

Cable rates to rise

Cable television rates will increase $1.45 to $19.95 monthly for basic channels on Jan. 1.

And last July Omnicom started charging customers for the cable guide. However, the company offset the increase by giving away free coupons to existing customers through the end of this year. Starting Jan. 1 all customers will be charged 75 cents monthly for the guide.

The full increase is 12 percent, or $2.20 monthly, for the basic channel and the guide.

The company has promised to add American Movie Classics — which is now offered free with the purchase of two premium channels — to the basic package. The 400 people who currently pay $5 monthly for that channel will see a reduction in their overall rates, said Lisa Boland, Omnicom general manager.

Costs for Omnicom's premium channels rates will remain the same, she said.

Omnicom increased basic rates to offset programming costs, she said.

"Nearly $1 of the increase will go directly to the providers of the satellite programming," Boland said.

"The remaining 45 cents, which represents only a 1.5-percent increase in average revenue, will be used to help offset our increased cost of doing business."

During the past year the cost of programs to Omnicom increased 26 percent, Boland said. Turner Network Television increased its cost to Omnicom by 85 percent.

"We are pleased that considering our cost for satellite programming has increased more than 26 percent, that we were able to find alternative ways to offset increases to subscribers," Boland said.

The average customer pays $32 monthly. That includes basic television channels at $18.50; Home Box Office at $8.95; and between $3.50 and $6.50 for remote control depending on where the subscriber lives. The cable television guide was free.

Boland said surveys showed that most customers weren't using the Omnicom cable guide. The movie listings are provided by at least four other sources including the Record, other publications and on an electronic guide that runs on cable.

Customers who subscribe to three channels will receive the guide free. At the beginning of this year, Omnicom's cable television basic rates also rose 8 percent.

Planners OK new layout for park site

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Chainsaws are roaring, backhoes are clawing stumps from the earth and trucks are preparing to haul scrub brush away from the proposed Beck Road community park.

The manual work on Northville's newest recreation area is well under way; so too is the bureaucratic process that monitors local development.

The Northville Township Planning Commission last week approved a revised final site plan for the initial stage of the 39-acre community park. The first step of the project will focus on soccer and baseball fields — facilities local recreation officials say are desperately needed.

The park is located west of Beck Road between Five and Six Mile roads and lies directly between Scott Regional Correctional Facility and Our Lady of Providence school.

Field-clearing will continue through the winter. Early estimates indicate soccer fields will be playable in late 1990, with baseball fields ready for use in 1991.

Planners approved the park design one month after a less-than-enthusiastic preliminary review. The developers — primarily township Manager Richard Henningsen and Northville Community Recreation Director John Anderson — agreed to site-plan revisions in order to get the park project rolling.

Township planning consultant Vilcan-Leman & Associates redesigned the site according to the commission's wishes. Eradicated from the new plan are maintenance and concession buildings and a parking scheme deemed cumbersome by the commission.

The new plan includes three soccer fields and three baseball fields. Two of the baseball fields can be adapted to soccer during appropriate seasons, according to designs.

Soccer and baseball fields are separated by three parking lots capable of handling up to 300 vehicles.

Also penciled in for the recreation park is the township recycling center. The center may be forced to move from its present site off Sheldon between Five and Six Mile Roads because of the Wayne County land sale.

The new park plan is not without problems. The developers must approach the township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) for parking lot variances. Variances must be granted for a planned gravel drive and lot and for landscaping concerns.

The ZBA is expected to grant the necessary variances. ZBA planning commission liaison Karen Baja was directed to recommend the project to the zoning board.

Another potential concern is funding. Project costs are being picked up by recreation department user fees, but Anderson has said those funds are limited. He has also called the park a "bare-bones" project.

The planning commission unanimously approved the site plan. Commissioner Richard Allen called the proposal "a vast improvement over the last one."

dolph; and setting a maximum density for new residential development.

The commission agreed to hold the public hearing Jan. 15.

The planning commission settled an argument over whether to incorporate proposed changes into their master plan draft by voting to append the list of changes to the plan.

The changes, suggested by planning consultant Don Wortman, came in response to criticism of the plan by other city officials at a recent study session. The draft was criticized primarily for advocating larger residential lot sizes and the rezoning of several residential areas to make them more restrictive.

Wortman's changes would remove sections advocating the increase of minimum lot sizes; the rezoning of residential areas near Rogers Street, Orchard Drive, Potomac and Ran-

The changes would also replace the word "Victorian" with "historical" throughout the draft, and reword a traffic policy that alluded to the circulation of traffic around downtown Northville. Officials at the study session wanted to make sure that the planning commission was not recommending the installation of a controversial "loop road" around the center of town.

The commissioners disagreed whether to incorporate the proposed changes into the master plan before submitting it to the public, or present the original plan and a separate list of changes at a forthcoming public hearing on the plan.

"If we set about changing this now, we deprive the public the opportunity to review the document we arrived at," said Commissioner Roland Stapleton. He said that incorporating the changes into the plan before the public hearing would be placing more importance on the input of other city officials than on the public's input. "I don't think one group should be privileged," he said.

But Chairperson John Hardin said he thought it appropriate to submit a draft to the public that incorporates the input of other city officials. Otherwise, he said, "it becomes difficult for the public to get a sense of everything we're trying to put forth in the master plan."

DeMattia speech

Local developer R.A. DeMattia, the man who will develop the former Wayne County land in the southern part of Northville Township, will offer a special presentation to the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce this Thursday.

The presentation is open to the public.

DeMattia, a Northville Township resident, will address the impact of his "Huntington Falls" development on the Northville business community.

The 930-acre plan includes industrial, residential and recreational development.

The breakfast meeting will take place at MacKinnon's restaurant at 7:30 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 6. The breakfast cost is $10 for chamber members and $13 for non-members. The cost includes eggs Benedict, fruit, muffins, juice and coffee.

