Relief

Friday night's meeting of the West Side Chapter of the Michigan Military Family Support Group once again brought together friends and relatives of many service people who are part of Operation Desert Storm. But everything seemed a little more positive this week: A cease-fire and the apparent end of the war brought feelings of relief, though still tempered by caution. Above, Sylvia Kneeshaw looks over pictures from the front sent home by Barb Harrison's son. Left, group co-founder Ginny Hathorn addresses the gathering. For more from the meeting, see page 6-A.

Board backs most of ZBA permit stance

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A $500,000 escrow account earmarked for rehabilitation of a former gravel pit will stay in the hands of Northville Township government.

The township board last week upheld a January Zoning Board of Appeals decision to terminate a mining permit issued to the former owner of the Thomson Sand and Gravel property.

The board also rejected permit-holder Alta Sorenson's appeal to release approximately $523,000 in an escrow account now controlled by the township.

But the board determined that the escrowed funds could not be used to repair neighboring properties damaged after the Thomson site developer rerouted a creek.

Sorenson said she will appeal the board's decision in Wayne County Circuit Court.

The board strongly backed most of a Jan. 7 four-tiered ZBA ruling which said D & T Construction of Mt. Clemens, an agent of development firm Seven Lakes of Northville, and the Sorenson trust failed to comply with terms of a township-issued mining permit.

Wednesday's ruling was the latest piece of a complex puzzle that almost certainly will drag several parties into court. Recent site history amplifies the jumbled nature of the conflict.

Sorenson's family sold the property to the developer two years ago, but retained liability for reclamation of the property her family mined for more than 50 years.

Escrowed funds were held as a guarantee that the 400-acre site located between Beck and Ridge roads and Six and Seven Mile roads would be rehabilitated to township specifications.

Under the permit, the Sorenson trust — through D & T Construction — was required to grade slopes on a four-to-one ratio, replace topsoil and seed the property in preparation for site development.

The ZBA last summer said D & T had violated terms of the reclamation to the extent that the developer was ordered to stop work on the site.

But during the reclamation process, D & T redirected Sump Drain, a tiny creek that flows through neighboring properties and spills into lakes on the gravel pit site.

Sump Drain was rerouted without a Department of Natural Resources permit; the DNR issued a cease and desist order and directed the firm to apply for necessary permits.

Last December, heavy rains washed out a culvert on the Thomson site and caused massive erosion at the former gravel pit and neighboring properties in the Docksey subdivision.

Redirected Sump Drain was identified as the culprit.

After the washout, the ZBA terminated the mining permit in an attempt to wrest control of the escrow fund.

The Sorenson trust then appealed for a reversal at the township board level.

The decision places pressure squarely on the shoulders of the Sorenson trust, Seven Lakes of Northville, and D & T Construction.

D & T faces prosecution for violating the state's Inland Lakes and Streams Act. A pre-trial date has been set for March 15 at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

The state DNR must accept a D & T plan to repair Sump Drain on the Thomson site prior to March 15, or the township will move to attempt rehabilitation itself, using the escrowed monies.

The Sorenson trust will likely lose the entire amount of the escrow fund if the township completes rehabilitation. The trust will appeal the board's ruling in circuit court on the grounds that rehabilitation was completed and the drain was the sole responsibility of D & T Construction.

Sorenson has 21 days to file a circuit court appeal after the board approves the minutes from last week's meeting. The board is expected to approve the minutes at its March 14 meeting.

Situation might end up in court

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

The Seven Lakes of Northville Limited Partnership once looked upon the 400 acres of rolling hills and lakes at the former Thomson Sand and Gravel site as a development-rich field of dreams.

Today, those dreams have taken on a darker, more ominous tone.

Seven Lakes of Northville and its agent, D & T Construction of Mt. Clemens, have found themselves in the midst of a year-long typhoon of controversy that has also engulfed state agencies, local government, the former gravel pit property owners, neighboring residents and more than a handful of attorneys.

And now, the outlook for Seven Lakes' development may be murkier than ever — for everyone involved. Last week's township board decision to uphold an earlier ZBA ruling against the holder of a mining permit forces the issue into court for the first time. A half-dozen lawsuits may hinge on a circuit court judge's ruling.

Possible scenarios include: ● D & T Construction submits to the state Department of Natural Resources a workable plan to repair Sump Drain by placing the creek back in its natural path. If the state accepts D & T's plan, the developer would complete rehabilitation and all sides in this multi-tiered conflict will be at least temporarily appeased. However, the relationship between D & T and the DNR reportedly is

Firefighting patriarch leaves force

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The patriarch of a firefighting family celebrated more than 30 years of service with family and friends last month, bidding a fond farewell to the Northville City Fire Department.

Louis Westfall Jr., 59, who retired from the department in December, attended a retirement party in his honor Sunday, Feb. 17 at MacKinnon's Restaurant. He had served as a Northville firefighter since 1960.

"I've seen a lot of changes," Westfall said of his 30-year tenure. The department has nearly doubled in size since he joined, from 15 to 26 men, he said, and the equipment is much improved. "When I started we had a 1947 Ford / John Bean fire truck," Westfall said.

Today's firefighters are better able to withstand a fire because their equipment is more advanced, he added. "When I started, we had the old rubber coats; they were just more or less raincoats in rubber, and in a good hot fire the rubber would bubble right up on them. Now they have up-to-date equipment, they have a lot more equipment, self-contained breathing apparatus and all that."

Westfall was not the first one in his family to fight fires, he said. "My father was a fireman in the City of Plymouth... and he helped fight the old Globe Furniture Factory fire that burned years and years ago here in Northville."

The Globe Factory on South Main Street, at one time the world's largest manufacturer of school furniture, burned to the ground in 1899 after being struck by lightning. Though the factory was totally destroyed, Northville and Plymouth firefighters managed to save the surrounding mills and homes.

The Northville Fire Department has no shortage of Westfall family members on its roster today. Sons Brad and Tom Westfall, son-in-law Fred Fisher and grandson Hugh Jordan all are volunteer firefighters.

Westfall remembers when his youngest son, Tom, began expressing an interest in the fire department, at the tender age of four. "When the fire whistle'd blow he'd hide in the car," Louis said. "I can remember as a fireman I'd go to respond to fires and I'd get there and I'd find that he had hidden in the back seat, and I'd have to bring him home."

Westfall's youngest son was not the only family member who responded to the fire alarm, he said. "We had a dog here in the house, whenever the old fire whistle would blow, this dog would go crazy... He knew it was time for me to go."

The Westfalls are not the only Northville residents that have turned firefighting into a family affair, either. Brothers Dan and Norman Anderson serve on the department, as does Chief Jim Allen's son Scott.

"The fire service is one of those things that just gets into your blood," said Chief Allen. "You either have a desire for it or you don't."

Allen and Westfall served side-by-

Friends group sets meeting

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Everybody needs a friend, and the patients at Northville Hospital found some friends of their own more than two years ago.

The group known as the Friends of Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital (NRPH) now wants to broaden its base, and is hosting a membership gathering tomorrow, March 5, to achieve that goal.

"Basically . . . we're trying to enlist the help of people," said board member Marlene Kunz, who is chairing tomorrow's event with fellow board member and Northville resident Heidi Needham.

The group's main goal locally is to educate residents about the people who pass through the doors of the Northville Hospital.

"I think what were looking at is to educate the community not to be afraid," Kunz said. "These are our friends, they're our neighbors . . . Just because the people are institutionalized doesn't mean they aren't."

The Friends want to make that educational process a fun one, and plan to sponsor several entertaining fund-raising events for that purpose. Future events include a dinner at the New Hellas Cafe in Greektown and concert by the Blue Pigs on Friday, April 19, and a benefit performance by the Plymouth Theatre Guild.

The group already has sponsored several programs for patients at the hospital, donating clothes and wrapping and distributing gifts over the holidays.

The membership gathering will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church, 777 Eight Mile Rd., Northville.

For more information, call NRPH Community Relations Director Carol Park at 349-1800.

Friends of NRPH is a nonprofit, tax-exempt organization. Contributions are tax deductible.

Veteran firefighter retires

In what was called the auxiliary police force," the chief recalled. Westfall eventually took a full-time position with the police force, until his retirement from there in 1986.

Leaving the fire department was not an easy decision, but it was the right one, Westfall said. "Firefighting is a young man's job," he said. "It's strenuous and it's dangerous, and there just comes a time when you reach an age in your life that you figure, 'I don't want to be responsible for somebody else getting hurt.'"

