Postal polka

Northville mail carrier also hosts radio show

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Tom Kopeck is not your ordinary mailman, as he'll readily tell you.

The Northville postal carrier moonlights as the host of his own radio show, a polka program that airs on WCAR, 1090-AM weekdays from 3-4 p.m. Since he's typically walking or driving the streets of Northville at that time, Kopeck tapes the show at the station's Garden City studio on weekend nights.

Kopeck, 32, a graduate of Henry Ford College, said he began his career in radio during those early school days.

"I started in college back in 1977 doing a polka show for the campus station," he said. "A fellow by the name of Big Don Martin, who had a polka show at WCAR, heard it and was interested in using me as a backup or swing person for his show, and when Dan said 'Would you like to substitute?' I said 'Sure.'"

"He left, don't know exactly where he went, in '78, and I stayed. I filled his shoes, so to speak, and to this day I've been doing something at the station virtually full-time."

Kopeck went on to earn a

"Radio's not secure, people come and go, and so far the government's been secure . . . So I'll stay with this sure thing and have fun with the other thing."

degree in communication arts and sciences at the University of Detroit, he said, and remained at the radio station full-time until 1985. He took the mail carrier job to add a bit of security to his career path.

"Radio's not secure, people come and go, and so far the government's been secure," he said. "So I'll stay with this sure thing and have fun with the other thing."

Why polka?

"I grew up with it," Kopeck said. "When I was four or five years old, my parents played it all the time. At that time, Polka Joe was big; he's another disc jockey on another station who's since retired."

"I like supporting 'Polonia,' Polish heritage," he added. "It's lively, it's fun . . . and it draws people together."

And the polka program was just the beginning of his involvement in radio.

"I had a chance to do sports at the station," he said. "I've probably seen a thousand Wings, Pistons and Lions games since."

Besides serving as the station's sports director and producing his own sports spots during his show, Kopeck served as a statistician / spotter for NBC, he said, keeping track of players and statistics during a game and feeding the information to the sports announcers when needed.

"That's why they seem to know all the players," Kopeck said. "I'm not talking about an Ernie Harwell who really knows everybody; I'm talking about the visiting announcers who don't know every team's members."

Kopeck even has his own fan club. "People write to the station for information and get a list of sponsors and all we ask is that they support them . . . Then they're members."

Judging from the show's occasional contests, Kopeck estimates his daily listenership at between 60,000 and 100,000. "You could fill the University of Michigan stadium with all the listeners," he said with obvious pride. "People that win our contests come from Monroe, St. Clair Shores, Hamtramck, all over."

In a textbook example of understatement, Kopeck summed up his varied resume. "I have a lot of interesting careers," he said.

"I feel you can do virtually whatever you want if you put your mind to it. If you have the energy and talent, you can do it. I wanted to be a mailman; I've done it. I wanted to have a radio program; I've done it. I wanted to work in sports; I've done it . . . I've got more goals too."

Among Kopeck's other goals, he said, is "to syndicate my program throughout Michigan if not the country."

"Why not aim high," he said with a smile.

Recreation meetings to hear input

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The Northville Recreation Commission is seeking resident input to update its five-year recreation master plan.

The commission will host two public hearings at the 303 W. Main St. Recreation Department building, on Wednesday, Jan. 8 at 8 p.m. and on Tuesday, Jan. 14 at 7:30 p.m.

Recreation Director Traci Gottschalk said the public hearings will continue a process begun last year.

"We had a public hearing a year ago but nothing was done with the information that was collected, and the loss of Lapham Field has changed things, so we're just going to start from scratch," she said.

"The public hearings will help us determine what the community wants," Gottschalk said. "If people are interested in new facilities, this is the time to come forward and say, 'These are the facilities we need, and this is why.' That could include a pool, a golf course, a softball field, a soccer field."

"The same is true with programs. If they see a program out there that we're not offering, now is the time to say so."

Gottschalk explained that the plan is needed to allow the Recreation Commission to apply for state grants.

"It's required to be eligible to receive grants from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources," she said. "They require a copy of the five-year plan on file, and they're giving away a lot of money, so it's more than worth it."

"My goal is to have the five-year plan into the state DNR by mid-February, so hopefully they will approve it in February and we can apply for grants in March."

The recreation commission also plans to install a Wayne State University intern on its staff this summer, and will use the intern to track recreational facilities throughout the community.

The commission has already compiled a list of the facilities currently available to the recreation department, and whether the facilities are owned or leased by the commission.

The commission currently owns or leases the building at 303 West Main, two Senior activities rooms at the 215 West Cady Street Scout Building, five tennis courts, two ball diamonds, a soccer field for use in the fall and a tot lot and picnic shelter at Fish Hatchery Park, two ball diamonds at Henningsen Park and undeveloped land at the site of the Northville Community Park.

The majority of the fields and facilities used by the commission are borrowed, and many of those are borrowed from the Northville Public Schools.

School facilities include three gymnasiums, six tennis courts, two ball diamonds, a football field and pool at Northville High School; two soccer fields, two outdoor basketball courts and a gymnasium at Cooke Middle School; two ball diamonds, a soccer field and gymnasium at Meads Mill Middle School; two ball diamonds and a gymnasium at Amerman Elementary School; a ball diamond and soccer field at Winchester Elementary School; and multipurpose rooms at Winchester, Silver Springs and Moraine elementary schools.

