

City closes in on new trash plan

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

City residents will usher in the New Year with a revamped refuse and recyclable materials collections system, under a plan unveiled last week.

Residential users can expect to pay a monthly flat fee of $4 for recyclable and household rubbish. Resi-.dents also likely will pay a fee for each bag of garbage placed at the curbside.

And a residential subsidy of city commercial sites is expected to be scaled back considerably.

The city council on Thursday ap-proved a $528,000 refuse budget aimed at 1991-92 revenues and expenditures. The budget --- and radical changes in collections fees and services — is prompting city officials to ask the public for patience.

"There's no perfect system (for collections) and we tried to learn from what other communities had done, said City Manager Gary Word. "We recognize that a year from now (the system) was probably be different than is envisioned today.

City officials realize they have plenty of work to do before a Wayne County-mandated solid waste ordinance takes effect. A proposed Dec. 1 starting date has been scrapped and replaced with a Jan. 1 kickoff. The cily has yet to iron out a few wrinkles jn its rates and services structure. and some council members are wary of a cash shortfall resulting from lessened trash flow and a set haulers

But evidence exists that the plan is rounding into shape.

The city probably will adopt a payper-use system that involves purchasing stickers from the city. Officials have focused on a $1.50-per-sticker fee to lead off its program.

Under that plan, residents would buy a number of stickers and affix one to each bag of household trash placed by the roadway. Actual monthly refuse collection rates would be determined by the amount of stickers used, in addition to the $4 flat fee.

Officials estimate the average household would generate a bagand-a-half of household trash perweek with the new system.

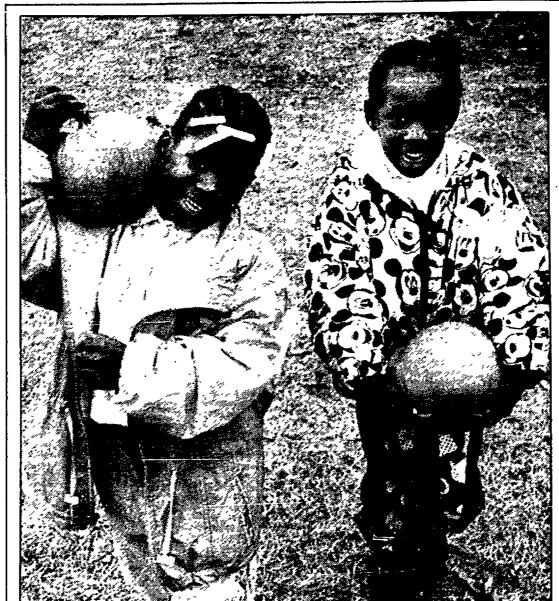

The sticker system is expected to pay 75 percent of the cost of the city's refuse obligations. The $4 fee would fund the remaining 25 percent.

Recyclable items would be separated from other household wastes, thus reducing the volume and number of bags requiring stickers, city officials say.

In addition to the sticker plan, the city proposes to cut residential subsidies to commercial users. Residents currently pay fully 80 percent of all city trash collection costs, even though residents produce only 56 percent of the trash flow.

That figure is to be cut to a 20 percent subsidy, city Assessor Mark

Watson named college trustee

FIFTY CENTS

By SUZANNE HOLLYER Staff Writer

Northville resident Patricia Watson won in her second attempt this year at a seat on the Schoolcraft College board.

Watson, a clinical psychologist, was appointed Wednesday to fill a board seat left vacant by Wendell Smith. The four-year Northville resident finished fourth in a June race with seven other candidates to fill a four-year board seat.

Watson and 13 other candidates applied for Smith's position and in-terviewed with board members Oct. 21 and 22.

Board chair Jeanne Stempien, also of Northville, cited Watson's interest in life-long learning as one reason she was selected.

"The board was looking for someone who demonstrates an interest in promoting what the college does." Stempien said.

Watson told the board in her Oct. 21 interview she had completed a doctoral dissertation on post-highschool learning before ever becoming involved in Schoolcraft College. The college also promotes life-long learning. Stemplen said.

Board members looked for candidates who showed objectivity and experience in analytical thinking, and who were articulate, Stempien said. Watson said she sees an uncertain financial climate and quality of edu-

Community support replaces theft victim's car

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

Paul Diels looked good in his new ride. The engine in his 1983 Mercury Marquis purred, the power windows slid up and down without a hitch, and the bright afternoon sun glinted off the car's midnight blue surface.

And Diels was a happy man.

"I am happy; I am," he said.

The setting last Wednesday outside McDonald Ford's used car lot off Seven Mile and Northville Road was much more pleasant than some the 73-year-old Northville man has witnessed.

Diels suffered a number of still-painful injuries in May when a walkaway patient from Northville Regional Hospital struck him down and stole his ur outside Northville Plaza mall on Seven Mile Road.

, Diels' reliable car was all but ruined during the walkaway's three-day driving spree. A kindly mechanic helped keep Diels' old car on the road; however, it operated on borrowed time.

But individuals and charities from Northville and beyond came to the elderly man's rescue last week.

Donations totaling nearly $1,600 were handed over to McDonald Ford in exchange for the Mercury Marquis. Anonymous donors -- including a Northville businessman who pledged $700 came forward t nelp after hearing of Diels' plight.

Contributions also came from a neighboring community. Project HELP, an employees' charity group from Alexander Hamilton Life of Farmington Hills, capped off the donation pot with a sizable pledge last week.

Project HELP's Jim Ponder, himself a Northville resident, recognized and jumped at the chance to help someone down on his luck.

"It was a situation where somebody was in a difficult situation and needed a helping hand," Ponder said. "We're glad to help . . . and glad people rallied to his cause."

Help also came from Civic Concern, the Northville-based charitable organization. Civic Concern Director Marlene Kunz allowed the organization to be used as a clearinghouse for contributions, and served as liaison between Project HELP and others involved in the car purchase.

"I think in a case like this, people tend to care more for an individual." she said. "People really felt that they wanted to help."

McDonald Ford's John Markovski helped as well. Markovski, who sold Diels his previous car, kept an eye peeled for a suitable vehicle. When the Marquis rolled into the lot, Markovski contacted Civic Concern.

As for Diels, he smiled as he sat in his new car. His trips now are mainly limited to physical therapy sessions, errands, and doctor appointments. but the new car will help him regain some independence.

"It really looks good," he said.

a while longer for his day in court. Loveday, 19, charged with manslaughter in the deaths of two joggers last June, remained lodged in Oakland County Jail Friday after circuit court Judge Francis X. O'Brien adjourned the former Novi man's trial. Loveday's trial was to begin Thursday, but a backlog of cases apparently delayed his hearing.

A new trial date was scheduled for Dec. 5 at Oakland County Circuit Court, said city police Det. Sgt. Dave Fendelet.