Reservations may be made by calling 349-7640. Reservations should be made by today, Dec. 3.

MCGREW UPDATE: Mark McGrew is one of the top dozen 14-year-old indoor tennis players in the nation. The Novi resident earned that distinction by finishing 12th overall in the Boys' 14 National Indoor Championships in late November.

McGrew reached the semi-finals of the consolation round in the 128-player tournament and had a 5-2 record overall. His previous two national tournament finishes were in the top two dozen, but his top-12 effort was his best of the year. His strong showing all season should move McGrew near a top 20 ranking in the nation.

McGrew won his first two matches of the main draw with a 6-4, 6-2 win over Jeffrey Smith of North Carolina and 6-4, 6-0 triumph against Matt Halfpenny of Pennsylvania. He then dropped into the consolation bracket of the double-elimination event with a hard-fought 3-6, 4-6 defeat to No. 8 seed Marcus Fluitt of Florida.

In the consolation draw, McGrew outlasted Steve Arfal of Texas (3-6, 6-4, 6-3) and then cruised to a 6-0, 6-0 shutout victory over Eric Enloe of Missouri — his best match of the tourney.

Novi's science scores debated

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

The test scores are in for Novi students who took the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test earlier this year, and they did about as well as last year in most categories.

The state will release MEAP results comparing scores statewide in January. Until then, local districts are expected to analyze their own scores, and how they could be improved.

"They want you to do your own analysis," Superintendent Robert Pwko said.

The MEAP tests math and reading in the fourth, seventh and tenth grade. Science is tested in the fifth, eighth and eleventh grade.

Novi's analysis looked at scores below 80 percent, specifically the science test scores, which averaged below 80 percent at every grade.

Novi teachers will take the analysis one step further in comparing the areas of strengths and weaknesses of students in science.

"It is going to the staff and the staff will take much, much more time analyzing it," Pwko said. Novi students answered 74.5 percent of the questions correctly in the fifth grade, down 5.7 percent from last year.

In the eighth grade, Novi students answered correctly on 67.6 percent of the questions, down 5.8 percent from last year.

In the tenth grade, answering 61 percent of the questions correctly, was the only grade whose science test scores improved over last year on average. The tenth grade scored 58.1 percent last year.

The test scores were broken down by grade and topic to find areas that were particular problems to Novi students.

"We tried to analyze if this is something our students should know and if they didn't, why," Pwko said.

What the analysis called "relevant distractors" or trick questions in the test were included in the analysis.

"On a multiple choice test there are perhaps an swers that could draw students to an incorrect conclusion," Pwko said. "You look at why they are going to that particular breakdown."

The district analysis to this point found that some of the problems with Novi's scores were caused by the test and not the students.

"There are trick questions all through," said board president Robert Schram.

Schram was referring to questions that had two answers which could be considered correct depending on the test takers approach.

Pwko said students in the district's Odyssey of the Mind program were taught that being able to justify an answer was as important as simply finding the most correct answer.

"We tell them if you can reason an answer that's sometimes just as good," Pwko said.

Another problem in analyzing the test results occurred after the district somewhat rearranged the order in which students are presented science information to accommodate the MEAP.

The state changed the grade level at which students are tested from fourth, seventh and tenth to fifth, eighth and eleventh beginning with the 1989-90 school year.

Science scores can only be compared to last year's, making trends difficult to establish.

Novi district officials need to decide if the courses should again be sequenced to put the school in sync with the test, which might not be the best option.

"We might decide the sequence that's best for teaching isn't the sequence that's best for testing," vice president Stephen Hitchcock said.

Now may not be the best time for changing Novi's science program just for the MEAP because the test is being revamped by the state.

"It's going to be a very different test," said assistant superintendent of instruction Rita Traynor.

The test, although useful, could somewhat distort the true skill of students, Pwko said.

"It has not been my intention to discredit the MEAP," Pwko said.

"What I was trying to do was point out that there are a few things that could distort."

Schram expects Novi to do well in comparison to the state average.

"Our results have always looked bad until we get the comparison to the rest of the state, and then we look fantastic," Schram said.

Math scores, above 80 percent in every grade tested, were cause for less discussion than the science scores.

The fourth-grade test takers answered 96.8 percent of the questions correctly, down .8 percent from last year.

The seventh-grade answered 90.1 percent correctly, up 2.6 percent from last year.

The tenth-grade dropped 4.4 percent from last year to 84.8 percent.

Reading scores could not be extensively analyzed because the state does not break down the state . . . is saying we don't want you to look at the parts; that's the problem in language arts right now," Pwko said.

Fourth-grade reading skills scores increased on average this year by 1 percent, scoring 98.9 percent. The essential skills scores decreased by 3.1 percent, and the story information skills decreased by 3.4 percent.

Seventh graders scored .9 percent lower this year than last answering 95.9 percent correct on the reading skills portion of the test. The essential skills scores increased by 8.7 percent, and the story information skills decreased by 3.1 percent.

Tenth-grade reading skills scores remained the same at 96.4 percent. The essential skills scores increased by 5.1 percent, and the story information skills increased by 15 percent.

The significance of the test scores, however useful, should not be over-emphasized, or used to compare districts, board member Raymond Byers said.

"We have to be careful of not over-emphasizing the MEAP because we would be guilty of over-emphasizing something that shouldn't be over-emphasized," Byers said.

Advanced courses offer challenge

We have been very fortunate in having a son with a 4.0 average. He is especially good in math having taken high school algebra in the eighth grade. He is now a junior taking calculus which I understand is the strongest math class offered in high schools. Why don't schools have extra challenges for talented students who finished all the high level math before their senior year?

They do. I checked with your school system. Your son, a junior, is not taking calculus this year. He is taking trigonometry/pre-calculus. After pre-calculus he is eligible to take analytical geometry/calculus in his senior year, a real challenge.