Other borrowed fields include four ball diamonds and a fall soccer field at Edward Hines Parkway; two ball diamonds, a soccer field, day camp building, paved bicycle / walking path and cross country ski trails at Maybury State Park; a lighted ball diamond and fall soccer field at Ford Field; three soccer fields at Fairlane Assembly; and three soccer fields and a ball diamond on the former Wayne County Training School property on either side of Sheldon Road between Five Mile and Six Mile roads.

The training school fields will be lost as the R.A. DeMattia Company builds its residential / light industrial Huntington Falls development on the site.

Police plan new law enforcement

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
and STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writers

Anyone caught drunk driving could see their permanent driver's license destroyed under a new law that went into effect Jan. 1.

But not in Northville Township. Township officers will not be taking advantage of their option to cut up the licenses of anyone registering over a .10-percent blood alcohol level on a Breathalyzer test.

"I don't think we want scissors in the cell block or on the street," said Northville Township Chief of Police Chip Snider.

Township officers will confiscate licenses to use for identification of accused drunken drivers in court.

Under the new law, police are required to provide temporary driving permits to those accused of drunken driving.

Police also have the option of destroying permanent licenses under the law. The purpose of destroying licenses, Snider said, is to provide an immediate psychological impact on drunk drivers.

Psychologists who were on a committee that drafted the law felt seeing a license destroyed would send a message to accused drunken drivers.

ers, Snider said.

"In theory, that holds some merit," Snider said, but added that he did not want township officers carrying scissors in their patrol cars or into prisoners' cells.

"My option is going to be to confiscate (licenses)," he said.

The real burden of the new law falls on the courts, Snider said.

Officers must set up an arraignment date for accused drunken drivers within seven days. But courts must get the accused through the system within 77 days.

Judges told Snider at a Thursday meeting that they will no longer reschedule trials once a date is set.

Northville City police will adopt the scissors option once drivers fail a Breathalyzer test, said Senior Police Clerk Sue Hatch. "We have our scissors . . . We'll take care of that when they come into the station after they take a Breathalyzer test," she said. "That's what the law says we're supposed to do."

But Hatch stressed that a driver must be given a Breathalyzer test before police destroy the driver's license, according to the city police department's interpretation of the new law.

"We won't destroy licenses in the field," she said. "You're not going to do this in the field because you don't know what the blood alcohol level is. Even giving a PBT (preliminary breath test) or field sobriety tests is not sufficient, in our opinion."

City and township police had not arrested anyone as of Thursday for operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol since the new law took effect.

Township police did arrest a Farmington Hills man on Dec. 31 at 2:42 p.m. for drunken driving. The man's case will be handled under the provisions of the old drunken driving laws, Snider said.

Snider is bringing the new law to the Township Board of Trustees for approval on Jan. 9. But the legislation has been approved by the state, and township police already are enforcing the law.

The legislation is part of a package of stiffer drunk driving laws that took effect Jan. 1.

It includes a mandatory 30-day suspension for any drunk-driving conviction, with no possibility of obtaining a restricted license. The new laws also mandate a minimum 48 hours in jail or 10 days of community service for a second conviction.

Suspended or revoked licenses will no longer be reinstated due to complaints of "undue hardship."

CHRISTMAS TREE DISPOSAL: Now that the big day is behind us, are you wondering how to get rid of your Christmas tree? In Northville Township, Manager Richard Henningsen said the township's new waste-hauling firm, Painter & Ruthenberg, will pick up Christmas trees for three weeks beginning after the New Year's holiday. Just leave the tree at the curb on your regular collection day. The firm prefers the trees not be put in a plastic bag.

The rules are the same within the city limits, which is also served by Painter & Ruthenberg, said Becky Dozier at the city DPW. Dozier urged residents to wait until their regular collection day to set out the trees, to avoid having them become covered with snow or frozen to the ground before collection.

NORTHVILLE PLAYERS AUDITIONS: Auditions for the Northville Players' production of Neil Simon's "Plaza Suite," an adult comedy, will be Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 6 and 7, at 7:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, Eight Mile at Taft.

Production dates are March 6 and 7. There are parts for seven males (three major) and five females (four major). Major roles have a 30 to mid-40 age range. Contact Jacquie Rundell for information at 344-1969.

STATE PARK PERMITS: State Park permits for 1992 are on sale. They are available at Maybury or any other park office. The Maybury office is off Beck Road south of Eight Mile.

The prices are the same as last year: An annual permit is $15 and a senior annual is $3.75. This year State Park officials also offer gift certificates in denominations of $25 good toward camping or purchases made within state parks.

TRAFFIC STOP LEADS TO ARREST: A Westland man was arrested Dec. 26 after township police saw him make an illegal turn on Seven Mile Road. Police discovered the man had four outstanding warrants from Detroit. Three of the warrants were related to operating a taxicab with incorrect licensing. The fourth warrant was for failing to display a "not for hire" sign on his taxicab. Township police ticketed the man for driving with a suspended license and making an improper turn. The man was released to Detroit police after he refused to post bond on the outstanding warrants, according to police reports.

MINOR WITH ALCOHOL: An 18-year-old Canton man was cited for possession of alcohol at Northville Downs Dec. 30 when a Northville City police officer saw him accept and drink from a beer. The man, wearing a 1992 Plymouth / Canton High School varsity jacket, concealed the cup of beer after he drank from it. When confronted, he said a friend of his father's gave him the beer. The friend reportedly fled when he saw the police officer approaching.

Mill Race Matters

Happy New Year. With the beginning of 1992 the Northville Historical Society wishes to invite all interested members of our community to become part of this organization to help preserve and maintain the historic and cultural traditions of this region. Memberships are available by calling the office at 348-1845.

