

Driver gets two years

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The family members of joggers Yusuf Hanania and Albert Abdelnour said they obtained a measure of justice Tuesday when the man convicted of killing the brothers-in-law was sentenced to 15 to 24 months in prison.

The sentence was one month less than the maximum allowable by law.

Kenneth Loveday, the former Novi resident convicted Jan. 9 of negligent homicide in the two men's deaths, was sentenced by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Francis X. O'Brien.

The Feb. 11 sentencing was punctuated by emotional statements from Hanania's wife, Angela; their 12-year-old daughter, Andrea; and Abdelnour's brother Basim.

"Please your honor," Angela Hanania said, "let me be able to go home to my children, look them in the face, and tell them that justice has been done."

Hanania, 38, was an engineer and vice president with Singh Development Co. His wife lives in Novi with their three children, who attend Northville schools.

Basim Abdelnour held photos of his brother and brother-in-law up for the courtroom to see, describing them as beloved husbands and fathers.

Abdelnour, who described the incident as "several seconds of drug-induced insanity," said,

"Kenneth Loveday is not the victim. He has shown no remorse. Instead he smirks and sneers and smiles at our pain."

Defense attorney Jerry D'Avanzo concentrated on the condition of the Eight Mile Road scene of the accident which caused the deaths. He noted the narrowness of the two-lane road, its 50-mph speed limit, and the constricted gravel shoulder. "Now combined with these factual circumstances, we had the unfortunate situation of two men who took it upon themselves on this particular morning to go jogging on the highway toward oncoming westbound traffic," he said.

D'Avanzo reiterated Loveday's original assertion that he "veered to the right suddenly, very suddenly, to escape a pickup truck that was veering over into his lane."

D'Avanzo concluded, "This was an accident, your honor, an unfortunate accident in which two people happened to die."

Finally, Loveday himself took the stand and made his own short statement. "The victims' families do not know how I feel inside," he said quietly. "They do not know what I'm going through day to day. I wish this was a day that I could just put behind."

Before passing sentence, O'Brien noted the many letters submitted to the court regarding the case, "from ministers, teachers, friends, family, and those whose opinions are based upon what they've read in the paper."

The judge also noted that "many of (the letters) are critical of the jury's verdict, and critical of the court's ruling on the admissibility of evidence, and that's understandable to this court. . . I recognize that some feel that the court erred in admitting evidence relating to the drugs, and others feel the court erred in excluding evidence about the defendant's prior driving."

But, he said, "The court is bound to follow the rules governing the admissibility of evidence, and they are very difficult decisions."

During the trial, O'Brien had barred testimony allowed at a preliminary examination that Loveday and friends played games while driving where they would swerve toward other cars and drive close to pedestrians to scare them.

Hanania and Abdelnour died June 5 on Eight Mile just east of Beck. Loveday's Jeep Wrangler struck the two joggers after swerving off the road into their path.

Loveday, 20, said he swerved to avoid a gray pickup truck, but the claim was not supported by other witnesses to the incident. Passenger Michael Gibson testified that the two had smoked marijuana minutes before Loveday struck the joggers.

Loveday had faced the more severe charge of involuntary manslaughter with a motor vehicle, a felony punishable by up to 15 years in prison.

Shared police services debated

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

A joint meeting Monday between the city council and township board found both sides willing to explore further the possibility of joint police services.

The meeting at township hall came in response to "a fundamental difference" between the two municipalities' view of consolidating police service. In the words of City Mayor Chris Johnson,

"The dispute, over whether both municipalities or the city alone would bear the brunt of layoffs in the event of a police dispatching or department merger, was not resolved Monday night. Instead, both sides agreed to seek bids from outside consultants to study the form that such a merger might take."

"I think one of the reasons we're here tonight is a discussion that began a number of months ago, a year ago actually," Johnson said. At a recent meeting with Township Supervisor Betty Lennox and police chiefs Rod Caron of the city and Chip Snider of the township, "it was clear to me that what I had initially been thinking about, in terms of combining these services, was different than what the township had in mind," Johnson said.

"It was the thought of at least the city council and myself that what we were looking at was a consolidation . . . and I think you were approach-

Police raid video store

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Taboo and Taboo IV are off the shelves at a video store in Northville Township.

So are Anal Angels and Anal Alley.

Armed with search warrants, township police on Tuesday raided Northville Video, 43197 Seven Mile Road, and confiscated four alleged pornographic videotape jackets, a computer, computer records, and boxes of alleged obscene glossy materials.

The raid was authorized by the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office and was sparked by a Dec. 19, 1991 complaint filed with township police by a Detroit man, who identified himself as the president of the Michigan Coalition on Pornography.

No arrests were made and no charges had been filed as of press time Wednesday against Carl Wilson of Brighton, the owner of Northville Video Inc. Wayne County prosecutors are scheduled to review the confiscated materials and could decide to prosecute under state obscenity statutes, said township police Capt. Philip Presnell.

Wilson could face up to a year in prison and/or $100,000 fine, if tried and convicted under state obscenity laws.

Wilson was unavailable for comment Wednesday. A woman who identified herself as Wilson's wife said she would not comment on the raid "at this time."

Police launched an investigation into Northville Video after a Detroit man complained that the store was featuring obscene videotapes. An undercover township police officer then rented the allegedly obscene tapes, and eventually provided copies of the tapes to the county prosecutor's office.

Prosecutors on Monday gave police the go-ahead to raid the store, after determining that tapes inferring incest and other explicit sexual situations may violate state obscenity statutes.

In addition to the allegedly obscene tape jackets and glossy materials, police confiscated the company computer and lists indicating the names of those who have rented the four videotapes and other potentially pornographic materials.

The Detroit man whose complaint prompted the seizure was contacted at his home Tuesday evening. He refused to give his name, fearing harassment of his family, but said the complaint was based on a Michigan Coalition on Pornography "general investigation" of the store.

"The material that was in that store I would deem to be obscene under Michigan law," he said.

Township looks to 21st Century

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

The 21st Century won't roll around for the better part of a decade, but a group of Northville Township residents believes it's not too soon to look at the future.

An organizational meeting of Northville 2000 — two dozen hand-picked residents of varying backgrounds and experiences — convened last weekend. Their charge: To help officials develop a future needs strategy for Northville Township.

"The goal is to elicit as best you can a direction as to what the township should look like in the year 2000," said John Farrar, who is serving as group chairperson. "I see this as a sort of sensing process, to get a sense of the community's needs and desires."

Farrar served as a project leader in 1986 for Livonia 2000, a group with similar goals, but with different financial resources. The Northville study group meets on a strictly volunteer basis.

Considering the township's financial constraints, and misgivings on the part of many residents to approve some tax initiatives, a goal of Northville 2000 will be to create a document that can "differentiate between a wish list and a should list," Farrar said.

That document most likely will take the shape of a survey which could be circulated among Northville Township's many subdivisions and homeowners' associations.

To develop a survey, the group must understand county and local government plans for infrastructure and other needs. The group must then look at setting township goals based on those existing needs, Farrar said.

After that, it's up to local officials to interpret and implement plans rendered by the group.

"The report becomes sort of a road map or reference point for local administrators to follow," Farrar said.

Group members will break into subcommittees to investigate and compile information on such topics as township leisure and recreation, public safety, human needs, con-

Millage election set by schools

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

The Northville Public Schools Strategic Planning Committee is expected to meet tonight to discuss possible millage questions that could face the electorate in a special election April 28.

The board of education Monday night approved a request from superintendent Leonard Reznierski to petition the Wayne County Scheduling Committee for permission to have a special election to establish the 1992 millage campaign.

The actual date of the election is subject to the approval of the scheduling committee, district officials said.

Details of the upcoming millage question have yet to be determined, but the strategic committee is expected to discuss the issue tonight and make a recommendation to the board in March, Reznierski said.

At that time, the board will have to adopt a resolution backing the ballot issue and authorizing its language. District officials aren't saying whether the ballot question will be a millage renewal or increase, but say the strategic planning committee will be responsible for making suggestions and recommendations on future district concerns.

Township recycling negotiated

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Free recycling services apparently will be offered to township condominium and multiple-family home dwellers.

Township and Browning-Ferris Industries officials on Tuesday confirmed that accord is near on a plan to offer free recycling services to all township residents.

"It's fair to say it's going to move forward," said Thomas Handyside, BFI district manager of the Michigan Landfills District. Handyside also serves as a Northville Township trustee.

Handyside said "complicated negotiations" are near completion involving a BFI-funded special assessment district and discussions with Ypsilanti Communities Utilities Authority (YCUA) over sewer flow from BFI to the Ypsilanti treatment plant.

Agreement on the multi-tiered proposals apparently would clinch a stalled deal between the township and BFI to provide recycling collections for all township residents, cementing what had been a confusing series of on-again, off-again promises.

No start-up date for township curbside recycling has been determined, Handyside said. Further details of the apparent agreement are scheduled to be discussed at tonight's (Feb. 13) township board session.

Township and BFI officials began talks almost a year ago that centered on the township leasing out capacity in its under-construction Western Townships Utilities Authority sewer line.

Salem Township-based BFI was seeking capacity to siphon off some of its waste and approached the township about a portion of reserve capacity in the township line.

Then-township Supervisor Georgina Goss in April announced a tentative deal with BFI which was to include four years of free recycling services for all residents. In addition to yearly cash payments to the township general fund.

But Goss left for the state Capitol and negotiations between YCUA, the WTUA communities and BFI blurred. Somewhere along the line, multiples and condominiums were cut out of the recycling arrangement.

That approach did not sit well with some homeowners associations, including Highland Lakes, which boasts 700-plus residents. Lakes residents met with township officials and once showed up in force at a township board meeting to emphasize their concerns.

The township got the picture, and Supervisor Betty Lennox eventually suggested the township would not sign off on the deal if condominiums and multiples were excluded.

Lennox reiterated that point Tuesday. "The township's not going to sign until we get that," she said.

Handyside said BFI's resource recovery camp has had talks with homeowners associations concerning methods of collecting recyclable materials. Possible collections strategies could involve placing bins or dumpsters around condominium sites.

A local homeowners' association representative was pleased to hear of the impending settlement.

"We are quite happy to hear this," said Ray Thompson, Highland Lakes property manager. "It's been a struggle."

Thompson said BFI officials hope to start recycling collections in late spring. He said the association has not worked out all the kinks in the collection system, but said BFI seemed cooperative.

"They indicated that whatever we decided, they would try to provide it," he said.

'Teacher's teacher' recognized

By SHARON CONDRON

Colleagues call her a teacher's teacher. Parents say she's a credit to her profession. But it's her students' comments that illustrate her best attributes and biggest career achievements.

For Patricia Baird, a seventh-grade math teacher at Cooke Middle School, the kind comments from her co-workers, bosses, and students were only part of the reason behind her tears Monday.

Baird, in a surprise announcement, was named this year's Wayne County middle school recipient of the Newsweek-WDIV Outstanding Teacher Award. Nominated by her colleagues in January, Baird was surprised, to say the least, about the news.

"I was shocked . . . just flabbergasted," said a teary-eyed Baird Monday afternoon after hearing the news from Cooke Middle School Principal Jeffrey Radwanski and a handful of district administrators.

"I just feel it's a great honor to be recognized by your peers. It's the best honor I've ever received in my career."

As a contest winner, Baird won $2,000 and will be recognized at dinner reception hosted by WDIV and Newsweek, and featured in an upcoming issue of Newsweek among contest winners from the Metropolitan Detroit area.

To be eligible for the contest, nominees had to demonstrate a thorough knowledge of the subject material, be enthusiastic, encourage self-esteem, be good leaders and classroom managers, and be professional full-time teachers with at least three years' experience in a public school.

Baird meets and exceeds those criteria.

"When I first walked through your classroom in seventh grade, I wasn't expecting much and because it was math," an anonymous student wrote in a letter that was included in the nomination packet. "I knew it would be boring. It didn't help either to have an impression of you as a tough teacher. But as it turned out, you made it fun to learn. You helped me and others to learn math in an easier way. Because of you, I know I can relate with math better in the eighth grade and hopefully in the future."

Baird was a substitute teacher in the district for one year prior to taking her first full-time assignment as an eighth-grade typing teacher in 1983. Prior to that she was employed by two districts in West Virginia.

"I love getting up in the morning and going to my job," she said. "If ever I stop wanting to go to work, I know it's time to call it quits. I haven't reached that time yet. I like kids and enjoy working with them."

"The best part of my job is having my students come back and thank me for teaching them. It makes you feel really good to know that you've touched their lives in some way."

Local Jaycees chapter revived

Northville Jaycee Teresa Folino has announced the formation of a new Jaycees chapter in Northville.

The Northville Jaycees disbanded last year after membership difficulties. But Folino said 20 charter members are together and excited about the new organization.

The group's first meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 25 at O'Sheehan's, on Seven Mile Road just east of Northville Road. Anyone interested in the group is welcome to attend the meeting or to call 349-3391 for more information.

Jaycees are a group of men and women between the ages of 21 and 40 who are dedicated to community improvement, community involvement and personal growth.

In addition to being active locally, Folino serves as management development president for the Michigan Jaycees.

Thieves target township homes, vehicles

A Crestview Circle resident told township police that someone broke into his 1991 Chevrolet Beretta and stole $2,400 worth of stereo equipment.

Thieves reportedly smashed the car's passenger side window and stole an AM/FM compact disc player, two amplifiers, an equalizer, speakers and a sub-woofer. The theft reportedly occurred late Feb. 8 or early Feb. 9 as the vehicle was parked in the resident's driveway.

OPEN GARAGE DOOR PROMPTS THEFT: A Woodcreek Blvd. resident reported the theft of items valued at more than $2,605 Feb. 8, township police said.

The resident said a garage door was left open at about 12:15 a.m. and the theft was discovered at 8 a.m. Reported stolen were downhill skis, poles and boots, and men's and women's golf clubs. Police discovered foot prints leading from the roadway to the garage, but noted no additional evidence in the theft.

KNIVES SHOWCASED AT SCHOOL: A 16-year-old Northville boy reportedly showed at least four knives to a gathering of children outside Meads Mill Middle School, 16700 Franklin, the afternoon of Feb. 7, according to township police reports. Witnesses said the boy had at least four knives and was showcasing them, but did not attempt to assault anyone.

Police searched for the youth but did not locate him Friday afternoon. The case is still open, police said.

CAMERA EQUIPMENT STOLEN: A Lagoon Court resident told township police that someone stole a camera and strobe, plus an opal ring, from her home sometime Dec. 30 or Dec. 31.

The ring was later found in the driveway of the home and reportedly was damaged. The camera equipment was valued at $550 and has not been recovered. Police said no evidence of forced entry to the home was reported.

OUIL: A 34-year-old Livonia man was charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor after his arrest on southbound Haggerty near Seven Mile early Feb. 7, township police said. A Breathalyzer test indicated the man's blood-alcohol content was .11. The man reportedly refused a second test.

REARVIEW MIRROR LEFT HANGING: A car parked at Northville Downs, 301 S. Center St., had its left outside rear view mirror broken between 6:15-11:45 p.m. Feb. 8. The owner returned to find the mirror dangling from its remote control cable. Damage was estimated at $75, according to the city police report.

RESIDENCE BROKEN INTO: A Gardner Street apartment was broken into sometime between 9:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Feb. 7.

An estimated $10 in coins was stolen from a crayon-shaped bank in the apartment's bedroom, according to the city police report. The thief or thieves apparently entered through an unlocked bedroom window and left muddy footprints across the carpet and bed.

FENDER BENDER: City police cited a 77-year-old Milford man for failing to yield after the man drove into another car at Main and Wing Feb. 8. The man was driving south on Wing at 11:25 a.m. when he apparently ran the stop sign, striking an eastbound car. No injuries were reported.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Pep assembly

Northville High School celebrated Spirit Week all last week, including a pep assembly Friday afternoon. Above, Rob Subotich and Karen Kosman do some high kicks.

