Public seeks city control of Ford site

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

If the turnout is any indication, city residents are not prepared to let the Ford Valve Plant property go without a fight.

More than 40 concerned residents crammed into council chambers Monday night to give their opinion on the highest and best reuse for the Main Street site.

The study session was called by the city council to determine public interest in acquiring part or all of the site.

"We wanted the opportunity to bounce some of the ideas off the public, and get some reaction from the community," said Mayor Chris Johnson. "One of the things we really wanted to do tonight was listen."

The council listened to a dozen ideas for reusing all or part of the site, ranging from letting a developer purchase it with few strings attached to buying it as a city and then figuring out the best public use.

While they split over whether the city should purchase the plant itself, the residents agreed that the city needs to retain Ford Field, long used as a site for recreation activities.

The most unique idea for reusing

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Old news or a legitimate campaign issue?

Maurice Breen's political career may partly hinge on voter reaction to revelations that the Wayne County commissioner speculated on Plymouth Township land while serving as township supervisor.

A Breen opponent in the 10th District county commission race has charged Breen with improperly speculating in a Plymouth Township land deal that netted his partnership an $850,000 profit.

Patrick Downes, a candidate in the 10th District Republican primary, this week distributed campaign literature detailing Breen's involvement in a land purchase/resale venture while Breen served as Plymouth Township supervisor.

Breen was a silent, but equal, partner in a 1984-86 deal that hinged on rezoning a 77-acre parcel just north of M-14 between Beck and Ridge roads in Plymouth Township, according to state, county and Plymouth Township records.

Breen and his partners bought the House vote guts school budgets

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

State representatives deadlocked for hours Tuesday over the school aid bill, but after two votes they eventually passed the funding plan which cuts an estimated $123 million in state aid to districts.

For Northville Public Schools, the news was startling.

Northville Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski was disappointed at the outcome of the House's vote to pass the bill (56-49), which will cut an additional $500,000 in state funding from the district budget.

"I'm disappointed because in our analysis we could not find many positive things for Northville Public Schools in that plan," he said Tuesday night. "Now we will just have to do the best we can."

Preliminary estimates indicate Northville could lose an additional $100,000-$410,000 in state aid as a result of the bill passing. But those figures are inconclusive and are subject to further analysis of the bill and its impact, district officials said.

Northville district officials hoped the bill would be defeated earlier in the afternoon when it failed to get a majority in the House. But after hours of deliberations, 14 representatives reversed their decisions and voted in favor of the bill.

"It's a whole new wrinkle," Rezmierski said. "We lost the 2-1 credit (for tax-base sharing), which for us

Firefighters control unidentified barrels

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Twenty barrels of a flammable, oily substance dumped late Sunday in two western Northville Township sites pose no apparent health risks to residents.

Township fire fighters and members of the Western Wayne County Hazardous Materials Team isolated and contained barrels of the unknown chemical without spillage, said Fire Chief Rick Roselle.

Ten barrels were discovered early Monday in a ditch on the north side of Six Mile Road just west of Ridge. By Tuesday, firefighters had discovered another 10 barrels in a field off Ridge north of Five Mile.

Fire officials believe the Six Mile dumping occurred after 10 p.m. Sunday and before 7 a.m. Monday. The barrels dumped off Ridge were identical to the first group, but officials do not know the time of that drop.

State Department of Natural Resources officials had not taken chemical samples from the barrels by press time Wednesday. The DNR was scheduled to review the materials later this week, Roselle said.

Three of the 20 barrels were full of the chemical, and the balance contained liquid residue, Roselle said. No suspects in the illegal dumping had been identified by Wednesday, although police said businesses in Livonia, Plymouth, and Romulus are known to use the substance.

"The markings on the barrels indicate that it's a certain type of oil used for cooling electronic equipment," Roselle said.

Firefighters and the hazardous materials team did not know if the liquid was toxic, but the barrels were packed inside other barrels to prevent spillage.

The fire department has received numerous calls from possible witnesses, Roselle said.

"We've had a lot of phone calls from people saying they may have seen something," he said.

No solutions set for gravel roads

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Plenty of questions, a few answers, no apparent solutions.

That's the fallout from Tuesday's skulld session between gravel-road residents and county and township officials.

The meeting was held as township trucks finished up the lone scheduled calcium chloride treatment on 22 secondary township roads. Apart from temporary dust relief, residents heard little that would save their concerns.

Wayne County will not pick up spraying costs for the secondary roads; that much is clear.

"We just don't have the money to provide the level of service we'd like," said Patrick Hogan, county assistant deputy director of roads. "Somewhere we have to draw the line."

Northville Township is struggling to find money to pay for the first dust treatment, and has not looked down the road at potential future dust problems.

"I do not have (a long-range solution) and have not been given instructions for any," Township Mana-

Fair skies greet arts and crafts fair

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Perhaps it was the new name. For the last three years that it was called SummerSong, the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce's annual arts and crafts show constantly ran into rain.

Now, with the title changed to Art in the Sun, the fair has lived up to its name.

The retroed arts and craft show debuted under sunny skies last weekend, and drew an appreciative crowd.

"So far, we haven't had one complaint," said Laurie Marrs, the chamber's executive director.

"After three years of having solid rain, we figured it was finally our due."

The chamber decided to switch the focus of this year's fair from entertainment to art. The move seems to have been a success with the artisans, Marrs said.

"They were asking me for applications before they left so they could be sure to come back next year," she said. "In fact, four artists asked if they could have two spaces each next year."

Ninety-four exhibitors showed for the two-day fair, bringing their wares from all over Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky.

The artisans included makers of sterling silver jewelry, painted clothing and distinctive willow and birch furniture, as well as the more traditional painters and potters.

Eight local restaurants including the Rose Cottage Tea Room, Juan Carlos and Papa Romano's, and food booths staffed by the Rotary and Kiwanis, fed the hordes from under a tent at the Main Street bandshell.

The open-air umbrellas around the tent were a big hit, Marrs said. "The chairs were filled continually."

Victorian music was provided by Collecting Consort, a harp and dulcimer ensemble, and face painting was available for children.

Northville's downtown merchants held special sales for the event as well.

The chamber is still tinkering with the fair's layout, Marrs added. Changes in store for next year include more space between the artists' booths to allow easier access to stores, and a banner to help strollers find the food tent.

Residents list ideas for Ford Plant

the plant was raised by Mark Cryderman, who credited the idea to neighbor Bill Stockhausen. "Ford has long been associated with education . . . and at the same time we need something unique in terms of a private development that would draw people from a long distance and be profitable for whoever developed it," he said.

Cryderman proposed an "educational mall," which would house a public library and businesses like a computer retailer, bookstore and teachers' store.

"The only potential cost would be the cost of the library, because the library would have to lease space from the developer," Cryderman said.

"The city's involvement with this would be to find a sympathetic developer," he said, who he admitted may not be an easy task.

Several people mentioned a community library as a good use for the site, and Library Director Pat Orr drew a burst of applause with her impassioned plea for a larger facility. The 6,000-square-foot library at city hall is overcrowded by any measure, and studies have recommended that the community needs 25,000 square feet of library space.

Orr warned the audience that potential sites for such a facility were disappearing quickly.

"Let's try to take advantage of the 20-20 vision you get with hindsight," Orr said. "The library needs 25,000 square feet, desperately needs 25,000 square feet . . . The need is getting more and more critical, and it's not going away. But the space is."

A 1989 redevelopment study, prepared by the city in cooperation with Northville Township and Northville Public Schools, found the Ford site suitable for a 22,500-square-foot library and either a school services center or small retail mall. Redevelopment costs were estimated between $5.5 million and $7.4 million not including the purchase price, with a developer splitting the cost in some scenarios.

Local attorney Michele Kelly said she envisioned a mixed-use development with retail and some space for community activities. "I don't mean duck shops, and I don't mean a candle shop," she said. "Possibly someplace you could buy underwear in Northville, possibly a place you could buy jeans, like a Gap."

Dave Totten, with Concerned Residents of Northville, noted that his group solicited opinions from 45 area organizations on the matter. Of the 17 that gave an opinion, 15 favored either the city or both the city and township acquiring the property, while only two were opposed.

"I'm not going to stand up here and say we should spend $1.75 million for meeting rooms," Totten said. But he said the survey shows that there is a need for public space that the plant could help fill.

While some residents urged the council to obtain the plant at any cost, others were more cost-conscious.

"There's some great uses that we can all readily anticipate, but the old chestnut is, 'Where's the money going to come from?'" said Sam Kuhn. "I really don't think the City of Northville belongs in the development business. Give us the basic services, which you've done a beautiful job of doing . . . and let the private sector get into the crap shoot."

Council members agreed to review the public comments at their July 20 meeting. A citizen's committee will also be assembled from residents who submitted their names after Monday's meeting. The committee will work with city and township residents on potential redevelopment plans.

The study session follows increased interest by private developers in the 13.7-acre property.

Ford dropped its asking price for the site from $2.5 million to $1.75 million in March, and since then has received more than 100 inquiries about the plant, five to six of which are considered serious.

The property, on either side of Griswold north of Main, was the site of one of Henry Ford's first "village industries" in 1920. The existing plant was built in 1936 and used for the manufacture of automotive parts until its closure in 1989.

Redevelopment on the site is hampered by its setting in a floodplain and the fact that current zoning restrictions are stricter than when the plant was built.

Trespassers arrested for playing war games

Two men were charged with trespassing and possession of dangerous weapons after their arrest June 27 on the grounds of the Wayne County Child Development Center, 16300 Sheldon.

Township police said they received a report of men in camouflage clothing carrying rifles around the site. Police reportedly heard a shot fired from inside an old powerhouse building and then saw the men.

The suspects, a 22-year-old Westland man and a 21-year-old Farmington Hills man, were arrested after police confiscated a double-edged bayonet, two long-bladed knives, and two CO-2 powered paint ball guns.

GOLF CLUBS STOLEN FROM VEHICLES PARKED IN GARAGE: A Maplehill Court resident told township police that someone entered his garage late June 27 or early June 28 and stole two sets of golf clubs, a golf bag and a leather briefcase from two vehicles.

The resident told police the garage door was open and the vehicles were not locked at the time of the theft. The stolen items were valued at $1,047.

MISDEMEANOR WARRANT ARREST: City police arrested a 19-year-old Detroit man at 2 p.m. June 27, while investigating a soliciting complaint. The man was wanted by Michigan State Police for failing to appear in court on a suspended license charge. He was taken to the city police station and released after posting a $100 cash bond.

TRESPASSING WARRANT ARREST: Livonia police turned a 24-year-old Livonia man over to city police at 4 a.m. June 27, on a seven-year-old trespassing charge. The man had been charged in June, 1985, and failed to appear in court on the charge in June, 1991.

He was released after posting a $300 personal recognizance bond.

GOLD NECKLACE STOLEN: A Northville High School student told city police that someone stole his gold necklace after a June 5 fight at school. The student and several others were waiting for buses when the fight broke out, and the gold necklace was ripped off the victim's neck. The victim was uncertain who picked up the necklace after the incident.

Police have questioned several students about the incident. The 16-inch gold men's necklace was valued at $275.

BIKE VANDALIZED: A girl's bicycle parked inside Northville City Hall was vandalized sometime between 3-5:15 p.m. June 25. The bike, parked in the lower lobby near the library, had its inner tube removed, according to its owner.

BOOK FOUND: A Reader's Digest condensed book was found outside 331 N. Center St. recently. The book includes the stories "Circle of Fear,"

Learning to Play God," "Cruel Doubt," "No Minor Chords," "J. Edgar Hoover" and "Koop."

FENDER BENDER: A resident pulling into his driveway on Yerkes Street south of Beal the morning of June 28 swung too wide and struck a signpost. The car was slightly damaged. No citations were issued.

VEHICLE REPORTED STOLEN: A Northville man told township police that someone stole a 1991 GMC Sonoma from his residence on Knightsford near Parklane early June 22.

Police found a portion of a door-lock on the ground where the vehicle had been parked. The vehicle was valued at $13,000.

WINDOW BROKEN: A Cardene Way resident told police that someone broke a 4 x 4 window on the northeast side of the home sometime between June 22 and June 24. Damage was estimated at $400.

VEHICLE DAMAGED: The owner of a 1991 Jeep Cherokee told township police that someone broke the vent window on the vehicle's driver's side early June 22. Damage was estimated at $50.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Truck engulfed

Northville Township firefighters extinguish a truck fire on Haggerty south of Six Mile at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday. The truck's owner, Bennett Flood, said the fire was sparked by a faulty transmission. "I was taking it into the shop for a new transmission; it started skipping, the radiator boiled over, hit the manifold and it caught fire," he said. Flood tried to put out the blaze with his own fire extinguisher, "but it was too far gone."

parcel from the Michigan Department of Transportation for $270,000 prior to the 1985 rezoning, which altered the zoning designation from single family residential to industrial.

Eighteen months later, Breen's group sold the property to local developer R.A. DeMattia for more than $1.1 million.

The sale — and $850,000 profit — came less than eight months after the Plymouth Township board approved the rezoning request, along with another request for an adjacent parcel.

Breen denied any wrongdoing, and said he abstained from an Aug. 27, 1985, Plymouth Township board vote on the rezoning of the property he partially owned.

Plymouth Township board minutes from that meeting indicate Breen did abstain from the vote because of a conflict of interest, but the minutes do not detail the reason for the conflict.

Breen said his role in the land deal was public knowledge.

"It was all disclosed at the time it happened," he said Monday. "There was never any question of hiding ownership."

But DeMattia, who purchased the site and developed it with adjacent properties to form Metro West Technology park, said he did not know Breen was a partner when he moved to buy the land.

"I didn't know who was in it, and quite probably didn't care," DeMattia said Tuesday. "I knew Clarence Collins (one of Breen's partners)."

Asked if he was surprised when he realized Breen was a partner, DeMattia said: "Not really; it didn't make any difference to me."

Breen's name does not appear in conjunction with the land sale on state or county records from Oct. 1, 1984, when a partner submitted an Application to Purchase, until April 28, 1986, when the deal with DeMattia was finalized.

A chronology of events, supported by state, county, and Plymouth Township records, indicates that Breen was a silent partner.

● In July 1986, the Michigan Department of Transportation held a public auction of the property eventually developed as Metro West Technology Park.

No bids were received at that time, but on Oct. 1, 1984, Clarence Collins, a Dearborn resident reportedly long active in real estate transactions, filed an Application to Purchase.

Collins was listed as the sole purchaser, and the property title was to be conveyed in his name only. The purchase application also included special conditions, most important of which was Collins' ability to secure rezoning or a zoning variance.

The purchase application was witnessed by James M. Collins, an aide to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell. James Collins later would be introduced as a partner in the deal.

Days before, on Sept. 29, 1984, Clarence Collins obtained a $27,000 letter of credit from Community Federal Credit Union in Plymouth.

● On Nov. 20, 1984, MDOT accepted Collins' $270,000 offer, allowing the purchaser 150 days to meet terms and conditions, and 20 days to close the deal.

● On Jan. 2, 1985, MDOT executed a deed which would relinquish the property to Collins in exchange for $270,000. By that time, a new partner had climbed aboard. His name was John Breen, brother of Maurice Breen, and an attorney who worked for Wayne County as a land acquisition specialist.

Maurice Breen later hired John Breen to handle property acquisition chores for the Western Townships Utilities Authority sewer project.

● As of March 21, 1985, John Breen, James Collins, and Clarence Collins were listed as the property's land contract purchasers. At that time, John Breen was serving as attorney for Clarence Collins.

By April 16, 1985, John Breen scripted a letter to MDOT asking for changes in the land contract.

In a letter to an MDOT supervisor, John Breen wrote: "Confirming our telephone conversation of this date, please rewrite the land contract to show only Clarence E. Collins and John E. Breen as buyers."

● One day later, DeMattia entered the picture. On April 17, 1985, the developer signed an Affidavit of Interest indicating an interest in the parcel.

The affidavit showed DeMattia's desire to purchase the property from "... Clarence E. Collins, on behalf of himself and as an agent for certain undisclosed principals ..."

● On May 7, 1985, Community Federal Credit Union cut a $27,000 certified check to MDOT for Clarence Collins and James Collins. The following day, a $27,000 check ordered from Wayne County Credit Union was sent to the state.

A copy of the check — obtained from the state — does not list a remitter. However, a day later, on May 9, the state and Clarence Collins and John Breen signed a land contract for $54,000 down and the $216,000 balance payable in semi-annual payments of $16,200.

● On Aug. 27, 1985, Clarence Collins appeared before the Plymouth Township board to speak for the rezoning application. An adjacent 32-acre parcel also was on the agenda for rezoning.

The township board unanimously approved both rezoning applications. Breen voted on the 32-acre parcel, but abstained from the second vote. DeMattia later purchased both parcels and developed them as Metro

West Technology Park.

● By April 28, 1986, the partners were ready to deal. On that date, a Quit Claim Deed was executed, which identified Clarence E. Collins and Margaret I. Collins; James M. Collins and Cathleen V. Collins; John E. Breen and Georgiela Breen; and Maurice M. Breen and Mary Breen as four sets of one-quarter partners.

The partnership and DeMattia also signed a mortgage agreement with promissory notes totaling $846,450 that day.

Ernest Essad was listed as the attorney for the partnership. Essad also was designated as collection agent for the partnership.

His firm, Nora, Hemming, Essad & Polaczky, handled legal chores for Plymouth, Canton, and Northville townships.

Earlier this week, Breen said he could not remember all the details of the land purchase and sale. Asked if he contributed money to the $54,000 down payment, he said: "I would assume so ... I think I was in (from) the beginning."

Why would DeMattia spend $1.1 million in 1986 on a parcel he could have had for $270,000 in 1984? He's asking himself the same question.

"I wish I would have bought it from the state," DeMattia said. "I didn't know about the open bid from the state."

"(But) at the time the land was purchased by Collins, I didn't have the money to buy a thing," he added.

DeMattia did not seem concerned about the purchase, or Maurice Breen's role in the partnership.

"The people I deal with all have to be honorable. I knew Clarence Collins as an honorable man," DeMattia said.

Downes stomps on Breen's turf in county race

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Patrick Downes realized early on that he faced an uphill climb in his quest to gain the Republican nomination for Wayne County's 10th District commission seat.

This was his first political race, and he was slotted against a longtime pol, an insider who had figured out the business well before Downes was born.

He knew Maurice Breen was a formidable foe, despite the baggage the incumbent commissioner carried from the troubled Western Townships Utilities Authority sewer project and his sometimes controversial tenure as Plymouth Township supervisor.

Downes figured he needed a big strike, something to grab voters' attention.

With recent campaign flier describing Breen's past business dealings in Plymouth Township, Downes may have uncovered a gold mine.

Downes' flier ties Breen: his wife, Mary, a Schoolcraft College trustee; and three other quarter-interest partners to a Plymouth Township land purchase and sale that earned the group an almost $850,000 profit in 18 months.

While not alleging that Breen was involved in illegalities, he does charge his opponent with playing fast and loose with his township position.

"Obviously, the man has a different opinion than me on how a public official should behave," he said. "Breen used his position to put him in contact with people who could benefit him financially."

"It's outrageous that he feels that he can have the same freedom that other investors may have, when he had control of rezoning," Downes added.

Downes put in a considerable amount of research time as he tracked the Breen land purchase and sale. The more he found, the more he was convinced that the deal was structured to shelter the former supervisor.

