Horse farm future site for school

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

A former horse farm in Novi has become the property of Northville Public Schools and will someday be the site of an elementary school.

When the final payment is made to Thurman and Lillian Autry in January, the Northville School District will have paid $750,000 for the 17.8-acre parcel. The district's balance due of $300,000 is being held until Jan. 15 at the Autrys' request.

The land, which is North of Nine Mile Road between Taft and Beck roads, is in a part of Novi included in the Northville School District. Announcement of the sale was made at Monday's Northville Board of Education meeting.

"The latest Northville school will be in Novi," Northville Superintendent George Bell said.

The search for the perfect parcel was slowed by concerns that some sights may have been used as a dump at one time, or that the land would be unbuildable because of laws protecting wetlands, said Burton Knighton, assistant superintendent for administrative services.

But this land was tested and is not only buildable, it is "perfectly clean," Knighton said.

Bell agreed that finding the best property was difficult.

"It was a very complex purchase dealing with wetlands and some very complex issues," Bell said.

The size of the parcel was another plus in choosing the land.

"This is the first time the Northville school district has ever bought land that is large enough to accommodate the needs of a building," Bell said.

The purchase was funded by a 1989 bond issue.

MEAP scores in

Shattering the myth that males are better than females at math, female Northville students in the fourth, seventh and 10th grade scored as well as male students in the same grades on the math portion of the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test.

For the first time, Northville Public Schools divided the results of the MEAP test to study scores grouped by gender as well as grade level.

And what they found was "a pleasant surprise, particularly at the upper grades," said William Hamilton, director of instructional services in a memo discussing the results.

The MEAP reading and math tests were given to fourth-, seventh- and 10th-graders earlier this school year. The MEAP science test was given to fifth-, eighth- and 11th-graders.

Northville males scored 3.2 percent better than females in math in the fourth grade, 2 percent better in the seventh grade, and 4.2 percent better in the 10th grade.

"The number of males and females taking math is not significantly different, and the scores are close, too," Hamilton said.

The science scores were similarly equal until the 11th grade, when McDonald's to request meeting

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

McDonald's representatives will request a special meeting with the township planning commission in December to review a tabled site plan for a proposed restaurant near the Six Mile/Haggerty intersection.

Scheduling a December meeting will allow McDonald's ample time to fulfill site plan revisions recommended by the planning commission at its Oct. 30 session, McDonald's spokesperson Bernie Whitman said Tuesday.

"We've taken (township planning) staff comments and are in the process of making changes to the letter," Whitman said. "We'll request a meeting and sit down and go over (the revised plan)."

The proposed McDonald's site is penciled in on the south side of Six Mile just west of a new Standard Federal Bank building.

Whitman said he will seek a mid-December meeting with planners. The special meeting is necessary because no regular commission meeting is scheduled for December.

McDonald's originally submitted a plan for its proposed Six Mile/Haggerty site in October. The planning commission tabled the plan, citing traffic concerns as a potential problem.

A throng of angry residents and individual planning commissioners voiced opposition to the site plan, saying a fast food restaurant is incompatible with surrounding neighborhoods.

But township zoning allows such uses along selected portions of the Haggerty Road corridor, and planners ordered the developer to commission a traffic study to address the issue.

"The traffic, or impact, report should be done by the end of this week," Whitman said. "(But) there really isn't any traffic problem at all."

Other revisions to the original plan also will be completed soon, Whitman said. Planning consultants had listed deficiencies in parking and loading zone areas — items the developer said can easily be modified.

A bump in the road to the restaurant development may come from Symbolic vote taken against bridge

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The city planning commission took a symbolic if empty vote against the Main Centre pedestrian bridge last week, but approved a new parking deck designed to allow a shortened bridge.

The commission meeting was marked by confusion, and some resentment, on the part of several planners over their role in the approval of the deck and bridge.

The confrontational atmosphere of the meeting was set early as Commissioner Chris Gazlay moved and Commissioner Steve Ball quickly seconded a motion to consider the bridge separately from the deck. "My intent is to reserve the right to vote against any bridge in any location in the city," Gazlay said.

But he admitted that the vote would be little more than a symbol. "It's all a moot point because the council has already approved a bridge. It's just that I don't want (opposition to the bridge) to die without the opportunity for one last gasp."

Replied Commission Chairperson John Hardin, "Enjoy your gasp."

Gazlay's motion passed by a 5-2 vote with commissioners David Mie-

Record reorganizes sections

Readers will notice several changes in the configuration of The Northville Record this week.

The changes involve the way in which the various sections are lettered. The main news section, which contains the editorial page, will continue to be the A section.

The Our Town section, formerly the D section, becomes the B section and will appear immediately after the A section.

Creative Living, which features real estate news and advertising for homeowners and people looking for homes, will remain the C section and appear next in the paper. And the Green Sheet, filled with classified advertisements and business news, will move from the B section to become the D section.

Readers also will notice new "flags" across the top of the Creative Living and Green Sheet sections. The flags were designed by Graphics Coordinator Chris Boyd to create a common look for the sections which are common to all six papers in the HomeTown Newspapers chain.

Philip Jerome, executive editor of HomeTown Newspapers, said the new configuration and section-front flags have a primary purpose of placing the strictly local news (main news, living and sports) at the front of the paper and the news with more regional appeal (classified and real estate advertising) at the back of the paper.

Jerome noted that most newspapers place classified advertising at the back of the paper, and that readers traditionally expect to find it in that location.

"We think these changes will make our news papers easier for readers to use, thereby adding to their value," said Jerome.

A safe holiday season

Often the holiday season means get-togethers with friends and family, and often the gatherings include drinking — and driving home afterward.

Today's Northville Record includes a special report on holiday drinking and driving, including first-person accounts of the process of being booked; an exploration of some of the myths; and a look at how some local taverns try to head off problems.

The project appears on pages 8-10A

The caption should have said that Northville Township Treasurer Betty Lennox was being sworn in by Township Supervisor Georgina Goss.

GIVE BLOOD: The American Red Cross Blood Bank will be accepting donations of blood at the Our Lady of Victory School in Northville, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 1. The donations will be taken in the social hall. The school is at 770 Thayer Blvd.

COMMUNITY APPRECIATION: The Downtown Northville Merchants' Association is sponsoring a Community Appreciation Day from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 2.

This day provides the merchants an opportunity to say "Thank you" to residents of Northville/Northville Township for their support of local business, while reminding people that most downtown stores are open from noon to 5 p.m. Sundays until Christmas.

Persons with Northville mailing addresses only will be eligible to enter a prize drawing with the grand prize being a weekend trip for two to Toronto.

SPEAKING HER MIND: Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss will be the guest of Lou Farrell on his radio talk show "What's On Your Mind?" at 2 p.m. Monday Dec. 3. The show, which airs on WNZK, 690 AM, features guests who answer questions of community interest. Goss will be talking about the township she serves.

ODYSSEY OF THE MIND WORKSHOP: A Spontaneous Problem Solving Workshop for all OMers will be held from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8 at Northville High School.

This will be a valuable training session for all team members and it is critical that they attend. All teams should be accompanied by at least one adult. For more information contact Gayle Fountain, ALPS facilitator, at 344-8448.

NORTHVILLE PLAYERS: The Northville Players present The Best Christmas Pageant Ever the weekend of Dec. 7-9.

The play will be performed at 8 p.m. Dec. 7, 2 and 8 p.m. Dec. 8, and 2 and 5 p.m. Dec. 9 at Mill Race Historical Village, on Griswold between Main Street and Eight Mile.

Tickets are $5 each, and only 75 are available for each performance. They are available at Bookstall on the Main, 116 E. Main, 348-1167; or from Judy Kohl, 348-2678.

PARKING PERMIT RENEWALS: Northville city residents who park overnight on city streets or in city parking lots must renew their overnight parking permits before Jan. 1, 1991. The $5 yearly permits exempt residents from the city-wide ordinance that prohibits parking on city streets or lots between 2:30-7 p.m. The permits can be renewed at Northville City Hall, 215 W. Main St., and are available now.

CHAMBER SEEKS PHOTOS . . . The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce is looking for photos of the second Victorian Festival. Anyone willing to share their pictures is asked to contact the chamber at 349-7640 or to drop the photos off at 195 S. Main St.

Recreation fields in short supply

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Lack of recreation space has reached a critical stage, community officials say, and hope a master plan and survey will help plot Northville's future recreation needs.

The Northville Recreation Commission held public hearings in the township and city in November to solicit comments about local recreation issues. Attendance was light at both hearings, but the commission did hear Recreation Director John Anderson's proposal to combat dwindling resources.

Anderson said public hearings were the first step in a recreation strategy for the 1990s. He said a random survey of the public to "give us direction on what our support is" would be implemented.

A random survey would separate special interest groups from the general public, Anderson said, giving recreation and government officials a better understanding of what programs and facilities residents are willing to support.

Anderson said the survey would be distributed "within a month and a half." He said survey costs would be limited to postage fees.

Anderson walked recreation commissioners and those attending the public hearings — mainly soccer and baseball coaches — through the rather bleak landscape of local recreation facilities.

Three locally controlled facilities, including the recreation building on Main Street, Fish Hatchery Park on Seven Mile and Henningsen Park on Six Mile, are safe, he said.

A community park on Beck Road between Five and Six Mile roads is in the early stages of development, Anderson said.

The community also uses Wayne County facilities in Hines Park and fields in Maybury State Park, as well as some Northville School District fields, he said.

Local athletic squads have become increasingly dependent upon borrowed fields, but development threatens to chew up more grass than would soccer players.

Ford Field is used by both the youth soccer and youth baseball programs, but its status is in doubt because of attempts to sell the adjacent Ford Motor Co. plant. Lapham Field, located on Beck between Six and Seven Mile roads, is destined for residential housing. Soccer fields will be lost at that site.

Scheduling restrictions apply to fields on Fairlane Assembly Church property on Six Mile, and baseball and soccer fields may give way to the developer's shovel on the former Wayne County Child Development Center.

With 600 children in local youth soccer programs and 950 in youth baseball, erosion of recreation space has coaches fearful of and for the future.

Township resident Donald Samhat coaches Northville Junior Baseball and said local youths are already practicing on makeshift diamonds. The community needs an immediate infusion of athletic facilities, he said.

"I think we'll be short three or four fields in junior baseball (immediately)," he said.

Youth soccer officials estimate that eight new fields will be needed to meet demand in the next five years.

But prospects for increased community financial support appear dim. City voters crushed a recreation millage in November 1989 and city/township shared services support for community recreation might be threatened if predicted economic hard times become reality.

Development of the new Beck Road site is funded by recreation program registration fees, but user surcharges total only $8,000-$9,000 per year and will not meet heightened facility demand, Anderson said.

"It's not going to be enough," he said.

Anderson hopes a survey will identify the amount of community recreation support.

"We will ask survey participants to prioritize the most important items," he said. "Then we'll know what the community is likely to support."

Thief nabs new truck from Meijer parking lot

A Livonia woman told township police that someone stole her 1991 GMC Jimmy in the Meijer parking lot between 5:25-6:15 p.m. Nov. 21. Police said they found no evidence at the scene. The vehicle was valued at $18,000.

WARRANTS SERVED: City police arrested two men Nov. 20 while investigating the report of a suspicious vehicle parked in a Randolph Street lot. The men were sitting in the vehicle at 7:38 p.m. when police arrived and asked them for identification.

A 19-year-old Detroit man was arrested on an open warrant for an expired license plate held by Lincoln Park police, while a 31-year-old Ecorse man was arrested on a warrant for child neglect and held on $1,000 bond.

CHILDREN HARASSED: A 10-year-old Northville girl and her friend were reportedly offered candy by two male teens while walking along High Street after school Nov. 19. The girls were walking north from the corner of Randolph and High about 3:40 p.m. when the boys reportedly drove alongside them and said, "Do you want some candy?" The boys were reportedly driving

"a newer model smaller Ford product, dark burgundy in color." They were described as high-school age, and the driver wore dark hair pulled into a pony tail. The girls said they ran away after the incident, and heard the boys laughing behind them.

The incident was reported to police by the director of a "latch-key" program the girls attend. Program staff members will now meet the children at the Randolph/High bus stop. The Northville Schools transportation department was also notified.

WARRANT ARREST: Northville Township police arrested a 35-year-old Canton woman Nov. 19 on a bench warrant issued by 35th District Court. According to police, the warrant was issued after the woman failed to appear in court on an operating a vehicle while intoxicated (OWI) charge.

Police said the woman was a passenger in a vehicle that was stopped as it traveled north on Haggerty north of Seven Mile Road. The woman was released on $100 cash bond and is scheduled to appear in court Dec. 20.

BREAKING AND ENTERING: A walkaway from Northville State Hospital was returned to the psychiatric facility after taking a bicycle from a Cameron Court residence Nov. 20. Police said the man stole the bicycle from a garage between 5-6 p.m. and was apprehended a short time later. The bicycle owner did not press charges, police said.

OWI: A 52-year-old Northville man was arrested and charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol Nov. 21 at 1:40 a.m. on Sheldon Road near the Six Mile intersection. Township police said radar indicated that the man was traveling 61 m.p.h. in a 45 m.p.h. zone. Tests indicated that the man's blood-alcohol level was .18 percent.

TIRE AND WHEEL STOLEN: A tire and chrome wheel worth $200 were reported stolen from the back of a pickup truck parked at Foundry Flack between Nov. 16-17. The B.F. Goodrich P235/75 R15 tire was mounted on a five-spoke chrome wheel with chrome hub.

WINDSHIELD SMASHED: The windshield and grille of a car parked on Morgan were smashed sometime between 6 p.m. Nov. 23 and 11 a.m. Nov. 24, according to city police reports. The owner reported that his vehicles had been egged recently, but he had not reported the incident to police at the time.

RADAR DETECTOR, TAPES STOLEN: A radar detector and tapes were reported stolen from a car parked at the Northville Downs, 301 S. Center St., Nov. 21. The detector was valued at $50 and the home-made tapes at $60, according to city police reports. There were no signs of forced entry into the vehicle.

CAR WINDOW BROKEN: The rear window of a car parked at Northville Downs Nov. 24 was smashed sometime between 7:15-10:30 p.m., according to city police reports. A broken beer bottle was found at the scene. Damage to the car was estimated at $200.

VAN WINDOW BROKEN: The rear window of a van parked at Arbor Drugs, 133 E. Dunlap St., Nov. 25 was smashed sometime between 5:45 p.m., according to city police reports. Damage to the van was estimated at $350.

SNEAKERS STOLEN FROM SNEAKER LOCKER: A $40 pair of sneakers and a $20 T-shirt were reported stolen from a gym locker at Cooke Middle School, 21200 Taft Road. The theft occurred sometime between Nov. 29-30, according to city police reports. The sneakers were described as white Standia high-top tennis shoes, and the T-shirt was green. The locker was secured with a combination lock.

SCHOOL WINDOW BROKEN: A Cooke Middle School window was broken sometime between Nov. 21-26, according to city police reports. Damage to the window, in a home economics classroom, was estimated at $26.25.

HUNTING KNIFE STOLEN: A grey, 18-inch Buckmaster hunting knife was reported stolen from a Center Street home sometime between Nov. 15-18. The knife was valued at $150, according to city police reports.

BIKE STOLEN: A bicycle parked in front of Genitti's Restaurant, 108 E. Main St., was stolen sometime between 3:15-7 p.m. Nov. 23, according to city police reports. The 20-inch silver dirt bike had a black seat and hand grips and was valued at $25.

WINDOW SHOT OUT: The living room window of an Ely Drive home was shot out sometime between Nov. 21-22, apparently with a BB or pellet gun, according to city police reports. Damage was estimated at $150.

FENDER BENDERS: City police reported two accidents Nov. 19 and one Nov. 21. A Whitmore Lake man, 25, disobeyed a red traffic signal while driving north on Sheldon Road at 4:20 p.m. and was struck by a car heading west on Hines Drive.

A 71-year-old Northville woman turning north onto Taft from east-bound Eight Mile at 5:15 p.m. drove into the path of a westbound car. She was cited for failing to yield.

PINS FOR ADDED STRENGTH

If you've ever watched the construction of a concrete building you probably wondered why the concrete was poured over those reinforcing steel posts. The theory is simple—reinforced concrete is stronger and lasts longer. The same principle is often used in dentistry when a larger than normal restoration (filling or crown) is required to repair a badly decayed tooth.

If sufficient tooth structure does not remain after all the decay is removed, there is a good chance that an ordinary silver amalgam filling will result in a poorly supported restoration with limited life capacity. To solve the problem, extra support can be added by the use of the threaded pin system. The dentist will screw in gold pins into the dentin (the part of the tooth just below the surface enamel). The more pins that can be "safely" inserted (with no nerve or tooth damage), the greater the chance of a long-lasting filling.

The pins are then covered with the restorative material and shaped into the natural contour of the tooth.

Man lends police a helping hand

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A local man who helped a township police officer subdue a walkaway mental patient last week has earned a pat on the back from the police department.

Township resident Joe Berry, 54, reportedly jumped into a scuffle between police Sgt. John Sherman and a 34-year-old walkaway from Northville Regional Hospital Nov. 20. Berry helped restrain the man until another officer arrived and handcuffed the walkaway, police said.

The walkaway was a suspect in a breaking and entering incident that occurred shortly after 3 p.m. at a Cameron Court residence.

According to police reports, the hospital patient allegedly stole a bicycle from the Cameron Court residence and was riding it near the Haggerty/Five Mile intersection when Sherman stopped and attempted to arrest him. Sherman was in plainclothes at the time, but was wearing a hat with a police inscription and identified himself as an officer.

A struggle ensued between Sherman and the 200-pound walkaway, police said.

Enter Berry, who was driving west on Five Mile near the intersection.

"I saw a cop and a pretty good-sized guy going at it," he said. "They were bouncing off a car (but) everybody kept going, driving by.

"He (Sherman) looked like he was in trouble, so I stopped and grabbed his (the walkaway's) right arm behind his back and shoved his head in the grass," he said. "The guy was pretty big and I think the cop fought like hell."

"He (Sherman) looked like he had his hands full."

Berry, a racehorse owner, said he "just reacted to what I saw" when he came upon the scene. He thinks civilians should lend a helping hand if they see an officer who may need assistance.

"You should help when a cop's in trouble," he said. "More people should do it."

Berry's efforts were noted in a letter Sherman drafted to police Chief Chip Snider.

"The suspect resisted arrest and (I) was acting alone in the apprehension," he wrote. "Mr. Berry voluntarily stopped and offered assistance... with disregard for his personal safety."

"Due to Mr. Berry's quick actions in assisting... the suspect was able to be restrained until the arrival of other officers, thus reducing the likelihood of injury to (Sherman) and to the suspect..."

No injuries were reported in the incident. The walkaway was returned to the state hospital and will not be charged in the bicycle theft or the struggle with Sherman, police said.

Tests trash math myth

males' scores jumped ahead by 20 percentage points.

The difference between males and females in the 11th-grade scores could be attributed to the fact that many 11th-grade students, having recently moved into the district, received most of their educational training elsewhere, said Superintendent George Bell.

"You're not measuring apples and apples," he said.

Also, 27 more females than males took the science test in the 11th grade, which could account for some of the difference. In the eighth grade 25 more males than females took the test and the males still scored 6 percent higher than the females.

The eighth- and 11th-grade science departments will study the results to determine how the gaps in scores can be narrowed.

In reading, fourth-grade females did significantly better than fourth-grade males on the MEAP test, scoring 11.4 percent higher.

In grades seven and ten the difference was much less at 1.4 percent and 2.2 percent respectively.

The district will study the differences to determine if the fourth-graders' scores were typical of this specific fourth grade or if a trend is in the making.

As a whole, district students did as well as last year in most areas, Hamilton said. The scores relative to other districts in the state are not yet available.

Next year, students taking the math test can expect some changes. The 1991 MEAP math test will be 80 percent application and problem solving and 20 percent computation. The current test, including the test upon which this year's scores are based, is 80 percent computation and 20 percent problem solving.

Students in the 10th grade did drop 9.5 percentage points on the math portion of the test from last year's score. But last year's 8 percentage point gain over 1988 scores was more baffling than this year's drop back down to the decade average, Hamilton said.

"We're most concerned with why in a 10-year period in this one year (1989) the grades went way up," Hamilton said. "We're not exactly sure what caused that."

This year's 82.5-percent scores are typical of the district's scores in the 78 to 84 percentile range over the last ten years, Hamilton said.

Similar to last year's scores, students did better on the story selection portion of the reading test than they did on the informational selection portion of the test.

Students in the three grades improved their scores. The 10th-graders improved the most with a 7.4 percent increase.

In the informational selection portion of the test, seventh- and 10th-graders' scores decreased by 4.2 and 2 percent respectively, with fourth-graders increasing by 3.4 percent.

MEAP scores are intended to help district teachers and administrators improve programs, not to compare Northville students' intelligence to other district's students and decide one group is smarter, Bell said.

"The MEAP is intended as a diagnostic tool for our district and that is how we will use it, not to compare," Bell said.

And slight differences in scores compared to last year are not cause for celebration or despair, he said.

"We don't make a big hoopla about going up two points and we don't make a hoopla about going down two points," Bell said.

Lawsuit mediation attempt down the drain

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Settlement of a long-running series of lawsuits involving a city-installed pipe and a local couple's property went down the drain last week.

The City of Northville last week turned down a mediation proposal in the case that would have cost the city $45,000.

The original lawsuit, filed against the city by Richard and Marilyn Smith nearly 18 months ago, now involves seven people and the city, five law firms, and hundreds of pages of legal briefs filed at Wayne County Circuit Court in Detroit.

Though the couple's original complaint against the city was fairly straightforward, the legal case it led to has been complicated from the start.

The Smiths filed their suit against the city June 7, 1989, after discovering a city-installed drain pipe on their property. The suit alleged that the installation of the pipe constituted trespassing and a taking of their property after the couple had sought to develop it.

The couple also sued the people who sold them the property, Jessie and Nancy Grimm, for breach of contract.

The Grimms then sued both the city and the people who sold them the property, Douglas and Marjorie Bolton and Laura Hicks. The Grimms argued that because the Bolton family sold them the property, the Boltons should be held responsible if they, the Grimms, are sued.

The Boltons, in turn, sued the city, claiming no knowledge of the pipe and arguing that the city should be held responsible for any damages assessed to them.

At issue is the legality of a city-built drain pipe on the vacant lot owned by the Smiths. But the couple's quarrel against city officials actually began several months before they discovered the pipe, when the city denied them the right to develop the lot.

The Smiths were offered $30,000 by yet another family for the lot next to their Wing Street home in August, 1988, provided that a single-story home could be built on the lot. But according to court records, the couple had been told that the lot was unbuildable when they purchased the property from the Grimms in August 1986.

The city's building department declared the lot unbuildable under city lot-size ordinances as well, and the board of zoning appeals turned down the couple's request for a variance on the property in November, 1988. Shortly thereafter, the couple discovered the drain pipe running down the middle of the lot and sued the city.

The Smiths and city officials have declined to discuss the details of the case, citing the continuing litigation.

Smith attorney Ernest Essad of the Plymouth law firm Law, Hemming, Essad & Polaczyk, also declined to discuss details of the case, saying, "I have a general policy of not commenting on ongoing litigation, especially when we're in the process of going into mediation."

Northville has been represented in the case by Stuart Trager of Cummings, McClorey, Davis & Aho of Livonia. That law firm — which employs Mayor Chris Johnson — was assigned to the city by the city's insurers, the Michigan Municipal Risk Management Authority.

The insurers assign a law firm whenever an insured city is faced with a lawsuit involving monetary damages, and Cummings, McClorey, Davis & Aho is the designated firm for such cases.

Trager did not return several calls from the Record.

Recently, the Bloomfield law firm of Plunkett & Cooney was called in on the city's behalf as well. As city attorney James Kohl of that firm explained, "We weren't involved at first because it was an insurance matter, and then the judge made a ruling which would affect our ordinance structure."

The Grimms are being represented by the Law Offices of Michael W. Reeds, while the Boltons are represented by attorney David Jerome of Jerome & Samhat. Both the Grimms and Boltons deny any prior knowledge of the existence of the pipe, and thus argue they can't be held liable for breach of contract in selling the property.

Despite the reluctance of those involved to discuss the suits, most of the details of the case are on record at Wayne County Circuit Court, in the form of the various motions, responses and supplementary briefs filed by the attorneys. Most of the information in this story was pulled from those records.

While the litigation continues, at least part of the case has been decided. The city has been found liable for the unlawful taking of land and trespassing for their construction of the drain pipe on the property nearly 40 years ago.

But city attorneys continue to argue that construction of the pipe did not constitute a taking because the pipe was installed with the original owner's permission, to relieve flooding on his lot.

The city has offered to move the drain pipe to an unbuildable portion of the vacant lot, between the north property line and the setback line, but refused to grant the Smiths the right to build on the property. The Smiths turned down the offer.

The city's actions have been described in opposing legal briefs as "active negligence" and "unlawful taking and trespass."

But city attorneys maintained in a May 11 brief that the pipe was installed "with the acquiescence of the prior owner to relieve flooding on the Plaintiff's property, and therefore, it was not a taking." City officials claimed the city was granted an oral easement by the original property owner in the early 1950s, but the court has not agreed.

"Whatever happened," the city's attorneys wrote, "the nefarious plot painted by the Plaintiff's complaint . . . did not happen. The City did not unilaterally take Plaintiff's property and confiscate it."

The Smiths' variance was denied because their lot is simply too small to develop under the city's zoning ordinance, according to city attorneys. They argue that the ordinance should apply because the Smiths bought the property in 1986, long after the ordinance was adopted in 1963.

Essad, in his May 25 response to the city's brief, countered, "The Plaintiffs are not appealing the Zoning Board of Appeals' decision. They are asserting their vested rights . . . to build a one-family dwelling on their pre-existing non-conforming lot of record."

But the city's attorneys argue that the Smiths "have failed to establish a vested, non-conforming use."

After a motion for summary disposition heard before the court June 8, Judge Kathleen MacDonald found the city liable to the Smiths "for unlawful taking and trespass as a result of Northville's construction of a drain pipe on the Plaintiff's property." The court also found the Grimms liable to the city "for breach of warranty." The issue of Northville's liability for unlawful taking, due to its refusal to allow the Smiths to develop the property, was left undecided.

