Court to ponder group home relocation issue

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

It's Northville Township versus the state of Michigan.

Township attorneys filed suit this week in Wayne County Circuit Court in an attempt to block relocation of a state-licensed adult foster care group home here.

The township will attempt to convince the court that excessive concentration of state facilities throughout the township — and especially within the Highland Lakes subdivision — is legitimate reason for the state to reject a proposed move from 42777 Eight Mile Road to 19749 Scenic Harbour.

The township asserts that a daycare center located at 41316 Windsor Court falls under the same state guidelines as rules governing group homes. According to state law, similar facilities cannot be located within a 1,500-foot radius.

A court decision lumping group homes and day-care centers under the same state umbrella will automatically cancel the Scenic Harbour application, township attorney Ernest Essad said Monday.

"If (the court) defines the day care as a residential facility, the (proposed group home) is within 1,500 feet, (and) it's gone," Essad said.

If day-care facilities and group homes are not viewed as similar uses, the township will continue to contest the application on the grounds of excessive concentration, Essad said. The contention will be based on a township residents-toinstitutionalized residents ratio, he Essad said recent U.S. Census figures indicate residents of state-run facilities make up 10 percent of Northville Township's population.

The township has a good case either way, he said.

We've got a hell of a good argument," he said.

The township board on April 4 voted to respond negatively to a state group home License Application No-tice. Essad said the township sent the state Department of Social Services a certified letter outlining the negative response April 5.

State officials on Tuesday said they had received a certified letter from the township, but had not reviewed the response.

"I haven't seen the complaint; I can't comment on it," said Jim Quigley, director of the DSS Adult Foster Care Licensing Division in Lansing. Quigley was not aware that North-ville Township planned legal action to halt the proposed relocation, but said complaints would be researched before a decision was made on the site.

"If there was a complaint, we would investigate prior to issuing a license," he said. "No decision will be made until all complaints have been investigated.

'Senior' prom date

Students at Cooke Middle School recently hosted a "prom" for area seniors, and reports from attendees say that everyone had a terrific time. The event brought 104 seniors to the school, where they tripped the light fantastic with about 50 kids from all three grades. Above, Florence Orr and Tim Champagne take a few twirls around the floor. A second annual event is planned for next year.

Two candidates in school race

By SUZANNE HOLLYER Staff Writer

Barring a write-in campaign, incumbent Robert McMahon and Strategic Plan Committee member Richard Brown will be the only candidates running for election to the Northville school board.

The deadline for filing a request to appear on the ballot was Monday.

Superintendent George Beil he received a call to notify him that a third petition would be submitted shortly before the 4 p.m. filing deadline. But no one showed up, and at shortly after 4 p.m. the petitions were sent to the county clerk.

secretary. Brown is a member of the Strategy One strategic plan committee that works on school finance McMahon and Brown will be the only names appearing on the ballot on June 10. But they will share the ballot with a millage vote.

All of the district's 27.78 mills are expiring. The district currently levies 22.63 of the 27.78 mills for operating purposes.

Citizens for a Better Northville has suggested that Bell allow voters to approve or reject specific lineitem expenditures rather than being forced to approve or reject the entire millage proposal. But Bell rejected the plan (see related story). Citizens for a Beilier McMahon is the current board Northville may launch a petition drive to get the issue on the June 10

Selection closed, interviews open

By STEVE KELLMAN Staff Writer

The city attorney has determined that the Northville City Council has the right to narrow down the field of manager candidates in closed

"It is my understanding that the City Council intends to conduct the interviews and the final selection process in public meetings as is required by the Open Meetings Act," James Kohl wrote in a March 27 letter to outgoing Manager Steven

"It is our opinion that prior to this selection process, it is appropriate under both the Open Meetings Act and the Freedom of Information Act to select out those applicants which will be considered for interviews in a closed session," Kohl wrote, "thus maintaining the confidentiality requested by each of the applicants."

Walters briefed the council on the attorney's opinion at its April 1 meeting.

"It's clearly within the city council's authority to meet as a group to discuss what candidates to pull out for final consideration," Walters said.

The receipt of the application is a confidential process," Walters said at an earlier council meeting. "Some of the applicants will ask to have their applications kept confidential, at least until the interview stage.

Mayor Chris Johnson requested an opinion from the city attorney anyway, to assure that the council had the right to keep applicants' names confidential while the council decides which ones

"The interviews themselves, of course, are going to be public," he said.

The council expects to receive between 80-100 applications, and wants to whittle the number of applicants down to less than 10 interviews. Applications are due by April 30, and the council expects to complete interviews by May.

The new manager will replace Walters, who ac cepted an offer in March to become Plymouth's new city manager. Walters was selected as top candidate for the Plymouth post after current manager Gordon Jaeger's surprise decision to resign earlier this year.

Walters will take the position June 1. He'll earn a base salary of $66,000 and a $4,800 car allowance, 9 percent more than his current Northville salary. He has said salary was not the main factor in his decision to leave.

Walters, 46, has served as Northville City Manager since 1973 after a three-year stint as manager of St. Ignace, and three years as Plymouth's assistant city manager. The new Northville m negotiable salary between $50,000-60,000. The city is seeking a candidate with a master's degree in public administration, at least five years of general management experience, "and proven leadership in financial management, labor relations, planning and community development." Walters said April 1 that the city manager search is already off to a quick start. We've already got one applicant," he said. Johnson said, "We want somebody on board by

Blaze damages home

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

Cleaning rags stored inside a plastic bag may have spawned a fire that caused extensive damage to a Northville Township residence early Monday morning.

Township Fire Chief Rick Rosselle said investigators are looking closely" at spontaneous combustion as the root of a fire that destroyed the attached garage and roof of a 41999 Baintree Circle residence owned by Tom and Barb Kochanek.

The Kochaneks were home when the fire broke out, but escaped

Damage to the home was estimated at $50,000. A pickup and a car parked in the garage were also destroyed. Vehicle damage was estimated at $25,000.

Township firefighters were notifled of a garage fire at approximately 2:30 a.m., Rosselle said. Rosselle was the first firelighter on the scene and said smoke and flames "were really rolling. Firefighters controlled the blaze within 15 minutes," Rosselle said. earlier Sunday.

This Baintree residence was extensively damaged by fire

Most of the 18 firefighters who responded worked for another three hours "chasing hot spots," he said.

The fire probably ignited 20-30 minutes before firefighters were on the scene, he said.

The fire started in the southeast corner of the garage, Rosselle said. He said the homeowner worked with and spilled some chemical materials

The homeowner spilled the materials and wiped them up with a rag and put the rag in a plastic bag," Rosselle said.

"I don't see any evidence of an intentional fire," he said.

The Kochaneks lived in the home since 1974, Barb Kochanek said Monday, as she retrieved possessions from the damaged one-story structure. "I heard something outside and saw smoke coming from the garage," she recalled. "I don't know what time it was: sometime after 2 a.m..'

Tom Kochanek did not know if the house was a total loss, but did not sound optimistic.

The whole roof is coming off," he said. The ceiling caved in . . .

Vandals cause extensive damage to township home

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

Vandals last week kicked out glass doors, smashed holes through dry walls, ripped apart ceiling fans and caused an estimated $50,000 damage to a vacant home on west Seven Mile Road in Northville Township.

Township police have no suspects in the malicious destruction of the two-story brick home, which is located near the township's Seven Mile

Police last Friday evening discovered the damage and searched for clues by sifting through beer bottles, junk food, coins, cigarette butts and household debris that littered the crime scene.

Freydl garners Northville educator honors

By SUZANNE HOLLYER

Jokes are made about eighthgrade students at teachers' conferences, and studies are published calling the eighth grade a "flat-braingrowth year," but that does not bother Mary Freydl.

Freydl, the Northville School District teacher of the year, loves her eighth-grade students and refuses to believe they cannot learn.

"I persist in the belief that they can learn that year," Freydl said. "The hormones are racing around; they're just vicitims of their bodies." But Freydl, a Cooke Middle School teacher and 20-year teaching veteran, said she realizes the job was not meant for just anyone. "It would be dreadful to be an

This honor was not not me.

Fredyl's resume dates back to 1964 when she returned to college the year Schoolcraft opened.

When heryoungest son began kindergarten in 1967 she transferred to the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, where she received a bachelor's degree in education with a double major in English and speech. She graduated in 1969 with a 3.9 grade point average and memberships in the scholarship societies of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi and Pi Lambda Theta.

She was one of the first women to receive a Continuing Education for Women scholarship from the university.

By 1971 she had a master's degree in speech with a major in public

Freydl's teaching career began as a master's student when she was a teaching and research assistant to a speech professor.

Her first job was at Howell High School where she coached debate and forensics. She initiated the forensics program and coached the team without payment.

She first came to Northville in 1973 to work on the Extended School Year Program, but after seven months ahe asked to be transferred to the high school. Freydl coached the high school forensics team.

When the ninth grade transferred from the high school to the junior highs, Freydi went with them.

She taught beginning forensics teams at Cooke for nine years and trained a coach for a Meads Mill team.

Freydi also began entering her students writing in contests.

Police said the destruction occurred between March 30 and the afternoon of April 5.

Initial investigations revealed plenty of potential evidence but few answers, said police Capt. Philip Police discovered fingerprints, blood stains, clothing fragments and other possible evidence, Presnell said. But police do not know how many people were involved in the destruction, or why the house was damaged.

"We don't know which way the investigation is going to take us." Presnell said Tuesday. "We have to establish what the motive is... if there was some specific intent."

Police discovered no signs of forced entry, Presnell said.

Township pays consultant to test sergeant candidates

A pair of sergeant's stripes are up for grabs in the Northville Township Police Department and there's no small amount of interest in the position.

Nine township officers are vying for the right to replace Sgt. Clyde Anderson, who recently accepted a job with a sheriffs department in Colorado.

The township last month dug into its pocketbook and contracted with Pennsylvania-based consulting firm Bartell & Bartell to sort out the best available candidate, Chief Chip Snider said. The township will spend $11,000 to test candidates through Bartell & Bartell, Snider said. Candidates were evaluated this week, he said.

Bartell & Bartell conducted and issued a thorough communicate effectively to superiors and subordinates, study of the township poice department in 1988 and tested finalists for Snider's position last summer. That familiarity convinced Snider and the township board to select Bartell & Bartell over two other consultant

Candidates this week went through an executive simulator — "a comprehensive analysis of individual's specific behavioral skills," Snider said.

staff with my style," Snider said. Snider said the Bartell & Bartell evaluation inilors all to work with increased use of technology, Snider said.

After testing and analyzing the candidates, Bartell-& Bartell will forward its recommendation to the township. Snider said he will accept the firm's

The successful officer will then be promoted. His pay will be set at a figure 12 percent higher than the highest paid patrolman, per contractual agreement.

Testing candidates through an evaluation company benefits the township, Snider said.

City argues for funds

By STEVE KELLMAN

Northville City officials drove to Lansing Tuesday to hear the poten-tial fate of state-returned racetrack revenues.

They were not pleased with what they heard.

Northville Mayor Chris Johnson, Council Member Carolann Ayers and Manager Steven Walters were among the representatives of several racetrack cities including Livonia, Fruitport and Swartz Creek who raised their voices at a Senate appropriations subcommittee meeting in protest of the proposed zero-funding of state-returned racetrack revenue for the coming fiscal year.

The complete cut of racetrack revenues was one item in the Michigan Department of Agriculture's proposed budget in 1991 / 1992.

The proposed cut, described as "devastating" by Walters, would cost Northville $900,000 in the next fiscal year alone.

The recent state proposal follows an expected $82,800 cut in this year's state-returned racetrack revenue, and the state's failure to pay the city any racetrack revenue since December. The city is awaiting payment of an estimated $517,000, a figure which takes into account the $82,800 cut.

City officials already have issued layoff notices to two police officers and may issue notices to two Department of Public Works employees and a clerical staff member as a first response to the cuts.

replied, "Absolutely none . . . It emed to be largely preconceived attitudes.

The director of the Department of Agriculture, (Bill) Schuette, and his staff people were there defending his proposed cuts," Walters said. "Obviously they're acting under some kind of general administrative direction to siphon off $6 million to other areas of

The state returns about $6 million in racetrack-generated revenues to cities with tracks each year.

But Walters was somewhat less discouraged by the questions asked by the senators on the agriculture appropriations subcommittee, particularly Sen. Lana Pollack (D-Ann Arbori.

"They were pretty open-minded and were asking some significant questions of both sides," he said. (Pollack) was asking questions of the cities that suggested to me an openness to what the cities were saying . At least discussion was going on at the Senate level."

One sore point with Pollack was the fact that two of the racetrack cities, Northville and Livonia, had not been receiving funds they were scheduled to receive this year, Walters said. They've been withholding funds from Livonia and Northville since December without any actual authorization," he said.

"(Pollack) was personally em-barrassed at the state's failure to pay things they had committed to, but she wasn't just defending the racet-When asked whether they heard rack issue. She was addressing con-

any encouraging words about the racetrack revenue Tuesday, Walters well," he said. "Still, it's the same well," he said. "Still, it's the same Walters said that the proposed zero-funding of racetrack revenues was the main focus of the Senate discussion. They were discussing the overall agriculture budget but there was nobody there protesting other parts of the budget," he said.

Fiscal analyst Arnold Rich made the first presentation to the subcommittee, and was followed by Schuette, Walters said.

Rich was the author of an October 1990 issue paper titled "Grants to ci-ties with racetracks" that paved the way for the proposed cuts. The paper concluded, There is no legal requirement to pay the (racetrack rvenue) grants," "It would seem questionable whether the Legislature intended for the grants to support miscellaneous expenses," and "the monies accumulated . . . may be legally used for purposes other than grants to cities."

Walters contested Rich's conclusions in a Nov. 19 letter to Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, arguing that the revenue is needed to provide adequate police and fire protection and other services at the track and to make it economically feasible for cities to retain their racetracks in lieu of more desirable development.