"It appears that some attempt was made to hide Maury Breen's name," Downes said. "I'm curious what his consideration was. Was it out of the kindness of other people's hearts (that he became a partner)?"

For Breen's part, he denies impropriety in the land deal, calling it a "reshaping" of events that occurred in the mid-1980s. He also dismissed Downes, a fellow Plymouth Township resident, as a candidate without a platform.

"I think he ought to try running on his own merits," Breen said. "He obviously has nothing to run on (and is) trying to make something appear wrong that wasn't wrong."

Wixom businessman eyes House

Editor's note: Beginning today and continuing up to the primary election Aug. 4, each issue of The Northville Record will feature interviews with candidates in one of the local races.

On the next three pages are interviews with the people running for the state House of Representatives in the new 38th District. It includes the part of the City of Northville in Oakland County (north of Baseline Road) as well as Nott and much of the rest of southwest Oakland County.

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

Jim Ash is a Wixom businessman who, along with Milford resident John Riley, is challenging incumbent Willis Bullard for his seat in the Michigan House of Representatives. If Ash wins the August primary, he will face off against Democrat Robert Haverly.

This is Ash's first major bid for public office. He has previously served on Wixom's charter revision commission. He is the owner of a computer repair business.

What made you decide to run for office?

Elected officials haven't done too much for the state in the past decade. A prime example is, to run a business in this state it takes a lot of taxes from you and a lot of businesses are leaving the state because of the tax structure.

I felt that possibly they should have some people up there who have gone through this recession, depression — that are involved in it. I have not heard any elected official come up with a plan to create jobs or how to help senior citizens or the health care that keeps going up and you can't afford it.

What's your proposal?

There are three things that you really need to do. First, you have to make a good place to do business for industry in the state, and the only way you can do that is to beat out the southern states that pull our industry down there. They offer all kinds of packages so that people will come down there.

We here give tax abatements to businesses for, say, 12 years. Well, if you can give an abatement to a company for 12 years, they'll come in, they'll make some money, and then they'll leave. That does happen a lot and I figure that if that's the case, we can create a business atmosphere where we guarantee tax breaks in this state, where the incentives are good enough for them to come in and employ people, then they would stay here.

What plan do you have for cutting property taxes?

Basically what I'm running on is statewide casino gambling. I'm putting the figures together now for how much revenue that would generate for the state. The taxes that would pay, I cannot give you a figure. But it would be in the hundreds of millions of dollars, on the business of casino gambling. The amount of people they'd employ, depending on how it was set up — we'll go conservative — 75,000 people directly and indirectly.

Now when you have that kind of business here, it employs every skilled trade. Everyone that can have a job and work can be employed by it. Plus it would bring people in from out of state, where they need a place to stay, to buy gas, and everything else.

You have to give property tax relief, too — to the industry, to anyone who owns a home, but mainly to the senior citizens.

I propose that if you pay taxes 20 years in the State of Michigan and you're a senior citizen, that your tax be cut to a minimum. I'm saying $500, and I want that money to go to the community they live in. Not the state, not the schools, because they (senior citizens) won't need it.

How would you fund the schools?

With the money coming in from the taxes you can fund your schools. You can reduce your tax bite from the schools for the industry and homeowners by the money that you get from the casino gambling and the people that it would employ.

Do you think that bad roads and bridges in the state are enough of a problem to warrant a 5-cent increase in the state fuel tax? Or would casino gambling take care of that?

Casino gambling isn't a pot of gold, but you would derive more money from it.

The biggest problem you have with tax money is that there's a lot of it going in and not much of it coming back. I believe that roads are absolutely important for everyone — for commerce, people on vacation, tourists, everyone — that's very important.

There's talk of the Legislature creating a multi-county water and sewer board to take over the Detroit-run system. What do you think of that proposal?

I've heard people say that it's the taxes and the people who pay for it. But then again, Detroit actually built it. They're supplying the service. They're trying to upgrade it. I don't think you can just go in there and take it from them.

You don't take other people's property; you have to discuss it and see if you can come to an agreement.

Do you believe that voters should support the constitutional amendment to limit terms in the Nov. 3 election?

I think approximately a decade as an elected person to either the Senate or (House of) Representatives, state or federal, is about enough that a person can really do, due to the fact that you get burned out.

It seems like politicians figure you're working for them, and that really bothers me. I figure if you elect someone, you're paying their salary, you put them in office, and you expect something.

You work for the voters, period. There's no other way of looking at it. You have to come back and see what your people need. I have stated that I will spend one day a month in the communities that I represent. I will schedule a time for each community, one day a month, and people will know that they can come and talk to me at that time.

To be more accessible?

You've got to be. You've got to be. You can get up there and lose track of the people down here. In my youth, I was once told by a politician that he doesn't have to know what his people want, that he knows what's best for them. And we got into a little discussion over that. That's totally wrong. That's totally wrong.

Term limitation, yes. Ten years is about max.

Should the state tie welfare benefits to school attendance, or job training or community service?

Well, if a person's ill, or has very young children. Unless they can make it convenient for the people, I don't see how they can.

But welfare is basically for when you have a hard time, and you need some help. I think the state and businesses should get together and try programs to give people the education and the knowledge to acquire jobs.

Do you think that the state should move toward a 200-day school year?

I think on the west coast they have it all year long, don't they? I see nothing wrong with 200 days. I really don't.

It seems like, for the last 10 years or so, the state and the state's agencies have raised fees rather than raise taxes. They've raised fees for driver's licenses, college tuition, park fees, but they haven't raised taxes. Do you support this method?

Well, actually it's a user's fee, right? I imagine you do have to pay to use something. I don't think it would be fair to say we need this much more when you don't use it.

There are certain things that have to pay for, anyway. But if a person doesn't use a state park, why should they have to pay taxes for it?

This morning the Supreme Court announced its decision on the abortion issue. They didn't overturn Roe vs. Wade, but they upheld a number of restrictions including a 24-hour waiting period and parental consent. Do you support such restrictions? What are your views on the abortion issue?

How can you legislate a morality issue? How can you?

So you don't believe abortion should be legislated?

No. Nor do I believe anyone should face any kind of punishment for it. It's the individual's decision. My Lord, it's like telling you you can't be a member of a certain church or you can't believe in this or that. Morality is nothing for politics.

You go by what you believe. No one can make that decision for you.

I'd like you to tell me about what you consider to be your major accomplishments. What has you done that you're the most proud of?

Marrying my wife, seriously. She is a great help to me and I've had a lot better life with her. Other accomplishments is I have a nice son and he's my friend. I only have so many friends and they are just like me — if they need something I do it and they do the same for me.

I've traveled all over the world and I've enjoyed that, and I work well around machines. I like being a businessman, even with all the headaches. I'm sort of independent in my thinking.

I believe in doing things right and if I commit myself, if it's on a committee or anything I've ever done, I've always done it the best I could and if I didn't think it was right I'd ask somebody. And if they showed me a better way, I would do it. There's always people smarter than you out there, they know a lot more, and if you listen to them you benefit.

Anything else?

I favor a sales tax increase, 1 cent. Use that to help senior citizens get their breaks, because we're losing them. We can't afford to lose them.

Bullard faces state House primary challenge

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

Five-term incumbent Willis Bullard faces two Republican challengers for his seat in the state House of Representatives, Jim Ash and John Riley. If he beats them in the primary, he will go on to face Democrat Robert Hovey in November.

Which plan, if any, for cutting property taxes do you support?
I support the cut and cap plan. Can you explain that?

Well, basically what it does is two things. The cut is a 3-percent cut in school operating taxes that's phased in over five years, and that amounts, at the end of the five years, to roughly a 20-percent cut in most people's property taxes.

The cap part would limit assessment increases on individual properties to 3 percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is less. This is an amendment to the Michigan constitution.

This would cut commercial and industrial property taxes as well as taxes on homes and farms?

Yes, I think if you're going to cut property taxes you have to cut not just homestead and residential taxes. If property taxes are too high, which I believe they are, they should have to be cut across the board for all classes of property. So, business and commercial properties would receive the cuts just as well.

How would the state government pay for the cuts?

In a normal revenue year, the state can easily afford to reimburse the schools for the lost revenue. In a recession period we would have to cut state programs.

Do you think the legislature should create a multi-county water and sewer board to take over the Detroit system?

Yes, I do, because there are constant allegations by our drain commissioner, George Kuhn, who I greatly respect, that the suburban people are being gouged by the Detroit water and sewer board, which is totally controlled by Coleman Young. I think if it's a multi-county operation it should be controlled by representatives of all the counties and not just controlled by one unit. Sen. (David) Honigman has a bill that passed the Senate, which I support.

Which would involve a multi-county board?

Right. Unfortunately, I doubt that the House will take the bill up and vote on it because the House Democrats are beholden to (Detroit Mayor) Coleman Young and the urban areas and they don't want to make him mad by even voting on the bill, so I doubt we'll get a chance to vote on the bill until we get a Republican majority in the House.

Do you think voters should support the term limitation constitutional amendment on the Nov. 3 ballot?

I oppose a term limitation amendment right now for about three different reasons. Number one, I don't think constitutionally and legally we can limit congressional terms. I think that has to be done at the federal level.

Number two, if we did limit congressional terms we would be one of a few states to do that and we would put ourselves at a weakened position compared to other states. Other states would have returning congressmen getting seniority and our people are in and out in six years. So I certainly am totally against term limitations for the congressional offices for those reasons.

Overall, I oppose the proposal because we have term limitations in the U.S. House and state House every two years. They're called elections. The main problem is we have such low voter participation and the people are so apathetic that the majority doesn't rule because the majority doesn't even vote. Most people who are in elected office in western Oakland County are elected in Republican primaries, where the turnout is probably 20 percent plus or minus.

What do you think can be done to bring more people out to the polls?

Well, there's an argument that a lot of people (use, which is) "We can't vote because there's no choices," or "We're fed up with the system" or whatever, but I think most of the time that's just a cover-up for just being lazy, not taking the time...

Do you believe the state should move toward a 200-day school year as opposed to the current 180-day year?

I don't for two reasons. Number one, I don't know that it has been shown through studies or any other way that this would improve the educational product. I'm not sure that students would learn more in 200 days than 180 days.

And number two, we simply can't afford it. We can't afford to adequately fund our present system, so how can we add to the number of days and fund that system? I mean, it's the simple fact that teachers are not going to work more days unless they get paid more. I think that's more of an academic argument at this point, because it's not seriously going to be considered.

For the last 10 years or so, the state and state's agencies have raised tuitions, raised driver license fees, raised park fees — they keep raising fees to avoid raising taxes. Do you approve of that method?

Yes, I do. If I have a choice between raising a fee for users of a particular service like the park system or a general tax increase, I will be in favor of raising that fee — up to a reasonable point.

This morning I heard on TV that the Supreme Court made its decisions on the Pennsylvania abortion laws. What types of laws or regulations, if any, on abortion do you favor in our state?

Well, in general I guess I would favor reasonable restrictions and I would oppose unreasonable restrictions.

What would you consider reasonable restrictions?

I have voted to support eliminating Medicaid funding for abortions, I have voted in favor of having parental consent in abortions, and I have voted for the pro-choice version of informed consent, which is the version that did not include a picture of a fetus.

What would you consider unreasonable?

Well, I don't know if I should name a specific thing. There are a lot of proposals out there and I'd like to address each issue as it comes up, but I think reasonable people would look at each specific issue and reasonable

Willis Bullard

Lyon and a girl murdered from Milford — is that Sen. (Mike) Bouchard introduced a bill in the Senate to reform the parole system.

I think we've seen that there's been a failure of the parole system. Our bill would basically take the parole board out of the civil service system and make them appointees of the department director of Corrections — three year terms, he could remove them for good reason — and also expand the parole board and mandate that one of the parole board members must be someone from the law enforcement community.

Milford man squares off with Bullard

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

John Riley is a former Milford township trustee and village council member who works as an electrical contractor. He and Wixom businessman Jim Ash are both challenging Republican incumbent Willis Bullard for his seat in the Michigan House of Representatives.

If Riley wins the August Republican primary, he will run against Democratic challenger Robert Hovey in the November election.

Which plan, if any, for cutting property taxes do you support?

Well, I'm not fully familiar with all of them. I think I would be supporting the governor's plan, but I'm not fully informed on, on the long term basis, what its ramifications are so I can't really say absolutely positively that I'm in favor of it. I'm not in favor of the Democrats' plan.

Do you think that bad roads and bridges in our area are enough of a problem to warrant a 5-cent increase in the state fuel tax?

Well, I would support an increase in the fuel tax. The amount would have to be determined on what is really estimated that it would take to repair that infrastructure.

But I think our roads are in bad enough shape that we need an increase in the gasoline tax. And that tax, unlike most other ones, is not on a percentage, it's on a set amount. As inflation goes up it still stays the same so it has to be updated.

How about the state spending money on new road construction rather than maintaining existing roads?

I think they have to do both. You get to a point where they wait until the problem arises then they act to alleviate it. They could be criticized for that, but then, what if they wanted to build roads where they weren't going to be needed?

The original Northwestern Highway was a good example of that. A big double-lane road that went nowhere. A lot of money spent that wasn't necessary. Of course, now it is and they don't have the money to extend it.

Do you think that the Legislature should create a multi-county water and sewer board to take over the Detroit-run system?

Well, I think ultimately it would be a good idea, but I don't agree with the way it's being handled right now.

At least, not so much the thought behind it but the matter in which it's being handled, as a political matter.

They're not going to pull it off. Too strong a political issue that's going to be more divisive than corrective. As much as I don't agree with Coleman Young on a lot of things, the City of Detroit still owns the system. You can't just go in there and say, "We've got the votes here, we're going to take it away from you."

They don't have much left in Detroit, really. I don't agree they should be overcharging on the system, but on the other hand to go in like gang-busters and say we're going to take it over, it will create such a furor it will go on for years and years and years. What do you think of the state's method of keeping taxes down by raising fees — like driver's license fees or park fees — to avoid raising taxes?

Well, I support it if the fees are equal to the service. I don't agree where in some cases the fees exceed the services that are rendered and then they transfer the money to juggle the books, transfer it to somewhere else.

Do you think voters should support the term-limitation constitutional amendment on the November ballot?

I think that's something that's an individual choice. I support it, and I think there are some arguments that are on the other side, too.

When you have to weigh it on balance, I think I would have to go with the side that says term limitation, in the long run, better than a few individuals being able to stay on because there are simply not that many conscientious individuals that continue to be conscientious for 10 or 20 years.

I've seen it myself in government. Those that hang around the longest have the least to offer. They come to the meetings late, and haven't done their agendas or whatever, but everyone says, "Oh, dear old Joe, he's been here forever, what a nice guy." These fellows come in and just take a seat and don't do any work. They figure they've got seniority and they don't have to.

Do you think that the state should tie welfare benefits to school attendance, job training or community service?

Yes, I think that's a good idea. There has to be something to encourage people to move on up. Any person, and I'm not picking on somebody who necessarily has had a bad stroke of luck and need welfare. But at the same time you have to help him — the old saying goes, give a man a fish and he'll eat for a day. Teach him to fish and he'll eat for a lifetime.

Would you support a movement to change the school year from 180 to 200 days?

I think I'd have to hear all the ins and outs of it, but I think I would tend to agree with it. As much as I enjoyed summer vacation as a kid, it derives from the days when they worked on the farm and they needed the entire summer to plant crops and help out. But that doesn't exist any more in most of the areas, in Michigan at least.

I happen to be very high on education and think that all they can do to compete with the kids in Japan and such who tend to be whipping our butts educationally is good. A longer school year would be a matter of getting more education as opposed to less education. Everyone needs time off, but three months is probably more than they need.

The Supreme Court has upheld a Pennsylvania law that includes numerous restrictions on abortion. What restrictions, or any restrictions, would you support in the state of Michigan?

Well, for that I would have to put on my thinking cap and dream up restrictions that don't exist and that would be pretty hard to do.

As far as my position on abortion, probably Bullard and myself are very close. I think you could characterize both of us as being pro-life. I don't like to be labeled, but if I had to be labeled people would probably label me as pro-life as opposed to pro-abortion.

But realistically, what the Supreme Court does is almost irrelevant, anyhow. I don't see it as a whole lot different than prohibition or gambling or anything else. If there are enough people that want to do it and it's financially advantageous to people, it's going to happen whether the Supreme Court or the FBI or whoever (tries to stop it).

The laws are going to be ignored. I think you're not going to stop it. I think it's going to continue whether you like it or not.

Probably the restrictions that have been put on in Michigan. I would probably be agreeable that they should be there.

If it became possible, would you support a law making abortion illegal in this state?

It would depend on how it was worded. I probably would, but I know that however I may vote, it isn't going to be stopped one way or the other.

A big argument on the pro-choice side is that, as you say, people will do it anyway and there could end up being too many illegal, unsafe abortions.

I really doubt that, though, because I've heard the argument about the coathangers — I don't know if they ever really used coathangers — or back alleys. I don't know why they would do that because there would simply be plenty of medical facilities that would (perform abortions), whether there is a law against it or not.

Tell me about yourself. What accomplishments are you most proud of?

That I have two fine children and I was able to raise my children as good, upstanding citizens. I haven't had to go through the trauma that a lot of parents have had to go through.

That doesn't mean that I'm special or anything; maybe it's just a lot of luck. But I worked at it and I feel very accomplished because of it.

Mill Race Matters

Join us Saturday for a traditional, old-fashioned Fourth of July at Mill Race Village. Festivities begin at the conclusion of the community's parade (about 11 a.m.).

All Mill Race buildings will be open with docents on hand to explain a little of their history. Demonstrations will be conducted by the Mill Race Weaver's Guild, the Mill Race Basket Guild, our master blacksmith, native Americans, two Civil War reenactment regiments, and an early settler enampment. A number of community group will be selling a variety of refreshments. Guests are invited to bring their own picnic lunches and enjoy the afternoon. Music will be provided by the Novi Concert Band. Merchandise will be available for sale from the Weaver's Guild, the Basket Guild, the Mill Race Country Store, and the Village Surplus Sale.

Northville Historical Society Members will be marching as part of the community parade as well. Why not put on your Victorian Festival apparel and join us in the parade. Look for the vehicle bearing our name in the parade staging area about 9:45 a.m.

Thanks this week to the Northville Town Hall for their gift of cash aid in the microfilming of archival materials and to Eleanor Lowell for additions to the archives collection. The archives continue to grow as committee members receive new items weekly and add more items to the available materials. Much work remains to be done and additional volunteers can always be used. Contact Diane Rockall at 349-9005 if you might be interested in helping.

This year Mill Race has eight buildings open to the public every Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m. New docents are needed to help with this expanded workload. If you might consider getting involved contact our offices at 348-1845 for additional information. Each docent usually works three or four times a year. In addition to the Sunday times docents are needed during the Fourth of July events, both days of the Victorian Festival and the Christmas walk.

Rose gardener Pat Hibbard recently received first place for a rose from our gardens submitted in an area competition. The gardens further enhance the beauty of our grounds, as do the new herb gardens added adjacent to the cottage house.

Civic Concern to float its message at parade

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

This year's Fourth of July parade boasts a very special entrant.

Civic Concern, a local relief organization, is sponsoring its own float in Saturday's parade. The float will be decorated and staffed by people who have turned to Civic Concern for help.

"What we're trying to do is depict what we do," said Director Marlene Kunz. "A lot of people don't realize what we really do."

What the organization does is provide emergency food, clothing, medical, utility and housing assistance to people on the verge of disaster or recovering from one. Civic Concern also acts as a referral service, referring the needy to other agencies.