A month ago, a mediation panel proposed a $45,000 judgment under which the city would pay the Smiths $30,000, the Grimms would pay the couple $15,000, and the city would have to reimburse the Grimms.

The Smiths accepted the offer on the condition that all other parties accept it, but the city turned it down last week.

A Sobering Look

Numbing drinks can't dull reality

Reporters face harsh 'arrest'

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A short, terse message is inscribed on the door of the Northville Township Police Department's drunk tank. In effect, the note tells occupants to leave the room in the same condition as it was when they entered.

The small cell with the beige, rubberized floor is bleak, stark, foreboding. It's literally sobering.

And you wonder how many others have felt the agony of head-pounding hangovers — coupled with the bitter bile of incarceration — as you huddle in the corner of the cell, staring at the dingy stainless steel toilet across the way.

Shoes and pants are loose — they've taken away your shoelaces and belt as a preventative measure to suicide — and the slab of a bed is hard and slung low to the ground so you won't get hurt if you tumble off.

Thumb still ink-smudged from the booking and every 15 minutes or so, cops and dispatchers glare — judgementally? critically? — through a tiny cell window to see if you are trying to hang yourself. And you wait an eternity for the blood-alcohol level to dip under .08 percent so that an embarrassed friend or relative can pick you up.

A thousand disjointed thoughts streak through your mind and you wonder why the hell you had to stop for drinks last night, or why you didn't know enough to quit before it got dangerous.

The News staff last week got the notion to take a professional peek at alcohol overindulgence. We figured the holidays were a fitting time to examine some of the problems that accompany alcohol use and abuse — specifically drunken driving — and decided to use ourselves as human guinea pigs. If nothing else, we reasoned, the company could pay for a few Friday afternoon drinks.

We quickly decided authenticity would be the key to this project. We had to get close to our subject and we had to find an authoritative voice to guide us. In short, we planned to go out Friday, get drunk and eventually, arrested.

A phone call to Chief Chip Snider of the township police department helped get our plan rolling. Snider agreed to have an officer pick up and arrest three reporters at a local watering hole. Although we weren't driving, we would face charges including operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol (OUIL).

With the blessing of our editors, Snider, and Lt. Gary Batzloff, who was in charge of the "arrest," reporters Steve Kellman, Suzanne Hollyer and myself drunken drove to O'Sheehan's on Seven Mile to conduct our experiment. We sat down with photographer Bryan Mitchell at 1.15 p.m. and began drinking a potpourri of beverages.

Whiskey on the rocks. Tequila Beer. Margaritas. Things were slow initially, but we soon got into the swing. Voice volume increased, jokes seemingly got funnier and came at a more rapid pace, and the waitresses smiled wary but tip-seeking smiles when we sent them off for another round.

Our varying degrees of drinking experience were quite evident throughout the afternoon. Steve and I are a few years older than Suzanne and her conduct became rather amusing as her glass was drained and refilled. And we learned that weight has a lot to do with drinking capacity. Both male reporters weigh more than 180 pounds; Suzanne, 115.

It didn't take long for her to become a bit twisted, as they say.

My scribbled notes indicate that Steve became rather mellow. He stuck to beer and drank more than 72 ounces (six 12-oz. bottles) before our test ended. Suzanne drank several glasses of beer, a margarita on the rocks and a shot of tequila. She was boisterous, loud and jabbered endlessly, according to my notes.

I drank a couple shots of whiskey, two shots of tequila and four 12-oz. bottles of beer. I was fairly buzzed by the time the test ended at 4 p.m., but I felt capable of driving a car.

During the course of our stay at O'Sheehan's, we conducted mental and physical tests as recommended by the township police department. Feet together, lean back, arms extended, eyes closed, touch your nose. We didn't have much problem with that one. Recite the alphabet. No real problem there; we're all college grads.

But we slipped up on a couple other tests devised to allow patrol officers to determine if a Breathalyzer is necessary.

Midway through the experiment, we attempted to count back from 100 to 80. Suzanne stumbled by jumping from 89 to 87. Steve and I weren't fazed by the numbers. A heel-to-toe walking test proved more difficult, however. All three of us experienced some difficulty and were tentative with our steps.

Lt. Batzloff appeared at the lounge just before 4 p.m. and escorted us to a squad car. This was one portion of the test we knew would be lacking, because the terror that normally would accompany a traffic stop simply was not there. But we tried to play as straight as possible and soon a pair of hand-

Keep holidays safe and sober

With the holiday season getting under way this week, we'll likely be seeing greater opportunities for persons to drink and drive. Family get-togethers, office parties, after-work bashes and snow-slicked roads don't mix well with any brand of alcohol.

With that in mind, Novi News staffers Steve Kellman, Mike Tyree and Suzanne Hollyer, copy editor Rick Byrne, photographer Bryan Mitchell, and Observer & Eccentric reporter Janice Brunson have collaborated on "A Sobering Look" at drinking and driving.

It is our hope that this report will be remembered by our readers through the holidays. The choice to drink or not is still yours. But if you do drink, don't drive, and keep the holidays safe for yourself and others.

cuffs were ratcheted around my wrists.

Batzloff passed his gun through a slot at the back entrance to the police department at township hall and we stepped inside a portion of the building none of us had previously seen. I was uncuffed and asked to sit in a chair in a small room lined with cabinets, a sink and a mechanical device I presumed was the Breathalyzer.

Batzloff sat nearby and began to recite a list of charges and chemical rights. Even without a massive infusion of terror-induced adrenaline, I had trouble understanding all the charges and legal mumbo-jumbo. Also, I tried to be somewhat difficult by asking Batzloff to repeat passages and interjecting objections to the arrest.

Batzloff seemed to take it all in stride, nonchalantly telling me to make a phone call every time I tried to use that as a ploy to gain some time or comprehension of the situation.

After I agreed to take the Breathalyzer test, Officer Joseph Hetu began to fill out an arrest record worksheet, a standard procedure identification form that included questions about health and behavior. Two sections of the form dealt specifically with suicidal tendencies.

Hetu also had me empty my pockets and took my wallet and belt. I wore laceless shoes, which he said I could keep. He sifted through my wallet with a keen eye for anything out of the ordinary. The search is for inventory purposes, Hetu said.

The Breathalyzer machine soon warmed sufficiently, and Batzloff called me over and gave quick directions. Take a deep breath and blow into a plastic tube, he said, and don't stop until I tell you.

In the background, Suzanne giggled hopelessly and Steve jotted notes into my reporter's notebook.

The Breathalyzer is a hodge-podge of lights, switches, and gauges. I blew into the contraption and a red light appeared. I had a tough time figuring out the purpose of all the devices.

After a lengthy stay at the machine, I was told to have a seat. Hetu continued his questioning and Batzloff soon let out a chuckle.

"I guess you'll have to sue me for false arrest," he said. "You're only .07."

After two shots of whiskey, two shots of tequila and four beers in less than three hours, I was under even the impaired driving limit. That revelation was a surprise, because after reading hundreds of OUIL arrest reports over the past year — and the like-clockwork "I only had a couple beers" explanations from suspects — I figured I would blow a .11 or .12. That wasn't the case, and I realized that one has to be pretty far gone to warrant an arrest.

Suzanne was giddy and had trouble with the Breathalyzer. She eventually stopped laughing enough to blow a .12 and was the only one of the group that would have been arrested. Steve tested at

.08, which may have earned him an impaired driving arrest, Batzloff said.

The results also surprised Batzloff. He said he knew Suzanne had consumed too much ("She was obviously intoxicated."), but he felt my talkative nature indicated I was also drunk ("You were somewhat borderline; you were different than usual.") But he was surprised Steve's test results were higher than mine ("It's funny that he actually blew higher, due to his quietness.")

Armed with our chemical tests, we began to ask questions about the system and our physical and emotional capacities. But Officer Greg Rhodes walked into the room, a stern look on his face. "Got a real one," he said.

We exited hastily, slipping past the small room with the beige, rubberized floor. It was soon to have an occupant, someone who wouldn't be laughing and looking for a place to eat.

Pain lingers on for driver, victim

Elizabeth Granger's nightmare started Easter morning 1988.

Rushing to meet three adult children for holiday brunch, Granger, a soft-spoken woman of 57, ran a red light in Westland and hit another car, killing one occupant and crippling another for life.

Coping at the time with a divorce, the recent death of both parents and the suicide death of a close friend, Granger was drunk.

One year later, she pleaded nolo contendere to felonious driving and vehicular manslaughter, and was sentenced to 5-15 years in prison.

The former Southfield resident, once employed as a records supervisor in an area hospital, described herself as a once "active member in my community, church and children's schools." She is now incarcerated at the Florence Crane Women's Facility in Coldwater.

"My dearest hopes and prayers are to survive this harsh ordeal and return to a life with my family, to my work in a hospital and to all the normalcy I miss so much," Granger wrote recently in an account of life since the sentencing.

Her hopes and prayers may very well never be realized.

Two families have been destroyed, said Granger's sister, Rosemary Millon of Livonia, who visits Granger monthly in prison. "It's heartbreaking."

Granger's accident of April 3, 1988, continues to be devastating for occupants of the car she hit.

Driving to Easter Sunday church services, Gary Madar's car was struck at 10:39 a.m. Madar, a Farmington Hills resident, received minor injuries, but his mother, Doris Madar, 61, was killed. His wife, Elizabeth "Betty" Madar, 27, was critically injured and is now a quadriplegic, requiring 24-hour care.

As for Granger's sentence: "My sister is accepting (her fate) very well," Millon said, but she is in extremely poor health and Millon fears she will never leave prison alive. Granger's weight has plummeted to 77 pounds (she is 5-feet, 5-inches tall) and she has recently been hospitalized a number of times for pneumonia.

"She is the exact opposite of someone you'd expect to be involved in something like this. She's a very gentle, soft person. She wouldn't hurt a fly. I don't believe she's ever raised her voice before," Millon said, adding Granger was not known to drink prior to the accident.

In the written account, Granger referred to the two months she spent at Huron Valley Women's Facility in Ypsilanti immediately after sentencing in March 1989.

"Nothing in my life prepared me for this total isolation from normal living, deprivation of movement and absolute invasion of privacy. Most devastating is separation from my family. I live in mortal terror."

A Sobering Look

Excuses don't fly compared to cost

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

The next time you've tipped a few too many, you'll probably ask yourself—as you stagger for the door—“Am I safe to drive home?”

For many people, the answer is “No”—but they'll drive home anyway. There are as many excuses for driving drunk as there are drinks in a bartender's manual.

Drink hinders our capacity to reason, so it is understandable that you would have a hard time weighing the consequences of your actions. It's understandable that you wouldn't consider that you could be taken to jail. It's understandable that you wouldn't consider that you could be injured or killed. Or could injure or kill someone else.

Understandable, yes. But accidents involving drunken drivers will claim upwards of 25,000 lives this year, injure about 500,000 and cause billions of dollars in property damage, according to the U.S. Department of Transportation.

With those figures in mind, take the time now, while you are sober, to consider the consequences of driving drunk, and to debunk some of the lame excuses.

The next time you think it's too late to call someone for a ride home

Consider that the jails are open all night long, and they are happy to accommodate you. Everyone who is caught driving with a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) over .10 percent can be arrested for operating under the influence of liquor (OUIL). Everyone arrested for OUIL is taken to jail. Everyone.

The police are required to keep you in jail until you've sobered up. The National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information says that alcohol is eliminated from your system at the rate of about .015 percent per hour.

According to the U.S. Department of Health, a 150-pound person would need just five drinks in one hour to reach a BAC of .10, but it would take three hours for that person's BAC to drop to .05. It would take six hours for the alcohol to be completely eliminated from his or her system.

Body weight and degree of intoxication will change the length of time it takes to sober up, but generally you're looking at an overnight stay behind bars.

Another thing to consider: Hospitals and morgues also offer 24-hour services.

The next time you think taking a cab home would cost too much...

Consider the cost of being caught driving drunk. According to 35th District Court Judge John McDonald, if your BAC is over .10, you can be found guilty of either OUIL or unlawful blood alcohol level (UBAL). The distinction between the two offenses has only to do with how your drunkenness was measured when you were caught.

For your third drunken driving offense (within 10 years), the state stops toying with you. A third offense is a felony.

Even on your first offense, you don't get off very lightly. The fine will be a minimum of $100, and up to $500, plus court costs. You'll be screened for a possible dependency problem, and you must pay for the screening, which runs around $65. The court may require education or treatment. You'll pay for that, too.

You can do up to 90 days in jail. That's three months without collecting a paycheck. If you get off with probation, you pay a fee for that as well.

You'll be required to perform up to 12 hours of community service.

You'll get six points on your driver's license, which will naturally drive up your insurance rates

When Lt. Gary Batzloff asks for a license, he's already checking for smell of intoxicants or put you in an assigned-risk situation.

Your driver's license will be suspended for six months to two years, but you may be eligible for a restricted license which will allow you to go to work, school and your treatment program.

“We're pretty restrictive,” said Judge McDonald, “but we feel people shouldn't lose their jobs over this.”

You can bring in a lawyer to plead your case. Novi attorney Ronald DeLamielleur said most charge in the neighborhood of $450 to $650 to plead a first-offense case. Cases involving injury, death, property damage, and second or third offenses will run up the tab significantly.

If your OUIL/UBAL charge is a second offense (within seven years), things get a little tougher. Your prison sentence could be up to one year, your fine can go as high as $1,000, and your license can be revoked (with no restrictions allowed) for one to two years (one year is the minimum).

All the other penalties of a first offense — the community service, screening — are applied in a second offense as well.

For your third drunken driving offense (within 10 years), the state stops toying with you. A third offense is a felony. You are sent to prison for one to five years, your driver's license is revoked for a minimum of five years, and your fine can be anywhere from $500-$5,000.

Should you be involved in an accident while drinking and driving, the costs of your crime run much higher — although you won't necessarily foot the bill. Consider the societal cost of a motor vehicle accident involving a drunk. There are the costs of the police and ambulance responses, hospital stays, treatment, therapy and, in cases of death, survivor benefits.

Attorney: Jail laws trivialize offense

By JANICE BRUNSON
Staff Writer

Mandatory, short-term incarceration as a mass response to drunken driving is an ineffective deterrent, according to an authority on the subject, attorney James Jacobs of the Center for Research in Crime and Justice, New York University of Law.

Mandatory short sentences of 24 to 48 hours serve to trivialize the offense and suggests drunk driving is not really a true crime and need not be treated seriously, Jacobs wrote in a paper entitled “Researching and Conceptualizing Drunk Driving: An Invitation to Criminologists and Criminal Law Scholars.”

In addition, the failure of most existing law to require any proof of culpability is incompatible with routine incarceration, Jacobs added.

“Since drunk driving spans such a vast range of behavior, differentiations need to be made at the sentencing stage, and a great deal of judicial flexibility is necessary.”

Jacobs suggests an alternative. “The basic response to drunk driving should be probation, conditional on six months of home detention on weekend evenings. Since drunk driving is by far most frequent during weekend night hours, keeping drunk drivers at home during this period would have a strong incapacitative effect.”

Home confinement is “appropriate punishment because ‘practically everyone, especially younger bar hoppers and party goers, are substantially inconvenienced by being confined on Friday and Saturday nights for six months.’”

Unlike license suspension or revocation, home detention does not threaten economic and social survival.

To ensure enforcement of home confinement, Jacobs suggests the use of electronic monitors.

Don't buy the myths on drunk driving

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Sucking on a penny will not influence the results of a Breathalyzer, nor will eating an onion, or belching.

Those are all myths, but people try them anyway when given the test which determines blood alcohol level, said Charles Snider, Northville Township police chief.

Although most tricks intended to influence a Breathalyzer test do not work, expect to be watched closely for 20 minutes prior to taking the test if you are ever brought into a police station for driving drunk, Snider said.

“Every benefit of the doubt goes to the defendant,” he said.

People often find themselves in a police station because they believed an alcohol-related myth.

The biggest myth says eating before drinking alcohol will prevent a person from getting drunk or may make him or her less drunk, Snider said.

With Thanksgiving approaching, people need to understand that eating will slow the process of alcohol becoming absorbed into the blood stream, but not stop it, he said.

“Dad figures if he eats lots of turkey and lots of mashed potatoes he's not going to get drunk,” Snider said.

Actually, if dad does eat a lot of food at Thanksgiving he will reach his peak alcohol level 90 minutes after finishing his last drink, which may well be on the drive home, Snider said.

Snider recommends drinking early at a family gathering like Thanksgiving, if at all, and forgetting about drinking after the meal.

The same theory applies to people who stay home at night and drink after dinner. The alcohol absorption rate is slowed by sleeping as well as eating and a heavy evening drinker could be legally intoxicated on the drive to work the next morning.

“Your alcoholics who sit up and watch the late show and drink five beers are literally probably at .15 when they're working at the factory the next day,” Snider said.

At a .10 blood alcohol level a person is considered legally intox-cated. At a .08 blood alcohol level, a driver can be ticketed for impaired driving.

Another myth is that experienced drinkers can drink more than inexperienced drinkers and remain sober enough to drive.

With experience, drinkers develop a mental tolerance to alcohol, Snider said. But a person who has three drinks today will have the same blood alcohol level after having three drinks with five years of alcohol-drinking experience.

They will have less of a response to the alcohol, and may think it is affecting them less. But they will be equally as intoxicated in the eyes of the law.

“You can build up a tolerance to misbehaving,” Snider said.

But a tolerance to alcohol will not prevent physical reactions — like an increased blood alcohol level or slower response times — from occurring.

“You're really fooling yourself when you think you're a better drinker because you're older,” Snider said.

The myth that people can develop a tolerance to alcohol came from the days of yore when men sat around and drank out of goblets, Snider said. The “wimp” was the guy who fell off his seat after a few drinks.

“It's an old macho adage,” he said.

For teen-agers, the biggest myth is normal adolescent behavior includes getting drunk, said Charlie Stille, drug abuse coordinator and Students Against Driving Drunk sponsor at Northville High School.

“They think all kids do it, that ‘it's part of my rite of passage,’” Stille said. “I have serious concerns about that.”

As a drug abuse coordinator, Stille tries to help kids see that drinking alcohol is not normal adolescent behavior.

“Their bodies can't take it, and their minds can't take it,” he said. “They are going down the path of addiction when they start drinking, start smoking.”

“Not every kid that starts using is going to be a drug addict or alcoholic, but it puts it in motion.”

The myth that drinking alcohol is normal is something begun by parents who allow their children to have an occasional sip of beer or a small glass of wine at Christmas, Stille said.

Local pubs try to head off problems

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Whatever your favorite term for the condition — blotto, stiff, tanked, tipsy or soured — intoxication seems to become a national pastime during the holiday season.

And while many patrons of local pubs and office parties are doing their best to reach that euphoric state, their servers stay busy walking a fine line between the role of waiter and watchdog, keeping the customer happy while assuring that things don't get out of hand.

Waiters and waitresses at local bars have a variety of techniques to encourage responsible drinking and maintain public safety.

At O'Sheehan's Shamrock Cafe in Northville Township, the wait staff will serve free non-alcoholic beverages to a party's designated driver. The program is called “None For The Road.”

According to General Manager Dan Sheehan, few groups take advantage of the cafe's generosity.

“We don't really get heavy drinkers,” he added. Typical O'Sheehan's patrons usually have a little alcohol with their food, rather than the other way around.

The staff at O'Sheehan's also keeps a close eye on customers to make sure they have not had too much to drink, Sheehan said — either before coming into the cafe or while there. Warning signs include “if some guy stumbles to the bathroom or becomes loud,” he said, “but sometimes it's hard to tell.”

“If someone sits down and has six beers in an hour, now that's a big difference,” he said.

Sheehan said a manager will talk with members of a boisterous group to gauge their level of intoxication, and suggest they control their drinking before insisting that they stop.

The manager has called taxicabs for inebriated customers before. But he said he has also called the police when customers became dangerous to themselves or others.

The price for ignoring a patron's condition can be steep. Bar owners face fines of up to $1,000 and suspension or revocation of their licenses by the liquor control commission if their inebriated customers cause an accident, and wait staff face potential $500 fines or six-month jail terms for serving such customers.

SERVER
Starting Gate Saloon

Liability is a consideration, Sheehan said, but he insisted his main concern is for public safety: “I'm not going to sit here and serve people and have them get into an accident.”

A representative of the Starting Gate Saloon in Northville said wait staff must monitor the length of time between a customer's drinks. “You're only supposed to serve one drink an hour, one or two, but it depends on the person's size,” she said.

“My policy is just to cut people off when they've had enough,” she added.

When it comes time to get an intoxicated customer home, she said, “I've called a cab many times, and I've taken people home myself.”

Both bars participate in an Anheuser Busch-sponsored alcohol awareness program called TIPS (Training for Servers of Alcohol). The six-hour program is administered by trained staff in connection with local Anheuser Busch distributors, to educate wait staff to the warning signs of inebriation and tactics for cutting customers off.

The program includes skills training, role-playing, films and a test, and is required every three years. Bars with TIPS-trained staff can save on liability insurance premiums.

Bill Ventola, director of consumer education at Central Distributors in Romulus, runs TIPS training courses throughout Wayne County. “The main purpose of the class is not to teach servers how to cut people off, it's how to serve more responsibly,” he said. “The whole philosophy is to encourage responsible use of alcohol.”

A Sobering Look

Critics blast drunk driving reform plan

By JANICE BRUNSON
Staff Writer

On the eve of enacting tougher drunk driving laws in Michigan, critics suggest new laws are unnecessary, will not target repeat offenders who pose the greatest danger on the highways and may be unconstitutional.

The proposal, a reform package of five bills now under consideration by the state Senate, includes provisions that empower police to confiscate driving licenses prior to conviction and limits judicial discretion in sentencing.

Tougher laws are needed, according to Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, because "judges are not exacting middle-range punishments. This ups minimum sentences for a serious crime that should be treated more seriously. Drunk driving is not victimless."

Honigman is chairperson of the House committee that approved the package and sent it to the full House for final approval.

Birmingham attorney Robert Larin said existing laws are adequate and reform, if enacted as proposed, will result in a "tremendous opportunity for abuse."

Under the new law, motorists stopped for drunken driving must automatically submit to a breath test or lose their license on the spot, whether they are legally intoxicated or under the influence.

Breathalyzers, Larin said, are owned and certified by state police. Training to operate them is restricted by law to police officers. Although the tests are extremely sensitive, double testing for accuracy ceased two years ago.

Such a law "lets the officer make two judgments that the defendant is drunk and there is no right to refuse a breath test," said Livonia district judge Robert Brzezinski.

"These are points to be decided by a judge and jury. That's why we're elected, to determine the facts and find the truth. Defendants have a right to explain their side.

"Everybody's against drunk driving. But let judges do their work. If the Legislature wants to take over, they should do it, but then don't expect us to rubber stamp everything they enact," Brzezinski added.

Farmington Hills district judge Frederick Harris said that if enacted, "the constitutionality of the law will ultimately have to be decided in the courts. I'm sure it will be tested."

Both judges said present sentences for drunk driving offenses reflect judicial discretion and are based upon sentencing guidelines established in Michigan's circuit and recorder courts.

New reform legislation would eliminate judicial discretion in sentencing, including the important area of restricting driving privileges. The proposal calls for an automatic 30-day suspension. (It also calls for a mandatory 48 hours in jail and 10 days community service for second convictions, up to 15 years in prison in the event of a death as the result of an accident, and up to five years in prison in the event of incapacitating injury.)

Reform critics say automatic suspensions of 30 days will create a new category of unlicensed motorists. Those favoring reform say the law will reverse the tendency by judges to impose lax sentences.

Sentencing trends since 1987, however, are toward harsher sentences, based on figures maintained by Michigan State Police.

During the past three years, the average fine for drunk driving has gone from no fine in 1987 to $400 in 1989. In the same period, the average fine for impaired driving has nearly doubled, from $300 to $500.

In addition, full or partial suspension of driving privileges remained steady from 1987 to 1989 — 180 days for drunk driving and 90 days for impaired driving.

In an analysis of drunk driving in Michigan, Marilyn Peterson of the House Legislative Analysis Section said figures in recent years indicate fewer arrests for drunk driving and declining traffic-related death rates. Still, alcohol continues to figure in half of all fatal accidents, drinking either by the driver or a passenger, she said.

Opponents and proponents of reform agree harsher laws are unlikely to affect repeat offenders.

"The real deterrent is the likelihood of getting caught," Honigman said, but most motorists who drink and drive are not caught.

Attorney James Jacobs of the New York University School of Law, an authority on the subject, disagreed.

"Drunk driving is the most commonly prosecuted offense in our lower criminal courts."

"Drunk drivers now constitute the largest offender category on probation. Under mandatory sentencing laws, they are also becoming an increasing presence in jails and state prisons."

MADD chapter honors local police officer

Northville police officer David DeLauder was honored recently by the local chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD).

On Nov. 8, the Oakland County chapter of MADD held its third annual Lifesavers award banquet at the Glen Oaks Country Club in Farmington Hills. Forty officers, each selected by their individual departments for their dedication and expertise in combating drunk driving, received a plaque and a Lifesavers lapel pin to commemorate their selection.

Many of the chiefs commented on the positive effects these officers have had within their departments as well, citing their leadership by example. Chapter president Greg Bien said that several officers were selected for the third time, giving them the status of "habitual attenders" to the annual awards dinner. Others indicated that in their role as field training officers they are emphasizing the importance of drunk driving deterrence.

Arrests for drunk driving have declined statewide, but arrests in Oakland County have risen significantly in the last two years because of the commitment, perseverance and professionalism of the road patrol officers in Oakland County.

lock and Kathleen Otton opposing it. Commissioners David Totten and Don McCulloch were absent.

Following the motion, architect Greg Presley presented his plan for a 60-foot iron-and-glass pedestrian bridge between MainCentre and a re-configured CadyCere parking deck (see related story, page 13-A). The bridge design already has been approved by the city council and historic district commission.

While commissioners commended Presley's plan for its functional deck design, Ball argued against the bridge itself and the process through which a Center Street bridge had been proposed.

"The interesting thing to me is that not once, to my knowledge, has any hard evidence been provided that the bridge is a necessity. We have (as a city) approved something that I don't think properly solves the problem," Ball said.

"I think the process got off center when we approved the (MainCentre) building without also approving the parking deck. . . Early on, we cut a deal with the developer: 'Yeah, you can have a pedestrian bridge, or if you can't have a bridge you can have carports.'"

