Latest denial may send flap into court

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

A Novi resident lost another round at Northville City Hall Wednesday, as the city's Board of Zoning Appeals rejected her request to overturn city approval of the Pheasant Hills subdivision.

Laura Lorenzo blames flooding of her Galway Drive property on undersized culverts under Pheasant Hills roadways. She has charged the city's building department with allowing an undersized culvert under Mill Pond Court in violation of city ordinances.

Her appearance before the BZA was the latest move in a year-long battle against the city and Singh Development, builder of Pheasant Hills.

The move failed when the board voted 5-1 to reject her request. She plans to appeal the BZA decision in circuit court.

Lorenzo had sought an administrative review of the development and building permits issued for Pheasant Hills, contending that the subdivision does not comply with the ordinance's Article 19 on flood hazard zones.

One of the stated objectives of Article 19 is "to preserve the ability of floodplains to carry and discharge a base (100-year) flood."

City Attorney Richard Connors argued that Article 19 does not apply to Pheasant Hills.

"When the interpretation of Article 19 was made by the engineering company, and the engineers determined that Article 19 did not apply, then they fell back to the next regulation that would apply, which were Oakland County Drain Commission requirements... which required the culvert to carry a 10-year flood," Connors said.

The intent is to protect public health, welfare and structures," he told Lorenzo. "Your structure has never been in danger of flooding."

The BZA seemed swayed by the city's expert testimony more than Lorenzo's appeal.

"Just because it was not designed to meet the requirements of a 100-year flood doesn't mean that the flood carrying capacity was not taken into consideration," said Chairperson Charles Ayers.

Resident protests documents' price

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The price of city documents is too steep for one Novi homeowner.

Laura Lorenzo, who has argued for a year that the city improperly approved culverts at Singh Development's Pheasant Hills subdivision that cause flooding on her property, recently requested several related documents from the city under the state's Freedom of Information Act.

She was shocked when the city set a $103.37 fee for collecting the 48 documents, and chose not to collect them.

The Freedom of Information Act establishes procedures to give citizens access to government documents. The act also allows a public body to charge a fee "limited to the actual mailing costs, and the actual incremental cost of duplication or publication including labor, the cost of search, examination (and) review..."

The Novi homeowner filed her Freedom of Information request with Northville May 26. She asked for copies of notices to adjacent communities and the state's Department of

Big attraction at Big Stick

The Big Stick Trading Card Co. recently opened on E. Main next to Community Federal Credit Union. The new business specializes in sports cards. As a kickoff, during last weekend's Art in the Sun festival the store featured an auto-

Wayne County

Four seek commission

The race for the Republican nomination to the local Wayne County Commission seat pits a long-familiar face against three lesser-known challengers.

The Republican primary Aug. 4 will decide which of the four faces off against Democrat Michael Caffery in the November general election. The winner will represent Wayne County's 10th District, which includes the Northville community, Plymouth, and part of Livonia, for a two-year term.

The 15-member County Commission is the legislative branch of Wayne County government. It holds authority over county taxation and spending. It may buy and sell property for the county, and oversees county mental health services. It also has the power to pass county ordinances.

The incumbent, Maurice Breen, is a long-serving figure in Plymouth Township government, most recently serving as supervisor. When the former county commissioner, Susan Heintz, won appointment last year to head Gov. John Engler's southeast Michigan office, Breen was appointed to take her place.

Breen's challengers in the primary are Patrick Downes, a salesperson with Pitney Bowes in Southfield; Thaddeus McCotter, an attorney and member of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees; and Clayton Stacey, a licensed Realtor and former business owner.

Edited transcripts of interviews with the four candidates appear on pages 5-A and 7-A.

LWV plans forum on township seats

The League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton will sponsor a Candidates Forum to acquaint voters with the certified candidates for Northville Township offices in the Aug. 4 primary election. The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 21, at Northville Township Hall, 41600 Six Mile Road.

Omnicon cable television will tape the forum for presentation at a later date. Dates for cablecast will be printed in The Northville Record after the forum.

In the Republican primary, incumbent Township Supervisor Betty Lennox faces a challenge from Karen Baja. Current Township Clerk Thomas L.P. Cook will go up against challenger Sue Hillebrand. Only one candidate, Rick Engelland, is running for treasurer; incumbent Jack Hosmer initially filed for re-election but quickly pulled out of the race.

For the four trustee positions, incumbent Republicans Richard Allen and James Nowka will be on the ballot along with challengers Mark Abbo, Gini Britton, Rebecca Connell, Russ Fogg, Barbara O'Brien, and Angela Thomson. Current trustees Thomas Handyside and Don Williams are not seeking re-election.

The only Democrat on the primary ballot is James Petrie, running for a trustee slot.

The League of Women Voters is a national, non-partisan organization. It does not support or oppose any political party or candidate, but does work to obtain and distribute information to the public on candidates and their views.

Site of the alleged landscaping business on Grasmere

City accuses man of illegal business

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Complaints that a Grasmere resident runs a landscaping business from his home have prompted the Northville City Council to consider tightening city ordinances, and landed the homeowner in court.

Farmington attorney Allen C. Ingle, who owns the home at 47115 Grasmere, reportedly has allowed a landscaping firm to be run from the property for at least two years. The resulting activity — piles of dirt and wood chips, pallets of brick pavers, parking of cars in the street and storage of a trailer on the property — has prompted a string of complaints from neighbors and several warning letters and citations from the city.

Ingle denies running a landscaping business from the home, but said his son Martin does operate a lawn maintenance business. Ingle said employees of his son's business regularly park on the property.

He said landscape material on the property is being used for a new patio.

"There is no landscape business being run from it," Ingle said Tuesday. "The kid has a lawn service... He can do that as long as he doesn't sell anything from the premises."

But some evidence suggests that the business is being run out of Ingle's home.

A pickup truck bearing the logo "Ingle Landscaping" lists the Ingles' home phone number. Business cards printed for MJI Landscaping &

Lawn Service, bearing the name of Martin J. Ingle, list the same number.

Michigan Bell has no listing in its business directory for either Ingle Landscaping or MJI Landscaping & Lawn Service.

Northville City Hall does not have either name registered as a city business, though firms located in the city are required by ordinance to register at city hall.

Denial may send resident into court with city

Ayers noted that the city's legal and engineering firms had reviewed Lorenzo's claims and found them to be baseless. "On the other side, I have your concerns," he said. "I have a problem, not being an expert, separating... the subjective from the objective."

"I believe the portions of the ordinance that I have referenced are very clear and objective," Lorenzo said, as she read through the written appeal she presented to the board.

Lorenzo's next-door neighbor, Linda Hullman, backed up her claim that the culvert under Mill Pond Court is too small.

"This property has had problems ever since that road was put in," Hull-man said. "We aren't experiencing the problem to the magnitude that Mrs. Lorenzo is, but we're experiencing problems as well."

Hullman also criticized the BZA's reliance on city-paid consultants. "These are not really independent people," she said. "We have a Singh engineer and we have a city engineer. There's a conflict of interest there."

"We have to rely on that," Ayers responded. He noted that professional engineers could lose their state licenses by favoring a client.

"These people have something at stake beyond a fee," he said.

Lorenzo said she will appeal the BZA's decision to circuit court in the hope of finding "someone more objective to review the case."

Natural Resources that the waterway through Pheasant Hills was going to be altered, and a description of the extent of alterations.

Northville City Manager Gary Word wrote Lorenzo that the request could not be filled within the five-day period specified by the Freedom of Information Act, so he extended it by the allowed 10 business days.

He also warned Lorenzo that she would be charged "reasonable costs associated with the request," as allowed under the act.

Lorenzo does not believe the city's fee is reasonable. "I thought it was not only unreasonable, I thought it was outrageous," she said.

Building Inspector Joe Attard said the city's fee is for copying 44 sheets of paper at 25 cents apiece and four line drawings at $2 apiece, and for 3 1/2 hours of a clerk's staff time at $22.50 per hour.

On an annual basis, that hourly clerk's wage represents a $46,800 salary, nearly $9,000 more than chief clerk Cathy Konrad's top salary before she left city hall.

"My instructions were from our city attorney; he was the one that set the fee," Attard said.

Even so, Attard described the fees as "very, very reasonable."

Attard added that the city has always worked hard to respond to Lorenzo's concerns. "I don't think we have mistreated that woman whatsoever... We bent over backwards for her," he said.

As an example, Attard said he recently compiled a thick packet of information on Lorenzo's situation, used to brief the city's Board of Zoning Appeals before Lorenzo argued her case before the board Wednesday.

"I sent the packet out a week and a half early so the members had time to read it and digest it," he said.

5 YEARS IN THE COMMUNITY • 150 YEAR TRADITION

U of M expertise in your neighborhood!

Although we're celebrating our fifth anniversary, the University of Michigan has been around for 150 years! It set the standard of excellence for health care in this country. The U-M was the first college in the nation to establish a University-owned and operated teaching hospital, and was one of the first universities to admit women and minorities for medical training. The vaccine to prevent paralytic polio was perfected here by Dr. Jonas E. Salk, and in 1989 Michigan physicians pioneered the use of 3-D radiation therapy in treatment for cancer. And we remain at the forefront of medical research with breakthroughs in many fields including cancer and gene therapy.

At the U-M Health Centers we are proud of our affiliation with such a comprehensive health care system. But we're even more proud of the relationships we've developed with the communities we serve.

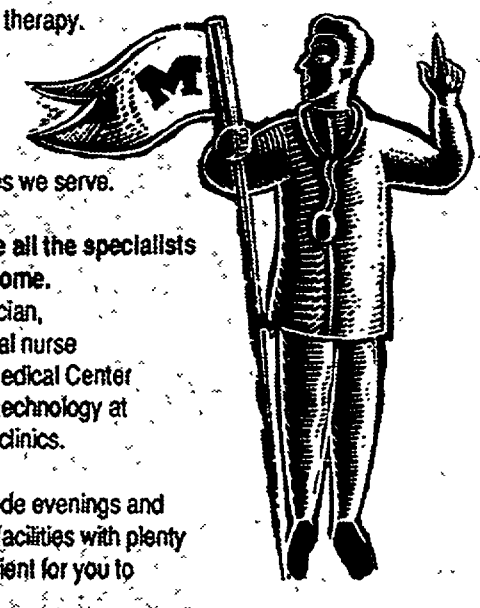

The University of Michigan Health Centers have all the specialists your family needs, at a location close to your home. You can see a family practice physician, a pediatrician, an internist, an obstetrician/gynecologist and clinical nurse specialists, all credentialed members of the U-M Medical Center staff. This gives you access to the state-of-the-art technology at the University's seven hospitals and 110 specialty clinics.

For your convenience, our appointment times include evenings and Saturdays. We have on-site laboratory and X-ray facilities with plenty of free parking. Call the health center most convenient for you to schedule an appointment.

News Briefs

REGISTRATION DEADLINE TODAY: Today, July 6, is the deadline for registering to vote for the Aug. 4 primary election. Persons who want to register to vote may do so up until the close of business at any Secretary of State branch office or at their county, city or township clerk's office.

U.S. Citizens 17 years of age who will be 18 on or before Aug. 4 are eligible to register for the primary election.

As of March there were 5,793,029 registered voters in Michigan. This is 84.7 percent of Michigan's voting age population of 6,835,532.

Persons with questions regarding voter registration should contact their local clerk: Northville Township, 348-5800; City of Northville, 349-1700.

SUMMER READING: There is still time to register for two summer programs now being offered for children at the Northville Public Library.

Readers may register for "READ ROCK RAP Tune into 92 Summer Reading" and receive materials to encourage reading. They will also have a chance to participate in poster contests, Read-A-Lottery, a Scavenger Hunt, Listen to the Best (books read aloud), puzzles and games to do as well as an invitation to the "Strike-Up-The-Band" Party with awards, refreshments, and special entertainment.

Children not yet reading may register for the "Read-To-Me" Program, which will include materials parents may share with their children plus an opportunity to register for three summer storytimes.

Registration for both programs will continue until July 10. Both programs will be in progress through July 29 at the Northville Public Library, 215 W. Main. Phone number is 349-3020.

NEW LAW AFFECTS REFRIGERATOR DISPOSAL: Northville residents should be aware that effective July 1, 1992, it is unlawful to dispose of any appliances that contain refrigerants. Refrigerators and air conditioners are included in this prohibition and can no longer be accepted for trash disposal unless the refrigerant is removed by a certified technician and the appliance is labeled to indicate that the removal has been performed.

Effective July 1, Painter & Ruthenburg, the community solid waste hauler, will only pick up and dispose of appliances that have had the refrigerants removed and are so labeled.

METROPOLITAN JAZZ ORCHESTRA: The Northville-born Metropolitan Jazz Orchestra will play Monday, July 20 at Johnny Magnum's Restaurant, 30555 Grand River east of Merriman.

Rick Balek's orchestra is a 19-piece big band performing standards and contemporary jazz for listening, dancing and dining. Music runs from 7-10 p.m. To charge tickets ($6 each), call 478-2010.

FREE SCOLIOSIS SCREENING: Scoliosis affects some one million children between the ages of 7 and 16. Research shows that most adults who have scoliosis developed it between the ages of 4 and 10.

Dr. Craig Gilling at Northville Chiropractic Health Center specializes in scoliosis detection and treatment and offers free scoliosis screenings to all teenagers on Thursdays and Saturdays. For an appointment call 348-6166.

GRASS CUTTERS NEEDED: The Northville Area Senior Citizens Center is compiling a list of workers, and their fees, in the area who will be available to cut lawns this summer for senior citizens.

Many of the center's clients need their lawns mowed and cannot find people in their neighborhoods willing to assist them with their need. If you are available to cut lawns in your neighborhood or can travel to the senior's home (many senior citizens have their own lawnmowers), please contact Karl Peters at the Northville Area Senior Citizens Center at 349-4140. Monetary arrangements will be made between the client and person cutting the lawns.

CRAFTERS WANTED: The Hawthorn Center Association, a non-profit group of past and present employees at Hawthorn Center, plans an outdoor summer craft show in August.

The group is now accepting applications for the show, to be held Saturday, Aug. 22, at Hawthorn Center, 18471 Haggerty just below Seven Mile. The center is a children's psychiatric hospital.

To apply to be in the show, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to: HCA Summer Craft Show, c/o Barb, 38410 Westchester, Sterling Heights 48310.

RESUME WRITING: Growth Works, a private, non-profit community organization, offers resume-writing services.

For $25 Growth Works will develop a resume and print 20 copies. They will also answer questions regarding resumes, cover letters, interviewing, etc.

