most stains can be removed easily by applying thick soapsuds with a soft sponge, then rinsing well with clean water. Products such as 409 also work well and don't require as much rinsing.

If the wallpaper is not washable, or if a soap and water treatment is not effective, try removing the stain by rubbing gently with a soft gum eraser, or a kneaded wallpaper cleaner (available through major wallpaper outlets).

Sometimes a dry piece of fine steel wool can do an effective cleaning job.

For greasy stains, make a thick paste by mixing an absorbent powder (talc, cornmeal, cornstarch, etc.) with a grease solvent such as carbon tetrachloride.

Cover the stain with the paste and leave it on until the paste is thoroughly dry. Then brush it off with a soft cloth. Repeat the treatment if necessary.

Stubborn non-greasy stains can be treated as follows: Use acetone for stains such as nail polish and ball-point pen ink (hair spray also is good for ink staining). Other effective solvents include amyl acetate (also known as banana oil), rubbing alcohol, naphtha, and turpentine (primarily used to remove paint and varnish stains).

All of these solvents should be used cautiously because they can damage the wallpaper finish or the printed dyes on the paper as well as the wallpaper paste. Pre-test in an inconspicuous area. Use a cotton ball dampened in the solvent and sponge the stain lightly. Repeated applications of a small amount of solvent are better than a few applications of larger amounts.

Change the cotton ball used for sponging when it becomes soiled. Work from the center of stains toward the outer edges. Avoid hard rubbing that might roughen the surface.

Spot the stains with the cotton ball

All solvents should be used cautiously because they can damage the wallpaper finish at the edges to lessen the chance that the solvent will leave a ring.

Use care in working with solvents that are flammable. Be sure that the room is well ventilated. Use only small amount and cap the container while you are working.

Never use flammable solvents near any type of open flame or heater. If solvent gets on your skin, wash immediately.

Q. I was given a very nice table that has an inlaid leather top.

It is fairly good condition, except that the leather is somewhat sticky and has several small marks (indentations) on the surface, which might have been caused by glasses.

What is the proper way to clean and care for this leather top?

A. The sticky condition is usually the result of using polishes (wax on leather, which should not be done).

Leather needs oiling to retain its natural beauty. You can wash the surface with a mild soap, such as saddle soap, following the label directions.

Another recommended cleaning method is to clean the surface with a clean cloth dampened with mineral spirits; wipe dry. Repeat this process until all wax buildup is removed.

After the leather has been cleaned, apply lemon oil (natural lemon oil, not a lemon oil furniture polish). Reapply the lemon oil several times in the following weeks.

The leather will absorb the oil, and all indentation marks will slowly disappear. Afterward, a little lemon oil every two or three weeks is all the care your leather-top table will need.

Q. The hearth of my stone fireplace is black slate, which is quite dull and dingy. How can I clean it and make it attractive?

A. Scrub the slate with a strong solution of detergent. Spread this over the surface and let stand for several minutes.

Then, with a fresh solution, scrub the surface with a stiff brush (a floor machine is helpful).

After the slate has been thoroughly cleaned and allowed to dry, apply a solution of half turpentine and half boiled linseed oil, heated over boiling water.

Apply warm to the slate and let set for an hour. Wipe off the surplus. Apply two or three coats of this preparation. Let dry thoroughly between each coat. This is a rather tedious process but worth the effort.

Greeting card time

BY MARILYN HERALD AND DAWN NEEDHAM
Sending Christmas cards today can be fun if you have only a few people on your list, or it can be a real chore — and expensive — if you have a lengthy list.

Imagine what it would have been like 150 years ago when personal calling cards were popular. These were decorated with bits of lace and tinsel and personally presented as Christmas greetings.

As the tradition developed, homemade Christmas cards drove the U.S. postal system to distraction. In 1822, the Superintendent of Mails in Washington D.C., complained of the need to hire 16 extra mailmen because of these handmade greetings. He even petitioned Congress to limit the exchange of cards by post.

Gerri Dorais, postmaster of the South Lyon post office, said that "our attitude has greatly improved" since that time.

"We work long hours, but we love it," Dorais said. "We get into the spirit of it. Sometimes our employees adopt needy families. Our bulk mailers slow down on their advertising mail and let us concentrate on the heavy volume of first class Christmas cards."

During the holiday season, the post office implements an "operation plan" designed to move the mail quickly and give the best service to this volume of mail, Dorais said.

"Every Christmas, we wheel a tray out into the lobby, with signs for 'South Lyon only' and 'all other mail,'" she explained. "This eliminates handling and we keep it here. Anything we handle here (rather than send on to Detroit) relieves the burden and it's easier for us to keep it here."

The volume and the fact that most holiday mail is handwritten means it takes longer to sort, Dorais said. And once it's sorted, it takes more people to carry it.

The South Lyon post office has 13 routes and carriers for each route, plus nine substitutes. All of them will be kept busy — sometimes even on lots of overtime — through the holiday season.

"We have no control over what comes through our door," Dorais said. "It's really hard to plan. All you can do is go by what happened last year."

The practice of sending cards escalates every year: it's estimated that more than 2 billion are mailed today.

The first commercially printed Christmas cards are generally credited to a London artist, John Calcott Horsley, in 1843.

It all began that year when Sir Henry Cole, a wealthy British businessman, commissioned Horsley to design and produce a Christmas card he could be proud to send to his friends and professional acquaintances.

Horsley's card was a triptych (a tri-panel creation) with the center space depicting a group of people enjoying holiday food and drink. The two side panels were scenes showing the clothing and feeding of the poor and the hungry. Some straitlaced individuals strongly objected to the panel showing food and drink as indicating Christmas (a religious holiday) was a time for carousing.

That first Christmas inscription wished the recipients a "Merry Christmas and a happy New Year." Merry was at that time a spiritual word meaning "blessed," as in "Merry old England."

There are still 12 of Horsley's original 1,000 cards in existence today, all held by private collectors.

Most reference books state these new cards were very expensive to produce and did not really catch on in England for another 20 years. It took Americans even longer to accept this commercialized form of greeting.

Boston lithographer Louis Prang, a native of Germany, began producing cards in 1875 for sale in the United States. From this he earned the title of "Father of the American Christmas card."

These cards were also costly and while Americans liked the idea of Christmas cards, they did not favor Prang's versions which featured colored floral arrangements of roses, daisies, gardenias, geraniums and apple blossoms.

It was the inexpensive, penny Christmas postcards produced in Germany that were the rage until World War I ended American-German trade. These featured religious scenes, Christmas trees and wreaths and holly.

By the end of the war, the America greeting card industry had been born. In fact, Christmas is the number one card-selling holiday of the year in the U.S.

Two favorite themes of early cards, in addition to religious depictions, were feeding the birds and decorating the home with traditional holly.

During the Victorian era, some kind of moral for the young was often included in the Christmas message. Lots of lace, tiny flowers and scalloped edges, often with tassels attached were also in vogue.

Mistletoe and holly, candle-lit trees and presents were portrayed with lots of angelic-looking children and often angels with trumpets, proclaiming the good news of Christ's birth.

Today, a trip through any card shop indicates how far things have come. Popular cards show anything from cows in Santa-type hats and other types of irreverent humor, including one card depicting a jolly-looking older woman rubbing her tired feet on the front.

When you open it up, it refers to how tired Mrs. Claus gets after "kicking elf butt" all year long.

The cats and dogs of the family can send or receive Christmas cards; traditional Christmas movies can be parodied.

One card shows a department store with cars parked closely together — with one open spot in front of the door, which a car is approaching. On the bottom, the card reads "Miracle on 34th Street."

Overeating and overspending are common themes in Christmas cards today, although the most popular are still the more traditional winter and holiday scenery.

Another option people are choosing more and more is to send holiday postcards. At 15 cents for a postcard stamp, that saves the sender at least 10 cents per holiday greeting.

Which means more holiday green for all the other trappings of Christmas.

Charity begins with charity cards

Christmas tugs at the heart strings every year, flooding us at times with happy memories of Christmas past, or maybe reminding us of loved ones missing from the family gatherings this year.

Whatever your feelings of Christmas, they usually include a desire to do something for someone else — maybe someone you don't even know.

One of the ways to do this is through the purchase of charity Christmas cards. These are the ones offered by various research organizations, charities, handicapped associations or other non-profit groups. Part of the cost of these cards represents a donation which is used for medical research or to help others lead a fuller life.

You can send a cheery message to friends and benefit humanity at the same time.

The following list is published to aid you in purchasing these cards or other articles which may be offered for Christmas giving. For more complete information, call the number listed for your favorite charity.

In Our Town

Friends of Library will wrap it up for the holidays

Gift Wrapping Service

A Christmas gift wrapping service will be offered in connection with Northville's annual Christmas festivities on the next four Sundays, Nov. 25, Dec. 2, 9 and 16.

The wrapping service will be offered by the Friends of the Northville Public Library as a benefit in their ongoing efforts to provide goods and services not met by the library budget.

Shoppers may choose from seven gift wrapping papers and harmonizing ribbons from samples on display. A paper with a Victorian motif is expected to be popular with Northville shoppers. Prices will range from $2 to $5 according to the size of the gift.

The service will be set up by volunteers in the atrium of the Veranda Shops located at 133 N. Center St. The hours are from noon to 5 p.m.

"The Friends are looking forward to being part of one of Northville's fine traditions and filling an unmet need at the Christmas Walk," said Wendy Gutowski, Friends president. "We are sure those who use the service will find our wrappings attractive and our prices competitive."

The Friends are offering this service as one way of generating revenue lost when used book sales were discontinued almost a year ago because no space could be found for storing the donated books.

Marquis Theatre

Two classic tales for the holiday season are running concurrently at the Marquis Theatre. Rumpelstiltskin is a fun-filled fairy tale and Christmas Carol is based on the story by Charles Dickens. Both are a treat for the entire family.

Performance dates for Rumpelstiltskin are Nov. 24 and Dec. 8, 11:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. and Nov. 25, Dec. 16, 27, 28, 29 and 30 at 2:30 p.m.

Performance dates for Christmas Carol are Saturday, Dec. 1, 15 and 22 at 11:30 and 3 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 2, 9 and 23 at 2:30 p.m.

Advance tickets may be purchased at all Ticketmaster outlets or at the Marquis Box Office. Phone orders are accepted with Visa or Mastercard.

Tickets are also available at the door. Reserved seating and group rates are available for 20 or more.

Local Crafters

Andrea Graham and Joyce Stowell of Northville will be appearing in the City of Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department's 17th annual Christmas Arts and Crafts Show. The show will be held at the Plymouth Cultural Center (525 Farmer St.) on Friday, Saturday and Sunday Nov. 23, 24 and 25. Show hours are from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Andrea and Joyce specialize in rag rugs made on a loom. They are made from recycled materials and yard goods. They also have bunnies, bears and dolls made from recycled bedspreads and quilts.

The show will feature over 75 crafters, and admission and parking are both free.

Thanksgiving Eve Dinner

Northville First Presbyterian Church will hold a Thanksgiving Eve Dinner from 6-8:45 p.m. Nov. 21. Enjoy a dinner prepared by the Savory Fare of Plymouth which will be held in the Fellowship Hall of First Presbyterian Church. The buffet dinner will include oven chicken, salad, potato, vegetable, desert and beverages.

Bring some canned food to the dinner for the Faith Community Presbyterian Church Food Pantry and the Northville Food Pantry. Cost of the dinner is $5 per person (children under 5 no charge).

For more information call 349-0911.

Mothers' Club

Members of the Northville Mothers' Club were busy in the kitchen Nov. 21 getting ready for the Dec. 1 Christmas open house. The task at hand involved making hundreds of stuffed dates to use as appetizers. Pictured are Linda Clark (left) and Kathy Arenz taking a count while other club members continued the assembly-line baking process. The club's annual Christmas open houses are held in several members' homes each year. Invitations are sent to friends, which ask for a $15 donation. All proceeds from the open houses go to help support the Northville Public Schools.

Col. Charles Scott outlines the four goals he set for himself as a hostage in Iran.

Town Hall features former hostage

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

Town Hall lecture series ticketholders learned about patriotism Nov. 8 from a man who experienced it firsthand — Col. Charles Scott.

Scott was a hostage in Iran for 444 days in 1980-81 and, through his own inner strength, never gave up his love for his country.

Scott was chief of the army liaison office in Iran when the American embassy was invaded by terrorists and his nightmare began.

"I haven't had a single bad day since I came back to the freedom of this great country," Scott told the Town Hall audience at the Plymouth Radisson Inn.

Scott told the audience that, for the first three months of his time as a hostage, he was tortured and beaten. The remaining period was spent blindfolded, with his hands tied behind his back, in a small cell

Scott said he survived his ordeal because he kept his sense of humor.

"If you can keep that sense of humor, when you are faced with a crisis, you will walk away with that almost superhuman strength that will allow you to survive."

"If you lose your sense of humor, not only the major crises but even the little ones will tend to get you down."

In addition, Scott said, he never gave up because "I didn't know how to surrender. There is no class called Surrender 101 — How To Do It. It's alien to everything we stand for."

Scott said that on the day he was taken hostage he remembered reading that people who survived tough situations — who got out with their honor, sanity and integrity intact — had a deep and abiding faith in a supreme being and also had set goals with a fixed point beyond which they would not be forced to go.

Scott said he set four realistic goals for himself that took into account his known strengths but also his weaknesses. He said he considered what he would sacrifice to meet those goals.

"Finally, I came up with these," he said.

"Number one, no matter what they did to me I would not do or say anything to endanger another hostage."

"Number two, no matter what they did to me I would not do anything to embarrass the United States of America."

"Number three, I would not write anything for them."

"And, number four, I would not aid and abet or cooperate with (the terrorists) in any way."

"I still have scars on the bottom of my feet where they were beaten raw with cables," he said. "I hung for three days by my arms, and I was not taken down, not even to go to the bathroom."

"But when I would start hearing a voice inside my head saying 'give up,' I would remember my goals, and that the only thing I've got left is my humor and integrity."

When the ordeal was over and Scott went home, he said, he had changed in some ways but he was still sane.

"And there is not a day I don't wake up and think how lucky I am to be alive and to have been born in the United States of America."

Barbara Louie

First telephones were merely toys

Barbara Louie is the local history librarian at the Novi Public Library. She is currently working on two books of history — one on Novi, the other on Northville. Her columns about the history of Northville will appear occasionally on the pages of the Northville Record.

AT&T, Michigan Bell, U.S. Sprint — if we think there are a lot of telephone companies today, consider how it was when the telephone was first invented in 1876.

When the United States was celebrating its centennial, an amazing voice-throwing contraption was invented by Alexander Graham Bell in Boston, Mass. He called it the telephone, but it was regarded as a plaything by most people at first.

After a few years, businesses throughout the country began to see the usefulness of such an object, and by 1879 there were telephone companies throughout the country, ranging as far away as Honolulu, Hawaii.

The telephone came to Detroit directly from the inventor. Two officials of the American Detroit Telephone Company contacted Bell for permission to bring the telephone to Detroit. Bell assigned his father-in-law Gardiner G. Hubbard as his agent, and in March, 1877, the phones were delivered.

Like the many disbelievers when man first walked on the moon, Detroiters of those early years also tended toward skepticism. Many listeners at an early demonstration were convinced that the voice they heard came not from several miles away, but from someone shouting through a tube from an upper floor in the same building.

Thomas Watson, chief assistant who had actually built the first telephone in 1876, repaid the nation-wide Bell Telephone Association the success of the Detroiters.

That year, the first telephone exchange was created in Detroit, with six miles of wire and 20 subscribers. Only six months later, a directory was published, listing over 100 new customers.

The Michigan Telephone Company in Detroit grew rapidly, to nearly 8,000 miles of wire in 1896. Almost 5,000 telephones were in service by the turn of the century.

Independent phone companies abounded. By 1897, the Northville Telephone Company extended its wires to Novi, with its central offices in E.C. Goodell's general store.

Other Novi customers on the line included the Whipple Lumber Company, Warner's Cheese Factory and the residences of George and W.A. Whipple.

Warner and Whipple soon formed yet another independent company, thus creating a widespread dispute between the two local firms. On March 4, 1898, the situation exploded and the Northville Record reported on the dissension:

"The directors of the Northville Telephone company were red-headed Wednesday morning when it was learned that George Whipple, of the Warner-Whipple Telephone company had cut the Northville Co.'s wire near the Whipple Lumber Co.'s offices at Novi. The Northville Co. says it is a piece of spite work and a most contemptible trick."

Whipple reportedly wanted as many subscribers on his line as possible, despite the fact that his company was already over-burdened with customers. The paper was clearly on the side of the Northville company, and declared that Mr. Warner was neither a part of "the wire-cutting act or that he even knew that it was to be done."

The publicity directors of United States Telephone, Allnet and DCI may fight with their pens these days, but — luckily — the days of wire-cutting are far behind us.

Amerman students form partnership

AMERMAN

The third- and fifth-grade students at Amerman have formed a business partnership with Community Federal Credit Union. The students have the unique opportunity to experience a student-run facility.

Students are able to withdraw and deposit money while receiving a computerized printout of their transactions, which are identical to those at Community Federal. They will be earning interest on their accounts and will have the option at the end of the school year to open an account at the credit union; or be issued a check for their balance and do whatever they choose. Wow!

Students in Jack Wickens', Jeff Lightfoot's, Laura Schmelzer's, Cheryl Holmberg's and Janice Henderson's rooms had to fill out job applications and were interviewed for positions available. Those applicants chosen were: Yvonne Irmescu, Christine Baca, Jessica Hullman, Stephen King, Julie Flis, Steven Purcell, Mike Beer, Julie Cieslak, Lauren Rosinski, Matt Vetter, Marc Sabo and Sarah Heckemeyer.

Third-graders in Bruce Ricketts', Greg Bergin's and Jane Anderson's room will begin their accounts and the next banking period.

This whole program could not have been possible without the efforts of Business/Partnership Director Jan Purcell, School Partnership Coordinator Jack Wickens, and Mary Gyorke and the staff at Community Federal Credit Union.

Amerman kindergarteners are enjoying a real treat thanks to parent volunteers. During November and the beginning of December volunteers are taking small groups of students to our Rainbow Reading Center where the parent will read a selection out loud to them. Relaxing on a beanbag chair, the students can dream away while listening to a good story. We are still collecting those Campbell Soup labels and appreciate any you can send in. Many pieces of sport equipment are now being enjoyed from efforts made last year.

A Holiday Music Program is on the calendar for Thursday, Dec. 6 at 7 p.m. Ms. Jarvi always puts together a great show. One of those singers could be a future star!

On Dec. 4, storyteller Ardith Lasowski will be at Amerman to entertain our lower elementary with her delightful stories. This event will be held in the morning; however, p.m. kindergarteners and their parents are invited to join us. This is brought to us through our JES Program. Winter break will begin at the end of the day Dec. 21. Classes resume Jan. 2, 1991.

Our next PTA meeting will be December 11 at 9:30 a.m. in the Media Center. Please join us if you can. Our cookie bakers are THE best!

MORAINE

The Moraine PTA is off to a great start this year with many fun events planned for the holidays and into 1991.

Our yearly fundraiser sponsored by Sally Foster Giftwrap and Frankemuth Foods has just concluded. Thanks to the students, parents and community for supporting the Moraine PTA and making our fund-raiser such a huge success.

Put Nov. 29 on your calendar and join us for the annual Holiday Shop and Pizza Party. This is a great opportunity for children to make some inexpensive gift selections for family and friends. This fun event will be held from 6-8 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

Also, don't forget the Moraine Holiday Music Program on the evening of Dec. 4. This year's program involves all second-graders, all third-graders and the Glee Club which is made up of fifth-graders. The students have been practicing under the direction of vocal music teachers Jan Salmon and Ann Jarvi. This promises to be an exciting evening.

The PTA has some new committees this year. Tricia Sorensen is organizing a Telephone Directory for Moraine families, making it easier for them to contact their friends and neighbors. Another new project will be our Moraine Yearbook. Lee Stevenson is chairing this committee and encourages parents to submit snapshots of school activities. The Yearbook Committee will be holding a Cover Contest for Moraine students. A winning design will be selected by the committee from all student entries. We look forward to the publication of our first yearbook in the spring.

Thanks to Joan Julow for again chairing our Campbell Soup Label program. She asks parents to continue saving labels and also encourages the community to send in labels with neighboring children. This program provides valuable equipment and supplies for our students.

Moraine PTA is excited about this year's Partnership in Education involvement with the University of Michigan M-Care Health Center. M-Care also hopes to organize a Teddy Bear Clinic for young students and would like to be involved in future Earth Day events. We anticipate an exciting involvement with M-Care and appreciate their support of Moraine.

Due to the usual holiday rush there is no December PTA meeting scheduled. Please join us for our next meeting on Jan. 9, 1991 at 9:30 a.m.

WINCHESTER

The first card marking period has ended. The conferences held the first week of November went very smoothly. Mrs. Morhouse received many compliments about the display of Michigan Health Model materials.

The Book Fair that ran during conferences was also very successful with proceeds to benefit our Media Center. A box for donations to "A Gift of Reading" program was available. The program is sponsored by the Detroit Free Press and distributes new books to children who may otherwise not receive them. Thanks to all who contributed for their great support. Donations are still being accepted for new, unwrapped books appropriate for young readers until Dec. 7.

The Food Drive for Civic Concern was most successful. It was organized by Mary Ann Cranford and sponsored by Girl Scout troops at Winchester.

Scoliosis screening is being held Nov. 21. If your child missed this screening, please contact Mrs. Morhouse.

Don't forget the Board of Education meeting on Nov. 26 at Winchester. Among the presentations will be the videos of the Kick-Off of our Partnership in Education with Meijer.

Winchester's Santa Secret Story will be held on Saturday, Dec. 1 from 9-9:30. Everyone is welcome.

The winter musical will be on Dec. 5, with a theme of "Country Holiday, City Holiday."

The third and fifth grade classes will be visiting the Marquis Theater to see A Christmas Carol.

The Winchester PTA achieved 100 percent membership again this year. An upcoming JES program is Pets & Things on Dec. 6. Instructors will come to the classrooms with materials, filmstrips and animals. Enjoy Thanksgiving!

A 19th century turkey dinner is re-created every Thanksgiving at Old Sturbridge Village

An old-fashioned Thanksgiving

Massachusetts village retains flavor of 19th century harvest celebration

By Sally Sawyer

It is Thanksgiving season at Old Sturbridge Village, an outdoor living history museum reminiscent of Greenfield Village, New England style.

The autumn sun warms the chilly rain-drenched earth. Trees arch across narrow village streets. Gold and yellow leaves wander silently down.

They only "speak" 19th century here, so if you ask a costumed "resident" where he was born, he will say "why I was born right here in the village in 1822."

Ask Isaiah Thomas, for example. No, he doesn't play basketball, he was a rebel printer always one step ahead of the British troops during the American Revolution.

Everything smells freshly washed. Blue jays caw and nuthatches walk comically head-first down trees, chattering over a harvest of worms. It is mid-morning, the best time for a quiet stroll through the rural life of the 1830s as it is shown today in Old Sturbridge Village, an hour's drive west of Boston in the town of Sturbridge, Massachusetts.

The village opened in 1946, the combined effort of Albert B. and Joel Cheney Wells, executives at the American Optical Company in Southbridge, Massachusetts. It developed as an overflow of a Wells Family Museum started in the early 20th century. As more antiques were collected, the idea of displaying them in a year-round setting evolved.

Today you find 400 accurately costumed interpreters on the staff, learning first-hand about the physical discomforts of being too warmly clothed in summer and not dressed warmly enough for the severe New England winter.