Ball compared Singh Development's argument that the bridge is needed to make its luxury apartments financially successful to Comerica Bank's argument to the city of Detroit that the bank needs a new skyscraper on the site of the Ford Auditorium remain in Detroit.

Both Ball and Gazlay praised Presley's design, but said they were opposed to any bridge over Center Street. "I think it's going to be out of place. I think it's wrong. I think it's a bad decision," said Ball. "Nice-looking bridge, though."

Gazlay agreed, saying, "It's a beautiful structure, but it just doesn't belong. I don't think we owe any developer air rights over public streets."

When it came time for a vote, Gazlay moved to reject the concept of a bridge crossing Center Street. His motion passed 4-3, with he, Ball, Wilhelm and Rolland Stapleton approving it. Commissioners Mielock, Otton and Hardin opposed the rejection of the idea.

City Manager Steven Walters called the vote "political" in nature. "I think part of the problem in the discussion is that for political reasons, some of you voted to separate the bridge and deck design," he said.

Gazlay also took issue with the way in which the latest plan was presented to the commission. "I don't understand what we're voting on," he said.

confusion over the site's property description. According to township engineer Donald Weaver, of Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May, the parcel boundary does not reflect a recently approved land split on the site.

In a letter to the planning commission, Weaver said, "It will be necessary to revise the land division to reflect this parcel reconfiguration."

Whitman called the land division "a formality."

"I can't see why that should be a problem," he said. "It's just a mechanical thing."

A special meeting of the planning commission may be requested by a developer for a $500 fee, a township planning department spokesperson said. The developer must also pay site plan submittal fee, which covers consultant fees.

New Cady Street parking deck plan fares better than bridge

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Architect Greg Presley's latest design for the proposed Cady Street parking deck found much more favor at the planning commission last week than his pedestrian bridge proposal.

The commission unanimously approved the design.

The new deck plan is a floor lower than the previous design, and a secure parking area for MainCentre residents extends west nearly to Center Street. Two brick towers would rise from the extended deck, one of which would house an elevator to the pedestrian bridge.

Presley's concept also includes conceptual drawings of a proposed CadyCentre development, which would be built over the western extension of the deck. The towers would be incorporated into the new development.

"There's an attempt here to keep within a scale of the current buildings on Main and Center streets," Presley told the commission.

"My guess is that this deck is going to be less expensive than the last design," he added. "And I think that it does accomplish the goal that the city has for providing adequate parking into the future, while providing close-in parking."

The commissioners agreed and approved the deck by a 7-0 vote, but not without some comments.

Commissioner Steve Ball noted that the western extension of the deck would be more visible from Center Street than the original proposed deck. "I'm concerned that for an unspecified number of years, we're going to have a temporary view of the parking structure. We really have no guarantee that the building will get built . . . It's just more pretty pictures."

"I think there needs to be a design effort made on the parking structure equal to what was put into the circulation towers . . . It may be there for a while," he said.

But Chairperson John Hardin disagreed. "I think this at least is a completed, neat-looking design that looks like part of the community as a whole. It beats a vacant lot."

The commissioners asked for further design development of the west side of the deck along Cady, which consists of little more than a low brick wall at the north end of the property and shows a half-buried building as the land drops off to the south.

Much of the MainCentre resident parking area will be underground.

School board comes under fire

By MIKE TYREE
and SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writers

One or more vandals made sure everyone was awake at Monday's Northville Board of Education meeting.

Shots from a BB or pellet gun hit two double-paned windows located directly behind the board members at 8:10 p.m. — interrupting the meeting held in the Winchester Elementary School library. Noise from the shots was ignored until Superintendent George Bell stopped the meeting to announce that the windows were broken.

"There's someone out there with a pellet gun that shot out two of these windows," Bell said. "It's going to cost us $350 apiece."

Police estimated the total damage at $300.

Director of Instructional Services William Hamilton called the police while a frustrated Bell brought the meeting back to order.

"If you moved out here to get away from vandalism, you didn't move quite far enough," Bell said. "There's vandalism out here too."

At Bell's suggestion, board members moved their table a few feet forward to get away from the cracked windows.

Police returned to the school at 9 p.m. after a Winchester custodian reported that the passenger's side rear tire on his 1989 Ford Ranger had been slashed.

Police reports say the 1.5-inch puncture in the tire was made by a knife-type object.

Police have no suspects in the incidents.

Mustang of the Week

By LAURA WHITELEY
Special Writer

Despite a heartbreaking 14-7 loss to Brother Rice in the final 33 seconds of the Class A semifinal game, the 1990 football team has made Northville history. For their spirit, dedication, and effort, the entire team has been named "Mustang of the Week."

This year marked the first time Northville qualified for the state playoffs. To many, that in itself was reason enough to be proud. But the players had a dream, and they wanted more. Taking things one game at a time, they attempted to achieve greatness, only to be slapped in the face as they fell just one game short.

Although they may not yet realize it, while the sting of a dream snatched away is fresh in their minds, the 1990 Mustang football team did achieve that greatness for which they were striving. Their outstanding efforts stirred up a feeling in the community which had not been experienced for years, if ever. Fans showed up at the semifinal game proudly wearing letter jackets with graduating years dating back to the 1970s.

The pom-pom squad nominated the team for this award, stating, "In all the years Northville High School has hosted a football team, no single team has played as hard and showed such dedication as the players we're so proud of this season." This year's team will always be remembered as the first ever to appear in the state playoffs. For this, "Mustang of the Week" honors are in order.

The Mustang of the Week is named by the School Climate Committee at Northville High School. Laura Whiteley, who writes this feature, is a student at the high school.

Pistol-packing driver on trial

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

An Inkster man arrested in Northville on a felony concealed weapon charge will be arraigned Dec. 10 at Wayne County Circuit Court.

Elvis Leonard Pressley, 23, waived examination Monday at 35th District Court in Plymouth and was bound over to circuit court.

Pressley was charged with carrying a concealed weapon Oct. 29 after city and township police allegedly found a loaded 9-mm. semi-automatic handgun in a 1990 BMW he was driving.

Pressley is free on $500 cash bond.

Township police allege that Pressley was driving northbound on Northville Road near the Seven Mile intersection at approximately 7 p.m. Oct. 29 when he passed a township patrol car at 40 mph in a 35 mph zone. Township police followed the vehicle into Northville city limits and say Pressley continued to exceed speed limits.

Police stopped Pressley's vehicle near the south corner of Griswold and Main. A computer check of the driver showed Pressley was wanted by Inkster police on an outstanding misdemeanor warrant.

Pressley was arrested and a township police reserve officer and a city police officer searched his vehicle. The handgun was found in a pouch on the rear of the passenger seat, police said.

Police also said the gun was reported stolen from a River Rouge residence.

City police have jurisdiction in the case because the arrest occurred within the city limits.

Pressley reportedly told police he was en route to Northville Downs and was carrying the gun because he regularly wins large amounts of cash at the racetrack.

He also reportedly told police he paid an unknown man $30 for the weapon. He allegedly told police he bought the gun near a street corner in Inkster.

Furnace fumes cause health problem

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Faulty combustion in a gas furnace recently gave two area residents carbon monoxide poisoning.

Sally DeSantis, a resident of Country Place Condominiums, woke up that morning feeling nauseous and with a headache that felt like her head "was going to explode."

While her husband, Carmen, was in the basement checking the furnace, DeSantis walked outside and passed out. On returning to the house, she fainted for a second time.

The Novi Fire Department was called to their home at 42171 Roscommon at 8:52 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 18. Country Place is on Eight Mile Road west of Meadowbrook.

The fire department administered oxygen to the couple, who were taken to Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills. They remained there under treatment until 1:30 p.m.

"It was very frightening. Everybody's fine now. I'm a little sore because I fell outside and hurt my shoulder. We're alive and that's what counts," DeSantis said.

"When carbon monoxide levels in your blood are over 50 (parts per million), it hits your brain and your heart. Mine was over 30."

Carbon monoxide is an odorless, colorless, deadly gas formed by the incomplete combustion of gas or carbon.

Firefighters detected strong combustible-type fumes in the condominium and evacuated the DeSantis to a neighbor's home. Using breathing apparatus, the firefighters ventilated the house and turned off the power and gas.

Consumers Power was called to the scene and later confirmed that combustion problems in the furnace had caused both the fumes and the carbon monoxide leak.

"We would urge people, especially if they haven't done it in a couple of years, to have their furnaces checked. If there's any doubt at all, get someone to check it," Fire Chief Arthur Lenaghan said.

"This is the first time in some time that we've had heavy leaking of carbon monoxide in a house. It's certainly nothing to fool with."

DeSantis had nothing but praise for the Novi police and fire departments.

The family's furnace remained off Sunday night and was fixed Monday, she said. "We had electric blankets, so we survived."

City seeks terms to acquire Ford Valve Plant

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville City officials have asked the Ford Motor Co. for potential terms of acquisition for the Ford Valve Plant.

The council notified Concerned Residents of Northville members of the new talks at last week's council meeting. The local group had urged the council to purchase a one-year option on the plant rather than let it go to a private developer.

City Manager Steven Walters said that he, Mayor Chris Johnson and Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers met with Ford representative Ted Fox last month to seek terms of acquisition (see related story). "We're expecting a response by December," Walters said.

Walters said the city would consider a "range of alternatives," including payments over a period of time, a partial donation, and purchasing an option to buy the property.

"A donation of at least part of the property to the city would also present certain tax advantages to Ford," Walters added.

Mayor Chris Johnson cautioned audience members not to be too enthusiastic about the meeting. "I think one thing everyone should be clear on (is that) Ford was not talking about a donation of the (entire) property, he was talking about terms," he said.

When asked about other parties interested in the property, Walters said, "There are two or three developers talking to Ford." He said city officials have not been told the identity of the developers.

But Walters said those negotiations are still preliminary. "Ford doesn't appear to be actively in negotiations with another developer at this point."

Ayers described the atmosphere at the meeting with Fox as "very positive."

"Mr. Fox seemed to be very aware of the community's concern over the property," she said. "It seemed as though the attitude had maybe changed a little bit and that Ford was maybe ready to get down to business a little bit now that their environmental problems have been alleviated."

Earlier this year, the company was required to remove fuel tanks and oil-contaminated soil from the site before selling the property.

But Concerned Residents of Northville member David Totten continued to urge the city to obtain an option on the property, "to lock out other potential buyers."

Totten asked how critical the taxes from the property are to the city, and Walters estimated the amount at about $15,000 yearly. "It's not an earth-shaking issue," Walters said. Three times that amount in property taxes goes to the Northville Public Schools, Walters added, but that is still a small fraction of the school system's overall budget.

"The other side of it is that if it goes into private development, there will be a significant amount of taxes assessed," Walters said.

City officials and residents are anxious to gain some control over redevelopment of the site and retain the right to use Ford Field as a recreational field. The city has held a lease on Ford Field since 1946, but the field is still part of the Ford-owned property.

The council agreed that letters

The ducks and geese are currently the only inhabitants of the old Ford plant from community groups supporting the city's attempt to acquire the property would help the city's cause. Johnson suggested that such letters be addressed to him.

Council Member Dewey Gardner worried aloud that the Ford property still might be sold, but Johnson downplayed that fear.

"I'm sure it's clear to Mr. Fox from our last meeting that we want to move as fast as we (Ford) will move," Johnson said. "If he's dealing with us in good faith, and I'm sure he is, he will come back to us first."

Talks held after Haller proposal

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The timing of recent discussions between Northville City officials and a Ford Motor Co. representative over acquisition of the Ford Valve Plant was no coincidence.

City officials were waiting until after Sept. 28, the date that an agreement expired between Northville Township and former resident Frieda Haller for a new community library site in the township.

Haller's September 1989 offer to the township of 22 acres of land at corner of Six Mile and Sheldon overshadowed a previous proposal to redevelop the Ford Plant as a community library.

But the Haller proposal for a 44,800-square-foot, $6.9-million library fell through in May when township voters rejected the millage needed for its construction and operation. Township officials had a year to gain voter approval for the project, but chose not to hold another election before their agreement with Haller expired.

The Ford plant had been advanced as a potential library site in 1989 in a community-sponsored study by Quinn Evans Architects of Ann Arbor. That study found the plant suitable for a 22,500-square-foot facility and either a small retail mall or school services center.

The Quinn Evans study estimated the cost of such a redevelopment at between $5.5 million and $7.4 million, not including the cost of obtaining the property.

Part of that cost would be recouped from retailers under the retail mall plan.

City officials maintain that the city cannot afford to develop a library at the site without financial participation from the township, but the two municipalities have not discussed the proposal.

Said Mayor Chris Johnson, "We haven't sat down with the township yet to say, 'Let's put an expanded library here,' because there isn't agreement yet that the library should be expanded."

Residents likely will be asked whether the community needs an expanded library in a forthcoming city/township questionnaire.

Mill Race Matters

Mill Race Village has closed for the season, but activities at the village go on year-round.

Most Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday mornings the Stone Gang gathers at the Cady Inn, working to get the building ready for regular use. Work has progressed well and hopes of a spring opening seem realistic.

Saturday also finds a flurry of activity at the Interurban station, where Mark Cryderman hopes to have a floor in before Christmas. The Archives Committee continues to meet Wednesday mornings and has now begun cataloging the historical society's photo and paper memorabilia.

The final 1990 issue of the Mill Race Quarterly is just about to go to the printer, so members can expect it soon. It will feature a photo collage of 1990 happenings of the Northville Historical Society. During the summer sketches of Mill Race buildings were begun; that series may conclude next week.

The society board has plans under way to finish relandscaping the village and to include new signs to make the buildings more informational to visitors when the village is closed.

Some of the historical society's publications may make good stocking stuffers. Northville — The First 100 Years, Early Northville, and Step by Step are all available at a number of locations around town (Painter's Place, Chamber of Commerce office, Bookstall on the Main, Atchison House, and the Mill Race office).

More support for police merger

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The city council agreed last week to the formation of a commission to study consolidation of police services, after receiving a report on the proposal from City Police Chief Rod Cannon.

The commission will be divided equally between the city and township, and be made up of representatives from administration, legal, police and fire departments.

Cannon said the proposal has been the focus of discussions between himself and Township Police Chief Chip Snider. "We've discussed this in several meetings and support the concept," he said.

He said the proposal is supported by other township officials as well. "They're very positive with this, and very pleased to be working with us," he said. "Economically, it makes a lot of sense."

City officials sounded equally enthusiastic. "The basic thrust of this proposal is very solid," said Mayor Chris Johnson. "There are a lot of ways to save the taxpayers a lot of money. . . I'm strongly in favor of going forward with the proposal and working out the details."

Those details include the effect on police staff, the location of consolidated police services, and the ultimate extent of consolidation. Initially, police plan to combine radio dispatching services at the township police station.

Cannon's report recommended that the public be surveyed to determine whether residents would support the closure of the city police station after normal business hours.

The City of Ferrysburg and Village of Spring Lake in Ottawa County agreed to shared services similar to those proposed in Northville, according to Cannon's report, and their inter-local agreement could serve as a model for the local consolidation.

Detroit Edison hosts high school tour

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Some Northville High School business students got a taste of the working world during a recent visit to Detroit Edison.

Seven students in a business class taught by Northville teacher Gary Emerson visited the downtown Detroit headquarters of the power company.

The students, joined by representatives from high schools in Detroit, Harper Woods, St. Clair Shores, Clarkston, Farmington Hills, Brighton, Madison Heights and New Baltimore, rubbed elbows with top executives from the company who told them what the working world is like.

"In high school, you have this vision, like most kids, that dad drives off in the morning, but you don't know if he does anything or what he does downtown," Emerson said.

They began the half-day seminar with a welcome from Edison's vice president of public affairs, Saul Waldman, and spent the time with others who were at least as high ranking as Waldman.

"Most of the people there were vice presidents or upwards," Emerson said.

The Northville students who attended were selected on academic achievement and grade level.

The program was designed to provide an opportunity for students to experience the business world firsthand, and to see how business interacts with the community and the world economy, according to a press release.

Emerson said the programs also help business keep an eye on possible future employees.

A highlight of the program was a talk about employee participation, Emerson said.

And in light of Detroit's image problem, Emerson said, it was nice to see people working happily for a Detroit company.

"Everybody there was very pro-Detroit," Emerson said. "They did things for the company."

Developer meets chamber

Local developer R.A. DeMatia, the man who will develop the former Wayne County land in the southern part of Northville Township, will offer a special presentation to the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce next week.

DeMatia, a Northville Township resident, will address the impact of his "Huntington Falls" development on the Northville business community. The 930-acre plan includes industrial, residential and recreational development.

The breakfast meeting will take place at MacKinnon's restaurant at 7:30 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 6. The cost is $10 for chamber members and $13 for non-members. The cost includes eggs Benedict, fruit, muffins, juice and coffee.

Reservations may be made by calling 349-7640. Reservations should be made by Monday, Dec. 3.

School district wary of Headlee's plan

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Homeowners could see a 20-percent cut in property taxes without hurting local school districts if a Headlee Tax Cut Initiative is successful, said Richard Headlee, chairperson of Taxpayers United.

But Northville administrators are not so sure they can trust the state to reimburse the district for revenue lost through the tax cut.

Taxpayers United is leading a drive for the tax cut which Headlee said will not hurt school districts like Northville that rely mainly on revenue gained from millages.

The State Board of Canvassers must approve 191,726 petition signatures for the initiative to be sent to the Legislature. The board this week found 39,829 signatures invalid leaving the group 7,507 signatures short. Taxpayers United has 60 days to show the rejected signatures are valid.

If approved, the petition will be sent to the Legislature where they could adopt the measure into law.

If the Legislature does not approve the proposal it will go on the November 1991 ballot for all state voters. The Legislature also could decide to have the issue decided earlier in a special election.

"The schools allowed themselves to be used as scapegoats by the State Board of Education, the Legislature and governor . . . The state doesn't care a hoot about it at this point."

RICHARD HEADLEE
Taxpayers United

For property-rich school districts like Northville the state will be required to pay for funds the districts will lose from decreasing revenues, Headlee said.

"The state has to make it up dollar for dollar," he said in a telephone interview last week.

But in the wake of last summer's recapture of $72 million from out-of-formula school districts, some district officials are afraid that with more control over school funding the state will continue to decrease revenues to wealthy school districts in an attempt to equalize state funding.

"How are we going to stop them? What power do we have?" asked Northville Superintendent George Bell.

Headlee blames school districts for their current predicament concerning the recapture of revenue from out-of-formula school districts.

"If the school districts had not been playing games to circumvent the Headlee Amendment of 1978 of allowing the state to divert money they wouldn't be in this mess," Headlee said.

Local school districts allowed the state to recapture money for categorical aid for years, Headlee said, and now they are paying the price.

In return for allowing the state to recapture funds in violation of the Headlee Amendment, the State Board of Education helped school districts pass Headlee Amendment overrides, Headlee said.

"The schools allowed themselves to be used as scapegoats by the State Board of Education, the Legislature and governor," he said. "The state doesn't care a hoot about it at this point."

But under the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative the state will have to make up local revenues lost by the property tax cut, and the question of where the money will come from arises.

Headlee said the money has already been raised through the lottery and sales taxes, and it is the state's responsibility to find the money and reallocate it.

Answering the question of where the state will get the money should be left to the state, Headlee said.

But Bell is asking that question because he said he is worried that the state will not be able to reimburse local school districts and Northville will be left without revenue from millages or the state.

"I don't support Headlee," Bell said.

Richard Headlee

RETIREMENT COMMUNITY OPTIONS CONFERENCE

Never before held in the state of Michigan, the nationally popular preretirement retirement living conference will be presented by the author of RETIREMENT LIVING ALTERNATIVES USA: THE INSIDE STORY, H. Wilson Worley. Mr. Worley's book (a $9.95 value) will be presented without charge to each household along with other copyrighted material.

Thousands have highly acclaimed this conference for its dissemination of information not available from any other source. During the two-hour session, participants will review full-service preretirement and retirement living concepts through a color slide series of communities from the east to the west coast.

In addition, a new and different concept in active retirement/preretirement living being considered for Farmington Hills will be discussed to determine its potential for active adults desiring a full menu of services from home and yard maintenance to security and health/fitness programs. The concept offers options not found in lifecare, entrance fee, expensive rental packages, or resort communities. Each participant will be asked to complete a simple written survey to provide direction for the development and the public's acceptance of this community.

The conference is free of charge. However, seating is limited and will be by reservation only.

Please call Nancy Fees (313) 442-9860, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. or write for reservations for you and your friends to RETIREMENT CONFERENCE, 30405 Folsom Road, Farmington Hills, MI 48336 for one of the times and locations below:

School districts haunted by Michigan Model

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Northville is not the first school district whose residents have had to struggle through conflicts over the value of the Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education.

School officials in White Pigeon, a school district in southwestern Michigan, began to hear complaints about the controversial Michigan health model a little over a year ago, which was about two years after the model was in place in the district.

The Michigan health model is a controversial lesson plan used in many of the state's school districts to fill a state requirement that health education be taught.

Unlike Northville, where the model is used in kindergarten through the eighth grade, in White Pigeon, the model is used in kindergarten through the third grade.

White Pigeon school board president and 29-year board member Ted Krull blames people from other parts of the state for starting the conflict in White Pigeon.

"We had some outside people, Mr. (Bob) Lemieux and others, come into White Pigeon, and they told people things about (the Michigan model) that just weren't true," Krull said.

Bob Lemieux, founder of the DADS Foundation, spoke against the health model in Northville in early November.

But a White Pigeon opponent of the model said no one from the outside needed to convince her the model was dangerous.

"They never gave us any credit for having any brains. I am the mother of seven children," Terry Wilkins said.

"When I read the Michigan Model I thought, 'This is wrong.' A lot of moms and dads understand that."

"What I did had nothing to do with the DADS Foundation and Bob Lemieux."

Wilkins said she would have voiced her opposition to the model earlier had she not been too busy with her recently opened business in White Pigeon.

She said she has had concerns about the model since 1986.

Krull said opponents of the model use scare tactics to get concerned parents on their side.

"Their fear is that there is somebody out there gathering all this information," Krull said.

"When the kids talk, they're afraid somebody is putting everything the kids say in some computer bank in Iowa."

But it is not fear they played on in White Pigeon, but the truth, Wilkins said.

"If the truth comes out there's no way the state can win," she said. "We had learned too much to let it drop."

Every district in St. Joseph County uses the Michigan model, Krull said, but White Pigeon was singled out for attack because of recent school-related conflicts that had already divided the people.

"White Pigeon was a prime school district because there was some unrest," Krull said. "They did their homework, but they didn't know how strong the people were, or that they would find out the truth."

The recent controversies in the district kept opponents of the model from immediately pursuing a lawsuit and recall election against the district and board members.

"I did not want to open this up in the community because I thought it would just add to the negativity," Wilkins said.

But her personal beliefs about the model lead her to pursue the issue, and at great personal expense.

"Parents had to choose if they wanted to keep their friends," she said. "Do you remain friends with those that would oppose you or do you fight for your children and their minds?"

"We have two businesses in White Pigeon, and we've laid these businesses on the line for what we think is right."

A recall attempt directed at Board of Education members was unsuccessful.

"They all kept their seats," Wilkins said. "We were so desperate; it was really hard."

"Who the heck wants all that hassle?"

People on both sides of the issue have been affected by the controversy, Krull said.

"A lot of the town and the whole school district got involved," Krull said.

The Michigan model has survived intact in White Pigeon, but the lawsuit against the district — naming the superintendent, board members and the state Superintendent of Public Instruction Don Bemis — expected to be heard in April could change all that.

"I'm very, very, very hopeful," Wilkins said. "It appears the judge down here is interested in finding out about the model."

Krull said he expects the plaintiffs in the case, the parents against the model, to allow the lawsuit to remain in the courts for as long as possible.

"They're dragging it out to intimidate other school districts so they can say that this might happen to them," he said.

The lawsuit, Krull said, is an example of people with no personal stake in the schools becoming involved in the controversy.

"The original lawsuit only had one parent with a student in the Michigan model," Krull said. "It should be pointed out that a lot of the parents don't even have students in school."

For those in Northville who are still unsure about how they feel when it comes to the Michigan model, Krull suggests they read the health model manuals and make the decision for themselves.

The Northville school district has made the manuals available for overnight check-out from the middle and elementary schools.

School district wary of Headlee's plan

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Homeowners could see a 20-percent cut in property taxes without hurting local school districts if a Headlee Tax Cut Initiative is successful, said Richard Headlee, chairperson of Taxpayers United.

But Northville administrators are not so sure they can trust the state to reimburse the district for revenue lost through the tax cut.

Taxpayers United is leading a drive for the tax cut which Headlee said will not hurt school districts like Northville that rely mainly on revenue gained from millages.

The State Board of Canvassers must approve 191,726 petition signatures for the initiative to be sent to the Legislature. The board this week found 39,829 signatures invalid leaving the group 7,507 signatures short. Taxpayers United has 60 days to show the rejected signatures are valid.

If approved, the petition will be sent to the Legislature where they could adopt the measure into law.

If the Legislature does not approve the proposal it will go on the November 1991 ballot for all state voters. The Legislature also could decide to have the issue decided earlier in a special election.

"The schools allowed themselves to be used as scapegoats by the State Board of Education, the Legislature and governor . . . The state doesn't care a hoot about it at this point."

RICHARD HEADLEE
Taxpayers United

For property-rich school districts like Northville the state will be required to pay for funds the districts will lose from decreasing revenues, Headlee said.

"The state has to make it up dollar for dollar," he said in a telephone interview last week.

But in the wake of last summer's recapture of $72 million from out-of-formula school districts, some district officials are afraid that with more control over school funding the state will continue to decrease revenues to wealthy school districts in an attempt to equalize state funding.

"How are we going to stop them? What power do we have?" asked Northville Superintendent George Bell.

Headlee blames school districts for their current predicament concerning the recapture of revenue from out-of-formula school districts.

"If the school districts had not been playing games to circumvent the Headlee Amendment of 1978 of allowing the state to divert money they wouldn't be in this mess," Headlee said.

Local school districts allowed the state to recapture money for categorical aid for years, Headlee said, and now they are paying the price.

In return for allowing the state to recapture funds in violation of the Headlee Amendment, the State Board of Education helped school districts pass Headlee Amendment overrides, Headlee said.

