Community supports U.S. soldiers

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

It's official. Northville declared itself a support city for U.S. troops in the Middle East Tuesday night, prompting applause from the crowd of more than 75 people gathered at City Hall.

The city council passed a resolution in support of the move, which read, in part, "The City Council of the City of Northville and the Charter Township of Northville hereby endorse the efforts of the West Side Chapter of the Michigan Military Family Support Group to provide aid and comfort to families in our community who are making a special sacrifice in this time of war."

Mayor Chris Johnson and Township Supervisor Georgina Goss handed a plaque describing the resolution to Ginny Hathhorn, co-founder of the local support group.

In an emotional moment, Johnson paused before reciting the pledge of allegiance at the start of the meeting, bowing his head in a moment of silent prayer for the troops.

"As we all know, very important events are happening overseas . . . and members of our armed forces are giving their lives for freedom," he said. "We're praying and hoping that the men and women come home soon and safely."

Johnson stressed the importance of remembering the sacrifices being made by U.S. troops. "More importantly," he said, "we need to show our troops how important their sacrifices are to us."

The mayor praised the efforts of Hathhorn's group, which draped downtown Northville in red, white and blue ribbons and flags last Friday and Saturday.

Seafood eatery closes

Sorry, Charley's fans, the local seafood outlet just couldn't make the grade.

Northville Charley's, 41122 Seven Mile, closed its doors Sunday morning and corporate officials Tuesday announced the sale of the restaurant to an undisclosed buyer.

"We were approached and the idea of selling those two restaurants worked very well for us," said Frank Fazio, vice president of marketing with Farmington Hills-based Charley's Restaurant's.

Southfield Charley's restaurant was sold to a separate buyer, Fazio said.

Fazio would not disclose the names of the purchasers.

Detroit homeless visit local church

The Cass Homeless Drop-in Center is a half-hour drive from downtown Northville, and yet it seems a world away.

Members of the First United Methodist Church, 777 W. Eight Mile Road, bridged the distance for a short time last week by opening the church's doors each evening to nearly 100 homeless people.

The shelter program, part of a countywide effort organized by the Interfaith Hospitality Ministry, provided a place to sleep to people who otherwise would have been forced to stay on the streets of Detroit at night. The Cass facility is a

Ward considering new site for church

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

The Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit and Ward Presbyterian Church have discussed a potential deal involving St. John's Seminary, a Ward spokesperson said Tuesday.

Ward Church officials toured the seminary in December and may consider the property as an alternative to a controversial Six Mile and Haggerty site in Northville Township, church spokesperson Kelly Sharkey said. The seminary is on the southeast corner of Sheldon and Five Mile roads.

"The truth is, we have been approached by the Archdiocese and agreed to discussions on the seminary," she said. "At this point, we haven't abandoned Six Mile and Haggerty."

"We just thought we might look into (the seminary)," she said.

Archdiocese officials would not comment on possible negotiations with Ward.

"We haven't received any new information on (possible buyers)," said Archdiocese spokesperson Brenda Marshall. "Our policy is to withhold news until we know that we have a buyer, but maybe the offer hasn't actually come up."

Ward Church gained final site plan approval on its 42-acre Northville Township property July 28, after wrangling with the township and neighboring residents for more than a year.

At the time of approval, church officials estimated the facility would be constructed by 1993-94 and would serve more than 3,000 worshippers.

But the prospect of further delays has the church researching other sites. Chief among church concerns are wetlands on the Northville Township site, Sharkey said.

"If anything, we're just trying to be realistic, especially with the Department of Natural Resources," she said. "Permitting could take quite a while with the DNR over wetlands."

Uncertainty over the Northville Township site makes at least a portion of the 175-acre seminary plot attractive to Ward.

"We don't know how applicable it is to our situation," Sharkey said. "We want to see if it has any viability."

No timeframe has been set for a decision on the seminary land, Sharkey said. She would not say if the parties had discussed financial terms.

Sharkey also said Northville Township has not signed off on the final site plan. That step is a formality, said Carol Maise, township planning and zoning administrator.

"As far as we're concerned, the only thing lacking is the planning commission chairman's (Charles DeLand's) signature," Maise said.

Sharkey said she did not know how much of the seminary site the two churches were discussing.

"I'm sure they're talking about something in particular, but I don't know (the details)," she said. "I understand they're considering different uses for the property."

Tax cuts rejected

State Sen. Robert Geake had relatively good news for city officials Tuesday, notifying them that an executive order shearing some $450,000 from the city's state-returned racetrack revenues had been turned down.

In its stead, Geake said, Gov. John Engler likely will seek a much less se-anonymous because of the intricacies of the deal," he said. "I'm not going to comment on what's not going (the Northville site)," he said.

Fazio did say the building "would remain a restaurant."

Northville Township planning officials said they have not been contacted by the Charley's buyer.

As of Tuesday, state Liquor Control Commission officials had not been approached regarding a transfer of the Charley's liquor license.

Charley's Restaurant's filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 in November. At the time, management said Northville Charley's would continue to operate and even voiced enthusiasm over a new spring menu.

But financial troubles continued to plague the Northville restaurant, prompting the sale.

"It's good for the organization that we sold them," Fazio said. "The sale stops the bleeding."

Seven remaining Charley's restaurants will continue operations, he said.

By Tuesday, the Charley's insignia had been stripped from a pole outside the Northville restaurant. Newspapers were taped across windows and a cardboard sign on a window read "Closed—please visit our restaurant at Schoolcraft and Merriman in Livonia."

Charley's employee Rodney Griffin showed up at his old work site Tuesday "to pick up my W-2s."

Griffin, a cook, said employees were given no notice prior to layoffs. "Some of the people were on their way to work Sunday morning," he said. "It (the closing) was in the air, but I thought things were picking up."

Griffin, who said he had a job lined up at another restaurant, blamed a menu switch for the restaurant's woes.

"A corporate chef came in and changed the menu. It was a total disaster," he said. "We lost our steady customers and everything changed."

The bulk of Charley's employees will be relocated, Fazio said.

"The management staff was kept, so were several bartenders and wait staff," he said. "The people who were good and professional were placed within the company," he said.

The closing forced the cancellation of the Northville Athletic Boosters brunch, which had been scheduled for Charley's.

Mustang of the Week

By LAURA WHITELEY
Special Writer

The entire NORTHVILLE HIGH SCHOOL PEP BAND has been named "Mustang of the Week," in recognition of the support it provides the school and the community.

The NHS administration and the varsity cheerleaders nominated the band, stating, "We'd like to thank the Northville High School Pep Band for their continuous support last fall through the football season. We really appreciate it!"

Each year during Homecoming and Spirit Week, the Pep Band kicks off the activities by marching through the halls Monday morning. It entertains at all pep assemblies as well.

Pep Band also takes part in the Santa, Memorial Day, and Fourth of July parades every year. Said the NHS administration, "Their participation in community events helps to foster the kind of community support that is required for quality education."

The Mustang of the Week is named by the School Climate Committee at Northville High School. Laura Whiteley, who writes this feature, is a student at the high school.

Owner to repair failed dam

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A development company has agreed to begin repairs on a failed dam that last week drained a Northville Township lake and dumped tons of sediment into the Middle Rouge River.

The Farmington Hills-based Jonna Company, owners of Waterford Dam and 39 acres of property around Waterford Lake, will first construct a device to impede the flow of sediment from the lake area through the dam and into the Middle Rouge.

"The immediate concern is to control sediment; we'll start work on that today (Monday)," said Frank Jonna, a partner in the Jonna Company. Jonna said the company will build a filtering system out of wire baskets filled with stone near the base of the dam. The filter is intended stop to sediment but allow water to pass through the dam area, he said.

The initial plan has met state Department of Natural Resources approval.

"We met with (Jonna) and he has every intention of rectifying the problem," said Mike Nurse, water quality specialist at the DNR's Livonia branch office.

Nurse said Jonna must submit engineering plans and build a new dam to specifications of the state Dam Safety Unit in Lansing. He said the DNR has not issued any deadlines, but hoped a new structure could be built "in weeks, at most."

DNR officials said waters undermined the dam sometime early Jan. 18. Water rushed from the pond, under a bridge on Northville Road just north of Six Mile, and into the Middle Rouge and portions of Cass Benton Parkway.

Blocks of ice and hundreds of dead fish littered park area near the corner of Six Mile and Northville roads Friday morning.

Waterford Lake, formerly a 30-acre water body and wetland area, was soon transformed into a mud flat, with only the Middle Rouge feeder snaking its way to the dam.

Jonna said inspections on the Waterford Dam "were made in accordance with the Dam Safety Act." He did not say when the most recent inspections were taken.

Nurse said the DNR does not staff field offices with dam inspectors. He said a safety inspection unit operates out of Lansing.

Safety unit officials could not be reached for comment Tuesday. Jonna did not know when the dam would be patched.

"That's still not clear yet," he said. "We asked our engineers to come up with (a schedule)."

"I don't know any reason why it wouldn't be rebuilt," he said.

Dead fish notwithstanding, Nurse said environmental damage was slight.

"I didn't see any major damage to the stream itself," he said. "It could have been a lot worse."

Jonna agreed.

"There's no immediate hazard or negative impact to the environment, except what happened originally," he said. "There's no significant damage."

Employee catches sticky-fingered Detroit girl

T-SHIRT THIEF CAUGHT IN ACT: An alert employee of Town & Country Cycles, 148 N. Center St., told city police he watched a 15-year-old Detroit girl steal two T-shirts from the store Jan. 14.

The employee said he followed the girl out of the store at 4:20 p.m. and saw her put the shirts into a car. He then confronted her, he said, and she agreed to give them back. The shirts were valued at $17.50 each. Police took the girl into custody and turned the case over to Wayne County Juvenile Court.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY: City police responded to a reported assault and battery at the Winner's Circle apartments Jan. 12 and found a female resident with injuries to her face and left ear. Ambulance personnel treated the woman's injuries at the scene, but she refused transportation to a hospital.

SUSPENDED LICENSE ARREST: City police charged a 28-year-old South Lyon man with driving with a suspended license Jan. 14. Police had stopped the man on Eight Mile Road near Grace Street for driving with a broken headlight.

Police News

when a computer check revealed it a suspended license. He was arrested and released on $500 bond.

CAR STUCK ON WALL: A 64-year-old Novi man's car had to be towed off a brick wall at the MainCentre leasing office Jan. 17 after he drove onto the wall. He apparently drove up a sidewalk in front of the leasing office and through some shrubs before becoming stuck. The man told police he thought the sidewalk was a driveway. City police saw the man attempting to back off the wall at 11:25 p.m., and stopped to investigate. He was arrested for operating under the influence and released on $100 bond.

TIRES SLASHED: A MainCentre construction foreman told city police someone slashed his tires sometime during the morning of Jan. 18. Police found two slashed tires with 8-inch cuts, apparently from a razor knife. Damage was estimated at $150. The incident occurred sometime between 9-10:50 a.m., during a picket of the 150 S. Center St. construction site by several MainCentre workers.

SUSPICIOUS DRIVER: City police are investigating a suspicious incident Jan. 14. A 12-year-old Northville boy said he was riding a bicycle west on Seven Mile Road near Hines Drive at 5:15 p.m. when a blue, two-door Pontiac Grand Am pulled alongside and the driver told him to get into the car. The driver reportedly said, "Get in my car; give me directions to Howell." When the boy refused, the driver reportedly made a U-turn and drove off, heading south on Hines Drive.

SNOWBOARD STOLEN: A multi-colored Burton snowboard and other ski equipment valued at $480 was reported stolen from outside the Northville Recreation Department, 303 W. Main St. The $350 snowboard and a canvas bag containing a ski hat and gloves were reportedly stolen sometime around 11:30 p.m.

TOOLS STOLEN FROM GARAGE: Screwdrivers, wrenches and hammers were reported stolen from a Linden Drive home sometime between 12-3:30 p.m. Jan. 15. The tools were reportedly stolen from an unlocked garage.

FENDER BREEZES: City police reported three traffic accidents last week. On Jan. 15, a vehicle turning from Baseline Road onto East Street at 7:30 a.m. slid on a patch of ice and struck a car heading north on East Street. No injuries were reported, and no citations were issued.

The next day, a 16-year-old Northville girl driving west on Rayson Street at 7:45 p.m. struck a vehicle heading north on Center. She was cited for failing to yield.

A 17-year-old Northville man turning from South Wing St. onto Hines Drive 7:50 a.m. Jan. 21 hit a car heading east on Hines. He was cited for failing to yield.

LARCENY AT MEIJER: A 33-year-old River Rouge woman was was arrested Jan. 20 and charged with larceny after she attempted to steal five pairs of slippers, a purse and 49 fishing lures from Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, township police said.

According to reports, the woman fought with Meijer security personnel and had to be restrained. Police said the woman had a prior record with two larceny convictions. She was also wanted on a criminal bench warrant out of Melvindale.

The woman was released on $150 bond and faces a Feb. 6 court date in 24th District Court.

VEHICLE DAMAGED: A Northville woman's 1989 Pontiac Firebird reportedly was damaged while parked outside a Swan Lake Drive apartment late Jan. 19 or early Jan. 20, township police said.

The woman told police someone threw condoms filled with a milky white substance on the vehicle and also put three scratches on the car's spoiler. Police have no suspects in the case.

THEFT ATTEMPT FAILS: An alert neighbor caught a 15-year-old Northville boy in the act of trying to steal the hood ornament from a 1990 Cadillac parked on Surrey Lane Jan. 19, township police said.

A decision on prosecution is pending the return of the vehicle's owner, who was out of town at the time of the incident, police said.

DOOR OPENER STOLEN: A garage door opener was stolen from a 1989 Geo parked outside an Old Bedford residence sometime between Jan. 17-19, township police said. The door opener was valued at $50.

OUIL: A 37-year-old Twining man was charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol after township police arrested him Jan. 14. Police said the man was involved in an accident while driving westbound on Five Mile without headlights at 10 p.m.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Store owner charged

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

A Northville store owner pleaded not guilty at the 35th District Court Jan. 15 to two charges of fourth-degree criminal sexual conduct.

Joseph Spagnuolo, 70, owner of the Liquor Shoppe at 115 E. Main St., was released on a $500 personal bond after his plea in front of Judge John E. MacDonald.

He waived a preliminary examination at District Court Jan. 18 and the case was bound over to Wayne County Circuit Court. An arraignment will be held at Circuit Court within two weeks, followed by a pretrial and, if necessary, a trial.

The case stems from charges filed by a former resident of an apartment also owned by Spagnuolo. The 20-year-old woman told Northville

City police that the store owner made several suggestive comments to her when she went into the store to make a purchase around noon on Dec. 8. She said he then grabbed her, fondled her and kissed her against her will. The woman said he stopped her again the evening of Dec. 10 as she was moving out of the apartment, kissing her twice against her will.

In an interview with city police, Spagnuolo denied touching the woman sexually, though he said he may have touched her on the hip and shoulder.

He declined to comment publicly on the charges, based on the advice of his attorney.

Fourth-degree criminal sexual conduct is legally defined as "using force or coercion to accomplish... sexual contact." The misdemeanor offense is punishable by two years in prison and / or a $500 fine.

Hathhorn said her efforts were made possible by support from the entire community. She praised the efforts of Casterline Funeral Home director Ray Casterline, who donated the ribbons. His wife, Roxanne Casterline, developed the idea to adorn the town with the ribbons.

Hathhorn also thanked Perrins souvenir shop, which is sending an "Operation Desert Storm" T-shirt to a soldier overseas for every T-shirt sold. Perrins is raising money through the sale of other "Operation Desert Storm" items to send other supplies overseas as well.

"You just don't know how we appreciate the way the community has gotten behind us," Hathhorn said. "When we started this, we thought this would be a coffee klatch of wives and moms sitting around and talking. (But) at our last meeting, we had 115 people."

Council Member Paul Folino offered the support group an unspecified contribution and use of space at his 430 N. Center St. insurance office, and said, "I'm sure there's many people in the community who would like to do this."

