

Sewer planner blasts project

Edward J. McNeely, formerly of the engineering firm McNeely & Lincoln Associates, was the architect of an engineering study that eventually evolved into the Western Townships Utilities Authority sewer line plan.

McNeely, a former Northville Township engineering consultant, has been an outspoken critic of portions of the WTUA project, and last week discussed the project with Record reporter Mike Tyree. This is part one of their conversation; part two will be published Thursday.

RECORD: You've been outspoken the past several years about certain aspects of the WTUA sewer project. What are your primary concerns?

McNEELY: The Western Townships project, in my estimation, is vastly overpriced, based on the preliminary engineering study that I prepared in 1987. My estimate of the project was approximately somewhere below $40 million. It's now up to $100 million, and of course that's going to skyrocket when you add on the interest for however many years those bonds are going to run.

I feel that some of the Western Townships' activities are highly suspect, and I think they should be investigated closely. I believe that the members of the (Northville Township) Board of Trustees — all of them; I'm talking about the Georgina Goss board of trustees — that they have to be on the border of guilty of the various mis-, non- and malfeasances, however they apply.

Their lack of action in questioning the things that were presented to them is almost unbelievable. They completely excluded the Water and Sewer Commission, which is, in theory, one of their arms to get information.

Revised Randolph project returns

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville developer Sheldon Gordon returned to the planning commission Tuesday with a scaled-back proposal for building on his Randolph Street land.

The proposal, so far, has met with more favor and less controversy than Gordon's previous plan.

In March, the city council denied Gordon's request to rezone part of his Randolph Street land from single-family to multi-family residential use. Gordon had said he wanted to place an eight-unit apartment building on the site.

The plan drew complaints from neighborhood residents that it would detract from the neighborhood and conflict with the city's Master Plan.

Gordon's revised plans call for a five-unit building containing two-story luxury townhouses and a 13-space parking lot containing a five-car garage, off the access drive to his Northville Green apartment complex. The development would be known as Northville Woods.

The proposal, which would not require rezoning, has already gained preliminary approval from the Historic District Commission.

The planning commission, too, granted preliminary approval subject to a series of stipulations. Gordon's April 21 presentation to the commission drew several suggestions from the planners, who were divided over a recommendation by Planning Consultant Don Wortman to turn the building 90 degrees. Wortman argued that the reorientation, running the townhouses along the west side of Gordon's property, would provide a wider buffer zone between them and the back of homes on Randolph Street to the east.

But Gordon contended, and a majority of planners agreed, that his proposal to run the 36-by-101-foot string of townhouses from east to west would present a more narrow building profile to the residents.

The orientation of our townhouses is one which really creates the least impact, both physically and visually, to the residents to the east," said project architect Bernard Remer.

The orientation would also provide Northville Woods residents with a more attractive view, Gordon said. The back of the townhouses would face south and overlook the banks of the Randolph Street drain under his plan, rather than the backyards of homes on Randolph.

The planners were not pleased with all aspects of Gordon's plan, though. They cited a list of recommendations by engineering consultants at McNeely & Lincoln, who found that the site had inadequate fire protection and that grading under the parking lot and between the garage and townhouses was off.

The planners also asked for more detailed landscape plans, particularly those showing a low landscaped berm between the property and the Randolph Street homes.

Fran Hopp's work earns another honor

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville's own award-winning Frances Hopp gained more recognition recently for her pioneering work with senior citizens.

Hopp, presented in March with the prestigious Jefferson Award for community service, has won The Senior Alliance's Edward H. McNamara Award as well.

The private, non-profit Senior Alliance, designated as the Area Agency on Aging for southern and western Wayne County, is dedicated to developing, coordinating, planning and administering a comprehensive network of services and programs for seniors.

Hopp's award was one of six presented at the organization's annual meeting April 16.

The Edward H. McNamara award was created in honor of the Wayne County executive's own work with senior issues. McNamara served as the Senior Alliance's first chairperson of the board in 1980.

Hopp has been involved with The Senior Alliance since its inception as well, having chaired its personnel committee and served on its executive and grants review committees.

But her long record of service to seniors began in 1970 as a City of Plymouth housing commissioner. In 1972 she was named Plymouth's director of housing, and in 1978 she took the same position in Northville.

A founding member of the Northville Area Senior Citizens Advisory Council, Hopp became the nation's first certified housing manager in 1976 after completing an intensive pilot training program with the National Center for Housing Management. She has also earned certification as a public housing manager from the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials (NAHRO), and serves on NAHRO's state and regional boards. She served as a delegate to the White House Conference on Aging in 1981.

Hopp holds a degree in gerontology and a certificate in aging and mental health from Madonna College.

School tax up for vote on Tuesday

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Tomorrow residents of the Northville School District will vote on a 25.41-mill property tax proposal for school operations, a 2.78-mill increase over last year's levy.

The 12-percent hike, which would generate a total budgeted $25,318,848 in tax revenues, was proposed in March when district officials realized a renewal of the current tax levy would not cover its projected expenses. To repeat the same millage rate, district officials say they would have to cut $1.2 million in existing programs.

School officials say 1.78 mills of the increase will go to cover the district's base budget, which includes a 5.85-percent wage increase for teachers, a 2-percent increase for salary increments (raises based on seniority), and a 10-percent jump in benefit costs.

The balance of the tax revenue, $773,060 (or the remaining one mill)

Candidates state views on millage

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Of the four candidates running for the Northville Board of Education in June, three support tomorrow's school millage proposal.

Even though the tax increase and the school board election are separate ballot issues now, a defeated millage proposal tomorrow could put the four candidates in the hot seat for the June 8 election. Should the millage proposal fail tomorrow and come before the voters again in June, the four candidates' views on the tax issue could weigh in who is elected to fill the two expired seats.

Of the four candidates, one — challenger Patricia Custer — opposes the request. Incumbents Donald Klokkenge and Carol Rahimi, and challenger Glen Meisel, all favor the plan.

Custer said she's opposed to the tax hike because she thinks the district can become more cost-effective and still operate on its current levy.

Watchdog group posts challengers

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Members of Citizens for a Better Northville plan to act as formal election monitors during tomorrow's school millage election.

The group, which has gone on the record publicly opposing the millage proposal, last week informed the school district of its intent to appoint election "challengers." Under state law the challengers may monitor voting precincts throughout the 12 hours they are open.

"We have a situation here where the fox is not only guarding the hen house, but is also counting the eggs," CBN election coordinator Robert Bernard said in a press release. "We want to be sure that eggs don't get cracked and no one's feathers get ruffled in the process."

Bernard said the group's action stems from its concern for ensuring the quality of the election.

"Challengers will make appearances throughout the day at all six precincts located within the school district, watching for and reporting activities which may violate Michigan election law," Bernard wrote in his release.

More than 70 identification cards were distributed to poll challengers who will represent the group and keep an eye on election proceedings. School superintendent Leonard Rezmierski had few comments on the CBN strategy.

"I really have no comment," Rezmierski said Friday. "We were informed earlier this week about it, and they have every right to do it."

"But our campaign electors are beyond reproach; they're so good at what they do. So I have no problem with it as long as they don't interfere with our inspectors or the voters."

Under the state law, any citizens group interested in the adoption or defeat of the ballot issue can serve as challengers as long as members are registered voters and not appointed election inspectors or candidates on the ballot.

Bernard paraphrased the law by saying group members are taking the measure "because we have an interest in preserving the purity of elections and guarding against the abuse of the elective franchise."

At the polls challengers are allowed to monitor the duties of the election inspectors, view the names of the voters and absentee ballots, monitor the voting process, and be present when votes are tallied. In addition, challengers have the power to question the validity of the voters.

Any election inspector who blocks a challenger from his or her right to know is subject to a fine not to exceed $1,000 or to a prison term of up to two years.

CORRECTION: An April 2 story on Moraine Elementary Principal Mary Najarian's day on the roof should have said that she had her nails done by Marcy Lilly of Margo's of Northville.

NEW SCHOOL GROUNDBREAKING: Northville school officials are hoping to get to the site of Thornton Creek Elementary school before construction crews break ground for the new school on Nine Mile Road.

Tonight, April 27, school, city, and township officials, will converge at the vacant site, on the northside of Nine Mile Road between Taft and Beck in Novi, at 6:30 p.m. and hold a groundbreaking ceremony for the school, which is expected to open in the fall of 1993.

"EDUCATION CELEBRATION": RSVPs are being accepted for the Northville Coordinating Council of PTAs' second annual Education Celebration.

The reception recognizes the efforts of hundreds of people from the community who work to help bring quality education to Northville students. Everyone in the community is welcome to attend.

Anyone interested may RSVP to the Office of Instruction at 344-8442.

The event is Wednesday, April 29, in the Northville High School cafeteria from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Hors d'oeuvres, desserts, and beverages will be served during the reception. For more information call Marcia Cromas at 348-1261.

DOG LICENSES ON SALE: Northville Township dog licenses currently are on sale at township hall. Owners must provide proof of rabies vaccination, and all township dogs must be registered by June 1. Cost of the license is $5.

BLOOD NEEDED: The American Red Cross is facing another severe shortage of blood and continues to seek blood donors.

The Livonia Donor Center offers an ongoing opportunity to donate. Located at 29691 W. Six Mile (just west of Middlebelt), Suite 100C, in the rear of Bell Creek Office Plaza, the center is open from 2-8 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday and Friday; and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. To schedule an appointment at the donor center call 1-800-582-4383.

FOR RENT: Got some office space for rent? The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce wants to hear from you.

The chamber maintains a list of available office space in Northville as a service to anyone interested in renting. The chamber can function as a referral service, connecting landlords with space to potential tenants.

Chamber Executive Director Laurie Marrs said the chamber regularly receives phone calls from people looking for office space in Northville. Anyone with space available should call 349-7640 to get on the list.

City hikes fees for plan reviews

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Would-be developers will have to pay more for building in Northville City, following an increase in the building department's development review fees.

The increase follows the city council's decision to review all city fees, to raise revenue as part of its deficit elimination plan.

"This particular fee schedule, while it does represent a substantial increase in many cases, does bring them more in line with other communities, particularly those that border us," City Manager Gary Word told the council April 6.

Word noted that under the previous fee schedule, the city paid planning consultants about $5 to review plans for every dollar it took in as development review fees.

That news came as a shock to the council. "We can't be going in the hole," said Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers. "I think we didn't know we were going in the hole."

But Word cautioned the council not to expect fees to pay the entire cost of development review.

"I don't think with the revised fees, you're going to see that much of an increase that it would be self-supporting," he said. "It's partly a service consciously provided to developers."

The council approved the fee hike, which took effect April 15.

The new fee schedule, designed by the city in conjunction with Planning Consultant Don Wortman, included a comparison of the city's current fees with surrounding communities.

The cost of a site plan review for a commercial building, previously $200 plus engineering and other fees in the city, ranges from $400 in the City of Plymouth to $1,040 plus an acre charge in Plymouth Township and $1,540 plus an acre charge in Northville Township for preliminary and final review according to the comparison.

Rezoning fees, formerly $250 plus a $300 half-refundable fee for sending out notices in the city, range from $125 in the City of Plymouth to $860 in Plymouth Township and $1,150 in the City of Saline.

Under the city's new fee schedule, preliminary and final site plan review for multi-family, commercial, industrial and semi-public site plans now costs a developer $600 each with a $60-per-acre charge, or $1,000 with a $60-per-acre charge if done concurrently.

A rezoning review now costs $450 plus a $40-per-acre charge.

Student group celebrates environment

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

When Northville High School students return from spring break this week, Students Aware of the World (SAW) have a week's worth of events planned for them.

Celebrating its third anniversary, the student environmental awareness group is hosting SAW Week to build awareness of environmental issues, animal rights, and gain members for the student group.

SAW spokesperson Nasha Vida said the group has set up an information booth in the high school cafeteria to spread the word about her group.

"We are trying to get our name out into the community and in the school so we can build up our membership," she said.

SAW members make posters promoting events.

Each lunch period one of the 20 regular group members will staff the booth to answer questions about SAW and tell students about recycling and animal rights.

Also, Vida said SAW will host a bake sale Wednesday and a flower sale Friday to raise money to benefit environmental efforts and animal rights groups of SAW's choice. On Thursday, Sarah Vaughan, from Body Shop in the Twelve Oaks Mall, will be a guest speaker at 2:30 p.m. in the high school forum. Vaughan, a self-professed animal activist, is employed by a company that stands on the premise that it doesn't test its personal products on animals.

Since the group was started two years ago, members have raised $200 through T-shirt, flower, and bake sales for their causes.

THE BMW 325is COUPE. PRICED AT $29,100.*

Status. Prestige. Style.

It seems that there are at least as many marketing reasons to buy an expensive car as there are expensive cars to buy. At BMW, however, we believe that an automobile, especially one with a premium price, should do more than improve the driver's image.

It should help improve nothing less than the driver's ability.

Awareness. Control. Confidence.

If these are the hallmarks of a respected driver, it only follows that they should also be the most important benefits an automobile can provide.

Yes, even more important than a CD changer in the trunk.

Which is why the engineers of the 325is began not with a clean sheet of paper, but with the driver. AN OPTIMUM BALANCE BETWEEN HANDLING AND COMFORT.

Take the new 325is Coupe's rear suspension system, for example.

This new central-link system increases straight-line and lane-change stability and reduces both squat and dive, while still maintaining the perfect ride-quality balance. A ride not so harsh as to be uncomfortable, but not so soft as to insulate the driver from the road. A traditional BMW virtue that translates to better "feel" for the pavement traveling beneath the tires.

Which translates to an improved sense of control.

Which leads us to the engine in the new BMW 325is Coupe.

Perhaps one of the few true examples of better living through science, this new engine's 24 valves require no adjustments during regular service checks. In fact, the engine needs little regular maintenance beyond the routine changing of oil, filters and spark plugs.

THE BMW IMPACT-ACTIVATED SAFETY SYSTEM.

stronger than any other 3-Series in history. And in the event of an unavoidable frontal impact, the 325is is more than ready to respond.

Hydraulic bumpers absorb a portion of the impact. Front and rear body panels absorb more energy.

Inside, safety belts tighten their grip.

◆ A place for everything, and everything in its place. The 325is Coupe puts the redesigned 3-Series dashboard providing the driver with the information he needs at a glance because some times a glance is all the time you've got.

And three sensors trigger the driver's side airbag.

And, like all BMW's, the 325is is backed by our 4-year/50,000-mile bumper-to-bumper warranty,* and a Roadside Assistance Plan.

Of course, to fully understand the difference between what you drive and how you drive, you need to get out of what you're driving and get behind the wheel of the BMW 325is. The latest automobile from a company that considers raising your skill decidedly more important than raising your status.

For more information, call 800-334-4BMW.

*Suggested retail price for a 1992 325is is $29,100. Actual price will depend upon dealer. Price includes dealer prep. Price excludes taxes, license, title and registration fees, options, destination and handling charges. See your BMW dealer for details on the limited warranty. *Services provided by Cross Country Motor Club, Inc. Jacket containing jewelry missing from school

A jacket containing nearly $500 in gold jewelry disappeared from Northville High School April 13.

The teal Eddie Bauer jacket with a zipper and zippered pockets contained four gold chains, several baseball charms, a gold moon-shaped charm, a pair of gold half-hoop earrings, and a silver ring showing two hands holding a crowned heart.

The jacket was given from one student to another for safekeeping about 6:30 p.m., and the other student reported losing it.

MAN CLAIMS THEFT OF BANK FUNDS: A Silver Spring Drive resident told township police that he suspects a former maintenance worker stole $400 from his bank account Feb. 26.

The man told police that he believes the maintenance worker entered his apartment and took an automatic teller machine card from a dresser drawer, and then found his ATM identification number. According to the complainant, the maintenance worker then went to his bank and withdrew $400 from his account, before returning the card to his home.

Police said they had no evidence or suspects in the case.

TEEN NABBED FOR SWIPING BEER: City police caught a 19-year-old Northville man the evening of April 20, shortly after he allegedly swiped a 40-ounce beer from Arbor Drugs.

An employee at the 133 E. Dunlap store reported seeing the teen slip the beer into his pants and pull his shirt over the top, and walk out of the store. Another employee confronted the alleged thief, who reportedly ran away and threw the bottle away as he ran.

Police found the teen, sweating and out of breath, heading north on Horton north of Baseline Road. He was arrested and later released on $100 bond.

FENDER BENDER: City police reported one accident last week. A 57-year-old Whitmore Lake man was cited for failing to yield from a stop sign April 21 after pulling in front of a southbound vehicle on South Main at the Seven Mile Road intersection. The resulting impact damaged his car, which had to be towed from the scene.

VEHICLE DAMAGED: A Northville resident told police that someone scratched a 1989 Ford Taurus parked on Northville Place Drive near Eight Mile sometime between April 8 and April 10. Both sides of the vehicle were scratched. Damage was estimated at $200.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

McNeely blasts WTUA project

The Water and Sewer Commission, at one of the trustees' hearings where they took a rather critical action—I think it was when they finally agreed to go with WTUA—was brought to the trustees meeting. The project was explained to both the Water and Sewer Commission, who had not had any detailed information on it at all prior to that... They were then asked to endorse the project, which they did... They recommended to the Board of Trustees to go forward with the project, the membership in WTUA.

RECORD: You developed the original study for the WTUA sewer line.

McNEELY: The Western Township line, what we did was a preliminary engineering study. That was originally at the request of the township. Susan Heintz, who was then the supervisor, advised me that the project I was working on, the preliminary engineering study, was being transferred from the township to WTUA, under Maurice Breen, who was then the chairman. So then we continued our work, but were working for WTUA (engineering study completed in July 1987).

Our plan did not include any work in Northville Township. The reason we did not include any work in Northville Township was we felt that, uh, I may be getting on tender ground here, and so I may not be able to answer some of your questions because of this secret and confidential clause in my contract with the Western Township.

RECORD: Our feeling in the matter was that everything was in place that needed to be in place in Northville Township, and that the project would have to be picked up and developed south of Northville Township.

The present WTUA organization seems to think they should do some work in Northville Township.

RECORD: You're talking about development of the line westward, across Beck Road?

McNEELY: Yes, and also part of the work that was done in Hines Park. That's going to fall into that secret and confidential thing, so I can't really discuss that.

RECORD: Let's get into this secret and confidential clause. I've seen public records—your contract—that say the materials contained there, or information you may learn from your work on the project, is deemed secret and confidential. You've requested releases from those constraints, and have been turned down (by both Breen and Canton Township Supervisor Thomas Yack). What was that confidentiality agreement all about?

McNEELY: In a meeting where I presented our route of the sewer, then-Supervisor (James) Poole of Canton and Breen were at this meeting... They both raised the question about disclosing the route that we developed and where we were going to run the sewer line. They both said that they wanted our statement in our study to not give specific locations, but rather general locations. The reason behind that was that neither Breen or Poole wanted any speculation in land because of where this thing was going to go.

RECORD: Is there any other reason (for the secrecy clause) other than you allegedly being able to give information on the route for land speculation?

McNEELY: Well, there are. Sure, there are other reasons, and before you ask me what they are, I can't tell you because I have been effectively threatened with a lawsuit if I do disclose them. My contract says I can't disclose anything about what I learned about that study. Some of the things that should be disclosed, are certainly discernible from the public record. The trick is, to have somebody who has the technical knowledge, or background, to figure it out.

RECORD: Is that where you're a threat to them?

McNEELY: Oh, I think so. See, I don't even think I'm a threat to them. From everything I hear about WTUA, and read about them, they (claim to be) about as up-front as they can be. The question is, why are they so concerned about something I may say in connection with a preliminary engineering study that I performed?

RECORD: In the past, you've mentioned that in Northville Township, some developers seem to be paying for two different sewers—fees for special assessment districts and tap-in fees for township sewer. Could you go into that?

McNEELY: Let's go to the Haggerty Road Sewer District. That is a special assessment sewer that was built by the township, and the total cost of that system has been assessed back to the property that has been identified in the special assessment district. So those people are paying 100 percent for the sewer that serves them. We're talking about the trunk line sewer that runs at Haggerty Road on Six Mile, Five Mile, goes as far north on Haggerty Road as the Meijer store.

Those people are paying for that sewer 100 percent. Then, when they come along to build their own individual project, they are going to pay an inflated, if you will, sewer connection that has gone from something on the order of $400 a few years ago to $3,000 today.

RECORD: New developments in that area would have to pay for the Haggerty Road assessment district as well as the regular township tap-in fees?

McNEELY: Exactly. That's correct.

RECORD: So they're being hit twice?

McNEELY: Right.

RECORD: You said others aren't being charged anything.

McNEELY: Incidentally, there are other districts falling in the same category throughout the rest of the township. Anybody that has a sewer available to them, and makes a connection now, is going to pay that $3,000 sanitary sewer tap fee, unless it's gone up.

Now, the sewer that was built in the western part of the township, the WTUA sewer, those people that had that sewer available to them will only pay a tap fee. There is no special assessment for that sewer to be built out to take care of them.

RECORD: What was the westerly limit of the WTUA sewer when you were on board?

McNEELY: Our preliminary engineering study ended the system... at approximately Wilcox Road and Northville Road. That's where the North Arm Relief Ends.

RECORD: You're saying that any of this construction that took place last year in Northville Township was someone else's decision?

McNEELY: Oh, yes, that was not included in our study.

RECORD: So everything that came through Hines park, went out to the western part of the township, cut through Edenderry, through Jacobson's new development at Six and Beck, on out through the western part of the township, someone came up with that plan outside of what you had designed?

McNEELY: Yes.

RECORD: What you had designed, was that adequate to cover the whole township?

McNEELY: Yes, no question about that. It would cover the whole township. But the township's policy, at the time we did the preliminary engineering study, was, and I guess still is, except for this segment of the (WTUA line)... for someone to develop their land, they have to arrange, either through their own financing or special assessment district, they have to arrange to extend the township's existing sewer system to their property.

RECORD: The areas we're talking about are some huge potential residential developments.

McNEELY: Sure are.

RECORD: Again, the Jacobson property at Six and Beck, the Shores of Northville, the county land. The general policy is to do a special assessment district and not offer township funds to go out and build this for them?

McNEELY: Exactly. In anticipation of what they're going to do.

RECORD: Why would they do that?

McNEELY: That's a good question. Again, there are seven people on that township board and I raised the question at the time bids were being taken for that segment of the WTUA system that goes from north somewhere in Plymouth Township, perhaps from Wilcox Road, northerly through the township and out through the township, as you've just described. I went to a trustees meeting and specifically asked who was going to pay for this sewer, were they going to pay for special assessment. And Supervisor Goss said, no, it's not going to be specially assessed. (McNeely then asked), "How are you going to handle it?" (Goss said), it's going to be handled by tap fee increases, so that as people connect to it that will pay for it.

