

County wants to parcel land, build golf course

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

"Boy, am I glad to get rid of this dog." — Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, Oct. 2, 1990.
"The sale is a dream that's come true." Developer R.A. DeMattia, same day.

The dream has died and the unwanted dog's come home.

Nearly 930 acres of county property rims Northville Township's southern border — along Five Mile, Beck, and Sheldon roads — and is highlighted by crumbling buildings and vacant, services-sapping land. It likely will stay that way a while.

The euphoria of an Oct. 2, 1990, check-signing party on the property is long gone, replaced by the bitter reality of a lingering recession.

The smiles on the faces of McNamara, DeMattia, and others have disappeared, as have a $31.75-million bonanza to the county and the developer's $300,000 downpayment.

Gone too is the sprawling mixed-use development and tax base that had school and township government officials drooling.

What remains is a plan to parcel out the old Wayne County Child Development Center property to residential

Rescue workers take to the water

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

They waded into the brackish water of the old river Saturday and pulled tires, trees, barrels, and a car from the depths.

Armed with chainsaws, muscle, and an ample dose of esprit de corps, the participants in this year's local stretch of the Rouge River Rescue sought to make a difference.

And they got results, as well as some good, clean fun in a mighty dirty river.

The water's flowing faster in two Northville area segments of the Rouge, thanks to the 53 volunteers who scoured the river bottoms, banks, and shorelines. Workers removed a potpourri of natural and man-made debris from areas behind Parmenter's Cider Mill and a site east of Northville Road near Five Mile.

Fallen trees and litter were the focus of the clean-up effort, but the catch of the day probably belonged to township Trustee James Nowka.

Nowka, patrolling the shoreline at the Five Mile site, pulled an 11-year-old boy from a deep spot after the youth had slipped while walking on a log. Neither Nowka nor the youth reportedly were worse for wear after their dunking.

The Rouge proved a virtual treasure chest for junk.

Ann Arbor resident Chuck Shaver attended his first Rouge Rescue and helped haul van seats, old milk cans, a car battery, and most of a Model T car from the water behind the cider mill.

The car was a bizarre discovery for Shaver, who said he spotted the tip of the vehicle's engine block poking from the water and shoreline. The engine block was hooked to a backhoe and "the more we pulled, the more we found," Shaver said.

The waters and muck eventually yielded the car's frame, engine block and a spoked wheel. Shaver said.

Shaver and others were surprised at the river's foul odor, but most were pleased with cleanup efforts.

"Any time you pull battery acid out of the river, you've got to feel good about it," Shaver said.

The good feelings extended to the cider mill's Diane Jones.

"We had had plans to clean out the river before the Friends of the Rouge chose that as their site," Jones said. "I think the stuff taken out of there would have taken years for us to remove.

"We were just thoroughly delighted with what was done," she said.

Northville Parks and Recreation Director Traci Gottschalk said this year's volunteer numbers were down slightly, but the group met its goal.

"The river's flowing very well now," she said.

"We accomplished everything we set out to do." A big find at the Five Mile site was an abandoned raft partially constructed with discarded industrial barrels, Gottschalk said.

Volunteering extended beyond individuals. The private sector involved itself too, as Mountain Top Green Ridge Tree Service of Northville lent chainsaws, manpower and tree chippers to the effort, and Kocian Excavating of Northville donated workers and heavy equipment. The Dandy Gander restaurant discounted sandwiches for the rescuers.

This year's Rouge River Rescue was co-sponsored locally by Northville Parks and Recreation and The Northville Record.

Voters okay renewal, but nix increase

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Northville School District voters gave their nod to a renewal of the current tax levy but said no to the district's request for an additional 1.4 mills in Monday's election.

The request for the renewal of 22.63 mills passed 3,760 to 1,958, while voters rejected the increase 3,601 to 2,107.

District officials were glad the renewal passed, but knew without the tax increase there would be $2.6 million worth of cuts from the existing program.

"We are pleased the renewal went through so we can open schools in the fall," said Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski after getting wind of the election results. "But we're disappointed the additional didn't go through. We are going to see layoffs, cuts, and an elimination of programs across the board."

School Board President Jean Hansen echoed his sentiments.

"The (school) program is not going to be one recognized by the people of Northville," she said. "We are now facing $2.6 million in cuts; that's a lot. The kids are going to be directly affected."

In the event that only the renewal passed, district officials had already identified $2.6 million worth of staff and programs that would be cut. Thirteen and a half teachers will be pink-slipped this week and four to

Custer, Rahimi win board seats

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Voters ousted incumbent Donald Klokenga from the Northville School Board in favor of Patricia Custer in Monday's election, also returning Carol Rahimi to her seat.

Custer was the highest vote-getter in the election, leading the race with 2,749 votes, followed by Rahimi with 2,121 votes. Klokenga won 1,616, and challenger Glen Miesel took 980. Write-in candidate Phil Phillips captured 480 votes.

The sole opponent to the tax increase in the field of four certified candidates, Custer campaigned on a "no new taxes" platform. Throughout her campaign, she stood steadfast against the district's first and second tax increase proposals.

She also criticized Klokenga's personal situation, saying the fact that his wife teaches in the district constitutes a conflict of interest. Klokenga and school officials denied that charge, pointing out that state law prohibits a spouse's employment from being a factor in certifying board candidates.

Custer could not be reached for comment after the election nor during the day Tuesday before press time.

In all six of the voting precincts, Custer captured the highest vote. That fact mirrored trends in the mil-

Williams quits township board post

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

The township board tonight (June 11) is expected to decide on a replacement or a process to replace former Trustee Donald Williams, who recently tendered his resignation.

Williams, who was elected to the township board in 1984, announced his resignation in a letter to Supervisor Betty Lennox.

Williams also severed his ties to the Senior Alliance and township

Beautification Commission, and his wife, Sally Williams, resigned from the Northville Library Commission.

The Williamses cited a move from Northville Township to Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., as the reason for their decisions.

Donald Williams has spent much of the past eight months in Florida and was unable to attend many township board meetings. Lennox was tight-lipped about possible re-

Top scholars ponder today, tomorrow

By SHARON CONDRON

Sitting closed on the table in the offices of Northville High School, the pages of the 1992 Palladium screamed to be read.

Once opened, the yearbook revealed photographs that came alive bursting with vivid memories of stories known only to those pictured there. Stray comments from friends graffitied the pages of the book personalizing the seniors' high school experience.

But after graduation this weekend those memories, however vivid, will be just snapshots of the past.

Bellowing from within the book the stories were silenced only by the laughter of the seven class valedictorians who sat around the table Friday playfully chiding each other about the past and subtly comforting each other about the future.

Jeffrey Berkaw, Michele DeBora, Jolie Graf, Jamey Miller, Stacey Nyland, Justine Ord, and Lauren Somershoe all earned top academic honors with a firm 4.0 grade point average. With a list of academic honors to their credit, the seven students comprising the best of the class of 1992 talked candidly about their career plans, their hopes and goals, and about leaving high school.

Novi woman levels new charge at city

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Just when city officials thought it was safe to go back into session, Laura Lorenzo has returned.

The Novi homeowner has waged a year-long battle with the City of Northville and Singh Development over flooding on her Galway Drive property that she blames on Singh's Pheasant Hills subdivision to the south.

After numerous discussions with city and Singh officials, and several fruitless appearances before the city council, she has taken a new tack in her approach.

Lorenzo is now seeking an administrative review of development and building permits issued for Pheasant Hills. She contends that the subdivision does not comply with the city's own zoning ordinance, specifically Article 19 on flood hazard zones.

"It is my belief that they did not consider Article 19 one iota when reviewing this development," Lorenzo said. "It seems that everyone just overlooked Article 19."

One of the stated objectives of Article 19 is "to preserve the ability of floodplains to carry and discharge a base flood."

A base flood is defined as one "having a 1-percent chance of being equalled or exceeded in any given year."

Lorenzo has already appealed to the city council for flood relief several times, and she enlisted the aid of offices ranging from the Oakland County Drain Commissioner to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to gather evidence that the construction of Pheasant Hills may have increased flooding in her backyard. She contends that culverts installed in Pheasant Hills restrict the southward flow of water and cause it to back up onto her property along the Northville/Novi border.

The city council, after months of investigating Lorenzo's claims and playing the mediator between Lorenzo and Singh officials, called it quits in April.

The city's engineering firm, McNeely & Lincoln, had rung up more than $8,200 in bills for a series of surveys, hydraulic and hydrological models, correspondence and a 127-page report on the dispute. The report found that the developer and city had adhered to "responsible engineering practice" in the construction and approval of the drainage system at Pheasant Hills.

A report by City Attorney James Kohl came to a similar conclusion.

Lorenzo first attributed the increased flooding on her property to landscaping installed by several Pheasant Hills property owners in the drainage swale, and raised the possibility that the culvert under Mill Pond Court was undersized.

The Oakland County Drain Commission ordered the property owners to restore the drainage swale to its original condition last year, and Singh Development is still coordinating the restoration on behalf of the homeowners.

But Singh is only seeking to restore the swale to 10-year flood capacity, Lorenzo said. That will improve the situation, she said, but not by much.

"It's not even accommodating a 10-year flood at this point... But that is not going to solve my problem with more intense storms — 50-year storms or 100-year storms," Lorenzo said.

At issue is whether the drainage system should prevent flooding on upstream properties in the event of a 10-year or 100-year storm. Lorenzo has argued that it should meet the stricter 100-year requirements.

As part of her new strategy, the Novi homeowner filed a Freedom of Information request with the city May 26, seeking copies of documents required by Article 19, including notices to adjacent communities and the state's Department of Natural Resources that the waterway was going to be altered and a description of the extent of alterations.

City Manager Gary Word wrote Lorenzo that the request could not be filled within the five-day period specified by the Freedom of Information Act, so he extended it by the allowed 10 business days.

He also warned Lorenzo that she would be charged "reasonable costs associated with the request," as allowed under the act.

Lorenzo questioned Word's assertion that the information she requested is contained in "numerous documents" and will take some time to locate.

"I'm not looking for redundant information; I'm looking for specific answers to specific questions," she said.

Another new twist to the story is that Lorenzo's property may no longer fall within a flood hazard area. FEMA's latest proposed Flood Insurance Study for the City of Novi, unlike its predecessor, leaves Lorenzo's subdivision out of the designated flood hazard zones.

"To me, it makes a big difference," Lorenzo said. "To me, there is basically no justification as to why this water is accumulating and being impounded on my property."

Past reports, including the one by McNeely & Lincoln, noted that flooding would not be unexpected on Lorenzo's property because it had fallen within a designated flood hazard zone.

Lorenzo still wants to see the culvert at Mill Pond Court modified or replaced to discharge a 100-year flood, and she wants the tributary restored to its natural condition.

She will appear before the city's Zoning Board of Appeals July 1 to argue her case, once again, to city officials.

Train-hopper injured in fall near Northville

City police were called to the rail road tracks at Eight Mile and Northville roads at midnight June 8 to investigate a report of a person falling off a northbound train.

One of two 17-year-old Livonia boys who reportedly hopped the train in Plymouth told police that his friend had fallen off somewhere between Northville Road and Eight Mile Road. But a three-hour search of the tracks by police and fire personnel failed to find the boy.

Police also alerted area hospitals, and called off their search at 3 a.m. after learning that the boy had been admitted to St. Mary Hospital's emergency room in Livonia. He was released before the end of the day.

Police determined that the boy fell from the train somewhere between Seven Mile and Northville roads.

WALLET, LAWN ORNAMENT STOLEN: A $40 cement leprechaun and a wallet containing $150 in cash were reported stolen from a Horton Street property sometime between 9 p.m. May 30 and 6 a.m. May 31.

The lawn ornament was located in a flower garden on the property's south side, while the burgundy leather wallet was in an unlocked van parked in the driveway.

The wallet was found in a Novi Street sewer June 6. While it still contained the owner's driver's license and credit cards, the money was gone.

TWO WINDOWS BROKEN ON ELM SMERE: Two windows valued at $300 each have been reported broken at a house under construction on Elm Smere.

One 28-by-64-inch tempered glass window was reportedly broken by a BB or pellet shot in February or March, while the other was broken by a golf ball sometime between 6:30 p.m. June 3 and 7 a.m. June 4.

EX-HUSBAND BREAKS WINDOW: The ex-husband of an Eaton Street resident reportedly broke a porch window the morning of June 6 while leaving her house.

The 43-year-old Grand Rapids man was at the house to pick up his children, and reportedly became angry when one refused to go because of a sporting event. He reportedly broke the window on his way out.

Damage was estimated at $50, but the woman declined to file a complaint with city police.

PARKED CAR ROBBED: An estimated $91 in goods was reported stolen between May 16-17 from a car parked at a Rouge Street home. A $50 Book of World Pictures, $30 pair of pigskin gloves, $10 Serengeti black sunglass case on a belt clip, and $1 in change were reported stolen.

The owner did not report the theft to city police until June 7.

CAR STOLEN FROM MEIJER LOT: A Novi man told township police that someone stole his 1988 Pontiac Firebird from the lot at Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, June 6 between 10:30-10:45 a.m.

The vehicle was valued at $7,000.

THEFT FROM APARTMENT REPORTED: A Silver Spring resident told township police that someone broke into his apartment and stole several items, including a box of hockey trading cards and individual cards valued at up to $30.

Also reported stolen were a cordless telephone and a cigarette lighter. The victim told police someone pried open a window screen to gain entrance to the home.

The stolen items were valued at $122.50 and damage was estimated at $50.

OUIL: A 32-year old Northville man was charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor after his arrest early June 6 on Eight Mile near Spring, township police said.

A preliminary breath test indicated the man's blood alcohol level was .17. The man then refused Breathalyzer tests, police said. He also was cited for driving with a suspended license and driving with an expired license plate.

RADIO STOLEN FROM CAR: A

Farmington Hills woman reported that someone smashed the window of her 1988 Ford Tempo late June 4 and stole a portable radio from the vehicle's back seat.

The vehicle was parked at O'Sheehan's, 43333 Seven Mile, at the time of the theft, the woman said. The radio was valued at $250 and damages estimated at $1,000.

RADAR DETECTOR STOLEN: A radar detector valued at $380 reportedly was stolen from a 1987 GMC van parked on Harbour Village Drive West late June 3 or early June 4, township police said.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Gas leak forces evacuation from office building

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

An apparent gas leak at the old Winner's Circle building June 8 forced the evacuation of the building's tenants.

The leak was first noticed by the ERA Country Ridge Realty office, 109 W. Main St. The office is located within the building.

ERA employee Linda Petrosky said another ERA employee first smelled gas just before 2:30 p.m. after hearing something break behind the office restroom. Petrosky called 911 when told of the smell.

"I didn't want to fool around with gas," she said.

Fire department vehicles responding to the call originally overshot their destination, driving east past the office and through the Center Street intersection before turning around. They arrived on the scene at 2:32 p.m., according to police records.

Rescue personnel immediately evacuated the ERA office, Joseph's Coney Island, and the apartments upstairs and behind the stores at 111-113 W. Main.

No one was injured in the incident. Consumers Power officials arrived on the scene at 2:49 p.m., according to police records, but could not determine the source of the leak.

The building's hot water heaters were reportedly being replaced at the time, and two heaters were seen sitting in the property's driveway as people milled around outside.

Building owner Vernon Huntton could not be reached for comment.

Bird flies coop, finds new abode in another cage

This is the story of the jail-bird who broke into his prison.

It begins more than two weeks ago. That's when a green parakeet flew in the back door of the Scott Regional Facility women's prison, near the prison store.

And where did the bird head once inside?

"He was in the cage area," said prison employee Juanita Kennedy. She was running the nearby store, where the bird flew and landed on a washer.

The incident happened either May 14 or 15, Kennedy said, at about 6 p.m. The prison is at the northwest corner of Five Mile and Beck roads.

Will want it back. "I don't know anything about birds," she said. Kennedy can be reached at the prison, 459-7400, Ext. 271.

In the meantime, she's paid $14 for a cage and some bird seed.

Giving thanks

A group of homeless people who spent a week in Northville recently made an unexpected return visit last week. The group stays at different churches in the area for a week at a time, but when one church canceled at the last minute, Northville's First United Methodist filled the gap. Above, Allen Jamison gives thanks before a meal. The church got assistance with meals from several area Methodist and Catholic churches, including Our Lady of Victory, as well as the Active Friends of the Homeless and the Oakland-Livingston Human Services Agency.

Residents cool to road survey

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

The dust still hasn't settled over Northville Township's gravel roads, but residents' voices are clear through the haze.

Most do not want new taxes to pay for road improvements, according to a survey of township gravel road property owners.

And the next step in this clouded stand-off is anyone's guess.

Secondary gravel roads cover more than 13 miles of township territory, and some residents are upset that the township has cut dust-control measures from this year's budget.

At $1,000 per mile, per application, the township says it's unfair for all residents to pay for a spraying program that benefits a few. The township currently has no plans to implement a dust control program, said Township Manager Richard Henningsen.

Residents counter by saying dust clouds kicked up by heavy traffic create a health and safety hazard. Some also feel the township has an obligation to spray gravel roads after taking over the task from the county in the mid-1980s.

The township recently surveyed property owners along some of the township's more notorious dust-choked streets, including Marilyn, Fry, Maxwell, Smock and Park Lane.

The survey outlined seven options designed to settle the dust, including paving, sealing, and spraying the gravel roads. The programs offered by the township would fall under the guidelines of a special assessment district (SAD), meaning 51 percent of a district's property owners would need to agree to the SAD plan before it could be initiated.

Costs for the township's first seven proposals ranged from up to $110 per lineal foot of road frontage for concrete pavement to 21 cents per foot of frontage for one application of dust control spray.

Most of the respondents oppose SADs to pay for road improvements and dust control, choosing option eight on the survey (no action), Henningsen said. Conversely, most think the township should foot the bill.

But the township would pay more for two applications of dust spray than it earns in general administration taxes for many gravel road parcels, Henningsen said.

Henningsen will report on the gravel road issue at tonight's (June 11) township board meeting. For now, he "hasn't sensed any" desire on the board's part to spring for dust relief steps.

Henningsen said he is not sure what happens next.

"I really don't know," he said. "At least I've got them talking, thinking about it."

Miracle girl a special part of NHS graduation

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

When the Northville High School class of 1992 walks through commencement exercises this weekend, Meghan Kearney will be right there beside them. Even though she won't be getting her diploma Friday with her classmates, she will still be a special part of the ceremony.

The 17-year-old senior was forced to drop out of school in the first term after a near-fatal car accident left her comatose for six weeks. After the accident on Sept. 13, 1991, Kearney was hospitalized for four months. Since then she's been going through rigorous physical, occupational, and speech therapy to rehabilitate herself.