Many special activities for the year have already been planned, so mark these dates on your calendar: Jan. 23—Volunteer Appreciation Dinner, April 5—Progressive Dinner, July 4—Traditional Celebration (all afternoon) at Mill Race Village, Sept. 26-27—Tivoli Fair. Other traditional events throughout the year include: Victorian Festival (September), Sunday afternoons at Mill Race (June through October), our annual meeting in May, Wine Tasting Party, Christmas Walk. Additional activities include: workshops, tours, children's programming, spring cleanup and planting days, contra dances, building and grounds restoration and maintenance, archive organization and research, and regular publications. Everyone can find something in this collection of activities to become involved and enjoy. Start the New Year out right; join now.

Yerkes House, the splendid example of Victorian architecture which sits at Mill Race Village's lane turn-around, was built for William Purdy and Sarah (Sally) Cady Yerkes in 1868. William was the son of William and Hester (Dennis) Yerkes and the grandson of Joseph. His parents and grandfather arrived in the Northville area around 1826. They settled in the northern portion of our community and part of what is today Novi.

Joseph's farm ran south from Baseline and west of Meadowbrook. The Yerkes Cemetery remains as a memory of his land. The farm also contained Silver Springs (Yerkes) Lake (the only natural lake in Wayne County), although Joseph was for many years unaware of this. William and Hester owned land to the north, west of Joseph's. William was one of 10 children.

Sarah was the daughter of Daniel and Eliza Ellsworth Cady. Eliza was Daniel's second wife and probably the mother of five of his 12 children. Four of these children died before reaching adulthood and are buried near Daniel and Eliza in the Cady Street Cemetery. Cady arrived in Northville in 1825-26 with his five eldest children (four boys and one girl). Apparently their mother, Prudence, died in New York before the family's departure for Michigan. Daniel also had two daughters by his third wife, Lucinda, who is buried in Rural Hill along with her daughters.

William and Sarah were childless and left the bulk of their estate to relatives in the community. William was an attorney and a judge. He was also the first person to serve under the title village president.

The home typifies gracious living in the latter portion of the nineteenth century. It is an example of how far the settlers had come in forty years.

Michigan honors Pursell

The University of Michigan conferred an honorary doctor of laws degree on U.S. Rep. Carl D. Pursell, R-Phymouth, during the recent Winter Commencement.

Pursell, an eight-term member of Congress whose district includes most of the Northville community, was one of four honorary degree recipients during the December ceremony. The doctor of laws was awarded to Pursell "in recognition of his long-standing public service."

The university's presentation cited Pursell's more than 20 years in public service, saying he "... has proven himself to be a thoughtful and influential legislator and devoted public servant since his first election to public office. Throughout his tenure in Congress, he has worked to promote Michigan's interests while advancing a national agenda in areas such as health care, basic scientific research, transportation and the environment."

The other recipients were businessman Alex Manogian, economist Richard A. Musgrave and researcher Nancy Sabin Wexler.

In addition to U-M, Pursell has received honorary degrees from Madonna University, Cleary College, Eastern Michigan University and Adrian College. He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in education from Eastern Michigan University.

Participation vital in recreation hearings

The Northville Recreation Commission will hold two public hearings, this week and next, to gather public opinion before updating its five-year master plan. The hearings are a natural step, but two things must happen for them to mean anything: People have to show up and speak, and the Recreation Commission needs to listen.

The recreation department and commission held similar hearings about this time last year. Results were mixed at best. Some people did attend, although it was mostly folks already deeply involved in recreation programs — those whose views were probably already familiar to department officials and commissioners.

But the real problem last year was the follow-up, or lack of it. Once the hearings were held, nothing concrete really happened, at least not directly.

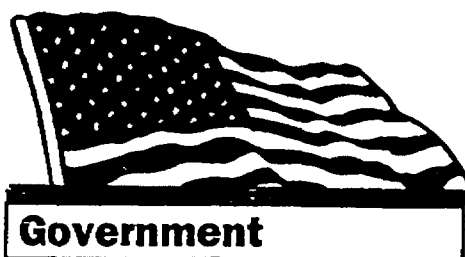

Well, here it's a new year, clean slate, and everyone concerned has a chance to start over.

First, this process will only work if a decent cross-section of the community participates. Parents of youth soccer players, for example, will likely show up at the hearings to reinforce the need for more local soccer fields. That's great; that's exactly what the hearings are about.

But the recreation officials know all about the lack of soccer fields, and about facilities deficiencies in other existing programs. The people they really need to hear from are other people. People who aren't as active in formal leagues. People who don't participate in recreation programs at all.

The Recreation Department is there for all of us. Most of its programs do require fees or charges of one sort or another, but at the same time, it gets money from both township and city budgets. That means everyone in both municipalities helps pay for the department.

And that means that it's there to serve all of us. That's part of its mission, and that's what its leaders want to do. But it can't do so without knowing what people want.

The department already offers everything from open gym time to holiday baby-sitting to one-day trips to the Bahamas. But what sort of recreation-type programs would you find interesting? Are they offered in Northville? If not, make plans to attend a hearing and have your say.

Or take the other side of the coin. Is too much money going to one program or another? Should more money go into park purchase and development, leaving individual programs to be supported by fees? Again, this is your chance to get it off your chest.