For more information or to set up an appointment call 455-4093.

BLOOD NEEDED: The American Red Cross is facing another severe shortage of blood and continues to seek blood donors.

The Livonia Donor Center offers an ongoing opportunity to donate. Located at 29691 W. Six Mile (just west of Middlebelt), Suite 100C, in the rear of Bell Creek Office Plaza, the center is open from 2-8 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday and Friday; and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. # Pioneer home may take trip

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Pioneer matriarch Sally Thornton might not recognize her modest clapboard farmhouse, if it's finally moved about two miles away from its current location, renovated and enlarged.

Owner Bill Garfield is hoping that he'll catch the spirit of old-time Novi if he succeeds in placing the house, which he calls a jewel, in its proposed new setting at Eleven Mile and Taft roads.

He unveiled his updated plans for the home and asked for moral support at a June 22 Novi City Council meeting.

The little 1830s-era building made local history — again — just two years ago, when a new group, "Friends of the Sally Thornton House," surfaced to save it from possible destruction.

While the group was sniffing about to find an alternative location for the structure — now on I-beams on Nine Mile Road at Novi Road — Garfield purchased it for an insubstantial sum from owner Irwin Arkin.

Arkin, reluctant to tear down this piece of local history, had spent several years trying to find a taker so he could use the land.

"We feel this house is a gem of Novi's history. Way out in the wilderness, Sally Thornton had the thoughtfulness to create a beautiful house like this that architecturally still is remarkable," Garfield said.

Designs by Northville architect Gregory Presley call for enlarging the house to 3,000 square feet by extending it out from the rear and sides, including the addition of a garage.

In November 1990, Garfield had hoped to create a mini-subdivision with a historic ambience, Old Novi Village, on six acres on Eleven Mile Road, east of Taft Road.

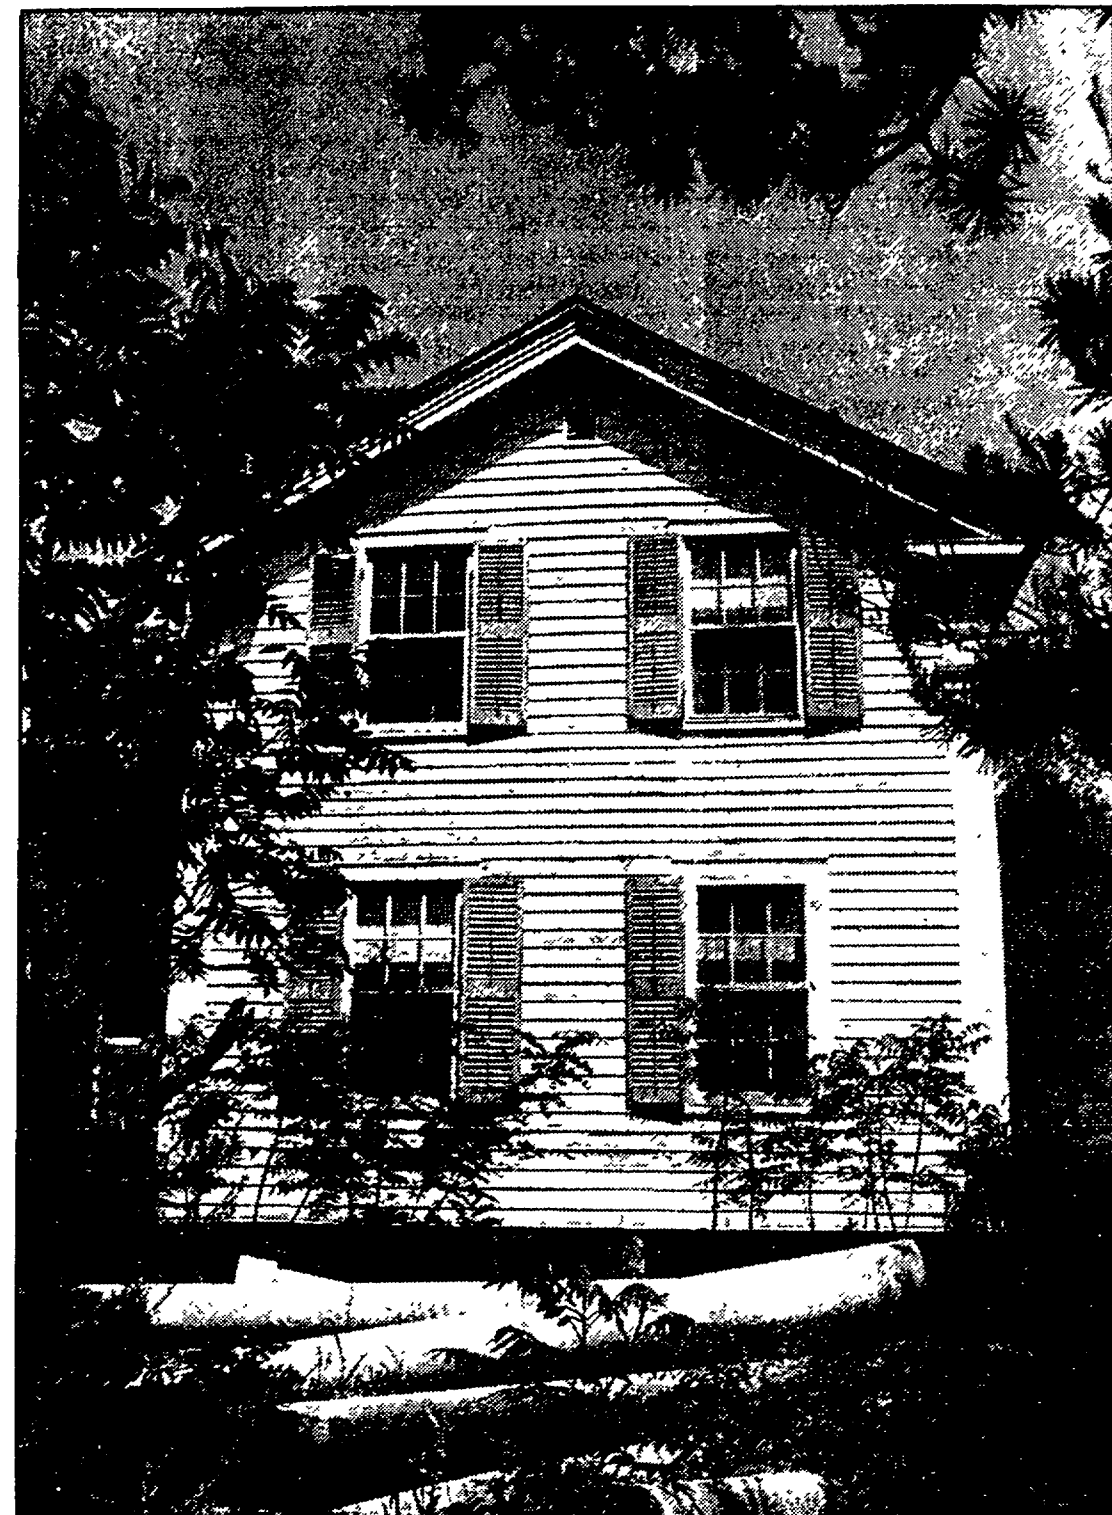

His partner withdrew financing due to a business downturn, Garfield told the Novi council. After a successful search for a new partner, he's talking about placing two Greek Revival-style homes on just under four of the acres.

The companion residence to the Thornton house would either be another historic house or a replica of one. A 200-foot gravel drive, lined with trees would lead to the houses.

"People would turn off of Eleven Mile and move right back into the 19th century," Garfield said.

This is one potential glitch. Garfield would like the city will approve a lot split creating two "flag lots" — or larger parcels — reached by a private gravel road. At present, the city is mulling changes to its lot split regulations to prohibit flag lots.

City Attorney David Fried cautioned that what Garfield is proposing won't meet either the current or the proposed new ordinance, because the side yards do not extend all the way back to where the buildings will be.

"That gem could be a lot that conforms with all the ordinances," Council Member Robert Schmid pointed out.

Garfield says he plans to move the house to the new home as soon as he gets the needed variance from the city.

"The council has told us to do everything we can to help somebody preserve that house. We should consider that," City Manager Edward Kriewall told the council.

However, Kathy Mutch, founder of "Friends of the Sally Thornton House," said that speaking as a private resident, she felt the residence's historical value should not guide the city's decision on variances.

"Even the most worthy preservation plan should not be encouraged at the expense of community planning," Mutch said.

Garfield, a Realtor, is no newcomer to historic preservation. With his sons, he owns Garfield Building Company, in downtown Northville, which has restored a number of historic commercial and residential properties in this city.

He has a sentimental attachment to the Novi house — it was once owned by his high school sweetheart's family, direct descendants of Sally Thornton.

Community colleges get similar aid

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Michigan's two-year colleges are keeping their fingers crossed for a successful property tax drive Aug. 4 at Wayne County Community College.

If voters say yes to a 1-mill tax increase, WC3, the only community college district in the state without a local tax, would no longer be able to draw a special $7.2 million subsidy from Lansing.

"That $7.2 million would help us all," said Schoolcraft College Vice President A.B. (Butch) Raby. "Of course, they (state legislators) don't say they will redistribute that to us."

For years state lawmakers have threatened to cut out WC3's special $10-million subsidy that none of the other 28 community colleges received. Last year they cut $1 million.

This fiscal year, a joint Senate-House conference appropriations committee cut $2 million more, leaving $7.2 million. (WC3 still gets a general fund appropriation of $14 million like all the rest.)

Otherwise, state aid to community colleges is almost flat — $240 million for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 versus $241 million in the current year.

That's about equal to the state aid Michigan State University gets.

"Pretty slim pickin's," said Oakland Community College VP Tony Jarson, who argues there's actually a hidden cut in the bill.

"The worst part, if you look at our budget, is what they did with retirement."

"A year ago, we paid 9 percent of base salaries to retirement. In fiscal 1991-2, they (state) raised that to 11.2 percent. As of Oct. 1, 1992, it goes to 12.03 percent."

"This is a $1.2-million cost increase. We're doing worse than two years ago."

The only segment of the budget that got nailed with these increases is community colleges.

Schoolcraft's Raby was pleased that the final state aid figure was about what officials at the northwestern Wayne County college anticipated.

"We knew it would be 1 to 1.5 percent," he said. The Legislature voted a 1.65-percent increase — to $8.7 million.

There's also a restricted grant of $163,000 for "at-risk" students, Raby said.

Schoolcraft this year raised tuition per credit by $3.50 to $40 for residents and by $4.50 to $60 for non-residents. Total budget is $31.4 million.

"Our property tax revenue will go up 1 percent — just new construction," because of the property assessment freeze, Raby said, referring to the one-year moratorium the Legislature voted on raising property assessments to meet real estate inflation.

The new state budget will send OCC $17 million, which on paper is a $300,000 increase, not counting the pension cost increase.

"We also got the property tax freeze," said Jarson.

OCC has raised tuition per credit hour by $2 to $41 for residents and by $4 to $69 for non-residents.

Total OCC budget will be $69.5 million, with less than 25 percent coming from state aid. "State aid used to be the biggest part of our budget," Jarson said.

"And we're not counting out an Engler executive order (mid-year cut in appropriations by the governor, permissible under the state constitution). We were exempt from an executive order last year," Jarson said.

Police catch suspect in two Meijer auto thefts

An 18-year-old Detroit man is a suspect in the June 25 theft of two vehicles from the parking lot at Meijer, 20401 Haggerty.

Township police said a Farmington Hills man reported that someone stole his 1991 Chevrolet Blazer sometime between 9:15 and 9:45 p.m. The vehicle was located the following day at 9695 N. Martindale in Detroit, where the 18-year-old was arrested.

The Blazer's steering column, left door lock, and rear windshield were damaged and the radio, wheels, and tires were stolen, police said.

A Northville man told police his 1992 S-10 Blazer was stolen from the Meijer lot at about the same time the other Blazer was stolen. The vehicle was found the following day at the Martindale address with a damaged steering column and right door lock.

The radio, wheels, and rear windshield were missing, police said.

WHEEL COVER STOLEN: A $150 wheel cover may have been stolen off a Buick parked in front of a Main Street office. The owner told city police the cover was stolen between 4-5 p.m. June 30, while the car was parked either in front of Northville Physical Therapy, 332 E. Main St., or at Nov's Twelve Oaks Mall.

WINDOW BROKEN: A home on Elmwood had a window broken sometime between 2 p.m. June 27 and noon June 28. Damage was estimated at $350.

The owner told city police that the house is a frequent target of vandals.

MOTORCYCLE STOLEN: An Innsbrook resident told township police that someone stole his 1989 Harley Davidson motorcycle from the apartment complex late June 27 or early June 28. The motorcycle was valued at $12,000.

ERRANT ARROW PIERCES SIDING: A Cardene Resident told township police that she found an arrow stuck in the home's aluminum siding on June 24. The woman said she heard a loud noise outside her home the previous evening, but was unable to determine what had happened.

Police investigated the scene and eventually discovered that a neighbor and a 22-year-old Royal Oak man had been target shooting with a crossbow and lost one arrow. The men were charged with using a dangerous weapon in the township.

VEHICLES DAMAGED: The owner of a Lincoln Continental told township police that someone damaged the vehicle's passenger's side door June 24 while it was parked in front of Black's Hardware, 43003 W. Seven Mile.

Damage was estimated at $200. A 1988 Honda Accord parked on Surrey Lane reportedly was damaged late June 23 or early June 24, according to township police reports.

The vehicle's owner said the driver's side door was dented and scratched. Damage was estimated at $250.

BIKE STOLEN: A three-speed boy's bicycle reportedly was stolen late June 23 or early June 24 from a unit at Swan Harbour Apartments, 19365 Silver Spring, according to township police reports. The bike was valued at $90.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Fire Safety

Local department marks a century of service

By STEPHEN OTT
Special Writer

The heritage and traditions of our community are special, and that includes the fire department. The Village of Northville was organized on March 13, 1867, and it appears that in the earliest days there was no organized Fire Department.

The village founders, however, did not completely ignore the problem presented by fire. Among the first ordinances adopted by the Village Trustees in April of 1867 was one entitled "In Relation to Fire," which provided that "every occupant of buildings on lots in said Village are required and ordered to keep constantly on hand ready for use three good pails and one ladder."

