

New area code comes to city, divides township

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Northville Township will be divided by area codes in two years, and everyone with a Northville phone exchange will be in the new one.

But residents will be able to call one another without dialing 1-313 or 1-810, Michigan Bell announced Tuesday.

The new 810 area code will cover all of Oakland County — as well as Macomb, Genesee, Lapeer, St. Clair and Sanilac counties — beginning August 10, 1994.

This also encompasses the City of Northville and most of the township.

But a small segment of the township — the portions within the Plymouth 420 exchange — will stay in the 313 area code, along with almost all of Wayne and Washtenaw counties, Monroe County and small sections of Jackson and Lenawee counties.

Both Northville Township and Livonia will be in similar situations. While there will be two area codes in operation in both communities, residents will only have to dial a seven-digit telephone number within their own municipality, Michigan Bell Public Relations Director Marcia Buhl said.

Outsiders will have to learn which part of Northville is 810 and which is 313.

The proposal to keep these two communities intact by dialing patterns was put forth by Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett.

Along with Oakland and the other counties, the 810 area code will apply to small sections of Saginaw, Shiawassee and Livingston counties.

The change in codes will not impact rates, the company indicates.

The latest decision was good news for Novi residents, since Novi residents living within the Northville telephone exchange will join their neighbors in the Walled Lake and Farmington exchanges in the switch to a new area code.

Earlier, a citizens' advisory committee evaluating the split recommended that the Northville exchange portion of Novi remain within the 313 area code and that the remainder of the city join most of Oakland County in the new one.

"As was pointed out to us, it makes more sense when all the folks were in Oakland County," Buhl said.

Joe O'Connor, chair of the citizens committee and president of Consumer Market Analysis, said that the original plan looked good — on paper.

"Residents pointed out — quite rightly — that having to dial an area code to complete a local call within their own communities was an unnecessary burden," he said.

The new plan was proposed by the citizens committee and endorsed by Michigan Bell.

Bell plans a massive public education campaign to get the word out, Buhl said. This includes six months of allowing customers to make mistakes in dialing area codes.

"We'll sort of be in a permissive state. We'll let you know you're not dialing properly, but we'll let your call go through," she said.

Adding the new area code will create three million new telephone numbers. Numbers within 313 have been gobbled up by population growth and new technology such as cellular phones and facsimile machines, Bell says.

Available new numbers in both 810 and 313 are not expected to be exhausted for the next 20 years.

The metropolitan Detroit area joins 25 other cities nationwide which have been divided by area code, including New York, Chicago and Atlanta.

For further information, contact Michigan Bell at 1-800-831-8989.

Sprouting overnight

No, not toadstools springing up as a result of the recent rainstorms. They're campaign signs, planted by supporters of candidates in the upcoming Aug. 4 primary election in the Northville community. They appear to thrive best on busy street corners, and they apparently like to grow in clusters of up to a dozen or even more.

Schools postpone sidewalk plans

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Tough economic times aren't paying the way for any extras in city and school budgets.

The two governmental units entered into a special assessment agreement in September 1990 to construct a five-foot-wide concrete sidewalk on the north side of Eight Mile Road between Center Street and Taft Road. But both have since reneged on that agreement because neither can afford it now.

The school board Monday night approved a resolution withdrawing the district from the sidewalk agreement and tabling the proposal until finances can be secured to cover the project.

"Due to our present financial constraints, I cannot recommend that the school district move forward with this project at this time," School Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski wrote in a recommendation to board members Monday night.

Even though Rezmierski called the project "worthwhile," he said it would have to be set aside this year.

Board members agreed to rescind the motion and table it until the district could afford to pay its estimated $30,628 assessment for the concrete sidewalk.

Rezmierski blames the defeat of two millage requests for the district's need to pull out of the agreement.

City records from September 1990 indicate the benefitting property owners — the city, school district, Mettli Wadi Mettli, the Northville Wine Shop and Mobil Oil — would all share in the costs of sidewalk construction. Each would pay a portion of the bill, with the city picking up the tab for the handicap ramps at Taft Road.

Project estimates made by the city's consultants put the total cost of the project at $51,421 back in 1990, but this year's low bidder on the project, LaRocca Construction, wouldn't touch it for less than $67,960.

Township winnows attorney options

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Northville Township's powerful legal consulting firm apparently is on the way out after a township committee decided to interview four new candidates for the lucrative position.

The township board has scheduled a July 22 interview for the possible successors to Plymouth-based Silis, Hemming, Law, Essad, Polaczyk & Gillary — formerly Law, Hemming, Essad & Polaczyk — since 1986 the township's legal representative.

Board members are expected to pick a legal consultant at that 7 p.m. July 22 meeting.

Township Manager Richard Henningsen served on the committee that on Tuesday whittled a list of 14 candidates to four. Henningsen said Supervisor Betty Lennox told him not to reveal the names of the possible successors.

"She would like to hold on the names until we check on the client listings and contact persons of the four groups we have chosen," Henningsen said.

In addition to Henningsen and Lennox, Treasurer Jack Hosmer and Trustee James Nowka served on the attorney review committee.

The township has kicked around the idea of requesting legal proposals since January. A search for new legal talent intensified in April, after continuing revelations about Law, Hemming, Essad & Polaczyk's vast role and financial ties to the Western Townships Utilities Authority sewer project.

The Silis, Hemming group did not answer the township's call for proposals, indicating that a new firm will be hired. But some board members are not convinced a change is needed.

Interim Trustee Richard Ambler wondered why the board would cut loose the current law firm.

"It sounds to me as though (the attorney) has done a pretty good job," Ambler said last week. "It's like you got a butcher and he gives you good meat, and unless you can get better meat or a lower price, I just question why we are doing this."

Trustee Thomas Handyside called the search "a reaction to pressure," but Trustee James Nowka pushed for interviews and a new hire.

"I think it's a very strong thing to do and a very wise thing to do," he said.

'System fails' jogger's family

The Michigan Parole Board faces legal action from the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office over the bureaucratic snafu that led to Kenneth Love-day's parole.

The board last week granted the former Novi resident — serving a 15-to 24-month sentence for hitting and killing two joggers with his Jeep on Eight Mile last year — an Aug. 20 release without hearing testimony from the victims' family or the prosecutor's office. The gaffe was an apparent violation of the Crime Victims Rights Act.

Rahimi elected to top position

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Newly elected school board president Carol Rahimi said filling her predecessor's shoes would be a big job. But a job she looks forward to nonetheless.

"Suddenly replacing somebody's shoes will be difficult," Rahimi said while slipping into the one-year term. "I don't know that I'm prepared for all this. When I was first approached I was a little bit surprised that my fellow board members entrusted me with this. I hope I can do a good job."

Rahimi, the sole nomination for the top post, won the unanimous support of her board colleagues Monday night. She replaces Jean Hansen for the 1992-93 school year. This is the onset of Rahimi's second consecutive term on the board. Prior to her winning the nomination, Rahimi was the board secretary.

Looking forward to the upcoming year, Rahimi said financial issues facing the district will be of the utmost importance.

"The most pressing issue facing us is funding," she said. "And how we will keep programs intact with the funding we have available to us."

"Many programs are on hold now and we can't anticipate the future, especially with things going on in Lansing," she said.

Keeping a grip on the district's finances and salvaging the schools' program after two millage defeats are also some of Rahimi's top priorities. As president, Rahimi's responsibilities will now include officiating at board meetings, representing the board at events, acting as the liaison between the board and the administration, and keeping board members abreast of the issues before them.

Monday's organizational meeting was the traditional annual meeting where officer elections, board members' inductions, and other house-keeping chores are standard items on the agenda.

Two of the three remaining offices were filled by their incumbents. Glenna Davis retained her vice president's seat, as did current Treasurer Robert McMahon. Board member Richard Brown will fill the secretary's post.

In other board action, new board member Patricia Custer and Rahimi were sworn in for four-year terms to the board while the board bade farewell to former board member Donald Klokenga, who lost his bid for re-election in the June 8 school election.

Presenting him with a resolution and a gift for his service, Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski thanked Klokenga for his commitment to the board during the one four-year term he served.

"We thank you for your efforts," Rezmierski said.

Three Republicans vie for seat in Washington

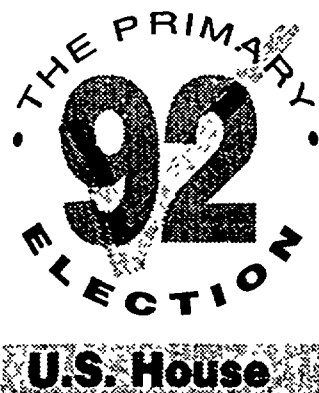

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Three area residents face off in an Aug. 4 primary to represent the Republican Party in a Nov. 3 runoff for a seat representing the 11th Congressional District.

Former Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Alice Gilbert faces state Sen. David Honigman and Joseph Knollenberg, a business person and former Republican Party official.

The winner will face either Novi resident Michael Meyer or Birmingham accountant Walter O. Briggs IV in November. Meyer and Briggs are Democrats running for the 11th District Democratic nomination.

Honigman and Gilbert are from West Bloomfield. Knollenberg is from Bloomfield Township.

Knollenberg has the endorsement of retiring U.S. Rep. William Broomfield. Broomfield represented most of the new 11th District before a redistricting plan shifted boundaries.

Knollenberg and Gilbert tossed their hats into the ring after Broomfield announced his retirement. Honigman announced he would run prior to Broomfield's announcement.

Gilbert has the endorsement of several women's organizations and the state and national education associations.

Honigman has the support of law enforcement organizations, including the Police Officers Association and Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson.

Gilbert served as a circuit court judge for 16 years and as a district court judge for eight years. She was a justice of the peace for eight years and a practicing attorney for twelve years.

Honigman also began his career as a litigator. He has since served in the state House of Representatives and is in the middle of his first term as a state senator.

Knollenberg works in the insurance business. He has been active in Republican Party politics, serving as one-time chair of the GOP in Oakland County. He has never held elected office.

The newly formed 11th district covers about 580,000 residents and about 400,000 voters including those in part of Northville (north of Baseline Road), Novi, Highland, Walled Lake, Milford, Whitom, Commerce, White Lake, Orchard Lake, West Bloomfield, Keego Harbor, Sylvan Lake, Bloomfield, Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham, Lyon Township, South Lyon, Farmington Hills, Farmington, Franklin, Beverly Hills, Bingham Farms, Lathrup, Southfield, Livonia and part of Redford.

CORRECTION: A photo in the July 9 edition of this paper incorrectly identified Scott Bennett. Also, the winner of the boys' bike decorating contest was Charlie Thomas. We regret the errors.

FORD STUDY COMMITTEE MEETS: A seven-member committee charged with prioritizing potential reuses of Northville's Ford Valve Plant property holds its third meeting tonight at 5 p.m. in the conference room at city hall. While many on the committee favor retaining Ford Field for recreational use, the members have not decided what mix of public and private use to recommend for the plant itself.

The committee will meet one final time, at 5 p.m. Monday night, July 20, before presenting its findings to the city council at its 8 p.m. meeting later that night.

A July 13 article on the committee incorrectly stated that its members were appointed by City Manager Gary Word. The committee was appointed by Mayor Chris Johnson. The Record regrets the error.

BLOOD DRIVE: A blood drive will be held on Saturday, Aug. 1 at the Northville Community Center, 303 W. Main. Blood drive hours are 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Appointments are recommended, but walk-ins are welcome. Call 349-0203.

FRIENDS DINNER SPEAKER: The Friends of the Northville Public Library are pleased to announce the Ninth Annual Genitti's Benefit Dinner will be at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 28.

This year's speaker is Jim Burstein, author, Hollywood script-writer, and English instructor from Plymouth, Mich.

Mark your calendar now; ticket information available soon. Inquiries may be made to Geraldine Mills, chairperson, at 349-1648.

CLOTHING DECORATING: The Northville Public Library will sponsor a Young Adult Clothing Decorating Program from 2 to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 18 in the city council chambers.

The workshop is planned for grades 6 through 12 and limited to 15 participants, who are to provide their own items to decorate and will be working with fabric paints and iron-on appliques which they will create themselves. Registration is required and will be taken beginning Monday, July 27. For more information or to register, visit the library or call 349-3020.

STATE REP. COUNTY COMMISSION FORUMS IN LIVONIA: The Livonia League of Women Voters will sponsor candidate forums for the 20th District State House race and 10th District Wayne County Commission race at 7 p.m. tonight at Livonia City Hall.

City hall is located on Five Mile east of Farmington Road. The 20th District state seat covers all of Northville Township and part of the City of Northville, as well as Plymouth and Plymouth Township and part of Livonia.

The 10th District county commission seat covers a similar spread of Livonia, Northville Township and city, and Plymouth Township and city.

VICTORIAN FESTIVAL BOOTHS: The fourth annual Northville Victorian Festival, scheduled for Sept. 18, 19 and 20, is looking for non-profit groups interested in raising money for their organizations by operating a booth during the festival.

Non-profit clubs and groups who have participated in previous years have found the Victorian Festival to be an excellent opportunity for fund-raising while having a lot of fun.

As with prior Victorian Festivals, the Chamber of Commerce requires that all items sold be in keeping with the Victorian theme or be a food and/or beverage. Group members working at booths during the festival are expected to be in Victorian costume.

For more information and registration, contact Sarah Minor at 348-8568 or Sue Anker at 349-8425.

12 teachers recalled to work

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

School district officials last week recalled 12 teachers for the 1992-93 school year in compliance with state law and union rules.

David Bolitho, assistant superintendent for administrative services, said Monday the district issued certified notices last week recalling 12 laid-off teachers to fill part- and full-time positions next year. Teachers who received recall notices have a 10-day grace period to respond. That grace period, Bolitho said, expired Wednesday. Since the deadline fell after press time, Bolitho said he didn't have confirmation of how many teachers had responded to recall notices.

"I don't know right now how many have responded," Bolitho said. "But I feel pretty confident every one will come back."

While 12 bodies are being recalled, their services will equate to only 8.7 full-time positions in classrooms throughout the district.

Bolitho said recalling the teachers holds true to school officials' word to voters that only 12 teachers would be let go. Originally 26 were laid off last month, despite the district's promise to voters in the June 8 millage campaign that only 12 would be laid off. But that was all part of the process, Bolitho said.

Under the district's layoff strategy, however, more teachers are let go to allow for the "bumping" process to shake down the number of vacancies. Once the area and the number of vacancies are determined teachers are recalled based on their seniority, qualification and certified to fill the specific empty classroom slots.

Of the 12 teachers recalled, only six will retain their full-time positions. Not one of those six teachers will have the same job he or she held last year, Bolitho said. Moreover, five teachers who held full-time jobs last year are being recalled to part-time jobs in most cases in a different grade level, building or subject. One teacher who held a part-time job as an elementary gym teacher will this year be employed as a part-time middle school teacher.

The following teachers were recalled. Following their names is the position they held last year and then the one they were recalled for this year and whether or not their job was full or part time.

Cheri Warner, full-time high school math; part-time high school English; Deanne Sovereign, full-time high school English; full-time elementary special education; Lisa Barbeau, full-time high school English; part-time high school Spanish; Julie Winneur, full-time elementary teacher at Winchester; part-time middle school elective; Elizabeth Brewster, full-time elementary art; part-time elementary art; Melissa Ziegler, full-time English teacher at both Meads Mill and Silver Springs, full-time elementary media specialist; Bryan Masi, part-time elementary gym teacher; part-time middle school gym teacher; Ann Marie Sadler, full-time gifted teacher, full-time elementary teacher at Winchester; Anna Conti full-time teacher at Amerman, full-time at Winchester; Kim Clifford, full-time English and Science teacher at Meads Mill, full-time teacher at Silver Springs; Marie Thomas, full-time teacher at Moraine, full-time teacher at Silver Springs; and Ruth Miller, full-time teacher at Silver Springs, part-time teacher at Amerman.

Bolitho said in making the recalls, his office worked closely with the leadership of the local teachers' union to find the best match for the recalled teachers' certification and qualification and the district's openings.

"We tried our best to match teachers up as best we could with the age level they taught last year," Bolitho said. "We did this where we could."

The district still has 11.6 full-time teachers on their layoff list. Bolitho said his office has no immediate plans to recall any more teachers for the upcoming school year. However, should a teacher resign or request a leave of absence, one could be recalled to replace that vacancy.

"Since we didn't hire any additional staff to replace three retirees, we have a total staff reduction of 14.6 percent," Bolitho said. "We are right on the money."

Board members critical of MHSAA

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Two Northville Board of Education members Monday said even though they have concerns over equality among high school sports and the structure of the statewide organization, they still support the district's membership in the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

"Understanding that our kids can't play without it," a hesitant Glenna Davis cast her vote in favor of enrolling the district in the MHSAA for the 1992-93 school year.

Davis said the district has dealt with the MSHAA for more than a decade, and recent steps its board of directors has taken in making its members more accessible and more accountable to the districts they serve offers her hope for a better future working relationship.

"There have been two specific examples of the progress the organization has made," Davis said. "One is that they've changed their rules for how people are elected to the group's governing body, and the other is dropping the idea that kids couldn't play in leagues outside of the school's league."

Membership enrollments in the MHSAA are reviewed and approved on an annual basis by district boards, but actions that surfaced from the MHSAA earlier this year raised a few eyebrows locally.

Earlier this year the association asked its membership to approve a rule that would have prohibited students from participating in a private league sport during the off-season of the high school league.

That notion failed for lack of support in Northville and many other districts across the state. The rule was never entered into the MHSAA's guidebook, a fact Davis attributes to the efforts of local school officials.

"If implemented, that would have eliminated parents' and kids' freedom to make choices for themselves. They could not have played in church tournaments and recreation leagues. In the long run it would have pulled kids out of high school leagues."

"I'm very proud of our principals and our athletic director. They went above and beyond the call to lobby and educate other districts," she said.

Davis said Northville principals and former Athletic Director Dennis Colligan were instrumental in getting other districts to reject the organization's rule by showing them the impact it would have on districts.

The biggest quirk in the plan was that there was really no way to enforce the ruling. The organization offered no plans for enforcing it, but rather put policing it on the backs of the participating districts.

Historically, dealing with the organization — which hasn't until recently recognized girls sports — has been "frustrating," Davis said.

"There was a time when the organization was so secretive you couldn't find out how people were appointed to it or even get a copy of its budget," she said. "But now that's all changed. We are finding it easier to have access to the governing body and having more input in the decisions being made that affect us."

For Davis and board President Carol Rahimi, the fact that cheerleaders have fought the association for years to win equal treatment and recognition was justification enough to question membership in the MSHAA. In spite of that, though, both board members realized without membership Northville athletes would be barred from competing in district- and state-level competitions.

Backing the motion, both said recent changes in MHSAA bylaws offer hope that the association is moving towards equality. The group will recognize cheerleading as a sanctioned sport beginning this fall.

"After being frustrated with this group for 10 years, I'm really starting to see some of those changes," Davis said.

Rahimi agreed. A former Northville High School cheerleading coach, Rahimi said she has no concerns over the district's membership but rather she'd like to see cheerleaders receive equal advantages.

"It is a long-standing group that until recently didn't recognize cheerleading as a sport," Rahimi said.

Winning recognition at the state level didn't come easy.

"Next year will be the first year they will be recognized. That's been nine years in the works," she said.

Prior to the MHSAA recognizing cheerleading as a high school sport, Rahimi said, the Michigan Cheerleading Coaches Association didn't even have representation in the association. Once a representative was appointed, recognition was awarded.

"Once they earned the recognition, cheerleaders had to abide by the rules of the organization but didn't get any of the perks, but that will all change in '93."

Police News

Youths apprehended following police chase

Two youths suspected of auto theft were apprehended by township police early July 6 after the pair reportedly ditched a vehicle in the front yard of a township home.

Police said a 16-year-old Detroit male and a 17-year-old Ypsilanti man abandoned a stolen Subaru in the yard of a Maple Hill home north of Six Mile. The men reportedly ran into the subdivision and escaped from Wayne County Sheriff's Department deputies.

Township police officers found the 16-year-old walking east on Six Mile near Winchester about an hour later. He reportedly told police he was a passenger in the car and did not know the vehicle was stolen until the police chase began.

The 17-year-old was located at 5:30 a.m. attempting to enter the McDonald's at Six Mile and Haggerty. Both suspects were turned over to sheriff's deputies.

VEHICLE STOLEN FROM DRIVEWAY: A 1992 GMC Jimmy reportedly was stolen from the driveway of a Lilypad Ct. residence late July 5 or early July 6, according to township police reports.

The vehicle later was located by Detroit police, who reported damage to the vehicle's steering column. A cellular telephone, child safety seat, and clothing were reported missing.

COINS STOLEN FROM HOME: A Haggerty Road resident told township police that someone kicked open a door to the home and stole $15 in change from a master bedroom July 6.

Damage was estimated at $500.

STATUE STOLEN: A white marble statue weighing approximately 50 pounds and valued at $200 reportedly was stolen from a Maple Hill home sometime between July 3 and July 5, township police said.

A matching statue was left behind, police said.

ACCIDENT-PRONE MAN ARRESTED: City police charged a 39-year-old Richmond man with driving on a revoked license the night of July 11. The man, stopped for speeding north on Beck, had three drunken driving arrests, three accidents and two prior charges of driving with a suspended or revoked license on his record. His license was revoked through the year 2007.

He was arrested, charged, and released after posting a $100 cash bond.

TRAFFIC WARRANT ARREST: The Wayne County Sheriff's Department turned a 32-year-old Westland man over to city police July 11. The man was wanted by the city for failing to appear in court on an expired license plate charge. The sheriff's department turned the man over to police at the Northville Recreation Area in Hines Park, after citing him themselves for driving on a suspended license and with an expired plate.

City police released the man after he posted a $100 cash bond.

WINDOW SHOT OUT: A motor home parked on McDonald Drive had a window shot out with BBs sometime between 11 p.m. July 11 and 8 a.m. July 12. Damage was estimated at $200.

CAR VANDALIZED AT SWIM CLUB: A Dodge Caravan parked at the Northville Swim Club July 11 had a side window smashed sometime between 3-4:15 p.m. Damage was estimated at $150.

The car was parked in the lot in front of the 646 W. Baseline Road facility at the time.

FOUND PROPERTY: City police recovered a girl's bicycle found at Amerman Elementary School, 847 N. Center St. The silver, 10-speed bike was reported abandoned July 11, and had reportedly been laying in front of the school for two days. Anyone wishing to claim the bike is asked to call the Northville City police at 349-1234 with a more detailed description.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

The Northville Record

Police catch suspects

By MIKE TYREE

Two Canton teens attempting to ring up some spare change got more than they bargained for last week after township police disconnected their theft plans.

Police said the 16-year-old Canton boys were arrested early July 10 after they stole two coin-operated telephone boxes and stands from McDonald's, 39555 W. Six Mile Road.

A car driven by one of the youths contained crowbars, a battery-powered drill, screwdrivers, and two duffel bags filled with coins and other tools, police said.

Additionally, two portable compact disc players and a radar detector were found in the car. Police also said one of the youths may have concealed thousands of dollars of stolen electronic equipment in the attic of his Canton home.

Police are unsure if the youths are connected with a rash of vehicle and residential breaking and entering reports here.

"They've been around here, but I don't know if they've done anything," said township police Det. Michael Wildt said. "I've (recovered) some stereo equipment, but I don't know where it came from."

Police said the arrests stemmed from a routine patrol of the Northville Trail subdivision. According to reports, police spotted a 1987 Chevrolet Nova parked on Northville Trail at about 3:30 a.m. July 10. The car reportedly turned its headlights on and sped away, with police following and eventually stopping the car on Six Mile west of Maple Hill.

Crowbars, a drill, screwdrivers, other tools, and duffel bags reportedly were seen in the vehicle's back seat. The driver of the vehicle was returned to Northville Trail, where officers located a yellow Michigan Bell telephone box carrying a McDonald's insignia.

After first denying knowledge of the telephone, the suspect said he had removed the box from the Six Mile and Haggerty restaurant and taken it to Northville Trail to dismantle.

The youth also initially told police he was working alone, but later admitted a partner had fled on foot after seeing police cruise Northville Trail. Police said the first suspect gave a name and description of the accomplice, who was picked up near Five Mile and Northville roads.

A second telephone box was found in the field near the first, police said.

Police said the second suspect told them his partner was hiding stolen electronic equipment in the attic of his home. Police contacted the youth's mother, who delivered a stereo receiver and equalizer, a compact disc player, a cassette deck, an AM/FM tuner, and two three-way speakers to the police department.

Police are seeking juvenile petitions for both youths, Wildt said. An investigation of the recovered electronic equipment continues, he said.

City hall loses another familiar face

By STEVE KELLMAN

Staff Writer

Another city hall employee is leaving 215 W. Main St., joining the ranks of employees who have left due to layoffs, cutbacks and personal reasons.

Executive Secretary Beverly Dennis recently announced she plans to move back to Ohio with her husband, Jim, who is being transferred by his firm. Jim Dennis works for Monarch Marking Systems, a manufacturer of price-marking equipment.

One of Dennis' first moves when she announced her resignation was to step down as acting city clerk. She was appointed to that post June 15, in the wake of Cathy (Konrad) Watkins' departure.

Dennis has followed in Watkins' footsteps before, taking the position of executive secretary in September 1985 after Konrad moved from that post to city clerk.

Dennis described her latest assignment as acting city clerk as "very hectic, very, very busy . . . It's just a busy time of year with two elections."

City Manager Gary Word, at his request, was appointed acting city clerk until a full-time clerk is found (see related story).

Dennis intends to continue working after relocating to Ohio, though she has no firm plans.

"I'm going to just go. I intend to work, but I haven't even had time to think about it yet," she said.

But before they go anywhere, the couple's first task is to sell their home. That process could take another month or two, and Dennis said she will remain at city hall until it is complete.

"We need to get our house on the market, sell it and go from there . . . If I had time to go home and get ready for a garage sale, the house would be for sale already," she said.

The couple looks forward to the move because it will bring them closer to their parents in Ohio, and Jim Dennis closer to the markets he will cover as a salesman for Monarch.

"The only bad part of it is leaving my kids," she said. "I'll hate to leave friends and my children; that's a tough one. But we'll be close enough that we'll be back and forth."

"We'll probably see them more now that when we were 10 minutes apart."

Manager close to decision on new city clerk

By STEVE KELLMAN

Staff Writer

The city will soon learn the identity of its new clerk, though the newcomer may not show her face around city hall for a month.

City Manager Gary Word has sifted through 60 applications for the city's top clerk post and settled on five finalists. Those five were interviewed last Friday, and Word has since narrowed the number down to three.

"I hope to make a decision some time this week," he said Tuesday.

Word said he was pleased with the quality of the applications, which came from all over the state.

"They've got lots of experience; including township clerk experience and city municipal government experience which may include clerk experience," he said.

While several of the applicants were men, and one of the five interviewed finalists was a man, all of the final three are women, Word said.

The finalists asked to have their names withheld from their employers unless offered the position.

While a decision is due soon, the new clerk will not come to Northville immediately, Word said.

"I'm not going to get anybody until after this (Aug. 4) primary is over," he said. "They felt they had an obligation to their employees, and I understand that."

the busiest time of the year for clerks.

In the meantime, Word has hired Larry Verbiest, retired Wayne County director of elections, to coordinate and oversee the city's primary. Verbiest, who began reviewing the city's election plans last week, will be paid $20 per hour for about five days of service including $300 to monitor the voting itself Aug. 4.

Family blasts parole board for granting release

Executive Secretary Kay Eyer attributed the board's decision to a clerical error.

"They should not have (granted parole)," she said Monday. "There were notes all over the file to give it to me before it went any further, but apparently they were overlooked. "It shouldn't have happened, but it did."

The victims' family and prosecutors planned to argue against Loveday's release at a hearing scheduled for tomorrow, and the board plans to reconsider whether to parole Loveday after the hearing, Eyer said.

"It is still scheduled," she said. "I talked to the prosecutor's office and they still plan on coming in Friday and making their presentation, and then the board will again review the case and determine what to do."

Because of the mix-up, Eyer said, the parole board is taking steps to assure that incidents like this are not repeated.

"What we're trying to do is get a computer program that will block a parole date from being entered if the victim hasn't been notified, so that this doesn't happen again," she said.

But if Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson has his way, Loveday's fate will be taken out of the parole board's hands altogether.

The prosecutor's office reportedly plans to file an injunction against Loveday's release and a lawsuit against the board, and call for a new hearing panel to review the case. Prosecutor Richard Thompson and Ronald Covault, chief of the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office Circuit Court Division, did not return repeated phone calls by presstime Tuesday.

The parole board's blunder is just another "slap in the face" to Novl resident Angela Hanania, wife of slain jogger Yusuf Hanania.

"I just feel violated; I feel like the system is not working again," she said.

Hanania said she and brother-in-law Basim Abdelnour had met with Covault and assistant prosecutor Roman Kalytlak last Thursday to discuss the scheduled parole hearing.

"Saturday, I received a letter from the parole board saying that, after careful consideration, they had decided to go ahead and grant him parole.

"What did they carefully consider? ... They didn't take what we had to say into consideration because they didn't give us the chance."

Hanania and Abdelnour, brother of slain jogger Albert Abdelnour, expressed outrage in January when 20-year-old Kenneth Loveday was convicted of a misdemeanor rather than a felony. Loveday had faced the felony charge of manslaughter and a 15-year prison sentence when the case went to trial.

A jury found him guilty of negligent homicide, a misdemeanor punishable by a maximum of two years in prison, instead.

Prosecutors had argued that Loveday was grossly negligent when he drove off the road and into the joggers at Eight Mile Road east of Beck June 5, 1991. A passenger in Loveday's Jeep that morning testified that he and Loveday had smoked marijuana 10-15 minutes before the collision, and a marijuana cigarette was found in the Jeep's ashtray.

But Circuit Judge Francis X. O'Brien barred testimony related to Loveday's history of drug use before the incident, and would not allow testimony allowed at a district court hearing that Loveday had swerved toward pedestrians and oncoming traffic in the past, as a prank.

Loveday told police he hit the joggers while trying to avoid an oncoming pickup truck but other drivers in the area never saw the truck.

Ironically, Loveday's Aug. 20 release date likely would have been postponed because of a misconduct charge filed against him days before the board's decision. Loveday was seen punching another prisoner in the prison yard of the Ionia Reformatory July 1, and a report on the incident was placed in his file July 8.

The parole board was unaware of the misconduct when it granted Loveday's parole July 6, but will now take it into consideration.

"We know about it now," Eyer said. Because of the misconduct, she said, Loveday's release has been suspended and he will not be eligible for parole until November.