The Northville officials may return to Lansing next Tuesday to reiterate their concerns at a House appropriations subcommittee meeting.

"There's a chance we'll wind up going back," Walters said Tueaday. "It's very likely because of the reception we got today."

Planners review site plan policy

By STEVE KELLMAN

A long-running discussion over whether site plans should first go to the Northville City Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals for review may be decided in favor of the commission.

The commission instructed Planning Consultant Don Wortman March 19 to draw up a policy to that effect, which may be written into the city's zoning ordinances. The commission is scheduled to discuss the policy at its April 16 meeting.

The ZBA debated the question at its Feb. 6 meeting after previous discussions before the commission. While a majority of ZBA members agreed that commission review of site plan applications should follow ZBA review, several felt that the decision should be left up to the applicant.

Previously, some applicants had appealed to the ZBA before approaching the commission for approval, due primarily to the fact that the next available ZBA meeting came before the next commission meeting. But planning commission reviews occasionally turn up the need for an applicant to request a variance, necessitating an appearance before the ZBA.

The debate arose from a recommendation by Wortman, who suggested in a Jan. 29 memorandum that plans go to the commission first. Such a policy would allow "a comprehensive review by staff, consultant and Planning Commission (to) uncover all necessary variances," he wrote.

Wertman pointed out that prior commission review would give the applicant the chance to change the site plan and avoid the need for variances, or legitimize the applicant's request for a variance and give direction on what variances are

But some ZBA members worried that a conditional site plan approval by the commission - approving an applicant's plan subject to the applicant obtaining the necessary variances — would be seen as added impetus for the ZBA to grant the necessary variances.

The ZBA urged the commission to make clear to applicants that conditional approval was not an endorsement of the necessary variances, and that the ZBA would consider other factors besides the commission's approval in making its decision.

A 44-year-old Northville man arraigned on a charge of first-degree criminal sexual conduct was bound over to Wayne County Circuit Court to stand trial.

James Dickson Reynolds, a resident of the apartment complex at 111-113 W. Main St., was charged March 27 with molesting a girl under the age of 13 more than four years ago. He was bound over after an April 5 preliminary examination at Plymouth's 35th District Court.

The victim testified against Reynolds at the April 5 examination.

Arbor Day activities include thousands of free seedlings

By MIKE TYRE

Plant a tree to show you care about the environment.

That's the message the Northville Township Beautification Commission hopes to deliver when members hand out free Arbor Day seedlings.

in cooperation with the Wayne County Soil and Water Conservation District, the beautification commission will distribute six varieties of tree seedlings April 20 from 10 a.m. until noon at township hall.

And a word of advice from commission Chairperson Catherine Sellas: Come early if you want your trees.

Come early if you want your trees.

About 20,000 seedlings will be passed out during the commission's third annual Arbor Day tree distribution. Past response has been positive, Sellas said.

"Last year, people were waiting in line at 10 a.m.," she said. "In two hours (the seedlings) were all gone."

The commission will distribute white pine, Colorado blue spruce, scotch pine, black oak, sugar maple, and black walnut seedlings. Tree varieties can be matched with the soil type of individual residences in Northville Township, Sellas said.

"They are all Michigan-grown seedlings," she said. "We have varieties for sandy soil, for clay soil, and mixed clay and sandy soil."

The goal of the seedling giveaway is to foster awareness of the importance of trees, Sellas said. Seedlings from previous Arbor Day distributions have done well around the Sellas

"We've had good success," she said. "Almost all the ones we have planted have taken."

The beautification commission will distribute seedlings on a first-come, first-serve basis. Those interested in must show proof of residency and provide a container to transport the trees. Planting instructions will accompany the seedlings.

Children's Earth Day activities

A two-hour children's program will begin at noon on Earth Day, April 21, at Maybury State Park in Northville.

The program will open with a concert by Mustard's Retreat, who enchant and captivate both audiences with their classic tales and musical talents. Face painting by Margo's of Northville, jugglers, Smokey Bear, the petting farm and a Big Wheel/trike run for kids under age 5 will also take place.

"We wanted to make the event one that would entertain and educate children about the environment," said Peg Campbell, director of community and public relations for the University of Michigan Health Center at Northville, the event's sponsor. "We hope involving children in environmental efforts will have have the spin-off of getting their pa-

Northville unaffected by hepatitis outbreak

By SUZANNE HOLLYER Staff Writer

Northville parents can rest easy. An outbreak of hepatitis A at William Grace Elementary in Farmington Hills is confined to that school.

Northville schools were given a clean bill of health by Wayne County Health Department Director of Disease Control Keith Tait.

"There has been nothing unusual reported out of Northville," Tait said. About 300 cases of hepatitis, an infectious, viral disease that inflames

Some of the cases are hepatitis A and some are hepatitis B.

A single case of hepatitis in a school is not cause for alarm, he said. The problem arises when a large concentration of cases occur in one place like the Farmington Hills school, which has had five confirmed cases of

The concern is that the building may be home to a common link in the spread of the disease, Tait said.

Symptoms that may occur in hethe liver, may be found at any one patitis victims are abdominal pain,

Faxon wants bond sales to help arts funding

By SUZANNE HOLLYER

With the arts now targeted for budget cuts, a local legislator has called his own proposal to provide money for the building and equip-ment needs of cultural organizations, "like buying a new dress for a

Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, introduced a bill in early February to ask voters to authorize the sale of $300 million in bonds to provide grants for state cultural institutions.

Grants would be awarded for capital improvements through the Michigan Council for the Arts, the Michigan Bureau of History, the Michigan Department of Management and Budget and the Commission on Art in Public Places.

But Faxon was surprised when Gov. John Engler proposed putting an end to state grants for the arts. A House committee rejected Engler's plan, and a 9.2-percent across-the-board cut is being implemented. Faxon, whose district includes part of Northville, said he is surprised

"This is something that had never been articulated in all the campaign-ing." Faxon said. "I don't think any-body had any idea this was going on."

Faxon introduced the same bill last year, he said. Engler, a senator at the time, supported the bill, which passed the Senate and died in the

"I had no idea the governor was going to eliminate arts funding altogether," Faxon said.

Faxon now may rewrite the bill to provide funding support for the arts which he says is as important as providing financial support for Michigan's natural resources and schools. "We don't think people have to make a choice (between the arts and other state-funded programs), Faxon said.

When you serve a dinner that doean't mean you can't serve dessert. Maybe it makes it better and it's a small portion of the cost of the meal."

Faxon's interest in the arts is by Engler's "hostile" attitude toward perform with the Michigan Opera Theatre and a number of symphony orchestras throughout the state."

He sponsored the original legislation establishing the Michigan Council for the Arts.

"I've been a strong supporter of culture from the beginning of my legislative career," he said. Engler does not understand the importance of culture in Michigan life, Faxon said. "I'm hopeful he might change his mind and decide that promoting culture is not an adverse circumstance for the future of our state," Faxon

The state Legislature is still struggling with the budget. Faxon said he will wait until the budget issue is resolved before pursuing further legislation supporting the arts.

"Until the budget is resolved almost everything else is put on hold."

"I hope we can get people con-cerned, because after all these years I hope we're not watching the end to "I'm an artist myself." he said. "I what we have built up."

Bell rejects line item voting for school budget

By SUZANNE HOLLYER

Superintendent George Bell did not embrace the plan. but he did have a few things to say about a Citizens for a Better Northville (CBN) proposal to give voters the power to approve specific school budget expenditures and reject

"(Bell) talks about empowerment. We think this is something he'll embrace," said CBN Schools Coordinator Jeff Hampton last week.

Bell's response was not quite what Hampton expected. The group asked Bell to allow the community to choose specific budget items it wants approved at the June 10

For example, voters could decide if they would like to continue spending or increase spending on curriculum. Voters also could cut funding on teacher compensation

Voters would not have to choose whether or not to accept or reject an entire miliage proposal under the plan. If voters decided to eliminate a program or department budget, then the school board could ask voters to approve a lower, higher or similar funding plan. The board also could stick with the voters' decision

But the plan would make formalizing a budget by the beginning of July impossible, Bell said.

"If the Board of Education should determine that a simple millage renewal will be on the ballot in June, the format of your proposal makes no sense," he wrote in a letter of response to Hampton.

You state, for example, that should an individual de-partment or program budget be eliminated by a no vote, the Board may ask the voters for a lower, higher or similar level of funding.

"Let's say, for example, that operations and maintenance were eliminated as a result of the vote. How many elections would you like to have before July first?" Asking voters to approve earmarked mills does have precedent if a school board is asking voters to approve additional mills, Bell said. But the board will not know until early May whether or not additional mills will be necesas a result of uncertainties in the state budget, he "If we reach the point where additional millage might be requested from voters, then an earmarked millage could be considered by the board," Bell said.

CBN also asked Bell for the necessary petition language and deadline dates they must meet to have the issue on the June 10 school election ballot. But the district does not have the information and has no legal responsibility to provide it. Bell said.

'As far as the language and the timetable are concerned, I'm not qualified to render legal opinions on a process which, in my experience, has no precedent in the state," Bell said.

Bell did inform Hampton that to get the issue on the ballot at least 2,040 signatures would be needed from voters registered in the Northville School District.

Hampton said providing voters with more information about where school revenues are spent is a goal of the CBN proposal.

Bell countered that voters have the opportunity to learn about the budgeting process at district hearings. "In accordance with state law, the school district holds budget hearings and periodic budget reviews throughout

Typically, few if any citizens are in attendance at those ons. There is ample opportunity for the citizens of Northville to gain access to any budget information they desire regarding the operations of the school district."

Bell said CBN's main goal seems not to be improving the quality of education but reducing taxes and abolishing public schools.

Bell prefaced his response to the proposal by congratulating Hampton on his appointment to the position of schools coordinator for CBN, and reminded Hampton of a letter to the editor in the Nov. 24 Detroit News in which Hampton called for the abolition of public education.

"I would assume, then, that the abolition of public education is likewise a goal for the Citizens for a Better Northville organization," Bell wrote.

The specific budgetary items CBN's plan would ask voters to approve or reject are athletics; counseling social work, special education and gifted programs; administrative costs; transportation; operations and maintenance; teacher compensation; curriculum development; and miscellaneous operating expenses.

Law might keep issue off ballot

By SUZANNE HOLLYER Staff Writer

The right of Citizens for a Better Northville (CBN) to petition the Northville School Board is certain. But the law may not require the board to respond by placing the issue on the ballot.

CBN has asked Northville Superintendent George Bell to allow voters to decide budgetary expenditures. For example, voters could stop all spending on athletics and increase spending on transportation.

But the board may not be legally permitted to respond to the petition by establishing an election, said Michigan Department of Education school law and legislation specialist Margie Thelan.

"The law is quite clear; it simply says the board shall establish an election if the people have the right to decide how much money will be levied," Thelan said.

Voters would have the right to de-cide how much money would be levied if the school board was asking for more money than is permitted by

"I doubt that (the CBN proposal) is something that the people have the right to decide," she said.

But she does not know for sure and emphasized that she is not an attorney.

"Whether it's going to obligate (the board) would be up to an attorney to decide," she said.

"The board would have to go to their attorney. If (CBN) has their own attorney then something like that could end up in the courts. There's no recedent so far as I know."

And if the school board were required to hold the election, it might not be required to follow the voters' decision, she added.

"It sounds like a straw vote or an advisory vote. They'd need an attorney to see if they had to follow what the voters said," she said.

And if the board did choose to hold an election to allow voters to decide budgetary issues, it could be in violation of the law.

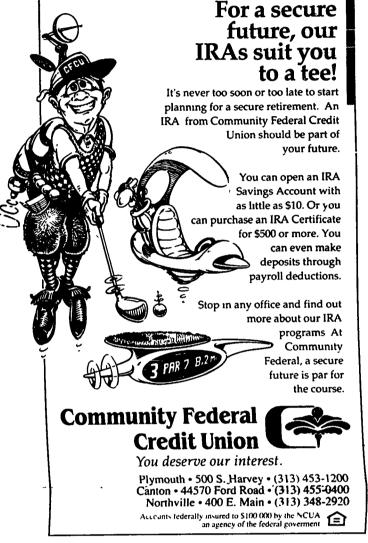

"It's like an inappropriate expenditure of public funds because they're not bound by the outcome," Thelan

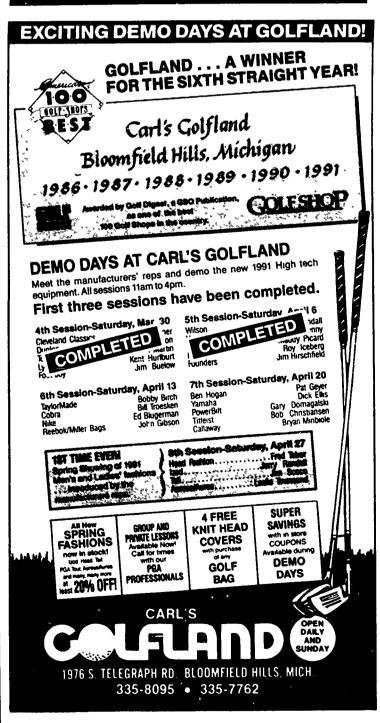

"It's their responsibility to make those kinds of decisions, not the public constitutents. There are some things in the law that say the board shall do this, or the board shall do

If CBN decides to go ahead with its plan, it will need 2,040 signatures, or the aignatures of 10 percent of the registered voters in the Northville School District.

Last Saturday the board of the Northville Historical Society spent a working morning beginning to firm up the society's long-range plan. Surveys which had been distributed earlier this year to members and others in the Northville community have been compiled and will be used as a basis for development of the plan. The variety and insight which comes from these surveys should prove a valuable addition to the planning process.