"Sometimes I drop a couple of petticoats when it's hot," an elderly resident said. "I'll bet the women did that back in 1830 too!"

Streets are still unpaved, in keeping with the 1830's atmosphere, so the mire is thick under our boots. The Center Common grasses are unevenly "mowed" by close cropping sheep.

This is living history so everyone dresses, acts and speaks as if they were the 19th century residents of the Freeman Farm. The livestock have been fed, the eggs gathered and gardens tended.

Pliny Freeman must have gotten up at dawn to stoke the fire with wood gathered by his sons. Now logs in the huge ever-present fireplace glow and cast dancing shadows. Females of all ages stand around the large table preparing the Thanksgiving feast.

Meredith, a three year old, adds her expertise as "taste tester." Imported spices such as, cinnamon, nutmeg and tea have been bartered for fresh eggs, butter, cheese and wool.

Della Freeman has added only a clock and wallpaper to the possessions they owned when they were married. Farmers chose to invest in land and livestock rather than domestic comforts, like carpet and curtains, favored by village residents. A "middling" farm family owned 70-80 acres of fenced orchards, livestock and land growing field and kitchen produce.

A farmer sickle-cut hay while his apprentice tied the bundles, each wearing straw headgear reminiscent of Abe Lincoln's stovepipe hat.

"Why are your hats so high?" "Cooler that way," he said.

Everything is stored in cool root cellars and barns from one harvest to the next. At noon, before the main meal of the day, Pliny Freeman gives thanks for a successful year and for being able to raise seven children.

We walk back to the center of the village past the district school and town pound to Asa Knight's Dry Goods Store. The shelves are stocked with fine fabric, shoes, tobacco, writing tablets and coffee. In the back are common items like molasses, vinegar, rum, brooms, shovels and clothes pegs.

Patent medicines are readily available. Most popular is Moore's Essence of Life. It was what most women took when they weren't quite sure what ailed them. It didn't seem to cure them, but it certainly made them feel better. It was 80 percent alcohol!

Advice books are also popular. "The Mother's Book" and many cookbooks are for sale.

I found Laurie Smith of Michigan explaining that a woman's bonnet was a "platform for fashion." Laurie was born in Ann Arbor, attended Central Michigan University, did summer work at Mackinac Island and is now "head interpreter for textiles" at Old Sturbridge Village.

Thanksgiving service is held at the Center Meeting house at 1 and 3 p.m. Visitors sit in pews with high sides to keep out the cold. Some "residents" bring blankets and mini-foot warmers from home. Ecumenism was unheard of in 1830 so small religious groups met in homes or places like the Richardson Parsonage, a few steps from the meeting house.

After the service we head hungrily toward Bullard Tavern, following the fragrance of spices wafting from pumpkin, mince and apple pies. You can eat oyster bisque, cornbread, relishes and salad anytime, but a popular feast is prepared in the Publick House, Sturbridge, and served during several seatings on Thanksgiving Day.

Make dinner reservations a year in advance if you can, or hope to be lucky enough to find a cancellation. You should also start saving your pennies. Thanksgiving dinner costs $50 per adult, $35 for youths 6-15 and $22 for children two to five. Infants can share your dinner free. That price includes admission to the village, all the facilities and activities, and allows you to return the following day.

You will recognize Bullard Tavern by its sign, created by village curators to look as it would have looked six generations ago in 1830. The tavern is brown clapboard with white trim. Enter to the dim light of candles and wander among the period furniture with a cup of mulled cider in your hand.

A series of tables is set according to the size of your party, although singles are asked to join other tables. The portions are substantial and come in waves of food.

The menu starts with apple cider, relishes, oyster bisque, "winter salad with a most delicious sauce" and indian corncakes. The turkey follows, with giblet gravy, country stuffing, Cape Cod cranberries, whipped potatoes, brussel sprouts, buttered carrots and turnips.

And then the desserts start. For dinner reservations, send a $3 deposit to Marketing Dept., Old Sturbridge Village, Sturbridge, MA, 01566 or telephone (508) 347-3362. Book as far ahead as you can for Thanksgiving dinner.

A visit to Old Sturbridge Village is a celebration of the past. It is also an appreciation of the present. As we passed the graves of so many women in the old pioneer cemetery, I remembered that childbirth was the first cause of death for women in those days; the second cause of death was burns.

Their long skirts caught fire as they leaned over the open fireplace to cook their food. I am grateful for the double oven that will cook my Thanksgiving turkey, even if it goes out every time the electricity goes off.

Toledo Zoo lights up the holidays

By Iris Sanderson Jones

"And God said, 'Let there be light,' " a voice said in the darkness. "And there was light!" another voice replied.

No, we were not walking through the first book of Genesis, we were walking into the Toledo Zoo. It was full of lights. Lights on the trees. Lights on the buildings. Lights on the animals . . .

Lights on the animals?

"There's a giraffe!" "Hey look at the polar bear!" "How did they get the animals to stand still so long," a tiny voice asked. "And how did they plug them in?"

They didn't plug them in, of course. This is "The Lights Before Christmas," a holiday celebration of lights that is in its fourth year at the Toledo Zoo. It's one of yuletide's most electrifying attractions.

Lights. Why does it seem so appropriate to see lights against a dark winter sky during the Christmas season? A question like that makes me want to rush to the encyclopedia and look up the word "light."

I learned a lot of things. Light is the sensory impression made on the eye. Newton discovered the spectrum while playing with soap bubbles. Huygens saw the sparkle in the Iceland spar. Fresnel was high on refraction.

There was the Nicol Prism and the Fraunhofer Diffraction Phenomena and the Atomic Theory of Refraction, but I seemed to be getting further and further away from the lighted outline of a hippopotamus against a November sky in Toledo.

Let's look up Christmas. Ahhh . . . "In the beginning many of the earth's inhabitants were sun worshippers because the course of their lives depended on its yearly round in the heaven, and feasts were held to aid its return from distant wanderings."

And that's where I learned, on page 643 of my very ancient Encyclopedia Britannica, that mid-December was a critical time in northern lands, where the light got weaker and weaker, and that ancient people held feasts to celebrate the lengthening of the days after the winter solstice.

"They built great bonfires in order to give the winter sun god strength and to bring him back to life again . . . Thus the central idea of the winter solstice—the return of light—became the hope of the world . . . Any northerner knows that feeling."

Nobody was absolutely sure about the exact date of Christ's birth, but "when the fathers of the church in A.D. 440 decided upon a date to celebrate the event, they wisely chose the day of the winter solstice which was firmly fixed in the minds of the people and was their most important festival."

They lit bonfires. Later the Romans decorated homes and temples with green boughs and flowers. The Druids collected mistletoe to hang in their homes. The Saxons used holly. The Germans introduced the Christmas tree, the pioneers brought it to America, we decorated it with lights in accordance with the ancient custom of celebrating winter with lights and . . . animals outlined in lights against a darkening winter sky.

This may be more than you care to know about lights. It may remind you of the young boy who thanked his grandmother for a book about alligators, although it told him more about alligators than he cared to know.

But when you travel from one lighted festival to another this holiday season, think about those pagans of long ago who lit up the world to bring the sun god back to life.

If you won the lottery, you could watch them turn the lights on for Christmas at the Ritz in London or watch them light the candles on the Christmas trees in Germany.

It might be less expensive and more practical to celebrate in the Grand Traverse area, where the Grand Traverse Resort throws the switch on 175,000 shimmering lights Nov. 16 to launch the Northwoods Festival of Lights.

You could tour Connor Prairie, Indiana, by candlelight, strolling down candlelit paths through the restored 1836 village near Indianapolis anytime after Dec. 8. Admission is $7.50 adults and $4.50 children 6 to 12.

There are a thousand points of light during the yuletide, but you might just like to travel to Toledo and watch the animals light up. They probably did it on Noah's Ark when it got dark, very dark, in December.

They will turn on the switch for "Lights Before Christmas" Nov. 30 and keep them on through Jan. 6, except for the following days: Dec. 24, 25, 31 and Jan. 1, 1991.

The zoo reopens at 5 p.m. and gates close at 9 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children 2-11 and for seniors.

Hot tubs offer a splash of fun

Imagine lounging comfortably in a basin of rapidly bubbling water, while the sun shines brightly overhead.

Or, picture snowflakes gracefully falling downward on a cool winter's eve, as gurgling, steamy water envelops your body.

This exhilarating fantasy is actually no fantasy at all. At the Oasis Hot Tub Gardens in Ann Arbor, secluded hot tubs provide pleasure to people of all ages.

"It is a place for friends and families to come and relax, a place to escape from the mundane, daily routine," said Kathryn Burns, manager of the Oasis Hot Tub Gardens.

Dan Oatis, Bob Lakey and Ken Schroder are the owners. They started the company in Kalamazoo in August 1983. Its prosperity prompted them to start a second one in Ann Arbor. This new place, on South State Street, has been open for about six months.

The owners picked up on the hot tub idea during their travels to Arizona and New Mexico, where hot tubbing is a prevalent activity. They felt people would enjoy a "one-hour vacation."

There are 12 hot tubs at the Ann Arbor locale. Sunlit days, moonlit nights and delicate breezes accompany hot tubbers who choose one of the Garden's 10 outdoor spots. Two indoor tubs with skylights are also available.

Each tub offers complete seclusion, whether tubbing alone, with the family, with a group of friends, or with that special someone.

Each outdoor tub has a theme, and the decor reflects it. Themes include northern (winter themes), South Pacific, Asian and Mexican.

"We have people who come back and try every garden," said Burns.

Choose a garden, and step inside. A private, spacious dressing room with shower, mirror, cushioned seating, and hangers for clothes provide comfortable arrangements for before and after hot tubbing. A second door opens to the outdoors, where the hot tub gurgles refreshingly. High walls insure absolute privacy. A wooden deck surrounds the tub and simple decorations reflect the garden's theme.

People from the very young through their 60s appreciate the Oasis Hot Tub Gardens. Young children must be accompanied by parents.

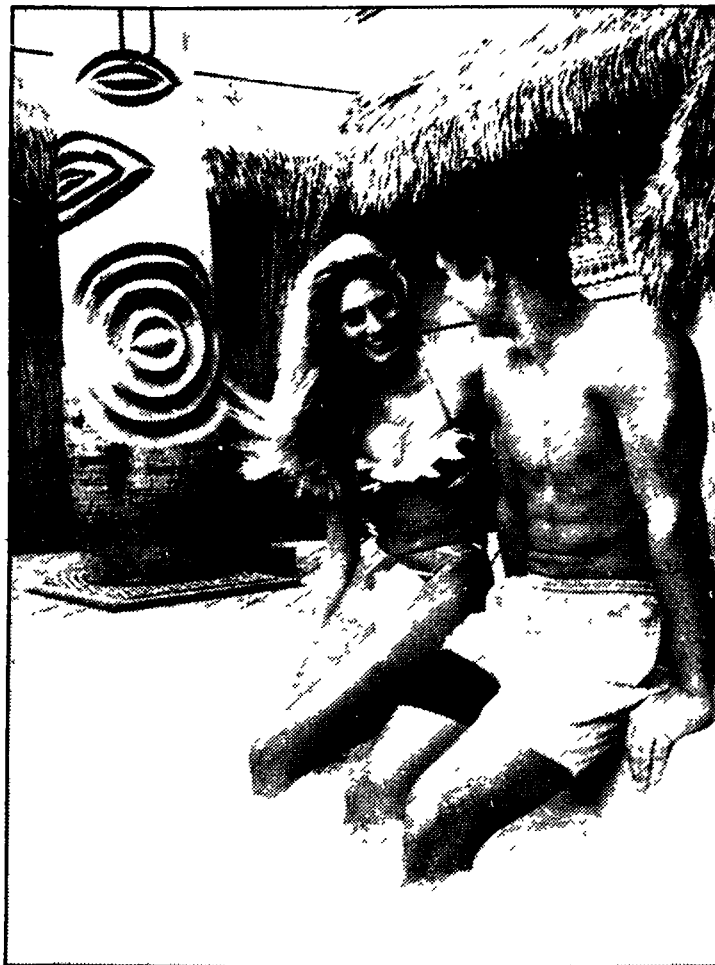

Normally, Sundays bring families in after church. Friday and Saturday nights generally attract couples. Groups of friends and single tubbers come in at all times to take part in this rejuvenating activity, Burns said.

"Families come here because they're not watching TV, and it's not your typical evening of going to the movies, eating a bag of popcorn, and sitting in a row not talking with each other," Burns said. "Our hours are set up for people who work any type of shift. It's a great get-away especially when you've had a real hard day."

"Not only are you away from it all, no one can reach you by phone. It has a therapeutic effect. Whether you plan to or not, you're forced to relax."

The Oasis Hot Tub Gardens in Ann Arbor follows strict swimming pool guidelines for cleanliness. It is also regulated by the health department which checks the water regularly, and conducts surprise water samplings.

Bromine is used to disinfect the water, eliminating chlorine's strong odor. In addition, water in the tubs circulates constantly. Every eight minutes each tub goes through a filtration system.

Tub water is three feet deep. The maximum water temperature — 102 degrees — makes it comfortable for hot tubbing in the winter.

"This is what keeps you warm in the winter, especially when there's freezing temperatures outside," said Burns. In summer, tub temperatures are turned down to 98-100 degrees.

An intercom is available in the dressing area should hot tubbers have questions or desire a change in water temperature. Intercoms provide hot tubbers with a link to the outside world without leaving their garden seclusion.

Prices vary, depending on the day of the week and the number of hot tubbers. For two people, the price is $9-13 per person, per hour. Weekdays are less than Friday and Saturday nights. The more hot tubbers in the group, the lower the per-person price.

The gardens will soon bring in a licensed masseuse. Fruit juices, fruit drinks and mineral water are sold at the desk.

The Oasis Hot Tub Gardens is open noon to 1 a.m. Sunday-Thursday and noon to 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday. To reserve a hot tub, call 663-9001.

The Northville Record

Rice knocks Northville out of playoffs

Last-minute score nips Mustangs, 14-7

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Showing the entire state they are, perhaps, the gutsiest football team around, the Northville gridders took highly favored Birmingham Brother Rice to the limit in Class A semifinal action on Nov. 17 at Flint's Atwood Stadium before falling 14-7.

With the game tied 7-7 and just over three minutes remaining, the Warriors drove 52 yards in nine plays for the winning points. Freshman runner Marcus Harvey scored from three yards out with only 33 seconds remaining, to send Brother Rice into the state title game tomorrow (Nov. 23) at the Silverdome. The score also sent the disappointed Mustangs home, but not before an exhilarating playoff run.

"We were elated to get this far but very disappointed we didn't make it to the Silverdome," Northville coach Darrel Schumacher said. "It's very hard to mesh those two emotions. The kids are crushed because they believed they could win."

The bigger, deeper Warriors doubled the Mustangs in total yardage (303-150) but Northville stayed in the game with a defense that bent but didn't break and an offense that suffered zero turnovers.

"I can't be disappointed with the effort we put forth," Schumacher said. "I thought we were outmanned and yet we played with them and were very competitive."

Brother Rice's two-platoon system and hard-nosed runner Jonathan Burtraw were just the advantage the Warriors needed. With a half-dozen Mustangs going both ways, Rice slowly wore them down, and then drove for the winning score. Burtraw carried the ball 40 times and rushed for 168 yards.

"When you have to keep hitting a powerback like (Burtraw), it can take a lot out of you," Schumacher explained. "It wears you down."

"We were hoping for overtime, but (Rice) was bigger than us and down the stretch they physically wore us down. I think it was a credit to our kids that we hung in there as long as we did."

Many so-called experts were expecting a blow-out, and after the Warriors marched 77 yards on their second possession of the game, it appeared the rout had begun. Sean Johnson scored the touchdown on a fourth and inches at the six, but the big play in the drive was a 44-yard pass from quarterback Steven Merchant to receiver Andrew Haislip.

But Northville bounced right back to tie it at 7-7 on a nicely executed reverse to Bill Kelley that covered 16 yards. The 63-yard drive took five plays including runs of 31 and 16 yards by quarterback Ryan Huzjak.

"This guy (Huzjak) was very elusive," Brother Rice Coach Al Fracassa said after the game. "He can throw well and run well. He's a (college) prospect."

Neither team scored again before halftime, but the Warriors threatened twice only to come away empty-handed. At the 8:42 mark of the second quarter, Kevin Cook's 35-yard field goal attempt was short, wasting a 14-play, 52-yard march by Rice. On the Warriors' next possession, a bad exchange on a handoff resulted in a fumble deep in Northville territory and linebacker Jeff Todd was on hand for the recovery.

At the half, Burtraw had already rushed for 125 yards on 25 carries. The Mustangs, on the other hand, were struggling with their passing game. Huzjak was only 1-for-11 for nine yards.

Northville got a huge break early in the second half when Cook mishandled a high snap on a punt attempt and was tackled by Todd Osborne and Brett Butz at the Rice 17. Poised to go ahead for the first time in the game, the Mustangs lost 11 yards when Huzjak was sacked on first and 10, and then took a major step backward when Brandon Hayes' 30-yard field-goal try was blocked by Jason Randall.

"That was the big play of the game, in my opinion," Schumacher said. "We gave up field position and momentum, and in the game like that, those are very important. Even a field goal might have been enough to spur us on."

Fracassa agreed. "You have to give our kids credit for blocking the kick," he said. "That whole sequence could have been a disaster for us."

Brother Rice pounced on the loose ball near midfield, and never again relinquished field position. That set up the game-winning drive, which started at the Warrior 48 with 3:10 left on the clock. Northville linebacker Bob Holloway had a golden opportunity to prevent it from happening when he appeared to pick off a Merchant pass, but he couldn't hold on.

With new life, Merchant found Haislip for 12 yards to move inside the Northville 30, and then Harvey rambled 19 yards on a draw play to inside the 10. Several plays later, Harvey outraced Kelley to the corner and scored from three yards out on a sweep to the left.

Huzjak's desperation pass with less than 30 seconds remaining was intercepted by Bill Alessi.

"It was a good, hard-hitting football game," Fracassa said. "Northville isn't real big but we respected their quickness. We knew heading in that they were a fine team. We certainly didn't take them lightly."

Northville loses game, gains respect

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

The Northville footballers may have lost the game, but on Nov. 17 in Flint, the Mustang program gained a world of respect.

Prior to the closer-than-expected 14-7 defeat to powerful Brother Rice, nobody gave Northville much of a chance. Detroit Free Press writer Mick McCabe said: "It's over . . . Northville cannot beat Brother Rice."

So when the score was tied 7-7 for most of the game, the Mustangs were obviously turning a lot of heads. The neutral fans were clearly in the underdogs' corner, rooting for Northville.

"I don't think we'll ever be able to sneak up on anybody again," Mustang Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "This was good preparation for the big games we will have next year."

As he met Rice's legendary coach at midfield seconds after time expired, Schumacher heard Al Fracassa respectfully say: "You have a great football team."

COLLIGAN'S WORDS OF WISDOM: As the heartbroken Mustangs gathered at midfield after the game's conclusion, Northville Athletic Director Dennis Colligan addressed the team.

"I know it hurts," he said, "but get those heads up. There's a lot of people waiting who want to shake your hand and say thank-you for a great season. It was a great season — always remember that."

FRESHMAN PHENOM: If Brother Rice wins its fourth state championship this weekend, Fracassa will have freshman runner Marcus Harvey to thank. He scored the game-winning touchdown against Northville on a fifty-three-yard scamper around Bill Kelley — one of the Mustangs' fastest players.

Future greatness is predicted for Harvey. He is the first ninth-grader since 1974 to play varsity football for the Warriors.

T.V. PUBLICITY: The Northville gridders were featured on Channel 7 (WXYZ in Detroit) during last Friday's 5 p.m. newscast.

While the Mustangs were practicing at U-M's Michigan Stadium, reporter Jay Berry talked to Schumacher and Northville players Jeff Todd and Bob Holloway.

ANOTHER LEGENDARY COACH: In addition to Fracassa, there was another legendary coach on hand for the Class A semifinal clash at Flint's Atwood Stadium.

Atwood's public address announcer, Stan Gooch, is the legendary prep basketball coach at Flint Central High School. Gooch has presided over a highly successful program that's produced college greats like Darryl Johnson (MSU), Eric Turner (U-M), Marty Embry (DePaul) and Tarence Green (DePaul).

THE FINAL WORD: With another big and boisterous crowd on hand to cheer the Mustangs on, Northville coach Darrel Schumacher had nothing but praise for the way the community has supported his team this season.

"The community — everyone from parents to friends to long-time residents — have been absolutely great," he said. "I can't say enough positive things about all the support we've received."

Holdridge places 7th at states

The Michigan Girls' State Swimming Championships on Nov. 16-17 at Michigan State's Charles McCaffrey Pool was one of the fastest ever. And even though the Northville tankers managed to score just seven points, many notched improved times.

The only Mustang to place (top 12) was senior Pam Holdridge, who was seventh overall in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 58.68. She was just over two seconds off the pace set by Christy Wicke of Bloomfield Hills Andover. Holdridge's effort set a new school record and actually beat three of the six finalists, but her preliminary time of 1:00.62 wasn't enough for a spot in the finals, but rather the consolation finals.

In addition, Holdridge's time may qualify her for All-American status. Her finish marked the third consecutive year she's placed in the top 12 at the state meet.

In other action, the 200 medley relay team of Jodi Wesley, Teri Juhasz, Holdridge and Megan Holmberg couldn't match their season-best effort and missed qualifying with a 44th place finish. In the 200 IM, Juhasz dropped almost two seconds

Holstein ejected, cagers fall in district semifinals

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

It was a frustrating and unfortunate way to end a brilliant career.

Just before halftime of Northville's district semifinal basketball game on Nov. 14 against Livonia Stevenson, star forward Kate Holstein was ejected from the game after delivering a flagrant elbow to a competitor.

Without Holstein — a team leader who averaged 30 percent a team leader's points this season — the Mustangs were never able to recover and fell 47-40. The loss ended the 1990 season.

"It was an extremely frustrating night for us," Northville Coach Ed Kritch said. "We lost our composure a little bit. We seemed to be a half-step behind all game."

The Spartans jumped ahead 6-0 in the first two minutes of the game, and maintained a 10-4 lead after one quarter. The Mustangs only points came from Holstein.

In the second quarter, the play started to become extremely rough, but the officials failed to take any action. Holstein scored eight of her team's 15 first-half points, before a scuffle on a free throw attempt with 32-seconds on the clock resulted in the ejection.

"Things were getting very rough," Kritch said, "and the officials lost control of the game. The foul warranted an ejection, so there was really no arguing the call. But the aspect of the whole thing that is difficult to deal with was that we needed preventative officiating before the fact, and we didn't get it."

"(Kate) lost her temper and we paid the price."

Even without Holstein, the Mustangs cut the nine-point halftime lead to five at the end of three quarters, but Kara McNeil — Northville's No. 2 scorer — fouled out, and never made it into the fourth.

A Karen Pump three-pointer with 1:20 remaining pulled the Mustangs to within four at 44-40, but Stevenson scored the game's final three points. For the season, the Spartans won two of three meetings with Northville.

"Without Holstein and McNeil, we were missing almost half of our scoring, but the girls never gave up and we almost pulled it out," Kritch said.

Pump led Northville with nine points while Holstein and Stacey Nyland added eight each. Nyland chipped in with a team-high nine rebounds and four steals. "Stacey has shown steady improvement and she's set herself up for a good senior season next year," Kritch said.

NORTHVILLE 55, LIVONIA LADYWOOD 33: The Mustangs advanced to the district semis with a convincing first-round triumph over the Blazers on Nov. 12.