In addition, your district offers a high-powered (math based) advanced placement computer class for the more talented upper class math students.

Also available is probability statistics for those really into math. And the district can make arrangements with a local university for the very talented math students to take a college math courses which grant dual-credit.

Dual credit means a student can receive high school credit toward graduation and also university credit providing the parents pay the university tuition.

Congratulations on having a talented math student. Any congratulations to your school district for offering a very rigorous math experience for its gifted math student.

Back when you were in high school calculus was probably the only senior math offering. Algebra, the freshman offering.

Today, the offering math kids often take algebra in the eighth grade and geometry in the ninth grade. Indeed, pre-geometry experiences can now be found at the upper elementary level in quality programs.

Your son tells you he is taking calculus. You assume, based on your past school experiences, calculus is the final math opportunity.

With a son as bright as you have, you need to investigate advanced placement tests, scholarship funds and the like now in his junior year. I suggest you make an appointment with your son's high school counselor to familiarize yourself more with what's going on.

Check out hot careers for the '90s

Training to be a chef, Adam Tsakos flips eggs in a cooking class at Schoolcraft College

Nothing is recession proof, but there are jobs — well-paying jobs — even in a slow economy for those with the right skills and background.

The trick is getting the correct training and education to prepare yourself, local job professionals say.

With more people eating out all the time, it's little wonder that being a chef is an occupation with great potential — especially in southeast Michigan where hungry consumers are catching up with the cuisine scene in other metropolitan areas.

Fernon Feenstra, assistant dean of culinary arts at Schoolcraft College, said there will be positions for those who have the knowledge and skills to be an outstanding chef.

"But top-notch chefs are a minority of the field," he said. Those chefs who pass muster can make between $60,000 to $80,000 annually.

Like every job, there are less pleasant aspects. "If you go into this occupation, expect to work a lot of hours, between 50 to 70 hours a week." Those hours include many weekends and holidays, as well as odd evening hours, he added.

But being a chef is more than being a good cook — it's creating menus, buying supplies and managing kitchen staff. "Probably only 10 to 20 percent (of people who pursue a career as a chef) will have the necessary requirements to move up the ladder."

Most successful chefs will go through at least a two-year culinary training program, before going out and hiring on as an assistant under a chef. "Many will round out that with courses in accounting, business management and quality control."

"But the satisfaction is great," Feenstra said. "Being a chef is part science, part art."

Right along with the chef is the single unit operations or food service general manager, according to John Ronney of Roth Young Personnel Service of Detroit in Southfield.

Because there are more two-income families that don't have time to cook, the restaurant business has gone through 20 solid years of growth, Ronney said.

college-educated and qualified people have looked down on restaurant management as a poor job.

That should change, Ronney said. In the past, a restaurant — a very good one — pulled in revenues of no more than $1 million a year, but today it is not uncommon to find a restaurant pulling in $3 million per year.

Restaurant are a huge investment for owners, and they are seeking qualified, often degreed, people to run them, Ronney said. Exacerbating the need for quality managers, most food service employees are either young and inexperienced, or older and retired. "You have to have a real good person at the helm to make sure all goes well."

Restaurant managers — even fast food managers — can expect salaries ranging from $30,000 to $60,000, but hours can be long, arduous and people in this occupation will often work evening hours.

Environmental whatever — engineers, geologists, managers — are increasingly important in a society that is putting a premium on waste management and environmental cleanup, according to Ruth Grass, an academic and career counselor at Oakland Community College.

The 1990s is seeing a big push to save the environment," she said. The environmental engineers — those who will design safer landfills and incinerators and figure out ways to clean up the messes of the past — will be in great demand.

Job hours will be irregular, and travel may also be required for people in this field, she said, but the potential for good pay will be high. Environmental engineering is so diverse that it is difficult to give average salaries.

The schooling necessary for becoming an environmental engineer requires at least a bachelor's degree and probably a master's degree. "So you're looking at four to eight years of schooling."

There is also a great need for qualified executive secretaries, according to Lori Widman, president of Widman Personnel Division in Farmington Hills.

Business has grown so much in southeast Michigan that the market has increased, but fewer people are going into the secretarial field, she said.

Part of the problem, she said, is the stigma attached to the word "secretarial." Secretary carries a connotation of a low-paying, low-prestige, subservient job.

That's not the case today, Widman said. "Today, the executive secretary has positioned herself as a professional — her job is an extension of the executive."

Beyond typing and grammar skills, the executive secretary must pick up the slack for an executive, screen the executive from unnecessary annoyances and must value confidentiality. "She (or he) must like a challenge and thrive on stress — you have to be career-oriented rather than job-oriented."

Quite often, the executive secretary will have a two- to four-year degree in business or education.

Widman said the salary range for the position is enormous, but on average they can expect between $25,000 and $30,000 a year. "Some will make in excess of $40,000."

Workdays, while typically 9 to 5, require frequent overtime in an active, growing company. "The executive secretary has to be far more worldly — you fly to Europe like you used to fly to Chicago," she said.

Food processing plant management and quality control, according to Samuel Skeegan president of Roth Young Personnel Service of Detroit in Southfield, is another occupation that has great possibilities in the 1990s.

Skeegan said plant managers and quality control people are essential because efficiency and quality are just as important — if not more important — in a shrinking economy.

Exacting government regulations mean that people in these positions must be better educated which usually means a four-year degree in chemistry, microbiology or natural science as well as training in the specific job.

Grant loss halts work on homeless shelter

Wayne County's shelter for the homeless wasn't open in time for Thanksgiving — and might not be open in time for Christmas.

The shelter, designed for western Wayne families who lose their homes, was to have opened this fall.

But loss of an expected federal grant, county officials said, has put the Westland shelter on hold.

"We're still trying to cover that hole," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said of the $350,000 the county expected to receive from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Federal money was to have paid for roughly 40 percent of the shelter's expected $750,000 to $800,000 cost.