The current issue of the Mill Race Quarterly incorrectly listed April 6 as a spring cleanup day at the village. That cleanup/planting day will be held on Saturday, May 11 from 9 a.m. until noon. We'll share lunch afterward with the society providing beverage and dessert. The landscape plan should be completed by that time and members are encouraged to come out and participate in the new planting. If you're not a member, but interested in helping May 11, come out as well. Everyone is welcome.

Cemetery service fee charged

By STEVE KELLMAN

The city council agreed to institute a service fee for the sale of Rural Hill Cemetery lots, in part to reimburse a Northville business that has developed, marketed and and billed customers for the lots for the past 40 years.

The council approved a recommendation by City Manager Steven Waiters to establish a $50 non-refundable minimum deposit for the purchase, opening or closing of a grave. The fee will allow the city to pay Allen Monuments a $500 monthly "service fee" for administration of the lots.

Allen Monuments has been administering the cemetery since 1950. The services provided by the company and owner Jim Allen include survey and development of grave sites, handling of customers, billing for lot payments and transferring of the payments to the city, Walters said.

"Allen Monuments has been providing the service to the city for some time as a free service," he said. "The real burden of these costs have been on Allen Monuments, not on the city

The service is fairly substantial, because it's very time-consuming to handle a person who wants to view lots, and the bookkeeping is timeconsuming as well, particularly if the person is paying off the lot in intervals over a period of time."

Walters recommended that the council institute a $50 fee for administrative services. "We would in effect increase the revenues a little bit, 10 or 15 dollars, which would go into the trust fund, plus cover the administrative costs," he said. "The $50 is not a payment to Allen Monuments. I'm proposing they would be paid a small administrative fee, 35 to 40 dollars."

Walters said the company was better equipped to administer the serveice than the city because of the nature of the service. "We talked a little bit ab-out whether the city should take over the billing, but it's a highly personalized business," he said. You have to communicate with (the customers); it's not just like a water billing."

The council agreed to the request. "This is something we've probably overlooked in the past," said Council Member Paul Folino.

Council Member Jerry Mittman recommended reviewing the process in a year, and making the cemetery rates part of the city's budget review

State fire investigators smoke out arsonists

State police photos of southeast Michigan arson scenes

Northville post investigated 155 fires

By SCOTT DANIEL

If digging through the remains of a fire scene sounds like a messy job, well, it is. But, for the staff of the Michigan State Police fire investigation unit in Northville, it's a job they thoroughly enjoy.

"We find it real interesting, whether it's an accidental or arson fire," said Detective Sgt. Gary Mihalek of the investigation unit. "But you do crawl through a lot junk and smell a lot of smoke.

According to the four-and-a-half year veteran, the 10-man unit has two major responsibilities: inspections and fire investigations. Mihalek said a total of about 2,500 inspections, mainly of state licensed buildings such as hopitals, schools and nursing homes, were performed last

"Annual inspections makes up most of the work," said Detective Sgt. Monty Grimes, also of the unit. We look mostly at maintenance items. exit lights, fire extinguishers and fire

The investigative portion of the unit handled 155 fires in 1990. Mihalek said the Northville post is responsible for investigating fires thoughout southeast Michigan, including eight counties.

Frequently, investigators from the unit are called in to fire scenes involving townships. Mihalek said that townships tend to rely on the investigators to determine how a fire is started because their departments often lack expertise in the area.

Once they have been contacted, state police investigators try to make it to the scene while the local fire department is still present, Mihalek ters," he said. "We usually get substantial information about the fire from them.

The firefighters often can give detectives vital information such as the color of the smoke, rate at which the fire burned and how it burned. Besides interviewing firefighters, Mihalek said occupants or the owners of buildings that have burned can provide valuable information.

"We interview them to see what the conditions were before the fire," he said. "Was it someting that was working, a hot oven, or were they smoking?

"We try to look for things that will help us when we start digging." Sifting through debris to determine the cause of a fire can take several days, Mihalek said. When we find the most severely damaged area, that is the area of origin," he said. "Fire does the most damage usually where it begins." After the origin is determined, detectives must then determine if the fire is accidental or intentional. "People look to us to determine what the cause was," Mihalek said. They also look at us to determine

If the fire is found to be accidential, the detective's work is done. If arson is determined, Mihalek said the investigation is turned over to the municipality's police department.

"If the area has police that are adequately trained for investigating. I turn it over," he said. "If they need any assistance at all we give it."

The detective sergeant said because the unit often works with smaller towns, only about 10 percent of investigations are turned over.

Investigations, which include a great deal of paperwork in addition to the physical examination of the fire scene, can take days or several years depending on the type of fire. The most complicated investigations often involve commercial fires.

There is a lot of work that goes into an investigation," he added.

That work is done almost entirely by hand. Shovels are more commonly used than computers, Mihalek said. If 155 fires doesn't sound like a lot for the size of their coverage area, it

"It was a busy year," he said. "We felt we didn't have enough time to get everything done."

State police post will dispatch to five counties

By SCOTT DANIEL

Northville's Michigan State Police Post will soon be responsible for dispatching troopers over a five-county

According to Post Commander Jack Moulik, state police officials decided to go to the central dispatching system because of budget considerations and to get more troopers on the road. The dispatch area will include Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw and St. Clair counties.

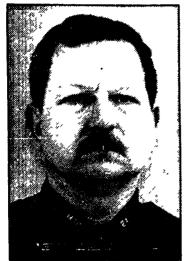

We've looked at the idea off and on for 12 years," Moulik said. "For 50 years we didn't have the technology. Certainly, now that it is there, it only makes sense."

The state police decided to go to a central dispatch in late February or early March, he said. Originally the district, which includes eight other posts besides Northville that cur- RICHARD PERCY rently handle their own dispatching. was scheduled to have north and south dispatch centers.

As part of that plan, the Northville post would have been moved to Oak Park as the north dispatch center.

State budget cuts for fiscal 1991-92, which included a nearly 10-percent cut from state police funding, put an end to the idea of two dispatch points in January, Moulik said. He added that his post was chosen mainly because of one factor.

"Northville was selected basically because we were the only (post) with the physical space," Moulik said. Trooper Rich Percy, who the post commander assigned to get the system on-line, plans a full start-up date of Oct. 1. He added that a portion of the system could be operational by July 1.

"I think it will be this summer," Percy said. "Putting several posts online would give us a chance to work out the bugs before full operation." A former storage area in the basement of the Northville post has been converted to house the dispatch. Work on the room, which included the installation of electrical plugs, carpeting and Sound Soak (material placed on the wall to absorb sound)

Percy said equipment such as computers, radios and desks are being moved into the room this week for hook-up. He added that the main delay in starting the project is waiting for the rest of the equipment to arrive.

The trooper is optimistic that the central dispatch will be a success. He said it has worked in other parts of

"It looks like it's going to work well," Percy said.

The trooper described how the system will work:

Calls from the public, emergency or service, will first be routed to computer operators. The operators will then send the message across the room by computer to the dispatcher handling the area from which the call came. Dispatchers then assign troopers from the appropriate district post to handle the call.

Dispatchers will work on three different shifts. About eight to 10 dispatchers will be needed per shift.

put together."

Moulik said the central dispatch would allow the five-county district to cut its dispatch personnel in half. He said some sergeants, who were helping with dispatch duties, would be put back on the roads allowing for better coverage in those areas.

Troopers John J. Jackson and Kurt J. Riles of the Michigan State Police post in Northville recently received professional excellence awards given by the department's board of awards.

The troopers are credited with having recovered over $8,000 worth of counterfeit $20 dollar bills and numerous dangerous weapons which had been in the possession of a 52-year-old Livonia man.

On Sept. 10 of last year, while on routine patrol, the troopers stopped the man in his vehicle as the result of a traffic violation. Subsequently, the troopers discovered illegal weapons and took the man into custody.

A further search revealed the pre-sence of several counterfeit bills. The troopers were recognized further for their diligence in continuing their investigation, coordinating investigative efforts between the Michigan State Police and the U.S. Secret Service, which ultimately caused the recovery of additional counterfeit

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Probable end to issue won't be the best one

The proposed relocation of a state group home in Northville Township is a very sticky - and very volatile -

Township officials and many residents have made it clear that they are opposed to an attempt to move six developmentally disabled adult males from their present home on a rather remote corner of Eight Mile Road to a newer facility smack in the middle of the Highland Lakes subdivision.

The township objects to the proposed relocation to the extent that it filed suit this week in Wayne County Circuit Court seeking an injunction against approval of a state application. The township claims a day-care center currently operating near the proposed group home site negates - based on state law - the right to place other state-run facilities within 1,500 feet of the day-care center.

"Excessive concentration," they call it. The term might keep the group home out of the subdivision. And it might defuse a potentially troublesome situation. But if that is indeed the outcome, it really won't solve anything.

We want to make it clear that we understand some of the neighboring residents' group home concerns. But we are not of the opinion that group homes make for poor neighbors. Federal law prohibits discriminatory housing practices, and group home residents live under the same constitutional protection as anyone else in this country.

Not all that long ago, similar furor arose when the state proposed locating a group home in the Lexington Commons subdivision. Residents' worries there have apparently been shown as largely unfounded.

We also tend to think that some residents are setting up a smoke screen when they say they fear for the safety of group-home residents. True, the waterrimmed Highland Lakes area features deep gravel pits. But the lakes pose danger for young and old, novice swimmer or expert. Bringing up the drowning of a walkaway from the psychiatric hospital is not a valid point; the group home residents are not living in a hospital and they are not mentally ill. Lakes are desirable, pleasant to view and may be comforting to group-home residents.

Some residents at last week's public hearing complained that the proposed Scenic Harbour site was unfit because of heavy area traffic. We think that stretches the concept of safety a bit when comparing traffic levels at the present Eight Mile Road home site.

It's particularly disturbing to hear about a "walkaway" from the current Eight Mile Road home. A group home resident going for a walk does not deserve treatment any different from anyone else leaving their house for a stroll. It certainly does not merit a police report.

At the same time, however, the state has not acted in a completely rational matter in this case. Most significantly, reports of crimes committed against the residents by employees of the home deserve further exploration. This seems to us a much more important concern in any license examination than any of the other issues raised so far.

It is quite possible that the township may be able to block the proposed move into Highland Lakes, based on the daycare excessive-concentration assertion. But how significant would that strategy really be? Couldn't the state turn around and find another home in another subdivision that doesn't house a state facility? Since this is a relocation and not an addition to the township's state facility rolls, how could township officials mount a defense to that scenario?

We do not have a problem with the township's decision to oppose relocation based on the 1.500-foot radius rule. State laws as enacted should be followed and state agencies should not be excepted. But we will not support restrictive actions of a darker, more insidious nature. We hope the township and its residents would not choose to walk that Whatever the path taken, we have the uneasy feeling that the resolution of this controversy will not actually settle anything. The true core issues, of understanding and safety, will remain in the background — to be addressed later, when some other home, or maybe this same one, is proposed somewhere else.

Feud brewing with Plymouth?

Them's fightin' words. Northville dull? Hah. Fooey. No

But maybe I should back up a

A recent issue of Detroit Monthly magazine declared Detroit "America's dullest city." It was a tongue-in-cheek article celebrating the true duliness of southeast Michigan in contrast to the area's unpleasantly exciting image across the nation.

The magazine highlights Plymouth as an especially dull suburban area — "full-bore dullness," I believe was the expression. "Quaint, unrelenting traditionalism, unrelieved small town charm. The city works hard to duplicate a simpler, less complicated age," the magazine continued. "Plymouth is dull and proud.

Now, within the twisted context of the magazine article, this is clearly a compliment. But not everyone in our neighbor to the south took it as such.

The Plymouth Observer ran a story about local reaction to the magazine's comments. And right on the front page, from an elected official no less, there it was:

"(Plymouth) City Commissioner Jerry Vorva commented,

'All I can say is the author was looking the wrong way, or maybe he was in Northville.' Well.

I repeat: Them's fightin' words.

Vorva continues in a more positive vein, defending his city against the duliness charge. But the damage is done. An unprovoked assault, and a nasty one at that.

Ordinarily I might have just shrugged it off. But this crack comes on the heels of Plymouth hiring away Northville's longserving city manager, and in that light has the distinct sting of salt in the wound.

I don't understand where this anger is coming from. Plymouth, or at least its city commission, almost seems to have it in for Northville lately. I mean, what did we ever do to you

It's time to admit, I suppose, that I lived in Plymouth for two years, in between my two stints as a Northville resident. I liked it there just fine, but I like Northville better. There are plenty of reasons for that, but I have neither the space nor the incunation to list them all here. (Maybe another time, in another column.)

I bring this all up because I'm a little worried. Are these isolated incidents, or part of a larger pattern of abuse by our neighbor to the south? If indeed it turns out to be the latter, we ought to be ready. We've already seen it: Those Plymouth city officials can be vicious.

crisis unique to Michigan?

Answer: Nope. Lots of other states are in big trouble. In fact, some experts say that today's national, state and local budget crises are the worst since the Great Depression.

Question: Michigan's budget is $1.1 billion in the hole, according to Gov. John Engler. Is Michigan's crisis worse than other states?

Answer: Not at all. Michigan is only one of a dozen states where the 1991 shortfall is more than 10 percent of the total budget. Others: California, Massachusetts, Maryland, Florida, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Mississippi, New York, Rhode Island, Virginia and Connecticut.

Question: How did things get like that? Answer: Ah! There's a good one.

National Newspaper Association

A partial answer, of course, is the recession, which has cut tax receipts over all. But there's another very important cause, one that most politicians in Washington would rather keep hidden.

What really happened in the 1980s was a federal-state tax cut shell game in which the states came out losers.

Here's how: Under the spell of Reagan rhetoric, Congress cut income tax rates, especially for those with big incomes. Then the pea of raising taxes to pay the bills was quietly switched from the feds to state and local government.