Now, just nine short months after the collision on Seven Mile Road near Innsbrook, Kearney has made such a remarkable recovery she's just one credit shy of graduation on time.

ing on time.

In recognition of the outstanding progress she's made, Kearney will be honored by Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski at Friday's commencement.

"She's our shining star," Rezmierski said. "She serves as an example to the community, to our students, and to all of us."

A passenger in her friend's car, Kearney was riding in the back seat when the car was struck nearly head-on. She was thrown from the back seat head first into the front seat. She fell instantly into a coma, where she remained for six weeks at Mott Children's Hospital at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

After she awoke, she had no recollection of the accident or of her family, she said Tuesday.

The doctors' prognosis was bleak. Doctors told her parents they didn't expect her to walk or talk or even recognize them.

But she's doing all that and more.

"They said I would have to be cared for forever, and I don't," she said. "Dr. Rezmierski said I'm an inspiration and that I should be an example for others."

"He said that 'If something happens to you in your lifetime and you feel like you can't go on, just look at Meghan. She's seriously a miracle.'"

The past nine months have been a steady stream of work and perseverance for Kearney. She was discharged from the hospital Jan. 17 and returned to school the following week. She's worked hard to keep up with her classmates and now all her struggles have nearly paid off.

With help from high school Principal Thomas Johnson, Kearney has been able to make up some of her required courses through therapeutic work sessions. Recreational and physical therapy sessions were converted into gym credits. Countless hours of speech therapy transformed into English credits. Kearney should complete her required course work for a diploma by the end of the summer, just weeks after her classmates get theirs.

"Dr. Johnson, he's so cool," she said. "He's great. With out him as a principal, I'd be nowhere. I'd probably have to go to school another year."

But with her recent engagement, spending another year in high school was not in the plan.

Upon her graduation, Kearney plans to earn her degree in child care and move to New Jersey to be married to her fiancée, Herb Faglano. The couple has yet to set a date, but she's eager and in love.

If she learned anything at all from her experience it was that there is a God.

"Before my accident I didn't know whether or not there was a God," she said. "Now I know there is and I love him."

Seven honor graduates relive school glory days

For Berkaw, being hung up on grades and labeled the top in the class carries a negative connotation and goes against the grain of his personality.

"I'm not caught up in this grade thing," Berkaw said. "And as far as knowing what I'll be doing in 10 years, well, I'll just take it as it comes. I do not like to anticipate the future because I would rather enjoy today."

Berkaw, who plans to pursue a business degree at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, said while he knows he wants a degree in business he hasn't yet decided on a specific job.

Justin Ord echoed that sentiment. "Yeah, like I have a clue," he said in response to the idea of making a 10-year career projection.

Ord has plans to attend the University of Michigan in the fall, but hasn't yet decided on a major — let alone speculating where he'll be 10 years from now.

In contrast to Berkaw's and Ord's undefined plans, the remaining five valedictorians have plotted their careers with specific goals and can make 10-year projections.

Stacey Nyland will head off to Syracuse University in the fall to pursue a bachelor's degree in engineering. Even though she's yet to select a specific engineering discipline, Nyland is firm on becoming an engineer.

"In 10 years I hope to be working as an engineer and putting to use the skills I have learned at Syracuse," she said.

For Nyland, whose family is relocating to New York, leaving Northville right after graduation and moving away from the friends she's made here poses mixed feelings.

"Moving so soon after graduation and leaving all my friends is going to be difficult," she said. "The times I had in high school were those spent with friends and participating in basketball, volleyball, and softball."

Leaving behind friends to embark on a new challenge is a difficult move for Jamey Miller, too. Miller, a member of the state semifinalist football team in his junior year, will leave for Colorado State University to pursue a business degree.

"The worst part about it (graduation) is leaving friends and teachers you have developed relationships with over the last four years," he said. Michele DeBora concurred.

"The worst part about my high school experience will be leaving my friends and the closeness of the small-town community," she said.

DeBora intends to attend Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo to pursue a teaching degree with a concentration in secondary mathematics.

"The good times would not have been possible without friends. I think friends are the biggest part of high school. Without their support, I know I couldn't have done it," she said.

By 2002, DeBora said she hopes to be teaching high school mathematics "maybe (hopefully) here at Northville or in a neighborhood school district. I also hope to be married and to have started a family."

Jolie Graf has a concrete career plan that finds her in 10 years with a degree in genetics-ethics law and warming up for a seat on the Supreme Court.

"In 10 years I should be graduating from Harvard Law School after having also gotten a Ph.D. in genetics," she said. "I'd like a career in genetics-ethics law to eventually lead to the Supreme Court. I really want to be someone people will remember as having made a positive contribution to society."

Graf will attend Wellesley College in Massachusetts.

Like Graf, Lauren Somershoe has a defined career planned. Somershoe will join Ord at the University of Michigan. She will pursue an engineering degree and hopes to be employed as a biomedical engineer, designing artificial parts for transplants in 10 years.

Being a cast member in the high school's production of Evita, Somershoe said, was the highlight of her high school tenure. Waiting for her acceptance letter to U-M was the worst.

She finds considerable self-fulfillment in the academic success she's enjoyed. "I worked hard to be a valedictorian, not for my parents or for my friends but for myself. I haven't let myself down," she said.

While the seven valedictorians agreed that Northville adequately prepared them for college, they had one regret.

"I feel adequately prepared for college, but I wish there were AP classes to prepare us for the AP exams," DeBora said.

Mustang of the Week

By LAURA WHITELEY
Special Writer

The officers of Northville High School's chapter of the National Honor Society have been named "Mustangs of the Week" in recognition of the services each has provided the school office throughout the year.

The five officers have arrived before school at 6:30 a.m. during the entire school year, in order to help the office staff. Each student greets the substitute teachers, handles the switchboard, and helps students who come to the office with questions and concerns. Says secretary Nan Oliver, who nominated the students for this honor, "They do not receive any class credit for this. Their help is invaluable, and is much appreciated by all!"

National Honor Society President Jeff Berkaw, a 1992 valedictorian and president of the Senior Class, plans to attend the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in the fall.

Tim Duff, who doubles as NHS vice president and Student Congress vice president, will attend Michigan State University.

Joe Kontuly also takes on a dual role in Northville student government, as treasurer of both the Honor Society and Student Congress. He will attend the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Beth Cannizzaro, National Honor Society secretary and Student Congress president, will join Duff at Michigan State.

Finally, Evan Petrie, who divides his time between his duties as the organization's historian and his role as school photographer, will also attend the University of Michigan in the fall.

The Mustang of the Week is named by the School Climate Committee at Northville High School. Laura Whiteley, who writes this feature, is a student at the high school.

First impressions important to firm

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

If first impressions are the most lasting ones, then visitors to Northville's newest landscape designer should be duly impressed.

First Impressions recently opened its door — er, window — to the public, and the picture window at 104 W. Main St. succinctly sums up the owners' goals.

The ornate gilded logo advertises First Impressions as a landscape service of a different sort. Business hours are by appointment only, and owners Sandee and Dave Stamm of South Lyon can refer clients to interior as well as exterior designers.

The point behind the logo, said Sandee Stamm, is "setting the stage for who you are and what you want people to think of you."

The eye-catching design is no accident, she said. "We want to get a lot of people looking at the window and, hopefully, a lot of calls."

Stamm said the business will offer customers an integrated landscape design and installation service. "We do the landscape, we do the installation, and also I do the project coordination," she said. "I can put them in touch with very pedigreed people who are competitive like myself. Those people could be designers for the interior of their homes, or renovations, or decking."

Dave and Sandee Stamm hope to create good first impressions.

Stamm sees her service as a boon to new homeowners faced with a number of projects all at once.

"A lot of people are overwhelmed when they have a new house, and they don't know who to call," she said. First Impressions can help by coordinating a series of projects and acting as a referral service for different subcontractors, she said.

Larger projects can be installed in phases, allowing a client to bring renovations in within budget, Stamm said. For instance, landscape berms and large plants can be planted first, followed by smaller plants when the financing allows.

Stamm, whose husband has an engineering background and works in the automotive industry, said she is self-taught in the design field. "I have a real creative mind... a love for architecture and design," she said.

Mill Race Matters

Plans are well in hand to make this Fourth of July as memorable as many of the past at Mill Race Village. Be sure to join us to celebrate a traditional Fourth.

Festivities get under way immediately after the conclusion of the city parade. There will be crafters demonstrating their skills from the past, and the Northville Historical Society will be holding a "Village Surplus Sale" a.k.a. garage/antique sale. You may find some truly great unclaimed treasure. All buildings will be open for viewing including our recently restocked Country Store. Limited food booths will be available. Join our community in celebrating a traditional Fourth of July.

Mill Race is open every Sunday throughout the summer months from 2 until 5 p.m. Oftentimes on weekdays it is a hub of activities as well. From late April until mid-June we experience daily tours by area school groups, usually third- and fourth-graders. These students have the opportunity to experience firsthand what school was like in 1873 when our Wash Oaks School was built. The day usually begins with a tour of the village and some information about the past.

Our "Stone Gang" (the tireless, dedicated repair/work crew) is usually around Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday mornings doing the many tasks that need to be done to keep our village in condition. Our Archives is open from 10 a.m. until noon on Wednesday and by appointment. A committee has been working on Tuesday morning to organize our clothing collection to keep the store supplied. Fridays and Saturdays during the summer months usually see a wedding or two. All this in addition to occasionally scheduled special tours and meetings by a variety of area groups keep our village busy.

All of these many activities are staffed by volunteers. We could use your time and talents. Why not consider getting involved? If you're not a member, why not consider the events throughout the year at which attendance is usually open first to members. Contact the office at 348-1845 for more information about joining.

Schools of choice rejected

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

A proposal asking whether Northville schools should pay to bus students to a school other than the closest one was rejected by voters nearly 4-1 in Monday's school election.

By a 4,174-1,269 vote, residents said they agreed with a district study committee's recommendation to opt out of the state-mandated "schools of choice" plan.

Under the state mandate, districts would be required to offer and pay for an in-district schools-of-choice plan. The plan would have provided parents the opportunity to send their children to any school of their choice within district boundaries. Transportation costs for the program under the state mandate would be absorbed by the district.

A citizens advisory committee studied the choice issue in January and recommended to the school board one month later that it exercise the district's right of exemption from the state plan. Under the guidelines provided by the state the district could take the recommendation of its citizens advisory committee, provided the issue be put on a referendum and the voters have the final say.

District officials decided implementing the plan would duplicate their open enrollment policy that's been on the books since 1979. The only difference between the state plan and the schools' current open enrollment policy is who pays for busing students to the schools of their choice.

Under the district's existing choice plan, parents are responsible for transporting students to a different school.

District officials had estimated that implementing the program would cost an additional $30,000 in increased transportation expenses.

"We are pleased the choice went down almost 4-1," said Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski.

Schools face cuts as voters reject millage increase

five new teachers won't be hired in the fall to handle projected enrollment growth. This will save the district a combined $475,000. Twelve bus drivers and a transportation supervisor will be axed, saving $313,000. The district will also not replace three buses for $35,000.

Extracurricular activities, sports programs below the varsity level, and the athletic director post fell victim to the cuts, amounting to $310,000 in cuts across the board.

The Business/Education Partnership program, the first grade Graduated Start, and the Student Assistance Program will all be cut next year for a combined total of $71,000.

According to the district's worksheet which identified the possible cuts, if the 1.4 mill increase passed residents would have seen $1.082 million worth of programs restored. But for now, those programs will be put on hold until next year.

Not surprisingly, members of local citizens groups had opposing reactions to the millage outcome.

Citizens for a Better Northville's spokesperson, Phil Phillips, said Wednesday the actions of the voters speak for themselves and warrant no comment from his group.

"We thought about it and we don't think it's really compelling to say anything about the turnout," he said. "The voters said it all."

But Phillips did offer one comment: "We were surprised at the number of people — a large percentage — who voted against the renewal. We think that is the most compelling message, that so many people said, 'Screw it — don't even open schools up in the fall.' That's a tremendous performance review for the way business is being run," he said.

Members of Citizens for a Quality Education, the pro-millage support group who were in full force at Monday's meeting awaiting election results, told a different story.

CQE President Mike Hassler said he hopes the voters can live with their decision and realize the damage the vote will do to the district.

"We are disappointed that the voters of Northville voted for mediocrity," Hassler said Monday night after hearing the millage results. "We, however, as a group will continue to work for quality education in our schools."

Non-varsity school sports lose after millage election

By SCOTT DANIEL
and SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writers

Voters axed all non varsity sports programs in the Northville Public School District Monday by nixing a 1.4-mill increase.

As many as 500 students in the district, at the middle and high school levels, will sit idle next school year as a result of the no vote. School administrators will have to cut more than $2.6 million from the budget, including $310,000 targeted for non-varsity programs.

"We will survive for a year," said Northville Athletic Director Dennis Colligan, whose $30,000-a-year job will also be eliminated. "The varsity programs are prepared to get into next season. But the following year, I expect a total decline in the athletic programs."

"Without a feeder system it doesn't take long for the varsity program to go down. We will have to start over."

Colligan, who will be reassigned in the district, will meet with school officials later this week to discuss funding options. He said the possibility of a "pay-to-play" system hasn't "even been talked about."

Residents weren't voting no to athletics, Colligan said. Nonetheless, the district's students will pay the consequences.

"We've got great kids," Colligan added. "I feel sorry for the kids that will miss out."

For Meads Middle School students Kevin Becker and Justin Schlanser, the defeated millage and subsequent cuts in athletics and extracurricular programs puts a damper on their after-school plans for next year. As entering freshmen at the high school, both students said they feel cheated by the cuts in athletics and extracurricular activities.

"I think it's unfair," said Becker. "I feel like I'm getting cheated out of something."

Becker said he had thought about trying out for the baseball team next year at the junior varsity level, but now that plan has gone by the wayside.

"I would have tried out for the team, but now I can't. I know I'd never make the varsity team," he said.

Both Becker and Schlanser said they were upset by the news of the tax defeat because in addition to cuts in athletics, the district will also be axing co-curricular activities like the forensics club, a club in which the two eighth-graders recently won state recognition for their efforts.

Meanwhile, varsity rosters may expand to absorb a small percentage of younger athletes like Becker and Schlanser.

Junior varsity and freshman football teams carried 63 students last year. Colligan said the varsity roster was at 45 last year and with about the same number this fall, only a few more slots could be added for less experienced players.

The district's athletic program faced similar funding problems in the 1970s. Colligan said it took five years after those cuts to rebuild the program.

"We are very competitive in 90 percent of our sports," he commented. "We've worked hard to get them there. We were rolling."

Many of the varsity coaches that helped to make Northville competitive are still with the district. Colligan said some of them, however, may not be willing to start at square one again.

"It takes a lot of work to develop a solid program," he said. "And many of them have paid their dues. I believe they will return next year, but after that, I think we will have some people leave."

The athletic director said he was also concerned about the high school losing top athletes. Students could opt for parochial schools such as Detroit Catholic Central or non-sectarian private schools like Detroit Country Day School.

"I look for that to be a real problem," Colligan said. "I'm very concerned."

Schools of choice rejected

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

A proposal asking whether Northville schools should pay to bus students to a school other than the closest one was rejected by voters nearly 4-1 in Monday's school election.

By a 4,174-1,269 vote, residents said they agreed with a district study committee's recommendation to opt out of the state-mandated "schools of choice" plan.

Under the state mandate, districts would be required to offer and pay for an in-district schools-of-choice plan. The plan would have provided parents the opportunity to send their children to any school of their choice within district boundaries. Transportation costs for the program under the state mandate would be absorbed by the district.

A citizens advisory committee studied the choice issue in January and recommended to the school board one month later that it exercise the district's right of exemption from the state plan. Under the guidelines provided by the state the district could take the recommendation of its citizens advisory committee, provided the issue be put on a referendum and the voters have the final say.

District officials decided implementing the plan would duplicate their open enrollment policy that's been on the books since 1979. The only difference between the state plan and the schools' current open enrollment policy is who pays for busing students to the schools of their choice.

Under the district's existing choice plan, parents are responsible for transporting students to a different school.

District officials had estimated that implementing the program would cost an additional $30,000 in increased transportation expenses.

"We are pleased the choice went down almost 4-1," said Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski.

Schools face cuts as voters reject millage increase five new teachers won't be hired in the fall to handle projected enrollment growth. This will save the district a combined $475,000. Twelve bus drivers and a transportation supervisor will be axed, saving $313,000. The district will also not replace three buses for $35,000.

Extracurricular activities, sports programs below the varsity level, and the athletic director post fell victim to the cuts, amounting to $310,000 in cuts across the board.

The Business/Education Partnership program, the first grade Graduated Start, and the Student Assistance Program will all be cut next year for a combined total of $71,000.

According to the district's work-sheet which identified the possible cuts, if the 1.4 mill increase passed residents would have seen $1.082 million worth of programs restored. But for now, those programs will be put on hold until next year.

Not surprisingly, members of local citizens groups had opposing reactions to the millage outcome.

Citizens for a Better Northville's spokesperson, Phil Phillips, said Wednesday the actions of the voters speak for themselves and warrant no comment from his group.

"We thought about it and we don't think it's really compelling to say anything about the turnout," he said. "The voters said it all."

But Phillips did offer one comment: "We were surprised at the number of people — a large percentage — who voted against the renewal. We think that is the most compelling message, that so many people said, 'Screw it — don't even open schools up in the fall.' That's a tremendous performance review for the way business is being run," he said.

Members of Citizens for a Quality Education, the pro-millage support group who were in full force at Monday's meeting awaiting election results, told a different story.

CQE President Mike Hassler said he hopes the voters can live with their decision and realize the damage the vote will do to the district.

"We are disappointed that the voters of Northville voted for mediocrity," Hassler said Monday night after hearing the millage results. "We, however, as a group will continue to work for quality education in our schools."

Non-varsity school sports lose after millage election

By SCOTT DANIEL
and SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writers

Voters axed all non-varsity sports programs in the Northville Public School District Monday by voting a 1.4-mill increase.

As many as 500 students in the district, at the middle and high school levels, will sit idle next school year as a result of the no vote. School administrators will have to cut more than $2.6 million from the budget, including $310,000 targeted for non-varsity programs.

"We will survive for a year," said Northville Athletic Director Dennis Colligan, whose $30,000-a-year job will also be eliminated. "The varsity programs are prepared to get into next season. But the following year, I expect a total decline in the athletic programs."

"Without a feeder system it doesn't take long for the varsity program to go down. We will have to start over."