Design work is continuing on the shelter, and a program director was hired. But construction has been pushed back indefinitely.

"It's not anything that's going to be open in a matter of weeks," he said.

County officials are hopeful they will be able to receive the money through other grant programs, perhaps even using private grants.

Even though the federal grant wasn't forthcoming, the county did receive $235,000 in federal block grant and McKinney Act money from area communities. Block grant money was pledged by Westland, Livonia, Redford, Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, among other communities. Westland, Livonia and Redford also pledged McKinney Act money — part of a federal grant program designed to specifically help the homeless.

When open, the shelter would be among the first of its kind specifically designed for use by homeless people from suburban areas.

The shelter is based on the Eloise complex, near Michigan Avenue in southeastern Westland. The complex housed the former Wayne County General Hospital and a variety of other county offices, though is now mostly vacant.

When completed, the shelter would feature about 20 dormitory-style rooms, providing shelter for about 80 individuals. Space would primarily be reserved for families who lose their home through fire or foreclosure.

Suburban homelessness is considered a rising problem by many social service agencies. The shelter would have been the nation's first, if not the first, in the nation specifically designed for homeless suburbanites. At present, the only shelter in western Wayne County is provided through First Step, a Westland agency that assists female victims of domestic violence.

Tax sharing bill goes down

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Suburban power on a key state Senate committee has killed a plan to allow business property-tax sharing among school districts.

The Senate Appropriations Committee last week split 5-5, thus failing to report the measure to the Senate floor.

"It's dead for this session," said an elated Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, whose district includes Novi and part of Northville. "It puts a little crimp in Dan DeGrow's sale. He couldn't get it out of committee."

DeGrow, R-Port Huron, was chief Senate advocate of having school districts with high commercial and industrial growth share in with residential, farm and 10-year districts.

Voting against the bill were Faxon; Robert Coakley, R-Northville Township; Doug Cross, R-Flint; Lt. Gov.-elect George Binkley, R-Muskegon City; and Rick Smith, R-Muskegon.

Binkley, though representing a northern district, spent 30 years as a teacher in southern Oakland County.

Voting yes were DeGrow; Harry Gast, R-St. Joseph; William Sederburg, R-East Lansing; Jackie Vaughn III, D-Detroit; and Lora Pollock, D-Ann Arbor.

Three members were absent: Pat Arthurhult, R-Whitehall; David Holmes, D-Detroit; and Joe Conroy, D-Flint.

The Legislature is planning to wrap up this year's work Wednesday or Thursday. The Senate last week canceled all committee meetings except Appropriations.

Killed were House Bills 8685 and 8686, sponsored by Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, and co-sponsored by members from Grand Rapids.

They were introduced at the request of the Kent County Intermediate School District and Grand Rapids Area Chamber of Commerce, whose business members wanted growth in commercial and industrial property to be shared among the school districts whose graduates they hired.

The Keith bills, passed in September by the House, would have been permissive — all school boards within a county would have to agree to share business growth taxes. Earlier in the week, DeGrow's appropriations subcommittee favored the bills by a 3-1 vote.

"It was the Senate's nose in the tent. They'll come back and revisit it," predicted Faxon.

DeGrow actually wants a much stronger version — mandatory statewide sharing of half the growth in commercial and industrial property taxes.

In return, districts losing property tax revenue would get back some of the $72 million in "categorical" aid the legislature took away this year.

Suburban lawmakers generally denounce that plan. Republican Rep. Shirley Johnson of Royal Oak called it "giving our districts the choice of death or a disease." Faxon called it "blackmail ... putting them between a rock and a hard place."

Just a fraction of our time watching movies could help bring many happy endings.

If we all shared just a small part of the things we take for granted in life, we could take better care of the things which have become taken for granted in our community. Like conservation. The Arts. Or education.

Millions of people have helped establish five percent of their incomes and five percent of volunteer time per week America's standard of giving. If we all reached this standard, we could generate more than $175 billion every year. With a force equivalent to 20 million full-time workers.

This year, make it your goal to give five. And help bring the curtain down on society's problems.

Give Five.

Paper reuse: Completing the cycle

RECYCLING newspapers

This is about your old newspapers. You've saved them, piled them, bagged them, tied them up and faithfully and regularly delivered them to the recycling center. The warm feeling that you've done your part to slow down the filling up of landfills is gratifying.

But now what? What are you getting for your effort besides the warm and fuzzy feeling? Just where the heck are all those recycled newspapers going? And where are the recycled paper products we were promised, anyway?

Newspapers like the HomeTown chain, we know, have been buying and using recycled newspapers for reprinting. But what about consumer products?

In researching those questions, we learned that finding recycled products takes a little bit of doing, but it is do-able.

Print shop stock, stationery, copier machine paper, fax paper, etc. are out there. For vague reasons, however, the prices are higher than virgin paper, sometimes insignificantly, sometimes considerably.

Another question—Why? And if the costs are higher, what's the consumer's incentive to get involved at both ends of the recycling process?

We took our numerous recycling questions to a number of people involved in the recycling business, some as environmentally conscious individuals or group representatives, some in the business.

The experts, we found, don't agree, even about the quality of the recycled product.

● LIBBY HARRIS of the East Michigan Environmental Action Council admits the price for recycled paper is higher.

"You have to pay more but the prices are coming down, but that's the way we measure costs. It's still cheaper to buy paper made from virgin timber.

