Sting goes cops kill culprit

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Undercover police officers shot and killed a Westland man Thursday evening after an attempted drug buy soured outside the Northville Township Meijer store.

Ronald John Melnyk, 33, of Willemas Park Apartments in Westland, was pronounced dead on arrival at Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills at approximately 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Police shot Melnyk once through the chest after he reportedly struck a police officer with his 1989 Chrysler and attempted to flee the Meijer lot at 20401 Haggerty.

Two undercover officers were treated for minor injuries, police said.

Melnyk was the target of a narcotics sting conducted by federal, state, Wayne and Oakland County law enforcement teams, state police at the Northville Post said Friday.

Police were attempting to buy approximately seven ounces of cocaine from Melnyk when the suspect suddenly nixed the deal, said state police Det. Richard Duthler.

"The undercover officer and the suspect had discussions (but) the deal was never finalized," Duthler said. "The undercover car pulled away and (other) officers attempted to arrest Melnyk on previous transactions and he tried to get away."

Two police officers fired "a minimum of 6-7 shots" from 9 mm handguns at Melnyk, Duthler said.

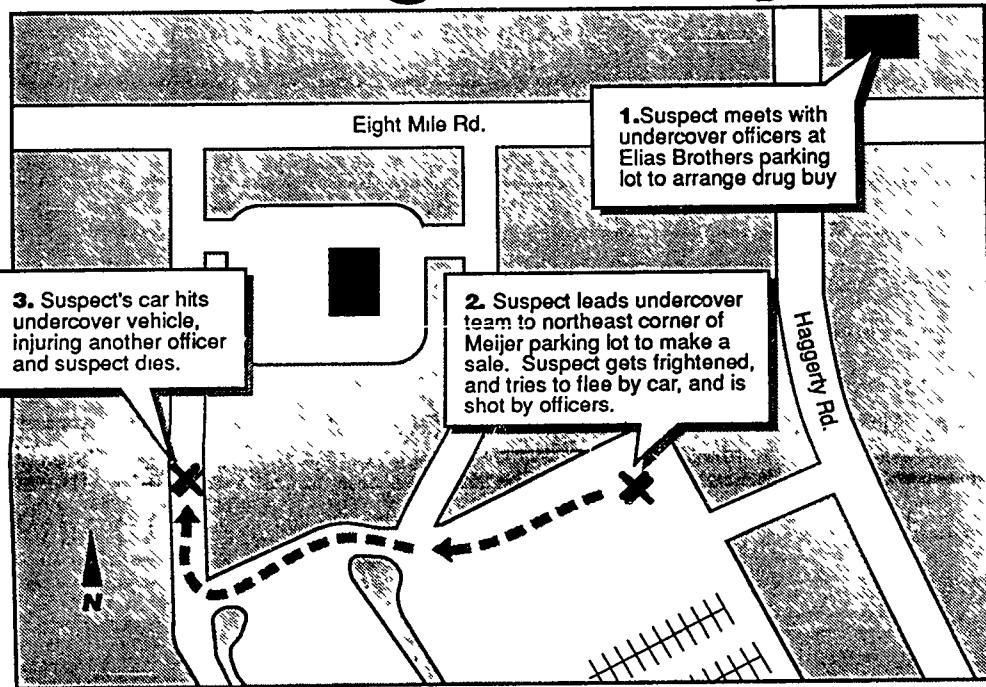

Melnyk, who police said was unarmed, was shot near a landscaped island in the northeast portion of the Meijer lot.

Melnyk then attempted to escape through the lot's northwest exit, police said. His vehicle crashed with a 1991 Chrysler piloted by undercover officers, said witnesses, who also said Melnyk "appeared to be unconscious" prior to impact with the police vehicle.

Duthler said he did not know why officers shot at Melnyk. Police were investigating the incident at press time Friday and Duthler said addi-

Plymouth's Breen fills commission vacancy

By BOB NEEDHAM
Editor

Maurice Breen became Northville's new Wayne County Commissioner last week, but voters will decide whether he keeps the job.

Other vacancies may quickly follow: State Rep. Gerald Law, whose district includes most of Northville, last week expressed strong interest in filling Breen's current post as Plymouth Township supervisor. If that happens, Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss may seek Law's House seat (see related story).

The county commission appointed Breen to the body at its meeting Thursday. Breen was the choice of outgoing county commissioner Susan Heintz of Northville Township, who left the county post last week to take a job with Gov. John Engler's administration.

The commission approved Breen's appointment 10-3. The appointment lasts until voters elect a more permanent replacement to fill out the rest of

Goss in GOP parade

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

The feeding frenzy for local, state, and county political positions continues.

Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss has added her name to an ever-expanding list of job-seeking area Republican political leaders.

Although saying it would be a very difficult decision to leave Northville Township, Goss on Friday expressed firm interest in State Rep. Gerald Law's 36th District seat — if Law leaves his post for the vacant Plymouth Township supervisor's slot.

Heintz's term, which runs through 1992. Heintz and Breen are both Republicans, while all the other members of the Wayne County Commission are Democrats. Under state law, the appointee had to be from the same political party as the departing commissioner.

"I'm certainly interested in the position," she said. "I'm looking at all my alternatives and there will be an announcement forthcoming. That's all I want to say right now," she said.

Goss, township supervisor since 1988, would have to win a special election to succeed Law. Gov. John Engler would call the special election, probably for this summer.

If Goss runs and is elected, she would join Law, former Wayne County Commissioner Susan Heintz, and former Plymouth Township Supervisor Maury Breen in a dizzying cast of local Republican job-changers.

On Friday, county officials were researching when elections could take place. State law prohibits the elections from occurring within 30 days of a school election, and several school districts in the area — including Northville — plan an election for June 10.

One county official said the commission will probably formally set election dates at its meeting May 2. Breen said last week that the county commission "has come a long way since Mr. (Edward) McNamara has been executive. It has become a more meaningful political body."

Breen served as Plymouth Township supervisor from 1970 to '72, and from 1980 to the present.

He served as staff attorney for the Wayne County Road Commission from 1961-67, on the Plymouth Township Planning Commission from 1962-68, and on the Plymouth Township Board from 1968-70 and 1976-80.

The Plymouth Township Board will select Breen's replacement, and Law, re-elected to a fifth two-year term in the state House last November, may be the prime contender.

"I'm a candidate for the position," Law said Friday. "If the board chooses to appoint me, I will accept it."

He continued, "I enjoy my present job . . . and I enjoy working with all my present communities." But after "eight and a half years and 200-some-thousand miles in commuting," the prospect of returning to the local level attracts him.

The Plymouth Township Board might choose Breen's replacement as soon as this week, Law said. While he had not discussed his candidacy with the board by Friday, he said, "it appears at this point I have a very good chance . . . but that's not a foregone conclusion."

Law said he continues to enjoy his work as state representative, but sees a chance to return to another level of government he enjoyed in the past, describing township operations as fielding more complaints but getting more satisfaction than at the state level.

"It does help to be close to home, and the drive is probably one of the negative points about it (the state job)," he said. However, he stressed that until such time as he gets the new appointment, he's still a state representative.

"I'm still dictating letters to people (as a state rep) . . . I'll be in Lansing Monday, voting as usual." Even if he does get the township post, he may even travel back to Lansing to argue for state-returned racetrack money when the issue arises in the House, he said.

If Law does end up leaving his state post, Engler would call a special election to fill that vacancy.

Cash crunch may dim July 4 display

By STEVE KELLMAN
and MIKE TYREE
Staff Writers

This year's Northville Fourth of July may lack a little something — like the rocket's red glare and bombs bursting in air.

The Northville Jaycees said they may not be able to afford their annual fireworks display due to funding cutbacks by the city and township.

Last year, the city matched a $2,623 township pledge to cover the Jaycees' Independence Day celebrations. But the township board this year turned down a $2,625 fireworks funding request and instead granted $500 towards the annual Jaycees parade alone. The city likely will match that amount, though Mayor Chris Johnson told the Jaycees he was unsure whether the rest of the city council would vote to restrict the funds to the parade or allow it to be used for fireworks as well.

The township board felt the red glare from a cash-seeking Jaycees source April 11, but said budget constraints and liability concerns take precedence over community fireworks displays.

Hot dog — Northville may play host to coney island restaurant

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville's range of culinary options may broaden a bit if an application for a coney island restaurant on Main Street gains final approval from the Planning Commission.

Southfield business person Zef Dresevic received preliminary site plan approval last week for a Joseph's Coney Island at 113 W. Main St., in the retail space vacated by Perrin's Gifts in October.

Plans submitted with the application show a restaurant with a seven-seat counter, two short booths and 11 longer booths. The restaurant could seat up to 55 people.