As the community grew, however, it became necessary to organize a dedicated firefighting force. The first Northville Fire Chief, Mr. A.M. Whitehead, looked back on the findings of that department in a 1931 newspaper article: "We got together way back in 1890 some time and decided to get some equipment and organize an efficient force." And so about 30 local citizens stepped forward and volunteered to operate the new equipment, which consisted of a 60-gallon, two-wheel, horse-drawn chemical wagon.

Many local residents have stepped forward since then to take their place. But just as now they were a dedicated, if varied lot. Northville's earliest fire fighters included Peter Barley, described as Chief Whitehead's "reliable hydrant man." Joe Montgomery's prized team of horses was used to pull Northville's first fire rig. And A.K. Dolph, in addition to serving on the fire department, ran for Village Trustee on the ticket of "Workingman's Party."

When not working to protect the village from fire, Northville's early fire department seems to have been a focus of social life. The oldest known piece of memorabilia from the department is a 1891 invitation to a dance sponsored by the Fire Department. And one of the earliest references to the department in The Northville Record is a Feb. 4, 1892, article describing the success of the "Fireman's Hop," at which 125 people were in attendance at the skating rink after having enjoyed a supper served by Carter Cady at his restaurant.

There were also fires to fight in those early days, perhaps none more spectacular, or spectacularly described, than the Globe Company fire in the early morning hours of April 30, 1899. The factory, which employed about 200 people, was struck by lightning at around 3 a.m.

In the style of the day, the fire and the efforts to contain it were described by The Northville Record in heroic prose: "Nestled away among the hills, the village lay sleeping like a child in its mother's arms. The night was exceedingly dark, as if the sable goddess had drawn her somber curtains still closer about her ebony throne to more jealously guard against the approaching dawn, while the stillness seemed by its intensity to brood of approaching darkness. Suddenly a terrific clap of thunder startled the slumberers from their rest, and the huge whistle from the Globe engine, which upon many previous occasions had given similar warnings of danger to other property, began shrieking out its own doom. A moment later the fire bell was ringing out its dread warnings and where but a moment before was quiet now was life and commotion — that which Northville people had so often prayed against and most dreaded, was now upon them. The factory building of the Globe Furniture Company had been struck by lightning and was on fire.

"Once it looked as if the boys were going to check it but the heavy pressure burst a section of the hose and while it was being fixed the water was shut off from the hydrant and before it was turned on again the flames had burst out anew and gradually the men were forced back inch by inch until they were assured everything was doomed and they gave their attention to saving the adjoining property.

"It was a great fight. The firemen and citizens put up the battle of their lives. Many laboring until they were completely exhausted. They could not save the factory but their efforts were crowned with a measure of success, for unquestionably their labor saved all the adjoining buildings of not only the Globe company but the Argo mills and many residences as well."

Fortunately, modern construction and firefighting techniques have reduced the threat of conflagration that was of such concern to our ancestors. But there are still such stories to tell, as firefighters continue their efforts to protect their communities from fire.

Stephen Ott is a member of the city Fire Department.

City, homeowner in dispute over business charges

A business owner who fails to register can be subject to a $500 fine and/or 90 days in jail. City officials have not attempted to charge Ingle under this provision of the ordinance.

Allen Ingle has been charged with violating other city ordinances.

He has been ordered to appear in 35th District Court at 9 a.m. July 7, in front of Judge John Garber, to face three charges: running a business out of his home, parking a trailer in his driveway more than 72 hours, and leaving tall grass and a pile of concrete in his back yard.

Under each of the ordinance violations, the homeowner could be assessed a $500 fine and the city's costs to prosecute the case, and imprisoned for 90 days.

A defiant Ingle said he looks forward to his day in court.

"There's going to be a jury trial on it anyway, because I'm tired of horsing around with the city," he said. "There's going to be a showdown."

The council is also considering recommendations made by Building Inspector Joe Attard in a June 12 memo, to revise city ordinances to crack down on such violations in the future. Attard recommended that wording be added to the city's home occupation ordinance to exclude the outside storage of equipment like lawn mowers, snow plows and cement mixers. "The ordinance as written allows (too) much leeway as evidenced by the condition of the Grasmere property," he wrote.

The city's trailer parking ordinance, which allows loading and unloading for 72 hours, should be revised to exclude general utility trailers, he wrote.

The city's actions are the end result of two years of complaints. Neighbors have protested against the alleged business since June 1990, and several previous attempts by the city to bring the property owner into compliance with the ordinance have failed.

Zoning Enforcement Officer Charles Altman sent out two warning letters in 1990, and finally cited Ingle Nov. 20, 1990, for illegally parking a trailer in front of his house. Allen Ingle was found guilty of the offense in 35th District Court March 19, 1991, and paid the resulting $50 fine.

Altman sent Ingle another letter May 22, 1992, warning him that he was in violation of the city's trailer and property maintenance ordinances. When no action was taken by Ingle, the city cited him June 8.

"The above items have been cited numerous times with little or no cooperation from the homeowner to correct (them)," Attard wrote June 12.

Republicans square off for commission seat Incumbent Breen hopes to continue his service

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Wayne County Commissioner Maurice Breen, who holds the 10th District seat, faces three Republican challengers in the Aug. 4 primary election.

A part-time attorney, until last year Breen was the long-serving Plymouth Township supervisor. He gave up that post and ran unopposed for the county commission when Susan Heintz took a new job as director of Gov. John Engler's southeast Michigan office. As Plymouth supervisor he was instrumental in developing the controversial Western Townships Utilities Authority sewer project, which he described as a worthwhile and necessary approach to meeting the area's sewer needs.

He believes he's done a good job in office his first year on the commission and hopes voters will return him to a full term in the county seat.

As the incumbent, Breen has come under fire recently from one political opponent for his involvement in the sale of land in Plymouth Township while he was township supervisor.

Maurice Breen

sor. Breen abstained from the vote on the rezoning of the land in question and made his conflict of interest a matter of the public record.

Why are you running again?

Because it's there. I've been there one year and I think I've done a fair job of representation and I've learned the system. I think it is in the best interests of the district to have somebody there who knows the way around the system and has the ability to enter into procedural-type things as well as the substantive issues that arise.

What do you see are some of the biggest issues facing the county in the upcoming years?

The budget issue is always an ongoing problem. The various demands on the budget revenues from the various interest groups within the county. Given that you have 43 communities in the county with Detroit being the largest, it has approximately 50 percent of the population, but it has an influence on the commission that is disproportionate according to the representation set up. So there is always a great demand to take more of the county revenues and put them in this special program that (is) designed to help and lead Detroit.

It is a difficult issue because there are so many different demands. It is an impossibility to fund them all, so you have a problem of sorting out structural problems that have to be taken care of in order to maintain county services. There is a great deal of desire to help Detroit but at the same time not destroy the basic structure. That's a great difficulty.

You said that Detroit a disproportionate representation. Would you like to see a different system if you were elected?

I say it is disproportionate simply because the way the districts are set up currently. You have basically nine commissioners that kind of float around and have Detroit interests and Detroit representation. It is difficult.

You say do I want different representation — No, it is just that it is a difficult situation of trying to allocate resources. That is a problem and with that is the reputation that Wayne County has an infrastructure problem, especially in roads. Roads are in terrible shape. Simply there are not enough dollars there to take care of it all.

Would you favor a regional transportation system as one means of reconstructing the road system?

My position on regionalism is fairly popular. Regionalism by itself will not solve any problems, but regionalism is a good administrative concept if in fact you can come up with some way to make a region out of it. Right now we can't do it. We can't do it without the cooperation from Detroit. It's a major player.

If you could do that, then yes, I would favor regional transportation. How far I think it should go — I don't think anybody has a good handle on it. You go out to Macomb County; they have different demands. Same with Oakland County, because your roads are so much different, the question becomes: Can you meet all the different demands?

What have you done for Northville residents since taking the (county commission) seat?

I consider myself to be an ombudsman, if you will, in terms of representing the district. I try to work with the elected officials to the extent that I contact them and ask them: Is there something that you want Wayne County to be doing that you are not able to do yourself, or something you don't want to do yourself? I've related to the people in the elected office and made myself available to them. And tried to represent their points of view.

and I've done it through the Conference of Western Wayne, and everybody that belongs to that, as well as individual contact.

Talk about being the only Republican on the commission. How do you deal with that? Does it handicap you and the communities you represent?

I don't think it handicaps the communities in terms of getting anything. No, I think the only handicap is that you don't get to be the commission chair. So you have less chance to initiate types of actions that get your name on press releases and that type of thing. So I think it is a political handicap, but only from that sense.

But the other part of it is, I don't think a one-party system is good. I think it is healthy for them to have at least one (Republican), because I work well with people but at the same time they recognize there is a different philosophy which I am able to respond to.

The answer isn't tax increasing. Our communities have always been that way. We have moderate taxes

Downes wants to push economic development

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Patrick Downes, 24, made headlines last week after naming Wayne County Commissioner Maurice Breen as a silent partner in a land deal in Plymouth township that netted Breen a considerable profit.

Downes, one of three Republicans challenging Breen for his 10th District seat next month, said he did it to give himself some credibility in the campaign. On a leave of absence from Southfield-based Pitney Bowes, Downes has diverted from his sales career to make a run for the seat.

Downes said he's the most qualified candidate because he has a vision for western Wayne County and a roadmap for change. A resident of Plymouth for the past 14 years, Downes said he's kept a close eye on Breen and his politicking and thinks it's best for the incumbent to be replaced in light of recent news surfacing from his earlier political days as Plymouth township supervisor.

Why are you seeking election?

I'm concerned about our current leadership and I think that has been highlighted with (the Western Townships Utilities Authority), that they put fiscal gain ahead of personal responsibility and that any representation for the taxpayers is secondary.

I think in Breen's comments (about the land deal) he doesn't deny those charges; he explains them away. He said he disclosed, but he in my opinion has a continuing conflict of interest with Bob DeMattia as long as there is a mortgage outstanding on this land, and we don't know the terms to this day. We don't know if he is still receiving money from Mr. DeMattia; he has a vital interest in seeing the success of Bob DeMattia and his company. If Bob DeMattia goes bankrupt, Maury doesn't get his money. It's that simple. I think there is a real concern there and I think it affects his leadership when he was township supervisor and now as county commissioner.

But aside from being upset at Maury Breen, I think I do have a good plan or at least a good understanding of what are some of the problems in Wayne County.

What are the big issues facing the county in the next couple of years?

Any area that has been an industrial center for 100 years is going to have problems, especially if you have the urban problems of Detroit. That has forced a lot of businesses to leave the county. . . . The problem is we don't have class A roads. . . . There is no magic bullet, but that is what the county needs to compete with our surrounding counties; we have to offer the same service those counties do. . . .

I think the county commission in essence is a mini-Congress. Over the course of the years their (commissioners) pay has escalated. I document that fringe benefits have increased 29 percent from 1989 to 1990. I think essentially they work part-time, collect full-time pay, have lease cars, have an office both downtown and in their district. And essentially offer no leadership for the county or no programs or no suggestions about what needs to be done.

In turn they'll (let) Ed McNamara have his project at the airport, which I think has some considerable merit to it, and their end of the bargain is he looks the other way when they have pay increases or lease cars or these perks.

If Detroit is to make a comeback or if Southeast Michigan is to make a comeback, the county is going to have to intervene either on their behalf or at least work with other counties on issues such as mass transit or regionalization of other services like our zoo. There are some fluff issues like the zoo or the DIA (Detroit Institute of Arts), but still there is going to have to be some cooperation. And obviously I don't think the city can provide that right now. The county is uniquely in a position to do that and the commissioners are going to be forced to work hard to be innovative and compromises. To build bridges with other local civic leaders.

Any problem that urban and suburban America face, Wayne County faces. . . . The big key is unity and then — unity in and of itself is useless, but unity to get jobs back to the county. That is the name of the game.

Do you support or oppose the proposed .5-mill tax increase that is on the ballot for indigent health care?

I oppose it. I think it is one thing to go to taxpayers when you have a clearly defined plan on how the money will be spent, what it's going to be spent on, ect. That is absent in this case. It was done at the last minute. The answer is basically, we'll figure it out, but give us the money first.

We are in a recession right now, and I think people are very skeptical of their government as it is. They tend to see it as something of a black hole that this money goes into, especially residents out in this area. I think residents out here would be willing to give money if they felt it was going to accomplish something. But there is no guarantee that this tax will accomplish anything because there is no plan on what it is going to do. . . . I would be willing to consider it in the next county election where it could be put on the ballot once a plan has been developed and we could get the maximum dollar out of a tax.

McCotter eyes better resident representation

Livonia's Thaddeus McCotter, a lawyer in private practice, is seeking to unseat incumbent Maurice Breen for the 10th District seat on the Wayne County Commission.

McCotter has been a trustee on the Schoolcraft College board for three years and was instrumental in amending the Livonia city charter as the legal counsel for the group that sought its change. He has also served as chairperson of the 2nd Congressional District Republicans.

Why are you running?

I'm running because I don't think we are getting the government we deserve. Certainly not of the incumbent.

I'm willing to risk everything. Everything I've put into the party. Everything I've put into public service. . . . I know what to expect. I'm prepared for it, but it doesn't matter. I'd rather risk it than serve what they are doing.

Thaddeus McCotter

What is it that they have done with the offices that makes you feel that way?

What they did is that they've just decided you go here, you go here, you go here. . . . The bottom line is you appoint somebody; he (Breen) gets appointed down there, and they set up (Georgina) Goss to run for state representative. What's going to happen, in a short-term election? . . . It's all money. And where did they get the money from? People they give the contracts to. Recycled, refunded, re-funded and no one has a chance.

It is exactly what happened. Although in Breen's case it was different, because he wasn't challenged.

There is also the consideration if you go through his records you'll find a nice $625 contribution from (County Executive Ed) McNamara's Band. . . . I know how the system works. I don't necessarily like it, but that's how it works. And they could just do that — they did just do it — and they get away with it. So far.

If you are elected, what do you think you will be able to do for the people of Northville?

One of the things I want to do for the people of Northville is to make sure they know they have a county commissioner who is there. Breen is a part-time attorney. He is listed in the phone book as one. He spent a lot of time out here in his attorney's office. It is not, as far as I know, a district office, because I went through the office folders. I saw telephones for the district office. I did not see an expense for that. . . .

We walked through the City of Northville. And a lot of people are like, "Are you running against Ed McNamara?" You've got to explain what a county commissioner does and what he can do for them. And I'm not crazy; I may be stupid, but I'm not crazy enough to run against Ed McNamara. And it's like they don't know, what Wayne County government does, for one thing. They don't know who does it down there and that's one thing I'd like to let them know.

