Rezmierski picked to head schools

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

The Northville School Board on Sunday narrowed down its list of candidates for superintendent so far that only one person was left.

Northville Executive Director for Special Education Leonard Rezmierski is expected to take over as superintendent in early October. Rezmierski was selected Sunday evening in a special meeting held following a week of interviews.

The board planned to narrow down its field of seven candidates to an undetermined number.

Three candidates were top vote-getters among board members. But after voting three times, Rezmierski was unanimously selected.

Board Secretary Carol Rahimi said she made a list of the qualities a superintendent should possess.

"Over and over, Len came out on top," she said.

The board voted in open session. But candidates were assigned secret numbers known only to board members.

In the first polling, board members selected three candidates. Two superintendent hopefuls received five votes. One, who was later revealed as Rezmierski, received seven.

In the second round, board members could vote for two candidates. The same three candidates got all of the votes. Rezmierski received seven votes. The unidentified candidates split the remaining votes with one receiving three and one receiving four.

For the third round, each board member could vote once. Rezmierski received every vote.

If the top vote-getter had been an out-of-district candidate, the board would have conducted second interviews of the top candidates, said board President Jean Hansen.

"We would have gone with more candidates and gone a little more in-depth so we could check for skeletons in their closets," she said.

Knowing the top candidate was from within the district, the board opted to skip the second interviews and offer Rezmierski the job.

Rezmierski has been employed in Northville Public Schools since 1976.

He has worked with the past three Northville superintendents. Rezmierski said he has a certain amount of apprehension and humility at following in the footsteps of past leaders.

"There have been overwhelming accomplishments in this district," he said.

He hopes to serve as a good role model for students. Another goal he expressed was to include as many people as possible in decision making.

Rezmierski said he was encouraged when many parents and teachers showed up during the interview process to support him.

Folino, Johnson will run again

By STEVE KELLMAN

Two Northville incumbents say they are sure to run again for their city council seats, but a third is not so certain.

Mayor Chris Johnson and Council Member Paul Folino said they plan to seek another term in the Nov. 5 elections. Council Member Carolann Ayers said she is still undecided, but will decide whether to run again within the next several weeks. Johnson and Ayers are the only people who have pulled petitions for the council spots up for grabs in November, and Folino said he plans to pick up a petition soon.

Candidates for any of the three positions must file nominating petitions between Sept. 1 and Oct. 1. Petitions may be picked up at the clerk's office at Northville City Hall, 215 W. Main St., and must be signed by 50-75 registered city voters.

Would-be office holders must have been a Northville City resident for two years by the last day of filing, Oct. 1, and must be registered to vote in the city.

Mayor Johnson, finishing his second two-year term as mayor, said he takes pride in the council's accomplishments under his tenure.

"I think I've done a lot of good things for the city, and would like to continue," he said. "I'm very pleased with having had the Master Plan reviewed and updated. . . . That was one thing that I was very interested in

Voters renew police millage

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Northville Township voters on Tuesday voiced satisfaction with the township police department by approving a three-year, 1.3921-mills police operations request.

Voter turnout was light — only about one in 10 registered township voters cast ballots — and the police millage easily passed by an 842-444 count, according to an unofficial tally posted at township hall.

The millage, a renewal of a pair of expired tax levies, is expected to raise approximately $624,000 annually for the police department, and represents about 40 percent of the department's current $1.5-million budget.

Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss and Wayne County Commissioner Maurice Breen, both Republicans, also swept to victory in a pair of uncontested races.

Goss will fill a vacancy in the state House. She defeated two opponents in an Aug. 6 primary and will succeed

Local jazz at festival

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Local musicians will jazz it up in Detroit this weekend.

The Northville High School Jazz Ensemble is on the lineup to perform at the Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival.

The festival begins tomorrow night in downtown Detroit's Hart Plaza. Jazz fans can listen to the high school band and their other favorite performers as the festival continues throughout the Labor Day weekend on three different stages on Detroit's riverfront.

Northville High School musicians are scheduled to play Monday, Sept. 2, from 1:15 to 2:15 p.m. on the Pylon Stage at Hart Plaza.

The 12th annual festival runs through Monday evening with over 100 free concerts.

Student groups have been participating in the event since its inception in 1980, although this is the first time Northville High School will appear. Scholarships and citations to outstanding soloists will be awarded by the International Association of Jazz Educators at 5 p.m. Monday at the Amphitheater Stage.

The association also provides an opportunity for amateurs, students and fans to meet professional jazz musicians during clinics and open rehearsals held throughout the festival at the Top of the Pontch in the Radisson Hotel Pontchartrain, 2 Washington Ave. Call 259-7749 to reserve space in the clinics and workshops. The workshops and clinics are free and held in conjunction with the Southeastern Michigan Jazz Association.

The NHS Jazz Ensemble plays at Hart Plaza on Monday.

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Cy Holley continued to drop bad checks across the nation this week like some southern-fried Johnny Appleseed.

Holley and his Cajunfest Productions crew apparently marched one step ahead of the law all summer long, from New Orleans to Norfolk to Northville, from Florida and New Jersey to Chicago.

A bounced check here, a cash deal promise there. The list of those who want a word with Holley lengthens.

Some indications are that Holley's bad-check end run is almost over, though.

The Northville City Council granted Cajunfest Productions a permit to operate an Aug. 16-18 festival at Northville Downs racetrack. Cajunfest was to feature culinary delights from deep in the bayou, Cajun music, and pony rides. Holley, a smooth-talking southerner with darting eyes and a hurried gait, promised fun for all.

But festival attendance was extremely light in Northville, and the event turned into a debacle when Holley inked his name to a bevy of worthless checks.

Northville Downs, the Livonia branch of the Muscular Dystrophy

Association, Porta-John of Shelby Township, Waste Management of Livonia, and Central Distributors of Beer of Romulus were apparent victims of the Cajunfest scam.

Combined, the businesses lost nearly $10,000 to Holley's bad checks.

And Northville area businesses are not alone.

JOHN LOBBIA

Northville resident John Lobb, the chairman, president and chief executive officer of Detroit Edison, will give the featured speech at the eighth annual Friends of the Northville Public Library Benefit Dinner.

The dinner will start at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 30 at Geniti's Hole-in-the-Wall restaurant. Cash bar starts at 6:30.

Tickets are $20 and are available now at the library desk for members of the Friends. Tickets are available only to Friends members until Sept. 10, when they will go on sale to the general public.

The annual benefit dinner is the most important fund-raising event for the Friends of the Library. The Friends provide materials and services to the library which are not covered by the library's budget, and library needs are currently increasing. The Friends hope for another sell-out of the limited seating this year.

Lobb, a native of Chicago, first came to Detroit in 1959 to attend the University of Detroit. He graduated from the university in 1964 with a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering. He joined Detroit Edison the same year as an associate primary service engineer in the sales department.

He advanced through various engineering and operations positions to the post of vice president of Financial Services in 1984. In May 1987, Lobb was elected executive vice president responsible for corporate planning.

He was elected president and chief operating officer in 1988 and was elected chairman, president, and CEO in May 1990.

In addition to his Detroit Edison responsibilities, Lobb is very active in the community. He is chairman and chief executive officer of the Detroit Economic Growth Corporation, vice chairman of Detroit Renaissance and a director/trustee of numerous other civic organizations, including the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan, Economic Alliance for Michigan, Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, New Detroit Inc., Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau, and United Way.

He is a director of various professional and industry organizations, including Advance Reactor Corp., Association of Edison Illuminating doing when I first became mayor, because it hadn't been done in a while, and with prodding, that occurred."

Johnson also cited continuing talks with Ford Motor Co. over the fate of the former Ford Valve Plant as a success. The city is seeking to retain control over the plant's reuse, whether as a community library or other civic service, or as a multi-use development.

"I feel very pleased that we've opened up and continued a dialogue with Ford over the Ford Plant," Johnson said. "I wish Ford had gotten to the point where they can resolve that, but our studies provided a road map for Ford that's acceptable to them, at least in terms of talking to them about it when they're finally able to sell the property. I think that's a significant accomplishment."

The mayor and other council members were also instrumental in reversing a potential loss of state-returned racetrack revenue this year, petitioning legislators for their assistance and traveling to Lansing to lobby before the Department of Agriculture, the state entity that oversees disbursement of the statutorily mandated funds.

"I look at the work that we did this past spring with the racetrack funding as being a real accomplishment for the city," Johnson said. "We had a lot of work to do and a very short span of time to do it in order to protect the city's interest on the racetrack issue."

Johnson said he also takes pride in the MainCentre mixed-use development, and looks forward to completion of the expanded Cady Street parking deck that will serve MainCentre, other proposed retail and office developments, and visitors to downtown Northville.

"As we finish up the parking deck and complete that task, that's one thing that I definitely want to complete while being the mayor, getting that parking situation resolved. We've taken great steps forward in the past several years by doing that and I think it's really important that people made a real difference in that decision as well.

"For example, a lot of boards and councils you might find around the state would have one plan and never budge from it, but when people came in with some better ideas, our city council listened and we moved the parking deck, and I think in the end it'll work out best for all the parties involved. And I think that's an accomplishment. Not many communities you can say that of."

The multi-story deck was originally designed for the parking lot south of MainCentre, but it was moved to the site of the current Cady Street deck after citizens protested the Center Street location.

Paul Folino cited the city's senior housing complex and downtown improvements as his most notable accomplishments as a city leader.

"Allen Terrace, I was the one who first suggested that and kept at our council until we finally appointed a housing commission," he said. "I had a lot of resistance toward that to begin with.

"The other thing is MainStreet '78. That was voted down by the people and then, the time I was president of the Chamber I asked the council to give us that project if they would, and try to do something to better the community, because we needed something like that to spark up the business community. . . . Three and a half months later we got the vote reversed."

Folino also cited the repavement of South Main Street during his tenure as Chamber of Commerce president as an accomplishment.

"We ended up getting state legislation passed in order to accomplish that one because the city bonded the money for that county road, and legislation had to be passed by the state in order for that to happen," he said.

"It was five years down the road for them to redo that street, and we said we can't wait five years because this road was so bad that people including myself would hit a chuckhole and bend a wheel. . . . I sent letters to Wayne County commissioners that I knew at that time on the board, the governor and lieutenant governor, our state representatives and federal people up in Washington, and the first thing you know the Wayne County Road Commission called and said 'Hey, back off, we'll meet with you.'"

"A gentleman who lives right here in town was on that board and he said never had they been as deluged with calls. It just took everyone working together to make them move."

Folino said his overriding concern as a council member is to serve as a voice for the people of Northville. "I just have been a very concerned person, a person that tried to use a little common sense on everything that we discussed at council meetings and tried to vote in what I feel is the best interests in the community," he said. "Maybe I read too much, maybe I take and watch those things too closely, but damn it, that's what I feel that I'm up there for."

Folino was first elected to the council in 1969, and returned to the council in 1981 after a four-year absence.

Carolann Ayers, who would be seeking her fourth term if she decided to run, said she has not yet made up her mind.

"I've taken out petitions, I just haven't decided what I'm going to do yet," she said.

"I have mixed feelings. Twelve years is a long time, but then again I'd like to get Gary (Word) off to a good start as the new city manager."

"Chances are I'll run." Council members Jerry Mittman and Dewey Gardner need not hit the campaign trail until 1993, the year their seats are up for re-election.

Players huddle over lake mess

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A solution must be found to clear the murky Waterford Pond and Phoenix Lake problems, all involved parties agree.

But a remedy is more than a dam site away.

Officials from Wayne County, the state Department of Natural Resources, Northville Township and an area developer huddled yesterday with representatives of two local homeowners' associations to discuss problems with Waterford Pond and dam and Phoenix Lake.

The group agreed to continue talks and research possible remedies to individual problems with the dam, pond and Phoenix Lake, but hinted that official follow-up action might not occur until February or March 1992.

Wednesday's chat at township hall was the second such gathering since a portion of Waterford Dam gave way last January. Waterford Pond, a 40-acre water body nestled between the Lakes of Northville subdivision, Cedar Lake Apartments, and by Six Mile and Northville roads, emptied that cold January evening, dumping tons of water and silt into the Middle Rouge River.

Today, the Middle Rouge meanders through tall grasses that sprouted on Waterford Pond's lake bottom. In addition, eroded lake bottom was swept downstream and deposited near the mouth of Phoenix Lake, creating a grassy marsh area that has failed to gain the favor of Phoenix Lake residents.

DNR and county officials on Wednesday pledged to work together on a Waterford/Phoenix plan of attack.

The former Waterford Lake now sits as a meadow along the Middle Rouge River.

Wayne County Commissioner Maurice Breen said he would ask his fellow commissioners to approve a resolution to send to the director of the DNR. The resolution reportedly would ask the DNR to define possible remedies "to restore the condition of Phoenix Lake," Breen said.

County Department of Public Works staffers also would compile a study, using DNR investigative reports, on potential costs and environmental impacts to the Middle Rouge system and Phoenix Lake, according to the agreement.

Frank Jonna, president of a development company that owns the failed Waterford Dam, was asked to have his insurance carrier submit a review of dam-related damages.

DNR officials agreed to form a task force to study the affected area and work with the county on a solution.

Residents were pleased that a dozen county, state, township and development officials could calmly debate the dam-related problems, but expressed frustration at a perceived bureaucratic approach to repairs.

"I don't care who does it; I'd like something done," said Garl Sipple, president of the Whisper Woods Homeowners Association. Whisper Woods borders Phoenix Lake.

Gini Britton, Lakes of Northville Homeowners Association president, echoed Sipple's sentiments.

"The problem is, for the last eight months, no one has (claimed) jurisdiction."

Jonna, whose firm hopes to develop a 39-acre parcel adjacent to the Waterford Pond area, may be the key player. Jonna said his engineers had developed a possible dam replacement strategy designed to provide access to the proposed development area.

"We view the water surface as an enhancement to our property," he said. But Jonna suggested that a special assessment district comprised of affected property owners could foot the bill for a new dam.

And Jonna — with DNR officials nodding in agreement — reminded everyone that he is under no legal obligation to repair Waterford Dam.

Thieves hit township golf club twice in a week

Thieves targeted Brooklane Golf Club, 44155 Six Mile Road, for the second time in less than a week, township police said.

The golf club's manager told police someone stole up to $5,345 worth of video equipment and clothing from the business late Aug. 21 or early Aug. 22.

Brooklane management reported the theft of video equipment Aug. 17, but thieves made a larger haul during the latest incident. An inventory of stolen items included a video splitter, a camcorder, a wide angle, a video cassette recorder, a lens, special effects generator, two cameras, nine women's sweaters, four women's shirts, and a .16-gauge pump shotgun.

Police believe the culprits used stolen keys to gain entry to the building.

HOCKEY EQUIPMENT STOLEN: A Northville man told township police that someone stole $1,210 worth of hockey equipment from the back of his 1988 Ford pickup while it was parked in the lot at Meijer, 20401

Haggerty, early Aug. 21.

The man told police he was in the store 15 minutes and returned to discover that his duffel bag, skates, pads, helmet and jersey were missing.

DENTAL EQUIPMENT REPORTED MISSING: A Northville woman told police someone stole her daughter's custom-made dental device from a lunch room table at Mead's Mill Middle School, 16700 Franklin, at about 11:30 a.m. May 22.

The report delay was due to an insurance claim, the woman said. The dental device was valued at $670.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY: Township police are seeking an assault and battery warrant against a 20-year-old Northville man after he reportedly punched a 16-year-old Northville youth in the face during an Aug. 18 altercation outside Player's Choice, 43003 Seven Mile.

Police records indicate that the 20-year-old twice punched the youth in the face after accusing the youth of spray-painting his father's vehicle with a "Smooth Criminals" logo. The 16-year-old reportedly received a bruised left jaw and a cut under his right eye.

The 16-year-old told police he did not fight back and will press charges against the suspect. Police said the suspect admitted punching the youth. The youth reportedly denied the spray-painting charges.

POLICE INVESTIGATE REPORTED ASSAULT: City police are investigating a reported assault at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall, 438 S. Main St., just after midnight Aug. 24. A 44-year-old Novi man, involved in "a heated discussion" with several patrons, reportedly grabbed another patron by the neck and choked the person as he was leaving after the argument. The alleged victim said he was not involved in the argument, and the alleged attack was unprovoked. Witnesses corroborated the victim's story.

SEMI TRAILERS STOLEN: A man leasing space at the corner of Doherty Drive and Railroad Street told city police that two semi-tractor trailers worth a total of $15,000 were stolen off the lot earlier this month. A red 44-foot Fontaine trailer valued at $8,500 and a silver Hobbs trailer with corrugated aluminum sides were reportedly taken sometime between Aug. 1-8.

THEFT FROM APARTMENT STORAGE AREA: A black knee-length leather coat valued at $300 was taken sometime between Aug. 17-23 from the basement storage area at Northville Green Apartments, 675 Randolph St. The thief apparently gained entry into the storage room by pulling open the wire screen on the storage room door. City police surmise that the thief got into the building by buzzing apartments until someone unlocked the main door.

MAN TURNS HIMSELF IN: A 31-year-old Southfield man turned himself in to city police Aug. 24 on two Northville Township warrants. The man was wanted for failing to appear in court on trespassing charges. He was released by city police after posting a $200 cash bond.

CAR WINDOW BROKEN: A car parked in a Cady Street driveway had its driver's-side rear window smashed sometime between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Aug. 26. Damage was estimated at $100. Both the victim's driveway and a neighbor's were found covered with rocks after the incident.

PINS STOLEN FROM CAR: An estimated $15 in pins were stolen from a car parked in a Maplewood Street driveway. The silver and gold state emblem pins and a small gold cross were taken off the passenger-side visor of the locked car sometime between 8:30 p.m. Aug. 23 and 8:45 a.m. Aug. 24.

FOUND BICYCLES: City police received two abandoned bikes last week. A white mountain bike was turned in Aug. 26 by a Yerkes Street homeowner, who said the bike had sat in his yard since the night of Aug.

24. A red boy's bike was found outside Papa Romano's, at 117 E. Dunlap St. at 3 p.m. Aug. 25. The bike, with two flat tires, had been there for at least three hours. To claim either of the bikes, call the Northville City Police Department at 349-1234 with a more complete description.

FENDER BENDER: City police reported one accident last week. A 45-year-old Detroit driver pulling a trailer into a Randolph Street driveway reportedly struck a car parked on Randolph at 2 p.m. Aug. 17. The man left the scene without reporting the accident, but a witness reported it to city police. When contacted by police, the man said he was unaware he had struck another vehicle. Police mailed him citations for leaving the scene of an accident and failing to stop after he failed to to the city police station as requested.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Bullet strikes truck during drive on Six Mile

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A Northville man's leisurely drive along Six Mile near Bradner Road last week took a frightening turn after a bullet shattered his truck's window.

Northville Township police said a single .22-caliber slug was found embedded in the door frame of the man's 1990 Chevrolet S-10 pickup.

The bullet reportedly smashed through the driver's-side window as the man drove west on Six Mile just east of Northville Road at 10 p.m. Aug. 20. The man was not injured, police said.

The man told police two eastbound vehicles passed him at the moment the incident occurred. The vehicles were bumper-to-bumper when they passed, and the man told police he heard a loud "pop" before the window shattered.

The two speeding vehicles that passed the man were described as a dark-colored, full-size GMC Jimmy or Ford Bronco, and a dark car "like a Ford Thunderbird," according to the man's statement.

Police are speculating that the trailing vehicle fired a shot at the lead vehicle and the Northville man was "in the wrong place at the wrong time," said township police officer Jim Fisher.

But police also said the shot could have been fired from the south side of Six Mile Road.

The man told police he initially thought someone threw something at the truck. Police examined the vehicle and found a hole in the outer window frame and a small, round "bump" on the inner door frame where the object stopped.

Police did not find the object that broke the window, but the victim went to township police headquarters the following day after removing the bullet from his door frame.

Police said the two suspect vehicles likely turned south on Bradner after the Northville man's vehicle was hit. Police received no reports of gunshots that evening and had no suspects in the case by press time Tuesday.

Gerald Law as 36th District state representative.

Breen, a former Plymouth Township supervisor, officially claimed the county commission seat to which he was appointed last spring.

Police Chief Chip Snider said he was encouraged by the victory margin, but said he wanted to find out why 444 residents voted against the millage.

"I want to review the precincts that we did not do well in," he said. "I want to find out if it was a taxation issue, or if we didn't provide a (sufficient) level of service."

Absentee voters continued to play a significant role in township elections. Absentees supported the millage by a 542-206 margin, and provided an ample buffer against tight vote tallies in individual precincts.

Election day voters approved the measure by a mere 300-238 margin. The millage was defeated in five of 10 individual precincts.

Township officials are well aware of the power of absentee voters. Absentees provided the margin of victory in last year's fire department millage renewal and accounted for Betty Lennox's win over Rick Engeland in last summer's treasurer's race.

Absentees also provided Goss the winning edge in Northville over Deborah Whyman in the Aug. 6 primary.

Geake to review model

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

State Sen. Robert Geake of Northville will join four other senators in a series of hearings to get input on the Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education.

Geake was appointed after Sen. John Cisky asked to be removed from the committee. Geake's appointment came after he attended a hearing at Plymouth-Salem High School where hundreds of people spoke against and in favor of the model.

"It turned out to be quite a bit more controversial than we thought when we first started out," he said.

The Michigan Model is a series of lesson plans used in many school districts around the state, including Northville, to fill a state requirement that schools implement a health curriculum.

Critics say the model has an anti-family bias and promotes drug use and pre-marital sex. Supporters say the model teaches students responsibility for their actions and stress-reduction techniques in age-appropriate lessons.

Geake said he already has some concerns about the model.

"From what I've read and the testimony we've heard so far, it appears that there is some anti-family bias in the way the lessons have been structured and in the questions the children have been asked to respond to," Geake said.

A Northville school health committee reviewed 227 written complaints submitted by the Northville group Parents Concerned with the Improvement of the Michigan Model. The committee concluded that all of the complaints were based on inaccurate quotes of the model or misinterpretations of model activities.

The Northville school board reaffirmed the district's use of the model following the committee presentation last spring.

Northville Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services Dolly McMaster said she believes the board's decision reflects the opinion of the majority of Northville parents.

McMaster offered to share the findings of the health committee with the Senate committee if asked.

"That offer still holds. We would be happy to meet with (Geake) and the committee to re-present our response," she said, although the committee and McMaster have no plans to attend future Senate hearings.

Geake has not had any official discussions with Northville school administrators about the model.

"Usually when school officials talk to me it's about the budget," he said.

Geake said it's too early to tell what the committee will recommend to the full senate. The committee may recommend that the model be changed, eliminated or left as is.

Changes in or elimination of the model would require that legislation be introduced, passed in the House and Senate and signed by the governor.

"Usually the Legislature follows the recommendations of ad-hoc committees," Geake said.

The model is used in 525 of the state's 561 public school districts, according to the Michigan Model Implementation Plan for 1991.

Three hearings are scheduled for September: On Sept. 9 at the Kent County Intermediate School District auditorium, 2930 Knapp Avenue NE in Grand Rapids, from 7-10 p.m.; on Sept. 11, at the State Capitol in rooms 402 and 403 from 3-5 p.m.; and on Sept. 23, at the Central Grade School Lars Hocksted Auditorium, 301 W. Seventh St. in Traverse City, from 7-10 p.m.

Fun planned for kids during Victorian Fest

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Prizes, treats and a little friendly competition will be the emphasis for kids at the Victorian Festival on Saturday, Sept. 14.

Games sponsored by the Stockhausen family, Nancy Rochon and Dan Hackett will be held throughout downtown during the festival.

Kids of any age are welcome to participate, said Carole Jean Stockhausen. In past years every interested kid has been able to participate, she said.

Many kids follow the event organizers from game to game, participating in everything.

"We feel like the Pied Pipers of town," Stockhausen said.

But kids are welcome to join in the fun at any point during the day.

The games begin outside Grandma Betty's Sweets 'N' Treats, 124 N. Center St., at 12:30 p.m. Gum chewers will want to join in the first event of the day — a bubble-gum-blowing contest.

Winners receive bags of penny candy donated by Grandma Betty's. Everyone gets free gum for use in the contest.

Kids will move across the street at 1 p.m. to Traditions by Bartley and Boyd, 111 N. Center St., for a hoop-rolling contest.

Using T-squares and hoops from disassembled barrels, kids will try their hands at an activity straight out of the history books.

Stockhausen said the hoop-rolling contest is among the most challenging of the day's activities.

"The kids enjoy it immensely," she said.

The Shipping Station, 136 N. Center St., sponsors the day's third activity. Kids raised on video games will get the opportunity to try their hands at an old-fashioned game of marbles at 1:30 p.m.

Everyone gets to keep their marble shooter and any marbles they shoot outside of a chalk boundary line. The kid who shoots the most marbles outside the boundary line wins a bag of 40 marbles.

If shooting marbles is difficult for the Nintendo generation, Jacks is even more difficult. Stockhausen said she is surprised by the number of kids who give up after an unsuccessful attempt at Jacks.

But at 2 p.m. the game for kids is Jacks. The contest will be held at Perrin Souvenir Distributors, 113 W. Main St. Perrin's and Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall, 108 E. Main St., sponsor the event.

The winner gets to keep his or her Jacks. Others get coupons for ornaments at Genitti's.

At 2:30 the hunt for wooden nickels is on at Heritage Federal Savings Bank, 127 Hutton St.

Fourty of the nickels have colored buffalos emblazoned on their surface. Kids who find the colored nickels can exchange their wooden nickel for a real quarter courtesy of Heritage Bank.