RECORD: But that's not really the case, is it? For that to get built, the taxpayers in the WTUA communities had to front that money (bond sales created revenue; WTUA communities' bond obligations are approximately $100 million).

McNEELY: Sure. You see, there probably was a little flim-flam going on here. The majority of this line, as I see it, is for the benefit of Northville Township and nobody else. (For the properties on the west side of Northville Township).

RECORD: For the benefit of property owners, not the residents?

McNEELY: Sure. That's one reason I wrote a letter to your paper (last summer). I said, that among others, there were individuals out on the western part of the township that were going to benefit from this sewer. They weren't paying any special assessment like everybody else traditionally has done.

RECORD: What if township officials said that having this sewer line out there will be an attractant to residential development? Having that line out there will bring in residential development and larger tax base. But that's not the policy anywhere else?

McNEELY: Let's suppose that you build a $100,000 house on the east side of the township. That $100,000 house is going to have to pick up its share of the Haggerty Road system that's over there. That particular single dwelling unit is going to pay something in the excess of $1,000 for the Haggerty Road sewer itself. Then it's going to pay $3,000 to connect to the system, the sanitary sewer system.

Now you go to the west side of the township, and over there you develop a subdivision... Let's take the one in the Thomson gravel pit. For every dwelling unit that's in there, you are not going to pay $1,000 for a special assessment to build a sewer.

RECORD: It's already there.

McNEELY: Not only is it already there, but whether it's there or not... the point is the township at large is picking up the cost to go over there...

RECORD: Any speculation on your part as to why the township would change its policy, not to have a special assessment district, to extend that wing out to the western section?

McNEELY: Well, to begin with, I suspect that the reason that line was put out there was to attract development, to help pay for a sewer system that the township very clearly should have found other ways to go at it. When the DNR came along and imposed great, expensive conditions on (WTUA), the township should have said, "Let's get out of this system; let's forget it."

RECORD: You don't feel Northville Township is trapped in the WTUA system? Does it have options?

McNEELY: Yes, they have options. What are they, I can't tell you... because of the confidentiality clause in my contract. I am concerned that WTUA would bring an action against me. I have no doubt that ultimately the action would be thrown out.

RECORD: The information you have, do you think it would be beneficial to the taxpayers of Northville Township?

McNEELY: Yes. I think the township had another way to go, and they didn't even consider it. And one of the reasons they didn't consider it, I think, is because there were some awfully big egos involved, and there was no way they were going to back down.

RECORD: When did this window avail itself?

McNEELY: To do something different? It's always been there.

RECORD: Is it closed now?

McNEELY: No. We're getting on tender ground now, though.

RECORD: I understand, but Northville Township's obligated a lot of money to this. They could do something to this today?

McNEELY: Here's the problem I've got. If I get into this at all, WTUA may say, "Let's make an example of this guy" and they may get absolutely nowhere at all, but they've got a law firm that's making millions... off of their legal work. Why shouldn't they take $50,000 or $60,000 and go after McNeely?

I'm either going to have to tell the judge they're right and turn over my house, or defend myself, and that will cost a lot of money. I can't get into that kind of stuff; there's just no way. That's why I asked Georgina Goss at a trustees meeting to give me some help, to relieve me from that secret thing in my contract. She just smiled and said, "You signed the contract, didn't you?"

I really can't get into it. I'm just asking for trouble.

In Thursday's edition, McNeely discusses his employment with Northville Township, including his 1987 dismissal as township engineer. He also discusses the township board's role in governing the WTUA sewer project.

will be used to continue ongoing programs the district started three years ago. Included in those programs are line items for staff development, curriculum enhancement, and plans for restructuring the high school academic program. Among other instructional materials like computer hardware and software for classroom use, a portion of this money will be used to upgrade district buses and to pay the salaries of a new staff needed to prepare Thornton Creek Elementary for opening in the fall of 1993.

The millage request has come under fire from a Northville citizens group which alleges the district is hiding behind state school financing problems as justification for annual and supplemental tax hikes.

But district officials contend three initiatives at the state level—tax-base sharing, aid recapturing, and removal of retirement payments—have put a tremendous strain on the district's budget.

Northville stands to lose a combined $1.5 million from those "three veiled threats," should the state follow through on all of them, Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said.

In addition to cuts in state aid and recapturing, the district anticipates 125-140 new students next fall. That growth also warrants the need for additional money and staff to maintain student-to-teacher class ratios, school officials say.

The 2.78-mill figure surfaced as a recommendation from the district's strategic planning committee last March. The committee, which is made up of citizens and business people, said the 2.78 figure was the baseline for the break-even point.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

For more on the millage election, see the special report on page 6-A and 7-A.

"I've seen the district through the eyes of a parent and I'm very enthusiastic about the quality of education, but I feel that can be provided without more money," she said. "So now I'm challenging the board to be more cost-effective."

Custer, who has been in the district for 20 years, said she believes the quality of education has been maintained without additional funding.

"But in those 20 years I've seen costs grow disproportionately. That concerns me," she said.

Custer's opinion differs from the pack of remaining candidates who support the increase for different reasons.

Rahimi said she hopes the tax proposal passes so the school board and the millage election remain separate matters, but either way she said she supports the millage proposal.

"It's imperative," Rahimi said. "It's unfortunate, but we have to fund our own schools because the state is in turmoil now over funding education."

Rahimi said without the 2.78-mill increase and the 22.63-mill renewal, people will inevitably see school programs cut to compensate for the $2.1 million loss to the district. The proposed millage rate would, if passed, fund existing operations and hire new teachers to compensate for projected enrollment increases this fall.

As a current board member, Rahimi has sat in on millage discussions from the ground floor. The district's strategic planning committee, which is comprised of 62 members of the community, made the recommendation to the board for the added millage in March.

"Our citizens advisory committee, after looking at the total budget, knew they needed a maximum of 4.67 mills to allow for everything in the Strategic Plan, but they knew they couldn't recommend that," she said.

Moreover, Rahimi said committee members also knew renewing the existing rate of 22.63 mills wouldn't suffice. So the committee arrived at the proposed rate, which Rahimi, called a "fair rate."

Klokkenga agreed. "It's necessary to ensure the continued high quality of programs that are being delivered," he said Wednesday. "This is just enough to continue to maintain that level of excellence."

In spite of the 12-percent proposed increase, he said it is possible—although contingent on state actions in the next few months—that the district could ask for a supplemental millage in the fall.

"With tax base sharing, retirement at $600,000 and social security at $839,000, we can't be sure there won't be a supplemental millage this fall," he said.

Meisel said he supports the millage because to him it means continuing the quality of education on which Northville Public Schools has built its reputation.

"I think the millage increase is good because you can't have good schools without the extra money," Meisel said.

Meisel, a teacher at Roosevelt High School in Wyandotte, said he moved to Northville six months ago because he heard the district was a good school system and he wanted to be an active part of it.

ing process when the polls close at 8 p.m. April 28.

"We've borrowed voting machines from the City of Novi to help us speed things up and to get a quicker tally," Street said Tuesday.

In elections past, the district has always relied on traditional paper ballots, which demand more time and effort from election canvassers.

The Northville Record

Readership survey

Dear readers:

May 14, 1992 marks the second anniversary of the Monday edition of The Northville Record. The staff of the newspaper thought this would be an ideal time to reflect on the progress we've made as a twice-weekly publication — where we are and where we're going, with both our Monday and Thursday editions.

To do that, we need your help. On this page is a survey asking your opinion about the various items you regularly see in the Record. We hope you'll take a few minutes to consider the items and offer your opinion on them.

Getting your opinions in a format like this should help us see how we can do a better job making your community newspaper the best it can be.

We'll share the results of the survey in an upcoming issue. As an added incentive for you to return the form, we'll randomly draw three responses from those who include their name and address and give them a year's worth of the Record for free.

Of course, we're always interested in what you think; we like to hear from you on an individual basis as well. Our phone number is 349-1700 (fax 349-1050), and our address is 104 W. Main, Northville 48167.

Thanks for your interest. We hope to hear from you soon.

Mini-worksheet on figuring impact on your taxes:

The school district levied 22.63 mills for the 1991-92 school year, applied to 1991 property assessments. Wayne County levied an additional 7.23 mills for school operations. The Northville school district levied 4.30 mills to pay off bond debt.

You paid:

22.63 mills (local operations)

7.23 mills (county levy)

4.30 mills (debt service)

34.16 mills X (your 1991 assessed property value) ÷ 1,000 = your school tax in 1991

For the 1992-93 school year, the district proposes to levy 25.41 mills for operating expenses — an increase of 2.78 mills. The debt and county levies remain the same. If the proposal passes, you WILL PAY:

25.41 mills (local operations)

7.23 mills (county levy)

4.30 mills (debt service)

36.94 mills X (your 1992 assessed property value) ÷ 1,000 = your school tax in 1992

*Due to a one-year state freeze on property assessments, most homeowners have the same assessment in 1992 as in 1991.

Half is collected on tax bill this July; half is collected on tax bill this December.

Millage vote

Facts & figures

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Before voters head to the polls in the Northville School District millage election tomorrow, a look at the surrounding information will provide some indication of how the tax dollars are spent and what the proposal means in individual cases.

The school district proposes to levy 25.41 mills this year, a 2.78-mill increase on top of the 22.63-mill rate levied last year. This is the total proposed local property tax for school operations; other school taxes come from the county and from a separate local millage to pay off the district's bonded indebtedness.

At the proposed tax rate the district would receive $25,318,848 in property tax revenues to cover its anticipated $26,526,672 in expenditures. The difference will be made up by non-millage revenues totalling $1,210,000, which are generated from state aid, tuition, interest dividends and rent paid to the district, and money the district gets from Wayne County to operate its special education program at Old Village and Bryant schools.

One mill is $1 of tax per $1,000 of assessed property value.

*ADDITIONAL BUDGET ITEMS

District officials have targeted 1 mill of the proposed increase for existing programs, for capital outlay programs, for new staff and to maintain instructional services. Those allocations are designated at right by the asterisk.

Our Opinion

School millage plan merits voter support

While some aspects of the Northville Public Schools millage proposal almost beg for criticism, at its heart the request for a significant tax hike seems reasonable. We recommend a YES vote at the polls tomorrow.

Voters Tuesday will decide the fate of a 25.41-mill request for school operations. This is 2.78 mills higher than last year's levy for school operations — a big jump for a single year. There are good reasons for it. But before getting into them, to address the negatives:

First, we believe Citizens for a Better Northville raise a valid point in saying a lack of forthrightness has afflicted the millage campaign. But that cuts both ways. It's almost comical to compare the arguments of district officials and CBN, the tax activist group opposing this millage.

The district's tired line is that the increase will only maintain existing programs. CBN's cry is that this tap-dances around the truth — namely, that the increase is needed largely for raises included in multi-year contracts.

Well, they're both right. CBN is right when its members say the school officials don't appear to like talking about the raises, and they certainly are a large factor in the request. (The raises themselves are not out of line compared to other school districts; 5.85 percent, plus some "step" increases based on seniority, is lower than average this year. Compared to private business, the raises are high. Use whatever comparison you choose.)

But it's not wrong to say the millage increase translates into business as usual; it does, plus a few new teachers for expected enrollment hikes. If teachers — and, by extension, current teacher-student ratios — aren't existing programs, we're not sure what is.

Next, the decision to propose this millage at a special election in April, rather than in the regular, already scheduled school board election in June, nags at us somewhat. The April vote, costing $3,500, might be swallowed easier if this was part of a strategy of declining requests — in other words, if district officials figured an April denial would give them an opportunity to return with a lower proposal in June. But officials speak of returning with the same proposal in June if it fails tomorrow — and that would be a horrible mistake.

The one-year term of the proposal may also be open to some criticism. The argument here is that the district has no choice when state legislative action creates such funding uncertainties.

We understand the thinking, but when a school board member (Donald Klokengal) speaks of the potential for a supplemental millage request this fall if action in the Legislature warrants it, we don't see the problem with seeking a multi-year base levy with supplements as they're needed.

The one-year term of this request, though, will allow the levy to end along with the teacher contracts. We think the suggestion raised during this campaign — of wedding longer millage requests to contract settlements of equal duration — merits serious consideration.

The last point of potential criticism is the lumping of a millage renewal together with a hefty (2.78-mill) increase in a single ballot question. This has understandably angered a lot of voters.

Editor's note: In the interests of full disclosure, it's worth stating that the editor of this newspaper has a sister-in-law who works for the Northville School District as a custodian. This editorial, as always, represents a consensus opinion of the paper's news staff as a whole.

Education

People deserve choices, and this isn't much of one.

But in reviewing all the facets of the proposal, the bottom line is that the increase is justified. So the fact that it's combined with the renewal doesn't amount to a reason for opposition.

The main reason to support the plan is that it is indeed a break-even proposition. District officials have made decent efforts to cut expenses where they could. Parts of the district's vaunted Strategic Plan have already been delayed indefinitely, because implementing them would have meant a millage increase almost double what's being proposed now.

No formal plan exists for a failure of this millage, but if it does go down, the writing on the wall is clear: The next thing to be cut would be teachers. We can't recommend that at this point; if the situation does come to that, it will be from individual decisions of the voters. Higher student-teacher ratios wouldn't be the end of the world, but district voters have demonstrated time and time again that they want relatively small classes. Maybe the majority of voters believe it's time to sacrifice class sizes for tax relief. We'll find out tomorrow.

The second major reason to support the proposal as written is the uncertainty over state funding. Yes, it's true that "state aid" as such no longer figures much at all into Northville's budget. But the Legislature has cooked up several other ways to harm the local school financial picture, namely by taking back what aid the district does get; siphoning off some local tax money (so far not much, but who knows?); and ending Social Security payments for school employees.

Last year local voters authorized an extra 1.28 mills to counteract the "recapture" of aid money. CBN objects to including that levy in the district's base tax rate, but frankly that seems appropriate to us. The recapture situation is still a fact of life, so there's no reason to consider that money yet another tax increase.

The other threats have not yet fully come to pass, and that's why they're not part of this millage request. But they are definite possibilities, and that's another reason it would be counterproductive to demand a lower tax rate now — cuts will only be that much deeper down the road.

Finally, we should consider Northville taxpayers' return on investment. Even the most vocal millage opponents don't seem to dispute the high quality of education in the district. And it comes with less money than most comparable districts in the area.

Of course, this entire discussion ignores one vitally important factor: today's economy combined with Northville's high tax burden. Basically, we figure that's something each voter has to address in his or her own mind. Taxes are high and the economy is lousy. Too high and too lousy? That's up to you.

Study the figures. Calculate what the millage request means to you personally. Decide if you can afford it, and, if you can, whether you agree that the proposal is a good one. We think it is, and deserves support.

Above all, vote tomorrow. It's your money and your schools on the line.

This place is for the birds

I think I've said this before, but since leaving New York City and Ann Arbor, I've really learned to appreciate the wealth of critters that share my living space here in Northville.

In particular, Woodland Glen Apartments seems to draw animals of the feathered variety in numbers that would endear it to the Birdman of Alcatraz.

In fact, two of our spring returnees are native to Woodland Glen.

About a week or two ago, our black Australian swans, Woody and Glenda, returned for the summer.

The birds belong to the owner of Woodland Glen, who I'm told places a similar pair at every apartment complex he owns. They winter at a bird sanctuary in Battle Creek.

But Woody and Glenda aren't the only critters that have moved in, although they've been more civil about it.

We are once again playing unwilling host to a squadron of Canada geese. These mean, stupid, dirty birds have very little to recommend them. I think I only like them when they're flying — preferably back to Canada.

Perhaps this is Canada's idea of revenge. We send them acid rain; they send us geese. Ah, revenge most fowl.

But there's another avian visitor whose behavior is even more perplexing.

For the last week or so, I've been waking to the cries and rapping of a woodpecker. Indeed when the woodpecker first arrived, I was charmed. It was soothing to awaken every morning to the soft and distant rat-tat-tat that he made in the trees. It gave me a feeling that I was waking in a remote cabin, deep in the northern Michigan woods with the leaves heavy and moist all around me.

The romance was shattered yesterday morning when I awoke to realize that the woodpecker was much closer than he had been previously. The sound was louder and more intense.

I sat up in bed and looked out the window to see if I could see him, when suddenly there was a brown flash across my window. I realized he had fluttered past me and landed on the roof right over my window. In the quiet that 6 a.m. makes, I heard the scratching of his claws as he hopped around on the shingles.

Then came his piercing cry, this time close enough and loud enough to make my ears ring. Then the rapping, this time loud enough to rattle the roof.

Tossing on my bathrobe, I went out on the balcony for a closer look. To my surprise, the woodpecker was right on the edge of the eaves trough.

He cocked his head at me, blinked his black bean eyes and commenced to screeching again. Then he turned to his side and began pecking, not at the wood of the eaves — which might have made at least a little sense — but right on the gutter. The little bugger was rapping away, waking the whole neighborhood, by pecking on the God-forsaken solid aluminum gutter.

I tell you, when they handed out the brains, the woodpeckers must have been on line somewhere behind the Canada geese. But what do you expect from an animal that bangs its head against trees.

Phil Jerome

Ol' Phil could use your help

I could kick myself.

Honest. I'm so ashamed. I must be slipping.

In case you're wondering what this self-debasement is all about, it's about the fact that The Record ran a Readership Survey on the front of the Our Town section in the April 16 edition.

Okay, that's not really what it's about. What it's really about is the fact that The Record is running this survey, and I almost let it get by me without making an impassioned plea for your vote.

The readership survey is a pretty good idea, if you ask me. And, quite frankly, I'm hoping a lot of you take the time to get a copy of the survey, fill it out and turn it back in before the May 14 deadline.

The survey asks a lot of questions about the paper. What you like about it. What you dislike about it. Should we have more or less coverage of local news? More or less sports coverage? How often do you read particular features — always, sometimes or never?

You know, stuff like that. As Bob Needham, the even-handed editor of The Record, said in his introduction: "Getting your opinions in a format like this should help us see how we can do a better job making your community newspaper the best it can be."

But those are just the details. Now we get to the meat of the matter.

One of the things this survey does is ask you to rate how often you read certain columns — always, sometimes or never. How often do you reach Bob Needham's column? Mike Malott's column? Phil Power's column? Tim Richard's column?

Rick Byrne's column? Phil Jerome's column?

Are you beginning to get the picture now? Are you beginning to see why I'm concerned. Are you beginning to understand the potential severity of the problem?

The point is — what if I don't win? Even worse, what if my column finishes dead last in the popularity poll?

Can you imagine the pain? The humiliation.

What if Bob Needham's column wins? What if Tim Richard's column wins? Or Phil Power's column? Or, mother of all humiliations, Rick Byrne's column?

What if I finish so far back in the survey that Needham and Malott get their beady little heads together and decide to drop my column from the paper? Under the guise, of course, that people just don't like it or read it.

I can't live with this, folks.

It's pretty darn obvious that I have to do something to prevent that possibility from ever happening. And so, dear readers for whom I have the greatest respect and admiration, I come to you with hat in hand, begging — no, imploring — you to obtain a copy of the survey, find the part where it lets you vote about "Phil Jerome column" and draw a big red circle around the "always" answer.

Is this illegal? Is my humble request for your vote unethical?

The answer to both those questions, beautiful people, is a resounding no. Political candidates ask for your vote all the time; and that's all I'm doing. It's completely legal.

Am I asking you not to vote for Tim Richard's column? No!

Am I asking you not to vote for Phil Power's column? No!

It's a simple little request. Get the survey. Circle "always" when it gets to the part about Phil Jerome column. Vote early, vote often. Get your children to vote. Get your friends to vote.

Remember. It's for a good cause.

Where are huge profits?

The purple prose flowed, mostly from Democrats, when Gov. John Engler vetoed the bill to roll back auto insurance rates 15 percent.

Rep. Nelson Saunders of Detroit said Engler "is far more interested in protecting the insurance industry's profits."

State AFL-CIO president Frank Garrison thundered: "Auto insurance rate increases are the cruelest tax hike of all."

"An outrageous insult to all the consumers in the state," said Sen. George Z. Hart of Dearborn. Hart thinks a California-style elected insurance commissioner would dictate lower executive salaries and lobbying expenses.

The facts are on the library reference shelves in A.M. Best's Insurance Reports, a volume Hart et al. have never been known to quote. It lists every company, rates it from A-C and comments on its operations.

Auto Club Group Insurance Co. of Michigan, based in Dearborn, gets an A-minus (excellent) rating from Best, which comments:

"The consolidated operating results of the pool, while still profitable, have deteriorated in recent years due to increased underwriting costs. The $110 million underwriting loss experience in 1990 was attributable not only to unfavorable results in the current year but adverse development on automobile liability loss reserves for previous accident years as well."

"Loss ratios of the pool have consistently exceeded those of the industry; however, a relatively low level of expenses has enabled the overall combined ratio to generally remain favorable to the industry."

Golly, Hart, "the singing senator," must have been looking at a songbook instead of a financial report because he sure was wrong about AAA's expense ratio.

Citizen's Insurance Co. of Howell gets an A-plus (superior) rating from Best, which comments:

"(O)perating results... compare very favorably to industry standards. The rewarding operating performance is primarily due to the especially good underwriting results in each of the past five years accompanied by an ever-increasing net investment income."

No indication of execs and lawyers milking it.

Farm Bureau General Insurance Co. of Lansing gets only a B (good) rating. Best comments: "Net investment income continued to offset underwriting losses."

In other words, drivers' premiums don't cover payouts. The insurer uses investment income from bonds and stocks to cover the loss.

Best says that's true of many insurers. And as interest rates decline (good for borrowers), insurers will need to charge higher premiums (bad for auto owners). We can't have it both ways.

Best reported two years ago that 50 insurers quit writing policies in Michigan from 1982 to 1988.

Strange. If insurers are gouging us so successfully, insurance vultures should be flocking into Michigan, not departing. Maybe the Saunders, the Harts and the Garrisons are misleading us.

Hart tells us AAA is "notorious for forcing victims into court to collect benefits that they are owed," proving Hart didn't read my column on bizarre Court of Appeals rulings.

In January I reported how driver Michael Marzonie chased Vernon Oaks home while Marzonie's passenger threw beer bottles at Oaks' car. Oaks emerged from his house with a shotgun, aimed at Marzonie's car and hit Marzonie. Whom did Marzonie sue? Auto Club, his insurer. Somehow an appellate court panel saw this as an auto case and told Auto Club to pay.

That's why Auto Club's legal expenses are high — fighting weird court rulings. The singing senator is dead wrong again.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional news.

Letters

Remember the warning

Editor's note: This letter ran Thursday with three sentences accidentally omitted. The full text appears here.