One of the main things in (this) district is to find some solution to that Michigan State Training School site. One of the things that really upsets me is that the county just abrogated its duty to make sure that it wasn't a nuisance. It is just sitting there. They've let it run down and deteriorate while they tried to get it off their hands with a private developer.

It's wasting police resources in Northville, and God knows what the kids do in those places. . . . But that is one thing that has to be addressed. Whether or not something happens to it in the future, something has to be done to it now to reduce the risk of harm to people in the area. And to reduce the drain on city and township services. I mean it is that simple.

How do you think the sale was handled in terms of business between the county and the township?

It seemed like it went all right. It's the county that didn't work too well with the township, it seems to me, because there is still the fight over the tax dollars that (township officials) feel like they are being cheated out of.

And one of the things that they could have done to that was to say that if he does default on it, then they could have said that the township can have some of it or they could have worked out a cut between the down payment he put up. . . . But I don't think the township and the county necessarily coalesced well together on the whole thing.

What role can the local county commissioner play in improving the situation right now or in getting the sale through?

Well, one of the things the county commissioner could do is ask that the county put up some money to at least board up a lot of that spot or at least take care of it. Use sheriff's patrol to watch county property. Another thing that they could do is the commissioner could simply sit there and bring county officials, the developer and the township together to really hear what the township thinks that it wants to see there. If they don't do that — if you are looking at other issues of regional cooperation and the city and your own district can't get along with the county — how are you going to get three counties to work together on something like transportation?

What do you think are some of the biggest issues facing the

Stacey seeks low taxes, responsive government

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Plymouth's Clayton Stacey, a Republican candidate vying for Maurice Breen's 10th District seat on the Wayne County Commission, is a newcomer to the political arena. Without any prior political experience to speak of, Stacey threw his hat in the race in hopes that he could keep property taxes down for the district.

Stacey liquidated his 40-year thriving highway contracting business, Kensington Corporation, in 1989 to retire. He is now a licensed Realtor with Robert Baker Realty.

Keeping Kensington afloat for nearly four decades, Stacey said, is the best experience and knowledge he brings to the commission race.

Why are you running?

Because I'm getting tired of politicians who think that they are the only ones that count. The people are the ones that count, not the politicians. It is about time they give the rights back to the people.

What do you see are the biggest issues facing the county in the upcoming years?

The biggest issue we have is to lead the City of Detroit, not bail the City of Detroit out financially, because if we get into that we are going to bankrupt all the cities and townships around Detroit. They have to set the guidelines and show them how to run the government.

Do you think your experience as a business person comes into play there?

Yes, because like I said before, when you are in business for yourself you get the most done for the cheapest amount of money spent. When you are a public authority there is no incentive for them to save money. The more they spent the more they'll tax you. Just like a utility company they don't either. They just get higher rates. And they need some people on there (on the commission) who are used to running corporations. That's why I'm a firm believer in privatizing a lot of the operations the county's got.

Like what?

Like they are talking right now about a contract next month for privatizing the maintenance and cleanup on the expressways. Granted, the contractor will pay higher per hour, per man, but he gets more work out of him. They are used to pushing their people because if he (the contractor) doesn't get it done for the price he bids, it comes out of his pocket. If the county doesn't get it done for what they say they will, they just raise your taxes.

What do you think you will be able to do for the Northville district as a county commissioner representing the area?

I would hope personally to keep their property taxes down. Because it's (tax increases) going to happen in the Plymouth, Livonia and Northville areas. At the rate the taxes keep going up the young generation won't be able to buy a house here and live in these areas. I know what it costs to live in Northville and Plymouth, and you start adding $5,000 to $10,000 a year in property taxes — Well, that's bigger than your house payments. They've got to come up with an alternative method of taxation. Of course I'm a believer in the sales tax. Then everybody pays. Get rid of property taxes.

Do you support or oppose the .5-mill tax increase on the ballot for indigent health care?

I'm a firm believer in that. Because you have to respect the older people. Of course, unfortunately, I'm getting up there in age too. Some people can't afford to have care but they shouldn't be thrown out into the streets because of it. The state, the county, and the city should take care of them. Out of respect for their age.

What is your opinion of the way the sale of the county's property here in Northville was handled between the two governments?

Well I never did think that was very fair or the right way to handle it. The county put up very little money up for it and it (the deal) was dependent on getting a whole bunch of federal funds. And what they did was take an option on the purchase for 300,000 bucks. Since that time I think they've reneged on their option and that's fine, because the developer couldn't put the money up. They shouldn't have let it be that big a parcel. I believe in controlling the growth because this is the last growth area — Northville, Plymouth and up to Ann Arbor. This area is the last growth area in all of Wayne County and it should be controlled. But I don't think one builder should do that by himself.

What would you like to see happen down there and how should the county government get involved in some of the offers?

They should take maybe three to four hundred acres at a time. And if you do this one right and things look good, then you do the next four hundred acres. It is just said that they let all those buildings down on Five Mile deteriorate down to nothing. It gradually decayed just like a cancer, letting those beautiful buildings just go to waste. It could have made a heck of a senior citizens complex out there. In fact I wouldn't mind seeing one out there. You couldn't save those buildings, but basically you have the grounds for it.

In the interim, until the county decides what to do with the property, whose responsibility is it to monitor and patrol the property?

The county owns it so therefore they have their own police department. I personally think that they should patrol it themselves. It is their property; Plymouth and Northville shouldn't be involved at all.

In reference to the Sheriff's Department, what is your opinion of the political battle going on within the department? Is it harmful to the department?

I think it's getting awful dirty. I know both people involved and I just hate to see that. I hate to see the name calling. When you start getting your sheriff's deputies to vote against their boss, that doesn't look good.

Of course a lot of the problems today with politicians is they want to run for a job and that is just a stepping stone for when they want to run

Our Opinion

Bullard leads a weak field of candidates

In the Republican primary for the new 38th District in the state House of Representatives, we're frankly not enamored of any of the three candidates. Given the choices, though, we feel incumbent Rep. WILLIS BULLARD provides the best option.

For someone with his years of service in the state House, Bullard isn't very well known — not statewide, and not in Northville. People around here often forget that the Northville community has two representatives in the House; with Bullard as one of them, that's easy to do.

More than half the population of Northville city now lives in Oakland County, according to the new census, and therefore falls within this House district. Although Northville is still a fairly small part of the district, we wish Bullard would have had more of a presence here. (He's extremely visible in his home area of Milford/Highland.) And in spite of the fact that his local visibility might not be high, if people seek him out he is definitely accessible.

It just seems that Bullard could be more of a leader in the Legislature. Two years ago he spoke to us of the need for ethical reform in the House; where was his proposal? Where is Bill Bullard, the fighter for racetrack tax money?

We don't think anyone here could find much fault with his voting record, however. On issues of school funding, he always votes the "right" way — the way which would be of benefit to Northville and the rest of the out-of-formula school districts he represents. His positions on abortion (pro-choice with restrictions) and other state issues probably fairly reflect the majority opinions of his constituents.

Bullard's challengers in the primary provide some interesting angles, but don't seem to be fully realized candidates.

Jim Ash is a business owner whose top priority would be legalized casino gambling. He makes a decent argument for its benefits, but we're not sure Michigan — and this district in particular — are ready to support such a plan. For voters who may put abortion rights at the top of their agenda, Ash takes the most clearly pro-choice stand.

John Riley, a former Milford Village Council member, might make a capable representative. He's not as fully informed on some state issues as we'd like to see, however. On abortion, he's the clear pro-life candidate, for voters who may consider that a litmus test. Otherwise, he just doesn't provide a compelling argument to replace Bullard.

To summarize, Bullard does a good job of reacting to what's in front of him in a way that probably falls in line with most of his constituents. He's not a major source of leadership or legislative initiatives, but we don't see the challengers being significantly different in that respect. In one of the less exciting races next month, it's a somewhat reluctant nod for the incumbent.

Making the grade, but room to improve

Northville Schools Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski received very high marks from the school board on his first performance evaluation since taking over the top spot last year. Most of the glowing review may indeed be well-deserved; in at least one area, though, we see a need for improvement which the school board glossed over.

Community relations is a difficult area for most superintendents these days. A lot of the old rules don't seem to apply any more. And while Rezmierski's relations with some segments of the community — PTAs, other school-related organizations, and so on — are first-rate, that's apparently as far as it goes.

In his interview with the board before being selected as superintendent, Rezmierski pledged to run an open shop. His administration would be free and forthcoming with information; inquiries would be welcome.

Well, let's be honest. That hasn't been the case. At times during the recent school millage elections, complaints have been common — and not only from millage opponents — that a crowbar was almost needed to pry out a straight answer to a simple question.

When, after the first millage proposal failed, a surprised Rezmierski commented that no one had told him they were going to vote against the plan, that was a signal. There's some communication lacking here, and the board should have taken note of it in this review.

Everyone involved agreed after the first election that the district did not do a good job communicating. It was also true, though less so, during the second campaign. The superintendent is the point person in these matters. We do not mean to suggest at all that better communication would have brought different results; we're quite sure it wouldn't have. But if the consensus is that communication should have been better, this really ought to be factored into the evaluation of the main communicator.

The superintendent has had a challenging first year, and has met most of the challenges well. He could use more non-school-related contacts within the community, though, to keep more in touch. And going hand-in-hand with that, he could do more to demonstrate a commitment to openness in government.

Spotting the parking problem

Drive into downtown Northville these days, and you may be seeing spots, literally.

All the public parking lots have big orange dots painted in each space around the periphery.

No, it's not a 7-Up commercial run amok. This is the new system of guaranteeing that visitors — money-spending ones hopefully — get the prime parking spaces in the downtown lots. Downtown employees have been instructed to park in the spaces with the orange dots. The idea arose from downtown merchants intent on giving the best spaces in Northville's lots to their customers.

I must admit, I never really noticed that there was a parking problem in the city. Back before I worked here, I really don't ever remember having a problem finding a parking space. Since I've been here, the only days I dread are the first three business days of every month.

That's when the Michigan Association of Gift Salesmen brings in salespeople from all over. On those days, all the lots on the west end of town are crammed to overflowing with dull, four-door sedans, the ride of choice for salespeople.

But according to downtown merchants, potential customers are driving into town, circling once in search of a space, and leaving. Or at the very least, when they do find a space, it's such a traumatic experience that they never come back.

I must admit I'm skeptical. I mean, you could fit all of downtown Northville inside the Northville Township Meijer store. Meijer is so big it has rest stops. But the customers keep going back.

And parking at Meijer? I don't even try to fight it. I park in the first space I see and call a cab to take me to the door.

Well, whether the dots are a valid method to improve the parking situation or not, it's a small price for us downtown employees to pay. Besides, the dots were a great source of awful puns in this office. We could be ordered to "hit the spot," arriving for work on time, we could be said to be "on the dot," if the idea caught on, we could call them "hot spots."

Yet with all the discussion surrounding the dots, some in this office didn't catch on right away.

For my own part, never being one to waste time, I started parking on the spots the day they were painted. I had to. Since they installed the new dumpster in the middle of the lot, my usual parking space has been downwind. The old Dodge was starting to get a little whiffy.

Reporter Jan Jeffries found the dots early on, too. But then she usually parked at a distance anyway. Her reasoning: "I don't get enough exercise on this job, so I like the extra walk."

There were some slackers, however. On Thursday, July 2, the day after the dot rule went into effect, I spied sports editor Scott Daniel and managing editor Mike Malott still using the visitors' spaces.

Sure enough, when I got into the office, the two were gloating over what an easy time they'd had parking that morning, and were congratulating each other on having found spaces so close.

Mustering a little peer pressure from, well, everyone in the newsroom, I informed the two that they had "missed a spot."

Their responses looked like something out of a Cracklin' Oat Bran commercial. Scott played dumb: "What parking dots?" Mike, on the other hand, tried righteous indignation: "I already have a Mother to tell me what to do."

They did, however, vow to abide by the rules in the future. For now, though, I'd say our performance in sticking to the new parking regulations has been pretty spotty.

Ol' Phil takes a hit in survey

Record Editor Bob Needham was actually nice about it. I'm talking about his report in last Thursday's paper about the results of the recent readers' poll.

It might surprise you to know that Needham was being nice.

First, in his column he noted that my column brought in by far the most negative response. He went on to acknowledge that "even Phil has his ardent supporters," but qualified that observation by noting that "at least two of them are relatives."

He got me again in his story about the survey results: "Those of you who read the column by Phil Jerome... will recall his recent shameless pandering for votes at the expense of other columnists."

"It couldn't have done him much good," continued the Record editor, "he fell squarely in the middle of the pack. And under the comments section, Phil's column got more negative response than anything else."

Good ol' Bob even included one of those negative responses in his story on readers' comments. The one he selected as representative was this: "Remove Phil Jerome's column of trivia."

Tough stuff, right? Let's face it, being raked over the coals can be tough even on an ego as hardened as my own.

But don't forget what I said at the start — Needham was actually quite nice about it.

The fact is, my friends, that I got toasted. Beat up worse than the bad guys in a John Wayne movie.

I mean to tell you, people wrote in and suggested that the little bit of space this column takes up is a total waste of ink and paper.

And Bob was right when he said my shameless pandering for votes didn't do me much good. Closer to the truth, I think, is that it did me harm than good.

As far as I could tell from reading the surveys, the only response to that plea came from a man who was moved to send in another survey denouncing my column even more strongly than he had the first time.

The second survey had just one big check mark on it — on the "never" box where it asked how often you read Phil Jerome column. The check was accompanied by a few more choice comments. I mean to tell you, folks, that guy was mad.

(It occurred to me to ask how he knew I was pandering for votes if he never read the column, but I decided to drop instead of stirring up more trouble.)

At any rate, the survey was extremely interesting although the results were not exactly unexpected.

In fact, the results were quite similar to those I've read from surveys done by other newspapers. People generally say they want more hard news. They say they usually read the front page and the editorials. News about births, engagements and weddings typically receives a lukewarm response. And sports news always rates lowest.

The value of The Record survey is that it reinforces what we're already doing. We believe he already place strong emphasis on "hard" news and "local" news. We will attack that aspect of the paper with renewed vigor.

And don't worry about the lukewarm response to births, engagements and weddings. Or the low response to sports news.

We know those things are extremely important to the people involved, and we will continue to emphasize them because that's what a good newspaper does — it chronicles the lives of the people in the community it serves.

with efficient services, and you don't overload your governmental services with people in order to provide jobs. Whereas the other party tends to create jobs by adding bureaucracy. I think it is healthy for them to have a voice down there that says, "Take a look at your internal structure and see whether or not you are doing the best job you can."

