Driver guilty of lesser charge

By STEVE KELLMAN Staff Writer

An Oakland County Circuit Court jury took less than seven hours Thursday to find former Novi resident Kenneth Loveday guilty of negligent homicide in the June 5 deaths of Yusuf Hanania and Albert Abdelnour.

Loveday, 20, had faced the more severe charges of involuntary mansevere charges of involunary man-slaughter with a motor vehicle for striking the two joggers with his Jeep on Eight Mile Road. Manslaughter with a motor vehicle is a felony punishable by up to 15 years in prison. The maximum charge for negligent homicide a mis-charge for negligent homicide, a misdemeanor, is two years. Sentencing is set for Jan. 22.

The jury's lesser verdict drew cries of outrage from the dozen family members and several friends of the joggers gathered at Oakland County Circuit Court. Abdelnour's brother Basim stormed out of the courtroom saying "It's not fair," while Hanania's wife. Angela, and her mother began sobbing and screaming in the front row of spectators.

One family member screamed "murderer," while another collapsed and had to be led out of the courtroom.

Hanania, 38, was an engineer and vice president with Singh Development Corp. in Birmingham. His three children attend Northville schools.

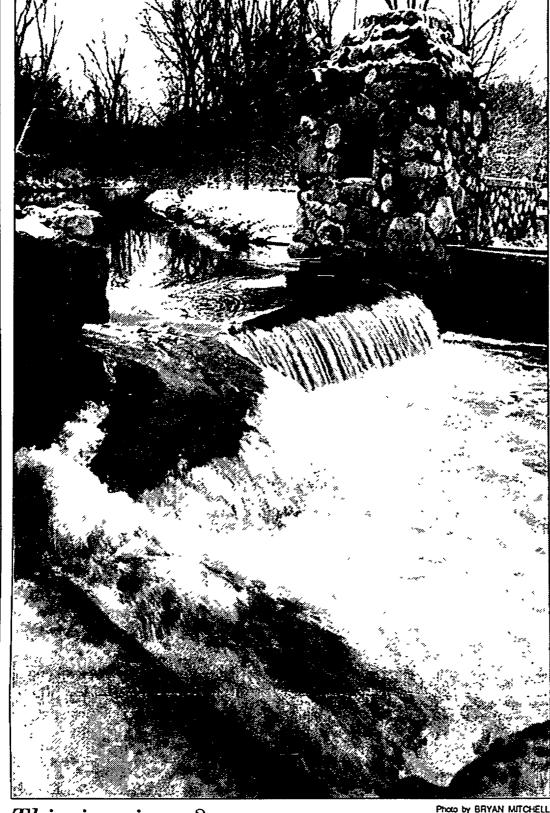

Abdelnour, 44, owned the Meadow Pharmacy and Party Store in Farmington Hills.

The charge of negligent homicide involves "ordinary negligence," O'Brien told the jury Thursday. "Slight negligence is not a crime at all," he said.

Loveday said after the trial that he believed the verdict was fair. "It's what I expected," he said, before be-ing told by his mother not to say anything else. He was released on $100,000 tinued to protest the verdict Friday.

As the last remnants of the season's only real snowfall melted away last week, the cloudy weather and temperatures made things seem not very winter-like. The water levels in the Middle Rouge River, above, were looking more like May than January.

Ethics talk sparks challenges

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

During the early moments of last week's workshop on ethics and the Open Meetings Act, township attorney C. Gerald Hemmingjoked that he expected event organizer Betty Lennox to be the lone township official in attendance.

He was wrong. And any humorous edge the meeting may have had ended right there.

What was intended to be an informational meeting steadily evolved into perhaps the most serious affront to the township board in recent memory.

Appointees to various township boards and commissions joined with township employees, former appointees and would-be commission members - nearly two dozen in all - to waga strict and oft-accusatory finger at the township's elected officials.

In his discussion of conflict of in-terest and the township's ethics policy. Hemming mentioned that the township board also serves as the community's ethics board. All alleged cases of impropriety would, in effect, be tried by the board.

And Hemming said the township is a pioneer in local government ethics policies.

I think Northville Township has basically taken the lead in . . . adopting this ethics and conflict of interest policy." he said. But when it comes to ethics and conflict of interest matters, appointed township officials said that their elected brethren may not be the best judge of character.

Beautification Commissioner Judy Jambor said community confidence in the board had sagged. Jambor suggested forming a board "who judges the Board of Trustees.

"I think it's very important (to de-signate) an objective outside group to sit in judgment," she said. Zoning Board of Appeals member Robert Willerer questioned whether the township board actually could serve as a non-partisan ethics board. "Wouldn't that in itself be a conflict of interest? he asked. And Beautification Commissioner Carol Graves Sassaman suggested that an elected group should not hold the title of an ethics committee.

(Being an) elected official automatically puts you in a conflicting si-tuation," she said.

Blunter still was planning com-missioner and ZBA Chairperson Karen Baja, who questioned the ethics policy, as well as Lennox and the board's reasons for holding an ethics workshop.

Handyside takes new job with BFI

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

A Northville Township trustee has taken a top management job with Browning-Ferris Industries, just months after heading township ne-gotiations for a recycling agreement with BFI.

Michigan BFI landfills, but said the company's operating structure will connect him only "technically" to the township/BFI recycling agreement.

What about any future solid-waste discussions between the township and BFI?

"I was very, very ashamed of our justice system yesterday," Basim Abdelnour said. "What does it take to get a manslaughter conviction? ... Does it take more than two people being murdered?"

Angela Hanania said she feared the sentence would send the wrong message to other drivers.

That verdict yesterday sent a message out to every kid that smokes pot and drinks that if you drive and kill somebody, the maximum you'll get is six months to two years," she said. That jury and judge sent a message out to the kids that they won't be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

Other family members were equally disgusted with the jury's verdict

Higher taxes may protect bonds

By STEVE KELLMAN Staff Writer

The city administration is pushing for a new deficit reduction plan that includes a 4.2-mill tax increase in response to a meeting Thursday with a team of fiscal analysts.

The city must adopt a specific plan before selling more than $1 million in tax and state-shared revenue anticipation notes later this month. The notes are needed to cover deficits in the city's general and capital improvement funds.

Standard & Poor's analysts spent more than eight hours with city officials Thursday, reviewing the city's financial history and the three deficit reduction proposals that had already been sent to the firm for its review.

Standard & Poors rates a municipality's general credit-worthiness. and the ratings affect the municipality's ability to sell bonds to finance special projects.

The three existing proposals call for millage hikes of between 3 and 4 mills and layoffs in the police, public works and clerical departments, as well as a host of other budget cuts.

But City Manager Gary Word said the deficit reduction proposals may not go far enough for Standard & Poors in preserving the city's current level of service and planning for the future.

He said another deficit reduction plan may meet with the bond rating firm's approval.

They're not being very specific with us, but what I'd like to consider is a different deficit reduction plan that would go slightly up from 4 mills, to 4.2," he said.

