Angry residents send clear signal to Omnicom

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Last week's public message to Omnicom Cablevision officials was clear and unambiguous: Many Northville Township residents are turned off by their local cable television outlet.

Residents attending a Jan. 21 township public hearing criticized Omnicom for its perceived high prices, frequent outages and poor customer service.

About two dozen residents showed up to complain about Omnicom during the township's first real step in a negotiation process that will decide whether the township sticks with Omnicom or seeks another television outlet.

Omnicom's exclusive, 15-year contract with Northville Township and four nearby communities — including Northville city — expires in 1994, and local governments must follow an involved three-phase process under guidelines set by the federal Cable Act of 1984.

Step one was the public hearing, an opportunity for grass roots commentary. Township residents were not bashful when given the chance to speak out.

Mike Weaver, a Northville Colony Estates resident, charged that Omnicom's service does not live up to its rate structure, which Omnicom officials admit is slightly higher than the local average.

Weaver said Omnicom is "woefully inadequate, considering this company has a monopoly in our area."

His comments were echoed by others that trooped to the public hearing.

"I think it's ridiculous they raise their rates every year like the robin comes around," said Bernice Henk. "I represent Kings Mill and there are a lot of people (there) not satisfied."

Leonard Kierszkowski, of Northridge Farms Homeowners Association, compared Omnicom's rates and services to other local cable outlets. Omnicom's costs were much higher than the example Kierszkowski quoted.

"Their rates are way out of line and we need relief from that," he said.

Harry Birney, of Highland Lakes, targeted high prices and suggested Omnicom do a better job of informing senior citizens about discount cable rates.

"The cable is constantly out, all the time," she said. "I've never in my entire life seen a worse cable company."

Did Omnicom get the picture? The company and residents are at least on the same frequency, said Lisa Boland, Omnicom general manager.

"We listened very intently to their comments and are looking at every one very intently," she said, adding that "unhappy customers are the ones that will come to a public hearing."

Boland defended Omnicom's rate structure, and said

Snippets of life for shop cut by fire

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

At least one business burned by last week's Wagon Wheel fire has already risen from the flames.

Hair stylists from Pam's Cut Above, the salon at the Wagon Wheel Lounge and Hotel that was destroyed during the Jan. 21 fire, are still wielding their shears at other local salons.

Pam Manza, owner of the 212 S. Main St. salon, said Studio 424 at 424 S. Main St. has taken her and another stylist in. Three other Cut Above stylists have gone to The Cutting Edge, at 135 W. Dunlap.

"They've just been really accommodating," Manza said. "I tell you, people come through when you don't expect it."

Manza first learned of the fire when she was called and told that her business had burned at 6 a.m. that day. "It was a little tough to wake up to that, I'll tell you," she said. "But I don't think you expect the worse. You show up and expect that nothing much happened."

Seeing the building later that morning brought home the extent of the damage.

"I lost it all. In fact, I had my insurance person there today and ... there's nothing salvageable at all," she said Thursday.

"Every time you walk in it again, you get a sick feeling about it."

Manza said her business had built up a large clientele during its years at the Wagon Wheel location.

"I've been there for eight years, so it wasn't like we weren't established. We were well established," she said.

But the stylist wants to assure her customers that she continues to do business despite the fire.

"I just would like people to know that I'm still in business and we're just down the street ... I don't want people to think that we deserted them," she said.

"I lost the business. I can't lose the clientele."

Parenting workshop offers insight

By SHARON CONDRON

The theory that birth order affects a child's perception and shapes his or her personality is the subject of one of four lectures included in the third annual Northville parent education workshop, Wednesday Jan. 29.

For Virginia Baumgartner, a family and youth counselor, the theory has practical application but shouldn't be a means for labeling or categorizing a child.

"It's not cut in stone. It is more of a role assigned in the family structure and more of an influence rather than an absolute, cut-and-dry thing," Baumgartner said.

As part of the annual event, Baumgartner will be discussing the relevance of birth order and its impact on child and adolescent personality as part of the Northville Council Parent Teachers Association's free workshop next Wednesday at Northville High school from 7-9:30 p.m.

Baumgartner, a former Northville schools' social worker who is now in private practice in Southfield, said according to the birth order theory, the oldest child is often the one who is most responsible and the most serious. The middle child is often labeled the "chief negotiator" because he or she will often talk his or her way through situations, and the youngest child is the most accommodating and flexible one of the bunch.

Birth order and personality are intertwined and often affect relationships between parents and siblings in the family structure, Baumgartner said. In addition, a parent who shares a birth position with his or her child, may in some circumstances either favor that child or in other cases fault him or her simply because of birth positioning and the personality traits associated with that placement, she said.

The purpose of the annual workshop, its organizers say, is to inform parents of the issues that affect their kids and offer them advice on how to

Lack of recreation space bemoaned

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

A lack of money and land available for recreational uses, complicated by leased property being devoured by developers, is creating a deficiency in park land and recreational facilities available to Northville residents.

But despite those deficiencies, the Northville recreation commission is proceeding with drafting a 5-year master plan which could provide more soccer and baseball fields, park land and green space, and add programs by 1997.

Right off the bat, in an effort to keep cut costs, Northville Recreation Commission has hired an intern from Wayne State University, rather than commissioning an expensive outside firm, to draft its 5-year master plan.

The intern will save the department an estimated $4,000 in planning expenses according to Traci Gottschalk, the director of parks and recreation.

"We have no money ... It's tough, what do you do with no money. How do you plan a 5-year master plan without money?" Gottschalk told commissioners at the second of two public hearings seeking input on the plan Tuesday, Jan. 21.

Pressure is mounting too as the deadline for state grant applications comes due April 1.

Between now and then, the department has to identify its wish list, draft a plan, and get it approved by the city and township in time to meet the deadline for grant application.

Once specific projects are identified in the master plan, some may be eligible for grant money under the state's Land and Water Conservation Trust Fund or the Michigan Trust Fund.

"We haven't identified any projects in the master plan yet, we are waiting to hear from people in the community before we draft the plan," Gottschalk said.

O'Brien dropped from commission in latest shake-up

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Barbara O'Brien's tenure on the Northville Township planning commission has ended.

And reminiscent of other moments during her three-year term, O'Brien's departure was marked by controversy and political storm clouds.

O'Brien was dismissed from her planning commission seat Jan. 21 when four township board members refused to support Supervisor Betty Lennox's recommendation that O'Brien be appointed to a second three-year term.

Two new planning commissioners were appointed to the seven-member board, and one other nominee was rejected. The commission now counts only five members, with its next meeting set for tomorrow (Jan. 28).

One board member told O'Brien his no confidence vote was based on the belief that the planning commission "had become a political group."

"One concern I had (was that) there were some political things happening," said Trustee James Nowka, who joined Clerk Tom Cook, Treasurer Jack Hosmer, and Trustee Richard Allen in opposing O'Brien's nomination.

Nowka would not elaborate when asked to explain his comments.

Trustees Donald Williams and Thomas Handyside were absent.

O'Brien had actively sought reappointment to the planning commission after her term expired last December. She attended the board's meeting last week and was not pleased with the board's decision, although she did agree with Nowka on one point.

"I feel the reason I'm not being reappointed is political," she said.

Speculation had run rampant in recent weeks that Lennox would nominate O'Brien with the understanding that the board would sit mute, effectively quashing the motion. Lennox then supposedly would not face the political backlash from O'Brien supporters, according to wide spread speculation.

Lennox last week defended the board's action, without actually denying that such a scenario had been planned.

"I don't care what people say out there," she said. "How can they be a fortune teller ... I did talk with a couple of board members (and) I think they indicated to Mrs. O'Brien how they felt."

The board approved two of Lennox's nominees, Russell Fogg and John Amos. Fogg has served on the township Board of Review and Amos has spent the last two years as a zoning board of appeals alternate.

Lennox suffered a setback with

"I feel the reason I'm not being reappointed is political."

Barbara O'Brien
Ex-Planning Commissioner

her fourth planning commission nominee. The board refused to support her choice of John Prenczky, a former Canton Township politician who moved to Northville Township last summer.

Board members apparently agreed with planning commissioner Karen Baja, who wrote a letter to the board opposing Prenczky's appointment.

"Mr. Prenczky has lived in Northville Township less than a year, which in my opinion should preclude his eligibility," Baja wrote. "I feel it is a discounting slap in the face to (those) interested residents who have lived in Northville longer than seven months, for them to be passed over in favor of a newcomer ..."

Cook seconded Baja's opinion.

"I tend to agree with the letter from Mrs. Baja," he said. "I think we ought to consider someone (who has lived) in the township a little longer."

Lennox last week said she had received additional resumes for potential planning commission appointees. She said she hoped to round out the commission at the township board's February meeting.

Controversy seemed to swirl around O'Brien during her years on the commission. Her original appointment was steeped in misunderstanding, and a public tiff with commission Chairperson Charles Deland in 1990 served to polarize her from the township's political inner circle.

O'Brien's career as a Realtor prompted scrutiny last month, as well. Some township officials felt that job conflicted with her planning commission post.

O'Brien refuted any charges of impropriety and claimed she was the target of a political vendetta.

But O'Brien had plenty of supporters throughout the community. Township resident Sue Hillebrand spoke in favor of O'Brien at last week's board session, and Baja — who thought O'Brien was to be reappointed — hurled a dart at Lennox in the same letter that opposed Prenczky's appointment.

"I am appalled ... at the game playing that has gone on for the past seven weeks by Mrs. Lennox in this appointment process," she wrote. "The treatment of Mrs. O'Brien has been most unprofessional and uncalled for."

Some officials gassed at collapse of fuel tax hike

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Gov. John Engler's refusal to seek a fuel tax increase for roads left some politicians disappointed.

"Argh!" said John Joy, public information officer for the Oakland County Road Commission.

"It's really unfortunate because the gas tax money is used for the daily maintenance of roads. We have 428 more miles of road in Oakland County than in 1984, when the last gas tax hike was implemented. Yet we have the same number of employees and trucks.

"This past storm proves how hard it is to get things done."

Rep. Susan Munsell, R-Howell, echoed Joy's sentiment.

"I was disappointed," she said. "We've got a lot of (roads and bridges) work to do."

Not all agreed with the need for a gas tax, however.

"I was delighted he's not going to ask for a gas tax increase," said Rep. Georgina Goss, R-Northville. "If we can find a way (to fund it), more power to him."

"It's gratifying his road program does not include a gas tax," said Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-West Bloomfield. "Now is not the time."

"How are we gonna improve roads?" asked Rep. Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, chair of the House Transportation Committee. His panel has a bill for a 5-cents-a-gallon increase proposed by Rep. Tom Alley, D-West Branch.

"Now is not the time," Engler said, pledging Michigan would come up with a 20-percent match for an anti-pated $3 billion in federal aid without a tax hike.

How? "We have ways. There are things we can do," said Patrick Nowak, the former Oakland County politician who heads the Department of Transportation.

"Change" was the theme of Engler's second state of the state address — he used the word 23 times Tuesday. More tax cuts, improved schools and better delivery of social services will be the themes of his second year as chief executive.

The conservative Republican insisted there would be "no retreat down the path of failure — liberal, big government, tax-and-spend approach — $150 billion worth during the 1980s."

Democrats, who control the House, sat in icy silence 18 of the 22 times Republicans interrupted his speech with applause.

Democrats joined when Engler praised American cars and auto workers, and said he would work to keep open the General Motors plant at Willow Run, introduced former hostage Alann Steen and praised Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld's commission to improve adoption laws.

"The governor and I are walking hand in hand on Willow Run. First time," said Rep. Kirk Proffitt, D-Ypsilanti, whose district includes the auto plant. Proffitt handed out red teddy-bear badges saying "I love Willow Run."

Despite his oratorical emphasis, Engler offered no specific plan for persuading GM to consolidate operations there rather than in Texas.

More tax cuts are on Engler's general agenda: ● Voter approval of his "cut and cap" plan to slice all property taxes 30 percent and hold assessment increases to 3 percent annually. The plan is likely to be on the 1992 ballot.

"I'm not a supporter," said Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, who criticized the plan because it allows assessments to leap up again when the property is sold.

● A $1,000 tax credit for every business that hires a person unemployed for six months. Engler gave no revenue loss estimate. Dillingham said it would have to be done legislatively.

● "An increase in the number of smaller enterprises eligible for relief under the single business tax." Again, Engler gave no revenue loss estimate.

His business ombudsman, Judy Miller, said she hadn't seen any detail. Dobb of West Bloomfield praised the idea because "I own a small business, and I know first hand the impact (of SBT) on small business."

● "Additional tax incentives to revitalize Detroit and other urban centers" through enterprise zones.

Unlike Goss, William Milliken (1969-82) and James Blanchard (1983-90), Engler did not issue a lengthy pamphlet with dozens of detailed recommendations and extract 30 minutes' worth for a speech.

His total message was the eight-page speech, printed on recycled paper and paid for by his officeholder expense fund. The spartan appearance underscored his theme of attracting business investment by slashing state spending except for schools and social services for families.

Engler proposed two methods to improve delivery of social services:

● Expansion of "Families First" — an intensive, in-home service (to) reduce the need for foster care by successfully keeping at-risk families together.

● Pilot projects called "Communities First" to integrate delivery of social services into the schools.

Republican women lawmakers warmly praised those ideas, which stemmed from their task forces. "Families First is excellent," said Rep. Susan Munsell, R-Howell.

"I'm very glad to see the governor coming out with it," added Dillingham. "It will help keep families together, not break 'em up."

Dillingham said the school-based delivery system has "some merit."

The Republican side of the aisle roared approval when Engler, on the issue of health care, said, "It's time to stop making lawyers wealthy and start making people healthy."

"It was a direct blast at the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association — hitting 'em in the head on medical liability," said Munsell.

Cable viewers often due refunds

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Omnicom subscribers frustrated by cable outages don't have to take the loss of their favorite show lying down.

If you stand up to be counted, the company likely will chop off a portion of your cable bill.

So said Omnicom General Manager Lisa Boland, who added that she understands subscriber complaints about outages and poor reception of cable transmissions.

"We don't have to give credit until the (signal's) been out 24 hours," Boland said Friday. "But we make it a business practice."

Boland pointed to reception problems last weekend in the Northville area as an example. A crack in the cable ("the equivalent of finding a needle in a haystack," she said) cut service to some specialty channels and disrupted reception for Northville residents from an area on Six Mile Road on up to Omnicom's Eight Mile Road boundary.

Poor cable reception was noted in the area around 11 p.m. Jan. 18, and television screens were finally swept of snow about 5 p.m. the following afternoon, Boland said.

Omnicom intends to slice $1 of affected subscribers' cable bills as a result, she said.

And what about Pro Am Sports System (PASS) junkies who hunkered down last Thursday to watch the Pistons play the snarling Minnesota Timberwolves? Instead of a scheduled 8 p.m. basketball game, viewers were treated to a study of transportation woes in Finland, or some such subject matter, on The Learning Channel.

PASS subscribers forking out $10 a month for that premium channel were not amused.

"PASS didn't scramble the signal (and) we didn't pick it up," said Boland, who added that subscribers "who call in get a credit for the game."

Get with program, Omnicom told lower costs in surrounding communities stem from the fact that nearby firms are associated with large-scale cable companies. Smaller firms, like Omnicom, are the victim of lower bulk rates available only for the larger companies, Boland said.

"Our rates are just over the average in southeast Michigan, not even a dollar over the average," Boland said.

And Omnicom actually provides uninterrupted service 99.6 percent of the time, according to company statistics, she said, refuting resident comments that outages are a too-frequent occurrence.

That works out to about 35 hours, or a day-and-a-half, per year.

Omnicom lists about 4,000 township residents among its almost 25,000 local subscribers. A study of cable outages is under way to determine how fuzzy or lost pictures can be prevented, Boland said.

She also said Omnicom's $21.95 base rate could be lowered if local governments cut franchise fees currently levied on the firm.

"If franchise fees went away, we would drop rates by that amount," Boland said.

Omnicom presently pays Northville Township a

3 percent fee based on the cost of its total subscriptions in the township.

Township Supervisor Betty Lennox on Thursday would not say if the township was agreeable to dropping the franchise fee.

"At this point, I think we want to review their financial records," Lennox said.

Lennox said the township and Northville city and Plymouth city are discussing a possible pooling of funds to renegotiate the Omnicom contract. The township is not leaning toward a firm hired by Canton Township to handle its contract, Lennox said.

Park space a continuing concern

The first hearing, Jan. 8, caught the commission off guard when a local businessman approached the board with a proposal to build a private ice rink. The developer, Jim Davis, and his client, Robert Picard, told the commission he wanted to build the rink because he, a Northville resident, is an avid hockey player.

But Gottschalk told commissioners that since the first meeting, that proposal hasn't made much headway.

"I met with the township building department and planner and with the person who had the idea. While he has a basic draft, he has no land, no site picked out, no site plan," she told commissioners Tuesday night. "It's a nice idea and there is a demand for it, but he wants a tax abatement and

Right now, Gottschalk said, an estimated 200 kids from Northville and Novi travel to Plymouth and Livonia just to get ice time at municipal and private rinks.

The ice rink was just one of a dozen on the commission's "wish list" if it had the money to invest in expanding its recreational programs.

Other ideas that surfaced at the hearings included developing the Northville Community Park, acquiring land to add and replace soccer fields, baseball diamonds and a beach volleyball court, and a teen center for latch-key kids after school hours at the current Recreation Center.

Northville Community Park, a 38-acre park leads the commission's list, Gottschalk said. Blueprints indicate the park, once developed, will house five soccer fields and three baseball diamonds to the department's program.

Gottschalk said that project has been bid out to construction companies twice, but since the department doesn't have the $264,000 to pay even the lowest bid, the project will have to be bid out in phases.

Soccer and baseball leagues operated through the department encompass a large percentage of the program's enrollment, Gottschalk said. An estimated 700 kids participate in fall and spring soccer leagues, while baseball leagues carry more than 900 athletes.

There is a big push for finding land for more fields and finding the money to buy rather than lease property. The sale of the nine acres at Lapham Field last fall, which the department leased, left the department short four soccer fields.

"There is an issue here about leasing property because the recreation department is losing fields when park land is sold and can't replace them without money. We need to get more money so we can buy land and own it rather than lease it," she said.

For Karen Baja, a resident who was vocal at the second hearing, there is a real need for more park space for area teens.

"I'd like to see more parks and places teens and people can go that doesn't have a house or building on it. We definitely need more soccer fields and ball fields," she told commissioners.

The commission will now be reviewing the suggestions raised by the hearings and narrow down its options so the master plan can be drafted and approved in two months.

Backpeddle on path, Novi tells state

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Novi planning commissioners hope to send a strong message to the state about a bike path that parallels I-275 — they want it left open, and they want repairs funded by the state.

"It's in their (the state's) right-of-way," said Planning Commissioner Eric Schaefer. "They maintain it."

Schaefer's opinion seemed to be the consensus at a Wednesday meeting where the commission received word of a state letter addressing the bike path.

State Transportation Planner Terry Eldred wrote in a letter to Oakland County Parks and Recreation that low use of the path, which runs from 10 miles north of Monroe to the I-96 interchange in Novi, has led the state to re-evaluate the path's importance.

"Maintenance and repair costs have been increasing and the condition of the path is deteriorating," Eldred wrote.

Commissioners said much local planning has centered around the expressway and the path.

"We had expected the facility to continue," said Commissioner Ernest Aruffo.

Commission Vice Chairperson Kathleen McLallen said the city has attempted to give residents an alternative mode of transportation by connecting city bike paths to the state path.

"It's a joint government undertaking, and it should stay joint," she said.

Schaefer said he was surprised the state feels the path gets little usage — a sentiment that was echoed by local biker Gilbert Henderson.

Henderson said the path is used by local bikers, joggers and even rollerbladers.

"It is being used seven days a week, year-round, except when there is heavy snow which is not often," Henderson said.

Commissioner John Balagna suggested that funding Novi's small section of the path between Meadowbrook and Haggerty roads might not be significant in cost. The commission directed Community Development Director James Wahl to write a letter to the state in support of continued funding for the path.

Friday, Eldred said in a phone interview the state has spent about $35,000 a year to maintain the path. Other state-developed paths in Michigan are funded by local municipalities, Eldred said.