Once the hearings pass, recreation officials need to take action on what they hear. It's important to update the Recreation Commission's five-year master plan for two reasons: to guide the actions of recreation staff, and because the state Department of Natural Resources requires a plan on file before it will consider grant applications. Even though Northville hasn't had much success with DNR grants in recent years, local budget pinches make it imperative to at least keep trying.

Northville is lucky to have a strong Recreation Department. It's expensive, but its offerings go well beyond what's available in many neighboring communities. The future course of those offerings need to reflect the changing needs of the Northville community. These hearings provide a perfect chance to make sure that happens.

Predictions for the next year

The National Enquirer, the weekly tabloid on the supermarket stands, each year reports the predictions of psychics.

The predictions make entertaining reading, but how good are they? Old manie that I am, I saved The Enquirer's edition of Jan. 1, 1991. Eliminating things like the divorces of sitcom stars, here's what was predicted for public affairs:

"Lou Wright, the Denver psychic who predicted the attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II, foresees:

"New gene-engineered pets will appear — and the first ones will be tigers the size of kittens.

"An air disaster will kill hundreds of vacationers on the way to Hawaii in March. A public uproar will then force the government to make stiffer safety rules for airlines.

"Clarissa Bernhardt, the California psychic famed for her uncanny earthquake predictions, says that in the coming year:

"The much-heralded earthquake that was supposed to hit Missouri in December (1990) will actually strike next fall (1991).

"Marcia Graciette, the Los Angeles seer who foresaw the Manson murders, predicts:

"After leaving his Kremlin post, Mikhail Gorbachev will become the United Nations secretary general.

"A massive earthquake will strike the Grand Canyon in spring.

"Judy Hevenly, the California psychic who accurately predicted Lynda Carter's marriage, now forecasts:

"Scientists using the new Hubbard space telescope will find evidence of life on a faraway planet.

"Saddam Hussein will be killed in February in an accidental nuclear explosion at a secret Iraqi installation."

In short, the 10 psychics last year batted .000.

You ask, if I'm so smart, could I do any better? Well, maybe. Here's what I foresee for 1992 in Michigan:

● Politicians will offer six tax cut proposals for every one spending cut proposal.

● State legislators will offer 10 or more crippling amendments to the public records and open meetings laws for every one strengthening amendment. Republicans will surpass Democrats in trying to cloud the public's right to know. Most bills will be rationalized on the hypocritical basis that they protect "privacy."

● Retailers will be too dumb to see that shoppers are tired of Christmas hype starting in mid-September. Stores will start Christmas promotions shortly after Labor Day. Result: The 1992 Christmas shopping season will be as bad as 1991's.

● The Legislature will raise dozens of fees and maybe a few "sin" taxes, but it will lack the courage to look the public in the eye and say the state needs a billion-dollar general tax increase.

● Someone in 1992 will challenge the constitutionality of the new law that allows cops to become judges by tearing up drivers' licenses at the time of an arrest. In 1993 the state Supreme Court will strike down the law on a split vote.

● The Legislature will dream up more laws providing harsher punishments for those who get caught, but it won't spend a dime to put more cops on the street to increase the arrest rate.

● Cable TV companies will raise basic rates in excess of the rate of inflation.

Dirty phone calls ruin game

The economy in the State of Washington must be pretty good. Either that or my brother John's financial status has improved considerably over the past year.

These observations are based on the number of long distance phone calls from Seattle to Northville on New Year's Day between five and 7:30 p.m.

Most of the brothers and sisters are located in southeastern Michigan. The lone exception is Johnny who fled to Seattle a few years ago to set up his own business and raise a family.

It's not unusual for Johnny to call home on New Year's Day, but the number of phone calls last Wednesday was particularly high.

Oh, sure, there was the usual call on New Year's Day morning. What was disturbing were the calls that came in during the early evening. I think the first call came in right after the first half ended.

"I've got a bunch of friends over here watching the game," chortled John. "They want to know when Michigan's going to start playing. What should I tell 'em?"

"Wait till the second half," I told him. "The game plan is not to turn it on till the second half."

The bands did their thing, and the second half started. The game turned from bad to worse. The Huskies were feasting on Wolverine.

The phone rang. Kathi answered. "Anybody want to talk to John?" she asked.

"My friends are wondering what happened to the Wolverine offense," he said. "They read all about Michigan's powerful offense, and they were wondering when Michigan's going to start playing. What should I tell 'em?"

The phone calls were starting to become annoying, particularly for my Maize-and-Blue brother David.

Somebody named Marcus or Mario caught a long pass for another Huskie touchdown and the score soared to something like 542 to 7.

The phone rang. Kathi answered. "Anybody want to talk to Johnny?" she asked.

"My friends want to know if you could tell them what number Desmond Howard is wearing," he said. "They've been reading all about how good he is and how he won the Heisman Trophy. They'd like to know his number so they'll be sure not to miss it if he does something Heisman-like."

"Oh, yeah," he added. "Somebody wants to know if Desmond Howard has caught any passes yet. What should I tell 'em?"

I'd like to be able to report that that was the last of the phone calls from Seattle. But I can't. Because it wasn't.

The Huskies kept pouring it on the poor Wolverines, and not even Tyrone Wheatley's long touchdown run could do much to lift the spirits as the score continued to rise until it was something like 742 to 14 as the clock ran down in the fourth quarter.

The phone rang. Kathi answered. "Anybody want to talk to Johnny?" she asked.

"I don't want to talk to him," said David. "You want to talk to him?" he asked, turning to me.

"Nah," I answered. "I don't want to talk to him. Tell him we're not home."