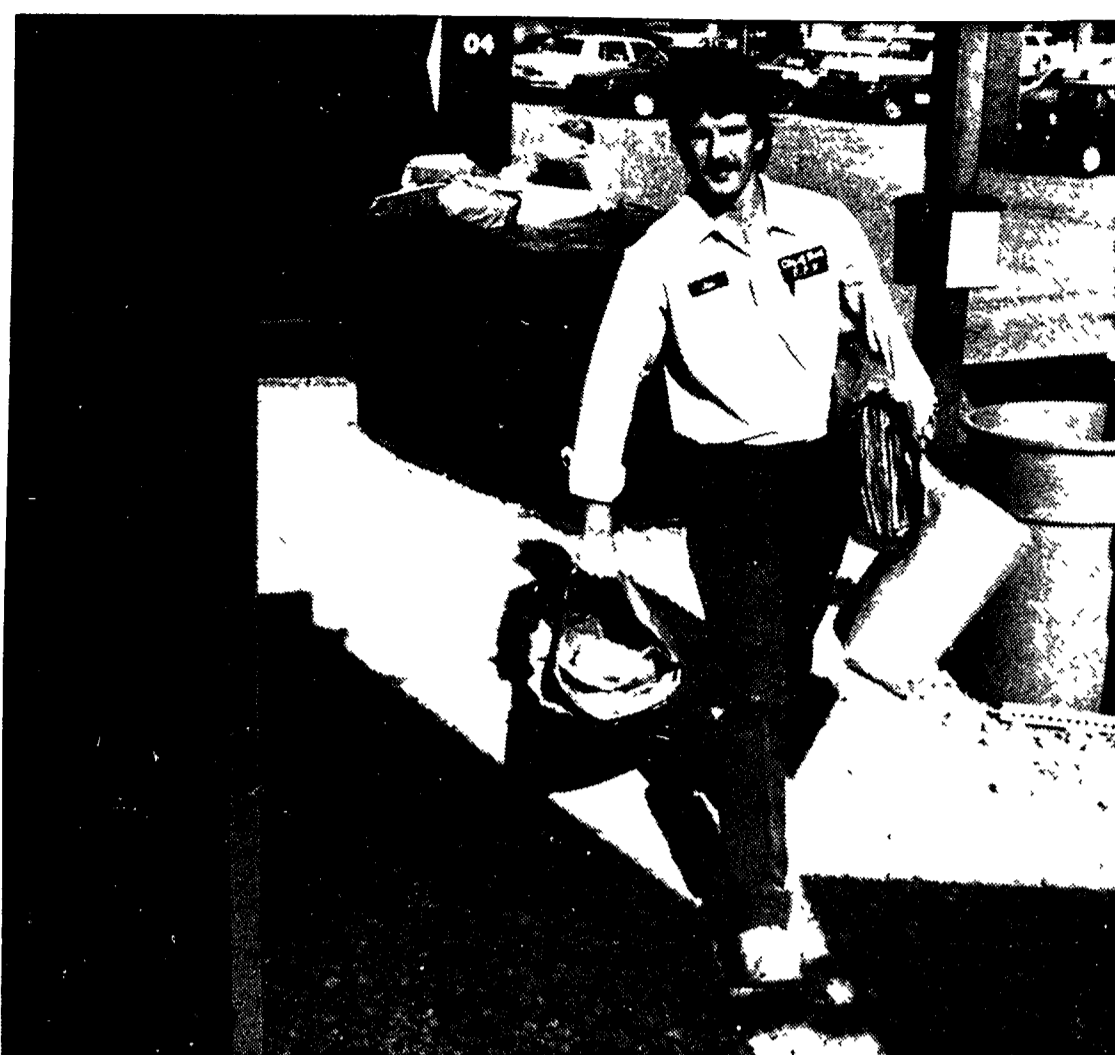

"In recycled paper you're paying for transportation costs, external costs—the manufacturing plants are not everywhere—those costs of production don't need to be there.

"We're undervaluing virgin timber as we are land. The costs of virgin timber have not made it to the marketplace."

A year ago it was impossible to buy recycled paper, Harris said, "but at least today you can get it.

"In general the cost is half again as much. A ream of virgin paper might cost $5-$7. Recycled may cost $10-$12. And the color choice isn't as good."

The higher costs are a prohibitive factor for many people, Harris said, "but environmentally minded groups and individuals like EMEAC feel an obligation to use the recycled stock.

Jim Cheyne of Novi's DPW loads up some old newspapers

"As we become accustomed to using it, as more and more use it, a market is created and the prices will come down," she said.

Quality should also improve, Harris said.

"Right now it's difficult to print on two-sided paper because of the short fibers. It gets in the way and complicates itself, but the technology is improving."

● MATT McDERMOTT of Aladdin Printing, Williams Lake Road, Union Lake, bids on West Bloomfield Parks and Rec needs. He has been handling bids on recycled paper for several years.

From the perspective of the printer, McDermott said there are definite limitations, not the least of which is cost.

"It's never cost-effective," McDermott said, and the prices, he believes, are not dropping.

"Most of the people who ask about recycled paper are scared off by the costs. I probably don't get one of three (to buy it when they inquire about recycled paper).

"It's great. It's environmentally sound, but so far it's not financially sound—it's just not worth it. The governments are pushing their departments to use it, but they're also pushing to hold to the budget. When it comes to that, they're going to choose virgin paper for the project."

As far as quality, McDermott has been pleased with the recycled products and notices no difference.

"So far I've seen no limitations on printing."

● DAVE BUTWILL, general manager of Paper Express, Bloomfield Hills, is a paper merchant serving metropolitan Detroit businesses.

"The consumer is not paying twice as much, but he is paying more, depending on the paper," he said.

(Recycled) copy paper could be 10-20 percent more, computer paper maybe 5 percent, fax paper 7 percent, depending on what percentage of the product is made from recycled products.

The company is the middleman between paper mills and business, supplying legal pads, copier paper, and just recently fax paper.

"We sell a lot," Butwill said.

"The hardest thing for the company to sell is the price, but it's doing a lot of good. As we get going, the price will go down. . . . As the demands go up, the mills will be forced to produce more. I've seen a big increase in requests in the last six months, even before Earth Day.