Colligan, who will be reassigned in the district, will meet with school officials later this week to discuss funding options. He said the possibility of a "pay-to-play" system hasn't even been talked about.

Residents weren't voting no to athletics, Colligan said. Nonetheless, the district's students will pay the consequences.

"We've got great kids," Colligan added. "I feel sorry for the kids that will miss out."

For Meads Mill Middle School students Kevin Becker and Justin Schlanser, the defeated millage and subsequent cuts in athletics and extracurricular programs puts a damper on their after-school plans for next year. As entering freshmen at the high school, both students said they feel cheated by the cuts in athletics and extracurricular activities.

"I think it's unfair," said Becker. "I feel like I'm getting cheated out of something."

Becker said he had thought about trying out for the baseball team next year at the junior varsity level, but now that plan has gone by the wayside.

"I would have tried out for the team, but now I can't. I know I'd never make the varsity team," he said.

Both Becker and Schlanser said they were upset by the news of the tax defeat because in addition to cuts in athletics, the district will also be axing co-curricular activities like the forensics club, a club in which the two eighth-graders recently won state recognition for their efforts.

Meanwhile, varsity rosters may expand to absorb a small percentage of younger athletes like Becker and Schlanser.

Junior varsity and freshman football teams carried 63 students last year. Colligan said the varsity roster was at 45 last year and with about the same number this fall, only a few more slots could be added for less experienced players.

The district's athletic program faced similar funding problems in the 1970s. Colligan said it took five years after those cuts to rebuild the program.

"We are very competitive in 90 percent of our sports," he commented. "We've worked hard to get them there. We were rolling."

Many of the varsity coaches that helped to make Northville competitive are still with the district. Colligan said some of them, however, may not be willing to start at square one again.

"It takes a lot of work to develop a solid program," he said. "And many of them have paid their dues. I believe they will return next year, but after that, I think we will have some people leave."

The athletic director said he was also concerned about the high school losing top athletes. Students could opt for parochial schools such as Detroit Catholic Central or non-sectarian private schools like Detroit Country Day School.

"I look for that to be a real problem," Colligan said. "I'm very concerned."

County land to be parceled out to developers developers. And the spark could come from a county-built and -operated golf course plunked in the middle of the blight.

"In the county's view, the county is committed to make the project continue," said Arthur Wild, of Wayne County's Department of Jobs and Economic Development.

Wild said the county is seeking proposals from developers to oversee a parceling out of the site. Since no developers are interested in purchasing the entire swath of county property, individual firms will have a chance to purchase and build on chunks as small as 20-50 acres, he said.

The county still envisions a mixed-use development reminiscent of DeMattia's Huntington Falls plan, Wild said. But for now, the reliance will be on the relatively strong residential housing market.

Light industrial development — the preferred choice of many local school and township officials — was targeted for the Five Mile/Beck roads corridor in DeMattia's plan. Such construction is out of favor now, though.

"There's very little market for it at the present time," Wild said.

The county hopes to show township planning commissioners a site plan by the fall, Wild said. A cornerstone of the site plan could include an 18-hole golf course, which could serve as a magnet for surrounding residential development.

"We will go out and do our best to create a golf course," Wild said.

Wild conceded a vast difference between private development and a county-sponsored project. If the county is the developer, it must carry the financial burden of razing buildings and cleaning up environmental trouble spots. But that seems palatable, considering the alternatives, Wild said.

"We'd prefer not to have the thing just sit," he said.

"We'll get to work on a golf course in the short run."

Wild's optimism is not necessarily shared at township hall. Supervisor Betty Lennox said she has watched more than one county land deal fall by the wayside.

"I don't know how fast it's going to progress," she said. "If DeMattia can't get the financing, (the county's) going to have to get the financing."

"I'll be skeptical until somebody comes through with money," she said.

Good service pays large dividends

In business today, service is the name of the game and outstanding service is what makes customers come back.

Nobody likes to have their car fixed, but when it needs repair, tuneup or tender loving care, isn't it nice to know that there is someone you can count on to get the job done right the first time — and treat you great. Recently, I found that two chamber members, Davis Auto Care and McDonald Ford, do just that. When I needed my brakes replaced, I called Jim Davis at Davis Auto Care. Not only did Davis Auto Care provide outstanding service (transportation to and from the shop, a phone call informing specific repairs and costs, etc.) they sent me a thank you card within two days of service. What a nice touch.

The service department at McDonald Ford, especially Dan Pelletier, should be commended. Whenever I need a service check or have questions regarding my Probe, I call Dan because I know I will be taken care of the first time. So the next time you need to have your vehicle checked out, call these Chamber members — you won't be disappointed with their service.

Trustee resigns after long absence placement plans, but said the board would discuss options tonight.

"I'm going to talk to the other board members (and) I have something in mind," Lennox said. "This position has not been filled for quite some time and we need a seventh member on the board."

Lennox would not say if someone would be appointed tonight or if the board would interview candidates. In 1989, the board filled a vacancy through an interview process, but in 1991, another vacancy was filled by a surprise appointment.

State law dictates that a charter township fill a vacancy within 45 days of receipt of a resignation notice. If the board does not appoint Williams' successor, the Wayne County Clerk's office would have to notify the governor's office.

The governor, in turn, would call for a special election to fill the void, said Brad Whitman, director of information and voter registration for the state Bureau of Elections.

The township could select a new trustee from among the list of those seeking running in the August primary, Whitman said. But township officials likely will not take that route, Lennox said.

Lennox indicated that the trustee slot will be filled on an interim basis, meaning the appointee would serve only until after the November general election.

The township board is scheduled to meet this evening at 7:30 p.m. at township hall, 41600 Six Mile.

large proposal race, in which voters in all six of the precincts passed the renewal but rejected the 1.4-mill increase.

Board members Rahimi and Klokenga were at the board room Monday night following the regular school board meeting to wait on election results. Challengers Meisel and Phillips were also in the audience waiting for word on the vote; Custer was not present.

District officials seemed too concerned with the outcome of the millage election to comment on the turnout of the school board race.

Neither Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski nor board President Jean Hansen had any visible reaction Monday night to Klokenga being ousted and replaced by Custer.

"I don't really know her well enough to make any kind of comment," Rezmierski said when asked about the new face on the board.

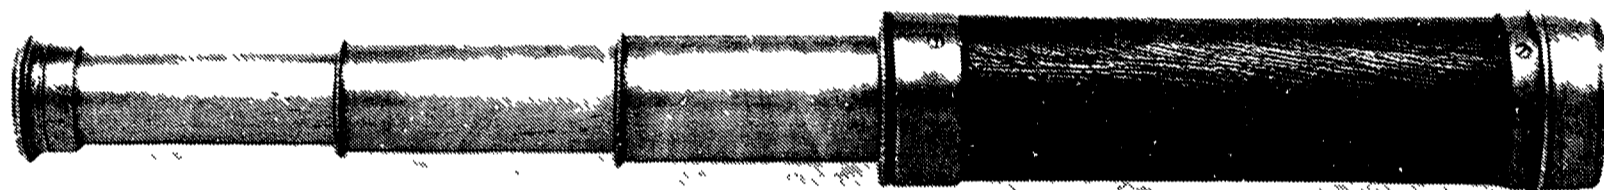

Board Vice President Glenna Davis agreed.

"I have no basis to comment. She hasn't participated in anything except the (candidates) forum," she said.

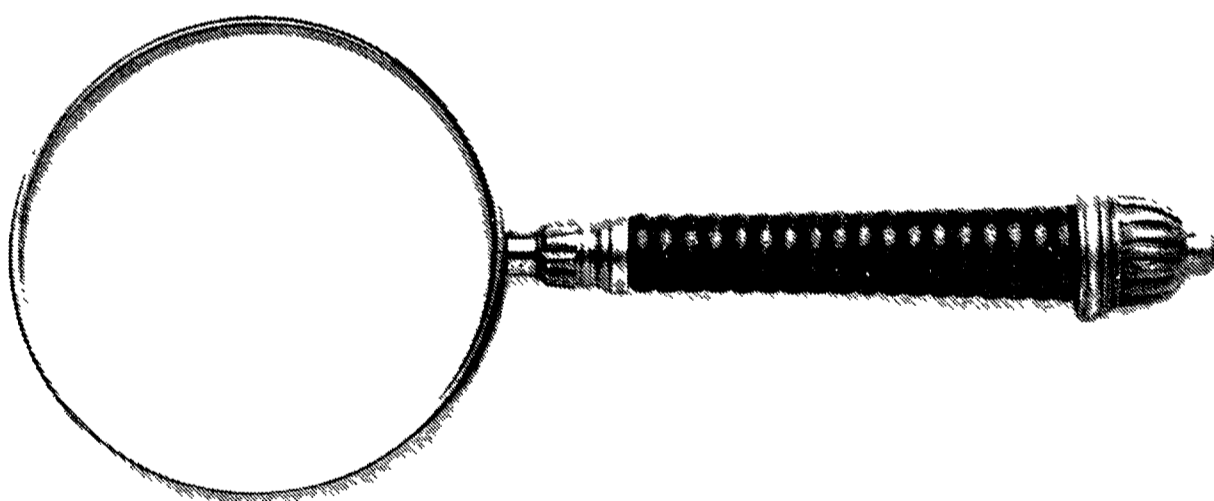

Klokenga didn't appear on the exterior to be too bothered by the loss. Despite not being re-elected, Klokenga said he would remain active in school issues.

"I'm honored to have had the opportunity to serve Northville on the board of education over the last four years," he said after the results were in. "Now I'm looking forward to serving the Northville Public Schools in other capacities."

Compromise could remedy dust woes

The conflict is as old as local government itself.

People pay taxes and in return expect services. Services that benefit them. Governments collect taxes and decide where the money goes. Problems crop up when government and governed don't agree on the destination of the tax dollar.

A textbook case of Us vs. Them is making its annual appearance in Northville Township. Relatively dry weather has put the township's 13.2 miles of gravel roads in prime dusty condition, and the result isn't pretty or insignificant. The problem is real, and begs for a long-term solution.

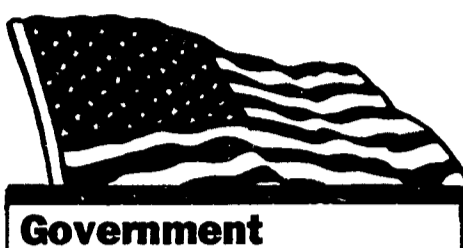

Township officials and most gravel-road residents admit to a fundamental philosophical difference on this issue. The township says it should not have to spend everyone's tax dollars to spray the roads of a few. The cost for twice-yearly dust control is estimated at about $27,000, a figure not considered excessive during less stressful economic times, but monumental in today's blighted economy. And in many cases, the cost for such spraying is higher than the township collects for general administration of those parcels, officials claim.

Many gravel road dwellers don't agree. They see spiraling tax bills and separate millages for general administration, police funds, and fire funds, as well as township administered water and sewer and garbage expenses. In addition, residents see, feel, smell, and taste the after-effects of the cars that rumble down their dusty trails. They wonder what they get for their tax dollars.

Officials and residents currently are kicking around ideas, and that's a start, although some residents are growing a bit more agitated as dust clouds force them into shuttered homes. More than talk is needed at this time to remedy a problem that should not be handled on a yearly, piecemeal basis.

First of all, both sides should accept a portion of the blame for this impasse. The township's recurrent — and weak — theme is that the general administration portion of residents' property tax bills is too insignificant to pay for spraying. Add on all the other township costs on the tax bill, and suddenly the township doesn't seem so neglected. Also, we're confused by township Manager Richard Henningsen's reaction when we ask how much the township spent on perks and benefits for its part-time elected officials the past several years.

Henningsen has flatly, repeatedly, refused to tell us this information. When all township residents are paying literally thousands of dollars in perks to three part-time politicians, we think it's a relevant question. Henningsen doesn't. Yes, beginning in 1993, most politicians' perks will have been cut. But that didn't happen until well after the township board decided to cut dust control from its budget.

We also think taxpayers should know that at least nine township elected officials or employees drive vehicles home from work. Again, who's paying for that?

The point is this: The township shouldn't claim it is penniless and protective of everyone's cash when it continues to quench its own financial thirst in questionable areas.

As for the gravel road residents, where were all of you during the past two budget review seasons? In both 1990 and 1991, road spraying was targeted as a way to reduce the budget. Virtually none of the hundreds of families that live along township gravel roads bothered to attend budget hearings or budget adoption meetings. Why should the board care about — or prioritize — dust control when residents aren't concerned enough to voice their opinions?

An eight-option survey of gravel road residents sent out by the township was an interesting piece of work, but was fatally flawed in one aspect. It did not pose perhaps the most significant question: Would residents be willing to share costs with the township on twice-yearly dust control efforts? We think such an option has merit, and could generate more interest in forming special assessment districts. An agreement to a 50-50 split of spraying costs could salve residents' anger and the cost to the township would be cut at least in half, depending on the subdivisions that decided to sign on to the plan.

Residents who do not witness bad dust problems could decline the SAD invitation, and those who feel the township abdicated its responsibility could be reassured that the township does have their interests in mind.

We urge the township and affected residents to explore this possible option and determine its feasibility. To ignore the prospect of compromise bodes well for no one.

Society can learn from fish

From the boat launch, I looked into the shallows and spotted him — less than seven inches long, hovering over a saucer-shaped depression. Earlier in spring, the bull bluegill had scooped out the nest, herded in a female, then fertilized the eggs she laid.

The bull bluegill, with his iridescent gill covers and yellow bowtie, will guard the eggs until they hatch. Let a minnow, beetle or another fish venture too near, and the bull 'gill attacks, his sharp dorsal fin flashing. When a slovenly carp or idiot speedboater stirs up the bottom, the bull 'gill fans away the silt with his pectoral fins. The 'gill is vulnerable to anglers when he's on guard because, hungry or not, he will take a whack at anything that comes near the nest.

Other fish, like muskie and salmon, scatter their eggs and spawn, then depart. Not the bluegill, who has an excellent reproduction rate and is one of Michigan's most widespread and successful species. The bull bluegill, though cold-blooded and pea-brained, is a better father than many human males. The importance of Father's Day isn't told in syrupy verses of Hallmark cards. It's found in the sociological statistics. Bad things happen to kids born into a household with no father.

- Their infant mortality rate is double their counterparts, says the state Department of Social Services.
- They are three times more likely to be classified EMI (educable mentally impaired).
- They are more likely to be raised in poverty. "Women and their children account for 70 percent of Michigan's poor, largely because of the poverty of single parents . . . 55 percent of female-headed families with children were in poverty," said the Michigan Women's Commission.

- Welfare is needed by 73 percent of teen mothers within four years, it being understood that 70 percent of births to teens are out of wedlock. Says the National Urban League: "That act alone is a passport to poverty."
- There are no hard statistics, but DSS says kids in single-parent families do poorly in school.
- Three years ago, I wrote about monitoring child disaster stories — small children who get shot, drowned, left in dumpsters and so on. Only about one story a year involves children with two parents. Watch them on TV yourself. You'll see grieving mothers, aunts, sisters, grandmothers — rarely an adult male.

The worst result of a kid not having a father, however, is prison. Some years ago, the Michigan Department of Corrections released some horrifying figures to the effect that a disproportionate number of prison inmates was from fatherless families. As I recall, a kid from a fatherless home had three or four times as much chance of going to prison as a kid from a two-family home. This is not to say that all kids from two-parent homes will do well. Witness Leslie Williams, the confessed serial killer and rapist.

Nor is it to say that every kid from a single-parent home is doomed to hell. Witness statesman Willy Brandt, Leonardo da Vinci, Lawrence of Arabia and conquistador Francisco Pizarro. It's a matter of odds. It's possible for a colt carrying 145 pounds to win the Derby against a field carrying 120, but that isn't the way you want to bet. Dads won't eliminate rioters, but they will better the odds their kids won't grow up to riot. Good fathers are important in raising kids and keeping them out of prison. Even a fish knows that.

Careerists destroy the system

The careerists who inhabit the American political system have driven it to the edge of breakdown by:

- Hypocrisy: substitution and manipulation of symbols (the 10-second sound bite, the simplistic proposal, the trumped-up press release) for substance. The result is:
- Incompetence: Our government simply does not get the job done any more. Therefore, the system requires for maintenance in office:

- More hypocrisy.

The leading and most dangerous example of this vicious cycle is our federal deficit, now standing at $4 trillion and growing at the rate of $400 billion per year.

Annually for the past 10 years, the president and Congress have declined either seriously to cut spending or to increase taxes. Therefore, the deficit has grown. Therefore, the president and Congress have resorted to finger pointing and sham suggestions about fixing the deficit, both knowing full well that neither will work.

A small, bipartisan group of U.S. senators, including Michigan's Carl Levin, has proposed a sensible and imaginative way out of this deadlock.

On the Nightline show last week and in a resolution to be introduced into the Senate, the group urged all three presidential candidates to discuss in detail their plans for reducing the deficit in a novel prime-time TV format:

- Length and focus. The idea is to have the discussion entirely on the deficit for at least an hour. "This is a serious and complicated subject," said Levin, "and we need to go beyond simplistic non-proposals."

- Moderator. This year, two respected and smart members of the Budget Committee — Republican Warren Rudman and Democrat Kent Conrad — are retiring from the Senate. They would be the questioners. "These guys know too much to let the candidates get by with a sound bite," according to Levin. "They'd pin 'em down."

- Bipartisan risk. Republicans are scared of raising taxes; Democrats are frightened of cutting entitlements. But "the national interest in controlling the deficit takes precedence over partisan advantage," according to the forthcoming resolution.

- Political realism. "The only way a presidential candidate can get a mandate to do something serious about the deficit is to discuss it in a detailed way during the campaign," said Levin. "Detailed proposals during the campaign are the precondition for presidential leadership."

Sounds too good to be true. Any chance of this actually taking place?

Levin is cautiously optimistic. He and his colleagues intend to force a vote on their resolution as soon as possible.

The reaction of the candidates gives slight grounds for optimism. Ross Perot attacked Congress for inaction, but didn't say "no." Bill Clinton said yes. The president talked about the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, but hasn't turned down the idea.

What makes this suggestion so sensible is that it helps remedy what Levin calls the "tacit truce" between all the candidates not to get into detail about the budget deficit. The text of the resolution makes the point well: "The candidates, Congress and the media have ignored or trivialized the issue."

True. Maybe in this season of discontent, some sanity will prevail. I certainly hope so.

Heal community's black eye

To the editor:

The plot thickens and the saga continues as Northville Township struggles to effect a plan to rid itself of the blight, the hazard and the very large eyesore along Sheldon and Five Mile roads. While the abandoned Wayne County complex continues to deprive our community of badly needed tax base, right across Five Mile Road, our sister community of Plymouth is expanding its very attractive and lucrative industrial park complexes and dramatically strengthening its tax base, some at our expense.