"I didn't want to stay out of a building, and I just didn't want one of my boys to have to go in there . . . and injure themselves or lose their life trying to get to me. So I just felt that it was time to hang up the boots."

Of his decision to step down from his firefighting career, Westfall said, "It's going to be hard . . . I've seen the department come a long way."

Westfall continues to work in public safety, as a security supervisor at Mount Carmel Mercy Hospital in Detroit.

Sports Briefs

GYMNASTICS UPDATE: The Northville gymnasts suffered a heartbreaking defeat to North Farmington on Feb. 13, but the team's score was less than a single point away from the school record.

The Raiders nipped the Mustangs 133.75-133.70 — That's right, Northville lost by five one-hundredths of a point, which is the closest you can be without tying. The difference came in the floor exercise, the meet's final event, when North outscored the Mustangs by six-tenths of a point to erase a slim deficit.

In the floor exercise, Mia DeHart scored a season-high 9.35 but had to settle for second place. The Raiders' Jameelah Gater notched a 9.5. Leslie Allen (8.9) was fourth.

DeHart and freshman Sara Kolb placed in the top three in the rest of the events. In vault, Kolb was first (9.0), DeHart was third (8.5) and Stacy Kasmerick (8.4) fourth. In the uneven parallel bars, DeHart (9.05) and Kolb (8.8) were second and third respectively.

Northville had the lead heading into the floor exercise thanks to a fine team performance in the balance beam. DeHart was first with an 8.85 and Kolb was second with an 8.55.

In the all-around competition, DeHart took first place honors, edging North's Heather Kahn 35.5-35.0.

Stolen items recovered at local construction site

City police helped a father and son from Walled Lake recover stolen property from the suspected thieves on a Northville construction site Feb. 21.

The Walled Lake man and his son had previously reported the theft of nearly $5,000 in construction tools and equipment to Farmington Hills police. The son told police there that he had seen the items being stolen from a Farmington Hills job site Feb. 24 by two recently fired employees of their construction company.

When the father saw one of the former employees on a Northville job site Feb. 21, he informed city police, and asked them to accompany him to the site to get his equipment back. An officer went with the man to the job site and stood by as the former employee returned an air compressor and two nail guns to the man.

The former employee promised to return more equipment the next day, in exchange for a piece of his equipment that the Walled Lake man had.

THEFT FROM HIGH SCHOOL: An estimated $224 in clothing and other items was reported stolen from a Northville High School locker Feb. 25. The locker, in the men's locker room, was found pried open about 7:30 a.m. A green and red sport jacket valued at $200, a Radio Shack car alarm transmitter, a Master combination lock and keys were reported taken in the theft.

STEREO EQUIPMENT STOLEN: An AM/FM cassette receiver and speakers reportedly were stolen from a 1987 Jeep parked on Silver Springs sometime between Feb. 18-20, township police said. The stolen items were valued at $700.

TENNIS SHOE THIEF MABBED: A 17-year-old Detroit man was arrested Feb. 18 and charged with larceny after he put on a pair of tennis shoes at Meijer and attempted to leave the store without paying for them, township police said.

LARCENY AT MEIJER: A 28-year-old Detroit man was arrested and charged with larceny after attempting to steal film from Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, Feb. 18, township police said.

LIGHTS BROKEN: Ten lawn light fixtures and a light sensor valued at $190 were damaged at a residence on Northridge Drive late Feb. 18 or early Feb. 19, township police said.

Police said someone also threw several garden plants around the yard of the residence.

THIEVES HIT MEIJER: Two men cut a lock on a chain link fence at Meijer and stole stainless steel milk carts Feb. 19 at 7 p.m., Meijer employees told police. Employees told police the men loaded the milk carts onto a rental van before leaving the scene. The milk carts were valued at $1,500.

SUSPENDED LICENSE ARREST: City police arrested a 20-year-old Northville man for driving with a suspended license Feb. 26, after stopping him at Center Street and Rayson at 10:12 p.m. The man's license had been suspended for failing to comply with court judgments after speeding in Kalamazoo and violating the seat-belt law in Hudsonville. The man was also issued a citation for transporting open intoxicants in a motor vehicle, after police found several empty beer cans in his car.

He was released after posting $100 cash bond.

FENDER BENDER: City police reported one accident last week. A 16-year-old Northville girl driving east on Main Street near the former Ford Valve Plant Feb. 25 struck the car ahead of her at 1:13 p.m. and was issued a citation. The car ahead had stopped to avoid ducks crossing the road.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Several lawsuits may arise from Shores development strained and plan acceptance must be considered less than a sure thing.

- The Circuit Court rules against the township in the Sorenson trust matter. The court could remand the issue back to the township board or ZBA, or rule that the township must release a portion or all of $523,000 in a township-controlled escrow fund.

- Circuit Court dismisses the Sorenson appeal. If the DNR and D & T cannot reach accord, the township would be in the position to use escrow funds to repair Sump Drain and finish Thomson site rehabilitation.
- If the township does use escrow funds, it likely will face a lawsuit from the Sorenson trust. Likewise, the trust could sue D & T/Seven Lakes of Northville. If the township uses escrow funds and cannot complete rehabilitation with the half-million dollars, it likely would sue D & T/Seven Lakes and/or the Sorenson trust for the necessary repair amount.

- Neighboring property owners affected by erosion from Sump Drain will have to file one or more lawsuits to recoup losses from damaged property. The township board last week determined that it did not have the right to use escrow funds to repair off-site problems. Neighbors likely will sue D & T/Seven Lakes, probably the Sorenson trust, and possibly the township.

- The township could enjoin a neighboring resident lawsuit, based on a health, safety, and welfare premise. At least one township official has hinted this could occur if steps are not taken to resolve neighboring property woes.

● D & T/Seven Lakes could sue the DNR and/or township on the grounds that one or both of the governments thwarted developer efforts to place the creek back in its natural course by halting work on-site.

Township board backs ZBA after discussing various issues involved

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

The township board backed its ZBA in the Sorenson appeal case in all but one area — but that variance caused consternation among board members and residents alike.

The Zoning Board of Appeals ruled Jan. 7 that the township could take control of approximately a half-million dollars in an escrow account designed to ensure the rehabilitation of the former Thomson Sand and Gravel site.

Included in the ZBA's four-part resolution was a clause that called for rehabilitation of properties adjacent to the gravel pit. ZBA members hoped to ensure that properties damaged as a result of a re-directed creek would be repaired.

But the attorney for Alta Sorenson, former gravel pit owner whose funds are tied into the escrow account, challenged that portion of the ZBA ruling.

"That's where my client has the complaint, the objection," said John Ashton, of the firm Draugelis & Ashton. "You are by contract . . . only to use that (money) for certain limited purposes."

Ashton said terms of a mining contract between Sorenson and the township are limited to on-site rehabilitation such as slope-grading, topsoil-spreading and seeding. The Sorenson trust is under no obligation to have its funds expended outside the perimeters of the gravel pit site, he said.

"My clients are not responsible for the Sump Drain problem," he said. "The (escrow) money looks very tempting sitting there and could be used to do some work (but it is) my client's firm position that those funds not be used for anything regarding the Sump Drain."

The Sump Drain, a creek that snakes through neighboring properties into the Thomson site, was rerouted early last summer by D & T Construction, an agent for developer Seven Lakes of Northville Limited Partnership.

Township attorney Ernest Essad, of Law, Henning, Essad & Polaczky, disputed Ashton's claim that the Sump Drain was not the Sorenson trust responsibility. But Essad agreed that language in the mining permit did not make allowances for off-site rehabilitation.

Essad said the township would have a difficult time in court defending an attempt to use the escrowed funds off-site.

Township resident James Malecki, whose property borders the Thomson site, said he has watched a gorge spread from the gravel pit through his land along the Sump Drain.

"I haven't heard anything about my property," he said. "All the trees in my property are falling into that canyon."

"Who's going to fix it?" Malecki said, adding that he needed relief from "either the township or the developer."

Township trustees Richard Allen and Thomas Handyside expressed sympathy for Malecki, but told him the township's hands were tied by the terms of the permit.

Our Opinion

City rushes in where banks fear to tread

On the face of it, the City of Northville's decision to help underwrite a loan for a new Main Street variety store seems a smart way to bring a valued service back into town.