"We played extremely well," Kritch said. "Ladywood is one of our two biggest nemeses because girls that choose not to go to Northville (High School) usually go to Ladywood or (Farmington Hills) Mercy. It's important that we do well against those teams."

The Mustangs established control in the first quarter thanks to pressure defense and a half-dozen steals. A five-point halftime advantage ballooned to 16 at the end of three quarters after Northville found a seam in Ladywood's zone defense. Holstein and Pump caused most of the damage in the quarter with six and five points respectively. Holstein wound up with 14 and Pump had 11 points, eight assists and three steals.

The Mustangs end the season with a 13-8 overall record.

NATIONAL TOURNEY IN NOVI: Not since 1970 has the Metro Detroit area hosted a national softball tournament. But on Nov. 8 at the 59th Annual Amateur Softball Association (ASA) convention in San Antonio, Tex., this area was awarded two tourneys — one in Novi. By capturing 157 votes, Novi will hold the 1991 Women's Major Slowpitch Championship during Labor Day Weekend.

It is believed that the location and overall quality of Novi's Power Park/Civic Center facility is the primary reason the tournament is coming to Novi.

LOCAL BOWLER EXCELS: Jack Craig of Novi led the field of 88 bowlers in the Mid-States Masters Bowling Association November Open held earlier this month at Eastland Lanes in Essexville, Mich. Craig fired a five-game total of 1,093 during the qualifying portion of the event, averaging 218. He collected a $100 bonus check for his effort, in addition to his $100 check for staying in contention through the third round of match match. He was eliminated in that round by the eventual winner of the tourney, Jerry Sharrow of Bay City.

The next Mid-States Masters Tournament for the regular division will be at 300 Bowl in Waterford on Dec. 9. For more information, call Al Bielawski at 776-6148.

OUTDOOR RINK OPEN: Weather pending, the Buhr Outdoor Ice Rink in Ann Arbor will open Nov. 25. The rink is located at 2751 Packard Road.

Mustang senior Bill Kelley prepares for a collision

Warriors pull out last-minute victory

Huzjak wound up with 73 yards rushing in nine carries, but was just 7-for-19 through the air for 79 yards. His favorite target was Jamie Miller, who had two catches for 39 yards. Holloway paced the defense with 10 solo tackles, 14 assists and two pass deflections.

"Bob played his heart out," Schumacher said.

"But Burtraw was the big star."

"We knew Northville was a heck of a team," he said. "They are very hard-hitting. I had a feeling I'd carry it a lot today. I figured if it was close I'd get the ball."

The Mustangs end the season at 8-4, while Rice moves on to play Midland in the title game. The Chemicks edged Grandville 20-19 in the other Class A semifinal.

For the first time all year, a defense found a way to shut down both Huzjak and Kelley. The two combined for 3,769 total yards this season, but had less than 150 against Rice.

"(Brother Rice) had excellent defensive backs and they really put pressure on Huzjak," Schumacher explained. "They really rushed our passing game, and when you do that, it's hard to be successful."

Paul analyzes '90 soccer season

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Bob Paul is trying to develop Northville's boys soccer program into a premier program, similar to the way the highly successful Mustang girls squad is now.

And now, after one season with the boys, Paul is very encouraged, but knows that the job will take a lot of time and effort. In 1990, Northville was slightly shy of making it back to the .500 mark (7-8-3 overall), but it was an improvement over last year's 6-10 effort. And if it wasn't for a dreadful scoring slump midway through the season, the resurgence could have been even more pronounced.

"It's tough for a team with a new coach," Paul said. "We had a slump where we didn't score, but we came back at the end of the season to play with much more confidence."

The Mustangs suffered through four straight scoreless matches and went from Sept. 12 to Oct. 8 without nothing more than one tally.

Despite the sub-.500 record (5-5-3 in the WLA), the Mustangs outscored their opponents 30-25. And that includes two meetings with Livonia Stevenson, one with Livonia Churchill and one with Detroit Catholic Central. All three teams were ranked in the top five in the state when they met Northville.

"I am proud that we were in every game but two this season," Paul recalled. "We lost to Stevenson 5-1 (on Sept. 10) and then came back a month and a half later and took them to overtime before losing 1-0. That's a good indication that we improved."

Another highlight was three victories in three meetings against capable North Farmington, including a win for seventh place at the WLA crossover match and an overtime win in the first round of the MHSAA districts.

Mustang kickers honored

Five Northville soccer players were given post-season honors by the Western Lakes Activities Association coaches in their annual season-ending meeting late last month.

Holdridge takes 7th at state meet

(2:17.78) to take 22nd place, while teammate Wesley was 19th (2:17.20).

In diving, Beth Frayne beat many of the state's best at the Regional Meet on Nov. 13, but did not get past the first cut at the state meet. Claire Cryderman was 18th (5:25.51) in the 500 freestyle, Holmberg was 30th (1:04.6) in the 100 backstroke, and Juhasz was 20th (career-best 1:11.17) in the 100 breaststroke.

In the other two relay events, Wesley, Cryderman, Holdridge and Holmberg combined to place 15th (3:47.75) in the 400 freestyle, while the 200 medley relay team — featuring Juhasz, Cryderman, Sheila Osborne and Brenda Newton — placed 35th (1:47.55).

Juhasz had a great day with career-best times in all her events, and the 400 freestyle relay combo topped their season-best effort by three seconds.

STORM PLACES: Former Northville standout Kristen Storm, who now competes for Brighton, placed eighth in the 100 freestyle in a time of 53.21.

The team's strength was on defense, and goaltender Larry Osiecki was the key figure. The senior was named to the WLA All-Conference team with a superb 1.34 goals against average and 6.5 shutouts.

"To have nearly seven shutouts for a team with a 7-8-3 record is amazing," Paul said. "Larry is a great talent and a tremendous leader. He is very respected throughout the conference."

Other key graduation losses will include forwards Lou Stoecklin and Dave Smith, as well as midfielder Steve Lang. Lang led the team in scoring (nine goals, four assists), while Stoecklin (five goals, three assists) and Smith (five goals, four assists) were close behind.

The defense will also be hard hit as senior starters include Ed Petit, Chris Walker, Brent Garner and Greg Bernardo. Petit, a four-year starter, was an All-Division selection this fall.

"A lot of the coaches said to me that it seems like Ed's been around for a long time, and that's flattering," Paul said. "Our defense was the thing that didn't waver all year and Ed was the big part of it."

Midfielder Jason Flading (honorable mention pick) had two goals and two assists, and will also be missed next season.

The returnees will include promising sophomores Clay Cutchins and Steve Moore. Cutchins was named the team's Most Improved Player in '90 and Moore made his way into the starting lineup at midfield. Others like sophomore Matt Osiecki (three goals, three assists) and junior Matt Rossing (two goals, two assists) will also be key contributors.

And with three talented young goaltenders (Gordie Collins, Sean Gordon and Frank Carrier) in the wings, Paul isn't too concerned about filling in for Osiecki.

"The reason I'm not overly concerned is that the defense was the strength of the junior varsity team, and many of those players will be moving up to the varsity," Paul said. "We've got a foundation to build on now, so the transition should be much easier next season."

"I feel real positive about coaching the boys at the high school level."

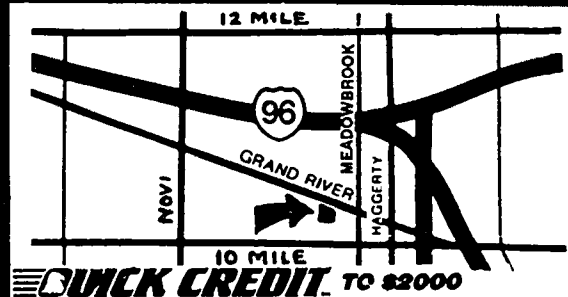

Lou Stoecklin (17) scored five goals and three assists in '90

Turkey Day without turkey?

Fresh turkey, basted in butter... giblet gravy... prime rib, with a savory dollop of horseradish... These are what make holiday meals memorable — unless you're a vegetarian, faced with the prospect of trying to get through Thanksgiving, Christmas or Chanukah surrounded by an extended family of carnivores.

Some vegetarians may feel a tinge of nausea just looking at a platter of meat. Others may experience a different kind of agony, finding themselves gnawing on a table leg to avoid a turkey leg.

If that's not enough, family members may get pushy about stacking a non-meat eater's plate with "just one slice" of ham or roast beef.

During the season for food orgies, vegetarians can stuff themselves on meat substitutes like soybean, turkey-flavored sausage or patties, tofu sloppy joes, and ground grain products shaped into "meatloafs."

But an alternative, said Cindy Stewart, Nov's Director of Public Relations, is to fill up on the fixings — potatoes, cranberries and salads. Sixteen years ago, ill while pregnant with her first son, Stewart was unable to eat much of anything. Later, she decided to keep to her vegetarian diet for health reasons.

"Sometimes it's hard. We're a meat and potatoes family. If I go to my sister's and her family's, they all go, 'Oh, we don't know what to serve you.' They think the whole meal is meat," she said.

"I will never eat red meat. It doesn't bother me. I like things like rice and zucchini and broccoli all mixed up for the holidays. But I have to cook all the other things for my family."

"It's not as hard anymore as it used to be. It's not as hard as people think."

Stewart's parents worried that she wasn't eating enough. "They thought I was going to get sick. I said, 'Hey, I'm fine. Who says you have to eat meat?'"

For Christine Olson, Zerbo's Health Food Supermarket in Livonia, turning vegetarian was an ethical decision.

"I don't like how the meat industry works. I don't like how the animals are treated. I would never force anybody to be one (vegetarian). This is something personal," she said.

"I never had any real problems. My family has accepted it. If anything we have encouraged family members to become aware of how animals are treated in the industry."

About five years ago, Olson, a Canton resident, took six months to gradually eliminate meat from her diet, starting with red meat and then removing poultry and fish.

For holiday meals, she and her brother, also a vegetarian, prepare their own pasta, salads and macaroni, as well as spooning into the side dishes like stuffing.

"I don't really make a big deal about it. I just eat what's there on the table," she said, adding that her family and friends are understanding.

"I really haven't had anybody force it on me. If they really are making a big deal about it, put it on your plate and don't eat it. I never have a problem with people."

"You have to be strong and you have to get your point across. I also make a point not to make anybody feel bad. If my boyfriend wants to eat prime rib or a steak in front of me, I never make a big deal about it. You have to treat others fairly because that's what you want in return," she said.

Both Olson and Stewart say they don't miss their pre-vegetarian holiday feasts.

Fitness Tips

Don't postpone your exercise routine

By LAURA MARKOWSKI
Special Writer

In today's fast-paced world, taking time out for exercise is often difficult. After a long day at work, we return home to care for children, the pets and a seemingly endless amount of household chores. This usually means that our exercise routine becomes postponed for a day when "there will be more time." Exercise can't always be postponed for another day. It is vital for maintaining good health. Frankly, we are kidding ourselves by postponing exercise until there is "more time." We must make the most of the time we have today. Overall fitness can be improved with as little as a half hour of exercise three times per week.

Family cooperation is key for staying in shape. Spouses should be encouraged to support and motivate each other to begin or maintain a workout routine. With small children in the family, getting away may seem twice as difficult. Time must be budgeted. For example, husband and wife could alternate workouts, allowing each other to squeeze in exercise time. Alternatively, baby can be brought along in a bike seat or baby jogger, two ingenious inventions that allow more flexibility in scheduling workout times.

Exercise for the entire family can be a great way to get everyone together, especially if the children are a little older. Biking, walking and hiking are excellent group activities. Exercising with children will encourage them to develop healthy exercise habits that will last for a lifetime.

There are many other ways to creatively budget time to allow for exercise. Try taking the dog out on a walk or run. Walk or bike to work if you live close enough. Many urban areas are encouraging bikers with the addition of bike paths to reduce traffic congestion and air pollution. Exercise on your lunch hour. You will return to work refreshed and ready to take on the afternoon.

Finding time for a workout is not impossible. It simply takes a little cooperation and imagination to successfully manage your schedule. Encourage your family to exercise with you or allow you time to exercise on your own. You will soon find that you will feel better and have more energy to juggle all of your duties!

Your local recreation department can help you find out more about biking and jogging trails. Sporting goods stores usually have information on local events and seminars on your favorite activity.

The Northville Record is working with medical authorities at the University of Michigan Medical Center (M-Care) in Northville to provide up-to-date information on a variety of health-related topics. The series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the M-Care staff.

GIFT GUIDE

All about Gift Guide

That season is coming 'round again. You know. That season. The big one. The holiday season. The Christmas holiday season.

Believe it or not, Thanksgiving is already here. And now's the time when just about everybody is turning their full attention to all the things that make the holidays special—cooking, baking, decorating, mailing Christmas cards and buying gifts for everyone from your beloved spouse to Uncle John, Aunt Betty and all their kids.

It's a tall order, and the holidays have been known to take their toll on those who are not well-organized and do not get off to an early start.

But we've got good news for you regardless of whether you're somebody who plans ahead or waits until the last minute. And this is it—the annual Holiday Gift Guide published by HomeTown Newspapers.

As you read through the pages ahead, you'll find all kinds of suggestions for making your holidays easier to organize and more enjoyable.

You'll find a story about what's hot in toys this year. Along the same line, another story will talk about the "games people play"—giving you an overview of what's new and what's hot in table games for 1990 and '91.

There are a couple of stories for men and women looking for suggestions on what to get their mates. For husbands, there's a story about what to get the woman who has everything. And for wives, there's a story filled with gift suggestions for the man who has everything.

There's more to the holidays than gift-buying, of course. And our Gift Guide offers some interesting stories on those topics as well. One story offers suggestions on how to pick out a Christmas tree. Another provides ideas about ornaments, lights and garlands for those who enjoy decorating their homes for the holidays. And yet another is filled with information on quick, clever ways to package gifts.

Of course, the most valuable part of the Gift Guide may well be the advertisements on these pages. Local merchants have found the Gift Guide a useful tool for letting our readers know about special gift selections.

You'll find all kinds of gift ideas for everyone on your shopping list just by examining the ads. Get out paper and pencil, and make a list.

So read on. You can make the holiday season a lot less hectic by utilizing your HomeTown Newspapers' Holiday Gift Guide as a valuable resource in your Christmas planning.

The cover of the Holiday Gift Guide was photographed by Scott Piper and designed by Angela Predhomme. Advertising layout was done by Denise Sepulveda and editorial design was done by Chris Boyd.

rnaments, lights, garlands and more

Collectible ornaments are just one way to bring the holiday spirit to your home's decor.

Perhaps nobody did more to further the cause of holiday decorating than the Victorians. From opulently adorned trees to garlands festooning every doorway to Christmas crackers at every place setting, they created a sense of festive abundance with their yuletide decor.

While the excess of Victorian holiday decor might not be your taste, it does encourage you to think of the whole house as fair when it comes to bringing the spirit of fun into your home. Instead of looking at it as a chore, make it fun by putting out small decorations all year long. In December, adding more as the holiday nears.

INVITING ENTRIES

There are a traditional way to invite guests in for the holidays, but you don't have to stop there. Ideas for doorways include decorating the door like a giant present by dressing it up with bright red paper and a huge bow.

Create a country Christmas by framing the doorway with swags of fragrant evergreen garlands, highlighted with big red bows and polished apples.

Perk up windows with small ornaments, lights or even painted-on decorations.

One idea is to use fancy paper doilies as window stencils. Use a wide stencil brush or a sponge to apply water-soluble paint and create a flurry of pretty snowflakes. The more creative among us, of course, can create their own stencils using a variety of holiday motifs.

When you're stringing lights up outdoors, don't overlook lawn decorations. Create a nativity scene or dot the lawn with charmingly primitive-looking reindeer made with logs and twigs. And lights aren't the only way to perk up trees and shrubs — dress them up with bright streamers of wide red and gold ribbon.

DECK THE HALLS

Deck the halls with anything — boughs of holly, swags of evergreens, garlands of fruit and vegetables. The choice is limitless and the effect is always cheerful.

In "Entertaining in the Victorian Style" (Dutton Studio Books), Marilyn Hansen suggests that festive excess is best:

"To give a Victorian flavor to your decorations, hang garlands of green over doorways and mantels — and over a tall pier mirror if you have one — letting them fall down the sides. Twine greens around the banister or in and out balusters of a prominent staircase."

Hang sprigs of mistletoe in strategic locations. Chandeliers and other hanging light fixtures provide another venue for decorations.

Add a touch of whimsy with decorations made from unusual materials. Create a Southwestern centerpiece of red and green chili peppers. Or decorate an archway with a garland of vegetables for an effect that is surprisingly festive.

Use moss, ornaments, bows, evergreens, dried flowers and other materials to create your garlands. Even include scented sachets of bay leaves, cloves and cinnamon to invoke the holiday spirit. Chickadee wire, artist's tape and wire available at hardware stores and hobby shops will help you make the garland.

Raid the children's toy box for teddy bears and pretty dolls. Dressed up with gold, silver, red and white bows, they make cheerful sentries lined up along a mantelpiece or grouped at the foot of stairs.

ORNAMENTS

Ornaments have been around nearly as long as the Christmas tree. Paradise trees were adorned with apples and small berries baked in the shape of stars, angels, leaves and flowers.

Early ornaments in this country were delicate creations imported from Germany. Made of hand-cast lead and hand-blown glass, they were embellished with silk thread, chenille and tinsel. Spun-glass ornaments in the shape of butterfly wings, air balloons and zeppelins also went on to become beloved heirlooms.

Today manufacturers such as Hallmark and American Greetings offer dated keepsake ornaments with a nostalgic flair for collectors. And the handmade ornaments we created as children are among the most beloved.

Ornaments, of course, belong on the tree. But that's not the only place they'll feel at home.

Use them to create tabletop decorations or dress up tabletop holiday topiaries. Hang them on wreaths or garlands. Or use them to decorate your packages.

LIGHT THE NIGHT

Warm lighting is another indispensable feature of holiday decorating.

In addition to lighting up the tree, electric lights can be strung across the ceiling or included in a garland.

If you have a fireplace, now is the time to light it. Also use candles to create a warm glow. Options range from elegant white or ivory tapers in crystal and brass holders to tiny tea candles set in a nest of fragrant potpourri. Or burn scented candles in cheerful holiday colors.

Some families use the time a candle burns to celebrate the holidays. Jewish families will spend the half-hour or so it takes a menorah candle to burn to play Hanukkah games.

Or, to create Christmas excitement, burn a long taper every year and mark it into 25 sections. Beginning on the first of December, burn one section each night, spending the time wrapping gifts and preparing for the holiday.

Outdoor lights present a festive face to the world. Tips for lights include using bulbs from the same color family—blue and green, for example, or red, orange and yellow. Use all minibulbs or all large-size, all colored or all clear bulbs.

Find out what the neighbors are doing. Create a harmonious look on your block with the size and color of your lights.

If you're entertaining, line the way to your front door with festive luminarias — paper bags weighed down with sand and a candle inside.

See You At Milford's
Christmas
Open House

What to get the woman who has almost everything

Sallying forth to find the perfect gift for the woman in your life?

This quest can be as befuddling as a maze and as ego-threatening as an untried sport. But never fear. You can put those nagging uncertainties aside if you venture forth well-informed.

Mall, department store and shop employees are poised to illuminate your way to a merry Christmas and happy Hanukkah. It's their job to assuage those who are lost or idea-deficient. Ask them for inspiration, sharing details about the habits, interests and dreams of the woman you love.

Clothes-wise, we're in an epoch of anything goes. Navajo-print sweaters, structured jackets made of rug-like fabrics and long woven coats will warm her winter. Also considered "must-haves" this season are the oversize blazer, called the boyfriend jacket, and leather-wrapped skirts.

All-weather women will appreciate this season's winning coat—the anorak. This drawstring-waisted jacket is versatile for city and country activities. Other manifestations of outback suburban chic are chukkas (ankle high boots) or camp mocs. Accompany with a hefty selection of relaxed turtle-necks with matching crew socks.

Accessories are a provident key to revitalizing her closet's contents. Sequined gloves, cashmere gloves, gloves with fringe, buttons and chains are a lady-like addition to any wardrobe. Belts range from simple strips of faux finished leather to brass-embazoned sashes to extravagant swoops of tassels and beads.

Textured or printed hosiery, a selection of natty knee-highs and unusual print leggings will caress her from the floor up. At eye level, treat her to new spectacle frames or an assortment of pastel silk chiffon scarves.

If there's a statement to be made in vogue this season, it's "ethnic." Frenzied print scarves, bangles, silver cuffs, earrings and necklaces with as many moving parts as wind chimes add up to a gypsy-like flavor.

Big glass stones set in multi-chain necklaces bring the Russian influence home. Byzantine hair accessories have jewels in emerald, sapphire, amethyst and ruby. Museum gift shops often have higher-tech jewelry and accessories.

Hats are back. Don't try to choose from the soft felts, bold berets, leather, suede and fur confections without her. Plan a special hat-buying excursion buffeted by a lunch or a cocktail.

Handbag shopping is another personal affair, also best undertaken with the woman in tow. A durable quality wallet can cost more than a purse and is almost a luxury. If you're out on your own handbag hunting, choose a minaudiere. These fanciful little evening bags turn any event into a gala.

New briefcases for women double as totes and constructed handbags. Even mommy-trackers will appreciate posh day-planners, calendars and address books. Styles range from country fresh to Space Age tech.

Silver, leather or china picture frames and prestige fountain pens will be thoughtful additions to her desk activities. Or help her ring in the new year with a new phone—cordless if she doesn't have one yet or one of the innumerable farfetched shapes available.

Women who cherish their discontinued china and crystal will appreciate the services of Replacements Ltd. Find her the unfindable by writing to 302 Gallimore Dairy Road, Greenboro, North Carolina 27409-9723.

Impassioned cooks will go gaga over kitchen gadgetry. Wives who slap together three meals a day under the duress of keeping the family fed will not. Distinguish the difference. Don't buy mere appliances as gifts. Shiny imported mechanisms that perform amazing feats of food preparation are the ticket.

Options range from wall-mounted hand-beater assortments with happily whirling motors to exquisite little stainless pepper mills and vegetable peelers.

Beauty gifts ride the same thin line. You want to help her already formidable good looks, not change her completely. Look for beauty items she would consider a total indulgence—makeup brushes, ostrich feather powder puffs, scented bath beads, an elegant lipstick case, compact and comb for her purse. If she's mentioned haircuts, facials or massages, find out who performs premier services in your community.

Escape from the unrelenting carol-filled commercialism of the malls in junktique browsing. You'll see uncommon items like sterling vanity sets, ornate andirons or Victorian posy holders. You may find folk art weather vanes, hand-painted hatboxes or a collection of romantic records.

You can avoid the shopping scene entirely by tracking down theater or symphony tickets. Museum memberships, art workshops or painting lessons, magazine or book-of-the-month subscriptions are other ideas. Domestic women will delight in sewing or tailoring lessons or a block of sessions on cooking exotic cuisines.

If she's less demoiselle than daredevil, find out about heliskiing, skydiving, hang-gliding, river rafting or deep-sea diving. Give lessons. Or if she's already entrenched in one of these bionic pastimes, chances are she'd love some new equipment.

Talk to your travel agent about romantic weekend getaways. Special fares, arranged in advance, can put you more than a stone's throw from home in a relaxed setting or beneath the dazzling city lights.

Time-deficient businessmen or guys whose extracurricular activities do not include wives or girlfriends should think about committing to some togetherness, perhaps in the form of dance lessons. Learn the lambada with a loved one. Join a swing dancing club. Try tai-chi or yoga instruction.