The top federal income tax rate dropped from 70 percent in 1981 to 31 percent this year. Meanwhile, state and local taxes soared from 17 percent of national income to 19 percent. Last year's total state-local tax revenue exceeded fed-

To make matters worse, the feds kept dumping program requirements on the states but refused to fund them. Take

Question: Is our state budget Medicaid, which helps pay for health care for the poor. Medicaid took $3 of every $100 that Michigan spent in 1970, while it could take as much as $15 this year. But the feds contribute no more.

> And you wondered why the taxpayer revolts are taking place in the states! Engler knows. His last-minute tax scare TV ads played a role in defeating former Gov. James Blanchard.

Wait, there's more.

Not only were taxes shifted from federal to state and local units during the 1980s, but there was also a change in incidence. That's a polite way of saying the middle class and poor were gored while the rich made out good.

Why? Because the federal income tax - the one that decreased — is basically progressive: The more you earn, the higher percentage you pay. But state and local taxes - on property and sales, for example — are regressive. They fall as hard or harder on the poor.

Result: a massive, largely unnoticed shift in tax policy in America over the past 10 years. Taxes have shifted from federal to state and local, have increased overall and have become more regressive.

This is the real reason why Gov. Engler is so vulnerable to charges that he's "mean spirited" in his budget proposals. Not only is he proposing to cut back on a large range of human services such as job training and welfare which benefit the middle class and poor, but he is also in office at a time when national tax policy is reopening the old debate over sticking it to the working people while the rich get off easy.

This may not always be apparent in the daily headlines. But in a state like Michigan with a populist tradition where most folks describe themselves as "working people," it spells long range trouble.

Residents protest group home

Editor's note: The following is a judgment, behavior and the capac-copy of a letter addressed to Bar ity to recognize reality." We are bara Stevens of the Adult Foster Care Division of Wayne County Living Services. It was signed by 15 neighbors of a proposed group

Dear Ms. Stevens:

We are a group of homeowners in Northville Township who received a letter dated March 18 from Northville Township regarding moving an AFC Small Group Home to 19749 Scenic Harbour Drive. A copy of this letter is attached. We believe that the location of this particular house poses an inherent, serious and unusual danger to the proposed residents of this facility that you may not be aware of.

The nouse at 19749 Scenic Harbour Drive is on a corner lot at the south-east corner of Scenic Harbour Drive and Lehigh Lane. We understand that it is to be the new home of mentally handicapped adult men.

The back (south) lot line of this property abuts a large, open common property owned by Highland Lakes Condominium Association. At the southern end of this common property is Swan Harbour Lake which is owned in part by the above named condominium association. Swan Harbour Lake was formed from an old quarry. It is deep and has a sheer dropoff from the shore line.

The distance from the house at 19749 Scenic Harbour Drive to Swan Harbour Lake is less than 600 feet. Please see the attached three maps. Maps number 2 and 3 can be found in the Wayne County Register of Deeds Liber 17875. Pages 931 and 932.

There is no protective barrier between this house and Swan Harbour Lake. The lake is plainly visible from the home. There is no fence, no hedge, no tree line, etc. Please see the attached photographs showing the back of the house at 19749 Scenic Harbour Drive and the view across the 600-foot open area to Swan Harbour Lake.

In 1976 a patient at the Northville Regional State Hospital walked away from the hospital and drowned in Swan Harbour Lake.

Across the street from 19749 Scenic Harbour Drive, within 200 feet of the front of the house is an open access to Silver Springs Lake. Please see map number 1.

There is also a third lake, Crystal Lake, within three blocks of the proposed future site of this group home.

The State of Michigan Adult Foster Care Facility Licensing Act section 400.705, number 3 defines mental illness in part as a condition which 'significantly impairs ment of this group home has re-greatly concerned that the residents of this group home for the mentally handicapped will be incapable of recognizing the grave danger inherent in these lakes in which other people with a similar handicap have drowned in the

The potential for danger to the residents of the group home, should it be moved to 19749 Scenic Harbour Drive, is escalated by the fact that the house is not air conditioned; thus inducing people to be outside in hot weather and enticed by the clear view of the lakes.

The State of Michigan Regulations For Adult Foster Care Facilities section 400.706 defines protection of the residents of such facilities as, "Protection means the continual responsibility of the licensee to take reasonable action to insure the health, safety and well being of a resident including protection from physical harm.

The licensee of this AFC Small Group Home which is presently located at 42777 Eight Mile Road. Northville. appears to have historically failed, and continues to fail, to protect the residents of this home from harm and physical danger. We seriously question the ability of this licensee to protect their residents from the dangers posed by the close proximity of the house at 19749 Scenic Harbour Drive to Swan Harbour Lake and Silver Springs Lake.

Northville Township Police have been called to this group home, presently at 42777 Eight Mile Road, to reinstate order when the licensee has been incapable of doing so itself. The dates of these occurrences include, but are not limited to June 29 1989, Jan. 2 1990. and May 19, 1990. The incidents involved assualt, larceny and criminal sexual conduct.

On March 23 the Novi Police were alerted to the fact that one of the residents of the present location of this group home at 42777 Eight Mile Road walked away from the facility. He crossed Eight Mile Road into Oakland County. crossed Novi Road several times and walked north along Novi Road for a distance approaching a mile.

IN SUMMATION: The geographic location of the proposed AFC Small Group Home at 19749 Scenic Harbour Drive poses an inherent, grave and unusual danger to the physical safety of those mentally handicapped people that have significantly impaired judgment and a significantly impaired capacity to recognize reality."

The licensee and the managebility to protect their residents from harm and physical danger.

In view of the potential dangers of Swan Harbour Lake and Silver Springs Lake, and the track record of this licensee we respectfully request that you, The Adult Foster Care Division of Wayne County Living Services, and the Michigan Department of Social Services closely examine the merita of this particular location (19749 Scenic Harbour Drive) as opposed to one where the safety of the group home residents would not be so seriously jeopardized.

Editor's note: Residents of the proposed group home are adults with developmental disabilities, not necessarily *mentally handicapped." The state defines developmental disabilities as mental retardation, autism, epilepsy and cerebral palsy. See letter below.

Clarifications

To the editor:

I'm writing regarding your article, "Group Home Move Raises Concerns" (The Northville Record. Monday, April 1).

I'm indirectly quoted as saying "her agency serves those afflicted with mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy and autism . . . Group home clients differ from state mental hospital patients . . . Developmentally disabled are slower to learn and apply that knowledge.

First, I never use the word "afflicted" when I'm referring to any person who may have a disability. This word continues to connote people with disabilities as helpless, s than human, citizens who should be pitted.

Second, I did not cite people in group homes as different from those in hospitals serving people with mental illness. People with developmental disabilities, as well as people with mental illness, live in group homes in neighborhoods throughout the country.

Third, I explained mental retardation (not developmental disability) as "slower to learn and apply that knowledge," and developmental disabilities as a group of conditions, including mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy and

It is unfortunate that articles like these are still being published. for they perpetuate the notion that people with developmental disabilities can be scrutinized, queried and investigated before they move into local neighborhoods.

The Federal Fair Housing amendments give civil rights protection to people with developmenpeatedly demonstrated their ina- tal disabilities and mental illness, enabling them to move into neighborhoods across the nation like anyone else. Articles of this sort only continue to keep sterotypes and prejudices alive. Would a similar article be written about any other family different from other families in cultural or ethnic background in Northville? I think not.

Ignorance shown

To the editor:

I am writing this letter in response to the article "Group Home Move Raises Concerns" which appeared in the April 1 edition of The Northville Record. When at work I spend most of my time dealing with people and one trait common in a lot of people is ignorance. Normally I can dismiss it but when I read this article and Ms. McPhee's comments it really irritated me that someone could be so ignorant that it causes her to make comments about these human beings like they are criminals or animals.

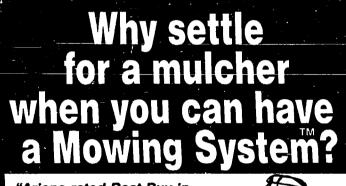

I wish that people could see what disabled people have to live with. Not only do they have to live with their handicaps but they also have to live with discrimination from people. If self-righteous people had any education they would know that developmentally disabled people are not creatures that deserve to be locked away from sight, but humans with feelings that did not get blessed with abilities that most people possess. Thank God this is 1991 and not 1920 or else people would be able to lock the handicapped up. The handicapped have enough against them. They should at least be allowed to live in homes like the rest of us and not in institutions.

In my youth I lived in neighborhood that had a group home in it. There was never a problem. In fact, most neighbors didn't even notice the residents of the home. I also grew up with a girl that was handicapped. She was able to play with the other kids until her handicap and our ages started to show up. There were never any problems such as the horrors the peoples' ig-norance of Scenic Harbour are dreaming up.

I could go on and on about this subject but I realize it is uscless. People such as this will not change until the day their children or grandchildren are handicapped and they have people talk about them such as she does. I bet they even call themselves good Christ-

Local women respond to abortion decision

By SUZANNE HOLLYER Staff Writer

A Michigan Court of Appeals ruling that overturned a voter-approved ban on state-funded abortions has stirred reaction locally.

Incomprehension is the best word to describe a local anti-abortion weman's reaction to the decision which will now go the Michigan Supreme Court.

To me it really came not as a shock, but I don't understand it," said Mary Lou Almond, a secretary at the Open Door Christian Academy in Northville.

"I don't know how the judges have the authority to overturn the rule of the people. We went to the people in Michigan, and it was voted that the majority wanted taxfunded abortions stopped.

"it's not something to quit voting over, but it seems that the power of our vote is eroding away."

Vice president of a local National Organization for Women chapter Tracey Martin said she is not certain that she completely disagrees with Almond.

That certainly is troubling. The voters spoke, and the courts overturned their decision." Martin said.

"I'm troubled by judicial decisions interfering in private lives, pri rate decisions."

But Martin, who worked on a petition drive to bring the decision to the voters after legislation was passed banning state-funded abortions, said she thinks the voters made the wrong decision.

"I think the decision (of the voters) was wrong so I applaud the court," Martin said.
"I certainly applaud the result. I'm not so sure I would say it was wise jurisprudence."

Martin hopes the Court of Appeals decision is upheld on appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court.

"I hope the Supreme Court sustains the decision because from my view that makes good public policy," Martin said.

Almond believes the ban on state-funded abortions reduced the number of abortions performed in Michigan. She would like to see the law, and the general attitude, change enough to further reduce the number of abortions performed.

"I believe . . . I know that if abortion were illegal in the U.S. and in the State of Michigan, there would be many less abortions, and women would use available methods of protection," she said.

"A child is conceived and it is a baby at that time. There's just no way around that."

Martin agrees that she would like to see a reduction in the number of abortions performed, but she sees a need for better birth control as the solution.

"If only those women who wanted to get pregnant did, there would be no need for abortion," Martin said.

"We need safe and effective birth control. "All of the birth control methods available are either cumbersome or ineffective. That's why we still need the right to terminate a preganancy."

Almond has her own solution. We have to strive to bring legislation on board, but the bottom line is we have to change people's hearts," Almond Almond suggests the media become involved by showing an actual abortion on television with a disclaimer for parents with young children warning of the nature of the program.

That would affect our country more than any legislation," she said.

"I had an abortion. That's why I am so against abor-tion. It was in '79, and I did not know Jesus Christ as my Lord and savior.

Quigley would not say if DSS regional personnel are recomending against the Scenic Harbour site. Barbara Stevens, Detroit-based DSS licensing consultant who attended last week's Northville Township group home public hearing, declined to discuss her recommendation.

"I can't speak with you on that," she said Tuesday. "I'm reviewing any information that comes to my Quigley said a decision on the group home application would be based on "state law and administrative rule requirements.

Some township residents who attended the group-home public hearing said the Scenic Harbour application should be rejected because group-home residents would be endangered by the presence of three lakes near the proposed site.

Safety and security of group home residents is the state's concern, Quigley said, but nearby lakes would not rule out the site. "AFC residents certainly have rights (including) the right to enjoy the immediate environment," he said.

Those seeking information on the group home application process may run into closed doors during legal proceedings, Quigley said.
"We must respond to the legal complaints by the citizens or town-ship officials," he said. "Until then ... we will probably remain very quiet about the investigation."

Quigley would not say how long it would take to conclude the group home application investigation.

"I don't know; we'll continue to evaluate it," he said.

Cathy Ehalt of Novi thinks she wants to be a professional dancer when she

Of course, she's not really sure. She might want to be something eise. At age 9, she has a long life ahead of her, and a multitude of possibilities. If Cathy had been born 20 years earlier, she might not have had a chance

If Cathy had been diagnosed with leukemia in the 1970s, she likely would have died within three years, according to her doctor at Detroit Children's Hospital, Indira Warrier. That was the average life of a leukemia patient

"There used to be around 10- to 20-percent long-term survivors," Warrier

Leukemia, she explained, is a cancer of the white blood cells. The body produces large amounts of abnormal white cells, which crowd the bone marrow. Bone marrow produces white blood cells, red blood cells and platelets.

Daisies and Brownies are Girl Scouts, and on Mary Luoma's day off from her "9 to 5" she is a leader of a troop of each. She was inspired to join by her two daughters, who are in kindergarten and third grade at Amerman School.

"I've done three years of Brownies," Luoma said, "but this is my first year in Daisies, and it's a whole different world." The girls are kindergartners, and they meet as a troop in the morning from January to May."

Luoma and a co-leader meet with their 10 girls in the Arts and Crafts Room at Allen Terrace for an hour. The meeting can include participating in an introductory ceremony, working on a crafts project, and eating a sack lunch which each one

Their mothers wrote out the good deeds," Luoma said, "and we read them out loud."

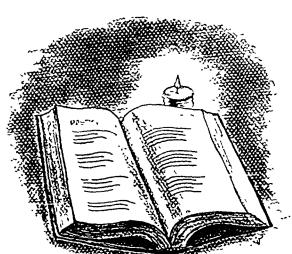

About the leaders' responsibilities beyond the weekly meetings, Luoma said, there are monthly meetings with the Troop Service Director, who represents the school's Girl Scouts at Huron Valley Council meetings. "She gets information and passes it on to us," Luoma said.