Volunteers sought for golf

Volunteers are needed for the Ronald McDonald Children's Charities/Cecil Fielder Hole-In-One Shoot Out. The charity golf event will take place Aug. 14-23 at Country Club Village in Northville.

Volunteers may sign up for as many daily shifts as they would like. They may choose the first shift (9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.) or the second shift (3:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.). There will be both indoor and outdoor responsibilities that will include registering participants and assisting with operations at the golf holes.

At the Hole-In-One Shoot Out, golf participants will vie to win a million dollars by being the first finalist to get a hole-in-one. All proceeds from the event will go to the Ronald McDonald Children's Charities, an independent, non-profit organization which makes grants to local children's charities. At last year's event, more than $43,000 was raised.

Each volunteer will receive an RMCC t-shirt to wear while working as well as a complimentary meal.

Country Club Village is located on Haggerty Road, about a quarter-mile south of Six Mile Road.

To volunteer or for more information, call 1-800-400-8386 by Aug. 5.

Candidate Interviews/U.S. House, 11th District

Gilbert enters fray to give voters another choice

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Former Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Alice Gilbert left her post of 15 years to run in the Republican primary for the 11th Congressional District.

She was not ready to leave her position. In fact, she intended to remain on the bench until "well into the next century."

But as the field of Republican candidates was unfolding, Gilbert said she expected a third person to enter the race. When no one did, Gilbert resigned her Circuit Court Judge position and tossed her hat into the contest for a seat in the Congress.

Gilbert entered the race after a poll conducted by a Washington, D.C., firm showed the race was winnable.

She is campaigning on television, radio and through signs apparent throughout the 11th District.

Gilbert said she could not estimate how much money she planned to spend on the campaign.

It has been predicted that abortion will be a major issue in this particular race. I know you are pro-choice, but do you support any of the restrictions Michigan has placed on abortion?

No, I do not. My position is government should not interfere in the personal decisions that a woman has to make for herself after consulting with the medical profession, her moral or religious leaders, her family, herself and anyone else she feels would be of some benefit to her in making this clearly personal choice.

Do you support the proposed informed consent legislation in Michigan?

No, government does not belong in interfering with the doctor-patient relationship. The soul-wrenching, personal decisions that a woman has to make concerning her body and her health are difficult enough, let alone having politics and government telling her how to behave.

Were you happy with the recent Supreme Court decision on abortion?

No, I think it paid lip service to Roe v. Wade, but at the same time allowing for the various states to impose their own restrictions, which for many women when making a decision would constitute an undue burden on them.

There is no effort to place any restrictions on the male and his reproductive system.

Jack Kevorkian has publicly stated his plans to campaign against you for putting an injunction on him for using his so-called death machine to assist patients wishing to end their lives. Do you see any validity to his charges that your injunction is a contradiction to your pro-choice beliefs?

My opinion in the Jack Kevorkian matter was written long before I thought of running for Congress. That opinion is very consistent with my pro-choice views. I stated in my opinion, as I state now in my pro-choice position, the right of self-determination.

There does come a time when the alternative to living would best serve the needs and the interests of the patient as well as their surviving family. The right to die with dignity is a decision that has to be reached with qualified medical consultation in controlled circumstances in a proper environment.

My injunction against Jack Kevorkian was based upon the finding that in his practice of medicine, he was outside the acceptable standards of the practice of medicine.

It was issued against him because he was not qualified to deal with live patients on a clinical basis. He was not qualified to make a diagnosis and a treatment program as was confirmed with the patient.

As a result of my decision, partly, and his involvement in other matters, he did lose his license to practice medicine.

What would be the first cuts you would make to help reduce the $350-billion (budget) deficit?

Spending. It isn't just one item of spending. I believe spending should be cut in many areas. That doesn't mean all of the areas.

In cutting spending for a program, also what is necessary is to cut the administrative costs of the delivery of the program.

Cutting spending isn't the total panacea to the problem. A sound economy would also be helpful.

I do believe the line-item veto by the president would be welcome. I would support that.

Also the balanced budget amendment with tax limitations, I would support.

What kind of tax limitations? If you just have a balanced budget amendment without tax limitations, that means there is an open invitation to tax the public more. I don't think that solves the problem.

I also would favor privatization of certain government services like wastewater treatment plants, and prisons. There are many areas that can be privatized. Competition in a free-enterprise system would enable more efficiency.

Would you favor cuts in entitlement programs like veterans' benefits, Medicare or social security?

Social Security is a contract the people have with the federal government, so with respect to that, no cuts. However, when viewing the problem of Social Security, one of the complaints is rich people... are also getting Social Security. It would appear to me that for the future, those who are not in the Social Security system now, a new contract might be able to be fashioned whereby, if someone did in fact earn a certain threshold amount annually, they would not be able to receive Social Security...

What about the defense budget? Do you think it could be cut more?

There is a program under way of cutting the defense budget. I do not favor anything that would place America or American interests here or abroad in jeopardy. We still have to be watchful and mindful of our position in the world. However, there may be some areas that could be streamlined further. I would never favor it if it put us in jeopardy.

What are your feelings about a national health care plan?

I'm not in favor of that or a Canadian-style health care program.

Do you think the system needs reform?

Yes, I do.

What would your plan be?

It isn't a question of a specific plan. The delivery of health care is an extremely complex system. I'm not in favor of overhauling the entire system and creating additional problems that do not exist at this time. I would be more favorably disposed to address the problems that currently exist in the system.

The issues of the health-care system is affordability and availability of those health-care services. We have a $700 billion annual health care expense. At the same time we have 37 million persons who are not covered by health care insurance. This issue has been addressed by health professionals as well as lay organizations in trying to solve this particular dilemma.

The idea of having affordable as well as available health care is something that must be addressed, but to overhaul the entire system, I'm not in favor of that because it would create more problems. I believe in the free-market economy.

It doesn't call for a specific plan. How specifically would the uninsured be able to get insurance if the system was to be overhauled?

What I'm saying is I think that can be done through the free market. . . . It's not fraudulent for the medical community to practice defensive medicine. We have to look to tort reform for them and for us and for the system. . . .

Do you believe a trade treaty with Mexico will help or hurt U.S. industry, particularly the auto industry?

Maybe in the short run, it might appear to hurt. But in the long term we have to have trade with Mexico, so I am in favor.

Do you think we need to place more restrictions on Japanese imports?

I am in favor of a competitive, global economy. So I would like to see America move away from protectionist attitudes and more to an open marketplace.

Two former labor secretaries, one Democrat and one Republican, have suggested imposing a 1-percent tax on business for worker training. Is that something you would support?

I'm not in favor of taxing business any further. Business is taxed sufficiently. But the other way around — the federal government should provide tax incentives for the accumulation of capital for innovation and the creation of jobs.

I'm also in favor of removing onerous or burdensome regulations on business that would slow down their ability to compete.

Adding additional tax is not something I favor.

Would you favor any additional taxes anywhere?

I would like to increase the cigarette tax. I think by increasing the cigarette tax there would be less people smoking, our environment would be cleaner and we would have less illness.

Would you favor a tax increase for those who earn over $200,000 a year? Bill Clinton supports such a plan. If he were elected you may be asked to approve an increase for that group.

I studied taxes. You can't just take one item with tax. You have to take the whole scheme of taxes to see how it plays out. That's too simplistic.

Would you favor any tax increase for the wealthy?

That's too simplistic. It depends on the fairness of the system.

Do you think the system is fair right now?

No, you can always find components that you don't find to be fair.

What can Congress do to improve the state's ability to better administer education?

The federal government has a definite role to play in education. Quality education should be a priority in America for a number of reasons. Our future rests with the generations to come. The federal government should set national education goals, but be more specific, with respect to those goals, than it has in the past.

Bricks and mortar may make fine buildings; it still is the teachers and the professors who are important. The federal government should be more involved by providing grants, competition for teachers and competition within a school district.

I believe some of the federal programs such as Head Start should be beefed up. . . . It's absolutely essential that we achieve quality education for our students. . . .

Should U.S. energy policy focus more on increased production of energy through methods like offshore drilling or through conservation like increasing auto mileage standards?

I believe that arbitrary regulations should be made more reasonable like the automobile (regulations). I am in favor of reviewing the regulations that are not realistic. . . . You can get a certain miles-per-gallon goal, but at the same time lose the safety aspect of the product by trying to eliminate the weight of the vehicle. . . .

What was the major achievement in your life?

I think it's my ability to balance my career interests with family interests as a human being.

If elected to Congress, what committee would you most like to serve on?

I haven't determined that yet. My problem is there are too many committees. I have a broad range of information and knowledge after presiding over 60,000 cases. I haven't looked into it, so I'd like to keep it open.

You have been called "late Alice" because you frequently called your court to order late. Do you think that should be of concern to voters?

No, every judge has a different style of doing things. And nobody likes to wait for a woman. . . . My style in court is not sitting on the bench all the time trying everything. My style is to get the diverse parties together with a consensus and a discussion of the issues and the values of the case and the different options for resolution.

I'm very good at doing that. I consider myself one of the best if not the best judge that can do this.

They also called me "Hanging Alice," and I never hung anyone.

Mill Race Matters

Summer is a great time to visit Mill Race Village and see the many changes that have occurred. The many varied plantings make the village a lovely place to stroll or picnic at any time of day. The buildings are all open for public viewing Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Additional docents are still needed to enable us to keep every building available to the public. If you might like to get involved or you are interested in more information about getting involved call 348-1845 Monday, Wednesday or Friday. The village is owned and operated by the Northville Historical Society, a volunteer non-profit organization dedicated to preserving the history of our community.

A wide range of activities and events is available throughout the year, but all of them rely on the volunteer efforts of members of our own neighboring communities.

Each September Tivoli Fair is held at the Northville Downs. It is a juried (in March each year) arts and craft show which shows the best work in each field. The profits from this two-day event are the main source of revenue for the continued operation of Mill Race Village. Many volunteers help to make a great show. Your assistance is welcome. Again, call the office for additional information.

Work is progressing well on the community archival collection. Presently arrangements can be made to do family or community research by calling either 348-1845 or 349-9005. The archives is only open by appointment. We are the recipients of a number of interesting family collections which have yet to be cataloged. Mail questions are also accepted although response may require some time. Donations of family and community information are encouraged and much appreciated. It is hoped that ultimately our collection will serve as a repository with information on all of the area's earliest settlers as well as significant original material on the entire program.

Thanks this week to Mr. and Mrs. Royal Keller for the donation of artifacts including a phonograph and community memorabilia.

Candidate Interviews/U.S. House, 11th District

Honigman seeks move from state to national seat

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

State Sen. David Honigman faces two opponents in the Republican primary for the 11th Congressional District.

Honigman is focusing on door-to-door campaigning, but was the first of the three candidates to appear in television commercials. His red, white and blue signs can be seen on street corners and front lawns from West Bloomfield to Redford.

The former state House of Representatives member and current state senator would not estimate how much money he plans to spend during the campaign leading up to the Aug. 4 primary and Nov. 3 general election.

"It depends how much we raise," Honigman said. "You'll have to wait until we file our report. We can't let our opponent know how much we will spend."

He said he will not participate in mean-spirited bickering during the campaign. But he may respond to opponent Alice Gilbert's ads which are directed against Honigman.

It has been predicted that abortion will be a major issue in this particular race. Could you explain your position?

Sure. My position is this. I am terribly disturbed by abortion. I think it's wrong. I feel that very strongly. However, I do recognize that, however, I feel there are millions of basically decent, well-meaning women who have abortions.

I know people who have had abortions, and I do not regard them as criminals. It's kind of like a situation where I say, "You're shooting at a person," and they say, "no, I just shot at a tree."

I believe it should be a legal option through the first five months of pregnancy. However, I think the government should take steps to discourage abortion in a not-harsh way.

I've supported parental consent legislation, which requires that a minor get their parent's consent before they have an abortion or seek a judicial consent if there is an abusive parent.

Did you support the ban on Medicaid-funded abortions?

I believe the government should not pay for abortions or subsidize it. Government is the repository of ideal conduct and abortion is certainly not ideal conduct.

I like the informed consent legislation, which would give them the opportunity to view a picture of an unborn child or fetus and decide for themselves if they think it's a person or not.

Americans are basically good, decent people, and they probably would voluntarily relinquish their all-too-common resort to abortion if they were confronted with the strikingly human characteristics of an unborn child.

Where do you stand on husband notification requirements to obtain an abortion?

I oppose husband notification. I think notifying or requiring the consent of a spouse degrades both the child and the woman because the spouse has some interest, but his interest pales before that of both the woman and the unborn child. Their interests are gigantic compared to that of the male.

What kind of cuts would you support to help alleviate the $350-billion (budget) deficit?

It's interesting to note that if you merely limited the rate in increase of federal spending to 3.7 percent for three years, the budget would be balanced in three years. It doesn't really require draconian cuts.

One thing I would like to see changed is welfare policy. We have to provide a safety net for those who cannot compete in the economic marketplace because of some disability of training or physical handicap or whatever.

But we've created a situation where we're encouraging dependency. As a condition of receiving welfare, we should require that a person either work or do community service or go to school. It could be a traditional school or vocational education. That can actually cost more in the short-run, but in the long run it's much less costly to help people become independent than to just keep handing money with no strings attached and keep them dependent.

Candidate Interviews/U.S. House, 11th District

That's one big, huge area of spending that could probably save a lot of money.

All of the pork-barrel, wasteful spending has got to be eliminated, and the list is endless like $700,000 on the Lawrence Welk museum.

Would you support a line-item veto for the president?

Yes, I support giving the president a line-item veto so he can cut pork-barrel items out of the budget. I support a balanced-budget amendment with the additional requirement of creating an institutional bias against increasing taxes by requiring a super-majority to increase taxes above a reasonable level.

What about the defense budget? Do you think it could be cut more?

The defense budget definitely could be reduced now that the cold war is over. I would like to invest most of that peace dividend in education. It certainly would help the schools in this district who are plagued by this "Robin Hood." This could be the way to solve that problem.

The peace dividend is a huge source of money to invest in education. So that we could spend money on the education of the poor without having to take money from well-run school districts.

Two former labor secretaries, one Democrat and one Republican, advocated a 1-percent tax on gross revenue for worker training. Would you have supported such a plan?

I would not support it. I don't think we need to increase taxes with the economy doing so poorly. We need to be reducing taxes, not increasing.

I do believe in spending money on job training, but I don't think we need to increase taxes to do it.

Would you support any kind of a tax increase?

No, absolutely not.

What about Social Security? There has been some talk of decreasing benefits for some now-qualified recipients.

I would oppose doing that because that's insurance that people paid for. Social Security is not welfare. When you buy insurance — not just social security, it could be home insurance, auto insurance — you expect to get your return after paying all those years.

It's a compact between the government and the people who paid, really like a sacred covenant. It's the one actuary sound fund we have in government. Why mess it up?

What are your feelings about a national health care plan?

My view is this: everyone is entitled to have access to good health care as a right of citizenship. I've been very sick a lot myself. I spent a lot of time in hospitals, but I was fortunate enough to have good insurance coverage. But I can imagine how terrible and desperate a poor person or even a middle-class person would feel if they didn't have enough insurance to cover the enormous medical bills you can incur nowadays.

What kind of plan do you support?

Here's what I would propose to do. No. 1, we do not want the government to get in the business of directly providing medical services. The government can't really do anything very well. Look at the only medical services provided by the government is in VA hospitals, and those are the very worst hospitals.

The government should not be in the business of being an insurer either because they're not very good at that.

The approach we need to take is we have to empower people to purchase their own insurance, and here's how we do that. For really poor people who have no health care at all, the government should just give them a health care grant or voucher to empower them to purchase their own health care in the marketplace. Let them shop around.

If you work for a large company, your union probably bargained for a pretty good health care plan. But if you work for a small company, many small companies can't afford to provide health insurance for their employees.

What we've got to do there is create inducements and tax advantages to small businesses to buy their own health insurance and individuals.

Why not have the equivalent of an IRA? Just like the regular IRAs except you could save money in a tax-advantaged manner in a medical IRA and use it to buy health insurance.

We don't want the Canadian system where they ration health care. In Canada, the parliament says we're going to spend a certain amount of money on health care. They apportion it out to the health care providers, and when they run out, you're out of luck. You can't get medical care.

Do you think a trade treaty with Mexico will help U.S. industry, particularly the auto industry?

No, I think it will help U.S. industry. I believe very strongly in free trade, it could be with any country: Canada, Mexico, Europe, Japan, everybody.

One of the problems with Japan is they don't have free trade. We ought to make sure the other countries knock down their barriers to their goods, and we ought to remove our barriers to their goods. That benefits every consumer in America and in the other countries, too.

Do you think U.S. energy policy should focus more on conservation as through increasing automotive mileage standards, or on the production of more energy as through off-shore drilling?

Both. You've got to have production, of course, but you want to encourage environmentally sound energy use also. Why waste anything?

We've got to carefully balance those things. There's no simple answer.

How should Congress have responded to the Los Angeles riots?

We need a new urban policy. We should be responding before riots.

What should our urban policy be?

The exact opposite of what they're doing in Detroit, which is spending money on bables like the People Mover, which takes business men from the suburbs from their offices in the city to lunch. The working poor in Detroit can't get to work in the suburbs because there is not enough money invested in the bus system. We don't need new office buildings in downtown Detroit. We need to make the daily life of ordinary, city dwellers better.

How do we do that? There's three ways.

No. 1, we have to make people feel safe in their homes and neighbors. No. 2, the schools are terrible in the cities. No wonder nobody wants to live there. No. 3, we have to relieve the people in the city of the crushing tax burden that is being imposed on them (which) is gigantic. Property tax rates in Detroit are gigantic.

What do you consider to be the major achievement in your life?

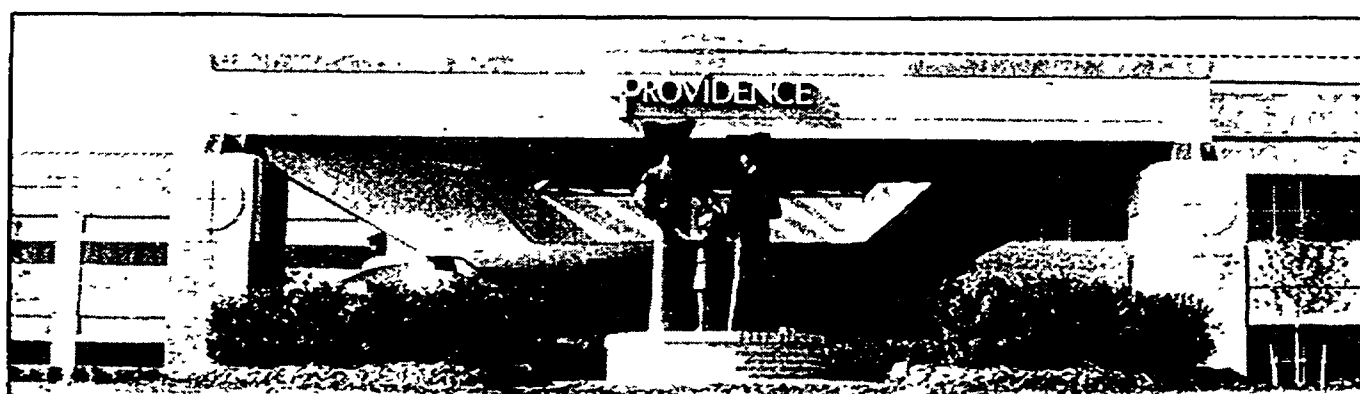

In general, I'd say the most important achievement has been being given the opportunity to help people. I can't name any particular helping, but quite a few come to mind. The opportunity to give something back to the community, not just take from it.

I love public service. It's very rewarding and personally enriching to be able to make people happy and make their lives prosperous and fulfilling. That general life project is the most important achievement, and I've met with pretty good success.

If elected to Congress what committee would you like to serve on the most?

I think I'd like to be on the appropriations committee so I could tackle this budget problem, balance the budget and make sure we spend money on the important things like education, protecting the environment and not on frivolous things like $700,000 on the Lawrence Welk museum.

Knollenberg seeks shift from business to House

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Joseph Knollenberg, former Oakland County Republican Party chairperson, faces two opponents in the Aug. 4 primary race for the 11th District seat in the U.S. Congress. The district includes southwestern Oakland County, including Northville north of Baseline Road.

Knollenberg, a Birmingham resident, works as an insurance agent and is the father of two. He expects to spend over $200,000 on the campaign, but said his large volunteer support will be a deciding factor in the race.

Knollenberg planned to work on the re-election campaign of William Broomfield, who currently represents most of the 11th District. But after Broomfield announced plans to retire at the end of this term, he gave his endorsement to Knollenberg.

What are your feelings on abortion?

As you probably know, I'm against abortion, pro-life. I think adoption is a far better course of action to follow. Certainly there are improvements that could be made in the process of making sure adoption is available.

I think we could do a lot more with that. Both parties have really not done much to assure the adoption process is available.

The recent Supreme Court decision eliminates the trimester breakdown. Now, it's possible for a person to get an abortion up to the last minute. It's more permissive now with respect to getting an abortion with respect to the last month or so.

The thing they also did, which is a plus in how I view abortion, they allow parental consent when it comes to a youngster. On the 24-hour waiting period — there is nothing wrong with thinking it over . . .

Would you support a Right to Life act?

I would be in favor of the pro-life position.

The federal government has a $350 billion deficit. What kind of cuts would you support to balance the budget?

A whole lot of them. The budget deficit is probably our biggest problem. I think we have to control spending. A whole lot of the other problems would fall in place. We have to discipline ourselves.

To control spending, you don't bring back pork to the district. What I would be elected to do would be to restrict or eliminate the pork that goes on.

We have far, far too many programs that should be curtailed . . .

An example would be we don't need home heating credits. In the early '70s the price of oil was skyrocketing . . . They installed these credits on income tax for people if they installed weatherstripping on windows or in another way slowed down the consumption of energy. That's come and gone. We're back to $1.10 for a gallon of gas, but the program is still around.

It could be argued that the government should encourage de-

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE AMENDMENT TO ZONING ORDINANCE
94-04-92

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE ZONING ORDINANCE BY AMENDING THE TEXT THEREOF.

THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE ORDAINS:

PART I. The Charter Township of Northville Zoning Ordinance No. 94 as amended is hereby further amended by amending Article XII Section 12.3 USES SUBJECT TO SPECIAL CONDITIONS, paragraph 9, Article XVII, Section 18.24 SITE PLAN REVIEW (ALL DISTRICTS), paragraph 3.e (1) and 3. g. (3).

Section 1 Amendment to ARTICLE XII GENERAL BUSINESS DISTRICT B-3, Section 12.3 USES SUBJECT TO SPECIAL CONDITIONS Paragraph 9.

9. Automobile service station, as defined in this Ordinance subject to the following:
a. Driveways shall be in accordance with the standards of Section 18.36 DRIVEWAY STANDARDS. Only one (1) driveway shall be permitted from any street unless the Planning Commission determines an additional driveway would meet the intent of Section 18.36 DRIVEWAY STANDARDS.

b. The minimum lot area shall be one (1) acre, (43,560 square feet) with one street side equal to at least two hundred fifty (250) feet in width and so arranged that ample space is available for motor vehicles which are required to wait.

c. All automotive repair shall be conducted within an enclosed building.

d. A four feet and six inch (4'-6") obscuring wall, landscaped berm and/or landscaping in accordance with the standards of Section 18.17 WALLS AND BERMS shall be provided where abutting or adjacent to a residential district.

e. All lighting shall be shielded from adjacent residential districts and shall be in accordance with Section 18.19 EXTERIOR LIGHTING.

f. The operations shall be limited to the terms of the definition in Section 2.2 DEFINITIONS, 6. Auto Service Station.

g. Sufficient parking for vehicles to be repaired shall be provided in the rear yard. The Planning Commission may allow parking in the front or side yard if the rear yard abuts a residential district and landscaping is provided to screen the parking area in addition to that required by Section 18.16 LANDSCAPING STANDARDS.

h. All outside storage must be reviewed and approved by the Fire Department for compliance to the National Fire Prevention Code. Vehicles, equipment or other materials for rent, sale or display shall not be permitted.

i. The location of gasoline storage and sales shall be reviewed by the Fire Department for compliance to the National Fire Prevention Code.

j. Pumps or other equipment used in servicing of motor vehicles shall be placed and used only inside the lot lines and shall be set back not less than eighteen (18) feet from any property line and not less than forty (40) feet from any residential boundary line.

k. Overhead garage doors shall have a minimum front yard of seventy-five (75) feet or face the side yard.

l. The site plan shall illustrate the height, proposed clearance, materials, colors and signs for any canopy. The Planning Commission shall approve the canopy only upon finding architectural and aesthetic compatibility with the surrounding area.

m. The applicant shall submit, for Fire Department review and approval, a Pollution Incident Protection Plan (PIPP) which describes measures to prevent groundwater contamination caused by accidental gasoline spills or leakage such as special check valves, drain back catch basins and automatic shut off valves.

n. The project shall comply with the fire suppression regulations of Section 36 of the Township Code of Ordinances, "Self Service Gasoline Stations."

o. In the event the automobile service station use is abandoned or terminated, all underground storage tanks shall be removed from the premises in accordance with the National Fire Prevention Code.

Section 2 Amendment to Section 18.24 SITE PLAN REVIEW (ALL DISTRICTS) Paragraph 3.e. (1)

3.e. Site Plans — General Requirements

(1) Responsibility

1.1 A site plan may be prepared under the principal direction of a Registered Architect, Registered Civil Engineer, Registered Community Planner, Registered Land Surveyor or Registered Landscape Architect (licensed to practice in the State of Michigan).

1.2 Information relating to trees and woodlands shall be prepared under the direction of a registered forester or degreed forester for sites with designated woodlands which are being disturbed. Sites having no designated woodlands or where designated woodlands are not being disturbed may have information relating to trees and woodlands prepared by a registered or degreed forester, a registered or degreed landscape architect, or a degreed botanist or horticulturist. If, in the latter case, there appear to be discrepancies in the information or if the applicant requests that a protected or landmark/historic tree not be counted toward replacement due to health/condition, the Township reserves the right to require the applicant to engage the services of a registered forester.

1.3 The tree inventory shall be done jointly by the professionals stated above and a Registered Land Surveyor or Registered Civil Engineer. However, the Principal shall in no case expand his contribution to the plan beyond the field of expertise of his profession or field of qualifications explicitly in his license. Plan components not covered by the qualifications of the Principal shall be developed by registered professionals having the requisite qualifications.

1.4 The name and address of the . . . (no change to this paragraph).

Section 3 Amendment to Section 18.24 SITE PLAN REVIEW (ALL DISTRICTS) Paragraph 3.g. (3) 3.10

3.10 An irrigation system plan for watering and draining landscaped areas beyond one hundred (100) feet of a main water outlet, or other provisions, to ensure proper irrigation during establishment period and in the future.

PART II. Conflicting Provisions Repealed.

Any Ordinance or part of Ordinances in conflict herewith are repealed save that in all other respects Ordinance No. 94, as amended, is hereby ratified and reaffirmed.

PART III. Effective Date:
The provisions of this ordinance shall be in full force and effective immediately upon publication.PART IV. Adoption.
This ordinance may be adopted by the Township Board of the Charter Township of Northville, pursuant to authority of Act No. 184, Public Acts of 1943, as amended at their next regular/special meeting.

Increased energy consumption now more than ever because people don't have the high cost of oil to deter them from being wasteful.

I think we learned that we should economize. I think there is an energy awareness. We have learned. Do we have to provide a tax credit for it continuously? I don't think so.

In other areas like social services would you support decreased funding?

You're talking about entitlements. Entitlements include social security, welfare, Medicaid and Medicare. Let's set aside Social Security and talk about the other components.

The biggest increase in recent years has been Medicaid and Medicare. There is fraud involved in that process; there is waste involved even in veterans' benefits where we know we've been paying to some deceased beneficiaries . . .

We have to start making people accountable for their own actions even though they are at a poverty level. We can't keep throwing money at them without at least making them co-pay . . .

Some argue that poor families stay on welfare so they have health care available for the kids. What are your feelings on a nationalized health care program?

Absolutely not. It would be a disaster. The federal government can't even balance the budget. Why would it do anything for it to start being a service provider? . . .

We're talking about the unemployed, self-employed, small business, etc. The health care issue itself is getting to be an almost insurmountable problem.

To create a program totally aside from the national health care program would utilize the government only as a facilitator getting together the medical group, the insurance industry, the consumers and perhaps even from the legal community. You have to start with tort reform. You have to change the manner in which doctors are forced to pay huge malpractice premiums . . .

We can provide some tax incentives and provide some tort reform . . .

Would you support any cuts in the defense budget?

The defense budget has been cut the last seven years in a row. It could be cut more. There is more fat there, of course. Realize it has already been cut.

I think it could go down lower. By how much?

I have no figures in mind. But cuts have been made for the last seven years. That probably puts us on a level that goes back 30-40 years.

We have a responsibility as a super power in this world of staying strong. Not that we need to be the world's policeman because we have the (United Nations) forces to do that. But we have to play, I believe, a major role to make sure we are there to help.

We can't strip ourselves down. The Democrats are trying very hard. The suggestion is there is going to be a peace dividend. That's garbage. It's a misnomer. There is no such thing as a peace dividend.

If anything, what are you going to do with the people that are coming out of the military? . . . The first so-called savings should be to help those people get back on their feet . . .

Do you think a trade treaty with Mexico will help or hurt U.S. industry, particularly the auto industry?

We have a relationship with Mexico; and we are trading with Mexico. People complain about the jobs that are lost, and I think there have been some. I think that's a short-term situation. In the long-term, I think you're going to see the problem ease up.

One of the attractions to Mexico is the wages and that's changing. There are also some other costs born into the Mexico economy . . .

In the short term there are going to be some problems. In the long run we have to understand that the world is becoming much smaller and our trading partners are going to be the common market in Europe, they're going to be Germany, Japan, South America and Mexico . . .

We have to, however, make sure the playing field is level. It hasn't been. That's been a problem.

Do you support restrictions on Japanese imports?

I would support something that was equitable and fair for all. So that one side doesn't have an advantage over the other. Whatever that is, and it may be just what you suggest, then so be it.

The other problem we have in this country is the government putting heavy, heavy control on the various industries. In Japan and other countries, it's a little easier to get away from that. It's not as easy here.

Two former education secretaries, one Democrat and one Republican, suggested imposing a 1-percent tax on business for worker training. Is that something you would support?

Any time you're proposing some kind of federal-government inspired program that would tax employers, watch out. It seems to me that any time the government imposes a tax, I have problems with that. I would resist that. I would certainly look at it very carefully.

What would you do to improve education in the United States?

As you know, education is more of a local than federal thing. I think the federal government's role in this whole thing is to establish some minimum standards when it comes to curriculum. Local control is still pretty special to people. People take pride in their schools.