AT NORTHVILLE ROAD

What do you get the man who has everything? Would you believe, more of everything he has? Indeed. Whether you wish to address the man in your life with sartorial splendor, tee him off with golf equipment or put your dollars into his scents, there's no reason to utter, "He's so hard to buy gifts for" during the holidays.

CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN

"Color-driven, textured and exciting" are the three words For Members Only designer Barry Zelman uses to describe its fall line. Their palette twist on the "greening of America" include colors such as maroon, spice eggplant, rust, sea foam, marine blue, coral, wine, licorice, sandstone, dill, elderberry, burnt cherry, sea green, periwinkle, aubergine, pine and mushroom. Almost sounds like Baskin Robbins 31 flavors ice cream, doesn't it?

In addition, For Members Only sports leather outerwear in skins such as Velvet Suede, Nubuck, Ultra Antique Cow and Waxy Lamb.

JC Penney says all that hunting and fishing President Bush does in his off-hours may have made it very "in" to look like an outdoorsman this fall.

"Men are ready for a break from the fast lane," says JC Penney Fashion Director Joe Sapienza. "They're in a town-and-country mood for the fall."

The impression men are toughing it includes napped, suede, stonewashed, sandwashed and brushed looks in cotton and flannels for shirts, pants and jackets. Rugged individualists and countrified city slickers alike also will see lots of leather and suede outerwear. Expect leaf colors for slacks as well as shades of sage and olive. And lots of blue-green tints: alpine green, spruce green, teal green, moss and hunter green, etc.

Botany 500, a division of the Fashion 500 Group, manufacturers of fine men's tailored clothes, takes a different tack. It says the nostalgic looks of the 1940s are being revisited this fall. Aggressive shoulders and silhouettes of the '80s are making way to softer retro-inspired silhouettes.

And wardrobe purchases will built upon key elements. Example: The same black crepe slacks he wears to the office can be worn with a formal shirt and tie.

"Men want to look 'real,' 'relaxed' and 'elegant' now," says Mitchell Nichnowitz of the Fashion 500 Group.

Another member of the Group, Gladiator, meanwhile, designs clothes for your athletic kinda guy: fuller chest and shoulders; wide sleeves and armholes for bigger biceps; fuller thighs and seat, and smaller waist and lower rise to better define the contoured body.

This fall, denims, the staple of men's wear, are lighter and more urbane looking. Work shirts by Joseph Aboud come in faded and dark indigo and stonewashed for a soft hand. Jeans are snug at the seat but loose on the thighs. Shirts have an easy drape, deep armholes, two pockets and rivet-style buttons. Classic denims also are playing at your local Gap, Banana Republic, Barney's, Macy's, JC Penney, etc.

"It's not just about cowboys and country and western, anymore," says Lou Holtz of the Gifts for all styles of men

Men's Fashion Association.

Mention the name "Polo" and two images come to mind: Marco Polo and Ralph Lauren fashions for men, the clothing line he founded in 1968. What's on Lauren's hot list? Try Bulldog leather bomber jackets, tweed houndstooth vests, cotton tattersall shirts, suede work shirts (in red, plum, taupe and camel) and twill sportsman shirts with corduroy collars.

Also look for Lauren's unique golf fashions — from traditional houndstooth plus fours to way-out-west California-bright purples, oranges, reds and jades — and cowboy ski collections: hand-knit scrape sweaters, stretch corduroy pants and bright bandannas.

Continuing the American heartland theme is Henry Grethel. Brushed, matte, sanded and peach skin finishes imitate nature's weathered appeal. As for color palette, glance at a country porch: pickled pumpkins, squash, corn and eggplant all highlight Grethel's scheme of things.

Tommy Hilfiger provides a different twist on the fall, too. New are casual cotton knits Hilfiger calls "sweater sweats" that have the feel and look of sweaters in jewel tones such as scarlet, amethyst and loganberry. That's the Core line of clothing. Hilfiger also offers the Fraternity (no explanation needed), Academy (European accent) and Harvest (town and country) lines of clothing.

In other fashion news for the man with everything: Brooks Bros. says its suit line will recall the 1920s (long, lean, very elegant);

Austin Reed of Regent Street says adios to the Green Decade with its British-influenced country gentleman look, and the Leather Apparel Association says men will be hot to trot in new color combinations of olive, curry and mustard over the standard black and brown bomber.

CREATIVE GOLFING

Your duffer has everything? Not necessarily.

He probably hasn't tried the new Golden Ram 492 golf balls. Described as "icosahedral dimple design" balls, they produce "maximum velocity, longer distance and uncanny accuracy." Unusual golf balls include Floaters that bob to the surface of a water hazard and Nitelite golf balls that glow in the dark.

How about a club that's three clubs in one? Try Tiger Shark's Triple Crown, a pitching wedge, sand wedge and lob wedge in one. Then there's the Highlander Super Stick. With 17 clubs in one, a player simply dials different club head angles (your golf buddies may want you to have your head checked, too).

And gadgets galore. To help judge distances, there's the Golf Scope from Tasco. Hand-held computers include the Scorekeeper; there's a golf ball monogrammer that resembles a nutcracker and there are telephones that resemble golf bags.

YOUR PEN PAL

Parker Pen has just introduced a new line of luxury writing utensils—the Duofold Collection. They sport a 1920s art deco design and the line comes in fountain pens, ball point pens, roller ballpoint pens and mechanical pens.

SMELL LIKE A MAN

Along with the standard-bearer fragrances such as Santa Fe, Calvin, Color by de Benetton, Antaeus by Chanel, Jovan and Adidas, there are new scents vying for holiday dollars this season. There's California for Men (Max Factor), an outdoorsy fragrance boasting essences of lavender, California citrus, rich cedarwood, clove, heady musk and sandalwood.

"Live the California Dream!," say the creators. And heading to the scented hills you will find Aspen, which "conjures a setting for romance with breathtaking landscapes, serenity and freshness." Love those press kits, don't you?

COIN A GIFT

The U.S. Mint calls them the shiniest gifts of all: real gold and silver coins. There are several varieties. American Eagle Bullion Coins are worth their actual weight in gold or silver and are bought and sold at current market value.

Proof coins are specially prepared on a press that gives the coin a certain luster. And commemoratives signify history — Dwight D. Eisenhower as a military hero and peacetime President, for example.

TOYS 'R' SOTHEBY'S

If you can wait long enough, and your pocketbook stretches, perhaps your man would like toys — big toys, expensive toys, antique toys. On December 18, Sotheby's in New York will offer a collection of toys from the mid-19th century to the '80s. Highlights? Cast-iron toys, clockwork tin toys, mechanical banks and penny toys.

Bring your bankroll, though. A rare Statue of Liberty Mechanical Bank is expected to fetch up to $70,000. For those on a budget, a cast-iron and wooden Clockwork Fire Engine House should go for about $5,000.

WEATHY WISH LIST

Can't resist giving you The Robb Report, which unwraps rare and outlandishly extravagant collections of gifts (if you must ask the price). There's a Frisbee set with a gem-quality one-carat diamond on an 18-karat solid-gold disc; an English castle vacation, complete with a butler, cook and housekeeper; a 100-year-old hurdy-gurdy, and a $2.5-million wedding gown in silk satin, encrusted in diamonds and pearls.

Speaking of nobility, did you know that you can make your man a lord? For the price of a luxury car or vacation home ($18,000-$400,000), Anglophiles, history buffs and high-society wannabes can purchase real titles of baron and lord as if they were buying old master paintings.

What to get the woman who has almost everything

Sallying forth to find the perfect gift for the woman in your life?

This quest can be as befuddling as a maze and as ego-threatening as an untried sport. But never fear. You can put those nagging uncertainties aside if you venture forth well-informed.

Mall, department store and shop employees are poised to illuminate your way to a merry Christmas and happy Hanukkah. It's their job to assuage those who are lost or idea-deficient. Ask them for inspiration, sharing details about the habits, interests and dreams of the woman you love.

Clothes-wise, we're in an epoch of anything goes. Navajo-print sweaters, structured jackets made of rug-like fabrics and long woven coats will warm her winter. Also considered "must-haves" this season are the oversize blazer, called the boyfriend jacket, and leather-wrapped skirts.

All-weather women will appreciate this season's winning coat—the anorak. This drawstring-waisted jacket is versatile for city and country activities. Other manifestations of outback suburban chic are chukkas (ankle high boots) or camp mocs. Accompany with a hefty selection of relaxed turtlenecks with matching crew socks.

Accessories are a provident key to revitalizing her closet's contents. Sequined gloves, cashmere gloves, gloves with fringe, buttons and chains are a lady-like addition to any wardrobe. Belts range from simple strips of faux finished leather to brass-embazoned sashes to extravagant swoops of tassels and beads.

Textured or printed hosiery, a selection of natty knee-highs and unusual print leggings will caress her from the floor up. At eye level, treat her to new spectacle frames or an assortment of pastel silk chiffon scarves.

If there's a statement to be made in vogue this season, it's "ethnic." Frenzied print scarves, bangles, silver cuffs, earrings and necklaces with as many moving parts as wind chimes add up to a gypsy-like flavor.

Big glass stones set in multi-chain necklaces bring the Russian influence home. Byzantine hair accessories have jewels in emerald, sapphire, amethyst and ruby. Museum gift shops often have higher-tech jewelry and accessories.

Hats are back. Don't try to choose from the soft felts, bold berets, leather, suede and fur confections without her. Plan a special hat-buying excursion buffeted by a lunch or a cocktail.

Handbag shopping is another personal affair, also best undertaken with the woman in tow. A durable quality wallet can cost more than a purse and is almost a luxury. If you're out on your own handbag hunting, choose a minaudiere. These fanciful little evening bags turn any event into a gala.

New briefcases for women double as totes and constructed handbags. Even mommy-trackers will appreciate posh day-planners, calendars and address books. Styles range from country fresh to Space Age tech.

Silver, leather or china picture frames and prestige fountain pens will be thoughtful additions to her desk activities. Or help her ring in the new year with a new phone—cordless if she doesn't have one yet or one of the innumerable farfetched shapes available.

Women who cherish their discontinued china and crystal will appreciate the services of Replacements Ltd. Find her the unfindable by writing to 302 Gallimore Dairy Road, Greenboro, North Carolina 27409-9723.

Impassioned cooks will go gaga over kitchen gadgetry. Wives who slap together three meals a day under the duress of keeping the family fed will not. Distinguish the difference. Don't buy mere appliances as gifts. Shiny imported mechanisms that perform amazing feats of food preparation are the ticket.

Options range from wall-mounted hand-beater assortments with happily whirring motors to exquisite little stainless pepper mills and vegetable peelers.

Beauty gifts ride the same thin line. You want to help her already formidable good looks, not change her completely. Look for beauty items she would consider a total indulgence—makeup brushes, ostrich feather powder puffs, scented bath beads, an elegant lipstick case, compact and comb for her purse. If she's mentioned haircuts, facials or massages, find out who performs premier services in your community.

Escape from the unrelenting carol-filled commercialism of the malls in junktique browsing. You'll see uncommon items like sterling vanity sets, ornate andirons or Victorian posy holders. You may find folk art weather vanes, hand-painted hatboxes or a collection of romantic records.

You can avoid the shopping scene entirely by tracking down theater or symphony tickets. Museum memberships, art workshops or painting lessons, magazine or book-of-the-month subscriptions are other ideas. Domestic women will delight in sewing or tailoring lessons or a block of sessions on cooking exotic cuisines.

If she's less demoiselle than daredevil, find out about heliskiing, skydiving, hang-gliding, river rafting or deep-sea diving. Give lessons. Or if she's already entrenched in one of these bionic pastimes, chances are she'd love some new equipment.

Talk to your travel agent about romantic weekend getaways. Special fares, arranged in advance, can put you more than a stone's throw from home in a relaxed setting or beneath the dazzling city lights.

Time-deficient businessmen or guys whose extracurricular activities do not include wives or girlfriends should think about committing to some togetherness, perhaps in the form of dance lessons. Learn the lambada with a loved one. Join a swing dancing club. Try tai-chi or yoga instruction.

TOYS!

Toys for kids of all ages provide the fun of hands-on participation.

All aboard! The Toyland Express is about to take off to see what's in stores this holiday season. First stop: a visit to Videoland, where King Nintendo reigns supreme with nary a flicker in the enthusiasm for this product. While most electronics lovers plugged in to a Nintendo game set last season, there's no shortage of new software cartridges to pop in the box.

If you've learned to save the princess in the Super Mario Brothers game, look for Super Mario 3. Or pal around with Pin Bot, a pinball-meets-robot arcade-style game. Or enter the role-playing worlds of Star Tropics or Final Fantasy.

For sports junkies, power up the field with Mike Ditka's Big Play Football by Accolade, or down the slopes with Heavy Shreddin', a snowboarding sports game by Parker Brothers.

For electronics fans with itchy feet to match their itchy fingers, pick up Game Boy, the new hand-held Nintendo game set that follows where you lead.

Next stop for the Express is the Doll House, with its assortment of perfect play-mates, whether your babes are interested in action figures, plush animals or baby dolls.

Baby dolls this season are positively magical. With Mattel's Magic Nursery dolls, a child immerses her "baby's" dressing gown into a bowl of water. Poof! The gown vanishes, behind a bag containing either a frilly dress or boys wear, so your tot knows whether to name her doll Samantha or Sam.

Baby dolls extend to all sorts of new frontiers: dolls that grow, dolls that make cute faces and sucking sounds, even dolls that dirty their diapers, like Hasbro's Baby Uh-Oh, which stains the diapers in two colors.

At 30, Barbie's still as popular as ever, but she has some high-fashion competition this season from Matchbox Toys' Real Model Collection dolls designed as lookalikes for models Cheryl Tiegs, Beverly Johnson and Christie Brinkley.

Batman action figures and play vehicles continue to fly high, as the release of the film on video-cassette has given these figures a second life. Following the screen-to-toyland trend are action figures based on Dick Tracy, Gremlins 2, the Jetsons, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles and, from television, the Simpsons, Beetlejuice and Tom and Jerry.

As for plush animals, there's a zooful of options. In addition to the standard cuddly cuties, you have animals that talk, sing and dance, such as Worlds of Wonder's Little Boppers, animated sound-activated plush toys — like Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Teddy Ruxpin — that move their legs in synchronization to sound.

At a stop in Harmony Hollow, the Express can show you a symphony of sound in this season's audio and musical delights designed to make your child a star.

Playskool starts them off early with its electronics line that offers a sing-along cassette player recorder and an AM/FM radio with sing-along microphone. With Major Morgan the Electronic Organ, tots can play 10 popular songs or create their own tunes by matching colors, numbers of symbols on song cards.

Mattel's Sound F/X allows kids to create their own audio accompaniment by strapping on wristbands and anklebands that make sounds with a kid's every move, from crowd noises to a machine gun barrage.

Worlds of Wonder's Jaminator is hard rock made easy. It combines — in a single guitar-shaped instrument — a guitar, keyboard, percussion and rock accompaniment with sophisticated software that ensures you never hit a sour note.

Kids can blow their own horn with Nasta Industries' Horn Magic, an instrument that automatically turns a humming voice into one of six brass instruments.

For aspiring disc jockeys, hook up to Playtime's Sound Machine. This electronic marvel's sound effects let a child combine sounds such as lasers and sirens to create his own show.

Next stop is the Children's Playroom, where there's a tabletop full of child's play.

In tune with the trend of junior takeoffs on adult board games — such as Pictionary Junior and Mickey Mouse Yahtzee — Milton-Bradley offers Scattergories Junior and Scrabble for Juniors, and Parker Brothers offers Monopoly Junior.

A tabletop classic to collect for constructive behavior is Playskool's Lincoln Logs, but don't overlook the stability of basic wooden blocks in assorted shapes and colors.

For handy kids, don't pass by the classic work benches and tool sets — or Ohio Art's Etch-a-Sketch. If your budding artist has blossomed beyond the confines of this classic box, check out fingerpaints and paint-by-number sets.

Other crafts to consider are jewelry-making kits, a selection of stencils and pencils, wood-burning sets and flower presses.

If your tot's too tiny to sit at the table, any number of plastic play worlds are designed for spread-on-the-floor playtime. Playskool's Flat Folks have their own busy farm or city, including a Pizza Place and Post Office, and have snap-on clothes for dress-up fun.

At the Public Park along the Expressway, you'll find a wonderful array of brightly colored, sturdy plastic, kid-size furniture and play sets for indoor and outdoor use.

Some winners are Playskool's Sand and Water Activity Table, Today's Kids' Kitchen and All-Star Sports Center, with an adjustable basketball hoop and punching bag.

A top-of-the-line attraction is Playskool's Sesame Street Deluxe Clubhouse, with its built-in play table, opening shutters and secret escape hatch.

Also perfect for playground fun are bicycles, trikes, scooters, skateboards and sturdy plastic play vehicles such as Playskool's Toddlin' Train, which can be ridden or used as a walker.

A stop at Toyland's School takes you back to the basics in educational toys.

Beginning with high-contrast black-and-white mobiles and cards for newborns from Wimmer-Ferguson, you can add to the intelligence quotient with toys such as Video Technology's Tick Talk Clock, which teaches time-telling skills.

A child can learn basic spelling and counting skills from Playskool's Alphie II, an endearing plastic robot whose face lights up for correct responses and says "sorry" for incorrect responses.

Don't overlook the value of good old-fashioned globes and maps.

And while puzzles are great for spatial appreciation, the Marvelous Mosaics Set from Learning Resources takes it a step further. Kids design patterns from plastic trapezoids and develop problem-solving skills as they attempt to fit their creations into the hexagonal work tray.

Video Technology's Precomputer 1000 Junior resembles a portable computer and teaches typing, history, geography, science and more by responding to answers the child types in on the keyboard.

Final stop is Grand Central Station, where the Toyland Express comes to rest with its companions: the model trains of every child's dream. From classics by Lionel to Playskool's Sesame Street Railroad, there's a train set for any child.

If your tyke's more of a speedster than an engineer, Mattel's Hot Wheels continue to burn up the racing tracks, along with Worlds of Wonder's GT Super Screamer.

For sheer vehicular toy power, however, look no further than Tonka's big yellow trucks — 25 years of popularity can't be beat, but don't overlook its new fire truck line with working sirens and action figures.

Tips for getting that special gift to the right place

Planning to send gifts by mail? Better get hopping.

The holiday season is the heaviest shipping time of the year. Plan to send packages via regular mail or UPS by Dec. 15. Last-minute shoppers can wait until Dec. 22 to send packages next-day air through a variety of carriers (DHL, Emery, Federal Express) for delivery by Dec. 24. As a backup, United States Postal Service Express Mail next-day delivery will get packages to their destinations on Dec. 25.

How do you ensure that presents are not broken or damaged during shipping? According to Sandy Greenberg, representative for Mail Boxes Etc., a 1,200-outlet national franchise network of business and postal services, the majority of shipping damage occurs because of careless or improper packaging.

"Your parcel should be able to withstand stacking, bumping or even a 30-foot drop," says Greenberg.

Packing experts at Mail Boxes Etc. have successfully packaged and shipped gifts that range from an original Picasso painting to a stuffed and mounted rattlesnake. They offer the following conditions:

- Always use a rigid, corrugated cardboard box. Containers should be in good condition, with all flaps intact. Select a carton large enough to allow room for adequate cushioning material on all sides of the product. Beware of using boxes more than once, since they lose resiliency in travel.

- Be sure the contents of your package are properly protected. Wrap each item separately, stuffing cushioning material firmly around, over and between items. Pack glass and china in a smaller box with 2 to 4 inches of packing materials between the two; the box shouldn't rattle. Foam peanuts are better than crumpled newspaper.

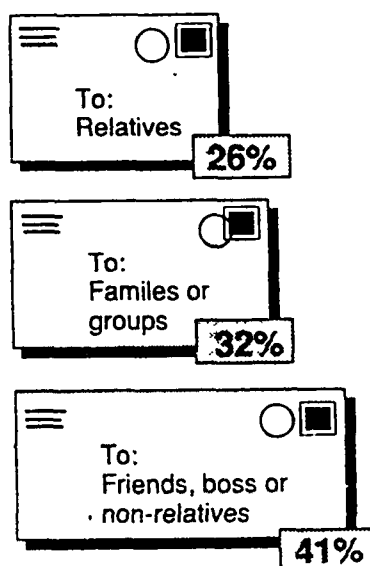

- Close the carton securely using strong tape, 2 inches or wider. Do not use masking tape or cellophane tape because they crack and peel when exposed to heat or cold and don't provide necessary strength. Instead, use pressure-sensitive plastic tape, water-activated paper tape or water-activated reinforced tape. Do not use string or paper on packages, these can get snagged on conveyor belts.

- Apply proper labeling. Always place clear tape over the label so ink will not smear; put an extra address label inside the box in case the outside is damaged. Include complete return address and the ZIP code with the complete mailing address. Put the recipient's phone number on the label when addressing to a post office box or a rural route; include the apartment number for all multidwelling addresses. Place the delivery label on top of the carton with no other address label — and never place the label over a seam or closure or on top of sealing tape.

For peace of mind, insure the package (the cost is minimal). If you're sending a high-ticket item, the most secure way is to send it registered mail.

How to wrap thoses tasty edibles for the season

It's more pleasing, somehow, to present edible gifts in open containers rather than hiding them inside boxes.

You'll want to choose a container that is useful long after its contents have been enjoyed. A wonderful woven basket, for example, can become a towel or magazine holder.

But beyond baskets, you can pack your items in such creative containers as an outside salad bowl, ice bucket or even a wire gardening basket. It's better to select a smaller container that will look brimming full, rather than a large one that seems to have lots of room left.

To add a warm, elegant touch to your gift, line the container with a swatch of colorful fabric. Other alternatives are tissue paper or lightweight wrapping paper.

Wrap in clear plastic, tied simply with a ribbon; busy paper and frills can detract rather than enhance—but you might want to tie an ornament or two in with the ribbon.

the Games people play

Whether they roll the dice or pick a card, folks are moving forward in this post-Nintendo age to enjoy good ol' games that promote human interaction — no flashing TV screens, no joysticks, no computerized sounds. Just a few hours of fun between parent and child, siblings or a dinner party of adults.

While classic games such as Monopoly, The Game of Life and Scrabble — and new classics such as Pictionary, Outburst and Scattergories — are family favorites, there are more than a few new worthwhile amusements on the table this holiday season.

TV's Simpsons family and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles both are game-sakes this season, and kiddie takeoffs of grown-up games and adult guessing contests are two fast-moving categories.

With the selection available, the biggest game in town this season may be deciding which games are right for your family.

A trip to any hobby shop, stationery outlet or bookstore will take you 'round the board of games — but for now just head to start, roll the dice and follow us on a brief tour of some of the season's blockbusters for every age and situation.

Perhaps one of the hottest categories of games is that for adults.

Get folks into the party spirit with Encore! by Parker Brothers. Competing teams challenge each other to come up with — and sing — songs from selected categories, such as any song that contains the word "heart." The team with the biggest repertoire wins.

Parker Brothers also offers Claim to Fame, in which players will talk, draw pantomime — they'll do anything to get their teammates to say five specific things that made a certain celebrity famous. Each of the game cards lists a famous person and five claims to fame — such as a rock star's five greatest hits.

Clever Endeavor by The Games Gang was invented by people across the United States. Thousands of people submitted clues for this game of hints and guesses. Each card offers six clues about a specific person, place or thing. The clues are read aloud one at a time, and the player who guesses the correct answer first scores. The fewer clues needed, the higher the score.

Gender Bender by The Games Gang is a sort of matching game that challenges players to think like a member of the opposite sex. In a sample round, a male player is asked a "suppose you were a woman" multiple-choice question. He attempts to guess how the female players will answer, and scores a point for each woman he matches. Topics range from dating and sex to politics and finance.