City police have listed concerns about parking at the site in their review of the application. Police Chief Rod Cannon wrote in a March 25 report that he was "concerned with traffic flow and parking and pedestrians crossing (the) street. This could be a serious traffic problem including double parking."

Cannon added on April 8, "The public lot across the street for 113 W. Main is full during the business day."

Coney island customers likely would park in the two-hour public parking spaces on the north side of Main Street, or the open spaces farther north.

Planning Consultant Don Wortman found sufficient parking for the site, based on the building's 40 parking credits and the estimated 22 spaces needed for the restaurant and 11 for the real estate office next door.

Wortman did list several items missing from the initial site plan application, including the access for dumpster removal and location of trash receptacles, utilities, and loading and unloading areas.

Other minor defects were found in the application. Fire Inspector Bob Turner noted the need for an automatic fire suppression system in the restaurant, and DPW Superintendent Ted Mapes pointed out the need for a trash receptacle for the site.

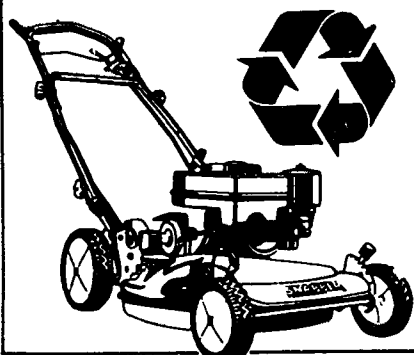

Dresevic told planning commissioners last week that he planned to put more windows in at 113 W. Main St. to eliminate the need for a fire suppression system, and said he was negotiating with representatives at the MAGS building to take refuge there. In the meantime, he said, the restaurant would use trash receptacles in the city parking lot across Main Street.

The commissioners advised Dresevic to resolve the outstanding building and fire department concerns, and to submit a more complete application before returning for final site plan approval.

The commissioners also warned the applicant that building code violations incurred previously at the site would have to be resolved before he could get a certificate of occupancy. Building owner Vernon Huntton was taken to court by the city last month after a list of violations had gone months without being corrected.

Most of the defects have been repaired since.

Gun threat aimed at Northville woman

A Northville woman told township police that her former live-in boyfriend telephoned her on April 10 and threatened to shoot her. The man, who police said is living in a car, repeated the threat April 11, police said.

The woman told police that she does not want the man prosecuted.

THEFT FROM HOME: Thieves broke into a home under construction on Rolling Woods Drive and stole ceiling fans, light fixtures and bulbs, and electrical switches sometime March 16 or 17, township police said. Thieves reportedly gained entry through a window. Stolen items were valued at $516.

OUIL: A 20-year-old Sterling

Heights man was charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol after his arrest April 13 near the Haggerty Road/Five Mile intersection, township police said.

Police stopped the man after he reportedly turned through a flashing red light without stopping.

SCHOOL VANDALIZED: Someone spray-painted exterior walls at Meads Mill Middle School, 16700 Franklin, between April 5-8, township police said. Walls were painted in black with various graffiti, police said.

HUBCAPS STOLEN: Hubcaps valued at $200 reportedly were stolen from a 1990 Chevrolet Lumina parked near the Silver Springs/

Seven Mile intersection late April 7 or early April 8, township police said. The vehicle was parked in front of a residence.

WALLET STOLEN FROM SCHOOL: City police are investigating the theft of a wallet containing $75 in cash from a locker at Cooke School, 21200 Taft Rd. The wallet was taken from a teacher's locker sometime between 4:20-4:40 p.m. April 17.

MALICIOUS DESTRUCTION: City police are investigating the smashing of a pickup truck windshield parked at Foundry Truck, 456 E. Cady. Someone smashed the windshield, apparently with a piece of steel, sometime between 5:50-8:50 a.m. April 18. Damage was estimated at $150.

TAIL LIGHT LENS STOLEN: An Orchard Drive resident told city police someone stole the right rear tail-light lens from his 1984 Mercury Marquis while it was parked in his garage. The $100 lens apparently was taken sometime between 9 a.m. April 15 and 10 a.m. April 16. The garage was unlocked at the time.

WINDOW SHOT: A storm window on a Center Street building was broken by a BB or pellet shot sometime between 9 a.m. April 16 and 8:10 a.m. April 17. Damage was estimated at $50.

FENDER BENDER: A 32-year-old Northville woman backed out of an East Main Street driveway just east of the Griswold intersection at 7:40 a.m. April 16 and struck a west-bound vehicle stopped for the traffic signal. No injuries or citations were reported.

Novi pushes switch at I-96 and Beck Road intersection

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

Discussions now under way may result in a restructuring of the interchange at I-96 and Beck Road.

According to Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall, the interchange needs to be reconstructed to improve traffic flow and safety. He added that the changes would also allow drivers to get on to eastbound I-96 from Beck Road.

"The whole interchange needs to be totally rebuilt," Kriewall said.

Plans for the restructuring are being drawn by JCK & Associates, Novi's engineering consultants. Gary Foyt, vice president of the company, said plans were presented to the Michigan Department of Transportation last month to construct a "multi-level" interchange.

"I think it's a great idea," he said. "There are good reasons to do it that way."

By adding a ramp off of northbound Beck and constructing an elevated roadway from southbound Beck to eastbound I-96, access would be gained, Foyt said. He said that the entrance to westbound I-96 from Beck would have a similar design.

Entry to Beck Road from the highway would be gained by two separate routes. Westbound drivers would exit the highway onto Twelve Mile Road and head west to Beck. Eastbound drivers would gain access by the construction of ramps to the north and southbound portions of the road.

Currently, Beck loops into Twelve Mile Road just past I-96. Plans call for extending Beck Road farther past the highway, straightening the road, and connecting it to Twelve Mile at a conventional intersection.

Novi hopes to get a response on the plans from MDOT some time this summer, Foyt said. The agency, he said, may not approve the plans because of designs of their own.

"I'm not sure they will replace their (own) scheme," Foyt said.

MDOT's plans call for a cloverleaf interchange, he said. Instead of having long ramps to and from the highway, loops would be used to make the connections.

Foyt said the city prefers a multi-level configuration because it uses less land than the cloverleaf design. In any case, he said, the city wants a plan for the interchange in place as soon as possible so that development for the valuable land around it can take place.

"The area of Novi is being developed and we need to plan for the future," Foyt said.

Kriewall said the JCK plan would cost between $4 million to $5 million to implement. He said the project likely wouldn't begin for three to four years because MDOT will have to work it into its budget.

Thus far, the City of Wixom has been fully cooperative with Novi on the project, Kriewall said. He added that Wixom has also covered 50 percent of fees for the JCK design.

Meijer shooting came at busy shopping hour

By RICK BYRNE

The Northville Township Meijer store at 20401 Haggerty Road is a busy place at 8 o'clock most evenings.

On Thursday night the peaceful comings and goings of shoppers was disrupted by the crack of gunfire and a swarm of police and detective vehicles. Police attempted to set up an undercover drug buy that ended with two officers injured and the suspect shot dead.

While Thursday evening is not necessarily Meijer's busiest time, it's not a slack hour either. A reporter on the scene shortly after Thursday's shooting estimated that there were 400-plus cars in the Meijer lot.

According to officials present in the operation, suspect Ronald John Melnyk met them at the Elias Bros. restaurant on Haggerty at Eight Mile, and directed them to the Meijer lot to allegedly trade drugs for money.

Meijer spokespersons say they are alarmed that Melnyk would think of their lot as a secure place to make a drug deal.

"Of course that is disturbing," said Jennifer White, public and consumer affairs coordinator at Meijer's corporate headquarters in Grand Rapids. "We do take measures to make the lot safe for customers and associates."

At present, Meijer relies on township police patrols and the presence of shopping-cart collectors in the lot to maintain security. The store trains baggers and cart collectors in security procedures, and loss-prevention associates are also present inside the store.

"We have a lot of associates and customers that go in and out who can make our loss prevention associates aware of any criminal activity," White said.

Police and township officials are aware of the concentration of criminal activity at Meijer, and have adapted their procedures accordingly. In response to the number of reported shoplifting incidents, and the costs involved in sending officers to the scene, township police have given seminars teaching store employees how to write up acceptable reports.

Almost half of all cars stolen in Northville Township are taken from the lot. No other single site has any significant number of vehicle thefts. Police have said other crimes, ranging from purse snatching to assault and battery, occur with greater frequency at the store than elsewhere in the area.

White would not say whether this most recent incident, the first non-suicide shooting death in Northville Township since 1981, would spark any re-evaluation in Meijer security procedures.

"We do take measures to make the lot safe for customers and associates . . . We have a lot of associates and customers that go in and out who can make our loss prevention associates aware of any criminal activity."

The fatal shooting Thursday culminated a Michigan State Police-coordinated drug bust that also involved the arrest of a Dearborn Heights party store owner.