"He wants to know about the Michigan Fight Song," reported Kathi, still hanging onto the phone. "He says his friends have heard that Michigan has a really good fight song, and they want to know why they haven't heard it more often."

Resolve to have more fun with wine in '92

In harmony with stock-taking that occurs at the end of the year, we've assessed presentations in our column. We've been far too serious! Wine is fun.

To make amends, we offer the following tongue-in-cheek wine compendium presenting a straightforward method of enhancing one's reputation, making a big sale or just raising an ego.

Realize that ordering wine in a restaurant can be fun, especially when you vary your technique. Practice and have some fun in the New Year!

Entertaining a client:

- Ask the waiter or sommelier for a wine recommendation with no intention of taking the advice. Your client will be impressed and the wine steward will applaud your choice because he'd like a generous tip.
- Explain to your client the intricacies of matching wine and food. Diplomatically criticize the wine steward's suggestions as being too fruity for the sauce or too low in acid to complement the fish.
- Remark how unfortunate it is that American restaurant personnel are no longer educated in fine wine the way they are in Europe.
- Remember that when all else fails, judge a wine by the far right-hand column. Be sure it is expensive enough to impress your client while at the same time explaining that good wine can be found at moderate prices.
- If the wine is red, ask the bottle to be decanted. When the cork is presented, remark on its length and how only great producers spare no expense when selecting this Portuguese product.
- When a small sample of the wine is poured for your judgment, check the color, swirl the wine, smell twice, taste by drawing air through the wine, ponder a moment, then ask the waiter to pour some for your client so he/she may judge. Explain to your waiter how this selection complements the chosen entrees.

Dining with Mom and Pop:

- If you are talking, don't even look at the wine list. Explain to your folks that wine is meant to be consumed as an everyday table beverage. Note that you think it is a waste of money to spend more than $5 on wine and order a carafe or house red or white.
  - If the waiter pours you a wine sample to taste, tell him not to be so stingy and fill the glass.
  - If Mom and Pop are treating, change your approach. There has to be one wine on the list that you can't afford. After all, they can't take it with them.
  - Let your folks know that you are glad to introduce them to the finer things in life and point them toward the old French Burgundies and Bordeaux.
- When the bottle is opened and the cork presented, have a little fun, bite the cork while watching the waiter's face.
- If your parents dislike the wine, explain malolactic fermentation and how it adds complexity to the wine. Encourage them to consider this unique, educational opportunity.
- Impressing a date:
- Chat with the wine steward about the appropriate wine selection. Compliment each suggestion and ask if the wine was barrel-fermented or vinified in stainless steel. If barrel-fermented, inquire about the origin of the oak. The rite of handling the wine steward is important and should not be overlooked as a means of raising your stature in the eyes of your companion.

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

Gewurztraminer is a grape used to produce delightfully spicy wines. Some of the best that we have tasted are produced by Z-Moore, a small Sonoma County winery specializing in gewurztraminer. The Z-Moore 1990 Quaff ($8) is semi-dry with aromas of citrus blossoms and lychee nuts. It is a great aperitif! If you prefer your wine bone dry, try the Z-Moore 1990 Barrel Fermented Gewurztraminer ($11). This wine boasts depth and flavor with the complexity of barrel fermentation and aging. The wine goes so well with oriental cuisine that Mon Jin Lau (Maple and Stephenson) has it on the wine list.

Gourmet foodstuffs to go

Chef's Secret demonstrates trend in stores

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

For people on the go, food is rarely something to be enjoyed. Cooking is viewed as a luxury.

For singles, newlyweds or two-career households (with and without kids) cooking at home takes priority somewhere down around waxing the car, and sometimes happens about as often.

In desperation, these people may turn to the obvious sources of sustenance — fast food and TV dinners. Plastic food eaten on plastic trays. Flavor and style take a back seat, and let's not even talk about nutrition.

Some eat out, but this isn't an economical solution to the problem. Ordering pizza works for a while, until you get sick of it.

Now, however, there are alternatives. There's a whole new burgeoning industry of cuisine-to-go. Some offer gourmet food to take home, while others offer a variety of wholesome foods that need only be heated and served.

One newer example is the Chef's Secret store which opened last April in the West Oaks II shopping center in Novi. It's one of a chain of 15 such stores which all opened at once in the Detroit area.

"We offer restaurant quality food that's all fresh frozen," said Bruce Allen, assistant manager at the store. "We buy our products from the same companies that supply all the restaurants in the area. We have over 300 items available."

The customers that rely on Chef's Secret are a diverse bunch.

"We get a lot of family people where both parents work, and they don't feel like spending three hours cooking dinner," said Sandy Webb, store manager. "Something like our chicken cordon bleu can go from store to oven to table in less than an hour."

"We also get a lot of singles and newlyweds who are looking for an easy way to cook without a lot of mess."

Another scenario often seen at Chef's Secret is the child who comes home to tell mom he needs three dozen cookies for school — tomorrow. Cookies come with the dough already prepared and formed. Cook 'em for 15 minutes and your kid is off the hook.

The 300 items on the menu at Chef's Secret cover such a wide spectrum, you could literally buy a seven-course dinner party of heat-and-eat food. A vegetarian could find a meal here, and if it's kosher you want, the Southfield and Farmington Hills stores stock kosher foods.

Counter help is schooled in serving tips, too, so when you buy something to heat up, you're not entirely on your own.

"We give people ideas, and let them know that 'this goes with noodles,' or 'this goes with rice,'" said Webb. "We have pamphlets that offer cooking tips."