To the editor:

Last August, a respected member of the Northville community warned us: "to beware of zealots whatever their cause." Tunnel-visioned, proponents of any special interest can only result in a lack of perspective which, ultimately, results in reduction of quality." He spoke of publications of "half truths" and suggested that the community "ignore them!" These warnings have borne fruit this spring.

In March, Northville Public School (NPS) officials said the proposed $2,800,000 increase "could be wisely spent on additional teaching staff, equipment, and educational needs to meet the growing enrollment," (an anticipated 125 new students). Beware of half truths! The fact is, less than 10 percent of the proposed tax increase is allocated to additional teaching staff. Fully three quarters of the proposed increase is slated for salaries, benefits and staff development.

Superintendent Rezmierski said "with all the cutbacks in state aid, we are in a very precarious position." Beware of half truths! For all intent and purposes, state aid is not a factor in the NPS budget. Gov. Engler has declared the so-called "Robin Hood bill" dead.

NPS Board Trustee Donald Klokenga said that the increase "allows us to stay even." Beware of half truths! An 8-percent increase in housing starts or auto sales would be hailed as an end to the recession. An 8-percent salary increase at NPS is called "stay even."

The "superintendent claims there is no list of cuts, should the millage fail. Beware of half truths! Some teachers are already telling parents and students that they won't be back next fall if the millage fails.

School Board President Jean Hansen said that without the increase, we'll have "45 kids in the class." Beware of half truths! It must be the same people who calculated 8-percent salary increase as "stay even" that determined not granting a 12-percent tax increase will nearly double class sizes. It just doesn't add up.

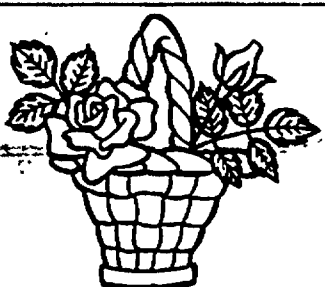

Less than a year ago, this same Jean Hansen said "There's no way we can go for an increased millage and expect it to pass." Beware of zealots! This year, Jean Hansen not only favors requesting a 12-percent tax increase, but favors returning with the same proposed 12 percent increase in June if the voters say NO next week.

It was a retiring Superintendent Dr. George Bell who told us to beware of the zealots speaking half truths and to ignore them! On Tuesday, April 28, heed Dr. Bell's warning.

VOTE NO!

Stretch your wine dollars with values

True, many wines are too expensive. What historically was the common man's beverage, wine has taken on value-laden terms like "premium" — credited to the California wine industry. Once every cork-finished bottling acquired the name premium, the "super-premiums" became the sought-after pours.

Today, there are so many super-premiums, that the chic 1990s term is "ultra-premium." Are these terms a guarantee of high quality or merely a sales gimmick? Are these loaded sales terms persuasive marketing devices for the uninformed wine drinker?

Our answer is "yes" because with each succeeding tier of supposed quality, the price rises significantly. A $40 chardonnay? That's ultra-premium pricing that is frequently not backed by ultra-premium taste.

What has happened to an everyday wine — the stuff we used to call jug wine? First of all "jug" is a wine reference that makes us sound cheap. As Americans, we don't want to pay a lot, but we don't want to appear cheap!

Today's premium wines are yesterday's jug wines. They are cork finished and the good news is that there's a host of good ones available locally. In today's tough economic times, it is still possible to please both palate and purse.

High-quality $5 bottles of wine are few and far between, so we're looking at palate pleasure all under $10 in our recommendations. We've placed the real winners as Wine Selections of the Week.

To lighten your spirits, we're starting off with two Latvian bubbles, produced like the best French champagnes and California sparklers from grapes grown in the Crimes, Riga Brut and Riga Bravo (both $9) are not only tasty sparkling pours, but the Riga Brut still has the old "Cobetskoe" label. Now that the Soviet Union is dissolved and Latvia has regained independence, the bottle is a collector's item!

While we champion the "buy American" sentiments, we have to lay some of the blame for the high price of domestic wines squarely on the shoulders of California producers and their myopic view of wine purchasers. The majority of North Coast wine producers have generally ignored the segment of the market seeking wines under $10 per bottle.

This is not true of The Monterey Vineyard. Here sights are focused on this majority section of wine drinkers. The Classic White and Classic Red wines are flavorful and generous for around $6.50. The Monterey Vineyard varietally labeled bottlings can be purchased for around $9 and represent true expressions of the grape variety.

The same can be said of Bel Arbors wines. Fetzer Vineyard's second label. The reds in the Bel Arbors line are the best buys. Equally quality-price conscious are the offerings from Fopplano Vineyards bottled under its second label Riverside Farms.

French country wines or "Vin de Pays" are some of the best values available. They originate principally in the region known as the Languedoc-Roussillon and carry the following major viticultural regions on the label — Coteaux du Languedoc, Cotes du Roussillon, Vin de Pays d'Oc, Corbières and Minervois. The 1989 and 1990 bottlings from these regions are very tasty buys.

Everybody likes a delicious tasting wine bargain — even a connoisseur.

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

A white wine from the Cotes de Gascogne that's crisp with citrusy aromas and a solid taste treat. 1990 Domaine de Pouy ($8). This wine can be found only at Cloverleaf Market in Southfield. 1989 Cypress Merlot ($7) has fresh cherry aromas characteristic of the merlot grape. The wine is soft and supple with bright fruit flavors.

First lady Barbara Bush helps pastry Chef Joe Decker in the kitchen at Schoolcraft College during her recent visit.

Presidential palate-pleaser

Try the dish Mrs. Bush loved at Schoolcraft

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer, Copy Editor

For Schoolcraft College culinary arts students even the most ordinary meal can become an event.

So you can understand the magnitude of everyone's excitement in the kitchen of the Waterman building when first lady Barbara Bush paid a visit during a recent campaign swing.

Classes were halted for the day, as much to satisfy everyone's interest in Bush's visit as for the security preparations that were needed.

But Bush's 20-minute visit was more than just glad-handing and soliciting votes. While at the college she helped department manager Certified Master Chef Jeffrey Gabriel make a salmon dish, and frosted a cake with pastry chef Joe Decker.

"She's very, very personable," said Gabriel. "It was very exciting for the students and faculty."

Gabriel added that Mrs. Bush enjoys cooking, even though the White House staff supplies most of their meals when the Bushes are at home.

So who was in the kitchen with Barbara?

Just a half-dozen or so Secret Service guys wired for sound, a bomb-sniffing dog, four television news crews, a bevy of reporters and photographers, a White House advance man, state Republican staffers, Schoolcraft College administrative heads and, oh yes, chefs, both culinary arts students and teachers.

The first lady was breezing through Michigan, one day before the presidential preference primary, on her way to a luncheon for Oakland County GOP supporters at the Novi Hilton.

While photographers and cameramen tramped reporters and one another, an elegant Bush toured Schoolcraft's culinary arts facility, then went to work with Chef Gabriel. All the while a beaming Lt. Governor Connie Binsfeld and Michigan first lady Michelle Engler looked on.

"I could get to like this," a white-aproned Bush said while she slathered the salmon and shrimp mousse onto a base of phyllo dough and crepes.

With the chef's assistance she snapped the finished product into a roll.

"Wouldn't it have been terrible if it went bloomph?" Bush asked, handing forks to Binsfeld and Engler, who together with the first lady nibbled on a pre-cooked sample.

"No human hands touched this food." It was a one-ring circus and the down-to-earth mother of five and grandmother of 12 was the center of it all.

Then-Vice-President George Bush and his wife toured the community college before the 1988 election. Their success with an enthusiastic crowd that day inspired the return trip. Schoolcraft Vice President Dr. Conway Jeffress said. Jeffress, a Novi resident, greeted the first lady, along with Schoolcraft president Dr. Richard McDowell.

"Last time, we were anxious to make something special for the vice president and found out that all he wanted were pork rinds and hot sauce." Jeffress said.

This time — with the president out wooing voters in Illinois — the culinary school had more of a chance to strut its scrumptious stuff. Bush assisted in frosting a yummy-looking yellow chiffon cake concocted with hazel nuts, Frangelico and whipped cream.

Bush — a self-described housewife — confessed in an interview at the Novi Hilton afterward that she rarely cooks "for real," just on an occasional Sunday night when she and her husband dine alone in the White House.

LAKE MICHIGAN SALMON EN CROUTE

Salmon fillet, 1 1/2 pounds
1 cup white wine
1/4 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon chopped chervil
1/4 teaspoon chopped tarragon
1 pound shrimp or boneless pike filets
8 ounces salmon trimmings
3 eggs
2 cups heavy cream
minced dill, to taste
6 phyllo sheets clarified butter, as needed bread crumbs, as needed prepared crepes, as needed melted butter, as needed

1/2 cup white wine
1/2 cup cider vinegar
1 1/4 cups heavy cream
8 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons american caviar

Combine 1 cup white wine, lemon juice, chervil and tarragon in a marinade with salmon fillet. Marinate for 6 to 8 hours in refrigerator. Reserve marinade.

Combine shrimp or pike, salmon trimmings and eggs in food processor and grind. Add 2 cups heavy cream and dill, and puree until smooth. Reserve.

Brush one sheet of phyllo dough lightly with clarified butter. Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Repeat six times, placing each sheet of phyllo atop the last.

Cover top layer of phyllo with crepes. Spread with 1/4-inch layer of reserved pureed pike/salmon mixture. Place reserved marinated salmon fillet on top. Roll up to enclose fillet. Brush with butter. Place on parchment-lined sheet pan. Bake at 400 F for 20 minutes.

Combine 1/2 cup of wine and vinegar, and heat to boiling; reduce until almost dry. Add 1 1/4 cup heavy cream and reduce by 1/2.

Over low heat, slowly whip 8 tablespoons of butter into reduced wine-cream mixture.

Add caviar just before serving. Adjust seasonings. Serve salmon roulade slices, two to each plate. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Spring ahead, but fall back on seasonal food

Finally it seems as if spring is here. It has been hard for us to get used to the daylight savings time change.

Usually the evening business at the restaurant starts around the "normal" dinner hour, 5:30 or 6 p.m. Now it starts an hour later. Our body systems are still on a winter schedule. Even lunch is later.

I wonder whose idea turning back and forward the clocks was. Personally, I love waking up to light instead of darkness, and would much prefer the sunset to come about 7 p.m. at the latest.

We (my staff) have noticed that everyone's biorhythms are a little bit off. People seem much more laid back and quiet than usual. Not rushed, but relaxed. They are willing to stay out later, probably due to the fact that it's still light. The early moviegoers are scarce. Who wants to sit in a dark movie house?

The number of golfers is amazing. I've never noticed it as much as this year. Some of the guys have been out at least 15 times, even in the rain and cold.

Our night saute Chris (Troy) Ebert moonlights at a golf course to pursue his passion for a much more reasonable price — free.

Yes, spring does nice things. People are watching what they eat a bit closer. The requests for more salads and lighter meals are pouring in.

Within the next few weeks, sous-chef Laura Merglewski and I will have a revised menu to lead us into the joys of summer fruits and vegetables. Just the thought of a "real" tomato tingles my taste buds. Add some fresh mozzarella and a drizzle of the best olive oil: heaven on earth. With some good bread, the easiest meal in the world is at your fingertips.

Or a wonderful cold vegetable soup such as gazpacho with a refreshing tomato "stock." The crunchy celery, onions and peppers are a nice contrast to the garlicky broth.

The simple pleasures of the season go on and on. Fresh herbs, flowers, morels, fiddlehead ferns and squash blossoms are a cook's dream come true. And salads are made with just-picked buttery lettuce. Not much can top that.

By the end of the summer, we will be wondering what to do with all of the zucchini. And tomatoes and corn. A nice problem. We are already using fresh corn from California or Florida. Cut from the ear and used in a salsa-type salad. It makes an agreeable accompaniment to fish entrees.

Stir-fries are a great way to utilize the array of vegetables coming onto the market. Add some sort of legume or tofu, and a protein isn't needed.

Or a grilled vegetable pita sandwich. Simply brush your favorite veggies with olive oil, broil or grill outside, fill a pita and sprinkle with feta cheese.

Fresh berries are wonderful in cold soups. Puree any fruit with yogurt (or sour cream) a bit of juice and flavoring, such as vanilla or nutmeg, and voila, low calorie and satisfying.

As much as I will miss the homey foods of winter, the pot pies, osso bucco and city chicken, I'm looking forward to a change of food with the change of seasons.

The Refrigerator Door

CORRECTION: Last week's edition of Creative Dining inadvertently left out an ingredient from the recipe for Cheesy Brunch Casserole. The missing item is 1/2 cup shredded reduced fat cheddar cheese. We regret the error.

WINE APPRECIATION COURSE: Northville Record/Novi News wine columnist Eleanor and Ray Heald will offer a five-week wine appreciation course devoted to educating both the neophyte and experienced taster in the art of tasting world-class wines as a connoisseur would.

Six premium wines of the world will be discussed and tasted at each session. The five sessions (cost $95/person) are held on Wednesday evenings from 7:30-9:30 p.m., May 6 through June 3 at the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College. Call 471-7561 for more information and registration materials.

TIP OF THE WEEK: If you've got any decorated eggs left over from Easter, you should have gotten rid of them by now. Sylvia Trietman, home economist with the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service, recommends pitching decorated hard-boiled eggs after just two or three days in the refrigerator.

KITCHEN GLAMOR: Marcia Sikarskie, demonstrates recipes that will enhance your spring meals. You will learn how to clean and core a fresh pineapple, step-by-step techniques for sweet and sour chicken with pineapple and other culinary delights. 1 and 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 28 in Novi, 1 and 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 29 in Redford, 1 and 7 p.m. Thursday, April 30 in West Bloomfield, and 1 and 7 p.m. Friday, May 1 in Rochester. There is a $3 fee. Call 537-1300 for information.

RECIPES WANTED: A new feature is appearing in the Creative Dining section of this paper. Known as HomeTown Cooking, it will feature recipes contributed by readers. With that in mind, we'd like to take this time ask that anyone with a recipe that they'd like to share with all their neighbors in the Northville/Novi area please send it, along with your name, address, and phone number, to HomeTown Cooking, 104 W. Main St., Northville, MI 48167.

Any recipe will do. Perhaps you have a dinner-time favorite, or a recipe for bread that's been passed down through your family for generations, or maybe just a good, fast work-night cost-cutter. Send it in, and we'll feature it on these pages.

CHEFS' GALA: Cranbrook Schools, 550 Lone Pine Road, Bloomfield Hills, will celebrate spring by presenting for the 14th consecutive year, Le Gala de Cuisine, 3-7 p.m. Sunday, May 3, in the school's Elise Saarinen-designed Quadrangle.

Working amidst thousands of spring flowers and colorful plants, chefs representing Michigan Chefs de Cuisine Association will cook up hors d'oeuvres, entrees and desserts.

Among those exhibiting will Tom MacKinnon of MacKinnon's Restaurant in Northville.

Included in the admission, $125 friend, $150 patron, $200 benefactor, are a cookbook featuring treasured recipes from participating chefs, La Gala de Cuisine '92 poster. All proceeds go to faculty enrichment, scholarships and school restoration. Call 258-8885 or 647-2847 for tickets.

EGG CONTEST FOR KIDS: The Michigan Association of Poultry Industries in cooperation with the American Egg Board is sponsoring its eighth annual Michigan Egg Cooking Contest. The contest, which is limited to students in grades six through 12, requires entrants to produce a main dish entree using a minimum of four eggs or one per serving. Top finishers in the contest will earn $300, $200 and $100 for first, second and third place respectively. The winning Michigan entry will be sent to the national contest, which has a top prize of $4,000. Deadline for entry is June 1. For more information, contact Carl C. Hoyt, project coordinator, 3658 88th Ave., Zeeland, MI 49464.

Experiment with grains in salad

We tend to think of a salad as being one of the most healthful of menu choices. But is it? The answer depends upon what you put into the salad bowl.

A salad can be high in calories and fat. According to a study conducted by Mississippi State University, an average salad bar salad contains 1,000 calories. And it's no wonder when you consider that every tablespoon of Italian dressing adds 83 calories and 9 grams of fat.

To maximize nutrition and minimize calories and fat, opt for a low-fat or fat-free salad dressing and concentrate on the vegetables and grains. You'll be amazed at the number of options.

● Skip the iceberg lettuce and fill your refrigerator crisper with salad greens that are more nutrient dense such as dark green romaine, spinach and Swiss chard.

● Carrots and beets are good sources of vitamin A; bell peppers, broccoli, cabbage and tomatoes contribute vitamin C.

● Cooked beans and lentils are low-fat protein sources.

● Venture beyond pasta to brown rice, barley, couscous, bulgur and quinoa. All of these grains are flavorful, easy to prepare and filling.

● Turn a side dish salad into a main dish by adding just two ounces of a lean protein food. Try skinless chicken and turkey, broiled lean beef, salmon or water-packed tuna, nonfat or part-skim cheese.

For an extra nutrition boost, skip the croutons and sprinkle on or stir in a few tablespoons of wheat germ. One serving, about two tablespoons, of Kreischmer wheat germ has eight essential vitamins and minerals, dietary fiber and just 50 calories.

Discover wheat germ's naturally nutty flavor and crunchy texture by trying two main dish salads created in the Quaker Kitchens.

Like its namesake, Buffalo-Style Chicken Salad offers zesty flavor and a variety of textures and temperatures. Skinned and boned chicken breast halves are coated with a spicy wheat germ mixture, broiled, sliced and arranged on top of several different kinds of lettuce. Celery sticks and fat-free blue cheese dressing add to the authenticity.

Each bite of Garden Turkey and Rice Salad features wheat germ and cooked brown rice, crunchy vegetables and lean turkey breast. Freshly squeezed lemon juice added to the bottled fat-free Italian dressing zips up the flavor. Serve over salad greens, sliced tomatoes or a cantaloupe half, or spoon into pita pockets. Any way you serve it, this salad's a winner.

BUFFALO-STYLE CHICKEN SALAD

1 cup toasted or honey crunch wheat germ
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1/2 cup water
1 egg white
2 boneless skinless chicken breast halves (about 3 ounces each)
3 cups mixed salad greens
1 cup celery sticks
1/2 cup fat-free blue cheese salad dressing

Combine wheat germ and seasonings; set aside. Combine water and egg white. Dip chicken into egg white mixture and then into wheat germ mixture; coat chicken thoroughly. Place on broiler rack sprayed with no-stick cooking spray. Broil 3 minutes; turn. Broil an additional 2 to 4 minutes or until juices run clean. Slice into strips and serve over mixed greens with celery sticks and salad dressing. Makes 2 servings.

GARDEN TURKEY AND RICE SALAD

2 cups cooked brown rice
1 cup cooked turkey breast, cut into bite-size pieces
1 cup coarsely chopped celery
1 cup sliced carrots
1/2 cup toasted wheat germ
1/2 cup sliced green onions
3 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley (optional)
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 cup fat-free Italian salad dressing
1/2 cup lemon juice

Combine first 8 ingredients in medium bowl. Combine Italian dressing and lemon juice. Pour dressing over salad; mix well. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes 3 servings.

Morels draw fungus-hunters among us

Gourmets savor them, chefs favor them, and thousands search for them. We're talking about morel mushrooms, a springtime delight in Michigan.

Morel season attracts some half-million fans to state woods and forests each May. It's prime recreational activity in northern Michigan between ski season and the boating months.

"Tourists love morel season for a variety of reasons, not limited to their enjoyment of the delicious mushrooms," said AAA Michigan Member Services Director Peter Erickson.

"Some visitors also go morel hunting to experience Michigan's lush woodlands, wildflowers and animals. Others enjoy the variety of activities offered at the Michigan festivals that celebrate the morel season."

With heavy snow in the winter, good moisture and warm temperatures in early spring, black morels generally spring up in abundance during the first week in May. The best white morel picks are usually in mid-May.

For those who love to eat morels but do not necessarily want to hunt them, the savory mushroom can be purchased commercially during the peak season for about $15-$20 per pound. Or, new technology now allows morel lovers to grow them at home with a kit available at some retail stores in the state.

Four state festivals will celebrate the morel season this spring:

● Walloon Lake 6th Annual Morels & More outings—April 24-26, May 1-3, 8-10, 15-17. These weekends feature morel recipe sharing, cookouts and wine-tastings and are highlighted by a mushroom hunt with Larry Lonik, morel expert and author of "The Curious Morel."

● Boyne City Morel Mushroom Hunting Championship—May 8-10. A carnival, mushroom hunt and delicious mushroom dishes served at local restaurants highlight the festival.

● Mesic Mushroom Festival—May 8-10. A mushroom hunt, craft sale, parade and flea market entice visitors.

● Lewiston Mushroom Festival—May 9. Contests, fairs and of course, the hunt, are the standouts of this festival.

UNTIL WE FIND A CURE, THIS IS THE BEST MEDICINE.

You know what they say about laughter. About sunshine. And about love.

Thousands of children with neuromuscular diseases know, too — thanks to special summer camps sponsored by the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Each summer, MDA camps provide a special outdoor world — without barriers to children disabled by neuromuscular disorders. Despite leg braces and wheelchairs, these children swim and fish. They go boating. They horseback ride. They have cookouts and crafts. And each youngster shares a special friendship with a volunteer counselor who works one-on-one with the child.

Summer camps are just one way MDA serves patients with neuromuscular diseases. The Association also maintains some 230 clinics around the country to provide essential services like diagnosis, medical follow-up, physical therapy and counseling. And MDA provides orthopedic equipment and other aids for daily living, all free of charge to the patient and his family.

MDA receives no government grants or fees for services — its programs are funded entirely by private donations. For thousands of patients with neuromuscular diseases, you can be the best medicine. Please send a tax-deductible contribution today.

We Need Volunteers Who Love Happy Campers!

Sun Deer® campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summers indoors. At Camp Sun Deer®, asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do it without your help. The limitations and doubts they face can be diminished by a volunteer who cares. Your participation at Camp Sun Deer® can make all the difference in an asthmatic child's summer.

Hey coach, how about a substitute?

Cooking success comes when you start with a good recipe, measure correctly and use the right ingredients.

Be careful about substituting key ingredients unless the recipe suggests an alternate. We all enjoy food, however, that also tastes good, looks good and is good for you. A basic understanding of some of the key ingredients will help accomplish this by giving you a perfect product every time.

Baking powder is a leavening agent which makes food rise when baked in the oven, skillet or waffle iron. It is a combination of baking soda, a dry acid or acid salt, and starch or flour. When mixed and baked with the acid ingredient it reacts with the baking soda to produce gas bubbles that make the batter or dough rise. Store baking powder tightly covered in a cool, dry cupboard, not over the stove. It will keep for up to one and one-half years. Test the freshness of stored baking powder by testing a teaspoon in one-third cup of hot water. It should bubble quickly.