In the last year virgin paper has had three price increases, Butwill said. Recycled paper is gradually becoming cheaper.

"The gap is narrowing a bit. It's only a guess, but I expect it will continue."

The quality of recycled paper is good, "but many mills won't guarantee its functionality when copier paper is used with high speed copier or laser jet computer paper," Butwill said. "They just say, 'Here it is.'"

● TAD KLINE, customer service representative of the French Paper Co. in Niles, Mich., said it is not the paper process itself that makes recycled paper more expensive.

The big difference is in the cost of the raw material timber is still cheaper, because it's more available than old newsprint and other reusable papers.

"There are 6-10 times more mills than there were a few years ago," Kline said, "and the demand (for old newspapers) exceeds the supply.

"There's not enough quantity there. We've been told by our suppliers we can only get so much per year."

The demand for recycled paper has increased in the past year, possibly because of Earth-conscious consumers, Kline said. Earlier in the year they had trouble keeping up with demands.

The only solution is to get more people recycling so there is more quantity to buy, Kline said.

If that ever becomes a reality, "It's very possible that the price will drop to become equal to or lower than virgin paper," Kline said.

● NORM SIMPSON of the Great Lakes Paper Corp. in Roseville is charging disposal companies about $10 a ton to take wastepaper off their hands and supply it to mills. Six months ago he was paying them $1 to $1.20 per 100 pounds.

"There's plenty of supply and no demand from mills," he said. "There are not enough uses for recycled paper and more and more wastepaper."

"The supply is up. That's the number one law in economics. We can't cover our costs of baling it to send to the mills."

Where does it go from here?

Where does recycled newspaper go after you drop it off at the recycling center? And what are the costs involved? Let's take a look.

Say your local recycling center loads the paper into 40-cubic-yard bins. When the bin is full, Oakland Disposal will remove it at a cost to the township of $142.50 "per pull."

A 40-cubic-yard bin could weigh upward of 750 pounds per yard, depending on how it's packed and the moisture content, said an Oakland Disposal spokesperson. At 750 pounds per yard for 40 yards it translates to approximately 15 tons. Oakland delivers the papers to the Great Lakes Paper Corporation in Roseville, which charges Oakland Disposal to accept the paper at a rate of about $10 per ton, said Norm

Simpson, a manager at Great Lakes. Great Lakes in turn delivers them to mills like the Monroe Paper Corporation in Monroe, where they are paid between $25 and $50 per ton depending on the supply. Monroe turns the waste paper into paper tubes that are used for toilet paper rolls, juice cans and other tubular uses

STAR NOTES

A man, a woman and 'a magic adage'

By Amy Schmidt

No boxes, no props, no glitter. These are not things which make the act of magicians Jonathan and Charlotte Pendragon. The avant-garde couple who describe their magic act as "sensual," "gothic," "physical" and "theatrical," will appear on Jonathan Winters: Magic and Comedy, Saturday, Dec. 8, on Showtime.

The Pendragons are becoming more and more widely known. The duo won the "Best Illusionists" award this year at the International Magic Awards; Charlotte Pendragon won the highest award any woman ever has — Magician of the Year. Additionally Time-Life's forthcoming book Vanishings, will include a two-page color pictorial of them, making them the only living magicians in the book.

What makes these magicians different? For one thing, the two are equally matched on stage. Jonathan performs illusions on Charlotte and vice versa. "You have a feeling of a very tight relationship between two people," said Jonathan Pendragon.

Part of their routine involves the illusion of Charlotte coming through Jonathan's chest. Another illusion, "Metamorphosis," is a classic trick, but the Pendragons do it faster than anyone has ever done before. "Like a magician uses his hands to manipulate cards, we manipulate our bodies to present an illusion," said Pendragon.

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN
Executive Director,
SW Oakland Cable Comm.

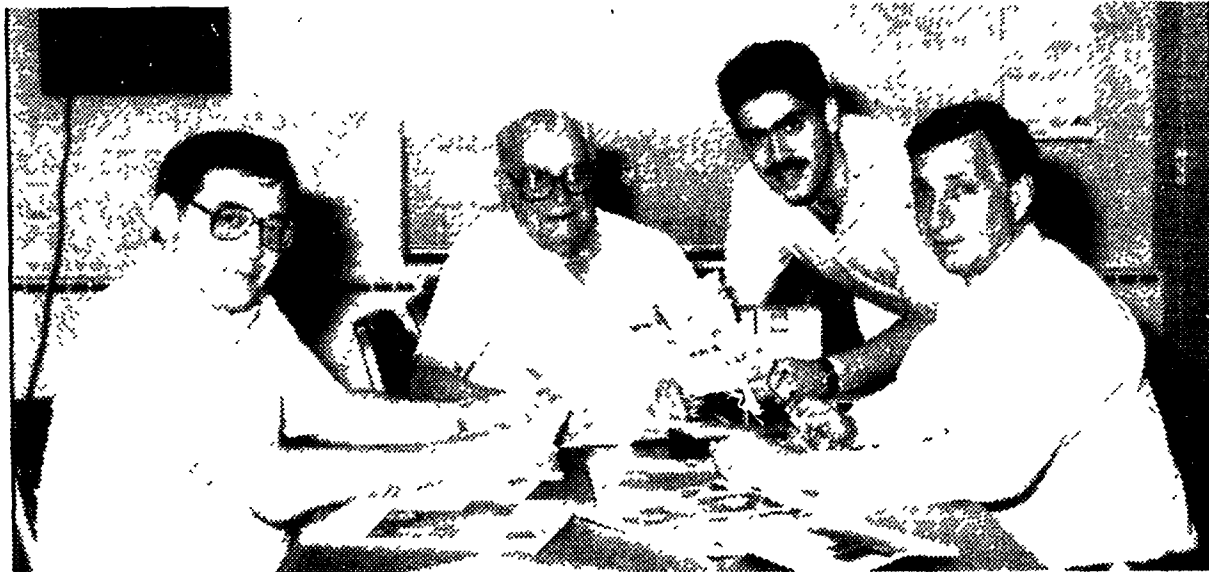

The Archdiocese of Detroit has a Pastoral Telecommunications Center in downtown

Detroit. They formed the Parish Video Team Ministry as an evangelical tool for the Parish Community.