Don't you agree that it's a national problem?

It's a national problem that they're not graduating. There ought to be something in the President's six points. Those are the kinds of things I believe are effective — the drug free thing and there's a program called DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) I believe. It's a very good, effective program.

Is it worth subsidizing?

My understanding is that it is. Another program, Head Start, is working very well. When you say subsidy, we are really helping ourselves because it's an investment in those kids' future.

I think that Head Start program and DARE will provide some goals to shoot for. The individual school districts and states will have to develop some funding equity and that seems to be the problem particularly in this district . . .

We've already touched on this somewhat. Do you feel U.S. energy policy should focus more on the production of more energy, as through offshore drilling, or encouraging decreased consumption through methods like regulating auto mileage standards?

Let's take the whole business of environment. The U.S. needn't take a back seat to any country in the world. When it comes to environmental controls, we have some of the most rigid.

When you travel around the world, you'll find that we are No. 1. To begin with, we have an environment that is protected a great deal more than many people realize. We still have to protect the air and water and whatever else, but we certainly do not have to hide, as some countries suggest that we're not doing our part . . .

Some companies like Dow and GM (General Motors) and others do a lot to help the environment. A lot of people don't realize that.

How should Congress have responded to the Los Angeles riots? Do we need more aid to the cities?

We don't need more aid thrown into the cities. I think that's part of the problem. We need to look at it from another perspective. Obviously what happened, the government has to deal with it when it becomes an emergency situation.

To eliminate those symptoms, you have to get to the root cause. Jack Kemp had a good idea with the enterprise zones. People don't burn what they own. The enterprise zone allows for the waiver of some tax credits. . .

What do you consider the major achievement in your life?

You may think that's an easy question. I don't see myself as having attained some honorable status at any one point for any one thing. What I can point to from a background perspective is I have run a business and raised a family.

The other side is community involvement. It's always been an avocation. I've never taken time one for anything. Who gets paid for being a PTA president? Or a president of the parish council or homeowners association?

I'm currently vice chair of the Troy Chamber of Commerce, and I pay to be on the chamber.

The reward is just doing it. I enjoy doing it . . .

If you were elected to Congress what committee would you most like to be on?

I have a personal interest in the foreign affairs committee. There are others. I really hadn't thought a whole lot about this because I don't put too many things out in front of me. I'll worry about it when I get there, but certainly appropriations is important. I have an interest in that.

Our Opinion

Briggs offers stronger option for Congress

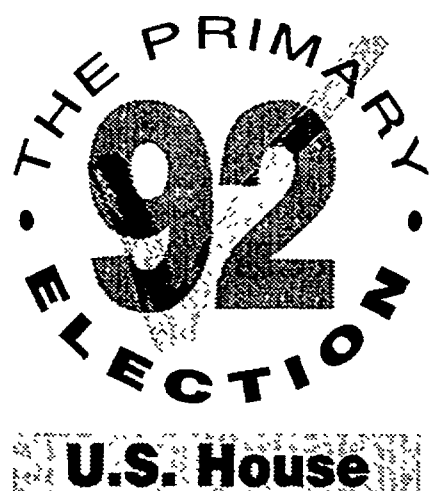

The only Democratic primary in the Northville area next month pits Michael Meyer of Novi against Walter Briggs IV of Birmingham for their party's nomination to represent the new 11th District in the U.S. House of Representatives. The district includes the part of the Northville community which lies in Oakland County, that part north of Baseline Road.

The contest presents an interesting difference in approaches. Of the two, we think WALTER BRIGGS would best represent the area in Congress.

Meyer's candidacy isn't a necessarily bad one — just an unrealistic one. His standing in this race helps point out the flaws in the system for elections like these. Underfunded and not backed by the power structure, Meyer faces an uphill battle just to get his name before the public. In addition, some of his positions seem to lack roots in the reality of today's nation.

We feel Briggs is a better choice for a potential member of Congress. The two candidates differ on some specific issues, but generally Briggs seems more ready for the job. His background as an accountant may prove useful if he reaches the House, and his positions are reasonable and well-thought-out. He also has a history of interest in the post, having run in the past against the retiring William Broomfield.

Briggs does not support a tax increase for all of the right reasons. He understands that the public has lost faith in government and the government must prove itself before asking for more money. We also like Briggs' health care plan. He proposes to provide insurance for the poor (who already can receive emergency room treatment, which, in turn, is subsidized by everyone who uses the system.) He makes a good argument that a government-facilitated, national health care plan could work while actually saving money.

Briggs holds no illusions about what the federal government can do to improve locally controlled educational institutions. But he does support Head Start, a proven method of improving student performance that has been underfunded in recent years.

Briggs is an outsider in the political arena. We believe some of his hopes for balancing the budget and cutting government waste may be overly idealistic. But we also believe that in a time when change is so desperately needed, a little idealism, combined with the financial background he could bring, would benefit the country.

Meyer has earned empathy. But Briggs gets the endorsement.

New board should pick consultants

First let us say this: We're pleased that Northville Township appears poised to cut the ties to its current legal consultant.

But we question the way the township is going about it.

The township board has scheduled an interview session for July 22, and that night could pick one of four firms for the job held since 1986 by various incarnations of the infamous Law, Hemming, Essad & Polaczyk group.

A change in consultants is badly needed, but as much as we would like to see an immediate ouster of Law, Hemming, et al., a larger issue exists: Why is a board stacked with at least three lame ducks (and the possibility of more come Aug. 4) deciding on the long-range consulting needs of the township?

Shouldn't such decisions be left to the new board, to the people who will have to work with a new set of attorneys?

The board appears split on what to do. Clerk Tom Cook and Trustee Thomas Handyside suggested the decision be held until after the November general election, while Trustee James Nowka has been a big proponent of interviews and decisions prior to Aug. 4.

It definitely is time to say goodbye and good riddance to Law, Hemming, Essad & Polaczyk, the highly politicized outfit that has played kingmaker in the Northville, Plymouth, and Canton townships arena since the mid-1980s. Like the candidates for Wayne County Commission and state House seats we have endorsed against, change is needed to quash the insiders-are-everything philosophy espoused by the current cast of local politicians and attorneys.

But we'd strongly suggest that the board to leave that decision to those who win seats in November.

Oil raises fundamental issues

Items from our catalog . . .

● Phil Jerome, the executive editor of this paper and a lifelong Northville resident, likes to say that all the great issues of the day are present in smaller communities like this one. (I'm pretty sure he didn't invent that thought, but he does like to say it.) It's absolutely true. From urban sprawl to race relations to drug abuse, the things that happen right around us are the same things shaping the course of our state and our nation.

Lately I've been working, all too slowly, on a series of stories about oil drilling in Northville, and its implications to this community and others like it. It's an incredibly involved subject, and I'm almost sorry I got into it, since I've said the stories were supposed to start weeks ago. (The first one will appear July 27. Guaranteed.)

What I've found most interesting is the way an apparently isolated topic like this can cut right to the heart of so many core issues — property rights, public health, and the structure of our government, for starters. Interesting stuff, and I hope you find it to be so too.

● Seems like the state Parole Board just can't do a thing right these days, doesn't it? They've been ripped from one end of the state to the other for not keeping tighter control over Leslie Allen Williams, the confessed killer of several young girls in nearby communities.

Last week came an apparent error of more local impact. A hearing for Kenneth Loveday, whose jeep killed two joggers on Eight Mile Road last year, resulted in the granting of his parole. Both the victims' families and the Oakland County Prosecutor's office intended to speak at the hearing against the parole option, but guess what? Nobody told them about it, in spite of several notations in the relevant folder that these people were opposing parole. A change is gonna come; count on it.

● The mail on the two failed millage-increase proposals for the Northville School District is still coming in, from people who voted both ways.

After publishing the latest batch today, I think we've still got about six or seven letters waiting for next week. Plus four others which are waiting for the authors' signatures before we can print them (we do withhold names at times, but the letters must be signed).

A couple of weeks ago I commented that from the perspective of the newspaper, it's been many years (if ever) since any topic brought this strong a reaction. That's even truer now than when I said it.

The other shoe begins to fall

The state Court of Claims let the other shoe start falling to the floor last month.

Just as I told you last year it would.

Ingham Circuit Judge James Giddings, sitting as the Court of Claims, ruled state government is obliged to pay the costs of operating trial courts. These are the circuit, probate and district courts in 82½ counties.

All sorts of figures are bouncing around about the cost. I would put it at $400 million per year to the state general fund.

What happened is that in 1980 the state began paying for local courts, starting and stopping with Wayne County and Detroit. The state left out suburban Wayne and the other 82 counties.

Now, most people reading Detroit papers and watching Detroit TV have no idea how bitterly outstaters resent that funneling of their taxes down I-96 to 2 Woodward Avenue. So 76 counties and 56 local units hired Grand Rapids attorney Doug Van Essen to sue.

It took three years. The appeals process will take another three years. But Van Essen's clients are sure to prevail, since many Supreme Court justices are committed to full state funding of trial courts.

Let's put the money into perspective. The state budget currently is in the $7.5 billion ballpark, putting this cost at 5 percent of the total.

But consider what else has happened in the last two punk economic years:

- Gov. John Engler settled the Oakland County mental health suit for several hundred million.
- The state has whacked the welfare, commerce, regulatory and other budget segments hundreds of millions more, holding the education level but throwing more burdens on universities and out-of-formula school districts.

● Engler's "cut and cap" property tax plan is on the ballot and getting enthusiastic support from most Republican legislative candidates. If approved, it will cost more than $1 billion when phased in over five years.

My prediction has been that if any two of a long list of things happened, Michiganans will face a substantial tax increase. The Oakland suit was first on the list. The court suit is likely to be the second. Talk about "fat" all you want, the money just isn't there, and the economic growth isn't possible to pay for these falling shoes.

Again: In the next one to eight years, we face a substantial increase in state taxes, whether anyone likes it or not.

The forces are in motion. We can't legislate against them any more than we can legislate against an earthquake or a heat wave.

Meanwhile, we can breathe a sigh of relief that the "K.I.D.S." proposal fell flat on getting signatures for the ballot.

Never mind what the letters K.I.D.S. stand for because it's a sham. This Ypsilanti-based group wants to reward the Michigan Constitution to make equitable school funding a constitutional right. In short, they are inviting, asking for, begging for a lawsuit to narrow the gap between rich and poor school districts. Districts spending $5,000 to $8,000 would be knocked down to $4,500; those spending less would be raised. It wouldn't be raising the floor; it would also be lowering the ceiling.

Kentucky had such a lawsuit. It's a smaller state with a lower price index, but the same case would have translated to $3 billion of tax increases in Michigan. And in these suburbs, our kids' school programs would have been reduced.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Letters

Editorial unfair, uninformed

To the editor:

I am compelled to respond to your editorial on the superintendent's evaluation which appeared in the July 6 issue of The Northville Record. My initial reaction of shock and disbelief turned quickly to anger. You criticize the school board by stating it "glossed over" the area of community relations during that evaluation. "Glossed over?" What was that assertion based upon? No reporter attended the three hour evaluation session, yet it had been announced in advance and was certainly an open meeting. No one from the paper requested copies of the completed evaluation forms which are public records. No one questioned the board members or the superintendent about the evaluation.

"Glossed over" according to my dictionary means to give a "false or misleading interpretation." Is this what you, the editor, are insinuating that we have done?

Had you attended that session you would have heard an open and extensive dialogue between board members and the superintendent reviewing and evaluating not only Dr. Rezmierski's performance as chief executive officer but also the performance of the district. To set the record straight, the areas of communications and community relations were discussed in great depth.

Communication was lacking? I don't think so. Throughout the millage campaign there was a total of 47 meetings attended by 1,300 individuals. There were 550 responses from citizens to the written survey and "phone-in." There were several meetings with the Rotary, Kiwanis, Chamber of Commerce, and Senior Citizens. Dr. Atchison hosted a meeting at his home for local merchants and newcomers to the community. The board held an open forum to which community members were invited. Dr. Rezmierski and I taped an interview with Omnicom on millage facts and issues which was aired on cable TV several times during the week prior to the election.

Fliers were distributed to every home in the district by Citizens for a Quality Education. The Northville School News, also sent to every home, gave a thorough explanation of millage needs, issues, as well as facts. Communications were sent to the homes of all Northville students with a millage question and answer sheet.

We need better communication?

Perhaps. School finance is complex, especially when one must consider the ever-impending effects of future state actions as the state balances its budget at the expense of local governments. State ballot issues in November could, if passed, change the way schools are financed.

Had you been present at the superintendent's evaluation, you would have heard for yourself just how deeply concerned we are about communication and community support. No one knows better than we that community support is essential; in fact it is the cornerstone of a healthy school district. Plans for next year were discussed, including many suggestions which originated with citizens. These include a column in The Northville Record in which we can discuss the many issues facing schools and education, one at a time; televising board meetings on cable TV; monthly "phone-ins" where citizens can question board members as well as administrators; and Town Meetings held by the Legislative Action Network members to discuss with the community the repercussions of the various proposed property tax measures. Is this "glossed over?"

The editorial goes further. "... a crowbar was almost needed to pry out a straight answer to a simple question." "The superintendent could do more to demonstrate a commitment to openness in government." What is your basis for these statements? There have been many inquiries from citizens for information. Every citizen who wrote or called received a response. Back in January, 60-plus community members on the strategic planning team were inundated with data on district programs and finances to aid them in making an informed recommendation to the board on the proposed millage rate. Is that not an example of open government? Information is and has been available to those who want it. Simple questions, especially when they deal with school finance, don't always have simple answers. However, straightforward responses have always been forthcoming without the need of a "crowbar."

An editorial is a powerful instrument for influencing the public. While, by definition, an editorial is an expression of opinion, as readers, we assume that these opinions have some basis in fact. When they don't, such as the piece on the superintendent's evaluation, you perform a grave injustice, not only to the school district, but to the community as a whole. By unnecessarily sowing seeds of doubt as to the openness and credibility of the district, you needlessly undermine that very community trust which is so essential to our success.

Jean Hansen
Northville Board of Education
Editor's note: The Record did not learn of the evaluation session until after it had taken place. The news story and consequent editorial were based on the evaluation as presented at a regular school board meeting.

Column was unfair to representative

To the editor:

As a woman I resent Mr. Tyree's latest tirade against State Rep. Georgina Goss.

We all agree that the campaign finance system is imperfect, but why would Mr. Tyree attack a woman who is working to change the system? A woman who has sponsored legislation to reform the campaign finance laws in our state.

Frankly, I do not believe Mr. Tyree's motives are to fairly inform the public. There are two state representatives and one state senator elected to represent this district. Only one of them is a woman. An article that compared the fundraising abilities of men and women would be fair, and it would also be fair if the Record printed Common Cause's list of PAC money contributed to each state legislator.

Mr. Tyree's article was not balanced in any way. If he is deliberately slanting his stories to attack a particular woman he is unethical, and if he is biased against women in politics he should not be a reporter.

Eleanor R. Gestmeier

Don't forget Goss' record at election

To the editor:

Remember Georgina Goss? Of course you do! She was the Township Supervisor who was so conspicuous by her absences when controversy arose in the Township. It was she, who was remiss in returning or accepting phone calls.

Georgina is now our representative in the Legislature who chose to ignore us until the last month. Now our household has received two pieces of communication notifying us that she is in there pitching for us.

We must give Ms. Goss some credit for her tenure as supervisor. It was she who involved Northville in the WTUA sewer project, leaving the Township to carry a major part of a $100-million debt. She should get credit for signing away the Northville density control of the prison for land that cannot be developed without detailed authorization from the state. She should get credit for unauthorized spending of $100,000 for an architect on a library project which ultimately went down in defeat. She also spent unauthorized township money for a publicity millage vote.

Georgina Goss took no stand on the Ward Presbyterian controversy. She allowed a most abusive member of the Planning Commission to remain in office until he became intolerable. When she finally did remove him she reminded him that "jobs (offices) are not forever."

As a legislator, she gets credit for being absent when the critical State Estate Tax was voted on. She refuses interviews. Insisting that questions be delivered to her to be answered at her "pleasure."

Lastly, Township monies funded her college undergraduate tuition.

Ms. Goss does not deserve to be re-elected. There are too many worms in that big apple.

Mary Braddock

Thanks to those who responded

To the editor:

A heartfelt thank you for the fearless fighters of Northville—Police and Fire Department; to the police captain and officers; to the fire chief and firemen; who answered the 911 call at Star Conv. For a job well done; quickly and efficiently. For the compassion and concern exhibited to all in the facility.

A grateful employee

Letters/Northville Public Schools millage

Time comes when enough is enough

To the editor:

I have been keeping up with the flood of letters about the recent defeat of the millage increase and feel it is time to voice an opinion from the side that voted against the increase. I have three children in the Northville school system and am tired of people saying that I don't care about the schools or the children. Quite the opposite is true; however, there comes a time when the people have got to say enough!

I have heard residents of Northville say they want to keep this a bedroom community and they will pay whatever taxes they have to to keep it that way. Wake up! It's time to help get light industry or more commercial business in the township to help with the tax base or many of us will not be able to afford to live in Northville.

It won't be the lack of good education that will deter people from moving into Northville—it will be the taxes. Please don't compare us to West Bloomfield or Novi—we do not have the per capita earnings of either of those cities. Please don't say people will not move to Northville because of the schools. Look at Plymouth-Canton. That is one of the fastest growing communities and they have had year-round schools, pay-to-play sports and yes, their increase was also voted down recently. They too will lose their award winning marching band.

These are sad facts that we will have to live with temporarily. We will have to take time to recoup our losses and start afresh gradually. I have children in the sports programs and the music programs. They will lose out too. It's time to take a look at what we have got... not at what we can't have. It's time to rethink our structure. This is a wonderful town, but if we keep raising our taxes it's going to be a lonely town.

Please do not eliminate program

To Mrs. Hansen and members of the Board of Education:

I write today in support of Charlie Stilec and his Student Assistance Program. I have but recently been advised that this program has been cut from the budget. I urge you to reconsider this extreme action.

The disease of alcoholism and drug addiction kills; it cares nothing for race, age or religion. People die, absolutely alone and afraid. Lives are forever scarred by its effects. This plague of our times need not run rampant. These things I know from my own experience. I am a recovering alcoholic and drug addict, clean and sober for over three and a half years. I have lived the hell that people call addiction and am still alive to tell the tale. I am 23 years old.

There is hope for myself and others like me. That hope lies in education. We must guide our youngsters through their high school years and beyond. We must instill in them a sense of self-esteem, compassion and love. In my experience these three form the foundation of a whole, happy and productive life. We must also provide information and decision making skills. Upon this foundation, I am confident that our children will become happy, productive and whole human beings.

Charlie Stilec was instrumental in my admittance to the Maple Grove treatment center over three years ago, and has since offered support and encouragement to both my mother and myself. As a result of Charlie and others like him, I have come to know peace of mind, success and freedom from the chains that once bound me. I can claim, for the first time in my memory, to be a complete human being.

Again, I beg of you to give careful consideration to this matter. I remain confident that a compromise can be reached. We cannot afford to be complacent; the lives of our children may hang in the balance.

A bittersweet thanks to the community

To the editor:

How ironic and somewhat bittersweet that a letter of thanks to our supportive community should appear in The Northville Record on the heels of the millage defeat.

As I read the beautiful thank you written by Angela Helmer in the June 18 Record, I could not help but be saddened. She speaks of all her high school memories—the choir, sporting events, Music Boosters, bands, clubs—that pulled the class of '92 together and "will always remain etched" in her heart. What memories will be etched in the hearts of next year's senior class? Since the millage increase has failed, there will not be any band programs, plays, clubs, choir concerts or yearbook. Our athletic teams will still be competitive next year, but in the years following, that competitive edge will be greatly diminished by the absence of junior varsity teams which groom these young athletes.

Ms. Helmer thanked the community for all the support and strength it has given her. It seems as if that support has suddenly disappeared. Ms. Helmer goes on to say that when anyone asks her where she is from, she will proudly smile, hold her head up high and say, "I'm from Northville, Mich.—a wonderful, supportive community." It is unfortunate that students in future graduating classes will be unable to reiterate such a positive comment.

I hope that all of you who voted "no" to the 1.4-mill increase experienced some remorse as you read Ms. Helmer's lovely tribute. I also hope that you will take the time to learn the facts and understand the issues before you vote again.

Basic problem is high pay for teachers

To the editor:

Regarding the recent school millage:

The basic problem is the excessive pay levels of the Northville teachers. We are being whipsawed by the "public employee—public money beneficiary complex."

I am well aware of current salaries for many job categories in southeast Michigan, and the public school teachers—Northville included—are making more on an absolute basis than what nearly all would make in free market jobs. This is true on an absolute basis and becomes even more disparate if the shorter work year is factored. Most citizens would be shocked at the salary levels of today's teachers. "Poor teachers" is a fiction.

The process seems to work thus. Teacher's spouse gets elected to school board. School board gives teachers (and indirectly themselves) pay raise and contracts future pay raises, without monies to support these future obligations. Pay raises take place, depleting money for other programs. With shortfalls, teachers' salaries are off limits for discussion. School board chooses the most visible, painful cuts to hold our feet to the fire. (School bus transportation was successfully used in South Lyon a couple of years ago.) Parents join teachers, spouses and other "complex" members and pass millage on the third or fourth try.

Net results is Michigan with the highest or near highest property tax rate in the U.S. with only average results on standardized achievement tests of pupils.

The "smart" letter from the High School seniors in the July 2 Record is indeed misguided in chastising "no" millage voters for being stingy. To the voters that pay top property taxes in the U.S. with the highest or Work within framework of less funding

To the editor:

The letter signed by the long list of NHS seniors has prompted me to write. While my hope is directed at them, but I hope it will impact all those feeling a sense of hopelessness following the millage defeat. Remember, necessity is the mother of invention. It is time to put our energy to work into ways to work within the framework of the reduced funding. This year the tax-paying voters signaled a desire for change... a desired quality education coupled with accountability in expenditures, a tighter budget and sacrifices by all involved.

First let me point out that we are (maybe) beginning to emerge from a serious two-year-long depression. We have record unemployment and underemployment. Making a mortgage and putting food on the table has, for some families, become a lesson in survival. It has also affected my family. My husband, who works in the automobile industry, has taken a dramatic drop in his compensation for the last two years. Senior citizens living on a fixed income have seen their living expenses rise and the return on their investments (if they have any) drop. Any new tax would have to be paid out of their non-fixed expense fund (i.e. food, gas, entertainment).

The depression has spurred civil unrest which is being acted out in many different ways. People are fed up with government scandals, control by Political Action Committees (PACs), pork barrel politics, pathetic Senate hearings, conflicts of interest and a "me first" public sentiment.

History has shown that before any real change begins a crisis must occur. Well, a crisis has occurred in education. For many years the millage in this district has automatically passed. This producing a wealth of education opportunity for our Northville students. The variety of class selection, extracurricular activities, and computer availability has never been seen before in the history of education, and is, we should be reminded, a privilege and of an entitlement or a right.

Those worried that Northville is the only school district cutting back should take another look at the news. A financial crisis has hit almost every school district. The belt tightening in education is epidemic. College admissions directors are well aware of what is occurring and will take the effects of the depression into consideration.

The primary purpose of this letter is to challenge all NHS students into action. As a united force they could have a significant impact on this crisis if they would properly channel their energy. I would like to see a Student Action Committee set up with the primary purpose of creating, organizing and implementing alternative funding methods for the most vital of the lost programs. I'd like to see a few of the highly motivated student leaders go to the school board, administrators, union representatives or the newspaper with proposals on some creative ways to raise money and cut expenses. When you think about it, there are many things that the students could do. Consider, for example, organizing work crews for summer clean-up in August (washing windows, floors and buses; refinishing gym floors; painting; and playground preparation.) What about cutting grass, snow shoveling and emptying trash bins. Every little bit helps save the district a few dollars that can be used more directly on education instead of support services. How about having car washes and selling candy and T-shirts to fund the lost activities or to create a grant program for those who cannot afford to "pay to play." Additionally, businesses and local families could be solicited for donations or sponsorship of specific schools or programs. Once the taxpayers of this district would see how resourceful and determined the students are they would surely jump on the bandwagon.

Give me some thought. We can overcome this funding loss, but it will take hard work from all involved — parents and students alike. I'd be happy to discuss these ideas with anyone who would like to take this challenge.

Patricia Tomsa

Don't criticize if you don't pay the taxes

To the editor:

In response to the flourish of letters from the non-paying taxpayers, the students of Northville, I say when they become productive taxpayers of the school system, then they will have the privilege of putting forth their irate criticism to those of us who support the schools, colleges, police, fire, recreation, library, parks, etc. All of us are not in the affluent class in this community, but find it difficult paying these tax bills.

I suggest they voice their criticism to their representatives and the governor in Lansing who have made the drastic cuts in education. There is an old adage, "Don't bite the hand that feeds you."

Scott Kremer controls the locomotive at right in his elaborate main control room.

History On Track

By LYNN HIGGINS
Special Writer

Imagine designing a house to accommodate your mother-in-law and your model train too.

That's just what Northville resident Scott Kremer did with the house he had built about 10 years ago. Along with an addition above the garage for his mother-in-law's apartment, he designed his basement to go with his idea for a model train layout.

Kremer, 46, still lives in this house with his wife, Kitty, and two children, Robb, 14, and Kristi, 9.

Kremer's railroad layout is a scale model of a portion of the Great Northern Railroad which merged with several other railroads to form Burlington Northern Railroad in 1970. The Great Northern Railroad ran between St. Paul, Minn. and Seattle, Wash., and was the northernmost of all transcontinental United States railroads.

The specific portion that Kremer models begins in Wenatchee, on the Columbia River, in the central part of Washington, and travels westward over Stephen's Pass to Skyomish. The layout is set in a period between 1935 and 1940. The train route has about 72 miles of track between the two towns. Kremer's railroad runs nine scale miles, so he has to squeeze things together, "to create an illusion, giving the feeling that you're out there."

Part of the unique design for the house includes a door on the left side of the front of the house. This entrance leads directly to the top of the stairs going to the basement and Kremer's layout. Pictures of trains and locomotives line the entrance hall and the stairs. Railroad memorabilia even spills into the living room.

The first part of the layout that visitors see are tracks that "tunnel" through the walls near the stairs, eventually traveling underneath them, and finally appearing again going across the doorway. The part in the wall can be seen through clear plastic and the section going over the doorway has hinges so it can be lifted for easier access to the other half of the basement.

It doesn't even look like a basement. The layout itself is in a backward question mark shape. The curved part has drywall around the top but the lower half is open to the other end of the basement.

The track runs from the train yard in Wenatchee on the lower left side of the question mark, around the curved part and back around the other side of Skyomish. It is set up this way to mimic the actual route the Great Northern Railroad used.

In the past 10 years, four people have consistently worked on the layout. That includes Kremer himself, his childhood friend Denny Thomson, and two neighbors, Al Haxon and Jeff Higgins, who started when he was 14 years old. Several other people have worked on the layout in some facet or another throughout the years, mostly specialists in computers or electronics.

Thomson is a college professor in North Carolina, who flies his own plane in on weekends and his vacations. His own collection of Great Northern locomotives and cars, which span the period from 1945 to 1970, has never run anywhere except on Kremer's layout.

Haxon has just now begun to work on a layout of his own modeling the Boston & Main line. Higgins has been working on his Chessie System layout in his parents' basement, waiting until he can have his own basement to play with.

Kremer refers to the layout not as "mine," but "ours." He feels that it belongs to all four of them; it just happens to be in his basement.

Kremer has wanted to build such a layout since he was a child. He and Thomson grew up together in Detroit, sharing a fascination with trains.

"The most common way to get involved in model railroading," said Kremer, "especially with people of my generation, was to have a Lionel train set when we were kids."

He was 14 when he got into HO scale trains and gradually decided what he wanted to do with them.

Kremer became interested in the Great Northern Railroad when he was 17 or 18, at first because he liked the color scheme and design of the locomotives. When he started reading about it, he found its history fascinating. That interest, spurred on through a lot of research, grew to become love by the time he was about 24.

Then his parents told him a remarkable story.

On Aug. 9, 1945, his parents were traveling by train on the Great Northern Railroad out to Great Falls, Mont., to visit his father's parents. They were in a compartment in the next to the last car on a train called the "Empire Builder." It was actually two trains that ran on the same schedule and number, but were spaced about 15 minutes apart.