Manslaughter charges were levied against Loveday a month after the vehicle he was driving swerved off Eight Mile Road east of Beck and struck two loggers.

Yusuf Hanania of Novi and brother-in-law Albert Abdelnour of Livonia were running east on the north shoulder of Eight Mile Road just east of Beck Road on the morning of June 5 when they were struck by Loveday's westbound Jeep Wrangler.

Both men were killed instantly. Loveday and his passenger were not lice questioned that claim after several witnesses to the accident could not recall seeing such a vehicle.

Police later said drug use may have played a role in the fatality.

The discovery that Loveday had smoked marijuana the morning of the collision led to the manslaughter charges, according to police.

"I received information that marijuana was smoked before the accident, and I've been able to confirm that, and we do have evidence that was found in the vehicle," Fendelet said earlier this summer.

The evidence consisted of a "roach." the remains of a marijuana cigarette, found in the Jeep's ashtray after the incident.

Loveday agreed to a Breathalyzer test after the incident and the test found no alcohol in his bloodstream. But he refused to submit to a blood test for drug use.

Loveday has a prior history of drug charges. He was arraigned on a charge of marijuana posession at 35th District Court June 3, two days before the fatal collision.

School plus drink = suspension

By SUZANNE HOLLYER Staff Writer

Nine students at Northville High School have learned that alcohol use before or during school events will get them into serious trouble.

School officials have suspended nine students since school began on Sept. 3. And all alcohol use is equal in the eyes of those in charge of punishment.

Student Assistance Coordinator Charlie Stilec said the number of suspended students seems high this year, but he sees that as positive.

More students aren't drinking, he said, more students are getting caught.

There's a new administrator, a new set of circumstances. Kids are being more careless," he said. And that means more kids are ending up in a school-sponsored treatment program.

Consuming alcohol before a school event will get a student the same punishment as consuming alcohol at a school event. And the amount of alcohol consumed also has no bearing on punishment.

"One drink is the same as 10 drinks," said Thomas Johnson, Northville High School principal. Any Northville High School student who consumes alcohol at or before a school event will get a five-day suspension if caught. But new this year is a plan allowing students to take a 10-hour chemical awareness class, led by Stilec after school.

If a student agrees to participate in the program, the five-day suspension becomes a three-day suspension.

We try to attack these suspensions from the standpoint as being more educational than punitive," Johnson said.

Stilec said the group generally has been work-ing well together, although many members deny they have a problem.

After 10 weeks, he expects most participating kids to quit drinking. Others might progress to a more abusive stage of alcohol use.

"Very rarely does it stay the same," he said. But the bottom line for school officials is alcohol use will not be tolerated.

"It's illegal, and we won't tolerate it in school," he said.

He hopes the parents of suspended students also get the message that encouraging alcohol use is wrong.

Stilec also hopes parents of students in the chemical awareness group get involved. The high school principal does not believe he has found all offenders of school policies prohibiting alcohol use by students.

"We can only deal with the ones we catch." he said.

So, parents shouldn't rest easy if their kids have not been suspended for alcohol use. Parents often don't choose to believe that their children could have a substance abuse problem, said John Farrar, executive director of the Community Commission on Drug Abuse.

"The ostrich sticks his head in the ground because he believes if he can't see it, it's not there. This is the same thing," Farrar said.

Police News

Officer chases down, then rescues fleeing driver

A 28-year-old Northville woman was arrested Oct. 24 for fleeing and eluding police, operating under the influence of liquor and driving with a suspended license after she led police on a chase that ended in a Beck Road gravel pit.

Officer Glenn Stewart first noticed the woman when she was attempting to make an illegal left turn onto Main Street from northbound Center Street, according to police reports. Stewart followed the woman, attempting to stop her as she ran several stop signs and red lights.

The chase ended when she drove over a berm on Beck Road, flying 80-100 feet through the air and landing in a water-filled quarry, police said. Stewart strained his left knee in walking to the edge of the quarry. Despite his injury, he swam to the woman's car as she climbed out her car's window.

The woman told Stewart she could not swim, so he carried her as he swam back to shore. "I've been drinking, and I don't have a license. Why are you helping me? You're just going to arrest me," the woman allegedly said during the swim back.

She was, in fact, arrested, but she refused to take a breath test, police said. Refusal to take a Breathalyzer does not prevent police from pursuing OUIL charges and can result in a six-month to one-year license suspension.

CLOTHING STOLEN, RE-TURNED: Three jackets, two pairs of pants, a sweatshirt and at least one pair of gloves were taken from Town-& Country Cyclery, 148 N. Center St., on Oct. 8.

Store managers discovered the theft when it was reported by an acquaintance of the alleged thieves, police said. The clothing, valued at $882, was recovered by police. BREAKING AND ENTER-ING: String Works, 139 E. Cady St., reported its front door broken after midnight on Oct. 23. Nothing was taken, but $250 damage was done to the door, police said.

MDOP: A window on a Whitegate Drive home was broken by what appeared to be a BB gun on Oct. 22 between 5 and 6:30 p.m., according to police reports.

On investigation, police discovered a boy who lives nearby had been shooting a BB gun out of his window and on his front lawn.

The boy's father told police his son would apologize and make restitution for the damage

TRAFFIC STOP LEADS TO AR-REST: A Northville woman was stopped and ticketed for disobeying a red light at Beck and Eight Mile Road. During the stop, police discovered the woman had an outstanding warrant for a registration or license plate violation out of East Lansing. She was arrested and released on a $100 bond.

VIDEO EQUIPMENT STOLEN FROM CAR: A Milford woman told township police that someone stole a video camera, a video cassette recorder and a tripod from her 1983 Chevrolet Malibu while it was parked in the lot at Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, Oct. 15.

The stolen items were valued at $1,730.

WHEEL COVERS STOLEN: A Dearborn Heights man told towwnship police that someone stole four wheel covers from his 1991 Ford Taurus while it was parked at Sheehan's on the Green, 39500 Five Mile Road Oct. 12.

The wheel covers were valued at $160.

OUTLe: A 35-year-old Novi wo-vehicle under the influence of alcohol after her arrest on Eight Mile near Northville Place Drive early Oct. 16, township police said. Breathalyzer tests indicated the woman's bloodalcohol level was .20, twice the state limit, police said. A 35-year-old Northville woman was arrested Oct. 19 and charged with OUIL after her car struck another vehicle on Seven Mile Road. township police said.

Preliminary breath tests indicated that the woman's blood-alcohol level was .26 at the time of her arrest.

CAR PARTS STOLEN FROM BODY SHOP: Two sets of hubcaps were stolen from vehicles parked at the McDonald Ford Paint Shop, 17000 Northville Road, sometime late Oct. 17 or early Oct. 18, township police said.