"We may be small, but we do care a lot, and I think this will get that message across to the world," Johnson said.

Perrins sells this T-shirt for $17.95; if you buy one, another will be sent to the troops overseas

Northville church opens doors, heart to homeless day shelter and cannot house people overnight.

Each evening, church volunteers drove vans into the city to pick up the homeless, returning them to the shelter after breakfast the next morning.

A volunteer named George briefed the drivers before they left for the drop-in center Wednesday evening. "The only things in operation down there are churches, shelters and soup kitchens," he said. "Everything else is just burnt-out shells of buildings and empty lots. I was down there at six o'clock last night and there was no one, no traffic, no nothing."

The half hour drive down to the drop-in center proved George's description true. Street signs were stolen, making navigation difficult even without the dirty snow that fell on the city. The buildings all seemed deserted, with few lights and fewer people, and older-model cars in various stages of decay sat haphazardly along the sides of the road.

Back in Northville, the guests ate dinner downstairs in a brightly lit cafeteria, the long tables lined with colorful crayon-drawn placemats provided by local Sunday School classes, youth groups and elementary students.

After dinner they separated, to tend to children, play a spirited game of ping-pong, sit and strum a guitar with local musician Tom Rice, or line up for free haircuts provided by a volunteer hairdresser known simply as Morgan. Some sat and talked, sharing their stories with anyone who would listen.

Rhudine McGraw, 44, said she has lived in shelters with her 12-year-old daughter Shonda since October.

McGraw said this was her third time in a shelter since moving out of her Detroit home in 1981 when the pipes burst and heat was lost. "When I returned I found that somebody had vandalized it and I couldn't afford the repairs," she said.

McGraw said she moved out of the home again in 1984, and by the time she returned two years later the house had been torn down. Her life, she said, has been "one difficult thing after another."

McGraw said she rented several apartments after leaving her home, but found that they were not much better than the shelters.

"The apartment buildings are all drug-infested; last one I lived in there were shoot-outs and fire bombings," she said. "A lot of horrible things happened to me while I was there... That's the reason I wanted to move."

As far as welfare is concerned, she said, "there are some people on there who probably don't need to be, but I am someone who is desperately trying to get off."

Rhudine tried to explain what being homeless meant to her. "You feel very, very vulnerable being out there," she said. "You're living in the world but there's no place to put your feet. It's like the world is saying you're not welcome, and to see that there are so many other people out there like this... Something is really going wrong somewhere. It seems like the system is throwing people away; I don't know what it's about anymore."

Uppermost in the minds of many of the homeless at the church shelter was Gov. John Engler's plan to end General Assistance payments to more than 100,000 Michiganders, half of those in Wayne County alone. "What's left for these people when they make these cuts?" Rhudine McGraw asked. "It's going to lower the level of what I'm getting, and I'm not making it on what I'm getting now."

The welfare cuts will only add to that desperation for many people, she predicted.

"A lot of people will feel like less than a human being. If you feel like you are nobody then you respond in that fashion."

"That'd be a bad world to live in." Don King, 34, agreed with McGraw's grim assessment. "Something out there on the streets is very bad," he said.

King said the proposed cuts would not be so brutal if the money went into other programs to ease inner-city pressures, like drug counseling and job training.

"If they were going to be taking this money from the homeless, that's where they should be putting it," he said. "Make a means for them to make a living. Cut out social services but give them a job. Why cut them off when there are no jobs? That's just putting them out on the street... They've already got a lot of old people out there eating dog food and cat food to survive month to month."

"I'm not worried about myself; I know I'm going to get back in the workforce. I'm worried about the people who can't."

The end result of Engler's cuts, King predicted, will be increased crime and drug use in Detroit as people steal to survive and take drugs to dull the pain of life on the streets. "Engler is going to hurt people, and he's going to feel it down the line when the crime rates rise and more people are out on the street, and they've got to steal to survive... A guy can't find a job, can't eat, what's the solution? Do a crime, go to jail, three square meals a day and a roof. And who pays for it? The taxpayers."

"The dope pushers are going to get richer, people are going to stay poor, and the jails are going to fill up."

King, who said he served in the Army between 1974-1978 and spent part of that time in Vietnam, said that the streets of Detroit already rival a war zone when it comes to crime. "I thought 'Nam was something, man, but it's 'Nam right here on the streets of Michigan."

"It's making me feel ashamed to even be part of this country," he said.

Cable outage short-circuits Gulf war coverage

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

American citizens throughout the country sat spell-bound in front of their televisions last Wednesday night and early Thursday morning, watching as U.S. and other troops turned the defensive Operation Desert Shield into the military offensive known as Operation Desert Storm.

That is, everywhere but in the City of Northville. A local resident and the Omnicom cable company of Canton disagree on the exact time, but cable service to most of the city was lost sometime between 1:30-6:30 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 17. Service was restored by 8:30 a.m.

Northville resident Carol Sensoli said she was watching news coverage of the unfolding Persian Gulf conflict when the cable signal went out just before 1:30 a.m. "I was really perturbed," she said. "That night above all was not the night to be out."

Sensoli said she called Omnicom's special after-hours repair number as soon as she lost her signal, but the line was busy and remained busy until seven hours later. "I got through to their office about 8:30 (a.m.)," she said.

Sensoli did manage to keep track of the conflict on a small portable television, though the reception was so bad that she could not see much. "At least I got some voice-over," she said.

"I don't care about football or anything else," she said. "I thought this was just too important a night not to have somebody out there doing something about it. Everybody was on pins and needles; it was too important a night not to let people know what was going on."

Omnicom General Manager Lisa Boland attributed the outage to a fault in the cable system's power supply. But she said the problem did not become apparent until between 6-8:30 a.m., and that the company received only one call about a signal loss early that morning. She said the company received a single call about loss of service at 3:30 a.m., "which was not indicative of an outage."

Even so, Boland said, it was not until after 6 a.m. that cable operators realized there was a serious signal outage. "All of a sudden we got six calls right away. That was the first flood of phone calls we received."

Boland said she reviewed the phone logs after the incident and found only three to four calls to the cable company between 12:30-3:30 a.m. "I know that the phone calls were getting through, and none of them were from Northville," she said.

"It's fairly evident when the outage begins on the answering service logs," she said. "We get one call about every minute and a half. The outages in the middle of the evening are much more difficult to repair on a timely basis because it's dark, and it's difficult to work in the dark."

Boland admitted that the outage was more than a minor inconvenience. "We're certainly sorry about the inconvenience," Boland said. "We're very aware of how important the coverage, especially on CNN (Cable News Network), has been. It couldn't have come at a worse time."

Boland estimated that as many as 1,500 Northville subscribers lost cable service that morning, and said service was restored by 8:30 a.m.

Sensoli said cable problems have been common in the Lexington Commons area since she moved there three years ago.

With rare exceptions, she said, "if it's out during the night, they don't fix it until the morning."

Our Opinion

Shores project leaves damage in its wake

A recent decision by the township zoning board of appeals to terminate a mining reclamation agreement between the township and agents for the developer of a 400-acre residential project is not the first — and certainly not the last — salvo in the Shores of Northville saga.

The project has a troubled history. Not long after the owners of the Thomson Sand & Gravel site sold the played-out pit, a contracting firm headed by a Shores of Northville general partner began grading slopes on the site, under terms of a mining permit.

According to the permit, the developer could grade slopes and generally smooth out the scoured gravel-pit site. No site preparation was to take place.

But residents living near the pit became alarmed when the contractor, D & T Construction of Mt. Clemens, destroyed an on-site swath of mature trees. It was later determined that many of the trees were protected under the township's woodlands ordinance. The developer made no attempt to alert anyone — township, state, or otherwise — that trees were to be felled.

The developer then submitted a site plan to the township planning commission and caught plenty of grief for the tree destruction. But the developer proclaimed his innocence, saying the removal of six acres of trees was all a horrible mistake. We'll plant more trees than we cut down, he told the township.

But an alarming trend had already begun. At a township board meeting last spring, a resident asked the township to look into the possibility of moving an old house that sat south of Seven Mile Road. The house dated back to the early 1800s and was purported to be the oldest dwelling in the township.

The next morning it was razed, sans permit. No one told us it may have had historical value, the developer said.

Problems also cropped up with the Department of Natural Resources and the Wayne County Health Department. Water levels jumped and fell in the lakes at neighboring Blue Heron Pointe. Last summer, the developer diverted a tiny creek that trickled through properties east of Ridge Road into the gravel pit.

The developer said the creek diversion was a simple, short-term action that would hasten the reclamation process. We were going to put it right back, the developer said, after the redirection came to light.

But the ZBA — acting on the township engineer's recommendation — halted activity on the site. In effect, the ZBA said reclamation was complete. The developer protested, claiming more work was needed. The developer also said the diverted creek needed to be returned to its natural course.

However, the developer did not seek DNR permitting before or after the creek diversion. When erosion became evident east of a Ridge Road subdivision, residents and township officials feared the damage would spider-web into neighboring properties.

Development

A November meeting was arranged to seek a solution to the erosion problem. Township engineers reportedly asked the developer to go back on site. The developer declined, citing fear of litigation with the DNR.

DNR representatives were invited to the November meeting, but did not attend. Why? The developer said the DNR was appraised of potential erosion problems in the early fall, yet the DNR did not seem to act. And why didn't the developer follow proper channels and seek permits to right the stream before it caused extensive damage to innocent parties?

Answers to those questions are unclear, but indications are a problem exists between the developer and the DNR. Behind-the-scenes-wrangling apparently continued, and suddenly a culvert that funneled the creek from private property to the pit gave way.

The result to adjacent property owners was devastating. The tiny creek soon became a raging torrent, and carved away an alarming chunk of a neighboring couple's wooded lot.

In an effort to gain control of the situation, the ZBA moved to terminate the mining permit. The township would administer reclamation funds and repair damage caused by the diverted creek.

Ironically, a 30-day appeal period may put the developer back in the driver's seat. The township attorney urged the developer to seek proper DNR permits and get back on site. Reportedly, the skids have been greased to do just that.

Despite the township's feelings about the developer, the overriding concern seems to be neighboring property owners — and rightly so. Township officials want the situation resolved before spring rains heighten the problem. The developer may be the only resource capable of pulling off a quick resolution.

Somehow, the idea of this developer rectifying the problem is less than satisfying. Good faith is a phrase that does not come to mind when the subject comes around to the Shores of Northville. Finger-pointing, rules-skirting, and appalling ignorance seem to be more appropriate.

If the developer does go back on-site, we'll hope for the best — but we won't hold our breath.

Budget cuts hit this area especially hard

It would be an exaggeration to say that Governor John Engler is trying to balance the state budget on the back of the Northville community. But it sure doesn't feel like one.

Torecap the news of the past few days, the Engler administration's budget proposals will affect Northville in dramatic ways. Most important, an executive order ending state-returned racetrack tax money could have resulted in the loss of nearly a half-million dollars from the city budget.

The Legislature averted that particular danger Tuesday, at least temporarily. But some cut in the track tax money is almost certain, and the city will face a painful financial situation as a result.

In addition, one of the prisons on Five Mile will close; another will switch from a men's facility to a women's — and will house more serious offenders as a result, with the same security it has now. Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital will see an increase in patients with no increase in staff, very likely jeopardizing the hospital's hard-won accreditation. Hawthorn Center faces the loss of a dozen staff and deep cuts to community mental health programs. And the famous Engler tax-cut plan will probably cause significant financial problems for the Northville School District.

Thanks, governor. At least you didn't try to sell us the jetcopter.

The state's finances are in a mess, and some budget cuts are undeniably necessary. But Engler is slashing more than he needs to: Total corrections appropriations, for example, would rise under his budget, and the tax-cut plan includes obvious new costs to the state general fund.

If everything Engler proposes goes through, it will add up to a swift kick in the financial teeth for the Northville community. Let's hope our local legislators are able to head off at least some of these damaging cuts. Otherwise the state may end up healthier, but Northville could catch its malaise.

The nation looks to Northville

Anyone who's ever been to a Fourth of July celebration here knows that Northville is a particularly patriotic community.

Now the world at large knows it too.

Television cameras seem to be quite common around town these days. Mass media from all over — local and national — have turned their attention in recent days to the little town outside Detroit which displays so much spirit.

It's been widely reported that Saddam Hussein avidly watches Cable News Network, which has given extensive play to the doings in Northville. How odd to think that the dictator behind this entire war might now know about our town and its activities.

If he does, he's not alone. By now people around the world have heard about how Northville supports the troops of Operation Desert Storm: The ribbons and flags adorning the town. The West Side Military Family Support Group. The joint city/township resolution formalizing the concept of support. The shirts and stickers and buttons, all for a good cause. The simple patriotism.

The community has turned into a real center of support, and it's due to the efforts of a lot of people. Many of their names are scattered through this newspaper. They include support group organizers and members; business people making donations; and many volunteers working to put up the ribbons, install the flags, and accomplish countless other tasks. It seems more people join the effort every day.

What's the result? Patriotic feeling around the community flows higher than ever. And lots of people look to Northville as an example of how a community can deal with a time like this. Laurie Marrs at the Chamber of Commerce reports that the phone has been ringing off the hook with people interested in what Northville is doing. Their answering machine had about 30 messages on it Tuesday morning, some from out of state, she said.

Northville has really become a "model support city" for the troops overseas. Congratulations and thanks to everyone who made it happen; I admire you all.

Fun with our new office pet

The Northville Record office has a minor problem. It's our new pet. The new office mascot doesn't do anything except sit and drink water, and I mean a lot of water. So much water, in fact, that I find myself worrying about our new pet on the weekends. How is it doing? Is anybody feeding it? I can hardly sleep at night. If you haven't guessed, the office pet is a Chia Tree.

The Chia Tree is a variation of the well-known Chia Pet, which comes in the form of a bull, ram, teddy bear, kitten or puppy. The tree is the only member of the Chia Family not in the animal kingdom, except maybe the teddy bear, which technically could be considered an inanimate object.

Actually, to be a Chia is to be inanimate. The clay sculptures provide a moist environment in which Chia Seeds (known as Salvia Columbariae to scientists) flourish. Similar seeds like basil, timothy, alfalfa, marjoram and thyme can also grow on a Chia Pet. Our Chia Tree base is home to newly germinating white sprouts and still ungerminated green seeds. Our Chia Tree is not exactly an overachiever. It's having a few developmental problems.

A full coat of luxurious green Chia Leaves should be covering our Chia Tree by now. The Chia Directions say sprouts should form after three to five days and a full coat can be expected in one to two weeks. After a full week, the Chia Pet has just a few sprouts.

The disappointment is hard to disguise. The Chia Tree has provided virtually minutes of entertainment for computer-weary reporters in the office. The week-old pet has been watched closely since its conception. From the day reporter Cristina Ferrer planted seeds on the tree we began to share the responsibility of making sure the hollow Chia Tree was filled with water at all times, but to no avail. The tree is just not living up to its expectations. No wonder, the combination of fluorescent lights and electromagnetic radiation spewing from our computer terminals can't be conducive to good Chia Health.

Despite our difficulties with the Chia Tree, I think the Chia Family is highly underrated. "The Chia Tree is handmade in Mexico by native artisans using techniques passed down from the Indians of ancient Mexico," the Chia Tree's box reads. Who would have thought something of such historic significance would be advertised on the half-hour during the holiday television-watching season?

Besides the historic significance, a Chia Tree can double as a candle holder. The top of the tree has an opening for water that also can hold a candle. To the best of my knowledge no one has tried using our Chia Tree as a candle holder, but what a brilliant idea for those romantic deadline-day meals.

The Chia Pet has been the brunt of more than a few jokes in the office and amongst my family and friends, but I have to ask, with all these benefits, who could ask for anything more in an office mascot?

Michigan Model agreement near

To the editor:

We, as only two of many citizens concerned about the Michigan Model and some of its content, are working diligently to reach a mutual point of understanding and cooperation with the school superintendent and the board. Now, with input from professionals and other interested individuals who have come to the forefront, we are encouraged that a settlement can and will be reached.