Ronald J. Melnyk, 33, of Westland was killed during a "buy-bust" operation by narcotics officers, according to Investigator Joe Koenig of the Michigan State Police Criminal Investigation Division (CID).

Lieutenant Dorothy McAleer of the Oakland County Narcotics Enforcement Team (NET) said Melnyk was "a sizable dealer for Novi."

A second man, who Koenig would only identify as a Dearborn Heights party store owner, was also taken into custody by narcotics officers Thursday. He said the party store owner was an "associate" of Melnyk.

McAleer said they had been conducting an investigation into Melnyk for nearly two months for cocaine dealings in Novi, and had made several buys from him already.

"We try not to do (these dealings) in parking lots."

DOROTHY McALEER

Koenig said they delayed arresting Melnyk so that the source of his cocaine supply could be traced. He said it's currently unclear if the CID has traced that source.

The state police investigator said it's likely that Melnyk was part of larger narcotics distribution system. McAleer said the investigation would continue.

On the night of April 18, she said, NET undercover officers had "ordered up a quantity of cocaine" from Melnyk, and the deal had been set to take place in Novi.

Novi police had been alerted that the deal was set to take place, and had been standing by to assist if needed, McAleer said.

Melnyk was originally scheduled to meet the undercover officers at the Big Boy restaurant at Eight Mile and Haggerty, and the NET officers had intended to move the deal to a less-populated area west of there. Melnyk, for unknown reasons, moved the delivery location across Eight Mile to the Meijer parking lot.

"We try not to do (these dealings) in parking lots," McAleer explained.

Narcotics officers were to have arrested Melnyk after the delivery. Koenig said authorization warrants for his arrest had been issued and were only lacking a judge's signature.

Koenig said Melnyk became "spooked" prior to the delivery and tried to flee the scene. Officers shot him after he had struck a NET officer with his vehicle following a brief chase through the Meijer store parking lot.

Melnyk was transported from the scene to Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills. He was pronounced dead on arrival.

The cocaine purchases by officers prior to Thursday night, he said, were "multi-ounces." He said officers purchased a total of seven ounces from Melnyk Thursday.

Later that same evening, McAleer said, two additional search warrants were issued elsewhere in the area in connection with the Melnyk case.

Koenig said one search warrant was issued for Melnyk's apartment. The other was issued for the Dearborn Heights party store.

The bust was coordinated by a lieutenant from the CID office, Koenig said. He added that officers from the Western Wayne County Drug Task Force were also involved in the incident.

Shooting will be scrutinized

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

An investigation into the fatal shooting of a 33-year-old Westland man in Northville Township Thursday evening will be completed early this week, according to Michigan State Police.

Lt. Richard Duthler of the state police post in Northville said Friday further interviewing of witnesses and processing of evidence would be needed to complete the investigation.

Ronald J. Melnyk, 33, of Westland, died after being shot by officers from the Narcotics Enforcement Team (NET), said Investigator Joe Koenig of the Michigan State Police Criminal Investigation Division. He said Melnyk was transported to Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Duthler said the Wayne County Prosecutor's office will determine if the shooting was justified. He said any charges against the officers would come from that office.

The Northville state police post was assigned to investigate the shooting after the incident. Duthler, who is heading up the investigation, said troopers worked through Thursday night and into Friday morning on the case.

Interviews with the officers involved in the shooting were conducted after the incident, he said. Officers gave their reasons for firing at Melnyk, Duthler said, but he declined to reveal them.

Duthler also declined to speculate if the shooting was justified. But, he said, if the prosecutor's office determines it was unjustified, charges against the officers could be serious.

"You are talking about a homicide," Duthler said.

Narcotics officers were conducting a "buy-bust" against Melnyk, Koenig said. In the operation, officers planned to buy narcotics from the Westland man and then arrest him.

Koenig said officers were set to purchase seven ounces of cocaine from Melnyk before the shooting. He said Melnyk became "spooked" and tried to flee the scene before the delivery was made.

The 33-year-old was shot after striking a NET officer with his car, he said. Duthler said a total of six shots were fired at Melnyk by officers.

Koenig said Melnyk was unarmed. Results of an autopsy by the Wayne County Medical Examiner were not available by press time Friday.

Suspect shot in drug sting attempt tional information could be available today.

"This will be an ongoing saga," he said.

State Police Inspector Joseph Koenig said officers had purchased illegal narcotics from Melnyk on other occasions.

Thursday's meeting was intended to be a "buy-bust", Koenig said, meaning police planned to arrest Melnyk after a narcotics purchase.

Officers originally met with Melnyk at the Big Boy restaurant on the northeast corner of Eight Mile and Haggerty in Novi, Koenig said. Melnyk decided to further discussions at the nearby Meijer parking lot, Koenig said.

The cocaine buy disintegrated after "something made the suspect start to flee," Koenig said.

No bystanders at the busy Meijer store were injured when police opened fire on Melnyk. Koenig said Meijer was not the preferred spot for a drug deal and arrest, but said "it was (Melnyk's) selection."

"We're normally very cognizant of (avoiding crowded areas)," Koenig said. He called the undercover operation "very sensitive."

Township fire department paramedic Ron Lane treated Melnyk at the scene.

Lane said he found Melnyk lying on his back outside his vehicle. Melnyk was bleeding from a laceration over his right eye and from "a hole in his chest underneath his left armpit," he said.

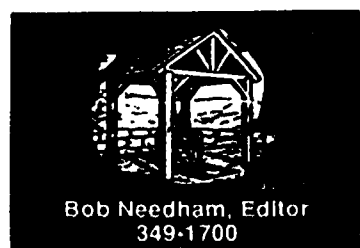

Melnyk was in cardiac arrest when Lane arrived.

"He had no pulse, no heartbeat," Lane said. Melnyk did not respond to resuscitation attempts, he said.

Township police were not informed of the sting before the deal fell apart. Chief Chip Snider said Friday. The township's role was limited to preparation of accident reports, he said.

"It would be redundant for us to investigate the shooting," he said.

The last non-suicide shooting death in Northville Township occurred in 1981, when a woman shot her estranged boyfriend outside Swan Harbour Apartments, said township police Lt. Gary Batzloff.

Our Opinion

No one's a good guy in Winner's Circle woes

It was easy to see the villain in last week's series of stories about a local apartment building that verges on being a tenement house.

The landlord did it. Right?

Wrong.

True, landlord Vernon Huntoon may have shown a definite reluctance to perform any but the most rudimentary repairs to the rooms at 111-113 W. Main St. But the fact remains that a long series of events and non-events led to the woe-filled living conditions that now exist at the Winner's Circle apartments.

First, the building was erected in 1922, long before municipal planners codified the set of zoning ordinances and building codes that regulate today's homes and housing units.

Second, the tenants themselves cannot escape without a measure of blame for the building's sad condition. Deficiencies have gone months without being reported to anyone but the landlord, whose track record regarding repairs is well known to those who live there.

Another crucial obstacle to improvements at the Winner's Circle has been the tenants' own ignorance of their rights and their landlord's responsibilities. But they can hardly be blamed for that. It took a reporter several weeks and a dozen phone calls, several to since-disconnected numbers, simply to locate a place where tenants can air their grievances and obtain information on their rights.

Lastly, the city itself cannot go blameless. Local officials have known for years of the ongoing building and safety violations at the Winner's Circle. Repeated threats of legal action were made against Huntoon, but those threats were never carried out until this year.

Also, the local building inspector had no idea until a Record reporter told him that one of three upstairs shower was leaking so badly that, according to tenants, it had been unusable for more than a year.

What about asking the tenants themselves? Who could be better qualified to point out unhealthy and unsafe living conditions than the people who are forced to live with them?

City officials have said their hands are tied in ordering improvements to the building, because its age allows it to conform to a looser set of rules than buildings today. But surely a case can be made that the health, safety and welfare of residents is affected by matters like grossly insufficient shower facilities, repeated fire-safety deficiencies and a long history of building code violations.

The Winner's Circle is a product of its environment, and conditions there have been allowed to deteriorate for years. The city now has a chance to turn the building — and the lives of those who cannot afford to live anywhere else — around.

To do any less would be to turn our backs on a group of Northville residents that has been ignored for too long.

Answers for tenants are tough

All I wanted was a few simple answers.

First I called the Health and Community Services office in Detroit. The young woman on the other end of the line seemed puzzled when asked where someone would call to lodge complaints against a landlord. She said, "I'm not sure we keep track of that kind of thing, but if we did it would be through our Environmental Health Department."

Moments later I was speaking to an equally young — and equally confused — secretary at Environmental Health. She hesitated, then gave me the number for something called "Landlord and Tenants' Rights." Moments after that, I was listening to a recording: "The number you have reached . . . has been disconnected. No further information is available."