Four hubcaps reportedly were stoman was charged with operating a len from a 1989 Ford F-250 pick-up CIGARETTE THIEVES NABBED: Two Detroit women were arrested and charged with larceny after attempting to steal 12 cartons of cigarettes from Meijer. 20401 Haggerty, Oct. 16, township police said. The cigarettes were valued at $195.48.

'Report cards' to show skills

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Michigan students will get a new kind of report card in the years ahead.

It will show not only their marks in English, history and math, but their "employability skills profile."

Even kids who are college bound will get them. So will girls who expect to be homemakers.

You're starting your resume," explained Patrick Donahue, an assistant superintendent of Huron Valley (Milford) Schools and member of a State Board of Education advisory group.

"It's a profile that you're supposed to use throughout high school and onto what you do next in life, whether that's further education or to go out to get a job.

Hopefully, ninth-graders will wake up and say. "Whoa, this is what I should be doing." Employers had a big role in designing the portfolio (see bod.

Employers serving on earlier task forces disproved the old adage that You just teach 'em to read and write, and we'll teach 'em the job." Employers wanted specific kinds of skills beyond the three Rs.

The state-mandated process will require an unprecedented amount of cooperation between schools and local employers. So the employability assessment portfolios are being introduced gradually. Last year there were 23 programs in pilot districts (none in inis area); this year, 100 pilots; next fall, all 10th-g. aders in the state will start them; in 1993, all ninth-graders; in 1994, all eighthproblem-solving experience and nonacademic awards - anything that will document a kid's skills.

It has no boundaries, and it doesn't set minimum levels," said Paul Stemmer, a state Department of Education staffer working on the project.

The payoff would come when the job seeker shows it to an employer. There were problems in the pilot districts.

Some schools didn't have strong business involvement. Storing the records took up space. Security of records was a concern. Some teachers worried about workloads.

And since kids learn outside of class, too, how do you integrate documents from Junior Achievement, Scouts, 4-H, church groups and civic organizations?

Stemmer said portfolio usage tended to be more difficult for "atrisk students - those with poor academic histories.

One second-year goal will be to a scoring system, a method of converting results to numbers, that will give both local schools and the state feedback on the program's success.

Employability skills profiles weren't mentioned in the federal government's landmark 1983 "A Nation at Risk" report on education.

Stemmer credits Colorado with being first to set up an employability project. Some Michigan districts have begun portfolios but now must integrate their systems with the state's.

The movement grew out of concerns with a "core curriculum."

"In 1988, I was one of a group of state board members from 18 Dorothy president of the State Board of Education, "who thought that if we could define outcomes which students should achieve from schooling what they should know and be able to do, and the kind of people they should be - we would be able to define a core curriculum."

Trash plan improving, but some bugs remain

A lenthy session to hash out the City of Northville garbage pickup plan Thursday took some steps in the right direction, but still left some issues unresolved.

The heart of the plan is a $4 perhousehold, per-month base fee for recycling and refuse pickup. Added to that will be a charge of $1.50 for each bag of garbage.

City officials estimate that a typical household will generate about one and one-half bags of trash per week. If that sounds optimistic, remember that more trash will probably get recycled under the new plan — both because curbside pickup will be immensely more convenient than a drop-off center and because a per-bag charge will discourage simple disposal.

So the bottom line is that a typical house, accepting the city's volume estimate, will pay about $13 a month for garbage disposal. That's better than the flatrate $16.30 being charged under the interim trash-collection rates.

Actually, it's better in several ways: First, and most obviously, the total price is lower. Second, it greatly reduces the home's assessed value and how much garbage it generates.

The long and the short of the financing issues are that this is not a black and white "iax increase," although for most homeowners that may be the end result. Given the current budget situation, this seems unavoidable.

Setting aside the issue of cost to homeowners, other aspects of the plan remain outstanding. Cost to businesses, under the innovative ATM-like dumpster plan, have not been set. Cost to renters needs attention.

In addition, figuring out how to collect trash and recyclables at apartments will require more thought. Working out the Results, but maybe not ours

Do we get results here or what? I wrote in this space on Oct. 7 that they ought to get around to putting up the long-awaited traffic light at Beck and Eight Mile Roads. Two days later, a crew was out hanging that rascal up.

I mentioned in the same column that there were two eruptions in the pavement on Eight Mile near Haggerty that had taken on the proportions of speed bumps. Three days later, the one on the eastbound side was leveled and repaved. Much as I'd like to, I don't think I can take credit for hastening either one of the improvements. We all know government moves too slowly to react to a column in two or three days

But why look a gift traffic light in the bulb? The easiest thing to do here is to move on to the next item on our area road conditions wish list.

Well, I could complain about the pavement on the rest of Eight Mile. I was looking through some back issues of this paper, and found a letter to the editor in a 1986 edition complaining about the same roadway. Besides, I already said my piece on this some months ago.

Or I could mean about the ripped up sections of Main Street in downtown Northville. I had a friend visit from out the West Coast last week, and she thought it was awfully cute that I lived in a small, Midwestern town where Main Street was still a dirt road. That project, however, seems to be moving steadily to a close.

No, I think my latest gripe is about the intersection of Griswold and Baseline. I call it the Carousel of Horrors.

My guess is that the paving fathers had notions about saving the little tree in the middle of the road. Rather than run Griswold or Baseline over it, they created a kind of freaky traffic circle around it.

In theory, all traffic is supposed to circulate clockwise around this little island. In observing traffic there, however, I've seen as many different approaches to getting through it as there are theories on Jimmy Holfa's disappearance.

People stop when they shouldn't, like when turning from westbound Baseline onto southbound Griswold. I suppose it's not a bad idea to stop there. The flaw in the practice is that there's no Stop sign.

On the other hand, I have to wonder why there's a Stop sign for people going north on Griswold. If you're going right at the stop sign, there's no crossing traffic to stop for - in. theory. And if you're turning left to go west on Baseline, a simple Yield sign would do.

Drivers generally ignore the directional sign when they re going east on Baseline, and cut right across the traffic in kind of an automotive limbo dance ("Don't move that limbo car! You'll be a limbo star!"). In fact, traffic enters and leaves the circle in a chaotic frenzy of vectors and tangents. It reminds me of the chase scene in "The Pink Panther," where the old guy stands in the square and watches the costumed spies chase each other back and forth and around and around before colliding in the middle.

In the long run, though, I think this intersection will prove more of a source of amusement than danger. I haven't heard of many accidents there, and there's really no great bulk of traffic pouring through the intersection from any direction.

The fact that people are ignoring the signs and the lane markings hasn't proven really dangerous, and since the intersection is in kind of a forgotten corner of the jurisdictions of Novi and Northville Township, don't expect to see a pairol . car sitting there enforcing anything.