Unmarked nickels can be kept as souvenirs.

Northville Jewelers, 201 E. Main St., sponsors the 3 p.m. event.

All participants in the top-spinning contest will receive a plastic top. Winners get to keep the larger wood tops used in the contest.

If the day's activities tire out participants, the final event should revitalize them.

A pie-eating contest begins at 3:30 p.m. at Crawford's Bakery Connection, 123 E. Main St.

Winners get books set in the Victorian era, and everyone gets free pie for the contest. Prizes left over from the day's activities will be distributed at this event.

The festival's headlining event, a Victorian Review, is held at 1 and 4 p.m. in the downtown bandshell. Stockhausen said kids should be finished with the final contest in time for the 4 p.m. show that includes unicyclists, a magician and a juggler.

PTA to auction lunches

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

From a champagne lunch served in a decorated basket to a dollhouse loaded with gourmet food, the Northville Council of PTAs' box-lunch auction will have it all.

Box lunches designed by community members, businesses, school groups and district personnel will be auctioned during the Victorian Festival to benefit Northville PTA activities, said PTA Council President Sharon Ferrara.

The auction will be held Sunday, Sept. 15 at 12:30 p.m. in the bandshell off Main Street in downtown Northville.

Each box will contain a lunch for four people and be decorated in a theme reflected in the content of the lunch.

In the past, dollhouses with gourmet foods, baskets with champagne and children's lunches with toys and prizes have been auctioned.

This year the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce plans to auction an Italian peasant lunch, and the Historical Society will auction a lunch themed toward the Tivoli Fair, Ferrara said.

"It's a lot of creativity that has gone behind this," she said.

Auctioning the box lunches will be "Dr. Rudy," described as the Victorian Festival's resident medicine man.

Dr. Rudy's true identity is a secret. Throughout the festival, Dr. Rudy will have a wagon set up "like in the old days of the traveling medicine man," Ferrara said.

Box lunches will go for all different prices, she said. Opening bids have begun at $25 in the past, but this year the PTA plans to have Dr. Rudy open bids at varying amounts.

Those who attend the auction will be encouraged to eat their box lunch at the Mill Race Historical Village, where entertainment and children's games are scheduled.

A trolley will take auction goers from the downtown bandshell to Mill Race.

The PTA expects to earn about $2,000 on the auction, committee chairperson Caryn Doehler said.

Profits will go toward a parent education program held in the school district next winter. In January, the PTA will bring four speakers into Northville schools to lead a workshop on parenting adolescents.

But Doehler said the PTA became involved with the auction more as a community service than as a fundraiser.

"We got involved to draw more people to the auction — to be part of the community," she said.

The PTA is still accepting volunteers to donate box lunches. Anyone interested should call Caryn Doehler, 348-3872, by Sept. 5.

Victorian finery

The Victorian hat makers are at it again. The same type of custom-made hats sold last year at the Victorian Festival will be available again this year with even more of a selection. A few period accessories will also be available. Above, from left, Valerie Ernst, Katharine Fiske and Jennifer Ernst display some of their work. Parents and students from the Odyssey of the Mind teams — a problem-solving program for K-12 students — have been busy making the hats again this year and workshops are being scheduled. If you are interested in buying a hat before the festival, or to volunteer in making them, contact Valerie Ernst at 348-8335 or Pat Vartarian at 420-0374.

TIPS FROM TUCHKLAPER

Novi Dental Center
A. Allen Tuchklaper
D.D.S.

FIRST AID FOR TOOTHACHE

By far, the most common dental emergency is the toothache. Pain usually indicates that decay is present and can be irritating the pulp (a soft tissue in the center of the tooth containing blood vessels and nerve tissue). An abscess-caused toothache is often the most painful and is frequently accompanied by swelling of the jaw or face. An abscess is a localized collection of pus in any part of the mouth formed by tissue disintegration and surrounded by an inflamed area. The best first aid? Clean the tooth as thoroughly as possible with a toothbrush and rinse the mouth with warm water to remove any food that may be lodged. Use dental floss to remove particles of food and place a cotton pellet with oil of cloves on the tooth to TEMPORARILY alleviate the pain. Aspirin (swallowed, NEVER held against the tooth or gum) will help reduce the pain. Immediate attention by a dentist is needed to drain the infection. Never use prolonged medication with either pain killer or antibiotics. These may temporarily alleviate the symptoms but will not eliminate the problem.

Plan cuts allowed building height

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The city planning commission Aug. 20 proposed decreasing the allowable building heights in Northville's central business district, following an empty public hearing on the proposal.

The commission's recommendation, which passed by a 5-1 vote, now goes to the city council for its approval.

The proposed change to the city's zoning ordinance will reduce the allowable number of stories from five to three, and the maximum building height from 60 to 36 feet.

The one exception to the maximum height is on building sites which have at least 12 feet of grade differential within the proposed building's perimeter.

Commissioners included a phrase in the revision requiring roof-mounted electrical and mechanical units like heaters or air conditioners to be screened on all sides and set back as far as possible from the edge of the roof.

The revised ordinance does not apply to "chimneys, church spires, wireless transmission towers, decorative parapets not exceeding 36 inches, or heating, electrical and mechanical units which are screened on all sides."

The commission last week spent little time discussing the ordinance revision, which has been the subject of several previous meetings and several drafts. Commissioner Chris Gazlay disagreed with the requirement that buildings on sloping terrain extend a minimum of 48 feet horizontally before rising up or dropping down, but his point was not debated.

Commissioner David Totten moved that the proposal be referred to the council and Rolland Stapleton seconded, adding a request to the council "for speedy adoption."

Gazlay registered the lone vote against the motion, and commissioners Kathleen Otton and Richard Wilhelm were absent.

The ordinance, if passed before Singh Development's proposed CadyCentre retail/office building at Cady and Center streets is approved, could require the development company to remove a floor from the three-story building. The site does not drop 12 feet.

The commission denied Singh's request for preliminary site plan approval Aug. 6 despite the recommendation of planning consultant Glenn Bowles. Stapleton led the charge for rejection of Singh's request.

Cajunfest '91 leaves trail of bouncing checks

and MIKE TYREE
Staff Writers

Louisiana entrepreneur Cy Holley Jr. is becoming well-known across the country for the string of bad checks he has written while producing Cajun food festivals in cities including Northville.

In his hometown of Covington, La., though, Holley so far has been a stranger to law enforcement agencies. That may soon change.

"I have had no dealings with this man whatsoever," said Sgt. Clint Willis, an investigator with the Covington Police Department. But Willis, who has been in contact with the Northville City Police Department since being told by a Record reporter of Holley's string of bounced checks, pledged his department's support if Northville police receive complaints from the businesses owed thousands of dollars. "If they go ahead and make the warrants, cut a warrant, we'll go ahead and begin the process to extradite him," Willis said.

In Northville alone, Holley wrote checks totaling nearly $10,000 on an empty Covington bank account while producing the poorly received Cajunfest '91 that blew through town Aug. 16-18. Holley and his company, Cajunfest Productions, have held similar festivals in cities including Norfolk, Va. and St. Louis, Mo.

Northville Downs is apparently out $5,000 for a $3,000 rental bill and $2,000 cleaning deposit bill, said the racetrack's Executive Manager Margaret Zaytl.

"We haven't gotten (the checks) back yet, but I know they're no good. When we called his bank, they said there were insufficient funds," Zaytl said.

"We're going to pursue (legal action)," she said. Northville Downs may be joined in a complaint by Porta-John of Shelby Township, the company that provided 30 portable toilets to the festival. Holley's check to that company for $1,495.50 has since bounced, and Porta-John owner and operator Joann Braxton said her firm will pursue whatever legal action it can.

"We plan to do something; I'm not sure what . . . I'll start a complaint," she said. "We're not used to getting stung like this. Most of our customers are good and run good businesses, but this is not good business."

Porta-John's events coordinator, Bev Weingarten, said attempts to contact Holley about the bad check have failed.

"We've left a message on his recorder and of course he hasn't returned our call," she said. "I just find it difficult to believe that people have the gall to do that, go from place to place writing rubber checks."

Kim Sidwell, district director for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Livonia, said she is still waiting to hear the fate of a $1,000 donation Holley made by check to her chapter. "We have not heard yet from the bank as to the status of it; it was deposited last week. . . . The office of our bank has not contacted us one way or another," she said.

Sidwell said her only response in the event of a bad check would be to inform the person who made such a donation that it had bounced.

A spokesperson for Central Distributors of Beer of Romulus said that the company, the recipient of a check for about $500 for 10 kegs of beer, had not had its payment returned as of Tuesday. "I'm not aware of any (bounced checks)," she said.

Businesses weren't the only ones left in the lurch by Holley. Public health may have been endangered as well.

The festival producer apparently failed to obtain the required approval from the Wayne County Health Department, despite Cajunfest Productions' claim in a letter to the Northville City Council that "A temporary health permit has been applied for with Wayne County to cover Cajunfest '91."

Health Department Director Glenn Brown said Wednesday that his office never issued a permit for the festival. "We've searched our files high and low . . . and we have no record of being involved in that festival activity at all," he said.

Judging from a description of the event, Brown said his department should have had a say in its production. "What they were doing should have been conducted under provisions of a state license that we would issue," he said. "We may have well insisted that they do some of the food preparation differently."

Holley may also be in hot water once he gets home for failing to register his business in his hometown.

Cajunfest Production business cards and press releases list a phone number registered to 203 W. 11th Ave., an address in downtown Covington.

"He would have to have a license to operate within the city limits," said Covington's Sgt. Willis. "I don't know if he's got a business anywhere in the state, because I've got no record of it."

Covington City Hall has no record of a Cajunfest Productions either, said Alisa Bahham of the city's sales tax and occupational license department.

"It's a city ordinance: They're required to get a license . . . I'll send somebody out there," she said.

A Florida firm that wrote Holley an insurance policy designed to cover festivals in Northville, New Jersey and Stickney, Illinois is out $8,700, said James Pyne, account executive with Allied Specialty Insurance Company out of Treasure Island, Florida.

"We're holding an $8,700 bad check here," Pyne said Tuesday. "The check came back here August 23."

Pyne said the Cajunfest policy was to cover three consecutive weekend events beginning with the Aug. 16-18 show in Northville. From Northville, Holley's crew of cooks, musicians and laborers was to travel to Liberty State Park outside Jersey City, New Jersey, for an Aug. 23-25 gig.

An Aug. 30-Sept. 3 stint at Hawthorn Race Course in Stickney, Ill. was to follow, Pyne said.

Liberty State Park officials canceled Cajunfest when Holley could not produce proof of insurance, said Norma Horvath, state park office manager.

Holley and his staff had set up in the state park and were poised to hold Cajunfest there until the last minute, Horvath said. She said Holley had written a deposit check for $660 and another certified deposit check for $1,000.

But evidence of the bad insurance check prompted cancellation of the festival, she said. Holley was refunded his certified check, but the $660 check, payable to the State of New Jersey, was not returned, she said.

Total cost of park-related services would have reached $5,000, Horvath said. "We would have taken a check," she said, expressing relief that the festival was canceled.

Horvath did not know if the $660 deposit check had bounced by Tuesday.

Any check is sure to bounce if written on Holley's Cajunfest account with the Covington, La. branch of the Whitney National Bank, said bank manager David Lindsey.

"(Holley's) made no deposit; he's still (writing checks) with insufficient funds," Lindsey said Tuesday.

Lindsey did not know how many checks Holley had written. The last deposit made to the account came around the first of August, and Lindsey said he has been unable to contact Holley about continued overdrafts.

Lindsey has been in contact, though, with officials at Hawthorn Race Course in Stickney, Ill.

Hawthorn officials on Tuesday were ready to shut the doors on Cajunfest.

"We lucked out," said Caryn Meadows, Hawthorn Race Course director of sales. "We called the (Covington) bank and they said he had no money there."

Meadows said Holley had paid a $1,000 deposit to use the suburban Chicago race course's field area for "food and entertainment." Holley also promised to pay $10 an hour if workers would donate the money to charity.

Holley struck the same type of deal with the Muscular Dystrophy Association for his Northville show. MDA officials say their personnel were never paid.

Holley also attempted to renegotiate his contract with Hawthorn Race Course. Instead of flat fees for grounds use and a cleaning deposit, Holley asked to pay a gate percentage, a tactic he has used to his advantage at other Cajunfest stops.

Norfolk (Va.) Festevents agreed to accept 10 percent of Holley's gate at a July 13 festival, said promotions director Kathy Conroy. Conroy said approximately 35,000 people attended the Norfolk festival, but by Tuesday, Norfolk Festevents had not seen a dime from Holley.

"Our executive director has contacted our attorneys," Conroy said.

Hawthorn Race Course officials on Monday decided to cancel this week's Cajunfest, Meadows said. She said she has been unable to contact Holley about the cancellation or about the $1,000 deposit check.

Holley's lack of availability may be his downfall. Stickney Village Police Chief Mike Hollub said Holley could be arrested if he appears in Stickney for the Hawthorn show because he wrote a bad check for the $1,000 deposit.

"We could certainly hold him (during an) investigation," Hollub said. "Regardless of the amounts of bad checks . . . if there's a pattern there, it could be a felony."

Drains Run Slow?
You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow. The "slows", or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gunk deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.
Gook
other products run here
Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.

Amoco station talks gear up

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Township planners are fueling up for talks on one of their least favorite topics — gas stations.

Planners and Amoco Oil Co. officials met last week to discuss a gas station and car wash planned for a vacant lot on Seven Mile just west of the Innsbrook Apartments entrance.

Amoco would be the first firm to develop an approximately 12-acre plot partly zoned for general business use. But questions over access and circulation led planners to table Amoco's site plan and request that the developer consider plan alterations.

"(The commission is) real concerned about access," said Carol Maise, township planning and zoning administrator. "We felt there were other options than what they were preparing."

Amoco is requesting a driveway along eastbound Seven Mile to serve the proposed business. The township wants the company to complete a traffic study to determine impact along that corridor.

Curb cuts currently exist in front of the Northville Plaza Mall and Highland Lakes shopping center. Maise said the commission needs to understand what impact an additional cut would have on area traffic flow.

The commission could approve a driveway with right-turn-only stipulations — it recently approved a similar request from Meijer for its 20401 Haggerty site — or take a different approach, Maise said.

Planners surely will take a close look at the gas station site plan, regardless of the entrance strategy Amoco pushes.

The commission has a history of wrestling with gas-station developers, including extended talks with Mobil over its Seven Mile and Northville Road station remodeling and the recently approved Meijer gas station plan.

The proposed gas station and car wash would be built on 37,500 square feet and offer 180 feet of frontage along Seven Mile. A drawing presented to the commission shows a 16.5-foot canopy covering four pump islands. The car wash would be set off to the side of the site, according to drawings.

Commissioners asked Amoco representatives to consider changes in the layout of their site due to questions about a service drive, Maise said. Company officials rejected that idea at a Monday meeting, she said.

"It doesn't look like they'll be drastically changing their plan," she said.

Amoco likely will not re-submit plans for the commission's Sept. 24 session, Maise said. The firm probably will ask for space on the October agenda, she added.

Grants may benefit seniors

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Northville area senior citizens appear to be the main beneficiaries of a city plan to divvy $17,000 of federal funds.

The city council last week set a Sept. 9 public hearing and is expected to expend the bulk of its Oakland County Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds on a pair of senior citizen projects.

The funds would be used to purchase and install acoustical tile for the Northville Area Senior Citizens Center ($9,000) and air conditioning for the senior citizen bus ($4,000), as well as construction of a barrier-free sidewalk at the Northville Community Center building ($4,000).

CDBG funds represent federal monies which are channeled through counties to local communities. Low- and moderate-income persons are targeted as recipients of CDBG funds.

Acoustical tile would improve sound quality in Northville's Senior Center, said outgoing recreation director John Anderson in a letter to Word. Concrete ceilings and block walls in the center create sound reverberation problems, especially for those with hearing aids, Anderson said.

Anderson also said an air conditioner would make seniors' summer bus trips more comfortable. The senior citizen bus likely would see more use in the summer if air conditioned, Anderson said.

CDBG funds are also to be spent on sidewalk improvements at the community recreation building. Access to the building currently is difficult for wheelchairs and walkers, Anderson said.

The public hearing on the proposed CDBG funds is scheduled for 8 p.m. Sept. 9 at Northville City Hall, 215 W. Main.

Public liked search process

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Whatever they felt about the school board's choice, those in attendance throughout the superintendent search seemed to agree they liked the process.

The Northville School Board on Sunday chose the district's executive director for special education, Leonard Rezmierski, to fill an opening in the superintendent's seat.

Parent R. Kraft Bell said he appreciated that the selection process allowed for input from the community.

Bell said he assessed the candidates on his own and selected a different candidate than the one chosen by the board. But he added that he understands the board had additional information and a different set of criteria to evaluate the candidates.

Knowing that, Bell gave his support to the board's choice at the Sunday night meeting. Teacher Shirley Klokenga said she felt the board made people in attendance through the interview process feel welcome.

PTA Council President Sharon Ferrara also told the board she appreciated the opportunity for community involvement.

The PTA is prohibited by national rules from endorsing a candidate, but Ferrara and other PTA members attended as individuals to offer suggestions.

Board members said community input helped them form opinions about candidates.

Treasurer Robert McMahon said comments from the community often reinforced his own opinions.

McMahon is involved with the Michigan Association of School Boards. He said his conversations with school board members around Michigan have shown citizen involvement in superintendent searches to be the "exception to the rule." The board did not release the names of candidates as it narrowed its field from seven to one at a Sunday meeting.

Vice President Glenna Davis said the process was used to reach a consensus in a way that would leave none of the candidates feeling like the last choice.

"Any one of those people could have been the superintendent of Northville schools," she said.

"It's a matter of timing. We had to choose the best candidate for Northville right now."

"We didn't want to hurt anyone by making them think 'you were our last choice.'"

The board did not expect to reach a consensus Sunday, Davis said.

"Of course you always hope to have one candidate you can all agree on. There was no expectation of that," she said.

Rezmierski comes out on top

Among his supporters was Novi Community Schools' special education director, Donna Tinberg, who said Rezmierski was "the best. In special education he's the best you'll find."

School board Vice President Glenna Davis led the board on its search. Davis said suggestions and concerns raised by community members during the search encouraged her to support Rezmierski.

"I got more and more excited when I thought Leonard Rezmierski could be the one addressing those concerns," Davis said. "When we came to the question about explaining a budget, I said, 'This man could explain a budget.'"

In the early stages of developing a district special education program, Rezmierski garnered a lot of support on the state level, Davis said.

"He fought for this district and got us money I don't think anybody else could have got," she said.

School board member Richard Brown said Rezmierski is a "strong team player" who people respect.

"When Len walks into a room, people look at him. When Len talks, people listen," Brown said.

Rezmierski will help find a replacement to lead the special education department. District officials said negotiations on Rezmierski's contract should be complete by late September.

Rezmierski, 48, said he has a history of staying in one job for many years. He expects to hold the position of Northville's superintendent for several years.

"I assume I have quite a few years in me," he said.

Our Opinion

Public selection fell apart at the end

Public input was a large part of the Northville school board's superintendent search. The board was very open and encouraging of public input, and we were impressed through most of the process. But a few concerns arose when the board appointed the new superintendent at a Sunday night meeting.

Taking three votes, the board narrowed the field of seven candidates down to one — the district's current Executive Director for Special Education Leonard Rezmierski.

We don't question the choice. Rezmierski was indeed impressive in his interview with the board, and his background is solid, respectable and strongly rooted in the Northville community. His career thus far is distinguished, and has been recognized with honors. He will undoubtedly make a strong superintendent, and we congratulate him.

But the way the board arrived at its decision raised a few concerns.

The board reached its final choice Sunday. Board members expressed their own surprise that the decision was made so easily. The problem is that prior to the meeting, the board had suggested it would hold second interviews throughout the month of September and only then would a candidate be selected.

Those community members who had so much input throughout the interview process may have been surprised to learn a candidate was selected Sunday. Community members may have hoped for a chance to give further input, and others may have been waiting for the board to narrow its field before making suggestions.

The board explained it was able to render its decision so quickly because the top candidate was from Northville. There wouldn't be any unknown skeletons hiding in his closet that a second interview would uncover. From the standpoint of ensuring as much community input as possible, second interviews would have been preferable. But we find another aspect of the selection more worrisome.

The decision-making process used by the board to arrive at its top candidate asked the board assign numbers to each candidate, thereby allowing members to secretly cast votes in the preliminary round. The Michigan Open Meetings Act, as interpreted by the state attorney general in 1979, prohibits a voting procedure at a public meeting that prevents citizens from knowing how members of the public body have voted. That's exactly what happened Sunday.

It's worth noting that decisions made by a public body in violation of the Open Meetings Act are invalid. Any person could sue the board to invalidate its decision, and in our admittedly lay-person view, they would win. Legal action initiated by an unselected candidate ultimately mately would be pointless because the school board only would be forced to hold another vote, this time more openly. But by choosing the superintendent under these circumstances the process came into question all the same.

To its credit, the board appears to have considered the possible conflict with the law. A board member said the winnowing process used was not a "voting procedure" per se, but rather a "reaching of consensus."

We understand the point, but we have to disagree. Any voting procedure is by definition a reaching of consensus. And anyone in attendance at the meeting clearly saw each board member vote three times. There was no discussion. Board members did not verbally weigh their options and arrive at a group consensus. They voted three times. The first time board members voted for their top three choices, the second time for their top two choices, and the third time for their top choice.

Rezmierski was the unanimous choice in the third vote; the board should have stopped after the first or second, with three finalists, and scheduled the second interviews it had planned.

But even if the board was determined to move ahead Sunday, the public has a right to know who the second- and third-place candidates were; they made a strong showing in the voting process. More importantly, all the candidates deserve to know how far in the selection process they got.

The board used the secret process to avoid hurting the feelings of those candidates who received few or no votes. But the seven candidates are all adults who went into the process knowing that only one person would win. There's no shame in "only" being one of the seven people interviewed; board members made a point of saying any one of those folks would make a good superintendent.

Again, we congratulate our new superintendent and all the finalists. We don't mean to appear overly critical of the selection process used by the board. Until Sunday the entire superintendent search had been a model of openness — an openness that Northville Community Schools has a history of maintaining. We just hope that future voting procedures of the school board will follow that tradition.

We're finally entering the '80s

Look, I know it's not important to you. You'll probably never be able to understand what an ordeal it was around the office here. But we got through it and now, at long last, we have an answering machine.

Yes, I know, this is not really exciting news. Most businesses which have any use for such a device probably got one 10 years ago. But, well, community newspapers as a rule are not exactly lightning-quick in jumping on all the available technology, and I personally have an innate resistance to high-tech machines which aren't my compact disc player.

Make no mistake: This isn't one of those twisted voice mail systems which, as I've noted before, drive me up a tree. Just your basic message-after-the-beep setup.

Anyway, we've known for a long time that an answering machine would be a good thing to have. We're not here in the office 24 hours a day, although sometimes we come close. If someone wants to leave a message after hours or on the weekend, it only makes sense to offer the answering machine as an option.

Getting the thing into the office was a project in itself, but making it operational was almost too much to handle. Our crack front-desk staff, Gina Mathews and Diane Quint, took charge of the acquisition and installation, and it's a good thing, I know I couldn't have handled it.

Even they had some trouble. In particular, getting the message recorded started to turn into a comedy of errors. Gina, who as a member of the Plymouth Community Chorus is the only performer in the office, was the consensus choice for the recording. It only took about six tries to get it into presentable form.

Thankfully, Evan Petrie, who does some free-lance photography for us, was on hand to straighten out some details with setting the number of rings.

And now we're up and running. The bottom line is that you can now, if you so desire, leave a message for us here at any time, whether there's someone in the office or not.

If you have a story idea that occurs to you at 3 a.m. and you don't want to write it down, pick up the phone. If you want to complain about something and are afraid you might cool off if you wait until business hours, give us a call. Or if you just want to hear how Gina's voice sounds on tape, dial us up. The number, as always, is 349-1700.

So now we've officially entered the 1980s; we have an answering machine. Of course, the calendar says 1991, but give us a chance. Can cellular phones be far behind?

SEMCOC missed the point

When the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments issued its report on the causes of urban sprawl last week — analyzing the factors which have led to the so-called "white flight" from the city to the suburbs — it missed a critical point . . . perhaps the most important one.

The report spoke of the overbuilding of water and sewer lines in the suburbs, the lower density housing offered by the suburbs, the tendency of service and research companies to locate in the suburbs, and about public subsidies of house mortgages in the suburbs.

It also spoke of racial bias, contending that the racial segregation of the Detroit metropolitan area is the worst of any region in the U.S.

Missing from the report, not mentioned at all, was the fear of crime in the central cities.

Now I find that interesting. I read it as an attempt to make those who live in Northville and the other suburbs around Detroit feel guilty about the fact that they don't live in the city. It suggests they are racists for the mere fact they have chosen to live in the suburbs.

Now, I think that when most home buyers pick the location of their residences, they're more likely to consider things like schools, taxes, proximity to work and the likelihood that their house value will go up.

It seems to me that the skin color of their neighbors would rank well down on the list. Feeling safe in their own homes, however, would be right there on top.

I do have some personal experience in this area. As you may know, I have been a resident of an inner-city neighborhood in Pontiac for about five years. And right now, I'm about to take part in the suburban flight, and I'll do so without the slightest hesitation. (If things go as planned, I'll be moving to a home in Commerce Township sometime in October.)