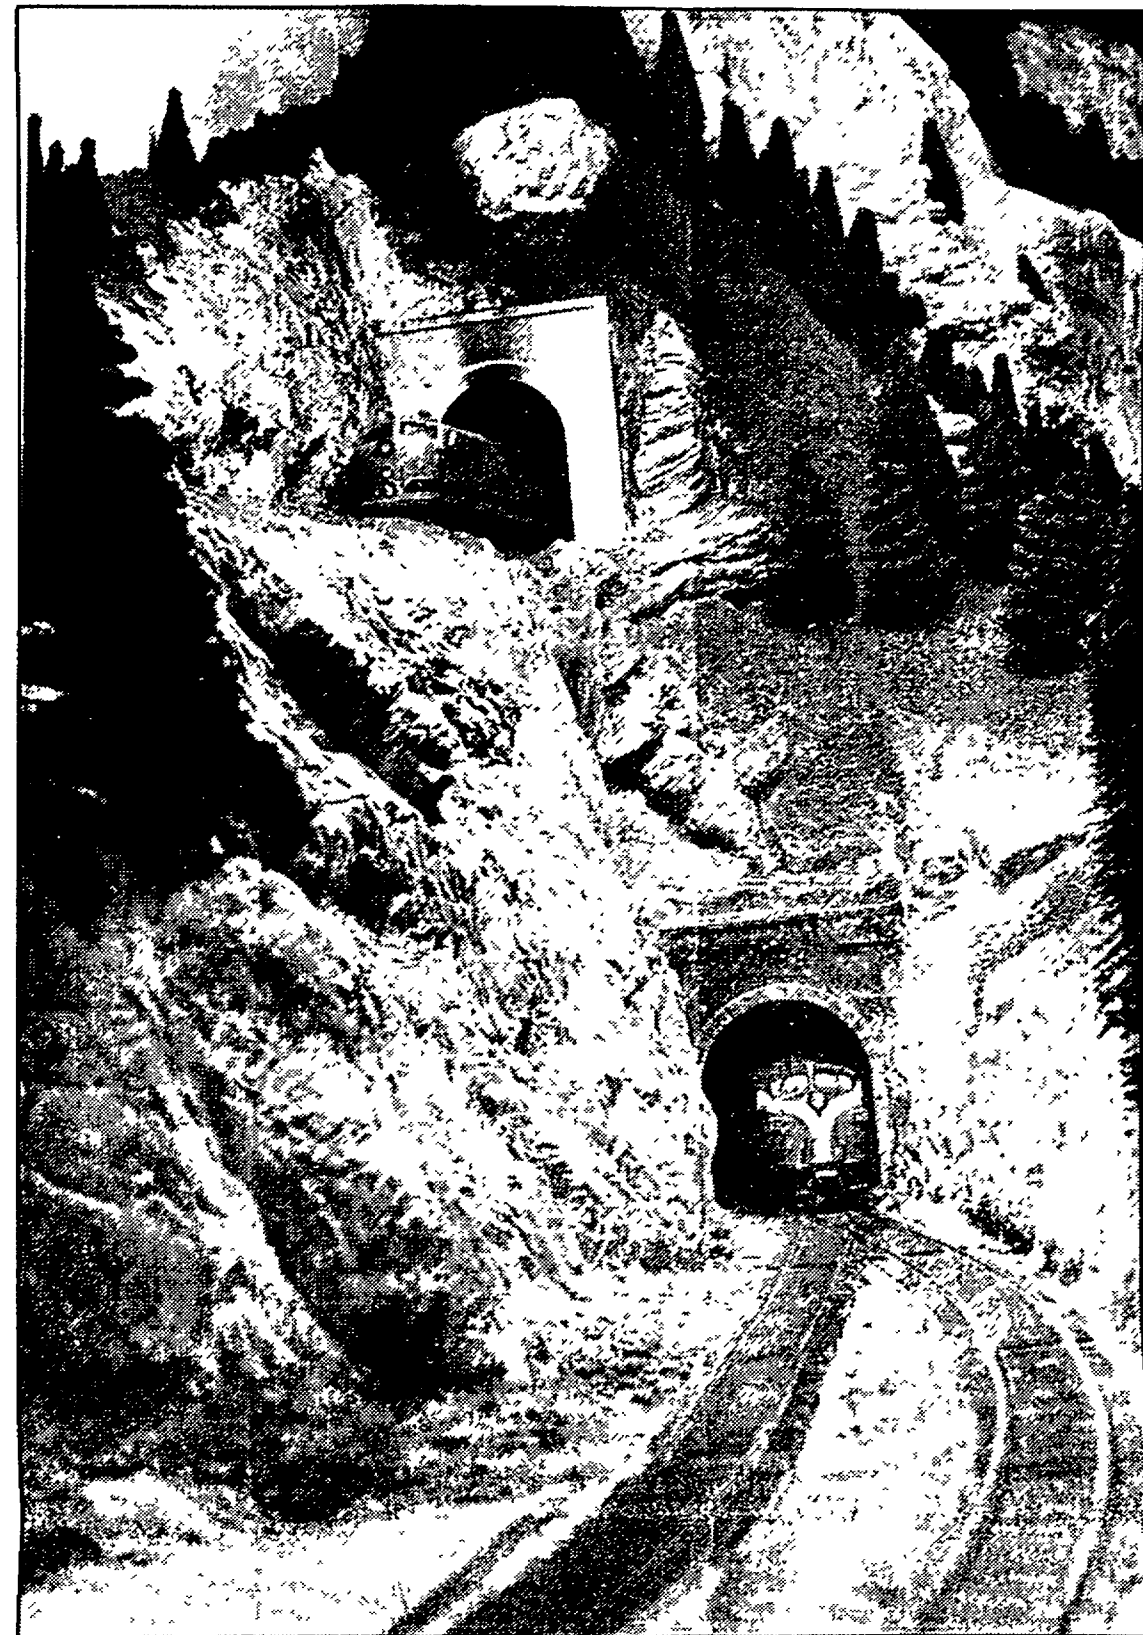

The spacing was supposed to be maintained with the help of the two workers. Stationmasters are to make sure that the trains are the required distance apart. Second, if there is an unexpected stop, the conductor puts a flare on the tracks far enough behind the first train so that the second train has enough stopping time.

It was early evening and Kremer's parents were sitting in their compartment, playing cards. His mother was three to four months pregnant with him. The porter came in to make up the berths and his father suggested going to the observation lounge in the last car have a nightcap in the meantime. His mother thought it was too early and wanted to play another game or two of cards.

Their train had a recurring problem with an overheated bearing in the tender of the steam locomotive, and they had stopped a couple times to cool it off," Kremer said. It happened again just as they were entering Michigan, N.D. and it came to a full stop.

Neither of the precautions happened. The second train, running at 45 mph, ran into the first, pushing it 500 feet down the track.

Kremer's parents were thrown around the compartment, but were not seriously hurt. When the train stopped, his father got to his feet and went to the end of the car and opened the door. What he found was the front of the second steam locomotive.

It was the worst wreck in the history of the Great Northern Railroad, with 34 people killed and 310 injured. Everyone in the observation car was killed.

"If it hadn't been for my mother's love of cards, I wouldn't be here today," said Kremer. "As a result, when I was born the Great Northern Railroad paid for it (the hospital fees); that was the settlement they got out of it."

Kremer had no idea of this event when he became interested in the Great Northern.

"I guess you could say it was almost fate that I would have some interest in the Great Northern Railroad."

Kremer has been out to the area he models about 15 times. "Kitty and I drove almost the entire main line in 1973 and we stopped at every Great Northern facility . . . from Seattle to the Rocky Mountains and then about half of them from the Rocky Mountains to St. Paul." He took hundreds of pictures along the way to preserve some of the history of the Great Northern Railroad before it disappeared.

The layout is in various stages of completion. Some parts have only track and bare plaster or wood, while others are complete with mountain ranges, underbrush, trees and snow.

The cities have cardboard buildings set up as models for the actual ones Kremer will construct later. He doesn't duplicate every building in town—just certain ones that mark it as being that town. They are built from actual blueprints or photos. The rest of the buildings support the style of the others, along with cars, figures and dirt roads that tell you it's 1935.

The scenery is also very important in terms of what the cities look like. The scenery goes from Skyomish which is on the west side of the summit and is very lush and green," said Kremer, "to Wenatchee, which is on the Columbia River, on the east side of the summit, about 70 miles away and it's on the edge of the desert."

One of the other things that Kremer copies is the grade profiles of the Cascade mountains. These mountains are very abrupt, steep and rugged, and trying to get the trains across them is extremely difficult, both in real life and in modeling.

The challenges involved in model railroading are what interests Kremer the most. He likes "mind puzzles"—where he has to think of how to do something, or what will make it work. This carries over into his job at Detroit Edison as a mechanical engineer, where all day he's concerned with how to get something done. He's even brought his railroad experience into the office when he had to buy engines and freight cars for Edison.

Debbie McDonald

McDonald marched into plans for annual parade

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

"I didn't know how to say NO," said Debbie McDonald about being asked by the Northville City Council to plan this year's Northville/Novi Fourth of July parade.

She has a normally busy schedule—owner of Northville Jewellers and president of Northville Kiwanis Early Bird Club—but the parade needed to be done, and she did have the experience, having been one of several who worked on last year's parade.

The sponsors were designated—Early Bird Kiwanis Club and Northville VFW Post 4012. Soon a slew of other clubs offered to help serve on weekly committees to plan for the annual parade.

They talked about fund raising, the format for correspondence to be sent out, the parade route, and having animal acts take responsibility for their own clean-up.

A theme was decided on—"Enjoy an Old Fashioned Fourth of July" and "Celebrate the 500th Anniversary of the Discovery of America."

"Floats are (were) to be judged according to theme," McDonald said, and at least one float had Christopher Columbus on it. The Kiwanis Club signed up for one too.

There were marching bands, a pet parade, antique cars, and government representatives.

And there were antique bicycles and clowns. Maybury State Park planned something, and the Livonia Family YMCA had an Indian program.

Also for $1 you could have bought a raffle ticket which offered prizes like—dinner for four at Genitti's, a night at the Wyndham Garden Hotel, movie tickets at Novi Town Center Cinema or Papa Romano's Pizza.

On "The Day" Debbie McDonald was there to organize parade entrants, instructing them where and when to go and checking them off as they marched down Main Street.

"It is a lot of work," she said, but don't you love a parade!

MTU plans to host future engineering students

Roopal Vashi and Mutsumi Yoshida, both juniors at Northville High School, recently participated in Michigan Technological University's annual Minorities Engineering Program.

The week-long biomedical engineering workshop exposes students to all the diverse engineering fields including applied technology, computer science and other engineering disciplines.

MacLean tees up president's post

Gary MacLean was named president of the Meadowbrook Country Club for the 1992 year. A member of the club since 1984, MacLean has served previous terms on the club's Membership, House and By-laws committees. He is also currently serving his third year as a member of the Board of Directors.

MacLean is president of the law firm MacLean, Proppe, MacLean and Darnell, P.C. in Farmington Hills.

Fiddlin' around

Toni and John Genitti's stage production of Fiddler on the Roof opens with a benefit performance on Friday, July 17 at 8:30 p.m. at the Masonic Temple.

Dinner theater tickets, which include Genitti's famous seven-course meal, are $34.95. Theatergoers interested in just show tickets will pay $15. The show runs July 18, 23, 24, 25, 30, 31 and August 1. Thursday and Friday performances start at 7 p.m. for dinner followed by an 8:30 p.m. curtain time. Saturday performances feature a 6:30 p.m. dinner call and 8 p.m. show time. For more information call 349-0522.

Neuro-MuScular Boosters Ball

The Providence Hospital Neuro-Muscular Institute Boosters for Crippled Children is holding its 15th Boosters Ball Saturday, July 25 at the Detroit Golf Club.

Proceeds from the annual fundraiser provide scholarships and health-care needs for handicapped children. In addition to raising funds, the Boosters also use the event to recognize the year's Inspirational Child and Humanitarian Award recipients. This year's Inspirational Child is Northville's Timothy LaForest. LaForest was selected, ball organizers said, "because he epitomizes the courage and charisma of the Institute's handicapped children."

Donations for the ball is $125 per person. Cocktails begin at 7 p.m., followed by dinner at 8 p.m. and dancing afterward.

For information and reservations call 424-5346.

Foundation picks Neale

Jennifer Neale of Northville was chosen as this year's recipient of the Michigan Chapter's Junior Arthritis Achievement Award, a division of the national Arthritis Foundation.

Neale, a victim of juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, was chosen for the achievements she's accomplished despite her affliction.

Neale is active in several sporting activities including dance, playing high school basketball, and is a science tutor.

Outstanding Intern

Kevin J. Berlin, D.O., the son of Gary and Lorraine Berlin of Northville, was selected Intern of the Year by the education committee of Riverside Osteopathic Hospital for outstanding academic performance as an intern.

A graduate of Catholic Central high school, Albion College, and Michigan State School of Osteopathic Medicine.

Summer concert series

Ford Field will be electrified Friday, July 17 with the sounds of some local bands jamming to alternative music. Cutting edge bands like Department 10 and Cylinderhead will kick off concerts at 4 p.m. that end at 7 p.m.

Admission is $5 per person and parking is available in the Mill Race Village and Ford plant parking lots. Alcoholic beverages are prohibited. For more information call the Northville Parks and Recreation department at 349-0203.

Mutsumi Yoshida helps Dr. Ronald Gratz hook fellow student Roopal Vashi up to an electrocardiogram monitor during the student's recent visit to MTU.

Vacation Bible School

Good Shepherd Evangelical Lutheran Church in Novi will hold its annual Vacation Bible school Aug. 3-7 from 9-11:30 a.m. This year's theme of "Jesus Rescues the World." Bible-based lessons, music, art projects and refreshments will encompass class sessions.

Classes are open to students between the ages of 4-13 years old and there is no registration fee, however, daily free-will donations will be taken.

KATE MURPHY

JOHN H. HACKER, BETH M. CONLEY, ABBY L. EDWARDS, ADRIENNE EDWARDS and STEPHANIE M. WOOD, all of Northville, were named to the Central Michigan University honors list for being in the top ten percent of their class.

KATHERINE MURPHY and TANYA WILLIAMS, both of Northville, were among more than 100 talented high school students at Adrian College from June 28-July 11 during the Michigan State Board of Education Summer Institute for the Arts, Sciences and Technology.

At Adrian the program is called SEEKS, Sustaining the Environment through Education, Knowledge and Skills. High school juniors and seniors will participate in intensive programming in "The Interrelationship of Humanity to the Environment." Study areas include improvisational theater and the environment, freshwater ecology, biological and environmental chemistry and others.

Adrian faculty and visiting experts use non-traditional methods to encourage intellectual freedom and interdisciplinary thinking. Activities range from discussions to lab and field experience to art performance.

Adrian College is a highly regarded, private, liberal arts institution in Southeast Michigan. Chartered in 1859, it has about 1200 students.

LESLIE HILF KOSCIELECKI, a student at Great Lakes Junior College in Bay City, was named as 1992

TANYA WILLIAMS

Outstanding Student in the Office Systems Education Department. Koscielecki, a co-op student at Dow Chemical in Midland, also made it to the college's prestigious president's list for her 4.0 grade point average in the winter term.

A 1977 graduate of Northville Public Schools, she and her husband now live in Bay City.

JUSTIN ATKINS of Northville is among the Alma College students named to the dean's list for outstanding academic performance during the 1992 Winter Term, which ended April 17.

Students who achieved a 3.5 or better grade point average during a term, while carrying a minimum of 13 credits (at least eight of which are evaluative grades), are named to the dean's list.

Atkins, a 1989 graduate of AuGres-Sims High School, is the son of Sherri Atkins of Northville. He is majoring in biology at Alma College.

KELLY L. FREDERICK and ROBIN D. MCDUFFIE were named to the dean's list at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, for the second semester.

SCOTT WOODMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Woodman of Northville, was recognized for academic excellence at Hillsdale College during the second semester by publication of its dean's list.

The Northville residents to receive degrees from Western Michigan University at the end of the winter semester of the 1991-92 school year were:

KELLI CALHOUN, CHRISTOPHER SCOTT COONEY, ANNE M. COSEO, WENDY RENEE DAVIS, MARGARET A. FALKOWSKI, MICHAEL SCOTT GIRVAN, DONALD GRAHAM, KATHERINE HOFFMANN, BREITA JEANNE JOHNSON, KENNETH C. LAZZARA, JAMES T. THOMPSON, and WENDI MICHELLE TREKLER.

ANDREW BACHMANN of Highland Lakes in Northville was named to the dean's list in the Spring 1992 semester at Western Michigan University with a GPA of 3.6. His goal is to become a psychologist. This summer he is working as a lifeguard at the Highland Lakes pool.

CHRISTOPHER J. FALKOWSKI, son of Isabelle and Jozef Falkowski of Northville, received a bachelor of science degree from Northwestern University's Robert R. McCormick School of Engineering and Applied Science at the university's 134th annual commencement June 20.

He was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity and a dance marathon dancer referee. He was also fundraising chairperson for the Hunger Cleanup project in 1991.

MELISSA LUTES of Northville, entering Alma College as a freshman in the fall, has been awarded a Trustee Honors Scholarship by the college.

Lutes, a 1992 graduate of Northville High School, is the daughter of Timothy and Linda Lutes of Northville.

Weddings

Lynn R. Metzger/Mark W. Semeyn

Lyn R. Metzger, daughter of Anita Metzger of Ohio; and Mark W. Semeyn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Semeyn of Northville, were joined in marriage at St. Michael's Catholic Church in Findlay, Ohio on May 16. The double-ring ceremony was officiated by Fr. Franklin Kehres and Fr. Martin Nassr.

The bride wore a white silk taffeta gown featuring a portrait neckline. The bodice and collar were alencon lace embellished with white pearls and sequins. The cathedral train was edged in lace and had multiple cut-outs. She wore a wreath headpiece of fabrics with a poof and a fingertip veil. She carried an arrangement of white roses, baby's breath, ivy, mini carnations, stephanotis, statice and mums.

Maid of honor was Karin Wilson, with bridesmaids Jennifer Rinehamer, Melanie Lowe, Tricia Pauli and Trish Kennedy. They wore floor-length pink bengaline gowns featuring a portrait neckline and basque waist. The maid of honor carried a bouquet similar to the bride's, but in shades of pink.

Matthew Semeyn, brother of the groom, was the best man with ushers Blaine Metzger, Scott Metzger, Todd Metzger and groomsmen Regis Fowler, Chuck Clark, Jerry Thompson and David Howell.

The reception of 250 guests was at the Elks Lodge of Findlay, Ohio. The wedding trip was to Maui, Hawaii.

The couple were high school sweethearts, going back seven years. The bride is an Ohio State University graduate with a bachelor's degree in recreation education.

The groom is a Purdue University graduate with a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering. He is currently employed by Ford Motor Co.

I'm 35 years old and I just learned how to eat.

*Losing weight was the hardest thing I've ever done.
I tried everything...except eating right!*

All my life I've been struggling to keep my weight down. I'd try the latest fad diet. Lose weight. Then put the pounds right back on.

Then I found Weight Watchers.

At Weight Watchers, I began to feel in control of my body. I learned that there are no forbidden foods — just forbidden amounts of food. Every day, I was feeling more comfortable with me. And I found something I thought I had lost a long time ago. My self-respect.

So call Weight Watchers and give it a try. They did for me at 35 what nobody else could do my whole life. They taught me how to eat.

In Uniform

MICHAEL J. METHOD II was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Signal Corps on April 26 in conjunction with his graduation from Eastern Michigan University.

Lt. Method received a bachelor's degree in human resource management and will be reporting to Fort Gordon, Ga., next fall.

A 1988 graduate of Northville High School, Lt. Method participated in EMU's ROTC program and received a three-year scholarship from the U.S. Army.

Pinning on his second lieutenant's bars were Major Tim Dickinson of Northville, Advisor to the Civil Air Patrol Mustang Squadron, and his sister, Lt. Leigh E. Method, a transportation officer at Langley Air Force Base, Virginia.

His family also includes his parents, Michael and Ann Method, his sister Auralyn and his brother Chris.

SEAN SULLIVAN, a 1988 graduate from Northville High School, completed Marine Corps Recruit Training on May 22. At present he is stationed at Camp Pendleton in San Diego, Calif.

CHRISTOPHER A. CARBOTT, U.S. Navy, son of Richard and Rosaline Carbott of Northville and a 1982 graduate of the United States Naval Academy, has been promoted to lieutenant commander. He recently returned as combat systems officer aboard the guided missile frigate USS Kalkring, homeported in Charleston, S.C., following a six-month deployment to the Persian Gulf. He was welcomed home by his wife, Deborah, son, Nicholas, and daughter, Stephanie.

His next assignment will be staff operations officer for Destroyer Squadron 36 which assists in scheduling fleet exercises and planning.

AIRMAN JASON E. BOYLE, has graduated from the tactical aircraft maintenance specialist course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Wichita Texas.

Students were taught aircraft maintenance fundamentals of repairing and servicing aircraft with turbo engines. Maintenance management and documentation were also taught for the assessment of aircraft readiness capability.

Boyle is the son of Edward F. Boyle of 435 Covington Court, Northville and Pamela J. Boyle of Dearborn.

He is a 1990 graduate of Dearborn High School.

ARMY CADET STACEY R. HOLLYER has been commissioned a second lieutenant upon graduation and awarded a bachelor of science degree at West Point.

The academy is a four-year educational institution, charged with the task of training young Americans to become professional Army officers.

The lieutenant is scheduled for assignment to the Ordnance Corps at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Md.

Hollyer is the daughter of Edward G. Hollyer of Waterford and Marlyss L. Hollyer of Walled Lake.

She graduated from North Farmington Hills High School, Farmington Hills, in 1988.

PVT. ANDREW J. HOLMAN has completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky. During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Holman is the son of Nona J. Podschline of Novi and Arthur G. Holman of Garden City.

He is a 1991 graduate of Novi High School.

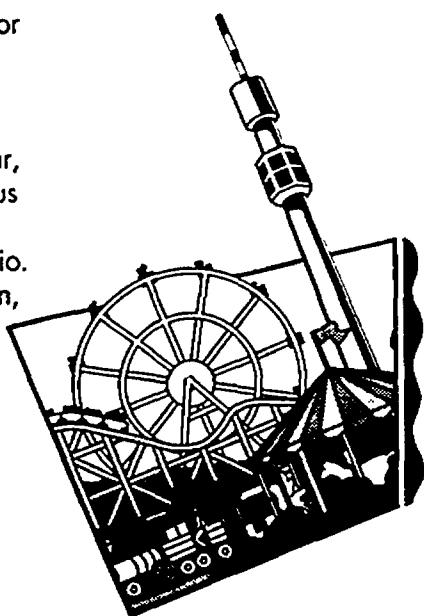

BOBLO ISLAND

And you won't have to cut out any of the fun. Because Boblo Island is open until 9:00 p.m. every day, so you'll still have plenty of time to enjoy lots of fantastic rides, games, shows, and special attractions — all at half the cost.

Gather up your friends after work. Or get the kids to help with the lawn this weekend. Then cut out on out to Boblo Island for a whole lot of fun at half the price.

Boats depart hourly from Gibraltar, Michigan; continuous shuttle service from Amherstburg, Ontario. For more information, call 313-284-6116.

Cut out to Boblo after 3:00 p.m. and we'll cut the price in half.

Engagements

DICK AND GERRY BESH of Northville wish to announce the engagement of their daughter Cara to Derek Thlery, son of Dwight and Kathy Heeter of Chelsea.

Cara is a 1981 graduate of Northville High School. She received her bachelor's degree in business administration in 1985 from Detroit College of Business. In 1991 she received her master's from Central Michigan University.

She is employed by Chrysler Corp. as a human resource administrator.

Derek is also employed by Chrysler and by the UAW where he is presently serving his second term as first vice president of the Local 412.

The couple will be married on Nov. 28 at Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville.

AMY SPAMAN/CHRISTOPHER WEAVER: Gilbert R. Spaman and Charlotte A. Holland, both of Northville, announce the engagement of their daughter Amy Marie Spaman to Christopher Scott Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Weaver of Novi.

The bride-elect is a 1987 graduate of Northville High School and a 1991 graduate of Michigan State University. She is currently employed by the Department of Defense, Inspector General, in Arlington, Virginia. The future groom is also a 1987 graduate of Northville High School and a 1992 graduate of Eastern Michigan University.

An October wedding is planned.

Benefit music festival returns

Tickets are now on sale for the 16th annual Northville Folk and Bluegrass Festival, a popular charity concert which this year adds a separate children's stage to its list of attractions.

The daylong event will return to Ford Field in Northville from 1-8 p.m. Sunday, July 26, and will continue to feature top-notch acoustic music from well-known and lesser-known acts. But there's a new twist this year: the addition of a simultaneous children's stage which will showcase performers in the burgeoning field of music for kids.

As always, the festival is a benefit for the fight against Huntington's disease. All profits go straight to the foundation leading the battle. The festival is dedicated to the memories of Donna Jarski, a Huntington's victim and the late sister of festival organizer Tom Rice; folk music legend Woody Guthrie, who died of Huntington's; and Marjorie Guthrie, his second wife, who crusaded against the disease and once spoke at the Northville festival.

Sponsors this year are Papa Romano's; the University of Michigan Medical Centers; and the Gittfiddler music store.

Among the top attractions at this year's festival are reunions with three of the regulars at the old Raven, a famous folk-music coffee house in Detroit and, later, in Salem. Josh White Jr., Michael Smith and Ron Coden are all scheduled to play this year's festival.

The full lineup on the MAIN STAGE is:

From 1 to 2 p.m., CHRIS YOUNG performs. Rice described Young, a teacher at his Gittfiddler music store, as "a really good finger-picking blues player."

From 2 to 3 p.m. JOSH WHITE JR. takes the stage. Following the path begun by his father, White attracts audiences all over the region to his strong singing and guitar playing. He headlined the very first Northville Folk and Bluegrass Festival. His set may include some participation from Michael Smith and Ron Coden, Rice said.

From 3 to 4 p.m., the FRITTS FAMILY continues its string of festival appearances. The popular bluegrass band from Tennessee is back again this year simply because "everybody loves them," Rice said.

From 4 to 5, festival mainstay NEIL WOODWARD returns. Woodward is well-known throughout the area as a player of many different instruments; a singer/songwriter; a recording artist; a teacher at the Gittfiddler; and a respected member of area theatrical productions such as the Attic Theatre's Woody Guthrie's American Song and Conversations with an Irish Rascal.

From 5 to 6 p.m. the all-female acoustic quartet JUST FRIENDS comes to Northville. The group consists of Lori Cleland (guitar, banjo, autoharp), Rosemary Komacki (gui-Josh White Jr. returns to the Northville Folk and Bluegrass Festival this year.

(tar, bass, mandolin), Judi Mornings-tar (dulcimer, bass, banjo), and Cecelia Webster (dulcimer, Celtic harp). All four members sing as well, and Rice predicted they'll be the sleeper hit of the festival.

From 6 to 7 p.m. MICHAEL SMITH offers up his famous folk songs. Another past festival headliner, Smith has released nationally distributed albums of his own and seen his songs recorded by such names as Spanky and Our Gang, the Four Freshmen, Tom Rush, Steve Goodman, and many others. The evening before the festival, Smith will conduct a songwriting workshop at the Gittfiddler for anyone interested in writing music or simply in how it gets written. (See details below.)

At 7 p.m. comes a raffle of a handmade acoustic guitar and a "half-dozen other prizes, followed by a grand finale which, each year, includes a stirring group rendition of Woody Guthrie's "This Land is Your Land."

The CHILDREN'S STAGE schedule is:

From 1 to 2 p.m., Ann Shaheen Herndon performs. The Northville resident has performed many times throughout the area, including turns at the Thursday morning kids' concerts in the downtown Northville bandshell.

From 2 to 3, the children's stage wraps up with a set from DAN HALL. "The minstrel of Flint" has recorded an album and performs regularly in schools and other venues around Flint.

From 3 to 4, MARC THOMAS will perform. He combines his own and traditional songs for a show geared specifically to kids.

From 4 to 5, JOSH WHITE JR. and RON CODEN will do a set for the youngsters. The pair, longtime friends, recently collaborated on a children's album called My Favorite Toy.

Tickets for the festival are on sale now at the Gittfiddler, 302 E. Main in downtown Northville; or charge by phone at the Gittfiddler, 349-9420, or Ticketmaster, 645-6666. Tickets are $8 in advance or $10 at the gate; senior citizens $4 and children under 12 free. Ford Field is located off Hutton just north of Main in Northville.

The Michael Smith Songwriting Workshop will run from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday, July 25. There is a maximum of 40 slots, which may fill up fast. For reservations or more information call 349-9420.

Q&A

By WILLIAM T. TOMICKI
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Q: Can you suggest a good bed-and-breakfast inn in California's Sonoma wine country?

A: Many fine inns are tucked into the rural atmosphere of Sonoma County. One good choice is The Gables (4257 Petaluma Hill Road, Santa Rosa, Calif. 95404; 707 585-7777). It is located near wineries, redwood forests and the enchanting North Coast.

Guests enjoy gourmet food, antique furnishings and a cozy atmosphere. A two-story honeymoon cottage with a wood-burning fireplace is also available.

Another good choice is the Ridenhour Ranch House Inn (12850 River Road, Guerneville, Calif. 95446; 707-887-1033). Built in 1906 from redwood slabs, the inn has eight guest houses filled with antiques, quilts and beveled and stained glass.

Activities include horseback riding, swimming, biking and wine tasting.

For a list of 13 other wine-country inns in Sonoma County call (800) 354-4743. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: We want to spend a romantic wedding anniversary in London. Any ideas?

A: Travelers who want to be treated like royalty can book what is called a Royal Retiring Room at a London theater.

Visitors can see such hits as "The Phantom of the Opera," "Miss Saigon" or "Five Guys Named Moe" — in the luxury of accommodations usually reserved for members of the royal family attending performances.

These are velvet-lined private rooms attended by a personal usher in full livery, on duty throughout the evening. Guests are escorted to the rooms and served chilled champagne, canapés and smoked-salmon sandwiches before the show.

For further information contact Keith Prowse and Co. Ltd., 234 W. 44th St. New York, N.Y. 10036 or call (800) 669-8687. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: I want to take my son on a hunting and fishing trip. But he has very little experience with either sport. What would you recommend?

A: You might participate in the "cast and blast" fly-fishing and sporting-school package offered by The Westin Resort of Vail, Colo., in conjunction with the Vail Rod & Gun Club Ltd.

They offer a trip for novice and intermediate outdoorsmen which includes three nights' lodging at The Westin and three days' instruction at the private 5,700-acre Vail Rod & Gun Club.

During the first two days, participants will learn all aspects of fly-fishing, from knot tying and tackle needs to casting, drifting and proper catch-and-release techniques.

The third day of the trip involves shooting lessons, using targets of bird replicas to recreate hunting situations.

The training goes in the area of the Eagle and Roaring Fork rivers. The trip will be offered during August and September, which is a beautiful time of year in Colorado.

For further information contact The Westin Resort at (303) 476-7111. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Readers are invited to submit questions to William Tomicki, P.O. Box 5148, Santa Barbara, Calif. 93150. Although he cannot answer each query individually, selected questions will be included in his column. Mr. Tomicki, who logs over 150,000 miles each year, is the publisher of EN-TREE, a noted travel newsletter.

Anybody can fly fish . . . really

Vermont company hooked on offering instruction for novices

It is possible to teach the sport of fly-fishing, even to adventurers who had bad luck when they tried it on their own.

By EVERETT POTTER
New York Times Travel Syndicate

"In our family there was no clear line between religion and fly-fishing," writes Norman Maclean in "A River Runs Through It" (University of Chicago Press, 1976).

By now, the book has sold more than 350,000 copies. Maclean, 73, is a University of Chicago professor emeritus of English.

And soon "A River Runs Through It," a film starring Robert Redford, will add to the fly-fishing mystique. It is set to open this autumn.

No doubt, after the movie hits theaters new fly-fishing devotees will appear like freshly hatched mayflies on the water.

"There's a real romance to fly-fishing. And it appeals to people who may never have done any other outdoor sports," says Doug Truax, a spokesman for Orvis, a Manchester, Vt.-based company that has sold fishing and outdoor goods since 1850.

But while fly-fishing has a meditative, cult-like appeal, few sports are as intimidating to the novice.

First, it smacks of a kind of gentility, even elitism, that makes many people uncomfortable.

Second, a fly rod and line is often not a thing of beauty in the hands of a beginner. More commonly, it's a nightmare of tangles and frustration.

Orvis sells dozens of different graphite and bamboo fly rods, precision-made fly reels, floating lines, sinking lines and enough nymphs, streamers and dry flies to fill any fly box to the brim.

In schools around the country, they also teach people to use the equipment.

"If you've ever tried to learn it on your own and found yourself flailing in the bushes, with your fly stuck up in a tree, the school can be very helpful," says Truax.