I suppose we'd sooner see Jimmy Hoffa turn up than see this intersection redesigned.

Something tells them it's all happening at the zoo

BY SUZANNE HOLLYER Staff Writer

Young students will no longer run the length of the Detroit Zoological Park while on field trips in search of a refreshment stand if Cooke Middle School science teacher Dwight Sieggreen has his way.

Sieggreen is working with the Bronx Zoo in New York to develop a series of lesson plans using the zoo as an educational tool.

With financial backing from the New York Zoological Society and the Bronx Zoo, 28 teachers around the country, including Sieggreen, are developing a zoo curriculum focusing on the African and Asian grasslands.

What they do here in Northville could end up in a national publication." Sieggreen said. He said this project is a way of "leaving his mark." Each lesson plan will be original.

On a trip to the Detroit Zoological Park Oct. 15 and 16, Northville middle school students helped test Sieggreen's first attempt at writing a zoo lesson plan.

The plan had a few bugs, but the program's overall success was evident early on as students were forced to stop and examine animals in their trek through the zoo.

"We've accomplished one task." Sieggreen said. "Nobody is racing to get from one end of the zoo to the other."

A student workbook asked students to identify animals from the Afncan grasslands. When such an animal was found, the group would estimate its weight in pounds and kilograms.

"There's no right answer," Sleggreen told the sixth grade students from Northville's gifted program.

"I don't have a scale I can use to weigh to that zebra."

that they had received phone calls asking for mo-

Students also were asked to make an educated guess on whether or not each animal is a predator or prey.

Their education on animals of the African grasslands came before the trip to the zoo. Sieggreen said. "Most of learning is based on what you know," he said.

So, Sieggreen gave students a ba-sis for knowledge before the trip. Predators generally have sharp teeth and padded feet with claws. Prey usually have hoofed feet to provide fast starts.

Besides learning the difference between predators and prey. Northville's sixth-grade gifted class helped work the bugs out of Steggreen's zoo lesson plan.

A question at the beginning of the student workbook asked how many mammals were spotted by the class during its trip to the 200.

"It should have come at the end." Sieggreen said. It's all trial and error.

Students also were confused by a question asking them to identify a vulture. The zoo has at least two different vultures — the lappet-faced vulture and the hooded vulture.

The program doesn't end with a trip to the zoo. On their return, students were expected to determine how much grass is needed to feed a wildebeest. They were planning on growing grass with variable amounts of water and light to determine the acreage needed to feed a wildebeest in its native land.

All of the zoo activities middle school students will participate in over the next three years will help contribute to a final zoo activity book.

Northville students have helped Sieggreen develop a lesson plan that is all new. Nothing they will do has ever been published in a book.

"It's all original. That's why it's so much fun," Sieggreen said.

Tasters choose their favorites new products

A wise man once said that "professionals and critics both may wax upon the attributes and composition of wines, but it is the consumer's perception which decides each wine's worthiness for enjoyment."

Because of the thousands of wine brands available in Michigan, many consumers use the rankings of wine writers, the advice of friends or the experience of a wine merchant to make purchasing decisions. The majority of consumers do not make their own wine buying decisions because they have limited opportunities to personally taste a wide sampling of brands.

Once each year, Dennis Walsh, owner of Ye Olde Wine Shoppe (South Blvd. and Crooks Road) sponsors what he calls "The Great Wine Shootout." Recently, at Glen Oaks Golf Club, 225 wine consumers paid to taste approximately 60 newly released wines from California. Each participant cast a secret ballot to select "the People's Choice" of red, white and sparkling wines. Walsh, a longtime advocate of reasonably priced, quality wines, invites 12 metropolitan distributors to each pour five of their best new wines. In many cases, these wines have just arrived from the West Coast.

"This is the most popular consumer event that I, run each year," said Walsh, who also sponsors "The Winetasters" club. For information about The Winetasters and their dinner and tasting events, call Dennis Walsh at 852-5533. We participated in this year's "Great Wine Shootout" and sampled many quality wines. But more importantly, let's mention the wines that won the People's Choice Award according to the secret ballot taken at the close of the evening.

It should be pointed out that attendees tasted and voted for wines without knowing retail prices. They based their choices on their perception of the wine's quality alone.

In the red category, the preferred wine was the 1989 Leonetti Meriot ($21) from Washington State. Following close behind were the 1990 Markham Meriot ($16), the 1986 Simi Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon ($30) and the 1987 Chateau St. Jean Cabernet Sauvignon ($23).

Washington State has a record for producing excellent merlot. Napa Valley's Markham Winery has made amazing quality improvements in recent vintages and is now one of the value leaders from the center of the California wine industry.

Tasters noted by their vote that chardonnay is still queen of white wines, but they were looking to other grape varieties and styles to pique their flavor interests. The top white wine was the 1988 William Hill Reserve Chardonnay ($21), a wine that has been a top vote getter for the past several years.

The 1989 Bonny Doon Muscat Canelli "Ice Wine" ($17/375ml) is a deliciously sweet dessert-style wine that swept people off their feet. Who says that people don't like well-styled sweet wines? Placing third and fourth were the 1989 Dehlinger Chardonnay ($14) and the 1990 Caymus Conun-

Whether Mama Bird shoved you out of the nest or you decided to fly off on your own, you probably didn't give much thought to what you were going to eat while fending for yourself.

A whole new set of rules applies when you try to cook for one - and the rules aren't published in any book either. Statistically speaking, people are waiting longer to get married, and the average age at which people marry gets higher every year. Considering the ever-increasing number of singles, there are surprisingly few cookbooks out there that emphasize cooking for one. So it becomes a matter of survival of the fittest.

Some can't hack it on their own. They're the ones who eat out all the time. Not that there's anything wrong with singles who eat out. If you know one, you can always count on him or her to know which are the best restaurants in town.

Unfortunately, it's not the most economical choice. Remember, you're paying for the cook's labor, the re-staurateur's rent and tips for the server. What you spend in a week in restaurants could get you by for a spend in a week in restaurants could get you by for a month or more if you cooked at home. If you're counting calories, watching your cholesterol or generally just want to know for sure what goes into your food, eating out isn't the answer either. Besides, there's something vaguely adolescent about someone who still has someone else cooking all their meals for them. Makes you wonder if they can dress themselves, make their own beds or do their own laun-day as well heit awuyonder them that these prople are dry as well. Is it any wonder, then, that these people are still single?

A number of singles turn to packaged and frozen dinners. Indeed, if they ever build a museum dedicated to singlehood, its biggest icons will likely be boxes of Hamburger Helper, Kraft Macaroni & Cheese and Swanson Frozen Dinners.