Of course, no information had been available in the first place.

Leafing through my Rolodex I found a number with a Lansing area code, for something called "Michigan Housing Welfare Rights." It, too, had been disconnected.

I began to notice a trend.

The subject at hand was a local apartment building whose living conditions can be described, at best, as tolerable. Exposed wiring protruded from holes in the bathroom walls, clogged toilets reportedly went weeks without being fixed (or even emptied), and the upstairs tenants in 24 rooms had shared just two showers for more than a year because a third was broken.

Almost none of the tenants I had talked to actually enjoyed living there; most felt trapped out of economic necessity.

To make matters worse, the landlord had a long history of dragging his feet in making improvements to the building and complying with building code and fire safety requirements.

With such a history, I figured there must be some record of grievances against the guy. Thus began my search for a place that would take such complaints.

Call after call, I explained what I was looking for and was greeted with confusion. I couldn't even find a list of the requirements a landlord must fulfill to do business in Wayne County.

After several weeks, I finally got through to a helpful woman at the consumer protection division of the Attorney General's office in Lansing who said her office takes complaints about landlords. Tenants may call the Attorney General's automated complaint response system at (517) 373-1140 to file complaints and for a booklet of information on their rights. The office had no record of complaints against the landlord I had been tracking.

The woman also gave me a couple of other numbers for tenants to call: the Housing Resource Center in East Lansing, at (517) 337-9795; and the United Community Housing Coalition in Detroit, at (313) 963-3310.

In Ann Arbor, apartment managers are required by law to hand all new residents a booklet titled "Rights and Duties of Tenants." In it is a quote from an attorney: "You have fewer rights than you need. You have more rights than you know."

If the first part is true in Ann Arbor, it seems to be an axiom in Wayne County. And if the second part is true, I'm beginning to understand why.

It seems nearly impossible for most tenants to find out about their rights, let alone stand up for them.

Rolling around in the ditches

I was thinking about something John Zimmer once said as I was driving home a little after 11 o'clock last Thursday night.

I had interviewed Zimmer several years ago . . . after he had left the road patrol with the Novi Police Department to take the job of juvenile officer. Now Zimmer had always struck me as kind of a rough and ready cop, and I was curious as to why he would leave the road patrol to move into what is primarily a desk-oriented, administrative job.

I remember his answer well. "After so many years," he replied, "you get tired rolling around ditches."

I knew what he meant. Road patrol can be a tough job. The guys on the road are the ones who have to break up the occasional bar fight . . . police traffic accidents . . . subdue the occasional drunk who gets belligerent. Basically, the guys on the road patrol are the ones who have to "roll around ditches" to get the job done.

Zimmer's comment has come to mind several times since that interview. I thought about it a lot myself when I left my position at The Northville Record to take over what is primarily an administrative function as executive editor of Home-Town Newspapers.

My new position means that I no longer cover city council and school board meetings . . . that I no longer chase police and tracking dogs through swamps whenever there's a prison breakout . . . that I no longer have to leave Father's Day parties to cover tornadoes in Chateau Estates Mobile Home Park. Basically, that I no longer have to "roll around ditches."

I was thinking about it last Thursday night because I was on my way home from the Northville State Police Post where there had been an impromptu press conference about the drug bust that went awry in the parking lot at the Meijer store at Eight Mile and Haggerty Road.

Mike Jetchick, our advertising manager, had called me at home to tell me about it. I got on the phone immediately to Record Editor Bob Needham, who told me the staff was already on top of it . . . that they had been to the site and were currently at the State Police Post where a news conference was scheduled to start in a couple of minutes.

I like my new job a lot. It's a challenge. But I would be less than honest if I told you that I never miss the excitement, the sense of exhilaration, when you have to jump out of bed in the middle of the night to go cover some breaking news.

So, instead of heading back to my newspaper, I slapped on an old shirt and a pair of blue jeans, jumped in my car and headed out for the press conference.

It had just started when I got there, and it didn't take long to see that we were well represented. Mike Tyree and Rick Byrne were taking notes, asking questions. Bryan Mitchell was taking pictures.

I waited until the end of the press conference before conferring with Tyree and Byrne. They were headed out to the Northville Township P.D. for more details. Mitchell was headed back to the site for more pictures.

They had it covered.

"Looks like you guys are on top of it," I said. "If there's anything I can do, you have my phone number. Don't hesitate." I got in my car and headed home, while Mike and Rick and Bryan headed off into the night — looking for more details . . . other angles.

And I was envious. Sometimes, it's fun rolling around ditches.

Annual fireworks display may fizzle this year

"I don't get excited about the community supporting fireworks at all," said Trustee James Nowka. "I can feel very warm about contributing to a parade."

Nowka said he was willing to offer up to $1,500 for the parade, but other board members rained on that plan.

"We're under tight financial restraints," said Trustee Richard Allen. "Granted, fireworks are a tradition (but) we need to be extra careful."

Treasurer Betty Lennox expressed concern about fireworks liabilities.

"If there was a major injury, the township could assume the liability," she said.

Last year's Jaycees fireworks display was cut short when several people were slightly injured by falling debris.

Jaycees representative Teresa Follino was not appeased by the board's offer of $500 for the parade.

"Mark this date in history as the unfortunate demise of Fourth of July fireworks," she said.

The fireworks may rise again, though, due to a concerted fundraising effort by the Jaycees and the West Side Chapter of the Michigan Military Support Group. The two groups discussed several potential fundraising efforts at an April 17 meeting attended by Johnson and other city officials.

"It'd be a shame to drop (the fireworks) after 30 years," said support group co-founder Ginny Hathhorn. "This is a bad year to drop it."

Hathhorn said she would "beg, borrow or steal" enough money to fund a large Fourth of July celebration.

"There's going to be fireworks," she vowed.

The planners discussed several potential fundraising activities, including a 50 / 50 raffle and concession stands at area events. A karate tournament is also planned for June 8 at the Northville Recreation Center, 303 W. Main St.

Many events planned for Fourth to honor troops

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The West Side Chapter of the Michigan Military Support Group plans to combine this year's Northville Fourth of July celebration with a tribute to troops returning from the war in the Persian Gulf.

The hour-long tribute, titled "Operation Homecoming," is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. at the Main Street bandshell. The event originally was planned for the Northville Downs parking lot at noon.

The tribute was one topic of conversation at an April 17 meeting between the support group and the Northville Jaycees. The two groups are jointly planning this year's Fourth of July events.

The time and location of the tribute was changed after some friendly advice from local officials.

Police Chief Rod Cannon warned planners that high temperatures may drive crowds away in the middle of the day. "From 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. you're going to have to do something out of this world to keep people," he said.

Last year's extreme temperatures stifled midday activities, agreed Jaycees President Bob Cummings. "The Jaycees lost so much on the barbecue last year, that's why there are questions about it (this year)."

The planners also agreed to keep the tribute relatively short, after a half-serious word of caution from Mayor Chris Johnson.

"If you keep people around for much longer than an hour, they'll politely be leaving you in droves," he said. "My prepared remarks are not that exciting."

Support group co-founder Ginny Hathhorn predicted 300-400 military personnel and family members would show up for the tribute. Johnson promised that all who wanted would have a place in the day's celebrations.

"We'll have a float for everyone who wants to build a float, and we'll accommodate every soldier who wants to march in the parade," he said.

Hathhorn also plans to invite a special guest to this year's parade. As one of the founders of the local support group, she was invited to a White House dinner next week. There she'll attend an invitation to President George Bush to attend Northville's Independence Day festivities.

Others at the April 17 meeting advised her to extend the invitation to the First Lady, Barbara Bush. "We'll even take Mille," the presidential pooch, said Mary DiPaolo of MarketTrends, who is coordinating a Fourth of July danceathon and helping to raise funds for the day's events.

A moment later, DiPaolo suggested inviting Vice President Dan Quayle. "We'll take him, we'll take what we can get," she said.

A more local political figure, Gov. John Engler, has been invited to take part in the morning parade. Engler plans to attend Plymouth's Fourth of July celebrations that afternoon.

Hathhorn said the day's festivities may be covered by a national television station. "It's according to what we do," she said. "If we do something worth covering, they'll cover it. I doubt they'd cover a $1,200 parade."

The planners agreed that this year's celebration could — and should — be bigger than previous years.

"This is a one-shot deal," said DiPaolo. "It's not like we have a war every year. . . if those cameras are going to be rolling, let's give them their money's worth."

The Jaycees will hold another planning session May 1 at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall.

Legislature agrees on plan to 'freeze' property taxes

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Neighbors with identical houses may find themselves paying vastly different property tax bills in a few years if voters approve a 1992 ballot proposal to cap assessments.

"People will lose the incentive to trade up," said state Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, one of the handful of legislators to raise a voice against last week's bipartisan compromise.