"We try and correct these casting faults before you ever get a hook on the end of the line."

The Orvis Fly Fishing School sessions are held twice a week in Manchester from early April until mid-July. From mid-July through August, the school is open on weekends only.

Students learn the forward cast, roll cast, side cast and roll-cast pickup. They study how to false cast and shoot line. They also learn the essential knots for tying flies.

Students find out which flies to choose for trout, salmon, bass, steelhead and saltwater fish. They're taught to read a stream to identify where the fish live and to wade without disturbing the fish or tripping and falling in.

Students begin by casting on two Orvis-property ponds. Then they graduate to the banks of the Battellkill River, one of Vermont's best-known trout streams.

"I look out at those ponds when a new class is there and I see people barely able to get their line out," Truax says. "After a couple of days there's 20 lines laying out there the way they were meant to."

Classes are no larger than 30 students. The ratio of students to instructors is four to one.

"About 25 percent of our students are women," Truax says. "And we recently ran two classes just for kids age 11 and up. They were both filled."

The tuition is $390 per person. This includes two and a half days of instruction, a three-day Vermont fishing license, daily lunch at the famed Equinox Hotel in Manchester and use of Orvis equipment. Transportation and lodging are extra.

Students can stay at the Equinox for approximately $100 per night (double occupancy) or can be accommodated at local inns or motels for about $50 a night and up.

And now for the big question: Can this sport really be taught?

"When you're finished you should be able to fish a stream on your own — tie knots, make a decision about which fly to use and cast your line with a certain amount of skill," says Truax.

"But it will take you a lifetime to refine that skill. That's the nature of the sport."

The Orvis Fly Fishing School is also offered by selected dealers in the following states, with variations on the basic program to suit each locale: California, Colorado, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

For more information on specific programs contact Orvis, Manchester, Vt. 05254 or call (800) 235-9763. For a free copy of Orvis' latest fishing catalog call (800) 548-9548.

L.L. Bean, also a major New England purveyor of outdoor gear, offers fly-fishing instruction near its home base of Freeport, Maine.

Bean's Introductory Fly Fishing Skills is a full three-day course held on selected weekends from May to August.

A $385 per-person fee includes instruction, use of equipment and daily lunches. Accommodations can be arranged at nearby inns or motels. For more information contact L.L. Bean, Outdoor Discovery Program, Freeport, Maine 04033 or call (800) 341-4341, ext. 3100. For a free copy of L.L. Bean's Fly Fishing 1992 catalog call (800) 221-4221.

Learning to cope with the "African Problem"

By JOAN GELMAN
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Last year I came face to face with the "African Problem."

We had saved since our wedding for a fifth-anniversary trip to Kenya. I suddenly realized my greatest dream also involved my worst nightmare — it's not that there are no bathrooms in Kenya, there are just no bathrooms on baby planes, game drives or hot-air balloons.

But, as anyone with travel anxiety will tell you, your troubles aren't over once you've found a bathroom.

Friends who had talked us into going on "the trip of a lifetime," thrilling us with visions (and marathon slide shows) of MGM lions, were now painting another picture: there were puff adders in the john, scorpions in the shower, leopards in the trees — "right outside your door."

One lady from Long Island forgot to zip her tent and found a baboon sitting at her dressing table. She screamed so loudly, the baboon started to cry and made a beeline for the woods.

We were told, "Sleep under netting — malaria pills don't lay a glove on these new mosquitoes." "Never go near an ice cube — Harold almost died" and "No matter what happens, don't let them take you to a hospital."

The tropical-disease doctor who gave us our shots — we went to a man the State Department used — handed us a booklet warning about everything from motion sickness (wear an ear patch) to schistosomiasis (don't swim with snails).

As for food, the advice was, "If you cannot boil it, cook it or peel it, then forget it." (I would not forget to bring my own.)

Since I hate last-minute packing I started in June and by Jan. 17 of last year we were armed and ready for action. So were the troops in the Gulf. Our fifth-anniversary trip was destined to become our sixth-anniversary trip — we couldn't leave Peter Arnett.

Puff adders in the john, leopards in the trees

My mother was relieved. She had been calling daily for weeks begging us not to go. "The only safe place in the world to travel right now is Florida. Why can't you kids just come down here?"

In a way I was relieved too — I had an extra year to pack. I also had an extra year to worry.

I polled our friends one more time. "Are you sure you can't get out of the van if you have to? There must be trees." I was willing to rough it.

"There are trees. There are lions behind them."

"How long do you have to be out on a game drive?"

"At least two and a half hours. Twice a day."

I wondered where NASA bought those suits.

One year later my mother was calling again telling us not to travel "until things settle down."

We were scheduled to leave on Feb. 4. But just three weeks before takeoff we had another false alarm. I was offered a job that was now too rare to pass up.

When my mother found out the job meant my driving home late at night through the Lincoln Tunnel she told us to go to Kenya. She got her wish.

The day after I was hired, my boss was fired. Mom was right — Africa is safer than television.

Now my adrenalin really kicked in. We had only two weeks to get new visas, another round of gamma-globulin shots and start our malaria pills. I felt good about my portable pharmacy until I met a woman at the hairdresser's who was also going to Kenya. She said her husband, a surgeon, insisted on taking their own blood.

"He's nervous, but I'm not."

"Why should you be nervous?" I asked with envy. "You're traveling with your own doctor. My husband's an accountant. The only thing he can do is balance my checkbook."

The accountant said there was no way he was going to carry his own blood around on vacation.

"Anyhow," he wanted to know, "do you have any idea how much dry ice weighs? They only allow you 33 pounds each on those small planes. You take more than that when we stay overnight in Jersey."

The W-word pushed my final anxiety button — the scale loomed larger than it does the day after Thanksgiving.

Sure enough, despite the fact that I had packed only the bare-minimum necessities of life, when we weighed our bags we were 50 pounds over.

We had to be ruthless. I tossed out my eye cream, and my husband's sweater, windbreaker, jeans, sneakers and electric razor. But, even when he was down to two T-shirts and one pair of convertible Banana Republic pants, we were still way over.

I called our travel agent.

"It isn't fair. If I weigh 115 and someone else in the group weighs 165, why can't I take 50 pounds more? It will even everything out."

"Forget it," Linda said. "They don't weigh you. Just your bags."

"They don't?"

A week later, when we finally headed out from Nairobi, we waddled onto the DC-3 like a pair of rhinos.

Stuffed into the pockets of our safari jackets were apples, carrots, bug spray and Diet Slice. I was wearing my brain. My husband was wearing our books.

We weren't the only couple in the group with a weight problem. One big shopper tried to beat the system by trading her old clothes with the Masais to make room for a souvenir wardrobe.

No deal. The Masai women held onto their smart orange-and-blue plaid outfits and laughed at her 10-year-old Halstons.

It turned out most of us were closet phobics too. If someone sneezed, three people would come running out of their tents with cold remedies.

At one point I was passing out so many pills I realized I had put our neighbor on estrogen. It worked — he had no more hot flashes.

As for the "killer bugs," we barely met up with a mosquito let alone a scorpion. We did have one brush with a baboon who ripped off my husband's paperback at the pool. He skinned a few pages of "The Firm" and ate it. Everybody's a critic.

As for the bathroom situation I think I've finally found the answer: Stay dehydrated.

Mack squad loses twice, has to forfeit

A short but tough week ended for the Northville Connie Mack team Saturday with a 4-0 loss to Redford.

The locals lost three games last week, but only two on the field. A scheduled home game Thursday night with Ypsilanti was forfeited because an umpire failed to appear. League rules require two umpires for each contest.

The Northville offense went silent last week. The squad scored but one run in two games.

According to manager Joe Staknis Sr., pitching hasn't been a problem. In Northville's last eight games, opponents have scored an average of 3.5 runs per game.

"I have to say that [our] pitching continues to be our strong point," Staknis said. "Our defense has been great. If only we could score 3.6 runs a game."

Northville is now 12-15 on the year.

Novi's Eric Messner started on the mound Saturday.

The recent graduate pitched a strong game — after the first inning. Unfortunately, Redford got all it needed in that frame as they got all four runs on five hits.

Messner allowed only one more hit the rest of the way. He struck out four batters.

Northville's best scoring threat came in the fifth inning. The locals collected three of their six hits, but couldn't score.

Dan Hutchinson led Northville with two hits. Ty Kopke had a hit and a walk.

GARDEN CITY 2, NORTHVILLE 1: The locals again got a good pitching performance on July 6 only to come up short at the plate.

Hutchinson took the mound for Northville and surrendered just three hits and one earned run. He struck out three.

Garden City took the lead in the bottom of the first inning. An error and three walks got the run in.

The score stayed 1-0 until the sixth.

Northville got its lone run of the game in that inning. Joe Kalhorn was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on an RBI single by Aaron Rumberger.

Garden City got the winning run in the bottom of the seventh. Novi's Dan Sveller had a pair of doubles to lead Northville.

As a team, Northville is batting close to .300. But, Staknis said, it's the timely hits that have been missing.

Northville shows best, worst in splitting four games

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

One usually wouldn't mention baseball and schizophrenia in the same breath. But, for the Northville Mickey Mantle team, it may fit.

In splitting four games, the locals played some of their best and worst baseball of the season last week. Friday, for example, Northville shut out Westland 2-0 and played a nearly flawless game. But, earlier in the week, the squad lost 10-2 to Livonia after giving up eight runs in the seventh inning, mostly on errors.

All of which left coach George Surdu a little tongue-tied in trying to explain the bizarre week.

"It was the best of the best," he said, "and the worst of the worst."

As up-and-down as the week was, it was nothing new for Northville this year. After starting 0-5, the locals have charged back to win 10 of 15 games. The club is now 10-10 on the season.

Northville concluded its frantic week Saturday with a 13-4 loss to Windsor. The locals stayed close to the Canadian team, which is one of the best in the Little Caesar's travel league at 12-2, through the first two innings.

Jason Rice got Northville on the scoreboard first in the top of the opening inning with a solo home run. The locals got two more in the second inning on a two-run double from Mike Barzantry.

After two innings, the game was tied 3-3. Northville led 4-3 in the top of the third, on a second homer by Rice, before Windsor blew it open.

NORTHVILLE 2, WESTLAND 0: Steve Christenson led his teammates over Westland and Northville gained the Toledo Invitational championship in the process.

The tournament, which began the week before, came down to the Friday night game for the championship. Christenson, Northville's starting pitcher, was brilliant, allowing four hits and three walks while striking out five.

"It's as good as I've ever seen him pitch," Surdu said.

The coach said the team played very well behind Christenson.

"It was the best played game I've seen in a long time," Surdu explained. "It was clean, errorless baseball."

Christenson was in trouble only once.

In the fifth inning, Westland put runners on second and third base with nobody out. Christenson got a ground ball for the first out. He then struck out the next batter and finished the inning with another ground ball.

Northville tallied single runs in third and sixth innings.

John Gibson scored on a wild pitch after walking and stole second. In the sixth, Rice tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Fred Swarthout.

"The entire team played well," Surdu said.

NORTHVILLE 13, WALLED LAKE 10: Although the locals collected 19 hits Thursday, Surdu wasn't happy.

"It was a weak team," he said of Walled Lake, "and we played to their level."

Northville scored nearly at will. The Mantle scored five runs in the first inning, single runs in the second and fourth, four in the fifth and two more in the sixth.

Swarthout had a home run in the first and Justin Cataldo a triple to highlight Northville's offense. Jeff Luterek got the win on the mound.

LIVONIA 10, NORTHVILLE 2: The July 7 contest could be described as the one that got away.

With two outs, Livonia rallied for eight runs off Northville — all with two out. The locals made four errors in the inning.

Northville collected 11 hits on the day.

Reese team battles, but falls in seventh

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A dramatic last-inning, seven-run rally gave visiting Westland an 11-10 victory over the Northville Pee Wee Reese team Saturday.

With one out in the seventh inning, Westland collected eight hits to steal a victory from the locals. The rally ended up spoiling a Northville comeback.

Trailing 4-2 in the bottom of the fifth, Northville scored six times. The squad held an 8-4 advantage until the top of the seventh.

Northville didn't have long to regroup from the loss, however. A second game, also at Ford Field in the city, was scheduled for Saturday afternoon against Garden City.

The loss to Westland dropped Northville's record to 15-9 on the season. They play in the 19-team Little Caesar's Travel League. Northville, which is comprised completely of city and township 11- and 12-year-old players, has a league record of 8-6.

Kevin Gilchrist started the game on the mound for Northville and was sharp in the first two innings. The Cooke Middle School student retired six straight Westland batters.

His teammates, meanwhile, got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the second.

Catcher Michael Christenson led off with a long home run to left center. Ford Field has no fence in left field, but if it had, the blast would have cleared easily.

Westland responded with four runs off Gilchrist in the third, though.

With two outs, Westland put a runner on first after a Northville miscue. A pair of walks and a grand slam home run followed to put the visitors up 4-1.

In the bottom of the fourth, Northville chipped away at that lead with a single run.

Christenson smacked a double with one out. He scored on an RBI single off the bat of first baseman Scott Holloway.

runs in the fifth.

Gilchrist led off with a single and was followed by a walk to Kevin Holdridge. After two outs, Ryan Ossensmacker lashed a single to center field to tie the game at four.

Three more runs scored on singles by Fred Lyons and Holloway. The score became 8-4 after a Brent Zak double scored Holloway.

Ossensmacker, from Meads Mill Middle School, replaced Gilchrist on the mound in the fourth inning. He cruised through three innings of work, striking out three batters.

After a ground out to start Westland's seventh, it appeared Ossensmacker would close the game without a fight. But, the visitors put four straight hits together and cut the lead to 8-6.

Westland cut the margin to one on a ground out. Four more hits gave them a 11-8 lead.

Many teams would have folded at that point, but not Northville. Coach Bryan Walneo encouraged his team to fight back.

"Three runs is nothing," he told them.

With one one out, Ossensmacker doubled to leftfield. He scored after Westland booted a ground ball off the bat of Christenson.

After a second out, Holloway put down a perfect bunt and scored Christenson. Northville could rally no further and the game ended 11-10.

Holloway had three hits and four RBIs for Northville. Christenson had two hits, an RBI and stolen base.

Kevin Gilchrist beats the throw to third base for a steal.

Skatin' Star! Northville resident Eric Albertson, 17, competed in the 56th annual Michigan Speed Skating Championships last month. The 17-year-old placed fourth in the junior men's standard in-line division, second in the junior olympic "G" division and third in the junior olympic "D" two-man relay. Albertson will move on to regional competition in Cortland, Ohio, this month.

Kensington offers golfers a tough round.

Kensington Metropark golden for beginners

By Scott Sigler

Kensington Metropark 1-96 and Kensington Road, Milford. The course: 18 holes. Reviewed: The front nine Course ratings: Men 70.8, women 69.8. Slope ratings: Men 115, women 112 Par: 36 Yardage: White tees: 3,250 Red tees: 2,563 Scenery: (on a scale of 1-to-10): 7.5 Price: Weekdays: 9/18 — $14/$9. Weekends: $16/$10 Carts: $17/10.

Kensington Metropark is a great course for those still learning the ropes of the game. Straight, wide fairways make for forgiving golf — this course was designed with the beginner in mind.

Four of the nine holes are straight shots to the green, while four more come into play with a mild dogleg. Water is present on only one hole, the eighth, and there are no hazards other than a few small sandtraps. The thing that makes Kensington so appealing to the beginner is the rough and out of bounds areas. While there are plenty of trees for your viewing pleasure, they are well spaced out. The ground under the trees is cut fairly short.

The spaced trees and the low grass give the beginner the advantage of being able to play no matter where the ball lands. Even if you are 20 yards off the fairway, you can find your ball and still have a fairly clear shot.

For beginners who have not yet mastered a straight shot, Kensington is a gift. The course allows you to make mistakes and continue playing, and you won't lose your ball every other hole.

Holes of Interest

Hole No. 2

Hole #2 is a 490-yard dogleg left. The longest hole on the course, it also features a sandtrap at the turn in the fairway and two on either side of the green. The fairway, like all of the Kensington holes, is wide and gives you ample room to attach the hole in a variety of ways.

Hole No. 8

Of course, on every course there has to be the toughest hole. Eight is a simple 146-yard par-3, but a large swamp occupies the right side of the entire fairway — any slicing will end up in the drink. A small stream cuts into the fairway in front of the green, so anybody who is unsure of their shot direction should aim wide to the left.

Fitness Briefs

AEROBICS: The Aerobic Fitness Co. holds aerobics in the Northville community at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. Circuit training classes are held Monday and Wednesday from 9:10-10:10 a.m. and 7-8 p.m., respectively. Multi-level courses are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7-8 p.m., Wednesday and Friday from 9:10-10:10 a.m.

Circuit training involves a series of exercises performed at consecutively arranged stations, each addressing a specific component of physical fitness. For more info, call 348-1280.

MORE AEROBICS: An early morning summer fitness class is being offered in Plymouth. The course, which runs to July 30, is being sponsored by Better Living Seminars.

Classes are Monday and Thursday at the Metropolitan SDA Church at 15585 Haggerty Road in Plymouth. The suggested donation is $3 per session or $35 for the entire course. Call 437-1196 for more information and to reserve a space.

TONING AND AEROBICS: New Attitude Aerobics and Northville Parks and Recreation offer a year-round schedule of toning and aerobics classes. Program opportunities include: beginners, high- or low-impact aerobics, toning and strengthening workouts.

These easy-to-follow classes are designed with safety and effectiveness in mind, for men and women of all ages and levels of fitness. Flexible scheduling, child care, and personalized instruction.

Golf Briefs

HELP MEL: A scramble tournament will be held July 29 at the Cattails golf club in South Lyon to benefit Mary Ellen Lehtikainen. The 30-year-old woman is a Northville resident who has suffered from diabetes since early childhood.

Cost of the 18-hole tourney is $100 per person. Cash prizes will be awarded. Funds will go to covering Lehtikainen's medical costs. Scrambles teams will consist of two players. Application deadline is July 22.

MEADOWBROOK TOURNEY: Northville's Shawn Koch was the winner of the recently held Great Lakes Junior Masters at the Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville.

Koch won in the boys 14-15-year-old category with a three-round total of 226. Northville residents Kelli Woodsum and Peter True also competed and finished with totals of 298 and 250 respectively.

HOLES-IN-ONE: Judy Teneyck used a 5-iron at the 145-yard fifth hole at Oasis Golf Club. Mike Priskorn used a 5-iron at 80-yard 11th hole on the same course.

At Salem Hills, Paul Worley scored an ace June 25 on the 146-yard number 14. He used a 9 iron. Rick Littlefield also knocked one in at hole 14, using a 6-iron.

Tip of the Week

Basics of stance can cut strokes off

The stance is a very important part of any golf game, but many golfers are unaware of some of its finer points. Tom Flory, golf pro at Tanglewood Golf Course in South Lyon, pointed out some basics of the stance.

"Most golfers should line the ball up to the middle of their stance," Flory said. Resting the club head behind the ball gives you the distance away from the ball. The general rule is that if you're over the ball and you stand up, the club handle should rest two inches from your knee. The only time that changes is when you're chipping, but whenever there's a full swing involved that's the general rule.

The key to most shots is squaring up with the target, creating the square stance. Put a club down on the ground with the shaft pointed at the target. Then line your feet up with the club, and you have the square stance.

"The square stance is the basic stance and the one that should be used the most," Flory said. "That's what should be used by the average golfer at all times." Two other stances, the closed and the open, are based off the square stance and give a golfer more directional control for difficult shots.

In the open stance, the club is again lined up with the target. If you are a right-handed golfer, the front foot would drop back, opening up the line of your feet to the left of the target.

"That's to fade the ball, or hit the ball left and bring it back to the right side," Flory said.

A closed stance is the opposite of the open stance. The club is again lined up with the target, but now the rear foot is dropped back.

The Lion is pleasing to the eye.

The Lion.

I should have known better than to golf a course named after a carnivorous critter. In tune with the current trend of naming courses after predatory animals (The Bear, Polecat, The Lion), Tanglewood's course is dubbed with the moniker of the lord of the jungle.

True to its name, the course ate me alive. It drew me in, played with me, taunted me, gave me brief glimpses of freedom and then finished me off. The Bill Newcomb-designed course was in fantastic shape and I loved every painful minute of it.

Tanglewood is in great condition for a second-year course. The course is fairly wide open, dotted with young trees that will make the course even more challenging as they mature.

The fairways and greens are in excellent shape. Tanglewood does, however, show the signs of a new course, although the young trees and occasional bare patches take nothing away from the game.

The course is adding nine holes in the near future, and large tracks have been cleared out and are barren dirt. A necessary evil, the tracks are unsightly and provide an impossible hazard.

The course has its hazards, but most are playable. There is an ample amount of water and the woods are rather dense, but the holes are close together and out-of-bounds often puts you on another fairway. The water on the 12th fairway is choked with cattails and reeds, but the other water hazards are clear-cut.

Four tees give you a wide variety of distances. The white tees give experienced ladies or beginning men a solid challenge. The blue tees give the intermediate or skilled golfer plenty of trouble, while the gold tees are for pros or masochists only.

Overall the course is in excellent shape and a blast to play. While the prices may be a little steep for some, it is a definite treat to play Tanglewood.

Holes of Interest
Hole No. 12

A big-hitters hole, the par-5, 477-yard (blue tee) hole caters to long drives. Ruins of a barn on the left serve as a reminder of what can happen to those who stray from the fairway, especially into the thick swamp hazard on the right at about 350 yards from the tee. Once past the swamp, the green is about 100 yards away, with a couple of sandtraps on the right to catch misguided approach shots.

Hole No. 16

The tees for this par-4 are well spread out.

Tips on children's dental care given

Parents can do several things to help their children build a lifetime of good dental habits. Here are some reasons to start dental care early and tips to help make it a positive experience.

Begin by having children seen by a dentist by the time they are 3 years old. The twenty baby teeth or primary teeth are important in determining children's future dental health.

Strong, healthy primary teeth help them chew food more easily, learn to speak and look attractive. Diseases and broken teeth can affect their total health.

Also, primary teeth reserve space for the permanent teeth and act as a guide for the eruption of the permanent teeth. If a primary tooth is lost too early, the teeth beside it may drift into the empty space, causing the permanent teeth to come in crooked.

The first dental visit should be a positive experience. Treat the trip as a pleasant adventure, something to look forward to. Create an image of the dentist and dental staff as friends who help children take care of their teeth and gums. Explain the visit as fun and easy. Positive words go a long way to ensuring a relaxed and enjoyable experience for children.

Please remember that morning dental appointments for children are a MUST. They are rested in the morning and are at their best. Therefore, the children will be more cooperative and relaxed, ensuring a lifetime of easy dental visits.

During the first visit, a complete mouth examination should occur. The teeth may be cleaned and X-rays taken to make sure the facial bones and the teeth are developing properly. (X-rays often detect decay between the teeth that the naked eye can't see until it's too late.) Also, fluoride treatments are essential for the prevention of tooth decay.

Many dental offices allow children to explore the dental equipment prior to treatment. This is called the SHOW-TELL-DO method. Children are shown the instruments, told about the instruments prior to the dentist using them. This places them in control and makes them feel comfortable.

So, try to make dental visits enjoyable for children. Let them go into the treatment room alone, if that's what your dentist prefers. Set a good example by brushing and flossing your own teeth every day. Don't let anyone tell your children scary stories about dental visits and never use a dental visit as a punishment. Finally, don't let children know if you feel anxious about going to the dentist.

Your dentist and other members of the dental staff can do a lot to protect children from dental disease. By starting dental visits at an early age and making them regularly, you can help your children have strong, healthy teeth.

Dr. Kathryn Hoppe, D.D.S., is a dentist in private practice in Northville. This series is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the University of Michigan Health Center staff.

Part-time real estate sales associates can be dangerous. Due to lack of knowledge and experience, they can create problems in handling property transactions and run a high risk of sparking liability problems for the firms they represent.

That's the consensus of opinion by several broker-owners of real estate firms, expressing their candid view on part-timers in the real estate sales field.

"Real estate sales is a complex field and should be the primary focus of a salesperson's career," said Jim Garfield, owner of a firm associated with Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service.

John Dennis, owner of a large Century 21 affiliated firm, agrees.

"A contractual agreement to market a property is a major responsibility commitment," he said. "It calls for serious work by full-time professionals."

There are a lot of part-time salespeople listing and selling property for brokerage firms throughout the country. Two-thirds of all real estate firms use part-timers. Within those firms, one-quarter of the salespeople are part-time.

Overall, nearly one in every five real estate salespeople is a part-timer, according to most recent figures from the Research Department of the National Association of Realtors. More precisely, 19 percent are part-time.

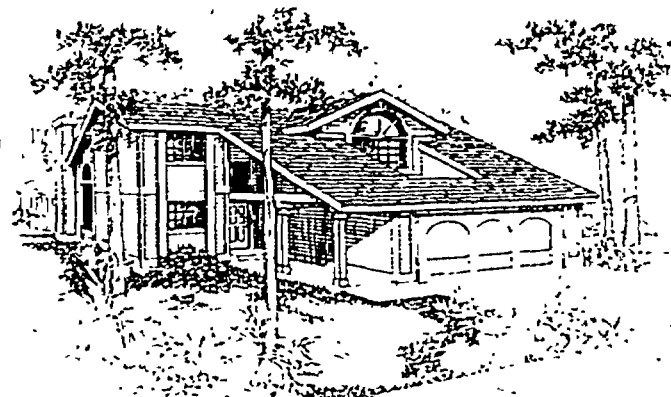

That number has been declining since 1984, when 27 percent of real estate salespeople worked part time.

One key reason for the decline is the increasing complexities of real estate transactions. The demands for continuing education and sharpening of skills adds up to the necessity for a full-time commitment.

Also, in recent years there has been a strong effort on the part of organized real estate to enhance public perceptions about practitioners, improving their professional image. This emphasis motivated many brokerage firm owners

HOME DESIGNS

Contemporary Bennett full of grace and potential

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

A graceful colonnade adds a subtle touch of class to the split-level contemporary Bennett.

If you count the basement, this home actually has four levels. Kitchen, living room, dining room, guest room and garage are at ground level. A bathroom and utility room are at midlevel, located on the landing between the first and second floor. And rooms on the upper level include a loft, which overlooks the living room/dining room, and a luxurious master suite.

Many of the rooms in the Bennett are richly windowed, creating a home that is both bright and visually interesting. Skylights brighten the midlevel bathroom, the master bath, the stairway and the guest bath.

A set of tall, multipaned windows, topped with a half-round window, grace one wall in the dining room, creating an elegant formal dining area, and most of one living room wall is taken up by windows. The vaulted ceiling in both of these rooms further contributes to the impression of airy spaciousness.

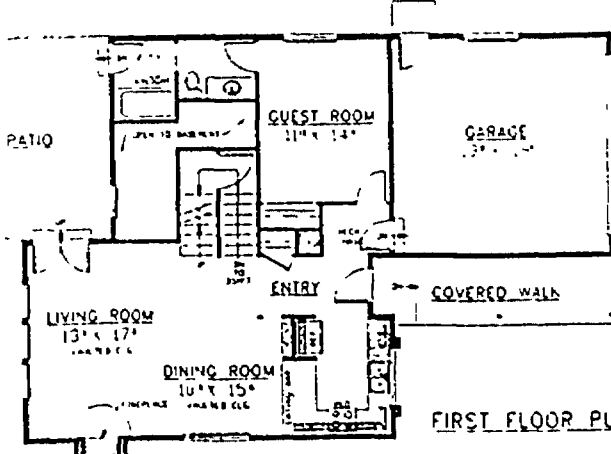

The guest room, located on the ground floor, would be ideal for housing an elderly parent or an unrelated adult. It has a private entrance from the patio, and a compartmentalized private bathroom.

Both the loft and the master suite have walk-in closets. The loft could be outfitted as a den, hobby room or bedroom, as needed.

For a study plan of the Bennett (400-16), send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.) Designers, architects and readers with plans they would like to see featured are also invited to contact Landmark.

A BLOOMING TAPESTRY

Effective landscaping is a mark of a home that graciously invites you in and of a garden that intrigues you to step out. Not all decorating is done on the interior of a home. Exterior decorating, or landscaping, is equally important in enhancing the beauty and value of a home.

Cultivating an outdoor room as a brilliant bouquet of flowers is an art which Ginger and Mick Weinburger of Lyon Township have mastered. Persons passing by their handsome 3,200-square-foot tri-level colonial brick home on Currie Road are easily teased to slow down and enjoy the tapestry of living color.

With a flair for creative design, the Weinburger garden is a winning mixture of colors, heights and varieties with its mainstay of perennials, plus annuals, plantings, ornamental shrubs, and flowering trees for year-round color and interesting variation on the five-acre park-like parcel.

"I do it for my own enjoyment," Ginger said. "I don't have any professional experience. Most of it is trial and error and if I don't like something, I change it, or upgrade it and make it a little better," she said.

Ginger's floral collection includes the daffodil, tulip, iris, lily, yarrow, daisy, California and Oriental poppy, peony, phlox, heliopsis, salvia, sedum, daylily, dianthus, delphinium, white and red astilbe, bleeding heart, hosta, rose, Virginia bluebell, violet, blue flags, marsh marigolds, coreopsis, coralbell, baby's breath, candytuft, chrysanthemum, periwinkle, azalea, and purple rhododendrum, to name just a few species.

"At first I was a little embarrassed with people stopping by, but I'm glad other people enjoy it too," Ginger said modestly.

The Weinburgers, who have been married for 10 years, are the owners of The South Lyon Lumber and Farm Center. Gardening has become a relaxing and fun hobby for them in contrast to their busy work schedule. "After working all day it is just

GARDENING

Gardeners are like everybody else when it comes to the environment — perhaps even more so. Saving and piling lawn clippings, dead leaves, vegetable refuse and weeds to make compost is second nature. But what if your yard is too small to yield a healthy-size compost pile?

The answer is composting with Canadian sphagnum peat moss. To make the quickest and easiest compost, mix lawn clippings, weeds, garden refuse, vegetable peelings from the kitchen and other organic matter in a 50-50 ratio including peat moss. Use three 10-gallon plastic garbage receptacles to do your mixing, aerating and storing.

Do your work where you are going to store the garbage cans because the receptacles may become somewhat unwieldy and heavy. As you fill a can, add a shovelful or two of garden soil or well-rotted manure, as well as 2 cups of ground limestone.

Blend the ingredients thoroughly by pouring them back and forth between the first two cans. After the mix is well-combined, pour a 1/2 gallon of water into the can of compost and set it in full sunlight.

Every day or so, air the composting material by pouring it from one garbage receptacle to the other. If liquid collects in the bottom, or if it smells like it's fermenting, simply add some peat moss to soak up the liquid.