But when the I-275 path was built 15 years ago, the state did not consider requiring local maintenance, he said. Most of the response the state has received to date has supported continued state funding of the path, Eldred said.

"People think it's an asset, but no one has the ability to fund maintenance with the current economic situation," Eldred said. Parts of the path are in need of resurfacing. The state may look at closing parts of the path that are unused and using its budget to repave highly used sections of the path, he said.

Stolen Blazer found stripped on Detroit street

A 1992 Chevrolet Blazer that reportedly was stolen from a Richards Court residence late Jan. 15 or early Jan. 16 was found stripped in Detroit Jan. 16, township police said.

The vehicle was parked in a lot on Richards Court when it was stolen. Police said they found no broken glass or other evidence of the theft.

Detroit police's Auto Recovery Unit reportedly found the vehicle at 15735 Elmira in the city. Police said the Blazer's steering column was damaged, and its wheels, tires and radio were missing. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

MISSING YOUTHS FOUND: Two

Chatham, Ont., youths listed by International police agency Interpol as runaways were located in Northville Township late Jan. 16.

The youths — a 14-year-old and a 15-year-old — were located at a gas station near Six Mile and Haggerty, township police said. They were taken into custody and held for their parents and proper authorities, police said.

THIEVES TARGET APARTMENT: A resident of Northville Forest Apartments told township police that someone broke into the apartment and stole jewelry valued at nearly $2,000 sometime during the day Jan. 10.

Thieves apparently pried open a door and stole five rings, chains and $50 in silver dollars from the apartment, police said.

VFW HALL ROBBED: An estimated $650 in currency was stolen from the VFW Hall at 438 S. Main St. sometime between 11:40 p.m. Jan. 21 and 8:30 a.m. Jan. 22.

The thief or thieves broke into the building through a west-side window and apparently rifled through most of the building before leaving, causing an estimated $550 in damage. Rolled and loose coins in a cash register and small safe were not taken.

City police are still investigating the robbery.

SUSPENDED LICENSE ARREST: A 40-year-old Whitmore Lake man was arrested for driving with a suspended license after being stopped by city police for driving with an expired license plate at Fairbrook and Rogers last week.

The man's license had been suspended for failing to comply with court judgments in two previous charges.

NORTHVILLE MAN ARRESTED

ON WARRANT: A 22-year-old city resident questioned about the Jan. 21 fire that gutted the Wagon Wheel Lounge and Hotel was turned over to township police after questioning that day.

The man was interviewed by city police and city and state fire inspectors. He was wanted by township police for failing to appear in court on a larceny charge.

SNOWBLOWER MISSING IN ACTION: A snowblower valued at $350 reportedly was stolen from the garage of a Rayburn residence during the day Jan. 14, township police said.

FENDER BENDER: icy roads apparently drove a 33-year-old Northville man to distraction the morning of Jan. 23. The man was driving east on Elmsmere and attempted to turn right onto Chigwidden at about 8:35 that morning when his vehicle slid off the road and into a Yield sign.

No injuries were reported and no citations were issued by city police.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

'Companions' name thinly veils sex for sale

By STEVE KELLMAN and SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writers

The folks at Jasmine's Companions never used the word "prostitution," but the Novi-based escort service seemed more than willing, for a fee, to arrange intimate meetings between women and prospective customers for the purpose of sex.

Jasmine's Companions, the subject of a two-month investigation by the Northville Record and Novi News, appeared to be a well-kept secret to everyone including Novi city officials. Yet the business run out of a home off Eight Mile Road appeared to violate at least two Novi ordinances, and act as a prostitution ring.

Since Jasmine's Companions was contacted by a Northville Record reporter two weeks ago, the business has not been answering phone calls. Last Tuesday, Jan. 21, the number was disconnected.

A Sept. 25 Metro Times ad for Jasmine's Companions said the company specialized "in creative fantasy fulfillment," while a Jan. 8 ad had it "specializing in unique companions, outcall massage only." Novi has an ordinance that forbids local businesses from offering outcall massage, the practice of sending a masseur or masseuse out to a person's home or hotel room. But Jasmine's Companions did not register as a Novi business — another ordinance violation — despite the fact that its phone number lists a Novi address under the name Jasmine's Services.

Susan Blumer, with the Novi city clerk's office, said neither Jasmine's Companions nor Jasmine's Services was listed as a city business. She promised to send the company a business registration form.

The Novi police department seemed unaware of the operation as well. Novi Police Chief Doug Shaeffer expressed curiosity about the service, saying, "We may call and ask for more details and we'll assign a detective to look into it." But the business never answered his calls, and a police officer sent to the location found no one home.

Shaeffer said the police department investigates such businesses "as they're brought to our attention," whether by the media, concerned citizens or police officers themselves who notice the ads in the paper (see related story on page 6).

He admitted that escort-type services are a burgeoning business throughout metro Detroit. "They're located all over the metropolitan area," he said. "But it's going to be our policy to vigorously pursue these operations when they appear ... because we don't want them in our community."

Jasmine's Companions' phone number was registered to a home on West Glenhaven Circle in Novi, near Meadowbrook and Eight Mile Road. The homeowner's phone number is unlisted.

deal with those issues. This year's program includes workshops designed to help parents motivate their kids to study, deal with criticism and peer pressure, and appreciate ethnic diversity.

Louis Porretta, executive director of the Sylvan Learning Center, will be the facilitator for the "... But Mom, I Did Study," workshop which introduces parents to the Hobbs method of time management, a practical guide to get students motivated and organized to study. Tips on how to outline, take notes and take tests will be a starting point to more productive study habits.

Linda Woodworth, a Prevention Specialist from the Romulus Help Center, will be teaching parents techniques to help children deal with criticism, peer pressure, and teasing in her "Help Your Kids Say No" sessions. The session teaches kids to communicate their feelings and needs while learning to say "no" and mean it.

A representative from Northville's ACORD (A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity) group, will be on-hand to discuss ethnic diversity, a condition that is rapidly becoming a more prevalent issue locally. The lecture seeks to prepare children to handle and appreciate the advantages of a racially and ethnically diverse culture by having an awareness and respect for other ethnic groups.

The workshop is available to all parents free of charge. Attendees are encouraged to participate in two of the four workshops available. The first session starts at 7 p.m. and the second follows at 8:20 p.m.

Our Opinion

Names may change but game's the same

Tack another chapter onto Northville Township government's burgeoning manuscript for self-destruction. Title this entry We're Just Wild About Barbara.

The township board last week acted out one of its most transparent schemes — and that's saying something — when it dumped Barbara O'Brien from the planning commission. O'Brien, who cultivated an astounding number of inner circle government enemies during her three years on the commission, had her commission appointment undermined by a township board that seemed well-rehearsed for this mission.

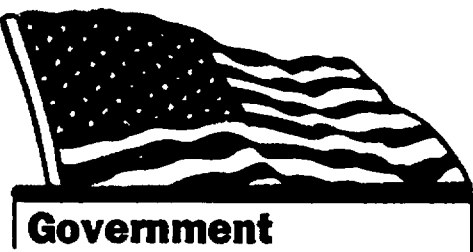

The plan — which for weeks prompted wild wagering between township watchers of various positions — supposedly was set up as follows: Supervisor Betty Lennox, no fan of O'Brien's, was leery of O'Brien's presumed political clout, especially in the Edenderry and Pickford areas, and certainly in an election year. Lennox didn't want O'Brien on the commission and knew that fellow board members Tom Cook and Richard Allen felt the same.

But Lennox also didn't want to deal with the uproar she assumed would follow a straight rejection of O'Brien's request to be reappointed. Instead, the supervisor let O'Brien's term expire and left her commission spot vacant for nearly two months. Meanwhile, former planner Jerry Chisnell was also sent into limbo and commissioners Larry Sheehan and John Leinonen submitted resignations.

Suddenly, the planning commission was down to three members, with a host of meetings staring the township in the eye. Lennox announced her four recommendations to the commission, including O'Brien, who actively campaigned for another term. Someone apparently convinced Lennox that no one would figure it out if she nominated O'Brien and the balance of an agreeable board refused to second her motion.

When that second failed to come last week, Lennox fairly gushed when she said, "Motion dies due to lack of a second."

No more Barbara, except for a brief scrap the now ex-planner staged with the township board. During one humorous exchange, Trustee James Nowka fretted that the planning commission, by nature a technical body, was becoming "political." Huh? This from a purely political man who would rather appoint a Republican corpse to a township position than a living, breathing Democrat?

Nowka's convictions on the "political planning commission" issue were so deeply-rooted that he could not respond when asked to explain his comment.

O'Brien's style surely ruffled some feathers during her term; her scraps with individual members have been documented. She was not a favorite of commission Chairperson Charles DeLand or Allen, who also serves on the commission, and that, quite frankly, was enough for the board to cut her loose.

We're not troubled so much by the decision to shoo O'Brien as we are in the method chosen by Lennox and the board. If the new supervisor didn't want to put up with O'Brien, it should have been her prerogative to appoint a replacement. Lennox should have explained the situation and axed the planner for good last December. Instead, Lennox chose to let O'Brien twist in the wind, inviting another wound to an already tattered and torn township government.

For the record, few, if any, bought the notion that Lennox nominated O'Brien in good faith.

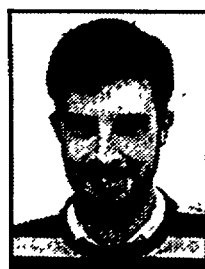

The board also rejected Lennox's plan to bring a relative newcomer to the township government fold, but OK'd the appointments of Russell Fogg and John Amos, two residents with experience and solid reputations for township service.

Two positions still remain on the commission and Lennox is expected to offer recommendations at the board's February session. The planning commission as it now sits shapes up as potentially much stronger than the previous body, but the questions and doubts linger.

But that's how Northville Township government operates. It's just business as unusual.

Of food, folks and vandalism

A discussion has been rattling around the newsroom, and it seems I've taken the unpopular side. Take it from me, I'm on familiar ground in that respect.

The topic is the recent action by a manager at the Eight Mile/Haggerty McDonald's to prohibit Northville High students from eating in the dining room at the restaurant. In the wake of incidents of vandalism and theft at the restaurant attributed to Northville students, first assistant manager Jim Taybor took it upon himself to ban Northville students from the dining room.

The manager's idea was that any kid wearing a Northville letter jacket or otherwise identifiable as a Northville student would be allowed to purchase food, but would have to take it somewhere else to eat it.

Brandon Cuadra, a Northville student who was turned out after purchasing some food at McDonald's, came forth and said, "This isn't right." He and his mother pounded on a few of the right desks in the McDonald's hierarchy, and got the ban reversed.

I have to hand it to Brandon and those who got behind him. They were right to challenge the ban. In my opinion, the manager's move was hasty, arbitrary and unfair.

So what's so unpopular about that? Nothing. In fact it's pretty much the consensus.

Where I become about as welcome as a week-old Filet-O-Fish sandwich is when I say that pressure of another kind ought to be brought to bear on the peers of those guilty of causing this fiasco in the first place: that is, the kids who trashed the bathrooms and stole artwork from McDonald's dining room.

In our haste to crucify Evil Corporate Giant for its trespasses against our Angelic Youth, many people, the staff of this paper included, have overlooked an important point. Crimes have been committed at McDonald's, specifically malicious destruction of property and theft.

Two unrelated letters to the editor that appeared in Thursday's Northville Record raised some valid points. One from Carol Stockhausen addressed the McDonald's incident directly, saying, "... the reaction should not be against McDonald's, but against the trouble makers and image problems at NHS. ... At fault here are the students who have given this (bad) reputation to NHS, and you can be sure that with a little effort they can be found out."

The other, whose author chose to remain nameless, lambasted parents who raise kids that don't respect property. The writer said, "Many of us live in terror of your children, wondering where they will strike next."

Ask any law enforcement official in this area to name the most frequent crimes in Northville and Novi. Murder, rape, arson and even drugs wouldn't make the list, but theft and vandalism would rate at or near the top.

If you've ever had your mailbox bombed, your tires slashed, your windows shattered, or your lawn used for a dragstrip, this isn't news to you. And the suspects are, by and large, high schoolers.

Are the lives of the youth in this area so pathetic and sad and boring that they have to find excitement by damaging, destroying and stealing the property of others?

What the McDonald's manager did was stupid; but if stupidity were a crime, I'd probably be bunking with him at Jackson for the time I locked myself out of my car and had to break the latch on the sunroof to get in.

But at Northville High there are students committing crimes, no doubt about it. If we are to believe the rhetoric that says that most of them are good kids, and that we're judging the many good ones by the behavior of the bad, then it's time to put up or shut up. It's time for the good ones to prove just how good they are, and turn in the trouble makers.

Talking about boxer shorts

Ordinarily I don't admit to reading either of the Detroit newspapers. Call it sour grapes if you want, but I'm still steamed about the technically legal but otherwise amoral and unethical approval of the Joint Operating Agreement which grants those two turkeys a license to print money.

But that's another story for another time. And it definitely creates the wrong tone for this column which is intended to be semi-humorous.

The problem is that I can't write this column without confessing that I do read the metro dailies. It was about a month ago that one of them had a story about men's underwear on the front of its fashion section. I was in a huge rush when I got home from work. We were headed out for dinner, and I had to hit the showers fast to have any chance of making our reservations on time.

Out of the corner of my eye, I noted that my wife was sitting on the couch and reading the article about boxer shorts as I slid off my tie and began unbuttoning my shirt.

"My men friends tell me that boxer shorts are a lot better than jockeys," she said as I rushed past her.

"Ummm-hmmm," I grunted, strongly focused on getting ready for dinner.

It wasn't until I was in the shower and a stream of hot water was washing over my head that her comment began to register.

"Diane," I hollered. "Could you come in here a minute, please?"

"What is it?" she asked, arriving in the bathroom shortly later.

"I was thinking about what you said when I got home a couple a minutes ago. Did I hear you say that your men friends tell you boxer shorts are a lot better than jockeys?"

"That's right," she confirmed. "They say they prefer boxers to any other kind of underwear."

"In that case," I replied, "would you find it terribly inappropriate if I asked which 'men friends' you were talking to and under what circumstances their preference in underwear happened to be the topic of conversation?"

I didn't ask it nasty, like I was being accusatory or anything. It's just that I was curious and considered it perfectly appropriate for a husband to making such inquiries of his wife.

Fair is fair, right?

In the first place, my boss would call me in on the carpet in a flash if I ever were to discuss the undergarment preferences of the ladies I work with.

And, even if I did talk to the women at work about their underwear and the boss didn't hear about it, the last thing I would do would be to run home and tell my wife that my "female friends" at work say they prefer bloomers to bikinis.

"Fred and Jerry," she said, naming a couple of her co-workers. "I was talking with Fred and Jerry."

"And the circumstances of this discussion?" I asked, repeating the second part of my original question. "Were we talking about underwear during a coffee break? Or, perhaps, we were having a drink after work when the topic turned suddenly and unexpectedly to men's underwear?"

"Actually," she said, a little indignantly, I thought, "we were processing a donation of men's clothing for the patients at the hospital. 'Anything else you want to know?'"

"The witness may step down," I told her. "But I reserve my right to cross-examine."

PROSTITUTION IN NOVI

Record investigation uncovers sex service

Outcall firm isn't a first

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Jasmine's Companions is not the first erotic outcall service to set up camp near Northville.

But the last such service apparently has since moved on to greener pastures, and narrowly avoided being rounded up in the process.

Fantasy Dancers, a business that offered to send nude dancers and masseuses to a customer's home or hotel room, was the subject of two articles in the June 27 Northville Record. The service operated out of a home on Nine Mile Road was also the target of a Novi police investigation under Police Chief Doug Shaeffer. But the business apparently left town last year before the investigation got under way.

"We had planned in fact, and set in motion ... a very intensive investigation of them that would result in charges," Shaeffer said. "It turns out they did leave the community. One of my detectives followed them over to another community. We maintained surveillance on the (Novi) property for several weeks, and it was absolutely unoccupied."

The Oakland County Prosecutor's Office was notified of the planned investigation, and had even volunteered staff power and other support. The prosecutor's office is still looking into similar businesses throughout the county, Shaeffer said.

Jim Marcinkowski, a prosecutor with the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office, heads the office's task force on prostitution and obscenity. The task force includes five attorneys experienced in the prosecution of prostitution rings and in obscenity law.

"We are not an investigative agency as a prosecutor's office ... We respond to police agencies," Marcinkowski explained. "We develop and have developed expertise in the area of the enforcement of prostitution, prostitution-related offenses and obscenity. And on certain constitutional issues, that being the First Amendment, there's a lot of similarities in the issues that are raised in those types of cases."

Marcinkowski said the task force has closed four massage parlors in Oakland County in the past six months. But telephone referral services can be more difficult to pursue.

He cited Fantasy Dancers as an example. "We were getting ready to pounce on the place in Novi, and they kind of pulled up stakes and left," he said.

Even if such a service does stick around long enough to be investigated, the cases are rarely closed overnight, Marcinkowski said.

"It takes a lot of time," he said. "From the time the investigation is started until it runs through the courts, we're talking a matter of years."

Part of the difficulty is that, although the businesses may be based in a single community, they service clients across several communities and even across county lines.

"This is actually one of the more complex types of cases," Marcinkowski said.

"If the Novi police want to take down one of these operations, they can't do it just in Novi ... What you're talking about here is a multi-jurisdictional group that has to be put together to take them down."

Marcinkowski said his office has heard no complaints about Jasmine's Companions or Anthony Hogan. He added that the prosecutor's office never uncovered any evidence of prostitution on the part of Fantasy Dancers.

Shaeffer said part of the difficulty in tracking such services is the nature of the business.

"It's very much of a mobile industry; there's no doubt about it," he said. "Of course, with any illegal business ... It becomes very unhealthy for them to remain in one location for any length of time."

Fantasy Dancers, which still advertises in the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press as The Gentleman's Choice, now lists a Redford address as its business office despite keeping its Northville-exchange telephone number. And callers are now told that the service is not licensed to provide massages.

Service recruits companions of the illegal kind

In an attempt to ascertain just what Jasmine's Companions offers its customers, a Northville Record reporter called the service late last year.

"Hi, I'm planning a bachelor party," the reporter said. "Do you do those kind of gigs?"

"It's $150 an hour," said the voice on the other end of the line, "and for something like that the young lady would be paid $200, and that would be for an hour, and you can go from there."

"And what kind of service are we talking about?" the reporter asked.

"Just what you ask for," OK, do they do massages and things like that?"

"As I said, once you get the young lady there, then you can ask her whatever else and negotiate from there."

Unable to determine the nature of Jasmine's services through that route, another Northville Record reporter called the agency in response to Metro Times advertisements that said the business was "hiring attractive girls."

She asked a woman named Michelle what the job entailed, and Michelle replied, "What we do is we set up interviews and that, and we discuss it when we're in person ... We're just looking for attractive young ladies who want to make some extra money or whatever."

The reporter subsequently met Michelle and a man named Anthony, who later identified himself as Anthony Hogan, at a Denny's restaurant in Farmington Hills. The business representatives arrived in a Ford Mustang bearing a license plate that read "Dancer" on its front bumper.

Michelle and Anthony said they were the administrative end of a "massage service." But Michelle said only one man in her three years in the business actually wanted a massage. "What do you think we do?" she asked the reporter.

The reporter replied, "It's more than massaging, isn't it?" Michelle agreed that it was.

Anthony asked what she thought the service was exactly. The reporter asked if it was an escort service and Michelle said it was.

The two told the reporter that a customer pays an initial $150 per hour for a woman, and the woman negotiates for more money once she arrives at the customer's location.

"You don't have to do anything you don't want," Michelle said. "But obviously if you won't do anything, he's not going to have a good time and call back."

"Do I have to do anything weird, or is it just normal sex?" the reporter asked.

"No, nothing weird," Michelle said. "Not that at all."

The reporter asked if employees were allowed to use condoms while on the job.

"I insist on it," Michelle said. "If I found out a woman wasn't using a condom, I'd get really angry."

But condom use during oral sex is a matter between employees and their customers, Michelle said.

"That's up to the girl. That's something she would have to work out. Some guys don't mind," she said.