At the Dec. 10 board meeting, several citizens were given the opportunity to educate the board as well as the audience, in regard to the following issues: 1. the origination of "affective education" (that used in the Michigan Model), the warnings from the founders and other professionals of the dangers when a "feelings-based" approach is used; 2. the laws on record giving parents ultimate rights in regard to what their children are taught and the right to remove them from anything deemed harmful (the right to opt out of any or all of the Michigan Model classes); 3. the use of relaxation techniques and the psychological and physical warnings against any such use of altered states of consciousness on adults, let alone our children; 4. the teaching of "responsible use" for drugs, sex and alcohol education as opposed to an abstinence-based approach, which is clearly the only method that should be taught.

It was very interesting to hear from Judy Cavell of the Wayne County Intermediate School District who denied that anything harmful or inaccurate was contained in the Michigan Model and that the state does indeed provide for an opt out policy. Why is it then that Northville parents are not being allowed to opt their children out and must physically remove their children from the school for the duration of the Health Class if they object to the material being taught? Further, one of the parents cited an inaccuracy in regard to AIDS transmission (as presented in the Michigan Model, Grade 8, Module 4, Lesson 7, Item 3a and 3c), where there is no mention of homosexual activity resulting in contracting AIDS nor the CDS statistics that state 67 percent of AIDS victims are or have been involved in homosexual relations. It was also pointed out that the Michigan Model teaches the use of condoms to prevent AIDS but neglects to point out the 12-18 percent failure rate.

However, when Ms. Cavell was approached with these specific examples she denied their existence.

At the close of the Dec. 10 meeting, Dr. George Bell requested that the parents compile each and every objection that they have with each and every lesson taught as part of the Michigan Model. At this time, we are in the process of working on providing Dr. Bell with his request and believe we will be able to present him with a document before the end of January. We are also exploring other avenues as part of our overall action plan. However, we are proceeding in good faith that the concerns we have already expressed during the Dec. 10 board meeting and which will be presented in a document to Dr. Bell, will indeed be received with sincere consideration and that the review of the issues at hand will result in a mutually agreeable alternative. If we are unable to arrive at a resolution soon, you can be assured that we will remain committed to see that the education of all our children in Northville does not become that of a "second class."

Vote for pay raise means at least one less vote next time

To Northville Resident Voters:

Remember the name Robert Geake! Just in case you forget it, I'll remind you again next election day.

Mr. Geake did not complain about his salary and fringes when he ran for election. He was grateful to be re-elected. Now he tells us that those feeding from the public trough have been underpaid for years and this pay raise is a catch-up. No one with good sense would seek a job that doesn't pay what he deserves. Why did Mr. Geake seek re-election?

Remember Mr. Geake — your vote on Jan. 26 will be a NO vote for your next election day.

Mettetal Airport issue clouded with wrong information

To the editor:

I feel compelled to respond to recent letters from Mr. Jan Mueller.

I suppose it could be a value judgment between he and I as to whether the community most needs an airport which serves business needs (some $3 million annually of community impact), recreational needs (like community parks and golf courses) and holds the potential to become a unique vocational training center, compared to turning the property into yet another strip mall.

It is NOT correct, however, to say this will be funded with public monies. The funds will come from the Airport and Airways Trust Fund; already fully funded with user fees (such as fuel taxes). The airport should be fully self-sustaining hereafter — and citizens have the protection of the Headlee amendment which requires their vote on any new taxes.

It is NOT correct to imply there are serious safety considerations: the FAA and State Aviation Commission, both of whom are vitally interested in safety BOTH support the retention of Mettetal as a community airport.

It is NOT correct to imply that Mettetal will be turned into another Detroit City Airport. The charter to the airport commission at its inception will define Mettetal's role and future growth.

Lastly, we all should have some idea of the underlying motivation of anyone making public statements (the Gulf War makes this point). Mr. Jan Mueller is the owner of New Hudson Airport, which stands to benefit if Mettetal is closed and airplanes are forced to relocate to his facility.

Dealing with feelings is important

Recently, I have observed many teens who do not know what they are feeling. It is important for parents to encourage their children to deal with their feelings.

Feelings are real and normal, not good or bad; they simply exist. They are our internal reactions to events which occur in our environment and in our thinking. They come from the frustrations and desires of the moment. Some don't last long, others are permanent. We can have many different feelings in the course of a day.

Unfortunately, we learn to divide feelings into good and bad. Pleasant feelings become "good" feelings and unpleasant are "bad" feelings. This leads to the conclusion that "bad" feelings are wrong and we shouldn't have them. Kids who express their "negative" emotions are able to discover and express their "positive" feelings as well. Some of these feelings have been hidden for a long time. Expressing ALL feelings is good for body and soul.

Parents can help their kids express their feelings by allowing the child to admit to a "negative" emotion. Once he identifies how he feels and how his feelings affect him and those around him, he then must decide what to do with his feelings.

It is not uncommon for children to feel angry and express their anger through hostile behavior. Allow your child to "own" his feelings. Expressing the emotion is the best way to get rid of it. The youth that is able to do this will be less likely to act his feelings out.

Parents can help their youths by sharing some of their own experiences. For example, "I remember feeling upset about this too when it first happened to me. I was really mad so (explain what you did) and what happened to me was . . . It may not happen just that way for you, but that was my experience." This helps kids see the relationship between feelings, their actions and the results of their actions.

Some youths (and adults) have buried or denied their feelings for a long time. This results in the fact that a number of feelings are diminished — sometimes the person feels almost numb.

One way to help kids recognize their feelings, especially pleasant feelings, is to ask them to name and write down things they really enjoy doing. These should be simple things like:

- Skipping stones on a lake.
- Sitting in the shade doing nothing.
- Walking barefoot in the sand.
- Getting their backs scratched.
- Eating peanut butter and crackers.
- Riding a bike, feeling the wind on their faces.

Every day for one week, have them pick from their list one or two things and do them. Really enjoy them. Tell them to feel how they feel. Ask them if they felt happy doing them. Encourage them to think about the good feeling during the day.

If your child is having a difficult time expressing his feelings, call Mary Ellen King at 344-1618 and we can help to sort out what is going on with your child.

The worst-off lose more ground

For the past several weeks, I have been writing about what has happened to the American Dream, especially here in Michigan.

The hard, cold numbers are clear. For most Michigan families over the last 15 years, incomes after inflation are going down while costs of middle-class essentials like college tuition and housing have increased sharply.

Most families are pinched, trying to maintain the kind of life predicted by the American Dream (usually at the cost of two wage earners) while struggling to stave off disaster.

Poor people, especially, have had a rough time over the past 15 years.

Inflation-adjusted income of the lowest fifth of American families fell by 9 percent from 1973-88, while (perverse) their federal tax bite rose 16 percent over the past 10 years, largely because of increases in Social Security. Such people are not only relatively less well off after inflation; they are absolutely worse off.

Some of these people, not so incidentally, are those who will be the most affected by Gov. John Engler's recently announced budget cuts, which include elimination of General Assistance — welfare for those who are physically able to work but who cannot find a job.

The worst of the worse off are those with no or little education. Median family income for those who dropped out of school fell by an astonishing 25 percent between 1973 and 1989. Such people used to be sustained by well-paying jobs with good benefits in the auto, steel and other manufacturing plants.

But the number of such jobs has dropped as unskilled work has migrated abroad and as such industries as autos have shed labor in their drive to reduce costs and increase competitiveness.

Is anybody making it these days?

Sure. The richest fifth of American families saw their adjusted income rise by 25 percent from 1973-88, while the average federal tax bite on such people fell by 5.5 percent from 1980-90. (Federal taxes on the top 1 percent of incomes fell by nearly 15 percent!)

Most political commentators have noted the remarkable redistribution of wealth — toward the already wealthy — that took place during the Reagan years.

And the shift may go far in explaining just why the stagnation affecting most middle-class families has not produced the kind of social and political outrage one might expect.

By and large, people who are wealthy and well educated are the people who have access to the media. And if wealthy people in the United States have done very well over the past 10 years, why should they be raising a rumpus?

But if you think about it for a moment, we have been in the middle of a rumpus for the past 10 years, caused in very great part by stagnating incomes of middle Americans:

- The tax revolt (and its especially virulent form in Michigan, dating from the 1983 recall of two Democratic state senators from the suburbs). It has been caused in very large part by people who see rising taxes as yet another nail in the coffin of the American Dream.
- The case against free trade (and in particular against the Japanese invasion of the U.S. auto market), stemming directly from the migration abroad of good-paying, unskilled manufacturing jobs that used to sustain Michigan's middle class.
- The generational conflict between the increasingly pampered elderly (for whom indexed Social Security payments and Medicare programs are now the political equivalent of the Holy Grail) and the increasing desperate workers struggling to support them.
- Even the intractable U.S. budget deficit, which stems from the combination of shrinking tax revenues (caused in part by shrinking incomes) and strident demands for maintaining various government programs which sustain the American Way of Life.

School district to host speaker on future of education

Planning Initiative to investigate an alternative high school day.

"He was so great that every committee member, and I had some parents with me, said, 'You have got to bring this man to Northville,'" said Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services Dolly McMaster.

"It's very timely stuff, and it's excellent."

Snyder's Northville presentation is open to the community, Northville middle and high school parents and students, the Strategic Planning Committee, Strategy VI Action Planning Teams, the Northville Chamber of Commerce, and the Business/Education Partnership Advisory Council.

Snyder will discuss "Five Realities Confronting America in the 1990s."

The program will focus on a need for a collaboration between educators, businesses, government and labor to prepare the country for the future.

Reforming public education alone will not be enough to "intellectually re-arm" the country fast enough to prevent the economy from losing its edge, Snyder says.

We will be required to institute new apprenticeship programs to help retrain millions of displaced workers and upgrade all levels of workers.

Issues like increasing technology, partnerships with business and industry, alternative student assessment strategies, collaboration rather than competition, greater opportunities for interdisciplinary studies, and greater scheduling and course selection may arise in Northville schools as a result of his presentation.

HEY MOM!

What's war?

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

When 7-year-old Beth asked her mother, Bonnie St. Thomas of Northville, questions about the war, it was hard for mom to answer.

"She asked, 'What is war?' and she said it seems so senseless," recalled St. Thomas, who has two older sons of draft age.

"She had a hard time understanding the concept — I told her that somebody wants someone else's land, and that they are fighting over it. It was hard for her to grasp that, that there are different areas of land.

Having to explain the war in the Middle East is a difficult task that parents around the country face. As children are exposed to the events through television and school, many are filled with questions that are tough to answer, and many face anxiety of proportions they have never known before.

"I told her that there are missiles, bombs and that there is killing — and that it's a bad thing. I didn't want to minimize the truth."

Beth is at an age where her parents can't keep the brutal truth of the war away from her.

"You can't not have it on (TV) and wait to watch it later," St. Thomas said. "She's in the first grade, so they talk about it in school. So far she's been good. They talk about it freely."

Joe Blake, school social worker for the Northville Public Schools, said that it is important for parents to talk about the war with their children, and to share anxieties and fears.

"There is so much on television, and television is a passive activity," he said. "Parents should watch TV with their children and talk about the situation as best as they can."

He said parents, while watching television with their children, should encourage them to express their feelings.

"Often times parents need to bring (those feelings) out," Blake said. He suggested to use sentences like, "Perhaps you're feeling scared about this," to encourage children to share their feelings.

"Just by getting it out, you can help the child (to understand)," he said.

By talking with children, parents can also discover whether the child may have fears that are unnecessary, such as the war taking place in their own neighborhood.

"Children can fantasize and that can become like reality to them. It can be quite scary."

He added that children can take adult comments out of context to create frightening ideas.

"We have to be conscious of what we say," he said.

Blake said it's important to be honest with children, but that adults should use their own judgment about how far to go in discussing some matters, such as possible atrocities, damages or casualties.

The Century Health Care Corporation, a California-based organization that offers free professional counseling, support and referral services to parents by telephone (call 1-800-735-KIDS), also has pointers for parents who are having difficulty explaining the war to their children.

1. Parents should monitor children's television watching. Set a timer and only allow 30 minutes of war coverage at a time — for yourself or your children. Don't let the war and the television take over your schedule. Never allow children to watch the coverage by themselves.

2. Since parents transfer their own anxieties to their children, it is important to get in touch with your own feelings before discussing your children's fears.

3. Be honest with children. It's OK to tell them you don't know all the answers.

4. Talk about distance. Get out a map and show them that the Middle East is very far away.

5. Provide consistency. This isn't a good time for a trip to Disney World. Keep the same schedules, the same mealtimes and the same bedtimes.

Above, Mike Payne, 10, tried a gas mask on for size at Moraine Elementary School. He had brought it in to show his friends. Area schools have been discussing the situation with children. At left, third graders show that they know where Iraq is.

AMY CLARKE-HAMLIN

Program volunteer joins 'school life' with 'real life'

By JAMES TOTTEN
Special Writer

"Why is the sky blue?" is one of many questions children will ask their parents. Amy Clarke-Hamlin of Walled Lake feels it essential that children learn to find answers to their questions.

She hopes that her volunteer work and her job are helping children to find those answers.

Clarke-Hamlin volunteers with the Partnerships For Education Committees for the Novi, Birmingham/Bloomfield, and Lakes Area Chambers of Commerce. The committees work at establishing an alliance between businesses and schools. She described it as connecting the relevancy of school to that of the "real world."

She feels businesses need to be in-involved in the educational system since children are our resources. "Businesses are dependent on education for their success to compete in a global economy," she stated. She contacts business people and asks them for a time commitment for various programs set up by the Partnerships For Education.

One such program that she helped create three years ago was the Read-Out program in Novi. The program brings business people into elementary schools to read aloud to children. According to Clarke-Hamlin, this helps make reading a habit and also provides children with role models.

This teaming up between schools and businesses provides an opportunity for children to see the values in

Michigan National Bank 'adopts' Northville soldier

The staff at Michigan National Bank on Seven Mile Road in Northville Township has "adopted" Jeremy Kitchen, a Northville resident who is in the army and stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Branch Sales Manager Darlene Feught said the first boxes for Kitchen and another local resident, Mark Schaper of Novi, were sent this week. Feught said the bank found Kitchen and Schaper through a Jan. 10 article in The Northville Record which highlighted several local residents in the Persian Gulf.

Feught said the bank contacted Kitchen's mother, Gloria Loudy, for ideas on what to send, and she provided them with a list of items, ranging from cookies to flea collars. The soldiers wear the flea collars around their ankles.

Included in the box is a letter that begins, "You don't know us, but . . ." In addition to sending the packages, Feught said the staff has tied yellow ribbons on the trees outside the bank and put Kitchen's and Schaper's photos on their bulletin board.

Library Luncheon

Betty Griffin, a member of Northville Friends of the Library, said the group's fifth annual Book and Author Luncheon has been set for March 5 at noon.

The luncheon will feature author Lucy Taylor, who wrote the novel Avenue of Dreams. The luncheon will be held at the Novi Civic Center in conjunction with the Plymouth and Canton library groups.

Griffin said Taylor is a former school secretary in the Warren School District and raised eight children before becoming an author. Before publishing Avenue of Dreams, which is set in depression-era Detroit, she published several short stories and poems. She is now working on her second novel.

Single Place

Single Place Ministries of Northville First Presbyterian Church is planning a winter ski weekend Feb. 15-17.

one of the top ski resorts in the U.S. Boyne has 27 runs with a 520-foot vertical.

It will also take place at Nub's Nob in Harbor Springs, which has 18 slopes on over 135 acres of skiable terrain.

Cross country skiing is also available at both locations. At Boyne there are 28 kilometers of general cross-country skiing at an $8 per day charge. At Nub's Nob there is no charge for cross country skiing. Rental equipment is available.

Lodging will be at Day's Inn on Little Traverse Bay in Petoskey. The trip is based on double occupancy per room.