Training to be a leader? Yes, she said. There are three or four training fairs during the year - on Daisies. Brownies, camping. First Aid. You have to take something."

Arryone who would like to be a Girl Scout leader, Mary Luoma said, should call the child's school and ask for the name of the troop service

arden Club attends DIA Arts and Flowers festival

The Northville branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will travel to the Detroit Institute of Arts' Arts and Flowers Festival this Tuesday.

Members should have already made reservations, but a limited number of openings are still available for those who forgot. Call Polly Kelly at 349-3202.

VFW Scholarships

Northville members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are waiting for results in the $1,000 Seabold Scholarship Program, a program that benefits five students throughout the State of Michigan.

The contest involves writing an essay, and is open to all high school seniors. A member of the Northville branch said he is "keeping his fingers crossed" that the winner will be a Northville student.

Single Place

Single Place will offer an "Opportunity for Growth" workshop beginning tonight and meeting weekly for four weeks. The topic is "Single Tips" and tonight's topic is single parenting, with advice for custodial and noncustopdial parents.

The workshop series is offered by David Blake, a Lutheran pastor who creates an atmosphere of words and popular songs in which relationships are described and the pain of divorce and loss are responded to. The workshops will be held at First Presbyterian Church. Call 349-6474

Single Place will also go to "Memories" for a dance featuring '50s and '60s music Saturday, April 20 at 6 p.m.

"Memories" is located in Brighton and has become a popular place to enjoy the sound of that music. People will gather at 6 p.m. in the Mary Alexander Court Parking Lot, which is located next to the educational wing of First Presbyterian Church.

Dinner Dance

The Northville Mothers' Club is in the process of planning its annual dinner dance, scheduled for Saturday, April 27 at the Walnut Creek Country Club in South Lyon.

The non-profit event, which is the club's way of thanking members for work done during the year, will include dinner and dancing to the band Sound Impressions.

Couples interested in attending the dinner may call Janine Hilfinger at 349-6408 or Sue Nix at 348-1634. The cost is $60 per couple.

Colts Registration

Open registration for football players and cheerleaders interested in participating on the Northville/Novi Colts team will be held April 13 from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Registration is open to boys and girls ages 9 to 14. For further information contact Mark Golling at 344-8986 or Cindy Uglow at 347-6112.

Used Book Sales

Plans for a used book sale by the Friends of the Northville Public Library have been changed and a new date set for the popular fund-raiser to benefit the library.

The new date is Saturday, Aug. 3, when the sale will be held in conjunction with the annual Summer Sidewalk Sak.

Because an insufficient number of books hav: been contributed to offer a large selection, it was decided by the Friends board to move the date to late summer.

Contributions are still needed of all kinds of books with the exception of textbooks for grades K-12, encyclopedias more than 10 years old and Readers Digest Condensed Books.

Contrary to past policy, picture magazines are now welcome, including National Geographic.

Poet captures the child within

By CRISTINA FERRIER

Kathleen Ripley Leo tells her students that a poem must do two things. It must paint a picture, and it must tell a story.

And it's best, she says, if the poet can reach inside and rediscover the child's eye — that fresh, original way of viewing the world.

Leo, among other things, is the author of Town One South, a 1988 col-lection of poems about Northville that was commissioned by the Northville Arts Commission and funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts. That, she said, was "a wonderful experience.

"I feel extremely lucky just to be associated with that," she said.

She also teaches numerous work shops on creative writing, at all age levels, and she edits The Bridge, a new bi-annual journal of fiction and

You put in a lot of time and sweat and tears just to break even on publishing costs," she said. Subscription costs go directly toward publication

In addition to all that, she has just published a new book of poetry entitled The Old Ways, a series of 12 poems about growing up in Chicago. The book is published by Sun Dog Press in Northville.

Sales of The Old Ways have been going well, largely due to the readings Leo has been giving. Her next is at 7 p.m. April 26 at Barnes and Noble Bookstore in Rochester.

We've done quite well because Kathy has a good following in the area, explained Al Berlinski, head of Sun Dog Press. Berlinski said he chooses what to publish based on what he likes "and I hope others like

The Old Ways is already receiving great deal of praise. Stuart Dybek, an English professor at Western Michigan University and widely published author, wrote that "the poems in Kathy Leo's Old Ways ring true to life; crammed with child-like wonder and adult advice, these carefully shaped memories have been made only wiser by time."

Maybe working with young people helps her to reach that child's eye.

A middle-school-level class taught by Kathleen Ripley Leo may lead to topics like family ties, divorce, and death as well as lighter, less philosophical topics.

"Whatever they're thinking of is the stuff of poetry," she explained. "It's our job as poets to raise the insignificant to the sublime."

Creative writing classes by local author Kathleen Ripley Leo are among several classes to be offered at Mill Race Village this summer, leading up the third annual Victorian

The secret? Clean drains don't run slow

Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.

Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains They react chemically on the surface of the gook To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel in the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.

In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to rooter your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure

We are at Forest View Gardens, which has been entertaining Cincinnati with its baritones and its bratwurst for half a century. The last time I was here, several years ago. Kurt Seybold was master of ceremonies, his wife Trudie Seybold was going table to table with a smile in her voice and Jack Frost, known as Mr. Oktoberfest, was on the accordion.

The place is bigger now, but as we squeezed in behind the red-checkered table cloth I heard Kurt say "and here is Mr. Oktoberfest.

It's reassuring to know that some things in the world don't change.

It was Trudy's mother Jennie Klose, a native of Bavaria, who opened this place as Forest View Gardens in 1940 and put it on the map. It was Trudy, a graduate of the University of Cincinnti College Conservatory of Music, who started hiring young musicians and singers from opera departments of music schools as waiters and waitresses.

A young man told us the specials of the day and recom-mended the "Hacker-Pschorr Weiss Beer."

"You drink you die," Kurt boomed into the microphone. "You don't drink, you still die!"

"And now, Mariol" I looked up and the waiter was sending clear strong notes across the room. This was not the voice of someone who just

"loved to sing." "Just give me 10 who are stout-hearted men and I'll soon give you 10 thousand more!" He sang me ll the way through Tru-

Each singer was briefly on cue, in the spotlight. The next time we saw them they were gliding past the tables with trays of fcod and drink held high in the air.

Sometimes a singer got tired of competing with the thump of glass steins and the rattle of forks and gave a shout of sound, startling us to attention.

There was a stir. A buxom blonde was moving between the table. Trudie specialized in choral singing, sang in the opera at Philadelphia and Miami, but she doesn't sing here.

As she circled the room, Kurt started leading the crowd in

"Well, we didn't get many up for the polka. How about the chicken dance."

I'm not going to do that, I said to myself.

"Okay," Kurt said, "if you don't want the chicken, let's do the hokey pokey!"

So we put the left foot in and the left foot out and the left foot in and we shook it all about, and we did the hokey and we turned around, and that's what it's all about at Forest View.

NOT FOR CHILDREN ONLY

Indianapolis Children's Museum features exhibits to interest grown-ups as well as youngsters

By MARY QUINLEY Travel Writer

Grown-ups take note: The Children's Museum of Indianapolis is not for "Children Only."

This museum captures the attention of all ages. As families arrive, the learning adventure begins in the parking lot.

Bring your green, brown and clear glass bottles to toss in the recycling bins located in one corner. Moving closer to the front entrance, take a minute to pause near a small pond which is home to several species of snakes and turtles (not the teenage mutant ninja varietyi)

If your timing is right, you can watch a museum attendant feed the water snakes bite-size chunks of fish. Once inside the museum, eyes are drawn upward to the colorful banner draped from the ceiling: Our Mission Is To Enrich the Life of Children.

The museum's five floors overflow with exhibits and demonstrations from toy trains and miniature doll houses to dinosaur bones and rubber bowling balls. Parents are relieved to see "Please Touch" signs scattered among the displays. The paper doll exhibit includes television cowboy stars Roy Rogers and Dale Evans. (Hey Mom and Dad-who are these guys?)

Don't let anyone try to tell you you're not really in a cave as tiny, cool driplets of water bounce off your head. Located in the Natural Science Hall, the cave provides a narrow passageway. Caution: tight squeeze ahead. Try not to get stuck as you Want more? Stroll through an architectural reproduction of the street of Indianapolis where shop displays depict life of the 1830's one-room log cabin. Imagine how different your life would be if you lived there. Stop at the Science Spectrum where more than 40 hands-on exhibits beckon the visitor: "Touch Me!"

Visit the SpaceQuest Planetarium. Here families can sit and enjoy the show under a 20-foot-high domeshaped ceiling. The program, entitled Time Trek, features computerized images with an impressive sound

By now your head is probably spinning with everything this "kids" museum has to offer. However, don't leave yet. The museum has "temporary" displays that bring visitors back again and again. Through Sept. 8, an introduction to the animal kingdom for young children will be on exhibit. providing a play area where youngsters can try on earthworm and shark costumes, and lots more.

Once outside the museum, climb aboard "Spike," an armor-plated dinosaur called an anklosaurus. Feel his warmth (or coolness, depending on weather conditions) as you shut your eyes and imagine the earth when dinosaurs roamed the land.

There are lots of advantages to honeymooning in Michigan

My flance and I are getting married this summer. We are thinking about a honeymoon in Michigan. Where would you recommend we go for a one-week

J. Smith, Novi

You should first decide what kind of trip will fill your honeymoon expectations. Do you want to travel around or stay in one place? I asked Denise Bahs, who lived in South Lyon when she was married a year ago, and now lives in Wixom. She and her husband Jess honeymooned in Michigan. She had this to say about her

We like to travel around and see the sights, yet relax on vacations, so we chose to take a circle tour of

"We headed up north toward Traverse City during the Cherry Festival, which was bustling with tourists and excitement in the first part of July. The highlights of the Traverse area were two restaurants and a quaint bed and breakfast.

"The Bowers Harbor Inn restaurant, located on the Mission Peninsula, is the perfect setting for newlyweds. We attended a late dinner and had a quiet candlelit table for two upstairs, near a window overlooking the Bowers Harbor. The tab included an appetizer, two entrees with salads, a bottle of wine and desserts with coffee and it came to about $60. The ambience was definitely romantic.

The Ellsworth House Bed & Breakfast in Ellsworth, just outside Charlevoix (near Traverse City) is a quaint bed & breakfast with old-fashioned charm. It is totally furnished with antiques, and the innkeeper, Mary Dixon, went out of her way to see that we enjoyed our stay. She even ironed my dress before our big dinner. She is a gourmet cook and prepared a candlelit feast beyond belief every morning.

"Almost in the backyard of the Ellsworth House is the Tapawingo Restaurant which is by far the finest restaurant I have ever been to. The food is magnificent, although so was the price, $100 for the whole she-bangt But it was worth it - the atmosphere was very romantic and

"Our next stop was the Upper Peninsula. We drove up the coast of Lake Michigan, then up to Grand Marais Bay on Lake Superior. The UP is isolated from civilization. and at first it took me a while getting used to the idea that there is not a McDonald's every 30 miles. You feel very alone. After a while, we discovered this is stress relieving and exhilarating.

We stayed in the Lakeview Inn, a bed & breakfast with a homey feel to it. The innkeepers, Bill and Bev Madore, were entertaining and made sure we had a full day of sight-seeing and fun.

We toured the Pictured Rocks National Lake Shore near Grand Marais, which is a spectacular secret. The three-hour boat tour took us up and down part of the lakeshore. It is magnificent and hard to believe something so beautiful is so close to home. The local bar has great fresh Lake Superior whitefish.

*After a couple days of Upper Peninsula lumberjack country, we headed back down to Gaylord to a honey-moon resort called the Norden Hem. The Norden Hem has "theme" rooms such as the Malibu. Early American. Oriental, etc. We chose the Malibu room which boasted a round bed, jacuzzi, private deck and supplied breakfast every morning. The town was a bit dull, but we didn't see much of it anyway.

The Norden Hem had plenty to do right there - golf. swimming pool, large whirlpool, weight and training room, and tanning equipment.

Our honeymoon was the best trip I have ever taken, and it was by far the least expensive. We liked to splurge on meals and spend less on lodging like the bed & breakfasts. This summer we want to return to the UP for a weekend getaway."

Credit swimming excellence to clubs

Age-group programs develop future stars

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN Staff Writer

Swimming in the Northville/Novi area is a big deal. The competitiveness and skill level of area swimmers is among the best in the state whether your talking about high school or grade school, boys or girls. Just in the last half-decade, this area has produced some excellent prep swimmers, like All-American brothers Jon and Steve Cohen and Ali-Staters Eric Newton, Pam Holdridge, Gwen Rowlands and Beth

It isn't unusual to see both the Northville boys and girls in the top-10 of the Class A rankings each season. In fact, the Mustang boys ended the 1990-91 campaign ranked ninth. As for Novi, the boys program reached its peak when Jon Cohen won four consecutive state titles from 1986 to 1989, but it is still a force.

What is the key? Why has this area produced more than its share of topnotch swimmers and swim teams?

The main reason may be the local swim clubs, which provide the facilities and instruction to up-andcoming swimmers on a year-round basis. Most high school stars in this area got their start in clubs at a tender age. Jon Cohen started with the Bulklog Aquatic Club at age 7 and after a record-breaking prep career at Novi, he is now a member of the Michigan State University swim team and is on a full-ride athletic scholarship.

Eric Newton, a two-time Northville All-Stater, got his start with the Michigan Stingrays. Other clubs like the Clarenceville Cohoes and the Livonia-Novi Spartans have provided the same for many more swimming

"If a student-athlete is able to compete at the state level, it would be very unusual if they didn't have prior agegroup swimming experience," Novi girls swim coach Larry Teahan said. "It's very valuable."