City appointments set

The Northville City Council recently made a number of new appointments and reappointments to city boards and commissions.

On the Downtown Development Authority, where three members including founding member William Sliger recently announced their resignations, David Larsen was named to fill the slot left vacant by Ed Jamieson last year. Larsen's term will expire Sept. 30, 1994.

The council also regretfully accepted the resignation of Margie Davis from the DDA. Sliger and Davis resigned in response to a recommendation made by Mayor Chris Johnson last year. Johnson had recommended that two of four DDA members scheduled to take extended winter vacations resign from the commission rather than leave their positions vacant.

William Demray was reappointed to a term expiring Sept. 30, 1994, while Greg Presley and Dee Richardson were reappointed to four-year terms expiring Sept. 30, 1995.

Jacquelyn Murray was reappointed to the Arts Commission for a three-year term expiring June 30, 1994.

John Haas, Carmen Kuckenbecker and Marie Schultz were reappointed to three-year terms on the Beautification Commission, to expire July 1, 1994.

Stewart Kissinger was reappointed to a six-year term expiring Jan. 1, 1998, on the Economic Development Commission. A. Malcolm Allen, Richard W. Bohn and Francis Gazlay were reappointed to three-year terms expiring Jan. 1, 1995, on the Historic District Commission.

Michael Beebe was reappointed to a two-year term on the Youth Assistance Advisory Council. His term expires Dec. 31, 1993.

City, union agreement saves job

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The city council accepted a clerical union proposal last week to save at least one clerk's job. The proposal came in response to planned cutbacks at city hall that would have cost the job of 1½ clerk positions, and will eliminate Deputy City Clerk Tonni Burns' position and consolidate several positions under Assessor Mark Christiansen.

The 14-member clerical union agreed to reduce its work week — and thus its wages — by 10 percent for all clerks except the five in the shared-services departments.

Clerks currently working 40 hours a week will work 36 hours instead, and those working 24 hours per week will work 21.6 hours instead.

The cost reductions do not include reductions in fringe benefits.

One half-time worker is still scheduled to be laid off under the proposal. Barbara Kowalski, a front-office clerk, has volunteered to take a layoff instead.

The union's proposal remains in effect until a clerical worker leaves the city.

Pat Conn, a finance clerk and president of the Northville Clerical Employees Association, said the proposal was the best way the union saw to save a job and maintain city services when faced with a city administration plan to reduce the clerical and administrative budgets by about $75,000.

"It was the only thing that we could find that could save that kind of money they were talking about," she said. "There was no other way."

The reduced hours should not have much of an impact on city services, Conn said.

"That's one of the reasons we chose this way," she said. "We took into consideration the citizens and the clerks themselves as far as the layoff, and we thought it was the best proposal."

She described the reduction in work hours as "very common in other companies."

Conn was uncertain which full-time employee would have been laid off without the union proposal. "We didn't know whether it was going to be based on seniority or department," she said.

If based strictly on seniority, one of two recently hired part-time shared-services clerks would have been let go, Conn said. But she added that the shared-services positions would have been difficult to cut because they are funded by both the city and township. Also, she added, "the library had already taken some cuts."

As far as full-time employees are concerned, Conn said she is the one with the lowest seniority.

New Relief For Foot Pain

Ankle pain, Heel pain, Corns, Bunions, & other foot & ankle ailments can make you hurt all over. Foot Health Centers uses many modern techniques and instruments to relieve you of your foot pain and get you back on your feet as simply and quickly as possible.

MINIMAL INCISION SURGERY-LIXISCOPIC SURGERY

Many foot problems are treated by lixiscopic surgery or minimal incision surgery. We pre-numb the area, so you will feel nothing. Remember "We Cater To Cowards." Rather than making a large incision and opening up the entire affected area, tiny 1/6 to 1/4 inch openings are made in the skin of the patient's foot. The nerves, blood vessels and other structures are pushed aside. Small surgical instruments are used to reduce the excessive calcium to a fine powder and simply flushed out. Usually one or two stitches are all that are needed.

One of the most common problems seen and treated at Foot Health Centers are bone spurs and calcium deposits. They can cause such problems as:

- Heel Spurs — Pain on the bottom of the heel. Heel spurs and bursitis can make those first steps in the morning or after sitting a while pure agony!
- Bunions — A "bump" on or by the big toe often red and painful from rubbing against the inside of your shoe. Sometimes the big toe crosses under the second toe.
- Corns — A build-up of hard skin on the top or inside of a toe. These are especially painful when rubbed against shoes.
- Callus — An excessive accumulation of hard skin on the bottom of the foot. A hard core is commonly seen when the surface hard skin is removed.
- Bone Spurs — General lumps or bumps that get irritated especially when wearing shoes.

Relief Without Surgery

Many times a pain in the heel, ball of the foot or elsewhere is caused by inflammation or internal swelling, not by a bone spur or a growth. Swelling presses against the nerves—causing pain. This pain sends a message to the brain which causes more swelling. A vicious cycle. The aim of the treatments at FOOT HEALTH CENTER is to break this swelling-pain-swelling cycle. Some effective treatments are:

- Ultrasound — high frequency sound waves that act similar to a microwave oven to cause deep heating, increased circulation and decreased swelling.
- Anti-inflammatory medications — either oral, injected or transferred by a slight electronic current — a Phoresor.
- Athletic taping or special padding placed on the foot that helps reduce the problem.
- If the pain was caused by a walking imbalance, the abnormal angles of the foot and leg are examined and corrected with devices that fit easily in a shoe, call orthotics.

These simple treatments are very successful for reducing or eliminating the pain caused from inflammation.

PAYMENT POLICIES

Bring in the coupon and there will be no charge for your initial consultation (does not include x-rays or treatment). For your convenience Foot Health Centers accepts all major insurances. We will do all the paper work. All you do is get well.

Township eyes its version of strategic planning struction services — which could include township capital outlay demands — and finance, said Supervisor Betty Lennox.

Lennox coordinated the Northville 2000 selection process and said she combed the township for residents who could provide the group with a wide array of expertise.

"I think we needed some vision and future planning in Northville," Lennox said. "I am pleased at the quality of people who agreed to take part."

Lennox said she will attend Northville 2000 meetings, but does not want the group construed as a political body.

"I want this to be non-political," she said. "We want to know what these people feel is important to their community."

Northville 2000 delegates expressed one common concern early in the inaugural meeting: They wanted reassurances that township officials would use their findings and not shuttle the fruits of their labor to some dusty back shelf in township hall.

"(Group members) don't want to see this dropped," Lennox said. "Hopefully, this will be a document that will guide the township board and planning commission to the year 2000."

Lack of a budget and a June 11 report deadline might present formidable gaps to bridge, but Northville 2000 delegates such as Russ Fogg and Zo Chisnell said they are ready to roll up their sleeves.

"There was a lot of enthusiasm, and they have people from all sorts of backgrounds," Chisnell said. "They asked some very good questions."

Fogg, who listed his top areas of interest as construction, finance, and public safety, also was pleased by the initial gathering.

"It's a very impressive group of people," he said. "Maybe these types of things should be done more often."

Lennox said membership in Northville 2000 is open to the public. The group's next meeting is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Feb. 22 at township hall.

Joint police services pondered

ing the situation from a contracting basis where the city goes out of business in terms of dispatching and contracts with the township for the service," Johnson said.

"I just wanted to find out whether that was the only way that the township wanted to discuss it."

While that question was never fully answered, township officials did shed some light on how the difference arose.

The difference in focus dates back to the original meetings between the police chiefs, said Snider. "The mandate was that we were certainly willing to cooperate with the city... but at no cost to personnel within this agency," he said.

Township Clerk Tom Cook agreed, saying, "When we first discussed this with Georgina (Coss, then township supervisor), we were talking about contracted dispatching."

The comments drew a startled look from Johnson.

"From the look of surprise on the mayor's face, it seems that this might be the first time you've heard that," Snider said.

City Council Member Carolann Ayers mirrored the mayor's surprise at the township position. "I'm also somewhat surprised, as I think Chris is, at the talk about a contract," she said. "That was not my impression of the way we were heading... Obviously we've been thinking of these things from two completely different viewpoints."

Cannon agreed that the original discussions were framed in the context of city layoffs. "These savings did in fact reflect the loss of personnel in the City of Northville... In fact, three full-time dispatchers," he said.

But the city chief added that, as far as he was concerned, talk of contracting came after both sides discussed a consolidation and township officials expressed little interest in the idea.

"When that became very apparent, there was a casual, secondary thought of 'What about contracting?'" Cannon said. "It wasn't really fully explored."

As far as the city is concerned, a consolidation should be a joint venture and not a one-sided operation, Johnson said. "The city isn't looking for a quick-fix, short-term solution... and then we'll try and pick up the pieces when we eliminate the deficit in a number of years," he said. "We're looking at a consolidated, integrated operation and sharing the costs, revenues and ultimate savings."

Both governmental bodies agreed that several obstacles stood in the way of a combined dispatch service, much less a consolidated police department.

Neither the city nor township has the $18,000 needed to move the city's new radio console to the township police station, the proposed site for a joint dispatching center. "At this current budget year, 1992, we don't have the startup costs anymore in the fund balance," Snider said.

Both sides also agreed that a consolidation of the entire department would require a new location, for an expanded facility.

Township Trustee James Nowka wondered aloud how a combined police department would be managed and fellow Trustee Richard Allen expressed the fear that a jointly managed department could become unwieldy.

Johnson agreed, saying, "You don't want a 20-member commission deciding patrol strength, for example."

Allen cited his concern about the coverage area of a combined department, and wondered whether a community would complain because of less coverage. He noted that city residents are used to more frequent patrols because of the city's smaller area.

But, Allen said, "I think the bottom line for both communities is we've got to save some money," he said. "I don't have much problem with either way... From a community standpoint, shared services makes a lot of sense."

Both police chiefs agreed on the importance of getting the unions involved at the very beginning of any potential consolidation. "The city's been notified by our chapter of the POAM (Police Officer's Association of Michigan) that we would be charged with unfair labor practices if they were not involved in any consolidation from the very beginning," Cannon said.

Snider added that fire departments should be involved as well.

The police chiefs were authorized to seek bids from outside facilitators to review the feasibility of joint dispatching and overall joint police services, between the city and township of Northville and between the Northville and Plymouth communities.

Names mentioned included the consulting firm Bartell & Bartell, Ferris State University and Michigan State University.

Once the bids are in, another joint meeting will be held to review them and potentially select a bidder to conduct the review.

Alumni nominations sought

Tomorrow is the deadline for nominations for the Northville High School Distinguished Alumni Award.

Any person, living or dead, who graduated from Northville High School is eligible to receive the award.

The award is presented each year at graduation ceremonies. A committee of students, community members, faculty, central office and high school administrators select each year's award winner.

The committee is looking for Northville graduates who have made significant contributions to the improvement of society on the local, state, national and international levels.

Anyone may participate in the nominating procedure by submitting a letter detailing the accomplishments of a Northville graduate. The deadline is tomorrow, Feb. 14.

Nominations should be made to Northville High School, Distinguished Alumni, 775 N. Center St., Northville 48167.

Formation of ACORD makes town a leader

Northville's got a lot to be proud of. There are plenty of good reasons to enjoy being a part of this community.

We've lately received a major addition to that list in the form of ACORD, A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity.

They say a lot of thought went into what to name the new group, and it was effort well spent. The organization's name succinctly sums up what it's all about (and the acronym gives a nice play on words, too). The founding members hope to foster understanding among people in the community — particularly in places where that understanding might not exist. Breaking barriers of skin color, ethnicity, or economics is the goal, and it's a noble one.

The ACORD founders are a strong core for the group. They are Martin Ankrum, Roland Hwang, Tina Hwang, Mary Ellen King, Jacques Martin-Downs, Susan Murray, Connie Orr, Al Qualman, Nancy Trabin, and Linda Woodworth. They express commitment to what they're doing, and they reflect the diversity in the community which they hope to support.

After keeping a low profile for a couple of months — while developing a mission statement and the rest of that fun stuff that goes into starting a new venture like this — ACORD recently went public. It participated in the PTA Coordinating Council's recent Parent Education Workshop, and Tuesday evening held its first public meeting.

Plans for the future are ambitious. Monthly meetings with guest speakers, annual conferences, and contact with similar groups around the area are all among the plans. Perhaps more important, the group will simply be there as a resource or a forum whenever it's needed.

And it is needed. The members speak of an admirably proactive approach to racial, ethnic and economic tension. By encouraging and welcoming diversity, perhaps we can avoid any serious problems of discrimination here — where a largely homogeneous, but changing, population makes such tension possible.

That attitude is great. It's clear, however, that some discrimination already exists; ACORD members can recite a list of stories which demonstrate that. We can probably all, if we think about it, come up with some of our own. Small incidents in a way, but troubling, and indicating the need for something exactly like this.

Members of ACORD may approach various other groups in the community to seek formal endorsements of their aims and approach. For whatever it's worth, they've got this newspaper's. The new group's goals could hardly be more worthy, and the positive, proactive tack merits particular acclaim.

Groups similar to this sometimes spring up in communities after serious, violent incidents of discrimination. It's very unusual to see one form in a situation like Northville's, out of simple concern and foresight. It makes our community a suburban leader in promoting harmony and understanding. ACORD deserves unqualified support from all of us.

Cable companies offer alibis

It was deliciously ironic. "Senate votes for controls on cable TV," said the headline. Your basic cable TV bill is going up $1.50, said the bill in the afternoon mail.

Deregulation is the name of the game everywhere but Cuba. So cable TV companies must be doing something(s) very, very badly if the U.S. Senate is planning to require that the Federal Communications Commission set rate standards.

It was a stunning defeat for the cable industry: 73 yes, 18 no — a veto-proof margin.

Democrats favored it 46-4. Republicans backed it 27-14, almost 2-1 for a party that has berated governmental regulation since the days of Harding. S.12's chief sponsor is a Republican.

Cable's record has been dismal, according to my check-book, which is typical in the region.

My new rate for basic is $18.45, up 8.8 percent. The consumer price index rose only 3.7 percent in the last year, so my cable company is gouging me at 2.4 times the rate of inflation.

In the eight years I've been a customer, the company has raised its rate from $8.25 to $18.45, or 124 percent. That's just under 14 percent a year — far in excess of the rate of inflation.

As usual, my cable company has come up with alibis to placate the economically illiterate.

"Along with the normal inflationary increases, the cable industry continues to experience cost increases for basic programming of 25 to 30 percent annually," said the notice.

Let's look at the costs:

- Cable TV requires an enormous up-front investment in wiring a town and equipment before any revenue rolls in. Thereafter, a major cost is depreciation, which doesn't increase.

- If the cable company borrows, there's an interest cost. But interest rates are declining, not rising.

- There are operating costs — salaries, repair truck fuel (declining) and so on. Those student volunteers who film many local events don't get UAW wages.

- The company pays fees to program suppliers. Here is where the cable companies get tricky.

According to Susan Tyler Eastman in "Broadcast/Cable Programming: Strategies and Practices" (1989), the cost is "per subscriber per month." In other words, the company's cost rises as it signs up more subscribers. It doesn't mean that the cost per subscriber is rising 25 to 30 percent.

According to the wire services, "The cable industry contends that it needs the money from higher rates to finance expansion and improvements."

Why should present customers pay for expansion? Let the cable company sell stock or borrow at the bank, like General Motors does. What's good for General Motors is good for cable TV.

S.B. 12 is now in the House of Representatives. Your friendly local congressman will be in town soon for the Jeff-Jack, Phil Hart or Lincoln Day banquets. Calculate the percentage increase in your cable bill, show it to your congressman, and ask him how he intends to vote this election year.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Politics in redistricting plans

It didn't take long for the fur to fly after both parties submitted their competing congressional redistricting plans.