MORaine

Moraine students are "rolling" into the new year having enjoyed the first Family Roller-Skating Night of 1991. This event was held in Canton on the evening of Jan. 14 and as usual was well-attended.

Our noon hour program, which provides students with alternate indoor activities three days a week, has begun. Thanks to the parents who have volunteered to assist students with computers, games and videos. A special thanks to Universal Video on Novi Road for donating the videos.

More volunteers are needed for the second six weeks of the program.

Our JES Program has planned an assembly for Jan. 22 at 1:30 p.m. featuring Mr. Wizard's Supermarket Science. Parents are always welcome to attend these assemblies.

Start saving those Jif Peanut Butter and Duncan Hines products receipts. For each item purchased, these companies will provide Moraine with money which will be used to purchase equipment and supplies for our school. Receipts will be collected through May 15. Please circle the price of each of these items on your receipts. Also, our Campbell's Soup label campaign runs through March 1. So keep sending in those labels. Your support is greatly appreciated.

Our Student Council is very active this school year. With the environment being a major concern, their next project is to investigate the use of recyclable food trays in the cafeteria. Keep up the good work!

If your child is spelling everything in sight, it could be because of the upcoming Spelling Bee for third, fourth and fifth graders. The Spelling Bee will take place the week of Jan. 21. Good luck to all students.

Many of our students have been writing letters to service men and women stationed in Saudi Arabia. They are encouraged to be receiving replies from our troops who greatly appreciate all mail.

We would like to welcome a new student teacher to Moraine this semester. Therese Brooks will be assisting Mrs. Loeffler and Mrs. Rosinski in the kindergarten classrooms.

Our next PTA meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 9:30 a.m. We encourage you to join us.

SILVER SPRINGS

The holidays are over, time to relax, not at Silver Springs! January and February are active months. Student Council Representatives Robin Gosdeck and Natalie Thomson reported that several nominations have been taken for president, elections will be held soon. Jan. 25 will be Stuffed Animal Day with prizes awarded for largest, smallest, most unusual and most colorful. Natalie and Robin also reported that 79 books were donated in the December "Gift of Reading" drive.

The Silver Springs Spirit made its debut in its new format as a booklet-style newsletter. Published every month, it now includes photos of students and school activities. Chairpersons Peggy Quick and Mary Ruple will also print New Year's Wishes and Valentine Greetings from parents, students, and teachers in the upcoming Feb. 8 issue.

Earlier this week the third-, fourth- and fifth-graders enjoyed a morning assembly, "Mr. Wizard's Supermarket Science." Students in Kindergarten, first and second grades attended "The Mystery of Science."

Both were part of the Junior Enrichment Series.

The Family Roller Skating Party on Jan. 27 will provide a nice alternative to Super Bowl Sunday. It will be from 5-7 p.m. at the Skatin' Station in Canton.

Silver Springs will host the Board of Education meeting in the Rondelle at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 28.

Other activities coming up include a Spelling Bee for fourth and fifth graders on Jan. 30 and the Silver Springs Girl Scout Cluster Sock Hop on Feb. 7. The parent/daughter dance will feature tunes from the '60s through the '90s. "Drive-in" style food will also be available. Feb. 8 is Metric Olympics, a 5th grade event. Parent volunteers are still needed (a knowledge of metrics is NOT required), contact Mrs. Stringer, grade 5.

Our next PTA meeting will be Tuesday, Feb. 12, at 9:15 a.m. in the music room.

WINCHESTER

The cold and flu season is here. To help reduce colds and flu, Winchester had "Germ Awareness Week," Jan. 21-25.

"Dr. Winchester" helped to remind students that simple techniques, such as washing hands, can help to keep us healthier.

The first Family Roller Skating night will be Thursday, Jan. 24. For safety reasons, the two parties this year will be divided alphabetically: A-L in Jan. and M-Z in March. Also beginning this week was the Junior Great Books program. Once a week for the next eight weeks, second graders will stay in during lunch recess to discuss a story. The program runs 12 weeks for third and fourth graders.

Look for report cards to come home with students on Monday, Jan. 28.

On Jan. 29, Dr. David Pearce Snyder will speak on Education and Schools of the Future at the high school. This event is open to the community.

Winchester will be participating with Silver Springs in Jump Rope for Heart. It will be held at Northville High School on Saturday, Feb. 2. This event benefits the American Heart Association.

The Winchester Publishing Center runs its second session from Feb. 4-8. It will be the last session open to fourth- and fifth-graders to publish this year.

The Art Appreciation program begins at Winchester in February. Our students have the opportunity to learn from trained volunteers, how to view paintings with a more "educated eye."

The Mid-Winter Break runs Feb. 18-22. Enjoy!

The next PTA meeting will be held Feb. 6 in the music room. Babysitting will be available. Everyone is invited.

the world outside school. "Kids need to see how business people actually operate," she said. The Read-Out program is one of her favorites since "it is so simple — yet so powerful."

Reading is an essential according to Clarke-Hamlin. As a child, her father read to her every day and she considers it to be the major reason for her success. She feels that parents should read themselves and set an example for their children to follow.

Another skill that she feels is essential for children to learn is the ability to find information quickly and easily. She said, "Getting the child into the habit of looking up information" is a necessary skill in a rapidly changing world.

A former teacher, Clarke-Hamlin feels that the biggest problem schools face today are motivation and relevancy. Children need to get excited about learning and how to find answers for themselves. She also feels that teachers need the support of parents and business people to improve education.

After leaving teaching, Clarke-Hamlin wanted to be involved with education yet also have a sense of independence. She is currently divisional manager at World Book Education Products serving families, schools and libraries in Oakland County.

Married and mother of one daughter, she finds herself working a 60-70 hours week between her job and volunteering, leaving little time for pleasure reading.

Wedding

Joanne Chris Poulos/John George Metrusias

Joanne Chris Poulos of Northville married John George Metrusias of Dearborn Heights on Sept. 1, 1990.

The bride is the daughter of Chris and Penny Poulos of Northville. She is a 1987 graduate of Northville High School and is presently attending Madonna College to become a certified public accountant.

The bridegroom is a 1980 graduate of Crestwood High School as well as a graduate of Henry Ford Community College with a degree in business administration. He is currently self-employed, owning his own business. John is the son of George and Mary Metrusias of Dearborn Heights.

Wedding vows were exchanged at the Holy Cross Greek Orthodox Church in Farmington Hills. Father Stephen J. Anthony and Father Michael Variamos officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride had her sister, Georgia, of Northville as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mary Metrusias of Dearborn Heights, Villy and Sophia Logas of Garden City, Toulia Gangas of Chicago, Anastasia Kanakos of Washington, Pam Alexander of Northville, and Kathy Salvagio of Grosse Pointe Farms. Flower girls were Kristina and Athena Kanellos of Kingston, Ontario.

Best man for the bridegroom was Bobby Stoyanovich of Dearborn Heights. Groomsmen were Gus Metrusias of Dearborn Heights, Dino Poulos of Northville, Peter Milonius of Kingston, Ontario, John Logas of Dearborn Heights, Nick and Ari Pappadakis of Wixom, and Elia Koumarliotis of Dearborn Heights. Ringbearer was Leo Salvagio of Grosse Pointe Farms. Dimitri Salvagio of Grosse Pointe Farms acted as crown holder.

A reception for 350 guests was held at Laurel Manor immediately following the ceremony.

The couple honeymooned in Greece, traveling the country for six weeks. They will make their home in Livonia.

Thacker's book hits the shelves

Northville High School alumna Shelly Thacker wrote the book on romance, or at least one of them.

Thacker is the proud author of Falcon on the Wind, a thick, medieval novel set in 13th Century France and Scotland, now on sale at most bookstores.

Falcon is about a tough guy who kidnaps a high-class lady on her wedding day in order to use her as a pawn to prevent the invasion of Scotland. But of course the quasi-ruffian's coldly Machiavellian outlook gives way to hard-core affection for the woman as the two go nuts for each other and ultimately live happily ever after, or at least until one of them dies.

A 1981 Northville High School graduate, Thacker has always enjoyed writing.

"I didn't choose writing. Writing chose me. I really feel I have to write. I think I'm honestly one of those people who was born to be a writer."

Perhaps she was. Falcon on the Wind, her first book, was snapped up by Avon Books four days after submission. The book was one of six national finalists in the Romance Writers of America Golden Heart competition, and won four regional RWA awards.

Avon even gave Thacker a two-book contract, unusual for a nascent author.

Admitting to a love of history, writing and happy endings, Thacker is especially configured to write historical romance fiction, where pleasant finishes are as ubiquitous as drunks on New Year's Eve.

"Sometimes it's nice to have a little part of the world where you know ev-everything is going to be OK," Thacker said. "In today's world, people need something that's uplifting."

Although medieval fiction has traditionally been a poor sell, Thacker finds it fascinating.

"The Middle Ages has been my favorite time period since I was a little girl. A knight on a charging black warhorse makes my heart beat faster as countless cowboys never could."

But weren't the Middle Ages marked by a hopelessly poor existence for most of those involved? Weren't economic and intellectual endeavors stunted as the Catholic church and feudal lords exercised their awesome hegemony over Europe? Didn't the Black Plague wipe out half the population in two years?

Well, yes, but hey, that stuff doesn't make good romantic fiction.

"You just don't pay as much attention to the grime and the dirt that you know was there," Thacker said.

SHELLY THACKER

While Thacker is a full-time author now as she works on her second book, she wrote Falcon on a part-time basis while free-lancing articles for various magazines.

She doesn't expect the book to make a great deal of money or even generate an income greater than what she could earn with an ordinary job.

"I write for a living, but I don't make a living writing," she said. "Right now it's more for love than money."

With so many wanna-be authors out there, publishers can luxuriate in what's known as a buyer's market.

"The average advance these days is between $2,000 and $5,000," Thacker said.

In fact, the author will get just 25 copies of Falcon on the Wind gratis. If she wants any more, she buys them just like everyone else.

Thacker has been busy with numerous book signings around metro Detroit, but Avon has no plans to send her on a national tour. As she freely admits, she's no Stephen King.

Financial grant set to promote literacy efforts

St. Paul Lutheran School in Northville will receive a $500 grant from Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL) to promote literacy efforts.

The grant is part of a one-time $1 million Literacy Grant Program announced by AAL to benefit the nation's more than 1,600 Lutheran elementary and secondary schools. The schools have a total enrollment of more than 300,000 students.

"We know that Lutheran schools are leaders in providing an excellent education for students," said Barbara Kuxhaus, manager of the AAL grant program. "We hope the grant money will enable the schools to go above and beyond their existing literacy efforts."

According to Kuxhaus, a school may use the grant alone or in combination with other schools for joint literacy projects. The grant money can be used for various literacy projects, including:

- Funding faculty training to enhance existing or implement new literacy programs.
- Purchasing supplementary curricular resources.
- Planning programs for families/parents that emphasize intergenerational learning.
- Conducting activities that will link the school with existing community literacy programs.

Included in AAL's million-dollar literacy program is a $10,000 grant to Literacy Volunteers of America, Inc., (LVA). LVA is a nonprofit organization that provides a variety of services enabling people to achieve personal goals through literacy. First Lady Barbara Bush is LVA's honorary chairperson.

Northville boasts historic streets

Where do streets get their names? In Northville, some are merely descriptive: High, East, West, Center. Others take on the names of their locations, like Church or River streets. Northville's Rouge Street runs along that branch of the river that flows through the city.

In the City of Northville, the majority of streets were named after local celebrities. A number of the streets in the historic district were named for early settlers, such as William DUNLAP and Daniel CADY, who owned much of the land on the north side of the village.

Watson ROGERS, a farmer, worked most of land in the ORCHARD Heights area, where Levi F. EATON also had a farm.

Asa RANDOLPH was the head of the Northville Academy and the son of Merritt Randolph, who operated two local hotels in town in the 19th century, the Park House and the Exchange Hotel.

Charles Yerkes' daughter GRACE Dusenbury became immortal when a street was named for her.

Landowners William and Anna SCOTT were also immortalized in the one-block street that bears their name. McDONALD Street was named after another early landowner.

Many city streets honor the names of local officials, such as village presidents Clarence A. HUTTON, Edward S. HORTON (who was also a U.S. postmaster), Conrad LANGFIELD, and City Mayor Malcolm A. ALLEN.

Attorney William YERKES, descended from one of the area's earliest settlers, made a name for himself by becoming probate judge in Wayne County and the first president of the village of Northville.

Francis BEAL headed the Globe Manufacturing Co., one of Northville's early major industries, and was president of the village in 1870-71.

Austin WING was a delegate to Congress in 1827. MARY ALEXANDER, for whom a downtown court is named, was a Northville city clerk in the 1930s.

At the end of the 1890s, Dean F. GRISWOLD was a township commissioner and F.D. BUTLER was a city council member.

Other streets were named for local businessmen, such as Carl ELY, William Pitt JOHNSON, and E. Roscoe REED, who was publisher of The Northville Record at the turn of the century.

William THAYER was supervisor of the U.S. Fish Hatchery for many years. Ebenezer PENNELL owned and operated a carding mill that was located on South Main Street in the late 19th century.

The pastor of the First Presbyterian Church for many years was James DUBUAR. George RAYSON, an English shoemaker, was active in early village affairs.

As early as 1815 a BASE LINE was drawn through the state for surveying purposes. Years later, a road was created that followed the original surveyors' mark, which still bears the early name and traverses directly through Northville.

Mr. Gilbert Spaman of Plymouth and Mrs. Charlotte Holland of Northville announce the engagement of their daughter, Cheryl Lynne, to Charles Clarke Neal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Neal of Mountain Lakes, N.J.

The bridegroom-elect is a 1985 graduate of Mountain Lakes High School and a 1989 graduate of Purdue University with a degree in restaurant/hotel/institutional management. Currently, he works with The Ground Round restaurant chain in Indianapolis.

A May wedding is planned.

Northville Record welcomes announcements

The Record office is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

We'll publish photographs, too

We will make every effort to have the photographs available for pickup for 30 days after the date of publication.

Library to honor index volunteers

Never let it be said that volunteers at the Northville Public Library go unheralded and unsung. Eighteen involved in reading and indexing every story and ad in the Northville Record from its earliest issues to the present will be honored at a reunion and recognition celebration on Wednesday, Jan. 30, at 3 p.m. at the city hall council chambers.

Another 26 volunteers participated in the project but had to discontinue for a variety of reasons. They have been invited back for the reunion and celebration of completing the first 20 years of the Record—1869 to 1899.

No, that doesn't compute. It's because of gaps in copies of the Record—there are none extant from 1880-87, 1890-91, and 1900-01. But the volunteers have read 689 weekly issues, word for word.

Active participants usually give an hour a week to painstakingly reading the Record on microfilm and recording item by item, the history of the community. They relate well to the word "pain" because sitting at the viewer is not only hard on the back but on the eyes, too, they find.

If an occasional giggle or even a guffaw erupts from a surprised reader it tells the quiet library users that something totally outlandish has come off the pages.

Anne Cox tells of reading about a man who was "run out of town being despicable and evil."

Cox enjoys reading the Record because she "loves history" and is new to this area, but she occasionally finds items about her husband's aunts who settled in the Farmington area. He grew up in Walled Lake so she brings names home to him that he recognizes.

Jane Bowser declares herself very enthused about the project. I love history. It's fun reading the advertisements. They tell about how people lived in those days.

"I've been reading pages about the Spanish-American War and the unrest of the times and I can relate it to what is happening in the Persian Gulf these days."

"Just the items about everyday living are interesting. For instance, I see items about someone who 'Sundayed' in Northville and what they were for the occasion."

"Freyd's advertised men's serge suits for $7, and church fundraisers boasted of raising $12. Ladies Aid Society members had ice cream socials and sometimes chicken pie dinners that included a sandwich and dessert for 20 cents."

According to Mernie Hines, project co-chair, the volunteers have contributed 1,571 hours at the microfilm viewer reading the news of institutions, hospitals, churches, bridges, schools and government dating back to 1869.