If you're using any of these wonders of modern culinary marketing, you've taken a good first step. Prepared food, however, is neither an economical choice nor an entirely healthy one. For one thing, you're paying for advertising, packaging and preparation. For another, you have to do a lot of label reading to find foods that have acceptable levels of sodium, cholesterol and processed sugar.

But if you've already taken the steps to venture into the kitchen, why not take the next step and make your own? You know, even if you like amburger Helper, you can make your own faux version from spices you probably already have in your cupboard, but never use. You just have to approach the kitchen with a positive attitude. Now, I know the singles' view of cooking is probably tempered by a long line of wrecked roasts and undercooked drumsticks. And after a long, hard day at work, the sight of the stove makes you want to dial 911

We believe the popularity of Condundrum points up the fact that since tasters didn't know the prices, they judged the wines strictly on what they found attractive. For this wine, there is little price/quality relationship.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1990 Flora Springs Sauvignon Blanc ($11) is the wine we liked second best to the 1988 William Hill Reserve Chardonnay that captured the Great Wine Shootout award in the white wine category. The fact that this wine didn't show among the top three leaves us wondering whether people are still walking by sau; vignon blanc because they're turned off by grassier styles. We encourage those of you who are bored with the sameness of many chardonnays to try the 1990 sauvignon blanc from Flora Springs. It has bright, melony aromas and fruit flavors. With generous mouthfilling fruit complexities and a solid, salisfying finish, it will harmonize with grilled fish, chicken or pastas with cream sauce.

and ask them to deliver a pizza.

To help you get started, here are some pointers and philosophies I've gleaned in 15 years or so of cooking for myself. Just follow them, and you should have no problem surviving to the day when you will be cooking for two or more.

EQUIPMENT

If you're single, you probably think your best friend is anyone who can fix you up with a date.

Wrong. Your best friend is the microwave (see related story). If you don't have one, get one. Small models, just right for single serving sizes, can be had for around $100. You'd be better off, though, to get one big enough to hold a 10-inch dinner plate. If you can store, reheat and eat leftovers all on the same plate. you save a lot of clean-up.

Speedy defrosting is an important benefit of a microwave, too. You can keep your meat in the freezer, and have it completely defrosted i under 15 minutes. This feature comes in handy when dinner plans change (like when you suddenly have a date).

What you don't see when you visit a restaurant

Well, it has been another magnificent week. Lots of great people have become "regulars at our humble establishment.

Many comment on their enjoyment of this column. How encouraging. Thank you. Idecided to do my own little survey. Everyone who mentioned this article was asked what they liked to read about. Amazingly, food was second to what goes on day-to-day in the restaurant business. Many have expressed an interest in buying a restaurant or becoming involved in some way.

いたがいたちます

My initial reaction is to advise them to keep their money in the bank. This is serious stuff. In addition to working ungodly hours there are all the things happening daily that are never given a second thought by the Layman

Food must not only be ordered, but checked for quality as it comes in the back door. If it isn't up to par it goes back. Usually, it only takes one time sending something back. Then the purveyor gets the hint that you will only accept the best available. This is a definite judgement call.

For example, last week some trout came in that was not acceptable to us. It wasn't bad. just not real good. It went back.

That meant we would be out of trout on the menu which opened up a whole new bag of worms. There would be disappointed guests. The waitstaff was informed of the dilemma and were armed with alternate suggestions. Luckily, there was a good selection of fish in the house.

After the food comes in it must be rotated and stored properly. Everything gets a date. The F.I.F.O. inventory method is adhered to: First In, First Out. If this rule is not followed strictly the first out becomes throw out, for which there is no excuse. That is literally throwing money away.

The next step of the cycle is to cook the food. This is the most fun. What can we do that is new and exciting with what we have? Our burgers are great and require a degree of skill to cook them properly, but it is the rest of the menu that stimulates my outstanding team in the kitchen.

They have fun cooking because our kitchen is much like a class room. There is an opportunity to learn on a daily basis.

Last weekend we served a wonderful bouillabaisse. The lesson began with a description of the dish. "A hearty fish stew or soup that can be served as a main course or a complete meal." A very simplistic dish, but intricate to cook.

First, all the fish must be butchered. Then the bones are made into a flavorful fish stock. or fumet. This isn't hard but it must be done correctly.

Our stock turned out cloudy so it had to be clarified. This is a process of mixing raw egg whites, chopped herbs and leeks into the cooled stock and bringing it slowly to a boil. As the egg white coagulate they rise to the top of the stock and form a raft. Any impurities are trapped during the cooking and a clear stock is obtained. The raft is carefully removed and discarded.

The stock is flavored with a saffron-wine reduction. Saffron, the stigma of the saffron crocus, is the most expensive of all spices. Over 250,000 blossoms are required to produce a mere pound of the dried threads. Fortunately, saffron is strong and is added only by the pinch. The threads yield a characteristic yellow color and withstand long cooking periods.

Saffron is obligatory in boullabaisse. Just the smell of the finished stock is enough. Rich, opulent.

Finally, to finish the dish off we portion the fish. Pieces of sole, bluefish, cod and solmon are poached and placed in a hot bowl. Mussels and scallops top off the list of fresh seafood. Then the stock is carefully poured over all. A dash of fresh herb completes the dish.

Fresh croutons are slathered with a sinful hot red pepper and garlic spread (called rouille) and served for dunking. It was delicious. Better yet a great cooking lesson.

Now, it becomes the waitstaff's job to merchandise the special. We have "show and tell" before each shift. The dish is presented in all its glory and described thoroughly. The staff is quizzed. Then they taste so that they can describe it correctly. Even Michelle, who only likes fish and chips, is impressed.

However, the ultimate test comes when the bowl is put in front of you. Comments of "Outstanding", "Wonderful" and "Superb" were greatly appreciated. I think we passed the class

Fun, simple cooking for singles

The following recipes were selected with the single person in mind. For the most part, they are quick and easy to prepare. Most of all, they alleviate the boredom of most meals for

Take a load off with a coffee klatsch

Now that school bells are ringing out, a whole new rhythm comes to life at home. After the flurry of the morning ritual, a certain sense of calm descends. Until then things are pretty hectic.

This is the moment to take a bit of time for yourself, something that more and more women can do. With computers, printers and fax machines an increasing number of women are moving their offices home. This makes it possible for them to be with their children when needed. Many others are interrupting careers for these important years in a child's development.

Perhaps now these women can give some thought to a custom from years gone - the coffee klatch. Not on a regular basis, mind you, but a one-time get-together to relax and chat. This could be the opportunity to invite the new mother on the block along with old friends. If you belong to a car pool, those drivers present the nucleus of a gathering cient use of time. Don't invite too many people; the coffee hour should not be a major production for you. This is not supposed to add a heavy burden to your day. Six is the ideal number, but eight can work well too.