But the move also raises questions about the role of city government, and how closely such a government can afford to tie itself to the fortunes of a commercial enterprise.

Two weeks ago, the city council approved in principal a proposal to underwrite 24 percent of a $125,000 bank loan, to allow hardware store owner Robert Black to replace his 139 E. Main St. store with a variety store. The council plans to vote on the financing proposal at its March 11 meeting.

Black's new store will be similar to the D & C Lane store Black replaced in 1988. Many residents lamented the passing of the D & C, which was reportedly forced out of business by the rising cost of renting a retail location in downtown Northville. Some have decried the continuing shift of the downtown shopping scene away from basic goods and toward gifts and other non-essential items.

City officials argue, and rightfully so, that part of their role is to guide the development of a downtown area and help assure that the area remains commercially viable and continues to provide services essential to local residents.

But what makes the city government a better judge of a store's potential profitability than a financial institution?

According to Robert Black, most banks refused to touch his proposal despite his successful track record in the hardware business, despite the fact that his new business would share the same supplier as his old one, and despite the fact that in at least one case the city was willing to underwrite part of the loan.

A bank's main business is loaning money, and bankers are trained to analyze the financial prospects of a new business. What do city officials know that all those bankers did not? Did they read a market analysis or a demographics survey suggesting that the new venture would be a success? If so, this information has yet to be shared with the public.

The dictionary defines a dime store as "a store that sells a wide variety of inexpensive merchandise." Making a profit by selling inexpensive merchandise requires selling a large quantity.

Black admits that variety stores in general are risky businesses, and that their numbers are on the decline. He knows he'll be bucking a national trend if his business becomes a success.

Another aspect of this decision that concerns us is the lack of time that, to this date, has been spent debating this proposal.

The council quickly approved of the concept Feb. 19, spending little time in open session discussing the proposal. Mayor Chris Johnson was nearly the only one to comment on it, saying, "This... looks like it could bring a real service back into the downtown area."

True enough.

But the city is risking $30,000 in taxpayers' money to finance a new business. Though there is no doubt in our minds that many residents will welcome a dime store back into town, it does not seem like too much to ask that the residents themselves be told of such a proposal in the early stages, and given the chance to voice their opinion on the wisdom of the city's involvement.

We're not betting against Black's ability to make his new variety store work, and we hope it becomes a resounding success. We just wish city officials had let other Northville residents in on the city's decision to back Robert Black.

After all, they now have a $30,000 stake in the future of his store.

One big winner may be autos

I'm going to go out on a limb here and predict that one of the big winners in the aftermath of the Persian Gulf War will be Chrysler Corp.

How do I know this? Let's just call it an educated guess.

Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf (not to be confused with Jonathan Winters) says our forces rolled over the Iraqis with all the consequence of a speed bump thanks to our superior technology. Our sophisticated weapons were a make-or-break element in the conflict. If they had failed us, not only would there have been more casualties, but our credibility might have suffered irrevocable losses.

Fortunately there were resounding successes for nearly all of our hardware. Everyone gets a warm fuzzy when you mention the Tomahawk cruise missile, or the Patriot antimissile missile. Marketing types call this "positive name recognition" or something like that.

Which brings us around to Chrysler. The number-three automaker is selling a snappy little sports car called the Dodge Stealth. With the success of the F-117 Stealth fighter-bomber, you can bet the Chrysler namesakes will be leaving skidmarks out of the dealers' showrooms.

Let's you think I'm making a far-fetched association here, history has shown that Detroit imitates the Pentagon.

Those of you old enough to remember the Korean War probably remember that the F-100 Super Sabre, our first mass-produced jet-powered fighter, captured a lot of attention. Its front intake port looked something like a big round open mouth, and throughout the '50s, carmakers tried to capture that intake-port look on the grilles of their cars. Remember the "horse-collar" grille on the Edsel?

And who can forget tailfins? They were a steel icon created in the image of aircraft wings. Show cars of that era made use of clear canopies, not unlike those covering airplane cockpits.

All of the combat planes we saw in the Gulf War had nicknames. Admittedly not all of them were that inspiring, like the A-10 Warthog, or the F-4E Wild Weasel. Those two probably won't make it onto a car nameplate, but the F-15 Eagle is already covered by an entire line of Chrysler vehicles. Talk about Advantage: Chrysler.

Then there's the F-16 Falcon, a name formerly used by Ford, and still used on cars produced by its Australian division. Are you folks in Dearborn paying attention?

The F-18 Hornet probably calls to mind the old AMC product. Of course, AMC was bought out by Chrysler, but it wouldn't be a bad name to think about bringing back.

Chrysler has had no qualms lately about wrapping itself in the flag, hanging the "America" moniker on its price-beater cars, and using the Space Shuttle as a backdrop for its Dodge Spirit.

Let's also not forget Lee Iacocca's involvement with the restoration of Ellis Island and the Statue of Liberty. And Chevy thinks they're the Heartbeat of America?

Now that it's over, I fully expect that someone will try to cash in on newfound American pride. Don't be surprised to see the name Patriot or Tomahawk on the fender of some future Detroit product.

As for the Warthog and the Wild Weasel, well, don't hold your breath.

Research pours in (for males)

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to the classified nature of the research revealed in this column, women are advised not to read beyond this point. Thank you.

You may recall that a couple of weeks ago I issued a call for information which might substantiate an international feminist conspiracy to abuse and frustrate men — the insidious tactic of standing in front of the television set during critical moments of sporting events.

Well, information has started to roll in. As further evidence of this anti-male conspiracy, I offer this week the following documentation of atrocities submitted by Bob Gatt, the erudite crime prevention officer of the Novi Police Department. His observations follow...

"Phil, you are definitely onto something here. However, I think you're just scratching the surface. Not only do the females block the television set during sporting events, but did you ever notice how they wait to talk to you just when the big play is about to happen? Or, just when the sports news is coming on TV?

"...my home, I often sit and read the paper, waiting for Bernie to give me 'the highlights' of the day. Does my wife talk during the hard news? NO. She too can sit through the same news, either listening or reading something. But, as soon as she hears the word 'sports,' she'll say, 'Say, did you know the faucet is leaking in the bathroom?' Or, 'Did I tell you the teacher wants to talk to us tomorrow?' Or, 'Did you know we were overdrawn on the checking account?'

"What I don't understand is just why does she wait until sports is on television to discuss the problems of the world.

"The other day I was babysitting for my 5-year-old daughter. All was right with the world. I had a hot pizza in front of me, my daughter was in her room playing with toys, the Red Wings were on television and had just battled back from a three-goal deficit. Overtime loomed.

"Just then my daughter begins screaming as if she had hurt herself. I bounce off the couch, run to her room, and find that she can't find one of her new toys. Either I help her find the toy or she will continue to cry. Needless to say, by the time the crisis was over, so was the hockey game. The pizza was cold, and the females had done it again.

"Phil, my mom used to block the TV, and my wife does the same thing. And, as you said, I don't dare say anything, lest my wife question just what the heck I'm doing sitting down watching TV while she is slaving to keep our house neat?

"Phil, this is a major problem that must be addressed. What can the males do to be able to watch a sporting event or just the sports news without being bothered or blocked by the females? Are they taught this at a very young age? Was my 5-year-old just testing her powers the other day? Keep me informed as to the results of your study. I think that men should -- indeed, must -- stick together on this."

Thanks for your insights, Bob. As a professional law enforcement officer — one of the best in the state — you know that every piece of information may be critical to the investigation. And I must say that your findings are noteworthy.

Particularly troubling is the information about your 5-year-old. Is it possible we're dealing with something genetic here? Some sort of mutant chromosome, maybe? The research continues.

REACTING TO PEACE

Local support group members feel joy, concern

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The West Side Chapter of the Michigan Military Family Support Group greeted news of a tenuous Gulf cease-fire with a mixture of relief and well-earned caution Friday night.

The President of the United States may have declared the Persian Gulf war over Thursday, but for the dozens of parents and spouses at Friday's meeting in Northville the war won't really end until all their loved ones return home.

"It's not over for me, not yet," said Darlene Rinke. "To me it's got a long, long way to go. A week ago we all got real up when there was talk of Saddam (Hussein) pulling out, and then we were all down by that night."

"It's like a psychological warfare he's playing with the families, too."