Many of the Northville, Novi, Livonia, Farmington and Farmington Hills families helped by Civic Concern want to give something back to the group, Kunz said.

"They want to give back by showing their thanks, whether by a child's sign or by helping to collect the cans."

The parade entry would not be possible without the flatbed trailer acquired by Don Holland. In January, Holland's family was burned out of the home they were renting on Eight Mile, when a faulty wood stove flue apparently caught fire. The midnight blaze claimed all the family's possessions.

The Northville/Novi community quickly came to the Hollands' aid with the donation of much-needed clothing. Civic Concern helped raise the money needed for a down payment on the Hollands' new rental home, just down the street from the previous one.

Holland's wife, Maxine, said the family wanted to return the favor when Kunz called looking for help with the float.

"Of course, she helped us and the people of Northville helped us when the house burned," Maxine said. "She's helped us a lot in the last couple of years when we were down."

So the Holland children, Susan, 10; Dwayne, 8; and Donald, 6; are assembling banners for the float, and plan to ride on it in the parade, with their father at the wheel. Another participant will be dressed in green, like the surgeons who operated on him more than a year ago.

The family of Roger Umble, a 3-year-old Novi boy who recovered from major reconstructive heart surgery in 1991, plans to take part in the parade.

When the Umbles were struggling to save money in December 1990 to store blood for Roger's operation, Civic Concern entered the family into its "Adopt-a-Family" program in which another family helped provide the Umbles with Christmas gifts and dinner that year.

Other parade participants will include families who were laid off from their jobs or evicted from their homes, and who have since found jobs and places to live with Civic Concern's help, Kunz said.

The float is also designed to help advertise Civic Concern's "Christmas in July" food drive. The organization will staff an informational table near the Main Street bandshell throughout the day. Donors can drop food and supplies off at the table or at Civic Concern's 215 W. Cady St. office.

Needed items include canned goods, cereals, diapers and baby food, and toiletries. Cash donations are also gratefully accepted.

All gifts are tax deductible.

Other parade entrants include a record nine bands, ranging from the 12-member Novi Concert Band to the "60-strong" Northville High School Summer Marching Band, McDonald said. A last-minute entry, by Tom Rice of the Gifford Music Store, is a hastily-assembled bluegrass band named "Flash in the Pan."

The 5th Michigan Regiment Band, a Civil War-era group wearing authentic uniforms, will lead off the parade with local VFW representatives.

The parade kicks off promptly at 10 a.m. from Northville Downs. Parade entrants should get to Northville Downs by 9 a.m., and enter through the Center Street gate.

The parade sponsors this year are the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4012 and the Kiwanis Club of Northville-Early Birds.

Although no fireworks are planned in Northville this year, the day features other attractions: the usual breakfast at the Masonic Temple, and an afternoon full of picnicking and activities at Mill Race Historical Village. The bed race, scheduled for just before the parade, has been canceled. For a full rundown, see the pull-out on pages 9-A and 10-A.

Gravel road session leaves some doubt ger Richard Henningsen said.

"We have not found money in the budget yet (for the first treatment)," added Supervisor Betty Lennox. "We will certainly look at it when it comes up."

All of which did little to settle a problem that seems as clouded as the dusty roads themselves. Most residents still feel the township has an obligation to treat gravel roads, while the township prefers that affected residents form special assessment districts to shoulder treatment costs.

County officials cite a 1985 circuit court decision requiring the county to maintain treatments on primary roads, but remanding secondary road spraying costs to local governments.

That position seemingly is set in stone.

"The county's not going to change that," said Wayne County Commissioner Maurice Breen.

The township board recently agreed to pay about $12,000 for one dust-control coating. That reluctant decision marked the second consecutive year that the board removed treatments from its budget, only to change its mind after fielding numerous resident complaints.

Tuesday's meeting was supposed to focus on Marilyn Fry, Maxwell, and Parklane, roads that connect the Northville Colony Estates subdivision with Five Mile.

Heavy traffic flows to and from the subdivision put residents from those four roads on the wrong end of dust clouds, and have contributed to the township receiving two pollution violation notices.

Residents from those roads say they are willing to work with the township on possible solutions, but criticized both county and township officials.

"My experience is if you call the township, they tell you to call the county," said Patty Wong, who lives on Maxwell. "If you call the county, they tell you to call the township."

"I think communication is the bottom line," she said.

County and township officials did agree to consider a plan that would close off the four roads to through traffic. Residents said they would ask the township board for a resolution to establish dead end streets on those roads.

Sunset resident Jeff Melnick asked which government was obligated to protect the health and safety of township residents.

"We're not dealing with the health and safety issue, which should be the top priority," Melnick said. "... Don't you think it's time to sit down and come up with a viable solution (and) not pass the buck?"

means anywhere from $54,000 to $108,000.

"It just adds insult to injury," Rezmierski said. "We have set aside $500,000 for this kind of thing; now I'm just hoping we can make it on that."

Both of Northville's representatives in House voted no twice.

Rep. Georgina Goss, R-Northville, said she voted against the bill because of the devastating losses it would have on Northville Public Schools.

"Northville will lose an additional $500,000 in state funding," Goss said Wednesday morning. "Under this bill, recaptures are up slightly and the district will get less in FICA and less in categorical."

Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, said he opposed the bill because of the grave impact it had on local districts.

"I opposed it because it is a continuation of a raid on out-of-formula districts," Bullard said via phone from the House floor Tuesday afternoon.

Under the bill state "recaptures" of aid to local districts jumped from $72 million to $77 million and social security reductions went up $30 million.

Initial local reaction to the bill before it went to the House Tuesday found superintendents and school administrators scrambling to interpret it at a meeting on Monday of the Metropolitan Association for Improved School Legislation, or MASIL.

Rezmierski said, "There was nobody there jumping up and down and saying it was a marvelous bill. No one was giving positive stories."

"But one thing that did come out of the meeting was that now more than ever, districts were putting up a united front in the fight for education."

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Township linksters caught in the trap

Maybe it's true that you can't teach an old dog new tricks.

Apparently, that's the case in Northville Township. Why else would township officials get caught with their pants down over a dumb thing like accepting a golf outing gratis from developers?

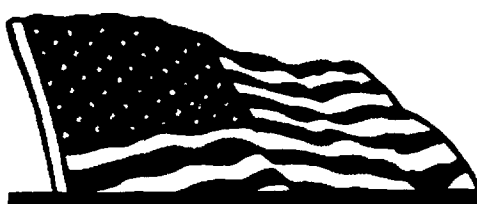

Is it a common disregard for sensible ethics that powers the township? Do assorted freebies stroke the egos of our elected officials? Is it arrogance, or ignorance?

Someone please tell us why they do the things they do.

To review, a pair of local residential developers shelled out $450 to pay entry fees so four township officials — and one spouse — could play in the annual Northville Community Chamber of Commerce golf outing. Supervisor Betty Lennox, her husband Richard, Trustee James Nowka, township Manager Richard Henningsen and Chief Spending Official Michael Kruszewski spent the day on the links, courtesy of the developers.

Lennox claims it was a wonderful opportunity to make "contacts" with various business and political leaders. That may be the case, but who are you contacting, and how? Accepting gratuities from builders, who have a vested interest here and know that nothing comes free, is not only dumb, it's also wrong.

We're troubled that Lennox feel it's just dandy to conduct business this way. Payoffs — however slight — may occur in many government operations, but it doesn't have to be here. It may be true that no sizable amount of graft exchanges hands in the township, but it's also true that the builders in question didn't walk up to Joe and Jane Average on the street and ask if they wanted a set of free golf passes.

The builders were asked to do the township a favor and did so. Somewhere along the line — if it hasn't already occurred — the township may feel an obligation to return the gesture.

Another problem is the ease with which Lennox tossed the blame on Kruszewski, her initial explanation being, "Mick got some tickets for us." The implication clearly is that Kruszewski, who by most reports has a good reputation in the business, went out on his own and put the hustle on developers. We're not sure that was the case. But now he has to assume the scapegoat's role.

This paper has taken a close look at township ethics and conflict of interest issues most of the past year. Township officials like to dismiss this ever-increasing library of troubling reports as the work of a vendetta-charged media, but they constantly, continually give us fodder.

Perhaps it's in the water, perhaps it's genetic, but the township too often does things that defy common sense. Then they wonder why they can't pass a mileage or get the people on their side of issues. Thinking before acting — or accepting gifts from developers — might be a good way to break what's become an unseemly tradition here.

Readers speak with many voices

What a relief.

When the idea for this paper to do a survey of readers came up a few months ago, it sounded great. We'd kicked it around before, but this time, we were determined to make it happen. Our Monday edition was just about two years old — what a good time to take stock of the shift to twice-weekly publication and of the paper in general.

Little did we realize . . .

I still think it was a great idea. But starting the survey, collecting responses, compiling the results, and finally pulling everything together for publication turned out to be a tremendous amount of work. Many thanks to Executive Editor Phil Jerome for compiling the numbers. It all took a lot longer than we thought it would, but it's finally done. Starting on page 1-B you can read the whole thing.

Not to beat a dead horse, but once again thank you to everyone who filled out the form. Doing a survey like this is far from perfect, but I do think it's valuable. That's only because people took the time to participate.

In the story about the survey results I reacted to a few of the more interesting points. I think what I found the most interesting, though, was the utter lack of consensus on what's wrong with the paper and/or what should change.

That is, the thing that one person likes most about the paper is the same thing that another dislikes most. This held true for a great many things: format, local focus, even indi-dual stories.

The most obvious example: We got a grand total of two comments on our political orientation, whatever that means. One reader said we were too conservative. The other said we were too liberal.

We weren't expecting to initiate any massive changes to the paper because of this survey, although if we had uncovered some unanimous outcry for something or other we certainly would have considered it. But there is just no possible way to get any consensus out of these results.

The one near-exception might actually be the column written by Phil Jerome, which frankly brought in the most negative reaction by far. But even Phil has his ardent supporters, although I should note that at least two of them are relatives.

The bottom line is that our community is made up of thousands of different people, and they see things in innumerable different ways. I've always been suspicious when newspaper analysts pontificate about "what readers want" — shorter stories, more features, whatever.

Now, at least for Northville, I've got some hard evidence that "what readers want" varies with each individual. We'll never be able to please all of the people completely. But whenever you've got ideas or complaints, we will always listen.

As one man said after carefully filling out all his likes and dislikes: "P.S. My wife reads this paper too but we never agree on anything."

Bob Needham is editor of The Northville Record.

Community combines to continue the spirit

Last year's Fourth of July observances in Northville, you may recall, were a sight to behold. The town hosted thousands of people for its "Operation Welcome Home."

Earlier this year, the chances for any kind of repeat effort seemed bleak. But a lot of hard-working people got together and planned a celebration for this year which might even be better.

No fireworks, alas. But the parade has more entrants than last year's, with a host of bands, including one from Northville High School. Debbie McDonald of Northville Jewelers and lots of others worked tirelessly to put together the best parade possible, and come Saturday the results will be evident.

After the parade the Northville Historical Society promises an afternoon full of old-fashioned attractions at Mill Race Historical Village. Overseen by Tom Swigart, the society will present demonstrations, entertainment, food (or bring your own picnic), and the attraction of the buildings and grounds which make up Mill Race. All this, plus the day starting off with the traditional breakfast at the Masonic Temple.

Congratulations to the organizers. And happy Independence Day to all.

New state map an improvement

Pat Nowak wasn't just trumpeting bureaucratic air when he said Michigan's 1992 transportation map is improved.

The boss of the state Department of Transportation said there are more than 300 changes, and pointed out a few. But his press release didn't point out the biggest change of all:

No picture of the governor.

For the first time in a generation, at least, MDOT's map has no color photo of the chief executive. The Great Lakes State is rare if not alone in the nation in that regard.

John Engler often accused his predecessor, Jim Blanchard, of using state publications to trumpet himself. There's a puffy message about our 11,000 lakes and 3,200 miles of shoreline with Engler's scrawl, and that's all.

The big news is that Michigan has turned the corner in admitting we have a treasure in our 2.7 million acres of National Forests.

Until 1962, our maps showed the National Forests in a green tint; then they mysteriously disappeared. For a dozen years I griped about it. The bureaucracy gave conflicting reasons for eliminating them.

Nearly all states I have visited and studied show National Forests on their maps. Colorado would be nothing without them. Even Indiana and Illinois show them.

Michigan's four National Forests — Ottawa and Hiawatha in the UP, Manistee and Huron in the northern lower — have 80 campgrounds that are, on average, better maintained than State Forest campgrounds. But for 30 years, state government has refused to admit the existence of National Forests. Our freeway welcome centers at Monroe, Quincy and New Buffalo carry no literature about National Forests.

Nowak's regime has made a partial improvement. The map text has two paragraphs on the forests and where to write for information.

I still want them shown on the map. There would be no

"clutter," as the bureaucracy says — just a green tint. The map is, in Nowak's own words, "the mainstay of the travel industry."

For the first time, MDOT's map shows the locations of nine sunken ships off our coastlines. Nice touch. But I'll warrant thousands more families visit the National Forest campgrounds than dive to see sunken ships.

MDOT's chart of state parks — locations and facilities — is improved by slightly larger type.

A major change is more inset maps of cities. Mount Pleasant, Adrian and Traverse City appear for the first time.

And there's an inset map of downtown Detroit showing streets, convention halls and the People Mover route.

That's understandable. Before ascending to his lofty post in Lansing, the cherubic Nowak was deputy Oakland County executive and chair of the suburban public transit board. Unlike traditional highway men, Nowak appreciates non-auto transportation modes.

MDOT's new map also shows the route of the car ferry across Lake Michigan from Ludington to Manitowoc.

Unlike maps you buy in the gas station, MDOT's map is distributed free. Some two million copies have been printed for $430,000, equal to the salaries of 10 state legislators and a much better deal.

Average cost is 21.5 cents apiece.

For the first time, MDOT's map is printed on recycled paper.

I've come across travel books and calendars about Michigan that were printed on other continents. Not the MDOT map. Once again, the printer is Michigan Litho of Grand Rapids.

Want a nice new map? Try MDOT welcome centers, local chambers of commerce, the Michigan Travel Bureau, MDOT district offices or your friendly state legislator. Or send a post card with your full address to: MAPS, MDOT, PO Box 30050, Lansing 48909.

And ask 'em to show the National Forests next time.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

'Progress' destroys heritage

To the editor:

I just read the article in the Record that the old Methodist Church, now Open Door, is to be sold, possibly to Singh Development or someone else. If Singh buys it, they'll tear it down to build a luxury, multi-story retirement apartment building.

It's not enough that a building that should have been on the National Historic Register was ruined and made into a fake ugly and distasteful castle—but now the building will possibly be torn down. Northville has already lost many wonderful old buildings to so-called progress. We do not need to lose another.

It seems that Singh runs this town. They sure bamboozled our illustrious planning commission with the Main Centre. If that's a Victorian building, I'm Queen Victoria.

But then, who cares? It seems no one, at least not the men who It's time to put a stop to development. If Northville would have planned ahead and acquired land for light industrial use, the tax base would be more equitable and maybe Northville could have stayed quaint. Now it's just trite and fake.

Electrical service is deplorable

tomor relations at Detroit Edison.

We have been residents of Northville for the past six years. During that time Detroit Edison service to our house has been positively deplorable. Our power goes out with almost weekly regularity; oftentimes when the weather is clear. What compounds our frustration is the fact that areas surrounding us, including the homes across the street, do not seem to be affected.

It is obvious that Detroit Edison service to our area is inadequate. During last week's storm we were without power for 24 hours (no surprise); during which time repeated attempts to contact Edison were met with recordings or ignorant telephone operators who didn't even know where Northville is located. Their computers were down so they had no idea what was going on. Tell us, where are all these "improvements" that Edison made to the system after last summer's storms?

This kind of inefficiency is allowed to proliferate in an industry where there is no competition. When something goes wrong, all you get is a "Gee, we're sorry," instead of concrete action. Where is the incentive to improve when nobody is challenging you? We'll bet if the president of Edison were living on our street that power would have been on in 20 minutes. Isn't it interesting, though, that Edison's billing department runs like a well-oiled machine. In all our years as a customer, our bill has never once been late.

Letters/Northville Public Schools millage

Question the motives of no voters

To the editor:

It is with great sadness that I write this letter. The failure of the 1.4-mill increase will long be remembered as a sad day for the children of the community of Northville.

Karen Lemieux, who states she is a member of Citizens for a Better Northville, wrote in her letter to the editor in the June 4 issue of The Northville Record, "The best way for a voter to wade through all this conflict is to check motives of the parties involved." I question the motives of the members of CBN. Many of them have their children in private schools, or would like to, and therefore their interest in the quality of education of Northville Public Schools is somewhat suspect. The members of Citizens for a Quality Education, however, are interested in quality education for Northville children. Certainly, many are PTA members—that's what PTA is all about—wanting quality education for the children.

CBN led you to believe that the millage increase was for teacher salary increases and that if it was voted down, the teachers would lose that increase. That was false. The teachers have a binding contract that is in effect until next summer. This contract provides for annual raises in teacher salaries. Next year, however, because of the cap on the SEV, the teacher salary increases have been reduced to 5.48 percent. This is lower than the 6 percent that Ms. Lemieux stated would be acceptable to her.

The Committee to Elect Custer and Phillips stated in their flyer, "Fail the increase," "No cuts in teacher classroom staffing," "Do not punish the children with program cuts," "Kids should not be made to suffer for the past mistakes of the school board." With the teacher contracts already binding and the state not giving the money it used to, the children are exactly who are being punished by the failed increase.

Classroom size from the elementary schools to the high school will be very large next year. They will be canceling many classes because there are not 36 students enrolled. Unfortunately, some of these are advanced-level classes. Just the ones that are needed to show a selective college or scholarship committee that the student is taking a demanding workload.

As the mother of a daughter who will be a senior next year, I can tell you she is devastated. All of the course cuts, the cuts of some excellent teachers, and the elimination of extracurricular activities and non-varsity level sports will mean a lousy senior year for the class of 1993. She and her classmates have looked forward to being seniors since they entered the high school. This was supposed to be their year to shine: to have the leadership roles in extracurricular activities; to star in plays, choir and the band; to be editors of the newspaper and yearbook. This was supposed to be the year they would remember for a lifetime. They'll remember it all right, but it will not be with joy as it should be, but instead with sadness and resentment.

The school district and school board have made some mistakes. They are not perfect. If CBN wants to point out mistakes, that is fine. However, I think they should get involved and try to solve the problems. We need to unite our efforts and look realistically at the budget and the state mandates and recaptures. We should not be taking out our anger over taxes and politicians on the children. They do not deserve it. Instead, we should bombard Lansing with our anger and tell them there has to be something done now to provide funding for our schools other than property tax.

I can only hope the increase will be put on the ballot again and that people will get the true facts. Do not punish the children—they are the future of our country and we may need their support some day.

Lynn Zwiesler

Losses of teachers is worst part

To the editor:

I would like to take this time to express my opinion as a high school student considering the school millage.

I am currently a tenth-grade student at Northville High School. I love our school—organizations, athletic teams, and especially our teachers. But with a failure of the millage increase, our school is most likely to lose these distinguished programs that make us Northville High School. It will also defame our prominence that we have earned through the help of the citizens of Northville.

Next school year, we will probably fail to keep the Northville Chapter of the National Honor Society that many of our students belong to. As a member myself, I feel extremely honored to be part of a nationwide organization. Without it, these excellent students will not have the chance to be recognized for their accomplishments and outstanding academic achievements.