Word wants to turn a special meeting scheduled for tonight, planned for adoption of one of the three proposals, into a public hearing into the new 4.2-mill plan.

Another meeting has been scheduled for tomorrow, Jan. 14, for actual adoption of the plan.

But his role as district manager for the Michigan Landfills District won't place Trustee Thomas Handyside in a conflicting position, Handyside said last week.

Asked if he anticipated any potential conflicts of interest between his professional career and his roles as township trustee and chairperson of the township's Water and Sewer Commission, Handyside said, "no. "I don't know what foreseeable things could come up," he said. "Anything that may present a conflict . . .

I would request to be allowed to abstain.

Handyside played a key part in negotiations between the township and sewer capacity in exchange for free residential recycling. Handyside worked closely with BFI officials during that time, but said the dealings were strictly business.

"I feel I've been fair; there was no blas . . . in any of the negotiations," he said. "We got as much out of this thing as BFI did. We got some tremendous benefits."

Handyside, who started work for BFI Jan. 3, will be in charge of three hauling company (which he said operates separately from the landfill)," Handyside said. The only place I could see any influence is if we were going to negotiate some kind of contract as opposed to a low bid."

Handyside said BFI approached him about the position in late 1991. He decided to take the job in mid-December, and said the move to the Arbor Hills base in Salem Township brought him closer to home, as well as earning "financial rewards."

BFI and the township currently are enjoined in a consent agreement to clean a contaminated site off Napier Road in Northville Township, across from the Arbor Hills site. The BFI that led to an agreement for township last week opened bids on a sewer extension from the landfill site to Napler Road, and BFI may attempt to negotiate with township condominiums and multiple family dwellings for solid waste collections - which could accompany an agreement granting free recycling for those residences

Handyside took exception Thurs-

Ice rink plan arises at hearing

By AILEEN WINGBLAD Special Writer

Is there an ice rink in Northville's future? There just may be if Farmington Hills business person Robert Picard can fulfill his vision.

Picard, a former National Hockey League player who now owns a sport shop in Farmington Hills, is eveing several sites in and around the Northville area in hopes of developing a four-surface ice rink. The idea arose at last Wednesday's public hearing of the Northville Recreation Commission. The commission is currently updating its five-year master plan as required for state government grant application and is holding public hearings to get input from community members.

Northville Township resident Jim Davis, a business associate of Picard, approached the commission with the ice-rink plan, seeking to garner public support and to assess public interest in the proposed facility.

"Rob Picard has the plans and financial backers. What he'd like to see is maybe an association developed. He needs that commitment," Davis said.

"We're just trying to get the word out . . . Even if we had 200 kids or whatever interested in playing — just some kind of an indication." he added.

interest in a new area facility, Davis added. Commission members are considering a suggestion to include a questionnaire regarding the

Several adult leagues have already expressed proposed rink in their March mailing to residents. Also discussed at the public hearing was the need for more open recreation time at public facilities and scheduling of publicly sponsored teen programs and special events. Commission member Bill Braund said he doubts the success of such sponsored youth programs because "drugs and booze always start coming. . . They re very hard to control."

But one resident in attendance took issue with Braund's opinion.

"For the kids age 14 or so to the high school senior, there is nothing in this town for them to do. Absolutely nothing," she said, adding that youth programs, if organized and supervised properly. are of great benefit to a community.

New Assistant Recreation Director John Powe agreed that youth programs can very well be suc-cessful, especially those set up to keep teens #### interested.

*You just need to use your imagination. That is my job. to use my imagination and find out what they like. Certain things catch on . . . Kids become attached to a group. Some real positive things can go on," Powe said.

The commission also fielded questions and comments concerning undeveloped recreational land sites in the community, such as the 44-acre Northville Community Park site on Beck between Five Mile and Six Mile roads. Commission member Carol Rahimi responded to one resident's request for increased development by citing a need for more financial support from the community and on a state level as well.

"Yes, we have the land available for recreational use," Rahimi said. "But we need money and vision to develop that land."

Commission Member Ken Romine added that there is an ongoing effort to find funding alternatives for recreation programs and urged residents to bring their comments and suggestions before the commission. The next public hearing is scheduled for 7:30 tomorrow (Tuesday) night at the Northville Community Center, 303 W. Main.

A colorful overview of the women's suffrage movement will take place this Friday at the Northville Woman's Club.

The club's regular meeting will feature Gladys H. McKenney offering a presentation titled "Our Fabulous Foremothers - A Celebration." McKenney, of the McKenney Educational Foundation, is a self-employed consultant who has used her skills as an educator, author, sculptor, and actress to develop, trademark and copyright *Fabulous Foremother" figures to portray women who were active in the women's suffrage movement.

The dolls are historically authentic works of art and are the result of McKenney's research to develop a high school course in women's history. Her presentation of "Our Fabulous Foremothers - A Celebration" is an outgrowth of that project and a vehicle for her to share her enthusiasm about the lives of the women whose strength, courage, wisdom and faith changed the course of American history.

Role playing, storytelling, and actual quotations from the women themselves are combined in McKenney's program to convey the very real drama in the lives of women such as Abigail Adams, the Grimke sisters, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony, and Sojourner Truth, whose diligent efforts ultimately won women the right to vote in the United States.

The meeting begins at 1.30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church. Guests are welcome, as it is Guest Day.

You're an Inkster resident, cruising through a Northville Township subdivision in the darkest. early morning hours, and your van - with expired license plates - is nearly overflowing with hubcaps.

Some things are tough to explain, especially to a police officer.

Such was the case for a 35-year-old Inkster man charged Jan. 7 with the theft of 47 hubcaps. Township police said the man allegedly stole hubcaps from vehicles in Northville Township. Plymouth, Plymouth Township, and Romulus. The man faces larceny charges Jan. 28 at 35th District Court. Police said Officer William Helke was on patrol on southbound Northville Road just before 2 a.m. Jan. 7 when he noticed a suspicious 1984 Ford Econoline van parked on Jamestown Circle in the Kings Mill subdivision. Helke reportedly returned to the scene, but the van had left the area.

Police located the van at the Mobil Gas station at the corner of Northville Road and Seven Mile. and the driver of the vehicle then headed south on Northville.

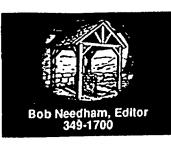

A computer check revealed that the van's license plates had expired, and Helke attempted to pull the man over using first his patrol car's flashing lights and then its siren. The Inkster man continued a steady southerly course until he finally stopped on Starkweather near Dunn in Plymouth. police said.

Helke and Sgt. Raymond Garbarino approached the vehicle and Garbarino reportedly discovered "a pile of hubcaps in plain view in the middle of the van." reports indicated. A large screwdriver also reportedly was located on the floorboard near the front of the van.

The man told police that the hubcaps were not his, but that he had not stolen the items. He later confessed that he had stolen the hubcaps, after police had arrested him on driving with a suspended license and improper license plate charges.