Baking soda used alone has no leavening power, but used in mixtures contains an acid ingredient such as buttermilk, sour milk, molasses, or fruit juice. It makes a tender product. Mixtures containing baking soda should be baked as soon as mixed because the soda starts to react when it comes in contact with the liquid. Always mix the baking soda with the dry ingredients first.

Evaporated milk is made from homogenized whole milk with about 60 percent of the water removed. This can be diluted with an equal amount of water and substituted for milk in a recipe. Evaporated milk can be used right from the can in a sauce or gravy or as a binder to replace egg in a meatloaf, a liquid in mashed potatoes, or for dipping when breaded fish, chicken or chops.

It does have a slightly caramelized taste because of the processing. However, this will not affect the product. After opening the can, it should be treated and stored like fresh milk and used within three to five days.

Chilled evaporated milk makes a very acceptable whipped topping. Add about three tablespoons of lemon juice to a can of evaporated milk and whip stiff. For best results, chill the milk, bowl and beaters thoroughly before whipping.

When a recipe refers to flour, it generally means all-purpose wheat flour. Otherwise the type will be specified, and these are not necessarily interchangeable. All-purpose flour is a blend of hard and soft wheat flours and is the most common flour used for baking or as a thickening agent. Instant flour is an all-purpose flour which has been processed to make it fine and granular. Because of its blending ability it is used for a thickener. Cake flour is blended from only soft wheats and has a softer texture than all purpose. In an emergency you can substitute one cup minus two tablespoons sifted all-purpose flour for one cup cake flour.

Self-rising flour is all-purpose flour to which leavening agents and salt have been added in amounts suitable for general baking. It does not make a very good yeast product, popovers, or egg-leavened cake such as angel food or sponge cakes. Self-rising can be used in crusts where the fat in the recipe has been reduced.

Bread flour is sometimes available and highly desirable for bread making because it has a high proportion of gluten. This gluten gives elasticity to dough, helps it expand and hold to gas from the yeast. There are many other non-wheat flours available. They work best in a specific recipe, or follow the directions on the bag.

Molasses is a distinctively flavored syrup made from sugar cane sap. Light molasses and unsulphured have a golden color and mild flavor. Use light molasses in recipes where a delicate color and flavor are needed. Dark molasses is much darker and stronger flavored and used in recipes where pronounced flavors and color are preferred.

Molasses is not as sweet as sugar so use one cup molasses to replace three-fourths cup granulated sugar. Reduce the other liquid in a recipe by five tablespoons for each cup of molasses used. Store tightly covered at room temperature. After opening, refrigerate to help prevent mold. If crystals form, place the bottle in hot water to melt them.

There are many tricks to being a successful cook and/or baker. By understanding the basics, the chances of getting a perfect product improves every time.

Book helps select 'right' wine for food

By CAROL CUTLER
Copley News Service

Dinner entertaining has gained new momentum in the 1990s. With more serious dinners, the subject of wine is almost automatically linked.

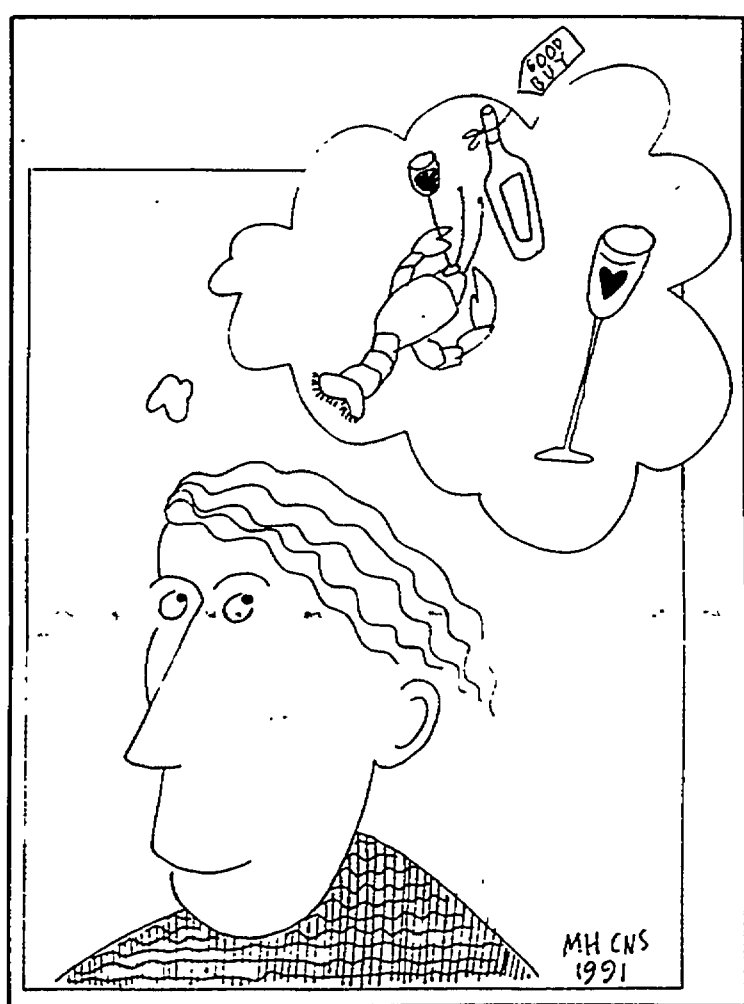

One hears and reads a lot of foolishness about wine. The subject has been made to appear arcane. Certain rules are supposed to be inviolable. Well, that's nonsense and the authority who says so is none other than the esteemed wine publication The Wine Spectator.

The folks at The Wine Spectator have produced their "Ultimate Guide to Buying Wine" ($14.95, available through bookstores or wine retailers. Copies can be ordered directly from The Wine Spectator, 601 Van Ness Ave., Suite 2014, San Francisco, CA 94101; add $3.50 for postage and handling.)

The Wine Spectator proclaims this book as the world's most comprehensive price and ratings reference for more than 24,000 wines from 21 countries. That part of the book will be left to wine writers. What I found particularly appealing and useful was all the practical advice for anyone who entertains.

The chapter "Choosing a Wine for Dinner" begins. "The first thing to remember about matching food and wine is to forget the rules. Forget about shoulds and shouldn'ts. Forget about complicated systems for selecting the right wine with the food on the table. This is not rocket science. It's common sense. Follow your instincts." Bravo.

The second point is another departure: "The most important rule is to choose a wine that you want to drink by itself. Despite all the hoopla about matching wine and food, you will probably drink most of the wine without the benefit of food—either before the food is served or after you've finished your meal. . . . Even if the match is not perfect, you will still have an enjoyable wine to drink."

The chapter continues with wine suggestions for specific currently popular dishes, plus a handful of recipes.

There is always debate over the proper serving temperatures for wine, so listen to this.

"In general, sparkling wines should be served as cold as you can get them. It takes at least an hour in the refrigerator to bring them down from room temperature or a bit warmer, to preserve their freshness and fruitiness and to make their impression on the palate more refreshing.

"For most red wines, connoisseurs prefer to serve them at cellar temperatures, about 55 to 65 degrees F."

"In the whites, rich full-bodied wines such as white Burgundy, Chardonnay and Semillon often show more of their complexity when served warmer than other whites. . . . about 40 minutes in the fridge should do it. Most sweet dessert wines will be at their best using the same rule."

The No. 1 tip for better buying is "Always taste before you buy. Don't get trapped into buying what your friends or critics call the best. Trust your own palate. Taste a bottle before you buy six or a case."

Other salient points include: "Keep costs in perspective. A few fine wines are expensive, but far too many well-made, reasonably priced wines are ignored because they lack the image and prestige of higher-priced wines."

"Buy wine by the case. Most retailers give you a 10 percent discount—or one bottle free. Assemble your wines with rhyme and reason. Think about your needs before parting with your cash."

The recipes in "The Wine Spectator's Guide" were selected because they include wine in the cooking, or to make a point about pairing with a sipping wine. This super-easy dessert falls into the latter category.

FRESH BERRIES WITH SECRET SOUR CREAM SAUCE

3 to 4 cups mixed fresh berries
1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon powdered sugar
2 tablespoons Sambuca Romana, anisette or other anise-flavored liqueur.
Milk, if needed
Vanilla (optional)
Mint sprig for garnish

Arrange berries in individual cups, bowls or wineglasses. In mixing bowl, using wire whisk, blend remaining ingredients, adding milk only if necessary to make a thick, barely pourable sauce. Add a dash of vanilla, if desired.

Pour over berries. Garnish with mint sprigs.
Yields six servings.

WHITE BIRCH LODGE!

Last summer,
our guests came from 19 different states and 5 foreign countries. Over 80% will be back, and here's why:

"There is something for everyone in our family."

Sail. Windsurf. Water
ski. Fish. Golf. Build sandcastles. Go biking.
Play tennis, volleyball, softball or shuffleboard. Or just relax on the beach or roast marshmallows around the campfire.

"Elk Lake is even more beautiful than our home lake in Geneva, Switzerland." Our tree-covered lakeside resort includes over 2,000 feet of sandy shoreline on Elk Lake, one of Michigan's largest and most beautiful inland lakes.

"The staff does all the work, so we have all the fun." Our staff is trained to make sure that every family enjoys their stay, including the kids. We do it all, so you can relax and enjoy.

"White Birch is convenient to all great northern Michigan attractions."

Because we're located in the heart of the Grand Traverse area, you have easy access to world-class golf, shopping, sightseeing, and many cultural festivals and sporting events.

"One reasonable price covers everything." Our weekly rates are on the American Plan, covering lodging, three delicious meals a day, and all activities at the Lodge.

"We stayed in a gorgeous new condo."

We have accommodations to suit every size family, even large family reunions. From cottages and hotel-style rooms to townhouse apartments and deluxe condominiums.

"It's the best thing we've ever done for our family!"

Try White Birch Lodge for your next family vacation. Once you've come, we know you'll be back. Our summer program runs from Memorial Day to Labor Day, but we're also open year-round for weekend getaways or extended vacations.

COLORFUL COLONIAL LIFE— Vivid re-enactments of life at an 18th century fur trading village and military outpost await visitors to Colonial Michilimackinac.

Michigan's history: See, smell, touch it

Mackinaw City, Michigan—

Three hundred and fifty years of history just won't keep quiet at Mackinac State Historic Parks. On May 15th, the spirited sounds of Michigan's bold and boisterous past will burst forth as the parks open for the 1992 visitor season.

A colorful quartet of "living history" sites awaits visitors: Colonial Michilimackinac and Mill Creek in Mackinaw City, and Fort Mackinac and Mackinac Island State Park on Mackinac Island. Nestled near the sapphire waters of the Straits of Mackinac, they rest upon the same stage once shared by soldiers and sawyers, fur traders and French voyageurs.

Each of the Mackinac State Historic Parks has a unique flavor steeped in time. Visitors find it easy to see, smell, hear and touch history.

Weathered-gray cedar stockades surround the bustling fur trade post of Colonial Michilimackinac in Mackinaw City. The site has a convenient, well-equipped Visitor's Center where helpful staff are pleased to share hints on local history and regional travel. It is an ideal "first-stop" for Straits area visitors.

Just a shoreline walk from the Visitor's Center is a palisaded village of the 1770s. Lively interpretive programs include a hearty arrival of the voyageurs and an 18th century French wedding. New in 1992 is a re-created American Indian encampment with traditional summer wigwams along the Lake Michigan shore. Also new is a unique underground archaeological tunnel exhibit entitled "Treasures From the Sand." Both premiere June 15.

Three miles south of Colonial Michilimackinac is Mill Creek State Park, a 1790s historic site. Here, visitors watch the blade of a water-powered sawmill cut logs into wide planks, replicating work once done by early sawyers. Three miles of trails wind through a 625-acre forest community; plants and wildlife abound. Toppled tree trunks indicate the work of resident beaver.

A short ferry ride from Mackinaw City or St. Ignace brings visitors to Mackinac Island. Historic Fort Mackinac is perched on the isle's limestone bluff. Here, Victorian-style military life of the 1880s comes alive. Authentically-clad "soldiers" don Prussian spiked helmets and grasp 100 year-old Trapdoor Springfield rifles. Cannons resound across the Parade Grounds in daily re-enactments.

Spring in Mackinac Island State Park, Michigan's first state park, is a blanket of ivory trillium and brilliant blue forget-me-nots. Visitors can hike, bike or horseback ride the web of trails that crisscross the Island's interior. Imposing geological formations such as Arch Rock jut above the treetops.

The four Mackinac State Historic Parks welcome over 1.5 million visitors annually. The 1992 visitor season concludes Oct. 18, with Mackinac Island State Park remaining open year-round. Mackinac State Historic Parks was established in 1895 to preserve the area's cultural and natural resources. The sites offer historical and educational programs and many special events to help travelers discover the Straits of Mackinac's rich heritage.

New exhibit highlights decades of discovery at historic state parks

Mackinaw City, Michigan—

A summary of the Mackinac State Historic Parks archaeology program might read as follows: Thirty-three years of continuous research; two million artifacts unearthed, analyzed and conserved; an 18th century fur trading village carefully reconstructed; site of the longest on-going archaeological dig in the nation.

These fascinating years of discovery are the focus of a unique underground exhibit premiering June 15, at Colonial Michilimackinac in Mackinaw City. "Treasures From the Sand: Archaeology at Michilimackinac" will reveal how three decades of archaeological research have illuminated a colorful period of Michigan history. It promises mystery and intrigue to summer travelers exploring the Straits of Mackinac region.

"Since our archaeology program began in 1959, we've accumulated vast quantities of information," explains Phil Porter, curator of interpretation at Mackinac State Historic Parks. "We want visitors to learn how this extensive research contributes to our understanding of Michilimackinac history and to what visitors see throughout our historic sites today."

The 2,000 square foot underground tunnel is the first of three "walk-through" museums planned by Mackinac State Historic Parks for this decade. A major emphasis will be the "original" nature of the exhibits. Visitors will see hundreds of artifacts actually recovered from surrounding soil, along with original documents more than 200 years old. The exhibit will be fully climate controlled to protect fragile relics.

Visitors will enter "Treasures From the Sand" through the reconstructed British Trader's House in the northwest corner of Colonial Michilimackinac. A stairway leads to a display area focusing on the archaeological process. The centerpiece is a re-created archaeological dig explaining how artifacts are unearthed and recorded by field archaeologists. Onlookers can follow an artifact through the entire process - from initial discovery to final preservation.

As visitors wind further into the tunnel, a series of exhibits - "The Five Forts of Michilimackinac" - will examine how and why the fur trading post changed through the 18th century - from French reign in 1715 to eventual abandonment by the British in the 1780s.

One of several additional topics is "A World of Ceramics." Shards of stoneware, porcelain and other ceramic wares provide clues to 18th century trade patterns at Michilimackinac. Many of these fragile remnants originated in England, France, Germany and China.

Porter believes visitors will gain a greater appreciation for archaeology through "Treasures From the Sand." "The word 'treasures' refers not only to the specific artifacts we unearth, but also to the valuable information that archaeological research provides," states Porter. "Treasures From the Sand" should instill in our visitors an appreciation for archaeology as a critical link to the past."

For more information on the historic parks, call 616-436-5563.

Grand Haven, Michigan—

More than 20,000 spectators and 100 of the world's top stunt kite pilots—including fliers from all over the U.S., Canada, Australia and Europe—will be on the beach at Grand Haven State Park for the Great Lakes-All American Sport Kite Championships May 8-11.

Sponsored by the Mackinaw Kite Co. of Grand Haven, this exhilarating event takes to the skies from noon to 6 p.m. on Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Sport kites have two lines which allow the pilot to steer. The kites are built from high tech materials and, in the hands of skilled pilots, are capable of extremely precise, exciting maneuvers. Pilots compete individually or in teams and fly their kites "Blue Angel" style: ballet routines choreographed to music.

The Great Lakes-All American Sport Kite Championships are the American Kite national championships. This creates the highest level of competition.

The American teams will battle for top honors along with team from the rest of the globe. Only two American teams will get invitations to the World Cup held in Japan this August. The points obtained from the Great Lakes Championships are critical to any team with aspirations to compete at the World Cup.

Among the teams competing this year will be the defending World Cup Champions "Team High Performance" from Hawaii. In 1991 they were champions of the American Kite Magazine Sport Kite Circuit and the World Cup. They travelled 100,000 miles for international competitions and demonstrations.

Perennial powerhouse "Top of the Line" from San Diego will provide an exciting, dramatic performance. "The Blast" from London, England, is the European Champion and performs routines which combine whimsical musical selections with superb flying. "Chicago Fire" will roll into Grand Haven with a new six-man team. The home town favorite, "Roaring Flamingos," will compete to defend their championship.

These are just a few of the teams who will make the weekend an exciting spectacle for everyone from casual spectators to kite aficionados. To experience the thrill, just pack your lawn chair, blanket and a picnic lunch for one of the most enjoyable beach weekends of the year.

Free kite lessons are available for beginners and sport kite manufacturers will demonstrate new kites and

The Great Lakes-All American Sport Kite Championships are free of charge but there is an admission charge for vehicles entering Grand Haven State Park. Call 616-846-7501 for more information.

Grand Haven, on Lake Michigan, is easily accessible via Interstate 96 or Interstate 196 to US-31.

John Snyder

If you're like me, your appreciation of things Scottish begins with golf and ends with collies. That's all the more reason to put on plaid and attend the Alma Highland Festival and Games May 22-24.

"Cead Mille Failte" (a hundred thousand welcomes) awaits visitors to this weekend of old world pageantry on the campus of Alma College. Named as one of the top 20 travel events in the nation, it has become the Midwest's largest gathering of Scottish clans, complete with pipe bands, Highland dancers, fiddlers and athletes from across the U.S. and Canada.

Invited professional athletes (who are required to perform in kilts) will compete in seven back-breaking traditional events:

—Caber toss; flinging a 125-pound wooden pole for accuracy.

—Sheaf throw; tossing a tightly-packed 25-pound bag of Michigan navy beans over a pole set higher with each successful throw. (Traditionally, the sheaf was packed with straw but beans are used at the Alma festival to honor area farmers.)

—Stone throw; hurling a 22-pound stone for distance.

—Hammer throw; throwing a 22-pound hammer for distance.

—Weight throws; throwing a 56-pound and 28-pound weight for distance. Competitors will also throw the 56-pound weight for height over a bar.

Besides brute strength, the festival showcases the graceful movements of more than 200 champion Highland dancers performing the sailor's hornpipe, broadsword dance and assorted jigs.

A record number of clan societies are expected to participate in the '92 Gathering of the Clans—a great place for those searching for their Scottish roots to meet representatives of 35-40 clans.

Among the many honored guests scheduled to attend the festival are Sir William Alan Mac Pherson, chief of Clan Macpherson, and his wife, Lady Cluny, of Scotland.

One of the most spectacular sights of the festival is the performance of massed bands. During opening and closing ceremonies Saturday and closing ceremonies on Sunday, all competing pipe bands join together to perform cross-field marching formations while playing traditional Scottish tunes.

The Saturday morning street parade has drawn as many as 75,000 spectators to view acres of tartans adorning pipe bands, marching bands, prize-winning floats and an array of Scottish pageantry.

Other feature attractions at the festival are solo piping and band piping competitions, a juried art fair and special Highland games and entertainment for children.

Scottish vendors will tempt the public with a wide variety of authentic treats from the British Isles, including meat pies, bridies and shortcakes.

Alma, which bills itself as "Scotland U.S.A.," is located north of Lansing in the middle of Michigan's lower peninsula and is easily accessible via US-27 or M-46. Call 517-463-8979 for festival and lodging information.

HIGHLAND FLING—Bonnie lassies twirl their tartans to the piper's tune at the Alma Highland Festival and Games, set this year for May 22-24.

"It's fun to cook up a big pot if you don't have to do it every day," says Pat Guthman, a Southport, Conn., antiques dealer in 18th and early 19th century cooking iron and furniture. She adds that the stew can even be cooked over an open hearth. The addition of homemade bread is all that's needed to make the meal complete.

Guthman, one of 44 dealers in the eighth annual Village Antiques Show that benefits Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village in Dearborn, has displayed her collections at two previous Village shows, but this year she also has been asked to be one of two lecturers in the Katharine B. Hagler Memorial Mini Forum during the show.

Her booth on the floor of Lovett Hall will be set up with an open fireplace displaying early iron cooking utensils.

When we reached Pat Guthman at a big show in Philadelphia the first week of this month, she obligingly explained that she plans to use slices of early cooking pots and kettles at her talk, "Iron for the Hearth," the first day of the show, May 9, at 3 p.m. Then she will take participants back to her booth to further illustrate how to identify early pots that have been used for 200 years and may sell for $500 to $600 and how to tell them from a flea market version. She says that a craftsman's methods date a piece.

"We'll focus on various implements used for cooking on the hearth in the 18th and early 19th century and explain how they were crafted and used, she says, "for food was an important part of colonial life."

Admission to this and the Saturday lecture is included in the admission price of the show.

Pat's partner is her daughter, Pam, a former publishing executive.

She mentioned that the Philadelphia show, like the upcoming Village show, included a preview party. At Lovett Hall, Thursday, May 7, the preview with cocktails and a light buffet will offer opportunity to purchase antiques prior to the public opening. It is black tie optional with ticket prices ranging from $50 to $300 a person. The preview and the show itself have become a major antiques event in Michigan. Call the village at 313-271-1620, ext. 214 for more information.

The show will be open to the public May 8 through May 10.

The show's Saturday, May 9, lecture at 3 p.m. will be a return engagement by popular demand for David Lindquist, a dealer in 18th and 19th century English and French antiques. His topic will be "Antique Furniture: What to know before you buy."

Barb Randau of Royal Oak, who is assisting Robert Lawler with dealer arrangements for the show, is a fan of Guthman's. (Lawler has taken over active management of the show from its founding manager J. Jordon Humberstone who is largely retired.)

However, the committee has received a postcard from Humberstone from his winter home in Thailand saying he will be on hand for the Village preview.

"He still keeps his eye on it," says Randau of the Village show.

"She's delightful," Randau declares about Guthman, noting that "When she sets up her booth, she sets up a fireplace with a brick floor."

She reveals that Guthman also writes about antique cookware. She subscribes to "Art and Antiques Weekly" in which Guthman writes a column; Guthman also writes a recipe column in the LewTown Bee, sharing up to four or five recipes on early cooking in each issue.

"She picks them up on her travels," she says.

Guthman, she notes, is one of the 44 dealers invited to be in the benefit show.

"We have some of the top dealers from across the country," she adds, explaining, "We try to bring dealers who do a lot of shows in the area." She says the committee is pleased that many dealers want to return each year.