Along the personal line are notices of births, deaths, and marriages, as well as mishaps, shows, fairs, legal notices, sales, rentals, lodges and fraternal organizations, elections, sports teams, veterans groups and such cause-related groups as the Women's Christian Temperance Union (WCTU). Even advertisements are indexed.

Such items have filled 6,276 index sheets with 125,522 items.

Key information from each article is entered on a form, along with the date published, page and column number, and headline. This information is entered into a computer. Printouts are bound in an index available to researchers, both formal and informal.

Items are cross-referenced, for example, under a personal name as well as that of the activity the person is involved in. When today's issue of the Record is read, this story will be indexed under all the names mentioned, as well as that of the library, the Friends of the Library, the Historical Society and the Record itself.

Some volunteers are reading current issues of the Record and working backward, so that as the project nears completion, they will not always be playing catch-up with 20 years still to do.

Began four years ago, the indexing of the Record helps genealogists, residents wishing to research the history of an older home they may have bought, for example, or those with an interest in local history.

In addition to Northville, volunteers find and index material as it appears from the nearby communities of Novi, Walled Lake, Farmington, Plymouth, Salem, South Lyon, Wixom, Livonia, and the now extinct communities of Meads Mill and Bell Branch in Redford.

Adult Services librarian Al Smitley and library director Pat Orr, who share an interest in local history, conceived the project in 1986. The Friends of the Library agreed to sponsor and fund the work. The Friends also funded the purchase of a new viewer. In 1989 the project won national recognition when it was awarded a Best Idea competition sponsored by Friends of the Library U.S.A.

Northville is one of only eight libraries in Michigan developing a local history index, according to the State of Michigan Library in Lansing.

Queries about starting such a project come in from time to time so Mernie Hines has developed a packet of information. The Northville group has helped the Plymouth Historical Society and Public Library start their project, and the Millersburg (Penn.) Historical Society as well.

Sharing their start-up and follow-through information helps others avoid time-consuming mistakes and procedures. Mernie Hines figures that the Northville volunteers worked 264 hours before getting the bugs out of the system, mostly in the form for entering information.

A vital cog in the production is co-chair Diane Rockall, who not only spends time at the viewer as a volunteer but also sees that all information is in computer form.

As an active member of the Friends of the Library and the Northville Historical Society, Diane represents the interests of both. All information gleaned is duplicated and given to the Historical Society to be stored with archives at Mill Race Historical Village.

Are Hines and Rockall interested in training more volunteers? You bet. Only an hour's training is needed. Just ask at the library and become one of those silent (mostly) persons parked in a corner near the business section of the library reading and writing on an index form as they pore over the films of the Record.

The active volunteers who will be honored at the Jan. 30 celebration include Jane Bowser, Anne Cox, Pat Davidson, Shirley Davison, Margaret Dawson, Richard Endress, Jean Gordon, Anita Hallam, Mary Koehler, Gwen Marburger, Geraldine Mills, Courtney Mowat, Jean Stabler, Ellie Taylor and Sheila Welch.

Homebound meal delivery program needs volunteers

More homebound senior citizens than ever in Oakland County need meals at home. A volunteer delivering the meal can mean as much as the meal itself to someone who cannot leave home.

There is a desperate need for volunteers everywhere in Oakland County. To volunteer in Northville, Novi, Walled Lake or Commerce, contact Mercy Services at 476-8000.

Coconut Grove: New life in an old world

Vestiges of opulence remain in prestigious Florida resort

By Iris Sanderson Jones
Staff Writer

Coconut Grove guidebook author Jean-Pierre Haynes calls them "come-overs, stay-overs and when-eyes."

The "come-overs" are Ivy League transplants in Gucci sweatclothes, biking the brick streets, eating yogurt ice cream or sipping beer at the sidewalk cafes.

The "stay-overs" have been in Coconut Grove long enough to be season ticket holders of the Coconut Grove Playhouse, and to remember when there were no sidewalk cafes and when all the phone numbers began with the word "Highland."

But it is the "when-eyes" that connect us to the mansions of the "old grove," the opulence of Vizcaya and the history of a town that was the biggest town in south Florida when Miami was only an army post.

According to Haynes, they start every sentence with "when-eye . . ."

For example, "When I was young

Or, "When I first met . . ."

The "when-eyes" also know that the most infamous day in history was Sept. 2, 1925—the day when the city of Miami annexed the grove despite the near unanimous opposition of the residents . . .

You may not have heard much of Coconut Grove recently, but it is one of three Miami suburbs of special interest to travelers daytripping or overnighing in the city.

The other two are the restored Art Deco district of Miami Beach, where people once more sit in the sun outside small pink and yellow hotels, and Key Biscayne, where you can frolic on park beaches within sight of the city skyline.

I overnighed in Coconut Grove recently, unexpectedly wrapped in the luxury of the Grand Bay Hotel, the only five-star hotel in Miami and one of only 11 in the U.S.

The concierge gave me a map marked in the appropriate places: the art deco Miami City Hall nestled in palm trees against the sea; the Chamber of Commerce in Peacock Park, where McFarland Road turns north towards Main Street and "the village"; several sidewalk cafes; the Barnacle state historic site; the big Mayfair shopping complex; and a book store called the "Book Worm."

I thumbed several guidebooks and settled on one called "Coconut Grove" by Jean-Pierre Haynes, $12.95. No, the spelling of the title is not a misprint. That's what Dr. Horace Porter called it when he named the post office after the coconut trees he planted here in 1873.

The Indians called it "Little Hunting Ground," pirates moored their ships in Sailboat Bay, Bahamian seamen lured ships to their death on the reef nearby and the Peacock family built a hotel that lured wealthy families from the north.

I was there on a Saturday, when the Chamber of Commerce was closed but the sidewalk cafes were already serving coffee and Perrier on the few blocks of Main Highway that anchor "the village." I joined a lot of people eating breakfast outside the tiny Cafe Terrace and got some local lore from tablemates who drive 25 miles from Hollywood, Florida, every weekend with their bikes on the roof.

They have often visited the opulent villa and gardens at Vizcaya, built in 16th Century style by farm equipment industrialist James Deering, and now the biggest tourist attraction in Coconut Grove. They also like to tour the streets around the mansions of the "old grove" and to sit in sidewalk cafes and watch the busy young tourist life of the town.

The "come-overs" are here in their designer sweats. The "stay-overs" are biking and walking the brick streets.

Most of all, the weekend tourists are buying from the expensive shops and sitting together in the sun at the sidewalk cafes.

I followed the low stone wall, made long ago from chunks of coral, that surrounds old mansions hidden in trees along Main Street. I peered through what looked like rifle ports in the wall and saw jungle, sometimes a forest made only of a single tree that had divided into a dozen trunks and was trying to climb over the wall into the street.

I turned away from the street life at a sign that read "Barnacle Historic Site" and found myself on a buggy trail that curved through jungle, through arches made as the trees dropped their roots across the path. There was an entrance post that asked me to put money in a green envelope, tear off the receipt and drop the envelope in the slot as an entrance fee.

The old trees led me out of the world of Ralph Lauren into the world of Ralph Middleton Munroe, the most important early settler, whose 19th Century wooden house looks across a natural hammock of mown grass to the sea.

'Come-overs', 'stay-overs' and 'when-eyes' mingle at a sidewalk cafe in Coconut Grove, near Miami

A girl was on her stomach reading a book in the sunshine, and three young sailors walked single-file past a restored historic ship exhibited on the lawn. Herons sat in shallow waters by the boat dock.

You can't see much of anyplace in a day, but a picnic table in this small preserved area was a good place to imagine what Coconut Grove was like a hundred years ago, when most of Florida was swamp. Easy to imagine the distinguished names that wintered here in later years: Alexander Graham Bell, Thomas Edison, William Jennings Bryant, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Charles Lindbergh, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie.

It is only a two-minute walk from there to the bars and restaurants and busy street life of the village, where the best-known names are characters: John Baltz giving neck therapy, Peter Rabbit weaving leafhats, bartender Beamer Warren costumed and theatrical behind the bar at the Taurus Steak House.

It is only a short drive from Coconut Grove to the heart of Miami. There were lots of cars and taxis, but the mood of the day was more in tune with the Old Town Trolley, which lets you sit in an open-sided car and tour the whole city. You can get off for as long as you like at Vizcaya, at the Miami Seaquarium at the entrance to Key Biscayne; you can even visit another old world settlement at Coral Gables.

I highly recommend a day at the city and state parks on Key Biscayne and a day trip to the Art Deco district of Miami Beach, but for the moment I am happy to walk out under the century-old trees of the Barnacle, back to a sidewalk cafe on Main Street and watch the world go by in Coconut Grove.

The "come-overs" are here. A few "stay-overs" may be found. But most of the "when-eyes" probably stay at home on weekends.

Cruise lines offer enticements

By Nicki and Harold Chodnoff
Special Writers

Following the theory that satisfied customers become repeat customers, some cruise lines offer inducements to bring guests back.

Company-sponsored clubs or programs provide enticements such as future cruise discounts, preferred seating, cabin upgrades and other amenities to lure past passengers.

"Cunard values all of its passengers, but we are particularly pleased when people sail with us again, and the Cunard World Club is our way of showing our appreciation for their loyalty," explained Joseph Smyth, a vice-president for Cunard Lines.

He could easily have been speaking for most cruise lines.

The lines offering benefits for repeat passengers include:

□ Chandris Cruise Line: Captain's Club, $25 fee, with discounts on future cruises, luggage tags and a captain's cocktail party. Call toll-free (800) 635-3363.

'Snowbirds' rate Florida top choice

How do Michigan "snowbirds" fly the coop for warmer climes?

By packing up the family, hopping in the car and pointing it toward Florida, Tennessee or South Carolina in the peak cold months, according to AAA Michigan TripTik data.

"Forty-eight percent of the routings we prepared for members between November and March last year were to these three destinations," said Peter Erickson, AAA Michigan Club Services director.

"We predict similar travel patterns this season."

Florida was the biggest draw with 48,671 routing requests in the 1989-90 winter season, Erickson said. The Sunshine State was followed by Tennessee with 4,759 requests and South Carolina, which lured 4,579 winter weary sun-seekers.

Michigan residents have their favorite cities within these states, the data shows.

Orlando tops the list for Florida visitors. Walt Disney World, Epcot Center, Sea World, MGM and Universal Studios lure Great Lakes snowbirds in droves. From Detroit, Orlando is 1,170 miles and a 20-hour drive time at an average speed of 60 miles per hour.

Nashville, the most popular city for Tennessee travelers, attracts vacationers to its Country Music Hall of Fame, Grand Ole Opry and The Hermitage, the home of President Andrew Jackson. Nashville, a 534-mile auto trip, can be reached in about nine hours.

Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, is a premier sunshine destination about 14 hours and 852 miles from Detroit. Michigan residents flock to this area largely for its gorgeous beaches and lush golf fairways.

AAA Michigan's "Top 3 'Hot Spots' for Snowbirds" map lists the most direct routes to the three southern destinations. Freeways along these routes have minimal or no construction and offer a variety of attractions along the way.

When vacationing by automobile, a family of four should budget about $173 per day for lodging and meals, plus an estimated $9 per 100 miles for gas and other auto-related expenses.

'42nd Street' comes to Novi High

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

They are not all tap dancers, but 50 Novi High School students will give it their best toe-tapping effort when they entertain local community members with a performance of "42nd Street" in the Novi High School auditorium.

"42nd Street," set in 1930s New York, is a musical within a musical. And with all that music, there is a lot of dancing involved in a production of "42nd Street."

Only one of the male students in the play, Joe Leahy, and a few of the female students have ever taken dancing lessons, adviser Paula Joyner-Clinard said.

But she expects the group to be ready for its Jan. 31 opening night performance.

"We started from the ground floor. I expect quite a jump so we will be totally ready," she said.

And the set and costumes will also be ready in time for the performance thanks to a few parents, Joyner-Clinard said.

"We have a lot of parental involvement which is just great," Joyner-Clinard said. "We couldn't do it without them."

"42nd Street" is about the trials and tribulations involved in the production of a play called "Pretty Lady." Leahy plays the choreographer in "Pretty Lady."

Although Leahy plays a choreographer in the musical within "42nd Street," it was Kristen Patee, Laura Patee and Andrea Parent who made up the tap dances to be performed by the 50 Novi High School thespians in-involved in the production.

The toe-tapping dancers will be led in their performance by the Novi High School band, which will be heard but not seen by audience members.

The play is set on the stage of a 1933 theater. It is the story of the overnight success of a performer, Julian Marsh, who is played by student Andy Jex.

Marsh must face affairs of the heart and egomaniac coworkers before she finally gets her break, when the "Pretty Lady" star Dorothy Brock, played by student Amy Morgan, is injured during a performance.

Performances will be held Jan. 31, Feb. 1 and 2. All performances will be held in Novi High School's Fuerst Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $4.50 before the performance and $5.50 at the door.

Tickets are available at the high school which is located at 24062 Taft Road in Novi. Seats also can be reserved by calling 344-8300.

Tower Theatre offers tearjerker

The Plymouth Theatre Guild will be performing Beth Henley's "Crimes of the Heart" at Tower Theatre in Northville. This warm-hearted, humorous and passionate comedy/drama will be presented Friday and Saturday nights, Feb. 1-2, 8-9, and 15-16.

The play revolves around the lives of three Mississippi sisters reunited by a family crisis. The play examines how painful incidents from the past have influence the sisters' lives, dreams, and divergent personalities. The women must deal with a dying grandfather, a snobbish cousin, a heart-broken boyfriend, and a young, nervous lawyer trying to defend the youngest sister in serious trouble.

All six cast members are appearing on the PTG stage for the first time. The three sisters are played by Patricia Ebbitt of Westland, Michelle Mihail of Westland, and Eileen Giffel of West Bloomfield. Additional cast members include Brenda Hearon Damiani of Plymouth, Thomas G. Hoagland of Dearborn Heights, and Fuad Kandah of Livonia.

Tickets are $6 adults, $5 seniors (62 and over) and students (18 and under). Group rates are available.

For tickets or further information, please call Karen at 349-7974.

Treat your daughter (or dad) to a night of dancing and great fun. Tickets are $8 per couple for Novi residents and $3 for each additional daughter. Non-Resident residents may purchase tickets beginning Wednesday, Jan. 16 at $9 per couple and $3.50 for each additional daughter.

STORY TIME: Local performer-storyteller Pat Roan Judd will conduct a storytelling seminar on Sunday, Jan. 27, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Borders bookstore in Novi. "Telling Tales: How to Enchant an Audience" will offer storytelling, lecture and hands-on experience for adults who want to tell stories to audiences of all ages. A $5 admission will be charged upon pre-registration, which begins Jan. 12. Refreshments will be served.

Judd, who recently completed a month's residency at the Smithsonian's Discovery Theatre will tell a story, describe story patterns and get everyone at the seminar involved in telling a tale to each other. "You can read a story from any primary source and make it your own," she explains. "And once you know the pattern, you can make up stories too." Judd will also demonstrate techniques for telling stories to children, which she says calls for more participation and sensory involvement.

A resident of Birmingham, Pat Roan Judd teaches and performs through her own company, Plain & Fantasy. She also works with Wolftrap Institute for Early Learning Through the Arts. She studied storytelling with Gamble Rogers and mime with Marcel Marceau.

Borders Book Shop is located in the Novi Town Center, off Novi Road, just south of I-96.

Soft, edged visions in very distinct personal styles offer an earthy answer to winter's chill. The Route 10 Gallery is located at 32430 Northwestern Highway in Farmington Hills. The Northville Record

Cagers avenge Novi, Churchill losses

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

It was payback week for the Northville basketball squad.

The Mustangs avenged two early-season losses in a four-day span last week, and are now 6-3 overall. A 51-50 home win against arch-rival Novi on Jan. 15 may have been more exciting and satisfying, but a 51-45 road win at Livonia Churchill three days later was much more important.

The come-from-behind triumph at Churchill was sweet revenge for a two-point defeat in the season opener back on Dec. 4, and it gives Northville a 1-0 start in the quest to defend its WLA Western Division title.