"It will have a horrible effect on building. Builders and realtors ought to be going out of sight."

"It will pit low property tax payers against high property tax payers," Dillingham said. He predicted that longtime residents whose assessments had been capped might not mind voting for new local millage requests, but newcomers paying higher assessments would resist.

The Senate gave 31-3 approval to Senate Bill 19 and 30-5 approval to placing House Joint Resolution H on the 1992 ballot (See related story).

Dillingham was one of the no votes. All other area senators voted yes except William Faust, D-Westland, who was absent.

The House approved the measures by 101-4 and 104-2 votes respectively. All area members voted yes.

Taxpayers United, the group backing the Headlee II proposal to cut all property taxes 20 percent, objected that the plan would freeze assessments at high 1991 levels when, in fact, housing prices are declining because of the recession. "A freeze would be unconstitutional," said Bill McMaster, publicist for the anti-tax group.

Here is how neighbors with identical houses could wind up paying vastly different tax bills under the proposed constitutional amendments:

Take two $200,000 houses assessed this year at $100,000. Assume their assessments are capped at 5 percent over a 10-year period (the rate of CPI inflation during much of the '80s). Assume the real estate market inflates at the rate of 10 percent a year. At the end of 10 years, their assessments will be $155,133 (at 5 percent compounded).

At this point, Family A stays in its home, but Family B sells. House B is reassessed to the market rate (10 percent compounded) and is now valued at $235,795 — more than $80,000 higher than House A.

Dillingham said families will be discouraged from moving because of the hard hit they will take on property taxes as new owners.

Empty nesters whose children have grown would be discouraged from selling the four-bedroom colonial and moving into a one-bedroom retirement home because there would be little property tax benefit.

One result, Dillingham said, might be that families would sign lifetime leases on houses or concoct other devices to avoid an outright purchase with the resulting leap in assessments.

The compromise was negotiated by House and Senate leaders of both parties and Gov. John Engler after weeks of fruitless battling over rival plans for a property tax cut.

A week earlier, the Senate passed a bill to freeze property taxes for two years, beginning in 1991.

Raised a firestorm of protests because they could have lost $233 million in property tax revenue, with no state reimbursement and no way to cut their budgets this late in the planning process.

The new plan emerged in two days of closed door negotiations as representatives milled around or passed routine resolutions of tribute.

As passed, Senate Bill 19 may cost local units some revenue next year, said Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia.

In-formula school districts (those receiving state aid) would lose $97 million; out-of-formula, $163 million.

Counties would lose $50 million; cities and villages, $67 million; townships, $11 million; and community colleges, $8 million, for a total loss of nearly $400 million, according to an Senate Fiscal Agency analysis supplied by Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville. Total statewide property tax collections are $7 billion-plus.

Bankes said there still is a chance in-formula schools might be reimbursed. Engler's budget has money for his proposed property tax cut, which has no chance of passage in the Democratic-controlled House.

"Engler got two-thirds of what he sought — a freeze and a limit on future growth," Bankes said. "The provisions are somewhat altered from Engler's. He had proposed a freeze every other year in assessments until a limitation was adopted."

Local units still could see new revenue in 1992 from new construction, estimated at $243 million, according to the Senate Fiscal Agency.

There still is no legislative agreement on a property tax cut.

Engler and Republicans want a 20 percent cut in school operating taxes for everyone and would pay for it by reducing state spending.

Democrats want to exempt property taxes on the first $15,000 of home assessments to benefit low-income families and pay for it by raising business taxes.

THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE ORDAINS:

Section 1. That subparagraph (53) of Section 61.010 is hereby amended and Subchapter F is hereby added to Chapter 61 of the Compiled Ordinances to read as follows:

(53) "Solid waste" shall mean compostables, garbage, recyclables, rubbish, ashes, incinerator residues, street sweepings, municipal and industrial sludges, solid commercial and industrial waste, animal waste or other materials defined under Public Act 641 of 1978, as amended;

SUBCHAPTER F SOLID WASTE MANAGEMENT SYSTEM

61.750. Purpose and Findings.

A. Purpose. The purpose of this Subchapter is to protect the public health and welfare by assuring the timely and lawful collection of solid waste from owners of private property within the Township; and to implement well articulated public policies regarding the recycling and composting of certain portions of the waste stream and collection thereof; to provide for a reasonable system of user fees to defray the costs incurred by the Township in administering the system.

B. Findings. The Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Northville finds that regulation of the collection and disposal of solid waste is necessary to protect the public health and safety; that, under current circumstances, it is feasible to implement curbside pickup and disposal of residential recyclable materials, compostables and solid waste and that such implementation will be most efficiently accomplished by the Township entering into a contract for provision of such services; and that, at this time, it is not feasible to require separation of recyclable materials and compostables from other solid waste for persons using commercial receptacles for collection for their solid waste.

61.751. Definitions. The following words and phrases shall have the meanings ascribed to them in the interpretation of this Subchapter:

A. "Applicant" means an individual, sole proprietorship, partnership, corporation or association.

B. "Ashes" means the residue from the burning of wood, coal, coke, refuse, wastewater sludge or other combustible materials;

C. "Clerk" means the duly elected or acting clerk of the Charter Township of Northville.

D. "Compostables" means leaves, grass clippings, brush, wood debris under six inches in diameter, lumber, pallets, vegetative pruning, garden waste, yard waste, Christmas trees and wreaths.

E. "Curbside Collection" means the collection of solid waste which has been placed for pickup in appropriate solid waste receptacles at the side of public or private road adjacent to the abutting private property;

F. "Garbage" means rejected food wastes, including waste accumulation of animals, fruit or vegetable matter used or intended for food or that attends the preparation, use, cooking, dealing in or storing of meat, fish, fowl, fruit or vegetable;

G. "Private Collector" means any person, persons, firm, partnership or corporation to whom has been issued a private collector's license. This term shall not refer to the Charter Township of Northville's Contractor.

H. "Recyclable Materials" means those items listed in Section 61.754.

I. "Rubbish" means non-petroleum solid waste, excluding ashes, consisting of both combustible and non-combustible waste, including paper, cardboard, metal containers, wood, glass, bedding, crockery, demolished building materials or litter of any kind that may be a detriment to the public health and safety;

C. The fee for a solid waste hauler's license shall be $25.00 plus $5.00 for each solid waste transporting unit and each commercial receptacle owned or utilized by the licensed solid waste hauler in the Township. The Township clerk shall be notified of each additional solid waste transporting unit and each additional commercial receptacle placed in service after a new or renewal application has been filed, and accompanied by the aforesaid unit fee, before the Clerk may issue the decal for the additional units or receptacles.

D. A license shall be issued to the solid waste hauler applicant and a decal for each solid waste transporting unit and commercial receptacle of the applicant. The license shall be displayed at the licensee's principal place of business and produced for inspection by any representative of the Township or customer upon request to the licensee. Further, the Township may require of private and Township contractors other bonds of insurance including Workers' Compensation Insurance to insure the Township that the obligations of the contractors will be sufficiently performed and discharged, and the safety of the Township will be protected in the event that they are not.

H. If the applicant meets the requirements of this Subchapter, meets the requirements and rules promulgated pursuant to Act No. 641, P.A. 1978, agrees to abide by this and all other applicable township ordinances, including, but not limited to, site plans prepared pursuant to the zoning ordinance, and pays the applicable fees, then the Clerk shall issue a license to the applicant and for each acceptable solid waste transporting unit and commercial receptacle.

Oregon vintner likes challenge of pinot noir

"Burgundy is a classical wine region with limited land and strong traditions," contends Robert Drouhin, president of the renowned Burgundy house Maison Joseph Drouhin. "In Burgundy, we produce archetypical wines which must remain true to their predetermined type."

However, in Oregon, Drouhin is free to accept the technical difficulties of growing pinot noir, the wine world's most challenging grape.

Drouhin recently introduced the 1988 Domaine Drouhin Oregon Pinot Noir produced by his daughter, winemaker Veronique. About 1,500 cases are available nationally.

"Our goal is to make a wine as elegant as our Burgundies," Drouhin maintains. "But it must also demonstrate the special traits of an Oregon wine just as Clos des Mouches is recognizable as a Premier Cru from the Cote de Beaune."

In 1961, when Drouhin visited Oregon for the first time, he discovered the potential of growing pinot noir under different conditions from its original Burgundy home. The initial appeal was heightened in 1979, when Drouhin tasted the 1975 Eyrie Vineyard Pinot Noir Reserve. Later that year, the prestigious French magazine Gault et Millau conducted a tasting in which the same wine was more highly ranked than one of Drouhin's Burgundies.

Drouhin's 1959 Chambolle-Musigny won a rematch in 1980, but Oregon's Eyrie Vineyard placed a distinguished second.