And it has nothing to do with the racial makeup of my old neighborhood. The ethnic groups represented there include white, black, Puerto Rican, Arabic, Korean and Jamaican. But that was the ethnic make-up of the neighborhood when I moved in there five years ago. That has not changed.

What has changed is the relative feeling of safety and security one has in the neighborhood. It has diminished dramatically in the past few months.

In the past two weeks alone, I've had a prowler try the knob to the back door of my house at 4 a.m., watched youths fighting on the street in front of my house pull weapons, and had a youth come to my front door at 11:30 p.m. trying to bum a cigarette. (My neighbors agree with me that this last incident was probably a robbery attempt.)

But it has nothing to do with race. The prowler who tried my doorknob was black. The fighting youths were white. The young man who came to my front door was Puerto Rican.

Call me a racist for trying to move out to the suburbs if you want, but the idea of staying in Pontiac and being an equal opportunity crime victim has no appeal whatsoever.

Try to give me a guilt trip about moving out if you will, but it won't work. I would feel a great deal more guilty about staying there and exposing my family to these dangers when I have the capability to move them a nicer neighborhood where they can feel more secure.

Now, I'm sympathetic to the SEMCOG's cause here. I recognize the problems created by urban sprawl — the abandonment of central cities and the wasting of land for new development on the suburban fringes.

But until government officials in SEMCOG and in the central cities come to grips with the real concerns and the legitimate fears of suburbanites about the cities, I don't think there is any hope they can entice suburbanites back. And the guilt trips won't work.

Tax burden just keeps growing

To the editor:

The election of Aug. 27 will be history when this letter is published in the newspaper so what I have to say won't change anyone's mind.

Each time there is an election for a millage increase, The Northville Record puts the fear of God into the voters in the millage falls.

I moved to my new condo on Nov. 15, 1988. Two weeks later (Dec. 1, 1988) was the assessing date. It was already worth $4,000 more than I paid for it two weeks before. I appealed it and it was reduced $3,000.

The next year the assessor raised it $20,000, telling me that it was worth $40,000 more. I appealed and it was reduced $19,000. Last year they raised it $4,000 and my appeal was turned down.

As I talk to many of my neighbors, we are paying enough in taxes to support the township and school operations. I doubt very much if I could get my money out if I were to put it on the market.

I have no intention of selling as I love our place and the Northville area. I have had 34 years of living in the best area there is.

I know how the police can raise their money. Have a patrol car spend a few hours per day on Beck Road between Five Mile and Eight Mile roads. The speed limit is 45 mph and most of the cars are doing 65 mph. If you don't believe me, try observing how the drivers think that road is the Indy Speed Track.

I also think our new supervisor should hire a new near-sighted assessor. One that knows the value of real estate.

Regarding campaign spending — Art Buchwald says it best. We get the best politicians that money can buy. Goss just proved it.

Senators Levin and Riegle spend $5 million for a $125,000 job. I have written six letters to each of them asking them why they spend so much for a $125,000 job. To date, no answer. Senator Levin is in Poland today looking over our troops, etc. while the same trip would cost me $10,000. They live like someone making $500,000 per year on salary. Their only worry is winning the next election. I'm lucky because my only worry is staying healthy so I can go to work every day.

Township sets the tone with ordinance

To the editor:

Thank you to the Northville Township Police Department and Board of Trustees for setting the tone and quick response in passing the party host ordinance.

The police department was certainly instrumental in taking a positive step in bettering our community, and also thank you to the City of Northville police and city council for following suit.

Jennifer Paciocico

Township and city deserve commendation

To the editor:

On behalf of the Northville Youth Assistance Advisory Council and volunteers, I would like to commend Supervisor Georgina Goss, the Northville Township Board of Trustees, Mayor Chris Johnson and Northville City Council for passage of the Host Party ordinance. It is very heartwarming for me to see our public officials taking such an active role in trying to curb potential problem situations.

Does anyone know or care about the lake?

To the editor:

Does anyone know or care what is happening, if anything, to restore Waterford Lake in Northville? What used to be a lovely wetland habitat for geese, swans, egrets, herons, gulls, turtles, ducks, fish and birds — due to the dam giving way — is now an overgrown field. Where beautiful waterfowl have raised their young, and travelers have come to rest before continuing on with their long journey, we now have hundreds of field birds, which is fine for them.

However, I am sure everyone here would agree with me, that we'd rather have the graceful, breathtaking beauty of the waterfowl back.

In the last few days the geese have grown back their flying feathers, after their molt, and we have seen several groups of them circle in the field several times. Searching, I believe, for the home they left some time ago. Looking to see if it has been returned to them. Well it hasn't!

Does anyone have the resources to confront Janna Companies, and inquire as to what their intentions are concerning the restoration of this valuable wetland? And it is valuable to waterfowl. We have proof of this. In the fall we daily cataloged over 500 geese stopping here, 32 of which were banded geese from as far away as Hudson/James Bay, the Atlantic Fly Away and Mississippi. We also had ducks stopping over. Some that we noticed were Common Pintail, Common Merganser, Gadwall and Bufflehead.

Can anyone imagine how exciting it was, watching all this right here: on a small lake in Northville? We were looking forward to the spring migration, to cataloging even more waterfowl. But, of course, now that's impossible, since the lake isn't here any longer. They will fly by, but that's all they'll do. They'll be tired, but they'll have to search further for a place to rest

Fall may be good time to start NYA

The fall season is rapidly approaching and for many of us it is a time for new beginnings, a time to explore new adventures and maybe, a time for some of us to start a volunteer experience.

If you have thought of volunteering but have never quite made the commitment, Northville Youth Assistance (NYA) has just the opportunity for you. Here is an opportunity to stay within your own community and to work with local youths.

NYA needs volunteers to spend approximately 1 1/2 hours per week with a youth. Male role models are especially needed as volunteers to work with young boys referred to the program. NYA currently has boys waiting to be matched with men.

One family on the waiting list has recently moved to Northville from Florida. The family consists of an 11-year-old boy and his mom. The boy has never met his dad and has no contact with any adult males. This boy needs a man who will care about him, listen to him and allow him to talk about his fears, frustrations and dreams.

NYA is also in need of women who are willing to give of themselves and to spend time being a friend, a confidante and a support person to a local boy or girl.

A training for volunteers is scheduled for early fall. In order to conduct a training we need 20 persons from our community to commit to 15 hours of training to be an NYA volunteer. Currently we have six persons signed up and eagerly awaiting the training session. In training, volunteers learn how to help children solve problems, how to listen to kids, how to build rapport with them and especially how to be a good communicator.

If you want to be daring and try something new this fall and you are willing to commit yourself to a local youth by making his or her life a little easier, please call Mary Ellen King at 344-1618. The youths of our community need you.

Mary Ellen King is the director of Northville Youth Assistance.

It's nice to be back here after Bob

Just got back from a few days in sunny Cape Cod last Tuesday.

Of course, the end of my vacation wasn't so sunny, what with all the surf kicked up by that little winds-torm called Hurricane Bob.

Yes, it may have been the worst-timed vacation of all time — or second-worst, right after Mikhail Gorbachev's recent jaunt down to Crimea. Fortunately, both Gorb and I made it back to work last week.

Bob and the attempted Soviet coup took turns dominating the news in Massachusetts last Monday, but the hurricane quickly gained the upper hand as it swept ashore early in the afternoon, cutting electricity, fraying phone lines and demanding the Cape's undivided attention.

I had ringside seats to the awesome display of nature's fury. My younger brother Chris and I had decided to ride out the storm at our father's house in Osterville, on the south side of the Cape. The home overlooking the ocean is a mass of picture windows on the side facing the sea. We awoke before 6 a.m. Monday and spent the morning removing awnings and hammering 4-by-8-foot sheets of plywood over as many of the windows as we could, transforming the stately summer home into a plywood ranch.

By mid-storm, winds clocked at up to 90 mph were howling around and — somehow — through the house, though all the windows were sealed. The sheets of plywood were shaking like cardboard, allowing bursts of light in between the seams, and sending strange shadows dancing around the seaside rooms. We stayed out of those rooms, expecting the wind to blow right through at any moment and shower us with glass.

The surf, some 20 feet below the front lawn, was blown right over the top of the embankment by the wind and into the front of the house.

But worst of all was the wind, howling and roaring like something alive.

At the storm's height, we stood outside the back door and watched the spray-laden wind tear around a corner of the house, listening to trees snap under its force and surveying the debris building up in the lee of the building.

The storm ended within three hours, though the wind continued to howl and the sea churn into the evening. My brother's Volkswagen, parked halfway down the winding driveway to my father's home, was hemmed in by fallen trees. One tree fell mere feet from the car's front bumper.

As soon as the wind died and it seemed the house would stand, we made our way to the street, crawling under and climbing over the half-dozen trees across the winding driveway. Seaview Avenue lay covered in leaves, like a seldom-used country road in the fall, except in this case all the leaves were green.

People gathered along the street, waving to us as we waded back. We wandered over to one group to swap stories about the damage done by the storm. There's nothing like a good hurricane to bring formerly distant neighbors together, if only for a day.

Within an hour after the storm had abated, the whine of chainsaws could be heard as people tried to cut their way on to, or off of, their properties. Three houses up from my father's, several pitch pines lay across the road, blocking all vehicular access. But residents soon cut away enough branches to create a crude tunnel.

In the center of Osterville, trees that dated back to the 1700s were lying twisted and mangled in the streets. Around town, sailboats and motorboats previously moored in West Bay lay on their sides, with some strewn like flotsam across the formerly immaculate lawns of the harborside homes.

Needless to say, I missed my noon flight from Boston's Logan Airport that day. The plane actually left Logan a half-hour AHEAD of schedule, and an airline spokesman admitted it was "pretty empty." The airport was shut down shortly thereafter.

Our family spent Monday evening tearing down the plywood that we had spent the morning nailing up. Driving to the bus station in Hyannis the next day, my brother and I took turns pointing out moe and more improbable sights — tangled mazes of wires draped over houses and cars by fallen telephone poles, sidewalks and streets torn up by the roots of uprooted trees, a huge tree laying completely over a house half its size. My emotions veered between sheer amazement at the evidence of the storm's power and sorrow over the damage it had done.

Anyway, it's good to be back in Michigan, where all we have to worry about are nameless tornados and thunderstorms. To each his own form of natural disaster, I guess.

Support of soccer shows good results

To the editor:

I just thought I would like to let the community know that their support of our city's soccer program has and continues to have positive results.

This summer I called upon some current and former Northville Recreation, high school and college players to help me coach and instruct a new under 12 girls soccer team. Everyone I asked to help said yes! Kristi Turner, Todd Stowell and Larry Oslecki worked with my goal. Michelle McQuaid, Wendy Carroll, Laura Whiteley, Chris Walker and Steve Lang ran skill and technique drills for the rest of the team. These young men and women came on their free time after work and showed me new and better ways of teaching the sport of soccer.

My players, their parents and I would like to publicly say thanks, and maybe you might want to see thanks also the next time you see any of these great kids.

Avoiding euphemisms helps issue

Editor's note: This letter from State Sen. R. Robert Geake responds to a letter from one of Geake's constituents. The original letter questioned Geake's reference to state hospital walkaways as "patient escapees." Geake sent a copy of his response to the Record.

Thank you for your letter of Aug. 8, 1991 in which you took exception to my reference to "patient escapees." Your point is that a more supportive term would be more sensitive. I suppose that "persons with mental illness" or simply "residents who walk away" or "leave grounds without authorization" would be more in line with your perspective.

However, in all of my communications as state legislator, I have always tried to avoid euphemisms. For example, some have insisted that "welfare recipients" is an insensitive term and should be replaced with something like "persons on public assistance." Others are asking that "persons with AIDS" be referred to with the more sympathetic "AIDS victims" label. I am all for sympathy and sensitivity when referring to members of any group, but I also believe in communicating accurately and "saying what we mean."

Since residents at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital (NRPH) are there for psychiatric treatment, I do not see how anyone could quarrel with the term "patient." Similarly, since the vast majority are there on involuntary commitments and kept there under court orders, it seems to me that anyone who leaves the grounds without permission has "escaped."

I wonder if there is any way that leaders in the various mental health support groups can be helped to understand the tremendous damage to the mental health movement that occurs every time a resident from a mental treatment facility commits a crime in the community near that facility. Public support for our programs which have been won over years of struggle seem to evaporate overnight when just one patient is involved in a crime of violence against a citizen. The credibility of the whole mental health system is called into question when a pattern of such incidents unfolds over an extended period of time, as has been the case at NRPH.

Thank you again for your letter, and keep up the good work you have been doing on behalf of recovering mental patients for these many years.

R. Robert Geake

Just one of three who's got it right

There are about three of us, in Michigan's population of 9,295,297, who know we'd be better off with a parliamentary form of government.

Events of the past few months amply show that we three are right, and the other 9,295,294 of under Jim Blanchard).

The horrendous results of your system have been seen the last six months, and it will get worse as fiscal 1992 rolls around.

At loggerheads, Republican Gov. John Engler and House Democrats resolved the budget crisis the worst possible way — putting off the solution until tomorrow. They shifted four-quarter aid payments to 15 state universities and 29 community colleges to the first quarter of fiscal 1992.

Where they will come up with the $120 million next year to meet this year's obligations, no one seems to know.

The colleges must meet payrolls either by dipping into reserves or borrowing. Colleges also must set tuition rates in the dark because they don't know what state aid will be.

There are other messes, but that is the most glaring.

Gov. Engler's priorities are to maintain and raise spending for education, maintain welfare aid for families, and the heck with everything else. Then cut all property tax bills.

The loyal opposition, led by House Speaker Lew Dodak, D-Birch Run, has a different priority — social services, both clients and providers.

You voters tried to have it both ways by electing a governor of one party and a House of another.

Your game plan was to put 'em at loggerheads so they couldn't screw you. Hah! They fooled you. Each side got some of what it wanted and aggravated the agony.

You voters did the same thing in 1980 when you elected a Republican president who wanted a military buildup and a Democratic House that wanted a social spending buildup. Washington did both, bloating the deficit and turning the U.S. into the world's biggest debtor.

Thus shall it ever be as long as voters play political games by electing an exec of one party and a legislature of another.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON—A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Researchers in Europe found that an ingredient in the aptly named produce Food Source One actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in intestinal absorption of calories.

While the development of Food Source One, a project of National Dietary Research, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the discovery has been a windfall for overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician Food Source One is available at:

and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds, but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 15 days on the product and was never hungry.

Food Source One is available through physicians and pharmacies without a prescription because it is not a drug and contains only natural ingredients already known to be safe. Copies of the referenced style are available free from National Dietary Research, Suite 553, 1377 K St., Washington, DC 20005, however, please include $2 Postage & Handling for each request.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

BY NEIL GEOGHEGAN
STAFF WRITER

Is Dan Marino better than Johnny Unitas used to be?

Comparing football players from different ages may be fun and thought provoking, but it is largely useless. But one thing is certain:

when you compare the current phenom with an old-time legend, it's a testament to the talents of both parties.

Now to the question at hand: where does Northville quarterback Ryan Huzjak compare with other Mustang greats like Steve Juday, Tom Baughman and Doug Marzonie? Considering the fact that Huzjak has yet to play a down as a senior, it really isn't a fair question. But after two years at the helm of the Northville offense and a slew of season and career records to his credit, it would be hard to ignore Huzjak when you talk about some of the top Mustang signalcallers.

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

The Mustang girls basketball team may be the most athletic squad Northville's ever put on the court.

Veteran coach Ed Kritch — now in his eighth season — needs to replace a designated scorer (Kate Holstein) and a designated defender (Karen Cavanaugh) from last year's 13-8 team, but he does have a returning group of talented players with quickness and agility.

"I am very encouraged," Kritch said. "We don't have one person who can fill Holstein or Cavanaugh's roles, but through a combination of players, we can overcome the losses."

Kritch has two of the better swing players in the area at his disposal in seniors Kara McNeil and Karen Pump. Both are wing players who have been varsity starters since they were sophomores.

McNeil (5-foot-7) is the team's top returning scorer and was an All-Division and second team All-Area selection last season. Pump (5-8) was also on the same All-Area team.

"McNeil has tremendous quickness," Kritch said. "She is all over the court and causes a lot of trouble for our opponents when they are on offense. She's worked hard during the off-season on her long-range shooting and has developed into a bona fide three-point threat.

"Pump can provide consistent scoring for us. She has a knack for getting off her shots and she's very versatile on both offense and defense. She is a very intelligent player."

The team's third returning starter is forward Stacey Nyland (5-11), who appears poised for a fine senior season.

"Nyland shows tremendous quickness on defense and runs the floor well for somebody her size. She knows how to score in and around the basket and she is a good offensive rebounder."

The surprise of the pre-season, however, has been the play of senior Laura Apligian (5-5). She was Northville's first player off the bench last season as a swing player, but she's been converted into the starting point guard.

"Her development has really been a surprise," Kritch said. "She is extremely strong and athletic. She adds another dimension to our attack because she is a slashing-type of player."

The final starting assignment will go to junior Bethany MacLean (5-10), who is a solid post-up player who led the Mustang junior varsity in scoring and rebounding last fall.

"She gives us size and athletic ability," Kritch said. "Our whole team is very athletic, so we will be extending our defense and pressuring teams full-court. We will also be able to run effectively for the first time since I've been around. We will get the ball down the court quickly and try to get some easy baskets."

The top fill-ins include junior forward Julie Bermingham (5-11), swing-player Kari Krupansky (5-6) and sophomore point guard Jennifer Hayden (5-6). The rest of the roster features junior Gretchen Sander (5-9), junior Kelly Casterline (5-5) and senior Angie Tune (5-5).

"Our goal is to get into the final four of the conference playoffs," Kritch said. "To be a top-four seed, we will have to make inroads against Plymouth Canton and Livonia Franklin — but that won't be easy. I think Canton is the class of our league and Franklin has Dawn Warner, a candidate for Miss Basketball."

The Mustangs open the season on Sept. 3 at Novi.

Mustang gridders boast high-powered offense

Head Coach Darrel Schumacher is beginning his sixth year at the helm of the Northville program.

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Following a storybook season in 1990, expectations are high for the Northville football squad this fall. But Mustang Coach Darrel Schumacher has some rebuilding to do, especially along the offensive and defensive lines where Northville graduated most of the starters and their backups from a year ago.

"Our strength is with our skilled players — our weakness is inexperience in the lines," Schumacher said. "We do not have one starter or even a back-up returning in the offensive line."

Star players like Bill Kelley, Bob Holloway, Mark Hilfinger and Ryan Kilner have all moved on to college, but Schumacher does have one of the top quarterbacks around in senior Ryan Huzjak (see feature on page B-1). Northville's Run-N-Shoot style offensive is built around the 6-foot-2 180-pounder, who led the area in both passing and rushing as a junior.

"I don't think it's any secret that we are looking to throw the ball around," Schumacher said. "With Ryan, our emphasis is on the passing game."

Huzjak's favorite target will probably be senior split end Jamie Miller (5-10, 180), who started last season and had nearly 300 yards in receptions. The rest of the wide receivers include senior Jason Stolberg (5-9, 170), junior Eric Shaw (5-10, 150) and senior Scott Clowers (5-6, 140). "Miller is a hard worker and he came into camp in great condition," Schumacher said. "I think he'll have a great year."

The lone running back in Northville's offense is the capable hands of junior Rob Subotich (6-0, 170), who started as a sophomore and earned All-Area honors. The slot back position will be filled by several players, including junior Danny Walsh (5-8, 150), senior Brett Butz (6-3, 195) and junior Kevin Shaw (5-10, 150). When the Mustangs use a fullback, sophomore John Gatti (6-2, 210) could be the choice.

"Subotich has worked hard in the off-season," Schumacher said. "He has excellent speed and quickness."

The offensive line will be built around returning letterwinner Todd Osborne (6-2, 205). The senior played outside linebacker last year but volunteered to play the center position in an effort to strengthen the interior line. Junior Eric Goerke (5-9, 165) has nailed down a starting guard position, but the rest of the unit is still up in the air. Senior linemen like Michael Spies (5-10, 200) and Frank Lemanna (6-1, 185) will see action, but Spies has been slowed by an injury and Lemanna came out late and is behind.

"Our offense is designed for smaller, quicker linemen who are smart and can out-think the defense," Huzjak said. "That's what we are going to do."

On defense, the Mustangs face some of the same dilemmas along the front wall, but senior Brian Scholz (5-9, 185) is back after starting in '90. He will be joined up front by Gatti and Spies.

The linebacker corps appears solid with Osborne and Stolberg on the outside and Butz in the middle. According to Schumacher, Osborne is "having a great pre-season. At this point, it looks like a good crew at linebacker."

The secondary will feature returning letterwinner Chad Olsen (5-8, 170) and Walsh at the safety spots. Miller as one cornerback and either Huzjak or the Shaw brothers at the other. Senior Brandon Hayes was expected to take over his starting cornerback slot, but a serious elbow injury has knocked him out for the season.

Because Hayes was also Northville's kicker, either Scott Hardin (6-3, 185) or Mike Hirvela (5-8, 150) will take over. Huzjak will handle the punting chores.

"We expected Hayes to be a two-way starter and kicker, so it is a big loss," Schumacher said.

The Mustangs will be trying to improve on last year's 8-4 record, which included a trip to the final four of the MHSAA Class A playoffs. With such inexperience in the front lines, however, it won't be easy.

"We would like to do better than last year," Schumacher admitted. "We'd like to compete with the elite in our league like Farmington Harrison, who may have their best team ever."

"But to do it, we need to make it simple for our offensive and defensive lines until they mature and get the experience. If we improve and work hard, we could have a good year."

With a superstar like Huzjak on your side, there is a tendency to become overconfident. But Northville opens the season (Sept. 6) on the road against always tough South Lyon, and the Lions will be christening a brand new football stadium. It could be a rude awakening.

Junior swimmer Jodi Wesley, a state-meet qualifier last season, will pace the Mustangs again this fall.

Wesley, Frayne to pace swim team

On the heels of a fine season in 1990, the Northville girls swim team boasts 21 returnees and appears poised for another conference title run this fall.

A year ago, the Mustangs went 10-1 during the dual-meet season, grabbed another Western Division crown and placed third in the 12-team Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) Meet. Graduation losses were not extensive, but Northville will need to find replacements for departed standouts like Pam Holdridge, Megan Holmberg and Claire Cryderman. All three were state-meet qualifiers, with Holdridge leading the way by placing seventh in the 100-yard butterfly.

Pacing the team this fall is a strong diving corps, headed by senior Beth Frayne — a two-time school record holder and state-meet qualifier. The rest of the divers include junior Lisa Hojnacki and sophomores Sarah Carney, Amy Cristof and Christy Jarrett.

Swimmers Teri Juhasz and Allison Sieving head up a senior class hoping to make their last prep season a memorable one. A year ago, Juhasz placed 20th at the state meet in the 100 breaststroke. Other 12th grade returnees like Alice Anthony, Barb Campbell, Kathy Lang and Kristi Smith are expected to contribute.

The team's top returning point-getter is junior Jodi Wesley, who placed 22nd in the state in the 200 IM as a sophomore and is considered one of the top underclassmen around. Other juniors like Erica Anderson, Megan Goble and Shannon Willard have point-scoring potential. Anderson is coming off an injury-plagued campaign and could provide a big boost.

The returning sophomores include state meet qualifiers Brenda Newton and Shiela Osborne, as well as Karrie McLean, Kelly Polich, Liz Rivard, Julie Tharp and Kelly Walro.

A talented group of freshmen is also aiming to contribute. The list features middle school standouts Tammy Cook, Katrina Heckemeyer, Katie Kohl, Daneen Lang, Heather Nix, Mandy VanHorn and Jill Walro.

The season gets underway on Sept. 7 when Northville travels to the Brighton Relays. The WLAA season opener is Sept. 24 against Farmington Harrison.

Waldecker takes over boys golf program

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Trish Waldecker did such a fine job last spring as coach of Northville's newly formed girls golf team, Athletic Director Dennis Colligan named her to replace Don Morgan at the helm of the boys squad this fall.

Waldecker inherits a rock-solid program but will have to find replacements departed seniors like All-Stater Chris Lemmon (now attending Michigan State) and Jason Sherman (39.9 average in '90). Those two were the stars of last year's 10-1 team that won the WLAA Western Division title and made an appearance at the MHSAA State Meet.

"We lost some excellent players, but I'm very optimistic because this team has a lot of depth," Waldecker said.

A trio of seniors — Steve Brining,

"We lost some excellent players, but I'm very optimistic because this team has a lot of depth. All the guys will have to fight it out for the top five positions. It will be very competitive, but I think that's good."

TRISH WALDECKER
Northville Golf Coach

Todd Christianson and Kevin Krupansky — are all returning letterwinners, and should be key contributors again this season. Juniors Joey Staknis (who fired a hole-in-one as a sophomore) and Tom Busard are also key returnees.

Sophomores Matt Telepo and George Lemmon are the younger siblings of former Mustang greats Kevin Telepo and Chris Lemmon. Telepo has the potential to be Northville's next star.

"Matt's turned in some good scores already," Waldecker said.

Rounding out the roster are newcomers Greg Crown (fr.), Anthony DeBenedet (fr.), Mike Vartanian (fr.), Ed Murphy (so.) and Marc Vanscoet (jr.).

"All the guys will have to fight it out for the top five positions," Waldecker said. "It will be very competitive, but I think that's good."