- "You may pick the word to describe the Republican plan. The word could be outrageous, egregious, ruthless, overreaching, self-serving or myopic. All are correct," said John Dingell, the Democratic dean of the Michigan delegation.
- "It's obviously not intended to be of assistance to the Democrats," said an unnamed Michigan GOP source.

● "The Republicans act as if they believe they have the federal court in their pocket. Their plan would destroy one of the most powerful congressional delegations among the states," according to Gary Corbin, Michigan Democratic chair.

- Bill Ballenger, former Republican state senator and now editor of "Inside Michigan Politics," believes that the GOP plan will at a minimum force Democrats to absorb the loss of both seats in Congress that Michigan's relative population loss requires.

What's really going on?

In part, it's just politics as usual.

Michigan's quota of seats in Congress slips from 18 to 16, a result of population losses in the 1990 census. And both parties have submitted competing plans to redistrict the state to a panel of three federal judges. Two of them are Republican appointees and one is Democratic.

Although the judges aren't talking, guess which plan looks like it will be approved?

In part, Republicans claim, it's just payback for nearly 20 years of Democratic domination of the Michigan delegation. And, Republicans add, in part it's merely a reflection of the fact that Republican-leaning areas of Michigan have grown in the last 10 years while Democratic-tending areas have not. But there is more to it than that.

It is hardly sheer coincidence, if the GOP plan is accepted, that:

- Democratic Rep. Sander Levin (who holds a powerful seat on the powerful Ways and Means Committee) would have to run in a primary against Democratic Rep. Dennis Hertel (who is chair of the Merchant Marine subcommittee with jurisdiction over the Great Lakes).

- Flint's Democratic Rep. Dale Kildee (who is Michigan's only member of the House Budget Committee, where he chairs a subcommittee) would face in a primary Saginaw's Bob Traxler (who chairs the Appropriations subcommittee on Housing and Urban Development, Veterans Administration and independent agencies).

- Chances for re-election for Democratic representatives Howard Wolpe and Robert Carr would be jeopardized. Wolpe chairs a subcommittee of the Science, Space and Technology Committee and Carr sits on the Appropriations Committee.

Most observers agree that while redistricting plans are inherently political, the Democratic proposal was relatively moderate while the GOP plan went for a partisan home run.

"Roll Call," the widely respected and independent newspaper circulated on Capitol Hill, last week ran a big story on the Michigan redistricting fight. The headline read: "Outrageous" GOP Remap Targets Michigan Powers."

The article remarks that the Michigan delegation has "truly extraordinary power" on Capitol Hill and concludes that if the Republican plan is accepted, "it will be a long time before Michigan's Democrats ever again wield the clout on the Hill they currently possess."

But I'm afraid that's just politics.

Phil Power is chairperson of the company that owns this newspaper. His award-winning column appears periodically.

Finest team gets no recognition

To the editor:

What an irony. The finest athletic team at Northville High School has received the least support, the least respect and no publicity.

Why the finest team? Well, they have won the WLA League Championship four out of the last five years. We don't have proof, but it's a good bet they have also had the highest team grade point average during the same period. Who are these exceptional scholar/athletes? The Northville Cheerleaders. Cheerleaders, you say, aren't an athletic team (a view apparently shared by the high school administration). We beg to differ. Consider the following:

1. This sport is a sport that is active for the complete school year — football in the fall, basketball in winter and continuing spring practice to compete for next year's team.

2. Approximately 250 hours of practice a year plus summer training camp.

3. Requires gymnastic ability, extreme muscle.

4. Requires a commitment to the concept of the team over individuals.

5. In addition to the above time commitment, there is considerable additional time spent making decorations for each athletic event and for the football/basketball team players' houses. These homes are decorated after 11 p.m. weeknights.

As you can see, these athletes spend most of their time supporting other teams at the high school. Every winter, however, they participate in the WLA League Cheerleading Competition. This year's meet was Saturday, Feb. 1. While the Northville squad has won this meet four out of five years, there has not been a single word of recognition in The Northville Record. While members of the High School administration and the athletic director are regularly seen at other athletic events, they have not been seen at this competition (except for a "cameo" appearance when it was held at our own school).

This year our cheerleader squad lost the competition to Farmington. One factor was the large (and loud) fan section that came to support the Farmington Cheerleaders. Northville was represented by cheerleader parents, Charlie Stille, Coach Schumacher and a few boyfriends. Where were the football and basketball teams these girls spend so many hours supporting? Where was the Northville student body (especially the loud rowdy crowd at the Canton basketball game — we could have used them)? Where was the Record? Where was the Northville High School administration and athletic director? It is a real shame that these athletes, who give so much of their time to others, receive so little in return, especially on the one and only day that they really need it.

This letter would not be complete without our thanks to the Surdus. Margaret Surdu has coached this team to its outstanding record, devoting countless hours of her own time. George Surdu has been a fantastic gymnastics coach, donating his Saturdays to the team. You get our votes for Coach of the Year (and the last four years!).

Our cheerleader is graduating this year, but we sincerely hope that this team and their coaches receive more respect, support and publicity in the future.

'Research' misses the real issue

To the editor:

It's unfortunate that despite the time and money the City of Northville seems to have spent "researching" the substantial flooding on my property, city officials have failed to acknowledge and address the real issue — that the installation of a very restrictive culvert under Mill Pond Court (and possibly the restrictive culverts under Coldspring Drive) in Singh Development's Pheasant Hills Subdivision, causes the back-up and detention of stormwater on my upstream property.

This indisputable fact is documented in McNeely & Lincoln's April 8, 1991, "Draining Investigation Results" and has been further confirmed in a recent letter from Bruce Menerey of the MDNR in which he states, "I agree that the Mill Pond Court culvert is more restrictive than the natural swale that existed before the culvert was installed. Prior to the Mill Pond Court culvert installation, it is estimated that the water elevation of the wetland would have reached about 906 during a 100-year event. As a result of the Mill Pond culvert, it is estimated that the water elevation of the wetland would reach about 907.3 during a 100-year rainfall." This raises the water level over one foot, damaging the wetland and my property.

McNeely & Lincoln could have saved a lot of time, money and paper by eliminating over 100 pages of "filler material" in their latest report, obviously engineered to look impressive and cloud the issue. This and other diversionary tactics cannot alter the facts.

Local governments are not in any way prevented from having more stringent regulations than Oakland County's "minimal" 10-year storm standards. The City of Northville's floodplain regulations state "to preserve the ability of floodplains to carry and discharge a base (100-year) flood" and "the flood-carrying capacity of any altered or relocated watercourse not subject to state or federal regulations designed to insure flood carrying capacity shall be maintained." These more stringent standards supercede the minimum 10-year storm standards, yet the city has ignored and violated its own regulations, allowing this burdening encroachment on my property.

The detention of stormwater on my property — lowers my property value, impacts the marketability of my home/property, prevents the use of my property for any planned additions/improvements, could impact the water table and foundation of my home, increases soil erosion and sedimentation which impairs my lawn, and creates a nuisance. My husband and I cannot afford to lose the use and value of our lifetime investment due to such injustice.

New organization on right track

To the editor:

The article "New proactive group focuses on diversity" was extremely uplifting. The formation of a proactive group of citizens to prevent racial discrimination and promote ethnic diversity and awareness is as unique as it is refreshing.

The world and our little part of it here in Northville is becoming more diverse. All of us and our children need to understand and appreciate the various races and cultures that make up our great country.

I am also pleased that the group plans to address potential discrimination based upon socioeconomic factors. I am sad to say that I heard a group of parents say they did not want their children going to a particular Northville school because "a lot of the kids at that school live in apartments." There is nothing wrong with having money, but quite a few people have less than others. Our children need to know, understand and appreciate that not all families have large homes with all the comfort that money allows. Rich, poor, middle class; black, white, brown or yellow, we all need to live and learn together.

My thanks to ACORD (A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity). You deserve the entire community's support.

City, not Christiansen, is the winner

To the editor:

As a casual watcher of Northville politics, I found your recent article about Mark Christiansen somewhat unfair. The headline blared that Mr. Christiansen was a "winner." Sure he received a salary increase, but he also took on some new duties. I feel that when you eliminate a position (the deputy city clerk's position), and in a sense consolidate it under another person's responsibilities, at a fraction of what the old position was paying (I am assuming), then the "winner" in that case is the city.

It also makes me take notice when a council member "blasts" Mr. Christiansen and objects to giving him more responsibility. I go back to the interview the Record did with City Manager Gary Word; in it he basically said that without Mark Christiansen around things would have been much worse during his indoctrination period. Mr. Christiansen had been hired as the city assessor, yet he found himself being tapped as acting City Manager, and a myriad of other less visible yet vital functions (e.g. overseeing the implementation of the recycling plan). Overall, I feel the City Manager feels likewise, by entrusting him with additional responsibility.

Township wants 'yes people'

To the editor:

If the people in Northville Township vote the present Township Supervisor and the Township Board to run our government at the next election, the voters are going to get the kind of government they deserve.

They want yes people, and not someone who thinks for herself.

Barbara O'Brien has a 95-percent attendance record, studies the property and decides what is best for the township. It may not be zoned for what the property owner can make the most money from, but what is best for the Township.

The Township deal with BFI was sure put through in a hurry. I am not sure it is a finished deal and if it isn't, we should be able to take another look at it. I've never seen a big corporation do any favors for a small town and I've been in this area for 37 years.

To me, this Township is run like Mayor Daley ran Chicago. A man lived in Chicago 40 years and died in Vermont. He wanted his body shipped back to Chicago so he could keep on voting each year.

Tax-base plan will eliminate some millages

To the editor:

Tax-base sharing will prove to be a significant change in the distribution of state aid to needy school districts. The Michigan House Legislative Analysis Staff estimates that $250 million will be available to needy districts in Michigan during the next decade. This might help to close the gap in funding per student between needy districts and wealthy districts. Currently this disparity ranges from $2,500 per student in some poor districts to $8,500 per student in some wealthy districts.

However, the greater significance of tax-base sharing is the elimination of the need for more millage proposals. In Northville, wealthy out-of-formula district residents have already expressed their bitter disgust for this approach because they want to keep their hard-earned tax dollars in their districts. They have voiced their intense opinions that they would vote against any new millage proposals to demonstrate their frustrations. They have filed a court case to stop the flow of tax-base sharing and won a temporary halt to the process.

In-formula residents in needy districts know it doesn't make much sense to vote for new millage increases because all they have to do is relax and collect future revenue increases coming to their districts under tax-base sharing.

Therefore, neither in-formula district residents or out-of-formula district residents will want to vote for more millages due to the complexities of tax-base sharing.

Democrats out of the woodwork

To the editor:

I was exceedingly heartened to learn, in the article "Voters do the primary shuffle," appearing in the Feb. 3 issue of The Northville Record, that there are 1,370 Democrats in Northville Township. I was desperately fearful that besides a fellow Democrat on the canvassing committee following school elections, I was the only democrat in the Township.

For me to really feel comfortable, after living in the Township since 1953, it would be gratifying to learn that there were at least a handful of Secular Humanists, or Unitarian-Universalists, among the residents of Northville.

Nevertheless, some of my best friends are Republicans, Catholics, Moslems, Buddhists, Jews, Bahais, Zoroastrians, Episcopalians, Methodists, Baptists, yes, even Atheists.

Clarification of letter on vandalism

To the editor:

A response is needed to clarify some points you made in your letter, Miss Lee. I believe my opening statement in my letter was: Northville Parents . . . Your child is out raising hell . . . where are you? It was not directed to parents who take the time to be with their children, are involved and hold their children accountable. Evidently you are not out there raising hell. Others are. They are uncontrolled, undisciplined and pampered. Ask any one who has dared to cross them. Ask the parents. They are the first to defend their child even when confronted with the evidence.

Another point — my error. I said I had no children. I omitted at home. Mine have been raised, served in Desert Storm and are fine contributing citizens in the community. I (we) did take the time to be involved and communicate in the school, church and the activities of youth growing up.

I congratulate you on your fine relationship with your parents. If more could claim that, my letter wouldn't have been necessary.

Remember ordinances on sidewalks

To the editor:

It is time we understand and honor the Northville city ordinances pertaining to snow removal and cleanup after pets.

We observed several properties where sidewalks were untouched following the recent heavy snowfall. In fact, they haven't been cleared all winter.

Also, now that the ice and snow have partially melted, we can see much evidence of pet presence within leash length from the walks.

For the benefit of the public, and the police, perhaps the Record could publish a summary of the ordinances and the applicable penalties for violations.

Governor hopes to overturn controversial sharing plan

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Gov. John Engler said Monday he intends to balance out school funding inequities caused by tax-base sharing by cutting a host of education programs and dumping those monies into the state's general school aid formula.

His proposal calls for a repeal of tax-base sharing and allows the state to recapture and redirect retirement funds, a move he says will give local districts more flexibility and give the state more leeway in budgeting matters.

"It says to local school districts, 'You are free to do what you want to do with your dollars,'" Engler said in an interview Monday. "And to the state's budget process, 'You are free to budget as you wish.'"

In the past the state has been preoccupied with financing "categorical" programs like special education and line items that has taken money away from the general state aid pot, Engler said. But now he suggests deleting those items and dumping the money back into the general pot in an effort to balance out inequities.

"One of the criticisms local districts have, that I think is a fair criticism, is that the state, by overemphasizing categorical, has handcuffed the districts and prevented them from solving the educational problems that are most urgent in their respective local districts," he said.

The decision to cut categorical — with the exception of special education and transportation needs — was taken after the governor said he saw the impact tax-base sharing had on creating large disparities between districts and the results those inequalities had on the effectiveness of districts.

Under a tax-base-sharing plan passed by the Legislature, the Northville School District would see some of its local property-tax money sent to poorer districts. Northville and other districts are involved in a lawsuit over the issue, and no money has yet been paid out.

"I would like to leave the schools as free as possible to be innovators — to not be bound by state rules and regulations — and to allow them to meet the educational challenges with the creativity that can only come from local school districts that are freed from state shackles," he said.

The steady erosion of state funding to local districts has prompted some districts to identify alternative methods of financing and creative strategies for recovery.

Novi Community Schools is a forerunner in such innovation, Engler said. The district at its Feb. 6 board meeting pondered the possibility of becoming a private district after depletion of state aid left the district virtually without state funding.

Engler said he supports the idea of local districts taking the initiative to improve themselves by using their knowledge, and find alternatives to state mandates.

"School districts have been saying they want the freedom to innovate," Engler said. "They want to be able to use what they know how to do and that's to teach kids without the state telling them no you have to fit these rather tight definitions that are laid down in these categorical."

Engler said he thought the notion of going private was an "exciting" concept because it puts the power and decision-making back into the hands of the local districts.

FOSTERING FRIENDS

'I consider them all my own. We treat them like they are our own pets.'

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

A typical day at Linda Cloud's house in Novi starts about 5:30 a.m. with tube feedings for a litter of 12-13 possum babies, a host of bunnies, four to five infant squirrels, and an occasional groundhog or two.

And that's all before she gets her 8-year-old daughter off to school, her husband to work, and herself ready for work as a wholesale lace distributor.

Parts of that sound like a typical day for a housewife. So you may think.

But for some, Cloud's day is a far cry from the norm.

As a foster parent for injured and abandoned wildlife, Cloud has a full house.

"You just get yourself down to a system. It takes about an hour and a half to make a blender of formula for the day, feed everybody, and wash their bedding," Cloud said.

Though other people run foster animal homes, Northville's Norene Miller is maybe only one of handful of people who can truly appreciate the work Cloud does on a daily basis.