But what I will regret the most is the loss of our teachers. They are fantastic—always alert, excited to teach, and very inspirational. I firmly believe that our teachers are those who make it happen, giving us the education and the opportunity to succeed as the Michigan Exemplary School and be the role model for many other schools. Furthermore, they are not just teachers, they are "people." Their respect and care for us, not only as students but also as "people," are most conspicuous.

With these tragic cuts, our school and the student body will be affected directly and will have to pay for the consequences. Please understand what the loss will mean to us and help keep Northville Schools as the school of excellence.

Mutsumi Yoshida

No voters: thanks for nothing

To the editor:

To those who voted no on the millage increase, we would just like to "thank you" for voting against the millage increase.

"Thank you" for laying off the best teachers at Northville High.

"Thank you" for taking away our after school activities.

"Thank you" for cutting J.V. and freshman sports.

"Thank you" for taking away our high school yearbook.

"Thank you" for taking away our substance abuse counselor.

"Thank you" for lessening our chances at getting into college since now we don't have any activities to put on our college application.

"Thank you" for making our class sizes so much larger.

"Thank you" for cutting our class selection.

"Thank you" for taking away our plays, musicals, and choir and band concerts.

and "Thank you" for ruining our senior year.

On the Northville Township beat

Of politics and sewers and realization...

I didn't know whether to laugh or cry when I plucked Georgina Goss' latest campaign flyer from my mailbox.

As the Aug. 4 primary election nears, State Representative Goss (R-WTUA) is attempting to wash away the foul odor of her involvement in the Western Townships Utilities Authority sewer project with an all-out public relations blitz.

That's understandable. After squeaking out a victory in last year's special election—before the WTUA mess came to light—Goss knows she's in big trouble. Desperate times call for desperate measures.

But Goss is kidding herself if she thinks voters will buy this latest piece of campaign drivel. Georgina Goss the ethics candidate? I think not.

In "A special report from Representative Georgina Goss" the former Northville Township supervisor trumpets an ethics reform proposal and her desire to "end business as usual in Lansing."

This from Ms. PACwoman, a politician who never met a campaign contribution she wouldn't gobble? From someone so completely immersed in the darkest, seediest recesses of Northville and Plymouth townships' government?

From someone who had such a poor grasp of the word that she pitched an Ethics Policy to the township board in 1990? I've always wondered who Ethics was and why he or she bothered to make a cameo in the township.

The record clearly shows that Goss and her cronies view ethics as a concept applicable to others, but not themselves. Ethics candidate, indeed. Try another approach, because that one won't fly.

It's official: WTUA representatives think all area residents and the press are idiots. That's the real conclusion after their latest whitewash.

If you didn't know, WTUA's business, management, and legal programs were "cleared" during a report at a June 17 meeting.

Of course, the thumbs-up sign for business and management was offered by Plante & Moran, the auditing firm that's earned big bucks since it was hired—without tendering a bid—by WTUA in 1986. Dickinson, Wright, Van Dusen, Moon and Freeman handled the legal review, though they've also been on the WTUA payroll for years.

Prior to last week's Northville 2000 meeting, Supervisor Betty Lennox placed copies of an article from a Plymouth paper in front of each Northville 2000 delegate. The misleading headline read: "WTUA cleared of any wrongdoing." Actually, WTUA was not "cleared" at all, and further cast doubt by keeping the "investigation" in the family.

When I asked Lennox why anyone would give any validity to such a review, she said: "We just can't please you, can we?"

Nope. Not with transparent, self-protective gibberish like that. By the way, WTUA officials, including Lennox, authorized up to $28,000 to pay for the report. More money well-spent, I presume.

Speaking of Northville 2000, you have to be impressed by the efforts of that citizens group. For the past several months, about a dozen-and-a-half township residents have gathered to review township operations, facilities, finances, etc., in anticipation of a report to the township board.

The group has been studious and hard-working. It's clear to see. And the more they look into the township, the more they realize why so many problems have cropped up in their local government.

Some of the residents touched on those problems last week. During a report on township finances, residents concluded that poor management has contributed to a troubling financial outlook. The group clearly stated that the township has failed to be proactive, and really never has planned for the future.

They're right, of course. But the N'ville 2000 folks didn't quite go far enough. Many wondered aloud how a tradition of poor management implemented itself here, but wouldn't pound the nail where it belongs.

I will. Most of the township's problems can be attributed to so-called leaders who place their political agenda above community needs. This type of attitude has prevailed in the township for years, and residents and employees are the worse for it.

It's ridiculous that political games play such a strong role here. It's just as absurd that residents allow business as usual to denigrate their community, and push it to the brink of financial ruin. The feeling here, though, is that the tide is about to change.

Letters/Northville Public Schools millageConsider idea of paying to participate at those youth.

To the editor:

As a sophomore at Northville High School I am very concerned about the effects that the millage defeat will have upon students.

Students applying to college from Northville High will be at a disadvantage due to the major cuts in the curricular activities. Students become well-rounded and learn leadership and communication skills through their participation in sports as well as choir, band and the National Honor Society.

As a member of the pom-pom squad and sophomore class treasurer, I encourage the Board of Education and the superintendent to institute the Pay to Participate program instead of cutting all these essential programs.

I feel the true victims are the students and ultimately society. The future will be in the hands of today's

Don't get mad at those who voted

To the editor:

Observations regarding the recent school millage and Board of Education elections:

I continue to read about the naysayers in the community, those people or groups who do nothing positive. Candidates Phillips and Custer distributed material to my house endorsing the renewal of the millage. Citizens for a Better Northville was on record in support of the renewal proposition. The renewal was not supported by 40 percent of the voters. Would the renewal have even passed without the endorsement and support of Phillips, Custer and CBN?

Supporters of the millage increase have lamented the results, suggesting that those who did not vote for an increase are shortsighted and negative. My experience has been that the voters who do appear have studied the issues and facts, voting according to their conscience. I would think that if there is disgust or anger with the results, it should be directed at the 75 percent of the registered voters who did not bother to vote.

Todd Pichette

Historians will not be kind to us

To the editor:

I was very disappointed to learn of the results of the most recent school millage vote, and board election. The historians will not be kind to our generation in their recollections.

We will be known as a generation which left our youth saddled with massive debt, a crumbling infrastructure, and a mediocre educational system.

Our schools are one of the few areas that the average citizen has some degree of influence upon. I believe that the majority of our district residents favor quality education and the price that comes along with it. Unfortunately, as in most elections, not enough of this majority shows up to vote.

For the time being, we, the silent majority, must wring our hands over the current status of our school system. The next time, our hands will be pulling levers in the voting booth.

Charles Kanelos

Try to fathom what this loss means

To the editor:

Due to the recent millage vote of June 8, the position of student coordinator has been eliminated from the staff of Northville High School. Try to fathom the incredible loss our students will face without the opportu-ity of special counseling.

Being a concerned student, I am exposed to students who have been saved from slipping through the cracks. Instead, these students return to the classroom with the ability to effectively continue their education. The four regular counselors cannot give the individual attention or the specialized group discussion that a student coordinator provides.

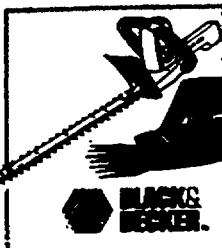

At the present, groups help teenagers deal with such problems as drug and alcohol abuse, divorce, parental neglect, smoking prevention, as well as helping students cope with social pressures they may encounter. These subjects may seem unrelated to the education process, but students can make a positive contribution to class without the added distraction of personal problems.

Recently, Northville High School had the pleasure of hosting Milton Creagh. In case you weren't in attendance, Mr. Creagh is a motivational speaker who relates his graphic experience with drug and alcohol abuse to students. One of his more impactful techniques came as a version of a question and answer session between him and his audience. Mr. Creagh first posed the question, "How many of you (students) have a friend who has experimented with alcohol?" I was shocked to see every hand raised. After two similar but more specific questions, he asked, "How many could get me any drug I wanted, including marijuana, cocaine, LSD, ecstasy, etc., within the hour?" More than half the students raised their hands. Mr. Creagh replied, "That shows me that this community has a major drug problem." Our students cannot afford the loss of such a preventive resource as a student coordinator.

The community hopes that the school board will reconsider the termination of the student coordinator position. Please help our students in an exhaustive effort to create an educational environment conducive to learning.

RECORD OUR TOWN

B
July 2, 1992

The readers speak

By BOB NEEDHAM
Editor

Did you think we'd forgotten about it? Back in May, we published a reader survey form in the paper several times to help get a feel for what you think about the Record — what you like and don't like, what you read and don't read, and what changes you'd make. The occasion was the second anniversary of our Monday edition. Here, at long last, are the results.

A total of 114 of you took the time to fill out and return the form. I think that's a pretty good response; it's just under 2 percent of our circulation. That might not sound like a lot, but the survey was pretty extensive. It took some time to fill it out, and everybody who sent one in did a thoughtful and thorough job. We got lots of interesting comments. Besides, we'd never before done anything quite like this, so I was afraid we might not get any responses at all.

So, before moving on, thank you very much to everyone who was willing to share their thoughts. We really appreciate it. And while I'm thinking of it, as an incentive we did promise to randomly choose three respondents to receive free one-year subscriptions. The envelope, please ... The subscriptions go to J. Crosby of Cedar Lake Circle, Mary Lewis of Leidel Court, and Russ Rathbun of Jamestown Circle.

What did we learn from the survey? That's not a simple question to answer. Obviously, this exercise in no way claims to be a scientific look at reader attitudes. One problem with voluntary-return surveys, as a couple of people pointed out, is that the respondents are likely to be people with a specific point to make.

That's true, I know, but I don't think it invalidates these results. The way I look at the survey is this: We asked everybody what they think of the paper. We got 114 answers. The exact results may or may not extrapolate to our readership as a whole, but this does give some indication of people's opinions. In other words, these results aren't 100 percent reliable, but they're better than nothing — and they're better than the one-at-a-time opinions we always get from letters, phone calls, running into people on the street, and so on.

The survey basically had five parts. Three of those — how often you read individual parts of the paper; whether we should have more, the same, or less of various types of coverage; and rating the quality of several aspects of the paper — got results which can be directly counted up and quantified into chart form. For those, you see the full results elsewhere on the page.

The other two parts asked open-ended questions about our two-year-old Monday edition and about what you'd change in the paper. We'll get to those later.

The "should we have" section contained some interesting results. If you look at the most popular response for each item we asked about, you'll see that the largest collection of respondents voted for more "local news coverage," however they define that in their own minds, and more government coverage of the city and township. For every other item on the list, the most popular response was to have the same amount.

We occasionally worry that we spend too much time on the nuts-and-bolts government stuff; do many people really read it? As far as we can tell from this survey, we shouldn't be concerned about that.

Very few people wanted less of anything. The most popular "less" response was for Schoolcraft College sports, about which we print virtually nothing as it is.

The quality ratings likewise turned up some interesting numbers. Highest marks went to the readability of our type style — which I might find depressing, except that everything else got pretty high marks as well. I was actually very glad to see this, because we've had concerns about how easy our print is to read. Design was rated second

Some savvy survey samplers

Here is a representative sampling of the comments people made in the Record's reader survey:

"Poor coverage of JV sports at H.S. Local rec and travel teams get more coverage than JV teams."

"Not enough coverage of bordering cities ... I read stuff in Novi News for example and think that it's important to Northville readers ... (articles should be) complete on the page. Don't 'jump' me all over the paper."

"Continue the recent journalistic efforts to help us be informed about our local government & schools. Not long ago this paper was a wishy washy rubber stamp to any group of government or power."

"Sometimes the featured 'new business' in the classified section is not a reliable article ..."

"The Monday edition could be cut out if it is an economic hardship. I wouldn't pay extra for it."

"Keep up the investigative reporting on both the city and township's ways of government. It helps keep our area a good place to live."

"More history on Northville ... more reports on in-school news ..."

"I'd like to see more focus on the positive accomplishments of the young people in the community, and more detailed coverage all year long on developments that affect the school system — local and state factors that affect our funding, new developments in education in our district, more on the schools' financial situation (not just before a millage decision)."

"More unbiased coverage of school and administration. In general I would like to see the Record be more objective and hence supportive of this cornerstone of our community ... Who writes the editorials? They should not be too modest or frightened, perhaps, to sign them. They have become trite ... The trite nature of the editorial page needs to be exchanged for meaningful, important opinion and community dialogue."

"Price keeps going up even for seniors!"

"Reporting of township's deviant operations and dubious practices has been outstanding ... Would like to see more ads from merchants in our area (i.e. Mel-jers, K-Mart, etc.) We just don't shop in So. Lyon, Milford, Brighton."

"Reporting tends to be too tame — perhaps reluctant to offend local politicians/merchants."

"Too much about politics." "Too much publicity to small but vocal 'fringe' groups in the community."

Anne Pyett

Pyett plays dual role in blood donor drives

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

"Giving blood to a Red Cross blood bank is easy," said Anne Pyett. "It doesn't worry me a bit. I try to give blood four times a year, and sometimes Red Cross calls me if they need my type of blood. In about 15 years I've given four and a half gallons."

It's the other part of her Red Cross blood-bank volunteering that, she said, isn't easy — coordinating the blood bank. And she's been doing that for about 15 years.

Temporary donating sites are designated by Red Cross field representatives to be set up in schools, industrial plants, offices, churches — one day for six hours, each with times convenient for the setting, times which may start at 7 a.m., 9 a.m. or 2 p.m.

Each site must be staffed with volunteers to register donors, to escort them to the nurse's donating area, and afterward to keep a watchful eye on them while serving them orange juice and cookies.

The canteen part, Pyett said, "is like being a waitress, and it can be really tiring because you're on your feet all six hours."

Pyett and two other women provide continual volunteer staffing for sites in the Northville area, sometimes three or four of them in a month. And they do it by having each woman assume responsibility for a four-month period.

She said they have a card file of available volunteers to call to help staff a site, but finding enough volunteers available for a particular time isn't always easy.

She runs into things like "won't get up at 7," "would rather do it on a weekend," or "have to get my husband's dinner."

"It's a lot of telephoning and organizing," Anne Pyett admitted, "but it's very worthwhile, and this is something I can do and not on a weekly basis."

Kinne's friends, family note 40th

The Rev. Lawrence Kinne of St. Paul's Lutheran Church recently celebrated his 40th anniversary of ordination into the pastoral ministry with a special Sunday morning service led by Kinne's son, the Rev. Timothy Kinne.

Pastor Kinne is associate pastor at St. Paul's. The service, which was attended by members of Kinne's previous parishes, included special music written and arranged by Steve Pichan to commemorate the special occasion.

Following the worship service a reception was held in the decorated school gym for all the guests at which the Rev. Tom Lubeck, administrative pastor of St. Paul's, served as the master of ceremonies.

Pastor Lawrence Kinne

At the reception Pastor and Delores Kinne's four children — Timothy, Maureen, Joyce, and Loren — sang a song which they had written and arranged in their father's honor. John Leinonen, chair of the congregation, presented Kinne with a plaque listing the names of the congregations he had served during his 40 years of ministry. Barbara Hoffmeier of the music department presented him with a framed copy of the lyrics to the song his children wrote for him.

A dinner was enjoyed, prepared and served by Ettie Hirth, Florence Beardsley and their assistants. John Hasse and his committee arranged the celebrational event.

After being ordained in July of 1952, Kinne served several churches outside Michigan. In 1960 he came to Michigan where he served churches in Walled Lake, Southgate and Adrian. In August of 1988 he took over at St. Paul's.

U-M Alumni Club News

The University of Michigan Alumni Club of Northville has awarded its annual scholarships and named new officers for the 127-member club's upcoming year.

Six local students who plan on entering U-M in the fall were awarded $500 scholarships from the club this year. From Northville high school this year's recipients included Melissa Bergstrom, Beth Frayne, and Michelle McNally. From Novi High School Je-Won Hwang and Taddy Pfeiffer were also recipients. And from Schoolcraft College, Frank Gadd II took home a scholarship to study political science.

Now in its third year, the club presently has 127 members. At its annual meeting the membership elected Richard Potchynok as president, Edwin Renne as president elect, Mary Ellen King as treasurer, and Vincenza Mueller as secretary.

The club will be co-sponsoring a "clock concert" on Friday, July 31 at the Band Shell in downtown at 7:30 p.m.

Anyone interested in joining can call Lou La Chance at 535-0770.

Genitti's, Masons fiddlin' on

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

The Northville Masons are teaming up with Toni and John Genitti to break a leg.

On loan from the Masons, the 150-year-old Masonic Temple downtown will be center stage for the Genittis' stage production of Fiddler on the Roof.

The Genittis are producing 11 showings of the popular stage musical, which will debut Friday, July 17.

"We've dabbled in theater before with smaller productions inside the restaurant," said Toni Genitti, co-owner of Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall. "But this is a full-fledged theater production with a 25-person cast and an eight-piece orchestra, which requires a much larger venue."

Diverting from their popular Murder Mystery dinners, this Genitti production offers patrons options for combination dinner-and-theater tickets or solo show tickets. Combo tickets are $34.95 per person while show tickets are $15 per performance.

Herman Wedemeyer, secretary of the local Masons organization, said his group backed the idea because it wanted to get more exposure in the community.

"We are part of the community and we wanted the public to know we are a part of it," Wedemeyer said. "We have always held a lot of private events here, but now we want to open it up for community use."

The temple, rich in decor with its crushed blue velvet seats, thirsty carpeting and dim lights, will accommodate 210 theatergoers, Wedemeyer said.

With adequate accommodations and the capacity to seat a crowd, the temple was the ideal place for the Genittis' first production. Cast and crew members worked diligently to construct a stage and design sets to bring the musical to life.

"We are building a stage and bringing everything in," said Director David Nelson. "It's just a vacant room so we needed to build a stage, get lights and design the sets."

Nelson, a well-known name in local theater circles, said he intends to use a full orchestra in the stage production of the musical, which has become a popular show attracting quite a following.

"It's a popular musical because everyone likes the music in it," Nelson said. The Jerry Bock-Sheldon Hamrick song includes "Wonder of Wonders," "Sunrise, Sunset," "Wonder of Wonders," and "If I Were a Rich Man."

Should the fiddler fly, Nelson said its success could clear the stage for future productions.

"We want the first one to be a good one," he said.

In anticipation of the show, the Genittis have launched a full-scale metropolitan publicity blitz advertising the shows.

Scheduled performances are set for July 17, 18, 23, 24, 25, 29, 30, and August 1. Curtain time for Thursday and Friday evening shows are at 8:30 p.m. with dinner preceding at 7 p.m. Saturday performances are at 8 p.m. with dinner at 6:30 p.m. Matinees on Saturdays are at 2 p.m. with dinner at noon. Weddings Caryl Lynn MacKinley, daughter of Norma MacKinley and the late Donald R. MacKinley of Northville, married Steven Andrew Barber, son of Pearl and Tony Barber of Livonia, on April 11 at 5 p.m.

The double-ring ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Martin Ankrum at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville. The date of the wedding was the same that of the bride's parents, Norma and Don, in 1953.

The bride wore a white tulle gown with a fitted bodice and low open back. The bodice was made of alencon lace and had a sweetheart neckline with scattered seed pearls. She wore a full-length cathedral veil with a matching lace edge and beadwork across the bottom half.