Rinke's son Craig, a forward observer with an Army reconnaissance unit, flew to the Middle East in August with the 82nd Airborne. His mother said Craig still may have been participating in mop-up operations as allied forces quelled the remaining Iraqi resistance.

"I would imagine he's still working," she said, "so we don't really plan to hear from him until it's all cleaned up."

Rinke's skepticism reflected the results of a dizzying week for those anxiously following events in the Gulf. The nation had heard rumors of an imminent Iraqi pullout, listened as a Soviet-backed peace plan fell through, and watched as the long-dreaded allied ground campaign began and then ended in a stunning victory four days later.

Support group co-founder Ginny Hathorn asked the group, after joining them in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance, "Has it ever meant more to you than it does right now?" and was answered by a chorus of "No's."

"I think this is probably the best we've felt since we've been together," Hathorn told the crowd.

The group gathered in a prayer circle stretching around the hall while Pastor Thomas Lubeck, wearing an Operation Desert Storm sweatshirt, read a prayer in which he offered thanks for the few allied casualties and the apparent end of the war.

Yet few of those present were ready to drop their emotional guards that night. Hathorn said after the meeting that she feared Saddam Hussein still had something else up his sleeve, perhaps one final chemical attack on allied troops still in Iraq.

"It's not over," she said. "None of us thinks it's over; none of us are that dumb."

Jennifer Whitbeck, whose 21-year-old husband Michael is a radio technical operator with the 82nd Airborne, described the last week as "a roller-coaster, a major roller-coaster."

Her husband had been in the Middle East since August. Jennifer said she last talked to him Jan. 5, though she has received letters since then. The most difficult part of the last week for her, she said, was not knowing where her husband was located during the ground war.

"I know that they were supposed to be around Kuwait City, but it was so confusing watching the news reports because they had (the 82nd Airborne) all over the place," she said.

"It was nice to hear the cease-fire but I didn't know where he was; I didn't know if he was hurt; I didn't know."

Whitbeck said she has only recently allowed herself to hope for his safe return. "There's a shred of hope now, instead of constant depression," she said.

But the joy of knowing that her husband should soon be home is tempered by the knowledge of the six months that they both have lost during the allied military buildup and the war.

"One whole segment of his life is gone, and I feel the same way," she said. "I'm just kind of numb, floating along . . . taking it one day at a time."

Wednesday's Scud missile attack on a military barracks outside Dharan, Saudi Arabia, which claimed 28 lives, had a Union Lake couple fearing for their own son's safety.

Tom and Lyn St. Aubin said they received a letter from their son Jeremy, 20, late last week. The letter was written the night before the ground war started. As Tom recalled, "Before he went to the front, he spent a lot of time at Al Khobar, where the missile hit. His job was talking across the lines on loudspeakers to get the troops to surrender."

The parents' first thoughts upon receiving the letter were that it could be the last one they ever received from their son, said Lyn. "I thought, 'Was this the last I'd ever hear from him; was he in that building?'"

Even the news that their son was not among those killed left the St. Aubins with mixed feelings. "You feel guilty because someone else's child was killed, and elated that it wasn't your own," said Tom.

Vic Norwood said he had just talked to his 22-year-old son Mark on the phone Monday. "He's hoping he'll be home in April, but they don't know," Norwood said.

Mark is a member of a supply squadron that stayed very busy throughout the six-week allied military campaign, refueling B-52 and other bombers in Jiddah, Saudi Arabia. "My son's unit was pumping 1.5 million gallons of fuel every 12 hours," Norwood said.

"They had been working nine days straight, with one off, for 12-hour shifts," Mark's mother Carol added.

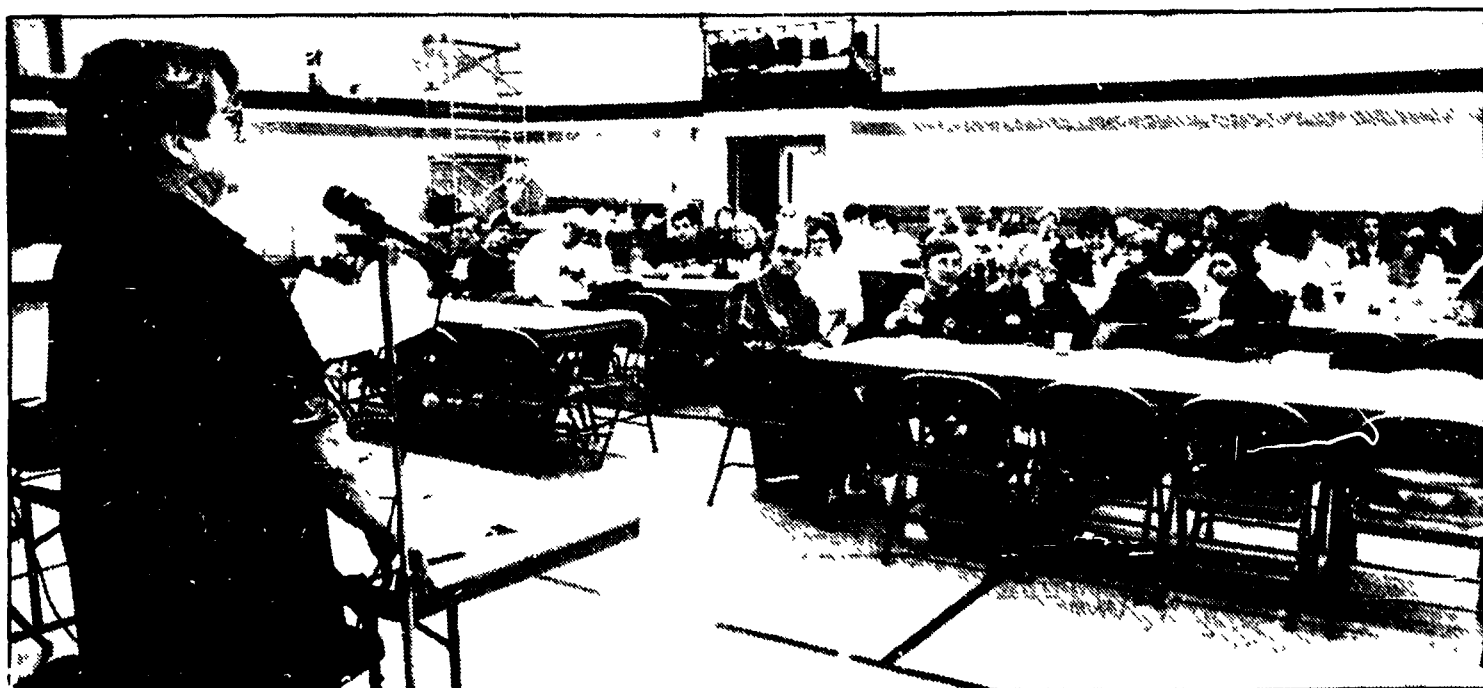

The parents worried less about missile attacks than they did about accidents involving Mark. "He was more or less in a pretty safe area," Norwood said. "He was with the bombers and they give them pretty good protection."

Nevertheless, the virtual end of hostilities had Norwood overjoyed. "I'm a very happy dad today, very happy. I can't express how proud I am of him, and all the guys over there for the job they've done."

Dean McQuinton's son Kent was also in harm's way, as a member of a field artillery unit. "He called Tuesday night," he said. "He was up at the front line when they went into Iraq and Kuwait. What he's doing now is taking new troops up and taking prisoners back . . . I asked him where he was and he said 'I'm up north, way north.'"

Dean's wife, Mary, said the Iraqi way north of war showed no reluctance to turn themselves over to allied forces, and to Kent. "He said the prisoners were just running to the bus to get on."

The West Side Chapter support group held its first meeting Sept. 10, shortly after the U.S. military buildup began in response to Saddam Hussein's Aug. 2 occupation of Kuwait. Hathorn said the group will continue to meet, though perhaps on a less regular basis than the recent once-a-week meetings. The group will meet again next Friday night at 7:30 p.m. at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 201 Elm St., in Northville.

Matching food to wine can be simple

Mary Evelyn, chef at Simi Winery in Healdsburg, Calif., grew up in Grosse Pointe Shores, where her mother still lives.

She has a sister who is professor of mathematics at Michigan State University. Mary's claim to fame is the food and wine program she created at Simi.

Believing that there were consumers who had an interest in both food and wine, she designed a series of affordable luncheons pairing food and wine. To preserve a group experience, encourage dialogue and reduce intimidation, participation is limited to 24 people.