The reporter also asked if Jasmine's Companions has a fee schedule for different acts, like $50 extra for oral sex. They said they did not discuss specifics until an employee's "training session."

Women are trained, they said, in how to act in dangerous situations such as when a customer becomes violent or out of control. Part of their success is a result of their training methods, they said. They teach women to keep the upper hand while on the job.

But Michelle said both she and Anthony are "really good judges of character." They have had no problems with men getting violent with or abusive to their employees.

"We don't want them calling you abusive names," Anthony said. "Most of the guys just want companionship. They certainly don't want anyone to know what they've been doing."

Employees split their earnings with Jasmine's Companions, with the business keeping 40 percent. Michelle said she makes $1,500 a week, while the business itself makes over $100,000 a year.

For sacrificing 40 percent of their earnings, women get steady work. Jasmine's Companions does the advertising and sets women up with as many clients as they want.

"You can't make this much money anywhere unless you go to school for a lot of years," Anthony said.

More and more of the company's business is being done in people's homes, Michelle and Anthony said. They also do a lot of work in hotels.

They said the company gets most of its clientele through advertisements in newspapers like the Metro Times.

The business services ministers, police and executives, Michelle said, adding that one of her regular customers is a minister who sees her once every month. But most of the customers are very wealthy executives, she said.

"They treat you with more respect than they treat the girls they meet in the bar," Anthony said.

Michelle said it can be fun and rewarding finding out about the men's personal lives. "They really love their wives," she said.

Anthony added that they never have problems with the police. "The vice squad isn't going to show up some night," he assured the reporter. "The police have to get the hotel's permission to come in and the hotels aren't going to do it. They don't want to end up on the 11 o'clock news."

Anthony, speaking in a soft, reassuring voice, said he considers the whole arrangement to be much less degrading to women than portrayed in the media. The men treat women really well, he insisted.

"I've seen girls 'doing it' in a car in the parking lot," Anthony said. "And they weren't getting paid for it. That's what I consider degrading."

Also, what they do is not illegal, he insisted. "You're just selling time. There's nothing illegal about that ... Massages also are not illegal. Don't let anybody try to tell you they are."

When pressed, Michelle said setting up a store to give massages might violate some city ordinance, but outcall massages are not illegal, she said, "not that I have knowledge about it."

As for the name Jasmine's Companions, "We just made it up," Michelle said. "It's the little girl we never had."

Leader refuses comment

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Anthony Hogan, who answered phones and interviewed prospective employees at Jasmine's Companions, refused to comment on allegations regarding the company and suggested that a reporter from the Northville Record and Novi News who asked for such comments "find something newsworthy."

When asked whether the company was violating Novi city ordinances Jan. 13, Hogan said, "Even if it is, what's it to you?"

"I have no idea what you're talking about," he said. "I don't even know if you are from the Novi News. And even if you were, I don't know what that has to do with you ... You're not any regulatory commission or any issuing agent of anything. So why don't you find something newsworthy, like find out about a kidnapping or something."

Hogan also threatened the reporter with legal action if the newspaper printed any allegations about the company.

"Find something more constructive to do, because you're talking about allegations, you're talking about libel suits, and I will contact my attorney if anything is printed that is not founded," he said. "Get my meaning?"

"If I read or hear anything by your newspaper, I'm going to own it. OK? I am very wealthy; do not play with me. I know my rights."

When the reporter offered to recite the allegations about the company, Hogan replied, "I don't need to hear anything."

During a second phone conversation, when asked about allegations that Jasmine's Companions was a prostitution ring, Hogan said, "They're not true."

But during a third call, when asked again about allegations of prostitution, he replied, "I don't have any comment about that ... And as far as the ordinance, I don't know anything about any ordinance."

Hogan went on to say that Jasmine's Companions was moving out of town Friday, and that a news story would serve no purpose.

"There's no need for some hearsay story, even if it is true," he said. "With a person leaving, it is a moot point because there isn't going to be any company or anything in Novi ... We're moving on."

Hogan also hinted that this is not the first time the company has moved on to avoid bad publicity. "As soon as some kind of trouble starts, or whatever, we're out of there," he said. "We move peacefully and nobody's hurt. And that's what we want to do."

Jasmine's Companions stopped answering its phones Jan. 14, the day after the reporter's conversations with Hogan. The phone number was disconnected Tuesday, Jan. 21.

South American wines feature great values

Wine consumers benefit from competition among world wine producers. This is true especially for the medium-to-low-priced segment of the American wine market.

New to the fray are the wines of South America, principally Chile. Quality Chilean wines that have been breaking sales records in other parts of the country are barely recognized in Michigan.

Chile, the long narrow country on the Pacific coast of South America, is sandwiched between the ocean on the west and the Andes Mountains on the east. Chile has 270,000 acres of vineyards, 90,000 of which grow grapes for premium wines.

The best regions for winegrowing are 150 miles south of Chile's capital Santiago. Regions to look for on a wine label are Aconcagua River, Maipo River Valley, Lontue, Maule and Curico.

Recent improvements in the wines of Chile can be explained, in part, by a surge of foreign viticultural investment. The owners of Bordeaux's Chateau Lafite Rothschild, California's Franciscan Vineyards and Spain's Bodegas Torres have each made sizeable efforts to move Chile's wines beyond value-priced, easy drinking varietals. With this interest and investment, there's a lot more right than wrong in wines from Chile.

Chile's soil is good; the water from the Andes is pure; the heat is never excessive; and due to the exceptional climate, vine disease is almost non-existent. However, low production cost is the principal reason for foreign investment.

Premium vineyards, which may reach $60,000 per acre in California and up to one million dollars per acre in France, cost $4,000 per acre in Chile. The labor force is experienced and less expensive. Phylloxera, a vine louse that devastated the vineyards of Europe in the late nineteenth century is absent. This reduces planting expense since vines may be planted on their own roots rather than being grafted onto expensive rootstock.

Although the prices of Chilean wines may eventually begin to escalate, flavorful wines are now available in the $6-$12 range. The principal Chilean varietals include cabernet sauvignon, chardonnay and sauvignon blanc.

Our tasting of 40 Chilean wines included those from Caliterra, Concha y Toro, Cousino-Macul, Los Vascos, Miguel Torres, Santa Carolina, Santa Monica, Santa Rita, Undurraga and Walnut Crest. Wine quality varies widely and requires consumer tasting before quantity purchase.

Several Chilean white wines were oxidized (noticeable sherry aromas). Chardonnays were simple, straightforward wines lacking definitive fruit flavor. On the whole, the Santa Rita chardonnays were consistently better balanced and fresher. Younger sauvignon blanc and those without oak aging, which tended to mask the delicate fruit, were best.

Cabernet sauvignon and merlot, were of uniformly better quality with moderate intensity and flavor concentration. The best of these red wines showcased blackberry fruit, subtle oak and attractive notes of spice, herbs or mint. In general, they represent good values when compared to many California and French red wines of the same quality.

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

Among the Chilean sauvignon blancs, we preferred the 1991 Santa Rita 120 Sauvignon Blanc ($6), 1990 Undurraga Sauvignon Blanc ($6) and 1991 Caliterra Sauvignon Blanc ($7).

The best chardonnays were: 1991 Santa Rita 120 Chardonnay ($6) and 1990 Santa Rita Medalla Real Chardonnay ($11.75).

The 1989 Miguel Torres Cabernet Sauvignon ($6.25) and the 1988 Concha y Toro Cabernet Sauvignon ($6.50) were the two outstanding Chilean red wines.

Other flavorful reds included: 1988 Cousino-Macul Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon ($10), 1989 Santa Monica Cabernet Sauvignon ($7.40), 1992 Santa Carolina Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon ($10), 1988 Santa Rita 120 Cabernet Sauvignon ($6), 1989 Santa Rita 120 Merlot ($6), 1988 Santa Rita Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon ($9.50), 1988 Santa Rita Medalla Real Cabernet Sauvignon ($11.75), 1988 Concha y Toro Cabernet/Merlot ($4.75) and 1988 Undurraga Cabernet Sauvignon ($6).

The secret's in the sauces

Chinese restaurant fires up for big holiday

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Linda Parker of Novi is a people person, so it's not surprising that she would end up in the restaurant business. For surprises, you have to turn to the menu of her restaurant, the Hunan Palace on Ten Mile, east of Haggerty.

The food of China's Szechuan and Hunan provinces makes heavy use of hot spices, especially red chili peppers, owing to the mountainous region's cold climate. While the style has been popular — even commonplace — on both coasts for many years, it is still overshadowed by the more familiar Cantonese food here in the Midwest. About a third of the items on the menu are printed in red, indicating the presence of one of the palate-tlingling spices.

"Not everybody likes the hot food," says Parker. "But they can order it however they like, from 'spicy, not hot' to 'very hot.'"

A native of Taiwan, Parker has been in the U.S. for 20 years. A small woman with big bursts of energy, she explains in slightly fractured English that she's "always been in the restaurant business."

"I like people, and I like to talk to people," she says. "And I like to eat."

"You'll usually see me sit with customers and say, 'Hi, how you doing.' And when I'm not here, they say, 'Where were you.' I could get any job in an office, but I like this. We get lots of nice people here, and when they're happy, we're happy."

Parker's greatest happiness comes from her head chef, Jack Dai, who came to the Hunan Palace seven months ago. His food demonstrates a deft hand at the wok, and he complements his expert technique with a bevy of exquisite homemade sauces of his own creation.

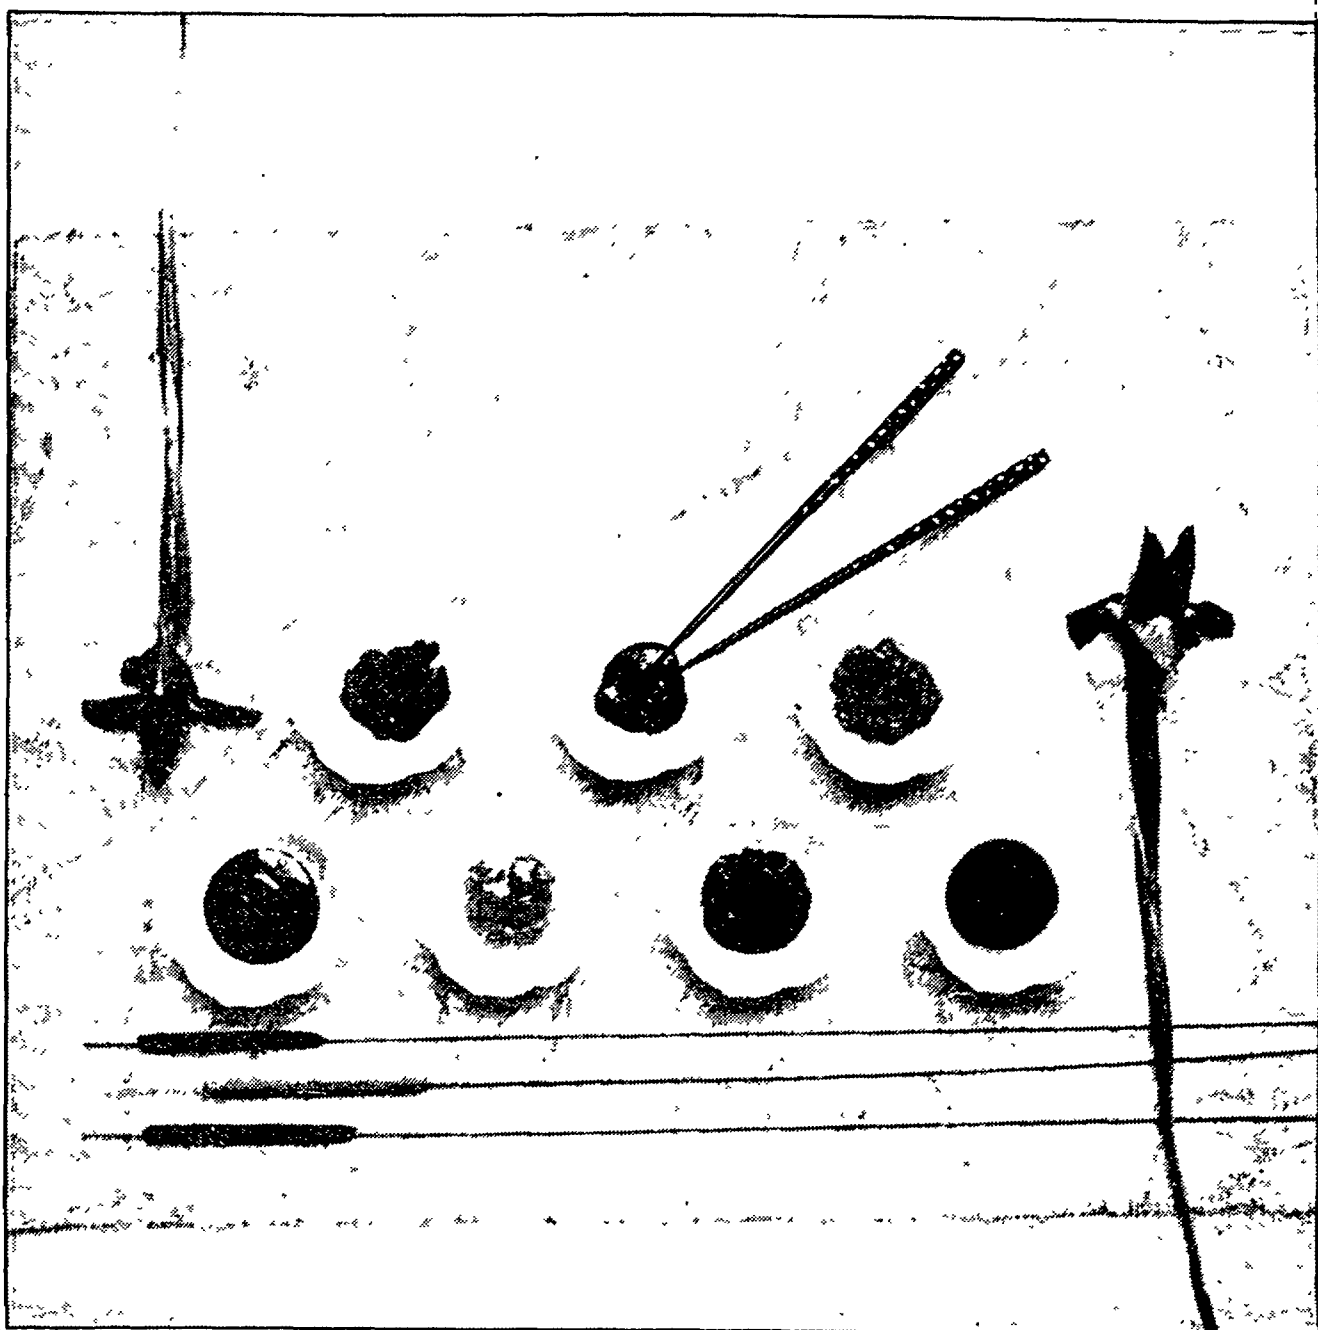

Homemade fried noodles accompany hot mustard and plum sauce for the Chinese version of chips and dip when you arrive. If you order the dumplings (widely known as dim sum) for an appetizer, the puffy pillows of homemade dough stuffed with ground pork and vegetables will come with a homemade soy sauce and hot chili sauce.

Entrees arrive on separate dishes, and are served family style. Unlike Cantonese food, Szechuan food generally makes use of one central element — say beef, pork or a vegetable — which is cooked in with a sauce. Those unfamiliar with the style won't have to worry about not being able to identify what's in their dinner. A good example is the broccoli with ginger garlic sauce.

"With Cantonese, everything comes all mixed together," says Dai. "Here, it all comes separate."

Dai takes particular pride in the 15-20 dishes that appear on a separate page in the menu. His specialties are dishes of his own creation, or personal variations on Szechuan favorites. The crispy chicken with champagne sauce uses his own unique blend of cooking wines in its bright red accompaniment. And the General Tso's chicken, dedicated to a Chinese military hero, is not for the faint of heart. An initial taste of

Most of the sauces at the Hunan Palace restaurant are creations of head chef, Jack Dai.

Serve restaurant food at home

Many people try to cook Chinese food at home, and are disappointed that it doesn't come out like it does at the restaurant.

Jack Dai, head chef at the Hunan Palace, admits that even he can't cook the same things at home that he creates in the restaurant. He says that without the proper equipment — especially the 5,000 BTU gas wok he uses at Hunan Palace — it's practically impossible.

Here, however, are some recipes that Dai says can be prepared easily at home with a household-size wok. A trip to an oriental grocery is necessary, however. Evergreen Supply Company, 20736 Lahser Road, supplies many Chinese restaurants in the area, but has a retail store as well. Owners Sit and Cholada Chan can set you up with some of the harder to find ingredients.

You'll notice that these recipes don't call for specific measurements of most items. Dai encourages home cooks to can measure the ingredients to taste. Use whatever looks and tastes good to you.

Both dishes call for a very hot wok. You have to cook fast (but make sure you cook the pork thoroughly), so have all your ingredients ready to go before you begin.

And if you still can't get it right, Dai says he's happy to help anyone who asks. Just drop by Hunan Palace and "ask for Jack."

Chefs limbering up for olympics of their own

Today is the big practice. As many of you know (or may not) I am a member of "Team Michigan" a group of Michigan chefs preparing for the olympics.

No, I'm not going to Barcelona or Albertville to compete. The Culinary Olympics are held every four years in Frankfurt, Germany. Chefs from all over the world vie for top honors. It is as stressful and strenuous as any physical competition. Maybe more so.

The food that we present for critique today will be completely inspected very critically by our coaches, mostly master chefs. Their criticisms are for our improvement. Not to belittle or demean.

These men donate their time to better the profession. I consider myself exceptionally fortunate to work with them. In any competition a "display" is worth 40 points. Points are awarded for presentation, practicality, execution and creativity.

The presentation of the plates is of utmost importance. Are all of the items compatible? Do colors clash? Are the vegetables cut in different and imaginative ways?

On a platter for eight there should be eight of everything, or a multiple of eight. Is the table itself beautiful to the eye? A judge's eye must be caught the moment he walks up to the table or he will lose interest. If he loses interest, you lose points.

Practicality can be defined as simple but elegant. Food must not be adulterated in any way. In other words there must be minimal handling of the food product before, during and after cooking. A rule of thumb is, if you can't prepare it for 100 don't put it in the competition.

When competing in Singapore several years ago I couldn't believe the intricate food. Inlays of one food into another, vibrant colors, craftsmanship galore. This would not be considered practical in this country. We do not have the labor to produce such food.

Yes, it was beautiful and elegant but not practical. Utilization of product is extremely vital. If, for instance, you prepare a breast of duck you have to show what you did with the legs. My cold platter consists of chicken breast roasted, corned leg, and mushrooms with liver mousse. The entire edible portion of the bird was utilized. Garnishes include a leek mousse and parsley root salad.

Execution equals perfectionism. Each piece of the display must be prepared flawlessly. Cooked to the proper degree, cut correctly, in a word "clean". No mistakes. This is the reason we will practice and practice until the last minute, to achieve excellence.

Creativity is the yardstick of a good cook. Each day in our kitchens we must utilize food creatively. What do we do with the fish that is in the walk-in? Or the overabundance of zucchini that was misordered? The same is true in competition. Expensive food products are discouraged. What can you do with short ribs instead of filet mignon? It is so exciting to create. Sometimes we reach dead ends and must start over. That is part of the ritual. In a later column I will expound on the team and rules. Competition has been a rewarding and exciting experience for me. I have had the fortune to work with the finest chefs in the world. Their uncompromising support has been the reason that many of us continue. Thank-you Chef Milos, Chef Gabriel, Chef Hugelier, Chef Russell, Chef Leopold and the many others that have made today possible.

Note: Anyone interested in viewing the practice may do so at Il Centro Restaurant, located behind the Fisher Building. Tickets are available and include cocktails and hors d'oeuvres. Phone 313-872-5110 for information.

Chinese New Year approaches

sweetness follows with a mule kick of red hot chili peppers.

Dai, also from Taiwan, was educated under Pong Chong Gue, a famous chef in his homeland. One item on the menu, bean curd stewed with black bean sauce, is dedicated to him. Pong's name appears in Chinese above the English name for the dish.