Her flowers were a mixed bouquet of orchids, rob rum lilies, blue statice and white stephanotis. Her bouquet had traditional good luck symbols from England including a horseshoe, rolling pin and boots.

bride. They wore black, street-length dresses with sweetheart necklines with large white bows draped over the shoulders. They carried flowers similar to the bride.

Rachel and Lauren MacKinley were flower girls and wore dresses with a black bodice, flower print skirt and bows. Ron Turner served as reader.

Jim Houston was the best man with ushers Gary MacKinley, brother of the bride; Tom Enright; Frank Allerton; Dave Resetar; and Greg Williams.

The reception for 200 guests was held at Madonna College. There were 12 guests from Great Britain, New York, Hilton Head, S.C., and Chicago.

The wedding trip was in Barbados at the Sam Lord's Castle.

The bride graduated from Bentley High school in 1983, and graduated cum laude from Central Michigan University in 1990 with a bachelor's degree in education.

The groom is a 1982 graduate of Stevenson High School in Livonia and graduated from Schoolcraft College in 1983 in architecture.

The couple met through the sister of the groom. They will reside in Northville.

Readers voice opinion on coverage

highest, also encouraging. Lowest marks on the quality scale went to personal columns, the thoughts and ramblings of people on the staff like Phil Jerome, Tim Richard and myself. In fact, this was the only item on the quality scale which had less than half of the responses rating it "good."

Can't say I'm surprised, and can't say I disagree. If I had to pick our weakest area, that might well be it. We'll always try to do better, but frankly, if you're looking for Erma Bombeck you'll have to try the Free Press.

The most extensive part of the survey was where we asked you how often you read almost every single regular part of the paper. I had very few expectations about how these results might turn out, but I did find myself being surprised by a few things.

I figured most people look at the front page, for example. But — at least among the survey respondents — the importance of the front page (on Monday as well as Thursday) was even higher than I thought.

In contrast, I figured just about everybody reads the obituaries in every issue. Not so. Readership was high, but nowhere near what I expected — particularly the relatively high number of people who said they never read them.

It's a generally accepted truth in the newspaper business overall that the editorials are the least-read part of the paper. Our responses show it to be one of the most-read, with one of the highest totals in "always" readers and one of the lowest totals in "never." While I'd love to attribute this to the obvious superiority of our work, I've got a hunch it has a lot to do with the Record's position as a community newspaper which confines its editorials to local issues with more direct impacts on readers' lives.

Those of you who read the column by Phil Jerome, our executive editor (and now we know that there are at least a few of you out there), will recall his recent shameless pandering for votes at the expense of other columnists. It couldn't have done him much good; he fell squarely in the middle of the pack. And under the comments section, Phil's column got more negative response than anything else. Sorry, Phil. The people have spoken.

One thing we wanted to get from this survey was an indication of how well-read our Monday edition is, particularly compared to our Thursday edition. Results there were very encouraging. For every item which runs both days — front page, obituaries, editorials, and so on — responses were almost identical. In the comments section there were some negative reactions to the Monday edition, but at least now I feel more sure than ever that people are reading it. The Monday food section, coordinated by Rick Byrne, our copy editor, seems to be finding a decent audience of its own, and that was great to see as well.

When asked how to improve the Monday paper, a few people said "cancel it," or words to that effect. The overwhelming response, though — and the same thing I'd say — was simply to get more in it. We've been working hard to do that all along, and we'll keep at it.

Finally, on the general comments, we got all kinds of responses. There was no overwhelming consensus for change on anything. A few people even took the time to compliment or criticize individual articles.

It was interesting that the harshest complaints essentially balanced each other out. That is, we'd get one form saying there was not enough stories from other communities in the area. Then we'd get one saying there was too much coverage of other communities in the area. One response would say we're too hard on the city council, township board, or school board; the next would say we're too easy on the same group. Too much Lansing-related news; not enough Lansing-related news. And so on.

So don't look for any big changes arising out of this exercise. That wasn't really what it was about in the first place, anyway. We just wanted to try hearing from readers in a different sort of format, and I'd say the experiment was a resounding success. Thanks again to everyone who filled out the form — and to everyone reading this paper right now. You're our heart and soul.

Finally, please don't wait until we do this again anytime you want to let us know what you think about something in the paper (or something not in the paper). The phone number is 349-1700 (fax 349-1050); the address is 104 W. Main, Northville, MI 48167. Hope to hear from you.

Comments express pros and cons

"More recreation sports coverage."

"You emphasize too much of the negative and fall, many times, to tell community of the positive things occurring with local units of government... People — individuals — as well as groups — have been hurt, unnecessarily, by your attempts to attract attention and readers. This is not the kind of reporting Northville needs and wants!"

"More feature stories regarding Northville's many assets that would be of interest to long time and new residents (e.g. Maybury Park, Mill Race, Northville Downs, and special events.)"

"Extend the reporting of local cultural and society events."

"Frequently the stories aren't in depth, hence info is lacking or there is a feel for misinformation."

"You seem to have it in for the people who run the township."

"(Monday edition) still doesn't feel like a serious effort... I think the recent series on the WTUA sewer project is unjustified. If there are facts on definite wrongdoings... fine... report it. But, I've read a lot of speculation and innuendo and not much substance..."

"For too many years the Record has had a cozy relationship with the local officials, rubberstamping and afraid to stir the pot. Thank God you got gutsy, at last... If the Record did their job before, WTUA might not have gotten out of control... It is most refreshing to finally see a decent local paper..."

"In some respects, the bigger you get, the worse you get. Why print feature articles of Novi people — have they not a newspaper?... The paper lacks the feeling, pulse, heartbeat of what it once had..."

"Poor editing and writing style! Sentence fragments, subject verb disagreement, passive voice, punctuation..."

"You do not do justice to the usual summer high school reunions... After 100 years have you ever thought of really changing the paper's appearance?"

"There are a lot of Novi residents in the Northville School District. We receive The Northville Record and have found you do not report important Novi happenings, although the Novi News reports news from Northville."

"If you're going to bother with a Monday paper you should make use of it to be more timely..."

(Favorite part is) "stories about the community (because you) tell us about our community, its people, its problems, the good and the bad here in our area."

"You tell me what I need to know and in some cases a lot more. One added feature might be to have a brief item on what the top stories were 10-15-25 or 30 to 50 years ago."

(Biggest complaint is) "the ink that comes off on our hands."

"It is impossible to get paper stopped for vacation."

"Remove Phil Jerome's column of trivia."

"I've called to complain about my paper being delivered in the snow bank, middle of lawn, driveway (where it gets run over by car...) NO one cares..."

"Whatever happened to... excellent quality?"

"Excellent paper! I really look forward to it every Mon. and Thurs. Paper is community oriented and very responsive. Keep up the good work!"

"For the first time — the city & township don't have the Record in their pocket. That is a big credit to the present staff of the Record and the first time I've seen it in the 38 years

"Slanted coverage of local politics."

"Dismal coverage of Northville girls swimming... Get rid of P. Jerome column — stupid, insane ramblings of a name-dropping idiot."

"The paper or the ink is so bad, you have to wear rubber gloves to read it." (Biggest complaint is) "getting a wet paper... It's delivered in plastic bag, but bag is not tied so it gets wet... Keep up the investigative reporting!"

"You don't tell the people what is happening to our town. Put the blame where it belongs, on the merchants. Even if they are advertisers."

"Increase coverage of community people by community people in Northville."

"The investigative reporting is terrific — the outcall massage scam, the sewer shenanigans, the incompetent township government — keep up the good work."

"I fear the reporting may be biased on some issues."

"The Monday paper is a waste of your time and money spent unless you increase more news and more local advertising."

"P.S. My wife reads this paper too but we never agree on anything."

Our attention is the difference between acceptable and exceptional service.

At Ameritech Mobile Sales and Service Centers our service starts even before you buy, with an in-depth analysis of all your equipment and airtime service needs.

The Ameritech Mobile "Business Needs Analysis:"
The Difference Between Guessing And Knowing What You Need.

The first step is learning if you (or your staff) need mobile service, with questions like:

Do you bill work on commission, by the hour, or by project?

Does your business depend on daily fluctuations (e.g.

Do you spend an hour or more commuting or traveling each day?

Then we help you use that information to analyze precisely how much productive time you'll gain and how much money you'll save with a mobile phone.

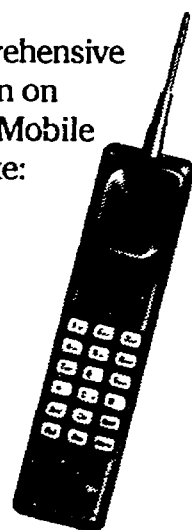

Next, you'll decide how many minutes of air time you'll require, and which service features will help make your mobile phone more productive. We provide you Northville Rotarians awarded their annual service awards and elected new officers at the club's organizational meeting and dinner last Tuesday at Meadowbrook Country Club.

Long-time Rotarians Phil Ogilvie and John Miller were presented with two Distinguished Service Awards from the club.

Ogilvie, an attorney in private practice, has been a member of the Northville club since June 1949. He is the former Northville village attorney and also served as one of the city attorneys from 1955-1982. He was also a municipal judge.

Since then, Ogilvie has been busy volunteering as a Sunday school teacher at the First Presbyterian Church and as a Boy Scout leader. As an Eagle Scout, Ogilvie earned the Silver Beaver Award in 1962 and was named as the Citizen of the Year by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce in 1980.

Miller, a Rotarian since February of 1949, is the owner of a nursery which he built in 1937 on Napier near Seven Mile Road.

Also at their meeting the club elected Steve Stocker as president, John Mahler as vice president, Scott Lowery as treasurer, and Sharon Whichello as secretary.

Learn songwriting and playing

Ever had dreams of being a songwriter? Or even just wonder how the professionals do it? Or would you like some pointers on guitar accompaniment to songs?

At a workshop at the Gitfiddler music store later this month, you can find answers to your questions.

As a prelude to the 16th annual Northville Folk and Bluegrass Festival July 26, one of the festival headliners, Michael Smith, will discuss the twin arts of writing songs and guitar accompaniment at a workshop from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday evening, July 25.

This is actually a repeat event; Smith headlined the festival a few years ago and presented a songwriting workshop at that time. Festival organizer and Gitfiddler owner Tom Rice recently called that "probably the most successful workshop we ever did."

Smith has released two nationally distributed albums on the Flying Fish label, both of which saw rerelease recently on a single compact disc. But it may be as a songwriter that the Michigander-transplanted to Chicago is best known. He has seen his songs recorded by such names as Spanky and Our Gang, the Four Freshmen, Tom Rush, Steve Goodman, and many others.

Among his more ambitious projects was to serve as composer and musical director for the Steppenwolf Theatre Company's 1988 production of The Grapes of Wrath. But the songs on his album are achievements enough. "Panther in the Hat," on Michael Smith, is humorous but touching look at the near-mythic beast about which we hear so much, apparently told from the perspective of a Washtenaw County sheriff's deputy. "Spoon River" recalls its namesake collection of poems by Edgar Lee Masters. And "Dead Egyptian Blues," off Michael Smith Love Stories, is just about what you'd expect from the title.

You don't have to be a songwriter, or even a musician, to enjoy the workshop, Rice stresses. He said it's geared to "anybody that either is interested in becoming a songwriter... or just somebody interested in. How do they come up with this? Where do these songs come from?"

Conducted in the intimate setting of the Gitfiddler, the workshop is expected to fill up its allotted 40 slots quickly. For reservations or more information, call the Gitfiddler at 349-9420.

Tickets for the 16th annual Northville Folk and Bluegrass Festival are also on sale now at the Gitfiddler, 302 E. Main in downtown Northville; or charge by phone at the Gitfiddler, 349-9420, or TicketMaster, 645-6666. Tickets are $8 in advance or $10 at the gate; senior citizens $4 and children under 12 free. The festival takes place at Ford Field, located off Hutton just north of Main in Northville.

Q&A

By WILLIAM T. TOMICKI
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Q: Any good ideas for family fun over the Independence Day holiday?

A: On July 4 in New York City there's a spectacular display of fireworks over the Hudson River, as well as an excellent five-day festival called OpSail.

The festival runs July 3 to July 7. It will involve 200 ships arriving in New York Harbor. On July 4 they will sail under the Verrazano Narrows bridge, pass the Statue of Liberty and move through some 40,000 spectator boats on the way to the George Washington Bridge.

At Ellis Island the ships' captains will participate in a ceremony displaying the flags of their countries from 100 years ago. July 5 and July 6 the tall-masted ships will be open to the public.

Meanwhile on land, an annual holiday street festival will run in Lower Manhattan on Water Street from Fulton to Battery Park. Finally a ticker-tape parade for 5,000 visiting ships' cadets will move from Battery Park to City Hall.

For further information on the festival call OpSail at (212) 912-1234. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: Is it true there's a museum of Salvador Dali's works in Florida?

A: St. Petersburg is the home of the Salvador Dali Museum, which houses the world's largest collection of works by the Spanish surrealist.

On display are oils, drawings, watercolors, graphics and sculptures from Dali's early period, starting in 1914, to the '70s. Born in 1904 Dali emigrated to the United States at age 36 and became famous for bizarre, nightmarish imagery — and his equally bizarre lifestyle and persona.

The Dali museum, which is open daily except Monday at 1000 Third St., also catalogs the artist's ventures in films, advertising and ballet stage sets. For further information contact the museum at (813) 823-3767. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: I am a non-smoker with children and am tired of having to breathe cigarette smoke while on vacation. Any tips for me?

A: The Smoke Free Travel Council, an organization that promotes smoke-free travel, has begun publishing a newsletter called Breathe.

It is designed to inform the public of destinations that offer a smoke-free environment. That includes transportation facilities, hotels, motels and restaurants.

More and more popular vacation spots are realizing that travelers, especially with children, do not want to breathe second-hand smoke. For instance, in response to public demand Walt Disney World has expanded the number of smoke-free buildings at its Polynesian Village Resort.

For further information, including subscription orders, contact The Smoke Free Travel Council, 78-365 Highway 111, Suite 361, La Quinta, Calif. 92253.

Q: I've heard of something called the "cable luggage scam." What is that?

A: It's an unfortunate situation when a tourist, unfamiliar with the city, gets into a taxi to go to a certain hotel.

The cabbie drives to a busy street corner, presumably the location of the hotel. The rider pays the fare and exits. A bogus porter, actually in league with the driver, grabs the tourist's hand luggage and runs away.

Meanwhile, the cabbie zips off into traffic, never to be seen again. Tourists, beware!

Vistas of ocean, granite and spruce Maine's Mount Desert Island still has the capacity to enchant

By WAYNE CURTIS
New York Times Travel Syndicate

It's been three-quarters of a century since automobiles were given the run of Maine's Mount Desert Island, after being barred for years by island residents wishing to preserve the tranquility.

The traffic over the causeway from Trenton hasn't slowed since. Last year some 4 million visitors came to sample the island's charms.

While the crowds on Mount Desert Island — which is only about 108 square miles — can be vexing in mid-summer, the place still has the capacity to enchant.

In Acadia National Park, which occupies about half the island, the vistas of ocean, granite and spruce have remained largely unchanged since the land was acquired for public enjoyment by society notables, including the Rockefellers and Vanderbilts at the turn of the century.

The island towns, while suffering mild erosion in quaintness during the 1980s land rush, are still imbued with a pleasant, drowsy disposition.

Even Bar Harbor, which has unabashedly catered to the tourist trade for more than a century, has preserved some of its classic architecture.

When a devastating 1947 fire claimed 17,000 acres of forest and residential neighborhoods, downtown Bar Harbor and some of the grand homes along the water were spared the flames.

In addition to Bar Harbor the island's principal towns include Northeast Harbor, a fashionable enclave of shingled summer homes (and the departure point for day trips to the Cranberry Islands), and Southwest Harbor, a working waterfront village where top-of-the-line Hinckley yachts are manufactured.

Bar Harbor, near the island's southernmost tip, is a rough-hewn fishing village with ferry service to rural Swan Island, a pleasant destination for bicycle excursions.

EVENTS

The Arcady Music Festival celebrates its 12th season this year with a series of Monday night concerts until Aug. 31. All are held at the Mount Desert Island High School, a short drive from downtown Bar Harbor.

Among the highlights this year are an all-Mozart program performed by the violinist Stephanie Chase and the forte-pianists Steven Lubin and Masanobu Ikemura (July 27). Tickets are $12 at the door. For more information write to The Arcady Music Festival, P.O. Box 780, Bar Harbor, Me. 04609; or call (207) 288-3151.

On July 25 the Garden Club of Mount Desert Island will sponsor a garden tour in Northeast Harbor. Seven gardens will be open for inspection, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., including two public gardens and five on the grounds of area homes.

The tour costs $15; tickets are limited. Order in advance by mail from Mrs. William Bancroft, Cranberry Island, Maine 04625.

First-run movies are shown nightly in Bar Harbor's Criterion Theater, which is worth a visit for its extravagant 1932 art-deco interiors. For more information call (207) 288-3441.

OUTINGS

Most Acadia visitors make at least one circuit on the 20-mile Park Loop Road ($5 per car; a pass good for a week), but it would be a mistake to limit one's exploration of the park to this drive.

The National Park Service maintains more than 120 miles of hiking paths, some along the coast and others through quiet woodlands or up manageable mountains. The park's visitor center off Route 3 in Hulls Cove has a list of trails, which are graded by difficulty.

A view of Mount Desert Island from the Maine mainland resembles an abstract design

Improbably enough, John D. Rockefeller Jr., Acadia's principal benefactor, has become a revered figure among mountain bikers hereabouts. Piqued that automobiles were finally permitted on the island in 1915, Rockefeller set about constructing 57 miles of car-free gravel carriage roads.

Mountain bikes are the perfect vehicle for exploring this network. Rentals, along with maps of the carriage roads, may be obtained at two Bar Harbor shops:

Bar Harbor Bicycle Shop, located at 141 Cottage St., rents 21-speed specialized mountain bikes for $9 for a half day and $14 for a full day. For more information call (207) 288-3886.

Mountain bikes at Acadia Bike, located at 48 Cottage St., are $11 and $16. For more information call (207) 288-9605.

Northeast Harbor has two extraordinary gardens. Thuya Garden, a semi-formal perennial garden in the style of Gertrude Jekyll, is high on a wooded hillside above the harbor.

After wandering the well-tended garden with its reflecting pond and gazebo, stop at rustic Thuya Lodge, the former home of the noted Boston landscape architect Joseph Henry Curtis. An inviting network of paths and terraces descends from the lodge through the conifer forest and rocky outcroppings to the harbor's edge.

The gardens are open daily July 1 to Labor Day from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. The lodge is open daily from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. A $2 donation is requested. For more information call (207) 276-5130.

Nearby, at the intersection of routes 198 and 3, is the Asticou Azalea Garden. This 2.5-acre garden has a very different character than that of Thuya Garden, even though both were designed by Charles K. Savage.

The azalea garden shows a strong Japanese influence, including an austere sand garden modeled after those found in Kyoto in the late 15th century. Azaleas typically bloom the last two weeks of June; rhododendrons and laurels bloom a few weeks later.

The Asticou Azalea Garden is open during daylight hours between April 1 and Oct. 31. No admission is charged.

WHERE TO STAY

Mount Desert Island has no dearth of lodging, but the best choices are booked up early. Cross the causeway without room reservations at your own peril during peak season.

Except where noted, all rates are for two and include a full breakfast.

The newest of Bar Harbor's inns is the Breakwater, located at 45 Hancock St., Bar Harbor, Me. 04609. Painstakingly renovated, this sprawling 1904 Tudor-style "cottage" has six guest rooms, four of which boast extraordinary views across Frenchman Bay.