"The schools allowed themselves to be used as scapegoats by the State Board of Education, the Legislature and governor," he said. "The state doesn't care a hoot about it at this point."

But under the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative the state will have to make up local revenues lost by the property tax cut, and the question of where the money will come from arises.

Headlee said the money has already been raised through the lottery and sales taxes, and it is the state's responsibility to find the money and reallocate it.

Answering the question of where the state will get the money should be left to the state, Headlee said.

But Bell is asking that question because he said he is worried that the state will not be able to reimburse local school districts and Northville will be left without revenue from millages or the state.

"I don't support Headlee," Bell said.

RETIREMENT COMMUNITY OPTIONS CONFERENCE

Never before held in the state of Michigan, the nationally popular preretirement/retirement living conference will be presented by the author of RETIREMENT LIVING ALTERNATIVES USA: THE INSIDE STORY, H. Wilson Worley. Mr. Worley's book (a $9.95 value) will be presented without charge to each household along with other copyrighted material.

Thousands have highly acclaimed this conference for its dissemination of information not available from any other source. During the two-hour session, participants will review full-service preretirement and retirement living concepts through a color slide series of communities from the east to the west coast.

In addition, a new and different concept in active retirement/preretirement living being considered for Farmington Hills will be discussed to determine its potential for active adults desiring a full menu of services from home and yard maintenance to security and health/fitness programs. The concept offers options not found in lifecare, entrance fee, expensive rental packages, or resort communities. Each participant will be asked to complete a simple written survey to provide direction for the development and the public's acceptance of this community.

The conference is free of charge. However, seating is limited and will be by reservation only.

Please call Nancy Fees (313) 442-9860, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. or write for reservations for you and your friends to RETIREMENT CONFERENCE, 30405 Folsom Road, Farmington Hills, MI 48336 for one of the times and locations below:

The Northville/Novi Colts Christmas Tree sale is back this year

Holiday efforts underway

It's the holiday season in Northville, and that means a host of projects are underway to benefit needy families and nonprofit groups. One of the more popular got underway recently with the delivery of the evergreens to the old Ford plant for the annual Northville/Novi Colts tree sale.

But there are many more projects which welcome community participation, including:

GIFTS FOR HOSPITAL: Once again local attorney Phil Ogilvie is heading up efforts to provide holiday gifts for the patients at the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital on Seven Mile Road.

The facility houses about 700 patients, 65 to 70 percent of which are males. Most of them have no family support, and without donated gifts they may have a disappointing Christmas.

The patients need sweaters, knit hats and gloves, pajamas, purses and blouses for women, shirts and wallets for men, and cigarettes. Cash donations are also welcome, payable to the NRPH Patient Benefit Fund.

Gifts should be wrapped, and on the outside should be written an indication of what it contains. Deliver gifts to Ogilvie's office at 104 W. Main St. in Northville no later than Dec. 19.

CIVIC CONCERN FOOD DRIVE: The Civic Concern Committee — serving those in need in Northville, Novi, Livonia, Farmington, and Farmington Hills — is planning its annual holiday food drive.

Items needed for distribution include canned goods (especially fruit), paper products, soaps, cereal, toiletries, diapers, frozen products and money donations. Some diabetics also need special products. This collection also supplements the group's regular, biweekly food boxes for families and senior citizens.

Food or individual donations may be taken to the Scout Building, 215 W. Cady St., from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays. Clothing to donate may be taken to Holy Family Catholic Church, 24505 Meadowbrook Road, Novi, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Civic Concern is a nonprofit, entirely volunteer organization. For more information call 344-1033.

CANDY CANE FUNDRAISER: Grandma Betty's Sweets & Treats, 124 N. Center St., has set aside special holiday candy canes to raise funds for Civic Concern. The candy canes cost 50 cents each, and all the proceeds from their sale will go to Civic Concern.

ROTARY LUMINARY SALE: The Northville Rotary Club is selling luminaries for the Christmas season.

Kits cost $6 each, with the Rotary supplying free delivery to subdivisions in quantities. Each kit contains twelve white bags, twelve six-inch plumbers candles, and two bags of sand.

The kits may be purchased at News Printing, 560 S. Main St. (next to Allen Monuments), 349-6130, Pat Bradley, Monday through Friday; or downtown Northville by the clock on Sunday, Nov. 18 and 25, and also Saturday, Dec. 22.

GOODFELLOWS PAPER SALE: The Northville Rotary Club and local firefighters will hold the annual Goodfellows Paper Sale in conjunction with The Northville Record on Saturday, Dec. 8 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Rotary members and other volunteers will sell special editions of the newspaper to raise money for needy children during the holiday season.

GIFT WRAPPING SERVICE: A Christmas gift wrapping service will be offered in connection with Northville's annual Christmas festivities on Dec. 2, 9 and 16.

The wrapping service will be offered by the Friends of the Northville

Public Library as a benefit in their ongoing efforts to provide goods and services not met by the library budget.

Shoppers may choose from seven gift wrapping papers and harmonizing ribbons from samples on display. A paper with a Victorian motif is expected to be popular with Northville shoppers. Prices will range from $2 to $5 according to the size of the gift.

The service will be set up by volunteers in the atrium of the Veranda Shops located at 133 N. Center St. The hours are from noon to 5 p.m.

The Friends are offering this service as one way of generating revenue lost when used book sales were discontinued almost a year ago because no space could be found for storing the donated books.

DECORATION DONATIONS: The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce asks businesses to donate money to help meet the cost of the downtown Christmas decorations.

The chamber asks as a general guideline $30 per professional office and $45 per retail business or industry.

Donations cover the cost of the street and mall decorations (greens, bows, lights and bulbs), Santa, taped music through chime speakers on the clock.

For more information call the chamber at 349-7640.

Picture reprint policy

Due to the high demand for reprints of photographs published in The Northville Record, the editors have instituted a new reprint policy. The Record will make reprints of published photographs available to readers at a nominal charge. The cost will be $10 for each 8 1/2 x 10 reprint requested.

To order reprints, call 349-1700 or drop by our office at 104 W. Main St. in Northville. To insure accuracy, please have ready the date of publication, section and page number, and outline information to specifically identify the photo being requested. Allow one month for processing.

The Record will only make reprints available for those individuals pictured in news photographs, or to members of their immediate family. Unpublished photos will not be available for reprint.

The Record regrets it will no longer be able to give out free the original prints of news photographs.

Beginning December 11, you must dial "1-313" or your long distance call will not go through.

As of December 11, if the first three digits of your phone number are listed below, you must dial "1-313" when dialing long distance within the 313 area. Otherwise, your call won't be connected. Because that's when final conversion of your neighborhood to "1-313" long distance dialing will be complete. So if you haven't already reprogrammed your speed calling, call forwarding, modem communications software and automatic dialers, you should do so immediately.

And remember, local and zone calls are still seven digits. Not sure what's long distance and what's not? Just check the front of your Ameritech PagesPlus® White Pages directory.

Thanks for dialing "1-313." Because by doing it you're helping to create 1.5 million new phone numbers for our area. And a completed call for yourself.

Beginning December 11, if the first three digits of your phone number are listed here, you must dial "1-313" for long distance calls in the 313 area.

Volunteer Briefs

YOUTH ASSISTANCE SEEKS HELP: Northville Youth Assistance is looking for adult volunteers to be a friend to a young person from the Northville community.

The nonprofit group matches volunteers with young people who could use an extra adult friend in whom the youth may confide, and with whom the youth may spend leisure time. Volunteers should be over 21. Males are especially needed; the agency has a waiting list of young men who could use a volunteer.

A volunteer training session begins Jan. 3 and runs five consecutive nights. Training includes such skills as listening, problem-solving, decision-making, empathy, and recognizing the warning signals of substance abuse.

Anyone interested in the program should call NYA Director Mary Ellen Kung at 344-1618.

HAWTHORN COUNCIL: The state Department of Mental Health is seeking nominations for membership on the Citizens Advisory Council of Hawthorn Center in Northville, a Department of Mental Health-operated facility.

The council is a voluntary group which meets at least quarterly to advise hospital director Dr. Harold Lockett on administrative policy and programs, and to monitor programs, recipient rights issues and the operating budget.

Hawthorn Center is an inpatient psychiatric facility for children and adolescents from Wayne County. Prospective council members must be Wayne County residents. Department of Mental Health employees are ineligible to serve.

The department encourages broad representation on councils, to include mental health consumers, their family members and guardians; community mental health and local elected officials; and interested persons. Members are appointed for terms of one to two years by state Mental Health Director Thomas D. Watkins Jr.

To be considered, interested persons should forward a letter of interest and biographical information by Dec. 14 to Lois Brennan, Mental Health Advisory Council, Michigan Department of Mental Health, Lewis Cass Building, Lansing 48913. For further information, contact Brennan in Lansing at (517)-373-6594.

STAR MANOR: Star Manor, a 37-bed nursing home in Northville, needs caring volunteers to work with elderly residents.

Volunteer opportunities include reading to the blind, writing letters, assisting with craft projects, and friendly visiting. Individuals and groups are encouraged to apply.

For more information contact Joanne Johnson at 349-4290.

OUR LADY OF PROVIDENCE SEEKS ASSISTANTS: Our Lady of Providence Center is accepting volunteers to assist staff in the supervision of developmentally impaired girls in the classroom, work training program, residential program and the Volunteer Visiting Foster Family program.

Training for the classroom, work training and residential programs will be provided to all volunteers and hours are flexible. Volunteers from all age groups teen to retirees are welcome.

Ecology discussed

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

An environmentalist revolt would stop urban sprawl by reducing the power of local government.

It would educate people out of selfishness and their anti-tax mentality. It would make long-range plans for the seven-county region.

"We're in a revolution — with deep changes in some deeply held beliefs," said Alice Tomboulia, president of the East Michigan Environmental Action Council.

She addressed 130 students, local public officials and environmentalists recently at the close of EMEAC's day-long conference on "Land Use in Southeast Michigan" on the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College.

The enemy, they agreed, was provincialism in local government and corporate greed that will eat up 40 percent more land for a mere 6-percent population growth in the next 20 years.

Tomboulia, a former state representative who lost her seat after one term for her support of public transit, likened economic growth in southeastern Michigan to a game of Chinese checkers.

"You have the same number of marbles. You move them around the board, jump around and leave holes behind."

"We are treating our cities like throwaways. We can reuse them," she said.

The current outcry over urban sprawl was ignited by the Auburn Mills mega-mall project — a 2.5-million-square-foot shopping center that will eat up open space and wetlands, draw shoppers from many counties and require much road widening. Environmentalists complain that a city of fewer than 20,000 is having a tax and commercial effect on a region of four million, but the region has nothing to say about it.

In a dozen small group conferences, members of the Birmingham-based EMEAC, joined by staff members of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, explored concerns and brainstormed for solutions. Among the most common themes:

• Membership in SEMCOG, a 22-year-old agency, should be mandatory, or it should be changed into a regional government.

• Industrial and commercial tax base should be shared across a wide area, not kept by communities where a factory or mall is located.

• Tax incentives to business and competition between communities for development should be halted.

• Make development in green fields as expensive as redevelopment in inner cities.

CITY OF NORTHVILLE NOTICE OF ENACTMENT

The City Council of the City of Northville following a public hearing on Monday, November 19, 1990, in the Municipal Building, 215 West Main Street at 8:00 p.m., has adopted the following ordinance:

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND SECTION 16.18.9.A, "PERMITTED TEMPORARY SIGNS," IN THE ZONING ORDINANCE, TITLE IV, CHAPTER 12 OF THE CODE OF ORDINANCES OF THE CITY OF NORTHVILLE, TO ADD A PERMITTED TEMPORARY BUSINESS IDENTIFICATION SIGN FOR A BUSINESS WHILE IT IS APPLYING FOR APPROVAL OF A PERMANENT SIGN

The City of Northville Ordains
Section 16.18.9.A, "Permitted Temporary Signs," in the Zoning Ordinance, Title IV, Chapter 12 of the Code of Ordinances of the City of Northville is hereby amended by adding a sub-section as follows:

4. Business identification signs for temporary use while a business is applying for approval of and/or is constructing or repairing permanent signs, provided, that all such temporary signs shall meet the requirements of this ordinance, except that the issuance of a permit therefor shall not require Historic District Planning Commission approval. The Building Official shall issue said permit with an expiration thirty (30) days from the date of approval by the applicable commission, or thirty (30) days from the date of issuance if commission approval is not required.

Section 2 This ordinance shall become effective ten (10) days after enactment thereof and after publication thereof. A complete copy of the Ordinance is available for purchase or inspection at the Clerk's Office during regular business hours.

School heads testify on property-tax plan

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

A plan to share commercial and industrial property taxes statewide would punish school districts with factories and working class residents, suburban superintendents told lawmakers Monday.

"It's very elitist," said William Bedell, superintendent of the Romulus district in southern Wayne County. "This will benefit residents of formula districts and punish highly industrial districts."

Bedell, a former Livonia district administrator, joined Farmington Superintendent Michael Flanagan in bashing a share-the-wealth plan sponsored by Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron.

Bedell and Flanagan said their districts, though high in office and factory tax base, are far from being as wealthy as their images because many pupils come from low-income families with problems.

DeGrow, a strong advocate of allowing poorer districts to share the growth in commercial and industrial property tax growth of prospering districts, took his subcommittee and a House subcommittee to Royal Oak to listen to the objections of suburban school officials. The hearing was requested by Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy.

DeGrow made it clear he wants everyone to share in the suburbs' business tax base growth.

"The auto plant makes cars for people who live outside the school district," said DeGrow, the Senate's top school finance man. He noted there are more poor than wealthy districts.

DeGrow indicated the bills are on a fast track and could be adopted and signed by Dec. 31 by outgoing Gov. James Blanchard. Cruce said there appeared to be "lukewarm support" for the bills.

Several school officials — such as John Hamm of Warren Consolidated — suggested that "in the long run, there is a need for new revenue." They advocated more new state money for poor districts, not taking away business taxes from the wealthier.

Lawmakers, however, threw cold water on a state tax hike.

"We went to the voters seven times," said Rep. James O'Neill, D-Saginaw. "It will take billions to bring the have-nots up to the haves."

Lawmakers also recalled that the last time they raised the income tax — in 1983 — voters recalled two senators.

"The public won't accept anything we propose," said Rep. Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak. "You (school officials) initiate a ballot proposal."

Heart of the problem is that Michigan's 562 school districts have revenues ranging from $2,500 to $8,000 per pupil.

Flanagan said the high figure was exaggerated in Farmington's case because:

- Much maintenance work was done with operating funds.
- Special education money inflates Farmington's spending figure by $1,000 per pupil.
- Office growth in Farmington Hills has caused problems as well as provided revenue. "Kids can't walk along major roads because of traffic gridlock," forcing the district to bus more pupils.
- His district has lost $5.8 million in state categorical aid and will ask voters on Feb. 5 for four more mills in local property taxes. Chances are poor because tax fighter Richard Headlee, a Farmington Hills resident, is opposing it.

To sweeten the loss of business tax base, DeGrow proposes restoring categorical aid of $72 million over two years.

Suburban leaders opposed it.

"Totally unfair. Blackmail," said Sen. Jack Faxon, R-Farmington Hills, whose district includes part of Northville. "You're putting people between a rock and a hard place."

Said Troy Superintendent David Spencer: "I never look at it (school funding change) from a positive point of view. I ask myself, 'How can Troy be hurt the least?'"

John Doyle, associate superintendent of Trenton, said 56 districts believe they have a constitutional right to categorical aid and are seeking a court order to restore it. "Some of us feel we're negotiating away a constitutional right" by giving up business taxes to get back categorical aid.

Many said they feared the state, after taxing away half their business tax growth, also would take away the categorical aid money a second time.

Mike Furlong, a Livonia administrator, said the rhetoric behind the federal tax cut of the Reagan administration was, "Leave the money in the school districts. The money was to be spent locally."

Furlong blamed the money problems of poor districts on the low priority which the Legislature gave to schools during the 1980s: 184 percent more for public safety, 116 percent more for mental health, 73 percent more for conservation and recreation, but only 48 percent more for education.

Only three speakers had anything good to say about business tax base sharing.

Wayne Peters, superintendent of Holly in northern Oakland County, said, "We're taxing our workers in homes to death" because the 125-square-mile district has no industry.

"We're very much a General Motors community — people work in Grand Blanc, Lake Orion, Milford proving ground, Flint," he said, but factory taxes stay in the factory towns.

"Do something, for God's sake. The gap is getting wider all the time."

Rick Simonson, a former Senate staffer and now lobbyist for Oakland Intermediate School District, said a poll of 28 local districts showed the plan would hurt districts with "commercially zoned commercial and industrial." Districts already developed would feel little impact.

But Faxon and an Oak Park official contradicted that view. Oak Park is seeking redevelopment of an area near the Eight Mile Road armory and opposes tax base sharing, they said.

Two plans eyed

Two property tax base sharing measures (House Bills 5885-6) are in two different forms in the Michigan Legislature:

HOUSE: Allows growth in commercial and industrial property to be shared within an intermediate (county) district if all school districts agree. It's a voluntary procedure sought by Kent County. The House approved these bills Sept. 26.

SENATE SUBSTITUTE: Requires half the growth in commercial and industrial property to be shared statewide. This version is before the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on K-12 school aid.

Both would restore some of the categorical aid which the Legislature has "recaptured" (taken away) from wealthier districts. "Categorical" includes special education, bilingual classes and the employers' share of Social Security taxes. The bills are tie-barred, meaning each must become law for the other to take effect.

The Northville Record

Our Opinions

Positive steps may keep plant for public

The prospects of partial or complete public ownership of the old Ford Motor Co. plant on Main Street now seem brighter than ever.

In fact, for the first time since the plant closed more than a year ago, public ownership seems like a real possibility. Such an outcome would benefit the entire Northville community, and deserves strong support from everyone concerned.

City officials recently sat down with a Ford representative to discuss possible terms of acquiring the company's holdings in town, which include Ford Field as well as the actual plant site and surrounding land. The talk was preliminary, of course, but it provides a basis for further discussion — and some cause for hope.

One encouraging item to become public recently is the fact that although Ford has talked to people interested in buying the property for private use, no single buyer is ready to sign on the dotted line in the immediate future. The city may only be one of several potential new owners, but at least it is included in that group.

Another good sign is what Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers sees as a shift in attitude on the company's part, a new willingness to discuss acquisition by the city — including exploring the advantages of donating some of the property. This deal will never take place without two willing parties, and now we may truly have that.

A third point of hope is that Mayor Chris Johnson, one of the group that spoke to the Ford representative, believes that Ford will not sell the site(s) to a private concern without first contacting the city. It's not as formal as a right of first refusal, but it gives the community an edge.

In other words, things appear off to a good start. And that's good news for Northville.

Development

A study by an independent architectural firm, experts in the reuse of older buildings, concluded that public use is best for the Ford land. The study specifically suggested keeping Ford Field as is and using part of the plant building as a community library, a notion which dovetails nicely with the overcrowding at the present library site.

The tax revenue currently generated by the Ford property is relatively insignificant in the context of overall school district and city budgets. Private redevelopment of the land would certainly mean new tax money — but the site's location in the Middle Rouge floodplain render it almost useless for any new development other than a parking lot.

The aesthetics, history and location of the site make it ideally suited to public use. At long last, the city is moving along a course which may bring about such a use.

Now unified community support becomes more important than ever. Public acquisition of the Ford plant would benefit all Northville, regardless of whether a person lives within city or township boundaries. The downtown area is a resource for the community, not for the city. And, of course, library and recreation programs — the most likely beneficiaries of public ownership — receive funding from both governments.

If officials and residents in both the city and the township can all pull together to support this goal, public ownership of the Ford land may be possible. And it would mean great things for Northville.

Master plan 'elitism' masks good intentions

City planning commissioners recently faced an onslaught of criticism for what other city officials termed "elitism" in their master plan draft.

The commission was assailed for urging the restriction of new residential development to the present average density of residential districts, increasing the minimum lot sizes in residential neighborhoods, and rezoning neighborhoods from R-1b to a more restrictive R-1A classification.

Their intentions were honorable — to maintain current residential density. The commissioners were concerned that existing lots could be divided, and that infill development could destroy the character of existing neighborhoods.

It's the way that commissioners tried to implement those intentions that disturbed other officials.

The effect of the proposals, if taken to their logical conclusion by rezoning residential neighborhoods, would have been to deny existing landowners their current rights to divide their property or rent part of their homes to tenants.

The commission's assertions are also based on the flawed assumption that new development likely would be more dense than existing neighborhoods. But as its own master plan notes, "New housing starts have a significantly lower density (larger lot area) than existing developments."

In the end, all the furor is over changes that would have a relatively minor impact on the city. As the master plan itself notes, "The last significant large residential subdivision will be essentially built out by the end of 1991."

The city only has an estimated 34 acres of vacant residential lots left, against 724 acres of residential development either built or under construction.

Nevertheless, planning consultant Don Wortman has already drafted several changes to the master plan to muffle the elitist tone heard by other officials.

Record welcomes letters

This newspaper welcomes letters to the editor. We ask, however, that they be issue-oriented, confined to 400 words and that they contain the signature, address, and telephone number of the writer. The writer's name may be withheld from publication if the writer fears bodily harm, severe persecution, or the loss of his or her job. The writer requesting anonymity must explain his or her circumstances. Submit letters for consideration by 4 p.m. Monday for that Thursday's paper. We reserve the right to edit letters for brevity, clarity, libel, and taste.

The week prior to an election, this newspaper will not accept letters to the editor that open up new issues. Only responses to already published issues will be accepted, with this newspaper being the final arbiter. This policy is an attempt to be fair to all concerned.

'Women's Dept.' fades away

I hate to be the one to blow the whistle, but our newspaper office is lying.

It came to my attention one day when I looked at the fine print at the bottom of a form we hand out to blushing brides or grooms-to-be (or their parents) when they wish to announce their engagement.

"The women's department," the forms say, "will be glad to help with any questions of form or social usage."

Just try to contact the "women's department" at this newspaper, or any newspaper for that matter. There isn't one. Questions of form or social usage? We don't even know which fork to use, let alone the "socially correct" form or usage for an engagement announcement. We're not even sure exactly what that means.

The line makes me laugh and cringe at the same time. I laugh because that line is almost quaint — it stirs up images of an entire department full of ladies drinking tea and discussing the fall fashion line and the latest hairstyles.

I imagine myself as one of those ladies. I am snootily debating the value of this season's haute couture with Gwendolyn, the makeup editor, and Maude, the society queen.

But it makes me cringe because it reminds me that there was a time, before I was old enough to write anything heavier than "See Spot chase Fluff," that most newspapers had a "women's department." And it was the only place for a woman at a newspaper.

The women's department handled the weddings and engagements. It handled the fashion and beauty articles.

It handled the articles on raising children, on cooking and cleaning the house, on being a good spouse.

A few weeks ago I attended a dinner sponsored by Women in Communications Inc. (WICI). WICI is an organization that first formed as a sorority back in the days when women weren't allowed in a certain journalism fraternity.

The featured speakers at the dinner were several women who had been in the communications field for many years. One of the speakers was the former head of a newspaper's "women's department."

She loved her job and had worked hard to become the head of that department. But she never felt like a part of the entire newspaper.

Maybe it had something to do with the fact that the weekly department-head meeting was held at an all-male country club where she was not allowed.

Or maybe it was because she was the only one of those department heads that had no health insurance. "You don't need it," she was told. "You have a husband."

Whatever the reason was, I am glad that times have changed. Women journalists today do anything a man can do. They are feature reporters, news reporters, sports reporters, photographers, editors, even publishers. And the world is a better place because of it.

But men are also doing a fine job performing newspaper tasks that used to be "women's work." Just look at our wedding and engagement announcements. Many of them are written by a very smart man.

An 'off the record' primer

"You are being interviewed. You have the right to decline comment. If you waive that right, anything you say can and will be quoted in the local newspaper. Comments will be considered 'off the record' only if the reporter agrees before the comment is made. All other comments will be considered 'on the record.' You have the right to have a spokesperson speak on your behalf."

No journalist is ever going to read you this kind of Miranda-like warning before interviewing you, but sometimes I wonder if it wouldn't save reporters and editors a few arguments if we did.

I say this because of the frequency with which we get arguments over what we can and cannot print in the paper. The most typical one is that, after submitting to a 15 or 30 minute interview, a subject will pronounce that, "of course, all that is off the record." Inevitably, these subjects get quite angry when a journalist won't let them take their interview "off the record."

Some sources will go so far as to suggest that we are being unfair. "Well, yes, I knew he/she was a reporter, but I didn't know he/she was intending to do an article," is one argument I've actually heard used, though for the life of me I can't figure out what they thought the reporter was doing asking all those questions.

I have also seen elected officials turn to reporters in public meetings and announce that the comment they just made was "off the record," as if you can say anything "off the record" before a crowd of people in a public meeting.

And I have even had an attorney call me to tell me that his client, who had just spent 20 minutes on the phone with a reporter, was "well within his rights to instruct (me) not to print his comments." Well, that's true, but nothing says I have to follow his instructions.

All this leads me to the conclusion that most people don't understand what "going off the record" is all about. They would probably be surprised just how infrequently journalists "go off the record" with a source. They probably would also be surprised that "going off the record" is nothing more than an informal agreement between the reporter and the source.

In 99 percent of our news coverage, there simply is no reason why any information should have to be "off the record." But every now and then, a source will have some information they feel a reporter needs to know about that they don't want to have attributed to them in the newspaper.

When they go "off the record," the reporter and the source need to be specific about what that means. Sometimes, the source merely does not want his or her name attached to the information. This results in the famous, or infamous, "unnamed sources" that seem to populate Washington D.C. in such great numbers. Here at HomeTown Newspapers, we have a policy that states unnamed sources can only be used with the permission of the executive editor. And there had better be good reasons.

Other times, the "off the record" comment merely means the reporter has to confirm the information through another source.

Occasionally, "off the record" means the information is to be used for background information only.

And even more rarely, the "off the record" agreement is to withhold publication until an agreed-upon time. In these cases, the reporter may well decline to take the information on the off-the-record basis in the hopes that he or she can get the same information through another source sooner.

Reflect on and support giving

To the editor:
I am writing to you on the day before Thanksgiving, a day when all of us take the time to pause and reflect, in appreciation of the blessings that life brings.