From Golden Games comes a variety of successors to its popular Outburst. Look for Outburst II with its all-new topics to challenge and entertain. Teams work against the clock to shout out the 10 items listed on topical cards such as "things in a taxicab" and "heavy-metal music groups." In Bible Outburst, players shout out guesses to categories such as "10 books of the Old Testament."

Milton-Bradley brings glasnost to the United States with its Gorbachev game. Players take a romp through the Soviet Union on a search for things like American blue jeans and Japanese cameras. The player who acquires the most Western-style items wins.

When it's time for family-style play rather than adult dinner party action, here are some winning games for kids over 10 and adults to share.

An environmental board game by Aristoplay Ltd. called Pollution Solution encourages players to think green. Each player owns various sections of the PS Township playing board. Pollution hits randomly throughout the town, and players learn solutions to stop the spread and protect the township.

Bilingual families can pick up Milton-Bradley's Sabado Gigante, based on the popular Hispanic television program that features singing, dancing, special guests and contests. The board game features six of the games currently played on the show for Spanish-English good times. Buena suerte!

Cardinal Industries presents another TV takeoff in its The Simpsons Mystery of Life Game. Each player assumes the role of one of the show's characters and has an agenda card he has to complete to win. For example, Marge has to get her hair done, go grocery shopping, etc. In the spirit of the show, players can sabotage each other's accomplishments — for example, Bart can mess up Marge's hair after she has it done. Ay carumba, dude!

For younger kids, 5 and up, look to games such as Golden Games' Whacky Blasters. Each player gets a chance to be a blow-hard as he uses a Whacky Blaster to blow a Puffball up the mountainside to the summit. Players must get through obstacles like Volcano Valley, and one wrong blow can send a player falling down the mountain back to start.

Parker Brothers brings the Magic Kingdom into your home with the Disney Game. Players move their train-shaped tokens around the Disneyland map board collecting point cards as they visit Adventureland, Tomorrowland, Fantasyland, etc., and meet Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and other favorite Disney characters. Whoever collects the most points before the park "closes" wins. If your little ones love to shout "cow-abunga" and eat pizza, take a look at the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles Tower of Doom by International Games. The games with the turtles trapped in the Tower of Doom, a city scene with a plastic sewer tunnel. Players pull Ninja swords out of the tower to free the turtles, sending them swooshing down through the sewer. Players win a piece of pizza each time they use Rescue Scoops to catch a turtle; if a player catches an enemy by mistake, he loses a piece of pizza. The first player to collect six pieces of pizza wins.

Turn up the competitive heat for your tykes with Pressman Toy Corporation's Thin Ice game. To play, marbles are placed in a water ring surrounding the igloo game base. One at a time, players pick up a wet marble with giant tweezers and place it on a tissue atop the igloo. The wet marble starts to sink into the tissue, and as more marbles are added to the "ice," the tissue gets thinner and thinner until it breaks. Whoever is holding the tweezers when the "ice melts" has on strike against him — three strikes and he's out!

For preschool play, you can't beat Milton-Bradley's selection of Sesame Street games. In the Great Big Parade Game, players race along the game path by matching colors and giving balloon tokens to favorite Sesame Street friends. The first player to give away all of his balloon tokens and reach the end of the game board is the winner.

In Number Puzzles games, children try to be the first to complete the number-coded puzzle of their favorite Sesame Street character, such as Cookie Monster or Big Bird.

In the Lotsa Lotto game, youngsters try to be the first to find matching tokens for all nine Sesame Street pictures on their Lotto board. They search in places such as Big Bird's Workshops, Cookie's Bakery and Bert's room.

Picking your tannenbaum treasures

Combined beloved heirlooms and handmade ornaments to create a tree that's traditional and individual. The tree shown here is Memory Tree from "The Spirit of Christmas-Book Two."

Every Christmas, my mother couldn't resist getting creative with the family tree. After years of living with flocked trees, we switched to an ecologically correct living pine.

Then she dispensed with the traditional pine or spruce altogether, choosing to embellish our ficus benjamina with tiny clear lights, which looked oddly fitting for a Southern California Christmas, which drooped made the tree look embarrassed.

But it was our family's treasured tannenbaum — the perfect home for Mom's elaborately wrapped gifts (she had a penchant for intricate Egyptian motifs).

If the ficus is our family tree, early celebrants favored small potted cherry and hawthorn trees during the holidays. The first decorated trees surfaced in Alsace in the early 17th century.

We have Queen Victoria's German royal consort, Prince Albert, to thank for the lavishly decorated trees we now associate with the holiday. When German immigrants brought the tradition to the United States, we added our own homespun touch with strings of popcorn and cranberries.

To this day, my mother's ficus notwithstanding, tradition reigns supreme during the holidays, and most families opt for a pine, spruce or fir.

There is a myriad of places to find your perfect tree. Every year, empty lots are transformed into tree emporiums. You'll also find trees at large home improvement stores and nurseries. For those city folk who want the experience of chopping down their own trees, there are tree farms.

SELECTING A TREE

Start by deciding where the tree will go and measuring the space. Remember that a tree that's too large is overpowering while one that's too small loses impact.

Then shop early in the season, when you'll have the best selection of fresh trees. You can judge a tree's freshness by its needles, which should be resilient and flexible. (Needles that snap when bent indicate a dried-out tree). Pull your hand across a branch — needles shouldn't fall off in your hand. Then lift the tree a few inches and let it drop on its stump. Green outer needles shouldn't fall off.

Consider how you'll decorate the tree. If you plan to load it with heavy ornaments, opt for a hardy balsam or noble fir. The Fraser fir has short, soft needles and open branches that are better for lighter ornaments. Other options are the dense, bushy Scotch pine and the silver-green Colorado blue spruce.

TREE SAFETY

Once you've selected the tree, keep it in a protected place outdoors until you're ready to decorate it.

Make a straight cut across the trunk 1 inch above the original cut, and put the tree in a pail of fresh water. It will drink up to a gallon in the first 24 hours, tapering off after that. Make sure the water level stays above the cut line.

Use a tree stand with a water bowl or a Tree I-Vee system (an intravenous feeding system for your tree; it's available at nurseries) to keep it watered. You even can add a commercial plant nutrient to the water. Check the tree's water supply daily.

Keep the tree away from drafts and heat. Avoid setting it up near fireplaces, television sets, heating vents or radiators. Also make sure lights are in good condition before stringing them on the tree. Opt for miniature lights instead of the old-fashioned strings of larger bulbs; not only do they twinkle festively, but they're less likely to spark a fire.

After the holidays, the best way to dispose of your tree is to recycle it by chopping it up for garden mulch. Avoid the temptation to dispose of it by burning it in the fireplace.

TREE TRIMMING

Safety tips aside, the real fun of having a tree is decorating it. These days, the trend is toward the traditional.

Trees are festooned with beloved family heirlooms. Everything from bona fide heirlooms to the bread dough Santa Susie made in second grade finds a home on the tree.

If you don't have boxes of treasured heirlooms, you can create your own tradition. Maybe you'd like the Americana feeling of plaid bows and strings of cranberries and popcorn. Or you can opt for a more sophisticated tree.

Not all of us have an eye for tree-trimming, however, and a little help will go a long way. You can turn tree-trimming into a social event and ask friends over to help with the chore.

Or you can hire an interior decorator or a florist to do the job.

High-tech, sports, fitness and executive toys

Come the holiday, there's no difference between men and boys except the price of their toys. That saying is especially true with the high-tech gifts available in shops, department stores and malls this season. But men aren't the only adults who like to get frivolous, toy-like presents for the holidays. Women often prefer grown-up gadgets over the frilly clothes and over-priced perfumes they're accustomed to receiving. With that in mind, it should be easy to find the right grown-up gift that doesn't require knowing a size or color preference.

HIGH-TECH GIFTS

Children aren't the only ones who like nice shiny presents with tons of buttons, lights and switches. High-tech gifts are easy to give because they're normally something someone could ooh and aah over in the store but could never buy.

If you know someone who really enjoys a good rest, try giving him or her the "Sound Soother" from Sharper Image. The Sound Soother is a combination radio/alarm clock with the added feature of soothing surf sounds to lull you to sleep or wake you with the sound of crashing waves.

For the hygienic, Panasonic offers the ultimate in personal care, electric nose-hair clippers.

Seiko has the perfect gift for the time-conscious. The World Time Clock displays the correct time in 27 different international cities. Also, time zones are displayed across an LCD map of the world.

And as technology increases, the size of gadgets decreases. For example, two shrunken video cameras, one from Panasonic and the other from Sony, are just about small enough to be used as stocking stuffers. Panasonic calls its miniature video camera the Palmcorder, while Sony just calls it the Handycam. Either way, it's easy to get a grip on these gifts.

Sony has also just come out with the Video Walkman. It's a small television with a video 8 VCR and can just about fit in your pocket.

GROWN-UP GADGETS

The gadget-minded adult craves new gizmos for the home. And this year promises to offer more home-entertainment goodies than any so far.

Video connoisseurs will giggle with glee upon receipt of some of the latest in high-tech

the only ones

VCRs. Mitsubishi is offering a VCR with all the trimmings. It contains advanced editing/special effect controls and high-speed rewind and fast-forward modes.

Akar offers a video treat with its combination video switcher/color monitor. It acts like a stereo receiver and looks like a VCR, but you can monitor what you do with the small television screen on the front of it.

And a videophile's Christmas is bound to include one of the many surround sound stereo amplifiers for televisions and VCRs.

Speaking of sound, Christmas is the best time to update a stereo system with one of many multi-CD players that will hold up to five CDs. And while you're getting a multi-CD player, make sure you get one with remote control.

BUSINESS BOOTY

If you want to help your favorite business execs streamline their lives, give them the Fast Dialer 500+. With this handy gadget, execs will be able to dial any of the 500 numbers stored in its memory.

And for execs on the go there are plenty of pocket translators to help out in those touchy linguistic situations where knowing the right word can clench the deal.

PHYSICALLY FIT

As more and more people move exercise into the home, choosing gifts for these exercise aficionados becomes easier and easier.

If you know a little about your eager exerciser, then you'll know what kind of equipment to buy.

Try giving a treadmill, ski machine or climber to sedentary office workers. Stationary bikes and treadmills are ideal for seniors.

Executives will have little or no time to exercise will appreciate a stationary bike with a swiveling reading table.

And for the golfers who need a littleumph in their swing, check out the Marcy Wedge, which attaches to your forearm and hand to flex those crucial golf muscles.

If they need help on the course, Sekisui offers the Golf Score Mate. It looks like a calculator, but it tracks putting efficiency and handicap and will calculate your gross, net or best score ever.

Golfers also love accessories such as monogrammed tees, new balls or gloves jammed in their stockings.

Gift bags, bright tissue paper and small ornaments make it easy to create pretty packages in a hurry.

Quick, clever ways to package gifts

Wrapping gifts can be fun or a hassle, an opportunity to exercise your creativity and ingenuity or an unwelcome way to spend precious time.

However you see it, heed the following and you'll find the process more enjoyable.

IF YOU HAVE TIME

Put extra sparkle in your holidays by wrapping a gift in an especially creative or beautiful way.

Use tinsel instead of ribbon, for example. Or tie some foil "icicles" into the bow. Jazz up a package with a small, shiny Christmas ball or appealing hand-crafted ornament; add a few tiny tinkling bells.

Select something unusual for gift wrap — the Sunday funnies, tin foil, wallpaper or fabric with a holiday print or something with texture, such as velvet, velour, silk or chamois.

Make your own wrap, and encourage the kids to help. Start with white butcher paper, then embellish it with pine trees drawn with felt pens, a repeating star pattern, goofy elves and reindeer, red-and-green abstract designs, patterns made with rubber stamps or stickers sold by the roll.

Tie a spring of mistletoe on the gift and hold it above the recipient when you give it to him or her. (All the better if the gift is lingerie or jewelry!)

Take a big piece of white paper and write a huge (felt pen) letter to Grandma or another out-of-town loved one; then wrap the gift with it.

Visit a craft or variety store for unusual embellishments, such as silk poinsettias, feathers, pompoms, metallic yarn, colorful miniature birds, pipe cleaners (use them to spell names, make ornaments) and more.

Hobby shop "sleds" made of balsa wood can be used to hold festive packages — and they also make attractive centerpieces.

Handmade gift tags can become lasting treasures.

Cut tiny snowflakes from colored tissue paper and glue them on tags of heavy white paper. Or have your toddler "draw" a picture of the recipient on the tag (Grandma will love it).

You can also make tags from cut-up greeting cards and used calendar pages. Heavyweight wrapping paper works well, too, or stiffen regular wrapping paper with a layer of clear contact paper; punch a hole in one corner for the string.

Women can apply bright red lipstick to their lips and then use them to stamp kisses on a white tag or plainly wrapped gift.

Instead of words on your gift tags, use pictures. On the front of a card, a snapshot of the recipient; on the inside a photo of the giver.

Traditionalists will be pleased that even "ordinary" gift-wrap items have been improved. New curling ribbons come in metallic colors, and bows and tags are now patterned to match papers.

IF YOU DON'T

Let's say you remembered to buy wrapping paper, ribbon, tape, tissue and tags — in sufficient quantity — and you've located the scissors. If you have 20 gifts to wrap, at 10 minutes each, you'll spend over three hours at it.

That's not a small chunk of time, particularly at this time of year (and it doesn't include cleaning up bits and pieces of paper and ribbon and finding a place to stash the rest).

Fortunately, card and gift-wrap manufacturers realize that many people who love to give gorgeous presents loathe the wrapping process, and they've come up with a solution: handsome decorated gift bags and boxes.

All you have to do is slip your item into the container; add tissue, a bow and a tag (if you wish). A bonus is that the bag or box is a gift in itself and will probably be reused by the recipient.

Carlton's Euro Bags, for example, feature vibrantly colored traditional holiday scenes and subjects and a durable, high-gloss laminated surface. Rope handles make the bags even sturdier.

Lighter-weight bags with pinched and flat bottoms are ideal for last-minute gifts or gifts that come in bottles. Decorative boxes come in several sizes: large (bathrobe size), medium (shirts or blouses), and small (lingerie, gloves, scarves).

Bag designs get more clever every year, and many of the this year's crop appeal to kids. American Greetings features a cartoon polar bear skipping (his jump rope is the bag handle). Other new designs include cartoonish caroling reindeer and Santa making his rounds.

But what if you bought something big, bulky and awkward to wrap? Not a problem. Slide that sled, doll house or tricycle into a huge red or green plastic bag imprinted with a holiday pattern. (These larger gift bags can be found in stationery stores and shops that specialize in containers).

Another way to "wrap" an awkward gift is to enclose a picture of it in a card. The recipient has the pleasure of anticipation, gift-unwrapping and surprise; you can keep the object hidden in a closet or the trunk of your car.

Holiday gifts from your kitchen

Does the idea of fighting the crowds in search of gifts for friends and relatives leave you with a "Bah, humbug" attitude?

Here's one cure: stay home and cook.

Give 'em goodies from your kitchen: breads, muffins, cookies—or herb mixtures and flavored vinegars, oils and mustards. (In this season of excess, foods that last beyond the holidays are a good idea.)

GIFT BASKETS

It's fun to select themes and design gift baskets. A "country holiday" basket, for instance, might contain fresh biscuits and jams, while a "high tea" hamper could feature a platter of scones, special teas and holiday napkins.

A "holiday baking" ensemble might include recipes, cookie cutters and a rolling pin. "Holiday brunch" could have French bread, goat cheese and plenty of fresh fruit and pastries.

A "pancake basket" might contain different kinds of mixes and syrups; a "treat basket," Belgian chocolates and champagne.

For someone who loves to cook, stuff an oversize kitchen mitt with small kitchen accessories or an interesting assortment of gadgets (cookie cutters, an apple peeler, colorful measuring spoons, wire whisks in several sizes).

Planning to visit someone in another city? Pack a basket with items produced in your community (such as wine from a local winery) or that you've grown in your garden (banana apples, sweet seedless tangerines, walnuts).

These store-bought treats make great fillers: flavored coffee beans, all-fruit jams, sparkling cider, cocktail olives, flavored pasta, fancy dried fruits, honey, nuts, sun-dried tomatoes.

MAIL-ORDER SOURCES

Perhaps the easiest way to treat others (and yourself) to unusual gift foods is to order them by mail. Among the many items available are snack foods and desserts, exotic fruit baskets, spicy condiments, tempting syrups and all sorts of candies. Sources include:

•William Greenberg Jr. Desserts Inc., 1337 Third Ave., New York, New York 10021 A

Ring in a bright new year

Pull that time-worn rug out from under the old year and roll out the red carpet for the new year with a novel New Year's celebration. Here are some approaches guaranteed to launch you, your family and friends into a Happy New Year.

With all eyes focused on the clock, the countdown to midnight can be interminable. Don't invite guests until at least 9 p.m. Avoid the peril of watched watches by padding out the evening with absorbing activities.

Marvelous food is made more engaging when guests are involved in its preparation. Work with a group of from 10 to 20 people. You'll find a lavishly conceived meals is more easily accomplished when individual courses are carried out by different guests. The party can progress from kitchen to dining room at a leisurely pace.

A festive menu might be Sherried Consomme with Miniature Lemon Biscuits, Broiled Oysters with Pureed Mushrooms, Pear Ice, Filet Mignon, Rosemary Scalloped Potatoes, Sautéed Winter Vegetables, Escarole Salad with Avocado and Orange Slices, Chevre Cheese with Walnut Bread and Pine Nut Tart.

Less elaborate but still all-inclusive are do-it-yourself events. A late evening omelet party makes eating a more casual but still time-absorbing affair. Get together several frying pans and make a huge bowl or pitcher full of beaten eggs. Have omelet-making instructions and the butter near the stove. Close at hand, offer a variety of fillings such as artichoke hearts, sautéed mushrooms, scallions, sliced sausage, cheese, minced parsley, caviar and sour cream.

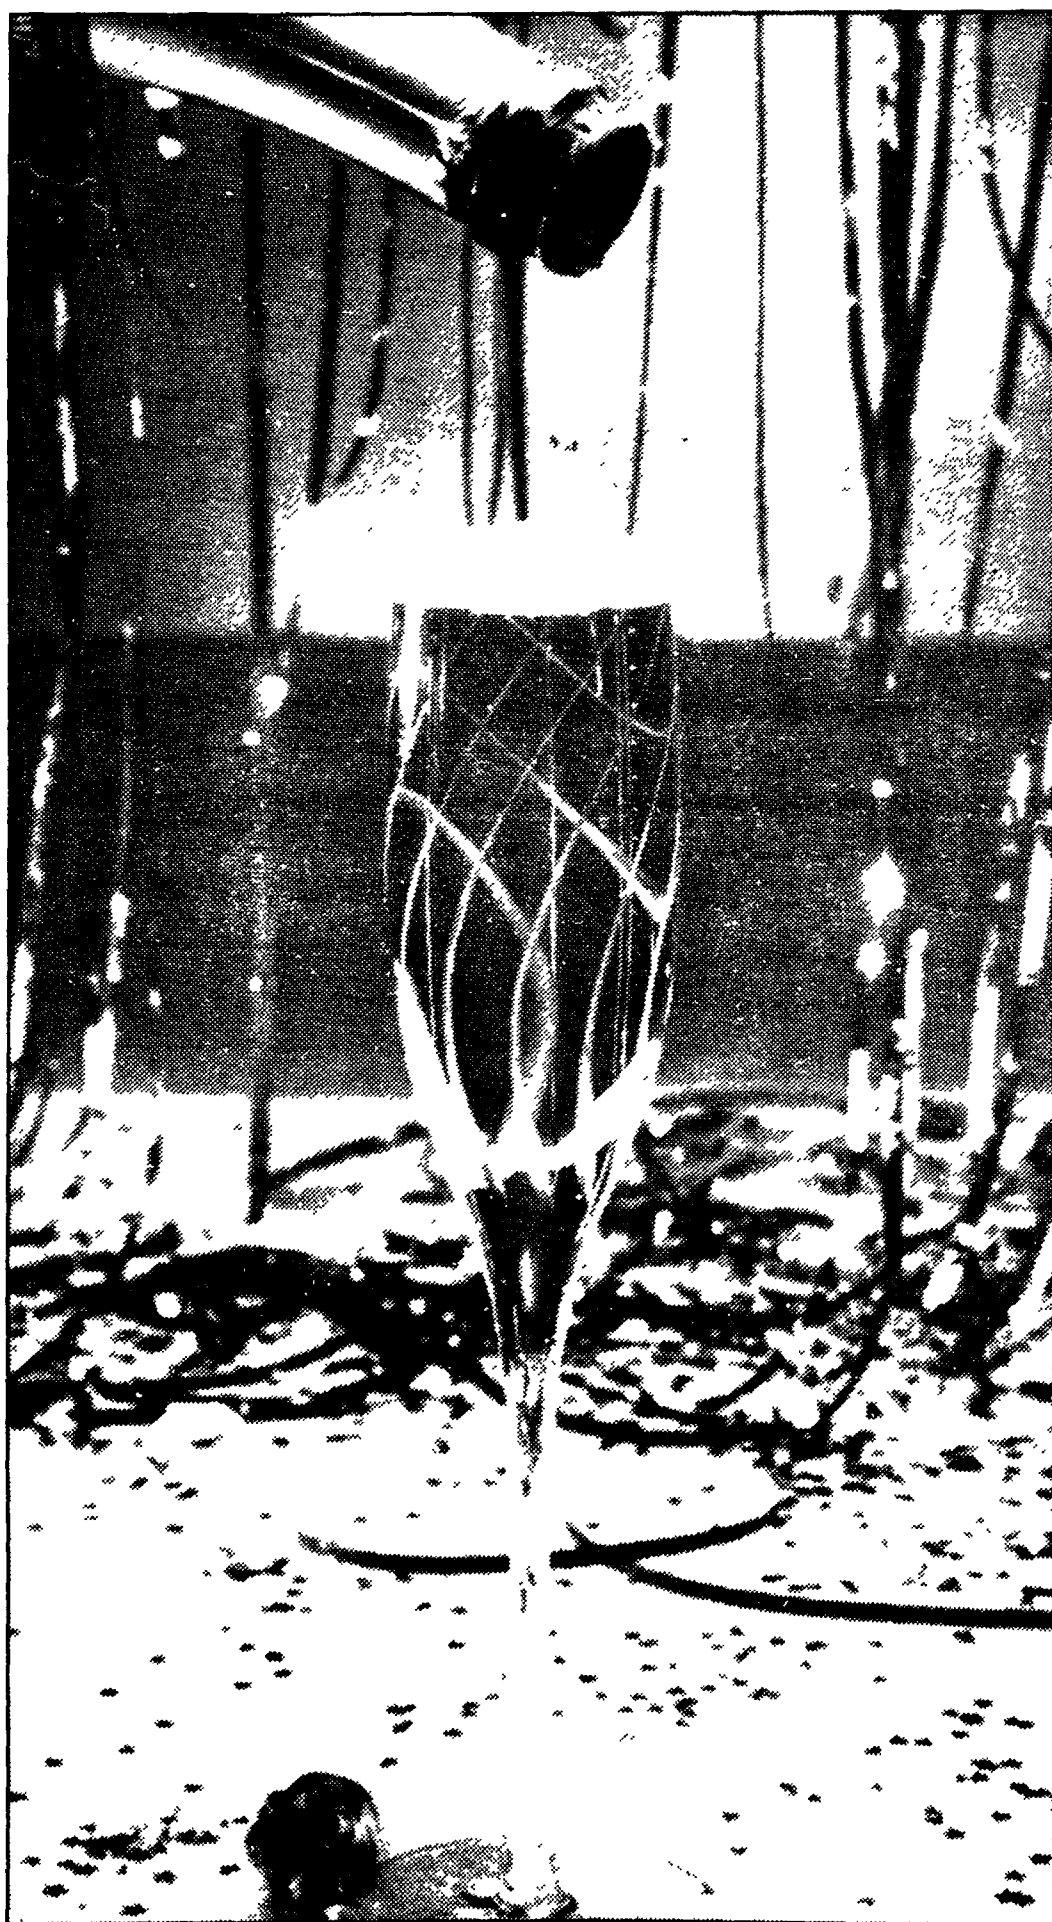

Your friends may want to try more than one variety during the course of the evening. Keep a steady supply of warm wheat bread and champagne circling. As midnight approaches, break out the sorbet assortment and chocolate truffles. This kind of buffet lends itself to charades or trivia games.