Sixty-five Parishes throughout the Metropolitan Detroit Area have begun grassroots teams. There are about twelve people on each video team. The Ministry uses outreach programs, training, equipment skill expertise and sharing of resources accomplish its mission.

To consolidate this information, an Association for the Parish Video Team Ministry has been formed. The participants share problems, concerns and success stories. As a networking group they decide criteria for training and certification. The last portion of each session is dedicated to training on equipment. The training began with work on the Panasonic Industrial Grade Equipment and has progressed to include the 8mm and High 8 VHS options. The teams are encouraged to purchase industrial grade equipment so that the groups will be uniform. This is the same concept that most cable companies follow.

Most people who become involved, already have an aptitude for video. They also have a natural reverence for the liturgy being celebrated. The spokespersons and directors of these projects include Monsieur Humitz and Mr. Mick Rizzo. They also encourage interested people to take the local cable company's television workshops. This instruction will help fine tune their skills and make them aware of the requirements necessary for quality cable casting,

St. Fabian Director's Board

Ed Buatti
Joe Bruetsch

John Apouri

and the idiosyncracies unique to television.

If this is news to you and you have friends or family in other areas who may be interested in these programs they should contact their parish or cable company to begin television workshops. The cable companies in the area are:

Barden — Detroit, Inkster.

Booth — Birmingham, Beverly Hills, Franklin, Bloomfield Hills, Bloomfield Township.

Cablevision of Dearborn — Dearborn.

Columbia Cablevision of Michigan — Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti.

Comcast — Pontiac, Sterling Heights, Warren, Waterford.

Continental — Dearborn Heights, Hazel Park, Keego Harbor, Westland, Southfield, Sylvan Lake.

Greater Media — White Lake, Highland Twp., Milford Twp., Milford Village, Lyon Twp., Wixom, Wolverine Lake, Commerce Twp., Walled Lake.

Macleam Hunter — Garden City and Downriver communities.

MetroVision — Farmington, Farmington Hills, Novi, Livonia, Redford.

Omnicom — Belleville, Canton, Northville, Northville Twp., Van Buren Twp.

United — Pleasant Ridge, Royal Oak, Troy, Rochester and Twp., Oakland Twp., Auburn, Berkley, Clawson, Ferndale, Huntington Woods.

Wyandotte Municipal Cable — Wyandotte.

Parishioners of St. Fabians of Farmington Hills have formed a Parish Video Team of Ministry. The group began when Joe Bruetsch and Frank Bennis went to the Parish Video; Team Sessions and St. Fabians agreed to contribute video equipment. The group covers Communion, Baptisms, Confirmations, Lent Series and Advent Series along with other events. Frank moved to England, so other people such as Ed Buatti, John Akouri and Bryan Warras became involved.

"I had never held a camcorder in my life!" exclaimed Joe Bruetsch. "I just had an interest in helping the parish in some way and Father Norbert Kendzierski and Principal Sister Loretelle have been very supportive," he said.

The video programs are stored in the Parish Library so that anyone may take them home if they missed an event. They are anticipating projects involving the youth in Appalachia and a history of the St. Fabian's Parish. Joe is now incorporating slides and film along with the video. We look forward to seeing these programs someday soon on our community channels. People who are unable to leave their homes would welcome the programming which would bring all aspects of their church to them.

'The Trials of Rosie O'Neill'

has a 'fortysomething' appeal

Sharon Gless now sits on opposite bench

By Amy Schmidt

From a good family and well educated, Rosie was an overachiever. But her middle-aged husband left her, anyway, for a younger woman. Such are "The Trials of Rosie O'Neill," CBS' drama about a lady lawyer who exits her ivory tower in the corporate sky to defend the poor and the indigent here on earth.

Although the show is really about Rosie, Sharon Gless, who plays the part, says the public-defender aspect makes it even more interesting: "Playing a public defender you meet some odd clients. Some are very tragic and some are very funny." In an early episode she defends a rapist and gets him acquitted. Not funny. How could Rosie (and Gless) defend a person like that? "Everybody deserves the best defense possible," said Gless defending her character and the American way.

So where has Gless been since she won two Emmys and a Golden Globe for her role as Christine Cagney on "Cagney & Lacey?"

"I took two years off after 'Cagney & Lacey,' saying that I didn't want to do a series again," said Gless. "I started becoming sort of a hermit. I didn't want to go into town. I didn't want to work. I bought a house at the beach—I must say, it was the best two years of my life. But then I thought, 'I better go back to work if I'm going to keep my beach house,'" she laughed.

Gless decided she wanted to do a one-hour show with her former "Cagney & Lacey" producer, and current boyfriend, Bernie Rosenzweig. But Rosenzweig was reluctant to mix business with pleasure. "Fine. Then I'll have to go to somebody else," Gless told him when push came to shove. "Someone else will be my mentor, and I'll have to talk to someone else about my work." Bernie got the message.

A slew of scripts crossed Gless and Rosenzweig's desks, including a lot of comedies. "Everything was a sitcom," said Gless. "But I wanted to do a show where I could talk to women."

A social worker? A cop? A doctor? What role would Gless play? The social worker bit didn't work for her or Rosenzweig, she said, "and Bernie just laughed at the thought of me playing a doctor."

The two settled on "The Trials of Rosie O'Neill" and took their idea to CBS. The network never even saw a pilot. They bought the show based on Rosenzweig and Gless' track records.