If the clippings don't seem to be breaking down, add another shovelful of manure or a cup of high-nitrogen fertilizer. Composting will proceed rapidly in warm weather but will slow down when it's cool.

During the summer, you should be able to generate a canful of healthy-smelling, fertile compost in about one month. Store the finished compost in the third can to maintain cleanliness.

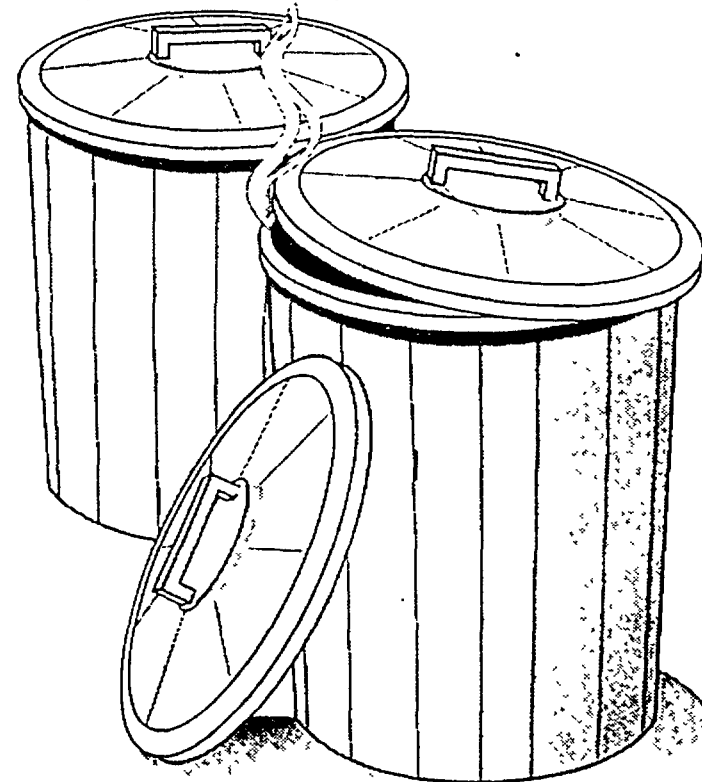

Save a few shovels of the manure compost when you empty the can and use it as a "starter" for a new batch instead of beginning from scratch with garden soil and manure.

If you customarily accumulate a pile of dried leaves each fall, save a canful of composted peat moss and mix it in a 50-50 ratio with dried leaves. Add another 1/2 gallon of relaxing to putter around with the flowers a little bit," Ginger said. "Most evenings she's in the flowers till dark," Mick added.

Colorful garden adds value to Weinburger home

The couple estimated that they spend an average of three hours each evening six nights a week working in the yard. "It's kind of our summer life," Mick said. "In the summertime, we hardly turn on the television."

Their picturesque garden contains bouquets of rich color everywhere, thanks to mass plantings of hardy spring flowering bulbs like daffodils and multi-colored showy tulips and grape hyacinths.

Irises and poppies will be flourishing soon.

Ginger explained that some of her flower beds are grouped by color, such as blue, red, and white. The blue plantings include grape hyacinths, wind flowers, ageratum, and tall balloon flowers. The red bed features lilies, tulips, begonias, phlox, and coleus.

She also introduces annuals as fillers when the bulb blooms fade. "Impatiens are one of my favorites," she said. Ginger said she especially likes red impatiens in the shady areas next to the grey carriage house. In the sunnier spots, she experiments with different annuals. "I try different ones until I find something I really like and then I stick with it," Ginger explained.

Attractive trees also grace the garden grounds. "I like flowering trees like the magnolia and crabapple and flowering bushes like the lilac and quince," Ginger said. Birch, mountain ash, locust, dogwood, and redbud are on the property, along with apple, pear, and cherry fruit trees. Decorative clematis, wisteria, and trumpet climbing vines are also present.

Mick mows and cares for the healthy Kentucky blue lawn which covers nearly two acres. He uses an organic fertilizer and occasionally treats the lawn to help eradicate the pesky moles. "We're constantly battling moles," he sighed.

Ginger uses a dehydrated animal manure to fertilize her flowers. She also adds peat moss and mulch, either wood chips or bark, to some of the beds. She dislikes plastic or landscape fabric to control weeds. "It's not natural," she stressed. "I don't mind weeding. I enjoy it."

To the rear of the home, a two-tier deck with an attached gazebo offers an outdoor living retreat and further compliments the exterior decoration. The spacious walmalized wood construction, approximately 1,000 square feet, welcomes you to sit and enjoy the view of the grounds. On warm summer mornings, the Weinburgers often eat their breakfast here.

"We really like it," Ginger said. "We like to watch the birds while we eat," Mick added. The hummingbird, cardinal, gold finch, red-headed woodpecker, red-belly woodpecker, and blackbirds visit the feeders stationed in the center of the yard.

Despite being so busy, the couple put in a vegetable garden. Mick said they plant tomatoes, sweet corn, cabbage, lettuce and peppers.

As time permits, Mick and Ginger have other projects on their agenda, such as replacing the bridge across the drainage ditch, building a wishing well, putting in a rock garden on the south side of the carriage house, and planting water lilies in the cement pond with its waterfall.

The Weinburgers have done their exterior decorating in phases, but in the last five years they have gotten quite serious about their outdoor projects. "It takes time," Mick emphasized. "I do look at a lot of magazines and books. I get ideas and say, 'Gee, that looks nice,'" Ginger explained. "Each year we seem to do a little bit more. We do it because we enjoy it," she added.

Ginger and Mick have a spirit-lifting gift for introducing creative design and color to outdoor space. Their landscaping has truly enhanced the beauty and value of their home.

Here's how to maximize the yield from your compost pile water per can. The leaves should decrease in volume very quickly, which will allow you to add more.

Drag the garbage cans into a warm area so that the coming of winter doesn't stop the composting process.

A fertile peat moss-based compost is ideal for working into the soil around plants and for mixing into potting soils. Use it as you would use it straight out of the bale.

The easiest way to mix composted peat moss into the soil around plants is to dig it into the top 3 to 4 inches with a hoe.

Experienced gardeners testify to the value of working peat moss into the surface of vegetable beds when preparing the ground in the spring.

Because it's 100 percent natural it holds up to 20 times its weight in water, like a sponge, then releases it slowly to thirsty roots. It also aerates heavy clay soils, adds body to sandy soil, and reduces garden drudgery by making weeding easier.

Though a first-rate soil amendment, peat moss contains relatively few plant nutrients. So, composting it with grass clippings and other yard and garden debris gives peat the added boost. Mixing in limestone raises the low pH sufficiently for the compost to support the growth of numerous beneficial organisms.

Best of all, the volume gained by composting grass clippings and leaves saves money. It's like getting a second bag of peat moss free!

Composting this way increases the nutrient content to nearly that of cattle manure, converts some of the peat to humus, expands the volume of the product and helps you do your part in reducing the landfill crisis. That's certainly worth more than the cost of three plastic garbage cans.

G. I didn't have any luck with my cantaloupes this year. They all bloomed well, but only two vines had plants.

A. My guess is that you didn't get good pollination while the plants were in flower. Keep in mind the female flowers are only receptive for a very short period and if there wasn't sufficient bee activity at that time you will not get fruit.

To encourage bees (for pollination), lay off on pesticides! Chemicals kill bees.

Real estate brokers prefer full-time sales associates to do away with incompetent part-timers.

The worst image-makers are probably firms known in the trade as "body shops." These firms operate on the premise that the more licensees a company, has the larger the company's net commission income will be. Many licensees of such firms are part-timers. And, of course, all those bodies receive minimal training and supervision from their broker.

The anticipated big bucks are not materializing for most bodyshop firms. The average cost for a firm to maintain a desk for a residential salesperson is now up to about $13,700 per year. Desk costs for commercial or industrial property salespeople are two to three times that amount, according to NAR.

Considering these factors along with the increased risk of liability suits with part-timers and a possible adverse impact on the firm's reputation in the local community, an increasing number of company owners are putting "full-time only" notices in ads soliciting salespeople.

We should point out that there are part-time salespeople who take the time and effort to become well-educated and proficient in real estate sales. And some are only holding another job until the real estate market swings back into a more active mode. They will then return to full-time status.

9. Is there a general trend today for single women to co-own and co-reside in a house?

A. Yes. Brokers throughout the country are reporting more transactions where two or more single women buy, finance and plan to live in a residence. Frequently, these co-owners are young, single professional women.

In most cases, it seems to work out satisfactorily for all parties. In some cases, where it becomes apparent the co-owners are not compatible, the arrangement can be disastrous.

9. Is it better to own or rent a vacation residence?

A. Owning a vacation home has always been appealing to families, particularly at this time of year.

However, there are advantages for renting that vacation hideaway residence. My wife and I just returned from a one-week stay in a mountain cabin at Hume Lake, a majestic place of peace, quiet and natural beauty in the Sierra Nevada mountains. We rented the cabin for the week.

Next to this cabin, a large vacation residence was under construction. Its owner-builder was hard at work each day from dawn to sunset handling a seemingly endless series of construction phases.

"We've been spending all our free time working on our new vacation home for the past two years," he said. "It's taken considerably more money and time than we anticipated. But once you've started this kind of construction project, you've just gotta finish it."

That made me stop and think for a moment. I have never known a person who built a vacation home—by himself or via a general contractor—when the required money and time did not far exceed original projections.

Fortunately, there will continue to be people who will buy and build their dream vacation homes. And they will enjoy the benefits of ownership. But personally, we'll stick to our hassle-free routine of renting one of those residences each summer, enjoying vacation pleasures and escaping the year-round property maintenance and ownership cost responsibilities.

Keep your home free of termites

Termites cause more than $750 million in damage every year — more than all fires, tornadoes, earthquakes and hurricanes combined.

Fortunately, professional pest control operators can find and fight termites before it's too late to save your home. During a thorough inspection, a professional should check all walls, joints or cracks, the attic and roof, crawl space and basement and other structures on the property including wooden decks, garages, tool sheds and carports.

Many say the only sure way to kill all drywood termites, powderpost beetles and other wood eaters is with a wood-penetrating gas fumigation. This procedure has been proven effective for decades.

Your home is covered with tarps, and a licensed fumigator releases the required amount of gas fumigant into your home. The fumigant reaches termites' hangouts and destroys existing infestations.

Frozen faves

Store keeps its cool with variety of treats

By JOE FERRARI
Special Writer

Though they've been rare this summer, just imagine it's a beautiful and hot Michigan day.

The first thing that comes to mind is cooling off, but the decision whether to stop for frozen yogurt or ice cream turns out to be a very tough choice.

That's where the newly opened CowLicks Sweets and Treats comes into play. This delightful little store, located in the Highland Corners Plaza on Highland Road, offers low-fat frozen yogurt and homemade ice cream.

The frozen yogurt comes from California-based Honeyhill Farms, while the ice cream's made right here in Michigan at the Ice Cream Factory of Redford.

"The yogurt is as good as Colombo (yogurt)," co-owner Jodi Etter said. "They've been around since the mid-70s. So far the reaction has been really good. As long as you're serving a fresh product and keeping it clean, it's good."

Four flavors of non-fat yogurt will always be featured at CowLicks, with chocolate and peanut butter available every day. The two other flavors will be rotated and will include one sugar-free yogurt.

"The younger generation of kids come in and ask for yogurt," Etter said. "They want nothing to do with ice cream. Kids are drinking diet pop and eating low-fat yogurt. They're eating healthier and I think that's going to continue."

CowLicks, however, still caters to Second wave of changes challenge business

The second phase of what has been called the most sweeping anti-discrimination law since the Civil Rights Act of 1964 goes into effect July 26, requiring small businesses to join their larger counterparts in giving equal access to the disabled.

For area merchants, retailers and restaurant owners with 25 or fewer employees and annual revenues of more than $1 million, the law, the Americans with Disabilities Act, means more than merely providing adequate parking spaces or ramps for the handicapped.

In restaurants, Braille or large-type menus must be provided for the blind or visually impaired, or waiters may read the menus aloud; grocery stores have to provide lower display cases for the disabled; and movie theaters have to provide space for customers in wheelchairs.

While the act may prove costly to those who must comply, it does offer opportunities for area builders, contractors and architects by providing additional work orders at a time when the construction industry is showing signs of a rebound from a five-year lull in business.

"Anytime something is mandated by federal or state law, there will be a cost impact," said Tom Landry, president of the A.J. Etkin Construction Co. in Farmington Hills.

"We're just now seeing some of the provisions take effect. Under the law, new buildings (and those undergoing major renovations) must be completely accessible to those with physical handicaps. In some cases, that means wider doors, making curb cuts in sidewalks and entrances, and installing flashing alarm lights."

While it is up to architects and attorneys to interpret the law, some provisions are written so broadly that businesses are flocking to legal seminars armed with a checklist of items that include proper parking spaces, restroom and elevator accessibility, and the state of high pile, low density carpeting (it must be removed).

"You have to be very careful about what you build under the new law. We go over the drawings with a fine-tooth comb to make sure everything is in order," said Gene Beltari, president and co-owner of Carpentry By Mastercraft and Euro-Tile of Michigan, both based in Livonia.

"Already some of our commercial clients are calling to inquire about work they may need done to come in compliance with the act. And in the past, we've been very careful to see that such things as ramps are installed properly and with a gentle enough slope to accommodate wheelchairs and walkers."

The first provisions of the act went into effect Jan. 26 and required existing buildings and businesses with 25 or more employees to make good-faith efforts to remove barriers to the disabled.

Rick Halberg, co-owner of R.I.K.'s, a restaurant in West Bloomfield, said when the establishment was remodeled three years ago, a ramp was installed from the main dining room to the rear dining room to accommodate wheelchairs. And designers worked around the ramp when the restaurant was redecorated in the spring.

"The ramp was one thing we did. We also made the bathrooms large enough so people in wheelchairs could turn around easily. Our waiting staff has also been trained to treat everyone the same, but if someone with a walker needs special assistance, we'll do whatever we can to help them."

In conjunction with the public accommodation section of the law, an employment provision also takes effect on July 26. Under this section, employers may not discriminate against qualified disabled individuals in hiring, advancement, compensation or training.

Employers must also adapt the workplace for people with handicaps if necessary, for instance, by providing more accessible furniture for workers in wheelchairs who operate computers. Those companies with fewer than 15 employees are exempt.

"If in the hiring process, an employer routinely provides a written test, a person with dyslexia should be given an opportunity to take the test orally," said Jennifer Sweeney Buckley, a partner with Clark, Klein & Beaumont, a law firm with offices in Bloomfield Hills and downtown Detroit.

"People should also know there are tax credits available to help businesses comply with the law. Some businesses may also be exempt from portions of the law if compliance would cause undue hardship. Someone who is almost blind and works in a night club and needs bright light to work would more than likely be an undue hardship."

Under guidelines set out by the Internal Revenue Service, small companies can get a $5,000 tax credit and large ones can qualify for a $15,000 tax deduction to help defray the costs of bringing their businesses into compliance. The tax break can be applied to the cost of structural changes, consultant's fees, staff training or changes in business practices.

those with a sweet tooth that's only satisfied by ice cream. And the Ice Cream Factory brand is definitely top of the line.

Made with 18 percent butterfat, this ice cream is very rich, but well worth the calories. Only fresh cream, fruits and nuts are used in the many different flavors.

"Everybody loves it," Etter said. "People pull in because of the home-made ice cream sign. The ladies say they haven't had it for years and years; they love it. One lady always comes in and brings someone new with her each time."

In addition to cones and cups, floats, shakes, coolers and the like can be made with either yogurt or ice cream. Takeout items, such as yogurt pies, hand-packed ice cream and iced cappuccino, are available.

Most yogurt and ice cream shops would be content with just offering those treats. But CowLicks strives to be different, and at the same time tries to remain health-conscious.

That's why freshly made deli sandwiches and pasta salads will be offered very soon. There will be no corned beef, pastrami or roast beef, though, just light and nutritious sandwiches.

The Eitters, health-conscious eaters themselves, have settled on four sandwiches: vegetarian, dill chicken salad, turkey and tuna salad. All will be served on Lavash bread — a tortilla-type bread made with no preservatives.

Only the freshest poultry, tuna and vegetables will be used, Etter said, adding that low-fat dressings will be substituted for the higher-calorie ones. "Everybody is so much more health-conscious," Etter said. "They want to know how many calories or how much fat it has."

It's not easy keeping up with what's the most healthy products on the market. With the business being open from 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. seven days a week, Etter really doesn't have time for much.

Jodi Etter (an admitted cow lover, hence the business' name) is at CowLicks most of the time with Bob Etter, her husband and partner, helping at nights and on weekends. He still holds his full-time position with an advertising company.

"We're definitely in it for the long haul. We're going to research everything before we do it," Jodi Etter said, adding that CowLicks wasn't always a yogurt and ice cream shop.

"It used to be a candy-making business in the back (room)," Etter said. "Last year, it was also a gift shop. The candy people opened the yogurt shop. It was here, but they never got it going."

When Bob Etter saw the building he had visions of owning his own business. "My husband has been looking for something. He's brought home so many ideas the last six months."

"First there was the Peace Corps and then opening a bed-and-breakfast. Maybe it's a midlife crisis. He was really trying to get me out of the house," Jodi Etter chuckled.

MORE THAN 1,100 SERVICE STATIONS in Michigan, including two in Novi and two in Northville, are pumping gasoline for handicappers at their self-service prices.

The stations are listed in a new "Pump Guide," published by members of the petroleum industry. It was presented recently during "The Event," a statewide conference in Lansing attended by more than 1,500 handicappers.

The Pump Guide includes the names, brand names, addresses and telephone numbers of stations in 81 of 83 counties that have volunteered to pump gasoline for handicappers. Each listing includes the hours when service is available and if the hours are limited. Participating stations will host a window decal, showing the traditional handicapper symbol and the hours when service is available.

Handicappers must have a valid plate or permit and no one else in the car who can assist.

Novi stations listed in the Pump Guide are the Mobil station at 43407 Grand River Ave. at Novi Road, and the Total station at 24141 Novi Road at Ten Mile. Participating stations from Northville are the Mobil station at 19090 Northville Road at Seven Mile, and the Meijer station at Eight Mile and Haggerty.

Hours of service to the handicapped are limited. Check with the pump guide or the listed station for details.

The Guide is published by the three Lansing-based associations representing the petroleum industry in the state: two members of the Associated Petroleum Industries of Michigan, the Michigan Petroleum Association and the Service Station Dealers Association of Michigan, with the assistance of AAA Michigan.

"This is strictly a voluntary program, and we think the response has been tremendous," said Denise McCourt, the project's coordinator, who is associate director of the public affairs for Associated Petroleum.

The Guide was published in cooperation with the Michigan Commission on Handicapper Concerns, the state agency that advocates on behalf of all handicappers.

"This directory is going to have a positive impact on the lives of people with disabilities," says Marsha Moers of East Lansing, chairperson of the 19-member commission. Moers headed up a subcommittee that first approached the association with concerns about assistance for handicappers.

More than 25,000 copies of the Pump Guide have been printed and it will be distributed through handicapper organizations across the state. The Guide will also be available at AAA Michigan offices, Secretary of State branch offices and the Michigan Department of Transportation Welcome Centers.

There are about 6,500 licensed service stations in Michigan. McCourt says station owners and operators were surveyed earlier this year asking if they wanted to participate in the first-time effort, patterned after voluntary programs by Amoco and Sunoco.

"State fire laws and staffing situations make it impossible for every station to participate," she says. "But we believe a voluntary program is better for both the stations and their customers."

WILLIAM (GENE) HORNSBY has accepted the position of real estate broker for Red Carpet Keim Professionals, Inc. in Milford and has assumed responsibility for management of the sales office.

Hornsby and his family have lived in the Milford area since 1955. He has been in the real estate business serving this area for more than 15 years, is a multi-million dollar producer and serves as Junior Governor of the Moose Lodge No. 2370 in Highland.

JOHN E. ODELL of Milford has been re-elected deputy district director of the Michigan Association of Governmental Employees (MAGE). Odell, with 20 years of state service, is a park manager with the Department of Natural Resources.

MAGE is the labor organization representing the interests of more than 2,000 supervisory, managerial and confidential state employees before the Civil Service Commission, the state employer and the Legislature in work-related matters.

DR. RANDY RICE has joined Dr. Allen Balay at Equine Health Services and Oakland Equine Center in South Lyon. Dr. Rice is a 1992 veterinary graduate from Michigan State University.

His equine special interests include breeding work, surgery, respiratory problems and judging competitive/endurance rides.

Dr. Rice owns his own horses and lived on a large breeding farm throughout college. He also has a bachelor of science degree in computer sciences.

Dr. Rice is originally from Canton, and plans reside in the South Lyon community. His hobbies include piloting small aircraft, skiing and horseback riding.

THE MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE and the Michigan Economic Development Utility Consortium (MEDUC) have announced the availability of the Michigan Economic Development Resource Directory.

The directory contains a comprehensive listing of economic development personnel and resources throughout the state. In an easy-to-read format the directory summarizes service areas, client make-up, services provided, whether service charges apply, and the key contact person for more than 150 Michigan economic development organizations.

Arthur E. Ellis, director of the Department of Commerce, said, "This directory will help economic and community development professionals identify and strengthen their working relationships with those organizations that best meet the needs of their clients and the businesses in their communities."

"The primary goal of the Michigan Department of Commerce is to support and strengthen Michigan business," Ellis said. "Michigan is fortunate to have a diverse number of professional agencies which share that goal."

"We're committed to support and strengthen Michigan's businesses and provide assistance to entrepreneurs," said MEDUC's chairman Michael J. Arniak, of ANR Pipeline Company.

"One way to do that," Arniak continued, "is to make sure that those organizations and individuals interacting with business prospects and leads have access to information on the programs and services available throughout the state to assist them."

The MEDUC's members include economic development professionals from ANR Pipeline Company, Detroit Edison Company, Michigan, the Michigan Electric Cooperative Association, Consumers Power Company, GTE Telephone Operations, Michigan Bell Telephone Company and the Michigan Electric and Gas Association.

Copies of the directory, which are available free of charge, may be obtained from Kerri Alcorn at (517) 373-0888.

JOHN R. LOVELAND, president of O'Brien & Gere Engineers, Inc., has announced the promotion of Philip D. Bayes, to the position of vice president, effective March 22.

Bayes joined O'Brien & Gere in November 1983 as regional marketing director with responsibility for municipal and industrial business development in the firm's St. Louis, Mont. office. In his new position, Bayes is also responsible for business development of the firm's office in Novi, where he oversees the activities of the firm's marketing representatives.

His technical expertise includes site development projects, comprehensive development plans, regulatory controls, airport master plans, economic development strategies, utility studies, public participation programs, environmental impact statements, and private projects. From 1971 to 1983 he was employed by a large midwestern consulting engineering and planning firm where he was responsible for marketing and business development, as well as community planning. Bayes holds a bachelor's degree in urban planning from Michigan State University.

Founded in 1945, O'Brien & Gere Engineers Inc. is a nationally ranked consulting firm specializing in water resources, water pollution control, air quality, hazardous and solid waste management, asbestos management, industrial hygiene, facilities engineering and site development. The company is headquartered in Syracuse, N.Y., and currently employs over 550 professionals in offices throughout the Eastern and Central time zones.

CPAs maximize tax value of your vacation home

If you're thinking about purchasing a vacation home, be sure to consider the tax consequences. According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, the tax treatment of your vacation home depends on how and when you use it.

A SECOND HOME

If you've purchased a second home and elect not to rent it, the tax rules are quite simple. You can deduct mortgage interest and property taxes, but not other expenses, such as utilities or repairs. If you change your mind and rent your home, Uncle Sam allows you to rent your home for up to 14 days a year and collect rental tax-free.

COMBINING BUSINESS AND PLEASURE

Different rules apply if you rent your home for more than 14 days and still spend considerable time there yourself. If your personal use exceeds the greater of 14 days or 10 percent of the time that it is actually rented at fair market value, your vacation home is still considered a second residence for tax purposes. This means that you can deduct mortgage interest, property taxes and casualty losses (within certain limits), and a portion of your rental expenses.

The IRS requires that expenses be allocated to rental use based on the ratio of rental days to total days. Be aware that the Tax Court has recognized a different method for allocating personal and rental expenses. Its position is that mortgage interest and real estate taxes should have a separate allocation based on the number of rental days by the total days in the year.

In addition, rental expenses must be deducted in a prescribed order: first, interest, taxes and casualty losses; then insurance, utilities, repairs, and other operating expenses; and finally, depreciation.

It's also important to note that the deductible expenses on a second home cannot be more than the income received from the property.

RENTAL PROPERTIES

For your vacation home to qualify as rental property, the personal use of the home must be limited to 14 days a year, or 10 percent of the number of days the home is rented at fair market value, whichever is greater. This restriction also applies to members of your family and others who are interested in renting your home for less than the fair market value. Keep in mind that days spent repairing or fixing up the vacation home are not counted as days of personal use.

MORE TAX BREAKS

Owners of rental properties, as opposed to owners of second residences, may be eligible for even bigger tax breaks. Generally, they may deduct operating expenses, costs for liability insurance and advertising costs incurred in order to rent the property, as well as depreciation.

These are also subject to the IRS method of allocating expenses based on the ratio of rental days to total use days. Be aware that the amount of mortgage interest attributed to personal use is considered consumer interest which is no longer deductible.

If you were unable to rent your property or rented it for only a limited time, Congress still provides you with a tax break. As long as you are actively attempting to rent your property, you may deduct expenses incurred during a period in which it is not being rented.

Unlike a second home, all expenses allocable to the rental period are deductible, even if they exceed the rental income and produce loss. However, your losses may be subject to limitations under the passive-loss rules.

Consult a CPA to better understand how these rules apply to your particular situation.

NEW KEYSTONE GARDEN WALL

The Do-It-Yourself Dream Come True.

- RETAINING WALLS • FLOWEBED BORDERS
- TREE RINGS • PATIO & SIDEWALK EDGING

Developed specifically for residential use, GARDEN WALL by KEYSTONE affords the opportunity to build straight, curved or terraced walls to meet your landscaping needs.

The natural look of quarried stone and earth tone colors enhance any setting. GARDEN WALL units are lightweight and easy to handle. Installation is fast and requires no special tools. Each GARDEN WALL unit is made of concrete to provide permanent, environmentally safe walls up to three feet in height that are virtually maintenance free.

Michigan 50s FESTIVAL

OFFICIAL GUIDE

Wednesday through Sunday,
July 22-26, 1992
Novi, Michigan

THE MICHIGAN 50s FESTIVAL

Dear Reader:

Welcome to the Michigan 50s Festival. This is the fifth year the City of Novi has hosted the event, and every year it just gets bigger and better.

This year, the festival is improving and expanding on its most popular aspects. The music has always been a top attraction and a second tent has been added for youngsters and teens under 21. Also, the Grand River Cruise has been expanded to three hours.

You may also notice a change in the Novi News' 50s Festival supplement, which you now hold in your hands. It has this year been dubbed the "official guide" to the festival, with the permission of the 50s Festival Committee. We've included a full schedule of events and thrown in a few extra articles about Novi as it was in the 50s for your reading pleasure. We hope you find it interesting.

Michael Malott
Managing Editor

About the cover: A late July sun glints off the chrome engine of a hot rod at the 50s Festival car show and lights up the face of one youngster. The photograph was taken by Novi News photographer Bryan Mitchell during the '91 50s Festival. The car show and Grand River Cruise are expected to draw even more street rods and a larger audience this year during the Fifth Annual Michigan 50s Festival July 22-26.

Fireworks Show To Celebrate The Michigan 50's Festival

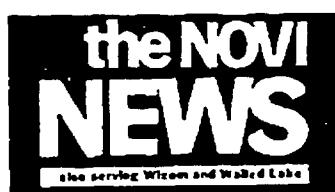

Saturday, July 25th, when the sun goes down, the fireworks begin. But the excitement starts even earlier—with the GT Bicycle Thrills Show. See the world's best freestyle riders at 1:00, 3:00, and 7:00 in the Center Court. Then move out to the southeast side of the mall and settle in for another great show at dusk.

Relive the 50s at Novi festival

Michigan 50s Festival recalls a time of innocence

A whole lot of shakin' will be going on in Novi July 22-26.

That's when the Fifth Annual Michigan 50s Festival, the state's largest event of its kind, moves into Novi with five full days of live rock 'n' roll, vintage autos, souped-up street rods, arts and crafts, vendor booths, sidewalk sales, lip sync shows, dance demonstrations and competitions, fireworks, food booths and pancake breakfasts.

And, good golly, Miss Molly, there will be prizes too — big ones like two free tickets to Hawaii, a 1957 Corvette and a $5,000 shopping spree at Twelve Oaks Mall.

"This is already the best 50s Festival in the state, and each year we add something to make it even better," said Elaine Kah, festival president and marketing director of Twelve Oaks Mall.

This year's most significant addition is a Family Show Tent, featuring 50s entertainment and non-alcoholic refreshments.

"In the past, we've had to exclude people under 21 from shows where we served alcohol," explained Connie Mallett, executive director of the festival and of the Novi Chamber of Commerce.

"The new Family show tent will provide a much-needed area for young adults and for families who want to spend an evening together enjoying the caliber of entertainment once limited to those over 21.

"In fact, we've just placed one of our most popular act, the Danny Vann Tribute to Elvis Show in the family tent. It's a much more effective setting for the show."

The new Family Show tent will offer ample, theater-style seating close to the stage and a dance area behind the seats.

"That way, those who want to just sit and enjoy the show can do so, and those who want to dance won't disturb them," said Mallett.

Although Family Show Tent visitors can always buy ice cream and pop, the Sheraton Oaks will prepare stir-fries, pasta, hamburgers and specialty non-alcoholic beverages there Friday and Saturday nights.

The entertainment Tent, open only to adults, offers dancing closer to the stage as well as beer, wine and wine coolers.

A second addition this year is the GT Bicycle Thrill Show on Saturday, July 25, at 1 p.m., 3 p.m., 7 p.m. in Twelve Oaks Center Court. The action-oriented show features the world's best freestyle riders demonstrating daring bicycle acrobatics.

The performance includes some audience participation and a free GT bicycle for someone watching the show.

Also new this year are a country music program with Tracey Lynne, a sock hop for kids, bingo, karaoke, a men's softball tournament and home run derby, and a swap meet (a giant flea market for classic car parts.)

Seven musical groups will play at 10 different sock hops. Popular bands returning this year are Rocky and the Rollers and Moose & Da Sharks. New rock 'n' rollers include Bobby Sox & the Greasers, Sh-Boom, Jeff and the Atlantics, and The Big Blue Couch Rock Band.