Dai, who worked previously in Miami and New York, acquired a good following in 10 years at the Sze-Chuan Canton restaurant in Canton Township, and recently appeared on Channel 7's "Weekend Feast" segment.

His restaurant earned a four-star rating from the The Miami Herald newspaper when he worked there, the only Chinese restaurant to ever rate that high in years of Herald reviews.

Dai will get a big chance to show off this Sunday, however, when the Hunan Palace celebrates Chinese New Year with a $30-per-person, 10-course feast. A Chinese lion dance and 18 separate food items (most not on the menu at Hunan Palace) will ring in the year 4690, the Year of the Monkey.

Other Chinese zodiac animals include the mouse, the cow, the tiger, the rabbit, the dragon, the snake, the horse, the monkey, the rooster, the pig and the dog.

In the Chinese tradition, the celebration will continue through Tuesday, though the actual lunar new year falls on Jan. 31.

"Back home we celebrate for three days before, and five days after," says Parker. "Usually, there is a big meal with the family together. We eat a big dinner and we give money in a red envelope."

In China, the color red is symbolic of good luck, and eating is something of a national pastime. The Chinese believe food represents a way of thinking, on par with fine art.

For their new year, ordinary dishes are sometimes renamed with lavish titles meant to bestow blessings of prosperity, good fortune and long life. Such is the case with Hunan Palace's Phoenix and Dragon Delight, a lobster and chicken dish.

By tradition, whole new year's dish must also include whole fish. Though the sight of whole fish may repulse Americans, the dish is revered in China (it is served boneless). Parker says its name translates loosely as "good wishes for new year, and good things last forever."

Answering your sweet tooth's call

The adage that a picture is worth a thousand words is especially true when it's illustrating a complicated recipe.

The Good Housekeeping Illustrated Book of Desserts, edited by Mildred Ying, and published in fall 1991 by Hearst Books of William Morrow and Co. Inc. ($25), uses pictures to make elaborate dessert-making easy.

Also accompanying the recipes are little tricks to make the desserts look good as well as taste good.

If pretty and imaginative desserts are your goal, this book has plenty of ideas. The recipe for Dreamy Chocolate Cake includes directions on how to make the grated chocolate curls to go along the edges of the completed cake. Cannoli Cake features instructions for making a feather design on the top.

The Creamy Rice Pudding recipe is topped off with a cinnamon lattice design. We tried this one out on guests at a party, and although we didn't get the lattice design as perfect as the picture, it was still impressive.

For the same party, we made the Double-Chocolate Mousse Cake. We was hesitant to try out new recipes on guests, but the picture was too pretty to resist. We had some trouble keeping the mousse in one piece when transferring it to the cake plate, but once it was glazed, it looked great. The trick is to put waxed paper between the cake and the serving plate to catch the glaze drippings. Once the glaze is set, trim off the messy edges. A whipped cream border along the edge makes it look like a professional made it.

Chocolate lovers will find many confections to their liking, such as the Marbled Mousse, Individual Chocolate Souffles with coffee cream and the Chocolate Box with berries and cream that features directions on how to make a chocolate box.

And the section on decorative pie edges shows how to spice up an ordinary pie recipe by making fancy fluted edges, leaf edges, ruffled edges and braided edges.

Some of the directions rely on basic cake-decorating skills such as how to pipe the borders on the Valentine Cake. Beginners could have problems completing the shell and ruffle designs.

Other recipes make use of fresh fruits for their appeal, such as the Flag Cake, which uses raspberries and blueberries to make a Stars and Stripes design on the top.

Also included in this 320-page books are information and instructions for icings, fillings, sweet sauces and meringues and pastry piping.

Included in the cookie section are 28 recipes with such tempters as Brandy Snaps, Two-Tone Hearts, Apricot Rugelach and Crispy Snowflakes.

More than 200 recipes are included, with chapters on cakes, pies, tarts and pastries, cookies and frozen desserts as well as special desserts such as mousses and souffles, custards and creams, crepes, blintzes and meringues.

CREAMY RICE PUDDING
(Begin about 2 hours before serving or early in the day.)

- 2 quarts milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup regular long-grain rice
- 1/2 cup dark seedless raisins
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 2 12-ounce cans evaporated milk
- 4 large eggs
- ground cinnamon
- fresh or Maraschino cherries for garnish

In 4-quart saucepan over medium heat, heat milk and salt to simmering; stir in rice. Reduce heat to low; cover and simmer 45 to 50 minutes until rice is very tender and mixture is thick, stirring occasionally. Stir in raisins.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Grease 13-by-9-inch baking dish; set in large roasting pan.

In large bowl, with wire whisk or fork, beat sugar, vanilla extract, evaporated milk and eggs until blended; gradually stir in hot rice mixture.

Place baking dish in pan on oven rack; carefully pour rice mixture into baking dish (mixture will almost fill dish). Fill roasting pan with boiling water to come halfway up sides of baking dish. Bake 40 to 45 minutes until knife inserted in center of pudding comes out clean.

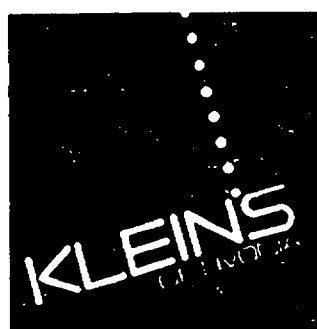

Make cinnamon lattice on top of pudding. Hold ruler diagonally across one corner of baking dish, about 1 inch from edge of pudding. Holding cinnamon jar in other hand, evenly shake spice through sprinkler hold along ruler edge. Shake excess spice off ruler. Repeat at 1-inch intervals. Repeat in opposite direction to form lattice pattern.

To serve garnish pudding with cherries. Serve warm or refrigerate to serve cold later. Serves 16.

Wine auction breaks the bank

At an annual wine tasting and auction held at Mike and Jan Mních's home in Northville on Saturday, Jan. 11 over $9,000 was raised for two charities: The Histocytosis Association and The Cass Community Shelter for the Homeless.

Each year, the Mníchs hold a private party with their friends and auction off bottles of wine from their own wine cellar as well as bottles donated to them by friends and local wine retailers. In addition to bottle donations, 1992 marked the first year for "corporate sponsorships." Five corporations donated over $2,000 in checks made out directly to the sponsoring charities.

The unique thing about this annual fund raiser is that 100 percent of all donations go directly to the two charities. Everyone donating money is required to write the check out directly to the charity itself. One hundred percent of the costs of the party are covered by Mike and Jan.

"We figure that if we hold a party, feed our guests, give them fine wines to sip on and cater to them all night, all at no cost to them, that when it comes time to bid on the wines up for auction they will have a greater tendency to dig deep into their pockets," said Mike.

That formula has been met with incredible success each year. This year, 54 people attended the auction with a full course sit-down dinner catered by one of Detroit's finest restaurants, Opus One.

"If you think about it, the $9,000 raised, breaks down to about $160 per person, or much less than what it takes us to put on the party," said Jan.

How do the Mníchs get those kind of donations out of their guests?

Well, in addition to not charging anybody admission, we had an incredible number of outstanding lots

"From a bottle signed by Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band (that raised $450) to a five-minute video from Dick Purtan, a local radio personality, it seemed to get everyone 'in the mood' to donate more money to charity this year."

up for bid," Mike said. "From a bottle signed by Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band (that raised $450) to a five-minute video from Dick Purtan, a local radio personality, it seemed to get everyone 'in the mood' to donate more money to charity this year."

In addition the Seger and Purtan donations, Mike agreed, as part of a dining and travel package that was being offered, to bicycle up north some 274 miles to The Rowe Inn Restaurant, just to pour wines to the couple who was the highest bidder of that lot.

"Bidding for the dining and travel package had stalled at $500 and I wanted to get the price up. So I volunteered to bicycle up there and announced it during the bidding. Immediately after that, someone bid $700 for the package and it kept going up until the gavel came down at $800."

Not an avid bicyclist, Mních now is in the process of finding out exactly what it is going to take to do such a trip.

"Last year, I walked a backpack filled with bottles of wine 47 miles to the successful bidder's house and that raised $700. This year I wanted to do something different and more difficult that would raise more money. I think it accomplished all three."

Other top lots of the night included a bottle of '67 Chateau d'Yquem (a famous Sauternes from France) that went for $525, a "wine of the month" donated by Mike and Jan for an entire year, going for a high bid of $625, and a magnum (double bottle) of Dom Perignon for $400. In total, 36 lots were auctioned off this year. A bottle signed by Purtan himself went for $110 and a T-shirt commemorating the night, made in a child's size 6-8, went for $45 (in blue) and $70 (in pink).

The most surprising thing about this year's auction? The amount of money raised.

"We expected to raise between $4,000 and $5,000," said Jan. "It was evident that the bidding fever amongst our 55 guests was high at the beginning of the night. When I tabulated the bids from just 11 'silent' lots (those lots where the bidder writes in his or her bid, as opposed to holding up a paddle during the live auction held later in the evening), and they totaled over $700 alone. I looked at Mike and told him we were on our way to another record-breaking year."

In their first year, (1989), with about 20 friends, Mike and Jan raised $500 "for the American Cancer Society and Michigan Cancer Foundation." Then in 1990, with 30 friends, $15,000 was raised for the Salvation Army. 1991 was even more successful when 40 friends bid over $3,000 for Children's Hospital of Michigan.

In 1992, two charities were chosen because, according to Jan, "we wanted to have on a charity representative that affected someone in our group personally and the other charity for a more recognizable cause."

A couple attending the auction has a daughter who is diagnosed with histiocytosis, a rare cancer that affects about 1,000 people in the United States each year.

In addition to the two charities, each partygoer was required to bring in a package of diapers and wet wipes as "admission" with these items going to Cabrini Place, a home in Detroit for mothers and their children who have tested positive for the HIV virus.

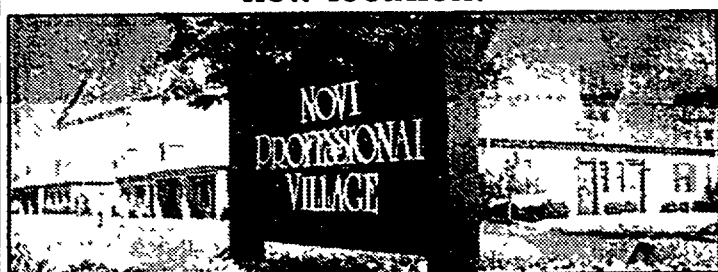

"Our bedroom is filled up to the ceiling with packages of diapers," said Jan. "This Saturday, Mike and I as well as our three children will drive down to the home and give them a van full of diapers and baby wipes."

So what's in store for next year? Well, first of all, the party will have to be moved out of Mních's home.

"Fifty-five people, six waitstaff, one musician and a cleanup person was just a little too crowded," Jan said. Already bottle donations are coming in, including a bottle of 1947 Warren's Port donated for next year. A surprise donation the night of the auction was made by Gretchen Papineau when she announced a donation of two bottles signed by Ernest and Julio Gallo, packaged in a velvet lined oak case.

"We have no idea what to expect next year, but we have already begun working on some real interesting and fun donations planned for 1993," said Mike.

Gone to the dogs

John Snyder

They'll race from the shores of Lake Superior to the shores of Lake Michigan and back again on the third weekend in February—the sled dogs and drivers who compete in the UP 200 Sled Dog Race.

This longest mid-distance sled-dog race in the lower 48 states reawakens the heritage of Upper Michigan. From the trappers, freight haulers and mail carriers of the past to the race trails of today, dogs still pull sleds across snow laden forests and ice covered lakes.

Facing north across the icy waters of Lake Superior, the heart of downtown Marquette will beat even faster Feb. 21 as the third annual UP 200 is poised to begin. The expected crowd of 15,000 feels its collective pulse quicken as the excited howls and barks of hundreds of sled dogs fill the frigid air.

Three blocks of historic Washington Street are turned into the staging, starting and finishing area for this premier sporting event, which carries a purse of $22,000. The 10-dog teams leave at two minute intervals beginning at 7 p.m. and as the dogs are brought into the starting chute, they strain at their harnesses, held back by a snowhook set in a cable manned by trained volunteers.

The musher walks up and down the team, giving the lines and harnesses a last minute check and each dog a pat of encouragement. Then it's back to the sled to pull the hook and away they go. The dog's peals of excited barking snap to silence as they dig into the snow and race into the night and onto the trails for the first 38-mile leg to Chatham.

As the pandemonium of the race start reaches a feverish pitch in Marquette, there is a quiet, electric tension in the air at Chatham. The 6-dog teams participating in the Midnight Run from Chatham to Escanaba have been arriving all day after being given a clean bill of health by the race veterinarians. These mushers arrive to a small town spirit which welcomes them with old fashioned hospitality: a warm meal, a spare bed and a place to stake out the dogs until the evening's events begin.

The afternoon's winter carnival activities keep the crowds warm as they gather to experience the thrill of the UP 200. Volunteers move out to their respective road crossings as the hour approaches when the first of the 10-dog teams is expected to slide out of the woods along the Rock River Canyon and onto the Rock River Road into Chatham.

The radio cackles...the first team has rounded the corner and is headed in...then the headlamp can be seen coming down the hill into the Slapneck Creek valley and up into the checkpoint. From this point on 10-dog teams will be sliding in and out of the sawmill yard where the teams are checked through.

At midnight, the pitch of activity is raised another notch as the Midnight Run mushers start into the chute. The crowd helps the count down...5,4,3,2,1, GOOOO! Every two minutes another team will hit the trail until the last one has gone. And all this time the 10-dog teams will have been checking in and out until around 2 a.m., when the last team and musher is off for the 62-mile dash to Rapid River.

Rapid River is the place to be Saturday morning. By dawn the lead teams will have run down through the Hiawatha, caught the Whitefish River, maneuvered past spots of open water in the river shallows and made the final approach to town. The trail leaves the Whitefish a quarter mile above the highway bridge to cross over to the Rapid River. There are two lightly used roads in this section the musher must cross which provide good sports for watching the action. Once on the Rapid River, they will cross under the highway and into town.

UPPER MICHIGAN HERITAGE— Sled dogs and mushers racing in the UP 200 are following in the footsteps of hearty nineteenth century trappers, freight haulers and mail carriers who traversed snow laden forests and ice covered lakes.

The Lions Club will be busy serving a pancake breakfast for hungry spectators. Down the street all the dog crews will be set up, caring for dogs, cooking "stew" or glancing up the trail as they wait. The vets will be there too, making sure the teams are fit for the push down the ice.

The Midnight Run racers will equalize times during their stay in Rapid River, erasing the start intervals and the standings board will tell the tale in minutes. This means it will be run to the finish in Escanaba from here. Leaving town, the trail takes them back onto the Rapid River and out onto the head of Little Bay de Noc. Fourteen miles of ice awaits them and perhaps a piece of the $3050 purse.

Looking north from the Municipal Dock in Escanaba, the teams will be hard to distinguish from the ice shacks in the far distance. A little movement will be discerned first, and then the teams begin to show a caterpillar shape. The musher kicks along, helping his dogs across the immense flat. The goal is in sight and the end of a long night's work just ahead.

A 6-dog musher of the Midnight Run will know the trip ends at the victory stand. Those in the field of the UP 200 are likely thinking rest and standings at the halfway point. The end of Ludington Street holds the dog trucks, huskies' traveling homes and hot meals. "Who was first into Escanaba?" is the question on everyone's lips.

The afternoon of Saturday, Feb. 22 will find the area busy with winter carnival games. Later on the mushers of the Midnight Run will gather for their awards presentations and banquet. This is a great opportunity to share firsthand "tales of the trails", a good meal and congratulate the mushers. As evening approaches, the 10-dog teams prepare for their turn at the starting gate. The excitement is contagious, especially among the dogs, as they hear the barking of the teams entering the starting area. The dogs fall silent at they are released, heading out onto the ice. Here they run from point to point along the bayshore: Portage, Breezy and into the mouth of the Ford River. The crowds and the clamor slip away behind them as the snaking course of the river and breakfast in Gwinn lies 106 miles away.

This is the longest leg of the 240-mile race loop—a distance equivalent to the longest leg of the Iditarod. Mushers are encouraged by cheering spectators along the Ford River who brighten the ride with their mere presence. A short distance on logging trails and pole lines brings the teams to the Escanaba River. Six miles up the Escanaba, the mushers and their teams exit onto Iron Pin road, pass the Gwinn water tower and finally come upon the last check point in Gwinn.

A mandatory two-hour layover in Gwinn gives spectators one of their last chances to view the teams up close before then 29-mile dash to the finish in Marquette. The first teams will arrive in the wee hours of the morning, so bundle up and enjoy a pancake breakfast hosted by Gwinn area businesses.

More information about the UP 200 and the accompanying activities is available by calling the Upper Peninsula Sled Dog Association at 906-226-3094. For information on Marquette area travel and lodging, call 800-544-4321 or 906-228-7749.

...The age for children to ski free with a skiing parent has been raised from 5 to 8 this season at Nubs Nob near Harbor Springs.

That's one of several changes at Nubs Nob that makes it more convenient and affordable for families to ski together. Now, children 8 and under ski free with their parents any time Nubs is open. In addition, children 12 and under skiing mid-week with a paying parent will continue to receive free lift tickets.

Hours for the Nubs Cabs Clubhouse, the resort's on-site day care center, have been expanded to seven days a week, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. And through Nubs Cabs, parents can take advantage of one continuous program that blends child care with ski school instruction so it's even easier for children pre-school age through age 9 to learn to ski as well as improve their skills. Call 1-800-878-NUBS for more information...

...The Federation of International Skiing has made it official—Sugar Loaf Resort's ski race hill, the "Manitou", has met international slalom standards.

Sugar Loaf, near Cedar, will host several major ski competitions this season, giving top Midwest racers an opportunity to race on a FIS slalom race hill—a rare find in the Midwest. Sugar Loaf will host the Mid American USSA races Jan. 31-Feb. 2, the National Collegiate Ski Association qualifier Feb. 22-23 and the Michigan High School State Championships March 2.

Sugar Loaf also holds NASTAR races and race clinics seven days a week for the recreational skier. And besides racing, Sugar Loaf offers a variety of learn to ski programs, mile-long beginner runs, night skiing seven nights a week, and indoor and outdoor programs for the kids. Over 300 K make up 'Ultimate Loop' of nordic skiing in northern Michigan

This season 14 of Northern Michigan's finest cross-country ski facilities have joined together to form the Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council and offer a trail system encompassing over 300 kilometers of skiing terrain across the northern third of Michigan's lower peninsula.

The "Ultimate Loop" provides cross-country skiers with a variety of skiing options including gentle, but rolling hills; challenging downhill chutes; and flat, but fast, field skiing. All trails in the system are double tracked for side-by-side skiing.

"Cross country skiing is one of the fastest growing sports in the country. We formed the Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council to help meet the needs of the Nordic skier in Michigan," says Gary Osterbeck, Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council president and director of sales for Boyne USA. Osterbeck went on to say, "We believe that once skiers learn to ski correctly on groomed trails and with proper instruction, they'll feel good about coming back and skiing time after time."

ON THE FAST TRACK— All trails in the 300 kilometer Northern Michigan "Ultimate Loop" are groomed and double tracked. Terrain varies from downhill chutes to flat field skiing.

Osterbeck says that, collectively, his council members are working to elevate cross-country skiing from a backyard recreational activity to a sport to plan vacations around.

"Northern Michigan has some of the best and most beautiful cross-country skiing terrain in the country. In addition, we have accommodations that run the gambit from cozy log cabins to world-class hotels. And, Northern Michigan night life is fantastic, too," Osterbeck says. "Our job as a council is to make the public aware of the opportunities that await them on a cross-country ski vacation."

Osterbeck adds that although the Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council member ski facilities charge for the use of their trails, lodging packages are usually less expensive than comparable downhill ski packages.

Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council ski facilities include: Boyne USA, Boyne Falls; Cool Ski Area, LeRoy; Cross Country Ski Headquarters, Higgins Lake, Roscommon; Cross Country Ski Shop, Grayling; Garland, Lewiston; Hanson Hills, Grayling; Jellystone Park Camp Resort, Traverse City; McGuire's Resort Center, Cadillac; Shanty Creek -- Schuss Mountain Resort, Bellaire and Mancelona; Wilderness Valley, Gaylord; Crystal Mountain, Thompsonville; Grand Traverse Resort, Acme; The Homestead, Glen Arbor; Lakeview Hills Country Inn Ski Resort, Lewiston; Timberlane Resort & Nordic Ski Center, Irons; and Gaylord Convention & Tourism Bureau, Gaylord.