Police said hubcaps were stolen from at least four vehicles inside King's Mill. The owners then identified and retrieved the hubcaps. Computer checks also helped locate hubcap theft victims in Plymouth city and township and in Romulus, police said.

should clue in board

Last Wednesday's ethics and Open Meetings Act workshop surely served as a rude awakening for any township elected official who may have slept through the tumultuous past few months.

No longer could township board members shrug off complaints about their governing abilities as the jabbering of malcontents. No longer could perceived splinter groups - or those soaked in sour grapes - be brushed aside by board members. And no longer were individual board members claiming that a few misguided opponents were "parroting" the local press.

No. Wednesday's get-together was more ominous. Simply put, the brightest and the best of the township's appointed officials --- those people who donate endless hours to serve on the planning commission, or zoning board of appeals, or beautification commission - told the board to get its act together. Or else.

The fact that these appointees and potential appointees took such a strong stance had to shock the board members. And maybe it will make them realize that the board inevitably answers to its constituency, and not the other way around.

The original intent of the workshop was to refresh appointees' memories to the township's ethics policy and the state Open Meetings Act, and to alert them to potential conflicts of interest. Instead, the intended audience turned the tables, pasically telling the board to clean up its own back yard.

Some board members had to be troubled by the pointed comments offered by the appointees. After all, no one could dispute that those who attended the session were among the core of the politically moderate, intelligent, active, and professional wing of the township voting community. And it had to hurt that not a soul stood and offered blanket support to the board as it attempted to withstand tough questioning and biting establish an independent body to judge township board members who may stray from the ethical path.

Appointees also want to have input to the previously adopted, and now slightly altered, ethics policy. And they seem willing to roll up their sleeves and get to work on such a plan.

Both ideas are intriguing, and we would wholeheartedly support the study of such an independent ethics board and tougher, more inclusive ethics policy language. In fact, were financial times not so tight, we would ask that the township scrap its current ethics policy and start from the ground floor.

Here's why. The township's law firm pieced together the existing ethics policy, based on snippets of state law, ethics codes from other municipalities, etc. But the policy carries with it enough vague language to spring virtually any ethics code deviant. Let's face it, the document was drafted at the behest of township officials to fit their purposes, not to ensure that no one would ever stray from the straight and narrow.

We're also troubled by the fact that the township's law firm drew up the document. The firm itself falls under the guidelines of the ethics policy and should not be the architect that designed the document.

We urge the township to move ahead on a revamped ethics policy and possible formulation of an independent ethics board. Repeated questionable behavior by some members of the township board and other entities that should be answerable to the ethics policy are reason enough for further study.

Ethics meeting response Justice takes a hit in Oakland

After following Kenneth Love-day's manslaughter trial for six months, I can only shake my head at the state of Oakland County's judicial system as reflected by the court of the honorable Judge Francis X. O'Brien.

Leave aside for the moment the matter of whether Northville City's police department and the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office built a credible case against Loveday, charged with killing two joggers on Eight Mile Road last summer. Leave aside also whether Loveday was in fact guilty of manslaughter, as opposed to the lesser charge of negligent homicide of which he was convicted.

The most serious question raised by the case was whether the last week's events amounted to a legitimate trial or a travesty of justice.

Throughout the trial, Judge O'Brien seemed more intent on blocking testimony and badgering witnesses than getting to the truth.

For starters, the judge seemed unable to keep his mouth shut as he listened to the testimony of any witness involved with drugs. While trying to recall who had the rolling papers used to roll a marijuana cigarette, one witness was interrupted in mid-sentence by O'Brien, who snapped, "If you know who had them, young man, tell the prosecutor."

As another was describing the odor of marijuana, using words like "pine" and "pungent," the judge interrupted again, saying What did it smell like... Did it smell like a Christmas Tree?

"You could say that," the witness replied.

"No I can't, you're the one under oath," the judge shot back.

But the third witness's experience was the most humiliating. As he began to testify, the judge leaned over the bench toward him and demanded a precise history of the man's drug involvement, starting with when he first took drugs; continuing through the types of drugs he had taken, and concluding with how long the man had "totally abstained" from taking drugs. The witness was quickly reduced to tears.

Perhaps the judge's most disturbing trend from a legal standpoint was the way he downplayed the number of "hits" that Loveday and the Jeep's passenger, Michael Gibson, allegedly took off the marijuana cigarette before Loveday's Jeep drove into the joggers. While Gibson first testified that the two passed the joint back and forth "four or five" times, O'Brien referred to "three or four" hits the first time he recalled the testimony, and then talked of "two or three" hits when he next recalled it.

Defense Attorney Jerry D'Avanzo split the difference during his closing arguments, referring to the "three or four" hits the two men may or may not have taken.

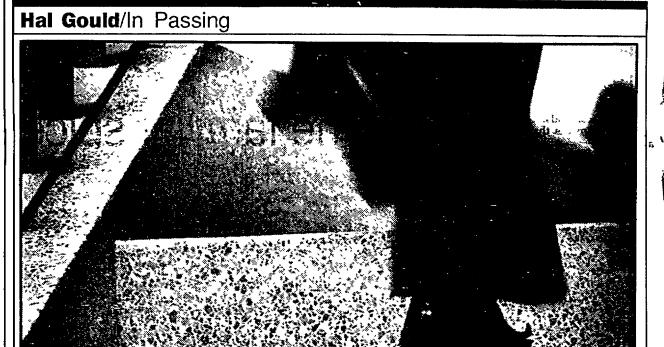

Also galling was O'Brien's seeming inability to pronounce anyone's name in the trial. On Thursday, after two days of testimony regarding Loveday. O'Brien said, "All right, we call the case of People versus Lovejoy."

Victim Yusuf Hanania became Hanana under the judge's nimble tongue, while Albert Abdelnour became Abdelvic. Detective David Fendelet, pronounced "Fondelay" by everyone except the judge throughout the trial, became "Fender-Lett" Thursday in the judge's mind.

If O'Brien can't even get the pronunciation of a defendant's or witness's name right, what else is he getting wrong?

In a scene that seemed to epitomize the phrase "falling down on the job," the judge tripped and fell to his knees on his way to the bench. "Shouldn't have had that extra drink," he said, as he climbed to his feet.

If the judge's comment was a joke, it was in extremely poor taste. If not, heaven help our judicial system.

commentary.

It didn't take observers long to realize that appointees - residents and taxpayers, really - want to play a more important role in the operation of township government. Significantly, many promoted the idea that the township should

Those township residents who attended the ethics meeting should be proud they stepped forward. In effect, they had seen enough and faced their bosses with an ultimatum. It couldn't have been an easy, or painless, decision.

DINKS: An abused minority

One of the interesting things about writing a column every week is you're never really sure when you're going to hit a nerve.

Oh, sure, sometimes you know. Sometimes you know in advance that what you write is going to elicit a response.

But there are other times when the response is totally unexpected. And that's what this week's column is about.