Saturday night, it's great balls of fire with the festival fireworks display over the southeast corner of the Twelve Oaks parking lot. The display uses about 300 individually fired, multi-compartment shells.

"The show is far more dramatic than the kind people usually see at this time of year," said Kah. "Last year, there were 'oohs' and 'aaahs' from beginning to end. I couldn't believe how incredible it was. People were watching from everywhere, even eating picnic dinners out on the lawn."

The best view, according to Kah, is from the southeast side of Twelve Oaks between JCPenny and Lord & Taylor.

Traditionally, one of the most popular 50s Festival events has been Cruisin' Grand River, a three-hour, eight-mile parade of more than 700 classic cars. The parade begins at Grand River and Novi Road Sunday, July 26, at 6 p.m. and ends in the same spot at 9 p.m.

The parade will include winners from the Classic Car show, held earlier in the day. The show features about 400 pre-1975 cars competing for awards in 25 categories including: custom cars, muscle cars, street rods, sports cars, Mustangs (original and modified), Corvettes, kit cars, classic Chevy (original and modified) and trucks (original/restored and modified).

The Michigan 50s Festival began in 1988 with 12 food booths and 30 exhibitors. Since then, it has more than tripled in size, drawing visitors and exhibitors from all over the Midwest and parts of Canada.

"Each year, the festival gets bigger and better, and becomes more widely known," said Edward Kriewall, Novi City Manager and festival vice president. "We expect quite a few people to travel long distances to spend the entire weekend with us."

Last year's festival drew 60,000 people.

Most festival events will occur in two Novi Town Center tents. The Entertainment Tent will be located near Grand River and Eleven Mile Road. The Family Show Tent will be closer to Novi Road and Crescent Boulevard.

The Festival Information Booth, near the Entertainment Tent, has tickets for all three grand prize drawings. Tickets to win the 1957 Corvette convertible are $2 each or three for $5 and are also available from the Rotary Club.

For information about any Michigan 50s Festival activity, call 349-1950. Those interested in registering for the softball tournament should call Novi Parks and Recreation, at 347-0400.

The food is a special part of the Michigan 50s Festival.

50s Festival will benefit local groups

The estimated 60,000 people who will flock to the Fifth Annual Michigan 50s Festival in Novi July 22-26 will probably stuff their stomachs and dance the night away.

But they may not realize that they're also helping to fill someone else's stomach or create recreational activities for people they don't even know.

"We have a written contract with many of the community groups who sponsor our activities," explained Connie Mallett, executive director of the festival and of the Novi Chamber of Commerce. "They get a share of the profits for their pet causes in exchange for their participation."

More than a dozen local organizations profit from the Michigan 50's Festival, according to Mallett.

"The festival is a major community event," said Elaine Kah, festival president and marketing director of Twelve Oaks Mall. "The community loves the festival, and we've been successful enough that the community benefits in many ways."

The festival's major fund raiser-raiser is the Rotary Club of Novi classic car raffle. This year's prize is a 1957 Corvette convertible.

"Profits in the past went to Polio Plus, a Rotary program," explains Edward Kriewall, Novi City Manager and festival vice president. "I think it amounted to about $40,000 last year. All this year's money will go toward creating a Rotary Park in Novi."

The park will be located near Nine Mile Road and the C & O Railroad tracks on city-owned land, according to Kriewall. The Rotary Club has pledged $100,000 to build the park with all funds coming front 50's festival classic car raffles.

Raffle tickets are $2 each or three for $5 and are available from the Rotary Club or at the Festival Information Booth near the Family Show Tent.

Those who take a chance on a couple of bingo cards may be buying a bugle or supporting a senior citizen outing, say the Novi High School Band Boosters and the Novi Center Seniors. Both organizations sponsor the afternoon bingo games held Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Entertainment Tent.

Buying refreshments in the Entertainment Tent throughout the festival will help fund activities for the Novi Choralaires, the Novi Sixth Gate Cloggers, the Novi Chamber of Commerce, the Novi Newcomers Club and the Novi Ambassadors.

Having pancakes at the Entertainment Tent on either Saturday or Sunday morning will feed the coffers of the Novi Optimists and Novi Firefighters, who sponsor the old-fashioned breakfasts.

Novi Youth Assistance will score with a Home Run Derby, sponsored by the Novi Parks and Recreation Department. The derby, which costs $3 to enter, is open to anyone participating in the Men's softball tournament. It begins at 1 p.m. on Saturday, July 25, in Power Park. All money raised will profit NYA's free summer teen center and counseling programs.

"The 50s Festival gives these organizations a marvelous opportunity to raise money in just five days," explained Mallett. "I know myself how hard fundraising is for non-profit groups, and this is a real shot in the arm to help them do the good things they do."

Other community organizations with booths to promote their causes and raise money include:

- Novi Methodist Church — food stand.
- Active Friends of the Homeless — raffle tickets and T-shirts.
- Novi Lions Club — raffle tickets. The Novi Sixth Gate cloggers will also perform by their booth.
- Michigan Humane Society — raffle tickets and T-shirts.
- Century 21 Real Estate — balloons and glow ropes to raise money for Easter Seals.

Additional non-profit participants include the Veterans Alliance, which will sell U.S. flag kits and pins, a U.S. Air Force helmet for those under five (especially good for picture taking!); and Botsford General Hospital, offering medical information and free pictures for those who stick their heads over headless wooden forms of famous bodies.

Car show, Cruise is car lover's fantasy

The Michigan 50s Festival Car Show and Grand River Cruise has become so popular over time that last year the event had to be expanded. Still with an estimated 1,000 cars signing up to cruise Grand River in 1991, not all the cars were able to make it out onto the newly enlarged eight-mile course until the two-hour event was almost over.

So this year, the car show and cruise will be expanded again, according to Novi Director of Public Information Cindy Stewart. Some 400 to 500 cars are expected for the car show and more than 1,000 are expected to sign up for the cruise Sunday evening.

That makes Novi's Grand River Cruise the largest "legitimate" cruise in the state, according to City Manager Ed Kriewall. There may be an informal car-buff get-together that draws more, he said, but there are no officially planned and scheduled car cruises any larger than Novi's.

The most important change to the event is the addition of an hour to the cruise. Cars will begin to circulate on the course at 6 p.m. Sunday and the event will continue until 9 p.m.

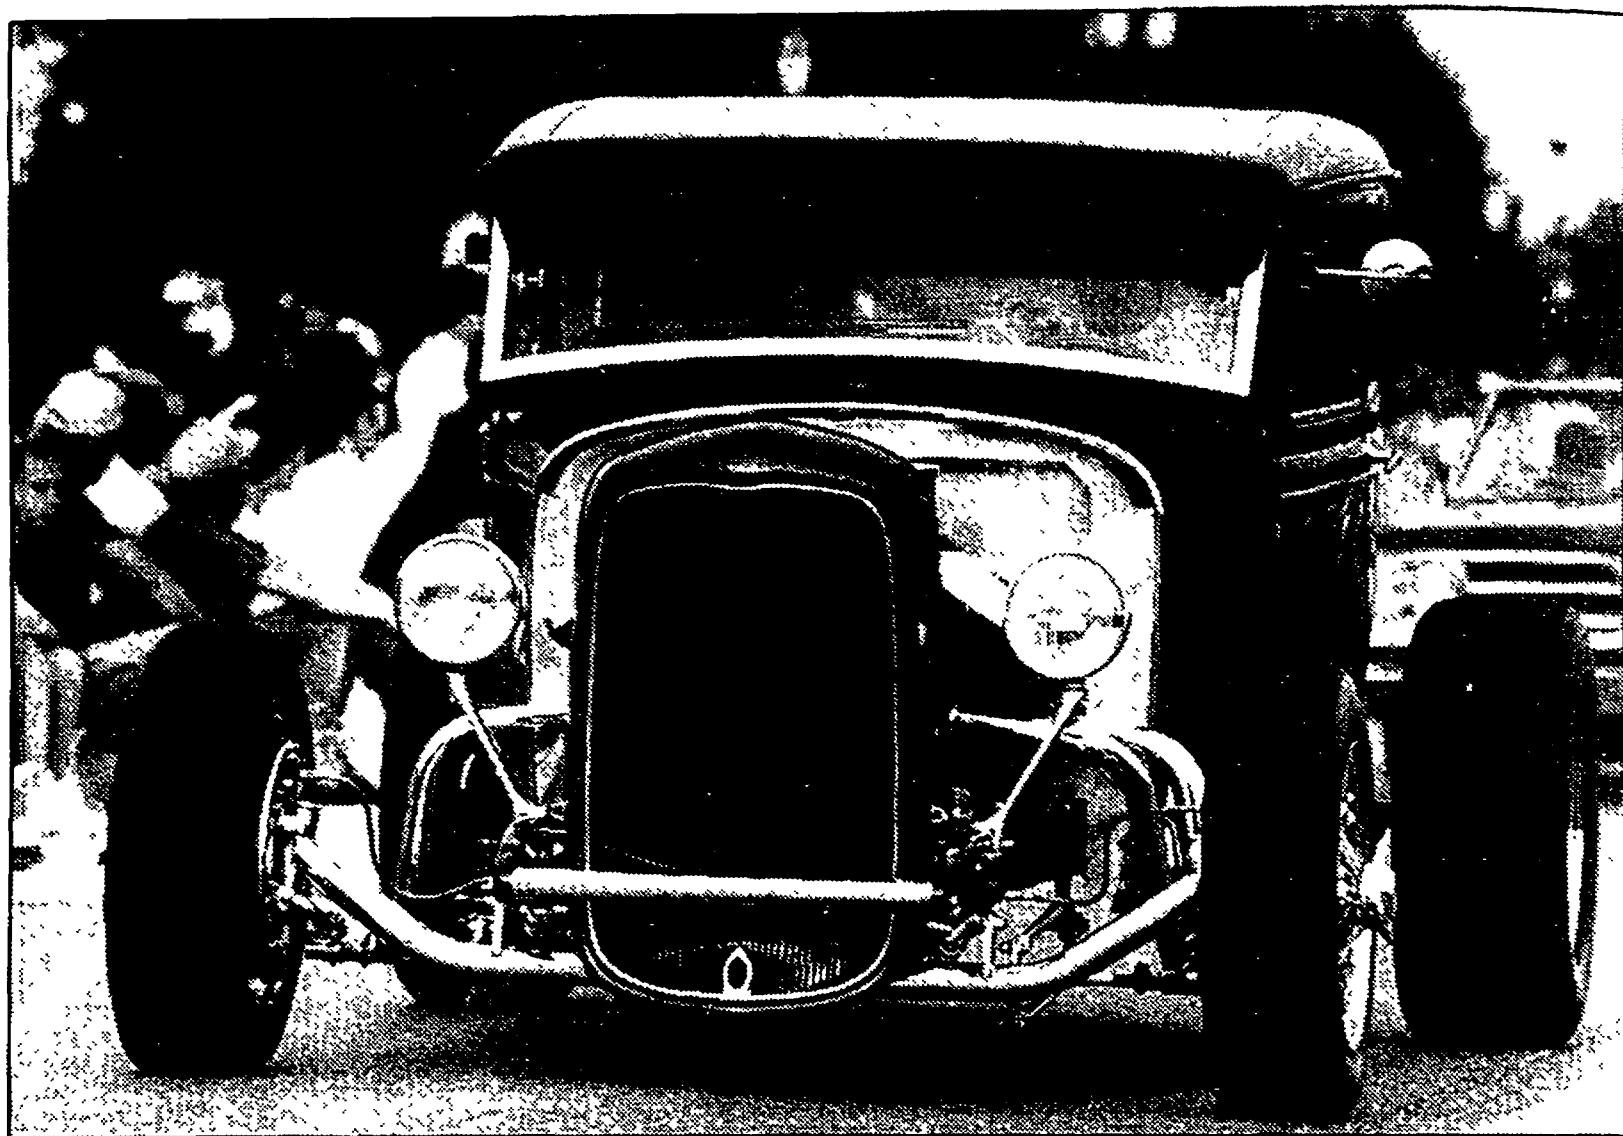

The entrance to the course will also be altered this year, Stewart said. The drivers will exit the car show area, in the parking lot of the Lake Pointe Office Building in the Town Center, and enter the Cruise course via the newly paved Eleven Mile Road. Opened to traffic only on July 13, the route will take the cars east from the town center to Meadowbrook, where they can begin the cruise.

The route includes Meadowbrook Road, from Ten Mile to Twelve Mile Road, and Grand River from Haggerty to Novi Road.

Another expansion has been made in the car show itself. Four new categories have been added for the judging, bringing the total to 25. Awards are to be handed out in categories such as Best of Show, Mayor's Choice, Special Interest-Kit Cars, Classic Chevys, Custom Cars, Muscle Cars, Trucks, Street Rods, Corvettes, Sports Cars and Mustangs.

Kriewall said the Vic Tanny parking lot will also be used for the display of vehicles during the car show.

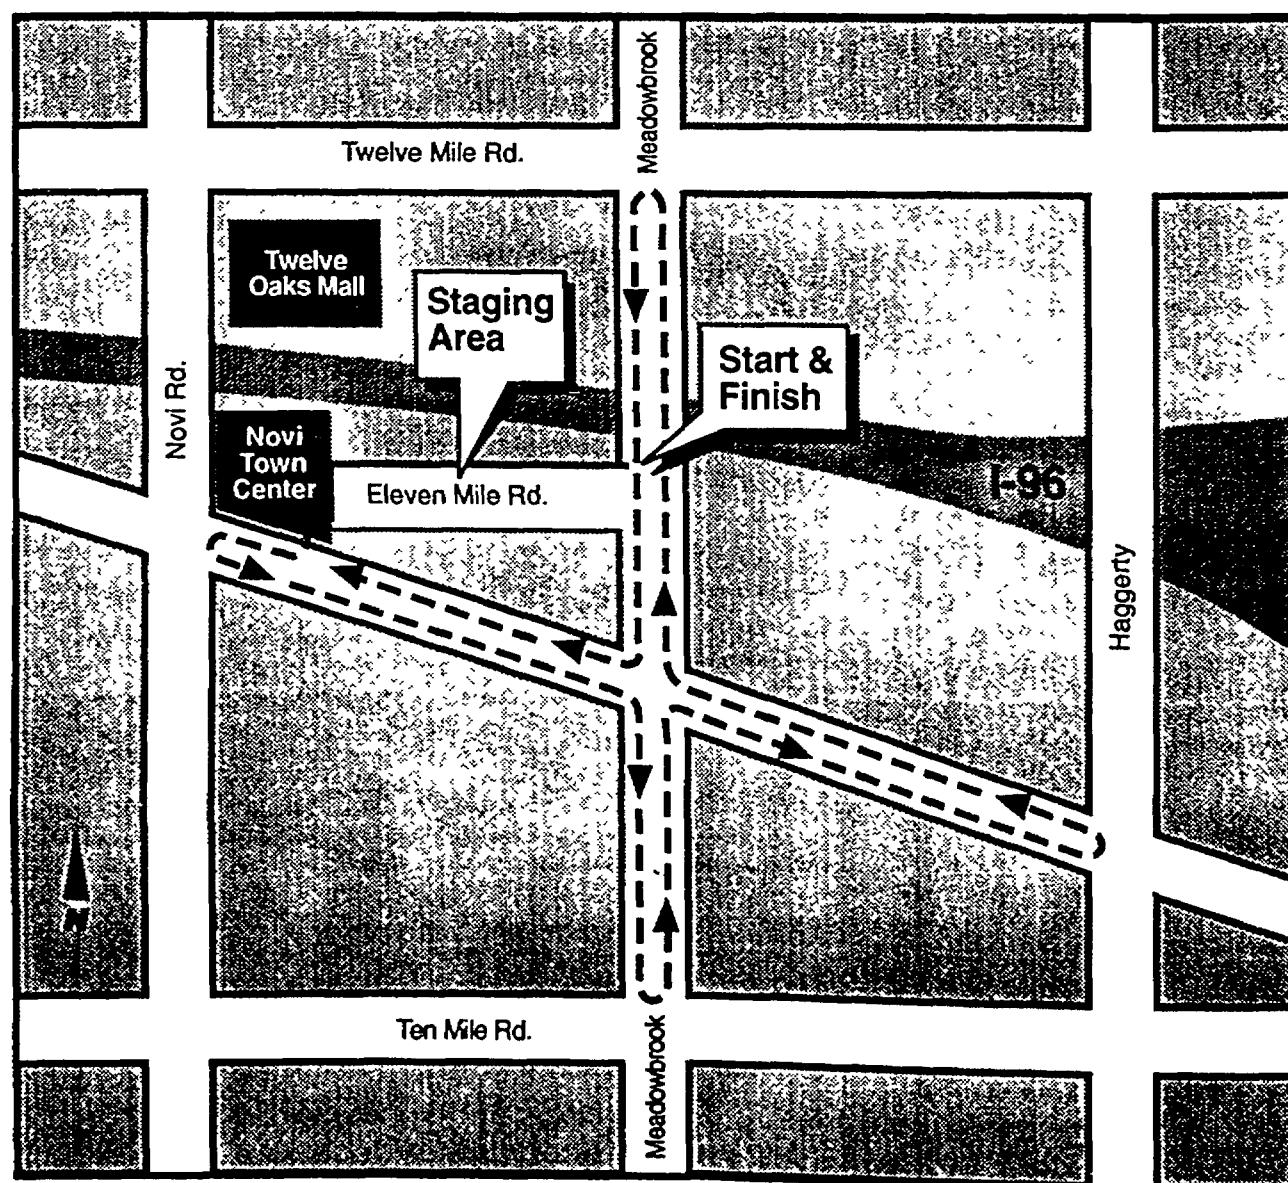

Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, July 26. The show will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Judging will occur at noon and only cars that arrive before that time will be judged.

You'll see some very special cars in the Grand River Cruise Sunday evening.

The drivers of the souped up cars can barely contain themselves during the Cruise ...

Cruisin' Grand River has a long history

By KATHLEEN MUTCH
Special Writer

People have been cruising Grand River longer than anyone can remember. Even in the days when the Michigan wilderness was known only to the Potowatomie, Ottawa and Ojibwa, travellers through this region followed the trail that is known today as Grand River Avenue.

The earliest settlers followed in the steps of the Potowatomie on a trail that eventually widened, was planked and then paved, and became the main route from Detroit to Lansing and points beyond.

Grand River served the local residents as the main east-west route through town connecting local farms with the markets in neighboring Farmington and New Hudson.

For travellers it offered the roadside enticements of restaurants, roadhouse taverns, fresh fruit and vegetable stands, filling stations and motels.

As early as 1925, newspaper accounts record the complaints of the local citizenry about the excessive traffic, "cars travelling five abreast," on Grand River. By the 1950s much of that traffic was recreational, further congesting a highway crowded with commercial vehicles. American society had become mobile.

Going out for a Sunday drive was a common family experience in the fifties. There were none of the mega-malls that exist today; Novi didn't even have a downtown to speak of then. But, shops didn't open on Sundays in the fifties.

Of course, if one was 16 with a driver's license and car keys, "cruisin' the River" didn't require more than a set of wheels and a stop at Harra-wood's Standard Station for a refill and a bottle of pop to make the drive worthwhile.

In the fifties, Grand River didn't just lead to Kent Lake or to Novi Road and the Walled Lake Amusement Park to the north. There were destination points all along Grand River.

Sliger's driving range, near the Haggerty border, and the Bob-O-Link Golf Course offered duffers from the city a day in the country within a reasonable driving distance of city homes.

Ben's Novi Inn, a tavern serving the crossroads clientele at the intersection of Novi Road and Grand River, was a well-known landmark. Area farmers, road construction laborers, local merchants and building trademen, politicians and travelling salesmen quenched their thirst there, but despite the name no one ever spent the night at the Inn.

Florence Harris' Rosewood Restaurant had a reputation that was enhanced by the great number of trucks that parked along her Grand River frontage. Families making the long drive north to summer cottages or to visit elderly relatives at one of the several Novi resthomes "out in the country" would plan to stop at the Rosewood. In the fifties, everyone knew that the best food could be found at the restaurants where the truckers stopped.

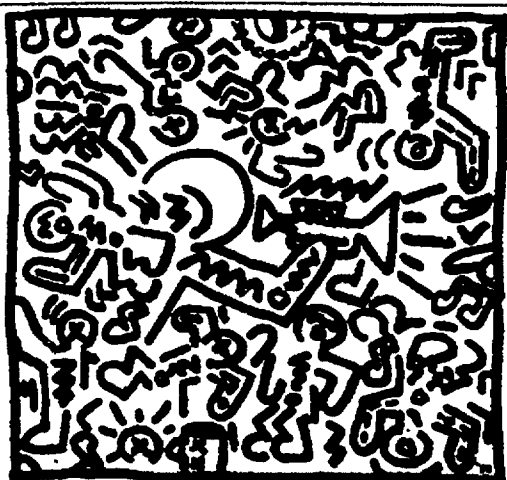

The same road that brought people out to the country, as Novi was very rural in the fifties, brought land developers and real estate speculators. These businessmen looked into the future and saw the latest in fifties residential developments — the suburban subdivision.

Grand River of the fifties led directly to suburbia. The traffic that was generated led to the construction of the multi-lane highways that eventually led to the end of the Grand River of the fifties.

Even now, with everyone seeking the fastest route from one place to another, with the never-ending expansion of the superhighways that run through town, one can still see young drivers in their spit-shined cars out on Grand River beeping their horns at those Sunday drivers, just cruising Grand River.

Bozo: Novi's most famous celebrity

By JAN JEFFRES
Special Writer

For just a $1 ticket, a teen of the 1950s and 1960s could spend an evening grooving to the sounds of popular music's biggest stars at the Walled Lake Casino.

And on hand orchestrating the fun — and keeping his fingers crossed that the talent would show up on time — was Novi resident Art Cervi.

Cervi is better known as for his lead role in the 1960s and 1970s on the nationally-syndicated "Bozo The Clown Show." Before donning the white face and red nose, he was the music director of WKNR (KEENER), coolest of the cool Detroit radio stations.

From there he moved to Channel 9 as a producer/talent coordinator on "Teen Town" and "Swinging Time with Robin Seymour."

Cervi had to know how to sync the hits together in a way to keep the audience asking for more.

"You were listening for sound. You had a kind of build up, a kind of tempo. Then you'd put on something slow to bring it back down, kind of a roller coaster to keep them listening. You couldn't let your own taste dictate the music, that would be the kiss of death," he said.

"You had to go with what the majority wanted."

At the Casino, what the majority wanted as much as anything was the Motown sound. Chuck Berry was a big draw there, too, "if you could get him out of jail long enough."

Local teens also lined up to see The Supremes, The Temptations, The Four Tops, Martha and The Vandellas, Patti Page and Pat Boone.

Along with bringing in live entertainment, Cervi and Robin Seymour jointly ran "Record Hops" at the Walled Lake Casino.

The kids were into the line dance, the swing, the fish, the twist, the limbo. When their feet got tired, their shoes came off.

The right records had to spin.

"It had to be danceable. It couldn't reach a point for 30 seconds where nobody knew what to do. They'd say, 'don't play that anymore,'" Cervi said.

While it was a well-behaved crowd — especially by today's standards — the girls' purses were routinely searched at the door, to make sure they weren't smuggling alcohol.

In those days, Detroit was a happening town — in the best meaning of the term.

Promoters and record distributors courted disc jockeys. For example, one promoter was pushing a 45 by a new British band. Cervi can't recall which song it was — but he liked it.

That's how WKNR became one of the first stations in Detroit to play

The man who would make Bozo famous rocked at the Walled Lake Casino as a deejay in the 50s.

Beatles music.

"A Capitol Record distributor came to me and said, 'would you please play this record?' It was good. Back then the strength of a record was such that you could light up a switchboard at a station just by putting a record on. TV hadn't come in as much as it has today. Radio was a way of life," he said.

Cervi worked with The Beatles when they played Detroit.

"When The Beatles came in to Olympia they were bowling the whole city over," he said.

"I think at that particular time they were like 'what in the world is happening to us? They were young. We weren't much older ourselves."

Hoping to ride the wave of the Beatles' popularity, Seymour and Cervi brought another Brit group to Detroit. Ticket sales fell flat. Most rock music fans stayed home that day.

"They bombed. People weren't ready for the Rolling Stones. They were very, very English. That was one of the reasons they didn't go over well," he said.

"They were older looking and they had a different sound than the Beatles. The Beatles were cute. Everyone took to them. Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones didn't have that cutsey look."

But it wasn't the English groups that really drew the crowds to Walled Lake — although Paul Revere and The Raiders had quite a following, Cervi said.

It was the home-grown talent that perhaps topped the Casino's popularity charts. And unlike some of the other bands, Motown had a track record for reliability.

"Any of the Motown acts always went over well. They were always choreographed. They had all the motions down. Barry Gordy knew how to train his people so they were a class act. He had a limo and driver to pick them up. He didn't take chances," Cervi said.

Bobby Unser at Indy in 1964.

The car that made Novi great

The Novi Special was a top contender at Indy in the 50s

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

If there's anything that put the City of Novi on the map for the rest of the world, it was the Novi Special race cars.

Anyone who had more than a passing interest in the Indianapolis 500 during the 1950s knew of the notorious Novis. They were noisy, they were powerful and they were almost always fast, but for some reason the Novi Special race cars seemed almost jinxed. For a number of reasons, the cars never made it to Victory Lane.

"It's the most historic thing in the community," said Novi's current City Manager Ed Kriewall. "You go around the country, and people know about it. There's even been a book published recently about the Novi race cars, and the author is from Sweden. So they're really known worldwide."

The history of the Novi Special actually begins right before World War II. Lew Welch, a former Ford employee and close friend of Henry Ford, started his own manufacturing company in what was then Novi Township. Novi Equipment Company supplied a variety of components to the automotive industry over the years, from throttle linkages to air conditioning units.

In 1939, Welch joined forces with three-time

"It was a state-of-the-art chassis with front wheel drive. It was the dominant car speed-wise year after year, and set track records year after year."

Ron Watson

Indy 500 winner Louis Meyer to open a Ford reconditioning facility in Vernon, Calif. In this shop, Welch conceived the remarkable supercharged V-8 engine, and put Bud and Ed Winfield, two successful race engine builders of the '20s and '30s, to work designing and building it.

Built for speed and power, the Novi was designed to run mainly at Indy, where the carbureted four-cylinder Offenhauser engine was the dominant powerplant. Welch and the Winfields essentially took two four-cylinder Offy blocks and tied them to a single crankshaft in the V configuration. Then they topped it off with a supercharger to generate 500 horsepower, an unheard-of figure for 1941.

"The first Novis were front wheel drive," said Ron Watson, executive director of the Motorsports Hall of Fame of America, which now displays a restored

1964 Novi Special. "Lew Welch came to Indy with one that ran in the 1941 race, but it was not called a Novi. It was called the Miller-Ford-Winfield V-8 even though they ran the engine."

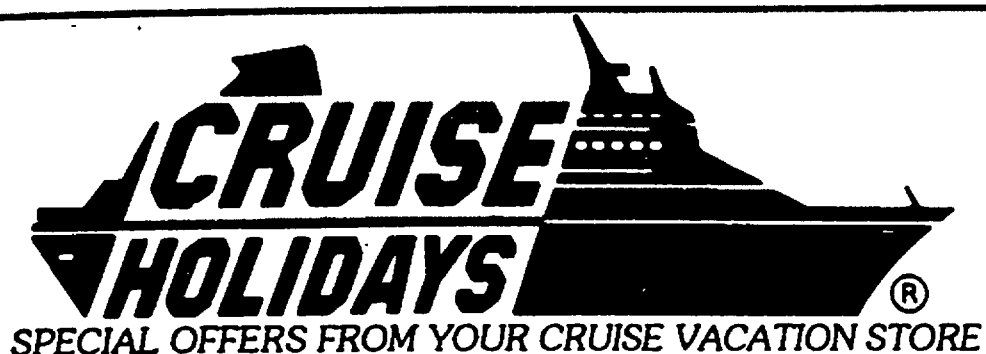

Driver Ralph Hepburn finished the race fourth despite the hinderance of an outdated Miller-Ford chassis.

Though no races were run at Indy during the war years of 1942-45, Welch and company arrived at the Brickyard in 1946 with their brand-spanking new Novi Special. Where many teams were still using mothballed pre-war chassis, the Novi engine was nestled in a brand new Kurtis-built frame.

"It was a state-of-the-art chassis with front wheel drive," said Watson. "It was the dominant car speed-wise year after year, and set track records year after year."

Indeed from 1946 until 1953, when rear-drive roadsters began making headway on the Novi's advanced design, Novi Specials were the fastest qualifiers five times, broke one- and four-lap track records three times, and led the race three times. Victory eluded the Novi for a number of reasons, ranging from crashes, to parts failure, to running out of gas.

The last Novi Special has found a new home in the Novi Civic Center.

Refinements kept Special at the top

Despite its lack of victories, the Novi acquired a faithful following, owing mainly to its distinctive sound. In a field of buzzing four-cylinders, the high-pitched whine of the Novi's supercharged V-8 was unmistakable.

"It was distinguished by that whine," said Watson. "From discussions over years, I've learned that the reason it made that sound was that the early superchargers weren't all that refined. The machining wasn't quite right on it, and it wasn't a perfect shape or roundness."

By the mid-'50s, the front-drive design had outlived its usefulness at Indy. It was too slow through the corners to make much use of the Novi's straight-line speed. Where the Novi was running 170 mph down the straightaways and 115 through the curves, the new rear-drive roadsters were turning 150 down the straights and 130 in the turns.

Worse yet, the car went through tires like they were made of cheesecloth, causing more frequent pit stops. In 1954 and 1955, the car was too slow to even qualify for the race.

In 1956, Welch debuted a pair of Kurtis roadsters, and the Novi's former glory returned. In 1957, Paul Russo was the fastest qualifier, and finished fourth.

ished fourth.

Again, however, technology caught up with the Novi. Fuel injection systems gained favor with campaigners of the Offenhauser four-cylinder, and pushed their speed past that of the Novi.

In the '60s, the Granatelli Novis had fleeting moments of brilliance. Jim Hurtubise qualified No. 2 in the 1963 Indy race. From his starting position in the middle of the front row, he charged ahead to lead the first lap.

"I remember seeing Jim Hurtubise racing from the front row on first lap in 1963," said Watson, who was in attendance at Indy that day. "We were seated in the third turn, and we thought sure he would be in everybody's lap. That was just a beast he was driving. He had everybody's hearts in their throats."

Granatelli entered four-wheel drive Novis in 1964 and '65, but again was undone by the Novi luck. After running fifth fastest in '64, Bobby Unser got caught up in a second-lap crash started by two other cars.