To promote the council's "Ultimate Loop" of cross-country trails, the Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council has created a brochure describing each facility and an accompanying "two for one" trail ticket coupon. The coupon is available at all Bavarian Village ski shops and M.C. Sporting Goods throughout the Midwest. To receive the brochure and coupon call or write: Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council, P.O. Box 525, Suttons Bay, MI 49682, phone (616) 271-6314.

Snowfest for sleds

Cadillac, Michigan—

"The Biggest and Best Snowfest in the Midwest." That's what organizers call the North American Snowmobile Festival, and with an average yearly snowfall of 150 inches, who's to argue?

This year's NASF runs from Thursday, Jan. 30 through Sunday, Feb. 2 with most activities slated for frozen Lake Cadillac. Besides the guided tours and safaris, there's an antique sled display, torchlight snowmobile parade and a snowmobile swap sale.

Off-sled festivities include fireworks, snow sculptures, hang glider demonstrations and helicopter rides. Winter softball and volleyball tournaments are also scheduled.

Cadillac is accessible via US-131 or M-115. Driving times are 3 1/2 hours from Detroit, 5 hours from Chicago, 4 1/2 hours from Toledo and 1 1/2 hours from Grand Rapids.

Cross country discounts offered to senior skiers

Seniors will enjoy discounts on trail passes throughout Northern Michigan during 1992. Members of the Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council offer over 400 km of groomed cross-country skiing, called the Ultimate Loop.

"Seniors make up an important segment of the skiing industry", according to Gary Osterbeck, director of sales for Boyne USA and President of the Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council, "and we're eager to keep them in Northern Michigan during the winter season". Osterbeck went on to explain that, because seniors are an important market segment, his property, in addition to several others, are making offers to seniors that will enhance their winter stay.

Boyne Mountain will offer a special Senior Cross-Country Educational Stay and Ski Week, Feb. 9-14. Seniors will learn more about their own targeted concerns, in addition to enjoying the entire Boyne trail system, free of charge. In addition, Boyne USA offers skiers 65 and over free trail passes every day.

Crystal Mountain offers a 50% discount to seniors 55+ on trail passes, lessons and rentals, while Shanty Creek/Schuss Mountain Resort offers free cross-country skiing to those 70 and over.

Garland, located near Lewiston, offers seniors a 10% discount on all stay and ski packages midweek, Sunday through Thursday, excluding the holiday week.

Cool Ski Area, near Grand Rapids, will offer $1 discounts on all trail passes in 1992, while Grand Traverse Resort will offer two for one trail passes.

Also located in Traverse City, Jellystone Camp and Park Resort will offer a 10% discount everyday on their groomed and tracked Nordic trail system.

The Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council is a non-profit organization dedicated to cooperatively promote cross-country skiing in Northern Michigan. For more information on senior ski opportunities, call or write: P.O. Box 525, Suttons Bay, Michigan 49682, phone (616) 271-6314.

Modern lumberjack blazes new trail

Jack Hoffman

Pellston, Michigan—

We're visiting a lumberjack camp and three quick impressions come to the mind.

- There is an absence of noise in the camp where, under brilliant sunlight, shadows of sleeping trees form a crazy patchwork on the thick, muffling blanket of snow.

- Thousands of spindly aspen reach skyward in every direction, suggesting to the untrained eye that hardwoods are non-existent...and yet stacks of freshly cut maples, white ash, birch and hemlock hug the edge of this logging trail.

- As the logger looks up from filing the cutting teeth of his chainsaws, the image of the swarthy lumberjack of yore who spit tobacco juice and cusswords in equal portions is dashed.

Mitchel (Mick) Bunker's his name. Third generation Northern Michigan logger.

And neither the man, his tools, nor his method of operation fits old molds. Short of stature, intelligent and articulate, he stretches out a hand and, smiling says, "Welcome to my workplace."

His workplace is a privately owned farm woods—in an area where William H. Pells made logging history for himself and the town that grew up around him, Pellston, more than one hundred years ago.

No 1880 logging camp this. His "camp" headquarters is the tailgate of his four-wheel pickup. No bunkhouse here, not even a privy.

Forty-eight-year-old Mick Bunker is owner of Bunker Forest Products; he is the company's chief executive, its accountant, its estimator, its production engineer, its equipment specialist, and, of course, its principal laborer in the forest. He commutes daily from his Wolverine home.

Like hundreds of others, he is typical of the independent proprietor who works the Northern Michigan forests today. Most are part-time lumberjacks, combining outdoors jobs. Bunker, for example, is a mason contractor when he's not logging.

"Logging is hard work, expensive and not especially profitable, but I love it," says this man, who is following the path of his father, Alba, and his grandfather, Levi. "I probably could make more money working for a big logging company but there's a special satisfaction about working for yourself, alone in the forest, and doing something you like. There is nothing quite like the quiet and peace of the woods, Isn't it great," he adds, waving his hand over the treed landscape.

Member of a family of 11 brothers and sisters, Bunker got his first taste of logging prior to graduating from Wolverine High School. "I bought an old truck and a chainsaw and earned enough money cutting firewood to see me through school."

Following his schooling, he worked for several years in construction and as a cement mason. "But the lure of the woods pulled me back; I've not regretted it."

Frugal investment in equipment over the years—trucks, saws, dozer, trailer, and a behemoth tree-link—has allowed Bunker to succeed where many others have failed. "Good equipment is the key today; without it a man just can't make it. The day of working the forests with teams of horses, a crew of lumberjacks, axes and two-man saws is past. With modern equipment, I can, by myself, cut and move many times more logs than man and horses could do in my grandfather's day. About the only people still using horses today are those who love the animals and who do it as a hobby rather than a livelihood."

Not even the name, "lumberjack," survives. Bunker prefers the name "wood producer" for himself.

He bids on cutting of trees on state forest lands or on private property; he also may be called on to do work for an owner through a forestry consultant, or he may, as is the case this winter, work with the mill in cutting a specific stand of trees.

Today, the "wood producer" is a selective cutter, who has learned to preserve and to enhance growth for

NO HORSES HERE— Modern equipment is one of the keys to Mick Bunker's success. He can single-handedly cut and move many times more wood than could a nineteenth century lumberjack and horse.

Skilling, shopping and celebrating the season make Charlevoix, Michigan a "must visit" resort town this Winter

Mount McSaubia Snow Challenge and World Championship Thundertubing Contest highlight Charlevoix's Winter Carnival activities

Charlevoix, Mich.-

Some visitors to this northwest Michigan town say that even without the snow, Charlevoix's shopping, dining, sights and lodging would make it the highlight of their winter vacation.

They can expect more than majestic sunscapes and historical highlights, however, as the lake effect snow in Charlevoix provides the best of cross-country and downhill skiing as well as the foundation for Michigan's wildest winter carnival.

At the Winter Sports Carnival, that wacky sport (not for wimps) thundertubing - reaches a pinnacle Feb. 15 and 16 when the world championship races take place on Charlevoix's own Mt. McSaubia.

Invented about five years ago by lifelong resident Bo Boss, thundertubing involves teams of three friends and tractor tire tubes covered with vinyl on one side and canvas on the other.

The three-man (or woman) teams push the thundertube off the crest of the hill, climb on, and careen at up to 50 miles an hour down the slope, grabbing two yellow flags on their way down and seeing who can do all that and cross the finish line in the shortest time.

The two-day event also features a Snowmobile Hill Climb Drag Race, Fireworks, a 4X4 Truck Hill Climb and for the first time this year a Radiocontrol Car and Truck Hill Climb.

Spectators flock to the mountain to view these events every year, and many of them stay to ski the challenging hill or at one of the other major ski resorts within minutes of Charlevoix, including Boyne Mountain, Boyne Highlands and Nub's Nob, Schuss, Sugarloaf and Shanty Creek.

Charlevoix also offers visitors and residents one of the finest cross-country trails in the state. Panoramic views of Lake Michigan are added benefits for skiers who choose this eight kilometer groomed trail system.

Three loops, from one to six kilometers long, are suitable for novice to advanced skiers, with conditions that can vary from flat ground to steep hills. Ski rentals are available and there are no trail use fees.

Charlevoix offers visitors a variety of restaurants and lodging facilities, many of them centered in and around the quaint village. The town is located between Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix, in the center of Michigan's famous ski resorts.

For additional information contact the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau at 408 Bridge Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720, or call (616) 547-2101 or (In Michigan) (800) 367-8557.

WOOD PRODUCER— Mlick Bunker is a third generation northern Michigan logger, following in the path of his father, Alba, and his grandfather, Levi.

the future. In this Pellston woods, for example, Bunker is selectively cutting hardwoods that will allow sunlight to penetrate dense cover and encourage existing young growth.

The fact that few hardwoods are visible to the untrained eye in this woods is why an inexperienced logger "can lose his shirt or overlook a potential profit so easily," explains Bunker, father of two sons and two daughters.

Bunker cannot be sure, but he was told that two or three others had surveyed the woods and saw few choice hardwood trees among the aspen and pines, telling the farmer the value of the trees was not worth their while. Called by the mill to "cruise" the woods, Bunker saw good trees in this 200-acre stand that others apparently had missed. He calculated the amount of "stumpage" (standing) hardwood trees and their value and recommended cutting to the mill which was looking for premium grades.

"I've learned over the years you've got to get off the trails, snow or no snow, to get a real idea what a stand contains.

"Cruising (systematic eye survey of a woods and estimating the board fee of wood it might produce) is a vital part of logging. I'm no expert by any means but I've learned enough over the years to be modestly accurate enough to bid on timber. When I'm uncertain I'll hire an expert to assist me," says Bunker, who points out that the preliminary work to the actual cutting "may not be as physically tough as cutting" but it's "probably more important."

Once the paper preliminaries are out of the way, Bunker often finds he must first build roadways into the area to be logged. In winter, this kind of work--and the cutting itself--is far more difficult and dangerous. Bunker's work, therefore, "slacks off in winter," usually involving only himself. In summer, his son, Brian, may assist him, and he may hire one or two part-time workers. In no instance will he permit someone working for him to work alone in the woods.

Cost of insurance for loggers "is sky-high" and going up annually, reflecting a general trend as well as the dangers involved in operating equipment and saws and cutting trees that, with misjudgment or an improper cut, can bring a giant crashing down on the cutter or send a splinter knifing into an eye.

No stocking caps for today's logger; the hard hat and goggles are standard wear.

Bunker's basic hardwood cuts are in 10- or 12-foot lengths. These lengths, he says, are more valuable to mills and hence more profitable for today's logger. It is the out layers of a tree that have most value. The heart, center or cant of the tree has the least value because it is this portion that may be soft, rotten or hollow. And that portion of the tree, from its base, to the first branches represent the premium log. Higher, beyond the branches, the grade of lumber produced from the log lessens because it will contain knots.

Once trees are toppled, Bunker cuts away the branches (slashings), then moves in with the treelink that can, with cable winches, easily haul three huge trees from the forest to logging piles where they are cut into the desired lengths.

Sometimes Bunker will load and transport the logs to the mill; other times he may contract to have this work done.

He may sell his logs to one of several different mills--depending on the kind of logs he has, need of the mill, established relationships, or going rates.

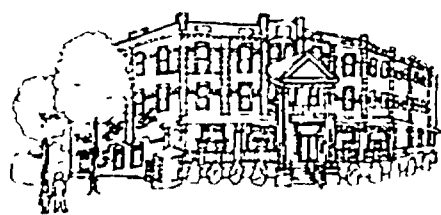

Whereas the early lumberjacks worked out of base camps, within a five to 10-mile radius, today's wood producers, with far easier transportation and the availability of fewer prime stands, have a working range of 50 miles. Bunker's work, for example, may take him into adjacent counties or even into the Upper Peninsula. Nevertheless, the bulk of his logging takes place in Cheboygan County--sometimes into areas where his grandfather cut virgin timber 80 or more years ago.

"Logging was tough work then; it's tough work today. But I doubt if yesterday's logger could make it today. Conservation measures have changed, costs have greatly increased and the margin of error is slimmer. Yesterday's human muscle and horsepower, I'm afraid, just wouldn't be enough to survive in today's forestry world."

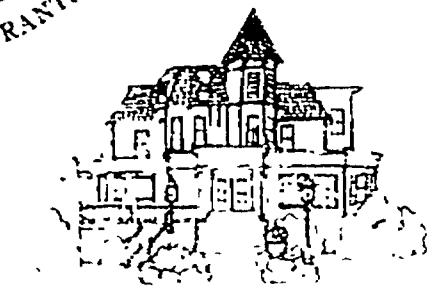

About the author: He and his wife, Joan, own and publish the Straitsland Resorter, a weekly newspaper in Cheboygan County named in 1990 "Michigan's Best" newspaper by the Michigan Press Association. They moved to Indian River in 1985 from the Detroit area where he had been a journalist for 25 years.

It's NOT all downhill.

Luxury camping in a Chicago hotel

Iris
Sanderson
Jones

My friends are into adventure travel. They climb mountains in China, buy trinkets from Nepalese bazaars and tell me their stories while I am curled up in front of the fire like a couch Potato.

This winter I planned a little adventure of my own. I'm going to slog through winter snows to Chicago and spend a weekend camped out in a swell hotel room, the kind with lush carpets and room service.

We all remember the Winter of '89, or was it '79? 1979 that is. Chicago streets were wet and clear but cars were buried two abreast in snow on both sides of suburban roads and you could go cross-country skiing in Lincoln Park.

That's the first thing on The List of Things to Do in Chicago: skiing through the park or the Lincoln Park Zoo; enjoying "TV Treasures: The MBC Archives" at the Museum of Broadcast Communications; visiting the "Land of Green Lightening: Wildlife of the Mayan Realm" at the Field Museum of Natural History.

If you take your kids, give them bus and lunch money and The List; resist the temptation to go with them.

In my fantasy I drive up to the doorman of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel and climb to a high-level room with a great view of frozen streets below. I eat and drink my way through the Water Tower and watch the sun go down on the John Hancock Building across the street.

It's important to get rid of the kids early, so make The List at once. "Antarctica" at the Omnimax Theater at the Museum of Science and Industry. "Into the Wild: Animal Trails and Tales" at the Field Museum.

WATER TOWER— The author's Chicago fantasy adventure includes eating and drinking her way through the famed Water Tower, while the kids are taking in other sites.

Ongoing exhibits and programs at the Oceanarium, in the John G. Shedd Aquarium. "Discovering New Worlds" at the Adler Planetarium.

Seventy seven Chicago hotels offer discount rates through March 31 as part of a city-wide promotion that also includes restaurants, museums, clubs and shops. Hotels are clustered just south of the Chicago River, and up the Miracle Mile of North Michigan Ave, with a few scattered in the older Loop area.

Discounted winter weekend rates for two in the Loop area include $90 with continental breakfast at the huge sprawling Chicago Hilton, $58 at the smaller Bismark. I prefer the location of Best Western's Inn of Chicago at Ohio and Michigan for $69, the Claridge west at 1244 N. Dearborn Parkway for $78-93 or the elegant old Omni Ambassador East further north on State Park, famous for its Pump Room, for $69.

Luxury campers should seriously consider four places where they can eat, drink, play without straying more than a few feet from the hotel. You can do the Ritz-Carlton or the Four Seasons at 900 North Michigan for $155 and up or the Hyatt Regency Suites next to Chicago Place for $119 (sleeps four). The best buy in town may be the Hyatt Regency Chicago for $89.

If you're happy to go out into the streets to shop and play, my favorite hotel in the city is the Mayfair Regent, once an apartment hotel, for $125.

This adventure is real world stuff: add 12.5 percent tax to all hotel prices. Call the Chicago convention bureau toll free at (800) ITS CHGO for a booklet of hotel discounts and be sure to ask for the "Chicago Office of Tourism rate" when you book your room.

Once I get there, I plan to settle in and follow this itinerary: linger over room service breakfast, do some shopping before lunch. I will send the family off with The List and settle into some serious relaxation.

When it's time to go out into the real world again, I will be broke, fat and happy. When my friends go to climb that Chinese mountain, I'll just smile like the cat that swallowed the canary.

Antique show spotlights fakes, frauds, finery

Winnetka, Illinois—

The 23rd Annual Winnetka Antiques Show, sponsored by the Women's Board of the Winnetka Community House, will be held March 6 through 8.

The nationally recognized show features a full range of distinctive furniture, both formal and country, as well as other high-quality American and English antiques -- from silver, jewelry, fine art, and nautical pieces, to Native American works, folk art, and vintage clothing -- from 51 dealers in 14 states. Tickets are $8 for three-day admission.

Pre-show events include an Appraisal Clinic conducted by auctioneer Leslie Hindman on Sunday, March 1, 1-4 p.m. ($5 per verbal appraisal per antique, photographs accepted), and special lecture on Monday, March 2, at 1:30 p.m. (lecture and refreshments $15) "Fake, Fraud, or Genuine? Problems and Puzzles in American Antique Furniture" by Myrna Kaye, author and former consulting curator of furniture for the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities.

The Appraisal Clinic, Lecture, and Antiques Show take place at the Winnetka Community House, 620

Lincoln Avenue, Winnetka, Illinois.

For almost a decade, Mrs. Kaye served as consulting curator of furniture at the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, cataloging over 1000 pieces of 17th and 18th century furniture. Since 1968, Mrs. Kaye has lectured and taught the history of American furniture and decoration at several museums and schools, including the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston and the University of Massachusetts.

The witty and knowledgeable Mrs. Kaye, a native New Yorker, will introduce techniques for examining furniture of the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries in order to discern the genuine, the repaired antique, the honest reproduction, and the complete fake. She warns that fakers may find the lecture discouraging!

The Winnetka Community House is a private, non-profit institution which depends solely on the community for its financial support.

Co-Chairmen of the 23rd Annual Winnetka Antiques Show are Brenda Gude and Meridith Randolph, both of Winnetka. For ticket information, call 708-446-0537.

Produced by Harvey and Rosalyn Pranian, owners of Harvey Antiques and long-time students of Shaker design, the exhibition has received the generous sponsorship of Land's End, Inc of Dodgeville, Wisconsin. A hand bound, limited edition catalogue of the exhibition will be available for purchase. Proceeds from a selection of herbs and vinegars produced by the Shakers will go to the Sabbathday Lake community.

The Shaker communities throughout America produced items of exceptional design and exquisite craftsmanship. The New Lebanon Shaker "Manifesto" of November 1889 may have best expressed the Shakers' understandable satisfaction with the quality of their work: "We have spared no expense or labor in our endeavors to produce an article that cannot be surpassed in any respect, and which combines all the advantages of durability, simplicity and lightness. The largest chairs weigh only ten pounds and the smallest less than five."

The Shaker community put "Hands to work and hearts to God..." Their presence serves as a reminder that the pieces in this extraordinary exhibition are the result of the commitment and dedication of a religious, communal living society.

Exhibition hours are: Tuesdays through Fridays, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sundays, noon to 4 p.m. The Gallery at Harvey Antiques is located at 1231 Chicago Avenue, Evanston, IL 60202. For additional information concerning this landmark exhibition, please call Harvey Antiques at 708-866-6766.

Political cartoons serious business at Ford Museum

Grand Rapids, Michigan—

"Oliphant's Presidents: Twenty-five Years of Caricature by Pat Oliphant" will be on display at the Gerald R. Ford Museum through Feb. 16. The exhibition is comprised of approximately 90 works: cartoons, bronze sculptures, and several of the artist's sketchbooks. Ms. Wendy Reaves, Curator of Prints and Drawings at the National Portrait Gallery and Guest Curator for the exhibition, selected the pieces from the artist's files and various public and private collections.

The exhibition is divided into sections corresponding to the six presidential administrations which span the past 25 years. Beginning with Lyndon B. Johnson, the exhibition advances through political peaks and valleys encountered by Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan, and George Bush.