"When people leave, they feel comfortable with wine and food because they realize there is no single correct matchup," Evelyn said. "They understand that personal choices are important. Simi wines are readily available, and people can repeat the experience in their home."

"I deliberately try to focus on food preparations that are traditionally considered difficult pairings with wine. Crudités, a simple appetizer, is not easily matched with a chenin blanc in the off-dry Simi style. An off-dry wine paired with vegetables loses its perceptible acidity and becomes flabby and finishes flat. You might consider using sweeter vegetables, but snow peas are sweet, and they make chenin blanc bitter."

"However, if you prepare a salad dressing or dip with mayonnaise base and tarragon, a sweet herb, you alter the flattening effect of the vegetables and complement the chenin blanc."

Evelyn specializes in simple recipe adaptations to make the preparation complementary with more than one wine. She uses palate trickery in her rice salad when she uses tarragon to pair with chenin blanc, then substitutes ground cumin for the tarragon to pair it with sauvignon blanc, or for a chardonnay matchup, she uses chopped fresh basil.

She finds the Foil Baked Chicken with Herbs recipe from The Silver Palate Cookbook (Rosso and Lukins, McLaughlin Workman Publishing Co., Inc. 1982) a reliable match to Simi-style chenin blanc. To make it complementary to sauvignon blanc, she substitutes thyme for the mint and dill; one red onion, thinly sliced, in place of the lemon, and uses two tablespoons virgin olive oil for half the butter.

The sauvignon blanc variation pairs with cabernet sauvignon when two ripe, peeled, seeded and finely chopped tomatoes are added and the pepper mill is adjusted to very coarse and used generously.

For pasta with olive-accented fresh tomato sauce, Evelyn demonstrates that the type of olive used defines the wine that pairs best. For cabernet sauvignon, she suggests oil-cured olives. Sauvignon blanc is well-served by Kalamata olives and chardonnay does best with generic canned olives.

Evelyn says that with a mushroom risotto, the type of mushroom determines the best wine combination. Shiitake and morels make the dish compatible with cabernet sauvignon, when a beef broth is used instead of chicken to prepare the rice.

Butter in the risotto echoes the butteriness in the Simi Chardonnay. "The delicate, earthy flavors of fresh porcini are well balanced by the delicate, toasty notes in the wine," she said.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

Simi Winery makes some of the best chardonnay year after year. The 1988 Simi Chardonnay ($16.50) is a blend of wines from Napa, Sonoma and Mendocino Counties. Aromas of buttered popcorn and toasty oak introduce a wine with rich fruit flavors. It is styled like a white Burgundy at half the price. Simi's 1988 Sauvignon Blanc ($9.30) is also a winner. Generous flavors highlight tropical fruit that is clean and crisp with a long aftertaste.

Waffle irons come in a variety of shapes. What you put on the waffles they make is limited only by your imagination.

Pumping (Waffle) Iron

Waffles stack up as breakfast or brunch

Crisp and crunchy on the outside, tender and delicate on the inside.

Drizzled with real maple syrup or slathered with butter. Studded with blueberries or drenched in strawberries. There's little doubt that waffles will always have the "preferred favorite" status among breakfast and brunch items.

Unfortunately for the history buff, there is little information regarding the how and when of a waffle's birth.

Waffles, like their cousins the pancakes, consist of a thin mixture called a pour batter—the amount of liquid and dry ingredients are about equal and are wet enough to be pourable.

Most pour batters are classified as quick breads because they use a leavening other than yeast. However, we have included a recipe for waffle batter using yeast that makes for an outstanding addition.

Basic ingredients for making homemade waffles include flour, baking powder or soda, salt and occasionally sugar, combined with liquids consisting of milk, oil or melted butter and eggs.

Frequently, the same batter can be used for either pancakes or waffles, the difference being in how the batter is cooked.

Some prefer waffles over pancakes because the latter, which are soft and pliable, can get far too soggy when bombarded with accompaniments.

Waffles are like ridged potato chips. They coddle the syrup into tiny pools.

Cooked properly, they let forth a distinctive crunch when cut with the side of a fork and chewed.

Some fascinating utensils have been designed to produce classic waffles. The iron in which waffles are baked—giving them a distinctive gridlike pattern—may be round, square or rectangular.

The most popular waffle irons are electric, while others are designed for use on the stovetop.

Modern technology has developed non-stick coatings that are far superior to their earlier counterparts, when you needed almost a quarter cup of oil and a paintbrush to make sure the waffles would not stick and create havoc.

The more popular non-stick models on the market require no advanced seasoning.

A simple spray of a non-stick coating material such as Pam or Mazola No-Stick is all that is required to have them virtually popping out of the waffler by themselves.

There are still traditional wafflers that do not use a non-stick surface, for the hard-core waffle connoisseur.

These should be seasoned prior to use, with a ritual of grease, heat and cool, repeated a minimum of three times before using.

Most prefer the classic Belgian waffle. These were the hit of the 1964 World's Fair in New York, and they are thick, with

BUTTERMILK WAFFLES

- 1 ¾ cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 cups buttermilk
- ½ cup butter, melted
- 2 eggs, separated

Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and sugar. In another bowl, combine buttermilk, butter and egg yolks. Add this to dry ingredients and stir with a whisk until smooth and creamy. Beat egg whites to soft peaks and fold ½ of beaten whites into the batter to lighten. Gently fold in remaining whites. Pour enough batter onto a preheated and coated waffler to spread into corners. Cook for exactly 2 minutes after moment when steam stops escaping from sides of waffler. Serve immediately with warmed butter and syrup.

RAISED WAFFLES

- ¾ cup warm water
- 1 package dry yeast
- 2 cups warmed milk
- ¼ cup (1 stick) butter, melted
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 ½ cups sugar
- 2 cups flour
- 2 eggs
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda

Use a large mixing bowl, as batter will double its original volume. Place water in mixing bowl and sprinkle in the yeast. Let stand to dissolve for 5 minutes. Add the milk, butter, salt, sugar and the flour to the yeast mixture and beat until smooth and well blended. Cover the bowl with plastic wrap and allow to stand overnight at room temperature. Just before cooking the waffles, beat in the eggs and baking soda and stir until well blended. The batter will be thin. Cook waffles according to directions.

KITCHEN GLAMOR WAFFLE BATTER

Looking for a recipe the pros use? This is so easy and, like the pros said it would be, tastes great.

- 4 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3 tablespoons butter, melted
- 1 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk

Combine egg yolks with vanilla and butter. Mix well. Combine flour and salt and stir in egg yolk mixture. Add milk and mix well. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Fold ¼ beaten whites into batter to lighten, then gently fold in remaining beaten whites. Cook waffles according to directions.

Landing a good, fresh catch is half the fight

Last week we reviewed the benefits of eating fish. Very basically it boils down to fat—or lack of it.

There is a basic lack of knowledge among most people when it comes to the purchasing and storage of fish. The relevance of a fresh product cannot be over-emphasized. Proper storage is equally significant both at home and during the packing and shipping of the fish. Here are some tips to help you choose a high-quality product.

The most important aspect of cooking with fish begins at the fish counter. There are several tests that should be applied when possible.

Smell the fish. Under no circumstances should any fish have a strong pungent odor. It should have a clean, "sea" aroma. Anything else indicates improper handling, storage or aging. If the fish has anything but a wholesome odor don't buy it.

Next, if possible feel the skin. Many species come skinned so this may not be applicable. Scales should be firmly attached and the skin slick and moist. The fins and tail should be moist, flexible and full and not appear ragged or dry.

When pressing the flesh it should be firm and elastic; if a visible finger imprint is left this is an indication that the fish is not fresh. Eyes should be clear and unclouded. As the fish ages the eyes dull and begin to sink into the head. An exception to this rule is the walleye which will have milky eyes. The gills of fresh fish will have a nice red to maroon color. Any evidence of graying, browning or dryness is a sign of aging.

Look at the fish as a whole. There should be no tears in the flesh. Live shellfish such as crabs and lobsters should move about and be fairly active. Clams, mussels and oysters are freshest when the shells are tightly closed. Tap shells that are open and discard those that do not close immediately.

Following these rules, when possible, will ensure a fresh fish.

Storage of the fish you just purchased is equally significant. Buy only for immediate use—within a day or two. Place the whole fish on a bed of ice in a perforated container so that the melted ice can drain into another container. Fish should never be left sitting in water or its own juices.