Do you support or oppose the .5-mill increase on the ballot for indigent health care?

I opposed it when we brought it forward, and now I actively oppose it. Because the only reason they are putting a half-mill is because . . . they want more revenue in deal with the problems they perceive need to be dealt with.

One of those is the county's health plan for indigents. They don't like the idea that there is less involvement by the County of Wayne in the apportionment of the care. So they prefer to have more money to deal with that and run it their own way. You only get $13 million on the half-mill so you are not going out to take care of the entire problem; they just want to have more money to deal with.

What's your position of the county opting to parcel the county land in the township out, and how do you feel about the way that sale was negotiated?

See, I sit on (the) Economic Development (Committee), and they have never come to us. So as far as the county's status is right now—the option to parcel everything out—it is in the Economic Development Department and they have not come up with a plan. They have not submitted a plan. They have not come to us.

Does that sound like a workable plan, to sell it out by chunks if you can, and maybe develop a golf course?

That was their initial plan years ago. I was opposed to it at that time when I was a township supervisor because I didn't want to see it happen in Northville. I don't think you get a good, solid development.

Since the land is such a drain on township services, how does the township get representation to the county?

Since I've been down there what I've tried to do is when the subject matter has come up, I've tried to make the economic development people deal directly with the township people in order to make sure they have a sign-off in whatever comes up. I think the problem with all this is that government is not a good developer and it never has been. It's never shown any track record.

Whose responsibility is it to patrol the land?

They aren't paying taxes on it. I can make an argument that it is the county's responsibility and the county can make an argument that it's the township's responsibility. Given the special circumstances, the county patrol is really spotty. That is the sad part of it, because it has taken so long it is an impossibility to secure that property unless you wanted to station people there 24 hours a day.

Your opponent Thaddeus McCotter has criticized you for maintaining your law practice while sitting on the County Commission. Do you have any reaction to that?

It (County Commission) has never been designed as a full-time job. You can complain that they are paying you too much for a part-time job. I think that depends on the individual and how much time and energy you devote to whatever activity. That is something I started back in the township in 1968.

I don't think we need full-time commissioners in the sense that they have no other activity . . . other than county commissioner. The real issue is, what is the role of the county commissioner vis-a-vis the running of Wayne County. There is no administrative responsibilities. So your job is to develop policy and work within the system to ensure services get delivered. We don't need to be down there eight hours a day, five days a week, 52 weeks a year to do that. In fact you should be out doing other things in order to get a feel for what the people think.

I don't think full-time representatives are the answer to anything. I think you have to be able to understand what the system demands and what the job demands and do that well. You spend the time with your constituency so you understand what they want.

What is your reaction to the political battle that has stirred up in the Sheriff's Department and do you think it is harmful to the morale and image of the department?

I think it's been extremely dirty—not dirty—highly negative campaign. It's a Democratic fight and that's my observation. I don't think it is good for any department to be involved in the political aspect of it or to start endorsing candidates.

Downes wants to push economic development

ducted business dealings with regards to the sale of the county land in the township?

I think the issue is getting that land back on Northville Township's tax rolls. As for the specifics of how the deal went, I'll be honest with you; I'm not the most knowledgeable person on it. I know what the results have been and I know what the motivations were . . .

The question is: To what use is this land going to be put? It could either destroy Northville's character or keep Northville's unique identity or help the township with revenues. But I've heard the county's been asked to keep the land off the market until a deal can be worked; I don't have any substantiation of that. I don't think that once a seller is found and a price is agreeable to the county that it should be sold, but I think ultimately the township is going to have to have control over what goes in there and make sure it fits into their character.

What they are talking about now . . . is kicking around the idea of selling off a chunk at a time. Have you any reaction to that approach?

It can work if the township establishes a master plan on what the rest of the land is going to do. But if they do it piecemeal without any idea—I don't have a problem with the county selling the land piecemeal as long as it's coordinated with the township.

Since the property has been in negotiation, it has been a constant target of vandalism. Whose responsibility do you think it is to monitor and patrol the area?

It is county land; I think the county should monitor it . . . To me it's very clear. The county owns the land; the county should take care of it.

If elected, what do you hope to be able to do for the residents of Northville?

I would hope to keep taxes at their current level; obviously, Wayne County balancing their budget. Once they eliminated County General Hospital, balancing the budget has not been a problem for them.

I would hope to maintain Northville's unique identity. Essentially with 1,000 acres in the southern part of the township. That is going to be the biggest impact the county has on the Northville residents. . . But whoever is elected has got to be a watchdog for Northville Township, and I think I've demonstrated an ability to blow the whistle when I see something that I don't like instead of trying to work behind the scenes or keeping my mouth shut. If I see something that I don't like, I'm going to scream about it. I've done it and I'll certainly do it if I see something I don't like going on in Northville Township in that 1,000 acres.

Do you have opinion about the political battle that has surfaced in the Wayne County Sheriff's race?

I've met and spoken with Kevin Kelly. He helped me when I got started . . . But running strictly because disagreeing with how the command structure is set up—I support and I think for good reasons the way it is presently done. As much as he has helped me, and I like him, that issue alone just isn't compelling enough to me to vote for him. But I'm withholding judgment until other things come out during the election.

Do you see yourself in politics 10 years from now?

. . . I'm not saying yes, I'm not saying no; but honestly couldn't I give you (a concrete answer).

McCotter eyes better resident representation

county in the next couple of years?

Well there is always crime. Which is more in the domain of the Wayne County Sheriff, no matter how much law-and-order people like to get up and pound the table. The only things that county commissioners can do in terms of crime is to make sure the sheriff's office is adequately funded.

One of the things that I feel is very important is regional transportation. Which in my mind also means regional cooperation. Because you can't ram this down the throats of Macomb County or Oakland County.

One of the ways to do that is to set up a fund. I could envision a referendum with a proposal for a tax increase that the people will decide whether they want or not, or whether regional transportation is important enough . . .

And one of the ways you could do that would be to set up a board with two members with equal representation from each county. You could have two-two-two. You do it on Democrat-Republican basis or you could do it on any basis you want. One could be specifically designated from Detroit and Wayne County and one from out-Wayne County. You could do it that way and then have the governor appoint the swing vote. Because the governor's office would go back and forth; I think that would be fair. Too, you could set up a pool of money out of that which is directly targeted for local municipalities . . .

Do you support or oppose the .5-mill tax increase proposal that will be on the ballot August 4?

I oppose it. I think they could find money in there. I mean the commission spends $6 million on itself every year in expenses. One of which was a nice complimentary map I had mailed to my house by the incumbent. I think that there is money there and I think that it requires prioritization of what you have there.

You can never get (small) business rejuvenated in Wayne County . . . If every time you turn around, your government is slipping out a tax increase that half the people don't even know is out there. And then they'll kick out some group of voters that will pass it. And then you are just sitting there saying where did this come from?

Do you have any opinion of the politics going in within the Wayne County Sheriff's Department with regard to the election for the county sheriff?

. . . I like Kevin Kelly (sheriff candidate) as a person. I like (Sheriff) Bob Ficano. I know him from Livonia. It's incredible to see two nice people like that when they get in a situation where they are running for office to become two people I can't recognize. I can't put the faces and the literature together . . .

One of them is going to win. But I think they are both going to lose because of the way they are doing it. People are tired of voting against someone. They want to vote for someone . . .

You've been on the Schoolcraft Board for three years. Talk a little bit about that experience and what it has given you.

One of the things is there are a lot of hard decisions involved. Before I got on there I was kind of a smart alec. I always thought, oh, Schoolcraft, that would be a hard job to screw up because you only get your name in the paper if you screw up. But we've done our share of screwing up.

Again it's just hard choices. You've got a budget, you've got to balance the budget, you have to live within your means. You have to know how much you can go up every year. You've got to know what students want because they have to be a prime consideration. Basically it's just learning how government operates and trying to do the hard things. Live within your budget, set the right priorities, get input from your constituents and still maintain the overall goal of the college, which is an affordable quality education. We've done that . . .

The other thing I learned is that for some people it's hard to stand up and say I was wrong. We've reappointed Bob Law (partner in the legal firm serving Northville Township and the Western Townships Utilities Authority). I voted against it. I voted for him the first time. It's a matter of public record. And on the public record that was in front of us he looked like the best attorney. He represented everybody. Nice guy. Turns out I was wrong. But I'm not going to pretend nothing is wrong to make myself look better. There are some people who do. And that really, really bothers me. The easy thing for me is to sit there and toe the line. Whatever they did was legal, but again it doesn't make it right. And I was wrong the first time; I'm not going to be wrong again.

The challenge facing any Republican coming out of this district is that you will be more than likely the only one the commission. How do you deal with that?

I just deal with it. You just go down there and try to do the things you said you would do and when you get down there and try to take an approach.

You have to take an approach that you are going to get out a Republican point of view knowing full well that it's not going to go anywhere. But at least getting it out so people know there is one there. And then trying to affect in whatever way you can the final outcome.

Because there are blocs down there. A Republican can play a swing vote. But too often Republicans from this commissioner district have gone down there to play the swing vote to either become an elevated part or position on the commission, or to get more perks from the chairman, and that's not the way to use your pull down there. You use what can be a swing vote to put forth a different message or at least change some of the stuff that goes through. To get people thinking that maybe it could be done differently. It's like being a Republican in Congress. There are times when you can't do anything, but there are times when you can work to see that you can. And I don't think that we necessarily see that.

for a bigger job. Ficano wants (County Executive Ed) McNamara's job, and he's just being sheriff until McNamara wants (U.S. Sen. Donald) Riegle's job . . . It's just like the county commissioner's job. A lot of people want that job strictly for one reason—so they can go on to be a judge. Fortunately, I'm not an attorney. So I can't go on to be a judge.

What is your motivation then? This is your first political bid; what's behind it?

It's like I told you; I just got tired of these politicians thinking they own the county or even the city or state level as if it's their own personal corporations. If they want to run a corporation, then get out of the public life and start one. They don't know what it is to run a corporation. Since I'm retired now I've got the time I can do it. If people want to elect me I appreciate it. If they don't, it's not life-threatening.

More than likely if you do win the seat you will still be the only Republican on the commission. Do you think that would be a problem in getting things done?

No, but . . . I'll be honest: I really think the Wayne County Commission, you've got 15 guys on there, and if they can't accomplish anything and they can't get along, they should limit it to four. Why pay those salaries? Why waste the county taxpayers' money for 15 people if they can't get the work done?

Basically they are under the guide of McNamara. He's the executive and make sure that he does what the people want him to do. But if they can't accomplish anything it is like the council of the City of Detroit; I think they should eliminate seven of them; just keep two of them. Make them watch guards. They should eliminate the commission. If they aren't going to do anything and McNamara isn't going to listen to them and they aren't going to listen to each other, then eliminate them.

Cooking Tool Time

Telegenic Northville Chef Tom MacKinnon, left, of MacKinnon's restaurant on Main Street, recently appeared on local talk show Kelly and Company with co-host Marilyn Turner, center. Also on the show that same day was Tim Allen, right, comedian and star of the hit network series Home Improvement, which revolves around a suburbanite with a passion for tools. MacKinnon gave Allen a personal creation called a barbecue tool belt, which is pretty self-explanatory. MacKinnon hopes to market the belt.

Alzheimer's group forms

A new support group for Alzheimer's caregivers will meet on the second Saturday of every month from 2-3 p.m. at Star Manor, 520 Main Street, in Northville.

The next meeting will be on July 11. All meetings are free and everyone is welcome.

At support group meetings, family members learn about the medical, legal, financial, and emotional aspects of Alzheimer's disease. Through videotapes, pamphlets and speakers, caregivers develop skills in managing difficult behaviors and communicating with someone who has dementia.

Leader Latika Mangrulkar said, "It is a real challenge when a family member has Alzheimer's disease. I am starting the support group to help others cope with a hard situation."

For more information, call Mangrulkar at 349-4290 or Anne Lilla at the Alzheimer's Association, 557-8277.

College offers scholarships

The Schoolcraft College Foundation is accepting applications for the following scholarships that are available to Schoolcraft College students:

- Rosina Raymond Memorial Scholarship. Rosina Raymond served the college as a member of the board of trustees for 18 years as its chairperson, vice chairperson, treasurer and secretary. The scholarship is available to liberal arts students who express an interest in a writing career.
- Tom Williams Scholarship. This scholarship is provided by The Roamin Club, the Rock and Mineral Club of Livonia. This scholarship will assist students who plan to study geology or science. Preference is given to geology majors; however, any science major will be considered.
- Lloyd and Elka Wilkie Endowment Scholarship. This scholarship is available to students who are Livonia residents and have earned a minimum 3.0 grade point average in high school or at Schoolcraft College. Any curriculum will be considered.
- Walter Greer Memorial Scholarship. This scholarship was created in memory of Walter Greer, a Northville resident who was an active Schoolcraft College volunteer and advocate of life-long learning. The scholarship is available in the culinary arts or electronics curriculums.

ship. This scholarship was created in memory of Walter Greer, a Northville resident who was an active Schoolcraft College volunteer and advocate of life-long learning. The scholarship is available in the culinary arts or electronics curriculums.

- Cindy Lee Polley Memorial Endowment Scholarship. Cindy Lee Polley was a Schoolcraft College management student who died as a result of an automobile accident. This scholarship was created in her memory, and was established because of Polley's enthusiasm to finance her college education through winning scholarships. The scholarship will assist in any curriculum.

All scholarships have different criteria listed on the application forms. The application deadline for these scholarships is July 27. To receive an application, contact Schoolcraft's Financial Aid Office at 462-4433. Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six Mile and Seven Mile roads.

Possibility of city/suburban bus system merger still up in the air

Can Keith Butler steer Detroit into a transportation merger with the suburban-based SMART bus service?

Long-frustrated SMART officials are guardedly optimistic about the city council member's plan. "We're just grateful someone has decided to take the lead and get this thing moving," SMART chairperson Matt Wirgau said.

SMART officials have long been frustrated in their attempts to merge with the Detroit Department of Transportation.

There are differences between Butler's plan and that proposed by SMART officials, particularly in the apportionment of delegates to a new, regional governing board.

SMART and Detroit officials have been at odds over whether the city or suburbs should have the largest number of delegates.

Butler's plan would divide delegates 50/50, though there would be an additional board member confirmed by a board majority.

The biggest obstacle, however, could lie with other Detroit council members.

"He's going to have to get a majority before anything can happen," Wirgau said.