We gather together our families, friends and loved ones... think about our successes and our failures... our triumphs and our mistakes. If we are truly giving, while unselfishly providing our community with personal voluntariness, then on this special day we can hold our heads up high; feeling very deeply the unique sense of accomplishment that only a person who sacrifices their time, money and personal freedom in an effort to make others' lives a little brighter; a little less stressful may have the right to feel.

Ray Casterline is such an individual. For years he has shared with the people of this community his sincerest effort to provide the compassion and kindness so consistent with his family's tradition, especially when we are in our darkest hours.

I can only imagine what it must be like to take on his primary role as a businessman in this city; a funeral director. We are cognizant of the personal stresses each of us endure throughout our lives... yet we chastize the man that we look to for support, when grief for the loss of a loved one may become overwhelming.

Have we become so insensitive that we cannot appreciate his sense of personal distress?

I am saddened and deeply disappointed that this community may sit idly by and not come forward to show its support for this important citizen in his time of need. Furthermore, the community at large should express the desire that their only newspaper maintain the highest level of journalism possible and refrain from becoming just another tabloid that preys upon the misfortune of others. We owe it to ourselves and we owe it Ray Casterline and his family.

John D. Gustaf, Jr.

Make a paper truly 'hometown'

To the editor:

"Hometown Newspaper" — what a nice sound! But what is "HOMETOWN" news and what should "Hometown" be? We recently had a couple of pages of real "HOMETOWN" news. An article on a wife beating in detail. Yes, I wondered who it was and if I might know them and I'm sure many wondered the same thing. I would guess the couple were not pleased to read the article but I bet they were pleased that their family's name was not printed in their

"HOMETOWN" newspaper. The next page was an auto accident on Five Mile Road. There were no names printed and again I wondered who were the injured people. There was another article on the same page. This time I didn't have to wonder because along with all the (correct?) details there was the name and age and the date of the offense (six weeks later). My heart went out to the entire family while at the same time bitterness and resentment towards our "HOMETOWN" newspaper. There are many people who feel as I do about name printing. So to the two young reporters who obviously thought they had hit the big time — you didn't, you only belittled yourselves and our "HOMETOWN" newspaper.

However, I do have a suggestion regarding name printing. If you want to print names, print the names of all our area men and women in Saudi Arabia. And above those names put their pictures. Print the names of their parents, spouses, children, their jobs, high schools they attended, etc. And under their names print their addresses so their hometown residents can support them with cards and letters. And continue to do this until we have all of them back home again. Let's work on printing a real "HOMETOWN NEWSPAPER."

Ettie Ann Hirth

Report does not belong in paper

To the editor:

In answer to the article on the drunken driving charge against Ray Casterline on Nov. 15, why when the ticket was issued on September 28 should this be brought up now? We want to say there are several other business people that got away with this sort of business and we want to say this is a very respected family and they have four little girls that are going to be very hurt by this both physically and mentally. These girls attend Northville schools and he has a very good wife that also is going to be hurt about such a publication. This is a very good funeral home with highly respected people managing it. I think it is a shame such a writeup had to be in our Northville Record. He also has admitted he has a problem and is correcting it.

Inconsistency

To the editor:

Can you please explain to me why you found it necessary to name a local businessman in an OLD news story, when you don't name offenders in the police blotter?

Millage support appreciated

To the editor:

Those who have been given responsibility for the services and the processes of local government are really heartened by the Township Fire Department millage victory. This result also provides me with a few observations.

First, the decision of the Fire Department millage evidenced a deserved respect for the people and the role of a largely volunteer organization. It also showed a vote of confidence for enhanced services, such as First Responder, that assists in the emergency support system for our population.

The budget review of the township by persons outside township government was good since it revealed the small amount of room between meeting basic needs and a ragged edge. The .33 mill for fire service did not generate a great additional revenue to the township. Without it, however, the reshaping required by lower revenue would have a bad effect on township operations.

Maybe the vote also has signaled that there has been enough punishment upon the township board for an effort to express leadership on the Haller Proposal. This proposal for a public library complex and land was hampered by a public anger over assessments and taxes.

I still applaud those who shared the vision but most especially Mrs. Haller, who provided the substance for thinking in terms of quality objectives.

Now we have a new leader for Michigan and a new agenda. We expect the goods to be delivered on property tax reform in real terms with visible local reductions. If this reform does not happen, effort for quality of life programs in communities will not receive public support. Michigan's trends have been pointed to annual state budget growth. It will require a shift in this pattern together with uncommon courage to change. This is what we want to see.

Give to NRPH this Christmas

To the Editor:

HELP-HELP-HELP!

Once again I, along with many volunteers, are soliciting gifts for the patients at the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital on Seven Mile Road. There are approximately 700 patients at this facility; 65-70 percent are male. Most of them have no family support and without the gifts which we and other volunteers obtain there will be a disappointing Christmas.

If you are interested in participating in this program the patients are in need of sweaters, knit hats and gloves, pajamas, purses and blouses for women, and shirts and wallets for men; and cigarettes. You can also give cash donations made payable to NRPH Patient Benefit Fund. Gift wrap the gift and put on the outside of it what it contains. Please deliver the gifts to my office at 104 W. Main St. in Northville no later than Dec. 19. Remember, this is what the Christmas season is supposed to be all about.

Police should get some better ideas

To the Editor:

I find it very curious that both Northville city and Northville Township Police Departments own and use Chevrolet patrol cars. Northville has no Chevrolet dealerships but it does have a Ford dealership and the community and its residents have had (and still do have) closer ties to Ford than GM. In most cases, communities support their local businesses. Why then is this not so here in our Northville communities? Certainly we all know Ford has comparably sized, powered, equipped and priced vehicles and quite possibly better quality vehicles. But the bottom line should be "support your local establishments and taxpayers."

Thanks for the lift, merchants

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Board of Directors and the entire society, I would like to express our appreciation to the Merchants' Association for transporting people back and forth to Mill Race Village on the day of the Christmas Walk.

We had a very successful day.

Heed the need for rec fields

To the Editor:

As a resident of the community since 1937, I cannot imagine Northville without the historic Ford water-wheel plant.

I hope all economically feasible avenues for community use will be explored, including the shared services of library and recreation. As a township resident, I would encourage township participation in its use. It is vital that Ford Field remain for the Northville Recreation Department.

U.S. celebrates a mythic holiday

Last Thursday was Thanksgiving, the most American and most mythic of our holidays. No where else in our festive calendar do we all come together to commemorate an event that certainly occurred but surely bore little resemblance to the myths now propagated around it.

But myths are vital in a heterogeneous land such as ours.

For American is white and black, yellow and red, rich and poor, north and south, east and west, urban and suburban and rural. American is a land of waves of immigrants, none bigger than the mass of hopeful poor now pouring across our borders in the South, in the West and in California.

And America is so big, so varied and so lacking a common shared racial or cultural history that it is a hard country to hold together. That's why myths are important to America.

And that's why I was so struck at Peggy Noonan's Nov. 21 column in the Wall Street Journal. "The children of the new immigrants," she argued, "will get most of their sense of what America is from the general culture and the public schools. It is there that we must give special attention to communicating the great unifying myths that define the dreams, characteristics and special history of America that even to this day bind us together."

She then proceeded to set out seven great unifying myths: The coming of the Pilgrims, who demonstrated that courage and suffering could achieve great purposes.

The American Revolution, a political act driven by a moral conception of human nature.

The Civil War, fought for our nation's soul, which concluded that Americans may not own other Americans.

The winning of the West, which taught us individualism and the energy and the benefits of working together. And so, too, with the exploration of space.

The great immigrations of 1840-1920, which demonstrated you don't have to be WASP to be a good American.

The civil rights struggle, which demonstrated you could be black and also a full-fledged American.

America is now experiencing the greatest flow of immigrants since the wave that ended in the 1920s. Many of these new Americans live in Michigan.

So let's be sure we learn the right lessons from our past about our myths.

First, the schools are at the absolute center of making the children of new American parents into comfortable young Americans. Whatever is done about school reform, and however we work to improve school quality, let us never lose sight of the necessity of teaching and reteaching our myths to our young people.

Second, the greatest commonality we have as a country — greater by far than any of our great myths — is our shared language. As we are learning from the experience of Canada, one country with two languages is an impossibility.

American English is our common language. It is the subtle compelling tie that binds us together.

Whatever is done in our schools, let us never be seduced by the theories of the bilingualists who, for example, want black children to learn "Black English" and expect Hispanic children to be taught in Spanish.

That way lies disaster. And if it takes post-Thanksgiving reflections to realize it, let us all give thanks that it is so.

Every year, credit counselor Deborah Gardner deals with holiday overspending

CREDIT CRUNCH

By CRISTINA FERRIER

Laura Zimmer couldn't sleep. Up all night, she would constantly debate whether to file for bankruptcy. She was $20,000 in debt. And she was only 24.

"I was way over my head," she said. "I hated it. I couldn't sleep. Creditors were calling me and I was a total mess."

While holiday spending was not the sole cause of Laura's credit problem, it was a big contributor. "When Christmas would come around I wouldn't have any money. I had so many bills because I was paying off my credit cards. So I would buy everybody's presents with my credit cards."

Laura eventually found her way to Credit Counseling Center, a nonprofit organization in Novi that helps people with credit problems like Laura's to get out of debt without going bankrupt.

According to Deborah Gardner, a counselor for the organization, Laura's dilemma was not unique.

"People around Christmas don't take into consideration that other expenses are higher this time of the year," Gardner said. Besides the holiday gifts, there are other things people don't take into consideration, such as winter taxes and higher utility bills.

Some people also overspend because they expect their income tax returns, Gardner added. "If the tax return turns out to be less than they expected, it can be a real problem," she said.

Laura's sleeplessness came over her credit problems was also common. "Nobody plans to get into these situations," Gardner said. "But when they do, it hurts their self-esteem, causes depression, domestic problems, even mental depression."

"I've had people actually apologize to me for getting too far into debt," she added. "They think they're the only ones with this problem, and that everybody knows."

At Credit Counseling Center, people are put on a tight weekly budget, and arrangements are made with creditors to work towards getting out of debt.

"When we set them up on a financial program, they usually feel better — like there's hope," Gardner said.

Laura Zimmer has hope.

"I feel a lot better now, even though I don't have a lot of money," she said. "There's a light at the end of the tunnel."

"It's real hard — I live with my boyfriend and he's in and out of work. All my money goes to (pay off bills) except for $40 a week, so we just have that and his money. Last week we went to the grocery store with only $40, and that doesn't buy much."

But they're getting by, she said, even if it means living on macaroni and cheese, burritos and pot pies.

She's narrowed her Christmas list to three people this year, and for those three people she's placed gifts in layaway and carefully sets money aside to pay for them.

Her advice to others? "Don't get credit cards."

Credit Counseling Center also has advice for avoiding a credit crunch at Christmas:

- Limit purchases to one card or a few. This makes it easier to limit spending.
- Use cards which allow you to budget payments if necessary. If you do not have the cash now, will you have it when the total amount is due?
- Use cards or accounts that have low interest rates and longer grace periods.
- Carefully consider "No Payments Until Next Year." If you cannot afford it in December, will you be able to in March?
- Set a limit and stay with it. And keep track of spending as you buy. It forces you to set priorities and helps avoid large bills.
- Start shopping now for good buys. Last minute or impulsive buying costs you more!

Fred O'Connor drives seniors to church

He always has room for riders in his car

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

Fred O'Connor lives in a small, immaculately clean home in Northville's King's Mill cooperative.

He lives a good life — he loves his family and has many friends.

He goes to church every Sunday and even provides transportation for elderly people who wouldn't make it to church if he didn't drive them.

He's always ready to lend a hand, always quick with an encouraging word.

He's a good man. But he's not an average man.

Fred O'Connor just turned 90. Many of the people he drives to church are 10 or 20 years younger than him. He's more active than many people only half his age.

"He retired 25 years ago and he hasn't stopped yet," said his son, John O'Connor, also of Northville. "I still need an appointment if I want to see him. He's really active — always been that way."

Fred O'Connor, who was manager of the Dodge Main Plant in Hamtramck until his retirement in 1965, celebrated his birthday Nov. 11 with a party for 90 people at Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall restaurant. It was a joyful occasion with friends and relatives — and everybody knew each other.

"It was supposed to be a surprise, but I had all the addresses," he laughed.

There weren't supposed to be any gifts, but O'Connor received a few anyway, including a hand-lettered plaque and a copy of Collier's Weekly from the year he was born, 1900.

"There was a joyful spirit," he said of his party. "Everybody said that was the highlight of the party. Everybody that was at the party said it was just a wonderful, wonderful spirit."

"It was a nice party," his son agreed. "We had a great time. There was good fellowship, very warm and

Northville club to discuss 'Biology of Hope' theory

Members of the Northville Woman's Club will enjoy a review of the book "Head First: The Biology of Hope" by Norman Cousins at their meeting on Friday, Dec. 7 at the Northville First Presbyterian Church.

The speaker, John Rae, urges members to read the book before the meeting. Rae works as a psychologist at the Northville Counseling Center in addition to serving as moderator for the Parent to Parent education and support series at Meads Mill and Cooke Middle Schools.

In his review of the book, Rae will discuss Cousins' belief that "fear can exaggerate a negative diagnosis and that, in addition to expert and compassionate medical care, determination and discipline in creating and following a new lifestyle" can help the body create its own natural healing.

At 75, Cousins works at the University of California at Los Angeles medical school in the capacity of counselor, therapist, and ombudsman to seriously ill patients.

Cousins offers evidence that hope, laughter and the will to live are actual biochemical realities that have value in combating serious disease.

In addition to his counseling work, Rae is a professor of English at Macomb Community College, a post he has held for 28 years. In the last five years Rae says that, much like Cousins, he has connected the fields of literature and writing with that of psychology.

Rae holds a bachelor's degree in English from the University of Detroit and a master's in English and American Literature from Wayne State University. His master's in clinical psychology is from the Center for Humanistic Studies.

In connection with the latter, Rae is a clinical extern in the Family Systems Program of the Institute for Juvenile Research, Department of Psychiatry, University of Illinois at Chicago. He commutes by plane every Thursday.

The meeting will start at 1:30. Members may bring a guest.

Gift Wrapping Service

A Christmas gift wrapping service will be offered in connection with Northville's annual Christmas festivities on Dec. 2, 9 and 18.

The wrapping service will be offered by the Friends of the Northville Public Library as a benefit in their ongoing efforts to provide goods and services not met by the library budget.

Shoppers may choose from seven gift wrapping papers and harmonizing ribbons from samples on display. A paper with a Victorian motif is expected to be popular with Northville shoppers. Prices will range from $2 to $5 according to the size of the gift.

The service will be set up by volunteers in the atrium of the Veranda Shops located at 133 N. Center St. The hours are from noon to 5 p.m.

"The Friends are looking forward to being part of one of Northville's fine traditions and filling an unmet need at the Christmas Walk," said Wendy Gutowski, Friends president. "We are sure those who use the service will find our wrappings attractive and our prices competitive."

The Friends are offering this service as one way of generating revenue lost when used book sales were discontinued almost a year ago because no space could be found for storing the donated books.

Marquis Theatre

Two classic tales for the holiday season are running concurrently at the Marquis Theatre. Rumpelstiltskin is a fun-filled fairy tale and Christmas Carol is based on the story by Charles Dickens. Both are a treat for the entire family.

Performance dates for Rumpelstiltskin are Dec. 8, 11:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. and Dec. 16, 27, 28, 29 and 30 at 2:30 p.m.

Performance dates for Christmas Carol are Saturday, Dec. 1, 15 and 22 at 11:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 2, 9 and 23 at 2:30 p.m.

Advance tickets may be purchased at all Ticketmaster outlets or at the Marquis Box Office. Phone orders are accepted with Visa or Mastercard. Tickets are also available at the door. Reserved seating and group rates are available for 20 or more.

One Day of Shopping

Northville Recreation Department is offering a one-day shopping trip to New York City on Saturday, Dec. 1. Fee is $150 and includes round trip air transportation between Detroit Metro and Newark, bus transportation between Newark and Macy's.

You'll have all day to shop, go to the theatre, tour museums — whatever you'd like to do. Limited seating is available on a first come, first paid basis. For additional information, contact the Recreation Department at 349-0203.

Wedding

Mary Anne Colling/Dennis Clark Sherry

Marie Anne Colling of Northville became the wife of Dennis Clark Sherry of Emlenton, Pa., on Oct. 6 in a candlelight ceremony at Martha-Mary Chapel, Greenfield Village, Dearborn. She is the daughter of John and Marcie Colling of Northville. He is the son of Wayne and Mary Lou Sherry of Emlenton.

Rev. Hal Hoekstra, of Christus Victor Lutheran Church, Dearborn, officiated at the 6 p.m. double-ring ceremony.

The bride's gown was specially created by her mother of candlelight Peau de Soie featuring a Queen Anne neckline, long tapered sleeves, princess bodice with gored skirt and chapel length train all trimmed with Alencon lace, seed pearls and sequins. Her Derby hat with veil, trimmed to complement the gown, was chosen to accentuate the Victorian styling of the dress.

Ann Horn of Novi was the matron of honor. Her attendants were Karen Thompson of Northville, Betty Krafchak of Redford, the groom's sisters Laura Sherry of Butler, Pa., and Linda Sherry of Hillsborough, N.C. They wore plum gowns featuring a fitted lace bodice with long tapered sleeves and floor length tulle skirt.

Best man was the groom's brother-in-law, Randy Lanton, of Fredonia, Pa. Serving as ushers were Sam Horn of Novi, Steve Ross of Northville, the groom's brother-in-law, Gary Lawrence, of Hillsborough, N.C.

A reception followed at the Eagle Tavern located adjacent to the chapel in Greenfield Village. Keeping with the historic nature of the Tavern, the reception was in candlelight with service and dinner provided by costumed Greenfield Village attendants as would be appropriate in style and custom for the late 1800s.

The couple met in San Diego, Calif., while both were in the U.S. Navy. Currently, the bride remains in the Navy serving at the American Embassy in London, England.

The couple honeymooned in the Poconos and are making their home in London.

Choralaires concert to aid local needy

The Novi Choralaires are ready for their annual Christmas concert — an annual event that helps raise dollars for the Novi Jaycees needy family Christmas fund.

This year the group will present two concerts, one in Northville and one in Novi.

The first will be held Saturday, Dec. 1 at 7:30 p.m. at Church of the Holy Family in Novi.

The second will be Sunday, Dec. 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church of Northville.

During this festive holiday concert, Novi's community chorus will perform well-known and new Christmas songs.

At each concert there will also be a performance by the Glory Ringers bell choir.

Tickets are $3 each and can be purchased in advance at Novi Drug, the Giftfiddler, and the Novi Parks and Recreation Department.

In addition, tickets are available from members of the Novi Jaycees and Novi Choralaires. Tickets will be available at the door on the evening of the concert.

The Christmas concert is sponsored by the Novi Jaycees. Proceeds will provide holiday baskets for over 75 Novi area families this holiday season.

The 50-plus member community chorus is under the direction of Janet Wassilak and is accompanied by Stacy Becker. For more information call 348-NOVI.

Novi scouts plan nut and calendar sale

Looking for the perfect Christmas gift for the nut in your life?

Area girl scouts are selling gourmet nuts this week at three locations in Novi. The nuts are packaged in round plastic containers and festive boxes for the holiday season.

Available are the Tropical Treat Mix (an assortment of tropical fruits) for $5 per package; Butter Toffee Peanuts for $5 per package; Fancy Mixed Nuts (a mixture of gourmet nuts with no peanuts) for $6 per package; or Giant Roasted Cashews for $7 per package.

In addition to the nuts, the girls will also be selling Girl Scout Calendars in two sizes — wall and pocket planner — for $2 each.

The Girl Scout calendar/nut sale booths will be set up Nov. 30 from 5 to 9 p.m. by Troop 3842 and on Dec. 1 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. by Troop 684 at Farmer Jack, Ten Mile and Meadowbrook. In addition, Troop 1849 will sell the nuts and calendars Dec. 1 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Kroger store in the West Oaks shopping plaza.

All proceeds from the Girl Scout calendar and nut sale will support Girl Scouts in the Novi community and help pay for camp maintenance and training for over 8,000 Girl Scout adult volunteers.

Anniversary

George and Agnes Alaska

George and Agnes (McLarney) Alaska celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Nov. 23. They were married 50 years ago at St. Clare Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe. They have seven children, all of whom live in the Detroit area. They have 11 grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

George and Agnes currently reside at Swan Harbor Apartments in Northville and have since George's retirement from Ford Motor Co.'s transmission and chassis plant in Livonia, where he was a quality control engineer. Much of their family was raised at their house on Sherwood Court in Livonia, where they lived for 25 years.

They celebrated their anniversary with a renewal of their vows at a 5 p.m. Mass on Nov. 24 at St. Collette's in Livonia, followed by a dinner reception given by their children at the King's Mill Clubhouse in Northville.

A highlight of Alaska's 50th wedding year was a weeklong Princess Cruise along the inside passage of Alaska this past August — the fulfillment of a longtime dream to visit the land of their namesake.

George and Agnes will be wintering at their condo in Bradenton, Fla., again after Christmas, but will be returning in late March for their youngest daughter Joan's wedding in April.

Their children are Virginia Kitchen of Mt. Clemens, George Alaska of St. Clair Shores, Gail Alaska of Northville, Gary Alaska of Redford, Gregory Alaska of Redford, Gerald Alaska of Mt. Clemens and Joan Alaska of Northville.

Walled Lake has a colorful history

Cedar Point, Kings Island, Toronto's Wonderland — today there is almost no limit to fun spots within a day's drive from south-east Michigan.

Back in the days of the horse and buggy, however, most Detroit-area residents ventured a little closer to home when undertaking a summer's outing.

Walled Lake was a favorite resort for many years. In fact, an excursion to Novi's Walled Lake was considered a suitable alternative to some Northville residents who were unable to take a community-wide trip to Mackinac Island in August 1870.

Invitations were handed out to a large but select group, and on a sunny Friday afternoon about 100 partygoers gathered at a hotel near the lake on Novi's shores.

A large sailboat waited near the shore, and the crowd rushed on board with their picnic baskets to be ferried across to the west side of the lake. There, an idyllic picnic spot awaited them, with shade trees and tables set for the outdoor feast.

No softball or volleyball games to distract these serious picnickers; they satisfied themselves with fishing, boating and eating — not necessarily in that order.

The festivities went on late into the night, until the group was ferried back across the lake to the waiting horses. Young and old were reportedly "well satisfied with the day's proceedings and entertaining hopes of again visiting that popular locality."

That was just the beginning of more than a century of pleasure-seekers flocking to the ancient lakeshore. The lake lent itself well to recreation, being about 55 feet deep at its deepest point, with the area near the shoreline quite shallow.

Samuel Durant, in his History of Oakland County, listed the numerous "health-sustaining chemicals" such as iron, sulphur and magnesia contained in the water of Walled Lake. The water was once considered "highly beneficial alike to the invalid and the healthy." However, time, construction, motor boats and automobiles have all taken their toll on the formerly purifying waters of the lake.

Though the healthful properties of Walled Lake may have diminished through time, the area remained a popular entertainment center for many years.

Shortly after World War I, an enterprising man named Judd Taylor built a huge dance casino across Novi Road on the southern shore of the lake, thus making the name "Walled Lake" synonymous with music and fun for many people throughout southeast Michigan.

Though the casino was actually located in Novi, for years that town felt robbed of its big chance at fame. For nearly half a century, Walled Lake would be the name known for what was Novi's splendid amusement park complex. Containing a roller skating rink, a 200-foot speedboat dock, a large roller coaster and numerous concessions, it was the dance casino that was responsible for its great reputation.

The frame structure soon burned to the ground, but was quickly replaced in 1922 by "The New Casino," a steel-framed building that stood for 40 years.

The prominent big band sounds of Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller and more were frequently heard at the casino, bringing national fame to the area.

The big band jazz of the 1940s and early '50s moved gradually to the rock and roll sounds of the late 1950s and '60s, and still the Walled Lake Casino held its own, providing entertainment to thousands of fun seekers in Metropolitan Detroit.

When the wooden casino burned to the ground in the mid 1960s, an exciting era in the history of a typical midwestern town came to an end. Only with the building of the massive shopping malls in the 1970s has anything slightly resembling such a resurgence taken place in Novi.

In later years, Walled Lake-area residents opted to close their lake to outsiders, in an attempt to return the area to the quiet, healthy rural community it had once been.

Barbara Louie is the local-history librarian at the Novi Public Library.

Evelyn Carol Schane/Steven Dale Pantier

Mr. and Mrs. Manny Schane of Southfield announce the engagement of their daughter Evelyn Carol to Steven Dale Pantier of Royal Oak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Pantier of Northville.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Central Michigan University with a degree in business. She is currently employed as a sales representative for Syncor International Corporation.

The bridegroom-elect is a 1981 graduate of Northville High School, and graduated from Michigan State University with a degree in mechanical engineering. He is currently pursuing an MBA at the University of Michigan, and is a sales representative at United Technologies Automotive in Dearborn.

A February 1991 wedding is planned.

Georgia Poulos/Elias Koumariotis

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Poulos of Northville announce the engagement of their daughter Georgia to Elias Koumariotis of Dearborn Heights.

The bride-elect is a 1986 graduate of Northville High School and a 1989 graduate of the University of Detroit's School of Dentistry. She is currently employed as a dental hygienist.

The bridegroom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Koumariotis of Dearborn Heights. He is a 1983 graduate of Crestwood High School and a 1985 graduate of Henry Ford Community College. He is currently employed at GM Hydramatic.

A June 1991 wedding is planned.

Johnny on the Spot, a Novi carpet and upholstery cleaning business with many Northville customers, is doing its part to make the winter a little warmer for homeless and needy people in the Detroit area.

Owner Steve Pichan of Northville has enlisted his sales staff in an effort to gather unwanted blankets, sweaters, coats, socks and other warm clothing from customers this month through February. Salespersons will be asking customers to donate the items, which can be picked up when they have their carpets or upholstery cleaned.

"Or if you want to donate something but don't want your carpets cleaned, that's fine, too," Pichan added. Such donations can be dropped off at Johnny on the Spot's home office at 43000 Nine Mile Rd. between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday.

The program, known as "Blankets on the Spot," was inspired by a similar program called "Cover Detroit." Pichan said he decided to start this program because of "a desire to be charitable" and because "we're at 10 or 12 residences every day. We have the wherewithal to pick them up and a warehouse to store them."