Why is it as other nearby communities continue to seek and improve, a black eye on our community for all in the Detroit metro area and much of Michigan to read about — not good P.R. I'm glad I'mplement ways to ease the tax burden on the already heavily burdened taxpayers, Northville's best opportunity still goes wanting? And then we're asked to vote for yet more millage — more taxes for our schools. I'd much rather see a concerted, progressive effort to develop our "Sheldon slum district" for homes, research facilities, offices, golf courses and light, attractive and clean industrial parks.

I was not happy to see our plight in a major story in the Detroit Free Press (Friday, May 27) with full photo coverage on the back page, not trying to sell my home now.

I hope our officials, along with county officials and our local civic and business leaders, can arrive at a plan for the good of our entire community. If one developer can't come up with the money, then split it up into parcels. Something must be done — SOON, and our elected and appointed officials held accountable for lack of progress on this issue.

Money is not the answer for education

To the Editor:

To those who care:

There has been much rhetoric regarding more money for education. For the last 50 years the money has been forthcoming.

When we put our students up against other comparable countries, our students don't measure up. There is an apparent lack of desire in our students to learn.

This desire has to be instilled by parents and educators or all the money put into education is a waste.

This country is morally and economically bankrupt. The best education we could give a child today is a desire to learn and a will not to spend what they don't have and only a portion of what you do have.

Column missed the vital issues

To the editor:

It was with great interest that I read the Tim Richard column entitled "Forum Shopping in Michigan" that appeared on page 18A of the May 28 edition of The Northville Record. I am the attorney who has been working with the Lorenz and Gross families since the tragedy of June 6, 1987, which occurred because the 1982 Ford Escort in which they were driving, despite a relatively low speed collision, completely split in two along the weld seam. I would be very grateful for an opportunity to respond to Mr. Richard's editorial.

As the attorney who accepted the serious responsibility of representing these families, and finding out why this car literally fell apart along a weld seam, we did the following:

1. Had all of the parts of the car analyzed and evaluated by engineers and metallurgists, who concluded that this car fell apart along a weld seam because of defective and missing welds.

2. Purchased a second 1982 Ford Escort, at random, and paid to have it inspected and analyzed by engineers and metallurgists, who came to the conclusion that this randomly selected 1982 Ford Escort also had defective and missing welds in the same areas as the Gross vehicle.

3. Researched the fact that the Ford Escort was designed, manufactured, assembled and inspected in Wayne County, Michigan, which is also where Ford has its world headquarters.

4. Thoroughly researched the law relative to venue in Michigan, which means where the lawsuit should be filed, which law dictated that the lawsuit should properly be filed against Ford Motor Company in the Wayne County Circuit Court.

For your readers, venue means where a lawsuit will be heard, and historically, the rules regarding venue were designed to protect potential defendants, including product manufacturers, from having to defend themselves in lawsuits all over the state. Venue essentially means that a defendant has the right to have the case heard and decided in the county most closely associated with the defendant, and the wrongful act giving rise to the litigation. In a Michigan Court of Appeals case decided several years ago, entitled Robey v Ford Motor Company, the Court of Appeals stated that it would be an unusual case where venue would not be proper in the county where a defendant had its world headquarters, and of course, in the case involving Lorenz and Gross, Ford Motor Company has its world headquarters in Wayne County, Michigan.

Mr. Richard has several mistakes in his editorial, but two of the most important are:

1. That both Wayne County Circuit Judge Marvin Stempien and Wayne County Circuit Judge Marianne Battani denied the motion of Ford Motor Company to move the case to Gratiot County, Michigan, because they both found that venue was proper in the Wayne County Circuit Court.

2. His comments about the first draft of House Bill 5150, discussed by the Legislature in 1985, do not mention that the Legislature did not pass that bill, because they knew that such a law regarding venue would harm small- and medium-sized manufacturers.

Mr. Richard, no one, except maybe the attorneys for the automotive companies, believe that the filing of a lawsuit against a manufacturer in a county where the product was made, and in the county where the manufacturer has its world headquarters, is venue shopping. On the other hand, against the background of your comments regarding forum shopping, may I ask you, and those who believe in your position, the following three questions:

1. Why do you think that Ford Motor Company, joined by other large manufacturers, has spent well over an estimated $100,000 in legal fees in their attempt to have the Lorenz and Gross cases transferred from the Wayne County Circuit Court to the Gratiot County Circuit Court?

2. Can you really say that the filing of a lawsuit against a car manufacturer, with its principal place of business in Wayne County, where the car was manufactured in Wayne County, is forum shopping?

3. If the law were as you and Ford Motor Company, and the other automotive manufacturers, want it to be, would it be fair for a small- to medium-sized manufacturer in Novi, Michigan, whose product ended up in an injury-producing accident in the Upper Peninsula, to be required to hire attorneys and defend the case in the Upper Peninsula, where the injury occurred, or would it be more sensible and fairer for the law to require that the lawsuit be filed in Oakland County, where the product was manufactured and where the small- to medium-sized company had its principal office?

Your comments regarding the political influence of the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, and the hostile business climate are rather incredible. In large measure, the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association is dedicated to the cause of the injured people in our society, and we are proud of the fact that we speak for those people and sometimes their only opportunity to speak comes in the courtroom. I ask you to consider that if the venue rule were as you and the automotive manufacturers wanted, requiring small- to medium-sized manufacturers to be prepared to defend themselves in every county in the State of Michigan, that would certainly be more harmful to the business climate than the possibility of the Ford Motor Company having to defend itself in Wayne County in this lawsuit.

You and your readers should also know that over the past 10 to 15 years, many automotive company executives have acknowledged that many of their safety-related decisions have been made because of the threat of product liability litigation.

In closing, I would make a sincere and open invitation to Mr. Richard, and others who may believe in his position, to spend a day with me, interviewing a person injured because of the negligence of another, or because of the intoxication of another, or because of a defective product, and then, let us decide together if we should exercise that person's constitutional right to have a jury of six people, called from the community, to listen to all of the evidence and make a decision as to whether that injured person deserves compensation. I would certainly welcome that opportunity, Mr. Richard.

More than the Rouge got rescued

To the editor:

This morning, June 6, my grandson, Jason Safoutin, and myself were part of the "Rough Rescue" effort. The first thing that had to be rescued was Jason. Being an 11-year-old, he thinks there is nothing that he can't do, including crossing the river on an old tree trunk. Not only did Jason fall into the river, he opted to fall in right in the middle of the worst gunk gathered by a log jam that we were supposed to clean out.

Jason can swim, but the surprise of falling in, the cold temperature of the water, and the nasty stuff that was there caused him to have a moment of panic. One of the men working there did not hesitate. He jumped into the water immediately, made his way over to Jason and pushed him up on a log. The gentleman's name is Jim Nowka.

I do not know this man, nor does my grandson. But with no thought of the consequences he came to Jason's rescue immediately. I would like to publicly thank Mr. Nowka and make the community aware of what a wonderful person he is. His quick action saved my grandson and for that I will be eternally grateful to him.

Jason and I stayed and helped the other workers free the jam and let the Rouge run rapidly, through that section anyway. I would like Jason's experience to be a warning to parents and children. The river is cold and very deep and even kids who know how to swim can panic if they fall in. Make sure your children aren't playing on the banks of the Rouge or we may yet have a tragedy this summer.

Again, Mr. Nowka, thank you. Elizabeth A. Grajek

Thanks to longtime troop sponsors

To the editor:

We would like to say a big thanks to Jim and Liz DeLano and the Northville Pizza Cutter for being our troop sponsor for the last few years! Their financial support and their pizza treats were greatly appreciated. Once again, Jim and Liz need to be commended on the contribution they have made to the youth of Northville and to the community.

Much effort went into millage drive

To the editor:

Citizens for Quality Education would like to thank Mike Sullivan, senior vice president and creative director of W.B. Doner, and Dan Hackett, president of Hackett Productions, for their donations of time and expertise in the production of the television commercial in support of the Northville Public School millage on June 8. This prestigious talent was available to us because they are pleased with the schools and do not want to see the quality eroded.

In addition, we would like to thank Omnicon Cable, especially Lisa Boland and her staff, for their cooperation in scheduling the commercial and assistance in arranging the public access interview with Dr. Rezmierski and Jean Hansen. Omnicon has taken a personal interest in assisting with the dissemination of information so that voters can make an informed decision on the millage. They have proven to be truly responsive to the needs of the community.

Thanks also to Tom Petty, Michigan Wholesale Printing, for printing the fliers and putting up with last minute changes.

To all of you who have distributed fliers, collected names for the ad, talked with neighbors and friends, or assisted in any way with the millage campaign, thank you. This campaign has been a community-wide effort.

To the editor:

We want to sincerely thank everyone for their thoughts, memorials, flowers, cards, food, and prayers given at the time of the death of Fred A. Casterline. It was deeply appreciated.

Sponsors made trip possible

To the editor:

I am a junior at Northville High School. In September of last year I received a letter informing me that I had been accepted into the International Choir at Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp. Since the cost of such a trip was so high I sent a letter to businesses and clubs around Northville asking them to sponsor me for my trip. Many people responded to this letter. Some were able to contribute, and some sent me their best wishes. I would particularly like to thank those people who were able to sponsor me:

Crawford's, Omnicon of Michigan, King's Daughters, Northville Rotary Club, Northville Mothers Club, The Lowers, William Craft, The Fischers, Pat and Jennifer Guy, Jackson Trotting Association.

I will be leaving for Europe on June 21 and will be traveling to France, Germany, and Austria for 21 days. I cannot thank these individuals and groups enough for their generosity. It is wonderful to live in a community that supports students in the arts.

Dorothy and Bonnie Tilney have beaten the odds on and off the rink.

Tilneys' triumph

'She's learned to be herself and she's happy doing it. That's the biggest achievement for a mother.'

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

It's the same old story. The doctor tells his patient she may never walk again. And by some miracle, she does. It's the stuff feature films are made of.

But Bonnie Tilney's story is no box office drama. Her success as a six-time state champion rollerskater is by no means the workings of some surreal force. It's taken years of hard work, perseverance and determination to get her back on her feet . . . literally.

Years ago, a younger Tilney was told she'd contracted osteo- arthritis in both ankles. The condition which chewed away at her ankle bones was attributed to skating injuries that were never properly cared for.

The news was heart-breaking. It left a hopeful 21-year-old rollerskating champion devastated, shocked and distraught.

"The doctor took X-rays of my ankles and told me I had the ankles of a 70-year-old woman at the age of 20," Tilney said.

Her disbelief turned to denial. "I was in shock. The fellow who told me was someone I went to grade school with,"

she said. "I just remembering saying, 'No, I can't have that. Nobody in my family has it.'"

Months of inactivity due to weakened ankles, and complicated by the loss of her father and high stress levels, all played roles in Tilney becoming obese. A surgical procedure to correct the arthritis kept her off her feet and out of the rink. Required bedrest and months of inactivity wreaked havoc, and caused Tilney to tip the scale upwards of 300 pounds.

The weight gain only put more strain on her condition and posed additional health hazards. Something had to be done. Dieting was impossible and pointless.

After rejecting a doctor's recommendation to have her jaws wired shut, Tilney sought out a more permanent solution to cure her weight problem.

"I had my intestine separated," she said. "The doctors wanted to wire my jaw shut, but I knew that once the wires came off, I'd right back at it. I knew this was a drastic way of doing it, but I had to ask myself, do I really want to deal with this every day of my life?"

The answer was no. She had the surgery performed and lost the weight. That was five years ago.

McDonnell works with new mothers on the job

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

"It's hard to separate myself from it," said Mary Anne McDonnell, who as a social worker was employed for more than 13 years at St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center in Fannington Hills, working with teens and young women during and after an unplanned pregnancy.

Since retirement last year McDonnell has been doing advocacy work to get funding for the center -- letter writing, contracting other agencies, putting things in church papers, asking people to write to their congressmen "not to cut off our funds," she said.

And most recently she has joined a group of men and women in a training class for a Speakers Bureau, studying how to give an effective seven minute speech to small agencies, churches, and Christian service organizations in the metropolitan area on the services provided in the pregnancy program and the need for funding to maintain it.

"We meet once a week for six weeks," she said, "and we meet again at the fall."

"There will be given an outline to use. There will be rehearsing, and we'll be critiqued."

"Of course each person will have a different style," she said, and in her case "I can tell stories," having worked there for so long.

When the volunteers are ready to go out, McDonnell said, they'll be getting cars. "We need somebody at such and such a place. Will you take it?"

As for volunteer opportunities for people with or without degrees in Social Work, Mary Anne McDonnell suggested a few ways to help. Volunteers can drive women to medical appointments, do secretarial work, answer phones, donate items for new babies and rock new babies.

If you are interested, call the St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center at 626 7527 and ask for the volunteer coordinator, or for Jacki Kelsay, who is in charge of community relations.

Classy reunion

Northville High School's Class of 1937 held its 55th class reunion Saturday at the Novi Hilton. Twenty-one members of the student body returned to the hometown of their alma mater to catch up with former classmates. Bruce Turnbull, class president, said classmates had a good time reminiscing and shooting the breeze.

"We had a very successful reunion," Turnbull said. "We had 21 of the original 56 class members here."

Classmate Carl Stephens agreed. "It was a very nice party," he said. "We've been having reunions every five years, but we decided this year our next one would be in three years. At our age we can't afford to wait another five years," he said jokingly.

Classmates traveled in from around the state and as far as Florida and Illinois. As an ice-breaking activity, classmates were asked to share their best memories about high school. Each one told a separate anecdote, Turnbull said.

Commemorative plates honoring Northville's sesquicentennial, donated by the Northville Historical Society, served as door prizes at the reunion. The Chamber of Commerce also donated a slew of memorabilia to reunion attendees.

"Some look pretty much the same as they did in high school, only older," Stephens said about some of his classmates.

Pictured at left are the classmates who returned to the reunion, all seated behind their composite class picture taken in 1937.

The class's next reunion will be held in 1995.

Rollerskaters triumph in life's winners' circle

Today Tilney, now 44, competes in amateur dance and figure rollerskating competitions and boasts five state championship medals, six state championship titles, a regional title and a fifth place trophy in the national competition. Still an amateur contender, Tilney qualified at the state competition show-down held last Friday at the Skatin' Station in Canton. She took second place in the dance competition and earned a slot in the upcoming regional competition. The regionals will pit Tilney against younger skaters from the five-state area encompassing Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan.

"It was easier than I expected," Tilney said about returning to the rink after a long hiatus. "But I worked very hard. I practiced every morning before I went to work, and I skated every day for two hours."

"It's a lot to have accomplished in five short years," said Dorothy Tilney, Bonnie's mother and roommate in Northville's Highland Lakes subdivision. Dorothy Tilney, a bright-eyed and enthusiastic senior citizen, is also an avid rollerskater. At 72, Dorothy finds her way to the skating rink twice a week to get some exercise, strengthen and tone.

While the two seldom work out at the rink together, they do share a philosophy and an over-zealous appetite for success.

Both are avid rollerskaters who have beaten the odds.

For Dorothy, getting back on skates three to four weeks ago achieved a goal of her own.

Last July, Dorothy had a full hip replacement that left her confined to a walker at first. Weekly physical therapy restored her strength and encouraged her to use a cane. Promptly ridding herself of the cane, she's learned to walk with the hip prosthesis and "to get back on wheels."

"We started out skating together," Dorothy remembered. "I took the adult class and she took the children's class. But I had to stop to go back to work. That was 25 years ago," she said. "Now I just do some of the simple things, the waltzes and the polkas. I enjoy that, but Bonnie's the one to watch."

Dorothy's determination and zest for life is overshadowed only by her love for Bonnie.

"It's very gratifying to know that she can do it," Dorothy said. "I remember when she first got back in the rink, she took first place and, oh, I just can't tell you how we felt. As a mother it is the hardest thing to sit back and watch a child struggle. But you know you have to, and you just know that she has to do it for herself. And she did."

"You can't do everything for your child," she said. "But you can show them how to do it."

Both Tilneys are proud of Bonnie's accomplishments. Pictures of her decorate the mantel and end tables in the pair's home. Upstairs in Bonnie's bedroom, plaques, medals and trophies from her five-year amateur career cover an entire wall and serve as testament to her determination.

"I'm amazed," Dorothy said, gleaming at Bonnie's awards. "Over such a short time that she's accomplished all this. It's fantastic."

Working hard has its price. Every now and then she gets an inkling in her feet, a subtle reminder the arthritis is there, but that doesn't slow her down any.

For the most part, Bonnie's ankles have healed. Rarely do they hurt enough to cause her to miss a day of practice with coach Joe O'Doherty.

"Every now and then it bothers me, but I just ignore it and take an aspirin," she said. "The more active I am the less it hurts, and the more I hurt the more I need to exercise."

The dynamics between mother and daughter are the stuff on which good books and movies are based. It's the success of child from the encouragement of a parent. It's seeing a child blossom and find herself through hard work and perseverance.

"She's found herself; that's what's most important," Dorothy said. "I'm very proud of her. She's learned to be herself and she's happy doing it. That's the biggest achievement for a mother."

Although she's proud of what's she done, Bonnie doesn't want to be stereotyped and recognized for beating the odds.

"For every person like me, there's another who has a story just like it," she said. "I don't consider me that unusual. One man at Northland Skating Rink calls me the 'miracle child,' but I don't think I've really done anything unusual."

Students take top forensics awards

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

The efforts of two Meads Mill Middle School students in forensics paid off last month when they took top honors at the state forensics meet in Ann Arbor.

Justin Scanser, an eighth-grader at Meads Mill, took first place in the dramatic interpretation category of the Michigan Interscholastic Forensics Association competition held May 8 on the campus of the University of Michigan.

Scanser performed a 5-8 minute recitation of a well-known passage from "Camelot," the musical tale about the legend of King Arthur.

"I've always liked 'Camelot,' Scanser said. "It's kind of a personal love. I'm just fascinated by King Arthur."

Scanser said he and his other team members started practicing for the annual competition under the direction of Meads Mill forensics coach Shirley Klokenga in January. Since then he's rehearsed in front of Klok-enga's classes, his own classes and before an audience of teachers. Most recently, Scanser and fellow state winner Kevin Becker performed before the school board.

Becker took third place in the original oratory division in the state competition for his speech on AIDS. Sparked by Earvin "Magic" Johnson's announcement that he had contracted the human immunodeficiency virus, Becker's speech, an original work, criticizes people who label and ridicule victims of the HIV.

"It is really unfair how people are treated once they test positive," Becker said. "I did more research and found out that there's a lot more of that going on out there."