"All these kids have had a taste of success and they know what it takes. That's a big advantage."

BRIGHTON INVITATIONAL: Northville participated in this 24-team event on Aug. 20 at Oak Pointe and finished 15th overall with a 338 score.

Paul has high hopes for Northville boys soccer

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

A solid senior class has moved on, but Northville coach Bob Paul has high hopes for the 1991 boys soccer squad.

"We are all pretty excited," he said. "We have a solid foundation to build on. We lost nine seniors — and seven were starters — but the returnees have improved tremendously since last season. We also have an excellent group of freshmen and four may end up making the varsity."

Gone is All-State goaltender Larry Osiecki, but a trio of netminders have been in the wings and are now ready to take over. Osiecki's back-up — junior Gordie Collins — may be the front-runner, but sophomore Frank Corrieri and junior Sean Gordon are also in the picture. Corrieri and Gordon shared the goaltending duties last year for the Northville J.V. team.

"We have a phenomenal goaltending group," Paul said. "This will not be a problem area because we go three deep."

The rest of the defensive corps features returning starters Clay Cutchins (jr.), Brandon Cuadra (sr.) and Rob Nelson (jr.). Cuadra — a halfback last season — has been moved to sweeper and is described by Paul as "big and quick."

Sophomore Bo Fowler will anchor the midfield. He was a starter last season as a freshman and will be joined by junior Steve Falkiewicz and Matt Mills. Three starters from the front lines — Steve Moore (jr.), Matt Osiecki (jr.) and Matt Rossing (sr.) — are also back.

"Our forwards are an explosive group with great quickness," Paul said. "They will create a lot of scoring opportunities for our offense."

Last season — Paul's first at the helm of the boys program — the Mustangs were 5-5-3 in the WLAA and 7-8-3 overall. This year, he is expecting an improvement.

"We're looking to make a marked improvement in our record," he said. "Realistically, if we can be somewhere around 10-6, that would be a definite move forward."

COUNTRY DAY TOURNAMENT: The Mustangs opened the season with its traditional appearance in the eight-team Detroit Country Day Tournament on Aug. 21-22.

Overall, Northville went 1-2, was outscored 6-2 and placed fourth overall. But Paul was not in the least bit discouraged.

"I was very pleased," he said. "We had a lot of nice surprises."

The Mustangs edged Birmingham Groves 2-1 in the opener. The Falcons had reached the tournament finals in both '89 and '90, but goals by Rossing and Cutchins gave Northville a win and knocked Groves into the losers' bracket.

In the second round, the Mustangs were shut out 3-0 by a physical Grosse Pointe South squad.

"All three of the goals came off corner kicks," Paul explained. "They were much bigger than we were and we had trouble stopping some of their plays in front of the net."

"We felt the game was very, very close. It could have gone either way."

In the battle for third place, Northville dropped a close 1-0 decision to Birmingham Brother Rice. The Warriors scored the game-winner with just 15 seconds remaining after intercepting an errant Northville pass from a defender to the goal.

"It was a very even game," Paul said. "We had a breakaway with about a minute remaining, but the shot just missed the net. Rice is a strong team and we made a good accounting of ourselves."

The Mustangs will open the conference schedule on Sept. 4 at home against powerful Livonia Churchill.

Is record-breaking Huzjak among the all-time greats?

"There have been some great quarterbacks who've preceded Ryan, like Steve Juday," Northville Head Coach Darrel Schumacher said. "But I have to believe if Ryan has the kind of year we think he will, he could go down as one of the all-time greats."

"His records add to his credentials, but the game's changed a bit since guys like Juday played."

Huzjak will open the 1991 season on Sept. 6 as a three-year starter — a rarity in high school, especially at quarterback. As a 5-foot-10, 135-pound sophomore, Huzjak led the area in passing (675 yards) and was named to the All-Area Second Team. At that time, Schumacher said: "Ryan is an excellent athlete and leader. He has all the natural tools, but we need to find 10 guys to put around him."

A year later, Schumacher found those players and Huzjak, an 11th grader, led the Mustangs to an 8-4 mark and the program's first-ever trip to the MHSAA playoffs.

Now over six-feet tall, Huzjak had a great junior season. He rewrote the school record books for passing yardage (1,564), passing attempts (226) and completions (127) in a single season. In all, he accounted for more than 2,200 yards of total offense last fall by leading the area in both passing and rushing yards (820). With 13 touchdown passes and nine more rushing, Huzjak had a hand in 24 of his team's 30 TDs.

In the process, Huzjak set a number of Northville career records — including passing yardage (2,239) — and he will be adding to those totals this fall. First team All-Division and All-Area honors followed.

"It's nice to have records — it's an honor — but you can't put too much emphasis on them," Huzjak said. "Our offense requires me to throw the ball a lot and that's a big advantage."

Not surprisingly, Huzjak is one of the top-rated senior quarterbacks in the state of Michigan. There will be a lot of pressure on him to carry the Mustangs this fall, but it doesn't faze Huzjak.

"I want our team to have another great season, but I don't want to put too much pressure on the team or myself," he said. "I want to get back to the playoffs because once you get there, anything can happen. Last season, we were a couple breaks away from playing for the Class A title in the Silverdome and I'd like to get another shot."

Just like in '90, Northville will employ a Run-N-Shoot type of offensive attack with four receivers and just one running back. The offense was designed around Huzjak's ability.

"We tried to run a spread offense several years ago, but we didn't have the personnel," Schumacher explained. "After Ryan's sophomore year, we looked back to it. His abilities are a big reason for our success. He can run the ball and he can throw all over the place."

"As a team, we throw first and run second — and that's a testament to Ryan."

Huzjak will have some help in the offensive backfield this fall with returnees like wideout Jamie Miller and running back Rob Subotich, but graduation losses took a heavy toll on the interior line.

"We have a young offensive line, but they've looked good in practice," Huzjak said. "And we have good speed in the offensive backfield.

"I would like to play in college, and I have heard from quite a few schools — everything from the Big Ten to Division II and III schools," Huzjak said. "I'm hoping to get a scholarship, and I should if I have a good season, but I'm not going to worry about that now. I just need to play hard, help the team get some wins and then see what happens."

Gabrys looking for big year from Coon

Staff Writer

The numbers are down and the Northville boys haven't had a winning cross country season for several years, but things aren't all that bleak. The Mustangs do have senior standout Steve Coon, who is starting his third year as the squad's top performer. He is coming off a solid junior campaign in which he was an All-Division selection and an MHSAA State Meet qualifier.

"We'll need a big year out of Steve and I think he's capable," Northville Coach Ed Gabrys said.

Coon placed 10th in the WLAA ninth at the MHSAA Regional and was a key factor in the team's 3-3 dual-meet mark. Gabrys is hoping to see improvements in 1991.

"I think a good goal for the team would be a winning season," he said. "Plymouth Canton and Walled Lake Western will be tough to beat in our division, but it should be real close for the rest of us battling for third place."

In addition to Coon, Gabrys has two other top-seven runners back this season, but junior Parag Parkh (No. 3 in '90) has been hampered by a severe illness. According to Gabrys, he will run but won't be anywhere near 100 percent for quite a while.

"We're hoping he'll finish the season as our No. 2 or 3 guy," Gabry said.

Senior Doug Huntington was Northville's seventh man a year ago, but he may vault up into the second spot. Juniors Chris Smith and Rob Kukainis were junior varsity runners last season but have improved and Runners undergo overhaul

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

The Northville girls cross country program is undergoing a complete overhaul just nine months after finishing a fine 4-2 campaign.

Mustang Coach Nick Dunwoodie — who has presided over the rebuilding of the once-anemic program — now has some major work ahead of him. Northville has just four runners returning from last year's team, and none of the returnees were letterwinners. The lost of graduated seniors is long: Marcie Dart, Amy Goode, Michelle McQuaid, Cheryl Mittman, Kamal Bagga, Kendra Huard and Angie Nelson.

"Our top seven runners last season were all seniors, so I really have no idea how good we can be until after a few races," Dunwoodie said. "We have four returnees and then most of the rest have never run cross country before. Eight of them are either freshmen or sophomores, so we are very young."

Seniors Joleen Filkin and Julie Buser, along with sophomores Laura Thomas and Urvi Mujumdar, are the four who are back from last year. Filkin could be the top runner, but past injuries make her a question mark.

"The last two years have been injury-plagued for her," Dunwoodie said. "So I really don't know how she'll respond."

Mari Kissenger is a former basketball player who decided to give cross country a shot for her senior year. She was Northville's top half-miler in track last spring, but needs to improve her endurance. Other newcomers include sophomores Roopal Rashi and Erin Maloney.

A group of four freshmen round out the squad. They are: Laura Brown, Adrienne Browne, Angie Groves and Courtney Price.

"As of right now, we do not have a junior on the roster," Dunwoodie said. "That's the first time in the five years I've been coach that one whole grade isn't represented."

"We'll give it our best and see what happens. We are an unknown quantity, even to me."

should be in the top seven.

Newcomers Diasuke Ishikawa (jr.) and Mark Ritter (so.) will probably round out the starting unit. A native of Japan, Ishikawa ran track last spring and was No. 3 at the pre-season cross country camp. Ritter has never run cross country.

"We just got back from cross country camp and our numbers are down overall," Gabrys said. "We do have some good runners, but depth could be a problem."

Netters expected to contend again

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN
Staff Writer

Northville girls tennis coach Uta Filkin is finding out that making cuts is probably the most difficult task in coaching.

With 56 girls trying out for only 36 varsity and junior varsity spots, Filkin had to make some tough decisions and disappoint a lot of potential young players.

"It's wonderful to have such a good turnout, but it's difficult to have to make 20 cuts," Filkin said. "I think we'll be strong and very competitive, but we lost three of our top four singles players, so we have some rebuilding to do."

Last fall, the Mustangs were probably the only 11-1 team in the state that didn't win a division or conference title, and did not qualify for the MHSAA State Meet. As usual, Northville will be a strong contender for all three honors this fall but must find replacements following particularly heavy graduation losses in the singles flights. Four-year standout Karen Vogt will be missed the most.

Despite that, Filkin has her singles lineup set, with senior Diane Vogt taking over the No. 1 spot left vacated by her older sister. Vogt, a three-year starter, was No. 2 a year ago. The remaining three slots will probably be filled by Jennifer Lower (jr.), Susan Welx (sr.) and Molly Gudritz (sr.), but the order is still up for grabs. Lower played on the No. 2 doubles team last year, while Welx and Gudritz were members of the '90 varsity team, but saw limited action.

The doubles picture is much more cloudy. With the exception of seniors Kelli Woodsum and Stacy Green — last year's No. 3 team — newcomers will have to fill out the flights. The top candidates include seniors Sandy Booscher, Jodie Buttigieg and Katie MacLean.

"I have a lot of players I want to give a chance," Filkin said. "Doubles are wide open."

Northville will open the WLAA season on Sept. 9 at Walled Lake Western.

"I have a feeling our conference is a shade weaker than it was last year," Filkin admitted. "I think we are a bit weaker as well, but I am still optimistic."

It's Magic! Local boy holds a unique job

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

Don't even ask Drew Koszewnik, 8, to explain his magic tricks. And don't ask his dad, who helped him develop the tricks, either. It's a secret. A magician never reveals the secrets of his tricks.

But knowing the tricks would spoil the fun, anyway. All the neighborhood kids, as well as some of their parents, have assembled in the Koszewnik living room in Novi for one of Drew's shows. Usually he performs for pay at birthday parties and other events, but this show is free.

"Mom? When does the movie start?" asks little Alex Del Ferrasi, 3.

"Drew's going to be the movie," her mother, Lou, whispers. "He's going to do some tricks for us."

Alex's eyes open wide. Children like Alex are Drew's favorite because they aren't skeptical, and they don't try to figure out the magic tricks. "They still believe in magic," he said.

The show begins with a trick about two rabbits, Blackie and Whittie, who magically switch places. Then he goes on to colored balls that switch order and ropes that magically change lengths, then go right through a volunteer's body.

A silver dollar disappears and reappears. Pictures in a coloring book magically become colored when the audience "throws" colors from their clothing at it.

A guillotine chops through a finger, only to leave the finger whole. A stack of cards retains the same number, even though Drew keeps throwing more cards on the floor.

A magic box makes things disappear. They reappear inside a pan on another table. And finally, a volunteer from the audience fires a gun at some cards, making them all fall except the one he picked earlier.

Drew, who wants to be a magician when he grows up, found inspiration in local magician Chris Voz and local live performances by David Copperfield and Harry Blackstone.

Last spring he decided he wanted a summer job, so his father placed an ad in the paper for a magician for hire.

Since then he's done about 12 shows, including birthday parties, family get-togethers, and a local street fair. He plans to continue doing shows throughout the year.

He's pretty good, surprising people who expect nothing more than a kid with a few simple tricks.

In addition to tricks that would make David Copperfield proud, Drew has a repertoire of "sucker tricks" that fool people who don't expect much. Those are the tricks where everyone thinks they know how to do it," Drew's father, John Koszewnik, explained. They always turn out to be something other than what the audience expects.

"People expect him to do 'baby tricks,' then he leads them on and he surprises them."

"One time there was this 11-year-old that thought he knew how all the tricks worked," Drew said. "But he only knew how one worked. I kept asking him, 'Did you know how that one worked?' but he would just be tongue-tied."

Before doing a show in someone's home, Drew and his father always check with the parents to make sure the gun trick won't scare anyone. If it does, they just pretend to shoot it.

They also ask parents to help make sure the kids are seated and will pay attention to the show.

"The adults are usually really helpful," John said.

Drew never gets flustered during his shows. Although tricks don't always go the way he planned, he is able to improvise and cover up for mistakes — making some other trick out of the one that went wrong.

"I just think of something really fast that would be a different trick," Drew explained. The audience never knows the difference.

It's a lot of work being a magician. "There's a lot of packing up, then when you get home you have to check everything to make sure it's all there," John said. For each half-hour show, there is two hours of work involved.

But in spite of all the work, Drew feels it's worth every minute.

"I like when the people look at me with faces like this," he said, mimicking different faces that show interest, bewilderment and wonder.

"I think it's going to go well then. I think it's gonna go better than when people say, 'Oh, magic isn't real.'"

Town Hall location changed

Town Hall organizers have had to scramble for a new Town Hall site, following the unexpected closing of the Raddisson Inn-Plymouth.

The new location for the series will be the Livonia West Holiday Inn, 17123 Six Mile at I-275, North Laurel Park. In order for the hotel to accommodate the series, it was necessary to change all dates to Mondays.

Margaret Hess' class starts up again

The Community Bible Class taught by Margaret Hess will begin its fall session on Tuesday, Sept. 10. The class meets each Tuesday during the school year at the Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church, Six Mile and Farmington Roads, Livonia. Twenty-five small groups meet from 9:30 to 9:55 a.m. to discuss the lesson. Hess teaches the class as a whole from 10 to 11 a.m. The subject for the first Tuesday will be Zephaniah, "When God Acts."

Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church is currently considering a move to Northville.

During the class time infants and toddlers will be cared for in nurseries, and a program of Bible stories, playtime and creative activities will be provided for 2- to 5-year-olds. This program for children will be under the supervision of Miriam Jerome, a former missionary to Japan. Jerome has demonstrated her love for children by having 30 foster children in her home both in Japan and in this country, in addition to caring for four children of her own.

Cynthia Kniebes of Northville serves as coordinator for the class.

Hess is a graduate of Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and has taught Bible classes all of her adult life in the Chicago and Detroit areas and as a short-term missionary in the Philippines. She has written adult Bible studies for Scripture Press and for Victor Books, the most recent a study of Ruth, "The Triumph of Love." She has authored eight books, including "Unconventional Women," "How Does Your Marriage Grow," and "Never Say Old." She is listed in Marquis "Who's Who in American Women," "Who's Who in Religion" and "Who's Who in the Midwest."

She and her husband, Bartlett Hess, senior pastor of Ward Church, have visited the Bible lands 10 times, traveled extensively throughout Europe, Asia, North and South America, and around the world. They are the parents of four children, and the grandparents of eight.

The class is made up of both men and women from more than a hundred different churches and some 22 denominations, including Methodist, Baptist, Lutheran, Pentecostal, Roman Catholic, and Greek Orthodox. Many members of the class say Hess "makes the Bible come alive." She brings out historical and geographical backgrounds, but the emphasis is always "How does the Bible apply to modern life?"

Silver Springs garden offers peace

Special Writer

An ornate cement fence stands at the Eight Mile Road side of the five-story yellow house on the corner of Eight Mile and Silver Springs. Rosa De laRose Sapla is quick to point out that the fence was built by her six children. The family also worked together to sculpt a swimming pool deck and form a cement "curb" along the sides to contain the surrounding flower beds. Each child wrote his/her name in the cement for posterity.

Rosa left her home in the Philippines 20 years ago and immigrated to the United States. She is eager to say how happy she is to be an American citizen, and proudly displays the American flag at the front of her home.

Rosa is employed by General Motors and enjoys spending her free time in the garden. She planned and landscaped the front garden and is particularly fond of the many dahlias lining the walkway leading to the house. There is an abundance of purple and white phlox, yellow, white and pink mums, red impatiens, white, pink and red peonies, along with several pink and purple Rose of Sharon bushes, a corkscrew willow, magnolia and thorn trees. Stately red cannas form the background for a lovely lighted fountain.

Vegetables and flowers grow harmoniously in the back garden: green peppers, collard greens, cabbage, tomatoes, Chinese and zucchini squash, sweet potatoes, cauliflower, Chinese long beans, green beans, arbor of cucumber and bitter melon and gabe, which resembles a potato and is indigenous to the Philippines. It may be prepared as an entree or as a desert — with a coconut and sugar topping. This garden is a vegetable lover's delight. Only wish I'd brought a shopping cart! Also for your eating and viewing pleasure are apple and pear trees and a small mango which is diligently guarded by two pet parrots who have an appetite for fingers.

Hibiscus the size of dinner plates grow against the fence, along with black-eyed Susans, begonias, geraniums, tall fern, wild honeysuckle and daylilies. A rose arbor displays a beautiful array of pink florabunda as you wind your way down Rosa's delightful garden path.

Patricia Zielke is a member of the Country Girls' Branch, Women's National Farm and Garden Association of Northville.

Theater groups hold auditions

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

Area community theater groups are gearing up for another season of variety that promises to offer comedy, drama, music, melodrama and more.

In Novi, the Novi Players community theater group is planning its first audition of the 1991-92 season, for the crime comedy "Honestly Now" by Jack Sharkey.

"Honestly Now," according to Novi Players Publicity Chairperson Ann Duffy, is "a wacky expose of slick criminals and zany characters on the French Riviera."

Show dates are set for Nov. 9, 10, 15 and 16. The Nov. 16 performance will be a dinner theater. More details will be available later.

The audition, scheduled for Aug. 26 at 8 p.m. in the Novi Civic Center, calls for four men and four women age 20-50.

The cast of characters is described as follows:

- Carlita Umbro (30-40): American lady of lofty ambitions
- Raoul (20-30): Normally unflappable French hotel waiter
- Nadine Marston (20-30): Ultra-efficient banquet manager
- Hector Umbro (20-30): Very special sort of social climber
- Sam Clayton (40-50): Irrascible U.S. senator
- Marigold Clayton (40-50): Sam's long-suffering spouse
- Oscar Hemmings (20-30): Prize-winning newlywed farmer
- Holly Hemmings (20-30): Oscar's buxom Nebraskan bride

Novi Players winter play will be "Shay," a mystery about a woman and her family. The spring play will be "Alone Together," a comedy about a husband and wife who finally send their youngest son away to college.

thinking they will finally be alone together. Instead, all of their children come back home.

The Plymouth Theatre Guild, which performs in Northville's Water Tower Theater, also has auditions planned for the near future.

Auditions for "Steel Magnolias" are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 11 and 12 at 7 p.m. at the Water Tower Theater, located on the campus of Northville Regional Hospital, 41001 W. Seven Mile Road.

The cast consists of six female roles (ages 20-60). Performance dates are Oct. 25, 26, 27, Nov. 1, 2, 3, 8 and 9.

The comedy-drama is set in a small Louisiana town where a group of women have their hair done while sharing humorous and tragic events in their lives. Audiences may remember the recent movie which was based on the play and starred Sally Field and Julia Roberts.

According to Nancy Schuster, publicity chairperson, "Steel Magnolias" will open Plymouth Theatre Guild's 45th season.

The famous musical "Camelot," complete with King Arthur and his royal court, will be the second show of the season and will be performed on Jan. 24, 25, 26, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 7 and 8, 1992.

The third play of the season will be "On Golden Pond," the touching, funny and warmly perceptive study of a spirited and lovable elderly couple facing their twilight years. Performances will be March 13, 14, 15, 20, 21, 22, 27 and 28.

Rounding out the season will be "Brighton Beach Memoirs," Neil Simon's autobiographical portrait of a teenage boy living with his family in a crowded lower-middle-class home in 1937 Brooklyn. Dates for the show are May 1, 2, 3, 8, 9, 10, 15 and 16.

Wedding

Ronda Kae Hacker/Joseph Patrick Chickvara

Ronda Kae Hacker of Atlanta, Ga., became the bride of Joseph Patrick Chickvara, also of Atlanta, on May 10, 1991. She is the daughter of Ron and Ina Hacker of Northville. The groom's parents are Joe and Mary Chickvara of Farmington Hills.

A double-ring ceremony was held at St. Fabian Catholic Church in Farmington Hills.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a gown of crisp white satin with schiffli lace and a V-shaped sabrina neckline. The gown featured leg-o-mutton sleeves with a full skirt and a back waist accent bow above the extra long chapel train with finished hem edge of matching lace.

To complete her ensemble the bride wore an elbow-length veil with a double pouf, with the headpiece fashioned of silk flowers and pearls. Her garter was made by her mother from the lace of her mother's wedding gown. As an accessory the bride wore the diamond and white gold cross necklace presented to her mother by her father on the eve of their wedding.

The bride carried a bouquet of white and fuchsia rubrum lilies, accented with variegated ivy, stephanotis and white satin ribbons.

Matron of honor was the bride's cousin, Luanne Letarte of California. Bridesmaids included Charlynn, sister of the bride, of Northville; and Pam Wilkinson and Kathy Skalski of Northville. Flower girl was Genna Bladas of Northville.

Dan Chickvara, brother of the groom, of Florida served as best man. Groomsmen were Mike Fiszbein of Arizona; Marty Benda of Washington; and Steve Schulte of Illinois. Ushers were John Hacker, brother of the bride, of Northville; and Joe Sazyc, brother-in-law of the groom, of Ann Arbor.

Scripture readings were performed by Jeanne Sazyc, sister of the groom, of Ann Arbor; and Mike Downey, cousin of the groom, of Ohio. Kathy Chickvara, sister of the groom, of Atlanta, resided at the guest register.

A reception for 200 guests was held at the Novi Hilton following the ceremony. Honored guests were Irene Manning, great-grandmother of the bride; Ann Chickvara, grandmother of the groom; and Bill and Mary Stefan, great-uncle and great-aunt of the groom.

The bride is a 1985 graduate of Northville High School and currently employed as a billing coordinator for the advertising firm BBDO in Atlanta while pursuing a degree in accounting.

The groom is a graduate of North Farmington High School and Miami (Ohio) University. He is employed as a marketing manager for Novi American of Atlanta.

The couple honeymooned at Long Boat Key, Fla., and will make their home in Powder Springs, Ga.

Art created through pipe cleaners?

Immobilized by a childhood illness and confined to a hospital for an extended period of time, longtime Northville resident Laura Butler broke through her boredom by applying herself to the figments of her imagination.

Nobody would have guessed that an unassuming pack of pipe cleaners given as a gift to conquer the blues would give rise to a whole new art form — but it was on that fateful day in 1971 that Butler shaped what was to become a part of her destiny. Twenty years later, Laura Butler is now setting a precedent in a branch of art in which she shares no peers.

Throughout her teens in Northville, Butler continued to develop her style and technique, graduating from one-dimensional reproduction work to recreating in three dimensions, the vivid and animated characters with which her vast imagination continually supplied her.

Butler's passion for her "hobby" was fueled all the more when a prospective customer convinced her there was a definite market for her whimsical confections. On his suggestion, she began displaying her work in prestigious art shows and entering her novel sculptures in a variety of competitions.

Since then she has racked up a "Best of Show" or first place prize in every contest she's entered. She has also discovered, much to her surprise, that her medium is entirely unique and still is, with the exception of a few admirers, who are now attempting to learn her craft — imitation being the sincerest form of flattery.

Butler now concentrates the majority of her efforts on custom commissioned pieces, undertaking everything from people, to their pets — even cars. Her biggest kick still comes from designing mythological composite creatures and sculpting famous media personalities, right down to their eyelashes.

Of her exceptionally life-like figures, she declares, "I take the greatest amount of pride in the realism I achieve without the use of any internal forms or molds." To coincide with the variety of "Earth Awareness" efforts, she is currently working to shed greater light on endangered species, sculpting a series of birds and animals that fall into that category, including the Michigan wolverine.

Artist Laura Butler found a way of fighting boredom by creating life-like figures such as these with everyday household pipe cleaners.

In addition to her pipe cleaner sculptures, she also dabbles in metalwork, creating custom jewelry often of a celestial nature. For more details on her pipe cleaner sculptures and order information, interested parties may call Butler at 486-8725.