"Part of developing this program involved coordinating a schedule with St. Vincent DePaul, which agreed to provide delivery of the goods to their final destination," he added.

Pichan said his sales staff spends 75 to 100 hours each week talking with customers. The company began asking the customers to donate the goods several weeks ago.

"We really hope to encourage many local area residents to take part in this charitable endeavor, and hopefully, gather strong support for those who are lacking some of life's basic necessities," Pichan said.

For more information about "Blankets on the Spot," call Johnny on the Spot at 347-3550.

With M-CARE,
the sky is not the limit.

There's a serious accident. Time is crucial. A helicopter is dispatched to speed the victim to the University of Michigan Burn Center... a service you, hopefully, will never have to call on. But it's there if you need it, and much, much more through M-CARE.

M-CARE is the only HMO that links all the resources of the U of M Medical Center to the personal care of your family doctor and your nearby hospital. M-CARE covers you for office visits, checkups, hospitalization—even emergency helicopter transport.

Of course, with the M-CARE network of hospitals in cities like Royal Oak, Dearborn and Rochester, you don't always have to go to the U of M Medical Center. But isn't it good to know it's there whenever you need it? To find out more, ask your employer. Or call M-CARE at 747-8700.

Experts answer questions on skiing

By Iris Sanderson Jones

Vera Hogan of Fenton has a name for skiers like me, people who have failed every bunny slope they ever climbed.

"You're a Polish skier—a buttski."

So when I get a letter asking for ski advice, I run for the experts. Sandy Jones of Howell wants to know about cross country skiing: What's the status, where should we go?

Wendy Schwartz of Birmingham wrote for information on local ski clubs, which Ingrid Tomey has covered on this page. She also wants to know about resorts that cater to families, allow kids free in the room or have special rates.

I asked Dick Held, vice president of Bavarian Village ski shops, whether our recent lack of Detroit-area snow adversely affects cross-country skiing. "It has to have some effect, because the snow isn't sitting there in your back yard, but people are willing to travel for the pleasure of the trails."

There are 15 resorts in the Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council and they all offer groomed trails, trail maps and other amenities. It's an inexpensive sport. We can put you on skis with bindings and poles for $99.

Josh Lohmann, Metropolitan Detroit Ski Club president, did Nordic (another name for cross country), downhill and ski jumping when he lived in Germany. "Nordic was strong here in the mid-1970s, then it flattened out. Last year it picked up again because of a few good racers in the Olympics."

The Boynes saw an increase last year. American Youth Hostel (AYH) does a lot of cross country for people of all ages. They stay in hostels or small hotels. Some upscale resorts are really into it as well.

Families? Josh Lohmann: "Families with young children often go to the mountains around Detroit. Experienced skiers may go there during the week and often go north on weekends. Families like Boyne Highlands and Nubbs Knob. Boyne Mountain is mostly a younger crowd, including singles and racers. A lot of groups go to Schuss/Shanty Creek. Call the MDSC Hotline at (313) 593-1188 for a guide."

Lou Oles, editor of the Metropolitan Detroit Ski Clubs guide and their magazine Mountain Crier, tells me that rising ski prices have stopped some skiers from skiing in Michigan.

"It's almost as much to ski in Michigan as it is to go west. Lift ticket prices are the same. Not many people go to the U.P. from here because by the time you drive so far you can drive a good part of the distance to the west."

Lou says western resorts have been wooing kids for a long time, and many Michigan resorts now do the same with family programs.

Here is what some of your other neighbors say about skiing: Bill Heinz, Milford: "The best thing about skiing? Nobody keeps score." Heinz is a "paramedic of the slopes," a member of the National Ski Patrol.

Mark Bill, Northville: "The only reason I really have a job is so that I can afford to ski!" Bill likes heli-skiing, because "you ski untouched snow." And he likes racing because "it's the single fastest way to improve your skiing."

Bill says, "We actually have people who belong to the clubs that go on trips but don't ski. It's still a bargain."

Ginnie Uhley, Orchard Lake: "My son skied for the first time last year. He really liked the chairlift because it's so high. He's two years old."

That kid will never be a buttski.

Something for everyone

Area ski clubs offer services for everyone from kids to seniors

By Ingrid Tomey

So you're tired of roasting chestnuts on an open fire, bored with sitting around watching the white stuff through plate glass?

You're ready for something more bracing? Strap on the old K-2s, pull on your bibbs and let's go ski!

But what if you don't know a K-2 from a 2-by-4? What if you think a bibb is something to catch strained applesauce on? What if you've never skied before? What if you don't even want to ski?

The answer, according to seasoned skiers Josh Lohmann, Rick Adomitis and thousands of other metro Detroiters, is to join a ski club.

Lohmann and Adomitis are president and vice-president of Metropolitan Detroit Ski Council (MDSC), an organization of 38 local ski clubs with a combined membership of 10,000. Lohmann reports that members use the slopes at nearby mountains in northern Michigan and sometimes out west and in Europe.

"Ski clubs offer something for everyone from the never-skied-before to the advanced racer," says Adomitis. "You get a bunch of people together with a common interest and you go on a ski weekend. You ski with people of your same ability, you save money and you know it will be a good time. Even if you don't ski at all, you can have a good time."

Adomitis should know about ski clubs. Besides his affiliation with MDSC, he belongs to local clubs—Livonia Ski Club and Detroit Edison (where his wife is president), as well as the Toledo Ski Club. His 13-year old son also belongs to the Hurricane Race Team at Alpine Valley. Adomitis is about to join a fourth club—G.M., one of the larger clubs with a membership of 800. "I want to be able to choose from all the activities, from everything they have to offer."

One of the things ski clubs have to offer is lessons. According to Adomitis, almost every one of the metro ski clubs offers weekend clinics which include lessons for every level of skier. "My son, Noel, races in the central division of USSA, but he started skiing at age four and learned to ski with the Livonia Ski Skule at Mt. Brighton. The Ski Skule offers lessons on everything from using the lift for the first time to downhill racing."

One of the largest ski clubs is the Ford Thunderbirds, based in Westland with a membership of 1,700. The T-Birds, as they are known, not only offer a number of ski clinics, they also have their own ski school with 96 instructors teaching every Monday night at Mt. Brighton.

Mark Bill of Northville is a member of the Thunderbirds and a certified PSIA (Professional Ski Instructor of America) instructor.

"It makes a big difference how you learn the information," Bill emphasizes. "The equipment has changed a lot over the years and so has the approach to teaching. You want to start with where they're at, advance their skill at the rate they want to learn.

Thirty-eight local ski clubs with more than 10,000 members enjoy skiing in Michigan

"You make games up, get students having fun. We have a lot of engineers in this club (originally started by Ford employees, membership in the Thunderbirds and in all the clubs is now open to everyone) and you try to teach them to ski, they want to analyze it."

"So we have them do something absurd, like make the sloppiest turn they can. They fall—literally—out of their engineering mode and begin to have a good time."

Besides the ski school, the Thunderbirds offer a Beginners Weekend every January at the Schuss/Shanty Creek resort in Bellaire, with more than 600 members participating. The three-day package includes lodging, lift tickets, dinner, two breakfasts and several parties as well as lessons for between $185 and $215 (depending on accommodations).

According to Bill, this is the ideal initiation. "We get a bunch of people started on the slopes early in the season up north and if they like what they learn, they can join our weekly lessons at Mt. Brighton."

Other weekend offerings include trips to Boyne Mountain, including an end-of-the-season St. Patty's Day Carnival, which includes condo lodging, lift tickets, dinner, breakfasts and "parties, parties, parties" for between $160 and $180.

With well-priced ski weekends, ski weeks and ski nights offered by one club or another almost every day of the winter season there is the opportunity to try slopes in every area of the state, as well as out west, out east and as far away as New Zealand. For the Thunderbirds, this was the destination of their most memorable trip of the year, which they made in August.

"New Zealand has a very rugged terrain," recalls Bill. "There were no gondolas to take you up the mountain, just a little bus creeping up these winding switchback roads with no guard rails. You ski at the very top—about 300 feet of vertical footage. But it's not crowded. They might have 600 to 1,000 skiers in a day. Compare that to Vail with 40,000 in one day."

Besides the lack of crowds, the cost of the trip was another enticement. Our $1,800 included round-trip air fare, several days in Honolulu, hotels, plus two weeks of touring in New Zealand and extras like white water rafting and bungy-jumping off a 143-foot high bridge in Action, New Zealand. "It was absolutely the most incredible experience ever," says Bill.

In addition to skiing around the globe, the Thunderbirds offer a smorgasbord of non-skiing activities throughout the year—golf outings, ball games, canoe trips, racquetball and parties every month. It is enough to attract a number of non-skiers who just want to get in on the fun.

"I really hate winter sports," says Ann Winslow, a divorced woman in her 50s. "I tried the Beginners Weekend and fell all over the place. But I like the people in Thunderbirds so much. They have picnics in the summer and boating trips. And in the fall there's a square dance and hayride. There's just so much to do."

Smaller than the Thunderbirds, but no less enthusiastic is the G.M.

Club with about 800 members, mostly in Oakland County. Marilyn Green, a retired schoolteacher, stresses that "we're open to anyone who shares our interests. You don't have to be a skier to enjoy the benefits." G.M. has a higher percentage of singles than some of the other clubs, which has earned it a reputation for having a good time.

"We throw the best parties of anyone," says Green, "and they're open to any club in MDSC. So are all of our trips." Like the Thunderbirds, G.M. has a very full calendar with subsidized lessons at Pine Knob in January and February, and three weekend clinics at Schuss/Shanty Creek.

The clinics include lodging, breakfasts, lift tickets, cross country skiing, eight hours of instruction and a Saturday night banquet, and Warren Miller (the crazy guy who skis off cliffs) party, a live band, free beer and wine, door prizes, pool and hot tub.

"Those hot tubs turn into great parties," says Green. All this for a mere $160, double occupancy and a merer yet $130 for foursomes. Green stresses that children are welcome to join the weekend clinics at a reduced price.

G.M. also offer plenty of far flung skiing opportunities—Blue Mountain in Ontario; Jackson Hole in Wyoming; Keystone in Colorado; Sun Valley in Idaho and Courmayeur in Italy.

Green, an avid skier, plans her winter schedule around the ski trips. "I'm not going to Keystone this year. My first trip will be to Shanty Creek, then Jackson Hole. I may go to Shanty in February and then, of course, to Italy. And then, Sun Valley in April. Well, I might take a FAM trip too." (That's a freebie offered by different ski resorts to ski club members to familiarize them with the facilities.) Green adds wistfully, "This will be the first time I've missed Aspen in years."

Such passion for skiing is typical of ski club members and often infects entire families. Like Livonia's Mario and Joyce Galindo and their children—Brian, 13, and Andrea, 10. They are four of the 150 members of the Livonia Ski Club and, in spite of the expense, they ski as much as they can.

"The club does a family ski trip every year. This year it's at The Homestead. It's so special because they have special races just for the kids—one race just for fun and then a wide, slalom course. We time the kids and make videos to show them later. There's an awards night, and every kid who participates gets a trophy."

The Galindos joined the Livonia Ski Club seven years ago, and Brian and Andrea Galindo have been skiing since they were 6 and 3. "My husband grew up skiing in Bolivia," says Joyce, "and he said if we were going to ski we should join a club. We wouldn't ski at all as a family if it weren't for the ski club."

Though all the larger clubs welcome children and offer special discounts for families, some of the smaller clubs are more specific about their membership. Somerset Singles, for example, is open to single skiers over the age of 21.

With so many clubs offering so much skiing, not to mention tobogganing, partying, traveling, dancing and hot tubbing, what's your excuse for sitting in front of the TV, sipping hot chocolate all winter?

For more information about the Metropolitan Detroit Ski Council and their member clubs, call the MDSC Hotline (313) 593-1188 and ask for their 1990-1991 Ski Club Guide, how to find the club nearest you, etc. The guide lists the MDSC Social Calendar, businesses that are registered with the council, and club trips.

Sample MDSC trips open to all club members include a Dec. 7-9 instructional weekend and a Jan. 12-13 Race Weekend and a March 15-17 Spring Carnival, all at Boyne Mountain; a Mid-Winter Frolic on Jan. 25-27 at Schuss Mountain/Shanty Creek and other events.

Top clubs offer opportunities for downhill racing enthusiasts

By Ingrid Tomey

Ginnie Uhley is not what you'd call a fun skier. She's too busy patrolling the hills at Alpine Valley looking for injured skiers. And when she's not doing that, she is pursuing her real passion—racing.

Uhley, an Orchard Lake resident, is not only a member of the National Ski Patrol, the lifeguards of the slopes, she is a member of the only strictly racing club in local Detroit—a team with the unlikely name of Team Rust.

"Team Rust was started some years ago by Ski Patrol members who wanted to race. It was named after their rust colored parkas," Uhley explains.

Like many of the 40 members of Team Rust, Uhley serves in Ski Patrol as well, which leaves her very little time for recreational skiing. And there are no hot tub parties in Team Rust, no apres-ski carousing. But that's okay with Uhley. "I like racing because it fine tunes your skiing ability. I think a lot of people who have skied for awhile turn to racing."

Apparently, racing is a passion for Uhley, who is also membership director for the Alpine Competition Committee (the racing arm of Metro Detroit Ski Council), 450 people turn out for the series of four race weekends every year at Boyne Mountain. They come from some of the bigger clubs like the Ford Thunderbirds whose serious contingent of racers took national honors in 1988 and 1989 at the United States Ski Association ski week in Vail.

G.M., while a smaller club has a larger racing team which took top honors in the 1990 Miller Lite NASTAR Club Grand Prix competition in Aspen. At least a dozen of the smaller clubs have race teams as well.

While the national competitions are generally held out west, most of the racing, according to Uhley, is done right in Michigan and by all levels of skiers.

"At the Boyne Mountain weekends, the racing is geared for all abilities. There are Elites, who are at the very top in ability. These are usually people who skied in high school and college. Then there are other categories all the way down to D Level, which is for beginning skiers. The Level D course is set up to be challenging but so that the skier can just possibly make it through."

What the skiers are "making it through" are slalom courses with gates (poles) set up in a zig-zag course down the hill which skiers have to make turns around. Of the regular slalom, which has many more gates, Uhley says, "you want to go as fast as possible but you're constantly putting the brakes on to turn."

The other course is the giant slalom with fewer gates set wider apart on the hill. "In the giant slalom the skier builds up more speed because there aren't so many gates but he cuts a wider zig-zag."

Uhley not only participates in the Boyne Mountain race weekends, she practices during the week at Pine Knob, Pine Knob and Mt. Holly ski areas are owned by another Team Rust member, Joe Kosik, Jr.

And over Christmas she participates in two three-day racing camps at Alpine Valley, which are run by Bobbie Vial, who runs ski camps all over the country. Describing the camp, Uhley says, "You run gates, they make videos of you and you get a lot of coaching. It really helps me for the season, gives me things to work on."

When she's not racing or training or ski patrolling, Uhley keeps in shape by running and aerobics. If all this sounds like a lot of work, consider that Uhley also teaches nutrition at Wayne State and has a two-year-old son. But regardless of her busy schedule she's not about to give up racing. "It's great," she says. "It makes skiing more challenging."

A gift to open time after time

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

If you've already been through the malls in search of the perfect Christmas gift and come up empty-handed, area bookstores may be able to fill your order.

The Village Bible & Book Store, Bookstall on the Main and Borders Book Shop offer residents a variety of reading materials. Anything from applying the Bible to modern living to Tolstoy can be found at the stores.

In case you're wondering what the latest breaking news in Israel is, Borders Book Shop could be the place to find out. The Jerusalem Post is one of several hard-to-find overseas and national newspapers that the book shop regularly offers patrons.

The Novi Borders opened in the summer of 1988. The shop is part of a small chain of book stores which prides itself on the depth of its inventory and having workers who know the books they are selling.

Tom and Louis Borders began the company in Ann Arbor in 1971. Since then, Borders has grown with the addition of stores in Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Ohio and Washington, D.C. Besides Novi and Ann Arbor, Borders has a third Michigan shop in Southfield Township.

"Our store carries about 90,000 titles," said Borders Publicist Wanda Freeman. "It's larger than some libraries."

The store, which is located at 43263 Crescent Blvd. in the Novi Town Center, has 12,000 square feet for customers to find a book or browse to their hearts content. Just in case you can't find that special or oddball book, Borders is equipped to aid in your search.

Like many libraries, the store provides an information desk that can track any book title or author with the aid of its computer system. If the book isn't in the store, Borders can order from its parent company, Book Inventory System Inc., or go directly to the publisher.

"It's in print we are able to order it for our customers," Freeman said. "We will go to almost any length to get a book."

Borders employs a full-time clerk to make special orders and track down hard-to-find titles. Freeman said the store also puts all of its employees through a two-week training course to better serve customers. She said employees are rotated throughout the store periodically to familiarize them with each department.

Besides foreign and national newspapers, the store has a different subject sections for patrons. History, literature, periodicals, economics, sports, music and religion are just a few.

Store hours are Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

While not on the same scale, Village Bible & Book Store in Northville Township offers patrons an outlet to purchase needed spiritual reading materials.

Owners Mike and Sandra Kotulak began the book store, which is located in the Highland Lakes Shopping Center, in 1984. Mike Kotulak said he and his wife moved to their current location in 1988 from the Northville Plaza.

One reason for opening the store was to encourage people in their faith, he said. Kotulak added that many people come in to just talk about their beliefs.

That faith is reinforced the minute a customer walks into the store. Sounds of Thrash — Rock with a Christian message — fill the air.

Gifts such as sweatshirts, T-shirts, prints, posters and mugs are available at the store. Plaques with Christian messages such as "bless your heart" can also be found.

Reading materials are varied. Books on death and suffering, Christian Living and childrens, such as "My First Bible," fill the Village Bible & Book Store. In addition, study Bibles, study guides, Christian videos and pastoral aids are in stock.

"We really love working with people," Kotulak said.

Store hours are: Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Wednesday and Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. The store is closed Sunday and Monday.

Other bookstores in the area:

- Bookstall on the Main, 116 E. Main St., Northville. 348-1167.
- Family Bookstores, 43520 West Oaks Drive, Novi. 349-6620.
- Master Key Enterprises, 325 N. Center St., Northville. 349-3066.

Shop 'til you drop in New York

Northville Recreation Department is offering a one-day shopping trip to New York City on Saturday, Dec. 1. Fee is $150 and includes round trip air transportation between Detroit Metro and Newark, bus transportation between Newark and Macy's.

You'll have all day to shop, go to the theatre, tour museums — whatever you'd like to do. Limited seating is available on a first come, first paid basis. For additional information, contact the Recreation Department at 349-0203.

During this festive holiday concert, Novi's Community Chorus will perform well-known and new Christmas songs.

Tickets are $3 each and can be purchased in advance at Novi Drug, the Giftedder, and the Novi Parks and Recreation Department. In addition, tickets are available from members of the Novi Jaycees and the Novi Choralaires. Tickets will be available at the door on the evening of the concert.

The Christmas concert is sponsored by the Novi Jaycees. Proceeds will benefit the Needy Family Fund of the Novi Jaycees which will provide holiday baskets for over 75 Novi area families this holiday season.

The 50-plus member Community Chorus is under the direction of Janet Wassilak and is accompanied by Stacy Becker. For more information, call 348-NOVI.

AUDITIONS: The Plymouth Theatre Guild will be holding auditions for the warm-hearted and passionate comedy/drama Crimes of the Heart by Beth Henley on Monday and Tuesday nights, Dec. 3-4 at 7 p.m., at the Water Tower Theatre, 41001 W. Seven Mile Road on the campus of Northville Regional Hospital. Cast consists of four females and two males, ages 24 to 30. Anyone interested in auditioning or helping out behind the scenes is urged to call Bobbie at 453-8306.

"CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION '90": Fairlane Assembly will again be presenting Christmas Celebration '90, musical/drama to the community and invites everyone to attend.

The performances will be held at Fairlane Assembly West in Northville on Dec. 7, 8 and 9. The performances are scheduled as follows: Dec. 7 at 7 p.m.; Dec. 8 at 4 and 7 p.m.; Dec. 9 at 3:30 and 6:30 p.m.

"In Town" lists upcoming entertainment events happening in the Northville/Novi community. To have an item listed in this column, write to: In Town, Northville Record, 104 W. Main Street, Northville, Mich., 48167. Photos or other artwork welcome.

Arts and crafts at the bazaar

Salem Elementary School, 7806 Salem Road, Salem (one block south of Six Mile Road, between Chubb and Currie Roads), will hold its annual Christmas bazaar on Thursday, Nov. 29 beginning at 3 p.m. with an auction at 7 p.m. and on Friday, Nov. 30 from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The event will feature over 20 craft exhibitors, a continuous raffle featuring a full size, hand painted carousel horse, an auction with items such as mountain bikes and camping equipment, and a bake sale. Refreshments will be available. A free shuttle bus service will also be offered from the Salem Township Hall on Six Mile to Salem Elementary. This year, a supervised coat check area will be available.

THE NUTCRACKER: The Plymouth-Canton Company presents Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker" for the holiday enjoyment of the Detroit metropolitan area residents.

The Northville Record

All-Area squad features six Mustangs

First-team offense includes Kelley, Huzjak and Morante

The 1990 HomeTown Newspapers East All-Area Football Team, as selected by sportswriters from The Milford Times, The Northville Record, The Novi News and The South Lyon Herald, has it all. On offense, the team boasts one of the top underclass quarterbacks in the state (Ryan Huzjak), 240-plus pound linemen (Aaron Grace and Scott Vermillion) who are high on many college recruiters' lists, and an explosive player (Bill Kelley) who is a star on offense and defense.

Here is a closer look at the team:

RYAN HUZJAK, Northville, quarterback: This 6-foot-1, 170-pound junior already owns many Northville school records for season and career passing.

He was by far the area's leader in total offense with 2,206 yards. In 12 games, Huzjak completed 127 of 226 passes for 1,564 yards and 13 touchdowns. As a rusher, he compiled an area-best 820 yards in 121 attempts (6.7 yards per carry) to go along with nine touchdowns.

In all, Huzjak had a hand in 24 of Northville's 30 touchdowns this season.

"Ryan has the ability to run and the ability to throw," Mustangs coach Darrel Schumacher said. "He's a rare find. He's a natural leader with a quarterback's mentality. He has an excellent arm, and even though he knows his job isn't in jeopardy, he always works hard in practice. I think he's headed in the right direction toward being a major-college prospect."

BRIAN BEDINI, Lakeland, running back: This hard-running senior carried the ball 74 times for 729 yards, good for a 9.9 yards-per-carry average. He also led his team with 46 points.

"Brian has good speed and strength," Eagles coach Bill Mohr said. "He really improved as the year went on. He was our hardest runner, and his ability to cut back against the grain made him pretty tough."

Ironically, Bedini was an offensive lineman during his junior season. He approached Mohr about changing positions and the switch proved successful.

"We gave him the opportunity," Mohr said. "And even though he wasn't starting early in the year, he stuck with it. He just kept getting better."

ter and better."

Bedini also played linebacker on defense, recording 54 tackles and 39 assists.

BOB PORTER, South Lyon, running back: A slashing-type runner, this senior made the most of his opportunity to start in the Lions' backfield.

"Bob was a backup last season," South Lyon coach Bob Scheloske said. "He stepped in and did a solid job, though. He doesn't have break-away speed and he doesn't have great strength, but he was able to get the yardage when there was a small hole."

Porter gained an area-best 814 yards on 112 attempts, good for a 7.3 yards-per-carry average. He also led his team with 30 points.

DAVE MORANTE

Defensively, Porter started at inside linebacker most of the season.

JASON WLADISCHKIN, Novi, running back: One of the area's top bruising backs, Wladischkin is three-year starter and captain for the Wildcats.

He rushed for 618 yards in 1990 and also led the team in scoring with 42 points.

"Jason is a very strong inside runner," Novi coach John Osborne said. "It's hard to find a guy who can pound inside like him... and he's very hard to tackle."

Wladischkin also was a top-notch defensive back, but his numbers weren't impressive because opposing teams stayed away from his side of

Three Northville defenders are honored

The HomeTown Newspapers East All-Area Defensive Team was rock solid in 1990.

The five teams in the area combined to allow just 17 points per game, against some high-powered opponents like Clarkston, Birmingham Brother Rice, Brighton and Oxford. This team is stacked with some of the best athletes around, including Todd Morris, Bob Holloway, Matt Kobe and Denny Moyer.

Here's a closer look at the team:

DAN HOWELL, South Lyon, lineman: The brother of former South Lyon basketball stars Julie and Paige Howell, this junior is holding up the athletic tradition in his family.

At 6-foot-3 and 190 pounds, Howell was South Lyon's most consistent defensive lineman.

"He was always up for consideration as our Defensive Player (of the Week)," Lions coach Bob Scheloske said. "He did an excellent job protecting our linebackers. He kept people off Brett (Bennett) and was one of the reasons Brett made over 100 tackles this season."

Howell also started at offensive tackle where he joined teammate Dan Anderson to make up a solid right side of the line.

"We'd like him to get a little bigger," Scheloske added. "He's going to be a good one if he keeps improving."

RICK PIERMAN, Northville, lineman: The Mustangs' biggest player at 6-foot-3 and 225 pounds, Pierman also was a standout on defense. If there was a big play to be made, Pierman seemed to be involved.

He led Northville with eight quarterback sacks, added 50 solo tackles, 28 assists, one fumble recovery and one blocked kick. Coach Darrel Schumacher describes him as a good reading defensive tackle.

"Technique-wise, Rick is very good," he said. "He reads blocks well, he doesn't stay blocked for very long and he's had an excellent year. He's worked hard this season and he's made himself a better player."

DAVE STRAND, Milford, lineman: As an end in Milford's 4-3 defense, Strand made 56 tackles and recovered four fumbles.

He also played some middle linebacker when teammate Todd Morris went down with a knee injury late in the season.

"Dave's a quiet kid who leads by example," Redskins coach Mike Shearer said. "He's tough and all of that, but his main strength is intelligence. He picked up the linebacking responsibilities real fast. He also has a chance at Academic All-State."

Strand finished as Milford's leading receiver as well, covering 103 yards from his tight end spot. "He was an excellent blocker, too," Shearer added.

BRETT BENNETT, South Lyon, linebacker: Another of South Lyon's talented juniors, Bennett used superior quickness to outmaneuver many of his opponents.