After researching magazine and newspaper articles on the subject, Becker used Nathaniel Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter" to draw on.

Forensics coach Klokenga said the boys were selected from more than 400 students from some 20 schools participating in the state competition.

Musical profits to dress church choir

When Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall opens its dinner theater production of Fiddler on the Roof July 17, the choir of the First United Methodist Church of Northville is hoping for a big turnout.

That's because the performance is a benefit to help raise the $7,000 needed to buy new choir robes for the church. Genitti's has agreed to donate part of the proceeds from the opening night production to the cause.

The dinner theater production involves the full Genitti's dinner, followed by the classic musical by Joseph Stein, Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick. The play will be in the Masonic Temple just upstairs from Genitti's. Dinner will be at 7 p.m. with the show at 8:30.

Cost for dinner and the show is $34.95 per person, with limited seating, so early reservations are encouraged. For tickets to the benefit performance, see the church, on Eight Mile at Taft, between 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

The dinner theater production will also run July 18, 23, 25, 25, 30, 31 and Aug. 1. For reservations for any of those shows, call Genitti's at 349-0522.

Fireworks highlight Flag Day

By RYAN TUTAK
Staff Writer

Salem Township will celebrate Flag Day for the eighth straight year this Saturday in an event considered unique in Michigan.

The community will paint the town red, white and blue in an all-day commemoration, featuring the popular parade of bikes and floats, square dancing and a small carnival.

For the first time, the township will hold a contest for the best decorated floats and bikes. From 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. at Salem Elementary School, 7806 Salem Road, judges will vote on the best decorated entries among the expected 10 floats and 30 bikes.

The parade, which begins at 11 a.m., will include floats, bikes and fire trucks from Salem, South Lyon, Ann Arbor and Superior Township, as well as walkers carrying miniature American flags.

It will wind through the four blocks in the township's hamlet, starting at the elementary school, traveling north on Clinton and Leota to Six Mile Road, then turning east. It will make a right on Pearl Street and conclude by circling the Township Hall.

A ceremony follows the parade at the township hall, where Raymond Givens will lay a wreath on the V.F.W. monument for members of the U.S. Army from Salem.

At 12:45 p.m. a bike race will begin for adults and children in an open field at the elementary school. At the same time, the school will be the site of a balloon-throwing contest with teams of one adult and one child.

Square dancing will be offered at the township hall parking lot with Jack Le Pan of Ypsilanti playing records from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The next two hours at the parking lot will feature karaoke, provided by the 700 Bowl in South Lyon.

From 6 p.m. to 10 p.m., Salem

Elementary will host a mini-carnival that includes a moonwalk, ballwalk and a Sea Dragon ride that features a boat rocking back and forth on the end of a pole like a pendulum.

Flag Day concludes with a half-hour of fireworks scheduled to begin at dusk, around 9:45 p.m.

Shree Gross, coordinator of the event the last five years, said Flag Day festivities have been a great success in Salem.

"It draws the community together," Gross said. "Everyone gets real excited. They mow their lawn and plant flowers or paint their house. It's great to get the community to look better."

In conjunction with Salem's Flag Day Celebration, the Salem Area Historical Society presents an exhibit on the township's nine country schools.

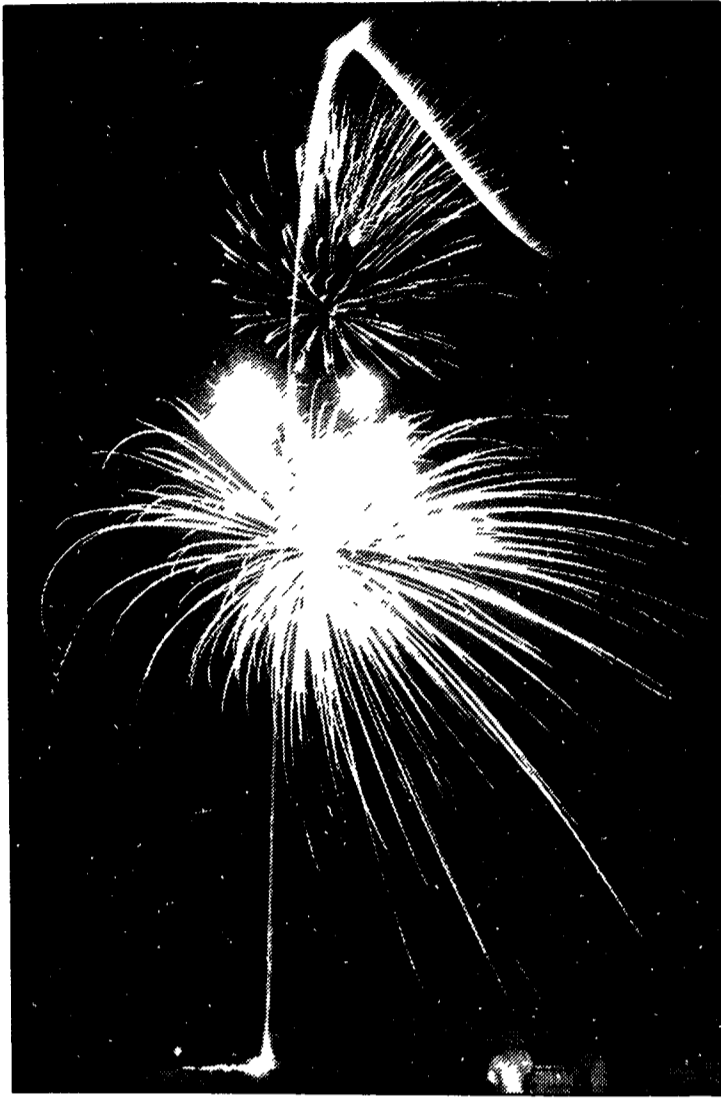

This is the third year the club has sponsored a historical exhibit during the celebration. Crystall Keller, secretary of the club, said each year the theme is unique.

A display of photos and text will be available for browsing at the Salem Township Hall 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, June 12 and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 13. A reception and guest speaker have been lined up for 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Associate Professor Ralph G. Williams from the University of Michigan's English department will talk about education in the country school. He is the winner of this year's student-sponsored Golden Apple Award for best teacher.

The nine schools featured in the exhibit will be Geer, Lapham, Worden, Wash Oak, Walker, Thayer, the Stone School, Salem Union and Townline.

Keller said the exhibit has become a tradition for the historical society. The group plans to offer one in 1993, but has not yet decided on the subject matter.

No fireworks are planned in Northville this year, but fans can get their annual dose this Saturday in Salem.

Q&A

By WILLIAM T. TOMICKI
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Q: Can you recommend a small, non-commercial hotel in western Germany?

A: Travelers to Baden-Baden may enjoy a hotel called Der Kleine Prinz (The Little Prince) in the heart of the city. It is a 17-room hotel inside a remodeled 100-year-old Victorian building. Some of the antique rooms have fireplaces and balconies for homey European style. They also have modern hair dryers and color televisions. An elegant restaurant and cozy bar with a blazing fireplace are available to all guests.

The hotel is owned and operated by Norbert Rademacher, who spent 22 years working in American fine hotels.

For further information contact a local travel agent or Der Kleine Prinz, Lichtentaler Strasse 36, D-770, den-Baden, Germany. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: We've seen photographs of the famous Iwo Jima statue. Where can we see it for real?

A: It stands on Arlington Boulevard near the Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia. This Marine Corps war memorial depicts the heroic raising of the American flag on Mount Suribachi, Iwo Jima, Feb. 23, 1945.

There is a parade and concert at the statue every Tuesday evening at sunset during May, June, July and August. For further information contact the Arlington Visitors Center, 735 S. 18th St., Arlington, Va. 22202 or call (703) 358-5720. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: We're traveling to Kansas with our children this year. Where can we take them?

A: If you're passing through the town of Chanute, Kan., the Martin and Osa Johnson Safari Museum is a good bet. The Johnsons were a Kansas couple who made some of the earliest wildlife films and photographs. In the mid- to late 1900s they made pioneering expeditions to Africa and the South Seas.

The museum contains artifacts, memorabilia, and photographic records of their journeys as well as films of many long-vanished primitive cultures.

Some of the artifacts are from Borneo adventures when the Johnsons barely escaped from cannibal tribes.

For further information contact the Safari Museum at 16 S. Grant Ave., Chanute, Kan. 66720 or call (316) 431-2730. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: Is it true we can study restored Victorian architecture in Guthrie, Okla.?

A: Actually, some 1,600 acres in Guthrie, Okla., are now listed in the National Historic register as a repository of one of America's most complete collections of Victorian buildings.

The area includes 160 commercial structures in Guthrie's central business district and numerous Victorian mansions. Also being restored to their 1907-1917-era splendor are the Guthrie Railroad Hotel, the former opera house and the Pollard Theater.

Guthrie has had many famous residents through the years, among them actors Tom Mix, Lon Chaney and Will Rogers, temperance agitator Carry Nation; and short-story author O. Henry. For further information contact the Guthrie Chamber of Commerce at (405) 282-1947. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Readers are invited to submit questions to William Tomicki, P.O. Box 5148, Santa Barbara, Calif. 93150.

Rio's counting on Earth Summit

South American playground hopes to polish up tarnished image

By JAMES BROOKE
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Back in the days when environmentalists called themselves naturalists and traveled by steamship, Rio de Janeiro's green forests, gray granite hills and South Atlantic beaches exerted a legendary allure.

So it is appropriate that 30,000 environmentalists descended by jet on Rio, a tropical city where nature is never far from view.

Formally called the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, the meetings will last through June 14.

Preparing for what may be modern history's largest environmental gathering, Rio's city leaders have invested heavily, hoping to reverse in one stroke a negative image of crime and decay.

From Rio's newly refurbished international airport visitors speed down a specially constructed five-mile superhighway that feeds into tunnels leading to the Southern Zone's beachfront neighborhoods.

Along 20 miles of open ocean beaches, from Copacabana to Barra da Tijuca, new sidewalks, new bicycle paths, new food kiosks, tightened water pollution control and improved police protection have restored Rio's special lure — the urban beach.

Despite its surface sensuality, however, Rio is not a Caribbean resort but a city of 6 million people, largely poor, and street crime is a serious problem.

Avoid pickpockets by walking in the same alert way you would in the downtown streets of a large American city. Leave your hotel with the minimum — a cheap watch, a photocopy of your passport, enough cash for the day and, if necessary, a camera hidden in an old shopping bag.

WHAT TO SEE

The way to truly enjoy Rio's exuberant flora and fauna is on foot. For $1 admission the doors swing open at the Botanical Garden, in the neighborhood of the same name, Jardim Botânico.

One square kilometer of greenery planted in the heart of the city, the 184-year-old garden contains 6,200 species of plants and trees from all over the tropics. Spruced up with its largest cleanup in 40 years, the garden's well-kept paths are ideal for quiet walks and quiet talks. The garden is open Tuesday through Sunday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Visitors who do not have the time to fly 2,000 miles north to the Amazon will be happy to discover that an untouched chunk of rain forest is a 20-minute $10 cab ride from downtown Rio.

Tijuca National Forest, a dense, 13-square-mile tangle of Atlantic jungle, is considered the largest urban forest in the world. Hikers routinely get lost, marooned in wilderness only a few miles from a city of 6 million people.

Brazil Nuts, a travel agency here, offers a Tijuca National Park Ecology hike — a six-hour, $50-a-person

Travelers take a cable train up Corcovado Mountain to see Christ the Redeemer, Rio's landmark statue program that includes a guided hike to the 3,350-foot summit of Tijuca Mountain and a stop for lunch ($10 extra) at the Floresta Restaurant, an 18th-century house renowned for the hummingbirds on its veranda.

On most tours here, prices are lower for larger groups. For more information call Brazil Nuts in Rio, 511-3636, or Brazil Nuts in Fairfield, Conn., (800) 553-9959.

Another colonial structure worth visiting is the Acude Museum, located at Estrada do Acude, Alta da Boa Vista. Surrounded by walking trails and endowed with a rare collection of Portuguese tiles, this museum on the edge of Tijuca park reopened May 30 after extensive renovations.

Indeed, in preparation for the Earth Summit, 240 workers have cleaned trails and spruced up the park. The museum is open from Thursday to Sunday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is 40 cents.

WHAT TO DO

In a city filled with fresh-air excursions a newly popular outing is to rent bicycles and pedal down the new paths alongside beaches or around Rio's internal lagoon.

Bicycles can be rented for $2 an hour from a tattooed young surfer named Robson who operates the southernmost food stand on Leblon's oceanfront avenue, Delfim Moreira, near Rua Rita Ludolf. (Note that all prices may briefly balloon during the Earth Summit.)

To master Rio's confusing geography of hills, tunnels and beaches, first-time visitors traditionally have climbed to Rio's landmark statue, Christ the Redeemer, at the top of 2,329-foot Corcovado Mountain. Access is by taxi or funicular train, which leaves every hour during daylight from 513 Rua Cosme Velho.

The visit has been improved by a recently completed $2 million overhaul of the 61-year-old statue.

WHERE TO STAY

About 30 apart-hotels, as they are known, offer small apartments by the day or week.

Claridge in Leblon, located at 156 Rainha Guilhermina, is clean and convenient. For more information call 266-1919.

Others include: Ipanema Flat, located at 137 Gomes Carneiro, 287-9292, and Tiffany in Ipanema, located at 302 Prudente de Moraes, 521-4418. Day rates for a small apartment with kitchen average about $70.

Among the medium-priced hotels — $60 for a double room, breakfast included — the Arpoador Inn, located at 177 Rua Francisco Otaviano, offers rooms with a view of Ipanema beach. For more information call 247-6090.

The Lancaster Hotel, located at 1470 Avenida Atlantica, is a beachfront establishment that offers the standard double room with breakfast for $75. For more information call 541-1887.

Luxury: The favorite of heads of state this June is the cream-colored, Riviera-style Copacabana Palace, located at 1702 Avenida Atlantica. The 1923 landmark will undergo a $40 million renovation beginning in July. For more information call 255-7070.

Officially, all major beach hotels are booked solid. But, as one travel agent confided recently, some reservation clerks will find a room in return for a consideration.

The rates for popular hotels on the shore are: Caesar Park in Ipanema, located at 460 Vieira Souto, 287-3122, $258 for two; Meridien in Copacabana, located at 1020 Avenida Atlantica, 275-9922, $197 for two; Rio Palace in Copacabana, located at 4240 Avenida Atlantica, 521-3232, $268 for two; the SHERAcated across from 236 Avenida Vieira Souto. At either a meal for two without wine is about $25.

Barra, a soulless community of glass and aluminum high-rises, is known for its jolly churrascarias — steakhouses that work on a $20, all-you-can-eat system. With waiters bringing a different cut about every three minutes the trick is to hold off until the better beef arrives.

Try: Baby-Beef Paes Mendonca, located at 1510 Avenida das Americas, or Porcao, located at 591 Avenida Armando Lombardi. For more information call 399-2187 and 399-3355, respectively.

A different restaurant scene revolves around Flamengo Park on the waterfront, where an estimated 15,000 representatives of private environmental groups will gather daily for the Global Forum, an unofficial event.

Two moderately expensive seafood restaurants bracket the Forum complex: five blocks south is Rio's, a large, flowery establishment. For more information call 551-1131.

Three blocks north, in Gloria Marina, is Barracuda, a small, elegant luncheon haunt for downtown executives. For more information call 389-3385. A meal for two without wine is about $20 at either place.

A short walk or taxi ride away from Global Forum are two of my favorite restaurants: Lamas, located at 18 Rua Marques de Abrantes, a halcyon and inexpensive hash house for Rio's intellectuals, and Casa da Suica, a restaurant where stiff formality inevitably dissolves around a table of cheese fondue.

At Lamas a meal for two without wine is about $20; at Casa da Suica, about $35. For more information call 205-0799 and 252-5182, respectively.

NIGHT LIFE

A new music center emerged this year in an old downtown neighborhood, Lapa.

Benefiting from a major face-lift, a trapezoid area around a trolley viaduct now boasts: Circo Voador, located at Rua Dos Arcos, 221-0405 (for informal concerts); Asa Branca, located at 17 Avenida Mem de Sa, 252-4428 (for ballroom dancing); and Sala Cecilia Meirelles, located at 47 Largo da Lapa, 232-9714 (for classical recitals).

Minnesota's 'boundary waters' offer unique camping excursions

By GENE and ADELE MALOTT
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Those who talk about the "awesome silence" of Minnesota's Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA) might want to listen again.

Even at night, the area is full of nature sounds. The water laps at the shores and over boulders; fish splash in the lakes; owls hoot.

Last September we heard nature's symphony during four days of canoeing, fishing and portaging through the area — just off the Gunflint Trail northwest of Lake Superior.

Except for our young guide Bryan Dunlap, we were all travelers age 49 and older on one of the trips organized each year for seniors by the firm Canoe Country Escapes.

We had to make short portages, sometimes carrying lightweight canoes over our heads. We hauled our own 15-to-20 pound knapsacks and paddled the canoes for 37 miles.

It was real camping out. We carried flashlights, long underwear, towels — and toilet paper — into the woods. It was not a trip for people on special diets. There were no vegetarian or low-calorie meals in the woods. We ate heartily, but worked it off portaging and pulling on a paddle.

Fortunately, there was no traditional camp drudgery: no portaging and ditching tents, tying knots or peeling onions. The guide and a packer did the camp work.

It was a trip any reasonably healthy senior with good legs could manage.

The only one in our party of mature travelers who had done any special physical conditioning before the trip was George Klacan. He is an agricultural scientist from LeSeuer, Minn., who is in his early 60s.

The Boundary Waters Canoe Area was the nation's first designated wilderness, a complex web of interconnected rivers and lakes between northeastern Minnesota and southern Manitoba.

Motors of all kinds have been restricted since 1959; none is permitted over 25 horsepower. In most of the BWCA and Canada's adjoining Quetico National Forest, no motors are permitted at all.

After dinner at the Gunflint Lodge, Dunlap told us we'd canoe 37 miles, negotiate a few rapids and make about a dozen portages, the longest being about one-third of a mile.

We'd camp out for two nights and stay at the Chipewewa Lodge in Canada another night. During the next four days, he said, there would be no baths or showers — and no other plumbing except at Chipewewa Lodge.

During the journey our three canoes stayed close together — so we could talk.

We learned the names of unfamiliar birds and trees. We observed the habits of loons — figuring out where the word "looney" might have come from.

On portages we saw moose tracks (but no moose) and wondered how long ago the animals had been where we stood. We drank water right out of the lake.

The woods were just starting to change color, with fiery bursts of red, orange and yellow on the mountain ash, birch and aspen trees.