The extensive common areas include covered porches, oak-floored sitting rooms, a private billiards hall and a sweeping lawn down to the water's edge. Rates range from $175 to $250. For more information call (800) 238-6309 or, in Maine, (207) 288-2313.

More intimate is the Inn at Canoe Point, a small, private inn situated on the water amid cedar and birch two miles from Bar Harbor. The three rooms and two suites are simply and tastefully furnished.

Here, guests often lounge in Adirondack chairs overlooking Hulls Cove, northwest of Bar Harbor. Rates range from $105 to $195. For more information write to the Inn at Canoe Point, P.O. Box 216, Hulls Cove, Me. 04644; or call (207) 288-9511.

Other Bar Harbor options include the six-room Black Friar Inn, located at 10 Summer St., Bar Harbor, Me. 04609, with interiors salvaged from various other structures, including a doctor's office and a pub. Double rooms range from $85 to $98. For more information call (207) 288-5091.

The Maples, located at 16 Roberts Ave., Bar Harbor, Me. 04609, also with six rooms, is on a quiet side street and popular among the outdoorsy, thirty-something crowd. Double rooms range from $90 to $125. For more information call (207) 288-3443.

At both the Black Friar and the Maples each guest room has its own bath, but in a few cases the bath is not adjacent to the room.

For accommodations at a remove from the commercial bustle of Bar Harbor, the Asticou Inn, located in Northeast Harbor, Me. 04662, is a classic resort, established in 1883, that sits on a rise overlooking the harbor in a rambling, shingled building evocative of an earlier era.

The inn has Oriental carpets, a deck with one of the island's most enchanting views and a jackets-for-men policy at dinner.

The main inn is open June 13 to Sept. 13; smaller Cranberry Lodge is open April through December. Rates for two are $200 to $260. For more information call (207) 276-3344.

In Southwest Harbor the Claremont is a historic harborside resort centered around a handsome 1884 hotel. The main building has 21 simply decorated rooms, most with old-fashioned iron bedsteads; modern cottages are also available.

Here, rates range from $110 to $200 for two. For more information write to the Claremont, P.O. Box 137, Southwest Harbor, Me. 04679; or call (207) 244-5036.

Also in Southwest Harbor are side-by-side inns pleasantly decorated in Victorian country style: The Inn at Southwest, P.O. Box 593, Southwest Harbor, Me. 04679, (207) 244-3835; and the Kingsleigh Inn, 100 Main St., Southwest Harbor, Me. 04679, (207) 244-5302.

Rates range from $70 to $105 at the Inn and from $85 to $155 at the Kingsleigh.

For budget accommodation Bar Harbor is your best bet. A number of modern motels are available at about $80 a room during the peak season.

WHERE TO EAT

Jordan Pond House, located at Park Loop Road, Mount Desert, Me. 04675, is a popular stop on the Acadia Loop road tour. The restaurant is housed in an open, contemporary building.

Afternoon tea and popovers are served on a lawn with views across the pond toward a pair of rounded peaks known as the Bubbles. Tea tends to be crowded, but dinners are less so.

Perennial favorites include lobster stew and homemade fresh fruit ice cream. Reservations suggested. Entrees range from $12.50 to $18. For more information call (207) 276-3316.

The Asticou Inn offers formal dining overlooking the harbor. On Thursday nights there's a buffet dinner and dance for $39.50, tax and gratuity included.

Senior fares hiked by airlines

By GENE and ADELE MALOTT
New York Times Travel Syndicate

When the recent U.S. airlines' fare wars finally settled down, TWA and America West emerged as the two carriers that are by far the most senior-friendly.

Indeed, they are the only companies that did not hike rates on special senior travel coupons to 24 percent.

American Airlines started the brouhaha in April by announcing a new four-tier rate structure that was meant to "simplify" the nation's airfares.

In the midst of all the publicity it was generally overlooked that simplifying fares for most consumers meant raising them for mature travelers.

To stay competitive American had to roll back its plan to increase the price of senior-discount coupons by 36 percent. Other U.S. airlines wouldn't go along.

But most airlines did follow American's lead in canceling the 10 percent across-the-board discounts offered in the past to travelers as young as 50.

The senior coupon books airlines have offered have allowed travelers age 62 and older to fly between cities on a carrier's domestic route at a superbudget cost. Last year that amounted to less than $200 per round-trip.

"The Mature Traveler's" annual 1992 summary of "Airline Deals for 49ers-plus" is based on the new senior rates, deals and programs announced as of June 1.

The report documents the licking the airlines gave mature travelers. Here are some highlights:

■ While making 20 percent to 50 percent cuts in regular fares, American Airlines put a new price on its Senior Saver Coupon books: $984 for a book of eight tickets. That amounted to a 24 percent increase for seniors. Last year travelers paid only $791 for the same coupon book.

■ TWA was the only airline to hold the line against American's move against mature travelers. TWA retained its 10 percent senior-discount program and refused to raise senior-coupon rates. Their prices for a book of four coupons — no book of eight has ever been offered — are still at last year's cost, $436.

For more information write for a copy of the Mature Traveler special report, "Airline Deals for 49ers-plus." It details all senior-discount programs on both domestic and international carriers. Send $4 to The Mature Traveler, P.O. Box 50820, Reno, Nev. 89513-0820.

Mantle squad knocks off Dearborn 4-3 as weather stops play in sixth inning

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A run-scoring double by Steve Christenson in the bottom of the fifth inning gave the Northville Mickey Mantle squad a 4-3 victory over Dearborn Friday night.

Umpires halted the game in the top of the sixth inning because of lightning. The win improved Northville's record to 3-6 heading into a Saturday contest with Garden City.

According to coach George Surdu, the squad, which is comprised of 15- and 16-year-olds, has been playing much better of late. Northville has won three of its last four games.

The locals play in a league sponsored by Little Caesar's. Some 30 teams from the metropolitan area compete in the league.

"It's a very competitive league," Surdu said.

Christenson, Tom Busard, Neil Yackie, Fred Swarthout and Mike Barzantny are among those.

In Friday night's game, Busard opened on the hill for Northville. Some erratic defense cost the Mustang senior in the first inning.

Dearborn put runners on first and third on a Northville error and walk by Busard. A passed ball scored a run for Dearborn and Busard escaped without further damage.

Northville came back for a run of its own in the first.

Catcher John Gibson lead off the inning with a walk. He later advanced to second and then third on a stolen base. After a fly out and a walk to Jason Rice, Gibson scored on an RBI single by Swarthout.

Two more Northville errors led to a second run for Dearborn in the second inning. Busard struggled with his control in the inning, walking two.

Dearborn added its final run in the third. Northville tied the game in the bottom of the inning as Gibson doubled and scored on a wild pitch and Swarthout added another RBI

With rain coming down at a steady clip, Northville rallied for the winning run. With one out, Rice walked, stole second and advanced to third on a wild pitch.

Swarthout then walked. With runners at the corner, Christenson connected on what turned out to be a game-winning double.

Dearborn came to the plate in the top of the sixth. Rain had subsided, but umpires stopped the game after spotting lightning.

Busard went the distance for Northville. He pitched well after the third inning.

MAYORAL INVITATIONAL: In other Mickey Mantle baseball news, Northville High's Ron Marshall and Chuck Apligian helped the Southfield Eagles win the third annual Mayoral Invitational held June 18-21 in Battle Creek.

The Southfield team beat seven teams to win the tourney. Apligian doubled in the game-winning run in the final.

Northville falls to Dearborn, earns split with Canton team

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A tough week for the Northville Connie Mack squad ended Saturday with an 8-3 loss to Dearborn Dearborn on the road.

The locals went 1-3 on the week, dropping their overall record to 5-11.

According to manager Joe Staknis Sr., Northville hasn't had much luck this season. But he said his team hasn't given up the ship.

"We haven't lost all faith," Staknis said. "But it's discouraging with this much talent not to find the right combination."

Andy Nicholas started and took the loss for Northville. Staknis said he deserved a better fate.

"He was throwing well," he said. "Unfortunately, we couldn't give him the support he needed."

Northville collected eight hits in the game. But the locals stranded

McNeil heads to Adrian

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

When Kara McNeil looks back on her athletic career in Northville, in a decade or two one word will probably come to mind.

"Sweet."

That's how the former Mustang star describes her four years at the high school as a basketball and softball player. But, you'll have to pardon McNeil if the concept of graduation hasn't quite sunk in yet.

"It feels really weird to know that I won't be going back," she said last week. "It hasn't really hit me yet. I don't think it will until next (fall)."

For now, McNeil won't have much time to reminisce. The 18-year-old is busy planning her future at one of the state's finest colleges, Adrian.

It's there that she will continue her athletic career and look to build a new one as a business major.

"I'm really happy that she's going to Adrian," said McNeil's mother, Nancy. "I know she will get a great education there."

If determination and desire count for anything, McNeil will be a smash at the college. Those certainly are the trademarks she has left behind at the high school.

Basketball coach Ed Kritch said McNeil displayed those characteristics throughout her three years on his team. He paid his player a big compliment last fall in comparing her to the Detroit Pistons' Dennis Rodman, who is noted for his hustle and determination on the court.

"She's a one-of-a-kind type player," Kritch said. "Kara was our Dennis Rodman."

"She could defend on the inside or the outside. She's an absolute complete defensive player."

Like the Pistons star, McNeil said it's defense, rebounding and other aspects of the game, besides scoring, that she enjoys the most.

"Blocked shots are the best," she said. "And I love to go diving into the crowd after a ball."

Players who excel at such aspects are usually not good scorers. But that wasn't the case with McNeil.

As a senior, she was second on the Mustangs with a 11.5 per game average. She was third in rebounding and assists, at 6.3 and 2.5 respectively, and first in three-point baskets with 14.

According to McNeil, she owes much of her success to Kritch.

"I think he has had the most effect on me," McNeil said. "He taught me how to play basketball."

The graduate added that Kritch worked with her on many parts of her game, such as shooting. In fact, McNeil said, the coach still works with her on her three-point shooting.

"He's a great guy," she said. McNeil will use her hoop skills this fall for Adrian. The 5-foot-7 player will likely play guard for the school's junior varsity team.

The southern Michigan college wasn't the only one knocking on McNeil's door, though. Schoolcraft, Siena Heights, Northwood and Eastern Michigan University all expressed interest in the Mustang for either their basketball or softball programs.

Although she has chosen basketball, McNeil probably would have excelled on the diamond as well.

For coach Frank Friemund's team this spring, McNeil batted .400 and made all-area first team. She led the team in hits, runs, total bases and, what else, played great defense at second base.

"She has so much ability," Friemund said. "She made a lot of plays nobody else would have."

But, then, that's nothing new.

As a 12-year-old, Kara was the star of her G-League boys baseball team. She hit well over .300 for the Pirates while playing catcher.

"Most of the players were my classmates," she told the Record in 1986, "so I decided to try it—plus I was better than some of them."

Kara McNeil will eye college opponents this fall at Adrian.

Golf page debuts for summer months

"It's in the hole." Bill Murray, from "Caddyshack".

Now that summer is officially here, what with the July 4 weekend upon us, it's time to kick off a little different type of sports coverage.

Obviously, with school out, our prep coverage will be greatly reduced. You'll still be able to read about some of your favorite local athletes through feature and baseball stories, for example.

But we are changing the tone of the sports pages a bit for the summer months to focus on some activities that, we believe, will be of interest and value. With that in mind, I hope you will take a look at the Record's golf page inside.

The new page will have three elements. Each week, a course in Northville or Novi will be reviewed. The intent will be to give a little insight on each course by describing and suggesting ways of playing it.

Nearby courses, such as Salem Hills, Fox Hills or South Lyon's Tanglewood may also come under scrutiny.

The Links of Novi was fodder for our first review. The year-old course provides plenty of wonderful headaches and challenging holes for golfers.

Now, I know what you're thinking. This guy gets paid for playing golf?

Well, it's a tough job, but somebody has to do it. If it'll make you feel better, I'll include my (laugh) score for each course.

While that should generally provide some good yuks, I got the better of the Links last Thursday with a round of 45. I have no explanation for this, except that I did play by myself.

The page's second element will be a tip of the week.

Putting, chipping, playing out of the sand; we'll try to cover it all and throw in some photographic illustration to help out. We are going to go straight to the professionals for this one.

Tom Sheldon, pro at the Links of Novi, goes over various ways of gripping the club this week. Drop a note or give us a call about parts of the game you would like some advice on for future golf tips.

Last but not least will be golf notes.

This section will provide information on upcoming tournaments and outings in the metropolitan area. So if you have a scramble or charity event planned, send us the info and we'll get it in.

Northville beats Swartz Creek to win tourney

The Northville Pee Wee Reese "A" travel baseball team recently won the Mt. Morris baseball tournament.

The tournament featured six teams from Southeast Michigan and was played an round robin five-game format. The teams are made up of 12-year-old players.

Northville faced Swartz Creek in the championship game and walked away with a 3-1 win.

The local squad fell behind 1-0 heading into the bottom of the second inning. Northville tied it in its half of the inning on a single by Justin Walneo, a double by Kevin Holdridge and a run-scoring ground ball by Kevin Gilchrist. In the bottom of the third, Northville broke the tie scoring two runs. Brent Zak, Ryan Ossensmacher and Fred Lyons collected hits in the inning.

Gilchrist started the game on the mound and was relieved by Ossensmacher.

Northville collected victories over New Hudson, Adrian, Mt. Morris and Flint in the tournament's earlier rounds. The locals had two shutout wins among those.

The Northville Pee Wee Reese team plays in the Little Caesar's Travel Baseball League, featuring select travel teams from the metropolitan Detroit area. The squad's record stood at 11-6 after the tourney victory.

Accuracy at a premium on Novi course

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

One thing is for certain, the Links of Novi and journalism have something in common.

Accuracy, accuracy, accuracy.

That one word is ingrained into young scribes at all the best journalism schools. And without accuracy, golfers are liable to find themselves in heaps of trouble at the Links.

The year-old course, located at 50395 Ten Mile Road, offers players more than 9,000 yards of rolling terrain, plush fairways and undulating greens.

"It's a beautiful course," said Mt. Clemens golfer Brian McPhee. "I think it's a fair course, but you have to change your style of play. You have to play smarter."

The Links of Novi consists of three, nine-hole courses. From the white tees, only the west nine comes in at more than 3,000 yards.

A small measure of security can be taken from the first hole, however.

From the white tees, it checks in at 316 yards. With a helping wind, which seems to sweep through the course, the dogleg-left hole plays shorter. A modest drive, without a slice, will put the golfer in easy short-iron range to the green.

More than any other hole on the east nine, number one is open. A slice will make a difficult but playable second shot and only a severe hook will take the ball out-of-bounds. It is rated the easiest hole of the nine.

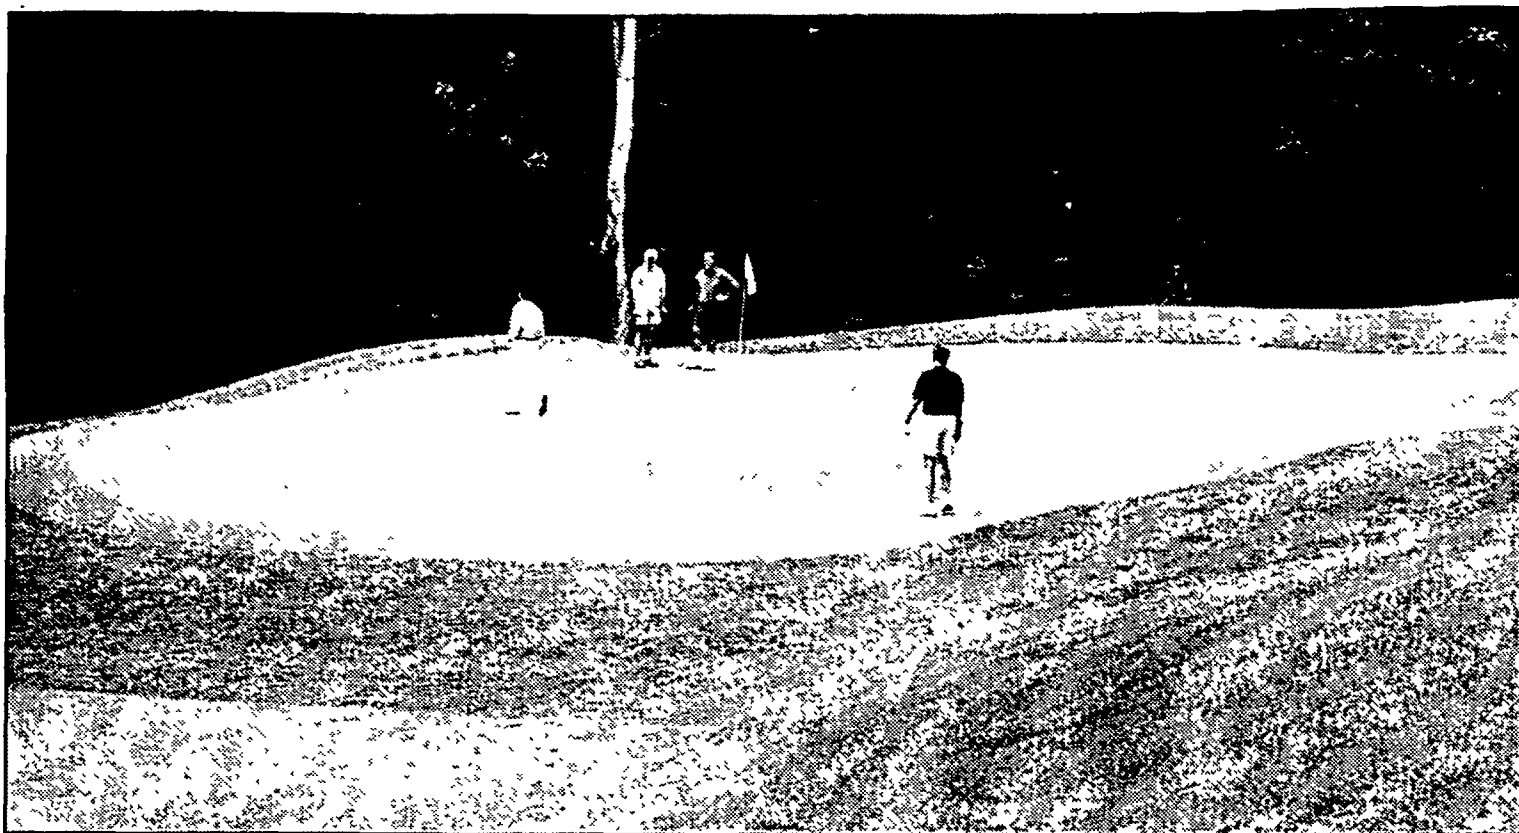

The character of the course begins to come out on the second hole.

At 421 yards, thick woods run along the entire left side of the straight-away par four. Hit a hook here and you may as well grab another ball out of the bag. A slice keeps the ball in play, but forces a medium to long second shot over a well-positioned bunker to the green.

Holes three through five are some of the prettiest you'll find in the area.

Number three is a short par-4 at 270 yards, but again, accuracy is the operative word. Without the ability to hit an intentional hook, golfers should use something other than a driver off the tee — a 5-wood or low iron, perhaps. Placing the tee shot gives an easy pitch to the green.

Rated the toughest on the east course, the fourth hole certainly plays that way. The fairway of the 377-yard par-4 is a hacker's nightmare.