He led the Lions with over 100 tackles and also intercepted a pass.

"As the season went along, Brett got rid of his bad habits," South Lyon coach Bob Scheloske said. "He came on real strong toward the end. The key for him was staying within the system. He had to stop free-lancing so much.

"He also developed better technique and became more of a hitter. The quickness is there... now he just has to get stronger in his lower body."

BOB HOLLOWAY, Northville, linebacker: This senior has put up the biggest single-season defensive numbers for Northville since all-star Tony Briningstool in 1986.

A valuable two-way player, this 200-pound center/linebacker would have been a first-teamer at either position. Holloway was an All-WLAA and All-Suburban choice at center, but he really excelled on defense.

"You'll be hard-pressed to find anyone better than Bob," Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "I think he's one of the best defenders around. And on offense, he's an exceptional blocker who really does a nice job blocking down field. He makes all the line calls."

By the end of the season, Holloway led the Mustangs with 166 total tackles (including 79 solo stops). He added three sacks and two fumble recoveries and three pass deflections, but his biggest play of the season defensively was a 51-yard fumble recovery for a touchdown against Plymouth Canton.

MATT KOBE, Novi, linebacker: Many predicted offensive greatness for this 6-foot, 200-pound junior, and it didn't happen in 1990. But Kobe did have a very solid campaign on defense for the Wildcats.

"Matt is a very talented young man," Coach John Osborne said. "He is very quick off the ball, he runs well and he blitzes well. Matt was a player that a lot of our opponents avoided running toward if they could."

Kobe was Novi's No. 2 tackler this season with 42 solos and 26 assists. "I knew Matt was good on both sides of the ball, but we didn't do a good job of getting him the ball enough and in the right situations offensively," Osborne added. "He's the player we will build around next season."

TODD MORRIS, Milford, linebacker: Only a knee injury during the seventh week of the season kept this senior from contending for Player of the Year honors.

A 6-foot, 205-pounder, Morris excelled on both sides of the ball. He

The resurgence of Northville High School football is the direct result of some hard work and support from many people.

But in the final analysis, it's the players and the coaches who are on the field, doing the job. And for the Mustangs, the two key figures were Head Coach Darrel Schumacher and standout senior Bill Kelley.

Together, they were a big factor in the turnaround—that's why they are the recipients of the 1990 HomeTown Newspapers East Player and Coach of the Year honors.

Turning around a losing tradition is one of the most difficult feats in athletics, and even though respect for Northville football never disappeared in the last half-decade, the victories were few and far between. But in '90, Schumacher, Kelley, and a host of others too numerous to mention pulled together and ended that trend in grand fashion.

Without a winning season since 1985, the Mustangs were looking to win more than they lost this fall. But what eventually transpired—a berth in the MHSAA Class A playoffs and a spot in the prestigious final four—was more than most could fathom.

The team's eight victories were more than Northville managed in both 1988 and 1989 combined. The Mustangs had another tough defense, but that wasn't unusual. It was a high-powered offense, featuring Kelley and junior quarterback Ryan Huzjak, that separated this team from the others.

Kelley was the area's premier two-way player. As a defensive back he was second in the area with four interceptions, he added 10 pass deflections, and also led the talented Mustang defense with 51 tackles. The amazing thing was that many teams avoided Kelley's side of the field—for obvious reasons.

As a receiver, Kelley led the area with 38 receptions and 489 yards. As a runner, he was in the top 10 with 321 yards. He scored seven rushing TDs and six passing, and led the area with 84 points. And as a special teams star, Kelley showed his big-play ability with over 700 yards, including a pair of 97-yard kickoff returns.

In all, more than 1,500 yards of total offense and 2,134 for a career. "I don't really see myself as a big-play guy," he said. "I just go out, play hard and try to do whatever it takes. If a big play happens, then that's great, but it's not like I dwell on it."

In Schumacher's first four seasons as head coach, the Mustangs struggled to a 13-23 record. But this fall, he found a talented group of players and found a way to mold his system in order to fit the strengths of his team.

As a result, the standard two-back offense was dumped in favor of a four-receiver passing attack, which catered to the arm of Huzjak, the great open-field potential of Kelley and to a fine stable of receivers.

Huzjak went on to break most of the school's single season passing records and Kelley moved into the No. 3 slot among the all-time career yardage leaders. It was no accident, but rather a bold coaching move that took insight, imagination and innovation. Schumacher's relationship with his players is also a key. He has their respect, but is also a friend.

That's what good quality coaching is all about.

Wyandotte Roosevelt Coach Bart Estola said it best: "I think (Northville) is a very, very good team that is well-coached."

Three Mustangs featured on offense the field.

"We switched him to linebacker late in the season and he became more involved in making tackles," Osborne said. "He was a good leader."

JOE DORR, Lakeland, receiver: An off-season weightlifting program helped this senior gain the strength and confidence necessary to lead the Eagles.

As a tight end on offense, Dorrr scored 24 points and caught 18 passes for 308 yards. He also was a key blocker in Lakeland's successful running game.

"Joe had a good combination for a tight end," Eagles coach Bill Mohr said. "He could block and catch the ball. He was determined to have a good season, and he did."

On defense, Dorrr contributed as a safety and an end. He went both ways approximately two-thirds of the season.

BILL KELLEY, Northville, receiver: One would be hard pressed to find a more valuable two-way player in the state than senior Bill Kelley.

He is probably the area's top defensive back, but it was on offense that he dazzled opponents with over 1,500 total yards.

Moved from tailback to a slotback this fall, Kelley led the area in pass receptions (38) and passing yardage (489)—an average of nearly 13 yards per catch. He also caught six touchdown passes.

As a runner, Kelley had 321 yards in 71 attempts (4.5 per carry) and seven TDs. On the special teams, the 5-foot-11, 175-pounder had over 500 yards on kickoff returns, including a pair of 97-yard scores.

Defensively, Kelley picked off four passes (one for a T.D.), knocked down 10, recovered two fumbles and made 51 tackles.

"You talk about Bill if you're talking about the ultimate competitor," Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "He's worked harder this year than anybody and it's resulted in an excellent year. He's dynamite in the open field. He has a lot of moves and good acceleration. That's why we moved him to a receiver position."

DAN ANDERSON, South Lyon, lineman: This 6-foot-3 190-pound junior guard made a lot of progress during his second season as a starter.

"We were very effective running the ball to the right behind Anderson and (tackle Dan) Howell," Lions coach Bob Scheloske said. "Anderson gives us real good size at a guard spot, yet he still has the quickness you need there. He did an excellent job blocking the nose man one-on-one."

Anderson started at defensive tackle as well. Scheloske said he was a "real force," using his size, quickness and upper-body strength to dominate opponents.

AARON GRACE, Lakeland, lineman: With exceptional quickness for his size, this 260-pounder has drawn interest from several universities.

Grace, a three-year starter on both offense and defense, was a versatile performer for the Eagles. He played center on offense; tackle, linebacker and end on defense; and also served as Lakeland's kicker.

Grace also demonstrates his athletic ability by playing on the school's basketball and baseball teams.

"Aaron definitely was one of our best all-around people," Lakeland coach Bill Mohr said. "He's aggressive, and he likes to hit people. What makes him tough is that his first two steps are real quick."

Grace's defensive statistics include 40 tackles, 30 assists, four sacks and four fumble recoveries.

BRIAN HAMILTON, Milford, lineman: A 6-foot-3 223-pound senior, Hamilton was one of the most physical players in the area. He was an offensive guard and defensive tackle for the Redskins, and very rarely lost a battle on the line of scrimmage.

"He led us in pancakes . . . which is when you put the defensive lineman on his back," Milford coach Mike Shearer said. "To be honest, I don't remember anyone beating him on the line. There were a few (standoffs), but Brian dominated for the most part."

Hamilton, one of Milford's tri-captains, also recorded 36 tackles from his defensive position.

"You could always count on him," Shearer added. "He's a real tough kid and just an excellent player. It's hard to replace someone like him."

DAVE MORANTE, Northville, lineman: There may be bigger offensive tackles around (Morante goes 6-foot-1, 190 pounds), but not many are quicker or stronger than this Mustang senior.

Morante actually cut a little weight from last year to become leaner and quicker, but his dedicated work in the weight room helped him increase his strength.

"He's the unsung player on our team," Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "He's a leader on the field and in the weight room, and he's rallied this team. Dave isn't huge but he is very smart and uses good blocking techniques. He's a heck of an offensive lineman who loves to trap block and does a good job of it."

On defense, Morante chipped in with 37 tackles, 2½ sacks and a fumble recovery.

SCOTT VERMILLION, Novi, lineman: At 6-foot-1 and 240 pounds, this senior is quite a physical specimen.

Vermillion entered this season with limited experience as a varsity starter due to a knee injury suffered last season, but he quickly established himself as a premier center and defensive end.

"You want your best offensive lineman to be a center and Scott was that," Osborn said. "He's a trooper and a tough player. He's very strong and he put in a good off-season in the weight room. It showed."

On defense, Vermillion had 19 solo tackles, 13 assists and a fumble recovery.

JASON LIPKE, South Lyon, kicker: Only a junior, Lipke's long kickoffs and ability to boot 40-yard field goals made him a true offensive weapon for the Lions.

"He's a valuable player," South Lyon coach Bob Scheloske said. "He's been improving, and we'd like to think he'll be even more of a threat next season."

"If he works hard like he did last summer, I'd say he has college potential."

Lipke, a member of the soccer team as well, converted six field goals and all but two of his extra-point attempts. He holds school records for most career field goals and the longest field goal (42 yards).

made 61 tackles, recovered one fumble and blocked a kick from his middle linebacker position, and rushed for 696 yards and seven touchdowns from his fullback slot.

"Todd's a good player," Milford coach Mike Shearer said. "He was our leader, physically and vocally. He was a big hitter on defense and big runner on offense. He set the tone for us."

"In terms of college ball, I'd say it's a definite possibility. He has the grades and the determination. He just plays the game with so much intensity. When he runs the ball, he's always pumping his legs. One guy can't bring him down."

MIKE GOWANS, Novi, back:

Wildcats coach John Osborne calls this 5-foot-9, 160-pound junior "our spiritual leader."

Not blessed with great size or ability, Gowans worked hard and developed himself into a premier player.

"Mike has a tremendous amount of inner strength," his coach said. "He's a great leader by example and I believe if we had a few more like him, we wouldn't have lost four games. He's a great one because he's turned into a fine player with average ability."

From his safety position, Gowans registered a team-high 69 tackles (38 solo, 33 assists), picked off a pass and recovered a fumble. Gowans was also one of Novi's starting receivers and back-up quarterback.

MARK HILFINGER, Northville, back: Hilfinger is another two-way standout for Northville. As a receiver, he caught 35 passes for 481 yards and four touchdowns. As a defensive back, he led the area with six interceptions.

"Mark was the surprise of the year for us," Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "We were worried about our secondary heading into the season, but he's been rock solid. He gets to the ball and he is a proven tackler. He takes his 150-pound frame and throws it at anybody with the ball."

Hilfinger added 48 solo tackles, 39 assists, one sack, one fumble recovery and three pass deflections.

DENNY MOYER, South Lyon, back: Moyer's athletic and leadership skills were assets for South

Lyon, which relied on him both offensively and defensively.

As a free safety, the senior intercepted three passes and was a consistent performer all season. He also started at quarterback, completing 48 of 100 passes for 476 yards.

JEFF SCHRAM, Novi, back: A serious ankle injury knocked this senior out for the season in the eighth game, and the Wildcats really missed him.

Schram was a standout on defense from his strong safety position. He led the team with three interceptions, pounced on two fumbles and made 43 tackles (25 solos).

"Jeff was always there when we needed him," Coach John Osborne said.

AARON DUNHAM, Milford, punter: This senior brought stability to Milford's kicking game. He averaged 36 yards per punt and converted all but one of his kicks (14-for-14 on extra points and 4-for-5 on field goals).

"Aaron was a big surprise," Redskins coach Mike Shearer said. "We weren't counting on him at all. He was hurt most of last season, so we really didn't know what he could do."

"The thing I like about him, though, is he's not just a kicker. He did a lot of things for us. He played some tight end and split end on offense, and he also was a defensive end."

Northville's Western Division Honorable Mention: Kevin Gill, Ryan Kilner, Tim Kerns, Jamey Miller, Dave Morante, Brian Scholz, Jeff Todd and Jason Vertees

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Northville Football Coach Darrel Schumacher will tell you good teams always seem to have good players, and the Mustang gridders were no different in 1990.

But unlike in the recent past, Northville reaped post-season honors in record numbers, including a three-man contingent on the 24-member All-Conference team. A lot of that had to do with a successful 8-4 campaign that culminated with an appearance in the MHSAA Class A semifinals. It usually works like this: the more wins you have, the more respect you gain from others like opposing coaches and the media. The more respect you have from those circles, the more post-season awards you garner.

Senior center/linebacker Bob Holloway must have impressed a lot of people this season. The 6-foot-2, 200-pounder was the All-WLAA center selection and was also a first-team All-Metro West pick by the Detroit News and an All-Suburban honoree by the Detroit Free Press. Schumacher called him "the brains of our offensive line." On defense, he led the Mustangs with 166 total tackles.

Fellow senior Bill Kelley was also an All-Conference and All-Metro West receiver, and wrapped up his fine career at Northville with 2,154 all-purpose yards — number three on the all-time Northville list. Kelley was the Mustangs' big-play man with 489 yards receiving, 321 yards rushing and 753 yards in returns.

Defensive back Mark Hilfinger picked off an area-best six passes in '90 and was honored with a berth on the All-WLAA defense. And with 35 receptions for 481 yards, he was also a member of the All-Metro West second team as a receiver.

In addition, quarterback Ryan Huzjak and defensive lineman Rick Pierman were All-Western Division selections. Just a junior, Huzjak already holds the career school records in pass attempts, pass completions and passing yards (2,239) as well as season marks in attempts (226), completions (127) and yards (1,564). After accounting for more than 2,200 yards in total offense in '90, Huzjak is now considered one of the top underclass signalcallers in the state.

Pierman (6-foot-3, 225-pounds) registered 78 tackles this season and was a big-play defender all season. For example, he blocked a kick and registered seven sacks in 12 games.

But perhaps the most deserving honor came when the Detroit News named Schumacher the Metro West Coach of the Year. After struggling to a 13-23 record (.361 winning percentage) during his first four years at the helm of Mustang football, Schumacher went 8-4 this fall, to increase that mark to 21-27 overall (.437 percentage). And with talented players like Huzjak, Jamie Miller, Rob Subotich and Brian Scholz all returning, those numbers will probably continue to improve.

Other unsung heroes like Ryan Kilner, Dave Morante, Jason Vertees, Kevin Gill, Tim Kerns and Jeff Todd were also integral parts of the team, and received various honorable mention status.

Northville boys reverse trend with 3-3 cross country season

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

The cross country season for the Northville boys won't go down in history as a great campaign, but the Mustangs did reverse a losing trend that's dogged the program for several years.

"In the last few years we've had losing seasons and we wanted to turn it around," Northville Coach Ed Gabrys said. "That was our goal."

The Mustangs didn't notch a winning season, but the team's 3-3 dual-meet mark was an improvement. And two of those defeats came against powerful teams like Walled Lake Western and Plymouth Canton.

"And our best races were at invitationals rather than dual meets," Gabrys said. "We ran against a lot of good teams in dual meets."

The highlight of the season may have been on Oct. 27 at the MHSAA Regionals. Northville placed seventh in a tough 19-team field and junior Steve Coon qualified for the state meet with a 10th place individual finish. He later decided to end his season prior to the state meet.

Coon managed to drop his career-

"In the last few years we've had losing seasons and we wanted to turn it around. That was our goal."

ED GABRYS
Northville coach

best time at Cass Benton Park by 24 seconds this season, but his performance at the WLAA Meet was 21 seconds off his time from a year earlier in the same course.

"The potential is there for Steve, but he peaked a little too early," Gabrys said. "He's been our number-one runner since he was a freshman, so he has the experience and we think he'll have a good senior year next year."

With the graduation of Andy Haas, Jamie Groves and Mike Connery next spring, Gabrys will lose the middle of his line-up.

"They were basically our number two, three and four guys and they will be hard to replace," Gabrys admitted. "A guy like Haas didn't develop as much as we expected, but his injury (stress fracture) last season may have had something to do with it. Despite that, he's been a key member of the team for a long time."

In addition to Coon, junior Doug Huntington and sophomore Parag Parikh were contributors, and will be expected to fill in at the top of the line-up next fall. Huntington improved by 26 seconds at Cass Benton throughout the season.

"Doug decided about midway through the season that he could be successful, and his times dropped immediately," Gabrys said. "Parag has shown a lot of potential for a first-year runner. He's learned a lot and he'll run smarter next year."

Not one single freshman runner came out for the team this year, and Gabrys realizes that isn't a good sign. But other sophomores like Chris Smith and Rob Kukainis show promise.

"Our future is contingent upon getting some of the young kids out," he said. "Cross country is not a high-profile sport, and sometimes it's difficult to recruit."

Diabetic complications examined

Improved management of diet, exercise and drug therapy offers people with Type II diabetes an increased life expectancy. But living longer also increases the possibility of diabetic complications.

According to Novi/Oakland Foot-care Associates, the complication most feared by diabetics — except for blindness — is the loss of a leg or foot. Consider the facts:

- Approximately 20 percent of the diabetics who enter the hospital are admitted for foot problems.
- Thirty percent of all diabetics have significant peripheral vascular disease.
- Of all nontraumatic amputations in the United States, approximately 50 percent are performed on diabetics.

Alarming as these statistics are, recent studies are more encouraging. Diabetics who receive frequent foot inspections, self-help education, and, when indicated, special shoes have one-third fewer hospital admissions due to foot problems.

The number of diabetic-related amputations is reduced by over one-half through regular exams and proper foot care. The evidence seems impressive. In addition to controlling blood sugar, diet and exercise, the most important foot-saving approach is daily, vigilant foot care.

The two main causes of foot problems for people with Type II diabetes are poor circulation and nerve damage. A common diabetic circulatory complication is called peripheral vascular disease — a blockage particularly in the smaller blood vessels below the knee. This clogging prevents blood from traveling to the legs and feet.

Neuropathy (nerve damage) causes varying degrees of loss of feelings in the feet. This may be so pronounced that a person could step on a piece of glass and not feel any pain. In addition, a person may step on a hot surface and be completely unaware of a severe burn.

Loss of sensation causes many people with diabetes to underestimate, or ignore their foot problems, leaving them more vulnerable to injury.

The most dramatic result of neuropathy comes from undetected foot lesions which can lead to ulceration, infection and gangrene.

Along with frequent medical checkups, a daily self-exam will help prevent real and potential foot complications. Learn to recognize the symptoms due to vascular disease:

- pain on walking, usually in calf; relieved by stopping.
- cold feet
- night pain or pain while lying down
- rest pain
- slow healing of cuts and scratches
- shiny appearance of skin

- loss of hair on foot and toes
- thick nails, often with a fungus
- gangrene

The symptoms of foot problems due to neuropathy include:

- abnormal sensation or sensitivity
- pain
- heavy callus formation
- ulcers, infection and change in shape of foot.

The impairment of the autonomic nervous system also causes diabetic foot problems. There is a decreased ability of the foot to perspire, which leads to dry, scaly skin which can crack and become infected.

For proper foot care, you must inspect your feet every day. Set aside a regular time for an examination. If you notice any sores, discoloration, or infections, see your physician at once.

Novi High pool is available for rent

For those who like to keep fit by swimming, the Novi High School Pool is available for rent. Groups may rent the pool on Fridays from 7:30-9 p.m. If interested, call the Novi Community Education Office at 348-1200 at least one month prior to date requested.

The Novi pool will also be open to the public on Tuesdays and Thursdays through Dec. 20. The open swim will be from 7-8:30 p.m. with the lap swim following from 8:30-9:30 p.m.

The fee is 50 cents per person and senior citizens are free. Children age 10 and under must be accompanied by an adult.

The Novi Parks and Recreation Department offers a variety of health screening events each week.

One is blood pressure screening for senior citizens. This free service is offered each Wednesday in the Novi Civic Center from 11 a.m.-noon.

MOTORIZED CALISTHENICS: Motorized calisthenics at "The Slender You" in Novi is being offered at a special price for senior citizens through the Novi Parks and Recreation. The program promotes mobility and better circulation.

You'll get a free visit, as well as your next visits at only $4.50 each or 12 for $49, as long as you visit on week days between 1-3 p.m.

Call 347-0400 for more information.

FITNESS OVER 50: A one-hour exercise program called "Fitness Over 50" is held Monday and Wednesday mornings at Twelve Oaks Mall. It takes place 9-10 a.m. in the Lord & Taylor corridor near the east entrance.

The program, conducted by the University of Michigan Division of Physical Education, is particularly aimed at older people and others who would benefit from an invigorating but non-strenuous exercise program.

Fitness Over 50 welcomes all interested persons, regardless of age and current activity level. Call the Twelve Oaks Management Office, 348-9438, for further information.

NEW ATTITUDE AEROBICS: The Northville Community Recreation Department has the fitness program designed to meet your needs: low- and high-impact aerobic alternatives with toning and shaping floorwork, fun and easy-to-follow workouts.

New Attitude Aerobics conducts the one-hour class year-round at the Community Recreation gymnasium the following days: Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 9:15 a.m.; Monday and Wednesday at 5:45 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday at 7 p.m. and Saturday at 8 a.m.

For more registration and scheduling information, call 349-0203 or 348-3120.

YOGA CLASSES: Seven-week yoga classes are being offered in Northville this fall. Diane Siegel-DiVita, past president of the Yoga Association of Greater Detroit, is the instructor.

The classes will be offered on Thursdays (7-8:30 p.m.) or Sundays (10:10-11:40 a.m.) at the Northville American Legion Hall.

Cost is $28. For more information, call Siegel-DiVita at 344-0928.

Is your child's pain functional or organic?

By SUSAN LAURENT
Special Writer

"Mommy, my tummy hurts."

This is a common pediatric complaint that may have many causes, some physical, but also some emotional causes as well. Doctors call emotionally based pain "functional." It can be difficult to deal with and difficult to treat.

There are usually characteristic patterns of pain that will give clues to the parents about whether the pain is "functional" or "organic" (having a physical cause). The pain of appendicitis may start around the navel and progress to the lower right side. Often, there is fever and vomiting. Urinary tract infections are usually accompanied by burning and frequency of urination. A child who is previously toilet trained will suddenly start to have accidents.

Gastroenteritis or "stomach flu" is usually associated with general "all over" abdominal pain, diarrhea and vomiting. There may be low-grade fever and sometimes other family members will have the same complaints.

Food poisoning occurs in outbreaks. For instance, one to 48 hours after a picnic, participants will experience nausea, vomiting and diarrhea. Often there has been inadequate refrigeration or cooking of the food.

A very common cause of stomach aches in children is constipation. What is a normal bowel pattern? The frequency of the stool varies from one to four days, but a constipated stool is hard, dry and painful to pass. Children's bowel patterns vary, but if the stool is very soft and not painful to pass, the pattern is probably normal.

The best treatment for constipation is increasing fluids, fresh fruits, vegetables and whole grains. If a child has a long history of constipation, it may be necessary to do a "bowel clean out" which is best supervised by a physician. Good bowel habits should also be followed.

Other less common causes of abdominal pain in children include kidney stones, milk intolerance, inflammatory bowel disease and peptic ulcers. The pattern of pain in children with peptic ulcer is often different from the characteristic adult pattern. If the pain wakes the child from sleep, interferes with pleasurable activities and there is family history of peptic ulcer disease, it is best to have the child evaluated by your pediatrician.

Milk intolerance is caused by a deficiency of the enzyme lactase, which breaks up the sugar in milk. Children will have abdominal pain, bloating and loose stools. There often is a family history of milk intolerance. Symptoms will clear up when milk and dairy products are eliminated from the diet.

Sometimes children will attempt to avoid school by complaining that their tummy hurts. Parents should keep a diary of the child's pain and see if it only occurs on school days. There may be an unpleasant experience that the child is trying to avoid. However, as with adults, avoidance only seems to make the problem worse.

After the parent has investigated any school problems and attempted to deal with them, the most effective strategy is to insist that the child return to school. Some children are very anxious and this anxiety manifests itself as stomach pain. If this is the case, it is best to explain to the child that the pain they are feeling is real, but is caused by nerves. These children are very sensitive to emotional situations and react with stomach pain.

There are many causes of stomach pain in children, some physical and some emotional. Usually the pattern of the pain and the accompanying symptoms help alert the parent as to whether this pain can be dealt with at home or needs referral to your pediatrician.

The Darthia

A kitchen for a gourmet cook, and lots of light

By JAMES McALEXANDER

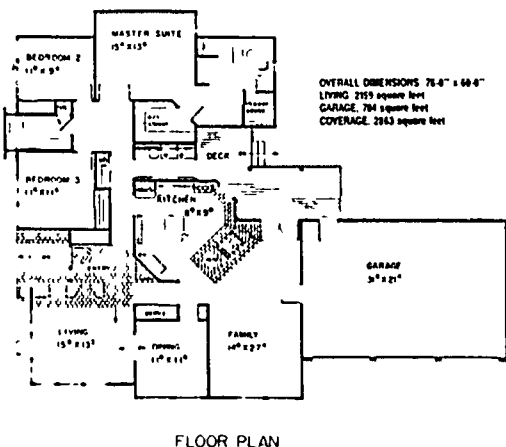

The generous use of windows, masonry and natural materials helps to create the flavor of refined elegance evident in the Darthia.

A brick floor begins at the outside covered entryway and extends inside through the entry hall and around a corner, to become the raiser hearth for the fireplace in the sunken living room. The fireplace wall is highlighted by two full walls of windows.

Even a gourmet cook would approve of the kitchen; a range is set into a cooking island and microwave and conventional ovens are set into a cabinet with a brick floor surrounding. The brick follows the angles of a breakfast nook overlooking a protected deck. A seven-foot-long pantry is provided in addition to the one in the kitchen. French doors lead to the deck.

A walk-through utility leads from the bedroom wing to the outside deck. The deep sink there increases the value of that utility as a "mud room." The two bedrooms also have lots of window space and plenty of closets. The main bathroom has a linen closet, and the tub is set into a windowed extension.