Nutritional information is available too, for almost everything on the menu.

Some of the items are pre-cooked, and some are not. For example, there are orange roughy and salmon fillets in boxes of seven to 10, and steaks and pork chops by the dozen and half dozen. All are vacuum-sealed, unlike supermarket meat and fish, so they can remain frozen for up to a year without getting freezer burn or turning brown. Where it's appropriate, directions are included for broiling, baking and frying, or microwave heating.

"There are directions on almost all the boxes," said Webb. "Except for the steaks. I think most people know how to cook those up, although we do get people in here asking how to cook pork chops."

Among the entrees, the filet mignon and sirloin steaks are the most popular items, while stuffed cabbage rolls (sold by the tray) are a popular side dish. Pre-cooked meatballs are another hot item, but when it comes to dessert cakes and pies practically fly out the door. The Raspberry Bash cake, chocolate with cream cheese and raspberries, is a favorite for many customers.

"My family has gone through two of them," said Allen. "The company only buys from purveyors that supply restaurants, so it's good stuff. I used to work as a cook, and at the restaurants I worked in, we would get the Sweet's Treats pies that we sell here. They're excellent pies."

People come a long way to shop at Chef's Secret, as the Novi store is the company's westernmost outpost. It's not unusual to see customers from Brighton, Howell or Ann Arbor. Some travel even farther.

"We have one customer who comes all the way up from Toledo," said Webb. "When he comes up here to visit family, he stops in. He buys for about four or five families because they don't have anything like this down there. Last time he got nearly $500 worth of stuff. In fact, he's about due for another visit."

Chef's Secret has breakfast and lunch covered, too. Flavor Folds are pie-crust pockets filled with pizza fixings, ham and cheese or meatballs, a quick lunch meal. For breakfast, honey bran muffins have been popular of late.

Consider the possibilities. If you ate all your meals at home, with food from Chef's Secret, there'd be plenty of time left over to do other things — like waxing the car.

Chef Mary Brady

Resolve to experiment with newer accompaniments

Happy New Year! It is hard to believe that the holidays are over. In the restaurant business holiday is not synonymous with vacation. It means harder work and longer hours. While most are "partying," we are hosting the festivities.

This is definitely a fun time of year to work. Everyone is happy and relaxed. Christmas lights add a soft glow to the room. Wreaths and bows are comforting. On Seven Mile the Christmas lights stayed up all year over the bar. This was the signature of Brady's. We did the same at Prudential.

Last night Tom and I were discussing whether any lights should be left. Don't be surprised if you see them in July. It is a reminder of a joyous time. Our Christmas has been exactly that. Our staff kicked right in and did a fantastic job. We met many new people. The mix is electric. Young families, older couples that have come to stir memories of days past at the original DJBs, teenagers enjoying burgers, business people, shoppers and moviegoers.

It is so enjoyable to hear the accolades of those who have discovered us for the first time. "What is a place like this doing in the back of a mall?" And the faces that we see over and over is a great tribute. It keeps us on our toes. Amazing to me is how inquisitive and knowledgeable you are about food. Always asking questions. How did you make this? What is in it to give it that taste? Would you give me the recipe? As an example we are using many different types of starches. No, we don't do a baked potato. We use Basmati rice, orzo, polenta, risotto and garlic mashed skin on potatoes. All have been very well accepted.

Basmati is an aromatic or scented rice that has its origins in India and Pakistan. When cooked the grains elongate rather than plump and remain fluffy, not sticky. The flavor is nutty and distinctive. Basmati is often aged to improve its flavor and should be washed before using. We are producing Basmati-like rice in the United States.

American aromatic rice includes brown or white

Texmati, pecan rice (a brown rice strain with a taste of pecan nuts) and Wehani, a brownish red strain of Basmati grown in California.

Italian rice, or risotto, is very sturdy and much more "squirish" than other rice varieties. Typically risotto is stirred during cooking to help release the large amount of starch present. This starch creates a binding sauce around the white pearl-like kernels which retain a firm core. Also known as arborio, it is excellent for absorbing sauces without becoming soft.

We mix risotto with shiitakes, artichokes and tomatoes for a wonderful combination. Often this is lunch. Rich and satisfying. Orzo is rice-shaped pasta. When cooked it is about twice the size of a grain of rice. It is excellent with sauces and in soup. Of late we have been using brown rice for pancakes with Oriental-style dishes. Brown rice is white rice before the bran and germ are removed. These nutritious layers lend an earthy flavor and require longer cooking. Brown rice tends to turn mushy with overcooking so pay careful attention.

Another unusual grain is Quinoa. The Quinoa plant, native to South America, is now being cultivated in the U.S. and China. It is being billed as a "supergrain." Quinoa has a grassy flavor and is used as a substitute for rice.

Couscous is pasta made from Durum whatans is a specialty of Morocco. To prepare, simply soak in hot water. Couscous is a nice accompaniment to stews as its natural blandness takes the flavors of the meal it is served with.

Bulgur is a type of cracked wheat with a deep gold color and nutty flavor. Bulgur expands and becomes tender when simply soaked in water. It is a basis for tabbouleh, a Middle Eastern salad with parsley, lemon, tomatoes and mint.