If you feel up to preparing the whole meal yourself but are short on ideas, consult the "The Fearrington House Cookbook" (Ventana Press) by Jenny Fitch. This lovely book shares the secrets of a popular Southern restaurant, including the six winter menus and seasonal flower arranging instructions.

An abundance of bubbly on hand makes for an effervescent beginning to the new year. Good and reasonably priced are Cadiz Champenoise, Schramsberg Blanc de Blanc, Culbertson's Brut Rose and Piper Sonomas's Blanc de Noir.

Friends who are musicians can be invited to bring their instruments and favorite sheet music. These kind of impromptu musicales can ignite a shared enthusiasm that should reach a pitch in time for "Auld Lang Syne."

Roll back the rugs, turn down the lights and throw on some classic dance tunes from the big band era.

Ring in the new year with a glass of bubbly and festive decorations.

Occasions for true formality are few for most people. Why not have everyone come in black tie. Issue invitations well in advance so your guests will have time to get glamorous. Or ask them to create New Year's themed masks or futuristic costumes to wear to the event.

Canned streamers, confetti, crepe paper, balloons, noisemakers and paper hats comprise the usual New Year's Eve decor. This season's favorite styles are black with metallic combos. Silver Mylar curtains, balloons and ribbons extend the reflective glitter. A big paper Chinese dragon can be tethered to ceiling fixtures. If budget allows, rent a bubblemaker and strobe light.

Some party purveyors rent animated figures — Father Time, New Year's babies with champagne glasses or huge champagne bottles. Load up on rich-hued flowering plants such as poinsettias and azaleas to accent tables and corners.

It's a Southern belief that no new year should be undertaken without eating black-eyed peas. These hearty legumes, properly prepared, make a delicious stew that can double as a hangover remedy. Invite your nearest and dearest to relax and recover on New Year's Day afternoon.

HOPPIN' JOHN

2 chopped onions
8 ounces bacon, fried (reserve drippings)
8 ounces dried black-eyed peas, soaked overnight with water to cover
2 cloves minced garlic
1 tablespoon salt
1 chopped green pepper
1 cup chopped parsley
Tabasco sauce
1 lemon
1/2 pound shredded Monterey Jack cheese
Yields six servings.

Cook onions in 6 tablespoons of bacon drippings over medium heat until translucent but not browned. Put peas and onions in Dutch oven and cover with water. Bring to boil, reduce heat to simmer and continue cooking for an hour. Add garlic, salt, green pepper, parsley and several shakes of Tabasco. Continue cooking for 20 more minutes. Taste for seasoning and add a few squeezes of lemon juice as desired. Serve garnished with crumbled bacon and cheese. Accompany with crisp green salad and corn bread.

Persuade your guests to hop around the table when the Hoppin' John is served as they did in yesteryear. Conduct a resolution-making ritual. Each guest can inscribe his or her best intentions on parchment. The document will be John Hancocked by all present, then buried, burned or even shredded and swallowed.

HANUKKAH

Eight days of light

What, exactly, is Hanukkah?

There are those who sail through the holidays thinking it's simply the Jewish version of Christmas, a major event of well-wishing and gift-giving that revolves around a candelabrum rather than a tree.

There are those who know better. And there are more and more who are learning.

As interfaith marriages become increasingly common, and as we go with the shift back to basic beliefs and familiar ground on which to raise our children, the "true meaning" of Hanukkah becomes as important as getting beyond the wrapping paper of any commercialized holiday.

Here, then, is a brief explanation of this special holiday.

The story is this: In the second century B.C., Palestine was caught in a rivalry between the two great Hellenistic powers (Egypt and Syria), which divided the empire of Alexander the Great. Under Syrian power, there was a campaign to establish political and religious conformity in "Hellenizing" the Jews, forcing them to adopt Greek dress and customs.

Even more serious, the Syrian emperor decreed that the Temple in Jerusalem, the national house of worship, would become a temple to the Greek god Zeus.

A small band of soldiers, led by Judas Maccabeus, staged a successful rebellion against the Syrians, and rededicated the Temple. (In Hebrew, Hanukkah means "dedication.") Jewish customs were reinstated, as was the traditional Jewish worship service.

A miracle occurred during the rededication of the Temple: when the Jews sought to rekindle the sacred lamp in the Temple sanctuary, there was only enough pure oil to last a single day. (Although there was more than enough oil to keep the lamp lit, there was only a small amount of pure, holy oil — significant in the importance of purity to the people.)

But the lamp, to the worshipers' amazement, spread light for eight days; thus, the Hanukkah celebration came also to be known as the Festival of Lights.

And this is how it has come to be celebrated: the candelabrum, called a menorah, holds eight lamps (or candles today) representing the eight days the lamp in the Temple burned. The ninth holder on the menorah is for the candle from which all the others are lit.

The story goes that the traditional shape of the menorah was fashioned after the sage plant, Salvia officinalis, a hardy bush that survived in the desert granite of the Sinai wilderness — as did the Israelites who traveled this harsh place on their way to the Promised Land.

The plant's growth pattern is a single, upright branch with symmetrical branches sprouting on either side. At the tip of each branch, oil glistens on unopened buds — and so the oil in the tips, or cruses, of the branching menorah.

The first night of the eight-day celebration is usually the favorite, with family gathered around the menorah for the first lighting. Songs and prayers are illuminated by the flickering light, and children are told the story of the small band of brave soldiers who fought an army for the purity of the Jewish belief.

Because the Jews believe that a story told with food is a story remembered, Hanukkah tradition calls for foods fried in oil, the most loved of which is the potato latke (potato pancake) served with applesauce and sour cream. Here's one recipe:

Wash and peel 4 medium potatoes and soak in cold water for about two hours. Grate them and squeeze out excess liquid. Peel and grate a medium onion into the potatoes. Add a lightly beaten egg, a tablespoon of flour, a bit of salt, pepper and nutmeg, and 1/2 teaspoon baking powder. Mix well.

Heat butter or peanut oil (for less cholesterol) to very hot in a skillet; drop pancakes in by the tablespoonful, flatten slightly, and brown gently on both sides. Add more oil as needed for remaining batches.

Also symbolic are cheese and dairy products; the tale told is of the brave heroine Judith. It is written in the Apocrypha that the beautiful widow arranged to dine with an enemy general who had plans to destroy her town.

Judith fed the general cheese and great quantities of wine, which caused him to fall asleep in a drunken stupor. She then beheaded him! Without their leader, his army fled, and the town was saved. Her bravery is said to have inspired Judas Maccabeus and his followers.

If you're invited to a Hanukkah celebration, bring the children Hanukkah gelt, or gold foil-covered chocolate coins. Most scholars believe this tradition originated in Eastern Europe during the Middle Ages when gifts of pocket change were tossed to children during the holidays.

For very special children, consider a gift of real gold: each year the Israeli government mints a commemorative coin celebrating Hanukkah. They're available through coin dealers and some jewelers.

The dreidel is another child's delight at this time of year. The four-sided top is marked with Hebrew letters representing the phrase, "a great miracle happened here."

Anyone newly familiar with Hanukkah — whether through marriage or friendship — might be surprised to discover the number of cards and decorations marking the holiday. It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas, in other words.

Most communities offer public celebrations, readings and ceremonies marking this special time of year. To find them, contact a nearby synagogue.

"Prancer," above, is just one video that will bring home the holiday spirit.

Books, videos and calendars for adults

Few gifts brings as much pleasure, as affordably, as books, videos or calendars. It's easy to find something to pique just about any recipient's interest, from how to hook a rug to perfecting a golf swing.

Whether you're looking for something erudite or just amusing, the aisles of book and video stores offer a cornucopia of great gift ideas. Following is a rundown of what you'll find in the stores this year.

BOOKS

There is a myriad of books for film buffs. Citadel Film Books offers a series of film compendiums for Charlie Chaplin, Jack Nicholson, Woody Allen, John Huston, Alfred Hitchcock and James Cagney, among others.

Film guides are an important reference tool. Among the best are "Halliwell's Film Guide" (Harper & Row), "Roger Ebert's Movie Home Companion" (Andrews and McMeel — it's not comprehensive, but it has Ebert's candid reviews) and "Leonard Maltin's TV Movies and Video Guide" (Signet).

Books that peek behind the scenes also are popular. Some of the newer ones include "Hollywood at Home: A Family Album 1950-1965" (Crown) with photos by Sid Avery revealing a pensive Steve McQueen as a young father and Paul Newman at home.

Inside looks at Hollywood legends are found in "The Fondas: A Hollywood Dynasty" by Peter Collier (Putnam) and "'I'd Love to Kiss You' — Conversations with Bette Davis" penned by her longtime friend Whitney Stine (Pocket Books).

Sports books are another popular category. "Pond Scum and Vultures" by Gene Wojciechowski (Macmillan) offers one sportswriter's inside view of the sporting world.

For football fans — especially the fans of Texas football — there is "Friday Night Lights" by H.G. Bissinger (Addison-Wesley), which follows a Texas high school football team for a season, and "Tom Landry: An Autobiography" (Harper & Row), which follows his spectacular career as coach of the Dallas Cowboys.

"Magic's Touch" by Earvin "Magic" Johnson (Addison-Wesley) reveals the inside secrets of the 6-foot-9 basketball legend.

Interesting home and garden books include "Antiques at Home" by Barbara Milo Orbach (Potter), the "Encyclopedia of Arts & Crafts: The International Arts Movement, 1850-1920" (Dutton) and "Homeplan" by Bo Niles (Atheneum), which offers a step-by-step workbook for home design.

Of course, there are plenty of general-interest tomes to satisfy any reader. Cat lovers, which covers a pretty broad spectrum, will enjoy "The New Yorker Book of Cat Cartoons" (Knopf), which features the work of Charles Addams, Warren Miller, Roz Chast, among others. For dog lovers, there is "The Dog Made Me Buy It!" by Alice L. Muncaster and Ellen Sawyer (Crown).

compendium of adorable pups in advertising. "Hoaxes, Humbugs and Spectacles" by Mark Sloan (Villard Books) is a photographic account of bizarre human stunts.

Art books make a handsome gift. Two that offer some insight into what motivates an artist are "Van Gogh: Letters from Provence" by Mark Bailey (Clarkson N. Potter) and "Picasso: The Blue and Rose Periods" by Denys Chevalier (Crown).

San Francisco-based Collins Publishers offers its popular, gorgeously photographed "Day in the Life" series. Areas spotlighted include Italy, California, Spain, the Soviet Union, China, America and Australia. For the holidays, Collins has "Christmas in America" and "Jews in America," as well as its "Beautiful Cookbook" series on France, Italy and China.

Items for book lovers go beyond the books themselves. Readers are always looking for good lighting and ways to read comfortably. The Florida-based Levenger Co. offers "Tools for serious readers." Write for its catalog at 975 S. Congress Ave., Delray, FL 33445, or call at (407)-276-4141.

CALENDARS

From horses, cats and sailboats to the pithy wit of Bart Simpson and William F. Buckley, calendars have become big business for publishers. That means there is an incredible array of wall calendars, date books and diaries to stuff everyone's stockings.

NAL Books offers "The 1991 Daily Curmudgeon Calendar," which showcases grouchy wit from John Barrymore to John F. Kennedy. "Weight Watchers 1991 Engagement Calendar" (NAL Books) features recipes and nutrition tips.

Landmark Calendars offers wall calendars featuring everyone from Elvis to the First Family. They also have calendars featuring marches, fighter jets, golf courses around the world and classic cars. Animal calendars highlight cats, dogs, flamingos, polar bears, pigs, penguins and more.

Georgi Publishers specializes in large-size art calendars. Featured artists include Chagall, Picasso, Miro, Kandinsky and Gauguin.

New calendars from Workman include "Office Life: The 1991 Yolanda Nave (I Hate the) Office Calendar" and "Quilt Country Calendar." Workman still offers its popular

365 series, such as "365 Things Everyone Needs to Know."

VIDEOS

The holidays are the perfect time to round out someone's video collection or throw a video or two into a stocking.

Republic Pictures Home Video is offering boxed gift sets. "Grant at His Best" features Cary Grant in "Operation Petticoat," "Father Goose" and "Indiscreet." There is also a six-volume set of The Little Rascals.

Plenty of classic films are available on video. Surprise someone with his or her own copy of "Gunga Din" (RKO/Turner), "The African Queen" (CBS/Fox) or "Ninotchka" (MGM/USA). MCA Home Video just released the James Stewart classic, "Harvey," on video this year (it includes a short commentary by Stewart). The recently released "Lawrence of Arabia" (RCA/Columbia) restores the film to its original 222-minute length.

Videocassettes also offer a way to catch up on foreign films. Some currently available classics include "Wings of Desire" (Orion), "Diva" (MGM/USA), and "The Marriage of Maria Braun" (RCA/Columbia).

"Princess Tam Tam" and "Zouzou" (Kino on Video) are two films made in France in the '30s featuring American expatriate Josephine Baker.

For sports fans, try "Greatest Sports Follies" (CBS/Fox), which features athletic bloopers from football, baseball, tennis and hockey. "The History of Great Black Baseball Players" (Fries) pays tribute to Willie Mays, Hank Aaron and others. "Billy Martin Speaks Out" (Cabin Fever) features one of the controversial baseball manager's last interviews.

When it comes to Home Equity Credit Lines, most bankers are happy to offer you big money.

Most bankers claim that their Home Equity Credit line offers you a large sum of money. HFC believes that opinion is blown way out of proportion. You can get more money. Depending on your equity, HFC can lend you up to 85% of your home's value. Many bankers offer only 75% and still feel quite generous. You can get an attractive rate. HFC always offers you an attractive rate on a Home Equity Credit Line. Does your banker's rate look as good? You can get same-day approval over the phone. Applying at HFC is easy as making a call. And approval will come that very same day. Subject to confirmation of income and equity in property. Does your banker make it that easy? You can get a checkbook with up to $250,000 already in it. Can you imagine getting a loan by just writing a check? Because once you're approved, that's how it works. Loan forms, approvals, and hassles are history. So call HFC today. Because when we say big money, that's not just small talk.

BORICS WILL GIVE YOU A GREAT HAIRCUT WITH ALL THE TRIMMINGS

FOR $9.99

Now, for a limited time only, you can take advantage of this terrific offer. Simply walk into a convenient BoRics location and ask for The Works. We'll shampoo your hair, give you a quality haircut, and a finished style for $9.99. This special value is only available Monday through Friday.

A black and white photograph showcasing a variety of Black & Decker power tools. In the upper left, a large floor jack is positioned diagonally. To its right is a rectangular air station with the words 'AIR STATION' printed on its side. In the lower left, there is a circular blower with a handle and a label that reads 'MECHANIC'. In the center, a rectangular sander is shown with a label that says 'dual rate AUTOMATIC'. To the right of the sander is a backpack-style blower with a label that reads 'CarVac'. The tools are arranged on a light-colored, textured surface. The overall image has a high-contrast, grainy appearance typical of older advertisements.

WHO SAYS YOU CAN'T BUY HAPPINESS!

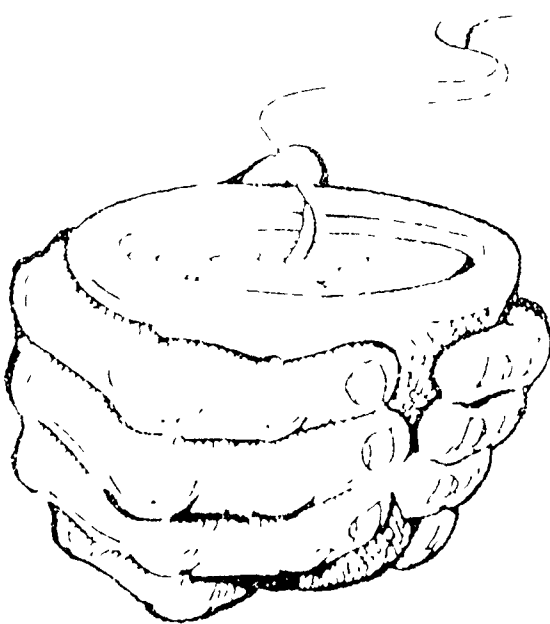

Today through December 24th The Salvation Army hits the pavement running with its Annual Christmas Kettle Campaign. At The Salvation Army, we know that you CAN buy happiness. This year, your donations of time and money have made Christmas a reality for people who could only dream about it before. You've fed the hungry. You've clothed and sheltered the poor and homeless. You've allowed us to visit the elderly and the imprisoned to help them recapture a measure of self-worth. For many of the people who turn to the Salvation Army for help, happiness is simply a matter of meeting their basic needs. We know you can buy happiness. Your donations do it every day!!

SHUT-IN'S AND IMPRISONED HAVE CHRISTMAS TOO!

Each Christmas many of the local nursing homes, hospitals, and prisons are visited by The Salvation Army League of Mercy. For many it is the only time of the year they receive visitors. Each individual is greeted by a smiling volunteer. Many respond excitedly to the words of Christmas Cheer and encouragement that is shared. They are also left with a small gift and a copy of The War Cry that you have received today. Many of the volunteers, as they share in the spirit of Christmas, have stated that these visits have made their holiday season complete.

BECAUSE

NOT UNIMAGINABLE....JUST UNACCEPTABLE!!

In this season of joy and good cheer, it's hard to believe that there are children who will go hungry this Christmas. For the Salvation Army, it is not at all unimaginable. But it is unacceptable. We want every child---and every adult---to have a special Christmas. That's why our staff and volunteers spend countless hours distributing food and toys for the needy of OUR own community. Maybe there is a family.....elderly couple....or a loner in your neighborhood who needs to receive some Christmas Cheer from The Salvation Army. Call our office if you know of someone who needs us. Imagine what would happen if you didn't!!

Monday, December 3rd at 6:30 pm the gymnasium at The Salvation Army will be fragrant with the smells of turkey dinner with all the fixin's. There will be approximately 200 senior citizens from the Plymouth/Canton/Northville community chattering about their holiday plans as they are served by The Kiwanis clubs of Plymouth. This delicious meal is paid for and prepared by The Salvation Army Plymouth Advisory Board. After a nice piece of pie, we will adjourn to the chapel where we are treated to music provided by one of the local school choir's. There may also be a bit of drama and a special surprise guest. Guess who that might be??

Our Pilgrimage to Bethlehem

by Commissioner James Osborne

Each Christmas we make a pilgrimage, in spirit, to Bethlehem. It is always an interesting adventure.

The journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem was 80 miles. That seems a short trip to those of us living in the fast lane. But for those of that day it was an arduous journey of several days.

All kinds of people would have been en route. The first such mass pilgrimage on record occurred when "there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed (Luke 2:1, KJV)." Among the travelers on that occasion were, of course, Mary and Joseph of Nazareth.

Most, no doubt, complained about the need for the trip. Perhaps many asked, "Why do they need more money? Why must we be taxed again? How is the little man going to make it?" Others would have been concerned about the need to change their schedules or miss work. In short, they were absorbed with current events, unaware that they were in the very city and at the precise time when God would speak with a world-shaking, calendar-changing event, the birth of His Son. Sadly, most left Bethlehem with no understanding about what had happened.

Scripture, of course, contained well-known prophecies about the coming Messiah. Through the centuries His coming had been not only foretold but longed for and anticipated. We do not know how many others, like Joseph and Mary, were required to go to Bethlehem. But it certainly would have been a major movement. The account that there was no room at the inn further substantiates this.

Just as many in that day failed to comprehend the significance of the events, so today many will not perceive the true meaning of this annual pilgrimage. For them the trek will be uneventful. They will not understand what it is all about, nor will they enter into the spirit and sense of this holy season. For others, it will be a crowded, somewhat helter-skelter trek, with frantic rushing here and there and only a passing thought about what they are really doing and why they are found on this road to Bethlehem. Still others will profit from the crass commercialism that takes advantage of the season, without participating in or accepting any of its eternal truths.

But for those of the faith, this season is a wondrous spiritual saga. We contemplate God's action in history. We note that His previous actions to reconcile sinful man to Himself failed. So, in a final act of love and mercy, He interrupted the affairs of the world, the plans of man, and boldly arrived on the face of the earth in the person of Jesus Christ. We are aware that all has changed.

Shepherds of old who witnessed this event could never again think of God or themselves in quite the same way. When they returned from Bethlehem to find pasture for their sheep, it was not to the previous dull, uneventful life. They had seen the very Son of God and they glorified and praised Him.

The wise men came to Bethlehem with no illusions about the world in which they lived. They knew its wickedness. They knew the evil ruler Herod. They were alerted to the rebelliousness of men and women. But they knew that new hope had arrived and that evil would be defeated. They had not only seen a star but, more significantly, they had seen a Savior, and the world would never be the same again. They returned a better way, and so must we.

The aged Simeon, who worshiped regularly in the temple, was promised by the Holy Spirit that he would not see death until he had seen the Christ. He knew the joy of faith against odds, and faith rewarded. With the naked eye, he saw only a babe in arms. Spiritual insight helped him see that he held a gift for all the world, a great light unveiled, a spark that would grow, a glory revealed, a Savior. We of this era may also have granted to us at Christmas a glimpse of God in the face of Jesus Christ. Let it not be fast, fleeting and too quickly fading, but rather an enduring revelation of the radiant Christ.

Upon our return from Bethlehem, are we unchanged in direction, no different in pace, similar in spirit as when we arrived? If so, we will have missed the mighty meaning and miracle of Christmas.

Let us return from our Bethlehem trek glorifying and praising God with new light for our path, with increased faith in the ultimate victory, knowing again the faithfulness of God. Then we will not have kept this Christmas in vain.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

What's New About Christmas?

by General Eva Burrows

Recently someone asked me, "What can you say that is new about Christmas?" He was referring to the fact that I have to write innumerable articles and speak so often during the Christmas season.

"Do I have to say something new about Christmas?" I thought. Of course, we live in an age that is obsessed with novelty. We overuse the word "new." We hear so much about "radical new ideas," "new insights," "new techniques," "new fashions." This age is often called "the age of obsolescence." Nothing is made to last. We are always looking for something new.

Why must we always have to "say something new"—even about Christmas?

Dr. Samuel Johnson wrote, "The number of new things a man needs to learn is less important than the number of old things he needs to be reminded of." Wise words.

So Christmas can be an annual refresher course in the things we need to be reminded of. There's a grave danger that the lessons may be lost in the overlay of Christmas wrappings like trees and tinsel, carols and cards. Can I invite you to stop for a moment and consider those facets of Christmas that we need to be reminded of?

Christmas reveals God's great intention to restore to mankind the image—the divine family likeness—which has been spoiled by sin.

His plan was that His Son, Jesus, should be born to a simple Jewish girl of unblemished character and live among us, sharing our life, identifying with us, in preparation for the day that He would become our Savior and Lord. Let's remind ourselves of that.