Coffee can be made before the family gets up and kept hot in a superpractical thermos coffee maker. There are any number of them on the market and they prove a boon everytime you entertain. The coffee drips directly into the thermos, the cap screws on, and the drink remains ready to be enjoyed for hours, always piping hot.

Many people drink tea in the morning, so it would be wise to prepare a strong brew. Ail that need be done later is dilute the base with boiling water to arrive at the desired strength.

If you remember photographs from old movies or sitcoms, the coffee klatch always centered around some sort of cake or pastry. It's part of the homey scent. If someone volunteers to bring along a sweet, let her. It's al~ ways nice to have a selection.

But you should have something of your own, as well, preferably home-baked. The recipe below has just a hint of sweetness, making it a perfect snack any time of the day. It goes well at mealtime, too. How long should the coffee klatch last? An hour is about right. If a very good friend is invited, you can arrange with her beforehand to begin to leave at a particular time. One departure usually spurs others to do likewise.

This is not supposed to be a lost day, just an old-fashioned social hour to stop and recapture some of the mellow feeling for spending some time with people. It could become contagious.

Testing your microwave savvy

Test your microwave savvy.

Whether you're new to microwaving or an old hand, here's a quick quiz to test your knowledge of this Space-Age appliance. Questions:

1. Microwaving may be convenient, but it destroys more important nutrients than tradi-tional methods of cooking. True or false? 2. Eating microwaved meat may be healthier than eating broiled meat. True or false? 3. The easiest way to microwave an egg is to cook it in the shell. True or false?

4. Salt should be sprinkled over the surface of meats before microwaving. True or false? 5. The glass tray in the bottom of the oven should always be in place when the oven is in use? True or false?

6. To protect you from microwave radiation, you should never attempt to open the door of your microwave while it is in operation. True or false?

7. A "microwave-safe" dish should be able to withstand temperatures up to at least 450 F. True or false?

8. Microwaves heat the air surrounding foods in order to cook them. True or false? Answers:

1. False. Vitamin retention is greater with microwave cooking than with other methods becasue cooking time is shorter. Many vegetables may be micro-steamed without added water, so water-soluble nutrients (such as vitamin C. Bvitimins, and some minerals) don't get discarded with the cooking water. Compared with other cooking methods, microwaving is an excellent way to conserve nutrients.

2. True. High tempertatures can cause animal proteins to mutate into carcinogenic compounds called heterocyclic amines. The higher the temperature and the longer the exposure, the more of these compounds are produced. While scientists are stil unsure of the effects of these carcinogens on the body, it may be that the quick-cooking microwave method is healthier. (Always be sure that you cook meat to an internal temperature of 160 F.)

3. False. Pressure will build up inside the shell resulting in an exploded scramble all over the inside of your oven. Even when poaching eggs, pierce the yolk with a toothpick to allow steam to escape.

4. False. When possible, salt meats after microwaving, as salt can toughen meat. Undissolved salt sprinked on food's surface also tends to distort microwave patterns, resulting in uneven cooking. Stir salt into food, or allow it to dissolve in liquid before microwaving.

5. True. That glass tray really does serve a purpose. It provides space between the food and the reflective floor of the oven, allowing microwaves to bounce up and penetrate foods grom below. The glass tray should always be in place during microwave operation.

6. False. It is perfectly safe to open the door of your microwave even when it is in use. Government restrictions set strict limits on the level of energy microwave ovens may emit, and as soon as the door is opened, microwave production ceases. Keeping your oven clean will ensure that the door closes and seals properly for continued safe operation.

7. True. Paper plates are fine for quick reheating, but for prolonged microwaving, containers need to be able to withstand high temperatures - even though containers themselves do not heat up during microwaving. Why? Foods high in sugar and/or fat (like bacon, candies, etc.) become very hot very quickly in your microwave. Because very hot food will conduct heat to its container, a truly "microwave-safe" cooking untensil must be able to "take the heat.

8. False. Microwave energy causes food's molecules to move, creating heat friction, and this is what cooks your food. Frictional heat continues even after you remove food from the oven and recipes that call for "standing time" take this into account. Microwaves penetrate foods only to a depth of three fourths to one and a half inches. The center of a thick roast is cooked by thermal conduction as outer heat travels inward.

Following are two recipes with which you can test your microwave know-how.

Recipes in this column are tested 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

Micro-tip of the week:

Where do micorwaves come from? Microwaves are generated from a magnetron tube, usually located at the top of the oven. The tube converts electrical impulses into microwaves which stimulate the heat friction that cooks your food.

And while you're shopping for ap-pliances, think about investing in a food processor. Even the most feature-laden models are under $100, and good ones can be had for a third of that.

A food processor will save you scads of time that would otherwise be spent chopping vegetables and ban-daging fingers. Want to have tacos for dinner? In the time it takes you to brown the meat, you can have the lettuce and cheese shredded, the tomatoes sliced and the onions and peppers chopped.

Good knives are a must. There's nothing more frustrating for a cook than a cheap knife that needs sharpening every time you use it, so spare no expense.

Don't cut corners on pots and pans, either. A good starter set should include three or four sauce pans of differing sizes with lids, a big spaghetti pot, a 10-inch skillet, an omelette-size skillet, a loaf pan, square and round casserole dishes, a muffin pan and a cookie sheet. Casseroles and baking dishes should be microwave safe. For stove-top cooking, aluminum conducts heat best. but make sure you get the heavy stuff.

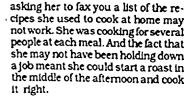

You'll need three or four mixing bowls of varying sizes, food turners (get more than one), serving spoons, slotted spoons, spatulas, tongs and some hot pads or oven mitts.

Another trademark of the single person's kitchen is something festering and molding in the refrigerator. To halt this process, or at least contain the smells, stock up on plastic storage containers. Clear ones are best so you can remember what's inside (or throw it out when you see it go bad).

Containers that have rounded sides and bottoms will reheat food better in the microwave, but you may find them hard to stack. If space is a problem in your refrigerator, you may want to buy the squared-off variety, and just keep busy stirring when you microwave.

CHOOSING THE RIGHT RECIPES

Frustration for the single cook can come from attempting to make the wrong foods. Calling up Mom and Q See page 2B for recipes

A single person has different needs. You need meals that have short lists of easy-to-find ingredients. That makes for short preparation time, and saves you from running from store to store to find something like pickled fennel or rutabega chutney.

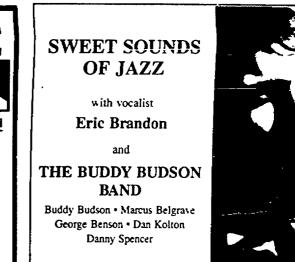

If you're getting home from work at 5:30 p m., the ideal recipe is one that can be defrosted, cooked and on the table in an hour or less. No fancy techniques, thank you. After all, who are you going to impress when you're eating alone?