Fresh fillets and scallops out of the shell should be stored in plastic in ice, remembering to use as quickly as possible. They should never be in direct contact with ice because, as the ice melts, it will wash away flavor and also change the texture of the flesh.

Clams, mussels and oysters should not be stored on ice and weighted to prevent the shells from opening up. Store mussels in the bag they come in until ready to use. Live shellfish should be stored in damp paper until ready to use. The direct contact of fresh water will kill them so do not store in tap water.

Frozen fish should be purchased only if frozen solid. Store in the freezer until ready for use, and then defrost in the refrigerator—not at room temperature. Any white frost around the edges indicates freezer burn and is the result of improper packing or storage.

As important as the proper purchasing and storage procedures is finding a fish monger that you are relaxed with and who answers your questions. You should feel comfortable that the store follows the above procedures too. The person working the fish counter should be knowledgeable about the varieties of fish they offer, cooking methods and be able to explain their intensity in flavor.

The more you work with fish and seafood the more you will want to experiment. The recipe I offer is one I used in a recent cooking class and is adapted from Jacques Pepin's The Art of Cooking. It offers several types of fish and cooking methods. The end result is magnificent.

SEAFOOD BREAD

- 1 large, round country bread (approx. 2 pounds, 11" diameter), heavy and thick crusted

Herb Butter

- 1 cup parsley (or mix parsley, basil, chervil, chives)
- 3 shallots, peeled
- 5 cloves garlic, peeled
- 1 ½ sticks butter or margarine—softened
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon anise liqueur
- 2 tablespoons dry white wine

Process herbs, shallots and cloves. Process until mixed.

- 3 cups bread crumbs
- ¼ pound shrimp, shelled raw
- ¼ pound scallops
- ¼ pound salmon
- ¼ pound wild or domestic

- mushrooms
- salt and pepper to taste
- ¼ cup dry white wine (to moisten bread)

Hollow out inside of bread, being careful not to tear. Use ¼ of insides to make crumbs. Cut shrimp, scallops and salmon into 17 pieces. Chop mushrooms coarse. Spread a layer of butter on bottom and sides of inside of bread. Sprinkle a layer of mushrooms and half the seafood. Salt and pepper to taste. Spread another layer of butter, a layer of bread crumbs, and rest of mushrooms and seafood. Spread remaining butter on top and cover with a good layer of bread crumbs. Moisten with wine. Bake at 400 degrees for approximately one hour. Let "rest" for 10 minutes. Serve cut into chunks.

Makes 6-8 servings.

Friendly folks favor waffles

deeper pockets than the traditional waffle.

Classified as more of a dessert waffle, they are usually piled high with strawberries and whipped cream but are equally as delicious with ice cream and fruit.

Since we, in the United States, have our classic waffles and the Belgians have their own version, it didn't take the Scandinavians long to develop their own type of waffle using five interlocking hearts forming one waffle.

Even the Italians have created their own version, dubbed a pizzelle, that produces a flatter, more cookie-ish version of the regular waffle.

Here are a few tips for making waffles.

● The pan or appliance should be preheated to the proper temperature before adding the batter.

Electric waffles will signal proper temperatures with a light. Non-electric waffles should be heated so that a droplet of water will jump when it hits the surface of the hot pan.

● Cook waffles until steam is no longer given off from the sides of the waffle. Waffles are best when served immediately after cooking, for best texture and flavor.

● For optimum results, plates should be warmed as well as any syrup, butter or sauce accompaniment. Never stack waffles or they will lose their crispness and become soggy.

● Extra waffles can be frozen, well wrapped, and then toasted, but they will never have the same crispy flavor as when freshly made.

● For best results when using a traditional soda-leavened batter, allow the batter to sit for up to one hour after mixing.

This technique relaxes the batter and makes it airier, resulting in a more tender product. Butter-milk, buckwheat and sourdough waffles will develop greater character if allowed to stand for the same amount of time.

From her new book All New Hints from Heloise (Putnam Publishing, 1989, $9.95), this household authority says that waffle iron grids can accumulate burned-on grease.

To clean metal grids, place an ammonia-soaked paper towel or napkin between them, and leave it overnight. Then brush with steel wool.

If you have non-stick grids, follow manufacturer's instructions so the surface will not be damaged.

The author goes on to say that new or recently cleaned grids can stick and for best results should be greased well with an unsalted fat and then preheated thoroughly before using.

If you are considering buying a waffle (what a great Father's Day gift idea), non-electric varieties start at around $12-$15.

Electric models start at $39.95 and creep upward, with the priciest having interchangeable grids and cooking surfaces for all types of waffles, pancakes and grilled sandwiches.

A personal recommendation calls for considering a Black Angus waffle. I received one for a wedding present 18 years ago and it's still going strong.

Best to begin with a basic waffle and then, as the need arises, consider buying a Belgian waffle and/or pizzelle.

CLASSIC ITALIAN PIZZELLES

2 cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 1/2 teaspoons ground nutmeg

1/2 cup butter, melted
2 teaspoons vanilla

FISH STEAMED IN MICROWAVE

This classic fish is traditionally served on special occasions. Cooking in a microwave resembles steaming, retaining the moisture.

- 2 scallions with green tops
- 6 slices of fresh unpeeled gingerroot, each the size of a 50-cent piece
- 1 whole fresh pickerel, pike, or whitefish (about 1 1/2 pounds), scaled and cleaned, but with head, eyes, tail and fins intact
- 1/2 cup corn, vegetable or safflower oil
- 1/2 cup soy sauce

Wash scallions, discard root, fine silver and set aside. Fine silver ginger and set aside. Dry fish with paper towels. On cutting board, place fish on its side and, with a sharp knife, score skin by with diagonal cuts about 1 inch apart and 1/2 an inch deep, entire length of fish, from head to tail. This will ensure even cooking. Turn fish over and score other side in the same manner.

Place fish on its side on oval heat-proof serving platter.

Cover with a large sheet of plastic wrap. Cook on high for 6 minutes. At the end of 6 minutes, check if done by inserting a toothpick or thin bamboo skewer into middle part of fish. If fish is done, the toothpick will come out clean and the flesh will feel tender to the touch. Discard cooking juice. Spread silvered scallions and gingerroot evenly over fish.

In dry and clean saucepot, heat 1/2 cup of oil at 375 degrees until almost smoking. Pour hot oil over scallions and gingerroot in a thin stream. Add soy sauce.

Serve immediately. The fish can easily be flaked off with a fork and knife or with chopsticks. Serve with slivers of scallions and gingerroot with some gravy. This dish goes well with hot rice and stir-fried vegetables. Note: only the freshest fish can be prepared in this way. Yield: 4 servings.

SPICY CHICKEN WITH CASHEWS

This spicy hot dish will be welcomed by diners who like spicy food. The hot sauce with gingerroot, scallions and garlic is adapted from the traditional "Yu Hsiang" method of cooking, famous in Sichuan. "Yu Hsiang," translated literally, means "fish fragrant." This dish, however, is by no means fishy. On the contrary, it is fragrantly spicy and a good "rice-sender," that is, diners gobble down many bowls of rice.

1/2 pound fresh chicken nuggets or 2 boneless chicken breasts (about 1/2

- 1 large green or red pepper
- 3 tablespoons corn, vegetable or safflower oil
- 1 cup dry roasted whole cashews

Marinade

- 1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 1/2 tablespoons sesame seed oil
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon water
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry, gin or vodka, optional

Yu Hsiang Seasoning

- 1 to 2 tablespoons Hunan chili paste or any brand of Chinese chili paste: fiery hot (2 to 3 tablespoons); medium hot (1 to 1 1/2 tablespoons); or mild (1/2 tablespoon). Different brands vary in intensity of hotness.
- 2 tablespoons diced fresh scallions or 1 scallion with green top, diced
- 1 teaspoon minced fresh garlic or 2 large cloves garlic, finely minced
- 1 teaspoon grated fresh gingerroot

Before you start: Mix marinade ingredients together in medium bowl. Mix Yu Hsiang seasoning ingredients together in cup or small bowl.

Cut chicken into 1/2-inch cubes. Add to marinade ingredients in bowl and toss to coat well. Set aside. Marinating longer will enhance the flavor of the chicken.