Christmas reminds us that here is God at work in the most unexpected way, in the most unlikely place, through the most surprisingly ordinary people.

This poem about the innkeeper who gave space in the stable for Mary and Joseph makes the point so well:

THE INNKEEPER LOOKS BACK

*There were, after all, extenuating circumstances;
The holiday season is always heavy and we were quite booked out.
I felt very sorry for his wife, of course, but you can't have women
Having babies all over your hotel And disturbing the guests. I've got my living to make.
I would ask you to bear that in mind.
Had we known, of course, at the time,
He could have had
Our own room; we would have been honored—
But how am I supposed to recognize
God when He comes asking for help
In places where I don't expect to find Him?*

We need to remind ourselves that God comes to us, too, in places where we would not expect to find Him. So be watchful this Christmas!

We need to be reminded that in God's plan, Jesus broke through all the barriers and effected a reconciliation between a loving Father God and His rebellious offspring. We can't separate Bethlehem and Calvary, and we need to give thanks to God for both at Christmas time.

In this world of broken relationships, we need to remember that in Christ Jesus there is the hope of families brought together again, of nations reconciled, of people living in harmony.

We need to be reminded that there is joy for everyone at Christmas, like the joy of that first Christmas.

If it's true that there is joy in heaven over one sinner who repents, then the angel hosts over Bethlehem must have sung with ecstasy when the Redeemer of all mankind was born. What "tidings of great joy" they carolled on that starry night.

The humble shepherds returned to their fields and their flocks "rejoicing and praising God" because they'd been let in to see the King of Kings born that day.

The learned wise men, those seekers after truth, "rejoiced with exceeding great joy" when they saw the bright star and found the Christ child. That disproves the contention that the gospel story is only for the simple, and therefore unacceptable to the intelligent and well-educated.

Yes, there's joy for the simple and the noble, the working man and the scholar, the housewife and the business executive. But we cannot truly know that joy—know it at depth—until Jesus is "born in us," as an English carol says. That is a mysterious expression, but it is the work of the Holy Spirit to bring Jesus Christ alive in us.

Someone has written, "Which is more remarkable? That the Holy Spirit should form Christ in the Virgin Mary or that He should form Christ in me?"

When we allow Him, the Holy Spirit acts in our lives to reproduce the life of Christ in you and me. That's the wonderful, deep and divine meaning of Christmas that we need to be reminded of. That's why we can sing, "O holy Child of Bethlehem, be born in us today." And that's the source of true joy.

What do you want for Christmas? How do you answer that perennial question? Can you say, "I want to see God's plan brought to completion in my life as the meaning of Christ's coming is made more personal and real to me this Christmas"?

So what's new about that? Nothing, really. It's just a restatement of the old things we need to be reminded of, don't you think?

The Crippled Camel

Mrs. Major Marlene Chase

The sky at dawn two days before Christmas was cold and leaden, too rigid to yield even a desperate flake or two. As I peered out the nursery window, I felt winter in my soul. I had taken little interest in the carols, the gift-buying and the parties. The Christmas spirit, whatever that was, had flown like some unhappy ghost.

I had been so full of expectation and dreams. Every new mother knows such exhilaration. But a few days following the birth of our first son we discovered the fragility of dreams. Something was making our baby sick. After Christmas he was to return to the hospital for more tests.

What did the future hold? I wondered. How could I continue my life as a Salvation Army officer if my child did not get well? Uncertainty ate every small corner of joy.

I was alone that day, as my husband carried on the work of the corps for both of us. And that only deepened my distress.

How could I come to Christmas? I unearthed the box that always signaled Advent in our home. With fingers made mechanical by sadness, I unwrapped the figures and placed them on the mantel. First came Mary, gentle-eyed and soft in her blue gown, then Joseph, watching the small Savior through solemn eyes.

The animals, the shepherds, the white-robed angel, all stood where I placed them and gave no message to me. One news-wrapped figure remained in the bottom of the storage box. It would be the poor crippled camel.

It had happened when I was a child. Some draft had blown the flame of a candle, and a fire had quickly ignited. Most of the creche figures had to be discarded . . . an angel with one arm and her harp torn away, a shepherd with no feet and sheep blackened beyond recognition. Mother had saved the camel, perhaps because only its legs were gone, and it could be displayed as a resting camel, burned stubs camouflaged by dime-store cotton.

I tore away the paper and held the creature in my hand. Mahogany ears and proud neck, humped back with its gaily-colored burdens it could no longer carry and four little charcoal stubs where the animal's strong legs had been. Suddenly, I felt akin to the creature. I looked into the patient, enigmatic eyes and saw there the consummate sufferings of the world and my own personal pain.

Gently I set the camel inside the stable—behind the manger where no one could see its disfigurement. No one, perhaps, but the Christ cradled on yellow straw so near that the warmth of Heaven encircled the beast like holy breath.

It was then I remembered the why of Christmas and that the Child born that day had come to suffer, to take upon Himself the pain of a burdened human race. "A Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief," Isaiah had written. "He has borne our sorrows and carried our griefs." His life would culminate in a cross so terrible, yet so wonderful, that death and its sting would be vanquished forever.

He identified with us in our deepest sufferings and rose triumphant over sin and grief. "Lo, He comes with healing in His wings." The whispered promise filled me with an astounding sense of His presence and peace.

I had come to Christmas with my suffering and a wistful longing for what I did not know. It was for Him. Suddenly the future held no threat, the present no hurt but the sweet ache of loving and being loved by the One who said, "Lo I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

I touched the crippled camel's ears and thought him the most noble of creatures. Christmas had come. Unexplainable joy reigned where my sadness had been.

I felt winter in my soul. Uncertainty ate all my joy. How could I celebrate Christmas?

First Lady Barbara Bush visits Salvation Army kettle in Chevy Chase, MD to make a donation and to express support for the Army's presence in shopping malls and stores at Christmas time. The kettle contributions help raise more than one-quarter of the Army's $100 million holiday budget for food, clothing, shelter and other services. The funds are used to assist about six and one-half million people during the holidays.

During the Christmas season, everything The Salvation Army does is increased. More ill and elderly people are visited, more children receive gifts, more homeless people receive beds, nutritious meals and counseling, and more people hear the message of Jesus Christ.

The red kettle is the medium for this increase in service, and the generosity of the public is the reason.

Last year, the Army's efforts to serve over 6 million people at Christmas time were jeopardized when some malls and stores around the nation prohibited the familiar red kettles manned by volunteer bell ringers. When First Lady Barbara Bush learned that nearly half the malls in the nation's capital had taken this action, she promptly made public her support of the Army's drive to feed the hungry, house the homeless, comfort the distressed and give love and hope to children in need.

The bell ringers also characterize the spirit of the season. One shopper noted, "You hear the bell ringing and you know it's Christmas."

When Mrs. Bush told a bell ringer last year, "What great work you do. I'm a great fan of The Salvation Army," she was referring to the dictum that the Army puts into action through its shelters, rehabilitation programs, services for battered women, day-care centers, probation services and hundreds of community-based charitable activities: "Inasmuch as you have done it for one of these, you did it for me."

THE WHITE HOUSE
February 22, 1990

Dear Commissioner Osborne:
I am delighted to know that the holiday campaign was so successful, because I know that the good works of The Salvation Army will march on as a result. My compliments to you and your associates! We are grateful to you for all you do.

George joins me in sending our very best wishes to all.

Warmly

Barbara Bush

Mary's Prayer

God. O infant-God. Heaven's child. Conceived by the union of divine grace with our disgrace. Sleep well.

Sleep well. Bask in the coolness of this night bright with diamonds. Sleep well, for the heat of anger simmers nearby. Enjoy the silence of the crib, for the noise of confusion rumbles in your future. Savor the sweet safety of my arms, for a day is soon coming when I cannot protect you.

Rest well, tiny hands. For though you belong to a king, you will touch no satin, own no gold. You will grasp no pen, guide no brush. No, your tiny hands are reserved for works more precious:

to wipe a widow's weary tear, to claw the ground of Gethsemane.

Your hands, so tiny, so tender—clutched tonight in an infant's fist. They aren't destined to hold a scepter nor wave from a palace balcony. They are reserved instead for a Roman spike that will staple them to a Roman cross.

Sleep deeply, tiny eyes. Sleep while you can. For soon the blurriness will clear and you will see the mess we have made of your world.

You will see our nakedness, for we cannot hide.

You will see our selfishness, for we cannot give.

You will see our pain, for we cannot heal.

O eyes that will see hell's deepest pit and witness her ugly prince . . . sleep, please sleep; sleep while you can.

Lay still, tiny mouth. Lay still mouth from which eternity will speak.

Tiny tongue that will soon summon the dead,
that will define grace, that will silence our foolishness.

Rosebud lips—upon which ride a starborn kiss of forgiveness to those who believe you, and of death to those who deny you—lay still.

And tiny feet cupped in the palm of my hand, rest. For many difficult steps lay ahead for you.

Do you taste the dust of the trails you will travel?

Do you feel the cold sea water upon which you will walk?

Do you wrench at the invasion of the nail you will bear?

Do you fear the steep descent down the spiral staircase into Satan's domain?

Rest, tiny feet. Rest today so that tomorrow you might walk with power. Rest. For millions will follow in your steps.

Let Heaven Catch your Eye this

by Commissioner Paul A. Rader

The exploits of the Star Ship Enterprise and its courageous crew remain a flight of imagination for most of us, even with the recent dramatic developments in space exploration. We may never mount a "Star Trek" exploring new worlds and boldly going where no man has gone before. But each Christmas becomes a "Star Trek" for the faithful, begun long centuries ago when magi from the East followed a brilliant star to the little town of Bethlehem. Those early astronomers were captivated by the light that dominated the western sky. Clearly, heaven had a story to tell.

To the magi it was all an omen. There was an event to be marked, perhaps a birth to celebrate. We know little about these men, even their actual number. We know only that they were drawn irresistibly by this fascinating phenomenon, crossing the desert to the land of Israel and the place where the Christ child was born. There they offered Him royal gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh.

How much can be missed when the garish lights about us block out the glory above us. The season's celebrations must not be allowed to obscure the event. Christmas is a time when we should let heaven catch our eye.

What happened in Bethlehem two thousand years ago merited a heavenly announcement. It was good news for all people everywhere and in every age. "I bring you good news of great joy that will be for all the people. Today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you. He is Christ the Lord!" (Luke 2:10-11).

Upon arriving in the land of Israel, the magi discovered that the birth of a promised Liberator—a Savior—had long since been prophesied and eagerly anticipated by the faithful. It did not surprise them. The religious rulers of the people, summoned by the ruthless and paranoid puppet-king Herod, knew immediately where the Christ child was to be born. They seemed, however, to have missed the wondrous star and its message. They chose to doubt that the ancient prophecies that foretold His birth, and the stellar phenomenon that marked it, both focused on the humble hamlet of Bethlehem, where Jesus was born.

Herod, however, took the possible emergence of a royal pretender more seriously. He would brook no challenge to his throne. In a paranoid fury he issued a savage order to butcher the babies in Bethlehem in hopes of eliminating this potential threat to his sovereignty.

Sadly, we moderns miss the meaning of this human drama as we relegate it to the mists of legend. Christmas becomes then a "trivial pursuit"—a journey into nostalgia, with cardboard figures and bathrobe drama, a mockup of a touching folk tale. Delightful, but irrelevant to the vital issues of our time.

For the actors in this historic drama it was very real. The jealousy of Herod, the blood-stained steel of the executioners, the anguished cry of mothers bereft of their babies, were all painfully real. The agony of birth, the smells of the stable, the improbable devotion of the magi were real and remembered. The baby was real. The whack on its bottom and its first gasping cries of life were real. He was a warm, breathing, living person born into a world of homelessness, poverty and violence.

Christmas is not an escape into nostalgia, but an engagement with the toughest, most painful realities of our world. At Christmas, the Word of God in Jesus was born among us, not just to delight us or to inspire mellow music with sweetness and light, but to save His people from their sins.

For Jesus, that meant taking up the rough tools of a carpenter's trade. It meant striking out on the open road with its perils, risking the approach of Satan and the rejection of God's people. It meant giving His back to the whip and His face to the spittle of His enemies. It meant giving His side to the spear of His executioners, His hands to the nails and His body to the Cross. All this, to save us from our sins—our self-serving rejection of His sovereignty and saving love.

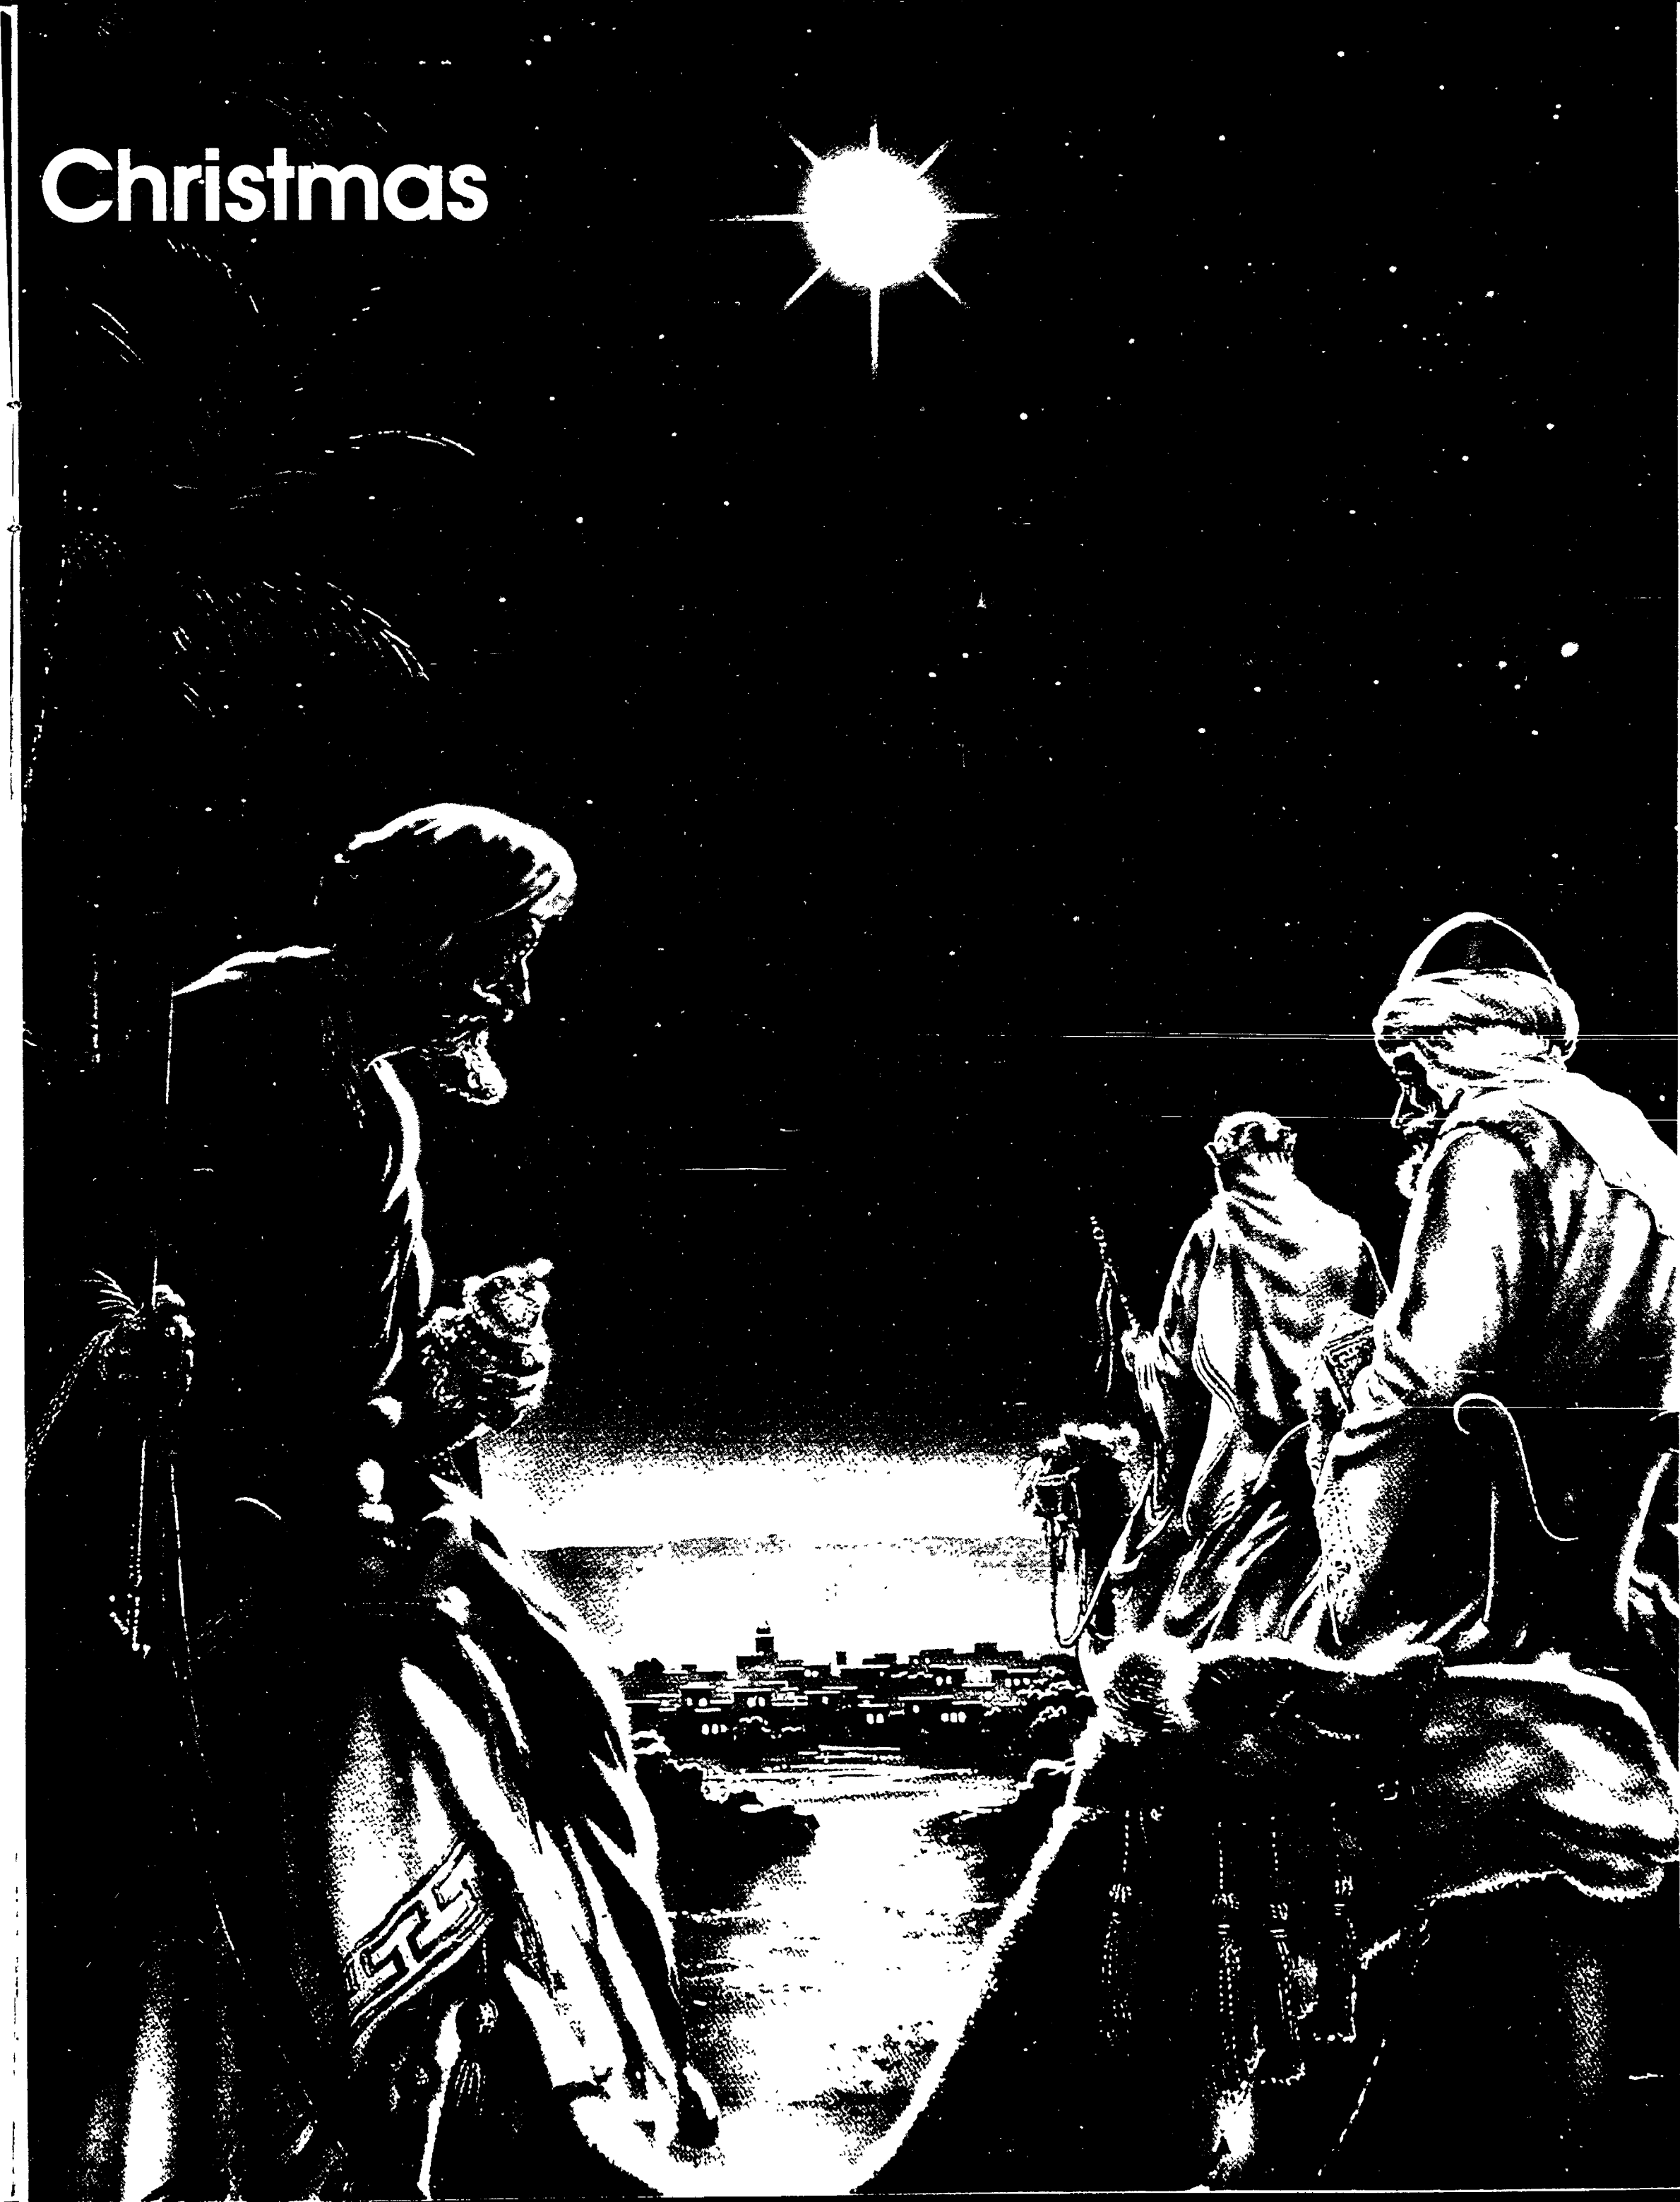

Here is reality not to be ignored. Certainly, we must not reduce it to the realm of childish fables. All that has happened since has only confirmed the eternal consequences of what happened there long ago, marked by these heavenly wonders. His followers, in every nation, irradiated by the light of His love, bear witness to the reality of His coming and the power of His presence to touch every life with hope and salvation. "In him was life, and

Christmas

PETE RICHARDS was the loneliest man in town on the day Jean Grace opened the door to his shop. Pete's small business had come down to him from his grandfather. The little front window was strewn with a disarray of old-fashioned things: bracelets and lockets worn in days before the Civil War, gold rings and silver boxes, images of jade and ivory.