Pat Oliphant was born in Adelaide, Australia, in 1935. He began his career as a copy boy on "The Adelaide News". In 1964 he moved to the United States and accepted a position as editorial cartoonist with "The Denver Post". Oliphant's syndicated cartoons appear daily in more than 500 newspapers in the U.S. and abroad, making him the most widely read cartoonist in the world. Oliphant has achieved many honors, among them the Pulitzer Prize and an honorary doctorate of letters from Dartmouth College.

This exhibition was organized by Art Services International, Alexandria, Virginia, in conjunction with the National Portrait Gallery, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C.

PRESIDENTIAL LAMPOON— Former President Jimmy Carter and presidential want-to-be Ted Kennedy feel the sharp point of Pat Oliphant's pen in an exhibit at the Gerald R. Ford Museum.

PAINTED PIECE— This red and black cupboard is such a favorite that it has been reproduced for the American Life Collection.

Decorating dream can come true

Jean Day

Furnish your home at a museum?
For most antique lovers who have looked appreciatively at the graceful curve of a Queen Anne foot on a table or highboy, or who have admired the classic lines of a Federal chair on display in a museum, the idea of owning such pieces is merely a dream.

Now, however, through the American Life Collection of the Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Michigan, it is possible to acquire museum reproductions and adaptations, but be aware they bear price tags reflecting quality workmanship.

A project started three years ago to select more than 50 pieces a furniture from the museum and village to be reproduced, along with a full line of more than 100 accessories, has resulted in a 2,600 square foot gallery at the museum where visitors can view the collection in room settings.

In the few weeks since the Nov. 4,

1991, opening of the five rooms of the gallery, museum staffers report there has been a gratifying number of visitors, including decorators and their clients. Linda S. Lagerstrom, product development and licensing manager, explains that museum visitors may purchase the lamps, clocks, mirrors and other decorative pieces in the museum store located adjacent to the new gallery, but the furniture is available only through designated stores, including Classic Interiors, Hudson's Eastland and Jacobson's in the metro Detroit area.

While other museums across the country also license reproductions, the Henry Ford Museum staff says a unique feature of its reproductions is the inclusion of painted pieces.

"It's everybody's favorite," publicist Margaret Johnson declares as she leads visitors to the large black and red painted cupboard on view in the gallery hallway.

Named the Soap Hollow cupboard, the large piece is in two parts, a base and top. In addition to reproducing the stencil pattern, the manufacturer duplicated the wear markings around the knobs and on the corners. Interior lighting over the shelves is the only concession to the 20th century.

For this visitor to the collection last month, it was rewarding to be able to view the original of this and other furniture in the museum's furniture display.

Michael J. Ettema, William Clay Ford Curator of Design History at the museum, who was largely responsible for the selection of pieces to be reproduced, pointed out the original cupboard and dated it about 1851. It is identified as German-American from Pennsylvania.

The American Life Collection piece is priced at $2,175 for the base and $2,820 for the top. It is indeed a major purchase.

As we looked at price tags, Lagerstrom stressed that the prices are manufacturers suggested retail prices and that stores are free to set their own prices on the furniture, which is from Century Furniture Industries of High Point, N.C. She said some local stores are 20 percent below the suggested retail. She also noted that prospective customers are assisted with information on product availability at the dealer resource center in a corner of the gallery.

Ettema explained that when the reproduction project began, it was designed to reach a "middle" market with authentic but simple designs with a big visual impact.

In addition to offering New England wing chairs, Federal New York sofas, a Federal dining table with Chippendale dining chairs, pineapple and pencil post beds and chests, the American Life Collection includes hand-hooked rugs, clocks, mirrors and lamps.

Manufacturers participating in the licensing program include Valdese Weavers and Waverly. They are responsible for the beautiful, authentic fabrics used on upholstered pieces and draperies and bedcoverings. We particularly admired a blue floral basket toile print.

An eye-catching accessory above a New England sideboard with eagle inlays is the large gilt Chippendale mirror. The sideboard is tagged at $7,495 while the mirror is $1,995. Mirrors in the collection are from La Barge Mirrors, Inc., of Holland, Mich.

Lagerstrom points out that the mirrors in the collection often are wider than their originals as homeowners prefer larger versions today. She adds, however, that most of the collection pieces are reproductions rather than adaptations.

Woods used in the furniture collection are basically solid hard woods - cherry and mahogany, and some pine. Of yellow pine, one particularly attractive piece is a sideboard small enough for apartment dwellers. The original in the museum is dated between 1800 and 1830. It is priceless, of course, but the reproduction today is tagged at $1,895.

Interestingly, the sideboard is one of the pieces produced by Century for a small collection authorized by Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village in the 1960s. It was called a pine hunt board then.

Other pieces from this earlier collection still available in the American Life group are an unusual five-sided painted side table and a barrel back chair, adapted from a chair in the Stephen Foster House.

"We think of the collection as investment furniture. We're creating new heirlooms and intend that they be extremely competitively priced," Lagerstrom notes.

As a 1965 purchaser of the barrel-back chair for about $300. I was delighted that this chair, still in my living room, still is available even if the price has risen to $1,465.

While few visitors to the gallery will be decorating entire homes with these museum reproductions, everyone can gain from seeing how the furniture is accessorized.

Reproductions of 18th and 19th century paintings, porcelain figurines, hand-painted toleware and other accessories are from Chelsea House-Port Royal of North Carolina. Lunt Silversmiths have contributed the silverplate bowls, trays and mugs. Mountain Rug Mills in North Carolina supplied the wool hooked rugs. The docks are from Sligh Furniture Company in Holland and Zeeland, Mich.

Noteworthy, too, are such lamps as a porcelain-base version in the traditional tobacco leaf pattern. Priced at $730, it and the other lamps in the collection are from As You Like It, Inc., of North Carolina.

To avoid paying the museum admission, enter the American Life Gallery through the American Cafe entrance of the museum on the side nearest the village. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Call 313-271-1620.

Swiss folk art displayed

Midland, Michigan—

The Midland Art Council and the Midland County Historical Society are presenting Swiss Folk Art: Celebrating America's Roots, through March 1.

Rich in history, color, ornamentation and the deep faith of the Swiss, the objects in this exhibition reflect the devotions and aspirations of these people who journeyed to America in the 1700s bringing a rich legacy of Swiss folk art traditions.

The Swiss cultural heritage can be explored through this exhaustive survey of folk objects which guest curator Cynthia Elyce Rubin has organized into four categories: utilitarian objects; religious and ceremonial works; decorative objects; and American folk art works inspired by Swiss design.

The galleries are open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. The Midland Center for the Arts is located at 1801 W. St. Andrews Road.

Group tours of the exhibit are available. Call 517-631-3250 for more information.

Dan Pohl headlines 3-day golf show...

Southfield, Michigan—

Long-hitting Michigan native Dan Pohl will headline the 1992 Metro-Detroit Golf Show, set for Feb. 14-16 at the Southfield Civic Center Pavilion.

PGA tour star Pohl heads a line-up of professionals that includes Terri Anthony Ryan of the Southfield Courses and Carrie Conrad, Northern Ohio PGA Teacher of the Year, who will be conducting continuous golf clinics at the show. Approximately 5000 square feet of the pavilion have been set aside for clinics, workshops and instructional seminars.

Other hands-on swing improvement devices, such as the innovative Sportech Computer Swing Analyzer, will be located throughout the show.

An anticipated crowd of 20,000 avid golfers will be greeted by more than 100 exhibitors offering a wide variety of golf products and services. This year, representatives of several major manufacturers are expected to display and demonstrate the latest in golf equipment.

Nationally recognized golf antique dealers, including Bob Lucas and Manny Flax, will display a wide variety of unique golf collectibles and be on hand to answer questions.

Major golf resorts in Michigan and throughout the country will be in attendance offering golf vacation ideas and giving away free golf vacations throughout the show. The USGA, GAM and the Michigan Association of Public Golf Courses will also have representatives in attendance.

... Unveils new course

Mt. Pleasant, Michigan—

PGA tour star Dan Pohl, a Mt. Pleasant native, will unveil his new resort course here this spring. Scheduled opening for the 325-acre course is June 1.

The "PohlCat" measures 6810 yards from the back tees and is located at 5665 E. Pickard Rd. (M-20) on the north side of Mt. Pleasant. Pohl, who designed the course, will be on hand at the Metro-Detroit Golf Show in Southfield Feb. 14-16 to familiarize golfers with the new course.

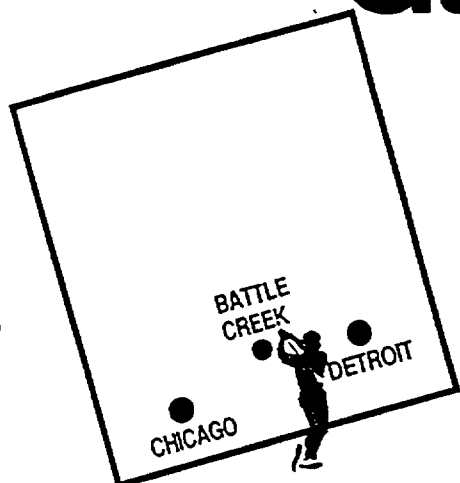

The par 72 (37-35) layout features nine water holes and 56 bunkers in partially wooded, rolling terrain. Five lakes, two ponds and the Chippewa River come into play. White oak, white pine, birch, hemlock and 100-year-old red oaks line the fairways.

The undulating Pencross Bent Grass greens are USDA to specification and average 6000 square feet. Tees are Pencross Bent Grass and fairways are 50 percent Pencross Bent and 50 percent Penlinx.

Custom-built "Cat Cars" will carry golfers along 6.2 miles of

Set aside Labor Day for Senior tour action

Grand Rapids, Michigan—

Officials of the First of America Classic announced the 1992 tournament is slated for Aug. 31 - Sept. 6.

The dates mark the third consecutive year the tournament will have a late summer spot on the Senior PGA Tour schedule.

"The success of the September dates in 1990 and 1991 is proven," said Ron France, co chairman for the 1992 event. "We're pleased to again be slotted in a week that seems agreeable with West Michigan golf fans."

In 1992, Labor Day falls on September 7. Activities for the 1991 tournament began on Labor Day.

"The holiday weekend provides a new twist for us," said co-chairman Tim Emmendorfer. "We'll certainly attempt to capitalize on people's propensity for Labor Day Weekend leisure."

September's FOAC is sandwiched on the Senior Tour schedule by stops in Salt Lake City (Aug. 24-30) and Lexington (Sept. 7-13).

The 1992 First of America Classic features a purse of $400,000 -- $60,000 to the winner. The 1991 payout was $350,000 while the 1990 Greater Grand Rapids Open offered $300,000 in prize money.

"Three components attract a quality field of pros -- community hospitality, the golf course and the prize money," said Tim Emmendorfer, tournament co-chairman. "Our tournament stands near the top of the first two items. It is important we keep pace with other events on the third item."

"The hike in prize money is reflective of the community's support of the event," added co-chairman France. "We're grateful to be firmly positioned for such an increase."

The 1992 First of America Classic is scheduled for The Highlands. The tournament is organized and produced by the Grand Rapids Jaycees. Proceeds benefit Hospice and other West Michigan charities.

LPGA makes new stop in Lansing

East Lansing, Michigan—

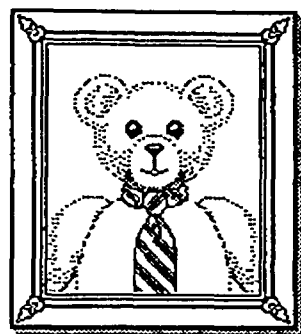

Plans for the 1992 Oldsmobile Classic, Mid-Michigan's first-ever $500,000 LPGA Tour event, are already underway. The event will be held at Walnut Hills Country Club in East Lansing, May 25-31, and features 144 of the world's best women golfers.

The low score over the 6730 yard, par 72 course will take home a first prize of $75,000; second place is worth $46,250. ESPN will nationally televise the second, third and final rounds.

REKINDLE THE FIRE IN YOUR RELATIONSHIP WITH ONE OF THESE SPECIAL ROMANTIC GETAWAYS

Books: Next best thing to being there

Dorothy Webster

Traveling vicariously, while never quite the same as experiencing things firsthand, has its points. You never miss flight or train connections, you don't fight crowds at popular tourist spots, you don't stand in line at newly-discovered restaurants, and you don't encounter surly clerks!

On the other hand, you don't thrill to a sunset from Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel porch, you don't savor freshly sauteed morel mushrooms at Ellsworth's Rowe Inn, and you certainly don't know what it feels like to fight a fly-hooked trout on any branch of the AuSable River. Believe me, those are experiences you don't want to miss - at least once in your lifetime.

Reading about places, other times, and the inhabitants of remote corners of Michigan and other Great Lakes states is part of the preparation for travel later. And what better time of year to prepare than while winter snow lies heavy on the land and roads are slippery with ice?

Here's a selection of recent volumes to help get you in the mood for Michigan highways and byways once warmer weather's here. Of course, if you're enthusiastic about winter travel, then tuck one of the books into your luggage for quiet moments.

One of the most written about and appreciated of the Great Lakes, Lake Michigan has been a spiritual home to many - especially if spectacular sunsets are high on your list of enjoyable pleasures. A husband and wife team of photographers, John and Ann Mahan, lately of St. Joseph, now of Gaylord, have produced a book bound to please you.

Wild Lake Michigan (Voyageur Press, 128 pages, $27.95 hardcover) explores the 300-mile length and 118-mile breadth of this Great Lake in Waters Canoe Area Wilderness, Lake Superior's North Shore and other volumes detailing the splendors of the North Country. Telephone

To prepare for any trip North, read The Collected Works of Sigurd F. Olson edited by Mike Link, if you haven't already done so. Published by Voyageur Press, the two volumes (6 x 9, 282 pages each, $19.95 hardcover) detail the writings of the essential Northern author through his college years.

These are articles written by the celebrated and devoted naturalist in the years 1921-1982. Some of the material has never been published before, and all of it is being published in book form for the first time. In all, there are five volumes planned, each guaranteed to attract a new generation of Olson fans.

For those of us of a certain age who recall where we were and what we were doing 50 years ago on December 7, 1941, Eighty Acres: Elegy for a Family Farm by Ronald Jager (Beacon Press, 240 pages, $15) will bring back memories.

While it details a youngster growing up on 80 acres of Missaukee County during World War II, it goes far beyond mere recollection. Nostalgia it isn't. It's a vivid reminder of a way of life that was too real following the Great Depression of the Thirties and again threatens today.

In those pre-electricity days when their farm was distanced by all its moods. From rippling sand dunes to ice-bound wetlands, dotted with lighthouses, fueled by lore and legend, and rich with history, the Mahans have captured both the romantic view and the ecological reality of the lake.

It's a land of contrasts, from the industrial and nearly used-up southwestern shores to the wild and relatively undeveloped northern coastlines. If you've ever driven west from St. Ignace along US-2 to Escanaba, you've experienced the sand girt shoreline at its best - and, chances are, you've never forgotten it.

"Lake Michigan is a paradox conceived in rocks and born of ice. It is, geologically, an infant cradled in an ancient foundation," they write. "Geographically too large to appear fragile and too small to be given its due, it is to this day misunderstood, mislabeled, and misused....This magnificent everchanging lake, with its surrounding dunes, forests and wetlands, is a testament to the permanence of change."

circumstance from the rest of the world's events, the arrival of a battery-powered radio was a noteworthy event.

"...an ornate box two feet long and a foot high - a brand-new Philco radio from the McBain Hardware Store.

"Within the radio was a heavy battery, the focus of an energy-conservation lesson learned so well that very day that I can still report that batteries for the radio cost $6.60 in those 1940 dollars - about the price of a veal calf. Electricity was still far in the future and the battery radio was undoubtedly a luxury. It was more than luxury; it was sheer magic. The aerial between the chimneys was mystically connected to Grand Rapids, East Lansing, Detroit and Chicago. Soon we all became radio addicts. Goodbye Victorola! Hello Amos and Andy!"

Wartime rationing, particularly sugar, remains in the author's thoughts. His mother's ability to cope with a Saturday night survey of each individual's ration determined whether or not there would be a Sunday cake. "The frosting on those cakes was very, very thin: you could see the cake through it," Jager recalls.

During a childhood markedly different from that of today's youngsters, Jager experienced wartime scrap drives, war bonds, following the war's events on that battery-operated radio, and finally D-Day itself. You'll smile at the author's first writing attempts to win his family a brand-new 1946 Buick, a prize in the Robin Hood Flour contest, in "twenty-five words or less".

Instead of reminding your teenager of what life was like in "the good old days" consider this book as a present - and be prepared for lots of questions to answer.

Life on the Great Lakes: A Wheelsman's Story by Fred W. Dutton (Wayne State University Press, 173 pages, $29.95 hardcover) was first published serially in "Inland Seas" magazine.

Dutton, who was a wheelsman on more than a dozen Great Lakes vessels, details the terror of ships meeting and passing in heavy fog, shore leave and everyday life aboard the vessels that ply the lakes - upbound and downbound.

It can be ordered from the publisher, 5959 Woodward Avenue, Detroit MI 48202, or through your favorite bookstore.

Sweetwater, Storms, and Spirits:

Stories of the Great Lakes selected and edited by Victoria Brehm (University of Michigan Press, 340 pages, $29.50 hardcover) gathers together stories experienced firsthand from a variety of authors.

These stories, excerpts from novels, and Indian folklore are arranged by broad subject chapters, such as "Fishermen" and "Lighthouses and Lockkeepers", and include pieces by familiar authors like Walter Havighurst and James Oliver Curwood. There are also several obscure stories that are delightful and will bring pleasure to first-time readers.

Hunting Hemingway's Trout by Lauri Anderson (Atheneum, 165 pages, $17.95) is baited with traditional elements of wilderness narrative, but readers reel in something more than a typical angler's tale.

Anderson, who is a literature professor at Suomi College in Hancock, identifies with Hemingway's ancestry. Jumping from first-person to third and back again, the author bounds from Chicago to Nigeria in short stories whose common thread is Ernest Hemingway.

What the River Knows by Wayne

Fields (Poseidon, 252 pages, $16.95) is a tale of wading in fly-fishing gear to the source of Cook's Run, a wild, mostly waist-deep stream west of Iron River.

It's a first-person parody of more macho sporting story and becomes more a search for escape and knowledge. Fields, a professor of literature at Washington University in St. Louis, summers in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

With an interesting flashback style of using italics for memories, Fields relives bittersweet moments in his quest for the headwaters of the stream in this book that is more about searching for midlife's meaning than for hidden trout.

Any of these volumes is sure to give the reader a deeper understanding of what the Great Lakes region is all about. Beyond the beautiful scenery, behind the shoreline of deeply-green spruce trees, lies the memory of yesterday and the reality to today - all of which will round out any travelers experience.

Dorothy Webster, a former newspaper and magazine publisher, lives in northern lower Michigan. An artist and photographer, she records out-of-the-way buildings and scenes.

Guide locates 336 Great Lakes lighthouses

Ann Arbor, Michigan—

America's Third Coast — the Great Lakes — is a treasure trove of historical sites for all travellers. Of special appeal to many residents and visitors alike are the lighthouses of the Great Lakes — all 366 of them!

No where in North America are found the number and variety of lighthouses as are within the waters of the Great Lakes. To bring greater public awareness of the maritime importance of the lakes and to increase support for their lighthouses, the Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers Association and the Historical Society of Michigan have jointly published two "Great Lakes Lighthouse Locator Guides."

One map concentrates on Lakes Superior and Michigan, and the other on Lakes Huron, Erie and Ontario. Each measures 23" x 34" and are suitable for mounting and framing. Also available, according to Richard Moehl, GLLKA president, are copies of both maps printed back-to-back and folded for ease of storage and use on trips. "Interest in lighthouses has jumped dramatically in the past ten years," says Moehl, "and that makes these guides so very valuable to the thousands of lighthouse fans who visit them and support their maintenance."

The detailed location of every lighthouse and the drawings of the maps themselves were done by Leo and Sue Kuschel of Taylor, Michigan. "We included on the guides the roads and highways that were proximate to each lighthouse, so that travellers would be able to use them in tandem with their standard road maps," says Leo Kuschel. "A list of every lighthouse on each lake adds to the value of the maps as reference tools and travel guides."