Fall festival on tap in Plymouth

The annual Plymouth Community Fall Festival was started by the Plymouth Rotary Club in 1956. Over 35 years ago the Plymouth club had the idea to host a community picnic at a neighborhood park to raise funds for playground equipment for that park. The Rotarians banded together and served 500 chicken dinners at Hamilton Park (Wing Street and Harding Street).

While the Plymouth Rotary Chicken Dinner has grown in size over the years, the one-day community picnic has grown into a full-blown four-day event. The four-day event now serves the needs of many Plymouth community non-profit organizations.

This annual event (since 1956) will take place Thursday, Sept. 5 through Sunday, Sept. 8.

NEW PLAY: The Hilberry

Theatre, part of Wayne State University's Department of Theatre, announces a new play for the 1991-92 season.

"Interrogating the Nude," a murder mystery-fantasy exploring the genesis of Marcel Duchamp's famous painting, "Nude Descending a Staircase," will fill the new play slot on the Hilberry Theatre's 1991-92 season, playing in repertory from Oct. 18 through Dec. 12.

The play, a sort of Dada surreal work, is by Doug Wright, whose fictional murder mystery captures the whimsy and sinister wit of Duchamp, one of the most enigmatic and influential artists of the 20th century. Introduced at Lloyd Richards' Eugene O'Neill Summer Playwrights Conference in 1988 and produced by the Yale Repertory Theatre in 1989, "Interrogating the Nude" won the HBO Playwriting Award and the Charles MacArthur Award. It is scheduled for publication by Heinemann Books.

"Interrogating the Nude" will join Feydeau's classic French farce, "A Flea in Her Ear," in the opening weeks of the fall repertory. Later additions will be Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," Christopher Hampton's "Les Liaisons Dangereuses," Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," A.R. Gurney's "The Cocktail Hour," and Frank Galati's stage version of John Steinbeck's novel "The Grapes of Wrath." The season runs from Oct. 4 through May 16.

CROSSROADS

DESTINATION EUROPE

It's getting to be a game, isn't it?

Every year we hold our breath in anticipation, knowing that the airlines will offer dramatically low fares to Europe during the fall season.

This year, with sales off because of the Persian Gulf War and the recession, it was inevitable.

There are only minor differences between British Airways, Northwest Airlines and Delta Airlines: buy your ticket before Sept. 18, fly after Oct. 8, don't expect a refund.

The fare to such cities as London and Frankfurt is $446 round trip from Detroit. It goes down to $386 if you fly Dec. 25 through March 15, minor variations in between. Stay six days to six months.

British Airways also has a special fare if you buy by Sept. 11, fly from Oct. 15 through Dec. 1 and return by Jan. 4 — $518 round trip.

If you plan to go, renew your passport now. A 10-year U.S. passport will cost $55, five-year passport $30. After Nov. 1, an increase of $20 and $10 respectively. The State Department says it's because we need a "more tamper-proof and secure document."

DESTINATION USA

WASHINGTON, D.C.'S 200th birthday will be celebrated in grand style on Pennsylvania Avenue from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday and Monday, Oct. 13-14 (Columbus Day weekend), when the city's first TASTE DC festival is held. A quarter million people are expected to attend, with foods available from 30 of D.C.'s top restaurants.

THE CHATTANOOGA CHOO-CHOO'S Golden Anniversary Special tour leaves New York's Pennsylvania Station and whistles through eight states before arriving in Chattanooga, Tenn., on Tuesday, Sept. 10.

The Choo-Choo celebrates the 50th anniversary of the well-known Glen Miller recording and follows its route. The number of seats has been doubled from 200 to 400, so rates have been reduced to $2,225 single or $3,850 a couple. That's a great deal more than anybody paid 50 years ago, but it includes air fare on Delta to New York City and back from Chattanooga plus hotels at either end.

If you think that nothin' could be finer than to be in Carolina in the morning, call the Chattanooga Convention and Visitors Bureau at (615) 756-8687.

THE NATIONAL CIVIL RIGHTS Museum opens Labor Day weekend in Memphis, Tenn., making it the first civil rights museum in the country.

There are mixed reviews on this 10,000 square-foot museum built on the site of the Lorraine Motel, where Martin Luther King was killed April 4, 1968. The museum will have 15 interactive exhibits highlighting significant events and places in the movement. A laser beam traces the path of the bullet shot from across Mulberry Street.

THE NATIONAL LABOR DAY Weekend Blues Bash also will be held in Memphis — in the restored areas around Beale Street. It features winners of the Blues Amateur Talent Contests held throughout the U.S.

Memphis also has a Memphis Music Festival Sept. 1 and a Black Family Reunion Celebration Sept. 13-15.

THE NATIONAL STORYTELLING Festival will be held for the 19th time Oct. 4-6 in Jonesborough, Tenn. More than a dozen storytellers will converge on the tents and grounds of this mountain town to tell tall tales.

It costs $56 for the whole weekend if you pre-register by Sept. 6, but you can buy single days.

For information, contact the National Association for the Preservation and Perpetuation of Storytelling at (615) 753-2171.

Dining car guests on the Napa Valley Wine Train are pampered in an atmosphere of relaxed elegance and sophistication

The Cabernet Express

'Wine Train' provides luxurious excursion through Napa Valley

By CHARLENE BALOSKEY
Special Writer

"Welcome to Napa Valley" the sign reads "our wine is bottled poetry."

We are on Highway 29, on the way to another kind of poetry, the Napa Valley Wine Train, a luxury train that offers daily dining excursions through one of the world's premier wine-growing regions.

Lunch trains operate daily, dinner trains every day except Monday, on 36-hour round trips between Napa and St. Helena, California.

The lunch train is the most popular because it allows passengers to see the valley in daylight. The valley is particularly beautiful in the fall when grapevines are heavy with purple Cabernet or green Chardonnay grapes, and grape leaves are brilliant red and orange.

San Francisco millionaire Vincent DeDomenico, who gave America Rice-A-Roni, "the San Francisco treat," bought rights to the Southern Pacific tracks in 1987, had eight vintage railroad cars refurbished to sophisticated 1920s and '30s standards by local crafts people and began service in September 1989.

Our Pullman car, vintage 1915, was a burgundy-and-champagne colored coach with mahogany paneling, crystal chandeliers and etched glass partitions.

The train rolls through the heart of California's famous wine region

The train rolled slowly past wooden barns, Victorian houses and turn-of-the-century schoolhouses. Roses bloomed beside the tracks. Grapevines trailed gracefully over low trellises.

We passed 25 of the more than 200 wineries that are the heart of Napa Valley.

The Wine Train is not a guided tour, so no chipper, loud-speaker voice exhorted us to look at the Mondavi Winery on our left or the Christmas tree farm on our right. Nothing detracted from the feeling of serenity.

Shortly after boarding, I moved from the lounge car to the dining car for the first lunch seating. The Wine Train has two meal seatings on each trip; you can eat on the way to St. Helena or on the return trip.

The dining car was a scene from a romantic old movie. Lunch was served at linen-covered tables set with bone china, sterling silver and crystal stemware.

Creating culinary magic in a rolling kitchen requires some ingenuity, but Schloss has come up with workable solutions like using ordinary squeeze bottles to apply those extraordinary wine sauces.

After the main course, the friendly waitstaff moved us efficiently back to the lounge car for dessert and coffee (the Chocolate Decadence was sensational).

The five-course candlelight dinner, which costs $65, is even more elaborate than lunch. Dinner service includes hors d'oeuvres, a sorbet course and an even wider choice of entrees.

The dress on the dinner train is semi-formal and the setting romantic as twilight settles over the Napa Valley.

On Saturdays and Sundays, the Wine Train also operates a champagne brunch train ($55) and a family car with special rates for children and an optional a la carte continental breakfast. Prices include the train, meal, taxes and service charges but not wine.

The train leaves Napa, about an hour's drive from San Francisco. A shuttle service also runs to Napa from San Francisco area hotels. For more information call toll-free (800) 522-4142.

Secluded vineyards are ideal for picnics

By CHARLENE BALOSKEY
Special Writer

Ah, the California picnic. Cloud-spangled skies, grassy slopes, casual elegance.

The perfect picnic requires a great location and great food. The California wine country provides both.

More than 60 Napa Valley wineries have picnic sites, each with its own personality. There's the wooded grandeur of Rutherford Hills, the flowery hilltop elegance of Vichon or the one-stop convenience of V. Sattui with its on-site delicatessen.

My favorite is a charming, secluded picnic site at Villa Mt. Eden, a small, but prestigious, winery off the beaten path (from Highway 29 drive east on Oakville Crossroad.)

Villa Mt. Eden's narrow dirt driveway winds through fields of grapes, passes a farmhouse and a white clapboard winery, and ends in front of a small courtyard with trellised rose bushes, ivy-covered doorways and three picnic benches.

A couple enjoys a picnic at the Vichon winery

The winery dogs, Daisy and Sheba, who had been sleeping in the sun, strolled over to greet us. The beauty of this winery is its serenity. In an area dominated by large wineries and crowded parking lots, Villa Mt. Eden stands out as a peaceful, friendly oasis — and as a perfect picnic site.

"People like this place because there's no traffic," said Barbara Harriman, assistant hospitality manager.

Barbara said the picnic benches are available to customers who purchase a bottle of wine — standard "admission" to winery picnic sites.

Because they have only three picnic benches, she suggests calling ahead during the busy season to be sure a table is available (a good policy to follow at any winery.)

I learned about Villa Mount Eden at a fine gourmet shop called Oakville Grocery on Highway 29, where you can create your own lunch from a wide selection of cheeses, salads, pates and desserts, or order a box lunch 24 hours in advance for $10 to $12.

For information on picnic sites, check area tour maps, or contact the Napa Valley Chamber of Commerce (707) 226-7455.

'Romantic experience'

"If I had to characterize the Napa Valley Wine Train, I would say that it's a very romantic experience."

That's Vince Sarrecchie of Novi, who traveled on the wine train with his wife Florence last spring.

They offer one important tip to prospective passengers — Take the second seating.

"When we traveled north toward St. Helena, we enjoyed seeing the valley in what was left of daylight," Vince said.

"We had wine and hors d'oeuvres and still had a chance to enjoy the view."

"On the return trip south it was already dark, and they served a candlelit dinner, so we had the best of both worlds."

"I particularly remember the suns setting over the hills," Florence said.

"When I got home, I wrote a paper for my Italian class about watching that beautiful sunset."

REAL ESTATE

Exchanging is good way to deal for real estate

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

The exchanging of two or more properties is sometimes a viable alternative to selling a property outright and purchasing another.

Exchanging, involving real estate, has been one facet of market activity in this country since pilgrims landed on the shores of the New World. One of the earliest exchanges occurred in 1624 when Peter Minuit traded some cloth and trinkets for Manhattan Island.

Today, a particularly appealing type of exchange for real estate investors is the like-kind, tax-deferred exchange. As the name implies, it allows an owner of an income-investment property — any real estate held for investment or used in business—to exchange the property for a like-kind property without immediately paying a stiff capital gains tax.

It's definitely not tax-free. But the tax liability is deferred to a future time. It's spelled out in Section 1031 of the Internal Revenue Code. It makes it possible for an investor to parlay a modest cash investment in real estate into a sizable estate via a succession of tax-deferred exchanges, with larger and larger properties being acquired.

However, it's the exchange of equities that's tax-deferred. Cash or other "boot" (anything other than equity) will probably be taxable.

Fred Short, a Realtor who specializes in brokerage of income-investment properties and exchanges, has included a variety of boot items as part of exchange transactions. Farm and garden equipment, trailers and wheelbarrows are examples. In some cases, autos, boats, jewelry, stocks and bonds are used as boot in exchanges to equalize equity amounts.

The tax-deferred Sec. 1031 exchange became even more appealing to real estate investors when the IRS recently established new regulations and guidelines for this section, issued last May. It provides more clearly defined criteria for qualified properties.

It's particularly helpful in transactions involving guarantees, escrow accounts intermediaries, or other special situations. The new long-awaited IRS regulations are welcomed by most brokers, prop-

has a real warmth

Barbara McGrew named Edith's Flower Garden Room after her mother. Located on the second floor, this cozy room is decorated in flowery fabrics and features McGrew's stonelling.

By Laurie O'Dell

Barbara McGrew's favorite saying is "we make you kindly welcome."

This Shaker saying, which originated in Kentucky, best describes the approach she takes with guests at the Hibbard Tavern Bed and Breakfast in Milford. McGrew opened up her home to travelers just over two years ago. She said it's a venture that's been both exciting and rewarding.

McGrew is warm and friendly. Those qualities are reflected in the atmosphere of the inn. She has surrounded herself with collectibles and family heirlooms that seem to beckon travelers.

The house itself seems to call out to visitors, inviting them to come inside, have a cup of tea, enjoy a quiet moment on the porch or curl up by the fireplace.

A big part of running a bed and breakfast is making people feel welcome and at home. So when guests arrive, McGrew takes them into the parlor for a little chat and then shows them the bathroom they will be sharing with other guests and finally their room.

"I treat them like company," explained McGrew. "There is always someone here to greet them. If I can't be here, I'll have a neighbor or one of my daughters welcome them."

During the last two years all sorts of people have entered the little white gate and traveled the stone path that leads to McGrew's door. She finds many of them fascinating and interesting. She's welcomed missionaries, guest speakers, young couples, newlyweds, businessmen and out-of-state travelers searching for a unique getaway.

"Most of my guests come here for the historic aspect," explained McGrew. "They like the quaint, strange things about the house, such as the basement door in the floor, the water cistern in the kitchen floor and the historic marker out front. They don't mind that I only have two bathrooms that must be shared."

Some people might think that having com-

A fluffy quilt and tea served in a china cup are just two of the tiny details which make the Hibbard Tavern perfect for a weekend getaway. The entire house is decorated in country-style furnishings and collectibles.

plete strangers in their home would feel like an intrusion, but that isn't the case for McGrew. She said she enjoys the companionship. Consequently, she's never lonesome. When she does need a moment of privacy, McGrew said there are enough nooks and crannies in the house for those quiet times.

"It's very unusual," she explained. "I wouldn't say it's for everybody. I look at myself as the present curator of a museum."

The bed and breakfast has quite a history, from its early beginnings as a stagecoach stop to the Hibbard and Coe families who have inhabited it. McGrew said the home has been carefully tended throughout the years. She's simply carrying on that tradition.

The innkeeper said the Hibbard Tavern evokes memories of her childhood when her parents operated a flower shop in Allen Park. "We lived above Dad's flower shop. I'm a perfect prototype for this lifestyle. Allen Park was a village in the '50s when I was growing up. You might say I've come back to my roots."

Like any job, running a bed and breakfast can be hectic and a little bit stressful at times. That's why on Monday callers get McGrew's answering machine. This is her day off. If one day off isn't enough, McGrew will take a two- or three-day respite and leave the inn to the capable hands of her two daughters.

McGrew said she also is lucky to have a close group of friends, including Carol Ford and Mickey Eldridge who enjoy helping her with special events.

"They're part of this adventure too," explained McGrew. "I helped Carol plant her vegetable garden. She calls it 'our garden.' She's always bringing me her harvest so that I can use fresh green pepper and onion in my omelets."

Although McGrew doesn't consider guests an intrusion, she does have to keep her home neat and tidy.

"To keep things immaculate I sometimes stash things away and misplace paperwork," said McGrew. "I have a file cabinet and an office upstairs and I'm usually organized. But like anyone I have a habit of grabbing things up and putting them away before guests arrive."

One of the biggest rewards for the innkeeper is knowing guests are comfortable with her and feel at home. She remembers the weekend an accountant and her husband came for some relaxation. McGrew said the accountant felt so relaxed she stayed in her bathrobe the whole time, sitting by the fireplace, reading on the front porch and watching videos.

Not only does McGrew have a way of helping people relax, but her two pets, Ollie and Peony, also help make the inn feel like home. Ollie is a big, beautiful black feline that enjoys following guests around. Peony is an adorable lop-eared rabbit that loves fruit. Many times when McGrew serves breakfast outside, she sees guests offering strawberries and other goodies to Peony.

One of the challenges McGrew faces each year is how to handle the holidays. She said having guest during the holidays can be tough to juggle at times.

"I have to ask myself how much privacy I want for my own family. I had so much family come home last year that I didn't offer rooms between Christmas and New Year's."

An important part of being an innkeeper is being a good judge of character, said McGrew, who usually gets a feel for what people are like even before they walk through her door. She follows up their initial call with one of her own and talks about the bed and breakfast and some of the house rules.

For those who have never stayed at a bed and breakfast, McGrew gives a crash course on what an inn is all about. If she has a feeling the Hibbard Tavern isn't what they're looking for, she often suggests another place.

McGrew said in her business it's important to make people want to come back and recommend the Hibbard Tavern to their friends.

"When they arrive there must be something on the stove, fresh flowers, wood in the fireplace, if it's the right time of year, or at least candles burning. Guests must always feel welcome. They must feel like I've been waiting for them to come."

HOME DESIGNS

Freesia 3 combines traditional with contemporary

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

While the Freesia 3's exterior blends Tudor and Queen Anne styling, most of its interior is totally contemporary and rich in the amenities today's families want. Mullioned bay windows, varied in shape, provide visual interest and a tasteful touch of elegance across the wide brick facade. At center front, columns flank an impressive two-story entry, also richly windowed.

Once inside, the feeling of stately formality is enhanced by the two-story foyer. The living room and dining room are traditionally placed, with their twin-columned entries on the left and right sides of the foyer. An open-railed S-shape stairwell curves gracefully upstairs, its midpoint curve providing a natural vantage point for overlooking activities in the totally informal high-vaulted family room and nook.

Bathed in light from windows, doors and skylights, this high-ceilinged and luminous group living area acts as a natural magnet for both friends and family. On long winter evenings, the fireplace offers twin pleasures of fanny-warming and fire-watching.

While dwarfed by the adjoining family room, the lower-ceilinged kitchen is still plenty large. A corner of its L-shape cooking island/eating bar juts into the family room, visually connecting the two.

An oversize utility room, conveniently close to the kitchen, has its own bathroom, a laundry chute and a closet for storing clothing. The two-car garage also has a built-in workbench and plenty of extra storage space.

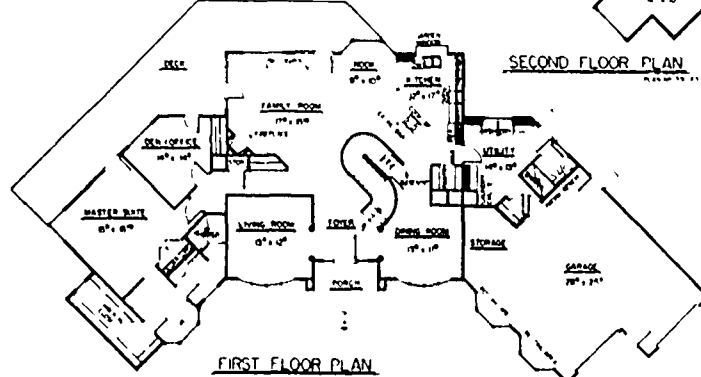

The elaborate master suite is a whole world unto itself with a double-size walk-in closet. For those long, relaxing soaks, an oversize tub is tucked into its own bay-window nook. One vanity is in this part of the bathroom complex, and another is in the water closet, where there is also an oversize shower. The suite includes space for a sitting area, an additional cedar-lined closet and opens onto the deck. If desired, access to the den/office/exercise room/studio (you pick), could be only from the master suite, expanding this private area still further.

The two oddly shaped bedrooms upstairs are easily spacious enough for several children to share. Extra storage space is also available on this level. Built over a full basement, no end of storage is available below the main floor.

For a study plan of the Freesia 3 (330-63), send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

German punch bowl valuable

By James G. McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a blue and white platter that is 20 inches by 12 inches. Also enclosed is a picture of the mark "Villeroy & Boch, Dresden."

Can you tell me something about its origin and value?

A. This Blue Onion pattern platter was made by Villeroy & Boch, a company that made all kinds of ceramics in Dresden, Mettlach and seven other cities in Germany.

Your platter was made in the late 1800s and would probably sell for about $165 to $185.

Q. The attached mark is on the bottom of what I think is a German punch bowl. It holds about 1 gallon and has an underplate. It has a scene depicting a drunken man clutching a barrel and the handles are formed by drunken men.

Please tell me about the origin and value of this bowl.

A. Your punch bowl was made in Mettlach, Germany, by Villeroy & Boch during the late 1800s. It would probably sell in an antique shop for $800 to $900.

VIOLINS

Do you have an antique Stradivarius that you are saving to support you in your golden years? Better plant a vegetable garden instead.

What's wrong with owning a Stradivarius violin? Well, experts have determined that all violins made by Antonius Stradivarius have been accounted for and are in the hands of known collectors and violinists. They don't change hands very often, but when they do, the price is usually more than $1 million.

Stradivarius made the finest violins the world has ever seen in Cremona, Italy, during the early 18th century. In the late 19th and early 20th century, thousands of fake "Stradivarius" violins were produced in Germany, France and Czechoslovakia. These sold so well that they also used the labels of Giuseppe Guernierius, Carlo Bergonzi, Jacob Stainer and Nicolo Amati.

The Wall Street Journal reports a physicist claimed to have performed extensive tests on his violin and determined that it was 400 years old. Unfortunately it was also labeled "made in Czechoslovakia," a country that wasn't founded until 1918.

The best of these fake Strads might be worth $150 to $200, depending on their musical quality.

If you do have an "antique" violin, take it to a local musician or museum for a qualified opinion.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item (limit one item per request) to James G. McCollam, P.O. Box 1087, Notre Dame, IN 46556. All questions will be answered but published pictures cannot be returned.

erty owners and investors.

Even individual homes are occasionally exchanged. As a personal example, in 1982 my wife and I planned a move from Santa Barbara, Calif., to Denver. But we couldn't find a buyer for our home in Santa Barbara. While visiting with a Realtor at a restaurant, he told me about a couple who wanted to move the other way—from Denver to Santa Barbara. But they needed to dispose of several Denver-area properties before relocating.

After several discussions with the couple, and inspection of properties, we worked out an exchange. For our Santa Barbara home, we would acquire a four bedroom home and a condominium in Denver, plus a carryback note secured by a second trust deed on our Santa Barbara property.

It all came together nicely. We lived in the Denver-area house and rented the condo, giving us a comfortable residence plus a tax-sheltered income.

Q. Is purchasing a guest ranch in a scenic mountain area generally considered a good investment?

ment? What type of buyer is attracted to these properties?

A. Demand for guest ranches, particularly those with scenic appeal, has become stronger in recent years, according to H. Bob Fawcett, president of Selected Properties International, based in Denver — a firm that has long specialized in marketing ranch properties throughout the international marketplace.

Most of Fawcett's recent prospective buyers of guest ranches are individuals and couples who want to personally own and operate a guest ranch. He cited two ranches now available in the Colorado Rockies — Wildhorn Guest Ranch near Colorado Springs and the historic Don K Ranch near Pueblo.

"Most of the inquiries we are receiving from points throughout the country are from people who want to live and work in a mountain area of exceptional natural beauty," Fawcett said. "And if they plan wisely, they can indeed generate a comfortable income for themselves while enjoying the clean, healthy surroundings and making new friends."

Q. What are the prospects of home values increasing over the next year or so?

A. Prospects are good at this point, according to several real estate and financial analysts.

"Construction financing for new housing has been virtually nonexistent during 1990 and 1991 in many regions," said Andrew Kane, director for Arthur Andersen & Co.'s Real Estate Services Group. "In 1990, the housing supply increased because consumers, lacking confidence in the economy, stayed out of the market. This pushed home values down as much as 20 percent or more in some areas."

"Since the (Persian Gulf) war has ended and the economy has shown signs of rebounding, there has been an increase in demand, especially in the entry-level market. However, residential construction is not keeping pace with demand. The vanishing supply of residential real estate will create upward pressure on home prices."

With this same basic rationale in mind, some experts are predicting up to 20 percent increases in home values over the next year.

Wallpaper removal can be a difficult task

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

G. The previous owner of our home decorated a number of rooms in ornate wallpaper. I want to remove this paper and paint the walls a neutral color.

I have found that the paper, applied to wallboard, is not easily removed. When I tried to strip off the old paper, chunks of the wallboard also came off. I have tried soaking, steaming and scraping with no success.

Do you have any suggestions on how to remove this paper without damaging the wall?

A. Your wallpaper removal may prove to be a tedious task. If wallpaper was applied directly to the drywall without a primer or sealer, it is likely that the wallpaper is laminated to the top layer of the drywall surface. This makes removal particularly difficult.

The key to removal is moisture. Repeated soaking or steaming of the papered surfaces is the only way to break the bond of the old adhesive holding the layers of wall coverings to the wall.

The most popular way is steaming, using a special machine. Wallpaper steamers can be rented. However, they are bulky, somewhat unwieldy and rarely come with appropriate instructions on usage.

You might want to consider investing in one of the newer models now on the market for use by homeowners. Two such models are Steamworks (Black & Decker, U.S. Power Tools Group, P.O. Box 798, Hunt Valley, MD 21030) and Wagner Power Steamer (Wagner Spray Tech Corp., 1770 Fernbrook Lane, Minneapolis, MN 55441).

These machines are relatively light compared to rental models. They retail in the $50 to $60 range vs. rentals, which go for about $20 per day. They both come with detailed how-to-use instructions and are available at home centers, hardware stores and paint and wallpaper stores.

Steaming machines have a perforated plate, similar to an iron, which is held next to the wall to steam the paper until the adhesive breaks and the paper loosens.

Instead of plain water, you can use a commercial wallpaper remover. This is a liquid-enzyme breaker that attacks the glue and breaks down its molecular structure, making the job easier.