Miller fosters domestic animals for Animal Aid Inc., an animal welfare group based in Brighton. At various times, Miller has cared for a litter of seven puppies, five adult dogs, and five kittens. She too knows the demand of early-morning bottle feedings.

"I don't think it's as bad as having a baby, but I have had to bottle-raise nine puppies before. You wake up to puppies screaming in a cage next to your bed," Miller said.

After breakfast, both Miller and Cloud have busy schedules cleaning pens and crates and giving babies baths.

But for the most part the similarities stop there.

At Miller's house, foster pets spend the day learning to become good pets so they'll be adopted into good homes. At Cloud's, animals are handled as little as possible and left to fend for themselves so that, upon their return to their natural habitats, they'll have the instinct to survive.

Fostering wild animals has distinct advantages and disadvantages, she said.

"Feeding frozen mice to a litter of possums takes some getting used to. But you learn to disassociate yourself from it and it's just something you do."

Cloud said once baby possums "graduate" from their first month's incubation period inside her laundry room, they are kept in crates inside her garage until they are big enough to be released.

After being tube fed on puppy formula five times a day, possum babies are weaned off formula and introduced to their normal diet foods — about 30 mice a day per litter of 12-13, along with leaves and certain roots.

"It's really a lot of work, but you really are proud of them. I love to see them getting fat. It's a lot of fun for me. It's a good feeling when they get nice and fat and have good fur," she said.

Possums are released once they are about 14 inches long and weigh about a pound, she said. In their first month of life, possums can devour about four packages of chicken wings, one cantaloupe, five pounds of grapes, apples, and nibble on pounds of kitten chow.

Since puppy formula costs about $18 a can, fostering wildlife can be a costly hobby for Linda, her husband Jim, and daughter Chelsea.

"It is expensive. Sure I give up other things to do this. But it's our hobby; Jim is very active too. Besides, we are doing something we enjoy, and it's very rewarding," she said.

For Cloud, training to be a wildlife foster parent required earning a license from the Howell Nature Center. That license allows her to foster anything from wild birds to raccoons to skunks to groundhogs. Since she prefers mammals to birds, she fosters primarily squirrels, bunnies, and possums. But she said she could never close the door on any injured animal.

"I don't mind any kind of wild animal," she said. "That's why I'm in it. We owe the animals that. I wouldn't hesitate to take them in any time of day."

For Miller, the story's essentially the same but the characters and conditions are different.

On a typical day, Miller's adult dogs are fed four times a day, puppies about six. Eight times a day they are let outside, and obedience and housebreaking lessons are taught

you can do for animals*

Animal Aid Inc. is an animal welfare group based in Brighton. The 25-member group operates solely on a volunteer basis to provide pet owners with a viable alternative to euthanasia and abandonment.

Incorporated in January 1984, Animal Aid seeks to control the puppy and kitten population by encouraging pet owners to have pets spayed or neutered as soon as possible. According to Animal Aid activists, some 75,000 kittens and puppies are born each day, a significant percentage of those animals are left by the roadside, stray or abandoned.

In an effort to reduce the number of animals they have to place, welfare groups like Animal Aid, are urging pet owners to spay and neuter, keep identify tags on their pets, and keep pets indoors.

If interested in working with Animal Aid Inc. or adopting a pet, write Animal Aid, Inc. P.O. Box 851, Brighton, MI 48116.

Spirit Week highlights February events

Spirit Week was a great way to start the new semester with king and queen elections, pep assembly, etc. ending with a spirit dance on Saturday, Feb. 8, at 8 p.m. Much thanks to the Spirit Week Committees:

It's hard to believe, but it is time to think about the 1992-93 school year. Mid-February is the time for students in grades 8-11 to start reading the new NHS catalogue and carefully selecting their courses. Look for more information to come home about it soon.

Congratulations to Rena Adawi, Jon Cousineau and Katie Crawford for becoming semi-finalists in the 51st annual Westinghouse Science Talent Search. Their research papers were judged by a panel of scientists including a Nobel Prize winner.

We would also like to congratulate the following students for their wonderful achievements:

Michelle McNally for becoming a semifinalist in the Coca Cola Scholarship competition.

Julie Plath for being awarded the DAR scholarship and The Voice of Democracy VFW Award.

Lisa Wagner, this year's recipient of the HOBY Leadership Award.

Mechelle Zarou will represent Northville High School at the Michigan Reading Association's March luncheon honoring outstanding writers in the state. Mechelle's work will appear in the Kaleidoscope, a magazine for talented writers.

Mustangs of the Week — Jenny Workman, Dec. 18-Jan. 7; Kristine Arnold, Jan. 8-14; Kevin Krupansky, Jan. 15-21; Beth Frayne, Jan. 22-28.

Substance Abuse Week will be March 1-7 this year with the red ribbons program and Grim Reaper Day making a return visit. The Grim Reaper will come on the loud speaker to announce that another life has been taken due to a drunk driver. Then a committee from the S.A.D.D. Chapter will go to a classroom and take out one student. The student will then have his/her face painted white and must sit in silence for the rest of the day. At the end of the school day the student will then see how many lives have been taken due to drunk driving in the course of one school day. This program has been in use for a few years now and has proven to be one of the most powerful means of getting the devastation of drunk driving across to students.

The National Honor Society is involved in several new incentive programs for the student body at large. Good luck to the following new second-semester officers who are already working diligently to implement these new programs.

National Honor Society Officers 1991 (Second Semester): President Jeff Berkaw, Treasurer Joe Kontuly, Vice President Tim Duff, Secretary Beth Cannizzaro, Historian Evan Petrie.

The next parent advisory meeting will be Feb. 19 at 7:30 p.m. for those parents who are unable to make the morning meetings. We are doing many wonderful things for our school and in turn for our students that we would like to share these things with you as well as consider new ideas which collectively make NHS what it is.

Good luck to Chairperson Margaret Surdu, 349-7665; Co-chairperson Glenda Jones, 349-3065 and Secretary Lynda Baca, 349-5564. Please feel free to call any one of these ladies with any suggestions you might have as well as any questions you need clarified.

Parent-Teacher Conferences will be March 17 and 19. We would like for you to stop at a table set up for a survey pertaining to our school district. Feel free to take the survey with you and fill it out while you are in line for each teacher. We need your thoughts on many areas of our district and it may make your wait in line seem a little quicker. Thank you very much for your cooperation in this matter.

Have a safe mid-winter break. Mission Statement — We, the staff of Northville High School, in partnership with students, parents and community, are committed to mutual responsibility for learning through effective teaching. Our mission is to challenge all students to reach their potential and to develop responsible citizens in a caring and supportive environment.

Academy students enjoy winter offerings

Thought for the month: "Giving makes living more loving."

Before time marches us far from the spirit of the Christmas season as it inexorably immerses us once again into the mundane world of eat, sleep, work and bills we wanted to revisit December to congratulate the William Allan Academy students on a giving activity in which they participated. They embodied the "thought for the month" by collecting and donating almost 150 items of food and clothing to those in need. Indeed, it was a wonderful demonstration of concern for others.

The kindergartners have been enjoying the snow this month immensely (thank God someone has) as it has allowed them to sled and sled some more. Indoors, they have been doing remarkably well educationally. Currently, they are adding numbers up to six and have covered units on money and time. Multiple exercises involving the letters A, C, D, G, I, L, O, S and T have brought them to the point of reading their first story about a game of tag between a tiger named Tig and his friend, a girl named Doll. Delightfully illustrated, the adventure goes like this: "Tig is it. Tig tags Doll. Doll is it. Tig slid. Doll tags Tig. Tig lost. Tig is sad. Doll is glad. Doll sits still at last." (We don't remember Spot and Jane ever having that much fun.)

The first-graders just completed their month-long, bird identification-book project. After learning an assortment of bird facts (such as all about gizzards — which, incidentally, are not possessed by lizards) and all about the shapes and sizes of bird's feet, beaks, crowns, feathers and nests. The class applied their newfound knowledge to 16 members of the species ranging from the purely pleasant pheasant to that terrible tufted titmouse.

The absolute highlight of the month, however, was the culminating event — a Kensington Metropark field trip laden with "up close and personal" avian observations. The second- and third-graders, on the other hand, have been learning about human aspects of our country. Namely, they have been studying black American inventors. The depth and array of knowledge acquired has been immense. For example, did you know that all of the following were conceived by black Americans: the stoplight, golf tees, elevators, folding chairs, clothes driers, fountain pens, horse shoes, bottle caps, lawn mowers, peanut butter and two absolutely All-American delicacies — ice cream and potato chips. Think of the voids that would exist in our lives if the above did not exist.

As for the fourth- and fifth-graders, an expanse of geometric shapes has been dominating their classroom landscape. Everything from a three- to an eight-sided "gon" has been investigated. They quickly learned that the one truly diverse member of the "shapes" family is the infamous-sounding quadrilateral. So chameleon is its character that it can be found disguised as a square, rectangle, parallelogram, trapezoid or rhombus — for just a few of its wells.

Fourth-grader Chad Dillard merits special recognition this month as he recently saved our world from a dastardly earth "squisher" liquid which was compressing the poles together. In his two-page story he successfully evacuated all inhabitants of the planet, including "trillions of all kinds of animals" in space ships the size of Rhode Island. We were three billion miles away before he could perfect the retracting magnetic lasers to pull the poles apart. After returning to earth the best news came. Everyone wanted to live in peace. Amen!

Chad's conclusion reminds us of the expression Principal Val Hambleton uses when closing each Tuesday-morning school assembly: "Remember kindness and respect for others. If you don't have anything nice to say, don't say anything at all." Here's hoping your days are filled with gobs of sharing.

Animals foster friendship for residents

around the clock. Sounds easy enough.

But take into consideration special diets for pets with diseases, temperaments, and others in need of medical care.

For Miller, no day is ever the same. Since she started fostering pets two years ago, Miller has cared for hundreds of domestic animals. A lifelong appreciation for animals comes from Miller's former experience as a veterinarian's receptionist.

"I've grown up with pets," she said. "I love them all. Since I started with Animal Aid, I researched and studied them. Every new book or video that comes out, I rent it or buy it."

Miller said she got involved with the animal welfare group after learning about the group's low euthanasia rate and restrictive adoptive process.

"We are really serious when someone wants to adopt one of our animals," she said. "We don't just adopt to anybody. We are very strict."

And strict is the operative word.

Prospective pet owners wanting to adopt through Animal Aid are required to go through two interviews or screenings with Animal Aid volunteers. If a prospective owner passes the interviews, he or she is required, under contract, to have the animal spayed or neutered, provide a permanent indoor home for the pet, and keep AAI notified of a change in address.

"I consider them all my own," Miller said. We treat them like they are our own pets. We house train them, teach them obedience, and make them social puppies," Miller.

Both women say their lifestyles are challenging and yet very rewarding. But for Miller, fostering animals takes a full-time commitment. As a volunteer with AAI, Miller packs her adoptable pets up every Saturday and heads to Brighton, where the animals are "shown" to prospective pet adoptive families.

Among a host of adoptive animals, Miller usually returns home with a few and has on occasion picked up a few more from people who drop their pets and/or litters of puppies off to AAI for temporary care.

"As foster homes, we keep the animals until they are adopted out," she said. "That can be as short as a week or two or up until a year."

"We never had a situation where a pet couldn't be adopted. We work with them all to correct the problems. Usually if we had them in a foster home, we can pretty much assure they'll be good house pets," she said.

Friends host famous writer

A local writer with 30 published works will speak at a benefit book and author luncheon Tuesday, March 10 at the Novi Civic Center.

Ruth Ryan Langan of Farmington Hills will appear with the Friends of Northville, Novi, Plymouth and Canton libraries as hosts. She will speak following the luncheon, which will be catered by Home Sweet Home Restaurant of Novi.

The novelist and romance writer has appeared on The Phil Donahue Show, Good Morning America, Kelly and Company, and the Brian Gizzard Show in Montreal.

After publishing many paper-bound works, the mother of five adult children is at work on a hardbound novel for a British publisher, and with two other writers has crafted a screenplay and is working on another feature-length screenplay.

The three authors are also at work on three original screenplays slated to be filmed in Russia in 1993.

The fourth of a Harlequin Historical series set in sixteenth century Scotland, Highland Heart will be in book stores this month. Copies will be available at the luncheon where Langan will sign any purchased.

Tickets are available at any of the four libraries at $10 each. No tickets will be sold after Wednesday, March 4, and none will be sold at the door. Groups of six to eight guests may reserve a table if all tickets are purchased at the same time. Checks are payable to the Friends of Northville Public Library.

The Novi Civic Center is located at 45175 W. Ten Mile Road between Novi and Taft Roads. Seating is available at 11:30; luncheon will be served at noon.

Genitti's now has three different production companies performing three different Murder Mystery Dinner Theatres. Every Friday evening at 7:30 p.m. separate performances are planned in separate dining rooms. Reservations are required for all shows.

Special performances of the Murder Mystery Dinner Theatre are now available for large groups of people any day of the week, day or evening, lunch or dinner time.

Additional clues and motives are given out as the cast mingles with the guests. Small gifts are awarded to those who correctly guess the identity of the murderer.

The standard seven-course dinner is served family style, like an old Italian wedding: lots of food, served hot, homemade soup, antipasto salad, vegetables, Italian sausage, baked chicken, Italian steak (pork), garlic toast, beverage and a luscious dessert.

The "Verdi Opera Dinner Theatre" is now scheduled the third Thursday of every month at 7:30 p.m. All arias are performed by the Verdi Opera Theatre of Michigan. Special performances are available for large groups. Reservations are required for all shows.

RECORD TRAVEL

THURSDAY
February 13, 1992

By WILLIAM T. TOMICKI
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Q: My wife and I walk daily for exercise. Can you recommend any "walking vacations?"

A: Walking has become America's favorite exercise. It is estimated that some 65 million Americans today walk for pleasure and fitness.

Year-round, a company called Country Walkers offers walking tours of beautiful locations in the United States and abroad. On these tours, 13 to 20 participants average four to nine miles per day on treks through a beautiful countryside or historical site.

Evenings are spent relaxing in cozy country inns and dining on gourmet food. For schedules, dates and events contact Country Walkers at (802) 244-1387.

Q: Where can we see a turn-of-the-century village and working farmstead in Indiana?

A: Try Rockville, west of Indianapolis, whose population is 2,800. The village has more than 30 quaint buildings including a country store, blacksmith shop, burr mill, livery, governor's house, one room schoolhouse and a log cabin.

Visitors may also go hiking through a nature preserve and watch residents make traditional crafts, such as weaving and candle-dipping.

For further information contact the Park County Convention and Visitors Bureau at (317) 569-5226.

Q: We're having trouble getting tickets for the summer games in Barcelona, Spain. Any tips?

A: There is an intense demand for Olympic event tickets this year. It might be wise to contact Olson Travelworld, the exclusive ticket agent and an official travel company for the U.S. Olympic Committee.

At this writing they have just obtained a grant of additional tickets for the summer games. These are for all rounds of track-and-field competition, baseball, cycling, freestyle soccer, wrestling and more.

For further information contact Olson's Olympic travel division at (800) 874-1992.

Q: Can you give us some restaurant ideas for the North Lake Tahoe area?

A: For elegant lakefront dining, Le Feu d'Her is the traditional favorite. The cuisine is French. The service is excellent and the restaurant is in a former private residence turned into three small cozy dining areas.

On weekends for a romantic mood, a strolling guitarist plays melodies requested by patrons at each table — in English, French or Italian.

For further information contact the restaurant at 7238 N. Lake Blvd., Tahoe Vista, Calif. 95732 or call (916) 516-4464.

Readers are invited to submit questions to William Tomicki, P.O. Box 5148, Santa Barbara, Calif. 93150. All though he cannot answer each query individually, selected questions will be included in his column. Tomicki, who logs over 150,000 miles each year, is the publisher of ENTREE, a noted travel newsletter.