"We lost to (Churchill) at home in our opener, but it was a game that didn't count in our division record," Mustang Coach Omar Harrison said. "If we had to lose one, I'd rather lose the first."

Northville held onto the lead for much of the game, but never took command. A strong showing in the second quarter broke a 10-10 tie and led to an eight-point halftime margin (24-16). The hero in the rally was 6-foot-6 senior Mike Lang, who out-scored the Chargers 8-6 by himself.

"Churchill uses a 3-2 zone defense, and it always seems to give us trouble," Harrison said. "But in the second quarter, we were patient against it. Lang had a very good stretch offensively."

The Chargers regained the momentum with a solid third quarter performance, and actually took the lead at 43-41 midway through the final period.

"You will hear coaches say one of the most important parts of a game is the start of the second half, but sometimes it's hard to get the kids to believe it," Harrison explained. "(Churchill) got the momentum at that time and it took us a while to get it back."

Down the stretch, the Mustangs did what they had to do to win it — which included some successful free throws. In the fourth, Northville connected on 10-of-16 from the charity stripe and that was enough to hold off any late comeback.

"The kid that really came through for us was (junior reserve) Chris Lehr," Harrison said. "He made five-of-six free throws and that basically is what kept us ahead. When you keep making the shots, it's hard to catch you — that was the difference."

For the game, the Mustangs out-scored Churchill by 12 at the free throw line, despite shooting just 56 percent (17-of-30).

Northville got good production from inside players like Lang (18 points, seven rebounds) and Paul McCreadie (11 points, seven rebounds).

"We won the ballgame without making a single three-pointer," Harrison pointed out.

NORTHVILLE 51, NOVI 50: The Mustangs avenged an early-season 13-point defeat to Novi with a heart-pounding classic on Jan. 15. In this intense crosstown rivalry, each team claimed victory on its home court this season.

"I look at Novi and I see a very good team," Harrison said. "They beat previously undefeated Milford and we beat them, so that puts us in good company. It was a tough situation because both teams were facing big conference games later in the week. Even though this is a non-conference game, all the kids want to win it badly."

Northville trailed most of the game, but staged a comeback in the fourth quarter that erased a six-point deficit. Novi had a golden opportunity to win the game but junior guard Mike Kramer missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw situation with three seconds remaining.

Just like in the first meeting, Wildcat forward Mike Sumerton gave his team a halftime lead (28-23) with a barrage of three-pointers in the second quarter. Sumerton poured in four triples and scored 14 of Novi's 16 points in an eight-minute span.

"Sumerton did the same thing to us before," Harrison said. "That was the difference in the first half. Those three-pointers can really change the complexion of a game."

The Mustangs stayed within range, but connected on just four field goals in the third quarter and that prevented them from narrowing the gap.

"We trailed for most of the game," Harrison said. "Even though we were down by six heading into the fourth, we didn't quit."

Northville chipped away at the lead and managed to get possession of the ball, trailing 50-49, with only 26 seconds remaining. After a timeout, McCreadie missed a shot that would have put the Mustangs ahead, but Lang got the rebound and hit a four-foot putback. Novi called a timeout with three seconds left on the clock.

An inbounds play diagrammed by Wildcat Coach Bob Shoemaker then worked to perfection and Kramer was fouled. Despite leading his team in free-throw percentage (.758), Kramer couldn't convert.

"We were very concerned about a long pass, but (Novi) got us on an inbounds pick," Harrison explained. "We felt fortunate to win it but the way I look at it, sometimes it's better to be lucky than good."

Again, McCreadie (16 points, 14 rebounds) and Lang (12 points, eight rebounds) paced Northville. The loss ended a seven-game win streak for Novi. The Mustangs have now won four of the last five and are 2-1 in the WLA.

CROWD WATCHING: A most unlikely spectator was in the stands watching Northville edge Novi on Jan. 15: Central Michigan University Head Football Coach Herb Deromedi.

Deromedi was on hand recruiting Novi's 6-foot-8, 240-pound Aaron Federspiel. Deromedi is battling Western Michigan and Toledo for the rights to sign Federspiel to a national letter of intent to play football for the Chippewas.

Mustang gymnasts improve, fall to Salem 133-125

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

The Northville gymnastics team notched its highest score of a young season on Jan. 14, and it came on the road against the state's top-ranked team.

That's why Mustang Coach Jeff Pergament isn't the least bit disappointed in the wake of his squad's 133.15-125.8 loss at Plymouth Salem.

"I thought it went pretty well," he said. "I'm not saying our scores shouldn't go up in the future, but I am pleased that we are improving."

"There were some things we weren't happy with, but most of it was the conditions we faced. For instance, there was a bright light shining in the face of the girls when they were performing in the uneven parallel bars, and it affected us. But that's the way it goes on the road."

According to Pergament, Salem's top two gymnasts did not compete due to illness, so that made for a much closer meet. Northville actually took a slim 35.2-35.1 lead after the vault — the first event of the meet — and freshman sensation Sara Kolb was a key contributor. Kolb continued her successful debut season by tying for first place with a 9.25 effort. Other top-six finishes came from Mia DeHart (third place, 9.05) and Stacy Kasmerick (sixth, 8.5). The rest of the competitors included Melanie Apligian (8.4), Leslie Allen (7.9) and Karen Kosman (7.75).

The locals quickly lost the lead in the uneven bars — Salem had a 32.7-28.45 advantage — and DeHart was the only Mustang to place. She was third with an 8.1, while the other scores came from Kolb (7.15), Sue Okasinski (6.95), Kristen Brown (6.25), Allen (5.6) and Lisa Hojnacki (4.2).

In the balance beam, DeHart (8.3) and Kolb (7.75) led the way for Northville, and placed second and fifth respectively. The rest of the participants were Ris Fleming (7.5), Kosman (7.35), Hojnacki (5.75) and Allen (5.45), but the Mustangs lost nearly two more points to the Rocks.

Salem wrapped up the victory with a 32.9-31.25 scoring edge in the floor exercise. Traci Surdu was third (8.15) and DeHart was fourth (8.0) for Northville. The other scores came from Allen (7.7), Beth Cannizzaro (7.2), Kasmerick (7.4) and Kosman (6.1).

"Salem's two best girls were unable to compete, so that obviously made it closer," Pergament said, "but (Salem) still had an excellent team and they performed well."

DeHart's all-around total of 33.45 was not a season high.

The Mustangs (1-1 overall) will not get back into action until Jan. 24. A meet scheduled for Jan. 16 against Farmington Harrison has been canceled because the Hawks have not been able to field a team this season.

Northville tankers top North, 105-81

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

They changed the site and they changed the time, but North Farmington couldn't alter the outcome of their WLA swim clash with Northville on Jan. 17.

The contest — a 105-81 win for the Mustangs — was originally a home meet for the Raiders, but the North Farmington pool was ruled out for prep competition because it is too shallow. The site was then moved to the Northville pool and it remained unchanged for months — until several days ago. Mustang Athletic Director Dennis Colligan was notified by Farmington officials that the site had been changed again, this time to the pool at Oakland Community College, Orchard Ridge campus.

"We took all the changes in stride," Northville Coach Mark Heiden. "We actually did better at OCC because they have a six-lane pool. It enabled us to get more swimmers involved and take advantage of our depth."

The Mustangs notched seven wins in the 12 events. Senior standout Eric Newton continued to lead the team in scoring with two more individual firsts and additional help in the relays. The highlight of the meet was Newton's winning time of 57.3 in the 100-yard backstroke, which was under the state meet qualifying cut. So far this season, Newton has qualified in three individual events and as a member of two relays. He also was first in the 200 IM (2:01.7), a member of the winning 200 medley relay team (1:44.8) along with Tom Parry, Brad Cook and Matt VanHorn, and a member of the winning 400 freestyle relay team (3:26.5) that featured Cook, VanHorn and Bob Holdridge.

The other firsts came from Holdridge in the 100 freestyle (51.3), Cook in the 50 freestyle (23.4), Larry Ostecki in diving (244.85 points).

The second-place finishes included Holdridge in the 200 freestyle (1:53.9), Steve Lang in diving (234.4), Cook in the 100 butterfly (55.6), Dave Wesley in the 500 freestyle (5:09.3) and Parry in the 100 breaststroke (1:08.1).

The thirds came from Jim Fee in the 100 butterfly (58.9) and the 100 backstroke (1:01.6), VanHorn in the 100 freestyle (53.1) and 50 freestyle (24.1), Jason Fisher in the 500 freestyle (5:19.5), Wesley in the 200 freestyle (1:58.2) and Parry in the 200 IM (2:13.8).

"I was very pleased," Heiden said. "I had a feeling ahead of time that the meet would be closer than it ended up being. North Farmington is usually a tough team."

Northville is now 2-1 overall and will open the WLA Western Division portion of their schedule today (Jan. 24) at home against Walled Lake Western.

Athletes of the Week

ERIC NEWTON

It would be appropriate to make swimmer Eric Newton an "Athlete of the Week" recipient just about any week. In Northville's 105-81 win over North Farmington on Jan. 17, Newton had a hand in four victories. The highlight of the meet was Newton's winning time of 57.3 in the 100-yard backstroke, which was under the state meet qualifying cut. So far this season, Newton has qualified in three individual events and as a member of two relays. He also was first in the 200 IM (2:01.7), and was a member of the winning 200 medley relay and 400 freestyle relay teams.

MIKE LANG

The Northville cagers went 2-0 last week and 6-foot-6 center Mike Lang was a big factor in both wins. In a 51-50 thriller against Novi on Jan. 15, Lang hit the game-winner with three seconds remaining and wound up with 12 points and eight rebounds. Three days later, Lang scored a game-high 18 and hauled down seven rebounds to pave the Mustangs to an important 51-45 WLAA Western Division victory over Livonia Churchill. For his contributions and performances last week, Lang has been named an "Athlete of the Week."

Spikers outlast Walled Lake Western

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Throughout the years, Northville and Walled Lake Western have staged some exciting volleyball matches. That tradition continued on Jan. 14, when the Mustangs edged the host Warriors 11-15, 15-11, 16-14, 15-9.

"It was a very hard-fought match," Northville Coach Paul Osborn said. "I was very relieved because we have a habit of losing on Monday nights. And after losing the first game it didn't look good, but we didn't get down."

In game one, Northville kept pace with Western through two rotations, but the Warriors broke an 11-11 deadlock with a four-point run that ended it. Things didn't start any better in game two, as Western raced to a 10-4 lead after one rotation. But Beth Ursel came to the rescue and served for seven straight points to put the Mustangs in front 11-10. The locals then won the game by scoring four of the last five points.

Northville fell behind in the third game, 9-5, but clawed back to tie it

"I was very relieved because we have a habit of losing on Monday nights. And after losing the first game it didn't look good, but we didn't get down."

PAUL OSBORN
Northville volleyball coach

14-14. Stacy Nyland then helped pull it out by serving for the last two points. The Mustangs wrapped-up the victory in game four with a 6-0 rally that broke a 9-9 tie.

"We didn't play great, but we were consistent," Osborn said.

PLYMOUTH SALEM 7-15-6-15-15, NORTHVILLE 15-7-15-13-11: The visiting Mustangs dropped a heartbreaker on Jan. 16, falling to the Rocks in a five-game marathon. It was Northville's first dual-meet loss of the season after two early wins.

"It was a marathon," Osborn admitted. "This may have been the longest one we've ever had. A look at our stats shows that the girls played super volleyball. Salem just played outstanding defense."

Northville won the opener easily after getting off to a 13-5 start. Marcie Dart was a key contributor as points two through seven came off her serve. In game two, the Rocks inched ahead 9-7 after one rotation, and then scored six points in a row.

The Mustangs slowly built a 7-3 lead in game three, and then outscored Salem 8-3 down the stretch, but it was game four that was the key. After trailing most of the game, Northville regrouped to tie it at 13-13. Just two points away from a crucial dual-meet victory, Salem closed it out with a pair of service aces.

"That was a tough one to take," Osborn said.

In the fifth and deciding game, the Rocks led 7-4 after one rotation, but the Mustangs came back to lead 11-10 after two rotations, thanks to the serving of Karen Vogt. But with the match on the line, Salem reeled off five points in a row.

For the match, Northville had 45 kills, and Nyland led the way with 13. She was 28-for-33 in the hitting department. The other standouts at the net included Vogt (23-of-27 hits, 11 kills) and Amanda Parke (40-of-51 hits, 11 kills). Parke also connected on 17-of-18 serves and six aces, while Ashley MacLean missed just two of 18 serves and also registered six aces.

"To have more than 40 kills, that means we were putting the ball down," Osborn said. "That's why I was not disappointed in the way we played."

As a team, the Mustangs served at a 92 percent clip, hit at 81 percent, set at 95 percent and were successful 84 percent of the time on serve reception.

Healthy Mustang grapplers whip Farmington Harrison

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

A healthy Northville wrestling team is a much better wrestling team.

Five days after a disastrous weekend tournament at Novi, the Mustang grapplers got back on track with a 56-12 trouncing of Farmington Harrison. The Jan. 17 victory featured a Northville team at 100 percent for the first time in weeks, and raised the team's record to 2-0-1 in the WIAA Western Division.

"It's nice to be healthy again," Mustang Coach Bob Boshoven said. "This week, things went the only way they could go... up. We're at 100 percent, and it really made a difference."

Against the Hawks, Northville won 11 of 13 bouts, including two pins, four voids and an injury default. The takedown wins were registered by Jason Tarrow at 103 and Jeff Todd at 152. Tarrow downed Nick Nazar in 2:36 and Todd stopped Marcel Lenz in 3:52.

The rest of the wins included Kevin Khashan's 15-4 decision over Tom James at 130, Mike Moore's 7-0 shutout of Eric Brown at 135, Brandon Mardossian's 17-4 victory over Gary Devine at 140 and Jeff Lowner's 10-4 decision over Mark Gloetzer at 171. Jiro Kameoka was beating James Miller 8-1 at 112 when he was awarded an injury default. The void winners were Matt Allison (119), Rob Subotich (160), Jason Vertrees (189) and John Gatti (heavyweight).

SOUTH LYON 43, NORTHVILLE 30: In the first round of a tri-meet on Jan. 19, the Mustangs fell to the Lions by 13 points.

"If a few matches would have gone our way, we could have pulled it out," Boshoven said. "Traditionally, South Lyon has a strong program, so even though we didn't win, I was happy that we were in a position to win it down the stretch."

The Mustangs won four of the first seven bouts to take a 24-16 lead, but then managed just one win the rest of the way. In the early bouts, Kameoka (112) pinned Jeremy Brown in 5:13, Allison (119) downed Cam Gahl in 1:08, Khashan (130) stopped Mike Muccino in 3:03 and Mardossian (140) needed just nine seconds to dispose of Mike Laho. Vertrees prevented a total shutout in the upper weights by pinning Ken Nelson in 1:34 of the 189-pound match.

NORTHVILLE 41, ANN ARBOR PIONEER 18: In the second match of the tri-meet, the Mustangs clobbered the Pioneers.

"It went well," Boshoven said. "We came back after the loss to South Lyon and wrestled hard. We had a 27-2 advantage in takedowns, so we looked real good on our feet."

Northville had just two takedown wins, however. Tarrow (103) pinned David Hann on 5:24 and Mardossian (140) stopped Chris Lusk in 2:46.

Key to exercise is consistency

Walking becomes an aerobic exercise if it raises the heartbeat for at least 20 consecutive minutes, and if we walk at least three times a week, according to Dr. Fred Severn, associate medical director for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan.

The key to any successful exercise program is consistency, says Severn. Similar to budgeting your money, you must budget your time so that walking — or any other exercise — is given a top priority in your schedule.

Another important element is to accept that fitness is a never-ending goal that sometimes takes years, depending on how out of shape you are when you begin.

Too often, people believe that with a concentrated effort, they can become fit in a few short weeks, or even months," Severn said. "But if we exercise harder than our bodies can accept, we're more likely to sustain injuries.