On this winter's afternoon a child was standing there, her forehead against the glass, earnest and enormous eyes studying each discarded treasure as if she were looking for something quite special. Finally she straightened up and entered.

Behind the counter stood Pete himself, a man not more than 30, but with hair already turning gray. There was a bleak air about him as he looked at the small customer who flattened her ungloved hands on the counter.

"Mister," she began, "would you please let me look at that string of blue beads in the window?"

Pete parted the draperies and lifted out a necklace. The turquoise stones gleamed brightly as he spread the ornament before her.

"They're just perfect," said the child, entirely to herself. "Will you wrap them up pretty for me, please?"

Pete studied her with a stony air. "Are you buying these for someone?"

"They're for my big sister. She takes care of me. You see, this will be the first Christmas since Mother died. I've been looking for the most wonderful Christmas present for my sister."

"How much money do you have?" asked Pete warily.

She had been busily untying the knots in a handkerchief, and now she poured out a handful of pennies on the counter.

"I emptied my bank," she explained simply. The trusting look of her blue eyes smote him like the pain of an old wound.

"Just a minute," he said, and turned toward the back of the store. Over his shoulder he called, "What's your name?" He was very busy about something.

"Jean Grace."

When Pete returned, a package lay in his hand, wrapped in scarlet paper and tied with a bow of green ribbon. "There you are," he said.

She smiled happily at him over her shoulder

A STRING OF BLUE BEADS

by Fulton Oursler

She paid the most anyone can pay as she ran out the door. Through the window he watched her go, while desolation flooded his thoughts. Something about Jean Grace and her string of beads had stirred him to the depths of a grief that would not stay buried. The child's hair was wheat yellow, her eyes sea blue, and once upon a time, not long before, Pete had been in love with a girl with hair of that same yellow and with eyes just as blue. And the turquoise necklace was to have been hers.

But there had come a rainy night—a truck skidding on a slippery road—and the life was crushed out of his dream.

Since then Pete Richards had lived too much with his grief in solitude. After business hours his world seemed irrevocably empty.

The blue eyes of Jean Grace jolted him into acute remembrance of what he had lost. The pain of it made him recoil from the exuberance of holiday shoppers. During the next ten days trade was brisk; chattering women swarmed in, fingering trinkets, trying to bargain. When the last customer had gone, late on Christmas Eve, he sighed with relief. But for Pete Richards the night was not quite over.

The door opened and a young woman hurried in. With an inexplicable start, he realized that she looked familiar, yet he could not remember when or where he had seen her before. Her hair was golden yellow and her large eyes were blue. Without speaking, she drew from her purse a package loosely unwrapped in its red paper, a bow of green ribbon with it. Presently the string of blue beads lay gleaming again before him.

"Did this come from your shop?"

Pete raised his eyes to hers and answered softly, "Yes, it did."

"Are the stones real?"

"Not the finest quality—but real."

"Can you remember who it was you sold them to?"

"She was a small girl. Her name was Jean. She bought them for her older sister's Christmas present."

"How much are they worth?"

"The price," he told her solemnly, "is always a confidential matter between the seller and the customer."

Heather's Christmas Gift

Mrs. Captain Vickie Allan

O Come let us adore Him, O come let us adore Him . . ." The strains of the carol carried over the rushing and excited Christmas shoppers. It was the last Saturday before Christmas and, as was the custom in our family, we were singing carols at the kettle in Kansas City's busy Bannister Mall.

Heather, my six year-old, had not yet visited Santa Claus to share her list of dreams and wishes. We waited patiently in the slow moving line, seriously discussing Santa's ability to be in so many different stores, with such different costumes. I tried to think of an appropriate answer, but it was time for Heather to go up the steps. She was next in line to see Santa.

She gently climbed onto his lap. Quietly I watched and admired my daughter, thinking how cute and precious she was. Then, with a little squeeze and a smile, she slid off his lap to rejoin me. I couldn't help noticing how quiet, even subdued she was . . . not at all like a child who had just told Santa Claus what she wanted for Christmas. I was puzzled.

"What did you ask Santa to bring you?" I asked.

"Mom," she replied, in low, thoughtful tones as only a six year-old can, "the girl in front of me told Santa that all she wants for Christmas is for her Daddy to stop drinking!" We were both quiet then, and in the shared silence I reflected on the sensitivity of a child. Heather fully knew the impact drugs and alcohol can have on people. She has shared in our ministry to the men and women seeking help at The Salvation Army Adult Rehabilitation Center in Kansas City. There was no question in her mind what the little girl in front of her had been requesting. All the gifts, the busyness of Christmas seemed so unimportant.

We sat down and shared a soda together, voicing our concern over the hurt expressed by the little girl's request. That night we prayed together about the little girl, her father and her request. Heather added, "May Santa Claus be really real!" How she wanted that little girl's dream to come true!

Ever since that Christmas, when one of the men in the center where we work remarks about one of our daughters, "What a pretty girl,"

(there are five of them) or "Isn't she precious," and then adds, "I have one just about her age," I wonder if through some small miracle, perhaps we can be part of the answer to a little girl's request. After all, isn't that really what the gift of the Christ child is all about? Bringing hope and salvation to mankind . . . maybe even letting Santa Claus be . . .

REALLY REAL!

A PRAYER AT CHRISTMAS

Almighty Father, thank you for your Son, through whom you have made known your boundless love and truth, and your eternal nature. We stand in awe of the knowledge that through Jesus' incursion into time, you have determined that all creation shall reflect your righteousness.

We remember also, Lord, that the babe born in a manger will one day be revealed to all as the King of heaven and earth. Though we see now but through a glass darkly, we ask that you make us able to give you the praise and honor that you alone deserve.

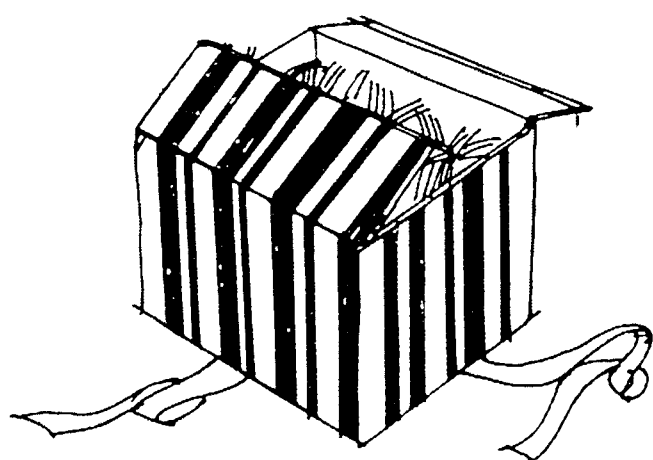

As your Son grew to fulfill his mission, we ask that you continue the process of regeneration in us, and make us able to help ourselves and others overcome loneliness, angst, poverty, temptation, blindness and hatred . . . and bless your followers—who dare to proclaim you as the alpha and omega, the Prince of Peace.

And Lord, it is appropriate at this time of year to remember that Christmas is more than decorations and festivities. It is above all a time to recognize that you sent your Son into the world to save sinners. Thank you for the gift of your Son, Lord, and thank you for the birth of your spirit and life in my heart, a birth for which I will be eternally thankful.

Two Manger Scenes

by Margaret Parker

Each year, when my husband brings the Christmas boxes in from the garage, we unpack the manger scene first. The little plaster figures are like old friends: the shepherds and the wise men, the various animals, the angel who broke her nose in a tragic fall a few years ago, Mary and Joseph and tiny baby Jesus, held in his cradle with a rubber band for safe-keeping.

We arrange them in their homemade stable on a low table purposely within reach of visiting children who will want to play with them. They will make Mary ride the donkey, push lambs forward to peer into the manger and rock the sleeping infant in their hands.

Only after the bustle of decorating is over do I unpack our other crèche scene. It is made of costly white china. As I ease Mary and Joseph and the Christchild out of their styrofoam packing, I admire their finely chiseled features and delicately draped garments.

The plaster figures in a common stable make me smile as I think of how God thrust Himself into this world. Who could have guessed that He would come cooing and kicking His little feet?

Almost fearfully I lift them to a safe spot on top of a high cabinet. There we can see the mingled adoration and puzzlement on the faces of Mary and Joseph as they gaze down on their divine Son.

The two manger scenes match my Christmas moods. The one, with its colorful figures crowded into a common stable, makes me smile as I think of how God thrust Himself into this world. Who could have guessed that He would come cooing and kicking His little feet? With childlike delight I throw myself into the season, getting pine pitch on my fingers and cookie dough in my hair as I celebrate His birth.

And yet the other crèche scene, in its fragility, reminds me to approach Christmas on tiptoe. Almighty God was in that manger in Bethlehem. How can I fathom a Lord whose love for me is so pure and perfect that He became vulnerable as a baby for my sake? The wonder of it makes me catch my breath.

I pause, astonished by God's grace,
And give the Son His rightful place,
High and lifted up.*

Needy children on the streets of London. Children like these led William Booth and his family to share their resources with the poor at Christmas time.

One December, General William Booth, who founded The Salvation Army in 1865, decided that his family should have a real old-fashioned Christmas. For once he forgot about expense.

A tree was arrayed with tinsel and candles. The living room was tastefully decorated with special ornaments. Gifts were colorfully wrapped. Bowls were filled with candy. And there was plenty of food.

But when the Founder returned from preaching at Whitechapel just before the festivities were to begin, he was utterly downcast.

"What's the matter, William?" asked his wife Catherine.

"Oh, the poverty that I just saw," he replied, wiping a tear from his eye. "Here we are with a tree, food, presents and a warm house. But out there the streets are full of those who have nothing. Nothing!"

"Kate! Some of them have even pawned their watches in order to have a crust of bread." He paused. "The church bells mean nothing to them." He slowly moved around the brightly colored living room, thoughtfully fingering one of the table decorations.

"Today, as they sup, the bells will be mocking them. As I mentioned when we first met, the bells speak another language to the poor."

After a pause, he said, "Kate, we have to do something!"

"And what shall we do?"

"I just don't know."

That old-fashioned Christmas was the last the Booths celebrated in the usual way. From then on, each member of the family honored Christmas by going into the slums and distributing plum puddings to those in need. The children soon discovered that this new kind of Christmas celebration gave them more lasting satisfaction than the old-fashioned ones had.

Thus began the Army's tradition of reaching out to others in need at Christmas. Today this outreach brings Christmas cheer to six and-a-half million people in the United States and millions more abroad.

General Eva Burrows continues that tradition. Christmas 1989 was a busy time for her. On one of the Sundays during the Advent season, she preached at two London corps. At Croyden Citadel she said, "If Christmas began in the heart of God," she said, "it finds its completion only in the heart of man. Just as His coming into the world changed the world, so His coming into our lives can change our lives."

A few days before Christmas, the General addressed a lunch-time service in Wesley's Chapel, the mother church of world Methodism. She spoke of the joy Christ brought into the world. She looked forward to sharing that joy with homeless, elderly and children.

On Christmas Day itself General Burrows put her words into action. She visited five Salvation Army institutions in and around London to share the joy of Christ's coming.

During the afternoon, the men and women of Glebelands (a retired officers' residence maintained by The Salvation Army) enjoyed the General's reminiscences of Christmas in Africa.

She spent the middle of the day in the company of men in the Army's care at Booth House, Riverside House and Greig House hostels.

During a Sunday service at Upper Norwood, General Burrows described Advent as an adventure. And she has discovered, as William Booth did, that it is an adventure that gains its fullest meaning when shared with others.

"But how could she have had enough money to pay for them?"

"She paid the biggest price of all," he said. "She gave all she had."

In some faraway steeple, a bell began to ring. The distant chiming, the package lying on the counter, the woman's question and the strange feeling of renewal struggling in the heart of the man all had come to be because of the love of a child.

"It's my misfortune that I have no one to give anything to. Can I see you home and wish you a Merry Christmas?"

So, Pete Richards and a girl whose name he had yet to learn walked out into the beginning of the great day that brings hope into the world for us all.

that life was the light of mankind. The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has never mastered it" (John 1:5 REB).

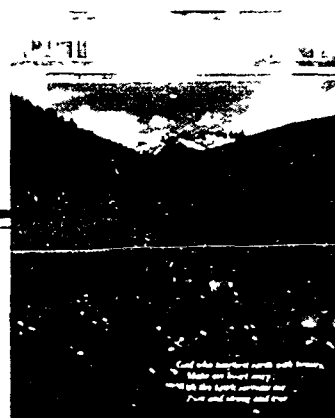

What if we miss the point in all the festive pageantry of this season? Is not the point in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ whose birth we celebrate?

The great Indian leader, Mahatma Gandhi, often acknowledged the influence of the teachings of Jesus upon him. A missionary statesman, Dr. E. Stanley Jones, knew him as well as any Christian did. "You have grasped certain principles of the Christian faith," wrote Jones to Gandhi. "They have helped to make you great. But you have missed the Person. Penetrate through the principles to the Person of Christ and then come back and tell us what you have found," he implored.

It is in the encounter of faith with the person of the Lord Jesus Christ that the light of life is seen. The "star trek" of this sacred season must take us beyond this winsome story to the person of the Savior and His power to help and to heal. For "to all who received him, to those who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children . . . born of God" (John 1:12-13).

Presentation of the Baby Jesus in the Temple to the Lord

When the time came for Mary's purification offering at the Temple, as required by the laws of Moses after the birth of a child, his parents took him to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord; for in these laws God had said, "If a woman's first child is a boy, he shall be dedicated to the Lord."

At that time Jesus' parents also offered their sacrifice for purification—"either a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons" was the legal requirement. That day a man named Simeon, a Jerusalem resident, was in the Temple. He was a good man, very devout, filled with the Holy Spirit and constantly expecting the Messiah to come soon.

For the Holy Spirit had revealed to him that he would not die until he had seen him—God's anointed King. The Holy Spirit had impelled him to go to the Temple that day; and so, when Mary and Joseph arrived to present the baby Jesus to the Lord in obedience to the law, Simeon was there and took the child in his arms, praising God.

"Lord," he said, "now I can die content! For I have seen him as you promised me I would. I have seen the Savior you have given to the world. He is the Light that will shine upon the nations, and he will be the glory of your people Israel!"

Joseph and Mary just stood there, marveling at what was being said about Jesus.

Simeon blessed them but then said to Mary, "A sword shall pierce your soul, for this child shall be rejected by many in Israel, and this to their undoing. But he will be the greatest joy of many others. And the deepest thoughts of many hearts shall be revealed."

The Wise Seek Him Still

by Lt. Colonel Henry Gariepy

A divisional commander shared with me the following letter that came from a donor, citing the amount he had donated to the Army over a period of time. The letter was in response to last year's Christmas War Cry cover that portrayed Mary with the Christ child in her arms and the caption: "God in the arms of a virgin mother."

Although I have been supporting The Salvation Army for many years, I take the liberty to point out to you that your Christmas 1989 cover caption is rather farfetched and outside the very narrow frame of mind of some of your supporters. God, if he exists at all in the form that you think, is certainly not in the arms of anybody, let alone a Virgin mother! The major contradictions within the confines of eight words is a little much, don't you think!

My reply to the divisional commander was as follows:

To the skeptic's mind, albeit a donor to charity, the miracle of the Incarnation is a stumbling block.

To The Salvation Army, it is the central and unequivocal tenet of our faith. Here we stand, we can do no other!

Indeed, it does stretch the imagination and our faith to consider the true meaning and miracle of the Incarnation—God in the form of that tiny baby in the feeding trough in lowly Bethlehem. General Eva Burrows has said: "It is wonderful that man was made in the image of God. It was more wonderful that God was made in the image of man."

C. S. Lewis describes Christ's Advent as "the divine humility, the stooping down of the Highest." John Milton, the poet of towering genius, describes that moment as the time when God "Forsook the courts of everlasting day,/And chose with us a darksome house of mortal clay." No tongue of man or brain of scholar can explain this marvel, this mighty transition that wrapped deity in the dust and decay of human flesh.

When we come to that manger scene again this season, we realize that something colossal, inexpress-

Jesus was God in the garb of humanity, the heart of God
wrapped in human flesh

ibly great happened that starlit night in Bethlehem. We are in the presence of a miraculous mystery. The cry from that infant's throat became the first time God's voice could be heard coming from human vocal cords. There, on that night of nights, Jesus was God becoming visible to man's sight, vocal to man's hearing, tangible to man's touch. He was God in the garb of humanity, the heart of God wrapped in human flesh.

Indeed, the Christ child was "God in the lap of a virgin mother." Seven centuries earlier Isaiah had proclaimed the inspired prophecy: "Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel" (7:14). This speaks of an extraordinary phenomenon that shall take place. In this conception the Infinite became the Intimate, the Lord of space smaller than a speck of dust.

The doctrine of the virgin birth has been a battlefield of theological controversy through the years. Biologically, a virgin birth is an impossibility. But so was the raising of Lazarus and the Resurrection. Someone has stated, "The presence of mystery is the footprint of the Divine." In harmony with God's miraculous power, the virgin birth was but one of a chain of supernatural events in the marvelous life and mission of our Lord.

When Constantine became the first Christian emperor, he arranged for a great church to be erected over the place where Jesus is believed to have been born. Beneath the high altar of that Church of the Nativity is the cave believed to have been the very one in which the Christ Child was born. When we visit this sacred site, we need to stoop or kneel to enter. On the floor of the cave is a star and a Latin inscription, "Here Jesus Christ was born of the Virgin Mary."

There is a beautiful truth symbolized by the fact that the pilgrim must kneel to enter the birthplace of our Lord. It is supremely fitting that we all approach the observance of the birth of Christ with a deep sense of reverence.

Many of us will no doubt again this season sing Charles Wesley's carol:

*Christ, by highest heaven adored,
Christ, the everlasting Lord,
Late in time behold Him come,
Offspring of a virgin's womb,
Veiled in flesh the Godhead see;
Hail the incarnate Deity!
Pleased as Man with man to dwell,
Jesus, our Immanuel*

As the Wise Men of old, let us come in faith to worship the "Offspring of a virgin's womb," and bring to Him the costliest gifts of our love and adoration. Let us approach with awe the majesty and mystery of the miracle of God in a cradle! For it will ever be true that the wise seek Him still.

How to

by Norman Vincent Peale

BEHOLD, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.

No other news ever delivered to human beings can approach in happiness this simple statement of a birth. The Scripture says that His name shall be called Emmanuel, which means—God with us. This is the heart of the Christmas message, that Almighty God abides with us.

What a glorious truth! He who rolled back the curtain of the night at the dawn of creation, He who hung the stars in spangled glory upon the skies, He who sets the sun in motion and the planets according to their orbits, the eternal everlasting Creator and Ruler of the ends of the earth—He, according to this story, is with us; with you and with me. This is the only wonder of the world. The greatest, finest, most intellectual men among us have discovered this truth in their personal experiences.

Why did Christ come? Have you asked yourself? When last did you think about it?

He came to save the world. To redeem us from our sins. And to show us how to live.

Now those of us who have come to love and serve God have learned how practical are His teachings, how never failing His help, how ever dependable His advice and directions. We use His way of life, knowing it works daily miracles—and yet we sometimes wonder why it doesn't solve everything.

Is it because we shun the first and real mission of His coming? To save us from our sins—us sinners?

The modern generation does not like to talk about sin; some even go so far as to say there is no sin. Well, what shall we call it? Is it just sophistication? As a matter of fact the word does not apply, because a man who lives a sinful life is not sophisticated, he is a fool. Sophistication means worldly-wise, to know your way around in the world so you will not get licked by the world. But those sinful ones who call themselves sophisticated are licked. What is their trouble? They are doing wrong and they cannot stop it. So they try to rationalize it.

Rationalization is when the mind tells you that what you are doing is not wrong—it used to be wrong years ago, but it is not wrong anymore. Whenever you do a wrong thing your mind tries to save face. It says to you, "Now wait a minute, what you did is not wrong at all; you are really a very fine fellow. These preachers are all out-of-date, behind the times—do not believe them, talking about sin and the like!" That is the way the mind sometimes works.

I once heard a very wise man say something that brought me up short. A university president and author of numerous books, he observed: "The smartest thing the devil ever did was to get people to believe that the devil does not exist."

We believe in God who is a Spirit. We believe in a universal force that is spiritual. We believe we ourselves have an unperishable spirit. Yes, we believe in the power of the spirit of good. We believe the Bible. But too many of us dismiss the power of the spirit of evil, though we see its work all about us.

The devil, sin? Archaic, childish, old-fashioned, don't you know! And certainly not scientific.

But Christ came to our earth to save mankind from sin—to redeem us—to be our personal salvation. He gave us tools of infinite worth to build our road to Heaven.

Yes, we have a world full of conflict and hate—but God is with us. We cannot save ourselves, but in Him we put our trust.

If today—this minute—we open our hearts and embrace Him and His teachings—not only to reap abundance and joy and health and happy fulfillment, but also for the cancellation of our sins—then this is the greatest welcome we can give to the Christ Child.

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale is the author of The Power of Positive Thinking and many other books. He served over five decades as pastor of Marble Collegiate Church in New York.

Merry Christmas—but not for some

by Major Barbara Bolton

Christmas won't be merry for some people this year. It will be, in fact, a haunted season, rather bleaker than other days of the year.

Christmas won't be merry for many of the newly-divorced, still trying to come to terms with the break-up of their marriages. Adjusting, in the case of the childless, to life as singles during a season that's especially oriented towards the family. Adjusting, in the case of those with children, to the hybrid life of the parent, trying to be all things to their young and trying to resolve the problems of where the children eat dinner and with what grandparent.

It won't be merry for the newly-bereaved, coping with the first Christmas without the loved one they have lost. Inevitably they will think of what they were doing at Yuletide last year. Some will be struggling with bitter regrets about time not spent with the one now gone, gifts that could have been bought and weren't.

In most cases there is little need for regrets, but they will come nonetheless, the burden of those

Christmas may be made merry for some of the newly homeless by some of the agencies working in this field. But nothing that is provided will entirely assuage the feeling of rootlessness and the sense of insecurity about the future that comes to those who find themselves of no fixed abode.

And, as always, there will certainly be homeless people who will slip through the net and find themselves alone and comfortless on Christmas day.

Christmas won't be merry for some of those who have over-spent to try and give their families everything, and know that the bills with interest added are going to come in the new year, which is already overshadowed by the ghost of Christmas past.

What's the answer for those who aren't going to find Christmas merry this year?

Perhaps it's to realize that the Christ who was born nearly 2,000 years ago understands those whose hearts are heavy or anxious. A description from the Old Testament has often been applied to Jesus: "He was a man of sorrows, acquainted with grief."

It's a description that has very little to do with the usual image of Christmas. But, for those who are hurting, there's sometimes a need to look beyond the glitz and holly of Christmas to the one whose birth we are celebrating—or can celebrate.

For 2,000 years He has helped the heavy-hearted pick up the pieces and live again. He can still do it today.