What I'm talking about is the column I wrote a couple of weeks ago about how all us DINKS (Double Income, No Kids) take it in the ear at Christmas time. How we get stuck buying thousands of dollars worth of gifts for our nieces and nephews, and get nothing in return.

Well, let me tell you! The response was overwhelming.

Judged on the basis of the reaction to that particular column I can only conclude that Northville is populated by hundreds of DINKS who, as one writer put it, "always get short changed at Christmas."

Judged on the basis of the reaction to that particular column I can only conclude that Northville is sorely in need of a support group for brother and sister DINKS, a group that will enable us to share our trials and tribulations and, hopefully, find solace in the fact that we are not alone - that there are others who must bear the same heavy burden that we do.

Let's look at one letter in particular. (The truth is that it was the only letter I received, but why let the facts stand in the way of an otherwise sad story?)

We are constantly buying birthday and Christmas presents for our numerous nieces and nephews," wrote Marilyn Iskra, who said she and her DINK husband may send copies of the original column to all their relatives.

"And each one of them," continued Marilyn, "has such a collection of toys that their living rooms at Christmas look like the stock room at Children's Palace."

Right/write on, Marilyn. You hit the nail on the head with that one. How about the stock room at Toys 'R Us?

Marilyn went on to report that one of her sisters went so far as to send our invitations for her son's two-and-a-half year birthday party.

And when her sister suggested that Marilyn could have birthday parties for her dogs and cats, well . . . that was too much. "Besides," wrote Marilyn, "my relatives would have to buy some pretty expensive squeaky toys for my two dogs and catnip mice for my two cats to catch up with all the presents their kids have gotten from us over the years.

"Maybe I could register my pets at Hudsons." she continued. They do need an eight-piece table setting of fine china, and expensive silver, and luggage, etc. Maybe you could even loan me a couple of your cats, and we could have parties for my cats' friends. It's only fair, right?

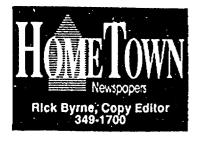

"Us DINKS have to stick together!"

As you can see from Marilyn's letter, it's not easy being a DINK. People - relatives, no less - are always trying to take advantage of us. Something has to be done, and done now.

Frankly, I think a support group may be the answer. We could get together every so often to share stories and plan a public relations campaign to draw attention to our plight. We can pressure our legislators. We can march on Lansing.

Okay, fellow DINKS, so how do we get started? Simply write a letter about your horror stories and sent it to me here at The Record, 104 W. Main, Northville, MI 48167.

Like my close personal friend Marilyn said, "Us DINKS have to stick together."

Drinking wine in moderation benefits health

We don't watch TV often. However, if there was one time we wished we had the tube tuned to "60 Minutes," it was Sunday, Nov. 17.

We're assuming that like us, many of you were busy that evening and missed the "French Paradox" segment exploring the benefits of moderate wine and alcohol consumption.

A transcript of the topic reveals interviews with leading French and American researchers. Morley Safer highlighted the following points as possible reasons for the up to 40 percent lower incidence of coronary heart disease among the French, as compared to Americans:

• The French regularly eat three meals a day, consume more fresh foods and do not snack between meals.

• The French put more emphasis on food preparation and enjoyment.

 Alcohol, particularly red wine, is consumed in moderation as part of French midday and evening meals.

"Several things contribute to heart attacks," Safer commented. "Diet, of course, is one of them. So why is it that the French, who eat 30 percent more fat than we do, suffer fewer heart attacks, even though they smoke more and exercise less?

"If you're a middle-aged American man, your chances of dying of a heart attack are three times greater than a Frenchman of the same age. It's obvious that the French are doing something right, something Americans are not doing."

A voice-over took the viewer to Lyon, the gastronomic capital of France. Food preparation in this city of 2,600 restaurants, 2,300 meat shops and 115 retail wine outlets would send the American Heart Association into cardiac arrestl

Dr. Astier-Dumas, a Parislan nutritionist and head of the Lyon Centre, believes that the difference is eating habits. "In the U.S. generally, people are going to eat something every two hours," he contends.

Safer comments that American nutritionists agree that dairy fat; including cheese, is a major enemy to a healthy heart. The annual French per capita consumption of cheese is 40 pounds. Does cheese deserve its bad reputation?

Dr. Serge Reynaud also from Lyon Centre has spent 15 years searching for an answer. He maintains milk is the culprit. "Surveys in different countries show a very, very strong relationship between the intake of milk and the mortality rate from heart disease; while for cheese, there's no relationship at all," Reynaud reports.

He has experimented with the relationship in rats and found that cheese-fed rats eliminated virtually all the dairy lat in their leces. Dissec tions determined that milk-fed rats' arteries

Irish whiskey punch packs winter wallop

It is hard to believe that one year ago that I was taking a classical cooking class in Ireland.

There hasn't been a time that I've thought about the trip that I didn't have a desire to return. There was wonderful fresh salmon, considered the best in the world; great breakfasts with butter that tastes like butter should: homemade jams; thick rashers of bacon; and the best bread I've ever had.

Food was only a small part of the experience. The beautiful countryside and people make up the magnitude of our memories. The bed and breakfast route is almost a necessity unless yuou are willing to pay mucho bucks for fairly mediocre rooms. I realized the first night how spoiled we are when it comes to lodging in the states.

It was unseasonably cold on the emerald isle last January. They had not seen snow for years. Well, it never stopped. Obviously, with snow comes dampness and cold. When checking into a B & B, the proprietor's first duty is to stoke up the furnace. The Irish are very used to living without central heat. It has just become popular over the last few years. There is no such thing as a storm window. The flerce wind whips through the uninsulated frames, further diminishing the room's comfort level. The first thing that came to mind was to take a hot shower, get into some warm clothes and curl up under an Irish woolen blanket.

No way. Yes, there was a shower. No, the water wasn't hot. I was devastated. Tired, cold, shivering and shivering, I tried crawling into bed, but that didn't work either. The wind screaming around the corners of the house was a psychological disaster. It was time to go check out some eateries. That would ease the pain.

We had landed 10 hours earlier and driven from Dublin to Limerick city. Luckily the plane had made an early morning stop in Shannon, and the famous airport bar, the home of Irish coffee, was open. The coffee was piping hot, the belt of booze warming, and the fresh whipped cream a delight. Too bad the layover time only allowed for one.

I noticed that many of the old-timers were sipping on a hot water beverage with lemon and cloves. As my stay went on I would learn more about this concoction.

Upon arrival in Dublin, we procured our rental car and set off for the adventure of a lifetime. The car was toy-like. Fuel is exorbitant (which is why there is little heat), so the cars are purposely runty. Driving is no minimal feat. The driver is on the opposite side of the car on the wrong side of the road. In other words, backwards.

There were some tense times those first few days. The roads are narrow; no superhighways here. When we made it to our destination, it was time to do some exploring.