"And if we expect dramatic changes in stamina, or too great losses of weight or inches, we're more apt to lose interest because it doesn't happen quickly. It's the gradual building of strength and fitness and the gradual weight losses and small measurements that are the most enduring, and they take patience and persistence in pursuing."

How to know whether you're walking too fast or too far, or not enough?

Learn how to take your pulse, either at the neck or inside your wrist, Severn says. Use the following formula to determine what is the maximum heart beat you should reach during exercise, and the minimum.

Subtract your age from 220. The maximum rate at which your should exercise is 85 percent of that figure. The minimum is 65 percent of that figure.

If you're 50 years old, for example, subtract 50 from 220, which is 170. Your maximum heart rate during exercise should be 85 percent of 170 — or 144 beats per minute. The minimum is 65 percent multiplied by 170: that equals 110 beats per minute.

Take your pulse midway through exercising and again when you are finished exercising. Count the pulse for six seconds and multiply by 60, or count for 10 seconds and multiply by six. In addition to learning whether you're exceeding your maximum or not getting up to the minimum, measuring the heartbeat also tells you whether you're increasing your fitness level.

Here's a less scientific way to determine if you're exercising at the proper rate. If you can't hold a conversation comfortably with someone, you're working too hard.

Or, if after exercise you are exhausted and the feeling of tiredness persists for hours, then you're also exercising too hard. On the other hand, if you're not breathing any harder that you normally do, you're not giving your heart a sufficient workout.

You should feel pleasantly tired, but good, after an effective exercise workout, Severn says.

The key to any successful exercise program is consistency

Can runners benefit from foot massages?

Dear Myrna: I recently hired a massage therapist to come to my home. The first two visits she did what she called Swedish Massage and pressure points. I am a runner and really treasure this time. Her last visit, she worked with my feet for a while. My feet were very sensitive. I hated it while she worked my feet, but could feel the benefit after. Could it be because I run that I need the extra foot massage?

Sounds like reflexology to me. Your running does not necessarily cause extra foot sensitivity or a need for extra foot massage. But reflexology is good for your feet and other parts of the body as well.

What is reflexology? The human body is divided into 10 zones which run vertically from the top of the head to the top of the toes. The theory behind this is that every part of the body corresponds to an area — a reflex point — on the feet and hands. By applying specific pressure techniques to these reflex points, disorders in the rest of your bodies can be detected and treated.

By working over the feet (the feet being more sensitive than the hand, therefore, will detect body parts better), you are massaging the tension in that part of the body. The body areas that need attention will reflect on your feet.

How does this work? The treatment relieves stress and induces a state of total relaxation. Blood circulation improves and so distribution of nutrients to the cells and removal of waste products will become much more efficient. The feet are sensitive.

There are supposedly 7,000 nerve endings in each foot. It is possible that such pressure techniques could have some sort of stimulating effect on them. Good in your case, being a runner.

The general philosophy has been around for thousands of years. In Ancient Chinese and Egyptian medicine, the feet were massaged to promote good health. Reflexology is certainly enjoying a revival. Like other ancient therapies such as acupuncture, it is used as a natural way to treat many ailments as well as relieve stress, both physical and mental.

A whole reflexology treatment lasts approximately 45-50 minutes. During this time, the massage therapist will follow a certain route over your feet, usually using her thumb to seek out the problem areas. She will then concentrate on these areas to relieve the stress interspersed with satisfying strokes. With your sensitive feet, breathe rhythmically and relax. If you have specific areas that trouble you, you probably will feel a difference.

A few months ago I went to a spa with seven friends. We stayed four days. Reflexology was my best spa experience. Besides enjoying my friends, of course. (I hope you're reading this guys!)

The Odyssey

Unique Home Allows for Good View

BY JAMES MCALEXANDER
Copley News Service

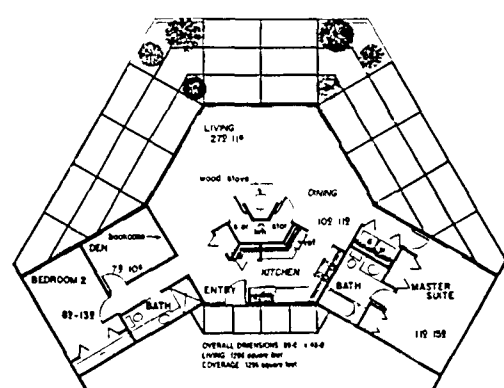

Access to an encompassing deck from each room brings the outdoors into the Odyssey.

This unique home, with unusual construction features, fits ideally into a wooded or rustic setting where three walls of view enhance the living area.

The master bedroom is located at one end of this home for the ultimate privacy, with its own bath and plenty of closet space. On the other end of the house, the second bedroom and a den are located. Each has easy access to a large bathroom.

The kitchen is tucked back behind a massive fireplace wall that also hides a storage center. The kitchen features all the luxuries desired by the cook in the family, including a pantry, but is kept from the mainstream of traffic.

Placed on a lot with a view of the ocean, or at a lost lake in the woods, the Odyssey would be an exceptional vacation home.

For a study plan of the Odyssey (108-25), send $5.00 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River, Howell, MI, 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

What should a high-tech house look like? Probably not like a high-tech house.

The designers of the Electric Smart House under construction in suburban Atlanta have opted for a traditional two-story Georgian colonial that will fit right in with its upscale neighborhood in the planned residential community of Southland. The house looks as though it was designed for a typical, move-up buyer — an affluent couple with school-age children — which it was. But there the similarity ends because beyond that traditional look the core of the house was designed for a 21st century lifestyle with innovative wiring, heating/cooling, electronics, appliances and energy-management systems.

The Electric Smart House is a 3,000-square-foot showcase house scheduled for completion in January for the convention of the National Association of Home Builders. Construction is being managed by the Edison Institute on behalf of the electric utility industry, working jointly with the NAHB, the Greater Atlanta Home Builders Association and the Smart House Limited Partnership.

"The challenge was to design an exterior that reflects the traditional heritage and values of the past, but on the inside answers the needs of the space-age, computer-age, fast-paced world we live in," says project architect Quincy Johnson of Quincy Johnson Associates, headquartered in Boca Raton, Fla.

"The popular Georgian colonial exterior takes the best of the past to blend with the traditionally-designed Southland community. The interior is designed for a move-up affluent family with adolescent children, and will include the high-tech products that accentuate this futuristic lifestyle."

Flexibility is another word to describe the design. "The floor plan can be adapted for empty-nesters because living space is located on the first floor," Johnson said. "The house has also been designed to be accessible and adaptable for people with special lifestyle needs. The living and dining rooms are located in an acceptable formal orientation with a vaulted ceiling in the family room for a more casual lifestyle."

The first floor has 2,359 square feet — more space than most single-family houses. It consists of a living room, den, master bedroom with walk-in closets, a separate bath and sliding patio doors leading to another deck that stretches past the kitchen, a formal dining room, and a passageway to a two-car garage with extra storage space.

The floor plan calls for large areas of open space and cathedral ceilings that add to the atmosphere for openness. The second floor consists of 686 square feet, most of which is open to the space below. The exceptions are two bedrooms separated by a full bath. One of the bedrooms will do double duty as a home office. Kay Green Design and Merchandising, headquartered in Orlando and a design firm specializing in the merchandising of model homes, designed the interior.

"Our role as designers is to make the interior of the Electric Smart House aesthetically pleasing to combine technology with livability," says Jennifer Stevens of Kay Green.

"In the '90s, we see a return to traditionalism, a renewed appreciation of classic styles. Therefore, we plan an eclectic look, one that will incorporate traditional elements and contemporary comfort. The color scheme will feature a backdrop of neutrals, accented with bright jewel tones." As for the lifestyles of the eventual owners,

The ELECTRIC SMART HOUSE

Moving into the Future

Stevens says, "We see them as a dual-income couple with one, maybe two, children. Though they'll have a need to use the high-tech features for the home to run their computers, fax machines and other office equipment in the upstairs auxiliary office, they'll also be using the home for entertaining. The open plan calls for a formal living room while the family room/kitchen area lends itself to entertaining. French doors open to take advantage of al fresco dining. The high-tech conveniences will allow these people more leisure time."

Stevens expects the market for the Electric Smart House to be second or third move-up buyers in their late 30s or early 40s.

"However, empty nesters are also likely to find this lifestyle appealing." After the NAHB convention, the house will be open to the general public for six months. Then it will be sold. The house is expected to sell in the upper $200,000 range, comparable to other homes in Southland.

High-tech Homes Geared Toward Modern Families

In the beginning there were Yuppies — young urban professionals. They were followed by Dinks — double-income, no kids — and Woopies — well-off old people.

Now come TAFs — technologically advanced families — who, according to researchers, constitute the primary market for high-tech houses such as the Electric Smart House Project, under construction in a suburb of Atlanta for introduction at the 1991 convention of the National Association of Home Builders in January.

The designers of the showcase house have a particular kind of owner in mind: a dual-income couple with one or two school-age children, who are comfortable with the concept of home automation as a means of helping them achieve lifestyle objectives.

The TAF couple will be well-educated professionals who spend at least part of their working hours in a home office with computers, fax machines and other business equipment and who enjoy high-tech conveniences and home entertainment facilities to maximize their leisure and family time. TAF people are early adopters of technological innovation.

The Electric Smart House will be their dream home because it will be wired to their lifestyle well into the 21st century. It will have an integrated wiring configuration for electricity, telephone, computers, fax, audio, television and security system. A unified set of wires in a few cables will replace the myriad strands of wire in conventional house wiring systems.

At first blush, smart houses may not appeal to everyone, especially for those who have trouble programming a video recorder. But the new technology that will be showcased aims to encourage us to rethink the way we design and build houses.

In place of conventional electrical outlets, the Electric Smart House will have small outlets that can deliver 120-volt alternating current and signals for telephones and television. TV signals may come from a rooftop antenna, satellite dish or an underground cable. Instead of wall switches wired to dedicated outlets, the smart outlets will be connected to a central controller that can operate appliances anywhere in the house.

This means those living in the house can control lights, give instructions to appliances and monitor the security system — all from a central location.

The Electric Smart House will demonstrate outlets that contain logic that processes energy requests and enables or disables energy delivered to the appliance. The controls can reduce the potential for electrical shock and fire hazards. The system controller can monitor the status of appliances and equipment, and can be programmed to shut off outlets if certain appliances are plugged in.

Should a defective appliance be plugged into a smart outlet, power to that center will be interrupted, thanks to ground fault protected receptacle circuits. In addition, a group of appliances or outlets can be activated or disabled for safety or convenience at programmed times.

Although TAF families may be first to appreciate the benefits of the Electric Smart House, the general public will not have to wait long to enjoy them. Builders are being educated to make their homes "smart ready," that is, with technology already in place for the next generation of appliances that will make the enjoyment of home ownership even more comfortable and convenient.

Lower down payments ease home buying

BY JAMES M. WOODARD
Copley News Service

Saving money for that ominous 20 percent down payment is the primary problem facing today's first-time home buyers. But is it really necessary?

A recent survey revealed that many families believe a 20 percent cash down payment is required to purchase a home. They're desperately trying to save that amount while continuing to pay rent for inadequate housing.

In California, about 35 percent of prospective first-time buyers are now attempting to save that 20 percent down payment, according to responses from a consumer survey conducted by the California Association of Realtors.

However, the records show only about 18 percent of all first-time buyers in 1990 actually made a 20 percent down payment. Most of the buyers acquired their home with much lower down payments.

"It's startling to learn that many first-time buyers seem to believe it always takes at least a 20 percent down payment to buy a home," said CAR president Mack Powell. "Billions of dollars in mortgage money is available to buyers who can only afford to make a 5 percent or 10 percent down payment. In fact, some programs even allow first-time home buyers to get into the market with no down payment at all," Powell said.

During 1990, only 53 percent of all first-time buyers actually put down more than 10 percent when entering the market.

In fact, more than one-fifth — or 21.4 percent — of all first-time buyers in 1990 made a down payment of 5 percent or less of the purchase price, according to the finance survey. In contrast, when prospective first-time buyers were asked how much money they were attempting to save for down payment, only about 12 percent said "5 percent or less."

Among home mortgage loans that allow buyers to pay less than 20 percent down payment are those:

- Insured by the Federal Housing Administration.
- Guaranteed by the Department of Veteran Affairs.
- Insured by private mortgage insurance.
- Funded by mortgage revenue bonds and mortgage credit certificates.

- Seller carry-back mortgages — and others.

Mortgage interest rates have been declining in recent weeks to the lowest level in nearly four years. This will allow more families to qualify for a home loan even though they pay a minimal down payment.

On the other hand, lenders are more strict in requiring verification of employment and income of prospective borrowers—generally being sure the borrower is capable of meeting his financial commitments.

The documentation tightening was sparked by a new policy recently announced by the two leading secondary buyers of existing home mortgage loans—Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae.

Q. How will real estate brokerage offices change during the coming year?

A. The three major changes I see emerging in the operation of real estate offices are more reliance on computer-generated support services, more outreach to the international market, and a more sophisticated or "targeted" approach to marketing special high-end properties.

We'll elaborate on each of those current trends in an upcoming column.

Q. Can a home buyer obtain special insurance coverage that will pay the monthly mortgage payments if the owner loses his job?

A. Yes. And it's becoming a profitable business for lenders and insurance companies offering the coverage. At last report, about 40 banks and mortgage companies were marketing the new insurance.

With the jobless rate at about 6 percent, home buyers are becoming nervous about their continued ability to make their home loan payments. This makes them vulnerable to a sales pitch on the insurance. And it's very profitable to the companies offering it.

The coverage may be the thing for you if you are seeking peace of mind and are willing to pay a sizable premium. But shop carefully and cautiously for the best policy.

Small dots on vases are not merely a "mirage"

These Satsuma vases are decorated with small dots of enamel called "morlage."

By James G. McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a pair of vases marked "Made In Japan." They were purchased in Chicago about 1922.

Each vase has three men (Samurai) depicted. The vases are decorated with small dots, which seems unusual to me.

I am wondering if these have any value.

A. These are Satsuma (a type of ceramics made in Japan) and were probably made about 1920. The small dots of enamel are called "morlage."

This pair of vases would probably sell for $200 to $600 for the pair, depending on size.

Q. I would appreciate any information you can provide about a flared bowl, 15 inches in diameter.

It is gold in color with purple highlights. The bottom is engraved "Aurene 2851."

A. Your bowl is Aurene Glass made by Frederick Carder for Steuben Glass in Corning, N.Y., about 1900. It would probably sell for $600 to $700.

Q. My father was given a coaster wagon when he was a little boy in the 1920s. It has red disk wheels and is marked "Express" on the sides. It has a handle to pull it or to steer it when coasting.

Would this be considered antique or junkie?

A. It may not be an antique, but it is a valuable collectible. Coaster wagons like this are selling for $400 to $500 in good condition.

Q. You have previously written about World's Fair collectibles, so I hope you can appraise this one.

It is a ceramic tankard 10 inches tall. It is marked "Christopher Columbus" and has a picture of the Santa Maria. It was made by Doultton in Burslem, England.

A. This souvenir tankard from the 1892-1893 Columbian Exposition in Chicago would probably sell for about $125 to $135.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item to James G. McCollam, P.O. Box 1087, Notre Dame, IN 46556. All questions will be answered but published pictures cannot be returned.

Home remedies to cure a smoking fireplace

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. We are having trouble with our fireplace filling the room with smoke. We have checked to see that the damper opens adequately and that there are no obstructions in the flue.

A. This is a recent problem, because we have been using this wood-burning fireplace for years. Do you have any thoughts on what might be causing this problem?

A. Since it is a recent situation, it is doubtful that the problem is with the basic construction of the fireplace and chimney.

If you have recently weather-stripped and caulked around doors and windows, this could create the problem you are having. Restricting the flow of air from the outside (even through small cracks around windows and doors), can cause outside air to rush down the flue into the house.