Wash and cut pepper in half, lengthwise. Scoop out seeds and cut off caps. Cut into 1/2-inch slices, then into 1/4-inch pieces. Set aside.

Heat skillet or wok on high for 30 seconds. Swirl oil in hot skillet for 30 seconds. Add Yu Hsiang, seasoning. Stir-toss for 15 seconds. Add chicken and marinade. Stir-toss for 2 to 3 minutes until chicken loses its pink color.

Add cashews and green pepper. Blend and cook for 1 minute. Transfer to serving platter.

This dish goes well with rice or noodles, together with a light soup and vegetable.

Variation: Substitute raw shelled peanuts for the cashews.

Yield: 4 servings.

Only way to learn cheese is to eat it

"The only way to learn about cheese is to eat it," said Ernest Oldmeadow, an English gourmet and authority on cheese.

Tasting and re-tasting fine cheeses is an excellent and agreeable way for anyone who enjoys good food to acquire an education in cheese. Whet your appetite with the many flavors and textures of the world of cheese available.

Looking for something new and fun to do at your next party? Try a cheese-tasting party with friends.

Guests will enjoy sampling a variety of fabulous cheeses attractively arranged on silver trays, serving platters, marble slabs, wooden boards or a leaf-and-flower-lined wicker place mat. Purchase several different kinds of cheese, make up an evaluation sheet for each person, and let them decide which is their favorite.

Look for characteristics like texture, smell, taste and color when evaluating them. Add a few crackers and fruit and perhaps some wine and you have the makings of a party.

Variety and versatility are perfect words to describe cheese. Variety of shapes, textures and flavors in cheeses that range from very mild to very sharp offer something for everybody. When serving, use a wedge, a wheel or a brick of various colors of cheese.

Purchase two to four ounces of cheese per person if other food is being served. If it's a wine and cheese party or cocktail party, allow slightly more.

Cheese tastes best at room temperature. Let the hard varieties set out about an hour before serving. Brie and other soft types need only about 30 minutes to warm up.

When placing on the serving dish, make sure they are not overcrowded and avoid placing strong, pungent cheeses next to the delicately flavored ones.

Specialty cheeses need to be refrigerated soon after purchase. They should keep for several weeks, unopened, in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Most cheeses can be frozen for several months but, some of the hard cheeses tend to crumble after thawing.

Brick, cheddar, Edam, Gouda,

Muenster, Port du Salut, Swiss, provolone, mozzarella and Camembert all freeze satisfactorily. Plan to use these in cooking.

To freeze, cut or grate into small portions that you can use quickly and wrap well. Defrost slowly in the refrigerator — rapid thawing makes cheese crumble even more.

Natural cheeses contain no preservatives and can develop surface mold. If this happens, cut the entire mold off to discard. The remaining cheese will still retain its full flavor and texture and be safe to eat.

Some natural cheeses are ripened (aged) to develop their characteristic flavor and textures. Mold-ripened cheeses, such as Bleu and Roquefort, are different. The mold is an important part of the cheese and is eaten.

After serving cheese, always re-wrap tightly to prevent it from drying out or picking up odors from the refrigerator. Double-wrap strong pungent cheeses. If the cheese hardens due to exposure to air, grate or chop to use in a sauce, soup or salad.

A pasteurized process cheese is a blend of fresh and aged natural cheese and is convenient to use in cooking. American cheese is a good example. Pasteurized process cheese food is also a blend of cheeses. It does not add as much cheese flavor to other foods as natural or process cheese.

Pasteurized process cheese spread has even more moisture and less milk fat than process cheese food. A stabilizer is used to prevent separation to make it soft and spreadable at room temperature.

Serve several types of unseasoned crackers with the cheese. Avoid strongly flavored sour cream or onion type crackers. In tasting, you'll taste the cracker and not the cheese.

Flatbreads, water crackers or English biscuits complement cheese very nicely. Crusty breads also add interest. Besides the crackers, cheese goes beautifully with fruits. Grapes, strawberries, sliced apples, melon, pear and figs add color and are a refreshing contrast of taste.

Big competition for Big East title

By Steve Paschal

College basketball's premier conference will be on display March 9 and 10, when CBS Sports covers both Big East Tournament semifinal games.

Five Big East teams, Georgetown, Pittsburgh, Connecticut, Syracuse and St. John's, have been ranked in the nation's top 20 at some point in the season and have a legitimate shot at the automatic berth in the NCAA Tournament.

John Thompson's Georgetown Hoyas, led by Alonzo Mourning and Dikembe Mutombo, have the defensive and offensive balance to make a run at the national championship for the first time since the Patrick Ewing days of the mid-1980s. The Hoyas, 1984 national champions, appear to have a lock on one of the 64 berths come NCAA Tournament time.

But the Hoyas are far from a shoo-in when it comes to the conference tournament. Pittsburgh should be strong again after an off year in 1989, thanks to the return of playmaker Sean Karyn Parsons plays celebrity seeker Hilary Banks on NBC's The Fresh Prince of Bel Air, Mondays.

Miller, who missed last season with an ankle injury. Syracuse, led by sophomore sensation Billy Owens, tied with Connecticut for the conference championship last year, and both schools should be in the running for an NCAA invitation again. St. John's is short on bench strength, but the Redmen have a strong starting five who could lead them to either the NCAA or NIT Tournament.

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN
Executive Director,
SW Oakland Cable Comm.

What an amazing era we live in! We must defend our arts and culture! Just exactly what would we leave our future generations? Are we so advanced that we would forsake our musical and artistic heritage? Do we and do our children have sufficient knowledge and appetite for such richness? I think not. I think that the opposite is true. We have forsaken such value for the arena of competition. Winning and losing predominate our thoughts. Families gather together around a sporting event instead of gathering to savor a musical performance or browsing through the galleries of art museums.

Maybe television has been misunderstood, action is thought to grab the moneymaking audiences.

I challenge everyone, myself included to reflect upon our weekly schedule of activities and see where we incorporate the arts. Television has found the arts a very difficult programming option to sell. Frankly, copyright rules stifle much televising of the arts. This is the bottom line to all patrons. We must look at the total picture as economic times play havoc on our opportunities to enrich our lives. CNN has captured global series and reported them in laymen's terms. Complicated, yes, competitive, yes and yet diplomatically sensitive and difficult programming. How difficult then should it be to negotiate between the Copyright organizations and musicians unions to enable us to realistically bring global arts and culture into our livingrooms? At some point, those concerned with royalties must decide rather or not to capitalize on the opportunities offered by television, especially Community Television.

There is no doubt that budgets must be balanced. And yet, we must be receptive to the total picture. If less money is available for the arts then we must encourage full use of the media options available.

Cable Franchises have brought together many communities as never before. There are many multijurisdictional contracts which are allowing cable companies to do business in different areas. City Fathers and Township Commissioners in communities throughout the United States are cooperatively pursuing answers to tight budgets and ever increasing demand for fine community services. Communication is the most valuable tool to accomplishing security in a town environment, no matter how small.

Perhaps the Arts may also be forerunners of such cooperative spirit. Thus let me introduce the 'Plymouth Symphony'. Don't let the name deceive you. The Plymouth Symphony enriches Wayne, Oakland and Washtenaw Communities and they have embraced Community television.

They have participated in creating public service announcements for Community Television Viewers.