The harbor at Petersburg, Alaska, a quaint fishing village, can only be visited by small boats

In the company of tufted puffins Cruising Alaska's Inside Passage on the 'Spirit of Alaska'

By AMY SELWYN
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Thousands of tourists visit Alaska's Inside Passage each summer on one of the major cruise lines.

But few are lucky enough to go on a small boat in the company of naturalists and tufted puffins.

The big cruise liners carry an average of 1,000 passengers per voyage. But the small M/V Spirit of Alaska, one of four yachts owned and operated by Seattle-based Alaska Sightseeing Tours, carries about 80 passengers per trip.

On the big boats, the women dine in silk dresses and the men must wear ties to dinner. On the Spirit of Alaska, everybody wears non-skid sneakers, insect repellent and many layers of warm clothes.

But boat size and suitcase-packing lists aren't the only things that separate the experience of travel by big and small boat.

There are also differences in accommodations, meals, rates and degrees of on-board formality.

My cabin — the mid-range cabin priced at $2,295 per person during peak season (the end of June through Aug. 1) — was 9 feet wide and less than 11 feet long. It had two twin beds, one tiny closet and an even smaller bathroom.

Meals in the Grand Pacific Dining Room reminded me of the dining room at summer camp — long tables for family-style eating.

At dinner, we always had a choice of two entrees: one seafood, one meat. Notably, the kitchen crew was amenable to fixing vegetarian and even macrobiotic dishes.

Meals were pretty informal — not staged events — so we saw things we might have missed on a big boat fussing with baked Alaska and fancy treats.

The first night, for example, we were just about to dig into dessert when an announcement came: "Spirit of Alaska passengers, please come to the upper deck quietly. There's a humpback whale just off the starboard side."

Capt. Bryce Brockway cut the engines. He let the Spirit float nearly an hour so we could watch the whale cavort.

Traveling on a small boat is the nautical equivalent of "This Car Brakes For Humpback Whales." Big boats don't stop, not even for whales.

Another time, dinner was delayed nearly 40 minutes when Brockway let us float beside 50-odd tufted and horned puffins.

Only a small boat or plane can reach Glacier Bay National Park, often called one of the seven natural wonders of the world. It consists of 3 million acres of mountains and fjords, some more than 60 miles long, culminating in 13 active tidewater glaciers, which are rivers of ice flowing into the ocean.

The Spirit cruised all night, preparing to arrive at John Muir Inlet around 6 a.m. The big boats, by comparison, generally reach the inlet at midday. Once there, big boats are unable to stop; they also cannot take passengers close to the glaciers.

I awoke at 4 a.m., before we reached the inlet. I wanted to sneak an early peak. I was stunned by the cobalt-blue skies. The thermometer registered less than 45 degrees Fahrenheit.

My fortitude was rewarded: I saw a white-domed bald eagle swoop down into the icy waters to pull out a squirming salmon!

By 6 a.m. all the passengers were on one of the upper decks. The crew distributed coffee and hot chocolate. A naturalist from the National Park Service introduced us to Muir Inlet, named for naturalist John Muir, who discovered Glacier Bay.

Again Brockway cut the engines. The Spirit floated less than one-third of a mile from the glacier.

The boat was completely surrounded by "bergie bits." That's the technical name for icebergs that aren't big enough to qualify for iceberg status, which means they're smaller than school buses.

On top of those bergie bits were hundreds of harbor seals and their pups. In summer, seals come to this part of Alaska to have their pups, safe from killer whales.

In front of us was a wall of blue ice. As the naturalist explained, the light from the sun is actually white light made up of all colors of the rainbow. Ice, however, absorbs more red light than blue; the blue has enough energy to escape the ice. Hence, the blue ice.

Suddenly, loud, crashing noises filled the air. A thunderstorm? Not exactly.

The glaciers were calving: Whole chunks of ice simply separated from the glacier and crashed into the waters below.

That was Muir Inlet. And it really should be seen floating close to blue ice, with a naturalist at one's side, with harbor seals below, surrounded by the deafening sounds of Alaska.

Later that same evening we docked in Bartlett Cove, which is Glacier Bay Park's headquarters. Bartlett Cove is too shallow for the big boats.

It was raining, so I took my rain poncho and hiked along the tidal path through the forest and out to a black pond. It was mystically beautiful, with the gray evening color thick over the water.

The brochure promised that Petersburg, or "Little Norway," home to less than 4,000 people, was "Alaska's best-kept secret, an authentic working fishing village at the northern tip of Wrangell Narrows." It can only be visited by small boats.

After the Spirit arrived we had four hours to explore the quaint fishing village. Those of us who had signed up for a flight-seeing tour of LeConte Glacier were whisked away to our floatplane.

The Kupreanof Flying Service, operated by wily pilot Butch Williams, flies three or four passengers over the LeConte Glacier in a Cessna 180, which takes off and lands in the waters surrounding Petersburg.

The trip lasts a little more than an hour and costs $80 per person. It produced some of my best pictures: among them, shots of jagged ice peaks.

After flight-seeing, we walked around Petersburg — really just a couple of streets. The houses, weather-beaten wooden structures that stand on stilts, were painted bright colors. There was a nice coffee shop with home-baked goodies — the only one in town.

Lo, I found a $20 bill in front of Sing Lee Alley Books, so I treated myself to a book of John Muir's writings.

It was a delight to walk along the Petersburg docks and watch the fishing boats pull up and unload barrels full of fresh, glistening fish.

Travel by small boat is not for everyone. It can get cold on board and the food is slightly better than functional — no big buffets or nouvelle cuisine.

Sometimes the only entertainment is counting bald-eagle sightings.

The big cruisers might have offered me a dandy aerobic workout.

But I would have missed sitting in Muir Inlet with the harbor-seal pups. I would never have written my travel notes about nightfall on a black pond in Alaska. And I wouldn't be able to tell a horned puffin from its tufted cousin.

Rates are lower during the "value" and "shoulder" seasons. These are roughly May and mid-September or early to mid-June and late August through early September, respectively.

Rating the 'best' and 'worst' travel spots

By GENE and ADELE MALOTT
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Travel publications, associations and other groups often rate travel spots as "the best" and "the worst." These surveys are compiled in different ways. Some publications take a public-opinion poll; others ask in-house experts for opinions.

A few organizations — such as Prentice Hall, Rand McNally and "The Mature Traveler" newsletter — take a semi-scientific approach, assigning numerical values to various important factors, then totaling the numbers.

Sometimes, the ratings are negative.

The most endangered rivers in 1991 were the Colorado and the upper Mississippi, according to rankings by American Rivers, a conservation group.

And the worst travel rip-offs, rated by "Consumer Reports Travel Letter" (P.O. Box 53629, Boulder, Colo. 80322-3629; $37 per year) were "full-fare coach/economy airline fares" and "exchanging foreign currency at a U.S. airport."

Also on Consumer Reports' rip-off list were expensive London hotels, time-wasting sightseeing tours, flight insurance, car-rental mileage charges, prestige luggage and "anything else you buy at an airport."

"The Mature Traveler," our own monthly newsletter, rated steamboating as the best of a "Top Dozen Senior-Friendly Trips."

Ratings were arrived at on the basis of 10 factors mature travelers consider more important than do younger travelers.

The factors included first-hand experience (such as walking on a glacier), convenience, economic value, health and safety and opportunities for socializing. Each factor was ranked on a 1-to-10 scale and totaled.

Steamboating scored 90 points out of a possible 100; trips to New Zealand and Alaska scored 89 each.

Other top senior-friendly destinations were the Caribbean, Bermuda, Hawaii, Hong Kong and U.S. national parks, as well as trips aboard the Orient Express, snowbirding in South Texas and railroading through the West.

The rating systems used for new surveys published by Rand McNally and Prentice Hall are also numerically compiled.

In its "Vacation Places Rated" by Sylvia McNair ($12.95) Rand McNally rates 107 domestic vacation spots on the basis of natural beauty, outdoor recreation, accommodations, restaurants, history, culture and entertainment.

On that basis, Rand McNally's top 10 vacation spots included Seattle, Los Angeles, Hawaii, Miami, San Francisco, Boston, the Rockies and Tampa, Fla.

For the Rand McNally Road Atlas, a staffer named Laura Berghelm drove hundreds of different roads to pick the nation's prettiest highways.

California's Pacific Coast Highway (state Route 1 and U.S. 101 from Santa Barbara north to Crescent City) was the winner.

Others were Montana's Going-to-the-Sun Road through Glacier National Park, Oregon's Columbia Gorge Highway (U.S. 30), Maine's Coastal Highway (U.S. 1), Virginia's Skyline Drive-Blue Ridge Parkway, Colorado's Million Dollar Highway (U.S. 550 from Ouray to Silverton) and Arizona's Oak Creek Canyon (U.S. 89A and Arkansas Highway 7) through the Ozarks.

In its "Retirement Places Rated" ($16.95), Prentice Hall rated retirement spots on the basis of housing availability, cost of living, climate, medical services, safety, part-time job opportunities and leisure living. The survey called Fort Myers, Fla., and environs the best place for seniors to nest.

Rand McNally's top 10 retirement places also included San Antonio; St. George, Utah; Pensacola, Fla.; Brownsville, Texas; the Phoenix area; Orlando, Fla.; St. Petersburg, Fla.; St. Tammany Parish, La.; and Miami.

Other spots rated last year included:

■ World's Best Shopping Places: Marche aux Puces, the flea market in Paris, followed by Kowloon, Hong Kong.

These were rated by Weissmann Travel Reports (published by International Profiles P.O. Box 49278, Austin, Texas 78765; $299 per year; telephone 800-776-0720.)

■ Best Motorcoach Destinations: Nashville, Tenn., and the Canadian Rockies.

These were rated by the National Motorcoach Network, a trade association.

■ Most Inviting Destinations for Recreational Vehicles: Great Smoky Mountain National Park in Tennessee, followed by Hershey, Pa. These were rated by "Trailblazer" magazine.

For mature travelers it's the best time of life to get up and go! The aim of this column is to help make it happen.

While many of the bargains and special trips that will be reported on are for 49ers-plus, the information can help younger travelers spot values too.

Mature travelers should remember that wherever they go, whatever they do, they should always ask for the senior-citizen discount, even if one isn't posted. That's one of the main privileges of being among the "chronologically gifted" who are 50 or over.

Tankers dunk Western and KVC's Brighton

By SCOTT DANIEL

Northville found Walled Lake Western quite hospitable Thursday as the swimmers routed their northern rivals 129-51.

The win moved the Mustangs to 6-3 overall in the Western Lakes Activities Association. For coach Mark Heiden, the dual meet against the Warriors allowed him to work out some of his younger Mustangs and switch others to new events.

"It was nice to have an opportunity to see the guys in things other than their specialty events," he said.

Among those to see more action last week were Matt Basse, Peter Anthony and Marc Wilson.

Anthony got right into the fray in the 200 medley relay. With teammates Bob Holdridge, David Valade and Todd Lennig, Anthony helped the Mustangs take second place in 1:53.07. Not to be outdone, the team of Jim Fee, Joel Elssesser, Matt Handyside and Gregg Garner won the event in 1:52.87.

Northville took first and third in the 200-yard freestyle. Dave Wesley's 1:53.93 was tops while Jason Lennig took the third spot at 2:23.34. Wilson came in at 2:30.15.

Handyside took second in the 200 IM in 2:21.55 while Joel Elssesser was third in 2:23.

In the 50-yard freestyle, powerhouse Holdridge cruised into first place at 23.33. Valade was second with an excellent time of 25.34. Basse also swam well and placed fifth in 26.33.

Mike Malloure got the Mustangs' next victory in the diving competition. He totaled 196.65 points.

Northville continued to clean up in the 100-yard events.

In the butterfly, Fisher took first by a wide margin over teammate Handyside. Fisher won with a 57.81 and Handyside was next with 1:03.97. Anthony completed the sweep by taking third in 1:06.72.

Brian VanHorn took second in the freestyle at 1:00.96. Todd Lennig was third at 1:01.23.

In the 500 freestyle, Valade was first with 5:51.46 and Joel Elssesser was second in 5:57.47.

The Mustangs swept the 200-freestyle relay. The team of Jason Lennig, Garner, Handyside and VanHorn was first in 1:45.51. Valade, Anthony, Mike Shlegel and Joel Elssesser were second at 1:46.50.

Bob Holdridge has been a top freestyler for Northville this year.

Northville closed the meet with three more wins.

In the 100-yard backstroke, Fee took top honors in 1:01.07 with Garner coming in next at 1:06.33.

Wesley was first in the 100 breaststroke with a time of 1:09.04. Joel Elssesser was third at 1:17.65 and Basse was fourth in 1:24.37.

In the final event, the 400 freestyle relay, Northville took first and second. James Elssesser, Holdridge, Marc VanSoest and Wesley were the winners in 3:55.00. At 3:55.60, Fisher, Wilson, Todd Lennig and Fee were next.

NORTHVILLE 51, BRIGHTON 38: The Mustangs went up against the Kensington Valley Conference's Bulldogs on Feb. 4 and took a surprise victory.

Northville got an early boost in the 200-medley relay. All but the Mustangs' winning team of Garner, Handyside, Anthony and Valade were disqualified. They won with a 1:57.76.

"I've never seen that before," Heiden said. "But it was a real good boost for us right off the bat."

The coach said he expected a close meet with Brighton. Before the relay, he said it could have come down to a single point.

Northville racked up firsts in the next two events.

Fisher took the 200 freestyle in 1:50.06 while Holdridge was third in 1:53.05. Wesley won the 200 IM in 2:07.68.

Fee got the Mustangs next win in the 100 butterfly. He swam a 56.04 race.

In the 500 freestyle, 5:14.32 won the event for Wesley. Garner was second in 5:24.06.

The 200 freestyle relay saw Fisher, Fee, Wesley and Holdridge win in 1:33.84. Joel Elssesser, Anthony, Basse and Jason Lennig were third with 1:42.45.

Northville's last win of the meet was garnered by the team of Holdridge, Fee, Wesley and Fisher in the 400-freestyle relay 3:29.17. Garner, Shlegel, Handyside and Valade were third in 3:49.59.

Spikers bounce Livonia Franklin

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Sports Writer

A three-game sweep of Livonia Franklin highlighted a busy week for the Mustang volleyball team.

The Feb. 3 match against the Patriots snapped a short Northville losing streak. The Mustangs now stand 9-20 on the season.

Coach Paul Osborn came away impressed with his team's performance against Franklin.

"The girls didn't make any mistakes and played great defense," he said. "They came out and played real well."

The win came after the Mustangs failed to move on to tournament play at the Howell Invitational and lost to Farmington Harrison—all last week. In the Franklin match, Osborn said luck was on the side of Northville.

"(Jenny) Lower, (Aurayn) Method and (Stacey) Nyland were hitting right on the line," he said. "There is no way to defend against that."

The two squads battled to a near standstill in the early going of game one. Northville pulled out to a 7-5 lead and never looked back, though.

The Mustangs went up a score of 13-7 after the second rotation of players. They quickly finished off the Patriots by a 15-9 margin.

Game two was "almost a mirror image" of game one, Osborn said. Northville took a 7-4 lead after the first rotation. The lead went to four midway through the game before the Mustangs closed it out at 15-8.

The final game of the match was a bit closer, but not much. Northville led 12-9 after the first rotation before hitting a late surge to win the game and match 15-10.

"It was a pleasure for the girls and for me," Osborn said. "The girls have been working very hard. The fruits of their efforts paid off in this match."

Cagers fall twice to conference rivals

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Sports Writer

Plymouth Canton showed why it may be the best basketball team in the Western Lakes Activities Association Friday as the Chiefs handed the Mustangs a 70-58 defeat.