Players have about a 40-yard-wide fairway to deal with and if that isn't enough, it slopes drastically downward to the left toward the ever-present woods. Golfers are faced with a nasty incline and more woods to the right.

"For a new course, it seems to be really well grown-in," said McPhee, commenting on the condition of the fairways.

Down the hill a bit sits number five. The first of two par-3s, the 175-yard hole is gorgeous.

A large marsh sits at the bottom of the tee area with richly-colored green trees to the left of the fairway. A hill some 10 or 15 feet high protects the green as do bunkers to each of its sides.

The green at number five is typical of the course.

Featuring large surfaces, pin placements tend to go towards the back of fast, true-rolling greens. With many undulations, an off-line putt will cost dearly if stroked firmly. Golfers can finally emerge out of the woods at the sixth hole. The par-5, 498-yard hole features almost a double dogleg. Even for long hitters, reaching the green in two is nearly impossible.

If it were clear, the green could be reached with a long fairway wood. But, trees jut out from the left protecting the green and leave a small target to shoot at. Better to lay up with an iron and hit a wedge onto the green.

Holes seven and eight are the least notable on course. Seven is 293-yard straight-away par-4 while eight is just as straight, a 200-yard par-3. Nine, though, provides a good finish. Rated the third toughest on the east, the dogleg-left 399-yard hole calls for a medium iron second shot into a green surrounded by bunkers.

Simply put, the Links of Novi east course comes down to hitting the ball straight. Do that and you should score well. Otherwise, bring a lot of golf balls and a calculator.

For information on tee times and greens fees, call the Links of Novi at 380-9595.

Tip of the Week

Sheldon goes over different grips

According to Links of Novi golf professional Tom Sheldon, comfort should be the guiding factor when choosing a style of gripping a golf club.

Golfers have three styles from which to select.

The "baseball" grip sets the hands side-by-side. The "overlapping" style places the right small finger over top of the left index finger (for a right-handed golfer) and is the most common way of holding a club, Sheldon said. The "interlocking" grip places the right small finger underneath and around the left index finger.

Sheldon said none of these grips are the "correct" style.

"It's a matter of personal preference," he said. "You've got to go with how it feels to you."

But, the golf pro added, certain basics can be followed with each style.

The left hand should be placed a 1/4 to 1/2 inch from the top of the club and held in such a way that the left thumb is directly down the middle of the shaft. No matter what style a golfer uses to place the right hand on the club, baseball, overlapping or interlocking, the right thumb should also point down the middle of the shaft.

Sheldon said the club should be gripped firmly, but not to the point where the hands are rigid throughout the swing. He said to hold the club with the same amount of pressure it would take to grasp a piece of chalk and write on a blackboard.

"Most people grip it too tightly," Sheldon said. "A grip with less tension will allow more of a free swing."

eight runners, including five in scoring position.

"We just couldn't get any luck with getting in," Staknis said.

Northville scored single runs in the first, second and fourth innings. Former Mustang Jerry Birdsall led the hitting attack with three hits and a RBI while Dan Hutchinson had two hits and a RBI.

Nicholas pitched into the third inning, allowing six runs. Nov's Dan Sveller relieved him and finished the game allowing two runs. All but three of Dearborn Heights' runs were unearned.

CANTON 11, NORTHVILLE 2; NORTHVILLE 7, CANTON 2: The squads played two on June 25 in Northville.

Game one was without many highlights for the locals. Kevin Shaw had a pair of doubles, one of which knocked in a run in the third inning. Teammate Joe Kalhorn added a solo home run in the sixth for Northville other run.

Hutchinson started the game and went the distance. Staknis said Canton wasn't hitting hard and had several "seeing-eye" hits.

Game two was a different story, however.

Trailing 2-0 in the bottom of the second, Northville rallied for three runs. George Smojver and Chip Wadowski cracked solo home runs in the inning and Andy Smojver scored on an Eric Messner ground ball.

Northville added single runs in the fourth and fifth innings and two more in the sixth.

"It's the best production we've had in quite a while," Staknis said.

Nov's Messner had one hit and a pair of RBIs. Kalhorn had an RBI as well.

Ty Kopke started and went the distance on the mound for Northville. He gave up just five hits while striking out two.

The win stopped a six-game losing streak for the locals.

WESTLAND 5, NORTHVILLE 3: Northville began its week at home June 22.

Miscues cost the locals in the contest. A pair of errors and three wild pitches led to most of Westland's scoring.

Northville trailed 3-2 heading into the sixth. But Westland scored two in that inning. Northville rallied for one in the bottom of the seventh.

Kevin Shaw led Northville with two hits and scored two runs. Sveller and Hutchinson each had RBI singles.

Messner started and went five innings.

Tips on safe sun exposure given

In the best of all possible worlds, dermatologists would never need to treat skin problems caused by the sun.

Ideally, people automatically would don wide-brimmed hats and long-sleeved shirts to protect their skin from damaging ultraviolet radiation that can cause wrinkles — and skin cancer.

Many people are willing to risk skin damage for a bronze glow. But healthy skin doesn't have to be sacrificed for a healthy look, according to dermatologists at the University of Michigan Medical Center. Moderation is the key.

People who strive for a rich, deep tan are really pushing their skin, the dermatologists say. And while dermatologists at the U-M Sun-Damaged Skin Program don't promote tanning, they do offer advice for those who can't resist the sun:

- If you must tan, don't burn. Sunburn is the worst thing you can do to your skin.
- Choose a sunscreen based on your skin's sensitivity to sunlight and the planned amount of exposure. Tanning products that screen out damaging ultraviolet rays are labeled with sun protector factor (SPF) ratings.

SPFs range from 2 to 50. An SPF of 2 means you can spend twice as much time in the sun without burning as you could with no sunscreen; the higher the SPF, the higher the protection level.

Sunscreens are available in three basic formulas: Para-aminobenzoic acid (PABA) or PABA derivatives; non-PABA chemical sunscreens, and thick ointments that physically block the sun, such as zinc oxide. Zinc oxide is most commonly used on small trouble spots, such as the nose.

- Don't count on sunscreens for full protection. An extremely high SPF doesn't guarantee long-term protection. And even a sunscreen with high SPF can't block all the damaging rays. If your skin burns easily, rely on hats and protective clothing if you plan long days in the sun.
- Persons with darker skin have some degree of natural protection against the sun because they have a higher level of pigment, or melanin, in their body.

- Avoid the sun in the midday hours — between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. — when the rays are most intense.

- Sunlight is a form of radiation and can be reflected off sand and water at the beach, which increases total exposure.

- Cloudy days are not necessarily safe days. A good deal of radiation can filter through the clouds. Likewise, rain blocks only a small amount of the sun's radiation.

- If you get sunburned, immerse the affected area in cold water. Do not use ointments or greases. Take pain relievers containing aspirin if necessary and see a doctor if substantial blistering occurs or if the burn does not heal quickly.

Home-swapping provides great vacations

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

It's summertime, when the livin' should be easy and fun.

It's also a time when many people seek a way to enjoy an affordable vacation. But too often the realities of economic life dash hopes of a vacation respite at a far-away point.

Before giving up that dream of a super vacation, consider this possibility: The home you now own and live in could hold the key to a memorable sojourn in a new and exciting locale. And it won't even involve an equity loan.

Instead of paying a high daily or weekly fee at a resort or hotel, simply trade a short-term residence in your home for a like-term of residence in a home in your targeted vacation area. The "your home for mine" concept is simple, but is working with increasing frequency.

For example, Steve and Leslie Bennett of California traded one month of residency in their home for the same time period in a comfortable home in a small town in France. The couples also traded their automobiles during the one-month period.

"It worked out very well," Leslie Bennett said. "The French couple even gave us the use of their boat and we cruised to many fascinating fishing towns in the area and had some great experiences."

The trading of homes sparked a long-term friendship with the French couple. They continue to correspond.

Joel and Caren Adelman have enjoyed positive experiences by trading homes. Their trades have involved homes in England and France. In both cases, they traded cars as well as homes.

"We found the foreign couples to be very respectful of our property, and the overall experience was very positive," Joel Adelman said.

Both of these couples arranged their home trades through Intervac, an international home exchange information service based in San Francisco.

The firm does not make arrangements for individual trades, but provides three directories per year, listing information about houses that are currently available for trade. The directories are sent to Intervac members, who join for an annual fee of $45.

Other firms provide more personalized service for each homeowner wanting to trade homes, but these services cost up to $500.

Napkin ring makes choice collectible

By James G. McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a silver-plated napkin ring set made by James Tufts Co. in Boston.

It consists of a dog pulling a cart with the napkin ring; on top is an angel. On the back of the cart is a pepper shaker and a tiny salt spoon.

A. You have an extremely choice collectible. In really good condition, it would be worth at least $300.

Q. Please evaluate my antique doorknob. It consists of a little girl standing in front of a wall and is marked "Albany Foundry." It is 4-1/2 inches high and 3-1/2 inches wide.

A. Your cast-iron doorknob was made in Albany, N.Y., in the late 1800s. It would probably sell for $150 to $175, providing the painted finish is in reasonably good condition.

Q. Since world's fair items are collectible, I am sure that my cuff links from the 1876 Philadelphia Centennial must be quite valuable. They are made of silver and tortoise shell and have a picture of the Art Gallery Exhibit.

A. You are right. Your cuff links would probably be worth about $125 to $135 for the pair in good condition.

Q. I have a large oval platter decorated with dancing couples and marked "Schaller." The center is maroon color.

I also have a 10-inch-square plate marked "M—Hand Painted—Nippon." It is decorated with floral garlands and a gold rim.

Can you give me some information about these items?
A. The platter was made by Oscar Schaller & Co. in Schwarzenbach, Germany, about 1900 and might sell for $35 to $45.

The Nippon (Japanese) plate was made in the early 1900s and would probably sell for $40 to $50.

Q. I have a very old bowl that is decorated with blue floral designs. The bowl is 10 inches in diameter and has the enclosed mark on the bottom. I am sure it must be quite valuable.

A. Your bowl was made by Cheathcote & Co. in Fenton, England, about 1800. It is fairly valuable and might sell for more than $200.

Q. Please evaluate my political campaign glass paperweight. It promoted the campaign of Grover Cleveland and Adlai E. Stevenson.

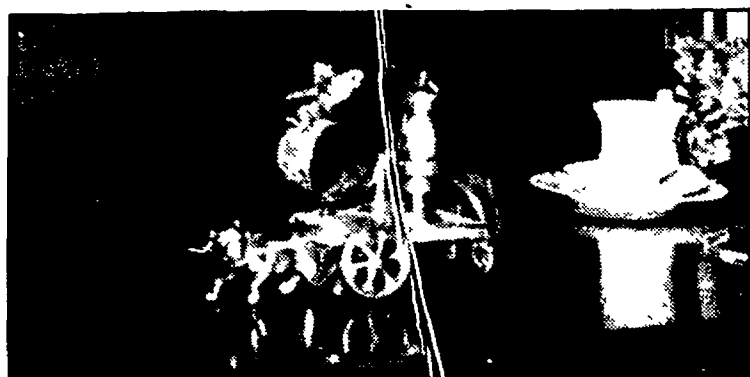

A. This political item would probably sell for at least $200. Paperweights are one of the most popular of election mementos.

Q. Please evaluate my Haviland china that was left to me by my grandmother. It is white porcelain decorated with pink roses and a gold band on the rim. It is marked "H & Co., Limoges, France," and consists of eight six-piece place settings and seven serving pieces.

A. Your Haviland china was made in the early 20th century and might sell for $1,000 to $1,200.

Letters with picture(s) are welcome and may be answered in the column. We cannot reply personally or return pictures. Address your letters to James G. McCollam, P.O. Box 1087, Notre Dame, IN 46556.

McCollam is a member of the Antique Appraisers Association of America.

DREAM HOME: The Chatsworth

Rambling ranch

Shutters on the windows, brick detailing, and turned columns on the porch give a colonial flavor to the rambling, ranch-style Chatsworth. Vaulted ceilings in every room but the kitchen add to the open airy feeling and make this spacious home seem even larger than it really is. And at nearly 2,500 square feet, it's already plenty big.

In this plan, family living areas, with the exception of the living room, are all to the left of the entry. Bedrooms are to the right. Two closets line the entry hall.

Flames in the see-through fireplace can be enjoyed from either the family room or the large, skylit country kitchen. African violets and other tropical plants thrive in the garden window in front of the kitchen sink. The window offers a rear view, across the deck as well.

French doors in the nook open onto the covered front porch, and a built-in desk provides space for keeping household business organized. One really unique feature is the fold-down ironing board, in the kitchen instead of the utility room. Another is a roll-out pantry that allows cooks to take a set of shelves to wherever the items are needed.

The utility room is nearby, and includes a counter for folding clothes. Both the utility and a small bathroom are also convenient to the two-car garage. The garage includes space for a recycling center, storage and a workbench.

The sumptuous owners' suite is at the far end of the house. Luxury features here include a huge walk-in closet, and, in the skylit bathroom, twin vanities, an oversized opaque glass shower and an extra-large spa tub with a planter window. A door in the bathroom opens onto a rear deck. This access becomes even more important if there's a backyard pool.

The other three rooms share another skylit bathroom. If all three rooms aren't needed for bedrooms or for accommodating guests, one or more can be used as a study, home office, hobby room, art studio, media room, or you-name-it. If a basement is not included, either the living room or foyer can be expanded.

Thriving herbs

By C.Z. Guest

GARDENING

Growing herbs is a cinch as they'll even thrive in poor soils with ample watering. However, for the best crops, the secret is when to harvest.

Most herbs can survive on poor, stony ground, but few can handle waterlogged soil. Ideally, they do best in light, open soil that is well aerated yet able to retain nutrients and moisture.

To help your plants thrive, prepare the soil in early spring by eliminating weeds, improving drainage, enriching the soil and covering it with an organic matter, like mud. Potted grown plants can be planted almost immediately in prepared soil.

Fresh leaves can be harvested for immediate use at any time during the growing season while evergreen herbs, such as thyme, can be picked throughout the year, although new growth should be given the chance to harden before winter sets in.

Collect leaves in the morning after the dew has evaporated. Leaves are most sweet and tender when the plant is young up to flowering time. Be gentle with the leaves, taking care not to bruise or crush them. Pick only healthy ones without yellowing, blemishes or insect damage.

The best time to harvest a herb plant is just before the flowers open. If you want the green parts only, cut back annuals 3 inches above the ground, but take no more than a third from perennials.

Flowers are best collected at midday in dry weather. Pick them just as they open fully. Treat all flowers with great care, avoid wilted or damaged ones, particularly if you wish to crystallize them. Once picked, keep your flowers loose in open containers; keep in mind they bruise easily.

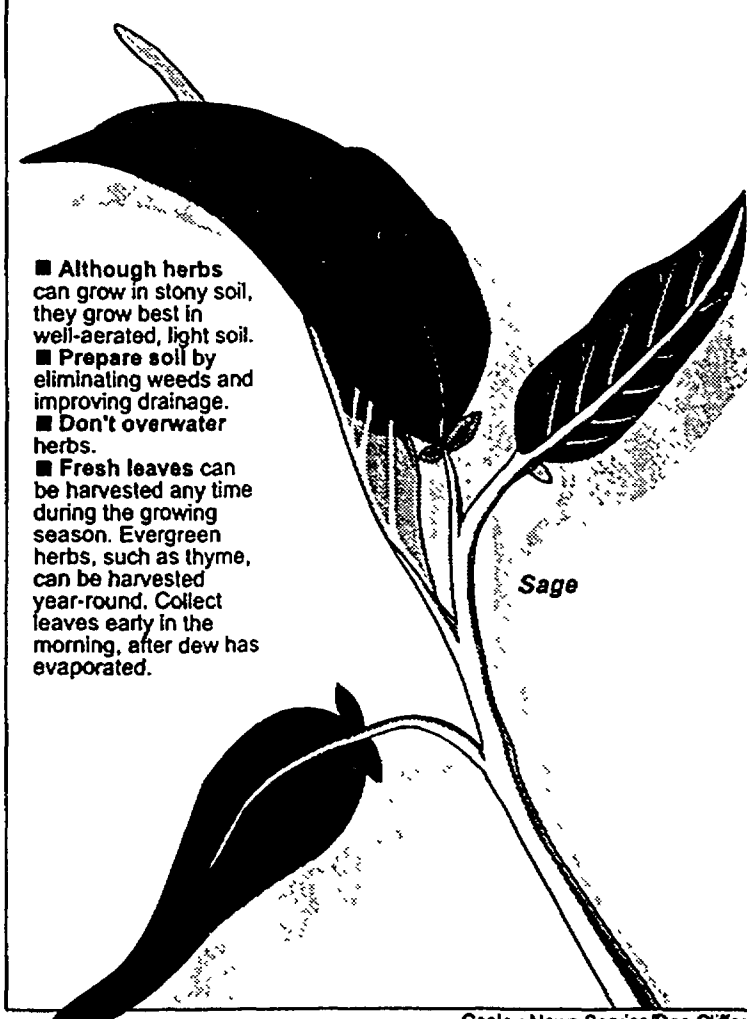

Q. I want to make my own broomcorn. Is broomcorn difficult to grow?

A. No, broomcorn is as easy to grow as sweet corn. In the spring, after the soil has warmed up, plant the seed on hills 12 inches apart, or 4 to 5 inches apart in rows. Cut the heads about three months later, when they begin to fill out but the seeds and sweeps are still green.

Fully mature broomcorn will have red heads, which makes an attractive broom but, unfortunately, the fibers

Upholstered chairs add personality and interest to your sitting group

By Rose Bennett Gilbert
Copley News Service

Q. I'd like to have an upholstered armchair at the head of the dinner table, but my wife says that would be rude, making everyone else sit on ordinary chairs. Besides, she says all the chairs should be alike. Is that right?—K.C.

A. Not necessarily. It's quite usual, in fact, for the host and hostess to have arms on their chairs while the rest of the diners don't. And it's becoming more and more usual to see unlike chairs clustered around the table.

Mismatching things can be more visually interesting than a mirror-image hedgerow of backs and legs marching down the table sides.

The dining arrangement we show here is a sophisticated case in point. Here, you not only have an upholstered wing chair at the head of the table, you have a sofa sitting in as a kind of banquet on one side. Flanking it are a couple of straw-bottomed pull-up chairs, so the arrangement is as flexible as it is cozy.

Also underscoring the sheer comfort of such a well-upholstered dining group, the designers (members of the design staff at Woodward & Lothrop, Washington, D.C.) have anchored things on a dark and imposing area rug that demarcates the space from the rest of the room.

Q. I'd like to do something really smashing in the master bath we're planning to add to our house. Recently, while we were traveling through France near the Pyrenees, we stayed in a small auberge that had wonderful mosaic floors that looked like area rugs. How would I go about copying the idea in this country?—R.D.

A. Talk to the best tile store or kitchen/bath designer you can find in your area. Tell them what you want, in what colors—or, better, do some homework in decorating magazines, books on Oriental carpets, mosaics and such, so you can show the pros the kind of look you'd like.

Thanks to the computer technology at their fingertips today, they should be able to design and duplicate your "souvenir" mosaic rug.

Q. My one-room apartment has such a wide entry I keep trying to put it to better use. Specifically, I'd like to hide my bed in there. Any suggestions on how to go about it?—T.X.