There are other clubs in places like Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham and Dearborn, but in this area the Cohoes, Bulldogs, Spartans and Stingrays are the four swim clubs of choice. All four are members of the USS-M (United States Swimming-Michigan), which is the governing body for competitive age-group swimming in this state. USSsanctioned swim meets are hosted by various clubs throughout the year.

There is no way to overestimate the importance of these year-round programs," Northville boys coach Mark Heiden said. You almost have to have a good base to be successful in high school, and all the USS clube provide that.

"All of my top swimmers are in one program or another. As a matter of fact, 95 percent of the great swimmers in the WLAA (Western Lakes Activities Assocation) swim for USS programs. That's a major reason why the WLAA is, maybe, the top swimming conference in the state."

The following is a rundown of all four clubs, plus the Northville Swim Club — a private, summer-only organization — with vital information to help area parents decide which is right for their youngsters who have shown an interest in swimming:

BULLDOG AQUATIC CLUB: The Bulldogs are the area's smallest club. with about 60 registered members, but many feel that is an advantage.

"We like it that way because it makes for a closer group," Bulldog Vice President Skid Speerschneider said. "All the kids practice together, at the same time, at the same pool, with the same coach."

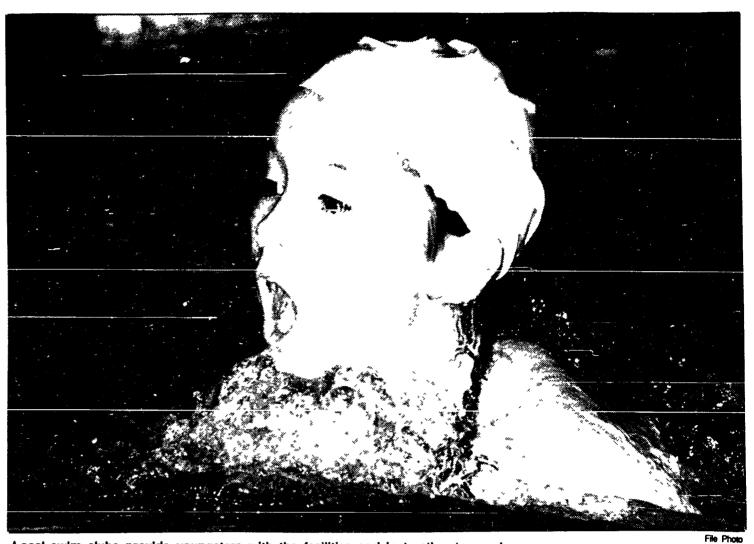

The Bulldogs, under coach Brad Brockway, swim at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. The club got under way in the early '70s and the original home facility was the former Livonia Bentley High School Pool.

"Age-group swimming is like little league is to baseball," Speerschneider said. "But it's a big commitment and it's a year-round sport. Sometimes the kids can get burned rent stars like Megan Holmberg, Teri Juhasz, and Bob Holdridge. The club draws heavily from Northville and has offered programs to swimmers of all ages since 1969.

Practices are held at Clarenceville riigh School during the indoor (or short-course) season, and at Botsford Pool during the outdoor (or longcourse) season. Swimmers are divided into five ability groups, including: "Munchkins," "Bronze," "Silver," 'Gold" and "Senior."

"We currently have over 130 swimmers," said club Board Member Sandy Falk. "The only time we would limit the number in a group would be if we feel we didn't have enough coaches to give the kids proper instruction.

We rarely, if ever, limit the number. Clarenceville has five coaches and the current club president is Northville resident Paula Sieving.

LIVONIA-NOVI SPARTANS: The Livonia-Novi Spartans was formed by the merger of two separate clubs in 1989: the Novi Bobcats and the Livonia Spartans. The club has between 140-150 members and uses three Livonia high school pools (Stevenson. Franklin and Churchill) as well as Novi High School during the shortcourse season.

The club is broken up into four ability groups ("Hercules," "Apollo," "Spartan" and "Senior") and the head coach is Dave Segraves, who has seven assistants.

We have been very pleased since the merger," Meet Chairperson Joe Sabo said. "A lot of the work at the club is done by volunteers, but the costs are escalating and it's difficult for the small clubs to make it."

Former Novi standout Beth Suroviec — now at Oakland University – is a Novi Bobcat alumnus. Northville's Clair Cryderman, Dave Wesley and Jason Fisher have also been involved with the Spartans.

For more information, call Lisa Nicol at 348-7044.

MICHIGAN STINGRAYS: Based in Farmington, the Stingrays draw swimmers from Northville to Birmingham. In addition to Newton, local alumni include Gwen Rowlands, who after a successful prep career at Novi moved on to Michigan

New golf program boasts experience

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

For a first-year program, the outlook for the Northville girls golf squad doesn't resemble that of the average expansion team.

Coach Trish Waldecker has a brand new program, but many of her golfers are anything but new to the game. Several belong to country clubs and have experience playing in competitive tournaments.

"I'm very pleased with what I've seen," Waldecker said. "We have some girls who can shoot consistently in the low 50s and I see no reason why they can't be in the 40s midway through the season."

With the addition of Northville, the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) now sports an eight-team girls golf conference starting this

"I think we'll do well," Waldecker said. "We could be a sleeper in the Western Lakes. I'm hoping the other teams will look past us because we are a first-year team."

The Mustang team is 14 strong. including three seniors who will play a key role in the inaugural season. They are Kristen Woodsum, Shannon Price and Courtney Casterline. All three are veteran golfers, led by Woodsum, who is a member of Meadowbrook Country Club. Waldecker says Price - who starred on the Northville tennis team - will be a big force this season as well."

The junior class includes another tennis player - Diane Vogt - as well as Kelli Woodsum, Stacey House and Katle Crawford. Both Vogt and Kelli Woodsum belong to Meadowbrook.

"Marry of these girls bring a lot of experience to a new team," Waldeck-

Seven underclassmen round out the roster, including sophomores Kelly Casterline, Kristine Arnold and Maria Candela, and freshmen Megan Bataran, Jessica Dedes, Sara Hopkinson and Katie Kernohan.

"I am very happy to see so many youngsters coming out for the team," Waldecker said. "We're carrying 14 girls, which is more than most teams. but with such a new program, I didn't want to make cuts. I didn't know where to draw the line.

We have a group of kids who want to work and play golf. They realize this is a new program and that they are the pioneers. They want to be

Northville opens the season on April 24 against Livonia Stevenson.

PLAYING HARDBALL

The Northville baseball squad will be trying to put an end to a dubious streak this spring: four consecutive sub-.500 seasons. The Mustangs were 8-16 a year ago and will need to replace premier hitters Joe Kaley and Steve Vigh, but will have the services of starting pitchers Mike Lang (above) and George Smojver. The 6-foot-6 Lang struck out 47 batters last season, while Smojver registered a sparkling 3-1 record and a 2.22 earned run average.

GREAT LAKES
TOUR: The Great Lakes Amateur Golf Tour has expanded to Western Michigan and four reglonal tours: 1.) West Metro Detroit, 2.) Northeast Metro Detroit, 3.) Kalamazoo/Battle Creek, 4.) Grand Rapids/
Muskegon.

1990 marked the inaugural year for brothers Rob and Dean Naudi, and Roy Gaddey with the Great Lakes Amateur Tour in the metro Detroit area, and from all indications, it was a major success. Over 650 players attempted to qualify for 260 tour cards, and play some of Michigan's finest courses.

The Great Lakes Amateur Tour is every golfer's chance to play "The Tour." Patterned after the PGA tour, the players will compete with players of equal ability in four different handicap divisions. The players must play two 18-hole qualifying rounds in May to earn their "Tour Card" and be eligible to compete in their section of the Great Lakes Amateur Tour.

Men or women who have an established USGA handicap, or a league average that can be verified, are eligible to participate. There is a $60 entry fee (players will also pay greens fees) to compete in the qualifying rounds. Each golfer will receive a Great Lakes Amateur Tour logoed golf shirt from the PGA Tour Collection.

The tournament players will be competing for over $100,000 in prizes and awards on the four regional tours. Sponsors for 1991 include some of the biggest names in golf: Ram Golf, PGA Tour Clothing, Foot-Joy Shoe Company, Grand Traverse Resort, and Total Golf Booths at the golf shows in Grand Rapids and Rochester this month have generated a strong response for this year's tours. Brochures and entry forms are available in most of the retail golf stores and the pro shops of the courses hosting tournament events for the Creat Lakes Amateur Tour this year, or by calling the Great Lakes Amateur Tour at 227-0720.

Lake Doster Golf Club has been secured to host the final event on Oct. 5 for the Grand Rapids Tour.

The "Tournament of Champions" sites have been determined as follows: Oct. 12—Highland Hills Golf Course; Oct. 13—Timber Ridge Golf Course. Both are in the Lansing area.

LIGHTHOUSE GOLF OUTING: Tee off with Pontiac Area Lighthouse as it sponsors its first annual Golf Outing on Sept. 27 from 11 a.m.-8 p.m.

Two boating safety class slated

With large numbers of boaters eager to learn more about boating navigation, safety and legal requirements, the Michigan Boating Industries Association (MBIA) is repeating its "Captain's Class" program again this year.

More than 900 boaters participated in the two-day boating safety classes offered by the MBIA last year when the theme was "Know Before You Go."

This year classes will be offered in both Brighton and West Bloomfield as well as nine other locations across the state.

Classes in Brighton will be held at Scranton Middle School on Wednesday, April 24 and May 1, and again on Tuesday, May 7 and 14. Scranton Middle School is located at 125 Church Street in Brighton and the classes will be offered on all four dates from 7-10 p.m.

Classes in West Bloomfield will be held at the Richardson Community Center on Tuesday, April 23 and May 5, from 7-10 p.m. The Richardson Center is located at 1485 Oakley Park

The education program is designed to support local groups such as the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and the U.S. Power Squadron, which offer courses in the winter and spring by offering classes at a time when demand is high but few courses are available. The MBIA courses are free to the public and have no age limit or requirements.

The six-hour course is designed to accommodate new boat buyers looking for classes in April and May, and those individuals who find it too difficult to commit to the six- and 12-week courses offered in the winter and early spring.

More information is available from the MBIA at 41740 West Six Mile (Suite 100), Northville 48167. The MBIA can be reached by phone at (313) 344-1330 or (800) 932-2628.

Karate can aid young students

Children who train in the martial arts have been found to gain more than an ability to imitate the "Karate Kid.

They've gained better grades. increased concentration spans and an improved sense of self worth. According to Todd McQuade, an instructor at the Okinawan karate club in Northville, children who study karate achieve "pride in what Karate brings out what is inside of you and it means everything. It brings out parts of your personality that are usually hidden.

"What we teach has a certain power to it. It makes you a stronger person inside."

McQuade, who teaches a style called Isshin Ryu, explained that study of the martial arts involves striving for perfection, and that carries over into a child's daily life.

*Because of the perfection that we strive to achieve in teaching Isshin Ryu, it changes the way they look at things," he said. "Many parents have told me (their childrens') home personality has changed for the good, as well as their grades and school activities. The kids become more aware of change), but it's really great to watch it pan out," he added. "It's really kind of amazing.

According to Doug Bourgeois. a director and instructor for the International Alliance of Martial Arts (IAMA), a karate organization that specializes in instruction for children ages 6-12, children who participate in karate see themselves accomplishing goals. That leads them to feel good about themselves and adds to their self-confidence.

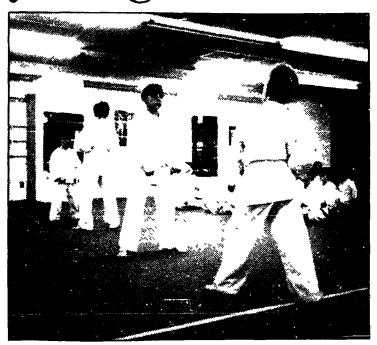

In addition, he said, the very nature of the activity increases childrens' attention spans, which helps them in school.

They have to concentrate on physical motions, and then they carry that concentration over to their studies," he said. "Karate is physically and mentally challenging.

Mentally challenging, because study of the martial arts involves "a lot of repetition. The motions are very exacting and intricate, and they require great concentration for long periods of time. he said.

McQuade said the Okinawan karate club is currently organizing the importance of doing things well. an open tournament to benefit the

Healthy diet controls those monthly blahs

Dear Myrna: I read your column on PMS and I was fascinated. I have never learned so much about PMS. I think this subject is a bit of a mystery to most people. Can you go a little further and talk about a diet for PMS? Is there such a thing? I am a little heavy.

"Thank you for being fascinated. I wish all my readers felt this way. Yes, PMS is a mystery to most people.

There may be no cure for PMS but yes, you can control the blahs by avoiding certain foods and eating a good, healthy diet. You want to avoid foods that contribute to water retention and bloating, irritability and nausea.

Some important tips: drink six to eight glassea of water daily and limit your caffeine intake (try herbal teas, hot water and lemon juice or flavored water); reduce salt, protein, fat, alcohol and refined sugar; and increase complex carbohydrates such as baked potatoes, rice, pasta. beans, grains, etc.

Your eating habits in general are basically what I always preach - low fat, high carbohydrate intake. Don't skip meals because you tend to eat too much at one time. It is about grazing — at least three small meals a day. Eat only in a defined meal area and sit down and relax when you eat. Try to prepare your entire meal on one plate. This way you may not need seconds. Tricky, yes!

Some other tips include: eating an apple or orange per day as a snack; greatly reducing animal fats (trying chicken or fish two to three times a week); never go to a party hungry — eat a little before to avoid that high-calorie party food; and PMS might be a hungry time for you a little brown bagging wouldn't hurt.

Please avoid fatty foods. This might cause irritability and nausea. Lots of refined sugar found in most desserts can make you feel nervous during PMS. Salty foods will cause water retention and bloating, which, in turn, will make you an angry woman. This might sound extreme, but it is true. In general, a good, healthy diet will help your PMS symptoms and also help you to control your weight gain.