Quick clean-up is important, so meals that you can cook all in one pan or serve all on one dish are a plus. Look for recipes that would taste good served over a bed of rice or pasta, like pepper steak, stir-fried chicken or beef stroganoff.

Cooking meals ahead is one thing that every single probably wishes he could do, but never gets around to it. All I can say is keep trying until you find the self-discipline to do it. Set aside a weekend afternoon or evening to cook a lasagne, a casserole, a pot of spaghetti sauce, a pot of chili and a cake. Store them all and you can get through the week primarily by reheating.

One final word of advice: have fun in the kitchen. Singles who don't cook are either afraid of failure or are bored with what they can make. Lighten up. You're trying for subsis-tence here, not the Cordon Bleu School.

You can overcome the boredom by trying something different. Instead of putting that pepper steak over plain white rice, sample the nutty flavor of brown rice or the pasta-like texture of basmati. When you make spaghetti sauce, try it on any of the dozens of different pastas out there, like tortellini, tri-color rotini or those little wagon wheels.

The basic bird feeders include hanging or pole mounted feeders with sunflower or mixed bird seed. Critter Country carries a huge selection of feeders to fit any bird's fancy. Sunflower is the most important overall seed in your feeder because it has high calorie, fat and protein contents. Use sunflower seed alone, or a mix with a high sunflower content. Our "Preferred" birdseed mix has an ideal blend of sunflower seed, white proso and red millet (all bird favorites, with no fillers).

Other good bird feeders include a platform, tray or ground type feeder, and a suet feeder. Critter Country has the largest selection of bird seed and feeders in the area...come check them out!

FEEDING BIRDS IN THE FALL

Our year-round resident birds (cardinals. goldfinches, chickadees, nuthatches, etc.) are done raising their families, and are now setting up winter feeding territories. Birds set up feeding territories before bad weather arrives so it is a good idea to keep your feeders full now. There will be plenty of activity at the feeders as the birds try to fatten up for the winter.

This 'Northern' star has a twinkle in her eye

Actress is a down-to-earth discovery

By Suzanne Gill

The cover on the press material reads, "Elaine Miles, Star." Who?

Miles plays Marilyn Whirlwind, the unflappable angel of "line one" in Dr. Joel Fleishman's storefront office on "Northern Exposure," airing Mondays on CBS. Her qualifications for stardom are unorthodox, and her story is charming.

Miles never set out to be Marilyn, Hollywood's most successful American Indian actress had worked at a series of minimumwage assignments, including a McDonald's job that lasted half a day, when she accompanied her mother to a Seattle casting call for the low-budget summerreplacement series.

"I was so proud," she says, of that first, fast-food job. But, "to work at McDonald's, you have to be quick.

"The lady put me on milkshakes. She said, 'That's easy for you to do.'

"That particular day, everybody wanted milkshakes. I was trying my best, you know, and she came back and said, "Elaine, can you speed it up a bit?" And I just looked at her like, 'I'm trying the best I can.""

Milkshakes oozed on the counter and customers began walking out. The manager fired her, little knowing that the benign, wordless gaze she had witnessed would be the key to Miles' success.

A woman of few words, Marilyn Whirlwind relies on her poker-faced composure (which is known to give Dr. Fleishman fits) to achieve results. Neither defiant nor stoic nor martyr-like, Marilyn's outward calm gives her an air of good sense and, occasionally, indulgence that seem to have their source in an inner wisdom.

Miles probably wore that characteristic expression as she waited for her mother to audition for the part of Marilyn.

"I was just sitting there waiting for my mother and (the casting agent) talked me into auditioning for the part." Both women were called back to read for the producers, and Elaine got the part. Her mother was cast in a cameo role as Mrs. Anku, wife of the ailing medicine man. The arrangement suited them both, says Miles, because "my mom's got other things to do."

During her first day on the set in like minimum wage.

"I wanted to go buy everything. Seattle was there waiting; the mall was waiting for me." She intended to cash the check, but cooler heads prevailed.

"The lady at the bank, her name is Glenda; she's seen me grow up. She said, 'You've got to open a checking (account). 'I looked at her and said, 'Checking? You mean I can have a checking account?""

Asked how she views the portrayal of American Indians in the series, Miles recalls some negative comments over an episode in which she appeared at a Cicely powwow in her own Cayuse-Nez Perce tribal outfit. Alaskan Indians were upset "because they do not have powwows up there." (Miles is a Women's Northern Buckskin traditional dancer.)

"I had to remind them that this is TV, you know. They have things on TV that don't relate to things that Caucasian people do, and you (white) people don't complain about that."

Such is the wisdom of Marilyn Whirlwind.

Busy Jay Thomas happy juggling jobs

By Steven Alan McGaw Actor Jay Thomas (caustic Jerry Gold on Murphy Brown) has a full schedule and likes it that way. In fact, he's stayed busy since age 16, when he took a job doing stand-up comedy in nightclubs in his native New Orleans. unbeknownst to his parents. He's been on stage, or in front of a camera, or behind a microphone, ever since.

After a college-football stint that was plagued by injuries, Thomas dedicated himself to success as a performer. Moving to New York, he soon found a niche in many off-Broadway productions, including the hit Isn't It Romantic? and extensive work with the Playwrights Horizons group, alongside actors Patti LuPone and Ken Olin.

Coincident with his theatrical success, Thomas made his mark as a comedian and radio personality. When he moved to Los Angeles, Thomas continued to work in radio. His day on most PBS stations.

Ghosts and ghouls haunt cable this week

By Dan Rice 'Tis the season to be frightened, and Hallo-weirdness abounds. Higherbrained creatures have found appeal in the macabre since the dawning of the twilight, and the definition of horror has evolved along with society. The Victorian fear of sexuality found expression in the novel Dracula, and the Industrial Revolution created a loathing of a machine-crazed world that welcomed the films Metropolis and Frankenstein. On Tuesday, Oct. 29, A&E Stage presents Fear in the Dark, a study of our telling fears featuring clips from period horror films and interviews with filmmakers George Romero and Wes Craven, and novelists Stephen King and Anne Rice.

Scary creatures are yours to discover on The Discovery Channel Halloween night, Oct. 31, with three hours devoted to education about your trepidations and fears in Ghost. Ghouls and Goblins. O TV Listing Inc.

Where's Julia? Reader wants to know

By Taylor Michaels

Q: How could you print Kiefer Sutherland's address and not include the address for Julia Roberts as well? Please print her address in the near future. —Bill Davis, Austin, Texas.

A: Sorry about that; I try to answer only the questions I'm asked. Now that you've asked, you can write to Roberts c/o ICM, 8899 Beverly Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif., 90048.