In 1986, when Veronique, armed with an oenology degree from the University of Dijon, sought a wine apprenticeship, her father suggested Oregon wineries. Veronique worked at Adelshelm, Bethel Heights Winery and Eyrie Vineyards as her family actively searched for a perfect parcel of land for its Northwest United States venture.

In 1987, a hilltop property, 30 miles southwest of Portland in Dundee, Ore., was studied. The site approximates the same 45-degrees latitude and 500- to 800-foot elevation as Maison Joseph Drouhin in Beaune. Even the annual rainfall mirrors that of Burgundy.

However, the local decomposed red volcanic basalt soil is dissimilar to Burgundian soils. Since it was Drouhin's intent to make a pinot noir different from the red Burgundies he produces in France, and since his Oregon pinot noir tasting experiences convinced him of the quality potential of this wine, he exercised his option to buy a 100-acre property, which has since been expanded to 180 acres.

Currently, 27 acres are planted. Additional plots will be put under vines on an annual basis. Consequently, the first three vintages (1988 through 1990) of Domaine Drouhin Oregon wines were made from purchased grapes selected from local growers.

Beginning with the 1991 vintage, wines will be produced from estate vineyards and will be bottled with this designation.

While the winery was under construction, vinification of the 1988 vintage took place at Veritas Winery in Portland, where Drouhin shipped his own equipment, including horizontal and vertical fermenters. He also exported a wide variety of barrels, some new, some one year old, made from a variety of oaks from France's renowned central forests.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1988 Domaine Drouhin Oregon Pinot Noir ($34) is a melange of classic pinot noir aromas and flavors showcasing cherry-like fruit. The wine is handsomely balanced and complex. It tastes delicious now and will age gracefully for several years.

You may think that this wine is pricey. Actually, it's in line with the very best from California and Oregon, and if you compare it with the generously fruited 1988 Joseph Drouhin Chambolle-Musigny at $48, you will be impressed with this new bottling from Oregon.

Home Sweet Home is the home of shiitake mushrooms grilled with Dijon mustard

Home-grown mushrooms

Restaurateur harvests fungus among us

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Legend has it that if you find a four-leaf clover in a field, it will bring good luck.

When Steve Romanek, owner of the Home Sweet Home restaurant in Novi, was wandering in the fields of his new home in Livingston County, he came across a mushroom. Actually several thousand mushrooms. And as luck would have it, they happened to be one of the hottest food items in the country — shiitake mushrooms.

"I was looking for some real estate to invest in," Romanek says. "On the property, there were all these logs with mushrooms growing on them. I had no idea what kind they were. Lo and behold the logs produced shiitakes."

Scattered in the various hollows and gullies of his property were some 40,000 logs. In Romanek's first year as a shiitake farmer, he harvested some 22,000 pounds of mushrooms.

"And that's nowhere near our capacity," he says.

The process for growing shiitake mushrooms is still done the same way it has been done in Japan for centuries. It's simple, yet very labor intensive. Romanek often needs several people to help do what really is "dirty work."

Biologically speaking, the mushrooms grow from spores. Holes are drilled at several points in the log, and the spores are placed in the holes.

"It must be done in the winter when everything is dormant, and no fungus has been able to take over the tree when it's freshly cut down," says Romanek.

In the spring, the logs need to be thumped to agitate the spores, and start them growing. But when they do, watch out. Like something out of a Japanese monster movie, the mushroom spores will grow throughout the trunk of the log in tendril-like fingers, literally taking it over.

"When they break out, they come right through the wood and the bark, every where," Romanek says. "Not just where you've drilled the holes. They come in clusters of 15-20 at a time. It really is amazing to see."

Romanek also points out that Michigan's climate is similar to that of the mushrooms' native Korea.

"You usually have to keep sprinkling them with overhead water," he says. "They like it best when it's in the 70s and overcast."

"People in Florida have been doing it, but in Michigan it is almost ideal, too. The way the weather changes and the way it rains, sometimes we don't see the sun for two or three days."

Once the shiitakes are harvested, it takes 37 days for another generation to arrive. They grow to full maturity in seven days. The logs, usually birch, can be reused for seven years.

Romanek's crop of shiitake mushrooms is probably unlike what you are used to buying in the market. They are, in a word, huge.

Romanek demonstrates his unique strain by taking one from a case in the Home Sweet Home cooler. As in preparing all shiitakes, the woody stem is discarded. The cap that is left is the size of the average hamburger patty. He slices it open to reveal a pristine white cross section nearly a half-inch thick.

"They're really thick and meaty," says Romanek. "Lately the trend is that the people want the big ones. In Europe, they grill one, and serve it as a huge appetizer. We cut and skewer them, and cook them in a liquid to flavor them. Then we grill them with some Dijon mustard."

The liquid can also be reserved as the base for a cream soup, and some chopped shiitakes added to make a very popular shiitake mushroom soup.

Though the appetizer is equally popular, the farm yields far more shiitakes than Home Sweet Home could ever use. As a result, Romanek wholesales them to just about any restaurateur that wants them. Among his high-profile customers is the Golden Mushroom in Southfield. The only grocer currently buying from Romanek is the Shopping Center Market in West Bloomfield, though others are likely to follow.

As much enjoyment as Romanek gets from his shiitake mushroom farm, he can't eat them.

"I'm allergic to the spores, and only the spores of the shiitake," he says. "It took a while to develop, but I was just working around some of the logs and I couldn't even breathe. It was like I was choking."

But for shiitake lovers, there's nothing like the pleasure of the intense flavor of a fresh shiitake. Try some in the recipe included here.

GRILLED SHIITAKES DIJON
from Home Sweet Home

4 large shiitake mushrooms beef or chicken stock bamboo skewers
Dijon mustard to taste

Discard woody stems, and poach or boil the whole mushroom cap in stock, just enough to intensify their flavor. Remove from liquid and allow to cool. Skewer the mushrooms crosswise, so the caps lie flat. Spread with as much Dijon mustard as you like, and grill. Serve on a bed of shredded red cabbage.

Shucking oysters a labor of love

What a resplendent gift of nature the oyster is. Even hundreds of miles from the ocean fresh oysters on the half shell are reminiscent of the sea. You can see, smell and taste the saltwater.

Oysters are members of the mollusk family. Mollusks have shells divided into two halves, or two valves. They have a strong muscle that keeps the shell shut protecting them from predators, including man. If you have ever tried to shuck an oyster you're well aware of the strength and concentration required to open the shell.

Oysters prefer brackish, or salty, water and live in bays or coves where the currents provide their food. Each day 100 gallons of water are pumped in and out of an oyster bringing nourishment in the form of plankton and tiny larvae. Oysters must live in moving water to remain healthy.

Oysters have been revered throughout history by ancient Romans, American Indians and early settlers, William Shakespeare and millions nowadays. Unfortunately they are suffering from disease, pollution and over-harvesting by the same ones that love their unequalled flavor. Man and his environment are the oyster's worst enemy. The plankton that oysters feed on are sometimes tainted, and an oyster weakened by pollution is susceptible to disease. Hepatitis is an example, a frightening one, as it is undetectable by smell or sight.

A good rule of thumb is to purchase oysters from reputable sources. Oysters are generally sold according to their size, small, medium or large. The shells should be tightly closed and when shucked smell of the sea, fresh and salty. A spoiled oyster will be quite apparent to the nose.

Oysters should be stored in a cool place, 45 degrees, covered with a damp kitchen towel or paper towels. Never place in water or in an airtight container as they will die from lack of air. A fresh oyster has shelf life of 7-10 days. If purchasing oysters already shucked be certain the liquor is clear, not milky.

Clean the shells with a brush under clean running water. I like to do this before storing the oysters so they are ready to shuck on demand.

There are many ways to shuck an oyster but a tried and true method is as follows: Scrub oyster free of grit, wear heavy-duty rubber gloves to protect your hands from the rough shells. Hold the oyster in your hand, large side of the shell down, and find the hinged part of the oyster, the narrow end. Softly work the oyster knife into the hinge with a rocking motion. Then firmly twist the knife back and forth to open the shell. Once open, slide the knife across the top to cut the adductor muscle. Discard the top shell and serve.

If there is a lot of grit present from opening the shell, rinse the oyster in salted water, not fresh, to preserve the flavor. The oyster "juice" or liquor is like honey. To save it, shuck the oysters over a dish or pan and strain the juice through a coffee filter to rid it of grit.

Oysters are easy to serve. They may be presented fresh on the half shell with a garnish of horseradish, tabasco and lemon, in stews, chowders, baked, broiled, fried, with cheese, bacon, spinach and in a stuffing for poultry. To retain the delicate flavor of oysters never cook too long, just enough to heat them through. There is quite a tendency to overcook oysters. Remove oysters from the heat as soon as the edges begin to curl.