A key to removal is to steam or soak the paper long enough so that the moisture penetrates through to the adhesive. If you don't wait long enough for the paper to loosen, there's too much resistance, and you can end up gouging the wall.

However, on drywall you do not want to soak any more than necessary. It's a tricky procedure of soaking the top layer just enough so it starts turning loose and coming off without damaging the underlying face of the wallboard.

To help the process, go strip by strip, using a dull removal tool, such as a broad knife. An instrument that is too sharp, such as a razor blade, will tend to slice into the drywall and damage the surface. It is best if the wall can be hand-stripped without using any type of scraper.

To facilitate the steaming process, you can abrade the surface so the water penetrates more easily. You can use a rough sandpaper or a special tool designed to perforate wallpaper, such as one called the Paper Tiger, manufactured by Wm. Zinsser & Co. and available at paint and wallpaper stores. The trick is to apply just enough pressure to cut through the top layer of wallpaper and avoid any penetration of the wallboard.

If, when all of the paper has been removed, you find that you have some gouges and an imperfect surface, the wall must be repaired before you can paint or paper. This involves using spackle or joint compound to skim the wall, creating an even surface.

Make sure that the wall is thoroughly dry after wallpaper removal and between any repair steps prior to painting. Prime before painting and use a primer-sealer on any walls you are considering for reapplication of wallpaper.

G. We have wallpaper in a bedroom that I would like to redecorate. I would like to paint over the surface or apply new wallpaper over the old. My husband says that we should remove the old paper first.

I do not want to get into this messy, difficult job. What is your opinion? Can a new wallpaper be applied over the existing surface? What about painting the existing paper?

A. Your best bet is to start anew with a clean surface. So many of the newer papers are strippable vinyl coverings and are very easy to remove. If this is the case, by all means strip off the existing paper.

However, if the old wallpaper is non-strippable and in good condition, without any loose seams, you can consider wallpapering without removal of the existing wallpaper.

Is your home unique?

We are looking for interesting or unusual homes to feature in our Creative Living section, and we need your help.

Are you particularly proud of your home? What makes it unique? What makes it of interest to your neighbors?

It could be a creative solution to a difficult problem. It could be a special room — an exercise room, sewing room, attached green house or an electronic video center. What makes your home special may be a particularly creative job of interior decorating. Or, a particularly nice job of landscaping with gardens and flowers.

Whatever it is, we'd like to hear about it. If you live in Northville or Novi, call Bob Needham at 349-1700. If you live in South Lyon or Milford, call Matt Valley at 437-2011 (South Lyon) or 685-1507 (Milford).

We won't be able to feature everybody's home, but there are a lot of creative people out there with good ideas, and we think your neighbors would like to read about them.

Brickscape Gardens employee Rachel Martin puts out some flowers.

Brickscape is really two stores in one

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Bigger isn't necessarily better, and Joe and Diane DiRado have been proving that with Brickscape Gardens, a complete garden supply store in Northville.

The building on Old Novi Road north of Eight Mile occupies just 2,500 square feet, cozy by most standards. But it's chock full of unique and high quality garden accessories, tools and supplies. It's also a step up from the tiny 400-square-foot garage Brickscape occupied until last winter.

"We used to just be in a 20-by-20 garage," said Joe DiRado. "It's made a difference in our business between this year and last year."

Brickscape Gardens is really two businesses in one. Joe runs the original brick paving business which sells brick pavers for paths and driveways.

He also does contracting on brick paving jobs.

The nursery and garden store are overseen by his wife, Diane. In Northville, where people like to make a statement with their homes, both ends of the company enjoy a receptive audience.

"The things we try to carry are on the higher end and of higher quality," said Diane. "People in Northville expect that, I think. We're very particular about the growers we deal with. There isn't just one source. We have to spend a lot of time researching the different things to carry."

"People around here are looking for different things; not the kind of stuff you'd find in the average department store."

A garden adjacent to the building displays a wide variety of annuals.

Brickscape is really two different stores in one perennials and indoor plants. Meandering between the rows of plants are walkways created from the brick pavers that Joe sells. It's an attractive way to display the different styles available.

Scattered about the garden and in the store are landscaping accessories and decorations. Bird feeders, wren houses and fountains create a lively atmosphere on the property. Again, the items are of high quality. There are no plastic flamingos here. Practically everything is of wood, metal or stone.

"We have a neighbor from one of the businesses here who comes in on his lunch hour all the time and just looks at everything," said Diane.

But for all the finery stocked by Brickscape Gardens, the prices remain low.

"We had ladies come in this spring for their bulbs, and they told us, 'Your prices are the same as Builders Square and your stuff is nicer,'" said Joe.

The DiRados agree that a large part of their success has been due to service. It's definitely a family business with either Joe or Diane around all the time, and both sets of parents helping out.

"People want a local fast and friendly place to go to," said Joe. "They don't like to go to a big place where no one will wait on you and they don't care about you."

"We have a lot of people who will wait a few days for us to order something, rather than go to Meijer or whatever."

Among the services Brickscape Gardens will provide are custom potting and planting. Bring in your own pot, or choose from one of theirs. The store also offers a wealth of information on plant care and pest control.

At Christmas time, when the store sells Christmas trees and some exquisite decorations and wreaths, Brickscape will deliver the tree of your choice to your home. It sure beats tying it to the roof of your car.

Joe offers classes to teach do-it-yourselfers the craft of brick paving. The job is a good home project since it doesn't have to be done all in one day, like concrete paving.

"We bring them right in here show them step by step how it's done," Joe said. "They get to see it done firsthand."

"It leaves them with a very satisfied feeling to do it themselves. People send us notes and pictures showing how theirs have come out, and some of them are incredible. There are people who do a better job than some of the people who call themselves professionals."

The seminars have been so successful that Diane is planning some on the different aspects of gardening.

About the only problem the DiRados have run across is visibility. A new sign facing Novi Road has made their location on lightly traveled Old Novi Road more noticeable. Still, they find their out-of-the-way location helpful in some ways.

"It actually works in reverse for us," said Joe. "Once people get down here, they remember us. It's hard to forget where it's at because it's so hard to get to."

But in truth, most of the customer loyalty at Brickscape comes from the service.

"People are sick and tired of asking for service where no one can help them," said Joe. "We have a lot of real good customers, and we treat them like gold. We take care of them, and they're super people."

Our Progress edition: It's important reading

Welcome to our second annual Progress edition.

Actually, the Progress editions began almost a decade ago with the introduction of a new publication called Business & Industry. One of the primary objectives of Business & Industry was to highlight the contributions to this community of local businesses and industries.

Since that time the original Business & Industry theme has evolved to the point where we decided last year to change the name to Progress to more accurately reflect its content.

This second annual Progress edition continues to highlight the contributions of local business and industries, but it goes a lot further.

We like to believe the annual Progress editions have become a valuable resource to people who want to know what's going on in the way of development in Northville, Northville Township, Novi, South Lyon, Lyon Township, Milford and Milford Township.

It's not light reading. But we think it's important reading for everyone who wants to know what the future holds.

Inside this year's Progress edition you will find stories about the status of development in all our communities.

Also featured are revealing Q&As — question-and-answer interviews with Herbert Lawson, developer of this year's Homerama in Novi; Brandon Rogers, Milford Township planning consultant; South Lyon Planning Commission Chairman Kevin Sveska; and Robert DeMattia, developer of the huge Huntington Falls development in Northville Township.

All of them have a lot of important things to say about development ... about progress ... about what local residents can expect to happen in the years ahead.

As I said before, it's not light reading. Just important reading.

Executive Editor

The cover of the Progress edition was illustrated and designed by Angie Predhomme of our graphics department, using Aldus Freehand software on a Mac IIci computer and printed out through a high resolution image setter.

New Image Design System Helps Bridge The Gap Between Reality And Imagination

If your home needs a new image, there is now an alternative to the classic scenario of hiring an interior decorator.

Whether the exterior needs an overhaul or your interior needs some sprucing up, Random House Interiors has a new way to lead you through it painlessly.

It's called the New Image System, a high-tech computer-controlled procedure whereby RHI's professional design consultants scan photos or videotapes of your room, yard, home or office, and place the image on a high-resolution video monitor. Then with the aid of a computer, they can move furniture, change fabrics, repaint or add accessories.

"We're able to add or take away anything," said Julie Ford, an interior designer and president of RHI.

And since it's all done on a computer, the proposal can be approved by the client before any work is done.

RHI can now use it to advise people on new home construction as well. Programs are in place to illustrate exterior appointments like doors, window trim and roofing. Brick shades can be changed in seconds. "With the laser printer, we can make a print to show to the builder," said Ford.

Commercial clients can use the service, too, for landscaping, expansions and new construction.

Customers of RHI can purchase furnishings and accessories at discount prices plus a designer is available to help coordinate your creation. All brands of furnishings are available through RHI.

Milford Township: Steady development

By MARTIN E. DESCHAIINE

Despite a sluggish local economy, residential development in Milford Township has continued at a steady pace, particularly in the southern end of the municipality.

Milford Township Planning Consultant Brandon Rogers attributes continued growth to a continued interest in a country atmosphere. In many instances, home buyers are moving east to west, taking advantage of their existing home equity.

That equity is necessary, Rogers said, because banks have become much more "tight-fisted" with mortgage money. This is particularly true in the higher priced homes on the the market, which are visible throughout much of the township.

Access to the I-96 freeway has been important to developers, as evidenced by the large number of projects being built in the southern end of Milford Township.

The Milford Ponds project is being developed on 80 acres on South Milford Road, about one mile north of the I-96 expressway.

It is expected that all 14 lots, each of which ranges from $49,000 to $79,000, will be sold by the end of the year, according to Mike Powell, the project's civil engineer.

Powell said the sites range in size from three to five acres. The homes are expected to sell between $150,000 and $250,000.

Milford Township currently is a hot spot for development, said Powell. "It's a very desirable area" even in the midst of a depressed housing market nationwide.

"Milford Township is a hot enough market that the (freeway) access" is not the deciding factor, Powell added.

Powell said streets in the Milford Ponds development are now under construction. The developers are not building each home site, but rather selling the lots to various homeowners. Seven of the 14 sites had been sold as of early August, he said.

The various developments in the area will not hurt, but help one another, he added. "Competition is good for the market as long as there isn't a glut. The competition breeds more activity."

Just across the street from Milford Ponds is the Milford Pine Meadows development. The development comprises 24, two-acre sites about one mile north of the expressway on the west side of Milford Road.

The Choice Group, project developers, has sold all but four of the lots. The remaining lots are selling for $59,000 to $79,000. Choice Group officials said the homes contain approximately 3,000 square feet and the development offers both ranch and two-story homes.

A little farther north on Milford Road are the Berwyck on the Park and Berwyck Place equestrian developments. Both are the brainchild of the Farmington Hills-based Irvine Group.

Berwyck Place will consist of 14 custom homes on a 42-acre site on the east side of Milford Road about two miles north of the freeway.

The homes will measure from 3,000 to 5,000 square feet and are expected to sell for upwards of $300,000.

On the west side of Milford Road is the Berwyck on the Park development which will consist of 57 homes on 48 acres.

Berwyck on the Park will feature homes from 1,800 to 2,700 square feet. The homes will likely sell for under $200,000.

Norm Finkelstein of the Irvine Group said the community will offer "horses without hassles," a unique lifestyle.

The developments also boast a clubhouse that will include a Jacuzzi, exercise room, sauna and the ability to ride

24 HOUR SERVICE HELPS ACCOMMODATE ALL CUSTOMERS AT B & J GAS & OIL

B & J Oil has been servicing surrounding communities for more than 20 years. The company began as a small home and field delivery service, offering home-heating oil, gasoline, and diesel fuels. As B & J grew the company added a complete line of motor oils and greases.

During the past year, B & J Oil has been able to shop.

It didn't take long for people to recognize a good thing. Customers began asking when a service station was going to be built so they could fill all their petroleum needs through B & J Oil. In 1985, B & J took a monumental step and opened their first island. Loyal customers soon helped B & J add a second island in 1987 and a third in 1988. The spring of 1990 brought even more pride to B & J when the company was able to landscape and revamped the exterior of their new service station built on the lot next door to their old location.

Forever looking for new ways to better service customers, B & J Oil continues to be on the forefront of technology. In the fall of 1990, we implemented the national credit card system known as Pacific Pride. Pacific Pride permits an approved customer to fill up 24 hours a day, seven days a week anywhere in the United States that has a

Huron Valley schools preparing for growth

By MAUREEN JOHNSTON

The residential development boom in Milford Township has attracted more families. And more families means more children — children who attend school.

The growth in the student population in recent years stretched school accommodations to the point district officials saw expansion of facilities as the only option.

In February 1991, Huron Valley School District voters approved a $48.6 million bond issue proposal — based on a two-year study of enrollment projections and a forecast of related educational and facility updating needs.

School officials cited a student population "busting at the seams" in their election campaign. Portable classrooms have been erected near several schools to ease student overcrowding.

Projects throughout the district will be funded by proceeds from the bond issue, including the construction of new elementary and middle schools, renovation of existing buildings, improvement of outdoor physical education facilities, implementation of technology, and acquisition of sites.

Those projects are called the first phase of the long-term district plan described in a Facility Committee Report submitted to the Huron Valley Board of Education in July 1990.

Second and third phases included in the report describe additional construction as well as extensive renovation of the elementary and middle schools and the district's support facilities.

Representatives of the district's construction manager, Barton Malow, and architect, Greiner, Inc., this May presented to the school board a preliminary milestone schedule for construction of the two new schools and renovation at the existing buildings.

Improvements to the athletic track and field facilities at Milford and Lakeland high schools this June were the first expenditure of bond money

The tentative timeline illustrates the blocks of time over the next three years required to complete each portion of the projects.

Improvements to the athletic track and field facilities at Milford and Lakeland high schools this June were the first expenditure of bond money. Completion of construction at Milford High School in July 1994 is listed on the schedule as the final project of the first phase.

The district last week announced the purchase of an 80-acre piece of land where the new elementary and middle schools will be located. Pending the results of soil boring tests, the new schools will be constructed on the southeast corner of Commerce and Duck Lake roads. That site was chosen because that is where the growth in the student population is, said Patrick Donahue, assistant superintendent of administrative services.

"All of our elementary schools are at capacity," said Donahue, "but the three on the southeast end of the district are bursting at the seams."

the association's horses.

A full-time horse trainer and club manager will be on staff. Each homeowner will pay a monthly fee depending on the services they desire.

Finkelstein said the development is geared toward the home buyer who wants to own a horse without having to contend with cleaning, lodging and feeding the animal.

Construction on the project is expected to begin in about a month. More than 60 people have already made inquiries about the development, he added.

Finkelstein noted that freeway access and proximity to Kensington Metropark make the project all the more marketable.

Keith Mohr, who represents West Oakland Land Corp. of Milford's Heritage Hill and who has developed many Milford subdivisions, said the area is expected to continue to grow.

Mohr, who is in partnership to develop Old Milford Farms and Cumberline Ridge, and is currently working on Milford's Hidden Valley, said the sale of lots has slowed down somewhat but activity is still evident.

Located off Rowe Road, Hidden Valley is in the northern part of the township and is a 42-site development on 72 acres. The sites average 1 1/2 to 2 acres.

Powell cited the township as a growing area for east-west expansion of the Detroit metropolitan area. He said the I-96 freeway helps the sale of homes to move quickly.

"Access is important in the marketability of a project."

Mohr agreed with Powell that I-96 is important to the developments and the access they provide. "I-96 is definitely our lifeline," said Mohr. "Without I-96, you wouldn't have half the growth you have seen in the last 10 years."

New look enhances an evening of harness racing

A $2 million renovation of the grandstand & clubhouse will greet the fans of Northville Downs harness racing at post time on October 14th.

"This will be the track of the future," says manager Marge Zayti.

A completely renovated grandstand building brings the facility to state-of-the-art condition. Individual TV monitors accompany each box seat group and padded comfort seats have replaced metal seats in the reserved seat section.

"And we have re-worked the track itself to raise the level of degree in the turns," Zayti says. "That allows for a faster and safer track" --faster for the fans' enjoyment, yet safer for the horses.

These major improvements maintain Northville Downs' premier position in harness racing in Michigan and throughout the midwest.

It was 1944 when a small group of New York businessmen decided to try an experiment--placing bets on harness horses was a new idea. They leased the small Center Street fairgrounds used to train horses for Michigan fairs.

"Northville Downs is the original," Zayti says. "It's where it all began. The whole harness industry grew from the 35 days granted to those New Yorkers to prove their idea. One of them was John Carlo. He stayed in the racing business at Northville until he died in 1986."

During that first year--1944--bread was eight cents a loaf, the minimum bet cost $2 and a total of $1-plus million was wagered at Northville Downs. This year, $83 million was placed on bets, but the minimum bet is still $2.

"The best horses in the world have raced at Northville Downs," Zayti says, and the track continues to be the focal point of harness racing in the midwest. Nearly all the horses are Michigan owned and 600 are housed in Northville Downs' stables with the remainder at neighboring farms.

Harness racing is seasonal, running from October to April, six nights a week for a total of 144 racing days. Eleven races are run each night beginning at 7:30 p.m. and continuing until about midnight.

About 5,000 people come through the doors on a Saturday night to find an enjoyable evening's entertainment in the huge three-tiered clubhouse. Concession stands line the first tier with the cocktail lounge on the second clubhouse level. The third floor dining room offers large windows overlooking the track with a giant video screen for watching the horses at closer range. The grandstands seat about 2,500 people.

Gambling is adult entertainment, and children under 12 are not allowed into the track. Some of the gambling includes win, place, show, a daily double, perfecta and trifecta.

Planner foresees the future

Widely respected as an expert on municipal planning, Brandon Rogers has served as planning consultant for Milford Township for more than 25 years.

A member of the American Institute of Certified Planners, Rogers earned a master's degree from Harvard University's School of Design. He also has worked in Chicago and Ohio.

Rogers started out working for the Detroit City Planning Department and began doing freelance consulting work. He started a business in 1958 with another planner. The business grew to include 50 employees. He eventually scaled back the operation to give municipalities more personal attention. Reporter Martin E. Deschaine asked him several planning questions about the community. What follows are Rogers' direct quotes taken from the interview.

Brandon Rogers

You have often commented about how much you like Milford Township. Tell us why and exactly what you do for the township?

ROGERS: It has the small-town ambiance and color and personality of a town I came from in New Hampshire — Exeter. The topography, winding streets, the woodlands. The real reason though is that in a small town you get to know a variety of people. You know the supervisor and the mayor. You can have access. Everyone knows everyone.

I do a number of things for the township. I am an adviser to the township planning commission, which is an advisory

Pre-planning helps to ease burden for families

Northville area families have had the benefit of assistance from the Casterline family in time of trouble for three generations.

Ray Casterline established Casterline Funeral Home at 122 W. Dunlap in Northville in 1937. He was followed by his son, Fred, who retired in 1980. Ray, II, "always helped out" at the funeral home and has been a licensed funeral director for 20 years.

It's a sensitive business, Ray says, "where you become a good judge of people and of what approach to funeral arrangements will suit them."

Pre-planning is an option that eases the burden for many people. Ray acquired his life insurance license last year in order to offer a pre-planning strategy called the Forethought Plan.

It works this way: a person chooses the services he wants for his own funeral arrangements and prices them at today's costs. He purchases a life insurance policy for that amount. The policy guarantees that the chosen arrangements will be paid for regardless of their price at the time of death.

"It's reassuring emotionally and financially for people to know that everything is taken care of," Ray says, "in many cases long term health care costs have depleted a person's savings to the point where state assistance is required. The Forethought program is set up in such a way to be protected and will not effect the amount of assistance the state provides".

Funeral arrangements are basically the same today as they have always been--visitation and service often followed by cemetery burial--but regulations concerning pricing have improved customer knowledge.

"People are much more aware of the variety of services provided by a funeral director now," Ray says. "But many people didn't want to know exactly what those services were and choose among them. It's a difficult time to force decisions on people."

There's been a change for the better in the public's attitude toward funeral directors and their business over the last few years, Ray says.

"The profession has opened up more, too, and as a result, we have quite a few young people, especially from churches, coming through the home on tours. It helps to remove the mystique associated with the profession. We answer questions and help change some of the very strange impressions young people have."

Casterline Funeral Home has a staff of five and like Ray, they are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year.

Rogers describes Milford's master plan

er to the township board. I also help update the Master Land Use Plan. From time to time we update the long-range development plans, the goals of where we're going in the next 25 years.

Now what if a Toyota plan or an Auburn Mills Mega-mall, which considered Milford Township, came in and offered officials 500 jobs and said we're going to buy a fire truck, pave all the roads and contribute $200,000 a year to the general fund? That has happened in some small communities. In Lyon Township I don't know what the offer (from Toyota) was, but I'm sure it was sweet.

You may have to say, "This is a pretty good development for our community." If that's the case, it's not uncommon to alter the master plan.

The applicant has to do traffic and impact studies or the plan will not be friendly with the neighbors. Milford gives as much serious concern to (a) site plan as I would give attention to a site plan in the City of Novi. I have had plans come in Brighton Township because they could not meet the standards in Novi. I saw the same people. I said we also have standards in Brighton Township.

The township has large-lot, low-density zoning, big homes on big lots. One of the criticisms is that this has priced the common man out of the area. How would you respond to that?

ROGERS: I treat Milford Township as part of the Milford community. I link it with the Village of Milford. There is affordable housing, elderly housing and I believe assisted housing in the Village of Milford. It's readily available. There are modest and available homes around Sears Lake. Some of the most graceful homes are off the back roads that are not the new homes valued at $200,000 to $300,000.

What we did is establish a new R-1E single acre zoning classification. Right now most of the township is 1-1/2 and 3 acres. Just because you have a big lot doesn't mean you have to put a big home on it. The two don't necessarily have to go together.

We're also considering, in study sessions, a cluster housing option. In my opinion a cluster option is needed. By clustering option, either attached or detached, you can leave another portion of the site — and the woodlands — intact.

So we have homes on modest lot sizes, we have middle-aged homes and historic homes for people in retirement and young people.

But I have to add that I recognize that in Milford Township you have to buy a large site or a big home that is not cheap.

You are also the planning consultant for the City of Novi and Brighton Township. Compare and contrast those communities to Milford Township. Will Milford Township ever be like those two communities?

ROGERS: Milford's residential base has been established. There are limited areas, other than on Pontiac Trail and a little on Holden Avenue, for industrial.

Brighton Township has Grand River, Old US 23, extensive areas being developed for commercial and high-tech warehouse uses. They have frontage like Cars & Concepts. But they also have a residential base.

They have concentric-ring density planning quite like Milford. Interestingly, the trend now in Brighton Township is to reduce their density. As you get nearer to the City of Brighton you see the higher density.

Novi is a little different. They have utility service and the west third of Novi, west of Beck Road, is zoned for one-acre lots, the largest lots they provide. Novi has a shopping center. It has several shopping centers. They are holding on to prevent it from becoming another Sterling Heights or Livonia by very stringent environmental ordinances.

We did their woodlands ordinance, which is a model for the rest of the state. It takes a lot of enforcement but it works. We have a wetlands ordinance, a hazardous chemicals ordinance. Soon we'll have a habitat ordinance.

To preserve the west half of the city, the woodlands and wetlands keep development low. Our projection for 2010 ... we are presently at 32,000 (population), it will less than double to 60,000. Full capacity is 72,000.

You go to Farmington Hills or Livonia or Sterling Heights, they are over 100,000.

They (Novi) are purposely capping the population with rezonings to lower the density. All of the multiple-family (developments) were lowered in density.

They're different. They're totally different. All three communities have freeway interchanges. They are all lined up along I-96 and Grand River.

But one (Novi) has a super regional shopping center (Twelve Oaks Mall). There's more retail floor space in Novi than in Grand Rapids or Lansing. Anything you want, you go to Novi and you'll get it.

Brighton is a focus of two freeways (I-96 and US 23). It's centered around a historic town, but they have significantly more industrially- and commercially-zoned areas (than Milford).

It's a community whose population I expect to be double that of Milford Township within 10 years.

What I think is happening is that we (Milford Township) held on in those early years when there was pressure to sub-divide into small lots.

There was pressure to zone parts of South Milford Road for commercial. We said 'no.' We held off and held our breath, and one by one our three-acre subdivisions came in.

What that does, and they are using the visible expensive frontage, is set the pattern. Realtors realize they are stupid to sell the one-acre lots when they can sell the three-acre ones.

There is commercial zoning down by the freeway (at the Milford Road exit). We've put that into the planned unit development (PUD) so that no one can come in and put an Amoco or a McDonald's on the corner. Both have talked to me about doing just that. They can come in only if it's part of the 30-acre PUD and all the roads and the septic are included.

Will the township's low density, large-lot zoning ever be tossed out in a court of law?

ROGERS: I think the township is in a far better position now that they have an updated master plan carried out over three years. Also, a developer cannot say now that he cannot sell a 1ba1/2ea- or 3-acre parcel and make a profit. They're still going up (in price) in a time of recession.

Each lawsuit is decided on its own merit, but I think that we can uphold our zoning because it is supported by our Master Land Use Plan.

You have been a critic of the strip mall type of land use. Why?

ROGERS: We have adequate shopping in the village. We have a shopping center here in downtown. We have always said that the shopping needs of the township are well-served by the village.

No one can say Milford Township does not have the premiere shopping opportunity in (the form of Twelve Oaks Mall) just 10 minutes to the east.