Q: I am a big fan of Cree Summer of A Different World. I would like to have an address so I can compliment her for her great work and inspiration. —Antonio Dixon, Selma, Ala.

A: You can write to Cree Summer c/o Carsey-Werner Company, 4024 Radford, Building 3, Studio City, Calif., 91604.

Q: A friend of mine told me Kevin Costner and Whitney Houston are working on a new movie — some kind of suspense thriller. She also said they will be involved in a romantic relationship. Is this true? What is the name of the movie? What is it about? When will it be released? —Linda McClain, Portiand, Ore.

A: The movie is tentatively titled The Bodyguard. The movie starts shooting in November, so, barring any problems, it should be out in the summer of 1992. I haven't read anything about the plot, so I don't know if Costner and Houston will be romantically involved.

Q: Where can I write to Christina Applegate of Married...With Children? —Jeff Timmons, Corning, N.Y.

A: Write to Applegate c/o Columbia Pictures Television, 3400 Riverside Drive, Burbank, Calif., 91505.

Q: I really enjoy reading Danielle Steel's novels and was wondering if you could get me an address for her. — Lori Mattson, Hibbing, Minn.

A: Write to Steel c/o Dell Publishing, 666 5th Avenue, New York, N.Y., 10103.

Q: Can you please give me Christian Slater's address? —Samantha Williams, Greenville, N.C.

A: Write Slater c/o CAA, 9830 Wilshire Boulevard, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Q: What happened to To Tell the Truth? It was one of our favorite daytime shows. We find ourselves watching less television since we get tired of so many shows being dirty. We miss clean, wholesome entertainment, the way television used to be. —The Richards, Keokuk, Iowa.

A: The game show with host Bud Collyer was canceled in 1967, then ran in syndication from 1969 to 1977.

As for the content of today's television shows, some folks would say they're trashy, while others (including myself) appreciate more realism than we got in Donna Reed and Leave It to Beaver. I want to see how a single mother of four feeds her children, keeps them from dropping out of school and away from drugs. I want to know how parents talk to their children about sex and how couples discuss birth control. Televison programs are not always pleasant, but then again, life isn't always peachy.

Q: Will Dark Shadows return this fall? I was very impressed with the new version of the show, as I am an old Dark Shadows fan. — Mark Davey, Chateaugay, N.Y.

A: There are no plans to return the NBC series, which starred British actor Ben Cross, to the air. It didn't have the ratings to keep it alive.

'Way Cool' shows kids a way to fit in

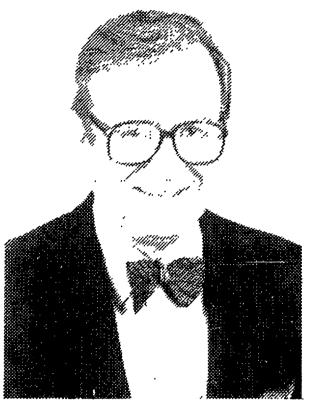

By Chris Carpenter By mixing a smattering of young, high-energy hipsters with a squeakyclean rap duo and stirring in more than a dash of propriety for flavor, the new syndicated children's show Way Cool attempts to bake humble pie for the gumball group. Whether or not youngsters swallow it depends largely on how old they are.

The half-hour series consists of a hodgepodge of skits and music orbiting around a theme of the week. Humor is used as a tool to reshape potentially petrifying situations, and soon family, friends and mankind are laughing with you, not at you. Kids the cast's age will likely realize the crises they face are more grown up than the ones whitewashed on the show, but younger children may identify with the junior-high lingo (goob, knob, dude, etc.) and situations. perhaps absorbing a lesson in socialization in the process. We learn it's not the end of the world to have bad hair, be scared of spiders or speak in front of the class. Soap actress starred in 'Citizen Kane'

By Candace Havens Dear Candace: We recently saw Citizen Kane and could have sworn the lady who plays Phoebe on All My Children played Orson Welles' wife. She was very beautiful. Is that really her, and if it is, has she done any other films? Could you tell us about her? -Thanks, Sheila and Catherine, Conroe, Texas.

Dear Readers: You are indeed correct. Ruth Warrick (Phoebe Tyler Wallingford, All My Children) made her debut some 50 years ago in the landmark film. She made over 20 films during her time in Hollywood, including The Great Bank Robbery. Her television credits include a long stint as Hannah Cord in Peyton Place, five years on As the World Turns, and a starring role in the series Father of the Bride. Guest-star roles and a long list of plays followed.

The talented actress has written an autobiography titled The Confessions of Phoebe Tyler, which discusses the character of Phoebe, whom she has portrayed for 21 years, as well as her life as an actress in New York and Hollywood.

Warrick is also involved in artsin-education programs and programs for the disadvantaged in the Watts area of Los Angeles. She was recently appointed to the U.N. World Women's Committee on Mental Health. Warrick explains, "The thrust of this organization is to bring together the two most needy areas of our society, the neglected young and the neglected old, in a bonding relationship that is extremely beneficial to both."

Dear Candace: I would like to know what President Bush has against The Young and the Restless. Why does he always schedule his Rose Garden chats during that time? It's the only soap I watch, and about half of the time I get Bush instead of Y&R. I'm sick of it! -Dorothy Clinard, Talbott, Tenn. Dear Dorothy: I'm fairly certain the president isn't out to disrupt your viewing of your favorite soap. The most likely explanation is the press conferences are usually scheduled at noon Eastern time, which just happens to coincide with your show. Thanks for writing in. I'd like to hear from you! Breeders' Cup caps thoroughbred season

By Steve Paschal Horse of the Year honors and $7 million in purses will be at stake Saturday, Nov. 2, when NBC Sports goes to Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., for live coverage of the eighth annual Breeders' Cup races.

Seven races will be run over a four-hour period, including the day's showcase event: the $3 million Breeders' Cup Classic, featuring Horse of the Year candidates In Excess and Farma Way. Either horse could clinch the award with a victory, although Black Tie Affair, a sprinter, will also be a favorite on the one-and-a-quartermile course. Other horses to watch include Unbridled, who won the race for 3-year-olds and up last year, and former Kentucky Derby winner Strike The Gold.

Although previous Breeders' Cup races have provided many great moments, last year's event will be remembered primarily for the tragic loss of two of the world's top thoroughbreds. In the Breeders' Cup Distaff, Go For Wand was locked in a stretch duel with Bayakoa when the 3-year-old filly shattered her right front ankle and had to be humanely destroyed. Earlier in the day, Mr. Nickerson suffered a heart attack at the beginning of the Breeders' Cup Sprint and died on the track.

Tom Hammond, who has been a part of every Breeders' Cup telecast, will serve as host of the richest day in racing. O TV Listing Inc.