On the recommendation of the owner of the B & B, we ended up in a restaurant named "The Texas Steak-Out." We were dubious, but decided to give it a try. A big. crackling fireplace greeted us as we entered. We opted to have cocktails relaxing on a couch within the range of its warmth. Finally, heat. Things were looking up.

Then began the meal. There was nothing "Texas" about it except the portions. There was excellent seafood, great bread and wonderful service. It was a delight.

Then we were back to the fire for a nightcap. I inquired about the drink I had seen earlier at Shannon. "Hot whiskey punch." was the reply.

It is more popular even than Irish coffee. Every pub has a kettle going with boiling water and the garnish of lemon and cloves ready. I tried it. The "poonce" became my extra sweater for the next 10 days. It was warming, great for the weather we'd been experiencing. It's simple and satisfying. Here is our recipe.

MICHIGAN TRAVEL: The Michigan Travel Bureau and Farmer Jack/A & Phave produced a new Michigan Travel Calendar that will be distributed free at the grocery stores. The calendar, designed to help promote Michigan tourism, contains many interesting facts about the state.

Did you know that Michigan has over 40 downhill ski resorts, 4,200 miles of groomed snomobile trails and 1,500 kilometers of groomed cross-country trails? Or that there is a continuous 3.200-mile freshwater "seacoast" bordering Michigan? At any point inside state boundaries, you are only six miles from one of its 11,000 inland lakes or from its 36,000 miles of rivers and streams.

For information about this book and other holiday offerings at Farmer Jack/A & P. contact Elise Minch, 644-5140.

RED LOBSTER RECIPES: Red Lobster restaurants are offering free seafood recipes for entertaining. The brochure is available at all Red Lobster restaurants, or may be requested by mail by sending a selfaddressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (4 x 91/2 inches) to "Entertaining Ideas," P.O. FOOD GUIDE: Bring on Healthy Food Choices! Oakland County Health Division has updated the American Red Cross Food Wheel for healthful eating. The revision is the work of the Health Division's registered dietitians. The colorful one page handout features plenty of grains, fruits and vegetables.

Are you confused about fats? Where are they hidden? How do make trade offs? The new Food Wheel will show you how. A special section describes fat serving sizes.

The guide is based on the new U.S. Deparment of Agriculture and Health and Human Services Dietary Guidelines for Americans and the American Cancer Society recommendations. The daily plan is easy to follow. It show suggested numbers of servings from each food group for different ages.

are superior to those in vinegar. Freeze-dried green peppercoms are much more convenient and longlasting but the flavor is not as good. • Grinders: Feinschmeckers, who argue about almost everything in the culinary field, are as one in urging that black and white pepper be freshly ground.

The shaker should give way to the peppermill in both kitchen and dining room. Many types of peppermills are now on the market, and there are even pocket-sized models for the discriminating to carry with them.

The best type of mill allows the user to adjust the grind from fine to coarse.

In grinding pepper, don't turn the knob back and forth; turn in consistently in one direction or the other. This most familiar of spices, often an accent, can play a main role. Pepper apppears in countless dishes, almost as ubiquitously as its traditional partner, salt. But there are some recipes that highlight the use of both true pepper and some of its namesakes.

One of the classic uses in the French kitchen is beefstake coated with coarsely ground black pepper and then sauteed until done to taste. The dish is often flamed with brandy. The noted Provencal chef Roger Verge has used these flavors in a new way:

FILET OF BEEF WITH RAISIN AND PEPPER SAUCE

1/2 cup golden seedless raisins

- 1/4 cup Armagnae or brandy
- 1½ pounds of beef filet, cut into steaks of desired thickness

2 tablespoons coarsely crushed black peppercorns (see note)

Salt

Butter, cooking oil % cup strong beef stock or bouillon

Yields 4 to 6 servings Bring raisins to boil in water and simmer for about five minutes. Drain well, rinse in cold water and drain again. Place a small container with Armagnac and set aside.

Roll steaks in crushed peppercorns. Press peppercorns into meat so they will adhere. Sprinkle steaks lightly with salt.

Heat butter and cooking oil in a frying pan and saute steaks over medium heat until done to taste. Reserve.

Pour raisins and their soaking liquid into pan. Stand well back, because alcohol might flame up. Stir to release coagulated juices from pan. Add beef stock and reduce somewhat over brisk heat. Reduction has gone far enough when the sauce has pronounced flavor. If you wish to thicken sauce in Verge's manner, beat in 2 tablespoons butter a little at a time off heat.

Serve the steaks with the sauce. Verge accompanies this dish with fresh spinach, and fried potatoes would be excellent.

Note: To crush pepercorns, place a layer on paper towels and roll and peppercorns also are available in serve. markets, but these are subject to loss of flavor as with ground pepper.

Rinse chicken inside and out, removing packages of giblets. (The giblets and scraps from chicken can be used to make stock.) Stuff chicken with chopped onion and carrot. together with sprigs of fresh herbs, such as thyme, parsley and bay leaf. This stuffing is for flavoring: it is not to be eaten. Truss chicken and rub with mixture of softened butter and cooking oil.

This is the formula for determining the cooking time: Allow 45 minutes plus 7 minutes per pound.

A 4-pound chicken will thus take about an hour and 15 minutes. Chicken is done when the last juices drained from cavity are clear and no longer red. Remove chicken to a carving board. While chicken is resting, make sauce: Heat 1/4 cup of cognac in small saucepan with pink and green peppercorns. Stand well back in case it flames up. Simmer until you can no longer detect alcohol fumes.

Pour fat from chicken roasting pan and pour in remaining cognac. Again, stand well back.

Use cognac to release coagulated juices from pan. If pan is heat-proof, place it over a flame as you do this. Otherwise, pour into another saucepan. Simmer cognac and chicken juices until somewhat thickened. Strain into cognac-peppercorn mixture and bring to simmer. Make sure that mixture no longer tastes of alcohol.

Add chicken stock and reduce slightly. Add cream, adjust season-ing. Carve chicken and serve with sauce, Verdon advises a complex garnish of green beans, mushrooms, turnips and zucchini, any one or two of which wold be a good choice. As a starch, serve steamed rice.

This rather less elaborate preparation exploits the affinity of pepper for poultry.

where clogged, while those of cheesefed rats were clear.

OK, we get the message about cheese, but what about all the butter and cream the French consume in their food preparations?

"My explanation is, of course, the consumption of alcohol," maintains Reynaud. "It's well-documented that a moderate intake of alcohol prevents coronary heart disease by as much as 50 percent. There is no other drug as efficient as moderate intake of alcohol. By moderate, I mean a few glasses of wine per day."

Safer goes on to comment that consumption of wine per capita in France is higher than anywhere else in the world — this is principally red wine. U.S. consumption is among the lowest. In France, wine is part of every lunch and dinner.

If the U.S. is among the lowest consumers of red wine in the world, it is lunch or dinner and stop snacking!

among the highest victims of heart attack, about one million deaths annually. The section of the country that consumes the least wine is known by doctors as Stroke Alley, the so-called "Bible Belt," which ignores the admonition of St. Paul to Timothy, "Use a little wine for thy sto-mach's sake and thine other infirmities."