Sometimes, even cracking a window open near the fireplace can solve the problem. Another remedy is to install vents to bring outside air into the hearth area.

It is also possible that the problem is caused by external conditions — conditions that did not exist before, such as the construction of new buildings next to yours or even the growth of trees adjacent to the house.

Such new developments can deflect wind down the flue, which would prevent smoke from rising. Your chimney needs to be at least two feet higher than the tallest obstruction within 10 feet of the chimney top.

The remedy is to increase the height of the chimney with a metal extension, or install a rotating chimney cap that keeps the flue opening out of the wind.

Take careful measurements of the chimney top and flue opening so your fireplace dealer can recommend the right size in chimney caps or metal extensions and provide you with instructions on proper installation.

It is also a good idea to have your chimney checked and cleaned annually by a professional chimney sweep: a professional, conducting an on-site inspection, would be better able to assess the nature of your problem.

Q. I have some nice, reasonably priced dining room furniture that I picked up at a garage sale.

When I got the table and buffet home, and in better light, I discovered that there are several scratches and small dents marring the finish on these pieces. Is there any way to camouflage these flaws without entirely refinishing the wood?

A. There are several methods that will help cover the scratches and fill in dents without completely stripping and refinishing wood.

For the scratches, select a wax or liquid shoe polish (not a dye) that matches the color of the wood. Apply with a cotton swab.

You may want to add several coats or mix several colors to obtain the best match. Buff the entire area after the application has dried.

Another method of covering scratches is to rub the area with raw linseed oil, or use a commercial crayon-like stick shellac of the proper hue (available at paint and hardware stores).

There are repair kits on the market designed to help disguise nicks and scratches in wood. One such product is the Wood Repair and Touch-Up Kit from Woodcraft Supply Corp. (P.O. Box 4000, Woburn, MA 01888).

This kit contains instructions and all needed materials, including five dyes that you can blend to match any finish.

For the dented areas you described, try melting a crayon that matches the color of the wood. To melt the crayon, use a soldering iron or tie a nail to a pencil, then heat the nail over a candle flame and hold the nail to the crayon positioned over the dented area. Overfill the dent and let the wax cool 30 minutes, then shave off the excess with a credit card, leaving a smooth surface.

If you don't like the color, reverse the process by liquefying the wax with a heated nail and blotting it out with a dry cloth.

Another method of repairing dents is to steam them out. Don't attempt this if the finish is shellac or if the wood has a veneer surface.

First, use a small amount of paint remover to take off the finish covering the dent. Dampen a lint-free cloth, place it over the dent and hold a hot iron against the cloth.

Check every 30 seconds or so to see if the wood has swelled. When the dent has disappeared as much as it's going to, let the spot dry. Restain if necessary and seal with oil or varnish.

ADVERTISING ALMOST DOUBLES YOUR RETURN-ON-INVESTMENT. (THE ADVERTISING CLAIM ADVERTISING COULDN'T MAKE UNTIL NOW.)

Traditionally, even advertising's strongest supporters have hesitated to ascribe numbers to what experience has taught them is the value of advertising.

Now there's proof. The Strategic Planning Institute's PIMS (Profit Impact of Market Strategy) data base now provides systematic evidence on the way advertising drives profitability and growth.

The study,* done with the Ogilvy Center for Research and Development, draws on more than 700 consumer businesses in North America and Europe, durables and non-durables. It also spans the years 1970 to 1986—a range that covers both rapid inflation and slow inflation, through both good and bad years of the business cycle.

Using this substantial data base, researchers were able to determine the extent to which advertising levels influence a product's "perceived value," and how this perception affects both a product's relative market share and also its relative market price.

Measuring these facts against real market performance, the researchers were then able to quantify the direct impact of different advertising strategies on profitability and growth.

Their finding: "Brands that advertise much more than their competitors average returns-on-investment of 32 percent, while brands that advertise much less than their competitors average only 17 percent return-on-investment."

In other words, it not only pays to advertise, it pays more to advertise more.

In an era when productivity is often understood only in terms of cutting costs, this significant research affirms the enduring importance of adding to the sales value of the products you sell.

And it proves that, even today, there is still no better way to build a consumer perception of added value than with advertising.

For more information, you can write to The Committee on the Value of Advertising, Department A, American Association of Advertising Agencies, 666 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

You'll get a booklet that spells out all the findings of this important new research. It just may be the most persuasive advertising material you've ever read.

12 alternatives to lashing out at your kid.

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out—STOP!

And try any of these simple alternatives.

You'll feel better . . . and so will your child.

1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult . . .
2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
5. Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: Is it your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
6. Phone a friend.
7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
9. Hug a pillow.
10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
11. Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.
12. Write for prevention information: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866L, Chicago, IL 60690.

Milford agency does the legwork for you

By JOHN DODT
Staff Writer

Colleen Triscornia, president and owner of Triscornia Travel, is excited about being a small business owner in Milford.

"The village planners have an eye for the future growth of Milford without destroying the charm of the small-town atmosphere," she said as she explained why she chose Milford for her travel agency.

Triscornia Travel, located at the southwest corner of North Milford Road and Highland Avenue, opened for business April 1. It occupies the first floor of a two-story building Triscornia purchased in August 1989.

She and her husband Gary have lived in Milford for eight years. In the process of starting up her travel agency she found that the community welcomes small business owners. "I think it's the greatest community," she said.

Triscornia Travel is a full-service travel agency. Agents Carol Molle and Kimberly Schlemann will book air, rail, and car travel as well as arrange hotel reservations and cruises.

They also pledge to find the best tour package available for clients. Custom trip planning is also offered for no fee.

"I enjoy helping clients find their perfect place to go," said Triscornia.

Custom trips are often automobile or sightseeing trips. The research done by the travel agents includes finding hotels along the way.

"I'll give information on anything, whether it's commissionable or not," Triscornia stated. She sometimes makes reservations herself, in addition to making sure the agents take care of the clients.

Business was somewhat slow when the agency first opened, but it quickly picked up. Triscornia said most of her customers are from the Highland area and that she is in "friendly competition" with Milford Travel.

"A lot of people call us to do their travel arrangements," she said. "We will do the leg work and call back."

Some business comes from people driving by. Triscornia said she likes to have clients visit the offices.

A lot of work has been done to the interior of the building, which was built in the 1910s or 1920s, according to Triscornia. The wood floors were refinished, as well as all of the woodwork throughout the first floor. A nine-space parking lot was completed in October for the agency's grand opening.

Money Management

Tax-advantaged investments are good strategy

If you think you're paying Uncle Sam too much of what you make on your investments, you may want to take a closer look at tax-free and tax-deferred investments. Just remember that tax treatment is only one factor to consider when developing an investment strategy, advises the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Municipal bonds offer investors a way to earn tax-free interest income. Issued by state and local governments, municipal bonds help raise money to build schools, roads and other projects. In the last few years, the municipal bond market has become a more complicated place for investors. In the past, all municipal bonds were exempt from federal tax, but changes in the tax law created three different tax treatments of municipal bonds.

The interest you earn on the traditional obligations of state and local governments remains tax-free. And, in most states, if the bonds are from STANDARD FEDERAL BANK announced the opening of a new branch office in Northville Township.

Located at 39437 Six Mile Road at Haggerty Road, the branch offers a wide variety of financial services including home mortgage loans, checking and savings accounts and safe deposit boxes. Office hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, and drive-up service only on Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

CENTURY 21 WEST agents helped fill the Toys for Tots barrel at Michigan National Bank, located at Twelve Mile and Novi roads. This is the second year that Century 21 West agents have done this, rather than buying gifts for each other.

Michigan National Bank Representative, Janet Cummings, accepted the toys on behalf of Toys for Tots.

Registration is being accepted now for a two-part class on International Investing being offered by Schoolcraft College. Rick Bloom, host of the popular WXYT-RADIO MONEY TALK show will head the class. Students will learn the importance of globally diversifying one's portfolio and how to go about it. Classes will meet from 6 to 8 p.m. on Wednesdays, Feb. 6 and 13. Class fee is $40 per person for both sessions. Registration can be made by calling Schoolcraft College, Division of Continuing Education, at 462-4448.

Choosing the proper way to invest in the international market, whether it is European or Asian, can be difficult. This class will explore different avenues available to the investor to invest worldwide, and to explain the risks involved in investing outside the United States.

According to the Wall Street Journal, U.S. stocks accounted for 52 percent of the total share of World Equities in 1979. Today, the U.S. share of world market capitalizations has shrunk to 34 percent. Portfolios containing only U.S. investments are investing in a shrinking market. In 1992, the 12-member European Economic Community is dismantling all trade barriers between member countries, merging into one economic unit. This will create the largest economy in the industrialized world and promises tremendous opportunities for U.S. investors.

Instructor Rick Bloom is an honors graduate of the University of Michigan School of Law, and a member of the American Bar Association as well as the State Bar of Michigan. In addition, he is an honors graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in accounting. He is a licensed Certified Public Accountant and a member of the Michigan Association of C.P.A.s.

As the host of "Money Talk" on WXYT-Radio, Bloom answers listeners' questions regarding financial planning, taxes and other matters affecting money. He is also a lecturer and instructor for Walsh College, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants as well as with other C.P.A. associations across the country.

Bloom is a member of the law firm of Liberson, Bloom, Bloom & Bock, P.C., in Southfield, Mich.

While serving clients statewide, this office will especially enhance the company's ability to serve clients in southeastern Michigan.

Comerica Bank-Detroit, principal subsidiary of Comerica Incorporated, has appointed Northville resident DONNA M. POLLARD to an officer in small business banking. Chairman Eugene A. Miller made the announcement.

Pollard received a bachelor of science degree in 1986 from Central Michigan University.

She joined the company in 1988 as a commercial loan servicing assistant.

Tiscornia Travel goes the distance

Manager Bonnie Bird said Florida, Hawaii and Mexico are always popular travel destinations.

"Any of the warmer destinations," Bird said. Toronto and Las Vegas getaways are also frequent requests, she added.

Oil and gas prices have pushed fares up an average of 26 percent since August, and airlines have responded to this price increase by offering promotional packages.

"Some of these promotional fares are lower than promotional fares that were offered before August," Tiscornia said. These low, promotional offers are most advantageous for those who are flexible and can travel anytime, she explained.

Tiscornia said the idea for opening a travel agency was suggested by a friend. After living in Milford for a few years, she and Gary were interested in owning their own business. Tiscornia said she enjoys working with people and computers, and a travel agency "sounded like fun."

In a few years she would like her agency to have a few more branches. For now, though, one location keeps her busy. She likes the fact that her agency is not a big one right now.

"I like being a small business owner in this community," she said.

Her husband Gary is not involved in the day-to-day function of Tiscornia Travel. He currently works as the executive director of the Michigan Humane Society, a position he has held for the past year and a half.

Colleen Tiscornia has a degree in fashion merchandising and marketing from the University of Wisconsin Technical School. She also took business courses at the University of Arizona when she lived in Tucson. She and Gary have one daughter, Abigail, who is 1 year old.

She joined the Rotary Club in November and plans to join the Huron Valley Area Chamber of Commerce.

your home state, you generally escape state and local taxes as well. However, certain bonds issued for private purposes, such as industrial development, now generate interest that can be subject to the alternative minimum tax. Still other bonds, including those issued to finance sports stadiums and convention facilities, no longer qualify for any federal tax exemption.

To determine if municipal bonds are the right type of investment for you, you should compare the return you can collect from a tax-exempt investment to the return you would get from a taxed investment. You should also weigh the security and the term of the bond under consideration. In addition, keep in mind that if you need to sell a municipal bond before its maturity, you must report your capital gain or loss on your tax return. What's more, you cannot deduct investment expenses associated with tax-exempt investments.

TREASURY BILLS

By transferring money from an investment that accrues interest daily to one that pays interest at maturity, such as Treasury bills, you can defer the taxes due on your investment earnings. Treasury bills are issued in denominations of $10,000 and up, and mature in three, six or 12 months. The bills are issued at a discount, with the interest paid when they are redeemed at maturity for face value. Interest on T-bills is completely exempt from state and local taxes; federal taxes are not due until the year the bills mature.

CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT

Many banks, brokerage firms and other financial institutions offer certificates of deposit (CDs). The interest earned on CDs is subject to federal, state and local taxes. But, because earnings on CDs are taxed in the year you receive them, you can use CDs as a means of deferring interest income. When you buy a CD that matures next year, the interest it earns is not taxable until then.

However, you should keep in mind that early withdrawals from a CD are generally subject to an interest penalty. If you have to make an early withdrawal, remember that this penalty is deductible even if you do not itemize your deductions.

SERIES EE U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

In 1982, the government created Series EE U.S. Savings Bonds to provide savers with a guaranteed minimum interest rate, plus a chance to earn more if interest rates rise. If you cash in the bonds early, a lower fixed rate applies.

Savings bonds have two special tax appeals. First, interest earned on savings bonds is exempt from state and local income taxes. Second, since you collect your interest when you redeem the bonds, the interest is generally not subject to federal tax until then. However, you can choose to report the interest annually. If you select this option, and later you decide that you would benefit more from reporting the interest when you redeem the bonds, you can switch methods only with the consent of the IRS.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1990, a new tax benefit was created for certain U.S. savings bonds. Interest on these bonds is not taxed if the bonds are redeemed to pay college expenses. In order to qualify for this tax treatment, certain conditions must be satisfied: the bond must have been issued after Dec. 31, 1989; you must be 24 years old or older at the time the bonds are purchased; and you must use the bond's proceeds for qualified educational expenses incurred by you, your spouse or dependents for higher education. This exclusion is phased out if your adjusted gross income falls within certain ranges—between $60,000 and $90,000 if you are married and filing jointly, and between $40,000 and $55,000 for single taxpayers and heads of household. These dollar amounts will be adjusted annually for inflation.

RETIREMENT PLANS

Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs), Keoghs and other retirement plans continue to offer liberal tax benefits. These plans represent another way you can defer some of your taxable income. With an IRA or Keogh, not only do you defer paying taxes on the money you invest, but the interest you receive on your investment is also deferred until the money is withdrawn. In addition, some investors can still claim a deduction for the amount contributed to an IRA. Restrictions on deductions are based on your income and whether you are covered by a retirement plan at work. With a Keogh, deposits are tax deductible regardless of your income, and money in the plan is allowed to grow and compound tax-free until withdrawal.

To be a successful investor, you need to know how to use the tax rules to your best advantage. The rules can get complicated so it may be wise to consult a C.P.A.

Service still counts among diners

Restaurant patrons want to be greeted at the door, and know the prices of "specials," reports the new "Salute to Restaurant Service Survey" released by American Express. What they don't want is a chorus of "Happy Birthday."

The survey was conducted for "An American Express Salute to Restaurant Service," a nationwide program that allows diners to vote for outstanding service personnel. When American Express Cardmembers are pleased with the level of service shown in a restaurant, they can present the employee responsible with a Thank You Certificate. The employee with the most can win $10,000 in traveler's checks. And each time the diner casts a vote for an employee, the diner's name can be entered in a sweepstakes where the grand prize is a culinary tour of France.

"Service is the priority in a decade when consumers are returning to more traditional, less status-oriented values," says Bonnie Schwartz, director of restaurant marketing at American Express.

Seventy-nine percent of those surveyed said they want to know the prices of "specials" before ordering. Sixty-three percent said they want to read the "specials" as opposed to hear them recited by the waiter.

And 55 percent of those surveyed want to know the waiter's name. Regionally, Westerners most appreciate the name introduction (72 percent), followed by those in the North Central region (62 percent), followed by people in the Northeast (56 percent).

Under "most desirable restaurant services," a greeting at the door ranked first, followed by a complimentary cocktail. And renditions of "Happy Birthday" ranked last.

In a list of preferred service characteristics, a waiter's "personality" ranked first, with 39 percent of the vote, followed by grace and speed with 22 and 19 percent, respectively. Not nearly as important were menu knowledge and the waiter's appearance, with 10 percent and seven percent, respectively.