The Chiefs, undefeated in the conference, used strong second-half performances from Derrick McDonald and Hal Heard to fight off Northville. The loss dropped the Mustangs to 6-7 overall and 3-5 in the WLAA.

Although a 12-point loss doesn't sound encouraging, coach Omar Harrison said his team played a tough game, especially considering the Mustangs were on the road.

"After our disappointing loss (to North Farmington)," he said, "the kids played real well. We were within six points until a few minutes to go."

Northville suffered a 58-57 loss to the Raiders three days earlier at home.

"It's a tribute to them that they came back and didn't let that one-point loss affect their play," Harrison said.

The Mustangs played Canton even-up in the first quarter Friday.

Northville continued with its balanced scoring attack from recent games to tie the Chiefs at 16 after the first eight minutes of play. Matt Schramm led with six points while Mike Maschek chipped in with four. Toledo-bound Ryan Huzjak and Chris Lehr each had a three-point basket.

Canton tames Mustangs with late match surge

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Sports Writer

Both the future and the present came into play in Northville's 37-26 loss to Canton Feb. 6.

In wrestling, perhaps more so than any other sport, the present can be excruciating for inexperienced teams like the Mustangs. Often, though, rays of hope shine through for the future.

Northville's dual meet against the Chiefs was no exception. Despite the 11-point setback, the Mustangs showed that there are good times ahead.

The loss to Canton ended the regular-season portion of Northville's schedule. Tonight the Mustangs, who have three wins in the campaign, will be in action in a Western Lakes Activities Association crossover meet. In the next few weeks, Northville will participate in conference and state tournaments.

The Mustangs' Mike Steiner opened the dual meet against Canton on a winning note.

The 103-pounder scored an impressive 16-6 victory over Frank Tourmina. Steiner built a 7-4 lead after the first period, scoring on a takedown and reversal, among others. He went on to dominate the last two rounds and nearly pinned Tourmina in the closing seconds for the win.

Steiner's win, a major decision, put Northville up 4-0.

At 112, the Mustangs' Zack Francis, a sophomore, went up against the Chiefs' Andy Strahan. Strahan had little trouble pinning the Mustang at 1:46 of round one.

A determined Jiro Kameoka came right back and grabbed a pin for Northville. After several near pins, Kameoka rolled Mike Borich on his back and pinned him with just 20 seconds remaining in the first period.

Northville then split its next two matches with Canton.

At 125, Chris Harrison suffered the Mustangs' toughest loss of the day. Trailing 8-4 heading into round three, Harrison rallied to tie the Chiefs' Dave Smith with under a minute left in the match. As time expired, Smith scored a takedown of Harrison to scratch out a 10-8 decision.

Wrestling up a weight class, Matt Allison took six points for Northville at 130 pounds. Going up against a tough Nick Spano, Allison garnered a default victory.

Spano suffered a knee injury in the first round of the match. The Chief wrestler went on, however, before finally submitting to the pain in the late third period. Allison was ahead 13-8 at the time the match ended.

The win moved the Mustang lead to 16-9. That margin was cut by three at the 135 pound weight division.

Dave Kovacovich, one of Northville's best, went up against Jerry Flynn. The match stayed close through two periods, with Flynn up 6-4, but Kovacovich couldn't rally and the Canton wrestler walked away with an 11-5 decision.

Northville took its next to last win at 140. Adam Lynch used a strong second period to easily decision Kevin Pavlov 10-2. Lynch nearly pinned the Chief in round two, but couldn't quite finish it off.

Canton then reeled off five straight victories to seal the win.

Ryan Baber wrestled well at 145, but couldn't keep Bill Buslepp from a pin with only 18 seconds left in the match. At 152, Matt Litelman also fell victim to a Canton pin, this time at 1:42 of the first.

Jason Holman took on the Chiefs' Steve Hohl at 160 pounds and hung tough. Holman couldn't generate much offense, though, in falling 11-4.

The same was true for Erik Hibbler at 171, as he dropped an 11-1 decision to Chris Christenson. At 189, Mike Held lost on a pin to Canton's George Young.

Adam Davis took Northville's final six points of the match in a void at heavyweight.

Here comes the recreation page

Good newspapers, like anything else in the market place, must change to survive.

Trends change. Ways of doing things become outdated and technology, dog-gone it, moves forward. But, most of all, people change.

Their needs evolve day-to-day, sometimes minute-to-minute. In an effort to satisfy those ever-changing desires, your faithful guardian of JOURNALISM, The Northville Record, is moving ahead.

If you take a gander at the back page of this section you will notice some significant changes.

Gone is the "In Shape" page.

Through careful research and much debate we came to a clear consensus about In Shape: it was a lame page. Now, I think our intentions, in the beginning, were good.

The idea was to present a feature story each week that would give helpful hints or suggestions on how to keep a fine-tuned body. Various other items, like health and nutrition columns, were to give an expert's view of staying in shape. And, lest we forget, fitness briefs were to inform you of places to pump iron or find aerobic courses.

As time went by, though, we discovered there were only so many ways to present stories on jogging, etc. . . . In short, it became tiresome and ineffective to the folks that really count, our readers.

So we scratched our collective heads and came up with something, we hope, will more effectively serve you: a community recreation page.

The format will remain somewhat similar to In Shape. A weekly feature, at the top of the page, will focus on events, courses, games or anything that is going on at the Recreation Department.

Our hope is that this will shed some more light on a vital part of the community. Plenty of good athletes, interesting games and worthwhile programs are all under the jurisdiction of the department and, frankly, deserve more coverage.

Recreation briefs will move from sports to the new page. Anything and everything coming up in the department will find its way to this section.

The final portion of the recreation page will take on two different elements.

This week, as you will note, the regular health column we had been running on In Shape remains. This will likely be here for some time as well.

Eventually, we hope to add a recreation scoreboard. This would look much like the scoreboard in sports, except that it would give you all the vital stats on recreation activities. Look for that in the spring.

Fitness briefs, from In Shape, will move to the sports section. So if you have a note on where health-minded activities are taking place, we can still accommodate.

In a nutshell, that's our plan.

Lets us know what you think. If you have an idea or suggestion, feel free to call at 349-1700 or drop us a line.

Canton stops gymnastics squad in home meet

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Sports Writer

A drained Mustang gymnastics team took it on the chin against Western Lakes Activities Association rival Canton last week, 136.75-125.15.

The dual meet, held Feb. 3, came on the heels of three meets the previous week. Coach Jeff Pergament expected a tough night against the Chiefs, who were ranked No. 2 in the state earlier this season.

"I more than expected an off night," he said. "I knew without a night off they wouldn't perform at their best."

Besides the hectic schedule, the squad was less than 100 percent physically.

Among the ailments, Sara Kolb's knees are tender, as are Leslie Allen's ankles. Pergament said the injuries were aggravated by the team's heavy schedule.

And as if all of that wasn't enough, the coach said the team had a hard time getting home after the meet.

"Everything that could go wrong," Pergament said, "did."

Among the bright spots for Northville was Kolb's performance in the vault. The sophomore scored a 9.35. "It's a pretty good score," Pergament said. "She only had a half-point off."

Mia DeHart was next with an 8.5 in the vault. Allen scored an 8.2 and Lisa Hojnacki tallied 8.05. The Mustangs' total of 34.1 was nearly two points behind Canton.

Northville fell behind by four more points in the uneven bars.

DeHart was tops for Northville with an 8.45. Kolb was second with an 8.0, while Sue Okasinski scored a 7.0 and Hojnacki was fourth at 6.0.

In the beam, the Mustangs' DeHart was once again first with a 7.9. Kolb took a 7.8, Allen 7.0 and Karen Kosman a 6.6.

"If you are tired it really shows on the beam," Pergament said of the low scores. "If you're not on, you fall a lot."

The scores improved in the final event of the evening, the floor exercise.

DeHart scored a 9.0 and Allen moved up for an 8.25. Kristi Darkowski was next with a 7.45, and Hojnacki took a 7.15.

Salem outlasts Northville spikers

Northville was strong in nearly statistical category. The Mustangs served at a 90-percent clip and set at an even better rate of 96 percent.

"I think overall," Osborn said, "it was probably our best match."

SALEM def. NORTHVILLE 15-8.

19-21, 15-11, 15-9: As the scores indicate, the Mustangs took one of the Western Lakes Activities Association's best squads to the limit Feb. 5.

Osborn said there were two keys to the defeat.

First, he said, was an injury to Lower in game three. A twisted ankle took her out of action for the remainder of the match and forced the Mustangs to juggle their lineup.

Service reception errors were the second key, the coach added. Northville "gave" the Rocks 17 points in the four games by failing to return their serve.

"They didn't blow us away," Osborn said. "But we had chances to win and didn't."

Northville fell in a hole it couldn't recover from in game one.

Salem jumped to an 8-2 lead before the Mustangs battled back. Northville got it to within two, but could come no closer in losing 15-8.

Game two featured a test of wills. The two teams squared off and fought for more than an hour in the second stanza.

Northville led 12-11 in what would normally be the late stages. But Salem pounced back to take a 14-12 lead. Refusing to give up, the Mustangs tied it behind a serving ace from Method.

The game was again bottled up at 18 before the Rocks edged back for a one-point lead. A Nyland-served point and another ace by Method won the marathon for the Mustangs.

"All through the game they kept their cool," Osborn said.

Chiefs outgun Mustang cagers for WLAA win

Huzjak nailed another trey in the second, but the Mustangs could manage only six other points in the quarter. Harrison said Canton's tough "nose-to-nose" defense shut down his cagers.

"We didn't get good shots like we wanted to," he added.

The Chiefs used a good inside-outside game to build a five-point halftime lead, Harrison said. The coach explained that Canton used Heard close to the basket and John Paupore from three-point land to give his squad fits.

"They've got a real good club," Harrison said. "Good inside and outside."

Canton used that combination again in the third to pad their lead. Despite good efforts from Lehr, Maschek and Huzjak, the Chiefs extended their margin by four points. McDonald scored nine from the outside and Heard had six inside.

The Mustangs cut a nine-point lead to seven with about two minutes remaining. Northville could pull no closer, however, and the Chiefs hung on.

Free throws may have been the difference in the final period. Canton shot 17 of its 23 free throws in the fourth and connected on 14 of them.

Harrison said the Mustangs were forced to foul and hope that Canton would miss some free throws. Unfortunately for Northville, they didn't.

"A loss is a loss," Harrison said, "and you always feel bad. But we played hard. That's all we can do."

Northville had four players in double figures for the game. Huzjak and Schramm each had 14 while Lehr and Maschek scored 13 points.

NORTH FARMINGTON 58, NORTHVILLE 57: The heartbreaking Feb. 4 defeat went right down to the wire.

According to Harrison, a crucial factor in the game was the illness of Schramm. One of the leading scorers on the team at more than 11 per game, the senior's playing time was limited — reducing his production to two points.

"We just didn't have anybody to take up the slack," Harrison said. "That was probably the key."

The Raiders came into the contest with only one conference win. But, Harrison commented, a certain spark was missing from the Mustangs.

"We worked hard," he said. "But sometimes you play like you can't get any momentum. That's the way we played."

The game remained tied through three quarters.

Lehr and Maschek stepped up in the first half in Schramm's absence. The former notched eight points in the first, on two three-pointers, while the latter netted seven in the second to help keep the game tied at 34 at halftime.

Scoring was more balanced in the third period. Huzjak got six while Jim Luebbe and Joe Staknis added two each.

Harrison said the Raiders' Mark Temple broke the Mustangs' back in the fourth with two three-pointers. He poured in 21 for the game for North Farmington.

Aerobics class meets city needs

Question: What do you get when you combine fitness, fun and personalized attention?

Answer: A New Attitude about exercise. . . New Attitude Aerobics, to be specific.

When Northville Recreation teamed up with this Northville-based fitness program, the primary goal was to provide the residents' needs. Since New Attitude's inception, this objective has not only been met, but surpassed the expectations of Traci Gottschalk, Northville Recreation's director, and New Attitude Aerobics co-owners, Lynne "Po" Jordan and Rita Wightman.

What's made this fitness program distinctive? New Attitude emphasizes the "personalized side" of fitness — a natural reflection of this small, friendly community and its residents. Consideration is given not only to the health and fitness needs of the clients, but also their personal goals and lifestyles — areas often ignored or overlooked by other fitness programs and large health clubs. The atmosphere at class time is positive and upbeat, generated by the familiar faces of neighbors and friends, encouraging and supporting one another in their quest for better health and fitness.

Planning and development of the program begins with education. As in any field of study, physical fitness practices and theories are constantly evolving and improving. What was accepted as fact a year or two ago, may not be the case today. Therefore, New Attitude requires that each individual instructor qualify for and maintain certification with the Aerobics and Fitness Association of America, through continuing education classes and workshops. This nationally recognized professional association formulates standards and guidelines for the promotion of public safety and excellence in exercise.

Next, the focus shifts to the New Attitude client. Most participants share basic objectives — weight loss, feeling better, stress reduction, etc. Through detailed registration information and one-on-one discussions with the clients, instructors help pinpoint specific areas of interest (i.e. lower back, abdominals, thighs, upper body), then assist in developing a fitness plan that's right for the individual.

One-hour classes cover a wide range of fitness activities, set to energy-charged music, and are not limited to aerobics.

Circuit Workout (Tuesday through Thursday, 6 a.m.; Wednesday, 7:45 p.m.; Friday, 6 p.m.) Like to add a new twist to your fitness program? This could be the key to success, for both men and women, beginners and advanced exercisers alike. The variety will motivate and recharge your interest and enthusiasm for exercise.

Based on the "interval training" principal, each hour is divided into fast and slower-paced work periods, but always the participant keeps moving. During the "work intervals," BASIC aerobic activities (marching, jogging, etc.) are conducted for several minutes. What follows are "recovery intervals" or work station activities. Here the focus is placed on toning and strengthening key muscle groups from "head-to-toe." Using a variety of equipment provided for you (free weights ranging from 1.5 pounds and up, resistance rubberbands, jump ropes, etc.) makes the workout both effective and interesting.

Light-N-Low (Tuesday through Thursday, 10 a.m.) For the "impact-conscious" exercisers team up low impact leg work with energizing upper body movements, to create a winning combination. A warm-up and stretch is followed by easy-to-follow aerobics (No heavy bouncing or jumping). The hour is finished off with floorwork exercises (abdominals, buttocks, thighs) and a refreshing cooldown.

High/Low Aerobics (Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 9:15 a.m.; Saturday, 8 a.m.; Monday through Wednesday, 5:45 p.m.; Tuesday through Thursday, 7 p.m.) Warm-ups, aerobics and toning floorwork are presented using the "Team-Teaching" approach. (While seldom seen in other fitness programs, this is a special feature of New Attitude Aerobics.) Under the guidance and supervision of two instructors, participants select the level of intensity (high or low impact) that they prefer. This enables clients to better pace themselves and modify their activity.

Other unique features of this Northville Recreation fitness program include:

"Flex-Scheduling" — With today's busy lifestyles and everyday demands, this allows clients every opportunity to keep up with their commitment to fitness. Participants may attend any class, at any time, on any day within the purchased session.

Child Care — Morning and evening on-site child care is available for client convenience during the 9:15 a.m. and 5:45 p.m. classes. The cost is $1.50 per child, per class.

Open Registration — Classes are conducted year-round, with registrations accepted throughout the 10-week sessions. Program costs are based on the number of classes attended within the purchased session. Fees are $32.50 (10 classes), $57 (20 classes), $81.50 (30 classes) and $105 (Unlimited number of classes for 10 weeks). A single class walk-in fee is $4.50.

'Games' serve teens' purposes

Have you ever noticed how well teenagers can play "games" with adults? These games serve two principal purposes — manipulation and defense. Manipulation is the teen's method of getting what he or she wants with the least amount of effort on their part. Defense allows teens to discover two key facts of life: how to assert their own feelings and needs according to adult rules and how to recognize when their own goals must be shifted or abandoned, while saving face.