Volunteer publicist Emily Murphy provided a list of the four Michigan dealers in the show. They are:

James Babcock, antique book dealer from Harsen's Island; Briskin Antiques of Birmingham who specialize in Oriental; Thomas Forshee of Stockbridge with fine china and furniture; and Douglas Kenyon of Chicago and Grosse Pointe with original Audubon prints of birds and quadrupeds.

Show workers emphasize that the quality of antiques brought to the show complements the collections in the museum. While the admission to the show does not include the museum, collectors of early cookware may want to tour its exhibits.

Proceeds from the Village Antiques Show support the educational programs of the museum and village, including the Innovation Station, the Mentorship program and the Time Travelers program.

Tickets for the show are $5 in advance and $6 at the door, a single ticket purchase is good for all three days. Show hours are Friday, May 8, 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday, May 9, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Sunday, May 10, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information call 1-313-271-1620, ext. 214.

Historic complex offers warm weather delight

Dearborn, Michigan—

History springs to life for a season of discovery and delight at Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village.

At Greenfield Village, spring arrived officially on March 18, when the 80 historic buildings re-opened to the public after a winter hiatus. Thomas Edison's Menlo Park Laboratory, Henry Ford's birthplace, Firestone Farm, the Wright brothers' home and cycle shop, and George Washington Carver Memorial are among the highlights.

Tours in horse-drawn carriages are available year-around, but spring heralds the resumption of other historical rides. Visitors can view the village from a 1931-vintage bus (May 1), or cruise around the lagoon on the Suwanee Steamboat (May 18). All rides are available for an additional charge.

While Memorial Day signals the start of the contemporary summer season, Greenfield Village's Memorial Day Observance on May 25 salutes America's armed forces from the Civil War era to the present. Displays and demonstrations highlight this tribute to all who have fought and died for their country.

Open daily 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Michigan, form the nation's most visited indoor/outdoor historical complex, founded by Henry Ford in 1929.

Separate admission to the museum or village is $11.50 for adults, $10.50 for senior citizens age 62 and over, $5.75 for children ages 5-12, and free for children 4 and under. A combination ticket, valid for two consecutive days, is available for $20 for adults and $10 for children ages 5-12.

Bring your clubs and your family!

There is no shortage of vacation ideas in Northern Michigan.

Take the family, take the boat, take the bikes, find nature trails and sand dunes. The possibilities are limitless.

But if taking the family and the boat and bugging through dunes means there's precious little time to devote to a round of golf (we don't think so because there's always time for golf), fret not. There are other ways to enjoy the game in Up North this summer.

Northern Michigan isn't America's summer golf capital for no reason.

This summer you can vacation in Traverse City, Harbor Springs, Bellaire, Lewiston and other points north and see the finest golfers, professional and amateur, in Michigan and the Midwest competing for record prize money.

The price is right (in almost every case, it's free) for an up-close-and-personal look at the local golfing aristocracy. What you'll get for your trouble, instead of battling enormous crowds for a fleeting glimpse at Jack or Arnie or Chi Chi or Big John Daly, is a peaceful, unharried morning or afternoon in an idyllic setting.

Besides, it's great for the suntan and even better for spending quality time with the wife and kids - and still getting to the golf course. Another advantage: You can do it any time of year, spring, summer or fall.

It all starts with the Great Lakes Cup at Shanty Creek, May 13-15.

The tournament is patterned after The Ryder Cup with golfers from five states - Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio - competing in a two-day event. Each team will be captained by its state's most prominent golf writer - that means Jack Berry of The Detroit News doing the honors for Michigan.

Eight pros from each PGA Section will compete on the Schuss Mountain course the first day and at The Legend the second day. There's no prize money, just plenty of camaraderie and fun.

The $85,000 AAA Michigan Open takes center stage at Grand Traverse Resort when the state's best golfers challenge The Bear, June 15-25.

The Jack Nicklaus-designed course and its partner, Spruce Run, have two other premier events scheduled.

The Michigan Bell Showdown, Aug. 30, is a skins game matching the winners of the state's four top events for a total of $18,000.

The inaugural Great Lakes International Club Championship is Sept. 11-13. It is open to members of every golf club in the Great Lakes region, including Ontario. The format calls for four-man teams competing in a two-day scratch event.

Entry is $375 per person, which includes two nights accommodations, greens and cart fees, awards banquet, welcome reception and gift package.

An assortment of package values are offered by Grand Traverse Resort, as well as the John Jacobs' Practical Golf School, which returns for the fourth year and is available from June 7 through August 10.

The Allied Signal Michigan golf classic will be held for the 10th straight year at Schuss Mountain Golf Club at Shanty Creek-Schuss Mountain Resort. Its longevity is no surprise.

"From what I've heard over the years, it's the most fun and most organized tournament the golf professionals get to play in each year," says Director of Golf Roger Jabara. "Half of the professionals bring their families and use it as a mini-vacation. They get to spend some quality time with the families."

The 60 two-man teams will play for $30,000 in prizes. The format is a better ball the first day and a scramble for the final 18 holes.

There's also a Michigan Open qualifier at The Legend on June 2, with about 100 golfers expected.

"The tournaments we have here have no admission charge," Jabara says. "Just come and enjoy it."

The switch in sites to the Boyne complexes offers more of the same top-rate competitive golf for spectators.

The Boyne Tournament of Champions is new and it's big - with $100,000 in total prize money it is the largest purse offered in any state tournament in the country.

The format is unique: It matches champions from all sectors of the golfing public, including professionals, amateurs, seniors, women and juniors, competing for a state championship.

To be eligible, a participant must have won one of 39 state tournaments, with such major events as the Michigan Open and Amateur earning lifetime exemptions and grandfathered into the event. The popular Alpine and Monument courses at Boyne Mountain will be the tournament site, July 20-22.

TOURNAMENT TESTER— Boyne Mountain's Monument hole #17 is a par-3, 234-yard beauty with trees, deep bunkers and water. The Boyne complex will host the new Boyne Tournament of Champions July 20-22.

LAST CHANCE FOR BIRDIE— The 18th hole at Schuss Mountain Golf Club may decide the winner of the Allied Signal Michigan Golf Classic for state club professionals.

"It's exciting and novel," says Steve Kircher, Boyne's director of special projects. "This tournament embodies the Boyne concept in golf course design. I call it a '90s thing, breaking down the barriers of golf, both in terms of age and gender."

"We'll be using three or four tees, to even out the courses and have each group of competitors hitting the same type of shot into each green."

Michael Kemicki, Michigan Section PGA president, says the Boyne Tournament of Champions is "one of the most exciting developments in Michigan Section PGA and Michigan golf history."

Among other events slated for Boyne courses are two Golf Association of Michigan tournaments - the first time the GAM has opted to stage its state-wide events at the resort.

A Michigan Amateur qualifier will be held June 2 on the Heather course and the Michigan Mid-Amateur is scheduled for Sept. 3-4, also the Heather. That's two days before another popular Northern Michigan event, the Kircher Cup.

The three-tournament sequence begins on Sept. 1-2 when the Donald Ross Society - whose goal it is to preserve Ross courses around the country - holds its annual meeting at Boyne Highlands, complete with a tournament.

Boyne is a perfect example of a family/golf vacation. Kircher says the resort will implement a day-camp for children this summer to free parents for some leisure time without the kids.

"It'll be a very extensive program," he says.

Garland, a 63-hole complex in Lewiston, gets into the act by hosting one of Michigan's majors, the PGA Championship, Aug. 24-26.

Grand Rapids, Michigan—

Four of Grand Rapids' six past winners and five recent Senior PGA Tour winners highlight early commitments to the 1992 First of America Classic.

Last year's First of America Classic winner, Harold Henning, returns to defend his title. Other past winners include Orville Moody (1988), John Paul Cain (1989) and Don Massengale (1990).

They'll be joined by a quintet of pros who have tasted victory on the Senior PGA Tour in the last ten months: Jim Albus, Mike Hill, Rocky Thompson, DeWitt Weaver and Jimmy Powell.

"We're off to a good start," said Ron France, tournament co-chairman. "The past champions are always the cornerstone of the field. Plus, Mike Hill's commitment means we have last year's top money winner."

Hill, the Jackson, Mich. native, won five tournaments last year on his way to Player-of-the-Year honors and $1,065,657 in earnings.

Joining Hill among the 1992 winners are Massengale and Powell. Massengale's victory at the Royal Caribbean Classic was his first since the Grand Rapids win. Powell held off Lee Trevino to win the Aetna Challenge.

Thompson led last year's First of America Classic for the first 36 holes. One week later, he triumphed at the Digital Senior Classic.

Albus exploded onto the Senior Tour scene with his surprise victory at Dearborn's Senior Players Championship, while Weaver defeated J.C. Snead in a playoff at the Bank One Classic.

The 1992 First of America Classic is scheduled for August 31-September 6 at The Highlands. The event is organized and produced by the Grand Rapids Jaycees. Proceeds will benefit Hospice and other area charities.

Call 616-235-0943 for tournament information.

The 54-hole championship will attract some 200 Michigan PGA professionals, including defending champion Ken Allard, shooting for a purse of $80,000. The PGA Championship will also be held at Garland in 1993 and 1994.

"We're tremendously excited to have signed a three-year agreement to host the Michigan PGA Championship," says Lee Woodruff, host professional at Garland. It's a marvelous opportunity to showcase our beautiful facility."

Garland, owned and operated by the Ron Otto family, offers much more than golf to make your family vacation a total delight. It has a complete range of guest amenities for day-time activities and a world-class restaurant, Herman's, for a fine dining experience.

There is no shortage of outstanding restaurants in and around Northern Michigan's golf resorts, places such as the Rowe Inn, Tapawingo and the new Pontresina at Hidden Valley, one of the venerable resorts in the area.

Speaking of Hidden Valley, General Manager Dick Webber has slated the Scottish Salute Golf Weekend for May 16-18, an all-inclusive two-night package for $185 per person. It's a treat and a bargain.

The premise is there's plenty to do, without playing golf, a lot to see and an endless list of top-notch resorts and restaurants to check out in the Traverse City, Petoskey-Harbor Springs, Charlevoix and Gaylord areas.

But just in case the clubs do somehow find their way into the trunk and there is a smidgen of time to swing them, the courses to test (and be tested on) in addition to those which will host tournaments include Dunmaglas, Treetops at Sylvan Resort, A-Ga-Ming, High Pointe, Antrim Dells, Elk Ridge, the Sylvan Resort, Michaywe, Black Forest at Wilderness Valley, Crystal Mountain and Irongate, among others.

Golfing mecca adds 2 more jewels

Gaylord, Michigan—

The new golf course at Beaver Creek Resort, just south of Gaylord, comes by its name quite naturally.

There's plenty of wildlife on the 150 acres of wetlands surrounding the course. Deer, turkey, blue heron and, occasionally, even a roaming coyote. Typically Northern Michigan. "The Department of Natural Resources said everything had to look natural," says developer Larry Bowden. "You can't touch the wetlands, you can't touch the ponds - they kept saying 'leave it all natural.'"

So, Bowden did just that and named it...The Natural at Beaver Creek.

"When you see the property, it really fits," Bowden says

The Natural and nearby Marsh Ridge Resort are two more courses which will debut this season and join the growing legion of outstanding golf courses in the Gaylord area.

"A couple more feathers in our cap," says Paul Beachnau, executive director of the Gaylord Area Convention and Tourism Bureau.

"Our message over the past four or five years has been the quality, as well as quantity, of the courses in this area. Both The Natural and Marsh Ridge are quality, playable golf courses."

The Natural is three miles south of town, on the west side of Otsego Lake. Marsh Ridge is on Old U.S. 27, also south of Gaylord.

Bowden hired noted Michigan architect Jerry Mathews to design the course and ground was broken in September, 1990. It opens May 1.

Mathews' track record is impressive - he's built nothing but winners in Northern Michigan the past several years and The Natural is certain to join the list when the reviews are in. It's already been nominated by Mathews for golf's version of post-season honors.

"We're excited about that," Bowden says. "Jerry has a knack for giving them what they want."

Beachnau adds, "Jerry did a dynamite job with The Natural."

The Natural is adjacent to the 100-acre Beaver creek, a family resort also owned by Bowden which offers lodging, water slides, indoor pools, tennis courts, private lake and camping facilities among its main amenities.

Construction of a new golf clubhouse will begin in May and is expected to be completed this summer.

The Natural is a rolling layout, with tree-lined fairways, elevated bentgrass tees and large, undulating greens. In addition to the wetlands hazards, there are six water holes and 70 sand traps.

The course measures 6,300 yards from the back tees, 5,800 yards from the middle and 4,800 yard from the red markers.

"You don't have to be John Daly to play it," Bowden says. "We wanted a golf course people could enjoy playing, with all the characteristics of the championship layouts up here in Northern Michigan, but something more for the average golfer."

MATHEWS DESIGN— Jerry Mathews designed The Natural so that golfers of all abilities can enjoy a challenge surrounded by nature.

Greg Babinec, formerly assistant at Wabek Country Club in Bloomfield Hills, is the professional at The Natural. Fred Pastoor, formerly of Muskegon Country Club, is the superintendent.

The greens fees are $35 for 18 holes (seven days), including cart, and walking ($25) is permitted.

The experience of building a course, Bowden says, "was fantastic."

"I'd do another one in a second," he says. "It was like a kid in a big sandbox, just exciting watching it all come together. Seeing it go from nothing, from wooded acreage to finished product, is pretty amazing."

Marsh Ridge shares many of The Natural's traits.

"Both have gorgeous settings and offer unique looks to the area," Beachnau says.

Mike Husby, 40-year-old Lansing native, also had some definite guidelines in mind when he envisioned Marsh Ridge. He, too, wanted a course that would appeal to average golfers and at the same time capture the essence of Northern Michigan.

Marsh Ridge is 6,700 yards from the tips, fraught with the dangers of wetlands, water and tree-lined fairways, yet presenting spacious landing areas for the delight of all. The two sets of middle tees range from 6,102 yards to 5,645 yards, and the red markers are set at 4,923 yards, providing a suitable tee for golfers of all abilities.

"We wanted to make it a little softer than some of the resort courses and we did that by having generous landing areas, large greens and few crossing hazards," says Husby, who designed and built the course.

"Good players will find it challenging and it won't kill the average golfer.

From the back tees, Marsh Ridge can be a handful. Three of the final four holes on the front are long par 4s of 462, 445 and 421 yards. On the inward nine, No. 14 is a 431-yard par 4 followed by a 631-yard par 5.

The finishing hole is a relatively short (512 yards from the back tees), hilly par 5. The shot to the green must carry an expansive pond directly in front of the putting surface. It's a make or break kind of hole, exactly what Husby had in mind.

"I wanted a hole where the lead can change dramatically," he says. "It's a hole where a two or three-shot lead is not safe."

The amphitheater settings at the 9th and 18th holes can accommodate huge galleries. Husby estimates up to 5,000 people can view the action at No. 18.

Marsh Ridge, originally the Nordem Hem Resort, is on a bluff just east of Otsego Lake.

The signature hole is the 10th hole, an elevated par 3 which delivers on all counts. The view features Otsego Lake and the tee shot must carry 160 yards over wetlands.

The first nine holes are expected to be open by Memorial Day, the next nine by July 4. Greens fees will be $45, including carts which are mandatory.

Among the amenities offered will be a lighted driving range conveniently located near the first tee for those who need to work on their games after sunset. The three-tiered hitting area is large - 2,400 square feet.

"We're happy with the whole project," says Husby, who lives in Gaylord and also directed construction of the Lake Course at nearby Michaywe.

"It's a total resort now and I think people will be surprised by the beauty of the resort and the golf course."

Toledo Museum acquires important African artifact

Toledo, Ohio—

The Toledo Museum of Art announces the acquisition of an important African vessel, a handsome wooden drinking cup carved in the late 1800s by the Kuba People of Zaire, formerly the Belgian Congo. The cup will be on view in the Libbey Court at the Monroe Street entrance in March, prior to its installation in the African Art Gallery.

The large number of Kuba cups preserved in major museums and private collections of African art suggests that they may have been made for a specific ritual that had a long tradition among the Kuba People. Most are carved in the form of a male head, perhaps another indication of its ritual use.

The quality of the carving of the Museum's cup, however, places it among a very few which may well have been royal commissions. These particular Kuba cups are distinguished by pronounced stylization and elegance seen in the attenuated shape of the male head and the refinement of detail. The eyes and mouth are almond-shaped, perhaps a reference to the shape of cowrie shells treasured in central Africa. The hair is outlined by a double cord which zig zags at each temple.

The smooth surface of the top of the head and pronounced double cord outline at the edge of the hair suggest that the male head is wearing a tight cap. On the cheekbone in front of each ear is a group of three scarification marks. The ears are stylized into double "C" shapes which are echoed by the curve of the handle at the back of the head. The bottom attachment of the handle meets a tight necklace which stands out from the neck and features a jewel-like decoration at the front.

The Museum's newly acquired Kuba cup, the first African vessel to enter its collection, was acquired with funds from the Florence Scott Libbey Bequest in Memory of her Father, Maurice A. Scott, restricted to the acquisition of works of art.

White Horse Inn
1 E. High St. (1 mile east of M-24)
Metamora, Michigan
313-678-2150

"The White Horse Inn is one of our favorites because of its history and its quaint tiny town location—but mainly because of its food which is simply great."

These words of high praise come from Lorimer McCallister of Rochester Hills, Michigan, and he should know. "My wife, my son and I have tried every decent restaurant east of US-23, north of 8 Mile Road and south of Saginaw."

Lorimer raves about the filet mignon served with red skin potatoes, "greatest chicken soup—almost stew," and the fine salad bar at the White Horse Inn. Price per person is in the $10-$15 range and the service is friendly and prompt, Lorimer says. Reservations (313-678-2150) are recommended.

The traditional Midwest cuisine fits right in with the rural locale. "This place isn't ritzy, this is horse

The circa 1850 white clapboard structure housing the White Horse Inn is believed to be the first building erected in Metamora. A portion of the town's early wooden sidewalk remains as part of the bar room floor.

Great Lakes Getaway readers are invited to share their restaurant recommendations, whether it's a great 'burger bar or an elegant dining room. And to make it easy on you, we've prepared the handy accompanying form. Readers whose recommendations appear in print will receive their choice of a free cook book or antique guide.

COMMITMENT TO HISTORY— Authentically costumed soldiers, voyageurs, artisans and entertainers re-enact Ohio's Colonial period May 16-17.

Revisit a time when Ohio was the new frontier

Grand Rapids, Ohio—

"Get lost and enjoy arts at a living history festival!"

That's the theme for this year's Lost Arts Festival and Living Historic Encampment May 16-17 near this northwest Ohio village.

"We're not just another Colonial arts and crafts show," says festival co-ordinator Kim Reckner. "What we are is a family-oriented festival that has made a commitment to American history through re-enacting our country's early days in a fun, yet educational, weekend.

Hundreds of participants will gather at Seven Eagles Historical Education Center to recreate early America for thousands of spectators. Young and old alike can get lost in the sights, sounds and smells of yesterday: over-the-fire cooking, roaring cannons, marching minutemen, mountain men telling tall tales.

Spectators will enjoy the arts of craftsmen and artisans demonstrating their skills throughout the festival—pewter makers, blacksmiths at their anvils, fur being tanned for traders, ivory and bone being scrimshawed, clay being turned into tableware.

Festival-goers are invited to mingle with merchants trading in the marketplace, musicians playing endless hours of traditional songs on historical instruments, military units portraying camp life and view the pageantry of a period fashion show.

Festival hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. Admission is $3 for adults and $2 for persons over 65 and under 12.

Grand Rapids is located about 20 miles southwest of Toledo just off US-6. Festival site is one mile south of Grand Rapids on Wapakoneta Road.

Jack Hoffman

The calendar says spring, but the cutting edge of the cold breeze off the river makes the face feel like one big razor burn.

We're steelhead fishing. Naturally. "Delightful misery."

It's the best definition of this sport of chasing migrating rainbow trout that I know. It's akin to duck hunting. Subject the body to all kinds of weather tortures. Suffer the facial burns, raw fingers, ice-cube toes. Then, just when you think it can't get worse, there's a tunk followed by a screamin' line that zig-zags into the river's current and suddenly, adrenaline flowing, you are struggling to keep the rod tip up as you step towards the action, trying not to lose your balance on the slippery snow-covered bank. Beneath the surface of the icy water, out of sight although now and then offering up a tantalizing shadow, a steelhead has devoured the tiny packet of fish eggs and a razor-sharp barb, anchored now in its lip, and the handsome, spotted fish is every bit as anxious to free itself as you are in catching it.

The ensuing struggle, for the angler, is the adjective, "delightful." It's what makes misery worthwhile.

Having fished our Northern Michigan rivers in early spring for steelhead, I can attest to both the misery and the joy of this sport. But not the way Fritz Sumerix can. He bounced out of a hospital bed after suffering a heart attack late last year, shot home, gathered up his fishin' gear, and was back in his favorite river, the Sturgeon, even before the hospital identification band was removed from his wrist. He's been out to the river at least weekly ever since. "There are some things that can't wait. Fishing's one of them," he beams.

Sumerix grew up in Wolverine, just a hop-skip-and-jump from the Sturgeon. That stretch of the river, from the mouth of Burt Lake at Indian River, to the dam in Wolverine, is open water for trout--steelhead, rainbow and browns--all year long. Sumerix fishes this stretch of the river throughout the winter. With the opening of the regular trout season, on the last Saturday of April, he'll head upstream into the alder tangles near Vanderbilt.

The Sturgeon, of course, is just one of the many Northern Michigan rivers where anglers can enjoy steelhead fishing. In this area, they also take steelies in the Bear, Boyne and Jordan rivers at and south of Petoskey on the Lake Michigan side of the state, and in the Cheboygan, Ocqueoc and Thunder Bay rivers on the Lake Huron side of the Tip of the Mitt.

The steelhead is an anadromous fish species. It is a rainbow trout who thinks it is a salmon. It lives in the lake much of the year, returning in early spring, sometimes earlier, to spawn in the river of its birth. Unlike salmon, the spawning migration of steelhead is not a death march. Steelhead survive the spawning period to return to the lake.

There's little difference between rainbow and steelhead. Steelhead seem to migrate in schools. Rainbow tend to be loners. The steelhead is a little more streamlined than the rainbow. It sports a little less pinkish color and it has fewer spots below the lateral line. Anglers will tell you the steelhead is a little less wary than the spooky rainbow, perhaps because having lived in the safer, large lakes the steelhead has not learned to fear man or its other predators as much. Although its appetite isn't as voracious as is the rainbow, once the steelhead's

Battle Creek, Michigan—

The whoop of a gibbon, the smell of popcorn, and the magnificent beauty of a cheetah are just some of the experiences you will find as you explore Binder Park Zoo. A quarter of a million people annually visit this unique nature facility that began in 1977.