At present, merger talks are on hold. Also on hold — at least for now — is SMART's plan for a regional transportation tax.

Permission would have to be granted by the state Legislature before the first-of-its-kind tax could be placed on the ballot.

But Wirgau said advance lobbying isn't occurring.

"We're not going to the Legislature unless the plan is pretty well concrete," he said.

The tax would likely be levied in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

Livingston and St. Clair counties, marginally part of the SMART system today, have indicated they weren't interested in expanded services. Wirgau said.

Butler had indicated he sought a system that included both, as well as Monroe County.

SMART has expressed interest in a sales tax increase, but voters likely won't have the final say this year.

"It's not too late for the fall ballot, but things would have to move awfully quickly for that to happen," Wirgau said. "It's more likely it won't make the ballot until '93."

Geake sets office hours

State Senator Bob Geake (R-Northville) announced his new schedule for district office hours. The new schedule is as follows:

Tuesday, July 7 in Canton Township at the Canton Public Library, 1200 South Canton Center Road.

Thursday, July 16 in Livonia at the Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road.

Thursday, July 23 in Northville at the Northville Public Library, 215 West Main.

Tuesday, July 28 in Plymouth at the Plymouth Public Library, 223 South Main.

The office hours are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Geake said in a press release that he was pleased to once again be able to meet with constituents on a regular basis. "I realize that it is often difficult for people to meet their elected officials in person, so I like to take every opportunity to make myself available to my constituents."

"Last year, when I started my district office hours, the response was very good, and I look forward to another summer of meeting people and hearing their ideas," Geake said.

Don't wait; refrigerate to keep food safe

Food poisoning, not a very pleasant thought! Maybe it sounds better if we call it a food borne illness — no matter, you're sick. Approximately seven million Americans suffer from a food borne illness a year and 85 percent of them could have been avoided if food were handled properly.

According to the Centers for Disease Control, these numbers have been escalating since 1980. At the right temperature, bacteria you can't see, smell or taste can multiply to millions in a few short hours and cause illness.

There are naturally occurring bacteria in the air and water, as well as on plants, animals and people so there is a chance for contamination at any stage of food production. However, the statistics show that improper handling of cooked food, under-cooking and poor sanitation are the leading cause of food poisoning. That means that virtually all food borne illnesses are preventable. Prevention of food poisoning starts at the supermarket.

Rule Number One: Buy cold foods last and get it home fast! Grocery shop and take the food straight home to the refrigerator or freezer. Don't buy foods in poor condition. Make sure when you buy refrigerated food at the store that they are cold to the touch and frozen food is rock-solid. If you live more than 30 minutes from the store bring an ice chest to keep foods cold.

Rule Number Two: When you store food, keep it safe, refrigerate! Check the temperature of your refrigerator with an appliance thermometer. The refrigerator should run 38 degrees-40 degrees F and the freezer should be 0 degrees-10 degrees below F. For the most efficient operation, keep the refrigerator fully loaded but with enough space for the air to circulate. Freeze fresh meat, poultry or fish immediately if you can't use it within a few days. Put packages of raw meat, poultry or fish on a plate before refrigerating so their juices won't drip on other food. These raw juices can contain bacteria.

Rule Number Three: When you prepare food, keep everything clean and thaw in the refrigerator! Since bacteria live all around us, wash your hands with soap and hot water before touching food. Bacteria live on kitchen towels, sponges and cloths so launder them frequently. Always use clean utensils and wash them between cutting different foods. Plastic or glass cutting boards are preferable to wooden ones because wood can harbor bacteria in the grooves.

Wash the lids of canned foods before opening to keep dirt from getting into the food. Also, clean the blade of the can opener after each use. Thaw frozen foods in the refrigerator, where bacteria can't multiply. Bacteria can grow in the outer layers of the food before the inside thaws. Microwave thawing is okay but the food has to be cooked thoroughly and then used right away. Never thaw food on a kitchen counter unless you want to be sick!

Rule Number Four: When you're cooking, cook thoroughly! To kill harmful bacteria, foods need to be cooked thoroughly. Eating raw or partially cooked meat, poultry, fish and eggs is taking a risky chance. Do not partially cook a food, stop and then finish cooking later as bacteria can grow between the cooking steps.

Rule Number Five: When you serve food, never leave it out over two hours! Never leave perishable foods out of the refrigerator over two hours. Bacteria that cause food poisoning grow quickly at room temperature. Discard any cooked or chilled food that has been sitting out. If you are having a party, keep cold foods on ice or in the refrigerator. Hot foods need to be kept hot to be safe, otherwise you'll have served food poisoning to your guests.

Rule Number Six: When you handle leftovers, use small containers for quick cooling! Divide large amounts of leftovers into small, shallow containers. Don't pack the refrigerator, cool air must circulate around the food container to keep them safe. Store leftovers in the refrigerator as soon as possible. Do not let food cool on the counter!

Rule Number Seven: Reheated foods should be brought to a temperature of at least 165 degrees F. Sauces, soups and gravies need to be brought to a boil before serving. Microwave leftovers using a lid or vented plastic wrap for thorough heating. The steam this creates aids in the cooking of the food.

Rule Number Eight: If you have kept the food too long, throw it out! Never taste food that looks and smells strange. The cardinal rule for all food is, when in doubt, throw it out!

Loren Halprin has his future planned out, but for now he's cooking at Leon's in Novi.

The kid can cook

Student proves that experience counts

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

What do you want to be when you grow up? Some kids are still asking themselves that question even after they've graduated college.

Loren Halprin, on the other hand, is barely graduated from Novi High School, but he's already got his career mapped out.

"In a few years, I know I'll be working somewhere cooking," he said. "I'll be working my way up the ladder. I hope eventually to become a certified Master Chef, but that's a long, long way down the road."

Indeed, Halprin is well on his way. He already has about two and a half years of experience working at Soup and Salad and Leon's in Novi. But more importantly, he's got over seven years of experience cooking for himself at home.

He's parlayed his experience into competitive cooking as well, recently winning the state's top honor in competition for a scholarship to a culinary school in Rhode Island.

The contest was organized by Johnson and Wales University in conjunction with the American Cancer Society, which offered contest guidelines. Halprin won in the Healthful Family Dinner category, which was judged on taste, cost effectiveness, nutritional value, originality and appearance.

Halprin's entry of Chicken with Greek Pasta was judged by a panel of nationally recognized food professionals and a representative from the Cancer Society.

For Halprin, cooking came out of necessity. It was only recently that it turned into something creative.

"I just always did it at home," he said. "My mom used to work all day, so rather than eat my own hand, I would cook."

"It's just something I like doing. It's always different. You never get the same recipe twice."

Admittedly, Halprin says his culinary penchant doesn't fit the mold of the typical high schooler. To his schoolmates, Halprin was the guy who liked to play football and hang out with friends, and lead up his course schedule with TV and radio classes.

"A lot of people are surprised and kind of shocked," he said. "Most of them figured I would go into radio or TV."

To his closest friends, though, he's a perennial source of a good meal.

"My buddy comes over and just says, 'Cook for me,'" said Halprin.

Whether for family or friends, dinner is usually more inspiration than perspiration when Halprin runs the show.

"I usually scour through the refrigerator and whatever I find becomes dinner," he said. "Sometimes it ends up Domino's, though."

Despite his stocky stature, Halprin doesn't commandeer the kitchen every night, though.

"My mom makes a killer beef stroganoff," said Halprin, who also takes some cues from restaurants he visits. "I like a good Lelli's filet. I can't afford that too often, though."

When the contest entry came around, it took a little parental prodding to get the soft-spoken Halprin to enter.

"Somebody, somewhere got me on the list, and they mailed me the entry," he said. "My mom said 'try something.' I had this dish, and I'd been making it for some time. So I played around with it and got it just right. When I got something that I thought was good enough, I sent it in."

Halprin's entry was named a state winner. The winning entry from each of the 50 states earned $1,000 toward tuition at Johnson and Wales, and was invited to a final cookoff at the school.

As he was not planning to attend Johnson and Wales, Halprin chose not to compete in the cookoff. The cookoff winner received a full four-year scholarship to the school, and runner-up prizes of $5,000, $4,000 and $2,500 were awarded.

Halprin knows he's picked a winner in Schoolcraft, though.

"It's one of the top cooking schools in the country," he said. There's only two or three ahead of them. Schoolcraft has four certified master chefs, and (Johnson and Wales) only had two, so I can't go wrong there. And financially, Schoolcraft is wonderful."

CHICKEN WITH GREEK PASTA

- 4 5-ounce boneless and skinless chicken breasts
- 2 tablespoons crushed garlic or 2 cloves garlic crushed
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 8 ounces crumbled feta cheese
- 1/2 cup minced onions
- 1/2 cup chopped scallions
- 1/2 cup diced fresh tomatoes
- 1/2 cup diced green pepper
- 1 teaspoon white pepper
- 1 teaspoon red hot
- 1/2 teaspoons salt, optional
- 16 ounces plain yogurt
- 4 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
- 16 ounces cooked noodles medium width
- 4 tablespoons parsley

Cut chicken into strips. Heat oil and garlic. Add chicken and cook until tender. Cook noodles and drain.

Mix feta cheese, onions, scallions, tomatoes, green pepper, white pepper, red hot and salt in hot skillet sprayed with non-stick oil, heat until cheese starts to melt, add yogurt and cook until mixture cooks down.

Put noodles on plate, spoon mixture over it and arrange chicken on top, sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and parsley.

"My mom said 'try something.' I had this dish, and I'd been making it for some time.

How can you keep fish down on the farm?

be added, "and on that farm he had some fish." Aquaculture, the farming of fish and shellfish in a controlled environment, is an

We are all familiar with the nursery song of Old McDonald and his farm. All of the traditional farmyard animals were included — chicken, cows, pigs, and sheep.

Today's age requires another verse to be added, "and on that farm he had some fish." Aquaculture, the farming of fish and shellfish in a controlled environment, is an industry on the rise. In fact, it's a good investment, as it is growing by leaps and bounds.

Eleven percent of total seafood consumption is a direct result of aquaculture. By 1995, 30 billion pounds will be produced by fish farmers. Developed initially for replenishing our streams and rivers with endangered species, aquaculture is a commercial spitball.

Catfish, trout, salmon, and shrimp are the principle species grown in the U.S. The popularity of catfish is due to aquaculture. Improved availability, consistent flavor and a guaranteed quality product are all factors.

Twenty-five to 30 percent of all shrimp is farm raised. This is a true help in some elimination of price fluctuations. Speculation as to supply or availability of sizes is diminished. Lesser-known species now farmed include carp, sturgeon, hybrid striped bass, most shellfish and tilapia, a personal favorite.

Farming starts by "stripping," or removing the eggs from selected breeder fish and then fertilizing them in controlled hatcheries. The hatched eggs are called "fry" and fed flake food. At approximately 2 ounces in weight they are moved to different tanks or ponds and are referred to as "fingerlings."

They are then raised to maturity by a variety of methods depending on the species.

Some are easier to raise than others, but some similarities exist.

All are fed specialized feeds, protected from disease and maintained in water that is stabilized throughout their life cycles. We once had beautiful pink-fleshed trout that had been fed tomatoes. Many of the farms contract their crops out for the year, much like the land farming of earlier days.

So, who are these fish farmers? Virtually a new generation. This is not a self-taught art, but a very exacting and scientific profession. Most are highly trained marine biologists. They are the primary reason that U.S. aquaculture production has gone from zero percent of the nation's seafood supply in 1976 to over 12 percent today.

However, the majority of aquaculture production takes place outside of the United States. As good as this all sounds, aquaculture is not without its problems. The captive fish are prime targets for natural prey and because of their confinement are sitting ducks.

Also, as with humans, the denser the population the more serious the spread of diseases. Even though the atmosphere is designed to be disease free, this is not always the case. And, because of the loose controls, unscrupulous operators may be using additives in the feed. As time goes on these obstacles will work themselves out and supplies become closer to demand.

Set microwaves on stun with this new book

Tired of macaroni with cheese and tuna casserole? Taste buds longing for more sophisticated fare?

Home-cooked gourmet cuisine can be a reality for everyone, and you don't need a lot of fancy equipment, either.

The same microwave that heated up that Wednesday-Night Surprise can turn out exciting dishes like Stuffed Calamari, Goat Cheese Crostons, Chicken Legs with Garlic Cream, Szechuan Green Beans and Nut Cake with Hazelnut Cream.

How? Set your microwave on "stun" and get yourself a copy of Barbara Kafka's "Microwave Gourmet."

The award-winning author is a monthly columnist for The New York Times, Gourmet, and Family Circle, and a contributing columnist to Vogue, Food & Wine, The New York Times Magazine and Bon Appetit.

Noted for her culinary originality using more "conventional" cooking methods, Kafka's microwave recipes are just as unique. From first courses to desserts, you'll find surprising and tantalizing ideas like Moroccan Stuffed, Guinea Hen Livers and Mushrooms with Wild Rice, Risotto with Radicchio and Red Vermouth, and Steamed Papaya Pudding.

First published in 1987, this popular book is now available in inexpensive paperback form. The 60 recipes include not only gourmet fancies but also some more homely fare, like Old-Fashioned Meatloaf and even gefilte fish. You'll also find helpful tips on preparing quick microwaved meals for dieters and how to orchestrate multicourse meals with one microwave oven.

The front of the book provides guidelines on microwave ovens and basic cooking methods, while the "Dictionary of Foods and Techniques" in the back offers information on hundreds of foods.

To ensure accuracy, Kafka developed and tested all recipes using 3 different ovens. When possible, she supplies timings for different sizes and powers of ovens. Many recipes give alternate instructions and times so you can vary the same recipe to serve one or two, four, or six or more (See Swordfish with Tomato and Basil, below).

And Kafka offers lots of variations, so you can play with the basic idea and easily alter it to suit your own tastes.

Most of us know by now that our microwaves can do a lot more than simply heat up a cup of cold coffee or bake a quick potato. But even if you're a seasoned microwaver, you might be surprised to find yourself turning out Cold Curried Tomato Soup with Yogurt, Harlequin of Fish Medallions with Watercress Sauce, Eggs in Red Wine or Pheasant with Currant Cream.

Microwaving will never be the same.

Today's recipes come from "Microwave Gourmet" by Barbara Kafka; Avon Books; paperback $5.95.

(Recipes in this column are tested in 650- to 700-watt microwave ovens.)

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK

"Black or white pepper should be used in tiny quantities. It develops a terrific wallop in microwave cooking (though it does not get bitter as it does with prolonged stovetop cooking). If you are hesitant about controlling the punch of pepper, do not add it until the end of the cooking time, or until the food comes out of the oven."