Like "Cagney & Lacey," "The Trials of Rosie O'Neill" is designed to appeal to women ages 35 and up. "We call our show 'fortysomething,'" kidded Gless. There are differences though. "Christine was more like superhero—'Go ahead. Make my day.' Rosie is much more real."

Gless said her character is going to grow and get over the hurt of her divorce during the course of the show. Rosie's ex-husband has already remarried.

"Rosie wanted to change herself because of what happened to her," said Gless. "What she's going to eventually learn is that his infidelity had nothing to do with her. It was all about him." Gless, herself, has never been married.

"Women who go through it don't know that. They think they did something wrong," said the husky-voiced, matter-of-fact actress. "So I'm gonna show 'em. I'm gonna show 'em that they're all gonna make it."

How is it dating the producer of your own show? "He's my best friend," said Gless. "We don't have time to date, but we certainly know where the other person is."

Instead of busting suspects, Sharon Gless now gets them off the hook. The actress plays the title role on "The Trials of Rosie O'Neill," CBS' drama about a corporate lawyer-turned-public defender. The show airs Mondays.

Q: I appreciated so very much the information you put in the paper about my special hero, Eric Pierpoint. Would you please tell me how Duncan Regehr (Zorro) got started in show business, his credits, how old he is and is he married?
—Vivian Pollard, Lenox, Iowa

A: Duncan Regehr was born Oct. 5, 1954, in Alberta, Canada. He had his own television talk show when he was 14. He became an actor after pursuing careers as a figure skater, Olympic heavyweight boxing hopeful and an artist. He has played a variety of dramatic roles at the Stratford, Ontario, Shakespeare Festival and has done voices for cartoon characters. He made Canadian films and starred in a Canadian TV series before arriving in Hollywood in 1981. He and his wife Catherine, a writer, are happily married. They reside in Los Angeles, where Regehr has been in demand by casting directors since his performance as the gladiator in Pompeii. His other credits include the television movies The Blue and the Gray, Goliath Awaits, My Wicked, Wicked Ways and Earth Star Voyager. His feature films include The War Is Over, The Newcomers and The Monster Squad.

SOAP TALK

Yet another actor assigned to role as Mason Capwell

By Candace Havens

In yet another surprise move in the casting of Santa Barbara, Canadian actor Gordon Thomson returns to television this month on the popular daytime series.

Thomson replaces Terry Lester as Mason Capwell on SB, since Lester left the show abruptly at the end of October. It had been rumored that Lane Davies would return to the role he made popular, but as we can see, it was exactly that — rumor.

Thomson is best known for his portrayal of Adam Carrington on Dynasty, but this isn't his first stint on a daytime series. He portrayed Egyptologist Aristotle Benedict on Ryan's Hope from November, 1981, to March, 1982, before capturing the role of Adam Carrington.

We know Thomson can play the devious, manipulative side of Mason, but will he be able to bring out the comedic side as well? We'll have to wait and see.

Speaking of manipulative bad guys ... Just when we thought we would never hear or see another relative of the evil Jerome family, General Hospital writers decide to create a new character for the show. Mark St. James joined the GH cast in November as Evan "Edge" Jerome, a music video director.

Scotty Baldwin (Kin Shriner) is responsible for bringing Jerome to Port

Charles to lay claim to the Jerome diamond fortune. Of course this new development has thrown a definite kink in Lucy Coe Quartermaine's plans to claim the diamonds herself.

St. James is new to the daytime scene, but he is a veteran actor of the stage. His latest role was in the play Temptation, written by Vaclav Havel, the new president of Poland. His other theater credits include roles in Macbeth, The Taming of the Shrew, Final Passages and Hair.

Born in Odessa, Texas, and raised in Dallas and Altus, Okla., St. James has appeared in several national commercials and regional commercials for his home state.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

Family Dog, a new half-hour animated comedy series which explores the life of a family's pet dog, has begun production in Los Angeles for future broadcast on CBS. Steven Spielberg, Tim Burton and Dennis Klein are executive producers. The series centers on the day-to-day concerns and dog-sized adventures of a nameless family dog: looking for a sunny place to nap, digging up and burying bones, avoiding confrontations with larger neighboring dogs and relating to his human family, the Binfords. The Binfords are aware of the dog but are mostly wrapped up in their own concerns. The series is based on an episode of Amazing Stories.

Jerry Lewis, the comedian/actor, is currently in demand as a TV director. He has been signed to direct an episode of Viacom Entertainment's weekly series Super Force. He most recently directed episodes of CBS' Wiseguy.

After 50 years of playing the game of cat-and-mouse in more than 200 cartoon shorts, Academy Award-winners Tom & Jerry will hit the big leagues when they star in their first feature-length film. The film also offers the duo another first: the chance to finally speak their minds!

Keenen Ivory Wayans, creator and star of the comedy series In Living Color, will host the 18th annual American Music Awards. The three-hour prime-time special will air on ABC, Monday, Jan. 28.

FAMILY FARE*Mary Poppins pops on to Disney Channel

By Lee Irby

The holiday spirit is in the air at The Disney Channel.

On Sunday, Dec. 2, Julie Andrews becomes the "practically perfect" nanny who comes to live with the Banks family in 1910 London. She enjoys a jolly holiday with her friend Bert the chimney sweep and the two Banks children in the time-honored classic Mary Poppins.

Then on Thursday, Dec. 6, Disney exclusively premieres A Hobo's Christmas, starring Barnard Hughes and Gerald McRaney. With Christmas only a week away, hobo Chance Carson has decided to visit his only son, Charlie, whom he has not seen in more than 25 years. The son is not enthusiastic about the visit, but Chance's two grandchildren are delighted by his colorful stories about life riding the rails.

Also premiering this week is the ABC Afterschool Special, "Stood Up." The story focuses on a teenage girl, Becky, who is stood up by a senior class hunk for the school prom.