The Zoo is a place where families can spend quality time together enjoying outdoor recreation and learning about natural history. Binder Park Zoo is a regional conservation center for animal species whose wild populations are in trouble, such as cheetahs, trumpeter swans, white-handed gibbons, bald eagles, ruffed lemurs, ring-tailed lemurs and Chinese red pandas.

All year long the Zoo provides a variety of education programs and special events for visitors of all ages. During your visit you will encounter 18 exotic animal exhibits, explore the scenic Habitat Trail, and journey through a forest on the Z.O. & O. Railroad Ride. There is plenty of shaded seating located along the boardwalks and brick paths that wind through the park. You can also visit the Kendall Gift Shop for a wide selection of nature items and relax with a snack or lunch at Beulah's Restaurant In The Zoo. The restaurant features plenty of indoor and outdoor seating, a fieldstone fireplace, and a menu that consists of everything from cereal in the morning to hot and cold sandwiches, salads and animal shaped fries for lunch or dinner.

Also located in Binder Park Zoo is the Miller Children's Zoo which houses one of the world's largest accurate dinosaur replicas---a five-story Brachiosaurus. This two-acre area was designed specifically for children and features 12 domestic animal exhibits, including goat feeding, interactive hands-on displays, a giant climb-on spider web, fossil find, tunnel slide and more.

Binder Park Zoo is a wheelchair and stroller accessible facility which is open every day through Oct. 11. Hours are 9-5 weekdays, 9-6 Saturdays, and 11-6 Sundays (in June, July and August the Zoo will be open until 8 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays).

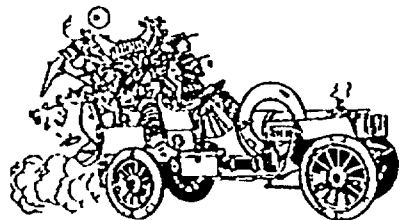

Also, don't miss the Zoo's two special holiday events for 1992, The Great Zoo Boo on Oct. 17-31 and Christmas At The Zoo in December. The Zoo is easy to find--just take exit 100 off Interstate 94, then go three Adventure, discovery for kids of all ages

Battle Creek, Michigan—

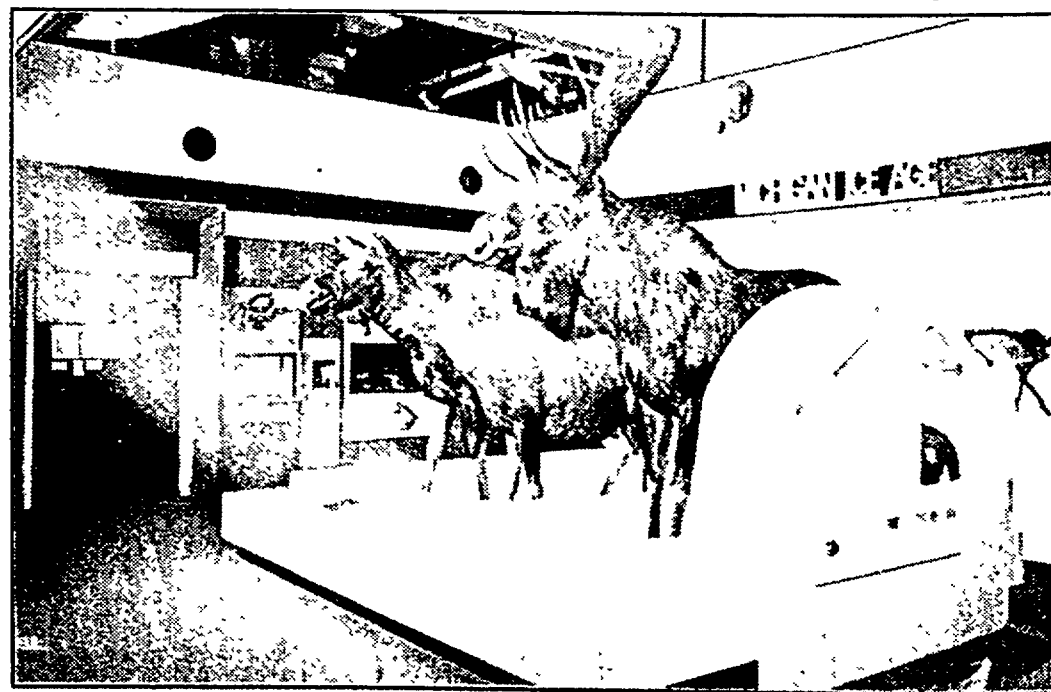

News flash for kids: They've discovered dinosaur bones in Battle Creek! And dinosaur eggs and a gargantuan moose too!

These are just some of the exhibit highlights at Battle Creek's Kingman Museum of Natural History that are sure to delight youngsters. The museum's three floors are jam packed with hands-on learning experiences.

Mom and dad just might learn a thing or two themselves.

A diplodocus leg bone and fossilized protoceratops eggs are part of the "In the Footsteps of Dinosaurs" exhibit housed on the lower level. It shares space there with the "People of the North" collection which features a giant polar bear and Inuit art depicting shamans and Arctic wildlife.

ICE AGE EXHIBIT— A family of moose in the Kingman Museum are impressive features of the museum's glacier era collection, which also includes a full sabre tooth tiger skeleton.

A Glacier Age family of moose greet visitors as they enter the museum. You'll learn that these largest members of the deer family can run 35 miles per hour and swim as fast as two men paddling a canoe. And there's a patch of moose fur to touch.

Skeletons of a sabre tooth tiger and dire wolf show how frightening these creatures must have been to people inhabiting Michigan some 10,000 years ago.

A Native American exhibit features a birch bark canoe and the opportunity to grind corn with a stone on a rock slab.

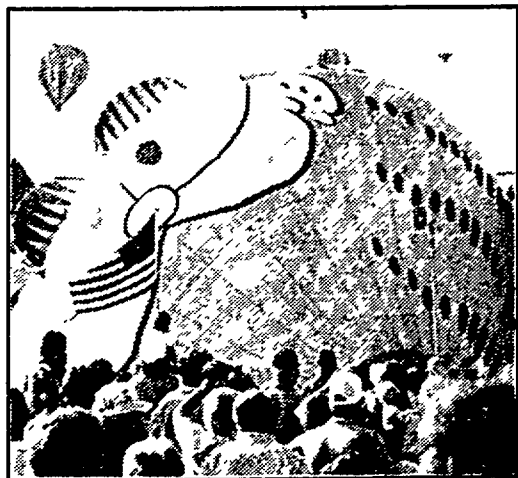

Microscopes provide a close up look at minerals, and young rock hounds will enjoy the luminous glow of calcite and fluorite when they are exposed to ultraviolet light.

The upstairs "Wonder of Life" hall explains human growth and development and teaches the workings of internal organs through Happy Harriet the Humble Human puzzle. There's a display of birds, another of skulls and a fossil hunt where children can search rocks for prehistoric life.

The Kingman Museum is located on the grounds of Leila Arboretum, 70 acres of rolling hills, botanical gardens and floral displays. Several picnic areas are scattered about the grounds.

Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children.

The Kingman Museum is on M-37 (West Michigan Avenue) in Battle Creek. From Interstate 94, exit north on I-194 to M-37 (Dickman Road) then west to the museum. Call 616-965-5117 for more information.

SPIRITS SOAR— Up to 200 specialty and competition balloons are expected to participate in the Battle Creek International Balloon Championship and Air Show July 4-11. Call 616-962-0592 for information about the festival, which includes a full-fledged air show, performances by the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds and a $50,000 fireworks display. Last year's event attracted more than 1 million spectators to view daily mass ascensions at 6:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m., weather permitting.

GREAT LAKES GETAWAY

Families are special at White Birch Lodge

Elk Rapids, Michigan—

For over 30 years, White Birch Lodge—a one-of-a-kind resort on beautiful Elk Lake in the Grand Traverse area—has specialized in stress-free and affordable family vacations. For a single fee, a family of any size can spend a week or more together during the summer and do nothing but relax and enjoy the comfort and beauty of their surroundings as well as great food and recreation.

White Birch Lodge is situated among the birches, maples and towering oaks on 50 acres along the northeast shore of Elk Lake, one of Michigan's largest inland bodies of water and one that stretches for nine miles before flowing into Grand Traverse Bay at the nearby port of Elk Rapids. The purity of its blue-green waters and sandy bottom make Elk Lake ideal for swimming and boating. It is also considered by experts as one of the best sailing lakes in the world.

For all these reasons and the fact that White Birch Lodge has 2,000 feet of sandy shoreline, waterfront activities are central to the resort's recreation program. Swimming, boating, waterskiing, windsurfing, sailing and tubing are all popular activities here. White Birch provides the equipment, and its well-trained staff run the ski boats, large sailboat and pontoon boat. Guests are free to take out the butterfly sailboats, sailboards, canoes and rowboats. Lessons are available in waterskiing, windsurfing and sailing; and safety is top priority throughout the program.

In addition to waterfront activities, White Birch also offers tennis, shuffleboard, horseshoes, volleyball, biking, softball and soccer. Games are organized by staff members, but there's plenty of time for guests to organize their own if they wish. One of the best features of the program is that guests can become involved as much or as little as they wish in organized activities. And many events are organized for kids, including sports, arts and crafts, storytime, movies and more—allowing parents to enjoy their own activities.

The Lodge's location in the heart of the Grand Traverse region makes it easy for guests to enjoy world-class golfing, shopping, deep-water fishing or sailing on the Bay, an afternoon of climbing the Sleeping Bear Sand Dunes, or even a quick trip to historic Mackinac Island. "While we have plenty to do here, we also offer a very relaxing environment where guests can find as much peace and quiet as they like," says resort manager Rick Conrad, whose family has owned and operated the Lodge since 1958.

Always a big hit with guests, breakfast, lunch and dinner are served up family style in the Lodge's spacious dining hall. The meals are known for their quality, variety and quantity, and guests have nothing to do but come and enjoy. The staff not only sets the tables and serves the meals, but they also clean up afterwards.

Lasting friendships are often formed among the families and staff members—during the meals, out on the lake or at the beach, the tennis courts, the ball fields, or perhaps around the campfire. According to Conrad, "It's a natural environment for this kind of interaction and most of our guests enjoy the friendly contact as much as anything else here. 'Where do you find such nice people?' is one of the questions we get asked a lot," he says.

In more than 30 years of continuous operation, White Birch has never advertised heavily. "Most of our advertising is word of mouth," claims office manager Shannon Saunders, "and our guests provide the best advertising of all." Although most guests come from the Great Lakes states, the word has spread around the country and even the world. In fact, last year's guests came from 19 different states and five foreign countries. What's even more remarkable is that typically 80 to 90 percent of the resort's guests return after their first vacation here. "A White Birch vacation has become a real family tradition for many of our guests," says Saunders, who adds that large family reunions are not uncommon here.

"We've heard it said that White Birch Lodge has the right combination for total relaxation," says Conrad. "After more than 30 years of working at it, we believe that our program offers the best family vacation in the Midwest!"

White Birch accommodations range from simple cottages and lodge rooms to townhouse apartments and new condominiums with all the amenities. Weekly rates range from $330 to $660 per person, depending on type of accommodations and time of summer. Although White Birch Lodge specializes in weekly summer vacations between Memorial Day and Labor Day, including a complete program of lodging, meals and activities, lodging without on-site meals and planned activities is available throughout the year as a convenient "home base" for enjoying the area's best golf, winter skiing, ice boating and other activities.

For more information or reservations, call Rick, Shannon or Julie at 616-264-8271 or 264-5823; or write to them at 571 Meguzee Point Road, Elk Rapids, Michigan 49629. A free brochure and videotape are available.

CANVAS CAN DO MIRACLES— White Birch Lodge guests can sail away their troubles on Elk Lake, rated as one of the top sailing lakes anywhere.

Building To Better Serve You

"Building to Better Serve You" is our theme as we undergo a major renovation at Zehnder's Bavarian Haus. We are adding 23 deluxe accommodations, featuring four spacious one bedroom suites and two handicapped rooms, to our current 114 room facility.

Our new natatorium will feature a 17'x42' lap pool, 18'x23' wading pool, and a 12'x12' jacuzzi; all intersected by elegant waterfalls.

To help you "stay fit" during your visit with us, we have added a steam sauna and exercise room, offering a variety of challenging health and fitness equipment.

Take a relaxing stroll in our beautiful new garden courtyard, featuring a 75'x100' pond, secluded seating area and a 12' high floating fountain.

Kids of all ages can entertain themselves in our game room.

Completion is scheduled for the spring of 1992, so make your plans now to come to our Haus.

Meetings & More!

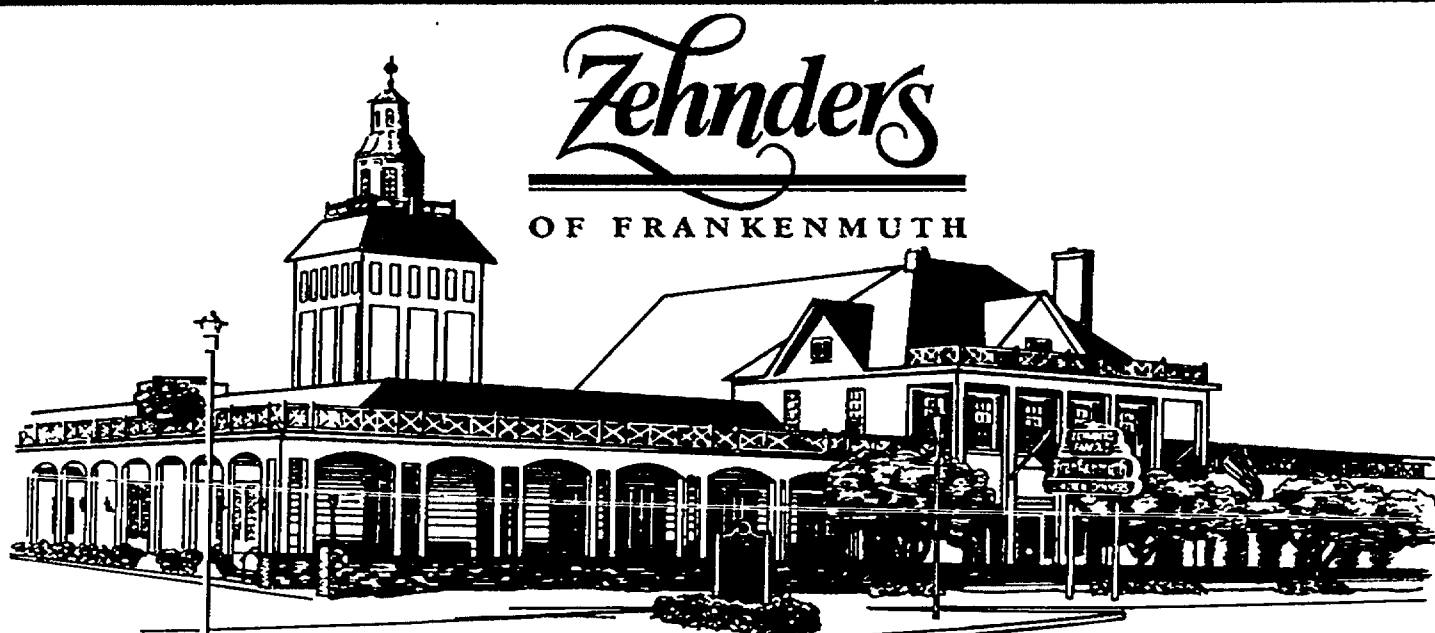

Versatility and flexibility are two key reasons why Zehnder's of Frankenmuth are attracting meetings, conferences, banquets and golf outings for groups from 4 to 400.

Whether it's a Fortune 500 company or a high school reunion, Zehnder's has the expertise to arrange all your planning needs.

Planning involves a simple phone call or a meeting with our sales staff and the event coordinator. We first decide on a date and how much space a group may need. Next on the planning list comes menu selection.

Groups frequently expect an event at Zehnder's to include our family style chicken dinner. Although it's our "signature" and most popular item, we have many other entrees available. Our chefs would be delighted to create innovative menus to meet a specific budget, or a preferred menu and then determine a price.

Bud Stewart: Alpena's artful angler

Dorothy Webster

There's a glint of mischief in the eyes of 80-year old Bud Stewart as he describes himself. "Heck, I'm just a bum," he says with candor and a smile. "I never held a regular job for long. I was too busy fishing and trying to make lures that would catch the big ones!"

He succeeded. Anglers throughout the Great Lakes hold world records with fish caught on Stewart lures, especially a pike lure called the "Hammer Handle."

The term refers to pike not big enough to keep, "hammer handles" that fishermen throw back, but that could also act as bait for the really big ones. Stewart specializes in lures that imitate crippled or wounded species big lunkers can't ignore.

"A big northern pike or muskie is nothing but a fresh-water shark,"

Stewart explains. "That's why I'm sold on crippled bait."

"A predator, even full of food, will kill anything if it's bleeding. It's his own mean reflex. But the bigger a fish is, the more cautious and smarter it is. A fisherman's got to make him lose that caution - make him madder than a hatter. If he sees something looking and acting crippled, he'll nail it."

Stewart was born in Vancouver, Canada, and his family moved to Michigan when Elman "Bud" was four years of age. They settled in the Flint area and truant officers soon came to know the youngster's favorite fishing spots along Swartz Creek.

Where his love for fishing came from, Stewart can't say. "My father and brothers weren't enthusiastic sportsmen," he muses.

But one day, as the youngster watched the water's surface, a pike snatched a duckling swimming nearby. Always anxious to catch bigger fish, he visited a bait store and tried to buy a lure that looked and acted like a little duck. The store's clerk laughed at him and said "Fish don't strike ducks!" But the 15-year-old knew what he'd seen. Later, he observed a muskie or pike nail a small muskrat and decided he'd make something himself.

even stuck feathers on them," he says in reminiscence. "I didn't have a great deal of luck," he adds ruefully.

Stewart's father died when he was 18, so the youngster worked nights at the public library and continued to go to high school part time, graduating when he was 20.

Hunting, fishing and trapping were his life. Eventually he became a hunting and fishing guide as well as a fur buyer. One day, when a child spotted a muskrat tail sticking out of his pocket, his nickname "Rat Man" was coined.

He started taking his lures to sporting goods stores and shows, selling baits and taking customer orders. Those early Stewart lures sometimes fetch up to $350 each from collectors today - when a fisherman will part with one, that is. Most don't. "If they catch fish, I keep it," one says. And Stewart lures do just that.

Some of the most popular ones include the "Crippled Wiggler", "Crippled Mouse", and the "Crippled Crab." Soon, he owned a company that employed 16 people and even paid housewives to paint the lures.

His wife, Doris, recalls those days. "At sports shows all over the country, the lures were selling so fast that some of the workers and I would sit in the balcony above Bud, putting together lures and letting them down on a string. After he'd sell out, he'd take orders for more."

Stewart says he was the first angler to use tanks of water at sports shows to demonstrate the action of his lures. "Others copied the idea, but I was first," he comments.

Those early lures are remarkable for their wet and glossy appearance. Stewart applied color over color, mixing them to create fluid-looking spots to imitate a live minnow swimming underwater. Later ice-fishing decoys achieved the same high finish and bring up to $2500 today from avid collectors.

In his tradition of solidly researched knowledge, Stewart lures and decoys act naturally in motion. "I believe in nothing artificial," insists Stewart.

"There are lots of companies out there making broomhandles, door knobs and monstrosities. They put a special name on it, a big eye, and some fisherman will buy it. I try to refine baits until the fish doesn't see anything artificial."

Spending hundreds of hours, belly-down, watching fish, Stewart made and discarded "probably 10,000 lures." Testing each in local lakes and streams in the Fenton area, Stewart insisted that each finished design move in the water like the species of bait he was trying to depict. It's that dedication to detail and accuracy that has brought him to the forefront of the angling world.

In those early days, it was a mistake that made a breakthrough. "I didn't mean to, but I cut the head off one of the mouse baits I was making and decided to paint it with red paint to make it look wounded," he recalls.

It attracted fish, so Stewart made other crippled species - minnows, crabs, wigglers and crippled frogs. He also made crippled fish decoys for ice-fishing as well - including frogs with missing legs. His fish decoys included pike, perch, trout, suckers, frogs, turtles, muskrats and even a 30-inch sturgeon.

Stewart explains the action of his wounded minnow lures: "They lie on their side, just like a real wounded minnow would. When the fisherman jerks the line, the bait looks like it's trying to correct itself. I put on little spoons so that when it moves, it looks like it's struggling and vulnerable. A fish can't resist it!"

Naturally shy, Stewart perfected his sports show patter so well that even in conversation today, he launches into it naturally. "This bait floats. I repeat it does not sink or float to the surface, but remains at the depth you feel it. A minnow swimming along floating or stopping -- does he float or sink? No. He remains stationary. Whoever heard of a lure so alive!"

The secret to a realistic looking and acting lure, Stewart says, is that its action be true when it's reeled in slowly.

Since retiring and moving north in 1980, Bud Stewart has been inducted into the National Freshwater Fishing Hall of Fame, honored by the Smithsonian Institution at the 21st Annual Festival of American Folklife in Washington, D.C., and was named a 1986 recipient of the Michigan Heritage Award in recognition of his contributions to the state's cultural heritage in its Sesquicentennial year.

In 1984, Stewart was one of the first four inductees accepted by unanimous vote to the National Fishing Lure Collectors Club Honorary Members Program, which recognizes individuals still living who were a major part of the pre-1960 fresh and salt water tackle industry.

Two Michigan lure collectors, Frank R. Baron of Livonia and Raymond L. Carver of Marshall, produced a book on the life, lures and words of Bud Stewart. The volume, originally selling for $87.50, now fetches over $100. (Contact Carver at 1-616-781-5668 for information). Bud Stewart: Michigan's Legendary Lure Maker has 227 pages, including over 500 color illustrations of lures and decoys - a history of the lure-makers production from age 15.

Today, Stewart and Doris live in a comfortable home on the banks of the Thunder Bay River, with nesting spots for birds all around. He works in one part of the house and in an added garage which boasts an huge attic storehouse for reference materials - invaluable to a man of many talents.

He still carves and paints, but these days his products go to a collectors club and none are sold to the public. Still actively testing and perfecting lures, Stewart fishes and traps. "I need the muskrat fur for my special baby muskrat lure," he says, showing the accurately made fooler.

This "fooler of fish" still fishes through the ice on nearby Fletcher Floodwaters and keeps a shanty there. At age 80, he's active and full of mischief. His sense of humor is evident everywhere - in the frog garden alongside the house, where concrete frogs abound, in the frog bookends and ashtrays around the house, and in his words...