— Barbara Kafka, from "Microwave Gourmet."

SAUSAGE AND PEPPERS

2 pounds fresh hot Italian sausage links, cut into 2-inch lengths
 1/2 pound onion, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch cubes
 1 green bell pepper, stemmed, seeded, de-ribbed and cut into 2-inch chunks
 1 red bell pepper, stemmed, seeded, de-ribbed, and cut into 2-inch chunks
 1/2 cup (tightly packed) fresh basil leaves
 1/2 cup store-bought marinara sauce
 Kosher salt

Yields 3 to 4 servings.
 Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.
 Cooking time: 17 minutes.
 Oven setting: High (100 percent power).
 Place sausage in 11x8x2-inch oval dish and cover loosely with paper toweling. Microwave for 10 minutes, stirring twice.
 Remove from oven. Uncover, drain well and discard fat.

Add remaining ingredients except salt. Stir to coat. Cover tightly with microwave plastic wrap. Microwave for 7 minutes.

Remove from oven. Uncover and sprinkle with salt. Serve with mashed potatoes or pasta, or on Italian bread.

RADICCHIO GRATIN

1 pound radicchio, well rinsed
 1 teaspoon balsamic vinegar
 1 teaspoon kosher salt
 2 tablespoons unsalted butter
 3 egg yolks
 1/2 cup heavy cream
 Freshly ground black pepper
 2 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Yields 4 to 6 servings.
 Preparation time: 15 minutes.
 Cooking time: 19 minutes (plus 15 minutes standing time).
 Oven setting: High (100 percent power).
 Place radicchio in microwave-safe plastic bag and close tight. Microwave for 5 minutes.
 Remove from oven. Unwrap and remove and discard cores. Place rest in workbowl of food processor and process until smooth. Add remaining ingredients except cheese. Process until well combined.
 Place mixture in 8-inch square microwave-safe dish. Sprinkle with cheese. Microwave, uncovered, for 14 minutes.

Remove from oven. Cover with plate and let stand for 15 minutes. Serve warm.

SWORDFISH WITH TOMATO AND BASIL

3 large slices ripe tomato
 4 large fresh basil leaves
 1/4 pound swordfish steak (1 inch thick)
 1/2 teaspoon olive oil
 1/2 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
 Kosher salt
 Freshly ground black pepper

Yields 2 servings.
 To serve 3 to 4: Double all ingredients. Cook fish in 11x8x2-inch dish for 5 minutes and 30 seconds.
 To serve 6 to 8: Multiply all ingredient quantities by 4. Cook fish in 14x11x2-inch dish for 9 minutes.
 Preparation time: 10 minutes.
 Cooking time: 4 minutes (plus 2 minutes standing time).
 Oven setting: High (100 percent power).
 Arrange tomato slices in single layer on large dinner plate. Place 2 basil leaves on top. Center swordfish over tomatoes. Add oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Place remaining basil leaves on top of fish. Cover tightly with microwave plastic wrap. Microwave 4 minutes.
 Remove from oven. Pierce plastic with top of sharp knife and let stand, covered, for 2 minutes. Uncover and serve hot.

Vodka refreshes summer months

By CAROL CUTLER
 Copley News Service

On June 21, the North Pole was tilted at just a bit more than 23 degrees toward the sun.

One might well ask, "What's so special about that fascinating bit of information?"

Well, with that tilt came the summer solstice and the longest day of the year. This is when the famed White Nights occur in Scandinavia, Leningrad and other severely northern areas.

For cities across the United States, the week or so before and after June 21 brings a soft twilight that stretches and stretches into the evening, effectively forestalling nightfall. Throughout history various cultures have made this an occasion for celebration, an eminently sensible idea.

Summertime entertaining is easy entertaining. Dress is less formal, food is lighter and less fussy, and moods are enlivened by the extra daylight. All these factors point to a good reason to have a dinner party one of these longest days, to get the summer spirit rolling.

The producers of Poland's most famous vodka, Wyborowa (vee-ba-rova) have long seen their prestigious drink highlighted at receptions and have a number of ideas to help create a successful summertime party.

There are no hard-and-fast rules when it comes to the party invitation. A telephone call will do for a small group. Keep the guest list to a comfortable number for you and your space. As a general rule, dinner qualifies as a "party" with at least six guests—but no more than 24. A buffet works well with up to 30 guests.

This is the time of the year that no-cook foods are much appreciated by guests as well as the cook. Chilled gazpacho is a perfect beginning. The easy-to-do recipe below is only better for having been prepared the day before.

Salads come into their own at this time of the year.

Smoked salmon on rounds of pumpernickel or rye bread is a perfect pairing with ice-cold glasses of vodka.

Fresh fruit salad or sorbets with crisp cookies provide the sweet and effortless finale.

Even the most casual summer dinner party gains a touch of elegance with extra small touches. Use pretty cloth napkins secured with napkin rings or perky ribbons. Using real plates, instead of paper or plastic, elevates the style of your dinner. And remember, music always gives an extra lift to any party.

A stunning and cool centerpiece is easily created with a milk carton or coffee can filled with water and fresh garden blooms or petals. Next immerse the Wyborowa Vodka bottle and freeze until solid.

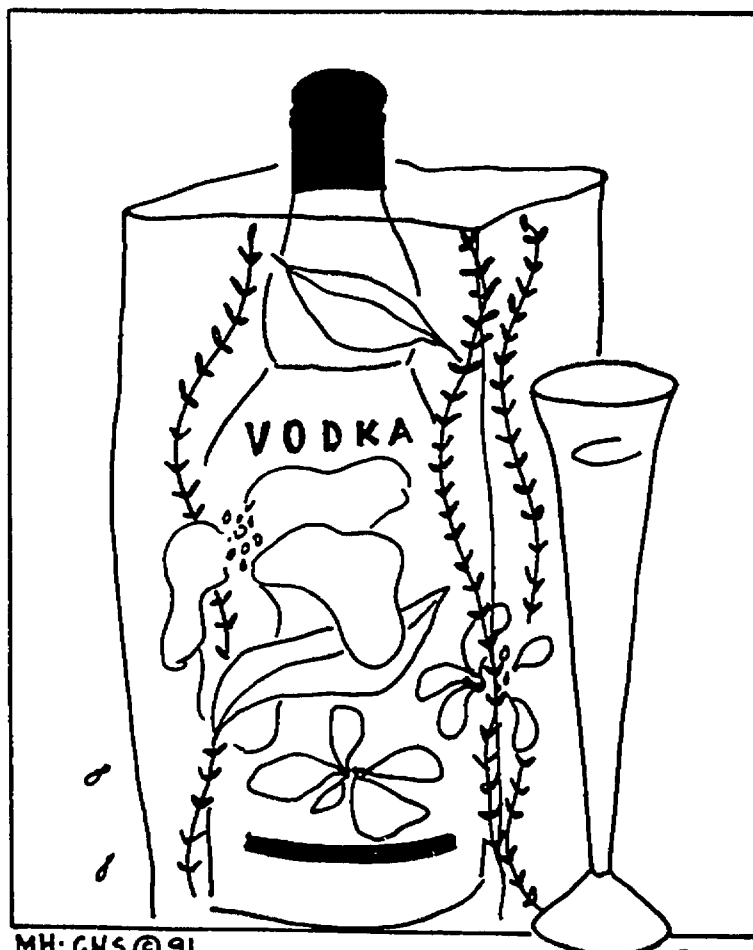

Hint: before beginning, clear space in the freezer for the stand-up bottle.

To remove the container, run lukewarm water around the outside. Keep the ice sculpture centerpiece in a pretty crystal bowl to catch any water as it melts. Just make sure it's within easy reach.

Because it is served refreshingly well chilled, and thanks to its crisp, clean taste, vodka's popularity has been growing, despite rather flat liquor sales in the late 1980s. Impressive choices of premium vodkas are offered at New York's glamorous Four Seasons restaurant and folksy Russian Tea Room. Washington's new 701 restaurant has a lineup of 18 vodkas at its popular caviar bar.

Connoisseurs have been admirers of vodka for quite a long time. No less a bon vivant than Pablo Picasso commented, "The three most astonishing things in the past half century were the blues, cubism and Polish vodka."

Picasso's painting was brilliant, but his sense of history was a little murky. Vodka was first made in Poland as far back as the 10th century, when King Boleslaus I made vodka drinking a royal custom. The traditional salute is Na Zdrowie! (nah-stro-vyeh): To your health! And to a long, happy summer.

GAZPACHO

4 cups ripe tomatoes, about 8 large tomatoes
 1 1/2 cups green peppers
 1 1/2 cups peeled and seeded cucumbers
 2 cups beef broth
 1 or 2 garlic cloves, chopped
 1/2 cup lemon juice
 1/2 cup olive oil
 Salt and pepper

Yields 8 to 10 servings.
 Cut all vegetables into chunks. Pour 1 cup of beef broth into blender or food processor, add half the vegetables and all the garlic. Process to thick puree and pour into deep bowl.

Repeat process with other cup of broth, lemon juice, oil and remaining vegetables; puree. Add to bowl and stir in salt and pepper to taste. Let mixture stand for at least 3 hours so flavors will blend well.

Check seasonings, remembering that once chilled the pungency of flavors is slightly reduced. Chill very well.

When serving, offer garnishes such as finely chopped cucumber, green peppers and chives. Tiny crostons are also traditional.

Carol Cutler is the award-winning author of eight cookbooks, including "Catch of the Day."

Don't mock this food of the future

The era of fake, mock, and phony foods has arrived. Depending on your point of view, this can be a good or a very bad situation for nutrition in the future.

The vision of food in the future may include hot dogs that contain all the nutrients you need, fish that tastes like steak, tomatoes that stay ripe for weeks and edible packages — plus dinner that cooks in the car on the drive home.

Even the food futurists have a difficult time envisioning food and nutrition issues of the year 2010. But here are some things happening now.

Meat analogues made from vegetable sources such as tofu, nuts, seeds, brown rice and other grains are making their mark in the supermarket.

Because the number of dieters, non-meat eaters and those with health risks has grown, these foods have regained popularity. These tend to be lower in protein than the red-meat equivalent, but the fat calories are lower too.

There are some problems with vegetable substitutes because they do not contain all the amino acids. Amino acids are essential for building muscle and for keeping the blood, brain and organs healthy. The iron is not absorbed as easily by the body when it comes from vegetable sources.

Not all meat substitutes are diet food. Some of counterfeit varieties can contain as many as 380 calories, compared to 231 in a real three-ounce patty. The fat in analogues are mostly unsaturated, so they are good for the heart, but not the waistline.

Since some analogues are also high in sodium, eliminate salt during preparation. Read the labels very carefully to determine fat, calories and nutrition.

A fake food of the future is Olestra, manufactured by Procter & Gamble. It is a sucrose polyester that is a fat substitute which cannot be digested or absorbed. It passes through the body, contributing no calories, no cholesterol and no fat.

The hope is that it will replace conventional fats in everything from home-baked foods to fast foods to corn chips. Procter & Gamble says its product looks, tastes, feels and behaves like fat. Olestra is being developed for use in hot foods as well as in cold and is almost a carbon copy of regular fat.

The NutraSweet Company has already introduced Simplese, an "all natural fat" substitute. Simplese is made from egg whites and milk protein blended and heated to make it feel like a creamy liquid with the texture of fat.

The drawback to the product is that it cannot be heated so will only be found in refrigerator foods.

Fat contributes nine calories per gram, so fat substitution can significantly reduce the calories in food products. These fat substitutes are not magic potions that melt pounds away.

Care will still have to be taken to cut calories. There have been many delays in getting FDA approval, but eventually all fat substitutes will find their ways into foods we purchase.

Another fake food just new to the list is fluffy cellulose, a noncaloric replacement for flour. It is made from sugar-beet pulp or other agricultural byproducts and can replace up to half the flour in a cake or bread recipe.

Tomatoes, cucumbers and melons are not fake, mock or phony foods, but new technology has changed them. Biotech tomatoes, cucumbers and melons that feature controlled ripening will probably be available in the next three to five years.

These will be able to be picked at the peak of ripeness and will stay firm for three weeks or more. Biotech will make some crops more resistant to pests and are now being engineered to have improved nutritional quality.

Major changes in food packaging are also on the horizon. In the future, you will be able to buy fresh meat that keeps for two weeks when refrigerated.

Oxygen in the package would be replaced with an inert gas or the sous vide technique. This is when uncooked food is packed in a vacuum bag, then cooked and chilled. Packaging of the future will actually preserve food so it won't need added preservatives.

Some packages will have a natural, ingestible cover, which is an interesting way of getting rid of waste.

Are you ready for the foods of the future? Fake, mock or phony, what will they think of next?

Add some whole grain to your diet

If you are interested in new ideas and tips for stretching your food dollars or are looking for ways to add more whole grains to your family's meals, take a look at a new series of brochures titled, Healthy Dialogue from the Quaker Oats Company.

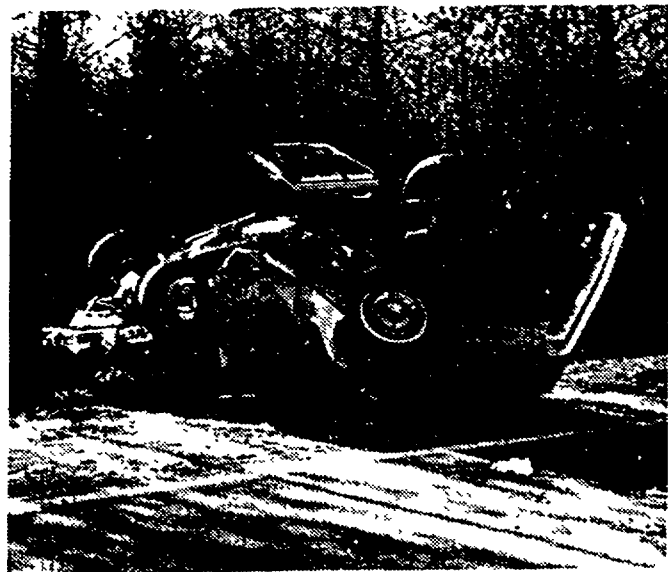

The series, which features five brochures on topics that range from how to use the new Food Guide Pyramid in meal planning to cleaning up the environment, was created to address questions that are on consumer's minds.