The master suite holds a large bedroom and one of the most luxurious dressing and bath areas. The dressing area opens to a huge walk-in closet with a vanity counter. Long narrow windows set off the spa, the center of attention for the master bath. The spa is sunk into a raised platform, with lounging steps leading up to it.

For a study plan of the Darthia (109-36), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

These shelves in Marge Nagy's kitchen make an ideal spot to display her crafts.

By MARILYN HERALD

"Calico, Gingham and Such," is Marge Nagy's trade name for her country wood collectibles and other handmade items. Appropriately, the name fits her home decorating motif as well.

Nagy's home in Axford Acres, Highland, is a showcase for her crafts from the welcome sign on the front door right through the living room, dining/kitchen area, family room, bedrooms and baths.

Nagy makes a lot of different things — from small wooden houses that are often replicas of places she has visited to quilt squares, cats, ceramic items and other novelties used in decorating.

Some 5,000 of her handmade items are displayed on her special pegboard booth when she sets up shop at an area arts and crafts show.

Nagy literally got into crafts by accident. Her son suffered a closed-head injury several years ago in a vehicle accident. Searching for something to keep him occupied as he recuperated, Nagy and her sister hit on the idea of encouraging him to make some wooden craft items. Nagy and her sister also produced some items for the show.

"It wasn't a success," Nagy recalled. "I paid $20 for a booth at the Art Mart that day and we only sold $45 worth of things. My son got really perturbed over his things not selling. It was something he couldn't deal with because of the head injury."

"He never made anything again, but I was hooked."

Since Nagy's husband, George, is a builder, it seemed natural for her to work with wood crafts. He often does some of the wood cutting for her, while she paints the items and adds detailing.

When Nagy makes her miniature houses, she always works on a set of four exactly alike, except that she may use a variety of colors when painting them. "I get my ideas from places we visit. I love to travel and copy some of the historic buildings. Sometimes I use a photograph in order to remember the details."

Apparently, Nagy does well on details. Well enough at least to win the "Best of Show" award at the big September craft show in Milford which is coordinated in conjunction with the Annual Home Tour.

Anyone who would like to see Nagy's varied crafts on display and perhaps purchase some things for Christmas has several opportunities in the near future.

Nagy's "Calico, Gingham and Such" booth will be set up at the Northville Recreation Center on Main Street all day Saturday, Dec. 1. She will offer her crafts at Walled Lake Western High School on Beck Road on both Saturday, Dec. 1 and Sunday, Dec. 2.

On Sunday, Dec. 16, Nagy's crafts will be for sale at the Multi-Lakes Conservation Club in Commerce Township.

Nagy's living room is an ideal place to demonstrate how crafts can add to the general decor of the room. Two of her quilt squares hang from a wooden shelf that holds a variety of craft items, and decorative pillows adorn the couch. Around the room, ceramic pieces and wood items she has created are worked naturally into the arrangement. Nearly every piece has a story it seems.

The divider between her kitchen and family room holds a large number of craft items as does the high, decorator shelf around the dining area. Ducks share the space with donkeys, bears, sheep, houses, a little girl figure and a farmer and his wife, made of wood.

Nagy's quilt squares are usually worked while she and her husband drive to Central Michigan University to visit their daughter who is in college there. "I can usually do one quilt square on the way up and one on the way back," Nagy noted. "I have a saying, 'When life gives you scraps, make a quilt.'"

A Victorian house quilt square is one of Nagy's most popular sellers. She has several ordered ahead. The design has been worked into one of her favorite sweat shirts which she often wears when attending craft shows.

Several of Nagy's craft items have a patriotic theme which she said is popular now. She makes Betsy Ross dolls, seated in small wooden chairs and holding a 13-star handmade flag. Other items with red, white and blue motifs include wooden horses heads, used for wall decorations, and quilt squares for wall hangings.

"I'm back into doing cats again, but now I do all black ones. I have three different patterns for cats."

Although Nagy declined to say how much she might take in on an average day at a craft show, she admitted that some days and some shows are a whole lot better than others. Many shows are set up outside and this year a heavy downpour of rain split her vinyl awning right in two.

"I was up there on a ladder, sewing it back together before the show started again."

Although craft shows sometimes provide problems like this most are fun to do and "you meet lots of nice people," Nagy said, adding that she sometimes finds other crafters things that are hard to resist buying.

A full-time teacher's aid in the special education rooms at Muir Middle School and Milford High School, Nagy is never too tired for her crafts.

She comes home each evening, prepares dinner and after eating and doing dishes, she starts right in working on crafts. "I quilt while I listen to TV. I can't watch it very well and quilt too."

New home loan favors modest income

By JAMES M. WOODARD

A new type of home mortgage loan will soon be available to buyers, making it possible for families to qualify for and purchase a home.

The new loan is primarily structured for homes needing some moderate repairs before qualifying for financing. The loan will cover most of the purchase and repair costs.

It's the first time a major mortgage loan program has included funding the entire package of home and repairs. Previously, two separate loans were required.

The loan, to be offered by lenders throughout the country soon after the first of the year, is called the Community Home Improvement Loan. It will be available to qualified modest-income home buyers.

The new loan was planned as a joint project by Fannie Mae (Federal National Mortgage Association) and GE Capital Mortgage Insurance Co.

Borrowers may use the loan to either purchase a home or refinance an existing home. In either case, it will cover financing of the home and needed repairs.

The loaned funds can finance up to 95 percent of the "as completed" value of the home. All types of repair work are allowed, according to Fannie Mae.

Borrower qualification requirements are quite flexible. Up to 33 percent of a family's income can be devoted to housing expenses—38 percent to total obligations.

Due to the unique nature of rehabilitation coverage, the Community Home Improvement Loan will require of borrowers a two-month mortgage payment cash reserve at closing not required under the Community Home Buyers' Program, a Fannie Mae report stated.

Martin D. Levine, Fannie Mae's vice president for low- and moderate-income housing, said "This unique mortgage will, for the first time, enable modest-income home buyers to make the home improvements necessary for home purchase by obtaining a single loan. Fannie Mae also expects that this mortgage will prove useful in helping to revitalize neighborhoods."

In yet other new home financing development, many lenders are now teaming up to generate funds for new home-building projects through syndications.

"Banks, savings and loans, and other lenders have been forced to curtail conventional construction lending in home building under the rigorous oversight of federal regulators, causing a severe shortage of capital," said Phillip R. Nicholson, a partner at Cox, Castle & Nicholson, a law firm specializing in real estate issues.

"Armed with tremendous experience in this area, many lenders are redirecting this expertise to create syndicated funds marketed to corporations, pension funds and foreign investors. These funds may insure the continued flow of capital for residential development."

In times like this, when the U.S. economy is experiencing unprecedented problems, it takes new and innovative financing plans to keep our housing programs on track.

Q. In what state are home prices the lowest?

A. The lowest median price of homes is reported from Iowa—$48,883. The next lowest median price is in Oklahoma ($49,653), then North Dakota ($51,404). These figures are from Century 21 Real Estate Corp.

As a personal note, I am a native Iowan who moved to Ventura, Calif. The current median home price in Ventura would buy 5.3 median-priced homes in Iowa.

The advice should now be, "Go west, young man but prepare for a super sticker-shock!"

Q. Will home mortgage interest rates rise or fall during the next few months?

A. The prognosticators at the National Association of Realtors made this statement in a recent report:

"The interest rates are not expected to fall soon, as the Federal Reserve Board continues its efforts to hold down inflation and keep attracting foreign capital. Uncertain prospects for federal budget deficit reduction are making foreign investors reluctant to increase their investments in the United States."

"As a result, U.S. interest rates must remain higher than those in foreign countries to keep attracting foreign funds. This ties the hands of Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan and keeps rates higher than they would be otherwise."

"Overall economic sluggishness will curb growth in all sectors of the housing industry, including housing starts and sales of existing and new homes. Jitters about the health of the U.S. economy will lead home buyers to remain cautious throughout the remainder of 1990."

Inquiries are invited and may be answered in this column. Write James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Soup toureen was made in Stoke, England

By JAMES G. McCOLLAM

Q. What can you tell me about my antique soap toureen with cover and under plate?

It is marked with wreath and crown with "Copeland" inside the wreath.

A. The mark you describe was used by W.T. Copeland & Co. Ltd. in Stoke, England, in the late 19th century. It would probably sell for $245 to $265 in an antique shop.

Q. The attached mark is on the bottom of a teapot that holds about two pints. It is decorated with a horse and buggy. There are red bands around the upper and lower part. Can you tell me anything about the vintage, value and origin?

A. This mark was used by the Edwin Bennett Pottery Co. in Baltimore, around the turn of the century. It would probably sell for about $35 to $45.

Q. The initials "C.T." under and eagle is the mark on a vase decorated with a garden scene that includes a beautiful girl with two cherubs. It is nine inches tall and has two handles.

Can you tell me anything about its vintage and value? Do you know who made it?

A. The mark indicates that it was made by the Carl Tielsch company in Altwaaser, Germany, during the late 19th century. It would probably sell for about $165 to $185.

Q. I have an eight-piece wash stand set consisting of pitcher and bowl, soap dish, toothbrush holder, small pitcher, shaving mug, etc. It is marked "K.T. & K. Co." with an eagle.

Can you identify the maker? What is the value?

A. Your set was made by Knowles, Taylor & Knowles in East Liverpool, Ohio, about 1900. It would probably sell for $265 to $285 in good condition.

Q. I have an armchair made of

This soup toureen would probably sell for $245 to $265 in an antique shop.

genuine steer horns; the seat is covered with cowhide. Can you tell me when it was made and what I can sell it for?

A. Chairs like this as well as tables, stools and hat racks were made in Denver between 1880 and 1900. Dealers are currently selling these chairs for $500 to $600. Unless you sell to a collector, you may have to settle for $300 to $400. Dealers are in business to make a profit.

Q. The enclosed mark is on the back of a porcelain cake plate. It is 11 inches in diameter and decorated with hand-painted fruit.

Can you identify the maker? When it was made and how much it is worth?

A. This mark was used by the Hutschenreuther porcelain factory in Selb, Germany, during the late 19th century. Your cake plate would probably sell for about $65 to $75.

Q. I have a very old Bible (1795) in excellent condition. It was published in Edinburgh by Mark and Charles Kerr, His Majesty's Printers. It was translated out of the original tongues.

I would appreciate anything you can tell me about its value.

A. First, it must be understood that there were more Bibles printed than all other books combined; old Bibles are not rare.

Bibles like yours, which is about 200 years old, commonly sells for $100 to $200 in very good condition. There are exceptions, such as those illustrated by famous artists like Gustave Dore.

Q. Someone told me that old beer cans are collectibles. Is that true? I found one labeled "Red Top Ale"—it has a cone top and takes the kind of cap that used to come on pop bottles. Does this have any value?

A. There are lots of old beer cans that are worth very little. Some, like your cone-top can, are valuable. They were introduced in the mid-1930s and were used for only a few years.

Your Red Top Ale can would probably sell for $50 to $60 in good condition.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item to James G. McCollam, P.O. Box 1087, Noire Dame, IN 46556. All questions will be answered, but published pictures cannot be returned.

McCollam is a member of the Antique Appraisers Association of America.

Sealer enhances look of flagstone floor

By GENE GARY

Q. We recently purchased a home with a flagstone floor in the entryway. This has a rough texture, and I am not sure how it should be cleaned, which it needs badly, or how it should be maintained. I have found very little information on flagstone. Can you give me any suggestions?

A. Any existing sealer should be stripped from the surface. Ammonia diluted with water will strip most sealers. Then scrub the surface with a stiff bristle brush (do not use wire) and a solution of TSP (one part mixed with nine parts of water). Let dry thoroughly.

The best way to treat the cleaned surface is to give it a coat of regular penetrating floor sealer. This should be a sealer of low viscosity and not more than 25 percent solids.

One coat of a sealer should suffice until it appears to be worn away, which should not occur for several months, depending on the amount of traffic. Then it should be patched without going over the whole floor (unless the area is small).

If the flagstone is a light color, regular floor sealer may give it a slight amber tint. If you don't want that, use a colorless solvent type terrazzo sealer. It may have to be applied more often as it seldom runs more than 12 percent solids.

A sealer will not only enhance the appearance of your flagstone, it will also make it easier to maintain.

Q. I have a large mirror that has some scratches and dark spots. They are not terribly noticeable. Is there any way I can repair them myself?

A. If the damage is not too bad, there are some techniques that might work.

First remove the mirror backing. On discolored or tarnished spots on the back of the mirror, use the abrasive side of a kitchen sponge to scrub off the discoloration. Try to avoid enlarging the affected area.

Patch these spots with a piece of aluminum foil. No adhesives are necessary; the patch will be held in place by the mirror backing. Adhesives or tape can damage the silver backing.

Tiny spots of discoloration can be carefully removed and the bare spots touched up with silver artist's paint (this is a good method for minor scratches that do not have discoloration).

If the results of these techniques are not satisfactory, your best bet will be to have the mirror professionally resilvered.

Q. I live in a high-rise condo building where all the bathrooms have fiberglass tubs and shower stalls.

These are quite difficult to clean and a lot of unit owners complain about them. A lot of us are afraid to use cleaners such as scouring powders.

Can you recommend a safe cleaning agent?

A. You are wise to avoid any abrasive cleaners as they scratch and damage the surface of the fiberglass, adding to your problems. You should also be careful with strong solvents.

For regular cleaning, use a mild liquid cleaner such as Spic and Span, 409, or Top Job. Or you can use a non-abrasive cleaner such as Bon Ami or Soft Scrub.

For stained areas, use these products full strength and let set for 20 minutes to half an hour, then rinse with clear water.

For more stubborn stains, here are some suggestions: Use one of the liquid cleaners made for automatic dishwashers. Apply full strength and let set overnight, rinse with plenty of clear water.

For smudges and spots try a waterless hand cleaner called Mintex, made by Savogran. Rub Mintex on the smudges and work with your fingers, then wipe with a clean, soft rag.

Another cleaner made specifically for fiberglass is Gel-Gloss available at housewares stores and marine supply stores. A boat supply store also is a good place to check for cleaners recommended for fiberglass boats (compounds that can be buffed, etc.) These will do the job on your fiberglass shower just as well as they clean the hull of a boat.

Purple Cow? Toy shop helps kids to think creatively

By PHYLLIS KREGER STILLMAN
Special Writer

If you've ever gone into a toy store and felt gully as you bought the latest meaningless, extravagant toy, you might want to visit The Purple Cow, located at 570 N. Lafayette in the Huntington Square Mall, South Lyon.

Subnamed "Learn While You Play," The Purple Cow features a line of toys that are more than just fun. Owner Galeen Hergenrader explains the philosophy behind the store. "I think it's very important that children learn, because that's how they learn, but they do things creatively, use their imagination and learn things while they're playing," she said.

The Purple Cow is quite different from the big, departmentalized toy stores you may be used to — Hergenrader planned it that way.

"Basically the learning value in most of the toys is what is different," she said. As children learn while they play, Hergenrader hopes to foster experiences "... that will stay with them, through role-playing or creating a craft project or a science project — something that they basically can learn from."

The store is obviously designed for kids, who don't have to be afraid to touch things. "This is hands-on," Hergenrader said. "We have a T.C. Timber train set, a little kitchen and the roller coaster that are all hands on."

The Purple Cow is also designed for concerned adults. "I'm willing to show parents, if they're interested, how anything works or how the game pieces are," she explained. "I'll open anything up for them and let them see it and try it. I don't think there's any value in looking at a box if it's misleading for what you're expecting."

Hergenrader sees long-term benefits from the type of toys she sells. "If you start their creativity and ingenuity skills at a very young age, it will carry them through," she said. "You don't necessarily have to provide them so much with objects and ideas as they get older if they've had it when they were younger — if they know how to create and how to do things and make things, or create projects, or expand on ideas."

In order to provide the quality merchandise she wants to sell, Hergenrader hand-picks many of the items sold in the store. Although she is occasionally able to take a whole line of toys offered by a manufacturer, in most cases she chooses only one or two items from the line. Because of this, Hergenrader estimates that she has worked with over 75 different suppliers to stock The Purple Cow.

The Purple Cow carries some toys you've probably never heard of, along with more familiar names: Playmobil role-playing toys like farm sets and fire trucks; T.C. Timber wooden trains and toys; creative art kits like handmade puppets and leather lacing sets that children can make for themselves or give as gifts; crystal growing kits; home science kits that use items normally found around the house for projects; and a variety of stencils, basic art crayons and paints, games, puzzles and adorable

Deduct travel costs the right way

You've just received a flyer for a conference in Orlando that would provide a great market for your new software program. What's more, you've been planning to take the family to the MGM theme park. Wait a minute. This is beginning to sound like a vacation and you certainly don't want to jeopardize writing off your business travel expenses.

With careful planning and knowledge of the tax laws, you won't have to, according to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants. Combining business and pleasure can still pay off, provided you follow IRS regulations carefully.

DOMESTIC TRAVEL

When you travel strictly for business, your tax write-offs are clear cut. As a general rule, you may deduct your total tab for transportation and lodging, and 80 percent of your cost for business meals and business entertainment expenses. But when you start to mix business with fun in the sun, your travel deductions become a bit tricky. If your trip is primarily for business purposes, you are still entitled to deduct 100 percent of your total transportation to and from your destination, as well as the costs for lodging and meals (subject to the 80 percent limitation) for the business portion of your trip.

Deciding whether the trip was primarily business or pleasure can be a tough call, but the amount of time you spend on each activity is often an important determining factor. If you spend more than half your time at business, the trip can generally be said to be primarily for business. But be sure you can document your claim with accurate records of your business activities.

Money Management

If, as it turns out, your trip is primarily for pleasure, none of your travel expenses to and from your destination are deductible, even if you conduct some business at your destination. But you may still deduct any business-related expenses associated with the business activity.

Let's take this a step a further. Suppose your family gets wind of your plans and your spouse and children decide they want to visit Orlando too. Does this affect your ability to write off your business expenses? Not as long as business remains the primary purpose of your trip. How your family members spend their time is inconsequential.

If your family flies or takes a train to the destination, only the cost of your ticket is deductible. But if you drive to your destination, you may deduct the full expense of the trip, regardless of how many others share the ride. As for your lodging costs, the IRS allows you to deduct what it would have cost you for single accommodations. For example, at the hotel where you are staying, a single room costs $120 a day. But because your family is along, you rent a double room for $140. You may deduct $120 a day for accommodations (not more than half of the double room rate as you might expect). So, in reality, it costs you just $20 a day to house your family.

TRAVELING ABROAD

the United States. If you travel overseas and the entire time is spent on business activities, you may deduct your traveling costs, as well as your lodging and meals costs (subject to the 80 percent limitation). However, if your trip was primarily for business purposes, but you took part in some nonbusiness activities, you may have to allocate your travel costs (including meals and lodging en route) between your business and pleasure activities.

Suppose you have business to conduct in Switzerland. You wrap up a few deals sooner than you expect, and then decide you couldn't possibly leave without experiencing the Swiss Alps. If you calculate that you spent 30 percent of your trip on the slopes, IRS regulations would normally allow you to deduct only 70 percent of your transportation and lodging costs. But there are exceptions to this rule.

If you spend seven days or less outside the United States, you may deduct the total cost of travel to and from your destination regardless of how much time you spend on business, provided the primary reason for your making the trip was for business. (In calculating the number of days do not count the day you left the United States but count the day you return.) So if your employer asks you to attend your division's one-day sales meeting in London and you decide to stay an extra five days, enjoying the sites and visiting the theatre, you may still deduct the total of your travel expense. Of course, your expenses for lodging and meals during the pleasure portion of your trip are not deductible.

If you are out of the United States for more than seven days, you may still deduct your full cost of transportation to and from your destination if business is the primary reason for your travel and you meet any one of the following conditions:

- You are not self-employed, are not related to your employer, are not a managing executive, and are reimbursed or receive a travel expense allowance.

- You have no substantial control over arranging the trip. (This does not include control over timing of the trip.)

- You spend at least 75 percent of the total time you were outside the U.S. on business activities. (Count both the day the trip began and the day it ended in calculating this percentage.)

- You can establish that a personal vacation was not a major consideration in planning the trip even if you own your business, are related to your employer, are a managing executive, or have substantial control over arranging a trip.

If you're still confused about which travel expenses are deductible, consult your CPA. He or she should be able to review your individual circumstances and advise you accordingly.

Hergenrader also stocks a large quantity of what she calls "pick-up" items — small toys, most selling for less than $1.25, that can be used as rewards or small gifts — things like trucks, airplanes, Silly Putty and balls.

Hergenrader has two sons — William, 15 and Phillip, 11 — who are pretty much responsible for the existence of The Purple Cow. It all began when they were younger and living in Virginia.

"I was always searching for things that would stimulate them, and I had a real difficult time finding things close to where I lived," she said. "That's what got me started in the first place in Virginia."

The family moved to South Lyon about a year and a half ago. "I saw a need here and I thought it might be a good place to try the endeavor again."

The boys are old enough now to help out in the store. Phillip runs the cash register and enjoys working with customers. "He's a great salesman," said Hergenrader. William prefers to keep a lower profile, unpacking toys, stocking the shelves and taking out the garbage. "He's more in the background."

Although the store has been open only since Oct. 30, Hergenrader is already encouraged.

"I've been really pleased with how things are going," she said. "People have been real friendly and I've gotten ideas for other things people would like to see."

The Purple Cow, which stocks items for children from infancy through junior high, is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.; 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday; and 12 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday. After Thanksgiving, hours will be expanded for the holiday season. Call 486-3890 for more information.

U.S. Savings Bonds Are Now Tax Free For College.
Good News Today. Better News In 18 Years.

If the cost of a college education seems expensive now, imagine what it will be in 18 years. That's why when it comes to college, Bonds are better than ever before. For years, they've been exempt from state and local income tax. Now, Bonds bought for your children's education can also be free from federal income tax. Which means most people can keep every penny of the interest they earn. Start your tax free tuition fund today. Buy Bonds at your local bank, or ask about the Payroll Savings Plan at work.

SPORTS MATCH GAME I TICKET

WATCH ABC!

Exactly match these symbols with those shown on Herman's Sports Match I commercial on December 1, 1990 between: 3:30 - 4 PM (EST) 2:30 - 3 PM (CST) 12:30 - 1 PM (PST) on ABC to see if you are a winner! Winning symbols also posted at Herman's during December 1st - 8th. See Official Rules for details.

NO PURCHASE NECESSARY! Game open to U.S. residents 16 years or older. There are two ways to win! HOW TO OBTAIN MATERIALS: Get your game piece in the Herman's Sports Match Game I circular in your Sunday paper on November 25, 1990. If you miss the circular, you may also obtain one game piece per visit at Herman's between November 22 and November 30, 1990. To obtain a Sports Match Game I game piece, complete set of winning symbols, redemption kit and a set of official rules, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Sports Match Game I, c/o JKC Marketing Inc., 32 Wernik Place, Metuchen, NJ 08840. Residents of Washington state and Vermont need not enclose return postage. All submissions must be received by December 15, 1990. Send as many requests as you want, but only one request per envelope. SPORTS MATCH GAME I: On Saturday, December 1, 1990, in between games featured on ABC College Basketball Double Header (approximately 3:30 - 4 PM EST, 2:30 - 3 PM CST, 12:30 - 1 PM PST) look for Herman's/ABC Sports Match I commercial featuring the winning symbols. If the symbols of your game piece match exactly the symbols in the commercial, you will be the winner of the prize shown in the commercial, subject to verification. If you miss the commercial on ABC, take your game piece to Herman's where winning symbols will be posted during the week of December 1 - December 8, 1990. Odds of winning are: Grand Prize 1/25,000,000; 1st Prize 1/500,000 and 2nd Prize 1/250. How To Redeem Sports Match Game I: (Grand and First Prize) If you have a potential winning Grand or First Prize Sports Match Game I game piece, sign the game piece in ink and simply request a prize redemption kit at any participating Herman's location and complete the required information. When you receive your redemption kit and think you are a winner, send your submission to: "Sports Match I" Winner Verification, c/o JKC Marketing Inc., 32 Wernik Place, Metuchen, NJ 08840. (Grand prize - send via Certified Mail Return Receipt Requested). You are not a winner until you have complied with all of the terms of the Official Rules and your submission has been verified by JKC Marketing Inc. Limit one prize per household or immediate family. All potential winning (Grand and First) game pieces must be received by JKC Marketing Inc. by December 29, 1990. (Second Prize) If you have a potential winning Second Prize game piece, simply sign your game piece in ink and take your game piece to your local Herman's and ask for the manager. After your submission has been verified, you can use your winning game piece as a $5 Gift Certificate. All winning Second Prize game pieces must be redeemed and used by 1/15/91. You may also redeem your potential winning Second Prize game piece by signing your game piece in ink and sending to: Sports Match I Second Prize Winner Verification, c/o JKC Marketing Inc., 32 Wernik Place, Metuchen, NJ 08840. Winning submissions must be received by December 29, 1990. Second Chance Sweepstakes will be conducted for all unclaimed Grand and First prizes. To enter, print your name, complete address and daytime telephone number and mail to: Sports Match I Second Chance Sweepstakes, c/o JKC Marketing Inc., P.O. Box 4007, Metuchen, NJ 08840. All entries must be received by January 2, 1991. Sweepstakes drawing will be held approximately January 5, 1991. Winners will be notified by mail. All Federal, State and Local Taxes are the sole responsibility of the winners. Enter as often as you want, but only one request per envelope. Game is subject to Official Rules posted in Herman's outlets. Void where prohibited. The Herman's Sports Match Game I is open to all legal residents 16 years or older of the United States. Employees of Herman's, Capital Cities/ABC Inc., JKC Marketing Inc. and affiliated and subsidiary companies are ineligible. WINNERS LIST: For a list of major prize winners, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Sports Match I Winners List, c/o JKC Marketing Inc., 32 Wernik Place, Metuchen, NJ 08840.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service estimates that almost one-third of the population watches and/or feeds wild birds. That makes bird watching second only to gardening as the nation's most popular passive recreational hobby. Critter Country was formed to serve the backyard wildlife enthusiast. We promote conservation and appreciation of our natural resources and assist in developing backyard wildlife habitat, especially for songbirds, which are an indicator of environmental quality.

Critter Country has retail outlets in Columbus, Ohio; Stafford, Virginia; Ann Arbor and Plymouth, Michigan. To order supplies by mail call (800) 451-6544.