There's no need for a shopping center at Maple and South Hill roads.

Slow or controlled growth has been something seemingly sweeping Oakland County in the last 10 years. Does slower growth mean better growth or just more expense for the average person developing or buying a house?

ROGERS: Slow growth is a poor term. I would call it moderated growth or growth through planning. In California they have no-growth ordinances. They say, "We'll give 200 building permits a year and that's it." There's so few homes being built they sell them at auction.

I think the township will develop consistent with the master plan. We've had a period in the last couple of years of severe economic restraints which has given us a chance to take a step back and look at our plan. We don't have a gun to our head. A downturn in residential subdivision development is universal in this area. Many white collar workers are out of work.

The township's proposed woodlands ordinance died for lack of support. Were you disappointed?

ROGERS: There wasn't strong support among developers, there was support by homeowners and citizens. The township board, in its good judgment, made the decision.

It may be because of our large lot residential development that most new developments can preserve the trees on the site.

We were more concerned with a developer who would come in and cler-cut an area.

It may re-surface in the future. It may not re-surface until there is a bad situation.

TAKE A GOOD BITE OUT OF LIFE CARE FOR YOUR TEETH CARE FOR YOURSELF

The staff of Provident Family Dentistry believes they can make a difference in your dental health. They take pride in offering services that are unique to dental practices in the area. Drs. Alan Kessler, Terry Nielsen, Mark Angelocci and Matthew Vertin overall have been serving the Novi community for more than 19 years. They are actively committed to preventative dentistry, the community and especially their patients.

One of their specialized services involves non-surgical periodontal care. This is an alternative treatment regimen which could take the place of gum surgery that often accompanies conventional treatment. Plaque samples are taken and through the use of phase contrast microscopy and T.V. monitoring, bacterial agents which cause gum disease can be evaluated and therapeutic action taken to eliminate them. Since the patient also participates in the observation of the bacteria, it serves as further motivation to care for their teeth, thus preventing and improving serious gum disease.

The emphasis preventative dentistry - more home care - less costly dental visits. They have the largest staff of professionals in the area and are able to handle emergencies at most any time, and more importantly they are available during those "painful" off hours.

Another unique aspect of their practice is that they can utilize the facilities at both Sinai Hospital and Providence Hospital to treat patients who have special needs. This program allows patients who are handicapped, high-risk or just plain too scared to be treated in a regular office, to be handled as outpatients under the care of an anesthesiologist in a hospital dental environment. This very special program reaches out to people who normally could not receive dental care.

In addition to their unique treatment programs, they also offer all phases of cosmetic dentistry - bonding, bleaching and veneering. They are experienced in all other phases of dentistry including root canals, dentures and crown and bridge.

Provident Family Dentistry, located at 39555 W. 10 Mile Rd., Suite 302 in the Holly Hills Professional Center, considers themselves a true family oriented practice treating individuals from as young as 3 years old to senior citizens. Discounts of 10- 20% are offered to senior citizens. Lyon: Defending its industrial corridor

By LAURIE O'DELL

Almost everyone has heard the industrial strip along Grand River in New Hudson referred to as the "industrial corridor."

But how many people can rattle off the list of industries that are actually located in this area and how the corridor developed? Probably not a whole lot.

Lyon Township Planning Consultant Chris Doozan said the industrial corridor developed as a direct result of land values in places like Farmington Hills, Novi and others like it.

Doozan said if one compares land values in Farmington Hills and Novi to those in Lyon Township, it's obviously more economical to build in Lyon Township.

Industries that have developed in the township are not dependent on being near the heart of a metropolitan area, according to Doozan. They don't need access to public water and sewer. These include companies like Jervis B. Webb, RBI Products, Walbridge Aldinger, McFadden Industries, Inc. and a few other machine shops and plastic molding companies. Also located along Grand River are businesses referred to as "quasi-industrial," such as construction yards and equipment leasing firms.

Doozan said benefits of locating along this industrial corridor are immediate access to I-96 and the potential for good exposure by locating along the highway.

The planning consultant said there

Industrial parks are springing up along Grand River in Lyon Township seems to be continued interest in the industrial corridor, most recently by research and development firms.

In the past Lyon Township officials have focused on industry in general. However, Toyota Technical Center's recent interest in land along the corridor has spurred township officials to look in a new direction.

"Toyota is a strong indication that there is a need for research and development uses," said Doozan.

Toyota has since decided not to pursue plans for a research and development facility in Lyon Township. The company cited the current economic climate as its reason to focus on existing facilities rather than constructing new ones.

A recent survey of a cross-section of residents in the township indicates they are in favor of developing the Grand River corridor for further industrial use.

"If for no other reason than to balance the tax base," explained Doozan. Approximately 60 percent of all respondents on a land use survey conducted by the township agreed that industrial development should take place along Grand River Avenue, between New Hudson and the township's east boundary (Napier Road). However, only 49.2 percent of the respondents from the northeast quadrant, which encompasses this potential industrial corridor, agreed that it should be developed fully for industrial use.

As the Lyon Township Planning Commission develops its master plan, Doozan said members will have to decide what types of new industry will be permitted along Grand River.

"These decisions will also involve keeping with the survey findings which include environmental goals," said Doozan.

At this point the goal of the township "isn't to actively go out and seek new industry, but just evaluate what's coming in."

Doozan said the planning commission and township board will consider the total range of uses that might fit into the industrial category and determine how they fit with the township's development goals.

Up to this point the commission has been meeting on a monthly basis, every fourth Monday of the month, to fine tune its master plan and revamp its zoning ordinance. However, Doozan will conduct a comprehensive study of Grand River and make some recommendations about future development in the coming months.

Lyon residents express development priorities

By LAURIE O'DELL

Like most small communities, Lyon Township is expected to be a predominantly residential community when it is fully developed.

The goal of Lyon Township officials and residents is to preserve its rural, country-like atmosphere. That is evidenced by the results of a survey mailed to a cross-section of residents throughout the township.

To date most new residential development has been single-family dwellings located primarily in what Township Planning Consultant Christopher Doozan calls the northwest quadrant of the township. Many of the newer subdivisions are located along Pontiac Trail and clustered around New Hudson.

Up to this point Doozan said the need for higher density developments, like apartment complexes and condominiums, has been minimal. The planning consultant said there are limitations on where you can put high-density development because some areas in Lyon Township do not perk. This simply means the soil is not conducive to septic field flow.

Doozan said if the need for high-density development arises in the future, township officials will have to decide what locations are appropriate to satisfy those housing needs.

"This is an issue the planning commission will have to explore as the township continues to grow," said Doozan.

The planning commission currently is working on its master plan and trying to incorporate the survey results. About two-thirds of the residents who responded agree that the southern part of the township should be developed at a maximum density of one house per acre.

Over half the respondents indicated that single family development on one-third to one-half acre lots is appropriate in the northern part of the township.

Opinions are even more varied on the issue of higher density development. Only 36 percent indicated that apartment complexes and condominiums should be permitted south of the City of South Lyon.

Township officials are currently looking at innovative residential development alternatives. Open space zoning, which is sometimes called cluster housing, allows developers to concentrate houses in one section of a parcel so they can preserve open areas, woodlands and other natural features located elsewhere on the parcel. About 56.8 percent of the respondents said the township should permit this type of development, provided that it does not result in an increase in density.

In recent years, golf courses and residential development have become inextricably linked in Lyon Township.

Respondents to the survey apparently believe this is an acceptable relationship. About 63 percent of the people indicated that golf course development should be permitted in areas planned for residential development as a means of preserving open space and achieving high-quality residential development.

Doozan said the outcome of the survey indicates that residents and township officials tend to agree on the direction they want residential development to go. Basically, residents enjoy the rural atmosphere and prefer single-family dwellings. Township Supervisor James Atchison said those are qualities township officials are striving to preserve.

South Lyon: Downtown vs. strip malls

By THOMAS M. VARCIE

The addition of Huntington Square shopping plaza in South Lyon actually helped business at South Lyon Pharmacy.

Owner Norm Somers thought it would be the opposite.

Somers has owned the drug store at the corner of Lake and Lafayette in downtown South Lyon since 1969. He never was too concerned about his competitor, Spencer Drugs (also formerly Liberty Drugs), located next door.

Then the big drug store chains started moving in. Sentry Drugs (now Arbor Drugs) came in with Brookdale Square in 1981. And now Maple Drugs has opened at the other end of town in the new Huntington Square Plaza, which opened along with Maxxum Foods last fall.

"I thought, originally, that the addition of Huntington Square last year would take business out of the downtown," Somers said. "But I thought there would be the outside chance the two malls would bring people into downtown as well."

In Somers' case, the latter happened.

"I have the two direct competitors at both ends of town, but my business has gone up over last year," Somers said. He said he has fared better than the inflation rate. "I might be the only one who's benefitted from it."

That was growth — the growth that everyone had been talking about, recalls Somers. But there's more than just retail growth in the city.

"Adler Homes is building 34 homes right now out of 80 in a first-phase development in the city," said Soutyh Lyon City Manager Rodney Cook. The Adler Homes development is supposed to have a total of 232 homes when finished. "We also have the DeMaria housing development at Eleven Mile and Pontiac Trail, which is supposed to have 350 homes."

Some say South Lyon is facing a small-town dilemma. While city officials are concerned with growth of the area, local merchants are concerned about preserving the historical nature of the downtown.

Shirley Boutwell, president of the South Lyon Area Chamber of Commerce, said the downtown is in a battle against the malls.

"I think the two malls tend to draw people to one end of town. They can park, go to one mall and go to numerous shops," Boutwell said.

To keep shoppers in the downtown district, Boutwell said there has to be an attraction. The city already has that attraction with the South Lyon Cinema and Goodies Ice Cream and Sweet Shop, "which go hand-in-hand," said Boutwell.

But parking is a big issue, too. Bringing back the parking meters downtown could mean a slow death for the historic business district, she added.

"Reinstatement of the parking meters would be a double disadvantage. Merchants would have to contend with two shopping malls and customers trying to find places to park," Boutwell said.

Aside from maintaining adequate parking in the downtown area, Boutwell said one way to retain customers is to renovate store fronts.

"The owners need to make the downtown as attractive as they can," Boutwell said. "We need to compare downtowns of other communities like Milford, Northville and Brighton. Their downtowns are thriving."

City Manager Cook said some merchants just need a paint brush to keep up the downtown.

"With the downtown here there are a number of absentee landlords," he said. A 1990 Michigan Bell-prepared business retention study conducted on the city reported that 47 percent of the downtown businesses are leased. "The way for the owners to bring back business in the downtown is for the owners to renovate the interiors and exteriors of their buildings."

With hope, a new code enforcement officer hired by the city will help clean up the downtown district and make it a more attractive place to shop, said Somers, who cleans up around his store almost daily.

"I think he (code enforcement officer) can play a good role in terms of the disrepair of the buildings," said Somers. "Let's just hope he doesn't go too far."

South Lyon: Not much room for growth

Kevin Sveska, a lifetime resident of South Lyon, has served as chairperson of the City of South Lyon Planning Commission for three months. Recently, staff writer Thomas M. Varcie discussed planning and development issues with Sveska.

South Lyon, some might say, is almost built out. How much available building space is there now?

SVESKA: There's an 80-acre parcel north of Nine Mile at Dixboro which is residential, R-1, zoned. And there's a 20-acre parcel across from that south of Nine Mile Road. It's owned by a developer (Holloway Construction). It can be used for single-family residential.

Toward the center of the city, there are very few pieces of land available. There's a couple of small residential lots toward the center. It's in a relatively inexpensive neighborhood.

There's some site plan approval for an industrial park in the west part of the city, but nothing was ever built there. As long as they meet the zoning requirements, something can be built there. In the southeast corner of the city there's some vacant land available.

Because of the city's small size and odd shape, does that hinder the city if a large corporation or builder wants to come into South Lyon?

Kevin Sveska

SVESKA: The way it works now if the township and city don't agree on an annexation, it's up to the state boundary commission. From what I've seen, we don't know which way they'll go: sometimes they go logically, sometimes they don't.

There are some boundaries we wanted to square off, but the boundary commission wouldn't do it. It depends on how well the city and township can cooperate if the city can square up its boundaries. There's been more communication between the two in the last year than there's ever been. Whether anything will happen or anything will be

The Largest Commercial Source for Salt Bath Heat Treating

Ion Nitriding - What Is It?

A new and highly developed process for surface hardening engineering components of alloy steel or cast iron can be given greater wear resistance and durability. The hardening takes place in the plasma of a current intensive glow discharge. Nitrogen or other elements with good diffusibility are occluded in the surface of the workpiece. There is a great variety of treatments possible.

The Principal Advantage of Ion Nitriding:

To a large extent, the structure, thickness, hardness, and homogeneity of the compound and diffusion zones can be controlled independently of each other. This allows the optimum properties to be produced to suit the service requirements. Wear of moving parts is greatly reduced and the fatigue strength is significantly increased.

necessary, I don't know.

I think (South Lyon Mayor) Jeff Potter's done a good job in bringing the two communities together (he helped form a boundary peace agreement committee between the two communities, helped bring Lyon Township into the city's temporary recycling program and is helping form a joint library study committee.)

The Master Land Use Plan is currently undergoing some updating. What will be the major changes in the new document?

SVESKA: There really aren't any changes I can see that are major. It's not a full master plan update. It's more of a residential update or upgrade than anything else.

The way it's being developed with the surrounding land is based on what we have planned for it and the township has planned for it. You don't want to have industrial next to their residential. That's why we had a meeting with the person from the Lyon Township Planning Commission and our consultant (Charles Leman). They went over what the township has planned for the surrounding area. The purpose of the field trip we took earlier this summer (Aug. 8) was to look at the parcels. You have to look outside the City of South Lyon to plan.

Almost half of the planning commission members are new. I've lived here most of my life and know the area. But this tour will be taken to make sure everyone sees the parcels and make sure everyone agrees on what we're thinking as far as the master plan is concerned. If you don't have a master plan that shows land use just outside your boundaries, a developer has a lot better chance of getting anything he wants done there. If you end up in court, he's more likely to get his way.

That's the reason for looking beyond the boundary. South Lyon may not get any bigger. You don't know and I don't know. But you still have to look beyond the boundaries.

The planning commission also is looking at one or two new residential zoning districts, which could require larger lot sizes and larger home sizes so we can be more competitive with surrounding communities like Lyon Township and Green Oak.

It would be a larger minimum home sizes that could be built. It'll be done to try to get more upscale homes in the community. The idea is the further you go out from the center of the city the lots get larger.

The city council has a big interest in creating park land. How can its interest in creating additional park land in the city be fulfilled?

SVESKA: As far as acquiring it, there is $20,000 each year that goes into a park acquisition fund. For a long time there wasn't any funds for it. So I don't see there's a real problem acquiring land, if there's land available.

The planning commission really doesn't decide where park land goes. That's up to the parks and recreation commission. Proposed park land will be shown in the new planning map. But that has to be worked out with the parks and recreation commission.

Parks and recreation is in the process of redoing the parks and recreation plan. That will be shown in the new planning map when it's done.

South Lyon now has two major strip malls, Huntington Square and Brookdale Square. Can you see any more coming into the city in the future or do you think the city has its limit?

SVESKA: Right now there's no commercial land available to build something of that size. We haven't finalized anything, but I don't think there's any proposed commercial in the surrounding portion of the city. I don't see more commercial on that scale at this time. (There is a proposed roller skating rink/strip mall project proposed for a parcel just south of McDonald's Restaurant off Pontiac Trail in the city.)

How important is it that South Lyon and Lyon Township discuss future growth of the area?

SVESKA: You've got to have a plan. You don't want to overbuild (in strip malls) because you'll just end up with a lot of vacancies. You've got to coordinate between the two. Obviously you don't want to have Huntington Square where it's at and then a quarter mile down the road have another center that size because one of them isn't going to make it, and you'll have a lot of vacancies. Lyon Township is redoing its whole master plan, and they're focusing on the Grand River/I-96 area right now. We're going to have to coordinate with them while we update our plan.

With growth coming to the area, how important are roads to the area and how can the city's traffic dilemma be resolved?

SVESKA: There's really one way to solve the traffic problem in South Lyon. I don't know how it could be worked out, but you need to pave Dixboro and Griswold Road. Until you can do that and then eliminate on-street parking on Ten Mile and Pontiac Trail to make it three lanes all the way through, you're never going to get the traffic flow going. But that's my opinion. That's not the opinion of the planning commission.

Do you see any large developments, aside from the 350-home DeMaria development, coming into the city in the future?

SVESKA: At this time there's only the DeMaria property, which is all zoned R-2. There's that parcel and the parcels that Adler owns and the 80 acres in the southwest corner of the city. You have a little bit of multiple housing zoning and residential left. But nothing too sizeable.

What is a way to preserve the historical flavor of the downtown?

SVESKA: The city at one point had block grant funds approved. It was 3 percent interest for business owners to renovate their store fronts. If you go into city hall they have a picture of the proposal and how the city could have looked. That was the reason the streetlights were put in and the sidewalks were put in.

That was done at the same time, but none of the business owners took advantage of it. A lot of downtown business owners are absentee landlords, which has a big bearing on it.

Until you get a substantial number of those that are owned by people in the community I don't see it's going to change that much. I think the downtown needs to stay as it is other than restoring the original storefronts.

What are the biggest issues facing South Lyon in the future?

SVESKA: Roads and park land. If you look at the last 10 years, the South Lyon area has grown at a tremendous rate. Look at all the subdivisions north on Pontiac Trail and the subdivisions west in Green Oak. All that traffic has to flow through town. That's one reason why you have to start working with both communities. It's a lot of extra traffic going through town.

Novi weathers economic downturn

By SCOTT DANIEL

Residential development has experienced steady growth in Novi while commercial and industrial projects have slowed over the past 12 months.

Novi, like many of its neighbors, has felt the pinch of the country's economic slowdown over that period. In the first four months of 1991, for example, no plans for new office buildings were submitted to the city.

But, according to Novi Planning Consultant Brandon Rogers, the city has fared better than most. He said in some metropolitan communities, especially those close to Detroit, virtually no growth is taking place.

Rogers pointed to the diversity of Novi as the reason for continued residential growth.

"There is a lot of activity," he said. "People are still able to get mortgages. People still want to live in Novi and be near shopping ... be near places of work and be near freeway intersections.

"You have this blend of locational features that is somewhat unique in the region," Rogers continued. "Our shopping complex is unique. We have a lot of clean industry and service industries. This is why people are moving in."

In the past year, residential development has spread to the central and western portions of Novi. A high concentration of that activity has taken place between Novi and Beck roads from Nine to Eleven Mile.

Cedarspring Estates, Jamestown Green, Walden Woods, Briarwood Village and Wellington are all new subdivisions or condominium developments for which plans have been approved or construction has begun, Rogers said. More than 500 housing units will be included in the developments.

Another significant development has come in the southeast corner of the city.

Developer Herbert Lawson's Chase Farm Subdivision is currently under construction. The development, which will feature 330 site condominiums, will host this year's builders association Homearama.

The Maples of Novi, located at Fourteen Mile and Decker Road, also has moved forward in the past year. The city's first planned unit development (PUD) features 967 units.

While residential development has taken place in isolated areas to the east and north, Rogers said, in years to come even more projects will go to the community's western region.

"I see it going into Beck (Road)," he said. "Out to Beck where you have water and sewer and they are going to put in a SAD (special assessment district) and bring in the sanitary (sewer).

"It's possible beyond Beck, but at a lower density," continued the planning consultant. "Half-acre, one-acre lots, with septic, in many cases."

Novi's growth in residential development is apparent in the number of site plans reviewed by the city. In each of the last two years, the number of plans submitted by residential developers has increased.

In 1989, plans were submitted for 11 projects while the following year 19 residential developments were reviewed. In

Go west — in Novi

By SCOTT DANIEL

At the edge of northwestern Novi lies a vast and, as yet, untapped resource for the city ... land.

The areas adjacent to Beck Road and I-96 provide Novi with the potential for industrial and office development ... development that would add to the city's tax base. But for now, according to city officials, that's all it is — potential.

"It's a piece of property whose time hasn't come," Novi Staff Planner Mike Csapo said of an industrially-zoned parcel just north of the highway. "But it will. I'm sure at some point, we will see something come through."

Zoning in the area of the I-96/Beck Road interchange is varied. Light and heavy industrial zonings (I-1 and I-2 respectively) as well as several office designations define the area.

Csapo said development into the industrial areas could include manufacturing and assembly in heavy industrial (I-2) districts. Warehousing and research and development could go into the light industrial (I-1) areas.

"I expect to see something in the (area) within the next few years," Csapo said.

City Manager Edward Kriewall said a similar time frame exists for office development. He said the nation's current economic woes have slowed office projects to a trickle.

"That market is absolutely gone," Kriewall said. "I don't know when it will recover."

Access to the highway makes parcels off Beck Road, just north of Grand River, prime for office development, he said.

"It's a great location for hotel, office and light industrial," Kriewall added. "Everything works there, but the economy is weak."

Providence Hospital already has a medical office building under construction in the area (on the southwest corner of Beck Road and Grand River). The hospital has plans for even more medical offices, and a certificate of need is now pending before the state for a hospital on that site.

Last year, the city put to rest "The Grand Plan," which would have moved non-conforming businesses out of the city's Town Center area at Novi Road and Grand River. The businesses would have been moved just west of I-96 and Beck Road to a 326-acre parcel bounded by Twelve Mile, Napier and Wixom roads.

The parcel is currently vacant.

"We still think it has great potential for office-research," Kriewall said.

'Big plans' loom large in Novi's town center

the first four months of 1991, seven plans were presented.

Commercial projects in the same period also fared well.

A total of 21 site plans were reviewed by the city in both 1989 and 1990. In the first four months of this year, seven projects have submitted site plans for review.

Rogers said commercial growth is slowing in the city, however.

The Novi Town Center will be the site where much of the commercial activity takes place this year, he said. The consultant listed the Novi Pavillion office building and the Olive Garden and Red Robin restaurants as commercial developments moving into the Town Center.

"These are a lot of nice tenants to have," Rogers said, "but we don't have ... major shopping centers (coming in)."

A main reason for the lack of development, he said, is the city's abundance of existing commercial areas.

"There is quite an inventory here," noted Rogers. "There are some vacancies (in existing developments) and that scares people off."

In addition to the Town Center Area, some commercial development has occurred along Novi Road.

Stricker Paint Products Inc., a longtime Novi business, is expanding its operation, Rogers said. He listed an auto supply shop as another development along Novi Road.

A major commercial development will be a part of the Maples of Novi. Rogers said an 80,000 square foot shopping area is planned.

Future commercial development will likely be scattered, he said. Rogers said even the city's fast-growing residential area in the west will likely see little commercial growth.

"The old philosophy of having shopping at every mile road is really not valid today," he said. "People are willing to drive further."

"I see no compelling reason to open up another shopping center site (in western Novi)," Rogers added.

Industrial development in Novi has dropped considerably in the last few years.

In 1989, 15 industrial project site plans were reviewed by the city. That number dropped to four last year and, so far in 1990, only one project has come forward.

Johnson Controls has expanded its operations in the city over the last year. Other developments, such as Hickory Corporate Park and Hickory Distribution Center, also have been developed in the past year.

Rogers said industrial development will follow two major paths in coming years.

"It generally follows along Grand River and the CSX railway," he said. "Those two corridors."

Rogers said more than half the city's industrially zoned land is currently vacant. He added that a good portion of the parcels would be developed within the next 20 years.

While half of Novi's industrial areas are developed, only 37 percent of the city, as a whole, has been developed so far. Rogers noted that the city is in no hurry to reach complete development, either.

"We aren't trying to set any records to see how fast we can build out," he said. "What we have in Novi is moderated, planned growth."

Novi awaits precedent-setting changes

By JAN JEFFRES

It won't exactly be a matter of "hey, presto," but as the proponents of the city's downtown development plan see it, precedent-setting changes will be made in Novi.

Only about one-fourth of the cross-roads area around Grand River Avenue and Novi Road now looks the way the city wants it to look — Trammell Crow's Novi Town Center shopping mall — Mayor Matthew Quinn said recently.

Novi Town Center will soon be home to two new restaurants — the Olive Garden and Red Robin.

But the city has plans, big plans, which have already been drawn up by Oakland County's planning department. Novi is one of the few cities in the country attempting to build an old-fashioned downtown from scratch.

Convincing developers to join in is the trick.

Recently, the committee has been in a huddle with Michael Horowitz of the Selective Development Corporation, seeking a way to develop 55 vacant acres in the southeast quadrant of the Grand River/Novi Road intersection. This area would be the heart of the downtown.

While one developer has already backed out on plans to place a new main street on the site — together with housing, retail and other uses — Horowitz now has an option on the property and already has had preliminary drawings made.

"He's trying to decide if he can make an economic go of it ... if he can interest tenants in office, commercial and residential development," Quinn said.

The biggest drawback in persuading developers to follow the leader is the absence of a proposed ring road.

"It's not easy to sell a vacant field to a prospective tenant. They would like to see a road in place. If the ring road's not there, that's a drawback," explained Quinn.

The city may in the future chose to build the ring road and then seek reimbursement from developers, Quinn said.

The relocation of the Amoco gas station on the northeast corner of the Grand River/Novi Road intersection should help pave the way to an attractive, pedestrian-oriented downtown, Quinn said.

The city has recently put its option to purchase the site on the northeast corner of Novi Road and Grand River up for sale. The land would accommodate a small office building, might be eventually incorporated into the Trammell Crow development, or could even become a city park.