The evidence of the benefits of moderate consumption of alcohol continues to grow. As part of a continuing study, researchers at the Harvard School of Public Health studied 44,000 Americans between 40 and 75 years old and found that those who drank light to moderate amounts of alcohol had a 25-40 percent less chance of developing heart disease.

Remember, moderate is defined as two drinks a day - make it red wine. Enjoy its flavor with real cheese at

Not all the attractions at Plymouth's 10th annual International Ice Sculpture Spectacular will be of the chilly variety.

On tap for Jan. 15-20 at Saxton's show room at 587 Ann Arbor Trail is the ice festival's third annual statewide fine arts competition, entitled "Michigan Art '92."

It'll showcase the works of 23 artists from throughout Michigan, from Plymouth to the Upper Peninsula.

Serving as juror is Mary Stevenson, assistant curator of 20th century art at the Detroit Institute of Arts. "The event is back after a two-year hiatus," said Kathy Savitskie, executive director of the Plymouth Arts Council.

The juried competition will feature 31 creations representing all media chosen from more than 50 entries. The show is free, but donations are appreciated, said Savitskie.

Artists will compete for cash awards totalling $2,000. funded by Michigan National Bank, public donations and the arts council.

Michigan Art '92 will be launched at a luncheon set for 11:30 a.m., Monday, Jan. 13 at Cafe Bon Homme on Penniman Ave. in Plymouth. "Mary Stevenson will talk about what goes into doing a fine arts competition, and what she looks for as she juries," said Savitskie.

Tickets for the arts luncheon are $15. Reservations are necessary and may be made by calling the arts council at 455-5260.

Sting Ray III's dramatically angled headlights point up the car's styling

Corvette Sting RayIII surges ahead

The Chevrolet Corvette Sting Ray III concept car incorporates the best of past Corvettes while surging into the future.

Born at General Motors' Advanced Concept Center in California, Sting Ray III represents a substantial change from the already exotic Corvette platform. A coll-over-shock front suspension design replaces the transverse leaf spring version.

The design contemplates use of a sophisticated and powerful engine usually found in a Corvette. The gearbox is positioned between the rear wheels for more even weight distribution.

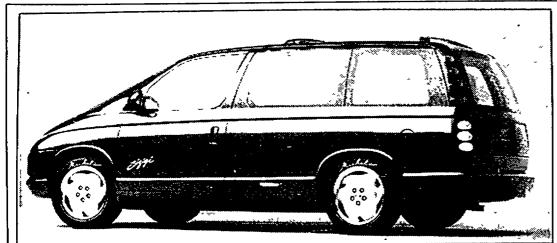

And Sting Ray III's stance is even more aggressive than a production Corvette. The wheelbase is nearly seven inches longer, yet the overall length is two inches shorter.

Lower side sills ease entry and exit and passenger room is greater.

From the front, Sting Ray III's dramatically angled headlights point up the car's extraordinary styling. Even the color is different — dark black cherry.

Inside, there's more room and a cockpit-like area for the driver. Efforts at optimizing driver comfort include the outside armrest being on the seat rather than the door. The seat itself is fixed, but the pedals move with a memory for preset positions. The height of the center console can be adjusted.

instruments are viewed over the steering wheel rather than through it.

Chevrolet's Sizigi is a future possibility for family transportation

Chevrolet Sizigi: A future possibility

Chevrolet will unveil Sizigi, a concept Lumina allpurpose vehicle, at the Detroit auto show.

Presented as a future possibility for family transportation, Sizigi has advanced convenience and flexibility. Special features include reversible seats, track seating, dual sunroofs, a sliding table with a TV and VCR. a credit-card-type ignition, hidden running boards and halo lighting.

Track seating allows the second and third row of seats to slide forward to provide storage space. Or the seats can be removed for even more cargo room. Driver and passenger seats also have storage space underneath.

The second row of seats revolves 360 degrees so that rear passengers can use a table that slides along a track down the center of the van. The driver isn't disturbed by halo lighting around the perimeter of the passenger area.

Outside, Sigizi has a rounded nose and a curved glass windshield. Running boards provide easy enfrance and exit.

Sound systems benefit from high-tech gadgets

By MIKE DALE ecial Write

Function follows form, they say. Remember when an automobile sound system consisted of an analog AM radio and a monaural speaker? Life was simpler then, too.

Today's high-tech gimmickry allows a car sound system to play enough non-stop music for a day's driving, decipher your location, reveal existing local radio stations, baille would-be thieves and convert your automobile into Carnegie Hall.

A car's stereo system can be as big a selling point as a multi-valve engine. The spoils: slashed prices on CD players; the development of affordable digital signal processors (DSP), and speakers boasting separate woofers and tweeters.

But whether you're a new-car buyer deciding whether to splurge on a factory audio system or own an older model but are unhappy with an obsolete sound system, be forewarned.

Choosing audio for your car is trickler than a home-bound system.

Why? Because the interior of a car is a far cry. acoustically, from an audio dealer's showroom -ararified world of sound indeed.

The passenger compartment, for example, make variations in the musical spectrum different from what you hear at home. And the music fights for attention against wind, road and engine noise.

RADIO/TAPE PLAYERS

Not to belabor the past, but it wasn't so many years ago that most car/radio tape players offered only a single tone-control knob, which adjusted treble/bass (you still might have one).

Standard features now include digital tuning with presets - programmable buttons that allow you to lock in 12 to 30 radio stations - and station scan/seek buttons that give newcomers to any locale a chance to see what radio stations the area has to offer.

Tape players, meantime, although waning in popularity because of the affordability of in dash CD players, boast standard features such as auto reverse and song selection scan.

Models favored by Consumer Reports magazine for ease of use and affordability include: Sony XR-7280; Pioneer KEH-5100QR, and Sherwood XR-2704.

COMPACT DISC PLAYERS

Supply-meeting-demand has made car stereo CD players available at in-dash tape player prices, averaging $500, but often on sale for $299.

A CD player doesn't have to be installed indash, either. Personal portable players can be inserted by hooking them up to a car radio's cassette tape player.

Many in-dash AM/FM cassette players have front panel jacks specifically made for use with portable CDs. Manufacturers include JVC, Panasonic, Profile, Proton, Radio Shack and Sansui.

Sony, in fact, says one-third of all CD portables are used this way. Portables are commonly available for less than $300. They can even be plugged into a home stereo system.

.If you don't want to fuss with discs and plastic boxes while driving, higher-end audiophiles are opting for multiple-disc changers, which mount in the trunk but are controlled by the in-dash receiver.

LOUDSPEAKERS

Those on a severe budget can greatly enhance their mobile sound systems by simply replacing their speakers, which come in oval, rectangular and round shapes, and various sizes (as measured by how many watts of power they can accommodate).