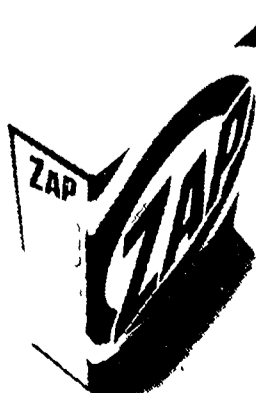

This year's canoe trip through the BWCA just for mature travelers are scheduled for July 11-17, Aug. 16-23 and Sept. 1-8. The costs range from $695 to $845 per person.

Schuerman, Jambor, Whiteley make first team

Although Canton and Rochester Adams squared off for the Michigan Class A title last week, it's doubtful either of those teams could top the arsenal of talent HomeTown Newspapers has assembled for the 1992 East All-Area Soccer team.

Scoring punch, in Northville's Valerie Schuerman and Lakeland's Grace Dinverno; tough defense; and top-notch goal keeping are all a part of our first-team selections. The talent crop was so bountiful this year we had to expand our lists to handle the harvest.

The team is chosen from Northville, Novi, Milford, Lakeland and South Lyon high schools.

VALERIE SCHUERMAN — Northville forward

A runner-up for Player of the Year honors, Schuerman put together an outstanding season for the Mustangs. The junior led Northville with 11 goals and 18 assists (40 points) in what is regarded as the toughest soccer league in the state, the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"She had the potential of scoring every time out," said coach Bob Paul. "She could score from anywhere."

Schuerman is a lightning-quick player with a powerful shot, he added. Paul said Schuerman could very well better her numbers next season.

TRACY JAMBOR — Northville defender

The senior split time between sweeper and halfback for the Mustangs this season. Paul was impressed that she was able to make the transition between positions so easily.

"The ability for her to go out and play the position as well as she did is a testament to her skills," he said.

The coach said Jambor's move allowed him to develop other defensive players and make the team stronger overall. "She was a leader on the team," Paul said.

Jambor had three goals and two assists. She was a tri-captain.

LAURA WHITELEY — Northville midfielder

Another of Northville's tri-

Valerie Schuerman was runner up for player of the year.

captains, Whiteley was the team's "playmaker." Paul said the senior was adept at distributing and controlling the ball.

Besides quarterbacking the Mustangs, the senior was often selected to mark the opposition's top offensive player. Paul said Whiteley will be hard to replace.

She scored three goals and added five assists. Whiteley was a Second Team All-Area pick a year ago.

LISA GATT — Novi forward

Injuries kept her statistics down, but Gatt was Novi's best forward this season for first year coach Larry Christoff. The senior, who made Second Team All-Area last year, recorded three goals and five assists (11 points).

"She was the one who distributed the ball to everyone else," Christoff said.

The coach added that Gatt often controlled the middle of the field with her excellent play. She was an all-Kensington Valley Conference selection and co-captained the Wildcats.

GRACE DINVERNO — Lakeland forward

"Amazing" Grace was the scoring wizard of the area this season. The sophomore punched home 22 goals and added five assists (47 points).

"She came a long way this season," said Lakeland coach Mike Braden. "She has the skills to finish at the net."

Dinverno, a second team All-Area selection last year, was a key to the Lakeland offense not only as a scorer, but a decoy as well.

"People have to watch her," Braden said. "Even if she doesn't have the ball the defense has to know where she's at. The mental aspect of the game and what things can be done without the ball really improved at the end of the year."

Dinverno was an All-KVC selection, named All-Region, All-Academic KVC and was an honorable mention pick for All-State.

DEE LORENZ — Milford forward

"Dangerous" Dee provided much of the muscle for a versatile Redskin offense. Lorenz, who was a first team All-Area selection last year, fired home 16 goals and also proved to be a prolific passer as she racked up 12 assists (44 points).

Lorenz, a Milford co-captain, was named All-KVC, All-Region and was an honorable mention for All-State.

Lorenz will continue her soccer career next fall at Schoolcraft College.

MEGAN EVANS — Lakeland sweeper

The 1992 Hometown Newspapers Player of the Year anchored one of the strongest defenses in the KVC. The Eagles allowed 11 goals in 15 games for a team goals-against average of .733.

"She's not flashy, she's just everything we expected," said Braden. Evans, who was a first team All-Area selection last year, has been Lakeland's top defender for the last two seasons. She will be difficult for the Eagles to replace next year.

"We expected big things from her and she never let us down," Braden said. "She's got a big heart and really knows the game."

Evans was selected All-Region, All-KVC and was an honorable mention for All-State.

MEGAN HAYES — South Lyon defender

Hayes took the brunt of a tough season for the Lion defense, and her ability to shut down a single-player offense was key to South Lyon's wins.

"She is a very physical, strong player," South Lyon coach Bill Stevanovic said. "She is a leader on defense." One of Hayes' strengths was leading by example on the field.

"She has the ability to stride first," Stevanovic said. "She's not afraid to go after the ball. She is very aggressive towards the ball."

Hayes was an honorable mention All-Area pick last year and an All-KVC pick this year.

TANYA SHEPLEY — Novi defender

The multi-talented Shepley was a jill-of-all-trades for the Wildcats, playing both offensive and defensive positions when needed. She led Novi with six goals.

Shepley, also an outstanding golfer, was an all-KVC pick and named Novi's "hardest working athlete." She had a pair of assists to go with her goals scored.

KELLY GREAVES — Lakeland midfielder

Greaves, who was an honorable mention All-Area selection last year, moved up to the first squad after an impressive senior season.

"She's had to be a constant workhorse for us," Braden said. "She works hard at both the offensive and defensive ends of the field."

Four Mustangs on second squad

HomeTown Newspapers' East All-Area Second Team features several sure bets for next year's top team.

Northville's Renee Androsian and Jessica Jones, for example, have shown tremendous potential in their underclass years and were close to being selected for the first team. Offensive and defensive talent abound on the second team — look for these names in next year's stories.

RENEE ANDROSIAN — Northville forward

The sophomore started slowly for the Mustangs this season but came on strong in the final quarter, said assistant coach Doug Lyon. Androsian notched seven goals and seven assists this season.

Lyon noted that his player dominated in some late-season games, including Northville's district championship win over Lakeland. The coach said she shows experience beyond her years.

"Her strength is in her ball control and understanding of the game," Lyon said.

As a freshman, Androsian was an all-area first team pick. Lyon said she will be a major weapon in Northville's attack next spring.

WENDY CARROLL — Northville forward

The senior was selected as Northville's most valuable player. Coach Bob Paul described Carroll as the consummate team player.

"She was such a team player," he said. "She truly was a tremendous role model."

Carroll often played on the right side of Androsian and Val Schuerman. She contributed four goals and five assists to the Mustang attack this season.

Paul said his young squad often looked to the senior for leadership on the field — and got it.

"Wendy was everything you would want a captain to be," he commented.

LISA BERNARDO — Northville defender

The freshman started off as a full-back and moved to the critical position of sweeper halfway through the year. Bernardo didn't look out of place, either.

"She shined like a senior would have," said Lyon. "It was a surprise to all of us that she was able to move in and do the job she did."

The coach added that Bernardo will likely have a lock on the position for her final three years in Northville. Lyon described Bernardo as a strong, skilled player.

"Her skill and understanding of the game is great," he said.

Bernardo had one goal and one assist at the top defensive position.

JESSICA JONES — Northville goalie

Another of Northville's great freshman class, Jones just missed being named our first-team goalkeeper. With nine shutouts to her credit, she was certainly a lock for the second team.

In a conference that has dominated the state soccer scene for a decade, the Western Lakes Activities Association, Jones carried on Northville's tradition of top goaltending.

"We've always had extremely good goalies," said Lyon. "She's another who has just popped right up."

HOLLY OSBORN — Milford forward

Osborn made it clear to the Kensington Valley Conference that she is a force to be reckoned with for the next three years. The freshman drove home 10 goals and finished six assists (26 points) this year.

With the graduation of Milford's top weapon "Dangerous" Dee Lorenz, much of the scoring burden will fall on the young shoulders of Osborn next season.

GINA ANGELOSANTO — South Lyon forward

Speed kills, and if Angelosanto, a junior, picks up the skills needed to finish offensive runs she will leave a lot of dead defenders in her wake next season.

"She is very fast," said South Lyon coach Bill Stevanovic. "She has a super kick with either foot." Angelosanto, who had three goals this season, repeatedly demonstrated the ability to get by defenders but had trouble finding the back of the net.

"She gets too excited," explained Stevanovic. "She has to calm down." Angelosanto and junior Lynette Fisher (3 goals) will be looked to for senior leadership next year.

"I am looking forward to her best season next year," Stevanovic said.

JUSTINE TOMPKINS — Milford defender

"Genius" Justine was a mainstay of the Redskins' defense this season. Her senior knowledge and on-field intelligence was crucial in organizing the Milford defense against KVC powers Lakeland and Brighton.

Tompkins was awarded the 1992 Michigan High School Athletic Association's Scholar-Athlete Award for girls soccer. Tompkins, a Milford co-captain and co-valedictorian, received a $1,000 scholarship to the college of her choice from the MHSAA.

JESSICA WIKNICH — Lakeland defender

Wiknich, a sophomore, has been a starter since her first game last year. Last season she played the outside, but this year she was called on to anchor the middle.

"Jessica stepped right in the center and played stopper," Braden said. "Her heads-up play and overall speed throw off the offensive schemes of other teams." Wiknich is a key to replacing the highly effective defense of Lakeland, which graduates Megan Evans and Kelly Greaves.

"Defensively, she's going to have to fill Megan's shoes," Braden said. The 1992 HomeTown Newspapers Coach

Lakeland's Evans is Player of the Year

You win with defense.

Megan Evans, the 1992 HomeTown Newspapers East All-Area Player of the Year, is the cornerstone of a Lakeland defense that allowed only 11 goals in 15 games. The goals-against average of .733 was one of the keys in a 13-1-1 season that netted the Eagles a second-place finish in the KVC.

Evans, who will walk on at Michigan State next fall, centered her senior season on her role as a team leader.

"I set my goals toward being a captain," Evans said. "I tried to work with new players and lead the team on the field by talking and setting up plays."

The extra communication efforts paid off for the Eagle defenders, and Lakeland coach Mike Braden said that her extra efforts were invaluable to the team.

"She's the type of player who will stop and work with others to make the team better," Braden said. "She has a game and she really knows the game."

Like many players on the Eagle crew, the win over Brighton was a high point of her high school career.

"It meant everything to beat Brighton," Evans said. "Our team came together and we played really good. It represented our whole team doing better this year."

Evans proved to be an offensive threat as well as a defensive deity this season, sending home four goals and three assists (11 points).

"We expected big things from her and she never let us down," Braden said. Evans was All-KVC, All-Region and honorable mention All-State this year.

Evans, who was selected to this year's Academic All KVC squad, is undecided on a course of study at MSU.

"Since I was undecided, I figured it was a pretty good school to go to," Evans said. "I think I'll do better at a bigger school. I like the atmosphere, and there is more things to experience."

Softballers enjoy excellent season

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Perhaps nowhere else does the adage "It's not where you start, but where you finish, that counts" apply more than in sports.

The Mustang softball team lived that old saying this season under first-year coach Frank Friemund. After a 2-6 start, Northville rebounded to finish 15-11 and make it all the way to district finals.

"Initially, I was hoping for a winning season," Friemund said. "(By the end of the year) I would have put us on the field with any team and had a 50-50 chance of winning. Even though we were 15-11, we were an excellent team."

The coach illustrated his point with the Mustangs' strong finish.

Northville went 13-5 after spring break. The schools to which the squad lost had a combined record of 113-43 and four district championship.

"I thought we had outstanding kids and good leadership on the team," Friemund said. "I knew they would work hard and that we had some talent."

And, boy, were the Mustangs talented. But even with players like Laura Apligian, Kara McNeil and Sara Christenson coming back, Northville lacked one important ingredient at the start of the season: a proven pitcher.

Fortunately for the Mustangs, multi-talented Stacey Nyland was around to take charge on the mound.

"I was quite panicked at first as to where our pitching would come from," Friemund said. "But we couldn't have asked for any more from Stacey. She was more than a pleasant surprise."

Nyland finished the season with a 14-7 record and a 2.29 ERA. She struck out an amazing 198 batters, a school record, in 137 innings pitched.

The fireballing senior wouldn't have been able to pitch without Apligian, Friemund said.

"I think she is the best catcher in the state," he commented.

The senior was without peer defensively in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Her strong throwing arm picked off numerous runners. Apligian will likely attend Eastern Michigan University and continue her softball career.

"She's an all-around great player," Friemund said. "She's probably the greatest catcher I'll ever have."

Offensively, Northville was led by Apligian and McNeil.

Apligian batted .342 while leading the team in RBIs with 23 and stolen bases with 24. McNeil hit a team-best .400, including 36 hits and 33 runs scored.

Nyland contributed with a .329 average at the plate, with 14 RBIs and 11 stolen bases. Christenson finished strong in the last 10 games to post a .349 average and provide punch in the lineup at the fifth spot.

Defense was another bright spot on the team. Although they made a normal amount of errors, the Mustangs often made spectacular plays to save runs.

"We lived on the edge," Friemund said. "But somebody always came up with a big play. Nobody else made the spectacular plays like we did."

Northville was very solid in the infield. Christie Green at shortstop and McNeil at second base gave the Mustangs a good middle infield. Lori George at third and Tanya Gamary at first were outstanding as well, Friemund said.

Stacey Nyland was outstanding on the mound.

Three Mustangs on first team was also selected All-KVC.

"We had to rely on her to constantly give us 100 percent," Braden said. "She never quit."

WATTAWA — South Lyon
MIDFIELDER

Wattawa faced a long season with the Lions and came away with four assists. While the Lions worked hard to overcome their scoring troubles, Wattawa hustled at both ends of the field to quarterback the Lion attack and help out on defense.

"She can cover a lot of field," Stevanovic said. "She can dribble well and has a strong foot."

Wattawa, an honors student and All-KVC selection this year, was a second-year captain.

"She is very bright," Stevanovic said. "She is always a good leader and a very strong player."

HEATHER OSBORN — Milford
MIDFIELDER

One of two Osborn sisters in the All-Area pool, Heather anchored an aggressive Milford midfield that included Kara Kramer and Heather Donley. Osborn, a sophomore, netted four goals and one assist on the season (9 points).

Perhaps the strongest aspect of her play was her defense. Osborn repeatedly showed the ability break up opposing offensive efforts and send the ball towards the enemy goal. Osborn, along with sister Holly, will be a key factor in the Redskins' 1993 campaign.

TIFFANY JOSEPH — Lakeland
GOALIE

Joseph did more than just anchor the stingy Eagle defense in her senior season, she helped prepare Lakeland goalies for years to come.

Joseph started the season with her foot in a cast and was primarily responsible for preparing backup first-year goalies Brenda Kuhn and Jill Kettinger.

"She did more than was expected," said Braden. "We never thought she'd have to be teaching other people to fill her shoes." When Joseph returned to the field, she showed her pupils that the teacher had more than a few tricks left. Joseph allowed eight goals in 10½ games for a .760 goals-against average.

Lakeland's Braden voted top coach

By SCOTT SIGLER
Staff Writer

Perhaps somebody needs to fill in the 1992 HomeTown Newspapers East Coach of the Year on his accomplishment.

Lakeland coach Mike Braden guided his Eagle kickers to a 13-1-1 record and a second place finish in the KVC. The accomplishment that is so extraordinary was Lakeland's 2-1 victory over the Brighton Bulldogs.

"It was just one more game we won," Braden said. Just one more game? Just one more game? Brighton is 47-1 in the history of KVC soccer. The "1," of course, came at the hands of Lakeland. The Eagles were the first, last and only team to beat Brighton in four years of conference competition. Just one more game?

"We proved a team like Brighton can be beat," Braden said. "Our cross-town rivalry is important to us, but we set our sights for whoever is at the top."

The victory over Brighton was a of the Year has little doubt that Wik-nich will be able to answer the call next year.

"She is so quick she can leave her player and cover up," Braden said. "She let's the defense regroup."

JULIE MUNGER — Novi defender

The senior was voted to the all-Kensington Valley Conference team as a fullback. Coach Larry Christoff said Munger was the Wildcats' "mainstay" on defense this season.

"She was our leader on the field," he said.

Munger showed that in many ways, Christoff said. An example, he added, was that she took most of Novi's corner kicks this season.

Although not called upon to provide offense, Munger did tally a goal and two assists.

MICHELLE DINVERNO — Lakeland midfielder

Dinverno is listed as a midfielder, but her ability to play any position is what adds to her value as a soccer player. Dinverno epitomizes the work ethic that makes successful athletes, said Braden.

"She's a house afire," Braden said. "She works as hard as possible and supports her teammates." Dinverno proved to be adept at both scoring and assisting as well as defense this season, and her versatility will play heavily in Lakeland's future success.

"She is a total team player," Braden said.

Lakeland's Braden named as top coach major feather in the cap of a strong Lakeland program. Braden, who has coached the Eagles since 1982, has more in his sights than just beating Brighton again.

"We would all like to go as far as possible in the state tournament," Braden said. Other Braden goals continue from year to year, regardless of win/loss records.

"The gals work so hard," Braden said. "I would like for them to have fond memories and enjoy themselves."

Braden has dreams of not just winning seasons, but an established winning program. To build a solid program, he feels that more opportunities are needed for the high school soccer players.

"We need a J.V. program," Braden said. "Anything I can do to help get a J.V. program would help build a strong program in the district. Long after I retire, this program should be going."

Camp to refine hoop skills

Northville Parks and Recreation Department is offering a Mustang Basketball Camp this summer.