Greg Weld crashed the final Novi during qualifying for the 1966 race, thus ending the racing history of the name Novi.

It was Kriewall who began the effort to bring a restored Novi back to the city that was its namesake.

"I had heard through a car collector that (the Granatellis) had the Novi engines in their possession, and two or three Novis," Kriewall said. "I told them if anyone ends up with this stuff, it ought to be the City of Novi."

Though reluctant to part with their collection of eight engines and two chassis, the Granatellis eventually relented. They set a price tag of $200,000 for all the engines, and the 1964-65 Unser car which had been stripped almost to the bare sheet metal.

The Novi Economic Development Corp. was able to come up with $35,000 for the rolling chassis, without engine. It was the Delwal Co. which finally completed the package.

"Spike Walker of Delwal has been very good to the community, and he was excited over the race car," said Kriewall.

Walker stepped in and offered to donate the $165,000 principle on a five-year loan if the EDC would cover the interest. As a result, the City of Novi now owns the engines and spare parts, while the EDC owns the chassis of the Novi.

"It was a nice deal, and no taxpayer dollars were used for it," said Kriewall. It has also turned out to be quite a bargain. "The collection that we have now is priceless. We've been offered $50,000 just for a single engine."

The events that shaped the 50s decade

They called their decade "the jet age," "the space age," "the atomic age," "the push button age."

In our naivete, we think of the 1950s as the age of innocence.

We remember it as a fun time when both jet planes and rock music broke the sound barrier. But reality has a way of shattering myths: only two rock and roll songs led the charts during the decade. Holding down the No. 1 spot were records like "Good night, Irene" by the Weavers, "The Tennessee Waltz" by Patti Page, "Song From the Moulin Rouge" by Percy Faith, "Volare" by Domenico Modugno and "Mack The Knife" by Bobby Darin.

It's possible in our search for "happy days" that we oversimplify a complex and vital era. Maybe life never was easy, not even when you handled it with little pearl-buttoned white gloves.

■ Do-it-yourselfers find that home bomb shelter plans are readily available.

■ A plastic money milestone — Diner's Club invents the credit card.

■ Americans tune in on 4.4 million TV sets (up from 7,000 in 1946 but a far cry from 1960's 50 million).

■ Lewis Shayon's book "Television and Our Children" discusses the impact of gratuitous violence in television of the 1940s.

■ "What's My Line?" the first TV game show, begins an 18-year run, with a hat-check girl from the Stork Club as the premier contestant. Panelist Steve Allen will coin the question "Is it bigger than a breadbox?"

■ North Korea invades South Korea and U.S. troops are sent in under the command of General Douglas MacArthur.

■ Senator Joseph McCarthy starts a four-year career as the nation's leading Cold Warrior, following his "205 Communists" speech in Wheeling, W. Va.

■ A "Miss Loyalty" is crowned at a Dearborn, Mich., beauty pageant.

■ "Little boxes on a hillside" — the first mass suburban housing development, Levittown, Long Island, packs 'em in like sardines.

1951:

■ CBS scoops its competitors with the first color telecast.

■ Everybody's saying "I Love Lucy" and Ricky, Fred and Ethel for the next 10 years.

■ Another great moment in design history: "amazingly real" plastic plants are introduced to eager consumers.

■ Rodgers & Hammerstein score big with "The King and I," inspiring a craze for Siamese-style pajamas and jewelry.

■ Totally cool. Cleveland disc jockey Alan Freed re-names rhythm and blues for his radio show "Moondog's Rock and Roll Party" — packaging black music for white teens.

■ Donna Reed notwithstanding, the number of women in the work force rises to 19,308,000. Many could take dictation.

1952:

■ "Just the facts, Ma'am" — America's most successful cop show, "Dragnet" starts a seven-year run.

■ Anything Da Vinci can do, you can do better after Palmer Paint Company of Detroit introduces the instant fad "paint by number" kits. (The Last Supper sells for $11.50)

■ They liked Ike. General Dwight D. Eisenhower beats Illinois Gov. Stevenson to the White House, with the help of promotional material like the catch campaign button "Ike and Dick, sure to click."

■ For your viewing pleasure, the first TV Guide is published.

■ About those shelters . . . The U.S. detonates the first hydrogen bomb.

■ Another amazing first: 3-D movies are introduced with "Bwana Devil," a chiller about human-crunching lions assailing railroad builders in Africa.

■ From humble beginnings in the late 1940s, 3,000 drive-in movie theaters (a.k.a. passion pits) are now pleasing the crowds nationwide.

1953:

■ Convicted of passing atomic secrets to the Soviets, Ethel and Julius Rosenberg are electrocuted at Sing Sing prison in New York.

■ 20 percent of the U.S. population has moved to the 'burbs.

■ Fortune Magazine finds that 17.9 million American families qualify as high-income, i.e. have household earnings of $7,500 or more.

■ The Korean War ends as a draw; 54,246 Americans were killed in the three years.

■ Ralph Ellison's novel on the black experience "The Invisible Man" is published.

■ Little green men are hip. An annual average of 600 flying saucer sightings are reported throughout the decade.

1954:

■ Congress inserts the "under God" clause in the Pledge of Allegiance.

■ The cloth diaper industry soars — four million babies are born.

■ A feast in aluminum, the first TV dinner is sold: turkey, sweet potatoes and peas.

■ Comic books reach a peak of popularity, 100 million are purchased monthly, giving the reader a choice of 650 titles.

■ It's a stick-up — Con-Tact paper becomes an instant success.

■ Ernest Hemingway's "The Old

Man and the Sea" wins the Nobel Prize for literature.

■ "King of the wild frontier" Davy Crockett, as portrayed by Fess Parker, debuts on the new Disneyland TV series, shooting off a $100 million consumer frenzy for records, coonskin caps, shirts and lunchboxes.

■ Willie Mays is the baseball's MVP for the New York Giants.

■ A young and thin Elvis cuts his first record, "That's All Right Mamma."

■ Marlon Brando, also thin, stars in "The Wild One" and "On The Waterfront."

■ In Brown vs. the Board of Education of Topeka, the U.S. Supreme Court outlaws segregated schools.

■ The U.S. Information Service bans Henry Thoreau's "Walden" from its libraries, finding the 1854 classic "downright subversive."

1955:

■ "My blue heaven" — split-level mania sweeps the nation. Would-be homeowners literally line up to buy 'em.

■ General Motors is the first company to report an annual profit of $1 billion.

■ It's not easy being young — Natalie Wood and James Dean star in "A Rebel Without A Cause." Subsequently, Dean, 24, is killed in a car crash.

■ Charles Schulz draws up a storm with "Peanuts."

■ Rudof Flesch's "Why Johnny Can't Read" and the paperback appearance of Benjamin Spock's 1946 classic "The Pocketbook of Baby and Childcare" helped the older generation figure out those crazy kids.

■ "Think Pink" bedazzles men's fashions. No cool cat's wardrobe is complete without a blush-colored shirt, bathrobe, bow tie or boxer shorts.

■ Rosa Parks, by refusing to surrender her bus seat to a white in Montgomery, Ala., sparks a 54-week boycott which catapults Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. to national fame.

■ The Salk vaccine is found effective in preventing polio.

■ The M-i-c(you real soon)-k-e-y M-o-u-s-e Club begins its four-year run, starring an as yet under-developed Annette Funicello.

■ First rock 'n roll record to zoom to the top of the charts; Bill Haley and the Comets' "Rock Around the Clock."

■ 'erford, 'erford and (Rex) 'arrison — Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady," also starring Julie Andrews, becomes the Broadway smash of the decade.

■ Ike whumps Adlai again.

■ Little Richard's "Long Tall Sally" is the first black hit to "cross over" to the white market; Chuck Berry follows with "Roll Over, Beethoven."

■ People were reading J.D. Salinger's "The Catcher in the Rye" and William H. Whyte Jr.'s "The Organization Man." They were having trouble reading Allen Ginsberg's poem "Howl" — the poetry books were seized by San Francisco police on obscenity charges. It's not easy being Beat.

■ James Dean's grieving fans shell out 25 cents apiece to see the fatal automobile, 25 cents to sit behind the steering wheel and $20 for a souvenir piece of the vehicle.

■ Cleveland disc jockey Alan Freed bans all Pat Boone records from his radio show. Real gone.

■ Local news flashes: The Detroit Lions roar past the Cleveland Browns for the NFL crown. Berry Gordy Jr. sells his first hit song for a cool $1,000: "Reet Petite," recorded by Jackie Wilson. Ford introduces the Edsel; no one wants to get acquainted.

1958:

■ Orbiter I, the first — successful — U.S. satellite is launched.

■ So are "Leave It To Beaver," "The Twilight Zone," "Bonanza" and "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis."

■ Wham-O markets the hula hoop for $1.98 apiece; in six months 30 million are sold.

■ Speaking of mass consumption, fifty percent of all records sold are now purchased by teen-agers.

■ Barbie, the teen-aged fashion vixen, is introduced by Mattel Inc.

■ Ritchie Valens, the Big Bopper and Buddy Holly die in a plane crash in Clear Lake, Iowa.

1972:

■ What goes around comes around. The fifties are rediscovered in the Broadway hit "Grease," starring Barry Bostwick. The score includes the tear-jerker "It's Raining on Prom Night."

1973:

■ All right, the movie was set in 1962. But "American Graffiti" fed the bizarre hunger for the 1950s and inspired a new television show the following year.

1974:

■ Meet Arthur Fonzarelli, your mother's worst nightmare. "Happy Days" salutes juvenile delinquency and 1970s college students abandon protest marches for fab fifties parties.

The songs that made the '50s great

As is typical, the events we generally think of as "defining" an era or a decade don't necessarily correspond to the actual dates of that decade.

So it was with the "Fifties," the decade most of us equate with the birth of Rock 'n' Roll.

The very first rock 'n' roll hit didn't actually break into Billboard magazine's record charts until 1955.

And some of the truly great Fifties-era rock 'n' roll hits were still being recorded as late as 1964—CHAPEL OF LOVE, by The Dixie Cups; RAG DOLL, by The Four Seasons; PRETTY WOMAN, by Roy Orbison; and LEADER OF THE PACK, by The Shangri-Las.

But by that time, the British were already invading, surf tunes were coming in waves and Motown was revving up, all working together to usher in an entirely new decade which would come to be known, sure enough, as "The Sixties."

What follows is a chronology of the records (45 rpm singles) that reached the number one position on the charts during "The Fifties" (1955-63), not all of which were rock 'n' roll.

The hits are listed by record title, the artist who recorded them, the date they first hit the number one position, and the number of weeks they stayed there. For '55 through '58, the list is a combination of four charts used by Billboard until the magazine consolidated them into a single list in '59.

Novi News to give away Graceland trip

"I dug the real low down Mississippi singers, mostly Big Bill Broonzy and Big Boy Crudup. Although they would scold me at home for listening to them . . . We were broke, man, broke, and we left Tupelo overnight. Dad packed all our belongings in boxes and put them on top and in the trunk of a 1939 Plymouth. We just headed for Memphis. Things had to be better."
— Elvis Presley

Things did get better too. A few short years later, Presley would cut a cover of Big Boy Crudup's blues tune "That's All Right" to launch a career that would transform rock and roll.

It would also transform Presley from a member of the working class into the owner a mansion known as Graceland.

Now you can get a look at that mansion in Memphis, Tennessee, as the Novi News, in conjunction with HomeTown Newspapers and Northwest Airlines will be giving away a trip to Graceland during the Michigan 50s Festival, July 22-26.

The prize in the drawing will include round trip airfare for two to Memphis, two nights deluxe hotel accommodations, and two tickets for a tour of Elvis' home.

To enter, just fill out the entry form included in this special section and submit it to the Novi News booth at the exhibitors tent during the 50s Festival. (Sorry, we can accept only one entry per family and each entry must be made on an original form from the Michigan 50s Festival supplement.)

The drawing for the trip will be held Sunday, July 26, in the festival Entertainment Tent. Entrants needn't be present at the drawing in order to win.

"When I was boy, I was the hero in comic books and movies. I grew up believing in that dream," Elvis said near the end of his career. "Now I've lived it out. That's all a man can ask for."

Peaceful decade led to the tumult of the '60s

Fifties was a period of change for nation

Hula hoops and Kerouac. The Checkers Speech and leather jackets. Ike and Brando.

Real Happy Days stuff. That's how we seem to want to remember the era.

The 1950s are often viewed that way, whether or not one even lived through that decade. Brando and Elvis were mitigated by golf-loving Eisenhower and the thin tubes of plastic that could be twirled around one's hips or neck or legs or arms. Prosperity was at hand; the average Joe was well on his way to owning a home, a yard and a 30-year mortgage.

But an undercurrent of change was at hand. To many, Kerouac's On the Road was written in a strange and somewhat fearsome language. The black man's jazz wafted from inner city and tugged at an increasing number of whites.

White musicians, including those who would be proclaiming King, blatantly stole the pulsing Delta rhythms from blacks, cranking up the beat. But as we roller skated and cruised and rocked around the clock, our eyes tunneled and our minds perhaps a bit flabby, the warning signals grew and the '50s seeded the rolling dark clouds that were to explode during the stormy 1960s.

There was Richard Nixon, vice-presidential candidate squirming his way out of a campaign contribution scandal by sticking up for his wife's "Republican" cloth coat and "Checkers," the puppy given to his daughter by an adoring fan.

There was bloody Korea and our first contact with Red China. And there was the Cold War and McCarthyism and red-baiting.

Topical inspection shows the '50s as a decade of fun, innocence and prosperity. Rebels like James Dean were lionized, but the message was clear—live too fast, die too young.

Trend of the '50s took on a many and varied texture. Today we like to reflect upon that era as a simpler time, and perhaps it was. But today's giddy recollection of hula hoops and blue suede shoes should be tempered by the realization that the '50s were a spawning ground for change.

Back by popular demand, Rocky and the Rollers.

Music is attraction of the 50s Festival

"Back by popular demand" might be the best way to describe the top acts appearing this year at the Fifth Annual Michigan 50s Festival.

The Danny Vann Tribute to Elvis Show, Rocky & the Rollers and Moose & Da Sharks have all appeared at the 50s Festival before and won such excellent reviews from the crowd that this year they have asked back as festival headliners.

Also on the bill are new acts, such as Sh-Boom and Big Blue Couch. Rocky & the Rollers: Rocky & the Rollers backed up the "name" act that performed on Saturday night last year, but the crowd clearly preferred Rocky & the Rollers. That's not unusual, according to Jerry Seader, drummer and vocalist for the band.

The Gainesville, Florida-based band, specializing in rock from the '50s, '60s and '70s, started out 15 years ago by backing up the "name" acts from the '50s. Because they play such a wide variety of rock, and because they have kept their musical styles updated, they find they often draw larger audiences, Seader said.

The band — which along with Seader includes bassist Corey Anderson, guitarist Dave Parker and keyboard player Greg Cellini — particularly enjoys playing Novi's 50s Festival.

"Nothing's been said and we haven't asked, but as long as we're still rockin' and they want us back, we'll be there," Seader said.

Moose & Da Sharks: This Detroit-based band, which has toured nationally for most of its 20 years in the business, has been staying closer to home in recent years, playing mainly in the Detroit metro area. But according to Tyree "Moose" Weber, the band's guitarist, they wouldn't dream of missing the Michigan 50s Festival. He said Novi's festival is considered to be "the highlight" of the band's year.

Moose & Da Sharks was formulated in '72 as its members were graduating from Salesian High School in Detroit.

Now the band consists of Moose, bassist Ted "Bones" Burns, guitarist Dave "Happy Rod" Komondy, female vocalist Rockee Berlin and drummer John Ullman.

Bobby Sox & the Greasers/Tracey Lynne & the Mountain Express: The Greasers is a band that was actually formulated for the 50s Festival in 1988, and went on to perform 50s era music elsewhere. The band is back for the first time since 1988.

The act was put together back then by New Hudson resident Tracey Lynne at the request of Novi Chamber Executive Director Connie Mallett. Lynne had performed her country act, Tracey Lynne & the Mountain Express, for another local festival only weeks earlier, according to Lynne's mother and manager Aileen Arledge, and Mallett asked if her group could perform 50s era music.

Using the same band members, Lynne changed costumes and musical styles to create the new band.

But while Lynne will be appearing as Bobby Sox at the festival Wednesday evening, she and her band will also be appearing in their earlier country carnation Sunday afternoon. This would mark the first appearance of a country band in the 50s Festival lineup.

Arledge said that Lynne, who now resides in Nashville, has performed all across the country and has appeared with such country celebrities as Garth Brooks, Marie Osmond and Mel Tillis. She has also performed with Ray Charles.

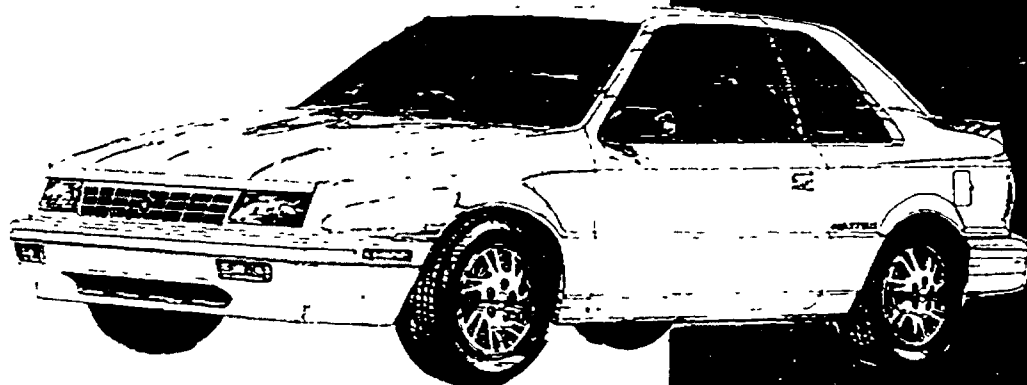

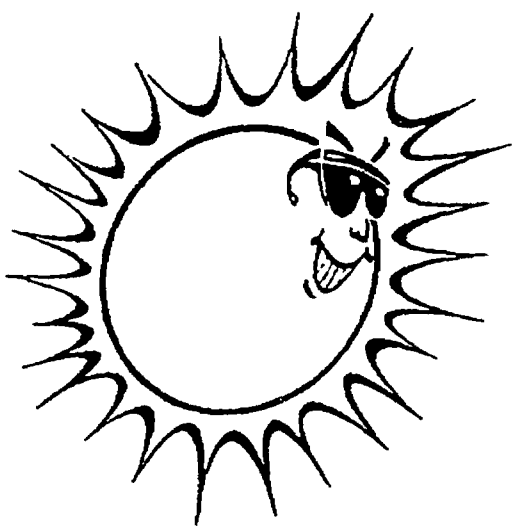

Big Blue Couch: Although hardly a 50s style band, playing mostly original songs described as "hard" and "acid" rock, the band has won acclaim in the Lansing area since it was formed a year and a half ago. The band will be performing in the Family Show Tent Saturday evening for the 17- to 20-year-old crowd.

Still the band has a clear tie to Novi and the festival. Drummer Jayson Gilbert is the son of Richard Gilbert, co-founder of the 50s Festival and one of only a few of the original group of organizers still active in the festival.

The band consists of Gilbert, vocalist Adam Capen, guitarist Apollo Price and bassist Jon Demrick.

Volunteers work hard so 50s Festival is fun

By KATHLEEN MUTCH
Special Writer

Cruisers. Just the word conjures up the images of the fifties.

Sleek, flashy, tail-finned cars cruising the main drags of Small-town, America. Young men with slicked back ducktail haircuts, preening their pompadours and waterfalls as they ease their big machines through the lots of the drive-in restaurants cruisin' for chicks.

Young women in crinoline skirts and bobby-sox sipping on Cokes and eying the guys driving by hoping for an invitation to go cruisin', too. Cruisers were the fifties and the fifties were fun.

At the Michigan 50s Festival anyone can recapture the fun of the fifties and be a cruiser, too.

The Cruisers are a group of volunteers who assist a steering committee through the planning and promotional stages of the 50s Festival and during the five days of festival events.

According to Cruiser coordinator, Cindy Kopczynski, "Cruisers are the right arm of the Festival committee, the extension that makes the whole thing work."

Cruisers promote the festival before hand, passing out literature at parades and making presentations. During the festival they provide directions and information, arrange parking for the car shows, direct traffic around the Sunday car parade, collect cover charges for some events and dispense pop and beer for others.

In general, whether it means posting signs or selling tickets, Cruisers are there to assist visitors, vendors and exhibitors to make the festival a success.

Kopczynski, an original volunteer and Cruiser organizer, readily identifies the benefits of being a member of the group — friendship and fun.

Most of the forty current members were encouraged to join by friends, but some got involved as a way to meet others. When Kopczynski originally volunteered, she looked to her own friends for recruits. "I went to five girls I bowl with and we all signed up right away. We thought it sounded like fun."

It takes a lot of hard work to play host to this many people having this much fun.

Cruisers, as in the fifties, often come in pairs or packs. "We have had a lot of couples volunteer. In some cases, commitments survived break-ups in friendships and in marriages," Kopczynski said. She said her own experience is typical, "I have gotten to meet a lot of people I never would have met and it has really been fun."

Anyone can become a member of the volunteer group by paying a one-time $10 membership fee and completing an application form available at the Novi Chamber of Commerce office. The fee helps to offset the cost of the Cruiser shirts that the volunteers wear during the festival.

Cruisers can be easily identified by their shirts, with the festival logo on the front and the Cruiser name on the back, as they patrol the festival site. They typically make a commitment for eight to ten hours over the five days of the festival.

"We all work together pretty well, but by the end of the festival," Kopczynski said, "we're all pretty well burned out, especially if it's been hot." The group gets along so well that an effort is made to get together after the festival is over to socialize and unwind. That's when the Cruisers discover that the volunteer who blew up the balloons was a local politician and the one who directed traffic was a short order cook; the one who knew every model of every car was an auto parts salesman and the one who excelled at crisis management was a third grade teacher.

New this year, Novi hosts softball tourney

A slow-pitch softball tournament, qualifier to the Amateur Softball Association Class C national competition in Battle Creek this September, has been added to the list of activities scheduled for the Michigan 50s Festival.

"We are expecting to get at least 16 teams," Novi Parks and Recreation softball coordinator Dave Peterson said. "We can have a maximum of 24 teams, but if we get 16 teams, that would be pretty good for a first year tournament."

The double elimination tourney is set to begin Friday, July 24, and run through Sunday, July 26, at Power Park behind the Novi Civic Center at 45175 W. Ten Mile Road. The deadline for entry in the contest is July 16 and the entry fee is $130 per team. A week before the deadline, Peterson said five teams had already signed up for the event.

Novi Parks will also host a Home Run Derby for participants in the tournament to raise money for Novi Youth Assistance. Scheduled for 1 p.m. at the ballfields in Power Park, each participant will be allowed 15 or 20 pitches to take 10 hits. The hitter who swats the large number over the fence will be the winner.

Novi Parks, which already hosts softball tournaments in the spring and fall, added the 50s Fest tourney because of the large number of requests for such an event, Peterson said. He noted that nearby Farmington also has had great success with its softball tournament, held in conjunction with the Founders Day Festival there.

If the 50s Festival tourney holds true to trends set by Novi's two other softball tournaments, Peterson said there will likely be 16 teams of 20 players each. Most will be from Novi and the surrounding area, but some will travel from as far away as Mt. Clemens to join the games.

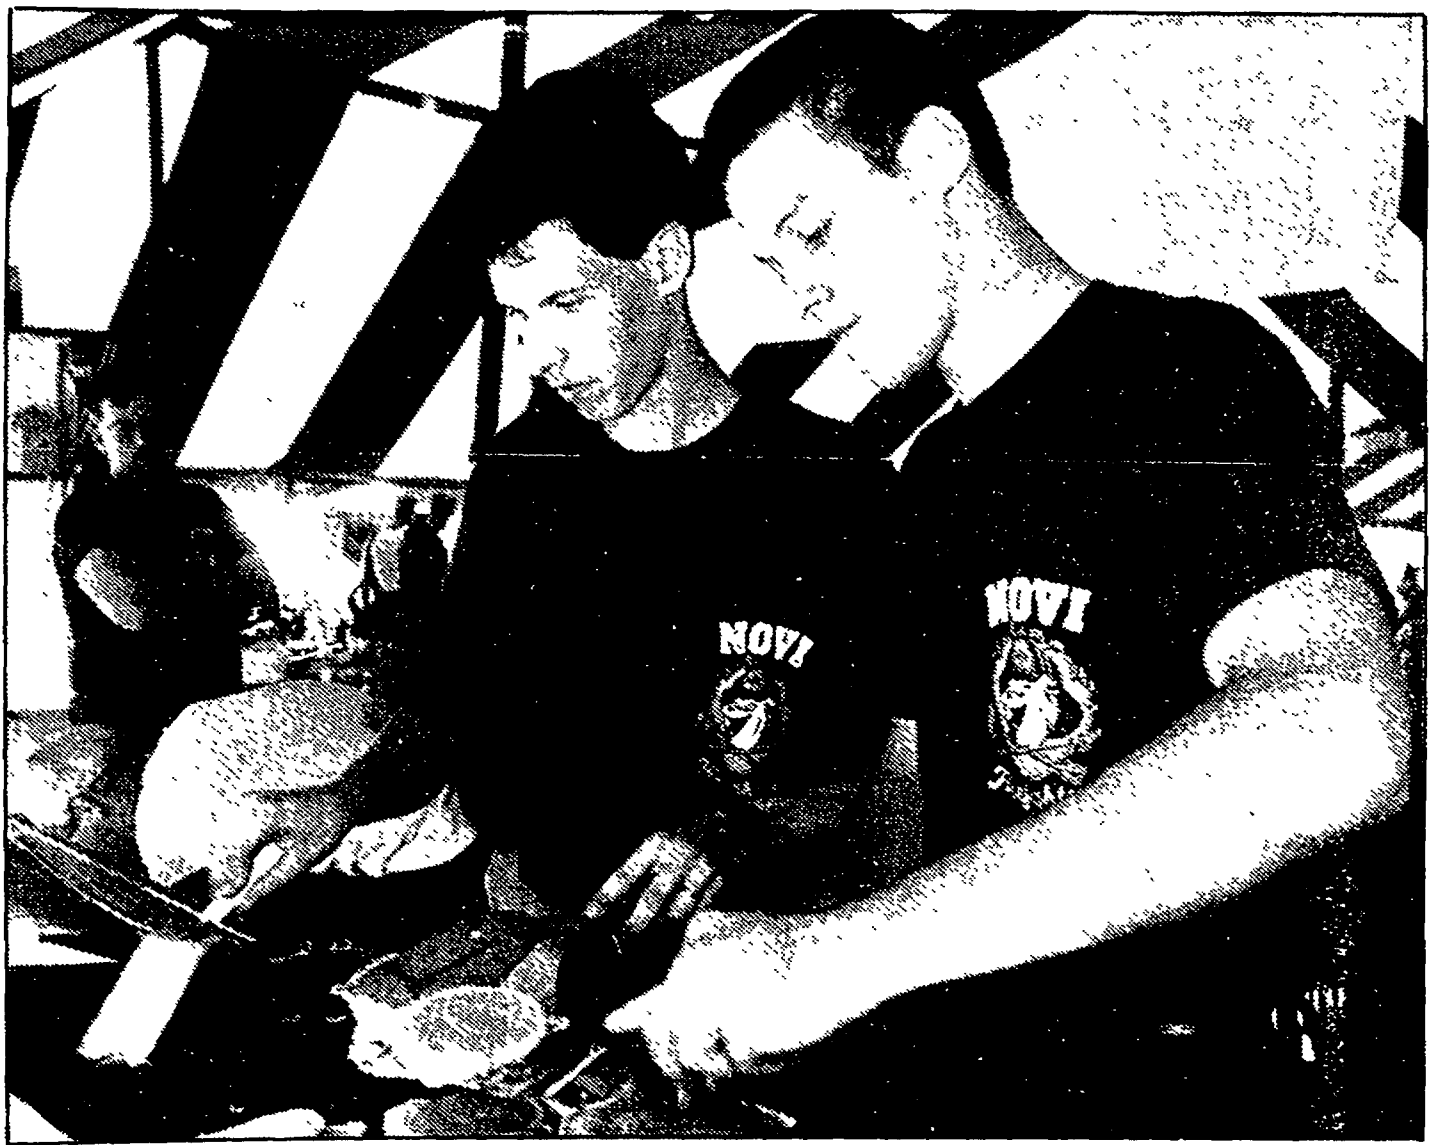

"It's mostly for the participants, but we get the players' families and a few local spectators. We'd really like it if more people came out to watch. And I think they'd like it too. They play some pretty decent softball out there," Peterson said.

All players are required to be 18 years old and must be registered with the ASA. The winner of the tournament will head off to Battle Creek for the Men's Class C & Below Slow-Pitch National Softball Tournament September 24-27.

Novi Parks will also provide trophies to first, second and third place winners in the event. Bat bags will go to the first place team and golf shirts to the second place team. A bat will also be awarded to the player named offensive MVP and a glove will be given to the defensive MVP. The winner of the Home Run Derby will be given an award bat.

THE MICHIGAN 50s FESTIVAL

Festivities scheduled for West Oaks Mall

The West Oaks Shopping Center will celebrate the fifth annual Michigan 50s Festival Celebration along with the rest of Novi Thursday, July 23, through Sunday, July 26, at the.

The merchants at West Oaks will have a Rock Around the Clock Sidewalk Sale, sponsor 50s style contests, host rock and roll activities and offer extra special bargains at nifty fifties prices just for this event.

Free events and entertainment will be presented throughout the shopping center from noon to 4 p.m. every day and WOMC radio personalities will be on hand for a Mystery Shopper Promotion on Saturday from noon to 2 p.m.

West Oaks merchants have really gotten behind the festival this year and the result is a wide variety of activities throughout the week.

The events will start at noon everyday when live bands such as Benny & The Jets and The Hits will perform.

Clown "Scooter" and her friends will make balloon animals for shoppers and provide face painting for children.

Mimes will entertain the customers while caricature artists sketch the be-boppers on hand.

An authentic antique circus callopie will be played live to add to the fun.

Geoffrey and Gigi Giraffe will bring their family to Children's Palace for the festivities, while Mr. Peanut and the M & M Character visit Mail Boxes, Etc.

A $2,500 Shopping Spree Contest is being held at United Paint.

On Saturday, WOMC radio personalities will host a Mystery Shopper event and surprise shoppers with $25 gift certificates and other prizes from noon to 2 p.m.

For further information regarding the Michigan 50s Festival activities being held at West Oaks, contact Linda Anderson, Ramco-Gershenson Marketing Consultant at 350-9900.