Personally, if I had problems with PMS, I would consult with a registered dietitian. It is best to consult with professionals who will have an understanding of your problem. There is so much we can learn about nutrition and how it relates to our health, both mental and physical.

Recreation 'cabin' for couples

BY JAMES MCALEXANDER Copley News Service

The Hardin, built with a sky-lit covered pool in its central courtyard, is a recreational "cabin" type home, designed as a vacation getaway for ownership by two couples.

Its two master suites allow both couples to be there at the same time and still have plenty of privacy. The rest of the octagon-shaped house offers a variety of spacious areas for socializing, guests, and just plain easy

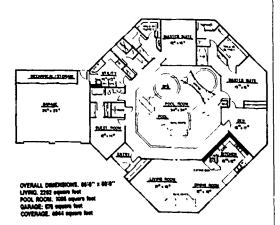

A broad double entryway opens directly onto the pool area. In fact, it's necessary to re-enter the pool room in order to move from any one area of the house to another but at the same time, all rooms can be closed off from it.

Both master suites and the den have windows facing inward to the pool. With each of four bathrooms but a few steps away, it's easy to change and be into the pool in a flash.

The living room takes access a step further with two sets of sliding glass doors, which can be left open for entertaining. Outward-facing windows ring the five-sided vaulted great room. Four skylights add to the flood of natural light. There's also plenty of space here to install a freestanding wood stove for added warmth and as a focal point for cozy evenings.

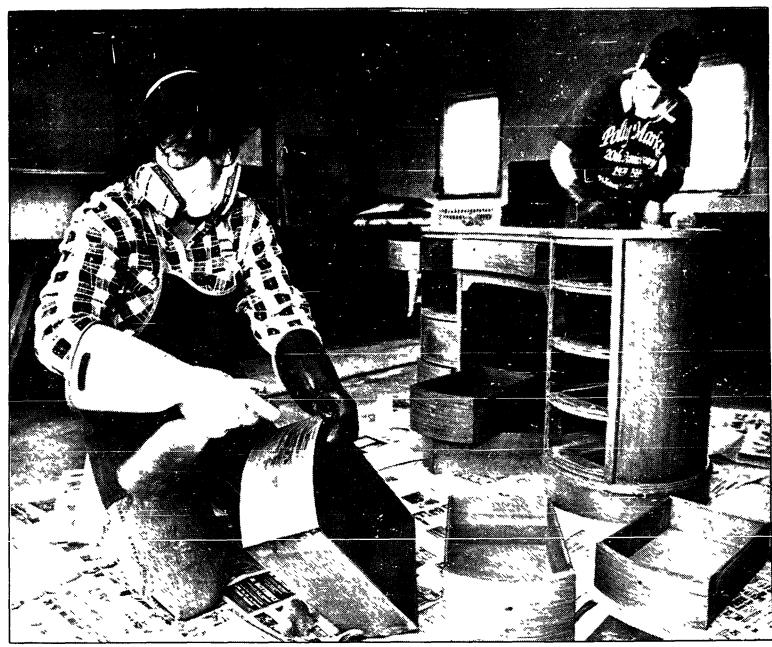

While the octagon-shaped, 20-foothigh central courtyard could just as easily be richly planted as greenhouse of quiet park-like inner garden, it's designed for a 30-foot-long lap-size pool and spa. For owners who like having even more fitness options, the den can house exercise equipment, pool or ping-pong tables, and/or a bigscreen television and VCR. Or it could be used simply as another guest room for visiting family and friends.

A large utility room, with pantry, is located near the garage for easy access. Additional storage is also available in the long double garage.

ith the spring weather upon us, there's bound to be lots of "treasure hunting" going on at yard and garage sales.
According to an area furniture-refinishing expert, with a little professional advice and a lot of ambition, you can make treasures out of your rummage-sale finds.

Hamburg Township resident Sandy Santoro says the first thing to consider when starting a refinishing project is the condition of the furniture you have in front of

"You've got to look over your project and know what you want to do," she said. "Look at the piece."

After working with furniture for more than 20 years and teaching classes in furniture refinishing, Santoro has learned that most people who try refinishing do not find a middle ground with it.

"You're either going to love it or it's going to be a nightmare," she said.

When starting, it's best to choose something that won't take more than a weekend to refinish, she said.

"For first-time projects, the smaller, the better," she said. "Find a small piece that doesn't look like it needs a lot of work." An end table or chair would be good to start with, Santoro said. "Just pull something out of the garage or attic," she said.

First-time refinishers might want to research the piece of furniture to learn what should or should not be done to it. For example, some kinds of furniture will not react well to certain kinds of finish, she said.

If, for example, a person has a mahogany chair and wants to give it a whitewash finish that looks similar to furni-ture in stores now, they won't be able to do it. Santoro said. Each kind of wood has limitations that have to be consid-

"Once you've decided, you've got to get familiar with the products you're using." she said. "Do your homework."

For products that would be best for a refinishing project, look to an established store that would sell the finishes and stains that are needed. Ask the vendors if they have used the products and if they have done refinishing projects before. Santoro said.

Basic benefits of real estate auctions homes in the beach area, overlooking present a cashier's check or cashin the soft-spoken man asked a question BY JAMES M. WOODARD

Copley News Service

An increasing number of home builders and developers have been opting for an "instant sale" of their slowmoving inventory of unsold properties. They want to hear the clap of a gavel and the welcome word, "Sold!"

Auctions are now considered to be a viable marketing alternative by many residential developers— those with large and small operations. Prices received from top bidders are usually far below previous asking prices, but sellers can quickly liquidate slowmoving units, avoid further financial risks, and generate funds for new and more promising projects.

In Cambridge, Mass., 34 luxury condominiums were recently auctionsold at The Esplanade, located on the Charles River. This is one of the most distinctive condo complexes in the Cambridge-Boston market. All but one of the units sold for prices ranging from the announced minimum bid price to 65 percent higher than minimum bid. The average sold price was 27 percent above minimum bid.

In Oxnard, Calif., a recent auction resulted in the sale of six new luxury the Pacific Ocean. All six residences were sold within 48 minutes. Sale prices averaged 17 percent above the announced minimum bid prices. The sales totaled $3,336,000

We're very happy with the results of the auction," said Lori Duncan, vice president of Westside Bank, owner of the auctioned homes. "We thought an auction might expose the properties to a different group of prospective buyers and that it might be a particularly good technique considering the current state of our economy. It seemed to work out that wav."

Joe Young, owner-broker of The Young Co. in Oxnard, previously had listings on the homes.
The timing was not good for us when we were trying to market these proper-ties. The Westside Bank folks were probably hoping that 'bidding fever' would push bids up during an auction," he said.

There were about 60 registered bidders at the auction. All registered bidders were required to complete and submit in advance a registration form that included personal financial information. They were subsequently pre-qualified as "approved bidders."

At the auction they were required to amount of $5,000 as a good-faith deposit for each property they planned to bid on. It's all a very sophisticated and tightly controlled process.

In recent months, real estate auctions have become an increasingly popular marketing technique in all regions of the country. However, the current market is growing in strength and activity. As this trend progresses, it could make the auction alternative less appealing.

The basic benefit of auctions over other conventional sales methods is that a builder can sell out a project virtually in one day, thus avoiding volatile market influences. An auction can reduce a developer's financial exposure, increase the number of qualified prospective buyers and reduce carrying costs. Q. What can be done about a developer who lowers prices of his new homes far below the price buyers paid a couple of months ago? A. This can be a very frustrating situation for buyers. I recently delivered a talk on the current real estate market to 150 employees and military personnel at a Navy facility. After the presentation, a about a situation he was facing.

"About nine months ago, I purchased a home in a new housing development," he said. "Recently the developer has been advertising the same basic home for $40,000 less than the price I paid. Is there anything I can do about it at this point?

This is a rather common dilemma at this time in our evolving real estate market. There's really nothing that can be done about it, unless there was a provision in the purchase contract that addresses the possibility of lowered prices within a specified future time period. This type of provision would be very unusual.

Keep in mind, however, that when you made this purchase nine months ago, you probably sold another home for a price that is higher than you could receive in today's market. Also, in a couple of years the value of your new home will probably swing back up to its original value-or higher. The market is now gaining strength and property values will likely rise in coming months and years. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

We're hunting for your house

We are looking for interesting or unusual homes to feature in our Creative Living section, and we need your help.

Are you particularly proud of your home? What makes it unique? What makes it of interest to your neighbors?

It could be a creative solution to an difficult problem. It could be a special room --- an exercise room, sewing room, attached green house or an electronic video center. What makes your home special may be a particularly creative job of interior decorating. Or, a particularly nice job of landscaping with gardens and flowers.

Whatever it is, we'd like to hear about it. If you live in Northville or Novi, call Bob Needham at 349-1700. If you live in South Lyon or Milford, call Matt Valley at 437-2011 (South Lyon) or 685-1507 (Milford).

We won't be able to feature everybody's home, but there are a lot of creative people out there with good ideas, and we think your neighbors would like to read about them.

The making of planting mixures

Copley News Service

Since many of us will be setting up pots, planters and baskets of flowers, herbs and vegetables this spring, it seems an appropriate time to look at planting mixes, purchased and home-mixed, and what goes into them.

Ready-to-use planting mixes on the market today are based on the original Cornell peat-lite growing blends introduced several decades ago. These are mixtures of sphagnum peat moss together with vermiculite and/or perlite, lime, varying fertilizer components and a wetting agent.

Fertilizer levels will vary according to whether liquid feedings or slow-release fertilizers are to be used by the customer. There are mixes available without nutrients added, for gardeners who prefer total control over fertilizing. The wetting agent allows the mix to absorb water quickly and easily.

It's important always to read planting mix labels carefully, to ensure the purchase of a blend appropriate to the use you have in mind for it. Labels will also indicare now long-lasting the fertilizer charge in a mix is likely to be. Watch for guidelines such as " ... contains a nutritional charge which can last up to three plain

Seeding mixes will contain lower fertilizer levels, to avert the possibility of burning delicate seedling roots. Because the seeds themselves offer an initial storehouse of nutrients, seedlings don't require feeding until they form a set of true leaves characteristic of the plant.

There are several specialty mixes available. Foliage and tropical houseplant mixes will usually contain a base of sphagnum peat moss with additions of perlite for increased aeration and vermiculite for added moisture retention. Mixes for cacti and succulents will have added perlite to provide the rapid drainage and high aeration levels these plants require.

African violet soil will be fast-draining, well-aerated, moistureretentive blend with a pH adjusted to suit plants preferring a slightly acid soil. Peat moss will predominate, with some perlite and vermiculite added.

Commercial mixes are convenient, sterile, lightweight and a pleasure to handle. But for general potting and seeding, I still prefer to add some sterilized soil to a peat-based mix to increase its staying power and to lessen the blend's dependence upon followup fertilizing after the initial nutrient charge has dissipated.

It's possible to make a basic planting mix at home and vary it for different purposes. Though not as convenient as using ready-made mixes, this venture is satisfying. and less expensive. Though I use purchased lightweight blends from time to time, for most of my potting and seeding I mix my own basic blend, measuring the ingredients by volume.

This blend consists of roughly two parts sterilized soil which I purchase, one part sphagnum peat moss, one part vermiculite and one part perlite. To each 2-gallon pailful of the mix add 2 tablespoons each dolomite lime and bonemeal.

Once they have developed a full set of true leaves, seedlings grown in this blend are watered weekly with a very weak (quarter-strength or less) solution of a balanced fertilizer such as 20-20-20. Label rates are usually based on monthly feedings. Whenever you are fertilizing more often than that, it's important to dilute the solution accordingly.

This basic blend is easy to alter according to the needs of different plantings.

For example, to adapt the mix for Christmas and orchid cactus plants, which in nature grow in the fast-draining woody debris of crevices and limb crotches of tropical forest trees, omit the vermiculite and add one part fir bark.

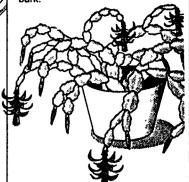

For desert cacti and other moisture-sensitive plants such as zonal geraniums, omit the highly water-retentive vermiculite and add more perlite. This blend could also be used for cuttings.

For bulbs, increase the bonemeal to 3 tablespoons. For hanging basket fuchsias and tuberous begonias, and for planter boxes, I add one part mushrooms and other processed manure to beef up the blend for a long season of bloom.

Odds are your 'Strad' is factory-made

BY JAMES G. MCCOLLAM Copley News Service

Q. We are interested in knowing the value of this violin.

It is in very good condition and has a label inside reading "Antonius Stradivarius, Cremonensis, Faciebat Anno 1727.

A. According to the experts, all genuine Stradivarius violins have been accounted for.

The truth is that almost all violins bearing these labels are factory-made fakes. At the best, they might be worth $150 for those of fine musical quality.

Have your violin examined by a professional musician.

Q. I have a 68-piece service for 12 china that is at least 100 years old.

ANTIQUES

It is decorated with flowers and the backs are marked "Epiag, Czechoslovakla" under an arm holding a sword.

Can you tell my anything about the value and who made it?

A. Your china was made by the Epiag Co. in Loket, Czechoslovakia, between 1918 and 1938. Since Czechoslovakia was founded in 1918, your china can't be more than about 70 years old.

Your 68-piece set would be worth about $325 to $335Q. What does the word "solor" on a Minton jardiniere mean?

Q. My Dresden figurine of a dancing giri has a lacy skirt and is marked with an "N" under a crown.

Can you tell me when this was made and its value?

A. Like most things that people refer to as "Dresden," this is not what it appears to be. Not only wasn't it made in Dresden, it isn't a very valuable collectible.

It was made by a porcelain factory in Sandizell, Germany, during the mid-20th century. It would sell in a retail shop for about $50.

Q. Perhaps you can tell me some-thing about the origin and value of my antique plate. I have been told that it is majolica.