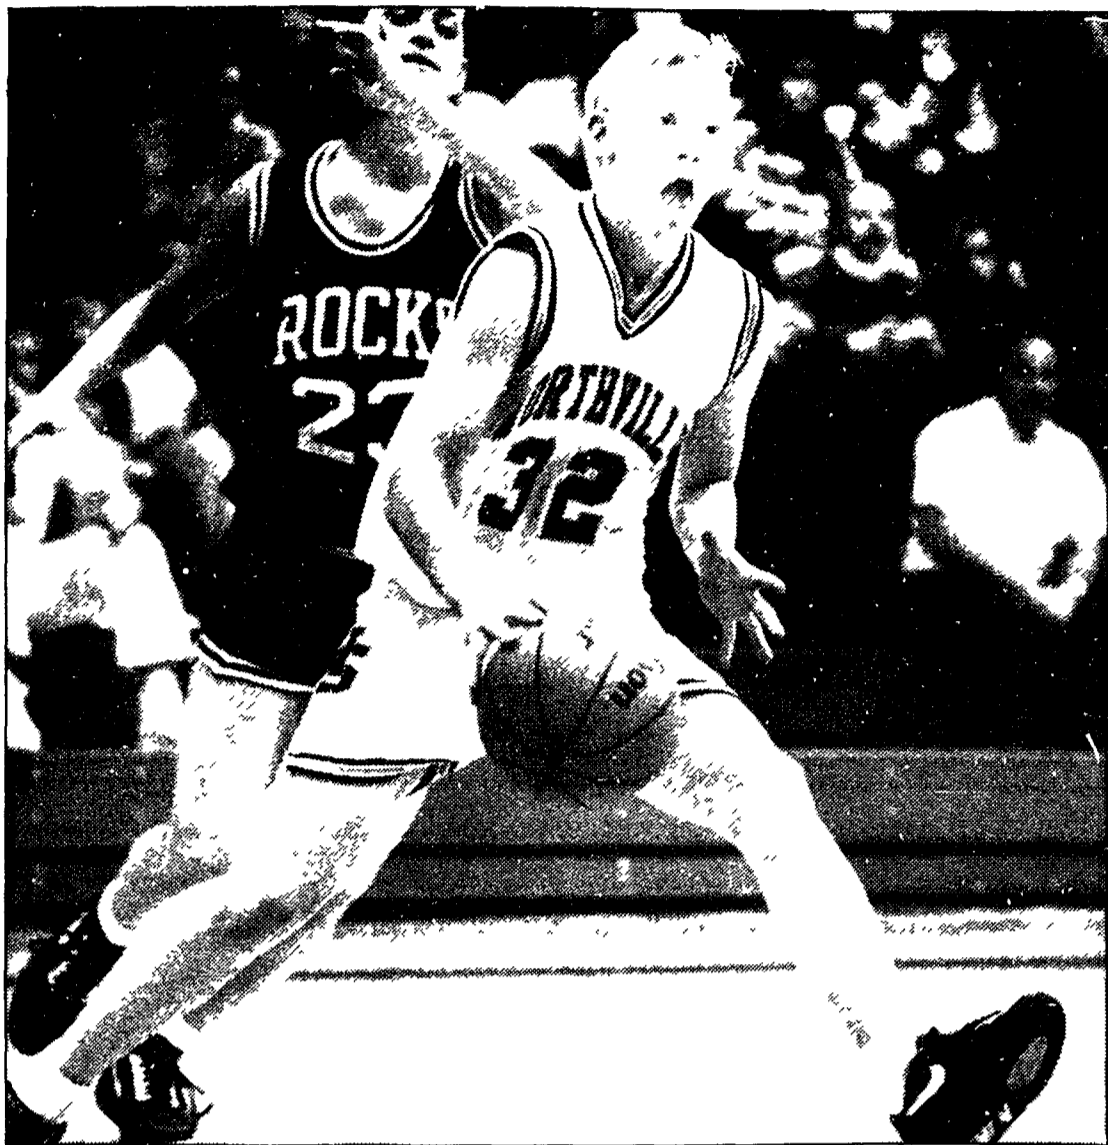

The camp is open to boys entering grades four to nine and girls entering grades three to nine. Summer is a perfect opportunity to refine those skills that will carry you through the basketball season.

Tim Lutes, the girls' freshman coach, is the girls' camp director. He will provide a series of skills, games and fundamentals. He will teach things that will make you a more proficient player. Dribbling, passing and defense are just a few areas that will be covered in this week-long camp. Not only will you be learning a great sport, but it's a great opportunity to make some new friends, too.

The camps are designed to let players of all abilities participate together. Because it is an instructional setting, everyone gets to be a part of the action. There are no bench-warmer in this camp. Players should be prepared to work hard and learn a lot.

Most players wait for school to begin before practicing basketball. Taking the summer off to relax is great, but students who do may be missing a great opportunity. They can start now and get the jump on the rest of their friends. Learn new skills, and reinforce the ones they have already learned.

Basketball can be a fun sport. It can be even more fun if you can learn how to play the right way. Basketball builds self confidence, social skills, and is great exercise. Playing basketball at a young age can build self con-

Camps run for one week and sessions are 1½ to 2½ hours long. The location is Northville High School. The cost is $23 or $27, depending on the age of your child. For more information contact the Recreation Department.

Vaccinations important for adults, too

Although most people are aware of the importance of vaccinations in children, few adults are aware of the vaccination recommended for themselves. Furthermore, many people do not understand what a vaccination is and when it should be used. In a nutshell, a vaccine is usually a killed sample or a very weak, feeble sample of the disease-causing virus or bacteria that is given to the patient to build up an immunity. Since the body takes time to build up its defenses, the vaccine must be given before the patient develops the disease. Here are some recommendations on adult vaccinations:

● Diphtheria and tetanus (lockjaw): This vaccine is highly effective in preventing both diseases. Tetanus is the bigger problem of the two because of the frequency of puncture wounds. A booster every 10 years is recommended. If the wound is severe, a booster is given even if only five years have elapsed.

● Influenza vaccines: These vaccines should be given annually to people over the age of 65 or to younger people with chronic diseases, especially heart or lung problems.

● Pneumonia vaccine: This vaccine does not prevent all pneumonias but does prevent 23 of the most common types. It is given only once and is recommended for the same population as the flu vaccine.

● Hepatitis B: This vaccine is only recommended for people with frequent exposure to the virus. Health care workers, homosexuals, dialysis patients and people receiving frequent transfusions are in this group. Currently, the American Academy of Pediatrics recommends universal immunization against hepatitis B for all infants.

● Rabies vaccine: Animal care workers should have the vaccine as a preventive measure. Most other people need the vaccine only after bite from an infected or suspicious animal. For example, rabies will be prevented if someone is bitten by a rabid animal and receives the vaccine because the body will develop an immunity quicker than the virus attacks the body.

● Rubella vaccine (German measles): This vaccine should be given to women of child-bearing age who never had rubella. Although German measles is not a particularly bad disease for the mother, it can cause birth defects in unborn children. The vaccine should be given at least three months before the woman becomes pregnant.

● Measles and mumps: This vaccine is useful in young people who have never had measles. The mumps vaccine is important in males who have reached puberty since mumps can cause sterility.

● Polio: Polio vaccines should be given to those who have not been immunized and the booster given to those traveling to foreign countries.

● Smallpox: Smallpox has, for all intents and purposes, been eradicated from the face of the earth. There is a greater chance of dying from one of the extremely rare, bad reactions than there is of ever catching smallpox.

● Cholera, yellow fever, typhoid: These vaccines are usually given only to travelers going to areas where the disease is common.

● Tuberculosis: The vaccine is used in many parts of the world but is not recommended for the average U.S. citizen.

REAL ESTATE

Real estate brokerages change during tough times

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

A major transition is taking place within the real estate brokerage industry.

Recent profit-squeeze market factors have forced some brokerage firms to permanently close their doors, and others are consolidating their resources and adding services to build bottom-line revenues and survive the tough times.

One of the extra services being implemented by many of the more progressive firms is a computerized mortgage origination system. This allows the broker to generate additional fees by providing information on financing options and processing a client's loan application through his own office computer. It creates revenue for the brokerage firm and saves the buyer the time and effort of contacting a number of individual lenders on his own.

In some cases, a mortgage loan service in a broker's office also can reduce the cost of loan originations, according to a report from the National Association of Realtors. That cost now averages about $2,600 per loan. Some of the origination fees can be reduced by computerized processing from the broker's office, the report noted.

However, such an in-house service should be strictly optional for the firm's sales associates, according to Jon Douglas, who heads one of the nation's largest multi-office firms carrying his name.

"We have such a service, but we urge our sales associates to check with other sources of mortgage financing to find the very best financing package for their client," he said. "We're primarily in business to serve the client's needs. And if that's accomplished successfully, the profits will continue to come in."

Other services being added within brokerage operations are relocation assistance programs, escrow services and real estate counseling services. In all cases where the brokerage client pays an additional fee for these extra services, the broker is required to disclose the financial details to the client in writing.

Another method of increasing capabilities and revenues is for major real estate firms and organizations to join together in providing and promoting services. A recent example is the newly formed business alliance between Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service and Grubb & Ellis, two leading real estate organizations.

Called the Area Development Alliance, it is designed to provide additional services for each of these groups as well as a new network of smaller affiliated brokerage firms. Better Homes and Gardens is a national real estate brokerage franchise group. Grubb & Ellis is a major brokerage and consulting firm.

The alliance will provide national

HOME DESIGNS

The Soquel gives image of large home

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

Lofty columns flank the entrance to the medium-size Soquel, giving a first impression of a much larger home. Narrow windows on either side of the door merge with a half-circle of custom window panes above to mirror the shape of the entry portico, further reinforcing that image.

Family living areas—kitchen, living room and dining room—are in the center, with sleeping areas on opposite ends. This arrangement is especially appreciated by families with teenagers, or when the home is shared by in-laws or unrelated adults. Each of the bedrooms also has its own private bath.

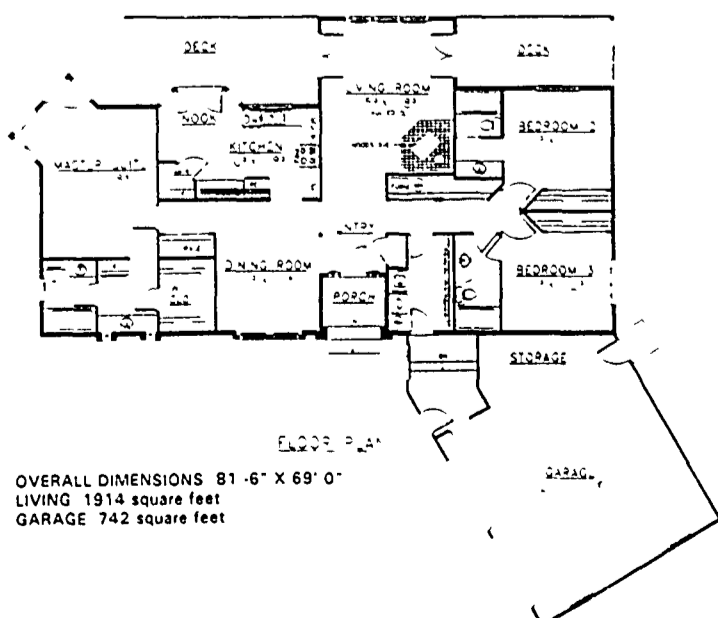

The large family kitchen is brightened by a richly windowed nook with double glass doors that open onto a deck. With the deck so easily accessible, many meals will no doubt be served outdoors when the weather permits. Doors from the master suite and the living room also open onto this deck.

The living room also is exceptionally bright. In addition to two sets of glass doors, which open onto decks on either side, windows line one wall, offering full appreciation of the changing seasons. A wood-burning stove provides warmth in winter.

And no matter what the season, there will be no hot water shortages here. This home has two water heaters—one in the utility room and another in a long hall closet.

Additional storage space is located along the hall leading to the master suite, which features a compartmentalized tub and toilet area and a huge walk-in closet.

For a study plan of the Soquel (209-21), send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.) Designers, Architects and readers with plans they would like to see featured are also invited to contact Landmark.

Home improvement tips

Buyer beware" remains a popular slogan, but more and more it seems that even if you're remodeling rather than buying a new home, you still have to beware.

In recessionary times, people tend to remodel rather than trade up or purchase a new home. According to local builder Bob Stern, this has proven to be a double-edged sword. While on the one hand, the consumer keeps mindful of his budget, it places greater pressure on him or her to separate the serious home remodeler from someone who's just out to make a fast buck.

"We have a problem in the home remodeling business because of the economy," said Stern, whose company does only home remodeling. "There are customers getting (ripped off) by people who shouldn't be doing the job."

Without naming names, Stern said that a number of Southeast Michigan builders, hurt by the slump in new construction, have turned to home remodeling to keep their businesses afloat.

While these builders may not be unqualified—though some are—Stern said the level of customer service and satisfactory work suffers. In the end, the customers and the home remodelers whose turf is being invaded, are the ones who pay the price.

When things are good, commercial building wouldn't touch some of jobs they're doing now," Stern said.

Though the Northville and Novi areas have been growing in recent years, and therefore boast a relatively young housing stock, he said these areas aren't immune to the problem.

"More and more of the homes I'm doing are only two and three years old," said Stern. "You can buy a house that has an 18-by-13 family room and then decide that you want a great room that's 18-by-23. You may want to go over the garage for a master suite with a bathroom and a bigger closet."

He also noted that older homes in downtown Northville and the small former summer cottages around Walled Lake are prime candidates for remodeling.

Stern, who chairs the Ethics Committee for the Home Improvement Council of Michigan, said he's seen many instances where unscrupulous builders took advantage of the poor economy. There's little that can be done to punish the offenders since it's really not against the law to botch a job.

"Something I've learned is that ethics is in the eye of the beholder," said Stern. "There's no law against making a profit. There is a law against false advertising, but the letter of the law is not always the answer. You need better education."

To understand why home remodeling requires a specialist rather than a new construction firm, you need only watch how a home remodeler arrives for work.

Artwork by ANGELA PREDHOMME said Stern. Then go to a new construction site and see how workers arrive there.

"Home remodeling is a whole different language," Stern said. "You're coming into people's homes. This is their castle. I once brought in a carpenter who was from new construction. He walked in in shorts. My law is shirts and slacks, neat and with everybody dressed appropriately."

Whether the job is simply knocking out one wall for a new doorway, or building on a whole new wing, the home remodeler must work both inside an existing home. That means stepping around the kids, over the dog and being careful not to track dirt on the carpet, among other things. New construction builders, used to working on vacant lots, often fail to take this into account when placing a bid on a project.

"Remodeling people know that you're in there walking around, and the bid will reflect that," Stern said. "I only really get four hours of productivity in a day. New construction guys still haven't learned to

Community gardening

GARDENING

The concept is simple! In cities, suburbs or rural areas, people who don't have space for gardens of their own organize groups and find plots where they can garden together. Beside the delight of growing your own food or beautifying a blighted area, community gardens can boost the self-esteem of an entire neighborhood.

These activities also provide a therapeutic outlet for people who might not otherwise have an opportunity to work in the soil. Often, community gardening is a neighborhood effort, but schools, cities, church organizations and other groups have gotten into the act, showing people how satisfying gardening with a group can be.

Typically, the land used for community gardening would otherwise be left unproductive. Vacant lots, industrial parks and schoolyards have all been pressed into service as kitchen gardens and flower-producing areas.

If you are interested in starting one of these groups, it's best to find a sponsor (school, church, local merchant or government agency) that can give financial aid or legal help.

Next, you need to locate land for your garden. In cities, contact the owners of vacant lots (listed at the tax assessor's office) to see if they will allow you to rent or use the property. If the lot is owned by the city, contact your city council representative or mayor.

In suburban or rural areas, ask local schools or churches if they have extra space, or see if a farmer will rent you space in one of his fields.

For more information, write to The Community Garden Association, 325 Walnut St., Philadelphia, PA 19106.

Remodelers beware of home improvement who's who bid like that. They come in thinking it's the same."

As a result, Stern said, everybody loses. The builder's profit ends up being smaller than he banked on; the homeowner may fall victim to corner cutting, and for sure the job takes longer than he wanted; and the home remodeler, who lost the job because his bid was higher, gets no work.

A remodeler operates with decorum as well as decor, Stern said, but don't be surprised if he wants to look through your dresser drawers.

"Just yesterday, I opened dresser drawers to help design some built-ins for someone's bedroom," said Stern. "The client was a colorblind doctor, and he always wore black socks. When we do the built-ins, we will see that he gets different bins for each color sock. The point is, I went through the drawers to see how they used them. I tell people, 'Confess to me what you really like.'"

Stern admitted that in the role of confessor, he's heard some fairly wild requests. It emphasizes the fact, however, that a good remodeler will sit down and exchange information with the client. He, after all, is the one who has to live with the final product.

In the interest of fairness to everyone, Stern offered further advice for choosing a home remodeler.

Call your city building department. If you have the name of a specific remodeler in mind, they can tell you if he's done jobs like yours. If you don't have any names yet, they can tell you which ones work in your area and perform work on similar homes. You wouldn't want to seek a bid from a remodeler who does half-million dollar jobs in Bloomfield Hills when all you want is a new bathroom in your 1,200-square-foot ranch. The building department cannot give recommendations, but it can tell you who's who.

Speak to friends and relatives. Remodelers know that word-of-mouth is the best advertising, Stern said. If someone you know was happy with a remodeler's work, chances are you will be too. And you get to see a sample of the work first hand.

Call the Bureau of Credits in Detroit. This is very important, Stern said, because if a builder or remodeler isn't paying his suppliers the Bureau should know about it. "The guy may have gone broke with three companies last year and is now on his third," Stern said. If a remodeler goes belly-up in the middle of a job, you may never see your money again. And you'll have to pay someone else to finish it.

Ask the bidding remodeler for a list of past clients. If he can't produce one, run, don't walk away. And if he does produce a list, follow through by calling the people on it. "I bid for a job just recently against another guy," said Stern. "The other guy came in with gorgeous pictures and a list of people. The customer picked up the phone and called some of them, and they all hated him. She told me, 'You got the job by default.' It made me laugh because this guy was giving out these people's names."

Don't give all the money for the job up front. It's standard procedure in the home remodeling trade to pay in thirds: one third of the money down, one third when the work is roughed in, and one third upon completion. "I even prefer people to pay in quarters," said Stern. "But that pushes the limits of financing law."

Don't negotiate to your undoing. On a $50,000 addition, there are many ways that a builder can get $2,000 to $3,000 back by cutting corners and bid a little lower to maintain his profit. To that end, the customer is the loser. Three quotes should be enough to give you an idea of a job's true worth, Stern said.

Choose a builder who is open to the exchange of ideas. He should be neither too pragmatic (doing what the customer asks no matter how foolish or ugly) nor too patronizing (insisting that his way is the only way it should be done).

Planting pussy willows and Plant of the Year moist one. In dry soil, it may become quite susceptible to diseases, and it will grow more slowly and remain smaller.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground in spring, place three-fourths of your cuttings in the ground. You can plant them between hemlock but not too close together!

PLANT OF THE YEAR
Coreopsis "Moonbeam" is the plant of the year. Here are some of the particulars on this wonderful plant:

- Hardiness: A reliable performer in hardiness zones 4 to 8.
- Light requirements: Full sun to very light shade.

- Soil requirements: Well-drained soils are key to successful culture.
- Unique qualities: Fine-textured foliage, long blooming period, ease of culture and minimal maintenance.
- Planting information: Bare-root plants are best planted in spring. Potted plants should be set so that they are at the same depth as they were in the pot. These can be planted any time from late spring until about a month before a hard, killing frost.