The "Lighthouse Locator Guides" are available directly from the Historical Society of Michigan, 2117 Washtenaw Avenue, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104. The price is $14.10 each for poster-style guides of Lakes Superior and Michigan or Lakes Huron, Erie and Ontario. This price is for Michigan orders and includes state sales tax and postage and handling. Non-Michigan orders are $13.70 each, and Canadian orders, $14.70. The guides are also available in a back-to-back format, folded for ease of packing and in-car use. The prices are $21.50 for Michigan orders (postage, packaging and state sales tax included), $20.75 for non-Michigan orders and $22.50 for Canadian orders.

LIGHTHOUSE LOCATOR— This portion of the guide, drawn by Leo and Sue Kuschel of Taylor, Michigan, shows some of the beacons on Lake Superior and Lake Michigan.

What boaters can do about pollution, pests

Julie Candler

Allan Hayes

Every boater's fancy turns to thoughts of water, now that the holidays are over and the days are getting longer.

In our November/December column, we provided tips on planning "Eco-Vacations," those on which boaters do something positive for the earth and its resources.

Now we're going to discuss positive steps boaters can take to preserve water quality and reduce consumption of that valuable resource of Mother Earth: oil.

Nobody has a greater interest in clean water than boating people. None of us wants the fun we have in our water activities diminished or polluted in any way.

In a recent conversation we had with Joe Weaver, editorial director of WJBK-TV, he remarked, "We've got to keep the Great Lakes from becoming an unlivable toxic sewer." Or even a livable toxic sewer, we told him.

Most pollution in the Great Lakes comes from municipal and industrial discharges. Still, recreational boaters contribute their share. Responsible boat owners know how to avoid polluting, but in case you're vague on some of the rules, here's a brief reminder.

"Please," says Tom Graf, land and water management analyst with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, "if you own a boat with a marine sanitation holding tank, use it, and use the pumping stations. It's the most direct contribution you can make to improved water quality. Don't use the lakes for litter cans. You want to be able to swim in this water."

He adds a caution that disturbs Allan, who thinks it's sexist. "Men," says Graf, "shouldn't go over the side."

Don't even throw cigarette butts into the water. Fish sometimes swallow them and die.

In case you aren't aware, the Federal Water Pollution Control Act prohibits discharge of oil or oily waste into any navigable waters.

To reduce consumption of Mother Earth's valuable resources of oil, try discovering and running your powerboat at its optimum cruising speed. "A planing boat uses less fuel because it reduces the wetted area and creates less friction on the hull," says Dave Hogarth, of Huron Marine in Warren.

"A marine engine has a certain RPM setting where it obtains the best fuel economy. Increasing the speed just a little bit can use up twice the fuel."

When you move up (or down) to your next boat, think about fuel economy. "A lot of boats once had big V-8 engines. Today's lighter-weight boats require only 4's and 6's," says Tom Haag, vice president of Colony Marine, Pontiac.

New boats also achieve greater fuel economy through design. Haag points out that manufacturers of the Sea Ray boats he handles, for example, use computer-aided design. Its goal is to achieve the optimum beam and hull configuration so that the craft goes through the water more easily, thereby performing better with less power.

You can always try "unleaded" boating by switching to sail.

As for municipal and industrial pollution, help is on the way from a newly-activated eight-state Great Lakes Water Quality Initiative. Regulators hope the water pollution around manufacturing plants will go down. So will the toxic chemicals that endanger fish and birds.

There are ways boaters can fight one pesky invader that threatens to upset the ecological balance of lakes and rivers across the United States and Canada.

Boat owners are already experiencing startling encounters with the new arrivals. Powerboater Bernard Galazin of Rochester, Michigan recalls an incident last summer. "I reached down into Lake St Clair to pick up a shell," he says, "and it was covered with zebra mussels."

Skin-divers have reported similar findings on underwater wrecks.

These prolific little mollusks are between 1/8 and one inch long. They are believed to have arrived when a European freighter emptied its ballast into Lake St Clair. This was in 1985, and the sneaky little clam-like pests have already spread through the Great Lakes. Their heaviest concentrations are in Lake St. Clair and western Lake Erie.

They can overheat boat motors by accumulating in water intakes. They clog municipal and industrial water intakes, and glue themselves like barnacles to boat bottoms, docks and anything else they can find.

They feed on microscopic plants on the bottom rung of the aquatic food chain. As a result, water samples in western Lake Erie are now nearly devoid of the plant life on which several species of small fish feed. Some have started to disappear. Without them, many larger fish, such as walleye, may not survive.

Experts agree that the spread of the mollusks into uninfested inland waterways is probably inevitable. The pesky little critters can survive up to 14 days out of the water, so they hitch rides on trailable boats. A boat transported from mussel-laden waters by Tim Kelly, Music by Arne Christianson. Lyrics by Ole Kittleson.

"The BUTLER DID IT, SINGING"

A delightful, musical spoof based on Tim Kelly's enormously popular hit The Butler Did It. Miss Maple, a flaky society dowager, invites a pack of zany detective writers to a spooky house on an isolated island and forces them to impersonate their fictional sleuths. For entertainment, she arranges some "classic" touches — a hairy face at the window, the threat of an escaped lunatic, no communications with the outside world. What she did not arrange is the body on the sitting room carpet! It's up to seedy Chandler Marlowe to solve the bizarre case and he makes a side-splitting mess of it! Ultimately, everyone has a guilty secret to confess and the real killer turns out to be the least suspected. The score is dotted with likable and show-stopping hits.

ZEBRA MUSSELS— These pesky invaders are believed to have arrived in 1985 when a European freighter emptied its ballast into Lake St. Clair. Artist: Carol Allaire.

can infest other lakes and streams in which it is launched.

Slowing the spread of these pests may provide the time needed to develop control measures. You can help, says the Michigan DNR, by inspecting your boat and trailer after taking them out of the water.

Look for zebra mussels on plastics and underwater electronic equipment, to which they are especially attracted. You may also find them on the outdrive, water intake ports, trim and trolling plates, props, prop guards and transducers.

Remove any plant debris where tiny zebra mussels may be entangled. Pass your hand across the boat's bottom; if it feels grainy, it's probably mussels. Carefully scrape the hull, or slosh it off with a high pressure spray (250 lbs per square inch). You'll find that they don't let go easily.

Live bait should never be transported from one body of water to another. Also, be sure to drain all bilge water before a transfer.

After you've rid your equipment of the mussels, dispose of them carefully, preferably in a trash barrel or other garbage container. Don't leave them where they might wash back into the water.

Paul Yauk, of the Recreation Division of the DNR, recommends that you keep your stern drive or outboard raised out of the water when not in use, so there is less surface to which the mussels can clamp themselves. He also advises running your boat's motor at frequent intervals so it will heat up enough to kill recently attached mussels.

Certain polymer waxes and copper based paints seem to discourage zebra mussel from attaching to fiberglass. Before you launch this year, look into anti-fouling bottom coatings that are resistant to the clinging of sticky mussels.

Among the marine paint manufacturers researching the problem is Cortauld Coatings. The company advertises three copper-based bottom paints designed to discourage zebra mussels from clinging to your boat. Fiberglass Bottomcoat is intended for boats that will be moored full-time and has a suggested retail price of about $40 a quart. VC17m ($48 for 3/4 quart) is designed for trailable sailboats, and VC18 ($50 for 3/4 quart is for trailable powerboats. You can call Cortauld's Technical Service Line at 1-800-INTRLUX, or write to Interlux Yacht Finishes, 2270 Morris Avenue, Union, NJ 07083.

Solutions to the long-term problem are also being studied. The DNR is looking for a predator fish that will kill the zebra mussels. Scientists at the University of Michigan and the Detroit Edison Company recently reported the presence of the tubenose goby and the round goby in the St. Clair River. Both of these newcomer fish are believed to feed on zebra mussels.

Natives of the Black and Caspian Seas, these bottom-feeders probably got here in the same way zebra mussels did, by way of ballast from international cargo ships.

You can boil ecologically-sound measures down to one word: swimming. What we hope to achieve is water in which both we and the fish can swim in good health.

Balloon fest dates announced; band contest tickets available

The skies above Howell, Michigan will once again be filled with beautiful hot air balloons in 1992 at Michigan Challenge VIII, the state championship of ballooning.

The Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, host of the event, has announced that the 1992 balloonfest dates will be June 26, 27 and 28.

"This will be the eighth consecutive year for the balloonfest," said Pat Convery, Michigan Challenge coordinator. "It started out as a small balloon rally with a few thousand spectators and has grown to one of the premier outdoor events in Southeast Michigan."

Last summer, Michigan Challenge VII featured 57 balloons, kite shows, a medieval village, arts and crafts, antique and custom cars, a carnival, entertainment and many events in historic downtown Howell. Over 65,000 spectators from around the state and beyond attended the three-day event, making it the most successful Michigan Challenge yet.

"Many of our visitors plan their vacations around the balloonfest," said Convery. "In addition, area residents want to be sure they are in town so they don't miss out on the fun and spectacle."

Dozens of volunteers, headed by Michigan Challenge Chairperson Carolyn Barley and co-chair Steve

Barlow, ensure that the event is run smoothly. "It is the committee that really brings the event to life each year," said Convery. "Their ideas and enthusiasm have made each Michigan Challenge better and bigger."

Charities and non-profit organizations benefit from the event. Michigan Challenge VII contributed over $6,000 to these local organizations whose members worked as parking crew during the weekend.

For more information on the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, contact the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce at 517/546-3920.

'Air Zoo' honors military aviation

Kalamazoo, Michigan —

Duty, Honor—though they are abstract nouns, there is nothing abstract about them in application to the men and women of the United States Air Force or the Army Air Corps before it. Indeed, another abstract noun rates a place beside them—Tradition.

And tradition is the theme of the Kalamazoo Aviation History Museum. Though the emphasis is on World War II, the "Air Zoo" is dedicated to remembering and honoring all of those involved in military aviation.

One of the best collections of pristine aircraft in the United States, the Air Museum boasts six Grand National Champions among its 28 planes. Only around 20 are on display at any one time.)

The P-39 Airacobra, P-40 Warhawk and B-25 Mitchell conjure memories of combats past. Often an original "mud pusher," the P-47 Thunderbolt, will take to the sky for the Flight of the Day. (May-Sept. at 2 p.m., weather permitting.) During its high speed, low level cut-out over the museum, spectators can get a literal feel for what these birds are like in their medium. On warm weather weekends you might get to see the T-6 Texan or Stearman Kaydet make a pass or two.

Not to be forgotten are aircraft from another branch of service, the Navy. As far as is known, the "Air Zoo" has the only collection of famous Grumman Cats flying together today. The Wildcat, Hellcat, Tigercat, and Bearcat can often be seen performing at air shows through out the U.S. and parts of Canada. There is also the spectacular gull-wing Corsair and the massive AD-4 Skyraider.

The trainers and transports hold their place of honor too. Grasshopper and Bird Dog are represented. Along with the Stearman and T-6, the T-28 Trojan proudly shows its colors. A rare "plastic plane," the Timm Tutor is on loan from the Marine Museum in Quantico and there is even an INF Waco used in the Civilian Pilot Training Program.

The enemy is represented also. A Bf.108 Taifun, a Luftwaffe liaison craft, sits beside the Spanish variant of the Me.109 Messerschmitt—the HA 1112 Buchon. Also, some post WW II aircraft, such as the F-84 Thunderstreak and the F-8 Crusader, form static displays on the Museum Mall.

But there is more to the "Air Zoo" than just airplanes. Two rooms full of artifacts, well over 200 expertly built models, over a dozen manikins wearing uniforms and flight gear, several massive engines, the Guadalcanal Memorial Museum and Monument, bomb sites, Link Trainer Room, Gift Shop, Snack Area and Patio, and Video Theater (movies shown on a continuous basis) all complement this fine collection of aircraft. There is even something for the R/C hobbyist—a replica of the Guff, the first Radio Controlled model aircraft, is the center of a display on its creators, Kalamazoo's Good brothers. (The original is in the Smithsonian.) And there are tours of the Restoration Center in the summer.

Certainly there is enough to see and do for an hour or a day. Families enjoy the visit, enthusiasts experience the thrill of rare vintage aircraft close-up.

Coming special events at the Air Zoo include a book signing and talk by Don Lopez on Feb. 12. Lopez, deputy director of the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum, will speak and sign his hardbound edition of Into the Teeth of the Tiger, which recounts his experiences with the "Flying Tigers."

March 1-29 are the dates for an exhibition of paintings by aviation artist Chris Kowell and a display from the FAA's Children's National Aviation Art Contest. From April 18 to May 17, "Vietnam Veterans Memorial: A National Experience,"

Frankenmuth, Michigan—

Later this month Zehnder's of Frankenmuth will host an exhibit of rare art that will never be seen again. The canvass: Zehnder's parking lot. The medium: 256 tons of snow.

It looks as though Mother Nature will cooperate with Zehnder's of Frankenmuth, Bronner's Christmas Wonderland, McClelland Properties, and the Frankenmuth Brewery in providing the ingredients for one of the world's largest snow sculpting extravaganzas, Zehnder's Snow Fest '92, Jan. 30 - Feb. 2. The four major sponsors of the Zehnder's Snow Fest '92 are gearing up for the event, which is expected to draw an estimated 100,000 visitors to the Bavarian town of Frankenmuth.

Zehnder's will host more than 20 teams of artists from the United States and abroad, including nationally and internationally-ranked snow sculpting teams. Zehnder's Snow Fest '92 is the Michigan Snow Sculpting Championship, nationally and internationally sanctioned, and supervised under the direction of the United States and Michigan State Snow Sculpting Associations. The winning team will represent Michigan in January 1993 at the Championship Competition of the Snow Sculpting Association of the United States of America in Milwaukee, and will have the opportunity to compete internationally.

Snow Fest '92 spectators will be delighted by the variety and creativity of artists' sculptures, which will range from the familiar to the surreal. Each awe-inspiring sculpture will be crafted from six tons of packed snow, and will be approximately 10 feet tall. Members of the American Culinary Federation will also create dazzling ice sculptures from 440-pound blocks of ice. These sculptures will be displayed on Zehnder's front porch, and areas adjacent to various storefronts on Main Street.

Three-member sculpting teams will begin sculpting on the afternoon of Thursday, Jan. 30, and will work 12-hour days through Saturday, Feb. 1, to create snow sculptures that are judged on creativity, technique and message. Artists use instruments ranging from machetes to carving knives to chain saws -- depending on the weather -- to create the sculptures. Final judging for Snow Fest '92 will begin at 11 a.m. on Sunday, Feb. 2. Event-goers will also have an opportunity to choose the "People's Choice Award" between noon Saturday and noon Sunday.

The 1,300-seat Zehnder's Restaurant will conduct "business as usual" during Snow Fest '92. Zehnder's will prepare for the crowd by stocking up on its delicious chicken, stuffing, fresh stollen bread and more for its world-renowned family-style chicken dinners. An outdoor "warm-up" tent with hot chocolate and entertainment will also be available to take the "chill" off.

Snow Fest '92 offers something for those who prefer the ambiance of the great indoors, as well. Zehnder's presents "Snow Ball" on Friday, Jan. 31, featuring the acclaimed musical talents of Brass Express. Cost for Snow Ball is $10 per person, and ICE ARTISTRY— Snow sculptures will range in style from the familiar to the surreal. Each will be crafted from six tons of snow.

Southwest Michigan offers family-oriented ski areas ...

Kalamazoo, Michigan —

Southwest Michigan is home to three quality, family-oriented ski areas -- all within a five-hour drive from Chicago and most lower Michigan and northern Indiana cities.

Timber Ridge Ski Area, located about a half-hour from Kalamazoo, boasts the highest natural vertical rise in southwest Michigan and has 100 percent snowmaking capabilities. A two-person chairlift is new this season on the challenging Hemlock slope, bringing the total count to one quad lift, one triple chair, two doubles and a poma lift. The area also has several rope tows on beginners runs.

Timber Ridge has a ski shop that sells equipment, clothing and accessories, a cafeteria and two bars that also serve food.

Timber Ridge works with area hotels, motels and inns to offer skier discounts. Groups of 20 or more may receive special skiing rates. Call 1-800-253-2928 for reservations and information. For snow conditions, call 616-694-9158.

Near Timber Ridge is Bittersweet, off of River Road in Otsego. Bittersweet offers five chairlifts, five rope tows and 15 runs, ranging from beginner to advanced. They also have a lounge and cafeteria.

The area has a full ski shop, ski rental and a certified ski school with special children's programs.

Bittersweet has 100 percent snowmaking capabilities and skiing under lighted slopes nightly. Call 616-694-2032 for more information. For snow conditions, call 616-694-2032.

A bit farther south is Swiss Valley in Jones, Michigan. Swiss Valley offers 11 runs and seven lifts, including two quads, one triple and four rope tows.

Swiss Valley's longest run is 1,800 feet with a vertical of 225 feet. The area has an uphill capacity of 9,800 skiers per hour, making for short lift lines.

Also available are rentals, a ski shop and repair center, night skiing, a cafeteria and numerous children's programs.

Group rates are offered for groups of 20 or more, and ski schools and clubs are eligible for weeknight programs. Swiss Valley also has racing and free-style programs that start in January.

Call 616-244-5635 for more information on rates and reservations. Call the Swiss Valley Snow Phone at 616-244-8016 for 24-hour updates.

SHORT DRIVE AWAY— Southwest Michigan's three downhill slopes cater to first-time skiers and are within easy-driving distance of Chicago, northern Indiana and lower Michigan cities.

... scenic golf courses near orchards and sandy beaches

St. Joseph, Michigan—

Imagine an elegant all suite hotel in a charming harbor town with cobblestone streets and sandy beaches. Add to that enough golf courses to keep you busy for several days. What you have is a golf getaway in St. Joseph, Michigan at the Boulevard All Suite Hotel.

For serious and novice golfer's alike, the Boulevard's Tee For Two package features suite accommodations, continental breakfast, two golf towels, and 18 holes of golf with cart at one of six area golf courses. Participating golf courses include Blossom Trails, Byrn Mawr, Brookwood, Indian Lake Hills, Lake Michigan Hills and The Oaks.

In Southwest Michigan you will find the atmosphere on the courses is relaxed and the scenery beautiful enough to take your mind off a poor shot. Rolling hills, orchards and streams set up challenges for the serious golfer.

Lake Michigan Hills Golf Course describes their best hole as #10 - "If the wind is in your face on this 100-foot elevated tee, you should reach the ideal plateau. Hit too far, and you are faced with a downhill lie for your second shot that must pass a very narrow neck of water left and right and miss the trees beyond. Your third shot is a wedge to a small, well guarded green."

At the Oaks Golf Course #10 is equally challenging: "Your opening shot requires accurate placement to an elevated corner of a severe dogleg. A solid second shot between trees leaves 100 to 150 yards to a narrow, deep green surrounded by woods. You can reach the green in two with a big fade off the tee and a 225 yard second shot."

Elegant hotel accommodations finish off the Tee For Two golf package. The Boulevard Hotel is situated on a high bluff overlooking the lighthouse and sandy beaches of Lake Michigan. Stunning sunsets and a view of the lake set the mood for a relaxing evening. Nearby shopping museums and beaches offer alternative entertainment for your golf outing.

For more information about the Tee For Two golf getaway, call Darcy Peters at (800) 875-6600. Prices range from $129 to $149 plus tax, per night, double occupancy.

PUTTING AMONG THE APPLES— Golfers at Southwest Michigan's Indian Lakes Hills putt, pitch and drive in an orchard-like setting.

Traverse City celebrates Cherry Month

Traverse City, Michigan—

Cherry Winterfest weekend, Feb. 1 & 2 will feature a tradition of days gone by in Northern Michigan: hay rides pulled by a horse drawn team, as Amon Orchards brings Baby and Dolly (two Belgian mares) to the downtown Civic Center. These two young ladies tip the scales at a little over 2,000 pounds each. Draft horses can easily pull 10 times their own weight. They eat approximately 50 pounds of hay, 10 pounds of grain, and drink between 15-20 gallons of water per day. These horses have steel studded snow shoes in order to give them maximum amount of traction in the winter snow and ice.

For a donation of $1 per person (adult), 50 cents under 12 years, visitors will receive a 15 minute ride around the Civic Center area. They'll even learn some interesting history about the Civic Center grounds.