To a teen, gamesmanship is like a contest. Don't be fooled: playful testing may be hidden beneath a facade of utter seriousness. This helps them practice that their defense can be a positive gaming experience. However, a teen permitted to deal with life by slipping into gametime and manipulating situations may become a shallow, manipulative, insensitive adult. Here are some of the most common games teenagers play.

Switch and Bait — This strategy is merely a decoy to camouflage or distract from a second plan which is held in reserve. Your 16-year-old wants to borrow the car, knowing full well that you don't let him use it at night. So he begins with, "My girlfriend and I want to go to an all-night party for the prom with another couple." He knows you will respond negatively and say he needs to be home by 1 a.m. So he's ready to jump to the second plan and say something like, "Well, then I'll need the car in order to get home by 1 a.m." Your best defense is to refuse to play the game or tell him you'll get back with him on it.

Finding the Chinks in your Armor — This strategy is peppered with comments that push your buttons: "Oh cripes, Mom, you're in the dark ages." "Just like always, you never listen." "Calm down, don't have a spaz over it." "Jon's parents don't mind if he goes." If your guilt bell goes off, you're not alone. Although your internal reaction to these comments may be irritation, your external reaction might be something like, "You may think that, but it doesn't change my response."

Divide and Conquer — The teen knows who the most sympathetic parent is and will always approach that person first. Through sleight of hand, they can manipulate the situation and get what they want. The teen asks her dad to spend the night at Beth's and he says, "I don't know about that." The teen then responds, "It's okay with Mom." Dad says it's okay with him, too. The teen then goes to mom and says that dad okayed it. A clever parent will see through the play and double-check with their spouse before responding to the teen.

In conclusion, I leave you with a comment someone made that sums up gamesmanship succinctly. "Teens may actually be disappointed if they get their own way too easily without opposition, because it deprives them of getting used to their skills. The thrill of victory can only happen in true competition. No one likes to win when the other team won't take the field."

Refinance loans gain in popularity

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Home mortgage loans are becoming less expensive and amortization periods are shorter. At the same time, the variety of loan types is on the increase, providing home buyers with the best-ever selection of mortgage offerings.

Currently favorable terms have sparked a surge of activity by homemakers to refinance their existing mortgage loan.

"About 80 percent of our fixed rate home mortgages are now refinance loans," said Sam Lyons, senior vice president for mortgage banking at Great Western Bank—a national lender (20 states).

"Considering all types of mortgage instruments, about 70 percent of our loans are now for refinancing a residence."

Lyons said. "That's up from 30 percent a year ago." Lyons also reported a substantial recent increase in requests for 15-year loan term mortgages, as opposed to the more conventional 30-year term.

"We now have $240 million in the pipeline (loans now being processed) for 15-year mortgage loans. A year ago at this time, we had only $40 million being processed for 15-year loans."

Other lenders and mortgage brokers have noted the same trend. With today's low interest rates, many homeowners can refinance their 30-year loan with a 15-year loan and pay very little more in monthly payments than they have been paying.

First Nationwide Bank also is busy processing refinance loans for homeowners, and most of those loans are for 15-year terms, according to Tom Cross, a regional sales manager.

"About 80 percent of our loans are now refinance mortgages, and the idea of paying off a home loan in a shorter time period is really catching on. Sometimes the added amount in monthly payments to achieve this shorter term is only $50 to $150."

However, many homeowners prefer a standard 30-year term mortgage loan, with the idea of making extra principal payments monthly or periodically. Using this method, they are not committed to making higher monthly payments but can receive the same benefits. If they face a particularly tight money period, they can simply postpone their extra payments.

One lender pointed out that if a homeowner pays only one addi-

Striking vistas highlights the Killian point of view

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

Almost every room has a striking view in the Killian, but the vista from the hexagonal great room is by far the best. The panoramic scope of this central living area allows full appreciation of the finest that nature has to offer, be it ocean, lake, river, valley or even an ever-changing orchard.

And in warm weather, a wide deck spanning three sides expands the viewing possibilities, along with living space, still further. At the heart of the vaulted great room, a fireplace, flanked by a closet and a built-in china cabinet, provides a warm welcome on chilly nights. This combination unit also provides visual separation between the otherwise open kitchen and the living room.

The kitchen has plenty of cupboard and counter space. Other kitchen amenities include a walk-in pantry and a work island with vegetable sink. Two or more chefs can work together here without ever getting in each other's way.

Rectangular wings extend from two sides of the central living area. This arrangement allows kids and teens to make as much noise as they want in their bedrooms without the sound they produce intruding on their parents' privacy and quieter atmosphere at the other end of the house.

The room adjacent to the master suite can serve as a home office, a nursery, a den or whatever. This space could be redesigned as another bedroom, if needed.

Benches and planters line the odd-angled air lock entry vestibule, creating a friendly and cheerful first impression. Boots and wet shoes will find a home under the bench, coats and umbrellas on the wall. This room also includes a closet.

And because the home is built over an unfinished full basement, storage space will never be a problem. All it takes is a few walls to create more living space. Some possibilities include a workshop, home office, exercise room, media room or even a musical rehearsal space.

For a study plan of the Killian (207-10), send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Murphy's law . . . NOT!

Milford Township couple show that building your own home can go right

By Pamela Dear
Special Writer

As the saying goes, if you want a job done right, do it yourself. Roger and Roelle Murphy of Milford Township did.

"If I was putting a nail in a floor board and I missed, I wouldn't just move on to another area," Roger explained. "I would stop and nail it where it belonged," he said.

"Roger is very meticulous and quality conscious," wife Roelle said. "He wouldn't have someone else build his house."

Using Roger's original house plans, the Murphys single-handedly built their 2,800-square-foot contemporary ranch. They contracted outside help only when the time came to pour the foundation and lay the exterior brick.

Roger's brothers, Ed and Darren, and his dad, Tom, lent helping hands on weekends. After 16 months, the Murphys, with their two sons, Paul and John, moved into their home in September of 1988. They previously lived in Westland. "You'll never find this house anywhere in a book of plans," Roelle said. "There's not one just like it." Sitting almost majestically on a 3.68-acre parcel on Pearson Road, this uniquely shaped home contains a great room, four bedrooms, three full baths, utility room, full basement with a walk-out, rear cantilever deck, and a lower-level three-car heated garage. It also features vaulted ceilings, clerestory windows, and hot-water baseboard radiant heating.

"People call it the 'round house,' but it's not," Roger said. "It has 12 different wall surfaces."

Roger's design dates back to his high school days. "It was much larger, 5,400 square feet," he recalled. "Then I became older and I understood what money was and I down scaled it," he said with a good-natured laugh.

He explained that the size of the home is actually based on the garage. "The garage has to be a certain depth for the car. To make it three cars wide, that determined how wide the dining room and kitchen would be. From that, the home is complete."

GARDENING

When choosing houseplants that will work in your home environment, whatever indoor garden spaces you have, you can find a plant to thrive there!

• Full-sunlight plants: Indicates direct and unobstructed southern exposures. Includes bird of paradise, kalanchoe, passionflower, myrtle, bougainvillea, cactuses, gardenia, gloxinia (large hybrids), hibiscus (Chinese), jasmine, lantana, geranium, chrysanthemum, basil, mint, ginger, sage, thyme to name a few.

• Bright-light plants: Indicates southern exposures that are filtered through curtains, blinds or partially obstructed trees, a building or porch and direct unobstructed western, northern or eastern exposures. Includes devil's ivy, kaffir lily, Chinese fan palm, coleus, azalea, cactuses, camellia, chives, cineraria, fern, ivy, (German, English).

• Indirect-light plants: Indicates filtered western, eastern or northern exposures. Includes arrowhead, Norfolk Island pine, Germany ivy, philodendron, ficus, dumbcane, ferns, orchid, palm, narcissus, primrose.

• Low-light plants: Indicates any exposure that is very obstructed and offers only dim light. Includes Chinese evergreen, mosaic plant, resurrection plant, aspidistra, dracaena, snake plant, pothos.

• Combination-light plants: Indiscriminates those plants that need different lighting during different seasons of the year or at different growing stages, such as amaryllis, spathiphyllum, azalea, crocus.

TIP

Tickle your houseplants clean! By using an inexpensive feather duster, you can keep houseplants looking their very best (between regular groomings), and it entails little time and effort. The soft feathers brush away lint and dust film to perfection: in fact, so easily that you can entrust tiny tots to tickle the plants clean.

Plant placement

Bird of paradise

■ Plants that need full sun include bird of paradise, bougainvillea, cacti and chrysanthemums. Herbs, such as basil, mint, ginger, sage and thyme, also should be planted in direct southern exposures.

■ Ferns, ivy, azaleas and chives do well in bright light that is filtered through curtains, blinds and trees.

■ Keep Norfolk Island pine, philodendron, ficus and orchids in indirect light.

■ Low-light plants include Chinese evergreen, dracaena and snake plant.

How to best clean streaked, stained windows

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

9. Do you have any suggestions or recommendations on products for cleaning several large windows that constantly look streaked and stained? We have tried several different types of commercial window cleaners, ammonia full strength, and vinegar with no success.

A. It may be that your window glass is pitted and stained beyond any cleaning treatment. However, here are a few suggestions that might help. The success of these treatments will depend on the source of the problems and the amount of damage done to the window glass.

Most stains created by water condensation are caused by minerals in the water. Sometimes a poultice made by soaking a folded paper towel with white vinegar will work.

Place it over the stained areas on the window and keep in place for a day or so. Be sure and keep the poultice wet. Taping plastic wrap over the poultice can help.

If this fails, try scrubbing the staining with a strong solution of Zud, a heavy-duty cleaner often sold in hardware stores. A paste of Zud and water left on the staining area for several hours can work on particularly stubborn stains.

Sometimes washing with a solution of muriatic acid diluted in water will help remove stubborn staining. Use equal parts of the acid and water (any stronger solution might etch the window glass rather than clean it).

Be extremely careful when preparing and using this solution. Wear rubber gloves, old clothes, goggles. Pour the acid into the water, never the reverse. Use a sponge to wash the windows and thoroughly rinse with clear water.

Be careful not to get any of the acid solution on woodwork or painted siding. To protect the window frames from the acid, rub them with a bar of soap to form a film that can be washed off later.

Both vinegar and muriatic acid work well on staining caused by alkali in the water. If alkali is not involved, one of the newer paint and varnish removers containing methylene chloride can help when dealing with other types of staining.

One effective non-traditional cleaner for glass is Brasso, a commercial metal cleaner and polish. Another non-traditional cleaner for windows is "Kit" a liquid car polish. These cleaners will leave a powdery residue, which can be removed with regular glass cleaners and paper towels once you have removed the difficult stains.

If these cleaning methods fail, as a last resort you can remove some of the water stains by buffing the window surface with a rubbing compound. Use an electric buffer and a light to medium liquid rubbing compound such as that made for fiber glass boats (3M company makes on such product).

Be careful not to exert too much pressure in the buffing process. You do not want to break the glass. Careful buffing will often remove very persistent water deposits, although the abrasions in some of the buffing compounds can tend to scratch the glass surface. Minute scratches, however, are often easier to live with than glass that is severely stained.

After you have cleaned the windows it is advisable to apply a protective coating such as Rain-X or Window Maid. These products create a surface where dirt will not adhere as much to the glass. They also are effective in preventing the buildup of water deposits. The protective coatings have to be reapplied periodically.

tional payment on his mortgage loan per year, it will reduce the term from 30 years to 21.6 years.

Flexibility is a key word in today's mortgage loan industry. The variety of loan types seems to increase each week.

At Great Western Bank, a particularly popular loan offers a fixed interest rate for the first five years, then becomes adjustable (monthly adjustments) for the remaining 25 years. The adjustments are pegged to the Federal Cost of Funds Index.

Another type of mortgage that is growing in popularity is a no-point loan. When no points are charged (no upfront loan fee), the mortgage carries a slightly higher interest rate — typically about three-tenths of 1 percent higher. Each "point" is 1 percent of the loan amount.

"There's no free lunch," said Cliff Norton, president of Norton Mortgage Corp., a mortgage brokerage firm. "The borrower either pays points or higher interest costs throughout the loan term. He can decide which type of loan is most beneficial in his situation."

Between 5 percent to 10 percent of loans now processed by Norton's firm are no-point mortgages, he said.

Being a mortgage broker, Norton can select special loans from many lenders — loans that are best suited for each client. One of his current favorites is an adjustable 30-year loan that can be converted to a fixed-rate loan anytime between the 13th and 60th month.

This loan is now offered for an initial interest rate of 5.75 percent (for first year) and one point," Norton said. "The conversion to a fixed-rate loan can be made anytime during this four-year 'time window' for a flat $250."

After the first year, the loan's interest rate adjusts to no more than 3 percent over the current rate for one-year Treasury bills, but cannot increase more than 20 percent per year. The maximum increase during the life of the loan is 6 percent over the initial rate.

9. Is the affordability of homes generally increasing in this country?

A. Definitely. In fact, home affordability is now at a 17-year high, due to continuing declines in mortgage interest rates and lowering home prices in many areas, according to a report from the National Association of Realtors.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

ANTIQUES

Q. I have acquired an English flower cart — picture enclosed. The wheels have rubber treads in good condition. Please note brass fittings on the large wheel and the lubricating cap. Can you tell me about its age and value?

A. Your unusual three-wheel cart was made about 1900 (maker unknown) and would probably sell for $500 to $600 in good condition.

Q. I have a figurine of a woman and a cow with this mark on the bottom. It measures about 10 inches high and 12 inches wide. I would like to know who made it, how old it is and how much it is worth.

A. Your figurine was made by the Dahl-Jensen porcelain factory in Copenhagen, Denmark, about 1930. It would probably sell for $400 to $500 in good condition.

Q. Enclosed is a photo of a doll that I have had for about 30 years. Her name is Hedda-Get-Bedda and her head rotates, providing three different faces. One face has measles, one is awake and one is sleeping.

Please advise if you know any-thing about her; I am beginning to wonder if I have the only doll like this in existence.

A. Hedda-Get-Bedda dolls were made by the American Doll Co. in Chicago during the early 20th century. The history of multifaced dolls is in "The Collectors' Encyclopedia of Dolls" (Crown). They were made from around 1866 to 1925. Hedda-Get-Bedda dolls are listed in the "20th Century Doll Book" for $150 in good condition.

Q. Please evaluate my Jiffy three-reel slot machine. It dispenses a gumball for each penny inserted. I bought it from a small restaurant that was going out of business.

A. Slot machines that don't pay off in cash are called "trade stimulators" and were made in the late 1930s and would probably sell for $365 to $385 in good condition.

Q. What can you tell me about my Elgin pocket watch No. 32,678,523? It has an 18-karat gold hunting case with fancy engraving. The movement has 17 jewels. A. Your watch was made in 1930 and would probably sell for $800 to $900 in good condition.

ly symmetrical," he said. The garage is located underneath the dining room and kitchen areas.

Roger was fully prepared to undertake the hefty job of constructing a home. He participated in a two-year carpentry apprenticeship program and also attended a computer-aided design course at a community college.

"One of the instructors was a certified architect," he said, "and he helped me with the structural support beams. They support the load of the roof and have to be correct. He showed me how to do the calculations in order to see what beams I needed."

Roger also spent much time in the library doing research. He visited builders' shows and received helpful suggestions from the building inspector and from lumber yards. Both Roger and Roelle commented that Highland Lumber was helpful and customer oriented, and they were quite pleased with this particular supplier.

Roger studied building codes and an electrical wiring manual. "I bought an electrical handbook and read through the pertinent portions and wired the whole house myself. We passed all inspections the first time," he said with pride.