Brokerages adapt to market and regional marketing support for smaller firms that become affiliated, according to Ray Sculfort, vice president of marketing services for Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service.

It also will provide companies with training and recruitment programs, a national referral network affiliation, business management assistance, financial management and consultation, relocation assistance and advertising support — things that will enhance the firms' service operations and profitability, he said.

The affiliated broker firms will pay a continuing fee for their participation in the network. The fee amount is calculated on a sliding scale tied to the amount of brokerage revenue generated by the firm.

"Tomorrow's brokerage firm owners must draw on history for their answers," said Bobbi Courselle, vice president of a multi-office brokerage firm. "An environment of creativity must take over from the 'way we've always done it.' The answer lies more in creative services, technology and good management than in commission-slashing and competing for agents."

Another major change in the real estate brokerage industry is about to be proposed by the National Association of Realtors. The NAR Presidential Advisory Group on Agency is now about to release a special report that will recommend several major and controversial changes in the brokerage field.

Among the changes is the abandoning of the agency role of the broker. They would no longer be the legal agency for a property seller or buyer or both. Instead, the broker would become a facilitator between buyer and seller.

In becoming a facilitator, the broker basically presses for a smooth and successful transaction rather than serving the interests of one party to the transaction.

It eliminates consumer confusion about who the broker represents, minimizes liability problems for the broker and may remove the threat of litigation in some cases.

Such a drastic change in the concept of real estate brokerage would require enabling state legislation and vast changes in NAR procedures, including the restructuring of the NAR Code of Ethics. And multiple listing service policies would need to be revamped.

Q. I have a pair of Mickey and Minnie Mouse hand puppets in very good condition. Can you give me some idea what they might sell for and where I can find a buyer?

A. These puppets were made in the 1950s and would probably sell for $65 to $75 for the pair.

I don't have a list of buyers.

Laser firm finds method for cleaning

By MARILYN HERALD
Special Writer

Laser, that seemingly magical beam of light that has revolutionized medical procedures, is about to make history in the field of paint stripping.

Industrial innovations like the Pulsed Laser Stripping (PLS) System developed by Laser Technologies Inc. (LTI) of Green Oak has taken years to develop, fine-tune and demonstrate, but it is now nearly ready to be put to widespread use.

The PLS System has been under study and development at LTI since 1984. The first prototype unit was demonstrated in 1990 and it has now been converted to field demonstration equipment.

The next step, and probably the most expensive one, is production and marketing.

Billed as "the clean way to clean," it seems destined to radically change paint and other finish stripping for nearly everything from areas around bolt heads to cleaning bridges, aircraft, and even submarines.

According to Mike Way, marketing and business development manager for LTI, it's time for this small, local research and development firm to search out a partner, or partners, with the funding to provide the equity to take the PLS System all the way to market.

"We've been getting some really favorable inquiries into the financial end of this since recent news stories have come out that this technology has been developed," Way commented.

Peter Niedzielski of South Lyon, chief engineer for LTI, explained, "I've worked with pulse lasers for years, but not on paint. Paint removal was tried in the early '60s but the lasers were not large enough or practical enough to do the job (on big items)."

"It's only been the last two years that we've had a laser powerful enough to do this kind of work," he added. "It's a technology that's easy on paper but not so easy to make practical."

The high energy pulsed light beam of the laser decomposes and oxidizes the surface coatings of an aircraft, or whatever is being cleaned, without the introduction of additional foreign matter, like what's used in sand-blasting, for example.

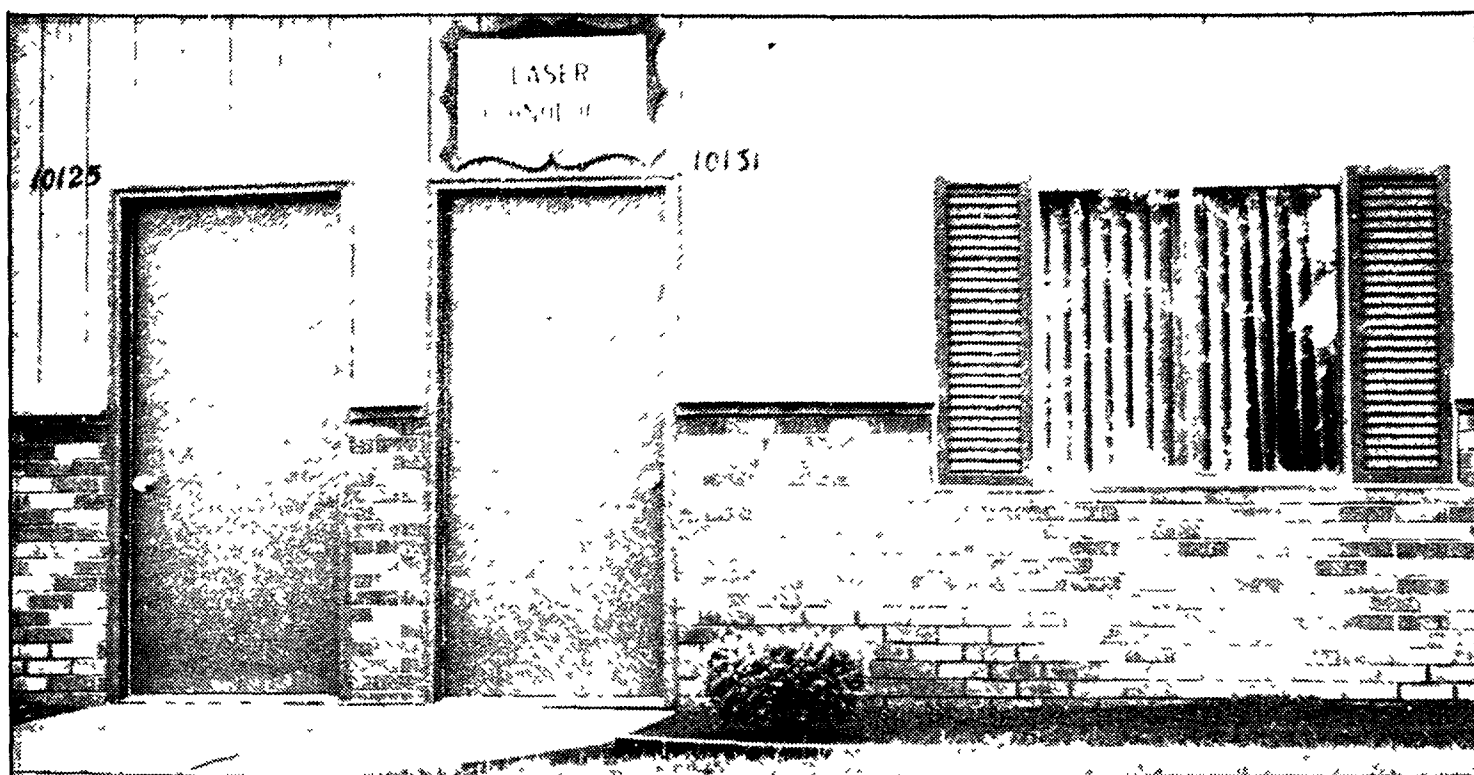

Way, Niedzielski and James Head of Freeland, president and chairperson of the board of LTI, are really high on their laser because it can remove all the paint or other finish from an article or can remove just one layer at a time without damaging the surface being cleaned.

And, in this age of concern for the environment, the developers say the PLS System is very much environmentally safe.

"It could clean paint in an electronics lab without endangering the instruments in the lab," Way pointed out.

Workers do not require special protection other than safety glasses to operate the PLS System and the amount of residue left behind is "many times less" than with conventional systems, according to Niedzielski and Way.

Laser firm develops high-tech paint stripper

Way also noted the State of Michigan has a full-containment requirement for bridge cleaning that states no waste material can be allowed to leak out into the air outside the tent which encloses the work area.

"The laser incinerates the paint system as it mixes with the surrounding atmosphere," Way explained.

Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) grants from the U.S. Air Force and from the National Science Foundation have helped finance the application studies from 1988-90. The company is currently working under its second grant from the science foundation.

Way said it will take $5 million to $10 million to produce the PLS System for market and the company is looking for backers who will provide that funding.

While the upfront capital cost for the user of the system will be somewhat higher than more conventional cleaning systems, the operational and cleanup costs will be much less, Way explained.

"The operational cost is much less and the cleanup is practically nothing for the user because there is so little residue left," the marketing manager said. "The contaminant, collection, handling, treating and disposal will be far less for the user."

"The technology could be on the market in a useful state by the end of this year with the right funding," Way added. "We are very, very pleased with the results we are getting, but there is a limitation with private funding. We need the right entity to put this on the market."

Eventually a family of products is planned, the developers explained. The current power output is 200 watts, which is good for spot cleaning, such as around engine bolts on an aircraft. The larger lasers would scale up to 1,000-2,000 watts, Way noted.

"We would need to lengthen the cavity [of the laser] to increase the power output," Way said. "We could work with a single module unit or, by adding other modules, we could increase the power ranging anywhere from 500-2,000 watts for long-term growth."

"I designed the first laser used at Sinai Hospital in 1965 when I worked for Laser Systems," Niedzielski said. "It is the longest continually running laser in the world as far as I know."

The PLS System works on virtually any surface including steel, aluminum, composites, concrete, and plastics, the developers said. The key to its effectiveness is a pulsed laser with high peak power and high average power.

The laser is only "on" for a very short time, running from 10-20 microseconds and then resting for a number of milliseconds. This sequence is repeated 100-200 times per second, depending on the application.

The very rapid pulse of high energy at the work surface is the essence of the cleaning operation and the reason the beam never penetrates the surface being cleaned, developers explained.

It is possible for painting and other job functions to proceed in close proximity with the paint-cleaning area and there is less worker fatigue with PLS because there is no back pressure from the work nozzle as in conventional methods such as sandblasting.

Way said he had recently attended a seminar at the U.S. Naval Academy where alternative ways of cleaning areas in submarines were being studied. "The PLS System would make it possible to clean inside a submarine engine room without contaminating the engines," he said with a smile.

Bakery rolls with financial punches

A new watch and a fresh start go hand in hand for Northville's Bob Awrey and the Livonia bakery that bears his name.

Awrey's wife, Betty Jean, and grown children recently gave him a new watch inscribed for 50 years of service to the company after a timepiece he had received on his 25th anniversary broke.

Earlier this year, Awrey reported a small profit for the first three months of operations after losing $2.5 million during a tumultuous 1991.

"We see a future in frozen food service nationally," said Awrey, grandson of the bakery's founder who now serves as chairman and chief executive officer. "We're starting to serve the vending trade, convenience stores and we have re-established retail in Detroit."

The Livonia plant, which employs some 400, is operating only at about 55 percent capacity, Awrey said, so there's plenty of room for growth.

"It's a fact that people still like to eat sweets, that which tastes good," he said. "They talk more than they diet."

"We have a very efficient, high-quality production plant. Now we have to go out and sell more," Awrey said. "I'm a cockeyed optimist. I have a lot of confidence in people here."

That confidence placed in non-family operating managers prior to a brooming last fall turned out to be a mistake, Awrey said.

A strategy to eliminate local retail sales and concentrate exclusively on national institutional sales backfired. The recession hit, anticipated growth didn't occur among national customers and the bakery missed revenue from the closed-down retail operation, Awrey said.

On top of that, Awrey lost a major client which had acquired interest in another bakery.

Last October, Awrey's son, Tom, was placed in charge of day-to-day operations and retail sales were resumed in the metro area.

"We had two bright young men, hard-working, intelligent, who made a master plan for the company to streamline," Bob Awrey said. "They had great ideas to expand. The only problem was we closed too much sales volume without adequate replacement."

"The way we were losing money and sales were off, there was considerable concern (about survival). When management changed, there was a groundswell of support. It was remarkable to experience," Awrey said.

Tom Awrey was named president and chief operating officer permanently by the company's board of directors last month.

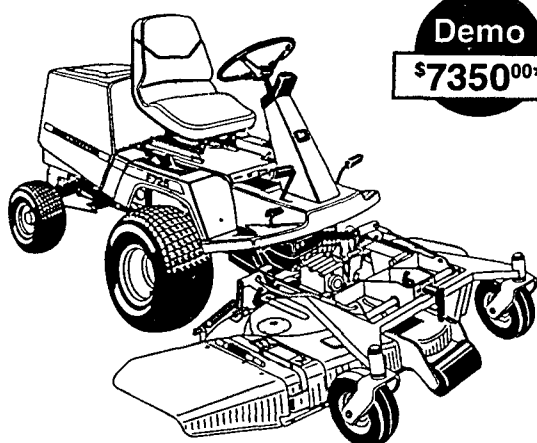

"Our first charge is to get the company turned back around," Tom Awrey said. "We set several goals last October. Number one was to stop the bleeding. We were losing money and the future didn't look good. The second goal was to get into black numbers by the first quarter of 1992."

That basically was done through some layoffs, re-instituting retail sales in metro area stores and growth among national and contract clients.

Awrey does subcontract work for Swanson Foods—the biscuit portion for a sausage and biscuit packaged meal and tops for pot pies. Awrey is looking for more contract work and Comfort and convenience were two prime considerations when we designed the new John Deere F725 front mower. The powerful 20-hp overhead valve John Deere K-Series engine is liquid-cooled for quieter operation and consistent performance in hot weather.

The F725's exclusive hydrostatic transmission is controlled by two pedals allowing the operator to keep both hands on the steering wheel and both eyes on the job.

Money Management

Take a midyear look at your taxes

Mid-year is a great time to review your tax strategies, reports the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants. Beyond the age-old rule of minimizing taxable income and maximizing deductions, there are a number of tax-wise steps you can take right now.

As a part of your mid-year check-up, compare your actual tax payments (through withholding or estimated payments) with what you expect to owe by the end of the year. If your estimates of taxes paid and taxes owed are within a few hundred dollars of each other, you can probably rest easy. If not, you still have ample time to adjust your withholding or estimated payments to make up for the over or underpayment.

The earlier in the year you invest in an Individual Retirement Account (IRA), the more rapidly you accumulate tax-deferred interest. If neither you nor your spouse is an active participant in an employer's retirement plan, you may be able to deduct up to $4,000 in IRA contributions ($2,000 if single). Participants in company plans may also qualify for the deduction, depending on adjusted gross income.

If you buy short-term certificates of deposit or Treasury bills that mature after the first of the year, you may be able to defer paying taxes on the interest earned. Remember, for investments that mature in 1992, you won't have to report the interest earned until you file your April 1993 return.

Miscellaneous itemized deductions—which include business and trade publications, subscriptions, investment advice, job-hunting costs, tax-preparation fees, job-related education, union dues and most unreimbursed business expenses—must exceed 2 percent of your adjusted gross income before you can deduct them. To maximize your miscellaneous deductions, speed up or postpone qualified expenses into a year when you anticipate their total will surpass the 2 percent floor.

Apply the same strategy to unreimbursed medical expenses, which are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income. If some of your health expenditures are elective you may be able to schedule them to your tax advantage.

The funds you contribute to your employer-sponsored 401(k) plan directly reduce the amount of earnings on which you are taxed. Check to see how much you have contributed so far and whether you might be able to contribute more. Although current law allows you to contribute up to $8,475 to your employer's 401(k) plan, your employer may have lower limits.

If your principal or second home is in a resort area or an area where a popular annual event attracts large numbers of tourists, consider renting it during this period. If you rent your home for less than 15 days during the year, the income you receive is tax-free. You don't even have to deduct it. But any related expenses are not tax-deductible.

The best way to maximize tax deductions is to keep orderly and accurate records. Good record-keeping is one of the best ways to remind yourself of the deductions you have earned and to help you structure a tax-saving plan you can use year after year. If you haven't already done so, CPAs advise you to establish a 1991 tax file to facilitate the accumulation of tax-related data and information.

Northville baker has eye on recovery that big institutional sale — perhaps to a national fast food restaurant — that would rocket revenues.

Tom Awrey wants to show a profit of at least $1 million for this year "while positioning ourselves to a more reasonable level of profit," which he declined to elaborate.

Awrey realized revenue of more than $50 million per year before dropping retail sales, Bob Awrey said. Revenue fell to about $40 million but is now coming back, he added.

Bob Awrey, 67, said he intends to stay involved in company business less than during the previous several months but more than before the financial hemorrhaging began.

"I'm really a product and sales person," he said. "I push for new markets. I've been pushing everybody, stirring everyone up."

The highlights of Bob Awrey's career so far?

"Principally, setting up a stock purchase plan for key employees. We transferred a good share from families to active employees. Plus, the constantly changing business, keeping up with trends so gradually we're not in some rut," he said.

When not involved with business, Bob Awrey likes to garden, travel and go to horse races.

Tom Awrey, 38, has worked for the family business virtually his whole life in the plant, maintenance, research and development and driving trucks.

"I think I have a good relationship with everyone in the company I've dealt with," he said. "I think I have a good seat-of-the-pants feel for this business. Our desire is to stay private and independent."

JEFFREY BERKAW, a Northville High School graduating senior has been named a recipient in the Service Merchandise Scholarship Program.

The program, sponsored by the Service Merchandise Co., was created to serve as a lasting tribute to Mary and Harry Zimmerman, who founded Service Merchandise in 1960. The Zimmermans' strong belief in higher education served as an inspiration for the program.

Each year Service Merchandise awards 100 $500 scholarships to outstanding students. The program is independently managed by Career Opportunities Through Education (COTE), a nonprofit scholarship service organization located in Audubon, N.J.

Berkaw will attend the University of North Carolina in the fall where he intends to major in business.

Based in Nashville, Tenn., Service Merchandise is the nation's largest catalog store retailer with 360 stores in 36 states. A publicly-held company, Service Merchandise reported sales of $3.39 billion in 1991.

DAWN A. TAYLOR, a Novi resident, was recently promoted to senior manager at Price Waterhouse. Taylor works at the Detroit office of Price Waterhouse, a nationwide accounting firm.

FINE JEWELRY DEFERRED BILLING! NO PAYMENT 'TIL SEPTEMBER

Here's how it works: On June 13 and 14 you can purchase items from our Fine Jewelry department totaling $200 or more for a single transaction and defer the billing to your Mervyn's account until August 1992. No payment will be due for these purchases until September 1992. No finance charges will be added to your account for these purchases during the deferred period.

A Mervyn's Diamond Certificate will be sent to you following every diamond purchase of 0.20 carat total weight or more. It documents the number of diamonds, their quality and weight, and the price you paid. You can also use it to trade up to another piece of diamond jewelry provided your diamond is undamaged and in its original mounting.