Your first order of business when considering new speakers is to determine how much amplification your in-dash receiver/amplifier pumps out. Also decipher how you will mount the speakers for the particular make and model of your automobile.

An example: Hatchbacks and wagons contain no trunk enclosures, per se, so you must settle for door or kick-panel mounting. Do your homework before you shop.

Top 6-by-9-inch speakers rated by Consumer Reports include: Jensen JXL693; Roadmaster RS 1990; Kenwood KFC-6982, and Polk Audio MM-6920. Stellar 5-inch performers; Polk Audio MM-3a; Radio Shack 12-1708; Pioneer Maxdal TSA1390, and Boston Acoustics 757.

AMPLIFIERS

Increasing power in your stereo system will help overcome background road noise and preserve dynamic variances from soft to loud to make the music "live."

Add-on amplifiers amplify the signal as cleanly as possible, while adding an absolute minimum amount of distortion and noise.

Amps usually pump out anywhere from 25-100 watts per channel, besting the job of any selfpowered in-dash units.

DIGITAL SIGNAL PROCESSING

To repeat, automobiles are terrific places for sound because music reflects off the glass and is absorbed by the seats, not to mention amblent road noise.

That's where DSP comes in. Signal processors digitally delay sound waves for fractions of seconds, which results in broader "sound stages," thereby eliminating the need to lean into the middle of your car at every stop light to hear the best sound.

In fact, DSP units offer special effects or ambience programs, such as Hall Chamber, Church. Stadium, Jazz Club, Rock Concert, Disco and Live House. Just imagine Frank Sinatra is a DSPinduced disco.

Currently the rage among obsessed audiophiles. prices on DSP equipment will fall (now $600-$1,500) and new features will appear and signal processing will become as commonplace as AM/FM cassettes.

Stereo Review magazine lists three favorites: the Clarion DSP-959E, the Eclipse EQS-1001 and the Technics DS3000.

PHONE HOME

Newfangled automobile technology isn't limited to audio systems.

The missing link from cars as entertainment centers appears to be automobiles as offices with car phones.

Little more than a novelty several years ago, car phones are being installed at the rate of 100,000 per month, according to the Cellular Telecommunications Industry Association.

The FEV was specifically as an electric vehicle featuring an aerodynamic design

Nissan FEV: Future electric vehicle

Detroit will see the North American introduction of Nissan's new Future Electric Vehicle (FEV) at the North American International Auto Show.

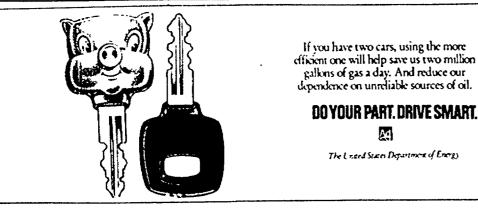

The FEV is an urban family car that can be recharged to 40 percent capacity in six minutes and 100 percent capacity in under 15 minutes, one-fifth to onefourth the time of conventional systems.

The concept vehicle is a 2 + P 2 coupe with sufficient range for normal daily urban usage. It has creature comforts and conveniences to which car buyers are accustomed, including ample interior and luggage space.

The FEV was specifically designed as an electric vehicle and features an aerodynamic design.

Powered by an advanced high torque electric motor. the coupe provides performance comparable to today's high mileage economy cars. It boasts a top speed of 81 mph and a cruising range of 100 miles at approximately 45 mph.

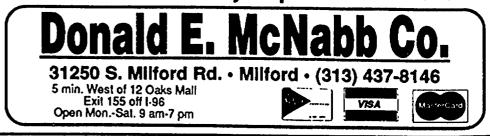

The FEV's advanced Super Quick Charging battery system, weighing only half as much as conventional electric car batteries, not only reduces re-charging time, but cuts vehicle weight and increases range

A new truck in the driveway?

Domestic automakers unveil new models, options, upgrades

By PETER D. DU PRE pecial Writer

Over the past few years, the light truck and van market has been the only real growth area that many manufacturers have had.

Sales of full-size pickups, compact trucks, sport utilities and minivans have been strong. Many people have found that the practicality and comfort of today's trucks make them near-ideal vehicles.

While most of the big changes in the import trucks were made during the past couple of years, 1992 is important for the changes domestic manufacturers are offering. New models, options and upgrades abound, making this an excellent time to consider parking a new truck in your driveway.

GENERAL MOTORS

The focus at General Motors has been to continue model development on the full-size trucks so that they all share styling and the full-frame construction of the current full-size pickup line. To that end, Chevy and GMC are introducing new-bodied Suburban, Blazer/Jimmy and Crew Cab versions.

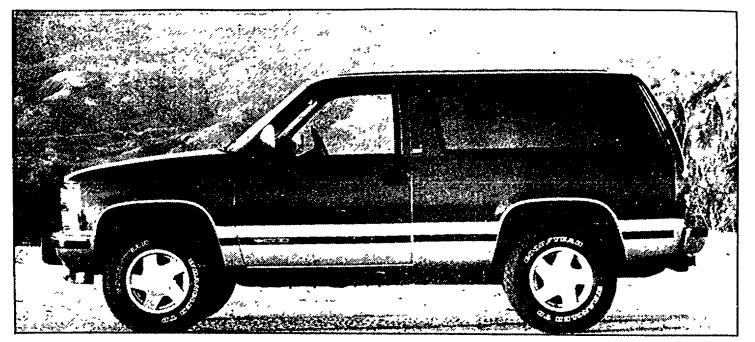

In addition, the popular Chevrolet Lumina APV line (along with Pontiac Transport and Oldsmobile Silhouette) gets a big power boost when ordered with the new optional 3800 V6 engine and four-speed overdrive automatic transmission - a gain of 45 hp over the standard engine.

Additionally, Astro minivan and S-10/S15 pickup and utility vehicles will be available with a new 200-hp version of GM's 4.3-liter Vortec V6 engine.

Finally, the Olds Bravada gets a new balance-shaft in its 4.3 liter engine for smoother running.

And for larger children, the seat is easily transformed into a booster for use with the minivan's standard rear shoulder harness.

The Proteo's glass surface cuts the solar energy transmitted inside the car

Alfa Romeo Proteo makes debut

Developed in 18 months by fully computerized design systems, the Alfa Romeo Proteo is slated to make its North American introduction in Detroit.

The Alfa Romeo concept car was conceived as a twoseater performance sports car.

A cross between a coupe and convertible, the Proteo was designed with a completely automatic system to remove the roof and store it out of sight. The hydraulic system is capable of reassembling the roof automatically.

The vehicle has a transverse six-cylinder, 24-valve, naturally aspirated engine, with three-way catalytic converter and lambda sensor.

The Proteo's glass surface — the single roof/rear window and side window unit — was built with special Solextra solar control glass, cutting the solar energy transmitted inside the car to 40-42 percent, compared to 63 percent achieved through the use of normal tinted glass.

Salsa's glass treatment includes a bronze-colored windshield

Pontiac's Salsa: Chameleon-like

Pontiac's Salsa, Pontiac's seventh concept car in as many years, will make its worldwide introduction in Detroit.