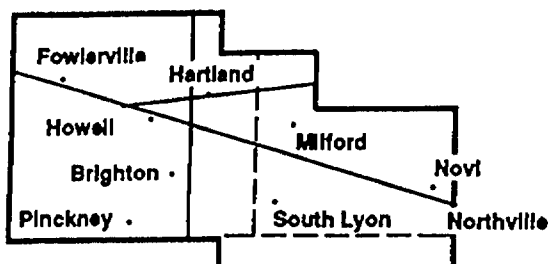

All of the above starches are available at local markets. It is important to read directions before cooking. Make a New Year's Resolution — Experiment with new accompaniments. Flexibility and creativity are part of the art of cooking.

'Last Wish' makes important TV statement

Flawed film still enjoyable, provocative

By STEVEN ALAN McGAW

On Sunday, Jan. 12, ABC presents "Last Wish," a telefilm based on the 1985 bestseller by journalist Betty Rollin. In the controversial book, Rollin revealed that her mother's death had been a suicide; it also made it clear she had helped her mother to die.

Indomitable, humorous, full of advice about real estate and the nutritional worth of wheat germ, Ida Rollin was diagnosed with ovarian cancer in the spring of 1981. Obeying her doctor's instructions, she underwent successive rounds of chemotherapy, but the treatment did little good. Proud of her appearance, she lost her hair; stern in her independence, she soon required round-the-clock care, trained persons to deliver the food she could not eat and administer the painkillers that offered no relief. With appalling swiftness, Ida Rollin became weak, ill-tempered, dependent. She surely must have been unrecognizable, even to herself, as the bustling, dynamic widow who met life with vigor, joining her daughter across town for lunch, or finding delight in a children's theater troupe.

The ordeal was nearly as traumatic for Rollin's daughter Betty. Herself a survivor of breast cancer (documented in the best-selling book "First You Cry"), Rollin was unprepared for her mother's grim prognosis, or swift decline.

Rollin was also unprepared for her mother's eventual decision and plea. Knowing her condition was terminal, bitter at her weakness and the constant nausea, the ceaseless pain, Ida Rollin wanted out. "They put dogs out of their misery," she reasoned, "why can't they do the same for me?" At first, her daughter was shocked. Was she serious, did she really mean it? "Next to your happiness," Ida Rollin answered softly, seriously, "I want to die more than anything in the world."

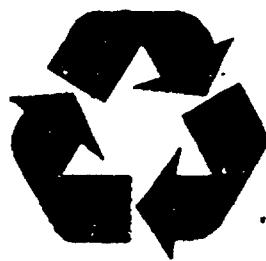

It's not, however, that easy, as mother and daughter were quick to learn. Suicide is illegal, and few doctors are willing to discuss it as a legitimate alternative, much less assist. Betty Rollin knew, unless extreme care was taken, she and her husband might be found culpable, even indicted. For her part, Ida Rollin was ready for death. She was not ready for more pain.

At length, a method was found. Referred to a sympathetic physician in Holland, Rollin learned of an available prescription drug that, if taken in sufficient quantity, would painlessly release her mother from life. On Oct. 17, 1983, Ida Rollin found the "door" for which she'd searched and, as her daughter would later write, "it closed, gently, behind her."

"Last Wish" stars Academy Award-winners Paty Duke as Betty Rollin and Maureen Stapleton as her courageous mother, Ida. Dwight Schultz co-stars as Rollin's supportive son-in-law, Ed.

"The story of 'Last Wish,' of Ida and Betty and Ed, is a love story," Patty Duke told reporters last July. "Utter, absolute, passionate love story. That's what made me want to do it." Rollin, also on hand, expressed her happiness with ABC's film and stressed that,

BITS AND PIECES

Charlie Rose returns to national television

Rose blooms again. Absent from national television since he quit the syndicated Personalities last year, Charlie Rose returns on Monday, Jan. 6, when his public affairs/discussion series on the PBS affiliate WNET begins its one-day delayed broadcast on The Learning Channel. The WNET program has drawn a cult following in New York, and TLC has high hopes that Rose will pull in faithful audiences for them. TLC will air new episodes of Charlie Rose Monday through Saturday with late-night repeats. The hour-long forum will examine topics ranging from AIDS to Broadway plays.

The results are in. Figures obtained from the National Cable Television Association indicate that 1991 was a very good year for them. Largely due to CNN's news-coverage coup in the Persian Gulf war, for the first time basic cable beat one of the major networks (ABC) in the ratings battle during the first six weeks of 1991, finishing third behind CBS and NBC. Since its deregulation, investment in basic cable programming has risen steadily. The NCTA stated that now 60.6 percent of all U.S. homes are cable households, and that the number of students who supplement their education with Cable in the Classroom doubled in 1991.

Charlie Rose

Now you can sleep with the soaps. Heartland Apparel, Inc., is introducing a line of sleepwear featuring the logos or designs of ABC's four soap operas. Besides a scrub-suit sleeper similar to the ones worn on General Hospital, there are nightshirts sporting the logos of GH, All My Children, Loving and One Life to Live. Amy Dorn Kopelan, an ABC vice president of marketing, claims, "Soap opera viewers tend to be very loyal to their shows and the Heartland line will remind them of the soaps they love so much." Sorry, torrid romance not included.

Rising country star Travis Tritt delivers a rousing performance On Stage, Thursday on TNN.

Patty Duke talks about the telefilm Last Wish on Friday's installment of Entertainment Tonight.

Over 30 and still a paperboy? Saturdays on Fox, Chris Elliot keeps trying to Get A Life!

LET'S TALK

Reader very curious about Andrew McCarthy

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I would like to know about Andrew McCarthy ... where he is from, his home, his hangouts ... just about anything you can give me. I can't find anything about him in magazines anywhere. I would also like to know where he stays when he visits Maui. Has he ever gotten romantically involved with his co-stars and do they keep in touch. I have all of his videos. —P.F., Kihei, Maui.