It is 9 inches in diameter and is decorated with a picture of a swan. The mark is "H.B. & Cie."

A. Your plate was made in

Choisy-Le-Roi, France, by Hautin and Boulanger during the late 1800s. It would probably sell for about $50 to $60.

As far as I know, the company is still in business.

"Price Guide to Coca-Cola Collectibles" by Deborah Goldstein Hill: published by Wallace-Homestead, an imprint of Chilton Book Co., Radnor, PA 19089-, $15.95 plus $2.50 postage, or at your local bookstore.

Updated in 1991, this price guide covers almost 1,000 Coca-Cola collectibles. The text is profusely illustrated, many in color.

It will be revelation to some that there are more than 30 Coca-Cola items that are valued above $1,000—one as much as $8,000.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item to James G. McCollam, P.O. Box 1087, Notre Dame, IN 46556. All questions will be answered but published pictures cannot be re-McCollam is a member of the Antique Appraisers Association of America.

Despite the label, this violin is not an original 'Strad'.

portant, she said.

"Unless you've done it before, get professional help," she said.

This doesn't mean that a professional has to do the work, she added. Just be sure to consult a person who has done refinishing before undertaking the project. Anyone who has sold the products for a length of time will be able to give out good information about its uses, she said.

Santoro also noted that for those who are refinishing furniture for the first time, there are two kinds of projects that definitely should not be undertaken without professional advice. These items are oneof-a-kind antiques or anything with a sentimental value.

"If you know it's not valuable and you are comfortable with it, then go ahead," she said.

Santoro says that once a person knows what they will be using for a project, they should learn all they can about the products available to them.

"Know exactly what they are." she said. "If you're not sure about a chemical, you can always call poison control."

There are newer products on the market that are both safe to use and safe for the environment. It might sound like just common sense, but read the information on the can before using the product, she said.

"Read all of the information." she said. If questions about the products arise, some may be answered by the company itself.

"Look for the 1-800 numbers." she said. "If you don't understand something, call and find out."

Once you're well-informed and ready to start, create a safe work area by making sure that it is well ventilated, well-lit, away from any open flames or sparks, away from distractions, and clear of all flammable materials such as newspapers or rags.

It's also a good idea to have safety equipment such as safety goggles or glasses, refinishing gloves that cover the hands and the lower part of the arms, a safety mask to prevent allergic or chemical reactions, and a fire extin-

The masks are important for those who have not refinished furniture before and do not know what they might have reactions to.

Most hardware stores or automotive supply stores sell disposable organic masks for about $15. she said.

The best place to work is a garage or barn, if possible. With the warmer weather, another choice might be to work outside in a driveway or patio. Remember not to work in direct sunlight.

Before starting the project, remember to use caution and consider personal safety, she said.

"Safety is the key word," Santoro said. "It can't be big enough."

Artist 'storms' into S. Lyon

By DIERDRE DANCEY ecial Writer

Desert Storm may be over, but the spirit of patriotism that it in-spired will linger on for many years to come. South Lyon artist Tom Donner has captured that patriotic feeling in a lithograph that he will soon be offering to the public.

Various drawings of military design border the print. Donner has incorporated all four divisions of the armed forces including a battleship, sield soldier, sighter jet and a tank. The drawings are me-ticulously detailed. Bold lettering announces "DESERT STORM across the top of the print.

Donner will sell these prints in two forms. For $10, the print will include a rendering of President George Bush, Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf and Gen. Colin Powell in the center. This will be a lithograph.

The second print will offer an original drawing of the soldier of your choice in the center. Your son, daughter, brother, sister or best friend will be originally reproduced from a photograph. The charge for this will be $60. The border will be a lithograph and the portrait will be an original the prints and has gotten a very positive response from the public. He produced 20 prints with an anonymous soldier in the center and sold them in three days.

He said he feels that the prints with the personalized portraits are going to be well received.

Donner graduated from South Lyon High School in 1976 and a year later attended Oakland Community College where he obtained a degree in commercial art.

He is owner and operator of Donner Productions, a video company that specializes in videotaping weddings and special events. The Desert Storm prints are just another way for him to express his artistic creativity, he said.

Donner has other ideas for similar prints. His studio is home to a Pistons collage, but he said that due to the struggling status of that particular team, it will remain on the back burner. Baby themes with personalized portraits or local sports teams are other possibilities Donner is considering.

Donner works in several media: pencil, oils, Prismacolor and sculpture. He is open to all ideas and specializes in portrait art using all of these mediums.

If you're part of a two-income family, chances are you play a lot of roles. You may be a spouse, parent, teacher, car-pool driver, employee, coach and volunteer - all in one day. At some point, you may very well decide that you need some help. So you hire someone to help you at home, perhaps with child care. But before you let out a sigh of relief, you should know that you may have just taken on yet another role. When you hire someone to work in your home, you may become an employer in the eyes of the Internal Revenue Service, cautions the Michigan Association of CPAs. As an employer, you have a number of tax responsibilities. Here are some of the most common tax-related obligations you may face.

If you pay cash wages of $50 or more in a calendar quarter to a household employee, you are liable for paying Social Security taxes on his or her wages. The basic criteria for a household employee is that he or she provides services in your home. Your household help might be a babysitter, housekeeper, cook. maid or a companion for the sick or elderly.

A maid who works once a month could be considered a household employee if you pay him or her $50 or more in wages during a calendar quarter. The due date for filing Form 942 is the end of the month following the end of the calendar quarter for which Social Security taxes are being paid. For example, for wages paid in January, February and March, you must file Form 942 and pay the tax due by April 30.

If you own a business as a sole proprietor, you may include your household employee on Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return," rather than filing a separate Form 942.

You will probably be subject to the federal unemployment tax (FUTA) if you paid your household employee wages of $1,000 or more during a calendar quarter. In other words, not only are you responsible for your household worker's employment, but also for his or her possible unem-

You will probably be required to pay state unemployment taxes. If so, your FUTA tax may be substantially reduced by the amount of state unemployment tax you are required to pay on your employee's wages. When you hire a household employee for whom you are required to pay FUTA tax, you should contact your state's employment-tax office for information.

Every employer must file an annual tax return on Form 940 or 940 EZ by January 31 following the close of the calendar year for which the tax is due. If you owe (but have not yet deposited) more than $100 in FUTA tax at the end of any quarter, you must make a deposit by the end of the next

If you agree to withhold income tax from your employee's wages, you should ask your employee to complete a W-4 form, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate." You will also need a copy of the IRS's "Employer's Tax Guide," which explains how to calculate the amount of withholding based on the employee's income and the information of the W-4.

Note that the amount of wages on which you withhold income tax may be different that the amount subject to the Social Security tax. For income tax purposes, you generally must count the value of food, lodging, clothing or other non-cash items pro-vided to an employee, as well as cash wages paid. However, the value of food and lodging provided in your home and for your convenience is generally not considered income.

You have one more responsibility: You are required to give your employee a W-2 form by January 31. showing compensation paid during the year and the amount of taxes withheld. Copies of the W-2 form must be filed with the Social Security Administration by the end of February. Generally, an employee who earns less than $21,000 and supports a dependent child is eligible for the earned income credit (EIC). As an employer, you must pay the EIC in advance if the employee requests it.

If you need help coping with the tax responsibilities associated with your new role as an employer, you may want to contact a tax professional for additional guidance.

Advisers stay busy in recession

You hear that economic times are worsening on the business front by talking with people like Carol Hay, Kenneth Posner, James Maiani and Don Wertman.

Wertman, president of Syschk Inc. of Northville, runs a temporary employment service for business data processing software users.

Hay, a consultant with Universal Software Solutions of Canton, specializes in advertising and promotions for smaller businesses. Posner, a lawyer in Troy, represents both landlords and tenants in various matters including bankruptcy. Maiani, president of Data Techniques of Farmington, is a consultant, to busineses for computer hardware and software systems. Their observations give some insight into where businesses go wrong as well as right — when the good times stop rolling.

For example, the start of a downturn is the absolute worst time for a small business to cut back on promotional activities, Hay maintained. Unfortunately, many do just that. "People's attention span is pretty short," she said. "Consumers aren't loyal to the places where they buy. They go for the best price or the latest name on the brain.

"In recessionary times, people hold back. They're scared. You have to keep your name out there, keep promoting in good or bad times.

Hay has worked with smaller business - dry cleaners, carpet cleaners, electricians, specialty stores and other consultants. Most have been in business two to eight years when they seek her services.

They have never sat down and before it gets out of control, maybe gone over elementary-type things," she said. "We go over who the client is, identify customer profile, who they are, where they live, why they buy from your competitor."

Promotions don't have to be costly, she said. Fliers, direct mail and church bulletins are relatively cost

Small businesses don't have as much play as to how much they can take home or ride through on," Hay said. "A 10-percent decrease to them is phenomenal. It could kill them."

Communication is the key to a good business relationship, attorney Posner said, especially when the economy begins to sour.

The most important thing in the genant/landlord area in a recession is to keep in contact with each other and share information," he said, "if you get to a problem early, you can work it out. Bankruptcy is a tool of last resort." A good lease from a landlord's perspective allows for periodic review of financial statements, Posner said. Tenants should strive for exclusivity and escape clauses in lease negotiations. If I were the landlord of a small office or small strip center, I would consciously sit down, perhaps with an accountant, and do an audit of how well each tenant is doing . . . so I don't have any surprises," he said.

"To the extent you have the right to ask for questions and reports, ask for vno une tenant's customers are, talk to them to get a feel for how the tenant is doing.

"You don't want to let a tenant get too far back on what he owes," Posner said. "If you identify a problem early the relationship.

And Posner's current view of the economy? "If this isn't a recession, I don't know what is."

The behavior of business users now is typical of a recession, said computer consultant Majani.

We are very busy on custom programs now. There's three months of work out there. Companies will lay off people and come to us to get services done. We are not busy at all selling hardware."

Wertman, who provides software specialists to mid-sized businesses on a temporary, as-needed basis,

They have to let go of their own people. After they lay people off, they need something done. We go in for a month or so and they say goodbye. They can get rid of us quick. "It's the old story - when you hire someone, you make a commitment, his medical (benefits)," Wertman said. When you hire us, you pay one fee and don't get involved in all that stuff." Also, budgets can more easily accommodate temporaries than fulltime personnel, he said.

"In my experience, they're doing what they have to do," Maiani said. They have to cut costs somewhere. They stay in business."

But the long-term picture often is ignored in both good times and bad, he added.

"Small businesses, when things, are busy, don't seem to take the time to upgrade or automate functions they should be automating," Maiani there's something you can do to save said. "During a recession, when things are slow, they should take the time to go ahead and spend a few dollars. But they don't.

ASK-A-NURSE that the more

1-800-526-3729 O Hayard

How is it that a country that imports almost half its oil can afford to waste it?

When a little thing like keeping the no excuse good enough right pressure in our tires would save America over two million gallons of gas a day. Using lower octane fuels-two and a half million. And driving just five miles DO YOUR PART. DRIVE SMART. per hour slower would save still another two million gallons

When solutions are this easy, there's President Bush hopes you'll do your part, because when you think about it. it's not a lot to do for America.

Blind Man's Bluff.

What would your children's future be like without The Bill of Rights?

Stumbling. Falling. Searching aimlessly.

Thanks to The Bill of Rights your children are not blindfolded to the world around them. They can experience life. Without restriction.

Their lives are too important to be left to hit and miss.

Don't let your children grow up in the dark. Help them realize the significance of the personal freedoms we take for granted every day.

Tell your children about The Bill of Rights. Their future is too important to play games with.

Here's what you can do...

Reduce-Reuse

Avoid purchasing disposable items that have only one use such as disposable razors, plastic microwave food trays, plastic utensils, paper products and disposable diapers.

Purchase products in bio-degradable packaging. Avoid purchasing over-packaged products as well as single-serving food or drink items. Don't discard still usable items. Donate them to organizations that reuse things.

The 3 R's

Reduce, Reuse, Recycle Our landfills are filling up. You can help by practicing the three R's.

Curbside pick-up is planned for the township this summer and city next winter. In the meantime, please continue voluntary recycling.

Recycle

Newspapers: Place in brown grocery bags or bundle tightly with strong string. Do not put in plastic bags. Remove magazine-like inserts. Newsprint with colored ink, such as comics, is acceptable. (No magazines, junk mail, road maps or phone books.)

Glass containers: Separate by color (clear, green, brown). Remove and discard lids.

Tin cans (attract a magnet): Clean cans, remove ends and labels, flatten completely.

Aluminum (non-magnetic): Clean and flatten cans, foil, pie and TV dinner trays. Recycle at township site only.

Plastic jugs: Rinse clean, remove caps and flatten. No colored jugs. The city accepts only semi-transparent milk containers. The township accepts only clear and semi-transparent containers.

Motor oil: Must be fluid and not mixed with water or anything else. At the city site, put used motor oil in a screw-top gallon jug. The township site has a receptacle for depositing used oil.

Batteries: At the city site, the DPW office will direct you for placement of your car and household batteries. (They are not permitted with general trash.) The township site has pallets for car batteries and a receptacle for household batteries.

General trash: Is acceptable at the city site but not at the township site.

Charch's has the Best Weelie Resisium Lumber in Journe.

Water beads right off Wolmanized EXTRA Weather-Resistant Lumber because it's got something "extra" pressure treated with a special water repellent to prevent moisture penetration from rain and snow. All wood swell and expands when it absorbs moisture. As it dries, it releases moisture and shrinks. Constant expansion and contraction causes grain raising, checking, splintering and warping. Spray or brush-on water sealers just can repel water like Wolmanized EXTRA Lumber. In laboratory tests, Wolmanized EXTRA Lumber shows almost two thirds more moisture resistance than pressure-treated lumber protected with a leading water sealer. Of course this fantastic lumber is also pressure treated for lifelong protection against termites, rot and decay. Don't settle for ordinary treated lumber, insist on Wolmanized EXTRA!