"Did you hear about the two guys who went ice fishing, but by the time they chopped a hole in the ice big enough for their boat they were too tired to fish?"

One cannot imagine Bud Stewart too tired to fish. He's a man that will fish anytime, anywhere - and consider how to make a lure that will attract an even larger quarry.

Dorothy Webster, a former newspaper and magazine publisher, lives in northern lower Michigan. An artist and photographer, she records out-of-the-way buildings and scenes.

B & B is close by acres of treasures

Shipshewana, Indiana—

Old Carriage Inn is a bed and breakfast bargain hunters will love. It's within shouting distance of the famous Shipshewana Flea Market and, at around $50 per night, the room rates are reasonable too.

You can hear the chanting of the flea market auctioneers from any of the eight guest rooms in the converted carriage house, or from three guest rooms in the adjacent modern ranch home. And it's the closest lodging to the acres of treasures waiting to be unearthed by the thousands who flock to the flea market each week.

Owner Art Oswald has transformed the hip roof structure into a B & B while retaining much of its former character. Barn siding graces the walls; pine blanket chests and hickory rocking chairs reflect the area's simple Amish ways.

The inn's country quilts were purchased locally (this is quilt country). Guests can get a close-up look at quilting techniques every evening when Evelyn Oswald ("Aunt Lena" to Shipshewana natives) goes to work on her latest creations. She'll be happy to answer quilting questions and part with a few tips.

The inn offers special packages which include a tour of the Menno-Hof Visitor's Center where Amish history is recounted, discounts at selected Shipshewana gift shops and dinner in an Amish home.

A continental breakfast is included in the price of a room. Call 800-435-0888 or 219-768-7217 for reservation information.

Old Carriage Inn is located at 140 Farver St. on Shipshewana's south side. It's close to all of the town's attractions: county craft shops, quilting supply stores, hand-crafted furniture outlets and much more.

Shipshewana is just south of Interstate 80-90. Exit at State Road 13 or State Road 9 and follow the directional signs.

SIMPLE WAYS— Barn siding, a bent wood rocker and a pine chest at the Old Carriage Inn reflect the unadorned style prevalent in the area.

Shipshewana, Indiana—

A display of more than 200 Amish quilts and an appearance by renowned folk artist Will Moses are two of the top attractions at the Shipshewana Mayfest May 1-2.

Merchants in this Amish community will present "down home" activities ranging from traditional maypole dances to free horse-drawn tram rides. Quilting, sewing, rug hooking and furniture making demonstrations are also scheduled. Call 219-768-4227 for sites and times.

The Menno-Hof
Mennonite-Amish Visitors Center

plans a special showing of the full length movie The Radicals, the true story of the early Anabaptist leaders at 7:30 p.m. May 1.

Shipshewana's village park will be the site for demonstrations of traditional crafts on Friday evening and all day Saturday. Basket weaving, wool spinning, knitting and doll making are some of the crafts on display.

Shipshewana is located in northeast Indiana, just south of Interstate 80-90. Exit at State Route 13 or 9 and follow the directional signs to Shipshewana.

Island hop all day

Sandusky, Ohio—

You needn't travel to the Caribbean for an island hopping cruise. The Goodtime I passenger vessel is built for ocean travel but plies the waters off Sandusky, Ohio.

Departing from the Jackson Street Dock, the Goodtime I offers a 40-mile all day sightseeing cruise to Lake Erie islands with liberal stopovers at both Kelleys Island and Put-In-Bay. Other ports of call include Catawba, Marblehead, Middle Bass and Johnson's islands.

Passengers can take a leisurely tour of Kelleys Island gift shops, the caves and winery at historic Put-In-Bay, and enjoy the libations at the Beer Barrel Saloon, home of the world's longest bar.

The all-steel Goodtime I can carry 354 passengers with table seating for 150 and features full bar service, dance floor and live entertainment. An optional on-board buffet is available for groups of 30 or more.

Starting Memorial Day weekend through Labor Day, the Goodtime I departs daily at 9:30 a.m. and returns at 6:30 p.m. Early spring and early fall cruises are also available.

Rates are $19.95 for adults, $17.95 for seniors 60 and older, $9.95 for children 4-12. Group rates are available.

Monster pasty awaits diners

St. Ignace, Michigan—

Peel and dice 150 pounds of potatoes, add 50 pounds of onions, 121 pounds of ground rutabaga, 50 pounds of beef, 24 pounds of dough and what do you get?

The world's largest pasty, of course, along with a Memorial Day weekend tradition around these parts.

The sixth annual World's Largest Pasty Bake is set for Sunday, May 24 at Paul Bunyan Pasties, west of St. Ignace on US-2. Veteran pasty chef Bill Ogle concocted a monster 213-pound pasty in one of the early years of the event, and this year's creation may top that world record weight.

Hungry spectators are invited to taste test the giant pasty at 3 p.m., after it's hauled to the scales by a pickup truck. Free beverages are supplied to help wash down the gargantuan meat pie. Pasty eating contests in several age categories serve as a warm up to the festivities.

Tip of the Thumb's welcome port of call

Julie Candler

Allan Hayes

It's a clear, blustery August day on Lake Huron as our single-hulled Hobie-33, Tiller Grin, speeds into the harbor at Port Austin. It's a charming little port town wedged under Michigan's Thumbnail.

The wind has moved to the north of west and has a distinct cooling effect, so we're wearing jackets despite the bright sunshine. We ride a surging roller around the flashing red light at the end of the big breakwater. Now we're in its lee, and we start taking in sail as we follow the channel markers toward the Port Austin State Docks. It's so rough out there today that a lot of boaters, like us, have come in for shelter.

That's one of the fine moments on the water---to come into port, and tie up and tidy up and relax while the wind howls and the seas continue to roll---out there.

Other pleasures you can enjoy once you're docked at Port Austin are the companionship of other boat-and-fishing people, and finding good places to eat, shop, relax over a beverage, fish or watch the sunset. It's a favorite stopping place of ours.

We chat with Molly Sheehan, the DNR dock attendant. She tells us, "It can get pretty rough out there sometimes." She recalls a recent day when only one boat arrived, a powerboat that took six hours to cross Saginaw Bay from East Tawas.

"You meet friendly people on these docks," Sheehan says. "Most of them stay overnight on their boats. Many of them are regulars. Some are from the Detroit area. We get a lot of families. Often they're people who are travelling, and are stopping here on their way to somewhere else."

For dining, Sheehan reports, many boating visitors like The Bank. It serves well-recommended food on both floors of a quaint, historic building that once housed a working bank. That was back in the days when Port Austin was a thriving lumber town. The Bank (closed on Mondays) is on the main drag, Lake Street, in the heart of Port Austin's small shopping community and a short walk from the docks.

Visitors also like to eat at the Garfield Inn, according to Sheehan. We heard the Garfield's food praised by others. The staff serves meals in the elegant atmosphere of a beautifully-restored old Victorian home. It was visited by James Garfield himself, before he became president. The Garfield (closed Tuesdays) is at 8544 Lake Street and also offers six bedrooms for bed and breakfast.

The beautifully carved hardwood bar in a separate, cozy room at the Garfield is "a neat little drinking spot,"

TAKING R&R— Mark Rogers of North Branch, Michigan find the bridge of a boat an ideal place to relax after cruising into the State Docks at Port Austin, Michigan.

FAMILY FUN SPOT— The State Docks at Port Austin is the the meeting place for boating and fishing families. It's within easy walking distance of dining and shopping spots.

according to our friend John Breitmeyer, who vacations nearby at Pointe aux Barques, and is a connoisseur.

We visit with other boaters along the Port Austin docks. Aboard the Stubborn Dutchman, an aft-cabin Sea Ray 360, Dave Heyboer and his wife Sandy are relaxing with their two boys, ages 8 and 10. From their home base at Port Huron, the boys love cruising with their parents to Port Austin and other northern destinations.

The Heyboers know the area, and tell us about the farm that's been in their family for more than 100 years. It's about two and a half miles from the dock.

They recommend Chuck and Jane's, a family-style eatery at 8714 Lake Street, as a good place to bring children. (Family-style, according to John Breitmeyer, means dry eating.)

Sitting on the bridge of a 24-foot Sea Ray, Mark Rogers of North Branch greets us. He and seven friends have trailered two boats here and launched them. Now, with four people per boat, they are spending a relaxing weekend. Someone in their party recommends the pizza at My Brother's Place, affectionately known as "Brother's", also nearby on Lake Street. We hear other boaters make the same recommendation, so we figure it must be good.

Another spot popular with boaters is Lee's Landing Tavern and Game Room, next door to Brother's. Lee's Landing offers carry-out service for its hamburgers, chili and homemade soup, as well as local fishing information.

"The fishing is great," report two boating couples we meet at Chet's Boat Livery, next door to Eagles Marina on Bird Creek near the State Docks. The couples are George and Carmen Detkowski of Marlette, and Doug and Cindy Robinson of Columbiaville, and six-year old son Tony. They like the swimming beach at Bird Creek County Park, which they can get to by water. They anchor and swim off their boats, 26-foot and 27-foot Sea Rays, respectively. They also like to swim at Port Crescent Day State Park, on Saginaw Bay about four miles west of Port Austin on Route 25.

But fishing is their big activity up here. They catch walleye, salmon, lake trout and perch.

We drive to Grindstone City, about five miles east of Port Austin, to look at boating facilities there. We talk to Kerm Filion, who runs the Harbor Marina along with his wife, Judi. The depth of the recently-dredged channel into its inner harbor is about five feet, according to Kerm Filion. Most of the vessels tied up there are small fishing and sailboats.

The Filions sell sandwiches as well as fishing and offshore tackle, bait, minnows, and a special 2-hook crawler harness of original manufacture, for walleye.

"The fishing starts in May with chinook salmon," says Filion, who has been fishing up here for 18 years. "When the smelt start running the salmon feed on them. Lake trout are held by reefs, which are their natural habitat. The trout feed on smelt and scalpin, and are usually strong from the first of May through Labor Day. For perch, the end of August through September is the best time."

It's early September of '91 when Filion reports, "The fishing was great this year because of the hot weather. The walleye are just going out. We had a fantastic six weeks. People were coming with small boats from all over the Great Lakes. Anybody can fish them. It's a family-oriented type of fishing, with a limit of five. Look for the walleye season from mid-July to the end of August---maybe longer in the future."

If you aren't equipped for fishing, you can hitch a ride aboard Miss Port Austin, a perch boat operated by Captain Fred Davis from May through September. He and co-pilot, Pat, whose fishing reports to J. P. McCarthy are heard frequently on WJR radio, take more than 20 persons on perch fishing trips. Their vessel is outfitted with a scientific color video fish finder. It practically eliminates the possibility you'll return without having had a nibble.

Miss Port Austin and her trained crew provide the bait free and will rent you a rod for $1. They usually leave from the State Docks twice daily. For a schedule of prices, times and reservations, call (517) 738-5271.

The latest in scientific equipment is also used by the charter fishing boats that any private group can hire at both Grindstone City and Port Austin. You can find names and phone numbers of the captains in local yellow pages, or in the "Michigan Outdoor Guide" produced annually by the Detroit Free Press sports staff.

We reaped the rewards of a charter fishing expedition a few years ago when three of the men in our family spent a day on a charter fishing boat out of Grindstone City. We waited with nine other family members back at a nearby cottage. As an act of faith, Allan built a charcoal fire in the grille.

A hungry group welcomed the fishermen when they rolled in about 9 p.m. with 62 pounds of fresh-caught fish, including king salmon, coho salmon and lake trout. It was the most marvelous fish feast we ever experienced. We froze the rest, and enjoyed it for the rest of the winter.

If you're heading for Port Austin, you can use Waterproof Chart #74, available from International Sailing Supply, 320 Cross Street, Punta Gorda FL 33950, and at most marinas. The area is also covered by NOAA chart number 14863.

If you plan to go boating in this area, beware of the dangerous and rocky shoals both east and west of Port Austin, and always be sure of where you are in relation to these hazards. If you're not careful, you won't be able to enjoy the wonderful feeling of lounging on your boat dockside while the winds howl and the waves roll---out there.

Charlevoix: This classic resort town is simply spectacular in summer

Charlevoix, Michigan—

Charlevoix in summer offers visitors of all ages activities and excitement enough to last the whole season long. Maybe that's why for generations many families have chosen to spend their entire summer in this classic resort town.

Located on Lake Michigan between Traverse City and Michigan's famous Mackinac Bridge, Charlevoix is large enough to have a choice of lodging facilities, restaurants and shops, yet small enough to offer the warmth and hospitality for which it is known.

Whether staying a night or the season, visitors have a choice of visiting four public beaches, attending the concerts in the park (three times weekly during the summer) or participating in a host of other activities going on in the quaint community.

The hardest part is deciding which activity to indulge yourself in.

Surrounded by water, Charlevoix is a boating haven with one of the most popular harbors in the Great Lakes.

Sailboats including an 85-foot schooner "Appledore" are available for two-hour cruises or charter, and the 56-foot double deck tour boat "Miss Charlevoix" beckons visitors who wish to view the many sites on Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix from the water. Fishing is a popular pastime also, with Lake Trout, Salmon and Steelhead the most popular catch of the anglers.

For those who like to keep their feet on the ground, one of the most popular activities is simply walking around town. Quaint shops and restaurants, historical highlights and the unique architecture of the "mushroom houses" and huge estates keep the walker's eyes open. And the fragrance and sight of the 50,000 petunias planted along each side of the main thoroughfare add to the pleasure of any walking tour.

The choice of lodging in Charlevoix is also impressive. From motel rooms to condominium suites with fireplaces and jacuzzis, visitors will find accommodations to fit their tastes and their budgets.

Groups from all over the state perform at the many festivals held in Charlevoix each summer.

Another feature which attracts visitors to Charlevoix is its location in Northwest Michigan. The town is smack in the middle of Michigan's "gold coast," approximately 50 miles north of Traverse City and 65 miles south of Mackinac.

Golfers will find themselves just minutes away from the area's classic courses, including those at Boyne Country and Shanty Creek/Schuss resorts. And one-day excursions from Charlevoix lead to Mackinac Island, Petoskey's Gaslight District, the Cross at Indian River, Interlochen Arts Academy and International Music Camp, and scores of other scenic highpoints.

Whether staying a day, a week or a season, Charlevoix visitors usually depart reluctantly, and almost always have plans to return. Charlevoix...folks there say that land and water couldn't have picked a better place to meet.

what's going on in the tourist trade. It's a bit like a family reunion, where you greet old friends, meet new ones, retell old stories, rehash old conflicts and find out what's new.

Most Great Lakes states have annual tourism conferences. Michigan had its conference this spring at the Amway Hotel in Grand Rapids: the Ninth Annual Governor's Conference on Tourism.

If Governor John Engler had been there he would have hastened to tell you that no tax money is used to finance this conference; it is financed by conference registrations and private sponsors.

The Guv wasn't there. He was so exhausted from cutting budgets that he went off somewhere to rest and sent Lieutenant Governor Connie Binsfield in his place. Everybody loves Connie, so it was a popular choice.

You probably don't care a hoot about the things professionals talk about: will there be money for research, should the state advertise in England, should more money go to the promotion of the Upper Peninsula?

You would have enjoyed the Wally Bronner Billboard Show that goes on every year. Bronner uses billboards to attract customers to Bronner's Christmas Decorations in Frankenmuth and he has been trying for years to get the state to do the same.

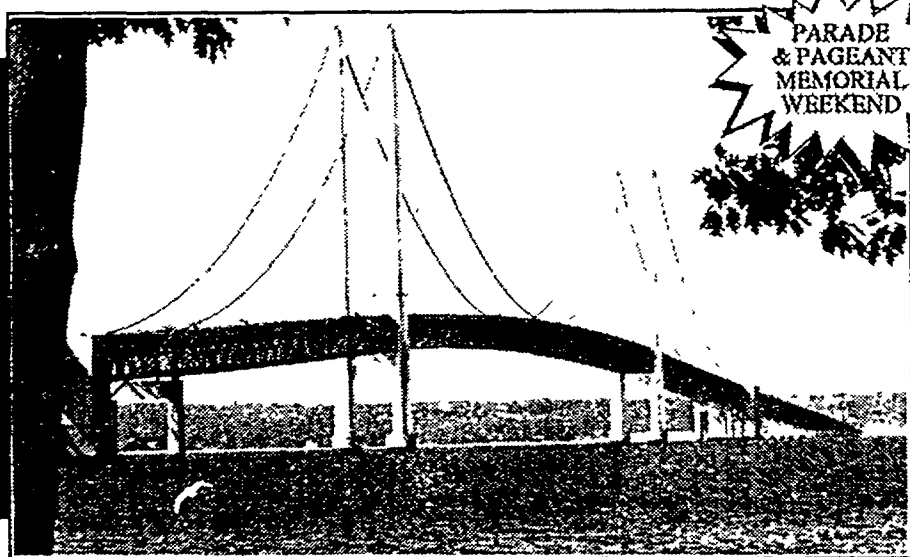

If you see a billboard advertising Michigan on an expressway in Ohio or Indiana you will know that the state finally took Wally up on his offer to pay for one free billboard on your behalf. Meantime, we all enjoy placing bets on when the subject will come up again.

You should care about what drastic budget cuts have done to state tourism and what the recession has done to the travel business, because it does affect you.

In the 1980s you could call one of four regional tourist offices for information, privately organized but coordinated statewide. Now that East Michigan and Southwest Michigan bureaus are gone, only the West Michigan Tourist Assn. (WMTA) and the Upper Peninsula Recreation and Tourist Assn. (UPTRA) remain.

There used to be state money to ✓ Pull up a green wicker rocker and a tall, cool beverage, and sit on the porch at Stafford's Perry Hotel. Notice how relaxed you feel? Decide to stay overnight, so you can enjoy more of the lakeshore area. The Perry has a $63 per night, per person (dbl), "Great Things" package including lodging, dinner, and a full breakfast. Go for it!

✓ Order a leisurely breakfast so you can sit by our panoramic dining room window. After breakfast, shop Petoskey's Gaslight District, with its collection of 80 shops, galleries, and restaurants. You don't even have to move your car.

✓ Call the Perry kitchen and ask for a picnic lunch. Take a wild-flower tour. Look for rare iris, lady's slippers, trilliums, trailing arbutus.

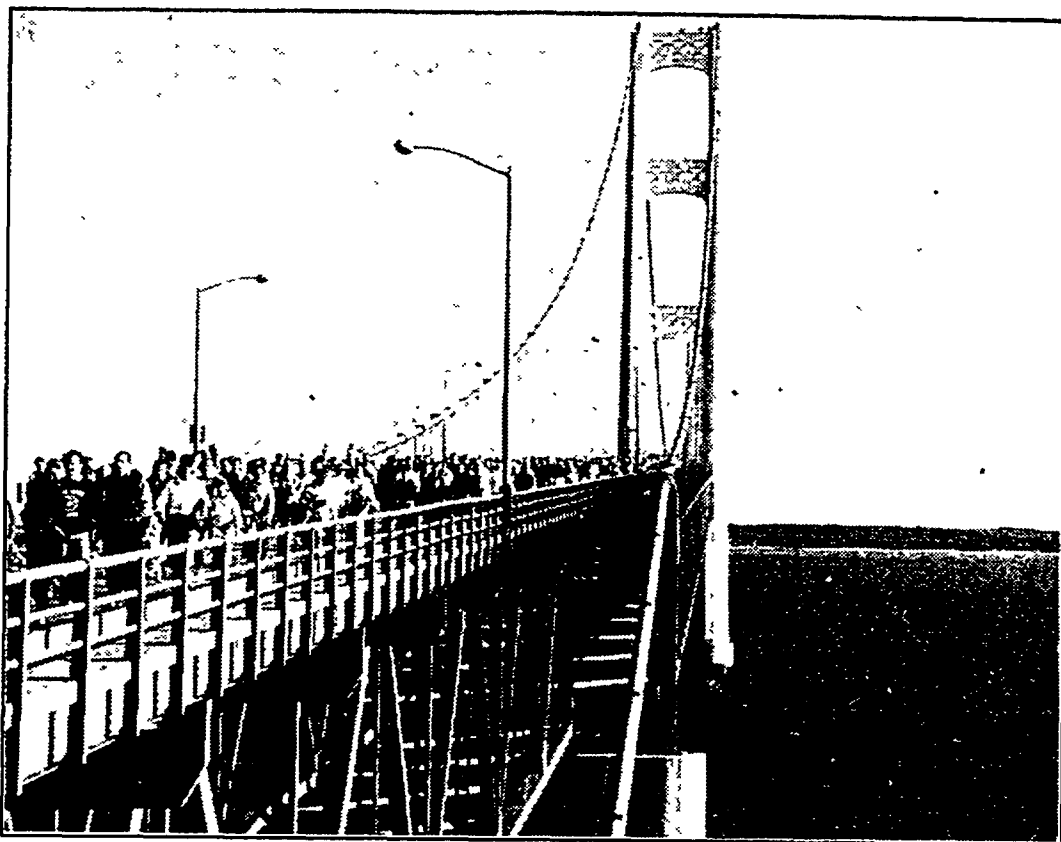

✓ Search out an artist's studio. Rent a canoe. Ride a bike. Drive scenic M-119, the winding drive that skirts the bluffs along the Lake Michigan shoreline. It's known as the "tunnel of trees"; you'll see why.

✓ Hunt for the wily morel, Michigan's richly flavored wild mushroom. If you can't find any on our hundreds of acres of state land, go to American Spoon Foods and take home the dried variety.

TOMORROW'S #1 INDUSTRY?— Tourism may supplant auto production as Michigan's top industry, but state funds to promote tourism are dwindling.

print literature, fishing and bed-and-breakfast booklets. Some are still published privately, the rest are gone.

We promote Michigan outstate, especially in Chicago, but when you or your Chicago counterparts call the Michigan Travel Bureau the line is too often busy.

Small things? Not when you count the money that tourism brings into Michigan and the state tax dollars it replaces. Autos may be our most saleable product, but tourism and agriculture fight for second place.

So what are we doing about it? First of all, what are you doing about it? As Art Ellis, director of the Department of Commerce said, the legislators have no idea how budget cuts affect travelers and if you don't tell them, nobody will.

Ellis announced the appointment of a new state tourism director, and a new advertising agency, but what will affect you more directly is a proposed new telephone system. The state processed more than half a million inquiries in 1991, 41 percent by phone. Those 200 to 2500 calls a day brought in $31.4 million, but 270,000 callers got a busy signal and another 100,000 left a message but not an address.

Michigan works on the assumption that travelers who come here once will come back, so that could be a lot of lost revenue.

Conference speakers love demographics. The one repeated most often this year is that the oldest baby boomers turned 45 years old in 1991. I like the psychographics I heard from WMTA President Gary Fischer:

"We are talking about a generation that grew up in discount stores and never paid full price for anything. They understand value better than any other generation."