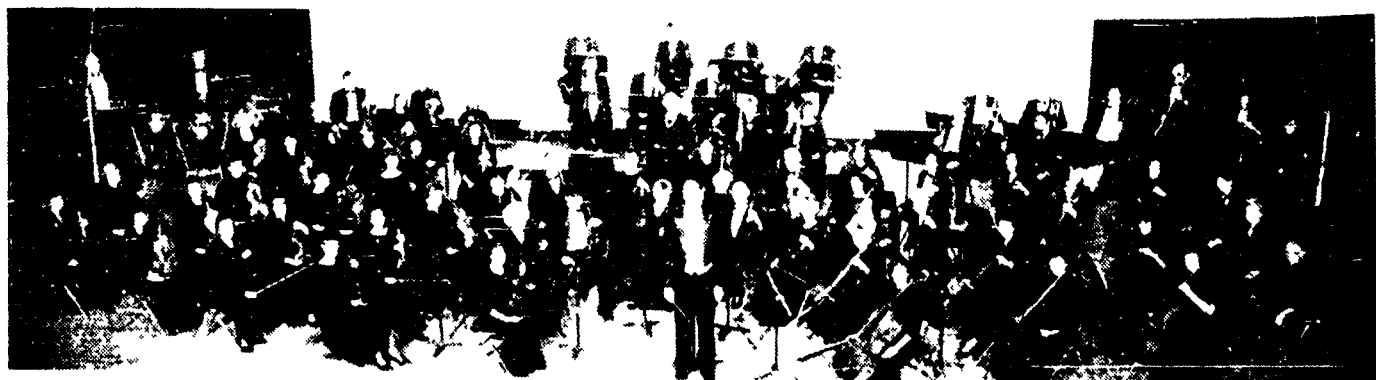

Members of the Plymouth Symphony number about 100 strong. These musicians travel from as far as Ann Arbor, Brighton, Howell, Ypsilanti, Grand Blanc, Warren, Union Lake and Bloomfield Hills. There is also a substantial number from Canton, Plymouth, Northville, Novi, Farmington and Farmington Hills. Do you recognize any of your friends and neighbors? Mary Ann Marks, Ann Walaskey, Michael Rimbell, Debra Butler, Joyce Butler, Carol Vickers, Matthew Butler, Walter Johnson, Kiyo Morse, John Pollock, Janice Standish, Liz Moehle Johnson, Jan Riley, Betsy Balsakis, Edith Schultze, Joan Seay, Robert Baron, Richard Cranston, Karen Attaway, Gail Munson, Christina Liu, Ann Wagner, Michelle Walquist, Melissa Zagoriski and Wendy Stuart.

Plymouth is the smallest city in the state to maintain a civic orchestra. (There are more than 300 civic orchestras in Michigan and nearly 1200 in the United States.) Founded in 1945 they gave their first public concert in 1947.

Symphony members include the Symphony League which is a volunteer organization which raises money in order to promote this rich musical heritage.

Burt Reynolds to host People's Choice Awards

Actor vies for his ninth trophy as well

By Amy Schmidt

Burt Reynolds will host a live TV special for the first time ever. The quick-witted actor will emcee "The 17th Annual People's Choice Awards," Monday, March 11 on CBS.

So you see we have reason to cross into one another's communities for indeed such cultural enrichment is ours. We do have the opportunity to enjoy and support the Arts by attending such events and have a delightful evening. We also look forward to all of us putting our thinking caps on and gather our resources that we each have to be sure that the arts everywhere in our state remain intact and healthy! Maybe we will have the special treat of seeing more of the music on Community Television.

STAR NOTES

Mykel T. Williamson proud of heritage

By Anne Wheeler

Mykel T. Williamson, who stars as persistent reporter Deacon Bridges on NBC's Midnight Caller, is equally persistent about his real-life career.

With six regular series roles and an equal number of feature films behind him, Williamson has proven his ability for acting. And he has paired that with a prowess for dancing, singing and directing, as well.

At age 13, Williamson became the youngest dancer with the Lockers dance troupe, graduating to a key dancer on Soul Train. His aptitude for music did not stop there, however. He directed Reel Image's 1988 hit video, The Hypnotizer, and did background vocals for Dan Hartman's "I Can Dream About You." As manager of the rap group Movement Ex, he is preparing for the recording of the first of seven albums for Columbia.

Born in St. Louis, Mykel T. is proud of his heritage as both a Black American and a Native American. He was born Mykelti, a Blackfoot tribe phrase meaning "spirit" or "silent friend." One of his desires, he said, is to reenact the life of Stepin Fetchit, the 1930's black comedian whose exaggerated portrayal of a black man made a mockery of racial stereotypes.

"It was only with the pioneering sacrifice of some people like Fetchit, who were and are regarded as Uncle Toms, that the gates were opened to minority talents in all capacities," Williamson said.

A four-hour miniseries, Switched at Birth, based on the true story of two infant girls allegedly swapped shortly after birth in a Florida hospital nursery and raised for 10 years by the wrong biological parents, will be broadcast on NBC-TV in the spring of 1991. Fred the cockatoo, star of television's Baretta, has been performing in shows at the San Diego Wild Animal Park for the last six years. The 30-year-old cockatoo, worth $15,000, was thought kidnapped when he recently disappeared from the park. He was spotted two days later waddling in the middle of a road less than a mile from the park, by two men who had just heard a radio report of his theft while driving to work. As they approached Fred, he jumped on one man's arm as though looking for a perch.

Preemptions still sometimes pointless

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I really enjoy your column, but I am sorry to have to disagree with you on the subject of preemption. General Hospital, even before the war, has always been preempted by some foolishness that could have waited until the regular newscast. That portion was never seen by the faithful viewers. (Only a full hour's preemption might have been seen.)

I support the United States government in any and all it decides to do. My complaint is with the broadcast channels. Why can't preemption be on a rotating basis, so that we can have a break from these tragic events? A truthful and informative interruption could be tolerated. —R.J. Minor, Marinette, Wis.

Dear Candace: I am very disappointed that Generations is off the air. I am one of the viewers who has watched from the beginning. The one complaint I had (while it doesn't matter now) was the selection of Dorothy Lyman as Rebecca. Patricia Crowley was much better and was without the sneering looks of contempt that the new Rebecca had. She used to call her daughter Sam; the new one called her Stephanie, complete with "I am superior" tone.

On Santa Barbara, I agree with one reader regarding the Keith Timmons storyline. He is a loudmouth and allows his fiancée to be privy to the business of the D.A.'s office. What is with the writers?

Also, Gordon Thompson as Mason just doesn't cut it (sorry fellow Canadian).

On Days of Our Lives, when is the doctor on Kim's maternity case going to fess up and tell Shane that the baby is his? Many thanks for a good column. —Marion Sperrino, Geraldton, Ontario, Canada

Dear Marion: You can be sure there are some big surprises in store for Shane and Kimberly in the very near future. Also, I must agree with your comments about Thompson. He is a good actor, but he just doesn't have the chemistry for the character of Mason.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

Kate Jackson had a role in original 'Dark Shadows'

By Polly Vonetes

Q: Who were the first actors to play in Dark Shadows from the '60s?
—Margarita Corraly, Big Spring, Texas

A: Principal players of the original Dark Shadows included Joan Bennett, Alexandra Moltke, Jonathan Frid, Nancy Barrett, Louis Edmonds, Grayson Hall, Lara Parker, David Selby, Kate Jackson, David Henesy, Roger Davis, Anthony Georg, Jerry Lacy, Marie Wallace, Joel Crothers and the list goes on and on. You may remember that many of the performers played two roles.

Q: I have wanted to write you for some time. I would like to know if Jane Pauley is Barbara Walters' sister?
—Ida Franks, Merryville, La.

A: Jane Pauley and Barbara Walters are definitely not sisters. The only thing they have in common is the Today show. Jane replaced Barbara as co-host in 1976, when Walters left NBC to join the news team at ABC.

Q: What can you tell me about John Ritter? I am a big fan of his. Please answer. —L.N., Vivian, La.

A: John Ritter was born in Burbank, Calif., Sept. 17, 1948, the son of the late country and western singer Tex Ritter. After attending the University of Southern California for two years as a psychology major, he participated in the USC-USA Edinburgh Festival and appeared in plays in Scotland, England, Holland and Germany. This prompted him to change his major to theater arts. Following his graduation from USC, Ritter performed in summer stock for the next four years. He made his television debut in an episode of the Dan August series and had a recurring role as the Rev. Fordwick in The Waltons. He was soon tapped to star in his own long-running series Three's Company. Ritter and his wife actress Nancy Morgan, are actively involved with the United Cerebral Palsy Association and have co-hosted that organization's telethons for the past several years. The Ritters make their home in Los Angeles with their children Jason, Carly and Tyler.

Q: Please give me all the information you have on Sam Elliott. He is my favorite actor and I haven't seen him in many movies lately. —Janie Koenig, Conroe, Texas

A: Sam Elliott was born in Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 9, 1944, and although he is a native Californian, he comes from a long line of Texans. His grandfather was a Texas Ranger, and his great-grandfather died at the battle of the Alamo. His family moved to Oregon while he was in high school. Elliott decided to try Hollywood after two years at the University of Oregon. He got his first big break as a semi-regular on Mission: Impossible in 1971. But it was his 1974 film Lifeguard that really launched his career and brought him to national attention. Katharine Ross, who has often appeared as his co-star, became his wife in May 1984. They reside with their daughter, Cleo, in a house near the ocean in Malibu.