There are many myths that surround oysters.

Do oysters contain pearls? No. Another mollusk that resembles the mussel brings us pearls.

Are oysters to be eaten only in the "R" months? No. Oysters may be eaten year-round because of today's refrigerated transport.

Are oysters an aphrodisiac? Maybe, as they contain phosphorus, iron, copper and iodine, substances believed to enhance lovemaking. Maybe you'll have to eat some to prove or disprove this theory. Have fun.

LOW-FAT COOKBOOK: Repeated warnings to cut down on fat consumption leaves the American people with a real dilemma—how to eat healthily without depriving themselves of the foods they love.

Low Fat and Loving It by Ruth Spear (Warner Books, $19.95, hardcover) offers great-tasting solutions to the low-fat diet dilemma. Spear is a veteran cookbook author who developed an interest in low-fat cooking during her own health crisis. She has consulted with nutritionists and doctors to develop a plan for healthy and satisfying eating, with the latest nutritional data, substitutions for high-fat foods and more than 200 recipes.

HAM AND POTATO PIE Serves 5 (about 1 1/4 cups each)

Pam
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 cup finely chopped green pepper
1/4 cup defatted chicken stock, canned or homemade
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 1/4 cups finely chopped lean ham, all visible fat removed 2 cups seasoned corn (one 17-ounce can)
2 cups creamed Low-Fat Mashed Potatoes

Preheat the oven to 425 degrees.

Spray a large non-stick skillet with Pam and saute the onion over medium heat until softened, about 2 minutes. Add the green pepper, chicken stock, salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce and simmer uncovered for 10 minutes.

In a bowl, combine the ham, corn and onion mixture; then spoon this into an ungreased baking dish. Cover with the mashed potatoes, roughen the surface with a fork, and bake uncovered for 30 minutes, or until the top is flecked with brown. If necessary, run the dish under the broiler to brown.

KITCHEN WINDOW: Chef Elwin Greenwald, proprietor of Elwin's Tu-Go in Royal Oak, will conduct a short series of cooking demonstrations in the Lost Tuesday of April. The final session begins at 6:30 p.m., runs approximately two-and-one-half hours and includes light supper. Sessions are priced at $25 each.

The demonstrations have been titled "From Our Kitchen Window" because the prominent store windows of Elwin's Tu-Go allow the chef to be constantly aware of the changing seasons from his open kitchen. Each demonstration will revolve around a somewhat seasonal theme. For more information call 547-TUGO.

All participants will receive a packet of recipes and other pertinent information as well as an Elwin's Tu-Go "From Our Kitchen Window" apron.

Tofu's got meat beat

Bean curd has all the benefits with less fat

If you haven't tried tofu yet, you're missing out on a nutritious food that is high in protein, low in fat and cholesterol free.

Tofu, made from soybeans, has been a staple of Oriental cooking for about 2,000 years. It provides the major source of complete protein for the Oriental diet, which is largely vegetarian. Tofu has one of the highest ratios of protein to calories of all plant foods. It also is low in calories compared to beef. A four-ounce serving of tofu is just 82 calories. An equal amount of beef contains about four times that many calories.

Part of the attraction of this "meat substitute" is its ability to take on the flavors of whatever it is cooked with—from cheesecake to stir-fry dishes to tasty dips. Once you cook with tofu, you will find its flavor, nutritional benefits and versatility will win you over.

Tofu is usually found water-packed in a sealed plastic container and is available in most major supermarkets in the produce section. It comes ready to eat with no cooking necessary. Make sure to read the expiration date. Tofu, like milk, is perishable and turns sour after time.

Storing tofu properly takes a little effort, but it is well worth it. When you get the tofu home, drain, rinse and submerge it in a container filled with fresh cold water; cover and refrigerate. The cold water should be changed daily. Tofu will remain fresh up to a week. If you have extra tofu that you don't want to use, place away, drain and freeze. When ready for use, right the bag in warm water to thaw, then press out any water from the tofu.

There are many ways to cook and experiment with tofu. Try cutting it into bite-size cubes and stir-fry with vegetables, or add cubed tofu to create Tofu and Vegetable Salad. As tofu takes on the flavor of the food around it, olive oil, garlic and fresh spices combined with fresh vegetables make Tofu Tostadas a tasty Mexican entree. Puree it for use in dips, such as Tofu-Tahini Dip, which is scrumptious served with pita bread for dipping. For a spectacular dessert, try Tofu Cheesecake as a sweet and creamy treat without the extra calories of regular cheesecake.

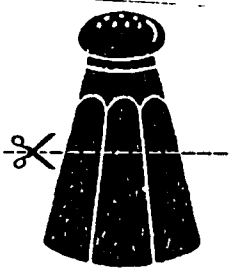

Get creative! The possibilities for adding variety to your recipes with tofu are endless.

Dash pepper
2 tostada shells

To serve, transfer tostadas to serving platter and serve with sour cream on the side. Garnish platter with cilantro (or parsley). Makes 2 Servings.

TOFU CHEESECAKE

16 graham squares (2 1/2 -inch squares), made into crumbs

1/2 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons orange juice (no sugar added)
1 1/4 teaspoons grated orange peel
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 1/2 ounces mini chocolate chips

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. To prepare crust, in medium mixing bowl combine graham cracker crumbs and cocoa; with pastry blender or 2 knives used scissors-fashion, cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Using the back of a spoon, press crumb mixture over bottom and up sides of 9-inch pie plate. Bake until crust is crisp, about 10 minutes; remove to wire rack and let cool. Leave oven on while preparing filling.

To prepare filling, in blender combine remaining ingredients except chocolate chips and process at high speed until pureed, scraping down sides of container as necessary; add chocolate chips and stir to combine. Pour tofu mixture into cooled crust and bake for 40 minutes (until knife, inserted in center, comes out clean). Remove pie plate to wire rack and let cool. Serve immediately or cover and refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes 8 Servings.

Each serving provides: 1 Protein, 1 Bread, 1 Fat, 65 Optional Calories.

Try fish boullion as a sauce base

By MAUREEN CLANCY
Copley News Service

Tonight, perhaps half of the well-heeled diners at Le Bernardin, New York's revered seafood restaurant, will dine on fish in a simple, clear broth. And they'll feel pampered, privileged and terribly au courant.

Yet, Le Bernardin chef/owner Gilbert LeCoze isn't about to take credit for creating a new style of sauce.

"I did it 10 years in Paris," the outspoken Frenchman says during a break from cooking. "All our grandmothers in Brittany did it. There's nothing new about fish a la nage (poached in aromatic boullion), but suddenly everybody is discovering it."

Nage translates literally from French as "swimming." The classic dish consists of fish or shellfish cooked and served in a vegetable-and-herb-scented broth. Sometimes the broth is finished with a swirl of butter or freshly minced herbs.

According to Eberhard Mueller, Le Bernardin's executive chef, the concept is in perfect sync with the dining public's increased interest in light, healthful foods and natural, unmasked flavors.

"Boullions are very popular. People are always looking for lighter foods," Mueller says.

One of the most popular items on Le Bernardin's menu is sea scallops poached in a chive-flecked boullion.

"We cook the boullion for one or two hours," says LeCoze. "The scallops are cooked in 30 seconds."

To prepare the dish, LeCoze simply places scallop slices in a hot soup plate, ladles some boullion into the plate, and places it in a hot oven for 30 seconds.

"If the fish is sliced thin enough, very hot boullion alone is enough to cook it."

The result is buttery morsels of fish, its delicate flavor enhanced by the fresh herbs.

Many fish can be prepared the same way.

At Le Bernardin, black bass is poached in fish stock and served with the stock, a bit of herb-scented boullion and thinly sliced zucchini.

Salmon, halibut, shrimp and black bass are served together in a boullion brightened with fresh basil.

John Dory in coriander boullion was one of the signature items of the original Le Bernardin opened by LeCoze and his sister, Maguy, in Paris 18 years ago. (They closed the Paris Le Bernardin when the New York restaurant became an overnight success in 1986.)

"The dish was really a fantastic success," LeCoze says with characteristic enthusiasm and pronounced accent.

The grandmas in Brittany stuck pretty much with the classic vegetable-and-water boullions. Today's chefs are more inspired.

"It's really a question of what we want to do next," says LeCoze of the creations he and Mueller dream up.

"Tomorrow we may have another idea of a boullion with a different perfume. Sometimes, to give some elegance to the dish, we add a bit of fish stock; sometimes some white wine; sometimes a touch of tomato. There are many, many possibilities."

COURT-BOULLION (Nage)

2 medium carrots, sliced into thin rounds

1 cup onion, finely sliced

4 shallots, chopped

1 clove garlic, crushed

1 sprig fresh thyme

¼ bay leaf

3 sprigs fresh parsley

salt and pepper to taste

¼ cup dry white wine

¾ cup water

Yields about 1 ½ cups.