A: Early details are sketchy. According to two references, McCarthy was born in 1963, but one says 1962. Two references say he was born in New York, but one lists his birthplace as Westfield, N.J. He decided to become an actor after being cut from his high school football team. Later on, while attending New York University, a classmate told him about the casting for an upcoming movie called Class. McCarthy won the starring role opposite Jacqueline Bisset. During the filming of that movie, he met Rob Lowe and subsequently became known as one of the "Brat Pack," mainly a media grouping of all the young, successful actors at that time. I don't know where he stays when he's in Maui or where he "hangs out." I've never heard of him getting romantically involved with any of his co-stars. He currently lives in Greenwich Village in N.Y.C. He's an avid Yankees fan and enjoys golf.

Q: When I was a small child in the '60s, I remember I was never allowed to watch Dark Shadows. My mom told me it was harmful to watch, and nightmares would occur and scare me. I am an adult now, and the show came back on television. I did not find it horrible or repulsive. I fell in love with the timely gothic but beautiful story. Is there a place where I can buy the story? —Natalie Adkins, Mount Pleasant, Texas.

A: Waldenbooks has both a printed tribute to the show and a companion book to the series. There are videos available of the old series, but not the most recent one, which was canceled with no plans to bring it back. If you are interested in buying the videos, you can call the Video Library of Philadelphia at 800-669-7157. Or check your local video store; maybe they can special order the tapes for you.

Q: A friend of mine has bet me that James Coburn is the son of the late actor Charles Coburn. I say he is not. Who's right? —Alesta Pacelli, Big Bear Lake, Calif., 92315.

A: I would have to say you're right. I can't find any mention that Charles is the father of James.

Q: Where can I write Jean-Claude Van Damme? —Mary Davies, Tor C, N.M.

A: You can write to his fan club. The address is P.O. Box 4149, Chatsworth, Calif., 91313-4149.

Q: Would you please give me an address where I can write to Sharon Gless of The Trials of Rosie O'Neill? I have been following her career since

Andrew McCarthy

Cagney & Lacey and think she is an inspiration to all women. —S. Wills, Morehead City, N.C.

A: Write Gless c/o CBS, CBS Television City, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90036. If you are a fan of the show, you might want to also write to that address and let the network executives know you like it. It was recently placed on hiatus and is in danger of being canceled.

Q: I am interested in obtaining a video copy of an episode of the show That's Incredible that aired in the '80s. Would you please supply me with the address for the network or whoever otherwise could assist me with this? —Ronald S. Donakowski, Enterprise, Ala.

A: Try writing to MCA TV, 100 Universal City Plaza, Universal City, Calif., 91608. They are the current distributors for the show. • TV Listing Inc while it may stir important debate, the film does not address the broad issues of suicide, or euthanasia. "The film is about the escape of a woman who was trapped in life and how she got out."

Flawed film still enjoyable, provocative

For bringing "Last Wish" to television, ABC deserves to be commended. The film is sure to be controversial, especially in light of recent events concerning physician-assisted suicides. Both Duke and Stapleton give energy and conviction to their performances, and some scenes are profoundly moving. As a whole, however, the film falls a little flat, perhaps through too great an effort to exercise restraint. A forgivable sin, certainly, when balanced with bringing to the screen an important book on a topic that cannot be ignored.

Soap Opera awards
air Jan. 10

By Candace Havens

The eighth annual Soap Opera Digest Awards airs live Friday, Jan. 10, on NBC, and for the first time it will be shown during prime time. Each year I like to indicate my personal choices in each category (but not necessarily the nominees I expect will win), so here goes:

For Outstanding Daytime Show, I like Days of Our Lives, because, if nothing else, it is never boring. In the Outstanding Lead Actor category, I'd really like to see the funny and very talented Stephen Schnetzer (Cass, Another World) get it. For Outstanding Lead Actress, Elizabeth Hubbard as Lucinda on As the World Turns is the best.

In the Supporting Actor and Actress categories, I'd have to pick two from General Hospital: Stuart Damon (who plays Alan) and the devilishly fun Jane Elliot (as Tracy). And if you were giving an award for the vilest of evil deeds, the Outstanding Villain statuette would surely go to Michael Zaslow (who plays Roger on Guiding Light). On the distaff side, my pick for Outstanding Villainess is Lynn Herring, as the money-hungry Lucy on General Hospital.

In the Outstanding Newcomer categories, John J. York (who plays Mac on GH) gets my nod for being the guy who made the most impact on the television viewing audience. Victoria Rowell (as Drucilla on The Young and the Restless) has really come a long way and should win the prize.

For Outstanding Younger Leading Actor, I'd like to see Ricky Paull Goldin come away the winner. The prize for Outstanding Younger Leading Actress should go to Beth Ehlers (as Harley on GL). She's a talented lady and deserves to win.

This year's award for Best Wedding should go to Y&R for Danny and Cricket's wedding. Even though this entire relationship totally disgusts me, their wedding, filmed in Hawaii, was beautiful. AMC should get the award for Best Death Scene for the deaths of Tad Martin and Billy Clyde Tuggle, since these are the only two characters who have stayed dead. The award for Outstanding Comic Performance should go to the intensely funny Robert Mailhouse, who plays Brian on Days. And finally, the year's Best Love Story belongs to Jack and Jennifer on Days.