The series includes, Balancing Meals and Money, (Dept. HD-1); Go With The Grain, (Dept. HD-2); It All Adds Up — the role of food ingredients, (Dept. HD-3); Taking Out the Trash for Good, (Dept. HD-4); and Debugging the System — Preventing Pests from Field to Pantry, (Dept. HD-5).

For a free copy of any of the brochures, or a complete set, send your name and address to Healthy Dialogue, Dept. HD (brochure number or HD-A for entire set), 1147 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, IL 60607.

A THOUGHT FOR EVERYONE WHO RESENTS SITTING AT A DESK EIGHT HOURS A DAY.

Neuromuscular disease. It's a large group of disorders that weaken muscles and nerves — devastating thousands of Americans each year.

When neuromuscular disease strikes, many muscle functions are lost. So writers can't write. Musicians can't play. Teenagers can't dance. Babies can't cry. Many patients lose the ability to walk. And once they're in wheelchairs, they'll never get out.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is striving to cure 40 neuromuscular disorders, including ALS ("Lou Gehrig's disease") and myasthenia gravis. MDA maintains some 230 clinics around the country to help people with muscle diseases. And MDA provides orthopedic equipment and other aids for daily living, all free of charge to patients and their families.

You can help MDA fight neuromuscular disease by sending a tax-deductible contribution today. The Association receives no government grants or patient fees, so its work is funded entirely by private donations.

Next time you think you've been sitting too long, sit one more minute and write a check. You'll be helping thousands of patients stand up to their disease.

MDA

Muscular Dystrophy Association, Jerry Lewis, National Chairman

To make a donation or request to MDA, or for more information on MDA and ALS, write to Muscular Dystrophy Association, 810 Seventh Avenue, New York, NY 10019. Or contact your local MDA office.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

Be wise in matters of finance. There are changes for the better in the works for you. Keep an open mind and make the right choices.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)

Find a way to relieve stress and rid yourself of anxiety. Negativity will surely do harm to your mind and body. Take a day to pamper yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)

It's time for the workaholic Virgo to take a long, much-needed rest. It seems you can't please anyone lately, least of all yourself. Review your priorities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

Those around you may be taking advantage of a specific situation. Someone is trying to get your attention; show you care.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)

The road is rocky and it's not going to get any easier for a while. Rely on strength to get you through whatever might come your way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)

A new friend may not be all he or she seems to be. Don't let a nagging health problem go unchecked. Your lagging spirit will be uplifted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)

Don't let confusion get in the way of finding out the truth about a certain situation. Be tactful, especially when dealing with the elderly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

All is not lost. You have a lot more going for you than you might realize. If you have done something wrong, you should come forward and confess.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)

A disagreement with someone close to you could put your nerves on edge. This period of unease will soon pass and your spirit will be renewed.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

Make your feelings known to those around you. You may surprise a few people with your ingenious ideas concerning a certain project.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Try to stay out of trouble. You probably feel mad at the world, so take a few hours to cool down and see what is good in your life.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

An unexpected turn of luck is headed your way. The odds could definitely be in your favor. Don't overindulge in food or liquor.

Cable coverage swells, networks cut back

By Steven Alan McGaw

Every four years, competitors from around the world gather to test themselves against each other. Politics and nationalism are inextricable from the event, but the core of the thing, the competition, is relatively pure. The contests are called the Olympics, they're in Barcelona this summer and the world will surely watch with excitement and admiration.

On the same schedule, two separate groups, numbering about 4,000 each, meet in major American cities to test their endurance and shove each other on the floor of a large arena. Politics is the core of the thing, but many windy exhortations are made about the "national interest" and the future of life as we know it. Little about the event is perceived as pure. These two gatherings are the Democratic and Republican National Conventions, and they occur, respectively in New York and Houston. The opportunity exists for the nation to watch, with a likely mixture of curiosity, confusion and ennui.

The Democratic National Convention, the next stepping stone toward the 1992 presidential election, begins on Monday, July 13, in New York City. Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton is expected to be officially ratified as his party's presidential nominee, but there are many other questions waiting to be answered.

"No. 1 is definitely, 'who's going to be the vice presidential candidate?'" says Jacquelynne Floyd, a journalist assigned to cover the convention for "The Dallas Morning News." Other issues, Floyd says, include outlining a comprehensible economic plan, how the campaign will appeal to women and younger voters ("a crucial component") and uniting the sometimes-fractious Democratic party itself.

Asked who the key personalities of this convention are likely to be, Floyd mentions Mario Cuomo, Jesse Jackson, and California senatorial hopefuls Diane Feinstein and Barbara Boxer. "But it's hard to say," the journalist admits, adding, "every convention seems to create one new star, like Ann Richards in '88," referring to the now-Texas governor's hilarious "Poor George" speech.

In all, about 15,000 media persons will attend the convention, but television viewers used to watching the Big Three networks may be surprised at the paucity of prime-time coverage. NBC will air one-hour summary of convention activity each night, the rest of the time pooling its resources with those of PBS. The result is an impressive team in the broadcast booth, consisting of Robert MacNeil, Jim Lehrer and Tom Brokaw. While the peacock network is apparently downsizing its coverage, rivals CBS and ABC offer even less: one hour of prime-time coverage nightly, with no second broadcast alternative. All three are sure to collect armloads of sound-bites for use in their nightly news shows.

Why the cutbacks? "Politics now is viewed as a bitter medicine," says Floyd. "In the '60s, it was our civic duty. The networks aren't buying that anymore, there are too many other options. If people don't want to swallow the medicine, they'll go somewhere else."

"Somewhere else" could, however, be cable. CNN, under a yearlong banner of "Democracy in Action," promises extensive reporting of the conventions and all election-related activities. Information junkies will naturally be riveted to C-SPAN's customary gavel-to-gasp coverage.

"We offer our viewers a seat in the convention hall itself," says Steven Scully, C-SPAN's political editor.

CNBC will have representatives at both conventions, as well as its weekly series, "Money Politics: Campaign '92." The Monitor Channel will produce a series of "American Issues '92" specials in association with Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government.

Lifetime calls its "Women and Politics: A Lifetime Challenge" an "election year public awareness program" about issues of particular concern to women. American Movie Classics is busily promoting voter registration through on-air announcements. Viewers in search of the lighter side can tune in "Indecision '92" on Comedy Central.

One important new player in the field of election coverage is MTV. With its highly touted "Choose or Lose" campaign headed by reporter Tabitha Soren, the music video network has embarked on a vigorous project to bring the election to younger voters. Becky Cain, national president of the League of Women Voters, praises the effort. "Young people need to become more involved. They're the most under-represented group of voters," Cain says.

Floyd agrees, adding, "They've not been very good about voting, but maybe part of the reason is that they don't feel like anybody is speaking to them."

BITS AND PIECES

Downs proves a good student; PBS upholds its traditions

That would look nice in the rumpus room. Longtime television personality Hugh Downs recently received a special certificate in geriatric education from New York's Mount Sinai School of Medicine. The co-host of ABC News' 20/20 is the only non-physician ever to complete the course.

Downs, who holds a post-Master's degree in social gerontology from Hunter College, attended various seminars and patient conferences in addition to the five-day course.

"I've been interested in gerontology since I was 30," Downs says, "when I did a television program on longevity, and I'm delighted about getting this certificate. My interest in geriatric medicine is sharpened by the fact that the more time goes by, the closer I move to becoming my own laboratory."

They keep making those TV movies. CBS has cast Melissa Gilbert-Brinkman as an amnesiac au pair girl in the psychological thriller With a Vengeance. Michael Gross and Jack Scalia co-star. Produced by CBS yet intended to air on Showtime is Double Jeopardy, an upcoming two-hour drama starring Bruce Boxleitner, Rachel Ward, Kim Cattrall and Sally Kirkland.

Hugh Downs

PBS reaffirmed its role as the leading producer of diverse, non-commercial programming by committing almost $89.9 million to support 20 of its trademark series for future seasons starting in the fall of 1993. PBS executive Jennifer Lawson says that "continued support for our signature programming, such as Sesame Street, The MacNeil/Lehrer Newshour, Nova and Great Performances, ensures that PBS will uphold its tradition of delivering quality television to the whole family, whether at home or in the classroom."

On Friday's edition of Entertainment Tonight, Crystal Gayle discusses the making of her new album.

TIME OUT

ABC presents 'Thorpe Awards'

By Jeff Thompson

Bob Saget, star of Full House and America's Funniest Home Videos, will serve as host Monday, July 6, when ABC presents the first Jim Thorpe Pro Sports Awards.

Presenting the awards for achievement in football, baseball, basketball, boxing, hockey, auto racing and other pro sports are Hollywood stars and sports celebrities including Dyan Cannon, Leeza Gibbons, Wilt Chamberlain and Bo Jackson.

The awards fall into 10 categories, with special tributes for the recipients of the Lifetime Achievement, Individual Achievement and Thorpe Legacy awards.

Judging is done by a "blue-ribbon panel" of sports heroes and distinguished sports journalists. The combination of athletes and journalists on the judging panel is intended to ensure the credibility of the awards.

Named for Jim Thorpe, the awards honor the memory of the man widely considered the best all-around athlete of the first half of the 20th century. Thorpe (1888-1953) was an American Indian who endured bigotry in the sports world long before Jackie Robinson's time. Thorpe is one of only two athletes ever inducted into four sports halls of fame, but he is most widely remembered for having been stripped of two Olympic medals after it was revealed that he played a season of semi-pro baseball in exchange for room and board.

Reader defends sex on soaps

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I recently read your response to a letter from a Days fan. The fan's name was John Haskins and he was complaining about the sex scenes in soaps.

I'm sorry, but sex sells and it helps the ratings. And it's only a show on television. I wish I could be as naive as Haskins about what goes on in the world, but this stuff happens in real life here in my hometown. —Sharon Cooper, Morehead, Ky.

Dear Reader: Thanks for your comment.

Dear Candace: I love to watch Jack (Matthew Ashford) and Jennifer (Melissa Reeves) on Days of Our Lives. I heard that Reeves is pregnant and also that Ashford's wife is pregnant. What I want to know is if they are the same person in real life; are Reeves and Ashford married to each other? —Tracy K., N.M.

Dear Reader: I can see where you might be a little confused. Reeves is pregnant, but she is married to Scott Reeves (Ryan, The Young and the Restless). Their baby was due in June. On the show, Jennifer won't actually have her baby until September.

Dear Candace: I've watched As the World Turns since it began 35 years ago. I've never missed an episode. But lately I've been upset about how bad the show has become. I've always enjoyed the scenes with Emma on the farm. It all seemed so real and cozy. It was the best part of the show. I couldn't believe it when Cal went to bed with that crazy Lucinda a while back. I liked the show because it always seemed to have morals, unlike some of the others. But now it is just as bad as the rest of them. I'm 88 years old and I want to see more of the wholesome scenes with Emma on the farm. —Isabelle Pfeiffer, Mauston, Wis.

Dear Reader: What an incredible viewing record! Thank you for your comment.

Dear Candace: I'm writing to ask if Tad Martin is returning to All My Children. We miss him. —Elinor Wells, New Braunfels, Texas.

Dear Reader: I wouldn't be surprised to see Michael Knight (Tad) show up in Pine Valley some day soon. For the moment, Knight is busy planning his wedding to actress Catherine Hickland.

LET'S TALK

Abby on 'Homefront'; Clara Bow remembered

By Taylor Michaels

Q: My husband and I love the ABC show Homefront. Recently, my mother told me she read in another column, Dear Abby, that the show is being canceled. Please tell me it's not true! If it is, why? I know it's very popular in our area. —J. Rucinski, Esmond, Ill.

A: It's refreshing to know that Abby is branching out. Once satisfied with dispensing advice on party etiquette, she must have realized life's true happiness comes from television criticism. However, the plain truth is that Homefront has not been canceled and is only on summer hiatus while new episodes are being developed for the fall, when it will move to Thursday nights. Homefront was a successful show for ABC this year in their prime-time Tuesday lineup.

Q: I work in a retirement home for merchant marines. A resident there was once the shipmate of (actor) Cliff Robertson during World War II. When Ralph Edwards recalled Mr. Robertson's life on This Is Your Life in 1971, this man was invited to participate. He is so proud of that experience. He is not in good health. Could you tell me where to write to Cliff Robertson, in hopes he might consent to write this man? —Dee Bryson, Newport, N.C.

A: You may write to Robertson in care of his agent at ICM, 8899 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90048.

Q: I've been trying to recall the name of a western I saw on TV with Robert Preston. He and his family were traveling in a covered wagon and Preston kept rattlesnakes in a bag. Can you help? —Jessie Snyder, Fort Worth, Texas.

A: The Chisholms first aired on CBS as a miniseries in 1979. The story of a family's arduous journey westward co-starred Rosemary Harris and Ben Murphy. It proved so popular that the network brought it back as a series the next year. But when Preston's character passed away, so did the series.

Q: Can you tell me what Roy Rogers' real name is? I saw it on TV but can't remember what it was. It's the name of a wild animal but I can't think of which one. —Jennie Reese, Halfway, Mo.

A: A leopard can't change its spots, but Leonard Slye can and did change his name to Roy Rogers.

Q: I'm interested in knowing what happened to Clara Bow and her husband, Rex Bell. I'm an oldie, and she was my favorite — she was so pretty. I know she made Hoopla, The Fleet's In, Dangerous Curves, Wings and a couple of others. —M. Semenak, Ironwood, Mich.

They'll be back: Homefront's Harry O'Reilly, Sammi Davis-Voss

A: Clara Bow passed away in 1965, three years after husband Rex Bell. Bow's film career was a bittersweet testament to the end of an era, where many silent-film stars were lost in the shuffle to movies with sound.

The daughter of an impoverished Coney Island waiter, Bow won a bit part in a movie through a fan-magazine contest in 1921 when she was 16, and it launched her screen career. Her most famous role was in 1927's It. "It" was what we now call sex appeal, and Bow had it. She became a symbol of the flapper era and was known as the "It Girl." (The animated vamp Betty Boop was supposedly modeled after Bow.) But her sexuality fell out of favor with the public in the more conservative Depression era, and romantic scandals combined with her physical and mental fragility to bring her career to an end shortly after the advent of talkies. A meager comeback attempt failed, and Bow finally retired in 1933 after Hoopla, the last of her 55 films. Bow spent much of the next three decades in sanatoriums.

After eloping with Bow in 1931, Rex Bell's career as a Western star slowed but didn't end until 1961 with a bit part in The Misfits, which starred Clark Gable and Marilyn Monroe. Bell was elected lieutenant governor of Nevada in 1954 and ran unsuccessfully for governor in 1958.