The concept car features chameleon-like transformations from an all-weather, five-seat hatchback to a five-seat convertible or a two-seat panel delivery.

The fluorescent orange concept vehicle measures 70 inches at front and rear tires and 155.6 inches front to back.

Salsa's glass treatment includes a bronze-colored windshield along with driver and front passenger windows that feature outside rearview mirrors mounted right on the glass. It also has dual-intensity neon stop, turn and tail lamps enclosed in black lenses.

The sliding cargo drawer and drop gate, which can be opened when the drawer is fully extended, makes for easy rear storage. The drawer slides in and out and can be latched on each tooth of its track to lock in a number of positions.

The HSR-III has been designed for greater side-impact safety

Mitsubishi meets changing needs

The Mitsubishi HSR-III concept car will be seen for the first time in North America at the North American International Auto Show in Detroit.

The concept car is third in a series by Mitsubishi, named HSR for Human Science Resource — an attempt to mold the needs of car drivers around the changes taking place in the environment.

Small is the underlying theme to the HSR-III. The overall dimensions are 4.14 meters long, 1.75 meters wide and 1.13 meters high. The wheelbase is 2.5 meters with a vehicle weight of 1100 kg, and seating for **).

The HSR-III has gull-wing type doors, which open and close about hinges at the waist and door mirror sections. Designed for greater side-impact safety, the doors are shaped like and have characteristics similar to a rubber ball, proposing improved occupant and pedestrian safety.

The cockpit is absent of accelerator and brake pedals. Lever-type controls on the steering wheel replace the pedals, enabling the driver to operate the vehicle almost as if it were a motorcycle.

The AVX-IV concept vehicle is powered by Toyota's experimental S-2 804 cc two-stroke engine

Toyota AVX-IV: Ultra-lightweight

The Toyota AVX-IV concept vehicle will be the highlight of a display focusing on the automobile and the environment.

The AVX-IV, making its North American introduction in Detroit, is an ultra-lightweight commuter designed to give high fuel economy without sacrificing driving performance and comfort.

It is powered by Toyota's experimental S-2 804 cc two-stroke engine. Aluminum, magnesium and other lightweight materials are used extensively in AVX-IV's body.

Other features of the environmental exhibit include Toyota's chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) refrigerant recovery machine, designed to remove ozone-threatening CFCs from air conditioning systems before servicing and a new environmentally sound coolant, HFC-134a, which will be used in all new Toyota vehicles equipped with air conditioning by 1994.

"Against Her Will" Finds

Matthau in top form

Slow start yields fascinating story

By Steven Alan McGaw

Multiple award-winner Walter Matthau is seen all too rarely on television, so it's good to report that his latest project for the small screen is as good as the last.

In 1990, Matthau starred in "The Incident," playing small-town lawyer Harmon Cobb. Harry Morgan played irascible Judge Stoddard Bell and Susan Blakely costarred as Harmon's daughter-inlaw, Billie. "The Incident" was praised by critics and viewers alike and won the Emmy for Outstanding Dramatic Special. Brothers Michael and James Norell, who scripted the film, were honored with Christopher and Writers Guild awards.

Now, Harmon Cobb returns, when CBS presents "Against Her Will: An Incident in Baltimore" on Sunday, Jan. 19. Matthau reprises his role, as do Morgan and Blakely. Delbert Mann directs from a teleplay by the Norells.

In 1947, Harmon moves to Baltimore to take a position with Judge Bell, now retired.

'GH' casting a revolving door

Accompanying him are Billie (widowed in the last film) and his granddaughter, Nancy. Although grateful for the opportunity, Harmon soon finds the practice of civil law dull and unfulfilling. Then, by chance, he meets an anguished young man and learns of Marika. Five years previously, the young woman had voluntarily committed herself to a state hospital to be treated for depression. (A psychiatrist had advised the movie, since private care was unaffordable.) Trouble is, now they won't let her out. Her angry, devoted fiance implores Harmon to free Marika from the asylum. But how?

Harmon's task is complicated because of Maryland's status as a commonwealth, which adheres to "sovereign immunity"; the state cannot be sued. An arduous search through history may reveal a precedent allowing him to bring suit, but he still will have to convince the jury Marika is "cured" or that the hospital is unfit.

The Norell brothers' skillful script balances intelligence with strong emotional resonance.

is, many of them don't succeed, and with the economy like it is, it's a bad time to be out of a job.

In answer to your question, Finola Hughes, who plays Anna, has left to work on a prime-time movie, but there is a chance she will be back when the project is finished.

Harmon still grieves over his son's wartime death: his resentment when Billie starts dating comes as no surprise. The alternately warm and combative relationship between Harmon and crusty Judge Bell is fascinating, particularly as the judge's real reason for taking Harmon into his practice comes to light. When Harmon meets Marika in the refurbished coal bin that is her room at Walnut Hill, he is stunned by what he encounters: a place of ceaseless noise and palpable misery.

The acting in "Against Her Will" is first-rate. Matthau endows Cobb with a craggy nobility, making him a plain-spoken soldier for justice. Morgan is an endearing curmudgeon as Judge Bell and Susan Blakely fares well as Billie. Among supporting players, Barton Heyman is brilliant as Donald, another "patient" and Marika's devoted friend. Heyman's timid testimony is moving and powerful.

Viewers should be advised that "Against Her Will" starts slowly and seems umpromising. Once it catches fire, however (in a fine clash between Matthau and Morgan), the movie never stops and emerges as a vivid reminder of what television is capable of achieving.

Dear Candace: What is going on with my favorite soap, General Hospital? People are leaving right and left, and it seems like every week they take off on a totally different story line. I just found out Finola Hughes and Tristan Rogers are leaving. Once they are gone, I don't think I'll want to watch it any more. Why are they leaving, and why is there a new Dominique? —A fan in Texas.

Dear Reader: At the beginning of each new year, we see a mass exodus of soap stars who think they are going to hit it big in prime time. The sad truth Tristin Rogers (Robert) is leaving to work on other projects. He was scheduled to leave this time last year, but stayed on after finding out Gloria Monty was coming back as executive producer.

Emma Samms is coming back to the show as Holly Scorpio, and it will be interesting to see how Monty works all this in. David Lewis, who plays Edward Quartermaine, is also back and adds a great deal of humor to the show.

As far as Dominique is concerned, Monty wanted to take the character in role.

Many of you have also written in about Peter Reckell, who plays Bo Brady on Days of Our Lives. Yes, he really is leaving the soap, and it is possible that the producers will recast the part. Patsy Pease is also leaving Days, and it is doubtful she will return.

And yes, that is Joanna Johnson (the ex-Caroline) as Faith on The Bold and the Beautiful. Johnson was lured back by executive producer Bill Bell with a really hot story line. It is obvious by the amount of mail I've received about her that fans are glad to see her back. e. TV Listing Inc. Page 4