Place vegetables and herbs in saucepan; season with salt and pepper. Add ¼ cup white wine and ¾ cup water. Simmer gently for 20 minutes and cool.

Fish poached in an aromatic boullion can be an excellent base for soups or sauces

Food and fun programs begin

Who says food that's good for you can't also be fun? Health Development Network, a division of Botsford General Hospital, doesn't think so. That's why it's adding a new series to its education menu: food and fun.

"People tend to believe that because some foods are popular, they have little nutritional value," said registered dietician Gale Cox, wellness program coordinator at Health Development Network. "Pizza, for example, has products from all four food groups and can be healthy when prepared with low-fat cheeses."

The food and fun programs began on April 18, with a session presented by Chef Carl Oshinsky, also known as the Pizza Gourmet, who was recently featured in a 13-part PBS series. On May 9, Health Development Network hosts "Prize Winning Bread," presented by Larry Galbraith. Kay Sweeney, who holds a doctorate in higher adult and continuing education from the University of Michigan, will conduct a creative food experience workshop entitled "Kids in the Kitchen," on June 1. Cost is $5 per class.

Health Development Network offers a complete range of community health promotion programs and activities, including weight management, smoking cessation and back care programs. In addition, it offers work-site programs customized to the individual needs of businesses.

Health Development Network, located at 39750 Grand River Avenue in Novi, is a department of Botsford General Hospital, a 336-bed osteopathic teaching hospital serving Farmington Hills and surrounding communities.

Hallmark undertakes tough task in topping Hitchcock

'Shadow of a Doubt' remade for network TV

Amy Schmidt

Actor Mark Harmon, who played Ted Bundy in the TV miniseries "Deliberate Stranger," will once again play a seemingly guileless figure intent on cloaking his devious dark side in CBS' "Shadow of a Doubt." The Hallmark Hall of Fame Presentation, a remake of Alfred Hitchcock's 1943 classic, will broadcast Sunday, April 28, on CBS.

Co-starring with Harmon in the nail biter are Margaret Welsh ("Mr. and Mrs. Bridge") and Oscar-nominee Diane Ladd ("Wild at Heart"). Two-time Hitchcock star Tippi Hedren ("The Birds" and "Marnie") makes a special appearance in the telefilm. Joseph Cotten, Teresa Wright and Patricia Collinge first starred in the original film 48 years ago.

"Shadow of a Doubt" is the suspenseful tale about a much-loved Uncle who moves to California to live with her sister's family. Ironically, Uncle Charlie's favorite young niece, who is also his namesake, begins to suspect her uncle is not all he appears to be.

The film is said to be Hitchcock's favorite because it deals with evil impinging on the lives of ordinary people. The director took care to choose the details of his films very closely, and in "Shadow of a Doubt," this meant things like arranging for black smoke to billow from the train upon which Uncle Charlie makes his fateful ride into town.

Notwithstanding, the celluloid genius never won an Oscar for his directing efforts.

Why attempt to remake a classic? That's what Diane Ladd wondered when she was first offered her role. The actress says she wasn't interested in the project until she discovered an opportunity to work with director Karen Arthur. Harmon, on the other hand, loved the idea. "I loved it then, and I love it now," he says.

This is not the first time "Shadow of a Doubt" has been remade. A less successful version of the film titled "Step Down to Terror" was released in 1958.

Hallmark, with its impressive 40-year film track record, could conceivably work wonders with the new film. The difference between the 1943 and the 1991 versions? For one, the remake is done in color and in a setting 10 years later than the original. "I wanted to give the picture a different look," says executive producer Norman Rosemont. "Also, Hitchcock shot in black and white, and we're filming in color so it was important we set the picture in a more colorful era." Another difference is that in the remake, Harmon's character is portrayed as seemingly less evil, and deceptively more amiable. "Uncle Charlie is really a charmer. He fits into this town," says director Arthur. Similarities include the fact that both movies were filmed on the same street, McDonald Ave., in Santa Rosa, Calif.

An interesting footnote on the film is that Hitchcock refused to attend its premiere in Santa Rosa. "He sent me instead," says his daughter Patricia O'Connell. "And I soon learned why. The theater was jammed, and I couldn't hear a word of dialogue. Everybody kept pointing at the screen and yelling, 'There I am. That's me'."

With any luck, the new version of the film will spur viewers who haven't seen the original "Shadow of a Doubt" to do so—whether they're from Santa Rosa or not.

SOAP TALK

Possibility open for Tad's return to 'AMC'

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: Is Michael Knight (Tad Martin, All My Children) ever going to come back to the show? I just keep hoping he will. It isn't the same without him. I never miss an episode. —Mintie Cline, Sapulpa, Okla.

Dear Mintie: Knight's departure from the show was left open so that it would be possible for him to return at a later date. He is, at present, pursuing other acting interests and was supposed to be getting married soon. Unlike others pursuing careers in prime-time television, Knight has decided to stay in New York rather than moving out to Los Angeles.

Send your comments about the show to: General Hospital, c/o ABC Audience Information, 77 W. 66th St., 9th Floor, New York, NY 10023.

'Chernobyl' explodes on TNT

By Christy Bergslien

Oscar-winner Jon Voight makes his TV movie debut Monday, April 22, when he stars in Chernobyl: The Final Incident on TNT. The telefilm dramatizes the worst nuclear accident in history as seen through the eyes of one Ukraine family. More than 130,000 people are evacuated from the contaminated zone and nearly three million acres of farmland are unusable. Jason Robards co-stars.

Why would a man kill only women in red dresses? Why would a burglar use a square knot to tie up his hostages? These are the kinds of questions FBI investigators try to answer in order to establish a psychological profile of a criminal. Hollywood has developed a fascination with this work as evidenced by this year's blockbuster Silence of the Lambs. Now Lifetime has come up with its own brand of profile thriller. In The Killing Mind, debuting Tuesday, April 23, Stephanie Zimbalist plays a police sergeant in the dogged pursuit of a killer.

Three women gang up on a man who they discover has betrayed them all in Ring of Scorpio, a two-part miniseries airing on the USA Network. Jack Scalia and Catherine Oxenberg co-star Wednesday and Thursday, April 24 and 25.

Live sports action this week includes: The Mets vs. Montreal Sunday on ESPN and WLAF action on USA Monday, as the Sacramento Surge face the New York Knights.

Wayne Newton hit the jackpot with Las Vegas performing deal

By Polly Vonetes

Q: This is the second time I've written. Could you please give me some information on Wayne Newton? Do you have an address where I might write to him? I have been a fan of his for many years. —S.P. Thomson, Ash Flat, Ark.

A: Wayne Newton was born in Norfolk, Va., on April 3, 1942. He started taking music lessons when he was 6, and by the time he was 16 he had become a regular on the Jackie Gleason, Jack Benny and Ed Sullivan television shows. His first hit single, "Danke Schön," produced by his good friend Bobby Darin, made him a household name. Subsequent million-sellers included "Red Roses for a Blue Lady," "Summer Wind," "Dreams of the Everyday Housewife" and "Daddy Don't You Walk So Fast." Ultimately he snagged the biggest performing contract in Las Vegas history, where he earns approximately $10 million or more annually. His marriage in 1968 to Elaine Okamura, an airline stewardess, produced his daughter Erin in 1977. The couple was divorced in 1985. He spends his leisure time breeding Arabian horses, flying his jet helicopter

BITS AND PIECES

Comedian Jerry Lewis is on location in the Arizona desert, working on his latest film. The film, Arrow-Tooth Waltz, also stars Faye Dunaway and Johnny Depp. Lewis has appeared in 53 films since making his movie debut in My Friend Irma with Dean Martin 42 years ago.

In some ways the "Indian War" is still being fought. Tom Mauchachty-Ware, an Indian dance champion and musician, was hired to provide the authentic melody played throughout the ABC miniseries Son of the Morning Star. Mauchachty-Ware claims he composed 26 original pieces, which he played on the Indian flute, for a minimal sum, hoping to gain recognition. But when the film aired and the credits rolled, Ware's name was not listed anywhere. An entertainment attorney hired by Mauchachty-Ware's manager is looking into the matter.

Production has begun in Austin, Texas, on a film starring Dolly Parton and Ray Benson, singer and leader of the Grammy-winning country western band Asleep at the Wheel. The NBC World Premiere movie, as yet untitled, is about a singer whose chance at stardom is smashed when she is suspected of murdering her abusive lover.

Gary Collins will not be returning to host the Miss America pageant this year. The reason for Collins' departure was not clear, although a press release from Collins and the Miss America Organization said the decision was mutual. No replacement has been chosen.