The splendors of Michigan are a great value for travelers, especially in a recession year. Every city tourist bureau and private travel business at the conference was eager to give you the best possible value for your money.

The best news I heard however isn't very sexy. It's about roads. Ours have been falling apart for years. Congress has passed a massive bill that will mean a billion dollars for Michigan roads over the next few years.

That means upgrading local roads, rebuilding expressways, building beltways around some cities, upgrading airports. In the long run that will make more difference to travelers than almost anything else.

Fix the roads and answer the phones and anything can happen.

That sums up the elegant real estate offerings at Garland, northern Michigan's luxury four-season recreational and corporate retreat.

The new Garland Woods golf course, scheduled for 1993 opening, will add another 18 challenging holes to the resort's existing 63. In conjunction with the construction of Garland Woods, single family two bedroom condominium units are being offered. Construction of the first model will begin this spring and will be priced in the $125,000 range.

Garland condos feature handcrafted logs, cut field stone, oak trim and spacious cathedral ceilings, and are designed to offer an unmatched rustic elegance.

Single family home sites are being offered throughout the Garland Woods course, priced at $28,000 to $38,000. New homes can be built of wood or log construction in the Garland tradition.

Garland Woods is located on the west side of County Road 489, opposite the main entrance to the resort.

NEW HEIGHTS— Spacious cathedral ceilings and arched windows are hallmarks of Garland home design.

Plans are being finalized for the new Garland Village and Village Condominiums. The Village will consist of several retail shops, services and boutiques, blended with condos and placed among Garland's 3000 acres of forest, hills, valleys, ponds and streams.

All Garland real estate purchases include life-time golf membership for the buyer, spouse, and children up to age 22.

Garland's existing condominium projects, begun last year, continue to progress.

Garland North Estates has a large log home under construction and plans are being completed for several more homes with start dates set for this spring and summer. Garland North lots, one to three acres with approximately 200 feet of golf course frontage, are priced in the $40,000 to $89,000 range.

The Garland West condominium project has two buildings complete with the construction of two additional buildings set to begin this spring and summer. These $115,000 one-bedroom and $178,000 two-bedroom units are located on Reflections golf course, nestled in tall trees and tastefully landscaped. Garland West features a private entrance and paved roads.

A new concept of shared ownership at Garland, corporate partnership retreats, is offered at Garland Hills. Two executive log homes, designed for use for corporate retreats, conferences and entertaining, are available. Located on the 2nd fairway of Reflections, the two-bedroom home is priced at $250,000 and the three-bedroom home at $300,000. Additional building lots are available at $50,000 each. Purchase includes Garland golf membership.

Call 800-968-0042, Ext. 466, for Garland real estate information.

In addition to 63 holes of championship golf, the resort features 50 kilometers of wide groomed cross country ski trails, world class dining, hiking and biking trails, health spa and on-site fishing.

Garland is located southeast of Gaylord near Lewiston, about 200 miles from Detroit, 325 miles from Chicago, 186 miles from Grand Rapids and 289 miles from Toledo. Garland's private paved runway is available to guests who are pilots.

RUSTIC ELEGANCE— Garland real estate offerings include cluster condominium homes, detached condos and building sites.

Getaway PROPERTY

(Great Lakes Getaway likes to poke around, out of editorial curiosity, to see what's available on the travel and leisure real estate market. We have no stake in the sale whatsoever, and would refuse it if offered.)

Sandusky, Ohio—

The Harbour, a luxurious 110-acre residential community, offers all the seasonal drama, rugged adventure and hypnotic beauty of the Great Lakes.

It hugs the sheltered shores of western Lake Erie near Sandusky, Ohio. On the bay, just minutes from the open lake, it is a boater, fisherman and water lover's paradise, set against a backdrop of natural beauty.

The Harbour offers amenities to satisfy the most discerning: full-service marina with slips accommodating boats to 48 feet; private clubhouse; magnificent swimming pools; tennis courts; whirlpool and sauna; gate house security; private walkway; and a waterfront restaurant.

This award-winning community—with its distinctive architecture reminiscent of Nantucket Island—offers many luxurious alternatives. Each condominium features a panoramic view of The Harbour's scenic waterways and Sandusky Bay.

Homes range from luxury boathouses and villas, to sunny townhouses and unique single story residences. Features include spacious living areas, designer kitchens, large baths, expansive private decks, charming master suites, custom cabinetry, enclosed laundry areas and generous walk-in closets.

Approximate price ranges are: Marina Tower one and two bedroom homes, $100,000–$132,000; Harbour

Point two bedroom homes with boat slip, $155,000; Marina View Townhouses two bedroom homes with family room and garage, $228,000; Villa Townhouse two bedroom townhomes with garage, $140,000; Island Townhouses three bedroom homes with garage and boat slip, $265,000–$270,000; Island Villas homes with boat slip, $160,000–$180,000.

Call 800-327-9211 or 419-626-9696 for marketing information.

Architecturally, The Harbour has had a significant impact on the Lake Erie skyline. Cedar siding, wrap-around balconies, boardwalks—all highlighted with white trim and dramatic room lines—create the aura of an old fashioned New England seaside village. The development received Builder's Magazine Award for design excellence.

The Harbour was also recognized by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources for the construction of a 94-acre wetland which was developed to replace 10 acres of natural marshlands eliminated during site preparation.

Adjacent to The Harbour residential development is the Radisson Harbour Inn Hotel and Conference Center featuring 234 rooms with meeting and conference facilities, restaurants and lounges. Also near are golf courses, wildlife refuges, museums, theaters and Cedar Point Amusement Park. Lake Erie's Middle Bass, Put-In-Bay and Kelleys Islands are just out the waterway.

The Harbour is located just off US-6 in Sandusky, 109 miles from Detroit, 145 miles from Fort Wayne, 50 miles from Toledo.

jaws clamp down on a meal it is less inclined to let loose. Which makes for some real excitement for those, like Fritz, who catch them.

Good steelhead catches will range from five to 12 pounds. They tend to be smaller in the Sturgeon than in the Bear, perhaps because Lake Michigan is a bigger "base lake" than is Burt Lake. Generally, unless they've lived in the river much of the winter, steelhead begin moving into our rivers in late March when an ice cap still covers the lake. Fishing closer to the lake mouth tends to be better than further upstream. It is not uncommon to see anglers fishing from snowcovered river banks as well as from the lip of ice at the mouth of the river. Few fishermen here wade.

Although fishermen use a variety of steelhead baits--flies, fluorescent yarn and brightly colored artificial lures--most in this area, like Fritz Sumerix, prefer spawn (the eggs of salmon) wrapped in tiny silk, nylon, or netting packets. The packet may be no larger than a half-inch in diameter. A closed packet, containing eight to ten eggs, is attached to the hook, with three sinker shots attached to the line 18 inches above the hook. If the current is especially swift the sinker weight may be increased. Sumerix prefers a small hook, about a No. 6, with a straight shank.

Nothing is more essential to catching steelhead than keeping the hook razor sharp, emphasizes Sumerix. He carries a stone to sharpen the barb, which is attached directly to the spawn packet.

Unlike summertime rainbow, steelhead rarely strike hard. "I think that's because they are more interested in reproducing than in eating," explains Sumerix. "Most of the time you may feel a little 'tunk,' not much more. Sometimes you don't feel anything, and it's not until you start reeling in that you know there's a fighter on the line. Once you've set the hook, look out! These babies really put up a battle. Less than 80 percent of the fish that take my bait actually make it to the creel."

Like most trout fishing, Sumerix looks for the deeper holes where gamefish can relax in moderate currents. He looks also for obstacles in the water. Fish like them because any obstacle slows the water flow. To illustrate the importance of these obstacles, Sumerix suggests you put a hand in the water. "Feel the current working against your hand. Now place another hand just behind the first. The pressure against the second hand isn't nearly as great. Same goes for obstacles in the river. Fish look for them and the moderate flows below them. Get your bait into one of these 'moderate flow' areas next to an obstacle--a rock, a log jam or a sand wedge--and you're more apt to catch a fish. Of course, you're also more likely to catch a snag. Good fishermen will tell you the more you feed the snags, the better chance you have in catching a fish. So bring a lot of bait; snags are hungrier than steelhead."

Sumerix takes his eggs from salmon he catches in the fall. He freezes the eggs for use when he makes up the packets used for steelheading.

When Sumerix approaches a hole, he does so with care. He knows any gamefish, including steelhead, is alerted by vibrations underfoot. "The word is quiet," he emphasizes. "Don't stomp around on the bank, clank gear, or flash shadows in the water. Trout scare easily."

Another vitally important part of steelhead fishing is the water temperature. A two-degree change, says Sumerix, can spell the difference between success or failure. Trout, like bass, have very specific preferences. Other species are contented in wider temperature ranges.

"Most times, I wait for those days when the temperature is rising. My best fishing occurs in the morning, but I'll fish any time."

He uses an open face, medium reel with six to 10 pound test line.

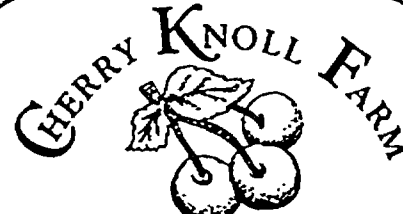

Sumerix tosses his bait into a current letting it drift over the hole where the fish tend to wait and relax. "Pulling it across the hole fights the current and means the bait will ride higher in the water, too high to coax a lazy, relaxing fish to climb for it. Better to put it right in front of its nose; there it's curiosity or annoyance as much as it is hunger that motivate the fish."

Fishing in Northern Michigan tends to gang up on us. Unless you're a Fritz Sumerix, anglers tend to abandon open water fishing until early spring. Steelheading, of course, starts early in our rivers and stays around until almost summer. But generally, about half way through April, anglers on our rivers start turning their attention from steelhead to sucker fishing. And those who aren't suckering are busy smelting. By the time the exciting sucker run quiets, it's the last Saturday in April and trout streams everywhere open.

And, oh, my, two weeks later it's walleye time and a smidgeon later it's the bass opener.

The Balkonbau

Statesman

A delightful difference—Bay-Wood Bavarian & Rustic Styled Homes. With nineteen models to choose from, there's a home to fit each dream or budget. Floor plan selection is further enhanced by custom tailored alterations—our specialty.

Pre-assembled wall sections, balconies, staircases, balusters, and scalloped fascia, plus computer engineered roof trusses offer big savings in total cost for all Bay-Wood homes. Complete step-by-step plans make erection simple and easy to follow.

Single story, 1½ story, and 2 story homes are available in both Bavarian and Conventional styles in a variety of floor plans and prices. All homes are designed to meet or exceed ALL STATE code requirements.

Clip the coupon today and send for price and model literature. Let US answer those permanent home questions you been asking yourself.

Hours 8 to 5 Weekdays; Sat. 9 to 5 by Appointment.

Build it yourself or let our professional crews build it.

HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Clark

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Don't vent your anger on friends and loved ones. They care for you, but will not accept abusive treatment. Look for good news soon.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

A problem may resolve itself in your favor. Job opportunities will open for you, but don't jump at the first thing to come your way.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

You may wonder where your sense of humor has gone. Find the humor around you and don't take yourself so seriously.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)

A work-related issue or problem could snowball if not handled carefully. Take a break, even if it's just 15 minutes long. Relax now or pay later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)

You'll be running the gamut of emotions. Things that usually anger you will bring you joy instead. Try to appreciate this temporary change.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

You could be ready to express your innovative ideas to a friend, boss or co-worker. Be prepared for several surprises, especially from relatives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)

Don't press too hard or take too much for granted. The results could be embarrassing. Financial news could make you re-evaluate your life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)

You may be right regarding a certain situation, but you will make things worse by bragging. A friendship could be in trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

A very important person will cause big changes in your life. Plan ahead as much as possible and be ready for opportunities coming your way.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)

This is a very busy time for you and some days will have you feeling worn out. Enlist the help of others. They may be more willing than you think.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

You are going to receive some news that will have you jumping up and down with joy. Share your happiness with those closest to you. © TV Listing Inc.

Series change, switch networks, say farewell

By Steven Alan McGaw

For television critics, the constant influx of hype is a little deadening. Whether it's a "groundbreaking new drama series" or an "innovative comedy concept," it seems it's all been said before.

Yet the end of this season, and its implications for the next, deserves to stand out in the mind of viewer and pundit alike. It is surely unprecedented for a single season's passing to bring so many changes, adjustments and ends.

Many didn't believe Bill Cosby when he declared this would be the last season for the still highly rated "Cosby Show," but end it did, taking a final, exultant bow on Thursday, April 30, with son Theo Huxtable's college graduation. Just five days earlier, ABC bid farewell to three of its prime-time mainstays: "Growing Pains," "Who's the Boss?" and "MacGyver." Each of the formentioned series leaves a noticeable hole in the schedule, but none more so than "Cosby," which had never strayed from its Thursday night opening berth, even when challenged by Fox's "The Simpsons" in later years.

This Saturday marks the conclusion of another NBC staple and one long regarded as the linchpin of that network's comedic domination of Saturday night: "The Golden Girls." In the final episode, Dorothy (Bea Arthur) decides to play a joke on her roommates and feign romance with a handsome widower (Leslie Nielsen). The plan backfires when real love sets in and the couple decides to marry.

But the story won't stop as the honeymoon starts. Next season, Rue McClanahan, Betty White and Estelle Getty will re-create their characters in a new show on another network. Titled "Golden Palace," the CBS series will have the ladies installed as proprietors of a hotel. Word is that Arthur will visit from time to time.

Also jumping from NBC (after being dropped by that network) to CBS is Carroll O'Connor's "In the Heat of the Night," but the format is unclear; originally announced as six two-hour movies, it now appears "Heat" will show up in a regular weekly berth. Another hit waving goodbye to the Peacock network is "Matlock," which relocates to ABC. Star Andy Griffith has been openly resentful of his former employers' claims that he didn't draw younger viewers in sufficient numbers and equally grateful for the new lease on network life.

At least two spin-offs are penciled in for next season. "Melrose Place" is a new address from the producers of Fox's "Beverly Hills, 90210," who are this time aiming for a slightly older audience. (In other words, "90210" fans who've received their diplomas.) Grant Show stars as Jake Hanson, a construction worker who lives in the same apartment complex as many of his "twentysomething" friends. On CBS, Nell Carter will star as a no-nonsense bail bondswoman in an as-yet-unnamed comedy spin-off from "Jake and the Fatman." That series, incidentally, is also leaving the air, reportedly because stars William Conrad and Joe Penny aren't interested in returning.

CBS' popular "Designing Women" will be back next year but without Julia Duffy, whose whining Allison proved unpopular with viewers. Rumor has it that former regular Jean Smart, who left the series to spend more time with her children, may return for periodic visits, and Jackee will come aboard the show late this year as Meshach Taylor's new love interest. Jackee also has a regular role on CBS' "The Royal Family" but if that series fails, she could join "Women" full time.

So what does it all mean? When so many popular series are judged to have run their course, are there replacements with genuine potential waiting in the wings? Will those replacements break new ground and bypass the cliches that plagues prime time, or will they be palid imitations of the programs they replace? And when next season comes, with so many new shows on the schedule, will the programming execs be more inclined to give those new entries a fighting chance? As the song says, "...see you in September."

LET'S TALK

Kentucky senior loves country singer Vince Gill

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I am a 73-year-old lady. I love that Vince Gill. I would like to have a picture of him. His song "When I Call Your Name" is my favorite. My sister is crazy about him, too. We watch him on TV when we can. —Jessie Thurman and Hazel Cox, Bardstown, Ky.

A: Write Gill in care of MCA Records, 1514 South Street, Nashville, Tenn., 37212.

Q: I think James Spader is a very talented young actor and would like to write him if you have an address. —Patsy Bowman, High Point, N.C.

A: The actor, best known for the movie sex, lies and videotape and his role as a drug dealer in Less Than Zero, can be reached in care of ICM, 8899 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90048.

Q: Bob Barker is one of our favorites! How long was he married and how long has he been a widower? Did they have any children? —M. Banks, Red Wing, Minn.

A: Barker's agent, Henri Bollinger, says the host of The Price is Right was married about 35 years, and has been a widower for 10 years. The couple had no children. Barker fills his time away from the game show with karate, reading, traveling and studying the Civil War. He also makes time for the animal-rights movement, of which he is one of its most eloquent proponents. He claims he also excels at lying in the sun doing absolutely nothing. It's hard to believe he has time to do nothing!

Q: I would like to have Bob Hope's address to tell him my cousin, who used to be his M.C., died and let him know about the details. —Blaine Dunblazier, Wadena, Minn.

A: Write to Hope Enterprises, 3808 Riverside Drive, Suite 100, Burbank, Calif., 91505.

Q: On a recent episode of Hot Country Nights which Reba McEntire hosted, there was a clip of her singing. It appeared she was wearing some kind of hearing device in both ears. Does she have a hearing problem? —Lisa Johnson, Zumbrota, Minn.

A: As far as I know, the singer does not have a hearing problem. Many vocalists use a headset while performing on stage so that they can clearly hear the mix of their voice with the music of the rest of the band, which is difficult when standing between those concert-sized speakers.

Q: I am a big fan of Don Mattingly, the first baseman for the New York Yankees. I want some information on him. How old is he? When was he born? I would love to have his address. What are his favorite foods and television shows? What kind of car does he drive? Who does he think was the hardest team they played last year? —Josh Brinkley, Nashville, Tenn.

A: Mattingly was born in Evansville, Ind., on April 20, 1961. Mattingly, his wife, Kim, and his three children (Taylor Patrick, Preston Michael and Jordon William) have two homes, one in Evansville, Ind., and one in Tenafly, N.J. In high school, Mattingly was involved in baseball, basketball and football. In his spare time, Mattingly enjoys playing racquetball. In 1987, Mattingly and his wife opened a restaurant in Evansville called Mattingly's 23 (his number is 23). For each home run Mattingly makes, he donates $1,000 to help underprivileged children in New York City get the medical care they need. I don't know what kind of car he drives or his favorite food or his favorite television show. You can ask him when you write to him in care of the New York Yankees, Yankee Stadium, Bronx, N.Y., 10451.

BITS AND PIECES

More half-baked ideas; Bible becomes miniseries

Taking the show on the road seems to be the hot idea for fall, at least according to a list of possible new series in development for the networks. ABC may send Robert Ulrich packing as a deputy district attorney who travels cross-country by motorcycle with his delinquent son in C.C. Rider, while CBS views life from a Winnebago in Johnny Bago. NBC counters with Pierce Brosnan as a gonzo journalist who's Running Wilde and hedges its bet with an update of the '60s road series Route 66.

Some big names not normally associated with network prime time will be taking shots at new series. NBC is working up a sitcom starring singer Patti LaBelle as a blues diva, and CBS will take a chance with Dudley Moore in his first U.S. series, Dudley. And Robert De Niro's production company is producing Tribeca, a one-hour drama anthology for Fox.

Giving the other guy a chance, Twentieth TV has dealt a package of Fox theatrical films to CBS instead of Fox Broadcasting Co., another arm of Twentieth Century Fox. The 11-film package includes Die Hard 2, Sleeping With the Enemy, For the Boys, The War of the Roses, Edward Scissorhands, Young Guns 2, Only the Lonely, Pacific Heights and Dutch.

Pierce Brosnan

It helps to have good source material. Dino De Laurentis has agreed to produce a miniseries adaptation of The Bible for future broadcast on CBS. Focusing on pivotal stories from the Old Testament such as that of Samson and Delilah, the miniseries will employ different writers and directors for each episode.

Writers already on board are Anthony Burgess (A Clockwork Orange) and Alison Cross (Roe vs. Wade). Directors who have expressed interest in the project include Paul Verhoeven (Basic Instinct) and Jonathan Demme (The Silence of the Lambs).

Tritt takes awards hype in stride

By Candy Clark

"Call someone who'll listen and might give a ... Here's a quarter, call someone who cares." So sings country crooner Travis Tritt. He and others like him — namely Garth Brooks and Clint Black — have made the world stand up and take notice of country music and in the process accumulated millions of new fans.

With Black and Lorrie Morgan, Tritt is co-host of The 27th Annual Academy of Country Music Awards, airing Wednesday, April 29, on NBC. While most performers would be at least a little bit nervous, Tritt isn't.

"I really enjoy working with Clint and Lorrie and they are a lot like me," he says. "They like to have fun and cut up and don't take it all too seriously. I think we've got a good chemistry between the three of us."

Amazing as it seems, Tritt really doesn't take all the hoopla seriously. He doesn't even know which four awards he has been nominated for.

"I can't keep up with all this stuff anymore," says Tritt. "They call me and give me everything in one lump sum. They told me I had some nominations for the Grammys, ACM awards, Music City News ... and it seems like there is an awards show on every other week."

Tritt appreciates being recognized for his work, though. "It's a dream come true," he says of his success in country music. "I look around and I pinch myself a lot."

Friday on PBS, American Masters looks at the life and career of screenwriter Waldo Salt.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

SOAP TALK

Music, kisses too noisy on soaps

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I wear a hearing aid, and I like to watch several soaps, but there is so much background music on As the World Turns I can't hear what the people are saying. I know this affects a lot of people who wear hearing aids. Do you know how I can get in touch with the people who put this program on? —Bernice Olson, Saint James, Minn.

Dear Reader: You are correct in that you are not the only one who has this problem. You might check into a device called a closed-captioning decoder, which prints the words on the bottom of the screen.

You can write to As the World Turns c/o CBS-TV, 51 W. 52 Street, New York, N.Y., 10019.

Dear Candace: Is anyone else out there made ill by the two characters who play Linc and Marcy on As the World Turns? Every time they kiss, I swear the microphone is tied to their tonsils! They sound like a couple of cows chewing their cud. Could they please turn off the sound when these two kiss? No one else makes noises like they do. They should win some kind of award for "Disgusting Noises Made By Humans."

I love the show otherwise, except one more thing: How can Barbara think Gavin is handsome? —R. Meissner, Plymouth, Mich.

Dear Reader: Linc has got to be one of the stupidest men in soaps not to see through Marcy's machinations. The whole thing is rather dull.

Barbara doesn't think Gavin is so great, especially now that he is black-mailing her.

Dear Candace: I am so appalled that Lorna and Matt are together on Another World. I actually get sick when I watch them together. I also wonder if Paulina will ever realize that Jake loves her? —L.K., Marinette, Wis.

Dear Reader: It looks like you don't want to see Matt and Lorna reach super couple status. Matt's moving out of Lorna's apartment is definitely going to change things. He might even find a new love interest. Paulina will soon be torn between her feelings for Jake and what she knows is right for her.

Send your comments to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.