An engineer by trade, Roger works for Brass Craft in Southfield and designs faucets and other plumbing components. Roelle is a reserve officer with the Milford Police Department and in December of 1989 actually was the first female to join the force.

She also is the full-time program coordinator for the Milford branch of the YMCA where she develops, for example, children's athletic activities.

In constructing their home, the Murphys decided to build with quality first in mind. "We actually spent 20 percent more money building the house than we could have if we had cut corners," Roger said.

"I used Douglas fir in the roof, joists, and floor joists. It's a more expensive wood, but it has a higher elastic modulus, which means it bends less. For example, if you jump on the floor, it doesn't bounce, and if you get a snow load on the roof, it doesn't sag."

Roelle commented that retailers tried to talk them into going with cheaper merchandise. Roger, though, insisted that he wanted to build his home with quality materials throughout and bought name brands only. He purchased, for instance, Pella windows and Owens Corning insulation.

This energy-efficient home is well insulated and has several low-maintenance factors. "All walls are 2-by-6 exterior," Roger explained. "We've got R-29 wall, R-32 roof, with the Pella windows. I used an expensive 40-year roofing so I wouldn't have to do it over," he added.

Roger also selected an exterior that is 50 percent brown-tone brick and 50 percent cedar covered with a meadow tan vinyl siding. He chose to cover the cedar so he wouldn't have to paint or stain it every three years. The shingles are by Elk and have an attractive two-dimension cedar appearance.

The interior of the home, marked by contemporary leanings, equally reinforces its well-made character. Roelle's choice of a handsome blue and grey color scheme is perfect against Roger's tongue-and-groove oak flooring stained in cherry.

This roomy ranch, designed to have a southern exposure, is bright and airy thanks to pitched ceilings, clerestory and bay windows, white walls, and dramatic brass and glass ceiling light fixtures. The open floor plan is spacious yet comfortable for entertaining a large group of family and friends. Overhead beams stained in cherry add an interesting architectural detail.

The Murphys have included wonderful touches to provide the home with a polished look, such as the white and grey marble in the foyer, etched glass double entry doors, Italian ceramic floor tile in the kitchen, and solid pine doors with polished brass level handles.

With their distinctive house plan, skill in construction, choice of materials, and hard work, the Murphy family has proven that if you want a job done right, sometimes it does pay to do it yourself.

from other communities is indeed the beauty of its property. Its lush wooded areas, ponds, hills and ravines are among the last of its kind and are protected by the City of Farmington Hills Woodlands Committee.

When I really caught our eye was the landscape at Oxford Estates, said
Joanne Tolstedt, a resident of Oxford
Estates whose husband is a Ford Motor Company executive. We've relocated many times and this is by far the most beautiful place we've lived. Here you can take a walk in the woods right in your own backyard. We also like the fact that Oxford Estates isn't too far of a community. There's a special feeling of intimacy here. We've enjoyed getting to know our neighbors - many of whom are transients like us - added Tolstedt.

While offering a secluded feel,
Oxford Estates is centrally located near shopping centers, restaurants and excellent Farmington Hills schools - including new Hillside Elementary.
There is also a variety of recreational spots - from clubs to theatres - located conveniently nearby.

Living here really is having the best of both worlds, said Wendy Bratt, sales coordinator of Oxford Estates. You're able to take advantage of living in a lovely, new home in an old heavily treed, private setting. In fact many of our homes are built on cul-de-sacs lots which help add to the feeling of privacy here.

Homes in Oxford Estates range in price from $300,000 to $500,000 in an area of homes that are priced in excess of $1,000,000. Two model homes have been decorated by Harriet Brandt of Candle Lite II
Interiors and are currently on display

Automotiles, parts and tools are good bets for U.S. sales in Europe

Worldly wise Smart companies looking to Europe

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Regardless of where you stand on the issue of trade with Japan, neither side denies the fact that Japan is a tough market for the U.S. to crack. Aside from Japan's protectionist policies, person-on-the-street interviews reveal the Japanese consumer believes U.S. goods are of inferior quality.

So why bang your head against a brick wall? Peter Thielhaus of International Marketing Systems believes U.S. companies should be looking instead toward Europe for overseas sales.

Thielhaus' company helps American firms set up operations in European markets, which he believes are ripe for the picking.

"The basic facts are that the U.S. dollar is presently very favorable with regard to European currencies," said Thielhaus. He points out that the Deutschmark, which once traded at 350 to the dollar, is now hovering around 160, or less than half. He adds that U.S. labor costs have a 30-percent advantage over those in Germany, and a similar factor in all but three European countries.

"Our trade balance with Europe has become positive over the last five years," he said. "Products are less expensive than five years ago. We've worked with a number of companies and brought them over there. In all cases, they were very price competitive."

One company which has entered the European market with help from IMS is Automatic Valve Company of Novi. Though Automatic Valve had dabbled with European sales at various points in its 45-year history, it wasn't until three years ago that a European subsidiary was created in Germany.

"Talking about our type of product, when it came to pneumatics, their collective gross national product matched or exceeded that of the U.S.," said Steve Burke, vice president of Automatic Valve. "So as a marketplace with potential, it was outstanding."

"We found that people were willing to listen, and look at the opportunity of dealing with a U.S. company. There was a level of quality that was interesting to Europeans. We didn't expect to march in and take over their market share, but it has been profitable."

In fact, it's been so profitable that Automatic Valve is talking about expansion of its European operation, and creating a second facility in Holland.

"It's an extraordinary market opportunity," said Burke. "To any company that is thinking about going over there, I'd say go, you've got nothing to lose."

Thielhaus said the most surprising thing U.S. firms find in dealing with Europe is the ease with which they can break in.

"I'm still surprised at how little American companies are aware of opportunities over there," said Thielhaus. "They become so involved in their home market, where it has been good for so many years and now is not that good anymore. So many European companies have come to this market. Very often (American companies) have tremendous products and have done well, but are perhaps shy of a different culture. Most people over there speak English, so it's not so difficult to deal with them."

Plus, he said, U.S. companies don't face a battle of perception as to the quality of their goods in Europe. As a rule, Europeans think highly of American quality in many areas.

Daimler-Benz, which manufactures the Mercedes-Benz automobile, has an express policy of purchasing more auto components in the U.S., said Thielhaus. "It's

Business Briefs

GARY M. McCausland of Northville has been promoted to vice president of Domino's Pizza Inc. and managing director of Domino's Pizza International, according to a recent announcement by company owner Tom Monaghan.

Based in Ann Arbor, Domino's Pizza International is a wholly owned subsidiary of Domino's Pizza Inc., the world's largest pizza delivery company. McCausland's expanded responsibilities include overseeing Domino's Pizza store development outside the United States. Currently, Domino's has 476 stores in 26 international markets.

McCausland, a native of Detroit, joined Domino's Pizza in 1987 as corporate controller for the parent company. In 1990, McCausland was appointed to his most recent position as vice president of finance and administration for the international subsidiary.

Before joining Domino's, McCausland was with Burroughs Corporation for seven years. He began his career with Price Waterhouse after earning a bachelor's degree in accounting at Michigan State University in 1973.

VALUE CITY FURNITURE, based in Columbus, Ohio, recently opened an approximately 50,000-square-foot store at 22625 Ecorse Road in Sunrise Shopping Center, Taylor. The store was opened in mid-November and is the fifth Value City Furniture store in Michigan.

Novi resident Marshall R. Solomon, of Beale Group Inc., a Southfield-based commercial real estate firm, arranged the lease and was the only outside broker involved in the transaction. Sunrise Shopping Center, owned by Essco Development of Farmington Hills, currently has A&P, Arbor Drugs and ACO in addition to Value City Furniture as anchor tenants.

NORTHVILLE ATTORNEY CHARLES N. SIMKINS has been appointed as "Local Brain Injury Legal Consultant for Michigan" by the Association of Trial Lawyers of America's Traumatic Brain Injury Litigation Group by Chairperson Hugh B. Exniclos.

Exniclos, a pioneer in this type of law practice, says "persons living in Michigan will have an opportunity to talk with a local professional specializing in brain injury cases. Closed-head injury clients require special handling."

Frequently, a mild but significant cranial injury may be overlooked by initial examinations in an emergency room. Days or weeks later, the victim may begin to show an aggressive attitude, personality changes or even bizarre activity. Exniclos stresses that since these types of unseen injuries do not cause any visible bruising or bleeding, the resulting functional disabilities are hard to correlate to the traumatic event. Unless an attorney experienced in recognizing such symptomatology is consulted, the victim has to suffer months, years or even a lifetime without help.

Simkins is available to speak to closed head injury groups, support groups, professional associations or other groups of this nature throughout the United States.

Charles N. Simkins is a partner in Simkins & Simkins, Attorneys at Law 194 East Main Street, Suite B, Northville, 48167; phone 349-6030 (with offices also in Brighton).

DEBRA KROLL of Northville recently joined MDS-Detroit (Media Distribution Services) as an account executive.

Kroll is a 1991 graduate of Western Michigan University. MDS-Detroit is the nation's largest public relations media, printing, production and mailing service with offices in 12 cities.

ILLBRUCK AUTOMOTIVE as signed with the R.A. DeMattia Company, Plymouth, to begin construction of a new facility located in the Trans-west Industrial Park in Howell.

Illbruck, a German-based multi-million corporation specializing in industrial uses of foam products, decided on Trans-west because of its close proximity to M-59, I-96, US-23, the Livingston County Airport and CSX rail transportation. The new facility will make flexible foam for acoustical, insulation and interior trim products for the auto industry. Illbruck predicts that employment will reach around 70 in the next two years. Occupancy is scheduled for mid-summer 1992.

TWENTY FOUR RE/MAX Realtors in the RE/MAX Detroit Metro region have recently earned the Certified Relocation Professional designation, including nine from RE/MAX 100 Inc. in Novi.

The nine new CRP Realtors from RE/MAX 100 were the most for any RE/MAX office in the company's Detroit Metro region. They were Diane Braykovich, Karen Brown, Donna Donaldson, Betty Mills, Karen Reeber, Randall Russell, Kim Sanchez, Darleen Smith and Karen Williams.

The CRP designation is granted by the Employee Relocation Council, a nonprofit organization of relocation professionals. Less than 1 percent of all U.S. Realtors ever earn this designation, although RE/MAX claims the largest number of CRPs in the industry.

In fact, 71 percent of all real estate CRPs in the country are with RE/MAX. Of the 1,515 CRPs in the U.S., 1,080 are RE/MAX affiliates. The next closest national real estate network, Prudential, claims 30 CRPs.

Designees are tested on relocation-related real estate, corporate relocation tax and legal issues, and family relocation issues. To retain their designation, CRPs must remain in their current profession, maintain their ERC membership, and earn 30 hours of continuing education every three years. The CRP program was introduced by the ERC in 1990.

RE/MAX 100 is at 39500 Orchard Hill Place, Suite 130, in Novi. For more information, call 348-3000.

Novi firm succeeds in European market

smart of them, because no. 1, the U.S. makes good quality products, and they are price-competitive, and the U.S. is an important Daimler-Benz export market. That's a somewhat different approach than the Japanese have been showing."

The unification of the European market's import standards has also made the game of exporting there less complicated, according to Thielienhaus.

"Basically in the past, (exporters) had to deal with 12 different markets," he said. "Now by end of this year, European countries will adopt one standard for all of them. It makes it easier for the U.S. to deal with those markets."

By the end of this year, the 12 countries of the European Community will finalize their pact with the European Free Trade Association (comprising Austria, Switzerland, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Iceland and Lichtenstein) to create one whopper of a free trade zone. Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland have also applied for membership in the EC.

But what can we sell to Europeans? Thielienhaus said the smart money is on automobiles, parts and machine tools since analysts say the auto industry in Europe is due for a big boom.

"The future of U.S. car sales, while you really can't predict it, shows no strong reason to believe it will go any higher," said Thielienhaus. "But the projection in Europe is that the 13.15 million units sold in 1991 will grow to 18-20 million by the year 2000. That's partly due to integration, and partly the demand of Eastern Europe."

But, Thielienhaus said, any product can sell in Europe, despite what U.S. manufacturers might think.

"In a way, a lot of American companies feel they have to produce a niche product," he said. "That's not at all a requirement. Allen Edmonds shoes, a high quality product, sell here for $120. But the same shoe sells in Europe for $350 a pair. It's not a niche product; just a perception of high quality. Basically, if a product sells well in the U.S., it has the capability of selling real well over there."

As a rule, if a company wants to sell in Europe, Thielienhaus believes it should be doing a minimum of $10 million in business. With that kind of a base, there are several options toward a European startup.

"One possibility is to find them a partner," said Thielienhaus. "Another way is to set up a subsidiary, which is what we did with Automatic Valve Co. The other possibility is to purchase an existing company."

IMS will conduct what it calls a market check. The research process generates data about customer bases and competition in a given market segment.

Surprisingly, just the act of doing research will sometimes result in a purchase order or requests for price quotes, the Europeans are that hungry for American products.

According to Thielienhaus, the tried and true method of generating a new sales customer applies: make a sales call and ask for a purchase order. That the sales call is across the Atlantic Ocean is irrelevant.

And as Burke of Automatic Valve said, "It's a nice feeling to think you're doing your part to help the trade imbalance."

HOW MUCH WE DEPEND ON UNRELIABLE SOURCES OF OIL DEPENDS ON YOU.

If you have two cars, using the more efficient one will help save us two million gallons of gas a day.

Driving just five miles per hour slower will help us save over two million gallons of gas a day.

Using lower octane fuels will help save America two-and-a-half-million gallons of gas a day.

Carpooling and using mass transportation will help save almost four million gallons of gas a day.

Maintaining the correct tire pressure will help save over two million gallons of gas a day.

It really is this easy. That's why President Bush hopes that, together, we can make America more fuel independent. DO YOUR PART. DRIVE SMART.

PRE-SCHOOL

SHRIMP & KIPPER (6 months to walking)

This is an introductory class designed to encourage the parent and child to enjoy themselves while learning about the water and aquatic safety. The games that are played will relate to future classes and help your child learn proper body positioning in the water. Cloth diapers and tight fitting plastic pants required. 1 child per parent.

INIA/PERCH (walking to 3 years)

This level further encourages the parent and child to explore the aquatic environment and increase propulsion skills such as kick movements and upper body control. Child will learn breath control in a fun atmosphere.

LITTLE SQUIRTS (30-36 months)

A class designed for the child who is unsure of their swimming skills but no longer needs a parent in the water. Each child is given the time to explore its new environment and build friendships with other children in the class. The gym portion of the class pays particular attention to large motor skills such as climbing and rolling.

PIKE (3-6 years)

Preschoolers who need help with floating, kicking and other basic swimming skills. All children in this class are taught the very basics of swimming. The gym will involve large motor skills such as walking on a pre-school balance beam, hopping, skipping and forward rolls. Group games are also introduced.

EELS (3-6 years)

The goal of this class is to take a child who is able to swim one width of the pool with support from flotation device. The major part of the class will be spent on rotary breathing with work on a sitting dive and basic swimming safety skills. The gym will consist of group games and different types of gym equipment. The children will be encouraged to develop upper body strength and coordination.

RAYS (3-6 years)

This class is for advanced pre-schoolers who must be able to swim the width of the pool with rotary breathing. We will work on endurance, diving from the side of the pool, treading water and pool games. GUPPY

A class for your child to develop self-confidence and increase swimming ability without help from floats or instructors. Rotary breathing and front crawl are the main areas emphasized in this class.

Like the Polliwog Express class, the Guppy Bubblers are unique to the Livonia Y. Guppy Bubblers will spend the majority of their time in class working on their Rotary Breathing.

MINNOW

In order to enroll in this class, the child should be able to swim one length of our pool with rotary breathing. Self help skills and mouth to mouth resuscitation will be covered in this class.