The hay rides, fun for the entire family, will be offered Saturday and Sunday on the grounds of the Civic Center. It's a perfect way to view all the activities of Cherry Winterfest, from award winning ice carvings to competitive team events like broomball and the snow shoe relays.

On the evening of Saturday, Feb. 1, Traverse City will transform into a twinkling winter wonderland, all in the National Cherry Festival tradition.

The Cherry Winterfest Magical Light Parade will get underway at 5:30 p.m. traveling south on Union to Front, east on Front Street, in the heart of downtown Traverse City, to Railroad Avenue.

The parade, made up of floats and marching units, will all be illuminated in the magical light tradition of a Disney style production. Children young and old will enjoy the magic of this Winter production with special visits from the likes of Yogi Bear, T.C. Bear, skiers from the First of America North American Vasa, and an antique fire truck.

Saturday evening's parade will be highlighted by a heart warming, torch lighting presentation made by the folks of the Michigan Special Olympics and their Winter Games participants. The athletes will then journey to Sugar Loaf Resort for their annual Winter Games.

Upon the conclusion of the parade, Cherry Winterfest spectators are invited to view Traverse City's only winter fireworks display at the NMC Maritime Academy near Sunset Park. The magic of snow, illumination and night time skies all come together in an exciting display over the entire city.

Cherry Winterfest, will offer nearly 30 events in all. Highlighting the children's games throughout the weekend is the Giant Game of Traverse City presented by the Crooked Tree Girl Scouts. Follow noted land marks of Traverse City, land in jail, pay a fine or buy a prize with your Cherry Winterfest play money. The playing board wanders throughout the Civic Center on Saturday, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. and Sunday, noon until 4 p.m. Life size land marks are created by area artisans from St. Francis, Pathfinder, and Traverse City Senior High Art Club.

A mini snow golf course, organized by the Lions Club of Traverse City, will challenge both young and old from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. A favorite from 1991's Winterfest will return - Snow Bowling. With alley pins and balls, bowlers of all ages can test their skill on an ice covered lane. This event promises to be a favorite again this year.

Youngsters, kindergarten through 6th grade, are invited to take part in a host of supervised activities such as youth Olympics, children's games, pie eating contest, treasure hunts on Saturday and Sunday, and llama petting on Sunday.

The Cherry Pancake Breakfast, will feature regional entertainment including the Northwind Brass. The Cherry Pancake Breakfast will feature all-you-can-eat home cooked pancakes and sausages topped with locally made cherry and maple syrups. Amon Orchards cherry products, including Cherry Mustard, Cherry Barbeque Sauce, Dried Cherries, and Cherry Almond Butter, will be featured this year at the concession areas and at the Pancake Breakfast where other Winterfest products are sold.

The National Cherry Festival salutes National Cherry Month by offering cherries presented in an unusual way - during breakfast. February, National Cherry Month, promotes various-uses of Michigan's most prized fruit - the cherry.

Tickets for the Cherry Pancake Breakfast are available at the door on both Saturday and Sunday beginning at 8:00 a.m. The all-you-can-eat breakfast will be held at Traverse City's High School cafeteria. Ticket prices are $3 per person or $10 per family.

Nearly 400 runners will be gearing up for one of Michigan's most scenic winter runs. The event set for Feb. 1, will start at the Traverse City High School and follow a scenic, flat (but notably fast) course along the Old Mission Peninsula.

The NorthMed HMO Frozen Foot Race has a history of being run in all kinds of weather from warm and sunny to near blizzard conditions.

This year's participants will enjoy a warm welcome afterwards with an invitation to feast on an all-you-can-eat Cherry Pancake Breakfast.

Pre-registration packet pick up and late registration will be Friday evening, Jan. 31, beginning at 6 p.m. at the Traverse City High School.

Cherry Winterfest Broomball is a favorite, and now a tradition, in the Grand Traverse area. It's an action-packed, co-ed activity played with household style brooms, just shortened a bit, and a lightweight soccer ball. The game of broomball, played in the Canadian tradition, is played on a "court" resembling a hockey rink, but made entirely of snow.

Despite playing on the packed-snow surface and the moving of body parts in very unnatural positions, the Traverse City Winterfest Broomballers Association has modified its rules to make the co-ed event as safe as possible. In the game of Winterfest broomball, rules include no high brooming and no checking.

The Traverse City Winterfest

Broomballers Association meets to play each Sunday afternoon in addition to the Annual Winterfest Broomball Tournament.

The Cherry Winterfest Round-Robin Tournament will begin on Friday evening, Jan. 31, with vigorous play on Saturday, advancing to Semi-Finals on Sunday morning and finals on Sunday afternoon. Awards will be presented court side, at the broomball site in the Civic Center, on Sunday.

For more information on Cherry Winterfest, call 616-947-4230.

Toledo, Ohio—

They've turned over a new wing at The Toledo Museum of Art.

In celebration of the $8 million, two-year main floor and Peristyle concert hall renovations, The Toledo Museum of Art's west wing galleries, built nearly 60 years ago and closed for renovation in the late summer of 1989, has been reopened to the public.

The 16 west wing galleries now feature European and American works of art from the 16th through the 19th centuries: a gallery of Chinese, Japanese and Korean art; a new gallery of Islamic art; and a new Indian and Southeastern Asian sculpture court. Later this year, remaining west wing galleries will open featuring 18th-century European paintings and decorative arts.

The Museum was founded in 1901; the building's center core section was built in 1912, with a 1926 addition doubling its size. When plans for the east and west wings were being drawn in the late 1920s, Florence Scott Libbey (1856-1938), wife of the museum's founder Edward Drummond Libbey (1854-1925), made her intentions known: build as large a building as possible, even though there was at that time enough art to fill only three galleries.

The Chicago architectural firm of Hammond, Beeby and Babka, Inc. has enhanced the Beaux-Arts style of the original architect, Edward B. Green of Buffalo, to heighten the warmth and beauty of the galleries, while redesigning the Great Gallery and other notable spaces.

A new octagonal gallery in the west wing complements the existing rotunda, with both galleries adjacent to the Great Gallery. New gallery wall fabrics and painted moldings combine colors that are both subtle and brilliant in hue. Moldings adorn newly framed doors, ceilings, and baseboards. Above new ceiling daylight, skylights in the new copper roof filter out the ultra-violet rays that can damage works of art. Hidden, yet just as important, are the new heating and air-conditioning systems, as well as an extensive electrical rewiring and new security systems.

The entrance to the Great Gallery has been transformed with two pairs of elegantly fluted columns. One now enters the new central gallery in which the beautiful coved ceiling has been raised five feet. Burgandy colored velvet adorns the walls, and elaborately inlaid floors have been designed in woods of oak, walnut, and ebony. Shortened by 10 feet, the room is now a double cube, considered by architects to be an ideal shape of classical proportions.

No longer will the visitor find Dutch, English, French or Italian galleries. With the reopening of the west wing galleries, the 16th-19th century European works of art will be seen in a new chronological installation, rather than by national schools.

Throughout the Museum's galleries, new interpretive materials that provide more accessible information will assist visitors in understanding and enjoying the collections. Introductory panels place the art within a gallery into an historical context. For selected works, extended labels give information about the artist, as well as the work itself; and for several objects, laminated cards provide extensive background on the artist, working methods, the subject of the work, or specific symbolism. Additional cards are planned for other works in the collections.

The west wing also includes a large, state-of-the-art conservation laboratory for cleaning and restoring works of art for future generations. While the main laboratory space has daylight and incandescent lighting, a special room within is darkened for infrared and ultraviolet examinations.

The redesign of the Classic Court, which houses the Museum's ancient art collections, was approached with both subtlety and showmanship by introducing a grand new vertical atrium at its center, capped by a skylight.

A shaft of natural light now enters through the atrium at the center of the gallery, reflecting the classical architectural tradition. The surrounding ceiling has been made opaque, while additional lighting draws attention to the quality of the gallery's works of ancient Near Eastern, Egyptian, Greek, Roman and Etruscan art.

The Toledo Museum of Art is a privately endowed, non-profit arts institution. Admission to the Museum is free. Call 419-255-8000 for more information.

The Museum is open Tuesday-Saturday, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.; Sunday, 1-5 p.m.; closed Mondays and major holidays.

The Museum is located at 2445 Monroe Street at Scottwood Avenue, just west of the downtown business district and one block off Interstate 75 with exit designations posted.

Nordic racers stampede to Mancelona

Mancelona, Michigan—

This year's White Pine Stampede continues to lead the way in cross country ski racing by offering new class designations—Classic and Freestyle—with top flight competition in each.

The White Pine Stampede, set for Saturday, Feb. 1, offers a 10 kilometer touring course and 20 K and 50 K distances for the seasoned competitor. The course begins in Mancelona, in northwest Michigan, and ends at Shanty Creek Resort.

It takes a good track to make these new classes of competition a reality, and the White Pine Stampede promises the highest quality course in northern Michigan. Both the Freestyle lane and the separate dual track for Classic style will be machine groomed to provide an excellent skiing surface.

An added attraction this year is the White Pine Stampede Sweepstakes, which offers a 1992 Buick Skylark as a grand prize. Register at Perry Drug Stores and northern Michigan Buick dealers. The Skylark will be given away on race day at Shanty Creek Resort.

The 10 K touring course gives recreational skiers the flavor of a big time race with a more relaxing atmosphere. Call 616-587-8812 for registration information.

Mancelona is located on US-131, about 30 miles west of Gaylord.

OFF TO THE RACES— The White Pine Stampede offers a 10 kilometer touring course and 20 K and 50 K distances for the seasoned competitor.

Ice fishing festivals a smorgasbord of fun

A good prescription to ease the mid-winter blahs is to attend one or more of the many ice festivals planned in Michigan, a time to fish for cash and gift prizes and have carnival-like fun at the same time.

If ice fishing's not your thing, no problem. The way AAA Michigan sees it, there's plenty of other things for the whole family to enjoy, depending on which festival you take in.

Here's a list of Michigan winter ice festivals:

—Mayor's Perch Ice Fishing Contest, Caseville, (trophy, cash prize), 517-856-4605, through March 29.
—Shiver on the River, Saginaw, (winter walleye contest), 517-776-9704, through Feb. 8.

HOROSCOPE

January 26 through February 1

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

Be mysterious and let co-workers and friends think you are up to something, even if you are not. Loads of work and responsibility could get you down.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)

You may end up spending time with someone with whom you have very little in common. Don't consume large amounts of alcohol.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

A partner's needs may outweigh your own. Stop procrastinating. It's time to buckle down and complete those projects you have been neglecting.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

This could prove to be an emotional time for you. You will feel safe enough with a certain someone to tell them your deepest secrets.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

Money problems might get you down. Instead of wallowing in self-pity, take decisive action to help solve your problems.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

You're in for some big surprises. In fact, your life will be disrupted often, but for the better. Your romance sector heats up.

By C.C. Clark

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)

Family members could drive you crazy with their constant griping. Get away from them for a while and do things you enjoy for a change.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)

Things aren't nearly as bad as you like to think they are. There is so much good in your life, but you are trying your best not to see it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

It's time to have some fun, and who better to share the good times with than that special someone? Keep things simple and spontaneous.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)

Parents or other family members could create trouble for you. You may start to feel like Dr. Joyce Brothers, as everyone is asking for your advice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)

Your disposition is less than friendly, and you may be the last person to realize it. A financial problem threatens to get out of hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)

Don't even bother to plan activities, as you will have to change your plans at a moment's notice. Your best bet is to take things as they come.

Winter Olympics: CBS has it covered

By Suzanne Gill

Roughly 1,500 of the world's best amateur athletes will gather in Albertville, France, for the 1992 Winter Olympic Games, which begin on Saturday, Feb. 8. Following them will be hundreds more reporters, many with radio and television production crews in tow.

CBS, which has not covered a Winter Olympics since Squaw Valley in 1960, has dispatched an army of news and sports personnel to cover these Games, offering 116 hours of coverage over 17 days. The network has sold an additional 50 hours of weekday coverage to TNT, marking the first time an Olympics has been carried on cable TV.

Anchoring CBS' prime-time coverage of the Games are Paula Zahn and Tim McCarver. Highlights of the evening coverage will include a pre-Olympics special on Thursday, Feb. 6, the opening ceremonies on Saturday, Feb. 8, a variety of skiing and skating events, including pairs figure skating on Tuesday, Feb. 11, and ice dancing finals on Monday, Feb. 17.

Coverage begins each weekday during the "CBS Morning News, with Harry Smith and Greg Gumbel at the International Broadcast Center in Moutiers, France. Live events during these hours will include ice hockey, alpine skiing, speed skating and biathlon. In addition, half-hour wrap-up shows will air each weekday at noon (Eastern time) and once again after the late news. Correspondent Pat O'Brien anchors the late-night show, while announcer James Brown holds forth at midday.

Reporting and feature stories will be done by CBS stalwarts Mike Wallace and Morley Safer, Charles Kuralt and Charles Osgood, Andy Rooney, John Madden and former Olympic gold medalist Scott Hamilton. Their stories range from the sublime (French cuisine) to the insidious (the doping of athletes) and include dozens of athlete profiles, plus stories of tragedy and triumph in Games past.

BITS AND PIECES

'thirtysomething' characters given new Lifetime

Children of the '60s, don't be disheartened — your role models from thirtysomething are returning to television. Lifetime, the cable channel with sensitivity, has acquired the defunct series' library of 85 episodes for its exclusive broadcast beginning in March. Winner of 13 Emmys, the yuppie melodrama will join the ranks of the channel's successful recycled acquisitions which include China Beach and L.A. Law.

TV, the window on the world, will soon open doors for students. Fifteen public television stations and their local schools will begin a four-month test in March of a new satellite system that promises to provide a nationwide interactive communications network for educational institutions. Very small aperture terminal (VSAT) technology, which enables the transmission and reception of voice, video and printed data, has the capability of linking students and teachers to libraries, museums, databases and other classrooms throughout the PBS service area. Funded by public television stations and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Project VSAT expects to have all PBS stations in America equipped with the cutting-edge technology by 1993.

To air or not to air, that is the question. Soon, home viewers may have a part in the process of deciding which programs get a shot at being on the tube. Producers Showcase Television, which begins limited runs early this year, will preview TV pilots of all genres from network and independent producers for audiences to comment upon by phone or mail. The service will enable producers to retool their programs in the case of negative responses, and allow them to supply marketing answers to potential buyers.

Ellen Barkin and Al Pacino play unlikely lovers in Sea of Love, CBS' Saturday movie.

Ken Burns tells an American story

By Dan Rice

Ken Burns is one of the rarest of filmmakers: a documentarian of whom you've probably heard. His monumental achievement, The Civil War, has been called the best television documentary ever made. His newest work, Empire of the Air: The Men Who Made Radio, premieres Wednesday, Jan. 29, on PBS.

The 38-year-old resident of New Hampshire has been in the business of putting truth on film for half of his life now. His list of other award-winning documentaries include Songs of the Civil War, The Shakers: Hands to Work, Hearts to God and his first film, Brooklyn Bridge, which will air along with Empire on Wednesday.

Citing the late John Ford as the director most influential to him, Burns didn't always want to make documentaries. "I had planned to be a Hollywood director, but I ran into a bunch of teachers who reminded me that the ways things are and were, if told carefully, are much more dramatic than anything I could imagine on film."

The next big project for Burns is a film dealing with the history of baseball, which he expects to complete by the fall of 1994. His treatment of the American pastime promises to be much more than just a day in the park.

LET'S TALK

Kevin Costner tops on reader's list

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Could you please send me Kevin Costner's address? I'm his No. 1 fan and would be grateful if you would send me some information on him. When you send me his address, make sure it's his home address. It would be kind of you to do the same for Harrison Ford. I'm his No. 1 fan, too. —Jennifer Olivares, Gilmer, Texas.

A: Costner was born in Compton, Calif., on Jan. 18, 1955. In high school he was the class jock. He was halfway toward a degree in marketing at California State University before he decided on acting. Never one to put all his eggs in one basket, he continued his college courses and enrolled at the Southcoast Actors Co-op and appeared in a number of community productions. He earned his degree, married his college sweetheart, Cindy, and got a job at a major national firm.

Determined to break into movies, he quit his job after 45 days. Finally, he landed a part in PBS' Testament. His reviews helped him get the role of Gardner Barnes in Fandango. After that, his career soared. Costner and his wife live in California with their three children. Even if I had a home address, I wouldn't give it out. You can write him care of CAA, 9830 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Harrison Ford was born July 13, 1942, in Chicago and was raised in the suburbs. He flunked out of college three days before his class was to graduate, then moved to Los Angeles and was signed by Columbia Pictures for $150 a week. He was released from his contract (Ford claims he was too difficult) and headed over to Universal Studios. In 1977, George Lucas, who had picked Ford for a small role in American Graffiti, chose him for a lead in Star Wars. The movie was a hit, and Ford was catapulted to fame. Ford resists publicity, claiming it blurs an actor's vision. He is currently married and has two children from his first marriage. No address is available for him.

Q: I've seen the address where to write Richard Dean Anderson in your column several times. Can you please give some information about him? —Mary Bowling, Corbin, Ky.

Kevin Costner

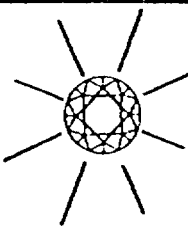

A: The tall (6'2") actor was born Jan. 23, 1950, in Minneapolis. His mother was an artist and his father a jazz bassist. Anderson wanted to be a hockey player, but after breaking both arms in different accidents, he decided to find a less violent occupation. He developed an interest in acting and moved to Los Angeles. Stints as a stage manager, street mime, juggler and even a jester singer at a Renaissance-style cabaret preceded a role in Superman of the Bones at a Los Angeles theater. Next came a role on General Hospital for five years. In 1982, he appeared in the short-lived series Seven Brides for Seven Brothers. From 1983 to 1984, he appeared in Emerald Point, N.A.S. In 1985, he began his lead role in MacGyver.

Q: I would greatly appreciate the addresses of the following: Sally Jessy Raphael, Oprah Winfrey, Geraldo and Maury Povich. I have a story that could be of great interest to a great many people. —Jeanne Smith, Ironwood, Mich.

A: You can write to Raphael at 510 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y., 10019. Write Winfrey care of Harpo, Inc., P.O. Box 909715, Chicago, Ill., 60690. Write Rivera at 524 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y., 10019. Finally, write Povich care of Paramount Domestic Television, 5555 Melrose Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif., 90038.

Sex on soaps:
less or more?

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I'm writing to you because I'm fed up with the overabundance of sex on All My Children. I have watched this show for many years, and it was a beautiful, loving family story. But it has gone from bad to worse. People are jumping into bed with whomever is available. This is not the kind of conduct our young people should view. I think only married couples should have sex. I do love the story, but it needs more love, trust, understanding and fidelity among the characters. —Emma Schrag, Sioux Falls, S.D.

Dear Emma: I understand how you feel, but I have to let you know that as far as sex is concerned, AMC is one of the mildest soaps on television.

I have a feeling you are talking about some specific characters, namely the twins Janet and Natalie. Several other readers were upset over Janet getting pregnant with Trevor's baby. (At the time, Trevor thought Janet, Natalie's evil twin, was Natalie.) How could Trevor not know it was Natalie? He's only been seeing her for the last year. It could only happen on the soaps.

Dear Candace: Do you ever watch the show Days of Our Lives? If you do, you surely saw the charisma and chemistry between Shane Donovan and Kimberly Brady. They lit up the screen when they were together, especially in love scenes. I wished before Patsy Pease (Kim) left the show, these two could have had some intimate scenes. I also wished they could have gotten married again. Patsy Pease was the best actress on TV. No one can really take her place. —A dedicated fan in Portland, Ore.

Dear Candace: I'm writing to you to say Scott Thompson Baker is a wonderful actor. He was very good on General Hospital, but I think he is 100 percent better on All My Children. Can you please tell me where I can write to him? —Linda Stumper, Thomasville, N.C.

Dear Linda: You may write to Baker c/o All My Children, ABC-TV, 77 West 66th Street, New York, N.Y. 10023.

I'd like to hear from you! Send your questions or comments to: Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.