Whatever way it goes, there are two pluses, Quinn said. One is that Amoco will donate road rights-of-way to the city which will lower the costs of road improvement at this critical intersection. Road improvement should ease the way for new growth.

"It will also be a help for us as far as visibility goes. Developers don't like to come in with new buildings when there's an eyesore out the window," Quinn said.

One key thing the committee is doing now is firming up town center ordinances and debating the merits of expanding the boundaries of the district. The revised ordinance is expected to make it more economically feasible for developers to jump on the bandwagon to build Novi's downtown.

A report to the city council on this aspect is expected in October, Quinn said.

"It's not easy to sell a vacant field to a prospective tenant. They would like to see a road in place. If the ring road's not there, that's a drawback,"

Sandstone's key to future for northern Novi

By SCOTT DANIEL

Northern Novi will be the location of one of city's most unique residential developments — Sandstone.

Featuring a diversity of housing, including condominiums and apartments, the planned unit development (PUD) project will cover some 300 acres in the northern portion of the city. Sandstone will be located south of Thirteen Mile, between Meadowbrook and Novi roads.

According to Jim Allen, of Leighton & Associates, planners for the project, Sandstone will be constructed in four phases and take five to seven years to complete. He added that Sandstone's developer, Hughes Properties, is currently working on financing for the project.

A total of 1,193 units will be included in Sandstone.

About 700 apartment units will be located in the northwest portion of the site between Novi and Decker roads. The remainder of the development — single-family condominiums — will be located east of Decker Road.

The northern portion of Sandstone will feature an 80,000-square-foot retail area. The PUD also will feature a pathway system and lake facilities.

Apartments will be in the $570 price range for renters, while condominiums will cost about $180,000.

The first construction phase of Sandstone will include 204 flats and 122 single-family condos, Allen said. Preliminary site plans for the phase will be brought to the city when financing and engineering for the Decker Road extension, to Novi Road, are worked out, he said.

"There will be a good mix of units in the first phase," Allen said.

Homerama adds to Novi's residential prestige

By JAN JEFFRES

About 100,000 sightseers are expected to turn out for the Builders Association of Southeast Michigan's Homearama 1991.

They'll be heading down Eight Mile in Novi to see Herbert Lawson's Riverbridge subdivision, but traffic shouldn't be formidable, according to Homearama Chairperson Dennis Dickstein.

Tickets for Homearama are $5 a person, but $4 discount tickets are available during weekdays. This savings is intended to divert some of the flow of visitors from the weekends, Dickstein said.

While a date for the event hasn't been finalized, the three-week home tour may be held in late November, Dickstein said: "It's the first time we've ever done it so late in the year."

Fifteen houses in the $200,000 to $300,000 price range will be constructed by different builders. Each will be fully decorated. Lawson said a sales trailer for the houses is already out and four or five have already been sold. These will be completely furnished and ready to move into.

Typically, Homearama offers people a chance to tour "dreamhouses" and come away with a few decorating ideas.

Last year's Homearama was held in Brighton and showcased dwellings in the $500,000 to $900,000 price range.

This year's show will feature more affordable housing with imaginative and innovative floor designs, Dickstein said.

Homearama was first launched nine years ago.

"The bottom line reason is to help increase business for our members and to increase the image of our industry as a profession," Dickstein explained.

"There are good buys out there in new construction."

CPA Firm Tailors Services to Meet Needs of Small Businesses

More than 50 years of experience lies behind every service offered. That's the combined length of time Scott Lowery and his staff have furnished businesses and individuals with accounting, tax and various financial consulting services.

Over that period the firm has developed a specialty for tailoring these services to small businesses. "Small family owned businesses are of particular interest to me," says Scott. "They have their own unique financial needs not found in larger companies. I get a lot of enjoyment from servicing these needs and watching them grow."

The firm is able to keep in touch with these small business needs at close range as it is located just outside of Northville, at 18600 Northville Rd., in Northville Township. As a Northville Township resident himself, Scott is able to gain even further insight. "Being personally located close to town, I naturally frequent the Northville Businesses," Scott says. "Participating on the customer side of the counter simply enhances my understanding of their business. It also provides me with satisfaction knowing that I'm supporting the community I live and work in.

The firm's experience with small businesses extends to many different industries. These include retail, manufacturing, construction trades, medical/dental, restaurant, hotel/motel, real estate and insurance agents, real estate development, non-profit, governmental and various others. "This is one of the reasons why I like what I do so much," says Scott. "Being involved in so many types of businesses keeps our work interesting and challenging."

Years of involvement with different businesses has led to the firm's development of its many services. Fully computerized general ledger processing and financial statement preparation are the foundation of the accounting practice. Tax return preparation for corporations, partnerships and individuals is performed on-site with state-of-the-art tax software. "We take pride in our commitment to quality," Scott says. "Bringing all of our computerized tax processing in-house last year played a big role in that commitment."

Financial consulting services are a heavily emphasized and growing part of the practice. Accounting system design and implementation, business buy/sell consulting, business succession planning, personal financial and estate planning and general business consulting are the primary services offered. "Through this consulting we can help our clients increase their income accumulation and minimize income taxes at the same time," says Scott. "This is where we can benefit them the most!"

Dental Specialist Provides Unique Care For Area Residents

Dr. Bernier is a prosthodontist. In 1983 he opened a practice named Livingston Prosthodontics on a part time basis to provide comprehensive dental care to residents throughout the Livingston County area.

By definition, prosthodontics is "the science and art of replacing one or more missing teeth and their associated parts in order that impaired function, appearance, comfort and health of the patient may be restored."

The replacement of missing teeth can be accomplished by removable or fixed, complete or partial dentures, as well as implant procedures. Combinations of fixed bridges and removable complete or partial dentures are the most common forms of prosthodontic care.

"Historically, only the largest metropolitan areas enjoyed access to medical & dental specialists. While that's still true, I believe that it is also appropriate to provide the same caliber of care for communities demonstrating a need and an interest in such services. The county in general has created an interest for specialty health care services. There are times when patients present conditions that pose a difficult challenge to meeting the goals of function, appearance, comfort & health. These are the individuals that can best be cared for by a prosthodontist. My presence in the community is meant to assist other dentists in similar attempts and to promote the best possible restorative care for their patients. This area is fortunate to have many conscientious clinicians. I hope to combine my skills with theirs in an effort to provide the kind of comprehensive dental care that metropolitan areas have," explained Dr. Bernier.

Limiting a dental practice to the specialty of prosthodontics requires that a practitioner complete a three year course of study beyond the graduate level as well as successful completion of a board examination.

Dr. Bernier demonstrates the restoration of an entire dentition.

In addition to the extended education, Dr. Bernier furthered his experience during a faculty appointment at the University of Michigan School of Dentistry over the past fourteen years. The fundamentals of good dental construction and patient education that he professed at the University remain the goals of treatment for patients in his private practice.

Other aspects of Dr. Bernier's practice include participation in individual or team approaches to care for young and elderly patients with medical or physical compromises including those with a need for implant prosthodontics or oral and facial pain dysfunctions. Office hours have recently been increased to full time at Livingston Prosthodontics for the convenience of patients, with extended hours by arrangement.

"I have spent most of my life in Livingston County," said Dr. Bernier. "Brighton is a logical sight for a prosthodontic practice and I am confident the area will continue to be a pleasant place to live & work."

Developer Herbert Lawson is bringing the 1991 edition of Homearama to Novi for the first time

Lawson brings Homearama '91 to Novi

Novi has been selected as the community to host Homearama this fall, and Herbert Lawson has been chosen as its developer.

The show will feature 15 homes priced in the $200,000 to $300,000 range, constructed and decorated according to the most recent, imaginative and innovative design concepts. The show will provide viewers with a chance to tour "dreamhouses" and come away with a few decorating ideas.

The location will be at Lawson's Riverbridge subdivision, just north of Eight Mile and east of Novi Road. Sightseers are asked to avoid the site until the project is completed, due to the tight construction schedule.

Staff writer Jan Jeffres questioned Lawson Aug. 2 about the project and other development issues in Novi and the area.

At the time, no final date had been set for Homearama. Lawson said construction was started in the last week of July.

Why did you pick Novi for this project?

LAWSON: Basically, since I own the property I already wanted it developed and the Builder's Association selected Novi as the site. It was selected primarily because they had never held a Homearama in Novi. Novi is an area that is having a lot of single-family development going on.

The city is very receptive to the idea, and they were very excited about having the Homearama.

Is there anything particularly attractive about the location which lends itself to this event?

LAWSON: It's very selective. It's like a little peninsula surrounded by Thornton Creek on one side, and the middle branch of the Rouge River runs along 28 of the sites. It's very beautiful. It's up-north looking. There's a lovely backdrop of forest and trees. It's very serene and secluded.

How did you happen to land the Homearama project? What was the selection process?

LAWSON: They (the builder's association) decided this was the perfect spot. They go through various sites and make the final selection. The location is the first thing in Homearama; the next is what the ultimate sales price will be. They wouldn't want to have the wrong market. We have a managing architect who looks over every single plan to make sure they're unique enough. If you wanted to build a $500,000 house and they thought the market was $200,000 or $250,000, they wouldn't approve it because it wouldn't go over so well.

I think that being in Novi was a factor. Also, the price range of the product. They came off of having a much more expensive project last year. They want people to come to see beautiful houses, but within the price range of the people who see them. Even if you're giving them decorating ideas for their home, most people have homes under 2,500 square feet, not 4,000 square feet.

Developer discusses 'Homerama' plans

In the past, Homearama has put the host community on the map as a premier real estate community. Do you think it will do the same thing for Novi?

LAWSON: I believe Novi is already a premier community. I've been building in the community since 1977, since I did Stonehenge. I've seen it grow. It will certainly get a lot of recognition. It will certainly bring a lot of people to the area. We expect 100,000 people to attend. It will certainly enhance the image of the city.

What are the kind of features viewers will see?

LAWSON: We sort of targeted our market to a different market than Chase Farms (the adjacent new subdivision.) Chase Farms is more expensive. Its lots are a little bit larger. We're trying to keep the homes smaller and more affordable. The price range will be somewhere from under $200,000 to the middle-$200,000.

Home sizes will range up to 2,500 square feet. There will be 15 builders. We're the Windham Realty Group, we're representing Cohan Associations (builders of the Woods of Novi).

Other builders will range from the smaller ones to Pulte Homes, one of the nation's biggest builders.

What are the homes going to be like?

LAWSON: There will be a variety of styles and a variety of color palettes and interiors. There isn't going to be anything that is ultra-, ultra-modern. You're not going to see anything with a flat roof or all wood or all stucco, but they'll be totally different from one another in the interior and the exterior.

The homes will be fully landscaped and fully decorated. Out of the 15 homes, I think four or five (fully furnished homes) have already sold. People get a real good package here, with a lot of features in the home and decorator items that are at special prices for the builders and decorators at Homearama.

How would you assess Novi as a place to do business and build homes? Some developers say Novi is pretty restrictive. Would you say it is?

LAWSON: I have always found personally that the city is very nice to work in. They're very cooperative. They're fair. A lot of people might say they're difficult to work with. I think it's an advantage when you're put on solid ground. It saves problems down the road. It's a blessing in disguise. By being tougher, it's eliminating problems that would surface after the fact.

Why would somebody want to build something and find out later there's a problem? I believe you should have it checked before you get too far along. I think the city is trying to have orderly development.

Do you think the current water moratorium and the Michigan health department's withholding of new water taps is going to be a problem for developers in Novi in the future? Or will they proceed with development on community wells?

LAWSON: It certainly will slow things down in that there will be a pent-up demand when all that will ultimately let up. There will a little bit of a back-up. We have certainly hoped it wouldn't go on much longer. We're hopeful it'll be resolved shortly.

When you get a backlog, when nothing happens, it creates a terrible problem when things open up again. It's a pressure on all the governments when things have to be done at once. It's not good for the economy. It's better to have consistency, a normal flow.

Will some developers proceed to build on community or individual wells?

LAWSON: Some developers who have to do a project might revert to that as an alternative. I know the local government wants to have the people on city water. With wells, city tap fees won't be paid so there is a revenue loss. And then people won't want to hook in.

If they're put in right, I don't know if there are any drawbacks to it. I haven't put in any wells. The people on wells probably wouldn't want to spend money to tap in and the government would lose revenue.

Do you think it's fair that the rest of Novi is following a mandatory, alternate day lawn sprinkling ordinance which in effect enabled you — and other developers — to get new water taps out of the health department?

LAWSON: In the studies we did and that the city did, we didn't feel that it was a problem of having an alternate day sprinkling system. People could water all they want on the day of their choice. For people who have an automatic sprinkling system — I have an automatic sprinkling system — you don't run it every day. It would be over-watering if you ran it every day.

Then, there's orderly development as opposed to a total stopping of building. I could probably think of eight or 10 reasons why it's good but I can't recall them all. It's basically not a burden on anybody to do that. No grass is dying. It's a win-win situation.

At a past city council meeting, Council Member Nancy Cassis suggested that the rest of the council members were giving you special consideration, as far as the timing of your work projects, inspections and permit pulling, so Homearama would progress on schedule. Do you think you have been given special consideration and do you believe you should be?

LAWSON: I think we haven't gotten special consideration. We didn't need it, as it turned out. We don't need anything special. Everything went through in the usual course of getting things done.

I certainly would have liked to start a little sooner. We're starting now. We didn't ask anybody to do anything special. Everything flowed in a timely fashion.

Is this a tense time for you, with everything proceeding on such a tight schedule?

LAWSON: It puts a lot of pressure on the builder. There's normally a lot of pressure in building or constructing something. This is a little more intense because you try and get 15 builders to start at the same time. We've got some very good builders. I'm confident they'll finish in time. There's a lot of camaraderie. There's a lot of cooperation back and forth.

INNOVATIVE NUTRITIONAL HEALTH CARE FOR PATIENTS TIRED OF DRUG-BASED MEDICINES

Don't settle for the notion that aging means chronic disease. There is a better way to prevent, reverse or delay these chronic, degenerative diseases. At Carol's Nutritional Clinic you are educated in alternative holistic therapies to move toward health and away from disease. The Clinic stresses nutrition in preference to the usual toxic drug methods.

• NUTRITIONAL HEALTH CARE should be the main focus of everyone's well-being. Most of the chronic disease and general unwellness which affect Americans both young and old can be effectively helped and even reversed through a good nutritional program. Dietary modification and nutritional supplementation in addition to intravenous and intramuscular nutritional support can change your life.

Anyone interested in improving his or her health status and preventing disease is encouraged to undergo a nutritional consultation with our staff nutritionist in addition to a hair analysis, stool analysis and digestion analysis to evaluate the efficiency of digestion and absorption. If you are not absorbing efficiently, a good diet and proper supplementation will do little good.

To monitor the condition of your blood, a Hemaview analysis is used (LIVCELL™) to see if there are certain nutrients, lifestyle changes or dietary recommendations that may enhance your overall health. In a single drop of blood a live cell analysis can be given. Deficiencies, stresses, tendencies toward cardiovascular diseases, anemias, or immune system problems can be sighted and a proper maintenance program can be suggested.

By optimizing our nutrition and lifestyle along with utilization of innovative, non-toxic therapies, we can attain a state of vibrant super health that goes far beyond what many of us have come to accept as our usual state.

DeMattia details Huntington Falls plan

Northville resident Robert DeMattia is president of the R.A. DeMattia Company, a Plymouth-based development firm well-known throughout southeast Michigan. DeMattia also serves as a principal in the Huntington Falls Limited Partnership, a development project in Northville.

The Huntington Falls project is a year, $1-billion development characterized by roughly equal portions of residential housing, light industrial and recreational uses.

DeMattia was interviewed in early August by staff writer Mike Tyree and asked to discuss the Huntington Falls project and the area's general business climate.

Robert DeMattia

We know the partnership and Wayne County have agreed to push back the sale closing date to June 1992. Please explain the need for the extension, and what type of activity is occurring now?

DeMATTIA: There's a general downturn in the economy and a drastic downturn in the real estate economy. That really dictated, not a delay, but a slow-down in the project schedule ... kickoff, which would actually take another year to get it kicked off. Right now it is no mystery that real estate is anything but robust in Michigan.

Robert DeMattia is the developer of Northville Township's huge Huntington Falls project

Is the project still true to the conceptual plan you unveiled last year?

DeMATTIA: Everything is exactly the same. Nothing has changed.

Are the percentages of residential, light industrial and open space consistent with that plan?

DeMATTIA: Basically the same. There's been no substantial change to the project.

Is interest strong in the industrial complex portion of the development?

DeMATTIA: Right now, most businesses that have expressed interest have also been in the waiting game and are just coming back into the market. The past year, most non-residential commercial establishments have put (projects) on hold, due to the uncertainties of the global economy, due to the war in the Persian Gulf.

Everything stopped. Travel between the Far East and Michigan stopped. The commerce stopped. And now it's just starting to get back into the mainstream.

Do you see businesses stepping kind of gingerly, or are they ready to take significant steps?

DeMATTIA: Business is still very, very ginger.

What segments of the project are expected to be developed first? Could you give us an estimate of when actual construction is planned?

DeMATTIA: Exactly the same schedule as before. It'll be a concurrent commencement. The recreational facilities, of course, will go, because that takes a couple years to mature. We'll start with a portion of the residential, and a portion of the non-residential. We would actually expect to begin construction next year.

According to terms of the most recent agreement, another $1 million must be spent on site work by June 1992. How will that money be spent?

DeMATTIA: Our financial focus right now is in engineering.

Do your initial studies indicate that environmental clean-up will be a difficult task?

DeMATTIA: No, it doesn't.

Will you be taking care of the environmental clean-up or have you worked out a deal with the state and county to share the cost (for removing asbestos and underground fuel tanks)?

DeMATTIA: The underground gas tanks are being removed by the county. They're paying for that and all costs associated with that. The asbestos removal, we are mitigating those ourselves. That was part of our deal.

Do you still plan to save and use some of the building east of Sheldon?

DeMATTIA: As many as we can (but) we don't have an exact count.

Are you getting the sense that the economy is improving, or are business leaders going to continue to act conservatively and tight to the vest?

DeMATTIA: Businesses right now, in this economy, are very cost-conscious and they react with much study as to any move. Businesses, we sense an improvement in the business climate, but still (it is) at a very, very deliberate and well-thought-out pace.

You said you sense an improvement. What are the indicators?

DeMATTIA: Our design development departments have had many more inquiries than they have had in the past two years.

Do you have plans to make any submittals to the township planning commission in the near future?

DeMATTIA: Yes, I do.

What might that entail?

DeMATTIA: That will be the complete plan for site plan approval.

When do you expect to submit?

DeMATTIA: That'll be in the near future.

In 1991?

DeMATTIA: Oh yes; it'll be in 1991.

What do you envision for the Huntington Falls project a year from now? Five years from now?

DeMATTIA: Five years down the road there'll be people living in houses. There'll be riding stables, golf, that small center there with the lake will be in operation. We'll have some (research and development) businesses already involved. We'll see probably 300-400 acres already developed by that time. (A year from now,) we'll see dirt moved.

This is the child who can save millions of American jobs.

Only a child.

But like all American kids, Danny Coudriet, inventor of the Handicap Helper parking sensor, is a very special child.

For our kids have a creative, inventive heritage second to none. And inventiveness, creativity and productivity are what creates and protects jobs.

Now those instincts are being challenged by a very special education program and contest for the children of America.

LIVONIA YMCA PARENT CHILD GROUPS

All programs are available free of charge to YMCA members. Or special Indian Program memberships are available. Campouts and some special events are for an additional fee.

The Parent/Child programs for children five years of age and up are sponsored by the Livonia Family YMCA and are part of a total National YMCA program. A close family relationship is built as the children and parents have fun and learn about Indian lore through crafts, games, songs, stories, outings, and campouts.

Tribes are made up of eight to 10 parents and their children who meet in the homes on a rotating schedule once or twice a month at a mutually convenient time. They also enjoy monthly outings and family swims and Fun Nites at the YMCA. Parents participate with their children in all activities. There is never a child without a parent!

Each tribe has an Indian tribal name. They determine the type of vest they wish to adopt, make them and wear them to their various functions, and tribal meetings. Meetings usually include a short business session followed by an activity. Outings are geared to the interests of the child and parent together, (bowling, roller skating, campouts, community service projects and many others). Headbands, patches for your vests and manuals are provided with membership in the program. Feathers to wear in the headbands are earned by: doing craft projects, participation in activities, learning Indian names of each tribal member to name a few.

Membership in any of these programs is sure to be a rewarding experience for parents and children and strengthens the family as a unit. Membership may also enable you as a parent to re-enjoy all the wonder and excitement of learning new things and growing up.

Join the many families who are involved in the Indian Parent/Child Programs. Give your child the gift of time, your time together!

Get Fit, Stay Fit! Classes are designed to increase cardiovascular endurance, strengthen muscles and improve flexibility. Appropriate for the new exerciser in good shape or for those who just want to maintain their level of fitness.

SUPER FIT

Are you an overachiever? An intense person? Love to sweat? Super Fit is a high level, choreographed, 1-1/2 hour class featuring cardiovascular conditioning, muscular strength and flexibility exercises. Circuit training and other exercises will be introduced to keep you challenged.

HIGH ENERGY, LOW IMPACT AEROBICS

Enjoy this Saturday morning class where low impact is the focus! You'll get a great cardiovascular workout while keeping impact with the floor to a minimum. Appropriate for any fitness level.

STEP AEROBICS

It's new, it's exciting, it's a great workout, it's STEP AEROBICS! The latest craze in fitness is here. This class gives you all of the benefits of a high intensity workout without a lot of high intensity impact. Creativity on the Steps is the key. Try this one!

WATER EXERCISE

A wonderful, wet workout! You don't need to be a swimmer to exercise in the pool. All work is done in the shallow end. We work you hard enough to get your heart and lungs in shape, but the buoyancy of the water takes all of the impact away. The class helps you increase flexibility and muscular balance and coordination, too.

PRE NATAL

Feeling low on energy and out of shape during pregnancy? Don't want to or aren't supposed to overdo? This is the class you need! Exercise emphasizes keeping you fit and toned during pregnancy. Walking and simple aerobic exercise along with safe floor exercises are done to keep lower back and abdominal muscles strengthened.

TORSO DYNAMICS

Tone, firm, strengthen and sculpt your body! Torso Dynamics is the perfect class to do all of these things. It's also a great compliment to an aerobic workout. It is conveniently offered after Tuesday, Thursday fitness class – take them both!

WOMEN'S WEIGHT TRAINING

A new class for Women only. We will teach you the basics of lifting weights – proper technique and use of the machines in the Wellness Center and Iron Works room. Get your body back in shape. Instructor will help you design your own program

PHYSIOLOGIC

Tired of working out and not getting any results? Maybe you're not working out right or maybe you're working on the wrong thing! We offer a fitness evaluation to determine your current level of fitness and set you up on a program that will help you get results. See the Wellness Center Staff for an appointment today!

POWER WALLYBALL

Enjoy some good competition in this exciting game! A cross between racquetball and volleyball, wallyball can be enjoyed and mastered by all. Space is always limited because it is played in a racquetball court. Grab some friends or co-workers and join in the fun.

ADULT MEN'S BASKETBALL

Informational meeting for all teams will be on October 3rd at 6:30 p.m. The season will start play on October 27th, 1991. The Sunday League will be limited to 14 teams. Tuesday Night League will be limited to six teams. The cost of the Sunday League is $315 and the Tuesday League will be $275. For more information call Aaron Reeves – 261-2161.

KARATE

BEGINNING KARATE

Introduce yourself to the world of Tang Soo Do, a form of Korean Karate. Karate is an exciting and very disciplined art form. Train and learn with high level Master Dan!

KARATE CLUB

Be a part of an elite club of students who are striving to be the best! Club participants follow a rigorous training program and advance to various belts at their own pace. Various registration and association fees required and there are mandatory clinics for advancement. Taught by Master Romines, 6th Dan.

AIKIDO

BEGINNING AIKIDO

A great introduction to this non-combative, non-competitive Japanese art form. Learn all about Aikido in this beginning class so you may progress in the program.

TWINGES-IN-THE-HINGES "Arthritis Aquatic Program"

The National YMCA and the National Arthritis Foundation have joined together to establish a recreational water program for persons with arthritis. Swimming ability is not necessary for participation. This class does not replace prescribed regimen of therapeutic exercises, but studies have shown potential resistance property of water can help decrease pain or stiffness and improve coordination. Class will meet for one half hour per week with an additional half hour water time at the participant's convenience.

A special registration form is required and participant's doctors will be contacted by the YMCA for a medical consent form. Registration form may be obtained from the Physical Education Secretary or Aaron Reeves, Aquatic Coordinator.

Class is open to any adult with arthritis who is able to climb stairs to locker rooms and pool.

BASKETBALL

The sport has changed since we invented basketball, but our aim is still the same.

Since Dr. James Naismith created basketball 100 years ago at the YMCA training school, our goal has been to help kids develop self-esteem and strong moral values. Because we believe that's what they need to take their best shot at life.

FOOD FESTIVAL

The Livonia Family YMCA will be participating in the American Heart Association Food Festival this year. Food Festival is a week long national program designed to make the public aware of foods which promote "heart health." Festival week begins September 22. During that week the Y will feature two cooking demonstrations (daytime and evening) presented by a registered dietitian. The presentations will be 20-30 minutes, providing samples of modified recipes and complimentary educational handouts designed specifically for festival week activities. Watch for announcement of demonstration time.