A. If you can construct freestanding dividers at the living room end of the hallway, you should be able to claim space enough to fit your bed in. Curtains will disguise it by day; Hang them floor to ceiling, behind your bed, as well as in front, to help relieve a potentially claustrophobic situation. A couple of wall-mounted lamps inside your curtained-off quarters will help, too.

When you pull the curtains closed to hide the bed, you might want to set a narrow table against them to further the illusion that this is just a well-dressed hall, not sleeping quarters at all.

On the other hand, you can treat your bed like an alcove lounge: Heap it with cushions and tie the curtains back to each side, the better to show it off.

are not as strong as green ones. Cut the stalks about 3 feet from the top, fan the heads out, lay flat to cure. The heads will bleach if cured outdoors.

Broomcorn mildews easily, so if you let it dry outside, take it in at night and during rainy weather. You'll need about 30 stalks to make a broom.

Removing stains from masonry; mildewy shingles

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. We recently built a brick retaining wall. After a recent rain, the bricks were covered with a white powder. I've washed the bricks repeatedly, but the powdery film keeps coming back. Will it ever quit leaching out?

Is there any way to clean the bricks and keep this film from reappearing?

A. This is a common problem. The white spotting is due to efflorescence, caused by moisture working its way through the brick and carrying salts with it that remain on the surface after the water evaporates.

Masonry cleaning and etching preparations, available at masonry supply houses, will remove soil and various stains, including the white surface coating. There also is a solution you can mix yourself that should remove the white deposits.

Mix a solution of muriatic acid, 1 part acid to 9 parts water, using a plastic or wood container. In making the mixture, pour the acid into the water slowly and avoid splashing. This is a strong acid mixture and you should wear rubber gloves, old clothing and eye goggles for protection.

Wet the brick with water first, then liberally apply the muriatic solution, allowing it to remain two to three minutes. Scrub with more of the acid solution, using a stiff bristle brush. Keep the acid bath on the brick, carefully protecting adjacent areas, including the concrete. Rinse well with clear water.

A word of caution—light-colored brick and some concrete can become discolored with this acid treatment due to chemical reaction with the brick composition (which varies). It is best to first test an inconspicuous area to be assured that the acid cleans rather than discolors your type of brick or masonry surface.

After the brick surface is thoroughly cleaned, a clear masonry sealer should be applied to protect the brick from moisture and a repeat of the white spotting condition.

Masonry sealers also are available in colors that can give you a richer, deeper red than the natural brick, or more like the color of red brick when it is wet.

Q. We have developed mildew or a moss growth on our "black" asphalt shingles. Is there a safe, home remedy?

A. Regular household bleach will remove mildew. Use a garden sprayer to apply, allowing the solution to stand five to 10 minutes. Then rinse thoroughly with clear water. Protect plants and shrubs near the house with protective plastic coverings, such as those plastic cloths available from paint dealers.

If the discoloration on your roof is green in appearance, it is likely that this is more than mildew, but rather a fungus growth. Removal of the fungus is a little more difficult. Often the greenish growth can be removed by simply scrubbing the area with a stiff brush.

However, for best results, I suggest that you use a solution of two-thirds cup trisodium phosphate, 1 cup detergent, 1 quart household bleach mixed with 3 quarts water. Allow this solution to soak for approximately five minutes, scrub with a stiff brush and flush with clear water.

If you are concerned with continued growth, particularly if the area stays shaded and is damp much of the year, you should treat the roof with one of the stronger chemicals available.

Copper sulfate, also called bluestone or blue vitriol, is a chemical you can use to get rid of moss with a minimum chance of harming grass or garden plants nearby. It is sold at feed stores and some nurseries, and is available in both powdered and crystal form.

The powder is the easier to dissolve in water: mix 1 pound of it in 20 gallons of water and spray over the mossy area. Copper sulfate may seem to be staining your siding with the runoff from the roof. However, it is easily rinsed off with clear water.

never had a problem with people using our home," Adelman said. "We've had certain valuables left in our home, and there were valuables in homes where we stayed. Everyone respected each other's property."

Another method of arranging a quality but low-cost vacation is exchanging a timeshare ownership interest in a vacation residence.

Recently, Charles and Mary Jo Maass, who own three one-week time intervals at Harbortown Point Marina Resort in Ventura, Calif., wanted to arrange two-week vacation accommodations for themselves and two other couples, in three separate but close units at a high-quality resort in Europe. And they wanted the arrangement to include an exchange of the timeshare units they own at Harbor-town Point.

Maass contacted an exchange representative at Interval International, a major vacation exchange network based in Miami. He asked the representative to check all availabilities and see what could be arranged for the three couples.

The Interval representative informed him that three two-week accommodation periods could be arranged at a nice timeshare resort in south Portugal (Algarve Province). It was the only resort availability in Europe that met the couple's special needs. Arrangements were quickly finalized.

"It turned out to be an absolutely scrumptious vacation—one of the best," Charles Maass said.

Q. Why are local boards of Realtors changing their names to "association of Realtors"?

A. An association more accu-ately reflects what a local organization of Realtors is all about, I was told by one Realtor executive.

The name change is a general trend, started by the National Association of Realtors. A "board" is usually a governing body exercising membership sanctions and testing-licensing functions. An association is a group of professionals who come together to learn and enhance their specialized field within a jurisdictional area. That more accurately describes a local association of Realtors.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Earning all As Student Painters makes the grade

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Where can a college student earn the kind of experience that shows he knows how to run a business?

Triple A Student Painters is the answer.

It's not so unusual to find students painting houses to earn money for school, but usually that means working for someone else for low wages. If a student tries going into business for himself, he runs into the problem of obtaining insurance, bonding and training.

Triple A Student Painters, a national franchising organization, takes care of all that. The manager of the Northville- Novi area franchise is Chris King.

"People have come to know Student Painters as a reliable, inexpensive, professional paint contractor," said King. "Every year we complete commercial and private home jobs ranging from $100 to $100,000. But we didn't grow to be this big on our reputation alone."

With the backing of a national organization, Triple A Student Painters can offer liability coverage up to $1,000,000 per claim. All painters are covered by workers compensation as well.

Student Painters was founded in 1980, and from the very beginning the company realized the benefits of training. Managers attend training seminars to learn not only the techniques and requirements of painting, but how to hire and motivate workers as well.

Triple A Student Painters has to handle a variety of jobs, too. A franchise may be called on to paint a home, a condominium, institution, office or retail site. With each job comes special requirements, King said he is well-versed in meeting occupant notification rules for condominiums, progress reports for property managers and interval schedules for institutions.

It's not unusual for Triple A Student Painters to land institutional jobs because the work can be bid at a lower rate. But quality isn't sacrificed according to King.

"Student Painters is very affordable because you are receiving a first-rate, professional job all at student prices," he said. "More recently we have adopted the slogan 'SOQNOP,' which stands for 'Sell on quality, not on price.'"

So committed is the company to a quality job that the national organization backs every job with a two-year written guarantee. If the paint falls within two years, due to flawed material or workmanship, Student Painters will repair the failed area at no cost to the customer.

And despite the low cost, students do earn pretty good money for college. Most earn around $3,000 to $4,000 for a summer's worth of work. That, according to King, makes customers feel good about hiring Triple A Student Painters.

"Our customers find great satisfaction in the service we provide and in knowing that they've assisted a young profession in continuing their education."

Take a look around your home. If a fire or storm destroyed your property, could you afford to replace all the comforts you now enjoy? If your answer is no, maybe it's time to consider homeowners insurance, says the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Homeowners policies differ mainly in the number of perils they cover and the degree of protection they offer. Form HO-1, the most basic coverage, protects against 11 perils including fire and theft. Form HO-2 offers additional coverage against losses caused by frozen plumbing, falling objects, the weight of ice and snow, bursting hot-water systems, short circuits, and leakage from a plumbing, heating or air conditioning system.

HO-3 coverage, the most popular plan today, provides coverage for all risks except those that are specifically excluded. The most notable exclusions include losses from flooding, earthquakes, war and nuclear accidents.

Once you have determined the best coverage category for you, you need to decide how much insurance you need on your house, its contents and liability. The amount you select to cover your house should be based on its replacement value — that is, what it would cost to rebuild a house comparable to yours. You should be insured for at least 80 percent of the current replacement value of your home.

The best homeowners policies contain a replacement-cost clause which puts the responsibility for keeping replacement-cost coverage up to date squarely on the insurer. Without it, you get reimbursed only up to the policy's limit. A replacement-cost endorsement requires the insurer to pay the full cost of repairing or replacing your home—even if the cost exceeds the amount for which you are insured.

In most cases, your personal property — the furniture, appliances, electronics and other goods in your home — is insured for half as much as your house. Most policies reimburse personal property losses on an actual cash value basis, which is the replacement cost of an item minus depreciation for age or use. A better option is a replacement cost policy that reimburses you for the actual cost of replacing lost property. Though the premium is higher, the extra protection is generally worth the cost.

Whichever option you select, remember that your coverage can extend to your possessions when you are away from home. If you are vacationing in the Bahamas and your luggage is stolen from your room, you will be covered.

Most policies offer only limited insurance against the theft of certain valuables. Jewelry, furs and watches are often covered for no more than $1,000. Silverware coverage is usually limited to $2,500 and some companies limit home computer coverage to $3,000.

You can fill in gaps in coverage for personal articles with special insurance policies called floaters or riders.

The premiums will be based on the value of the items you insure.

Your liability insurance covers you and other family members living in your household. The liability portion offered by homeowners policies is becoming increasingly important in today's litigious society. If you feel the standard $100,000 most policies offer is not enough, it is relatively inexpensive to purchase increased liability insurance.

CPAs recommend that you periodically update your insurance coverage. And if you make substantial improvements to your house, be sure to raise your coverage to reflect your home's new replacement cost.

Mail-order tax would hurt small business

For anyone who's ever bought something from a mail-order company, take notice — conventional retailers hope to set into motion legislation that would hamper direct marketers' way of doing business.

Recently, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled 8-1 in the case of Quill Corp. vs. North Dakota. Department of Revenue that state laws charging mail order companies with the responsibility of collecting state taxes on merchandise sold and then transferring those taxes to the buyer's state are unconstitutional.

What sounds like a victory for mail-order companies, however, holds serious overtones for the industry. In its decision, the court advised that Congress, if it chooses to do so, can pass legislation requiring the collection.

Retailers and some state governments are lining up behind proposals to urge Congress to do just that.

Direct marketers are urging Congress to maintain existing laws.

Jeff Freedman, president of the Canton Township-based mail-order electronics distributor Planet Electronics, said requiring companies like his to collect taxes would be a burden — perhaps not an insurmountable burden, but it would surely create a hardship.

With the right computer equipment and software — and with constant updates — a mail order company could conceivably collect taxes from each of its customers and transmit them back to the respective state, but the result could mean some companies that are unable to cope with the changes would be forced out of business, he said.

Freedman said it's common practice for mail-order firms to inform customers they still have an obligation to pay a use tax — which is equivalent to a sales tax — to their state. "The consumer has the chance to tell the truth or not (on the yearly tax form)," he said.

Regardless of the legalities of the issue, Freedman said the argument for a level playing field just doesn't stand up. "People don't buy from us because they hope to avoid paying sales tax; they buy because we sell products you can't get from a local store."

People also buy from mail-order houses for convenience's sake, he said. "If (avoiding sales tax) may be an added plus, but it's not the reason mail-order businesses succeed."

James P. Hallan, president and chief operating officer of the Michigan Association of Retailers, said the association of more than 3,400 small retailers is merely seeking a more level playing field.

"This is an issue of equity, of parity."

"If you have a small businessman in Michigan who is investing in the community and who has competed with a company advertising heavily in this area, why should (the small business) have to (collect) a sales tax and not the other guy?"

Calling the lack of sales tax for catalog and other direct-market merchandisers a "$3 billion a year tax loophole which enables out-of-state catalog and other direct-marketing firms to avoid collecting state taxes on the goods they sell," the Michigan Association of Retailers is urging Michigan's congressional delegation to enact and support legislation compelling mail-order houses to collect sales taxes.

Hallan said it is also an issue of revenue. In a time when many states are strapped for cash, they are remiss if they overlook potential income sources, he said.

The National Governors Association estimates that allowing states to collect sales taxes on goods bought via direct mail would raise more than $70 million a year for Michigan.

Steve Simons, president of Group SAA Limited, a Farmington Hills-based company specializing in the production and distribution of mail-order catalogs, said those who argue for new legislation may be missing a more subtle point.

"A lot of Michigan retailers are non-mail order and could care less if the industry succeeds or not," he said. Everyone should be concerned, however, because most mail order companies are small businesses, and it is the small business that truly drives the economy.

The level playing field traditional retailers are calling for would be a less populated one, he argued.

"What it will do is shrink the industry by 40 to 50 percent," he said. While that might please larger mail-order companies that can cope with the new requirements and the traditional retailers, it would be bad news for consumers and entrepreneurs.

As corporate America continues to downsize, the government should encourage, not discourage entrepreneurs. Much of the mail-order industry's growth can be attributed to the ability of entrepreneurs to start and maintain businesses with low overhead.

"This means less competition and higher prices for the consumer," he said.

Chet Dazell, spokesman for the national Direct Marketing Association, said the notion that mail order companies collecting taxes would result in substantial revenues for states is just wrong.

Most of the figures he has heard — $70 million in additional tax revenues to the states — are from a 1987 update of a 1984 study by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

Those figures are unadjusted and actually include revenue that is already being collected by direct marketers who have a presence in the state.

The figures are also wrong because they fail to factor in that a large segment of the direct-marketing industry is tax exempt (sales of insurance and investments) or largely exempt (sales of magazines, foods and pharmaceuticals), he said.

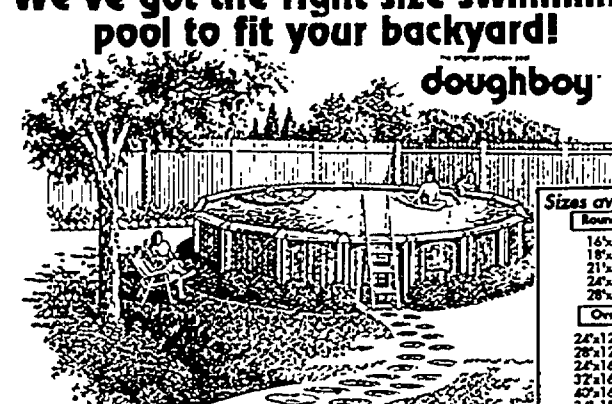

Dazell said mail-order companies already collect taxes in states where they have a physical presence, but asking companies — the vast majority of which are small businesses — to keep track of 46 sales taxes and an untold number of local taxing districts is unfair.

Dazell said that some metropolitan areas have sales taxes in addition to the state tax.

Dazell dismissed the argument that mail-order companies have an unfair advantage over conventional retail outlets. "People buy (from mail order) for convenience purposes, not to avoid paying sales taxes."

"If that were the case, a Michigan customer would not buy from a Michigan-based catalog company — and that's just not the case."

Business Briefs

THE OLIVE GARDEN ITALIAN RESTAURANT brought its famous "hospitaliano" to Novi with the opening of the new Olive Garden location on Monday, May 25. The new Olive Garden is located at 43300 Crescent Boulevard.

The Olive Garden combines the best of Italy: Northern and Southern cuisine with an assortment of fresh pasta, a selection of wines by the glass, and friendly efficient service. Entrees are moderately priced from $8-$10 for dinner and $4-$5 for lunch.

"We are very excited to be opening an Olive Garden in Novi," says Bill Daly, Olive Garden general manager. "We are employing more than 100 people to serve up a full lunch and dinner Italian menu in our 330-seat, 9,100 square-foot dining room. Guests can also take advantage of our take-out service at home or for the office."

Lunch and dinner at the Olive Garden with a basket of fresh baked, soft warm garlic breadsticks—a regional specialty from Southern Italy—followed by classic garden salad, served family style. Refills for both are encouraged, in the true tradition of Italian hospitality. Unlimited refills of non-alcoholic beverages are also offered.

Menu Favorites:

Entrees, made strictly from fresh ingredients, include traditional Italian favorites like Lasagna, Manicotti, Chicken Parmigiana, and Ravioli. More exotic dishes popular in Northern Italy, such as Veal Piccata, Chicken Marsala and Fettuccine Alfredo are also featured. Regional platters are available for those who would like to sample several items.

Another attraction at The Olive Garden is the large selection of Italian wines served by the glass or bottle. Full bar service is also available, as is a tempting dessert menu.

The restaurant, decorated with brightly colored Italian cafe umbrellas in a garden setting and al fresco murals, is the perfect setting for either a family dinner or a business lunch. Upon entering The Olive Garden, guests can watch chefs make different types of fresh pasta and taste them later in the dining room.

The Novi Olive Garden is open Sunday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.; no reservations are needed. The phone number for the restaurant is 348-4279.

The Olive Garden has eight locations in the metro-Detroit area: Novi, Rochester Hills, East Detroit, Ann Arbor, Warren, Sterling Heights, Livonia and Southgate.

DECORATING DEN and Waverly, a manufacturer of home decorating fabrics, will team up during the month of July to premier the new line of fabrics exclusive to Decorating Den interior decorators at a free seminar.

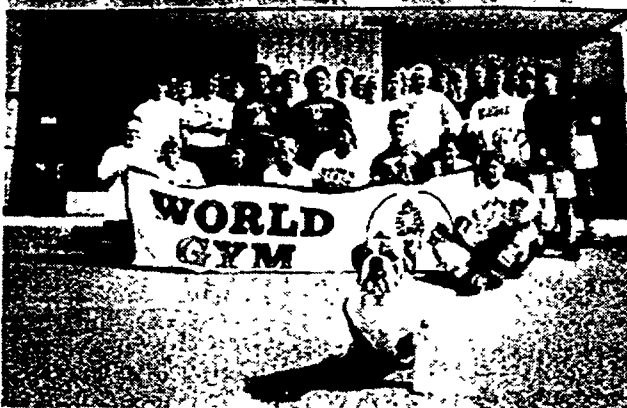

Among the exclusive fabrics to be unveiled will be Decorating Den's new fabric, "Partner's Legacy." This fabric, designed by Carol Donayre Bugg, is a black and white toile showcasing black labradors in different surroundings.

The public is invited to share in this free design workshop to be held Thursday, July 9, from 7:15 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Oaks Novi. New ideas in decorating as well as decorating tips will be taught. The event is being sponsored by local Decorating Den designers, Nadene Donohue, Linda Yates, Jeri Dietrick and Ann Marlott.

With more than 1,100 Decorating Den franchise owners operating in the United States, Canada, Scotland, England, Australia and Japan, Decorating Den is the first affordable, international, shop-at-home interior decorating franchise company. Each franchisee is professionally trained at the corporate headquarters. These decorators bring thousands of samples of drapery, furniture, carpet and wallcovering to the customer's home or office in a specially equipped Color-Van. Consultations are always complimentary.

EATING RIGHT CAN HELP REDUCE THE RISK OF CANCER.

It can also help you reduce your weight.

And since a 12-year study shows that being 40% or more overweight puts you at high risk, it makes sense to follow these guidelines for healthy living!

Eat plenty of fruits and vegetables rich in vitamins A and C—oranges, cantaloupe, strawberries, peaches, apricots, broccoli, cauliflower, brussel sprouts, cabbage. Eat a high-fiber, low-fat diet that includes whole-grain breads and cereals such as oatmeal, bran and wheat. Eat lean meats, fish, skinned poultry and low-fat dairy products.

Drink alcoholic beverages only in moderation.
